

March 4, 1993 e.v. key entry by Bill Heidrick, T.G. of O.T.O.
January 11, 1994 e.v. proofed and conformed to the "Essay Competition Copy" edition of 1906 e.v. by Bill Heidrick T.G. of O.T.O. Descriptions of portraits retained, even though they are not in this edition.
(The winner of the competition was J.F.C.Fuller's "The Star in the West")

File 1 of 3.

Copyright (c) O.T.O.

O.T.O.
P.O.Box 430
Fairfax, CA 94978
USA

(415) 454-5176 ---- Messages only.

This work was originally published in two parallel columns. Where such columns are found in the original, they have been rendered as a single text with "A" or "B" added to the page number at the end of each column: A = end page left column. B = end page right column. On many pages a prefatory paragraph or a concluding group of sentences is full across the page. These instances are noted in curly brackets.

Pages in the original are marked thus at the bottom: {page number} or {page number A} and {page number B} .
Comments and descriptions are also set off by curly brackets {} Comments and notes not in the original are identified with the initials of the source: e.g. WEH note = Bill Heidrick note, etc. Descriptions of illustrations are not so identified, but are simply in curly brackets.

Text Footnotes have been expanded at or near the point of citation within double angle brackets, e.g. <<footnote>>. For poems, most longer footnotes are cited in the text to expanded form below the stanzas.

LIMITED LICENSE

Except for notations added to the history of modification, the text on this diskette down to the next row of asterisks must accompany all copies made of this file. In particular, this paragraph and the copyright notice are not to be deleted or changed on any copies or print-outs of this file. With these provisos, anyone may copy this file for personal use or research. Copies may be made for other individuals at reasonable cost of copying and mailing only, no additional charges may be added. Not for "share-ware" distribution or inclusion in any commercial enterprise.

*****

{ 139}

THE SWORD OF SONG
CALLED BY CHRISTIANS
THE BOOK OF THE BEAST

1904

TO MY OLD FRIEND AND COMRADE IN THE ART

BHIKKHU ANANDA METTEYA

AND TO THOSE

FOOLS

WHO BY THEIR SHORT-SIGHTED STUPIDITY IN ATTEMPTING TO BOYCOTT THIS BOOK HAVE WITLESSLY AIDED THE CAUSE OF TRUTH

I DEDICATE THESE MY BEST WORDS

[ This book is so full of recondite knowledge of various kinds that it seems quite ineffective to annotate every obscure passage. Where references and explanations can be concisely given, this has been done.]

{ columns commence}

"YOU are said!" the Knight said, in an anxious tone; "let me sing you a song to comfort you."<<This passage is a parody on one in "Alice through the Looking-Glass.">>

"Is it very long" Alice asked.

"It's long," said the Knight, "but it's 'very very' beautiful. The name of the song is called 'The Book of the Beast.'"

"Oh! how ugly!" cried Alice.

"Never mind," said the mild creature. "'Some' people call it 'Reason in Rhyme.'"

"But which 'is' the name of the song?" Alice said, trying not to seem too interested.

"Ah, you don't understand," the Knight said, looking a little vexed. "That's what the name is 'called.' The name really 'is' 'Ascension Day and Pentecost; with some Prose Essays and an Epilogue,' just as the title is 'The Sword of Song' you know, just in the same way, just in the same way, just in the same way . . ."

Alice put her fingers in her ears and gave a little scream. "Oh, dear me! That's {140A} harder than ever!" she said to herself, and then, looking determinedly intelligent: "So 'that's' what the song is called. I see. But what 'is' the song?"

"You must be a perfect fool," said the Knight, irritably. "The song is called 'Shout Doubt; or the Agnostic's Anthology,' by the author of 'Gas Manipulation,' 'Solutions,' 'The Management of Retorts,' and other physical works of the first order -- but that's only what it's 'called,' you know."

"Well, what 'is' the song then?" said Alice, who was by this time completely bewildered.

"If I wished to be obscure, child," said the Knight, rather contemptuously, "I should tell you that the Name of the Title was 'What a man of 95 ought to know,' as endorsed by eminent divines, and that. . ." Seeing that she only began to cry, he broke off and continued in a gentler tone: "it 'means,' my dear. . ." He stopped short, for she was taking no notice; but as her figure was bent by sobs into something very like a note of interrogation: "You want to know that it 'is,' {140B} I suppose!" continued the knight, in a superior, but rather offended voice.

"If you would, please, sir!"

"Well, 'that,'" pronounced the knight, with the air of having thoroughly studied the question and reached a conclusion absolutely final and irreversible, "'that,' Goodness only knows. But I will sing it to you."

PRELIMINARY INVOCATION.

NOTHUNG.<<1>>

<<1. The name of Siegfried's sword.>>

THE crowns of Gods and mortals wither;
Moons fade where constellations shone;
Numberless aeons brought us hither;
Numberless aeons beckon us on.
The world is old, and I am strong --
Awake, awake, O Sword of Song!

Here, in the Dusk of Gods, I linger;
The world awaits a World of Truth.
Kindle, O lyre, beneath my finger!
Evoke the age's awful youth!
To arms against the inveterate wrong!
Awake, awake, O Sword of Song!

Sand-founded reels the House of Faith;
Up screams the howl of ruining sect;
Out from the shrine flits the lost Wraith;
"God hath forsaken His elect!"
Confusion sweeps upon the throng --
Awake, awake, O Sword of Song!

Awake to wound, awake to heal
By wounding, thou resistless sword!
Raise the prone priestcrafts that appeal
In agony to their prostrate Lord!
Raise the duped herd -- they have suffered long!
Awake, awake, O Sword of Song!

My strength this agony of the age
Win through; my music charm the old
Sorrow of years: my warfare wage
By iron to an age of gold: --
The world is old, and I am strong --
Awake, awake, O Sword of Song! {141A}

INTRODUCTION TO "ASCENSION DAY AND PENTECOST."

NOT a word to introduce my introduction! Let me instantly launch the Boat of Discourse on the Sea of Religious Speculation, in danger of the Rocks of Authority and the Quicksands of Private Interpretation, Scylla and Charybdis. Here is the strait; what God shall save us from shipwreck? If we choose to understand the Christian (or any other) religion literally, we are at once overwhelmed by its inherent impossibility. Our credulity is outraged, our moral sense shocked, the holiest foundations of our inmost selves assailed by no ardent warrior in triple steel, but by a loathly and disgusting worm. That this is so, the apologists for the religion in question, whichever it may be, sufficiently indicate (as a rule) by the very method of their apology. The alternative is to take the religion symbolically, esoterically; but to move one step in this direction is to start on a journey whose end cannot be determined. The religion, ceasing to be a tangible thing, an object uniform for all sane eyes, becomes rather that mist whereon the sun of the soul casts up, like Brocken spectre, certain vast and vague images of the beholder himself, with or without a glory encompassing them. The function of the facts is then quite passive: it matters little or nothing whether the cloud be the red mist of Christianity, or the glimmering silver-white of Celtic Paganism; the hard grey dim-gilded of Buddhism, the fleecy opacity of Islam, or the mysterious medium of those ancient faiths which come up in as many colours as their investigator has moods.<<"In order to get over the ethical difficulties presented by the naive naturalism of many parts of those Scriptures, in the divine authority of which he firmly believed, Philo borrowed from the Stoics (who had been in like straits in respect of Greek mythology) that great Excalibur which they had forged with infinite pains and skill -- the method of allegorical interpretation. This mighty 'two-handed engine at the door' of the theologian is warranted to make a speedy end of any and every moral or intellectual difficulty, by showing that, taken allegorically, or, as it is otherwise said, 'poetically' or 'in a spiritual sense,' the plainest words mean whatever a pious interpreter desires they should mean" (Huxley, "Evolution of Theology"). -- A. C.>> {141B} If the student has advanced spiritually so that he can internally, infallibly perceive what is Truth, he will find it equally well symbolised in most external faiths.

It is curious that Browning never turns his wonderful faculty of analysis upon the fundamental problems of religion, as it were an axe laid to the root of the Tree of Life. It seems quite clear that he knew what would result if he did so. We cannot help fancying that he was unwilling to do this. The proof of his knowledge I find in the following lines: --

"I have read much, thought much, experienced much,
 Yet would die rather than avow my fear
 The Naples' liquefaction may be false . . .
 I hear you recommend, I might at least
 Eliminate, declassify my faith
 Since I adopt it: keeping what I must
 And leaving what I can; such points as this . . .
 Still, when you bid me purify the same,
 To such a process I discern no end . . .
 First cut the liquefaction, what comes last
 But Fichte's clever cut at God himself? . . .
 I trust nor hand, nor eye, nor heart, nor brain
 To stop betimes: they all get drunk alike.
 The first step, I am master not to take."

This is surely the apotheosis of wilful ignorance! We may think, perhaps, that Browning is "hedging" when, in the last paragraph, he says: "For Blougram, he believed, say, half he spoke,"<<Probably a record for a bishop. -- A. C.>> and hints at some deeper ground. It is useless to say, "This is Blougram and not Browning." Browning could hardly have described the dilemma without seeing it. What he really believes is, perhaps, a mystery.

That Browning, however, believes in universal salvation, though he nowhere (so far as I know) gives his reasons, save as they are summarised in the last lines of the below-quoted stanza of "Apparent Failure," and from his final pronouncement of the Pope on Guido, represented in Browning's masterpiece as a Judas without the decency to hang himself.

"So ("ie." by suddenness of fate) may the truth be flashed out by one blow,
And Guido see one instant and be saved.
Else I avert my face nor follow him
Into that sad obscure sequestered state
Where God unmakes but to remake the soul
He else made first in vain: which must not be." {142A}

This may be purgatory, but it sounds not unlike reincarnation.
It is at least a denial of the doctrine of eternal punishment.
As for myself, I took the first step years ago, quite in ignorance of what the last would lead to. God is indeed cut away -- a cancer from the breast of truth.

Of those philosophers, who from unassailable premisses draw by righteous deduction a conclusion against God, and then for His sake overturn their whole structure by an act of will, like a child breaking an ingenious toy, I take Mansel as my type.<<As represented by his Encyclopaedia article; not in such works as "Limits of Religious Thought." -- A.C.>>

Now, however, let us consider the esoteric idea-mongers of Christianity, Swedenborg, Anna Kingsford, Deussen and the like, of whom I have taken Caird as my example. I wish to unmask these people: I perfectly agree with nearly everything they say, but their claim to be Christians is utterly confusing, and lends a lustre to Christianity which is quite foreign. Deussen, for example, coolly discards nearly all the Old Testament, and, picking a few New Testament passages, often out of their context, claims his system as Christianity.
Luther discards James. Kingsford calls Paul the Arch Heretic. My friend the "Christian Clergyman" accepted Mark and Acts -- until pushed. Yet Deussen is honest enough to admit that Vedanta teaching is identical, but clearer! and he quite clearly and sensibly defines Faith -- surely the most essential quality for the adherent to Christian dogma -- as "being convinced on insufficient evidence." Similarly the dying-to-live idea of Hegel (and Schopenhauer) claimed by Caird as the central spirit of Christianity is far older, in the Osiris Myth of the Egyptians. These ideas are all right, but they have no more to do with Christianity than the Metric System with the Great Pyramid. But see Piazzi Smyth!<<An astronomer whose brain gave way. He prophesied the end of the world in 1881, from measurements made in the Great Pyramid.>> Henry Morley has even the audacity to claim Shelley -- Shelley! -- as a Christian "in spirit."

Talking of Shelley: -- With regard to my open denial of the personal Christian God, may it not be laid to my charge that I have dared to voice in bald language what Shelley {142B} sang in words of surpassing beauty: for of course the thought in one or two passages of this poem is practically identical with that in certain parts of "Queen Mab" and "Prometheus Unbound." But the very beauty of these poems (especially the latter) is its weakness: it is possible that the mind of the reader, lost in the sensuous, nay! even in the moral beauty of the words, may fail to be impressed by their most important meaning. Shelley himself recognised this later: hence the direct and simple vigour of the "Masque of Anarchy."

It has often puzzled athiests how a man of Milton's genius could have written as he did of Christianity. But we must not forget that Milton lived immediately after the most important Revolution in Religion and Politics of modern times: Shelley on the brink of such another Political upheaval. Shakespeare alone sat enthroned above it all like a god, and is not lost in the mire of controversy.<<So it is usually supposed. Maybe I shall one day find words to combat, perhaps to overthrow, this position. "P.S." As, for example, page 185. As a promise-keeper I am the original eleven stone three Peacherine. -- A.C.>> This also, though "I'm no Shakespeare, as too probable," I have endeavoured to avoid: yet I cannot but express the hope that my own enquiries into religion may be the reflection of the spirit of the age; and that plunged as we are in the midst of jingoism and religious revival, we may be standing on the edge of some gigantic precipice, over which we may cast all our impedimenta of lies and trickeries, political, social, moral, and religious, and (ourselves) take wings and fly. The comparison between myself and the masters of English thought I have named is unintentional, though perhaps unavoidable; and though the presumption is, of course, absurd, yet a straw will show which way the wind blows as well as the most beautiful and elaborate vane: and in this sense it is my most eager hope that I may not unjustly draw a comparison between myself and the great reformers of eighty years ago. {143A}

I must apologise (perhaps) for the new note of frivolity in my work: due doubtless to the frivolity of my subject: these poems being written when I was an Advaitist and could not see why -- everything being an illusion -- there should be any particular object in doing or thinking anything. How I have found the answer will be evident from my essay on this subject.<<"Vide infra," "Berashith.">> I must indeed apologise to the illustrious Shade of Robert Browning for my audacious parody in title, style, and matter of his "Christmas Eve and Easter Day." The more I read it the eventual anticlimax of that wonderful poem irritated me only the more. But there is hardly any poet living or dead who so commands alike my personal affection and moral admiration. My desire to find the Truth will be my pardon with him, whose whole life was spent in admiration of Truth, though he never turned its formidable engines against the Citadel of the Almighty.

If I be appealed of blasphemy or irreverence in my treatment of these subjects, I will take refuge in Browning's own apology, from the very poem I am attacking:

"I have done: and if any blames me,

Thinking that merely to touch in brevity
 The topics I dwell on were unlawful --
 Or worse, that I trench with undue levity
 On the bounds of the holy and the awful --
 I praise the heart and pity the head of him
 And refer myself to Thee, instead of him,
 Who head and heart alike discernest,
 Looking below light speech we utter
 Where frothy spume and frequent splutter
 Prove that the soul's depths boil in earnest!"

But I have after all little fear that I am seriously wrong. That I show to my critics the open door of the above city of refuge may be taken as merely another gesture of contemptuous pity, the last insult which may lead my antagonists to that surrender which is the truest victory.

{ full page follows}

PEACE TO ALL BEINGS.

{ 143B}

{ Column format is abandoned for the next full page sections; resumed after as noted. Marginal notes and line numbers alternate for even and odd pages, left to right/right to left, but these have been kept in even page format in this transcription.}

ASCENSION DAY.

Curious posi- tion of poet.	I FLUNG out of chapel{ End note#1} <<1>> and church, Temple and hall and meeting-room, Venus' Bower and Osiris' Tomb,{ #2} And left the devil in the lurch, While God{ #3} got lost in the crowd of gods,{ #4} And soul wend down{ #5} in the turbid tide Of the metaphysical lotus-eyed, (#6) And I was -- anyhow, what's the odds?	5
--------------------------------	---	---

<<1. The numbered notes {end notes only} are given at p. 190.>>

poet. Mine of so many pounds -- pouch even pence of it? (#17)
 Skeleton of Try something easier, (#18) where the bard seems to me poem. Valu- Seeking that light, which I find come in dreams to me.
 able fact for Even as he takes two feasts to enlarge upon, 50 use of lovers. So will I do too to launch my old barge upon.
 Invocation. Analyse, get hints from Newton (#19) or Faraday, (#20)
 Use every weapon -- love, scorn, reason, parody!
 Just where he worships? Ah me! shall his soul,
 Far in some glory, take hurt from a mole
 Grubbing i' th' ground? Shall his spirit not see, 55
 Lightning to lightning, the spirit in me?
 Parody? Shall not his spirit forgive
 Me, who shall love him as long as I live?
 Love's at its height in pure love? Nay, but after
 When the song's light dissolves gently in laughter! 60
 Then and then only the lovers may know
 Nothing can part them for ever. And so,
 Muse, hover o'er me! Apollo, above her!

Imperfect I, of the Moderns, have let alone Greek. (#21) scholastic at- Out of the way Intuition shall shove her. 65 tainments of Spirit and Truth in my darkness I seek.
 author reme- Little by little they bubble and leak;
 died by his Such as I have to the world I discover.
 great spiritual Words -- are they weak ones at best? They shall speak!
 insight.
 His intention. { PAGE 145}

His achieve- Shields? Be they paper, paint, lath? They shall cover 70 ment. Well as them may, the big heart of a lover!
 Plan of poem Swords? Let the lightning of Truth strike the fortress "Conspuez Frowning of God! I will sever one more tress Dieu!" Off the White Beard (#22) with his son's blood besprinkled, Carve one more gash in the forehead (#23) hate-wrinkled: -- 75
 So, using little arms, earn one day better ones;
 Cutting the small chains, (#24) learn soon to unfetter one's Limbs from the large ones, walk forth and be free! --
 So much for Browning! and so much for me!

Apology for Pray do not ask me where I stand! 80 manner of "Who asks, doth err." (#25) At least demand poem. No folly such as answer means!
 A chance for "But if" (you (#26) say) "your spirit weans
 Tibet. Itself of milk-and-water pap,
 And one religion as another 85
 O'erleaps itself and falls on the other; (#27)

You'll tell me why at least, mayhap,
 Our Christianity excites
 Especially such petty spites
 As these you strew throughout your verse." 90
 The chance of birth! I choose to curse
 (Writing in English{ #28} ) just the yoke
 Of faith that tortures English folk.
 I cannot write{ #29} a poem yet
 To please the people in Tibet; 95
 But when I can, Christ shall not lack Peace, while their Buddha I attack.{ #30}

Hopes. Identity of poet. Attention drawn to my highly decorative cover.
 Yet by-and-by I hope to weave
 A song of Anti-Christmas Eve
 And First- and Second-Beast-er Day. 100
 There's one<<1>> { #31} who loves me dearly (vrai!)
 Who yet believes me sprung from Tophet,
 Either the Beast or the False Prophet;
 And by all sorts of monkey tricks
 Adds up my name to Six Six Six. 105
 Retire, good Gallup!{ #32} In such strife her Superior skill makes "you" a cipher! { PAGE 146}
 Ho! I adopt the number. Look
 At the quaint wrapper of this book!<<2>>
 I will deserve it if I can: 110
 It is the number of a Man.{ #33}

<<1. Crowley's mother.>>
 <<2. It had a design of 666 and Crowley's name in Hebrew (which, like most names, adds up to that figure) on the reverse.>>

Necessity of poem.
 So since in England Christ still stands
 With iron nails in bloody hands
 Not pierced, but grasping! to hoist high
 Children on cross of agony, 115
 I find him real for English lives.
 Up with my pretty pair of fives!{ #34}
 I fight no ghosts.

Mysticism "v." literal interpretation.
 Former excused.
 "But why revile"
 (You urge me) "in that vicious style 120
 The very faith whose truths you seem (Elsewhere){ #35} to hold, to hymn supreme
 In your own soul?" Perhaps you know
 How mystic doctrines melt the snow
 Of any faith: redeem it to 125

A fountain of reviving dew.
 So I with Christ: but few receive.
 The Qabalistic Balm,{ #36} believe
 Nothing -- and choose to know instead.
 But, to that terror vague and dread, 130
 External worship; all my life --
 War to the knife! War to the knife!

Buddha rebukes poet.
 Detailed scheme of modified poem.

No! on the other hand the Buddha
 Says: "I'm surprised at you! How could a Person accept my law and still 135
 Use hatred, the sole means of ill,
 In Truth's defence? In praise of light?"
 Well! Well! I guess Brer Buddha's right!
 I am no brutal Cain{ #37} to smash an Abel;
 I hear that blasphemy's unfashionable: 140
 So in quietest way we'll chat about it;
 No need to show teeth, claws of cat about it!
 With gentle words -- fiat exordium;
 Exeat dolor, inret gaudium! { PAGE 147}
 We'll have the ham to logic's sandwich 145
 Of indignation: last bread bland, which
 After our scorn of God's lust, terror, hate,
 Prometheus-fired, we'll butter, perorate
 With oiled indifference, laughter's silver:
 "Omne hoc verbum valet nil, vir"! 150

Aim of poet.
 Indignation of poet. Poet defies his uncle.

Let me help Babu Chander Grish up!
 As a posset of Hunyadi{ #38}
 Clear mind! Was Soudan of the Mahdi
 Not cleared by Kitchener? Ah, Tchhup!
 Such nonsense for sound truth you dish up, 155
 Were I magician, no mere cadì,
 Not Samuel's ghost you'd make me wish up,
 Not Saul's (the mighty son of Kish) up,
 But Ingersoll's or Bradlaugh's pardie!
 By spells and caldron stews that squish up, 160
 Or purifying of the Nadi,{ #39}
 Till Stradivarius or Amati
 Shriek in my stomach! Sarasate,
 Such strains! Such music as once Sadi
 Made Persia ring with! I who fish up 165
 No such from soul may yet cry: Vade
 Retro, Satanás! Tom Bond Bishop!{ #40}

Whip and
 You old screw, Pegasus! Gee (Swish!) up!

spur. Sport- (To any who correctly rhymes{ #41} 170 ing offer. The With Bishop more than seven times
"Times" Com- I hereby offer as emolum-petition out- Ent, a bound copy of this volume.) done.

Sub-species of These strictures must include the liar
genus Chris- Copleston,{ #42} Reverend F. B. Meyer 175 tian included (The cock of the Dissenter's midden, he!)
in poet's And others of the self-same kidney: -- strictures. How different from Sir Philip Sidney!
But "cave os, et claude id, ne
Vituperasse inventus sim."
In English let me render him! 180
'Ware mug, and snap potato-trap!
Or elselv it may haply hap { PAGE 148}
Panel<<1>> in libel I bewail me!
(Funny how English seems to fail me!)
So, as a surgeon to a man, sir, 185
Let me excise your Christian cancer
Impersonally, without vanity,
Just in pure love of poor humanity!

<<1. Scots legal term for defendant.>>

Ascension Day. Here's just the chance you'd have! Behold Moral aspect The warm sun tint with early gold 190 of Christianity Yon spire: to-day's event provide to be discussed My text of wrath -- Ascension-tide!
to prejudice of Oh! 'tis a worthy day to wrest
the metaphysi- Hate's diadem from Jesus' Crest!
cal. Ascends he? 'Tis the very test 195
By which we men may fairly judge,
From the rough roads we mortals trudge
Or God's paths paved with heliotrope,
The morals of the crucified.
(Both standpoints join in one, I hope, 200
In metaphysic's stereoscope!)
But for the moment be denied
A metaphysical inspection --
Bring out the antiseptic soap! --
We'll judge the Christ by simple section, 205
And strictly on the moral side.

Orthodoxy to But first; I must insist on taking be our doxy.<<1>>The ordinary substantial creed

Gipsies barred. Your clergy preach from desk and pulpit Henrik Ibsen Each Sunday; all the bible, shaking 210 and H. G. Its boards with laughter, as you read Wells Each Sunday. Ibsen{ #43} to a full pit
 May play in the moon. If (lunars they)
 They thought themselves to be the play,
 It's little the applause he'd get. 215

<<1. A Romany word for woman. {WEH NOTE: No, it isn't. "Doxy" is from Dutch, for "Doll", hence a darling. "Orthodoxy is my Doxy" is such a cliché that it's used as an example in a dictionary of word origins!}>>

Parson and I met a Christian Clergyman,<<1>> poet. Fugitive The nicest man I ever met.
 nature of We argued of the Cosmic plan.
 dogma in these I was Lord Roberts, he de Wet.{ #44} { PAGE 149} latter days. He tells me when I cite the "Fall" 220
 The Higher "But those are legends, after all."
 Criticism.{ 149m} He has a hundred hills{ #45} to lie in,
 But finds no final ditch{ #46} to die in.
 "Samuel was man; the Holy Spook
 Did not dictate the Pentateuch." 225
 With cunning feint he lures me on
 To loose my pompoms on Saint John;
 And, that hill being shelled, doth swear
 His forces never had been there.
 I got disgusted, called a parley, 230
 (Here comes a white-flag treachery!)
 Asked: "Is there anything you value,
 Will hold to?" He laughed, "Chase me, Charlie!"
 But seeing in his mind that I
 Would not be so converted, "Shall you," 235
 He added, "grope in utter dark?
 The Book of Acts and that of Mark
 Are now considered genuine."
 I snatch a Testament, begin
 Reading at random the first page; -- 240
 He stops me with a gesture sage:
 "You must not think, because I say
 St Mark is genuine, I would lay
 Such stress unjust upon its text,
 As base thereon opinion. Next?" 245
 I gave it up. He escaped. Ah me!
 But so did Christianity.

