K

The eleventh letter of the English alphabet corresponds to North Semitic kaph and Greek kappa. The Romans, adopting the alphabet from the Etruscans, at first had three symbols, C, K, and Q, for the k-sound. K fell into disuse. It did not appear in English until after the Norman conquest, when, under Norman French influence, it came into use in place of C to distinguish the pronunciation of words of native origin: such words as cyng became king; cene, keen; cynn-, kin; cnif, knife; and cnotta, knot. Under other influences, often through loan words, the symbol entered into more general use.

lawn′ bowl′ing, a game played with wooden balls on a closely mowed green having a slight bias, the object being to roll one's ball as near as possible to a smaller white ball at the other end of the green. Also called bowls. See Archaic. bowl on the green. [ME launde < MF lande glade < Celt; cf. Breton lann heath. See LAND] —lawn′y, adj.

lawn′ mow′er, a machine for cutting grass.

lawn′ par′ty. See garden party.

lawn′ sleeves′, 1. the sleeves of lawn of an Anglican bishop. 2. the office of an Anglican bishop. 3. an Anglican bishop or bishops.

lawn′ ten′nis, tennis, esp. when played on a grass court.

law′ of ac′tion and reac′tion, Physics. third law of motion. See under law of motion.

law′ of ad′dition pres′ures, Physics, Chem. Dalton's law.

law′ of av′erages, a statistical principle formulated by Jacques Bernoulli to show a more or less predictable ratio between the number of random trials of an event and the occurrences.

law′ of conserva′tion of an′gular momen′tum, Physics. See conservation of angular momentum.

law′ of conserva′tion of charge′, Physics. See conservation of charge.

law′ of conserva′tion of en′ergy, Physics. See conservation of energy.

law′ of conserva′tion of lin′ear momen′tum, Physics. See conservation of linear momentum.

law′ of conserva′tion of mass′, Physics. See conservation of mass.

law′ of co′sines, Math. 1. a plane trigonometric equation which the square of a side of a plane triangle is equal to the sum of the squares of the other two sides minus twice the product of the other sides multiplied by the cosine of the angle between them. 2. a spherical trigonometric equation in which the cosine of an arc of a spherical triangle equals the sum of the product of the cosines of the other two arcs added to the product of the sines of the other two arcs multiplied by the cosine of the angle between them. 3. a spherical trigonometric equation in which the cosine of an angle of a spherical triangle is equal to the negative of the product of the cosines of the other two angles added to the product of the sines of the other two angles multiplied by the cosine of the included arc.

law′ of def′inite composi′tion, 1. Chem. the statement that in a pure compound the elements are always combined in fixed proportions by weight. 2. Logic. the law that either a proposition or its denial must be true.

law′ of dimin′ishing mar′ginal util′ity, Econ. the law that for a single consumer the marginal utility of a commodity diminishes for each additional unit of the commodity consumed.

law′ of exclud′ed mid′dle, Logic. the principle that if one of a pair of contradictory statements is considered false the other must be considered true.

law′ of expo′nents, Math. the theorem stating the elementary properties of exponents, as the property that the product of two powers of a number is raised to an exponent, is equal to the base raised to the sum of the exponents: $x^a \cdot x^b = x^{a+b}$.

law′ of gravi′tation, Physics. the law that all bodies and particles in the universe are subject to gravitation. Also called Newton's law of gravitation.

law′ of iden′tity, Logic. the law that any proposition implies itself.

law′ of law′ num′bers, Math. the theorem in probability theory that the number of successes increases as the number of experiments increases and approximates the probability times the number of experiments for a large number of experiments.

law′ of Malus′, Optics. See Malus' law.

law′ of mass′ ac′tion, Chem. the statement that the velocity of a chemical reaction is proportional to the concentrations of the reacting substances.

Law′ of Mo′ses, the Pentateuch or Torah.

law′ of mo′tion, Physics. one of three laws of classical mechanics, either the body remains at rest or in motion with a constant velocity unless an external force acts on the body (law of motion), the law that the sum of the forces acting on a body is equal to the mass of the body times the acceleration, the acceleration produced by the forces, with motion in the direction of the resultant of the forces (second law of motion), or the law that for every force acting on a body, the body exerts a force having equal magnitude and the opposite direction along the same line of action as the original force (third law of motion). Also called Newton's law of motion.

law′ of mul′tiple propor′tion, Chem. the statement that where two elements can combine to form more than one compound, the ratio of the weights of one element to a given weight of the second is usually a small whole number.

law′ of na′tions, 1. See international law. 2. (in Roman use) the whole body of rules applicable to the relations between nations.

law′ of par′simony, Philos. a principle according to which an explanation of a thing or event is made with the fewest possible assumptions. Cf. Occam's razor.

law′ of par′tial pres′sures, Physics, Chem. See Dalton's law.

law′ of reflec′tion, the principle that a ray of light, radar pulse, or the like, is reflected from a smooth surface with the angle of reflection equal to the angle of incidence, the incident ray, the reflected ray, and the normal to the surface at the point of incidence all lying in the same plane.

law′ of refrac′tion, the principle that for a ray, radar pulse, or the like, that is incident on the interface of two media, the ratio of the sine of the angle of incidence to the sine of the angle of refraction in which the ratio of the velocity of the ray in the first medium to the velocity in the second medium and the incident ray, refracted ray, and normal to the surface at the point of incidence all lying in the same plane.

law′ of sines′, Math. 1. a plane trigonometric equation in which the ratio of a side of a plane triangle to the sine of the opposite angle is the same for all three sides. 2. a spherical trigonometric equation in which the ratio of the sine of an arc of a spherical triangle to the sine of the opposite angle is the same for all three arcs.

law′ of the jun′gle, a system or mode of action in which the fittest survive, primarily as animals in nature or as human beings whose activity is not regulated by the laws of civilization.

law′ of the mean′, Math. See mean value theorem.

Law′ of the Medes′ and the Per′sians, unalterable law.

law′ of thermodynam′ics, 1. any of three principles variously stated in equivalent forms, being the principle that the change of energy of a thermodynamic system is equal to the heat transferred minus the work done (first law of thermodynamics), the principle that no isolated system can undergo a change which is absorbed from a reservoir at a single temperature and converted completely into mechanical work (second law of thermodynamics), or the principle that it is impossible to reduce the temperature of a system to absolute zero in a finite number of operations (third law of thermodynamics). 2. See zeroth law of thermodynamics.

law′ of thought′, any of the basic laws of traditional logic, including the law of contradiction, the law of excluded middle, and the law of identity.

law′ of trichot′omy, Math. an axiom that an integer is either positive, negative, or equivalent to an algebraic system with a set of positive elements.

Law·rence (lôr′əns, lor′-), n. 1. D(avid) H(erbert), 1885–1930, English novelist. 2. Ernest O(rlando), 1901–58, U.S. physicist: inventor of the cyclotron: Nobel prize 1939. 3. —Syn. 1. See allow. 1, 6. suffer, grant. LET, LEAVE, although both synonymous in certain uses, are being the one used more frequently in both meanings. A further confusion of the verb LEAVE with the noun LEAVE may have helped to perpetuate the misuse. (The noun LEAVE, meaning "permission," might readily be associated with LET, whose most common meaning is "permit" or "allow." The verb LEAVE, however, does not have a meaning of "permit" or "allow"; its most common meaning is "go away from.") In the constructions in which the confusion arises, it should be noted that, although either verb can take a nominal object (Let John leave home.), only LET can take the infinitive (with to not expressed: let fly; let go). In certain idiomatic expressions, like let alone and let be in nonverbal constructions, but the meanings differ widely: LET it out means "allow it to escape" (as the breath), but LEAVE it out means "omit it" (as a sentence). LET him alone means "allow him to be undisturbed" (i.e., don't bother him), and although purists insist that LEAVE him alone means "go away, so that he will be alone," the facts of usage show that this construction means "don't bother him" as frequently as "go away." If not more frequently. At best, the two appear in entirely ambiguous contexts. 4. lease, rent, sublet, hire.

