me (mē), pron. 1. the objective case of I: They asked me to the party. 2. the dative case of I: Give me your hand. 3. Informal. (often cap.) used instead of the possessive my in gerundive constructions): Did you hear about me getting promoted? [ME, OE mē (dat. sing.); c. D mij, mir; akin to L me (acc.)]

—Usage. 3. This sense of ME has been labeled Informal because in traditional grammar a gerund, being considered syntactically identical to a noun, requires modifying by the genitive form of the noun or pronoun preceding it. Hence, traditional grammarians will insist on constructions like: She likes my (rather than me) singing in the sleet. The avoidance of all pronominal constructions (HIS, HER, ITS, OUR, THEIR, and YOUR), as well as of noun-gerund combinations (He hates the carpenter's making so much noise), however, many good writers and speakers do not invariably follow the tradition. Indeed, there are situations in which the genitive form is not possible (There is little hope of this coming about) or, at the very least, would be awkward (She disliked the fuss and son tracking up the rug). These situations, however, are exceptions; in careful speech and particularly in careful writing the genitive case preceding a gerund is more common than the objective case.

mean′ a·nom′a·ly, Astron. the anomaly of a mean planet; the angular distance of the planet from perihelion or aphelion.

me·an·der (mē an′dər), v.i. 1. to proceed by a winding or indirect course: The stream meandered along the valley. 2. to wander aimlessly; ramble: The talk meandered on. —v.t. 3. Survey. to define the margin of (a body of water) with a meander line. —n. 4. Usually, meanders. a winding course; a winding path or course. 5. a circuitous movement or journey. 6. an intricate variety of fret or fretwork. [< L maeander < Gk maíandros, winding, special use as name of the Menderes river, noted for its winding course] —me·an′der-er, n. —me·an′der-ing-ly, adv.

Me·an·der (mē an′dər), n. ancient name of the Menderes, a river in Turkey.

mean′der line′, Survey. a zigzag traverse made to define the approximate margin of a natural body of water.

mean′ devia′tion, Statistics. a measure of dispersion, computed by taking the arithmetic mean of the absolute values of the deviations of the functional values from some central value, usually the mean or median. Also called average deviation.

mean′ dis′tance, Astron. the arithmetic mean of the greatest and least distances of a planet from the sun, used in stating the size of an orbit; the semimajor axis.

me·an·drous (mē an′drəs), adj. winding; rambling. [MEAND(ER) + -OUS] mean′ free′ path′, Physics, Chem. (in a collection of molecules, particles) the average distance that a particle travels between successive collisions with other particles.

mean·ie (mē′nē), n. meany.

mean·ing (mē′niŋ), n. 1. that which is intended to be, or actually is, conveyed or indicated; signification; import: the three meanings of a word. 2. the end, purpose, or significance of something: What is the meaning of life? What is the meaning of this intrusion? 3. Ling. a. the nonlinguistic cultural correlate, reference, or denotation of a linguistic form; expression. b. linguistic content (opposed to expression). —adj. 4. intentioned (usually used in combination): a well-meaning person. 5. full of significance; expressive: a meaning look. [ME (n.); see MEAN[1], -ING[1], -ING[2]] —mean′ing-ly, adv. —mean′ing-ness, n.

—Syn. 1. tenor, gist, drift, trend. MEANING, PURPORT, SENSE, SIGNIFICANCE denote that which is expressed or indicated by something. MEANING is the general word denoting that which is intended to be or actually is expressed or indicated: the meaning of a word or glance. SENSE may be used to denote a particular meaning (among others) of a word or phrase: He also has used recently used in this sense. SENSE may also be used loosely to refer to intelligible meaning: There's no sense in what he says. SIGNIFICANCE refers particularly to a meaning that is implied or suggested rather than the significance of her glance; or to a meaning the importance of which may not be easy to perceive immediately: The real significance of the words was not grasped at the time. PURPORT is mainly limited to the meaning of a formal document, speech, important conversation, etc., and refers to the gist of something fairly comprehended: the purport of his letter to the editor. 5. See expressive.

mean·ing-ful (mē′niŋ fəl), adj. full of meaning, significance, or value; significant: a meaningful wink; a meaningful decision. [MEANING + -FUL] —mean′ing-ful-ly, adv. —mean′ing-ful-ness, n.

mean·ing-less (mē′niŋ lis), adj. without meaning, significance, or value; purposeless; insignificant: a meaningless gesture. [MEANING + -LESS] —mean′ing-less-ly, adv. —mean′ing-less-ness, n.

mean′ lat′itude. See middle latitude.

mean′ line′, Print. an imaginary x-high line. Also called x-line.

mean·ly[1] (mēn′lē), adv. 1. in a poor, lowly, or humble manner. 2. in a base, contemptible, or shabby manner. 3. in a stingy, miserly manner. [MEAN[2] + -LY] mean·ly[2] (mēn′lē), adv. Obs. moderately. [ME; see MEAN[3], -LY] mean·ness (mēn′nis), n. 1. state or quality of being mean. 2. a mean act: to answer meannesses with forbearance. [MEAN[2] + -NESS] mean′ noon′, Astron. the moment when the mean sun's center crosses the meridian.

mean′ plan′et, Astron. a hypothetical planet that coincides with a real planet when the real planet is at perihelion and that moves in an orbit at a constant velocity equal to the mean velocity of the real planet.

Means′ grass′ (mēnz). See Johnson grass. [? from proper name Means] mean′ so′lar day′, day (def. 3a).

mean′ so′lar time′, Astron. time measured by the hour angle of the mean sun. Also called mean′ time′.

mean-spir·it·ed (mēn′spir′i tid), adj. petty; small-minded; ungenerous: a meanspirited man, unwilling to forgive. [MEAN[2] + SPIRITED] —mean'spir'it-ed-ly, adv. —mean'spir'it-ed-ness, n.

means' test', 1. Brit. an inquiry into the income of a person who receives unemployment relief. 2. any investigation into the financial position of a person applying for aid from public funds.

mean' sun', Astron. an imaginary sun moving uniformly in the celestial equator and taking the same time to make its annual circuit as the true sun does in the ecliptic.

meant (ment), v. pt. and pp. of mean[1].

mean-time (mēn'tīm'), n. 1. the intervening time: Death awaits, but in the meantime, live. —adv. 2. in the intervening time; during the interval. 3. at the same time: Meantime, the others were back home enjoying themselves. [ME; see MEAN[3], TIME] mean'time screw', Horol. See quarter screw.

mean'tone sys'tem (mēn'tōn'), Music. a system for tuning keyed instruments, used before the development of tuning by equal temperament and considered practical only for tonalities of not more than two sharps or flats. [MEAN[3] + TONE] mean' val'ue, Math. the ratio of the integral of a given function over a closed interval to the length of the interval.

mean' val'ue the'orem, Math. the theorem that if a function is continuous on a closed interval and differentiable on the corresponding open interval, there is a point in the interval such that the difference in functional values at the endpoints is equal to the derivative evaluated at the particular point and multiplied by the difference in the endpoints. Also called law of the mean, theorem of the mean.

mean-while (mēn'hwīl', -wīl'), n., adv. meantime. [ME; see MEAN[3], WHILE] mean-y (mē'nē), n., pl. mean-ies. Informal. a small-minded, malicious person: The children said their teacher was an old meany. Also, meanie. [MEAN[2] + -Y[2]]

Mean-y (mē'nē), n. George, born 1894, U.S. labor leader: first president, AFL 1952–55; 1st president of the AFL-CIO since 1955.

mear (mēr), n. Brit. Dial. mere[3].

mea-sle (mē'zəl), n. sing. of measles (def. 3).

mea-sled (mē'zəld), adj. (of swine or other livestock) affected with measles. [ME meseled. See MEASLES, -ED[2]] mea-sles (mē'zəlz), n. 1. (construed as sing. or pl.) Pathol. an acute infectious disease occurring mostly in children, characterized by catarrhal and febrile symptoms and an eruption of small red spots; rubeola. b. any of various similar diseases. Cf. German measles. 2. Vet. Pathol. a disease in swine and other animals caused by the larvae of certain tapeworms of the genus Taenia. 3. (construed as pl.) the larvae which cause measles in swine and other animals, and which upon maturation produce trichinosis in man. [ME mesels, mutated var. of maseles (pl.); c. D maselen (pl.), G Masern measles, pl. of Maser speck] mea-sly (mē'zlē), adj., -sli-er, -sli-est. 1. infected with measles, as an animal or its flesh. 2. pertaining to or resembling measles. Informal. 3. wretched; poor or unsatisfactory: a measly performance. b. very little or small: a measly share. [MEASL(ES) + -Y[1]] meas-ur-a-ble (mezh'ər ə bəl), adj. that may be measured. [ME mesurable < MF < LL mensūrābil(is) (that can be) measured. See MEASURE, -ABLE] —meas'ur-a-bil'i-ty, meas'ur-a-ble-ness, n. —meas'ur-a-bly, adv.

meas-ure (mezh'ər), n., v., -ured, -ur-ing. —n. 1. act or process of determining the extent, dimensions, quantity, etc., of something, esp. by comparison with a standard; measurement: A measure of the Field was promptly taken. 2. size, dimensions, quantity, etc., as thus ascertained: to take the measure of a thing. 3. an instrument for ascertaining the size, quantity, etc., as a graduated rod or a vessel of specific capacity, for measuring. 4. a unit or standard of measurement. 5. a definite or known quantity measured out: to drink a measure of wine. 6. a system of measurement. 7. any standard of comparison; criterion: Success is the measure of a man. 8. a quantity, degree, or proportion. 9. a moderate amount: to live with a measure of enjoyment. 10. a limit, or an extent or degree not to be exceeded: to know no measure. 11. reasonable or limited extent: a civilized sense of measure. 12. a legislative bill or enactment: The senate passed the new measure. 13. Usually, measures. actions or procedures intended as a means to an end: to take measures to avert a crisis. 14. a slow, stately movement; arrangement, as in poetry or music. 15. a particular kind of such arrangement. 16. a metrical unit. 17. an air or melody. 18. the music contained between two bar lines; bar. 19. a slow, dignified dance. 20. Print. the width, measured in ems or picas, to which a column or page of printed matter is set: wide or narrow measure; full measure. 21. measures, Geol. beds; strata. 22. Math. any function assigning to each set of a collection of sets a value, usually having the properties of sigma finiteness and finite additivity, the functional value of the whole collection being greater than zero. 23. beyond measure, too much to be reckoned; immeasurably; extremely: The suffering that they endured was beyond measure. 24. for good measure, as an extra: In addition to dessert, they served chocolates and fruit for good measure. 25. to take one's measure, to judge or assess someone's character, capabilities, etc.; size up: During their conversation she was taking his measure as a prospective husband for her daughter. 26. in a measure, to some extent or degree: He is right in a measure.

—v.t. 27. to ascertain the extent, dimensions, quantity, capacity, etc., of, esp. by comparison with a standard: to measure boundaries. 28. to mark off or deal out by way of measurement (often fol. by off or out): to measure out martinis. 29. to estimate the relative amount, value, etc., of, by comparison with some standard: to measure the importance of an issue. 30. to judge or appraise by comparison with something or someone else: to measure Shakespeare against Racine. 31. to serve as the measure of: Her sacrifices measure the degree of her love. 32. to adjust or proportion: to measure a portion to one's liking. 33. to tax the resources or competition: to measure one's strength with another's. 34. to travel over; traverse: to measure a room with great strides.

—v.i. 35. to take measurements. 36. to admit of measurement. 37. to be of a specified measure. 38. measure one's length, to fall or be knocked down; fall flat: He missed a step in the dark and measured his length at the bottom. 39. measure swords, a. to test one's prizefighting skill or computer. b. to battle with swords. c. to fight, compete, etc.: The producer of the poorly reviewed show decided to measure swords with the critics. 40. measure up, a. to reach a certain standard: The architect didn't measure up to last year's. b. to be capable or qualified: As an administrator he couldn't quite measure up. [ME mesure < MF < L mensūra, equiv. to mēns(us) (ptp. of mētīrī to measure, mete) + -ūra -URE] —meas'ur-er, n.

meas-ured (mezh'ərd), adj. 1. ascertained or apportioned by measure. 2. accurately regulated or proportioned. 3. regular or uniform, as in movement; rhythmical: measured tread. 4. slow, deliberate and restrained; careful; well-weighed; well-considered: measured language; measured terms. 5. in the form of metrical verse; metrical. [ME; see MEASURE, -ED[2]] —meas'ured-ly, adv. —meas'ured-ness, n.

Meas'ure for Meas'ure, a comedy (1604) by Shakespeare.

meas-ure-less (mezh'ər lis), adj. without limits or boundary; unlimited; immeasurable: a measureless distance; measureless contempt. [ME measurelés. See MEASURE, -LESS] —meas'ure-less-ly, adv. —meas'ure-less-ness, n.

meas-ure-ment (mezh'ər mənt), n. 1. act of measuring. 2. a measured dimension. 3. extent, size, etc., ascertained by measuring. 4. a system of measuring or measures: liquid measurement. [MEASURE + -MENT] meas'urement ton', See under ton[1] (def. 5).

meas'ure ze'ro, Math. the property of a set of points that, given any small number, there exists a set of intervals such that each point of the given set is contained in at least one of the intervals and such that the sum of the measured length of the intervals is less than the small number.

meas'uring cup', a graduated cup, often of glass or plastic, used esp. in cooking for measuring ingredients and usually having a capacity of one or two cups.

meas-ur-ing-worm (mezh'ər iŋg wûrm'), n. the larva of any geometrid moth, which progresses by bringing the rear end of the body forward and then advancing the front end. Also called inchworm, looper, spanworm. [MEASURING + WORM] meat (mēt), n. 1. the flesh of animals as used for food. 2. food in general: meat and drink. 3. the edible part of anything, as a fruit, nut, etc. 4. the principal meat: to say grace before meat. 5. the essential point or part of an argument, literary work, etc.; gist; crux: a problem full of meat. [ME, OE mete; c. Icel matr, Goth mats, OHG maz food] —meat'less, adj.

meat-ball (mēt'bôl'), n. 1. chopped meat, esp. beef, molded into a ball before cooking. 2. Slang. an awkward, clumsy, and stupid person. [MEAT + BALL[1]]

Meath (mēth, mēth), n. a county in Leinster, in the E Republic of Ireland. 65,106 (1961); 902 sq. mi. Co. seat: Trim.

meat-head (mēt'hed'), n. Slang. blockhead; dunce; fool. [MEAT + HEAD] meat-i-ness (mē'tē nis), n. the condition or quality of being meaty. [MEATY + -NESS] meat-man (mēt'man'), n., pl. -men. a dealer in meat; butcher. [MEAT + MAN[1]] meat' tea', Brit. See high tea.

me-a-tus (mē ā'təs), n., pl. -tus-es, -tus. Anat. an opening or foramen, esp. in a bone or bony structure, as the opening of the ear, nose, etc. [< L: course, canal (4th decl.), deriv. of pp. s. of mētīre to go] —me-a'tal, adj.

meat-y (mē'tē), adj., meat-i-er, meat-i-est. 1. of or like meat. 2. abounding in meat. 3. rich in matter; full of substance; pithy: a meaty argument. [MEAT + -Y[1]] —meat'i-ly, adv.

Mec-ca (mek'ə), n. 1. Also, Makkah, Mekka. a city in and the capital of Hejaz, in W Saudi Arabia: one of two chief ecclesiastical capitals; birthplace of Mohammed; spiritual center of Islam. 158,000 (1963). 2. (often l.c.) any place that many people visit or hope to visit: The President's birthplace is a mecca for his admirers. —Mec'can, adj., n.

Mec'ca bal'sam. See balm of Gilead (def. 2).

mech., 1. mechanical. 2. mechanics. 3. mechanism.

Me-cha-ne-us (mə kā'nē əs, -nōōs, -nyōōs), n. Class. Myth. one of two Greek personages named "Contriver."

me-chan-ic (mə kan'ik), n. 1. a skilled worker with tools, machines, equipment, etc. 2. a person who repairs machinery, motors, etc. 3. Slang. a person skilled in the dishonest handling of cards, dice, or other objects used in games of chance. [< L mēchanic(us) a mechanic < Gk mēchanikós, equiv. to mēchan(ḗ) machine + -ikos -IC]

—Syn. 1. craftsman, artisan. 2. repairman, machinist.

me-chan-i-cal (mə kan'i kəl), adj. 1. having to do with machinery: a mechanical failure. 2. being a machine, or including machinery: a mechanical toy. 3. caused by or derived from machinery: mechanical propulsion. 4. using machine parts only: mechanical, hydraulic, or compressed-air brakes. 5. brought about by friction, abrasion, etc.: a mechanical bond between stones; mechanical erosion. 6. pertaining to the design or contrivance of tools or machinery: a mechanical genius. 7. working with tools or machinery: mechanical trades. 8. pertaining to the use or comprehension of tools, machinery, or the like: mechanical ability. 9. produced by such means. 10. acting or performed without spontaneity or individuality: a mechanical performance of Hamlet. 11. habitual; routine; automatic: Practice that step until it becomes mechanical. 12. belonging or pertaining to the subject matter of mechanics. 13. pertaining to, or controlled or effected by, physical forces. 14. (of a philosopher or philosophical theory) explaining phenomena as due to mechanical action or to material forces of the universe. 15. subordinating the spiritual to the material; materialistic. —n. 16. Print. a sheet of stiff paper on which has been pasted artwork, type proofs, or both for making a printing plate; paste-up. [late ME mechanicall < L mēchanic(us) MECHANIC; see -AL[1]] —me-chan'i-cal-ly, adv. —me-chan'i-cal-ness, me-chan'i-cal'i-ty, n.

me'chan'ical ad'van'tage, Mech. the ratio of the output force doing the work of a mechanism to the input force applied to the mechanism.

me'chan'ical ap'ti'tude, a person's ability or relative propensity for using and understanding machinery, tools, etc.

me'chan'ical draw'ing, drawing, as of machinery, done with the aid of rulers, compasses, etc.

me'chan'ical engineer', an engineer who specializes in mechanical engineering.

me'chan'ical engineer'ing, the branch of engineering dealing with the design and production of machinery.

me'chan'ical equiv'alent of heat', (in any system of physical units) the number of units of work or energy equal to one unit of heat, as 4.1858 joules or 4.1858×10^7 ergs, used in small calorie.

me'chan'ical im'ped'ance, Physics. impedance (def. 2).

me'chan'ical met'allurgy, the branch of metallurgy dealing with the response of metals to applied forces.

me'chan'ical pen'cil, a pencil for holding lead that can be extended or withdrawn by mechanical means, as by a screw.

me'chan'ical scan'ning, t. Electronics. a technique for varying the sector covered by a transmitting or receiving antenna by rotating it. 2. Television. a technique, formerly used in televising, for scanning by means of a scanning disk. Cf. electrical scanning.

me'chan'ical sus'pen'sion. See under suspension (def. 7).

me'chan'ical twin', Metall. a crystalline twin formed by the strain only applied; deformation twin.

me-chan-i-cian (mek'ə nish'ən), n. a person skilled in constructing, working, or repairing machines. [MECHANIC + -IAN] me-chan-ics (mə kan'iks), n. 1. (construed as sing.) the science that deals with the action of forces on bodies and with motion, comprised of kinetics, statics, and kinematics. 2. (construed as sing.) the theoretical and practical application of this science to machinery, mechanical appliances, etc. 3. (usually construed as pl.) the technical aspect or working part; mechanism; structure. 4. (usually construed as pl.) routine methods, procedures, or details: the mechanics of running an office. [see MECHANIC, -ICS]

Me-chan-ics-burg (mə kan'iks bûrg'), n. a town in central Pennsylvania. 8123 (1960).

mechan'ic's lien', a lien secured on property, as an automobile, building, or the like, by the contractor who has repaired or built it, in order to ensure payment for his labor and materials.

Me-chan-ics-ville (mə kan'iks vil'), n. a village in E Virginia, near Richmond. Civil War battle 1862.

Me-chan-ic-ville (mə kan'ik vil'), n. a town in E New York. 6831 (1960).

mech-a-nise (mek'ə nīz'), v.t., -nised, -nis-ing. Chiefly Brit. mechanize. —mech'a-ni-sa'tion, n. —mech'a-nis'er, n.