<<1. The Rev. J. Bowley. The conversation described actually occurred in Mr. Gerald Kelly's studio in Paris.>>

Lord George	As for a quiet talk on physics sane ac
Sanger<<1>> on	Lente, I hear the British Don
the Unknowable.	Spout sentiments more bovine than a sane yak	250
How the crea-	Ever would ruminate upon,
tures talk.	Half Sabbatarian and half Khakimaniac,
	Built up from Paul and John,
	With not a little tincture of Leviticus
	Gabbled pro forma, jaldi,<<2>> a la Psittacus	255
	To aid the appalling hotch-potch; lyre and lute
	Replace by liar and loot, the harp and flute { PAGE 150}
	Are dumb, the drum doth come and make us mute:
	The Englishman, half huckster and half brute,
	Raves through his silk hat of the Absolute.	260
	The British Don, half pedant and half hermit, Begins: "The Ding an sich <<3>> --as Germans term it --"
	We stop him short; he readjusts his glasses,
	Turns to his folio -- 'twill eclipse all precedent,
	Reveal God's nature, every dent a blessed dent!	265
	The Donkey: written by an ass, for asses.

<<1. Proprietor of a circus and menagerie.>>

<<2. Hindustani: quickly.>>

<<3. "Vide infra," Science and Buddhism, and the writings of Immanuel Kant and his successors.>>

Basis of Poem	So, with permission, let us be to be that of	Orthodox to our finger-ends;
the Compro-	What the bulk hold, High Church or Friends,
mise of 1870.	Or hard-shell Baptists -- and we'll see.	270

Non-medical	I will not now invite attack
nature of poem.	By proving white a shade of black,
Crowley J.	Or Christ (as some{ #47} have lately tried)
	An epileptic maniac,
	Citing some cases, "where a dose	275
	Of Bromide duly given in time
	Drags a distemper so morose
	At last to visions less sublime;
	Soft breezes stir the lyre Aeolian,
	No more the equinoctial gales;	280
	The patient reefs his mental sails;
	His Panic din that shocked the Timolian{ #48}
	Admits a softer run of scales --

	Seems no more God, but mere Napoleon Or possibly the Prince of Wales": --	285
	Concluding such a half-cured case With the remark "where Bromide fails! -- But Bromide people did not know Those 1900 years ago." I think we may concede to Crowley an Impartial attitude.	290
No mention will be made of the Figs and the Figs. {151m}	And so I scorn the thousand subtle points Wherein a man might find a fulcrum (Ex utero Matris ad sepulcrum, Et praeter -- such as Huxley tells I'll pierce your rotten harness-joints, Dissolve your diabolic spells, With the quick truth and nothing else.	295 { PAGE 151}
Christian pre- misses ac- cepted. Severe mental strain involved in reading poem.	So not one word derogatory To your own version of the story! I take your Christ, your God's creation, Just at their own sweet valuation. For by this culminating scene, Close of that wondrous life of woe Before and after death, we know How to esteem the Nazarene. Where's the wet towel?	300     305
The Ascension at last! This is a common feat. Prana- yama.	Let us first From Paul right downward to the Schools, That the Ascension's self rehearsed Christ's Godhead by its miracle. Grand! -- but the power is mine as well! In India levitation counts No tithe of the immense amounts Of powers demanded by the wise From Chela ere the Chela rise To Knowledge. Fairy-tales? Well, first, Sit down a week and hold your breath As masters teach{ #49} -- until you burst, Or nearly -- in a week, one saith, A month, perchance a year for you, Hard practice, and yourself may fly -- Yes! I have done it! you may too!	310     315    320  325
Difference be-	Thus, in Ascension, you and I

tween David	Stand as Christ's peers and therefore fit
Douglas	To judge him -- "Stay, friend, wait a bit!"
Home, Sri	(You cry) "Your Indian Yogis fall
Swami	Back to the planet after all,	330
Sabapati	Never attain to heaven and stand
Vamadeva	(Stephen) or sit (Paul){ #50} at the hand
Bhaskara-	Of the most High! -- And that alone,
nanda Saras-	That question of the Great White Throne,
wati and the	Is the sole point that we debate."	335
Christ.	I answer, Here in India wait { PAGE 152}
Latter com-	Samadhi-Dak,{ #51} convenient
pared to	To travel to Maha Meru, { #52}
Madame Hum-	Or Gaurisankar's{ #53} keen white wedge
bert. { 152m}	Spearing the splendid dome of blue,	340
Former com-	Or Chogo's{ #54} mighty flying edge
pared to Keru-	Shearing across the firmament, -- bim; as it is	But, first, to that exact event
written, Run-	You Christians celebrate to-day.
ning and Re-	We stand where the disciples stood	345
turning.	And see the Master float away
	Into that cloudlet heavenly-hued
	Receiving him from mortal sight.
	Which of his sayings prove the true,
	Lightning-bescrawled athwart the blue?	350
	I say not, Which in hearts aright
	Are treasured? but, What after ages
	Engrave on history's iron pages?
	This is the one word of "Our lord";
	"I bring not peace; I bring a sword."	355
	In this the history of the West{ #55}
	Bears him out well. How stands the test?
	One-third a century's life of pain --
	He lives, he dies, he lives again,
	And rises to eternal rest	360
	Of bliss with Saints -- an endless reign!
	Leaving the world to centuries torn
	By every agony and scorn,
	And every wickedness and shame
	Taking their refuge in his Name.	365
Shri Para-	"No Yogi shot his Chandra"{ #56} "so."
nanda ap-	Will Christ return? What ho? What ho!
plauds Yogi.	What? What? "He mediates above
Gerald jeers at	Still with His sire for mercy, love, --"
Jesus.	And other trifles! Far enough	370
	That Father's purpose from such stuff!

John iii. 16.<<1>>You see, when I was young, they said:
 Its importance. "Whate'er you ponder in your head,
 Its implied Or make the rest of Scripture mean, meaning. You can't evade John iii. 16." 375 { PAGE 153}

Exactly! Grown my mental stature,
 I ponder much: but never yet
 Can I get over or forget
 That bitter text's accused nature,
 The subtle devilish omission,{ #57} 380
 The cruel antithesis implied,
 The irony, the curse-fruition,
 The calm assumption of Hell's fevers
 As fit, as just, for unbelievers --
 These are the things that stick beside 385
 And hamper my quite serious wish
 To harbor kind thoughts of the "Fish."{ #58}

<<1. "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.">>

My own vague Here goes my arrow to the gold!
 optimism. Im- I'll make no magpies! Though I hold possibility of Your Christianity a lie, 390 tracing cause Abortion and iniquity, back or effect The most immoral and absurd forward to the -- (A priest's invention, in a word) -- ultimate. Of all religions, I have hope Ethics In the good Dhamma's{ #59} wider scope, 395 individual. Nay, certainty! that all at last,
 However came they in the past,
 Move up or down -- who knows, my friend? --
 But yet with no uncertain trend
 Unto Nibbana in the end. 400
 I do not even dare despise
 Your doctrines, prayers, and ceremonies!
 Far from the word "you'll go to hell!"
 I dare not way "you do not well!"
 I must obey my own mind's laws, 405
 Accept its limits, seek its cause:
 My meat may be your poison! I Hope to convert you by-and-by?
 Never! I cannot trace the chain{ #60}
 That brought us here, shall part again 410
 Our lives -- perchance for aye! I bring
 My hand down on this table-thing,{ #61}
 And that commotion widens thus

	And shakes the nerves of Sirius!
	To calculate one hour's result	415
	I find surpassing difficult; { PAGE 154}
	One year's effect, one moment's cause;
	What mind would estimate such laws?
	Who then (much more!) may act aright,
	Judged by and in ten centuries' sight?	420
	(Yet I believe, whate'er we do
	Is best for me and best for you
	And best for all: I line no brow
	With wrinkles, meditating how.)
Caird's inter-	Well, but another way remains.	425
pretation of	Shall we expound the cosmic plan
Hegel. His	By symbolising God and man identifiatio-	And nature thus? As man contains
n of it with	Cells, nerves, grey matter in his brains,
Christianity	Each cell a life, self-centre, free	430
proved to be	Yet self-subordinate to the whole mystical. His	For its own sake -- expand! -- so we interpretation	Molecules of a central soul,
false.	Time's sons, judged by Eternity.
	Nature is gone -- our joys, our pains,	435
	Our little lives -- and God remains
	Were this the truth -- why! worship then
	Were not so imbecile for men!
	But that's no Christian faith! For where
	Enters the dogma of despair?	440
	Despite his logic's sliver flow
	I must count Caird{ #62} a mystic! No!
	You Christians shall not mask me so
	The plain words of your sacred books
	Behind friend Swedenbrog his spooks!	445
	Says Huxley{ #63} in his works (q.v.)
	"The microcosmic lives change daily
	In state or body" -- yet you gaily
	Arm a false Hegel cap-a-pie--
	Your self, his weapons -- make him wear	450
	False favours of a ladye fayre,
	(The scarlet woman!) bray and blare
	A false note on the trumpet, shout:
	"A champion? Faith's defender! Out!
	Sceptic and sinner! See me! Quail I?"	455
	I cite the Little-go. You stare,
	And have no further use for Paley! { PAGE 155}

Mysticism does      But if you drink your mystic fill not need Christ.      Under the good tree Igdrasil{ #64}      460 Krishna will      Where is at all your use for Christ?
serve, or the      Hath Krishna not at all sufficed?
Carpenter.      I hereby guarantee to pull
The Sacred      A faith as quaint and beautiful
Walrus.      As much attractive to an ass,
God, some      And setting reason at defiance,      465
Vestments, and      As Zionism, Christian Science,
Lady Wimborne.      Or Ladies' League,{ #65} "Keep of the Grass!"
From "Alice through the Looking-Glass."

Fearful aspect      Hence I account no promise worse, of John iii. 16.      Fail to conceive a fiercer curse      470
Than John's third chapter (sixteenth verse).

Universalism.      But now (you say) broad-minded folk Will God get      Think that those words the Master spoke the bara<<1>>      Should save all men at last. But mind!
slam?      The text says nothing of the kind!      475
Read the next verses!<<2>>

<<1. Great slam -- at term of Bridge-Whist. Bara is Hindustani for great.>>
<<2. John iii. 18, "He that believeth not is condemned already.">>

Eternal life.      Then -- one-third Divergent      Of all humanity are steady views of its      In a belief in Buddha's word, desirability.      Possess eternal life already,      480
Buddhist idea.      And shun delights, laborious days
Of labour living (Milton's phrase)
In strenuous purpose to -- ? to cease!
"A fig for God's eternal peace!
True peace is to annihilate      485
The chain of causes men call Fate,
So that no Sattva{ #66} may renew Once death has run life's shuttle through."
(Their sages put it somewhat thus)
What's fun to them is death to us!      490
That's clear at least.

Dogma of      But never mind!
Belief.      Call them idolaters and blind!
We'll talk of Christ. As Shelley sang,
"Shall an eternal issue hang      495 { PAGE 156}
On just belief or unbelief;

And an involuntary act
 Make difference infinite in fact
 Between the right and left-hand thief?
 Belief is not an act of will!" 500

Free will. I think, Sir, that I have you still,
 Herbert Even allowing (much indeed!)
 Spencer. That any will at all is freed,
 And is not merely the result
 Of sex, environment, and cult, 505
 Habit and climate, health and mind,
 And twenty thousand other things!
 So many a metaphysic sings.
 (I wish they did indeed: I find Their prose the hardest of hard reading!) 510

If there is free "But if," you cry, "the world's designed will how can As a mere mirage in the mind, there be pain Up jumps free will." But all I'm pleading or damnation? Is against pain and hell. Freewill 515 not-Self being Then can damn man? No fearful mill, an illusion. Grinding catastrophe, is speeding Self or not-Self Outside -- some whence, some wither? And{ #67} real? Chute I think we easier understand d'Icare. Where Schelling (to the Buddha leading) Calls real not-self. In any case 520
 There is not, there can never be
 A soul, or sword or armour needing,
 Incapable in time or space
 Or to inflict or suffer. We
 I think are gradually weeding 525
 The soil of dualism. Pheugh!
 Drop to the common Christian's view!

I have pity: This is my point; the world lies bleeding: -- had Christ (Result of sin?) -- I do not care; 530 any? The I will admit you anywhere!
 Sheep and the I take your premisses themselves
 Goats. And, like the droll spiteful elves
 They are, they yet outwit your plan.
 I will prove Christ a wicked man { PAGE 157}
 (Granting him Godhead) merciless 535
 To all the anguish and distress
 About him -- save to him it clung
 And prayed. Give me omnipotence?
 I am no fool that I should fence

	That power, demanding every tongue	540
	To call me god -- I would exert
	That power to heal creation's hurt;
	Not to divide my devotees
	From those who scorned me to the close:
	A worm, a fire, a thirst for these;	545
	A harp-resounding heaven for those!
Will Satan be	And though you claim Salvation sure saved? Who	For all the heathen{ #68} -- there again
pardons Judas?	New Christians give the lie to plain
	Scripture, those words which must endure!	550
	(The Vedas say the same!) and though
	His mercy widens ever so,
	I never met a man (this shocks,
	What I now press) so heterodox,
	Anglican, Roman, Methodist,	555
	Peculiar Person -- all the list! --
	I never met a man who called Himself a Christian, but appalled
	Shrank when I dared suggest the hope
	God's mercy could expand its scope,	560
	Extend, or bend, or spread, or straighten
	So far as to encompass Satan
	Or even poor Iscariot.
God's fore-	Yet God created (did he not?)
knowledge of	Both these. Omnisciently, we know!	565
Satan's fall and	Benevolently? Even so!
eternal misery	Created from Himself distinct makes him re-	(Note that! -- it is not meet for you sponsible for	To plead me Schelling and his crew)
it. If he and	These souls, foreknowing how were linked	570
Judas are	The chains in either's Destiny.
finally re-	"You pose me the eternal Why?"
deemed, we	Not I? Again, "Who asks doth err."
might perhaps	But this one thing I say. Perchance
look over the	There lies a purpose in advance	575 { PAGE 158}
matter this	Tending to final bliss -- to stir once. Poet	Some life to better life, this pain books his seat.	Is needful: that I grant again.
Creator in{ 158m}	Did they at last in glory live,
heaven suffers	Satan and Judas { #69} might forgive	580
Hell's pangs,	The middle time of misery,
owing to re-	Forgive the wrong creation first proaches of	Or evolution's iron key bard. Did them -- provided they are passed 585

 Beyond all change and pain at last
 Out of this universe accurst.
 But otherwise! I lift my voice,
 Deliberately take my choice
 Promethean, eager to rejoice,
 In the grim protest's joy to revel 590
 Betwixt Iscariot and the Devil,
 Throned in their midst! No pain to feel,
 Tossed on some burning bed of steel,
 But theirs: My soul of love should swell
 And, on those piteous floors they trod, 595
 Feel, and make God feel, out of Hell,
 Across the gulf impassable,
 That He was damned and I was God!

Ethical and Ay! Let him rise and answer me eloquent de- That false creative Deity, 600 nunciation of Whence came his right to rack the Earth Christian Cos- With pangs of death, { #70 } disease, and birth:
 mogony. No joy unmarred by pain and grief:
 Insult on injury heaped high
 In that quack-doctor infamy 605
 The Panacea of -- Belief!
 Only the selfish soul of man
 Could ever have conceived a plan
 Man only of all life to embrace,
 One planet of all stars to place 610
 Alone before the Father's face;
 Forgetful of creation's stain,
 Forgetful of creation's pain,
 Not dumb! -- forgetful of the pangs
 Whereby each life laments and hangs, 615
 (Now as I speak a lizard { #71 } lies
 In wait for light-bewildered flies) { PAGE 159 }
 Each life bound ever to the wheel { #72 }
 Ay, and each being -- we may guess
 Now that the very crystals feel! -- 620
 For them no harp-resounding court,
 No palm, no crown, but none the less
 A cross, be sure! The worst man's thought
 In hell itself, bereft of bliss,
 Were less unmerciful than this! 625
 No! for material things, I hear,
 Will burn away, and cease to be -- (Nibbana! Ah! Thou shoreless Sea!)

Man, man alone, is doomed to fear,
 To suffer the eternal woe, 630
 Or else, to meet man's subtle foe,
 God -- and oh! infamy of terror!
 Be like him -- like him! And for ever!
 At least I make not such an error:
 My soul must utterly dissever 635
 Its very silliest thought, belief,
 From such a God as possible,
 Its vilest from his worship. Never!
 Avaunt, abominable chief
 Of Hate's grim legions; let me well 640
 Gird up my loins and make endeavour,
 And seek a refuge from my grief,
 O never in Heaven -- but in Hell!

Death-bed of poet. Effect of body on mind.

"Oh, very well!" I think you say,
 "Wait only till your dying day!" 645
 See whether then you kiss the rod,
 And bow that proud soul down to God!"
 I perfectly admit the fact;
 Quite likely that I so shall act!
 Here's why Creation jumps at prayer. 650
 You Christians quote me in a breath
 This, that, the other atheist's death;{ #73}
 How they sought God! Of course! Impair
 By just a touch of fever, chill,
 My health -- where flies my vivid will? 655
 My carcass with quinine is crammed;
 I wish South India were damned;
 I wish I had my mother's nursing,
 Find precious little use in cursing, { PAGE 160}
 And slide to leaning on another, 660
 God, or the doctor, or my mother.
 But dare you quote my fevered word
 For better than my health averred?
 The brainish fancies of a man
 Hovering on delirium's brink:
 "Shall these be classed his utmost span?" 666<<1>>
 All that he can or ought to think?
 No! the strong man and self-reliant
 Is the true spiritual giant.
 I blame no weaklings, but decline 670
 To take their maunderings for mine.

<<1. WEH NOTE: This line deliberately numbered thus in the original.>>

Poem does not      You see I do not base my thesis treat of Palae-      On your Book's being torn to pieces ontology: nor      By knowledge; nor invoke the shade of poet's youth: Of my own boyhood's agony.      675 nor of Christian Soul, shudder not! Advance the blade infamies. Poet Of fearless fact and probe the scar!
forced to mystic You know my first-class memory?
position.      Well, in my life two years there are Twelve years back -- not so very far!      680
Two years whereof no memory stays.
One ageless anguish filled my days
So that no item, like a star
Sole in the supreme night, above
Stands up for hope, or joy, or love.      685
Nay, not one ignis fatuus glides
Sole in that marsh, one agony
To make the rest look light. Abides
The thick sepulchral changeless shape
Shapeless, continuous misery      690
Whereof no smoke-wreaths might escape
To show me whither lay the end,
Whence the beginning. All is black,
Void of all cause, all aim; unkenne'd,
As if I had been dead indeed --      695
All in Christ's name! And I look back,
And then and long time after lack Courage or strength to hurl the creed
Down to the heaven it sprang from! No!
Not this inspires the indignant blow      700 { PAGE 161}
At the whole fabric -- nor the seas
Filled with those innocent agonies
Of Pagan Martyrs that once bled,
Of Christian Martyrs damned and dead
In inter-Christian bickerings,      705
Where hate exults and torture springs,
A lion on anguished flesh and blood,
A vulture on ill-omen wings,
A cannibal{ #74} on human food.
Nor do I cry the scoffer's cry,      710
That Christians live and look the lie
Their faith has taught them: none of these Inspire my life, disturb my peace.
I go beneath the outward faith
Find it a devil or a wrath,      715
Just as my mood or temper tends!

Mystical mean- And thus to-day that "Christ ascends," ing of "Ascen- I take the symbol, leave the fact, sion Day." Decline to make the smallest pact Futility of With your creative Deity, 720 whole discuss- And say: The Christhood-soul in me, sion, in view of Risen of late, is now quite clear facts. Even of the smallest taint of Earth.
Supplanting God, the Man has birth
("New Birth" you'll call the same, I fear,) 725
Transcends the ordinary sphere
And flies in the direction. "x."
(There lies the fourth dimension.) Vex
My soul no more with mistranslations
From Genesis to Revelations, 730
But leave me with the Flaming Star,{ #75}
Jeheshua (See thou Zohar!){ #76}
And thus our formidable Pigeon-{ #77}
Lamb-and-Old-Gentleman religion
Fizzles in smoke, and I am found 735
Attacking nothing. Here's the ground,
Pistols, and coffee -- three in one,
(Alas, O Rabbi Schimeon!)
But never a duellist -- no Son,
No Father, and (to please us most) 740
Decency pleads -- no Holy Ghost!
All vanish at the touch of truth,
A cobweb trio -- like, in sooth, { PAGE 162}
That worthy Yankee millionaire,
And Wealthy nephews, young and fair, 745
The pleasing Crawfords! Lost! Lost! Lost!{ #78}
"The Holy Spirit, friend! beware!"

The reader Ah! ten days yet to Pentecost!
may hope. Come that, I promise you -- but stay!
At present 'tis Ascension Day! 750

Summary. At least your faith should be content.
Reader dis- I quarrel not with this event.
missed to The supernatural element?
chapel I deny nothing -- at the term
It is just Nothing I affirm. 755
The fool (with whom is wisdom, deem
The Scriptures -- rightly!) in his heart
Saith (silent, to himself, apart)
This secret: "HB:Aleph-Yod-Nun-final

Aleph-Lamed-Heh-Yod-Memfinal" { #79}

See the good Psalm! And thus, my friend! 760
My diatribes approach the end
And find us hardly quarrelling.
And yet -- you seem not satisfied?
The literal mistranslated thing
Must not by sinners be denied. 765
Go to you Chapel then to pray!
(I promise Mr. Chesterton { #80}
Before the Muse and I have done
A grand ap-pre-ci-a-ti-on
Of Brixton on Ascension Day.) 770

Future plans of He's gone -- his belly filled enough!
poet. Jesus This Robert-Browning-manque stuff!
dismissed with 'Twill serve -- Mercutio's scratch! -- to show a jest. Where God and I are disagreed. 775
There! I have let my feelings go
This once. Again? I deem not so.
Once for my fellow-creature's need!
The rest of life, for self-control, { #81}
For liberation of the soul! { #82}
This once, the truth! In future, best 780
Dismissing Jesus with a jest.

The Jest. Ah! Christ ascends? { #83} Ascension day?
Old wonders bear the bell { #84} away?
Santos-Dumont, though! Who can say? { PAGE 163}

PENTECOST

Poem dissimi- TO-DAY thrice halves the lunar week
lar to its pre- Since you, indignant, heard me speak decessor. Will Indignant. Then I seemed to be it lead some- So far from Christianity!
where this Now, other celebrations fit time? The time, another song shall flit 5
Reflections on Reponsive to another tune.
the weather, September's shadow falls on June, proper to be-             But dull November's darkest day ginning a con-            Is lighted by the sun of May.                     10 versation in English.

Autobiography            Here's how I got a better learning.
of bard.                   It's a long lane that has no turning!
Lehrjahre.                Mad as a woman-hunted Urning, Wanderjahre.              The lie-chased alethephilist:<<1>>
"The magician            Sorcery's maw gulps the beginner:                     15 of Paris."

