so·ci·o·path (sō′sē ə path′, sō′shē-), n. a person who is hostile to society. [SOCIO- + -PATH] —so·ci·o·path′ic, adj. —so·ci·op·a·thy (sō′sē op′ə thē, sō′shē-), n.

so·ci·o·psy·cho·log·i·cal (sō′sē ō sī′kə loj′i kəl, sō′shē-), adj. of, pertaining to, or characterized by interrelated social and psychological factors. [SOCIO- + PSYCHOLOGICAL] sock¹ (sok), n., pl. socks or, for 1, also sox. 1. a short stocking usually reaching to the calf or just above the ankle. 2. a lightweight shoe worn by ancient Greek and Roman comic actors. 3. comedy; comic drama. 4. the art of comedy. 5. Archaic. a kind of shoe. Cf. buskin (def. 4). 5. Furniture. a raised vertical area of a club or pad foot. [ME socke, OE socc << L soc(us)] —sock′less, adj. —sock′lessness, n.

sock² (sok), Slang. —n. 1. a blow to strike or hit hard. 2. sock away, to put into savings or reserve. 3. sock in, to be unable to fly because of adverse weather conditions. —v.t. 4. to hit or punch. 5. to accomplish, performance, actor, etc.; wow: The show was a sock. —adj. 6. extremely successful: a sock performance. [?]

sock-dol·a·ger (sok dol′ə jər), n. Slang. 1. something unusually large, heavy, or forceful. 2. a heavy reply, argument, etc. 3. a heavy, finishing blow: His right jab is a real sockdolager. [coinage based on SOCK² + DOXOLOGY (in slang sense of finish) + -ER¹] sock-eye (sok′ī′), n. Slang. a notable success: Her performance was a sockeroo. [SOCK² + -EROO] sock·et (sok′it), n. 1. a hollow part or piece for receiving and holding something: a light socket. 2. a device intended to hold an electric light bulb mechanically and connect it electrically to circuit wires. 3. Also, sock′et-joint′. Mach. a hollow piece on a wall to receive a plug that makes an electrical connection with supply wiring. 3. Anat. a. a hollow in one part which receives another part: the socket of the eye. b. the concavity of a joint: the socket of the hip. See Carpentry. a. mortise in a dovetail joint. —v.t. 5. to place in or fit with a socket. [ME soket < AF; OF soc ploughshare < Celtic; see -ET] —sock′et·less, adj.

sock/et eye′, See rope socket.

sock/et wrench′, a box wrench with a socket that is an extension of the shank. See illus. under wrench.

sock/eye sal′mon (sok′ī), an important food fish, Oncorhynchus nerka, of the Pacific coast. Also called blueback salmon, red salmon, sock/eye′. [< Amerind (Salishan) sukkegh (by folk etymology)] sock-o (sok′ō), adj. Slang. extremely impressive or successful: a sock-o performance; a show with socko box office sales. [SOCK² + -O- suffix of association] sock′ set′, Slang. See high-hat cymbals.

sock′ suspend′er, Brit. garter (def. 1).

so·cle (sok′əl, sō′kəl), n. Archit. a low, plain part forming a base for a column, pedestal, or statue. [< F < It zoccul(o) wooden shoe, base of a pedestal < L soccul(us), equiv. to socc(us) SOCK¹ + -ulus; see -CLE] soc·man (sok′mən, sōk′-), n., pl. -men. sokeman. [< AL socmann(us), equiv. to socca SOKE + mann(us) MAN] so·co·tra (sō kō′trə, sok′ə trə), n. an island in the Indian Ocean, S of Arabia: a part of the Protectorate of South Arabia. ab. 12,000; 1382 sq. mi. Cap.: Tamarida. Also, Sokotra. —So·co′tran, n., adj.

So·cor·ro (sō kôr′ō), n. a town in central New Mexico. 5271 (1960).

Soc·ra·tes (sok′rə tēz′), n. 469?–399 B.C., Athenian philosopher.

Soc·rat·ic (sō krat′ik, sō-), adj. 1. of or pertaining to Socrates or his philosophy, followers, etc. —n. 2. a follower of Socrates. 3. any of the Greek philosophers influenced by Socrates. [< L Socratic(us) < Gk Sōkratikós of, pertaining to SOCRATES; see -IC] —So·crat′i·cal·ly, adv.

Socrat′ic i′rony, pretended ignorance in discussion.

Socrat′ic meth′od, the use of questions, as employed by Socrates, to develop a latent idea, as in the mind of a pupil, or to elicit admissions, as from an opponent, which establish a desired truth.

sod¹ (sod), n., v., sod·ded, sod·ding. —n. 1. a section cut or torn from the surface of grassland, containing the matted roots of grass. 2. the surface of the ground, esp. when covered with grass. 3. turf; sward. —v.t. 3. to cover with sods or sod. [ME < MD or MLG sode turf] —sod′less, adj.

sod² (sod), v. Archaic. pt. of seethe.

sod³ (sod), n. Chiefly Brit. Slang. (usually contemptuous) 1. sodomite; homosexual. 2. chap; fellow; guy. 3. child; kid; brat. Cf. bugger. [by shortening] so·da (sō′də), n. 1. See sodium hydroxide. 2. See sodium monohydrogen carbonate. 3. sodium. 4. sodium, as in carbonate of soda. 5. See soda water. 6. a drink made with soda water, flavoring, such as fruit or other syrups, and often ice cream, milk, etc. 7. (in faro) the card turned up in the dealing box before one begins to play. [perh. < It < ML < Ar suwādā kind of plant; cf. MF soude, soude] —so′da-less, adj.

so′da ash′, Chem. See sodium carbonate (def. 1).

so'da bis'cuit, 1. a biscuit having soda and sour milk or buttermilk as leavening agents. 2. See soda cracker.

so'da crack'er, a thin, crisp cracker or wafer prepared from a yeast dough which has been neutralized by baking soda.

so'da fount'ain, 1. a counter, as in a restaurant or drug store, at which sodas, ice cream, light meals, etc., are served. 2. a container from which soda water is dispensed, as in a restaurant or soda fountain.

so'da jerk', Informal. a person who prepares and serves sodas and ice cream at a soda fountain. Also, so'da jer'ker. [shortened form of soda jerker] so'da lime', a mixture of sodium hydroxide and calcium hydroxide. —so'da-lime', adj.

so'da-lite (sō'də-līt'), n. a mineral, sodium aluminum silicate with sodium chloride, $3NaAlSiO_4NaCl$, occurring massive and in crystals, usually blue in color and found in certain alkali-rich igneous rocks. [SODA + -LITE] so'da-li'ty (sō dal'i tē, sə-), n., pl. -ties. 1. fellowship; comradeship. 2. an association or society. 3. Rom. Cath. Ch. a lay society for religious and charitable purposes. [< L sodalitāt- (s. of sodalitās) companionship, relation to sodālis) companion + -itāt- -ITY] so'da-mide (sō'də mīd'), n. Chem. See sodium amide. [SOD(IUM) + AMIDE] so'da pop', a carbonated and artificially flavored soft drink.

so'da wa'ter, 1. an effervescent beverage consisting of water charged with carbon dioxide and often flavored. 2. See soda pop. 3. a weak solution of sodium bicarbonate, taken as a stomachic.

sod·bust·er (sod'bus'tər), n. a farmer who works the soil. [SOD¹ + BUSTER] sod·den (sod'n), adj. 1. soaked with liquid or moisture; saturated. 2. heavy, lumpy, or soggy, as food that is poorly cooked. 3. having a soaked appearance. 4. bloated, as the face. 5. expressionless, dull, or stupid. 6. lacking spirit or alertness; inert; rapid; listless. 7. Archaic. boiled. —v.t., v.i. 8. to make or become sodden. 9. Archaic. pp. of seethe. [ME sodden, ptp. of to SEETHE] —sod'den-ness, n.

