Atty. Cesar Paras Sr.: Objection, your Honor, the witness has the right opinion which is valid based on his authority designated to him by my client that he is the only person that has an authority to withdraw said gold bullion deposits.

Court: Alright, just maintain the record, eventually, we will cross the bridge when needed.

Enough over such testimonies that that we can no longer deny the veracity of the Reverend Father's Statement and in as much as no opposition from the government except they signified their conformity to issue this DECISION WITH COMPROMISE AGREEMENT between the Republic of the Philippines represented by His Excellency President Ferdinand E. Marcos and his Solicitor General and by the party in interest, Mr. Benito A. Tallano and his son, Prince Julian Morden Tallano, represent by their Legal Counsel, Atty. Cezar Paras Sr.

COMMENTS FROM THE AUTHORS:

Father Diaz/Colonel Santa Romana seems to have either fudged the truth a bit, or forgot his arithmetic (not likely). In another version of the Vatican story about the Royal Family/Sultanate of Sulu gold, (30%) was given to Diaz/Marcos as a fee for arranging its return from the Vatican to the Philippines. It is said that 30% of the gold was sent by Diaz/Marcos directly to Switzerland and there entrusted to a banker named Nicholas Senn. Diaz (above) has subtracted 35,000 metric tons from 617,500 metric tons "leaving a supposed inventory balance of 482,500...", which is incorrect since the balance should be 582,500 metric tons, a discrepancy of exactly 100 metric tons. Diaz goes on to volunteer, "Definitely, Sir, they used fraudulently my signature to withdraw such 82,500 metric tons," when he should have said, "182,500 metric tons".

Most interesting is the fact that 30% (the fee to Diaz/Marcos confirmed at page 20 of the DECISION WITH COMPROMISE AGREEMENT) of 617,500 metric tons is equal to 185,250 tons, leaving 432,250 tons in the Central Bank vault. Removing 35,000 metric tons would have left 397,250, a discrepancy of only 2,750 tons from the 400,000 Fr. Diaz testified to at trial: "But lately, when I went the Central Bank along with the heirs, Don Esteban Benitez Tallano and Prince Julian Morden Tallano for verification and inventory recently, we found that the only exact inventory remain intact in the vault then was 400,000 metric tons..."

Other documents and stories we have heard tend toward the likelihood that the 185,250 tons went to the Swiss Banking Corporation and the remainder of 582,500 tons were brought back to Fort Santiago and were subsequently moved to the Central Bank vault constructed in Quezon City during the early years of the Marcos Presidency.

Judge Enrique A. Agana's ORDER at page 121, Paragraph 9 of the DECISION WITH COMPROMISE AGREEMENT is quoted as follows:

"Ordering the National Government, Office of the President of the Philippines and his staffs, the National Treasurer and his staffs, the solicitor General and his staffs and the Governor of the Central Bank to relocate the remaining inventory balance of 400,000 metric tons of gold nuggets own by the Royal Family, the Tagean-Tallano family, and, when relocated, return the same to the vaults of the Central Bank for the interest of the Filipino people to serve as U.S. dollar reserves required by the IMF and the World banks, while that 5% of that 1% of the required royalty fee which was unpaid starting in the year 1969 to the present and to its succeeding year until the precious metals has been withdrawn based on the prevailing market price should be paid directly to the authorized Heir, Prince Julian Morden Tallano." [End Quoting]

IN SUMMARY, we do not hesitate to honor and revere Judge Agana for his respect for and adherence to the law. He quite obviously forced the Diosdado Macapagal Administration to a fair and logical AGREEMENT which, had it been followed by both sides, the government and Royal Family, would have resulted in unprecedented progress and wealth for the nation and all of its people. If the Royal Family had set up the Foundation as instructed and staffed it with professional business managers the government would have had far less justification for continuing to try to circumvent the DECISION WITH COMPROMISE AGREEMENT, which it does to this day. On the other hand, both the Macapagal Administration and the Marcos Administration could have done far more in cooperating and working with Tallanos to effect the practical implementation of the AGREEMENT.

That error has been compounded by all of the subsequent Administrations, resulting in the deaths of millions of poverty-stricken people, the pollution of the air and water, the loss of thousands of hectares of forestlands, and the uncompleted transportation, power, water, waste management, and communications infrastructure that was so carefully planned during the Marcos Administration. It is "not too late" to bring that abundance to the Philippines, and a start has been made.

Prince Julian Morden Tallano has set up the "DON ESTEBAN BENITEZ TALLANO & DON GREGORIO MADRIGAL ACOP FOUNDATION, INC." and has appointed qualified Trustees to manage it. When the Administration elects to use the DEEDS OF ASSIGNMENT FOR CONSIDERATION offered by Global Alliance Investment Association (GAIA) as qualified banking RESERVES, GAIA can provide the necessary RESERVES to joint venture with the National Treasury to purchase the gold from the Foundation. Because it is a sovereign nation, the National Treasury can issue new pesos to the Foundation to purchase the gold, giving the Foundation the funds it needs to pay its Real Estate and Property Taxes all over the Archipelago, thus benefiting all of the barangays and municipalities that receive all or part of their funding from Real Estate and Property Taxes. These funds could begin to flow within a few days of reaching the appropriate agreements, which are already mostly drawn up and ready for adoption.

If this is a government of, for, and by the people, and the people are tired of not having enough to eat, or of having to breathe polluted air and drink unsafe water, the people should let their elected representatives know that they want to use this solution to their problems. The Foundation is ready; the Alliance is ready, and all that is needed is for the government to do its part.

You see my brethrens and dear friends, the FILIPINOS ARE ONE OF THE RICHES PEOPLE IN THE WORLD. IF NOT ONLY FROM MARCOS (COHORT OF THE JESUIT-VATICAN) EVIL DOINGS, THE FILIPINO TODAY WILL NOT SUFFER DUE TO EXTREME POVERTY, NOW AN IMPOVERISHED NATION.

I DON'T KNOW WHY FOR WHAT REASON OR WHATSOEVER, WHY IS THE JESUIT-VATICAN-ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH WAS SO INVOLVED, HIGHLY INTERESTED AND HAVE A GREAT TASTE FOR THE GOLDS OWNED BY THE PEOPLE OF THE PHILIPPINES.

EVERSINCE FROM 1521 THAT THE CATHOLIC CHURCH SET ITS FOOT ON PHILIPPINE SOIL THE PROBLEM AND MISERY OF THE FILIPINOS BEGAN TO ESCALATE AND LOOK NOW WHAT HAPPENED TO THE PHILIPPINES. POVERTY IS WIDESPREAD, TEARS IN MY EYES AS I SEE MY POOR COUNTRYMEN STRICKEN BY HUNGER AND POVERTY.

NOW, WHO WILL TAKE THE CHALLENGE TO DESTROY THESE ISSUES AND HIDDEN TRUTH THAT WAS ALREADY BEEN DEBATED IN REGIONAL TRIAL COURT (RTC) OF PASAY CITY, METRO-MANILA. REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES.

WILL THE VATICAN-CATHOLIC CHURCH PAY FOR THE CRIMES AND DAMAGES DONE TO THE FILIPINO PEOPLE?

SCANDAL IS A DIFFERENT MEANING FROM THE PRE-MEDITATED / INTENTIONAL CRIMES-CONSPIRACIES!

WHERE IS THE COMMON SENSE ? WHERE IS WISDOM & UNDERSTANDING ?

WAKE-UP FILIPINO PEOPLE ! LOOK WHAT THE CATHOLIC CHURCH DONE TO OUR COUNTRY ! NOW AN IMPOVERISHED NATION.

THIS IS ONE OF THE MANY REASONS WHY I DEPARTED AWAY FROM THE CATHOLIC FAITH.

IF THE VATICAN-CATHOLIC CHURCH WILL RETURN THE THOUSANDS OF METRIC TONS OF GOLD OR PAY AN EQUIVALENT AMOUNT OF MONEY TO THE FILIPINO PEOPLE

FOR THE THOUSANDS OF METRIC TONS OF GOLD THEY TOOK AWAY FROM THE PHILIPPINES, THEN THE FILIPINO PEOPLE MAY FORGIVE THE VATICAN-CATHOLIC CHURCH.

BUT FOR MILLIONS OF FILIPINO PEOPLE DEAD OR STILL ALIVE, DON'T WORRY THERE IS STILL HOPE AND JUSTICE. AS JESUS CHRIST WILL NOT FORGET THESE CRIMES DURING THE FINAL DAY OF JUDGEMENT IN THE HIGHEST COURT OF JUSTICE OF GOD ALMIGHTY - THE GOD OF ISRAEL, ABRAHAM, ISAAC & JACOB.

LET US SEE IF THEY (VATICAN-CATHOLIC CHURCH) WIN AGAINST THE ULTIMATE POWER OF GOD & JESUS CHRIST.

JESUS CHRIST SAID : THE LAST REVENGE IS MINE !

Did late-former Philippine President Ferdiand E. Marcos do really entrusted his sequestered golds owned by the Filipino people into the Vatican Trust ? Well, read below you'll be stunned !

Title: Jesuit Mission I - By FELIX RAJ

CRAIG-OXLEY - April 7, 2006 12:34 AM (GMT)

JESUIT MISSION - I

The Jesuit Order called the "Society of Jesus", with its 20,408 members spread all over the world, has taken up every conceivable form of work, which may, in some way, lead people to total welfare. There are Jesuits working as doctors, Social Activists, research scholars, scientists, astronomers, architects, circus performers, movie actors, journalists, psychiatrists, besides of course, the traditional work of teachers and preachers. The Jesuits all over the world are celebrating their founder's 450t death anniversary.

Social Activists - LIBERATION THEOLOGY

The Society of Jesus was founded by Ignatius of Loyola which was officially approved by Pope Paul III in 1540. Ignatius was one of those unusual characters of the 16th century Spain. As a Basque nobleman, he had his education in King Ferdinand's court and became a brave knight.

Transformed Life

In May 1521, at the age of 30, Ignatius was wounded in both legs in the battle between Francis I, King of France and the Province of Navarre. In hospital he underwent a painful and unsuccessful operation. During the long weary weeks of convalescence at home, he read two books, The Life of Christ by Rudolph of Saxony and Flos Sanctorum (Lives of Saints) which transformed his life.

In 1522, he left home and went to the shrine of Our Lady of Montserrat near Barcelona and hung up his sword and dagger as a pledge of his new commitment to Christ and His Mother. For the next year, he lived on alms, spending long hours in prayer and meditation. He wrote his Spiritual Exercises there, the most efficient and widely used retreat manual today in the world. But realising the need for knowledge, he went to Paris University and completed his philosophical and theological studies. He met and won over there six men, all brilliant students, including Francis Xavier, the then professor of the Paris University who came to India.

It was typical of Ignatius to insist on calling his Order the Society of Jesus to indicate that Christ was the sole model for all its future members. This insistence explains how the name “Jesuit” came to be attached to the members of the Society of Jesus. Its Latin equivalent “Jesuita” meaning “like Jesus” was originally a nickname coined by people who disliked the new Order and its determination to use the name “Society of Jesus”. In the same way, at the beginning of the Christian era, the word Christianus was concocted as a nickname for the followers of Christ.

It was not only its name which distinguished the new Order from the other religious Orders in the 16th century. Much more distinct was its objectives, administration and its way of life. Very firmly, Ignatius refused to limit the objectives of the Society of Jesus to any particular type of work. Though nowhere in the Constitution of the Society prepared by Ignatius education is given special importance, the Jesuits have come to be particularly known in the public mind for their educational work. Willing workers

The Jesuits, according to their founder, should be ready to undertake any work in any part of the world which will be for the “Greater Glory of God” (the Jesuit Motto: Ad Majorem Dei Gloriam). Spurred on by their motto, Jesuits fanned out to every country, chiefly to all the new lands just “discovered” by Portuguese and Spanish explorers —North and South Americas, India, China, the Philippines, and other South Asian countries. By the time of Ignatius’ death in 1556, the Jesuits, numbering around 1,000, had spread to all four continents.

That is why on the dust jacket of his book, The Jesuits, Malachi Martin wrote: “In that world where faith and power clash, the Society of Jesus has been the most fabled and fabulous, the most admired and reviled, in the practice of both. Jesuits have been both a puzzle and a model for the rest of the world. Friends and enemies, Catholics and non-Catholics, have all tried to unravel ‘the power and the secret’ of these religiously trained and devoted men who stand as giants in every secular pursuit of mankind as well. In science and art, writing and exploration and teaching — and not least in world politics — Jesuits always aimed to be the best. And they were. They had a part to play in every major political alliance in Europe and America, in Asia and Africa. They became shapers not only of religious history, but of world history. Even Hitler and his Nazi generals dreamed of such a cadre of men; and even Lenin envied them”.

The Indian mission of the Jesuits lies at the very origin of their Order. It is to India that Ignatius of Loyola, the Founder of the Society of Jesus, sent his greatest son, Francis Xavier, and to him and his collaborators, that he gave that inspiration and those directives, which became the basis of the Jesuit mission and method. India has also been the birthplace of missionary theories and the testing ground of missionary policies.

Francis Xavier was the first Jesuit to set foot on Indian soil on 6 May 1542. That day, he entered Goa in the entourage of the new governor, Martin Affonso de Sousa, with whom he had sailed from Lisbon. They were given a rousing welcome, and the natural beauty of the Mandovi riverside, together with the imposing buildings, could not but move Xavier. He took charge of the College of St Paul in Goa, started in 1541 by a group of Portuguese. This college was the first educational institution in India which became later the cornerstone of widespread Jesuit mission in education and in other fields.

Charitable Work

Xavier was a zealous “missionary on the move”. He constantly travelled along the Fishery Coast, then west into Marava country, then to Mylpore (present day Chennai). He sailed to Malacca and Japan in 1549 where he spent two and a half years. In April 1552 he set sail to China via Malacca from Goa, never to return alive. He died at Sancian, a small island facing China, on 2 December of the same year. Wherever he went, he plunged himself into charitable and pastoral work preaching the message of God’s love to people. At the time of his death there were 64 Jesuits in India. He worked in India for 10 years, 1542 to 1552, called the Xaverian decade.

Robert De Nobili came to India in 1605. Hailed by Max Muller as the “First European Sanskrit scholar”, he mastered Tamil and Sanskrit and translated the Vedas and other Hindu Scriptures. Constantine Beschi (1680-1747) occupies a special place in Tamil literature, something that the fifth world Tamil Congress held at Madurai in January 1981 proudly acknowledged by erecting his statue in the city. Thomas Stevens (1549-1600) has received accolades for his Kristaun Puran or Christian Purana, an epic in 11,000 stanzas which scholars still hail as a masterpiece of Marathi literature.

The Jesuits started the first printing press in India in 1556. Antonio de Monserratte (1556-1600) was the first person, after Ptolemy, to make a map of India. Joseph Tieffenthaller (1710-1785) was the first geographer to draw up a fairly accurate map of the Ganges. His Historical Geographical Description of India contains accurate descriptions of Indian birds, trees, plants and flowers that he studied during his 29-year-long tour of the region and also as a result of astronomical and geographical observations he made during those wanderings. The Jaipur astronomical library stands as a tribute to his work.

Two Observatories

Fr Richard at Pondicherry used a telescope for the first time on Indian soil in 1689. He discovered the binary nature of the star Alpha Centauri. Fr Manuel de Firueredo, emissary of Maharaja Sawai Jai Singh of Jaipur to the King of Portugal, was largely responsible for the Jaipur and Delhi Observatories, impressive monuments, built between 1724 and 1735, for his astronomical genius. Fr Jerome D'Souza of Madras was a member of the Indian Constituent Assembly and four times India's delegate to the UN General Assembly.

Frs Ethelbert, Blatter and Henry Santapau were well known in botanical circles for their contribution to Indian botany. The internationally acclaimed Herbarium at St Xavier's College, Mumbai was established by them and was later named as Blatter herbarium. Fr Santapau became the first chief of the Botanical Survey of India and remained chief for six years. He was awarded the Padma Shri by the Government of India and the Birbal Sahani Medal by the Indian Botanical Society in 1964 for his services to Indian botany.

Fr C Bulke, a Belgian, India's most famous Christian Hindi scholar, enriched the Hindi and Sanskrit languages by his writings. He was an authority on the Rama theme and a well known lexicographer. The Government of India awarded him the Padma Bhushan in 1974 in recognition of his contribution to Hindi research and language.

Fr Eugene Lafont of St Xaviers College, Kolkata, has the distinction of introducing modern science into India with his knowledge of experimental physics and his ability to popularise science among the people. He was called the Father of Science in India. Sir JC Bose and Dr CV Raman found encouragement for their introduction to science in the person of Fr Lafont. Modern Indology owes much to the Belgians, Johans, Dandoy, Antoine and Fallon of St Xavier's College, Kolkata. They also enriched the Bengali and Sanskrit languages. Fr Fallon was called the "apostle of inter-religious dialogue" in Kolkata.

Reform Of Calendar

Matteo Ricci went to China and mastered Chinese. He rapidly became a mandarin and an advisor to the Emperor, a post held by generations of other Jesuits who succeeded him. Ricci was the first westerner to master Chinese and translate some of that country's classics into western languages. Alexander de Rhodes first gave Vietnamese a script. A Jesuit botanist, Jiri Kamel, working in Manila, gave the world the Camelia; while one of the lunar craters is named after the Jesuit astronomer, Christopher Clavius who was also largely responsible for the reform of the calendar resulting in the Gregorian calendar now in universal use.

The Jesuits in Latin America not only discovered cinchona, also known as Jesuit's bark, from which quinine is derived, but also worked mightily to protect the Indian tribes from the depredations of the Spanish colonists by forming them into self-contained communities which would be able to feed, house, clothe and protect themselves. The most celebrated example of this work are the famous "Jesuit reductions of Paraguay", which is very beautifully portrayed in the famous film Mission by Ronald Joffe and acted by Robert de Niro.

Three of the most famous Jesuits of recent times have been Gerard Manley Hopkins, the poet and founder of the Romantic movement in English poetry; Pierre Teilhard de Chardin, the renowned paleontologist and mystic whose thought responds to a deeper human urge of today, the need to integrate science and human progress with the world of the spirit; and Karl Rahner, one of the greatest theologians of the Catholic Church.

In the world today the Indian Province of the Society of Jesus is the largest with 3,851 Jesuits, followed by the USA with 3,635. In India, they work among the fisher folk of the Malabar Coast, Kerala; among the poor Harijans of Tamil Nadu and Bihar, among the tribals of Maharashtra in Nasik district; in Chotanagpur and in Santal Parganas. There is their legal aid programme through the Indian Social Institutes, Delhi and Bangalore. These reflect their new thrust and their "preferential option for the poor".

Schools And Colleges

They run no less than 31 university colleges, five institutes of business administration and 155 high schools spread throughout the country, almost all of them among its most reputed. More than 300,000 students belonging to every religious, linguistic and socio-economic group receive their education. In the context of glaring inequalities and widespread poverty, the insistence is no longer on influencing the rich, the learned and the powerful as the best means of doing good, but rather on helping the common man to live a decent human existence as the first prerequisite for any spiritual concern.

A new thrust is seen: a single-minded and wholehearted response to the multi-religious and multi-cultural realities of the modern world. Their response is promotion of justice as an integral dimension of faith and a dialogue with unbelievers and with those of various secular ideologies. These three bearings now guide the course of Jesuit activity and institutions.

Dear Brother Eric :

I humbly and politely wish to give a Shed-Light concerning the whereabouts of Marcos Gold & Billions that I strongly believe with documentary evidence fell into the hands of the JESUITS / VATICAN.

1.0 Rick Martin's interview on Eric Jon Phelps revealed that World War II was orchestrated by the Jesuits. The book entitled "Vatican Assassins" by Eric Jon Phelps is one of the most reliable book about the Jesuits / Vaticans worldwide conspiracies.

2.0 According to Edmund Paris book entitled "The Secret History Of The Jesuits" World War I and World War II was orchestrated by the Jesuits.

3.0 One of the Jesuit's intention for these world wars is to exterminate the heretics, and take possession of every country in the world and their wealth "Extreme Oath Of The Jesuits". It was revealed that many wars and revolutions was finance by the Jesuit controlled Federal Reserve through Council On Foreign Relation.

Morgan long time associated with the Rothchilds who are also belong to the 13-Elite Families Illuminati-Satanic Bloodlines that are controlled by the Illuminati-Jesuits.

Fritz Springmeier is the author of the book entitled "Bloodlines". The Rothschild is the banker of the Papacy.

5.0 Also, mentioned are Roberto Calvi's private bank known as Banco Ambrosiano and Licio Gelli of P2 Lodge of Italy. (This is where Archbishop Paul Marcinkus name was involved in the anomalies. And that when Pope John Paul I had discovered that P2 Lodge within inside Vatican. The John Paul I was poisoned by Cardinal Villot and involvement of Archbishop Paul Marcinkus who is the head of the Vatican Bank). Both Villot & Marcinkus are members of the Masonic P2 Lodge.

6.0 The name Baron Arndt Krupp was also mentioned. The Krupp family was in the number 15 of the Illuminati-Satanic Bloodlines. All Illuminati-Satanic Bloodlines was mentioned by Fritz Springmeier the author of the book entitled "Bloodlines"

The rest of the contents of the Project Hammer 1 & 2 about Marcos Gold & Billions are complete for you to read. Where you will read the names Santa Romana, Roberto Benedicto and Fabian C. Ver of the Philippines.

I SOMEHOW BELIEVE THAT FORMER PHILIPPINE PRESIDENT FERDINAND E. MARCOS IS A COHORTS OF THE JESUITS. AND THOSE JESUITS FOUGHT MARCOS ARE MERELY DIVERSIONARY TACTICS.

Finally, I've prepared 10-Series of Acrobat PDF Files courtesy of DEEP BLACK LIES WITH ORIGINAL DOCUMENTS THAT PERHAPS WILL SHOCK ALL OF YOU.

7.0 Archbishop Of Manila, the late Jaime Cardinal Sin received Baron Krupp, kneeling before the Cardinal. See attached Part 2 of Part 10 Documents in Acrobat PDF File

8.0 The late former president Ferdinand E. Marcos and Vatican Trust where Golds worth of Billions into the care of the Vatican Trust.

I've now realized Bro. Eric Jon Phelps expose that the Jesuits badly need golds for the re-building of Solomons Temple in Jerusalem for the final Anti-Christ Pope which is also mentioned in the Book Of Revelation (Bible).

Finally, my brethren and dear trusted friends you may read it all for you to understand the entirety of all information I've shared to all of you.

I'm now convinced that the Marcos Gold & Billions can't be traced by any government agencies in the world to determine the whereabouts of the said wealth and also a news blackout. I'm now 42-years old and I haven't heard news implicating that the Vatican or the Jesuits possessed the above mentioned Marcos Gold & Billions. It all fitted to Avro Manhattan's book entitled "VATICAN BILLIONS".

Millions of Filipinos have no idea about Vatican-Marcos Gold & Billions Of Dollars.

Cardinal Sin is pictured in these documents as traitor to the Filipino people. Cardinal Sin, Cory Aquino's boss.

Lastly, Bro. Eric I will entrust to you the actual photos of the documents in Acrobat PDF Files in 10 Parts implicating the Marcos Gold & Billions was placed by Marcos before his death (last will - testimony) and I believed in the possessions of the Jesuits-Vatican better known as VATICAN TRUST written by Marcos himself. I now realized that Imelda Marcos doesn't keep Marcos Gold & Billions but rather the Vatican Trust.

Bro. Eric anything happened to me you know already who are the prime culprit. These knowledge was given to me by GOD many of our political leaders don't know it and they even snubbed it fearing the extreme power of the JEUSITS-VATICAN. However, I've discovered that one senior senator of our country has a slight idea about the Marcos Gold & Billions in the possession of the VATICAN TRUST. I'll tell you later his name.

For all of my beloved devout Roman Catholic Families - THERE IS A BIG DIFFERENCE BETWEEN SCANDALS AND PRE-MEDITATED CRIMES & CONSPIRACIES. Some Catholic words SCANDAL is a mere escape-goat to face the harsh reality of Pre-meditated Crimes & Conspiracies. Why is the Jesuit Order - Vatican -Catholic Church so involved in these cheating, crimes and conspiracies.

Instead they should suppose very active to teach the words of GOD as they are religious institution and not as MAFIOSO activities.

Too much verbal discussions will lead to misunderstanding but a photos of original documents will speak for it self that the boxing is finish - AN EYE DOESN'T LIE.

My challenge to the catholic hiarchy, after all what you have done to the Philippines now an impoverished nation, will the catholic church admitted publicly with sincere intention and will pay the Filipino people the damages they have inflicted. The catholic heiarchy is hypocrite, when they damaged people's lives admit it so that people will forgive them.

Description: of the world question to Eric Phelps

CRAIG-OXLEY - April 6, 2006 11:49 PM (GMT)

The Relationship between the Vatican and the Rulers of the World

Dear Eric,

I've been following your research now for many years and I have a matter I would appreciate your views on, regarding the book of Revelation and the prophecy of the Harlot, otherwise described as Babylon the Great, which is also described as having a kingdom over all the kingdoms of the earth, from Rome...

Several passages, in Revelation, describe how the rulers of the earth (the wild beast) will turn on its pinion passenger, the Harlot and devour her.

Having heard read your writings and heard some of your radio interviews, I would like your thoughts, regarding this significant prophecy.

From your research, I understand that the Jesuits control not only much of the political foreign policy of the West but also control the politics of countries, like America, through organisations like CFR, etc.

If this is the case and from your research, it does appear to be the case, where does this leave Revelation's prophecy that the rulers will turn on the Vatican, in Rome and destroy her?

The destruction of Rome and thus the Vatican will occur at mid-trib. Just prior to the last 42 months of Gentile rule of Jerusalem, the Pope will be murdered and come back to life as the Pope turned Antichrist. He will then, with his ten nations of Europe, destroy Rome and then go down to Jerusalem to sit in the third Hebrew Temple to be worshipped as God for 42 months. At that time the two witnesses (Moses and Elijah) will then be killed by the Beast, come back to life and ascend into heaven.

How can this be if Rome is controlling the rulers? Why should the rulers, like the president of America or the Prime Minister of Italy, turn on the Vatican, if that's where they get their orders from?

The murder of the last pope will be blamed on the Vatican Hierarchy which will then justify the Luciferic/masonic/Illuminist Jesuit Order's destruction of Rome, with the Order's pope turned Antichrist, ruling the world from Jerusalem. Remember, the Jesuit Order is separate from the Pope and Vatican Hierarchy. It is a separate and completely distinct brotherhood from the Roman Hierarchy. It has declared war on the Papacy in the past, via the French Revolution and Napoleonic Wars, and will do so again---this time utterly burning that city with fire.

Do you think Revelation's prophecy will be fulfilled soon and under what circumstances might this come about?

No, not anytime soon. For the above to happen, the true Church---Body of Christ---must be first taken out of this earth, for we have not been appointed to wrath but to inherit salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ. That appearing of the Lord for his Church is momentary.

Further, the Third Hebrew Temple must be rebuilt before the last pope can become the Antichrist. One of the purposes of this Third Thirty Years' War and Papal Crusade is to remove the mosques from the Temple Mount in Jerusalem. So there must be some lapse of time before Rome will be destroyed.

I hope you can enlighten me on this matter because these questions have puzzled me for a very long time and I can't seem to find a satisfactory answer anywhere.

I trust this helps.

Yours sincerely,
Rxxxx

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

Title: Freemasonry and Professed Fourth Vow Jesuit Fidel

Description: Castro's Cuba -by Nicholas Rivera

CRAIG-OXLEY - April 5, 2006 02:39 AM (GMT)

Dear Brother Eric,

I found this article from the Scottish Rite Journal (formerly The New Age Magazine)

<http://www.srmason-sj.org/web/journal-file...oct03/elias.htm>

Quote: "During his visit to Cuba in March 2002, Ill. Akram R. Elias, 33°, visited with His Eminence Jose Siro Gonzales Bacallal, Catholic Bishop of Pinar de Rio in Cuba, and put a Masonic pin of the Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of the District of Columbia on the Bishop's shirt."

There are many Masonic lodges worldwide with the name Cuba. If this Catholic bishop is a Freemason then you can safely assume that the Archbishop of Havana which would explain why he doesn't care or complain that Professed Fourth Vow Jesuit Fidel Castro is a 33rd Degree Freemason.

Scarlet and the Beast by John Daniel (excellent photos and most of the info seems legit but there may be some disinformation and Daniel does not mention the Jesuits at all in his Picture Book but maybe he does in the actual book-even the way the book is formatted is similar to VA)

http://www.scarletandthebeast.com/updated...re_appendix.htm

I saw something in this book that made me think about Dr. Peter S. Ruckman. There is a photo in the Picture Book that shows an open King James Bible in a Masonic Temple with two crossing swords on top of it and a 33rd degree pyramid/triangle on it and according to John Daniel it symbolizes that the Scottish Rite Supreme Council is in session. Daniel says the reason Scottish Rite Freemasons place a King James Bible on their altar of sacrifice is because King James I was a Scottish Templar Mason.

I'm not saying that Ruckman is a Mason and if he was I could not prove it. It is interesting to note that anti-Masonic books are advertised in the catalogue but none of them are authored by Dr. Ruckman nor have I ever read nor heard anything negative about the Masonic lodge come from him. I think the "pastor" of the Charismatic Word-Faith cult church I attended growing up was a Mason because he was silent on Masonry and there were Masons in the congregation and I knew this because of the compass and square car pins in the parking lot. I'm suspicious of churches that emphasize light or light sources in their symbols. There is the true light-the Lord Jesus Christ-then there is the counterfeit Luciferian light of Masonry.

John Daniel's book has an interesting chapter on the "Secret Society Behind Al-Qaeda"
Shriner Freemasonry

Quoting from the article (last paragraph)

"Finally, on the occasion of the 7th Annual Order of Malta South Florida Gala, the Board of Directors has voted to bestow The Honorable [Third Degree Knight of Columbus] Jeb Bush, Governor of the State of Florida with its Ethic of Life Award for Outstanding Service towards the defense of life and human dignity of the unborn. Brother Nick Rivera

I've read one book from the Scarlet and the Beast series about Lincoln, Central banks, CFR, etc. That book was called Volume 3 about the Drug Trade, music, JFK, etc. He obsesses over Freemasonry (and I have no problem with this) yet he won't expose the Jesuits, Knights of Malta, Opus Dei, etc. Years ago, I've read chapters of his up coming book. Now, Daniel won't show portions of his up coming book, except for the Picture book. Primarily, I read about the Sabbeateans (he accurately depicts them as being anti-Torah Judaism and anti-Christian), but I also read up on the Jesuits. He mentions them, but believes that they don't rule the world and only expose their corruption in South America. John Daniel believes that Masons created divisions between Protestants and Catholics. In truth, Catholics then and now is divided amongst itself with its unbiblical precepts. His information on Al Qaeda (him exposing the many Masonic Muslim leaders and Al Qaeda's similarities with Freemasonry. As Mark Brewer rightfully said, Islam is an enemy. I found and look at the Koran for myself to see it.)

Freemasonry Watch.org has an article about the Muslim/Masonic link as well. John Daniel's information about William Morgan is excellent though. His information is important since he at least exposes Freemasonry, but the Masons don't rule the Earth. I don't believe that Masonic propagandists like Masonic Traveler, Lee Duncan, and Theron Dunn can refute Daniel's research. What really annoys me now is the media presenting the lie that Bush is some how a born again, conservative Christian. If that were the case, Bush would of denounced the Heirachy of Rome, denounce occult Secret Societies of Skulls and Bones plus the Bohemian Grove, and call for all Americans to repent from their sins.

From <http://www.savethemales.ca/001482.html>

Dan said (April 03, 2006):

Your articles make sense, except you never seem to mention the Vatican / Jesuit connection. Have you researched the history of the Jesuits in undermining governments for their own purposes? Have you not read of the stories of Illuminati being initiated at sacrificial rites in the underground laborinth below the Vatican in Satanic rituals possibly linked to the Jesuits?

Have you researched "The Vatican Assassins" by Erich Phelps? See <http://www.vaticanassassins.org/>

Have you read about the Jesuits at <http://www.tacklingthetoughtopics.net/> .?

It does appear that the worlds governments and intelligence agencies are controlled through the Black Pope - The Supreme General of the Society of Jesus. The head of the USSR intelligence under Stalin was a Jesuit priest, I believe. Stalin was taught at a jesuit school in neighboring Georgia. Wild Bill Donovan was given the highest award of the Vatican for a lifetime of intelligence service. Eric Phelps make a very good case that the real power is held by Jesuits or Jesuit trained people, particularly of Irish Catholic descent in the USA. The promenant Jews are as you say converted to Luciferian type ancient IHS Egyptian religion, Isis - Horus - Bet?. According to Eric's sources including a reference book, the Masons are patterned after the Jesuit hierarchy structure, as was the German SS.

Dan,

It's not that I am Jesuit but I just haven't got around to researching them. I assume they are part of the same picture and look forward to seeing how they fit. Thanks for this reminder.

Title: Phelps on immigration and more

CRAIG-OXLEY - April 30, 2006 12:49 AM (GMT)

Notice the Order's maxims of "probabilism" and "mental reservation" ("I did not have sex with that woman, Monica Lewinski") throughout the conversation. At this the Jesuits are masters of deceit.

The Order is using their unconscious tools, the Mexican Roman Catholics, driven from a Mexico that has been deliberately bankrupted thanks to NAFTA and GATT, to put forth the Atzlan movement---the supposed retaking of the southwest. I believe this to be a mere pretext for the Jesuits to then incite all Whites--- Protestants and Roman Catholics alike---to fascist, extreme nationalism (as opposed to biblical and sane nationalism) creating the Fourth Reich in North America. It was for this purpose Himmler's SS was brought into the US after WWII.

The Mexicans and other alien invaders, as well as the violent Moslems, will then be rounded up and thrown into the existing concentration camps to the relief of the White Middle Class. (Lenin was taught that if a successful revolution is to be waged, the Middle Class must be involved.) These camps were originally established by Masonic J. Edgar Hoover during WWII and perfected under honorary Knight of Malta and President Ronald Reagan via "Operation Garden Plot" and "Operation Cable Splicer." It is for this reason that I warn every Mexican of his fate, secretly planned by the Jesuits ruling the American Roman Hierarchy, and that he should immediately leave the US before it is too late. Remember, the Jesuits will always kill their Roman Catholic people, if "the ends sanctify the means." This was done during the Order's Masonically-led Armenian massacre (1915-1923); its Masonically-led Russian Orthodox massacre (1914-Present); and its Masonically-led Prussian Lutheran Massacre (1914-1945).

In short, the Jesuit General is planning for the annihilation of millions of Roman Catholic Mexicans at the hands of outraged and damaged American Whites as well as damaged American Blacks, the Blacks being especially displaced from their jobs by laboring criminal foreigners. This will further incite the Blacks to race war, led by the Black Pope's Masonic, hatefully racist, anti-White, Jew-hating Nation of Islam. The Black Pope's Masonic, hatefully racist, anti-Black, Jew hating KKK will be used at the other extreme---the intended synthesis being in the hands of the Jesuit American Assistant to the Black Pope.

The reason for American businessmen using foreign labor is that they cannot afford the bookwork and withholding taxes mandated by the Black Pope's wicked IRS. The pressure from Washington has created a vacuum bereft of American workers, now being filled by the alien Roman Catholics---including Black Roman Catholic Haitians. (The exact same thing is being done in historic White Anglo-Saxon England now apostate.) Operating within the present tax system, American small businessmen---composing what was once the White Middle Class---can no longer make a profit. I am not defending these actions, but the country's working businessmen are now in survival mode when "all is fair in love and war."

Thus, the Jesuits, those masters of the Hegelian dialectic, manage at least ten openly disconnected factions behind the alien invasion, the first being Skull and Bonesman and Freemasonic President George W. Bush backed by the Jesuit-controlled US Senate. The second is Masonic Mexican President Vicente Fox; the third is the Mexican economy via its banking system headquartered in Mexico City; the fourth is the Mexican border police, the Federales, working in conjunction with the Mexican Mafia bringing the aliens and drugs across the border; the sixth is the American Border Patrol whose hands have been tied preventing it from securing the borders; the seventh are the secret leaders of the White Minutemen who are building a justification for the White Middle Class---and rightly so---for the creation of a new Freicorps, the forerunner of the new SS (the Department of Homeland Security). Remember the Jesuits are the masters of creating a legitimate grievance and then exploiting that grievance for their socialist communist or socialist fascist purposes---as was accomplished with Jesuit John LaFarge's Civil Rights Movement.) The seventh faction is the FBI that apparently will be the new American Gestapo (yes, Hoover and Himmler were friends); the eighth is the Justice Department that refuses to prosecute and punish the corporate monopolies employing the aliens; the ninth are the port authorities several of which are in the hands of the Chinese; the tenth is the longshoremen, controlled by their immediate master, the American Mafia.

All of these factions are being coordinated by ten American Jesuit provincials commanding their oath-bound, secret soldiers on the ground within these organizations. Another soldier is the governor of California, Austrian Roman Catholic Papal Knight Arnold S. One more faction: the CFR-controlled major media, including CFR member Rupert Murdoch, that Knight of St. Gregory and minion of Los Angeles Archbishop Roger Mahoney---the greatest backer of the aliens in the West.

This is an American example of how the Jesuit Order works, its soldiers under command of absolute obedience to their superiors. All is going as planned and the Whites have no redress save two: Repent and believe the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ, that He died for our sins according to the Scriptures, that He was buried and that he rose again according to the Scriptures and that He is to return, judging the world in righteousness. The next is to covenant together with believers of like precious faith, and then get control of the commissioner and sheriff of your county, only to pass a Declaration of Independence in every county. This will then lead to a State secession, it declaring its Independence. Then, via faith in Christ and by operating through the divine institution of human government (Genesis 9:6), we then can restore order, punish crime and reward good---that being the purpose of human government as established by God. Some say, this is absurd and wrong, that "united we stand and divided we fall." The fact is we have already fallen; the solution is outlined above and has worked in the past.

Part of restoring order is to expel the Jesuit Order from our borders enforcing the penalty of death to any who would secretly return---as they surely will. (This was done by the great Queen Elizabeth I, the Lord protecting her throughout the Black Pope's many attempted assassinations.) Then the Masonic lodges must be closed due their complicity with the Order at its top echelons. The Roman Hierarchy must also go, its purpose being to overthrow the national sovereignty of all nations when enforcing the temporal power of the Pope. This was done by Mexico's great Benito Juarez for which he was given the poison cup in 1872.

I trust this is helpful.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

Now Cardinal Roger Mahony, he leads the Archdiocese of Los Angeles. It is the largest Roman Catholic diocese in the country, and Mahony has recently placed himself and the church in the middle of the national debate on immigration.

On March 1, during Ash Wednesday Mass, the Hollywood-born clergyman attacked a House bill that would turn most people and institutions that aid illegal immigrants into felons. Calling it "blameful, vicious" legislation, Mahony vowed a campaign of civil disobedience in the archdiocese's 288 parishes if it becomes law.

Protest organizers and participants credited Mahony's fire from the pulpit -- and the educational campaign he initiated in January throughout his archdiocese -- with playing a critical role in organizing opposition. They say his efforts helped prompt half a million people, including many illegal immigrants, to feel safe enough participate in one of the biggest demonstrations ever in downtown Los Angeles on March 25, calling for a more liberal immigration bill.

Los Angeles was one of more than a dozen cities in which demonstrators coursed through the streets. Earlier last week, a Senate committee approved an alternative measure with a guest-worker program that would help many illegal immigrants eventually win permanent residency or even U.S. citizenship. "I think this is a good beginning," Mahony said in an interview, "but we are not stopping now."

He is tall and stoop-shouldered. His face fixed in an almost permanent smile, Mahony became archbishop in 1985. Much of his religious career has been devoted to Hispanic migrants and the civic activism he countenanced last month.

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 1, 2006 11:43 PM (GMT)

Dear Bro. Eric :

Yes, what you have written below to Gianni is correct. The very reason we always agree to each other. So, I'm right that the Liberation Theology is a communist and openly JESUIT controlled. This is what I'm always telling to my Filipino brethrens and good friends that the Liberation Theology is the root of political and civil agitations in the Philippines.

Tomorrow is May 01, 2006 "PHILIPPINE LABOR DAY". Banners and streamers of anti-government militant groups, labor unions, political parties "opposition", and possibly will be joined by some Catholic radical priests like Fr. Robert Reyes & Fr. Joe Dizon and the La Salle Brothers "Ateneo-Jesuits Followers" and few radical nuns. The Philippine military is on high-alert status and Philippine National Police "Anti-Riot Police" with batons and shield are also ready for another clashes with the protestors, ralliests, demonstrators and other social agitators we can name will happen again. The result of this is economic downfall and additional burden-poverty.

By the way, I'm presently making research and in-depth studies of the Liberation Theology where I'll focus from now onwards to remove the blanket of blindness of millions of my Filipino countrymen. Try to open your cable TV Bro. Eric and you might search GMA-7 or ABS-CBN 2 now reaching mainland U.S.A. via satellite. And you and my Filipino countrymen will witness again clashes between anti-government militant groups and anti-riot police and will further stir-up by JESUIT controlled Human Rights Movement.

AM I CORRECT THAT HUMAN RIGHTS MOVEMENT ARE JESUIT CONTROLLED ?

Our government officials, politicians and anti-government militant groups like Satur Ocampo, Beltran, Hontiveros, Teddy Casino, Mr. Santiago, Etang Rosales, Liza Masa, Ka Roger Rosal, Jose Maria Sison, Luis Jalandoni, the late Popoy Lagman and Mr. Olalia and others. Also, Sentors Jamby Madrigal, etc. former Vice-President Tefisto Guingona, former president Cory Aquino, Pastor Boy Saycon, Oscar Orbos, Mareng Winnie Monsod, Susan Roces the widow of Fernando Poe and her followers, Congressmen & Congresswomen, Sen. Drillon and others - I TOLD YOU BROTHER ERIC THEY DON'T KNOW THE FOOTPRINTS OF THE JESUIT ORDER AS THE ORCHESTRATOR OF COMMUNISM AND FORMULATOR OF THE LIBERATION THEOLOGY. BROTHER ERIC THEY ARE SO BLIND ! despite they are Philippine's intellectual people. Except for one Senator who slightly knew or have a small idea when he mentioned Jesuit sponsored anti-government militant group demonstrators. His name is Sen. Joker Arroyo but I think he's silent against the Jesuits as he might lose his post as a senator.

Let us take an example : If I'll have a chance to ask a question to Sen. Jamby Madrigal and Congresswoman Etang Rosales. I'll ask them : MA'AM DO YOU KNOW THE EFFECT OF LIBERATION THEOLOGY ? WELL, IT COMES DIRECTLY FROM THE MOUTH OF THE HORSE - THE LATE HIGH-RANKING JESUIT PRIEST FR. MALACHI MARTIN.

PRESENTLY, MORE THAN 5 MILLION FILIPINO PEOPLE HAVE NO JOBS AT ALL. BECAUSE OF LIBERATION THEOLOGY THE ROOT OF POLITICAL CRISIS AND CIVILIAN AGITATIONS. MILLIONS OF FILIPINO HAVE NO CHOICE BUT TO WORK ABROAD AS "OVERSEAS FILIPINO WORKERS" others are migrating. Economic downfall, poverty and crimes are everywhere. The very reason, I'm now bursting in anger against the Jesuits. They have destroyed the lives of Filipino people and destroyed many Filipino homes. My Filipino countrymen still haven't spotted yet the shadows and footprints of the JESUITS. The JESUITS device a clever scheme - by entertaining Filipino people by way of Showbiz, Glitters & Glamors, Sexy Womens and Machos, Movie-TV celebrity gossips and intrigues where millions of my countrymen's attention were truly diverted.

Lastly, I've already spotted so far some names "THE LIBERATION THEOLOGIAN CULPRITS" of course by the Jesuits -> Gustavo Guterrez, Alfonso Cardinal Lopez Trujillo, Leonardo Boff, Ignacio Ellacuria, Ignacio Martin Baro, Segundo Montes, Juan Luis Segundo, Ernesto Cardenal, etc. Absolutely, the former Philippine Jesuit Provincial Superior Fr. Romeo Intengan "ARCHIE" I also blaming him for this Liberation Theology implemented in the Philippines. Fr. Intengan is the co-founder of the Partido Demokratiko Sosyalista Ng Pilipinas together with Norberto Gonzales - Pres. Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's National Security Adviser. These men work together! The very reason, Union Of Soviet Socialist Republic or USSR where it existed before.

I called them MARXIST JESUITS ! COMMUNIST PRIESTS IN CASSOCK.

Sincerely in faith,

Bro. Bobby

Title: Interview Questions/Constance Cumbe clarification

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 1, 2006 11:39 PM (GMT)

That would be very good (to be able to post the History of Protestantism chapter on the Jesuits.). I was also wondering if you would wish to continue this interview? I was hoping to get into some more specific subjects such as Alberto Rivera, the Linochn Assassination, the JFK Assassination, the P2 Masonic Lodge, the Calvi Mruder and Vatican Bank scandal, Jesuit connections to other secret societies, Jesuit involvement in 9/11, Jesuit involvement with Nazis and World War II, and Jesuit involment with Communism.

Great.

Also Eric I myself had a question concerning Constance Cumbe. Now I know you have called her a Temporal Coadjutor in the past. There is nothing wrong with that of course, but I would like to know your side of the story.

Check my website with the button "Coadjutor Cumbe." All is explained therein.

She claims that your publisher is a New Age publisher.

She is correct. I was separated from the publisher via a contract, so I was not unequally yoked with them. Further, they were honest with me and the only ones who dared to publish my book. The "Christian" Moody Press would never have published VA. As long as there was a contract between me and the publisher, I am not at falt.

She also condemns you for refering to Madame Blavatsky in your book I have heard?

I do quote Blavatsky in VA as she quoted her intimate associate and High-lever Freemason Charles Sothern's description of the Jesuits involved in nearly every Masonic rite. Further, what is wrong with quoting a servant of the devil if what he says it true? The Holy Spirit quoted the devil in Matt 4 and Luke 4 when Christ was tempted. Truth is truth regardless of the source. But remember, Coadjutor Cumbey serves the Jesuits of the Detroit Province---and obviously loves it. She has totally discarded every source quoted in VA that exposes the power of the Jesuit Order (contrary to what her mother taught her) and their present control of the US. She is a bold-faced liar and via her own words does not believe the Scripture when Christ said, "I am the way, the truth and the life; no man cometh unto the Father, but by me." (Jn 14:6).

Has she merely misinterpreted what you are saying as I believe?

Correct.

I don't know much about Blavatsky, but have heard she is New Age.

Blavatsky was a witch, a co-mason (which fact Cumbey never mentions) and involved via her nemesis, Annie Besant, with the Order's Fabian Socialist movement that, via the Labor Party, destroyed the Protestant British Empire. Blavatsky was affiliated with the OTO, of which Cardinal Rampolla (the Cardinal Secretary of State to Pope Leo XIII) was also a member according to Blood on the Altar by Roman Catholic Tridentine Traditionalist Craig Heimbichner. She is considered one of the creators of the New Age Movement, but Jesuit Tielhard de Chardin was much more influential whom Cumbey portrays as a renegade of the Order---another cover-up lie.

My take is that if this person is New Age you do not support her, but rather look at the statements she makes about the Jesuits.

Correct.

From what I have learned a lot of the knowledge of the elite trickles down into the New Age. Am I correct to think this?

Correct. But the New Age movement is controlled by the Jesuits via occult Freemasonry; the Craft is controlled by the Black Pope, he himself being a high-level Freemason.

Also I was asked recently if the New World Order is looking to create a New Atlantis or rather a New Roman Empire. Which one is the New World Order looking to create?

A revived Holy Roman Empire has been the Order's quest for centuries. Atlantis (as it existed according to Plato) was destroyed in the Great Flood, but its religion is the same as that of the New Age---Egyptian, Luciferian, Masonic Babylonian Religion headed up in Rome (Revelation 17).

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

Title: More Phelps Q&A

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 1, 2006 11:33 PM (GMT)

My Dear Brother Eric,

Hope that all is well. I was very blessed to read your letter to the IRS. There is so much to learn and so little time.

I wanted to restate my position once again for clarity:

"Both "free will" and "election" leave me with many, many questions even though I spent several months studying both last year."

I repeat that to say this: I cling to neither doctrine (at this point) as is always wise for someone who is not sure. In continuation of my studies, the Lord will surely reveal to me the truth as I dilligently seek it. I will read Luther's book on the subject.

I know you are honestly seeking the Lord on this matter and will keep you in my prayers dear brother.

Recently, I listened to David Hunt debate James White (calvinist but KJV rejector, perhaps he should be on the list below).

Indeed, James White, in rejecting the AV1611 (the father of the English AV1611 Bible being the Calvinist William Tyndale), should also be considered a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor. Calvinism, as it exists today is Jesuit infested and cannot be compared with the Biblical Calvinism of the Reformation.

In the debate, Hunt states, "I have not studied the reformation and know very little about it. I do however, know much about 1st and 2nd century Christianity." Now, either Hunt is lying about that, or he really does not know much about it.

Hunt is lying. He is an erudite scholar on the Reformation evidenced by his work,

A Woman Rides the Beast. Hunt deliberately misrepresents the doctrines of grace as proven by Michael Bunker who put forth a video on this very topic, What Lie Is This? Further, Coadjutor Hunt believes and defends the wicked cover story of the 911 "terrorist event." Never once has he objectively entertained the facts that prove 911 was an event backed by the CIA in the person of its Director, Knight of Malta George J. Tenet---the slave of the Archbishop of New York, Edward Cardinal Egan. No honest man, after a strictly pedestrian examination of the facts could ever conclude that 911 was the work of foreign terrorists.

He may not believe in election, but he is quite the anti-catholic doctrine spokesperson. Many RCC's have left Romanism due to his ministry. The Jesuit's are surely shooting themselves in the foot with that Co-adjutor.

Not hardly. The Jesuits, though losing a few Romanists, have successfully used Hunt to provoke Arminian Free Will---the foundation of the Order's subversion of Protestant nations. Please read Augustus Toplady's works available from Sprinkle Publications.

Further, Hunt backs the 911 government story, as does Falwell, Robertson, D. James Kennedy, Billy Graham and every other Jesuit-ruled evangelical spokesperson of note. This Jesuit lie told by Protestant and Baptist "fundamentalists" enable the Order to blame Protestantism for its "War on Terror." Hunt is a co-conspirator in this calculated destruction of what is left of American Bible-believers as we are to be blamed for the lasting national tragedies brought about by this Papal Crusade.

God has used Gail Riplinger to do more for the KJV in the last 100 years than almost anyone else. Because she is "friends" with Constance Cumbey and a "Freewill" does not mean she is a stooge for the Jesuit order.

Have you read her New Age Bible Versions? Never once has she traced the New Age Movement to Rome---just like her sister Coadjutor, Constance Cumbey who lies about me continually, that accomplished attorney (twister of truth) that she is. Further Riplinger is a woman having no business whatsoever teaching Bible doctrine. This is strictly a men's arena by Biblical mandate (I Tim. 2:12).

Or finally, maybe it's just me. Maybe I am so blind to their association with the Jesuits that I cannot see it (and I am NOT being sarcastic in my statement).

I understand.

My Brother, the Church is SATURATED with the freewill doctrine. We are being smothered with it. It is like a fog that is accepted as truth (and blatant truth at that) in every spectrum of Christianity. If the Jesuits intended to destroy the protestants with it, they have succeeded.

Agreed.

But what if there are some who have been caught up in it unaware (me for one, 12 years in Christ, 8 as a pastor and I knew no different). Could it be that someone could be saved, a minister and 25 years in the ministry and NOT know it? Yes, I am sure there are thousands. I myself know at least 50 personally.

Agreed. I was an Arminian for years, saved the entire time. But Arminianism made me ineffectual in both evangelism and understanding the sovereignty of God. There are saved Arminians and unsaved Calvinistw--\no doubt. But the true child of God after considering the clearest passages of Scripture as to election, predestination and the perserverance of the believer, may either submit to these doctrines or reject them, to his own hurt---even as I did.

So what do we do? Lump everyone together because of free-will? We had better be careful in doing that. If we are wrong about someone, God will not hold us guiltless.

Agreed. There are those who are advocating the free will of man totally unconnected with the Order. This was me and now it is you.

For many on Pastor Turner's list, it is obvious where they stand, for others it is not so obvious. "Every servant rises and falls in the eyes of his own master". We had better be certain of our charge against them or we become accusers of the brethren like our enemy.

I thoroughly believe in the KJV being the ultimate English Translation and use it when studying, preaching, teaching and quoting it. Anyone who has studied the subject and rejects it's authority does so to his own demise.

Agreed.

Lastly, may I close with the most noted common denominator of Calvinists that I know of:

"Most Calvinists that I have met are uncompassionate and unmerciful. They are hard-hearted and insensitive and will debate doctrine to death but hardly ever be moved to tears over the lost souls around them".

That is apostate Calvinism, the Calvinism of today that is of none effect. This is the same Calvinism that would never declare its independence from Fourteenth Amendment America and take up the Sword of Just Defence.

I do not say that about you, my friend Larry or Pastor Turner (for I know him not). But the other 25 that I've met are about as refreshing as water source at Laodicea. Are they doing the Gospel much better than the list of accused C0-adjutors below? Somehow, being a Calvinist does not mean that the church will be all God wants it to be (especially if they are like the 25 I mentioned), wouldn't you agree?

Agreed. The Gospel does not contain the five points of Calvinism nor the five points of Arminianism. When I get in a car, turn the key, the engines starts. I can't explain it as i am no mechanic. The same is true with the gospel. It is preached, men believe and God saves them. How that happens is made known via the doctrines of grace. And refuting those doctrines is of paramount importance to the Jesuits evicenced in their Council of Trent. Why the Jesuits attack those doctrines is worthy of your attention.

With that, I love and appreciate you! You are always gentle and kind with your remarks and I consider you a very dear brother and friend. Any other books you can refer me to would be great.

You refresh my heart in the Lord also brother. Lex Rex by Rutheford, in which the practical outworking of the doctrines of grace are found especially Chapter IX. "Whether or no sovereignty is so in and from the people, that they may resueme their power in time of extreme necessity; How the people is the subject of sovereignty; No tyrannical power is from God; People cannot alienate the natural power of self-defence; The power of parliaments; The Parilament hath more power than the king; Judges and kings differ; People may resume their power [secession and declaration of independence] , not because they are infallible, but because they cannot so readily destroy themselves as one man may do; That the sanhedrin punished not David, Bathsheba, Joab, is but a fact not a law; There is a subordination of creatures natural, government must be natural; and yet this or that form is voluntary."

Rutherford has much on the Jesuits and their creation of governmental tyranny to which no Bible believer must submit. Rutherford utterly refutes the doctrine of unlimited submission to tyranny, which doctrine is a perversion of Romans 13.

Looking forward to VA3!

With much love,
Rxxxx

PS- Want to try and fly up this summer? I have a good crowd that would love to hear you speak. After a year of much RCC and Jesuit study, they are ready for you. Let me know as we can buy your plane ticket and schedule you in this week.

Sounds great.

It is too bad that Masonic Teddy Roosevelt's first allegiance was to Rome. Republican Bonesman and 33rd Degree Freemason Taft was his right hand man. Teddy, a secret conspirator in the assassination of McKinley, was a bold-faced liar and obedient servant of the first American Pope, James Cardinal Gibbons.

Theodore Roosevelt's ideas on Immigrants and being an American in 1907

" In the first place,we should insist that if the immigrant who comes here in good faith becomes an American and assimilates himself to us, he shall be treated on an exact equality with everyone else, for it is an outrage to discriminate against any such man because of creed, or birthplace, or origin. But this is predicated upon the person's becoming in every facet an American... There can be no divided allegiance here. Any man who says he is an American, but something else also, is not an American at all. We have room for but one flag, the American flag... We have room for but one language here, and that is the English Language... and we have room for but one sole loyalty and that is a loyalty to the American people.

Dear Brethren and Friends,

Thought you may like to have this for some clarification.

Mark Brewer - May 1, 2006 06:28 AM (GMT)

Organizing nations by race, language and culture would not necessarily do any good. The behavior of people is not determined by their race. Did not Jesus say that there was a path to destruction and a path to righteousness? He never conditioned that statement peoples' race.

"Culture" has caused the world more problems than anything else. This is why political correctness and multiculturalism are being pushed so much today. Those ideologies teach people that one has to be tolerant of every belief system no matter how evil they are. Political correctness is actually the most evil of all ideologies because it unifies all belief systems together. Nations should have an official language to avoid chaos. This is not something I have any problems with.

Repatriating so called "Arab Moslems" to other countries would not end the agitation between Arabs and Jews. Anyway, Arabs are not the problem, but Islam is. Not all Arabs are Muslims and forcing non Muslims to live under dictatorships ruled by Sharia law is exactly what the Vatican wants, as shown by the actions of Zbigniew Brzezinski, Ronald Reagan, William Casey, Alexander Haig, Bill Clinton, Ahmed Chalabi, Alexandre de Marenches, Prince Turki al-Faisal and other people who are close to the Jesuits in some way or another.

Alexandra - May 1, 2006 01:33 PM (GMT)

I'm thinking that races identify themselves by culture.

I just wish people would abide by that saying, "When in Rome, do as the Romans do."
In other words--assimilate!

Description: -Eric

CRAIG-OXLEY - April 29, 2006 01:56 AM (GMT)

Hey Eric,

How are you, sir? It's been a long time since we communicated, and I really hope you are doing well. How is married life treating you?

All is well; Danita and the boys are doing great.

When I last heard from you, things seemed to be going very well. I seem to recall our mutual friend, Keith Hansen (Vyzygoth) telling me that you are/were working on VA III? By all means, let me know.

Indeed. VAIII is now over 1300 pages and should be finished in about a month. It is full of great quotes and pictures. The simplistic like myself need good pictures to hold our attention!

I have an important question. I've recently come across the teachings of a woman named Barbara Aho. Never heard of her before, but on her website www.watch-unto-prayer.org she asserts that Ignatius Loyola was a "Marrano Jew." The source she lists does not seem well researched. The information sounds suspicious (as does much of the info. on her website) but I thought you would probably know better than anyone. Can you let me know if you agree/disagree when you are able?

Totally disagree. I have dealt with this lie in the past as the Order seems to be making a turn in tactics so as to blame the Jews as being responsible for the diabolical history of the Order. Texe Marrs is advocating the same. Loyola was a Gentile Spanish nobleman from a noble family that survived Ferdinand and Isabella's expulsion of Spain's Jews in 1492. Although Laynez was a Jew, that discovery led to the passing of the 1593 statute in the Constitutions that forbade a Jew to be in the Order. Ex-Jesuit E. Boyd Barrett stated in his The Jesuit Enigma that no Jew could ever be in the Order as of 1927. But the statute was removed in 1946 after many were likening the Order to the SS which forbade a Jew from becoming a member.

FYI: Last time, I spoke to you about working on Megiddo III, which is intended to focus on "Mystery Babylon the Great" -- but the work was postponed as another project took priority.

By the way, Megiddo II was better and much more powerful than Megiddo I because you stuck to the AV1611 for your quotations. Well done and lots of invaluable info!

I don't know if you've seen or heard about our new documentary, "Secret Mysteries of America's Beginnings," but if not, I'll be happy to send you a copy -- if you'd like to see it.

I'd love to see it.

You'll see that our production quality is improving (thank the Lord!) and should help us in producing a powerful presentation for M3. I am still planning to ask you for another interview when the time comes (with our new equipment, we get much better sound and picture) but this is all yet a year or so away, as the Lord leads us.

Sounds good!

Also, to give you a heads-up -- the reason I am inquiring about information I found from Barbara Aho, is because this woman has launched an attack against our new documentary. She suggests that because we speak about Sir Francis Bacon, we are supposedly planning to discredit the King James Bible -- even though we make no mention of the KJV in the film. While I am aware of the long standing "theory" that Bacon was involved in the KJV translation, my own research has revealed that no historical evidence exists to support such a claim.

Correct. Some of the greatest advocates of this lie are the masons, as the agnostic Bacon was one of them. Those learned and godly 47 men would never have allowed Bacon to touch one word of their work, and if so, that dedication to King James would never have been written. King James authorized the work, but never touched it.

In fact, I spoke directly to a man (his name is Peter Dawkins, a new ager) who is believed to be the leading expert on Bacon himself, and he more than anyone convinced me that Francis Bacon did not translate or interpret the KJV.

Wonderful! Great find!

I believe the KJV to be the best English translation we have -- especially now that I have studied the issue at greater length.

Very good. That will bring a return to a historic Reformed faith and a Reformation-based society---one that we once had about 60 years ago.

Furthermore, Barbara Aho has accused us of "not telling" our audience that America was actually founded as a "Masonic-Jewish" empire, created for the purpose of one day returning the Jews to Zion.

What nonsense. John Daniel proceeds down this same slippery slope. This tale avoids the history of the Reformation and the resultant cultures it produced, especially New England. I believe it is mere Jesuit rhetoric so as to destroy all patriotism among true Bible believing people thus paving the way for the Black Pope's NWO.

Along this line of thinking, she also teaches that "Mystery Babylon" is Jewish rather than Catholic.

The same holds true for Texe Marrs. That great city of Revelation 17:18 is, get this, not Rome but Jerusalem! Obviously this woman is another Jesuitess Coadjutor.

Incredible. Unfortunately, she's getting too much time on the radio.

Of course! Alex Jones, Texe Marrs, Daryl Bradford Smith and Michael Collins Piper are some of the more notable Jew bashers refusing to distinguish between the devil's Pope-serving Masonic Jewish Zionists and the Lord's beloved Hebrew/Jewish/Israelitic people yet to inherit the promises made to the fathers.

Again, I hope you are well, Eric. Please write back when you are able.

Good to hear from you Chris and thanks for the facts on Bacon. They are needed at this time.

God bless,

Chris

Sincerely in Faith,

Mark Brewer - April 29, 2006 06:12 AM (GMT)

I assume the John Daniel referred to is the author of The Scarlet and the Beast and not The Grand Design Exposed. They are different people with the same name who write about similar subjects, only one is more reliable than the other.

TruthSeeker24 - May 1, 2006 01:09 PM (GMT)

The more I think about Aho, the more I believe she's a coadjtor. I dwell more about this during the weekend. Not only does she believe that Loyola was a Marrano, but lies and said that the Waldensians were Gnostics and were equivalent to the Cathars in theology. The truth is that the Cathars and Albeigensians were Gnostics, not the Waldensians whom Catholic inquistors even admit that the Waldensians were orthodox in Christian theology. After looking at both sides of this controversy, I'm in Cutting Edge Ministries side on this one. Barbara Aho in my opinion is a Jesuit Temporal Coadjtor. Eric is also right about her. Aho's "Judeo-Masonic" is a bold face lie. It was Gentiles who created Modern Masons. It were Gentiles mostly who were the Roman Catholic stonemasons. Influences that made modern Masonry existed from Gentile sects in the Druids, Rome, Greece, and ancient Babylon and Egypt the majority of the time. Most Freemasons today are Gentiles, not Jewish people at all.

Sunday Confession No. 2: Are The Jesuits The Spiritual Controllers Of The New World Order? Jesuit General Fr. Peter Hans Kolvenbach Turns Down Interview Request.

What is the Jesuit Order hiding and why is it so hard to get straight answers from the top leaders, as the search for America's hidden enemies continues every Sunday by the banks of Brushy Creek.

By Greg Szymanski

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/30-Apr-2006b.html>

As we sit overlooking Brushy Creek again this Sunday, the main question is whether the Jesuits are the spiritual controllers of the New World Order?

Further, does the Society of Jesus through Masonic complicity and the Knights of Malta control the Vatican, the Pope, the Council on Foreign Relations and the U.S. government?

And is the Pope the real leader of the Catholic Church or does he take his marching orders from the leader of the Jesuits, the Jesuit General known as the Black Pope?

Before being slammed for heresy and Catholic bashing, let me remind everyone, including the rich, powerful, wealthy and famous, America teeters on the brink of extinction, being transitioned from freedom to slavery.

If you accept that premise, no subject, including the mysterious Jesuits, should be off limits. But if you choose to ignore it, putting your ego and personal position before your country, then perhaps you are knowingly or unknowingly part of the problem.

Although we are first dealing with the Jesuits since their controversial history merits exploration, four other possible enemies will be explored in the weeks to come in order to spark debate on who is America's real enemy?

These possible enemies include:

According to President Bush, the mainstream media and the entire Congress, the enemy is Al Qaeda and millions of extremist Muslims, engaging in a spiritual war against Christians and Jews.

According to many commentators in the alternative press, the enemy is the Zionist-Jew movement controlling Washington and engaging in a spiritual war of its own.

According to other researchers the enemy is the Satan worshipping Illuminati, made up of secret societies, engaging in a spiritual war against every non-Satan worshipper

According to others the main enemy are financiers, controlling the Bank of International Settlements and the Federal Reserve, using spirituality as a weapon to divide and conquer.

However, we now begin with the question of whether the Jesuits are the spiritual controllers of the New World Order? And since this question was posed last week, over 200 emails were received on the subject, indicating Americans are extremely interested in the topic even though the mainstream media, the politicians and the clergy ignore the subject or consider it preposterous.

Regarding an open response from the Jesuit leadership, my attempt to get an interview with the Jesuit General in Rome, Fr. Peter Hans Kolvenbach, was officially denied by James L. Rogers, communication liaison for the assistant to Kolvenbach at the Jesuit Conference in Washington D.C.

Rogers email stated:

Thank you for your interest in interviewing the leadership of the Society of Jesus. As you might imagine, we receive numerous requests for interviews. Unfortunately, the volume means we cannot respond to every one, even though we would like to be able to do so. At this time, we cannot grant your request. Please accept our apologies and thank you again for your interest.

Although the hierarchy of the Jesuit Order is difficult to pin down, a number of quotations about the Jesuits compiled by researcher Darryl Eberhart in his writings called Tackling the Tough Topics may give some clues why it's important to open up a public debate on their role in the New World Order.

Eberhart served in the U.S. Armed Forces for twenty years, which included three overseas assignments. He spent 11 1/2 years in the USAF as an enlisted member, and 8 1/2 years in the US Army (warrant officer & commissioned officer.)

"The true patriot does not love his government. The true patriot loves his country and watches his government," said Eberhart.

Eberhart is a Christian who is committed to educating the American people about the coming New World Order. Here are some of the quotes concerning the Jesuits he has compiled:

"My history of the Jesuits is not eloquently written, but it is supported by unquestionable authorities, [and] is very particular and very horrible. Their [the Jesuit Order's] restoration [in 1814 by Pope Pius VII] is indeed a step toward darkness, cruelty, despotism, [and] death. ? I do not like the appearance of the Jesuits. If ever there was a body of men who merited eternal damnation on earth and in hell, it is this Society of [Ignatius de] Loyola."

John Adams (1735-1826; 2nd President of the United States)

"It is my opinion that if the liberties of this country - the United States of America - are destroyed, it will be by the subtlety of the Roman Catholic Jesuit priests, for they are the most crafty, dangerous enemies to civil and religious liberty. They have instigated MOST of the wars of Europe."

Marquis de LaFayette (1757-1834; French statesman and general. He served in the American Continental Army under the command of General George Washington during the American Revolutionary War.)

"The war [i.e., the American Civil War of 1861-1865] would never have been possible without the sinister influence of the Jesuits."

Abraham Lincoln (1809-1865; 16th President of the United States)

"The public is practically unaware of the overwhelming responsibility carried by the Vatican and its Jesuits in the starting of the two world wars - a situation which may be explained in part by the gigantic finances at the disposition of the Vatican and its Jesuits, giving them power in so many spheres, especially since the last conflict."

Edmond Paris (Author of the book The Secret History of the Jesuits)

"The Jesuits?are a secret society - a sort of Masonic order - with superadded features of revolting odiousness, and a thousand times more dangerous." - Samuel Morse (1791-1872; American inventor of the telegraph; author of the book Foreign Conspiracy Against the Liberties of the United States)

"[The Jesuits] are the deadly enemies of civil and religious liberty."

R. W. Thompson (Ex-Secretary, American Navy)

"The Jesuits are a MILITARY organization, not a religious order. Their chief is a general of an army, not the mere father abbot of a monastery. And the aim of this organization is power - power in its most despotic exercise - absolute power, universal power, power to control the world by the volition of a single man [i.e., the Black Pope, the Superior General of the Jesuits]. Jesuitism is the most absolute of despotisms [sic] - and at the same time the greatest and most enormous of abuses?"

Napoleon I (i.e., Napoleon Bonaparte; 1769-1821; emperor of the French)

"If you trace up Masonry, through all its Orders, till you come to the grand tip-top head Mason of the World, you will discover that the dread individual and the Chief of the Society of Jesus [i.e., the Superior General of the Jesuit Order] are one and the same person." - James Parton (American historian)

"The Society of Jesus [i.e., the Jesuit Order] is the enemy of man. The whole human race should unite for its overthrow. ?For there is no alternative between its total extirpation, and the absolute corruption and degradation of mankind." - Robert J. Breckinridge (pastor and author)

"The Jesuits?are simply the Romish army for the earthly sovereignty of the world in the future, with the Pontiff of Rome for emperor?that's their ideal. ?It is simple lust of power, of filthy earthly gain, of domination - something like a universal serfdom with them [i.e., the Jesuits] as masters - that's all they stand for. They don't even believe in God perhaps."

Fyodor Dostoyevsky (1821-1881; famous Russian novelist)

Although there are many other references about the corruption and treachery of the Society of Jesus throughout the course of history, the subject is rarely brought up in today's climate of suppression and control by the media.

However, to understand the enemy, we look to the comments by the author of Vatican Assassins, Eric Jon Phelps, who joins us this Sunday by the shores of Brushy Creek. E-mailer Mike Smith had this to say about Phelps' extensive research on the Jesuit Order:

Glad to hear you are on the right trail as to who is at the top of the conspiracy theory pyramid. I think Mr. Phelps has open and shut the case in the historical sense, by compiling most all of the 19th and 20th centuries' most brave, revealing, and SUPRESSED political books. So in fact his 21st century book has now joined the great CENSORED list.

We all know, just are not allowed to say in public, that the Jesuits and their Vatican are a nothing less than a TEMPORAL world order and the world's largest financial institution operating under cover of (an increasingly strange & dubious) religion.

Although Phelps has been interviewed on several alternative radio shows, including From the Grassy Knoll, Cloak And Dagger, Frankly Speaking Radio, The Investigative Journal, Peering Into Darkness Radio and Rense Radio he also has been shunned by the alternative press, indicating a reluctance of the so-called "open-minded folk" to deal squarely and fairly with the Jesuit-New World Order connection.

This week Phelps has provided a view of New Age Religion and the Jesuits, as well as a recent question and answer interview he conducted last week for an internet alternative news publication.

Your comments on Phelps' statements are encouraged for next week's Sunday confession, as we continue to explore the inner-workings of the Society of Jesus.

Further, it may be interesting to explore and get your comments about the Catholic Church's support of illegal immigration in America, as well as the recent statements made on the CNN Lou Dobbs Show by Fr. Rick Ryscavage, a Jesuit priest of Fairfield University, saying the right of the U.S. government to protect its own borders and citizens is not absolute, according to Rome.

Here are Phelps' comments:

Q: What are the origins of the Society of Jesus/Jesuits

The Society of Jesus/Company of Jesus originated with a Gentile Spanish nobleman and member of the Alumbrados, Don Ignatius Loyola, on August 15, 1534. There in the subterranean chapel of the Church of Montmartre, Paris, Loyola and his nine followers vowed to wage war against the Moslem Saracens of the East. (This doctrine has much to do with the Pope's present "War on Terror," called a "Crusade" by Skull and Bones Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor, President George W. Bush. The Order used Masonic Napoleon for the same purpose when he invaded Egypt in 1799, ultimately killing all the Islamic Mamelukes.) In 1540 the Company (i.e., Loyola and his nine followers) was brought into the Roman Papacy by Pope Paul III via a papal bull. Although legally subject to the Pope, the Order is a "Church within a Church;" "a jurisdiction within a jurisdiction," as Sir William Blackstone has described it. A recent illustration of the relationship between the Company and the Papacy is found in the working order between the Nazi party and the SS. Hitler played the part of the Pope; Bormann (Hitler's "Brown Eminence") played the part of the Cardinal Secretary of State; and the Nazi Hierarchy was patterned after the Roman Hierarchy. Outside of this Nazi political power was the SS. Himmler was the Jesuit General; his SS Generals acting as his "Jesuit Assistants;" his SS being dressed in Black as the Jesuits have been called "the men in black," which title was used in the Order's Hollywood movie, Men In Black starring that Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor Tommy Lee Jones---another intimate friend of Jesuit Georgetown University graduate and CFR member, William Jefferson Clinton, the Order's "Crusader" against the Orthodox Serbian people.

Q: From your research, what do you believe is the goal of the Jesuits?

The goal of the Company of Jesus is to consolidate all of the world's wealth (including all land and labor) and all power (both spiritual and temporal) into their hands. By these means, the Order then seeks to compel all nations to submit to the earthly government of the Roman "White Pope." J. A. Wylie wrote in his nineteenth century release, The History of Protestantism, Vol. II, Book Fifteen, pp. 387, 388, 393, 398, 412 and 399, concerning the Jesuits:

"An army to conquer the world, Loyola was forming. . . . The General is the society. . . . he could enkindle them with fanaticism, inspire them with a Luciferian ambition, and so pervert and indurate their souls by evil maxims, and long and rigorous training, that they should be insensible to shame and pain, and would welcome suffering and death. Such were the weapons of the men he sent forth to the battle. . . . But, further, these sons of Loyola are the kings of the world, and the sole heirs of all its wealth, honours, and pleasures; and whatever law, custom, sacred and venerable office, august and kingly authority, may stand between them and their rightful lordship over mankind, they are at liberty to throw down and tread into the dust as a vile and accursed thing. The moral maxims of the Jesuits are to be put in force against kings as well as against peasants. . . . they will be the lords of its lands and palaces, the masters of the bodies and the souls of its inhabitants, and nothing of all that the heart can desire will be withholden from them if only they will obey him [the Jesuit General]. . . . What a harvest of plots, tumults, seditions, revolutions, torturings, poisonings, assassinations, regicides, and massacres has Christendom reaped from the seed sown by the Jesuits! Nor can we be sure that we have yet seen the last and greatest of their crimes."

Ignatius himself declared the purpose of the Order was to:

". . . win to God [the Pope of Rome], not only a single nation, a single country, but all nations, all the kingdoms of the world."

That earthly government is to be centered in Jerusalem, within the rebuilt Temple of Solomon---the Third Hebrew Temple. Loyola first sought to take Jerusalem from the Moslems when he made his trek to that city prior to creating the Order. (Michael Cervantes, a Spaniard himself, satirically characterized Ignatius via his infamous creation of "the madman," Don Quixote.) As the Order sought to rule the world from Jerusalem then, so does it now. This is in complete accord with Bible prophecy declaring that the final end time Satan-possessed dictator---"the beast"---will rule the world from Jerusalem's Third Hebrew Temple for forty-two months prior to the return of the Lord Jesus Christ, He then to sit on the throne of his father David ruling the world for one thousand years.

Q: How did you get involved in researching the Jesuits?

There were three issues that drove me to discover, further understand and know the Jesuits. The first was the assassination of President Kennedy. On that day, when in the fourth grade, I saw my teacher whom I loved, the feminine and kind-hearted Miss Beals, come into the classroom, blowing her nose and sobbing. She then told us the president had been shot and was dead. Such utter helplessness I felt at that moment, seeing my beloved teacher comfortless, deeply affected me. Later, my swim teacher at the YMCA, Jack Bath, was killed in Vietnam. When I told my guitar teacher, Dan Boyd, of Jack's death in beginning one of my lessons, Dan bitterly cried and dismissed me as Jack had been one of his students: Dan had a portrait of each of us on his wall seated with our personal guitars. I waited a good twenty minutes in an adjacent room and could hear the sobs of the tall, cleft-palated man I also deeply loved. These bitter emotional wounds were buried but never healed.

Then one day, years later in Bible college, the second issue arose. My history instructor, Dr. Rembert Carter, gave a class on the Jesuit assassination of Abraham Lincoln. Dr. Carter was rated third in the nation for his knowledge of history, earning his Ph.D from Edinburgh University at the young age of about twenty-five. I then concluded that if the Order could murder Lincoln and get away with the crime, what about JFK?

The third issue was the attack on the Reformation Bible for English-speaking people, the Authorized Version of 1611. Many at school were reading from the New International Version and the New American Standard Version which I did not really object to---until I discovered that an entirely different Greek Text, a pro-Jerome's Latin Vulgate Greek text, was employed as the foundation for these new "bibles." With the Sons of Loyola behind the Lincoln and JFK assassinations, could they also be the masters behind all the new versions? Later, I learned that Jesuit Carlo Cardinal Martini was on the translation committee for the NIV. These connections drove me to prove the Order was the master behind the murder of JFK and thus the Vietnam War, called "Cardinal Spellman's War."

Q: Could you tell us more about the Jesuit's founder, Ignatius Loyola?

Ignatius Loyola was a soldier with a will of steel. Although the greatest enemy of the Lord's Bible-believing Church given spiritual and temporal liberty as a result of the risen Son of God's grand and glorious Protestant Reformation preached by the bold and brave, Bible-believing Martin Luther, Loyola is worthy of respect even as his master, the devil, is worthy of respect (Jude 9). Wounded at the battle of Pampeluna during which he commanded the Spanish forces against the French---he refusing to surrender in the face of certain defeat---, Ignatius suffered a shattered leg from a canon ball. The French commander, ordered his own surgeon to attend the valiant warrior after which Ignatius was taken back to his family castle of Loyola. Upon the leg healing, when the courtier began to walk he discovered the leg was shorter than the other. Determined to remedy the imperfection, LOYOLA ORDERED HIS LEG TO BE BROKEN AGAIN and surgically repaired, including the SAWING OFF of a protruding bone. Without crying out, he endured the torture only to find that he was still a cripple, unable to wear the courtier's high knee boots. At this, he constructed a RACK upon which he ordered the stretching of the leg. Enduring weeks of yet another torture, he finally accepted his fate---that he would remain a limping cripple for life. His subsequent demon-possession in writing The Spiritual Exercises and the Order's absolutist Constitutions (later perfected by General Aquaviva and thoroughly condemned by the French government in the 1760s), pale in comparison to this will of relentless determination. It is this trait, subordinated to the will of the Black Pope and tempered with absolute obedience produced by The Spiritual Exercises, that has characterized the infamous Jesuit Order.

Q: How did the Jesuit's become the superpower and driving force behind the New World Order that you propose they are today?

That answer entails a long and detailed history provided in my book, Vatican Assassins "Wounded In The House Of My Friends" with its accompanying CD. That the Order ruled the world (save for a few Protestant nations such as England and the Netherlands) prior to its Suppression is without controversy. But with Pope Clement XIV issuing his bull of Suppression and Extinction, "Dominus ac Redemptor noster," in 1773, the Order went underground. From there a host of secret societies were formed, including the Bavarian Illuminati, while gaining control over other papal orders, including the Redemptorists and the Vincentians. (The priest who gave JFK last rites in Dallas was a Vincentian---Fr. Oscar Huber overseen by Knight of Malta and Bishop of Dallas-Fort Worth, Thomas K. Gorman.) The Order received open protection from Russia's Catherine II "the Great" and Prussia's Frederick II "the Great." Its secret protector was England's King George III. In control of the Jacobins, the Order launched and led the French Revolution and later brought Napoleon to power, he waging his Napoleonic Wars executing vengeance upon the monarchs who dared to suppress and expel the Society from their borders---including the Knights of Malta. In August of 1814, the Company was restored by Pope Pius VII; from that moment on it wielded control over "the White Pope" until finally declaring him to be "infallible" in 1870. This declaration of Papal Infallibility enabled the Order to control the entire Roman Hierarchy through one man---the Pope. This explains the silence of Pope Pius XII during the Order's Eurasian "burnt offering" of Jews via Himmler's SS---secretly commanded by the Bavarian German Jesuit and Pius's confessor, Robert Leiber. The Black Pope's Second Thirty Years' War (1914-1945) consolidated all political power into the hands of the Order; the Cold War (including the Berlin Airlift intended by both Masons Stalin and Truman to distract attention away from the Order's Vatican Ratlines including ODESSA) was a mop-up of Europe and build-up of Soviet Russia, China and the Moslem world in preparation for this new Third Thirty Years' War---the Black Pope's "War on Terror"---, he now controlling both sides of the conflict.

Q: Many people believe that the plan for the New World Order dates back to ancient times and say that the Jesuit's are only 500 years old. What do you have to say about this?

I would agree that Satan's plot for the New World Order---world government of all nations under the rule of his chosen world dictator---has been in the making since the literal Fall of Adam. (Genesis 3.) The AV1611 Bible calls this "the mystery of iniquity." (II Thess. 2:7.) However, with the Lord's Reformation brought about by means of Luther, we have the devil's subsequent Counter-Reformation brought about by means of Loyola. Thus, Satan has sought to consolidate all occult power into the hands of his "Black Pope." This includes all Freemasonry, the Crusading Orders including the Priory of Zion (said by one of the author's of Holy Blood, Holy Grail to have been taken over by the Jesuits in 1619), the Templars (high-level Masons), the Hospitallers (Knights of Malta) and the German Teutonic Knights---revived as Himmler's SS.

Further, Satan has always sought to rule the world through ONE MAN. This was evidenced in his temptation of Jesus Christ when the Lord was offered all the kingdoms of the world if He would but worship the devil. (Luke 4:5-6.) And further, since we live in "the times of the Gentiles," we can expect to see Gentiles at the pinnacle of world power, Masonic Jews merely serving them. This is in accord with Luke 21:24 and Deuteronomy 28:43-44, 64-68. As long as Jerusalem is under Gentile rule, via "the times of the Gentiles"---specifically White Gentiles for the last five hundred years---these devil-worshipping Gentiles will rule the banking and politics of the world until the Lord Jesus Christ returns to then rule Jerusalem and thus the world by Himself, "for he must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet." (I Cor. 15:25; Psalm 110:1)

Q: Is it true that many of the world's leaders from dictators to presidents have been trained by Jesuits and if so could you tell us some of the people in positions of power that have been trained by Jesuits?

Yes. The list is huge. Here are a few. Marx was tutored by Jesuits in the British Museum for nearly thirty years; Lenin and Mussolini were both trained by Jesuits when in Geneva---the Order's international banking haven for which reason Switzerland never goes to war; Stalin was trained by Jesuits while in the Tiflis Orthodox Seminary in Georgia---openly admitted by "Koba" himself to journalist and Masonic Jew Emil Ludwig

(Cohen). Fidel Castro was trained by Jesuits for seven years in Cuba, was put in power by the CIA, and advised by a Jesuit, Fr. Armando Llorente, during the revolution. Masonic Douglas MacArthur was trained by Jesuits according to an Army Colonel who personally knew him. Masonic Lyndon Johnson was trained by Jesuits at Georgetown University for a time, as was "the graduate" President Bill Clinton. Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins was Jesuit-trained along with Denzel Washington, that traitor to his own Black people. The star of Mash was Jesuit-trained while Martin Sheen (who changed his name after the name of Cold Warrior Bishop Fulton Sheen) has taken Loyola's Spiritual Exercises and recently dedicated a new library at the Order's Marquette University. John C. Gannon, the real father of the Order's Department of Homeland Security (our American Gestapo) was a member of the Jesuit Volunteer Corps and is affiliated with Georgetown University while an ex-CIA officer and CFR member. Pat Buchanan, a Knight of Malta (SMOM), is affiliated with Jesuit John McLaughlin of the McLaughlin Group, and was Jesuit-trained at Georgetown, as was SMOM and former CIA Director, George J. Tenet---the man in charge of bringing down the WTC and attack on the Pentagon via a Cruise missile. This is one of the connections, along with SMOM Rudolf Giuliani, that enables us to connect the Archbishop of New York, Edward Cardinal Egan, to 911 and thus Bush's "War on Terror." Chris Matthews of Hardball was Jesuit-trained at College of the Holy Cross, he serving for many years as the assistant for another Jesuit-trained Coadjutor and Kennedy assassin, Speaker of the House and Jesuit Boston College trustee, Thomas "Tip" O'Neill. The head of the Pope's Federal Reserve Bank of New York---where all of the nation's gold is in storage thanks to FDR's gift of our Ft. Knox gold to the Fed according to "the man who opened Ft. Knox," the late Roman Catholic Washington attorney Dr. Peter Beter---is CFR President Peter G. Peterson, holding an honorary doctorate from Georgetown University. Even JFK attended Georgetown for a while as well as the Order's Fabian Socialist London School of Economics. (The Order prepared him for the presidency, obtained his "election," and then killed him for being a disobedient "tyrant and a usurper.") Indeed, the Jesuits train or influence those who will rule on their behalf. The State Department is full of those having graduated from the Order's School of Foreign Service started by Jesuit Edmund A. Walsh---the master of both military tribunals after WWII and backer of Jesuit-trained inquisitor Joseph McCarthy. AGain Wylie writes on p. 388:

"Wherever the Jesuits have planted missions, opened seminaries, and established colleges, they have been careful to inculcate these principles in the minds of the youth; thus sowing the seeds of future tumults, revolutions [the Black Civil Rights movement], regicides [the murder of JFK], and wars [the Vietnam War]."

Q: It has been said that the Adam Weishaupt, founder of the Bavarian Illuminati, was trained by Jesuits. But many point out that Adam Weishaupt defected from the Christianity. If this is so how are the Jesuits connected to the Illuminati?

The Jesuits are the masters of conspiratorial history. Their agents are always in place to re-direct those who discover the conspiracy for a world government. One of their greatest deceptions is to divert the seeker into blaming Freemasonry and thus the Jews exclusively. This tenet sits at the heart of one the Order's most effective lies---that Adam Weishaupt was a Jew (contrary to the Order's Constitutions until 1946), that he defected from the Jesuit Order (as he had been an instructor of Canon Law and Jesuit "Moral Theology" at Ingolstat College in Bavaria---Bavaria being the Company's mightiest stronghold north of the Alps) and that his founding of the Illuminati was completely free of Jesuit influence. The historians who espouse this position are Jesuit Abbe Barruel in his History of the French Revolution and Roman Catholic Nesta Webster in her several works, including Secret Societies and Subversive Movements. Both Masonic Hitler and Masonic Stalin---those Jesuit jackhammers who collaborated in the destruction of the Orthodox Russian and German-Prussian people---held to this Jesuit lie. Masonic Winston Churchill, the Fabian Socialist destroyer of the Protestant British Empire and Protestant Dresden (he commanding "Bomber Harris" who created the horrible firestorm and incineration of Protestant Germans) also promoted this Jesuitism, blaming the Bolshevik Revolution on those "godless Bolshevik Jews." Jesuit Coadjutor Father Charles Coughlin did the same as do the new Father Coughlins--- Texe Marrs, Michael Collins Piper, Daryl Bradford Smith, Hal Turner, Louis Farrakhan and host of others too numerous to number. F. Tupper Saussy is quite right however when he stated in his Rulers of Evil that Weishaupt was under orders of Jesuit General Lorenzo Ricci. Weishaupt, who as "Spartacus," never left the Order, and openly led the revolt of the Pope's Jesuit "slaves."