In Pains's mill neophytes are grist:
Disciples ache upon the rack.
Five Years I sought: I miss and lack;
Agony hounds lagoan twist;
I peak and struggle and grow thinner.                     20

And get to hate the sight of dinner.
With sacred thirst, I, soul-hydroptic,{ #1}
Read Levi{ #2} and the cryptic Coptic;{ #3}
With ANET' HER-K UAA EN RA,{ #4}
And HB:Samekh-Peh-Resh-Aleph                             25
                            Dalet-Tzaddi-Nun-Yod-Ayin-Vau-Taw-Aleph

While good MacGregor{ #5} (who taught freely us)
Bade us investigate Cornelius
Agrippa and the sorceries black
Of grim Honorius and Abramelin;{ #6}

While, fertile as the teeming spawn                     30
Of pickled lax or stickleback,
Came ancient rituals,{ #7} whack! whack!
Of Rosy Cross and Golden Dawn.{ #8} { PAGE 164}

I lived, Elijah-like, Mt. Carmel in:
All gave me nothing. I slid back                         35
To common sense, as reason bids,
And "hence," my friend, "the Pyramids."

<<1. Truth-lover.>>

My Mahatma.            At last I met a maniac
What price                With mild eyes full of love, and tresses
Kut Humi?                Blanched in those lonely wildernesses                     40

Where he found wisdom, and long hands
Gentle, pale olive 'gainst the sand's
Amber and gold. At sight, I knew him;
Swifter than light I flashed, ran to him,
And at his holy feet prostrated                         45
My head; then, all my being sated
With love, cried "Master! I must know.

Already I can love." E'en so.
 "??????? Oh, The sage saluted me { ...}{ #9}
 how wise { ...{ WEH NOTE: several lines of Devanagari type} ...} 50 Grampa must { ...} have been, { ...}
 Bobbie!" { ...}
 { ...} said I: 55
 "I'm game to work through all eternity,
 Your holiness the Guru Swami!"<<1>> Thus
 I studied with him till he told me { ...{ Devanagari}}{ #10}
 He taught the A B C of Yoga:
 I asked { ...{ Devanagari}}{ #11}{ ...}{ #12} 60
 In strange and painful attitude,{ #13}
 I sat, while he was very rude.{ #14}
 With eyes well fixed on my proboscis,{ #15}
 I soon absorbed the Yogi Gnosis.
 He taught me to steer clear of vices, 65
 The giddy waltz, the tuneful aria,
 Those fatal foes of Brahma-charya;{ #16}
 And said, "How very mild and nice is One's luck to lop out truth in slices,
 And chance to chop up cosmic crises!" 70 { PAGE 165}
 He taught me A, he taught me B,
 He stopped my baccy{ #17} and my tea.
 He taught me Y, he taught me Z,
 He made strange noises in my head.
 He taught me that, he taught me this, 75
 He spoke of knowledge, life, and bliss.
 He taught me this, he taught me that,
 He grew me mangoes in his hat.{ #18}
 I brought him corn: he made good grist of it: --
 And here, my Christian friend, 's the gist of it! 80

<<1. The correct form of address from a pupil to his teacher. See Sabhapaty Swami's pamphlet on Yoga.>>

The philo- First, here's philosophy's despair, sophical im- The cynic scorn of self. I think passe. Practi- At times the search is worth no worry, cal advice. And hasten earthward in a hurry, Advice to poet's Close spirit's eyes, or bid them blink, 85 fat friend. Go back to Swinburne's{ #19} counsel rare, Kissing the universe its rod,
 As thus he sings "For this is God;
 Be man with might, at any rate,

In strength of spirit growing straight 90
And life as light a-living out!"
So Swinburne doth sublimely state,
And he is right beyond a doubt.
So, I'm a poet or a rhymers;
A mountaineer or mountain climber. 95
So much for Crowley's vital primer.
The inward life of soul and heart,
That is a thing occult, apart:
But yet his metier or his kismet
As much as these you have of his met. 100
So -- you be butcher; you be baker;
You, Plymouth Brother, and you, Quaker;
You, Mountebank, you, corset-maker: --
While for you, my big beauty,{ #20} (Chicago packs pork)
I'll teach you the trick to be hen-of-the-walk. 105
Shriek a music-hall song with a double ong-tong!
Dance a sprightly can-can at Paree or Bolong!
Or the dance of Aleiers -- try your stomach at that!
It's quite in your line, and would bring down your fat.
You've a very fine voice -- could you only control it! 110
And an emerald ring -- and I know where you stole it!
But for goodness sake give up attempting Brunnhilde;
Try a boarding-house cook, or a coster's Matilda! { PAGE 166} Still you're young yet, scarce forty -- we'll hope at three score
You'll be more of a singer, and less of a whore. 115

Live out thy Each to his trade! live our our life!
life! Charac- Fondle your child, and buss your wife!
ter of Balti. Trust not, fear not, steer straight and strong!
His religious Don't worry, but just get along.
sincerity. Re- I used to envy all my Balti coolies{ #21} 120 lations of poet In an inverse kind of religious hysteria, and the Egyp- Though every one a perfect fool is,
tian God of To judge by philosophic criteria,
Wisdom. My Lord Archbishop. The name of Winchester, Crowley dis- Harrow, or Eton{ #22} makes them not two inches stir. 125 missed with a They know not Trinity, Merton, or Christchurch; jest. They worship, but not at your back-pews-high-priced Church.
I've seen them at twenty thousand feet
On the ice, in a snow-storm, at night fall, repeat
Their prayers{ #23} -- will you Grace do as much for your Three 130
As they do for their One? I have seen -- may you see!
They sleep and know not what a mat is;

Seem to enjoy their cold chapaties;<<1>>
 Are healthy, strong -- and some are old.
 They do not care a damn{ #24} for cold, 135
 Behave-like children, trust in Allah;
 (Flies in Mohammed's spider-parlour!)
 They may not think: at least they dare
 Live out their lives, and little care
 Worries their souls -- worse fools they seem 140
 Than even Christians. Do I dream?
 Probing philosophy to marrow,
 What thought darts in its poisoned arrow
 But this? (my wisdom, even to me,
 Seems folly) may their folly be 145
 True Wisdom? O esteemed Tahuti!{ #25}
 You are, you are, you are a beauty!
 If after all these years of worship
 You hail Ra{ #26} his bark or Nuit{ #27} her ship { PAGE 167}
 And sail -- "the waters wild a-wenting 150
 Over your child! The left lamenting"
 (Campbell).{ #28} The Ibis head,{ #29} unsuited
 To grin, perhaps, yet does its best
 To show its strong appreciation
 Of the humour of the situation -- 155
 In short, dismiss me, jeered and hooted,
 Who thought I sported Roland's crest,{ #30}
 With wisdom saddled, spurred, and booted,
 (As I my Jesus) with a jest.{ #31}

<<1. A flat cake of unleavened bread. As a matter of fact they do not enjoy and indeed will not eat them, preferring "dok," a paste of coarse flour and water, wrapped round a hot stone. It cooks gradually, and remains warm all day.>>

Slowness of So here is my tribute -- a jolly good strong 'un -- 160
 Divine Justice. To the eunuch, the faddist, the fool, and the wrong 'un!
 Poet pockets it's fun when you say "A mysterious way{ #32}
 Piety Stakes. God moves in to fix up his Maskelyne tricks.
 National An- He trots on the tides, on the tempest he rides them of Natal. (Like Cosmo); and as for his pace, we bethought us 165 Achilles could never catch up with that tortoise!"
 No flyer, but very "Who's Griffiths?"<<1>> No jackpot!
 I straddle the blind, age! At hymns I'm a moral;
 In Sankey, your kettle may call me a black pot.
 Here's diamond for coke, and pink pearl for pale coral. 170
 Though his mills may grind slowly -- what says the old hymn?{ #33}

Tune, Limerick! Author? My memory's dim.
 The corn said "You sluggard!"
 The mill "You may tug hard," (or lug hard, or plug hard;
 I forget the exact Rhyme; that's a fact) 175
 "If I want to grind slowly I shall,"
 A quainter old fable one rarely is able
 To drag from its haunt in the -- smoke room or stable!
 You see (vide supra) I've brought to the test a ton
 Of tolerance, broadness. Approve me, friend Chesterton! 180

<<1. "Who's Griffiths? The safe man." A well-known advertisement, hence "Who's Griffiths" = safe.>>

But this talk is So much when philosophy's lacteal river all indigestion. Turns sour through a trifle of bile on the liver.
 Now for But now for the sane and the succulent milk heath. Of truth -- may it slip down as smoothly as silk!

Reasons for "How very hard it is to be" { #34} 185 undertaking A Yogi! Let our spirits see the task. At least what primal need of thought
 This end to its career has brought: { PAGE 168}
 Why, in a word, I seek to gain
 A different knowledge. Why retain 190
 The husk of flesh, yet seek to merit
 The influx of the Holy Spirit?
 And, swift as caddies pat and cap a tee,
 Gain the great prize all mortals snap at, he-Roic guerdon of Srotapatti? { #35} 195

Our logical With calm and philosophic mind, method. Clas- No fears, no hopes, devotions blind sical allusion. To hamper, soberly we'll state demonstrating The problem, and investigate erudition of In purely scientific mood 200 poet. The sheer Ananke of the mind,
 A temper for our steel to find
 Whereby those brazen nails subdued
 Against our door-posts may in vain
 Ring. We'll examine, to be plain, 205
 By logic's intellectual prism
 The spiritual Syllogism.

Whether or We know what fools (only) call not spirit and Divine and Supernatural matter are dis- And what they name material 210

tinct, let us investigate the fundamental necessities of thought.	Are really one, not two, the line By which divide they and define Being a shadowy sort of test; A verbal lusus at the best, At worst a wicked lie devised To bind men's thoughts; but we must work With our own instruments, nor shirk Discarding what we erstwhile prized; Should we perceive it disagree With the first-born necessity.	215       220
Impermanence of the soul.	I come to tell you why I shun The sight of men, the life and fun You know I can enjoy so well, The Nature that I love as none (I think) before me ever loved. You know I scorn the fear of Hell, By worship and all else unmoved. { PAGE 169} You know for me the soul is nought{ #36} Save a mere phantom in the thought, That thought itself impermanent, Save as a casual element With such another may combine To form now water and now wine; The element itself may be Changeless to all eternity, But compounds ever fluctuate With time or space or various state. (Ask chemists else!) So I must claim Spirit and matter are the same{ #37} Or else the prey of putrefaction. This matters to the present action Little or nothing. Here's your theories! Think if you like: I find it wearies!	225           230            235           240
Recapitulation of principal cosmic theories.	It matters little whether we With Fichte and the Brahmins preach That Ego-Atman sole must be; With Schelling and the Buddha own Non-Ego-Skandhas are alone; With Hegel and -- the Christian? teach That which completes, includes, absorbs Both mighty unrevolving orbs In one informing masterless Master-idea of consciousness -- All differences as these indeed	245           250

Are chess play, conjuring. "Proceed!" 255
 Nay! I'll go back. The exposition
 Above, has points. But simple fission
 Has reproduced a different bliss,
 At last a heterogenesis!

Bard check- The metaphysics of these verses 260 mates himself. Is perfectly absure. My curse is Consciousness No sooner in an iron word and Christi- I formulate my thought than I anity. Perceive the same to be absurd
 Dhyanna and (Tannhauser). So for this, Sir, why! 265
 Hinduism. Your metaphysics in your teeth!
 Sammasamadhi and Confer A. Crowley, "Berashith."
 Buddhism. But hear! The Christian is a Dualist; { PAGE 170}
 Such view our normal consciousness
 Tells us. I'll quote you now if you list 270
 From Tennyson. It isn't much;
 (Skip this and 'twill be even less)
 He says: "I am not what I see,{ #38}
 And other than the things I touch."<<1>>
 How lucid is our Alfred T.! 275
 The Hindu, an Advaitist,
 Crosses off Maya from the list;
 Believes in one -- exactly so,
 Dhyana-consciousness, you know!
 May it not be that one step further 280
 "'Tis lotused Buddha roaring murther!?"{ #39}
 Nibbana is the state above you
 Christians and them Hindus -- Lord love you! -- Where Nothing is perceived as such.

<<1. "In Memoriam.">>

Bard is pleased This clever though doth please me much. 285 with himself.

Poetee mani- But if das Essen is das Nichts -- fests a natural Ha! Hegel's window! Ancient Lichts! irritation. And two is one and one is two -- "Bother this nonsense! Go on, do!"
 My wandering thoughts you well recall! 290
 I focus logic's perfect prism:
 Lo! the informing syllogism!

Sabbe pi Duk- The premiss major. life at best

kham!	Is but a sorry sort of jest;
<<All is	At worst, a play of fiends uncouth,	295
Sorrow.>>	Mocking the soul foredoomed to pain.
	In any case, its run must range
	Through countless miseries of change.
	So far, no farther, gentle youth!
	The mind can see. So much, no more.	300
	So runs the premiss major plain;
	Identical, the Noble truth
	First of the Buddha's Noble Four!
Beyond	The premiss minor. I deplore
thought, is	These limitations of the mind.	305
there hope?	I strain my eyes until they're blind,
Maya again.	And cannot pierce the awful veil { PAGE 171}
Vision of the	That masks the primal cause of being.
Visible image	With all respect to Buddha, fleeing of the Soul of	The dreadful problem with the word	310
Nature, whose	"Who answers, as who asks, hath erred,"
name is Fat-	I must decidedly insist
ality.	On asking why these things exist.
	My mind refuses to admit
	All-Power can be all-Wickedness.	315
	-- Nay! but it may! What shadows flit
	Across the awful veil of mist?
	What thoughts invade, insult, impress?
	There comes a lightning of my wit
	And sees -- nor good nor ill address	320
	Itself to task, creation's ill,
	But mere law without a will,{ #40}
	Nothing resolved in something, fit
	Phantom of dull stupidity,
	And evolution's endless stress	325
	All the inanity to knit Thence: such a dark device I see!
	Nor lull my soul in the caress
	Of Buddha's "Maya fashioned it."{ #41}
	My mind seems ready to agree;	330
	But still my senses worry me.
Futility of all	Nor can I see what sort of gain
investigations	God finds in this creating pain;
of the Mind	Nor do the Vedas help me here.
into the First	Why should the Paramatma cease{ #42}	335
Cause.	From its eternity of peace,
	Develop this disgusting drear

	System of stars, to gather again Involving, all the realm of pain, Time, space, to that eternal calm?	340
	Blavatsky's Himalayan Balm { #43} Aids us no whit -- if to improve Thus the All-light, All-life, All-love, By evolution's myrrh and gall, It would not then have been the All.	345
Faith our only alternative to Despair? So says Mansel.	Thus all conceptions fail and fall. But see the Cyclopaedia-article On "Metaphysics"; miss no particle { PAGE 172} Of thought! How ends the brave B.D., Summarising Ontology? "This talk of 'Real' is a wraith. Our minds are lost in war of word; The whole affair is quite absurd -- Behold! the righteous claims of Faith!" (He does not rhyme you quite so neatly; But that's the sense of it completely.)	350     355
The Advaitist position.	I do not feel myself inclined, In spite of my irreverent mind, So lightly to pass by the schemes Of Fitchte, Schelling, Hegel (one, Small though the apparent unison), As if they were mere drunken dreams; For the first word in India here From Koromandl to Kashmir Says the same thing these Germans said: "Ekam Advaita!"{ #44} one, not two! Thus East and West from A to Z Agree -- Alas! so do not you? (It matters nothing -- you, I find, are but a mode of my own mind.)	360     365   370
Mind's superior functions.	As far as normal reasoning goes, I must admit my concepts close Exactly where my worthy friend, Great Mansel, says they ought to end. But here's the whole thing in a word: Olympus in a nutshell! I Have a superior faculty To reasoning, which makes absurd, Unthinkable and wicked too, A great deal that I know is true!	375     380

In short, the mind is capable,
Besides mere ratiocination,
Of twenty other things as well,
The first of which is concentration!

Does truth	Here most philosophers agree;	385
make itself in-	Claim that the truth must so intend,
stantly appa-	Explain at once all agony
rent? Not	Of doubt, make people comprehend { PAGE 173}
reason.	As by lightning flash, solve doubt
But the results	And turn all Nature inside out:	390
of concentra-	And, if such potency of might
tion do so.	Hath Truth, once state the truth aright,
	Whence came the use of all those pages
	Millions together -- mighty sages
	Whom the least obstacle enrages?	395
	Condemn the mystic if he prove Thinking less valuable than love?
	Well, let them try their various plans!
	Do they resolve that doubt of man's?
	How many are Hegelians?	400
	Thus, though I hold him mostly true.
	But, to teach others that same view?
	Surely long years develop reason.{ #45}
	After long years, too, in thy season
	Bloom, Concentration's midnight flower!	405
	After much practice to this end
	I gain at last the long sought power (Which you believe you have this hour,
	But certainly have not, my friend!)
	Of keeping close the mind to one	410
	Thing at a time -- suppose, the Sun.
	I gain this (Reverence to Ganesh'!){ #46}
	And at that instant comprehend
	(The past and future tenses vanish)
	What Fichte comprehends. Division,	415
	Thought, wisdom, drop away. I see
	The absolute identity
	Of the beholder and the vision.
Some poetry.	There is a lake<<1>> amid the snows
	Wherein five glaciers merge and break.	420
	Oh! the deep brilliance of the lake!
	The roar of ice that cracks and goes
	Crashing within the water! Glows
	The pale pure water, shakes and slides

The glittering sun through emerald tides, 425
So that faint ripples of young light
Laugh on the green. Is there a night { PAGE 174}
So still and cold, a frost so chill,
That all the glaciers be still?
Yet in its peace no frost. 430

<<1. This simile for the mind and its impressions, which must be stilled before the sun of the soul can be reflected, is common in Hindu literature. The five glaciers are, of course, the senses.>>

Arise!
Over the mountains steady stand,
O sun of glory, in the skies
Alone, above, unmoving! Brand
Thy sigil, thy resistless might, 435
The abundant imminence of light!
Ah!

O in the silence, in the dark,
In the intangible, unperfumed,
Ingust abyss, abide and mark 440
The mind's magnificence assumed
In the soul's splendour! Here is peace;
Here earnest of assured release.

Here is the formless all-pervading
Spirit of the World, rising, fading 445
Into a glory subtler still.

Here the intense abode of Will Closes its gates, and in the hall
Is solemn sleep of festival.
Peace! Peace! Silence of peace! 450

O visionless abode! Cease! Cease!
Through the dark veil press on! The veil
Is rent asunder, the stars pale,
The suns vanish, the moon drops, 455
The chorus of the spirit stops,

But one note swells. Mightiest souls
Of Bard and music maker, rolls
Over your loftiest crowns the wheel
Of that abiding bliss. Life flees
Down corridors of centuries 460
Pillar by pillar, and is lost.
Life after life in wild appeal
Cries to the master; he remains
And thinks not.

The polluting tides 465
Of sense roll shoreward. Arid plains
Of wave-swept sea confront me. Nay!

Looms yet the glory through the grey,
And in the darkest hours of youth
I yet perceive the essential truth, 470 { PAGE 175}
Know as I know my consciousness,
That all division's hosts confess
A master, for I know and see
The absolute identity
Of the beholder and the vision. 475

Fact replacing How easy to excite derision folklore, the In the man's mind! Why, fool, I think Christian snig- I am as clever as yourself, gers. Let him At least as skilled to wake the elf beware. Of jest and mockery in a wink. 480
I can dismiss with sneers as cheap
As yours this fabric of my own,
One banner of my mind o'erthrown
Just at my will. How true and deep
Is Carroll{ #47} when his Alice cries: 485
"It's nothing but a pack of cards!"
There's the true refuge of the wise;
To overthrow the temple guards,
Deny reality.

For I speak And now 490
subtly. (I'll quote you Scripture anyhow)
What did the Sage mean when he wrote
(I am the Devil when I quote)
"The mere terrestrial-minded man
Knows not the Things of God, nor can 495
Their subtle meaning understand?"
A sage, I say, although he mentions
Perhaps the best of his inventions,
God.

Results of prac- For, at first, this practice leads 500 tice. The poet To holy thoughts (the holy deeds abandons all to Precede success) and reverent gaze find Truth. Upon the Ancient One of Days, Beyond which fancy lies the Truth.
To find which I have left my youth, 505
All I held dear, and sit alone
Still meditating, on my throne
Of Kusha-grass,{ #48} and count my beads,
Murmur my mantra,{ #49} till recedes
The world of sense and thought -- I sink 510 { PAGE 176}

To -- what abyss's dizzy brink?
And fall! And I have ceased to think!
That is, have conquered and made still Mind's lower powers by utter Will.

Nothing. The Apotheosis of Realism and Idealism alike.      It may be that pure Nought will fail Quite to assuage the needs of thought;
But -- who can tell me whether Nought
Untried, will or will not avail?      515

Gayatri.      Aum! Let us meditate aright{ #50}
On that adorable One Light,      520
Divine Savitri! So may She
Illumine our minds! So mote it be!

Is "The Soul of Osiris" a Hymn Book?
How verse is written.
Prayer.      I find some folks think me (for one)
So great a fool that I disclaim
Indeed Jehovah's hate for shame      525
That man to-day should not be weaned
Of worshipping so foul a fiend
In presence of the living Sun,
And yet replace him oiled and cleaned
By the Egyptian Pantheon,      530
The same thing by another name.
Thus when of late Egyptian Gods
Evoked ecstatic periods
In verse of mine, you thought I praised
Or worshipped them -- I stand amazed.      535
I merely wished to chant in verse
Some aspects of the Universe,
Summed up these subtle forces finely,
And sang of them (I think divinely)
In name and form: a fault perhaps --      540
Reviewers are such funny chaps!
I think that ordinary folk,
Though, understood the things I spoke.
For Gods, and devils too, I find
Are merely modes of my own mind!      545
The poet needs enthusiasm!
Verse-making is a sort of spasm,
Degeneration of the mind,
And things of that unpleasant kind. { PAGE 177}
So to the laws all bards obey      550
I bend, and seek in my own way
By false things to expound the real.
But never think I shall appeal

To Gods. What folly can compare
With such stupidity as prayer? 555

Marvellous an- some years ago I thought to try swer to prayer. Prayer{ #51} -- test its efficacy.
Prayer and I fished by a Norwegian lake.
averages. "O God," I prayed, "for Jesus' sake
Grant thy poor servant all his wish! 560
For every prayer produce a fish!"
Nine times the prayer went up the spout,
And eight times -- what a thumping trout!
(This is the only true fish-story
I ever heard -- give God the glory!) 565
The thing seems cruel now, of course.
Still, it's a grand case of God's force!
But, modern Christians, do you dare
With common prudence to compare
The efficacy of prayer? 570
Who will affirm of Christian sages
That prayer can alter averages?
The individual case allows
Some chance to operate, and thus
Destroys its value quite for us. 575
So that is why I knit my brows
And think -- and find no thing to say
Or do, so foolish as to pray.
"So much for this absurd affair{ #52}
About" validity of prayer. 580
But back! Let once again address
Our minds to super-consciousness!

Are the results You weary me with proof enough of meditation That all this meditation stuff due to auto- Is self-hypnosis. Be it so! 585 hypnosis? Do you suppose I did not know?
Still, to be accurate, I fear
The symptoms are entirely strange.
If I were hard, I'd make it clear
That criticism must arrange 590 { PAGE 178}
An explanation different
For this particular event.
Though surely I may find it queer
That you should talk of self-hypnosis,
When your own faith so very close is 595
To similar experience;
Lies, in a word, beneath suspicion

To ordinary common sense
 And logic's emery attrition. 600
 I take, however, as before
 Your own opinions, and demand
 Some test by which to understand
 Huxley's piano-talk,<<1>> and find
 If my hypnosis may not score
 A point against the normal mind. 605
 (As you are pleased to term it, though!
 I gather that you do not know;
 Merely infer it.)

