EXODUS

EXODUS

BOOK I

*1. (Ex. xii. 2) ^a " This month (shall be) for you the beginning of months ; it is the first in the months of the year. " ^b

(Scripture) thinks it proper to reckon the cycle of months from the vernal equinox. ^c Moreover, (this month) is said to be the " first " and the " beginning " by synonymy, ^d since these (terms) are explained by each other, for it is said to be the first both in order and in power ^e ; similarly that time which proceeds from the vernal equinox also appears (as) the beginning both in order and in power, in the same way as the head (is the beginning) of a living creature. And thus those who are learned in astronomy have given this name ^f to the before-mentioned time. For they call the Ram the head of the zodiac ^g since in it the sun appears to produce the vernal equinox. ^h And in addition to this, it was fitting for it to be (the beginning) ⁱ

^a Philo comments on this verse, without quoting it literally, in De Vita Mosis ii. 222-223 and De Spec. Leg. ii. 151-152.

^b LXX ὁ μὴν οὗτος ὑμῶν ἀρχὴ μηνῶν, πρῶτος ἐστὶν ὑμῶν ἐν τοῖς μηνσὶν τοῦ ἐνιαυτοῦ.

of the times that come into being during the year. Accordingly, when the fruits of things that are sown become full grown on the trees, then they receive the beginning of hearing, in order that the gracious acts of God may be prolonged perpetually as they replace one another and as they join the ends to the beginnings and the beginnings to the ends.^a But in the first creation^b of all things, in which He also made the world,^c He constituted all things at the same time to be filled with their fruits of mated thoughts.^d For it was proper that this be so, since the Father left no appearance^e at all of superfluity or deficiency. And this was especially for the sake of man, to whom He was about to entrust the beginning of customs,^f that he might immediately find all things perfect and perfectly produced.^g

And that (Scripture) presupposes^h the vernal equinox to be the beginning of the cycle of months is clear from the notions of time heldⁱ in the ordinances^j and traditions of various nations. And one may make certain of this^k from the sheaves of first-fruits^l which (Scripture) commands

^a Only slightly different is the wording of the Greek fragment (which contains only this sentence of the section), "Ὅταν οἱ τῶν σπαρτῶν καρποὶ τελειωθῶσιν, οἱ τῶν δένδρων γενέσεως ἀρχὴν λαμβάνουσιν ἵνα δολιχεύωσιν αἱ τοῦ θεοῦ χάριτες τὸν αἰῶνα, παρ' ἄλλων ἄλλαι διαδεχόμεναι καὶ συνάπτουσαι τέλη μὲν ἀρχαῖς, ἀρχὰς δὲ τέλει, ἀτελεύτητοι ᾖσιν." The last two words appear to be an addition to the original text of Philo.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(us) to bring on the second day of the festival ^a for the needs of the service, ^b and spring is the season of harvest. ^c

But one may be in doubt why it is that since there are two equinoxes, the vernal and the autumnal, which nature ^d established as the just canons ^e of the equinoxes, it was not from the autumnal one but from that which falls in spring that (Scripture) begins to reckon time. ^f For it is in the spring that every fertile place both in mountain and plain grows and blossoms and bears fruit, but in the autumn, so soon as there is gathered whatever fruit the earth has borne, the plants lose their leaves and dry up. But it is necessary to attribute the beginning to the better and more desirable (season). To me, moreover, it seems that the autumnal equinox is to the vernal as a servant is to a queen. For it ministers to the earth by giving it rest and by making lighter the trees which have been suffering hardship in their nature, and by fighting like a brave athlete, it enables them to gather together their strength and to make a new start from the beginning. ^g Now, if this is so, no one will err in saying that in the same way as heaven (is superior) to (the rest of) the universe, ^h so among the seasons the spring is prior to and more sovereign than the autumn.

But not all (peoples) treat the months and years alike, but some in one way and some in another. Some reckon by the sun, others by the moon. And because of this the initiators of the divine festivals have expressed divergent views about the beginnings of the year, setting divergent beginnings to the revolutions of the seasons suitable to the beginnings of the cycles. Wherefore (Scripture) has added, "This month (shall be) to you the beginning," making clear a determined and distinct number of seasons, lest they follow the Egyptians, with whom they are mixed, and be seduced by the customs of the land in which they dwell.^a For He wishes this season to be (the beginning) of creation for the world, and the beginning of months and years for the race.^b Now the season in which the world was created, as anyone will ascertain in truth who uses a proper method of inquiry (and) deliberation, was the season of spring, since it is at this time that all things in common blossom and grow, and the earth produces its perfected fruits. And, as I have said, nothing was imperfect in the first creation of the universe.^c For special care was taken that the race should be civilized^d and receive a special portion of excellence in honour of (its) piety,^e (namely) this megalopolis, the world,^f and civilization,^g by which it manages its economy.^h Wherefore He thought it proper that the same season (should be) a memorial both of the creation of the world and of that which is kin to it,ⁱ

^a Aueher renders slightly more freely, "ne in Aegyptiorum sibi rent mores, mixtim in regione eorum habitantes consuetudine seducti."

^b τῷ γένει. Apparently the human race, not merely the Israelite nation, is meant.

^c οὐδέν ἀτελές ἦν ἐν τῇ πρώτῃ τοῦ ὅλου γενέσει.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

again in order that the spring might be the beginning of every time, for time came into being together with the creation of the world. And the race,^a following nature and the whole dispensation of heaven,^b reckoned ^c the seasons similarly and in harmony with the months and years, giving the same priority to the spring as it has in the creation of the world. For at the command of the Lord,^d wherever it was arranged ^e that they should change their dwelling from Egypt, being persuaded by clear words, He prescribed ^f the first month as the time of migration.^g But this is the same as the seventh (month) in the solar period, for the seventh (month) from the autumnal equinox is described as the time of migration, and it is the first (month) according to the solar reckoning.^h

2. (Ex. xii. 3, 6) Why does (Moses) command that from the tenth (day of the first month) a sheep be kept for the fourteenth (day), which was to be sacrificed ?ⁱ

^f Lit. "wrote."

^h Nisan (March-April) is the first month of the vernal or festival calendar, and the seventh month of the autumnal or civil calendar, which begins with Tishri (Sept.-Oct.). The above passage has a close parallel in De Spec. Leg. ii. 150 ἑβδομος ὦν ὁ μὴν οὗτος (Nisan) ἀριθμῶ τε καὶ τάξει κατὰ τὸν ἡλιακὸν κύκλον δυνάμει πρῶτός ἐστι, διὸ καὶ πρῶτος ἐν ταῖς ἱεραῖς βίβλοις ἀναγράφεται.

ⁱ LXX τῇ δεκάτῃ τοῦ μηνὸς τούτου λαβέτωσαν ἕκαστος πρόβατον κατ' οἶκους πατριῶν, ἕκαστος πρόβατον κατ' οἰκίαν . . . (vs. 6) καὶ ἔσται ὑμῖν διατετηρημένον ἕως τῆς τεσσαρεσκαιδεκάτης τοῦ μηνὸς τούτου, καὶ σφάζουσιν αὐτὰ πᾶν τὸ πλῆθος συναγωγῆς υἰῶν Ἰσραὴλ πρὸς ἑσπέραν. Philo quotes part of vs. 3 and comments on it differently in De Congressu 106-108; he also alludes to vs. 6 in De Vita Mosis ii. 224-225.

EXODUS, BOOK I

In the first place, (this was commanded) in order that he who offered sacrifice might perform the sacrifice not offhandedly ^a and on the spur of the moment and without preparation but with care and thought as if rendering thanks to God, the saviour and benefactor of all (men).^b In the second place, by this allusion ^c to the sacrifice which was to be prepared beforehand he wishes to teach this first, (namely) that he who was about to offer the sacrifice should first prepare his soul and body ^d—the latter by abstaining from uncleanness in holiness and purity, and the former by quietly giving himself up to God ^e in order that it might be released, even though not altogether, from the passions that disturbed it, for, according to the saying, one should not enter with unwashed feet on the pavement of the temple of God.^f In the third place, he wishes to test the nation for several ^g days as to just how it stands in respect of faith,^h since he clearly knew (them to be) of two minds,ⁱ not having been prepared beforehand for sacrifice and through negligence not having taken thought as was suitable and fitting. In the fourth place, he clearly introduces the defeat of the Egyptians, for though they were not altogether crushed and dismayed by the things which had happened to them, he was referring to the evils which were about to overtake them in five days and which they would have to endure one after another ^j when the enemy would prepare to offer the sacrifices of victory. That is the literal meaning.^k But as for the deeper meaning,^l it was fitting that this should be, (namely) that the numbers and the nature of all things should be brought together.^a For when souls^b appear bright and visible, their visions^c begin to hold festival,^d hoping for a life without sorrow or fear as their lot and seeing the cosmos^e with the weight of the understanding^f as full and perfect, in harmony with the decad.^g That is to say, what else would its experience^h be but festive?ⁱ

3. (Ex. xii. 3b) Why is it that (Moses) commands a sheep to be taken "in accordance with the houses of the clans"^j?

In the first place, because clans are a kind of great kin-group and a large number of men,^k but small are those (clans) which in accordance with the houses and by blood are reduced to a small number of men. And so, bringing those (groups) which are small into kinship with the large

^a Apparently Philo is thinking of the numbers ten and fourteen in relation to the lunar calendar.

^b ψυχαί (see note d).

^c Or "forms": Aucher "visus."

^d One is tempted to restore the apparently corrupted original as, "For when bright and visible visions appear to souls, they (i.e. "the souls") begin to hold festival." It seems that the original had ψυχαῖς, not ψυχαί.

^e Arm. zard, which Aucher renders literally by "ornamentum," obviously reflects κόσμον in the sense of "cosmos."

^f Slightly emending the Arm. which seems to reflect τοῦ λόγου ὀλκῆ, cf. De Plantatione 21 τὴν πρὸς τὸ ὄν διανοίας ὀλκῆν.

^g This is the best sense which I can get from the obscure clause, which Aucher renders, "vitam tristitia et timore carentem sperantes sortiri certo in decimo plenum, et perfectum cernentes ornamentum rationis perpensionisque."

^h πάθος.

^j ἰ.κ.κ λαβέτωσαν ἕκαστος πρόβατον κατ' οἶκους πατριῶν (Heb. "of the fathers"), ἕκαστος πρόβατον κατ' οἰκίαν. In De Congressu 106 Philo quotes part of the verse, δεκάτῃ τοῦ μηνὸς τούτου λαβέτωσαν ἕκαστος πρόβατον κατ' οἰκίαν, and comments in part as here, see below. See also De Vita Mosis ii. 224.

ones, he makes them worthy to be table-companions ^a and to come together in one place for the sharing of salt and offerings and sacrifices, which makes for harmonious affection ^b and binds it more firmly. For law is always a maker of peace and unity, ^c especially as they were about to go on a journey. But on a journey tent-mates ^d are useful, and he thought it right for them to make this after beginning with sacrifice. In the second place, he commands that everyone's sacrifice shall be made "in accordance with the house," (and also the sacrifices) of defenders and allies, ^e since in every house of their adversaries the death of the first-born was to take place, so that anyone seeing one (death) after another may at the same time praise and fear the beneficence and just acts (of God). For unexpected things ^f happened within a short time: among some there would be the offering of sacrifices, among others the destruction of the first-born; for some there would be festivals and rejoicing, for others mourning and sorrow; for some there would be blessings and hymns, for others wailings and groans and incessant lamentations. That is the literal meaning. ^g But as for the deeper meaning, ^h it is this. The sheep is "progressive," as the name itself shows, being so called in accordance with the progress ⁱ of the soul, and it indicates improvement. ^j And he wishes that not in one part but in all their parts, by which I mean their nature, ^k they may progress and grow in virtue ^l in respect of their senses and words and sovereign mind, ^m

4. (Ex. xii. 11) ^d But what is the Pascha,^e which is interpreted as "Passover" ^f?

They make the Passover sacrifice while changing their dwelling-place in accordance with the commands of the Logos,^g in return for three beneficent acts (of God), which are the beginning and the middle of the freedom to which they now attain.^h And the beginning was that they were able to conquer the harsh and insupportable masters of whom they had had experience and who ⁱ had brought all kinds of evil upon them, and this (came about) in two ways, by having their force ^j and their numbers increase. And the middle was that they saw the divinely sent punishments and disasters which overtook their enemies, (for) it was not the nations which fought against them but the regions of the world and the four elements ^k which came against them with the harmfulness and violence of beasts. That is the literal meaning.^l But the deeper meaning ^m is this. Not only do men make the Passover sacrifice when they change their places but so also and more properly ⁿ do souls when they begin to give up the pursuits of youth and their terrible disorder ^a and they change to a better and older state. And so our mind ^b should change from ignorance and stupidity to education and wisdom,^c and from intemperance and dissoluteness to patience and moderation,^d and from fear and cowardice to courage and confidence,^e and from avarice and injustice to justice and equality.^f And there is still another Passover of the soul ^g beside this, which is its making the sacrifice of passing over from the body; and there is one of the mind, (namely, its passing over) from the senses ^h; and as for thoughts,ⁱ (their passing over consists) in one's not being taken with oneself ^j but in willingly thinking further of desiring and emulating prophetic souls.^k

In Quis Rer. Div. Heres 193 Philo quotes the verse in the following form, ἐὰν ὀλίγοι ᾧσιν αἱ ἐν τῇ οἰκίᾳ ᾧστε μὴ ἱκανοὺς εἶναι εἰς τὸ πρόβατον, τὸν πλησίον γείτονα προσλαβείν, κατ' ἀριθμὸν ψυχῶν κτλ.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

From the literal text ^a you see how much love of mankind and common feeling ^b he shows, since the divine Word gives the command ^c not only to keep (the festival) ^d but also to take thought about giving a share in it ^e to their neighbours and those near by, both in equality and in likeness. For it is about a most honourable thing—and what is more honourable than sacrifice?—and about that which is held in honour and is a matter of sharing in the smallest things that he seems to be legislating ^f in the present passage. ^g That is the literal meaning. But as for the deeper meaning, ^h there are some souls which have a full and complete kinship, ⁱ being adapted to the nobility of concord, ^j their thoughts being in accord with their words, and their words with their deeds. ^k And there are others which lack the elements ^l of eternity, being deficient in nobility. Now these elements pour out love, ^m always ⁿ receiving neighbours and those who come near. For as a kind of neighbour and as near to us in respect of desire for virtue ^o (we may consider) the theories of the so-called school studies. ^p And one who is nourished by these and keeps in practice, ^q makes up for his deficiencies by receiving the common discipline of the mind. ^r And the instruction of the school studies should be not childish and puerile but rational ^s and

*6. (Ex. xii. 4b) Why does (Moses) command that everyone shall "number sufficient for himself" for the sacrifice?^d

In the first place, excess and defect of equality^e produce inequality.^f And inequality,^g if I may use rather mythological terms, is the mother of injustice, just as, on the other hand, equality^h is (the mother of) justice.ⁱ But sufficiency is midway between excess and defect.^j In this passage Holy Scripture lays down (the rule), "Nothing too much."^k But in the second place, one's own labour in tilling the soil is a measure of moderation^l in the things necessary and useful for bodily life. And (it is to be) male, first, because the male is more perfect than the female. Wherefore it is said by the naturalists that the female is nothing else than an imperfect male. ^e In the second place, since it was commanded by the king of the land that the males should die, he thought it right, in face of this and also for the sake of thanksgiving, to make a sacrifice of male animals. And third, because of the king's cruelty and wickedness ^f in ordering the proclamation against the Hebrew children, (he thought it right) to nourish the female and to kill the male (sheep). For since the (king's) command had been annulled by the friendliness and humane-ness and power of God, ^g it was proper to give thanks for the males unexpectedly ^h kept alive by (making) male sacrifices. 10. (Ex. xii. 6h) "And," He says, "all the multitude shall sacrifice." ^a

Now at other times the daily priests ^b (chosen) from the people, being appointed for the slaughtering and taking care of them, performed the sacrifices. But at the Passover, ^c here spoken of, the whole people together is honoured with the priesthood, for all of them act for themselves ^d in the performance of the sacrifice. For what reason? Because, in the first place, ^e it was the beginning of this kind of sacrifice, the Levites not yet having been elected ^f to the priesthood nor a temple set up. And in the second place, because the Saviour and Liberator, ^g Who alone leads out all men to freedom, deemed them (all) equally worthy of sharing in the priesthood and in freedom as well, since all who were of the same nation had given evidence of equal piety. ^h And because, I think, ⁱ He judged all the Egyptians to be equally impious, unworthy and unclean, He intended to punish them. For they would not have suffered this if they had not been guilty of the same things before the Father (and) Judge and His justice, ^j so that this (period of) time brought out the equality of both nations, the Egyptian and the Hebrew—an equality of impiety in one, and of piety in the other. In the third place, because a temple had not yet been built, He showed that the dwelling together of several good persons in the home was a temple and altar, in order that in the first sacrifices of the nation no one might be found to have more than any other. In the fourth place, He thought it just and fitting that before choosing the particular priests ^a He should grant ^b priesthood to the whole nation in order that the part might be adorned ^c through the whole, and not the whole through a part—above all the popular element. ^d And He permitted the nation, as the very first thing to be done, to prepare with their own hands ^e and to slaughter the sacrifice of the so-called Passover ^f (as) the beginning of good things. ^g And He decided ^h that there is nothing more beautiful than that the divine cult ⁱ should be performed by all in harmony. ^j And also that the nation might be an archetypal example ^k to the temple-wardens ^l and priests and those who exercise the high-priesthood ^m in carrying out the sacred rites. In the fifth place, because He wished every household and similarly (every) head of a household ⁿ to act worthily and not to incur any profanation, (being) like a priest who is purified of all sins in whatever he says or does or thinks. And in now speaking of the multitude as a "congregation" ^o He uses apposite names ^p for a more exact appearance of sobriety ^q in the matters entrusted to them ^r now at the present time. 11. (Ex. xii. 6c) Why is the Passover ^c sacrificed at evening? ^d

Perhaps because good things ^e were about to befall at night (and because) it was not the custom to offer a sacrifice in darkness, and for those who were about to experience good things at night it was not (proper) to prepare it before the ninth hour.^f Therefore it was not at random but knowingly that the prophet ^g set a time between the evenings.^h That is the literal meaning.ⁱ But as for the deeper meaning,^j this should be said. EXODUS, BOOK I

He did not think it right that the sun should first shine upon the Passover ^a because of His completing a good thing ^b at night, as I have said. ^c And why this was at night has already been said, where the manifestations of deeds took place and the praises of the deeds. And it was commanded that the sacrifice be prepared at this time in order that all the limbs of the sacrifice might be consumed. For many of the necessary things are wont to be overlooked in an unexpected and hurried exodus, especially by those who are hurrying to make the exodus with great speed. (And) it was not proper for the unworthy and unclean hands of the Egyptians to touch the remains. Wherefore, taking care that they should not be defiled in any way, He handed them over to an undefiled king, the fire. ^d

*19. (Ex. xii. 11) (Why) does He command (everyone) to eat, having a girdle and shoes and a staff? ^e

All the things mentioned are an indication of the manner of journeying of those who are in haste. For it is the custom of those who are about to travel a long way to wear shoes and to be girt with a girdle and to take a staff for their needs, because shoes protect the feet, while girding oneself makes movement easier for the legs, and a staff is useful to lean on and to drive away poisonous reptiles and other beasts. This, then, suffices for the explanation of the literal meaning. ^f But as for the deeper meaning, ^g this must be said. The girdles represent drawing together ^h and the coming together of the sensual pleasures and other passions,^a which, being, as it were, released and let go, overtake all souls.^b Wherefore not ineptly does He add that one must have a girdle about the middle, for this place is considered as the manger of the many-headed beast of desire within us.^c

And the staves seem to represent a royal, disciplinary^d and stable form, for the rod is a symbol of kingship and an instrument of discipline for those who are unable to act prudently^e without being scolded.^f And it is a figure^g of unmoving and stable souls which abandon whatever inclines to either side and in two (directions). And the shoes indicate the covering and protection of one who is engaged in hurrying not on a trackless way but on a well-travelled and worn path which leads to virtue.^h Wherefore that which is (here) said is contrary to what (actually) takes place. For, He says, they must have shoes "in their feet"ⁱ which is impossible and cannot be done, for the feet of the wearers are different from the shoes. But it seems from this and many other (passages) that He is recalling the mind to the contemplation of natural ideas.^j For shoes are inanimate while feet are animate, just as is each of the various other parts of the body. And so, He says, let not the inanimate be a covering for that which has a soul but, on the contrary, let the animate (be a cover) for the inanimate in order that the better may not be held and contained by the bad but the bad by the better. For the Creator has made the soul queen and mistress of the body, and the body the obedient servant and slave of the soul.