—Ant. 1. prevent.

Icel líklígr. See LIKE¹, -LY¹]

—Syn. 1. LIKELY, APT, LIABLE are not alike in indicating probability; though APT is used colloquially, and LIABLE, mistakenly in this sense. LIKELY is the only one of these words which means "probable" or "to be expected": It is likely to rain. APT suggests a natural tendency or disposition; if something is natural and easy, it is often probable; hence APT comes to be associated with LIKELY and to be used informally as a substitute for it: He is apt at drawing. LIABLE is used only of trouble: He is liable not be used to mean "probable." When used with an infinitive, it may remind one of LIKELY: He is liable to be arrested. But the true meaning, susceptibility to something unpleasant, or exposure to risk, becomes evident when it is used with a prepositional phrase: He is liable to arrest. The machine is liable to error. 3. appropriate.

Lind·es·nes (lin′dis nes′), n. a cape at the S tip of Norway, on the North Sea. Also called The Naze.

Lin·dl (lin′dl), n. a seaport in SE Tanzania. 10,315 (1957).

Lind·ley (lind′lē, lin′-), n. 1. John, 1799–1865, English botanist. 2. a boy's given name.

Lind·say (lind′zē, lin′-), n. a given name. Also, Lyndon.

Lind·say (lind′zē, lin′-), n. 1. Howard, born 1889, U.S. playwright, producer, and actor. 2. John V(liet) (vēt′), born 1921, U.S. political leader: mayor of New York City since 1965. 3. Nicholas Vachel (vā′chəl), 1879–1931, U.S. poet. 4. a town in central California. 5397 (1960). 5. a town in central Oklahoma. 4258 (1960).

Linds·borg (linz′bôrg), n. a town in central Kansas. 2609 (1960).

Lind·sey (lind′zē, lin′-), n. 1. Ben(jamin Barr) (bär), 1869–1943, U.S. jurist and authority on juvenile delinquency. 2. Also, Lindsay, a boy's given name.

Lin·dy (lin′dē), n., pl. -dies, v., -died, -dy·ing. —n. 1. Also called lin′dy hop′, an energetic jitterbug dance. —v.t. 2. to perform the lindy. [prob. from nickname of Charles A. LINDBERGH]

Lin·dy (lin′dē), n. a girl's given name, form of Linda.

Lin·dy·beth (lin′dē beth′), n. a girl's given name.

Lin·dy·lou (lin′dē lōō′, lin′dē lōō′), n. a girl's given name.

line¹ (līn), n., v., lined, lin·ing. —n. 1. a mark or stroke long in proportion to its breadth, made with a pen, pencil, tool, etc., on a surface: Draw two lines down the page. In Math., a continuous extent of length, straight or curved, without breadth or thickness; the trace of a moving point. 3. something resembling a traced line, as a band of color, a seam, a furrow, etc.: lines of stratification in rock. Furrows and wrinkles in the face, neck, etc.: a new face cream guaranteed to erase lines. 5. something arranged along a line, esp. a straight line; a row or series: a line of trees. 6. a number of persons standing one behind the other; waiting line: a long line for something; queue. 7. a row of written or printed letters, words, etc.: a page of 30 lines. 8. banner (def. 7). 9. a verse of poetry: A line in iambic pentameter contains five feet. 10. Usually, lines. a speech given an actor in a play; the spoken part of a play's part, or of a drama, musical comedy, etc.: One of his best lines was cut. The hero forgot his lines. Who has the next line? 11. a short written message: a line from a friend; to drop someone a line. 12. an indication of demarcation; boundary; limit: to draw a line between right and wrong. 13. a course of action, procedure, thought, policy, etc.: to vote along party lines; to mouth the Communist party line. 14. a piece of pertinent information (usually fol. by on): I've got a line on a good used car. I'll get a line on that new fellow she's dating. 15. a course of direction; route: the line of march. 16. a series of generations of persons, animals, or plants descended from a common ancestor: a line of kings; a line of thoroughbred horses. 17. Slang. a mode of conversation, esp. one that is glib or exaggerated in order to impress or influence another person: He really handed her a line about his rich relatives. 18. lines, a. outline or contour: a ship of fine lines. b. plan of construction, esp. of a ship: certain books written along the same lines. c. Informal. a certificate of marriage. d. Rare. one's lot or portion: to endure the hard lines of poverty. 19. a department of activity: a kind of occupation or business: What line is he in? 20. a transportation company: The steamship line is advertising inexpensive tours. 21. a system of public conveyances, as buses, steamers, etc., plying regularly between places and over specified routes. 22. Elect. a. a wire or wires connecting two or more pieces of electric apparatus, esp. the wire or wires connecting points or stations in a telegraph or telephone system, or the system itself. b. maxwell. 23. Television. one scanning trace. 24. Fine Arts. a. a mark made by a pencil, brush, crayon, etc., that serves to define the contours of a shape, or to form hatching, and that constitutes a primary element in the formal structure of a work of art. b. the edge of a shape. 25. a straight line drawn from an observed object to the fovea of the eye: line of vision; line of sight. 26. a circle of the terrestrial or celestial sphere: the equinoctial line. 27. the line, Geog. the equator. 28. a stock of commercial goods of the same general type, but of a range of styles, sizes, prices, or quality: The salesman said his new line of women's shoes was very popular. 29. Insurance. a. a class or type of insurance: casualty line. b. the amount of insurance a particular company will write. 30. Law. a limit defining one estate from another; the outline or boundary of a piece of real estate. 31. Bridge. a line on a score sheet that separates points scored toward game (below the line) from points scored by upsetting a contract, having honors, etc. (above the line). 32. Music. any of the straight, horizontal, parallel strokes of the staff, or one placed below or above the staff. 33. Mil. a. defensive position or front. b. a series of fortifications: the Maginot Line. 34. Naut. a. any rope used for any purpose in connecting, etc., for the defense of a position or for an attack: within the enemy's lines. 35. (formerly) an arrangement of troops of an army or of ships of a fleet as drawn up for battle: line of battle. 36. a body or formation of troops or ships drawn up abreast (distinguished from column). 37. the body of military personnel comprising the combatant forces of an army, as distinguished from the auxiliary services and corps. 38. the class of officers serving with combatant units or warships. 39. that part of an administrative organization consisting of persons actively engaged on a given project. Cf. staff (def. 8). 40. (formerly) the regular forces of an army or navy. 41. a heavy, strong cord, rope, or the like. 42. a strong cord or slender rope. 43. a clothesline: Are the things on the line dry yet? 44. a cord, wire, or the like, used for measuring or as a guide. 45. Naut. a pipe or hose: a fire line. 46. Mas. a. Agne. a unit, $1/_{40}$ inch, for measuring the diameter of buttons. 47. Angling. a length of nylon, silk, linen, cord, etc., to which are attached the leader, hook, sinker, float, etc. 48. Football. a. either of the two rows of opposing players lined up opposite each other on the line of scrimmage: a strong line. b. See line of scrimmage. 49. Fencing. any of the four divisions of the portion of a fencer's body to which touch can be scored, taken as an area of attack or defense. 50. Textiles. the longer and preferred flax or hemp fibers. Cf. tow² (def. 2). 51. Fox Hunting. the trail of scent left by a fox. 52. a length equivalent to $^1/_{12}$ inch. 53. all along the line, in every detail; entirely: This report has proved inaccurate all along the line. 54. bring, come, or get into line, a. to become or cause to become straight, as in a row: The members of the marching band got into line. The riders brought their mounts into line. b. to conform or cause to conform or agree: He was persuaded to come into line with the party policy. He finally succeeded in bringing his opponents into line with his own views. 55. draw the line, to impose a restriction; limit: They would draw the line at murder. 56. give line, Survey. (of a lineman) to mark the position of a survey mark so that it can be observed from a distance. 57. go up in one's lines, Theat. to forget one's part. Also, Brit., go up on one's lines. 58. hard lines, Brit. Informal. bad luck; a hard lot. 59. hold the line, to maintain the status quo, esp. in order to forestall unfavorable developments: The cost-of-living index held the line last month. We're trying to hold the line on prices. 60. in line, a. in alignment; straight. b. in conformity or agreement. c. in control (of one's conduct): He could never seem to get himself in line for a job. 61. in the line of duty, in the execution of the duties belonging to some occupation, esp. with regard to the responsibility for life and death: a policeman who met his death in the line of duty. 62. in the line of fire, in a position to be shot at. 63. line, a. to give money; pay. b. to give the required information; speak directly or frankly: I'm going to stop beating about the bush and lay it on the line with you. 63. on a line, Baseball. (of a batted ball) traveling through the air in an approximately straight line from the point of impact or delivery: hit on a line between third and short; thrown in on a line from the center fielder. 64. on line, Survey. on a survey line. 65. out of line, a. not in a straight line. b. Slang. in disagreement with what is accepted or practiced. c. Slang. impertinent; presumptuous: That last remark was out of line. 66. read between the lines, to comprehend the unexpressed but implied meaning of something said or written: Her letter sounded cheerful enough, but I read a certain sadness between the lines. 67. take line, Survey. (of a lineman) to place a range pole or the like according to the directions of a transitman. 68. toe the line or mark, a. to conform strictly to a rule, command, etc. b. to shoulder responsibilities; do one's duty: Because he was new and wanted to do a good job, he tried hard to toe the line.