<<1. See his remarks upon the Rational piano, and the conclusions to which the evidence of its senses would lead it.>>

A test. The Here's a test!
 artist's concen- What in your whole life is the best 610 tration on his Of all your memories? They say work. You paint -- I think you should one day Take me to see your Studio --
 Tell me, when all your work goes right,
 Painted to match some inner light, 615
 What of the outer world you know!
 Surely, your best work always finds Itself sole object of the mind's.
 In vain you ply the brush, distracted
 By something your have heard or acted. 620
 Expect some tedious visitor --
 Your eye runs furtive to the door;
 Your hand refuses to obey;
 You throw the useless brush away.
 I think I hear the Word you say! 625

Yogi but a I practice then, with conscious power more vigorous Watching my mind, each thought controlling, artist. Indig- Hurling to nothingness, while rolling nation of poet The thunders after lightning's flower, { PAGE 179} suppressed by Destroying passion, feeling, thought, 630 Yogi and philo- The very practice you have sought sopher alike. Unconscious, when you work the best.
 I carry on one step firm-pressed
 Further than you the path, and you
 For all my trouble, comment: "True!
 "Auto-hypnosis. Very quaint!"{ #53} 635
 No one supposes me a Saint -- { #54}
 Some Saints to wrath would be inclined

With such a provocation pecked!
 But I remember and reflect 640
 That anger makes a person blind,
 And my own "Chittam" I'd neglect.
 Besides, it's you, and you, I find,
 Are but a mode of my own mind.

Objectivity of But then you argue, and with sense; 645 universe not "I have this worthy evidence discussed. That things are real, since I cease
 The painter's ecstasy of peace,
 And find them all unchanged." To-day
 I cannot brush that doubt away; 650
 It leads to tedious argument
 Uncertain, in the best event:
 Unless, indeed, I should invoke
 The fourth dimension, clear the smoke
 Psychology still leaves. This question 655
 Needs a more adequate digestion.
 Yet I may answer that the universe
 Of meditation suffers less
 From time's insufferable stress
 Than that of matter. On, thou puny verse! 660
 Weak tide of rhyme! Another argument
 Will block the railway train of blague you meant
 To run me over with. This world
 Or that? We'll keep the question furled.

Preferability of But, surely, (let me corner you!) concentration- "You wish the painter-mood were true!" 666 state to the To leave the hateful world, and see normal. Perish the whole Academy;
 So you remain for ever sated.
 On your own picture concentrated! 670 { PAGE 180}

Fifty years of But as for me I have a test Europe worth Of better than the very best.
 a cycle of "Respice finem!" Judge the end;
 Cathay. The man, and not the child, my friend!
 Method of First ecstasy of Pentecost, 675
 Christ. The (You now perceive my sermon's text.)
 poet a Chris- First leap to Sunward flings you vexed tian. By glory of its own riposte
 Back to your mind. But gathering strength
 And nerve, you come (ah light!) at length 680
 To dwell awhile in the caress

Of that strange super-consciousness.
 After one memory -- O abide!
 Vivid Savitri lightning-eyed! --
 Nothing is worth a thought beside. 685
 One hint of Amrita{ #55} to taste
 And all earth's wine may run to waste!
 For by this very means Christ gained{ #56}
 His glimpse into that world above
 Which he denominated "Love." 690
 Indeed I think the man attained
 By some such means -- I have not strained
 Out mind by chance of sense or sex
 To find a way less iron-brained
 Determining direction "x;"{ #57} 695
 I know not if these Hindu methods
 Be best ('tis no such life and death odds,
 Since suffering souls to save or damn
 Never existed). So I fall
 Confessing: Well, perchance I am 700
 Myself a Christian after all!

With reserva-      So far at least. I must concede tions. Deus in      Christ did attain in every deed; machina. Pon-      Yet, being an illiterate man, tius Pilate as a      Not his to balance or to scan, 705
 Surrey Magis-      To call God stupid or unjust!
 trate.              He took the universe on trust;
                       He reconciled the world below
                       With that above; rolled eloquence
                       Steel-tired{ #58} o'er reason's "why?" and "whence?" 710
                       Discarded all proportion just,
                       And thundered in our ears "I know,"
                       And bellowed in our brains "ye must." { PAGE 181}

Mystic mean-      Such reservations -- and I class ing of Pente-      Myself a Christian: let us pass 715 cost.              Back to the text whose thread we lost,
                       And see what means this "Pentecost."

Super-con-      This, then, is what I deem occurred sciousness is      (According to our Saviour's word)
 the gift of the      That all the Saints at Pentecost 720
 Holy Ghost.      Received the gift -- the Holy Ghost;
                       Such gift implying, as I guess,
                       This very super-consciousness.{ #59}
                       Miracles follow as a dower;

	But ah! they used that fatal power	725
	And lost the Spirit in the act.
	This may be fancy or a fact;
	At least it squares with super-sense
	Or "spiritual experience."
Poet not a	You do not well to swell the list	730
materialist.	Of horrid things to me imputed
Mohammed's	By calling me "materialist."
ideas.	At least this thought is better suited
	To Western minds than is embalmed
	Among the doctrines of Mohammed,	735
	The dogma parthenogenetic<<1>>
	As told me by a fat ascetic.
	He said: "Your worthy friends may lack you late,
	But learn how Mary was immaculate!"
	I sat in vague expectant bliss.	740
<<1. Concerning conception of a virgin.>>
Verbatim re-	The story as it runs is this:
port of Moslem	(I quote my Eastern friend{ #60} verbatim!)
account of the	"The Virgin, going to the bath,
Annunciation	Found a young fellow in her path,
	And turned, prepared to scold and rate him!	745
	'How dare you be on me encroaching?'
	The beautiful young gentleman,
	With perfect courtesy approaching,
	Bowed deeply, and at once began:
	'Fear nothing, Mary! All is well!'	750
	I am the angel Gabriel.'
	She bared her right breast;" (query why?)
	"The angel Gabriel let fly { PAGE 182}
	Out of a silver Tube a Dart
	Shooting God's Spirit to her heart" -- { #61}	755
	This beats the orthodox Dove-Suitor!
	What explanation could be cuter
	Than -- Gabriel with a pea-shooter?
Degradation of	In such a conflict I stand neuter.
symbols. Es-	But oh! mistake not gold for pewter!	760
sential identity	The plain fact is: materialise
of all forms of	What spiritual fact you choose,
existence.	And all such turn to folly -- lose
	The subtle splendour, and the wise
	Love and dear bliss of truth. Beware	765

Lest your lewd laughter set a snare
 For any! Thus and only thus Will I admit a difference
 'Twixt spirit and the things of sense.
 What is the quarrel between us? 770
 Why do our thoughts so idly clatter?
 I do not care one jot for matter,
 One jot for spirit, while you say
 One is pure ether, one pure clay.

Practical ad- I've talked too long: you're very good -- 775 vice. I only hope you've understood!
 Remember that "conversion" lurks
 Nowhere behind my words and works.
 Go home and think! my talk refined
 To the sheer needs of your own mind. 780
 You cannot bring God in the compass
 Of human thought? Up stick and thump ass!
 Let human thought itself expand --
 Bright Sun of Knowledge, in me rise!
 Lead me to those exalted skies 785
 To live and love and understand!
 Paying no price, accepting nought --
 The Giver and the Gift are one
 With the Receiver -- O thou Sun
 Of thought, of bliss transcending thought, 790
 Rise where division dies! Absorb
 In glory of the glowing orb
 Self and its shadow! { PAGE 183}

Christian Now who dares mystics not Call me no Christian? And, who cares? 795 true Christians. Read; you will find the Master of Balliol, What think ye Discarding Berkeley, Locke, and Paley, 'll of Crowley? Resume such thoughts and label clear His interlo- "My Christianity lies here!"
 cutor dis- With such religion who finds fault? 800 missed, not Stay, it seems foolish to exalt with a jest, but Religion to such heights as these, with a warning. Refine the actual agonies
 To nothings, lest the mystic jeer
 "So logic bends its line severe 805
 Back to my involuted curve!"
 These are my thoughts. I shall not swerve.
 Take them, and see what dooms deserve
 Their rugged grandeur -- heaven or hell?

Mind the dark doorway there!{ #62} Farewell! 810

Poet yawns. How tedious I always find
That special manner of my mind!

Aum! Aum! let us meditate aright
On that adorable One Light,
Divine Savitri! So may She 815
Illumine our minds! so mote it be!

{ PAGE 184}

NOTES TO ASCENSION DAY AND PENTECOST

"Blind Chesterton is sure to err,
And scan my work in vain;
I am my own interpreter,
And I will make it plain."

NOTE TO INTRODUCTION
{ columns commence}

1 WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE.

AN APPRECIATION

BY ALEISTER CROWLEY.<<1>>

<<1. The lamented decease of the above gentleman forbids all hope (save through the courtesy of Sir Oliver Lodge) of the appearance of the companion article. -
- A.C.>>

IT is a lamentable circumstance that so many colossal brains (W. H. Mallock, &c.) have been hitherto thrown away in attacking what is after all a problem of mere academic interest, the authorship of the plays our fathers accepted as those of Shakespeare. To me it seems of immediate and vital importance to do for Shakespeare what Verrall has done so ably for Euripides. The third tabernacle must be filled; Shaw and "the Human" must have their Superhuman companion. (This is not a scale: pithecanthropoid innuendo is to deprecated.)

Till now -- as I write the sun bursts forth suddenly from a cloud, as if heralding the literary somersault of the twentieth century -- we have been content to accept Shakespeare as orthodox, with common sense; moral to a fault, with certain Rabelaisian leanings: a healthy tone (we say) pervades his work. Never believe it! The sex problem is his Speciality; a morbid decadence (so-called) is hidden i' th' heart o' th' rose. In other words, the divine William is the morning star to Ibsen's dawn, and Bernard Shaw's effulgence.

The superficial, the cynical, the misanthropic will demand proof of such a statement. Let it be our contemptuous indulgence to afford them what they ask.

May I premise that, mentally obsessed, monomaniac indeed, as we must now consider Shakespeare to have been on these points, he was yet artful enough to have concealed his {185A} advanced views -- an imperative necessity, if we consider the political situation, and the virginal mask under which Queen Bess hid the grotesque and hideous features of a Messaline. Clearly so, since but for this concealment even our Shakespearian scholars would have discovered so patent a fact. In some plays, too, of course, the poet deals with less dangerous topics. These are truly conventional, no doubt; we may pass them by; they are foreign to our purpose; but we will take that stupendous example of literary subterfuge -- "King Lear." <<WEH NOTE: All this is very well, and fun; but Crowley overlooks the obvious fact that Shakespeare wrote this play as propaganda. So effective was this "take" on the War of the Roses that it played in very earnest later under the Stuarts with Cromwell!>>

Let me digress to the history of my own conversion.

Syllogistically, -- All great men ("e.g." Shaw) are agnostics and subverters of morals. Shakespeare was a great man. Therefore Shakespeare was an agnostic and a subverter of morals.

"A priori" this is then certain. But --

Who killed Rousseau?
I, said Huxley
(Like Robinson Crusoe),
With arguments true, -- so
I killed Rousseau!

Beware of "a priori!" Let us find our facts, guided in the search by "a priori" methods, no doubt; but the result will this time justify us.

Where would a man naturally hide his greatest treasure? In his most perfect treasure-house.

Where shall we look for the truest thought of a great poet? In his greatest poem.

What is Shakespeare's greatest play? "King Lear."

In "King Lear," then, we may expect the final statement of the poet's mind. The passage that first put me on the track of the amazing discovery for which the world has to thank me is to be found in Act I. Sc. iii. II. 132-149: --

"This is the excellent foppery of the world, that, when we are sick in fortune, -- often the surfeit of our own behaviour, -- we make guilty {185B} of

"Whenever this question is discussed, let us see who speaks the language of sense, and who that of draggle-tailed emotionalism and tepid melodrama."

In the first scene the heroines, who do not care for the old fool their father -- as how could any sane women? Remember Shakespeare is here about to show the folly of filial love as such -- feel compelled, by an act of gracious generosity to a man they despise, yet pity, to say what they think will please the dotard's vanity. Also no doubt the sound commercial instinct was touched by Lear's promise to make acres vary as words, and they determined to make a final effort to get some parsnips buttered after all.

Shakespeare (it is our English boast) was no long-haired squiggle self-yclept bard; but a business man -- see Bishop Blougram's appreciation of him as such.

Shall we suppose him to have deliberately blackguarded in another his own best qualities?

Note, too, the simple honesty of the divine sisters! Others, more subtle, would have suspected a trap, arguing that such idiocy as Lear's could not be genuine -- Cordelia, the Madame Humbert of the play, does so; her over-cleverness leaves her stranded: yet by a certain sliminess of dissimulation, the oiliness of frankness, the pride that apes humility, she "does" catch the best king going. Yet it avails her little. She is hanged like the foul Vivien she is.<<I use the word Vivien provisionally, pending the appearance of an essay to prove that Lord Tennyson was in secret an ardent reformer of our lax modern morals. No doubt, there is room for this. Vivien was perfectly right about the "cycle of strumpets and scoundrels whom Mr. Tennyson has set revolving round the figure of his central wittol," and she was the only one with the courage to say so, and the brains to strip off the barbarous glitter from an idiotic and phantom chivalry.>>

Cordelia's farewell to her sisters shows up the characters of the three in strong relief. Cordelia -- without a scrap of evidence to go on -- accuses her sisters of hypocrisy and cruelty. (This could not have previously existed, or Lear would not have been deceived.)

Regan gravely rebukes her; recommends, as it were, a course of Six Easy Lessons in Minding {186B} Her Own Business; and surely it was unparalleled insolence of the part of a dismissed girl to lecture her more favoured sister on the very point for which she herself was at that moment being punished. It is the spite of baffled dissimulation against triumphant honesty. Goneril adds a word of positive advice. "You," she says in effect, "who prate of duty thus, see you show it to him unto whom you owe it."

That this advice is wasted is clear from Act V. Sc. iii., where the King of France takes the first trivial opportunity<<He leaves her in charge of Marshal Le Fer, whom alone he could trust to be impervious to her wiles, he being devoted to another; for, as an invaluable contemporary MS. has it, "Seccotine colle meme Le Fer.">> to be free of the vile creature he had so foolishly married.

Cordelia goes, and the sisters talk together. Theirs is the language of quiet sorrow for an old man's failing mind; yet a most righteous determination not to allow the happiness of the English people to depend upon his whims. Bad women would have rejoiced in the banishment of Kent, whom they already knew to be their enemy; these truly good women regret it. "Such unconstant starts are we like to have from him as this of Kent's banishment" (Act I. Sc. i, ll 304-5).

In Scene ii. Edmund is shown; he feels himself a man, more than Edgar: a clear-headed, brave, honourable man; but with no maggots. The injustice of his situation strikes him; he determines not to submit.<<This may be, but I think should not be, used as an argument to prove the poet an illegitimate son of Queen Elizabeth.>>

This is the attitude of a strong man, and a righteous one. Primogeniture is wrong enough; the other shame, no fault of his, would make the blood of any free man boil.

Gloucester enters, and exhibits himself as a prize fool by shouting in disjointed phrases what everybody knew. Great news it is, of course, and on discovering Edmund, he can think of nothing more sensible than to ask for more! "Kent banished thus! And France in choler parted! And the king gone to-night! subscrib'd his power! Confin'd to exhibition! All this done upon the gad! Edmund, how now! what news?" (Act I. Sc. ii. ll. 23-26).

Edmund "forces a card" by the simple device of a prodigious hurry to hide it. Gloucester gives vent to his astrological futilities, and falls to anxiomania in its crudest form, -- "We have seen the best of our time: machinations, hollowness, treachery, and all ruinous disorders, follow us disquietly to our graves" (Sc. ii. ll. 125-127).

Edmund, once rid of him, gives us the {187A} plainest sense we are likely to hear for the rest of our lives; then, with the prettiest humour in the world takes the cue of his father's absurdity, and actually plays it on his enemy. Edgar's leg is not so easily pulled -- ("How long have you been a sectary astronomical?" ll. 169, 170) -- and the bastard hero, taking alarm gets right down to business.

In Scene iii. we find Lear's senile dementia taking the peculiarly loathsome forms familiar to alienists -- this part of my subject is so unpleasant that I must skim over it; I only mention it to show how anxious Shakespeare is to show his hidden meaning, otherwise his naturally delicate mind would have avoided the depiction of such phenomena.

All this prepares us for Scene iv., in which we get a glimpse of the way Lear's attendants habitually behave. Oswald, who treats Lear throughout with perfect respect, and only shows honest independence in refusing to obey a man who is not his master, is insulted in language worthier of a bargee than a king; and when he remonstrates in dignified and temperate language is set upon by the ruffanly Kent.

Are decent English people to complain when Goneril insists that this of thing shall not occur in a royal house? She does so, in language nobly indignant, yet restrained: Lear, in the hideous, impotent rage of senility, calls her -- his own daughter -- a bastard (no insult to her, but to himself or his wife, mark ye well!). Albany enters -- a simple, orderly-minded man; he must not be confused with Cornwall, he is at the last Lear's dog; yet even he in decent measured speech sides with his wife. Is Lear quieted? No! He utters the most horrible curse, not excepting that of Count Cenci, that a father ever pronounced. Incoherent threats succeed to the boilings-over of the hideous malice of a beastly mind; but a hundred knights are a hundred knights, and a threat is a threat. Goneril had not fulfilled her duty to herself, to her people, had she allowed this monster of mania to go on.

I appeal to the medical profession; of one doctor will answer me that a man using Lear's language should be allowed control of a hundred armed ruffians [in the face of Kent's behaviour we know what weight to attach to Lear's defence: "Detested kite! thou liest" (I. iv. l. 286)], should ever be allowed outside a regularly appointed madhouse, I will cede the point, and retire myself into an asylum.

In fact, Lear is going mad; the tottering intellect, at no time strong ("tis the infirmity of age; yet he hath ever but slenderly known himself," I. i. ll. 296-7), is utterly cast down by drink and debauchery: he even sees it himself, and with a pointless bestiality from the Fool, fit companion for the -- king -- and in that word {187B} we see all the concentrated loathing of the true Shakespeare for a despotism, massed in one lurid flame, phantasmagoric horror, the grim First Act rolls down.

II.

Act II. Sc. i. adds little new to our thesis, save that in line 80 we see Gloucester (ignorant of his own son's handwriting!) accept the forged letter as genuine, as final proof, with not even the intervention of a Bertillon to excuse so palpable a folly, so egregious a crime. What father of to-day would disinherit, would hunt down to death, a beloved son, on such evidence? Or are we to take it that the eclipse gave proof unshakable of a phenomenon so portentous?

In Scene ii. we have another taste of Kent's gentlemanly demeanour; let our conventionalist interpreters defend this unwarrantable bullying if they dare! Another might be so gross, so cowardly; but not our greatest poet! A good portion of this play, as will be shown later, is devoted to a bitter assault upon the essentially English notion that the pugilist is the supreme device of the Creator for furthering human happiness. (See "Cashel Byron's Profession" for a similar, though more logical and better-worded, attack.) Coarse and violent language continues to disgrace Lear's follower; only Gloucester, the unconscionable ass and villain of Scene i., has a word to say in his defence.

In Scene iii. we have a taste of Edgar's quality. Had this despicable youth the consciousness of innocence, or even common courage, he had surely stood to his trial. Not he! He plays the coward's part -- and his disguise is not even decent.

In Scene iv. we are shown the heroic sisters in their painful task of restraining, always with the utmost gentleness of word and demeanour, the headstrong passions of the miserable king. Lear, at first quiet in stating his fancied wrongs "Reg." 'I am glad to see your highness.' "Lear." 'Regan, I think you are; I know what reason I have to think so: if thou shouldst not be glad, I would divorce me from thy mother's tomb, Sepulchring an adult'ress. ("to Kent"). O! are you free? Some other time for that. Beloved Regan, Thy sister's naught: O Regan! she hath tied Sharp-tooth'd unkindness, like a vulture, here: ("Points to his heart"). I can scarce speak to thee; thou'lt not believe with how deprav'd a quality -- O Regan!' "Reg." 'I pray you, sir, take patience. I have hope!'" (ll. 130-139), an excusable speech, at the first hint that he is not to have it all his own way, falls a-cursing again like the veriest drab or scullion Hamlet ever heard.

Here is a man, deprived on just cause of {188A} half a useless company of retainers. Is this wrong (even were it wrong) such as to justify the horrible curses of ll. 164-168. "All the stor'd vengeance of heaven fall On her ingrateful top! Strike her young bones, You taking airs, with lameness! You nimble lightnings, dart your blinding flames Into her scornful eyes!" With this he makes his age contemptible by the drivell-pathos of ll. 156-158, "Dear daughter, I confess that I am old; Age is unnecessary: on my knees I beg ('Keeling') That you'll vouchsafe me raiment, bed, and food," begging what none ever thought to deny him.

Yet such is the patience of Goneril that even when goaded by all this infamous Billingsgate into speech, her rebuke is the temperate and modest ll. 198-200. "Why not by the hand, sir? How have I offended? All's not offence that indiscretion finds And dotage terms so." If we ask a parallel for such meekness under insult, calumny, and foul abuse, we must seek it not in a human story, but a divine.

The heroines see that no half measures will do, and Lear is stripped of all the murderous retinue -- what scum they are is shown by the fact that not one of them draws sword for him, or even follows him into the storm -- for him in spite of all his loathsomeness, his hatred, his revengefulness -- is Regan's gentle and loving,

"For his particular, I'll receive him gladly."

III.

In Act III. we have another illustration of the morality that passed current with the Tudors, and which only a Shakespeare had the courage to attack. Kent does not stick at treachery -- he makes one gulp of treason -- straining at the gnat of discipline, he swallows the camel of civil war.

It was then, and is even now, the practice of some -- for example, the emigres of the French Revolution -- to invite foreign invasion as a means of securing domestic reaction. The blackguardism implied is beyond language: Shakespeare was perhaps thinking of the proposal, in Mary's reign, to react to Romanism by the aid of Spanish troops. But he will go further than this, will our greatest poet; it were ill that the life of even one child should atone for mere indignity or discomfort to another, were he the greatest in the realm. To-day, we all agree; we smile or sneer if any one should differ.

"King Lear got caught in the rain -- let us go and kill a million men!" is an argument not much understood of Radical Clubs, and even Jingos would pause, did they but take the precaution of indulging in a mild aperient before recording their opinions. {188B}

In Scenes iii., vi., and vii., Edmund, disguised beyond all measure with Gloucester's infamies, honourably and patriotically denounces him.

The other scenes depict the miseries which follow the foolish and the unjust; and Nemesis falls upon the ill-minded Gloucester. Yet Shakespeare is so appreciative of the virtue of compassion (for Shakespeare was, as I shall hope to prove one day, a Buddhist) that Cornwall, the somewhat cruel instrument of eternal Justice, is killed by his servant. Regan avenges her husband promptly, and I have little doubt that this act of excessive courtesy towards a man she did not love is the moral cause of her unhappy end.

I would note that we should not attempt to draw any opinions as to the author's design from the conversation of the vulgar; even had we not Carriolanus to show us what he thought.

IV.

Act IV. develops the plot and is little germane to our matter, save that we catch a glimpse of the unspeakably vile Cordelia, with no pity for her father's serious condition (though no doubt he deserved all he got, he was now harmless, and should have inspired compassion), hanging to him in the hope that he would now reverse his banishment and make her (after a bloody victory) sole heiress of great England.

And were any doubt left in our minds as to who really was the hero of the play, the partizanship of France should settle it. Shakespeare has never any word but ridicule for the French; never aught but praise of England and love for her: are we to suppose that in his best play he is to stultify all his other work and insult the English for the benefit of the ridiculed and hated Frenchman?

Moreover, Cordelia reckons without her host. The British bulldogs make short work of the invaders and rebels, doubtless with the connivance of the King of France, who, with great and praiseworthy acuteness, foresees that Cordelia will be hanged, thus liberating him from his "most filthy bargain": there is but one alarm, and the whole set of scoundrels surrender. Note this well; it is not by brute force that the battle is won; for even if we exonerate the King of France, we may easily believe that the moral strength of the sisters cowed the French.