(This is said) concerning all unstable and unworthy things, for (only) up to a certain point does the pretence of divinized idols ^b succeed by accidentally attaining knowledge in giving oracular responses ^c through persuasive words and parables and still other (devices) which have their source in chance. And these are all of short duration, for they never see the light of sacred truth, ^d by which alone the Creator of all, Who keeps created beings in security and is truly ^e their Lord, can naturally be comprehended. ^f And the comprehension ^g of Him immediately dissolves unstable and unworthy human beliefs and the power ^h by which men are overwhelmed because of the impotence within them. And so, just as are the words of idols, so in all things is the way of life of the foolish man. For he who has a false and erroneous opinion ⁱ concerning the best, (namely) God, also has an erroneous and false way of life. And as for those who have true knowledge without

*21. (Ex. xii. 17) What is the meaning of the words, "I will bring out your force from Egypt"^b ? Why does He not say "you"^c ?

"Force" is the godly piety of the seeing nation.^d Now, so long as those who have this force dwell in cities and villages, the cities and villages act well and properly, for they are adorned at least with the virtue^e of others if not with their own.^f But when (these inhabitants) depart, the portion of common good fortune is changed. For good men are the pillars of whole communities, and they support cities and city-governments as if they were great houses.^g That is the literal meaning.^h But as for the deeper meaning,ⁱ it is this. Just as, when health leaves the body, illness immediately seizes it, so also, if godly piety, the force of the soul, departs, one must necessarily expect its waiting house-mate,^j impotence and impiety, for not even a seed of decency^k remains, but even if there is a small remaining spark, this too is driven out, and there supervenes a great and most severe affliction.

" And no one shall go out through the doors of his house until morning " ^a ?

As for the literal meaning, ^b this must be said, (namely) that God wishes to accomplish His benefactions solely by His own hand without any human operator ^c both in punishing those who deserve every curse and in helping those to whom unjust and violent things happen. ^d But as for the deeper meaning, ^e " morning " is a figure of sense-perceptible light, ^f for the mind ^g until that time dwells in itself ^h alone, leaving the tumult of the senses. And sometimes, permitting itself to use the senses, it is wont to go about everywhere. Now this going about produces for it error and tracklessness, ⁱ for the doors, by which I understand the senses, ^j are opened to the streams of sense-perceptible things, ^k into which the mind throws itself down, as if from some high precipice, from the perfect, intelligible and incorporeal ideas. ^l But he who does not go out through the doors of the soul and experiences a good fear, sees only those things worthy to be seen, which shine forth ^m from thoughts stripped of the senses. Wherefore (Scripture) adds, " The Lord will pass over the door, " ⁿ by which I understand both the senses and all sense-perceptible things. For so long as the senses are released

It weaves into the whole legislation ^e the faithful and worthy sentiment ^f that we are not to make the Deity the cause of any evil.^g For when it says that He will not suffer the destroyer, it makes plain that corruption and destruction are brought about through certain others as ministers but not through the sovereign King.^h There you have the literal meaning.ⁱ But as for the deeper meaning,^j this must be said. Into every soul at its very birth ^k there enter two powers,^l the salutary and the destructive.^m If the salutary one is victorious and prevails, the opposite one is too weak to see.^a And if the latter prevails, no profit at all or little is obtained from the salutary one. Through these powers the world^b too was created. People call them by other names: the salutary (power) they call powerful and beneficent, and the opposite one (they call) unbounded^c and destructive. Thus, the sun and moon and the appropriate positions of the other stars and their ordered functions and the whole heaven together come into being and exist through the two (powers). And they are created^d in accordance with the better part of these,^e namely when the salutary and beneficent (power) brings to an end^f the unbounded and destructive nature. Wherefore also to those who have attained such a state and a nature similar to this is immortality given. But the nation^g is a mixture of both (these powers), from which the heavens and the entire world as a whole have received this mixture. Now, sometimes the evil becomes greater in this mixture, and hence (all creatures) live in torment, harm, ignominy, contention, battle and bodily illness together with all the other things in human life, as in the whole world, so in man. And this mixture is in both the wicked man and the wise man^h but not in the same way. For the souls of foolish men have the unbounded and destructive rather than the powerful and salutary (power), and it ^a is full of misery when it dwells with earthly creatures. But the prudent and noble (soul) rather receives the powerful and salutary (power) and, on the contrary, possesses in itself good fortune and happiness, ^b being carried around with the heaven because of kinship ^c with it. Most excellently, therefore, does (Scripture) say that He will not let "the destroyer enter your houses to strike," and this is what (actually) happens, for the force which is the cause of destruction strives, ^d as it were, to enter the soul, but is prevented by the divine beneficences ^e from striking (it), for these are salutary. But those from whom the favours and gifts of God ^f are separated and cut off suffer the experience of desertion and widowhood. ^g The meaning is somewhat as follows. Into this soul there extend and enter visible appearances ^h which are mixed in accordance with various kinds of involuntary traits of character, ⁱ sometimes naked and unarmed, and sometimes armed and in a certain manner ^j threatening death, and they inflict mighty blows upon the thoughts. ^k Now, these blows are the admission ^l of appearances. *1. (Ex. xx. 25b) What is the meaning of the words, "If thou strike thy hand-tool against it, then it is defiled" ^b?

Those who presume to lay hands upon nature and transform the works of nature by their own undertakings defile the undefiled.^c For the things of nature are perfect and full and are not in need of any excision or addition or anything at all.^d

*2. (Ex. xxii. 21)^e Why does (Scripture) in admonishing, "Thou shalt not oppress a sojourner," add, "For ye were sojourners in the land of the Egyptians" ^f?

^a Book II of the Quaestiones in Exodum, which is about three times as long as Book I, probably contains most, if not all, of what were, in the original Greek, Books III-V. See the Introduction.

^b The whole verse reads in LXX ἐὰν δὲ θυοιαστήριον ἐκ λίθων ποιῆς μοι, οὐκ αἰκοδομήσεις αὐτοὺς τμητοὺς. τὸ γὰρ ἐνχειριδίον σου (Heb. "thy knife") ἐπιβέβληκας ἐπ' αὐτοὺς (Heb. "if thou lift against it"), καὶ μεμίανται (Heb. "then thou wilt defile it"). The Greek frag. reads more briefly τί ἐστι "τὸ γὰρ ἐγχειριδίον σου" καὶ τὰ ἐξῆς;

^c So the Greek frag., οἱ τὴν φύσιν παρεγχειρεῖν τολμῶντες καὶ τὰ ἔργα τῆς φύσεως ἐγχειρήμασι ἰδίῳ μεταμορφοῦντες τὰ ἀμίαντα μαινοῦσι.

^d The Greek frag. reads more briefly τέλεια γὰρ καὶ πλήρη τὰ τῆς φύσεως, προσθήκης οὐδεμιᾶς δεόμενα.

^e Heb., Ex. xxii. 20.

^f LXX καὶ προσήλυτον (Heb. gēr originally meant "sojourner" or "guest," "client," etc., later "proselyte" as in the LXX) οὐ κακώσετε οὐδέ μὴ θλίψετε αὐτόν ἦτε γὰρ προσήλυτοι ἐν γῆ Αἰγύπτῳ.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Scripture) first makes it clearly apparent and demonstrable ^a that in reality ^b the sojourner ^c is one who circumcises not his uncircumcision but his desires and sensual pleasures and the other passions of the soul.^d For in Egypt the Hebrew nation was not circumcised ^e but being mistreated with all (kinds of) mistreatment by the inhabitants in their hatred of strangers, it lived with them in self-restraint and endurance, not by necessity but rather of its own free choice,^f because it took refuge in God the Saviour, Who sent His beneficent power and delivered from their difficult and hopeless situation those who made supplication (to Him).^g Therefore (Scripture) adds,^h "Ye yourselves know the soul of the sojourner." But what is the mind of the sojourner ⁱ if not ^j alienation from belief in many gods ^k and familiarity with honouring the one

In the second place, those who are in error and are deluded about their own native^c gods and because of custom believe to be inerrant truth what is a falsely created error, by which even keen and discerning minds are blinded, are not peaceful toward or reconciled with^d those who do not gladly accept their (opinion). And this is the beginning and origin of wars. But to us the Law has described the source of peace as a beautiful possession. In the third place, he who speaks evil (of others) must of necessity receive the contrary reproach in similar matters. Accordingly, those who have in mind a concern for dignity^e will refrain from reviling other gods, in order that the power^f of the truly certain and existent (God)^g may be well spoken of and praised in the mouths of all. For (thus) we shall seem not to be hearing but to be speaking, as others use our voice.^h For there is no difference between saying something oneself and inviting others to say it in any way.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

As the poets say, rulers are closely akin and near in lineage to and of the same seed as the gods, for leaders and rulers are, as these ^a say, able to do good or evil by virtue of their own power. In the second place, it takes thought for all other men in order that they may not incur irremediable punishments.^b For when rulers hear evil things said (about themselves), they do not punish the speakers by judicial process but unrestrainedly use their power for utter destruction.^c In the third place, (Scripture) does not seem to legislate about every ruler but hints in many ways that he who is (ruler) of the whole people and belongs to the Hebrew nation has been appointed as a virtuous ruler and leader.^d For reviling is foreign to a good man while praise is most congenial.^e For nothing is so conducive to thoughtful care ^f as well-spoken praise.^g

The literal meaning ^b is this, (namely) that those who approach the shrines ^c of God should come near with full hands, bearing the first-fruits of every living thing in which there is no blemish. ^d But as for the deeper meaning, ^e there is no prohibition, ^f for even though He said, "Thou shalt not appear," still He did not say it by way of prohibition, as is altogether reasonable. ^g For it is impossible for anyone who comes into the sight of God to be empty but (rather must he be) full of every good. For just as one who comes near the light is straightway illumined, so also is filled the entire soul of him to whom God has appeared. A spiritual light, however, is called by other names, (namely) knowledge and wisdom. ^h

*9. (Ex. xxiii. 1a) What is the meaning of the words, "Thou shalt not admit a false rumour"^b?

^c The Greek frag. reads somewhat differently θεῖον γὰρ ἡ δικαιοσύνη καὶ ἀδέκαστον ὄθεν καὶ ἐν ἑτέροις εὐ εἴρηται ὅτι "ἡ κρίσις τοῦ θεοῦ δίκαια ἐστίν." The wording of the last clause is obviously incorrect, see the preceding note.

^d The fragment from John of Damascus ap. H. Lewy has ὑποζυγίῳ, see next note.

^e LXX Ἐὰν δὲ συναντήσης τῷ βοῖ τοῦ ἐχθροῦ σου ἢ τῷ ὑποζυγίῳ αὐτοῦ (Heb. "his ass") πλανωμένοις, ἀποστρέψας ἀποδώσεις αὐτῷ. The fragment from Procopius quotes only the first part of the verse, ending with ἐχθροῦ σου. Philo comments on this verse in De Virtutibus 117-118.

^f So the two Greek fragments, ἡμερότητος ὑπερβολὴ πρὸς τὰ μὴ βλάπτειν τὸν ἐχθρὸν ἔτι καὶ συνωφελεῖν (v.l. ὠφέλειν) πειρᾶσθαι.

^g This sentence is missing from both Greek fragments. Lewy reconstructs the Greek, somewhat freely, I think, as δεύτερον δὲ παραίτησις πλεονεξίας.

"thou shalt desist from abandoning it; thou shalt surely help [?] with him"). In De Virtutibus 116 Philo paraphrases the LXX text as follows, κἂν ἐχθρῶν ὑποζύγια ἀχθοφοροῦντα τῷ βάρει πιεσθέντα προπέσῃ, μὴ παρελθεῖν ἀλλὰ συνεπικουφίσει καὶ συνεγείρει. In the latter passage Philo deals only with the literal meaning and not with the symbolism as here.

^e This is the best sense I can extract from the obscure Arm. sentence. Aucher's rendering is not too clear either, "intensio additamenti anteriorum est, unde et plura quidem dicta est adaptare super hoc, ex iis nimirum quae de reddente sunt dicta." ^f φιλανθρωπίας καὶ ἡμερότητος.

heaviness of the burden of irrational animals, especially when they have already fallen under the pressure of a very heavy weight. For who would disregard any human being, with whom he has a single natural kinship,^a when he has been taught by the divine Law and is accustomed not to disregard even a beast? That is the literal meaning.^b But as for the deeper meaning,^c the ass is symbolically^d our body,^e and (this) is altogether errant and roving. For the sake of bringing profit to its kindred sensual pleasure,^f it loads itself with much unmixed (wine) and various foods and a variety of dishes and still other drinks and foods in immense profusion. Accordingly, it is necessary for one who is smitten by wisdom^g to lighten (his) heaviness through the related virtues of frugality and contentedness^h and to lead the errant (man) into inerrant constancy by accustoming him to give up his anxious pursuit of avarice and, instead, to follow the richness of nature, which is ascendant and self-sufficient.ⁱ

An angel is an intellectual soul ^c or rather wholly mind,^d wholly incorporeal, made (to be) a minister of God,^e and appointed over certain needs and the service of the race of mortals, since it was unable, because of its corruptible nature, to receive the gifts and benefactions extended by God. For it was not capable of bearing the multitude of (His) good (gifts). (Therefore) of necessity was the Logos appointed as judge and mediator,^f who is called " angel." Him He sets " before the face," there where the place of the eyes and the senses is, in order that by seeing and receiving sense-(impressions) it ^g may follow the leadership of virtue,^h not unwillingly but willingly. road go astray from the right and genuinely broad road, and many times turn aside into trackless, impassable and rough places.^a And similar to this is it when souls experience something juvenile and pious,^b for when one is without a share of discipline one is borne along like unimpeded streams where it is unprofitable.^c And the second thing was the entry into the land, (that is) an entry into philosophy,^d (which is), as it were, a good land and fertile in the production of fruits, which the divine plants, the virtues,^e bear. Therefore it is proper that he who wishes to enjoy these fruits should receive training in exercising caution; but caution is the supervision of the counselling mind^f and readiness to listen. For just as a lover puts aside all other things and hastens to his desire, so also does one who hungers and thirsts for the knowledge of the disciplines and for learning what he does not know put away his concern for other things and hasten to listen, and by night and by day he watches the doors of the houses of the wise.^g Thus, to give heed is (referred to) in these (words). in connexion therewith.^a For he who listens with the tips of his ears is able to get (only) a somewhat vague perception of what is said, while to him who listens carefully the words enter more clearly and the things heard travel on all the paths, so that they form his mind^b with deep impressions,^c as if (it were) wax, lest it easily become stupid and (the impressions) leap away.^d After this comes (the statement) that it is not right to disobey. For some men receive within them the appearances of words and, after receiving them, [do not] become disobedient^e but display a quarrelsome and rebellious nature. Such men He shames,^f wishing to admonish them by preparing lawful and constant declarations of good things.^g But whenever the word of God is announced, it is altogether good, beautiful and precious. For to him who does not obey He says, "he^h has no respect for thee," and (this is said) most naturally. puts it to shame. For he within whom it is, is apprehended by his own judgment as being altogether foolish. And in contrast to all the counsellors^a who are in the various cities^b it is obliged not to show respect or to admonish with fear but with both wisdom and freedom of speech.^c And a very clear proof of this is that the divine name is called upon the angel. of fat brings oiliness^a to the entrails and other (parts), and surrounding these with its fatness, prevents them for ever, when dried, from very quickly dissolving and melting away.^b For one who has the moisture of fatness receives the moisture as most vital nourishment. Accordingly, He wishes to show through a symbol^c that every soul which piety fattens with its own mystical and divine piety is sleepless and watchful for the vision of things worthy to be seen.^d Now this experience is the festival of souls and the greatest of festivals, an occasion of true joy,^e which not unmingled (wine) but sober wisdom^f produces. For one of these is the cause of drunkenness and delirium,^g while the other (is the cause) of soberness and of properly accomplishing all things. And so, if it also happens that some mortal seed has passed, (it is) an unfortunate accident, that is, the sleep of the mind, which will not last long.^h

^a λίπος, cf. De Vita Mosis ii. 146.

^b The meaning of the second clause is obscure, chiefly because of the presence of the pass. ptc. "dried." Aucher renders more briefly, "ne arescens celeriter dissolvatur."

^c διὰ συμβόλου.

^d Slightly different is the wording of the Greek frag. from the Parallels of Jahn Monachus (ap. Harris, p. 101), first identified by Früchtel, ψυχὴ πᾶσα ἦν εὐοέβεια λιπαίνει τοῖς ἰδίους ὀργίοις, ἀκαμῆτως ἔχει πρὸς τὰ θεῖα καὶ διανίσταται πρὸς τὴν θεάν τῶν θείας ἀξίων.

^e Again the Greek frag. (which ends with "joy") differs slightly, ταῦτο γὰρ τὸ πάθος τῆς ψυχῆς ἐν ἑορτῇ μεγίστῃ καὶ καιρὸς ἀψευδῆς εὐφροσύνης.

^f νηφάλιος σοφία.

^g Aucher "petulantiae."

^h The meaning of the sentence is not clear to me but seems to refer to a nocturnal emission. Aucher, confessing in a footnote that he is not sure of the meaning, renders, "quod si etiam superveniet, id quod transactum est, et aliquod semen mortale, improspertatis erramentum, id est mentis somnus, non longius durabit."

that I say to thee, I shall be an enemy to thine enemies and I will oppose those who oppose thee " ^a ?

Because some men do not hearken when hearing or, rather, pretend not to have heard, He has specified in this passage, " If hearing ye ^b will hear My voice," (which), it must be supposed, refers to the angel mentioned a little while ago. ^c For the prophet of Him Who speaks is properly an angel. ^d For it is necessary for him who " hearing hears," that is, with firmness ^e receives what is said, to carry out in deed also what is said, for the deed is proof of the word. ^f Now he who is obedient to what is said and carries out in deed what has been ordered by declaration, necessarily acquires his teacher as ally and protector, who, as it seems, is helping his disciple but in truth (is helping) his own ruling doctrines, ^g which his opponents and enemies desire to destroy. ^h

^a ΛΧΧ εὖν ἀκοῇ ἀκούσῃτε (v.l. ἀκούσῃς) τῆς φωνῆς μου (Heb. " his voice ") καὶ ποιήσῃτε πάντα ὅσα ἂν εἶπω σοι, ἐχθρεύσω τοῖς ἐχθροῖς σου καὶ ἀντικείμενοι τοῖς ἀντικειμένοις σοι. Philo paraphrases the verse in De Praemiis 79.

^b Sic (change from sing. to plural).

^c In § 13. Most of the present section (from " voice " on) is preserved in the Catenae and paraphrastically in Procopius. The former read, in this sentence, φωνὴν θεοῦ τὸν πρὸ μικροῦ λεχθέντα ἄγγελον ὑπονοητέον μνησθῆναι.

^d So the Catenae, τοῦ γὰρ λέγοντος ὁ προφήτης ἄγγελος κυρίως (v.l. κυρίου) ἐστίν. Procopius paraphrases, τὸν προφήτην φασὶ τινες καὶ τὴν ἐν αὐτῷ τοῦ λαλοῦντος φωνὴν, οὗ παρακελεύεται εἰσακούειν. ^e Aucher " constanter."

^f So the Catenae, ἀνάγκη (l. ἀνάγκη) γὰρ τὸν ἀκοῇ ἀκούοντα, τουτέστι τὸν τὰ λεγόμενα βεβαίως παραδεχόμενον, ἔργοις ἐπιτελεῖν τὰ λεχθέντα· λόγου γὰρ πίστις ἔργον. Procopius has preserved only the words λόγου δὲ πίστις ἔργον.

^g Aucher " voluntate legis."