The Order has been extremely careful to keep their guiding "black hand" out of sight in the histories covering both the French Revolution and the Bolshevik Revolution. At this moment, we are suffering from approximately one hundred years of Rockefeller-funded, CFR-backed, censored history. The same has been done with the histories of the Jesuit General's Second Thirty Years's War (1914-1945). Masonic Jewish Zionist and CFR-member William L. Shirer authored The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich---eliminating all papal collaboration in the rise of Hitler while refusing to name Himmler's Jesuit minions throughout the SS, including Dr. Richard Korherr (the "traditionalist" Roman Catholic who tabulated Himmler's secret totals of murdered Jews for Bavarian German Jesuit and confessor to Pius XII, Robert Leiber) and Edmund Veessenmayer (Hitler's overseer of the Jesuit and Franciscian-led Ustachis murdering one million Jews and Serbs in Croatia), as well as Walter Rauff (who worked with the Jesuits personally in helping SS men escape Europe through the Brenner Pass into Italy) and Josef Mengele (Auschwitz's "Angel of Death," nicknamed "Father Mengele" while at the Frankfurt University Institute of Hereditary Biology and Racial Hygiene). The British Hugh Trevor-Roper in his work Hitler's Last Days has done the same.

Q: Who are the Knights of Malta and how do they tie into all of this?

The Sovereign Military Order of Malta (the Knights of Malta---SMOM) is an international secret society composed of the world's Black Nobility as well as top bankers, businessmen, politicians and intelligence operatives. Some of the names you might recognize are Pennsylvania US Senator Rick Santorum; William J. McDonough, CFR member and former head of the New York Federal Reserve Bank; Alexander Haig, Jr., whose brother Francis is a powerful Jesuit; George J. Tenet, John McCone and William "Wild Bill" Donovan---all former heads of the CIA; William F. Buckley, CFR member, CIA officer---Kennedy assassin---and former head of National Review; Cartha De Loach, former Assistant FBI Director---and Kennedy assassin; Henry Luce---Kennedy assassin---, the late head of Time-Life and commander of Order's Rockefeller Center adjacent to the SMOM headquarters in the US, St. Patrick's Cathedral. Elmer Bobst, the founder of Warner Lambert pharmaceuticals (now Pfizer), was the godfather of the Nixon presidency and upon his death donated much of his estate to the Archbishop of New York; John DeGioia, CFR member and President of Jesuit Georgetown University; Prescott Bush, Sr., and Prescott Bush, Jr., as well as George H. W. Bush who entertained the Grand Master of the Order, Andrew Bertie, at the White House in 1988. Mikhail Gorbachev, former head of the KGB and negotiator with President George H. W. Bush at the Island of Malta thus ending the Cold War in 1989 (the Knights of Malta hosting that eventful meeting). Others are Sir St. John Philby, a British SIS agent and Wahhabi member of the Saudi royal court having created the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia in 1932 building the Black Pope's international oil monopoly; son Kim Philby, that dear friend of SMOM James Angleton who was British MI6, CIA and KGB officer; and Anatoli M. Golitsin, KGB officer and collaborator with Angleton in betraying hundreds of CIA operatives into the hands of the Holy Office of the Inquisition's KGB. Other Knights of Malta have been and are Frank Sinatra, Sammy Davis, Jr., (America's first Black SMOM), Gerald Ford, Ronald Reagan (honorary) and Bob Hope, all of them being sexual perverts involved with CIA mind-controlled sex slaves. Other Dames of Malta are Clare Boothe Luce---Kennedy assassin and former Ambassador to Italy under Eisenhower, Archbishop Spellman's WWII Crusader; and Phyllis Schlafley, the pseudo-conservative pundit building the right-wing fascist dictatorship along with Fox News Network's Knight of St. Gregory (probable SMOM) and CFR member Rupert Murdoch. Rupert is also good friends with another brother CFR member, Masonic Jewish Zionist George Soros!

The Knights were driven from Malta by the Order's Napoleon Bonaparte in 1798, after he stole all their treasures and weapons for the invasion of Egypt. The Knights were given refuge in Russia under Tzar Paul I at which time the Jesuit General then resident in Russia subordinated the Knights to his Order. Since that time the SMOM of Russia have never been expelled. Before and after the Bolshevik Revolution, the Knights conducted business through the Grace-Russian Trading Company, controlled by the Grand Master's American and Russian branches. Today the Knights control the Black Pope's unified International Intelligence Community (Russia's SVR, American CIA, German BND, Britain's SIS, China's SIS, Israel's Mossad, Pakistan's ISI, INTERPOL, etc.); the Black Pope's International Banking Community (Rockefeller, Morgan and Rothschild interests); the Order's International Drug Trade (protected by the DEA by eliminating outside opposition); the International Organized Crime Syndicate (Japanese Yakuza, Sicilian Mafia, Russian Mafia, Israeli Mafia, American Mafia, etc., which launders its trillions in blood money through the Order's International Banking Community) and of course the Black Pope's International Masonic Islamic Terrorist Network financed by the Black Pope's International Oil Syndicate and Drug Trade. Fidel Castro is also subject to SMOM Grand Master, Andrew Bertie. King Juan Carlos of Spain---the King of Jerusalem---is a Jesuit-trained Knight of Malta and visitor of the Bushes at their ranch in Crawford, Texas.

Q: What is the Opus Dei and how they figure into things?

Opus Dei is an extreme, right wing, ultramontane, traditionalist, pro-Council of Trent, anti-Vatican II, arm of the Jesuit Order. Its members can be found in every walk of life, for they are Jesuit Temporal Coadjutors in the final analysis. Founded in 1928 in Spain by Jesuit-educated Josemaria Escriva, it played an important role in overthrowing the Spanish Republic having expelled the Order in 1932 and having shut down all the convents after thousands of baby skeletons had been discovered. Opus Dei participated in the Pope's Vatican Ratlines which evacuated top Nazis to South America. Chile's late, pro-nazi President, Augusto Pinochet's personal secretary was a member of Opus Dei; the Heritage Foundation has Opus Dei members along with SMOM; America's greatest spy, Robert Philip Hanssen, was Opus Dei, Hanssen in fact being at apex of the Black Pope's International Intelligence Community working for the FBI, CIA, NSA and the KGB as did the arch traitor and SMOM CIA counterintelligence chief, James Jesus Angleton---the real mole in the CIA! Opus Dei was involved in the Vatican Bank Scandal and has been implicated in the murder of Roberto Calvi according to Italian authorities. Opus Dei, "the work of God," serves the Jesuit Superior General Peter Hans Kolvenbach "for the greater glory of God," the God who sits in St. Peter's Chair.

The Jesuits and the New Age Movement

By Eric Jon Phelps, April 27, 2006

The New Age Movement is found in nearly every walk of life within Fourteenth Amendment America. We are accosted with its Satanic doctrines found in every art form including literature, philosophy, history and music; we are oppressed by its besetting theological and ethical usurpations riveted into every religious denomination and imbibed throughout every cultural setting. We observe its denial of Biblical absolutes and its obsession with relativism, be it the impressionism of Van Gough or the existentialism of Picasso; we are entranced with its man-centered prose throughout the lyrics of British Knight 'Sir" John Lennon imagining there is "no hell," and Knights of Malta Frank Sinatra and Sammy Davis, Jr., living life "My Way."

We blindly trust in its efficacy when tendering our fiat currency put upon us in 1933-the year of the American empire's dejure bankruptcy-by 33rdDegree Freemason FDR, its paper adorned with Masonic symbols; and we are constantly being programmed to anticipate the arrival of an immoral, yet mortal savior, a return of the Jedi, the appearing of a Terminator, or are born Neo coming out of the matrix (the womb of Mary-"the mother of God"), all of them achieving lasting victory by the power of their own "Free Wills," pulling themselves up by their bootstraps, aided by occult masters. But for the serious seeker of truth the question arises, "From whence cometh this nefarious yet intangible influence having permeated all five gates of perception?"

That answer is first detected in the very nature of man, that nature to which we were all born in bondage-with only one exception. Verily, he that continually commits sin "is the servant of sin." Discarding the atheistic, socialist-communist, evolutionary, Egyptian religion espoused by American academia, we find that every man is innately evil; his desires are self serving to the satisfaction of his wicked flesh; his goal is self glorification at the expense of every rule; his end is the inexplicable-the conundrum of physical death-that most personal experience of the second law of thermodynamics inaugurated by the spoken words of the One to come, that contradiction of all the New Age purports to advance as true-that all is ever progressing in an upward eternal progression of man-made perfection.

This, dear truth-seeker, is the religion of Jesuitism. For with the Society of Jesus, nothing is absolute save the word of the superior over each and every Son of Loyola. Those nations which the Jesuit Superior General seeks to reduce to penury and serfdom, after which they shall be kept under the spiritual and temporal power of the Pope, must be enticed into the calculated consequences of sin and death by their own lusts, the Order putting forth those very temptations deliberately framed to effect its sinister ends-"ad majorem dei gloriam," for the greater glory of god, that "greater glory" being the increase of the world power of the Jesuit Pontiff in Rome.

Therefore, we should not be aghast to discover that all commercialized inducements to sin and crime are in the hands of the Company of Jesus. Is it drugs that you crave? Why the Order has taken great pains to perfect the ugly alliance between the Mafia and CIA, filling every city with mind-bending nostrums barring none. Is it sex and booze? Why the Order's Roman Catholic Knight of Malta Joseph P. Kennedy perfected the business, aided by mobster Frank Costello, both receiving the blessing of New York Archbishop Francis Cardinal Spellman-Costello donating the costly doors adorning St. Patrick's Cathedral. The Order provides a tailored bait for every taste covering all facets of the sinful, fallen, totally depraved nature of men in accordance with their "presumptuous sins." Yet within each bait is concealed the same deadly hook, that when set drags its victim into the final conclave of Satan's New Age Movement.

We are all dead men in Adam, blinded by the devil, enslaved to sin, hating God, condemned in our natural state, destined to an eternal hell, utterly helpless to regain our lost estate, all the while delighting in the illusion that we are the masters of our own ships, having the power to will into reality, via our works, whatever we choose, clutching to the religion of Cain that proclaims "my free will produced the fruit of my own hands that must be acceptable to a god whom I really don't believe exists. "The Jesuit is the master of setting in motion the depraved and deluded "Free Wills" of billions of hell-bent sinners. For this reason, the Order's nineteenth century Masonic pontiff, Albert Pike, was the champion of "Free Will," defended in his Morals and Dogma. The Jesuit laughs at those who dare to believe they have the power to resist evil apart from the biblical Spirit of God resident within true believers on Christ Jesus; he sends forth another high-level Freemason and OTO master, Aleister Crowley, to preach the foundation of "sex, drugs and rock and roll," the glorification of "man's Free Will" echoing forth, "Do What Thou Wilt, for This Is the Whole of the Law!"

There can be no absolutes anywhere, anytime, anyplace, in any way, on any terms, lest the devil's "Mystery of Iniquity" be impeded, and the despicable, genocidal proclivities of man be curbed. The two great maxims of the devil's New Age Movement are the belief in man's untainted, pristine "Free Will" tending to rationalism, evolution, atheism and socialism; the other is the doctrine of universalism, that all roads lead to eternal bliss, when in fact they lead down to Rome, to the feet of the Pope, at which point "every human creature must be subject to the Roman Pontiff." The Jesuit lurks in the shadows, exciting the nations to act upon his maxims. Yes, dear truth seeker, the Evil One's New Age Movement is in the dismal heart of every one of us; the devil via his Jesuit plays upon our "Free Wills" to fulfill his age-old dream of ruling the world from Solomon's rebuilt temple. In this light we understand why the father of the New Age Movement is none other than the infamous Jesuit, Pierre Teilhard de Chardin!

As if the World's most powerful man would do an interview, anyway would anyone believe him? Of course not and I still cannot see the point of trying to interview any of the Jesuits, its totally pointless.

Title: ERIC PHELPS BEING ATTACKED BY THE I.R.S AS HIS VA3
Description: IS ABOUT TO COME OUT!

CRAIG-OXLEY - April 29, 2006 01:02 AM (GMT)

Dear Brethern and Friends,

Apparently I am to have a confrontation with the Pope's collection agency, the IRS.

I trust this letter to the Revenue Agent clarifies my position to all of you and would appreciate your prayers and concern.

It is quite providential that this issue has arisen about the time VAIII will be finished.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

I warned Eric Phelps before he went on vacation to be careful of his life due to his new wonderful book coming out. I only wish he'd kept his mouth closed about bringing another book out until he'd finished it and he could have shocked them all. I believe he could be in for some real trouble as the Order is well aware of the major exposing of themselves which is going on. The Order detest the amazing knowledge of Eric Jon Phelps and hated his Vatican Assassins book. For him to bring another more powerful book out, well you can only imagine.

Looks like Eric's attorney is the Constitution Party National Chairman.

I agree, Eric should have just published the book and not said anything first...oh well.

CRAIG-OXLEY - April 29, 2006 01:32 AM (GMT)

Eric reply to the I.R.S is a MASTERPIECE!

Bladestorm - April 29, 2006 01:36 AM (GMT)

This is truly sad. I know if they want to silence Eric for good theres nothing he can do. However, I firmly believe if he doesnt contact Marc Stevens, and continues his statist stance, he's already lost. :angry:

CRAIG-OXLEY - April 29, 2006 02:09 AM (GMT)

Sometimes its easier to put someone in jail such as Fritz Springmeier on fitted up charges of Robbery than kill them and make more credible through their deaths like William Cooper, Joe Vialls and Phil Schneider.

Whens the book coming out and where can we buy it?

Bladestorm - April 29, 2006 02:30 AM (GMT)

On Eric's last radio show he said the book will be available on CD in June. The paperback version will follow a month or two after that in limited quantities. I dont know yet how to order it, but i'm sure there'll be a link to the vendor on Eric's website.

Eric reply to the I.R.S is a MASTERPIECE!

Too right! If only more people in the U.S. knew that income tax is VOLUNTARY!

Alexandra - April 29, 2006 12:53 PM (GMT)

So how does one set about not paying income tax? I hear that if you actually try to fight it, it's a costly battle.

Mark Brewer - April 29, 2006 05:55 PM (GMT)

The best websites I have found that relate to tax law are the ones created by Dave Champion.

<http://www.americanradioshow.us>

<http://www.originalintent.org>

Everyone that lives in the United States should listen to the American Radio Show. It would clear up a lot of misconceptions about the government.

JagDRS - April 30, 2006 03:36 AM (GMT)

to Alexandra and all other victims of the 16th amendment, just some friendly advice - do not casually persue freeing yourself from the income tax issue. The bottom line is, the average american laborer who earns money at a job is not required to file an income tax return. The real problem begins after one has not filed for the first time for a given year, within several months the IRS 'system' will eventually notice this occurance and then begin sending you a series of letters to investigate. This is where a lot of people fail. You must respond AND you must know HOW to respond. The only way to know how to respond is by studying the law - both the formal tax laws, as well as case law.

There are no silver bullets, but there are some good solutions and good knowledge that you will recognize upon doing your own study. There are also a lot of "tax guru" charlatans out there to be wary of. The tax laws are found in USCode Title 26, but unless you have a warped mind to begin with, like the wordsmiths and high-priced lawyers that wrote this stuff on behalf of the Treasury Department, this is not easy reading. For one reason, the language of Title 26 uses common words that have specially defined legal meanings that often times are far different than the common meanings. It will help to also read and learn the findings of many good people who have gone before you, who understand the dross known as Title 26. Here are just a few places to begin. Good luck.

The first reference I consider the best because it is the real-life documented journey of one person's mission to free himself and his family from what we know as the beast. It began during the 1997 tax filing season, but over the years has swerved off into countless other individual sovereignty issues. Specifically here are a few of the various arms of the beast that he's freed himself from - Social Security, Income Tax, Vaccinations (for his children), Birth Certificate (for his children), Driver's License (only required for those who 'operate a motor vehicle'). Many of the web links that are embedded in his web forums and his various personal documents have become broken, but there are many that also still work, for instance, Save A Patriot Foundation, is still around. He relied on them heavily for helping him when the infamous "automated series letters" started arriving from the IRS after the first year he did not file. LOTS and lots of good, real life information to be learned here. The givemeliberty.org is also the home of the WeThePeople Congress, lots of good info to be found there.

Good luck and be careful !

PS - to your point - "I hear you actually have to fight it and it is costly", this implies ending up in tax court. You DO NOT want to end up in tax court. Long story, quick answer is - tax court is not an actual real court with actual real due process and common law in play, the person presiding as 'judge' will likely not be an actual judge but instead someone appointed on behalf of the Dept of Treasury, and oh by the way, guess who the DoT's law firm is? - the DoJ. Tax court is essentially a tribunal and chances are very good you will get mugged and molested if your case goes there. If you DO end up in tax court, you are better off defending yourself, for many reasons, but the main reason to not have a lawyer is that BAR lawyers are FIRST AND FOREMOST officers of the court. Yes, they will take your money, yes, they may even seem nice and be polite about this, but ultimately they serve the court. Best thing you can do is learn the laws, then you will learn how to keep your case bottled up in administrative review, which prevents it from ever going to court. Consider this a stalemate situation - you don't win, but you don't lose either!

Tax Obligation? Show Me the Facts

By Marc Stevens

I hate this time of the year. The dreaded "tax day". The day when millions of scared people desparately try to comply with the masters' demands: Pay us or get shot!

Most have heard the line: "What if they had a war and no one showed up?"

Well, how about: "What if tax day came and no one filed?" I like what Hopper said in A Bug's Life:

"You let one ant stand up to us, then they all might stand up! Those puny little ants outnumber us a hundred to one and if they ever figure that out there goes our way of life! It's not about food, it's about keeping those ants in line. That's why we're going back!" (emphasis mine)

What is the basis for the alleged "power to tax"? It's the so-called "constitution." The "constitution" is four unsigned pieces of paper. If there is an alleged "obligation", then it must be based on the "constitution." What facts are there to prove those four pieces of paper created this alleged "obligation"? If you think there are facts to prove an "obligation" to pay "taxes" exists, then please email me at marcstevens@adventuresinlegalland.com, I'd love to see them.

In ten years not one "tax agent" or "tax" attorney has been able to produce one shred of evidence. It is impossible to prove a "tax obligation" exists using just facts. Again, anyone who disagrees is free to come to the plate and provide the facts. And don't respond by saying my "argument" is "frivolous." I'm asking for facts, not presenting an "argument."

And if you cannot provide the facts, then why do you file? Oh, that's right, you don't want to get shot. Stop deluding yourself, you do not pay for protection, there is no duty to protect you.

What will those anti-social parasites (politicians & bureaucrats) do when millions of people just decide not to file anymore? When millions of people start working for themselves and refuse to aid in the robbery of their fellow man's money by acting as "withholding agents"? Imagine millions of people refusing to help rape and plunder their fellow man by "issuing" those stupid 1099's.

An example I give in my book is where hundreds of thousands take that asinine "tax" plate off their cars.

Is it possible? Of course, look at the millions who followed Ghandi's example: and he didn't have the internet. Consider how the cops would do their "job" if people did not cooperate in the rape? I am not talking about violent resistance here. This is non-violent, non-cooperation. As I've said before, if someone cannot ask for my permission, then he should not expect my help.

The day is not far off when enough people just refuse to cooperate and those acting as "government" will be helpless to stop it.

For those who think "governments" are "necessary", let me ask this question, it's a yes or no answer only:

Should a service or product be provided at the barrel of a gun?

Unless you're a psychopath, the answer is no. And that is how "governments" operate. Instead of bringing their talents and services to the market like normal people, they provide them on a violent "pay or get shot" basis.

CRAIG-OXLEY - April 30, 2006 12:42 AM (GMT)

Dear Brother Mxxxxxxxxx,

Thanks for the information. I trust that your health has greatly improved dear brother.

Yes, Toronto would be a target the Black Pope would choose for several reasons. First, it is loaded with "perfidious Jews." Second, a detonation would drive Canada into the arms of the US and its "War on Terror." Third, the city is historically Protestant. Fourth, the destruction of Toronto would not impede the commercial infrastructure of the Pope's North American Military Industrial Complex, an absolute necessity if this thirty years' war is to be waged on two or three fronts.

Yes, Toronto is a sound, military choice in which to let loose a mini-nuke. It is possibly already preset and ready for triggering. Roman Catholic Montreal is out of the question as that city is the Jesuit home base for Canada.

Sincerely in faith,

Brother Eric

Subject: CN Tower and 1776

Dear Brother Eric

Greetings in the precious name of the Lord Jesus Christ!

I trust that I am finding both you and Danita well at this time by God's wonderful grace.

Quite a few emails ago on your list you had mentioned that you personally believed that Toronto Ontario Canada could be the "POSSIBLE" location for the next staged terrorist attack and since that email a couple of events took place in my life that are leading me to believe that you may have hit the nail on the head my beloved brother!

First of all, when I read what you had said for some reason the "CN Tower" flashed through my mind. After that, one morning at work (McDonalds) I read an article that was on the front page about some new building or tower somewhere that was going to be built and would be taller than the CN tower. The main thing here was that it referenced the CN Tower as being a "phillaic" object (which it is!) and also called it an "obleisk". All of this being totally masonic and therefore jesuit in it origins. Now get this. There is this ad now being pushed on I believe CTV for a "climb the steps" of the CN Tower sponsored by WWF for the "Climb for Global Warming" or research on Global warming. Climb the steps. All 1776 of them!

Do you see brother where I am getting at?

Remember also, that the CN Tower acts as the communication tower for most radio and television in the local and surrounding areas. (And God only knows "who else" uses the tower for whatever sinister reason(s)).

Yours truly in Christ,

Mxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

Prophetic Angel

PS. I haven't forgotten about finding you the source where I read that Jason Miller spent three months living with the jesuits before acting his roll as Fr. Damion Karas in the jesuit epic "The Exorcist" I do believe the source was a softback novel type called "Media Sexploitation" but I do not know who the author was but can tell you that it was back in 1983 when I read the book. The book was about subliminal advertismment in movies, music, advertismments, etc.

Sorry Eric but I will keep my eyes and ears open and perhaps the Lord will allow me to stumble on it.

Title: Avro Manhattan

CRAIG-OXLEY - April 30, 2006 12:39 AM (GMT)

Dear Txxxxxxx,

Good question.

I believe that English Protestant Knight of Malta Avro Manhattan was a disinformation agent in key areas. As you may know, he was British SIS and knew brother Knight of Malta Kim Philby---that triple intelligence agent (MI6, CIA and KGB) who, in 1963, "defected" to Moscow.

As proven in VA, the Black Pope rules all the intelligence agencies of the world, their leaders being Knights of Malta and/or 33rd Degree Freemasons. Thus the Cold War was a total Hoax, the Jesuits openly siding with the West against the USSR, but secretly ruling the East, Moscow and Peking. Manhattan promoted this nefarious Cold War Hoax as did 33rd Degree Freemason and American traitor General Douglas MacArthur. As long as Avro kept up the illusion of the Airborne Nuclear War Hoax (as no atomic bombs were ever dropped in Japan, but were detonated on the ground with magnesium flash bombs laced with radioactive material dropped from B-29s then airbursting above Hiroshima and Nagasaki) and thus the Cold War Hoax, he could write openly against irrefutable acts of mass-murder committed by the Papacy during WWII.

But let him expose the power of the Jesuit Order behind Masons Winston Churchill, FDR and Stalin, and he would have been removed from the public view---for good. Manhattan knew that Kim Philby, Anthony Blunt and James Angleton were Knights of Malta and ran the Vatican's intelligence apparatus in the West. He also knew that Angleton's Soviet counterpart, KGB officer Anatoli M. Golitsin, was a Russian Knight of Malta and that both were orchestrating the movements of the CIA and KGB for the benefit of the Black Pope's KGB, now SVR. VAIII further solidifies this irrefutable connection, for which reason VAI is being sold on Amazon for outrageous prices only to be disposed of ASAP.

Manhattan apparently was truly saved under the ministry of Ian Paisley. But then I have my doubts about Ian as he never exposes the Jesuit rule of Britain, especially from WWI to the present hour. Surely he must know that both the British MI5/MI6 and the IRA are being coordinated together for the destruction of Protestant Northern Ireland. Why would he ever think that the British Parliament would ever protect Northern Ireland from destruction? In fact, it would not surprise me that a mini-nuke will be detonated in Belfast or Ulster, killing thousands of Protestants while then enabling the Order's Roman Catholic Ireland to absorb the North---the ultimate goal of the Black Pope's IRA. Further, this terrorist event would drive England and Scotland into the arms of the Papacy and the EEC. Like Toronto, Belfast fits the bill.

You have a point about the Order's Illuminati laughing at us in the face of the facts put forth by Manhattan. The same thing was done through the production of JFK, Director's Cut and Enemy of the State.

I trust this is helpful.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

Subject: Sodomite Criminal U.S. Jesuit Conference President Thomas Smolich SJ

Thomas Smolich SJ
President of U.S. Jesuit Conference

Thomas Smolich SJ (age 47) was rewarded for protecting his "sucks" convicted and registered sex offender in CA crossdresser Angelo Mariano SJ (age 47) (and othersubordinate Jesuit sodomites like Charles Carroll SJ and Thomas Burke SJ)-who lived with Smolich along with other Jesuits in the same house. Smolich was the California Jesuit Provincial and was promoted to Washington DC for refusing to kick out guilty sex perverts out of the Order and paying less than the plaintiffs requested in damages. Smolich of course did nothing to protect the abused two mentally challenged men at a Jesuit retreat center.

<http://www.stjosephsmen.com/Jesuits4> -This Roman Catholic webpage says

"Smolich is Provincial for the Western Province of Jesuits; this includes 5 Western States. Apparently, he is either an active homosexual or a rabid homosexualist who defends, promotes and advocates the homosexual life style even among priests who have taken the vow of chastity . The following is a compilation of various articles regarding him and the Jesuits of the Western province. Again I must warn any parent thinking about sending their children to Jesuit run schools to please think twice. If you ignore this warning you put your child in spiritual and moral danger. They will not receive a "Catholic" education and in many cases their minds will be brain washed in Liberal/Masonic concepts and moral perversity. In all honesty, the Jesuits can no more be trusted to provide a Catholic education than used car salesmen can be trusted to sell you a reliable vehicle." AG

Here's evidence that Thomas Smolich SJ is a criminal that should be in prison at this very moment.

Six religious at Los Gatos Jesuit Center were accused of sexually abusing two retarded men in their employ for nearly 30 years.

According to court records,

one of the accused, "Mariano," had also been arrested in 1998 for having sex with a 17-year-old boy. "Mariano arranged to meet two teenagers by posing as a 25-year-old woman on an Internet chat room. He wore lipstick and rouge when he met the boys," reported George Neumayr in the American Prowler. Today, Mariano reportedly lives with Fr. Thomas Smolich, the head of the California Province of Jesuits. When asked about Mariano, Smolich said: "This is anonymous sex. This doesn't involve people at the parish. It wasn't a priest thing. He wasn't dressed in a collar." Smolich did not inform police about the alleged abuse of the retarded workers because the men weren't minors. The lawyer for the Jesuits told the Los Angeles Times: "The Jesuits have no obligation under California law to disclose the information."

Quoted from: 5. "Jesuit Priest Accused of Sexual Abuse," Mercury News, December 14, 2002.

More evidence Jesuit Smolich is a sodomite criminal

"During the course of this investigation, late one Saturday night during the summer of 2002, this writer went to the Jesuit website's bulletin board where anyone can ask a question about St. Thomas Aquinas or Teilhard de Chardin or the like. I choose a different topic. I wrote, "What in the world is Tom Smolich, the head of the Western Jesuit Province in the United States, doing living with a convicted sex offender and cross dresser in the Provincial house across the street from the University of Santa Clara?"

"Smolich then oversaw approximately 436 Jesuits in a five state area. Although his office is in Los Gatos, California at the Sacred Heart Center, the provincial residence is elsewhere. It houses about seven Jesuits. Angelo Mariano, S.J. was the convicted sex offender. He is listed on the Santa Clara Police Sex Registry "Š

Mariano is 47 years-old. Tom Smolich is 47 years-old. [Mariano and Smolich are sodomite abusers of themselves with mankind working that which is unseemly-the abomination of homosexuality! Why else would Smolich protect Mariano and have him live with him?]

Smolich is an UNTOUCHABLE! He was as California Provincial and even more so now as U.S. Jesuit Conference President.

Mark Brewer - April 29, 2006 08:10 AM (GMT)

I have just discovered that Ahmed Chalabi was trained by Jesuits at Baghdad College in Iraq. Chalabi was the primary lobbyist for the passage of the Iraq Liberation Act. That act was the cause of the current Iraq war, which has enabled the Supreme Council for the Islamic Revolution in Iraq to gain control of the country and institute Sharia law. Chalabi has many connections to the neoconservatives as well, which shows whose side they are on.

"The Chalabis amassed a considerable fortune under the monarchist dictatorship. Ahmed enjoyed a privileged upbringing, and was educated by American Jesuits at Baghdad College. The 1958 coup that saw the overthrow of the monarchy threw the Chalabi family into turmoil. They quickly fled Iraq and went into exile, living at different times in England, Jordan and the United States."

THE BROKEN CROSS

by Piers Compton

Part One

<http://www.catholicvoice.co.uk/brokencross/>

What remains when Rome perishes?

When Rome falls – the world.

Virgil. Byron.

Its claims were monstrous. They passed beyond human reckoning. For it claimed to be the one divine and authoritative voice on earth; and it taught, gave judgment, and asserted, always in the same valid tone, confident that its message would outlive the transitory phenomena of doubt, change, and contradiction. It stood secure, an edifice of truth behind the ramparts of truth which defied the many and various attacks launched by its enemies. For it claimed a strength that was not of itself, a life-force and vigour imparted by a power that could not be found elsewhere; and because it could not be likened to any earthly thing it provoked fear, bewilderment, mockery, even hate.

But through the centuries it never wavered; never abandoned one item of its stupendous inheritance; never allowed the smallest rent to appear in its much derided mantle of intolerance. It inspired devotion and admiration even in those who scorned its mental discipline. It rose above conjecture, likelihood, probability; for the Word by which it had been founded was also its guarantee of permanence. It provided the one answer to the immemorial question – what is truth?

One of our essayists told¹, as many of our schoolboys used to know, of its place in history; how it saw the beginning, as it was likely to see the end, of our worldly systems; and how, in time to come, a broken arch of London Bridge might furnish a foothold from which a traveller 'could sketch the ruins of St. Paul's.'

But it would still stand monumental, unique, presenting as it did the symbols of endurance in this life and admission to an eternity beyond – a Rock and a Key.

It was the Catholic Church.

But now, as even those of irreligious mind have come to realise, all that has changed. The Church has dropped its guard, surrendered its prerogatives, abandoned its fortifications; and it will be the purpose of these pages to examine how and why the transformation, hitherto regarded by its adherents – and even by some of its unfriendly critics – as impossible, could have happened.

What follows is written, of set purpose, from the viewpoint of a traditional and still practising Catholic. The sentiments expressed figure here in order to emphasise the heresies, novelties, and profanities that, in the name of reformed or 'updated' religion, have left the Church in tatters throughout the world.

There is a feeling abroad that our civilisation is in deadly peril. It is a recent awareness, wholly distinct from the old evangelical fears that the world, in keeping with some Biblical prophecy, is coming to an end; fears that have lost much of their former simplicity, and have become more real, since the threat of nuclear war. But the end of our civilisation has more sinister implications than has the actual destruction of a planet, whether that be brought about by an 'act of God' or by a frenzy of total madness on the part of man.

For civilisation declines when reason is turned upside down, when the mean and the base, the ugly and corrupt, are made to appear the norms of social and cultural expressions; or, to bring it nearer to the terms of our argument, when evil, under a variety of masks, takes the place of good.

We of this generation, according to our age and temperament, have become the willing, unconscious, or resentful victims of such a convulsion. Hence the air of futility that clings about us, a feeling that man has lost faith in himself and in existence as a whole.

It is true, of course, that every age has suffered the setbacks of war, revolution, and natural disasters. But never before has man been left without guide or compass, without the assurance conveyed by the pressure of a hand in which he trusted. He is, in all too many instances, a separate being, divorced from reality, without the consolation of worthwhile art or background of tradition; and, most fatal of all as the orthodox would say, without religion.

Now it used to be an accepted part of the Catholic outlook that the Church created our civilisation, with the ethical standards, and the great body of revelation, on which man's attitude and destiny depend.

It follows therefore, once that proposition has been accepted, that any falling off on the part of the Church must be reflected by a similar decline in the civilisation it fostered; and such a decline, as evidenced by the moral and cultural expressions of our time, is everywhere visible.

So it is that the mere mention of religion calls forth an automatic rejection on the part of men who have never given a thought to the Church's teaching or practice, but who feel that it should somehow remedy or control the widespread erosion. They feel contempt (and contempt is a more deadly virus than scepticism) for the Church's failure to cope with conditions that call for vital action; for its readiness to go with the stream by not speaking out against, or for even giving encouragement to, subversion; for its preachment of a watered-down version of Humanism in the name of Christian charity; for the way in which, from having been the inflexible enemy of Communism, clerical leaders at the highest level have taken part in what is called 'dialogue' with those who seek, not only the Church's downfall, but the ruin of society as a whole; for the way in which it has surrendered its once proudly defined credo by admitting that there are more gods in heaven and earth than were dreamt of in its Founder's philosophy.

This summary of misgivings brings us back to the question posed at the start of our inquiry – what has caused the changes in the Church?

Any revolution, such as the French and the Russian, must come into headlong collision with two institutions – the monarchy and the Church. The former, however deeply it may be rooted in lineage and sacramental rite, can be totally disposed of by a single blow. But a people's religion, however defective it may have become, cannot be so easily suppressed by any force exerted from without.

Monarchy lives by acceptance, custom, and a process of recognition that can be brought to an end by the fall of a knife or the discharge of a rifle. But religion, and especially the Christian, although it may have become discredited and subject to scorn, has so far carried within itself the seeds of resurrection. Time and again a sentence of death has gone out against it; time and again it has outlived the executioner. That it will continue to do so may be taken for granted, though whether it will survive in its old untrammelled form, with its stature, infallible voice, and stamp of authority, is another matter.

Some will reject that suggestion as unthinkable. Others, while agreeing that the Church has sanctioned a change of emphasis, here and there, will see it as part of the divine plan; and only a few, since it has become a characteristic of our people to reject the mere mention of a conspiracy, will see in it the working out of an age-long and deliberate scheme to destroy the Church from within. Yet there is more proof of every kind for the existence of such a conspiracy than there is for some of the commonly accepted facts of history.

Because of what follows it needs to be repeated that the average British mind does not take kindly to the idea of a 'plot.' The very word savours of a theatrical setting, with heavily cloaked men meeting in a darkened room to plan the destruction of their enemies. But secret scheming, hidden for the most part from the academic as from the public mind, has been the background or driving force of much world history.

The world of politics is bedevilled by cliques working one against another, as becomes evident when we take note of the flaws that occur in official versions of the Gunpowder Plot, the murder of Abraham Lincoln in 1865, that of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand of Austria at Sarajevo in 1914, the drowning of Kitchener in 1916, the shooting of President Kennedy in 1963, and even nearer to our own time, the mysterious end of Pope John Paul I, to be dealt with later in this volume.

The Church has always been the target of anti-religious men who see in its existence a threat to their progress and designs. And I use the word 'always' advisedly, for plotting against the Church occurs as early as the year A.D. 58. in words spoken by St. Paul to the people of Ephesus (and Paul, a trained Pharisee, when it came to warning against subversion knew what he was saying): 'After my departure, grievous wolves shall come in among you, not sparing the flock; and from among your own selves shall issue men speaking perverse things in order to draw away the disciples after them.'

The urge for world domination whether by force of arms, culture, or religion, is as old as history. The earliest records, without considering myth or even legend, give proof of it. Egypt, which first dominated the thought and outlook of the East, was never a purely military State. But a warlike era emerged (we may date it from about 910 B.C.) with 'Assyria the Terrible.' The rise of Babylon, short-lived, was followed by that of Persia, under Cyrus the Great. Then came a name that has never ceased to be synonymous with that of a vast empire and lordship of the known world, Rome. But all such powers, apart from being concerned with territorial gain, aimed also at imposing some political or social creed, the overthrowing of one standard belief and the elevation of another, a process that the ancients used to associate with the influence of the gods.

The spread of the Arian heresy, that split Christendom throughout the fourth century, becomes a landmark. It involved all the symptoms of revolution, anarchy, treachery, and intrigue. But the underlying cause was not political. Its mainspring was religious, even theological, since it turned upon a phrase coined by Arius, the Alexandrian priest whose name was given to the movement: 'There must have been a time when Christ was not.'

That denigration of the divine being and nature of Christ, if carried to its logical conclusion, would have rendered the world that was centred on Rome to a negative state in which Europe, as we know it, would have had no future. But Rome survived, as a place of reverence for some, as a target for others; and what we now look back upon as the medieval world was filled with repercussions of the same struggle.

With the consolidation of Rome as a Papal power the objective became a more definite reality, with its purpose never in doubt and always the same, whatever temporal or domestic interpretation was placed upon it.

For the eyes of men, whether in France, Italy or Spain, England or Germany, were on Peter's Chair, an object of controversy that has proved more potent than gold in bearing on the mind.

That was the situation in Rome during the first quarter of the twelfth century, when two rival families, the Pierleoni and the Frangipani, were angling for power. Both were rich, the Pierleoni immensely so; neither was over-scrupulous; and when the Pope, Callistus II, died in 1124, both families put up a candidate for the Papal throne. The Pierleoni's man, Anacletus, was 'not thought well of, even by his friends.' But he managed to outvote his rival who was backed by the Frangipani.

Anacletus's reign was short and unpopular, but he clung perilously to power until his death in 1138, when he was declared anti-pope in favour of Innocent II. So it came about that an organised clique, if only briefly, took over the Vatican where they installed 'their man', a looked-for consummation that figured in the minds of international plotters until, in our own time, it came to be realised.

It is a curious fact that man will suffer more readily for ideas, however crude, than he will for positive causes that affect his way of life; and when the perennial heresy of Gnosticism raised its head at the little town of Albi, in southern France, at the start of the thirteenth century, men flocked to it as once they had to join a crusade. But this time its principles were more extreme than those of any Christian warrior. Matter was declared to be evil; so death, which meant the ending of matter, became more desirable than life. Suicide, often brought about by men starving themselves, and their families, was a privilege and a blessing; and the very foundations of the Church, with the Papal throne, were shaken as hundreds of clergy, with as many nuns, came out on the side that had more political and philosophic undertones than appear in many stories of the period.

It was a life and death struggle in which the Church, under Pope Innocent III, reacted violently by setting up the Inquisition. Its purpose was to examine Albigensians who, purporting to be orthodox, had entered the Church, and occupied some of its most exalted places in order to undermine authority and set up, in every sphere, a system of common ownership. The capture of the Papacy was, of course, their main objective, although most histories of the time are more concerned with the fate of those who failed to recite the 'Our Father' correctly before their questioners.

The violence and cruelty of the war that set in has left a permanent mark on history. The terms Albigensian and Inquisition are often employed as useful steps to an argument. Few realise the true significance of the struggle which left the Papal throne still secure, so far invulnerable, but always, under several guises and from any part of Europe, the object of attack.

From this time on that attack was more concentrated. It gathered strength. In 1482, at Strasbourg, it gained a new intensity as the enemies of the Pope declared their intention of waging war against him. A document dated 1535, and known as the Charter of Cologne, is evidence of the same hostility, and equally violent. Echoes of the Albigensian campaign, still insisting that non-existence was preferable to what its followers called the Satanic ordering of earthly life, lingered on in a traditionally orthodox and never thickly populated country like Portugal, where the continued activity of the Inquisition was such that, among the dozens of those sentenced to death between the years 1619 and 1627, were fifty-nine priests and nuns.

During the latter years of the eighteenth century a young man was pacing the streets of Ingolstadt, Bavaria, with hatred in his heart and a fixed determination in his mind. His hatred was directed against the Jesuits, the religious Society which had trained him and made him a Professor of Canon Law at the local university, a Society which has, incidentally, always been a successful breeding ground for nearly every type of saint and assassin.

His determination, shared at one time or another by many serious-minded young men, but all too often without dedication, was to work for the overthrow of Church and State. But his determination had roots, and Adam Weishaupt (for that was his name), was now reaping the benefit of the Society he had come to despise.

For the spirit of the first Jesuit, Ignatius Loyola, had come down to even the apostates among his followers. Ignatius had been, as was then not uncommon in his native Spain, a gentleman soldier. He had stood fire, and known the shock of enemy metal. And Adam Weishaupt could view the prospect before him with a military mind. He had thrust, and vision. He knew the value of surprise, which is grounded in secrecy. And he was single-minded. All around him was strife of some sort, and contradiction. He would blend mankind into one whole, eliminate tradition, which differs from people to people, and suppress dogma, which invites more untruths than the one it sets out to establish.

Not for the first time, and certainly not for the last, a man set himself apart from his fellows in the name of universal brotherhood. The ideal state that Weishaupt had in mind was, of course, founded on the impossible dream of human perfection; hence his first followers went by the arrogantly priggish name of Perfectibilists.

But it soon became clear that moral impeccability was less conducive to his ends than mental enlightenment; and on the 1st day of May, 1776, the secret society that was to profoundly affect much subsequent history came into existence as the Illuminati. The date and certain of its implications are noteworthy. For on May the 1st the great Celtic pagan festival of Beltane was celebrated on hills that, wherever possible, were pyramidal in shape.

The Illuminati had by then, according to a plan they had made known in Munich in the previous year, decided on a most ambitious line of conduct. It would form and control public opinion. It would amalgamate religions by dissolving all the differences of belief and ritual that had kept them apart; and it would take over the Papacy and place an agent of its own in the Chair of Peter.

A further project was to bring down the French monarchy, which had long been a powerful influence, second only to the Papacy, in maintaining the existing European order. To that end a most efficient go-between was found in the person of one Joseph Balsamo, better known as Cagliostro, one of the world's most agile performers on the make-believe stage.

He was backed financially, as are most if not all anarchistic leaders, by a group of bankers under the House of Rothschild. It was under their direction that the long range and world-wide plans of the Illuminati were drawn up.

Cagliostro's excursions in the realm of the occult have earned him a variety of epithets. He was charlatan, astrologer, the possessor of the secret of eternal youth and of the great universal medicine. But his claim to be possessed of an other-world influence may not have been wholly false. For after having survived the tests that made him a full blooded Illuminatus (the ceremony took place at night, in an underground vault near Frankfurt), he journeyed from country to country, in a black varnished coach that was decorated with magic symbols, imposing his arts upon the most influential circles, yet always with an eye on the French Court where he soon picked on Marie Antoinette as its most valuable and susceptible member.

How he finally over-reached himself, in perpetrating the swindle of the diamond necklace², is part of the preparatory process that led to the outbreak of the French Revolution. He died most miserably in Rome, but not without leaving a reputation that still poses questions, and which is typical of the formidable effects derived from contact with the Illuminati.

As part of the secrecy that masked its strength, and also perhaps from a juvenile wish to claim classical connections, the leaders of the Society adopted classical names, mostly from Greek or Roman myth and history. Adam Weishaupt became Spartacus, the name of the Thracian slave who led a revolt against Rome. His second-in-command, Baron Knigge, chose Philo, after the neo-Platonic philosopher. The uncouth sounding Franz Zwackh elected to be Cato, the Roman statesman. The Marquis Costanzo (for the Illuminati made free with titles) became Diomedes, one of the Greek leaders in the Trojan War; while a certain Francis Mary Arouet, undersized, warped, and wizened, coined a name for himself that was destined to sound through the popular consciousness like a miniature thunder-clap – Voltaire.

It is a common enough procedure for the casual reader to glance at, or even study, the names of those who directed the anti-Bourbon fury that swept over Paris, and most of France, without realising that much of it stemmed from the Illuminati, whose members were prominent in the short-lived committees and assemblies spawned by the Revolution.

Mirabeau and Danton were two of its nearly gigantic figures. Dapper little Robespierre supplied the consistency, and the tortuous Fouche the self-preserving cunning, of ice-cold brains. Talleyrand limped his way over obstacles that proved fatal to more active men. Camille Desmoulins exhibited an adolescent faith in his fellows. Marshals Murat, Masséna, Bernadotte, and Soult followed the direction of Napoleon's bicorne hat and drove his enemies from field after field. Kellermann, as heavy as his name, remained firmly booted and spurred, unlike Lafayette, who could change his royal uniform for the garb of a republican or a diplomat. All these were Illuminati. Some worked with open eyes, actual accomplices. Others, like Desmoulins, were enthusiasts or dupes.

Their influence did not die with them. It was passed on, long after the guillotine had gone out of common use, and could be recognised as the power behind the Directory. It lessened throughout the Consulate, but came back reinforced when Louis XVIII was hoisted on to the throne after Waterloo, and it sparked off the Revolution of 1830, which signalled the end of the Bourbons whom the Illuminati had long before marked down for ruin.

The sinister designs of Weishaupt and his Society had been made known to the Bavarian Government, as the result of a thunderstorm, in 1785.

A former priest and henchman of Weishaupt, named Joseph Lanz, had been out in the storm to deliver a message, when he was struck by lightning and killed. His body was taken to the chapel of a Benedictine convent where a nun, who prepared him for burial, found documents sewn into his clothing. Their importance, it soon became clear, reached far beyond the convent, and they were passed to the authorities who rubbed their eyes on seeing they outlined a plot for overthrowing Church and State. Weishaupt was banished from Bavaria, but he promptly fell on his feet again by being protected and pensioned by the Prince of Saxe-Gotha.

By the time of Weishaupt's death in 1830 the hand of his Society could be detected in countries other than France, though its workings were sometimes indistinguishable from those of the more politically minded Italian movement, the Carbonari (charcoal burners). That Society had been founded by Maghella in Naples at the time of the former Marshal Murat, who had been created King of Naples by Napoleon. Its declared object was to drive out foreigners and to set up a republican constitution.

The peculiar strength of such bodies has always been their secrecy, and this was in no way impugned by the signs and symbols they adopted. Sometimes they had an affected occult significance that was meant to be impressive, and this often led them to introduce merely puerile, absurd, or even unpleasant rites of initiation. There was, for instance, one Illuminati circle that persuaded candidates to enter a bath of water – persuaded, that is, by pulling them towards the bath by means of a piece of string that was tied to their genitals. And it was this perverted sexual obsession that made some of Weishaupt's disciples undergo self-castration.

But some rites and symbols derived an undeniable significance from what is generally called Black Magic, or from the invocation of a Satanic power whose potency runs like a sinister streak through pages of Biblical, legendary, and historically verified writing.

'By symbols', said Thomas Carlyle in Sartor Resartus, 'is man guided and commanded, made happy, made wretched. He everywhere finds himself surrounded with symbols, recognised as such or not recognised.'

The Illuminati made use of a shape that was probably old when Egypt reached its peak, that of a pyramid, or triangle, which has long been known to initiates as a sign of mystic or solar faith. At the top of that pyramid, or sometimes at its base, was, and in fact still is, the image of a separate human Eye, which has been variously referred to as the open eye of Lucifer, the morning star, or the eternal watcher of the world and the human scene.

The pyramid was one of the symbols that represented the unknown and nameless deity in pre-Christian cults. Centuries later it was resurrected as a symbol of the destruction of the Catholic Church; and when the first phase of that destruction had been brought about, as we shall see, by those who had infiltrated and since occupied some of the highest places in the Church, they reproduced it as a sign of their success.

It overlooked the crowds who gathered for the Philadelphia Eucharistic Congress in 1976. It was taken up by the Jesuits who edited the Society's year book; and it appeared on a series of Vatican stamps issued in 1978.

The Eye, which can be traced back to the Babylonian moon-worshippers, or astrologers, came to represent the Egyptian trinity of Osiris, the sun; Isis, the moon goddess; and their child, Horus. Isis also appeared in Athens, Rome, Sicily, and other centres of antiquity under a variety of names including Venus, Minerva, Diana, Cybele, Ceres, Proserpine, and Bellona. The Eye came to figure among the mystic solar symbols of Jove, Baal, and Apollo.

There was nothing empty or childish in the Society's claim that its members, as evidenced by the Eye, were under constant surveillance. 'It is understood', so ran a dictum of the Society, 'that anyone who reveals our secrets, either voluntarily or involuntarily, signs his own death warrant.'

And those words have been borne out, time and again. One of the first to give an instance of this was a Frenchman, named Lescure, whose son had played a briefly prominent part in the Revolution. Lescure senior was admitted to the cult of the Eye and the pyramid. But he soon repented, refused to attend their gatherings, was looked upon as a possible danger to his erstwhile brethren, and died suddenly of poison. In his last lucid moments he blamed 'that impious horde of the Illuminati' for his death.

Mention has already been made of the Carbonari, the Supreme Directory of which, known as the Alta Vendita³, became a kind of nucleus for all the secret societies spread through Italy. In organization and intention it was much the same as the Illuminati. Its leaders adopted a similar brand of whimsical appellations (such as Little Tiger, Nubius, Vindex, Minos), and it exhibited the same unremitting hostility towards Church and State.

This was clearly outlined in a set of Permanent Instructions, or Code of Rules, which appeared in Italy in 1818. It was written by Nubius and was addressed to a fellow conspirator called Volpi, with suggested guide lines and news of what had so far been accomplished.

Nubius, who appears to have been a man of rank in Rome, starts with a modest appraisal of the not insignificant task that had been entrusted to him. 'As I told you before, I have been appointed to demoralise the education of the youth of the Church.' But he was not unaware of the most difficult obstacle he would have to encounter. One great problem remained. 'The Papacy has always exercised a decisive influence over Italy. With the arm, the voice, the pen, of its innumerable bishops, monks, nuns, and faithful of all latitudes, the Pope finds everywhere people who are prepared for sacrifice, and even for martyrdom, friends who would die for him, or sacrifice all for his sake.

‘It is a mighty lever, the full power of which few Popes have understood, and which has yet been used but partially... Our final aim is that of Voltaire, and that of the French Revolution – the complete annihilation of Catholicism, and ultimately of Christianity. Were Christianity to survive, even upon the ruins of Rome, it would, a little later on, revive and live.

‘Take no notice of those boastful and vainglorious Frenchmen, and thick-headed Germans, and hypochondriacal Englishmen, who think it possible to end Catholicism by an obscene song, or by a contemptible sarcasm. Catholicism has a vitality which survives such attacks with ease. She has seen adversaries more implacable, and more terrible far, and sometimes has taken a malicious pleasure in baptising with holy water the most rabid amongst them.

‘Therefore the Papacy has been for seventeen hundred years interwoven with the history of Italy. Italy can neither breathe nor move without the leave of the Supreme Pontiff. With him, she has the hundred arms of Briareus; without him, she is condemned to a lamentable impotency. Such a state of things must not continue. It is necessary to seek a remedy.

‘Very well. The remedy is at hand. The Pope, whoever he may be, will never enter into a secret society. It therefore becomes the duty of the secret societies to make the first advance to the Church, and to the Pope, with the object of conquering both. The work for which we gird ourselves is not the work of a day, nor of a month, nor of a year. It may last for many years, perhaps a century. In our ranks the soldier dies, but the work is continued.

‘We do not at present intend to gain the Pope to our cause. That which we should await, as the Jews await a Messiah, is a Pope according to our wants. We require a Pope for ourselves, if such a Pope were possible. With such a one we shall march more securely to the storming of the Church, than with all the little books of our French and English brothers. And why?

‘Because it were useless to seek with these alone to split the Rock upon which God has built the Church. We should not want the vinegar of Hannibal⁴, nor gunpowder, nor even our arms, if we had but the little finger of the successor of Peter engaged in the plot; that little finger will avail us more for our crusade than all the Urbans and St. Bernards for the crusade of Christianity.

‘We trust that we may yet attain this supreme object of our efforts. Little can be done with the old Cardinals and with prelates of decided character. In our magazines, either popular or unpopular, we must find the means to utilise, or ridicule, the power in their hands. A well invented report must be spread with tact amongst good Christian families.

Such a Cardinal, for instance, is a miser; such a prelate is licentious. These things will spread rapidly in the cafes, thence to the squares, and one report is sometimes enough to ruin a man.

‘If a prelate arrives in a province from Rome to officiate at some public function, it is necessary at once to become acquainted with his character, his antecedents, his temperament, his defects – especially his defects. Give him a character that must horrify the young people and the women; describe him as cruel, heartless, or bloodthirsty; relate some atrocious transaction which will cause a sensation amongst the people. The foreign newspapers will learn and copy these facts, which they will know how to embellish according to their usual style...’

Apart from the earlier indications, the main purpose of the plot, to gain control of the Papacy, had been brought to light in Florence by an opponent of the secret societies named Simonini, who carried the news of their intention to Pius VII. But the Church could do little more in the way of defence than issue warnings; while the Carbonari, reinforced by the positive declarations uttered by the Alta Vendita, pressed home its attacks.

A few years after that document was issued, Little Tiger addressed the Piedmontese group of the society in the following terms: ‘Catholicism must be destroyed throughout the whole world. Prowl about the Catholic sheepfold and seize the first lamb that presents itself in the required conditions. Go even to the depths of convents. In a few years the young clergy will have, by the force of events, invaded all the functions. They will govern, administer, and judge. They will be called upon to choose the Pontiff who will reign; and the Pontiff, like the greater part of his contemporaries, will be necessarily imbued with the principles which we are about to put into circulation.

‘It is a little grain of mustard which we will place in the earth, but the sun of justice will develop it to become a great power, and you will see one day what a rich harvest that little seed will produce.’

The policy of infiltration had already been put into effect, and Little Tiger was soon claiming that a new breed of priests, talented young men who were likely to rise high in the hierarchy, had been trained to take over and destroy the Church. And that was no empty boast, since in 1824 he was telling Nubius: ‘There are certain members of the clergy, especially in Rome, who have swallowed the bait, hook, line, and sinker.’

The persistence, the thoroughness, and the single-minded purpose of the societies which, then as now, was not to be found outside them, was never in doubt. ‘Let the clergy march under your banner in the belief that they march under the banner of the Apostolic Keys. Do not fear to slip into the religious communities, into the very midst of their flock. Let our agents study with care the personnel of those confraternity men, put them under the pastoral staff of some virtuous priest, well known but credulous and easy to be deceived. Then infiltrate the poison into those chosen hearts; infiltrate it by little doses as if by chance.'

This was soon followed by a confident assessment of the inroads that the societies had already made. 'In Italy, they count among their numbers more than eight hundred priests, among whom are many professors and prelates as well as some Bishops and Cardinals!' It was claimed that many of the Spanish clergy were also involved.

But, as Nubius constantly repeated, all interim victories would be hollow until a Pope who was part of their ultimate design was occupying Peter's Chair. 'When that is accomplished', he wrote in 1843, 'you will have established a revolution led by the tiara and the pluvial (ceremonial) cape; a revolution brought about with little force, but which will strike a flame in the four corners of the world.'

There was a feeling of change in the air, a change that would extend beyond the boundaries of the Church and transform many facets of existence. Little Tiger summed it up hopefully to Nubius in 1846: 'All feel that the old world is cracking.' And his finger must have been on the pulse of events, for two years later a highly select body of secret initiates who called themselves the League of Twelve Just Men of the Illuminati, financed Karl Marx to write the Communist Manifesto, and within months Europe was rocking with revolution.

But Nubius did not live long enough to sample whatever benefits might have come about. For activated by rumours, whether true or false, that he was letting his tongue wag too freely, the all-seeing Eye was turned in his direction and Nubius succumbed to a dose of poison.

We of this generation have lived through, and are still encountering, the political and religious aftermaths of a struggle whose causes were hidden from those who witnessed its early stages, just as they are from us who are blindly groping a way through its secondary phases. For its perpetrators, and their operations, are masked by secrecy, a secrecy so continuous, and profound, that it cannot be matched elsewhere.

When the French author, Cretineau-Joly, brought the sinister import of the Alta Vendita to the notice of Pope Pius IX (1846-78), who allowed his name to be used as a guarantee of its authority, the event, that should have called for a fanfare of silver trumpets, was drowned by the petty whistling of Parliamentary verbiage and cant. And when Adolphe Cremieux, Minister of Justice, as reported in Les Archives, Paris, in November 1861, voiced the precept that 'Nationalities must disappear, religion must be suppressed,' the circles that framed such statements saw that they were never diffused as forecasts of a condition that would clamour for widespread acceptance in less than a

Again, a reader of The Times, in Victorian England, would have noted, perhaps with an insular distaste for everything Latin, the disorders that flared from time to time in Spain, Portugal, Naples, and the Papal States. In seeking an explanation, the word 'dagos' might have suggested itself. But one thing is certain. He would never have thought that the man who master-minded the turmoil was no less a person than Lord Palmerston, who was the Queen's Foreign Secretary between the years 1830-51, Prime Minister in 1855, and again in 1859 until his death in 1865.

For behind those Parliamentary titles, he was known to his fellow-conspirators as Grand Patriarch of the Illuminati, and therefore controller of all the sinister complex of secret societies. Glance at some of their political designs – the achievement of a united Italy under the House of Savoy; the annexation of Papal territory; the reconstitution of a Polish State; the deprivation of Austria, and the consequent rise of the German Empire.

Each of those objectives, irrespective of time, was set down on the Illuminati's agenda. Each has been attained; and Benjamin Disraeli, who knew the whole business of plot and counter-plot, doubtless had Palmerston's machinations in mind when he said, in 1876: 'The Governments of this country have to deal, not only with governments, kings, and ministers, but also with secret societies, elements which must be taken into account, which at the last moment can bring all plans to naught, which have agents everywhere, who incite assassinations and can, if necessary, lead a massacre.'

The leaders of the Italian Revolution, Mazzini, Garibaldi, and Cavour were the servants of the Eye, while such monarchs of the time as Victor Emmanuel II and Napoleon III also came within its radius.

Throughout the remainder of the century the attack on orthodoxy gathered weight. In 1881 the Prime Minister of France, Leon Gambetta, could openly declare: 'Clericalism, that is the enemy.' A more popular orator roared: 'I spit upon the rotting corpse of the Papacy.' And the same year provided ample evidence of the hostility that was ready to break out in the most unexpected parts of the continent. For when the body of Pius IX was being transferred from the Vatican basilica to the church of St. Lawrence-outside-the-Walls, the cortège was attacked by a mob armed with cudgels. Amid their shouted obscenities a street battle developed before the body of the dead Pope could be saved from being flung into the Tiber. The authorities, siding with the rioters, took no action.

So in that way, and by many devious routes, the contests of early Christian times, and of the Middle Ages, were being continued. But now the Church's enemies were shifting their attacks from open warfare to peaceful penetration, which was more in keeping with the spirit of the time.

'What we have undertaken', proclaimed the Marquis de Franquerie in the middle of the last century, 'is the corruption of the people by the clergy, and that of the clergy by us, the corruption which leads the way to our digging the Church's grave.'

An even more confident prediction, and on a new note, was made some sixty years later: 'Satan must reign in the Vatican. The Pope will be his slave.' Confirmation of this, and in much the same words was to be given in a revelation received by three illiterate children aged ten, eight, and seven respectively, at the little town of Fatima in Portugal in 1917. It took the shape of a warning that, at that time of day, seemed frankly ridiculous: 'Satan will reign even in the highest places. He will even enter the highest position in the Church.' [The author is quoting a spurious version of the Third Secret current during the 80s; the authentic version, not published by the Vatican until June 2000, does not contain these remarks].

Some indication of the prophetic, or carefully planned projects of the secret societies, may be read into a letter addressed to Mazzini, dated April the 15th, 1871, and catalogued in the British Museum Library. At that time wars were conducted on a comparatively small and restricted scale, but this letter, written more than forty years before the first world conflict started, may be interpreted as a forecast of the Second World War, together with more possible hints of a third and still greater catastrophe that is yet to come. Here it is quoted:

'We will unleash the Nihilists and atheists, and we will provoke a formidable social catastrophe which, in all its horror, will show clearly to the nations the effect of absolute atheism, original savagery, and the most bloody turmoil.

'Then everywhere the citizens, obliged to defend themselves against the majority of world revolutionaries, will extinguish the destroyers of civilisations; and the multitude, disillusioned with Christianity, whose deistic spirits will be from that time without compass, anxious for an ideal, but without knowing where to render its adoration, will receive the true light through the universal manifestation of the pure doctrine of Lucifer, brought finally out to the public view, a manifestation which will result from the general revolutionary movement which will follow the destruction of Christianity and atheism, both conquered and exterminated at the same time.'

In the above a term is used that, in the course of these pages, may call for clarification. It needs to be understood that the enemies of the Church were not atheists according to the commonly accepted meaning. They rejected religion as represented by the Christian God whom they refer to as Adonay, a being who has, they say, condemned the human race to a recurring round of suffering and darkness.

But their intelligence calls for the recognition of a god, and they found one in Lucifer, son of the morning and bearer of light, the brightest of the archangels who led the heavenly revolution in a bid to make himself the equal of God.

The highly developed Luciferian creed, until the end of the 1939 war, was directed throughout the world from a centre in Switzerland. Since that time its headquarters have been located in the Harold Pratt Building, New York.

But although such places may be named, the veil of secrecy surrounding the inner circle of world government has never been broken. Nothing else in the world has remained so hidden, so intact; and the existence of such an inner circle was acknowledged by no less a person than Mazzini who, although one of the arch conspirators, was compelled to admit, in a letter written shortly before his death to a Doctor Breidenstine: 'We form an association of brothers in all points of the globe. Yet there is one unseen who can hardly be felt, yet it weighs on us. Whence comes it? Where is it? No one knows, or at least, no one talks. This association is secret even to us, the veterans of secret societies.'

The Voice, the universal brotherhood magazine, first published in England in 1973, later transferred to Somerset West, Cape Province, South Africa, has this to say about it: 'The Elder Brothers of the Race usually move through the world unknown. They seek no recognition, preferring to serve behind the scenes.'

In his often quoted book 1984, George Orwell refers to this inner party, or universal brotherhood, and how, apart from its secrecy, the fact of its not being an organisation in the usual sense makes it invulnerable. While Sir Winston Churchill, in his study of Great Contemporaries, says: 'Once the apparatus of power is in the hands of the Brotherhood, all opposition, all contrary opinions, must be extinguished by death.'

And there are enough strange deaths recorded even in these pages to make one pause over that.

The introduction of Satan as a fresh element in the struggle met with less response in heterodox England than it did upon the continent. For there, belief in the positive power of evil, and cases of diabolical possession, were not always regarded as moonshine. What had happened at the Ursuline convent at Louviers, in Normandy, and at another convent (also Ursuline) at Aix-en-Provence, in the region of Marseilles, both in the seventeenth century, could still inspire nervous glances over the shoulder.

At Louviers, young nuns and novices had there attended Black Masses where the Host was consecrated over the private parts of a woman stretched upon the altar. Portions of the Host had then been inserted into those parts. One of the Franciscan friars who served the convent dealt in love philtres made of the sacramental wafer dipped in menstrual blood and that of murdered babies.

At the other convent, a young girl had writhed on the ground, exposing every part of her body, and screaming obscenities relating to sodomy and cannibalism. Other members of the community claimed that their minds and bodies were being tormented by Beelzebub, the demon worshipped by the Philistines, the so-called Lord of the Flies because he appeared dripping sacrificial blood that attracted hordes of flying insects. In both cases the evil influence was traced to Satanically inspired priests, who perished at the stake. Part of the evidence, at the trial of one, was a pact with Satan signed in the priest's blood.

Later in the same century the Abbé Guibourg celebrated the same kind of mock religious rite sometimes with the help of Madame de Montespan, one of the fading mistresses of Louis XIV, who took part in the hope of reviving the King's passion for her. There again the blood of a murdered child, and that of a bat, mingled with the sperm of the officiating priest to boost the sacramental wine.

It was common for the mock celebrant on such occasions to wear a cardinal's robes. Black candles stood on the altar. The cross was in evidence, but reversed, and there were pictures showing a crucifix being trampled by a goat. A star, a black moon, and a serpent figured in erotic paintings around the walls, and the only name spoken in reverence was that of Lucifer. Initiates frequently received Communion at a properly constituted church, but it was only to carry the Host away in their mouths and then to feed it to animals and mice.

A typical Black Magic centre, or Temple of Satan, was set up in Rome in 1895. A group of interested people, curious to sample its meaning, somehow managed to penetrate a little beyond its threshold, and what they saw was described by one of them, Domenico Margiotta⁵: 'Its lateral walls were hung with magnificent red and black damask draperies.⁶ At the further end was a great piece of tapestry upon which was the figure of Satan at whose feet was an altar.

'Here and there were arranged triangles, squares, and other symbolic signs. All around stood gilt chairs. Each of these, in the moulding which cupped its back, had a glass eye, the interior of which was lighted by electricity, while in the middle of the temple stood a curious throne, that of the Great Satanic Pontiff.' Something in the silent atmosphere of the room terrified them, and they left more quickly than they had entered.

With the Illuminati raising its head again, and even as far afield as Russia, there were signs that its influence had penetrated the top level of the Church. It had done so in the person of Cardinal Mariano Rampolla (1843-1913) one of those significant, yet shadowy and largely unknown figures whose like can be found only in the covertly sinister pages of Vatican history.

A native of Sicily, and a Liberal in outlook, he entered Papal service during the pontificate of Leo XIII, and had been Secretary of Propaganda before becoming Secretary of State.

An Englishman who claimed to have known him, and to have made him acquainted with the occult, was Aleister Crowley, who had been born in the then demulcent town of Leamington in 1875, and who had then passed, by way of Cambridge, to become one of the most controversial figures in the world of mystery. People of intelligence still shake their heads over trying to answer such questions as to whether he was a master of the Black Arts, a dabbler in them, or merely a pretender. Somerset Maugham, who knew him well, gave his opinion that Crowley was a fake, 'but not wholly a fake.'

He was certainly, as shown by his writings, a master of corruption. For what may be most charitably called his spiritual aspirations were tempered by a blatant sensualism. It was through the flesh that his being leapt out to embrace mystery. The images that passed into his mind came out deformed, often with a sexual connotation; and, like others of his kind who wander on the border of the unknown, he found comfort in sheltering behind a variety of fantastic names such as Therion, Count Vladimir Svaroff, Prince Chiva Khan, the Laird of Boleskin, a title that he tried to live up to by wearing a kilt. To his mother he was the Great Beast (from the Apocalypse). Crowley responded by calling her a brainless bigot.

By filing his two canine teeth he made them into fangs, which enabled him to implant a vampire's kiss on the throat or wrist of any woman who was unlucky enough to meet him. He married Rose Kelly, a sister of the painter Sir Gerald, who later became President of the Royal Academy.

She was a weak sub-normal creature, who could evidently overlook his pleasant little way of hanging a mistress upside down by her heels in a wardrobe, just as she could agree with the names he bestowed upon their daughter, I Nuit Ahoor Hecate Sappho Jezebel Lilith.

Whether or not there was any definite connection between Rampolla and Crowley, the Cardinal's steady rise in the hierarchy offered a solid contrast to Crowley's futile preoccupation with the societies of the Golden Dawn and the Oriental Templars, to which were affiliated such bodies as the Knights of the Holy Spirit, the Occult Church of the Holy Grail, the Hermetic Brotherhood of Light, the Order of Enoch, the Rite of Memphis, and the Rite of Mizraim.

When Leo XIII died in 1903, and a conclave was called to elect his successor, Rampolla was known to be well in the running. His nearest rival was the Patriarch of Venice, Cardinal Sarto, a less impressive figure, as the world judges, but with an aura of goodness, or even natural saintliness about him, that Rampolla lacked.

At the first scrutiny, twenty-five votes were in his favour, while Sarto polled only five. As the voting proceeded the latter steadily increased his standing, but Rampolla continued to forge ahead. That seemed to have established the pattern of the voting, and, as though to accelerate its obvious result, the French Foreign Minister took the unusual step of requesting his countrymen among the Cardinals to back Rampolla.

Were hidden strings being pulled? Almost certainly they were. But if so the Sicilian's opponents, who may have been aware of his being a suspected Illuminatus, came forward with a last minute objection that dashed his claim. The Emperors of Austria, who were still recognised as legatees of the non-existent Holy Roman Empire, had been invested with the hereditary right to exercise a veto on candidates for the Papal throne whom they found unacceptable.

That veto was now expressed by the Cardinal of Cracow (a city that was then in Austria), in the name of the Emperor Franz Josef of Austria. Some said it was the veto of the Holy Ghost. Rampolla's hopes foundered, and the mind of the conclave swung round in favour of his nearest challenger, Sarto, who became Pope Pius X.

But it was not generally believed that the veto expressed by the 'very Catholic' Emperor of Austria was alone responsible for barring Rampolla's way, though he never, after the conclave, played any influential role in Rome.

After his death, Rampolla's papers passed into the keeping of Pius X. After reading them he put them aside with the comment: 'The unhappy man! Burn them.' The papers were put on the fire in the Pope's presence, but enough of them survived to furnish material for an article that appeared in La Libre Parole, in 1929 in Toulouse.

Some of the papers emanated from a secret society, the Order of the Temple of the Orient, and they provided proof that Rampolla had been working for the overthrow of Church and State. A notebook, discovered at the same time, throws a surprising sidelight on the possible Aleister Crowley connection; for several of the societies affiliated to the Temple of the Orient were those which have already been named, such as the Occult Church of the Holy Grail, and the Rite of Mizraim, in all of which Crowley exercised some great or small influence.

So it may have been that in the last days of world peace the secret societies came very near attaining, through Rampolla, their centuries-old goal – by claiming a Pope of their own.

Growing chaos, and the replacement of traditional values by those of a new order, which were the tangible effects of the 1914 war, were seized upon as offering favourable opportunities to those who never ceased regarding the Church as their one great enemy. For early in 1936 a convention of secret societies was held in Paris; and although attendance was strictly limited to 'those in the know,' English and French observers managed to be present. Their accounts of the meeting appeared in the Catholic Gazette of February, 1936, and a few weeks later in Le Réveil du Peuple, a Paris weekly.

No one could fail to notice how closely the sentiments and topics that were there treated correspond to those put forward by Nubius and in the Alta Vendita more than a century before. What follows is a slightly shortened copy of the English version:

‘As long as there remains any moral conception of the social order, and until all faith, patriotism, and dignity are uprooted, our reign over the world shall not come. We have already fulfilled part of our work, and yet we cannot claim that the whole of our work is done. We still have a long way to go before we can overthrow our main opponent, the Catholic Church.

‘We must always bear in mind that the Catholic Church is the only institution which has stood, and which will, as long as it remains in existence, stand in our way. The Catholic Church, with its methodical work and her edifying moral teachings will always keep her children in such a state of mind as to make them too self-respecting to yield to our domination. That is why we have been striving to discover the best way of shaking the Catholic Church to her very foundations. We have spread the spirit of revolt and false liberalism among the nations so as to persuade them away from their faith and even to make them ashamed of professing the precepts of their religion, and obeying the commandments of their Church.

‘We have brought many of them to boast of being atheists, and more than that, to glory in being descendants of the ape! We have given them new theories, impossible of realisation, such as Communism, anarchism, and Socialism, which are now serving our purposes. They have accepted them with the greatest enthusiasm, without realising that those theories are ours, and that they constitute the most powerful instrument against themselves.

‘We have blackened the Catholic Church with the most ignominious calumnies, we have stained her history, and disgraced even her noblest activities. We have imparted to her the wrongs of her enemies, and have brought these latter to stand more closely by our side. So much so that we are now witnessing, to our greatest satisfaction, rebellions against the Church in several countries. We have turned her clergy into objects of hatred and ridicule, we have subjected them to the hate of the crowd. We have caused the practice of the Catholic religion to be considered out of date and a mere waste of time. We have founded many secret associations which work for our purpose, under our orders and our directions.

‘So far, we have considered our strategy in our attacks upon the Church from the outside. But this is not all. Let us explain how we have gone further in our work to hasten the ruin of the Catholic Church, and how we have penetrated into her most intimate circles, and have brought even some of her clergy to be pioneers of our cause:

'Apart from the influence of our philosophy, we have taken other steps to secure a breach in the Catholic Church. Let me explain how this has been done. We have induced some of our children to join the Catholic body with the explicit intention that they should work in a still more efficient way for the disintegration of the Catholic Church, by creating scandals within her.

'We are grateful to Protestants for their loyalty to our wishes, although most of them are, in the sincerity of their faith, unaware of their loyalty to us. We are grateful to them for the wonderful help they are giving us in our fight against the stronghold of Christian civilisation, and in our preparations for the advent of our supremacy over the whole world.

'So far we have succeeded in overthrowing most of the thrones of Europe. The rest will follow in the near future. Russia has already worshipped our rule. France is under our thumb. England, in her dependence upon our finance, is under our heel; and in her Protestantism is our best hope for the destruction of the Catholic Church. Spain and Mexico are but toys in our hands. And many other countries, including the United States of America, have already fallen before our scheming.

'But the Catholic Church is still alive. We must destroy her without the least delay and without the slightest mercy. Most of the Press of the world is under our control. Let us intensify our activities. Let us spread the spirit of revolution in the minds of the people.

'They must be made to despise patriotism and the love of their family, to consider their faith as a humbug, their obedience to the Church as a degrading servility, so that they may become deaf to the appeal of the Church and blind to her warnings against us. Let us, above all, make it impossible for Christians outside the Catholic Church to be reunited with her, or for non-Christians to join the Church; otherwise our domination over them will never be realised.'

Part Two

Our moral and political world is undermined with passages, cellars, and sewers. Goethe.

The pontificate of Pius XII (1939-58) found the Church in a highly flourishing condition. It was exerting its legitimate effect upon the Western world. More and more people were acquiring a fuller realisation, or at least a glimmering, of the Catholic ideal. In England an average of ten thousand people yearly, and in the United States some seventy thousand in one year alone, were said to have 'gone over' to Rome; and these converts included not a few who could be classified as prominent in various walks of life.

Entire houses of Anglican religious, who had favoured High Church practices, sometimes followed suit. The record number of those training to be priests and nuns promised well for the Church's future. The tide of opposition, resulting from the Reformation was on the turn. The signs of Catholic revival were spreading throughout a most unexpected quarter – the English-speaking world.

Those things, strangely enough, coincided with the rise of Communism, and the widespread collapse of moral and social values that followed the 1939 war. During that war, which left Communism in the ascendant, the Vatican had been one of the few completely neutral centres in the world, which caused it to be adversely criticised by Communists who interpreted that attitude as latent partisanship for the other side; and that criticism was strengthened when the Pope passed sentence of excommunication on Catholics who joined, or in any way aided, the Communist Party.

This was an extension of the warning conveyed by the previous Pope, Pius XI, in his encyclical Quadragesimo Anno: 'No one can be at the same time a sincere Catholic and a Socialist properly so-called.'

Those words had doubtless been written with an eye on continental rather than English-speaking exponents of democracy. But they nonetheless implied condemnation, not only of revolutionary principles, but also of the milder forms of political expression that, when put to the test, encourage subversion.

There it was. The dividing line between Rome and her enemies had been firmly drawn. Both sides had issued their challenge and flourished their blazon. One was inspired by a Messianic though non-religious fervour that promised better things once the existing form of society had been dissolved; the other, secure in its reliance on a supernatural promise which meant that it would not, could not, compromise.

The bishop in question was Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli. Born in 1881, and ordained in 1904, he soon attracted the notice of the Vatican, as a Doctor of Theology and a Professor of Ecclesiastical history. In 1921 he was assigned to the Congregation of Propaganda, and after being consecrated Bishop, in 1935, he entered the diplomatic service of the Church.

His first appointments were in the Balkan, a part of the world that was far from being favourably disposed towards any Catholic influence, as Roncalli discovered. As Apostolic Visitor, or Chargé d'affaires of the Holy See at Sofia, he became involved in diplomatic difficulties with the King, and these took on a more petty, but personal aspect when in 1935, he was transferred as Apostolic Delegate to Istanbul.

There the current fervour for modernisation, under Mustafa Kemal, was in full swing. Some of his laws came down heavily on religion, Islamic as well as Christian, and the wearing of any kind of clerical garb in public was strictly forbidden. The use of ecclesiastical titles was also proscribed.

Roncalli was made to feel that he was in a kind of straitjacket, never really free but watched and spied on, and his moves reported. Any contacts he might have developed were few and far between, and his invariable habit, and the end of the day, was to go home quietly, a foreign and anonymous passer-by.

One evening he felt unusually tired, and without undressing or putting out the light, he flung himself on the bed. On the walls were reminders of his earlier life, the photographs of relatives, and of the village on the Lombardy plain where they had grown up together. He closed his eyes and murmured his usual prayers. In a kind of vision he saw the faces of people, those he had heedlessly passed on the street that day, float out of a mist before him. Among them was the face of an old man with white hair and an olive skin that gave him an almost oriental look.

What followed may have been a dream, or so it appeared to have been, when daylight came. But in the quiet room Roncalli distinctly heard the old man ask: 'Do you recognize me?' And without knowing what prompted him Roncalli answered: 'I do, always.'

His visitor went on: 'I came because you called me. You are on the way, though you still have much to learn. But are you ready?’

Roncalli never experienced the slightest doubt. It had all been prepared for him. He said: ‘I wait for you Master.’

The old man smiled and asked three times if Roncalli would recognized him again; and Roncalli answered three time, that he would.

Even the coming of morning did not make the experience seem unusual. It would, Roncalli knew, be repeated, in a way that would give it no ordinary meaning.

He knew that time had come when he found the same old man waiting outside his lodgings; and he also felt that a more familiar situation had developed, which caused Roncalli to ask if he would join him at table.

The old man shook his head. ‘It is another table we must dine tonight.’ So saying he set off, with Roncalli following, into a quarter of quiet dark streets that the latter had never entered. A narrow opening led to a door at which Roncalli stopped, as if by instinct, while the old man told him to go up and wait for him.

Beyond the entrance was a short staircase, and then another. There was no light but in the almost total darkness there seemed to be voices from above, directing Roncalli’s footsteps to go on. He was brought to a stop by a door, smaller than the others, which was slightly ajar, and Roncalli, pushing that open found himself in a wide room, pentagonal in shape, with bare walls and two large windows that were closed.

There was a big cedar wood table in the centre, shaped like the room. Against the walls were three chairs one holding a linen tunic, three sealed envelopes, and some coloured girdles. On the tables was a silver-hilted sword, the blade of which, in the partial light made by three red candles in a three-branched candelabra, appeared to be flaming. Three other candles in a second branched holder had not been lighted. There was a censer about which were tied coloured ribbons, and three artificial roses, made of flimsy material, and with their stalks crossing each other.

Near the sword and the censer was an open bible, and a quick glance was enough to show that it was open at the Gospel of St. John, telling the mission of John the Baptist, passages which had always held a peculiar fascination for Roncalli. ‘A man appeared from God whose name was John...’ The name John acquires a special significance in secret societies, who make a point of meeting on December 27th, the feast of the Evangelist, and on June 24th, feast day of the Baptist. They frequently refer to the Holy Saints John.

Roncalli heard light footsteps behind him and turned from the table. It was someone he was to hear addressed, as Roncalli had called him, the master. He was wearing a long linen tunic that reached to the ground, and a chain of knots, from which hung various silver symbols, about his neck. He put a white-gloved hand on Roncalli's shoulder. 'Kneel down, on your right knee.'

While Roncalli was still kneeling the Master took one of the sealed envelopes from the chair. He opened it so that Roncalli was able to see that it contained a sheet of blue paper on which was written a set of rules. Taking and opening a second envelope the Master passed a similar sheet to Roncalli who, standing by them, saw it was inscribed with seven questions.

'Do you feel you can answer them?' asked the Master.

Roncalli said that he did, and returned the paper.

The Master used it to light one of the candles in the second holder. 'These lights are for the Masters of the Past¹ who are here among us', he explained.

He then recited the mysteries of the Order in words that seemed to pass into and through Roncalli's mind without remaining there; yet he somehow felt they had always been part of his consciousness. The master then bent over him. 'We are known to each other by the names we choose for ourselves. With that name each of us seals his liberty and his scheme of work, and so makes a new link in the chain. What will your name be?'

The answer was ready. There was no hesitation.

'Johannes', said the disciple. Always ready to his mind, was his favourite Gospel.

The Master took up the sword, approached Roncalli, and placed the tip of the blade upon his head; and with its touch something that Roncalli could only liken to exquisite amazement, new and irrepressible, flowed into every part of his being. The Master sensed his wonder.

'What you feel at this moment, Johannes, many others have felt before you; myself, the Masters of the Past, and other brethren throughout the world. You think of it as light, but it has no name.'

They exchanged brotherly greetings, and the Master kissed the other seven times. Then he spoke in whispers, making Roncalli aware of the signs, gestures that have to be performed, and rites to be carried out daily, at precise moments, which correspond to certain stages in the passage of the sun.

'Exactly at those points, three times each day, our brethren all over the world are repeating the same phrases and making the same gestures. Their strength is very great, and it stretches far. Day after day its effects are felt upon humanity.'

The Master took the remaining sealed envelope, opened it, and read the contents to Johannes. They concerned the formula of the oath, with a solemn undertaking not to reveal the Order's secrets, and to promise to work always for good, and most important of all, to respect the law of God and His ministers (a somewhat ambiguous stipulation in view of what their surroundings implied.)

Johannes appended his name to the paper, together with a sign and a number that the Master showed him. That confirmed his degree and entry into the Order; and once again a feeling of unearthly strength welled through his being.

The master took the paper, folded it seven times, and requested Johannes to place it on the point of the sword. Once again a sudden flame ran down the length of the blade. This was carried over to the candles that were still giving light 'for the Masters of the Past'.

The flames consumed it, and the master scattered the ashes. He then reminded Johannes of the solemnity of the oath he had taken, and how it would convey a sense of freedom, real freedom, that was known in general to the brethren. He then kissed Johannes, who was too overcome to respond by word or gesture, and could only weep.

A few weeks later Johannes (or Roncalli, as we must again continue to call him) was told that he was now sufficiently versed in the Cult to figure in its next conclusive phase – that of entering the Temple.

The master prepared him for what, he never disguised from Roncalli, would be an ordeal; and Roncalli's apprehension increased when he found that no one like himself, an initiate of only the first degree, was allowed to enter the Temple unless a task of great importance was about to be entrusted to him.

What could be ahead for Roncalli? Did the vision of a certain Chair, or throne, take shape in his mind as he made his way to the Temple?

There the brethren were assembled, another indication that Roncalli had been picked for some special mission. On the walls were the mysterious words, Azorth and Tetrammaton. The latter stands for the terrible, ineffable, and unpronounceable name of the creator of the universe, which was said to have been inscribed on the upper face of the cubicle, or foundation stone, in the Holy of Holies in the Temple at Jerusalem.

It figures in the pattern that is used for the evoking of evil spirits, or sometimes as a protection from them, a pattern that is known as the great magic circle is drawn between the two circles, which are composed of endless lines as symbolising eternity, various articles such as a crucifix, some herbs, and bowls of water, which is said to influence evil spirits, are placed.

Also in the temple was a cross, picked out in red and black, and the number 666, the number of the Beast in the Apocalypse. The Secret Societies, aware of the general ignorance regarding them, are now confident enough to show their hand. The American people are being made familiar with the mark of the beast on forms, brands of advertised goods, public notices: and is it mere coincidence that 666 is part of the code used in addressing letters to the British now serving (May 1982) in the South Atlantic (during the war with Argentina)? Those numbers, said to be all-powerful in the working of miracles and magic, are associated with the Solar God of Gnosticism.

The Gnostics, a Sect that flourished in the early Christian centuries, denied the divinity of Christ, disparaged revelation, and believed that all material things, including the body, were essentially evil. They held that salvation could only be achieved through knowledge (their name is derived from the Greek gnosis – knowledge). The Gospel stories they taught are allegories, the key to which is to be found in a proper understanding of Kneph, the sun god, who is represented as a serpent, and who is said to be the father of Osiris, and so the first emanation of the Supreme being, and the Christos of their Sect.

Roncalli, in his final and more elevated role for which the initiation prepared him, was to wear the image of the sun god surrounded by rays of glory, on his glove.

The colours red and black were held in reverence by the Gnostics and have been much in use by the diabolists. They are also the colours of Kali, the divine Mother of Hindu mythology; thus providing one of the several resemblances that occur between deviations from Christianity and pre-Christian cults. It may be noted that they figured on the banners of the International Anarchist Movement, whose prophet was Mikhail Bakunin (1814-1876), a pioneer of libertarianism as opposed to State socialism.

While Roncalli was noting the details of the room the brethren advanced from their places near the walls until they were drawing slowly and almost imperceptibly, closer, and closer to him. When they had formed a chain they pressed forward touching him with their bodies, as a sign that their strength, which had been tried and proven in earlier ceremonies, was being transmitted to him.

He suddenly realised that, without consciously framing them, he was being given words of power that streamed from him in a voice that he failed to recognise as his own. But he was able to see that everything he said was being written down by one who had been referred to as the Grand Chancellor of the Order. He wrote in French. On a sheet of blue paper that bore the heading 'The knight and the Rose.'²

Judging by that and other signs, it would appear that Roncalli was affiliated with the Rose-Croix, the Rosicrucians, a society founded by Christian Rosenkreutz, a German, who was born in 1378. But according to its own claims, 'The Order of the Rose and Cross has existed from time immemorial, and its mystic rites were practiced and its wisdom taught in Egypt, Eleusis, Samothrace, Persia, Chaldea, India, and in far, more distant lands, and thus were handed down to posterity the Secret Wisdom of the Ancient Ages.'

That its origin remains a mystery was emphasised by (Prime Minister) Disraeli, who said of the Society, in 1841, 'Its hidden sources defy research.'

After travelling in Spain, Damascus and Arabia, where he was initiated into Arabian magic, Rosenkreutz returned to Germany and set up his fraternity of the Invisibles. In a building they designated as Domus Sancti Spiritus they followed such varied studies as the secrets of nature, alchemy, astrology, magnetism (or hypnotism as it is better known as), communication with the dead, and medicine.

Rosenkreutz is said to have died at the over-ripe age of 106, and when opened, his tomb which had been lost sight of for many years was found to contain signs and symbols of magic and occult manuscripts.

At first glance, Turkey may seem to be a country off the map, so far as the operations of a secret society are concerned. But in 1911, Max Heindel, founder of the Rosicrucian Fellowship and the Rosicrucian Cosmo-Conception, wrote of that country in a manner that showed it was not escaping the observations of those who work with an eye on the religious, political, and social future. 'Turkey', he said, 'has taken a long stride towards liberty under the Young Turks of the Grand orient.'

During the last few decades we have learnt much, that was previously hidden, about the rites, passwords, and practices of the secret societies. But there are few indications of the way in which they choose, from their mainly inactive rank and file, those who are looked upon as capable of furthering their designs. One of their simple instructions runs: 'You must learn to govern men and dominate them, not by fear but by virtue, that is by observing the rules of the Order.' But an occult writing, which appeared in New York, is rather more explicit: 'Experiments are being made now, unknown off to the subjects themselves ... people in many civilised countries are under supervision, and a method of stimulation and intensification is being applied by which they will bring to the knowledge of the Great Ones themselves a mass of information that may serve as guide to the future of the race.' This was accompanied by a pointed remark that was also a pledge for one who had been judged to be suitable: 'You were long the object of our observation and our study.'³

In the last days of December, 1944, Roncalli was preparing to leave Turkey for Paris, where he had been appointed Papal Nuncio to the Fourth French Republic. The war was still on, and the difference between Right and Left in politics, which had split France, was violently on the surface; and it became soon clear to observers whose judgement was not affected by ecclesiastical titles that Roncalli's innate sympathies were with the Left.