Me-chan-ics-ville (mə kan'iks vil'), a village in Saratoga county, in E New York.

mech-a-nism (mek'ə niz'əm), n. 1. an assembly of moving parts performing a complete functional motion, often being part of a large machine; linkage. 2. the agency or means by which a result is produced or a purpose is accomplished. 3. machinery or mechanical appliances in general. 4. the structure or arrangement of parts of a machine or similar device, or of anything analogous. 5. the mechanical part of anything; any mechanical device: the mechanism of a clock. 6. routine methods or procedures; mechanics: the mechanism of government. 7. mechanical execution, as in painting or music; technique. 8. the theory that everything in the universe is produced by matter in motion; materialism. Cf. dynamism (def. 1), vitalism (def. 1). 9. Philos., Biol. a natural process explainable by physical laws and explicable in terms of Newtonian physics. 10. Psychoanal. (used as an analogy drawn from mechanics) the operation and characteristic pattern belonging to the NL mēchanism(us), equiv. to Gk mēchan(ḗ) machine + -ismos -ISM] —mech'a-nis'mic, adj.

mech-a-nist (mek'ə nist), n. 1. a person who believes in the theory of mechanism. 2. Rare. a mechanician. [MECHANIC(S) + -IST] mech-a-nis-tic (mek'ə nis'tik), adj. 1. of or pertaining to the theory of mechanism or to mechanists. 2. of or pertaining to mechanics. [MECHANIST + -IC] —mech'a-nis'ti-cal-ly, adv.

met·al·lic (mə talʹik), adj. 1. of, pertaining to, or consisting of metal. 2. of the nature of metal, as in having the characteristics, etc.: metallic green, a harsh metallic sound. 3. Chem. a. (of a metal element) being in the free or uncombined state: metallic iron. b. containing a metal: metallic salts. [metallic(us) < Gk metallikós of, for mines. See METAL, -IC] —met·al'li·cal·ly, adv. —met·al·lic·i·ty (metʹəlisʹi tē), n.

met·al·ize (mə talʹīz), v.t., -ized, -iz·ing. to make (a telephone line or the like) thoroughly metallic by replacing a ground return with another wire. [METALL(IC) + -IZE] metal'lic lus'ter, Ceram. luster[1] (def. 8).

metal'lic soap', Chem. any usually water-insoluble salt formed by the interaction of a fatty acid and a metal, esp. lead or aluminum: used chiefly as a drier in paints, varnishes, and the like. Also, metallic salt.

metal'lic wood'-bor·ing bee'tle (wo͝odʹbôrʹiŋg, -bōrʹ-), any of numerous metallic green, blue, copper, or black beetles of the family Buprestidae, the larvae of which bore into the wood of living, decaying, or dead trees.

met·al·lif·er·ous (metʹəlifʹər əs), adj. containing or yielding metal. [< L metallifer (see METALLI-, -FER) + -OUS] met·al·line (metʹəlin, -līn), adj. 1. metallic. 2. containing one or more metals or metallic salts. [ME metalline < ML metallīn(us) of metal. See METAL, -INE[1]] met·al·lise (metʹəlīz'), v.t., -lised, -lis·ing. Chiefly Brit. metallize. —met'al·li·sa'tion, n.

met·al·list (metʹəlist), n. metalist.

met·al·lize (metʹəlīz'), v.t., -lized, -liz·ing. metallize. —met'al·li·za'tion, n.

metallo-, a combining form of Greek origin meaning "metal": metallography. Also, esp. before a vowel, metall-. [< Gk, comb. form of métallon] met·al·lo·graph (mə talʹə graf', -gräf'), n. a microscope for observing the microstructure of metals. [METALLO- + -GRAPH] met·al·log·ra·phy (metʹəlogʹrə fē), n. 1. the microscopic study of the structure of metals and alloys. 2. an early method of printing or lithography but in which metallic plates are substituted for stones. [< NL metallographia. See METALLO-, -GRAPHY] —met·al·lo·graph·ic (metʹələ grafʹik), met'al·lo·graph'i·cal, adj.

met·al·loid (metʹəloid'), n. 1. a nonmetal. 2. an element which is both metallic and nonmetallic, as arsenic, silicon, or bismuth. —adj. 3. of or pertaining to a metalloid. 4. resembling both a metal and a nonmetal. [METALL- + -OID] met·al·lo·phone (mətalʹə fōn'), n. any musical instrument consisting of a graduated series of metal bars which may either be struck by hammers operated manually or used with a keyboard. [METALLO- + -PHONE] met·al·lo·ther·a·py (mətalʹō therʹə pē), n. Med. therapy by the use of metals or their salts. [METALLO- + THERAPY]

Met'al Lum'ber, Trademark. sheet metal pressed and welded together to form joists and studding.

met·al·lur·gy (metʹəlurʹjē, metʹl urʹ-), n., pl. -gies. n. 1. the technique or science of separating metals from their ores. 2. the technique or science of making and compounding alloys. 3. the technique or science of working or heat-treating metals so as to give them certain desired shapes or properties. [< NL metallurgia < Gk metallourgós working in metals, mines. See METALLO-, -URGY] —met·al·lur'gic, met'al·lur'gi·cal, adj. —met·al·lur'gi·cal·ly, adv. —met·al·lur·gist (metʹəlurʹjist, metʹlə ur jist), n.

met'al paste'-up, Print. a method for making up a form for printing in which engravings mounted on blocks are positioned on and pasted to a metal base.

met·al·smith (metʹəl smithʹ), n. a person skilled in fashioning articles of metal. [METAL + SMITH] met·al·work (metʹəl wûrk'), n. work of metal, esp. utensils, flatware, etc. [METAL + WARE[1]] met'al wood', a structural material consisting of a sheet of metal glued between two veneers or of a veneer glued between two sheets of metal.

met·al·work·ing (metʹəl wûrkʹiŋ), n. the act or technique of making metal objects. [METAL + WORKING] met·a·math·e·mat·ics (metʹə mathʹə matʹiks), n. (construed as sing.) the logical analysis of the fundamental concepts of mathematics, as number, function, etc. [META- + MATHEMATICS] —met'a·math'e·mat'i·cal, adj. —met·a·math·e·ma·ti·cian (metʹə məthʹə mə tishʹən), n.

met·a·mer (metʹə mər), n. Chem. a compound exhibiting metamerism with one or more other compounds. [META- + -MER] met·a·mere (metʹə mēr'), n. a somite. [META- + -MERE] met·a·mer·ic (metʹə merʹik), adj. 1. Also, me·tam·er·al (mə tamʹər əl). Zool. a. consisting of metameres. b. pertaining to metamerism. 2. Chem. of, pertaining to, or characteristic of metamerism. [METAMERE + -IC] —met'a·mer'i·cal·ly, adv.

me·tam·er·ism (mə tamʹər iz'əm), n. 1. Zool. a. division into metameres. b. developmental process of somite formation. b. existence in a metameric state. 2. Chem. isomerism resulting from the attachment of different groups to the same atom, as C_2H_5-NH-CH_3 and CH_3-NH-CH_3. [METAMER + -ISM] met·a·mor·phic (metʹə môrʹfik), adj. 1. pertaining to or characterized by change of form, or metamorphosis. 2. Geol. pertaining to or exhibiting structural change or metamorphism. [METAMORPH(OSIS) + -IC] met'amor'phic cy'cle, Geol. the cycle of transformation of rock materials in which magmas cool into igneous rocks that erode and become sediments that are compressed into sedimentary rocks which may eventually be transformed into metamorphic rocks or remelted into magma.

met·a·mor·phism (metʹə môrʹfiz əm), n. 1. metamorphosis. Geol. a. change in the structure or constitution of a rock due to natural agencies, as pressure and heat, esp. when the rock becomes harder and more completely crystalline. [META- + -MORPHISM] met·a·mor·phose (metʹə môrʹfōz), v., -phosed, -phos·ing. —v.t. 1. to change the form or nature of; transform. 2. to subject to metamorphosis or metamorphism. —v.i. 3. to undergo or be capable of undergoing a change in form or nature. [back formation from METAMORPHOSIS]

—Syn. 1. mutate, transmute.

Met·a·mor·pho·ses (metʹə môrʹfə sēz'), n. a series of mythological tales or legends in verse (A.D. 7–8) by Ovid.

met·a·mor·pho·sis (metʹə môrʹfə sis), n., pl. -ses (-sēz'). 1. a complete change of form, structure, or substance, as that effected in transition by magic or witchcraft. 2. any complete change in form, appearance, character, circumstances, etc. 3. a form resulting from any such change. 4. Zool. a change or successive changes of form during the postembryonic or embryonic growth of an animal by which it is adapted to a new or special environment or way of living; the metamorphosis of tadpoles into frogs. 5. Pathol. a. a type of alteration or degeneration in which tissues are changed: fatty metamorphosis of the liver. b. the resultant form. 6. Bot. the structural or functional modification of a plant organ or structure during its development. [< L < Gk: transformation. See META-, -MORPH, -OSIS]

Metamorphosis (def. 4)
A, Eggs; B, Larva; C, Pupa; D, Adult

—Syn. 2. mutation, transmutation. —Ant. 1, 2. stasis.

Met/amor'phosis, The, a short story (1937) by Franz Kafka in German, Die Verwandlung.

met·a·mor·phous (metʹə môrʹfəs), adj. metamorphic. [META- + -MORPHOUS] met·a·neph·ros (metʹə nefʹrəs), n., pl. -roi (-roi). Embryol. one of the three embryonic kidneys of higher vertebrates, becoming the permanent and functional kidney. Cf. mesonephros, pronephros. [< NL < Gk meta- META- + nephrós kidney] —met'a·neph'ric, met·a·ne·phrit·ic (metʹə nə fritʹik), adj.

Met·a·ni·ra (metʹə nīʹrə), n. Class. Myth. the wife of Celeus and the mother of Abas, Demophoön, and Triptolemus.

met·a-ni·tro·phe·nol (metʹə nīʹtrō fēʹnōl, -nōl, -nol), n. See under nitrophenol (def. 2).

meta·ph., a metaphysical.

met·a·phase (metʹə fāz′), n. Biol. the stage in mitosis in which the duplicated chromosomes lie on the equatorial plane of the spindle. [META- + PHASE]

Met·a·phen (metʹə fenʹ), n. Pharm., Trademark. nitromersol.

met·a·phor (metʹə fôr′, -fər), n. the application of a word or phrase to an object or concept which it does not literally denote, in order to suggest comparison with another object or idea, as in "A mighty fortress is our God." Cf. mixed metaphor, simile (def. 1). [< L metaphora < Gk; a transfer, akin to metapherein to transfer. See META-, -PHORE] met·a·phor·i·cal (metʹə fôrʹi kəl, -forʹ-), —met·a·phor·ic adj. —met·a·phor·i·cal·ness, n.

met·a·phos·phate (metʹə fosʹfāt), n. Chem. a salt or ester of any of various acids. [META- + PHOSPHATE] met′a·phos·phor·ic ac′id (metʹə fos fôrʹik, -forʹ-), Chem. an acid, HPO_3, derived from phosphorous pentoxide, and containing the smallest amount of water of the phosphoric acids. Cf. phosphoric acid. [META- + PHOSPHORIC] met·a·phrase (metʹə frāz′), n., v., -phrased, -phrasing. —n. 1. a translation. —v.t. 2. to translate, esp. literally. 3. to change the phrasing or literary form of. [< Gk metáphrasis] is a paraphrasing, change of phrasing. See META-, PHRASE] met·a·phrast (metʹə frast′), n. a person who translates or paraphrases, esp. from one form to another, or from prose into verse. [MGk metaphrástes] one who translates, akin to metaphrázein to translate] —met′a·phras′tic, met′a·phras′ti·cal, adj. —met′a·phras′ti·cal·ly, adv.

metaphys., metaphysics.

met·a·phys·ic (metʹə fizʹik), n. 1. metaphysics. 2. Obs. a metaphysician. [ME methaphesik < ML metaphysica (ars) metaphysics (art)] met·a·phys·i·cal (metʹə fizʹi kəl), adj. 1. pertaining to or of the nature of metaphysics. 2. Philos. a. concerned with abstract thought or subjects, as existence, causality, truth, etc., or with the principles, conditions, and ultimate grounds, as being, time, or substance. 3. highly abstract or abstruse. 4. designating or pertaining to the poetry of the early seventeenth-century English poets, notably John Donne, whose characteristic style is highly intellectual and philosophical and features intensive use of ingenious conceits and turns of wit. 5. Archaic. supernatural. [ML metaphysicālis(is). See METAPHYSIC, -AL¹] —met′a·phys′i·cal·ly, adv.

met·a·phy·si·cian (metʹə fi zishʹən), n. a person who is versed in metaphysics. Also, met·a·phys·i·cist (metʹə fizʹi sist). [prob. < F métaphysicien, equiv. to metaphysique METAPHYSIC + -ien -IAN] met·a·phys·ics (metʹə fizʹiks), n. (construed as sing.) 1. the branch of philosophy that treats of first principles, including ontology, cosmology, and, in some systems, epistemology and its epistemology. 2. philosophy, esp. in its more abstruse branches. 3. (cap., italics.) a treatise (A.) by Aristotle dealing with the first principles, the relation of universals to particulars, and the teleological doctrine of causation. [< ML metaphysic(a) < MGk (tà) metaphysiká (neut. pl.), Gk (tà) metà tà physiká (lit., the (books) after the physics; with reference to the arrangement of Aristotle's writings] met·a·phyte (metʹə fīt′), n. Bot. a multicellular plant. [META- + -PHYTE] —met·a·phyt·ic (metʹə fitʹik), adj.

met·a·pla·sia (metʹə plāʹzhə, -zhē ə), n. Physiol. transformation of one type of tissue into another. [META- + -PLASIA] met·a·plasm (metʹə plazʹəm), n. 1. Biol. the nonliving matter or inclusions, as starch, pigments, etc., in the protoplasm of a cell. 2. Gram. a. a change in the structure of a word or sentence made by adding, removing, or transposing sounds or words of which it is composed or the letters that represent them. b. the formation of oblique cases from a stem other than that of the nominative. c. the sum of the grammatical change, irregularity < Gk metaplasmós reforming, remodeling, deriv. of metaplássein to mould differently, remodel. See META-, -PLASM] —met·a·plas·mic, adj.

met·a·pleu·ra (metʹə plo͝oʹrə, -plyo͝oʹ-), n., pl. Entomol. having only the last pair of abdominal spiracles open, as the tracheal system of certain insect larvae. [META- + Gk pneustikê] [ra] met·a·pro·tein (metʹə prōʹtēn, -tē in), n. Biochem. a hydrolytic derivative of protein, insoluble in water but soluble in dilute acids or alkalies. [META- + PROTEIN] met·a·psy·chol·o·gy (metʹə sī kolʹə jē), n. Psychol. 1. speculation or theorizing especially with concepts extending beyond the limits of psychology as an empirical science. 2. (in psychoanalytic theory) the conceptual and fundamental aspects considered under three major categories representing causal relations (mental dynamics), structural placement (mental topography), and functional value (mental economy). [META- + PSYCHOLOGY] —met·a·psy·cho·log·i·cal (metʹə sīʹkə lojʹi kəl), adj.

met·a·scope (metʹə skōp′), n. a device for converting infrared radiation into visible light. [META- + -SCOPE] met·a·so·ma·tism (metʹə sōʹmə tizʹəm), n. Geol. 1. the series of processes whereby minerals or rocks are replaced by others of different chemical composition as a result of the introduction of material, usually in very hot aqueous solutions, from sources external to the formation undergoing change. 2. replacement (def. 3). Also, met·a·so·ma·to·sis (metʹə sōʹmə tōʹsis). [META- + SOMA³ + -ISM] —met·a·so·mat·ic (metʹə sō matʹik), adj.

met·a·sta·ble (metʹə stāʹbəl, metʹə stāʹ-), adj. 1. Metall. chemically unstable in the absence of certain conditions that would induce stability, but not liable to spontaneous transformation. 2. Physics, Chem. pertaining to a body or system existing at an energy level above that of its most stable state, but requiring the addition of a small amount of energy to induce a transition to the more stable state. [META- + STABLE²] —met·a·sta·bil·i·ty (metʹə stə bilʹi tē), n.

met′asta′ble state′, Physics, Chem. an excited energy level of relatively long duration of an atom, body, or system.

Me·ta·sta·sio (meʹtäs stäʹzyô), n. (Pietro Antonio Domenico Bonaventura Trapassi) 1698–1782, Italian poet and dramatist.

met·as·ta·sis (mə tasʹtə sis), n., pl. -ses (-sēz′). 1. Pathol. a. the transference of disease-producing organisms or of malignant or cancerous cells to other parts of the body by way of the blood vessels, lymphatics, or membranous surfaces. b. the condition produced by this. 2. transformation (def. 2). 3. Rhet. a rapid transition, as from one subject to another. 4. Physics. a change in position or orbit of an elementary particle. [< Gk: a changing. See META-, STASIS] —met·a·stat·ic (metʹə statʹik), adj. —met′a·stat′i·cal·ly, adv.

met·as·ta·size (mə tasʹtə sīz′), v.t., -sized, -siz·ing. Pathol. (of malignant cells or disease-producing organisms) to spread to other parts of the body by way of the blood vessels, lymphatics, or membranous surfaces. [METASTASIS(IS) + -IZE] met·a·tar·sal (metʹə tärʹsəl), adj. 1. of or pertaining to the metatarsus. —n. 2. a bone in the metatarsus. [META- + TARSAL] —met′a·tar′sal·ly, adv.

met·a·tar·sus (metʹə tärʹsəs), n., pl. -si (-sī). Anat., Zool. the part of a foot between the ankle joint and the toes, including the bones in the instep and the bones of the toes. [MGk metaphrástes] one who translates, akin to metaphrázein to translate] —met′a·phras′tic, met′a·phras′ti·cal, adj. —met′a·phras′ti·cal·ly, adv.

mete¹ (mēt), v.t., met·ed, met·ing. 1. to distribute or apportion by measure; allot (usually fol. by out): to mete out punishment. Archaic. to measure. [ME; OE mǣtan; c. D meten, Icel meta, Goth mitan, G messen to measure, Gk mēdesthai to ponder] —Syn. 1. dole, deal, measure, parcel.

mete² (mēt), n. Usually, metes. a limiting mark. 2. a limit or boundary. [late ME < MF < L mēta goal-mark, turning post] —Syn. 2. bound.

Me·ter, metallurgical engineer.

met·en·ni·al (metʹen pirʹi kəl), adj. 1. beyond or outside the field of experience. 2. of or pertaining to metempirics. [MET- + EMPIRICAL] —met′em·pir′i·cal·ly, adv.

met·em·pir·ics (metʹem pirʹiks), n. (construed as sing.) the philosophy dealing with the existence of things outside, or beyond, experience. [see METEMPIRIC, -ICS] —met′em·pir′i·cist, n.

met·em·psy·cho·sis (mə tem′sə kōʹsis, -temp′-, metʹəm sī-), n., pl. -ses (-sēz). 1. the passage of the soul from one body to another. 2. the rebirth of the soul at death in another body of either human or animal form. [< L < Gk] —met·em·psy·chic (metʹəm sīʹkik), met·em′psy·cho′sic, met·em′psy·cho′si·cal, adj.

met·en·ceph·a·lon (metʹen sefʹə lonʹ), n., pl. -lons, -la (-lə). Anat. the anterior section of the hindbrain, comprising the cerebellum and pons. [MET- + ENCEPHALON] —met·en·ce·phal·ic (metʹen sə falʹik), adj.

met·e·or (meʹtē ər, -ôr′), n. 1. a relatively small, solid body moving in the solar system. 2. a transient fiery streak in the sky produced by a meteoroid passing through the earth's atmosphere; a shooting star or bolide. 3. Informal. any person or object that moves, progresses, becomes famous, etc., with spectacular speed. 4. Obs. any atmospheric phenomenon, as hail, a typhoon, etc. [< ML meteor(um) < Gk metéōron meteor, a thing in the air, n. use of neut. of metéōros aerial, equiv. to met- MET- + éōr(ai), ar of aérein to raise) + -os adj. suffix] —me·te·or·like′, adj.

meteor., 1. meteorological. 2. meteorology.