^h So the Catenae, ὁ δὲ καὶ τοῖς εἰρημένους καταπειθῆς καὶ ἐνεργῶν τὰ ἀκόλουθα, σύμμαχον καὶ ὑπερασπιστὴν ἐξ ἀνάγκης ἔχει τὸν διδάσκαλον, ὅσα μὲν τῷ δοκεῖν, βοηθοῦντα τῷ γνωρίμῳ, τὸ δ' ἀληθῆς τοῖς αὐτοῦ (l. αὐτοῦ) δόγμασι καὶ παραγγέλμασι, ἅπερ οἱ ἐναντίοι καὶ ἐχθροὶ βούλονται καθαιρεῖν. Procopius reads more briefly ὁ δὲ καὶ πεισθεὶς καὶ πράξας ἔξει πάντως ὑπερασπιστὴν τὸν διδάσκαλον συμμαχοῦντα δι' αὐτοῦ τοῖς ἰδίοις δόγμασι, ἅπερ οἱ ἐναντίοι βούλονται καθαιρεῖν.

EXODUS, BOOK II

*17. (Ex. xxiii. 24c) What is the meaning of the words, "Destroying thou shalt destroy and shattering thou shalt shatter their pillars" ^a?

The "pillars" are symbolically the accepted opinions ^b which seem to have been established and firmly supported. ^c But of (these) pillar-like ^d accepted opinions some are good, and for these it is right to be erect and to have a firm position, while there are others which are reprehensible, and of these it is profitable to cause the destruction. ^e And ^f such are those which folly decrees in opposition to prudence, ^g and intemperance to temperance, ^h and injustice to justice, ⁱ and in general whatever it is that evil opposes to virtue. ^j But the words "Destroying thou shalt destroy and shattering thou shalt shatter" suggest something like the following sense. ^k There are some things which

^b Lucher "gratae leges," see next note.

^c So the Greek frag. (preserved in the Catenae and Procopius), στήλαι εἰσι (Procopius omits the first two words) τὰ δόγματα συμβολικῶς, ἅπερ εἶσθαι καὶ ἐρηρεῖσθαι δοκεῖ.

^d Or "posted-up": Aucher "statuae instar erectarum." The Arin. translator had difficulty in rendering κατεστηλιτευμένων, see next note.

^e So the Catenae, τῶν δὲ κατεστηλιτευμένων δογμάτων τὰ μὲν ἀσθεῖα ἐστίν, ἃ καὶ (Procopius omits ἐστίν ἃ καὶ) θέμις ἀνακεῖσθαι καὶ βεβαίαν ἔχειν τὴν ἰδρυσιν, τὰ δὲ ἐπίληπτα ὧν τὴν καθαιρέσθαι ποιεῖσθαι λυσitelés (Procopius τὰ δὲ ἐπίληπτα καθαιρέσθαι ὡς μὴ πάλιν ἀναστησόμενα μηδὲ ἀρροσόμενα—the last words being a paraphrase of the end of the section).

^f The following sentence is missing in the Catenae and Procopius.

^g ἀφροσύνη . . . φρονήσει.

^h ἀκολασία . . . σωφροσύνη.

ⁱ ἀδικία . . . δικαιοσύνη.

^j κακία . . . ἀρετῇ.

^k So the Catenae, τὸ δὲ "καθαιρῶν καθελεῖς" καὶ "συντρίβων συντρίψεις" τοιοῦτον ὑποβάλλει νοῦν. Procopius (ending with this sentence) paraphrases, τοιαύτη γὰρ ἐμφάσις ἢ τοῦ "καθαιρῶν καθελεῖς" καὶ "συντρίβων συντρίψεις."

*18. (Ex. xxiii. 25b) Why does He say, "I will bless thy bread and water," and I will turn away illnesses from thee " ^c ?

He indicates food and health—food through "bread and water," and health through "turn away illnesses."^c In the second place, He speaks of the self-control of endurance here in mentioning only the receiving of necessary foods,^d for bread is a plain food without anything extra, and flowing water^e is (a similarly plain) drink, and upon these (depends) health. In the third place, He makes mention of both life (in general) and a good life, for bread and water are necessary for living, while freedom from ^a So the Catenae, ἐπὶ τινες καθαιροῦσιν ὡς ἀναστήσοντες, καὶ συντριβούσιν ὡς αὐθις ἀρμοσόμενοι.

^c Philo agrees with Heb. against LXX in omitting "and wine" after "bread."

^d LXX καὶ εὐλογῆσω (Heb. "He will bless") τὸν ἄρτον σου καὶ τὸν οἶνόν σου καὶ τὸ ὕδωρ σου καὶ ἀποστρέψω μαλακίαν ἀφ' ὑμῶν.

^e So Cat. Lips., τροφήν καὶ ὑγίειαν αἰνιττεται τροφήν μὲν δι' ἄρτου καὶ ὕδατος ὑγίειαν διὰ τοῦ μαλακίαν ἀποστρέφειν. Procopius condenses, τροφήν καὶ ὑγίειαν ἐπαγγέλλεται.

^f So the Catena, δεύτερον, ἐγκράτειαν εἰσηγγέται, τὴν τῶν ἀναγκαίων μεουσιᾶν μόνον ἐπειπῶν. Procopius reads more briefly καὶ τῶν ἀναγκαιοτάτων μόνων μνηθεῖς ἐδίδαξε τὴν ἐγκράτειαν (with this clause the Greek fragments break off, to resume with the sentence beginning "In the fifth place").

For wine-drinking and cookery which are done with insatiability and gluttony, because of their being artificial ^c produce illness and the causes of greater illnesses. But simplicity in necessary foods is productive of health. ^d In the fifth place, it teaches us a most worthwhile lesson and one that is in order, showing that neither bread nor water gives nourishment by itself alone, ^e but that there are times when they do more harm than good, ^f (namely) if the divine Logos does not graciously bestow upon them his helpful powers. ^g For this reason, indeed, He says, "I will bless thy bread and thy water," as if they were not sufficient to give nourishment by themselves alone without the loving friendship and care ^h of God. ⁱ

^d Aucher inadvertently omits to render this sentence.

^e Slightly different is the text of Catena Lips., πρὸς δὲ τούτοις, μάθημα ἡμᾶς αἰσιώτατον ἀναδιδάσκει, δηλῶν ὅτι οὔτε ἄρτος οὔτε ὕδωρ καθ' ἑαυτὰ τρέφουσιν. Procopius reads more briefly καὶ μάθημα δὲ παρέδωκεν αἰσιώτατον, ὡς οὐδὲν τούτων τρέφει καθ' ἑαυτό.

^f So Cat. Lips., ἀλλ' ἔστιν ὅτε καὶ βλάπτουσι μᾶλλον ἢ ὠφελοῦσιν. Procopius condenses, βλάπτει δὲ μᾶλλον ἢ ὠφελεῖ.

^g So (with the exception of one word) Cat. Lips., εἰ μὴ θεῖος λόγος καὶ τούτοις χαρίσθαι τὰς ἀφελητικὰς (i. ὠφελητικὰς) δυνάμεις. Procopius paraphrases, μὴ τοῦ θεοῦ δύναμιν ὠφελητικὴν διὰ τῆς εὐλογίας παρέχοντος.

^h Emending Arm. λογισμῶν (= "spirit" or "soul") to λογῶν (= "care"): Aucher "sine divina conciliatione cum anima."

ⁱ Cat. Lips. is defective, ὡς οὐχ ἰκανὰ καθ' ἑαυτὰ τρέφειν ἀνευ θείας [noun missing] καὶ ἐπιφροσύνης. The sentence is missing in Procopius.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

*19. (Ex. xxiii. 26a) Why does He " say, " There shall not be in thee anyone infertile or barren " ^b ?

He ^c places infertility and barrenness among the curses, ^d (and) says that they shall not be (found) among those who act with justice and lawfulness. ^e For (as) a prize to those who keep the divine writing of the Law He offers the more ancient law of immortal nature, which was laid down for procreation and the begetting of sons for the perpetuity of the race. ^f That is the literal meaning. ^g But as for the deeper meaning, ^h no one will find any evil greater than childlessness and infertility of soul. ⁱ And this is ignorance and lack of education, ^j which make barren the deliberative mind. ^k But fecundity and abundance of children come about through learning and knowledge, ^l so that those who have an abundance of learning have an abundance of children, and those who are learned in the knowledge of good and excellent things ^m have good children. And ^a LXX τὸν ἀριθμὸν τῶν ἡμερῶν σου ἀναπληρώσω. In De Praemiis 111 Philo quotes the half-verse as here except for the personal ending of the verb, which there appears as ἀναπληρώσεις (v.l. ἀναπλήσεις).

^b The original prob. had "years," as in Procopius, see next note.

^c Somewhat different is Procopius' reading, πάγκαλον δέ φασι τὸ μήτε μῆσι μήτε ἐνιαυτοῖς καταριθμεῖσθαι τὸν βίον τῶν ἱκετῶν.

^d The Arm. is obviously corrupt, see end of note. Procopius reads more intelligibly τῷ γὰρ ὄντι ἐκάστου σοφοῦ ἡμέρα ἰσότητος ἐστὶν αἰών. Similar is the wording in De Praemiis 112: ὅθεν ἰσότημον καλῶ (καὶ ὄλω conj. Colson) βίῳ σοφοῦ καὶ μίαν ἡμέραν ὑπέλαβεν εἶναι κατορθουμένην. I suspect that Arm. is a corruption of hamar ankeal ew i t'iw "taken into account and number" is a corruption of hančarakani mi t'iw (vel sim.) "one day of the intelligent (man)."

The literal meaning is clear,^c for a strong force to^d terrify the enemy is 'fear,' by which more (easily) the force of adversaries is taken and conquered.^e But as for the deeper meaning,^h there are two reasons why men honour the Deity, (namely) love and fear,ⁱ and love is later, being in the elder ones,^j while fear comes earlier,^k so that not ineptly is it said that fear is the leader, for love, which comes after, is also acquired later.^l And may it not be

The (expression) "I will terrify" in the literal sense ^f is equivalent to "I will strike with fear," which He earlier spoke of sending down for the destruction of their adversaries' force, ^g for fear is the cause of weakness. ^h In the second place, He seems to bear testimony to the surpassing virtue ⁱ of the nation ^j in that it would convert ^k not only its own (members) but also its enemies; and by "enemies" I mean not only those who commit acts of war but also those who are heterodox. ^l But as for the deeper meaning, ^m this must be said. 31. (Ex. xxiv. 5a) Why does he send young men, not the elders? ^b

Since the elders, numbering seventy, had brought the nation to the foot of the mountain,^c performing (this) service at the ascent of the prophet, it would have been unsuitable and strange to summon them again to another work when they had already been summoned earlier to the sight,^d and if he had commanded their contemporaries to offer sacrifice, he would have been held in low esteem by those who were not offering (sacrifice) with them. In the second place, (it was) because the elder generations were a kind of first-fruits and new (offerings), as if performing a bloodless sacrifice, which is more appropriate to elders of advanced age. But as for those who as young men in the flower of their youth were sent to offer sacrifice, because there was much blood in them by reason of their flourishing youth it was profitable ^e for them to offer every offering of sacrifice with blood, as a thankoffering ^f to God and Father, using their youth to lead their desires to piety ^g and not to the madness of unrestrained desires. elderly and youthful principles,^a all (of them) holy. Now the elderly ones are used in the contemplation of nature ^b and of those things which are therein, while those which are vigorous (are used) for the power ^c of worthy deeds, so that the life of those who are excellent in these ways, in both the contemplative and the practical, is publicly posted and widely famed.^d

32. (Ex. xxiv. 5b) Why do the young men who were sent offer whole-burnt-offerings ^e and sacrifice calves as victims? ^f

Calves of tender years ^g are offered by the hands of youths of tender years in order that the sacrifices which are offered may preserve a correspondence of age ^h with those who make the offering. Not lambs and not kids (are offered), for these animals are weaker than calves, whereas he seems to make the sacrifice from more powerful (animals). Therefore the youths ⁱ who ^j perform the sacrifice offer sacrifices of whole-burnt-offerings and salutary offerings ^k in their prime vigour. The third (kind of offering, namely) the sin-offering is not (made) inasmuch as that place does not admit of any transgression at all because of the visible appearance of the Father. not anything to oppose (Him).^a For when the sun rises, darkness disappears and everything becomes filled with light. Moreover, when God appears or is about to appear, is not every form and substance^b of sin first to be destroyed and removed? Accordingly, the two kinds of sacrifice are here the best that can be^c performed, (namely) the whole-burnt-offering in honour of the unbribable and unbought^d Father, which is made for no one else but Him Who is honoured, and the salutary offering, which is made for our sake, in return for the fact that good things have happened to us^e and that we experience and await them. the truth, in order that (men) may be inspired ^a to receive the holy spirit.^b But the mixing-bowls are symbols of the mixed and composite nature,^c which is ours. For the divine (nature) is pure and unmixed, whereas all such things as through generation come into existence from contraries are necessarily receptacles, in part of a good, in part of a bad form.^d Accordingly, that which belongs to the better is assigned to the part of God, for He acquires this through His simpler and more lucid essence,^e while that which belongs to the worse (is assigned) to the race of mortals. But one should begin with the incorporeal and intelligible things,^f which are the measures and models of sense-perceptible things.^g Now the principle ^h of all things arises from numbers, some of which are odd, having the status of active causes,ⁱ and some even, (having the status) of matter.^j It is therefore necessary to attribute the idea ^k of the odd (number) to God because of His connexion ^l with activity,^m whereas the even (is to be attributed) to the race of mortals because of its familiarity with suffering and passion.ⁿ The same (distinction holds) for equality and inequality, similarity and dissimilarity, identity and difference, unity and separation.^a As for equality, similarity, identity and unity, they are to be ordered under the better class, as it were, with God, while the unequal, the dissimilar, the different and the separate (are to be ordered) in the worse (class), of which mortal (nature) has obtained the greater part. It is (possible), however, to see the equivalent of this (distinction) not only in incorporeal and intelligible things but also in sense-perceptible natures. For even in the cosmos heaven itself and everything in heaven are found worthy of the divine and best essence^b and come near to God and are consecrated to Him. But that which is sublunary^c belongs to the more material and denser part and is assigned to the race of mortals. Moreover, in us ourselves the soul^d consists of the rational and the irrational.^e And the rational, being the better, is consecrated to the better nature, while the irrational, being worse, (is consecrated) to the inferior,^f which we, the untaught and incontinent and undisciplined,^g have received. Nevertheless, one who considers the mortal body with good judgment will say that the sovereign head is consecrated to the holy Creator and Father, while (the part) from the breast to the feet belongs to material substance. This (part), therefore, he reckons to the mixing-bowls symbolically,^h because it is mixed and composite, while he consecrates the pure and unmixed (part) by making it an offering to God.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Concerning the divine covenant we have already spoken in detail,^a so that it is not proper to discuss the subject again at the present time. However, some notice must be taken of (the words) "reading to the ears." Now this takes place without separation and interruption, for the air is not agitated from without as the sound reaches the hearers but (the voice of) the speaker resounds in them without separation or distance^b like some pure and lucid voice which is extended.^c And there is no third thing interposed, by the intervention of which the reception^d becomes less but the sound echoes more surely in an only purer form when the hearers and the word come together without any separation between them. That is the literal meaning.^e But as for the deeper meaning,^f since it was impossible for anyone to reach such a multitude of hearers^g or to come near and speak to their ears,^h it is necessary to hold the opinion that the teacher and the pupilⁱ were there. One of them speaks privately^j to his disciples^k without concealing anything, not even things not to be spoken of,^l and the other is the recipient who offers himself as one worthy of voluntarily being a repository of the divine Law^m and a guardian of those things which it would not be proper to interpretⁿ to the many, whatever may happen.

EXODUS, BOOK II

35. (Ex. xxiv. 8a) Why did he take that blood which (was) in the mixing-bowls ^a and sprinkle (it) over the people? ^b

By indicating that the blood of all (was) the same and that their kinship ^c (was) the same, he wishes to show that in a certain way ^d they were animated by one idea and nature, ^e for on many occasions he puts the blood in the same class as the soul. ^f Even if they are separated from one another by their bodies, they are nevertheless united by mind and thought, ^g and they share together the divine sacrifices and victims, being brought from estrangement to community ^h and to the concord ⁱ of distinguished blood.

it is also common to irrational animals, but from the other (kind of kinship) as from a root grew wisdom.^a Now wisdom is the font of words and the voluntary laws^b which the teacher has proclaimed and taught to lovers of learning as being most necessary, (namely) concord and community.^c But this cannot be acquired by polytheists,^d because they put forth variant opinions distinguished for difference and diversity,^e and they become the cause of quarrelling and fighting. But an harmonious adjustment to one (opinion) is the agreement of all who are ministers and servants of the work.

"and like the very heaven") τῇ καθαριότητι. Philo quotes the first clause (to Ἰσραὴλ) in De Somniis i. 62 and ii. 222, and the rest of the verse in De Confus. Ling. 96 ff., where the mss. of Philo read λίθου for πλίνθου but the commentary (as in this section of the Quaestiones) requires πλίνθου (see also notes below).

divine is this same place alone in which He is said to appear, for He Himself does not go away or change His position but He sends the powers,^a which are indicative of His essence.^b And if it is right (to say so, we may) say that this place is that of His Logos,^c since He has never given a suspicion of movement but of always standing, for the nature of the Father remains fixed and unchanged^d and more lucid and simpler^e than the (number) one which alone is a form of likeness.^f Now he has represented the unchanged and immutable nature of God (as) the oneness of unity because of His substance.^g And the whole heaven altogether was under His feet, for its colour indeed was rather like a sapphire. And the "plinth" is a figure^h of the stars as one group,ⁱ harmoniously arranged in an order of numbers,

^b Aucher "essentiam." Although Arm. ἔουτ' ἕιν renders both οὐσία and ὑπαρξίς, the context favours the rendering "essence" rather than "existence" in spite of Philo's statement in De Poster. Caini 169 ἀδται γὰρ (sc. αἱ δυνάμεις) οὐ τὴν οὐσίαν, τὴν δ' ὑπαρξίν ἐκ τῶν ἀποτελουμένων αὐτῷ παριστάσι. Philo here (in QE) seems to mean that God's powers merely indicate His essence but do not make this fully known to man. The rendering "essence" seems preferable to "existence" also because of the Heb. 'esem in this verse (see above, note f on p. 78), which means something like "essence."

^c Arm. banaworout' ἕιν = λογότης rather than λόγος (Aucher renders, "rationalitatis"), but other passages in Philo, e.g. De Confus. Ling. 96, show that the Logos is meant here.

Accordingly, he says that the sense-perceptible heaven, which he calls "firmament," is distinct from the intelligible form because of its purity.

Although the LXX translators meant διεφάνησεν as "perished," Philo took it to mean "differed" or "was discordant," as is shown by the rest of this section and also by the parallel in De Confus. Ling. 56 γένος γὰρ ἔσμεν τῶν ἐπιλέκτων τοῦ τὸν θεὸν ὀρώντος Ἰσραὴλ ὃν διεφάνησεν οὐδὲ εἰς, ἵνα . . . ὁ κόσμος πᾶς ταῖς ἀρμονίαις μονοικῶς μελωδῆται. R. ^h LXX καὶ ὤφθησαν ἐν τῷ τόπῳ τοῦ θεοῦ (so Arm. O.T. : Heb. "and they saw God") καὶ ἔφαγον καὶ ἔπιον. Although the Arm. reflects ὤφθησαν τῷ θεῷ ἐν τῷ τόπῳ (as Aucher and I have rendered), it is possible that, with a change in word-order, it agrees with LXX in reading "they appeared in the place of God," since the Arm. astouacoy may be either genitive or dative. I suspect that the Arm. translator inadvertently wrote "God" after "they appeared," and that Philo originally agreed with the LXX in reading ὤφθησαν ἐν τῷ τόπῳ τοῦ θεοῦ and did not read ὤφθησαν τῷ θεῷ ἐν τῷ τόπῳ, as the Arm. suggests.

sometimes seems obscure.^a But stones are the work of nature and are easily converted into tablets; and also the forms on polished stone tablets^b and the writings on them are permanent and fixed because of the strength of the material. In the second place, it was not possible for the divine commandments to remain concealed in any recess and to avoid meeting those who were eager to see and learn (them), but (they had) to be published abroad and to be openly circulated. But those things which were to be proclaimed abroad were in need of hard material because of the burning heat of the sun and the falling of rain, so that later the stone tablets were placed in the ark. In the third place, the tablets were of stone, for stone signifies permanence, while a tablet (signifies) impermanence, for a tablet is written on and erased with ease.^c And this is a symbol^d of the preservation^e and dissolution of the law. What is written (is a symbol) of preservation, what is erased (is a symbol) of dissolution, since for those who transgress commandments, one would truly say that there is no law at all.