Sod·dy (sod'ē), n. Frederick, 1877–1956, English chemist: Nobel prize 1921.

sodic, adj. (of inorganic chemistry) a combining form of sodium: sodio-cupric chloride.

so·di·um (sō'dē əm), n. Chem. a soft, silver-white, metallic element which oxidizes rapidly in moist air, occurring in nature only in the combined state: used in the synthesis of sodium peroxide, sodium cyanide, and tetraethyllead. Symbol: Na; at. wt.: 22.9898; at. no.: 11; sp. gr. (0°C) 0.9712; m.p. 97.5°C; see SOD(A), -IUM]

so'dium am'ide, Chem. a white, crystalline, water-insoluble fusible compound, $NaNH_2$, used chiefly in the manufacture of sodium cyanide. Also, sodamide.

so'dium ammo'nium phos'phate, Chem. a colorless, odorless, crystalline, water-soluble solid, $NaNH_4HPO_4·4H_2O$, originally obtained from human urine: used as a blowpipe flux in testing metallic oxides. Also called microcosmic salt, salt of phosphorus.

so'dium ar'senite, Chem. a white or grayish-white, water-soluble powder, $NaAsO_2$, used chiefly in arsenical soaps for hides, as an insecticide, and as a weed-killer. Also called sodium metaarsenite.

so'dium ben'zoate, Chem., Pharm. a white, crystalline or granular, water-soluble powder, C_6H_5COONa, used chiefly as a food preservative and as an antiseptic. Also called benzoate of soda.

so'dium bicar'bonate, Chem., Pharm. a white, crystalline, water-soluble powder or granules, $NaHCO_3$, usually prepared by the reaction of soda ash with carbon dioxide obtained from the ammonia-soda method of the Solvay process by purification: used chiefly in the manufacture of sodium salts, baking powder, and beverages, as a laboratory reagent, as a fire extinguisher, and in medicine as an antacid. Also called bicarbonate of soda, baking soda, sodium acid carbonate.

so'dium bichro'mate, Chem. See sodium dichromate.

so'dium bo'rate, Chem. borax¹.

so'dium bro'mide, Chem. a white, crystalline, hygroscopic, water-soluble solid, NaBr, used chiefly in photography as a developer, and in medicine as a diuretic.

so'dium car'bonate, Chem. 1. Also called soda ash. an anhydrous, grayish-white, odorless, water-soluble powder, Na_2CO_3, usually obtained by the Solvay process and containing 1 percent of impurities consisting of sulfates, chlorides, and bicarbonates of sodium: used in the manufacture of glass, ceramics, soaps, and petroleum products, as a cleanser, for bleaching, and in water treatment. 2. Also called sal soda, washing soda. the decahydrated form of this salt, $Na_2CO_3·10H_2O$, used similarly. 3. the monohydrated form of this salt, $Na_2CO_3·H_2O$, used similarly, esp. in photography.

so'dium chlo'rate, Chem. a colorless, water-soluble solid, $NaClO_3$, cool and salty to the taste, used chiefly in the manufacture of explosives and matches, as a textile mordant, an oxidizing and bleaching agent, and as a weak antiseptic for skin and mucous membranes.

so'dium chlo'ride, Chem. salt (def. 1).

so'dium ci'trate, Chem. a white, crystalline or granular, water-soluble, odorless solid, $Na_3C_6H_5O_7·2H_2O$, having a cool, saline taste: used in photography, in soft drinks, and in medicine chiefly to prevent the coagulation of blood.

so'dium cy'anide, Chem. a white, crystalline, deliquescent, water-soluble, poisonous powder, NaCN, prepared by heating sodium amide with charcoal: used chiefly in casehardening alloys, in the leaching and flotation of ore, and in electroplating.

so'dium cyc'la·mate (sik'lə māt', sī'klə-), Chem. a white, crystalline, water-soluble powder, $C_6H_{11}NHSO_3Na$, used chiefly as a sweetening agent, as in soft drinks, for low-calorie or diabetic diets. Also called sodium cyclohexylsulfamate. Cf. calcium cyclamate. [CYCL- + HEX- + -YL + SULF(O)- + AM(IDE) + -ATE²] so'dium cy·clo·hex·yl·sul'fa·mate (sī'klō hek'-sil sul'fə māt', sil'fə-), Chem. See sodium cyclamate. [CYCLO- + HEXYL + SULFAMATE] so'dium dichro'mate, Chem. a red or orange crystalline, water-soluble solid, $Na_2Cr_2O_7·2H_2O$, used as an oxidizing agent in the manufacture of dyes and inks, as a corrosion inhibitor, a mordant, a laboratory reagent, in the tanning of leather, and in electroplating. Also, sodium bichromate.

so'dium dithi'onite, Chem. See sodium hydrosulfite. [DI¹ + THIONITE]

so'dium eth·ox'ide (e thok'sīd, -sid), Chem. See sodium ethylate. [ETH(YL) + OXIDE]

so'dium eth'ylate, Chem. a white, hygroscopic powder, $NaOC_2H_5$, which is decomposed by water into sodium hydroxide and alcohol: used chiefly in organic synthesis. Also called caustic alcohol, sodium alcoholate.

so'dium eth·yl·mer·cu·ri·thi·o·sa·lic·y·late (eth'əl mər kyoor'ə thī'ō sə lis'ə lāt'), Pharm. thimerosal. [ETHYL + MERCURI(Y) + -I- + THIO- + SALICYLATE] so'dium flu'oride, a colorless, crystalline, water-soluble, poisonous solid, NaF, used chiefly in the fluoridation of water, as an insecticide, and as a wood preservative.

so'dium flu·o·ro·ac'e·tate (flōō'ə rō as'ə tāt', flōr'ō-, flōr'ō-), Chem. a white amorphous, water-soluble, poisonous powder, FCH_2COONa, used for killing rodents. Also called 1080.

so'dium glu'tamate, Chem. See monosodium glutamate.

so'dium hydrosul'fite, Chem. a white, crystalline, water-soluble powder, $Na_2S_2O_4$, used as a reducing agent, esp. in dyeing, and as a bleach. Also called hydrosulfite, sodium dithionate, sodium hyposulfite.

so'dium hy'drox·ide (hī drok'sīd, -sid), Chem. a white, deliquescent, water-soluble solid, NaOH, usually in the form of lumps, sticks, chips, or pellets, which upon solution in water generates heat: used chiefly in the manufacture of other sodium salts, rayon, film, soap, as a laboratory reagent, and in medicine as a caustic. Also called caustic soda.

so'dium hy·po·sul'fite, Chem. 1. See sodium thiosulfate. 2. See sodium hydrosulfite.

so'dium i'odide, Chem. a colorless or white, crystalline, deliquescent, water-soluble solid, NaI, used chiefly in the manufacture of photographic emulsions, in organic synthesis, and as a disinfectant in veterinary medicine.

so'dium lamp', Elect. See sodium-vapor lamp.

so'dium met·a·ars'e·nite (met'ə är'sə nīt'), Chem. See sodium arsenite.

so'dium meth'ylate, Chem. a white, free-flowing, flammable powder, CH_3ONa, decomposed by water to sodium hydroxide and methyl alcohol: used chiefly in organic synthesis. Also called so'dium methox'ide.

so'dium monox'ide, Chem. a white powder, Na_2O, that reacts violently with water to produce sodium hydroxide: also called sodium oxide.

so'dium ni'trate, Chem. a crystalline, water-soluble compound, $NaNO_3$, which occurs naturally as Chile saltpeter: used in fertilizers, explosives, and glass.

so'dium ox'ide, Chem. See sodium monoxide.

So'dium Pen'tothal, Pharm., Trademark. the sodium salt of Pentothal; sodium thiopental. Cf. thiopental.

so'dium perbo'rate, Chem. a white, crystalline, water-soluble solid, $NaBO_3·H_2O_2·3H_2O$ or $NaBO_3·4H_2O$, used chiefly as a bleaching agent and disinfectant. Also called perborate.

so'dium perox'ide, Chem. a yellowish-white, hygroscopic, water-soluble powder, Na_2O_2, used chiefly as a bleaching agent and as an oxidizing agent.

so'dium phos'phate, Chem. 1. Also called monobasic sodium phosphate. a white, crystalline, slightly hygroscopic, water-soluble powder, NaH_2PO_4, used chiefly in dyeing and in electroplating. 2. Also called dibasic sodium phosphate. a water-soluble compound which in its anhydrous form, Na_2HPO_4, occurring as a white, crystalline, hygroscopic powder, is used chiefly in the manufacture of ceramic glazes, enamels, soaps, and glues and which in its hydrated form, $Na_2HPO_4·xH_2O$, occurring as clear colorless crystals, is used chiefly in the manufacture of dyes, fertilizers, pharmaceuticals, and photography. 3. Also called tribasic sodium phosphate. a water-soluble compound, $Na_3PO_4·12H_2O$, occurring as colorless crystals used chiefly in the manufacture of water-softening agents, detergents, paper, and textiles.

so'dium polysul'fide, Chem. a yellow-brown, water-soluble, granular powder, Na_2S_x, used chiefly in the manufacture of sulfur dyes, insecticides, and synthetic rubber.

so'dium pro'pionate, Chem. a transparent, crystalline, water-soluble powder, CH_3CH_2COONa, used chiefly in foods to prevent mold growth, and in medicine as a fungicide.

so'dium pyrobo'rate, Chem. borax¹. [PYRO- + BORATE] so'dium sil'icate, Chem. any of several water-soluble compounds of formulas varying in ratio from $Na_2O·3.75SiO_2$ to $2Na_2O·SiO_2$, and occurring as white powders, as cloudy or clear, viscous-to-fluid liquids, or as lumps: used chiefly in dyeing, printing, and fireproofing textiles and in the manufacture of paper products and cement.

so'dium sul'fate, Chem. a white, crystalline, water-soluble solid, Na_2SO_4, used chiefly in the manufacture of dyes, soaps, detergents, glass, and ceramic glazes.

so'dium sul'fide, Chem. a yellow or brick-red, crystalline, deliquescent, water-soluble solid, Na_2S, used chiefly in the manufacture of dyes, soaps, and rubber, as a depilatory for leather, and in the flotation of lead and copper ores.