It was on his recommendation that Jacques Maritain was made French Ambassador to the Holy See. Maritain was generally regarded as a world thinker, certainly as one of the most prominent Catholic philosophers. The full impact of his 'integral humanism' had so far been tempered by his Aquinian perspective. But later it was overcome by such contemptuous promulgations as that the social kingship of Christ had been good enough for medieval minds (and Maritain's mentor, Thomas Aquinas, had been a medieval), but not for a people enlightened by such 'instruments' as the French and Bolshevik revolutions.

His status as a Catholic philosopher again causes doubt since, on his own testimony, he had been converted not by any spiritual urge, not by any theological or historical argument, but by the writings of Leon Bloy (1846-1917).

In spite of its flowing musical style, Bloy's writing is hardly the sort of stuff to convert one to Christianity. He identified the Holy Ghost with Satan, and described himself as prophet of Lucifer, whom he pictured as seated on top of the world with his feet on the corners of the earth, controlling all human action, and exercising a fatherly rule over the swarm of hideous human offspring. Compared to this vision of an affable Lucifer, God is seen to be a relentless master whose work will end in final failure when Satan displaces Him as King.

According to his own confession, Bloy was converted to what he and his disciples called 'christianity' by the ravings of a poor prostitute who saw visions, and who after her affair with Bloy, died in a madhouse.

In 1947 Vincent Auriol was named President of the French Republic. He was an anti-Church plotter, one of those hardened anti-clericals who find a natural home on the continent; yet he and Roncalli became, not only cordial associates as their offices demanded, but close friends. This was not due to the Christian charity on one part and to diplomatic courtesy on the other, but to the ceremony that Roncalli had undergone in Istanbul, which established a bond of understanding between the two men.

This was given tangible expression when, in January 1953, Archbishop Roncalli was elevated to Cardinal and Auriol insisted on exercising his traditional right, as the French head of State, to confer the red biretta on the newly created Prince of the Church. This occurred at a ceremony in the Elysée Palace when Roncalli, seated on the chair (loaned by the museum) on which Charles X been crowned, received the plaudits of men who had sworn to bring him and all he stood for into dust, a design in which Roncalli was secretly pledged, though by more devious methods to assist them.

Three days later he was transferred, as Patriarch to Venice; and during the five years he was there he again showed, as in Paris, a certain sympathy for Left-wing ideologies that sometimes puzzled the Italian press.

It was during the pontificate of Pius XII that a number of priests then working in the Vatican became aware that all was not well beneath the surface. For a strange kind of influence not to their liking was making itself felt, and this they traced to a group who had come into prominence as experts, advisers, and specialists, who surrounded the Pope so closely that he was spoken of, half humorously, as being their prisoner.

But those priests who were more seriously concerned set up a chain of investigation, both here and in America, where their spokesman was Father Eustace Eilers, a member of the Passionist Congregation of Birmingham, Alabama. This led to establishing the fact that the Illuminati were making themselves felt in Rome, by means of specially trained infiltrators who came from near the place in Germany where Adam Weishaupt had boasted of his plan to reduce the Vatican to a hollow shell. That the hand of the Illuminati was certainly involved became clearer when Fr. Eilers, who announced that he was publishing those facts, was suddenly found dead, presumably one of those sudden heart attacks that, when dealing with secret societies, so often precede promised revelations.

Pius XII died on October 9, 1958, and on the 29th of that month. Angelo Roncalli, after Cardinals in conclave had voted eleven times, became the two hundred and sixty-second pope of the Catholic Church. He was seventy-seven, but with a build well able to sustain the sixty pounds of ecclesiastical vestments with which he was weighed down for his coronation on November 4th, 1958.

Roncalli's 'election' was a signal for outbursts of welcome, often from the most unexpected quarters, to echo round the world. Non-Catholics, agnostics, and atheists agreed that the College of Cardinals had made an excellent choice, the best, in fact for many years. It lighted upon a man of wisdom, humility, and holiness, who would rid the church of superficial accretions and guide it back to the simplicity of Apostolic times; and last but not least among the advantages that promised well for the future, the new Pope was of peasant stock.

Seasoned Catholics could not account for the warmth and admiration that greeted him as journalists, correspondents, broadcasters, and television crews from almost every country in the world swarmed into Rome. For very little had hitherto been known to the outside world about Angelo Roncalli beyond the fact that he was born in 1881, had been Patriarch of Venice, and that he held diplomatic posts in Bulgaria, Turkey, and France. As for his humble background, there had been peasant popes before. The Church could absorb them as easily as it had her academic and aristocratic Pontiffs.

But the secular world, as evidenced by some of the most 'popular' publications in England, insisted that something momentous had happened in Rome, and that it was only the promise of still greater things to come; while informed Catholics, who for years had pleaded the Church's cause, continued to scratch their heads and wonder. Had some information gone forth, not to them who had always supported religion, but to those who have served up snippets of truth, or no truth at all, to titillate and mislead the public?

An Irish priest who was in Rome at the time said of the clamour for intimate details regarding Roncalli: 'Newspapers, and radio, television, and magazines, simply could not get enough information about the background and career, the family and the doings of the new Holy Father. Day after day, from the close of the conclave to the coronation, from his first radio message to the opening of the Consistory, the remarks and the activities of the new Pope were dealt out in flamboyant detail for all the world to see.'⁴

Speculation was added to interest when it became known that the new Pope wished to be known as John XXIII. Was it in memory of his father, who was named John, or out of respect for John the Baptist? Or was it to emphasise his readiness to outface or even to shock the traditional outlook? John had been a favourite name for many Popes. But why retain the numbering?

For there had been an earlier John XXIII, an anti-pope, who was deposed in 1415. He has a tomb in the baptistry at Florence, and his portrait appeared in the Annuario Pontificio, the Church's yearbook, until recent years. It has since been removed. We know nothing to his credit, for his only recorded achievement, if the word of such a precious reprobate as himself can be believed, was to have seduced more than two hundred women including his sister-in-law.

Meantime there was a general feeling abroad that the Church was approaching a break with the traditional past. It had always evinced a proud refusal to be influenced by its environment. It had been protected, as by some invisible armour, from the fashion of the time. But now it was showing a readiness to undergo a self-imposed reformation as dramatic as that which had been forced upon it in the sixteenth century. To some it was anticipated as a bringing up to date of Christian doctrine, a desirable and inevitable process of re-conversion, in which a deeper and ever expanding catholicity would replace the older and static Catholicism of the past.

Such a change was guardedly foreshadowed in an early statement by John XXIII when he said: 'Through east and west there stirs a wind, as it was born of the spirit arousing the attention and hope in those who are adorned with the name of Christians.'

The words of 'Good Pope John' (how quickly he acquired that complimentary assessment) were not merely prophetic. For they spoke of changes in the once monumental Church that would be initiated by himself.

American collectors of ecclesiastical mementoes would have noticed, soon after Pope John's election, that certain objects were being offered for sale in some of their papers. They were described as copies of the personal cross chosen and sanctioned by John XXIII.

These crosses had nothing to do with the pectoral cross that is worn, suspended from the neck, by every Pontiff and Bishop as a sign of episcopal authority. They are made of gold, ornamented with precious stones, and each one contains a holy relic. Before wearing it the prelate says a prescribed prayer in memory of the Passion, and begs for grace to overcome the wiles of the Evil One throughout the day.

But the cross that was put before the American public, under Roncalli's patronage, had very different associations. For its centre, instead of holding a representation of the crucified Figure, contained the all-seeing Eye of the Illuminati, enclosed in a triangle or pyramid; and these crosses, advertised in The Pilot and The Tablet, the diocesan papers of Brooklyn and of Boston, were, in keeping with the lack of dignity and reverence that was becoming proverbial, on sale at two hundred and fifty dollars each.

Those who understood the meaning of the mystic symbols, and how profoundly they affect us, again had their attention drawn to the sun-face that was depicted on John's glove. It was reminiscent of the design used by pagan sun worshippers; while his gesture of extending a hand, with fingers spread over a congregation, could also be recognised as an invocation to the white moon, part of an esoteric code that has always claimed followers.

To those who think that such suggestions verge on the ridiculous, it need only be pointed out that thousands of sedate, bowler-hatted businessmen have, in the course of furthering their careers, performed rituals and adopted symbols that make the above seem very tame indeed.

To people in general, however, the pyramid, without resigning one jot of its original significance, now passes as a thoroughly respectable and harmless sign. It is merely a decoration. But it is one that goes into general circulation whenever an American one dollar note changes hands.

For on the reverse side of the note is the secret Eye, enclosed in a pyramid, and the date 1776. There are also the words Annuit Coeptis, Novus Ordo Seclorum.

The date 1776 may indicate no more to the unsuspecting than that it was the year of the Declaration of American Independence, drawn up by Thomas Jefferson.

True enough. But what of the symbols, which also figure on the reverse side of the Great Seal of the United States – why choose them? And 1776 was also the year in which Adam Weishaupt founded his brotherhood. And Thomas Jefferson, like his fellow politician Benjamin Franklin, was an ardent Illuminist.

The words quoted above may be translated as meaning: 'He (God) has approved of our undertaking, which has been crowned with success. A new order of the ages is born.'

It has been demonstrated, time and again, that the future of the world is in the hands not of mere politicians, but of those who have the power, occult allied to international financial power, to manipulate events according to their plans; and we of the present time have witnessed the coming of their new order in several departments of life, including the religious, political, and social. Before the current propaganda that emphasises the role of women became popular, the occult authority Oswald Wirth spoke of woman 'not being afraid' to adopt masculine rites and customs, and of how, when she has obtained her full power, men will comply with her directions. That process is being actively carried out before us.

The term 'new' is being propagated as though it necessarily implies a marked improvement in whatever has existed before. It attained political prominence in 1933, the year in which Roosevelt's New Deal was instituted; and it was in that same year that the Illuminati insignia, with the words referring to the 'new order of the ages', appeared on the reverse side of the American dollar bill. Their enactment is now taking shape in the formation of a new One World Order in which, it is anticipated, different nations, races, cultures, and traditions will be absorbed to the point of eventually disappearing.

Part Three

I am certain that when in the Council I pronounced the ritual words 'Exeunt Omnes' (everyone out), one who did not obey was the Devil. He is always there where confusion triumphs, to stir it up and take advantage of it.
Cardinal Pericle Felici, Secretary-General of the Council.

With a truly amazing foresight that was born of confidence, the secret societies had long since made up their minds how they would bring about changes in the claims and character of the Catholic Church, and ultimately its downfall. More than a century ago they recognised that the policy of infiltration, by which their own men were entering the highest places in the ecclesiastical structure, had met with success; and now they could outline the nature of the next stage to be accomplished.

Speaking as one of the arch-plotters who was 'in the know', Giuseppe Mazzini (1805-72) said: 'In our time humanity will forsake the Pope and have recourse to a General Council of the Church.' Mazzini was not immune to the drama of the anticipated situation, and went on to speak of the 'Papal Caesar' being mourned as a victim for the sacrifice, and of an executed termination.

A similar note was struck by Pierre Virion who wrote in Mystere d'Iniquité: 'There is a sacrifice in the offing which represents a solemn act of expiation.... The Papacy will fall. It will fall under the hallowed knife which will be prepared by the Fathers of the last Council.'

A former canon-lawyer, Roca, who had been unfrocked for heresy, was more explicit. 'You must have a new dogma, a new religion, a new ministry, and new rituals that very closely resemble those of the surrendered Church.' And Roca was not merely expressing a hope, but describing a process. 'The divine cult directed by the liturgy, ceremonial, ritual and regulations of the Roman Catholic Church will shortly undergo transformation at an ecumenical Council.'

One evening early in 1959, when he had been Pope for scarcely three months, John XXIII was walking in the Vatican Gardens.

His slow and weighty perambulations under the oaks and horse chestnuts, where Pius IX had ridden on his white mule, were suddenly broken in upon by what he was to call an impulse of Divine Providence, a resolution that reached him from beyond, and whose impact he recognised. A Council – he almost breathed the words – he was to call a General Ecumenical Council of the Church.

Later he said that the idea had not been inspired by any revelation of the Holy Spirit but through a conversation he had with Cardinal Tardini, then Secretary of State, towards the end of the previous year. Their talk had turned on what could be done to present the world with an example of universal peace. But there was still some confusion as to the origin of the thought, for Pope John subsequently said that he framed it himself, in order to let a little fresh air into the Church.

Councils in the past had been called to resolve some crisis in the Church, some burning question that threatened a split or to confuse opinion. But no such question, related to doctrine or discipline, was pressing for an answer in the early part of 1959. The Church was exacting its traditional dues of loyalty, neglect, or antagonism. There appeared to be no need to summon a Council. Why cast a stone into peaceful waters that, sooner or later, were bound to be disturbed by obvious necessity? But Pope John, on January 25th, announced his intention to the College of Cardinals; and the response it evoked in the secular world soon made it clear that this was to be no ordinary Council.

The same measure of unexampled publicity that marked the election of John XXIII, welcomed the plan. It was made to appear a matter of moment not only to the non-Catholic world, but to elements that had always strongly opposed Papal claims, dogma, and practice. But few wondered at this sudden show of interest on the part of agnostics; still fewer would have suspected a hidden motive. And if a small voice expressing doubt managed to be heard, it was soon silenced as preparations for the first session of the Council went ahead.

They occupied two years, and consisted of the drawing up of drafts, or schemas, on decrees and constitutions that might be deemed worthy of change. Each member of the Council, which would consist of Bishops drawn from every part of the Catholic world, and presided over by the Pope or his legate, could vote for the acceptance, or rejection, of the matter discussed; and each was invited to send in a list of debatable subjects.

Some days before the Council opened, it appeared that the authorities responsible for it had been assured that this mainly Catholic affair would be given more than its usual share of normal publicity. A greatly enlarged Press office was set up facing St. Peter's. Cardinal Cicognani officiated at its opening and gave it his blessing; and the gentlemen of the Press poured in.

They included a surprising number of atheistic Communists who arrived, like hunters, expecting to be 'in' at a kill. The Soviet Literary Gazette, which had never before been represented at any religious gathering, took the surprising step of sending a special correspondent in the person of a certain M. Mchedlov, who smoothed his way into Rome by expressing the most heart-felt admiration for the Pope. Two of Mchedlov's fellow-countrymen were there, in the shape of a reporter from the Soviet newsagency Tass, and another from the Moscow periodical which was frankly named Communist. Another prominent member of the Bolshevik clan was M. Adjubei, who, besides being editor of Izvestia, was son-in-law to the Soviet Prime Minister, Khrushchev.

He was given a warm welcome by Good Pope John, who invited him to a special audience at the Vatican. News of this promising reception was sent to Khrushchev, who straightway noted his intention of sending greetings to the Pope on November 25th, 1963, his next birthday. An unknown number of Italians, when they recovered from their surprise at seeing the Head of the Church on friendly terms with its enemies, decided to cast their votes in favour of Communism at the next opportunity.

This resolve was strengthened when a special number of Propaganda, the organ of the Italian Communist Party, helped to swell the chorus of praise for the coming Council. Such an event, it said, would be comparable to the opening of the States General, the curtain raiser to the French Revolution, in 1789. With the same theme in mind, the paper likened the Bastille (which fell in that same year) to the Vatican, which was about to be shaken to its very foundations.

More Left-wing approval came from Jacques Mitterand, Master of the French Grand Orient, who knew that he could safely praise, in advance, Pope John and the effects of the Council in general.

Among the Russian Orthodox observers was the young Bishop Nikodim who, in spite of maintaining a strict religious standing, was apparently free to come and go through the Iron Curtain. Two other Bishops from his part of the world, one Czech and one Hungarian, joined him and Cardinal Tisserant at a secret meeting that was held at a place near Metz, shortly before the Council's first session. Nikodim, a somewhat shady figure, needs to be remembered since he appears later in these pages.

We know now that the Russians dictated their own terms for 'sitting in' at the Council. They intended to use it as a means for broadening their influence in the Western world, where Communism had been condemned thirty-five times by Pius XI, and no less than 123 times by his successor Pius XII. Popes John and Paul VI were to follow suit, but each, as we shall see, with tongue in cheek. It was now Russian policy to see that the Bulls of Excommunication issued against Catholics who joined the Communist Party were silenced, and that no further attack on Marxism would be made at the Council. On both points the Kremlin was obeyed.

The Council, made up of 2,350 Bishops, sixty from Russian-controlled countries, opened on October the 11th, 1962.

They formed an impressive procession, with the greatest array of mitres seen in our time as their wearers passed through the bronze door of St. Peter's; guardians of the Faith, protectors of tradition, on the march; assertive men, confident of their stand, and therefore capable of inspiring confidence, and opposition... Or so they were in appearance. Few who saw them could have guessed that many of those grave and reverend Fathers were, according to the rules of the Church whose vestments they wore, and at whose bidding they had come together, excommunicate and anathema.

With the preliminaries over, the Council members were free to question, discuss, and compare notes as they met at the various coffee bars that had been opened; and already a more sober and reflective mood, distinct from that with which many had greeted the calling of the Council, was passing over the assembly. In some cases it was near disillusionment. It was not only a matter of language, though many different ones were, of course, being spoken. But some of those present seemed to have had little grounding, not only in Latin, but in the essentials of their Faith. Their background was not that of the orthodox, traditional Catholic; and those who were part of that background, and who were familiar with the writings of Heidegger and Jean-Paul Sartre could detect, in the statements and even casual remarks made by all too many prelates, the equivocations and lack of authority habitual to men who are the products of modern thought.

More than that, some let it be known that they did not believe in Transubstantiation, and therefore not in the Mass. But they held firmly by Nietzsche's pride in life, and the deification of human reason, while rejecting the idea of an Absolute, and the concept of creation.

One Bishop from Latin America expressed his bewilderment mildly by saying that many of his fellow prelates 'appear to have lost their faith.' Another was frankly horrified to discover that some to whom he had spoken, and who had but temporarily put aside their mitres, scorned any mention of the Trinity and the Virgin Birth. Their background owed nothing to the Thomist philosophy, and one veteran of the Curia, inured to the firmness of the Roman pavement, made short work of the Council Fathers by summing them up as 'two thousand good-for-nothings'. There were some among the bitterly disillusioned who said they would merely put in a token appearance for a week or two, and then go home.

Representatives from the Middle East recalled a warning that had been uttered by Salah Bitah, the Premier of Syria, when first he heard that the Council was being called. He had reason to believe that the Council was nothing but an 'international plot'. Others supported that definition by producing a book, which had been handed to them on landing at the airport, in which it was said that the Council was part of a plan to destroy the Church's doctrine and practice, then, ultimately, the Institution itself.

The general tone of the Council was soon set, with the 'good-for-nothings', or progressives, as they came to be called, clamouring for modernisation and a revision of values within the Church, and a far less active, and much less vocal opposition, offered by their traditionalist, or orthodox, opponents. The difference between the two sides was stressed at the opening of the first session, when the progressives addressed their own particular message to the world, to ensure that the Council 'started off on the right foot'.

Pope John followed that up by declaring that the ashes of St. Peter were thrilling in 'mystic exaltation' because of the Council. But not all his listeners, and certainly not the conservatives among them, were smiling. Perhaps they already sensed defeat as they looked at some of the Cardinals, Suenens, Lienart, Alfrink, and such prominent theologians as the Dominican Yves Congar, who contributed to French Left-wing papers; the ultra-liberal Schillebeeckx, also Dominican, and Professor of Dogmatic Theology at the University of Nijmegen; and Marie-Dominique Chenu whose writings, as when he said that 'Marx's great analysis enriches both today and tomorrow with his current of thought', had brought a frown to the forehead of Pius XII; all hot in pursuit of progress, and none too careful in the choice of weapons they used to attain it.

Another of those influential figures was Montini, Archbishop of Milan, who drew up and supervised the documents relating to the early stages of the Council. His reputation was increasing daily. He was obviously a man of the future.

The silence of the passive minority, a silence that admitted defeat at the outset, was communicated to Pope John, who put it down to the awe and solemnity inspired by the occasion.

These pages will not attempt to summarise the day-to-day work of the Council. They will instead seek to point out how faithfully the Council fulfilled the purposes of those progressives, liberals, infiltrators (call them what you will), who had brought it into being; and the less efficient, less determined attitude of their opponents.

The former group, made up largely of German-speaking Bishops, had from the first been active behind the scenes. They had audiences with the Pope and discussed changes in the liturgy and other subjects they had in mind. They altered the rules of procedure to suit their policy, and ensured that the various commissions were made up of those who shared their outlook. They distorted, or suppressed, any issue that did not suit their purpose. They blocked the appointment of opponents to any position where their voices might be heard, discarded resolutions that did not please them, and took over the documents on which deliberations were based.

They were supported by the Press, which was, of course, controlled by the same power as that which added fuel to the flames of infiltration. Apart from that, the German Bishops financed their own news agency. And so, in reports that reached the public, the Left-wing Bishops were depicted as honest, brilliant, and men of towering intellect, whereas those in the opposite camp were stupid, feeble, stubborn, and out-of-date. The Left, moreover, had the might of the Vatican behind it, and a weekly newsletter, written by Montini, which set the tone of the way in which debatable issues would be resolved by the Council. His remarks on liturgical reform were popularised by the Press and welcomed by those who wished to see the Mass reduced to the level of a meal between friends.

On looking back at this time of day, one is forced to wonder at the negligence, or weakness, with which their traditional or orthodox opponents confronted moves that, to men of their profession, threatened the very purpose of their existence. They were not ignorant of what had been planned, and of what was then going on. They knew that a forceful Fifth Column, many of them mitred members of the hierarchy, were working for the downfall of the Western Church. But they did nothing beyond observing protocol, and overcoming whatever resentment they felt by an inbred obedience. It was almost as though (allowing that morality was on their side) they wished to exemplify the saying: 'Good men are feeble and tired; it is the blackguards who are determined.'

A factor that helped to decide the situation was that of age. Most of the Council Fathers belonging to the old traditional school had passed their prime; and they now, like Cardinal Ottaviani, whose name had once been weighty in the Curia, counted for little more than an almost despised rearguard. An unconscious recognition of this was made by another of their number, the aged Bishop of Dakar, who shook his head over the dictatorial method by which the modernists, even in the preliminary stages of the Council, swept all before them. 'It was', he said, 'organised by a master mind.'

For their part, the modernists were frankly contemptuous of everything mooted by the orthodox elements in the Council. When one of their propositions came up for tentative discussion, one 'updated' Council Father declared that those who put it forward 'deserved to be shot to the moon.' But even so the Russian observers, despite early signs that the Council was prepared to toe the Communist line, were not wholly satisfied, though John XXIII was praised for maintaining his independence, and for not becoming a cats-paw of the Right.

But the Tass correspondent regretted the presence of too many 'obvious reactionaries' in the assembly, a sentiment that was echoed by M. Mchedlov who added: 'So far the die-hard conservatives have failed to carry the day. They have not succeeded in turning the Church into a tool of their reactionary propaganda.'

Between the ending of the first session of the Council on the 1st of December 1962, and the opening of the second session on September the 29th of the following year, Pope John, after a protracted illness, breathed his last on the evening of Monday, June the 3rd, 1963; and every form of publicity, which over the past weeks had delivered a breath-by-breath account of the death-bed in Rome, again swung into action to extol a man who had faithfully served the purpose for which he had been given the occupancy of Peter's Chair, and set in motion a series of events that were directed to fulfil, at the expense of the Church, a large part of the aims determined by secret societies over the centuries.

A prominent member of the conspiracy that had fostered John XXIII, the ex-doctor of Canon Law, Roca, commented drily: 'The old Pope, having broken the silence and started the tradition of the great religious controversy, goes to his grave'; while a revealing tribute, which should open the eyes of anyone who still finds offence in the mention of a plot, was written by Charles Riandey, a sovereign Grand Master of secret societies, in his preface to a book by Yves Marsaudon¹, State Minister of the Supreme Council of French secret societies: 'To the memory of Angelo Roncalli, priest, Archbishop of Messamaris, Apostolic Nuncio in Paris, Cardinal of the Roman Church, Patriarch of Venice, Pope under the name of John XXIII, who has deigned to give us his benediction, his understanding, and his protection' (my emphasis).

A second preface to the book was addressed to 'his august continuer, His Holiness Pope Paul VI'.

Never before had the passing of a Pope, in the person of John XXIII, been so extensively covered. Tough reporters wept at the news. The fingers of sensation-hardened columnists fumbled over their typewriter keys. Only a very few, who knew what had happened in the dark room in Istanbul, stood with heads unbowed and with minds uncluttered by propaganda, reflecting that Angelo Roncalli had indeed, as the pious used to say, 'gone to his reward'.

The question of his successor was never seriously in doubt. The calling of a conclave was little more than a formality. The same voices that had eulogised the Rosicrucian John XXIII now clamoured for Montini, Montini of Milan. Anglicans, who had no time for a Pope of any or of no policy whatever, agreed that Montini was the man.

He had, in fact, been prepared and coached for the office by Pope John, who created Montini his first Cardinal, whereas Pius XII had always withheld the red hat from one whom he knew to be pro-Communist. Montini had been the only non-resident Cardinal whom John invited to live in the Vatican, where they exchanged intimate and unofficial talks over the results they both anticipated from the Council; and Pope John packed the College of Cardinals to ensure that Montini, as his successor, would continue to promulgate the heretical decrees that they both favoured.

The most spirited protests against the election were made by Joaquin Saenz Arriaga, Doctor of Philosophy and of Canon Law, who scented danger in the fact that a large part of Montini's support came from secular commentators who were not concerned with the welfare, but with the downfall of the Church. Some of his credentials and qualifications were said to have been exaggerated, or false.

However, the decision of a conclave, established by usage, could not be questioned; and Montini, who took the name of Paul VI, was elected on June the 23rd, 1963.

Giovanni Battista Montini was one of those socialists who, although born in far from humble circumstances themselves, are quick to resent the slightest sign of privilege in others. He was born on September 26th, 1897, in Northern Italy, into a highly professional family (of likely Hebrew origin) that, more than a century before, had been accepted into the annals of Roman nobility.

His father, Giorgi Montini, a prominent Christian Democrat, in all probability belonged to a secret society, which would partly account for his son's later commitment. Showing early signs of wishing to enter the Church, the young Giovanni was of such a delicate constitution that he was allowed to study at home instead of at a seminary, which left him free to develop social and political trends that were not those of a normally trained and disciplined servant of the Church.

By the time he entered upon his first regular appointment as a university chaplain in Rome he was an established man of the Left. But that did not prevent his steady and undoubted ability to rise in a conservative atmosphere, and he became acting Vatican Secretary of State under Pius XII.

Montini had long been an admirer of the works of the philosopher Jacques Maritain, whose system of 'Integral Humanism', with its rejection of authoritarian and dogmatic belief in favour of a worldwide fraternity which would include non-believers, had earned the approval of John XXIII. Man, according to Maritain, was essentially good, an outlook that made him less responsive to the vital distinction that exists between man-made secular forms of existence and the demands made by belief in the divine nature of Christ and of the Church.

Both Maritain and Montini rejected the traditionalist view of the Church as the one means of attaining true world unity. It might have appeared so in the past, but now a new world, more sensitive to and capable of solving social and economic problems, had come into existence. And Montini, whom Maritain regarded as his most influential disciple, spoke for all of their persuasion when he said: 'Do not be concerned with church bells. What is necessary is that priests are able to hear the factory sirens, to understand the temples of technology where the modern world lives and thrives.' There is a document the contents of which, so far as I know, have seldom if ever been made available to the public. It is dated September the 22nd, 1944, after having been reported on the previous August 28th, and based on information given on July 13th of the same year. It is now among the records of the Office of Strategic Services, which later became the Central Intelligence Office, the CIA.²

It is headed: 'Togliatti and the Vatican make first direct contact', and deals with the plans for social and economic revolutions that were being worked out between the Church and one of its most consistent enemies, the Communist Party.

Here it is quoted: 'On July 10th, at the house of a Christian Democrat Minister, the acting Vatican Secretary of State, Monsignor Giovanni Montini, conferred with Togliatti, Communist Minister without Portfolio, in the Bonomi Government. Their conversation reviewed the grounds out of which have grown the understanding between the Christian Democratic and the Communist Parties.

'Since his arrival in Italy, Togliatti had private meetings with politicians of the Christian Democratic Party. These contacts constituted the political background of Togliatti's speech at the Teatro Brancaccio on Sunday, July 9th, and account for the warm reception the speech received from the Catholic Press.

'Through leaders of the Christian Democratic Party, Togliatti was able to convey to the Vatican his impression of Stalin's opinion on religious freedom, as now accepted by Communism, and of the democratic character of the agreement between Russia and the Allied nations. On the other hand, the Holy See reached Togliatti through the same means, and expressed its opinion regarding the future agreement with Soviet Russia on the matter of Communism in Italy, as well as in other nations.

'The discussion between Monsignor Montini and Togliatti was the first direct contact between a high prelate of the Vatican and a leader of Communism. After having examined the situation, they acknowledged the practical possibility of a contingent alliance between Catholics and Communists in Italy, which should give the three parties (Christian Democrat, Socialist, and Communist) an absolute majority, thereby enabling them to dominate any political situation.

'A tentative plan was drafted to form the basis on which an agreement between the Christian Democrat Party and the Communist and Socialist Parties could be made. They also drafted a plan of the fundamental lines along which a practical understanding between the Holy See and Russia, in their new relations, could be created.'

To sum up, Montini informed Togliatti that the Church's antiCommunist stand should not be considered as something lasting, and that many in the Curia wished to enter into talks with the Kremlin.

These meetings with the enemy displeased Pius XII, who came to eye his Secretary of State with a growing disfavour; and Montini, for his part, searched for a chink in the Pope's armour. He found one in the fact that Pius had secured lucrative posts for some of his nephews; and Montini played upon this evidence of Papal nepotism for all it was worth, much to the delight of his socialistic, anti-clerical comrades.

Pius responded by dismissing Montini from his confidential post, and sending him north as Archbishop of Milan. That office had previously been filled, as of right, by a Cardinal; but there was no red hat, until 1958, for Montini.

There he was free to make full play with his political sympathies, which came to shift more obviously to the Left. Some of his writings, which appeared in the diocesan paper, L'Italia, made some of his priests wary of their superior, and before long more than forty of them withdrew their subscriptions to the paper. But their disapproval meant little or nothing to Montini who, with Maritain in the background, had come upon a more active supporter of his ultra-liberal opinions.

This was Saul David Alinsky, a typical representative of the agitator type who affect to nurse a deep-seated grievance against the capitalistic circles in which they are always careful to move, and on whose bounty they flourish.

Montini was so impressed by Alinsky's brand of revolutionary teaching – he was known as the Apostle of Permanent Revolution – that the two spent a fortnight together, discussing how best to bring the demands of the Church, and those of the Communist unions, into line with each other. It must be remarked that Alinsky was as singularly fortunate in his personal relations as he was in his financial backers. For at the end of their talks Montini declared that he was pleased to call himself one of Alinsky's best friends; while Jacques Maritain, in a mood that revealed the softening up process that his philosophic outlook must have undergone, said that Alinsky was one of the 'few really great men of the century.'

One of Alinsky's rich backers – and this advocate of the class warfare had several, including such odd combinations as the Rockefeller foundation and the Presbyterian Church – was the millionaire Marshall Field. This latter contact had served as a further aid to strengthen Alinsky's image in Montini's eyes, since Marshall Field, who had published a Communist newspaper, sponsored various subversive movements, and had waltzed his way through two divorce courts and three matrimonial cases, had remained a faithful son of the Church – his bank balance saw to that – and was an intimate friend of Bishop Shiel of Chicago.

At the same time Montini established a relationship, at first merely business, that was to have far reaching effects throughout much of Italy, including the Vatican, in the not too distant future. In the course of dealing with the complicated financial affairs of the Church he encountered a shady character, Michele Sindona, who was running a tax consultant's office (that at least was part of his many-sided operations) in Milan.

Sindona was a Sicilian, born in 1917, a product of the heterogeneous Jesuit training, who was studying law when British and American troops invaded the island during the second world war. Another scourge that the war enabled to renew itself in Sicily was the Mafia. Driven underground by Mussolini, it had since emerged, with its proverbially strong American support and an obliging hand provided by President Roosevelt who, like practically every one of the American presidents since the time of Washington (himself an Illuminatus) was an active supporter of secret society ramifications. One of Roosevelt's several titles was Knight of Pythias, which proclaimed membership of a society based on the mythical pair of pagans, Damon and Pythias; while he was also a wearer of the red fez as one of the Ancient Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

Sindona thrived on the ugly conditions engendered by the Mafia and the war. He obtained a truck, and made a good living by peddling oddments and minor necessities to the troops. It is doubtful whether, as some say, he took part in lodging information against the Germans, and helping to sabotage their positions. But he soon became one with the gangster element surrounding the American army commanders, who made their rounds in a luxury car presented to them, in return for services rendered, by the Mafia.

Protected and patronised by the Allies, Sindona was soon at the head of a flourishing black market racket; and when the war ended, following the trail of those who had sharpened his appetite for money, he turned his back upon the indigent south and went to Milan, where he met an apt collaborator in the Archbishop.

Montini's coming to power was marked by the arrival in Rome of people who fairly dismayed the more conventional lookers-on at Vatican ceremonial; and since the Roman nature is too sharp for simple hypocrisy, they more than sniffed disapproval of the pimpish publicity men, pseudo-artists of every type, out-of-conscience clerics, and miscellaneous hangers-on who flocked south and pitched their metaphorical tents under the shadow of St. Peter's cupola.

Rome, Montini's critics declared, was again being invaded by barbarians from the north. Others said it was the Mafia. They were not far wrong. For among the new arrivals was Michele Sindona, no longer trundling a barrow, but lolling in a shiny chauffeur-driven car and doubtless appraising the Papal and imperial monuments he passed with the eye of a businessman.

Pope John, speaking for the Council he had called and referring to its purpose, had said: 'Our greatest concern is that the sacred deposit of Catholic doctrine should be guarded.' The Church must never depart 'from the sacred patrimony of truth received from the Fathers.'

There was nothing strange or revolutionary in that. So much had been taken for granted from generation to generation. But as the Council got underway the Pope changed his tune, and spoke of the Church not being concerned with the study of old museums or symbols of thought from the past. 'We live to advance. We must evermore move forward. The Christian life is not a collection of ancient customs'; and Pope Paul, not many hours after being elected, announced his intention of consolidating and implementing his predecessor's Council, and in a way, as we shall see, that endorsed the second of Pope John's statements.

So far as the general reader is concerned, the most outstanding result achieved by the Council was the changed relationship between atheistic Communism and the Church; and the fact that such a surprising turnabout was effected shows that Mazzini and his fellow conspirators had not miscalculated when, so many years before, they had pinned their hopes of fatally undermining the Church on a General Council. It also illustrates the methods employed by those who, however exalted their ecclesiastical titles, were first and foremost the endorsers of the secret revolutionary creed.

The schema on Communism was welcomed by the Polish Cardinal Wyszyński, who had had personal experience of life behind the Iron Curtain. Six hundred Council Fathers supported him, and 460 signed a petition requesting that condemnation of the atheistic materialism, that was enslaving part of the world, should be renewed.

Yet when the Commission's report on the Church in the modern world was made known, the substance of the petition was not referred to; and when those responsible for it pressed for an explanation, they were told that only two votes had been cast against Communism.

But what, asked some of the astonished and disappointed signatories, had happened to the much greater number who had favoured the petition? They were informed that the matter had not been brought to the notice of all the Council Fathers, since some 500 of them had gone to Florence, where celebrations in honour of Dante were being held.

Still not satisfied, those who had been so obviously outmanoeuvred pressed the Jesuit Robert Tucci, a prominent member of the appropriate Commission, for an explanation. Their suspicions were groundless, he told them. There had been no bargaining, no back-stairs intrigue. It could only mean that the petition had 'run into a red light on the way', and so had come to a standstill. Another explanation was that the intervention had not arrived within the prescribed time limit, and so had escaped notice.

The argument went on, with two of the Council Fathers declaring that they had personally delivered the signed intervention to the General Secretariat on time; and when that was proved to be correct, there was a climb-down on the part of those who had so far blocked the condemnation of Communism.

Archbishop Garonne of Toulouse was called in to square matters, and he admitted the timely arrival of the petition, together with negligence on the part of those who should have transmitted the matter to members of the Commission. Their failure to do so meant that the petition had not been examined. But there was more inconsistency even on the part of those who admitted error. The Archbishop said that 332 interventions had been handed in. Another quoted the number of 334, but that was also contradicted when it was announced that the total to arrive on time had been 297.

There was one more attempt on the part of those who wished the Church's original condemnation of Communism to be reaffirmed. It figured as a request to check the names of the 450 prelates who had signed the petition. But that was turned down. The petition had been added to the collected documents relating to the case, and they were simply not available. So, as in all such matters, the traditionalists lost heart. Their cause flickered out and the modernists, confident as ever, remained in possession of the field.

Their victory, and that of the secret societies who manipulated the Council, had been pre-figured by Cardinal Frings, one of the German-speaking consortium, when he said that any attack on Communism would be stupid and absurd, sentiments that were echoed by the internationally controlled Press. And at the same time, as though to cast light on the far reaching surrender made by the Church to its enemy (which many people, a few years back, would have judged unthinkable), Josef Cardinal Beran, the exiled Archbishop of Prague who was then living in Rome, received a cutting from a Czecho-Slovakian paper.

In it, one of their political creed boasted that Communists had been able to infiltrate all the Commissions that were steering the course of the Council; a claim that was well borne out when tactics similar to those described were employed, with equal success, at every stage of the sittings.

A typical instance was during the debate on the Religious Orders. Right-wing speakers, who had previously made known their intention to speak, were not allowed the use of the microphone. But it was made available to their opponents of the Left whose names had only been handed in that morning. Those indignant at having been silenced pressed for an official investigation. It was denied them, whereupon they demanded to see the prelate who had acted as Moderator on the occasion, Cardinal Dopfner. But he was not available, having gone to Capri for a long weekend.

When they succeeded in gaining an interview the Cardinal apologised, and then coolly asked them to resign their right to speak. That was naturally turned down, whereupon the Cardinal promised to read aloud a summary of the speeches they had prepared. But those who gathered in the Council Hall could hardly recognise the versions they heard. They had been considerably shortened, their meaning was confused and, in some cases, falsified. Then, after the manner of their kind, the objectors gave up, defeated by their own lethargy – or was it by the shifts and persistence of those who had come to the Council with a set purpose and a pattern that was being repeated again and again throughout the sessions?

On a day late in October the attention of the Council was concentrated on a figure who rose to speak. He was Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani, one of the ablest members of the Curia, who carried with him a sense of the great days of Pius XII, on which account he was respected by some, and feared or disliked by others. Some shrank from his glance, which, said his enemies, was due to his possessing the evil eye. His stare could indeed be disconcerting, since he had been born in the poverty-stricken Trastevere quarter, where an eye disease, which had raged unattended, had afflicted many, and now, at seventy odd years, he was nearly blind.

When he rose the progressives in the Council exchanged meaning looks. They knew what was coming. He was about to criticise the new form of the Mass, the work of Monsignor Annibale Bugnini (which we propose to look at a little more closely later). Acclaimed by the progressives, and deplored by the traditionalists as a fatal innovation, it had brought about a deeper rift within the Council than any other topic.

There was no doubt in anyone's mind as to the side on which Ottaviani would be ranged, and his first words made that clear: 'Are we seeking to stir up wonder, perhaps scandal, among the Christian people, by introducing changes in so venerable a rite, that has been approved by so many centuries, and is now so familiar? The rite of Holy Mass should not be treated as if it were a piece of cloth to be refashioned according to the whim of each generation...

The time limit for speakers was ten minutes. The finger of Cardinal Alfrink, who had charge of the proceedings, was on the warning bell. This speaker was over earnest, and what he had to say was displeasing to many. The ten minutes passed. The bell rang, and Cardinal Alfrink signalled to a technician who switched off the microphone. Ottaviani confirmed what had happened by tapping the instrument. Then, totally humiliated, he stumbled back to his seat, feeling with his hands and knocking against the woodwork as he went. There were those among the Council Fathers who sniggered. Others clapped.

These pages are not intended to be concerned with Papal authority. But it has to be dealt with, however briefly, as those who may still doubt the secret society involvement, and the degree of power with which I have invested it, may point to the fact that one of their most extreme claims, 'The Papacy will fall', has not been borne out. For the Papacy is still in existence.

In existence, yes. But it has yielded place to a spirit of collectivism that would never have been credited in the days when Peter and his successors, by virtue of the authority vested in Peter by Christ, were known to have been given supreme jurisdiction over the Church.

Even while the Council was still in session many of its members, led by the Bishop of Baltimore, were negating the doctrine of Papal infallibility which, by relating specifically to faith and morals, was much more restricted than many think; and similar moves elsewhere led to its replacement by a new and clumsy definition – the Episcopal Collegiality of the Bishops.

Such a delegation of authority has now come about. More responsibility has passed to the Bishops, and the general acceptance of such a change has been followed by a corresponding decline in the Papal monopoly of power.

That may be no more than a first step towards the fulfilment of the confident boast: 'The Papacy will fall.'

Annibale Bugnini, created Titular Archbishop of Diocletiana by Paul VI in 1972, had every reason to be pleased. His life-long service to the Church in the field of liturgical studies and reform had been rewarded. He was now, as Secretary to the Commission for the implementation of the Constitution on the Liturgy, a key figure in the revolution which had been pending for the past thirteen years. Even before the opening of the Second Vatican Council he had been bidding fair to play a decisive part in the future of the Church, much of which hinged upon the Mass, for which he had compiled new rites and a new order 'as a sign of further progress to come.'

His work entailed a reform of liturgical books and the transition from Latin to the vernacular, all to be achieved by easy stages that would not alarm the unsuspecting. The imposition of new and different rules was being accomplished so successfully that Cardinal Villot, one of their promulgators, could state that no fewer than a hundred and fifty changes were, after only twelve months, already in circulation; while as to the outdated stipulation that 'the use of Latin will be kept in the Latin rites', Mass was already being said in thirty-six dialects, in patois, even in a kind of everyday slang.

Bugnini had, in fact, with the approval of Paul VI, put into practice Luther's programme, in which it had been recognised that 'when the Mass is destroyed, the Papacy will have been toppled, for the Papacy leans on the Mass as on a rock.' It was true that an orthodox opponent, Dietrich von Hildebrand, had called Bugnini 'the evil spirit of liturgical reform.' But no such consideration figured in the Archbishop's mind as, on a day in 1975, he left a conference room where he had attended a meeting of one of the Commissions where he had a voice, and started to climb a staircase. Suddenly he stopped. His hands, which should have been carrying a brief case, were empty. The case, containing many of his papers, had been left in the conference room. Never one to hurry, for he was a heavy man and needed exercise, he now fairly ran back and cast his eye over the chairs and tables. The brief case was nowhere to be seen.

As soon as the meeting broke up, a Dominican friar had gone in to restore the room to order. He soon noticed the brief case, and had opened it in the hope of finding the name of its owner. He put aside the documents relating to the Commission, and had then come upon a folder that contained letters.

Sure enough, there was the name of the person to whom they had been sent, but – and the Dominican gasped – the mode of address was not to His Grace or to the Most Reverend Annibale Bugnini, Archbishop of Diocletiana, but to Brother Bugnini, while the signatures and place of origin showed that they came from the dignitaries of secret societies in Rome.

Pope Paul VI who was, of course, tarred with the same brush as Bugnini, promptly took steps to prevent the scandal spreading, and to smooth over the dismay of those progressives who, innocent of guile, had no opinion other than that dictated by the media. Bugnini should have been removed, or at least taken to task. But he was, instead, for the sake of appearances, appointed Apostolic Pro Nuncio in Iran, a post where there was little or no call for diplomatic embellishment since the Shah's government had no time for any Western religion, and where the priest who was unfortunate enough to be banished there, though only for a time, found his function as limited as his surroundings, which consisted of scanty furniture in two rooms in an otherwise empty house.

The unmasking of Bugnini was carried a step further when the Italian writer, Tito Casini, who was troubled over the changes in the Church, made it known in The Smoke of Satan, a novel that was published in April 1976. Then came the expected denials and evasions. A Vatican source declared that the reasons for Bugnini's removal had to remain secret, though, it was admitted, the motives that prompted it had been 'more than convincing'. Le Figaro issued a denial of any secret society connection on Bugnini's behalf. The Catholic Information Office belied its title by professing total ignorance of the case. Archbishop Bugnini more than once denied any secret society affiliation. All of which appears very futile since the Italian Register reveals that he joined one of the societies on April the 23rd, 1963, and that his code name was Buan.

On the 8th day of December, 1965, Pope Paul confronted the assembled Bishops, raised both arms high in the air, and announced: 'In the name of Our Lord Jesus Christ, go in peace.'

The Second Vatican Council was over; and those who heard Pope Paul gave vent to the feelings of victory, or defeat, that had sprung up among them during the meetings.

The conservatives were resentful, indignant, and hinted of a counter-offensive that was never to be mounted. They agreed among themselves that the Church's progress had been halted by a move that was both unwise and unnecessary. One of their spokesmen, Cardinal Siri, spoke of resistance. 'We are not going to be bound by these decrees'; but the decrees were, in fact, implemented, as Pope Paul had promised, to the growing bewilderment of Catholics for whom the Church, now a prey to novelties and disorders, had lost its note of authority.

The liberals or progressives, secure in having brought the designs of the secret societies to a successful conclusion, were exultant. The Council, said the Swiss theologian Hans Kung, had more than fulfilled the dreams of the avant-garde. The entire world of religion was now permeated by its influence, and no member of the Council 'would go back home as he had come'. 'I myself', he continued, 'never expected so many bold and explicit statements from the Bishops on the Council floor.'

In a similar mood the Dominican Yves Congar, a life-long Left-winger, announced that past failures in the Church had been brought about by its being imbued with the spirit of Latin-Western culture. But that culture, he was glad to announce, had had its day.

The most extreme reformer, Cardinal Suenens, executed a mental war-dance of triumph. He looked back to the Council of Milan, held in 313, by which the Emperor Constantine gave complete toleration to Christians, and made their faith equal to what, until then, had been the official State religion. That decree had always been a landmark in Church history. But now the Belgian primate who was known to his fellow conspirators as Lesu, could throw all such epoch-making reminders overboard. He was on the winning side. He bid defiance to those who differed from him. 'The age of Constantine is over!' Moreover, he claimed he would be able to draw up an impressive list of theses that, having been taught in Rome yesterday, had been believed, but at which the Council Fathers had snapped their fingers.

These danger signs were recognised by Malachi Martin, formerly a Jesuit and Professor at the Pontifical Biblical Institute in Rome. 'Well before the year 2,000', he said, there will no longer be a religious institute recognisable as the Roman Catholic and Apostolic Church of today... There will be no centralised control, no uniformity in teaching, no universality in practice of worship, prayer, sacrifice, and priesthood.'

Can one detect the first signs of this in the Anglican-Roman Catholic International Commission's report published in March, 1982?

A more precise assessment of the post-Conciliar period than that made by Malachi Martin appeared in the American Flag Committee Newsletter, 1967. Commenting on the 'most marked and rapid deterioration in the Vatican's anti-Bolshevik resolve' since the time of Pius XII, it goes on to say that in less than a decade the Church has been transformed 'from an implacable foe of Communism into an active and quite powerful advocate of co-existence both with Moscow and Red China. At the same time, revolutionary changes in its centuries-long teachings have moved Rome closer and closer, not to traditional Protestantism as many Catholic laymen suppose, but to that humanistic neo-paganism of the National and World Council of Churches.'

But if the Council accomplished nothing else, it enabled the caterers to flourish. For some half-a-million cups of coffee were disposed of at the bars.

Part Four

The Devil has recovered his citizenship rights in the Republic of culture.
Giovanni Papini.

Publicity flared to its maximum coverage when it was announced, in the summer of 1965, that Pope Paul would visit New York later that year in order to address the United Nations Assembly. It was heralded as an event of the utmost importance that would surely bring results that could not be lost upon the world; but there was also some speculation as to why non-Catholic, and even antiCatholic quarters, were giving rise to much the same bursts of excitement that had marked the election of John XXIII.

Could it be that the same power was pulling wires, behind the scenes, to influence the tone of the Press, radio, and television? We have already assessed, to some extent, the character and the leanings of Paul VI. Let us now glance at the formation and the make-up of the United Nations.

It was primarily Communist in tone, its charter, signed in 1943, being based upon the Constitution of Soviet Russia, while its purpose and principles were decided at a conference of Foreign Ministers held in Moscow.

The secretaries of the United Nations' Security Council, between the years 1946 and 1962, were Arkady Sobelov and Eugeny Kiselev, both Communists. A leading figure of the United Nations' Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) was Vladimir Mailmovsky, Communist. The chief secretary for UNESCO was Madame Jegalova, Communist; while the President, Vice-President, and nine judges of the 'World Court' were all Communists.

Yet these were typical of the people on whom Paul VI lavished praise, and to whom he looked for the salvation of the world; while the Press and radio, subject to the same international control as the United Nations, continues to speak of that body as being worthy of respect.

Posing as strictly neutral, and with the declared intention of promoting world peace, it soon showed a definite bias in favour of Communist-inspired guerrilla movements whose object, in several parts of the world, was the overthrow of established governments. This was done under the guise of liberating people from oppression; but the ultimate design of the Assembly, then as now, was to set up a totalitarian system in which national sovereignty and cultures would disappear.

Incidental to this, as was made plain by the secondary social and economic organisations that sprang from the Assembly, would be a virtual censorship whose voice was predominantly atheist. For it had been noted that the more orthodox countries such as Italy, Austria, Spain, Portugal, and Ireland, were excluded from the Assembly's original foundation; whereas Bolshevist Russia, from its permanent seat on the Security Council, possessed a veto that could reduce the decisions of the Assembly to a mere expression of words, without effect; a judgment that may fairly be passed on all the deliberations of the United Nations from the day of its founding to the present.

More concrete evidence for these strictures may be adduced when we look at the record of a professional criminal who came to occupy a leading place, by way of the United Nations, in European life. He was Meyer Genoch Moisevitch Vallakh, or Wallach, who, before the 1914 war, emerged from the stormy background of Russian political life as a 'wanted' figure who found it safer, and more rewarding, to extend his activities to countries that were, so far, less disturbed.

Working under a variety of names, including Buchmann, Maxim Harryson, Ludwig Nietz, David Mordecai, and Finkelstein, he came into the limelight in Paris in 1908, when he took a hand in robbing the Tiflis Bank of two hundred and fifty thousand roubles. He was deported, but soon afterwards was in trouble again for dealing in stolen banknotes.

His chance came in 1917, when the Russian Revolution brought him and his kind to the surface. Now, under the respectable pseudonym of Maxim Litvinoff, he became Soviet Commissioner for Foreign Affairs. His next step was to the Presidency of the Council of the League of Nations. He then arrived in London as Soviet ambassador to the Court of St. James, and as such became a familiar and influential figure in royal and diplomatic circles.

As further evidence of the downward slide in our public and political affairs, it may be noted that the first Secretary-General of the United Nations was Alger Hiss, who had been convicted of perjury in the American courts. He took a prominent part in shaping the United Nations' Charter on Russian-Communist lines.

These considerations, however, did not weigh heavily with the faithful, who thought that the Pope's address and appearance, before a world audience, would be a golden opportunity for the advancement of Papal teaching. It would burst upon the doubting and insecure world with a certainty that it had never before experienced. Many listeners, for the first time in their lives, would be brought face to face with the reality of religion. It was only the Church that had anything really important to say, that could add spiritual significance to the routine of daily life.

Some half-a-century before, Pius X had issued directions and indicated guide-lines that were everywhere and at all times relevant. But his audience had been as necessarily limited as his means to make himself heard. Now it was for Pope Paul to echo the words of his predecessor, but this time to an almost universal congregation that could be reached through the medium of the United Nations.

Pius had said: 'There is no need for me to point out that the advent of world democracy can have no relevancy to the work of the Church in the world the reform of civilisation is essentially a religious task, for true civilisation presupposes a moral foundation, and there can be no morally based foundation without true religion this is a truth which can be demonstrated from the evidence of history.'

But Pope Paul had no intention of endorsing what Pius had said. For instead of a religious leader speaking on October 4th, 1965, it might have been a disciple of Jean Jacques Rousseau holding forth on the deification of human nature that, finding expression in the declaration of the Rights of Man on August 12th, 1789, ushered in the French Revolution.

The Rights of Man, that were enthusiastically defined as being vested in Liberty, Equality, and Fraternity, led to the Cult of Man and man's elevation in place of God; from which it followed that all religious forms, and institutions such as rulership, family life, and the holding of private property, were denigrated as being parts of the old order that was on the point of passing.

When the effects of the Second Vatican Council became apparent, Doctor Rudolf Gruber, Bishop of Regensburg, was led to observe that the main ideas of the French Revolution, 'which represents an important element in Lucifer's plan', were being adopted in many spheres of Catholicism. And Pope Paul, speaking direct to a battery of microphones that carried to the world, gave ample evidence of this.

He made no reference to spiritual claims or the importance of religion. 'Behold the day we have awaited for centuries.... This is the ideal that mankind has dreamt of in its journey through history.... We would venture to call it the world's greatest hope.... It is your task here', he told the members of the Assembly, 'to proclaim the basic rights and duties of Man.... We are conscious that you are the interpreters of all that is permanent in human wisdom; we could almost say of its sacred character.'

Man had now come of age, and was qualified to live by a philosophic morality that, owing nothing to authority, was created by himself. The United Nations, destined to play the leading role in the world, was 'the last hope of mankind'. So it was to secular structures that man must look for the stability and redemption of humanity; in a word, to himself; sentiments that would not have been out of place in the committee rooms of the French Revolution; sentiments that no one would have thought to hear expressed by a Pope, void as they were of any reference to the claims and traditional message of the Church.

That this was understood and appreciated was shown by the reception accorded him at the close of his address, by those of a certain political persuasion who made up by far the greater part of his live audience. He was surrounded by back-slapping and handshaking representatives of Russia, China, and the Soviet satellite States. He arranged for further meetings, which proved to be four in all, with the Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko (real name Katz), and his wife. There were congratulations from Nikolai Podgorny, member of the Politburo, and warm exchanges with Arthur Goldberg, a prominent member of the Communist Party.

Pope Paul had opened up the world of religion to its old and inveterate enemies, the champions of social reform who denied revelation. 'Dialogue' was now much in fashion, and the prospect of Moscow and the Vatican entering into talks was taken for granted. The world's leading churchman had propagated the social gospel, so dear to the heart of revolutionaries, without a single reference to the religious doctrines that they found pernicious. Differences between the two sides were not so deep-seated and final as had once been thought. The Pope, and those who clustered about him sometimes with two-handed clasps, could henceforth be allies.

It now remained to round off a truly historic visit with an initiatory rite that would put the seal on this newly admitted realisation.

'Behold, thy King is coming to thee, humbly riding on an ass.' So wrote St. Matthew (21.5) on Christ's entry into Jerusalem.

But it was not thus that Christ's representative rode along Broadway. Pope Paul travelled in a seven-passenger Lincoln convertible, through a forest of flags and bunting, with a police escort on motor cycles, and thousands more police lining the way and restraining crowds that were uncertain whether to stand, kneel, or bow their heads in expectation of a blessing, and whether to wave or raise an arm in salute; with two spotter helicopters buzzing and circling overhead, sirens blowing, and on nearly every building fluorescent lighting that unnecessarily vied with the daylight, and the United Nations' Plaza Building spelling out 'welcome, Pope Paul VI'.

This followed upon a question that Cardinal Vagnozzi, the Apostolic-delegate in New York, put to Pope Paul. What was to be the next goal of his visit?

The Meditation Room in the United Nations' building, Paul told him.

The Cardinal was surprised, shocked. He had good reason for affirming that the Holy Father couldn't go there.

But he went.

The room, with two others of its kind, one at Wainwright House, Stuyvesant Avenue, Rye, New York, and the other in the United States Capitol, represented the early stage of a scheme the fulfilment of which would be marked (in concrete form) by the erection of what was called the Temple of Understanding, on fifty acres of ground along the banks of the Potomac in Washington, D.C.

It was part of a design to form one inter-religious world body on the part of a certain Mrs. Judith Dickerman Hollister, who revealed an anti-traditional, pro-mysterious bias by becoming a Shinto. As such, she believed the Japanese myth that two divine universal parents descended upon an island that was made of drops of salt. There the god-mother gave birth to other islands, with mountains and rivers, and finally to a whole galaxy of gods. After that astonishing feat the lady withdrew from her sea-girt home and was seen no more.

Thus armed with an air of mystery, a suggestion of interior enlightenment, and an eccentric bearing, Mrs. Hollister found an enthusiastic supporter in the President's wife, Eleanor Roosevelt, whom some of her intimates rated as being somewhat below the mentally normal.

From that it needed but a step to secure the backing of the United States Government, while John D. Rockefeller, and several of his associates in the Communist front that he founded, contributed to what was called the Spiritual United Nations. Another pro-Communist millionaire, Marshall Field, who has already been noted as a patron of the anarchist Saul David Alinsky, helped to pay for the decoration of the room. The Ford Foundation also gave financial encouragement.

A carefully edited bulletin, that supposedly dealt with the meaning and purpose of the room, was produced by the Lucis Press, which issues printed matter for the United Nations. The suspicious may find food for thought in the fact that this publishing company, when it started in the early part of this century, was known as the Lucifer Press. It now functions at 3 Whitehall Court, London, S.W.1.

That title might well have been retained when dealing with Mrs. Hollister's creation, for the room (and this explains the shock felt by Cardinal Vagnozzi) was a centre of the Illuminati, given over to the cult of the all-seeing Eye that under a system of allegories and veiled secrets, as translated by the Masters of Wisdom, was dedicated to the service of pagan cults; and the obliteration of Christian in favour of humanistic beliefs.

Two doors, each fitted with tinted glass panels, lead into the room. A guard stands outside, and another is stationed just inside the door. The entrant encounters semi-darkness, and a quiet into which one's footsteps are absorbed by a thick blue rug on the floor. An arched inner way, still overhung by a sense of night-like stillness, opens out into a space some thirty feet long, wedge-shaped, windowless, and with a solitary yellow light, apparently beamed from nowhere, shimmering on the surface of an altar that stands in the centre, a waist-high block of crystalline iron ore that is known to weigh between six and seven tons.

Blue rugs are spread over the floor, that is elsewhere paved with blue-grey lengths of slate. At the far end of the room, where the dimness melts into total shadow, there is a low railing beyond which only the privileged are allowed to pass.

The fresco-mural, more than eight feet high and some two feet smaller in width, is played upon by a light directed from the top. Framed in a steel panel, it appears to be an apparently meaningless cluster of blue, grey, white, brown, and yellow geometrical designs. But to those versed in esoteric understanding the crescents and triangles present a definite form that takes shape, in the centre and outer circle of the mural, as the Illuminati Eye.

Main attention is not, however, focused upon the mural but on the altar, that is dedicated to 'the faceless one', and from which an air of brooding mystery, prevalent in the room, appears to radiate. And as one's senses respond, it is realised that other shaded lights, concealed in a suspended ceiling that matches the size of the room, add to the sombre impression conveyed by the altar beam.

Pope Paul, at the end of his mission, was presented with a model of the then prospective Temple of Understanding. The Masters extended a similar welcome to Cardinal Suenens, who later visited the Meditation Room; and in return representatives of the Temple were received at the Vatican.

The underlying purpose of the Temple was plainly revealed by its plan, with the all-seeing Eye, faceted like a diamond in the central dome of the building, reflecting the rays of the sun through wings that represented six world faiths – Buddhism, Hinduism, Islam, Judaism, Confucianism, and Christianity.

The same symbolism figured at a banquet attended by some five hundred supporters of syncretism at the Waldorf Astor, where a little scene was enacted when a child, holding aloft the model of an egg, was presented to the president of the Temple, the same Mrs. Dickerman Hollister. She tapped the egg with a wand, and the shell dropped away to reveal a tree with six golden branches.

Before leaving America Pope Paul, to press home his voluntary renunciation of spiritual authority, made a show of divesting himself of the Church's reminders and insignia. He gave the Papal ring of diamonds and rubies, and his pectoral cross of diamonds and emeralds – the two containing four hundred and four diamonds, one hundred and forty-five emeralds, and twenty rubies – to the Buddhist U Thant, then Secretary-General of the United Nations.

A jeweller had estimated that the jewels alone, apart from their traditional value, were worth more than a hundred thousand dollars. They were swept up at an auction for sixty-four thousand dollars, after which the successful buyer sold them to a Mr. David Morton of Orono, Minnesota. Some items of this Papal jewellery were next seen decking the person of a female performer who appeared in the 'Carson television night-show'.

The ring and the cross continued to go the round of dealers, auction rooms, and superior junk shops, and were last heard of among the articles offered for sale at a market in Geneva.

This abnegation followed Pope Paul's public show of giving up the tiara, the triple crown that denotes the Trinity, the authority, and the spiritual powers of the Church. The crown was presented to a Pope at the time of his coronation with the words: 'Receive this tiara adorned with three crowns and know that you are the father of princes and of kings, guide of the world, and Vicar upon earth of Jesus Christ.'

Pope Paul let it be known that he was giving up the crown for the benefit of the poor of the world, a motive that was played up by the Press and that 'went down well' with the public. But he was giving up something that had never been his in the first place, and so was not transferable. Moreover, one word from him would have caused all the world-wide missions and charitable organisations of the Church to open their purses for the poor. But instead, he made a theatrical gesture by discarding external signs of religious dignity which, as he and his kind well knew, was a minor step that, added to others of its kind, was part of the process of sapping the Church's internal significance.

He also made use of a sinister symbol, used by Satanists in the sixth century, that had been revived at the time of Vatican Two. This was a bent or broken cross on which was displayed a repulsive and distorted figure of Christ, which the black magicians and sorcerers of the Middle Ages had made use of to represent the Biblical term, 'Mark of the Beast'.

Yet not only Paul VI but his successors, the two John-Pauls, carried that object and held it up to be revered by crowds who had not the slightest idea that it stood for anti-Christ. Furthermore, this exhibition of a desiccated figure on a twisted stick was forbidden by Canon 1279, which condemned the usage of any sacred image that is not in keeping with the approved usage of the Church. That it was used for occult purposes may be seen in woodcuts shown in the Museum of Witchcraft in Bayonne, France.

Another disquieting feature of Pope Paul's visit to the United States was his appearance, at the Yankee Stadium in New York, wearing the Ephod, the ancient garment with breastplate of twelve stones, representing the twelve sons of Jacob, as worn by Caiphas, the High Priest of the Sanhedrin, who called for the crucifixion of Christ.

As though not content with that quite unnecessary innovation, His Holiness continued to wear that non-Christian symbol on other occasions, including the Way of the Cross procession in Rome on March the 27th, 1964; at a ceremony in the Place d'Espagne, Rome, on December the 8th, 1964; the visit of Doctor Ramsay, Archbishop of Canterbury, to the Vatican in 1966; at a reception of parish priests in the Sistine Chapel; and at Castelgandolfo in the summer of 1970.

The tone of Pope Paul's address to the United Nations had given no little encouragement to the progressives, or Left-wing element, within the Church. For within a few days of Paul's return to Rome the Bishop of Cuernavaca, Mendes Arceo, was declaring that 'Marxism is necessary in order to realise God's kingdom at the present time'; while Pope Paul let it be known that Rome, in order to end an old enmity, was ready to take a new look at secret societies.

As part of that process, Monsignor Pezeril was entrusted with the task of negotiating with a governing body of those societies with a view to establishing friendly contact.

The retentive powers of those who write for the papers, like the memories of those who seriously regard them, are proverbially short. Yet because the Pope's speech in New York was well in keeping with the prevailing trend, it is not surprising to find that the cue he had given there was taken up, some time later, by the Vatican journal L'Osservatore Romano, which let it be known that the Church's traditional message had yielded place to a more unorthodox concept, by announcing:

'There are no true riches but Man.'

The two interlaced triangles explain Lantoine's remarks that Satan is an equal and indispensable part of God, as seen when the picture is reversed. Simply translated, the motto means: 'What is above equals what is below.' It reveals a common occult idea that God is both good and evil, and that Satan is part of him.

Part Five

The veil covering the greatest deceit ever to have mystified the clergy and baffled the faithful, is doubtless beginning to be torn asunder.

Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre.

An observer of the Roman scene, Georges Virebeau¹, tells how a feeling of surprise, that was near consternation, spread through the Vatican one morning in 1976. Students in their cassocks, coloured purple, violet, or black, according to their nationality, stood about in groups, discussing the latest number of a journal, the Borghese. Some, the writer says, were actually perspiring with alarm; for although the morning was hot, the atmosphere engendered by what they read affected them more than the weather.

For the paper contained a detailed list of clerics, some holding the most exalted offices, who were said to be members of secret societies.

It was staggering news, for the doubtful head-shaking students were acquainted with Church law; and Canon Law 2335 expressly declared that a Catholic who joined any such society became excommunicate, ipso facto.

We have seen that the secret societies had, long ago, declared war on the Church, which they recognised as the one great obstacle barring their way to world domination; and the Church responded by condemning the societies and making laws for her own protection. Canon 2335 was framed for that purpose, while Canon 2336 was concerned with disciplinary measures to be enforced against any cleric who might be inveigled into joining a society. In the case of a Bishop he would lose all juridical powers, and be barred from exercising priestly functions including ordination and consecrating.

That the Church considered the societies to be a most dangerous threat to its own existence is shown by the number of warnings and condemnations issued by the Vatican. What is usually regarded as the first official instance of this occurred under Pope Clement XII (1730-40), which stressed that belonging to any such society was incompatible with membership of the Church.

Eleven years later Benedict XIV confirmed this in the first Papal Bull directed against the societies. Pius VI and Pius VII followed suit, the last named being specially concerned with the threat posed by the Carbonari. Three subsequent Popes, Leo XII, Pius VIII, and Gregory VI added their weight to the strictures. A further condemnation came from Pius IX who, incidentally had to face the charge that he had descended from the Counts of Mastai-Feretti, who had almost certainly been involved with the societies. Leo XIII spoke of the plotters aiming to 'destroy from top to bottom the whole religious and social discipline born of Christian institutions', and to replace belief in the supernatural spirit by a sort of second-hand Naturalism.

Just as the writings of Voltaire, Diderot, and Helvetius had opened up the way for the French Revolution, so the secret societies, said Pius X (1903-14), were working to destroy Catholicism in modern France.

So paramount was the danger to Benedict XV that not even the cares imposed by the 1914 war could drive it finally from his mind; while Pius XI reiterated that the secret societies derived much of their strength from the conspiracy of silence that has never ceased to surround them.

Although conducted largely behind the scenes, and therefore away from the public gaze, the struggle between the Church and the secret societies has been more bitter and prolonged than any international conflict; the reason being that it has turned, in great part, on ideas, on a mental and therefore a moral basis; and although not universally recognised, the moral outlook influences the whole nature of man more than any conflict for personal gain, territory, or positive power.

On one side was a religion that, its supporters claimed, rested on facts, the objective value of revealed truth, and a sacramental observance. On the other, a system grounded in humanitarian ideals in which all men, freed from the shackles or dogma and orthodoxy, could share, and on which they could agree. Truth, they said, is relative, hence the claims of objective and revealed truth are seen to be not only valueless, but fundamentally false.

So the struggle developed over the centuries, with those who accepted the atheism, Positivism, or materialism that reached its summit with the French Revolution, on one side; and the strictures uttered by various Popes, from Clement XII in the mid-eighteenth century to Pius XI who died in 1939, on the other.

The least condemnatory of those strictures referred to the societies as 'conspiracies of silence'. The most damning called them 'synagogues of Satan'.

But not all their members regarded the Satanic connection as a stigma. This is how one of their principle archivists, Albert Lantoine, went out of his way to address Pius XII in August, 1943: 'I am pleased to say that we, possessed of a critical spirit, are servants of Satan. You defend truth, and are servants of God. The two masters complete each other, and need each other. You would exterminate us. Be careful! The death of Satan will mark the agony of your God. You must accept the alliance with Satan, and admit that he completes God.'

The news in the Borghese, that so alarmed the students, came as the culmination of a fear that had lingered for some time among the more conservative elements in the Vatican. The exposure of Archbishop Bugnini, at the time of the Second Vatican Council, had been shattering enough. But the revelations in the Borghese were on a more considerable scale, and came perilously near to touching the very nerve of the Church.

It was known that enemy agents had long been nibbling at its fabric. But so long as Church discipline remained strong, it was difficult for the most ardent infiltrator to gain a footing in the priesthood. But the general relaxation and reforms that followed Pope John's Council opened doors by which agents entered not only seminaries but the Curia, the governing body of the Church.

Because some of those agents rose high in the Church, and became Cardinals and Bishops, many who might otherwise have been suspicious were deceived. The ecclesiastical titles, and the offices that went with them, were thought to be sufficient (though they were really only outward) safeguard. The hands of the manipulators were raised in blessing, and the faithful knelt.

The warnings against them that were issued went largely unheeded or fell stone dead against the historically impressive walls that bounded the Church. 'A Fifth Column exists within the clergy', wrote Father Arrupe, Superior-General of the Jesuits, 'and is steadily working in favour of atheism'.

A similar theme was expressed by a number of theologians who came together in Geneva in 1976, as an International Committee of Defence of Catholic Doctrine. 'The presence of the enemies of the Church, in the internal structure of the Church, forms a part of the mystery of iniquity and should be unmasked.'

But so far those fears had taken no more tangible shape than to unsettle the minds of students, who felt their future might be disturbed by the revelations that produced little or no effect among their superiors and instructors in the Vatican. The usual inquiry was ordered (by some of the churchmen who had been named as guilty) with the declared object of tracing the source of the rumours. But nothing happened; and neither did one of those who had been implicated ever issue a downright or straightforward denial.

The Borghese article claimed to have a detailed list of conspirators who had penetrated into the Church, together with dates, numbers, and code names. These allegations were answered by a writer in L'Aurora, M. Jacques Ploncard, who asserted that no prelate had been affiliated with a secret society since the time of Charles X, the last of the Bourbons who ascended the throne in 1824, and was driven out by the revolution of 1830.

This was palpably false, as was proved by determined investigators who carried the attack into enemy territory. By one means or another, sometimes posing as members of the Government, they gained access to the Italian Register of Secret Societies, and drew up a much longer and more impressive list than that published in the Borghese.

The particulars that follow are those of Cardinals, Archbishops, and Bishops who, as alleged by those who examined it, figure in the Register. Some have died since the list was drawn up – at one time it was said to have included one hundred and twenty-five prelates. Some of the offices have changed hands.

But the names and ecclesiastical titles, with the dates on which they were initiated into a society, and their secret code names, must call for serious consideration, except from those Catholics who blindly follow the rules, who hang upon the words of a priest, and who think it part of their faith to see no stain upon the Church.

It may be noted that the code name often incorporates the first two letters of the cleric's name.

Agostino, Cardinal Casaroli. Secretary of State. Prefect of the Sacred Congregation of Public Affairs, and of the Sacred Congregation of Bishops, and of the Pontifical Commission for the Revision of Canon Law. Member of the Commission for Russia and of the Commission for Latin America. The most influential prelate in the Vatican after the Pope, whose place he takes during the absence of the latter. He is known as the 'Kissinger of Vatican diplomacy'. Initiated into a secret society September 28th, 1957. Secret code name Casa.

Leon Joseph, Cardinal Suenens. Primate of Belgium. Member of the Pontifical Commission for the Revision of Canon Law. He was a delegate and Moderator of the Second Vatican Council, and he has been associated with Protestant Pentecostalism, that reduces people to revivalist hysteria. Initiated June 15th, 1967. Code name Lesu.

Jean, Cardinal Villot. He was Secretary of State to Paul VI, and Camerlengo (the Chamberlain who takes over affairs at the Vatican on the death of a Pope). Prefect of the Sacred Congregation for Religious and Secular Institutes, and administrator of the Patrimony of the Holy See. He came of a family which has produced over the last two hundred years, from father to son, Grand Masters of secret societies including the Rosicrucians.

Being aware that this had become known, he strenuously denied that he was associated in any way with such societies. One of his denials was contained in a letter, dated October 31st, 1976, sent from the Vatican by way of the Papal Nunciature in Paris, to the Director of Lectures Françaises, a monthly publication. It ran: 'Having noticed that in your review of September 1976, you referred to Cardinal Villot as a member of a secret society, Cardinal Villot declares in the most formal fashion that he has never had, at any moment in his life, the least connection with any secret society. He adheres closely to the condemnations imposed by the Sovereign Pontiffs. Cardinal Villot begs the Director of Lectures Françaises to publish this denial in a future issue, and thanks him in advance.'

One cannot help wondering how Cardinal Villot, who appears to have been afflicted with an unusually short memory, managed to fulfil his office as Secretary of State.

For records show that he was initiated into a secret society on August 6th, 1966, and that in the hope of avoiding identification he was given two code names, Jeani and Zurigo.

Achille, Cardinal Lienart. Bishop of Lille. He was formerly a captain in the French Army, and a life-long ultra-Liberal. He led the progressive forces at the Second Vatican Council, on which account it was said that 'his ideas were redder than his robes'. There are 526 Masonic Lodges in Italy. In view of that, their admitted membership of only 20,000 is questionable.

The French Register of Secret Societies is more closely guarded than the Italian, so that particulars of recent initiations cannot be quoted. The most sustained list of clerics belonging to French secret societies covers a few decades preceding the French Revolution, and it numbered, even at a time when infiltration of the Church by its enemies was on a smaller scale than it soon attained, some 256 members.

Part Six

When money speaks, the truth remains silent.
Russian proverb.

The adventurer Michele Sindona was already at the head of a vast financial empire when his friend Pope Paul VI, in 1969, made use of his services as financial adviser to the Vatican. The Sicilian's influence on both sides of the Atlantic was sufficient to ensure that he received universal respect; irrespective of personal character. The American ambassador in Rome referred to Sindona as 'the man of the year', and Time magazine was later to call him 'the greatest Italian since Mussolini'.

His connection with the Vatican increased his status, and his business operations, carried out with the dexterity of a spider spinning a web, soon placed him on a near footing with the more political and publicly advertised Rothschilds and Rockefellers. He burrowed into banks and foreign exchange agencies, outwitted partners as well as rivals, and always emerged in a controlling capacity.

He invested money under assumed or other persons' names, disposing of and diverting funds, always with set purpose, and he pulled strings for the underground activities of the Central Intelligence Agency as well as for more secret bodies, that brought about political repercussions in European centres. All this was done with an air of confidential propriety and by methods that would not have survived the most casual examination, carried out by the most inefficient accountant.

One of his early banking contacts was with Hambro, and from that followed a list that came to include the Privata Italiana, Banca Unione, and the Banco di Messina, a Sicilian bank that he later owned. He held a majority stake in the Franklin National Bank of New York, controlled a network that covered nine banks, and became vice-president of three of them. The real assets of those banks were transferred to tax shelters such as Switzerland, Luxembourg, and Liberia.

Before long he had taken over the Franklin National, with its 104 branches and assets of more than five billion dollars, despite an American law that forbade direct ownership of any bank by groups with other financial interests. But a way round this was found by the then President Nixon, and by Sindona's friend and share manipulator David Kennedy, a former secretary to the United States treasury and that country's ambassador to Nato.

At one time it was reckoned that the amount involved in his foreign speculations alone exceeded twenty billion dollars. Apart from the interests already named, two Russian banks and the National Westminster were finger deep in his transactions. He was president of seven Italian companies, and the managing director of several more, with shares in the Paramount Pictures Corporation, Mediterranean Holidays, and the Dominican sugar trade. He had a voice on the board of Libby's, the Chicago food combine. He bought a steel foundry in Milan.

It was only to be expected that, when estimating such a man, his past and his character counted for less than the jingle in his pocket. New friends, acquaintances, public figures, and distant relatives pressed forward for a sight of the Sindona smile; and among them was a churchman, Monsignor Ameleto Tondini. Through him the financier met Massimo Spada, who managed the affairs of the Vatican bank, or, to give it a more innocuous title, the Institute for Religious Works.

Its main concern was with the handling of Vatican investments, which to some extent came under a body known as the Patrimony of the Apostolic See. That had come into existence, as a financial entity, in 1929, under one of the conditions of the Lateran Treaty concluded with Mussolini.

It had since outgrown the limitations imposed by the Treaty, and had taken on truly international dimensions under a conglomerate of bankers including John Pierpont Morgan of New York, the Paris Rothschilds, and the Hambros Bank of London. Its clerical supervisor was Monsignor (soon to be Cardinal) Sergio Guerri.

Spada, who was the chairman of Lancia, became chairman of a part ecclesiastical, part financial institution, known as the Pius XII Foundation for the Lay Apostleship, a very wealthy concern which was later taken over by Cardinal Villot, who was in many ways a reflection of Paul VI.

There is always a sinister side to big money dealings, and one of Sindona's associates, Giorgio Ambrosoli, became increasingly nervous as the carrying out of increasing frauds kept pace with the profits, and with the effects they produced in several European social, economic, and political structures. He expressed his doubts to Sindona, who brushed them aside. But he did not do the same with Ambrosoli. Instead he made him the object of rumour and surrounded him with a network of suspicion. And one more unsolved crime was added to the Italian police register when Ambrosoli was shot dead outside his house by 'unknown assassins'.

Even before Sindona was concerned with its investment policy, the Vatican, despite its condemnation of money-power in the past, was heavily involved in the capitalist system. It had interests in the Rothschild Bank in France, and in the Chase Manhattan Bank with its fifty-seven branches in forty-four countries; in the Credit Suisse in Zurich and also in London; in the Morgan Bank, and in the Banker Trust. It had large share holdings in General Motors, General Electric, Shell Oil, Gulf Oil, and in Bethlehem Steel.

Vatican representatives figured on the board of Finsider which, with its capital of 195 million lire spread through twenty-four companies, produced ninety per cent of Italian steel, besides controlling two shipping lines and the Alfa Romeo firm. Most of the Italian luxury hotels, including the Rome Hilton, were also among the items that figured in the Vatican share portfolio.

Sindona's influence at the Vatican, deriving from his earlier friendship with Paul VI, and the recent meetings with Spada, was soon felt in much the same way as it had been in the outer world. He assumed complete control of the Banca Privata. He bought the Feltrinelli publishing house, and the Vatican shared in its income despite the fact that some of its productions included calls to street violence and secret society propaganda. The same quarter gave support to Left-wing Trades Unions, and to the none too healthy work, often on the seamy side of the law, conducted by the Central Intelligence Agency. The same lack of discernment was shown by the fact that one of the firms that helped to swell the Sindona Vatican funds had been making, at least for a time, contraceptive pills.¹

Other and more direct Vatican commitments were with the Ceramica Pozzi which supplied taps, sanitary equipment, and bidets, and with a chemical group, again with Hambros in the background, that manufactured synthetic fibres for textiles. Vatican representatives appeared on the boards of Italian and Swiss banks, and their influence was increasingly felt in the management of holding companies in many parts of the Western world.

Another 'shut eye' operation was when Cardinal Casaroli concluded an agreement with Communist authorities, whereby one of the Vatican companies erected a factory in Budapest.

Almost within hearing distance of the work was another Cardinal, Mindszenty, Archbishop of Hungary who, abandoned by Rome because of his anti-Communist stand, had taken refuge in the American Embassy after the abortive 1956 uprising.

Had it been possible to conduct a genuine inquiry at that time, the names of Vatican officials would have been found figuring in some of President Nixon's complicated ventures. So much emerges when, by steering a way through a mass of often contradictory manoeuvres, one pin-points the Vatican ownership of the General Immobiliare, one of the world's largest construction companies which dealt in land speculation, built motorways and the Pan Am offices, to quote but a few of its operations, and also controlled a major part of the Watergate complex in Washington. It was thereby enabled to build, and own, the series of luxury buildings on the banks of the River Potomac that became the headquarters of the Democratic electoral campaign in 1972.

The management of the Generale Immobiliare was in the hands of Count Enrico Galeazzi, the director of an investment and credit company (estimated capital twenty-five billion lire), who could so freely come and go at the Vatican that he was known as the laypope.

The Holy See became a substantial partner in Sindona's commercial and industrial empire in the spring of 1969 when, in answer to calls from Paul VI, the financier made several visits to the Vatican where the two men met, in the Pope's study on the third floor, at midnight. (Only, so far as the minor clerics and staff of the Vatican were concerned, and according to the Pope's appointment book that was duly 'doctored' before being entered up, it was not His Holiness who conferred with Sindona but Cardinal Guerri, who in all probability was sleeping at the time.)

Besides wishing to fortify the Vatican's investment policy, the Pope was concerned with maintaining the Church's non-liability for Government control, in the shape of tax, of its currency and assets. That exemption, with the Christian Democrats heading a four-party coalition since the end of the Second World War, had never been seriously questioned. But new voices were now being heard. The Vatican was named as the biggest tax-evader in post-war Italy, and there was a growing demand for its arrears to be settled.

Another member of this sanctified business circle was Paul Marcinkus, one of a Lithuanian family who had emigrated to Chicago. He was in the good books of Monsignor Pasquali Macchi, the Pope's personal secretary, and had so far not been prominent in any pastoral field. His most practical experience, in the sphere of Church activity had been gained when, due to his standing six feet four in his socks, and his long powerful arms (which earned him the nickname of 'gorilla') he supervised the guarding of Paul VI during his travels. Paul made him a Bishop.

As controller of the Vatican Bank, a post that was handed to him by Paul VI, he was responsible for more than 10,000 accounts belonging to Religious Orders and to private individuals, including the Pope. The number of the latter's account, by the way, was 16.16. He handled the Vatican's secret funds and its gold reserves at Fort Knox, and he transferred a substantial part of the funds, in the hope of making a quick profit, to the Sindona holdings.

He was also President of the Institute for Religious Training, and a director of the Continental Illinois Bank of Nassau. His rise was neither unexpected nor brought about without influence being exerted, for on July 2nd, 1963, Marcinkus followed the example of those many clerics who, in defiance of Canon 2335, had joined a secret society. His code name was Marpa.

Taking advantage of the fact that clerical garb was no longer essential, Marcinkus shouldered his way through the fringes, then into the colourful noisy heart, of Roman society. He was the affluent manager of one of the city's most influential, privileged, and respected banks. He lounged at bars, joined exclusive clubs that had hitherto been envied and far-off places to him, and showed his animal strength on the links by sending numerous golf balls into oblivion. In time his blatant playboy attitude annoyed the more established Roman community, who turned a cold shoulder. It would seem that he had little more than gangling brawn to recommend him. But there were always plenty of Americans, who were there on business, to take their place, though even they were shocked when the Bishop was said to be involved in fraudulent bankruptcy.

Meanwhile the first warnings, conveyed by hints of danger, were reaching Sindona and the Vatican from many parts of the world. The current call was to transfer money to the United States, as events in Europe pointed to political unrest and economic collapse; and the future of the Franklin Bank, in which Sindona and the Vatican were heavily involved, became highly doubtful following a series of disastrous speculations. There were frantic efforts to persuade more secure banks to buy outright, or at least re-float, the Franklin. Calls went out from Montini to arrange the transfer of Vatican investments to a safer haven.

It was not that Sindona had lost his touch; but world forces, assisted by enemies in the Mafia who envied Sindona's rise, were proving too much for the maintenance of far-flung ventures like some over which he had presided. Aware that he was standing on shaky ground, Sindona tried to gain the support of the Nixon administration, by offering a million dollars, which perhaps could have materialised only if the deal had been accepted, for the President's electoral fund. But as Sindona, for obvious reasons, insisted on not being named, and since the acceptance of anonymous gifts for an election was forbidden by law, his offer was declined. It was disappointing for all concerned that it impinged upon one of the few laws that even the elastic Federal system could not openly stretch.

Sindona made a final gesture in the approved style of a Hollywood gangster. He threw a lavish and spectacular evening party at Rome's foremost hotel (that was probably owned by the Vatican) which was attended by the American ambassador, Cardinal Caprio (who had been in charge of Vatican investments before the arrival of Marcinkus), and the accommodating Cardinal Guerri.

Marcinkus merely came in for a great deal of blame. His operations with Vatican funds, said Monsignor Benelli, one of his critics, had been intolerable. But Marcinkus, who knew too much of what went on behind the scenes at the Vatican, could not be abandoned, and he was given a diplomatic post in the Church.

Sindona had been tipped off, by one of his hirelings who was also employed by the secret service, that a warrant was out for his arrest. But he bluffed and drank his way through the festivities, went off for a time to his luxury villa in Geneva, then took a plane to New York.

There, pending actual charges, he was kept under a form of mild surveillance. But it seems that some of those who were detailed to watch him belonged to the Mafia, and the next the Pope heard of his former adviser was that he had been shot and wounded in a scuffle.

It was easy enough, by delving into his past that was more than ankle-deep in great and petty swindles, and now that he was no longer a power to be reckoned with, to bring him to trial; and an attempted kidnap case, and widespread bribery, were now added to the charges against him. When the obliging Cardinal Guerri heard of this, he seems to have become suddenly convinced, perhaps because his name had figured in talks that clinched the bargaining between Pontiff and financier, that Sindona was a much maligned man. He wanted to go to New York and testify on his behalf.

But the Pope, aware of Guerri's easy-going nature, and not wanting the extent of his own co-operation with the accused to be dragged out in the witness box, kept Guerri in Rome.

The trial ended, in the autumn of 1980, with Sindona receiving a sentence of twenty-five years' imprisonment. Few, apart from those members of the public who expressed indignation as the financial antics of Sindona were made known to them for the first time, believe that such a sentence will ever be served. At least one anti-clerical paper suggested that Pope Paul was lucky not to have been put on the stand alongside his banker.

As it was, the Pope was left with two reminders of their partnership. The Church had sustained a heavy financial loss which meant, as the Pope asserted with a quite gratuitous beating of the breast, that the Bride of Christ was face to face with bankruptcy; while there was a new administrative agency for finance that he had founded as a result of Sindona's help.

At the head of this was Cardinal Vagnozzi, Apostolic Delegate in New York. He was assisted by Cardinal Hoeffner, of Cologne, and Cardinal John Cody of Chicago.

The last named of that trio was soon to make a sensational entry into the news. Cardinal John Patrick Cody, aged seventy-three, the son of a St. Louis fireman, was Archbishop of the largest Roman Catholic diocese in America. He therefore had the handling of many thousands of tax-exempt ecclesiastical funds. And in the autumn of 1981 his congregation was overwhelmed, as only loyal Church members can be, by rumours that soon became facts, to the effect that the United States Attorney's office in Chicago was looking into Cody's financial affairs.

A Federal Grand Jury had also asked for the records of a St. Louis investment company, where a certain Mrs. Helen Dolan Wilson had an account, to be examined.

The inquiry, most unusual in the case of a contemporary Cardinal, turned upon what was called the diverting, disposition, or misuse of Church funds amounting to more than £500,000 in English money. It also came to light that the National Conference of Catholic Bishops had lost more than four million dollars in a single year, during which time the Cardinal had been treasurer.

The Mrs. Wilson referred to, of the same age as the Cardinal, was variously referred to as a relation of his by marriage, as his sister, as a niece, while Cody usually spoke of her as his cousin. Her father, more precise judgments claimed, had married the Cardinal's aunt, while others were sure that no real blood relationship existed between them. The couple concerned said that a brother and sister relationship, begun in their childhood in St. Louis, was their only tie.