The two are potentially ^a one, since no one would say that those who are of like mind and like sentiments with one another are the same single (person) except in respect of another species. ^b For "Joshua" ^c is to be interpreted as "salvation." ^d But is being saved by God more appropriate ^e to anyone else than the inspired soul, in which prophecy resounds, ^f since even in (Moses') lifetime he was over the rulers ^g and at (Moses') death he was his successor. ^h Rightly, therefore, does he go up as an assurance ⁱ of two most necessary things: one, of the election of the contemplative race, ^j and the other, that the Law should be considered not as an invention of the human mind but as a divine command and divine words. ^k But perhaps, according to the unspoken meaning of what is said, ^l Joshua too was openly summoned (to go) up and was not of the laws.^a That is the literal meaning.^b But as for the deeper meaning,^c there are two brothers in one—the mind and the word.^d Now Moses, who is called by another name, mind, has obtained the better part, (namely) God, whereas the word, which is called Aaron, (has obtained) the lesser (part, namely) that of man. And the word of an unrighteous and wicked man is very dark, for even if it reaches great men,^e it is obscured.^f But (the word) of him who is of the Lord is very lucid,^g even though there is no very well adapted instrument^h in his mouth and tongue.ⁱ

^a The meaning of this sentence is far from clear, partly because of the plurality of senses of the word arit', which renders such diverse Greek terms as πρόξενος, μειστήρ, πρίταυς, ὑπόθεσις and ἀφορμή. Aucher renders, "atque victoriae signum adhibens dubio anōmo haerentibus, concilbat legitime iustum." Possibly the original of "those who were in doubt," τοῖς ἀμφιβαλλομένοις, meant "for matters in dispute" or was a corruption of τοῖς ἀμφισβητουμένοις. At any rate the "victory" seems to have been a judicial victory, not a military one as the Arm. glossator explains.

The general sense seems to be that ordinary speech or reason is obscure unless it is illuminated by the light of truth (symbolized by Hur, see the following).

^g Aucher "Domini vero (verbum) lucidissimum est." But he ignores the word oroγ, which is the gen. case of the rel. pron. If my rendering is correct, Philo means that in contrast to ordinary or wicked men Aaron, who is the word of Moses, the man of God, is enlightened. See also next note but one.

^h ὄργανον οὐ σφόδρα εὐάρμοστον.

ⁱ Aucher, construing wrongly, I think, renders, "etsi in ore sit atque lingua instrumentis haud nimis coaptatis." If my rendering is correct, Philo means that in Aaron Moses had a worthy interpreter, even though he (Moses) had a defect of speech, cf. Quis Rer. Div. Heres 4 on Ex. iv. 10.

the divine glory,^a so as to produce in the minds of those who happen to be there an appearance of the coming of God,^b Who was not there,^c as though He were coming for the firmest assurance of things about to be legislated.^d The mountain, moreover, is most suitable to receive the manifestation^e of God, as the name "Sinai" shows, for when it is translated into our language,^f it means "inaccessible."^g Now the divine place is truly inaccessible and unapproachable, for not even the holiest mind is able to ascend such a height to it^h so as merely to approach and touch it.ⁱ

*46. (Ex. xxiv. 16b) Why is the mountain covered with ^a Aucher renders more freely, "altera, quatenus opinionem causat solam putandi videre gloriam divinam." The Catenae read ἡ δὲ τῇ δοκῆσει αὐτοῦ μόνου καὶ ὑπολήψει δόξης θείας: Procopius ἡ δόκησιν αὐτὸ μόνον καὶ δόξης θείας ὑπόληψιν.

^b So the Catenae, ὡς ἐνεργᾶσθαι (sic) ταῖς τῶν παρόντων διανοίαις φαντασίαν ἀφίξεως θεοῦ. Procopius paraphrases, ἡ τῶν παρόντων ὡς ἐπὶ τοιοῦτω τὴν φαντασίαν ἐτύπωσεν.

^c This clause is missing from the Catenae and Procopius.

^d So the Catenae and Procopius (which end here), ὡς ἤκοντος (Procopius adds θεοῦ) εἰς (Procopius πρὸς) βεβαιωτάτην πίστιν τῶν μελλόντων νομοθερεῖσθαι.

^e τὴν ἐπιφάνειαν vel sim.: Aucher "apparitionem."

^f Aucher renders freely, "aliam linguam."

^g ἄβατον vel sim. Philo does not elsewhere etymologize the name "Sinai." I imagine that the present etymology is based upon a fanciful connexion between Sinai and Heb. s'nēh (the "burning bush" of Ex. iii. 2), which is translated βάτος in LXX. In De Fuga 161-162 Philo plays on the words βάτος and ἄβατος (-ον); commenting on the biblical phrase, ὁ βάτος καίεται, he writes, . . . τὸν γὰρ ἄβατον οὐ πολυπραγμανεῖ χῶρον, θεῶν ἐνδιαίτημα φύσεων.

^h Aucher, construing differently (and failing to recognize a genitive absolute construction), renders, "ita ut neque purissimi intellectus tanta celsitudo ad eum ascendere queat."

ⁱ So the Greek frag. from John of Damascus, ἄβατος καὶ ἀπροσπέλαστος οὕτως ἐστὶν ὁ θεῖος χῶρος, οὐδὲ τῆς καθαρωτάτης διανοίας τοσοῦτον ὕψος προσαναβῆναι δυναμένης ὡς θίξει μόνον ἐπιφαισσαι.

a cloud for six days, and Moses called above on the seventh day? ^a

The even ^b number, six, He apportioned both to the creation of the world and to the election of the contemplative nation, ^c wishing to show first of all that He had created both the world and the nation elected for virtue. ^d And in the second place, because He wishes the nation to be ordered and arrayed in the same manner as the whole world so that, as in the latter, it may have a fitting order in accord with the right law and canon of the unchanging, placeless and unmoving nature of God. ^e But the calling above of the prophet is a second birth better than the first. ^f For the latter is mixed with a body and had corruptible parents, while the former is an unmixed and simple soul of the sovereign, ^g being changed from a productive to an unproductive ^h form, ⁱ which has no mother but only a

^a LXX καὶ ἐκάλυψεν αὐτό ἡ νεφέλη ἕξ ἡμέρας καὶ ἐκάλεσεν κύριος (Heb. "He") τὸν Μωυσῆν τῇ ἡμέρᾳ τῇ ἑβδόμῃ ἐκ μέσου τῆς νεφέλης. Lit. "equal."

^b So the Greek frag., τὸν ἴσον ἀριθμὸν ἀπένευμε καὶ τῇ τοῦ κόσμου γενέσει καὶ τῇ τοῦ ὀρατικοῦ γένους ἐκλογῇ, τὴν ἐξάδα. On "the contemplative nation," i.e. Israel, see QE ii. 43 et al.

^c Somewhat different is the reading of the Greek frag., βουλόμενος ἐπιδείξει ὅτι αὐτὸς καὶ τὸν κόσμον ἐδημιούργησε καὶ τὸ γένος εἴλετο.

^d κατὰ τὸν ὀρθὸν νόμον καὶ κανόνα τῆς ἀτρέπτου καὶ τόπον μὴ ἐχούσης (vel sim.) καὶ ἀκινήτου φύσεως τῆς τοῦ θεοῦ. This sentence is not found in the Greek fragment.

^e So the Greek frag., ἡ δὲ ἀνάκλησις τοῦ προφήτου δευτέρα γενέσις ἐστὶ τῆς προτέρας ἀμείνων.

^f Aucher "ista vero incommixta simplexque anima principalis (vel, spiritus principis)." The wording of the original Greek (this sentence and the next are missing from the Greek frag.) was probably "the former is an unmixed and simple sovereign part of the soul," i.e. the mind, since Moses symbolizes the pure mind, and is elsewhere called ὁ καθαρῶτατος νοῦς.

^g Prob. ἀγονον rather than ἀγένητον "unproduced": Aucher "ingenitam."

^h εἶδος vel sim.: Aucher takes the noun "animam" to be understood.

Wherefore the calling above or, as we have said, the divine birth happened to come about for him in accordance with the ever-virginal nature of the hebdomad.^a For he is called on the seventh day,^b in this (respect) differing from the earth-born first moulded man,^c for the latter came into being from the earth and with a body, while the former (came) from the ether^d and without a body.^e Wherefore the most appropriate number, six, was assigned to the earth-born man, while to the one differently born (was assigned) the higher nature of the hebdomad.^f

*47. (Ex. xxiv. 17) What is the meaning of the words, "The form of the glory of the Lord (was) like a fire burning before the sons of the seeing one" ^g ?

^a On the ἀειπάρθετος ἑβδομάς or ἑβδόμη of the Pythagoreans see Leg. All. i. 15, De Vita Mosis ii. 210 et al.

^b Lit. "For he (or "it") is called the seventh day" (pred. nominative), an obvious error. The Greek frag. reads ἑβδόμη δὲ ἀνακαλείται ἡμέρα.

^c The Greek frag. reads more briefly ταύτη διαφέρων τοῦ πρωτοπλάστου. On the creation of the earth-born "moulded" man on the sixth day, and that of the heavenly man, created in God's image on the seventh day, see Leg. All. i. 5, 31, 88 et al.

^d This detail is omitted in the Greek frag., see next note.

^f Again the Greek frag. differs slightly, διό τῷ μὲν γηγενεῖ ἀριθμὸς οἰκείος ἀπενεμήθη ἐξᾶς· τούτῳ δὲ ἡ ἱερωτάτη φύσις τῆς ἑβδομάδος.

^g Philo omits one phrase of the biblical text, lxx τὸ δὲ εἶδος τῆς δόξης κυρίου ὡσεὶ πῦρ φλέγον (Heb. "devouring" or "consuming") ἐπὶ τῆς κορυφῆς τοῦ ὄρους ἐναντίον τῶν υἱῶν Ἰσραὴλ. On the substitution of "the seeing one" for "Israel" see the preceding sections. Note, too, that below Philo has in mind the Heb. text "fire consuming" although he quotes the LXX πῦρ φλέγον.

EXODUS, BOOK II

(This is said) because, as has been said before,^a the glory of God is the power^b through which He now appears; the form of this power is like a flame or rather, it is not but appears (to be so) to the spectators,^c for God showed not that which pertained to His essence^d but what He wished to seem to be to the amazement of the spectators.^e And so, (Scripture) adds, "before the sons of the seeing one," indicating most clearly that there was an appearance of flame, not a veritable flame.^f In the second place,^g because He showed^h the mountain (to be) inaccessible and unapproachableⁱ to the people, He extended the appearance of a flame-like fire around it^j in order that no one, even if he wished, might be able to come near in disregard of his own safety.^k For they are silly and at the same time frivolous in belief^l who believe that the fire^m is the essence

^a In QE ii. 45.

^c Slightly different is the wording of the Greek frag. from the Catena, τὸ δὲ εἶδος τῆς δόξης κυρίου φησὶν ἐμπερεστάτον εἶναι φλογί, μᾶλλον δὲ οὐκ εἶναι ἀλλὰ φαίνεσθαι τοῖς ὄρωσι.

^d The Arm. translator here uses two nouns to render οὐσίαν: Aucher "essentiam."

^e Here again the wording of the Greek frag. is slightly different, τοῦ θεοῦ δεικνύντος ὅπερ ἐβούλετο δοκεῖν εἶναι πρὸς τὴν τῶν θεωμένων κατάπληξιν, μὴ ὡν τοῦτο ὅπερ ἐφαίνετο.

^f So the Greek frag., ἐπιφέρει γοῦν τὸ "ἐνώπιον τῶν υἱῶν Ἰσραὴλ," ἐνεργέστατα μνηύων ὅτι φαντασία φλογὸς ἦν ἀλλ' οὐ φλόξ ἀληθῆς. Procopius briefly paraphrases the preceding two sentences, εἰδείκνυε δὲ πῦρ θεός, οὐχ ὅπερ ἦν ἀλλ' ὅπερ ἐβούλετο δοκεῖν ὁ δηλῶν ἐπήνεγκεν "ἐνώπιον τῶν υἱῶν Ἰσραὴλ."

^g The following sentences, down to "just as the flame consumes," are missing from the Greek frag. and Procopius.

^h One expects "in order that He might show."

ⁱ Aucher condenses the two adjectives into one, "inaccessum."

^j Aucher, construing a little differently, renders, "flammi-formis ignis apparitionem extendebat circa eam."

^m I follow Aucher in reading howr "fire" with the margin of Cod. A rather than hawr "father" with Codd. A and C.

of God when (Scripture) clearly proclaims that it is the form of the glory and power of God which appears but not the truly existing One,^a and that the fire is not His power but only His glory^b and that in the opinion of the spectators it appeared to their eyes not to be what it was,^c because of the reasons mentioned. That is the literal meaning.^d But as for the deeper meaning,^e just as the flame consumes all the material that comes its way, so, too, when the thought of God clearly reaches the soul, it destroys all the heterodox thoughts of piety,^f bringing the whole mind^g into (a state of) holiness.^h

48. (Ex. xxiv. 18a) Why does Moses enter into the midst of the cloud?ⁱ

He had been called from its midst and therefore he rightly followed the voice.^j In the second place, it was ^a τὸν ὄντως "ὄντα : Aucher " veri Entis."

^b Philo seems to mean that God's power was only like His glory (symbolized by the flame) but not identical with it, and that neither God's essence nor His power actually appeared.

^c The syntax of the last clause is not wholly clear to me : Aucher " at videntibus phantastice apparens sicut non est qui est." ^d τὸ ῥητόν. ^e τὸ πρὸς διάνοιαν.

^f The Arm. translator read εὐσεβείας in place of ἀσεβείας, which is the reading of the Greek frag., see below. Aucher tacitly corrects the Arm. by rendering, " omnem cogitationem a pietate alienam." ^g Lit. " mind of thought(s)."

^h The Greek frag. from the Catenae reads similarly but more smoothly " Ὅσπερ δὲ ἡ φλόξ πάοαν τὴν παραβληθείσαν ὕλην ἀναλίσκει, οὕτως, ὅταν ἐπιφοιτήσῃ εἰλικρινῆς τοῦ θεοῦ ἔννοια τῇ ψυχῇ, πάντας τοὺς ἑτεροδόξους ἀσεβείας λογισμοὺς διαφθείρει, καθοσιούσα τὴν ὅλην διάνοιαν. Procopius, as before, briefly paraphrases the last sentence, τὸ δὲ σύμβολον ὅτι δαπανητικὸν τὸ θεῖον λογισμῶν ἀσεβῶν, ὡς καὶ τῆς ὕλης τὸ πῦρ.

ⁱ LXX καὶ εἰσῆλθεν Μωυσῆς εἰς τὸ μέσον τῆς νεφέλης καὶ ἀνέβη εἰς τὸ ὄρος.

*49. (Ex. xxiv. 18b) Why does Moses remain on the mountain forty days and the same number of nights? ^b

Concerning the number forty and its place in nature ^c a detailed account was given earlier,^d so that one need not speak further of this at length. Perhaps, however, it is necessary to add that the migrant generation was about to be condemned and waste away in corruption for forty years in all after receiving many benefactions and showing ingratitude in many ways.^e And so, he remains there above for the same number of days as these years, reconciling the Father to the nation ^f by prayers and intercessions,^g especially at the very time when the laws were given by God and there was constructed in words ^h the portable temple, which is called the Tent of Testimony.ⁱ

^a πυκνωθέντων.

^b LXX και ην εκεί εν τῷ ὄρει τεσσαράκοντα ημερας και τεσσαράκοντα νυκτας. In De Somniis i. 36 and De Vita Mosis ii. 70 Philo alludes to this verse and adds the unscriptural detail that Moses was without food and drink during his forty-day stay on the mountain. ^c πῶς ἐν τῇ φύσει ἔχει.

^d In QG i. 25, ii. 14, iv. 154.

^e Sa (with only slight differences) the Greek frag. from the Catenae, ὅτι ἐμελλε κατάκριτος εἶσεσθαι ἢ ἀποικισθεῖσα γενεά και ἐπὶ τεσσαράκοντα ἔτια φθειρεσθαι μυρία μὲν εὐεργετηθεῖσα, διὰ μυρίων δὲ ἐπιδειξαμένη τὸ ἀχάριστον. Procopius paraphrases, τεσσαράκοντα δὲ μένει τὰς πάσας ἡμέρας ἐν ὄρει Μωυσῆς ὅσα ἐμελλεν ἔτη τῶν εὐπαθόντων ἢ ἀγνώμων φθειρεσθαι γενεά.

^f The phrase "to the nation" is omitted in Lueher's rendering.

^g Procopius condenses, ὑπὲρ ὧν ἐν ἰσαριθμοῖς ἡμέραις ἰκέτευε τὸν πατέρα.

ⁱ ἡ σκηνὴ τοῦ μαρτυρίου, see LXX Ex. xxvi-xl. Procopius again condenses, και μάλιστα παρα τοιοῦτον καιρόν, ἐν ᾧ δίδονται νόμοι και φορητὸν ἱερόν, ἡ σκηνὴ.

For whom, then, were the laws (given)? Was it, indeed, for those who were to perish? And for whose sake were the oracles ^a (given)? Was it for those who were to be destroyed a little later? ^b It seems to me, however, that someone may say, "Is it possible that ^c he had foreknowledge of the judgment that was to come upon it ^d?" But he who says this should bear in mind that every prophetic soul is divinely inspired ^e and prophecies ^f many future things not so much by reflecting as through divine madness and certainty.^g ^c μήποτε vel ziti.: Aucher "ne" (though "num" seems to be required).

^d Here the pronoun apparently refers to the nation. Procopius reads more briefly προῆδει γὰρ ὡς προφήτης τὰ ἐσόμενα. (According to Wendland, Procopius does not make use of Philo beyond this point.)

^f προθεσπίζει: Aucher "praescribit."

51. (Ex. xxv. 7 [Heb. 8]) What is the meaning of the words, "Thou shalt make for Me a sanctuary, and I shall appear among you"^d?

Clear indeed is the literal meaning,^e for the shrine is spoken of (as) the archetype of a sort of shrine, (namely, as) the tent.^f But as for the deeper meaning,^g God always appears in His work, which is most sacred; by this I mean the world.^h For His beneficent powersⁱ are seen and move around in all its parts, in heaven, earth, water, air and in ^a Aucher renders differently, "vult ergo primitias voluntaria indole oblatas introduci." Similar in thought but different in wording is the (misplaced) last sentence of the second Greek frag. (from John Monachus), οὐ γὰρ ἐν ὑλαῖς ἀλλ' ἐν εὐσεβείᾳ (Mangey's correction of εὐσεβείᾳ) διαθήσει τοῦ κομιζοντος ἢ ἀληθῆς ἀπαρχῆς. (Harris is mistaken in thinking the Greek to be a gloss.)^b ἀπροσδεής.

^c Considerably different is the wording of the Greek frag., ὁ μὴ ἐκ προαιρέσεως ἀπαρχῶν θεῶν, καὶ ἂν τὰ μεγάλα (μέταλλα con). Harris) πάντα κομίζῃ μετὰ τῶν βασιλικῶν θησαυρῶν, ἀπαρχὰς οὐ φέρει. In favour of the partial genuineness of the Greek is the reference to precious metals, stones, etc., in Ex. xxv. 3-7.

^d Εἰς καὶ ποιήσεις (Heb. "make"—imperative plural) μοι ἅγιασμα καὶ ὀφθήσομαι ἐν ὑμῖν.^e τὸ ῥητόν.

The original may have been "for the tent (of testimony, see above, QB ii. 49) is spoken of in a certain sense as an archetypal shrine," see next note but one.

52. (Ex. xxv. 8 [Heb. 9]) What is the meaning of the words, "Thou shalt make, according to all that I shall show thee on the mountain, the patterns of the tent and the vessels" ^b ?