—v.t. 69. to take a position in a line; range (often fol. by up): to line up before the start of a parade. 70. Baseball. a. to hit a line drive. b. to line out.
—v.t. 71. to bring into a line, or into line with others (often fol. by up): Line up your men, corporal! Line up the target in your sights. 72. to secure; make available; get hold of (usually fol. by up): We have to line up a speaker for the banquet; to line up evidence for a legal case. 73. to delineate with or as with lines; draw: to line the silhouette of a person's head. 74. to mark with a line or lines: to line paper for writing. 75. to sketch verbally or in writing; outline (often fol. by out): We followed the plan he had lined out. 76. to arrange a line along: to line a coast with colonies. 77. to form a line along: People lined the streets. Trees lined the drive. 78. to apply liner to (the eyes). 79. Archaic. to measure or test with a line. 80. line out, Baseball, Softball. to put out by hitting a line drive caught on the fly by a player of the opposing team. b. to execute or perform: He lined out a few songs upon request. [ME, OE: cord, rope, stroke, mark, row, guideline, n. from use of fem. of līneus flaxen, equiv. to līn(um) flax (see LINE²) + -eus -EOUS] —lin′a-ble, line′a-ble, adj. —line′less, adj. —line′like′, adj.

line² (līn), v., lined, lin·ing, n. —v.t. 1. to cover the inner side of: I used blue silk to line the dress. 2. to provide with a layer of material applied to the inner side: to line a coat with silk. 3. to serve to cover: Velvet draperies lined the walls of the mansion. 4. to furnish or fill: a purse well lined with questionable profits. 5. to reinforce the back of a book with glued fabric, paper, vellum, etc.
—n. 6. thickness of material, as a piece of two veneers in a sheet of plywood. [ME lyne(n), deriv. of line flax, linen, OE līn < L līnum flax] lin·e·age¹ (lin′ē ij), n. 1. lineal descent from an ancestor; ancestry or extraction: She can trace her lineage back several centuries. 2. the line of descendants of a particular ancestor; family; race. [LINE(AL) + -AGE; r. ME linage < AF; OF lignage < LL līneāticum.* See LINE¹, -AL¹] —Syn. 1. pedigree, parentage, derivation; genealogy.

lin·e·age² (lī′nij), n. linage.

lin·e·al (lin′ē əl), adj. 1. being in the direct line, as a descendant, ancestor, etc., or in a direct line, as descent, succession, etc. 2. of or transmitted by lineal descent. 3. linear. [late ME < LL līneāl(is). See LINE¹, -AL¹] —lin·e·al·i·ty (lin′ē al′i tē), n. —lin′e·al·ly, adv.

lin·e·a·ment (lin′ē ə mənt), n. 1. Often, lineaments. a feature or detail of a face, body, or figure, considered with respect to its outline or contour: She could not be examined in the darkness of her face. His fine lineaments made him the very image of his father. 2. Usually, lineaments. distinguishing features or characteristics: The lineaments of the time made him despair. [< L līneāmen(tum) a stroke, pl., features, equiv. to līneā(re) (to) line (see LINE¹) + -mentum -MENT] —lin·e·a·men·tal (lin′ē ə men′tl), adj. —lin′e·a·men·ta′tion, n.

lin·e·ar (lin′ē ər), adj. 1. extended or arranged in a line: a linear series. 2. involving measurement in one dimension only; pertaining to length: linear measure. 3. pertaining to or represented by lines: linear dimensions. 4. consisting of or using lines: linear design. 5. of or pertaining to the characteristics of a work of art in which line and form are emphasized chiefly in terms of line. 6. having the form of or resembling a line: linear nebulae. 7. Math. a. consisting of, containing, or described by terms of the first degree: a linear equation. b. having the same effect on a sum as on each of the summands: a linear operator. 8. thread-like; narrow and elongated. [< L līnear flaxen, n. < L līnē(a) (see LINE¹) + -ar -AR¹] —lin′e·ar·ly, adv.

Linear leaf

Linar A, an ancient system of writing, not yet deciphered, inscribed on clay tablets, pottery, and other objects found at Minoan sites on Crete and other Greek islands.

lin′ear ac·cel′er·a·tor, Physics. an accelerator in which particles are propelled in straight paths by the use of alternating electric voltages so placed that the particles receive increasing increments of energy.

lin′ear al′ge·bra, Math. See under algebra (def. 2).