'We were raised together', explained Mrs. Wilson. Their remaining close friends was therefore a natural development. They travelled together, and for the past twenty-five years she had followed his every move about the diocese. He had become, in the religious sense, her 'supervisor', a role that she found beneficial when her marriage, which left her with a son, ended in the divorce court.

It was easy enough for the Cardinal to place her, as manager, in an office connected with the Church in St. Louis. Her appearances there were far from regular but, whether working or not, she nonetheless remained on the Church's pay-roll. He also helped her son to set up business, in the same town, as an insurance agent, a post that Wilson resigned when, with the Cardinal, he started dealing in 'real estate'.

Mrs. Wilson retired, after having earned a modest £4,000 a year, but before long she was known to be worth nearly a million dollars, mostly in stocks and bonds. She was also the beneficiary of a hundred thousand dollars insurance policy, taken out on the Cardinal's life, on which she borrowed.

The inquiries made by the Federal Grand Jury, and publicised by the Chicago Tribune and Sun-Times, brought forth a flood of allegations. The Cardinal had made over most of the missing money to her. Part of it had gone in buying her a house at Boca Raton, in Florida. There had also been a luxury car, expensive clothes and furs, and holiday cash presents.

The Cardinal, though saddened and feeling rejected because of the allegations, was firm in saying that he didn't need a chance to contradict them. He was ready to forgive all those responsible. Mrs. Wilson was equally firm in saying that she had received no money from the Cardinal. To say that there was anything more than friendship between them was a vicious lie, or even a joke. She strongly resented being scandalised, and being portrayed as a kept woman or (as her fellow-countrymen put it) 'a tramp'.

Had it not been for the many falls from grace that have overtaken the modern Church, a case like this would scarcely have merited more than a mention. But now it prompts questions. Was it a frame-up, part of the age-long wish to bring the Church into disrepute? Was the Cardinal personally corrupt? Or was he one of the infiltrators who, without any real religious conviction, have been secretly fostered into the Church for the sole purpose of wearing away its moral and traditional fabric?

There is, in the light of other strange happenings that have occurred, nothing extravagant in that suggestion; and it would seem to be borne out by a long report in

The Chicago Catholic of September 29th, 1978. An Archdiocesan Liturgical Congress was held in order, as one of the jargon-crazed Modernists said, to keep the Church 'living, moving, changing, growing, becoming new, after some centuries of partial paralysis.'

As part of that process, dance groups frolicked under flashing multi-coloured lights, trumpets blared, people reached and scrambled for gas-filled balloons, and donned buttons that bore the message 'Jesus loves us'; while a priest, who was looked upon as an expert in the new liturgy, his face whitened like a clown's, paraded about in a top hat and with a grossly exaggerated potbelly emerging from the cloak he wore.

The background to all this was made up of vestments, banners, and the hotch-potch of a mural, all of which, in the approved style of 'modern art', revealed no more than casually applied splashes of paint. The Mass that marked the close of this truly ridiculous Congress (that, as we shall see, was only a faint reflection of what happened elsewhere, and which would never have been dreamt of before the days of 'Good Pope John') was presided over by Cardinal Cody.

At another time The Chicago Tribune, in a report describing what was said to be a 'Gays' altar', referred to a concelebration (meaning celebration of the Eucharist by two or more priests) at a church in that city: One hundred and twenty-two priests were present at what passed for Mass, and every one of them was a self-confessed moral pervert.

Neither of these profanities called forth a word of protest from John Patrick, Cardinal Cody.

He died of a heart attack in April, 1982, while this book was in preparation.

Part Seven

Woe to him who doesn't know how to wear his mask, be he King or Pope.
Pirandello.

The give-and-take of human relationships poses a more difficult problem than those that are normally accredited to science. For the latter will, in all probability, be solved in time; but when it comes to people, especially those who are no longer among the living, we are faced with questions that, in this our world, are unlikely to be answered.

For instance, it has to be asked why did two prelates, within a few months of each other, both die in circumstances that are not normally connected with any churchman, and, more especially in these cases, highly placed ones?

When a party of Parisians, after having attended a religious festival in the country, returned to the capital late at night on Sunday, May 19th, 1974, some of them noticed that the priest who had been in charge of them looked ill and tired.

He was Jean Daniélou, sixty-nine years old, and a Cardinal; no cut and dried character, but someone difficult to place in the minds of ordinary people who knew very little about him. He had entered a Jesuit novitiate in 1929, and had been ordained nine years later. The author of fourteen books on theology, and the Head of the Theological Faculty at the University of Paris, he was also a member of the Académie Française.

While revealing little, he made certain statements about himself that invited questions; even controversy. 'I am naturally a pagan, and a Christian only with difficulty', was one of them, though that, of course, expresses a point a view held by many of his creed who know that little more than a knife edge exists between affirmation and disbelief. He was aware of new elements, that were forming and gathering strength within the Church, and although he judged freely – 'A kind of fear has spread leading to real intellectual capitulation in the face of carnal excesses' – the conservatives were no more able to number him among their kind than were the more vocal progressives. He was one of the founders, in 1967, of the Fraternity of Abraham, an interfaith group comprising the three monotheistic religions, Islam, Judaism, and Christianity.

'Today is a time when we sin against intelligence.' Both sides could have claimed that as a dictum. Some accused him, when he appeared to hold back, of being prudish. But always he claimed to be uncommitted. 'I feel in the depths of my being that I am a free man.' But freedom, when it is not a political catchword, can no more be tolerated in the world than truth (as the peasant girl Joan of Arc had realised centuries before). And the more Daniélou withdrew from society, and lived quietly at his residence in the Rue Notre-Dame des Champs, without keeping a secretary or running a car, the more he became suspect, or openly disliked.

None of this escaped him, but he tried not to dwell upon it. Had he done so, he owned that he would have been discouraged, a self-evident failure who had not taken advantage of the promise that was made available by his rise in the Church. Later he found, or at least came to believe, that opponents were scheming and plotting against him. There was, indeed, a definite campaign of whispers and hints in the Press that compelled him, though it was more a matter of choice than the force of actual opposition, to maintain a steadily but relatively unimpressive place on the fringe of things.

So he remained, a problematic figure who arrived home on that Sunday midnight after an exhausting day in the country. But Monday brought no change in his routine. He said Mass, as usual, at eight o'clock, then worked in his office and received a few visitors. He lunched at a restaurant, and afterwards called at the home of a Professor at the Sorbonne.

It appears, for some unexplained reason, that part of his mail went to an address in the Rue Monsieur; for he collected this, was back at his house at three o'clock, then left a quarter of an hour later, after saying that he expected to return at five.

But he did not. For at three forty-eight the police received an urgent message from a Madame Santoni, who occupied an upper floor at number fifty-six in the Rue Dulong, a none too reputable quarter just north of the Boulevard des Batignolles. Her message brought the police rushing to the scene, for it told them that no less a person than a Cardinal was dead on her premises.

He, Daniélou, had called there soon after three-thirty. He had, so someone told her, run up the stairs four at a time, then collapsed at the top, purple in the face, and soon became unconscious. She had torn his clothes apart, and summoned help. But it was impossible to revive him, and the first arrivals had been helplessly looking on when his heart stopped.

In answer to a radio announcement of the Cardinal's death, the Apostolic Nuncio, with the Jesuit Provincial of France, and Father Coste, Superior of the Jesuits in Paris, arrived at the apartment, together with reporters from the France Soir, and nuns who were called in to deal with the body that was, however, already too rigid to be prepared for the funeral.

Father Coste addressed the reporters. It was essential for them to maintain the utmost discretion, and, having said that, he went on to state that the Cardinal had died in the street, or it may possibly have been on the stairway, after he had fallen in the street.

'Oh no, it wasn't', broke in Madame Santoni. Father Coste objected to her interruption, the other clerics joined in, the police had their say, the reporters asked questions, and at the height of the argument, although no one actually witnessed her going, Madame Santoni disappeared and was seen no more at the inquiry.

Now the lady in question thoroughly deserved the title of Madame. She was well known to the police and to the Press, a twenty-four year old blonde who traded under the name of Mimi, sometimes as hostess at a bar, a go-go girl at an all night cabaret, or as a strip-tease dancer in the Pigalle. She was never on call at her home, which was run as a bawdy-house by her husband. It was then, however, temporarily out of business, as he had been convicted only three days previously for pimping.

Such explanations as the Church chose to offer were vague, and all in line with the general verdict that the Cardinal had burst a blood-vessel, or suffered a heart attack. Cardinal Marty, the Archbishop of Paris, refused a request from Catholics as well as from secular quarters for an inquiry to be held into the Cardinal's death. After all, he explained, the Cardinal wasn't there to speak for himself. It may have been an unfortunate afterthought that caused the Archbishop to speak of the Cardinal needing to defend himself. The eulogy was delivered in Rome by Cardinal Garrone who said: 'God grant us pardon. Our existence cannot fail to include an element of weakness and shadow.'

One may wonder how deep Garrone's soul-searching may have gone since, although he was known to belong to a secret society, he brazenly sat it out and held on to his red hat. A comment by the orthodox journal La Croix was briefer and more to the point: 'Whatever the truth is, we Christians well know that each of us is a sinner.'

This sort of happening supplied the Left-wing anti-clerical papers with copy for a week. One such, *Le Canard Enchaîné*¹, had scored heavily some years before, in a controversy over the ownership of a string of brothels within a few yards of the cathedral in Le Mans. The paper claimed that they were owned by a high dignitary of the Church. His friends and colleagues strongly denied this. But the paper was proved to have been right. Now the same source had no hesitation in saying that the Cardinal had been leading a double life.

He had been under observation for some time, a step that was ordered by no less a person than M. Chirac, the Prime Minister. He and Jacques Foccard, a former Minister of the Interior, both knew perfectly well that the Cardinal had been paying regular visits to Mimi.

That in turn was ridiculed by Daniélou's supporters; whereupon the paper retorted that there might be more revelations to come. 'If we were to publish all the details, it would be enough to shut you up for the rest of your natural days.'

The truth of this strange story may lie in one of four possible explanations.

One may have its origin in the effects of the Second Vatican Council. Daniélou was said by some to have regarded that as a positive disaster, and we know that he described the more liberal school of theologians, to which the Council gave rise, as lamentable, miserable, execrable, wretched. Many resented this, especially when he went on to call them 'assassins of the Faith'. He determined to do what he could to prevent the Faith being secularised and degraded, and this led him to think, since human tempers are just as hot within the Church as they are outside it, that he was in danger. That would account for the somewhat enclosed life he led in Paris.

But he let it be known that he was determined to make a stand, and he drew up a list of those he called traitors to the Church. Some of those whose names were included breathed fire against him, but he publicly announced that he intended to publish the list.

Four days later, according to a theory held by many who are certainly not light-weights, he was murdered by those he would have named. Then, inspired by a kind of macabre humour, those he had called 'assassins' had his body taken out and dumped in a brothel. After that, the surprising discovery could easily be arranged.

That is written in full knowledge of how outrageous it must appear to those who regard the Church from a purely parochial level; in happy ignorance of its medieval history that was destined to be repeated, with all the cut-and-thrust and poisoned cups of that period, in a few years' time, and within the very walls of the Vatican palace.

Or could Daniélou have been, earlier in life, one of those infiltrators whose influence he came to detest? Did he, after being initiated into one of the secret societies opposed to the Church, undergo a change of heart, which caused him to be looked upon as a menace? There is ample evidence that the societies had, and still have, no scruples in dealing with defaulters.

That suggestion is not without substance. For in the Rue Puteaux, Paris, there is an ancient church, the crypt of which serves as the Grand Temple of the Grand Lodge of France. Some three years before Daniélou's death the Auxiliary Bishop of Paris, Daniel Pézeril, had there been received into the Lodge, after he had issued a communiqué to justify his action. In it he said: 'It is not the Church which has changed. On the contrary, Masonry has evolved.' It was Monsignor Pézeril who was asked, by Pope Paul, to seek a way of bridging the gap between the Church and the societies.

Cardinal Daniélou had been a not infrequent visitor to the crypt, where he was seen in consultation with one of the Lodge Masters who had been honoured with the title of Grand Secretary of the Obedience. It must therefore be asked, does the answer to the mystery lie with those with whom Daniélou had conferred in the crypt?

But the story circulated by the satirical papers was the most shrill and insistent, and the most commonly known. They claimed that it had been obvious, to those who had been in Madame Mimi's apartment before the police arrived, that Daniélou's body had been hurriedly dressed. And if he had not been one of her clients, why had he gone there with three thousand francs that were found in his pocket-book? The purveyors of such scandal concluded that the Cardinal had died in a state of ecstasy, if not of grace.

Yet another version brings the story more up to date, with a trial that has now (the time is November, 1981) passed through its opening stage in Paris.

On Christmas Eve, 1976, Prince Jean de Broglie was shot dead by a gunman as he left a friend's house. The necessary inquiries brought a far reaching web of fraud, complicity, and blackmail into the open, involving the former President Giscard d'Estaing and a friend of his, Prince Michel Poniatowski.

The latter had recently ousted and taken the place of Jacques Foccard as Minister of the Interior, and Foccard was now using a woman, who was known also to Giscard, to get money from the Prince. Foccard has already been mentioned in connection with the Daniélou case.

Since the known operation is obviously part of a vast cover-up, it is no more possible, than it is necessary here, to unravel the details, which leave all those concerned in a very murky light. But it is claimed that they account for Daniélou's being in the brothel, and for the three thousand francs that were found on his person. They were one of the instalments that he had been paying, for the past three months, on behalf of someone, referred to as a friend of his, who was being blackmailed.

A most disarming finale to all this came in the form of a line or two in an English religious weekly, the Catholic Herald, which briefly announced that Cardinal Daniélou had died in Paris.

Brief though the memory of the public is, there may have been a few lingering thoughts on Cardinal Daniélou's mysterious death in the minds of some Parisians who noticed a Bishop from the south-west of their country step from a train on the afternoon of January the 12th, 1975.

He was Monsignor Roger Tort, fifty-seven years old, and Bishop of Montauban, on the River Tam just north of Toulouse. He was due to attend a meeting of the French Episcopal Commission, and he straightway proceeded to a room he had booked at the headquarters of the Catholic Aid Society in the Rue de Bac. His movements for the next couple of days are unrecorded, but on Thursday the 15th he lunched at the Commission's meeting place in the Rue du Regard, on the left bank of the Seine. It is possible that from there he went to meet a friend whom he had known during the war, but we know nothing certain about him until an alarm was raised, and a call went out to the police, on the night of the 16th.

Excitement centred on the Rue du Ponceau, again on the left bank, a narrow street off the Rue Saint-Denis, a quarter notorious for brothels, prostitutes, and sex shops, where red lamps shone invitingly. The woman who raised the alarm kept one of the brothels. She had come across a man, who was obviously ill, in the street outside her door, and she got the help of two others of her kind to drag him inside. By then he was dead.

Who was he? She neither knew nor cared. She had never seen him before. She had done what she could from purely 'humanitarian reasons'. The red lamps winked as more people arrived and the contradictory stories went on. The stranger had died of a heart attack, between seven and eleven o'clock, in the street, or in the corridor, or in one of the rooms. A news-hungry reporter said that the Bishop, once his identity had been confirmed, had come a long way from his lodgings and from the Commission's meeting place. The reporter went on to say, backed by a snap judgment from the police that, as in the case of Daniélou, the body appeared to have been hastily dressed.

A clerical apologist later advised all those interested to put away such thoughts as being totally unworthy. He pointed out that Monsignor Tort, when found, was still wearing his Bishop's ring, and his pectoral cross, and that his rosary was still in his pocket. Surely the presence of those objects was enough to prove that 'no inadmissible intentions' had brought him into the district? The facts, so far as they could be known, did not admit of any shameful interpretation.

The Church absolved the dead man from moral guilt, and within a few weeks a new Bishop was being installed at the small cathedral in Montauban.

An elementary reading of these two episodes could be taken as evidence that churchmen (especially Catholic ones and, more especially, those of exalted status) may be hypocritical and corrupt. That, of course, will not be disputed by any save the wilfully blind; and the fact that they may be members of secret societies, first and last, and therefore void of genuine religious conviction, is the theme of these pages. But there is no evidence to connect the deaths.

In the Cardinal's case there are signs, however tentative, that he had been persuaded to act a minor role in a major political scandal; or that he had taken a definite stand in a religious quarrel; and religious quarrels, like a civil war, admit of no quarter being given. There is, however, no trace of Monsignor Tort being involved in anything startling. He can only be the object of assumption – that he was the victim of personal weakness, of an accident, or of someone's wish to discredit religion.

But as it is, the similarity between the two deaths is startling.

Part Eight

Christian atmosphere, Christian tradition and morality ... is diminishing and is in fact to a great extent displaced by a way of life and thought opposed to the Christian one.
Pope Pius XII.

This section is concerned with some of the most dramatic changes in the whole of history; changes whose ultimate significance has, in the popular sense, gone largely unreported, and because of that they have been accepted without comment by the world at large. But they are changes that have set the tone of our present; they are fashioning our future; and in time to come they will be so established that it will seem foolish, or eccentric, to question them. At the risk of being tedious, and in order to emphasise a vital point, it needs to be repeated that religious Rome was regarded, less than a generation ago, as the one fixed centre of faith that would not change. It was proof against novelty. It despised fashion and towered above what is called the spirit of the age.

Secure in itself, it admitted no speculation, none of the guesswork that too often goes by the name of discovery. It maintained one attitude and taught, century after century, one message that was always the same. So much was claimed by itself, endorsed by its followers, and recognised by its enemies.

But just as in our time we have witnessed the spread of Communism, so at the turn of the century another movement threatened what may be called the more static ordering of thought. It was, put very roughly, a mingling of the nineteenth century's liberal and scientific preoccupations, and its object was to treat the Bible to the same sort of criticism to which the political and scientific worlds had been subjected. Evolution, as opposed to settled and accepted truth, was in the air; dogma was questioned, and many saw this, though some of its propagators may not have intended it to go so far, as a denial of supernatural religion.

The reigning Pope of the time, Pius X, denounced Modernism, as the new movement was called, as being no less than free-thought, a most dangerous heresy. An encyclical, issued in 1907, and a condition he laid down a few years later, that clergy were required to take an anti-Modernist oath, evidenced his firm opposition. And a similar situation was created later when Pius XII, brought face to face with Communism, condemned it time and again, and in 1949 promulgated the sentence of excommunication against any Catholic who countenanced or supported it in any way.

But a very considerable difference soon appeared between the receptions that greeted the opposition expressed by the two Popes. Pius X had been accused, in the main, of arrogance and intolerance. But Pius XII, echoing the sentiments of Pius IX, Leo XIII, and Pius XI, was not only ridiculed by avant-garde journalists, one of whom called him a 'small-town aristocrat', but was actually opposed and contradicted by the man who in

His sympathy for Left-wing politics had never been in doubt. He had co-operated with Communists. His encyclical Populorum Progressio, issued in 1967 on the development of the world, was adversely criticised by the Wall Street Journal as 'warmed up Marxism'¹. But his being ranged openly on their side, and his reversal of earlier Papal judgments, marked a new departure in a Pontiff whose words carried to the greater part of the Christian world.

He was fully in tune with the modern age, and responsive to the currents of the time. He was ready to open doors that every one of his predecessors, even those of doubtful character, had kept fastened. This was made clear in 1969, when he said: 'We are about to witness a greater freedom in the life of the Church, and therefore in that of her children. This freedom will mean fewer obligations, and fewer inward prohibitions. Formal disciplines will be reduced ... every form of intolerance and absolutism will be abolished.'

Such statements were welcomed by some, while others among his listeners were filled with apprehension; and when he referred to some normally accepted religious standpoints as being warped, and entertained only by those who were polarised or extremist, the hopes or fears of both modes of thought appeared to be justified. Was he paving the way for what would virtually be a new religion, freed from established notions and practices, and embracing all the advantages of the modern world, or was he bent on so paring down the established religion until, instead of standing out as decisive, unique, it appeared to be but one faith among many?

So the two sides waited. One in favour of a promised relaxation, the other apprehensive lest many of their traditional supports were about to be dismantled.

Here again, I feel it necessary to repeat, what follows is neither in the nature of attack nor of defence. It is a simple summary of events that occurred, and of declarations made; and if they appear to be partisan, it is not the fault of the present writer, but of Pope Paul who made them all of one character.

He challenged and condemned the unbroken front presented by Pius X in the face of Modernism. The latter's imposition of an anti-Modernist oath was said to have been an error, so Paul abolished it. The Index of forbidden books, and the prerogatives of the Holy Office with its historic right to impose interdicts and excommunication, were now things of the past. The Canon Laws of the Church, hitherto regarded as pillars, the guardians and promulgators of decisions and judgments, were thrown open to criticism and, if need be, to revision. History and text-books, written from a predominantly Catholic viewpoint, were blue-pencilled or re-edited.'

The Church's contacts with the world, and with other religions, were to be more open, and no longer conducted from a height of superior authority, knowledge, and experience. There was declared to be no fixation of absolute truth. Discussion or dialogue was to take the place of declaration. And from these changes a new society of humanist culture would emerge, with an ostensible Catholic background provided by advanced theologians who, under Pius XII, had been kept on the fringes of the Church.

They included Hans Kung, whose views were said to be more anti-orthodox than those advanced by Luther. He was to claim that he had been specially defended by Paul VI. The German Jesuit, Karl Rahner, whose brand of thought had formerly been frowned upon as being too extreme, was now told by Paul to 'forge ahead'. The Dominican Schillebeeckx spread consternation among the already dispirited Dutch clergy with such statements as that Christianity would, sooner or later, have to surrender to atheism, as the most honest and natural man was the one who believed nothing.

Teachers such as these, far from being reprimanded, retained their secure positions and were given a publicity, not usually accorded to churchmen, in the Press. Even an Irish paper referred to Hans Kung and to Schillebeeckx as 'the most outstanding theologians in the world'; and the belief that they were confident of having powerful support was strengthened when it became known, in some ecclesiastical quarters, that prelates such as Suenens and Alfrink had threatened to form a 'Cardinals' Trade Union' if Hans Kung and his writings were condemned.

The total ban on Communism and its supporters, by Pius XII, was taken for granted, although it had never been actually enforced. But even so there were demands for its removal. Instead of an ice-bound resistance to Communism, that had been an accepted feature of the historic Church, a thaw set in, and it soon became no longer remarkable for a priest to speak and act in favour of Marxism. Some accompanied their change of heart with a profession of contempt for the past, as did Robert Adolphs, Prior of the influential Augustinian house of Eindhoven, in Holland.

Writing in The Church is Different (Burns and Oates), he said that the philosophy of St. Thomas Aquinas represented 'a pretty desiccated kind of Western thinking'. He denounced the anti-Modernism of Pius X as a 'Fascist-like movement within the Church', and he ridiculed the warnings given by Pius XII who had imagined that 'he had to do battle with a sort of underground Modernist conspiracy that was making use of a widespread clandestine organisation in order to undermine the foundation of the Catholic Church.'

The Flemish professor, Albert Dondeyne, was more outspoken in Geloof en Wereld (Belief and the World), where he criticised the mental outlook of the Church for always having been convinced as to the total perfidy of Communism. He referred to the Church's habit of presenting things as though Christianity were simply and without reminder opposed to the Communistic order of society as being extremely dangerous.

'Christian society', he went on, 'makes God the servant of a kind of Christian party interest. It may', he continued, 'identify Communism with the Devil; but what if this particular Devil has been conjured up by the errors and shortcomings of Christianity itself?' He admitted that the inhuman aspect of Marxism could not be denied. 'But this does not altogether preclude there being major positive values in Communism to which Christianity of the nineteenth century ought to have been open, and to which Christianity must all the while remain receptive today.'

A similar plea emanated from a most unexpected quarter, the semi-official Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano, which recommended Catholics being taught to collaborate with Marxists for the common good. Communism, it was urged, had changed dramatically since the time of Lenin and of Stalin; and there was now no reason why the Church, if only because of its humanitarian aspect, should not regard it as an ally. Old differences between them were disappearing, and the Church should now recognise, as more than one Western European government was on the point of doing, that Communism had a vital part to play in helping to shape the future.

Traditionalists eyed these advances with no little alarm. As they saw it, a door was being opened by which Marxist elements could enter into their stronghold; and those fears increased when Communist and Vatican officials showed signs of entering into a partnership that had hitherto been unthinkable.

Prelates whose names might be known to the public, the ever serviceable Suenens, Willebrands, Bea, and Konig of Vienna, exhibited a readiness to walk hand-in-hand with agents hot from Moscow, who, but a short time before, had ridiculed the Church's claim to moral sovereignty over the minds of men. Nothing now was said of that claim by either side. Instead a list of everyday details, which maintained a steady growth over the years, showed how atheistic and orthodox spokesmen were passing from dialogue into a series of friendly exchanges.

Archbishop Casaroli, acting as middleman between the Vatican and the satellite States, flew in a Red airliner to the Soviet capital. He and members of the Central Committee raised glasses together in the Kremlin. He dined with KGB officers in Bulgaria, and later in Czechoslovakia. The secular Press circulated such items as proof that the Church had at last come down from its pedestal, and was accepting democracy; and the nervousness previously felt by traditionalists became downright fear when Paul VI, between the years 1967 and 1978, by his own words and actions, gave evidence of that very definite shift in Vatican policy.

Let us telescope and summarise the allusive events of that time. Local armed risings in Africa were everywhere on the increase, and the Pope supported those movements even when they not infrequently led to the massacre of women and children. By a surprising turn-about he said that the Christians in those parts were the terrorists, and the whites the latter had displaced had always exerted an influence that was bad. When the Reds finally took over the provinces of Mozambique and Angola, he hailed them as legitimate representatives of the people, and expressed a personal desire to meet some of the guerrilla leaders.

Three of them, Amilcar Cabral, Agostino Neto, and Marcellino dos Santos, accordingly went to the Vatican, where there was a kissing of hands as the Pope gave them a letter expressing de facto recognition of their Communist regime. But he was less forthcoming when a deputation showed him pictures, some revolting, of murderous activities carried out by West African terrorists. Sceptical journalists exchanged knowing looks when he made very obvious efforts to put them aside.

Equally surprising was the affectionate respect he confessed for Obote of Uganda, who had a long record of violence behind him and who is, at the moment of writing, still in the news as being a more bloodthirsty tyrant than the overthrown Amin. The blacks of Uganda were actually urged by the Pope – it must be the first call of its kind ever to issue from such a quarter – to take up arms against the whites.

In Algiers, many of the half-million Catholics there, under Monsignor Duval, were slaughtered when the overwhelming Moslem population turned against them. Duval abandoned his charges and joined their enemies, an act of betrayal that was rewarded by Pope Paul creating him a Prince of the Church.

Another puzzling situation occurred in Spain, at a time when the shooting of police, by Basque gunmen, was at a startlingly high level. Five of the gunmen were caught and sentenced to death. It was a time of grief for Pope Paul, who called the executions that followed 'a homicidal act of repression'. He offered special prayers, but only for the murderers. Their victims were never mentioned. Thus encouraged by Rome, there was an upsurge of Communism in Mexico and in Latin-American States. Monsignor Ignaccio de Leon, speaking for the Mexican bishops, declared that his Church had shown itself to be useless in the face of social problems. Most fair-minded people will agree that it probably had. But no better example had been shown by the Marxism he openly preached from the pulpit.

Cardinal Henriquez celebrated a Te Deum in his cathedral when Salvador Allende, who boasted of being atheist, became President of Chile. Many Catholics, swayed by the hierarchy, had used their votes to help him to power. The name of Christ was now rarely heard in those once highly orthodox countries, except when it was used to invite a depreciatory comparison with such luminaries as Lenin and Mao Tse Tung. The revolutionary Fidel Castro of Cuba was honoured as a man 'inspired by God'.

Causes that excite suspicion are sometimes covered by euphemistic terms, and observers who were alarmed by Pope Paul's political leanings were liable to be assured that he was following 'a policy of expansionism'. But whatever their nature, his sympathies certainly extended over a wide area. He confessed to feeling close spiritual ties with Red China. He sent his accredited diplomatic agent to the Communist government in Hanoi. He voiced support for the atheistic regimes in Yugoslavia and Cuba. He entered into talks with the Russian controlled government of Hungary. But he was less cordial in his relations with a traditionally orthodox country such as Portugal.

His presence there in May, 1967, excited comment, both on account of the almost casual arrangements he made for meeting the Catholic President, Salazar, and the way in which (as one of his closest colleagues remarked) he practically mumbled when celebrating the Mass that marked the climax of his visit.

It had been taken for granted that he would welcome a meeting with Lucia dos Santos, the last survivor of the three children who, in 1917, witnessed the apparitions, the strange phenomena that accompanied them, at the small town of Fatima. But the Pope put her aside with a testy: 'Now now, later.' As an afterthought he referred her to a bishop.

A different kind of reception was accorded to Claudia Cardinale and Gina Lollabrigida, when the Pope received them at the Vatican. They were certainly not dressed in the approved way for a Papal audience; and the crowd who had assembled to gape at the 'stars' expressed admiration for the Holy Father's broadmindedness.

This would seem to be the place to introduce a report that reached me by way of a M. Maurice Guignard, a former student of the Society of Jesus at the college of St. Francis de Sales, Evreux, Normandy. The report, dated the 7th of August, 1972, originated from a body for the defence of the Faith, of Waterloo Place, Hanover. It was drawn up 'out of obedience' to orders given by Father Arrupe, Superior-General of the Society, and it was the work of Father Saenz Arriaga, Doctor of Philosophy and of Canon Law.

Apart from those influential Jesuits, it was substantiated and countersigned by the following members of the Society:

Cardinal Daniélou, the story of whose mysterious death, in 1974, is told in part seven of this book.

Father Grignottes, private secretary and confessor to Father Arrupe.

Father de Bechillon, former Rector of Evreux.

Father de Lestapis, formerly of Evreux and for some time in charge of Radio Vatican broadcasts.

Father Bosc, formerly professor at Evreux and Professor of Sociology at the University of Mexico.

Father Galloy, member of the faculty of the College of Lyons.

Dealing with the past of Paul VI, it states that from 1936 to 1950 he was prominent in a vast network of espionage that covered some of the countries, on both sides, involved in the Second World War.

It goes on to say that he was a principal shareholder, with a Maronite Archbishop², of a chain of brothels in Rome. He found the money for various films, such as the erotic Temptations of Marianne, which he financed on condition that the leading role was given to a certain actress named Patricia Novarini. When not working at the movie studio, this young lady performed as a striptease artist at the Crazy Horse Saloon, an exclusive night-club in Rome.

The tolerance accorded to film stars was, however, withheld from those who refused, even at great cost to themselves, to compromise with the Russians. One such was Cardinal Slipyi who, as Patriarch of the Ukrainian Church, had witnessed the deaths, deportation, or the unexplained disappearance of some ten million of his fellow Catholics. He was ultimately arrested and spent some years in prison.

When released, he cried out against 'traitors in Rome' who were co-operating with those who had been his oppressors. 'I still carry on my body the marks of the terror', he exclaimed to those who, like Pope Paul, were suddenly afflicted with deafness. The Pope, in fact, refused to recognise him as Patriarch; and from then on Slipyi encountered a surprising number of obstacles and harassments at every turn.

It was only to be expected that the Vatican's attitude would, sooner or later, be reflected by a similar change of heart among the people of Rome; and elections held there in 1978 brought about a result that would once have been regarded as a catastrophe, but which now passed as commonplace. For the newly returned President was Sandro Pertini, a life-long member of the Communist Party who soon introduced measures that affected every sphere in the hitherto settled precincts of Italian family life.

Many Catholics, influenced by the friendly relationship that had existed between the Red leaders and Good Pope John, gave their votes to Pertini.

Traditionalists called to mind the directions given by the Marquis de la Franquerie in L'infailibilité Pontificale to those who were planning to infiltrate the Church: 'Let us popularise vice through the masses. Whatever their five senses strive after it shall be satisfied.... Create hearts full of vice and you will no longer have any Catholics.' And now, as the Marquis had rightly anticipated, a general breakdown occurred in every social grade and every department of life; from junior schools to factories, on the streets, and in the home.

Murders increased, as did the kidnapping of wealthy people who were held to ransom. Crime and chaos flourished as a barrage of anti-police propaganda weakened the law.

The prevailing axiom, and not only among the young, was that 'anything goes'. Pornography flourished. The hammer and sickle emblem was painted on church doors, and scrawls ridiculing priests, the Church, and religion in general appeared on walls and hoardings.

The Pope's reaction to this did not surprise those who were already dismayed by his pro-Communist views. He invited Pertini to the Vatican, where, it was discovered, the two men had so much in common that their meeting was afterwards described by the Pope as having been emotional. 'The encounter brought us very close', he said. 'The eminent visitor's words were simple, profound, and full of solicitude for the welfare of man, for all humanity.'

In the same year Giulio Argan became Mayor of Rome. He too was a hardened Communist, and his election provided further proof of the way in which the political pendulum was swinging in Italy. Pope Paul, expressing satisfaction with the turn of events, looked forward to working with the mayor in a spirit of 'desire, confidence, and anticipated gratitude.'

We have so far given instances of the Pope's personal commitment to Marxist principles. And that he was by no means averse to compromising with or surrendering the Church's doctrine was proved by the way he handled the case of Alighiero Tondi, a priest who left the Church and became an ardent worker for Moscow.

Tondi married Carmen Zanti, whom he chose as being the possessor of a 'melancholy look and a sweet voice.' Tondi had never been dispensed from his former vows, but Pope Paul had no difficulty in declaring that his marriage, void of any religious form, was canonically valid.

Meanwhile Carmen had used her voice to such good effect that she was elected to the Soviet Chamber of Deputies, and afterwards to the Senate. Then, both KGB agents, they went to Berlin where Carmen, who was obviously more pushing than Tondi (who was experiencing qualms of conscience), became the leader of the Women's Communist organisation.

Tondi, who never quite forgot his ordination, was suffering a premature dread of hell fire, and wished to return to the Church. Nothing could be easier, said the not-at-all squeamish Pope Paul. He removed the ban of excommunication from the penitent, assured him that he had no need to recant, and declared that his marriage was still perfectly valid.

The fact of Communism having been given 'a human face', and by no less a legislator than the Head of the Church, was not without effect on other countries. When the National Committee of Catholic Action for Workers met in France, it was attended by seven card-carrying members of the Communist Party. The French Bishops overlooked their anti-national and disruptive tendencies.

In England, Cardinal Hume of Westminster expressed sympathy for movements that challenged the authority of governments opposed to the Left. And in February 1981, Cardinal Gray and his Auxiliary Bishop, Monsignor Monaghan, leaders of the Archdiocese of St. Andrews and Edinburgh, called on Catholics to support Amnesty International, a movement that, under the banner of Human Rights, gave what help it could, moral and otherwise, to agitators who, in several parts of the world, worked for the overthrow of established order.

Dissatisfied elements within the Church, who had weaker voices and no clenched fist to emphasise their protest, soon discovered that they had no right of appeal against the imposition of what, to them, was a more deadly danger than heresy. A spokesman for traditional Catholics in America, Father Gommar de Pauw, explained their bewilderment to the Vatican, and begged for guidance. His letter was not even acknowledged. When it was announced that a congress of Spanish priests, for the defence of the Mass, would be held at Saragossa, an edict issued by Pope Paul, at almost the last minute, prevented the meeting.

The once proudly independent colours of the Catholic Church were hauled perceptibly lower when Pope Paul entered into 'dialogue' with the World Council of Churches.

At that time, 1975, more than two hundred and seventy religious organisations, of various kinds, were grouped under the Council, and it soon became clear that it stood for the liberation theories that had been introduced by John XXIII and since furthered by Paul VI. It had funds to spare for subversive movements in what is called the Third World, so that even our Press was forced to complain of the support it handed out.

Its gifts were not niggardly. For instance, as the Daily Express deplored, £45,000 had gone to terrorists who were responsible for the massacre of white women, children, and missionaries; and the Anglican Church Times remarked that the World Council of Churches 'has developed a political bias recognisably Marxist in its preference for a revolution of a Left-ward character.'

The Catholic Church had always stood apart from the World Council. But the advent of ecumenism had changed all that, and the Council's dangerous tendencies were made light of in order to foster harmony between the different religions.

Pope Paul, acclaimed as being always ready to move with the times, was willing to see eye to eye with the Council. But he had to move warily, as Catholic opinion throughout the world had, so far, been well trained to resist any encroachment upon its rights and its historical claim.

So when asked whether an alliance could be effected, he returned a diplomatic 'not yet'. But he showed where his sympathies were by following that up with a personal gift of £4,000 to further the Council's work and its aid to guerrillas.

The present Pope, John Paul II, has announced his intention of renewing negotiations with the pro-terrorists.

There is a more sinister note on which to end this summary of Pope Paul's intransigence.

The name of a self-confessed devil worshipper, Cardonnel, is practically unknown here; but in other countries his writings excited a variety of feelings ranging from awed admiration to horror in those who read them.

As a member of the Dominican Order, he was given permission to speak in Paris Notre-Dame in mid-Lent 1968. Listeners were struck by his rabid anti-Christian expressions, on account of which he was called 'le théologien de la mort de Dieu' (the God's death theologian). He boasted of the title, left his Order and finally the Church, and became a hardened devil-worshipper. In a typical outburst he likened the Christian God to Stalin, to a beast, and finally to Satan.

Pope Paul admired his work; and although he ignored requests from Catholics who wished to safeguard their religion, he made a special point of writing to Cardonnel, congratulating him and sending good wishes.

Part Nine

O change beyond report, thought, or belief!
Milton.

The following section has been written with some misgivings. For on the one hand it leads up, in a subsequent part, to events that are startling, obscene, desecrating, which have taken place in buildings consecrated by ritual and by history, that the still practising Catholic may prefer to ignore. While on the other hand it deals with the Church's teaching on the Mass, or rather, on what the Church taught about the Mass when it still spoke with an authority that was recognised even by those who refused to accept it.

It is therefore necessary, to clear the understanding of those who may not have been acquainted with that teaching, to glance at a few essential aspects concerning it.

The Mass was not merely a service. It was the central act in the Church's life, a great mystery by which bread and wine were consecrated and so became the actual body and blood of Christ. It was the sacrifice of Calvary enacted over again, an earnest of the salvation effected by Christ who was there, under the sacred species of bread ('This is my Body') and wine, upon the altar.

Whenever a Catholic found himself in strange surroundings, the Mass was there as a rallying point for his worship. So it had been, with but a few minor alterations, for Latin Catholics from the earliest Christian centuries (beginning, roughly, from the seventh century) on record. And so it would remain, the Church taught and the faithful believed, until the end of time, a bulwark against error that inspired an air of sanctity – or impressive hanky-panky, call it what you will – that was recognised by devotee and disbeliever alike.

Typical of those who knew this was the Liberal and Protestant Augustine Birrell, 1850-1933, who was sometime Secretary for Ireland. 'It is the Mass that matters', he said. 'It is the Mass that makes the difference, so hard to define, between a Catholic country and a Protestant one, between Dublin and Edinburgh.'

The unique quality of what may be called, in pedestrian terms, a landmark in religion, has always influenced the plans of those who set out to overcome the Church. The Mass has always stood in their path, a stumbling block that had to be demolished before their attack could make headway. It was denigrated as a base superstition, a mere operation of the hands, accompanied by words, that deceived the over-credulous. The assault against it was heaviest, and partly successful, in the sixteenth century; and when the Church recovered its breath it called a Council that took its name from the little town of Trent, which later became an Italian province, where the principles of the Counter-Reformation were defined. And those principles took shape, largely, as a defence of the focal point that had never been lost sight of – the Mass.

It was codified by Pius V, the future saint who had started life as a shepherd boy and who, in keeping with Rome's verdict that Henry VIII's marriage to Anne Boleyn had been invalid, declared that their child, the English Queen Elizabeth I, was therefore both heretic and bastard. And from then on the echoes of his firm, uncompromising yet always dignified thunder had lived on in association with the old Romanesque cathedral of Trent, the place that gives its name, Tridentine, to the order of the Mass that was intended to pass into general use for the whole Church, and for all time.

The Missal he drew up, and in which this was decreed, leaves no doubt as to that: 'At no time in the future can a priest ever be forced to use any other way of saying Mass. And in order once for all to preclude any scruples of conscience and fear of ecclesiastical penalties and censures, we declare herewith that it is by virtue of our Apostolic authority that we decree and prescribe that this present order of ours is to last in perpetuity and never at a future date can it be revoked or legally amended.'

The decree specifically warned 'all persons in authority, of whatever dignity or rank, Cardinals not excluded, and to command them as a matter of strict obedience never to use or permit any ceremonies and Mass prayers other than those contained in this Missal.'

This was repeated, as though to make doubly clear, even to those who were already converted, that he was speaking as Pope: 'And so this Council reaches the true and genuine doctrine about this venerable and divine Sacrifice of the Eucharist – the doctrine which the Catholic Church has always held, and which She will hold until the end of the world, as She learned it from Christ Our Lord Himself, from the Apostles, and from the Holy Ghost.'

Few Papal assertions have been more explicit. The Mass, as generally known, was to be preserved, unaltered and unalterable, for all time. But Cardinal Bugnini, who had gone on clinging to the office after his membership of a secret society had become known, and Paul VI, who affected to be unaware of any such revelation, made short work of Pope St. Pius V's pronouncement.

It later became known that some twenty years before Vatican Two made pulp of the traditional Mass book, a priest-professor had been detailed to draw up plans for gradual liturgical changes; while in December 1963 the Council introduced new practices and a new phraseology that, at first, made little impact on the public.

But now Pope Paul and Cardinal Bugnini, assisted by Cardinal Lercaro, went straight ahead, with the assistance of non-Catholics whom they called 'authoritative experts of sacred theology.'

The experts called in to amend the Most Holy Sacrament of the Catholic Church comprised one or two Protestants; Canon Ronald Jasper; Robert McAfee Brown, a Presbyterian; Brother Thurion, who was a Lutheran; a Calvinist, a Rabbi, and a certain Joachim Jeremias, a one-time Professor of Gottingen University who denied the divinity of Christ.

Bugnini said that they were merely present as observers, that they had no voice when the changes were discussed. But apart from the fact that they claimed to have played an active part in the Concilium, that they commented upon it and made suggestions, one need only ask: why, without some set purpose, were they ever invited to participate?

Whatever this very mixed bag decided, said Pope Paul, would be 'in accordance with God's will'. It was also intended to correspond to the temper of 'modern man'. And what emerged from their deliberations was a Novus Ordo (New Mass) missal, a veritable sign of the times which meant that the era of a 'MiniMass,' and of 'pop' music in Church, with all the profanities it led to, was about to begin.

Such innovations extracted a blind obedience from those who believed that conformity to whatever was said and done by the priesthood, especially in church, was a virtue. Some who questioned the changes were told not to presume any further. It was said to be contumacious, and displeasing to God; while the fact that many were resolute in opposing the changes, and turned their backs upon the Novus Ordo, called forth the charge that they were in mortal sin, and inflicting another wound on the loving Father who was waiting to welcome them.

After all, the Vatican and its spokesman-in-chief, Pope Paul, had approved the changes. A revolution had been achieved, and it was all for the good. The old Roman Missal had become a back number. The progressives were cock-a-hoop. And now they proceeded to pass beyond their original objective and pressed forward.

A number of what may at first appear to be minor practices came under their scrutiny. Genuflecting, and kneeling to receive Holy Communion, were found to be unnecessary. One entering a church, the interior of which had long been familiar, suffered a shock when it was seen that the perhaps priceless Travertine altar had been replaced by a table, at which the priest, who was now sometimes called the president, faced the people and, in a clumsy vernacular instead of the old verbal music (for Latin has always been hated by the enemies of the Church) invited the congregation to join in a 'repast'.

The manner of receiving Communion now differed greatly. The Host might be given into the hand, as was evidenced when Pope Paul celebrated a New Mass at Geneva. A number of Hosts were passed to a girl who was standing conveniently near, and these she distributed into the hands, sometimes grubby or sticky, of those about her, or into the hand of any chance looker-on who came up to see what was being given away.

Another method was to place the one-time Sacred Elements in a chalice and then invite the people to come forward and help themselves. An extra relish could be given to the bread by dunking it in the wine. It had hitherto been out of the question for non-Catholics to receive Communion at Mass. But Pope Paul introduced a new 'updating' by permitting a self-confessed Presbyterian lady, Miss Barberina Olsen, to receive the wafer.

His example was followed. First Cardinal Bea, and after him Cardinal Willebrands, empowered their Bishops to issue an open invitation; and then Cardinal Suenens, at the close of a Congress at Medellion, in Columbia, called on all and sundry to come forward with open mouth or ready hand.

A more decisive battle was fought out in Rome, where Bugnini's New Mass was celebrated in the Sistine Chapel. A large majority of the prelates who were present voted against it. The actual numbers were seventy-eight in favour, two hundred and seven against. The orthodox Cardinal Ottaviani, who never lost caste, examined the text of the vandalised version, and found that it contained some twenty heresies.

'The New Mass', he said, 'departs radically from Catholic doctrine and dismantles all defences of the Faith.' The same sentiment was expressed by Cardinal Heenan of Westminster: 'The old boast that the Mass is everywhere the same ... is no longer true.'

Ottaviani was head of the Holy Office, which exercised guardianship over faith and morals. Pope Paul clamped down upon the office, and clipped the Cardinal's claws; and he was so annoyed by the adverse vote that he forbade the New Mass ever to be the subject of a ballot again. From then on it was given official, but not popular sanction. Thousands of people, who would not tolerate a form of the Mass that was less dignified than the Protestant Communion service, either left or stopped going to church. Many priests followed suit. Those who stood by the incontrovertible ruling of Pius V on the Mass were threatened with suspension, or even excommunication.

One of the first to be declared anathema for observing the old Mass, was a priest who was somewhat remote from the scenes of tension, a Father Carmona of Acapulco, in Mexico. Bishop Ackermann of Covington, America, when faced with a number of orthodox and therefore recalcitrant priests in his diocese, lamented helplessly, 'What can I do? I can't throw them into jail.' Their doubts were embodied in a question that was left for Pope Paul to answer – whether the introduction of the New Mass was the beginning of an age of new darkness on the earth, or the harbinger of an unprecedented crisis within the Church?

He refused to answer. And the same wall of silence was encountered by a deputation of priests who begged for a return to the traditional. Mass; while thousands from several parts of Europe, who went to Rome with the same purpose in mind, were turned away.

Those who brought about the changes had not been working blindly. They had followed a plan, in conformance with the secret design that furnishes the theme of these pages. They now had the future in their hands, and the confident way in which they accepted this was made clear by an article in L'Osservatore Romano, which depicted the pretty hopeless future awaiting those priests who braved the wrath of the Vatican by carrying out the duties for which they had been trained. They would, said the article, become 'headless, autonomous priests facing an arid, squalid life. No sheltered future, no promotion to the hierarchy, no expectation of a pension at the end of their ministry.'

One who had been most zealous in promoting the changes sang their praises in the following terms: 'It is a different liturgy of the Mass. We want to say it plainly. The Roman rite as we knew it exists no more. It has gone. Some walls of the structure have fallen, others have been altered. We can look at it now as a ruin or as the particular foundation of a new building. We, must not weep over ruins or dream of an historical reconstruction. Open new ways, or we shall be condemned as Jesus condemned the Pharisees.'¹

Pope Paul was equally extreme in approving the findings of the Second Vatican Council's commission on the Liturgy: 'The old rite of the Mass is in fact the expression of a warped ecclesiology.'

Reading that, some may have been reminded of the old Coronation Oath, that ran as follows:²

'I vow to change nothing of the received tradition, and nothing thereof I found before me guarded by my God-pleasing predecessors, to encroach, to alter, or permit any innovation therein.

'To the contrary; with glowing affection to reverently safeguard the passed on good, with my whole strength and my utmost effort. To cleanse all that is in contradiction with canonical order that may surface.

'To guard the whole canons and decrees of our Popes likewise as divine ordinances of heaven, because I am conscious of Thee, whose place I take through the grace of God.

'If I should undertake to act in anything of contrary sense, or permit that it will be executed, Thou wilt not be merciful to me on the dreadful day of Divine Justice.

'Accordingly, without exclusion, we subject to severest excommunication anyone – be it myself or be it another – who would dare to undertake anything new in contradiction to this constituted evangelical tradition and the purity of the orthodox Faith and the Christian religion, or would seek to change anything by his opposing efforts, or would concur with those who undertake such blasphemous venture.'

Whenever this oath may have been taken at the time of a coronation, I know not. But its principles, until the Roncalli era, were tacitly accepted and endorsed as a conventional part of Papal observance.

For instance, one of the greatest and most gifted of the Popes, Pius II (1458-64) in his Bull Execrabilis, repeated a law that was endorsed through the centuries and accepted, without modification, by what has always been referred to as the magisterium of the Church: 'Any Council called to make drastic change in the Church is beforehand decreed to be void and annulled.'

But Paul VI, the friend of Communists, who collaborated with the anarchist Alinsky and with the Mafia gangster, Sindona, issued his own statement of policy which appeared in L'Osservatore Romano, on April the 22nd, 1971, English edition:

'We moderns, men of our own day, wish everything to be new. Our old people, the traditionalists, the conservatives, measured the value of things according to their enduring quality. We, instead, are actualists, we want everything to be new all the time, to be expressed in a continually improvised and dynamic unusual form.

It was raving of this sort (reminiscent of 'Peter Simple's' sarcasm in The Daily Telegraph) that led to the introduction of eatables such as roast beef, jellies, and hot dogs, washed down by draughts of coca-cola, in the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, and to nuns clicking their heels and twisting their bodies, in a kind of carmagnole, to mark the Offertory.

'Anti-Christ', said Hilaire Belloc in 1929, 'will be a man.'

But perhaps the most ludicrous justification of the change was put forward by one of our most 'progressive' Bishops, who said to the present writer: 'The New Mass got off to a ringing start yesterday. The guitars were going all over my diocese.'

The doctrinal and liturgical changes in the Church were not long in showing the effects that the conservatives had forecast; and startling though many of them were, they still remain largely unknown even to people who live in the countries where they occurred.

It used to be looked back upon as an outrage of the most extreme order when, during the French Revolution, a harlot was hoisted on to the altar of Notre Dame where she was crowned and worshipped as the Goddess of Reason; or when Chartres Cathedral was on the point of being converted into a Temple of Reason.

But such things pale into insignificance when compared with the desecrations and obscenities that have taken place, often with the approval of prelates, in some of the most revered Catholic minsters on both sides of the Atlantic.

There was a marked falling off from established ritual when such things as a communal supper took the place of a solemn Mass; when the priest, armed with a bread knife, had a large loaf placed in front of him which he proceeded to cut into chunks, helping the others and then himself until a general munching of jaws showed their appreciation of the Body of Christ. Such suppers, served in a parishioner's house, became a regular feature of Dutch family life. Sometimes the 'lady of the house', instead of a priest, officiated at Mass that was served in her 'best room'.

There were not a few places where the traditional office of priest was taken over by a woman, who walked among the congregation giving out the Sacrament to any who stood with gaping mouth and a nauseous display of tongue and teeth. Sometimes it was placed in the sweaty hand of a child, or between the trembling fingers and palm of a geriatric who promptly dropped it on the floor, where it could be trampled; or it might be self-administered.

One small girl came away from Mass, in one of the more 'advanced' quarters of Holland, saying that she had learnt more there than she ever had through seeing her brother in a bath. For the altar-boy who, in England, would have passed for a fourth former, had been naked.

Pope Paul, determined not to lag behind in the scurry for progress, signed a special edict whereby any who cared to help themselves to the Blood of Christ could suck it up through a straw. In that way some churches came to resemble a coffee bar, especially when the blare of a discotheque issued from the sanctuary, together with the shouting, strumming, and stamping of feet that accompany the celebration of a jazz Mass, a beat, and a 'yeah-yeah' Mass. There were teenage Masses where, instead of the sacramental Bread and Wine, hot dogs, buns, and coca-cola were served. At others, whisky and cream crackers took the place of the elements. Some priests found the wearing of an alb inconvenient when saying Mass, and so resorted to shirt-sleeves.

The new freedom offered a chance for political extremists to advertise their usually Left-wing tenets. One of the foremost seminaries in Canada was sold to Chinese Reds, who tore out the tabernacle and put in its place a portrait of the wholesale murderer Mao Tse Tung. It later became a training centre for revolutionary street fighters.

In September, 1971, the Catholic school at Vald'Or, Abitibi, Quebec, initiated a new game for boys. It consisted of spitting at the figure of Christ on the cross, and the one who covered the face with the biggest spit was declared winner. This was reported in the French-Canadian paper, Vers Demain, in September, 1971.

In one South American province, where disturbances rarely died down, a local Bishop Casaldaliga came out on the side of the Russian-inspired insurgents. He adopted the rough and ready garb of a guerrilla, complete with cartridge belt, and went on preaching and officiating at Mass under the name he gave himself, Monsignor Hammer and Sickle.

But a truly sinister scene was enacted at the basilica of St. Maria de Guadalupe in Mexico City, where a goat was sacrificed in front of the high altar. Now it is not only the fact of an animal being killed, and in church, that excites comment. It seems to have called for none from the people there present who gaped, were astonished, and then walked away no doubt concluding that it was all part of the new order within the Church. And so it was. But Archbishop Gomez, who had charge of the basilica, knew more than that, as did the strange crowd of people to whom he actually rented it for the occasion.

The goat, said to have been created by the Devil, figures in the Satanic lore of those whose secret design has always been the downfall of the Church. The happening referred to resembles part of the old pre-Christian ritual, when a goat was sacrificed at an altar during the Day of Atonement. The sins of the High Priest, and of the people, were transferred to a second animal of the same species, which then became the scapegoat and was driven into the wilderness; or, in demonology, it was forced over a cliff into the hell-fire that was tended by Azazel, a fallen angel.

Hence it was no ordinary Mass but a Black Mass that was celebrated in Mexico City, with the use of an inverted cross, an event that was filmed and recorded by those who arranged it.

But such things marked only a beginning, as did a growing clamour, supported by priests, for abortion, and for sexual aberrations to be recognized as perfectly normal. There were priests who almost shouted from the housetops that they were glad to be homosexual, as it was a privilege that conferred the 'psychological fulfilment of one's personality'. It became accepted, in some parts, for perverts of the same sex to be married in church.

In Paris, a man and a woman, minus every stitch of clothing, paraded their nakedness before an altar, where they were married by a priest who conveyed to them what has been called the 'sublime' nuptial blessing. Advanced Holland, not to be outdone, reacted with the news that a couple of male homos had exchanged vows and tokens in a church wedding; while an American priest, who was still holding on despite the fact that he had been cited in a divorce case, gleefully smote his breast and affirmed that he too was an emancipated moral pervert, which he afterwards ratified by uniting a pair of lesbians in matrimony.

It was a fruitful time for cranks and opportunists of every kind. An ex-nun, Rita Mary, joined an American lay community whose members were committed to the 'new spirit emerging in religious life'. A breath from that spirit of newness suddenly revealed to her that 'God the Father is female'. Others who favoured the cause of women's liberation adopted the same slogan, and as part of their campaign cars adorned with stickers exhorting people to 'Pray to God, she will provide' appeared on the streets.

Traders were quick to seize upon it as a good stunt, and Rita Mary's vehicles were soon joined by others offering a more material tip: 'With Jesus on your side you can be a more successful businessman.'

Still keeping to America, there was a gathering at Stubenville, Ohio, in July 1976, at which a thousand priests endorsed a novel intention to 'de-clericalise the ministry', which meant, in effect, putting themselves out of work. They were advised to get ready for the collapse of the social order; then, after prayers, some discovered that they had been given the gift of healing. A general laying on of hands followed, and from that the mixed congregation, amid shouting, fell to hugging and kissing each other.

Bursts of spontaneous affection, as we shall see, were fast becoming a feature of the New Mass, as also was a growing obsession with sex. The 'exploration of touch', referring to bodies, became a new kind of worship.

At a meeting in Philadelphia, where Cardinal Wright and eight of his Bishops were present, the main speaker, Father Gallagher, told his audience that 'touching is crucial'. And it may be assumed that many suppressed instincts found a relief that had long been clamoured for in the words that followed: 'Do not hold hands sexlessly.' The nine prelates conveyed smiles and blessings to the 'love in', as such displays of emotion were coming to be called, that followed.

A variation on the same theme was heard at the National Pastoral Congress at Liverpool in 1980, where a declaration was passed that, much to the surprise of a representative English audience, deified the most taken-for-granted of their marital acts: 'During sexual intercourse a man and his wife create Christ': a statement that sounds suspiciously like Aleister Crowley's words, that 'sexual organs are the image of God'.

The latest excursion into the realm of ecclesiastical nonsense (January, 1982) has been made by Bishop Leo McCartie, the Catholic Auxiliary Bishop of Birmingham. Let Rastafarians, he urged, the mostly young blacks who wear woolly caps and plait their hair into strings, be given the use of church premises. They worship the late Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia as the true god, they believe that Christ was black, and they smoke cannabis as part of their religious ritual.

The Bishop admits that the Church could not condone the smoking of cannabis on its premises, but only because it is against the law (my emphasis). But Rastafarianism, he goes on, is a valid religious experience, and its followers use cannabis like a sacrament, 'which is comparable to the chalice or communion cup in Christian worship'. So now we know.

Let us take a few more instances of what the modernistic trend has achieved in America, all, let it be remembered, without calling forth more than an isolated protest, here and there, from any of the hierarchy. Moreover it was all approved by Pope Paul as was shown by the presence of his official representative who passed on Papal greetings to those who dressed up, cavorted, and made irreligious idiots of themselves to demonstrate the new freedom.

For the past two years, on June the 28th, St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York, has been the finishing point of what is known, to ecclesiastical and secular authorities alike, as a Gay Parade. In 1981 an estimated crowd of 50,000 marched up Fifth Avenue, led by a figure with a whitened face, and wearing a frilly ankle-length dress and a bonnet, who spun up and down the road and pavement in front of the cathedral on roller-skates. At least one of the lookers-on recognised the figure as being that of a reputable Wall Street broker.

An individual who was hailed as the Grand Marshal of the Parade then stepped from a black limousine, performed clown-like on the steps then, delicately holding a bouquet of pansies, made as if to enter the front door. By that time a Mr. McCauley, who practised as a New York attorney, already sickened by what he had seen, snatched the flowers and threw them in the faces of those who swarmed after the Marshal. A scuffle broke out, and police led the objector away.

It took two hours for the parade to pass a given point and gather about the cathedral. Some were dressed as priests, others were nuns; some were wearing black leather and chains. There was a group called Dignity, and another known as the North American Man-Boy Love Association. They carried a large sign announcing that 'Man-Boy Love is Beautiful', the older members walking arm-in-arm with boys, whose average age was about thirteen, and some of whom wore bathing suits.

The Gay Socialists carried a red banner, and shouted their hatred of God and the Church as they marched. But their frenzy was more than matched by that of the Gay Militant Atheists, who roared in unison: 'Smash the Church! Death to the Church!' Another cry of 'Smash the State!' showed that the real driving power behind the demonstration was making itself heard.

Then came an interlude as a male, in a nun's habit and trailing a cross upside down, executed a dance, accompanied by obscene gestures, for a full half-hour. That was followed by a group that came forward and made as if to light a candle at the cathedral door. By then Mr. McCauley had returned. He renewed his protest, asked the police to stop the outrageous performances, and was promptly arrested.

The homosexuals then proceeded to drape a large banner about the barricades they had erected at the front steps of the cathedral. A captain of the City Fire Department then came forward and asked a police officer to intervene. The officer turned his back, whereupon the Fire Chief seized the banner, rolled it up and threw it on the ground.

The yelling mob swarmed over him. He was pulled down, his jacket was torn from his back, blows rained upon him, his fingers were seized and bent in an effort to break them, his legs were forced apart and hands reached for and grabbed his genitals. When he could speak, he told the police officer that he wished to press charges against those who had attacked him. The policeman sneered: 'Come back tomorrow at the same time and see if you can recognise them.' When the Fire Chief persisted, the policeman gripped his revolver so tightly and menacingly that his knuckles were seen to whiten.

Only two people were arrested, Mr. McCauley and the Fire Chief, both for disorderly conduct. They later heard the charges against them being framed. One police official said: 'Say that you saw him assault someone.' Another said: 'Put in that he broke through the police line.'

Meanwhile the parade was going on, with the cathedral front being emblazoned with provocative signs and banners, one announcing that 'Jesus was a homosexual.' Doggerel was chanted. 'Two, four, six, eight. Do you know if your kids are straight?' Finally a flag was hung from the cathedral door. It was designed like the American flag, except that in place of the stars, sex symbols and representations of the penis were substituted.

The demonstrators, followed by a large crowd; made their way to Central Park, where they engaged in a free-for-all public exhibition of sex acts. Frightened people who had gone to the cathedral in search of consolation or quiet bunched together throughout the afternoon in side chapels and corners. When approached on the matter, the members of the Diocesan Curia said there had been nothing to complain about.

In Virginia, a priest drove a Volkswagen down the aisle of his church to mark Christ's entry into Jerusalem. Later he had a forklift placed in the churchyard and climbed into its basket, where he stood waving his arms while being lifted up to commemorate Ascension Day. In Boston, Massachusetts, priests attired as clowns, with red hearts decorating their foreheads, scrambled and jostled about a church trying to catch balloons. A priest wearing a singlet and jeans cavorted in church with a girl whose flesh bulged from her leotard.

In this country, one Sunday evening, television went out of its way to show an Auxiliary Bishop processing up the aisle of one of our Catholic cathedrals. He was led to the altar by a young girl who danced and skipped about in front of him like a young horse. The celebration of Holy Mass in another church concluded with the singing of 'For he's a jolly good fellow.'³

Similar outbreaks occurred even in Latin countries, where the mysteries of the Church had long been part of the national consciousness, its blood and bone. For visitors to a church near Grenoble, in the Isere department of France, on a day in 1970, were surprised to see that the ornaments and candlesticks were being removed from the altar, and that the space before it was cleared. Then ropes were put in place to form a business-like representation of a ring where, according to the bills, an international boxing contest was to take place.

At the appointed time, a throng that was far from typical of the usual one seen there, and mostly male, shuffled, stumbled, or made their way arrogantly into the building where some of them had been baptised, and some married. As they acquired a more familiar feeling odds were shouted and bets made, but details of the fight were never recorded. Whether it was won on points, or by a knock-out; who acted as referee or time-keeper, and who plied the sponges; how much the church funds profited from the purse or the takings, none of this appears in the parish register. Neither does a protest from the Bishop.

On a Friday in early December, 1974, the coronation church of France, Rheims Cathedral, was given over to a horde of hippies and layabouts for one of their all-night sessions. The Archbishop and his clergy, who had obligingly provided the setting, may have noted, with a feeling of envy, as the prematurely aged youth of the district poured in, that they far exceeded in number those who were seen at High Mass on Sundays and Holy Days.

Cacophony was provided by the Tangerine Orange Group, and when the mixed congregation grew tired of waving their arms and shuffling in time to the uproar, they settled down to an orgy of drugs and hashish smoking.

When this affair became known, angry parishioners demanded that the Cathedral, which occupies a special place in history, should undergo a service of purification.

But their protests were waved aside by Father Bernard Goreau, who held the always questionable post of 'cultural attaché' of the archdiocese. He agreed that the dancers and smokers had been left to their own devices for hours in the Gothic darkness. 'But', he added, 'things might have been worse.'

Indeed they might. We are told that they only urinated and copulated on the stone floor ... over which the Kings of old France had passed on the way to their anointing, and where Joan of Arc, holding her blazon, had stood like a soldier home from the war.

Also in France, it was not unknown for a priest to light and smoke a cigarette while saying Mass.

Even Rome was not immune from the sacrilegious parodies that followed the new religious freedom, the opening of the windows of the Church. The scene of one, in 1975, was the classroom of a Roman convent. Pope Paul was present, but the star turn was provided by Fred Ladenius, a gentleman from the Middle West who had acquired celebrity through appearing on Belgian television. He had furthermore been spoken of by an enthusiast as 'the born again spirit, whose God updated the Jesus of 1974 by being the God of 1975.'4

Fred set about his task right manfully, stripping off his jacket and giving voice to almost incoherent ravings for which, he said, he was in no way responsible. What they heard were some of the truths he had received, that very morning, from the Lord's mouth. For the Lord spoke and prophesied through him. Fred accompanied these revelations by flinging up his arms so violently that he broke into a sweat. But he was by no means exhausted. He rolled up his shirt-sleeves and invited all those who wished to receive the Lord, to come up 'rapido'.

Fred, though still in a state of undiminished perspiration, waved his hands frantically over the heads of those who accepted the invitation, and accompanied each gesture with a cry of 'Hallelujah!' At the end of these ministrations the school blackboard was moved to make way for a table, on which were placed two chalices, one holding wine, and the other wafers of the kind that are used to celebrate Mass.

Then everyone fell into line and followed the example of Fred, who took out a wafer and dipped it in the wine before transferring it to his mouth. The meeting broke up amid more and louder cries of 'Hallelujah!' in which the Pope joined, and with further manifestations that the spirit was indeed moving amongst them.

Fred was duly rewarded by being sent for by the Pope, who thanked him warmly for all the good work he was doing for the Church. Fred stayed on in Rome, where he acted for a time as the Vicar of Christ's Press Secretary.

In the Church's calendar, one year in every twenty-five is declared to be a Holy Year. It is a time of special pilgrimages, when millions do penance to mark their adherence to the Faith and to obtain what is called the Great Pardon. Throughout that time Rome is seething with visitors from every part of the world, and on the last occasion of a Holy Year being declared, in 1975, Pope Paul extended a welcome, couched in the terms of emancipated religion to the 'new generation who had come in search of a liberating and inspiring aid, in search of a new word, a new ideal.'

Those who attended High Mass in St. Peter's on May the 19th, half-way through Holy Year, in expectation of those spiritual advantages, were in no way disappointed. They numbered some ten thousand. Cardinal Suenens officiated at the high altar. Pope Paul was present. Five hundred priests were ranged about them. This is how an experienced Catholic journalist described what happened when the time came to receive Holy Communion:5

'It was not uncommon to see what one first thought of as white petals being scattered among the congregation. Only when I could push my way nearer did I realise that they were handfuls of consecrated Hosts, that the Cardinal's hench-priests were scattering among the crowd.... They fell on the shoulders of men, on the dyed and coverless heads of women, and as was inevitable, not a few fell on the ground and were trampled upon by the crowd.

'I spoke to a lady standing near me who was gobbling a number of them together. I asked her where she came from and was she a Catholic. She came from Egypt, she replied, and in fact had no religious persuasion, but her feelings were in favour of Mohammedanism.'

Tape-recorders were held high above the assembly, that was fast being galvanised into a state of excitement. Suddenly a voice boomed out through a microphone placed near the altar that God was not only present but was now, in fact, actually speaking, albeit in a strong and nasal American accent – one wonders whether the ubiquitous Fred was in action again?

Then Pope Paul took up the running. He gathered up handfuls of Hosts, pressed them upon people whose mouths were already full of the consecrated species, so that they could only free their hands by passing the Hosts on to others, who either crumpled them up or dropped them on the floor. The Pope, beginning to give an address, had to raise his voice in order to be heard above the growing turmoil, to which he added by exclaiming a further anachronistic 'Hallelujah!' and flinging up his arms.

By now some of the people were dancing. Others squatted or huddled on the floor among the trodden fragments of what, those same people had been taught, was the body of Christ. They swayed in time to a low moaning, an expression of the ecstasy inspired by the occasion, that grew in volume until it filled the basilica.

Still in the same year, a visitor to the church of St. Ignatius, in the street that bears the name of the founder of the Jesuits, in Rome, would have noticed that a heavy curtain was covering the main altar. Moreover, the seats had been turned round, as though to indicate that those who attended the service did not wish to be reminded of the lapis lazuli urn containing the relics of St. Aloysius Gonzaga.

A battery of microphones and loud-speakers was in evidence, and through one of these the voice of an Irish-American Jesuit, Father Francis Sullivan, was heard announcing, in the approved style of a follower of General Booth, that they had come together in order to praise the Lord. He went on to hammer home the fact that religion was in a state of flux, that everything was changing, and that it was a waste of time to take a nostalgic look back at things that used to be believed. His statements met with the smiling approval of Cardinal Suenens, who could always be relied on to patronise 'way out' effusions.

By now the Romans were getting used to having their faith supervised by oracles from the States; and they listened attentively when a second voice, from the same place of origin as Father Sullivan's, exhorted them to love one another. People who were packing the church, thus encouraged, began to use their eyes, exchange looks, and to sidle alongside the person of their choice. Did they imagine, the voice went on, that the gift of love was a privilege intended for the early Church only? Of course it wasn't!

With that, cries of agreement nearly split the roof, and couples fell into each other's arms, sprawling on the floor, arms and legs flailing, fingers and mouths giving vent to a passion that was no longer fearsomely restrained by their surroundings, but which could now find expression in a freedom akin to that known to lovers in a ditch. Those who were barred, by age or infirmity, from taking part in the spectacle, savoured it with a lickerish look, or danced a few steps, or sang the praises of the Host whose house they had turned into a Bedlam. Hallelujah! God was good, and all this showed that churchgoing could now be a joyous event.

At the height of the uproar, a friar in the brown garb of St. Francis of Assisi somehow managed to make himself heard. He was in dire physical straits, aware of a strange, mystical, and maternal sensation. He felt exactly as Mary had done when conceiving the Son. Full of grace ... more applause ... and Hallelujah again.

What was left of St. Aloysius in his urn remained silent, as also did St. Ignatius who, as a soldier, had known the cleanly hiss of a sword as it was drawn from its scabbard.

For the sake of providing a still more startling climax, let us look back to the year 1970, when a Progressive Theological Congress was held in a Franciscan church in Brussels. The principle subject discussed, in flat contradiction of the Congress's programme as indicated by its title, was sex, and it was expounded to an almost exclusively youthful gathering.

It was rightly anticipated, because of the theme, that Cardinal Suenens would be present; apart from which, as Primate of Belgium, he was on his home ground.

The Congress opened with the entry of girls, dressed in white and, as they twisted this way and that, waving cords and bits of broken chain to show that they were free. In an interval after the dancing, pieces of bread and glasses of wine were passed round, followed by grapes and cigarettes. Then, just as the young conference members thought all was over, their eyes were drawn towards the altar from which something was beginning to rise and to take on an unbelievable shape.⁶

It was at first greeted with gasps, then giggles, and finally pandemonium broke loose as the transparent plastic forming the shape was seen to represent a gigantic penis. The delegates screamed themselves hoarse, feeling that it was a challenge to – a recognition of – their virility. It was the sort of climax that had never been imagined and might only figure in the most extravagant of bawdy dreams. The presence of the Cardinal gave a permissive glamour to a setting that they would never again regard with awe.

It is well in place here, as part of our thesis, to look somewhat more closely at the scene that occurred in the Brussels church, and at the word Hallelujah, which has never been in everyday use, as a spoken expression of praise, within the Seven Hills. As an offering of praise to Jehovah, it has always been commonly used by religious revivalists rather than by Latins. But now we find Pope Paul using it.

What made him? And why did Cardinal Suenens, before an altar, preside over an amazing exhibition of carnal tomfoolery that many, especially the church-bound, will find difficult or impossible to believe?

There is one explanation. Neither of those named, while wearing the robes, vestments, and all the outward signs of Catholic prelacy, were Christian men. They had passed, by preparatory stages, into the highest echelon of occult understanding. They had been tutored, signed for, and guaranteed by the Masters of Wisdom in one of the foremost temples where atavistic rites, all with sexual undertones, take the place of religion.

When the adolescent girls shrieked with delighted embarrassment as the large plastic penis rose up before them, Cardinal Suenens knew perfectly well that they were, as he intended, commemorating the heathen god Baal whose name, divided into its Sumerian⁷ root words, has several meanings. Among them are lord, master, possessor, or husband, while others refer to a controlling male's penis with its forceful boring and thrusting.

So what the Cardinal arranged for the young, mostly girls, of Brussels, was a show of phallic worship, which symbolises the generative power contained in the semen, or life juice, which streamed down upon all life and nature from the mighty penis of Baal. An exaggerated phallus was also a symbol of Yesed, the sphere of the moon, and also of the horned god Dionysius, or Bacchus.

The praise chant voiced by Pope Paul has its origin in the same fount of heathen worship, as its meaning, again according to its Sumerian construct, refers to the strong water of fecundity, or semen. During the public displays of mass sexual intercourse, which go by the name of fertility rites, this semen, when ejaculated, was caught in the hands of the officiating priests, who held it up for the approval of Yahweh (Jehovah) and then proceeded to smear it upon their bodies.

So much was implied by Pope Paul when he raised his arms and uttered a heartfelt Hallelujah!

Part Ten

One is always wrong to open a conversation with the Devil, for however he goes about it, he always insists on having the last word.

Andre Gide.

It is hoped that possible readers of this book, who may not be acquainted with the Catholic story, will by now have grasped one essential fact – that the general decline of the Church was brought about by the Council that goes by the name of Vatican Two. Furthermore, that the Council was called by John XXIII who, like several of the prelates and many of lesser title under his Papal wing, were clandestine members of secret societies, and who were, according to the age-long ruling of the Church, excommunicate and therefore debarred from fulfilling any legitimate priestly function. The disastrous results of their being allowed to do so, with Papal approbation (since both the Popes who followed Pius XII were part of the over-all conspiracy, while the recent John Paul I and John Paul II are subject to suspicion) are apparent to the most superficial observer. Such results are the outcome of Paul VI's main wish regarding the implementation of Vatican II, as expressed in his last will and testament, and repeated more than once by John Paul II: 'Let its prescriptions be put into effect.'

Those prescriptions were defined years ago in the policies of Adam Weishaupt, Little Tiger, Nubius, and others (already quoted) for their trained disciples to infiltrate, and then to wear down the authority, practices, and very life of the Church. This they have accomplished, under the guise of progress or liberation.

Every aspect of the Church, spiritual and material, has been taken over, from Peter's Chair, with its once regal dignity, to a faldstool in the most insignificant parish church. The few priests who recognised this were kept in the background, or, if they managed to get a hearing, were exposed to ridicule; and surveying the scene, with its disorders, the exhibitions of profanity, and sexual aberrations staged in some of its most revered buildings, including St. Peter's, one is tempted to think of a once highly disciplined Guards brigade being transformed into a mob of screaming hooligans.

One may pass from the truism, that little things are little things, to a more comprehensive realisation that little beginnings are not little things; and it is by working precisely on that principle that the modern controllers of the Church achieved their ends without producing too much alarm among the populace at large.

They began by relaxing formal disciplines and inhibitions, such as keeping Friday as a meatless day. Then certain symbols, rituals, and devotions went. The old liturgical language of Latin practically disappeared. The nun's habit, which had never failed to inspire respect even in the most irreligious, went out of use, as did the cassock. The latter was sometimes replaced by jeans, as was demonstrated by two novices who, in Rome, went up to the altar to receive the blessing of their Father-General looking more like hippies than future Jesuits. A small cross, worn in the lapel of a jacket, was fast becoming the only sign that the wearer was a priest.

The old idea of priestly authority, whether exercised by a simple cleric or by the Pope, was effectively destroyed; and voices were always ready to applaud whenever the Church squandered this or that of its inheritance. 'The priest is today no longer a special being', cried the exultant Yves Marsaudon, a member of the Masonic Supreme Council of France. A congress of moral theologians, held at Padua, went much further: 'The individual conscience is the Christian's supreme authority above the Papal magisterium.'

It was becoming generally accepted that 'one day the traditional Church must disappear or adapt itself.' It was to become one of many institutions, with the accumulated legacies of two thousand years being cast away as things of little worth.

A quick glance at available statistics, over those years, shows a startling falling off in all the relative departments of Church life. Vocations, baptisms, conversions, and church marriages, took a downward plunge. The only increase was in the number of those who walked out of the Church. Many preferred to read the liturgy of the Mass in their homes, on Sundays and days of obligation, rather than see its once dignified movements parodied, and hear the historic language cheapened, in church.

In England, between the years 1968 and 1974, it has been reckoned that some two and a half million people fell away; and, if one may add to that the selling of Catholic journals, the most popular of these, The Universe, had an average weekly circulation of nearly three hundred and twelve thousand in 1963. Nine years later that figure had dropped to under a hundred and eighty thousand.

In France, with eighty-six per cent of the population officially Catholic, ten per cent put in an appearance at Mass; while a similar figure from 1971 to 1976, applied even to Rome. During the same period, in South America, once regarded as one of the toughest nuts for anti-clericals to crack, and where the people were commonly regarded as being steeped in superstition, an estimated twenty-five thousand priests renounced their vows. Vatican sources reported that there were three thousand resignations a year from the priesthood, and that figure took no account of those who dropped out without troubling to get ecclesiastical approval.

The Catholic part of Holland, where the new teaching was paramount, was in a truly parlous condition. Not a single candidate applied for admission to the priesthood in 1970, and within twelve months every seminary there was closed. In the United States, in the seven years prior to 1974, one in every four of the seminaries put up their shutters.

The traffic was all one way, for apart from the recorded drop in church attendance, a regular procession of priests and nuns, in the spirit of the new freedom, were deciding that marriage offered a more comfortable daily round than life in the presbytery or cloister. 'Rebel priest, aged fifty, weds girl of twenty-five' – so ran a typical headline in the Daily Express of 9th September, 1973. The marriage was celebrated in a Protestant church, where the attendance was brightened by priests and nuns who were all professionally geared to add their blessings to the confetti.

Many priests had passed beyond the hinting stage and were now openly declaring in favour of abortion. As for the Sacrament of Matrimony, as more and more couples tired of encountering the same face at breakfast, the Church discovered that it had been wrong in pronouncing them man and wife. Pleas of consanguinity, non-consummation, or that neither party had been validly baptised, were the order of the day, and the granting of annulments became quite a flourishing business.

By 1972, a few years after the rot had set in, Pope Paul personally disposed of some four thousand cases. Thus encouraged, a veritable flood of applications followed. Very few of those in search of 'freedom' were definitely refused, but were advised to try again or to come back later. In Trenton, New Jersey, Bishop Reiss was so overworked that he nominated seventeen extra priests to help him (I quote his own words) 'beef up' the number of annulments.

In March 1981 the Vatican took the quite superfluous step, so it seemed to many, of reiterating its Canon Law 2335, which stated that any Catholic who joined a secret society faced excommunication. To the man in the street, who was unaware that dozens of clerics, some in the highest offices of the Church, had already broken that law, it seemed a mere formality. But the Vatican, acting on information received, knew very well what it was doing. It was protecting itself, in advance, from any likely effects of a scandal that broke in May of the same year.

The Government of the country, headed by Christian Democrats, was formed of a coalition that included Socialists, Social Democrats, and Republicans. But the Communists were now demanding a place in the coalition, for political ends that left no doubt of their intentions. 'The problem is', they said, 'to remove democratic institutions, the State apparatus, and economic life from the Christian Democratic power structure.'

But their efforts failed. The Christian Democrats held firm. So their enemies resorted to a weapon that has proved no less deadly in political warfare than assassination. They brought about a far reaching scandal which, they hoped, would topple the existing order of government in Italy.

It was made to appear, as part of the repercussions which, following the break-up of Michele Sindona's financial empire, had rumbled through the early summer of 1981, that the activities of a widespread and dangerous secret society, known as Propaganda Two (P2 for short) had come to light. But in the confused world of politics and finance things do not happen as simply as that. The people who, when compelled to do so, cry out against the machinations most loudly, have invariably been part of the backstairs conspiracy. The fact of frauds being brought into the open may be through personal spite, disappointed blackmail, or the probing of some over-zealous underling – 'why couldn't he keep quiet?' And the self-righteous profiteers who, from their lofty moral pedestals but with their pockets suffering, cannot do less than publicise the swindle, have to fume in private.

The exposure of P2 began when the police received a mysterious call advising them to search the home of Licio Gelli, a prestigious name in secret societies, and to investigate his relationship with the erstwhile barrow-trundler Michele Sindona.

The mere mention of Sindona made the implicated members of the Curia think of how to avoid being caught up in the scandal. Hence their apparently unnecessary reminder to the world at large that Canon 2335 was still valid. Meanwhile the police had come upon a suitcase in Gelli's house containing the names of nine hundred and thirty-five members of P2.

There were many prominent politicians, including three Cabinet ministers and three under-secretaries; army generals and navy chiefs; leading bankers and industrialists, secret service heads, diplomats, judges, and magistrates; civil servants in foreign affairs, defence, justice, finance, and the treasury; top names in radio and television, and the managing director, editor and publisher of Italy's leading newspaper, Corriere Della Sera.

Many others resigned, while a whole host of others came crashing down, like so many Humpty Dumpties, when the lists were published. More sizeable litter followed as the government of Arnaldo Forlani, in its entirety, was swept off the wall. The accusers and their victims were, of course, all members of the same gang. It was a case of 'Brothers falling out' with a vengeance. The usual accusations and recriminations followed, involving every degree of crime, even murder. The falsification of accounts, espionage, and official stealing, passed as minor considerations.

Through it all the Vatican reacted with only a mild fluttering of hearts. For although the Church had shed its aura of reverence, and its prestige had been reduced to a shadow, it remained inscrutable. The ghost of its former self was still potent. The fatally loaded guns might be levelled against its walls, but there was no cannoneer to apply the match.

It was a wise cynic who said: 'In Italy religion is a mask.'

Although no churchman had been named in the scandal, the breaking of the Sindona story indirectly led to the Church reviewing its attitude to the secret societies. This had, according to orthodox belief, been settled by the said Canon Law 2335, which forbade any Catholic, on pain of excommunication, to join one. But in spite of that, because so many clerics, including members of the Curia, had broken that law, negotiations between the two sides, started in 1961, had been carried on for eleven years, with Cardinal Bea, the Pope's Secretary of State (whose name was as doubtful as his nationality), assisted by Cardinal Konig of Vienna, and Monsignor J. de Toth, putting forward a more amenable version of the Church's viewpoint.

These prolonged talks were more concerned with ironing out past differences than with formulating any future policy. But they managed to keep off the subject of hidden designs against the Church, which had partly prompted the latter's ban. Then came further discussions at Augsburg in May, 1969, where consideration was given to Papal pronouncements that roundly condemned the societies; and there was more apprehension in conservative quarters when such equivocal terms as placing Papal Bulls in their 'historical context', and the removal of past injustices, were used to explain the purpose of the assemblies.

The outcome of this newly founded relationship fully justified the doubts of those who feared that the Church was giving ground, and going back on its judgments that had been defined as final; and that the thin end of the wedge was being imposed became apparent in July of the same year, after a meeting at the monastery of Einsiedeln, Switzerland.

It was there confidently anticipated, by Professor Schwarzbaver, that no reference to the seamy side of secret societies would be made. Neither was it. Instead it was announced that Rome's previous rulings on relationship between the Church and secret societies had not been contained in Papal Bulls or Encyclicals but in Canon Law which, as every 'updated' cleric knew, was being revised.

This occasioned more serious doubt in orthodox quarters. It was recalled that Canon Law refers to a body of laws, authorised by the Church, and 'binding to those who are subject to it by baptism.' Could it mean that such terms as binding, revision, and alterations, were on the point of being subjected to new interpretations? Moreover, more than one Papal Bull had certainly contained a condemnation of the societies.

The societies (and this must be repeated) had no intention of refuting their original intention of undermining the Church. They had no need. They had so far succeeded in their design. Their own men had infiltrated and taken over the Church at every level; and to such an extent that the Church seemed in a hurry to abandon what was left of its original claims, its historic rites, and majesty; and now the societies waited for their picked men, Cardinals and others, to present themselves before the world, cap in hand, and cry aloud their past errors of judgments.

A definite move towards this came from the once highly orthodox centre of Spain, where Father Ferrer Benimeli put forward the extraordinary plea that Papal Bulls, condemning the societies, could no longer be regarded as valid.

An undertaking that strictures imposed by Canon Law on secret societies in the past would not again be invoked, was given by Cardinal Konig when Church and secular representatives met at Lichtenau Castle in 1970. Then came the statement that Canon Law and Papal Bulls had been all very well in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, but such documents now had a mainly historical significance, and their import could not be enacted by a Church that was preaching the more significant doctrine of 'brotherly love' which, together with friendship and morality, 'provided one of the most excellent tenets of the societies'.

The critics of these 'get together' tactics saw in this a concession to the fraternal spirit inspired by the societies, and also a virtual endorsement of the Cult of Man that Pope Paul had preached in the United States, and in which he had been confirmed by the Masters of Wisdom.

The general result of these contacts, on the Church side, was submitted for examination by the Congregation for the Faith; and the outcome was decided in advance by the remarks and reservations that accompanied them. It was no use looking back at what the Church had formerly decided. Comparison showed that its past attitude was old-fashioned, and properly belonged to a time when it had taught 'no salvation outside the Church'.

That slogan too was outmoded; and the world's Press, including most Catholic organs, again went to work with a will as it always did when it came to propagating views that undermined tradition and reinforced the designs of those secret society members who wore mitres in the Vatican.

With the Holy Office continuing to bend over backwards to confirm the changes, the process of secularisation gained momentum from the autumn of 1974 onwards. It was made clear that the bar against secret societies had become a dead letter, and that its abrogation was bringing relief 'to a number of good people who joined them merely for business or social reasons'. They no longer presented a danger to the Church.

The dismay occasioned by this in some quarters was summed up by Father Pedro Arrupe, General of the Society of Jesus (Jesuits), who saw it as a concession to organized 'naturalism' which, he said, had entered into the very territory of God and was influencing the minds of priests and religious. Naturalism, by dogmatically asserting that human nature and human reason alone must be supreme in all things, was another echo of the Cult of Man.

The Church's changing attitude towards secret societies was reflected in this country by John Cannel Heenan, who was appointed Archbishop of Westminster in 1963 and created Cardinal two years later. In keeping with his hopeful expectation that the Church's ban on the societies would soon be abolished, some of his senior clergy were authorised to negotiate with them. The Cardinal was then informed that a publication repeating the differences between the two sides was on sale in Catholic bookshops in his diocese.

He expressed his concern. 'If, as I suspect, it is misleading, I shall see that it is withdrawn.' He did so, and that publication, together with all similar ones, disappeared.

An interested inquirer who wrote to the Cardinal on the matter received, in reply, an assurance that the Cardinal conveyed his blessing. The same inquirer, on calling at the Catholic Truth Society bookshop, near Westminster Cathedral, was told that there had been no dealings with the Cardinal, and that the booklets had been withdrawn 'through lack of public interest'.

The growing belief that Canon 2335 would not appear in any revised edition of Church law, together with the fact that orthodox elements were being out-manoeuvred, as they had been at Vatican II, led to the Church and the societies expressing a more open relationship.

There was, for instance, a 'dedication breakfast' at the New York Hilton Hotel in March, 1976, presided over by Cardinal Terence Cooke, seconded by Cardinal Kroll, of Philadelphia, and attended by some three thousand members of secret societies. Cardinal Brandao Vilela of San Salvador de Bahia, represented Brazil.

In his speech, Cardinal Cooke referred to this 'joyous event' as marking a further stage 'on the road to friendship'. He regretted 'past estrangements', and hoped that his presence there signified that the new understanding between the two sides would never again be compromised. To the Cardinals and the Masters it was not so much an outside breakfast party as a momentous union, effected by opponents who had never before at any time come (openly) together.