so'dium sul'fite, Chem. a white, crystalline, water-soluble solid, Na_2SO_3, used chiefly as a food preservative, as a bleaching agent, and as a developer in photography.

so'dium tet'ra·bo'rate, Chem. borax. [TETRA- + BORATE] so'dium thi·o·cy'a·nate, Chem., Pharm. a white powder or colorless deliquescent crystals, NaSCN, used chiefly in organic synthesis and in medicine in the treatment of hypertension.

so'dium thi·o·sul'fate, Chem. a white, crystalline, water-soluble powder, $Na_2S_2O_3·5H_2O$, used as a bleach and in photography as a fixing agent. Also called antichlor, hypo, hyposulfite, sodium hyposulfite.

so'dium-va·por lamp' (sō'dē əm vā'pər), Elect. an electric lamp in which sodium vapor is activated by current passed between two electrodes, producing a yellow, glareless light: used on streets and highways. Also called sodium lamp.

speck·le (spek′əl), n., v., -led, -ling. —n. 1. a small speck, spot, or mark, as on skin. 2. speckled coloring or marking. —v.t. 3. to mark with or as with speckles. [late ME; see SPECK, -LE] —speck′led-ness, n.

speck′led trout′. See brook trout (def. 1).

specs (speks), n.pl. Informal. 1. spectacles; eyeglasses. 2. specifications. [by shortening] spec·ta·cle (spek′tə kəl), n. 1. anything presented to the sight or view, esp. a public show of striking or impressive kind: The stars make a fine spectacle tonight. 2. a public show or display, esp. on a large scale: The coronation was a lavish spectacle. 3. spectacles, eyeglasses, esp. when supported over or around the ears for holding in place (usually used with pair of). 4. Often, spectacles. a. something resembling spectacles in appearance, as a pair of various devices suggesting spectacles as one attached to a semaphore to display lights or different colors by colored glass. 5. Obs. a spyglass. 6. make a spectacle of oneself, to call attention to oneself by conduct believed badly by public: We understand she got roaring drunk and made a spectacle of herself in the Place de la Concorde. [ME < MF < LL spectāculum), deriv. of L spectāre freq. of specere. See SPECIES, -CLE] —spec′ta·cle-less, adj. —spec′ta·cle-like′, adj.

spec′tacle clew′, Naut. a clew iron having the corners joined rings.

spec·ta·cled (spek′tə kəld), adj. 1. provided with or wearing spectacles. 2. (of an animal) having a marking resembling a pair of spectacles. [SPECTACLE + -ED3]

spec′tacled bear′, an Andean ochraceous bear.

spec′tacle frame′, Naut. 1. a casting in the after body vessel containing bearings for propeller shafts on each side of the fore-and-aft center line. 2. any of various frames specially formed to fit around propeller shafts projecting from the after body of a vessel on either side of the fore-and-aft center line.

spec·tac·u·lar (spek tak′yə lər), adj. 1. of or like a spectacle; marked by or given to an impressive, large-scale display. 2. dramatically daring or thrilling: a spectacular dive from a cliff. —n. 3. a single television production featuring well-known performers and characteristics, elaborate settings, staging, etc. Cf. special (def. 14). 4. an impressive, large-scale display: another Hollywood spectacular. [< L spectāculum) (see SPECTACLE) + -ar -AR1] —spec·tac′u·lar·ism (spek tak′yə lə riz′əm), n. —spec·tac′u·lar·ly, adv.

spec·ta·tor (spek′tā tər, spek tā′-), n. 1. a person who is present at and views a spectacle, display, or the like. [< L, deriv. of spectātus, ptp. of spectāre. See SPECTACLE, -ATE1, -OR2] —spec·ta·to·ri·al (spek′tə tôr′ē əl, -tōr′-), adj.

Spectator, The, a weekly periodical (1711–12, 1714) conducted by Joseph Addison and Richard Steele.

spec·ta·tress (spek tā′tris, spek′tā-), n. a female spectator. [SPECTATOR + -TRESS]

spec·ta·trix (spek tā′triks, spek′tā-), n., pl. -tri·ces (-tri sēz′), -trix·es. spectatress. [< L, fem. of spectātor SPECTATOR; see -TRIX]

spec·ter (spek′tər), n. 1. a visible incorporeal spirit, being, or object having nature; ghost; phantom; apparition. 2. some object or source of terror or dread: the specter of disease or famine. Also, esp. Brit., spec′tre. [< F spectre) < L see SPECTRUM] —Syn. 1. shade. See ghost.

spec·tral (spek′trəl), adj. 1. of or pertaining to a specter; ghostly; phantom. 2. resembling or suggesting a specter. 3. of, pertaining to, or produced by a spectrum or spectra. 4. resembling or suggesting a spectrum or spectra. [< L spectr(um) (see SPECTRUM) + -AL1] —spec·tral′i·ty, spec′tral·ness, n. —spec′tral-ly, adv.

spec′tral classifica′tion, Astron. the classification of a star by classifying its spectrum into one of ten major types each of which is further divided into ten subclasses.

spec′tral se′ries, Physics. a series of lines in the spectrum of light emitted by excited atoms of an element, each line being produced by the atoms in the series by a simple numerical equation and identified with a particular energy level of an atom of the element.

spec′tra yel′low, a vivid yellow color. Also called hansa yellow.

spectro-, a combining form of spectrum: spectrometer.

spec·tro·bo·lom·e·ter (spek′trō bō lom′i tər), n. Physics. an instrument consisting of a spectroscope and a bolometer, for determining the distribution of radiant energy in a spectrum. [SPECTRO- + BOLOMETER] —spec·tro·bo·lo·met·ric (spek′trō bō′lə me′trik), adj.

spec·tro·chem·i·cal (spek′trō kem′i kəl), adj. of, pertaining to, or utilizing the techniques of spectrochemistry. [SPECTRO- + CHEMICAL]

spec·tro·chem·is·try (spek′trō kem′i strē), n. the branch of chemistry that deals with the chemical analysis of substances by means of the spectra of light they absorb or emit. [SPECTRO- + CHEMISTRY]

spec·tro·col·o·rim·e·try (spek′trō kul′ə rim′i trē), n. the quantitative measure of colors by spectrophotometry. [SPECTRO- + COLORIMETRY]

spec·tro·gram (spek′trə gram′), n. a representation or photograph of a spectrum. [SPECTRO- + -GRAM1]

spec·tro·graph (spek′trə graf′, -gräf′), n. a spectroscope for photographing or producing a representation of a spectrum. [SPECTRO- + -GRAPH] —spec·trog·ra·pher (spek trog′rə fər), n. —spec·tro·graph·ic (spek′trə graf′ik), adj. —spec′tro·graph·i·cal·ly, adv.

spec·tro·he·li·o·gram (spek′trō hē′lē ə gram′), n. a photograph of the sun made with a spectroheliograph. [SPECTRO- + HELIOGRAM]

spec·tro·he·li·o·graph (spek′trō hē′lē ə graf′, -gräf′), n. an apparatus for making photographs of the sun with a monochromatic light to show the details of the sun's surface and surroundings as they would appear if the sun emitted that light. [SPECTRO- + HELIOGRAPH] —spec·tro·he·li·o·graph·ic (spek′trō hē′lē ə graf′ik), adj.

spec·tro·he·li·o·scope (spek′trō hē′lē ə skōp′), n. a spectroheliograph. 2. a similar instrument, used for visual instead of photographic observations. [SPECTRO- + HELIO- + -SCOPE] —spec·tro·he·li·o·scop·ic (spek′trō hē′lē ə skop′ik), adj.

spec·trol·o·gy (spek trol′ə jē), n. the study of ghosts, phantoms, or apparitions. [< L spectr(um) SPECTER + -O- + -LOGY] —spec·tro·log·i·cal (spek′trə loj′i kəl), adj. —spec′tro·log′i·cal·ly, adv.

spec·trom·e·ter (spek trom′i tər), n. Optics. an optical device for measuring wavelengths, deviation of refracted rays, and angles between faces of a prism, esp. an instrument for measuring the refractive index of a slit through which light passes, a collimator, a prism that deviates the light, and a telescope through which the deviated light is observed and examined. [SPECTRO- + -METER] —spec·tro·met·ric (spek′trə me′trik), adj. —spec·trom′e·try, n.

spec·tro·mi·cro·scope (spek′trō mī′krə skōp′), n. a microscope with an attached spectroscope. —spec·tro·mi·cro·scop·ic (spek′trō mī′krə skop′ik), adj. —spec′tro·mi·cro·scop·i·cal (spek′trō mī′krə skop′i kəl), adj.

spec·tro·pho·to·e·lec·tric (spek′trō fō′tō i lek′trik), adj. Physics. pertaining to the relation between the wave length of the incident radiation and the number of electrons released by a substance during a photoelectric effect. [SPECTRO- + PHOTOELECTRIC] spec·tro·pho·tom·e·ter (spek′trō fō tom′i tər), n. an instrument for making photometric comparisons between parts of spectra. [SPECTRO- + PHOTOMETER] —spec·tro·pho·to·met·ric (spek′trō fō′tə me′trik), adj. —spec′tro·pho′to·met′ri·cal·ly, adv. —spec′tro·pho·tom′e·try, n.