This is the more evident, since in Act V. Shakespeare strikes his final blow at the absurdity of the duel, when Edmund is dishonestly slain by the beast Edgar. Yet the poet's faith is still strong: wound up as his muse is to tragedy, he retains in Edmund the sublime heroism, the simple honesty, of the {189A} true Christian; at the death of his beloved mistress he cries,

"I was contracted to them both: all three

Now marry in an instant -- "

At the moment of death his great nature (self-accusatory, as the finest so often are) asserts itself, and he forgives even the vilest of the human race, - "I pant for life: some good I mean to do Despite of mine own nature.<<This may merely mean "despite the fact that I am dying -- though I am almost too weak to speak." If so, the one phrase in the play which seems to refute our theory is disposed of. Execution of such criminals would be a matter of routine at the period of the play.>> Quickly send, Be brief in it, to the castle; for my writ Is on the life of Lear and on Cordelia. Nay, send in time" (ll. 245-249).

And in that last supreme hour of agony he claims Regan as his wife, as if by accident; it is not the passionate assertion of a thing doubtful, but the natural reference to a thing well known and indisputable.

And in the moment of his despair; confronted with the dead bodies of the splendid sisters, the catafalque of all his hopes, he can exclaim in spiritual triumph over material disaster -- the victory of a true man's spirit over Fate --

"Yet Edmund was beloved."

Edgar is left alive with Albany, alone of all that crew; and if remorse could touch their brutal and callous souls (for the degeneration of the weakling, well-meaning Albany, is a minor tragedy), what hell could be more horrible than the dragging out of a cancerous existence in the bestial world of hate their hideous hearts had made, now, even for better men, for ever dark and gloomy, robbed of the glory of the glowing Goneril, the royal Regan, and only partially redeemed by the absence of the harlot Cordelia and the monster Lear.

V.

It may possibly be objected by the censorious, by the effete parasites of a grim conventionalism, that I have proved too much. Even by conventional standards Edmund, Goneril, and Regan appear angels. Even on the moral point, the sisters, instead of settling down to an enlightened and by no means overcrowded polygamy, prefer to employ poison. This is perhaps true, of Goneril at least; Regan is, if one may distinguish between star and star, somewhat the finer character.

This criticism is perhaps true in part; but I will not insult the intelligence of my readers. I will leave it to them to take the obvious step and work backwards to the re-exaltation of Lear, Cordelia, Edgar and company, to the heroic fields of their putty Elysium (putty, not {189B} Putney) in their newly-demonstrated capacity as "unnatural" sons, daughters, fathers, and so on.

But I leave it. I am content -- my work will have been well done -- if this trifling essay be accepted as a just installment towards a saner criticism of our holiest writers, a juster appreciation of the glories of our greatest poet, a {190A upper column breaks} possibility jejune yet assuredly historic attempt to place for the first time William Shakespeare on his proper pedestal as an early disciple of Mr. George Bernard Shaw; and by consequence to carve myself a little niche in the same temple: the smallest contributions will be thankfully received. {190B upper column breaks out to full page for one line.}

NOTES TO ASCENSION DAY

{ Columns resume }

1. "I flung out of chapel.{ #1} " -- Browning, "Xmas Eve," III. last line.

3. "Venus' Bower and Osiris' Tomb."{ #2} -- Crowley "Tannhauser."

5. "God."{ #3} -- Hebrew HB:Aleph-Lamed-Heh-Yod-Memfinal, Gen. iii. 5.

5. "gods."{ #4} -- Hebrew HB:Aleph-Lamed-Heh-Yod-Memfinal, Gen. iii. 5.

The Revisers, seeing this most awkward juxtaposition, have gone yet one step lower and translated both words by "God." In other passages, however, they have been compelled to disclose their own dishonesty and translate HB:Aleph-Lamed-Heh-Yod-Memfinal by "gods."

For evidence of this the reader may look up such passages as Ex. xviii. 11; Deut. xxxii. 17; Ps. lxxxii. [in particular, where the word occurs twice, as also the word HB:Aleph-Lamed. But the revisers twice employ the word "God" and once the word "gods." The A. V. has "mighty" in one case]; Gen. xx. 13, where again the verb is plural; Sam. xxviii. 13, and so on.

See the Hebrew Dictionary of Gesenius (trans. Tregelles), Bagster, 1859, "s.v.," for proof that the Author is on the way to the true interpretation of these conflicting facts, as now established -- see Huxley, H. Spencer, Kuenen, Reuss, Lippert, and others -- and his orthodox translator's infuriated snarls (in brackets) when he suspects this tendency to accept facts as facts.

6. "Soul went down."{ #5} -- "The Questions of King Milinda," 40-45, 48, 67, 86-89, 111, 132.

7. "The metaphysical lotus-eyed."{ #6} -- Gautama Buddha.

10. "Childe Roland."{ #7} -- Browning, "Dramatic Romances."

11. "Two hundred thousand Trees."{ #8} -- Browning wrote about 200,000 lines.

13. "Your Reverence."{ #9} -- The imaginary Aunt Sally for the poetic cocoanut.<<Crowley confuses two common pastoral amusements -- throwing wooden balls at cocoanuts and sticks at Aunt Sally.>>

16. "'God's right use of it.'"{ #10} -- "And many an eel, though no adept in god's right reason for it, kept Gnawing his kidneys half a year." -- Shelley, "Peter Bell the Third."

17. "One tree."{ #11} -- Note the altered value of {190A} the metaphor, such elasticity having led Prof. Blumengarten to surmise them to be india-rubber trees.

27. "'Truth, that's the gold.'"{ #12} -- "Two Poets of Croisic," clii. 1, and elsewhere.

28. "'I, you, or Simpkin.'"{ #13} -- "Inn Album," l. 143. "Simpkin" has nothing to do with the foaming grape of Eastern France.

36. "Aischulos."{ #14} -- See Agamemnon (Browning's translation), Preface.

40. "Aristobulus."{ #15} -- May be scanned elsehow by pedants. Cf. Swinburne's curious scansion: Aristophanes. But the scansion adopted here gives a more creditable rhyme.

42. GR:Beta-alpha-tau-rho-alpha-chi-omicron-mu-epsilon-omicron-mu-alpha-chi-iota-alpha.{ #16} -- Aristophanes Batrachoi.

46. "Mine of so many pounds -- pouch even pence of it?"{ #17} -- This line was suggested to me by a large holder of Westralians.

47. "Something easier."{ #18} -- "Christmas Eve and Easter Day."

51. "Newton."{ #19} -- Mathematician and physicist of repute.

51. "Faraday."{ #20} -- See Dictionary of National Biography.

64. "I, of the Moderns, have alone Greek."{ #21} -- As far as they would let me. I know some.

74. "Beard."{ #22} -- " 150. A Barba Senioris Sanctissimi pendet omnis ornatus omnium: & influenza; nam omnia appellantur ab illa barba, Influentia.

"151. His est ornatus omnium orantium: Influentie superiores & inferiores omnes respiciunt istam Influentiam.

"152. Ab ista influenza dependet vita omnium.

"153. Ab hac influenza dependent coeli & terra; pluviae beneplaciti; & alimenta omnium.

"154. Ab hac influenza venit providentia omnium. Ab hac influenza dependent omnes exercitus superiores & inferiores.

"155. Tredecim fontes olei magnificentiae boni, dependent a barba hujus influenzae gloriosae; & omnes emanant in Microprosopum.

"156. Ne dicas omnes; sed novem ex iis inveniuntur ad inflectenda judicia.

"157. Et quando haec influenza aequaliter pendet usque ad praecordia omnes Sancitates Sancitatum Sancitatis ab illa dependent. { 190B}

"158. In istam influentiam extenditur expansio aporrhoeae supernae, quae est caput omnium capitum: quod non cognoscitur nec perficitur, quodque non norunt nec superi, nec inferi: propterea omnia ab ista influenza dependent.

"159. In hanc barbam tria capita de quibus diximus, expandantur, & omnia consociantur in hac influenza, & inveniuntur in ea.

"160. Et propterea omnis ornatus orantium ab ista influenza dependent.

"161. Istaee literae, quae dependent ab hoc Seniore, omnes pendent in ista barba, & consolciantur in ista influenza.

"162. Et pendent in ea ad stabiliendas literas alteras.

"163. Nisi enim illae literae ascenderent in Seniore, reliquae istae literae non stabilirentur.

"164. Et propterea dicit Moses cum opus esset: Tetragrammaton, Tetragrammaton bis: & ita ut accentus distinguat utrumque.

"165. Certe enim ab influenza omnia dependent.

"166. Ab ista influenza ad reverentiam adiguntur superna & inferna, & flectuntur coram ea.

"167. Beatus ille, qui ad hac usque per tingit.

"Idra Suta, seu Synodus minor." Sectio VI.

"496. "Forehead."{ #23} -- Fons Cranii est frons ad visitandum: (Al. ad eradicandum) peccatoras.

"497. Et cum ista frons detegitur tunc excitantur Domini Judiciorum, contra illos qui non erubescunt in operibus suis.

"498. Haec frons ruborem habet roseum. Sed illo tempore, cum frons Senioris erga hanc frontem detegitur, haec apparent alba ut nix.

"499. Et illa hora vocatur Tempus beneplaciti pro omnibus.

"500. In libro Dissertationis Scholae Raf Jebha Senis dicitur: Frons est receptaculum frontis Senioris. Sin minus, litera Cheth inter duas reliquas interponitur, justa illud: (Num. xxiv. 17) HB:Vau-Mem-Heh-Tzaddifinal et confinget angulos Moab.

"501. Et alibi diximus, quod etiam vocetur HB:Nun-Tzaddi-Heh, literis vicinis permutatis: id est, superatio.

"502. Multae autem sunt Superationes: ita ut Superatio alia elevata sit in locum alium: & aliae dentur Superationes quae extenduntur in totum corpus.

"503. Die Sabbathi autem tempore precum pomeridianarum, ne excitentur judicia, detegitur frons Senioris Sanctissimi.

"504. Et omnia judicia subiguntur; & quamvis extent, tamen non exercentur. (Al. et sedantur.)

"505. Ab hac fronte dependent viginti quatuor tribunalia, pro omnibus illis, qui protervi sunt in operibus.

"506. Sicut scriptum est: (Ps. lxxii. 11.) Et dixerunt: quomodo sit Deus? Et estne scientia in excelso? {191A}

"507. At vero viginti saltem sunt. cur adduntur quatuor? nimirum respectu suppliciorum, tribunalium inferiorum, quae a supernis dependent.

"508. Remenent ergo viginti. Et propterea neminem supplicio capitali afficiunt, donec compleverit & ascenderit ad viginti annos; respectu viginti horum tribunalium.

"509. Sed in thesi nostra arcana docuimus, per ista respici vigniti quatuor libros qui continentur in Lege.

"Idra Suta, seu Synodus minor." Sectio XIIIv

77. "Chains."{ #24} -- Sakka"h"a-di"tt"hi. Vi"k"iki"kkh"a, silabbata-paramasa, kama, patigha, ruparaga, aruparaga, mano, uddha"kk"a, avi"gg"a.

81. "'Who asks doth err.'"{ #25} -- Arnold, "light of Asia."

83. "You."{ #26} -- You!

86. "'O'erleaps itself and falls on the other.'"{ #27} -- "Macbeth," I. vii. 27.

92. "English."{ #28} -- This poem is written in English.

94. "I cannot write."{ #29} -- This is not quite true. For instance: { 8 lines in what looks like Tibetan lettering}

This, the opening stanza of my masterly poem on Ladak, reads: -- "The way was long, and the wind was cold: the Lama was infirm and advanced in years; his prayer-wheel, to revolve which was his only pleasure, was carried by a disciple, an orphan."

There is a reminiscence of some previous incarnation about this: European critics may possibly even identify the passage. But at least the Tibetans should be pleased.<<They were; thence the pacific character of the British expedition of 1904. -- A. C.>> {191B}

97. "while their Buddha I attack." -- Many Buddhists think I fill the bill with the following remarks on --

<<1. WEH NOTE: This essay may have been inspired by Blake's argument between Satan and the Archangel -- whereby Satan demonstrates that Christ broke every one of the Ten Commandments.>>

Unwilling as I am to sap the foundations of the Buddhist religion by the introduction of Prophecy's terrible catapult, Allegory. I am yet compelled by the more fearful ballista of Aristotle, Dilemma. This is the two-handed engine spoken of by the prophet Milton!<<"Lycidas," line 130.>>

This is the horn of the prophet Zeruah, and with this am I, though no Syrian, utterly pushed, till I find myself back against the dead wall of Dogma. Only now realising how dead a wall that is, do I turn and try the effect of a hair of the dog that bit me, till the orthodox "literary"<<The school whose Buddhism is derived from the Canon, and who ignore the degradation of the professors of the religion, as seen in practice.>> school of Buddhists, as grown at Rangoon, exclaim with Lear: "How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is To have an intellect!" How is this? Listen, and hear!

I find myself confronted with the crux: that, a Buddhist, convinced intellectually and philosophically of the truth of the teaching of Gotama; a man to whom Buddhism is the equivalent of scientific methods of Thought; an expert in dialectic, whose logical faculty is bewildered, whose critical admiration is extorted by the subtle vigour of Buddhist reasoning; I am yet forced to admit that, this being so, the Five Precepts<<The obvious caveat which logicians will enter against these remarks is that Pansil is the Five Virtues rather than Precepts. Etymologically this is so. However, we may regard this as a clause on my side of the argument, not against it; for in my view these are virtues, and the impossibility of attaining them is the cancer of existence. Indeed, I support the etymology as against the futile bigotry of certain senile Buddhists of to-day. And, since it is the current interpretation of Buddhist thought that I attack, I but show myself the better Buddhist in the act. -- A. C.>> are mere nonsense. If the Buddha spoke scientifically, not popularly, not rhetorically, then his precepts are not his. We must reject them or we must interpret them. We must inquire: Are they meant to be obeyed? Or -- and this is my theory -- are they sarcastic and biting criticisms on existence, illustrations of the First Noble Truth; "reasons," as it were, for the apotheosis of annihilation? I shall show that this is so. Let me consider them "precept upon precept," if the introduction of the Hebrew visionary is not too strong meat for the Little Mary<<A catch word for the stomach, from J. M. Barrie's play "Little Mary.">> of a Buddhist audience.

{ 192B}

THE FIRST PRECEPT.

This forbids the taking of life in any form.<<Fielding, in "The soul of a People," has reluctantly to confess that he can find no trace of this idea in Buddha's own work, and calls the superstition the "echo of an older Faith." -- A. C.>> What we have to note is the impossibility of performing this; if we can prove it to be so, either Buddha was a fool, or his command was rhetorical, like those of Yahweh to Job, or of Tannhauser to himself --

"Go! seek the stars and count them and explore!
Go! sift the sands beyond a starless sea!"

Let us consider what the words can mean. The "Taking of Life" can only mean the reduction of living protoplasm to dead matter: or, in a truer and more psychological sense, the destruction of personality.

Now, in the chemical changes involved in Buddha's speaking this command, living protoplasm was changed into dead matter. Or, on the other horn, the fact (insisted upon most strongly by the Buddha himself, the central and cardinal point of his doctrine, the shrine of that Metaphysic which isolates it absolutely from all other religious metaphysic, which allies it with Agnostic Metaphysic) that the Buddha who had spoken this command was not the same as the Buddha before he had spoken it, lies the proof that the Buddha, by speaking this command, violated it. More, not only did he slay himself; he breathed in millions of living organisms and slew them. He could not eat nor drink nor breathe without murder implicit in each act. Huxley cites the "pitiless microscopist" who showed a drop of water to the Brahmin who boasted himself "Ahimsa" -- harmless. So among the "rights" of a Bhikkhu is medicine. He who takes quinine does so with the deliberate intention of destroying innumerable living beings; whether this is done by stimulating the phagocytes, or directly, is morally indifferent.

How such a fiend incarnate, my dear brother Ananda Maitriya, can call him "cruel and cowardly" who only kills a tiger, is a study in the philosophy of the mote and the beam!<<The argument that the "animals are our brothers" is merely intended to mislead one who has never been in a Buddhist country. The average Buddhist would, of course, kill his brother for five rupees, or less. - A. C. {WEH NOTE: This footnote is left floating at the bottom of the page without a text referent. Probably it goes here, with a typo in the form of an exclamation mark replacing the dagger that would have drawn it to this point.}>>

Far be it from me to suggest that this is a defence of breathing, eating, and drinking. By no means; in all these ways we bring suffering and death to others, as to ourselves. But since these are inevitable acts, since suicide would be a still more cruel alternative (especially in case something should subsist below mere Rupa), the command is not to achieve {192B} the impossible, the already violated in the act of commanding, but a bitter commentary on the foul evil of this aimless, hopeless universe, this compact of misery, meanness, and cruelty. Let us pass on.

THE SECOND PRECEPT.

The Second Precept is directed against theft. Theft is the appropriation to one's own use of that to which another has a right. Let us see therefore whether or no the Buddha was a thief. The answer of course is in the affirmative. For to issue a command is to attempt to deprive another of his most precious possession -- the right to do as he will; that is, unless, with the predestinarians, we hold that action is determined absolutely, in which case, of course, a command is as absurd as it is unavoidable. Excluding this folly, therefore, we may conclude that if the command be obeyed -- and those of Buddha have gained a far larger share of obedience than those of any other teacher -- the Enlightened One was not only a potential but an actual thief. Further, all voluntary action limits in some degree, however minute, the volition of others. If I breathe, I diminish the stock of oxygen available on the planet. In those far distant ages when Earth shall be as dead as the moon is to-day, my breathing now will have robbed some being then living of the dearest necessity of life.

That the theft is minute, incalculably trifling, is no answer to the moralist, to whom degree is not known; nor to the scientist, who sees the chain of nature miss no link.

If, on the other hand, the store of energy in the universe be indeed constant (whether infinite or no), if personality be indeed delusion, then theft becomes impossible, and to forbid it is absurd. We may argue that even so temporary theft may exist; and that this is so is to my mind no doubt the case. All theft is temporary, since even a millionaire must die; also it is universal, since even a Buddha must breathe.

THE THIRD PRECEPT.

This precept, against adultery, I shall touch but lightly. Not that I consider the subject unpleasant -- far from it! -- but since the English section of my readers, having unclean minds, will otherwise find a fulcrum therein for their favourite game of slander. Let it suffice if I say that the Buddha -- in spite of the ridiculous membrane legend, <<Membrum virile illius in membrana inclusum esse aiunt, ne copulare posset.>> one of those foul follies which idiot devotees invent only too freely -- was a confirmed and habitual adulterer. It {193A} would be easy to argue with Hegel-Huxley that he who thinks of an act commits it ("cf." Jesus also in this connection, though he only knows the creative value of desire), and that since A and not-A are mutually limiting, therefore interdependent, therefore identical, he who forbids an act commits it; but I feel that this is no place for metaphysical hair-splitting; let us prove what we have to prove in the plainest way.

I would premise in the first place that to commit adultery in the divorce Court sense is not here in question.

It assumes too much proprietary right of a man over a woman, that root of all abomination! -- the whole machinery of inheritance, property, and all the labyrinth of law.

We may more readily suppose that the Buddha was (apparently at least) condemning incontinence.

We know that Buddha had abandoned his home; true, but Nature has to be reckoned with. Volition is no necessary condition of offence. "I didn't mean to" is a poor excuse for an officer failing to obey an order.

Enough of this -- in any case a minor question; since even on the lowest moral grounds -- and we, I trust, soar higher! -- the error in question may be resolved into a mixture of murder, theft, and intoxication. (We consider the last under the Fifth Precept.)

THE FOURTH PRECEPT.

Here we come to what in a way is the fundamental joke of these precepts. A command is not a lie, of course; possibly cannot be; yet surely an allegorical order is one in essence, and I have no longer a shadow of a doubt that these so-called "precepts" are a species of savage practical joke.

Apart from this there can hardly be much doubt, when critical exegesis has done its damndest on the Logia of our Lord, that Buddha did at some time commit himself to some statement. "(Something called) Consciousness exists" is, said Huxley, the irreducible minimum of the pseudo-syllogism, false even for an enthymeme, "Cogito, ergo sum!" This proposition he bolsters up by stating that whoso should pretend to doubt it, would thereby but confirm it. Yet might it not be said "(something called) Consciousness appears to itself to exist," since Consciousness is itself the only witness to that confirmation? Not that even now we can deny some kind of existence to consciousness, but that it should be a more real existence than that of a reflection is doubtful, incredible, even inconceivable. If by consciousness we mean the normal consciousness, it is definitely untrue, since the {193B} Dhyanic consciousness includes it and denies it. No doubt "something called" acts as a kind of caveat to the would-be sceptic, though the phrase is bad, implying a "calling." But we can guess what Huxley means.

No doubt Buddha's scepticism does not openly go quite as far as mine -- it must be remembered that "scepticism" is merely the indication of a possible attitude, not a belief, as so many good fool folk think; but Buddha not only denies "Cogito, ergo sum"; but "Cogito, ergo non sum." See "Sabbasava Sutta." par. 10.<<Quoted below, "Science and Buddhism," note.>>

At any rate Sakkyaditthi, the delusion of personality, is in the very forefront of his doctrines; and it is this delusion that is constantly and inevitably affirmed in all normal consciousness. That Dhyanic thought avoids it is doubtful; even so, Buddha is here represented as giving precepts to ordinary people. And if personality be delusion, a lie is involved in the command of one to another. In short, we all lie all the time; we are compelled to it by the nature of things themselves -- paradoxical as that seems -- and the Buddha knew it!

THE FIFTH PRECEPT.

At last we arrive at the end of our weary journey -- surely in this weather we may have a drink! East of Suez, <<"Ship me somewhere East of Suez, where a man can raise a thirst." -- R. KIPLING.>> Trombone-Macaulay (as I may surely say, when Browning writes Banjo-Byron <<"While as for Quip Hop o' my Thumb there, Banjo-Byron that twangs the strum-strum there." -- BROWNING, "Pachiarotto" (said of A. Austin).>>) tells us, a man may raise a Thirst. No, shrieks the Blessed One, the Perfected One, the Enlightened One, do not drink! It is like the streets of Paris when they were placarded with rival posters --

Ne buvez pas de l'Alcool!
L'Alcool est un poison!

and Buvez de l'Alcool!

L'Alcool est un aliment!

We know now that alcohol is a food up to a certain amount; the precept, good enough for a rough rule as it stands, will not bear close inspection. What Buddha really commands, with that grim humour of his, is: Avoid Intoxication.

But what is intoxication? unless it be the loss of power to use perfectly a truth-telling set of faculties. If I walk unsteadily it is owing to nervous lies -- and so for all the phenomena of drunkenness. But a lie involves the assumption {194A} of some true standard, and this can nowhere be found. A doctor would tell you, moreover, that all food intoxicates: all, here as in all the universe, of every subject and in every predicate, is a matter of degree.

Our faculties never tell us true; our eyes say flat when our fingers say round; our tongue sends a set of impression to our brain which our hearing declares non-existent -- and so on.

What is this delusion of personality but a profound and centrally-seated intoxication of the consciousness? I am intoxicated as I address these words; you are drunk -- beastly drunk! -- as you read them; Buddha was as drunk as a British officer when he uttered his besotted command. There, my dear children, is the conclusion to which we are brought if you insist that he was serious!

I answer No! Alone among men then living, the Buddha was sober, and saw Truth. He, who was freed from the coils of the great serpent Theli coiled round the universe, he knew how deep the slaver of that snake had entered into us, infecting us, rotting our very bones with poisonous drunkenness. And so his cutting irony -- drink no intoxicating drinks!

--

When I go to take Pansil, <<To "take Pansil" is to vow obedience to these Percepts.>> it is in no spirit of servile morality; it is with keen sorrow gnawing at my heart. These five causes of sorrow are indeed the heads of the serpent of Desire. Four at least of them snap their fangs on me in and by virtue of my very act of receiving the commands, and of promising to obey them; if there is a little difficulty about the fifth, it is an omission easily rectified -- and I think we should all make a point about that; there is great virtue in completeness.

Yes! Do not believe that the Buddha was a fool; that he asked men to perform the impossible or the unwise. <<I do not propose to dilate on the moral truth which Ibsen has so long laboured to make clear: that no hard and fast rule of life can be universally applicable. Also, as in the famous case of the lady who saved (successively) the lives of her husband, her father, and her brother, the precepts clash. To allow to die is to kill -- all this is obvious to the most ordinary thinkers. These precepts are of course excellent general guides for the vulgar and ignorant, but you and I, dear reader, are wise and clever, and know better. Nichtwar?