That every sense-perceptible likeness has (as) its origin an intelligible pattern in nature (Scripture) has declared in many other passages as well as in the present one.^c Excellently, moreover, has it presented (as) the teacher of incorporeal and archetypal things ^d not one who is begotten and created but the unbegotten and uncreated (God.^e For it was indeed proper and fitting to reveal to an intelligent man the forms ^f of intelligible things and the measures of all things in accordance with which the world

^a Aucher, construing differently, renders, "quoniam conveniens utique erat ut intelligens referret ideas intellectualium mensurasque universorum, ad quarum formam mundus factus fuit." In support of the rendering which makes "the intelligent man" (Moses) the indirect object of the infinitive "to reveal," one can cite the parallel in De Vita Mosis ii. 75 προσῆκον γὰρ ἦν τῷ ὡς ἀληθῶς ἀρχιερεὶ καὶ τῆν τοῦ ἱεροῦ κατασκευὴν ἐπιτραπήναι κτλ.

EXODUS, BOOK II

In the same manner in which the head is the principal (part) of living creatures is the ark (the principal kind) of divine vessels, wherefore it has merited the best and holiest places, being placed alone and by itself within the inner sanctuary,^a wherefore also it was natural that the material of which it was made should by some necessity^b be unlikely to decay and be corrupted,^c since the Law, of which it was the repository,^d was also incorruptible. In the second place, the sanctuary^e and all the order of things arranged in it were ordained not for a limited time but for an infinite age.^f For this reason the artificer, (namely) the divine Logos,^g chose the most lawful^h material, especially that which could remain permanently with it.ⁱ That is the literal meaning.^j But this is the deeper meaning.^k In reality nothing terrestrial is undecaying or incorruptible. Accordingly, when (Scripture) says "undecaying wood," it alludes symbolically^l to the parts of the world attached to one another, of which it consists and is compacted and which hold fast to one another. To me it seems that (this property is found) also in the rational virtues of the soul,^m each of which happens to be unwithered and unaging and incorruptible.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

54. (Ex. xxv. 10a [Heb. 11a]) Why does he overlay (the ark) with pure gold within, and with gold without? ^a

Others falsify the external appearance with deceit, while they leave the inside concealed and without care or attention. Moreover, they adorn the outside with variegated adornment for the sake of magnificence or to cause astonishment among spectators. But the divine (and) holy Moses adorns the inside before the outside with due adornment, (namely) with gold, the prime material and the most precious of all, and furthermore with gold that is pure, cleansed and refined for purity of substance. That is the literal meaning.^b But this is the deeper meaning.^c In nature there is a species^d which is invisible and one which is visible. The invisible and unseen one consists of incorporeal things,^e and this (species) is in the intelligible world.^f But the visible one is made of bodies, and this is the sense-perceptible world.^g These two (species) are the inner and the outer. The one who created them made the incorporeal inner (species) and the corporeal outer (species) undecaying and incorruptible,^h and, in addition, also seemingly and nobleⁱ and precious. Accordingly, the precious gold is allegorically used^j of the human structure and,

^a LXX καὶ καταχρυσώσεις αὐτὴν χρυσίῳ καθαρῷ ἔσωθεν καὶ ἔσωθεν (v.l. ἔσωθεν καὶ ἔξωθεν: Heb. "within and without") χρυσώσεις αὐτήν. Philo obviously took the text to mean that pure gold was used inside the ark and ordinary gold outside. In parallel allusions to this verse, although he follows the reading ἔσωθεν καὶ ἔξωθεν as here, he does not stress the difference between inside and outside, see De Ebrietate 85, De Mut. Nom. 43-44, and De Vita Mosis ii. 95, where he says, ἡ δὲ κιβωτός . . . κεχρυσωμένη πολυτελῶς ἐνδοθέν τε καὶ ἔξωθεν.

For that way of life^c is perfect^d which consists of two (kinds of things), of a pure mind,^e which is invisible, and of irreproachable and blameless deeds, of which there are many spectators.

*55. (Ex. xxv. 10b [Heb. 11b]) What is the "wreathed wave" which He commands (them) to construct round the ark?^f

By the "wave" He indicates^g the stars, for they circle and roll around, some in the same way as^h the whole heaven, and others with a particular motion which has been assigned to them as peculiarly their own.ⁱ For in the same way as a rotating axle does not change its position and, as it goes around by itself, does not move away, so also does the heaven revolve without change of place. In the second place, the "wreathed wave" is similar to the corruption of the soul^j and the body, for the mind^k keeps turning in different directions and does not possess stability, and the body, which is always flowing like a stream at (various) stages^l and with the (various) illnesses that over-

In the third place, the course of human life is to be likened to a broad sea (which) experiences storms and rolling disturbances of all kinds in accordance with (varying) fortunes.^a For nothing on earth is stable but (everything) vacillates this way and that and is tossed about like a ship sailing the sea against contrary winds.^b

56. (Ex. xxv. 11 [Heb. 12]) Why does he fit four rings to ^c the ark, two on one side and two on the other side?^d

It so happens that there are two sides in existing things,^e one the intelligible and one the sense-perceptible (side),^f each of which (in turn) is sealed with two seals.^g For there are two sections of the intelligible (side), one being a sign of immortal things, and one a sign of mortal things. The sense-perceptible (side), moreover, is divided into two (parts), one of which is light and of an upward-tending

^a One Arm. ms. has "not good fortunes," the other "good fortunes." The Greek frag. (see rest of note) prob. has the correct reading. The second Greek frag. (preserved in three different sources: Dam. Par., Anon. Flor. Cod. Barocc. and Cod. Reg.) reads similarly ὁ τῶν ἀνθρώπων βίος, ὁμοιούμενος πελάγει, κυματώσεις καὶ στροφὰς παντοίας προσεπιδέχεται (v.l. προοδέχεται, προσενδέχεται) κατὰ τε εὐπραγίας καὶ κακοπραγίας (Cod. (This statement) indicates two divine principlesⁱ: one, the pillar and base and stability^j of the intelligible world,^k and the other (those) of the sense-perceptible,^l on which, as if on a foundation, it ^m is set up with stability. For each of these bears its own arrangementⁿ; although it is very heavy, the heaviness is, as it were, very light. The principles,^o moreover, are undecaying, since they are the utterances of God.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

58. (Ex. xxv. 13 [Heb. 14]) Why are the bearing-poles fitted to the rings for lifting the ark? ^a

There are two principles ^b of the two worlds, ^c which (Scripture) calls "bearing-poles." Being attached by seals, ^d they show the fated and necessary order of events, ^e which is the harmonious nexus ^f of things integrating single (events) into order. Accordingly, in the visible world they ^g are a likeness and form, but in the intelligible (world they are) signs and archetypes of rank and orders of things which progress and retrogress in accordance with the consistent order of nature. ^h

59. (Ex. xxv. 15 [Heb. 16]) What is the meaning of the words, "Thou shalt put into the ark the testimony which I shall give thee" ⁱ?

Now since the ark is a symbol of the incorporeal world, ^j and it is necessary that this world be a sign of the laws ^k which He has called "testimonies," rightly and fittingly has He said that in word they should be placed in the ark

^b λόγοι.

^c i.e. the intelligible and the sense-perceptible worlds.

^d Here again, as in QE ii. 56, Philo plays on the LXX word δακτυλίους, which can mean "seal-rings."

^e Slightly emending the Arm. text, which has "events of orders." The original was something like τὴν εἰμαρμένην καὶ ἀναγκαίαν τάξιν τῶν συμβαινόντων. Aucher renders more briefly, "praescriptum ac necessarium eventum."

^f εἶρμός.

^g Although the verb is singular, the context requires a plural pronoun to be supplied, referring to the two bearing-poles.

^h κατὰ τὰς τῆς φύσεως ἀκολουθίας vel sim.: Aucher "secundum naturae concinnationem."

ⁱ LXX καὶ ἐμβαλεῖς εἰς τὴν κιβωτὸν τὰ μαρτύρια ἃ ἂν δῶ σοι. Philo briefly alludes to this verse in De Vita Moysis ii. 97 εἰς γὰρ ταύτην κατατίθεται τὰ χρησθέντα λόγια.

60. (Ex. xxv. 16a [Heb. 17a]) What is the "mercy-seat" ^f and why did He call it a "cover" ^g?

The "mercy-seat" is mentioned as a symbol of the propitiatory and beneficent power.^h And it is called "cover" because it stands over and is established over the intelligible world.ⁱ But since the perfect form ^j is above, rightly is the propitiatory power (said to be) up above, since all things are established and stand firm upon it.

61. (Ex. xxv. 16b [Heb. 17b]) Why does the mercy-seat have only length and breadth but not depth? ^k

^a λόγῳ μὲν . . . ἔργῳ δέ.

^b ἐν τῷ νοητῷ κόσμῳ.

^c i.e. the intelligible world.

^d i.e. the laws.

^e Aucher renders less accurately, I think, "ut cunctis suis partibus illic jacens perseverabit."

^f Lit. "propitiatory (instrument)" = LXX ἱλαστήριον, see next note; "mercy-seat" is here used because it is the familiar A.V. term.

^g LXX καὶ ποιήσεις ἱλαστήριον ἐπίθεμα χρυσοῦ καθαροῦ. The two Greek nouns render the single Heb. noun kappōret, which means both "cover" and "propitiation" or "atonement." It seems to have been a gold plate fastened to the top of the ark and serving as a floor for the Cherubim, as Philo assumes in De Vita Mosis ii. 97 τὸ δ' ἐπίθεμα τὸ προσαγορευόμενον ἱλαστήριον βάσις ἐστὶ πτηνῶν δυοῖν, see also De Fuga 100.

^h τῆς ἰλέω καὶ εὐεργετικῆς δυνάμεως σύμβολον.

ⁱ διὰ τοῦ στήναι αὐτὸ καὶ ἰδρῆσθαι ὑπὲρ τοῦ νοητοῦ κόσμου vel sim. Aucher renders, "quia superpositus est firmiter intelligibilis mundus," but in a footnote he gives an alternative and better rendering, "vel, super intelligibilem mundum positum est." ^j Prob. εἶδος: Aucher "visione."

^k i.e. why does Scripture give only two of its dimensions? LXX δύο πηχέων καὶ ἡμίσεος τὸ μῆκος, καὶ πηχέος καὶ ἡμίσεος τὸ πλάτος. In De Vita Mosis ii. 96, Philo allegorizes this question somewhat differently, see last note on this section.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A magnitude lacking depth and seen only in length and breadth is called a "surface" ^a by geometricians. And the "surface" ^b of the Existent One ^c is seen also through other powers, ^d especially through the propitious and beneficent ones. ^e But those who receive good, immediately thereupon see the Benefactor appear before their eyes together with His virgin daughters, the graces. ^f

*62. (Ex. xxv. 17a [Heb. 18a]) What are the cherubim? ^g ("Cherubim") is to be interpreted as "great recognition," in other words, ^h "knowledge poured out in abundance." ⁱ But they are symbols of the two powers, the ^f i.e. acts of divine grace. The "virgin graces" of God are also mentioned in De Poster. Caini 32. The general idea of this section is partially paralleled in De Vita Mosis ii. 96 ὅπερ ἔοικεν εἶναι σύμβολον φησικώτερον μὲν τῆς ἰσχύος τοῦ θεοῦ δυνάμειος, ἠθικώτερον δὲ διανοίας πάλιν, ἰσχύος δ' αὐτῆς, τὴν πρὸς ἄλλογον αἰρούσαν καὶ φυσῶσαν οἴησιν ἀτυφίας ἔρωτι οὖν ἐπιστήμῃ στέλλειν καὶ καθαυρεῖν ἀξιούσης.

^g LXX καὶ ποιήσεις δύο χερουβείμ (v.l. χερουβείν; Heb. k'arūbīm). Philo allegorizes the cherubim of the ark in De Vita Mosis ii. 97-100, and the cherubim of the Garden of Eden in De Cherubim 21-29. The whole of the present section has been preserved in Greek (in Cod. Vat. 379).

^h Lit. "names."

ⁱ The Greek frag. reads more smoothly τὰ χερουβείμ ἐρμηνεύεται μὲν ἐπίγνωσις πολλή, ἢ ἐν ἑτέροις ὄνομα ἐπιστήμη πλουσία καὶ κεχυμένη, cf. De Vita Mosis ii. 97 χερουβείμ ὡς δ' ἂν Ἕλληνες εἶποιεν ἐπίγνωσις καὶ ἐπιστήμη πολλή. According to Edmund Stein, Die allegorische Exegese des Philo aus Alexandria (Giessen, 1924), p. 52, Philo's fanciful etymology is based on the combination of the two Heb. words hakkēr "to recognize" and bin "knowledge," but the second word may be rabbīm "much," "many."

^a So the Greek frag. (except that it adds "of the Existent One" to "powers"), σύμβολα δέ ἐστι δυνάμεις τοῦ ὄντος δυνάμειων ποιητικῆς τε καὶ βασιλικῆς, see also De Vita Mosis ii. 99. On these two chief divine attributes see QG ii. 51, iv. 2, De Cherubim 27 et al.

^b So the Greek frag., πρεσβυτέρα δέ ἡ ποιητικὴ τῆς βασιλικῆς κατ' ἐπίνοιαν.

^c The Greek frag. reads slightly more fully ισήλικες γὰρ αἱ γε περὶ τὸν θεὸν ἅπαναι δυνάμεις, ἀλλὰ προεπινοεῖται πῶς ἡ ποιητικὴ τῆς βασιλικῆς.

^d So the Greek frag., βασιλεὺς γὰρ τις οὐχὶ τοῦ μὴ ὄντος ἀλλὰ τοῦ γεγονότος.

^e Lit. "sacred and divine," but the two Arm. adjectives prob. reuder the single Greek adjective ιεροῖς, as in the Greek frag.

^g So the Greek frag., ὄνομα δέ ἔλαχεν ἐν τοῖς ἱεροῖς γράμμασιν ἡ μὲν ποιητικὴ θεός, τὸ γὰρ ποιῆσαι θεῖναι ἔλεγον οἱ παλαιοί. Philo makes the same etymological connexion between θεός and θεῖναι in De Vita Mosis ii. 99 et al.

^h The Greek frag. reads only slightly differently ἡ δὲ βασιλικὴ κύριος, ἐπειδὴ τὸ κύριος ἀπάντων ἀνακεῖται τῷ βασιλεῖ.

ⁱ So the Greek frag., Διατὶ χρυσοῦ τορνευτά: LXX (καὶ ποιῆσεις δύο χειρουβείμ) χρυσᾶ τορνευτά (v.l. χρυσοτορνευτά).

^j The Greek frag. has the superlative form of the adjective, ὁ μὲν χρυσοῦς σύμβολον τῆς τιμιωτάτης οὐσίας.

*64. (Ex. xxv. 17c-18 [Heb. 18c-19]) Why did He fit the cherubim to the two sides of the altar?^c

(This indicates that) the bounds of the whole heaven and the world are fortified by the two highest guards, one being that (power) by which God created all things, and the other that by which He is ruler of existing things.^d For (each power) was destined to look out for (the world) as its most proper and related possession, the creative (power seeing to it) that the things made by it should not be destroyed,^e and the royal power that nothing be in excess, mediating the victory by law as a sign of equality,

^a So the Greek frag., ἡ δὲ τορεία τῆς ἐντέχνου καὶ ἐπιστημονικῆς φύσεως.

^b The Greek frag. differs only slightly, ἔδει γὰρ τὰς πρῶτας τοῦ ὄντος δυνάμεις ἰδέας ἰδεῶν ὑπαρχούσας καὶ τῆς καθαρωτάτης καὶ ἀμυγῶς καὶ τιμαλφεστάτης καὶ προσέτι τῆς ἐπιστημονικωτάτης φύσεως μεταλαχεῖν.

^c Apparently the Arm. translator has erred in using seian "altar" instead of hashtaran "mercy-seat." The Greek frag. reads Διατί ἐπ' ἀμφοτέρων τῶν κλιτῶν τοῦ ἱεραστηρίου τὰ χερουβίμ ἤρμωτε: 1xx καὶ ἐπιθήσεις αὐτὰ ἐξ ἀμφοτέρων τῶν κλιτῶν τοῦ ἱεραστηρίου ποιηθήσονται χερουβ εἰς ἐκ τοῦ κλίτους τούτου καὶ χερουβ εἰς ἐκ τοῦ κλίτους τοῦ δευτέρου τοῦ ἱεραστηρίου καὶ ποιήσεις τοὺς δύο χερουβίμ ἐπὶ τὰ δύο κλίτη.

^d So the Greek frag., τοὺς ὄρους τοῦ παντὸς οὐρανοῦ καὶ κόσμου διὰ τὰς ἀνωτάτω φρουραῖς ὠχυρώσθαι, τῇ τε καθ' ἣν ἐποίησε τὰ ὅλα θεός, καὶ τῇ καθ' ἣν ἄρχει τῶν γεγονότων. On the cherubim as symbols of the two highest divine attributes, corresponding to the names "God" and "Lord," see above, QE ii. 62, notes.

^e So the Greek frag., ἐμελλε γὰρ ὡς οἰκειοτάτου καὶ συγγενεστάτου κτήματος προκήδεσθαι, ἢ μὲν ποιητικῆ ἵνα μὴ λυθείη τὰ πρὸς αὐτῆς γεγόμενα.

*65. (Ex. xxv. 19a [Heb. 20a]) Why does He say that the cherubim shall extend their wings to overshadow (the mercy-seat) ?^d

All the powers of God are winged, striving for and desiring the path upward to the Father.^e And that, like wings, they overshadow the parts of the universe indicates that the world is protected by guards, (namely) by the two powers (already) mentioned,^f the creative and the royal.^g

*66. (Ex. xxv. 19b [Heb. 20b]) Why do the faces of the

^a Here apparently the Arm. translator has clumsily rendered the original which, according to the Greek frag., read ἡ δὲ βασιλικὴ ὅπως μηδὲν μήτε πλεονεκτῆ μήτε πλεονεκτῆται, νόμῳ βραβεύομενα τῷ τῆς ἰσότητος, ὑφ' ἧς τὰ πράγματα διαωρίζεται.

^c So the Greek frag., τό δὲ εὐνομον καὶ τό ἴσον εἰρήνης σπέρματα, σωτηρίας αἷτια καὶ τῆς εἰσάπαν διαμονῆς.

^d So the Greek frag., Διατί φησιν "ἐκτείνει τὰς πτέρυγας τὰ χερουβὶμ ἵνα συσκιάζῃ"; LXX ἔσονται οἱ χερουβὶμ ἐκτείνοντες τὰς πτέρυγας ἐπάνωθεν, συσκιάζοντες ἐν ταῖς πτέρυξιν αὐτῶν ἐπὶ τοῦ θιαστηρίου.

^f See above, QE ii. 62 and notes.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

cherubim look at each other, and both (look) at the mercy-seat ? *

Most excellent in a way and seemly is the form of what is said,^b for it was proper that the powers, the creative and the royal,^c should look in the direction of each other, beholding their own beauty and at the same time both conspiring together for the advantage of created things,^d In the second place, since God is one (and is) both Creator and King,^e rightly did they receive divided power.^f For they were indeed usefully divided in order that one might create and the other rule, for they are distinct.^g And they were joined together in another way by the eternal attachment of names to one another,^h in order that the creative (power) might be a spectator ofⁱ the royal, and the royal

^a So the Greek frag., Διατί τά πρόσωπα τῶν χερουβίμι εἰς ἀλληλα ἐκνεύει καί ἄμφω πρὸς τὸ ἰλαστήριον; ἰχχ καὶ τά πρόσωπα αὐτῶν εἰς ἀλληλα: εἰς τὸ ἰλαστήριον ἔσονται τά πρόσωπα τῶν χερουβείν. In De Cherubim 25 Philo paraphrases Scripture as follows, καὶ γάρ ἀντιπρόσωπά φησιν εἶναι νέοντα πρὸς τὸ ἰλαστήριον πτεροῖς, ἐπειδὴ καὶ ταῦτα ἀντικρὺ μὲν ἔστιν ἀλλήλων, and he adds the brief comment νένευκε δὲ ἐπὶ γῆν τὸ μέσον τοῦ παντός, ᾧ καὶ διακρίνεται.

^b So the Greek frag., παγκάλῃ τίς ἐστι καὶ θεοπρεπῆς ἡ τῶν λεχθέντων εἰκῶν. ^c See the preceding sections.

^e So the Greek frag., δεύτερον ἐπειδὴ ὁ θεός, εἰς ὧν, καὶ ποιητὴς ἐστι καὶ βασιλεύς.

^f Here the Arm. translator either had a different text or misunderstood the original. The Greek frag. reads εἰκότως αἱ διαστάσαι δυνάμεις πάλιν ἔνωσιν ἔλαβον, "rightly did the divided powers again receive unity."