Me′teor Cra′ter. See Crater Mound.

me·te·or·ic (mēʹtē ôrʹik, -orʹ-), adj. 1. of, pertaining to, or like a meteor or meteors. 2. consisting of meteors: a meteoric shower. 3. resembling a meteor in transient brilliance, suddenness, or swiftness: a meteoric career. 4. of the atmosphere; meteorological. [< ML meteoric(us). See METEOR, -IC] —me′te·or′i·cal·ly, adv.

me·te·or·ic show′er, Astron. See meteor shower.

me·te·or·ite (mēʹtē ə rītʹ), n. 1. a mass of stone or metal that has reached the earth from outer space; a fallen meteoroid. 2. a meteoroid. [METEOR + -ITE¹] —me·te·or·it·ic (mēʹtē ə ritʹik), me′te·or·it′i·cal, adj.

me·te·or·it·ics (mēʹtē ə ritʹiks), n. (construed as sing.) Astron. the science that deals with meteors. [METEORITE + -ICS] me·te·or·o·gram (mēʹtē ôrʹə gram′, -orʹ- mēʹtē ər-), n. Meteorol. 1. a record made by a meteorograph. 2. a diagram or chart representing the pattern of recurrences of two or more meteorological phenomena over a period of time as observed at a given weather station or group of stations. [METEORO(LOGY) + -GRAM¹] me·te·or·o·graph (mēʹtē ôrʹə graf′, -grəf′, -orʹ-, mēʹtē ər-), n. any instrument for automatically recording various meteorological conditions, as of barometric pressure, temperature, etc., at the same time. [METEORO(LOGY) + -GRAPH] —me·te·or·o·graph·ic (mēʹtē ôrʹə grafʹik, -orʹ-, mēʹtē ər-), adj. —me·te·o·rog·ra·phy (mēʹtē ə rogʹrə fē), n.

me·te·or·oid (mēʹtē ə roidʹ), n. Astron. any of the small bodies composing the material revolving through space: when such a body enters the earth's atmosphere it is heated to luminosity and becomes a meteor. [METEOR + -OID] me·te·or·ol·o·gy (mēʹtē ər ə lojʹē), n. 1. the science dealing with the atmosphere and its phenomena, including weather and climate. 2. the atmospheric conditions and weather of an area. [< Gk meteorología a treatise on the heavenly bodies. See METEOR, -O-, -LOGY] —me′te·or·ol′o·gist, n.

me·te·or·o·path·o·log·ic (mēʹtē ər ə pathʹə lojʹik, -tē ôrʹə-, -orʹə-), adj. Pathol. of or pertaining to the harmful effect of climatic conditions on health. [METEOROLOGY) + PATHOLOGY + -IC] me′teor show′er, Astron. the profusion of meteors observed when the earth passes through a meteor swarm. Also, meteoric shower.

me′teor swarm′, Astron. any large number of meteoroids moving in parallel paths. Cf. meteor shower.

me·ter¹ (mēʹtər), n. the fundamental unit of length in the metric system, equivalent to 39.37 U.S. inches, originally intended to be, and later defined as, equal to one ten-millionth of the distance from the equator to the pole measured on a meridian: defined from 1889 to 1960 as the distance between lines engraved on a platinum-iridium bar (the "International Prototype Meter") preserved at the International Bureau of Weights and Measures near Paris, and now defined as 1,650,763.73 wavelengths of the orange radiation of krypton 86 under specified conditions. Abbr.: m Also, esp. Brit., metre. [< F mètre < Gk métron measure] me·ter² (mēʹtər), n. 1. Pros. a. poetic measure; arrangement of words in regularly recurring, patterned, or rhythmic lines or verses. b. a particular form of such arrangement, depending on both the kind and the number of feet in the line or verse. (usually in combination): iambic trimeter. 2. Music. a. the rhythmic element as measured by division into parts of equal time value. b. the unit of measurement. In terms of number of beats, adopted for a given piece of music. Cf. measure (def. 18). Also, esp. Brit., metre. [ME metir, OE meter < L metr(um) poetic meter, verse < Gk métron measure; r. -ter < MF] me·ter³ (mēʹtər), n. 1. an instrument for measuring, esp. one that automatically measures and records the quantity of a substance, as of gas, water, or electricity, passing through or past it. 2. a device for so measuring by means of a meter. [ME; see METE¹, -ER¹]

Me·ter (mēʹtər), n. Class. Myth. an epithet of Athena, meaning "mother."

-meter, a learned borrowing from Latin and Greek meaning "measure," used in the names of instruments measuring quantity, extent, degree, etc.: altimeter; barometer. Cf. -metry. [< NL -metrum < Gk. See METER¹] me·ter-age (mēʹtər ij) n. the act of measuring; measurement. 2. a sum or price charged for measurement. [METER³ + -AGE] me·ter-can·dle (mēʹtər kanʹdəl) (*mə*ʹtər kanʹdᵊl sekʹənd), n. a unit of light-exposure equivalent to one lux for one second.

me·ter-kil·o·gram-sec·ond (mēʹtər kilʹə gramʹ sekʹənd), adj. of or pertaining to the system of units in which the meter, kilogram, and second are the principal units of length, mass, and time. Abbr.: mks, MKS me·tes′ and bounds′ (mētsʹ), the boundaries or limits of a piece of land. [trans. of AF metes et boundes. See METE², BOUND³] meth-, a combining form of methyl: methenamine.

Meth., Methodist.

meth·a·crel·ic (methʹə krelʹik, -kralʹik), n. Pharm. a white, crystalline, water-insoluble powder, the para isomer of $CH_3OC_6H_4NHCOCH_3$, used for relieving pain and reducing or preventing fever. Also called acetanisidine. [METH- + ACRYL + -ATE²] meth·ac·ry·late (methʹ akʹrə lātʹ), n. Chem. an ester or salt derived from methacrylic acid. [METH- + ACRYL + -ATE²] meth·ac'rylate res'in, Chem. an acrylic resin formed by polymerizing the esters or amides of methacrylic acid.

meth'a·cryl'ic ac'id (meth'ə kril'ik, meth'-), Chem. a colorless, liquid acid, $CH_2=C(CH_3)COOH$, produced synthetically, whose methyl ester, methyl methacrylate, polymerizes to yield a clear plastic. Cf. Lucite, plexiglass. [METH- + ACRYLIC] meth·a·done (meth'ə dōn'), n. Pharm. a synthetic narcotic, $C_{21}H_{27}NO$, $(C_6H_5)_2CHCH_2CH(CH_3)N(CH_3)_2$, slightly more potent than morphine, used usually in the form of its hydrochloride for relieving pain. Also, meth·a·don (meth'ə don'), [METH(YL) + A(MINO) + D(IPHEN)YL + (KET)ONE] met·hae·mo·glo·bin (met hē'mə glō'bin, -ham'ə-, -hē'mə glō'-, -hem'ə-), n. methemoglobin.

meth·a·nal (meth'ə nal'), n. Chem. formaldehyde. [METHANE + -AL²] meth·a·na·tion (meth'ə nā'shən), n. Chem. the process of converting a mixture, as of hydrogen and carbon monoxide, into methane. [METHANE + -ATION] meth·ane (meth'ān), n. Chem. a colorless, odorless, flammable gas, CH_4, main constituent of marsh gas and the firedamp of coal mines, obtained commercially from natural gas: the first member of the methane, or alkane, series of hydrocarbons. [METH(YL) + -ANE] meth'ane se'ries, Chem. See alkane series.

meth·a·nol (meth'ə nōl', -nōl', -nol'), n. Chem. See methyl alcohol. [METHANE + -OL¹] meth·an·the·line (me than'thə lēn'), n. Pharm. a compound, $C_{29}H_{34}N_2O_3Br_2$, in the form of its bromide in the treatment of excessive sweating and salivation, peptic ulcer, stomach cramps, and other conditions resulting from nerve dysfunction. [METH- + (X)AN- + -THE + -(O)L + -INE²] me·theg·lin (mə theg'lin), n. a variety of mead, originally made in Wales. [< Welsh meddyglyn, glyn, to meddyg healing (< L medicus; see MEDICAL) + llyn liquor] met·he·mo·glo·bin (met hē'mə glō'bin, -hem'ə-, -hē'mə glō'-, -hem'ə-), n. Biochem. a brownish compound of oxygen and hemoglobin, formed in the blood by the action of certain drugs. Also, methemoglobin. Also called ferrihemoglobin, hemiglobin. [MET- + HEMOGLOBIN] me·then·amine (me then'ə mēn', -min), n. Chem. hexamethylenetetramine. [METH- + -ENE + AMINE]

me·thinks (mi thiŋks'), v. impers.; pt. me·thought. Archaic. it seems to me, I think. [ME me thinketh, OE me thynceth. See ME, THINK²] me·thi·o·nine (me thī'ə nēn', -nin), n. Biochem. an amino acid, $CH_3SCH_2CH_2CH(NH_2)COOH$, found in casein, egg albumin, and other proteins like it. 5. Method. Also called Stanislavski Method, Stanislavski System. a theory and technique of acting in which the performer identifies with the character to be portrayed and develops a subtle, realistic, and nondeclamatory, and highly individualized manner. —adj. 6. (usually cap.) of, pertaining to, or employing the Method. Method actor, Method director. [< medical method(us) < Gk méthodos systematic course, equiv. to met- META- + hodós way, road] —meth'od·less, adj.

—Syn. 1. means, technique. METHOD, MODE, WAY imply a manner of doing something. METHOD implies that which happens. METHOD refers to a settled kind of procedure, usually according to a definite, established, logical, or systematic plan: the open-hearth method of making steel; one method of solving a problem. MODE is a more formal word which implies a customary or characteristic fashion of doing something: Kangaroos have a peculiar mode of carrying their young. WAY, a word in popular use for the general idea, is equivalent to various more specific words: someone's way (manner) of walking; the best way (method) of calculating; the way (mode) of holding a pen. 4. disposition.

me·thod·i·cal (mə thod'i kəl), adj. 1. performed, disposed, or acting in a systematic way; systematic; orderly: a methodical person. 2. painstaking, esp. slow and painstaking. Also, me·thod'ic. [methodic (< L methodicus < Gk methodikós; see METHOD, -IC) + -AL¹] —me·thod'i·cal·ly, adv. —me·thod'i·cal·ness, n.

—Syn. 1. See orderly.

meth·od·ise (meth'ə dīz'), v.t., -ised, -is·ing. Chiefly Brit. methodize. —meth'od·is'er, n.

Meth·od·ism (meth'ə diz'əm), n. 1. the doctrines, polity, beliefs, and methods of worship of the Methodists. 2. (l.c.) an act or practice of worshipful procedure, etc., according to some method or system. 3. (l.c.) an excessive use of or preoccupation with methods, systems, or the like. [METHOD + -ISM]

Meth·od·ist (meth'ə dist), n. 1. a member of the largest Christian denomination, which grew out of the revival of religion led by John Wesley: stresses both personal piety and holiness and has an Arminian doctrine and, in the U.S., a modified episcopal polity. 2. (l.c.) a person who uses methods or a particular method, esp. habitually or excessively. —adj. 3. Also, Meth'od·is'tic, Meth'od·is'ti·cal, (l.c.) of, pertaining to, or characteristic of Methodism. [METHOD + -IST]

Meth'od·is'ti·cal·ly, adv.

Me·tho·di·us (mə thō'dē əs), n. Saint (Apostle of the Slavs) A.D. c825–885, Greek missionary in Moravia (brother of Saint Cyril).

meth·od·ize (meth'ə dīz'), v.t., -ized, -iz·ing. 1. to reduce (something) to a method. 2. to arrange (something) according to a method. Also, esp. Brit., methodise. [METHOD + -IZE] —meth'od·iz'er, n.

meth·od·ol·o·gy (meth'ə dol'ə jē), n., pl. -gies. 1. a set or system of methods, principles, and rules for regulating a given discipline, as in the arts or sciences. 2. Logic. the study of the principles underlying the organization of the various sciences and the conduct of scientific inquiry. 3. Educ. a branch of pedagogics dealing with analysis and evaluation of subjects to be taught and of the methods of teaching them. [< NL methodologia. See METHOD, -O-, -LOGY] —meth·od·o·log·i·cal (meth'ə də loj'i kəl), adj. —meth'od·o·log'i·cal·ly, adv. —meth'od·ol'o·gist, n.

me·thought (mi thôt'), v. pt. of methinks.

meth·oxide (meth ok'sīd, -sid), n. Chem. methylate (def. 1). [METH- + OXIDE] me·thox·y (mə thok'sē), adj. Chem. containing the methoxy group. Also, meth·ox·yl (mə thok'sil). [METH- + OXY- + -YL] methoxy-, a combining form representing the methoxy group: methoxychlor.

me·thox·y·ben·zene (mə thok'sē ben'zēn, -ben-zēn'), n. Chem. anisole. [METHOXY- + BENZENE] me·thox·y·chlor (mə thok'sē klôr', -klōr'), n. Chem. a white, crystalline, water-insoluble solid, $C_3CCH_2(C_6H_4OCH_3)_2$, used as an insecticide. Also called DMDT, methoxy DDT. [METHOXY- + CHLOR-¹] methoxy DDT, methoxychlor.

methox·y·group', Chem. the univalent group, CH_3O–. Also called methoxy rad'ical.

Me·thu·en (mə thōō'ən), n. a town in NE Massachusetts, near Lawrence, 23,414 (1960).

Me·thu·se·lah (mə thōō'zə lə, -thōōz'lə), n. 1. Also, Douay Bible, Mathusala. a patriarch, said to have lived 969 years. Gen. 5:27. 2. a wine bottle holding 8 liters.

meth·yl (meth'il), adj. Chem. containing the methyl group. [METH- + -YL] —me·thyl·ic (mə thil'ik, mə-), adj.

methyl-, a combining form indicating the presence of the methyl group: methylamine.

meth'yl ac'etate, Chem. a colorless, flammable, volatile liquid, CH_3COOCH_3, the methyl ester of acetic acid, having a fragrant odor: used chiefly as a solvent.

meth'yl-ac'rylic ac'id (meth'il ə kril'ik, -ə ser'-), Chem. See propionic acid. [METHYL- + ACETIC ACID] meth'yl·al (meth'ə lal', -meth'ə lal'), n. Chem. a colorless, flammable, volatile liquid, $H_2C(OCH_3)_2$, solvent, a fuel, and an automobile antifreeze and in the synthesis of formaldehyde. Also called methanol, wood alcohol, wood spirit.

meth·yl·a·mine (meth'ə lə mēn', -əl am'in), n. Chem. any of three derivatives of ammonia in which one or all of the hydrogen atoms are replaced by methyl groups, and, in the first case, with an ammoniacal odor, the simplest alkyl derivative of ammonia and, like the latter, forming a series of salts. Also called monomethylamine. [METHYL- + AMINE] meth'yl·ate, (meth'ə lāt'), n., v., -at·ed, -at·ing. Chem. —n. Also called methoxide. 1. any derivative of methyl alcohol, as sodium methylate, CH_3ONa. 2. any compound containing the methyl group. —v.t. 3. to combine with methyl. 4. to replace one or more hydrogen atoms with the methyl group. 4. to mix with methyl alcohol, as in the denaturation of ethyl alcohol. [METHYL- + -ATE¹] —meth'yl·a'tion, n.

meth'yl·ated spir'its, ethyl alcohol denatured with methyl alcohol for the purpose of preventing its use as an alcoholic beverage. Also, meth'ylated spir'it.

meth·yl·a·tion (meth'ə lā'shən), n. Chem. the process of replacing a hydrogen atom with a methyl group. [METHYLATE + -ION] meth·yl·ben·zene (meth'əl ben'zēn, -ben-zēn'), n. Chem. toluene. [METHYL- + BENZENE] meth'yl bro'mide, Chem. a colorless, poisonous gas, CH_3Br, used chiefly as a refrigerant, a soil fumigant and in organic synthesis. Also called bromomethane.

meth·yl·cat·e·chol (meth'əl kat'ə chōl', -chōl', -chol', -shōl', -shōl', -shol', -kōl', -kōl', -kol'), n. Pharm. guaiacol. [METHYL- + CATECHOL] meth'yl chlo'ride, Chem. a colorless, poisonous gas, CH_3Cl, used chiefly as a refrigerant, as a local anesthetic, and as a methylating agent in organic synthesis. Also called chloromethane.

meth'yl chlorocar'bonate. See methyl chloroformate.

meth'yl chlo·ro·form'ate (klôr'ə fôr'māt, -mət, klōr'-), Chem. a colorless liquid, $ClCOOCH_3$, used chiefly in organic synthesis.

meth'yl cy'anide, Chem. acetonitrile.

meth·yl·cy·clo·hex·a·nol (meth'əl sī'klō hek'sə nôl', -nōl', -nol'), Chem. a colorless, aromatic, viscous liquid mixture, chiefly of the ortho and para forms of $CH_3C_6H_{10}OH$, derived from cresol by hydrogenation: used chiefly as a solvent for rubber, cellulose, esters, and phenols. [METHYL- + CYCLOHEXANOL] meth·yl·ene (meth'ə lēn'), adj. Chem. containing the methylene group. [METHYL- + -ENE] meth'ylene blue', Chem., Pharm. a dark-green, crystalline, very soluble basic dye compound, $C_{16}H_{18}ClN_3S{\cdot}3H_2O$, having a bronzelike luster: used chiefly as a dye, as a bacteriological and biological stain, and as an antidote for cyanide poisoning. Also called methylthionine chloride.

meth'ylene chlo'ride, Chem. a colorless, volatile liquid, CH_2Cl_2, used chiefly as a solvent, as a refrigerant, and as a local anesthetic in dentistry. Also called methylene dichloride, dichloromethane.

meth'ylene dichlo'ride, Chem. See methylene chloride.

meth'ylene group', Chem. the bivalent group, $>CH_2$, derived from methane. Also called meth'ylene rad'ical.

meth'yl eth'yl ke'tone, Chem. a colorless, flammable liquid, $CH_3COC_2H_5$, produced by synthesis or fermentation: used chiefly as a solvent, as a paint remover, and in the manufacture of plastics. Also called ethyl methyl ketone, butanone.

meth'yl for'mate, Chem. a colorless, water-soluble, flammable liquid, $HCOOCH_3$, used chiefly in organic synthesis and as a solvent.

meth·yl·gly·cox·al (meth'əl glī ok'sal, -sal), n. Chem. See pyruvic aldehyde. [METHYL- + glycoxal, equiv. to GLY(COL) + OXAL(IC ACID)] meth'yl group', Chem. the univalent group, CH_3–, derived from methane: also called methyl rad'ical.

meth·yl·hep·te·none (meth'əl hep'tə nōn'), n. Chem. a colorless liquid, $(CH_3)_2C{=}CH(CH_2)_2COCH_3$, occurring in many essential oils and produced by synthesis: used in organic synthesis and in the manufacture of inexpensive perfumes. [METHYL- + HEPTENE + -ONE] me·thyl·ic (me thil'ik), adj. of, pertaining to, or characteristic of the methyl group. [METHYL + -IC] me·thyl·i·dyne (me thil'i dīn'), adj. Chem. containing the methylidyne group; methenyl. [METHYL- + -IDE + (ALK)YNE] methyl'idyne group', Chem. the trivalent group, $\equiv CH$. Also called methyl'idyne rad'ical.

meth·yl·i·sa·bu·te·nyl ke'tone (meth'əl i'sə byōōt'ən il, meth'-), Chem. See mesityl oxide. [METHYL- + ISO- + BUTENE + -YL] meth·yl·mal·on·ic ac'id (meth'il mə lon'ik), Chem. a colorless, water-soluble, flammable liquid, $(CH_3)_2CHCH_2COCH_3$, having a pleasant odor: used as a solvent for nitrocellulose, gums, resins, fats, waxes, and oils. Also called hexone.

meth'yl lac'tate, Chem. a colorless liquid, $CH_3CHOHCOOCH_3$, soluble with water and most organic liquids: used chiefly as a solvent for cellulose acetate.

meth'yl meth'acrylate, Chem. a colorless, volatile, flammable, water-insoluble liquid, unsaturated ester, $CH_2=C(CH_3)COOCH_3$, which polymerizes readily to a clear plastic. Cf. Lucite, plexiglas.

meth'yl meth'ane, propane.

meth·yl·naph·tha·lene (meth'əl naf'thə lēn', -nap'-), n. Chem. a compound, $C_{10}H_7CH_3$, whose alpha form, a colorless liquid, is used in determining cetane numbers. Cf. cetane number. [METHYL- + NAPHTHALENE] meth'yl o'leate, Chem. an oily, clear to amber, water-insoluble liquid, $CH_3(CH_2)_7CH{=}CH(CH_2)_7COOCH_3$, used chiefly also as an intermediate for detergents, wetting agents, and emulsifiers.

meth'yl or'ange, Chem. an orange-yellow, slightly water-soluble powder, $(CH_3)_2NC_6H_4N{=}NC_6H_4SO_3Na$, used chiefly as an acid-base indicator. Also called gold orange, helianthine B, orange III, tropaeolin D, tropeolin D. Cf. methyl red.

meth·yl·par·a·ben (meth'əl par'ə ben'), n. Chem. a fine, white, needlelike substance, $HOC_6H_4COOCH_3$, used chiefly as a preservative in foods and pharmaceuticals. [METHYL- + PARA- + BEN(ZOIC ACID)] meth'yl phe'nol, cresol.

meth'yl·phen·yl·car'bi·nyl ac'etate (meth'əl fen'əl kär'bə nil, -fēn'əl-, meth'-), Chem. A colorless, synthetic liquid, $CH_3COOCH(CH_3)C_6H_5$, having a strong floral odor: used in perfumery, soaps, and as a solvent, used chiefly in gardenia and lily perfumes. Also called phenylmethylcarbinyl acetate, styralyl acetate. [METHYL- + PHENYL + CARB- + -YL¹ + -YL]

meth'yl phe'nyl ether, Chem. anisole.

meth'yl pro'pyl ke'tone, Chem. a colorless, slightly water-soluble liquid, $CH_3COC_3H_7$, used chiefly as a solvent, esp. in lacquers.

meth'yl red', Chem. a water-insoluble solid occurring as a dark-red powder or violet crystals, $(CH_3)_2NC_6H_4N{=}NC_6H_4COOH$, used chiefly as an acid-base indicator. Cf. methyl orange.

meth·yl·ro·sa·nil·line chlo'ride (meth'əl rō zan'ə lin, -lin', meth'-), n. See gentian violet. [METHYL- + ROSANILINE CHLORIDE] meth'yl sal'icylate, Chem. a colorless, water-soluble liquid, $HOC_6H_4COOCH_3$, produced synthetically or by maceration and subsequent distillation from birch or gaultheria: used chiefly in perfumery and flavoring, and in medicine as a counterirritant in external preparations. Betula oil, gaultheria oil, oil of wintergreen, sweet birch oil, wintergreen oil.

meth'yl sty'ryl ke'tone (stī'ril, stir'il), Chem. See benzylidene acetone. [STYR(ENE) + -YL] meth'yl sul'fate, Chem. See dimethyl sulfate.

meth·yl·the·o·bro·mine (meth'əl thē'ə brō'mēn, -min, meth'-), n. Chem. caffeine. [METHYL- + THEOBROMINE] meth·yl·thi·o·nine chlo'ride (meth'əl thī'ə nēn', -nin), Chem. See methylene blue. [METHYL- + THIONINE] meth·yl·tri·ni·tro·ben·zene (meth'əl trī nī'trō ben'zēn, -ben-zēn'), n. Chem. See TNT. [METHYL- + TRI- + NITRO- + BENZENE] meth·y·pry·lon (meth'ī prī'lon), n. Pharm. an almost white, crystalline, bitter powder, $C_{10}H_{17}NO_3$, used as a sedative and hypnotic. [METHY(L)- + P(IPE)R(IDINE + DIETH)YL + -ON, var. of -ONE] met·ic (met'ik), n. an alien resident of an ancient Greek city who paid a tax to remain there. [< LL meticus, var. of metoecus < Gk métoikos emigrant, equiv. to met- MET- + oikos dwelling] me·tic·u·lous (mə tik'yə ləs), adj. extremely or excessively careful about minute details; finical: to be meticulous about one's appearance. [< L meticulōs(us) full of fear, fearful, equiv. to metī- for metu- (s. of metus fear) + -culōs -CULE + -ōsus -OUS] —me·tic'u·lous·ly, adv. —me·tic'u·lous·ness, me·tic·u·los·i·ty (mə tik'yə los'i tē), n.