Excuse my being so buried in "dear Immanuel Kant" (as my friend Miss Br. c.{A.C.SUB NOTE: A fast woman who posed as a bluestocking.} would say) that this biting and pregnant phrase slipped out unaware. As a rule, of course, I hate the introduction of foreign tongues into an English essay. -- A. C.>> Do not believe that the sorrow of existence is so trivial that easy rules {194B} easily interpreted (as all Buddhists do interpret the Precepts) can avail against them; do not mop up the Ganges with a duster; nor stop the revolution of the stars with a lever of lath.

Awake, awake only! let there be ever remembrance that Existence is sorrow, sorrow by the inherent necessity of the way it is made; sorrow not by volition, not by malice, not by carelessness, but by nature, by ineradicable tendency, by the incurable disease of Desire, its Creator, is it so, and the way to destroy it is by uprooting of Desire; nor is a task so formidable accomplished by any threepenny-bit-in-the-plate-on-Sunday morality, the "deceive others and self-deception will take care of itself" uprightness, but by the severe roads of austere self-mastery, of arduous scientific research, which constitute the Noble Eightfold Path.

101-105. "There's one . . . Six Six Six."{ #31} -- This opinion has been recently (and most opportunely) confirmed by the Rev. Father Simons, Roman Catholic Missionary (and head of the Corner in Kashmir Stamps), Baramulla, Kashmir.

106. "Gallup."{ #32} -- for information apply to Mr. Sidney Lee.

111. "'It is the number of a Man.'"{ #33} -- Rev. xlii. 18.

117. "Fives."{ #34} -- Dukes.

122. ("Elsewhere."){ #35} -- See "Songs of the Spirit" and other works.

128. "the Qabalistic Balm."{ #36} -- May be studied in "The Kabbalah ("sic") Unveiled" (Redway). It is much to be wished that some one would undertake the preparation of an English translation of Rabbi Jischak Ben Loria's "De Revolutionibus Animarum," and of the book "Beth Elohim."

139. "Cain."{ #37} -- Gen. iv. 8.

152. "Hunyadi."{ #38} -- Hunyadi Janos, a Hungarian table water.

161. "Nadi."{ #39} -- For this difficult subject refer to the late Swami Vivekananda's "Raja Yoga."

167. "Tom Bond Bishop."{ #40} -- Founder of the "Children's Scripture Union" (an Association for the Dissemination of Lies among Young People) and otherwise known as a philanthropist. His relationship to the author (that of uncle) has procured him this rather disagreeable immortality.

He was, let us hope, no relation to George Archibald Bishop, the remarkable preface to whose dreadfully conventionally psychopathic works is this.

PREFACE<<1>>

<<1. To a collection of MSS. illustrating the "Psychopathia Sexualis" of von Kraft-Ebling. The names of the parties have been changed.>>

In the fevered days and nights under the Empire that perished in the struggle of 1870, {195A} that whirling tumult of pleasure, scheming, success, and despair, the minds of men had a trying ordeal to pass through. In Zola's "La Curee" we see how such ordinary and natural characters as those of Saccard, Maxime, and the incestuous heroine, were twisted and distorted from their normal sanity, and sent whirling into the jaws of a hell far more affryant than the mere cheap and nasty brimstone Sheol which is the Shibboleth for the dissenter, and with which all classes of religious humbug, from the Pope to the Salvation ranter, from the Mormon and the Jesuit to that mongrel mixture of the worst features of both, the Plymouth Brother, have scared their illiterate, since hypocrisy was born, with Abel, and spiritual tyranny, with Jehovah! Society, in the long run, is eminently sane and practical; under the Second Empire it ran mad. If these things are done in the green tree of Society, what shall be done in the dry tree of Bohemianism? Art always has a suspicion to fight against; always some poor mad Max Nordau is handy to call everything outside the kitchen the asylum. Here, however, there is a substratum of truth. Consider the intolerable long roll of names, all tainted with glorious madness. Baudelaire the diabolist, debauchee of sadism, whose dreams are nightmares, and whose waking hours delirium; Rollinat the necrophile, the poet of phthisis, the anxiomaniac; Peladan, the high priest -- of nonsense; Medes, frivolous and scoffing sensualist; besides a host of others, most alike in this, that, below the cloak of madness and depravity, the true heart of genius burns. No more terrible period than this is to be found in literature; so many great minds, of which hardly one comes to fruition; such seeds of genius, such a harvest of -- whirlwind! Even a barren waste of sea is less saddening than one strewn with wreckage.

In England such wild song found few followers of any worth or melody. Swinburne stands on his solitary pedestal above the vulgar crowds of priapistic plagiarists; he alone caught the fierce frenzy of Baudelaire's brandied shrieks, and his First Series of Poems and Ballads was the legitimate echo of that not fierier note. But English Art as a whole was unmoved, at any rate not stirred to any depth, by this wave of debauchery. The great thinkers maintained the even keel, and the windy waters lay not for their frailer barks to cross. There is one exception of note, till this day unsuspected, in the person of George Archibald Bishop. In a corner of Paris this young poet (for in his nature the flower of poesy did spring, did even take root and give some promise of a brighter bloom, till stricken and blasted in later years by the lightning of his own sins) was steadily writing day after day, night after {195B} night, often working forty hours at a time, work which he destined to entrance the world. All England should ring with his praises; by-and-by the whole world should know his name. Of these works none of the longer and more ambitious remains. How they were lost, and how those fragments we possess were saved, is best told by relating the romantic and almost incredible story of his life.

The known facts of this life are few, vague, and unsatisfactory; the more definite statements lack corroboration, and almost the only source at the disposal of the biographer is the letters of Mathilde Doriac to Mdme. J. S., who has kindly placed her portfolio at my service. A letter dated October 15, 1866, indicates that our author was born on the 23rd of that month. The father and mother of George were, at least on the surface, of an extraordinary religious turn of mind. Mathilde's version of the story, which has its source in our friend himself, agrees almost word for word with a letter of the Rev. Edw. Turle to Mrs. Cope, recommending the child to her care. The substance of the story is as follows.

The parents of George carried their religious ideas to the point of never consummating their marriage!<<Will it be believed that a clergyman (turned Plymouth Brother and schoolmaster) actually made an identical confession to a boy of ten years old?>> This arrangement does not seem to have been greatly appreciated by the wife; at least one fine morning she was found to be enceinte. The foolish father never thought of the hypothesis which commends itself most readily to a man of the world, not to say a man of science, and adopted that of a second Messiah! He took the utmost pains to conceal the birth of the child, treated everybody who came to the house as an emissary of Herod, and finally made up his mind to flee into Egypt! Like most religious maniacs, he never had an idea of his own, but distorted the beautiful and edifying events of the Bible into insane and ridiculous ones, which he proceeded to plagiarise.

On the voyage out the virgin mother became enamoured, as was her wont, of the nearest male, in this case a fellow-traveller. He, being well able to support her in the luxury which she desired, easily persuaded her to leave the boat with him by stealth. A small sailing vessel conveyed them to Malta, where they disappeared. The only trace left in the books of earth records that this fascinating character was accused, four years later, in Vienna, of poisoning her paramour, but thanks to the wealth and influence of her newer lover, she escaped.

The legal father, left by himself with a squalling child to amuse, to appease in his tantrums, {196A} and to bring up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, was not a little perplexed by the sudden disappearance of his wife. At first he supposed that she had been translated, but, finding that she had not left the traditional mantle behind her, he abandoned this supposition in favour of quite a different, and indeed a more plausible one. He now believed her to be the scarlet woman in the Apocalypse, with variations. On arrival in Egypt he hired an old native nurse, and sailed for Odessa. Once in Russia he could find Gog and Magog, and present to them the child as Antichrist. For he was now persuaded that he himself was the First Beast, and would ask the sceptic to count his seven heads and ten horns. The heads, however, rarely totted up accurately!

At this point the accounts of Mr. Turle and Mathilde diverge slightly. The cleric affirms that he was induced by a Tartar lady, of an honourable and ancient profession, to accompany her to Tibet "to be initiated into the mysteries." He was, of course, robbed and murdered with due punctuality, in the town of Kiev. Mathilde's story is that he travelled to Kiev on the original quest, and died of typhoid or cholera. In any case, he died at Kiev in 1839. This fixes the date of the child's birth at 1837. His faithful nurse conveyed him safely to England, where his relatives provided for his maintenance and education.

With the close of this romantic chapter in his early history we lose all reliable traces for some years. One flash alone illumines the darkness of his boyhood; in 1853, after being prepared for confirmation, he cried out in full assembly, instead of kneeling to receive the blessing of the officiating bishop, "I renounce for ever this idolatrous church;" and was quietly removed.

He told Mathilde Doriac that he had been to Eton and Cambridge -- neither institution, however, preserves any record of such admission. The imagination of George, indeed, is tremendously fertile with regard to events in his own life. His own story is that he entered Trinity College, Cambridge, in 1856, and was sent down two years later for an article which he had contributed to some University or College Magazine. No confirmation of any sort is to be found anywhere with regard to these or any other statements of our author. There is however, no doubt that in 1861 he quarrelled with his family; went over to Paris, where he settled down, at first, like every tufthead, somewhere in the Quarter Latin; later, with Mathilde Doriac, the noble woman who became his mistress and held to him through all the terrible tragedy of his moral, mental, and physical life, in the Rue du Faubourg-Poissonniere. At his house there the rightful scene {196B} of '68 took place, and it was there too that he was apprehended after the murders which he describes so faithfully in "Abysmos." He had just finished this poem with a shriek of triumph, and had read it through to the appalled Mathilde "avec des yeux de flamme et de gestes incoherentes," when foaming at the mouth, and "hurlant de blasphemes indicibles," he fell upon her with extraordinary violence of passion; the door opened, officers appeared, the arrest was effected. He was committed to an asylum, for there could be no longer any doubt of his complete insanity; for three weeks he had been raving with absinthe and satyriasis. He survived his confinement no long time; the burning of the asylum with its inmates was one of the most terrible events of the war of 1870. So died one of the most talented Englishmen of his century, a man who for wide knowledge of men and things was truly to be envied, yet one who sold his birthright for a mess of bestlier pottage than ever Esau guzzled, who sold soul and body to Satan for sheer love of sin, whose mere lust of perversion is so intense that it seems to absorb every other emotion and interest. Never since God woke light from chaos has such a tragedy been unrolled before men, step after step toward the lake of Fire!

At his house all his writings were seized, and, it is believed, destroyed. The single most fortunate exception is that of a superbly jewelled writing-case, now in the possession of the present editor, in which were found the MSS. which are here published. Mathilde, who knew how he treasured its contents, preserved it by saying to the officer, "But, sir, that is mine." On opening this it was found to contain, besides these MSS., his literary will. All MSS. were to be published thirty years after his death, not before. He would gain no spurious popularity as a reflection of the age he lived in. "Tennyson," he says, "will die before sixty years are gone by: if I am to be beloved of men, it shall be because my work is for all times and all men, because it is greater than all the gods of chance and change, because it has the heart of the human race beating in every line." This is a patch of magenta to mauve, undoubtedly; but -- ! The present collection of verses will hardly be popular; if the lost works turn up, of course it may be that there may be found "shelter for songs that recede." Still, even here, one is, on the whole, more attracted than repelled; the author has enormous power, and he never scruples to use it, to drive us half mad with horror, or, as in his earlier most exquisite works, to move us to the noblest thoughts and deeds. True, his debt to contemporary writers is a little obvious here and there; but these {197A} are small blemishes on a series of poems whose originality is always striking, and often dreadful, in its broader features.

We cannot leave George Bishop without a word of inquiry as to what became of the heroic figure of Mathilde Doriac. It is a bitter task to have to write in cold blood the dreadful truth about her death. She had the misfortune to contract, in the last few days of her life with him, the same terrible disease which he describes in the last poem of his collection. This shock, coming so soon after, and, as it were, as an unholy perpetual reminder of the madness and sequestration of her lover, no less than of his infidelity, unhinged her mind, and she shot herself on July 5, 1869. Her last letter to Madame J-- S-- is one of the tenderest and most pathetic ever written. She seems to have been really loved by George, in his wild, infidel fashion: "All Night" and "Victory," among others, are obviously inspired by her beauty; and her devotion to him, the abasement of soul, the prostitution of body, she underwent for and with him, is one of the noblest stories life has known. She seems to have dived with him, yet ever trying to raise his soul from the quagmire; if God is just at all, she shall stand more near to His right hand than the vaunted virgins who would soil no hem of vesture to save their brother from the worm that dieth not!

The Works of George Archibald Bishop will speak for themselves; it would be both impertinent and superfluous in me to point out in detail their many and varied excellences, or their obvious faults. The "raison d'etre," though, of their publication, is worthy of especial notice. I refer to their psychological sequence, which agrees with their chronological order. His life-history, as well as his literary remains, gives us an idea of the progression of diabolism as it really is; not as it is painted. Note also, (1) the increase of selfishness in pleasure, (2) the diminution of his sensibility to physical charms. Pure and sane is his early work; then he is carried into the outer current of the great vortex of Sin, and whirls lazily through the sleepy waters of mere sensualism; the pace quickens, he grows fierce in the mysteries of Sapphism and the cult of Venus Aversa with women; later of the same forms of vice with men, all mingled with wild talk of religious dogma and a general exaltation of Priapism at the expense, in particular, of Christianity, in which religion, however, he is undoubtedly a believer till the last (the pious will quote James ii. 19, and the infidel will observe that he died in an asylum); then the full swing of the tide catches him, the mysteries of death become more and more an obsession, and he is flung headlong into Sadism, Necrophilia, {197B} all the maddest, fiercest vices that the mind of fiends ever brought up from the pit. But always to the very end his power is unexhausted, immense, terrible. His delirium does not amuse; it appals! A man who could conceive as he did must himself have had some glorious chord in his heart vibrating to the eternal principle of Boundless Love. That this love was wrecked is for me, in some sort a relative of his, a real and bitter sorrow. He might have been so great! He missed Heaven! Think kindly of him!

169. "Correctly rhymes." {#41} -- Such lines, however noble in sentiment, as: "A bas les Anglais! The Irish up!" will not be admitted to the competition. Irish is accented on the penultimate -- bad cess to the bloody Saxons that made it so!

The same with Tarshish (see Browning, "Pippa Passes," II., in the long speech of Blouphocks) and many others.

173. "The liar Copleston." {#42} <<Copies were sent to any living persons mentioned in the "Sword of Song," accompanied by the following letter:

Letters and Telegrams: BOLESKINE FOYERS is sufficient address.

Bills, Writs, Summonses, etc.: CAMP XI., THE BALTORO GLACIER, BALTISTAN.

O Millionaire!	My lord Marquis,
Mr. Editor!	My lord Viscount,
Dear Mrs. Eddy,	My lord Earl,
Your Holiness the Pope!	My lord,
Your Imperial Majesty!	My lord Bishop,

Your Majesty!	Reverend sir,
Your Royal Highness!	Sir,
Dear Miss Corelli,	Fellow,
Your Serene Highness!	Dog!
My lord Cardinal,	Mr. Congressman,
My lord Archbishop,	Mr. Senator,
My lord Duke,	Mr. President,

(or the feminine of any of these), as shown by underlining it,

Courtesy demands, in view of the

- ("a") tribute to your genius
- ("b") attack on your (1) political
  - (2) moral
  - (3) social
  - (4) mental
  - (5) physical character
- ("c") homage to your grandeur
- ("d") reference to your conduct
- ("e") appeal to your better feelings

on page ---- of my masterpiece, "The Sword of Song," that I should send you a copy, as I do herewith, to give you an opportunity of defending yourself against my monstrous assertions, thanking me for the advertisement, or -- in short, replying as may best seem to you to suit the case.

Your humble, obedient servant,

ALEISTER CROWLEY.>> -- Bishop of

Calcutta. {198A} While holding the see of Ceylon he wrote a book in which "Buddhism" is described as consisting of "devil-dances." Now, when a man, in a position to know the facts, writes a book of the subscription-cadging type, whose value for this purpose depends on the suppression of these facts, I think I am to be commended for my moderation in using the term "liar."

212. -- "Ibsen."{ #43} -- Norwegian dramatist. This and the next sentence have nineteen distinct meanings. As, however, all (with one doubtful exception) are true, and taken together synthetically connote my concept, I have let the passage stand.

219. "I was Lord Roberts, he De Wet."{ #44} -- "Vide" Sir A. Conan doyle's masterly fiction, "The Great Boer War."

222. "Hill".{ #45} -- An archaic phrase signifying the kopje.

223. "Ditch."{ #46} -- Probably an obsolete slang term for spruit.

273. "Some."{ #47} -- The reader may search modern periodicals for this theory.

282. "The Timolian."{ #48} -- Timolus, who decided the musical contest between Pan and Apollo in favour of the latter.

321. "As masters teach."{ #49} -- Consult Vivekananda, "op. cit.," or the "Hathayoga Pradipika." Unfortunately, I am unable to say where (or even whether) a copy of this latter work exists.

331, 332. "Stand." -- "(Stephen) or sit (Paul)."{ #50} -- Acts vii. 36; Heb. xii. 2.

337. "Samadhi-Dak."{ #51} -- "Ecstasy-of-meditation mail."

338. "Maha-Meru."{ #52} -- The "mystic mountain" of the Hindus. See Southery's "Curse of Kehama."

339. "Gaurisankar."{ #53} -- Called also Chomokankar, Devadhunga, and Everest.

341. Chogo.{ #54} -- The Giant. This is the native name of "K2"; or Mount Godwin-Austen, as Col. Godwin-Austen would call it. It is the second highest known mountain in the world, as Devadhunga is the first.

356. "the history of the West."{ #55} --

De Acosta (Jose) . . . Natural and Moral History of the Indies.
Alison, Sir A. . . . History of Scotland.
Benzoni. . . . History of the New World.
Buckle. . . . History of Civilisation.
Burton, J. H. . . . History of Scotland.
Carlyle. . . . History of Frederick the Great.
Carlyle. . . . Oliver Cromwell.
Carlyle. . . . Past and Present.
Cheruel, A. . . . Dictionnaire historique de la France.
Christian, P. . . . Historrie de la Magie {198B}
Clarendon, Ld. . . . History of the Great Rebellion.
De Comines, P. . . . Chronicle.
Edwards, Bryan. . . . History of the British Colonies in the W. Indies.
Elton, C. . . . Origins of English History.
Erdmann. . . . History of Philosophy. Vol. II.
Froude. . . . History of England.
Fyffe, C. A. . . . History of Modern Europe.
Gardiner, S. R. . . . History of the Civil War in England.
Gibbon. . . . Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire.
Green, J. R. . . . A History of the English People.
Guizot. . . . Historie de la Civilisation.
Hallam, H. . . . State of Europe in the Middle Ages.
Hugo, V. . . . Napoleon le Petit.
Innes, Prof. C. . . . Scotland in the Middle Ages.
Kingscote. . . . History of the War in the Crimea.
Levi, E. . . . History de la Magie.
Macaulay, Ld. . . . History of England.
McCarthy, J. . . . A History of our Own Times.
Maistre, Jos. . . . Oeuvres.
Michelet. . . . Historie des Templiers.
Migne, Abbe. . . . Oeuvres.
Montalembert. . . . The Monks of the West.
Morley, J. . . . Life of Mr. Gladstone.
Motley. . . . History of the Dutch Republic.
Napier. . . . History of the Peninsular War.

Prescott. . . . History of the Conquest of Mexico.
 Prescott. . . . History of the Conquest of Peru.
 Renan. . . . Vie de Jesus.
 Robertson, E. W. . Historical Essays.
 Roseberry, Ld. . . Napoleon.
 Shakespeare. . . . Histories.
 Society for the Propagation of Religious
   Truth. . . . Transactions, Vols. I. - DCLXVI.
 Stevenson, R. L. . A Footnote to History.
 Thornton, Ethel-
   red, Rev. . . . History of the Jesuits.
 Waite, A. E. . . . The Real History of the Rosicrucians.
 Wolseley, Ld. . . Marlborough.

The above works and many others of less importance were carefully consulted by the Author before passing these lines for the press. Their substantial accuracy is further guaranteed by the Professors of History at Cambridge, Oxford, Berlin, Harvard, Paris, Moscow, and London. {199A}

336. "Shot his Chandra."{ #56} -- Anglice, shot the moon.

380. "The subtle devlish omission."{ #57} -- But what are we to say of Christian dialecticians who quote "All things work together for good" out of its context, and call this verse "Christian optimism?" See Caird's "Hegel." Hegel knew how to defend himself, though. As Goethe wrote of him:

"They thought the master too

Inclined to fuss and finick.

The students' anger grew

To frenzy Paganinic.<<Paganini, a famous violinist.>>

They vowed to make him rue

His work in Jena's clinic.

They came, the unholy crew,

The mystic and the cynic:

He had scoffed at God's battue,

The flood for mortal's sin -- Ichthyosaurian Waterloo!

They eyed the sage askew;

They searched him through and through

With violet rays actinic.

They asked him 'Wer bist du?'

He answered slowly 'Bin ich?'

387. "The Fish."{ #58} -- Because of GR:iota-chi-theta-epsilon-sigma, which means Fish, And very aptly symbolises Christ. -- "Ring and Book" (The Pope), ll. 89, 90.

395. "Dharma."{ #59} -- Consult the Tripitaka.

409. "I cannot trace the chain."{ #60} -- "How vain, indeed, are human calculations!" -- "the Autobiography of a Flea," p. 136.

412. "Table-thing."{ #61} -- "Ere the stuff grow a ring-thing right to wear."
-- "The Ring and the Book," i. 17.

"This pebble-thing, o' the boy-thing."

-- CALVERLEY, "The Cock and the Bull."

442. "Caird."{ #62} -- See his "Hegel."

446. "Says Huxley."{ #63} -- See "Ethics and Evolution."

459. "Igdrasil."{ #64} -- The Otz Chimm of the Scandinavians.

467. "Ladies' League."{ #65} -- Mrs. J. S. Crowley says: "The Ladies' League Was Formed For The Promotion And Defence Of The Reformed Faith Of The Church Of England." (The capitals are hers.) I think we may accept this statement. She probably knows, and has no obvious reasons for misleading.

487. "Sattva."{ #66} -- The Buddhists, denying an Atman or Soul (an idea of changless, eternal, knowledge, being, and bliss) represent the fictitious Ego of a man (or a dog) as a temporary agglomeration of particles. Reincarnation only knocks off, as it were, some of the corners of the mass, so that for several births the Ego is constant within limits; hence the possibility of the "magical memory." The "Sattva" is this agglomeration. See my {199B} "Science and Buddhism," "infra," for a full discussion of this point.

518. "And."{ #67} -- Note the correct stress upon this word. Previously, Mr. W. S. Gilbert has done this in his superb lines:

"Except the plot of freehold land

That held the cot, and Mary, and --"

But his demonstration is vitiated by the bad iambic "and Ma-"; unless indeed the juxtaposition is intentional, as exposing the sophistries of our official prosodists.

548. "The heathen."{ #68} -- "The wicked shall be turned into hell, and all the nations that forget God."

586. "Satan and Judas." { #69} -- At the moment of passing the final proofs I am informed that the character of Judas has been rehabilitated by Mr. Stead (and rightly: is Mr. Abington<<Famous Adelphi villain.>> paid with a rope?) and the defence of Satan undertaken by a young society lady authoress -- a Miss Corelli -- who represents him as an Angel of Light, "i.e.," one who has been introduced to the Prince of Wales.

But surely there is some one who is the object of universal reprobation amongst Christians! Permit me to offer myself as a candidate. Sink, I beseech you, these sectarian differences, and combine to declare me at least Anathema Maranatha.

602. "Pangs of Death."{ #70} -- Dr. Maudsley demands a panegyric upon death. It is true that evolution may bring us a moral sense of astonishing delicacy and beauty. But we are not there yet. A talented but debauched Irishman has composed the following, which I can deplore, but not refute, for this type of man is probably more prone to reproduce his species than any other. He called it "Summa Spes."

I.

Existence being sorrow,
The cause of it desire,
A merry tune I borrow
To light upon the lyre:
If death destroy me quite.
Then, I cannot lament it;
I've lived, kept life alight,
And -- damned if I repent it!