spec·tro·po·lar·im·e·ter (spek′trō pō′lə rim′i tər), n. Optics. an instrument for determining the extent to which plane-polarized light of different wavelengths is rotated by certain solutions, consisting of a combination of a spectroscope and a polarimeter. [SPECTRO- + POLARIMETER] spec·tro·po·lar·i·scope (spek′trō pō lar′ə skōp′), n. Optics. an instrument combining the functions of a spectroscope with those of a polariscope. Cf. spectropolarimeter. [SPECTRO- + POLARISCOPE]

spec·tro·ra·di·om·e·ter (spek′trō rā′dē om′i tər), n. Optics. an instrument for determining the radiant-energy distribution in a spectrum, combining the functions of a spectroscope with those of a radiometer. [SPECTRO- + RADIOMETER] —spec·tro·ra·di·o·met·ric (spek′trō rā′dē ə me′trik), adj. —spec′tro·ra′di·om′e·try, n.

spec·tro·scope (spek′trə skōp′), n. Optics. an optical device for producing and observing a spectrum of light or radiation from any source, consisting essentially of a slit through which the radiation passes, a collimating lens, and an arrangement for viewing the spectrum. [SPECTRO- + -SCOPE] —spec·tro·scop·ic (spek′trə skop′ik), spec′tro·scop′i·cal, adj. —spec′tro·scop′i·cal·ly, adv.

spec·tro·scop·ic bi′nary, Astron. a binary star having components that are not ordinarily separated to be resolved by a telescope, known to be a binary only by the variations in wave length of emitted light that are detected by a spectroscope. Cf. visual binary.

spec·tros·co·py (spek tros′kə pē, spek′trə skō′pē), n. the science that deals with the use of the spectroscope and with spectral analysis. [SPECTRO- + -SCOPY] —spec·tro·scop·ist (spek′trə skō pist), n.

spec·trum (spek′trəm), n., pl. -tra (-trə), -trums. 1. Physics. a. an array of entities, as light waves or particles, ordered in accordance with the magnitudes of a common physical property, as wave length or mass: often the band of colors produced when sunlight is passed through a prism, comprising red, orange, yellow green, blue, indigo, and violet. b. this band or series of colors together with certain invisible ends which are not visible to the eye, but which can be studied by means of photography, heat effects, etc., and which are produced the characteristic radiations of elements than ordinary light rays. 2. a broad range of varied but related ideas or objects, the individual features of which tend to overlap so as to form a continuous series or sequence: the spectrum of political beliefs. 3. L: appearance, form, deriv. of spectāre; see SPECTACLE]

spec′trum anal′ysis, 1. the determination of the constitution or condition of bodies and substances by means of the spectra they produce. 2. the ascertaining of the number and character of the constituents combining to produce a sound spectrogram.

spec·u·lar (spek′yə lər), adj. 1. pertaining to or having the properties of a mirror. 2. pertaining to a speculum. [< L speculār(is) (specul(um) a mirror, equiv. to spec- look (see SPECIES) + -ul- -CULE) + -āris -AR1] —spec′u·lar·ly, adv.

spec·u·late (spek′yə lāt′), v., -lat·ed, -lat·ing. I. to engage in thought or reflection; meditate (often fol. by on, upon, or a clause). 2. to indulge in conjectural thought. 3. to engage in business or finance, in the expectation of profit through a change in their market value; engage in any business transaction involving considerable risk or the chance of large gains. [< L speculātus) observed, watched, examined; see SPECULATOR]

—Syn. 1. think, reflect, cogitate. 2. conjecture, guess, surmise, suppose, theorize.

spec·u·la·tion (spek′yə lā′shən), n. 1. the contemplation or consideration of a subject: a study in language vs. speculation on man's ultimate destiny. 2. a single instance or process of consideration. 3. a conclusion or opinion reached by such contemplation: His speculation was impossible to verify. 4. conjectural consideration of a matter; conjecture or surmise: a speculation that was on the wing considerable. 5. trading in commodities, stocks, etc., in the hope of profit from changes in the market price; engagement in business transactions involving considerable risk but offering the chance of large gains. 6. a specific commercial venture or undertaking. [ME speculacioun < LL speculātiōn- (s. of speculātiō) exploration, observation. See SPECULATOR, -TION] —Syn. 3. supposition, view, theory, hypothesis.

spec·u·la·tive (spek′yə lā′tiv, -lə tiv), adj. 1. pertaining to, of the nature of, or characterized by speculation, contemplation, conjecture, or abstract reasoning: We must approach the problem in a speculative way. 2. theoretical, rather than practical: We are left with merely speculative conclusions. 3. given to speculation, as persons or the mind; etc. 4. of the nature of or involving commercial or financial speculation: He lost a fortune in speculative ventures. 5. engaging in or given to such speculation. [ME speculatif < LL speculātīv(us) (see SPECULATOR, -IVE)] —spec′u·la′tive·ly, adv. —spec′u·la′tive·ness, n.

spec·u·la·tive phi·los′o·phy, philosophy embodying beliefs incapable of proof, and attempting to gain insight into the nature of the ultimate by intuitive or a priori means.

spec·u·la·tor (spek′yə lā′tər), n. 1. a person who is engaged in commercial or financial speculation. 2. a person who makes advance purchases of tickets, as for games, theatrical performances, etc., that are likely to be in demand and resells later at a higher price. 3. a person who is devoted to mental speculation. [< L: explorer, equiv. to speculāt(us), pp. of speculārī (specul(a) lookout, equiv. to spec(ere) (to) look at + -ula tool + -fix + -ātus -ATE¹) + -tor -TOR²]

spec′u·lum met′al, any of several bronze alloys, often containing other materials, as silver, brass, lead, zinc, or arsenic, used for making mirrors and reflectors. Also called speculum.

sped (sped), v. a pt. and pp. of speed.

Sp.Ed., Specialist in Education.

Spee (shpā), n. Ma·xi·mi·li·an von (mäk′si mē′lē ən′ fən), 1861–1941, German admiral.

speech (spēch), n. 1. the faculty or power of speaking; oral communication; ability to express one's thoughts and emotions by speech sounds and gesture: Losing his speech isolated him from humanity. 2. the act of speaking: He expressed his opinion in speech than in writing. 3. that which is spoken; an utterance, remark, or declaration: We waited in vain for some speech that would indicate his true feelings. 4. formal communication in spoken language, made by a speaker before an audience for a given purpose: a fiery speech. 5. any single utterance of an actor in a drama or other literary composition, etc. 6. the form of utterance characteristic of a particular people or region; a language or dialect. 7. manner of speaking, as of a person: His slovenly speech is holding back his career. 8. the science or study of the theory and practice of oral communication. 9. Archaic. rumor. [ME speche, OE spǣc, var. of spræc; c. G Sprache]

—Syn. 1. parlance, parley, conversation, communication, locution. SPEECH, LANGUAGE, TONGUE mean communication used by people. SPEECH is the expression of ideas and thoughts by means of articulate vocal sounds, or the faculty of using such sounds to express ideas and thoughts. LANGUAGE is a set of conventional signs, used conventionally and not necessarily articulate or even vocal (any set of signs, actions, or habits, which convey meaning, including written words, may be called language): a spoken language. Thus, LANGUAGE is the set of conventions, and SPEECH is the action of putting these to use: Gesture is a universal form of speech; the natives because it was in a foreign language. 3. observation, assertion, asseveration, averral, comment, mention, talk. 4. address, oration, lecture, sermon, oration, HARANGUE are terms for a communication to an audience. SPEECH is the general word, with no implication of kind or length; it may be informal or formal. An ADDRESS is a rather formal, planned speech, appropriate to a particular subject or occasion. An ORATION is a polished, rhetorical address, given usually on a notable occasion, that exemplifies the highest standards of delivery. A HARANGUE is a violent, informal speech, often addressed to a casual audience, and intended to arouse the feeling (sometimes to lead to mob action). 6. tongue, patois.

speech′ clin′ic, a place at which specialists in speech therapy reeducate those with a speech handicap.

speech′ com′mu·nity, Ling. 1. the aggregate of all the people who use a given language or dialect. 2. a group of people geographically distributed so that there is no language variability beyond a point of reference.

speech′ cor·rec′tion, the reeducation of speech habits which deviate from accepted speech standards.

speech′ form′, See linguistic form.

speech·i·fy (spē′chə fī′), v.i. -fied, -fy·ing. to make a speech or speeches. [SPEECH + -IFY] —speech′-i·fi·ca′tion, n. —speech′i·fi′er, n.

speech′ is′land, Ling. a speech community that is completely surrounded by another, usually larger, speech community.

speech·less (spēch′lis), adj. 1. temporarily deprived of speech by strong emotion, physical weakness, exhaustion, etc.: speechless with alarm. 2. characterized by absence or loss of speech: speechless joy. 3. lacking the faculty of speech; dumb. 4. not expressed in speech or words: speechless compliments. 5. refraining from speech. [ME speecheles, OE spǣclēas. See SPEECH, -LESS] —speech′less·ly, adv. —speech′less·ness, n.