^g So the Greek frag. (except for the pronoun added at the end), καὶ γάρ διέστησαν ὠφελίμως ἵνα ἡ μὲν ποιῆ, ἡ δὲ ἄρχῃ διαφέρει γὰρ ἑκάτερον.

^h So the Greek frag. (except for the phrase "to one another" added in the Arm.), καὶ ἡρμόσθησαν ἐτέρῳ τρόπῳ κατὰ τὴν τῶν ὀνομάτων ἀίδιον προσβολὴν.

ⁱ Greek frag. (see next note) "might hold to."

of the creative.^a For both rightly look at each other and at the mercy-seat,^b for if God were not propitious to those things which exist together,^c He would not have made anything through the creative (power) nor would He have been a lawgiver^d through the royal (power).^e

*67. (Ex. xxv. 21a [Heb. 22a]) What is the meaning of the words, "I shall be made known to thee from there" ^f?

The most lucid and most prophetic mind receives the knowledge and science of the Existent One not from the Existent One Himself, for it will not contain His greatness, but from His chief and ministering^g powers.^h And it is admirableⁱ that from these His splendour should reach the soul in order that through the secondary splendour^j

^a The Greek frag. differs in the verb, ὅπως καὶ ἡ ποιητικὴ τῆς βασιλικῆς καὶ ἡ βασιλικὴ τῆς ποιητικῆς ἔχηται.

^b Again the Greek frag. differs slightly (omitting "at each other and"), ἀμφότεραι γὰρ συννεύουσιν εἰς τὸ ἰλαστήριον εἰκότως.

^c The Arm. translator evidently read τοῖς συνοῦσιν, instead of τοῖς νῦν οὖσιν, as in the Greek frag. (see next note but one).

^d Aucher "neque disposuisset."

^e The Greek frag. differs slightly (see also note c), εἰ μὴ γὰρ ἦν τοῖς νῦν οὖσιν ἕως ὁ θεός, οὐτ' ἂν εἰργάσθη τι διὰ τῆς ποιητικῆς οὐτ' ἂν εὐνομήθη διὰ τῆς βασιλικῆς.

^f So the Greek frag., τί ἐστι "γνωσθήσομαι σοι ἐκεῖθεν"; LXX καὶ γνωσθήσομαι σοι ἐκεῖθεν (Heb. "there").

^g The Greek frag. reads more concretely "body-guard," see next note.

^h So (except for the word mentioned in the preceding note) the Greek frag., γνώσω καὶ ἐπιστήμην ὁ εἰλικρινέστατος καὶ προφητικώτατος νοῦς λαμβάνει ταῦ "ὄντος οὐκ ἀπ' αὐτοῦ τοῦ "ὄντος, οὐ γὰρ χωρήσει τὸ μέγεθος, ἀλλ' ἀπὸ τῶν πρώτων αὐταῦ καὶ δορυφόρων δυνάμεων.

ⁱ Lit. "loved," but this prob. renders the same word as in the Greek frag., ἀγαπητόν.

By this He shows first of all that the Deity is above the propitious and the creative and every (other) power.^f Next, (He shows) that He speaks rightly ^g in the midst of the creative (power).^h And this the mind conceives somewhat as follows.ⁱ The divine Logos, inasmuch as it is ^a So the Greek frag., καὶ ἀγαπητὸν ἐκείθεν εἰς τὴν ψυχὴν φέρεσθαι τὰς ἀγάς ἵνα δύνηται διὰ τοῦ δευτέρου φέγγους τὸ πρεσβύτερον καὶ ἀυγοειδέστερον θεάσασθαι.

^d The Greek frag. omits "two," which is found in LXX and Heb. and in other passages of Philo, see next note.

^e The Greek frag. reads slightly more briefly τί ἐστι· λαλήσω ἄνωθεν τοῦ ἰλαστηρίου ἀπὸ μέσον τῶν χερουβίμ; LXX καὶ λαλήσω σοι ἄνωθεν τοῦ ἰλαστηρίου ἀπὸ μέσον τῶν δύο χερουβείν τῶν ὄντων ἐπὶ τῆς κιβωτοῦ τοῦ μαρτυρίου καὶ (v.l. omits καὶ with Heb.) κατὰ πάντα ὅσα ἂν ἐντελλωμῶ σοι πρὸς τοὺς υἱοὺς Ἰσραὴλ. In Quis Rer. Div. Heres 166 and De Fuga 101 Philo quotes part of the LXX in the same wording as here, and comments more briefly than here. On the symbolism of the cherubim see the preceding sections in QE ii.

^f So the Greek frag., ἐμφαίνει διὰ τοῦτο (i. τοῦτου) πρῶτον μὲν ὅτι καὶ τῆς ἄλω καὶ τῆς ποιητικῆς καὶ πάσης δυνάμεως ὑπεράνω τὸ θεῖον ἐστι.

^g Aucher "quasi." The word, which is missing in the Greek frag., is perhaps the Armenian translator's device for conveying the force of the superlative ending in μεσσίτατον, see next note.

ⁱ So the Greek frag., τοῦτο δὲ τοιοῦτον ὑπολαμβάνει νοῦς.

^d The Greek frag. reads more briefly ἀεὶ γὰρ κοινωνίας αἴτιος καὶ δημιουργός (Grossmann add. εἰρήνης).

ⁱ The Greek frag. omits "and understand," see next note.

^j Aucher, taking the participle, here rendered "being captivated," to agree with "all the other things" rather than with the impersonal subject of the verb "should renounce" (infinitive in the Arm. text), renders, "caetera omnia quaecumque aemulationem merent deiformi pulchritudine circum-

^a So the Greek frag., ἀκοπῶμεν δὲ ἕκαστον οἷόν ἐστι.

^b So the Greek frag., τὸ πρῶτον ὁ καὶ ἐνός καὶ μονάδος καὶ ἀρχῆς πρεσβύτερος.

^c The adverb (= Gr. ὄντως) is missing in the Greek frag., and may reflect a mistaken repetition of ὄντος or ὄντων in the Arm. translator's Greek text, see next note.

^d So the Greek frag. (except for the omission mentioned in the preceding note), ἔπειτα ὁ τοῦ ὄντος λόγος, ἡ σπερματικὴ τῶν ὄντων οὐσία.

^e The Arm. yēn (= ἐκ τοῦ ὄντος) is prob. a corruption of the usual contraction, ayin, of the adjective astouacayin "divine." Aucher renders, "ex ente vero Verbo," adding in a footnote the theological comment "Judaeus noster Philo Entem fassus est ipsum Verbum, sicut Patrem suum, etc."

^f The Greek frag. reads slightly more briefly ἀπὸ δὲ τοῦ θείου λόγου, καθάπερ ἀπὸ πηγῆς, σχίζονται δύο (αἱ δύο edd.) δυνάμεις.

^g i. e. "created." Philo uses ἔθηκε for the sake of explaining the etymology of θεός, the name of the creative power, see QE ii. 62 notes.

^h So the Greek frag., ἡ μὲν ποιητικὴ, καθ' ἣν ἔθηκε τὸ πάντα καὶ διεκόσμησεν ὁ τεχνίτης, αὕτη θεὸς ὀνομάζεται.

powers have grown the others.^a For by the side of the creative (power) there grows the propitious, of which the name is "beneficent," while (beside) the royal (power there grows) the legislative, of which the apt name is "punitive."^b And below these and beside them (is) the ark; and the ark is a symbol of the intelligible world.^c And the ark symbolically contains all things established in the innermost sanctuary, (namely) the incorporeal world and the ordinances which He has called "testimonies" (and) the legislative and punitive powers (and) the mercy-seat^d (and) the propitious and beneficent (powers and), up above, the creative (power), which is the source^e of the propitious and beneficent (powers), and the royal (power), which is the root of the punitive and legislative (powers).^f But there appears^g as being in their midst the divine Logos and, above the Logos, the Speaker.^h And the

^a So (except for omission of the article before "others") the Greek frag., ἀπὸ δὲ ταύτων τῶν δυεῖν δυνάμεων ἐκπεφύκασον ἕτεραι.

^b So the Greek frag., παραβλαστάνει γὰρ τῇ μὲν ποιητικῇ ἢ ἰλευσ, ἣς ὄνομα εὐεργέτις, τῇ δὲ βασιλικῇ ἢ νομοθετικῇ, ὄνομα δὲ εὐθύβολον ἢ κολαστήριος.

^c So the Greek frag., ὑπὸ δὲ ταύτας καὶ περὶ ταύτας ἡ κιβωτός· ἐστὶ δὲ κιβωτός κόσμου νοητοῦ σύμβολον.

^d Arm. kaštakan "propitious" is an obvious miswriting of kaštaran "mercy-seat."

^e The Greek frag. has πίστις, an obvious corruption of πηγή (so the Arm.), which occurs in the same connexion earlier in this section.

^f So (with the exception of the word mentioned in the preceding note) the Greek frag., ἔχει δὲ τὰ πάντα ἰδρυμένα ἐν τοῖς ἐσωτάτοις ἀγίοις συμβολικῶς ἢ κιβωτός, τὸν ἀσάματον κόσμον, τὰ νόμιμα ἃ κέκληκε μαρτύρια, τὴν νομοθετικὴν καὶ κολαστήριον δύναμιν, τὸ ἰλαστήριον, τὴν ἰλευσ καὶ εὐεργέτιν, τὰς ὑπεράνω τῆν τε ποιητικὴν, ἣτις ἐστὶ πίστις (l. πηγή) τῆς ἰλευσ καὶ εὐεργέτιδος, καὶ τὴν βασιλικὴν, ἣτις ἐστὶ ῥίζα τῆς κολαστηρίου καὶ νομοθετικῆς.

^g Arm. arawealeal ē "there is multiplied" is evidently a corruption of ereweli ē "there appears," as in the Greek frag., see next note.

^h So the Greek frag., ὑπεμφαίνεται δὲ μέσος ὧν ὁ θεῖος λόγος, ἀνωτέρω δὲ τοῦ λόγου ὁ λέγων. Philo here repeats an earlier part of this section.

number of the things here enumerated amounts to ^a seven, (namely) the intelligible world and the two ^b related powers, the punitive and beneficent ^c; and the two other ones preceding these, the creative and the royal, have greater kinship to the Artificer than what is created ^d; and the sixth is the Logos, ^e and the seventh is the Speaker. ^f But if you make the beginning ^g from the upper end, (you will find) ^h the Speaker first, and the Logos second, and the creative power third, and the ruling (power) fourth, and then, below the creative, the beneficent (power) fifth, and, below the royal, the punitive (power) sixth, and the world of ideas seventh. ⁱ

^a Lit. "is filled up," see the next note but one.

^b The Arm. lit. = δι' οὐ, an obvious error for δύο, as in the Greek frag.

^c So the Greek frag., ἔστι δὲ καὶ ὁ τῶν κατειλεγμένων ἀριθμὸς ἑβδομάδι συμπληρούμενος νοητὸς κόσμος, καὶ δυνάμεις δύο συγγενεῖς ἢ τε κολαστήριος καὶ εὐεργέτις.

^d Here we must emend the Arm. on the basis of the clearly better readings of the Greek frag., καὶ ἕτεροι πρὸ τούτων δύο ἢ τε ποιητικὴ καὶ ἢ βασιλική, συγγένειαν ἔχουσαι μᾶλλον πρὸς τὸν δημιουργὸν ἢ τὸ γεγονός. The Arm. lit. = συγγένειαν ἔχει μᾶλλον ὁ δημιουργὸς καὶ τὸ γένος, which makes no sense.

^e Here again we must correct the Arm. from the Greek frag., which reads καὶ ἕκτος ὁ λόγος. The Arm. = καὶ ἕκατος ὁ λόγος, which is meaningless.

^f So the Greek frag., καὶ ἑβδομος ὁ λέγων. With this list of seven cosmic symbols compare the list of ten cosmic parts in QG iv. 110.

^g The Armenian translator appears to have read καταρχὴν instead of καταριθμηθῆναι, as in the Greek frag., see next note but one.

^h The Arm. lacks a verb to govern the following nouns, which are in the accusative case.

ⁱ So (except for the two variants mentioned in the preceding two notes) the Greek frag., εἶν δὲ ἀνωθεν τὴν καταριθμηθῆναι ποιῆ, εὐρήσεις τὸν μὲν λέγοντα πρῶτον, τὸν δὲ λόγον δεύτερον, τρίτην δὲ τὴν ποιητικὴν δύναμιν, τετάρτην δὲ τὴν ἀρχήν, εἶτα δὲ ὑπὸ μὲν τῇ ποιητικῇ πέμπτην τὴν εὐεργέτιν, ὑπὸ δὲ τῇ βασιλικῇ ἕκτην τὴν κολαστήριον, ἑβδομον δὲ τὸν ἐκ τῶν ἰδεῶν κόσμον.

EXODUS, BOOK II

69. (Ex. xxv. 22 [Heb. 23]) What is "the table" and why is it "of pure gold" ^a?

Having spoken symbolically of incorporeal things, ^b when He was discoursing divinely ^c about the ark in the inner sanctuary, ^d He now begins to speak of those things which are in sense-perception, ^e rightly and appropriately beginning with the table. Since the table is a vessel ^f for food and (since) nothing intelligible ^g is given food but only those who have been allotted the nature of corporeality, He makes the table a symbol of sense-perceptible and body-like substance. ^h Not only that but also because the table indicates a kind of communion ⁱ among those who receive a common share ^j of salt and sacrifices. For (this) leads to loving one's fellow ^k for one's own sake. ^l But there is nothing anywhere so lovable as the parts of the world made from their own substance. ^m For one who is about to eat and to be made glad by the Father, (Who is) the begetter of these (foods), is taught from above to give in exchange

^c ἐθεολόγει.

^d ἐν τῇ αἰσθήσει (v.l. ἐν ταῖς αἰσθήσεσι).

^e σκεῦος: Aucher "receptaculum."

^f νοητόν.

^g αἰσθητῆς καὶ σωματοειδοῦς οὐσίας.

^h κοινωνίαν τῶα.

ⁱ Here the Arm. uses a different word for κοινωνίαν.

^k Lit. "one's like."

^l The syntax and meaning are not clear: Aucher "siquidem est adducens similem in dilectionem propter (vel, per) se."

^m This sentence is also obscure. Aucher in a footnote cites the interpretation of the Arm. glossator, who takes "their own" to mean "one another's," and thinks that Philo is referring to the changing of the four elements into one another.

and return the benefit as if to brothers by the same father and the same mother.^a Moreover, the table was of pure gold because the entire substance of the world was of the tested and chosen part, for everything, whatever it was by its own substance and nature, was about to receive even greater perfection.^b

70. (Ex. xxv. 23 [Heb. 24]) Why are there "wreathed waves" around the table?^c

The corporeal substance^d of all things undergoes turning^e and change^f for the genesis of the parts of which the world was constituted.

71.^g (Ex. xxv. 28 [Heb. 29]) Why are there, upon the table, cups and censers and libation-bowls and ladles?^h

^a The Arm. glossator takes this sentence to mean that the elements of the world have been taught to give parts of themselves to one another in gratitude to the divine powers from which their substance is derived.

^b τελειότητα.

^c LXX και ποιήσεις αὐτῇ στρεπτά κυμάτια χρυσᾶ (v.l. στρεπτόν κυμάτων χρυσοῦν): Heb. "And thou shalt make for it a wreath (A.V. "crown") of gold around." See above, QE ii. 55 (= Ex. xxv. 10) on the "wreathed waves" around the ark.

^d ἡ σωματικὴ οὐσία.

^f Aucher renders both nouns by the single word "mutationem," but this obscures Philo's point, which is that the "turning" (i.e. twisting) of the "wreathed waves" symbolizes the changing of the elements into one another, mentioned in the preceding section.

^g The four verses of Scripture here passed over in silence speak of the gold rings to be made for holding the staves by which the table is to be carried, see above, QE ii. 56 (= Ex. xxv. 11) on the gold rings made for the ark.

^h LXX και ποιήσεις τὰ τρύβλια αὐτῆς και τὰς θύσκας και τὰ σπόνδια (sic) και τὰς κιάβους, ἐν οἷς σπεισεις ἐν αὐτοῖς χρυσοῦ καθαροῦ ποιήσεις αὐτά.

EXODUS, BOOK II

The cups were symbols of foods, and the ladles of banqueting, since unmixed wine ^a is measured by them, and the censers are vessels of incense, and the libation-bowls are for wine which is poured as a libation. Accordingly, through the food and the unmixed wine (Scripture) indicates ^b the graciousness ^c of the greatness and munificence of God, Who gives not only necessities ^d but also whatever pertains to the abundant and ample enjoyment of munificence. And through the incense and libation (Scripture indicates) the pleasure of those to whom good things happen. For those who are nourished by visible food ^e in the form of allegory ^f also say that every soul desirous of moral excellence ^g is a libation, that is if one first pours out and dedicates one's virtue ^h to God. ⁱ And this is an act desirable and agreeable ^j and pleasing to the heart of the Father, just as is the most sweet-smelling incense by its fragrance.

72. (Ex. xxv, 29 [Heb. 30]) Why does He say, "Thou shalt place upon the table bread before Me continually" ^k ?

The loaves of bread ^l are symbolical of necessary foods,

^e Aucher "constantibus cibis."

^f ἀλληγορίας.

^g καλοκάγαθίας : Aucher "probitatis."

^h ἀρετῆν.

ⁱ Aucher, construing slightly differently, renders, "libamen est, profundens dedicansque virtutem Deo." A similar idea is expressed by Philo in Quis Rer. Div. Heres 184 τῆς ψυχῆς τὸ μὲν αἰμιγὲς καὶ ἄκρατον μέρος ὁ ἀκραφιθέστατος νοῦς ἐστίν, ὅς . . . ὅλος εἰς ἱεράν σπονδὴν ἀναστοιχειωθείς ἀναποδίδοται.

^j Lit. "to the mind."

^k LXX καὶ ἐπιθήσεις ἐπὶ τὴν τράπεζαν ἄρτους ἐνωπίους (Heb. "bread of face"; A.V. "showbread") ἐναντίον μου διὰ παντός. Philo refers to the showbread briefly in De Congressu 168, De Vita Mosis ii, 104 and De Spec. Leg. ii, 161.

^l Lit. "the breads."

without which there is no life; and the power ^a of rulers and peasants ^b by the ordering of God (consists) in the necessities of nature, (namely) in food and drink. 73. (Ex. xxv. 30a [Heb. 31a]) Why is the lampstand "turned" (and) of pure gold "e"?

The lampstand is a symbol of the purest substance, (namely) the heaven.^f For this reason it is said later ^g that it was made of one (piece of) gold. For the other parts of the world were wholly made through the four elements, earth, water, air, and fire, but the heaven of (only) one, (this being) a superior form,^h which the moderns ⁱ call "the quintessence."^j And rightly has (heaven) been

The cosmic symbolism of the lampstand is also dealt with in De Vita Moysis ii. 102-103, cf. Josephus, Ant. iii. 182 and B.J. v. 217.

likened to the lampstand in so far as it is altogether full of light-bearing stars. And rightly does He describe it ^a as "turned," for the heaven was made and illuminated ^b by a certain turner's art ^c in accordance with periodic cycles,^d each of which is accurately and clearly ^e turned,^f and the natures of the stars are all described by divine skill.^g

74. (Ex. xxv. 30b [Heb. 31b]) Why is it that the shaft and the branches and the bowls ^h (and) the knops and the lilies were all "of that" ⁱ?

(Since) the theologian ^j was all-wise," ^k he clearly knew in his wisdom that the heaven itself is a harmony and union and bond ^l of all those things which are in heaven, just as the limbs which are arranged in the body are all adapted (to one another) and grow together.^m ^d The Arm. apparently uses two nouns to render περιόδους.

^e The latter adverb also means "accurately." Aucher renders both adverbs by the single word "accurate."

^f τορνοῦται.

^g θεία ἐπιστήμη.

^h Lit. "holders" but here reflecting LXX κρατῆρες. Below, in QE ii. 76, a different Arm. word is used, meaning "water-jar."

^j ὁ θεολόγος, i.e. Moses.

^k πάνσοφος, an adjective elsewhere applied by Philo to the patriarchs as well as Moses.