Linear B, an ancient system of writing representing a very early form of Greek, deciphered by Michael Ventris from clay tablets found at Knossos on Crete and at Pylos.

lin′ear combina′tion, Math. a polynomial in several variables, all of which are raised to the first power.

lin′ear depend′ence, Math. the property of a set of elements, often vectors, in which multiplying each element and adding the resulting quantities results in zero for any scalars not all equal to zero. Cf. linear independence.

lin′ear differen′tial equa′tion, Math. an equation involving derivatives in which the dependent variables and all derivatives appearing in the equation are raised to the first power.

lin′ear frac′tional transforma′tion, Math. See Möbius transformation.

lin′ear func′tional, Math. a function having scalar values, the domain being a linear space and having the properties that the function of the sum of two elements is equal to the sum of the functional values of the two elements and the function of a scalar times an element of the space is equal to the scalar times the functional value of the element.

lin′ear graph′, Math. graph (def. 2b).

lin′ear in·de·pend′ence, Math. the property of a set of elements, often vectors, in which multiplying each element of the set by a scalar chosen from some particular set of scalars and adding the resulting quantities gives zero only if all the chosen scalars were zero. Cf. linear dependence.

lin·e·ar·ise (lin′ē ə rīz′), v.t., -ised, -is·ing. Chiefly Brit. linearize. —lin′e·ar·i·sa′tion, n.

lin·e·ar·i·ty (lin′ē ar′i tē), n., pl. -ties. 1. the property, quality, or state of being linear. 2. Television. the accuracy with which the shapes in a televised image are reproduced on the screen of a receiving set. 3. Electronics. the measure of the extent to which a certain response is directly proportional to the applied excitation. [LINEAR + -ITY] lin·e·ar·ize (lin′ē ə rīz′), v.t., -ized, -iz·ing. to make linear; give linear form to. Also, esp. Brit., linearise. [LINEAR + -IZE] —lin′e·ar·i·za′tion, n.

lin′early or′dered set′, Math. See totally ordered set.

lin′ear man′ifold, Math. subspace (def. 2).

lin′ear mea′sure, 1. any system of measurement for measuring length. 2. any unit of measurement used in linear measure, as the inch, foot, meter, etc.

lin′ear perspec′tive, a mathematical system for representing three-dimensional objects and space on a two-dimensional surface by means of intersecting lines that are vertical, horizontal, and oblique and that radiate from one point (one-point perspective), two points (two-point perspective), or several points on a horizon line, as in the use of a vanishing point.

lin′ear polariza′tion, Optics. See plane polarization.

lin′ear pro′gramming, Math. any of several methods for finding where a given linear function of several nonnegative variables assumes an extreme value and for determining the value, the variables usually being subjected to constraints in the form of linear equalities or inequalities.

lin′ear space′, Math. See vector space.

lin′ear transfor′mation, Math. a mapping from one vector space to a vector space having the same field of scalars, with the properties that the map of the sum of two vectors is the sum of the maps of the vectors and the map of a scalar times a vector is the scalar times the map of the vector. Also called lin′ear op′erator.

lin·e·ate (lin′ē it, -āt′), adj. marked with lines, esp. lengthwise, parallel lines; striped. Also, lin′e·at′ed. [< L līneātus, pp. of līneāre to make straight, pip. of līnea LINEAMENT, -ATE¹] lin·e·a·tion (lin′ē ā′shən), n. 1. the act of marking with or tracing in lines. 2. a division by lines. 3. an outline or delineation. 4. an arrangement or group of lines. [ME lyneacion < LL līneātiōn- (s. of līneātiō) the drawing of a line. See LINEATE, -ION] line·back·er (līn′bak′ər), n. Football. 1. a player on defense who takes a position close behind the linemen. 2. the position played by this player. [LINE¹ + BACKER] line·bred (lin′bred′), adj. produced by linebreeding. [LINE¹ + BRED] line·breed·ing (lin′brē′diŋ), n. Genetics. a form of inbreeding directed toward keeping the offspring closely related to a superior ancestor. [LINE¹ + BREEDING] line-cast·ing (līn′kas′tiŋ), adj. (līn′kas′tiŋ), n. Printing. the casting of an entire line of type in a slug. —line′ cast′er.

line′ cop′y, Print. a document, drawing, or the like, consisting of two tones, as black and white, without intermediate shades. Cf. halftone (def. 1).

line′ cut′, Print. an engraving consisting only of lines or areas that are solid black or white. Cf. halftone (def. 2).

line′ draw′ing, a drawing done exclusively in line, providing gradations in tone entirely through variations in width and density.

line′ drive′, Baseball. a ball batted in the air that describes a relatively flat flight and usually travels with great speed. Also called liner.

line′ drop′, Elect. the decrease in voltage between two points on an electric line, often caused by resistance or leakage. Cf. IR drop.

line′ engrav′ing, 1. a technique of engraving in which all effects are produced by variations in the width and density of lines incised with a burin. 2. a metal plate so engraved. 3. a print or picture made from it. —line′ engrav′er.

line′ gale′, See equinoctial storm.

line′ gauge′, a printer's ruler, usually marked off in picas, nonpareils, agates, and inches, and sometimes also in centimeters.

line′ in′tegral, Math. the limit, as the norm of the partition of a given curve approaches zero, of the sum of the products of the length of the arcs in the partition times the value of the function at some point on each arc.

line·man (līn′mən), n., pl. -men. 1. Also, linesman. a man who installs or repairs telephone, telegraph, or other wires. 2. a person who supervises the construction of a survey mark with a range pole or the like. 3. Football. one of the players in the line, as a center, guard, tackle, or end. [LINE¹ + MAN¹] li·nen (lin′ən), n., adj. 1. fabric woven from flax yarns. 2. Often, linens. clothing, bedding, etc., made of linen cloth or a more common substitute, as cotton. 3. yarn made of flax. 4. thread made of flax yarns. 5. wash one's dirty linen in public, to discuss in public one's personal scandals or domestic difficulties. —adj. 6. made of linen. [ME lin(en) (n. adj.), OE linnen, linen (adj.), deriv. of flax, equiv. to līn flax (< L līnum) + -en -EN²] —lin′en-y, adj.

lin′en clos′et, a closet in which sheets, towels, table linen, etc., are kept.

lin′en draper′, Brit. a drygoods merchant.

lin·en-fold (lin′ən fōld′), n. an ornamental motif resembling folded linen, carved on paneling. Also called lin′en pat′tern. [LINEN + FOLD¹] lin′en pa′per, paper made from pure linen or from substitutes which produce a similar paper finish.

line′ of ap′sides, Astron. the line connecting the two apsides of an eccentric orbit, being coincident with the major axis of the orbit. Also called apse line.

line′ of bat′tle, Mil., Navy. a line formed by troops or ships for delivering or receiving an attack.

line′-of-bat′tle ship′ (lin′əv bat′ᵊl). See ship of the line.

line′ of cred′it. See credit line (def. 2).

line′ of′ficer, Mil. an officer serving with combatant units or warships, as distinguished from a staff officer, supply officer, etc.

line′ of′fset, the straight horizontal line from the muzzle of a weapon in the direction of the axis of the bore, just prior to firing.

line′ of force′, Physics. an imaginary line or curve in a field of force, as an electric field, such that the direction of the line at any point is that of the force in the field at that point. Also called field line.

line′ of induc′tion, Physics Obs. a line of force in a magnetic field.

line′ of posi′tion, Navig. a line connecting all the possible positions of a vessel or aircraft, as determined by a single observation. Also called position line.

line′ of scrim′mage, Football. an imaginary line parallel to the goal lines that passes from one sideline to the other through the point of the football closest to the goal line of each team.

line′ of sight′, 1. Also called line′ of sight′ing. an imaginary straight line running through the perfectly aligned sights of a firearm. 2. Astron. an imaginary line from an observer to a celestial body, coincident with the path traveled by light as received from the body. 3. Radio. a straight line connecting two points sufficiently high and near one another so that the line is entirely above the surface of the earth. 4. Ophthalm. See line of vision.

line′ of si′ze, Mil. a straight line from the muzzle of an artillery gun to its target.

line′ of vi′sion, Ophthalm. a straight line that connects the foves centralis of an eye with the point focused on.