Cardinal Kroll, as President of the United States Bishops' Conference, had previously been approached by Cardinal Seper, Prefect of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, who voiced the fears of those who regretted the signs of vital changes in the Church. Seper was informed that no alteration had been made, and that none was pending within the area of central legislation.

'It is still, and in all cases', said Kroll, in a statement that even to read causes a raising of the eyebrows, 'forbidden for clerics, religious, and members of secular institutes to belong to a secret society organization.... Those who enrol their names in associations of the same kind which plot against the Church, or the legitimate civil authorities, by this very fact incur excommunication, absolution from which is reserved for the Holy See.'

It was true that no active plot against the Church was then in motion. The societies could well afford to sit back and to take breath; not through any decisive change of heart, but because the first stage of the plot had been successfully accomplished. Two of the societies' choosing, in the persons of John XXIII and Paul VI, had occupied Peter's Chair. Others of their kind, who had received a red hat or a Bishop's mitre, had dominated their counsels. The next move in the plot against the Church was being reserved for the future, when the innovations in doctrine and practice had been accepted by a generation who had never known what it was to respond to the guiding hands of Popes such as the now belittled Pius XII.

The rearguard, for so the anti-Liberals may be called, made what capital it could by harking back to Canon 2335, and to the Sindona scandal as illustrating the widespread disasters brought about by contact with a secret society. As part of this campaign, a German Episcopal Conference of Bishops was held in the middle of 1981, where it was stressed, without any qualification, that 'simultaneous membership of the Catholic Church and of a secret society is impossible.'¹

This was followed by the Italian Government approving a Bill to outlaw and dissolve all secret societies, and reminding Catholics that excommunication was still the Church's penalty for joining one.

But both the German and Italian pronouncements were merely smoke screens; and none recognised this more than the societies, who were not in the least impressed. That Canon 2335, if it appeared at all in any revised edition of Church law, would be shorn of its urgency, had passed from being rumour and newspaper gossip to becoming an imminent fact. An English prelate, Cardinal Heenan, had said more than that, and had even anticipated it being abolished. While a leading official of the societies in Rome, unruffled, said he had it on good authority that Canon Law was being revised, as it was, in fact, by a Commission of Cardinals that had been set up by John XXIII and continued under Paul VI.

The official went on to say that the still apparent differences between the Church and the societies were all part of the conflict in the Vatican between the traditionalists and the progressives. 'This may well have been' – and he could well afford to shrug it off – 'their last attack upon us.'

That pronouncement, like every other emanating from the same quarter, has proved to be correct.

For it has now to be accepted, according to a statement from the Holy See, that 'The Sacred Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith has ruled that Canon 2335 no longer automatically bars a Catholic from membership of Masonic groups.'

It had probably been by Pope Paul's own wish, in defiance of a custom that was part of a Christian's, and especially a Catholic's, second nature, that, after his death in 1978, there was no crucifix, nor even the most common religious symbol, a cross, on the catafalque when his body was placed for veneration in St. Peter's piazza.

Was it a silent acknowledgment that his work, in compliance with the secret counsel enjoined upon him since the time he became Archbishop of Milan, had been well and truly done?

Part Eleven

O Villain! thou hast stolen both mine office and my name.
Shakespeare.

To those unacquainted with the power and scope of secret societies, the personality of Pope Paul VI presents a veritable enigma. No other Pope, even in the most tempestuous times, has been the subject of such conflicting reports; no other Pope has been so apparently self-contradictory. Even a casual reading of his reign leaves an impression of doubt, equivocation, and a pathetically weak kind of hedging that is a far remove from the assertive Pontificates of the past.

For how can one account for a Pope lamenting, as Paul did, that 'one can no longer trust the Church'? He signed the documents that kept Vatican Two on course, and promised, almost in the early hours of his reign, to consolidate and implement its decisions. Yet he changed his tune even before the last of its sessions. 'One would have believed the Council would have brought sunny days for the Church's history. On the contrary, they are days of storm, cloud, and fog. How did this come about?'

And the answer he provided: 'We think there has been the influence of a hostile Power. His name is the Devil' – tempts one to ask whether that was a form of confession, a self-indictment. Was he merely expressing what he knew had become fact, or speaking as a victim, a disillusioned man in the grip of forces beyond his control?

Compare his judgments with those of almost any of his predecessors, a Pius V, a Leo XIII, and the contrast appears to be, as I said before, quite pitiful. To quote but two instances. On 14 September, 1972, he came down heavily against the suggestion that women might play some part in the ministry of the priesthood. Such a departure from custom was unthinkable. Yet his was not a decisive voice, for only some three weeks later the Vatican issued a hand-out to journalists announcing that the Pope might change his mind. The final contradiction came on 29 March, 1973, when the Associated Press reported: 'Pope Paul ruled today that women, regardless of whether they are nuns, may distribute Communion in Roman Catholic churches.'

The Pope had already, in May 1969, condemned a new departure that had crept in whereby Communion was received in the hand. Yet later he took that stricture back, with the meaningless proviso that Communion bread could be so received 'after proper instruction.'

His weakness, his yielding to innovation in ritual and practice, together with the acceptance of revolutionary Marxism, and the many strange rumours that issued, from time to time, from the Vatican, caused many people in more than one part of the world to wonder if they were indeed witnessing the fall of Rome.

It was said that the Pope's correspondence, before it reached him, passed through the hands of Casaroli, Villot, and Benelli, the Cardinals in virtual control of the Vatican. Statesmen and churchmen who paid official visits found Pope Paul diffident, almost vague, and more ready with comments and opinions than with definite answers. He lacked clarity; and as wonder gave way to a feeling of disquiet, various theories emerged to account for the air of mystery around Peter's Chair.

The most feasible one, that Paul was an anti-pope, a trained Communist infiltrator, could be supported by his known past, his friendship with the anarchist Alinsky and others of his kind in Milan, and the heresies he had fostered since coming to power.

Other explanations will be advanced here (not because they figure among the beliefs of the present writer, who regards them as extravagant, some wildly so), but in order to make known what many intelligent people have come to think in the face of a situation akin to those, in centuries past, when the forces of St. Michael and Asmodeus clashed by the banks of the Tiber.

One theory is that Paul VI, a good Pope in the normal sense, fell into the hands of agents of secret societies (and here the names of Villot, Casaroli, and Benelli crop up again) who drugged him, injected poison into his veins, and made him incapable of reasoning, so that all that purported to be stamped by the magisterium of the Church came, in reality, from the triumvirate of Cardinals.

But that would seem to be ruled out by Montini's life-long attachment to Marxism, which would have obviated the need for the Left orientated secret societies to exert any pressure upon him.

That would have been superfluous. Though there was one utterance by the Pope, when a dignitary asked him to quieten the widespread alarm, that might have been taken as indicative: 'Do you people believe the Pope to be badly informed, or subject to pressure?'

At length stories emanating from Rome of sacrilege and abuses committed in church, with the approval of the Pope, became so startling, that groups of people in Europe and America decided to take action.

This culminated in a Mr. Daniel Scallen of the Marian Press in Georgetown, Ontario, Canada, employing the Pinkerton Detective Agency in New York to investigate. One of the agency's detectives was sent, in 1973, to Rome, and he returned with a story that dwarfed all other speculations, however sensational.

He had determined that there were two Popes living in the Vatican, Paul VI and an impostor who had been made to resemble Montini with the aid of plastic surgery. Several such operations were necessary, and when colour photographs of the false

Pope were sent to interested circles in Munich, where the imposture is still receiving concentrated study, there were certain noticeable differences in the two sets of features that could not be overcome.

To point out the differences: Montini had clear blue eyes, large, and being long-sighted he only required glasses for near viewing. The impostor had green eyes, small, and he wore glasses with thick lenses on all occasions.

Montini's photographs reveal a small mole, or birth-mark, between the left eye and the left ear. This does not appear in photographs of the impostor, whose left eyebrow was nearer to the eye than was Montini's.

The differences between the nose and the ears of the two men are held to be decisive. Montini's nose was Roman, and protruded somewhat over his mouth. The impostor's nose, part straight and part hooked, was short, and those who subjected the photographs to professional examination claim to have detected the insertion of a plastic strip in the nose to make it appear more straight.

But it is differences in the shape and formation of the ears that present the greatest difficulty to those who doubt the existence of an impostor. Such differences are unique, individual, and they are treated the same as finger-prints in courts of law. Any comparison of the lobes and build of the ears, as revealed by photographs, becomes not a little impressive.

But the interested circles did not stop there. They turned their attention upon the voice, and called in the help of the Type B-65 Kay Elemetrics of Pine Brook, New Jersey, and the Bell Telephone Company. Their object was to analyse the voice (or voices, if there were indeed two popes) when they pronounced the traditional Easter Sunday and Christmas Day blessing, with the words Indulgentium Peccatorum, spoken from the Vatican in 1975.

On both occasions the message was broadcast over Rome, and many people taped it; and it appeared, according to sonograms that were made – and sonograms are more sensitive than the ear – that the man who had spoken at Easter, and again at Christmas, had not been one and the same. There had been two different speakers.

Here I quote from those who are qualified to judge the sonograms and sum up the distinctions:

One voice had a much lower pitch than the other, with a more pronounced dragging of word syllables.

Another difference was that one voice had a much lower range of frequencies. It emitted a more hissing sound, and was noticeably shaky.

These graphs were submitted to the FBI for examination, and the same conclusions were arrived at. The voice patterns were different, and indicated that the vocal chords, the mouth, and the lips, were unique to each individual.

Subsequent statements alleging that there was a false Pope Paul VI, go on to say that he was an actor whose initials are P.A.R., and that it was he who died at Castelgandolfo on 6 August, 1978. A German Bishop, who claims to have proof that Montini was last known to be living not in the Vatican but in the outskirts of Rome, hopes to make this public in a forthcoming book.

So could this point to the fact that the genuine Paul VI was held captive in the Vatican, or that he was kidnapped, perhaps murdered? A layman in search of more concrete evidence went to Brescia, where some of Montini's relations were living. There a niece informed him that they were perfectly well aware of the imposture, but that all their efforts to make it known had been stifled.

The investigator, who was obviously untried and filled with a crusading zeal to bring things into the open, soon landed in trouble. He was jailed for four years, and afterwards deported from Italy. All efforts to trace his whereabouts since then have failed.

Well, as part of the prevailing confusion in the Roman stronghold, that is what some far from negligible people have come to believe.

[Evidence for the above can be found at <http://www.tldm.org/News3/impostor.htm>. The discerning reader will not fail to distinguish between the actual evidence presented and the authenticity or otherwise of the apparitions of Bayside - ed.]

Part Twelve

No Roman was ever able to say: 'I dined last night with the Borgias.'
Max Beerbohm.

A disillusioned priest who, nonetheless, still says Mass daily and fulfils all the duties demanded by a parish, merely shrugged his shoulders when I mentioned the possibility of crimes being perpetrated in the Vatican today.

'Well', he said, 'such things have always happened there. Why shouldn't they still be going on?'

He was not in the least troubled by my suggestion. An enemy of Rome could not have been more casual, more resigned to the use of poison and the strangler's cord, and the acceptance of adultery, in high places.

The two complaints of malaria and gout figure among the causes of death of quite a few Popes. But sometimes they could be contracted into a single word, poison, as in the case of Gregory V who reigned from 996 to 999. The same could be said regarding the death of Damasus II who, after being elected on July 17, 1048, lived for only three weeks.

Celestine II, a one-time disciple of Abelard, was made Pope on September 26, 1143, and died in the second week of the following March. There were those about him who more than suspected poison. In June 1517 the Medici Pope Leo X narrowly escaped a plot led by Cardinal Petrucci, and four other Princes of the Church, to poison him. Leo XI died on April 27, 1605, after a reign of only twenty-seven days. His death, according to official biographers, was caused by a sudden chill aggravated by the cares of office. But there were those on hand who had seen him droop over a poison cup.

Between those two short-lived pontificates, the Vice-Chancellor of the Roman Church, Rodrigo de Borgia, who was to stamp the period and his family with an infamy that was rare at any time, took his seat on the Papal throne in 1492 as Alexander VI.

As well as several secondary ones, he had already taken as his principal mistress a married Roman lady, Vanozza de Cataneis, who presented him with three sons and a daughter, all of whom lived under their father's wing as favoured members of the Court; and from the first, apart from the gestures and protestations that were inescapable parts of his office, the mainspring of Alexander's life became the advancement and political security of his family.

The oldest son, Juan, Duke of Gandia, rivalled his father in the number of illicit relationships in which he figured. His brother, Caesar, not a whit behind him in this, was to add his own distinctive brand of crime to the Borgia annals. When he was only seventeen Alexander created him Cardinal, though Caesar was never more than a sub-deacon, certainly not a priest. His papa was equally obliging when Caesar, although a Prince of the Church (he soon dropped the sham), wanted to marry. The necessary dispensation was soon forthcoming.

The youngest of Alexander's sons, Jofre, married an illegitimate daughter of Alonso II of Naples. Then came Lucrezia who, because of her sex and the manifestly pious strain she exhibited in such surroundings, has been badly treated by novelists and historians of the Hollywood type. She was, according to the time, sufficiently ungirlish to deal with her father's official correspondence when he was out of Rome, and we know nothing definite to her discredit.

Her first marriage, to a prince of the Sforza house, was annulled on the grounds of non-consummation. Her second was to another of the illegitimate brood produced by the Neapolitan king, while her third was to Duke Alfonso d'Este of Ferrara.

Lucrezia died young, but not before she had passed through the strange experience of knowing that her second husband had been strangled by her brother Caesar. But that was not the highlight of Caesar's career, for he also dealt, in similar fashion, with his own brother Juan. He then turned his attention to Cardinals, those with money, and used his ready hands, or the always convenient poison, to account for several, including Cardinal Michele, who was a nephew of Pope Paul II, and Cardinal Orsini.

But that by no means depleted the College of Cardinals, for apart from Caesar four other members of the Borgia clan sported the red hat. Alexander turned a blind eye on Caesar's exploits, though he was genuinely grieved by the loss of his first-born, Juan.

During this time the Devil made his presence felt, sometimes visibly, in Rome, and the populace had no doubt but that the dregs of wickedness were being stirred by doings at the Vatican. For instance, a ballet was performed there on the Eve of All Saints, 1501, at which every one of the fifty dancers was a whore picked from the streets of Rome.

One of those who came to decide that the Borgias had been in the saddle all too long was Cardinal Castellisi of Corneto. So he invited father and son to a banquet, and prepared a dose of his own mixing that was guaranteed to rid Rome of them both.

They accepted the invitation, but it so happened that Alexander had made up his mind that Castellisi was a nuisance, and he came provided with some wine that had proved so efficacious in the past.

Those were not the days of mixed drinks, but the wines were somehow mixed up as they sat at table, with the result that Alexander and Caesar got a draught of their own preparation. Amid their groaning and twisting the party hurriedly broke up. Caesar recovered, but Alexander died, duly fortified by the Sacraments of the Church.

Cause of death – malaria.

His Eminence of Corneto probably enjoyed a quiet laugh. Caesar made some amends for his evil life by dying in battle. Lucrezia was caricatured in a novel by Victor Hugo, and her name was given to the title role in an opera by Donizetti. An apologist for Alexander could say no more than that during his reign Greenland accepted the Gospel.

According to a recipe that was handed down and came into the hands of Garelli, who was physician to the Habsburg Emperor Charles VI (1685-1740), the Borgias obtained their poison by first killing a pig, sprinkling its abdominal organs with arsenious acid, and waiting until putrefaction set in. This contaminated matter, when introduced into liquids, became an active, deadly, and, in the majority of cases, almost instantaneous poison.

Great precautions were taken at the Court of Alexander VI to prevent this being written down; and some of the other methods employed to administer the poison were nothing short of ingenious. A person cutting fruit could die through touching the edge of a knife that had been brushed by the preparation; while the effect of turning a key to open a door or a box might cause a minute graze of the skin through which a fatal drop imperceptibly entered the bloodstream.

Other toxicologists affirm that there was another Borgia poison, a complex mixture consisting of a gritty and whitish powder that resembled sugar. It was known as canterella or cantoreli.

Part Thirteen

Who shall decide when doctors disagree?
Alexander Pope.

The figure of John Paul I, who succeeded Paul VI, adds yet another, and one of the most profound, to a situation that is already crowded with problems. Created Bishop by John XXIII, and made a Cardinal by Paul VI (the Popes who, between them, created and implemented the revolution), his rise to the Papal throne after having been Albino Luciani, Cardinal-Patriarch of Venice, came almost as an ecclesiastical bolt from the blue.

Humbly circumstanced, he grew up in a family where opinions, quite naturally, were formed and dominated by those of the father, a committed Left-winger; and he was in his mid-sixties when, on 26 August, 1978, he emerged from the conclave at which he had been elected, with unprecedented speed, after four ballots that covered only eight hours and forty-five minutes on the first day.

An observer with an eye on the state of affairs at the Vatican might have noted that the stage was being set for yet another Renaissance drama. And such an event was indeed figured forth by the enigmas at once presented by this (apparently) by no means uncommon Pope.

Two schools of thought, in neither of which his voice had so far been definitely heard, grew up about him. One insisted that he was bent on continuing the changes set afoot by his two predecessors; that he favoured the modernist or progressive elements, and their reforms.

Support for this was given when he rejected the title of Supreme Pontiff, and elected to be installed rather than crowned. There was no crucifix on the table that served for an altar, at his inaugural Mass. Simplicity governed all, and those who echoed the ideology of Paul VI were soon claiming that the new Pope was 'their man', especially when he was known to have opposed the Church's teaching forbidding contraception.

On the other hand, it was said, that he contemplated the annulment of some of the innovations started by Vatican Two; that he deplored the so-called 'upward' movement that was threatening the Church; and those conservatives who looked for an endorsement of their viewpoint were encouraged when the time came to appoint new Bishops to vacant sees, and, more especially, one to his old Patriarchate of Venice.

In that he was opposed by Cardinal Baggio (known as Ceba to the secret societies) whose candidate was a certain Monsignor Ce, who was known to be radical. But John Paul refused to make the appointment, thus giving support to those who wished to believe that he was in conflict with heresy.

Their satisfaction, however, was short lived, as was evidenced by an occasion when he was called upon to address a gathering of students and teachers. He led them in reciting the Angelus, but no sooner had he concluded the last 'Hail Mary' than he began to sing the praises of one whom he extolled as 'a classical example of abnegation and devotion to education.'

This was not, as might have been expected, a saint, nor even a simple member of the Church, but Giosue Carducci (1835-1907), who had been professor at Bologna University and whose name, as a self-confessed worshipper of Satan, was widely respected in occult circles.

His poem Hymn to Satan, in forty stanzas, contained such lines as the following [apart from the first line, the quotation here given bears little resemblance to the original Inno a Satana - ed.]:

'Glory to thee,
Magnanimous Rebel!

On Thy brow shall rise, like laurel groves,
The forests of Aspromonte.

I drink to the happy day which shall see the end
Of Rome the eternal.

To Liberty who, avenging human thought,

Overturns the false throne of Peter's successor;

In the dust with crowns and garlands!
Lie shattered, iniquitous Lord!'1

In shorter pieces, Carducci apologised to Satan, or the spirit of evil, which he called Agramainio, for the lies and slanders that are heaped upon him on earth. Glorifications of the occult and the Black Mass, and of Satan as the symbol of revolt against the Church, the antithesis of religion, are mixed with blasphemies. Satan is thanked for being kind, while in his Ode to the Town of Ferrara, Carducci cursed the 'cruel old she-wolf of the Vatican'.

Carducci became the centre of a cult, and was accorded much the same reverence by his followers that he gave to Satan. Processions were held, preceded by a banner on which Satan, in all his regalia of horns, tail, and hooves, was depicted, and at which a parody of the Litany, including the line 'Gloria in profundis Satanae' was chanted. The last eight verses of the hymn by this 'singer of Satan' passed into the repertory of songs that made the rafters ring in Italian secret society meetings.

Yet Pope John Paul's admiration for this man, his holding him up as an example for teachers and the rising generation to follow, was only one of the mysteries connected with his reign.

Over the centuries Rome, insisting on her unique historical validity, had remained stubbornly aloof from negotiations with other Churches, Protestant or Orthodox. But the Second Vatican Council had opened doors so that representatives of those Churches were now exchanging views and discussing the possibilities of unity.

One such visitor to Rome was the Russian Metropolitan Monsignor Nikodim, the Orthodox Archbishop of Leningrad. Born in 1930, and becoming the youngest Bishop of any creed in Christendom, he was reputed to exhibit a pro-Soviet and anti-West bias. In 1961 he led a deputation of Orthodox churchmen to the World Council of Churches. He was awarded the United Nations' medal for peace, and became head of the Foreign Relations Department of the Moscow Patriarchate; and after attending the installation of John Paul I, he was received in audience by the Pope on September the 5th.

The meeting occurred in the study adjoining the Pope's private library, and the opening remarks, as reported probably by Father Arrupe, Superior-General of the Jesuits, or by the liberal Cardinal Willebrands (who acted as hosts to Nikodim), followed these lines: 'Welcome, dear brother', said the Pope, coming forward from the large oak table at which he had been working, 'So close to us, and yet so far away. What shall we discover about ourselves? When will all of us, Catholic and Orthodox, be sons of the same Church?’

Nikodim responded in the same spirit. ‘I wish it could be in your reign that such a thing could happen.’

The Pope asked for news of the state of religion in Russia. ‘Father Arrupe tells me that you are very hopeful about the future of the Church in your country.’

Nikodim was silent for a time. Those who had met him could imagine how, when pausing for an answer, his eyes showed as little more than slits under bushy brows. ‘Most Holy Father, I’ll be frank with you’, he said at length. ‘In Russia they think very badly of me. They say I am working with the State authorities, and that I serve them rather than God. Yet I am a faithful servant of God.’

That short confession brought a rush of colour to his cheeks. He breathed quickly, in the grip of some violent emotion.

John Paul asked quietly: ‘What do you wish me to do?’

When able to speak again, Nikodim continued: ‘Most Holy Father, how can we work together if Russia still thinks that the Orthodox Church is part of the Communist system? One day I shall be crushed’ – he flung out his arms – ‘and the Russian Orthodox Church will come to an end. You must come to an understanding, and negotiate with them as they ask you to.’

Had that been the object of Nikodim’s visit? We shall never know, for by now his physical state was truly alarming. His hand was pressed to his left side, as though, it was later said (perhaps by John Paul himself), he wished to tear out his heart and fling it at the Pope’s feet. He tried to speak, but failed. His mouth twisted, and only the whites of his eyes were visible.

The Pope seized and partly supported him. ‘Mercy, he is ill’, he exclaimed to Willebrands, who was still within hearing. ‘Quickly, Eminence, call Doctor Fontana’ – the Pope’s private physician.

The Pope arranged what comfort he could for Nikodim on the floor of the study. Then he opened the window. By the time the doctor arrived the Russian was dead.

It later emerged that Nikodim had been refused permission to enter France, on his way to Rome, and that he was only able to do so when a number of French Bishops interceded on his behalf.

Then, as though to account for their opposition, the French Foreign Office let it be known that Nikodim was an accredited agent of the Soviet Secret Police.

Thursday, the 28th of September, 1978, had been what passed as an ordinary day at the Vatican. The Pope, after working in his office, had received some members of the hierarchy in private audience, and then a group of prelates from the Philippines, to whom, as representatives of the most Catholic region in south-east Asia, he extended a special welcome.

Following lunch, and the usual siesta, there was more business and discussion with several of the Cardinals. Evening prayers in his private chapel had been followed by a general goodnight to members of his staff, after which he retired to his bedroom on the third floor of the Apostolic Palace.

Friday dawned as a typical end-of-September day, with the rows of Palace windows taking shape in the dull grey light and the first sounds coming, not from birds in the Vatican Gardens, but from the little room where Sister Vicenza, a nun who had been in the service of Popes for the past ten years, was preparing coffee. Her timing, her movements, and the details of her task, had an almost military precision.

It had turned five o'clock. At ten minutes past she would place the cup of coffee, always strong, in the sacristy adjoining the chapel where the Pope knelt, in meditation, before saying Mass at five-thirty. She was therefore surprised when, not hearing any movement, she had gone to the sacristy and found that the coffee, half-cold in the cup, had not been touched.

One of the Papal secretaries, Don Diego, then joined her; and when five-twenty came, and still the Pope had not appeared, they went to the door of his bedroom. There the secretary tapped, more than once, and having received no answer he opened the door.

The Pope lay on his bed, fully dressed, and obviously dead. On the bedside table was a lamp, still burning, and a cheap little alarm clock that he had brought from Venice. In the corridor was a red light emanating from an electric bell. It was placed there as an alarm, to summon help, and its glow meant that such a signal had been made by the Pope who, as Diego saw at a glance, had died alone without his call being answered. He had worn the Fisherman's Ring for only thirty-three days.

The Pope's other secretary, Father John Magee, was next on the scene, and as the news spread Cardinal Confaloniere, Dean of the Congregation of Cardinals, who arrived at the bedside, pronounced what was afterwards accepted as the regular and official version of the tragedy.

The resulting description might relate to the death-bed of any outstandingly religious man. The Pope was on the bed, supported by pillows, with his head, turned a little to the right, inclining forward over his chest. His eyes were open. The prevailing impression was one of calmness and serenity, with no suggestion of pain. There was nothing to belie the name 'smiling Pope' that had been given him during his brief time in Rome. One hand held some sheets of paper containing notes for a speech he intended to deliver on the following day. A copy of Thomas a Kempis's Imitation of Christ was on the floor. [The author is here repeating the sanitized version provided by the Vatican and challenged by David Yallop in his book 'In God's Name' - ed.]

In the near panic and stupefaction that followed, Don Diego, who might have been expected to join in, was holding a hurriedly excited conversation on the telephone. It later transpired that he had called Doctor Antonio da Ros, begging him to come at once to the Vatican to carry out an external examination of John Paul whom he had known and treated for some twenty years – an extraordinary act for a secretary to carry out on his own initiative, when he was surrounded by a bevy of influential prelates; and doubly surprising since Doctor da Ros was not in Rome, but in Venice.

The news was released through Vatican Radio at seven-thirty-one, and on Italian Radio the morning's announcer cut short the latest act of terrorism by the Red Brigade to say: 'We interrupt this broadcast to bring you grave news ...'

The tolling of bells throughout the city, and the lowering of the yellow and white Vatican City flag, took up the story; and away in Cracow, when the tidings were heard in the old building that housed the cathedral Curia, a man who had been seated at breakfast suddenly rose and retired to the private chapel. Those who saw him at the time remembered how Karol Wojtyla, for that was his name, was deathly pale and trembling, as though some heavily charged mission, whose import had been made known to him by some secret counsel in the not too far off past, was on the point of reaching fulfilment.

Those who experienced it have no hesitation in saying that from then on an atmosphere, hitherto unknown there, passed into the Vatican. Men began almost to question themselves, as they did others. Small groups met, and talked without animation. They were under a nameless pressure that it was beyond the power of any among them to remove. Much of the conversation there, at normal times, is highly allusive, causing one to search into their classical, historical, or literary memories to find a reason for it, or an answer.

Now that impression was heightened, as when Cardinals Poletti and Baggio came face to face, both aware of a question, and both equally nervous lest the other might solve it. One of them took refuge in recalling the words of Antonio Fogazzaro, the anticlerical writer.

'Eminence', said one, 'you jeer at anyone who holds his tongue. Dread his silence!' A less experienced priest came nearer to summing up the situation in more picturesque language. 'The cupboards of the Vatican are full of skeletons. Their bones are beginning to rattle.'

'What if they are?' said another cleric. 'They were placed there during the great heresies of the Middle Ages. Now those heresies have come again.'

Rumours, mystery, embarrassment, perplexity.... It came almost as a relief when movements were heard in the hall-way that led to the Pope's bedroom. The Swiss Guards, before the termination of their four hours' duty there, were marching out, and a high temporary partition was being erected round the bed. At the same time, all exits and entrances to that part of the building were sealed.

Before long the dead Pope's brother and sister, Eduardo and Amelia Luciani, and a niece Pia, had arrived. They were plain, simple people, who would be regarded, by some in Rome, as rugged sons and daughters of the mountains (they came from the Dolomites), and not the sort to impress, in spite of their closeness to the dead Pope, a Cardinal like Villot who, now in charge of Vatican affairs and worldly to a degree, covered an iron nature with a more than usual share of French courtesy.

Worried by the sudden and unexpected death of their brother, they voiced their agreement, with most of the doctors, that an autopsy must be held to settle the matter and dispel any lingering doubts.

Professor Prati, consultant of the heart unit of St. Camillo hospital, said an autopsy was not only desirable, but necessary. Professor Alcona, head of the neurological department of the Polyclinic of the Catholic University of Rome, gave his more downright opinion that it was the duty of the Holy See to order a post-mortem. The same theme was to be more strongly renewed after the Pope's funeral when another specialist, Professor Fontana, said: 'If I had to certify, under the same circumstances, the death of an ordinary unimportant citizen, I would quite simply have refused to allow him to be buried.'

Many publications were equally insistent that a post-mortem was necessary, among them being the conservative group Civiltà Cristiana, under its director Franco Antico, and the influential Corriere della Sera, of Milan.

Their doubts were supported by the way in which the specialists, who examined the Pope's body, contradicted each other. Doctor Buzzonetti, the first doctor on the scene, said the Pope had suffered an acute coronary thrombosis. Another put it down to cancer, while a third said the Pope had an apoplectic fit resulting from a brain tumour. Doctor Rulli of the St. Camillo hospital, said it was a case of cerebral haemorrhage.

The suggestion of heart trouble was discountenanced by Edouardo and Amelia Luciani, while Monsignor Senigallia said that John Paul, acting on his advice, had had an electrocardiogram which lasted for twenty minutes, and that no irregularity had been revealed.

The official investigators now adopted a new line to help them out of an embarrassing situation. They suddenly announced that the Pope had, from the first, been a very sick person; that he had been baptised soon after birth since he had not been expected to live through the day; that he had been in hospital eight times, in a sanatorium twice, and had undergone four operations. Appendicitis, heart, and sinus trouble, with swelling of the hands and feet, were also numbered among his complaints. His fingernails had turned black, he had managed to survive with a single lung, while there was also talk of an embolism, or blood clot. If this summary of ills had been true (and he underwent the usual medical examination before the conclave) he would not have been elected.

Within a few hours, when the initial feeling of shock had been passed, a veritable campaign of suspicion made itself felt, from which only Villot, and a few of his close associates stayed aloof. There was talk of a more than medicinal dose of digitalis, of the rare wickedness that would be necessary to introduce poison into the wine used for Mass, and of the unobtrusive ways in which a man might be helped to die.

But these hazards apart, with such terms as murder, assassination, and poison beginning to be heard, there were some unanswerable questions that were threatening, as one prelate put it, to shake the pillars of the Vatican to their very foundations.

The first one to look on the face of the dead Pope was Don Diego, a secretary. He must have seen something that thoroughly alarmed or shocked him, since he had rushed to the telephone to call Doctor da Ros, a more intimate medical friend of John Paul than any on the Vatican rota, although the average of fourteen prominent specialists it numbered were readily available, while da Ros was three hundred miles away.

Moreover, Don Diego was never asked to account for his action, or, at least, not in a way that was ever the subject of any known inquiry. And, normally loquacious, he became reserved, and could never be drawn to enlarge upon the reason why, with so much threatening to break about him, he rushed to the telephone to make a distant call.

What had he seen? Had it been the expression on the face of John Paul? According to the octogenarian Dean of the Congregation of Cardinals, Confalonieri, the dead man appeared serene, smooth, peaceful, with a hint of smiling. But a young cleric who had recently been accredited to the Vatican, and who pressed forward with a beginner's eagerness and ardour to make himself familiar with its affairs, saw a very different countenance from the one officially described.

It was distorted by a pronounced look of suffering, while the mouth, instead of presaging a smile, was gaping wide. That this latter version was true was borne out when the embalmers arrived, the four brothers Signoracci from the Medical Institute. Their combined and highly practised efforts, carried out for two hours on the face alone, and with the aid of cosmetics, could not overcome, still less remove, the manifestation of horror that the dead Pope carried to his tomb.

But the greatest obstacle, in the way of a comfortable explanation, was the red light in the corridor. It was controlled by an electric bell on the Pope's bedside table, and it was a signal that meant he was calling for assistance. That signal had certainly been made. The red glow had sprung into life. But it had not been answered. Not by any of the guards, nor by any of the staff, the secretaries, clerks, nurse, the chauffeur, who were in the annexe; not by either of the seven nuns of the Order of Marie-Enfant who, being responsible for the Pope's domestic arrangements, were on the floor above his own.

What had they all been doing at the time? What more important task than the Pope's welfare, his safety even, had kept them employed? The police who patrolled St. Peter's Square, all through the night, must instinctively have glanced more than once at the slightly parted curtains in the Pope's bedroom. The red glow might have appeared between them. But was it indeed observable all through the night, or had it been tampered with so that it only became visible at early dawn? There was no inquiry along those lines. Those questions went unanswered. The Pope was dead. But a post-mortem, demanded by most of the Pope's doctors and his relatives, and seconded by an influential Press, would settle all doubts as well as determining the cause of death.

But here again the tall imposing presence of Villot intervened. An autopsy, he declared, was out of the question; and his reason for saying so left the doctors more bewildered than before. The body had been found at five-thirty a.m. Time, that is normally so regular and methodically paced at the Vatican, had then taken a surprising leap forward. For the embalmers, with quite unnecessary and unprecedented haste, had immediately been summoned, and their process had been completed by nine-thirty.

'But the intestines?' asked one of the doctors, who had made up his mind to remove them and carry out tests for a trace of poison.

Villot's answer was again decisive. They had been burnt.

One of the most salient comments on the strange affair came, surprisingly enough, from L'Osservatore Romano, which asked whether the death of John Paul might in any way be linked to the homily he had pronounced in favour of the Satanist and devilworshipper Carducci. But only Catholics in Germany read this, for it was deleted from every copy of the paper that went elsewhere. An effort was actually made to suppress the German edition, but it was too late.

An unimpressive Press conference, that Villot could not actually oppose, though his obvious displeasure almost had the effect of a positive ban (especially when one of those present voiced the widespread regret at the failure to hold an autopsy), yielded nothing. Villot referred objectors to the final verdict given by Father Romeo Panciroli who, after carrying out whatever check was possible on the highly-spiced and viscerated body, was 'pleased to report that everything had been in order.'

Meanwhile a medical man, Gerin, who rejected the possibility of the Pope's death having been a natural one, openly pronounced the word 'poison'; and a Bishop (one must respect his wish to remain unnamed) made up his mind to succeed where doctors, professors, and journalists, had failed. He would penetrate the veil of silence and secrecy, and establish the truth, whatever its import or what it might entail.

He worked hard and long; interviewed countless people; delved into every department, mounted stairways and passed through devious passages in the Vatican. Then, for a time, he vanished from the scene; and those who have since met him found him not only changed, as may happen after only a few months, but in every sense an entirely different man.

Hardened Romans and realists, who had expected nothing else, merely shrugged. The dome of St. Peter's is not an egg-shell, to be cracked. He was merely one more fool who had cracked his own heart against it.

Cardinal Villot, aware of the growing disquiet in the Church, promised to make a statement on recent events in the Vatican before the calling of the next conclave. He never did, but remained a man of mystery to the last, leaving no evidence as to how much he had known (there was ample suspicion to more than make up for absence of certainty), or for how much he had been responsible. The cause of Villot's own death on 9 March, 1979, occasioned the same elementary confusion that surrounded the passing of John Paul I. The Cardinal, according to an early announcement, had died of bronchial-pneumonia. A second verdict named kidney trouble; a third, hepatitis; while yet another attributed the cause to internal haemorrhage.

It appears that top-flight Catholic specialists, when called to the bedside of their most eminent patients, reveal themselves as being very indifferent diagnosticians.

It was raining. From their places on the colonnade above the piazza, Simon Peter and his fellow saints looked down upon a forest of umbrellas. The dead Pope, in vestments of red, white, and gold, and with a golden mitre on his head, had been brought from the Clementine Hall in the Apostolic Palace to the square where, in a plain cypress coffin, the body rested on a red blanket fringed with ermine, for the celebration of an open air Mass. The flame of a single tall taper, placed near the coffin, flickered this way and that in the wind and drizzle, but never to the point of going out. A Monsignor, his mind heavy with a fast growing certainty, looked round at the mostly shawled heads and white faces, and thought of the terrible suspicion that was trembling on everyone's lips.

'It is too much', was all he could murmur to himself. 'It is too much.'

A chill October dusk, pierced by pin-points of light from the city, was closing down as the cortege moved into the basilica where, in the crypt, future generations will come to gaze at a tomb bearing the simple inscription JOHANNES PAULUS I. And some, despite the blunting of time, may wonder.

Part Fourteen

Belief in the innocence of rulers depends upon the ignorance of those ruled.
Hugh Ross Williamson.

The Catholic world at large had barely recovered from the shock of John Paul's death, sudden and unexpected as it was, when another event diverted their attention from the Sedis vacantia (vacancy of the Apostolic See) to the puff of white smoke that, on 16 October, 1978, issued from the small bent chimney of the Sistine Chapel, and to the announcement that followed it: 'We have a new Pope.'

More than the usual excitement resulted, and there were those among the more experienced observers who noted that much of it came from the same quarters that had acclaimed John XXIII; from those who greeted the changes (or disasters, as many thought) that resulted from his reign, as long awaited and welcome signs that the Church was throwing off its iron archaic fetters.

For the new Pontiff was Karol Wojtyla, who received something like a hero's welcome because he was a Pole, from behind the Iron Curtain, where religion, especially the Christian, had had to run the gauntlet, and where now, although the era of blows and taunts was somewhat relaxed, it was still subject to a mainly wary and restricted acceptance. Wojtyla was, incidentally, the first non-Italian to be elected Pope since 1522.

A veteran American journalist who had the not inappropriate name of Avro Manhattan, who knew the Vatican more intimately than he did the White House, and who was well versed in Russian tergiversation, had earlier written: 'The proportion of radical Cardinals, and of future members of the Sacred College, whose political leanings range from light pink to scarlet red, has been mounting and will continue to increase. The inevitable result will be that, thanks to the greatest number of Leftist clerics, the election of a Red Pope is becoming more likely.'¹

Had such a Pontiff arrived in the person of Karol Wojtyla?

In view of the strained relationship between countries in the West, and those behind the Iron Curtain, the officially irreligious policy of the latter, and the emergence of John Paul II as the new Pope elected to be called, a number of questions presented themselves that called for an answer. His orthodox early training and development, his becoming a priest, and his rise to Archbishop and then to Cardinal, had proceeded normally.

Many hundreds of his co-religionists in Poland during the thirty years of Communist domination had undergone petty or serious persecution, many being jailed, some put to death. Yet there is no indication of Wojtyla ever undergoing more than the usual trials that have to be endured by known dissidents. He had not been subject to any sustained or menacing outcry, and his relationship with the Marxist authorities had been the same as that of any ordinary citizen who wore his faith upon his sleeve.

Through it all he must have been called upon, as a prelate, to give not only religious but also social, and even economic advice to those of his faith, advice that must have sometimes conflicted with the governing code. Yet he was never actually silenced, and he was tolerated, even privileged by the authorities, while his religious superior, Cardinal Wyszynski, then Primate of Poland, lived under constant pressure.

A case in point was the granting of permission to leave the country. When the Synod of Bishops was called for Rome, both Cardinals applied for exit visas. The Primate encountered a blunt refusal, but Wojtyla was given permission as a matter of course.

He experienced the same favour when it came to attending the conclave at which he was elected, and those who had been dismayed by the prospect of a Pope from a Soviet background soon felt they were justified.

Pierre Bourgreignon, writing in Didasco, a French publication that appeared in Brussels, April 1979, said: 'No one capable of coherent thought will easily believe that a Cardinal from behind the Iron Curtain can be anything but a Communist plant.'

A similar doubt was expressed in The War is Now, an Australian production issued on behalf of Catholic tradition. If Wojtyla, it asked, is a true Catholic Pole, 'why would proper, sensible, prudent Cardinals with the Church's welfare at heart, elect a target, a man whose family and people remain under the gun, a whole nation of ready-made hostages or martyrs?'

The Abbé de Nantes, leader of the Catholic Counter-Reformation of the Twentieth Century, was more downright: 'We have a Communist Pope.'

It was formerly acknowledged that differences, when they were in Poland, did exist between the two Cardinals. Wyszynski never yielded an inch when dealing with the controllers of his country. Wojtyla was all for coming to terms and continuing 'dialogue' with them, along the lines that had been established by Paul VI; and what was more noticeable, Wojtyla, apart from never actually condemning atheistic Marxism, stood in the way of those who wished to adopt a more militant attitude towards it.

Someone had noted that during the conclave in the Sistine Chapel, at which he was elected, the solemnity of the occasion, and the fact of being overlooked by Michelangelo's gigantic frescoes of the Last Judgment, did not prevent Wojtyla reading from a book that he had thought fit to take in for instruction – or for a little light relief from the gravity of choosing the Vicar of Christ? It was a book of Marxist principles.

Those who regarded him with suspicion were not reassured when he rejected the ritual of coronation and chose to be 'installed', and when he let it be known that he rested more easily in an ordinary chair than on the Papal throne. Were Church practices, they asked, to undergo a further paring down after those that had already resulted from the Council? Their fears grew when he put aside the mantle of authoritarianism with which the Church, of which he was now the Head, had hitherto been invested. And any lingering doubts they may have had vanished when, in his inaugural speech, he undertook to fulfil the last will and testament of Paul VI, by adhering to Pope John's directives of collegiality and the liturgy of the New Mass – and that, it may be observed, in spite of the fact that he must have been aware of all the obscenities that followed it.

When making that announcement, Wojtyla stood by a makeshift altar that, like Paul VI's bier, was bereft of any religious sign in the form of a crucifix or cross.

Other indications of what might be expected of the new Pope soon followed. In his first encyclical he praised Paul VI for having revealed 'the true countenance of the Church'. He spoke in a similar vein of the Second Vatican Council which had given 'greater visibility to the Eucharistic sacrifice'; and he undertook to follow and promote the renewal of the Church 'according to the spirit of the Council'.

A later statement referred to that Council as having been 'the greatest ecclesiastical event of our century'; and it now remained to secure 'the acceptance of fulfilment of Vatican Two in accordance with its authentic content. In doing this we are guided by faith.... We believe that Christ, through the Holy Spirit, was with the Council Fathers, that the Church contains, within its magisterium, what the Spirit says to the Church, saying it at the same time in harmony with tradition and according to the demands posed by the signs of the times' (my emphasis).

His remark on being in harmony with tradition was flatly contradicted by his admission that 'the liturgy of the Mass is different from the one known before the Council. But' (he added significantly) 'we do not intend to speak of those differences.' It was essential to renew the Church, in structure and function, to bring it into line with the needs of the contemporary world; and from that admission it needed but a step for Wojtyla to emphasise the revolutionary principles of 1789, with the glorification of man, liberated man, as a being who is sufficient unto himself. Man was the only idol deserving the reverence of those on earth, his stature being confirmed by and classified as the Rights of Man.

That somewhat hazy terrestrial belief has been the inspiration of every Left-wing movement from then on. With a fine disregard for the authority of law it was proclaimed, in America, that 'liberty is the very foundation of political order'. While a few years ago François Mitterand, the Communist who is now President of the French Republic, said that 'Man is the future of Man.' It was then left for Karol Wojtyla, as John Paul II, to enshrine that belief in a modern religious setting by declaring that 'Man is the primary issue of the Church'; a Papal announcement that is thoroughly in line with the Marxist principle that 'Man is an end in himself and the explanation of all things.'

The Pope then proceeded to pass from verbal to more active approval of the political system from which he had emerged. Speaking of the Church in Poland, he said that 'its relationship with Communism could be one of the elements in the ethical and international order in Europe and the modern world.' He maintained a friendly understanding with the Red occupiers of his country, and thought it possible to open up a spiritual détente with them. In furtherance of this the Communist Minister of State, Jablonski, with a train of comrades as large as that of any Eastern potentate, was received at the Vatican. Then came the Soviet Minister, Gromyko, who was granted more than the prescribed time with His Holiness.

He greeted guerrillas between their bouts of 'freedom fighting' in Africa and Nicaragua. His moral support went with them. He opened the door of his study to the Mexican Jose Alvarez, who travelled far and wide in South America calling on extremists to light the flames of anarchy. Not even the Pope's intimates knew what passed between them. He was the 'star' speaker at a Latin American Congress in Panama City, where the theme was certainly not religious, since the organisers were the Communist dictator, General Torrijos, and the Marxist Sergio Mendez Arceo, of Cuernavaca.

When addressing a group of refugees from Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia, the Pope's lukewarm attitude was commented on by Robert Serrou, the Paris Match correspondent. The Pope, naturally enough, had commiserated with his audience, but why, asked Serrou, had he not so much as mentioned the Red terror from which they had escaped?

In view of that failure to condemn tyranny, it is remarkable that one of the few strictures uttered by John Paul II has been directed against those Catholics who deplore the gradual taking to pieces of the Church since Vatican Two: 'Those who remain attached to incidental aspects of the Church which were more valid in the past but have now been superseded, cannot be considered the faithful.'

His orthodoxy, when it came to the teaching of Catholicism and its relation to other religions, has also been called into question. It is a commonplace, but no belittlement of Islam, to point out that the fatalistic Arabian tradition, with its denial of Christ's divinity and of the redemption, is a far remove from the essentials of Christian belief. Yet the Pope told an audience of Moslems that their Koran and the Bible 'are in step'. And in more casual mood, was he pandering to the mechanical spirit of the age when he told a gathering of motorists to have the same care for their cars as they have for their souls? Or was it by a slip of the tongue that the importance attached to cars preceded that of souls?

One of the Pope's letters, dated 15 September, 1981, on the subject of private property and capitalism, shows a marked contradiction of and a departure from the Church's teaching. For in the letter he says: 'Christian tradition has never upheld the right of private property as absolute and untouchable. On the contrary, it has always understood the right as common to all to use the goods of the whole creation.'

That is so blatantly false, and so opposed to what every Pope from Leo XIII to Pius XII had said, that one is tempted to agree with those outspoken trans-Atlantic critics² who bluntly call Karol Wojtyla a liar, and who follow that up with the exhortation: 'Break off, Charlie!'

For here I quote from Leo XIII: 'The Socialists endeavour to destroy private property, and maintain that the individual possessions should become the common property of all, to be administered by the State or by municipal bodies.... It is unjust, because it would rob the legal possessor, bring the State into a sphere that is not its own, and cause complete confusion to the community.'

Leo went on to say that a man works in order to obtain property, and to hold it as his own private possession. 'For every man has the right by nature to possess property of his own. This is one of the distinct points between man and the animal creation.... The authority of the Divine Law adds its sanction forbidding us in the gravest terms even to covet that which is another's.'

From Pius XI: 'The primary function of private property is in order that individuals may be able to provide for their own needs and for those of their families.'

And from Pius XII: 'The Church aspires to bring it about that private ownership shall become, in accordance with the plans of the divine wisdom and with the laws of nature, an element in the social system, a necessary incentive to human enterprise, and a stimulus to nature; all this for the benefit of the temporal and spiritual ends of life, and consequently for the benefit of the freedom and dignity of man.'

And still from the same Pope: 'Only private ownership can provide the head of a family with the healthy freedom it requires to carry out the duties allotted to him by the Creator for the physical, spiritual, and religious well-being of his family.'

Side by side with these proclamations the Church has issued warnings against Liberalism, which ends in capitalism, and against Marxism which preaches the abolition of private property. Therefore the statement made by John Paul II may be seen to be extraordinary compared with many of those made by his predecessors.

During his early life in Cracow, both as student and as a young priest, Wojtyla acquired a liking for the theatre that has never left him. It began when he joined a school dramatic group, and later, during the war when Poland was occupied, what is often referred to as a 'subterranean theatre', which means that rehearsals and performances took place in a room, sometimes the kitchen of an apartment, secretly and by candlelight.

'It was round about that time', says one of his biographers³, 'that he formed a sentimental attachment to a young woman'; and from then on she has followed him like a shadow, by rumour, newspaper report, and in the conversation of Polish exiles on both sides of the Atlantic.

Sometimes the details differed. The most unlikely version, that was probably put out to engage sympathy, was that she worked against the Germans, had been discovered, and shot. Another gives the date 1940 as marking the height of their attachment. According to Blazynski, who was born in Poland, the future Pope was popular with the girls and 'had a steady girl friend'.

His love of entertainment extended to the cinema, and to such superficial mock-religious shows as Jesus Christ Superstar. After one performance of the latter he spoke for twenty minutes to the audience on the theme of love and joy. He encouraged the adolescent bawling and aimless strumming of guitars that, in the name of popular accompaniments, make some present day Masses unbearable to many. In the same spirit, he invited the American evangelist, Billy Graham, to preach one of his red-hot sermons in the church of St. Anne, Cracow.

One of the subjects discussed by the circle in which he moved was a book by the writer Zegadlowicz, which had been frowned upon by the Church because of its obsession with sex; while an early piece of writing by Wojtyla (translated by Boleslaw Taborski and quoted by Blazynski) contains such lines as 'Love carries people away like an absolute.... Sometimes human existence seems too short for love.'

The same theme occurred in Wojtyla's book Love and Responsibility, 1960, which, Blazynski says, 'does not ignore the bodily reality of man and woman, and goes into considerable detail in describing both the physiology and psychology of sex (the latter often with a great deal of insight that might seem surprising in one who is now, after all, a celibate clergyman).'

Even when Wojtyla became Pope the ghost of the mystery woman who had haunted his student days was not laid. There are those among Polish exiles who claim to have known her, and one of the most downright rumours spread is that her name is Edwige.

But be that as it may, not even Wojtyla's apologists can deny that he has shown more interest in human sexuality than any Pope since the Middle Ages. Many listeners to an address he gave in Rome were quite embarrassed when he launched into details on lust and the nakedness of the body.

Some of his own statements have given publicity agents ample scope to enlarge upon them. 'Young people of France', he cried to a far from mature audience in Paris, 'bodily union has always been the strongest language that two people can say to each other.' Those words have been called some of the most stupefying ever spoken by a Pope.

During his visit to Kisingani in Zaire, Africa, a correspondent in Newsweek shook his head sadly over the way in which the Head of the Roman Church dispensed with formality. In humid heat, and almost as soon as he stepped from the plane, he was seen 'grinning, sweating, swaying and stomping with dancing girls.' He has been photographed watching a group of adolescent girls in one-piece garments that reached well above the knee carry out a series of acrobatic dances. Another picture has recently come to hand in which, at Castelgandolfo, he watches a young dancer perform convolutions in front of him, with her head and face almost lost sight of in a flurry of white underclothes.

A play written by Wojtyla, The Jeweller's Shop, was produced at the Westminster Theatre in May, 1982. Said to be written in purple prose, the producer hoped that the play 'should draw the punters' as well as the church audiences.

His hope may well be realised since the play, still quoting The Daily Telegraph (28 April 1982) 'embraces the unlikely subject of prostitution.'⁴

There is no need for John Paul II to enter deeply into the differences in the Church resulting from Vatican Two. It has been said that he is walking with a rose in his hand – that is, until the early gains achieved by John XXIII and Paul VI have been consolidated. The once proud boast relating to the One True Church has diminished into a spineless acknowledgment of 'these ecumenical days'. The claim of Papal authority, which has yielded place to the idea of power-sharing with Bishops, may remain on the Church's statute books for a while longer, but the force of its divine origin has been watered down; and the altars, always a sign of 'whatever gods may be', have been demolished.

Even so, the next phase of the attack upon the Church, from within, has passed beyond its preparatory stages and is already under way. It is likely to be less spectacular than the earlier depredations. The word 'revisionary' will be heard more often than 'change'. The churches will no longer be used as amatory playgrounds. Yet what is likely to result from meetings in the Vatican Synod Hall, between more than seventy Cardinals and Bishops, will probably, in the long run, be quite as devastating as the innovations that have now been accepted as norms by a largely unperceptive and uncritical public.

Among the subjects that are known to have been discussed are marriage and abortion; and prelates such as Cardinal Felici are rational enough to admit that the issues on these, and similar questions, have virtually been decided in advance. Marriage annulments, robbed of much of their earlier formality, will be made easier. The threat of excommunication will be lifted from women who undergo abortion; and, a still greater earnest of more and vital concessions to come, the articles of Canon Law will be reduced from numbering 2,414 to a possible 1,728.

But these considerations will not weigh heavily on those who are likely to be impressed by the Pope's visit to this country in May this year, 1982. The power of Mr. Mark McCormack's International Management Group has been invoked to provide the same publicity for a Pope that it has so ably done for golfers, baseball toughs, and tennis players; while a firm of business consultants, Papal Visits Limited, will add further promotional backing.

The proven dramatic instinct of John Paul II will doubtless come into play as, scattering blessings from a glass-topped vehicle, he rides slowly between miles of fencing, stands, marquees, and Press platforms, and over carpet decorated with thousands of plants, to where three crosses, the tallest a hundred and twenty feet high – no, Mr. McCormack, Calvary was not like that – rise above a steel and canvas altar structure.

After Mass, the faithful may come away with a screwdriver that bears a sticker showing the Pope's head on its handle. All arrangements for the visit will be in the capable hands of Archbishop Marcinkus, who has obviously been washed clean of the somewhat doubtful reputation that clung to him in Rome.

Appendix

The strange death of Roberto Calvi.

Hard upon the upheaval caused by the collapse of Michele Sindona's financial empire, and the revelations concerning membership of the masonic lodge Propaganda 2, Oriental Rite, the Vatican faced a third embarrassment when on June 18, 1982, the body of banker Roberto Calvi was discovered hanging from scaffolding under Blackfriars Bridge.

Calvi had been the president of Italy's biggest private bank, the Ambrosiano, which took over many of Sindona's assets. Sometimes known as 'God's banker' because of his close connection with Vatican finance (the Vatican bank was a large shareholder in the Ambrosiano), in May of the above year he faced a number of charges related to, among others, illegal currency transactions.

He vanished from Rome and arrived in London, where he took accommodation in Chelsea Cloisters, on June 15. He was a frightened man, burdened with secrets connected with his own and the Vatican bank, into which it was not wise to probe too deeply. Some who had tried were suddenly dismissed from their posts, others went to jail on faked charges, and there had been at least one known shooting affair during investigations.

While Calvi was absent his secretary, who had been with the bank for thirty years, wrote a note cursing Calvi and then threw herself, so the authorities said, from the fourth floor of the bank's headquarters in Milan.

In London Calvi treated his chauffeur as a bodyguard. He arranged with a friend to call at his flat at regular intervals, and then to knock three times for entrance. He also shaved off his moustache, which he had worn for years.

But although disinclined to leave his apartment, Calvi, it was said, had nonetheless walked four miles in the night or early morning, to commit suicide in the unlikely area of Blackfriars.

The mention of that area calls for comment, together with a reminder that secret societies lay great stress on association and symbols. Blackfriars was the site of the friary and church of the Dominican Order, members of which acquired the name of Black Friars because of their habit. They were, and still are, known as the Order of Preachers. As such they brought the pulpit into general use, and pulpits figure in the stonework of Blackfriars Bridge. And members of the P2 lodge, in which Calvi figured as number 0519, dressed as Black Friars in white tunic, with black cloak and hood, for their ritualistic meetings.

An inquest jury, supported by Scotland Yard, found that Calvi had committed suicide, a verdict that caused raised eyebrows and disbelieving smiles among his relatives and the Italian Press and police. For it implied that Calvi, who was sixty-two, had displayed the dexterity of an athletic young man in seeking, as the Rome Public Prosecutor said, a complicated way to end himself.

In the dark, and on completely strange ground, he had filled his pockets with rubble, negotiated a long ladder and wet planks which had a gap of some feet between them, seized a piece of sodden rope, tied one end to his neck and the other to a piece of scaffolding, and flung himself off. Why take so much trouble, when among his belongings were found medical syringes, seven boxes of tablets, and 170 pills of various kinds, many of which could have done the trick more easily?

But here again the obscure, somewhat bizarre, yet sinister influence of P2 and other secret societies comes into the picture. The initiation of a candidate into the craft often includes the taking of an oath not to reveal any of its secrets. Should he offend, he would undergo a violent death and then be buried near water at low level within reach of the tide; the belief being that his ghost would thereby be prevented from walking, which might embarrass his murderers.

This would apply to Calvi, who in all probability had been strangled before being taken to Blackfriars, to ensure that the dangerous secrets in his possession would not be divulged. For after his mysterious and clumsy 'suicide', before his body was cut down, the Thames tide was covering his feet.

There is nothing to suggest that Calvi had offended his brother masons. But he was under legal pressure, and there were many who feared the possible bringing to light of his extensive financial network. The Vatican, ever since the Sindona scandal, had been on its guard against further revelations, and when the activities of P2 were brought into the open, it took a surprising and an apparently unnecessary step.

The Congregation for the Doctrine of Faith reminded Catholics that according to article 2335 of Canon Law they were forbidden, under pain of excommunication, to become freemasons. This was merely a tongue-in-cheek exercise to out-step questioners since, as readers of these pages will know, some of the leading prelates at the Vatican were established masons. But the move reflected the alarm that was felt there. Two cardinals, Guerri and Caprio, had worked hand-in-glove with Sindona whose fall had brought P2 and its shady dealings into the open. A prominent member of the lodge, Umberto Ortolani, was known to have close links with the Vatican.

But the most significant name that surfaced with the scandal was that of Archbishop Marcinkus, among whose several unacknowledged connections were those with Mafia circles and with Licio Gelli, a former Grand Master of P2. But even more to the point, he was also president of the Vatican bank, the most secretive and exclusive bank in the world.

Marcinkus had also been a friend and business associate of Calvi, and, having remarked that 'Calvi has our trust', he bore that out by issuing a guarantee, in the name of the Vatican bank, to cover some of Calvi's extensive loan operations, involving many millions, as part of a vast monetary programme that included international arms selling deals.

But as the storm gathered Marcinkus withdrew his guarantee, though by then sufficient evidence had come to light to justify the belief that more than normal business exchanges had passed between the Vatican bank and the Banco Ambrosiano.

The Minister for the Treasury, Andreatta, called for the Vatican to come into the open and admit its part in the crisis that was rocking the financial world. There were also demands for Marcinkus to be questioned, while pressure was put upon the Pope to dismiss him. But Marcinkus was too well versed in Vatican banking secrets for the Pope to risk his displeasure. Moreover, he had been nominated chairman of the influential Commission of Cardinals, and so was well on the way to becoming a prince of the Church, a prospect which made him unavailable for awkward contacts.

For when commissioners went to the Vatican to seek information on its bank and Calvi's relationship with it, Marcinkus was 'not at home'. And when subpoenas (implying that the recipients were subject to examination) addressed to Marcinkus and two of his clerical banking associates, were sent by registered post to the Vatican, the envelope was returned unopened.

A somewhat grudging admission that the Vatican may have been partly responsible for the Calvi bank failure was made this month (August 1982) by Cardinal Casaroli.

Meanwhile the highly controversial Archbishop Marcinkus, in his office that is just a few steps down from the Pope's apartment, may sometimes handle a balance sheet from his late colleague's bank and reflect upon the words with which such statements ended: 'Thanks be to God!'

Finale

‘Ye’re a bad lot; a blackguard, in the likes of a living man.’

I was thus greeted by an Irish priest early one crisp April morning. He had read in manuscript much of what I have here written, and while he could not confute it, he thought that I was doing the Church a sorry service. He was a big, broad-shouldered man, with sad eyes and a knobbed stick that he swung as though it were a shillelagh.

We were standing within the shadow of St. Peter’s, while the blinds were still drawn in the palace windows, and only isolated footsteps sounded on the piazza. His hint of humorous menace contrasted with the serenity of my feelings.

For there is nothing more golden in the world than a Roman dawn. Gold dust, lighting the past more surely than it does the present, filters through the air and settles, like a hesitant touch, on Maderna’s façade with its bold Roman letters, turning its brown and ochre tints into gold. Dust motes, where the first light catches them, are turned into gold that touches the base of Caligula’s obelisk and breaks in splendour over the cobbles; over the statues of the saints on the colonnade, and the dome that gradually wears to white; over the space before the basilica surrounded by Bernini’s giant columns, as once the legions surrounded the levelled spears that rose in envy of the Roman Thing; water from the fountains, whenever a breeze ruffles it, falls away in drops of gold.

The angle of the stick was inviting me to look over Vatican Hill. ‘That’s the way dawn will come, over the city, over the Church. Don’t you believe it?’

I only half nodded.

‘What you’ve written will pass, like a holiday or a slow fever. But the promise that was given to Peter’ – and he pointed to the central figure on the colonnade – ‘will not pass. It cannot. The fissure in the Rock will be closed. Dawn will come again. Don’t you believe it?’

‘Yes’, I agreed, influenced perhaps by his sad eyes and the swing of his shillelagh. ‘Dawn will come again.’ But will it be a false dawn?

Title: the common thread of Jesuit temporal co-adjutors

CRAIG-OXLEY - April 26, 2006 11:35 PM (GMT)

Dear Pastor Turner,

A most excellent post! You have described the effects of what Toplady called "the sovereign drug of Arminianism."

As the Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor Al Pacino said at the end in The Devil's Advocate, "Free will, its a [female dog]." That rant was the most lucid and succinct summary of Jesuit immoral theology I have ever heard.

Sincerely in faith,

Brother Eric

Subject: the common thread of Jesuit temporal co-adjutors

Eric,

One of the recent e-mails ties in with my thoughts over the past few days. There was a strong reaction from three separate listeners to my preaching on the doctrine of free will last Saturday. Two were uproariously happy over the message, and one expressed deep dissatisfaction. But what is the common thread between every co-adjutor we have encountered? Is it not an adherence to the doctrine of human free will, or human agency being the determining factor in a man's destiny? This damnable doctrine of human power as the deciding factor in determining eternal destiny is believed and expounded by them all, religious or non-religious, King James or not King James, conspiracy exposers and non-conspiracy exposers alike, Jew opponent or supposed Jew advocate, rapture or non-rapture, etc. Let us consider one more time in relationship one to another the names below, and seek the one common ties that binds them all. To the best of my recollection, we have named or have discussed the following individuals as possible or (most of them) certain co-adjutors.

1 Peter S. Ruckman Founder of Pensacola Bible Institute, self professed "junkyard dog" of the Lord defending the King James Bible, hyper-dispensationalist 501 c3 church pastor and author of dozens of books. Claims to be a Baptist but continually mocks historic creeds and confessions, calls himself a "moderate Calvinist" but does not teach or believe the Bible doctrines of Total Depravity, Unconditional Election, Atonement Limited to the Elect in Efficiency, or Irresistible Grace. hates Calvinists more than Catholics, preaches free-will, and will not attack Jesuits or Freemason.

2 Gail A. Riplinger Author of New Age Bible Versions, a Peter Ruckman wannabe and vehement opponent of Calvinism who purports to uphold the King James Bible. Also a friend and confidant of the next woman on the list.

3 Constance Cumbey Member of a Baptist church and purported New Age exposé who in her book HIDDEN DANGERS OF THE RAINBOW urged Protestants and Catholics to come together to make common cause against "New Agers." Friend of Riplinger and obvious free-will.

4 Texe Marrs Power of Prophecy host, author, rabid Jew attacker, and supposed pastor. Visited Rome in Oct-Dec 2003 and began an attack on the Jews around March or April 2004 which has not ceased. Called Esther the saint in the Bible book of the same name a whore, and says that International Jewry is the Whore of Babylon. Another rabid free-will, and the man who performed the wedding ceremony for the next man on the list.

5 Alex Jones The man with quite possibly the biggest mouth on shortwave, who is always shouting "we're making a difference," "waging war on global corruption," "exposing the power elites," etc. Continually plays "patty-cakes" with main stream press co-adjutors like Ann Coulter, has promoted THE PASSION OF CHRIST and interviewed favorably Hutton Gibson, and recently commended co-adjutor and son of a co-adjutor Charlie Sheen. Permits rock music like Led Zepplin (When the Levee Breaks), Tom Petty (I Won't Back Down), Pink Floyd (The Wall) as break music besides the Johnny Cash, etc. Jones goes into a frenzy every time the words "Jesuits" or "Catholics" are used by his callers, and his "speech bewrayeth" him, he is a stone cold "free-will."

5 Dirty Dave Hunt He talks soft but is an opponent of the KJV and a rabid hater of Calvinism, and like all such, a monumental liar who comes out of a charismatic background. HarvestHouse in Eugene, Oregon published his book THE SEDUCTION OF CHRISTIANITY which made him an immediate Christian "celebrity."

6 Pastor Butch Paugh Self professed patriot preacher who recently back pedalled and soft soaped for ten minutes up front before he brought you up for what was a pathetic interview (on his part, certainly not yours). Teaches that a saved, born again child of God can die in their sins and go to hell because they have "free will." Professes advocacy of the AV 1611. A personal friend of Hutton Gibson and GCN host.

7 Joyce Riley While not a religious host, one can readily guess her position from her on air staements, and her affiliation with GCN.

8 Stan Monteith While not openly taking a stance on "free will," it is a reasonable assertion that this co-adjutor and Catholic apologist who always is pointing the finger somewhere other than Rome is another one.

I guess this list could expand to include all the Hollywood co-adjutors, who are busy exercising their "free will" in snorting coke, simulating sex on screen, and serving Satan. Al Pacino, Robert de Niro, Robert Duvall, Martin Sheen, Denzel Washington, and dozens of others, both old and new, are at work in the Jesuit Theatre demonstrating free will. Of course we have the old guard religious crowd of Billy Graham, Jack Van Impe, Jerry Falwell, and their ilk, loyal co-adjutors and free-willers to a man (or is it woman?). Then there is the TBN charismatic free will faction that embraces Jaohn Haggee, Hal Lindsey, Benny Hinn, Creflo Dollar, Kenneth Freemason Copeland, and many others besides the ten dozen William Branham false prophet clones. This could also likely be observed among the literary world as well, if we had time to listen to interviews with Ludlum, Tom Clancy (Jesuit), etc. Myt believe is that this is the Jesuit glue that holds them all together, the doctrine of free will. And, as we well know, those that drink the poisoned waters of "will worship" will worship the beast, that man of sin, the son of perdition who exalts himself above all that is called or worshipped as God: THE POPE OF ROME!

I believe the untempered mortar of free will whold the Devil's empire together, and any opponent of the Jesuits who has imbibed this has been spiritually neutralized.

KJV Ezekiel 13:10 Because, even because they have seduced my people, saying, Peace; and there was no peace; and one built up a wall, and, lo, others daubed it with untempered mortar:KJV Ezekiel 13:11 Say unto them which daub it with untempered mortar, that it shall fall: there shall be an overflowing shower; and ye, O great hailstones, shall fall; and a stormy wind shall rend it.

KJV Matthew 13:33 Another parable spake he unto them; The kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven, which a woman took, and hid in three measures of meal, till the whole was leavened.

Blessings to you and all those that love the truth.
Pastor Turner

I agree with Calvinism that free will doesn't merit salvation. Free will is apart of human nature and nothing done by any human can merit salvation. Salvation is a free gift from God and has nothing to do with man. That sets Biblical Christianity from every religion.

Every other religion believes that man's works merits salvation or enlightenment. Also, humans working to be saved gives humans license to do what they want whenever they want for the sake of free will. Now, My main disagreement with Calvinism is about limited atonement. The NT perfectly says that Christ love the whole world and died for all men (not only the elect) That's perfectly mentioned in the book of 1st John 2:2, which reads, "And he is the propitiation for our sins: and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world." 2nd Corinthians 5:15, "And that he died for all..." We read in 1st Timothy 1:15, "This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners; of whom I am chief. The Word of God proclaims that Christ came to save sinners, not just certain sinners. Listen to the plain teaching of 2nd peter 3:9, "The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness; but is longsuffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance." Calvinism accepts infant baptism. No where in the NT were infants baptized at all. Baptism is always done to people with consent first in the scriptures. On Calvinism, I'm in David Cloud's camp. Like Cloud said, most Calvinists are brothers and sisters in the faith, but some of Calvinism is false doctrine. I'm a Baptist.

I agree, Timothy, except I think that "limited atonement" is someone trying to oversimplify things.

Since not everyone will be saved, in effect Christ's sacrifice only works for those who are. I think someone took it a small step further.

Say you have a gift and you have more than enough for everyone. Only those who will receive it have the gift. Those who will not take of it won't have possession of it. It's like saying, in effect, the gift is for those who will receive it.

I really don't consider myself to be a Calvinist.

Mark Brewer - April 27, 2006 06:52 PM (GMT)

Calvin based his ideas on Augustine and other Catholic "church fathers". He did not really oppose Catholicism, he wanted to create his own papacy in Geneva. This is why there is so much opposition to Dave Hunt's book about Calvinism, because he proved that Calvin was a fraud.

TruthSeeker24 - April 28, 2006 12:54 PM (GMT)

I totally agree Mark.

CRAIG-OXLEY - April 29, 2006 02:00 AM (GMT)

Dear Pastor Rob,

I was a "Free Will" adherent for many years, yet also a born-again Bible-believer in Christ. The men we name are experts in the affairs of this world, both politically and spiritually. All of them know the past history of the Vatican and the Jesuit/Masonic doctrine of "Free Will" Arminianism that so destroyed the Protestant churches over the last 200 years. I suggest you read any of the Order's works championing the doctrine of "Free Will." Read just how crucial it is in realizing their purpose of destroying the Protestant Reformation and the nations born out of that glorious revolution. Please read Martin Luther's Bondage of the Will and observe just how crucial it was to counter the Order's beloved doctrine of "Free Will." I liken this to a true son of God such as yourself unknowingly using an English Bible based upon the pro-Jerome Latin Vulgate Westcott and Hort Greek Text. No harm is met as it is done without knowledge, but in the long term harm is done. Politically speaking, no Bible-believing Christian sect that held to the doctrine of "Free Will" ever marshaled an army (through the arm of government) to resist the designs and genocidal wars instigated by Rome. "Free Will" leads to "unlimited submission" to political tyranny (a perversion of Romans 13) created by the Jesuits now ruling the US via their CFR. Pastor, I KNOW YOU do not believe in unlimited submission.

I beg you to reconsider holding to the doctrine of "Free Will." If you would like, I can direct you to some excellent reading on the topic.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

Subject: Re: Fw: the common thread of Jesuit temporal co-adjutors

My dear Brothers,

Perhaps you should add my name to the list as I am not totally convinced of the doctrines of election and grace myself. Both "free will" and "election" leave me with many, many questions even though I spent several months studying both last year.

We as ministers and Christians must be very careful with our words of condemnation. For however I measure out mercy to others, the same shall be measured back to me.

We are all growing and learning. We should be patient as others come to the knowledge of the truth. If you had judged me 6 years ago (since I knew nothing of election, the KJV or the Jesuits although some information came my way that I dismissed), you would have condemned me as a heretic when indeed I was a born again, blood bought saint of God saved by grace through faith. Are we saved through the doctrine of election? Was the Ethiopian Eunuch saved although he barely knew the doctrines of the Bible, yet was baptized anyway? Can someone be an expert in biblical theology and still not know about the Jesuits, election and the Jesuits (remember, a student can only be as great as his teacher).

Dear brothers, forget not the law of primal evidence: "what I know first I know best". Many have been severerly brainwashed by false teaching. Be patient with those of us who may not be "up to speed" with you.

These words are spoken from a gentle spirit with kindness and love, seasoned with grace.

Please forward these words to Brother Turner also, if he will receive them. I mean him no disrespect, but hope that he might see anothers point of view.

With much love,
Rob

Title: Jesuits and Fabian socialist communism

CRAIG-OXLEY - April 29, 2006 01:49 AM (GMT)

Dear Gianni,

The Marxist communists were created and controlled by the Jesuits who in turn control the Vatican. Communism was promoted via Freemasonry and the Order controls the Craft. This control extends into British Fabian Socialism, Co-mason Annie Besant being one of the Fabians along with Shaw and Webb. Masonic Lenin translated the works of Webb when in Russia. And the Order's open policy is anti-masonic and anti-communist, yet the Black Pope controls all radical socialism as per The Jesuit Conspiracy, by Leone. The Order's Liberation Theology, the foundation for the Civil Rights Movement, is communist and openly Jesuit controlled.

Although Muslim boys were admitted to both schools from the very beginning, the objectives of the mission never included proselytizing Muslims. Boston's Cardinal Richard Cushing never seemed to grasp this idea. On one occasion, after giving a stirring exhortation to benefactors urging support for the Baghdad mission, he confessed his feelings privately to his Jesuit friends: "This Baghdad mission has to be the biggest waste of money and manpower in the history of the church—not a single convert from Islam!" In fact, our Muslim graduates have stated publicly that their Jesuit training made them better Muslims.

The truth on Dr. Martin Luther King.

From <http://www.fullquivermission.com/forum/viewthread.php?p=1&der=asc&start=0>

Watchman: Now, before anybody starts heaping ignorant scorn upon my hoary head, allow me to post a lengthy quote from a man whose name and titles were lies, who was a notorious womanizer, according to his closest ally and friend in the movement, and had intimate ties with the Communist Party in America, and who according to his own biographer, David J. Garrow, decribed himself as a Marxist. As to his name, it was Michael King. While he was indeed ordained, he denied the inerrancy of Scripture, aside from his life of fornication and adultery. While he indeed received a Doctorate, he plagiarized much of his doctoral thesis from a man named Jack Boozer in HIS doctroal thesis, but was never held to account for it (according to the Wall Street Journal). Check these links for corroboration of the above facts:

Communist involvement

Names and Facts concerning the above claims.

Facts concerning King's Plagiarism

All these things are bad enough, but the coup de grace is Mike King's alliance with Planned Parenthood and Margaret Sanger, while she was in the midst of the Negro Project to wipe out the "mud races"!

Margaret Sanger wrote:

“” “The most successful educational approach to the Negro is through Religious appeal. We do not want word to get out that we want to exterminate the Negro population, and the minister is the man who can straighten out the idea if it ever occurs to any of their more rebellious members.”- Margaret Sanger- The Negro Project

While it may be tempting to think that Mike King was just "duped" as one of Sanger's "useful Negro preachers", his own glowing words about Sanger and Planned Parenthood would tend to belie that wishful thought. King was a recipient of the Margaret Sanger Award by PP, it's very first year, and they have posted The speech in its entirety. Here is an excerpt that should dispel any doubt that King was a rabid proabortion, besides all his other fine, Christian qualities.

Michael King in 1966 wrote:

"There is a striking kinship between our movement and Margaret Sanger's early efforts. She, like we, saw the horrifying conditions of ghetto life. Like we, she knew that all of society is poisoned by cancerous slums. Like we, she was a direct actionist — a nonviolent resister. She was willing to accept scorn and abuse until the truth she saw was revealed to the millions. At the turn of the century she went into the slums and set up a birth control clinic, and for this deed she went to jail because she was violating an unjust law.

Yet the years have justified her actions. She launched a movement which is obeying a higher law to preserve human life under humane conditions. Margaret Sanger had to commit what was then called a crime in order to enrich humanity, and today we honor her courage and vision; for without them there would have been no beginning. Our sure beginning in the struggle for equality by nonviolent direct action may not have been so resolute without the tradition established by Margaret Sanger and people like her.

Negroes have no mere academic nor ordinary interest in family planning. They have a special and urgent concern. . . . The Negro constitutes half the poor of the nation. Like all poor, Negro and white, they have many unwanted children. This is a cruel evil they urgently need to control. There is scarcely anything more tragic in human life than a child who is not wanted. That which should be a blessing becomes a curse for parent and child."

Any questions?

My Response:

Years ago, we all thought that King was a hero. It was until I've learned about his plagiarism, adulteries, and other negative behavior that he had. As we know, he received a Margaret Sanger award in 1966. http://www.jesus-is-savior.com/Wolves/mlk_jr-exposed.htm is another link talking about him. It's a shame that he concerned himself primarily with a social gospel. It's legitimate to grant citizens of all colors the same rights protected under the Bill Of Rights. It's quite another to not discuss too much about the Gospel of Jesus Christ to save people. His college works have him denying the resurrection of Jesus, his Deity, and other concepts of Christianity. MLK talked about Jesus, but didn't adequately use his message to try to massively save people of all colors from their sins. If he'd done that along in a legitimate campaign, his impact might of been more effective to reach across people. It's time to focus on other black Patriots and Christians that made contributions to this nation.

By TruthSeeker24 (Timothy)

Watchman: Welcome to the Board, Timothy. Yes, Michael King received the Margaret Sanger Award in 1966. In fact in that year, Ted Kennedy was still more pro-life than King. Here is Ted Kennedy's speech from 1971:

"While the deep concern of a woman bearing an unwanted child merits consideration and sympathy, it is my personal feeling that the legalization of abortion on demand is not in accordance with the value which our civilization places on human life. Wanted or unwanted, I believe that human life, even at its earliest stages, has certain rights which must be recognized – the right to be born, the right to love, the right to grow old. "

On the question of the individual's freedom of choice there are easily available birth-control methods and information which women may employ to prevent or postpone pregnancy. But once life has begun, no matter at what stage of growth, it is my belief that termination should not be decided merely by desire. ...

"When history looks back to this era it should recognize this generation as one which cared about human beings enough to halt the practice of war, to provide a decent living for every family, and to fulfill its responsibility to its children from the very moment of conception."

And now, here is Michael King's speech accepting the Margaret Sanger Award from Planned Parenthood:

There is a striking kinship between our movement and Margaret Sanger's early efforts. She, like we, saw the horrifying conditions of ghetto life. Like we, she knew that all of society is poisoned by cancerous slums. Like we, she was a direct actionist — a nonviolent resister. She was willing to accept scorn and abuse until the truth she saw was revealed to the millions. At the turn of the century she went into the slums and set up a birth control clinic, and for this deed she went to jail because she was violating an unjust law. Yet the years have justified her actions. She launched a movement which is obeying a higher law to preserve human life under humane conditions.

"Margaret Sanger had to commit what was then called a crime in order to enrich humanity, and today we honor her courage and vision; for without them there would have been no beginning. Our sure beginning in the struggle for equality by nonviolent direct action may not have been so resolute without the tradition established by Margaret Sanger and people like her. Negroes have no mere academic nor ordinary interest in family planning. They have a special and urgent concern. . . . The Negro constitutes half the poor of the nation. Like all poor, Negro and white, they have many unwanted children. This is a cruel evil they urgently need to control. There is scarcely anything more tragic in human life than a child who is not wanted. That which should be a blessing becomes a curse for parent and child."

Notice King's appeal to "higher law", which in his mind states that we should NOT allow God to decide how many children we should have, but rather, take aggressive steps on our own to prevent pregnancy and kill the unwanted unborn. In King's NewSpeak we "enrich humanity" by killing human beings. Contrast that which Ted Kennedy's speech from 1971, where he once actually understood the truth,

"Wanted or unwanted, I believe that human life, even at its earliest stages, has certain rights which must be recognized – the right to be born, the right to love, the right to grow old."

Alexandra - April 28, 2006 02:45 PM (GMT)

I read about King's womanizing and plagiarism, as well as his Communist ties, in Dr. Cathy Burns' book "Billy Graham and His Friends."

Where my husband works, this black guy objected to having to work on MLK day, even though it's a paid holiday there--double time if you work the day, plus holiday pay!

I know of black people who think that the civil rights movement did more harm than good. Oh, I'm not saying we should go back to Jim Crow laws such as separate drinking fountains (that's really stupid). I'm just saying that King helped do more harm than good.

As far as this PP thing...black women are more likely than white women to have an abortion...we basically have black genocide going on. Is it a coincidence that abortion clinics are in areas with greater concentrations of black people? In my area they're in Akron and Cleveland...none in my county, which is primarily white (not to mention Amish), but there is a PP here in town (last I knew that clinic doesn't do abortions--most likely they'd refer you though).

Title: Controversy between Barbara Aho and Cutting Edge.

My Personal opinion on this controversy.

This is something new. Like I said, I don't agree with Calvinism. Calvin was a man who created his theocracy in Geneva where religious dissenters were persecuted. Now, as for the KJV, I believe it's an accurate and full translation of the Bible. I don't believe that the KJV is superior to the original translations of the NT or OT, but an 100% accurate translation. Now, I don't agree with Francis Bacon. History proves that King James resisted Francis Bacon and later made Bacon to leave his post in the British government. So, James disagreed strongly with Bacon. As for David Bay, I have nothing but respect for the man. I disagree with his Pre-trib views, which the Bible is blatantly Post-trib as said by Jesus in Matthew 24. I've read David Bay's response and he is sincere about his views. As for King James as a man, scholars have refuted the charge that James was a homosexual or that he collaborated with Bacon to edit the KJV Bible (which are lies). The Bacon/KJV lie was promoted the most by 33rd Degree Freemason Manly P. Hall. He wrote this stuff in his book "The Secret Teachings of the Ages." That book is hundreds of pages of occult information. It talks about Atlantis and other stuff that has no relevance to the Word of God. I respect Aho's refutation of the Bacon/KJV stuff.

He disagreed with Pastor Ron Riffe's unfair bashing of the KJV. Also, Barbara Aho is an interesting character. For the past 2 or 3 years, she's been on an assault on Jewish people. She may say that she isn't anti-Semitic, but the truth remains that she denies that all tribes existed in Israel after the Babylonian Captivity. Barbara only believes that the tribe of Judah only remained in Israel even after the Second Temple was built, which was long after the Babylonian Captivity. She's totally wrong for the NT clearly mention some of the Lost Tribes living in Israel during the time of the Roman Empire. For example, Luke 2:36 mentions Asher (one of the supposed Lost Tribes) in the Lord.

Jesus is called a Jew in John 4:9 plus Peter in Acts 10:28. In John 4:19-26, Jesus said that salvation is from the Jews. Therefore, By the time of Christ, the terms "Jew" and "Israel" are 100% interchangeable. Jesus Christ is the King of the Jews (Mt. 27:37) and the King of Israel (the twelve tribes) in Mt. 27:42 and John 12:9-13). Barbara Aho readily exposes evil Jewish people (which I have no problem with), but rarely expose the Jesuits, Opus Dei, Knight of Columbus, and other groups with a majority Gentile membership. All of these groups existed from the Ancient Mysteries from Babylon and Egypt, which were Gentiles. Aho's biggest deception is trying to equate Romanism with Judaism. Aho wrote about this deception in his work "MYSTERY, BABYLON THE GREAT CATHOLIC OR JEWISH?"

The truth is that Romanism itself has its influences from Babylonism. The book called "The Two Babylons" by Alexander Hislop wrote extensively on the Romanism/Babylonian connection. The smoking gun refuting Aho is that most popes weren't Jewish at all. True Torah Judaism was supported by God, Moses, and others.

All of the rituals during that time were praised of God. Now, many of the ceremonies were obsolete since God doesn't require us to follow all of the old Jewish traditions from the OT, but the chi-rho symbol, confessionals, wafers in mass, Goddess worship, etc. existed not from Jewish people, but from the Gentile Ancient Mysteries. That is a fact. She has never refuted the fact that God's covenant to Abraham in Genesis 12 wasn't replaced. God said it was for Abraham's seed for an everlasting land and for an everlasting covenant. Watch Unto Prayers accepts replacement theology and denies any land covenant to the Jewish people. They assign Secret societies to Jews like Freemasons, yet 2 Gentiles invented Modern Freemasonry in 1717. Watch Unto Prayer uses a lot of truth, but mixes it with anti-Jewish sentiment. They assign any support of Israel or God's covenant with shilling with pro-Kabbalist, evil Zionists, which isn't the case at all. You can still support the good people in Israel and be anti-Kabbala, anti-dual loyalty, and anti-apostasy. That's my view. Barbara Aho and Retaking America is right that Cutting Edge should of put a more strong disclaimer that the pro-Bacon guy is 100% wrong on his views on Christianity. Aho is wrong into denying the eternal land covenant given by God to Abraham and his seed. Genesis 12 was never banned or eliminated since the covenant was eternal. Aho doesn't want people to know that even Paul said that he's a Jew, from the tribe of Benjamin, and God hasn't forsaken his people Israel which he foreknew. Replacement theology is not only praised today by apostate Protestants, British Israelists, and anti-Semites. It's also supported by Roman Catholics.

From http://www.therefinersfire.org/replacement_theology.htm

By Clarence H. Wagner, Jr.

Perhaps you have heard of the term Replacement Theology. However, if you look it up in a dictionary of Church history, you will not find it listed as a systematic study. Rather, it is a doctrinal teaching that originated in the early Church. It became the fertile soil from which Christian anti-Semitism grew and has infected the Church for nearly 1,900 years.

What Is Replacement Theology?

Replacement Theology was introduced to the Church shortly after Gentile leadership took over from Jewish leadership. What are its premises?

Israel (the Jewish people and the land) has been replaced by the Christian Church in the purposes of God, or, more precisely, the Church is the historic continuation of Israel to the exclusion of the former.

The Jewish people are now no longer a "chosen people." In fact, they are no different from any other group, such as the English, Spanish, or Africans.

Apart from repentance, the new birth, and incorporation into the Church, the Jewish people have no future, no hope, and no calling in the plan of God. The same is true for every other nation and group.

Since Pentecost of Acts 2, the term "Israel," as found in the Bible, now refers to the Church.

The promises, covenants and blessings ascribed to Israel in the Bible have been taken away from the Jews and given to the Church, which has superseded them. However, the Jews are subject to the curses found in the Bible, as a result of their rejection of Christ.

How Do Replacement Theologians Argue Their Case? They Say:

To be a son of Abraham is to have faith in Jesus Christ. For them, Galatians 3:29 shows that sonship to Abraham is seen only in spiritual, not national terms: "And if you be Christ's, then you are Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise."

Rebuttal: While this is a wonderful inclusionary promise for Gentiles, this verse does not exclude the Jewish people from their original covenant, promise and blessing as the natural seed of Abraham. This verse simply joins us Gentile Christians to what God had already started with Israel.

The promise of the land of Canaan to Abraham was only a "starter." The real Promised Land is the whole world. They use Romans 4:13 to claim it will be the Church that inherits the world, not Israel. "For the promise that he should be the heir of the world was not to Abraham, or to his seed, through the law, but through the righteousness of faith."

Rebuttal: Where does this verse exclude Abraham and His natural prodigy, the Jews? It simply says that through the law, they would not inherit the world, but this would be acquired through faith. This is also true of the Church.

The nation of Israel was only the seed of the future Church, which would arise and incorporate people of all nations (Mal. 1:11): "For from the rising of the sun, even unto the going down of the same, My Name shall be great among the nations, and in every place, incense shall be offered to My Name, and a pure offering for My Name shall be great among the nations, says the Lord of Hosts."

Rebuttal: This is great, and shows that the Jewish people and Israel fulfilled one of their callings to be "a light to the nations," so that God's Word has gone around the world. It does not suggest God's dealing with Israel was negated because His Name spread around the world.

Jesus taught that the Jews would lose their spiritual privileges, and be replaced by another people (Matt. 21:43): "Therefore I am saying to you, 'The kingdom of God will be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits of it.'"

Rebuttal: In this passage, Jesus was talking about the priests and Pharisees, who failed as leaders of the people. This passage is not talking about the Jewish people or nation of Israel. See Teaching Letter #770008, "Did God Break His Covenant With the Jews?"

A true Jew is anyone born of the Spirit, whether he is racially Gentile or Jewish (Rom. 2:28-29): "For he is not a Jew who is one outwardly; neither is that circumcision which is outward in the flesh; But he is a Jew who is one inwardly; and circumcision is that of the heart, in the spirit and not in the letter; whose praise is not of men, but of God."