EXODUS, BOOK II

76. (Ex. xxv. 32 [Heb. 33]) Why are there, on each of the three branches, bowls ^a modelled into the form of nuts and knops and lilies? ^b

At each season of the year the sun completes (its course) through three zodiacal signs, ^c which He has called "mixing-bowls," since three powers, ^d distinct and separate from one another, undergo a unified mixing to make up the time of one year. For example, the spring (consists of) Aries, ^e Taurus, ^f Gemini ^g; and, again, in the summer (we have) Cancer, ^h Leo, ⁱ Virgo ^j; and in the autumn, Libra, ^k Scorpio, ^l Sagittarius ^m; and in the winter, Capricorn, ⁿ Aquarius, ^o Pisces. ^p And He likens the form and nature of the zodiacal signs to those of a nut, perhaps because a nut first sends out a bud ^q and afterwards flowers. And (the bowls) are modelled in the form of spheres,^a since whatever is in heaven is wholly spherical, being given a perfect form just as is the world.^b And the lily (is mentioned), perhaps because of its whiteness—since it is luminous,^c and the stars, moreover, are brilliant—perhaps also because there are radiant axes around a lily^d—since each of the stars gives off radiance. The statement^e also contains a description of character.^f The lily has a certain contrariety to other flowers, for (of these) some send out buds in winter, and (some) in spring, but the lily (buds) with the coming of summer, when other (flowers) wither. 77. (Ex. xxv. 33-36 [Heb. 34-36]) Why are there four (mixing-)bowls on the lampstand? ^c

Each branch constitutes ^d one season of the year through three zodiacal signs,^e as has been said,^f while the lampstand (represents) the seasons of the year, which are four. Now these undergo a certain mixing to produce a year, for a year is nothing else than the completion of four seasons, of which it is mixed and consists. For the nature ^g of the seasons is not unmixed and inharmonious but has a harmony of mixture and a community ^h of interchanging (elements). For the completion of the preceding (season) happens to be the beginning of that which follows it.

Philo understands the last obscure phrase to mean that the lampstand was to be placed in one part (the south) of the tabernacle, see next note.

^h Aucher notes that his text represents a conflation of the two mss. in this sentence, but he does not give their separate readings. For the thought cf. De Vita Moysis ii. 102 τὴν δὲ λυχνίαν ἐν τοῖς νοτίοις, δι' ἧς αἰνίττεται τὰς τῶν φωσφόρων κινήσεις ἀστέρων ἥλιος γὰρ καὶ σελήνη καὶ οἱ ἄλλοι πολὺ τῶν βορείων ἀφειστώτερες νοτίους ποιοῦνται τὰς περιπολήσεις.

80. (Ex. xxv. 38) What are the "uplifters" ^b of the lampstand, and the "bases" ^c?

The "uplifters" are so named from "lifting up," ^d for the oil, which kindles the light, is lifted upon the lamps, ^e while to the light-bearing stars all their light happens to be brought from the celestial sphere. ^f For just as whatever is luminous in the eyes is irrigated ^g by the soul, for souls are most luminous, so is the radiance of light in the stars wont to receive its illumination from the most pure ether. ^h

It should be noted, moreover, that in the papyri ἀρυστήρ means "dipping-pail" or the like, such as was used in irrigation-machines, cf. Claire Préaux in Chronique d'Égypte, xxv. (1950), p. 352.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

81. (Ex. xxv. 39) Why did He assign to the lampstand the weight of "a talent of pure gold" ^a?

The ark, the table and the censers He described by giving their dimensions but in the case of the lampstand He does not mention the dimensions but indicates the weight,^b for the reason that, as I said a little while ago,^c it is a symbol^d of the whole heaven. Now heaven, (being) a sphere,^e is unprovided with work-tools and unequal measures,^f being adapted to the rule of equality^g in accordance with its figure and the rest of its nature.^h But it does have weight, since everything ponderable is after it.ⁱ For nothing sublunary^j (stands) by itself, but everything small or large is wont to be elastic,^k as if (affected) by the wonderful artificer, the invisible Logos in heaven.^l And the talent ^k Lit. "sinew-stretching"—νευροτενές. Prof. Post thinks that this refers to the commutation of the four elements, as in Stoic doctrine; he cites Dio Chrysostom, Or. xxxvi. 50-53.

^l Syntax and meaning not clear: Ancher "sed omne quidquam pusillum ac magnum, tamquam ab admirabili artifice secundum caeli rationem invisibilem, vigorem praefere consuevit." The Arm. glossator, cited in Ancher's footnote, paraphrases, "sicut oculorum delusores mira quaedam apparentia figurant, sic et luminaria invisibiliter demutant elementa mundi: nec non Verbum divinum prae manibus gerens universum, sicut auriga habenas."

EXODUS, BOOK II

is likened to unity (because) the heaven is one and is not like anything else in its shape or powers.^a For the four elements^b have a kinship^c to one another both in substance and in their movement^d—in substance when they are transformed into one another, and in their movement in that fire and air are confined to a rectilinear motion upwards from the centre, while water and earth (move) downwards from the centre.^e But heaven moves not in a straight line but in a circle, having a figure that is equal on all sides and most perfect. May it not be, then, since the parts of the earth, according to those who study astrology,^f are said to measure sixty,^g that He appointed the talent (to be) its form, for the talent consists of sixty minas?

There Philo quotes it to show that Moses was the artificer of the archetypes, while Bezaleel was the artificer of the objects made in accordance with these.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Through the "pattern" He again indicates ^a the incorporeal heaven, the archetype of the sense-perceptible,^b for it ^c is a visible pattern and impression ^d and measure. He testifies to these things by saying "See," ^e (thereby) admonishing (us) to keep the vision of the soul sleepless ^f and ever wakeful in order to see incorporeal forms,^g since, if it were (merely a question of) seeing the sense-perceptible with the eyes of the body, it is clear that no (divine) command would be needed for this.

83. (Ex. xxvi. 1a) What is the tabernacle? ^h

Having first of all alluded to the incorporeal and intelligible world ⁱ by means of the ark, and the substance of the sense-perceptible (world) ^j by means of the table, and heaven by means of the lampstand,^k He begins to represent ^l in order those things which are sublunary,^m (namely) air, water, fire and earth, making the tabernacle represent their nature and substance. For the tabernacle

And (similarly) those things which are below heaven ^b are mutable and changeable, while heaven alone is unchangeable and self-consistent ^c and similar to itself. But this statement ^d also reveals a certain delineation of character. ^e Since they were passing through a wilderness where there were no courts ^f or houses but (only) tabernacles, ^g which were made for necessary purposes (such as) giving the help of warmth against the cold, he ^h thought it right that there should be a most holy temple to the Father and Creator of all things. Moreover, he showed that the divine name, which is in need of nothing, ⁱ dwelt together, so far as one might believe, with those who were in need of a tabernacle, to receive piety and worthy holiness. ^j Now, as for those who saw the structure of the divine tabernacle likened to their own dwelling, ^k what would they have been likely to do ^l other than to how down in return for what was done ^m and bless the Overseer and

87. (Ex. xxvi. 2) Why was the length of (each) curtain 28 ^a cubits, and the breadth 4 (cubits) ? ^h

The doctrine ⁱ of the number four is divine and holy and most apt (and) has been allotted the proper praise pertaining to numbers.^k But at the present time the natural virtue ^l of the number 28 must be set down. reason is it concordant with the first six,^a for six is the first (digit) equal to its parts.^b Accordingly, this number has one good (quality). And it has still another essence^c through the number seven, since it is composed of units which go singly from one to seven, as follows: 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, making 28. And the third (property) is that it multiplies the number seven, being four times seven or seven times four. Now the number four is also related in species^d to the number seven, and there is nothing more perfect.^e By these numbers the theologian^f says the tabernacle was erected, making the length of the ten curtains twenty-eight cubits (each) and the total two hundred and eighty, while the (total) breadth was forty.^g And the power^h which the number forty brings to living beingsⁱ has already been spoken of.^j As for the number two hundred and eighty, it is forty multiplied by seven, and the number seven is dedicated to God.

91. (Ex. xxvi. 31a) What is "the veil" ^b?

By the veil the inside (of the tabernacle) is set off and separated from the things outside, for the inside is holy and truly divine,^c while the outside, though it is also holy, does not attain the same nature or a similar one. Moreover, it indicates ^d the changeable parts of the world which are sublunary ^e and undergo changes of direction,^f and the heavenly (region) which is without transient events ^g and is unchanging. And (it shows) how they are set off and separated from one another, for the ethereal and airy substance is, as it were, a covering.^h

Just as He commands the ten curtains of the tabernacle to be woven of four mixtures, so also (He commands) the veil (to be made). And these, as I have said,^b are tokens and symbols ^c of the four elements.^d

93. (Ex. xxvi. 32a) Why does He command the veil to be placed above four pillars at the end of the tabernacle? ^e

The four columns ^f are made solid,^g but in the tabernacle everything is a symbol of corporeal things,^h while incorporeal things stand above the tetrad.ⁱ The point ^j is ordered in accordance with the monad, and the line in accordance with the dyad, and the surface in accordance with the triad, while the solid ^k (is ordered) in accordance

^j The Arm. text reads nšanaki "of a symbol" but this word is obviously meaningless here. Either the Arm. translator's eye must have fallen upon the word σύμβολον in the preceding sentence or he must have misread or misinterpreted στίγμα as σημείον. Aucher renders, "signum (puncti)."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

96. (Ex. xxvi. 36) Why does He call the outer (hanging) ^a "a covering" and not "a veil," as in the case of the inner one? ^b

Since those things which are within (the sanctuary) incline toward the nature of incorporeal things,^c which is winged and upward-tending, their substance ^d stands near to God. Now the veil is brought in (as derived) from "spreading wings."^e In the second place, moreover, it has propinquity to the sense-perceptible things outside,^f and is rightly (called) "a covering," for the sense-perceptible hardly ever tends toward flying upward, since it is indeed less winged than incorporeal things, and in the same manner as that which is covered,^g it has an unclear comprehension.^h And may (this) not be because every-

^a i.e. the hanging at the entrance to the sanctuary or "holy place" contrasted with the hanging at the entrance to the Holy of Holies. In De Vita Mosis ii. 87 Philo calls the former κάλυμμα, while LXX calls it επίσπαστρον and uses κάλυμμα for the hanging at the entrance to the court of the tabernacle. The Heb., however, uses the same word, māsāk, for the hanging at the entrance to the tabernacle as well as for that at the entrance to the court (Ex. xxvii. 16). The various lists may be seen in this scheme:

Only this altar does not consume victims but preserves them.^a For the flesh is consumed by fire but the holiness of the sacrifice remains, for sacrifice is not flesh but the pure and unstained life of a holy (person).^b

*99. (Ex. xxvii. 1b) Why was the altar quadrangular,^c and its length five cubits and its breadth equal?^d

(This is) because it is made for sense-perceptible and bloody (sacrifices), and the pentad is the number of the sense-perceptible class,^e as I have said.^f In the second place, it has equal length and breadth because all the sacrificial victims which are offered by the heart of a pious mind^g ought to be equal, whether one offers a hundred bulls or brings (merely) roasted wheat. 101. (Ex. xxvii. 2) Why does the altar have horns not attached from above ^e but united (to it) ? ^f

(This is) because it is not proper to sacrifice any of those (animals) which do not have horns, neither those which are offerings nor anything else. ^g Accordingly, those which are to be offered as sacrifices are the following three (kinds): the sheep, the ox and the goat. But beside these there are seven other (kinds permitted) for food: gazelle, deer, wild goat, buffalo, white-rumped antelope, oryx and giraffe ^h ;

^h δορκάς, ἔλαφος, τραγέλαφος, βούβαλος, πύγαργος, ὄρυξ, καμηλοπάρδαλις. This list is based upon Deut. xiv. 5, which names the same animals in slightly different order. In De Spec. Leg. iv. 105 Philo gives a list of ten kinds of animals (quadrupeds) permitted as food, consisting of the above seven plus the three kinds mentioned above (also in Deut. xiv. 4) as sacrificial animals, or rather the young males, the lamb, calf and kid.

each of these has horns. For He wishes to specify ^a those (animals to be used) for food, for even though they are not to be offered as sacrifices, still they are similar to those which are to be sacrificed. Wherefore those who use them for need ^b will not offer anything opposed to or unworthy of or alien to a sacrifice. In the second place, the horns (of the altar) incline and face toward the four sides of the world, toward the east, toward the west, toward the south and toward the Dipper,^c for it is proper that those who are in all parts (of the world) should all altogether bring their first-fruits and new (offerings) to this one altar, and sacrifice victims to God, the Father of the world. In the third place, (this is said) symbolically,^d for in place of defensive weapons He has given a crop of horns to animals which grow horns. Just as the (animals) to be sacrificed, (namely) the ram, the ox and the goat,^e repel their enemies with their horns, so also did He wish to rebuke the impious ^f who presume to offer sacrifices, by teaching that the divine Logos ^g opposes and repels the enemies of truth, goring every soul as if with horns and showing up in their nakedness its unclean and unworthy deeds, which a little while before it had been concealing. For these reasons the horns are not to be placed upon (the altar) from outside but by His command are to be united to the altar itself to extend it,^h since sacrificial animals have their horns growing out of themselves.

He has ordained that it is not proper to bring near to the holy (place) anything foreign,^b for He has considered as foreign the manufacture of oil^c of other kinds, (namely) from sesame, from the date, from the nut or the like. Therefore, as the name shows,^d the (oil made) from olives is appropriate and natural.^e For the name elaion is given to every species (of oil), this being derived from elaia, and this conveys the true sense.^f In the second place, every other (kind), although adulterated^g with a mixture of other (ingredients) and crushed, is put into the class of olive-oil, whereas olive-oil is distinct by itself, for the olive, when pressed, distils (oil), just as the fruit of the vine makes wine without any admixture. Excellent, moreover, is (His saying) "without sediment" and that the preparation is to be of pure and refined material, for it was fitting and appropriate that everything in the holy (place) should be luminous and shining, especially the oil prepared for the light, since it was of a very pure substance and, in a way,^h without sediment. (He does so) not in order that they may provide light for those who are within (the holy place)—for who was in the holy (place) within the veil? ^g—no one at all remained within—, but because the lamps are symbols of the light-bearing stars.^h Now the stars shine from evening until morning, serving in the necessary service of the whole world.ⁱ And He thought it fitting to make the lamps bear a resemblance to the chorus of heavenly stars from evening until morning.^j

He represented ^a Aaron as one possessed by God and by the prophetic spirit,^b (thereby) rebuking and shaming ^c the indolence ^d of the high priests after him, who because of negligence entrusted the performance of the holy service to second and third (assistants),^e since they themselves did not feel inexpressible pleasure in carrying out all (forms) of the ministerial service. For there is nothing more delightful or pleasant or seemly or noble ^f than to be a servant to God, which surpasses the greatest kingship.^g And it seems to me that the early kings were at the same time high priests who by their acts showed that those who rule over others should themselves be servants in ministering to God.^h light the lamps "outside the veil which is over the covenant" ?^a

May it not be because the things within (the veil) were incorporeal and intelligible^b and had no need of sense-perceptible light,^c for they were themselves their own light and more luminous stars than those which are seen ? But the one within the veil He calls "of testimony,"^d symbolically indicating^e that the covenant of God is the only true one, and that those which (men) write in testaments^f are permanent and secure in themselves and are similar.^g And this is the measure of all things in common, the ideas and intelligible forms.^h Now external things are also secure but still not in the same way, since they have a sense-perceptible and changeable nature and do not have ^a LXX ἐν τῇ σκηνῇ τοῦ μαρτυρίου (Heb. "of meeting") ἐξῶθεν τοῦ καταπεράσματος τοῦ ἐπὶ τῆς διαθήκης ("the testimony") καύσει κτλ. Scripture here refers to the veil between "the holy place" and the Holy of Holies in which "the ark of testimony" (i.e. the covenant) stood. In De Spec. Leg. i. 296 Philo, in dealing with this verse, speaks of the lampstand being "within" (εἴσω) the veil. If the text there is sound, it would seem that he thinks of two lampstands, one within the veil, the other outside, but see below, note d.

^c αἰσθητοῦ φωτός.

^d The syntax and meaning are obscure: Aucher "quod autem internum velum testimonii vocat." Among other things it is not clear whether Philo here refers to another lampstand within the veil or to the ark within the veil. That he refers to the veil as a "veil of testimony" seems rather doubtful.

*107. (Ex. xxviii. 2) Why does He say that they shall make a sacred stole ^a for the high priest "for honour and glory ^b " ^c ?

These statements are (made) about the radiant and sumptuous ankle-length stole,^a not about the linen (garment),^c for the latter is made not "for honour and glory" but for still greater and more perfect honour and glory. For he ^f wears it when he enters the innermost Holy of Holies, whereas (he wears) the ankle-length (garment) when he performs the service outside in the manner of the sense-perceptible world ^g before man, among whom precious things ^h are considered matters of glory. But those things which are in truth (glorious), being unkempt and unbeautified and adorned (only) by nature, are honoured by the Father. But may it not be that "honour" is to be distinguished from "glory" ? For glory is the

^a Philo here as elsewhere (e.g. De Ebrietate 85) uses στολή in the generic sense of "garment," as does LXX.

EXODUS, BOOK II

108. (Ex. xxviii. 7) ^a Why are the two shoulder-pieces,^b which are joined together, attached in two parts? ^c

The shoulder-pieces ^d designate serious labours,^e for they are a part of the sacred garment, and sacred things are serious.^f And there are two ^g forms of labour: one is the desire of pleasing ^h God, and of piety ⁱ; the other is being beneficent to men, which is called kindness and love of man.^j He therefore exhorts (us) to devote ourselves to every labour and to put our shoulders to it.^k The theologian ^l wishes (these) two things to be known in order that what has been said in another place ^m may be confirmed by deeds, (namely) "With God thou wast strong ^b i.e. of the ephod. LXX uses the word ἐπωμίς both of the ephod and of each shoulder-piece, while Heb. uses a different word for the latter (kātēph, lit. "shoulder"). Philo seems to be following Heb. in De Vita Mosis ii. 111-112, where he calls the ephod ἐπωμίς, and the shoulder-pieces ἀκρώμια, see below, note d.

In each of them are six impressions, ^d of the two hemispheres, ^e of that above the earth and of that below the earth. As evidence of this statement there are three things to cite. One is their shape, for the stones are round, just as the hemispheres are. The second is their colour, for the emerald is similar to the heaven in colour. The third is the number (of the names) engraved in them, for in each of the hemispheres there happen to be six zodiacal signs, ^f some of them above the earth, and some below the earth, (and) the halves of the zodiac ^g give light. 110. (Ex. xxviii. 15)^c What is the Logeion,^d and why does He call it "of judgments," and why is the Logeion made after the texture of the shoulder-piece^e?

As its very name shows, it is a symbol of logos.^g And logos is double (in meaning); one (meaning) is that found in natural thoughts,^h and the other is "utterance."ⁱ And it is the principle^j of judgments, since everything is determined and distinguished by logos—intelligible things^k by that (logos) which is in natural thoughts, and sounds by (the logos of) differentiated speech.^l Most

111. (Ex. xxviii. 16) Why is the Logeion^c square and twofold and a span^d in length and a span in breadth?^e

The Logeion is twofold, in the first place because it has two logoi^f; one, which has the force of a spring, is in natural thoughts, and the other, (namely) utterance, is an effluence thereof.^g And the latter is twofold, inclining partly to truth and partly to falsehood. And in the second place, (it is twofold) because the mind sees two (kinds of object), divine and mortal. And the voice^h attempts to be adorned by these two,ⁱ in interpreting both of them. And the Logeion is square symbolically,^j for the logos should be stable and immobile in all respects and not

And its length is a span and its breadth a span^b for the reason that the span is a sixth part of a cubit,^c for the culit is of six spans, so that it is one-sixth in length and breadth. And this symbol gives this kind of appearance.^d And the mind^e is one and is a uniter of different intelligibles,^f as if a harmony of these same things. And the uttered logos^g is one, and again is similarly the uniter of different intelligibles, (namely) of letters into syllables, of syllables into words, and of many words into compositions and long discourses.^h For what is vastly and diffusely extended in these is held together by natural bonds.ⁱ And the mind too has length and breadth, for it is extended and prolonged to all intelligibles in apprehension, just as speech^j (has) both (dimensions), for this too is amplified in length and breadth in accordance with the words uttered.^k

^b Arif. k'il, like t'iz (see note d on p. 160), renders both σπιθαμὴ and παλαστή.