—Syn. exact, precise, demanding, finicky. —Ant. careless.

met′ric space′, Math. a space with a metric defined on it.

met′ric sys′tem, a decimal system of weights and measures, adopted first in France but now widespread over the world, universally used in science, mandatory for use for all purposes in a large number of countries, and permitted for use in most (as in the U.S.). The basic units are the meter (39.37 inches) for length and the gram (15.432 grains) for mass or weight. Derived units are the liter (0.908 U.S. dry quart, or 1.0567 U.S. liquid quart) for capacity, being the volume of 1000 grams of water at specified conditions; the are (119.6 square yards) for area, being the area of a square 10 meters on a side; and the stere (35.315 cubic feet) for volume, being the volume of a cube 1 meter on a side, the term "stere," however, usually being used only in measuring firewood. Names for units larger and smaller than these are formed from the above names by the use of the following prefixes: kilo, 1000; hecto, 100; deca, 10; deci, 0.1; centi, 0.01; milli, 0.001. To these are often added: tera, one trillion; giga, one billion; mega, one million. With the addition of basic physical units it is now officially known by the French name Le Système International d'Unités (abbreviation SI) or in English as the International System of Units.

mgr., 1. manager. 2. Monseigneur. 3. Monsignor. Also, Mgr.

mgt., management.

mH, millihenry. Also, mh

M.H., Medal of Honor.

M.H.A., Master in Hospital Administration; Master of Hospital Administration.

MHD, magnetohydrodynamics generation: a process for converting heat energy to electricity by using a magnetic coil around a duct to capture free electrons from a plasma, consisting of ionized gas heated to 2000–3000°C, being passed through the duct.

M.H.E., Master of Home Economics.

M.H.E.Ed., Master of Home Economics Education.

MHG, Middle High German. Also, M.H.G.

M.H.L., Master of Hebrew Literature.

mho (mō), n., pl. mhos. Elect. the meter-kilogram-second unit of electric conductance, equal to the conductance of a conductor in which a potential difference of one volt maintains a current of one ampere. Also called reciprocal ohm. [coined by Lord Kelvin, reversed sp. of OHM]

M.H.R., Member of the House of Representatives.

M.H.W., mean high water. Also, m.h.w.

mi (mē), n. Music. 1. the syllable used for the third tone of a diatonic scale. 2. (in the fixed system of solmization) the tone E. Cf. sol-fa (def. 1). [see GAMUT] micro-, a learned borrowing from Greek, where it meant "small" (microcosm), used to mean "enlarging or magnifying small)" (microscope), as a combining form of microscopic (microorganism), and to represent a millionth part of a unit (microgram). Also, esp. before a vowel, micr-. [comb. form repr. Gk mikrós] mi·cri·fy (miˈkrəˌ fīˈ), v.t., -fied, -fy·ing. to make small or insignificant. [MICR- + -IFY] mi·cro·a·er·o·phil·ic (miˈkrō āˈr ə filˈik), adj. Biol. requiring only a small amount of free oxygen for growth. Also, mi·cro·aer·oph·i·lous (miˈkrō ā roˈfə-ləs). microaerophile. [MICROAEROPHILE + -IC] —mi′cro·aer′o·phil′i·cal·ly, adv.

mi·cro·am·me·ter (miˈkrōˌ amˈmē tər), n. an instrument for measuring extremely small electric currents, calibrated in microamperes. [MICRO- + AMMETER] mi·cro·am·pere (miˈkrō amˈpēr, -am pērˈ), n. Elect. a unit of electric current, equal to one millionth of an ampere. Symbol: μA. [MICRO- + AMPERE] mi·cro·a·nal·y·sis (miˈkrōˌ ə nalˈi sis), n., pl. -ses (-sēzˈ). Chem. the analysis of very small samples of substances. [MICRO- + ANALYSIS] —mi·cro·an·a·lyt·ic (miˈkrō anˈəlitˈik), mi′cro·an′a·lyt′i·cal, adj.

mi·cro·ang·strom (miˈkrōˌ angˈstrəm), n. one millionth of an angstrom. Symbol: μÅ [MICRO- + ANGSTROM] mi·cro·bac·te·ri·um (miˈkrō bak tērˈē əm), n., pl. -te·ri·a (-tērˈē ə). Bacteriol. any of several rod-shaped, thermoduric, saprophytic bacteria of the genus Microbacterium, found chiefly in dairy products. [MICRO- + BACTERIUM] mi·cro·bal·ance (miˈkrōˌ balˈəns), n. Chem. a balance for weighing minute quantities of material. [MICRO- + BALANCE] mi·cro·bar (mī′krō bär′), n. a centimeter-gram-second unit of pressure, equal to one millionth of a bar; one dyne per square centimeter. Also called barye. [MICRO- + BAR²] mi·cro·bar·o·gram (mī′krō bär′ə gram′), n. Meteorol. a record made by a microbarograph. [MICRO- + BAROGRAM] mi·cro·bar·o·graph (mī′krō bär′ə graf′, -gräf′), n. Meteorol. a barograph for recording minute fluctuations of atmospheric pressure. [MICRO- + BAROGRAPH] mi·cro·be (mī′krōb), n. a microorganism, esp. a pathogenic bacterium. [< F < Gk mikro- MICRO- + bios life] —mi·crobe·less, adj. —mi·cro·bi·al, mi·cro·bic, mi·cro·bi·an, adj.

mi·cro·bi·cide (mī krō′bi sīd′), n. a substance or preparation for killing microbes. [MICROBE + -I- + -CIDE] —mi·cro·bi·cid′al, adj.

mi·cro·bi·ol·o·gy (mī′krō bī ol′ə jē), n. the science dealing with the structure, function, uses, etc., of microscopic organisms. [MICRO- + BIOLOGY] —mi·cro·bi·o·log·i·cal (mī′krō bī′ə loj′i kəl), mi·cro·bi′o·log′ic, adj. —mi·cro·bi′o·log′i·cal·ly, adv. —mi·cro·bi·ol′o·gist, n.

mi·crob·ism (mī′krō biz′əm), n. Pathol. infection with microbes. [MICROBE + -ISM] mi·cro·ce·phal·ic (mī′krō sə fal′ik), adj. 1. Craniom. having a skull with a small cranial capacity. 2. Pathol. microcephalous. [MICRO- + CEPHALIC] mi·cro·ceph·a·lous (mī′krō sef′ə ləs), [< NL microcephalic(us). See MICRO-, CEPHALIC] —mi·cro·ce·phal·i·a (mī′krō sə fāl′yə), n.

mi·cro·ceph·a·lus (mī′krō sef′ə ləs), n., pl. -ceph·a·ly.

mi·cro·chem·is·try (mī′krō kem′i strē), n. the branch of chemistry dealing with minute quantities of substances. [MICRO- + CHEMISTRY] —mi·cro·chem·i·cal (mī′krō kem′i kəl), adj.

Mi·cro·ci·on·a (mī′krō sī′ō nə), n. a genus of bright-red sponges of the Atlantic coast of North America and Europe, used in experiments on the dissociation and reintegration of sponge cells. [< NL < Gk mikro- MICRO- + kíōn column] mi·cro·cli·mate (mī′krō klī′mit), n. the climate of a small area, as of confined spaces such as caves, houses, etc. (cryptoclimate), of plant communities, wooded areas, etc., or of large communities. Cf. macroclimate. [MICRO- + CLIMATE] —mi·cro·cli·mat·ic (mī′krō klī mat′ik), adj. —mi′cro·cli·mat′i·cal·ly, adv.

mi·cro·cli·ma·tol·o·gy (mī′krō klī′mə tol′ə jē), n. the study of the local climatic conditions of a small area, esp. the analysis of climatic profiles of the lowest stratum of the atmosphere in confined spaces (cryptoclimatology), of plants and plant communities (phytoclimatology), or of urban communities. Cf. macroclimatology, micrometeorology. [MICRO- + CLIMATOLOGY] —mi·cro·cli·ma·to·log·ic (mī′krō klī′mə tə loj′ik), mi′cro·cli′ma·to·log′i·cal, adj. —mi′cro·cli′ma·tol′o·gist, n.

mi·cro·cline (mī′krə klīn′), n. a mineral of the feldspar group, potassium aluminum silicate, $KAlSi_3O_8$, identical in composition with orthoclase but having triclinic instead of monoclinic crystals, used in making porcelain. [MICRO- + Gk klínein (to) cause to lean, slant. See CLINIC] mi·cro·coc·cus (mī′krə kok′əs), n., pl. -coc·ci (-kok′sī). Bacteriol. any spherical bacterium of the genus Micrococcus, occurring in irregular masses, many species of which are pigmented and are saprophytic or parasitic. [< NL; see MICRO-, COCCUS] —mi′cro·coc′cal, mi·cro·coc·ic (mī′krō kok′sik), adj.

mi·cro·cop·ist (mī′krə kop′ist), n. a microscopically small constituent of a metal or alloy. [MICRO- + CONSTITUENT] mi·cro·cop·y (mī′krə kop′ē), n., pl. -cop·ies. a greatly reduced photographic copy of a printed page or the like. [MICRO- + COPY] mi·cro·cosm (mī′krə koz′əm), n. 1. a little world; a world in miniature (opposed to macrocosm). 2. anything thought regarded as a world in miniature. 3. man, mankind, society, or the like, viewed as an epitome or miniature of the world or universe. Also called mi·cro·cos·mos (mī′krō koz′məs, -mōs). [late ME microcosme < Med L microcosm(us) < Gk mikrós kósmos small world. See MICRO-, COSMOS] —mi′cro·cos′mic, mi′cro·cos′mi·cal, adj.

mi·cro·cos·mic salt′, Chem. See sodium ammonium phosphate.

mi·cro·cou·lomb (mī′krə kōō′lom), n. Elect. a unit of quantity of electricity, equal to one millionth of a coulomb. Symbol: μC [MICRO- + COULOMB] mi·cro·crys·tal (mī′krə kris′təl), n. a microscopic crystal. [MICRO- + CRYSTAL] mi·cro·crys·tal·line (mī′krō kris′tə lin, -tə līn′), adj. minutely crystalline; composed of microscopic crystals. [MICROCRYSTAL + -INE¹] —mi·cro·crys·tal·lin·i·ty (mī′krō kris′tə lin′ə tē), n.

mi·cro·cu·rie (mī′krə kyōō′rē, mī′krō kyōō rē′), n. Physics, Chem. a unit of radioactivity, equal to one millionth of a curie; 3.70×10^4 disintegrations per second. Symbol: μCi, μc [MICRO- + CURIE] mi·cro·cyte (mī′krə sīt′), n. 1. a minute cell or corpuscle. 2. Pathol. an abnormally small red blood cell, usually deficient in hemoglobin. [MICRO- + -CYTE] —mi·cro·cyt·ic (mī′krō sit′ik), adj.

mi·cro·den·si·tom·e·ter (mī′krō den′si tom′i tər), n. Photog. a densitometer for measuring the denseness of minute areas of photographic negatives. [MICRO- + DENSITOMETER] mi·cro·de·tec·tor (mī′krō di tek′tər), n. 1. an instrument measuring small quantities or changes. 2. Elect. an extremely sensitive galvanometer. [MICRO- + DETECTOR] mi·cro·dis·sec·tion (mī′krō di sek′shən), n. dissection performed under a microscope. [MICRO- + DISSECTION] mi·cro·dis·til·la·tion (mī′krō dis′tə lā′shən), n. Chem. the distillation of minute quantities of material. [MICRO- + DISTILLATION] mi·cro·dont (mī′krə dont′), adj. having abnormally small teeth. Also, mi′cro·don′tic, mi′cro·don′tous. [MICR- + -ODONT] mi·cro·don·tia (mī′krə don′shə, -shē ə), n. the condition of having abnormally small teeth or an instance, or cases, of this. [< NL; see MICRODONT, -IA] mi·cro·dyne (mī′krə dīn′), n. one millionth of a dyne. Symbol: μdyn [MICRO- + DYNE] mi·cro·e·co·nom·ics (mī′krō ē′kə nom′iks, -ek′ə-), n. (construed as sing.) the branch of economics dealing with particular aspects of an economy, as the price-cost relationship of a firm. Cf. macroeconomics. [MICRO- + ECONOMICS] —mi′cro·e′co·nom′ic, adj.

mi·cro·e·lec·tron·ics (mī′krō i lek tron′iks, -ē′lek-), n. (construed as sing.) the technology dealing with the design, development, and construction of electronic systems utilizing extremely small elements, esp. solid-state devices employing microminiaturization. [MICRO- + ELECTRONICS] —mi′cro·e·lec′tron′ic, adj.

mi·cro·e·lec·tro·phore·sis (mī′krō i lek′trō fə rē′sis), n. Chem. any of several techniques for observing, by means of a microscope or an ultramicroscope, the electrophoresis of minute surface particles. [MICRO- + ELECTROPHORESIS] —mi·cro·e·lec·tro·pho·ret·ic (mī′krō i lek′trō fō ret′ik), adj.

mi·cro·el·e·ment (mī′krō el′ə mənt), n. Biochem. See trace element. [MICRO- + ELEMENT] mi·cro·en·vi·ron·ment (mī′krō en vī′rən mənt, -vī′ rən-), n. Ecol. the environment of a small area or of a particular organism in a community of plants and animals. [MICRO- + ENVIRONMENT] —mi·cro·en·vi·ron·men·tal (mī′krō en vī′rən men′tl, -vī′rən-), adj.

mi·cro·far·ad (mī′krō far′əd, -ad), n. Elect. a unit of capacitance, equal to one millionth of a farad. Abbr.: mf, mfd Symbol: μF [MICRO- + FARAD] mi·cro·fiche (mī′krə fēsh′), n. a sheet of microfilm, in a form suitable for filing, containing a number of separate microphotographs. [MICRO- + FICHE (CARD)] mi·cro·film (mī′krō film′), n. 1. a film bearing a miniature photographic copy of printed or other graphic matter, usually of a document, newspaper or book pages, often for a library archive, or the like. 2. a film, esp. of motion-picture stock, on which microcopies are made. —v.t. 3. to make a microfilm of. [MICRO- + FILM] mi·cro·fos·sil (mī′krō fos′il), n. a fossil so small that it can be studied and identified only by means of a microscope. Cf. macrofossil. [MICRO- + FOSSIL] mi·cro·gam·ete (mī′krō gam′ēt, -gə mēt′), n. Biol. (in conjugation or reproduction) the smaller and, usually, the male of two conjugating gametes. [MICRO- + GAMETE] mi·cro·ga·my (mī krog′ə mē), n., pl. -mies. (in certain protozoans and algae) syngamy in which the gametes are smaller than the asexual cells. [MICRO- + -GAMY] mi·cro·gli·a (mī krog′lē ə), n. Anat. a type of neuroglia in the central nervous system, consisting of small cells that are phagocytic under certain pathological conditions. [MICRO- + Gk glía glue] —mi·crog′li·al, adj.

mi·cro·gram[1] (mī′krə gram′), n. a unit of mass or weight equal to one millionth of a gram, used chiefly in microchemistry. Symbol: μg Also, esp. Brit., mi·cro·gramme [MICRO- + GRAM²] mi·cro·gram[2] (mī′krə gram′), n. micrograph (def. 2). [MICRO- + -GRAM¹] mi·cro·graph (mī′krə graf′, -gräf′), n. 1. an instrument for executing extremely minute writing or engraving. 2. Optics. a photograph taken through a microscope or a drawing of an object as seen through a microscope. [MICRO- + -GRAPH] mi·crog·ra·phy (mī krog′rə fē), n. 1. the description or delineation of microscopic objects. 2. examination or study with the microscope (opposed to macrography). 3. the technique or practice of using the microscope. 4. the art or practice of writing in very small characters. [MICRO- + -GRAPHY] —mi·cro·graph·ic (mī′krə graf′ik), adj. —mi′cro·graph′i·cal·ly, adv.

mi·cro·groove (mī′krə grōōv′), n. 1. (in a phonograph record) a needle groove much narrower than the top vertical groove, thus allowing more material to be included on a single record. 2. a record with such grooves, esp. a long-playing record. [MICRO- + GROOVE] mi·cro·hard·ness (mī′krō härd′nis), n. Metall. the hardness of a metal as measured by means of an indent made at a very slight pressure and covering a very small area. [MICRO- + HARDNESS] mi·cro·hen·ry (mī′krō hen′rē), n., pl. -ries, -rys. Elect. a unit of inductance, equal to one millionth of a henry. Symbol: μH, μh [MICRO- + HENRY] mi·crohm (mī′krōm′), n. Elect. a unit of resistance, equal to one millionth of an ohm. [MICR- + OHM] mi·cro·im·age (mī′krō im′ij), n. a microreproduction.

mi·cro·inch (mī′krō inch′), n. a unit of length equal to one millionth of an inch. Symbol: μin [MICRO- + INCH] mi·cro·in·jec·tion (mī′krō in jek′shən), n. Biol. injection performed under a microscope, esp. of a solution or transplant into a cell, tissue, or the like. [MICRO- + INJECTION] —mi′cro·in·ject′, v.t.

mi·cro·lam·bert (mī′krə lam′bərt), n. Optics. a unit of luminance, equal to one millionth of a lambert. [MICRO- + LAMBERT] mi·cro·lec·i·thal (mī′krō les′ə thəl), adj. Embryol. having a small amount of yolk, as certain eggs or ova. [MICRO- + LECITHAL] mi·cro·lite (mī′krə līt′), n. 1. Mineral. any microscopic crystal. 2. a mineral, principally calcium pyrotantalate, $CaTa_2O_7$, usually including niobium, fluorine, and other impurities occurring in cubic crystals. [MICRO- + -LITE] mi·cro·li·ter (mī′krə lē′tər), n. a unit of capacity equal to one millionth of a liter, used esp. in microchemistry. Symbol: μl Also, esp. Brit., mi′cro·li′tre. [MICRO- + LITER] mi·cro·lith (mī′krə lith), n. Archaeol. a tiny flint tool, usually triangular, found principally in Upper Paleolithic sites. [MICRO- + -LITH] mi·cro·lith·ic (mī′krə lith′ik), adj. 1. pertaining to or characterized by the use of microliths, as a people or culture. 2. of the nature of or resembling a microlith, as a tool. [MICROLITH + -IC] mi·crol·o·gy (mī krol′ə jē), n. excessive attention to petty details or distinctions. [< Gk mikrología minute discussion. frivolity. See MICRO-, -LOGY] —mi·cro·log·i·cal (mī′krə loj′i kəl), mi′cro·log′ic, adj. —mi·crol′o·gist, n.

mi·cro·lux (mī′krə luks′), n. Optics. a unit of illumination, equal to one millionth of a lux. [MICRO- + LUX] mi·cro·me·te·or·ite (mī′krō mē′tē ə rīt′), n. Astron. a very small meteorite, usually one having a diameter of less than a millimeter. [MICRO- + METEORITE] mi·cro·me·te·or·o·gram (mī′krō mē′tē ôr′ə gram′, -or′-, -mē′tē ər ə-), n. a record made by a micrometeorograph. [MICRO- + METEOROGRAM] mi·cro·me·te·or·o·graph (mī′krō mē′tē ôr′ə graf′, -gräf′, -or′-, -mē′tē ər ə-), n. a meteorograph adapted for use in aircraft. [MICRO- + METEOROGRAPH] mi·cro·me·te·or·ol·o·gy (mī′krō mē′tē ə rol′ə jē), n. the study of local and small-scale atmospheric phenomena, usually confined to the physical and dynamic occurrences within a shallow stratum of air adjacent to the ground. Cf. macrometeorology, mesometeorology, micrometeorology. [MICRO- + METEOROLOGY] —mi·cro·me·te·or·o·log·i·cal (mī′krō mē′tē ər ə loj′i kəl), adj.