Rebuttal: This argument does not support the notion that the Church replaced Israel. Rather, it simply reinforces what had been said throughout the Hebrew Scriptures [the Old Testament], and it certainly qualifies the spiritual qualifications for Jews or anyone who professes to be a follower of the God of Israel.

Paul shows that the Church is really the same "olive tree" as was Israel, and the Church is now the tree. Therefore, to distinguish between Israel and the Church is, strictly speaking, false. Indeed, people of Jewish origin need to be grafted back into the Church (Rom 11:17-23).

Rebuttal: This claim is the most outrageous because this passage clearly shows that we Gentiles are the "wild olive branches," who get our life from being grafted into the olive tree. The tree represents the covenants, promises and hopes of Israel (Eph. 2:12), rooted in the Messiah and fed by the sap, which represents the Holy Spirit, giving life to the Jews (the "natural branches") and Gentile alike. We Gentiles are told to remember that the olive tree holds us up and NOT to be arrogant or boast against the "natural branches" because they can be grafted in again. The olive tree is NOT the Church. We are simply grafted into God's plan that preceded us for over 2,000 years.

All the promises made to Israel in the Old Testament, unless they were historically fulfilled before the coming of Jesus Christ, are now the property of the Christian Church. These promises should not be interpreted literally or carnally, but spiritually and symbolically, so that references to Israel, Jerusalem, Zion and the Temple, when they are prophetic, really refer to the Church (II Cor. 1:20). "For all the promises of God in Him (Jesus) are Yea, and in Him, Amen, unto the glory of God by us." Therefore, they teach that the New Testament needs to be taught figuratively, not literally.

Rebuttal: Later, in this Teaching Letter, we will look at the fact that the New Testament references to Israel clearly pertain to Israel, not the Church. Therefore, no promise to Israel and the Jewish people in the Bible is figurative, nor can they be relegated to the Church alone. The promises and covenants are literal, many of them are everlasting, and we Christians can participate in them as part of our rebirth, not in that we took them over to the exclusion of Israel. The New Testament speaks of the Church's relationship to Israel and her covenants as being "grafted in" (Rom. 11:17), "brought near" (Eph. 2:13), "Abraham's offspring (by faith)" (Rom. 4:16), and "partakers" (Rom. 15:27), NOT as usurpers of the covenant and a replacer of physical Israel. We Gentile Christians joined into what God had been doing in Israel, and God did not break His covenant promises with Israel (Rom. 11:29).

user posted image

Jesuits firmly deny Blood Oath exists, but text in 1913 U.S.Congressional Record says otherwise.

26 Apr 2006

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/26-Apr-2006.html>

When a Jesuit priest is elevated to a position of high command, he is administered what is called the Jesuit Extreme Oath of Induction. This oath has been called the Fourth Vow or the Blood Oath, given to those in the Society of Jesus besides the traditional vows of poverty, chastity and obedience.

The existence of the Blood Oath has always been categorically denied by the Jesuits. And when this question was recently put to priests, brothers or lay spokesmen in five out of the 10 Jesuit Provincials in the United States, the existence of it was firmly denied, many saying they never heard anything about it.

Although the Blood Oath ceremony, as recounted by several former Jesuit priests including the late Father Alberto Rivera, is supposedly steeped in pagan rituals, one common element found is only three others are present for the ceremony, including the Superior or Jesuit General.

The other two are monks or priests present flank the Superior with one holding a banner with the papal colors of yellow and white and the other a black banner with a dagger and a red cross above a skull and bones crossbones. On the black banner is the word INRI and below it the words IUSTUM NECAR REGES IMPIUS, meaning to exterminate or annihilate impious or heretical Kings, Governments, or Rulers.

In June 2005, Fr. Thomas Krettek, SJ was installed as the Wisconsin Province Society of Jesus provincial head during a Mass of Installation at Milwaukee's Church of the Gesu. Present at the Mass were three Jesuits, Fr. Jim Grummer, SJ, outgoing provincial, Fr. Del Skillingstad, SJ and Society of Jesus Jesuit General from Rome, Fr. Peter-Hans Kolvenbach known as the Black Pope.

After Fr. Krettek's appointment, Fr. Grummer was subsequently appointed the new regional assistant for the U.S. Assistancy and general counselor, succeeding Fr. Frank Case, SJ.

The General Council is composed of 12 men, 10 of whom are regional assistants who serve as liaisons to the various Jesuit entities in the region. Fr. Grummer's now includes the U.S. and various countries such as Belize, Jamaica, and Micronesia, which are either a part of or dependent upon an American province.

"I am grateful for the opportunity to serve the Church and the Society of Jesus in this new job. I look forward to helping Father General in whatever ways I can assist him in promoting the mission of the Society of Jesus," said Fr. Grummer after the ceremony appointing Fr. Krettek as the head of the Wisconsin Provincial.

But the question looms: Did the Blood Oath take place and was the Black Pope in Milwaukee last June to administer it along with the two other priests acting as the monks holding the banners?

The communication director for the Wisconsin Provincial this week was unaware of any Blood Oath ceremony, but asked that any questions be put in writing regarding "it" or any other concerns about the Jesuit Order and their global activities.

Although the Black Pope came to Milwaukee to say Mass last June for Fr. Krettek's high command induction ceremony and no evidence exists the Blood Oath took place, there is substantial evidence in the United States Congressional Record of its existence.

The text of the Jesuit Extreme Oath of Induction is meticulously recorded in the Journals of the 62nd Congress, 3rd Session, of the United States Congressional Record (House Calendar No. 397, Report No. 1523, 15 February, 1913, pp. 3215-3216).

However, without explanation, the text was subsequently torn out of the Congressional Record, but not before it was copied word for word by several researchers, including Ian Paisley for the European Institute of Protestant Studies.

According to Paisley, the Blood Oath was also quoted by Charles Didier in his book Subterranean Rome (New York, 1843), translated from the French original. And Fr. Alberto Rivera, who escaped from the Jesuit Order in 1967 and died under suspicious circumstances in 1997, confirmed before his untimely death that the induction ceremony and the text of the Jesuit Oath were identical to what appeared in the 1913 Congressional Record.

Before the Blood Oath is administered, Paisley painted a dark picture of the private chapel where the ceremony takes place, as recounted in Didier's book and Fr. Rivera's recollections:

"When a Jesuit of the minor rank is to be elevated to command," said Paisley, "he is conducted into the Chapel of the Convent of the Order, where there are only three others present, the principal or Superior standing in front of the altar. On either side stands a monk, one of whom holds a banner of yellow and white, which are the Papal colors, and the other a black banner with a dagger and red cross above a skull and crossbones, with the word INRI, and below them the words IUSTUM NECAR REGES IMPIUS. The meaning of which is: It is just to exterminate or annihilate impious or heretical Kings, Governments, or Rulers.

"Upon the floor is a red cross at which the postulant or candidate kneels. The Superior hands him a small black crucifix, which he takes in his left hand and presses to his heart, and the Superior at the same time presents to him a dagger, which he grasps by the blade and holds the point against his heart, the Superior still holding it by the hilt, and thus addresses the postulant."

At this point, the Jesuit General-Superior Speaks and the Blood Oath is administered. The following is a copy of the text of the Oath as it appeared in the 1913 Congressional Record: (Note: If anyone has any doubts that Jesuits aren't trained to be the ultimate deceivers and chameleons, the following words should erase all doubts.)

(The Superior speaks:)

My son, heretofore you have been taught to act the dissembler: among Roman Catholics to be a Roman Catholic, and to be a spy even among your own brethren; to believe no man, to trust no man. Among the Reformers, to be a Reformer; among the Huguenots, to be a Huguenot; among the Calvinists, to be a Calvinist; among other Protestants, generally to be a Protestant; and obtaining their confidence, to seek even to preach from their pulpits, and to denounce with all the vehemence in your nature our Holy Religion and the Pope; and even to descend so low as to become a Jew among Jews, that you might be enabled to gather together all information for the benefit of your Order as a faithful soldier of the Pope. You have been taught to plant insidiously the seeds of jealousy and hatred between communities, provinces, states that were at peace, and to incite them to deeds of blood, involving them in war with each other, and to create revolutions and civil wars in countries that were independent and prosperous, cultivating the arts and the sciences and enjoying the blessings of peace; to take sides with the combatants and to act secretly with your brother Jesuit, who might be engaged on the other side, but openly opposed to that with which you might be connected, only that the Church might be the gainer in the end, in the conditions fixed in the treaties for peace and that the end justifies the means. You have been taught your duty as a spy, to gather all statistics, facts and information in your power from every source; to ingratiate yourself into the confidence of the family circle of Protestants and heretics of every class and character, as well as that of the merchant, the banker, the lawyer, among the schools and universities, in parliaments and legislatures, and the judiciaries and councils of state, and to be all things to all men, for the Pope's sake, whose servants we are unto death. You have received all your instructions heretofore as a novice, a neophyte, and have served as co-adjurer, confessor and priest, but you have not yet been invested with all that is necessary to command in the Army of Loyola in the service of the Pope. You must serve the proper time as the instrument and executioner as directed by your superiors; for none can command here who has not consecrated his labours with the blood of the heretic; for "without the shedding of blood no man can be saved". Therefore, to fit yourself for your work and make your own salvation sure, you will, in addition to your former oath of obedience to your order and allegiance to the Pope, repeat after me:

I _____, now in the presence of Almighty God, the blessed Virgin Mary, the blessed St. John the Baptist, the Holy Apostles, St. Peter and St. Paul, and all the saints, sacred host of Heaven, and to you, my Ghostly Father, the superior general of the Society of Jesus, founded by St. Ignatius Loyola, in the pontification of Paul the Third, and continued to the present, do by the womb of the Virgin, the matrix of God, and the rod of Jesus Christ, declare and swear that His Holiness, the Pope, is Christ's Vice-Regent and is the true and only head of the Catholic or Universal Church throughout the earth; and that by the virtue of the keys of binding and loosing given to His Holiness by my Saviour, Jesus Christ, he hath power to depose heretical Kings, Princes, States, Commonwealths, and Governments, and they may be safely destroyed. Therefore to the utmost of my power I will defend this doctrine and His Holiness's right and custom against all usurpers of the heretical or Protestant authority whatever, especially the Lutheran Church of Germany, Holland, Denmark, Sweden and Norway, and the now pretended authority and Churches of England and Scotland, and the branches of same now established in Ireland and on the continent of America and elsewhere and all adherents in regard that they may be usurped and heretical, opposing the sacred Mother Church of Rome. I do now denounce and disown any allegiance as due to any heretical king, prince or State, named Protestant or Liberal, or obedience to any of their laws, magistrates or officers. I do further declare the doctrine of the Churches of England and Scotland of the Calvinists, Huguenots, and others of the name of Protestants or Masons to be damnable, and they themselves to be damned who will not forsake the same. I do further declare that I will help, assist, and advise all or any of His Holiness's agents, in any place where I should be, in Switzerland, Germany, Holland, Ireland or America, or in any other kingdom or territory I shall come to, and do my utmost to extirpate the heretical Protestant or Masonic doctrines and to destroy all their pretended powers, legal or otherwise. I do further promise and declare that, notwithstanding, I am dispensed with to assume any religion heretical for the propagation of the Mother Church's interest; to keep secret and private all her agents' counsels from time to time, as they entrust me, and not to divulge, directly or indirectly, by word, writing or circumstances whatever; but to execute all that should be proposed, given in charge, or discovered unto me by you, my Ghostly Father, or any of this sacred order. I do further promise and declare that I will have no opinion or will of my own or any mental reservation whatever, even as a corpse or cadaver (perinde ac cadaver), but will unhesitatingly obey each and every command that I may receive from my superiors in the militia of the Pope and of Jesus Christ. That I will go to any part of the world whithersoever I may be sent, to the frozen regions north, jungles of India, to the centers of civilization of Europe, or to the wild haunts of the barbarous savages of America without murmuring or repining, and will be submissive in all things, whatsoever is communicated to me. I do further promise and declare that I will, when opportunity presents, make and wage relentless war, secretly and openly, against all heretics, Protestants and Masons, as I am directed to do, to extirpate them from the face of the whole earth; and that I will spare neither age, sex nor condition, and that I will hang, burn, waste, boil, flay, strangle, and bury alive these infamous heretics; rip up the stomachs and wombs of their women, and crush their infants' heads against the walls in order to annihilate their execrable race. That when the same cannot be done openly I will secretly use the poisonous cup, the strangulation cord, the steel of the poniard, or the leaden bullet, regardless of the honour, rank, dignity or authority of the persons, whatever may be their condition in life, either public or private, as I at any time may be directed so to do by any agents of the Pope or Superior of the Brotherhood of the Holy Father of the Society of Jesus. In confirmation of which I hereby dedicate my life, soul, and all corporal powers, and with the dagger which I now receive I will subscribe my name written in my blood in testimony thereof; and should I prove false, or weaken in my determination, may my brethren and fellow soldiers of the militia of the Pope cut off my hands and feet and my throat from ear to ear, my belly be opened and sulphur burned therein with all the punishment that can be inflicted upon me on earth, and my soul shall be tortured by demons in eternal hell forever. That I will in voting always vote for a Knight of Columbus in preference to a Protestant, especially a Mason, and that I will leave my party so to do; that if two Catholics are on the ticket I will satisfy myself which is the better supporter of Mother Church and vote accordingly. That I will not deal with or employ a Protestant if in my power to deal with or employ a Catholic. That I will place Catholic girls in Protestant families that a weekly report may be made of the inner movements of the heretics. That I will provide myself with arms and ammunition that I may be in readiness when the word is passed, or I am commanded to defend the Church either as an individual or with the militia of the Pope. All of which I, _____, do swear by the blessed Trinity and blessed sacrament which I am now to receive to perform and on part to keep this my oath. In testimony hereof, I take this most holy and blessed sacrament of the Eucharist and witness the same further with my name written with the point of this dagger dipped in my own blood and seal in the face of this holy sacrament.

*You will now rise to your feet and I will instruct you in the Catechism necessary to make yourself known to any member of the Society of Jesus belonging to this rank. In the first place, you, as a Brother Jesuit, will with another mutually make the ordinary sign of the cross as any ordinary Roman Catholic would; then one crosses his wrists, the palms of his hands open, and the other in answer crosses his feet, one above the other; the first points with forefinger of the right hand to the centre of the palm of the left, the other with the forefinger of the left hand points to the centre of the palm of the right; the first then with his right hand makes a circle around his head, touching it; the other then with the forefinger of his left hand touches the left side of his body just below his heart; the first then with his right hand draws it across the throat of the other, and the latter then with a dagger down the stomach and abdomen of the first. The first then says lustum; and the other answers Necar; the first Reges; the other answers Impious. The first will then present a small piece of paper folded in a peculiar manner, four times, which the other will cut longitudinally and on opening the name Jesu will be found written upon the head and arms of a cross three times. You will then give and receive with him the following questions and answers:*

From whither do you come? Answer: The Holy faith.

Whom do you serve? Answer: The Holy Father at Rome, the Pope, and the Roman Catholic Church Universal throughout the world.

Who commands you? Answer: The Successor of St. Ignatius Loyola, the founder of the Society of Jesus or the Soldiers of Jesus Christ.

Who received you? Answer: A venerable man in white hair.

How? Answer: With a naked dagger, I kneeling upon the cross beneath the banners of the Pope and of our sacred order.

Did you take an oath? Answer: I did, to destroy heretics and their governments and rulers, and to spare neither age, nor sex, nor condition; to be as a corpse without any opinion or will of my own, but to implicitly obey my Superiors in all things without hesitation or murmuring.

Will you do that? Answer: I will.

How do you travel? Answer: In the bark of Peter the fisherman.

Whither do you travel? Answer: To the four quarters of the globe.

For what purpose? Answer: To obey the orders of my General and Superiors and execute the will of the Pope and faithfully fulfil the conditions of my oaths.

Go ye, then, into all the world and take possession of all lands in the name of the Pope. He who will not accept him as the Vicar of Jesus and his Vice-Regent on earth, let him be accursed and exterminated.

Jesuits

DECEPTION

Mark Brewer - April 27, 2006 05:06 AM (GMT)

The Jesuits have probably made small changes to the oath over the years so they can say that the original oath does not exist. The recent statement by the pope verifies that the Jesuits are a heirarchical cult.

Title: Michael A Dyer shows his deviousness and deception

Description: tatics aiding the JESUIT ORDER

CRAIG-OXLEY - April 27, 2006 03:03 AM (GMT)

For sometime people may be aware I have encountered many attacks and bans for spreading the word on the Jesuit Order. Many will know of a couple of people in particular and of course one of them is Michael A Dyer known as MAD who runs a forum known as Nwowatcher. I have had numerous struggles with this person and unless theres something wrong with him mentally, I strongly suspect hes a Temporal Coadjutor or someone at least aiding the Jesuits from his ignorance and arrogance. This person has made up with me on a couple of occasions only to then attack me for no reason whatsoever, with the odd lie/twist thrown in. Well folks again this person does the same yet again and uses devious tatics along with Catholic aiding nonsense.

Firstly some ignorant tunnel vision person known as G-Nap attacks me out of nowhere the other day. I didn't respond other than to say his message weren't worth a reply. Then he writes today:

QUOTE

G-NAP13

Im starting to think that the Jesuits/Vatican/Zionists don't really 'RULE' anything, and it's still a group ruling from the shadows using these groups as their figure heads and scapegoats..

They've been making anti-Jesuit books for 100+ years. What makes things any different now other than your constant push of it, Phelps rehashing of a dozen books written in decades past, and now Greg Szymanski talking non-stop about the Jesuits?

Nothing. The Jesuits rule nothing, and they're definitely not the 'WORLD AUTHORITY' of the planet as you constantly PROMOTE them as. You act like you love the Jesuits and think they are the most powerful thing ever because you read a couple books..

Protestanism is an invention of the Rosicrucian/Freemasons.

Then we have good old Michael A Dyer starting up again.

QUOTE

MAD

I try to stay out of this because, well, basically 2tuff can be very disrespectful at times, and is unable to 'defend' his position in conversation and dialogue. He has chosen not to 'debate' anything, and simply ignore you and continue to make post after post about the Jesuits..

I appreciate the posts about the Jesuits, because if nothing else it helps keep Nwowatcher active, and there are some interesting bits of info in there for PEOPLE TO MAKE UP THEIR OWN MINDS...

My problem is this. Yes, they've been making anti-Jesuit books for 100+ years. In Helena Blavatsky's work "Isis Unveiled" she speaks out against the 'wickedness' of the Jesuits on multiple occasions, and this book is nearly 100 years old now. The majority of info Phelps uses comes from a variety of books published over the last 100 years. I don't necessarily have a problem with this, as it is good research to look through all the sources from the subject matter you're covering.

The problem i have is when you make statements like "Black Pope Orders 911", yet there is no proof whatsoever to back this up, other than making the statement and including a link about 911. Cardinal Egan of New York is brought up time and time again, but no real definition as to how he is the one who was the New York head of carrying out the 911 attacks om the orders of the Black Pope.

Or things like "Black Popes Weather Control Responsible for Katrina!" and then a link about Weather Control that says nothing about the Black Pope.. Tactics like these, i'm sure that somebody reading this knows where i'm coming from, a lot of vague connections to the Jesuits being responsible for major modern world events, but then no real proof once you check the links out.

Also, the other historical claims made about things like Lincoln, JFK, or the sinking of the Titanic being done by the Jesuits, and carried about by the Black Pope. Lincoln is claimed to have said something to the effect of "If it wasn't for the sinister influence of the Jesuits, this war (Civil War) would never have taken place."

Yet, if you look into it, there is only one historical reference to this quote, in a book published 100 years ago, on one page that was said to have been overheard in a conversation with Abraham Lincoln. And the person who wrote the book was a Protestant who opposed the Jesuits and Catholic Church, once a Catholic Priest himself. There is no other record of Lincoln having ever made this statement. This from an ANTI-JESUIT website talking about the supposed comments made by Lincoln:

Quote

For quite some time, I have been trying to substantiate/corroborate the existence of Charles Chiniquy as postulated by Jack Chick (Jesuit plot to assassinate President Lincoln). I have asked the History Channel and Abraham Lincoln experts if in fact Mr. Chiniquy and Mr. Lincoln ever met. To date, no one has replied (in the space of three years). What are your comments? Thank you, Carolyn

Hello, Carolyn,

Thanks for your question. There is no doubt that Chiniquy existed. Even those opposed to Chiniquy's later views on Catholicism affirm that he existed. Some websites such as Rev. Charles Chiniquy, D.D. (1809-1899) and CHINIQUY: LINCOLN WRITINGS, reprinted from the Journal of the Illinois State Historical Society, February 1976, vol. 69, pp. 17-25 discuss a little about his life. However, I doubt that anyone was a witness to Lincoln's and Chiniquy's meeting, and it's unlikely that historians would care much about a disgruntled ex-priest who previously hired Lincoln as a lawyer before he became president of the United States. I found an extremely rare book (now out of print) initially published in 1924 by an anti-Catholic author Burke McCarty entitled "The Suppressed Truth About the Assassination of Abraham Lincoln." It recounts the meeting that Chiniquy had with Lincoln on page 39, but of course coming from McCarty it's hearsay. The quote in fact comes from "Fifty Years in the Church of Rome" that Chick Publications reprinted.

Personally, I have no doubt as to their meeting, but do question how Chiniquy was able to remember Lincoln's supposed anti-Catholic remarks. Tape recordings did not exist, so we can't affirm in any great detail what was supposedly said. It may be possible to check out the archives in the state of Illinois in the county court where Chiniquy had his lawsuit involving the Chicago Roman Catholic archdiocese, and Lincoln's name may appear on the paperwork. Both McCarty's and Chiniquy's books are obviously biased in favor of the alleged Catholic plot to kill Lincoln, and it could be argued that both would have a vested interest in depicting Lincoln as one who "knew" that his death would be carried out by Catholic/Jesuit assassins. In all fairness to Roman Catholics, strong anti-Catholic (and antisemitic too) feelings existed over 135 years ago in the U.S., so it wasn't surprising that Catholics were blamed for many things they didn't do. If you find anything else in your research, please let me know and we'll post it.<http://members.aol.com/chickclub/inyourface.html>

Another is an elaborate plot concocted by the Jesuits, via the Morgan family, to build the Titanic as a 'Death Ship' for wealthy citizens who opposed the establishment of the Federal Reserve. Namely Benjamin Guggenheim, Isa Strauss and John Jacob Astor who were each mega-millionaires....

http://www.world-mysteries.com/doug_titanic1.htm

It goes on to say that Captain Edward Smith was a Jesuit, and was on orders from the Black Pope, and head Jesuit of Ireland, Father Francis Browne:

Quote

When the ship departed southern England, on board was Francis Browne. He was the most powerful Jesuit in all of Ireland and the 'Jesuit Master of Edward Smith.' 'Here is Jesuit treachery at its finest. The provincial Father Francis Browne boards the Titanic, photographs the victims, most assuredly briefs the Captain concerning his oath as a Jesuit, and the following morning bids him farewell...' Eric J. Phelps, Vatican Assassins Halcon Unified Services. P. 247.

My questions are thus.. Other than taking Phelps word on the matter, how do we really know that Father Francis Browne was on board when Titanic took off from Southern Europe? I would have to see the passenger log for myself to know for certain that Father Francis Browne was on board and spoke with Captain Smith. Maybe he was, but i'd just like to know the source for this claim instead of just a quote.

Secondly, how would the Jesuits know that all 3 men, Benjamin Guggenheim, Isa Strauss and John Jacob Astor would be on board the Titanic in the first place? In this link on Astor's life, it makes it sound like it was a last minute decision on Astors part to go on the Titanic.

Quote

Colonel John Jacob Astor IV (July 13, 1864 – April 15, 1912) was a businessman, inventor, writer and a member of the prominent Astor family. Serving as a lieutenant colonel in the Spanish-American War, Astor mainly dealt in real estate which included the original Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. A divorce and marriage to the much younger Madeleine Talmadge Force caused a scandal and he and his new wife took an extended honeymoon abroad to wait out the controversy. Madeleine Astor's pregnancy cut short the trip and they booked passage on board the RMS Titanic which struck an iceberg and sank on April 15, 1912.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/John_Jacob_Astor_IV

I think it's a valid question to ask how the Jesuits could be sure all 3 men would be on board at the same time. It's a very elaborate and expensive plot to pull off, to build the Titanic to murder 3 specific men, if you're uncertain that all 3 men will be aboard the ship.

It's possible that the Jesuits pushed for the 3 men to come on together, exposing their pride at being aboard the maiden voyage of an 'Unsinkable' ship, but it's a little vague about how the Jesuits could know that all 3 men would be on board at the same time. And would spend all that money on the Titanic just for a plot to get 3 men in the same place at the same time.....

There are other issues i would raise now.. But again, most of my questions come towards 2tuff and Phelps themselves on occasion. For one, Phelps is a extreme Protestant who believes in every word of the Bible. He believes the world is only 6000 years old, there are no such things as Dinosaurs (Science is a Jesuit plot!), and that the Jews are the 'Chosen People' of God, and Christ will return in Israel as the Bible states. He believes that the Bible is real history as it unfolded, and that the prophets were all holy men revealing the true word of 'God'.

2tuff on the other hand claims to have no religious ties, which is apparant in the fact that if you ever disagree with them they will call you an 'Ignorant Fool' and wish death upon you as 2tuff has done to me a couple of times in the past at a different forum. Stating, in our disagreements, "I hope you writhe in agony as the Jesuits kill you with their plagues, and I will stand over you and laugh!!"

Phelps is a good researcher/speaker, 2tuff is a good poster and collector of info, but i find both of their presentations very flawed. If Phelps can be so incorrect in his extremist religious attitudes (White Protestant America is the only hope!), and 2tuff can be so flawed in their (I Hope you Die a Horrible Death you Jesuit Temporal!!), how correct could they be about everything else? They are also for segregation of the races, as believe that blending the races can only lead to the deterioration and downfall of society..

Who's to say that all of their Jesuit information is 100% correct???

70% correct?? 80%? That's still a great deal of accuracy, but it does make a difference.. And if you ever disagree with anything you are labeled a "Temporal Coadjutor" and they talk about you behind your back on other forums and websites. As 2tuff has a post at their site about all the 'Temporals' on the Internet, and 'Nwowatcher.com' and myself are labeled as 'Temporals' who serve Rome and the Jesuits. Yet they keep posting here anyway...

And yes, i'm convinced that Luther, which sprouted forth Protestantism, was created by Rosicrucian/Masonic elements. Yet Phelps would never look further into exposing this, since it would go against his own faith. He won't look into much that might be against his religious faith, and that's a rather flawed line of thinking to have.

Another thing is that, even if everyone agreed with you and Phelps, 2tuff, what then? We all convert to Protestantism and invade the vatican with our machine guns?

As far as 2tuff's concerned, it's only about having an 'open mind' if you inevitably believe everything they say. If you disagree with any of it, you are called ignorant, and a 'Temporal' who is serving the 'Masters' in Rome.

And yes, it is a little strange how Greg Szymanski has been so greatly involved in exposing the Jesuits and Vatican in recent months, through his GCN run program.

Personally, the Jesuits are important to consider in the NWO-PYRAMID, as is Zionism, but there is something just a little bit deeper than either. Black Nobility? Possibly.. Something else? Even more possible..

2tuff thinks it's 'reptilians', or 'aliens' from another planet if there is anything above the Jesuits..

Folks Reptilians are disinformation indoctrination given by the likes of Temporal Coadjutors like David Icke, Brian Desborough & Arizona Wilder. I learnt this after many years of listening to these deceiving people. I finally found the truth and could answer all the questions I was still wondering when I found the JESUIT ORDER.

Now then Michael A Dyer goes on to paste Greg's new article like this:

QUOTE

No Evidence Of Jesuit Blood Oath
But Black Pope Of Rome Says Mass
& Attends Milwaukee Ceremony

By Greg Szymanski
4-26-6

When a Jesuit priest is elevated to a position of high command, he is administered what is called the Jesuit Extreme Oath of Induction. This oath has been called the Fourth Vow or the Blood Oath, given to those in the Society of Jesus besides the traditional vows of poverty, chastity and obedience.

The existence of the Blood Oath has always been categorically denied by the Jesuits. And when this question was recently put to priests, brothers or lay spokesmen in five out of the 10 Jesuit Provincials in the United States, the existence of it was firmly denied, many saying they never heard anything about it.

Although the Blood Oath ceremony, as recounted by several former Jesuit priests including the late Father Alberto Rivera, is supposedly steeped in pagan rituals, one common element found is only three others are present for the ceremony, including the Superior or Jesuit General.

The other two are monks or priests flanking the Superior with one holding a banner with the papal colors of yellow and white and the other a black banner with a dagger and a red cross above a skull and bones crossbones. On the black banner is the word INRI and below it the words IUSTUM NECAR REGES IMPIUS , meaning to exterminate or annihilate impious or heretical Kings, Governments, or Rulers.

In June 2005, Fr. Thomas Krettek, SJ was installed as the Wisconsin Province Society of Jesus provincial head during a Mass of Installation at Milwaukee's Church of the Gesu. Present at the Mass were three Jesuits, Fr. Jim Grummer, SJ, outgoing provincial, Fr. Del Skillingstad, SJ and Society of Jesus Jesuit General from Rome, Fr. Peter-Hans Kolvenbach known as the Black Pope.

After Fr. Krettek's appointment, Fr. Grummer was subsequently appointed the new regional assistant for the U.S. Assistancy and general counselor, succeeding Fr. Frank Case, SJ.

The General Council is composed of 12 men, 10 of whom are regional assistants who serve as liaisons to the various Jesuit entities in the region. Fr. Grummer's now includes the U.S. and various countries such as Belize, Jamaica, and Micronesia, which are either a part of or dependent upon an American province.

"I am grateful for the opportunity to serve the Church and the Society of Jesus in this new job. I look forward to helping Father General in whatever ways I can assist him in promoting the mission of the Society of Jesus," said Fr. Grummer after the ceremony appointing Fr. Krettek as the head of the Wisconsin Provincial.

But the question looms: Did the Blood Oath take place and was the Black Pope in Milwaukee last June to administer it along with the two other priests acting as the monks holding the banners?

The communication director for the Wisconsin Provincial this week was unaware of any Blood Oath ceremony, but asked that any questions be put in writing regarding "it" or any other concerns about the Jesuit Order and their global activities.

Although the Black Pope came to Milwaukee to say Mass last June for Fr. Krettek's high command induction ceremony and no evidence exists the Blood Oath took place, there is substantial evidence in the United States Congressional Record of its existence.

The text of the Jesuit Extreme Oath of Induction is meticulously recorded in the Journals of the 62nd Congress, 3rd Session, of the United States Congressional Record (House Calendar No. 397, Report No. 1523, 15 February, 1913, pp. 3215-3216).

However, without explanation, the text was subsequently torn out of the Congressional Record, but not before it was copied word for word by several researchers, including Ian Paisley for the European Institute of Protestant Studies.

JESUIT EXTREME OATH HOAX?? AND A LOOK AT PROTESTANTISM

So do you see what his game is? No? Well look closely and you will see he missed off the complete heading. Also notice how he makes the last bit which is aiding Catholics in LARGE lettering. He shows his true colors and agendas all the time eventually. The complete heading should read as below, but hey this goes against what hes aiming to do, so he misses it out.

Jesuits firmly deny Blood Oath exists, but text in 1913 U.S. Congressional Record says otherwise.

So folks again beware of Michael A Dyer and I will stay well away from him as I was told too in the past by someone I respect highly. Its the same old game, tatics, deceit and lies as usual. I do not waste my precious time day in, day out to be attacked by everyone. My posts draw a userbase to sites and for this I get attacked because my posts dont follow the usual disinformation keeping awakening people knocked back into sheeple ville.

Take Care and keep your eyes peeled for more Catholic aiders. I just wish we could all get the information out so people can learn, unfortunately in this Jesuit controlled world its almost an impossibility. Greg's doing a good job finally getting the Jesuit Knowledge to a wider audience. Notice how Greg's also getting a lot of stick and hassle. Why we waste our time is beyond me sometimes.

“The Jesuits”

Handout #5 // February 4, 2006

Here are some facts about the Jesuit Order that generally are not included in many history textbooks or encyclopedias here in America:

- Ignatius of Loyola founded the Jesuit Order (a.k.a. The Society of Jesus and The Company) in 1536 in Paris, France. Pope Paul III officially recognized the Jesuit Order in 1540. The Jesuit Order was founded primarily to counter the Protestant Reformation.
- The Jesuit Order from its beginning concentrated in several areas: (1) education – they founded numerous institutes of higher learning; (2) the confessional – they became the father confessors to kings (and their mistresses), queens, princes, top generals, etc.
- The Jesuits quickly gained a reputation for assassinating kings and presidents who would not “play ball” with them. Here are just a few of the leaders that they murdered or paid others to murder: President Abraham Lincoln, Czars Alexander I and Alexander II of Russia, Kings Henry III and Henry IV of France, and President Juarez of Mexico.
- The Jesuits assassinated a number of popes, including Pope Clement XIII (in 1769) and Pope Clement XIV (in 1774) – both of whom were poisoned to death. The former was poisoned the night before he was to have signed a document suppressing the Jesuit Order; the latter was poisoned 14 months after he had abolished the Jesuit Order “forever”.

- Jesuit-trained Adam Weishaupt, who taught Canon Law at Jesuit Ingolstadt College in Bavaria, pretended to leave the Jesuit Order when he set up a Jesuit front group called the Illuminati in 1776. Weishaupt died in the good graces of the Roman Catholic Church.
- The Jesuits also quickly gained a reputation for fomenting revolutions and wars. Their fingerprints, through their front organization (i.e., the Illuminati), are all over the bloody French Revolution (1789-1799). Additionally, President Abraham Lincoln stated that the Jesuits had been behind the fomenting of the American Civil War of 1861-1865.
- Canadian historian J.E.C. Shepherd reported that the Jesuits had been expelled from at least 83 different countries, cities, and city-states by 1931 because of their involvement in court intrigues, in assassinating heads of State, and in fomenting revolutions and wars.
- Author John Daniel, in his book The Grand Design Exposed, makes a good case that the Jesuit Order took over the higher levels of Freemasonry. To order a copy of this 411-page book for $20 postpaid, please make check or money order payable to "American Sentry Books" and mail it to: American Sentry Books // P.O. Box 14 // Crawley, WV 24931.
- Bill Hughes has written two books dealing with Jesuit assassinations and intrigues: The Secret Terrorists and The Enemy Unmasked. To order both books for $9 postpaid, please make check or money order payable to "Truth Triumphant" and mail it to: Truth Triumphant // P.O. Box 1417 // Eustis, FL 32727-1417.
- Edmond Paris' book, The Secret History of the Jesuits, can be ordered via credit card for $10.75 postpaid by calling "Chick Publications" at 1-909-987-0771.

"Communism & the Illuminati"

Handout #17 // February 9, 2006

Here are some generally unknown facts about "Communism & the Illuminati":

- Some people, even in the "alternative media", tell us that "the Jews" gave us both Communism and the Illuminati. But is that true? Were there more powerful forces working "behind the scenes" that gave us both Communism and the Illuminati?
- One can make a good case that practical "modern Communism" was quite likely "birthed" on the Jesuit-run Reductions (i.e., communes) in Paraguay in the 1600s and early 1700s! Yes, Jesuit priests forced Indians in Paraguay into “communes” where their “slave labor” was exploited by the Jesuit Order. Eric Jon Phelps, author of the book Vatican Assassins, tells us: “These [Paraguayan] Reductions [i.e., communes] produced untold wealth for the [Roman Catholic Jesuit] Order using hundreds of thousands of [Indian] slaves... The Order’s utopian Reductions, upon which socialism-communism was perfected, included central banks called ‘storehouses’, universal equality, and universal male and female labor. The goods produced by this slave labor were put into international trade with the [Jesuit] Order’s huge fleet of ‘Black ships’.”

- The modern version of the Illuminati was founded in 1776 by Jesuit-trained Adam Weishaupt, who taught Catholic Canon Law at Jesuit Ingolstadt College in Bavaria. Weishaupt pretended to leave the Jesuit Order in order to set up the Jesuit front group called the Illuminati, which fomented the bloody French Revolution (1789-99). Jesuit-trained Adam Weishaupt died in the “good graces” of the Roman Catholic Church.

- Many dictators throughout history, to include Fascist and Communist thugs, have either been Jesuit trained and/or have been advised by Jesuits. Here are some: (1) Napoleon Bonaparte was advised by Jesuit priest Abbe Emmanuel Joseph Sieyes. (2) Soviet dictator Joe Stalin was Jesuit-trained, as was his friend Catholic Cardinal Agagianian, at the Jesuit Seminary in Tiflis, [Soviet] Georgia. (These two men oversaw the Soviet Gulag system.) (3) Italian dictator Benito Mussolini was advised by Jesuit priest Pietro Tachi-Venturi. (4) Jesuit-trained Cuban dictator Fidel Castro was advised by Jesuit priest Armando Llorente. Do we begin to see a sick pattern unfolding here?

- American physician and historian Emanuel M. Josephson tells us: “...Whenever a totalitarian movement erupts, whether Communist or Nazi [Ed. Note: or, Fascist], a Jesuit can be found in the role of ‘adviser’ or leader...”

- Jesuit-trained Joe Stalin was appointed in 1922 as head of the Communist Party in the Soviet Union. Interestingly, that is the very same year when Jesuit Georgetown University’s Jesuit priest Edmund Walsh was in Bolshevik Russia leading his “relief mission”. That was probably just a coincidence, right?

- Let us never forget that the Jesuits love to use Jews as “scapegoats” to cover for Jesuit nefarious activities. That is why they appointed Jews as camp commandants in the Soviet Gulag system. That is why a Jew is often the head of the Federal Reserve.

Handout #13 // February 7, 2006

Here are some facts about “World War II” that generally are not included in many history textbooks or encyclopedias here in America:

- Adolph Hitler was put into power by a Roman Catholic Knight of Malta named Franz von Papen, and by the Roman Catholic Centrum (or, Zentrum) Party in Bavaria. Eric Jon Phelps, author of Vatican Assassins, tells us: “The Jesuits, in control of [Adolph] Hitler’s occultic and homosexual Third Reich...installed puppet dictators throughout Europe. They were: [1.] Bavarian Germany and the Third Reich – [Adolph] Hitler; [2.] Italy – [Benito] Mussolini; [3.] ‘Vichy’ France – [Henri Philippe] Petain; [4.] Spain – [Francisco] Franco; [5.] Austria – Seyss-Inquart; [6.] Poland – Frank; [7.] Slovakia – [Jesuit] Priest Tiso; [8.] Croatia – [Ante] Pavelitch ((Ed. Note: alternate spelling: Pavelic)); [and, 9.] Belgium – Degrelle. All these Roman Catholic, Jesuit-controlled, Jew-hating dictators were loyal to the greatest war criminal of all, Papal Caesar Pius XII and his master, Jesuit [Superior] General Wlodimir Ledochowski.”
- Adolph Hitler stated: “I have learnt most of all from the Jesuit Order. ...So far, there has been nothing more imposing on earth than the hierarchical organization of the [Roman] Catholic Church. A good part of that organization I have transported direct to my own [Nazi] party. ...The Catholic Church must be held up as an example. ...I will tell you a secret. I am founding an order [Ed. Note: the Nazi SS]. ...In [Heinrich] Himmler [who would become titular (apparent) head of the Nazi SS] I see our Ignatius de Loyola [Ed. Note: the founder of the Jesuit Order].”
- Edmond Paris, author of the book The Secret History of the Jesuits, tells us: “Within the [Nazi] SS Central Security Service an organization was created, and most of its main posts were held by Catholic priests wearing the black uniform of the [Nazi] SS. The Jesuit ‘father’ Himmler [uncle of Heinrich Himmler] was one of its superior officers.”
- Jesuit Roman Catholic Cardinal Innitzer, Archbishop of Vienna, Austria, stated: “The [Roman Catholic] priests and the faithful must unhesitatingly uphold the great German state [i.e., Nazi Germany], and the Fuehrer [i.e., Hitler] whose struggle to set up [Nazi] Germany’s power, honor and prosperity is in accord with the wishes of Providence.”
- This quote by author Edmond Paris tells us quite a bit about a certain institution that has a long “track record” of fomenting wars and revolutions: “The public is practically unaware of the overwhelming responsibility carried by the Vatican and its Jesuits in the starting of two world wars – a situation which may be explained in part by the gigantic finances at the disposition of the Vatican and its Jesuits, giving them power in so many spheres, especially since the last conflict.”

“The Knights of Malta”

Handout #4 // February 4, 2006

Here are some facts about the Knights of Malta that generally are not included in many history textbooks or encyclopedias in America: (NOTE: CIA = Central Intelligence Agency)

- The Knights of Malta is a Roman Catholic religious-military order that is headquartered in Rome with the Jesuit Order. The Sovereign Military Order of Malta (i.e., the Knights of Malta) is controlled by the Jesuit Superior General (i.e., the “Black Pope”).
- The Knights of Malta is the modern version of the old Order of the Hospital of St. John (or, the Hospitallers). ((The Hospitallers, the Teutonic Knights, and the Knights Templar were founded as Roman Catholic religious-military orders in the 12th century.))
- When the Knights Templar Order (whose members had become the international bankers of their day) was disbanded in 1312, much of its enormous wealth was passed on to the Knights of St. John (which later became known as the Knights of Malta).
- During World War II, several Jesuit-controlled Knights of Malta headed up top intelligence operations: (1) William “Wild Bill” Donovan was head of the Office of Strategic Services (OSS – which later became the CIA); (2) German General Reinhard Gehlen was head of Nazi intelligence on the eastern front; and, (3) Prince Anton Turkul was head of Soviet intelligence – he used Jesuit priests for couriers.
- Knight of Malta (and German general) Reinhard Gehlen was brought to the USA after World War II. Reinhard Gehlen and William Donovan helped to set up the CIA.

- Members of the Jesuit-controlled Knights of Malta who have been “Director, CIA” are: William Donovan, John McCone, William Casey, William Colby, and George Tenet.
- The longtime chief of Counterintelligence at the CIA was Jesuit-controlled Knight of Malta James Jesus Angleton – who also headed up the “Vatican” and “Israel” desks at the CIA. Angleton was also the CIA liaison to the “Warren [whitewash] Commission” that produced a major cover-up of the real conspirators involved in the assassination of President John Fitzgerald Kennedy (JFK).
- According to Eric Jon Phelps, author of Vatican Assassins, several other Jesuit-controlled Knights of Malta were involved either in the JFK assassination or the subsequent cover-up: Clay Shaw (CIA contract agent & international industrialist); Lee Iacocca (then Director of the Dearborn Division of Ford Motor Company – who “took care of” the presidential limousine evidence); and Cartha DeLoach (then Assistant Director, FBI).
- Two Jesuit-controlled Knights of Malta, Henry Robinson Luce and William Randolph Hearst, were very powerful “players” in the publishing world.
- Several Jesuit-controlled Knights of Malta have been big players in the world of banking. Here are a few according to Eric Jon Phelps: Joseph Larkin (Chase Manhattan), Martin F. Shea (Morgan Bank of NY), and Francis X. Stankard (Chase Manhattan). Eric says that, according to Martin Lee, Morgan Bank of NY has a telex to the Knights of Malta.

QUOTE

DB was born to a mother who was sold by the Jesuits for $1300 to his Satanist father, who works for the CIA at a high level and was also a US Navy officer. Mother and father are both from Illuminati families and his mom carries the French, Merovingian bloodline that they all cherish and even crave. His father's family has some names that you'd recognize from your history textbooks.

CRAIG-OXLEY - April 25, 2006 09:46 PM (GMT)

Dear Robert,

Thank you for contacting me.

Spotting a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor is difficult. One must know the purpose and doctrine of the Order before the actions of the Coadjutor betray his person.

Given your list of names below I regard all of them to be Coadjutors save Barry Chamish and Lenny Bloom, 33rd Degree Freemason Douglas MacArthur, that slave of Georgetown Jesuit Edmund A. Walsh, being the worst.

If you wish, I will send you a copy of J. A. Wylie's History of Protestantism, Vol. II, Book 15, Chapt 3 titled "The Jesuits." Those nearly 50 pages compose the most succinct and penetrating discription of the Jesuit Order I have ever read. If you can send a small donation to the Paypal account on my website (www.vaticanassassins.org) that would help.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

Disagreed!! Dave Emory is not a co-adjutor. In fact, he is one of the best researchers out there. His work fills in some of the blanks left by Chamish, Phelps and others. I agree that the other folks identified by Phelps are co-adjutors though.

Vatican In Possession Of Top Secret CIA Documents About Nuclear Weapons Programs, According To Discovery Made Recently In Northern California Federal Court Case Involving Vatican Bank

user posted image

Experts were shaking their heads over the shocking discovery, as Church critics were questioning what the Vatican was doing with sensitive CIA documents ultimately involved in protecting national security interests of the United States.

25 Apr 2006

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/25-Apr-2006.html>

What really goes on in the underground catacombs of the Vatican has always been a deep, dark mystery. Over the years, disenchanted priests and unwilling eye witnesses have come forward with horrific tales of child sacrificing.

But now according to an explosive CIA document - never before made public - top Church officials have also been hiding under their black robes sensitive secret documents about high-powered rockets, atomic energy and nuclear weapons.

A top secret 1947 CIA document, never declassified, surfaced last week during a deposition in the case of Alperin v. Vatican Bank. The case filed on behalf of Emil Alperin and others against the Vatican Bank aka Institute of Religious Works (IOR) in the United States District Court for Northern California deals with an accounting of World War II assets allegedly looted by Church officials from Yugoslavia.

Although the case is "strange enough," according to court observers, as the trail of numerous illegal Vatican bank accounts is like following a winding river to hell, experts left the deposition Northern California deposition room last week shaking their heads in disbelief over the startling discovery of sensitive CIA national U.S. national security documents in the hands of the Vatican hierarchy.

It has long been theorized that the Vatican has held knowledge of atomic secrets, but this report now raises serious questions that the Vatican hierarchy may play a key role in manipulating and guiding the outcome of world affairs.

According to a source close to the federal court case, the CIA document obtained from an internal Vatican source specifically detailed the "Secret Scientific Axis" as it existed in 1947.

The document classified "Secret," apparently never declassified by the U.S. government, came from the files of X2 in Rome, a secret code name for the infamous CIA spook, James Jesus Angleton, who later became CIA Chief of Counter Intelligence.

Angleton resigned from the CIA in disgrace in 1974 after his domestic spying came to light. And according to a source close to the case, how the Vatican Bank came into possession of the document is still unclear.

The 1947 document describes an investigation of certain Italian fascists termed the "Secret Scientific Axis" by Angleton. These Italians including a priest, Fr. Eusebio Zappaterreni, held Third Reich secrets about V1, V2, and V3 rockets, atomic energy and nuclear weapons.

The ultimate outcome of the investigation into the newly discovered CIA documents is unknown, but it provided further fuel to the fire that the Vatican has had more than just a passing interest in nuclear weapons.

Researchers and writers, Barry Chamish and Eric Phelps, have both insisted for years that the Vatican has been in possession of nuclear secrets, acting as a war promoter instead of peacemaker.

The documents and the Vatican's close association with Angleton, according to critics, serve as another clear example how Church officials have always attempted to control and manipulate world affairs.

The story of Angleton is well known, but the CIA recruited him shortly after its formation, and he continued his counter-intelligence activities there, first returning to Rome and his previous counter-intelligence position, where the knowledge of cryptography he had obtained from MkUltra is said to have served him well. He turned his attentions to the KGB and the Soviet nuclear weapons program with its probable reliance on technology leaked from the American Manhattan Project.

According to a short summary that follows of his activities in Wikipedia, further details about Angleton's connection with the Vatican are not indicated, but the possession of the nuclear weaponry documents may show the Vatican either using or working with Angleton to play both sides against the middle.

"Some of this information and subsequent leaks which helped the Soviets develop the hydrogen bomb were made by way of Donald Duart Maclean, with whom Angleton would have been acquainted from his ties to MI5 and whom Philby, in his capacity as counter-intelligence lead for the British embassy in Washington, DC, assisted in escaping capture by the Americans and British by facilitating Maclean's defection to the USSR. It is likely that Angleton came to suspect Philby's allegiances in this period, even as the two maintained a regular lunch date. Maclean's espionage and defection effectively ended Philby's regular career in MI6 just as he was thought to be in line to become its director.

"The efforts of Angleton and his CI staff also led to the discovery of a Soviet mole in the National Security Agency in the person of Jack Dunlap. Some alleged that Angleton orchestrated Dunlap's death.

"Dunlap, an employee of the NSA, was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning in an apparent suicide. He also was a Soviet penetration agent, who had concealed in the attic of his house a treasure trove of sealed packets of classified NSA documents bearing on its most secret deciphering and interception operation. There were many reasons why it would have been inconvenient to arrest and try Jack Dunlap. For one thing, he was a liaison with "Staff D" in the CIA, and could expose areas of CIA-NSA cooperation in domestic interceptions that might be deemed illegal.

"Beginning in 1951 Angleton was responsible for cooperation with Israel's Mossad and Shin Bet agencies, a relationship he managed closely for virtually the remainder of his career. It has been claimed that, in this capacity, Angleton directed CIA assistance to the Israeli nuclear weapons program.

"In 1954 Allen Dulles, who had recently become Director of Central Intelligence, named Angleton head of the Counterintelligence Staff, a position he retained for the rest of his CIA career. Dulles also assigned him responsibility for coordination with allied intelligence services.

"He came to public attention in the United States when the Church Commission, formally known as the Senate Select Committee to Study Governmental Operations with Respect to Intelligence Activities), following up on the Warren Commission, probed the CIA for information about the Kennedy assassination. The Nosenko episode does not appear to have shaken Angleton's faith in Golitsyn, although Helms and J. Edgar Hoover took the contrary position. Hoover's objections are said to have been so vehement as to curtail severely counterintelligence cooperation between the FBI and CIA for the remainder of Hoover's service as the FBI's director.

"As Golitsyn helped Angleton identify sections within the Soviet Russian Division that were leaking information to the Soviets, Angleton pressed Golitsyn on the KGB technique and strategy for planting information at the CIA. Golitsyn's indication was that the KGB was orchestrating a larger campaign to understand how the CIA analyzed information, supporting a larger goal of a capability to manipulate the CIA unwittingly to assist the KGB in their objectives.

Why is anyone shocked at this? I certainly aren't! Everyone with any sense realises that the CIA is a Jesuit organisation which answers it all just there. Remember on that James Jesus Angleton is a knight of the Sovereign Military of Malta and Viowla it no longer becomes a mystery does it?

CRAIG-OXLEY - April 25, 2006 09:38 PM (GMT)

CIA Angleton and KGB Golitzen were both Knights of Malta. The collusion between the two is frighteningly detailed by Anthony Cave Brown in his Treason in the Blood. Nosenko was a real defector whom Angleton imprisoned and tortured for three years according to one of my advisors who was a former Air Force Intelligence operative.

Dear David,

Thank you for contacting me.

Your comments and frankness are greatly appreciated. Thank you for reconsidering your positions, as we all must do from time to time. It is for this reason that I have an email list, forward as many emails deemed pertinent to the group and await comments, some of which are corrective ultimately inuring to my benefit, or rather to the benefit of the truth.

Charles Wilcox's work is wonderful and I have used a portion of it in VAIII. Indeed, Keith has done a great job in providing an arena for myself as well as others in exposing the ubiquitous and perfidious Jesuit Order. And the comments from those like yourself make it all worth it when counting the cost for this relentless information warfare.

VAIII will be available on CD in about eight weeks. Hardcover will be sometime thereafter.

May the Lord bless you David as you continue to seek to do His will in accordance with the Reformation Bible for English-speaking peoples, the AV1611.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

Subject: I thought you were crazy; now I'm sold

Eric,

I look forward to the next hard-copy printing of your book. I will try to be one of the first in line, as I can't afford to pay the 1000-some-odd bucks that your last copy is going for (used) on amazon.

I must tell you, Eric, the first few times I heard you, on a few different shows, I must humbly apologize, come clean, and admit that I thought you were nuts. I just about said as much in an email correspondence to Vyzygoth. His show is my favorite by a long shot. More important, I TRUST that guy. Heck, I'm on the verge of loving that guy. So when he told me to step back, do some research, do my homework, before passing judgment, lemme tell you, I listened. It also helped that he told me that he knew exactly where I was; that he had once not been too sure about this "Vatican stuff"--until he did the research.

So I did. I went out and bought Charles Wilcox's book, The Transformation of the Republic, along with a guy named Bill Hughes', The Secret Terrorists. I would have bought your book as well, had it been available. Wilcox's book in particular floored me. I was dumbfounded. I knew about the Masons and the Zionists--but this stuff that Wilcox put forth was answering so many questions for me IN DETAIL (more detail than a talk show can allow you yourself to give, perhaps?). Anyway, to cut a long story short, I'm on board, Eric. I'm sold.

And I can't wait for your book. I mean I am really really really chomping at the bit for your next printing of your book to come out.

Thank goodness--no, thank God--for Keith Hansen, that he should be able to help me to be open to the truth you were saying.

May God Bless you and Vyz and Charles Wilcox all together, and the work you are doing.

David xxxxxxxx

P.S. I suppose the really humorous thing in all this is that, at the time I had emailed Vyz about you, which was about 6 months ago, I had no idea that you were a regular guest on his show. Duhhhhh. Boy do I feel dumb. I have since gone out and bought all of Vyz's archives, and now I see your name as his repetitive guest. And guess what--I look forward to the next time I can have the pleasure of hearing you on his show!

Rome should be "beacon of civilization," Pope says

<http://www.cwnews.com/news/viewstory.cfm?recnum=43712>

Rome, Apr. 21 (CWNews.com) - The city of Rome should be "a beacon of civilization and of spirituality for the whole world," Pope Benedict XVI (bio - news) said on April 21, at a concert celebrating the anniversary of the city's founding.

Returning to Rome after a week of relaxation at his summer residence in Castel Gandolfo, the Holy Father attended a Friday-evening at a new auditorium in northern Rome, as the city marked the 2,759th anniversary of its founding. The concert was organized by Mayor Walter Veltroni, and the luminaries in attendance along with the Pontiff including Italian President Carlo Azeglio Ciampi and Cardinal Camillo Ruini.

In his remarks to the crowd, Pope Benedict remarked that the anniversary festivities offered a good opportunity to reflect on the historic role of the city, with its "rich artistic heritage, largely tied to the Christian history of the city." He went on to acknowledge that the evening's concert was also designed to honor him on the 1st anniversary of his election, and said that he has found the people of Rome "generous, open, and welcoming" in their attitude toward him.

The Holy Father thanked the Roman organizers of the concert, noting in particular the selection of works by Mozart, well known as the Pontiff's favorite composer. He mentioned that the Ave Verum, with its "richly theological words," is an example of "music that invites prayer." More generally, the Pope said that the beauty of music "elevates the soul to contemplation," and reflects "the unlimited beauty of the Creator of the universe."

Pope Benedict had arrived in Rome shortly before the concert, traveling by helicopter from Castel Gandolfo and landing in the heliport in the Vatican gardens. He stopped briefly in his apartment before heading to the concert.

Who Are The Real Spiritual Controllers Of The New World Order: Confession With The Jesuits, A Weekly Series Appearing Every Sunday In The Arctic Beacon

The Jesuits have always been steeped in controversy from their inception in 1540. In our first Sunday confession we hear from two loyal Jesuits, as well as starting from the beginning, asking who is America's No 1 enemy. Also, do all roads lead to the Vatican? Does the Pope take his marching orders from the Jesuit General known as the Black Pope? And is there a Jesuit cemetery on the East Coast shaped like a vagina? These are just some of the questions posed in today's first confession.

23 Apr 2006

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/23-Apr-2006.html>

There are two large trees providing shade overlooking a passing stream called Brushy Creek. The shady spot sits about 50 feet above the swift moving current, carving out a winding path of water not far from the Mexican border outside of Austin, Texas.

There are two dogs below playing in the stream, as a crane flies above looking for food. It's a perfect place to talk with God, a perfect place to open your heart and mind.

In fact, it's the ideal spot to self-administer a private confession, ask forgiveness and receive a self-imposed penance. But instead I've decided to speak publicly, punishing no one for his thoughts and opinions, including myself.

And instead of remaining cloistered, isolated and alone like so many other Americans filled with self-pity, hopelessness and despair, I've decided to spark a public debate, raising tough questions in hopes others from every corner of the globe will join me every Sunday morning under the two shady trees overlooking Brushy Creek.

Long ago I realized how foolish it was to be so pretentious to think I possessed all the answers. And as I look at all the commentators, leaders and spiritual heads of the world today, I am shocked at how pretentious they have all become.

And looking out over Brushy Creek, I am sure the water would turn immediately black if they walked in it, as not one single person today in a position of real political, financial or spiritual power is willing to take off his mask of pretentiousness and deception to face the truth.

It's sad to think this beautiful creek may some day dry up. It's sad to think all the goodness in the world will be one day turned over to the masters of deception and the spiritual controllers of the New World Order.

It's sad to think politicians and financiers all across the globe have "cowboyed up," as they say in Texas, with the spiritual controllers, together betraying their respective countries in an attempt to globalize the world under one false god and one fascist government.

But the most distressing fact of all is only a handful of people are acting on the truth as most people remain essentially uninformed, the remainder falling into two distinct categories: those who sense the truth but too cowardly to act and those who are actual provocateurs, spreading disinformation on behalf of the spiritual controllers.

Before we hear from today's contributors, Jesuit Father Bill Williams and Brother Dan Peterson, as moderator of this Sunday forum called 'Who Are the Spiritual Controllers: Confession With The Jesuits, let me start out by saying I begin today with a clean slate, starting at square one and professing to know nothing. I promise to lead no one in a biased direction, only asking tough questions while formulating any opinions based on information uncovered through further research by those who choose to answer.

Question One:

Every day in the news and on television in America we hear America is fighting a war on terror, a starting premise adopted for almost every story we hear.

If we are fighting a war on terror, who is the real enemy?

According to President Bush, the mainstream media and the entire Congress, the enemy is Al Qaeda and millions of extremist Muslims, engaging in a spiritual war against Christians and Jews.

According to many commentators in the alternative press, the enemy is the Zionist-Jew movement controlling Washington and engaging in a spiritual war of its own.

According to other researchers the enemy is the Satan worshipping Illuminati, made up of secret societies, engaging in a spiritual war against every non-Satan worshipper

According to others the main enemy are financiers, controlling the Bank of International Settlements and the Federal Reserve, using spirituality as a weapon to divide and conquer.

And, finally, there are researchers who claim the enemy is the Jesuit Order, having infiltrated the Vatican and taken over the Catholic Church from within like it has taken over every other government and religion in the world. Researchers and writers, like Phelps, have claimed the Jesuits, a Catholic Order called the Society of Jesus, have combined all the above enemies into one deceptive force with its ultimate goal genocide and world domination.

Author Eric Phelps claims are expounded in his three editions, the third forthcoming in June, in his book entitled the Vatican Assassins. His research is also found at www.vaticanassassins.org and with it he joins numerous writers since the Jesuits were founded in 1540 who questioned the true intentions of the Society of Jesus.

Asking For Answers To This Main Question For Next Sunday's Confession

Are the Jesuits the spiritual controllers of the New World Order, who also control the Vatican, the Pope, the Council on Foreign Relations and the U.S. government? Is the Pope the real leader of the Catholic Church or does he take his marching orders from the leader of the Jesuits, the Jesuit General known as the Black Pope?

Phelps has agreed to provide a concise statement for next week's Sunday confessions, saying it's the Jesuits who are the real enemies. Others who would like to contribute with facts and opinions supporting or opposing Phelps's claims are encouraged to email their positions by Friday, April 28th for possible publication in Sunday's confessions.

This week's two main contributors, Father Bill of the Missouri House of the Denver Province and Brother Dan of the Los Angeles Province, were not directly asked this question, as it was obvious at least on the surface from their statements over the telephone, they were both loyal Jesuit followers.

Poverty, chastity and obedience are the three main vows taken by Jesuit priests and brothers, and Father Bill was asked about the vow of poverty in light of the enormous wealth of the Jesuit Order, including 28 major Universities in America, as well as 54 high schools.

"Yes, that's easy," said Father Bill. "The vow means as priests we own nothing. For example, the car I used to go to the grocery store today is not mine. Everything is owned by the Jesuit Order headed up by the Jesuit General in Rome. I own nothing."

The Jesuit General in Rome is Father Peter Hans Kolvenbach, and Father Bill said he met him in 2002 when Father Peter stayed at the new Denver House, built 13 years ago as a new edition to the Missouri Jesuit Province, one of 10 Provinces carved out in the United States.

"He likes to come and meet with the boys and keep abreast at what is happening all over the world," said Father Bill about the Jesuit General known as the Black Pope, the title carrying with it a rather militaristic not priestly image.

"His headquarters are located right next to St. Peter's Square, a stone's throw away from the Pope, as the Jesuit General is a close confidant of the Pontiff. He is called the Black Pope but it has nothing to do with something sinister or evil. It probably has something to do with the black clothes he wears all the time.

"The Jesuit Order is best known for being great educators and we are the largest Order in the Catholic Church. Sometimes the Pope asks our Order to do something special like one of our priests from the Missouri mission was asked to go the Middle East to be the Pope's eyes and ears to Islam."

Regarding another recent visit to the United States, author Phelps claims the Black Pope buried one of his close friends, Jesuit Father Walter Cizak, in an East Coast Jesuit cemetery shaped like a vagina? Phelps has agreed to explain the story and if anyone has ever heard of the cemetery, please email the Arctic Beacon.

Moving to the Los Angeles Province this week, Brother Dan, a historical archivist and loyal Jesuit, had this to say about the military aspect of the Jesuit Order.

"It has been exaggerated through the course of history. It is true our Founder, Ignatius Loyola, was a soldier, but when he found Jesus that all changed. However many of the military connotations have stuck with the Order.

"The Pope, however, is like our commander and chief and there are many Jesuits who do not think of themselves as foot soldiers. My role is to maintain the history of the Jesuits in California, Nevada, Utah, Hawaii and the Southwest.

Regarding accusations that the Black Pope controls the Pope, Brother Dan added:

"I think our influence has been greatly exaggerated over the years. We are not the snakes in the grass that people think we are or people behind the scenes pulling strings, depicted in 19th century history. That has all changed and the Jesuit General is called the Black Pope because of his black cassock, not because he is some sort of evil Snidely Whiplash sort of character."

Much has been written about the history of the Jesuits since the Order began in 1540. Jesuit Novitiates who enter the Order spend the first two years studying this history. Brother Dan said every summer Novitiates travel to Denver for a intensive course on Jesuit history. However, he did not have an outline or book of what is taught. If any Jesuits would like to contribute what "New Jebbies" are taught, please email the Arctic Beacon with that information.

In the meantime, others who have studied Jesuit history are asked to contribute what they know about the Order, starting from 1540 up until present day.

Here is some general information about the Jesuits as provided by Cyprian Davis, Bibliography: W Bangert, A History of the Society of Jesus (1986); M Barthel, The Jesuits (1984); C Hollis, The Jesuits (1968). Please feel free to research further and provide the Arctic Beacon with Pertinent information.

The Society of Jesus, the largest Roman Catholic religious order, whose members are called Jesuits, was founded by Saint Ignatius Loyola. Noted for its discipline, based on the Spiritual Exercises of Ignatius, and for its lengthy training period of as much as 15 years, the society is governed by a general who lives in Rome. Jesuits do not wear a special habit and are not subject to local ecclesiastical authority. Professed members are bound by a vow of obedience to the pope.

The Jesuits began as a group of seven men who as students in Paris took (1534) vows of poverty and chastity. Ordained as priests, they placed themselves at the disposal of the pope, Paul III, who gave formal approval to the society in 1540. Ignatius became (1541) its first general. The order grew so rapidly that at Ignatius's death (1556) the little band had expanded to nearly a thousand persons.

From the first, the Jesuits concentrated on foreign missions, education, and scholarship. Saint Francis Xavier, one of the original seven, was the first Jesuit to open the East to missionaries; Matteo Ricci and others followed at the court of China. Jesuits established missions throughout Latin America and founded a model commune for Paraguayan Indians. A remarkable account of the Jesuit mission to North America can be found in the Jesuit Relations (1632 - 73).

When the Counter Reformation was launched, the Jesuit order was its driving force. During the Council of Trent, several Jesuits, notably Diego Lainez, served as theologians. The English mission, a bold attempt to reclaim England for Catholicism during the reign (1558 - 1603) of Elizabeth I, was led by Edmund Campion and included the poet Robert Southwell. Jesuits established schools in almost every important European city and were leaders in education until the 18th century. Members of the society taught the sons of leading families and served as spiritual advisors to kings.

Because of the extent of the Jesuits' influence, powerful forces opposed them - forces composed of such unlikely allies as Blaise Pascal and the Jansenists, Voltaire, the Bourbon monarchs of France and Spain, and certain cardinals at the Vatican. These forces were instrumental in bringing about the suppression of the society (1773) by Pope Clement XIV. Among the members of the order at that time was John Carroll, who later became the first Roman Catholic bishop in the United States.

The Jesuit order was reestablished (1814) by Pope Pius VII and resumed its work. Jesuit schools and universities, such as Georgetown, Fordham, and Saint Louis in the United States, were opened. In Europe, Jesuit traditions of learning were continued by the Bollandists, who were charged with compiling the lives of the saints; the Jesuits also published several periodicals and journals. Members of the order were in the forefront of many social and theological movements; several others undertook scientific pursuits, such as the study of earthquakes. Among noted modern Jesuits are the poet Gerard Manley Hopkins, the paleontologist Pierre Teilhard de Chardin, John LaFarge (1880 - 1963), who worked for interracial justice, and the theologian John Courtney Murray.

*Among the repercussions of the controversy over Chinese rites was an intensification of the resentment directed against the Society of Jesus, to which some of the other movements mentioned above also contributed. The widespread support enjoyed by Jansenism was due in part to its attack on the moral theology associated with the Jesuits. Pascal's Lettres Provinciales, although placed on the Index in 1657, voiced an opposition to Jesuit thought and practice that continued to be read throughout the century that followed.*

The political role played by members of the Society most probably evoked the campaign to suppress it. The Portuguese crown expelled the Jesuits in 1759, France made them illegal in 1764, and in 1767 Spain and the Kingdom of the Two Sicilies also took repressive action against them. But the opponents of the Society achieved their greatest success when they took their case to Rome.

*Pope Clement XIII is said to have replied that the Jesuits "should be as they are or not be at all" and refused to act against them. But his successor, Clement XIV (1769-74), whose election was urged by the anti-Jesuit forces, finally did take action. On July 21, 1773, he issued a brief, Dominus ac Redemptor ("Lord and Redeemer"), suppressing the Society for the good of the church. Frederick II of Prussia and Empress Catherine II of Russia—one of them Protestant and the other Eastern Orthodox—were the only monarchs who refused to promulgate the order to suppress the Jesuits when it was issued. In these lands and in others the Society of Jesus maintained a shadow existence until, on Aug. 7, 1814, Pope Pius VII restored it to full legal validity.*

Important numbers explaining who are the Jesuits:

1540

The year in which the Society of Jesus was founded.

1789

The date the first Jesuit school in the United States was founded: Georgetown Academy. There are now 28 major universities and 54 high schools nationwide. The Jesuits land holdings are extensive throughout the world.

20,170

The total number of Jesuits worldwide on January 1, 2004. The Society of Jesus is the largest religious order of the Roman Catholic Church.

The Jesuit Conference sponsors two theological centers-Jesuit School of Theology Berkeley in Berkeley, Calif. and Weston Jesuit School of Theology in Cambridge, Mass.- that prepare both religious and laity for ministry in the Catholic Church. Within that collaborative setting, the Society prepares its own scholastics for ordination to the priesthood.

The religious vows that Jesuits commit themselves to observe: poverty, chastity and obedience. Some say the top 2 per cent of Jesuits take a secret blood oath or a secret fourth vow, pledging allegiance to Lucifer. This blood oath has always been denied by the Jesuit hierarchy.

10 & 1

The number of provinces in the United States. Although each province has its own administrative headquarters, the 10 provinces are organized to promote common goals and oversee national projects. The Jesuit Conference offices in Washington, D.C. provide liaison service among the ten U.S. provinces and various national associations and works. The Conference offices also serve as a direct communications link between U.S. Jesuits and the international headquarters of the Society in Rome.

Leadership of the Jesuit Conference rests with a national board made up of the ten U.S. provincial superiors and the Jesuit Conference president, who is elected by the provincials. Assisting the president are an executive secretary and national secretaries for Jesuit formation, financial resources, social ministries, international and refugee ministries and communications.

26

The average age of Jesuit scholastics worldwide.

54

29

The number of General Superiors in the history of the Society, beginning with its founder St. Ignatius Loyola. The General Superior lives in Rome and is immediately accountable to the Pope. Father Peter-Hans Kolvenbach, a Dutch Jesuit who worked for 25 years in the Middle East, was elected the 29th Jesuit General in September, 1983 by Jesuit delegates to the 33rd General Congregation from all the Society's provinces and vice provinces. A General Superior is elected to serve without limit on his term of office.

The number of Jesuit provinces, along with 13 dependent regions, that make up the basic organizational unit of the Society of Jesus. Each province is headed by a provincial superior who is appointed by and reports directly to the Society's General Superior. Jesuit provinces are grouped into eleven regional "assistancies," each with an "assistant" to Father General in Rome.

Editor's Note: Hope you enjoyed our first public confession together and look forward to talking with you next week by the shores of beautiful Brushy Creek. I truly look forward to learning and hearing from everyone, including the higher-ups in the Church and government who are hiding behind a veil of secrecy.

The problem we have here is the same old problem. The masses of people in groups like the Masons, Jesuits etc have no idea what their groups really are about and how the leadership works and worships. Bill Schnoebelen exposes Freemasonry to many dumb-founded Masons regularly and remember on he was in many of the highest of its Orders. If you wish to check up on Bill Schnoebelen's work then look to The Prophecy Club. The same problem happens with the lower in the pyramid of the Jesuit Order. How can a 1-3 Vow Jesuit have any idea about the 4th Vow high rank? Then of course we have to say well their opinion isn't worth anything until they do. Also does anyone honestly think that a 4th Vow Jesuit would tell the public the truth whilst still honestly connected to the Order? Of course not! Only 4th Vow Jesuits who leave (VERY RARE) would possibly do this, such as Alberto Rivera. Unfortunately these truly ex-Jesuits (not sheep dipped) end up dying eventually at the hands of the Order using the typical Borgia method known as `The Cup of Borgia.' Now my friends its obvious these Jesuits in this article aren't of any true knowledge or power within the almighty Jesuit Order. So again I ask, what is the point. Now my friends remember on the true meaning of Jesuit and believe me you shouldn't trust them and two words come to mind and they are DECEIVE & DECEPTION.

Title: Pope Reminds Jesuits of Vow of Obedience

Emperor Benedict XVI - April 23, 2006 11:37 AM (GMT)

VATICAN CITY -

Pope Benedict XVI reminded members of the Jesuit religious order Saturday of their vow of obedience to the pontiff and said their main job was to interact with modern culture.

Benedict made the comments following a Mass in St. Peter's Basilica in honor of the Jesuits, who are marking several anniversaries surrounding the founder of the order, St. Ignatius Loyola, and other prominent members.

Benedict told the prelates that Loyola was a faithful servant of the church.

"And it was from this desire to serve the church in the most useful and efficient way that the vow of special obedience to the pope was born," Benedict said.

The Jesuits are renowned for their intellectual rigor and excellent teachers, scholars and scientists. Founded in 1540, the Society of Jesus is the largest religious order in the Roman Catholic Church, with 20,170 Jesuits around the world as of 2004.

Benedict said that because of their background, the Jesuits had an important job in nurturing "a dialogue with modern culture," which he said had made great progress in science but was sorely tested by materialism.

The Vatican has had a sometimes tense relationship with the Jesuits.

In a highly publicized incident, Pope John Paul II named a temporary replacement to lead the order after Rev. Pedro Arrupe suffered a crippling stroke in 1981, brushing aside Arrupe's choice for an interim leader in an unprecedented change-of-command.

Arrupe, who died in 1991, had pushed for the church to move for a more socially just world while remaining faithful to papal authority.

But during his tenure, some Jesuits, especially in the United States and the Netherlands, had questioned papal pronouncements on birth control, priestly celibacy and the ban on female priests.

Earlier this year, the order announced that its general superior, Rev. Peter-Hans Kolvenbach, would retire in 2008 and that the order would convene a meeting of representatives from around the world to elect his successor.

Can somebody help me out here? This thread as well as the recent Szymanski thread on the new weekly "confessional" has made reference the the same statement of numbers the Jesuits enjoy.

.....the Society of Jesus is the largest religious order in the Roman Catholic Church, with 20,170 Jesuits around the world as of 2004.

I read the Szymanski article first and when I came upon this statement I figured it was just a typo, perhaps he dropped a decimal point or two. But then I see the same figure in this thread. Maybe I'm not understanding the statement, but the largest religious order in the RCC has..... only 20,170 members? This seems awfully paltry. Maybe I just don't understand what "orders" really are. How many orders are there in all of the RCC? If 20,170 members is their largest, what, pray tell, is the average size per order? While I'm at it, what is an "order"? :unsure:

smashstuff - April 25, 2006 09:06 AM (GMT)

You can look at the orders of the Catholic Church as like the different orders of freemasonry, such as the order of the red cross of constantine, the knights templar, propaganda due, etc, all different with their own particular ideology, yet all serving the same 'God'.

There are several orders within the Catholic Church, such as the Franciscan Monks (based on St. Francis of Asissi), Dominican Monks(St. Dominic), Benedictine Monks(St. Benedict), The Jesuit Order(St. Ignatius Loyola), Opus Dei(translates as the Work of God, founded by St. Josemaría Escrivá), and of course the Sovereign Military Order of Malta(Knights of Malta), a masonic order in disguise(the catholic church has a phony stance of being opposed to freemasonry).

Opus Dei I guess can't strictly be called an order, rather an 'organisation', supposedly they have about 80,000 members, but bear in mind that 99% of them will be clueless about the nature of the organisation. http://www.odan.org/what_is_opus_dei.htm

All founded and based on the ideas of different Catholics in history, and then you have what the church would call the ordinary laymen and women, who make up the common priests and nuns(some of whom are members of Opus Dei).

Starting Sunday Confessions With The Jesuits

By Greg Szymanski

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/>

Bless me Father for I have sinned. My last confession was 1982 when I knelt at your most holiest of alters in the Sistine Chapel, begging forgiveness for openly claiming your highest of Church leaders, including Pope John Paul II and the Jesuit General known as the Black Pope actually worshipped Lucifer and had the blood of millions on their hands.

For this confession, made to an unknown Vatican priest and spoken in Italian, I was given penance to perform of two rosaries, 10 Our Fathers and 10 Hail Mary's.

Further, I was instructed to spend a day of reflection and fasting for what the priest claimed were words provoked by the Devil, who entered my life in a period of loneliness, confusion and doubt.

Before I left the confessional, the priest told me to study the history of the Church, the Jesuit Order and the Bible, as this would clear up my misconceptions about the Pope, the Black Pope and satanic worshipping in the Vatican.

For the better part of 20 years, I took the priest's advice, reading and compiling information voraciously about secret cults, Masonic influence in all religions, the New World Order, the Brotherhood and every other piece of evidence relating to man's inhumanity to man.

And up until 2002, I kept my findings silent, studying law, talking peacefully to myself in nightly prayer sessions and remembering the Vatican priest's words to think and understand before I spoke and spread heresy.

For the most part, I was successful, keeping quiet or allowing others to speak for me through journalistic third party articles.

But late in 2002, I opened my mouth again, coming to the same bloody conclusion as I did in 1982. This time, however, I prefer to make my confessions public, asking for answers instead of forgiveness. I ask the simple question: who are the real spiritual controllers of the New World Order? And from that simple question is it the Jesuits disguised as Catholics? Is it the Zionists disguised as Jews? Is it the Mormons? Is it a secret society of temporal Satanists? Is it the Muslims? Is it the Hindus? Who really controls the Council on Foreign Relations? Who controls the Bank of International Settlements, called the Banker's bank?

And it all starts Sunday with "Open Confession with the Jesuits," a weekly series, running every Sunday in the Arctic Beacon. In Greg's first confession, he bears his heart and soul for the cause of truth, saying as a young student in Catholic school he was encouraged to ask tough questions, adding he can't understand why that has all changed as an adult. If he could ask his high school religion teacher, Father Mulcahy, about Satan worshipping in the Vatican, why can't he pose the same question to the Jesuit General as an adult? He also wants to know why a Jesuit cemetery on the East Coast, visited by the Jesuit General in 2002, is shaped like a vagina?

So don't miss the first confession, as Greg talks with several Jesuits, including Jesuit Brother Dan Peterson, an archivist in the Los Angeles Province and Jesuit Father Bill Williams from the Missouri Province at the Denver House, two priests who follow the rules and believe in the goodness of the Order, saying their military connotations are exaggerated.

The Sunday confessions are geared to spur debate, not to create a biased forum based on innuendo, conjecture and misleading statements. All interested parties are asked to participate, including the Jesuit General himself, who is being sent a formal invitation to comment in writing or be interviewed personally. Please email the Arctic Beacon at arcticbeacon@earthlink.net with your research, comments and inside knowledge about the role of the powerful Jesuits in the history of the world since their inception in 1540.

Further, Jesuits who are content and happy in the Order are encouraged to share their thoughts like Father Bill and Brother Dan.. Also, Jesuits who feel trapped or prisoners in a "military order," based on what they say are lies and lies and deceit, are encouraged to contribute by contacting the Arctic Beacon at arcticbeacon@earthlink.net. Our staff has just been notified that an interested third party will assist in locating food, lodging and safe shelter, as some discontented Jesuits have expressed sentiments that they want to leave the Order but feel "trapped with nowhere to go."

And while the discussions begin, don't forget to have your public confession heard every Sunday as a part of the weekly series Confessions with the Jesuits, an exclusive Arctic offering.

Note: all Sunday Confession articles will be recorded on an audio CD for future distribution, so don't forget to be a part of the search for the real spiritual controllers of the New World Order, starting with the Jesuits, moving to the Mormons and then going on to the Rabbis, as well as other religions and spiritual leaders. As the topic is quite broad, there should be no shortage of interesting confessions.

There are two large trees providing shade overlooking a passing stream called Brushy Creek. The shady spot sits about 50 feet above the swift moving current, carving out a winding path of water not far from the Mexican border outside of Austin, Texas.

There are two dogs below playing in the stream, as a crane flies above looking for food. It's a perfect place to talk with God, a perfect place to open your heart and mind.

In fact, it's the ideal spot to self-administer a private confession, ask forgiveness and receive a self-imposed penance. But instead I've decided to speak publicly, punishing no one for his thoughts and opinions, including myself.

And instead of remaining cloistered, isolated and alone like so many other Americans filled with self-pity, hopelessness and despair, I've decided to spark a public debate, raising tough questions in hopes others from every corner of the globe will join me every Sunday morning under the two shady trees overlooking Brushy Creek.

Long ago I realized how foolish it was to be so pretentious to think I possessed all the answers. And as I look at all the commentators, leaders and spiritual heads of the world today, I am shocked at how pretentious they have all become.

And looking out over Brushy Creek, I am sure the water would turn immediately black if they walked in it, as not one single person today in a position of real political, financial or spiritual power is willing to take off his mask of pretentiousness and deception to face the truth.

It's sad to think this beautiful creek may some day dry up. It's sad to think all the goodness in the world will be one day turned over to the masters of deception and the spiritual controllers of the New World Order.

It's sad to think politicians and financiers all across the globe have "cowboyed up," as they say in Texas, with the spiritual controllers, together betraying their respective countries in an attempt to globalize the world under one false god and one fascist government.

But the most distressing fact of all is only a handful of people are acting on the truth as most people remain essentially uninformed, the remainder falling into two distinct categories: those who sense the truth but too cowardly to act and those who are actual provocateurs, spreading disinformation on behalf of the spiritual controllers.

Before we hear from today's contributors, Jesuit Father Bill Williams and Brother Dan Peterson, as moderator of this Sunday forum called 'Who Are the Spiritual Controllers: Confession With The Jesuits, let me start out by saying I begin today with a clean slate, starting at square one and professing to know nothing. I promise to lead no one in a biased direction, only asking tough questions while formulating any opinions based on information uncovered through further research by those who choose to answer.

Question One:

Every day in the news and on television in America we hear America is fighting a war on terror, a starting premise adopted for almost every story we hear.

If we are fighting a war on terror, who is the real enemy?

According to President Bush, the mainstream media and the entire Congress, the enemy is Al Qaeda and millions of extremist Muslims, engaging in a spiritual war against Christians and Jews.

According to many commentators in the alternative press, the enemy is the Zionist-Jew movement controlling Washington and engaging in a spiritual war of its own.

According to other researchers the enemy is the Satan worshipping Illuminati, made up of secret societies, engaging in a spiritual war against every non-Satan worshipper

According to others the main enemy are financiers, controlling the Bank of International Settlements and the Federal Reserve, using spirituality as a weapon to divide and conquer.

And, finally, there are researchers who claim the enemy is the Jesuit Order, having infiltrated the Vatican and taken over the Catholic Church from within like it has taken over every other government and religion in the world. Researchers and writers, like Phelps, have claimed the Jesuits, a Catholic Order called the Society of Jesus, have combined all the above enemies into one deceptive force with its ultimate goal genocide and world domination.

Author Eric Phelps claims are expounded in his three editions, the third forthcoming in June, in his book entitled the Vatican Assassins. His research is also found at www.vaticanassassins.org and with it he joins numerous writers since the Jesuits were founded in 1540 who questioned the true intentions of the Society of Jesus.

Asking For Answers To This Main Question For Next Sunday's Confession

Are the Jesuits the spiritual controllers of the New World Order, who also control the Vatican, the Pope, the Council on Foreign Relations and the U.S. government? Is the Pope the real leader of the Catholic Church or does he take his marching orders from the leader of the Jesuits, the Jesuit General known as the Black Pope?

Phelps has agreed to provide a concise statement for next week's Sunday confessions, saying it's the Jesuits who are the real enemies. Others who would like to contribute with facts and opinions supporting or opposing Phelp's claims are encouraged to email their positions by Friday, April 28th for possible publication in Sunday's confessions.

This week's two main contributors, Father Bill of the Missouri House of the Denver Province and Brother Dan of the Los Angeles Province, were not directly asked this question, as it was obvious at least on the surface from their statements over the telephone, they were both loyal Jesuit followers.

Poverty, chastity and obedience are the three main vows taken by Jesuit priests and brothers, and Father Bill was asked about the vow of poverty in light of the enormous wealth of the Jesuit Order, including 28 major Universities in America, as well as 54 high schools.

"Yes, that's easy," said Father Bill. "The vow means as priests we own nothing. For example, the car I used to go to the grocery store today is not mine. Everything is owned by the Jesuit Order headed up by the Jesuit General in Rome. I own nothing."

The Jesuit General in Rome is Father Peter Hans Kolvenbach, and Father Bill said he met him in 2002 when Father Peter stayed at the new Denver House, built 13 years ago as a new edition to the Missouri Jesuit Province, one of 10 Provinces carved out in the United States.

"He likes to come and meet with the boys and keep abreast at what is happening all over the world," said Father Bill about the Jesuit General known as the Black Pope, the title carrying with it a rather militaristic not priestly image.

"His headquarters are located right next to St. Peter's Square, a stone's throw away from the Pope, as the Jesuit General is a close confidant of the Pontiff. He is called the Black Pope but it has nothing to do with something sinister or evil. It probably has something to do with the black clothes he wears all the time.

"The Jesuit Order is best known for being great educators and we are the largest Order in the Catholic Church. Sometimes the Pope asks our Order to do something special like one of our priests from the Missouri mission was asked to go the Middle East to be the Pope's eyes and ears to Islam."

Regarding another recent visit to the United States, author Phelps claims the Black Pope buried one of his close friends, Jesuit Father Walter Cizak, in an East Coast Jesuit cemetery shaped like a vagina? Phelps has agreed to explain the story and if anyone has ever heard of the cemetery, please email the Arctic Beacon.

Moving to the Los Angeles Province this week, Brother Dan, a historical archivist and loyal Jesuit, had this to say about the military aspect of the Jesuit Order.

"It has been exaggerated through the course of history. It is true our Founder, Ignatius Loyola, was a soldier, but when he found Jesus that all changed. However many of the military connotations have stuck with the Order.

"The Pope, however, is like our commander and chief and there are many Jesuits who do not think of themselves as foot soldiers. My role is to maintain the history of the Jesuits in California, Nevada, Utah, Hawaii and the Southwest.

Regarding accusations that the Black Pope controls the Pope, Brother Dan added:

"I think our influence has been greatly exaggerated over the years. We are not the snakes in the grass that people think we are or people behind the scenes pulling strings, depicted in 19th century history. That has all changed and the Jesuit General is called the Black Pope because of his black cassock, not because he is some sort of evil Snidely Whiplash sort of character."

Much has been written about the history of the Jesuits since the Order began in 1540. Jesuit Novitiates who enter the Order spend the first two years studying this history. Brother Dan said every summer Novitiates travel to Denver for a intensive course on Jesuit history. However, he did not have an outline or book of what is taught. If any Jesuits would like to contribute what "New Jebbies" are taught, please email the Arctic Beacon with that information.

In the meantime, others who have studied Jesuit history are asked to contribute what they know about the Order, starting from 1540 up until present day.

Here is some general information about the Jesuits as provided by Cyprian Davis, Bibliography: W Bangert, A History of the Society of Jesus (1986); M Barthel, The Jesuits (1984); C Hollis, The Jesuits (1968). Please feel free to research further and provide the Arctic Beacon with Pertinent information.

The Society of Jesus, the largest Roman Catholic religious order, whose members are called Jesuits, was founded by Saint Ignatius Loyola. Noted for its discipline, based on the Spiritual Exercises of Ignatius, and for its lengthy training period of as much as 15 years, the society is governed by a general who lives in Rome. Jesuits do not wear a special habit and are not subject to local ecclesiastical authority. Professed members are bound by a vow of obedience to the pope.

The Jesuits began as a group of seven men who as students in Paris took (1534) vows of poverty and chastity. Ordained as priests, they placed themselves at the disposal of the pope, Paul III, who gave formal approval to the society in 1540. Ignatius became (1541) its first general. The order grew so rapidly that at Ignatius's death (1556) the little band had expanded to nearly a thousand persons.

From the first, the Jesuits concentrated on foreign missions, education, and scholarship. Saint Francis Xavier, one of the original seven, was the first Jesuit to open the East to missionaries; Matteo Ricci and others followed at the court of China. Jesuits established missions throughout Latin America and founded a model commune for Paraguayan Indians. A remarkable account of the Jesuit mission to North America can be found in the Jesuit Relations (1632 - 73).

When the Counter Reformation was launched, the Jesuit order was its driving force. During the Council of Trent, several Jesuits, notably Diego Lainez, served as theologians. The English mission, a bold attempt to reclaim England for Catholicism during the reign (1558 - 1603) of Elizabeth I, was led by Edmund Campion and included the poet Robert Southwell. Jesuits established schools in almost every important European city and were leaders in education until the 18th century. Members of the society taught the sons of leading families and served as spiritual advisors to kings.