lin·e·o-late (lin′ē ə lāt′), adj. Zool., Bot. marked with minute lines; finely lineate. Also, lin′e·o-lat′ed. [< L līneol(a) (dim. of līnea LINE¹) + -ATE¹] lin·er¹ (lī′nər), n. 1. one of a commercial line of steamships or airplanes. 2. one who or that which traces by or marks with lines. 3. Baseball. See line drive. 4. a cosmetic, esp. a grease pencil or other preparation used to outline or highlight the eyes. 5. Obs. See ship of the line. [LINE¹ + -ER¹] lin·er² (lī′nər), n. 1. one who fits or provides linings. 2. something serving as a lining. 3. a protective covering, usually of cardboard, for a phonograph record or records; album; jacket: A leading music critic did the notes on the liner. [LINE² + -ER¹] lines·man (linz′mən), n., pl. -men. 1. lineman (def. 1). Sports. a. an official who bends and stoops down to assists the referee. b. Football. an official who marks the distances gained and lost in the progress of play and otherwise assists the referee and field judge. [LINE¹ + 's + MAN¹] line′ space′, (on a typewriter) the horizontal space provided for a line of typing.

line′ spec′trum, Physics. an optical spectrum, usually characteristic of an excited atom, in which the lines of the spectrum are clustered in defined, separated groups, the groups corresponding to quanta of radiated energy. Cf. continuous spectrum.

lines′ plan′, Naval Archit. a set of scale drawings defining the hull form of a vessel, comprising a body plan, a half-breadth plan, and a sheer plan, usually made to molded dimensions and showing water lines, stations, diagonals, and bow and buttock lines. Also called lines′ draw′ing.

line′ squall′, (not in technical use) a squall advancing along a front that forms a more or less definite line.

line′ storm′, See equinoctial storm.

Li·net·ta (li net′ə), n. a girl's given name. Also, Lin·nette, Lynette.

line-up (līn′up′), n. 1. a particular order or disposition of persons or things as lined up or drawn up for action, inspection, etc. 2. the persons or things themselves: a suspect identified in a police line-up. 3. Sports. the list of the participating players in a game together with their positions: to announce the starting line-up of a game. 4. an organization of people, groups, etc., for some common purpose: a line-up of support for the new tax bill. Also, line′up′. [n. use of v. phrase line up] line′ vec′tor, Math. See sliding vector.

line′ volt′age, the voltage supplied by a power line, measured at the point of use.

line·y (lī′nē), adj., lin·i·er, lin·i·est. liny.

lin ft, linear foot.

ling¹ (liŋ), n., pl. (esp. collectively) ling, (esp. referring to two or more kinds or species) lings. any elongated, marine, gadoid food fish, Molva molva, found in Greenland and northern Europe. 2. the burbot. 3. any of various other elongated food fishes. [ME ling, lenge; c. D leng; akin to Icel langa; so called from its length. See LONG¹] ling² (liŋ), n. the heather, Calluna vulgaris. [ME lyng < Scand; cf. Icel lyng]

-ling¹, a suffix of nouns, often pejorative, denoting one concerned with (hireling; underling), or diminutive (princeling; duckling). [ME, OE; c. G -ling, Icel -lingr, Goth -lings; orig. -l- [OE -la, hypocoristic suffix) + -ing -ING¹]

-ling², an adverbial suffix expressing direction, position, state, etc.: darkling; sideling. [ME, OE; adv. use of gradational var. of -lang LONG¹] ling., linguistics.

lin·ga (liŋ′gə), n. 1. Sanskrit Gram. the masculine gender. 2. [l-] in popular Hinduism) a phallus, symbol of Siva. Also, lin·gam (liŋ′gəm). Cf. yoni. [< Skt, s. of lingam mark, token, phallus]

Lin·ga-yat (liŋ′gä′yit), n. Hinduism. a member of the Lingayata cult. [< Kannarese liṅgāyata; see LINGA] mag′a-zine′ gun′, a gun having a magazine for supplying ammunition.

mag′a-zine rifle, a rifle having a magazine for supplying ammunition.

mag′a-zin-ist (magʹə zēnist), n. a person engaged in magazine work, esp. as a writer. [MAGAZINE + -IST] —mag′a-zin′ism, n.

Mag-da (magʹdə; Ger. mägʹdä), n. a girl's given name. German form of Magdalen.

Mag-da-la (magʹdə lə), n. an ancient town in Palestine, W of the Sea of Galilee: supposed home of Mary Magdalene.

Mag-da-le-na (magʹdə lāʹnə, -lēʹ-; for 1 also Sp. mäg′dä leʹnä), n. 1. a river in SW Colombia, flowing N to the Caribbean. 1060 mi. long. 2. Also, Magdalene, Magdalen. Magdalena, a girl's given name.

Mag′dale′na Bay′, a bay in NW Mexico, on the SW coast of Lower California. 17 mi. long; 12 mi. wide.

Mag-da-lene (magʹdə lēnˌ, magʹdə leʹnē), n. 1. the. See Mary Magdalene. 2. (l.c.) a reformed prostitute. 3. Also, Magdalena, Mag-da-lene (magʹdə lənˌ, -leʹnē), a girl's given name. Also, Mag-da-len (magʹdə lənˌ).

Mag-da-le-ni-an (magʹdə lēʹnē ən), adj. noting the period or culture in the Old Stone Age in which Cro-Magnon man reached his highest level of industry and art. [< F Magdalénien, equiv. to Magdalen- (Latinization of La Madeleine, prehistoric station in Southwestern France) + -ien -IAN]

Mag-de-burg (magʹdə bûrgˌ; Ger. mägʹdə bo͝orkʀ), n. a city in W East Germany. 265,141 (1964).

Mag′deburg hem′isphere, Physics. one of a pair of hemispherical cups from which air can be evacuated when they are forced together: used to illustrate the force of air pressure.

mage (mā̆j), n. Archaic. a magician. [ME < MF < L magi(us). See MAGUS]

M.Ag. Master of Agricultural Economics.

M.Ag.Ed., Master of Agricultural Education.

Mag-el-hanz (mag′əl-hanz′), n. a crater in the fourth quadrant of the face of the moon: about 25 miles in diameter.

Ma-gal-hães (mə jel′ən), n. 1. Ferdinand, c1480–1521. Portuguese navigator: discoverer of the Straits of Magellan 1520 and the Philippines 1521. 2. Strait of, a strait near the S tip of South America between the mainland of Chile and Tierra del Fuego and other islands, connecting the Atlantic and the Pacific. 360 mi. long. 2½–17 mi. wide.

Mage·i·lan bar′berry, an evergreen shrub, Berberis buxifolia, of southern Chile, having prickle-tipped leaves, dark-purple fruits, and orange-yellow flowers.

Mag-el-lan-ic (maj′ə lan′ik), adj. pertaining to or named after Ferdinand Magellan. [MAGELLAN + -IC]

Mag′ellan′ic cloud′, Astron. either of two irregular galactic systems of stars and nebulous matter that are the nearest independent star system to the Milky Way.

Ma·gen Da·vid (mä gän′ dä vēd′, mô′gən dô′vid), Judaism. See Star of David. [< Heb: lit., Shield of David] ma·gen·ta (mə jen′tə), n. 1. fuchsin. 2. reddish purple. [named after MAGENTA; discovered the year of the battle]

Ma·gen·ta (mə jen′tə), n. a town in N Italy, W of Milan: the French and Sardinians defeated the Austrians here 1859. 18,533 (1961).

Mag·gie (mag′ē), n. a girl's given name, form of Margaret.

Mag·gie (mag′ē), n. (Maggie: A Girl of the Streets) a novel (1893) by Stephen Crane.