Micrometer

mi·crom·e·ter (mī krom′i tər), n. 1. any of various devices for measuring minute distances, angles, etc., as in connection with a telescope or microscope. 2. See micrometer caliper. [MICRO- + -METER] mi·crom′e·ter cal′iper, a precision caliper with a spindle moved by a finely threaded screw, for the measurement of thicknesses and short lengths, commonly used by machinists for turning shafts or boring holes.

mi·crom′e·ter drum′, a graduated head on a micrometer screw for the fine adjustment of the arm of a telescope.

mi·crom′e·ter screw′, a screw with a very fine thread and a graduated head, used in micrometers or the like.

mi·crom·e·try (mī krom′i trē), n. the act or process of taking measurements with a microscope. [MICRO- + -METRY] —mi·cro·met·ri·cal (mī′krō me′tri kəl), mi′cro·met′ric, adj. —mi′cro·met′ri·cal·ly, adv.

mi·cro·mho (mī′krō mō′), n., pl. -mhos. Elect. a unit of conductance, equal to one millionth of a mho. Symbol: μmho [MICRO- + MHO] mi·cro·mi·cro·cu·rie (mī′krō mī′krō kyōō′rē, -krōō-rē′), n. Physics, Chem. a unit of radioactivity, equal to one millionth of a microcurie; 3.70×10^{-2} disintegrations per second. [MICRO- + MICROCURIE] mi·cro·mi·cro·far·ad (mī′krō mī′krō far′əd, -ad), n. Elect. one millionth of a microfarad. Symbol: μμf Also called picofarad. [MICRO- + MICROFARAD] mi·cro·mi·cron (mī′krō mī′kron), n., pl. -crons, -cra (-krə). Metric System. one millionth of a micron. Symbol: μμ, mu Also called picometer. [MICRO- + MICRON] mi·cro·mil·li·me·ter (mī′krō mil′ə mē′tər), n. Metric System. the millionth part of a millimeter. Also, esp. Brit., mi′cro·mil′li·me′tre. Also called nanometer. [MICRO- + MILLIMETER] mi·cro·min·i·a·ture (mī′krō min′ē ə chər, -min′ə-chər), adj. built on an extremely small scale, smaller than subminiature, of electronic equipment with small solid-state components in the place of vacuum tubes. [MICRO- + MINIATURE] mi·cro·min·i·a·tur·i·za·tion (mī′krō min′ē ə chər ə zā′shən), n. extreme miniaturization, esp. of electronic equipment smaller than subminiature and involving the substitution of solid-state components for vacuum tubes. [MICRO- + MINIATURIZATION] mi·cro·min·i·a·tur·ize (mī′krō min′ē ə chə rīz′), v.t., -ized, -iz·ing. (esp. of electronic equipment) to make extremely small; subject to microminiaturization. [MICRO- + MINIATURIZE] mi·cro·mo·tion (mī′krō mō′shən), n. 1. a motion, esp. a periodic one, of very short duration or length. 2. (in time and motion study) the analysis of the time of a work cycle, its basic motions, and its relation with the aid of a timing apparatus, motion-picture equipment, etc. [MICRO- + MOTION] mi·cron (mī′kron), n., pl. -crons, -cra (-krə). 1. Metric System. the millionth part of a meter. Symbol: μ, mu 2. Physical Chem. a colloidal particle whose diameter is between .2 and 10 microns. Also, mikron. [< Gk mikron small, little, neut. of mikrós MICRO-] mi·cro·ne·mus (mī′krə nē′məs), n., pl. -ne·mi (-nə mī′). Bot., Zool. having short filaments. [MICRO- + Gk nêm(a) thread + -OUS]

Mi·cro·ne·sia (mī′krə nē′zhə, -shə), n. one of the three principal divisions of Oceania, comprising the small Pacific islands N of the equator and E of the Philippines, whose main groups are the Marianas Islands, the Caroline Islands, and the Marshall Islands.

Mi·cro·ne·sian (mī′krə nē′zhən, -shən), adj. 1. of or pertaining to Micronesia, its inhabitants, or their languages. —n. 2. a native of Micronesia. 3. the Malayo-Polynesian languages of Micronesia, taken collectively. [MICRONESI(A) + -AN] mi·cro·nu·cle·ate (mī′krō nōō′klē it, -āt′, -nyōō′-), adj. having a micronucleus. [MICRONUCLE(US) + -ATE¹] mi·cro·nu·cle·us (mī′krō nōō′klē əs, -nyōō′-), n., pl. -cle·i (-klē ī′). Zool. the smaller of the two nuclei of a ciliate. Cf. macronucleus. [MICRO- + NUCLEUS] mi·cro·or·ga·nism (mī′krō ôr′gə niz′əm), n. a microscopic plant or animal. Also, mi′cro·or′gan·ism. [MICRO- + ORGANISM] —mi·cro·or·gan·ic, mi·cro·ôr·gan·ic (mī′krō ôr gan′ik), mi′cro·or′gan·is′mal, mi′cro·or′gan·is′mal, adj.

mi·cro·pa·le·on·tol·o·gy (mī′krō pā′lē ən tol′ə jē, -on-), n. paleontology dealing with the study of microscopic fossils. [MICRO- + PALEONTOLOGY] —mi·cro·pa·le·on·to·log·i·cal (mī′krō pā′lē ən′tə loj′i kəl, -on′-), mi′cro·pa′le·on′to·log′ic, adj. —mi′cro·pa′le·on·tol′o·gist, n.

mi·cro·par·a·site (mī′krō par′ə sīt′), n. a parasitic microorganism. [MICRO- + PARASITE] —mi·cro·par·a·sit·ic (mī′krō par′ə sit′ik), adj.

mi·cro·pa·thol·o·gy (mī′krō pə thol′ə jē), n., pl. -gies. the branch of pathology dealing with the microscopic examination of changed tissues and cells during disease. [MICRO- + PATHOLOGY] mi·cro·phage (mī′krə fāj′), n. Anat. a small phagocytic cell in blood or lymph, esp. a polymorphonuclear leukocyte. [MICRO- + -PHAGE] mi·cro·phone (mī′krə fōn′), n. an instrument capable of transforming the air-pressure waves of sound into changes in electric currents or voltage, used in recording or transmitting or amplifying sound. [MICRO- + -PHONE] mi·cro·phon·ic (mī′krə fon′ik), adj. Electronics. tending to or capable of exhibiting microphonism. [MICRO- + PHONIC] mi·cro·phon·ics (mī′krə fon′iks), n. (construed as sing.) Electronics. noise caused in an electronic circuit by microphonism. [MICRO- + PHONICS] mi·cro·phon·ism (mī′krə fō′niz əm), n. Electronics. a usually undesirable property of some electronic circuits or components in which mechanical vibrations of a component affect the signal being transmitted through the circuit. [MICRO- + -PHONE + -ISM] mi·cro·phot (mī′krə fot′, -fōt′), n. Optics, a unit of illumination equal to one millionth of a phot. [MICRO- + PHOT] mi·cro·pho·to·graph (mī′krə fō′tə graf′, -grăf′), n. 1. microfilm (def. 1). 2. a small photograph requiring optical magnification to reveal its full detail. 3. a photomicrograph. [MICRO- + PHOTOGRAPH] —mi·cro·pho·to·graph·ic (mī′krə fō′tə graf′ik), adj. —mi·cro·pho·tog·ra·phy (mī′krō fə tog′rə fē), n.

mi·cro·pho·tom·e·ter (mī′krō fō tom′i tər), n. Optics. a photometer adapted for measuring the intensity of light emitted, transmitted, or reflected by minute objects, as crystals, particles, atoms, and molecules. [MICRO- + PHYSICS] —mi′cro·phys′i·cal, adv.

mi·cro·phyte (mī′krə fīt′), n. a microscopic plant. [MICRO- + -PHYTE] —mi·cro·phyt·ic (mī′krə fit′ik), adj.

mi·cro·po·rous (mī′krə pōr′əs, -pōr′-), adj. composed of or having extremely small pores. [MICRO- + POROUS] mi·cro·print (mī′krə print′), n. a microphotograph reproduced in print for reading by a magnifying device. [MICRO- + PRINT] mi·crop·si·a (mī krop′sē ə), n. Ophthalm. a defect of vision in which objects appear to be smaller than their actual size. Also, mi·cro·pi·a (mī′krō pē′ə), mi·crop·sy (mī′krop sē). Cf. macropsia. [MICR- + -OPSIA] —mi·crop·tic (mī krop′tik), adj.

mi·cro·rle (mī′krō rīl′), n. 1. Zool. any minute opening in an ovum through which a spermatozoon can enter. See diag. under orthotropous. 2. Bot. the minute orifice in the ovary, or the integuments of an ovule. [MICRO- + Gk pýlē gate] —mi·cro·py′lar, adj.

mi·cro·py·rom·e·ter (mī′krō pī rom′i tər), n. an optical pyrometer to measure the temperature of small glowing bodies. [MICRO- + PYROMETER] mi·cro·read·er (mī′krō rē′dər), n. a device for projecting the greatly enlarged image of a microfilm or microphotograph, esp. on a ground-glass screen. [MICRO- + READER] mi·cro·re·pro·duc·tion (mī′krō rē′prə duk′shən), n. 1. a photographic image so greatly reduced in size that it can be read by the unaided eye. 2. the technique of producing such images. [MICRO- + REPRODUCTION] micros., microscopy.

mi·cro·scope (mī′krə skōp′), n. 1. an optical instrument having a combination of lenses for inspecting objects too small to be seen or too small to be seen distinctly and in detail by the naked eye. 2. (cap.) Astron. the constellation Microscopium. [< NL microscopi(um). See MICRO-, -SCOPE]

Microscope (Monocular)
A, Eyepiece; B, Adjusting screw; C, Arm; D, Tube; E, Revolving eyepiece; F, Objective; G, Stage; H, Illuminating Mirror; I Stand

mi·cro·scop·ic (mī′krə skop′ik), adj. 1. so small as to be invisible or indistinct without the use of the microscope: microscopic organisms. 2. very small; tiny. 3. of, pertaining to, or involving a microscope: microscopic investigation. 4. performing the function of or having the characteristics of a microscope: Nothing in the painting escaped his microscopic study. 5. suggestive of the use of the microscope: microscopic exactness. Also, mi′cro·scop′i·cal. [MICROSCOPE + -IC] —mi′cro·scop′i·cal·ly, adv.

Mi·cro·sco·pi·um (mī′krō skō′pē əm), n., gen. -pi·i (-pē ī′). Astron. the Microscope, a small southern constellation south of Capricorn. [< NL] mi·cros·co·py (mī kros′kə pē), n. 1. the use of the microscope. 2. microscopic investigation. [MICROSCOPE + -Y³] —mi·cros·co·pist (mī kros′kə pist), n.

mi·cro·sec·ond (mī′krō sek′ənd), n. Metric System. a unit of time equal to one millionth of a second. Symbol: μsec [MICRO- + SECOND²] mi·cro·seg·ment (mī′krō seg′mənt), n. a stretch of speech preceded and followed but not interrupted by junctures. [MICRO- + SEGMENT] —mi·cro·seg·men·tal (mī′krō seg men′tl), adj.

mi·cro·seism (mī′krə sī′zəm, -səm), n. Geol. a feeble, recurrent vibration of the ground recorded by seismographs and believed to be due to an earthquake or a storm at sea. [MICRO- + SEISM] —mi·cro·seis·mic (mī′krə sīz′mik, -sīs′-), mi′cro·seis′mi·cal, adj.

mi·cro·sie·mens (mī′krō sē′mənz, -zē′-), n. one millionth of a siemens. Symbol: μs [MICRO- + SIEMENS] mi·cro·some (mī′krə sōm′), n. Biol. a small inclusion, consisting of ribosomes and fragments of the endoplasmic reticulum, in the protoplasm of a cell. [MICRO- + -SOME³] —mi′cro·so′mal, mi′cro·so′mi·al, mi′cro·so′mic, adj.

mi·cro·spec·tro·pho·tom·e·ter (mī′krō spek′trō fō tom′i tər), n. Optics. a spectrophotometer for examining light emitted, transmitted, or reflected by minute objects. [MICRO- + SPECTROPHOTOMETER] —mi·cro·spec·tro·pho·to·met·ric (mī′krō spek′trō fō′tə met′rik), adj. —mi′cro·spec′tro·pho·tom′e·try, n.

mi·cro·spo·ran·gi·um (mī′krō spō ran′jē əm, -spō-), n., pl. -gi·a (-jē ə). Bot. a sporangium containing microspores. [MICRO- + SPORANGIUM] mi·cro·spore (mī′krə spōr′, -spōr′), n. Bot. 1. the smaller of two kinds of spores produced by some pteridophytes. 2. a pollen grain. [MICRO- + SPORE] —mi·cro·spor·ic (mī′krə spōr′ik, -spor′-), mi·cro·spor·ous (mī′krō spōr′əs, -spōr′-, mī kros′pər əs), adj.

mi·cro·spo·ro·phyll (mī′krə spōr′ə fil, -spōr′-), n. Bot. a sporophyll bearing microsporangia. [MICRO- + SPOROPHYLL] mi·cro·stat (mī′krə stat′), n. a negative of a microphotograph made directly from a negative by a copy camera. [MICRO- + (NEGA)STAT] mi·cro·steth·o·scope (mī′krō steth′ə skōp′), n. Med. a stethoscope containing an apparatus that greatly amplifies the sounds heard. [MICRO- + STETHOSCOPE] —mi·cro·steth·o·scop·ic (mī′krō steth′ə skop′ik, -stō′thə-), adj. having a very small mouth. Also, mi·cros·to·mous (mī kros′tə məs). [MICRO- + STOMATOUS] mi·cro·stress (mī′krō stres′), n. Metall. a stress in microscopic areas of a solid body, as those caused by the distortion of space lattices. [MICRO- + STRESS] mi·cro·struc·ture (mī′krə struk′chər), n. Metall. the structure of a metal or alloy as observed, after etching and polishing, under a high degree of magnification. [MICRO- + STRUCTURE] mi·cro·sty·lous (mī′krə stī′ləs), adj. Bot. having short styles. Cf. macrostylous, mesostylous. [MICRO- + STYLOUS] mi·cro·sur·ger·y (mī′krō sûr′jə rē), n. the dissection of tissue or of individual cells under a microscope or a magnifying lens. [MICRO- + SURGERY] mi·cro·switch (mī′krə swich′), n. a highly sensitive switch used in automatic-control devices. [MICRO- + SWITCH] mi·cro·therm (mī′krə thûrm′), n. a plant requiring a minimum of heat for growth. [MICRO- + THERM] —mi′cro·ther′mic, adj.

mi·cro·tome (mī′krə tōm′), n. an instrument for cutting very thin sections, as of organic tissue, for microscopic examination. [MICRO- + -TOME] mi·crot·o·my (mī krot′ə mē), n., pl. -mies. the cutting of very thinsections with the microtome. [MICRO- + -TOMY] —mi·cro·tom·ic (mī′krə tom′ik), mi′cro·tom′i·cal, adj. —mi·crot′o·mist, n.

mi·cro·tone (mī′krə tōn′), n. any musical interval smaller than a semitone, specifically, a quarter tone. [MICRO- + TONE] —mi′cro·ton′al, adj. —mi′cro·to·nal′i·ty (mī′krō tō nal′ə tē), n. —mi′cro·ton′al·ly, adv.

mi·cro·volt (mī′krə vōlt′), n. Elect. a unit of electromotive force or potential difference equal to one millionth of a volt. Symbol: μV, μv [MICRO- + VOLT] mi·cro·watt (mī′krə wot′), n. Elect. a unit of power equal to one millionth of a watt. Symbol: μW, μw [MICRO- + WATT] mi·cro·wave (mī′krō wāv′), n. an electromagnetic wave of extremely high frequency, usually one having wavelength of from 1 mm. to 50 cm. [MICRO- + WAVE] mi·crowave spectros′copy, Physics. the determination of those microwave frequencies of the microwave spectrum that are selectively absorbed by certain materials, providing information about atomic, molecular, and crystalline structure. —mi′crowave spec′troscope.

mi·crowave spec′trum, Electronics. a spectrum of electromagnetic radiations having wavelengths between 0.1 cm. and 30 cm.

mi·cro·zo·on (mī′krə zō′on, -ən), n., pl. -zo·a (-zō′ə). a microscopic animal, esp. a protozoan. [MICRO- + -ZOON] mic·tu·rate (mik′chə rāt′), v.i., -rat·ed, -rat·ing. to pass urine; urinate. [< micturi(re) (to) desire to make water (mict(us), ptp. of mingere to make water + -ur- desiderative suffix) + -ATE¹] mic·tu·ri·tion (mik′chə rish′ən), n. the act of passing urine often. [< micturi(re) (to) desire to make water (see MICTURATE) + -TION] mid¹ (mid), adj. 1. being at or near the middle point of: in mid autumn. 2. being or occupying a middle place or position in: in mid winter; the mid century. 3. Phonet. (of a vowel) articulated with an opening above the tongue relatively intermediate between those for high and low: the vowels of beet, bet, and hot are respectively high, mid, and low. Cf. high (def. 23), low (def. 31). —n. 4. Archaic. the middle. [ME, OE mid; c. OHG mitti, Icel miðr, Goth midjis, L medius, Gk mésos, Skt madhya] mid² (mid), prep. amid. Also, 'mid.

mid-, a combining form meaning "middle," "middle part of": midday; mid-Victorian. [ME, OE; see MID¹]

mid., middle.

M.I.D., Master of Industrial Design.

mid-air (mid′ âr′), n. any point in the air not contiguous with the earth or other solid surface: to catch a ball in midair. [MID- + AIR¹]

Mi·das (mī′dəs), n. 1. Class. Myth. a Phrygian king, son of Gordius, who was given by Dionysus the power of turning whatever he touched into gold. 2. a man of great wealth or great moneymaking ability. 3. an early-warning satellite for detecting and warning of enemy ballistic-missile launches.

mid-band (mid′band′), n. (in pewter work) a decorated band reinforcing a tankard at its middle. [MID- + BAND²] mid-brain (mid′brān′), n. Anat. the mesencephalon, being the middle of the three primary divisions of the embryonic brain and the anterior part of the adult brain derived from this tissue. [MID- + BRAIN] mid-course (mid′kōrs′, -kōrs′), n. Rocketry. the portion of a ballistic trajectory between the end of powered flight and the beginning of the reentry phase. [MID- + COURSE] mid-day (mid′dā′), n. 1. the middle of the day; noon or the time around noon. —adj. 2. of or pertaining to the middle part of the day. [ME; OE middæg. See MID-, DAY]

Mid-del·burg (mid′ᵊl bûrg′), n. a city in the SW Netherlands. 23,231 (1962).

mid-den (mid′ᵊn), n. 1. Brit. Dial. a dunghill or refuse heap. 2. See kitchen midden. [ME midding < Scand; cf. Dan mödding, equiv. to mög muck, dung + dynge heap, dunghill] mid-dle (mid′ᵊl), adj., n., v., -dled, -dling. —adj. 1. equally distant from the extremes or outer limits; central: the middle point of a line; the middle singer in a trio. 2. intervening or intermediate: the middle distance. 3. medium: a man of middle size. 4. (cap.) (in the history of a language) intermediate between periods classified as Old and New or Modern: Middle English. 5. Gram. (in some languages) noting a voice of verb inflection in which the subject is represented as acting on or for itself, in contrast to the active voice in which the subject acts, and the passive voice in which the subject is acted upon, as in Greek 'egrapsámēn "I wrote for myself," 'égrapsa "I wrote," 'egráphēn "I was written." 6. Naut. a. noting the spars, sails, or rigging of a middle mast. b. noting any fore-and-aft stay running at its upper end at the head of a lower middle mast or the head of some specified upper middle mast. 7. (often cap.) noting, noting, or pertaining to the middle division of the upper and lower divisions of a period, system, or the like: the middle Devonian. —n. 8. the point, part, position, etc., equidistant from the extremes or limits. 9. the middle part of the human body, esp. the waist: He gave him a punch in the middle. 10. a mean; something intermediate. 11. (in farming) the ground between two rows of plants. 12. Logic. See middle term. [ME, OE middel; c. G mittel; akin to Icel methal among. See MID¹]

—Syn. 1. equidistant, halfway, medial, midway. 8. MIDDLE, MEAN, CENTER, MIDST indicate something from which two or more other things are (approximately or exactly) equally distant. MIDDLE denotes, literally or figuratively, the point or part between two extremes or intermediate between extremes or limits in space or in time (activity): the middle of a road. CENTER, a more precise word, is ordinarily applied to a point within circular, spherical, or regular figures or to figures of similar exactness appears to exist: the center of the earth; it may also be used metaphorically (still suggesting the core of a sphere): center of attention. MEAN suggests that which a person or thing is closely surrounded or encompassed on all sides, esp. by that which is thick or dense: the midst of a storm. —Ant. 1. extreme. 8. extremity.