Let me die in a ditch,
Damnably drunk
Or lipping a punk,
Or in bed with a bitch!
I was ever a hog;
Muck? I am one with it!
Let me die like a dog;
Die, and be done with it! {200A}

II.

As far as reason goes,
There's hope for mortals yet:
When nothing is that knows,
What is there to regret?
Our consciousness depends
On matter in the brain;
When that rots out, and ends,
There ends the hour of pain.

III.

If we can trust to this,
why, dance and drink and revel!
Great scarlet mouths to kiss,
And sorrow to the devil!
If pangs ataxic creep,
Or gout, or stone, annoy us,
Queen Morphia, grant thy sleep!
Let worms, the dears, enjoy us!

IV.

But since a chance remains
That "I" survives the body
(So talk the men whose brains
Are made of smut and shoddy),

I'll stop it if I can.
(Ah Jesus, if Thou couldst!)
I'll go to Martaban
To make myself a Buddhist.

V.

And yet: the bigger chance
Lies with annihilation.
Follow the lead of France,
Freedom's enlightened nation!
Off! sacerdotal stealth
Of faith and fraud and gnosis!
Come, drink me: Here's thy health,
Arterio-sclerosis!<<1>>

<<1. The hardening of the arteries, which is the predisposing cause of senile decay; thus taken as the one positive assurance of death.>>

Let me die in a ditch,
Damnably drunk,
Or lipping a punk,
Or in bed with a bitch!
I was ever a hog;
Muck? I am one with it!
Let me die like a dog;
Die, and be done with it!

616. "A lizard."{ #71} -- A short account of the genesis of these poems seems not out of place here. The design of an elaborate parody on {200B} Browning to be called "Ascension Day and Pentecost" was conceived (and resolved upon) on Friday, November 15, 1901. On that day I left Ceylon, where I had been for several months, practising Hindu meditations, and exposing the dishonesty of the Missionaries, in the intervals of big game shooting. The following day I wrote "Ascension Day," and "Pentecost" on the Sunday, sitting outside the dak-bangla at Madura. These original drafts were small as compared to the present poems.

Ascension Day consisted of: --

p. 144, I flung ...
p. 146, Pray do ...
p. 147, "But who ...
p. 149, Here's just ...
p. 151, I will ...
to p. 160, ... but in Hell! ...
p. 161, You see ...

to end.

Pentecost consisted of: --

p. 164, To-day ...
p. 168, How very hard ... to p. 170, "Proceed!" ...
p. 171, My wandering thoughts ... to p. 172, All-wickedness ...
p. 172, Nor lull my soul ... to p. 174, ... and the vision.
p. 176, How easy ...
to end.

"Berashith" was written at Delhi, March 20 and 21, 1902. Its original title was "Crowley's Day." It was issued privately in Paris in January 1903. It and "Science and Buddhism" are added to complete the logical sequence from 1898 till now. All, however, has been repeatedly revised. Wherever there seemed a lacuna in the argument an insertion was made, till all appeared a perfect chrysolite. Most of this was done, while the weary hours of the summer (save the mark!) of 1902 rolled over Camp Misery and Camp Despair on the Chogo Ri Glacier, in those rare intervals when one's preoccupation with lice, tinned food, malaria, insoaking water, general soreness, mental misery, and the everlasting snowstorm gave place to a momentary glimmer of any higher form of intelligence than that ever necessarily concentrated on the actual business of camp life. The rest, and the final revision, occupied a good deal of my time during the winter of 1902-1903. The MS. was accepted by the S. P. R. T. in May of this year, and after a post-final revision, rendered necessary by my Irish descent, went to press.

THE WORKS OF ALEISTER CROWLEY Vol. II, part 3 of 3 ASCII VERSION

October 8, 1993 e.v. key entry by Bill Heidrick, T.G. of O.T.O.

January 23, 1994 e.v. proofed and conformed to the "Essay Competition Copy" edition of 1906 e.v. by Bill Heidrick T.G. of O.T.O.

File 3 of 3.

Copyright (c) O.T.O.

O.T.O.
P.O.Box 430
Fairfax, CA 94978
USA

(415) 454-5176 ---- Messages only.

This work was originally published in two parallel columns. Where such columns are found in the original, they have been rendered as a single text with "A" or "B" added to the page number at the end of each column: A = end page left column. B = end page right column. On many pages a prefatory paragraph or a concluding group of sentences is full across the page. These instances are noted in curly brackets.

Pages in the original are marked thus at the bottom: {page number} or {page number A} and {page number B}.

Comments and descriptions are also set off by curly brackets {}

Comments and notes not in the original are identified with the initials of the source: e.g. WEH note = Bill Heidrick note, etc. Descriptions of illustrations are not so identified, but are simply in curly brackets.

Text Footnotes have been expanded at or near the point of citation within double angle brackets, e.g. <<footnote>>. For poems, most longer footnotes are cited in the text to expanded form below the stanzas.

LIMITED LICENSE

Except for notations added to the history of modification, the text on this diskette down to the next row of asterisks must accompany all copies made of this file. In particular, this paragraph and the copyright notice are not to be deleted or changed on any copies or print-outs of this file. With these provisos, anyone may copy this file for personal use or research. Copies may be made for other individuals at reasonable cost of copying and mailing only, no additional charges may be added. Not for "share-ware" distribution or inclusion in any commercial enterprise.

*****

618. "Each life bound ever to the wheel."{ #72} -- Cf. Whately, "Revelation of a Future State." { 201A}

652. "This, that, the otheratheist's death."{ #73} -- Their stories are usually untrue; but let us follow our plan, and grant them all they ask.

709. "A cannibal."{ #74} -- This word is inept, as it predicates humanity of Christian-hate-Christian.

J'accuse the English language: "anthropophagous" must always remain a comic word.

731. "The Flaming Star."{ #75} -- Or Pentagram, mystically referred to Jeheshua.

732. "Zohar."{ #76} -- "Splendour," the three Central Books of the Dogmatic Qabalah.

733. "Pigeon."{ #77} -- Says an old writer, whom I translate roughly:
"Thou to thy Lamb and Dove devoutly bow,
But leave me, pritheee, yet my Hawk and Cow:

And I approve thy Greybeard dotard's smile,
If thou wilt that of Egypt's crocodile."

746. "Lost! Lost! Lost!"{ #78} -- See "The Lay of the Last Minstrel."

759. "Ain Elohim."{ #79} -- "There is no God!" so our Bible. But this is really the most sublime affirmation of the Qabalist. "Ain is God."

For the meaning of Ain, and of this idea, see "Berashith," "infra." The "fool" is He of the Tarot, to whom the number 0 is attached, to make the meaning patent to a child.

"I insult your idol," quoth the good missionary; "he is but of dead stone. He does not avenge himself. He does not punish me." "I insult your god," replied the Hindu; "he is invisible. He does not avenge himself, nor punish me."

"My God will punish you when you die!"

"So, when you die, will my idol punish you!"

No earnest student of religion or draw poker should fail to commit this anecdote to memory.

767. "Mr. Chesterton."{ #80} -- I must take this opportunity to protest against the charge brought by Mr. Chesterton against the Englishmen "who write philosophical essay on the splendour of Eastern thought."

If he confines his strictures to the translators of that well-known Eastern work the "Old Testament" I am with him; any modern Biblical critic will tell him what I mean. It took a long time, too, for the missionaries (and Tommy Atkins) to discover that "Budd" was not a "great Gawd." But then they did not want to, and in any case sympathy and intelligence are not precisely the most salient qualities in either soldiers or missionaries. But nothing is more absurd than to compare men like Sir W. Jones, Sir R. Burton, Von Hammer-Purgstall, Sir E. Arnold, Prof. Max Muller, Me, Prof. Rhys Davids, Lane, and the rest of our illustrious Orientalists to the poor {201B} and ignorant Hindus whose letters occasionally delight the readers of the "Sporting Times," such letters being usually written by public scribes for a few pice in the native bazaar. As to "Babus" (Babu, I may mention, is the equivalent to our "Mister," and not the name of a savage tribe), Mr. Chesterton, from his Brixton Brahmaloaka, may look forth and see that the "Babu" cannot understand Western ideas; but a distinguished civil servant in the Madras Presidency, second wrangler in a very good year, assured me that he had met a native whose mathematical knowledge was superior to that of the average senior wrangler, and that he had met several others who approached that standard. His specific attack on Madame Blavatsky is equally unjust, as many natives, not theosophists, have spoken to me of her in the highest terms. "Honest Hindus" cannot be expected to think as Mr. Chrsterton deems likely, as he is unfortunately himself a Western, and in the same quagmire of misapprehension as Prof. Max. Muller and the rest. Madame Blavatsky's work was to remind the Hindus of the excellence of their own shastras, <<Sacred Books.>> to show that some Westerns held identical ideas, and thus to countermine the dishonest representations of the missionaries. I am sufficiently well known as a bitter opponent of "Theosophy" to risk nothing in making these remarks.

I trust that the sense of public duty which inspires these strictures will not be taken as incompatible with the gratitude I owe to him for his exceedingly sympathetic and dispassionate review of my "Soul of Osiris."

I would counsel him, however, to leave alone the Brixton Chapel, and to "work up from his appreciation of the 'Soul of Osiris' to that loftier and wider work of the human imagination, the appreciation of the 'Sporting Times!'"

-----

Mr. Chesterton thinks it funny that I should call upon "Shu." Has he forgotten that the Christian God may be most suitably invoked by the name "Yah"? I should be sorry if God were to mistake his religious enthusiasms for the derisive ribaldry of the London "gamin." Similar remarks apply to "El" and other Hebrai-Christian deities.

This note is hardly intelligible without the review referred to. I therefore reprint the {202A} portion thereof which is germane to my matter from the "Daily News," June 18, 1901: --

To the side of a mind concerned with idle merriment ("sic!") there is certainly something a little funny in Mr. Crowley's passionate devotion to deities who bear such names as Mout and Nuit, and Ra and Shu, and Hormakhou. They do not seem to the English mind to lend themselves to pious exhilaration. Mr. Crowley says in the same poem:

The burden is too hard to bear,
I took too adamant a cross;
This sackcloth rends my soul to wear,
My self-denial is as dross.
O, Shu, that holdest up the sky,
Hold up thy servant, lest he die!

We have all possible respect for Mr. Crowley's religious symbols, and we do not object to his calling upon Shu at any hour of the night. Only it would be unreasonable of him to complain if his religious exercises were generally mistaken for an effort to drive away cats.

-----

Moreover, the poets of Mr. Crowley's school have, among all their merits, some genuine intellectual dangers from this tendency to import religious, this free trade in gods. That all creeds are significant and all gods divine we willingly agree. But this is rather a reason for being content with our own than for attempting to steal other people's. The affectation in many modern mystics of adopting an Oriental civilisation and mode of thought must cause much harmless merriment among the actual Orientals. The notion that a turban and a few vows will make an Englishman a Hindu is quite on a par with the idea that a black hat and an Oxford degree will make a Hindu an Englishman. We wonder whether our Buddhistic philosophers have ever read a florid letter in Baboo English. We suspect that the said type of document is in reality exceedingly like the philosophic essays written by Englishmen about the splendour of Eastern thought. Sometimes European mystics deserve something worse than mere laughter at the hands ("sic!") of Orientals. If ever was one person whom honest Hindus would have been justified in tearing to pieces it was Madame Blavatsky.

-----

That our world-worn men of art should believe for a moment that moral salvation is possible and supremely important is an unmixed benefit. But to believe for a moment that it is to be found by going to particular places or reading particular books or joining particular societies is to make for the thousandth time the mistake that is at once materialism and superstition. If Mr. Crowley and the new mystics think for one moment that an Egyptian desert is more mystic than an English meadow, that a palm tree is more poetic than a Sussex beech, that a broken temple of Osiris is more supernatural than a Baptist chapel in Brixton, then they {202B} are sectarians, and only sectarians of no more value to humanity than those who think that the English soil is the only soil worth defending, and the Baptist chapel the only chapel worthy of worship ("sic"). But Mr. Crowley is a strong and genuine poet, and we have little doubt that he will work up from his appreciation of the Temple of Osiris to that loftier and wider work of the human imagination, the appreciation of the Brixton chapel.

G. K. CHESTERTON

-----

778, 797. "The rest of life, for self-control,"

"For liberation of the soul."{ #81}

Who said Rats? Thanks for your advice, Tony Veller, but it came in vain. As the ex-monk<<Joseph McCabe, who became a Rationalist writer. The allusion is to Crowley's marriage and subsequent return to the East.>> (that shook the bookstall) wrote in confidence to the publisher:

"Existence is mis'ry
I' th' month Tisri {203B upper column ends}
At th' fu' o' th' moon
I were shot wi' a goon.
[Goon is no Scots,
But Greek, Meester Watts.]
We'ra awa' tae Burma,
Whaur th' groond be firmer
Tae speer th' Mekong.

Chin Chin! Sae long.
[ Long sald be lang:
She'll no care a whang.]
Ye're Rautional babe, Aundra McAbe."

Note the curious confusion of personality. This shows Absence of Ego, in Pali Anatta, and will seem to my poor spiritually-minded friends an excuse for a course of action they do not understand, and whose nature is beyond them.

782. "Christ ascends."{ #82} -- And I tell you frankly that if he does not come back by the time I have finished reading these proofs, I shall give him up.

783. "Bell."{ #83} -- The folios have "bun." {203B upper column breaks out to full page for one line.}

NOTES TO PENTECOST
{ Columns resume}

22. "With sacred thirst."{ #1} -- "He, soul-hydroptic with a sacred thirst." A Grammarian's Funeral.

23. "Levi."{ #2} -- Ceremonial magic is not quite so silly as it sounds. Witness the following masterly elucidation of its inner quintessence: --

THE INITIATED INTERPRETATION
OF CEREMONIAL MAGIC.<<1>>

<<1. This essay forms the introduction to an edition of the "Goetia" of King Solomon.>>

It is loftily amusing to the student of magical literature who is not quite a fool -- and rare is such a combination! -- to note the criticism directed by the Philistine against the citadel of his science. Truly, since our childhood has ingrained into us not only literal belief in the Bible, but also substantial belief in Alf Laylah wa Laylah,<<"A Thousand and One Nights, commonly called "Arabian Nights.">> and only adolescence can cure us, we are only too liable, in the rush and energy of dawning manhood, to overturn roughly and rashly both these classics, to regard them both on the same level, as interesting documents from the standpoint of folk-lore and anthropology, and as nothing more.

Even when we learn that the Bible, by a {203A} profound and minute study of the text, may be forced to yield up Qabalistic arcana of cosmic scope and importance, we are too often slow to apply a similar restorative to the companion volume, even if we are the lucky holders of Burton's veritable edition.

To me, then, it remains to raise the Alf Laylah wa Laylah into its proper place once more.

I am not concerned to deny the objective reality of all "magical" phenomena; if they are illusions, they are at least as real as many unquestioned facts of daily life; and, if we follow Herbert Spencer, they are at least evidence of "some" cause.<<This, incidentally, is perhaps the greatest argument we possess, pushed to its extreme, against the Advaitist theories. -- A.C.>>

Now, this fact is our base. What is the cause of my illusion of seeing a spirit in the triangle of Art?

Every smatterer, ever expert in psychology, will answer: "That cause lies in your brain."

English children are taught ("pace" the Education Act) that the Universe lies in infinite Space; Hindu children, in the Akasa, which is the same thing.

Those Europeans who go a little deeper learn from Fichte, that the phenomenal Universe is the creation of the Ego; Hindus, or Europeans studying under Hindu Gurus, are {203B} told, that by Akasa is meant the Chitakasa. The Chitakasa is situated in the "Third Eye," "i.e.," in the brain. By assuming higher dimensions of space, we can assimilate this fact to Realism; but we have no need to take so much trouble.

This being true for the ordinary Universe, that all sense-impressions are dependent on changes in the brain,<<Thought is a secretion of the brain (Weissmann). Consciousness is a function of the brain (Huxley). -- A.C.>> we must include illusions, which are after all sense-impressions as much as "realities" are, in the class of "phenomena dependent on brain-changes."

Magical phenomena, however, come under a special sub-class, since they are willed, and their cause is the series of "real" phenomena called the operations of ceremonial Magic.

These consist of

- (1) Sight.
The circle, square, triangle, vessels, lamps, robes, implements, etc.
- (2) Sound.
The invocations.
- (3) Smell.
The perfumes.
- (4) Taste.
The Sacraments.
- (5) Touch.
As under (1).
- (6) Mind.
The combination of all these and reflection on their significance.

These unusual impressions (1-5) produce unusual brain-changes; hence their summary (6) is of unusual kind. Its projection back into the apparently phenomenal world is therefore unusual.

Herein then consists the reality of the operations and effects of ceremonial magic, <<Apart from its value in obtaining one-pointedness. On this subject consult HB:Bet-Resh-Aleph-Shin-Yod-Taw, "infra." -- A. C.

WEH NOTE: In the original, the Hebrew word for this note was misspelled with a Dalet in place of the Resh.>> and I conceive that the apology is ample, so far as the "effects" refer only to those phenomena which appear to the magician himself, the appearance of the spirit, his conversation, possible shocks from imprudence, and so on, even to ecstasy on the one hand, and death or madness on the other.

But can any of the effects described in this our book Goetia be obtained, and if so, can you give a rational explanation of the circumstances? Say you so?

I can, and will.

The spirits of the Goetia are portions of the human brain.

Their seals therefore represent (Mr. Spencer's {204A} projected cube) methods of stimulating or regulating those particular spots (through the eye).

The names of God are vibrations calculated to establish:

("a") General control of the brain. (Establishment of functions relative to the subtle world.)

("b") Control over the brain in detail. (Rank or type of the Spirit.)

("c") Control of one special portion. (Name of the Spirit.)

The perfumes aid this through smell. Usually the perfume will only tend to control a large area; but there is an attribution of perfumes to letters of the alphabet enabling one, by a Qabalistic formula, to spell out the Spirit's name.

I need not enter into more particular discussion of these points; the intelligent reader can easily fill in what is lacking.

If, then, I say, with Solomon:

"The Spirit Cimieries teaches logic," what I mean is:

"Those portions of my brain which subserve the logical faculty may be stimulated and developed by following out the processes called 'The invocation of Cimieries.'"

And this is a purely materialistic rational statement; it is independent of any objective hierarchy at all. Philosophy has nothing to say; and Science can only suspend judgment, pending a proper and methodical investigation of the facts alleged.

Unfortunately, we cannot stop there. Solomon promises us that we can (1) obtain information; (2) destroy our enemies; (3) understand the voices of nature; (4) obtain treasure; (5) heal diseases, etc. I have taken these five powers at random; considerations of space forbid me to explain all.

(1) Brings up facts from sub-consciousness.

(2) Here we come to an interesting fact. It is curious to note the contrast between the noble means and the apparently vile ends of magical rituals. The latter are disguises for sublime truths. "To destroy our enemies" is to realise the illusion of duality, to excite compassion.

(Ah! Mr. Waite, <<A poet of great ability. He edited a book called "Of Black Magic and of Pacts," in which he vilifies the same.>> the world of Magic is a mirror, wherein who sees muck is muck.)

(3) A careful naturalist will understand much from the voices of the animals he has studied long. Even a child knows the difference of a cat's miauling and purring. The faculty may be greatly developed.

(4) Business capacity may be stimulated.

(5) Abnormal states of the body may be {204B} corrected, and the involved tissues brought back to tone, in obedience to currents started from the brain.

So for all other phenomena. There is no effect which is truly and necessarily miraculous.

Our Ceremonial Magic fines down, then, to a series of minute, though of course empirical, physiological experiments, and whoso will carry them through intelligently need not fear the result.

I have all the health, and treasure, and logic I need; I have no time to waste. "There is a lion in the way." For me these practices are useless; but for the benefit of others less fortunate I give them to the world, together with this explanation of, and apology for, them.

I trust that the explanation will enable many students who have hitherto, by a puerile objectivity in their view of the question, obtained no results, to succeed; that the apology may impress upon our scornful men of science that the study of the bacillus should give place to that of the baculum, the little to the great -- how great one only realises when one identifies the wand with the Mahalingam, <<The Phallus of Shiva the Destroyer. It is really identical with the Qabalistic "Middle Pillar" of the "Tree of Life.">> up which Brahma flew at the rate of 84,000 yojanas a second for 84,000 mahakalpas, down which Visnu flew at the rate of 84,000 crores of yojanas a second for 84,000 crores of mahakalpas -- yet neither reached an end.

But I reach an end.

23. "The criptic Coptic." {#3} -- Vide the Papyrus of Bruce. <<WEH NOTE: This is the remarkable "Codex Brucianus" MS. 96. bod. Lib. Oxford. It is the single most important text surviving on Gnosticism, with the exception of specialized texts found in the Nag Hammadi Library, and the latter only in a more obscure sense. This Codex contains the full and complete exposition of Vallantinian Gnosticism, on a par with Ptolemy's "Tetrabiblos" (Astrology) for depth and completeness of the exposition of its subject; an exposition of the entire mysticism of the Greek Alphabet paralleling the treatment of Hebrew in the "Sepher Yetzirah" and possibly of older origin; perhaps the most ancient complete Grimorie of spirits, predating the "Picatrix" and many other texts. It is only partly translated and published in European languages ("e.g." Charlotte A. Baines "A Coptic Gnostic Treatise Contained in the Codex Brucianus", 1933), and Crowley would not have been able to do more than look at it; assuming that the note here is more than an echo of brief references in Mead's "Fragments of a Faith Forgotten". The direct influence of this Codex on Western Magic(k) is nil, since it was only recovered during the 19th century.

None-the-less, it contains source documents of a clear and complete nature which formed the beginning of mystical traditions only imperfectly passed down in modern Western traditions.>>

24. "ANET' AER-k, etc."{ #4} ,-- Invocation of Ra. From the Papyrus of Harris.

26. "MacGregor."{ #5} -- The Mage.

29. "Abramelin."{ #6} -- The Mage.

32. "Ancient rituals."{ #7} -- From the Papyrus of MRS. Harris.<<An imaginary lady to whom Sairey Gamp in Dickens' "Martin Chuzzlewit" used to appeal.>>

33. "Golden Dawn."{ #8} -- These rituals were later annexed by Madame Horos,<<"Vide" the daily papers of June-July 1901.>> that superior Swami. The earnest seeker is liable to some pretty severe shocks. To see one's "Obligation" printed in the "Daily Mail!!!" Luckily, I have no nerves.

49. {Two words in Devanagari type with an end of sentence mark in the same} ... etc."{ #9} -- "Thou, as I, art God ('for this is the esoteric meaning of the common Hindu salutation'). A long road and a heavy price! To know is always a difficult work ... Hulloo! Bravo! Thy name (I have seen) is written in the stars. Come with me, pupil! I will give thee medicine for the mind." { 205A}

Cf. Macbeth: "Canst thou not minister to a mind diseased?"

58. {One word and end sentence in Devanagari type} "...."{ #10} -- Enough.

60. {One word and end sentence in Devanagari type} "...."{ #11} -- Why?

60. {Two words and end sentence in Devanagari type} "...."{ #12} -- What will be?

61 "Strange and painful attitude."{ #13} -- Siddhasana.

62. "He was very rude."{ #14} -- The following is a sample: --

"O Devatas! behold this yogi! O Chela! Accursed abode of Tamas art thou! Eater of Beef, guzzling as an Heard of Swine! Sleeper of a thousand sleeps, as an Harlot heavy with Wine! Void of Will! Sensualist! Enraged Sheep! Blasphemer of the Names of Shiva and of Devi! Christian in disguise! Thou shalt be reborn in the lowest Avitchi! Fast! Walk! Wake! these are the keys of the Kingdom! Peace by with thy Beard! Aum!"

This sort of talk did me good: I hope it may do as much for you.

63. "With eyes well fixed on my proboscis."{ #15} -- See Bhagavad-Gita, Atmasamyamyog.

67. "Brahma-charya."{ #16} -- Right conduct, and in particular, chastity in the highest sense.