Mag·gio·re (mə jôr′e, -jōr′e; It. mäd jô′re), n. Lake, a lake in N Italy and S Switzerland. 83 sq. mi.

mag·got (mag′ət), n. a soft-bodied, legless larva of certain dipterous insects. 2. an odd fancy; whim. [ME magot, magat, unexplained var. of maddock, early ME mathek < Scand; cf. Icel mathkr, Dan maddik maggot, akin to OE matha, mathu grub, maggot, OHG mado maggot] mag·got-y (mag′ə tē), adj. 1. infested with maggots, as food. 2. having queer notions; full of whims. [MAGGOT + -Y]

Ma·gi (mā′jī), n.pl., sing. -gus (-gəs). 1. (sometimes l.c.) the three wise men who paid homage to the infant Jesus. Matt. 2:1–12. 2. the class of Zoroastrian priests in ancient Media, regarded by subsequent peoples as supernatural powers. 3. (l.c.) astrologers. Cf. Magus (def. 2). [pl. of MAGUS] —Ma·gi-an (mā′jē ən), adj.

mag·ic (maj′ik), n. 1. the art of producing a desired effect or result through the use of certain techniques, as incantation, that presumably assure human control of supernatural agencies or the forces of nature. Cf. contagious magic, imitative magic, sympathetic magic. 2. the exercise of this art: Magic, it was believed, could drive illness from the body. 3. the effects produced: the magic of records. 4. power or influence exercised through this art: a wizard of great magic. 5. any extraordinary or irresistible influence, charm, power, etc.: the magic in a great name; the magic of music; the magic of spring. 6. any art of conjuring or illusions as entertainment by the use of sleight of hand, deceptive devices, etc.; legerdemain; conjuring: to pull a rabbit out of a hat by magic. —adj. 7. employed in magic: magic spells; magic dances; magic rites. 8. mysteriously enchanting: magic beauty. 9. of, pertaining to, or due to magic. 10. producing the effects of magic; like magic: The camera produced a magic transformation in the appearance. [ME magik(e) witchcraft < LL magica, L magicē < Gk magikḗ, n. use of fem. of magikós. See MAGUS, -IC] —Syn. 1. enchantment. MAGIC, NECROMANCY, SORCERY, WITCHCRAFT imply producing results through mysterious influences or unexplained powers. MAGIC may have either good or bad connotations; the other terms suggest the harmful and sinister. MAGIC is an art of using some occult force of nature: Fifty years ago television would have seemed to be magic. NECROMANCY is the art of foretelling secretly because of communicating with the dead (it is called "the black art," because Greek nekro, dead, was confused with Latin niger black): necromancy to circulating grams. SORCERY, originally divination by casting lots, came to mean supernatural knowledge gained through the aid of evil spirits, and often used for evil ends: spells and charms used in sorcery. WITCHCRAFT esp. suggests a malign kind of magic, often used against innocent victims: Those accused of witchcraft were executed.

mag·ic (maj′ik) adj. magic a magical night, a voice that was magic to the strings. [MAGIC + -AL] mag·i·cal·ly (maj′ik lē), adv. in a magical way or manner. [MAGICAL + -LY]

ma·gi·cian (mə jish′ən), n. 1. a person who is skilled in magic. 2. an entertainer who is skilled in causing illusion by sleight of hand, deceptive devices, etc.; conjurer. [MAGIC + -IAN; r. ME magicien < MF] —Syn. 1. sorcerer, necromancer, enchanter, wizard.

magic lan′tern, a device having an enclosed lamp and a lenslike opening for projecting a magnifying images mounted on slides or films.

Magic square

magic number, Physics. the atomic number or neutron number of an exceptionally stable nuclide.

magic square′, a square containing integers arranged in an equal number of rows and columns so that the sum of the integers in any row, column, or diagonal is the same.

Ma·gin·da·na·o (mä gēn′dä nä′ō, mə gin′də nou′, -nä′ō), n. a language of the Philippines. 2. the Malayo-Polynesian language of the Magindanao.

Ma·gi·not line′ (maj̆ō nō′; Fr. ma zhē nō′), a zone of French fortifications erected along the French-German border in the years preceding World War II. [named after André Maginot (1877–1932), French minister of war]

Ma·gi·nus (maj′ə nəs), n. a walled plain in the third quadrant of the face of the moon: about 110 miles in diameter.

Ma·gis·te·ri·al (maj′i stēr′ē əl), adj. 1. of, pertaining to, or befitting a master; authoritative; weighty; of importance or consequence: a magisterial pronouncement by the chief justice. 2. imperious; domineering: a magisterial tone of command. 3. of or befitting a magistrate or his office: The judge spoke with magisterial gravity. 4. of the rank of a magistrate: magisterial standing. 5. Archaic. of, or of the nature of, a magister. [< L magisteri(um) control, mastery (see MAGISTERY) + -ālis -AL] —mag′is·te′ri·al·ly, adv. —mag′is·te′ri·al·ness, n.

mag·is·te·ri·um (maj′i stēr′ē əm), n. Rom. Cath. Ch. the authority and power of the church to teach religious truth. [< L MAGISTERY] mag·is·ter·y (maj′i stər′ē, -stə rē), n., pl. -ter·ies. 1. an agency or substance, as in alchemy, to which faculties for acting supernaturally, or the like, are ascribed. 2. mastership. [< L magisteri(um), equiv. to magister MASTER + -ium -Y³] mag·is·tra·cy (maj′i strə sē), n., pl. -cies. 1. the office or function of a magistrate. 2. a body of magistrates. 3. the district under a magistrate. Also, mag·is·tra·ture (maj′i strā′chər). [MAGISTRATE(E) + -CY] mag·is·tral (maj′i strəl), adj. 1. Pharm. prescribed or prepared for a particular occasion, as a remedy. Cf. official (def. 1). 2. Fort. principal. 3. Rare. magisterial. —n. 4. See magistral line. [< L magistrāl(is) of a master, equiv. to magistr(o) MASTER + -ālis -AL] —mag′is·tral′i·ty, n. —mag′is·tral·ly, mag·is·trat·i·cal·ly (maj′i strat′ik lē), adv.

Ma·gis′ter Ludi (maj′i stər lo͞o′dī), a novel (1943) by Hermann Hesse.

mag·is·tral line′, Fort. the line from which the position of the principal fire issues. Also, magistral.

mag·is·trate (maj′i strāt′, -strit), n. 1. a civil officer charged with the administration of the law. 2. a minor judicial officer, as a justice of the peace or a police judge, having jurisdiction to try minor criminal cases and to conduct preliminary examinations of persons charged with serious crimes. [ME magistrat < L magistrāt(us) magistracy, magistrate, equiv. to magist(er) MASTER + -ātus -ATE¹] —mag′is·trat′e·ship, n.

Mag·ie·mo·se·an (maj′ē mō′sē ən, -shən, -zhən), adj. of, pertaining to, or characteristic of a Mesolithic culture of northern Europe. Also, Mag′le·mo′se·an. [Maglemose site of Mesolithic station in Denmark + -AN] mag·ma (mag′mə), n., pl. -mas, -ma·ta (-mə tə). 1. any crude mixture of finely divided mineral or organic matter. 2. Geol. molten material beneath or within the earth's crust, from which igneous rock is formed. 3. Chem. a pasty mass composed of solid and liquid matter. [< L: dregs, leavings < Gk: kneaded mass, salve, ointv. to mag- (base of massein to knead, press) + -ma n. suf. denoting result]. —mag·mat·ic (mag mat′ik), adj. mag·mat′ic·al·ly, adv.

magn-, var. of magni- before a vowel: magnanimous.

Mag·na (mag′nə), n. a town in N Utah. 6442 (1960).