—Syn. 1. dumfounded, shocked, mute. See dumb. 3. silent, mute. —Ant. 1–3. loquacious, voluble, talkative.

speech·mak·er (spēch′mā′kər), n. a person who delivers speeches. [SPEECH + MAKER] speech·mak·ing (spēch′mā′kiŋ), n. the act or practice of making speeches. [SPEECH + MAKING] speech′ or′gan, any part of the body, as tongue, velum, diaphragm, lungs, etc., that participates, actively or passively, in phonation, involuntarily, in the production of the sounds of speech.

speech′ pathol′ogy, the scientific study and treatment of defects, disorders, and malfunctions of speech and voice, as stuttering, lisping, lalling, etc., and of language disturbances, as aphasia, delayed language acquisition, etc.

speech′ read′ing, the act or process of determining the intended meaning of a speaker by utilizing all visual clues accompanying speech attempts, as lip movements, facial expressions, and bodily gestures, used esp. by people with impaired hearing. Cf. lip reading.

speech′ sound′, Phonet. 1. any of the set of distinctive sounds of a given language. 2. phoneme. 2. any audible, elemental, speech-like event occurring in speech: "Go" contains the speech sound "o." Cf. phone². 3. any of the sounds of the entire phonetic system of a language, as vowels, consonants.

speech·way (spēch′wā′), n. a pattern, style, or feature of spoken language shared by the people of a particular group or area. [SPEECH + WAY] speed (spēd), n., v., sped or speed·ed, speed·ing. —n. 1. rapidity of motion; swiftness; celerity: the speed of light; the speed of sound. 2. relative rapidity in moving, going, etc.; rate of progress: Increase your speed to 60 miles an hour. 3. Auto. a transmission gear ratio. 4. Photog. a. the sensitivity of a film or paper to light. b. the length of time a shutter is open to expose film or paper. c. the largest opening at which a lens can be used. 5. Optics, Photog. See F number. 6. Archaic. success or prosperity. 7. at full or top speed, a. at the greatest speed possible: We drove down the road at full speed. b. to the maximum of one's capabilities; with great rapidity: He worked at full speed. —v.t. 8. to promote the success of (an affair, undertaking, etc.): May God speed you in your enterprise. 9. to direct (the steps, course, way, etc.) with speed. 10. to increase the rate of speed of (usually fol. by up): to speed up industrial production. 11. to bring to a particular speed, as a machine. 12. to cause to move, go, or proceed with speed. 13. to expedite the going of: to speed the parting guest. 14. Archaic. to cause to succeed or prosper. —v.i. 15. to move, go, or proceed with speed or rapidity. 16. to drive a vehicle at a rate that exceeds the legally established maximum: He was arrested for speeding. 17. to move, go, or proceed at a rate of progress (usually fol. by up). 18. to get on or fare in a specified or particular manner. 19. Archaic. to succeed or prosper. [ME spede good luck, OE spēd; c. G spross, Icel spǫ́r, akin to OE spōwan to prosper, succeed] —speed′er, n. —sped′ful, adj. —speed′-ful·ly, adv. —speed′ful·ness, n. —speed′ing·ly, adv.

—Syn. 1, 2. fleetness, alacrity, dispatch, expedition; hurry. SPEED, VELOCITY, QUICKNESS, RAPIDITY, CELERITY, HASTE refer to swift or energetic movement or operation. SPEED is actually neutral, for movement may apply to human or nonhuman activity and emphasizes the rate in time at which something travels or operates: Speed is of the essence in the execution of a thought. VELOCITY, a more learned or technical term, is sometimes interchangeable with SPEED: the velocity of light; the velocity of sound. It can refer to high rates of speed, linear or circular: velocity of a projectile. QUICKNESS, a native word, and RAPIDITY, a synonym of Latin origin, suggest speed of movement or operation on a small or subordinate scale: quickness of perception, quickness (quickness of mind, of perception, of bodily movement), rapidity more to things, often in a technical or mechanical sense: rapidity of motion, rapidity of fire, great rapidity. CELERITY, a somewhat literary synonym of Latin origin, refers usually to human movement or operation and emphasizes expedition, dispatch, or economy in an activity: the celerity of his response. HASTE refers to the energetic activity of human beings under stress; it often suggests lack of opportunity for care or thought: Haste makes waste; to proceed with haste. 8. advance, favor. 10. accelerate. 15. See rush¹. —Ant. 1. slowness.

speed·ball (spēd′bôl′), n. a game similar to soccer with the chief difference that a player catching the ball on the fly can pass it with the hands. [SPEED + BALL¹] speed·boat (spēd′bōt′), n. a motorboat so constructed that it will move rapidly through the water. [SPEED + BOAT] speed·boat·ing (spēd′bō′tiŋ), n. the act, practice, or sport of traveling in a speedboat. [SPEED + BOATING] sped′ de′mon, Informal. one who travels or works at high speed.

speed′ gear′, an adjustable gear for driving a machine at various speeds.

speed′ in′di·ca′tor, hand instrument for counting the number of revolutions of a gasoline engine, in contrast with a watch for determining engine speed. Also called speed′ count′er.

speed′ light′, Photog. an electronic flash lamp. Also called speed′ lamp′.

speed′ lim′it, the maximum speed at which a vehicle is legally permitted to travel, as within a specified area, on a certain road, under given conditions, etc.

speed·om·e·ter (spē dom′i tər, spi-), n. a device on an automobile or other vehicle for recording the rate of travel in miles per hour and often the distance covered. [SPEED + -OMETER] speed′ skate′. See racing skate.

speed·ster (spēd′stər), n. Informal. a person who travels at high speed. [SPEED + -STER] speed′ trap′, a section of a road where hidden policemen, radar, etc., carefully check the speed of motorists and strictly enforce traffic regulations: sometimes characterized by hard-to-see signals, hidden traffic signs, etc.

speed up (spēd′up′), n. 1. an increasing of speed. 2. an imposed increase in the rate of production of a worker without a corresponding increase in the rate of pay. [n. use of v. phrase speed up] speed·walk (spēd′wôk′), n. an endless conveyor belt, moving walk, or the like, used to transport standing persons from place to place. [SPEED + WALK] speed·way (spēd′wā′), n. 1. a road or course for fast driving, motoring, or the like, or on which more than ordinary speed is allowed. 2. a track on which automobile or motorcycle races are held. [SPEED + WAY]

Speed·way (spēd′wā′), n. a town in central Indiana, 9624 (1960).

speed·well (spēd′wel′), n. any of several herbs, shrubs or small trees of the genus Veronica. [SPEED + WELL¹; so called because its petals fade and fall early] speed·y (spē′dē), adj., speed·i·er, speed·i·est. 1. characterized by speed; rapid; swift; fast. 2. coming, given, or arrived at quickly or soon; prompt; not delayed: a speedy recovery. [ME spedy. See SPEED, -Y¹] —speed′i·ly, adv. —speed′i·ness, n.

—Syn. 1. quick. 2. expeditious.

speel (spēl), v.t., v.i. Scot. and North Eng. to climb; ascend; mount. Also, spiel. [?]

speen (spēn), n. Scot. and North Eng. spean.

speer¹ (spēr), Scot. and North Eng. —v.t. 1. to ask; inquire. —v.t. 2. to ask (a question). 3. to learn, know, or find by asking or seeking. Also, speir (spēr), spier. [ME spere, speren, spir(i)an (i.o.) to make tracks, trace, ask about; c. G spüren, Icel spyrja; akin to SPOOR] speer² (spēr), n. spier².

Spei·cher (spī′kər), n. Eugene Edward, born 1883, U.S. painter.

speiss (spīs), n. Metall. a product obtained in smelting certain ores, consisting of one or more metallic arsenides, as of iron, nickel, etc. [< G; lit., flue dust] split′ infin′itive, Gram. an expression in which there is a word or group of words between to and adverbial phrase, between to and its accompanying verb form in an infinitive, as in to readily understand.