72. "Baccy."{ #17} -- A poisonous plant used by nicotomaniacs in their orgies and debauches. "The filthy tobacco habit," says "Elijah the Restorer" of Zion, late of Sydney and Chicago. That colossal genius-donkey, Shaw, is another of them. But see Calverley.

78. "His hat."{ #18} -- It may be objected that Western, but never Eastern, magicians turn their headgear into a cornucopia or Pandora's box. But I must submit that the Hat Question is still "sub judice." Here's a health to Lord Ronald Gower!

86. "Swinburne."{ #19} --

"But this thing is God,
To be man with thy might
To grow straight in the strength of thy spirit, and live out thy life as the light." -- "Hertha."

104. "My big beauty"#{20} -- Pink on Spot; Player, Green, in Hand. But I have "starred" since I went down in "that" pocket.

120. "My Balti coolies."#{21} -- See my "The Higher the Fewer."<<Title of a (forthcomming) collection of papers on mountain exploration, etc.>>

125. "Eton."#{22} -- A school, noted for its breed of cads. The battle of Waterloo (1815) was won on its playing-fields.

128-30. "I've seen them."#{23} -- Sir J. Maundeville, "Voiage and Travill," ch. xvi., recounts a similar incident, and, Christian as he is, puts a similar poser.

135. "A -- What?"#{24} -- I beg your pardon. It was a slip.

146. "Tahuti."#{25} -- In Coptic, Thoth. {205B}

149. "Ra."#{26} -- The Sun-god.

149. "Nuit."#{27} -- The Star-Goddess.

152. "Campbell."#{28} -- "The waters wild went o'er his child, And he was left lamenting."

152. "The Ibis Head."#{29} -- Characteristic of Tahuti.

157. "Roland's crest."#{30} -- See "Two Poets of Croisic," xci.

159. "A jest."#{31} -- See above: Ascension Day.

162. "A mysterious way."#{32} --

"God moves in a mysterious way
His wonders to perform;
He plants His footsteps in the sea,
And rides upon the storm."

Intentional species?

171. "The old hymn."#{33} -- This hymn, quoted I fear with some failure of memory -- I have not the documents at hand -- is attributed to the late Baship of Natal, though I doubt this, as the consistent and trustful piety of its sentiment is ill-suited to the author of those disastrous criticisms of the Pentateuch. The hymn is still popular in Durban.

Its extraordinary beauty, for a fragment, is only surpassed by Sappho's matchless:

-- . -- . -- .. -- .
-- . -- . -- .. -- .
-- . -- . -- . ' GR:epsilon-nu-nu-epsilon-alpha kappa' epsilon-xi-epsilon .
kappa-omicron-nu-tau-alpha . -- --

185. "How very hard,"#{34} --

"How very hard it is to be A Christian!" -- "Easter Day," I. i. 2.

195. "Scrotapatti."#{35} -- One who has "entered the stream" of Nirvana.
For the advantages of so doing, see the appended Jataka story, which I have just translated from a Cingalese Palm-leaf MS. See Appendix I.

228. "You know for me, etc."#{36} -- See Huxley, Hume, 199, 200.

239. "Spirit and matter are the same."{ #37} -- See Huxley's reply to Lilly.

273. "I am not what I see."{ #38} -- "In Memoriam." But see H. Spencer, "Principles of Psychology," General Analysis, ch. vi.

281. "'Tis lotused Buddha."{ #39} --
"Hark! that sad groan! Proceed no further!
'Tis Laurell'd Martial roaring murder."

-- BURNS, "Epigram."

But Buddha cannot really roar, since he has passed away by that kind of passing away which leaves nothing whatever behind.

322. "A mere law without a will."{ #40} -- I must not be supposed to take any absurd view of the meaning of the word "law." This passage denies any knowledge of ultimate causes, not asserts it. But it tends to deny benevolent foresight, and "a fortiori" benevolent omnipotence.

Cf. Zoroaster, "Oracles:" "Look not upon the {206A} visible image of the Soul of Nature, for her name is Fatality."

Ambrosius is very clear on this point. I append his famous MS. complete in its English Translation, as it is so rare. How rare will be appreciated when I say that no copy either of original or translation occurs in the British Museum; the only known copy, that in the Bodleian, is concealed by the pre-Adamite system of cataloguing in vogue at that hoary but unvenerable institution. For convenience the English has been modernised. See Appendix II.

329. "Maya fashioned it."{ #41} -- Sir E. Arnold, "Light of Asia."

335. "Why should the Paramatma cease."{ #42} -- The Universe is represented by orthodox Hindus as alternating between Evolution and Involution. But apparently, in either state, it is the other which appears desirable, since the change is operated by Will, not by Necessity.

341. "Blavatsky's Himalayan Balm."{ #43} -- See the corkscrew theories of A. P. Sinnett in that masterpiece of confusion of thought -- and nomenclature! -- "Esoteric Buddhism." Also see the "Voice of the Silence, or, The Butler's Revenge." Not Bp. Butler.

366. "Ekam Advaita."{ #44} -- Of course I now reject this utterly. But it is, I believe, a stage of thought necessary for many or most of us. The bulk of these poems was written when I was an Advaitist, incredible as the retrospect now appears. My revision has borne Buddhist fruits, but some of the Advaita blossom is left. Look, for example, at the dreadfully Papistical tendency of my celebrated essay:

AFTER AGNOSTICISM.

Allow me to introduce myself as the original Irishman whose first question on landing at New York was, "Is there a Government in this country?" and on being told "Yes," instantly replied, "Them I'm agin it." For after some years of consistent Agnosticism, being at last asked to contribute to an Agnostic organ, for the life of me I can think of nothing better than to attack my hosts! Insidious cuckoo! Ungrateful Banyan! My shame drives me to Semitic analogy, and I sadly reflect that if I had been Balaam, I should not have needed an ass other than myself to tell me to do the precise contrary of what is expected of me.

For this is my position; while the postulates of Agnosticism are in one sense eternal, I believe that the conclusions of Agnosticism are daily to be pushed back. We know our ignorance; with that fact we are twitted by those who do not know enough to understand {206B} even what we mean when we say so; but the limits of knowledge, slowly receding, yet never so far as to permit us to unveil the awful and impenetrable adytum of consciousness, or that of matter, must one day be suddenly widened by the forging of a new weapon.

Huxley and Tyndall have prophesied this before I was born; sometimes in vague language, once or twice clearly enough; to me it is a source of the utmost concern that their successors should not always see eye to eye with them in this respect.

Professor Ray Lankester, in crushing the unhappy theists of the recent "Times" controversy, does not hesitate to say that Science "can never" throw any light on certain mysteries.

Even the theist is justified in retorting that Science, if this be so, may as well be discarded; for these are problems which must ever intrude upon the human mind -- upon the mind of the scientist most of all.

To dismiss them by an act of will is at once heroic and puerile: courage is as necessary to progress as any quality that we possess; and as courage is in either case required, the courage of ignorance (necessarily sterile, though wanted badly enough while our garden was choked by theological weeds) is less desirable than the courage which embarks on the always desperate philosophical problem.

Time and again, in the history of Science, a period has arrived when, gorged with facts, she has sunk into a lethargy of reflection accompanied by appalling nightmares in the shape of impossible theories. Such a nightmare now rides us; once again philosophy has said its last word, and arrived at a deadlock. Aristotle, in reducing to the fundamental contradictions-in-terms which they involved the figments of the Pythagoreans, the Eleatics, the Platonists, the Pyrrhonists; Kant, in his "reductio ad absurdum" of the Thomists, the Scotists, the Wolffians, -- all the warring brood, alike only in the inability to reconcile the ultimate antinomies of a cosmogony only grosser for its pinchbeck spirituality; have, I take it, found their modern parallel in the ghastly laughter of Herbert Spencer, as fleshed upon the corpses of Berkeley and the Idealists from Fichte and Hartmann to Lotze and Trendelenburg he drives the reeking fangs of his imagination into the palpitating vitals of his own grim masterpiece of reconciliation, self-deluded and yet self-conscious of its own delusion.

History affirms that such a deadlock is invariably the prelude to a new enlightenment: by such steps we have advanced, by such we shall advance. The "horror of great darkness" which is scepticism must ever be broken by some heroic master-soul, intolerant of the cosmic agony. {207A}

We than await his dawn.

May I go one step further, and lift up my voice and prophesy? I would indicate the direction in which this darkness must break. Evolutionists will remember that nature cannot rest. Nor can society. Still less the brain of man.

"Audax omnia perpeti

Gens humana ruit per vetitum nefas."<<Horace, "Odes," I. 3.>>

We have destroyed the meaning of vetitum nefas and are in no fear of an imaginary cohort of ills and terrors. Having perfected one weapon, reason, and found it destructive to all falsehood, we have been (some of us) a little apt to go out to fight with no other weapon. "FitzJames's blade was sword and shield,"<<Scott, "The Lady of the Lake.">> and that served him against the murderous bludgeon-sword of the ruffianly Highlander he happened to meet; but he would have fared ill had he called a Western Sheriff a liar, or gone off Boer-sticking on Spion Kop.

Reason has done its utmost; theory has glutted us, and the motion of the ship is a little trying; mixed metaphor -- excellent in a short essay like this -- is no panacea for all mental infirmities; we must seek another guide. All the facts science has so busily collected, varied as they seem to be, are in reality all of the same kind. If we are to have one salient fact, a fact for a real advance, it must be a fact of a different "order."

Have we such a fact to hand? We have.

First, what do we mean by a fact of a different order? Let me take an example; the most impossible being the best for our purpose. The Spiritualists, let us suppose, go mad and begin to talk sense. (I can only imagine that such would be the result.) All their "facts" are proved. We prove a world of spirits, the existence of God, the immortality of the soul, etc. But, with all that, we are not really one step advanced into the heart of the inquiry which lies at the heart of philosophy, "What 'is' anything?"

I see a cat.

Dr. Johnson says it is a cat.

Berkeley says it is a group of sensations.

Cankaracharya says it is an illusion, an incarnation, or God, according to the hat he has got on, and is talking through.

Spencer says it is a mode of the unknowable.

But none of them seriously doubt the fact that I exist; that a cat exists; that one sees the other. All -- bar Johnson -- hint -- but oh! how dimly! -- at what I now know to be -- "true!" -- no, not necessarily true, but "nearer the truth." Huxley goes deeper in his demolition of Descartes. With him, "I see a cat," proves "something {207B} called consciousness exists." He denies the assertion of duality; he has no datum to assert the denial of duality. I have.

Consciousness, as we know it, has one essential quality: the opposition of subject and object. Reason has attacked this and secured that complete and barren victory of convincing without producing conviction.<<Hume, and Kant in the "Prolegomena," discuss this phenomenon unsatisfactorily. -- A.C.>> It has one quality apparently not essential, that of exceeding impermanence. If we examine what we call steady thought, we shall find that its rate of change is in reality inconceivably swift. To consider it, to watch it, is bewildering, and to some people becomes intensely terrifying. It is as if the solid earth were suddenly swept away from under one, and there were some dread awakening in outer space amid the rush of incessant meteors -- lost in the void.

All this is old knowledge; but who has taken steps to alter it? The answer is forbidding: truth compels me to say, the mystics of all lands.

Their endeavour has been to slow the rate of change; their methods perfect quietude of body and mind, produced in varied and too often vicious ways. Regularisation of the breathing is the best known formula. Their results are contemptible, we must admit; but only so because empirical. An unwarranted reverence has overlaid the watchfulness which science would have enjoined, and the result is muck and misery, the wreck of a noble study.

But what is the one fact on which all agree? The one fact whose knowledge has been since religion began the all-sufficient passport to their doubtfully-desirable company?

This: that "I see a cat" is not only an unwarrantable assumption but a lie; that the duality of consciousness ceases suddenly, once the rate of change has been sufficiently slowed down, so that, even for a few seconds, the relation of subject and object remains impregnable.

It is a circumstance of little interest to the present essayist that this annihilation of duality is associated with intense and passionless peace and delight; the fact has been a bribe to the unwary, a bait for the charlatan, a hindrance to the philosopher; let us discard it.<<It is this rapture which has ever been the bond between mystics of all shades; and the obstacle to any accurate observation of the phenomenon, its true causes, and so on. This must always be a stumbling-block to more impressionable minds; but there is no doubt as to the fact -- it "is" a fact -- and its present isolation is to be utterly deplored. May I entreat men of Science to conquer the prejudices natural to them when the justly despised ideas of mysticism are mentioned, and to attack the problem "ab initio" on the severely critical and austerely arduous lines which have distinguished their labours in other fields? -- A. C.>> {208A}

More, though the establishment of this new estate of consciousness seems to open the door to a new world, a world where the axioms of Euclid may be absurd, and the propositions of Keynes<<Author of a text-book on "Formal Logic.">> untenable, let us not fall into the error of the mystics, by supposing that in this world is necessarily a final truth, or even a certain and definite gain of knowledge.

But that a field for research is opened up no sane man may doubt. Nor may one question that the very first fact is of a nature disruptive of difficulty philosophical and reasonable; since the phenomenon does not invoke the assent of the reasoning faculty. The arguments which reason may bring to bear against it are self-destructive; reason has given consciousness the lie, but consciousness survives and smiles. Reason is a part of consciousness and can never be greater than its whole; this Spencer sees; but reason is not even any part of this new consciousness (which I, and many others, have too rarely achieved) and therefore can never touch it: this I see, and this will I hope be patent to those ardent and spiritually-minded agnostics of whom Huxley and Tyndall are for all history-time the prototypes. Know or doubt! is the alternative of highwayman Huxley! "Believe" is not to be admitted; this is fundamental; in this agnosticism can never change; this must ever command our moral as our intellectual assent.

But I assert my strong conviction that ere long we shall have done enough of what is after all the schoolmaster work of correcting the inky and ill-spent exercises of the theological dunces in that great class-room, the world; and found a little peace -- while they play -- in the intimate solitude of the laboratory and the passionless rapture of research -- research into those very mysteries which our dunces have solved by rule of thumb; determining the nature of a bee by stamping on it, and shouting "bee"; while we patiently set to work with microscopes, and say nothing till we know, nor more than need be when we do.

But I am myself found guilty of this role of schoolmaster: I will now therefore shut the doors and retire again into the laboratory where my true life lies.

403, 405. "Reason and concentration."{ #45} -- The results of reasoning are always assailable: those of concentration are vivid and certain, since they are directly presented to consciousness. And they are more certain than consciousness itself, since one who has experienced them may, with consciousness, doubt consciousness, but can in no state doubt them.

412. "Ganesh."{ #46} -- The elephant-headed God, son of Shiva and Bhavani. He presides over obstacles. { 208B}

The prosodist will note the "false quantity" of this word. But this is as it should be, for Ganesha pertains to Shiva, and with Shiva all quantity is false, since, as Parameshvara, he is without quantity or quality.

485. "Carroll."{ #47} -- See "Alice in Wonderland," Cap. Ult.

508. "Kusha-grass."{ #48} -- The sacred grass of the Hindus.

509. "Mantra."{ #49} -- A sacred verse, suitable for constant repetition, with a view to quieting the thought. Any one can see how simple and effective a means this is.

519. "Gayatri."{ #50} -- This is the translation of the most holy verse of the Hindus. The gender of Savitri has been the subject of much discussion, and I believe grammatically it is masculine. But for mystical reasons I have made it otherwise. Fool!

557. "Prayer."{ #51} -- This fish-story is literally true. The condition was that the Almighty should have the odds of an unusually long line, -- the place was really a swift stream, just debouching into a lake -- and of an unusual slowness of drawing in the cast.

But what does any miracle prove? If the Affaire Cana were proved to me, I should merely record the facts: Water may under certain unknown conditions become wine. It is a pity that the owner of the secret remains silent, and entirely lamentable that he should attempt to deduce from his scientific knowledge cosmic theories which have nothing whatever to do with it.

Suppose Edison, having perfected the phonograph, had said, "I alone can make dumb things speak; argal, I am God." What would the world have said if telegraphy had been exploited for miracle-mongering purposes? Are these miracles less or greater than those of the Gospels?

Before we accept Mrs. Piper, <<A twentieth century medium.>> we want to know most exactly the conditions of the experiment, and to have some guarantee of the reliability of the witnesses.

At Cana of Galilee the conditions of the transformation are not stated -- save that they give loopholes innumerable for chicanery -- and the witnesses are all drunk! (thou has kept the good wine "till now: i.e." till men have well drunk -- Greek, mu-epsilon-theta-upsilon-sigma-theta-omega-sigma-iota, "are" well drunk).

And I am to believe this, and a glaring "non sequitur" as to Christ's deity, on the evidence, not even of the inebriated eye-witnesses, but of MSS. of doubtful authorship and date, bearing all the ear-marks of dishonesty. For we must not forget that the absurdities of to-day were most cunning proofs for the poor folk of seventeen centuries ago.

Talking of fish-stories, read John xxi. 1-6, {209A} or Luke V. 1-7 (comparisons are odious). But once I met a man by a lake and told him that I had toiled all the morning and had caught nothing, and he advised me to try the other side of the lake; and I caught many fish. But I knew not that it was the Lord.

In Australia they were praying for rain in the churches. The "Sydney Bulletin" very sensibly pointed out how much more reverent and practical it would be, if, instead of constantly worrying the Almighty about trifles, they would pray once and for all for a big range of mountains in Central Australia, which would of course supply rain automatically. No new act of creation would be necessary; faith, we are expressly told, can remove mountains, and there is ice and snow and especially moraine on and about the Baltoro Glacier to build a very fine range; we could well have spared it this last summer.

579. "So much for this absurd affair." {#52} -- "About Lieutenant-Colonel Flare." -- Gilbert, "Bab Ballads."

636. "Auto-hypnosis." {#53} -- The scientific adversary has more sense than to talk of autohypnosis. He bases his objection upon the general danger of the practice, considered as a habit of long standing. In fact,

"Lyre and Lancet."

"Recipe for Curried Eggs."

The physiologist reproaches
Poor Mr. Crowley. "This encroaches
Upon your frail cerebral cortex,
And turns its fairway to a vortex.

Your cerebellium with cockroaches
Is crammed; your lobes that thought they caught "X"
Are like mere eggs a person poaches.
But soon from yoga, business worries,
And (frankly I suspect the rubble
Is riddled by specific trouble!)
Will grow like eggs a person carries."
This line, no doubt, requires an answer.

"The Last Ditch."

First. "Here's a Johnny with a cancer;
An operation may be useless,
May ever harm his constitution,
Or cause his instant dissolution:
Let the worm die, 'tis but a goose less!"
Not you! You up and take by storm him.
You tie him down and chloroform him.
You do not pray to Thoth or Horus,
But make one dash for his pylorus: --
And if ten years elapse, and he Complains, "O doctor, pity me!
Your cruel 'ands, for goodness sakes
Gave me such 'orrid stomach-aches. { 209B}
You write him, with a face of flint,
An order for some soda-mint.
So Yoga. Life's a carcinoma,
Its cause uncertain, not to check.
In vain you cry to Isis: "O ma!
I've got it fairly in the neck."
The surgeon Crowley, with this trocar,
Says you a poor but silly bloke are,
Advises concentration's knife
Quick to the horny growth called life.
"Yoga? There's danger in the biz!
But, it's the only chance there is!"
(For life, if left alone, is sorrow,
And only fools hope God's to-morrow.)

"Up, Guards, and at 'em!"

Second, your facts are neatly put;
-- Stay! In that mouth there lurks a foot!
One surgeon saw so many claps
He thought: "One-third per cent., perhaps,
Of mortals 'scape its woes that knock us,

And bilk the wily gonococcus."
 So he is but a simple cynic
 Who takes the world to match his clinic;
 And he assuredly may err
 Who, keeping cats, thinks birds have fur.
 You say: "There's Berridge, Felkin, Mathers,
 Hysterics, epileptoids, blathers,
 Guttersnipe, psychopath, and mattoid,
 With ceremonial magic that toyed."
 Granted. Astronomy's no myth,
 But it produced Piazzzi Smyth.
 What crazes actors? Why do surgeons
 Go mad and cut up men like sturgeons?
 (These questions are the late Chas. Spurgeon's.)
 Of yogi I could quote you hundreds
 In science, law, art, commerce noted.
 They fear no lunacy: their one dread's
 Not for their noddles doom-devoted.
 They are not like black bulls (that shunned reds
 In vain) that madly charge the goathead
 Of rural Pan, because some gay puss
 Had smeared with blood his stone Priapus.
 They are as sane as politicians
 And people who subscribe to missions.
 This says but little; a long way are Yogi more sane than such as they are.
 You have conceived your dreadful bogey,
 From seeing many a raving Yogi.
 These haunt your clinic; but the sound
 Lurk in an unsuspected ground,
 Dine with you, lecture in your schools,
 Share your intolerance of fools,
 And, while the Yogi you condemn,
 Listen, say nothing, barely smile.
 O if you but suspected them
 Your silence would match theirs awhile! {210A}

"A Classical Research. [Protectionists may serve if the supply of Hottentots gives out.]"

I took three hottentots alive.
 Their scale was one, two, three, four, five,
 Infinity. To think of men so
 I could not bear: a new Colenso
 I bought them to assuage their plight,
 Also a book by Hall and Knight

On Algebra. I hired wise men
To teach them six, seven, eight, nine, ten.
One of the Hottentots succeeded.
Few schoolboys know as much as he did!
The others sank beneath the strain:
It broke, not fortified, the brain.

"The Bard a Brainy Beggar."

Now (higher on the Human Ladder)
Lodge is called mad, and Crowley madder.
(The shafts of Science who may dodge?
I've not a word to say for Lodge.)
Yet may not Crowley be the one
Who safely does what most should shun?

"Alpine Analogy."

Take Oscar Eckenstein -- he climbs
Alone, unroped, a thousand times.
He scales his peak, he makes his pass;
He does not fall in a crevasse!
But if the Alpine Club should seek
To follow him on pass or peak --
(Their cowardice, their mental rot, Are balanced nicely -- they will not.)
-- I see the Alpine Journal's border
Of black grow broader, broader, broader,
Until the Editor himself
Falls from some broad and easy shelf,
And in his death the Journal dies.
Ah! bombast, footle, simple lies!
Where would you then appear in type?

The Poet "retires up." His attitude undignified, his pleasure momentary, the after result quite disproportionate. He contemplates his end."

Therefore poor Crowley lights his pipe,
Maintains: "The small-shot kills the snipe,
But spares the tiger;" goes on joking,
And goes on smirking, on invoking,
On climbing, meditating, -- failing to think of a suitable rhyme at a critical juncture,
Ah! -- goes on working, goes on smoking,
Until he goes right on to Woking.

637. "No one suppose me a Saint."{ #54} -- On inquiry, however, I find that some do.

638. "Amrita."{ #55} -- The Elixir of Life: the Dew of Immortality. {210B}

688. "Christ."{ #56} -- See Shri Parananda, "Commentaries on Matthew and John."

695. "Direction x."{ #57} -- "Vide supra," "Ascension Day."

710. "Steel-tired."{ #58} --

For Dunlop<<WEHNOTE: Maker of automobile rubber tires and inner-tubes.>> people did not know

Those nineteen hundred years ago.

723. "Super-consciousness."{ #59} -- The Christians also claim an ecstasy. But they all admit, and indeed boast, that it is the result of long periods of worry and anxiety about the safety of their precious souls: therefore their ecstasy is clearly a diseased process. The Yogic ecstasy requires absolute calm and health of mind and body. It is useless and dangerous under other conditions even to begin the most elementary practices.

742. "My Eastern friend."{ #69} -- Abdul Hamid, of the Fort, Colombo, on whom be peace. {211A}

755. "Heart."{ #61} --

Heart is a trifling misquotation:

This poem is for publication.

810. "Mind the dark doorway there!"{ #62} -- This, like so many other (perhaps all) lines in these poems, is pregnant with a host of hidden meanings. Not only is it physical, of saying good-bye to a friend: but mental, of the darkness of metaphysics; occult, of the mystical darkness of the Threshold of Initiation; and physiological, containing allusions to a whole group of phenomena, which those who have begun meditation will recognise.

Similarly, a single word may be a mnemonic key to an entire line of philosophical argument.

If the reader chooses, in short, he will find the entire mass of Initiated Wisdom between the covers of this unpretending volume. {211B}