^c Philo must here be using σπιθαμὴ as the equivalent of παλαστή, unless he is following a system of measurement different from the one used by other Greek writers. The latter commonly reckons the cubit (πῆχυς) as = six palms (παλασταί) and twenty-four fingers (δάκτυλοι), whereas the span (σπιθαμὴ) = twelve fingers. Thus it is the palm, not the span, which is one-sixth of a cubit.

112. (Ex. xxviii. 17-20a) Why is there on the Logeion ^a a texture ^b of four rows, and in each row are three (precious) stones placed? ^c

The four rows are an indication of the four seasons of the year, ^d each of which consists of an element. ^e And the three stones are symbolically ^f three months, into which each season is divided. ^g For the zodiac consists of twelve constellations ^h divided into four (seasons) of the year, through which the sun revolves and produces the seasons of the year through the three constellations. ⁱ And there is a "texture" since all the seasons happen to hasten to one end, inasmuch as the fullness of all (the seasons), which are woven together, is summed up ^j in the year. And He says that their names are "seals,"^c (that is) something unchangeable and unalterable, which always remains in the same likeness. For just as the seal, while stamping many substances with its designs, itself remains imperishable^d and unchangeable and, while giving a share of its own possession of designs to many other (substances), is not at all affected by anything,^e so also has He seen fit to immortalize each of the patriarchs as (an ideal) form^f and make him eternal, so as not to be affected by any accident but, while changing and moving, to be confirmed in the virtues^g which are similar to the tribe^h and are apportioned to the (various) ranks of the nation.

anger ^a dwells, and anger especially has need of the controlling and directing reason. ^b For when it ^c is left without a controller and director, it is borne hither and thither in confusion and tossed about as though by stormy waves, and overturns the entire soul like a ship without ballast, ^d the body being overturned with it. Moreover, it is with care and cautiousness that He says not that the Logeion is to be upon his breast always but (only) when he enters the sanctuary. For the sanctuary is the place of piety and holiness and every virtue, ^e and when the mind ^f reaches this, it altogether acquires perfect reason, ^g which controls and directs and seizes the reins so as to restrain the passions, ^h especially anger, ⁱ which is wont to be refractory toward it.

If, however, there is anyone heavy of understanding, let him listen. The head of all things is the eternal Logos of the eternal God,^g under which, as if it were his feet or other limbs, is placed the whole world, over which He passes and firmly stands.^h Now it is not because Christ is Lord that He passes and sits over the world, for His seat is with His Father and God, but because for its perfect fullness the world is in need of the care and superintendence of the best ordered dispensation, and for its own complete piety, of the Divine Logos, just as living creatures (need) a head, without which it is impossible to live.]ⁱ

*118. (Ex. xxviii. 28 [Heb. 32]) Why does the opening ^a in the middle of this very same ankle-length garment have a hem ^b " that it may not be ruptured " ? ^c

Of the elements ^d some are by nature heavy, (such as) earth and water, and others are by nature light, (such as) air and fire. Accordingly, from the beginning the air, which had heaviness, was placed near water. ^e And because of the contrariety of heavy to light there was fear that one (element) might suffer rupture ^f from the other, and the world might be imperfect in harmony and unity if this obstacle were present. For that reason there was need of an opening ^g suitable to the middle region, that is, of the divine Logos as a mediator, ^h for this is the strongest and most stable bond ⁱ of all things, in order that it might bind and weave together ^j the parts of the universe and their contraries, and by the use of force bring into unity and communion and loving embrace those things which have many irreconcilable differences by their natures. Moreover, this passage also presents a description of character, ^k for the hem is a hard and dense woven work ^a and very compact, ^b and he thought it proper that the opening should be in it in the middle. Now the mouth ^c is an organ of two things, (namely) of food and speech. ^d As Plato says, it has the entrance of mortal things into itself, (namely) food, while speech is the exit of immortal things. ^e And both (functions) must be practised in such a way that they do not suffer a rupture, ^f which is what happens to gluttons and babblers, for out of loquacity they rupture, in a sense, that which ought to be kept quiet, and ^g they pour into the ears (of others) ^h things not fit to be heard. ⁱ And those who are intent upon wine-bibbing and overindulgence break out into belchings and burst with insatiable fullness. And he admonishes those who philosophize with him ^j to place restraints upon the belly and the tongue.

That the undergarment was a double hyacinthine (robe) and in the likeness of air has been shown. ^b And as water is lower than air, the pomegranate-shaped (tassel) was rightly (placed) in the lowest part of the undergarment, as was the flower of the pomegranate, which is (so) called from "flowing" and "being liquid." ^c Now, as for that which is primarily in (the class of) flowing liquids, what else indeed would it be but water?

In the earlier (passages) ^a He has represented heaven by the shoulder-piece ^b and the (object) on the breast, which He has called "pectoral," ^c and (has represented) the lower region, ^d (namely) the air, by the double hyacinthine (robe), ^e and then water, which is below the air, by the symbol ^f of the pomegranate-shaped (tassel). Now, however, He mentions the flowers in addition to the pomegranate-shaped (tassels), and by them He indicates ^g the earth, since everything flowers and grows from the earth. ^h But the bell has an intermediate position between the pomegranate-shaped (tassel) and the flower, and indicates the harmony and community of the elements. ⁱ For if there had not been produced in the world the harmonious blending into a symphony of antiphonal voices as if of a choir sounding as one, it would not have received its full perfection. ^j But since there are four elements, ^k He has spoken very circumspectly ^l in distinguishing and separating the bell from fire and air, for the movement of the soul is only from itself, as is generally agreed, especially by the philosophers of the Stoa. GREEK FRAGMENTS OF THE QUAESTIONES

Although Philo's Quaestiones in Genesim et Exodum has survived as a whole (or in large part) only in the ancient Armenian version, the original Greek text of parts of about two hundred sections has been preserved in the works of some of the Church Fathers like John of Damascus or Byzantine chroniclers like Leo Grammaticus or antiquarians like Johannes Lydus or the anonymous authors of catenae arranged in the order of Scriptural verses. A number of these fragments (some of them being rather paraphrastic than literal) were collected by Mangey in his edition of Philo's works published in 1742. Since that time other scholars have added to their number. While it may be expected that future research will discover more fragments of the Quaestiones as well as of other lost works of Philo, it still seems worth while at the present time to bring together the fragments of the Quaestiones which have been collected by various scholars and published in half a dozen separate works. It should be noted in passing that Dr. Ludwig Früchtel of Ansbach, Germany, to whom we owe the identification of several fragments (published by Harris) formerly unlocated in the Quaestiones, proposes to bring out a more complete collection of the fragments of Philo's various lost works and has, as he informed me in 1949, already located a few more hitherto unidentified fragments of the Quaestiones.

The fragments (or paraphrases) reproduced from the various modern collections listed below are here given without an English translation, partly because the differences between them and the Armenian have already been mentioned in the footnotes to the translation of that version, and partly because many of the fragments are such free quotations of the original that it might be misleading to translate them and thus make them appear to be of equal weight with the translation of the Armenian version.

The six modern works from which the Greek texts are reproduced are herewith listed in order of publication.

Harris, J. Rendel, Fragments of Philo Judaeus. Cambridge, 1886 (includes fragments earlier published by Mangey, Mai, Pitra and Tischendorf).

Wendland, Paul, Neu entdeckte Fragmente Philos. Berlin, 1891 (consists mostly of selections from Procopius, including those published earlier by Mai).

Praechter, Karl, "Unbeachtete Philonfragmente," Archiv für Geschichte der Philosophie, N.F. 9 (1896), 415-426 (gives nine fragments from Leo Grammaticus and Pseudo-Polydeuces with parallels in other Byzantine chroniclers).

Staeble, Karl, Die Zahlenmystik bei Philon von Alexandria. Leipzig-Berlin, 1931 (gives about a dozen fragments from Johannes Lydus).

Lewy, Hans, Neue Philontexte in der Uebersetzung des Ambrosius mit einem Anhang: Neu gefundene griechische Philonfragmente. Berlin, 1932 (gives about a dozen fragments from the Sacra Parallela of John of Damascus and the Catenae).

Früchtel, Ludwig, "Griechische Fragmente zu Philons Quaestiones in Genesin et in Exodum," Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft, N.F. 14 (1937), 108-115 (locates several fragments listed by Harris as "unidentified").

Three of Harris' "unidentified" fragments have been located by Emile Bréhier, Les Idées philosophiques et religieuses de Philon d'Alexandrie, 2nd ed., Paris, 1925.

The reader is asked to overlook some inconsistencies in abbreviations, forms of citation, etc., in the following pages. They are largely due to the fact that I have in most cases followed the style set by the modern authorities listed above.

Ἡ μὲν ποιητικὴ, καθ' ἣν ἔθηκε τὰ πάντα καὶ διεκόομην ὁ τεχνίτης, αὕτη θεὸς ὀνομάζεται· ἡ δὲ βασιλικὴ, καθ' ἣν ἀρχει τῶν γεγονότων ὁ δημιουργός, αὕτη καλεῖται κύριος. ADDITIONS IN THE OLD LATIN VERSION

Selected Bibliography:

Cohn, Leopold in L. Cohn and P. Wendland, Philonis Alexandrini Opera, etc. (Berlin, 1896), pp. l-lii, "De antiqua versione latina."

Wendland, Paul, Neu entdeckte Fragmente Philos (Berlin, 1891), p. 85, n. 2.

In the year 1520 there appeared in Paris a volume entitled Philonis Iudaei centum et duae quaestiones et totidem responsiones morales super Genesis. Beside the Old Latin version of the Quaestiones in Genesis iv. 154-245, the volume contained the Old Latin version of the De Vita Contemplativa (by the same translator, according to Conybeare), Jerome's Latin translation of the De Nominibus Hebraicis, Budaeus' translation of the De Mundo, and the Liber Antiquitatum of Pseudo-Philo. A second and improved edition of this work was published in Basel in 1527 and was reprinted there in 1538, 1550 and 1599. It is from the edition of 1538 that Aucher took the text of the version of QG iv. 154-245, which is printed at the bottom of pp. 362-443 of his edition of the Armenian version of the Quaestiones.

The date and character of this Old Latin version have been carefully studied by the scholars mentioned above. They agree that it was made in the fourth century A.D. and that in spite of its uncouthness and freedom it is a useful check on the ancient Armenian version, which is more faithful and more intelligible throughout.

This Old Latin version is of further interest because it contains several Quaestiones missing in the Armenian, namely eleven sections on Gen. xxvi. 19-35, which appear at the end of QG iv. 195, and three fragments added to the translation of QG iv. 203, 210 and 232 (beside a few glosses to other sections, which are not included here). That this group of eleven sections contains genuine material from Philo's Quaestiones is clear from their contents and from the fact that three of these sections (vii, viii and ix) have parallels in the Greek fragments from Procopius and the Catenae, where they are ascribed to Philo. Wendland, in particular, calls attention to the "echt philonisch" character of sections iv, vi, vii and xi; he identifies the discussion of the number four in section ii as an interpolation from Philo's last work Περὶ ἀριθμῶν.

The additional sections are reproduced below from Aucher's reprinting of the 1538 edition. Considerably more work should be done on the text of the Old Latin version throughout, but here, as in the footnotes to the translation, I have corrected only a few of the more obvious misprints or scribal errors.

praevalentibus nocere alienigenarum moribus, inanem exaggerantibus inimicitiam. Tertia igitur speciositas et quia perfecta melioratio confusionem affert inimicis, inanis enim revelata est et pravitas injuriarum, et inimicitiarum insolentia.

ii. (Gen. xxvi. 23) Quid est: Ascendit inde ad puteum, sed suspensum?

Qui enim adhuc docetur, licet promoverit et creverit, nihilominus religionis moras^a sortitur. Cur autem perfectis approximaverit, altiores facit commemorationes. Ait enim. Puteus quaterni numeri, et in ipso numero fallit.^b Puteus enim juramenti filia septima est, quod Hebraice legitur Bersabace^c Berfilia Sabeae septima. Jam pervide quanta est unitas in Mathematico tractatu, et hic in prioribus translatis libris ex aperto dicente Philone quarta in omnibus corporibus et incorporalibus preciosa est pro numera quidem qui accensus est decem: in figuris autem quod secundum eam soliditatis natura constat, post signum et elogium, secundum Musicas vero omnes armonias continet, quadrilitatem pertinacitate, in dimidialitatem et per omnes in duplicitate et bis per omnes in quadruplicatione haec inquit in incorporalibus. Corporalibus vero elementa mundi quatuor totidem anni momenta, debuit prius corporalia pandere, postmodum incorporalia. Hic enim ipse pro incorporalibus prosequendo coitum viri et mulieris quatuor habere vices, quod turpissimum est interpretare, ne forte quidam servi dei auatores esse earum existiment.^d Videtur mihi Philo ritum Judeorum sectavisse, linguam imprauisse. Si enim septimum composuisset, viginti et octo metas pacis invenisset. Denique post momenta lamentationis titulum pacis enixa est Bersabee. Quapropter inquit Moses, laudando quartum numerum sanctum et gloriosum pratestatur. Ut quid autem juramentum dicitur, in opere ipsa declarabo post modicum in familiari capitulo, totus liber translatus nihil tale continuit, sed coetus^e effugere canatur.

APPENDIX B

Familiarissimum tempus animae speculatoriae, nox vagis erroribus meridianis, et vanis aspectibus liberata, ac per hoc nec metus pulsat, nec vacillat cogitatus absente timore, caret autem timore pacatissima mens, cum divinitati pervigilat perseveranter. Habet tamen lectio necessarium modum, ne quis procerum praesumat facile occasionibus, sed prioris acquirit meritis, digne enim dicendo: Ego sum deus patris tui, generis censuram declaravit. Tecum autem sum pro tua et ipsi vigilantia, cujus causa non indignatur universorum pater indignum visitare eum invisibilis animarum medicus.

iv. (Gen. xxvi. 24) Quare Dominus^a visitatus ostendit semetipsum deum?

Dominus quidem regni et dominatoris nomen est. Deus autem appellatur pro beneficiis, quibus certius manifestatur, quoniam sapientiam non inter subjectos ut rex, sed inter amicos benefaciendo dinumerat. Poterat Philo pluribus invehere, nisi comperto uteretur Mathematico.

v. (Gen. xxvi. 24) Quare dicendo benedixi te, adjecit, et multiplicabo semen tuum propter patrem tuum?

Spontaneae disciplinae titulus perfectus, ob nullam aliam causam divinum promeretur gratiam, nisi pro se ac pro sua suavitate. Invenior autem moribus et adhuc erudiens non propter se, sed pro meritis profecta doctrinae, cujus sapientia pro principali exemplo discantibus praepouitur, ad nanciscendam spem meliorem. Possunt enim hac aemulatione parentibus simulari.

vi. (Gen. xxvi. 25) Quare aedificando illic altarium, non obtulit sacrificium, sed invocato nomine domini fixit tabernaculum suum?

Sacrificia prae omnibus bonis sine sanguine, et victima animalium pronorum participatio sapientiae alienarum esse credunt, qui puro pectore placere deo desiderant, cujus gratia sufficere credit invocationis auctoris virtutem, qua princeps atque dominator est universitatis, nullius egens. Ita illic figere dicitur tabernaculum suum, suam nempe virtutem, in

vii. (Gen. xxvi. 26)

Quare post quartam putei fossuram a pueris factam, exiit Abimelech ad eum, et Acho^b thalami praepositus, et Phicho princeps militiae?

Videntur mihi exploratores potius, quam pro foedere amicitiarum advenisse, in utroque parati ad praelium, si infirmum viderint: ad pacem, si potentiorum. Sensu tamen subtiliori intelligitur quartus, ut tamen in numeris insignis est, in quo constitutis studiosus per omnem felicitatem provehitur. Sequitur tamen etiam valde perfecto contraria virtus praestolanti et observanti ad incurrendum. Et est hujus fortitudo tres animae partes: mentis acumen rationabile, et animositas, et desiderium. Pro acumine quidem^c rex, animositate princeps militiae, concupiscentia Phichol, qui libidinis videtur esse provisor. Ocholach quidem regna parentur^d ex utraque manu stipatus, hinc atque hinc sui protectu prohibundus, obtinente enim iracundia ut princeps militiae operatur, eo amplius pandimus dictum ex unumquam translatione, est Abimelech Alido,^e Phichol iracundia.

Quod et juramentum vocat, et civitatem, puteum juramenti, fallit. Post juramenta auctoris, quicquid agit justus, hac faedere firmari sperat secundum quadrinitatis virtutem. Unde etiam valde ait severissimam vocamus virtutem, spectatissimam ad capessendum intellectum : obscure autem sensuality occupantem pro incertis earum momentis, cunctantur enim, et immutationem capiunt variis conditionum nutibus. Nuntiat itaque divinus sermo post nativitatem quarti filii, stabilitatem non sterilitatem in creatione maxime incorporalis et intelligibilis substantiae : haec etenim ad quartum usque tenditur. Sensualis vero quinione incipit, quam non sine mercede nominavit. Naturaliter itaque quoniam finis incorporalium usque in quarto est, totius autem rei, et totius disciplinae terminus hominum incertus est, deo autem manifestus, ideo in quarto puteo non inveniunt aquam. Sicut enim puteum fodientes aquam requirunt, ita enim disciplinam sectantes finem explorant, quod est impassibile hominibus revelari. Et quidem superbi metientes, solent affirmare se summos esse Musicos, summos grammaticas, transisse vero et Philosophiae grumos, et sapientiae et totius disciplinae et virtutis metas. Astutus vero, et non sui cultor vel sui laudator, confitetur ex aperta

Hic aliena loquitur qui tot capitulis se existimat tantum scire, finis enim scientiae deo tantum recondita est. Quem etiam testem animae vocat, quoniam pura conscientia confitetur suam ignorantiam. Sola enim novit anima, quoniam nihil novit firmiter. Juramentum igitur nihil est aliud : testimonium dei fidele, atque solidissimum. Si fidele est, certum est, nec placet illi incerta credulitas.

x. (Gen. xxvi. 34) Quare Esau quadrageuarius accepit uxorem Judith filiam Beher Cethci, et Barhatnath filiam Elom Heuaci ?

bilis^a naturaliter continet. Primo quod aequiparatus annorum numerus nuptiis aptus est, et in hoc festinat pervenire. Quis enim non optabit usque ad verbum vel ad quantum videtur imitare potiora. Ut ita similitudinem rerum attingat, ita in hoc pravus et commentis eruditus subornatur insignium rerum titulis, cum sit denotationis non extraneus. Primus gradus ambitur per fallaciam deferendo, et utpote ignorando insipiens lucem et tenebras, nigrum et splendidum, bonum et malum, et alia hujuscemodi aequa ipse per numerum, possibilitate vero non solum disparia, verum etiam contraria. Et haec quidem digna zelo^b tartareo. Inde putans prima sua commenta dirigi, et altera superducit consilia, quorum reatum verborum suffragio caelat. Accepit ergo duas uxores, quas Chaldaei vocant Judith et Basemath. Quarum una interpretatur laudatrix, secunda nominata. Vides qua festinat viri similitudo? Se laudari atque nominari. Ego non negaba Hebraica lingua, et Syrorum loquela Basemath, suavitatem interpretari. Nominata autem Sema dicitur, uou Basemath. Hoc ergo pravus ambitur, non veritate, sed fictis alatus argumentis. Nigrae enim generationis est Cetheus qui excessus interpretatur, cujus merita sectanda, nomine scilicet tantum et vanae gloriae, digno domicilio habetur bestiarum. Hevet enim serpens interpretantur, excelsus atque mentis Cetheus et bestiarum merita figurae sunt ferarum, quibus cari sunt famuli iracundiae et concupiscentiae, adeo aptissimae interpretantur inas atque inferiores sortitus concupiscentiae regiones. Alterius autem uxoris nominatae pater Elom arietis est impetus, pro auspicio furiae.

xi. (Gen. xxvi. 35) Quare has ipsas dixit contendere Isaac et Rebecca?

Non utique ex consensu, uec enim consonat pondus figurae et concupiscentiae auctori mentis. Veruntamen consistere conantur litigia adversus bonorum perseverantiam, quae est Rebecca, et turbelas et contentiones opponant, scientes illarum regimem suam esse dissipationem.