—Usage. The "rule" against splitting infinitives seems to have been begun by writers who knew Latin (where, who, in addition to being a famous dramatist, was a careful stylist and Latin scholar. In Latin, the infinitive is one word, hence cannot be split. Modeling English style on Latin style and grammar was then considered the epitome of good writing, so Dryden inveighed against the practice of using sentences like, To really get to know him, one must have lived with him. But there is nothing inherent in English grammar or style to justify such an injunction, and, in a sentence like the preceding, splitting the infinitive often makes for awkward phrasing. Traditionalists', purists', and other schoolmarmish stylists' objections notwithstanding, there is nothing wrong with a split infinitive in English.

ste-ra-di-an (stə rā′dē ən), n. Geom. a solid angle at the center of a sphere subtending a section on the surface equal in area to the square of the radius of the sphere. [STER(EO)- + RADIAN] ster-co-ra-ceous (stûr′kə rā′shəs), adj. Physiol. consisting of, resembling, or pertaining to dung or feces. Also, ster-co-rous (stûr′kər əs). [< L stercor- (s. of stercus) dung + -OUS] ster-co-ric-o-lous (stûr′kə rik′ə ləs), adj. Ecol. living in dung. [stercor- (see STERCORACEOUS) + -I- + -COLOUS]

ster-cu-li-a-ceous (stûr kyo͞o′lē ā′shəs), adj. belonging to the Sterculiaceae, a family of trees and shrubs comprising the cacao and kola nut trees. [< NL sterculi(a) (special use of Sterculius Roman god of manuring) + -ACEOUS] stere (stēr), n. Metric System. a cubic meter equivalent to 35.315 cubic feet or 1.3080 cubic yards, used to measure cordwood. Abbr.: s [< F stère < Gk stere(ós) solid] ste-re-o (ster′ē ō′, stēr′-), n., pl. ster-e-os, adj., v. —n. 1. stereoscopic photography. 2. a stereoscopic photograph. 3. stereophonic sound reproduction. 4. a system or the equipment for reproducing stereophonic sound. 5. Print. stereotype (defs. 1, 2). —adj. 6. pertaining to stereophonic sound, stereoscopic photography, etc. —v.t. 7. Print. stereotype (def. 5). [by shortening] stereo-, a learned borrowing from Greek, where it meant "solid", used with reference to hardness, solidity, three-dim'l quality in the formation of compound words: stereochemistry; stereogram; stereoscope. Also, esp. before a vowel, stere-. [< Gk stereó(s)]

ster-e-o-bate (ster′ē ə bāt′, stēr′-), n. Archit. 1. the foundation or base upon which a building or the like is erected. 2. the solid platform forming the floor and substructure of a classical temple; crepidoma; podium. Cf. stylobate. [< L < Gk stereo- STEREO- + -batēs walker; cf. STYLOBATE] —ster-e-o-bat-ic (ster′ē ə bat′ik, stēr′-), adj.

ster-e-o-chem-is-try (ster′ē ō kam′ər ə, -kam′rə, stēr′-), n. a stereoscopic camera. [STEREO- + CAMERA]

ster-e-o-chem-is-try (ster′ē ō kem′i strē, stēr′-), n. the branch of chemistry that deals with the determination of the relative positions in space of the atoms or groups of atoms in a compound and with the effects of these positions on the properties of the compound. [STEREO- + CHEMISTRY] —ster-e-o-chem-ic (ster′ē ō kem′ik, stēr′-), ster′e-o-chem′i-cal, adj. —ster′e-o-chem′i-cal-ly, adv.

ster-e-o-chrome (ster′ē ə krōm′, stēr′-), n. a picture produced by a process in which water glass is used as a vehicle for a preservative coating. [back formation from STEREOCHROMY]

ster-e-o-chro-my (ster′ē ə krō′mē, stēr′-), n. the stereochrome process. Also called waterglass painting. [STEREO- + -CHROMY] —ster′e-o-chro′mic, ster-e-o-chro′ma-tic (ster′ē ō krō mat′ik, -krō-, stēr′-), adj. —ster′e-o-chro′mi-cal-ly, ster′e-o-chro′ma-ti-cal-ly, adv.

ster-e-og-no-sis (ster′ē og nō′sis, stēr′-), n. the ability to determine the shape and weight of an object by touching or lifting it. [< NL; see STEREO-, -GNOSIS] —ster-e-o-gnos-tic (ster′ē ō gnos′tik, stēr′-), adj.

ster-e-o-gram (ster′ē ə gram′, stēr′-), n. 1. a diagram or picture representing objects in a way to give the impression of solidity. 2. a stereograph. [STEREO- + -GRAM] ster-e-o-graph (ster′ē ə graf′, -gräf′, stēr′-), n. 1. a single or double picture for a stereoscope. —v.t. 2. to make a stereograph of. [STEREO- + -GRAPH]

ster-e-og-ra-phy (ster′ē og′rə fē, stēr′-), n. the art of delineating the forms of solid bodies on a plane; a branch of solid geometry dealing with the construction of regularly defined solids. [STEREO- + -GRAPHY] —ster-e-o-graph-ic (ster′ē ə graf′ik, stēr′-), ster′e-o-graph′i-cal, adj. —ster′e-o-graph′i-cal-ly, adv.

ster-e-o-i-so-mer (ster′ē ō ī′sə mər, stēr′-), n. Chem. any of two or more isomers exhibiting stereoisomerism. [STEREO- + ISOMER] ster-e-o-i-so-mer-ic (ster′ē ō ī′sō mer′ik, stēr′-), adj. Chem. pertaining to or exhibiting stereoisomerism. [STEREOISOMER(ISM) + -IC] ster-e-o-i-som-er-ism (ster′ē ō ī′som ə riz′əm, stēr′-), n. Chem. the isomerism ascribed to different relative positions of the atoms or groups of atoms in the molecules of optically active organic compounds. [STEREO- + ISOMERISM]

ster-e-o-pair (ster′ē ō pâr′, stēr′-), n. Photogrammetry. a pair of photographs of the same area taken from slightly different positions so as to give a stereoscopic effect when properly mounted and viewed. [STEREO + PAIR]

ster-e-op-sis (ster′ē op′sis, stēr′-), n. stereoscopic vision. [STEREO(O)- + Gk opsis looker, equiv. to op- (see -OPSIS) + -is agent suffix] ster-e-op-ti-con (ster′ē op′tə kən, -kon′, stēr′-), n. Optics. a projector usually consisting of two complete lanterns arranged so that one picture appears to dissolve while the next is forming. [STEREO(O)- + Gk optikón (neut.) optic] —ster′e-op-ti′cal, adj. —ster-e-op-ti-cian (ster′ē op tish′ən, stēr′-), n.

ster-e-o-scope (ster′ē ə skōp′, stēr′-), n. an optical instrument through which two pictures of the same object, taken from slightly different points of view, are viewed, one by each eye, producing the effect of a single picture of the object, with the appearance of depth or solidity. [STEREO- + -SCOPE] ster-e-o-scop-ic (ster′ē ə skop′ik, stēr′-), adj. 1. noting or pertaining to three-dimensional vision or any of various processes and devices for giving the illusion of depth from two-dimensional images or reproductions, as of a photograph, motion picture, etc. 2. of, relating to, or characterized by a stereoscope or stereoscopy. Also, ster′e-o-scop′i-cal. [STEREOSCOPE + -IC] —ster′e-o-scop′i-cal-ly, adv.

ster′eoscop′ic mi′croscope, a microscope that produces a three-dimensional image of an object by focusing on the object from slightly different positions in each of two lenses.

ster-e-os-co-py (ster′ē os′kə pē, stēr′-), n. 1. the study of the stereoscope and its techniques. 2. three-dimensional vision. [STEREO- + -SCOPY] —ster′e-os′co-pist, n.

ster-e-o-tax-is (ster′ē ə tak′sis, stēr′-), n. Biol. movement of an organism in response to contact with a solid. [STEREO- + -TAXIS] —ster-e-o-tac-tic (ster′ē ō tak′tik, stēr′-), adj. —ster′e-o-tac′ti-cal-ly, adv.

ster-e-o-trop-ism (ster′ē ō trō′piz əm, stēr′-), n. Biol. a tropism determined by contact with a solid. [STEREO- + TROPISM] ster-e-o-type (ster′ē ə tīp′, stēr′-), n., v., -typed, -typ-ing. —n. 1. a process of making metal printing plates by taking a mold of composed type or the like in papier-mâché or other material and then taking from this mold a cast in type metal. 2. a plate made by this process. 3. a set form of convention. 4. Sociol. a simplified and standardized conception or image invested with special meaning and held in common by members of a group: Indian are American stereotypes. —v.t. 5. to make a stereotype of. 6. to give a fixed form to. [STEREO- + -TYPE] —ster′e-o-typ′er, ster′e-o-typ′ist, n. —ster′e-o-typ′ic (ster′ē ə tip′ik, stēr′-), ster′e-o-typ′i-cal, adj.

ster-e-o-typed (ster′ē ə tīpt′, stēr′-), adj. 1. reproduced in or by stereotype plates. 2. fixed or settled in form; hackneyed; conventional. [STEREOTYPE + -ED²] —Syn. 2. banal, trite, worn, dull. See commonplace. —Ant. 2. rare, unusual.

ster-e-o-typ-y (ster′ē ə tī′pē, stēr′-), n. the stereotype process. [STEREOTYPE + -Y³] ster-ic (ster′ik, stēr′-), adj. Chem. of or pertaining to the spatial relationships of atoms in a molecule. Also, ster′i-cal. [STER(EO)- + -IC] —ster′i-cal-ly, adv.