Middle Age, the period of man's life between youth and old age, sometimes considered as the years between 45 and 65 or thereabout. [ME] mid·dle-aged (mid′ᵊl ājd′), adj. 1. being of the age intermediate between youth and old age, roughly between 45 and 65. 2. characteristic of or suitable for persons of this age. —mid·dle-a·ged·ly (mid′ᵊl ā′jid lē, -āj′d-), adv. —mid′dle-a′ged·ness, n.

Mid′dle Ag′es, the time in European history between classical antiquity and the Italian Renaissance (from the late 5th century A.D. to about 1350; sometimes restricted to the period from 1000 to 1300 or after 1100) and sometimes extended to 1450 or 1500. [pl. of Middle Age, special use of phrase middle age]

Mid·dle Amer·i·ca, continental North America S of the U.S., comprising Mexico, Central America, and usually the West Indies. 65,912,144 (est. 1960); 1,060,118 sq. mi. —Mid·dle Amer·ican.

Mid′dle Atlan′tic States′, New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania. Also called Middle States.

mid′dle bod′y, Naut. the part of a ship's hull that has parallel or nearly parallel sides.

Mid·dle-bor·ough (mid′ᵊl bûr′ō), n. a town in SE Massachusetts. 18,438 (1960).

mid·dle-break·er (mid′ᵊl brā′kər), n. lister (def. 1). [MIDDLE + BREAKER¹] mid·dle-brow (mid′ᵊl brou′), n. 1. a person whose interest extends moderately beyond well-known aspects of culture; a person of conventional taste. 2. a person who has intellectual pretensions but fears unconventional or not widely accepted literature, painting, and the like. [MIDDLE + BROW] —mid′dle-brow′ism, n.

Mid′dle-bury Heights′ (mid′ᵊl bûr′ē), a town in N Ohio. 7282 (1960).

mid·dle-bur·y (mid′ᵊl ber′ē, -bə rē), n. a town in W Vermont. 3685 (1960).

mid·dle-bust·er (mid′ᵊl bus′tər), n. lister (def. 1). [MIDDLE + BUSTER] middle C, Music. the note indicated by the first leger line above the bass staff and the first below the treble staff.

mid′dle class′, 1. U.S. a class of people intermediate between the classes of higher and lower social rank or standing; the largest social class, usually middle class, having approximately average status, income, education, tastes, and the like. 2. (in Great Britain) the class socially and conventionally intermediate between the aristocratic class and the laboring class. 3. an intermediate class.

mid·dle-class (mid′ᵊl klas′, -klăs′), adj. of, pertaining to, or characteristic of the middle class; bourgeois: middle-class ideals.

—Syn. 1, 2. MIRTH, GLEE, HILARITY, MERRIMENT, JOLLITY, JOVIALITY refer to the gaiety characterizing people who are enjoying the companionship of others. MIRTH suggests uninhibited demonstration of gaiety, manifested briefly in laughter: uncontrolled outbursts of mirth. GLEE suggests an effervescence of high spirits or exultation, expressed in playful or boisterous gestures; it may apply also to a malicious rejoicing over mishaps to others: glee over the failure of a rival. HILARITY implies noisy and boisterous mirth, often exceeding the limits of propriety: hilarity at a funeral; caused by practical jokes. MERRIMENT suggests fun, good spirits, and good nature rather than the kind of wit and sometimes artificiality HILARITY implies: the merriment of the house resounded with music and sounds of merriment. JOLLITY and JOVIALITY may refer either to a general atmosphere of mirthful festivity or to the corresponding traits of individuals. JOLLITY implies an atmosphere of easy and convivial gaiety, a more hearty merriment or a less boisterous hilarity: The holiday was a time of jollity. JOVIALITY suggests the hearty, expansive spirit generated by people who are hearty, generous, benevolent, and high-spirited: the joviality of warm-hearted friends.

Officially, Mol·da′vian So′viet So′cialist Repub′lic, a constituent republic of the Soviet Union in Europe, which in 1940 was formed from the former autonomous republic of Moldavia and the ceded Rumanian territory of Bessarabia. 2,880,000 (1959); 13,100 sq. mi. Cap.: Kishinev. —Mol·da′vi-an, adj., n.

mold·a·vite (mōl′də vīt′), n. a natural green glass found in Bohemia and thought to be of possible meteoritic origin. [MOLDAV(IA) + -ITE¹] mold-blown (mōld′blōn′), adj. blown-molded.

mold′board′ (mōld′bôrd′, -bōrd′), n. 1. the curved metal plate in a plow, which turns over the earth from the furrow. 2. a large blade mounted on the front of a bulldozer to push loose earth. 3. a board forming one side or more of a mold for concrete. Also, esp. Brit., mouldboard. [MOLD³ + BOARD] mold′ed base′ line′, Naval Archit. a horizontal base line tangent to the lower edge of the midship floor above the keel.

mold′ed breadth′, Naval Archit. the extreme breadth of the framing of a vessel, excluding the thickness of the outside planking.

mold′ed depth′, Naval Archit. the depth of a vessel at the broadest transverse section from the top of the keel to the upper side of the main deck beam at side.

mold′ed displace′ment, Naval Archit. the displacement of a hull calculated so as to exclude the submerged volume of the shell planking or plating.

mold′ed rab′bet, Naval Archit. the vertical dimension of a hull between the molded base line and the designed summer water line. Also called fairbody draft, rabbet draft.

mold′ed for′ward, Naval Archit. the form of a hull as defined by the frames and assumed by the inner surface of the shell and deck planking or plating.

mold′ed line′, Naval Archit. a straight or curved outline used in drawing or making patterns for the molded form of a hull.

mold·er¹ (mōl′dər), v.i. 1. to turn to dust by natural decay; crumble; waste away: a house that had been left to moulder. —v.t. 2. to cause to moulder. Also, esp. Brit., moulder. [obs. mold to crumble (v. use of MOLD³) + -ER⁶] mold·er² (mōl′dər), n. 1. a person who molds; a maker of molds. 2. Print. one of a set of electrotyped plates used only for making duplicate electrotypes. Also, esp. Brit., moulder. [late ME; see MOLD¹, -ER¹] mold·ing (mōl′ding), n. 1. the act or process of molding. 2. something molded. 3. (in architecture, furniture, etc.) a. any of variously long, narrow, ornamental surfaces that are either continuous or discontinuous with uniform cross-sections for the full length and a strikingly modeled profile that casts strong shadows: used on frames, tables, etc., and certain architectural members, as cornices, stringcourses, or bases. b. a strip of wood, stone, etc., having such a surface. 4. a strip of contoured wood or other material placed just below the juncture of a wall and a ceiling. Also, esp. Brit., moulding. [ME; see MOLD¹, -ING¹] mold′ing board′, a board upon which bread is kneaded, cookies prepared, etc.

mold′ing book′, Shipbuilding. a book giving the dimensions of the framing members for a hull, excluding the planking.

mold′ing plane′, Carpentry. a plane having a blade or a number of blades profiled to form moldings.

mold′ loft′, Shipbuilding. a broad, roofed area where molds and patterns are prepared.

mold′warp (mōl′wôrp′), n. the common European mole, Talpa europaea. [ME moldwerp, OE moldweorp*, lit., earth-thrower (see MOLD³, WARP); c. OS moldwerp, MHG moltwerf] mold′ wash′, Foundry. a coating applied in liquid form to walls of a mold cavity.

mold·y (mōl′dē), adj., mold·i·er, mold·i·est. 1. overgrown or covered with mold. 2. musty, as from decay or age. Also, esp. Brit., mouldy. [ME; see MOLD², -Y¹] —mold′i·ness, n.

mole¹ (mōl), n. 1. a small, congenital spot or blemish on the human skin, usually of a dark color, slightly elevated, and often hairy. 2. a pigmented nevus. [ME; OE māl; cf. OHG meil spot, Goth mail wrinkle] mole² (mōl), n. any of various small insectivorous mammals, esp. of the family Talpidae, living chiefly underground, and having velvety fur, fossorial fore feet, and strong, fossorial forefeet. [ME molle; akin to MD, MLG mol]

Mole, Scalopus aquaticus (Total length to 8 in.; tail to 1½ in.)

mole³ (mōl), n. 1. a massive structure, esp. of stone, set up in the water, as for a breakwater or a pier. 2. an anchorage or harbor protected by such a structure. [< L mōles mass, dam, mole] mole⁴ (mōl), n. Chem. the molecular weight of a substance expressed in grams; gram molecule. Also, mol. [< G Mol, short for Molekül MOLECULE] mole⁵ (mōl), n. Pathol. a fleshy mass in the uterus formed by a hemorrhagic dead ovum. [< medical L mola, special use of mola millstone]

Mo·leh (mō′lek), n. Moloch (def. 1, 2).

mole′ crab′, a burrowing crustacean of the genus Emerita, found on sandy ocean beaches of North America, having a distinctly curved carapace. Also called sand crab.

mole′ cric′ket, any of several burrowing crickets of the family Gryllotalpidae that have fossorial forelegs and that feed on the roots of plants.

mo·lec·u·lar (mō lek′yə lər, mə-), adj. pertaining to, caused by, or consisting of molecules. [MOLECULE + -AR¹] —mo·lec′u·lar·ly, adv.

molec′ular beam′, Physics. a stream of molecules which are freed from a substance, usually a salt, by heating in a vacuum, and which pass through a narrow slit for focusing, for investigating the properties of nuclei, atoms, and molecules. Also called molec′ular ray′.

molec′ular distilla′tion, Chem. a vacuum distillation in which the distillate travels so short a distance that it is condensed before it collides with other molecules.

molec′ular film′, Physical Chem. a film or layer one molecule thick. Also called monolayer.

molec′ular for′mula, Chem. a chemical formula that indicates the kinds of atoms and the number of each kind in a compound. Cf. empirical formula, structural formula.

mo·lec·u·lar·i·ty (mō lek′yə lar′i tē, mə-), n. Chem. the number of molecules or atoms that participate in an elementary chemical reaction.

molec′ular weight′, Chem. the average weight of a molecule of an element or compound measured in units once based on the weight of one hydrogen atom taken as the standard or on $\frac{1}{16}$ the weight of an oxygen atom, but after 1961 based on $\frac{1}{12}$ the weight of the carbon-12 atom; the sum of the atomic weights of all the atoms in a molecule. Abbr.: mol. wt.

mol·e·cule (mol′ə kyo͞ol′), n. 1. Chem., Physics. the smallest physical unit of an element or compound, consisting of one or more like atoms in an element and two or more different atoms in a compound. 2. a quantity of matter, consisting of what is measured in any chosen unit, is numerically equal to the molecular weight; gram molecule. 3. any very small particle: They left not one molecule of steak for me. [earlier molecula < NL, equiv. to L mōl(ēs) mass + -cula -CULE] mole′ frac′tion, Chem. the ratio of the number of moles of a given component of a mixture to the total number of moles of all the components.

CONCISE ETYMOLOGY KEY: < , descended or derived from; > , whence; b., blend of, blended; c., cognate with; deriv., derivative; equiv., equivalent; imit., imitative; m., modification of; obl., oblique; r., replacing; s., stem; sp., spelling; trans., translation; ?, origin unknown, perhaps; *, hypothetical. See the full key inside the front cover.

mole-hill (mōl′hĭl′), n. 1. a small mound or ridge of earth raised up by moles burrowing under the ground. 2. something insignificant, esp. a small obstacle or difficulty: to make a mountain out of a molehill. [late ME; see MOLE², HILL] mole′ plow′, a plow typically having a pointed shoe at the end of a vertical support, for cutting a hollow drainage channel below the surface.

mole-skin (mōl′skin′), n. 1. the soft, deep-gray, fragile fur of the mole. 2. a stout, napped, twilled cotton fabric used for sportsmen's and laborers' clothing. 3. moleskins, a garment, esp. trousers, of this fabric. [MOLE² + SKIN] mo-lest (mə lest′), v.t. 1. to bother, interfere with, or annoy. 2. to make indecent sexual advances to. [ME molesten(e) < L molest(āre) (to) irk, deriv. of molestus irksome, equiv. to mōlēs mass, burden, trouble + -tus adj. suffix] —mo-les-ta-tion (mō′le-stā′shən, mō′le-), n. —mo-lest′er, n. —mo-lest′ful, adj.

—Syn. 1. harass, harry, disturb, trouble, plague, hector, torment, persecute.

Mo-les-tus de Molina, Luis (lo͞o′ēs).

mo-line (mō lēn′), n. Heraldry. (of a cross) having arms of equal length, split and curved back at the ends, used esp. as the cadency mark of an eighth son: a cross moline. See illus. under cross. [< AF molinel,* equiv. to molin mill + -el -EL²]

Mo-line (mō lēn′), n. a city in NW Illinois, on the Mississippi. 42,705 (1960).

Moline′ Ac′res, a town in E Missouri. 3132 (1960).

Mo-li-nism (mō′lə niz′əm, mol′ə-), n. the theological doctrine, formulated by Luis Molina, that the consent of the human will is necessary for divine grace to be effective. [MOLIN(A) + -ISM] —Mo′li-nist, n.

Mo-li-nos (mō lē′nōs; Sp. mō lē′nôs), n. Mi-guel de (mē gel′ de), c1640–c95, Spanish priest and mystic: chief exponent of quietism.

Mo-li-o-ne (mō lī′ə nē′), n. Class. Myth. the mother, by Poseidon, of Otus and Eurytus.

Mo-li-o-nes (mō lī′ə nēz′), n. Class. Myth. Ceatus and Eurytus, the twin sons of Molione, sometimes said to have been joined at the waist. They were fathered by Poseidon and reared by Actor.

mol-les-cent (mə les′ənt), adj. softening or tending to soften. [< L mollescent- (s. of mollescēns) softening (prp. of mollescere, equiv. to moll(is) soft + -escent- -ESCENT] —mol-les′cence, n.

Mol-let (mō lā′; Fr. mō le′), n. Guy (gī; Fr. gē), born 1905, French political leader.

Mol-le′ville and Nan′teuil, Aventures and Misfortunes of the Famous Moll Flanders a novel (1722) by Daniel Defoe.

Mol-lie (mol′ē), n. a girl's given name, form of Mary or Milicent. Also, Molly.

Mol′lier di′agram (mōl′yā), Thermodynamics. a graph in which the values of a substance as a function of its entropy when some physical property of the substance, as temperature or pressure, is kept at a specified constant value. [named after Richard Mollier (d. 1935), German engineer] mol-li-fy (mol′ə fī′), v.t., -fied, -fy-ing. 1. to soften in feeling or temper, as a person; pacify; appease. 2. to mitigate, alleviate, etc.: a pill to allay hunger and help one understood the situation. [ME mollifie(n) < MF mollifie(r) < L mollificāre, equiv. to L molli(s) soft + -ficāre -FY] —mol′li-fi-ca′tion, n. —mol′li-fi′er, n. —mol′li-fy′ing-ly, adv.

Mol-lus-ca (mə lus′kə), n. pl. the phylum comprising the mollusks. [< NL, neut. pl. of L molluscus soft. See MOLLESCENT] mol-luscoid (mə lus′koid), adj. belonging or pertaining to the phylum Molluscoidea, in certain classifications comprising the bryozoans and brachiopods. [< NL Molluscoid(ea). See MOLLUSCA, -OID] mol-lus-cous (mə lus′kəs), adj. soft; flabby. Pathol. any of various skin conditions characterized by soft, rounded tumors. Cf. molluscum contagiosum. [< NL, L: fungus. n. use of neut. of molluscus soft. See MOLLESCENT + -ous] —mol-lus′coid, adj.

mol-lus′cum con-ta-gi-o′sum (kən tā′jē ō′səm), Pathol. an infectious form of molluscum, caused by a filterable virus. Also called mol-lus′cum pon′ti-lis-ate (pon′tə lis′āt, -it). [< NL: contagious molluscum] mol-lusk (mol′əsk), n. any invertebrate of the phylum Mollusca, typically having a calcareous shell of one, two, or more pieces, wholly or partly enclose the soft, unsegmented body, including the chitons, snails, bivalves, squids, octopuses, etc. Also, mol′lusc. [< NL; see MOLLUSCA] —mol-lus′can (mə lus′kən), adj., n. —mol-lus′kan, adj.

Moll′wei-de projec′tion (mōl′vī də). See homolographic projection. [named after K. B. Mollweide (1774–1825), German astronomer and mathematician] mol-ly (mol′ē), n., pl. -lies. any live-bearing, fresh-water fish of the genus Mollienisia, often kept in aquariums. [shortened from NL Mollienisia, irreg. named after Count F.N. Mollien (1758–1850); see -IA]

Mol-ly (mol′ē), n., pl. -lies. Trademark. an expansion bolt having a split, sleevelike sheath threaded at one end so that when inserted snugly into masonry the turning of the bolt draws the ends of the sheath together, thus spreading the sides.

Mol-ly (mol′ē), n. a girl's given name, form of Mary or Milicent. Also, Mollie.

mol-ly-cod-dle (mol′ē kod′dl), n., v., -dled, -dling. —n. 1. a man or boy who is used to being coddled; a milksop. —v.t., v.i. 2. to coddle; pamper. [MOLLY + CODDLE] —mol′ly-cod′dler, n.

Mol-ly Ma-guire (mol′ē mə gwīr′), 1. Irish Hist. a member of a secret terrorist society organized in 1843 to prevent evictions by the government: so called because the members disguised themselves as women. 2. a member of a former secret association that terrorized the mine operators' agencies in an effort to get relief from oppressive conditions in the anthracite coal-mining regions of Pennsylvania between 1865 and 1877.

Mo-los-sus (mə los′əs), n. Class Myth. the son of Neoptolemus and Andromache.

Mo-lo-tov (mol′ə tôf′, -tof′, mōl′-; Russ. mô′lo tof), n. 1. Vya-che-slav Mi-khai-lo-vich (vyä′chə släf′ mē khī′lō vich), (Vyacheslav Mikhailovich Skryabin), born 1890, Russian statesman, commissar of foreign affairs 1939–49, 1953–56. 2. Perm.

Mo-lotov cock′tail, a crude incendiary grenade consisting of a bottle filled with a flammable liquid and a saturated cloth wick in the mouth, used esp. by guerrillas originally for setting fire to enemy tanks. [named after V. M. MOLOTOV] molt (mōlt), v.i. 1. (of birds, insects, reptiles, etc.) to cast or shed feathers, skin, or the like, that will be succeeded by a new growth. —v.t. 2. to cast or shed (feathers, skin, etc.) in the process of renewal. —n. 3. the act, process, or season of moulting. 4. that which is dropped in moulting. Also, esp. Brit., moult. [earlier moult (with analogical -l- as in could, ME moulten, OE -mūltian to change (in bī-mūltian to exchange for) < L mūtāre to change; see MUTATE] —molt′er, n.

molt-en (mōl′tən), v. 1. a pp. of melt. —adj. 2. liquefied by heat; in a state of fusion: molten lead; molten lava. 3. produced by melting and casting: a molten image. [ME; old ptp. of MELT] —molt′en-ly, adv.

Molt-ke (mōlt′kə), n. 1. Hel-muth Karl (hel′mo͝ot kärl), 1800–91, Prussian field marshal: chief of staff 1858–88. 2. his nephew, Helmuth Johann Ludwig (hĭl′nəs), Count von, 1848–1916, German general: chief of staff 1906–14. 3. a crater in the fourth quadrant of the face of the moon: about 1 mi. in diameter.

Mo-luc′ca Is′lands, Spice Islands.

Mo-lus (mō′ləs), n. Class. Myth. a son of Ares and Demonice, father of Meriones.

mol-vi (mōl′vē), n. mauve.

mol-y (mol′ē), n. molybdenum.

mo-ly (mō′lē), n., pl. -lies. Class. Myth. an herb given to Odysseus by Hermes to counteract the spells of Circe. [< L < Gk] mo-lyb-date (mə lib′dāt), n. Chem. a salt of any molybdic acid. [MOLYBD(IC) + -ATE²] mo-lyb-de-nite (mə lib′də nīt′, mol′ib dē′nīt), n. a soft, graphitelike mineral, molybdenum sulfide, MoS_2, in hexagonal massive scales: the principal ore of molybdenum. [obs. molybden(a) MOLYBDENUM + -ITE¹] mo-lyb-de-nous (mə lib′də nəs, mol′ib dē′nəs), adj. Chem. containing bivalent molybdenum. [MOLYBDENUM] + -OUS] mo-lyb-de-num (mə lib′dē nəm, mol′ib dē′nəm), n. Chem. a relatively high-melting metal element, used as an alloy with iron in making hard, high-speed cutting tools. Symbol: Mo; at. wt.: 95.94; at. no.: 42; sp. gr.: 10.2. [< NL, var. of earlier molybdēna < L molybdaena < Gk molýbdaina galena, equiv. to mólybd(os) lead + -aina suffix of appurtenance] molyb′denum trox′ide, Chem. a white, crystalline, sparingly water-soluble powder, MoO_3, used chiefly in the manufacture of molybdenum compounds. Also called molybdic anhydride, molybdic oxide.

mo-lyb-dic (mə lib′dik), adj. Chem. of or containing molybdenum, esp. in its higher valences. [MOLYBD(ENUM) + -IC] molyb′dic anhy′dride, Chem. See molybdenum trioxide.

molyb′dic ox′ide, Chem. See molybdenum trioxide.

mo-lyb-dous (mə lib′dəs), adj. Chem. of or containing molybdenum, esp. in its lower valences. [MOLYBD(ENUM) + -OUS]

mom (mom), n. Informal. mother. [short for MOMMA]

Mom-ba-sa (mom bä′sä), -bas′ə), n. 1. an island in S Kenya. 2. a seaport on this island. 179,575 (1962).

mome (mōm), n. Archaic. a fool; blockhead. [?]