Mag·na Char·ta (mag′nə kär′tə), 1. the "great charter" of English liberties, forced from King John by the English barons, and signed at Runnymede in June 1215. 2. any fundamental constitution or law guaranteeing rights: a Magna Charta of racial equality. Also, Magna Carta. [< ML: great charter] mag·na cum lau·de (mag′nə kōōm lou′dē, -dā, -dē; mag′nə kum lô′dē), with great praise: used in diplomas to grant the next-to-highest of three special honors for students above the average. Cf. cum laude, summa cum laude. [< L] mag·na est ve·ri·tas, et prae·va·le·bit (mäg′nä est we′ri täs′, et prī′wä le′bit; Eng. mag′nə est ver′ə təs, pre′və lē′bit), Latin. truth is great and will prevail.

Mag·na Grae·ci·a (mag′nə grē′sē ə; Lat. mäg′nä gri′kē ä′), the ancient Greek cities and settlements of Greece in S Italy.

mag·na·il·um (mag nā′ləm), n. an alloy of magnesium and aluminum, sometimes also containing copper, nickel, tin, and lead. [MAG(NESIUM) + AL(UMINUM) + -UM²]

Mag·na Ma·ter (mäg′nə mä′tər), Rom. Religion. Cybele; Ops; Rhea. [< L: great mother] mag·na·nim·i·ty (mag′nə nim′i tē), n., pl. -ties. 1. quality of being magnanimous. 2. a magnanimous act. [ME magnanimite < L magnanimitās. See MAGNANIMOUS, -TY] mag·nan·i·mous (mag nan′ə məs), adj. 1. generous in forgiving an insult or injury; free from petty resentfulness and vindictiveness. 2. Archaic. high-minded; noble: a magnanimous king. 3. proceeding from or revealing nobility of mind, character, etc: a magnanimous love of justice. [< L magnanimus great-souled, equiv. to magn(us) great + anim(us) spirit, soul, mind + -us -OUS] —mag·nan′i·mous·ly, adv. —mag·nan′i·mous·ness, n.

—Syn. 1. big, liberal, unspiteful. 2. See noble.

3. elevated, lofty.

mag·nate (mag′nāt, -nit), n. 1. a person of great influence, importance, or standing in a particular enterprise, field of business, etc: railroad magnate. 2. a person of eminence or distinction in any field: literary magnates. 3. a member of the former upper house in either the Polish or Hungarian parliament. [back formation from ME magnates (pl.) < ML magn(us) MAGN- + -ātēs, pl. of -ās n. suffix] —mag′nate-ship′, n.

mag·ne·sia (mag nē′zhə, -shə), n. a white, tasteless substance, magnesium oxide, MgO, used in medicine as an antacid and laxative. Cf. milk of magnesia. [ME < ML < Gk (hḕ) Magnēsiē (líthos) (the stone) of MAGNESIA] —mag·ne′sian, mag·ne·sic (mag nē′sik), mag·ne·sial (mag nē′zhəl, -shəl), adj.

Mag·ne·si·a (mag nē′zhə, -shə, -zhē ə), n. ancient name of Manisa.

mag·ne·site (mag′nə sīt′), n. a mineral, magnesium carbonate, $MgCO_3$, having a characteristic conchoidal fracture and usually occurring in white masses. [MAGNES(IA) + -ITE¹; cf. F magnésite] mag·ne·si·um (mag nē′zē əm, -zhəm, -shē əm), n. Chem. a light, silver-white metallic element which burns with a dazzling white light, used in light-weight alloys, flares, fireworks, in the manufacture of flash bulbs, optical mirrors, and precision instruments, and as a zinc substitute in batteries. Symbol: Mg; at. wt.: 24.312; at. no.: 12; sp. gr.: 1.74 at 20°C. [< NL; see MAGNESIA, -IUM] magnesium ar′senate, Chem. a white, when pure, water-insoluble powder, $Mg_3(AsO_4)_2{\cdot}xH_2O$, used chiefly as an insecticide.

magne′sium dīox′ide, Chem. See magnesium peroxide.

magne′sium hydrox′ide, Chem. a white, crystalline, slightly water-soluble powder, $Mg(OH)_2$, used chiefly in medicine as an antacid and as a laxative.

magnes′ium light′, the strongly actinic white light produced when magnesium is burned: used in photography, signaling, pyrotechnics, etc.

magne′sium ox′ide, Chem. magnesia.

magne′sium sul′fate, Chem. a white, tasteless, water-insoluble powder, MgO_2, used as an antiseptic and as an oxidizing and bleaching agent. Also called magnesium dioxide.

magnes′ium sul′fate, Chem. a white, water-soluble salt, $MgSO_4$, used chiefly in medicine and in the processing of leather and textiles. Cf. epsom salt.

magne′sium trisil′icate, Chem. a white, fine, odorless and tasteless powder, $2MgO{\cdot}3SiO_2{\cdot}nH_2O$, used industrially to absorb odors and decolorize and, pharmaceutically, as an antacid.

mag·net (mag′nit), n. 1. a body, as a piece of iron or steel, that possesses the property of attracting certain substances, as iron. 2. a loadstone. 3. a thing or person that attracts, as by some inherent power or charm: The actress found herself the magnet of attention. [late ME magnete < L magnēta < Gk, acc. of magnḗs, short for hó Magnḗs líthos the stone of Magnesia]

mag·net·ic (mag net′ik), adj. 1. of or pertaining to a magnet or magnetism. 2. having the properties of a magnet. 3. capable of being magnetized or attracted by a magnet. 4. pertaining to the magnetic field of the earth: the magnetic equator. 5. exerting a strong attractive power or charm: a magnetic personality. 6. noting or pertaining to various bearings and measurements as indicated by a magnetic compass: magnetic latitude; magnetic course; magnetic meridian. Also, mag·net′i·cal. [< LL magnēticu(s). See MAGNET, -IC] —mag·net′i·cal·ly, adv.

magnet′ic ax′is, Physics. a straight line connecting and extending through the poles of a magnet.

magnet′ic bear′ing, Navig. the bearing of a point relative to that of the nearest magnetic pole.

magnet′ic chart′, a chart showing the magnetic properties of a portion of the earth's surface, giving isogonal lines and often isoclinal and isodynamic lines.

magnet′ic cir′cuit, Physics. the closed path described by lines of force of a magnetic field.

magnet′ic coeffi′cient, Navig. any of various factors affecting the sensitivity of a ship's magnetic compass as a result of its construction or environment.

magnet′ic com′pass, a compass having a magnetized needle generally in line with the magnetic poles of the earth.

magnet′ic concentra′tion, beneficiation of crushed ore in which magnetic mineral is separated from the gangue by means of a magnetic field.

magnet′ic core′, 1. Computer Technol. core¹ (def. 13). 2. Elect. core¹ (def. 3).

magnet′ic course′, Navig. a course whose bearing is given relative to the magnetic meridian of the area. Cf. compass course, true course.

magnet′ic declina′tion, Navig. variation (def. 8).

magnet′ic drum′, Computer Technol. a revolving cylinder in a computer, having a magnetized surface on which information can be stored as small polarized spots.

magnet′ic equa′tor. See aclinic line.

magnet′ic field′, the space around a magnet or in the vicinity of a magnetic or current-carrying substance, manifesting itself as a force on a moving charge or magnetic pole within that space.

magnet′ic flux′, the total number of lines of induction through a given cross section of a surface, expressed in maxwells or webers.

magnet′ic flux′ den′sity, Physics. See magnetic induction.

magnet′ic force′, Physics. the force of attraction or repulsion exerted by a magnetic field upon a magnetic pole, electric charge, etc., placed in the region of the field.