ste-rig-ma (sti rig′mə), n., pl. -ma-ta (-mə tə). Bot. a small short-stalked sporebearing structure, as a basidium. [< NL < Gk: a support, equiv. to stērízein) (to) support + -ma n. suffix] —ster-ig-mat-ic (ster′ig mat′ik), adj.

ster-il (ster′il, -īl), adj. Chem. a sterilizing agent. [STERILE + -ANT] ster-ile (ster′il or, esp. Brit., -īl), adj. 1. free from living germs or microorganisms: sterile surgical instruments. 2. incapable of producing offspring; barren; producing offspring. 3. barren; not producing vegetation: sterile soil. 4. Bot. a. noting a plant in which reproductive structures are lacking. b. noting a reproductive organ, esp. a basidiospore. [< NL < Gk: a support, equiv. to stérízein) (to) support + -ma n. suffix] —ster-ig-mat-ic (ster′ig mat′ik), adj.

ster-il-i-ty (stə ril′i tē), n. the state of being sterile. [STERILE + -ITY] ster-il-ize (ster′ə līz′), v.t., -lized, -liz-ing. 1. to destroy microorganisms in or on, usually by bringing to a high temperature with steam, dry heat, or boiling liquid. 2. to destroy the ability to reproduce by removing the male or female reproductive functions. 3. to make (land) barren or unproductive. Also, esp. Brit., sterilise. [STERILE + -IZE] —ster′i-liz′a-bil′i-ty, n. —ster′i-liz′a-ble, adj. —ster′i-liz′er, n.

ster-let (stûr′lit), n. a small sturgeon, Acipenser ruthenus, found in the areas of the Black and Caspian seas, valued as a source of caviar. [< Russ sterylad'] ster-ling (stûr′liŋg), adj. 1. noting, of, or pertaining to British money of account: a pound sterling. 2. (of silver) having the standard fineness of .925. 3. made of silver of this fineness: a sterling teapot. 4. thoroughly excellent: a sterling character; sterling worth. —n. 5. the standard of fineness for gold and silver coin in the United Kingdom: now 0.91666 for gold and 0.500 for silver; formerly 0.995 for gold and 0.925 for silver. 6. silver having a fineness of .925 or now formerly so. 7. articles of table utensils, jewelry, etc. 8. manufactured articles of sterling silver. [ME; name of a silver coin; OE steorling* (see STAR, -LING¹) with reference to the little star on some of the mintages] —ster′ling-ly, adv. —ster′ling-ness, n.

Su-la-we-si (sōō′lä wä′sē), n. Indonesian name of Celebes.

sul-cate (sul′kāt), adj. having long, narrow grooves or channels, as plant stems or furrowed coral reefs. Also, sul′ca-ted. [< L sulcātus (ptp. of sulcāre to plow). See SULCUS, -ATE¹] —sul-ca′tion, n.

sul-cus (sul′kəs), n., pl. -ci (-sī). 1. a furrow or groove. 2. Anat. a groove or fissure, esp. a fissure between two convolutions of the brain. [L: furrow]

Su-lei-man (sōō′lē män′, -lā-; sōō′lē mən′), n. ("the Magnificent") 1496?–1566, sultan of the Ottoman Empire 1520–66. Also, Soliman I, Solyman I.

sulf-, a combining form of sulfur: sulfarsphenamine. Also, sulfo-, sulph-.

sul·fa (sul′fə), Pharm. —adj. 1. related chemically to sulfanilamide. 2. pertaining to, consisting of, or involving a sulfa drug or drugs. —n. 3. See sulfa drug. Also, supha. [short for SULFANILAMIDE] sulfa-, 1. Pharm. a combining form of sulfa drugs: sulfathiazole. 2. Chem. a combining form of the sulfanilyl group. Also, sulpha-, esp. before a vowel, sulf-, sulph-. [see SULFA] sul·fa-di-a-zine (sul′fə dī′ə zēn′, -zin), n. Pharm. a sulfanilamide derivative, $NH_2C_6H_4SO_2NHC_4H_2N_2$, used chiefly in the treatment of pneumococcal, staphylococcal, streptococcal, and gonococcal infections. Also, sulphadiazine. [SULFA- + DIAZINE] sul′fa drug′, Pharm. any of a group of drugs closely related in chemical structure to sulfanilamide, having a bacteriostatic rather than a bactericidal effect, used in the treatment of various diseases, wounds, burns, and the like. Also called sulfa.

sul·fa-guan-i-dine (sul′fə gwan′ə dēn′, -din, -gwä′-nə-), n. Pharm. a sulfa drug, $H_2NC_6H_4SO_2NHC(:NH)NH_2$, used chiefly in the treating infections of the gastrointestinal tract. Also, sulphaguanidine. [SULFA- + GUANIDINE] sul·fa-mer-a-zine (sul′fə mer′ə zēn′, -zin), n. Pharm. a sulfa drug, $C_{11}H_{12}N_4O_2S$, derived from sulfadiazine: used chiefly in the treatment of infections caused by meningococci. Also, sulphamerazine. [SULFA- + -MER- + -AZINE] sul·fa-nil-a-mide (sul′fə nil′ə mīd′, -mid), n. Pharm. a white, crystalline amide of sulfanilic acid, $NH_2C_6H_4SO_2NH_2$, used chiefly in the treatment of infections caused by hemolytic streptococci, and the like. Also, sulphanilamide. [SULF- + anil- (abstracted from anilic acid; see ANIL) + AMIDE] sul′fa-nil′ic ac′id (sul′fə nil′ik, sul′-), Chem. a crystalline compound, slightly water-soluble solid, the para form of $H_2NC_6H_4SO_3H \cdot H_2O$, used chiefly as an intermediate in the manufacture of dyes. Also, sulphanilic acid. [SULF- + anilic (see ANIL, -IC)] sul·fa-nil-yl (sul′fə nil′il), adj. Chem. containing the sulfanilyl group. [SULFANIL(IC) + -YL] sulfan′ilyl group′, Chem. the para form of the group $H_2NC_6H_4SO_2-$, derived from sulfanilic acid. Also, sulphanilyl group.

sul·fan-ti-mo-nide (sul fan′tə mə nīd′, -nid), n. Chem. any compound containing an antimonide and a sulfide. Also, sulphantimonide. [SULF- + antimonide; see ANTIMONY, -IDE] sul·fa-pyr-a-zine (sul′fə pēr′ə zēn′, -zin), n. Pharm. a colorless, water-insoluble, crystalline sulfa drug, $C_{10}H_{10}N_4O_2S$, used chiefly in treatment of infections caused by staphylococci or gonococci. Also, sulphapyrazine. [SULFA- + PYR- + AZINE] sul·fa-pyri-dine (sul′fə pēr′ī dēn′, -din), n. Pharm. a sulfonamide, $NH_2C_6H_4SO_2NHC_5H_4N$, formerly used for infections caused by pneumococci, now used primarily for a particular dermatitis. Also, sulphapyridine. [SULFA- + PYRIDINE] sul·far-se-nide (sul fär′sə nīd′, -nid), n. Chem. any compound containing an arsenide and a sulfide. Also, sulpharsenide. [SULF- + ARSENIDE] sulf-ars-phen-a-mine (sul′färs fen′ə mēn′, -min), n. Pharm. a sulfur derivative of arsphenamine, $Na_2O_8S_2C_{12}H_{12}N_2As_2N_2$, formerly used in the treatment of syphilis. [SULF- + ARSPHENAMINE]

Sul·fa-sux-i-dine (sul′fə suk′sə dēn′, -din), n. Pharm., Trademark. sulfasuxidine.

sul·fate (sul′fāt), n., v., -fat·ed, -fat·ing. —n. 1. Chem. a salt or ester of sulfuric acid. —v.t. 2. to combine, treat, or impregnate with sulfuric acid, a sulfate, or sulfates. 3. to convert into a sulfate. 4. Elect. to form a deposit of lead-sulfate compound on the lead electrodes of a storage battery. —v.i. 5. to become sulfated. [< NL sulphas (< L sulphur SULFUR) + -ātum. See SULF-, -ATE²] —sul-fa′tion, n.

sul′fate proc′ess, Chem. a process for making wood pulp by digesting wood chips in an alkaline liquor consisting chiefly of caustic soda together with sodium sulfate. Also called kraft process.

sul′fate pulp′, wood pulp made by the sulfate process.

sul·fa-thi-a-zole (sul′fə thī′ə zōl′, -zōl′, -zol′), n. Pharm. a sulfanilamide derivative, $NH_2C_6H_4SO_2NHC_3H_2NS$, formerly used in the treatment of pneumonia and staphylococcus infections, but now largely replaced because of its toxicity. Also, sulphathiazole. [SULFA- + THIAZOLE] sul-fat-ize (sul′fə tīz′), v.t., -ized, -iz·ing. to convert into a sulfate, as by the roasting of ores. Also, sulphatize. [SULFATE + -IZE] —sul′fat-i-za′tion, n.