Because of the extent of the Jesuits' influence, powerful forces opposed them - forces composed of such unlikely allies as Blaise Pascal and the Jansenists, Voltaire, the Bourbon monarchs of France and Spain, and certain cardinals at the Vatican. These forces were instrumental in bringing about the suppression of the society (1773) by Pope Clement XIV. Among the members of the order at that time was John Carroll, who later became the first Roman Catholic bishop in the United States.

The Jesuit order was reestablished (1814) by Pope Pius VII and resumed its work. Jesuit schools and universities, such as Georgetown, Fordham, and Saint Louis in the United States, were opened. In Europe, Jesuit traditions of learning were continued by the Bollandists, who were charged with compiling the lives of the saints; the Jesuits also published several periodicals and journals. Members of the order were in the forefront of many social and theological movements; several others undertook scientific pursuits, such as the study of earthquakes. Among noted modern Jesuits are the poet Gerard Manley Hopkins, the paleontologist Pierre Teilhard de Chardin, John LaFarge (1880 - 1963), who worked for interracial justice, and the theologian John Courtney Murray.

Among the repercussions of the controversy over Chinese rites was an intensification of the resentment directed against the Society of Jesus, to which some of the other movements mentioned above also contributed. The widespread support enjoyed by Jansenism was due in part to its attack on the moral theology associated with the Jesuits. Pascal's Lettres Provinciales, although placed on the Index in 1657, voiced an opposition to Jesuit thought and practice that continued to be read throughout the century that followed.

The political role played by members of the Society most probably evoked the campaign to suppress it. The Portuguese crown expelled the Jesuits in 1759, France made them illegal in 1764, and in 1767 Spain and the Kingdom of the Two Sicilies also took repressive action against them. But the opponents of the Society achieved their greatest success when they took their case to Rome.

Pope Clement XIII is said to have replied that the Jesuits "should be as they are or not be at all" and refused to act against them. But his successor, Clement XIV (1769-74), whose election was urged by the anti-Jesuit forces, finally did take action. On July 21, 1773, he issued a brief, Dominus ac Redemptor ("Lord and Redeemer"), suppressing the Society for the good of the church. Frederick II of Prussia and Empress Catherine II of Russia—one of them Protestant and the other Eastern Orthodox—were the only monarchs who refused to promulgate the order to suppress the Jesuits when it was issued. In these lands and in others the Society of Jesus maintained a shadow existence until, on Aug. 7, 1814, Pope Pius VII restored it to full legal validity.

Important numbers explaining who are the Jesuits:

1540

The year in which the Society of Jesus was founded.

1789

The date the first Jesuit school in the United States was founded: Georgetown Academy. There are now 28 major universities and 54 high schools nationwide. The Jesuits land holdings are extensive throughout the world.

20,170

The total number of Jesuits worldwide on January 1, 2004. The Society of Jesus is the largest religious order of the Roman Catholic Church.

The Jesuit Conference sponsors two theological centers-Jesuit School of Theology Berkeley in Berkeley, Calif. and Weston Jesuit School of Theology in Cambridge, Mass.- that prepare both religious and laity for ministry in the Catholic Church. Within that collaborative setting, the Society prepares its own scholastics for ordination to the priesthood.

The religious vows that Jesuits commit themselves to observe: poverty, chastity and obedience. Some say the top 2 per cent of Jesuits take a secret blood oath or a secret fourth vow, pledging allegiance to Lucifer. This blood oath has always been denied by the Jesuit hierarchy.

The number of provinces in the United States. Although each province has its own administrative headquarters, the 10 provinces are organized to promote common goals and oversee national projects. The Jesuit Conference offices in Washington, D.C. provide liaison service among the ten U.S. provinces and various national associations and works. The Conference offices also serve as a direct communications link between U.S. Jesuits and the international headquarters of the Society in Rome.

Leadership of the Jesuit Conference rests with a national board made up of the ten U.S. provincial superiors and the Jesuit Conference president, who is elected by the provincials. Assisting the president are an executive secretary and national secretaries for Jesuit formation, financial resources, social ministries, international and refugee ministries and communications.

The average age of Jesuit scholastics worldwide.

54

29

The number of General Superiors in the history of the Society, beginning with its founder St. Ignatius Loyola. The General Superior lives in Rome and is immediately accountable to the Pope. Father Peter-Hans Kolvenbach, a Dutch Jesuit who worked for 25 years in the Middle East, was elected the 29th Jesuit General in September, 1983 by Jesuit delegates to the 33rd General Congregation from all the Society's provinces and vice provinces. A General Superior is elected to serve without limit on his term of office.

The number of Jesuit provinces, along with 13 dependent regions, that make up the basic organizational unit of the Society of Jesus. Each province is headed by a provincial superior who is appointed by and reports directly to the Society's General Superior. Jesuit provinces are grouped into eleven regional "assistancies," each with an "assistant" to Father General in Rome.

Editor's Note: Hope you enjoyed our first public confession together and look forward to talking with you next week by the shores of beautiful Brushy Creek. I truly look forward to learning and hearing from everyone, including the higher-ups in the Church and government who are hiding behind a veil of secrecy.

Title: Jesuits that survived Hiroshima

MooseDog - April 23, 2006 07:06 PM (GMT)

QUOTE

Father Hubert Schiffer, born in Germany in 1915, was one of eight Jesuits who survived the bomb dropped on Hiroshima. He had just finished saying Mass, and had gone to eat breakfast only eight blocks away from the explosion when the bomb hit: "Suddenly, a terrific explosion filled the air with one bursting thunderstroke. An invisible force lifted me from the chair, hurled me through the air, shook me, battered me, whirled me round and round like a leaf in a gust of autumn wind." He looked around, and there were no buildings left except for the church house.

Everyone else within a radius of roughly 1.5 Kilometres was reportedly killed instantly, and those outside the range died of radiation within days. However, the only physical harm to Fr. Shiffer was that he could feel a few pieces of glass in the back of his neck. After the Surrender of Japan, the American army doctors explained to him that his body would begin to deteriorate because of the radiation. To the doctors' amazement, Fr. Schiffer's body appeared to contain no elevated radiation or ill-effects from the bomb. In fact, he lived for another 33 years in good health, and was present at the Eucharistic Congress held in Philadelphia in 1976. At that time, all eight members of the Jesuit community from Hiroshima were still alive.

The miracle is similar to that reported in Nagasaki, where a Franciscan friary built by St. Maximilian Kolbe also went unaffected. Since the bombs were dropped, the priests have been examined over 200 times by scientists. Each time the priests repeated the same explanation for their survival: "We believe that we survived because we were living the message of Fatima. We lived and prayed the rosary in that home."

I believe this, stranger things have happened.

I've heard that a young boy was about 20 meters away from the blast at Hiroshima and survived and I think he's supposed to still be alive today. I dunno, strange stange story perhaps it doesn't explode like people think and maybe their are pockets that are not as dangerous, I have no clue...

“Until I am informed officially otherwise, I will maintain that the destruction of an atom depends on the geometric position of the triggering device, and the geometric position of the Sun [called “a window of opportunity”]. Is it possible to fight an atomic war on this basis? The whole thing would be completely illogical . . . the bomb has to be dropped on a pinpoint geometric position and during a certain instant of time, if it is to explode. [Dear truth-seeker, were the “bombs” dropped on Japan merely “dirty” uranium and plutonium-laced magnesium flash devices coordinated with technical ground teams below, one of which was located at the Jesuit House in the middle of Hiroshima and from where the underground switch was thrown (after which all five Jesuits emerged having survived the blast), detonating the atomic device just as it was done at the proving grounds in the southwestern United States only a few weeks before? Is Edwin Corley’s fictional The Jesus Factor really true, that nuclear devices cannot detonate if they are in motion?]

MooseDog - April 24, 2006 04:24 AM (GMT)

I dont really believe this, It made me laugh, I had to post it. Here's a link that makes fun of this "miracle."

<http://www.sxws.com/charis/mary25.htm>

QUOTE

Wow! Eight Jesuits living just eight blocks from the hypocenter of the nuclear blast at Hiroshima were spared from fiery destruction by their custom of praying the rosary every day. Rather makes one want to rush right out and buy a set of rosary beads, doesn't it? Not Really. I really had to find out more about this phenomenon.

Well, there you have it. Three different Catholic sources agree that there were eight Jesuit priests at a church just eight blocks from the hypocenter of the explosion survived the blast, unharmed or only slightly injured, while everyone else within 1.5 km of the hypocenter were killed. Given that these surviving priests are at the very heart of what is claimed as a great Marian miracle, I should think the number actually spared must be significant.

One of the most amazing miracles in history occurred at 8:15 a.m. on August 6, 1945, in Hiroshima, Japan. At that time the Americans dropped the first atomic bomb, and it landed just eight city blocks from the Jesuit church of Our Lady of the Assumption. A half million people were killed instantly when the bomb hit, and homes and buildings for miles around were instantly leveled. Yet the Jesuit church and rectory as well as the four Jesuit priests inside it were undamaged and unhurt. Why? Because the priests prayed the Rosary daily. – OPUS SANCTORUM ANGELORUM, The Most Holy Rosary of the Blessed Virgin Mary

So far, the events at Hiroshima involving Jesuits and their church/rectory indeed do seem to be miraculous: It's a miracle that anyone can believe this stuff.

JagDRS - April 23, 2006 02:58 PM (GMT)

Just curious what the opinions and perspectives of others are on the era of history from just before, during and after the reign of Constantine the Great and the Council of Nicaea. This gets to a particular and significant stumbling block of understanding in my own personal journey. Granted, the further back in time one goes, the murkier becomes the process of getting at whatever truths were hidden back then, but I thought it worth the effort nonetheless.

It is interesting just from the perspective of the wildly varying opinions and accounts of therein to be found by just doing a scroogle search on a term such as Dark Ages. It surprised me how many sources there are out there who seem quite prone to glossing over the period in question as though it was, in their opinion, not really all that significant or worthy of their mention in how it has since shaped the growth/ understanding of people at large their religions that come with, almost to suggest that the descent into the thousand years of darkness that followed not long after the era in question was the result of mere coincidence. Was it? There also seems to be a whole 'nother group, seemingly at the opposite end of the spectrum of the aforementioned group, sources who point to this era as all-significant. Was it?

It is also interesting to me some of the clues to be found in reading any of the stories found from such a scroogle search. For instance, I've gotten the mild impression that many of the sources that treat the era in question as worthy of glossing-over tend to have bias towards fundamentalist Christian and or Catholic Dogma..... coincidence? Another potential clue to bias/agenda I saw was from something simple things like the symbology preferred for referring to time before and after Year 0, like BCE and CE in lieu of BC and AD notation. This may be just another coincidence, but one story read last night gave me the impression that use of BCE/CE notation may be indicative of bias for Evolution over Creationism. Then again, perhaps this impression was taken in error.

One last clue worth mentioning, perhaps another possible trend of sorts. Those who seem to view the era in question as a period of great religious turmoil of long-lasting impact, tend to view the era and it's conventions such as the Council of Nicea as epitomizing religious tyranny of far-reaching impact; they also seem carry this view, without impunity, as part of the rationale for questioning the Bible (pick one) due to it becoming a tattered remnant of what it originally was from all the many intervening revisions and usurpations. On the other hand, those who favor a general glossing over of the period in question with a statement such as "the Council of Nicaea legitimized Christianity, next question" tend to be the ones who most fervently defend the Bible (pick one) as remaining essentially intact and force to this day.

Anyone?

Alexandra - April 23, 2006 05:37 PM (GMT)

Constantine legitimized HIS brand of Christianity, which evolved into what we know today as Catholicism. His mother Helena was already worshiping Mary.

True Bible-believing Christians were STILL persecuted during the Dark Ages.

Catholicism and true fundamentalist Christianity are polar opposites. In fact, the Jesuits DESPISE Bible-believers! (King James, that is.)

THE VATICAN'S "CARITAS" CHARITY TRAFFICKED NATO WEAPONS TO THE KLA

www.slobodan-milosevic.org - October 8, 2004

Written by: Andy Wilcoxson

INTRODUCTION

Caritas is an old, and well known Roman Catholic charity based in the Vatican. It has branches all over the world and has been active in the Balkans for some time.

This paper will answer the following question: Is Caritas a legitimate humanitarian organization, or is it engaged in more nefarious activities, such as arms trafficking?

This paper will look into possible connections between Caritas and Iranian weapons smuggling in Bosnia. It will also explore an incident that occurred in 1999 when a Caritas convoy was caught, by Italian customs officials, smuggling 30 tons of weaponry to the Kosovo Liberation Army.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF CARITAS IN THE BALKANS

In 1934 Croatia's Catholic Archbishop Alojzije Stepinac established the Croatian branch of Caritas. [1]

Stepinac has been dubbed "the patron saint of genocide" because of the role he played in the genocide committed by Croatia's World War II-era fascist regime. [2]

During the war, Caritas was active in Croatian concentration camps. The organization was tasked with forcibly re-baptizing and converting Orthodox Christians to Roman Catholicism. [3]

POSSIBLE CARITAS TRAFFICKING OF IRANIAN ARMS IN BOSNIA

In March of 1993 the Bosnian Serb Army commander, General Ratko Mladic, first accused Caritas of supplying weapons to Croat and Muslim fighters in Bosnia under the guise of humanitarian assistance. [4] [5]

Gen. Mladic isn't the only one to claim that weapons shipments were disguised as humanitarian aid. According to a report issued by the U.S. congressional subcommittee set-up to investigate Iranian arms transfers to Croatia and Bosnia "the humanitarian aid flow to Bosnia consisted primarily of convoys, organized by Muslim humanitarian organizations that later played a significant role in the Iranian arms pipeline to Bosnia." [6]

According to the Congressional report, the leader of the Islamic community in Croatia, Imam Sevko Omerbasic, was the "linch-pin figure in the establishment and operation of the Iranian arms pipeline." [7]

Caritas, although not an Islamic charity, was linked directly to Omerbasic by a witness at the Hague Tribunal. Sefkija Djidic, a witness at the Blaskic trial testified that Omerbasic led a Caritas convoy to the Croatian stronghold of Vitez during the war. [8]

The effectiveness of Caritas as a humanitarian agency is called into question by the testimony of another witness at the Blaskic trial. A protected witness testified that nobody dared go to Caritas to seek assistance. The witness, a Muslim from Kiseljak, said that if they tried to obtain any help from Caritas that they would suffer reprisals at the hands of the Croatian army. The witness said, "people preferred to go hungry than go to Caritas to get some aid from them." [9]

Caritas's activities outside of the Balkans may also be dubious. In 1993 UN peacekeeping troops found a weapons cache at children's hospital linked to Caritas, in Mogadishu, Somalia. [10]

So far the case against Caritas with regard to arms trafficking has been circumstantial. Nobody reported seeing Caritas delivering weapons to the children's hospital in Somalia. Gen. Mladic didn't provide any explicit examples of where Caritas was caught trafficking weapons in his interviews, and we don't know if the Caritas convoy to Vitez contained weapons or not, even though the convoy was led by Sevko Omerbasic, the man identified by the U.S. Congress as the "linch-pin" in the Iranian arms pipeline.

CARITAS CAUGHT SMUGGLING NATO WEAPONRY TO THE KLA

On April 12 1999, a huge haul of arms and ammunition, destined for the KLA, was found in the Italian port of Ancona aboard trucks leased by Caritas. [11] The cargo had officially been declared as a German Caritas humanitarian aid shipment for Kosovo refugees. [12] The trucks were loaded at the Caritas center in Sarajevo. [13]

The customs officials, who searched the trucks, found 30 tons of war material, including anti-aircraft and anti-tank missiles, rocket launchers and machine guns. [14]

Most of the arms were of Russian or East European origin, but many bore NATO markings. More than 1,000 mortars said to have been "stolen" from a NATO arsenal in Germany were found onboard the trucks. [15]

There was some legitimate humanitarian aid onboard the trucks, but it was of poor quality, much of the food had already passed its expiration date. [16]

Italian customs officials arrested three drivers, Robert Buellesbach, Sead Klakar, and Drasco Kovacevic. [17]

The Italian authorities claimed that Buellesbach had links to German intelligence. [18] On that basis one could speculate that he's the one who "stole" the mortars from the German NATO base.

The 15-meter-long trucks had been rebuilt to transport illegal cargo. [19] One truck was fitted with a double floor, while another one had a secret closet behind the driver's cabin big enough for six people [20].

Italian authorities said that the arms were destined for a training camp of the Kosovo Liberation Army (KLA) in Scutari in northern Albania. [21]

The name of the consignee on the export documents, was one Father Luciano Augustino, a parish priest in Scutari. [22]

General Alberto D'Amico, the military commander in charge of customs for the region that includes Ancona, confirmed claims by Italian security sources that it was impossible that British and American intelligence could have been unaware of the smuggling. [23]

A NATO spokesman said that while the Alliance had no contact with the KLA. "Some individual countries which are member countries of NATO may have some contacts. Of course that is not a guarantee that such things are not happening, smuggling and so on." [24]

Caritas denied that it had any role in the arms smuggling. It issued a statement saying, "These trucks are not from Caritas, even if the logo (on the trucks) is the same." [25]

CONCLUSION

The trucks were leased by Caritas, and loaded at the Caritas center in Sarajevo, and we're supposed to believe Caritas when it says that it had nothing to do with this? Just like we're supposed to believe that somebody managed to walk onto a German NATO installation and steal over 1,000 mortars?

The conclusion is obvious. The Vatican was using its Caritas "charity" to provide a cover for NATO, or at least German, arms smuggling to the KLA. They may also have provided Iran, the world's leading terrorist state, with the same cover in Bosnia when Omerbasic led the Caritas convoy to Vitez.

The Vatican's goals are the same now as they were when Stepinac founded the Croatian branch of Caritas, and had it forcibly convert Serb inmates held in Croatian concentration camps to Roman Catholicism.

The best proof of this is the fact that Pope John Paul II, rather than distancing the Catholic Church from Stepinac, did the opposite. The Pope beatified Stepinac on October 3, 1998. [26]

Miracles and Phony Mother Mary Apparitions Mean Big Money. Why Is Jesuit Bishop Pavol Hnilica Always Lurking In the Background When Mother Mary Appears? Does He Want To Be Close To God Or Just Close To The Money?

Some say Bishop Hnilica is a bagman for the Black Pope, involved in ripping-off the Vatican Bank and deceiving people while earning millions from contrived Mother Mary sightings.

22 Apr 2006

By Greg Szymanski

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/22-Apr-2006.html>

When miracles happen and bank scandals erupt, Jesuit Bishop Pavol Hnilica always seems to be nearby, waiting to seize the moment and pocket a quick buck.

Bishop Hnilica, the Slovak Bishop who has worked to spread the message of Fatima in Russia, claims to be a man of God, a holy man sworn to the vows of poverty, chastity and obedience.

But others claim he is nothing more than a bank swindler and street thug who ripped off money from the Vatican Bank for his Jesuit masters and created phony apparitions of the Virgin Mary, pocketing millions of dollars in the process for the wealthy and corrupt

Jesuits.

In fact, some say he might as well be the devil himself, as his involvement in the 1982 Vatican Bank scandal and the murder of Roberto Calvi, chairman of the Bank of Ambrosiano, is enough evidence to lay considerable doubt on Hnilica's priestly character and supposed holy intentions.

And for a supposed Bishop and man of the cloth, the following charges are shocking.

In 1993, he faced allegations by an Italian court over the Vatican Bank rip-off, connecting him to members of the P2 Masonic Lodge and the Mafia, as he was tagged by insiders as the Jesuit General's controller and manipulator of the deceased former head of the Vatican Bank, Archbishop Paul Marcinkus, who died two three months ago in Phoenix.

At one point in the investigation Hnilica even faced three and a half years in jail for his part in the largest bank heist in Italian history, but later through backdoor payoffs and bribery he escaped any jail time, being exonerated of all charges without even as much as a slap on the wrist from the Back Pope or Pope John Paul II.

Further, this never stopped the globetrotting Bishop from continuing his "scamming ways", as he traveled all over the world to stimulate many types of alleged "apparitions", including "Lady of all Nations" apparition in Amsterdam and the Virgin Mary apparition in Bosnia at Medjugorje.

With business booming in the phony miracle trade, in 1997 Hnilica started a new magazine, the luxuriously edited "Triumph of the Heart", which especially propagated Amsterdam. Together with his community, "The Family of Mary" and his associate Father P. Sigl, he even succeeded in infiltrating the house and chapel of Ida Peerdeman, the woman who originally was set up to propagate the visions of the Mother Mary.

To understand the Our Lady of the Nations scam orchestrated by Hnilica in recent years, it's important to know the visions of Peerdeman from 1945-1959 were always held in grave doubt by high ranking church members until May 31, 2002, when local Bishop Punt came to the conclusion that the messages of Amsterdam were not of suspicious origin.

And according to Mark Waterinckx who filed a formal objection to Church officials, the local Bishop was strong-armed by Hnilica and other Jesuits in order to keep "the holy cash cow" making money no matter what evidence surfaced to the contrary.

"According to the 'Criterion of the Holy Office (Card. Seper 1978),' the facts of any apparition case have to be examined thoroughly before hand. This was done repeatedly by several former bishops of Haarlem, always with a clear, negative result," said Waterinckx in his formal objection filed Aug. 28, 2002.

"This was always confirmed by Rome. In the text of 25.08.1961 (prot. nr.511/53) the Holy Office writes: "that the whole matter is closed and there is no room for further action". See, amongst others, the texts of the Holy Office of 24.05.1972, 25.05.1974 and 26.04.1987).

"However, under the influence of Bishop Hnilica, who has been involved with the propagation of a number of non-recognized and even condemned "alleged apparitions," i.e., Teresa Lopez, of Denver, also Vassula Ryden, and Medjugorje) and Rev. Father P. Klos (now suspended by Cardinal Simonis and revoked by his s.s.s. order), the public devotion to Mary under the title "Lady of all Nations" was authorized by Bishop Bomers and assistant Bishop Punt on 31.05.1996. At this time a distinction was expressly made between the title and the "apparitions" and "messages". No judgment was passed about the supernatural character of the "apparitions" and the contents of "the messages".

Regarding Bishop Punt's decision to authorize the Amsterdam apparition as valid, Waterinckx continued, lambasting Church authority for not controlling Hnilica and Bishop Punt for lying about organizing an official commission of inquiry before validating the Amsterdam apparitions.

"In my letter of 10.03.1999 to Bishop Punt, at that time apostolic administrator of Haarlem, I requested that I be heard by the commission of inquiry about Amsterdam," said Waterinckx. "On 23.05.1999, Bishop Punt declared there will be no inquiry about the authenticity of the "apparitions". It only is a question of making an inventory of the "fruits"...

"In my letter of 01.10.1999, I expressed my surprise about the fact that Bishop Punt was not interested in an inquiry concerning the authenticity of the "apparitions" of Amsterdam. I again proposed that I be heard by his "fruits-inquiring-commission". On 26.10.1999, Bishop Punt answered that, when his commission would be installed he would not object in any way to my being heard. He also wrote that the question about the authenticity could not be answered without Rome.

"On 31.05.2002, Bishop Punt suddenly declared the origin of the "apparitions" of Amsterdam to be supernatural. My Conclusion: Bishop Punt has NOT been loyal to the utterances of previous bishops and towards Rome. He REFUSED to start a commission of inquiry concerning the authenticity. He did NOT keep his word to let me testify.

Waterincxk also objected to the credibility of Peederman's 56 supposed apparitions during a 15 year period, saying she was deluded and compromised while questioning her character and motives. Further he objected to the many outrageous messages given supposedly given by the Virgin Mary and subsequently passed around as New World Order propaganda.

From testimonies collected during the long period during which she worked for the firm Boldoot it seems Ida Peerdeman behaved in a rather egocentric and pretentious way rather than with humility," said Waterincxk. "She demanded to be treated with all respect BECAUSE she had been chosen by heaven to be a seer. Sometimes she remained absent from her work because she expected an "apparition" of the "Lady". Because of her unpredictable and arrogant behaviour she was finally dismissed. In 1946 Ida's employer died. In Mr. Boldoot's inheritance was found a first version of the "messages" to Ida, called the "Boldoot Visions".

"In a later version - the notorious "Blue Booklet" - changes had been made. Also some striking out had been used. Perhaps this was because some of the first visions contained too much nonsense. Amongst other points, it is said the "Lady of all Nations" made a movement suggesting she will undress herself (07.10.1945). Also there is the example of Ida allegedly seeing the bellicose General von Hentsz appear; or saying that the Dutch Government must keep its power in Dutch India; or that under the reign of king Leopold, Belgium would split, etc...

"Ida Peerdeman had her own contact person in the Vatican, namely the Dutch priest, Mgr. Van Lierde who, for a long time had officiated as the Pope's sexton. This Mgr. Van Lierde was well known for his contacts with a number of alleged "seers." He even entered into a mystical marriage with the Canadian Marie-Paule Giguère, who founded "Mary's Army" after she had left "The Legion of Mary". Her movement was forbidden by the Canadian Bishops' conference in 1987. At the same time the DEVOTION and the PRAYER of the "LADY OF ALL NATIONS" WAS FORBIDDEN (cf. Canon 839, par. 2)."

Regarding the suspicious messages from Mary, he added:

"The "Lady" said that the successor of Pius XII would proclaim the dogma ("message" of 19.02.1958). Pope John XXIII REFUSED to do so.

"The "Lady" said Ida Peerdeman's bishop (at that time bishop Huibers) would give his consent to build the church the "Lady" had shown to Ida. ("message" of 31.05.1954). This did NOT happen.

"On 29.03.1946, the "Lady" clenched her FIST. On 10.12.1950 the "Lady" obliged Ida to clench her FIST and it is as if the "Lady" herself banged on the table with her fist. (the humble Virgin as a rebellious feminist?)

"The "Lady" says: "In Manchuria a terrible insurrection will break out ("message" of 10.12.1950)

"The "Lady" says: "The Order is red with blood" (idem)

"In the new church to be built, the "Lady" shows Ida the altar of the "Lady of all Nations," which must be on the SAME height as the main altar ("message" of 20.03.1953). My only conclusion is that the so-called "messages" of Amsterdam which are sensational, and full of absurd things and false predictions."

Finally, Waternincxk strongly objected to Hnilica's manipulations, but it should be noted the formal complaint filed in 2002 never was acted upon by the Vatican , as Hnilica has been allowed to scam people in other apparitions like at Medjugorje in Bosnia.

"In 1997 Bishop Hnilica, with the consent of both Bishop Bomers and Bishop Punt, organized the first international conference in Amsterdam There he maintained that the "messages" of Amsterdam contained the third secret of Fatima. His assistant Fr. Sigl declared the "messages" of Amsterdam to be authentic, but at the same time said he did not want to anticipate the judgment of the Church...

"During the second Amsterdam meeting in 1998 a letter, signed by the Prioress of the Coimbra Carmel, was read, in which she joined with the prayers in Amsterdam. This was applauded. It was interpreted as Sister Lucia of Fatima's approval of the "apparitions" in Amsterdam Yet later on (on 21.12.1998) the same Prioress wrote "that somebody from Amsterdam had begged her to send such a letter and that Sister Lucia was NOT making any statements about Amsterdam, about which she scarcely knew anything.

"During the third meeting in Adam in 1999 a group which PRETENDED to be members of the Austrian "Blue Army" of Fatima handed over two statues of the Amsterdam "Lady" (having similar features as Our Lady of Fatima) to Bishop Punt with the request that he crown them with a little crown "blessed" by the Pope. Apparently the Pope did not actually bless these crowns for that specific purpose. The International Secretariat of the World Apostolate of Fatima let me know later on that they had NO section of the Blue Army in Austria, and that their so-called leader, Fernando Andreotta was unknown to them. Before this, the management of the Fatima Apostolate in the Netherlands had expressly asked bishop Punt NOT to misuse the name of Fatima during the Amsterdam manifestation.

"After the fourth Amsterdam conference in 2000, it was said that a fifth one would NOT be organized. Yet in 2001, the international conferences were replaced by a multiple national Amsterdam meetings in many separate countries, thus allowing people to be further manipulated.

"My final conclusion is Bishop Punt made a serious error in recognizing the Amsterdam "apparitions" (under Hnilica's command). He has ignored the well-founded negative judgments of all his predecessors and Rome. In doing this it can be argued that he has created much future trouble for the Church, and also that he has acted in a subjective, imprudent, and even irresponsible way.

"In the name of those many faithful Catholics of common sense and a still healthy Biblical Marian devotion, I urgently ask for the ANNULMENT of Bishop Punt's recognition (31.05.2002) of the "apparitions" in Amsterdam and the ANNULMENT of the recognition (31.05.1996) of the public devotion (title, picture, painting, prayer). My only aim is to serve the truth and the Catholic Church."

JESUIT'S LIBERATION THEOLOGY ALIVE IN ATENEO DE MANILA

Dear Brother Maverick :

Whenever I wrote e-mails about the Jesuit Order of the Roman Catholic Church, I'm truly dedicating it to you, Brothers Eric Jon Phelps, Nicholas Rivera & Alexander James. You and they are the persons who knew what I'm writing are true. Because, I do believe that all of you are children of GOD and lovers of truth. My family, my friends and even some of my professional colleagues doesn't believe to me.

I agree with you that many of our politicians and high-ranking government officials have no idea as to what is going on in this world. In my surprise, I even realized during my personal conversation with two Baptist Pastors (Bible Believing Christians), few followers of Eddie Villanueva's "Jesus Is Lord Fellowship" and few Jehovah's Witnesses who visited my home. They told me a lot about their activities and Bible verses. They were surprised too that I also knew a lot about Bible verses. Here now is the most surprising of all when I asked them very politely " DO YOU KNOW OR HAVE ANY IDEA ABOUT THE NEW WORLD ORDER ? ", they replied to me what is it ?

I told them in a very polite manner and very gentle words, Well, the NEW WORLD ORDER Does Exist and It Is Official. Many Pastors and Evangelists also doesn't realized what it is. They even not realized the complex structure of the NEW WORLD ORDER. This is one of the very reason many true Protestant Bible Believing Denominations were already infiltrated by the Jesuit controlled "Illuminatis, Freemasons and other Secret Societies". My sister is a CPA-Lawyer a graduate of Collegio de San Juan de Letran. She have no sligthest idea that the International Banking System is a structural parts of the NEW WORLD ORDER. So as you said, those five congressmen doesn't have any idea what's going on in this world. Surely they will even surprise or intrigue when you politely ask them about the NEW WORLD ORDER.

Well, for everybody to know that the NEW WORLD ORDER is a complex structure all under the JESUIT ORDER led by Count Peter Hans Kolvenbach - the Jesuit General the Black Pope.

Now, let us go to the latest controversial "THE GOSPEL OF JUDAS", for many it is a new controversy. WRONG, during 1977 PANORAMA MAGAZINE of the BULLETIN TODAY, this was already published. It said, Jesus Christ married Marry Magdalene and they bore children and that Jesus Christ have sexually transmitted disease and many more. This is very blasphemous against the creator of the universe GOD Almighty. That's why when it was launched by the National Geographic, it did not surprised me. because, I already knew it since 1977 Edition of the PANORAMA MAGAZINE. I somehow suspect that the OPUS DEI is behind all of these and I'm now on the course to dig the shadow of the Opus Dei.

The DA VINCI CODE, the name of the Opus Dei was dragged into another controversy. I saw the Mystery Of The Da Vinci Code, my eyes are still very sharp to detect anomallies. First, the Star "PENTAGRAM" , this is a Star Figure used in the dark world of witchcraft & sorcecerry. When you slightly rotate it, you'll configure two horns, two ears, one face with sharp chin. This is now called "Horn Hunter Of The Night" of course no other than Satan. Let us call it Lucifer, because the Jesuits don't believe in Satan, they do believe in Lucifer. Then one eye inside the triangular pattern of the Pentagram. This figure is now "ALL SEEING EYE OF HORUS" of course it is Satan himself. Now, the one eye inside a triangular pattern or pyramidal prism, this is a famous symbol of the Freemasonry (SEE THE BACK SIDE OF THE U.S. 1 DOLLAR BILL). Inside the Egyptian pyramid, you'll see this kind of symbol. Egypt is the enemy of GOD and Moses. Now, how come this symbol is being embraced by the Opus Dei a prelate of the Roman Catholic Church.

ONE EYE INSIDE A PYRAMID, this is widely being sold besides the Quiapo Church of the Roman Catholic.

One last striking detail, in the Da Vinci Code, I saw masonic symbol, Kinghts Templar and Priory Of Sion. These are medieval period secret societies until now does exist. Medieval period can be traced almost reach-out the creation of the Jesuit Order during 1540 (approximately). Whereas, Opus Dei was only created on 1928. Therefore, I suspect again the Jesuits are behind although Opus Dei was dragged into controversy. The Opus Dei are just boys of the Jesuit Order.

GOD Bless you too Brother Maverick.

Brother Bobby

Bro. Bobby,

I have been receiving all your emails and reading it. Definitely the Jesuits here are making their move. But sad to say all the political figures I have interviewed on our show have really no idea of what's going on in the world. Even the five congressmen who are detained in the House of de Venecia have no knowledge of what's the real problem. There are only a few of us who knows about this.

I was able to read a page from The Jesus Papers Book and I'm afraid if an ordinary individual would be able to read it, his faith will flip down. If you noticed National Geographic have just released their feature on The Gospel of Judas and i've heard from some friends that some people's minds now are open for a universal truth. I think the agenda of the New World Order now is to inject to the minds of the people now to be open for a Universal Religion and definitely the Roman Church will be on top of it. This is the time in the Scriptures that says test to the faithful.

Of the page i read on The Jesus Papers it says that Jesus survived the crucifixion. That the sponge where Jesus drunk is actually an opium sponge for him to loose conciousness and look like He's dead after a few minutes. That when the sponge is soaked in water or vinegar will cause a chemical reaction, so that when a person smells it and drink it, that individual will loose conciousness. It also states there that Joseph Arimethea and Nicodemus revived Jesus when thay brought Him to The Tomb, that the myrhh they brought will stop the bleeding of his wounds.

I know this is not true but im afraid for the people who will be able to read it. What more if they have not read the Bible at all.

I think as much as we want to expose the Truth about what's going on right now, definitely the Will of God will be Done. It's definitely the End Times, I just hope all Christians will be able to accept the truth that whether good or bad the Will of God is, it will be Done and definetly we can't do anything about it, even how good our intentions are.

Even how much emails we scatter, information we send, truth we expose, the truth will only fall and live on the chosen ones which have the grace of God. It's sad but this is the Truth.

God Bless you bro Bobby and may God's grace be with you always.

Maverick Only.

Dear Brother Eric :

Look at this, the THEORY OF LIBERATION or LIBERATION THEOLOGY is being taught in the JESUIT ATENEO DE MANILA. I was truly stunned as they admitted themselves, directly from the mouth of the horse. This is the very reason, why many college student and graduates of JESUIT SCHOOLS AND UNIVERSITY becomes subversives or always anti-government. The very reason, street marches, rallies and protests shouting anti-government slogan are very active in the Philippines.

Liberation Theology a mixture of catholic faith and Marxism-Communism truly evolving in the Catholic World.

BRO. MAVERICK IS RIGHT ! He knows what inside Ateneo de Manila.

Theology 141 Immersion Program

The Immersion Program of the Ateneo de Manila University is an integral part of the Theology of Liberation (Th 141) course and the 1998 revised Core Curriculum. The two and a half-day immersion is required for all graduating students.

The exercise aims to concretize the situation of the poor in the lives of students through an experiential knowledge of poverty by way of insertion. In the context of "personal connectedness" and solidarity with the marginalized sectors of Philippine society, it is hoped that the students will be moved to render their share in the struggle to live out a faith that does justice.

The Immersion Program is part of the overall mission of the University to form socially responsible and committed-to-the-poor young men and women. The "conversion of the feet, head and heart" in the promotion of faith that does justice and of the preferential option for the poor is a life-long process. The Immersion Program may be only a small beginning or a catalyst in the process. Hopefully, however, it will help students realize the context of the society they will be graduating into, and further realize the role that their college education has prepared for them to assume. Whatever course a student may be in, it is hoped that this immersion will broaden their consciousness in order to promote total human liberation in their respective future professional careers.

VATICAN ASSASSINS

BY : ERIC JON PHELPS

White American Freeman

Calvinist - Baptist Bible Believing Christian

I together with Bro. Maverick, so far two Filipinos at present time who face bravely with courage, honest intention and truth lovers to convey or impart the diabolic plans and operations of the JESUIT ORDER in the Philippines. We are witnesses concerning the degradation of our beloved country "PHILIPPINES" in the hands of the most powerful Roman Catholic Church religious order no other than the JESUITS.

We bow and humble ourselves in front of GOD Almighty & Our Lord JESUS CHRIST - the one that will save our souls in the last days of judgement in front of GOD and His Holy Angels.

Unaware from the knowledge of our Philippine Government-Public Officials (Executive-Legislative-Judiciary) even military and police that the Jesuit Order's NEW WORLD ORDER Does Exist And It's Already Official. Political Crisis, Social Unrests, Rebellion, Military Crisis up to several coup de etat are merely craftsmanship of the JESUIT ORDER and they just walk away.

So many historical books I've read and my untiring research and now with Bro. Maverick's acknowledgements (truth and facts) - the VATICAN ASSASSINS authored by Eric Jon Phelps is a book that tells the truth and nothing but the truth.

The VATICAN ASSASSINS is the most versatile books I've ever read. So accurately detailed, point to point, the precise inter-connection of events, date, places and personalities involved are so accurate. This can't be done by any single person without guidance by the Holy Spirit.

You'll be trembled and will be shocked as to what ERIC JON PHELPS will tells you about how evil are the JESUITS of the Roman Catholic Church. Let me share you an example that you will feel a major earthquakes that will jolt all of you.

History always told us that a single B-29 Super Fortress "Enola Gay" piloted by U.S. Air Force Col. Paul Tibbets dropped Atomic Bomb named "Little Boy" in the heart of Hiroshima in Japan. Instantly killed thousands of innocent people and live casualties are thousands too. Japanese people can't forget this event up to this present time.

In the ground zero where atomic bomb blasted or impact of explosion, after the atomic bomb explosion approximately 8-city blocks away from the center of explosion-impact, SOME JESUIT PRIESTS CAME OUT FROM UNDERGROUND, all without a scratch and no severe wounds. Another, after the atomic bomb explosion – approximately a mile away is the Jesuit Priest Pedro Arrupe was also present. Pedro Arrupe become a Jesuit General on 1965 up to 1981.

I will ask some questions :

1.0 After the Atomic Bomb Explosion, thousands of innocent Japanese are dead. But the Jesuit Priests survive without a scratch within ground zero.

WHAT ARE THEY DOING THERE ?

2.0 Thousands of Japanese people have no slightest idea that an Atomic Bomb will explode.

How come the Jesuit Priests knew it will occur at precise timing ?

How come after A-Bomb explosion, the Jesuits will surface coming from the underground ?

How come the Japanese are innocent in their own native land ?

How come the Japanese are unaware an A-Bomb explosion will occur while the Jesuit Priests able to hide underground ?

How come the Jesuit Priests knew an A-bomb explosion will occur ?

Why ? Why they able to hide themselves underground ?

I smell something fishy. The Jesuits knew the in-coming explosion. The very reason, they hid themselves. Killing thousands of Japanese while they (Jesuits) are not. Whereas, they are not in their native land.

WHAT ARE THE JESUITS DOING THERE BEFORE AND AFTER THE ATOMIC BOMB EXPLOSION ?

One member of my family asked me how come I'm very interested in the Hiroshima & Nagasaki A-Bomb explosion that put end into World War II. I replied, our grandparents, parents, uncles and aunts talks about their horrific experience during World War II. The Imperial Japan invaded the Philippines. Battle of Bataan and Corregidor, and later agreed to me. Because, World War II is real.

So many Aseans, I humbly and politely volunteer myself, I personally told it to Eric Jon Phelps. I knew Eric Jon Phelps will tell, yes I brought this matter to his attention. But, he already knew this issue long time ago before I brought this matter to him.

Therefore, as a Filipino freeman and a Bible Believing Christian I do believe in the authenticity of the VATICAN ASSASSINS. I stand behind the Vatican Assassins by Eric John Phelps.

Finally, the NEW WORLD ORDER operated by the Jesuit Order does EXIST AND IT'S OFFICIAL ! I humbly recommend you read VATICAN ASSASSINS. The Vatican Assassins III is now being prepared by Eric Jon Phelps.

There will be more political crisis, social unrests and more Jesuit's inspired street marches, rallies, and protests clashing with anti-riot police. Soon this country will be in the brink of civil war.

EXPECT MORE TROUBLES AHEAD IN THIS COUNTRY AS THE JESUITS ARE STILL HERE IN THE PHILIPPINES OPERATING AS THEY WISH TO DO SO.

I DON'T KNOW WHY OUR GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS AND POLITICIANS ARE NOT AWARE OF THE NEW WORLD ORDER OPERATED BY THE JESUIT ORDER.

Another masterpiece of the JESUIT ORDER.

The VATICAN ASSASSINS by ERIC JON PHELPS together with your KING JAMES BIBLE 1611 will lead you all the way to find the evil doings of the Jesuits and their crimes against the Filipino people.

Good luck my brethren, dear good friends and my countrymen. Please, see the attach cover of the book VATICAN ASSASSINS

Sincerely in faith

Title: WTC - JESUIT FOOTPRINTS?

CRAIG-OXLEY - April 23, 2006 03:16 AM (GMT)

WTC - JESUIT FOOTPRINTS?

Question: Are there any indications of Jesuit involvement at the recent WTC "Terrorist" Attacks?

If we have read the book by Eric Jon Phelps, "Vatican Assassins: Wounded in the House of My Friends" (available today through <http://www.vaticanassassins.org>) we know the past deeds of this nefarious "religious" order (that is in reality the "military arm" of the Vatican: a Political System operating under the guise of Christian Religion) prove the nature of this order to be one that has utilized these very same tactics to further it's plan of world domination on behalf of their "Black Pope" (the Jesuit General). Those who are paying attention to the Bush administration may note that the number of Irish and Italian names on his appointed staff are very numerous.

One may have noted that the mayor of N.Y. City is also a staunch Roman Catholic and has been the one in charge of "overseeing" all aspects of the site of the former WTC towers. A law has been suggested recently in N.Y. City to empower police to confiscate all photographic equipment (and film) that is found being used to record what remains of the WTC and it's occupants. It was stated that no photographs/videos should be allowed "out of respect for the families of those who lost their lives in the tragedy." Why would the government of N.Y. City be against this sort of recording effort? Is this not terribly strange? Who do you think could benefit from this and how so?

Some may be aware that N.Y. City is one of the most solid bastions of Roman Catholic political power in the U.S. and for that matter the world. Is it any wonder there will be no independent investigations allowed. The FBI is also handling the investigation of the planes and their hijacking. The FAA is not a player in this one, apparently, nor are other governmental bodies. The F.B.I gave us Waco and Oklahoma City, some may recall. The "Charismatic" John Ashcroft appears to be quite "ecumenical" in his "fundamentalism".

The media of Pakistan came out immediately after the attack with articles claiming the WTC towers were secretly destroyed by Israel in an attempt to turn the world toward their cause. They claimed that 4,000 Israeli/Jewish employees of firms in the towers were oddly not at their posts the day of the attack. There is also an effort underway to discover who made windfall profits by trading on the market just prior to the attack. Whoever is blamed for having "foreknowledge" of the event and taking profits on it without warning the govt. will be persecuted most vehemently.

Believe it or not, history is replete with incidents just as we have witnessed at the WTC Towers on Sept 11, 2001. Long ago a man named Guy Fawkes (a Jesuit agent sworn to destroy all Protestant "heretics") fomented a similar terrorist attack (commonly referred to as "The Gunpowder Plot") on the British Parliament. He was discovered and his best efforts squashed only moments before the cache of gunpowder could be ignited to kill the Protestant Parliament members and the very British Monarchy. "Guy Fawkes Day" is commemorated in England to this very day. Unfortunately, Great Britain has forgotten the significance of the Jesuit threat and tends to look "back" on this as something that could never happen again. Even the purpose for the establishment of this yearly commemoration has been obscured through the Jesuit revisionists.

The purpose of the multitude of Jesuit schools, both in Europe and especially in America, has always been to gain control of the government, courts, financial and academic institutions, military, and media through their well trained advocates graduating from these institutions.

ATENEO DE MANILA - THE FAMOUS BLUE EAGLE

Though this act of terrorism against Protestant England failed to accomplish the goals of the Vatican and her Jesuits, the intent was most clear. What could not be accomplished by such overt Jesuit terrorism has tragically been achieved through their dark political intrigue over the last two centuries in England.

The last two world wars the Jesuits have gotten England into were made possible by the death grip they have attained on her financial institutions. The Jesuits are moving the nations into one last world war. They are motivating the nations with all the leverage they have at their disposal. Terrorism is simply a catalyst to them. They must bring the nations to a fearful and hateful state, then it will be easy to take them to their destruction. God will give them up because of their sin, and their going after false gods....the Last Pope.....the Antichrist.

Adolf Hitler modeled his Third Reich after the Jesuit Order, this is a matter of public record and was proudly proclaimed by Hitler himself. The battle between the "Communists" and "Nazis" brought Germany to the point where she was divided into two camps. From that point, where the Protestants and Catholics had united against the Communists, it was just a matter of "sacrificing" the Jesuit pawns in "Red". Hitler rose to power in the smoke of the burning Reichstag (the building that housed the German "Parliament".) The enemies of the Reich were, of course, blamed for this "outrageous terrorist act". They had accomplished their purpose. Hitler consolidated his control of Germany through this act and the ones who benefited were clearly the Fascists/Nazis (backed solidly by the Holy See, the German "Church", and the Catholic Zenterum Party, according to their "concordat" with the Vatican through their Cardinal Pacelli, soon to be Pius XII.... appropriately called "the German Pope".)

Could something like this be what is at the bottom of the recent "outrageous terrorist act" fomented against the U.S.? Should we not ask ourselves, "Who has benefited?" Have not the "Vatican Fascists" of our hour benefited? Have they not made great advances toward eliminating the rights declared to be "inalienable" by the U.S. Constitution? Are these factions not also moving the people toward ever greater "sacrifices of personal freedom"? Who has benefited?

Are the Jesuits not long proven to be the "archenemies" of the American Republic and our Constitution? They have declared how they have hated freedom of religion, free speech, and freedom of the press, all forms of republican governments, and freedom of conscience in one form or another for well over 400 years. The Treaty of Verona sealed an alliance under the headship of the Vatican to target America for destruction early in the last century. This resulted in the U.S. adopting the "Monroe Doctrine" as a matter of self-defense. The content of the Treaty of Verona was discussed on the open floor of the Congress of the United States of America. How could these things fail to be taught in our public school history classes? Who has benefited from the changes in curriculum offered in the public school system and American institutions of "higher learning" in the last century? What condition is American Protestantism in today? Who has even heard of the Jesuits today?

Just the week before the destruction of the WTC the ownership changed hands. This was the first time in some 30 years. Was this a coincidence? Was it also a coincidence that the man who was at the forefront of purchasing these buildings was also a man of "Jewish" name and apparent decent? This is a tactic the Jesuits have used continually over the years. It serves two purposes that can be easily seen. First, it keeps the people from looking for the real enemy amongst them. Second, it brings hatred on those the Jesuits despise and are working to annihilate. This is the same purpose of the infamous "Protocols of Zion" created by the Jesuits to create the atmosphere conducive to the last Holocaust. Was this man being used to "throw off the scent" of any would-be "trackers" that might arise after this event took place? Is this something that will be used to turn the nation against the "enemy" of the Jesuit Order, Israel? The Jesuit Order has always been the epitome of Anti-Semitic zeal. The Vatican has been the originator of the pogrom, the ghetto, and the armband. Her inquisitions and "crusades" have slaughtered countless Jews, Moslems, and Christians alike. Adolf Hitler's statement in regard to the "Jewish Solution" was that he was just continuing the very policy of his "Church" (Jesuit Catholicism) through the centuries. This is a matter of public record.

The chief of Anti-Semitic minions has always been a Pope, be he the "Black Pope" of the Jesuits, or the "White Pope" of St. Peter's. The Whore of Revelation is called "the synagogue of Satan" in chapter 2. This "synagogue of Satan" is owned and operated by those who "callesth themselves Jews and are not." The Jews are hated by these usurpers of God's Kingdom because "God's chosen people" have been promised God's eternal blessing in the coming Kingdom that will be established at the return of the Lord Jesus Christ. Satan knows this most explicitly and he also knows his time to accomplish the annihilation of the Hebrew people is very "short". The Scriptures tell us clearly that Satan and his last Antichrist [who will be identified absolutely by his act of placing "the abomination that maketh desolate" (an idol of the "Queen of Heaven"/"The Virgin Mary") in the rebuilt temple of Solomon.] will fail in their final attempt to destroy all the children of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob ("the children of promise.") Still, Satan will devote himself to this hellish effort to the last possible second. The Messiah, the Lord Jesus Christ, will deliver His people in great glory at the moment of His return, at the Last Trumpet (3.5 years after the Antichrist is revealed by his defiant act in the rebuilt temple.)

Is it possible we are seeing history "repeat itself"? "The Great Harlot of Revelation" has been given "a space to repent" by God, and "she has not". This is the declaration of the Lord Jesus Christ in Revelation chapter 2. Her "motto" has been for centuries...Semper Eadem (never changing/always the same). The heart of the Great Harlot will never change and she is consigned to utter fiery destruction in the prophetic scriptures (Rev.18). This is NOT America, but the Harlot Rome (a city called "Babylon" or "confusion", that is the seat of Babylonian worship today) and her children (those who are seated at her table of spiritual whoredom, "ecumenism" and "world religious unity"... those yoked with her in spiritual fellowship). Has not this abominable program of "world religious unity" been furthered "exponentially" by the events in N.Y. City last month?

The Great Harlot is the same today as she was in Nero's day. Nero burned Rome and blamed it on the Christians. This fired the flame of "religious bigotry" in that day and a most horrible persecution resulted upon the Christian communities in Roman territories. Ignorance of history can be very tragic indeed, may we remember and never forget.

The Vatican has lusted after Jerusalem for many centuries, but by the grace of God she has been withheld from ever achieving a control of "the holy city" that was able to be maintained at length. Rome is about to accomplish her Satanic goal in regard to Jerusalem, but her "victory" will be short-lived indeed.

One of the clearly stated goals of the Jesuit Order from it's earliest days (in addition to the annihilation of all Protestants on the face of the globe) is to achieve the rule of a Jesuit appointed Pope over the world (securing "temporal power"). This "Last Pope" is to rule the world from JERUSALEM and reign from a throne in Solomon's rebuilt temple. (this is to be the ascendancy of Lucifer to the throne of the world). The god of the Jesuits (who have established the worship of the "Queen of Heaven" now called the "Virgin Mary") is well known to be Lucifer. This is also the god of the Masons and Satanists. The Bible clearly reveals that the last Antichrist will be indwelled by Satan. The Bible has always been a most hated thing by the Black Pope and the Vatican. There was a death sentence that accompanied possession of God's most Blessed Book in the days of past inquisitions. Who has benefited from hiding these things from America?

If the Jesuits (who were behind the assassination of Lincoln, McKinley, and JFK) are able to turn the world against Israel (and they are about to turn America against her as I am writing this on 10-05-01), the Great Harlot will be only a step away from completing the last Holocaust (of both Christians and Jews) she has long lusted after. If the WTC Terrorism can be made to look like an Israeli plot to bring America into a war against her enemies, the Great Harlot will have used her "terrorism" to serve her purpose most masterfully (yet again).

Pray for the peace of Jerusalem!!

May God Bless You in the Days ahead!!

NAZI WAR CRIMINAL GEN. REINHARD GEHLEN

ADMITTED INTO THE CIRCLE OF THE C. I. A.

Research & Prepared By : Bobby G. Limeta
Sunday, April 23, 2006. Manila. Republic Of The Philippines.

The Central Intelligence Agency is not an intelligence or spy agency of the United States Government and her people if we are lovers truth in accordance to the teachings of our Lord Jesus Christ "The Truth Shall Set Us Free". Long time ago, it was discovered that the C.I.A. is an agency controlled and owned by the JESUIT ORDER, no doubt about that. The C.I.A. destroyed the reputation of good American people. Especially, those good and free American Bible Believing Christians.

Well, Reinhard Gehlen is one of Adolf Hitler's NAZI Germany and Pope Pius XII top general assigned for intelligence services. The United States Of America, Great Britain and their allies fought against Jesuit's NAZI Germany during World War II.

Now, would you believe that Gen. Reinhard Gehlen was admitted into the circle of the Central Intelligence Agency (C.I.A.). Something weird had happened. Supposedly, the U. S. & British governments brought Reinhard Gehlen into trial for war crimes. Instead, he become a member of the notorious C.I.A. The goat becomes a bull, this is because of another Jesuit's conspiracy. The Jesuits thought that they can hide every secrets they have done against humanity. We have to remember, no secrets can be hidden as times goes on.

This evil man (Gen. Gehlen) is one of the accomplish-network into the assassination of

Attached herewith in JPEG Pictures of Gen. Reinhard Gehlen. One in NAZI Uniform and the other a posing as a proud member of the Knights Of Malta. In his upper left chest, you'll see a cross of the Knights Of Malta. A secret society controlled by the Jesuit.

These are just one of the so many eye opening evidences that even the well-known lawyers and politicians being a product of Jesuit owned Ateneo University in the Philippines did not realized how evil the Jesuits are.

By the way, Gen. Reinhard Gehlen and the famous singer FRANK SINATRA are both members of the Knights Of Malta. If there are many historians and writers in United States, England, France and other countries like, Eric Jon Phelps, Daryl Eberhart, Alex James, Avro Manhattan, Tony Alamo, Edmund Paris, Charles Chiniquy, John Loftus, and others. Well, in the Philippines there's also one, that is Dr. Jose Rizal. I'm just a product of Jose Rizal patriotism against the Jesuits. I've also wrote so many articles about the Jesuits and I'm truly watching them since 1990. While Filipino government officials and politicians are quarelling and verbal wars as to what is happening in the Philippines "Crazy Politics and Civil Unrests" the Jesuits are smiling inside the Ateneo University. When I've discovered that there was a book already out of circulation entitled "Footprints Of The Jesuits" I immediately agreed.

I've so many references that I highly relied for accuracy when it comes to hidden truth : Vatican Assassins by Eric Jon Phelps and Tackling the Tough Topics by Daryl Eberhart and other names mentioned above.

Also, my applause to Bro. Maverick for his wise thinking and also his knowledge about the footprints of the Jesuits in the Philippines. I thought I was alone, but it is not. We are two Filipinos and hope so many more to come. AMEN !

THE WORSENING STATUS OF THE UNITED STATES

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA WILL SOON COLLAPSE

Research & Prepared By : Bobby G. Limeta
April 19, 2006. Manila. Republic Of The Philippines.

The Federal Government debt fiscal exposure is more than 46 TRILLION U.S. DOLLARS. This staggering revelation was included in the report of the United States Treasury Department.

<http://benfrank.net/patriots/lootingamerica>

The ILLUMINATI "Global Security Slush Fund" Estimated at US$ 65 TRILLION. The Illegal & Privately Owned Federal Reserve Is The Heart Of The Problem. In 1969, Minnesota Judge allegedly poisoned after ruling against corrupt bankers.

According to Greg Szymanski.

One of the effect of the NEW WORLD ORDER, now it's really creeping and working. The world's most powerful nation the United States is no match against the global conspiracies of the New World Order controlled by the Count Peter Hans Kolbenbach The Jesuit General "Black Pope" through the Council of the 13 Degree Illuminati, Council of the 33rd Degree Freemasons, 13 Satanic Bloodlines, Committee of 300, B' Nai B' Rith and Grand Orient.

The Americans and people of the world are very busy in showbiz, politics, entertainment and all kinds of goodtime and material happiness. While the Jesuits under their New World Order is slowly eating up the United States and the whole world.

I will prove that the Federal Reserve is illegal and privately own by whom ?

From Thomas D. Schauf said :

Dear American :

Pursuant to your request, I will attempt to clear up questions you have about the Federal Reserve Bank (FED). I spent much time researching the FED and these are the shcoking and revealing conclusions>

THE FEDERAL RESERVE BANK IS A PRIVATE COMPANY.

Who actually owns the Federal Reserve Central Banks ? The ownesrhip of the 12 central banks, a very well kept secret, has been revealed.

ROTHSCHILD BANK OF LONDON
WARBURG BANK OF MUMBURG
ROTHSCHILD BANK OF BERLIN
LEHMAN BANK OF NEW YORK
LAZARD BANK OF PARIS
KUHN LOEB BANK OF NEW YORK
ISRAEL MOSES SEIF BANKS OF ITALY
GOLDMAN SACHS OF NEW YORK
WARBURG BANK OF AMSTERDAM
CHASE MANHATTAN BANK OF NEW YORK

The Rothschild - the secret banker of the popes. Goldman Sachs, Chase Manhattan are collaboration of J.P. Morgan & Rockefeller of New York.

Mr. Springmeier identified the Rothschild & Rockefeller belong to the 13 Satanic Illuminati Bloodlines. The J.P. Morgans are cohorst of the Rothschild. Now, the 13 Satanic Illuminati Bloodlines are controlled by the JESUIT BALCK POPE using the Illuminati.

Now, lets go to the Philippines. Is the Philippines affected, oh yes sure "DEFINITELY". The Philippines is in deep debt trouble from the loaned money by the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and World Bank (WB). Well, the IMF & WB is a part of the NEW WORLD ORDER NWO controlled by the Jesuits. Would you also believe that the Bank Of America (BA) is owned by the Jesuits? according to famous historical writer Avro Manhattan.

The United States the world's most advance and industrialized nation, the Jesuit's NWO enabled to trick and betrayed millions of Americans. Now, how much more the small and third world country like the Philippines and other nations.

Well, brethrens, good friends, ladies and gentlemen. It's so hard and painful to know millions of people "WE" are betrayed. Whether we get angry or mad about these revelations, well, that's the reality of it and that's the truth we all have to accept. Ignorance will destroy all of us.

GOD said in the book of Hosea "MY PEOPLE ARE PERISH BECAUSE LACK OF KNOWLEDGE". Whoever doesn't knew or reliazed that the NEW WORLD ORDER does exist and it's already official, is being lag behind of today's modern world events.

So far, this is still my fresh recollection. Listen as what Rep. Louis T. McFadden (R. Pa.) said inside the House Of Congress, U.S.A. "MR. CHAIRMAN ! WE HAVE ONE OF THE MOST CORRUPT INSTITUTION EVER KNOWN TO MEN, I'M SPEAKING OF THE FEDERAL RESERVE (FED)".

I've read so many books pertaining to world history and current events. If I'm a professor in history, I will mark the JESUIT ORDER an outstanding grade of 99% when it comes to evil doings and notorious diabolic works. My long time British friend living in Yorkshire said "THE JESUITS ARE NAUGHTY BOYS".

Nowaday, everywhere you buy something, you'll see a BAR CODE well that is a NEW WORLD ORDER "Globalization". It seems there's a unified global system, well no more it seems, it's a FACT.

LUCIFER'S (SATAN) JESUITS - MASTERS OF THE WORLD.

Just this week, a fresh news and events in the Philippines. The Supreme Court of the Knights Of Columbus justified the legality of the National I. D. System. We'll, here it is ! centralization of Filipinos invidual character "high transparency". National I. D. System may be best to deter criminality as some politicians said. But I suspect it will be used for other purposes, the Jesuits will now easily pin-point who are catholics and non-catholics if the status of religion will be stated in the propose National I. D. system.

I've said Supreme Court of Knights Of Columbus (KOC). Because, the KOC boasted that 9 out of 15 Supreme Court Justices are members of the Knights of Columbus and the mere fact, there are members of the Masonic Lodges. These justices are high intellectual people when it comes to human law. But when it comes to spiritual matters or Lucefirianism like the Jesuit Order's KOC they are somewhat blind. Because, if they knew what I've just mentioned, they will not joined the KOC or masonic lodges.

The United States Supreme Court is also infiltrated by the Jesuit Order through the KOC. In-fact, Chief Justice Earl Warren is a member of the KOC that led into one of the greatest cover-up in the history of the United States "Covered-up the true assassins of the late U.S. President John F. Kennedy".

Title: Mxxx asks Phelps some questions

CRAIG-OXLEY - April 23, 2006 02:51 AM (GMT)

Hello Eric...I'd like to ask you a few questions if I may...The death of William Casey, former CIA director Was it a "staged" accident?

It was murder at Georgetown University Hospital. My source is Mark Phillips, ex-CIA agent.

If so....WHY?

It concerned the Iran-Contra Affair which the Knights of Malta backed while the Jesuits backed the Sandinistas.

Here in Texas the illegal aliens are marching in the streets demanding thier rights...Is this an attempt to flood USA with Romanist refugees?

Yes.

If so,whats the idea behind it?

The purpose is to further outrage the White middle class so as to back the creation of a fascist, right wing military dictatorship employing the now existing Concentration Camps. Further, the creation of the sodomite agenda and agitation is to also gain the approval of the middle class in backing the internment of the sodomites in the CCs.

TYVM for your time and attention...Have a great day,Mxxx.

Subject: Fw: THE JESUIT - THE PRESIDENT - THE GENERAL (TRIANGLE MEETING)

Dear Brother Eric :

Many thanks for your reply and information as you've stated below and definitely I believe in you. The very reason, I a Filipino is your ally.

Yes, the Japanese invasion of the Philippines during World War II will be repeated again, but next time will be the Chinese, as history sometimes repeat itself. This is what I want to impart to my countrymen that the threat of the Jesuit Order of the Roman Catholic Church is real. As you see, even our highest intellectual government officials and politicians doesn't feel or see it that it will happen in the near future. Just 2000, I felt as I have a gift from GOD. I called it personally as vision of the future to come as my guide is the past, recent and latest event. Not a vision of aparitions or miracles, but a vision on how to foresee as to what may happen in the near future, like projects estimation of needed bill of materials as an engineer.

Even some of my professional colleagues and members of my family are unaware about the NEW WORLD ORDER of the Jesuits. As they are busy in their everyday business life, daily routine works and entertainment and good times. In-fact, many where shocked to me as to what I've told them. After the Atomic Bomb explosion in Hisroshima on August of 1945, at ground zero 8 Jesuit Priests surfaced from underground unhurt while approximately 70 to 80 thousands Japanese are dead. My own father was truly jolted like a violent earthquake. I re-make your e-mail into red fonts so that my countrymen will boldly see what you've stated below.

Lastly, to prove more. I will e-mail to you a commentaries of a prominent Jesuit educated lawyer of Jesuit owned Ateneo de Manila and mentioned was some prominent politicians and even high-ranking Jesuit priests meddling in our Philippine political affairs long time ago and up to the present time. It seems I knew more something than them (Well-Hidden Dark Secrets Of The Jesuits). I even challenge some of Philippine communist leaders and leftist or anti-government political group like Teddy Casino. Perhaps, he never realized about Liberation Theology perfected by the Jesuits to Sandinista Rebel in Nicaragua and also, Ka Roger Rosal of the CPP/NPA chief commander that Carl Marx the ideologist of communism was trained by the Jesuits in British museum in London. What they know is only fighting and toppled goverment. MY DEAR WIFE ALSO ASKED ME, "HOW COME YOU KNEW ALL THIS HIDDEN SECRETS AGAINST HUMANITY", I replied GOD revealed it to me. I also have pictures of Gen. Douglas McArthur together with Jesuit Father Edmund A. Walsh in Japan and I still kept picture of Adolf Hitler still alive at the age of 107 in Santiago. Chile year 1997 (I don't know if Hitler is still alive this year 2006). Chilean journalist Ernesto Pinero Suarez and I knew about it. Hitler escaped into South America like Martin Bormann, helped by the Jesuits called the "RATLINES".

Thanks Bro. Eric and GOD Bless You. Go ahead and finish the VATICAN ASSASSINS III, I will immediately get 1 from you. My countrymen will be SHOCKED about the satanism of the Roman Catholic Church's "JESUIT ORDER".

Bro. Bobby

Dear Brother Bobby,

Thanks for the article below. Indeed, the Jesuits rule the Philippines. For the moment I cannot help with your request ad VAlll must be finished ASAP.

What appears to be happening in the Philippines is this:

1. The American Military must be driven out of your nation---including Subic Bay (was not that a Black sailor who raped a Fillipino giving the Jesuits reason for this continuing agitation? The Order's news networks are doing the same here adding fire to the continuing the Black-on-White race war.)

2. With the American presence withdrawn from the Philippines, China would be free to invade and perpetrate the same atrocites as did the Japanese in WWII. Further, the wealth of your country would greatly aide the Chinese war effort in the Pacific Rim ultimately culminating in the invasion of Australia, Hawaii and our West Coast---now completely disarmed from Seattle to San Diego. Chinese spys are everywhere and free to conduct their espionage.

Keep up the good work, dear brother.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

Dear Borthar Eric :

What is your own opinion ? I think the Jesuits are cooking something. In red fonts below, our President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo together with one of her top military general are in a close door meeting with Philippine Jesuit Provincial Superior Fr. Romeo "Archie" Intengan during the height of her political crisis. Also, Brother Eric can you help me to check the U.S. based lobbying firm Venable. Norberto Gonzales paid millions to this firm for the promotion to change our constitution.

Here in the Philippines, when the Jesuits move it's almost a bulgar. Because, 99% the Philippines is under their grip.

Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo is a Jesuit obedient servant

Her national security adviser Norberto Gonzales is also a Jesuit obedient servant, a close friend and ally of Fr. Romeo "Archie" Intengan.

Malacañang is taking Sen. Miriam Santiago's warning that forces against President Arroyo are girding themselves up for a big push against her in December, and that is why the Palace has hired the McCann-Erickson advertising agency to help it, a source very close to Palace officials involved in media relations and in projecting a good image of the President told this reporter.

The Times asked the President's spokesman and press secretary, Ignacio Bunye, to comment on the matter. Bunye asked to be excused from making comments.

Pass muna. We might be responding to some information not verified, he said.

The ad agency's role in Philippine affairs is more than that of managing the bird-flu awareness campaign, the source, who requested anonymity, said.

That role will be to sustain front-page stories about the Subic rape case, the Abu Sayyaf problem in Jolo and the bird-flu threat as part of the Palace's media plan to divert attention from serious threats against President Arroyo.

The source told me that at least three congressmen are now fed up with the Palace, including Rep. Joey Sarte Salceda of Albay, an economist, who is a known GMA ally but who of late has spoken bluntly against Malacañang's economic policies, especially its way of carrying out the EVAT law.

The other congressmen rebelling against President Arroyo, the source said, voted to quash the impeachment complaint in exchange for releases of funds for their constituencies, on a scale of 1 to 10," the source said, "these congressmen have received not even 3 of what they were promised. News that the Palace is facing budget problems is making these congressmen restless.

The source is a consultant to Malacañang's media relations officials.

Bad news like this needs to be driven off the front pages of the newspapers, The Times source said. So McCann-Erickson's and my associates in the Palace must move to keep other serious matters in the news. Thus, give force to bird-flu anxieties, the new strength of the Abu Sayyaf and the Subic rape case.

The Palace sees an impending political and security problem, a new effort of the opposition to escalate anti-Arroyo sentiment by exposing scandals and speculations about scandals, the source said.

The source told The Times that President Arroyo saw with satisfaction that the militants and the opposition's clamor for her ouster or resignation suddenly subsided when the Subic rape and the bird-flu scare grabbed the headlines.

The source also said that Malacañang is worried about the possibility that the new president of the Catholic Bishops Conference of the Philippines, Angel Lagdameo, will be less neutral than the outgoing CBCP head, Bishop Fernando Capalla.

President Arroyo, the source said, met with the influential Jesuit provincial, Fr. Romeo Intengan, to see what he could do to keep Bishop Lagdameo from fanning the anti-GMA fire.

Father Intengan, the source said, had a closed-door meeting last week with the President. Also present at the meeting was at least one top military general.

In a cell-phone conversation on Monday, Intengan admitted that Mrs. Arroyo had been asking his for advice. He recalled that the last meeting he had with the President was more than a week ago. He declined to tell the Times what he and the President had discussed. He said their conversation was about everything in general terms.

When Bunye was asked by The Times if he was aware that a meeting between the President and Intengan happened, he said, I'm not aware of any.

Businessmen asked by The Times to comment said they were glad Malacañang had taken these steps.

Bad news about politics and destabilization should not be on the front pages. They drive foreign investors away, said Fan Cho Chow, a HK businessman operating in the Philippines whose corporation, Welex Fire Retardants, has set up a branch and invested in the Philippines.

Thomas Mao, a visiting Singapore businessman said, You Filipinos should follow what our Go Chok Tong suggests: The media should assist the government.

FACING AMERICANS TODAY!

Challenge to Texe Marrs

((Address of Editor of TTT was given here in original letter.))

February 25/26, 2006

And March 10, 2006)

((CF: Lisa Ruby, Eric Jon Phelps, Pastor Bill Hughes [2] & Pastor Butch Paugh))

Mrs. Wanda Marrs

C/o "Power of Prophecy"

1708 Patterson Road

Austin, TX 78733-6507 [1]

((Important Note added on March 10, 2006: I started this letter on Feb. 23, 2006; however, I temporarily put it on hold while I finished up a 26-page ETI newsletter on "The Real Mary", which I will, D.v., be mailing out to you and Texe soon.))

Dear Wanda,

((NOTE TO READER: Three short paragraphs of personal greetings and comments, etc., have been deleted from this Internet version of this letter to Wanda Marrs concerning Texe Marrs' last several years of pre-recorded broadcast programs. Other than the omission of these three short paragraphs, and of the editor's address, phone number – and of Lisa Ruby's phone number – the letter is the same as that which was mailed out on March 13, 2006 via U.S. Post Office certified mail with "receipt return requested".))

I do not know what portion of my mailings that you have had an opportunity to read. I frequently address envelopes of such writings to "Texe and Wanda Marrs" – and have done so especially over the last couple years. If you have not had the opportunity to read my writings (especially my TTT & ETI newsletters) much over the past several years, may I suggest you read the following (which deal with the topic of this letter) that are posted on www.pastorbutch.com (click on the "Tackling the Tough Topics" 'box') and on www.tacklingthetoughtopics.net: "The Real Controllers of the USA"; "New Year's Thoughts"; "The Major Player"; "Fifth Columnists, Trojan Horses, and Dual Loyalties"; "Death by Government and Death by Church"; "Bloody Hands & Wicked Hearts"; and "Deceitful Revisers and Editors of History".

The reason for my "suggested reading" to you, Wanda, is this: I believe that Texe has been heavily influenced by men like Michael Collins Piper ((who has close ties to the American Free Press (AFP)), Colonel Donn de Grand Pré, and the AFP itself. I have some very strong reservations about all three of those sources. (More on that later – I have enclosed an AFP "hit piece" on authors F. Tupper Saussy and Eric Jon Phelps as an example of horrible "ad hominem" attacks done by the AFP on some of those folks who have dared to speak or write about the Jesuits and Knights of Malta.) ((NOTE: The very powerful Roman Catholic Order of the Knights of Malta is co-located with, and controlled by, the Jesuit Superior General. The following CIA Directors have all been Knights of Malta: William Donovan, John McCone, William Casey, William Colby, and George Tenet – according to Eric Jon Phelps. Additionally, the very powerful long-time CIA Chief of Counterintelligence, James Jesus Angleton, was also a Knight of Malta.)) (5 CIA directors being Knights of Malta – isn't that just a bit suspicious?)

By the way, I WANT you to not only read this letter, but also to share it with Texe after you finish it – and to talk with Texe about the contents. Please! Why am I writing this letter to you, Wanda? It is because I am very concerned about the "direction" that Texe is taking "Power of Prophecy", as are others. Despite writing numerous letters to Texe about my concerns, I have to yet to receive any kind of response from him. Texe appears these last 2 to 3 years to be spending about 60-70% of his time going after what I call “two growling Chihuahuas” ((i.e., (1) “the Jews” [i.e., Jewish neo-cons, Jewish bankers, Jewish Hollywood folk, Jewish Cabbalists, Jewish Masons, etc.] and (2) the state of “Israel”)) while largely (and for the most part) ignoring what I and some others consider the much, much greater threat of “ten Romish tigers” ((Vatican State, Vatican banking interests, Jesuit Order, Opus Dei, the very powerful Knights of Malta (inheritors of the Knights Templar banking interests), powerful Knights of Columbus (here in the USA), Office of Inquisition, etc.)). While Texe has taken a “few small jabs” at the Vatican, and one tiny jab, to the best of my knowledge, at the Jesuit Order (when he mentioned my letter ref their involvement in the Lincoln assassination), he has devoted thousands of jabs (so it seems) at the much smaller “two growling Chihuahuas” – i.e., “the Jews” and Israel.

As you are probably already aware, I have sent Texe numerous letters (handwritten, up to 20 plus pages), numerous TTT newsletters, and also at least seven brand new books all dealing with the tremendous wealth, power, and influence of the Vatican State, the Jesuit Order, the Knights of Malta, etc, and their history of religious genocide. (Many of the materials, such as the books, were also addressed to you.) The Jesuit Order (which controls not only its own members, but also the powerful & wealthy Knights of Malta, and one can make a good case - the highest levels of Freemasonry) was THROWN OUT of 83 different countries, cities, and city-states by 1931 (according to Canadian historian J.E.C. Shepherd). The Jesuits were THROWN OUT of these countries, cities, and city-states because they had a proven track record of fomenting wars and revolutions, of assassinating heads of State, and for political intrigues. And to where did the Jesuits flee and take up residence – to Britain and the United States in many instances, where they “set up shop” and immediately began to undermine the foundations of freedom in those two “formerly Protestant” countries. One cannot fully and correctly understand the past five centuries of European history without looking at that history through the “lens” of the Reformation/Counter-Reformation, and through the “lens” of the Vatican’s efforts to bring England back under Papal control. The ground that the Vatican lost because of the witnessing of Bible-believing Waldenses (Vaudois) and Albigenses, French Huguenots, Protestant Bohemians, etc., (i.e., thousands of Catholics leaving the Roman Catholic Church, with accompanying loss of financial support), it quickly made up through the annihilation of an entire population group (i.e., the Albigenses), through the near-extirmination of other population groups (e.g., the Protestant Bohemians), and through infiltration of governments, higher institutions of learning, publishing, and even Protestant denominations themselves! When mass murder, war, torture on a grand scale, etc., could not secure them total victory, they resorted to cunning and massive infiltration of their agents into all spheres of power or influence! When they failed to take England by frontal assault (culminating in the Spanish Armada’s attempted invasion in 1588) in order to bring England back under papal authority, they then later succeeded through infiltration (taking over the banking, publishing, BBC, tract societies, etc.). When they failed to take America by frontal assault (e.g., fomenting the American Civil War of 1861-65), they then later succeeded through infiltration via their “agents” (powerful members of Opus Dei, Jesuit “temporal coadjutors”, top-level Knights of Malta and Knights of Columbus, etc.). If you doubt any of this, please read F. Tupper Saussy’s book Rulers of Evil where he NAMES all the top-level Roman Catholics in the Reagan Administration and afterwards too! (Saussy documents how powerful Roman Catholics have held just about every key position of power on the most important Congressional committees for several decades!)

Texe has mentioned the problem of “dual loyalties” – always in the context of dual U.S.-Israeli citizenship. I agree that no one who is an American citizen should hold dual citizenship. But why doesn’t Texe ever talk about the “dual loyalty” of powerful Roman Catholic Knights of Malta and Knights of Columbus who hold many power positions within the U.S. government and in our intelligence agencies? After all, many of these top-level Catholics (Jesuit-trained men, “temporal coadjutors”, men in the Knights of Malta & Columbus, and Opus Dei) have a much GREATER loyalty to the Pope than they do to the U.S. Constitution and the American people. World War II proved the folly and great danger of this “dual loyalty” by high-level Catholics in countries like France, Yugoslavia, Slovakia, Croatia, etc., where small groups of powerful Catholic men BETRAYED their countries into the hands of their Nazi and Fascist occupiers – even revealing to the enemy the locations of ammunition and weapons!

Shouldn’t these powerful American Catholic men (from the Knights of Malta, Knights of Columbus, Opus Dei, etc.), who have such “dual loyalties” in America, also be forbidden to hold positions in our government and in our intelligence agencies and in the Pentagon? Aren’t they a “dagger” pointed at the heart of our religious liberty? Where will their loyalties lie when we go under total full-blown martial law? Will it be to the American people and our Constitution, OR will it be to the [White] Pope and to the “Black Pope” (i.e., the Jesuit Superior General who controls the Jesuits, Knights of Malta, and top levels of Freemasonry)? Surely inquiring minds would like to know! After all, can we really afford to hope it will be different here in America than it was in many countries in Europe during WWII when powerful Catholic leaders and military men BETRAYED their countrymen, siding with the forces of Fascism and Nazism? Why should it be different here? Have you ever read the horrible oaths taken by 4th degree and higher Jesuits and Knights of Columbus? Has the Vatican really changed? Does it now truly love all the “separated brethren”? Or could it all be a ruse? Can we afford to “bet” our children’s and grandchildren’s futures on the flimsy hope that the Vatican has really changed? After all, it has been throughout its history a mass torturer and mass murderer of God’s true saints. The Office of Inquisition still exists! The Vatican (Papacy) still plans to be the head of the one world religion while also being the “power behind the throne” in a one-world government.

If anyone thinks this all sounds “discriminatory” against Roman Catholics, then they should consider this following quote from prolific writer and author Avro Manhattan:

“To talk about [Roman] Catholic ‘fifth columnists’ sounds discriminatory. Yet, one generation ago, Catholic minorities helped to destroy democratic Europe. This they did by cooperating with Hitler.

...Again, who were gathered inside the ‘Trojan Horses’ to help Hitler topple the political and, yes, even the military structures of Belgium and France? Once more we find individual [Roman] Catholic leaders or [Roman] Catholic groups intimately connected with the hierarchies and therefore, with the Vatican and Pope Pius XII.

...In France, we meet a Papal knight, Pierre Laval; a Jesuit-trained general, Weygand; and another prominent Catholic, Marshal Petain. ...If active Catholic minorities contributed to the disintegration of European democracy, an active Catholic minority could do the same in the United States.” (From his book The Vatican Moscow Washington Alliance)

Have we all so quickly forgotten the lessons of the periods of Roman Catholic Inquisition, where slow torture was applied to hundreds of thousands (including women), and where thousands of people were burned (often slowly – i.e., roasted) at the stake? Have we so quickly forgotten about The Thirty Years’ War? Have we so quickly forgotten about the extermination of the Albigensian Christians in southern France? Have we so quickly forgotten the martyrs in England burned at the stake under the rule of Bloody Queen Mary? (Don’t the names of Latimer, Ridley, and Hughes mean anything to us any longer?) Have we so quickly forgotten the slaughter of the French Huguenots in 1572, or the slaughter of Irish Protestants in 1641? Have we so quickly forgotten the near extermination of the Protestant Bohemians? Have we so quickly forgotten that the Vatican carried out a major religious genocide as recently as the 1940s in Croatia, where the Catholic Church and a Fascist State (headed by fervent Catholics) teamed up to torture, butcher, and murder from 600,000 to one million innocent Serb Orthodox Christian men, women, elderly and children? ((Children were impaled alive on stakes; women and young girls brutally ravished, raped, and mutilated; Orthodox priests crucified to wooden doors; forced conversions with throats being cut afterwards; eyes cut out of victims for necklaces; men, women, and children were buried alive, burned alive, and flayed alive; etc.)) This mayhem was planned, orchestrated, and often led by Catholic clergy – mainly Franciscan priests, monks, and friars, but also including high-level Jesuits at the top of the “genocide pyramid”, such as Monsignor Ivan Saric, Archbishop of Sarajevo, and Archbishop Stepinac of Zagreb. Have we so quickly forgotten that in South Vietnam in the 1960s three fanatical Roman Catholic leaders (the president, the head of security forces, and the Archbishop of Hue) launched horrendous religious persecution against the majority Buddhists? ((I believe I sent you and Texe a copy of Avro Manhattan’s book The Vatican’s Holocaust. Please just look through that book at the pictures of both the monsters (many of whom were Catholic prelates) who carried out that horrible religious genocide in Croatia in the 1940s, and of the poor innocent victims. Remember, this monstrous religious genocide was planned, choreographed, and led by Roman Catholic priests, friars, and monks! Hopefully, you and Texe will also read this book – because a similar religious genocide might be coming soon to a neighborhood near us all!))

The Roman Catholic Church has NOT changed on its fundamental beliefs, despite its rhetoric. One needs merely to read the pronouncements of Vatican I and Vatican II. They did not repudiate any of the horrible “anathemas” from the Council of Trent (1545-63) that were hurled against Bible-believing Christians! If you haven’t yet read Dave Hunt’s excellent book, A Woman Rides the Beast, I beg you to do so! The whole ecumenical movement is designed to bring all non-Catholic Christians under the “umbrella” (i.e., control) of the PAPACY!

Earlier in this letter I mentioned the American Free Press (AFP), Michael Collins Piper, and Colonel Donn de Grand Pré. (I noticed that Texe gives “credit” to Donn de Grand Pré in his book Codex Magica.) Here are my strong reservations concerning the aforementioned:

(1) The American Free Press (AFP): I used to subscribe to the AFP (the old “Spotlight”) for a number of years. However, I began to become concerned with their “over-emphasis” on Israel, Zionism, AIPAC, ADL, etc. The AFP, however, never seemed to mention at all the tremendous power and influence of the Jesuits, Opus Dei, Knights of Malta, or the tremendous power and influence of the Vatican right here in the USA! Why is this so? The AFP also pushes Michael Collins Piper’s books. (See Item #2 for information on Piper.) The two final “straws” that caused me to cancel my subscription to the AFP were:

The AFP did a nasty “hit piece/ad hominem attack” on the authors of two excellent books exposing the Jesuits (i.e., F. Tupper Saussy – his book Rulers of Evil; and Eric Jon Phelps – his book Vatican Assassins). (A copy of this “hit piece” is enclosed.) I have both of these books – and they are scholarly, well researched books – and heavily footnoted. Why would the AFP ignore tons and tons of historical evidence and conclude that the Jesuits are basically “nobodies” in the geopolitical-financial-religious arena? Years ago the AFP ran an article about the KAL 007 shootdown. It claimed to have an anonymous source in “intelligence” that stated that all the people aboard the KAL 007 aircraft (including Congressman Larry McDonald) died – that there was no conspiracy – and that was the “end of the story”. Really? Why would the AFP run such a story, when there is a lot of evidence to the contrary? Congressman Larry McDonald was a real “thorn” in the side of the New World Order. Dr. Stanley Monteith of Radio Liberty carries a book entitled Rescue 007 by Bert Schlossberg, plus some audiotapes on this subject. Suffice it to say, there’s a lot more to this “story” than the AFP admits!

I have been told that the top editors at the AFP (old Spotlight) are Roman Catholic. Could it be a remote possibility that the AFP shines the “spotlight” on Israel, the Mossad, Zionism, etc., (and other groups such as the Bilderbergers) to keep folks (who look to the alternative media for “truth”) from finding out about the REAL powers “behind the scenes” – i.e., Opus Dei, the Jesuits, Knights of Malta, the Vatican State itself, etc.?

(2) Michael Collins Piper: This man is closely tied to the AFP. Piper’s book Final Judgment, which is supposed to be the final word on the JFK assassination, names many key players with likely involvement in the assassination (or subsequent cover-up), such as Clay Shaw and James Jesus Angleton – yet fails to mention that these men were Knights of Malta. The book also contains references to such men as General Alexander Haig, and CIA Directors William Casey and John McCone – yet fails to mention that these men also were Knights of Malta. Is Piper merely ignorant of this interesting fact, or is he shining the “spotlight” on the Mossad, Israel, etc., in order to keep the “spotlight” off “so many Knights of Malta being around the JFK assassination & cover-up”? Piper also puts a lot of emphasis on Meyer Lansky (a Jew), as if this guy were actually one of the most powerful men – or possibly the most powerful man – in the Mob. Other books, such as Double Cross, tell a much different “story” – i.e., that men like Sam Giancana and others were the top men in the Mafia (the Mob) – men who were Roman Catholic.

((To the best of my knowledge, most of the (Italian) Mafioso chiefs are Roman Catholics, and there has been a strong connection established between the CIA, the (Italian) Mafia, the Vatican, and drug laundering by big banks. (Please read the book Double Cross – I think I sent you a copy; if not, it can be ordered from Radio Liberty.))

Piper also puts a lot of emphasis on the fact that CIA Counterintelligence Chief James Jesus Angleton manned the Israel Desk at the CIA, but fails to tell us that Angleton also manned the Vatican Desk at the CIA. Do we begin to see a pattern here by Piper concerning the JFK assassination? The pattern is: focusing the blame on the Mossad, Israel, etc., while totally (and deliberately?) ignoring the many Roman Catholic Knights of Malta all over the landscape?

(3) Colonel Donn de Grand Pré: This man has written at least three books (i.e., the series is called “Barbarians Inside the Gate”). Like some others in the “alternative media”, he fingers various Jews, Bolsheviks, Communists, Zionists, etc., but does not finger the much more powerful forces “behind the scenes”, e.g., the Vatican, Jesuits, Opus Dei, Knights of Malta, etc. I also heard an interview of this man on short wave radio, where he made an astounding statement. The Colonel said that a military coup (in the USA) was possible, and that most of the U.S. military “top brass” were against the New World Order. As someone who served 20 years in the military (and who follows current events), I can tell you that I strongly disagree with this statement. Most of the very top military brass are put into the most powerful military positions because they belong to the New World Order, NOT because they are against it. Some of the top brass are even members of the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR). (Admiral Chester Ward was a CFR member who later repudiated his membership.) Bottom line: Could Colonel Donn de Grand Pré have been trying to “flush out” patriotic military officers at the O-5 and O-6 levels (Lt. Colonel and full Colonel) with such a statement that most of the “top brass” were against the New World Order, and that a military coup might be in the works? Surely inquiring minds would like to know? I have also heard that Colonel Donn de Grand Pré is Roman Catholic.

Could it be that sources such as the three mentioned above are feeding Texe information designed to get him focusing on the “two growling Chihuahuas” (“the Jews and Israel) so he won’t notice, for the most part, the more powerful “ten Romish tigers” (Vatican, Jesuits, Opus Dei, Knights of Malta, etc.) that are really controlling and orchestrating things from “behind the scenes”? Are these sources trying to shield the Vatican, Jesuits, Opus Dei, and Knights (of Malta and Columbus), etc., BY FOCUSING THE “SPOTLIGHT” on the Jews and Israel?

Texe has stated on several occasions that Stalin was a “half-Jew”. Yet why doesn’t Texe state the fact that Stalin, and his friend Roman Catholic Cardinal Gregory Agagianian (who helped Stalin run the Soviet gulag system), were both trained at the JESUIT seminary in Tiflis, Soviet Georgia – or, that Stalin’s top intelligence man was a Knight of Malta named Prince Anton Turkul who used Jesuits for his couriers during World War II? Why doesn’t Texe mention the fact that the men in charge of U.S. and Nazi intelligence were both also Knights of Malta (William Donovan and General Reinhard Gehlen, respectively)? I believe that Texe has also mentioned that Adam Weishaupt was a Jew, yet Texe has not, to the best of my knowledge, emphasized that (1) Adam Weishaupt was JESUIT-trained and raised, and that he taught Roman Catholic Canon Law at JESUIT Ingolstadt College in Bavaria; and (2) Weishaupt PRETENDED to leave the Jesuit Order in order to set up a FRONT organization called the Illuminati, so that the front organization would take the blame for the French Revolution rather than the Jesuits. (Oh, Wanda, if you have not done so, please read my four TTT newsletters on the Jesuits – they are on the two web sites mentioned at the beginning of this letter. According to Edmund Paris, the Vatican and her Jesuits were responsible for fomenting both World War I and World War II.)