magnet′ic induc′tion, Physics. a vector quantity used as a measure of magnetic field, directly proportional to the force on a moving conductor in the field and inversely proportional to the product of the charge on the conductor and the velocity of the conductor. Symbol: B Also called magnetic flux density.

magnet′ic meri′dian, a line on the earth's surface, passing in the direction of the horizontal component of the earth's magnetic field.

magnet′ic mine′, a large mine moored underwater and set off by any disturbance of its magnetic field, as by the metal hull of a ship. Cf. acoustic mine, contact mine.

magnet′ic mo′ment, Physics. a quantity associated with a given magnet, equal to the product of the pole strength and length of the magnet and having the property that its product with the field intensity of a uniform magnetic field gives the torque tending to move the magnet parallel to the lines of force of the magnet; a vector quantity having the property that its vector product with the magnetic-field vector of a magnetic field equals the torque acting on a given electric current, magnet, or the like, in the magnetic field.

magnet/ic nee/dle, a slender magnetized steel rod which, when adjusted to swing in a horizontal plane, as in a compass, indicates the direction of the earth's magnetic fields or the approximate position of north and south.

magnet/ic north/, north as indicated by a magnetic compass, differing in most places from true north.

magnet/ic pick/up, a phonograph pickup in which the vibrations of the stylus cause variations in or motions of a coil in a magnetic field which produces corresponding variations in an electrical voltage. Cf. crystal pickup.

magnet/ic pole/, 1. the region of a magnet towards which the lines of induction converge (south pole) or from which the lines of induction diverge (north pole). 2. either of the two points on the earth's surface where the dipping needle of a compass stands vertical, one in the arctic, the other in the antarctic. See maps under North Pole, South Pole.

magnet/ic poten/tial, Elect. a scalar quantity, analogous to the electric potential, defined at each point in a given magnetic field to be work done by the field in bringing a unit north pole from infinity to the point. Also called magnetic scalar potential.

magnet/ic pul/ley, Metall. a magnetic device for separating metal from sand, coke, etc.

magnet/ic quan/tum num/ber, Physics. the quantum number that designates the component of the orbital angular momentum in a fixed direction and that can assume integral values between and including the orbital quantum number and the negative of the orbital quantum number.

magnet/ic record/er, a device that records sound on magnetic tape, wire, etc.

magnet/ic record/ing, the process of recording sound or other data on magnetic tape, wire, belts, etc.

magnet/ic roast/ing, Metall. roasting of a nonmagnetic ore mixed with a material that can be separated from gangue by means of a magnetic field.

magnet/ic rota/tion, Optics. See Faraday effect.

mag·net/ics (mag net/iks), n. (construed as sing.) the science of magnetism. [see MAGNETIC, -ICS] magnet/ic sca/lar poten/tial. See magnetic potential.

magnet/ic storm/, a temporary disturbance of the earth's magnetic field, indicated by radiation and streams of charged particles from the sun.

magnet/ic tape/, a ribbon of material, usually with a plastic base, coated on one side (single tape) or both sides (double tape) with a magnetic coating made from oxide, to make it sensitive to impulses from an electromagnet. Also called electromagnetic tape, tape.

magnet/ic varia/tion, Navig. variation (def. 8).

mag·net·ism (mag/ni tiz′əm), n., v., -ized, -iz·ing. n. 1. Chiefly Brit. magnetize. —mag/net·is/er, n.

mag·net·ism (mag′ni tiz′əm), n. 1. the properties of attraction possessed by magnets and the molecular properties common to magnets. 2. the agency producing magnetic phenomena. 3. the science dealing with magnetic phenomena. 4. magnetic or attractive power or charm: the fascination and the magnetism of his smile. [< NL magnētismus(us). See MAGNET, -ISM] mag·net·ite (mag′ni tīt′), n. a very common black iron oxide, Fe_3O_4, that is strongly attracted by magnets: an important iron ore. [MAGNET + -ITE1; cf. G Magnetit] mag·net·iz·a·ble (mag′ni tīz′ə bəl), adj. susceptible to magnetization. [MAGNETIZE + -ABLE] —mag/net·iz′a·bil′i·ty, n.

mag·net·ize (mag′ni tīz′), v.t., -ized, -iz·ing. 1. to communicate magnetic properties to. 2. to exert an attractive or compelling influence upon: The evangelist's voice magnetized his listeners. 3. Archaic. to mesmerize. Also, esp. Brit., magnetise. [MAGNET + -IZE] —mag/net·iz′er, n. —mag·net·iz·a·tion (mag′ni tī zā′shən), n.

mag·ne·to (mag nē′tō), n., pl. -tos. Elect. a small electric generator that uses the magnetic flux from permanent magnets to produce electric current, as a hand-operated generator for signalling or the generator producing alternating current in an internal-combustion engine. Also called magnetoelectric generator, magnetogenerator. [short for MAGNETOELECTRIC GENERATOR] magneto-, a combining form of magnetic, magnetism: magnetochemistry. Also, esp. before a vowel, magnet-.

mag·ne·to-cal·or·ic effect/ (mag nē′tō kə lôr′ik, -lor′-), Physics. an increase or decrease of the temperature of a thermally isolated magnetic substance accompanying an increase or decrease in the intensity of a magnetic field. [MAGNETO- + CALORIC] mag·ne·to-chem·is·try (mag nē′tō kem′i strē), n. the study of magnetic and chemical phenomena in their relation to one another. [MAGNETO- + CHEMISTRY] —mag·ne·to-chem′i·cal, adj.

mag·ne·to-e·lec·tric (mag nē′tō i lek′trik), adj. of or pertaining to the induction of electric current or electromotive force by means of permanent magnets. Also, mag·ne·to-e·lec′tri·cal. [MAGNETO- + ELECTRIC] mag·ne·to·elec·tric·i·ty (mag nē′tō i lek tris′i tē, -ē′lek-), n. electricity developed by the action of magnets. [MAGNETO- + ELECTRICITY] mag·ne·to·gen·er·a·tor (mag nē′tō jen′ə rā′tər), n. magneto. [MAGNETO- + GENERATOR] mag·ne·to·graph (mag nē′tə graf′, -gräf′), n. a recording magnetometer, making visible variations in the earth's magnetic field. [MAGNETO- + GRAPH] —mag·ne·to·graph·ic (mag nē′tə graf′ik), adj.

mag·ne·to·hy·dro·dy·nam·ic (mag nē′tō hī′drō di nam′ik, -dī-), adj. Physics. pertaining to the phenomena associated with the motion of an electrically conducting fluid, as liquid metal or ionized gas, through a magnetic field. [MAGNETO- + HYDRODYNAMIC] mag·ne·to·hy·dro·dy·nam·ics (mag nē′tō hī′drō di nam′iks, -dī-), n. (construed as sing.) Physics. the branch of physics that deals with magnetohydrodynamic phenomena. 2. See MHD. [MAGNETO- + HYDRODYNAMICS] —mag·ne′·to·hy′dro·dy·nam′ic, *adj. —mag·ne′to·hy′dro·dy·nam′i·cal·ly, *adv.

mag·ne·to·me·chan·i·cal ra/tio (mag nē′tō mə kan′i kəl), Physics. the ratio of the angular momentum of a rotating charged particle to its magnetic moment; the reciprocal of the gyromagnetic ratio. [MAGNETO- + MECHANICAL] mag·ne·tom·e·ter (mag′ni tom′i tər), n. an instrument for measuring the intensity of a magnetic field, esp. the earth's magnetic field. [MAGNETO- + -METER] —mag·ne·to·met·ric (mag′nē tō met′rik), adj. —mag/ne·tom′e·try, n.