Mo-mence (mō mens′), n. a town in NE Illinois. 2949 (1960).

mo-ment (mō′mənt), n. 1. an indefinitely short space of time; an instant: I'll be with you in a moment. 2. the present or any other particular instant (usually prec. by the): He is busy at the moment. 3. a definite period or stage, as in a course of events: at this moment in history's progress. 4. importance or consequence: a decision of great moment. 5. Statistics. the mean or expected value of the product formed by multiplying together a set of one or more variates or variables each to a specified power. 6. Philos. a. an aspect of a thing. b. Obs. an essential or constituent factor. 7. Mech. a. a tendency to produce motion, esp. about an axis. b. the product of a physical quantity and its perpendicular distance from an axis: moment of mass; moment of momentum. [ME < L momentum space of time, motion, hence, influence, importance, equiv. to mō- (ptp. s. of movēre to MOVE) + -mentum -MENT]

—Syn. 1. second, jiffy, trice; flash, twinkling. See minute¹. 4. significance, weight, gravity.

mo-men-tar-i-ly (mō′mən târ′ə lē, mō′mən ter′-), adv. 1. for a moment: to pause momentarily. 2. every moment; from moment to moment: Our danger is increasing momentarily. 3. at any moment: expected to occur momentarily. [MOMENTARY + -LY] mo-men-tar-y (mō′mən ter′ē), adj. 1. lasting but a moment; very brief: a momentary glimpse. 2. occurring at any moment: to live in fear of momentary annihilation. 3. Rare. effective or recurring at every moment; constant. [< L mōmentāri(us). See MOMENT, -ARY] —mo′men-tar′i-ness, n.

mo-ment-ly (mō′mənt lē), adv. 1. every moment; from moment to moment. 2. for a moment; momentarily. [MOMENT + -LY] mo′ment of iner′tia, Physics. the sum of the products of the mass and the square of the perpendicular distance to the axis of rotation of each particle in a body rotating about an axis.

mo′ment of momen′tum, Physics. See angular momentum.

mo′ment of sail′, Naval Archit. the product of a given area of sail, taken as the maximum safe area, and the vertical distance from the center of effort and the center of lateral resistance.

moment of stabil′ity, Naval Archit. See righting moment.

mo′ment of truth′, 1. the moment in a bullfight at which the matador is about to make the kill. 2. the moment at which one's courage, skill, etc., is put to an extreme test; critical moment.

mo-men-tous (mō men′təs), adj. of great or far-reaching importance or consequence: a momentous day in history. [MOMENT + -OUS] —mo-men′tous-ly, adv. —mo-men′tous-ness, n.

—Syn. vital, critical, crucial, serious. See heavy. —Ant. trivial, trifling.

mo-men-tum (mō men′təm), n., pl. -ta (-tə), -tums. 1. force or speed of movement; impetus: The car gained momentum as it began to go downhill. 2. Mech. a quantity expressing the motion of a body or system, equal to the product of the mass of a body and its velocity, and for a system equal to the vector sum of the products of mass and velocity of each particle in the system. 3. Philos. moment (def. 6). [< L; see MOMENT] mom-ism (mom′iz əm), n. (sometimes cap.) adulation of the mother and domination by a mother-image; excessive dependence on or devotion to protection, resulting in absence or loss of maturity and independence. [MOM + -ISM] mom-ma (mom′ə), n. mama.

mom-me (mom′ē), n., pl. mom-me. a Japanese unit of weight equal to 3.75 grams. [< Jap]

Momm-sen (mom′sən; Ger. môm′zən), n. The-o-dor (tā′ō dôr′), 1817–1903, German classical historian: Nobel prize for literature 1902.

Mom-pós (mōm pōs′), n. a city in NW Colombia, on the Magdalena. 9192 (1951).

Mom-po-u (mōm po͞o′), n. Fe-de-ri-co (fe′the rē′kō), born 1893, Spanish composer.

mom-ser (mom′zər), n. mamzer. Also, mom′zer.

Mo-mus (mō′məs), n., pl. -mus-es, -mi (-mī) for 2. 1. Also, Mo-mos (mō′mos). Class. Myth. the god of censure and ridicule. 2. (l.c.) a faultfinder; a carping critic. [< L < Gk Mómos, special use of mômos blame, ridicule] mon (mon), n. Scot. and North Eng. man.

Mon (mən), n. the Austroasiatic language used chiefly in Burma in the vicinity of Moulmein.

mon-, var. of mono- before a vowel: monacid.

Mon., 1. Monday. 2. Monsignor.

mon., 1. monastery. 2. monetary.

Mo-na (mō′nə), n. a girl's given name.

Mo-na-ca (mə nä′kə), n. a town in W Pennsylvania. 3394 (1960).

mon-ac-e-tin (mon as′i tən, -as′ī tin), n. acetin. [MON- + ACETIN] mon-a-chal (mon′ə kəl), adj. pertaining to or characteristic of monks or their life; monastic. [< ML monachāl(is), equiv. to LL monach(us) MONK + -ālis -AL¹] mon-a-chism (mon′ə kiz′əm), n. monasticism. [< LL monach(us) MONK + -ISM] —mon′a-chist, adj.

mon-ac-id (mon as′id), adj., n. Chem. monoacid.

ni-o-bic (nī ō′bĭk, -ŏb′ĭk), adj. Chem. 1. of or pertaining to niobium. 2. of or derived from niobic acid. [NIOB(IUM) + -IC] nio/bic ac′id, Chem. a white, water-insoluble solid, $Nb_2O_5 \cdot nH_2O$.

Ni-o-bid (nī′ə bĭd), n. Class. Myth. any of the children of Niobe.

ni-o-bi-um (nī ō′bē əm), n. Chem. a steel-gray metallic element resembling tantalum in its chemical properties; used chiefly in alloy steels. Symbol: Nb; at. no.: 41; at. wt.: 92.906; sp. gr.: 8.4 at 20°C. [< NL; see NIOBE, -IUM] ni-o-bous (nī ō′bəs), adj. 1. Chem. containing trivalent niobium, as niobous chloride, $NbCl_3$. 2. of or pertaining to niobium. [NIOB(IUM) + -OUS]

Ni-o-brar-a (nī′ə brăr′ə), n. a river flowing E from E Wyoming through Nebraska to the Missouri. 431 mi. long.

Niord (nyōrd), n. Scand. Myth. the god of winds, navigation, and prosperity, and the father of Frey and Freya; king of the Vanir. Also, Njord, Njorth.

Niort (nyōr), n. a city in and the capital of Deux-Sèvres, in W France. 39,165 (1962).

nip¹ (nip), v., nipped, nip·ping. —v.t. 1. to compress tightly between two surfaces or points; pinch; bite. 2. to break off by pinching, biting, or snipping (usually fol. by off): He nipped off a piece of steak and gave it to the dog. 3. to check in growth or development. 4. to affect sharply and painfully or injuriously, as cold does: a cold wind that nips the fingers. 5. Informal. to snatch away suddenly. 6. Informal. to steal. 7. Naut. a. (of ice) to press (a vessel) from opposite sides. b. to seize (a haul rope) to another rope, as an anchor cable to a messenger from a capstan. c. to hold (an anchor cable) after partial heaving in while a messenger from a capstan is attached to heave it in farther. —v.i. 8. Chiefly Brit. to move stealthily; sneak away; flee (often fol. by away). 9. nip in the bud. See bud (def. 6). —n. 10. act of nipping; a pinch: The dog took several nips at the bone. 11. a small quantity to be bitten off. 12. a biting quality, as in cold or frosty air: There's a nip in the air this morning. 13. sharp cold; a sharp touch of frost: The trees had felt the first nip. 14. the part of the biting taste or tang in cheese. 15. a small bit or quantity of anything: a nip of bread to stave off hunger. 16. Naut. a. an abrupt turn or twist in a rope. b. a part of a rope or chain locked by a gripping or jammer. Usually, nips. nipper (def. 2). 18. nip and tuck, U.S. Informal. (in a race or other contest) with one competitor equally ahead of the other at one time or another; very close: It was nip and tuck as to which sailboat would reach port first. [ME nyppe to pinch < Scand; cf. Icel hnippa to poke (someone) in the ribs] nip² (nip), n., v., nipped, nip·ping. —n. 1. a small drink of liquor: a person who relishes an occasional nip. 2. Brit. a small tankard of ale, about a half pint. 3. Chiefly Brit. split (def. 28). —v.t., v.i. 4. to drink (liquor), esp. in small sips or repeatedly. [short for nipperkin vessel holding half-pint or less, small amount, ? < D; cf. nippertje nip and tuck; see -KIN]

Nip (nip), n., adj. Offensive and Disparaging. Japanese. [short form] ni·pa (nē′pə, nī′-), n. a palm, Nipa fruticans, of the East Indies, Philippines, etc., whose foliage is used for thatching, basketry, etc. [< NL < Malay nipah] nip·a·brep·si·a (nip′ə brep′sē ə), n. See snow blindness. [< Gk nípa(), equiv. to Gk nípha(n) snow + *a-*A-[5] + blepsía sight]

Nip·is·sing (nip′ĭ sing), n. a lake in SE Canada, in Ontario, N of Georgian Bay. 330 sq. mi.

Nip·muck (nip′muk), n., pl. -mucks, (esp. collectively) -muck. a member of an Algonquian Indian people living in the vicinity of Worcester, Massachusetts.

nip·per (nip′ər), n. 1. one who or that which nips. 2. Usually, nippers. a device for nipping, as pincers or forceps. 3. one of the front teeth in crustaceans. 4. Metalworking. dog (def. 14). 5. nippers, Slang. handcuffs. 6. Chiefly Brit. Informal. a. a small boy. b. a costermonger's helper. 7. Naut. a. a short rope for seizing an anchor cable to a messenger from a capstan. b. a short iron clamp for seizing an anchor chain to a chain messenger from a capstan or for securing it in the hawse pipe. c. a lanyard for a stay, used to hold (an anchor cable) in place after partial heaving in while a messenger from a capstan is attached to heave it in farther. [ME; see nip¹, -ER¹] nip·ping (nip′ing), adj. 1. characterized by nips; being one who or that which nips. 2. sharp or biting, as cold. 3. (of a person, remark, tone, etc.) sarcastic; caustic; bitter. 4. quick. -ING[2] —nip′ping·ly, adv.

nip·ple (nip′əl), n. 1. a protuberance of the mamma or breast where, in the female, the milk ducts discharge; teat. 2. something resembling it, as the mouthpiece of a nursing bottle, a sugar-tit, pacifier, etc. 3. a short piece of pipe with thread on each end, used for joining valves. [OE nypel proboscis, orig., projecting part; akin to Dan nip point] —nip′ple-less, adj.

Nip·pon (ni pŏn′, Eng. ni pon′, nip′on), n. a Japanese name for Japan.

Nippon′ chrysan′themum, a perennial garden plant, Chrysanthemum nipponicum, of Japan, having thickish, blunt leaves and solitary, white flowers. Also called Nippon′ dai′sy.

Nip·pon·ese (nip′ə nēz′, -nēs′), n., pl. -ese, adj. Japanese. [Nippon + -ESE] —Nip·pon·ism (nip′ə-niz′əm), n.

Nip·pur (nip pŏŏr′), n. an ancient Sumerian and Babylonian city in SE Iraq: partially excavated.

nip·py (nip′ē), adj., -pi·er, -pi·est. 1. tending to nip; sharp; biting: morning air that feels a bit nippy; a nippy taste. 2. Chiefly Brit. Informal. nimble; agile. [NIP[1] + -Y[1]]

NIRA, National Industrial Recovery Act. Also, N.I.R.A.

Ni·re·us (nī′rē əs, -rōs), n. (in the Iliad) a son of Aglaia, who, after Achilles, was the handsomest Greek warrior at Troy.

Nir·ma·lin (nir mä′lin), n. one of a group of Sikh ascetics devoted to the study of sacred writings.

nir·va·na (nir vä′nə, -van′ə, nər-), n. 1. (often cap.) Buddhism, Buddhism, Jainism. freedom from the endless cycle of personal reincarnations, with their consequent suffering, as a result of the extinction of individual passion, hatred, and delusion; attained by the Arhat as his goal, but postponed by the Bodhisattva. 2. (cap.) Hinduism. salvation through the union of Atman with Brahma; Moksha. 3. a place or state characterized by freedom from or oblivion to pain, injury, and the external world. [< Skt nirvāṇa a blowing out] —nir·va′nic, adj.

Nis (nēsh), n. a city in SE Serbia, in E Yugoslavia: a former capital of Serbia. 57,000 (est. 1959). Also, Niš.

Ni·san (nis′ən; Heb. nē sän′), n. a month of the Jewish calendar. Also, Nissan. Cf. Jewish calendar.

Ni·sei (nē′sā′), n., pl. -sei. a person of Japanese descent, born and educated in the U.S. (distinguished from Kibei). Also, ni′sei′. Cf. Issei, Sansei. [< Jap, equiv. to ni second + sei generation]

Ni·sha·pur (nē′shə pŏŏr′), n. a town in NE Iran: the birthplace of Omar Khayyám. 24,270 (est. 1949).

Ni·shi·no·mi·ya (nē′shē nō′mē yä′), n. a city on S Honshu, in central Japan. 262,608 (1964).

nisi (nī′sī), conj. unless (used, esp. in law, to indicate that a judgment or decree will become final on a particular date unless set aside or invalidated by certain specified contingencies): to grant a decree nisi. [< L nīsi if not, unless] ni·si pri·us (nī′sī prī′əs), Law. 1. Also called ni′si pri′us court′, a trial court for the hearing of civil cases before a judge and jury. 2. Brit. Law. a. a writ commanding a sheriff or a county to summon a jury and bring it to the court in Westminster on a certain day, unless the judges of assizes previously came to that county. b. the clause with the words nisi prius introducing this writ. c. the system of judicial circuits to which judges are assigned for local trials of civil and criminal cases. [< L; lit., unless previously, unless first]

Nis·san (nis′ən; Heb. nē sän′), n. Nisan.

Nis′sen hut′ (nis′ən), a prefabricated shelter with the shape of a long, slightly flattened cylinder, insulated, esp. for military troops in arctic regions; Quonset hut. [named after P.N. Nissen (1871–1930), British military engineer who invented it]

Nis·tru (nēs′trŏŏ), n. Rumanian name of Dniester.

nis·us (nis′əs), n., pl. -sus. a striving toward a particular goal or attainment; effort; impulse. [< L: effort, equiv. to nīs-, ptp. s. of nīti to exert oneself + -us n. suffix (4th decl.)]

Ni·sus (nī′səs), n. 1. Class. Myth. a son of Pandion whose life and fate of his kingdom depended upon a lock of hair on his head. 2. Rom. Legend. the son of Hyrtacus and the nymph Ida: a companion of Aeneas on the flight from Troy.

nit[1] (nit), n. 1. the egg of a parasitic insect, esp. of a louse, often attached to a hair or a fiber of clothing. 2. the young of such an insect. [ME nite, OE hnitu, c. D neet, G Niss, Icel gnit] nit[2] (nit), n. a unit of luminous intensity equal to one candela per square meter. Abbr.: nt [< L nit(or) brightness]

Ni·ta (nē′tä; Sp. nē′tä), n. a girl's given name, form of Juanita.

nitch·ie (nich′ē, nē′chē), n. Chiefly Canadian Dial. Disparaging. an Indian. [?]

ni·ter (nī′tər), n. potassium nitrate, a white salt, KNO_3, used in the manufacture of gunpowder, fireworks, etc.; saltpeter. 2. sodium nitrate, a white salt, $NaNO_3$, used as a fertilizer, in dynamite, etc.; Chile saltpeter. Also, nitre. [ME nitre, niter, [late ME nitre < L nitrum < Gk nítron natron]

Ni·te·roi (nē′tə roi′), n. a seaport in and the capital of Rio de Janeiro state, in SE Brazil. 229,025 (1960). Also, Nictheroy.

nit·id (nit′id), adj. bright; lustrous. [< L nītidus] shining, bright, equiv. to nīt(ēre) (to) glisten + -idus -ID[4]] —nit·id·i·ty (ni tid′ĭ tē), n.

—nit′id·ly, adv. —nit′id·ness, n. Canadian. See jack light.

ni·ton (nī′ton), n. (formerly) radon. Symbol: Nt [< L nit(ēre) (to) shine + Gk -on neut. suffix] nit·pick (nit′pik′), v.i. Informal. to be excessively concerned with inconsequential details. [NIT[1] + PICK[1]] nit·ra (nī′trə), n. nitre before a vowel: nitrate.

Ni·tral·loy (nī′trə loi′), n. Trademark. a type of nitriding steel.

ni·tra·mine (nī′trə mēn′, -min′), n. Chem. 1. any of a class of compounds containing the nitramino group. 2. tetryl. [NITR- + AMINE] ni·tra·mi·no (nī′trə mē′nō, -min′ō), adj. Chem. containing the nitramino group. [NITR- + AMINO] nitrami′no group′, Chem. the univalent group, $-NHNO_2$, derived from nitramine.

ni·tran (nī′tran), n. a nitrate fertilizer.

ni·tral·loy (nī′trə loi′), n. Trademark. a type of nitriding steel.

ni·tra·mine (nī′trə mēn′, -min′), n. Chem. 1. any of a class of compounds containing the nitramino group. 2. tetryl. [NITR- + AMINE]

ni·tra·mi·no (nī′trə mē′nō, -min′ō), adj. Chem. containing the nitramino group. [NITR- + AMINO]

ni·tran (nī′tran), n. a nitrate fertilizer.

ni·trate (nī′trāt), n., v., -trat·ed, -trat·ing. —n. 1. Chem. a salt or ester of nitric acid, or any compound containing the univalent group $-ONO_2$ or $-NO_3$. 2. Photography. a silver salt used in sensitizing emulsions. —v.t. 3. to treat with nitric acid or a nitrate. 4. to convert into a nitrate. [NITR- + -ATE[2]] —ni·tra′tion, n.

ni·tre (nī′tər), n. Chiefly Brit. niter.

ni·tric (nī′trik), adj. 1. Chem. containing nitrogen, usually in the pentavalent state. 2. of or pertaining to niter. [NITR- + -IC, modeled on D nitrique] nitric′ ac′id, a colorless or yellowish, fuming, suffocating, caustic, corrosive, water-soluble liquid, HNO_3, having powerful oxidizing properties, usually obtained from ammonia or from Chile saltpeter: used chiefly in the manufacture of explosives, fertilizers, and in organic synthesis. Also called aqua fortis.

ni·tric bac·te′ri·a nitrobacteria.

ni·tric e′ther, Chem. See ethyl nitrate.

ni·tric ox′ide, Chem. a colorless, slightly water-soluble gas, NO, formed by the action of dilute nitric acid on copper: used chiefly as an intermediate in the manufacture of nitric acid from ammonia.

ni·tride (nī′trīd, -trid), n. Chem. a compound, containing nitrogen and one of which the more electronegative one is nitrogen. [NIT(R)- + -IDE] ni·trid·ing (nī′trī dĭng), n. Metall. a process of case-hardening in which nitrogen is introduced into the metal by exposure at high temperature in the presence of a nitrogen source. [NITRIDE + -ING[1]] ni′triding steel′, any steel suitable for casehardening by nitriding.

ni·tri·fi·ca·tion (nī′trə fə kā′shən), n. 1. the act of nitrifying. 2. the introduction of a nitro group into an organic compound, usually by means of mixed nitric and sulfuric acids. [NITR- + -I- + -FICATION] ni·tri·fi·er (nī′trə fī′ər), n. one who or that which nitrifies.

ni·tri·fy (nī′trə fī′), v.t., fied, -fy·ing. 1. to oxidize (ammonia, ammonium compounds, or atmospheric nitrogen) to nitrites, nitrates, or their respective acids, esp. by bacterial action. 2. to impregnate with nitrogen or nitrogen compounds. 3. to treat or combine with nitrogen or its compounds. 4. Obs. to convert into niter. [< F nitrifier. See NITRE, -FY] —ni′tri·fi′a·ble, adj.

ni·trile (nī′trīl, -trĭl), n. Chem. any of a class of organic compounds with the general formula $RC{\equiv}N$. [NITR- + -ILE] ni·trite (nī′trīt), n. Chem. a salt or ester of nitrous acid. [NITR- + -ITE[1]] ni·tro (nī′trō), adj. Chem. containing the nitro group. [short for NITRO-] ni·tro (nī′trō), n. a town in W West Virginia. 6894 (1960).