sulf-hy-dryl (sul hī′dril), adj. Chem. mercapto. [SULF- + HYDR-² + -YL] sul-fid-ate (sul fid′āt), Chem. a compound of sulfur with a more electropositive element or, less often, a group. Also, sulphide. [SULF- + -IDE] sul′fide dye′, Chem. See sulfur dye.

sul·fi-nyl (sul′fə nil), adj. Chem. containing the sulfinyl group; thionyl. Also, sulphinyl. [SULF- + -IN² + -YL] sulf′inyl group′, Chem. the bivalent group, >SO. Also called sul′finyl rad′ical.

sul·fi-nyl-a-mine (sul fin′yə mēn′, -ə mīn′, -zōl′, -zol′), n. Pharm. a white to yellowish, crystalline, slightly bitter, water-insoluble powder, $H_2NC_6H_4SO_2NHC_5NO(CH_3)_2$, used chiefly in the treatment of infections of the urinary tract. Also, sulphinylamine. [SULF- + -IN² + -YL + AMINE] sul·fite (sul′fīt), n. Chem. a salt or ester of sulfurous acid. Also, sulphite. [SULF- + -ITE¹] —sul·fit·ic (sul fit′ik), adj.

sul′fite pa′per, paper made from sulfite pulp.

sul′fite proc′ess, Chem. a process for making wood pulp by digesting wood chips in an acid liquor consisting of sulfurous acid and a salt, usually calcium bisulfite.

sul′fite pulp′, wood pulp made by the sulfite process.

sul·fo (sul′fō), adj. Chem. containing the sulfo group; sulfonic. [abstracted from SULFONIC] sulfo-, var. of sulf-, esp. before a consonant: sulfobenzoic acid.

sul′fo group′, Chem. the univalent group, SO_3H—, derived from sulfuric acid. Also called sulfo radical.

sul·fo-nal (sul′fə nal′, sul′fō nal′), n. Pharm., Trademark. sulfonmethane.

sul·fon-a-mide (sul fon′ə mīd′, -mid, sul′fə nam′id), n. Pharm. See sulfa drug. Also, sulphonamide. [sulfon- abstracted from SULFONIC + AMIDE] sul·fo-nate (sul′fə nāt′), n., v., -nat·ed, -nat·ing. Chem. —n. 1. an ester or salt derived from a sulfonic acid. —v.t. 2. to make into a sulfonic acid, as by treating with sulfuric acid. 3. to combine directly with sulfur or a sulfur compound. Also, sulphonate. [SULFON(IC) + -ATE²] —sul′fo-na′tion, n.

sul·fo-na-tion (sul′fə nā′shən), n. Chem. the process of attaching the sulfonic acid group, $-SO_2H$, directly to carbon in an organic compound. Also, sulphonation. [SULFONATE + -ION] sul·fone (sul′fōn), n. Chem. any of a class of organic compounds containing the bivalent group, $-SO_2-$, united with two hydrocarbon groups. Also, sulphone. [SULF- + -ONE] sul·fon-ic (sul fon′ik), adj. Chem. sulfo. Also, sulphonic. [SULFONE + -IC] sulfon′ic ac′id, Chem. any of a large group of organic compounds of the structure RSO_2OH, which are strong acids that give neutral sodium salts: used in the synthesis of phenols, dyes, and other substances.

sul·fo-ni-um (sul fō′nē əm), n. Chem. the positively charged group, H_3S^+, its salts, or their substitute products, as trimethylsulfonium iodide, $(CH_3)_3SI$. Also, sulphonium. [NL, equiv. to sulf- SULF- + -onium, abstracted from AMMONIUM] sul·fon-meth-ane (sul fōn′ meth′ān, -fon-), n. Pharm. a crystalline organic compound, $(CH_3)_2C(SO_2C_2H_5)_2$, used chiefly as a mild hypnotic or sedative. [sulfon- abstracted from SULFON(IC) + METHANE] sul·fo-nyl (sul′fə nil), adj. Chem. sulfuryl. [sulfon- abstracted from SULFONIC + -YL]

sul′fonyl chlo′ride, Chem. noting the group, $-SO_2Cl$, as in benzenesulfonyl chloride, $C_6H_5SO_2Cl$.

sul′fo rad′ical. See sulfo group.

sul·fur (sul′fər), n. 1. Also, sulphur. Chem. a nonmetallic element that exists in several forms, the ordinary one being a yellow rhombic crystalline solid, and that burns with a blue flame and a suffocating odor: used in making gunpowder and matches, in medicine, in vulcanizing rubber, etc. Symbol: S; at. wt.: 32.064; at. no.: 16; sp. gr.: 2.07 at 20° C. 2. sulphur (def. 2). 3. sulphur (def. 3). [ME, OE sulfur] sul·fu-rate (sul′fyə rāt′, -fə-), v.t., -rat·ed, -rat·ing. to combine, treat, or impregnate with sulfur, the fumes of burning sulfur, etc. Also, sulphurate. [< L sulfurāt(us). See SULFUR, -ATE¹] —sul′fu-ra′tion, n. —sul′fu-ra′tor, n.

sul′furated pot′ash, Pharm. a yellowish-brown mixture consisting mainly of potassium polysulfides and potassium chloride, used chiefly in treating chronic skin diseases. Also called liver of sulfur.

sul·fur-bot·tom (sul′fər bot′əm), n. sulphur-bottom.

sul′fur but′terfly, any of various yellow or orange butterflies of the family Pieridae.

sul′fur chlo′ride, Chem. colorless, nonflammable, water-soluble, suffocating gas, S_2Cl_2, formed when sulfur burns: used chiefly in the manufacture of chemicals such as sulfuryl acid, in preserving fruits and vegetables, and in bleaching, disinfecting, and fumigating.

sul′fur dye′, Chem. any of the class of dyes produced by heating an organic compound, as an indophenol, with sulfur or sodium polysulfide, used chiefly for dye cotton. Also, sulphide dye.

sul·fu-re-ous (sul fyōōr′ē əs), adj. 1. consisting of, containing, or pertaining to sulfur. 2. resembling sulfur, esp. in color. Also, sulphureous. [< L sulfureus, equiv. to sulfur- SULFUR + -eus -EOUS] —sul·fu′re-ous-ly, adv. —sul·fu′re-ous-ness, n.

sul·fu-ret (sul′fyə ret′), n., v., -ret·ed, -ret·ing or (esp. Brit.) -ret·ted, -ret·ting. —n. 1. sulphuret. —v.t. 2. to combine with sulfur. Also, sulphuret. [< NL sulfuret(um)]. See SULF-, -URET] sul′fureted hy′drogen, Chem. See hydrogen sulfide. Also, sul′phureted hy′drogen.

sul·fu-ric (sul fyōōr′ik, -fyōr′), adj. sulphur-flower.

sul·fu-ric (sul fyōōr′ik), adj. Chem. of or containing sulfur, esp. in the hexavalent state. Also, sulphuric. [SULFUR + -IC; modeled on F sulfurique] sulfu′ric ac′id, Chem. a clear, colorless to brownish, dense, oily, corrosive, incombustible liquid, H_2SO_4, usually produced from sulfur dioxide: used chiefly in the manufacture of fertilizers, chemicals, explosives, petrofuels, and in petroleum refining. Also called oil of vitriol.

sulfu′ric anhy′dride, Chem. See sulfur trioxide.

sul·fu-rize (sul′fyə rīz′, -fə-), v.t., -rized, -riz·ing. 1. to combine, treat, or impregnate with sulfur. 2. to fumigate with sulfur dioxide. Also, sulphurize. [< F sulfuris(er). See SULFUR, -IZE] —sul′fu-ri-za′tion, n.

sul·fur-ous (sul′fər əs, sul fyōōr′əs), adj. 1. relating to sulfur, or like or containing sulfur in a relatively tetravalent sulfur. Also, sulphurous. [< L sulfurōs(us). See SULFUR, -OUS] —sul′fur-ous-ly, adv. —sul′fur-ous-ness, n.

sulfu′rous ac′id, Chem. a colorless liquid, H_2SO_3, having a suffocating odor, obtained by dissolving sulfur dioxide in water, known mainly by its salts, which are sulfites: used chiefly in organic synthesis and as a bleach.

sul′fur spring′, a spring the water of which contains naturally occurring sulfur compounds.

sulfur trioxide, Chem. an irritant, corrosive, lowmelting solid, SO_3, formed by oxidation of sulfur dioxide as a liquid which reverts to the solid form unless stabilized: used as an intermediate in the manufacture of sulfuric acid. Also called sulfuric anhydride.

sul·fur-yl (sul′fyə ril, -fə-), adj. Chem. containing the sulfuryl group, SO_2, as sulfuryl chloride; sulfonyl. Also, sulphuryl. [SULFUR + -YL] sul′furyl chlo′ride, Chem. a colorless liquid, SO_2Cl_2, having a very pungent odor and corrosive to the skin and mucous membranes: used as a chlorinating or sulfonating agent.

sul′furyl group′, Chem. the bivalent group, SO_2, derived from sulfuric acid. Also called sul′furyl rad′ical.