nitro-, Chem. 1. a combining form indicating the nitro group: nitroglycerin. 2. (erroneously) a combining form indicating nitrous oxide: nitrocellulose. Also, esp. before a vowel, nitr-. [comb. form of Gk nítron. See NITRE] ni·tro·bac·te·ri·a (nī′trō bak tēr′ē ə), n.pl., sing. -te·ri·um (-tēr′ē əm), certain bacteria in the soil involved in nitrifying processes. [NITRO- + BACTERIA] ni·tro·ben·zene (nī′trō ben′zēn, -ben zēn′), n. Chem. a pale-yellow, toxic, water-soluble liquid, $C_6H_5NO_2$, produced by nitrating benzene: used chiefly in the manufacture of aniline. Also called ni·tro·ben·zol (nī′trō ben′zōl, -zôl, -zol), essence of mirbane, oil of mirbane. [NITRO- + BENZENE] ni·tro·cel·lu·lose (nī′trō sel′yə lōs′), n. Chem. See cellulose nitrate. [NITRO- + CELLULOSE] —ni′tro·cel′lu·los′ic, adj.

ni·tro·chlo·ro·form (nī′trō klôr′ə fôrm′, -klōr′-), n. Chem. chloropicrin. [NITRO- + CHLOROFORM] ni·tro·gen (nī′trə jən), n. Chem. a colorless, odorless, gaseous element that constitutes about four fifths of the volume of the atmosphere and is present in combined form in all vegetable and animal tissues: used in the manufacture of ammonia, nitric acid, cyanide, explosives, fertilizer, dyes, as a cooling agent, etc. Symbol: N; at. wt.: 14.0067; at. no.: 7. [< F nitrogène. See NITRO-, -GEN] ni·trogen cy′cle, the continuous sequence of changes by which atmospheric nitrogen and nitrogenous compounds in the soil are interconverted, as by nitrification and nitrogen fixation, into substances that can be utilized by green plants, the substances returning to their previous state after the plants decay, and by denitrification into substances that can be utilized by proteins.

ni·trogen diox′ide, Chem. a reddish-brown, highly poisonous gas, NO_2, used as an intermediate in the manufacture of nitric and sulfuric acids, and as a nitrating and oxidizing agent.

ni·trogen fix′a·tion, n. any process of combining atmospheric nitrogen with other elements, either by chemical means or by bacterial action: used chiefly in the preparation of fertilizers and explosives, etc. 2. this process as performed by certain bacteria found in the nodules of leguminous plants, which make the resulting nitrogenous compounds available to their host plants.

ni·trogen fix′er, any of various microorganisms in the soil involved in the process of nitrogen fixation.

ni·trogen-fix·ing bac′te·ri·a (nī′trə jən fik′sing), those involved in or aiding the process of nitrogen fixation.

ni·trog·en-ise (nī trōj′ə nīz′), v.t., -ised, -is·ing. Chiefly Brit. nitrogenize. —ni·trog′en-i·sa′tion, n.

ni·trog·en-ize (nī′trə jə nīz′, ni trōj′ə-), v.t., -ized, -iz·ing. to combine or impregnate or add nitrogenous material to. [NITROGEN + -IZE] —ni′tro·gen-i·za′tion, ni′tro·ge·na′tion, n.

ni·trogen mus′tard, Chem. any of the class of poisonous, blistering compounds, as $(ClCH_2CH_2)_2NCH_3$, analogous in composition to mustard gas but containing nitrogen instead of sulfur: used in the treatment of some malignant diseases, as cancer.

ni′trogen narco′sis. See caisson disease.

ni·trog·e·nous (nī trōj′ə nəs), adj. containing nitrogen. [NITROGEN + -OUS] ni·trogen tet·rox′ide, Chem. a poisonous compound, N_2O_4, existing as a colorless, water-soluble solid, as a yellow liquid, or as a red-brown gas: used chiefly as an oxidizer, esp. in rocket fuels, as a nitrating agent, and as an intermediate in the manufacture of nitric acid.

ni·tro·gly·cer·in (nī′trō glis′ər in), n. Chem., Pharm. a colorless, thick, oily, flammable, highly explosive, water-insoluble liquid, $C_3H_5(ONO_2)_3CH_2NO_3$, prepared from glycerol with nitric and sulfuric acids: used chiefly as a constituent of dynamite and other explosives, in rocket propellants, and in medicine as a vasodilator in the form of alcoholic solutions. Also, ni·tro·gly·cer·ine (nī′trō glis′ər in, -ə rēn′). Also called glonoin, glyceryl trinitrate, trinitroglycerin. [NITRO- + GLYCERIN] ni′tro group′ (nī′trō), Chem. the univalent group, $-NO_2$. Also called nitro.

ni′tro-hy·dro·chlo′ric ac′id (nī′trō hī′drə klôr′ik, -klōr′-, nī′-), Chem. See aqua regia. [NITRO- + HYDROCHLORIC ACID] ni·trol·ic (nī trol′ik), adj. Chem. of or noting a series of acids of the type, $RC(=NOH)NO_2$, whose salts form deep-red solutions. [NITR- + -OL[1] + -IC] ni·tro·man·ni·tol (nī′trō man′ĭ tôl′, -tōl′, -tol′), n. Chem. See mannitol hexanitrate. Also, ni·tro-man·nite (nī′trō man′īt). [NITRO- + MANNITOL] ni·tro·me·sol (nī′trō mē′sôl, -sōl, -sol), n. Chem. brownish-yellow or tan, water-insoluble, water-insoluble powder, $C_8H_7(CH_3)(NO_2)(OH_2)$: used in alkaline solution chiefly as an antiseptic. [NITRO- + MER(CURIC) + (CRE)SOL] ni·trom·e·ter (nī trom′ĭ tər), n. an apparatus for determining the amount of nitrogen or nitrogen compounds in a substance or mixture. [NITRO- + -METER] —ni·tro·met·ric (nī′trə met′rik), adj.

ni·tro·meth·ane (nī′trō meth′ān), n. Chem. a colorless, oily, slightly water-soluble, poisonous liquid, CH_3NO_2, used chiefly as a solvent and in organic synthesis. [NITRO- + METHANE] ni·tro·par·af·fin (nī′trō par′ə fin), n. Chem. any of a class of compounds derived from the methane series replacing a hydrogen atom by the nitro group. [NITRO- + PARAFFIN] ni·tro·phe·nol (nī′trə fē′nôl, -nōl, -nol), n. Chem. 1. any compound derived from phenol by the replacement of one or more of its ring hydrogen atoms by the nitro group. 2. specifically, a yellowish, crystalline compound of such a derivative, having the formula $O_2NC_6H_4OH$, occurring in yellow (ortho-nitrophenol), pale-yellow (meta-nitrophenol), and yellowish (para-nitrophenol) solids, used chiefly as intermediates in organic synthesis and as indicators. [NITRO- + PHENOL] ni′tro rad′ical. See nitro group.

ni·tros-a·mine (nī′trōs ə mēn′, -am′in), n. Chem.

any of a series of compounds with the type formula $RaNNO$. [NITROS- + -AMINE] ni·tro·so (nī trō′sō), adj. Chem. (esp. of organic compounds) containing the nitroso group; nitrosyl. [special use of NITROSO-] nitroso-, a combining form of the nitroso group: nitrosobenzene. Also, esp. before a vowel, nitros-. [< L nitrōs(us) full of natron, equiv. to nitr(um) native soda, natron + -ōsus -OSE¹] —Usage -OSE² ni·tro·so·ben·zene (nī trō′sō ben′zēn, -ben zēn′), n. Chem. a blue, crystalline, water-insoluble solid, C_6H_5NO, that is green as a molten solid or in solution. [NITROSO- + BENZENE] nitro/so group/, Chem. the univalent group, O=N–. Also called nitro/so rad/ical.

ni·tro·syl (nī′trə sil, nī′trō sil′, nī trō′sil), adj. Chem. nitroso. [NITR(OGEN) + -O- + -YL] ni·tro·syl-sul·fu·ric (nī′trō sil sul fyo͝or′ik), adj. Chem. of or derived from nitrosylsulfuric acid. Also, ni/tro-syl-sul-phu/ric. [NITROSYL + SULFURIC] nitrosylsulfuric acid, Chem. a clear, straw-colored, oily, corrosive liquid, $NOHSO_4$, used chiefly in the manufacture of dyes. [NITROSYL + SULFURIC ACID] ni·tro·tri·chlo·ro·meth·ane (nī′trō trī klôr′ə meth′ān, -klōr′-), n. Chem. chloropicrin. [NITRO- + TRICHLOROMETHANE] ni·trous (nī′trəs), adj. Chem. 1. pertaining to compounds obtained from niter, usually containing less oxygen than corresponding nitric compounds. 2. containing nitrogen, usually in the trivalent state. [< L nitrōsus full of natron. See NITROSO-] nitrous ac/id, Chem. an acid, HNO_2, known only in solution.

ni/trous bacte/ria, nitrobacteria that convert ammonia derivatives into nitrites by oxidation.

ni/trous e/ther, Chem. See ethyl nitrite.

Nit·tel·mo (nit′əl mō′), Fran·ces·co Sa·ve·ri·o (fräN ches′kō sä′ve′ryō), 1868–1953, Italian lawyer, statesman, and economist.

nit·ty (nit′ē), adj., -ti·er, -ti·est. full of nits. [NIT + -Y¹] nit·wit (nit′wit′), n. a slow-witted or foolish person. [nit (< G; dial. var. of nicht not) + WIT]

Ni·u·e (nē o͞o′ā), n. an island in the S Pacific between Tonga and the Cook Islands, a dependency of New Zealand. 4781 (est. 1960); ab. 100 sq. mi. Also called Savage Island. —Ni·u·an (nē o͞o′ən), adj., n.

ni·val (nī′vəl), adj. of or growing in snow: nival flora. [< L nīvāl(is) (3) belonging to snow, snowy, equiv. to nīv- (s. of nix) snow + -ālis -AL¹] ni·va·tion (nī vā′shən), n. erosion resulting from the action of névé beneath or at the edges of a snowdrift. [< L nīv- (s. of nix) snow + -ATION]

Niv·en (niv′ən), n. a boy's given name. Also, Nevin.

niv·e·ous (niv′ē əs), adj. resembling snow, esp. in whiteness; snowy. [< L niveus snowy, snow-white, of, from snow; equiv. to nīv- (s. of nix) snow + -eus -EOUS]

Ni·ver·nais (nē ver nā′), n. a former province in central France. Cap.: Nevers.

CONCISE PRONUNCIATION KEY: act, āble, dâre, ärt; ebb, ēqual; if, ice; hot, ōver, ôrder, oil, bo͝ok, bo͞ot, ou; thin, ŧhat; zh as in measure. ə = a as in alone, e as in system, i as in easily, o as in gallop, u as in circus; ˈ as in button (but/ˈbən), fire (fīr), cradle (krād′əl). See the full key inside the front cover.

non-dense (non dens′), adj. [NON- + DENSE] Math. nowhere-dense.

non-de-script (non′di skript′), adj. 1. of no recognized, definite, or particular type or kind: a nondescript color. —n. 2. a person or a thing of no particular type or kind. [NON- + L dēscript(us) described, defined, represented (ptp. of dēscribere; see DESCRIBE)] —Syn. 1. odd, peculiar, amorphous, indescribable, unclassifiable.

non-di-rec-tion-al (non′di rek′shə nᵊl, -dī-), adj. 1. without direction; not directional. 2. functioning equally well in all directions; omnidirectional. [NON- + DIRECTIONAL] non/di-rec′tive ther′apy, (non′di rek′tiv). See client-centered therapy. [NON- + DIRECTIVE] non-dis-junc-tion (non′dis jungk′shən), n. Biol. the failure of chromosomes to follow normal separation into daughter cells at division. [NON- + DISJUNCTION] non-dis-tinc-tive (non′di stingk′tiv), adj. Ling. not serving to distinguish meanings: a nondistinctive difference in sound. [NON- + DISTINCTIVE] —non′dis-tinc′tive-ly, adv.

none[1] (nun), pron. 1. no one; not one: None of the members is going. 2. not any, as of something indicated: That is none of your business. 3. no part; nothing: None of the money is missing. 4. not any persons or things: None were left when I came. —adv. 5. to no extent; in no way; not at all: The supply is none too great. —adj. 6. Archaic. not any; no (usually only before a vowel or h): Thou shalt have none other gods but me. [ME non, OE nān, equiv. to ne not + ān one]

—Usage. Since many construe NONE in its etymological sense of "not one," they insist that precision demands its being treated as a singular, followed by a singular verb, as in def. 1, above. However, the word is very often felt to have the sense of def. 4, and there is ample evidence for such use dating back to the earliest English writings.

none[2] (nōn), n., sing. of nones[1]. Also, None. [ME; OE nōn < L nōna (hōra) ninth (hour). See NOON] non-ef-fec-tive (non′i fek′tiv), adj. 1. not effective. 2. not fit for duty or active service, as a soldier or sailor. —n. 3. a noneffective person. [NON- + EFFECTIVE] non-e-go (non ē′gō, -eg′ō), n. Metaphys. all that is not the ego or conscious self; object as opposed to subject. [< L nōn not + ego I] nu·cel·lus (no͞o sel′əs, nyo͞o-), n., pl. -cel·li (-sel′ī). Bot. the central cellular mass of the body of the ovule, containing the embryo sac. [< NL, alter. of L nucella little nut, equiv. to nuc- (s. of nux) nut + -ella dim. suffix] —nu·cel'lar, adj.

nu·chal (no͞o′kəl, nyo͞o′-), n., pl. -chae (-kē). nape. [< ML: nape of neck, < Ar nukhā spinal marrow] nuci-, a learned borrowing from Latin meaning "nut," used in the formation of compound words: nuciform. [combining repr. L nucī-, s. of nux nut] nu·ci·form (no͞o′sə fôrm′, nyo͞o′-), adj. nut-shaped. [NUCI- + -FORM] nucle-, var. of nucleo- before a vowel: nuclear.

nu·cle·ar (no͞o′klē ər, nyo͞o′-), adj. 1. of, pertaining to, or resembling a nucleus. 2. pertaining to or involving atomic weapons: nuclear war. 3. operated or powered by atomic energy: a nuclear submarine. 4. (of a nation or group of nations) having atomic bombs. [NUCLE- + -AR¹; cf. F nucléaire] nu'clear cross' sec'tion, Physics. See cross section (def. 8).

nu'clear en'ergy. See atomic energy.

nu'clear fam'ily, Anthropol. a social unit composed of father, mother, and children. Cf. extended family.

nu'clear fis'sion, fission (def. 3).

nu'clear fu'sion, fusion (def. 4).

nu'clear i'somer, Physics. isomer (def. 2).

nu'clear i'somerism, Physics. isomerism (def. 2).

nu'clear mag'neton, Physics. a unit of magnetic moment, used to measure proton spin and approximately equal to $^1/_{1836}$ Bohr magneton.

nu'clear phys'ics, the branch of physics that deals with the structure, interactions, and component parts of atomic nuclei. —nu'clear phys'icist.

nu'clear reac'tion, reaction (def. 8).

nu'clear reac'tor, Physics. reactor (def. 4).

nu'clear war'head. See atomic warhead.

nu·cle·ase (no͞o′klē āsˌ, nyo͞o′-), n. Biochem. any of the class of enzymes comprising the nucleinases, nucleotidases, and nucleosidases, and that serve to break down nucleic acids, found in plant and animal tissue. [NUCLE- + -ASE] nu·cle·ate (no͞o′klē it, -āt′, nyo͞o′-), adj., v., -at·ed, -at·ing. —adj. 1. having a nucleus. —v.t. 2. to form (something) into a nucleus. —v.i. 3. to form a nucleus. [< L nucleātus having a kernel. See NUCLEUS, -ATE¹] —nu·cle·a·tion (no͞o′klē ā′shən, nyo͞o′-), n. —nu'cle·a'tor, n.

nu·cle·i (no͞o′klē īˌ, nyo͞o′-), n. pl. of nucleus. [< L nuclei small nuts, kernels (pl. of nucleus)] nu·cle·ic ac'id (no͞o klē′ik, nyo͞o-), Biochem. any of a group of complex acids occurring in all living cells, esp. as a component of cell-nucleus proteins, and composed of a phosphoric acid group, a carbohydrate, two purines, and two pyrimidines. Cf. DNA, RNA. [NUCLE- + -IC] nu·cle·in (no͞o′klē in, nyo͞o′-), n. Biochem. any of a class of phosphorus-containing protein substances occurring in cell nuclei. [NUCLE- + -IN²] nu·cle·in·ase (no͞o′klē ə nāsˌ, nyo͞o′-), n. Biochem. any of a class of enzymes that split nucleic acids into nucleotides. [NUCLEIN + -ASE] nucleo-, a combining form of nucleus, nuclear, or nucleic acid: nucleoprotein. Also, esp. before a vowel, nucle-.

nucleol-, a combining form of nucleolus: nucleolated.

nu·cle·o·lar (no͞o klē′ə lər, nyo͞o-), adj. of, pertaining to, or forming a nucleolus. [NUCLEOL- + -AR¹] nu·cle·o·la·ted (no͞o klē′ə lā′tĭd, nyo͞o′-), adj. containing a nucleolus or nucleoli. Also, nu'cle·o·late'. [NUCLEOL- + -ATE¹ + -ED²] nu·cle·o·lus (no͞o klē′ə ləs, nyo͞o′-), n., pl. -li (-lī′). Biol. a conspicuous, often convoluted body within the nucleus of a cell. Also, nu·cle·ole (no͞o′klē ōl′, nyo͞o′-). [< L: dim. of nucleus kernel. See NUCLEUS] —nu·cle'o·loid' adj.

nu·cle·on (no͞o′klē onˌ, nyo͞o′-), n. Physics. a proton or neutron, esp. when considered as a component of a nucleus. [NUCLE- + -ON¹] nu·cle·on·ics (no͞o′klē on′iks, nyo͞o′-), n. (construed as sing.) the branch of science that deals with atomic nuclei, esp. practical applications, as in industrial engineering. [NUCLEON + -ICS] nu·cle·o·phil·ic (no͞o′klē ə fil′ik, nyo͞o′-), adj. Chem. of or pertaining to an electron contribution in covalent bonding (opposed to electrophilic). [NUCLEO- + -PHILIC] nu·cle·o·plasm (no͞o′klē ə plazˌəm, nyo͞o′-), n. Biol. karyoplasm. [NUCLEO- + -PLASM] nu·cle·o·plas·mat·ic (no͞o′klē ō plaz mat′ik, nyo͞o′-), adj.

nu·cle·o·pro·tein (no͞o′klē ə prō′tēn, -tē in, nyo͞o′-), n. Biochem. any of a class of complex conjugated proteins found in plant and animal cells and consisting of a protein combined with a nucleic acid, essential for cell division and reproduction. [NUCLEO- + PROTEIN] nu·cle·o·side (no͞o′klē ə sīdˌ, nyo͞o′-), n. Biochem. any of the class of enzymes that catalyze the hydrolysis of nucleosides. [NUCLEOSIDE + -ASE] nu·cle·o·side (no͞o′klē ə sīdˌ, nyo͞o′-), n. Biochem. any of the class of compounds that result from hydrolysis of nucleic acids or nucleotides, consisting typically of desoxyribose or ribose combined with adenine, or guanine and cytosine, uracil, or thymine. [NUCLE- + OSE² + -IDE] nu·cle·o·tid·ase (no͞o klē′ə tīdˌās, nyo͞o′-), n. Biochem. any of the class of enzymes that catalyze the hydrolysis of nucleotides, esp. those that split phosphoric acid. Also called nu·cle·o·phos·pha·tase (no͞o′klē ō fos′fə tās′, nyo͞o′-), phosphonuclease. [NUCLEOTIDE + -ASE] nu·cle·o·tide (no͞o′klē ə tīdˌ, nyo͞o′-), n. Biochem. any of the class of esters formed by the interaction of phosphoric acid and a nucleoside or by the partial hydrolysis of nucleic acids. [alter. of NUCLEOSIDE] nu·cle·us (no͞o′klē əs, nyo͞o′-), n., pl. -cle·i (-klē ī′), -cle·us·es. 1. a central part about which other parts are grouped; core: A few faithful friends formed the nucleus of the club. 2. Biol. a usually spherical mass of protoplasm encased in a membrane, and found in most living cells, forming an essential element in their growth, metabolism, and reproduction, and in the transmission of hereditary characteristics. 3. Astron. the head of a comet. 4. Meteorol. a particle upon which condensation of water vapor occurs to form water drops or ice crystals. 5. Phonet. the sound in a syllable expressing the highest the a-sound in cat. [< L: kernel, syncopated var. of nuculeus, equiv. to nucul(a) little nut (nuc-, s. of nux nut, + -ula -ULE) + -eus adj. suffix] nu·clide (no͞o′klīd, nyo͞o′-), n. Physics. 1. an atomic species in which all atoms have the same atomic number and mass number. 2. an individual atom in such a species. [NUCL- + -ide < Gk eidos shape]

nude (no͞od, nyo͞od), adj. 1. naked or unclothed, as a person or the body. 2. without the usual coverings, furnishings, etc.; bare: a nude stretch of land laid waste by brush fires. 3. Law. unsupported; made without a consideration: a nude pact. 4. having the color nude. —n. 5. a nude figure as represented in art. 6. the nude, a. the condition of being unclothed. b. the unclothed human figure. 7. a light grayish-yellow brown to brownish-yellow color.