The Jesuits love to use Jews as “front men” in positions such as the head of the Federal Reserve – so that many people will buy the line that the conspiracy is “Jewish”. But a study of history shows clearly that many of the top bankers are Gentiles (including a number of Knights of Malta), and the Vatican-CIA-Mafia (three-headed) Monster is the most powerful player on the geopolitical chessboard – and that they were the real folks behind the assassination of JFK. Please consider the following quote by Dr. Stanley Monteith, host of “Radio Liberty” broadcast:

“He [Ed. Note: Professor Carroll Quigley, author of the book Tragedy and Hope] tells us how banking influences what is going on, because all these organizations [i.e., covert organizations and secret societies] tie into banking – and the secret organizations tie into Lazard Brothers [i.e., Lazard Freres]. And, of course, most people think that [i.e., Lazard Brothers] is a Jewish organization. It is not Jewish at all. They push forward the Jewish bankers to conceal what these people are really doing. And, of course, we could go back in history, and we would find that the same forces that were tied into this group were instrumental in creating the 'Protocols [of Zion]', which were instrumental for the vicious persecution of Jews in both Russia and Germany. And the Jews have been pushed forward to be the scapegoats while people never were allowed to know who was really running things behind the scenes.

So, let's listen to what Professor Carroll Quigley says about international finance, which, incidentally, is NOT Jewish." (12-29-1994)

Texe did a 2-part program on the book of Esther not too long ago. I – and my friend Lisa Ruby (author of God's Wrath on Left Behind; Ph: [listed in original letter]) – both got some very bad "vibes" from Texe's prophetic slant on this book, and the almost "anti-Jewish" tone throughout. I wrote Texe a several-page letter stating my concerns on this particular topic. I have read the book of Esther numerous times (at least 12 or 13 times), and I never got the "negative" impressions of Queen Esther and Mordecai that Texe presented! (And I still don't!)

My main concern, Wanda, is that Texe is being fed a lot of material – such as the Protocols of Zion, Michael Collins Piper's books, Donn de Grand Pré's books, etc., that use the Jews, Zionists, etc., as scapegoats, while shielding/protecting the more powerful forces operating "behind the scenes". I believe that through his promotion of these materials, Texe is actually aiding and abetting those more powerful forces "behind the scenes" by helping keep the "spotlight" on the Jews, Zionists, etc.! Somebody is very wrong on this issue, and somebody is right. I believe that Texe ought to debate Eric Jon Phelps, or Pastor Bill Hughes, or myself on a "Power of Prophecy" broadcast. ((If you desire, I will pay the cost of that particular broadcast.))

Texe has taken the time to name various Hollywood starlets who are into the Cabbala. I say: So what! I am not worried about several Hollywood starlets coming to my home and putting me on a rack; however, I am worried about a religious institution that has a history of Inquisition, mass torture, and mass murder via religious genocide (as recently as the 1940s in Croatia – where they tortured, raped, butchered, crucified, buried alive, burned alive, flayed alive, etc., from 600,000 to 1 million innocent Serb Orthodox men, women, elderly, and children)! Yes, this institution still has an Office of Inquisition, and it is very powerful in the USA. Shouldn't we be a little more concerned about this "institution" that has a well-documented and proven track record of vicious torture and religious genocide, of fomenting wars and revolutions, of assassinating heads of State, and of undermining government

Are there powerful Jews in the New World Order? Of course there are some; however, the Vatican appears to be the most powerful player. And the Vatican does most of her nefarious activities "behind the scenes"! And she loves to use Jews as "front men" – and "scapegoats"!

I would like to hear from either you or Texe after you've both read this letter. If I am wrong in anything I've written, please tell me. (PH: [listed in original]) I pray that we will all be lead to the truth in this matter. God bless, protect, and guide you all at "Power of Prophecy"!

In Christ's love,

Darryl Eberhart

What a load of truthful info!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

CRAIG-OXLEY - April 17, 2006 03:10 PM (GMT)

Yes that was a good article which I've spread of course :lol:

Alexandra - April 17, 2006 04:09 PM (GMT)

I have the same issue with Marrs' interpretation of the Book of Esther. I read through that book and searched carefully. I don't know where Marrs is getting his "interpretation" of Esther from, but it's sure not the Bible!

So now I know it's not just me!

smashstuff - April 19, 2006 10:37 AM (GMT)

That's a very decent letter. My big problem with Texe Marrs' book Codex Magica was the rampant anti-Jewish slant. Every other picture was accompanied by Jewish this, Jewish that. Pathetic. There is no mention in the book if a person is white about what race they are, But if they're jewish or black, you bet it gets mentioned.

He even says Michael Moore is Jewish! When did this happen to Irish American Moore? Oh, and Charlie Chaplin was apparently born to Jewish parents. Have a look on the net and try and find anything about his jewish heritage, I bet you can't. It's non existent. Apparently, If you are 1/1000th part jewish, that's all Texe needs to label you a 'jew', so long as it fits in with his agenda of Zionism and Jewish Cabbalists are behind everything crap.

How old and boring is the same old 'the Jews are behind everything' garbage? This doesn't help anyone, it keeps people going round in circles, not knowing who the REAL enemy actually is.

Alexandra - April 19, 2006 11:17 AM (GMT)

I actually get this guy's newsletters, and you're right, Smashstuff, he blames everything on the Jews. He claims that they corrupted the Catholic church, never mind that it was corrupt from the get-go!

What happened with the Catholic church was that people were reading the Bible and the pope's power was in danger...so enter Ignatius and his gang of thugs.

I would say that Talmudism is to Judaism what Catholicism is to Christianity--counterfeits.

JagDRS - April 19, 2006 03:47 PM (GMT)

Unless I'm mistaken, Marrs and Saussy (F. Tupper?) were identified by someone on this forum as coadjutors. I don't recall who but this is not important to me; neither is the accuracy of this statement as far as I can see, but I do remember it being said here. Far as Im concerned, my path has taken me to a point that I've learned to start off assuming everyone is a coadjutor, then let time and the evidence that piles up prove this assumption correct or not. Information, no matter who it comes from, should be taken in with caution as being comprised of part truth, part lie intended to hook one into a particular agenda. As for coadjutors, they are regularly touted as providing a 90/10 ratio in their works. Be this as it may, it seems the person who wrote the letters to Texe and his wife (the ones that formed the basis of this thread's origins) did go out of her way to repeatedly and courteously suggest Texe consider the Jesuit angle in his views. Maybe this suggests that Texe is not really a coadjutor, but is just another partly ill-informed person like the most of us?

Another refrain that is starting to become familiar by it's repetitiveness; the warning to beware of somebody's views when that somebody takes a mostly anti-Jewish approach in blaming the zionist sionist jews as the grand conspirators when there is so much evidence suggesting this ruse is actually part of the Jesuit conspiracy and it's the Jesuits who are the grand controlers. To me, it's become clear that there is a very good and justifiable reason why zionist/sionist jews are so easy to come under the crosshairs of conspiracy students as the masters of the grand conspiracy; they are the ones most visible in all of this. The part that I don't get is, why are the zionist/sionist jews so willing and seemingly content to play the part of "most visible front-men" for the Jesuits? Is it because they've been convinced that they will hold a high place in the subsequent Jesuit controlled one world order? One cannot deny zionist/sionist control in various institutions - politics, banking, medicine, media, but again, if they came to these lofty positions only by way of being stooges to the Jesuit, why are they so content to hang around in these positions? I guess another way of asking this is, do they not know they are mere stooges? Seems to me the obvious answer would have to be "yes", but then again, when one is enmeshed in money and power, perhaps one does not notice OR notice but not care that they are only a tool/puppet of some higher authority. The question is worth repeating - do they not know they are stooges? To claim that they are not just seems to convenient in all of this.

Lastly, as to the "when did michale moore become a Jew?", this too is a repeating theme from within the murky grand conspiracy. The thing that seems to help muddle this kind of claim/question is the rather loose vocabulary and definitions people have when they use the term "Jew". To me it is one of the more blurred and oft-exploited terms. I suspect this may be something that makes the think-tankster people, like the chumps at ADL, quite pleased with all the confusion that results. With the two main variables in play - one's ethnicity (the blood in their veins), and ones religious faith, at least three distinct denominations of Jew can result: people of Jewish blood who also maintain Jewish religious faith; people of Jewish blood who follow some othe religious faith, like....oh.... i dunno.....SATAN, perhaps... ? (think Dana Carvey :lol: ; people not of Jewish blood who follow the Jewish faith. So, what does anyone really mean when they use the term "Jew" ?. Is Moore claiming blood, faith or both? On the other hand, if I say "I'm a christian", this does not say one thing about my ethnicity. People may assume I'm a gentile, and people may well be wrong for this assumption, I could just as easily be a black, hispanic, or even perhaps of Jewish blood or any one of the other bloodlines that makes up all of mankind. How is it that Jews came by this dual-nature denomination? It really seems to be the source of much confusion.

Back to the grand conspiracy, there are various themes that seems to repeat often by the front men most visibly controlling our world. History says that many of them came from Jewish blood. History also says that many others of them did not, yet they ended up choosing the Jewish faith. What's up with that?

Subject: Challenge to Texe Marrs

http://tacklingthetoughtopics.net/Eberhart..._challenge.html

Hello,

If you are interested in the topic of Texe Marrs please read above piece very carefully. (Texe Marrs started to blame the "Jews" during the past few years for soon everything. Yes, there are powerful dark NWO-Jews. But the NWO is far more than Jewish alone).

I found above link here: <http://libertytothecaptives.net/> a site I personally recommend.

My personal believe in this matter is that the Final False Prophet will be most probably the Last Pope and the Final AntiChrist (the Beast) will come from the 13th Illuminati Satanic Bloodline, which are the European Royal Houses. And the top of the European monarchies is the Royal House of England. The queen will be tomorrow on 21th April 2006 80 years old. Her shadow king is Prince Charles of Wales who equals in Hebrew and English according to the "socalled cabbalistic" system to 666. ELIZABETH II equals to 666 in computer ASCII-Code. More you find at www.prophecyhouse.com and www.womensgroup.org. Two very well and documented researchers. And make no mistake: The Vatican and the House of Windsor are cooperating and even trying to melt the Anglican faith with the Roman Catholic

<http://www.royal.gov.uk/output/Page5029.asp>

Queen Elizabeth II is becoming 80 years old tomorrow:

On 6/6-06 Birthday souvenir album from the Royal Collection is released.

It costs 9,99 English pounds and it is released on 6/6-06 (=6.6.6).

ELIZABETH II in ASCII-Code 666.

Find out more about the queens celebration at <http://www.royal.gov.uk/output/Page4825.asp>

Regards

Martin Lauchenauer

I think www.cloakanddagger.de is right they are blaming the "Queen" (= Anglo/American Establishment) and the Jesuits for many of the ills on this planet (others as well).

Pizza King Founds Opus Dei Swinging Singles Dating Site

by Troutfishing

Wed May 24, 2006 at 07:36:54 AM PDT

<http://www.dailykos.com/storyonly/2006/5/24/103654/504>

I was talking to Frederick Clarkson yesterday, and over our lunch of smoked turkey-wraps I mentioned that I'd come across what seemed to be an Opus Dei dating website.

"You're %$#%$# kidding, right ?" Fred burst out.

"No, really, I'm pretty sure....."

So, today I checked it out. Yup.

QUOTE

It is the goal of Ave Maria Singles™ to be an instrument of Jesus Christ used to bring hope to single Catholics who are serious about their faith, loyal to the Pope and Magisterium, and seek to meet their future spouse who shares their convictions.

We have had over 200 successful marriages thus far, a powerful testimony to God's power at work through this site as an instrument of His Holy Spirit.

Troutfishing's diary :: ::

QUOTE

"I had been seeking to find a way to bring serious single Catholics together for a long time. Contributing to the growth of Ave Maria Singles through the Ave Maria Foundation was my opportunity to do that. I look forward to seeing it grow in great numbers all around the world with many marriages, children and holy Catholic families established." - Tom Monaghan, Founder of Domino's Pizza

Now, this isn't an 'official' Opus Dei Catholic Singles site, but take a look at who the site lists in it's "Prominent Catholics Appreciate the Ave Maria Singles Website!" page - number two there is one of Opus Dei's top leaders in the US [see article by Frank Coccozzelli] figure, Rev. C. John McCloskey. His blurb informs us:

QUOTE

He has personally advised many of his spiritual directees to join. (6) have met their spouse here. "This service is providing an ideal setting for serious Catholics to search for... and find their spouse for life. Together with their children they will build 'the civilization of love and truth' in the next millennium."
Prominent Catholics Love the Ave Maria Singles Website!

A top Opus Dei leader loves the service and sends his acolytes there - OK, it's not called the "Opus Dei" singles site or "Opus Singles get it on in a Godly Way" or whatever. But it's highly unlikely Dei would ever attach its name to such a site - Opus Dei's name is - too many - sketchy. It would amount to bad PR. (what's Opus Dei ? Check out Frank Coccozzelli's ongoing series, at Talk To Action, on the Catholic right)

So, what's my point if not to mock this ?

My point is NOT to poke fun at this, nor will you find any salacious material in the hundreds of testimonials on "AveMaria Singles" although if you find long courtship narratives involving lots of prayer in and out of church, and marriage proposals involving beds of rose petals (you get the picture) erotic, well this is for you.

Anyway, I'm here not to mock but to praise.... the tactic.

You see, Tom Monaghan is funding this for a very good reason : it preserves and concentrates the Opus Dei ideology. Lately there's been a reassessment, by genetcists, of the reproductive perils of cousin marriages, and it turns out there are benefits as well as risks. One main benefet is the concentration of potentially desirable genetic traits.

In this case, Monaghan is encouraging the concentration of Opus Dei-ness, lest that ideological stock get watered down as Opus devotees, in desparation, turn to non-Opus members for marriage.

But here's my main point: Monaghan has his beliefs. He puts money behind them.

There's one thing the religious and Christian right get : they support their own.

Now, the reason Fred Clarkson and I founded Talk To Action was mainly this :

People with a deep knowledge of the Christian right have on the whole, for decades, been marginalized. There are endless reasons for that but the phenomenon is quite pervasive - it's as manifest here on the Daily Kos as it is within the Democratic Party : why doesn't a guy such as Fred Clarkson - whose groundbreaking contributions in researching the Christian right get routinely cited by the latest books on the Christian right - by Michelle Goldberg, Kevin Phillips, and countless others - get a voice on the top Democratic progressive website in the US ?

There's something pervasive going on here. Yes, there are immediate politics and no, I won't go into details.

But beyond those, there's something more profound at work. Last week, I wrote a diary called "EZ guide to making a difference: how to fight the Christian right and get laid too", [the "EZ" part and the "getting laid" part were disingenuous for the most part although somebody did hit on me once at a theocracy conference for my vague resemblance to Jeff Sharlet]

In the diary, I wrote this :

QUOTE

At the time, I knew I had an awful lot to learn on the (vast) subject of the Christian and religious right. So, I found a relevant professional in the field to partner with. Frederick Clarkson had been studying and writing on the intersection of religion and politics for several decades.

Oddly, even though I didn't grasp it at the time, at that point I was ahead of most of the leaders of the American left in that I had recognized that knowledge of the Christian right, Christian nationalism, Dominionism, Christian Reconstructionism, and so on is a professional specialization : on the Christian right there are thousands of organizations and hundreds of sects and faith group, para-faith groups, associations, businesses, media empires....On and on. It seems endless.

[How could newcomers to the field imagine suddenly getting any useful bearing ? Home brain surgery is possible, sure, but not desirable - there is a body of relevant knowledge, and that is so concerning the Christian and religious right.]

Now, here on the DailyKos there's been a fantastic proliferation of diaries on the Christian right, Dominionism, Reconsructionism, on and on and on. But, there's just not much - and not much that's deeply informed - on the front page. For me to say that will not be well received. So be it, I'm a persona non grata on that count anyway. The funny thing is that the dKos community of diarists seems far more aware of the Christian right than the blog leadership..... but - to be perfectly fair - that's exactly where the Democratic Party is at too : the DNC is sidling up to the Christian right, making overtures, in hopes of skimming the Evangelical vote.

But, professional expertise on the subject is elsewhere. Now, there's something to the homespun nature of bog punditry, yeah, and I prefer it often to punditry emanating (or oozing) from the NYT and the mainline media.

But, politics is complex, and religion is way complex. Now, try combining the two. There are indeed things to learn. Really.

Or, if not - here's an electric power drill and a chisel. Have fun with your home brain surgery ! - I'm off to enjoy the beautiful sunny spring day.

Bye for now.

Title: Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor Robert Spencer

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 24, 2006 01:08 AM (GMT)

Dear Brother Eric,

Roman Catholic Robert Spencer on his website "Jihad Watch" responded in jest and mockery to my statement that he is indeed a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor.

<http://www.jihadwatch.org/archives/011427.php>

Here is some info on this tool of the Order <http://jihadwatch.org/spencer/>

I provided evidence which I presented to make my case.

http://z13.invisionfree.com/THE_UNHIVED_MI...?showtopic=7688

My name on the Unhived Mind is AVBibleBeliever but I sign my actual name at the end of each post. Coadjutor Spencer did not give a rebuttal or response to any of significant points I made. In his post on his own website he only mentioned one of the points I made that he has been a guest on Jesuit-trained G. Gordon Liddy's radio show.

Here is the evidence I posted on the Unhived Mind in three replies

Posted April 4 2006

Indeed, Spencer is a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor fomenting hatred for all Muslims and his hateful rhetoric calls (when you read between the lines) for their eradication and genocide. I read up on Spencer-I thought he was Jewish initially but I checked out his webpage and learned that he actually is a Roman Catholic and denies he is a member of Opus Dei in this questionnaire.

<http://jihadwatch.org/spencer/>

It is interesting you brought Spencer up because he will be speaking on my college campus tonight sponsored by its "Camels for Israel" aka Zionists of America chapter hence Spencer has the support of the Masonic Jewish Zionists of the Zionist Organization of America which recently awarded U.S. UN Ambassador CFR John Bolton with a "Friend of [the Masonic Talmudic Jesuit-controlled Zionist government] Israel" Award, he also has that the Masonic B'nai Brith and their Anti-Defamation League (ADL). Spencer has been a guest on Vatican Radio and Jesuit-trained G. Gordon Liddy's radio show as well so he is a Papist who knows what he is doing and through propagating lies he is promoting the present Papal Crusade in the Middle East. Muslims are to this century what the Communists were in the last century in the minds of these Jesuit Temporal Coadjutors, Republican Fascists, and Democratic Communists like Jesuit-trained Patrick Leahy, Richard (Dick) Durbin, Illuminatus and witch sodomite Hillary Rodham Clinton etc. Muslims in general and not the Masonic Islamic leaders are perceived as a threat that needs to be contained. The language now used to describe what the fascist New Religious [Luciferian] Right Republican Party call "islamo-fascism" and the action that is encouraged is identical to the language employed to describe the Vietcong and the Vietnamese-different name but same line. Spencer is aiding in the spread of hate for all Arabs in general so Americans will be infuriated by hearing what some [another way of saying they, the perceived and created enemy] don't want you to hear-that's the bait that is meant to bring people to this talk. I might go just to take notes and report back to you about what he said. Thank you Mark for exposing Robert Spencer and pointing him out as the Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor he most certainly, definitely is.

Brother Nicholas N. Rivera

Posted April 8 2006

Robert Spencer spoke on my college campus (Connecticut College) and he deliberately deemphasized and belittled Wahhabism. Spencer said that Wahhabism has been blamed unfairly and to do so is a misapprehension (Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor Spencer loves that word) he must have used it 3-5 times during his lecture on "The Jihad Threat" and during the Q&A afterwards. Spencer was arrogant, sarcastic, and did not have respect for his audience and those who had questions and comments. I thought about asking him about his relationship to the Jesuits. I didn't but I after the fact I wish I had. I wasn't prepared at the time to engage in a debate with him. Roman Catholic Robert Spencer is a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor based on the following facts.

1. The foreword of one of the books Coadjutor Spencer co-authored was written by a Jesuit Mitch Pacwa S.J.

2. Mark Brewer (he started the post on "The Unhived Mind" and I replied about three times to the thread) pointed out that Spencer falsely claims that Papal Antichrist Benedict XVI opposes Islam which is ludicrous. Islam is a creation of the Roman Catholic Church. I argue that it is nothing more than Arab-centric Romanism. Islam teaches purgatory, believes in saints, in Fatima, that the Pope is the vicegerent/Vicar of Jesus the prophet, uses prayer beads, etc. Islam serves the ends of the Papacy and the purpose for its creation was for the Arabs to do the bidding of Rome (capture Jerusalem) but not know it.

3. In this article coadjutor Spencer mentions and quotes from "Civiltà Cattolica" which he calls a "semi-official Jesuit magazine"

<http://www.frontpagemag.com/Articles/ReadArticle.asp?ID=10582>

The Vatican's New Realism about Islam

4. Spencer has been on Vatican Radio.

5. During the Q&A a student mentioned "Christian Identity" (which is a cult and not Biblically Christian at all) and the Inquisition.

Coadjutor Spencer said that system (the Inquisition) has not been active for centuries or something to that effect. Spencer is wrong. The Unholy Office of the Inquisition now the Congregation for the Doctrine of the (Romanist) Faith (cult) is very much in operation under the guise of Jesuit Medica which is war on everyone through allopathic poison and deadly vaccinations and foreign wars which the Jesuits use to punish and extirpate "heretics" according to the Council of Trent. The U.S. has been the tool of the Order to fulfill their bloody oath.

There is more evidence to be uncovered I'm sure that shows Robert Spencer is indeed a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor fomenting fury against the Muslim peoples and calling for their destruction in this present Papal Crusade in the Middle East.

Brother Nick Rivera

Mark Brewer - May 24, 2006 03:44 AM (GMT)

That is the first time someone outside of this message board has responded to one of my exposés. Spencer did not even respond to my criticism of him, which is his claim that Benedict XVI opposes jihad. There is much that Spencer says that I have no problem with. Craig Winn, who has done some of the best research on Islam, had similar problems with Spencer in the past.

A priest orchestrated the murder of an Italian-born Roman Catholic bishop to gain control of church funds, said prosecutors at the trial of six Kenyans.

The six, who deny the charge, are accused of killing 76-year-old Bishop Luigi Locati in Isiolo in July.

Prosecutor Jacob Ondari said that the Rev Guyo Wako Malley and his co-accused had confessed to the murder, but in August the suspects alleged in court that they had been tortured by police before being taken to a magistrate to confess to the murder.

Under Kenyan law, confessions in police custody are not admissible in court. The trial continues

Title: Church Libraries

Description: The hidden library at my local church

Hagbard Celine - February 24, 2006 11:23 PM (GMT)

I've not been to church for a few years, since I disowned my Catholic upbringing, but I remember something odd about what happened to me one day. The church is part of a Franciscan Friary and the minister taking the children's Liturgy decided to take the kids out into the friary garden (including my daughter) because it was a warm summer's day. On the way out we passed through the offices and a library, parts of the church not normally seen by the congregation. I stopped to look at the books on the library shelves and was surprised to find that as well as Christian theology books, there were books by atheist philosophers like Jean-Paul Satre and Karl Marx. That might be explainable because some of the friars were Seminary students on a philosophy course. However there were some books I couldn't see so well that looked quite occultish. This library wasn't exactly secret; as behind a locked door, but it was hidden away in a private part of the church. I wonder what the priests really know and really think about.

My brother is thinking of joining the priesthood; if he does I'll ask him for some more information.

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 24, 2006 11:53 PM (GMT)

How can anyone take Religion seriously when not one of them has the whole truth and parts are hidden.

Alexandra - February 25, 2006 03:11 AM (GMT)

2TUFF--The King James Bible is it. The Jesuits have tried to keep the Bible out of the hands of the people. Failing that, they made knock-offs--like the NIV, Moffatt, NLT, you name it. Then look at the ecumenical movement. Only a true Christian would avoid it like the plague.

That's why many of us here (such as Eric, Timothy, and I think Nick Rivera) are KJV-only.

It's going to come down between the Jesuits and their system, and the Bible believers who won't compromise. It won't only be a one-world government, but a one-world religion (most likely headed by Rome), and fundamentalist, Bible-believing Christians need not apply.

smashstuff - February 25, 2006 04:34 AM (GMT)

Whatever religion you follow, it's set up to be the opposite of something else. Catholicism v Protestantism/whatever other watered down Christianity, Judaism vs Islam, Mormons or Jehovah's. We need to free ourselves from all that crap. If the Bible was the REAL version, with all the books included, we would see the symbology and information a lot more easily, and find out where we come from and what we are doing here. The whole new testament is so obviously based on astronomy. The reason for the Inquisition wasn't to kill bible believers, but rather to rid the world of esoteric and occult knowledge. Exactly the same with the slaughter of Native Americans. The Vatican loves to store this stuff in it's vaults, and if they told the truth, they would be the first to tell you that Jesus is symbolic and not literal, never mind the fact that there's no record of any Jesus from the time, outside of the bible.

I've no reason to believe there were any Christians before Emperor Constantine. Why should we believe that he was throwing Christians to the Lions before he was 'converted' to Christ? I'm sure he was throwing someone to the lions, but I doubt it was Christians.

God knows why we should believe a bible just because it's authorised by a royal such as King James. There's still so much left out about our origins on earth and who we have been visited by that it's barely worth reading, plus the fact that the new testament is 100% hogwash/symbolism.

I'm not an atheist, I'm just fed up with religion which basically kills spirituality, whether organised or not.

Pope Leo X: 'What profit has not that fable of Christ brought us.'

AVBibleBeliever - February 25, 2006 08:04 AM (GMT)

I'm definitely KJV-only without apology or doubt! For the King James Bible is the Bible of the Protestant Reformation; the divinely inspired, infallible, and inerrant written word of God-the Hebrew Masoretic text and the Textus Receptus (Received Text) are preserved without error in the Authorized King James Bible of 1611. Think about this-there was a period in the history of the English language called the Jacobean Period.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Jacobean_period

According to Wikipedia, "The Jacobean era refers to a period in English history that coincides with the reign of James I (1603 – 1625). The Jacobean era succeeds the Elizabethan age and specifically denotes a style of architecture, visual arts, decorative arts, and literature that is predominant of that period.

In literature, some of Shakespeare's most powerful plays are written in that period (for example The Tempest) as well as those by John Webster and Ben Jonson. Ben Jonson also contributed to some of the era's best poetry, together with John Donne and the Cavalier poets. In prose, the most representative works are found in those of Francis Bacon and the King James Bible."

The name James is the equivalent of Jacob and God changed his name to Israel. The Bible says in Ecclesiastes 8:4, "Where the word of a king is, there is power." Now put it all together- The King James Bible is really the powerful Holy Books (Bible) of the King of Jacob or Israel which is the Lord Jesus Christ.

There is no power in the modern New Age bible perversions being none of them are the word of a king-earthy (James I) or heavenly (Jesus Christ) -the New King James Version is a counterfeit of the true AV1611. The inspired Hebrew Masoretic text and Textus Receptus which are preserved only in the AV1611 is only thing in this world that never changes while everything else around it does. The written words of God are the constant of history and we have them in the King James Bible of 1611.

There were Christians before Constantine's time.

Constantine issued his Edict of Tolerance (I think it was 313 AD). The catch was--it had to be HIS brand of Christianity (which evolved into Catholicism). Real Christians said no way...and they were thrown to the lions.

dp9 - February 25, 2006 10:33 PM (GMT)

I, too, am a KJV devotee. :)

Re: Christians before Constantine

For your consideration, see Foxe's Book of Martyrs, by John Foxe, 1563 (a Brit, btw, from Lincolnshire, an Oxford professor who had to resign when he became a Protestant and become a private tutor. When Queen Mary took the throne in 1553, Foxe and his family fled to the Continent, where he connected with John Knox, the founder of the Presbyterian church).

Tiberius was the Roman emperor at the time of Christ. Pontius Pilate, the Roman governor under the reign of Tiberius, was the man who tried Jesus. Herod was king of the Jews, a puppet king under Tiberius. Seutonius, the historian, writes in The Twelve Caesars (I have a copy in hand), wrote that Tiberius was stern an tyrannical, executing scores of people per day.

Following Tiberius was the infamous Caligula and the two Neros, Claudius and Domitius. Caligula believed himself to be a god and had statues made of himself to sit in the temples, including the temple in Jerusalem, which began the abomination of desolation prophecied in the Bible. He was so fierce it was said he wished all of Rome had one neck so he could kill everyone all at once. He was assasinated in his fourth year of reign and replaced by his son, Claudius. Claudius ruled for 13 years with relative peace, but was replaced by his son Domitius Nero, who ruled with a reign of terror for 14 years. He killed the entire order of knights. He killed his relatives, his wife, his teachers, and set fire to Rome while singing verses from Homer. He blamed the Christians (which Seutonius called in his historical document The Twelve Caesars, written about 100 AD, and kept in tact except for a few chapters about Julius, "a sect professing a new and mischievious religious belief") for the fires, and had them persecuted. Nero ended up killing himself.

The Roman emperors also persecuted the Jews, as witnessed by the destruction of the temple in Jerusalem in 70 AD, the taking of their lives, or condemning them to slavery. Almost all of the apostles were slain in one way or another, at the hand of the Roman emerors. Paul records numerous occasions where he excaped death or imprisonment. Peter, also, was imprisoned, and escaped by the hand of God.

Jerome (sainted by the Catholic Church), wrote that under Nero there was not one day save one that it was not recorded five thousand Christian martyrs. 5000 dead Christians per day in Rome during a 14 year reign of terror.

Ignasius, bishop of Antioch (these weren't Catholic bishops) was martyred in 110 AD by being thrown to wild beasts in Rome. Polycarp, bishop of Smyrna and the last disciple under the original apostles, was arrested when he was very old, taken to an arena, and was begged to recant. He said he was 86 years old and had served Christ for a long time, why should he revile Christ now? He shouts "I am a Christian!" and they burn him at the stake. Justin Martyr (100-166 AD), a philosopher, was beheaded with six other Christians. His last words were recorded: "We desire nothing more than to suffer for our Lord Jesus Christ; for this gives us salvation and joyfulness before His dreadful judgement seat."

Emperor Aurelius (161-180) decreed that Christians were to give up their property to any accuser. So people delivered Christians up to be tortured and killed right and left in order to win their property. Persecutions became universal. Christians were tortured in every way imaginable to get them to deny their faith. Then there was a break from persecution, except for a few years, for the next seventy years.

Emperor Decius (249-251) tried to destroy the Church as an organization. Again, there was persecution under Valerian. In 303 there began a great persecution which lasted nearly 10 years, under Diocletian and Galerius. Church buildings were destroyed. Bibles were burned. Christians were tortured in unmentionable ways, much worse than any of the original martyrs. These emperors were determined to wipe Christianity off the face of the earth. The Church was forced to go underground, into the catacombs under Rome. It wasn't until 311, with the imminent death of Galerius, that Christians were allowed to hold assemblies again. Constantine had already been proclaimed as emperor in 306.

I'll have to write about Constantine later.

That's right, bishop doesn't necessarily mean a Catholic bishop. A bishop is a Biblical office.

Amish have bishops too...they're basically in charge of whatever district.

(I live right near Amish country)

I might also add that today's royals are descended from the Roman emperors.

It's like the same tribe has ruled throughout history and done a westward migration. I've traced the line back to Judah (not through David btw) and in light of the Scripture that says that the sceptre shall not depart from Judah, it's pretty interesting.

That would explain why our presidents are of the same bloodline, when you think about it.

Constantine was my many-times-great-grandfather. Think Grandpa'd be ashamed of me? :lol:

QUOTE (smashstuff @ Feb 25 2006, 04:34 AM)

I'm not an atheist, I'm just fed up with religion which basically kills spirituality, whether organised or not.

Pope Leo X: 'What profit has not that fable of Christ brought us.'

I'm with you there! I believe that there is a Universal Consciousness that it is convenient to call "God", but religion has no idea who this consciousness is. As if, when someone asks: "What is the explanation for all the glory and wonder of the Universe?", you can just hand them a little book and just say "Read this"!

I'm not suggesting that a little parish church would have a book in its library entitled something along the lines of "Why The DaVinci Code is Real and Why We Mustn't Let the People Know." (If such a book exists then it will be locked away in a basement in the Vatican) But it just goes to show that there is one knowledge level for the priesthood and another for the congregation. Maybe that's where they got those books! They're the ones confiscated from the congregation!

I remember one day in church, during a discussion meeting, one of the lay ministers was talking about St Patrick. He said that before St Patrick came to Ireland the people there were savage, uncivilized pagans who worshipped idols. I challenged him on this during the meeting (after all, my daughter was in the room). I said that the pre-Christian Irish were Druids, and there is a lot of goodness and wisdom in the Druidic faith; some of my friends are Druids. He didn't know how to reply, but came up to me afterwards and said that he agreed with me. This disturbed me. If he agreed with me, then why did he preach what he did?

smashstuff - April 29, 2006 12:52 PM (GMT)

Yeah, the original Druids were knowledgeable spiritual people, and they were wiped out by the Roman Empire because of this. I believe the story of St. Patrick is symbolic of the purging of the druids in Ireland, such as banishing snakes from the land, the serpent was always used in history as a symbol of knowledge and wisdom, such as the snake that is used by the medical profession.

There a a series of novels set in 5th Century Ireland, about how the first Christian missionaries came to Ireland and tried to destroy the native religion. They are by Cashel Mor, an Australian writer with Irish ancestry. his books are fiction, but they are based on actual events.

The real St. Patrick was not a Catholic.

I wonder if there was such a person?

I don't really buy into the Judah/Royalty stuff. I think some people who advocate that want to believe justify their hatred of Jewish people and claim that even Jesus was Aryan. The Bible talked about Judah, but it really meant that David's seed (in reference to Jesus) is to be preserved. The verse is never describing Great Britian with peoples from Africa, Asia, America, continental Europe, and other places worldwide. Many Roman emperors were very related to the Latins (who aren't related to the Hebrews directly at all). By the late period of the Roman empire, when mercancies reigned, many Spanish, Illyricium, and other tribes were emperors as well. People who use genealogies to try to claim descent from the Hebrews in Europe, either use manipulated and false name or it is possible that the Hebrew descent is so minute in a span of centuries. The Askhenazi, Sephradic, Yemeni, Ethoipic, Turkic, Indic, etc. Hebrews are the real descedants of the Hebrew people not the Roman emperors. Also, Barbara Aho has been refuted on the Lost Ten Tribes lie. There were no Lost tribes since many of the 10 tribes like Asher lived in Israel during the time of Augustus. Real Hebrews exist now in Israel and we need to respect that. Even if some of the Royalty had Jewish ancestry, many of their actions don't represent the tenets of Moses or David. Not to mention all European royalty aren't homogeneous. To say that a blond haired, blue eyed man is Jesus Christ's original features is living in a dream world. Not to mention that some people (not all) who support this are racist supremacists. Many of them support the serpent seed lie. I'm really finished with this issue. I won't discuss it that much, because I'm getting angry and tired of some people trying to make everything European as holy, while degrading anything African or Asian for that matter. Like Mark Brewer, I don't agree with that stuff.

Here's another view:

From <http://www.imninalu.net/myths-brits.htm>

"Now the days of David drew near that he should die; and he charged Shlomo his son, saying, I am going the way of all the earth: be you strong therefore, and show yourself a man; and keep the charge of Adonay your G&sd, to walk in His ways, to keep His statutes, [and] His mitzvot, and His ordinances, and His testimonies, according to that which is written in the Torah of Mosheh, that you may prosper in all that you do, and wherever you turn yourself. That Adonay may establish His word which He spoke concerning me, saying, If your children take heed to their way, to walk before Me in truth with all their heart and with all their soul, there shall not fail you a man on the throne of Yisrael". (1Kings 2:1-4)

"Adonay has sworn to David in truth. He will not turn from it: 'I will set the fruit of your body on your throne. If your children will keep My Covenant, My testimony that I will teach them, their children also will sit on your throne forevermore'.". (Psalm 132:11-12)

Evidently, there were some conditions for the actual fulfilment of the promise that the throne would have been established forever: "keep the charge of Adonay your G&sd, to walk in His ways, to keep His statutes, [and] His mitzvot, and His ordinances, and His testimonies, according to that which is written in the Torah of Mosheh" , so "that Adonay may establish"; then it also says: "If your children will keep My Covenant, My testimony that I will teach them, their children also will sit on your throne forevermore " , it is clear that "if not" implies the contrary. What is more, in all the quoted verses, the promise of G&sd is always preceded by a "shall" or "will", that is, it may be accomplished in the future, not necessarily in the present. This future character of the promise is clear in the following words:

"Behold, the days come, says Adonay, that I will perform that good word which I have spoken concerning the house of Yisrael and concerning the house of Yehudah. In those days, and at that time, will I cause a Branch of righteousness to grow up to David; and he shall execute justice and righteousness in the land. In those days shall Yehudah be saved, and Yerushalayim shall dwell safely; and this is [the name] by which she shall be called: Adonay our righteousness. For thus says Adonay: David shall never want a man to sit on the throne of the house of Yisrael; neither shall the Kohanim the Levites want a man before me to offer burnt offerings, and to burn meal offerings, and to do sacrifice continually". (Jeremiah 33:14-18)

The Prophet is referring to the Messianic Age - in this all Rabbis and authorities in Hebrew Scriptures agree, and it is a future event. Moreover, this passage emphasizes the idea that "forever" is not such as understood in English: "David shall never want a man to sit on the throne of the house of Yisrael; neither shall the Kohanim the Levites want a man before me to offer burnt offerings, and to burn meal offerings, and to do sacrifice continually"

- Do the Levites still perform the services they were appointed to do "forever" and "continually"? Is it there not lacking them a man doing so in the present, and since almost two millennia? Therefore, why must David have a physical throne with somebody of his descent ruling today? Both concepts are subject to the same conditions: that David would not lack one of his lineage to be king as well as the Levites would not cease serving in the Temple. But the Temple has not been rebuilt yet, nor the Kingdom of Israel has been re-established either.

As well as the Levites were not able to continue their ministry during the Babylonian exile because the Temple was destroyed, and they cannot do so since 70 ce, when the second Temple was demolished, the House of David ceased ruling twice: during the usurpation of queen Atalyahu, that lasted seven years, and after the last king of Judah, Tzidkiyahu, was taken captive by Nebukhadnetzar and the Kingdom of Judah did no longer exist (that of Israel disappeared 120 years before). Therefore, it is evident that the promise of a "perpetual" ruling lineage is conditioned by Israel's behaviour and may be accomplished in the future, but it is not continuous and has been actually interrupted. In fact, the Scriptures confirm that the royal lineage of David is no longer ruling, and this will last for a long time:

"For the children of Yisrael shall abide many days without king, and without prince, and without sacrifice, and without sacred stone, and without efo^d or images. Afterward the children of Yisrael shall return, and seek Adonay their G^d, and David their king, and shall come with trembling to Adonay and to His blessings in the last days". (Hoshea 3:4-5)

The children of Israel will "abide many days without king", until they "seek Adonay their G^d in the last days". This is what actually happened, and is still going on. There is not any Davidic Kingdom on the Earth right now.

Notwithstanding, the deceivers insist in contradicting the Scriptures, history and science, passing superstitions off as true facts. The fantasy of the mediaeval British is well known through the Arthurian legends (though most of their elements were actually imported from the Hungarians), and of the same character are the "proofs" presented by Brit-Am and their gang. Fortunately, the modern British people do not believe in such tales and consider them what they are: legends and a good subject for fiction films. As well as the Arthurian, the "Brit-Am legends" have also mythical characters, magic and sorcery, sacred objects and places, fairies, goblins and trolls - even a roaring stone!

The story begins as follows:

"Once upon a time, there was a nice girl called Tea-Tephi who was the daughter of a wicked king of a far away land, who was taken captive by another king more wicked than him. Tea-Tephi was able to escape because her uncle Jeremy, who was a wizard and a druid, took her to the promised land, that is Ireland..." Sorry, I try to be serious, but it is not so easy when telling Brit-Am's stories, believe me! This is the right spirit with which one should listen to their proofs, taking them as what they actually are: fairy tales. So, I try to expose their fantastic fallacies in few words, because they are really blasphemous and nonsensical. As the beginning of the tale says, the Brit-Am storytellers assert that Prophet Jeremiah did not die in Egypt but sailed up to Ireland carrying with him an alleged daughter of King Tzidkiyahu, called Tea-Tephi (Perhaps she is also a relative of "Nephi", according to the name resemblance? Maybe she intended to reach her uncle in America but the winds drove her ship on the route to Ireland...). Jeremiah (Brit-Am's Merlin) allegedly carried with him also Jacob's pillow stone (Brit-Am's Excalibur), the Ark of the Covenant (Brit-Am's Graal), and placed them in Teamhair - Tara Hill, Ireland (Brit-Am's Camelot).

Tea-Tephi (Brit-Am's Guinevere) is said to have married a descendant of Heremon (Brit-Am's Arthur), allegedly of the lineage of Zerach, son of Judah. In this way, knowing that the sceptre belongs to Judah and the Israelites must have a king of that Tribe, they have invented this alternative descent. They claim indeed that, while the offspring of Zerach's twin brother Peretz - from whom David descended - went to Canaan, Zerach's children sailed to Troy and then they settled in the British Isles and founded a royal dynasty in Ireland. Of course, there is not any reliable record about this story, it is just a mediaeval legend.

Then, they connect Zerach's lineage with King David (Brit-Am's Lancelot) himself, as they claim that he sailed to Ireland and ruled there, being identified with the Eochaidh Ollamh Fodhla of the Irish accounts! One of his daughters is supposed to have married within the line of Heremon, thus joining both lineages of Judah, Peretz and Zerach, in one - a further "Davidic" descent was added to that of Zerach with Tea-Tephi marrying that imaginary king of Ireland.

Strange thing, the Scriptures do not say anywhere in which moment might David have been absent from his Kingdom for so long as to reach Ireland and establish another kingdom there... as it is also inexplicable how could Ollamh Fodhla, that according to the Irish accounts reigned three centuries before David's rule in Israel, be the same person. The Irish accounts also mention Heremon as having ruled over Ireland after having defeated the Tuatha-de-Danann, before Judah's sons were born, perhaps before the birth of Judah himself!... I consider that it is not necessary to go deeper in this fiction novel that Brit-Am credits as true history.

A brief chronology of the Irish kingdom and comparison with contemporary events in Canaan

Ireland Canaan

According to the Annals of the Four Masters, the Tuatha-de-Danann ruled Ireland from 1897 bce to 1700 bce In this period lived Avraham, Yitzchak and Yakov-Israel — According to the earlier dating of the Exodus, also the twelve sons of Yakov were born in this period.

Milesian invasion Heremon rules Ireland 1699-1683 bce Yakov and his twelve sons settle in Egypt (earlier dating of the Exodus) Yakov and his twelve sons lived in this period in Canaan (later dating of the Exodus)

Eochaidh Ollamh Fodhla 1317-1277 bce Israelites ruled by Judges (earlier dating of the Exodus) Israelites dwelling in Egypt (later dating of the Exodus)

ca 1010-970 bce King David rules Israel

721 bce Fall of the Kingdom of Samaria - deportation to Assyria

597-586 bce Tzidkiyahu, last King of Judah Jerusalem is destroyed - Deportation to Babylon

Cobhthach Cael Breagh * 591-541 bce The Israelites of both former Kingdoms are in exile in Assyria, Babylon and Media.

* He assassinated his brother, king Laeghaire; and was slain by Maion, his nephew. This is the king that allegedly must have married the legendary Tea-Tephi

The chronologic outline above reports the Irish records most widely credited by historians, archaeologists and researchers. If it is not enough to prove the unreliability of Brit-Am's fables, all the other elements on which such fables are built are proven false by documentary evidences:

-Tea-Tephi: Actually, she never existed; the Irish accounts where she is supposed to be mentioned, contain no record of her. In fact, some fanatic revivalists of the 19th century ce associated two unrelated names of the Irish and English traditions, Tea and Tephi, and created that legendary princess. Therefore, she is the fruit of a modern fable, not any ancient historic person. Some of them however, having admitted that the character is fictitious, have transferred the same attributes to "Skuthia", an alleged daughter of a pharaoh (therefore, and Egyptian, not Israelite), who is said to have reached Ireland and founded a royal line (the Milesians). Her name is related in fact with Scythia, and the Milesians traced their lineage to Scythia and Magog. Concerning the myth of Scuthia, the experts (archaeologists and historians) are very skeptical. It is actually considered a spurious legend, having little or no historical support at all.

-Tara Hill, whose Gaelic name is 'Teamhair', derives from a word meaning 'the place with a wide view'. Notwithstanding, the storytellers want to relate this name with Avraham's father Terach, in the same way they do violence to linguistics with all their stupid associations. It is a hill of about 90 metres above the surrounding countryside and was chosen as the traditional residence of the ancient Irish kings.

-Dowd Town:

It is a place located about five kilometres north of Tara Hill, which the Brit-Am liars with their typical shamelessness mistranslate as "David's Town" in order to assert that King David actually was in Ireland. Perhaps they do not know that David in Gaelic is Daibhead, not Dowd. The true history of the O'Dowd clan and the variants O'Dubhda, O'Dowda and others descend from the Uí Faichrach, a name derived from a pagan king of Connacht and his son Daithi, who reigned in the 5th century ce. The O'Dubhda were a dynasty of kings of Tara since then for a long period. This is the documented history of the term Dowd and is recorded by the families and clans having this name, that know nothing at all about King David having been in their realm.

-The "stone of destiny": One of Brit-Am's most revered idols is the "lia fail" or "stone of Scone" (provided they are the same thing), which they claim being the stone that served as pillow to Yakov in Beyt-El, allegedly carried to Ireland by one of the girls mentioned above. The tradition says that whoever claimed for himself the right to be the high king of Ireland had to stand on the magic stone lia fail, which roared if the applicant was approved. This is what Brit-Am regards as "history". This stone is claimed by them to be the one in the coronation chair at Westminster Abbey, while it seems that the true one is still in Ireland, at Cormac's House. All the Irish accounts credit the Tuatha-de-Danaan (not the Milesians or any Israelite girl) as those who brought the lia fail in Ireland from Germany (not from Canaan). There are discordant legends about the lia fail being carried to Scotland by the Irish kings when they moved there, and it can hardly be identified with the stone of Scone.

There is a complete disagreement between the Irish and the Scottish accounts concerning this item; either the Scottish writers were not acquainted with the Irish records or they did not take them in consideration and gave their own version. It is quite likely that the lia fail and the stone of Scone are two different pieces... And that the coronation stone at Westminster is the same stone of Scone is also subject to serious objections. What is absolutely certain is that none of these rocks is Yakov's pillow. Not only because the original stone was the most obvious phallic symbol of ancient Ireland - a thing that was utterly forbidden to Israelites - but also because of its geologic composition: it is red calciferous sandstone, probably of Scottish origin, while the stones existing in the area of Beyt-El are white limestone, and the nearest place where one can find red sandstone is about 160 kilometres away, in Edom. The stone of destiny, namely Brit-Am's sacred idol, is a phallus-shaped stone that allegedly roars...

-The Ark of the Covenant: Another blasphemous claim preached by the Brit-Am deceivers is that Prophet Jeremiah allegedly took with him the Ark of the Covenant that was at the Temple in Jerusalem, and carried it to Ireland. In 1899 ce, some fanatic revivalists excavated Tara Hill convinced that they would have found there the Graal... sorry, the Ark of the Covenant. What they found were some Roman coins that somebody had hidden there some days before so that they would not be disappointed. In further excavations made by serious archaeologists, authentic Roman items of the 1st-3rd centuries ce were found. In fact, the very Prophet Jeremiah said "they shall say no more: The Ark of the Covenant of Adonay; neither shall it come to mind; nor shall they remember it; nor shall they visit it; nor shall that be made again" (Yirmeyahu 3:16). How can these Brit-Am charlatans contradict the Scriptures so openly?

There is another people claiming to have the Ark of the Covenant as well as kings of the Davidic lineage (already dethroned in 1974 ce), but they are not quite the ethnic type which the Brit-Am fellows like: the Ethiopians. Differently from the Brit-Am revivalist forerunners, whose claim was clearly ridiculous, scientists and historians showed some interest for the Ethiopian hypothesis and performed serious research, only to prove that the Ark of the Covenant is not in Ethiopia either. The most likely possibility is that when King Nebukhadnetzar attacked Jerusalem the last time, the Babylonians built a siege wall around the city wall (2Kings 25:1,4), then the city and the Temple were destroyed. The Ark might have been hidden underground somewhere between the two walls during the siege, or burned with the Temple.

-Concerning the Davidic royal line, the Ethiopian dynasty that ended only some decades ago traces their ancestry up to King Shlomoh, through a supposed son that he had with the Queen of Sheva. Even though the scriptural and historical support to this claim is quite faint, yet is much stronger than Brit-Am's claims, since the faintest is much more than absolutely nothing. Indeed, there is an ancient Jewish tradition in Ethiopia and there were periods in which that nation was ruled by Jewish kings - something that never happened in Britain or any other Western-European country.

About the love story of the Queen of Sheva with King Shlomoh, the Scriptures do not say anything; though it might be implied. Indeed, many interpreters understand that the Hebrew verb "to come" in the phrase "she came to Shlomoh" (1Kings 10:2; 2Chronicles 9:1) is often used in the Scriptures with the meaning of entering a house for the purpose of sexual relations. Also the statement "King Shlomoh gave to the Queen of Sheba all her desire, whatsoever she asked" (1Kings 10:13; 2Chronicles 9:12) may imply that he also satisfied her sexually. A further element that may support the idea that both sovereigns were lovers would arise if the Shir HaShirim composed by Shlomoh refers to her; indeed, the beloved lady perfectly fits the description of a Yemenite noblewoman: dark complexioned (Shir HaShirim 1:5-6), coming from the desert, perfumed with myrrh, incense and fragrant spices (Shir HaShirim 3:6), adorned with gold, pearls, etc. Notwithstanding, the Queen of Sheva was not Shlomoh's wife, and she returned back to her country after her visit to Jerusalem.

Besides the Bible account, that is the only contemporary record concerning this Queen, a good deal of tales flourished some centuries later, that became part of the legendary heritage of Ethiopia and Arabia, and was even included among their sacred literature - while not any sacred Celtic or Anglo-Saxon item might recall any Israelite tradition. Even though there is not any proof that the Ethiopian dynasty may indeed have been of Davidic bloodline, at least there are some biblical hints; but with regards the British monarchy, such a possibility is absolutely impossible. Perhaps the Brit-Am fellows do not know the present queen's house: Hannover-Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, a fully German line that changed its name into a more English one, Windsor, during the WWI, as they were in war with their own country, Germany. This is documentary history that may be read in the official website of the British Monarchy. Nevertheless, here I show the present queen's ancestry:

- George I (he did not speak English!), married Sophia Dorothea of Braunschweig-Lüneburg;
- George II, married Caroline of Brandenburg-Ansbach; their son Friedrich was not king, married Augusta of Saxe-Gotha and were the parents of
- George III, married Charlotte Sophia of Mecklenburg-Strelitz and were the parents of the tree following monarchs:
- George IV, married Caroline of Braunschweig;
- William IV and
- Victoria, that married Albert of Saxe-Coburg;
- Edward VII, married Alexandra of Denmark (who had also German bloodline),
- George V, married Mary of Teck — the house changes its name to "Windsor";
- George VI, married Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon;
- Elizabeth II, that married Philip of the royal house of Greece, also of German line.

Therefore, the British monarchy, as many others in Europe (including the Russian Czars) is a German family, in which the kings usually married German spouses and so keeping almost pure their Teutonic bloodline. There is not any Israelite ancestry in the British dynasties, neither the present nor the past ones. It is obvious that neither King David nor Prophet Jeremiah have ever been in the British Isles. The whole life of King David is recorded in the Scriptures, his acts of valour as a warrior, his songs and poetry as a psalmist, his love affairs, his fleeing from King Shaul, his conquest of Jerusalem, his reign and battles, until his last days.

As for Prophet Jeremiah, the Scriptures say that he was carried by the Jews to Egypt, and other ancient sources (Elmakin, Epiphanius, Abulpharagius, Jerome, Tertullian, etc.) say that Jeremiah died in Egypt. The most credited versions about how did he end his days assert that Jeremiah was stoned in Egypt. Irish annals do not contain one single word about the prophet Jeremiah. There are some Irish legends that speak about a group of Egyptians, including a descendant of the Pharaoh, that landed in Ireland, many centuries before both David and Jeremiah were born, perhaps before Mosheh also. They were pagans and worshipped the sun, not the Holy One of Israel.

Further details

This essay is drawing to a conclusion. There are many other claims that may be considered and all of them proven utterly false, but these already exposed should be enough to show how Brit-Am and similar groups deceive people. They have not any single evidence, neither the slightest hint of proof for their absurd and ridiculous claims. The Scriptures disavow them, history, archaeology, geology, anthropology, genetics and linguistics disprove them, science discredits them.

Brit-Am's storytellers always refer to "ancient sources" to spread their lies, but they fail to point to any specific account, record or proof of any kind. If there existed historical documents which supported their claims, they would have reproduced and multiplied them in facsimile and shown them to the whole world. But they have not done that, simply because there are no such documents. They have only counterfeit items and speculative theories.

One of these deceptive methods is their comparisons between Hebrew and Celtic words, which they relate in a forced way in order to convince people that the original language of the British was Hebrew. Yet, the same comparisons may be established with almost every language obtaining the same results, since it is proven that all tongues have a common origin, namely Bavel, and that Aramaic - that is closely related to Hebrew - is the source for all Semitic languages and many non-Semitic as well; even Greek has taken many terms from Aramaic and transferred them to most European tongues. Consequently, their language "proof" is completely worthless.

The "appointed place": One of the Scripture passages that the blasphemous Brit-Am fellows like to misquote is 2Shmuel 7:10-13:

"I will appoint a place for My people Yisrael, and will plant them, that they may dwell in their own place, and be moved no more; neither shall the children of wickedness afflict them any more, as at the first, and [as] from the day that I commanded judges to be over My people Yisrael; and I will cause you to rest from all your enemies. Moreover Adonay tells you that Adonay will make you a house. When your days are fulfilled, and you shall sleep with your fathers, I will set up your seed after you, who shall proceed out of your bowels, and I will establish his kingdom. He shall build a house for My Name, and I will establish the throne of his kingdom forever".

The masters of deception assert that the "appointed place" are the British Isles and America, pleading the future tense of the verb. Since they boast so baldly about their knowledge of the "Hebrew" language, we may pertinently ask the Brit-Am teachers: what tense is "will appoint" in the original text, in Hebrew? Actually, the correct translation is: "I have appointed a place". The rendering "will appoint" only indicates that the place would be appointed from the time of the Judges - already over in David's time - and continuously, hence the future tense was applicable to the idea set forth - a permanent designated place from the time of the Judges, and that place is where the Temple was to be built. Consequently the appointed place is the land that was promised to the fathers, and Mount Zion where the House of Gꞑd was settled. Let us read some verses of the numerous ones that indicate which is the appointed place:

"In that day Adonay made a covenant with Avram, saying, 'To your seed I have given this land, from the river of Egypt to the great river, the river Perat'." (Genesis 15:18)

"Adonay said to Mosheh: 'I will bring you into the land which I swore to give to Avraham, to Yitzchak, and to Yakov; and I will give it to you for a heritage: I am Adonay'." (Exodus 6:1,8)

"Remember Avraham, Yitzchak, and Yisrael, Your servants, to whom You swore by Your own self, and said to them, 'I will multiply your seed as the stars of the sky, and all this land that I have spoken of I will give to your seed, and they shall inherit it forever'." (Exodus 32:13)

"Adonay spoke to Mosheh, Depart, go up from here, you and the people that you have brought up out of the land of Egypt, to the land of which I swore to Avraham, to Yitzchak, and to Yakov, saying, 'I will give it to your seed'." (Exodus 33:1)

"Behold, I have set the land before you: go in and possess the land which Adonay swore to your fathers, to Avraham, to Yitzchak, and to Yakov, to give to them and to their seed after them". (Deuteronomy 1:8)

"Adonay said to him, This is the land which I swore to Avraham, to Yitzchak, and to Yakov, saying, I will give it to your seed: I have caused you to see it with your eyes, but you shall not go over there". (Deuteronomy 34:4)

"So Adonay gave to Yisrael all the land which He swore to give to their fathers; and they possessed it, and lived therein. Adonay gave them rest round about, according to all that He swore to their fathers: and there stood not a man of all their enemies before them; Adonay delivered all their enemies into their hand". (Joshua 21:43,44)

Quoting the whole Bible would take a long space, but these few examples must be enough. Which was the place that Gꞑd promised to Avraham calling it "this land"?

Which was the country before Mosheh's eyes when he was on Mount Pisgah and shown to him as the Promised Land inherited by His people? Which is the place conquered by Yehoshua that was promised to the People of Israel where they would have found rest from their enemies?... It was not England, was it? Until proved otherwise, it is Canaan, Eretz Yisrael.

Conclusion

It is quite clear and thoroughly demonstrated that the British/Celtic/Anglo-Saxon etc. people are NOT the lost Tribes of Israel and have not any link with them, neither ethnic, genetic, cultural, historic, nor even spiritual or theological. Whoever proposes such hypothesis is to be considered a deceiver in the service of religious organizations that usually take advantage of simple-minded people to convince them to follow their sinister purposes, in this specific case, the promotion of a racial superiority, that is against Judaism, against Christianity and against any honest belief and human nature.

Therefore, we may ask: Do the lost Tribes exist, or it is just a myth? First of all, it is necessary to define the inaccuracy of the concept of lost "Tribes" and the preference for the more realistic expression "lost Israelites", or better than lost, "unknown" Israelites or unknown Hebrews. In fact, there are peoples that can rightfully claim Israelite origins or ancestry, as it is a matter of fact that many of the exiles of both former Kingdoms did not return back to the Land of Israel and intermarried or adopted other cultures and languages.

Nevertheless, there are some specific features that are unique to the Hebrew people and that have not been completely lost, but are still present within some peoples, mainly in Asia and Africa, and allow us to distinguish them from the non-Hebrew surrounding groups. These peoples also fulfil some prophetic requirements, like not having their own statehood or being a minority spread worldwide, besides the fact of keeping much of Torah rules not present in other cultural and legal systems. There is with certainty some Israelite blood in the present-day Assyrians, who intermarried many of their exiles and are today sympathetic towards the Jewish People, as well as there is a strong Israelite identity within the Roma, with whom is concerned an essay in this set "Myths, Hypotheses and Facts" (here), and other groups in Asia and Africa. All these essays are founded on serious scientific research, leaving aside legends and fantastic accounts.

Appendix

This essay has generated reactions: some brain-washed Brit-Am followers have asked their leader to give a response. Indeed, he attempted to refute about the 0.1% of the evidences presented here, and of course, he utterly failed. He has issued in their newsletter a list of unfounded misinformation (not any single proof to support his fairy tales) with additional slanderous words against the authors of this website, to whom he has ascribed different names of people whom he consider "enemies", then saying that all of them are one person (in order to reduce the whole mass of evidences against his theories to a single isolate voice). What is more, he asserts that the author is an "Arab"! It is evident that their blindness has prevented them from viewing what we have written in our essays of this same set "Myths, Hypotheses and Facts" concerning the origin and identity of Arabs and the so-called Palestinians - studies that might hardly be ascribed to an Arab!

The Brit-Am fanatic leader now corrects his claims saying that he is not a rabbi: what a news! He obviously is not! He is indeed nothing, having no studies, perhaps he has only done elementary school. He claims that Brit-Am is not a cult, but since that organization is not based on historic or scientific evidences but only on superstitious beliefs, it should be listed among the sects. He denies having to do with British-Israelism, but indeed, Brit-Am has recycled all the garbage left by preceding movements supporting the same ideas. So, Brit-Am is a "bin" "laden" with British-Israelism rubbish...

The Brit-Am leader is well-known for denying what is glaringly obvious, so much that he blamed our web domain of being anti-Jewish! It is enough to surf within www.imninalu.net to understand the Jewish character of our websites. We usually receive letters of congratulations from Rabbis and university professors, who encourage us to go ahead with our research and free information for whoever is interested in the knowledge of facts. On the contrary, the Brit-Am leader concludes his newsletters asking his supporters to buy his books plenty of blatant lies.

I wonder if there was such a person?

It's quite possible that St Patrick is simply a mythological character, or semi-mythological: some of the things he said and did were real, but were said and done by several different people.

Of course to the church authorities the word "real" is anything their dogma says exists. It reminds me of the scene in "1984" where Winston is made to invent the war hero "Ogilvy" (This idea was reused in the film "Wag The Dog"). He says that Ogilvy, once created and added to the history books will effectively be as real as Charlmagne, or any other historical figure.

Title: A&E special fails to discuss the Jesuit Order

Description: The A&E Presentation - Angels & Demons

Menses - May 19, 2006 06:32 PM (GMT)

<http://www.catholic.org/ae/tv/review.php?id=19666>

Not sure if anybody here was able to catch it but last night A&E aired a special on the Illuminati called Angels & Demons. Watching this presentation with the knowledge of the Jesuit Order was quite eye opening. I noticed throughout the entire special, they kept trying to heglianize the entire affair by pitting the Catholic Church as the bad guys and the Illuminati as the good guys. As usual they used real and factual information like the Babylonian roots of the Catholic Church to somehow justify the so called hatred the Illuminati has for the Church of Rome. You see, the very fact that they used documented information suckers many people in and makes you think they are trying to get to the truth. This is the trap we must watch out for. They talked about the Freemasons, & the Knights Templar but would not touch the Jesuits with a ten foot pole. After a while it was obvious, the entire affair was an attempt to push everyone toward the Illuminati and away from the Almighty Jesuit Order.

Its rather diabolical. They have now made the decision to go public about the existence of these groups and now want to paint the Catholic Church as a victim when in actuality they are anything but. The presentation really exposed its true purpose when it talked about the murder of Pope Payous, Roberto Calvi, & Pope John The 1st. Who else but an inside force could have had the power to eliminate these men?

A&E is the same channel that produced the fluff cover up piece Flight 93 and now the conspiracy theorists are supposed to be overjoyed that they gave us a glimpse into the world of the "Illuminati". It was a nice try but im not falling for it....ROME strikes again!!!!!!!

Hey, Menses, if your discernment skills are in tip-top condition, the sparkle box may be a worthwhile research tool. Go for it! Mine aren't, which is why I've re-conditioned myself to stay unplugged as often as practical.

If you look into the ownership of networks such as A&E and similar derivatives - History Channel, PBS, Discovery, et. al., you'll likely find your answer in the common finger prints and MO of the same old Eastern Liberal Establishment that's had a death grip on all broadcast media practically since their inceptions several decades ago. Consider that they've had many years to refine the deceptive shine, polish and subliminal hooks they weave into the creative but deceptive content that airs on virtually all MM outlets; we the masses having faithfully been the unwitting target of their progressive R&D testing and experimentations all along.

The kinds of networks as mentioned above are merely a more modern approach to mis-informing, dis-informing and propagandizing the masses. They are presented to appeal to those who fancy themselves a cut above the typical viewing audience. The latter is where the lion's share of prime-time viewing occurs and it is for these that the more common content - the endless sequence of mindless, WWF/ Tractor-pull/Sleazy-Advertising/Grade-school toilet humor/contrived reality drama mentality, typical of serial programming and sit coms, is intended to keep enthralled.

This has always been the case for a long time. They wish you to know about the Illuminati and love to push it in mainstream hollywood films like Tombraider, Chainsaw Massacre etc. They simply do not want you to know who the real leadership of the complete conspiracy actually is. The Jesuit Order has fooled so many people very easily with all this Order of Illuminati misinformation. The Jesuit Order and even the SMOM have gone un-noticed to many thanks to Coadjutors like Alex Jones, Marrs etc.

Alexandra - May 19, 2006 11:36 PM (GMT)

I'm getting pretty good at reading between the lines myself, which is why I don't mind having the idiot box on once in a while.

But I can't stand watching mainstream media like Faux News and Communist News Network. I don't have much patience for fairy tales, know what I mean?

Only reason we have cable, though, is because my husband wants it. I also keep an eye on what my son watches...I try not to let him sit in front of it too much.

It was not until I began to clue myself up on the Jesuit Order that I began to realize that the Masonic/Illuminati angle was not the final end all be all on world power. It was about three years ago when I ran across this Eric Phelps Interview...hosted by Rick Martin. At the time I was fully emmersed in the Illuminati material but was wise enough to figure out for myself that the protocols were written so that the world would believe it was a "Jewish" Conspiracy...It was just too easy. At the time I didn't even know who Phelps was. Didn't even know what Kolvenbach looked like until you popped up on the Icke Forum. The way Phelps described the Order made you want to understand why nobody else was discussing them. Stuff like that makes one think. Why is it everytime I walk into a Chapters book store, Jim Marrs has another UFO book on full display? This is like 3 years ago and I had not heard of any such thing as a Vatican Assassins...but that was always peculiar to me....

Thats the show I watched last night I posted it in the "2tuff I got some questions thread"

My review is in that post basicly I agree with what you guys said. They didnt even blame or mention the Jesuit Order not even once.. They always said it was the masons/Illuminati who killed Pope Poyous and Pope John Paul the I they mentioned SMOM, Freemasons,Knights of Templer but not Jesuit Order! go figure.... :rolleyes:

Cade Foster - May 20, 2006 11:39 AM (GMT)

Like Menses said I think they didnt want to even mention the Jesuit Order they just put all the blame on the Illuminati aka Black Nobility.

Bladestorm - May 23, 2006 02:38 AM (GMT)

I am watching a PBS special called "Secrets of the Masons" as I type this, and so far one of the so-called experts they interviewed actually mentioned the Jesuits ! They also keep talking with a 33rd degree mason named Akram Elias. Has anyone heard of this guy?

Alexandra - May 23, 2006 02:50 AM (GMT)

Those to "documentaries" are forever showing...I flip through the guide on my cable, and they're showing them CONSTANTLY.

I don't even bother to watch them.

Bladestorm - May 23, 2006 03:16 AM (GMT)

I wish I hadnt watched it. As expected it was just a hugh disinformation piece. Still, I was surprised one person mentioned the Jesuits. Thats got to be a first.

My friend Jeep knows alot on Zionism and Zionist he has a room open on Inspeak called EXPOSEING ZIONIST PROPAGANDA AND LIES. Jeep is a old man in his 70's he is very knowledgeable on zionism allthough I have been trying to teach him about the Jesuit Order I gave him this website to read he says its very good website and the zionist section has a good sticky article that he printed out on how "anti semtic" was a bogus term. I still think he does not understand that the JO/BN control the masonic zionist jews.

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 23, 2006 12:07 AM (GMT)

Its good to hear he has found some use from my website. Unfortunately too many people are concentrating too hard on the Zionist elite when really they should be looking at the Sionists and especially the Company of Sion (Society of Jesus).

President and Chief Executive Officer
Hearst Corporation

Victor F. Ganzi is president and chief executive officer of Hearst Corporation, one of the nation's largest diversified communications companies. Ganzi assumed this post on June 1, 2002. He is also a director of Hearst Corporation and a testamentary trustee of the trust established under the Will of William Randolph Hearst.

Ganzi began his career at Hearst in 1990 as general counsel and vice president. In 1992, he was appointed chief financial and legal officer and elected senior vice president. He was elected executive vice president in 1997 and named chief operating officer in 1998.

Prior to joining Hearst, Ganzi was the managing partner at Rogers & Wells (now Clifford Chance), one of the world's largest international law firms, where he was responsible for day-to-day operations and supervised the firm's attorneys and its support personnel. Ganzi also practiced as a certified public accountant in taxation at a Big Four accounting firm in Denver. The relationship between Hearst and Ganzi began in 1970 when the Company became a client of Rogers & Wells and Ganzi, then a young tax associate, was assigned to the account. Over the next 20 years, Ganzi had significant involvement in Hearst's recapitalization and all of its many acquisitions.

Ganzi, a native of New York, graduated summa cum laude from Fordham University in 1968.

Could this be another reason why JFK died since the Jesuits were notorious as being anti-gun? Even though the NRA is infiltrated, Knight of Columbus JFK was for gun rights. Also, JFK wanted to invade Cuba in December 1, 1963 according to a book, send troops home from Vietnam, destroy the CIA, end the Cold War, and other things.

Confession No. 5: Hunt For The Truth Behind The Jesuits Continues, as Black Pope Officially Refuses To Be Interviewed By Truth seekers

But Jesuit General admits the coming of a New World Order and world controlled by the UN in a little known 2003 interview from Spain. Also two other researchers shed light on the Vatican in this week's Sunday Confession from the banks of Brushy Creek

21 May 2006

By Greg Szymanski

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/21-May-2006.html>

This Sunday by the shores of Brushy Creek, in our continuing effort to understand the Jesuits, we call upon researchers Darrel Eberhart and C.M. Ross, both providing important contributions in our quest for truth.

We also will be hearing from Fr. Hans Peter Kolvenbach, Jesuit General or better known as the Black Pope.

Although Fr. Kolvenbach officially declined to be interviewed, the Arctic Beacon has discovered a little known 2003 interview that appeared in Alfa y Omega no. 369, September 25, 2003. Alfa y Omega is a weekly magazine published by the Catholic Church in Spain.

In the interview, Fr. Kolvenbach addresses the New World Order post 9/11, but fails to address whether satanic worshipping goes on in the catacombs of the Vatican and whether he is the real leader of the Catholic Church.

In the little known interview, listen to this incredible question and response from the Black Pope, as he claims a New World Order will emerge and saying the United Nations will become all-powerful:

Q - Is there a political, social, and cultural alternative to the new international world order which emerged after September 11, 2001, and is being established in the new political realignment of the powerful nations - the United States, the European Union, Russia, Japan - and the great and not so obvious powers?

A - As result of the attack carried out on September 11th, large-scale violence has become more painful, inhumane and unjust. This has triggered a distressing spiral of attacks and counterattacks, which are bringing about considerable material losses, the weakening of human rights, and above all, indiscriminate deaths. Out of these physical and moral ruins, a new world order should emerge. That is what we thought after experiencing the last World War, but the facts have belied the hopes we then had. That makes it difficult to dream of a new international order this time. However, we must all strive to define it and make it come true. For us Christians, the message of fraternity and solidarity to which the Lord summons us in the Gospel is the primary incentive driving us to work for a more humane world -and hence, for a world that is more divine-one which goes beyond merely political structures. It is comforting that despite the reserve shown by certain important nations, the United Nations is recognized as an important political alternative.

Moving from Fr. Kolvenbach's rather shocking admission, we turn to our first main topic today, as researcher CM Ross provides her thoughts about the Jesuit Order in her article provided for the Sunday Confession entitled What has Happened to the Society of Jesus?

By CM Ross

The Society of Jesus (the Jesuit Order) has produced some of the greatest saints of the Catholic Church. From St. Ignatius of Loyola to St. Francis Xavier to holy priests like Fr. de Smet, S.J., the Society of Jesus has toiled for centuries to save souls.

Yet now it seems to have fallen into impurity, impiety, and even the worst of occultism and criminal activity. Perhaps it's time stop insulting Jesus and rename it the Society of Satan, since that's who they seem to follow.

What has happened to the Society of Jesus? How did it fall from the heights of sanctity to being the scum of society?

The child rapes and satanism rampant in the Jesuit Order and the Catholic Church are only the tip of the iceberg. We're not getting the whole picture from the mainstream press.

In the 1950s, Bella Dodd, former head of the Communist Party USA, testified before the US Congress that hundreds of Communists had infiltrated the Catholic Church.

She said they were poised to create a new church, one that appeared Catholic, but was not in actual substance, Catholic.

And thus Vatican II came to pass. Out went almost 2,000 years of Church teaching, in came the errors that were previously condemned by it.

They created a "New Mass" that was condemned by previous popes, and changed the ordination and consecration rites, which invalidated them. If a man is going to offer the True Mass, he has to follow the rules of the Church to become ordained and then offer the True Mass according to the rules of the Church.

So now rather than having priests who are ordained according to the revealed teachings of the Catholic Church, we have laymen who are not ordained offering a religious service that has been anathematized by the Council of Trent. Not even Benedict XVI was properly consecrated as a Bishop, which is one reason why an increasing number of Catholics question the validity of his Papacy.

On top of that, ignorant and unwitting Catholics are being defrauded of their tithes, offerings, and stipends for this false "mass." Their children are being raped by these fiends in human form, and these crimes are being aided and abetted by the present inhabitants of the Vatican, including Benedict XVI.

It is said that the late Fr. Kunz, who was brutally murdered in a Satanic manner, believed the New Mass to be the "abomination of desolation" predicted in sacred scripture. If the New Mass is the abomination of desolation, is it any wonder that the men who offer it are involved in Satanism?

These pseudo-priests are frauds and should be denounced as such. The reason that the Communists and their Illuminati brethren worked hard to destroy the True Mass is that they knew that the way that you worship is the way that you believe (Lex Credendi, lex orandi). If you destroy the Mass, you destroy the Church.

Doestoevsky observed that without God, any bad behavior is possible. Look at the wreckage of the Jesuit Order, which has been heavily infiltrated by the Communists and the Illuminati.

Rather than promoting devotion to the Sacred Heart of Jesus and His Most Blessed Mother, they promote thinly disguised Communism and the New Age movement, which is really just the old paganism of the Illuminati. Only God and the Devil know what perverted, obscene, and criminal activities they perpetrate behind closed doors.

Indeed, Nikita Khrushchev said that the Communists would destroy confidence in the clergy by a series of sex scandals. Now that child rape is rampant throughout almost all of the dioceses in Christendom, is it not obvious that the Communists have succeeded?

Centuries ago, Our Lady appeared to Mother Marianna de Jesus Torres in Ecuador as Our Lady of Good Success. She predicted the current depravity of the modern church, and said that when things appeared to sink to their worst level, she would intervene to save us.

In more modern times, the mystic nun Anne Catherine Emmerich said

"Then, I saw that everything that pertained to Protestantism was gradually gaining the upper hand, and the Catholic religion fell into complete decadence. Most priests were lured by the glittering but false knowledge of young school-teachers, and they all contributed to the work of destruction.

In those days, Faith will fall very low, and it will be preserved in some places only, in a few cottages and in a few families which God has protected from disasters and wars.

I see many excommunicated ecclesiastics who do not seem to be concerned about it, or even aware of it. Yet, they are (ipso facto) excommunicated whenever they cooperate to [sic] enterprises, enter into associations, and embrace opinions on which an anathema has been cast. It can be seen thereby that God ratifies the decrees, orders and interdictions issued by the Head of the Church, and that He keeps them in force even though men show no concern for them, reject them, or laugh them to scorn. . . .

I saw that many pastors allowed themselves to be taken up with ideas that were dangerous to the Church. They were building a great, strange, and extravagant Church. Everyone was to be admitted in it in order to be united and have equal rights: Evangelicals, Catholics, sects of every description. Such was to be the new Church. . . . But God had other designs."

Moving from Ross' comments, Darryl Eberhart now tells us why he is writing "more and more" about Roman Catholicism, providing us with an article entitled a History of Assassination, Murder, Genocide, Torture and Subversion of Nations. Although his comments are rather lengthy, they are well worth reading.

By Darryl Eberhart

Why Am I Writing More & More About Roman Catholicism?

This editor of the ETI and TTT newsletters has been writing more on the Roman Catholic Church's hierarchy, and especially its Jesuit Order, in recent newsletters because I keep uncovering more and more about the deep hatred that the hierarchy of the Roman Catholic Church has for independent Bible-believing Christians, Protestants, Orthodox Christians, and Jews. We Americans have, for the most part, been largely ignorant of the well-documented history of the Roman Catholic Church in conducting brutal religious genocide (via Inquisition, 'holy' wars, and 'holy' crusades) against all the afore-mentioned groups. (Please see my TTT newsletter entitled "Death by Government and Death by Church" on Internet web site: www.tacklingthetoughtopics.net.) Sadly, many Americans believe the "ecumenical rhetoric" of the Roman Catholic Church's hierarchy - i.e., that she has "changed her ways" and now loves all the "separated brethren". However, my study of the Papacy shows me that this is just a RUSE. (Per Webster's New World Dictionary a "ruse" is: "a stratagem" [which is] "any trick or scheme for achieving some purpose".) The "purpose" is to bring all non-Catholic Christian denominations under the "umbrella" (i.e., the authoritative and totalitarian rule) of the Papacy!

Yes, the Papacy, despite its "ecumenical rhetoric", has not changed a bit over the many centuries in the following categories:

? Its deep hatred of Jews, all independent Bible-believing non-Catholic Christians, Protestants, and Orthodox Christians (as recently as the 1940s we find the Roman Catholic Ustashi in Croatia, led on by priests, monks, and friars, brutally slaughtering from 600,000 to one million Serb Orthodox Christian men, women, elderly, and children);

? Its long-held dream to bring all non-Catholic Christians under its monopolistic, totalitarian, ecclesiastical control;

? Its long-held dream to head up a totalitarian one-world religious organization; and,

? Its long-held dream to bring all world leaders - especially those in "Christian" countries - under the temporal power of the pope. (That is, the Papacy would be the top player and "controller" in a one-world government - just like it was the top player and "controller" on the European continent for many centuries! Kings indeed bowed before popes.)

Indeed, power - absolute power - has long been the "primary objective" at the Vatican. History has recorded the Vatican's deep hatred for religious liberty and freedom of conscience. The U.S. Constitution, with its "Bill of Rights" guaranteeing such liberties, has long been hated by the Vatican. (For a good example of this, read the Syllabus of Errors issued by Pope Pius IX.) I have heard that there is an acronym in use by some Knights of Columbus in America. This acronym is "M.A.C.": "Make America Catholic". America is the last "roadblock" in the way of the Vatican and the rest of the globalist rich and power elite in their dreams for one-world government and one-world religion. Is America scheduled for a religious genocide - another Inquisition - as occurred in the 1940s in Croatia? I believe the danger is very real and possibly quite imminent - and that is why I am writing about the Roman Catholic Church's hierarchy, its long-held dreams for domination, and its well-documented history of religious genocide!

HERE ARE SOME RELEVANT QUOTATIONS:

"Disregarding the maxims and the spirit of the Gospel, the papal Church, arming herself with the power of the sword, vexed the Church of God and wasted it for centuries, a period most appropriately termed in history, the 'dark ages'. The kings of the earth gave their power to the Beast." - John Foxe (1516-1587; Author of Foxe's Book of Martyrs)

((Ed. Comment to the preceding quote: Foxe's Book of Martyrs is a must-read book for all Christians (both Catholic and non-Catholic). It is $11 postpaid. To obtain a copy, please call "Power of Prophecy" at 1-800-234-9673. This book documents the horrible persecution, torture, and murder of innocent Christians by a power-hungry religious institution bent on exterminating all opposition to its claims of primacy in the Christian world.))

"The union of the Church with the State renders persecution possible; and hitherto churches have not been slow to avail themselves of the secular arm that they might confound all dissent with arguments which come home to the bone and the flesh [Ed. Note: flogging, torture, and execution]. All churches, when they lose the spirit of Christ, are very prone to persecute; but a horrible pre-eminence must be awarded to the scarlet harlot of the seven hills [Ed. Note: he is referring to the Vatican], for no church on earth except that of Rome has had a separate institution [i.e., the Office of Inquisition] for hunting out and destroying 'heretics'." (1868)

Charles Haddon Spurgeon (1834-1892; famous English Baptist preacher)

"Long pampered by the State, she [i.e., the Vatican] came to be its lord and tyrant, using fire and sword, prison and rack, to work her accursed will. The Inquisition was the masterpiece of infernal craft and malice, and its deeds were far more worthy of fiends than men. If the church of Rome could at this moment change its Ethiopian skin forever, lay aside its leopard's spots, and become a pure community, ten thousand years of immaculate holiness and self-denying philanthropy could not avail to blot out the remembrance of the enormous crimes with which the Inquisition has loaded it. There is a deep and indelible sentence of damnation written upon the apostate church by avenging justice for its more than infernal cruelties, and the curse is registered in heaven; nor can any pretences to present liberality reverse the condemnation which outraged humanity has pronounced against it; its infamy is engraven in the rock forever. Centuries of the most liberal policy would not convince mankind that Popery had become tolerant at heart; she wallowed so greedily in oppression, torture, and murder in her palmy [i.e., flourishing] days, that the foam of human gore hangs around her wolfish fangs, and men will not believe her to be a gentle lamb, let her 'bleat' as she may." (1868, "The Inquisition")

Charles Haddon Spurgeon

((Ed. Comment to the preceding quote: The above words might seem very strong to some; however, when one reads books such as Foxe's Book of Martyrs, those above words are mild indeed. The history of the Roman Catholic Inquisition, with its brutal torture of human beings over a period of centuries, is a history of the most savage cruelty - cruelty that has rarely been matched by even the most savage of pagan societies.))

"Rome [i.e., the Vatican] made the worst possible use of the weapon which the State gave her, but the radical evil was the State's entering into alliance with the Church, and lending its power to fulfill her purposes. Had true church principles prevailed, the crimes which make us shudder would have been impossible. Disarm and dis-establish every sect, and leave each religion to its own moral and spiritual power, and no inquisition can be dreamed of; but put forward the doctrine that a state should propagate or maintain religion, and you have uncaged the 'lion'; no one knows how much he may rend and devour." (1868, "The Inquisition")

Charles Haddon Spurgeon

((Ed. Comment to the preceding quote: This alliance of State and Church occurred not only in the dark ages hundreds of years ago, but it also occurred in the 1940s when the Croatian State combined with the hierarchy of the Roman Catholic Church to carry out savage religious genocide against innocent Serb Orthodox Christian men, women, elderly, and children - torturing and murdering from 600,000 to one million of them in a modern-day Inquisition.))

"To prevent forever the possibility of Papists [i.e., Roman Catholics] roasting Protestants, Anglicans hanging Romish priests, and Puritans flogging Quakers, let every form of state-churchism be utterly abolished, and the remembrance of the long curse which it has cast upon the world be blotted out forever." (1868, "The Inquisition")

Charles Haddon Spurgeon

((Ed. Comment to the preceding quote: A number of Roman Catholic priests (to include Jesuits such as Henry Garnett, Jesuit Provincial General for the English Province) were hung by the English authorities because they tried either to assassinate an English monarch or to overthrow the country and return it under Roman Catholic rule! This is not the same as murdering people just because they disagree with papal doctrines or practices, or refuse to bow to papal authority!))

"The desire for worldly power began to manifest itself in the Church, on a broad scale, in the 4th century, when the Roman Empire ceased its persecutions, and made Christianity its State religion. The spirit of Imperial Rome passed into the Church. The Church gradually developed itself into the pattern of the Empire it had conquered.

[Imperial] Rome fell. But Rome came to life again, as a world power, in the name of the Church. The popes of Rome were the heirs and successors of the Caesars of Rome. The Vatican is [located] where the Palace of the Caesars was. The [Roman Catholic] popes have claimed all the authority the Caesars claimed, and more. The Papal Palace, throughout the centuries, has been among the most luxurious in all the world. Popes have lived in pomp and splendor unsurpassed by earthly kings. In no place on earth is there more ostentatious pageantry and show of magnificence than at the coronation of a pope.

?The horrors of the Inquisition, ordered and maintained by the popes, over a period of 500 years, in which unnumbered millions were tortured and burned, constitute the most brutal, beastly and devilish picture in all history.

?The city of Rome, first pagan, then papal, has been the dominating power of the world for two thousand years (200 B.C. to A.D. 1800).

?It is inconceivable that any ecclesiastical organization, in its mania for power, could have distorted and desecrated and corrupted, for its own exaltation, the beautiful and holy religion of Jesus [Christ]."

Henry H. Halley (Author of Halley's Bible Handbook)

"History records the appalling story of suffering and martyrdom endured by untold millions across the centuries at the hand of the PAPAL [Mass-Murdering] MACHINE."

Wilson Ewin (Canadian Christian writer & author)

"For rejecting the doctrine of transubstantiation, Christians were burned at the stake by Roman Catholics by the hundreds of thousands. Church historian R. Tudor Jones writes that 'the majority of the martyrs were ordinary people, including many women?'

John Foxe was an eyewitness and earnest historian of the fierce persecution in England in his day. His Book of Martyrs gives detailed accounts of many public trials and executions of those whom the Roman Catholic Church judged to be 'heretics' worthy of death. His descriptions of Christians being burned at the stake tell of their inspiring bravery in the face of such a horrible death and of the determination of Roman Catholicism to exterminate everywhere true Christians who opposed her.

Similar records have come down of the massacres of Jews at the hands of the Roman Church." - Dave Hunt (Author of numerous books; this quote is from A Cup of Trembling)

((Ed. Comments to the preceding quote: (1) The Catholic Church was predominant in England until the 1520s. She tried often to regain that primacy, and succeeded for a short time under the rule (1553-1558) of Roman Catholic Queen "Bloody" Mary I. "Through relentless torture, starvation, genocide, massacres, burning at the stake, against every conceivable fury of [Papal] Rome, they [i.e., the 'seeds of protest'] could not be extinguished. History estimates that over one hundred million people lost their lives during that time of [Papal] Roman tyranny. Is it any wonder that God graphically describes this onslaught of [Papal] Rome as her being 'drunken with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus', and calls her the 'Beast'?"

John Daniel (Author of The Grand Design Exposed)

((Ed. Comment to the preceding quote: Does history repeat itself? Could a "Holy Inquisition" ever take place here in America? Religious genocide took place in Croatia in the 1940s, led by Roman Catholic clergymen. The result: from 600,000 to 1 million Serb Orthodox Christians (men, women, elderly, and children) were brutally tortured and murdered!))

"The Medieval Inquisition had flourished for centuries when Pope Paul III, in 1542, gave it permanent status as the first of Rome's Sacred Congregations, the 'Holy, Catholic and Apostolic Inquisition'. Known more recently as the 'Holy Office', its name was changed in 1967 to the 'Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith'?"

?Therefore it is not surprising that the 'Office of the Inquisition' still occupies the Palace of the Inquisition adjacent to the Vatican, though under its new name, the 'Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith'. Its current Grand Inquisitor, who reports directly to the pope, is the former Archbishop of Munich, Joseph Cardinal Ratzinger, whom Time [Magazine] has called 'the world's most powerful cardinal [and] the Catholic Church's chief enforcer of dogma?'. "

Dave Hunt (From his book A Woman Rides the Beast; 1994)

((Ed. Comment to the preceding quote: The Office of Inquisition STILL exists. It has undergone several name changes. Its current name is the "Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith".))

"What has turned my soul against Roman [Catholic] abuse of power is the way in which it has tortured and burned such saints of God as Joan of Arc, hundreds of the Albigenian martyrs in France in the 12th century, the Knights Templar, John Huss

[Czech Jan Hus], the Dominican Savonarola, the Dominican Giordano Bruno, [and] the Anglican bishops Cranmer, Ridley, and Latimer. The Inquisition has promoted at least two wholesale massacres: thousands of Protestant Waldensians in northern Italy, and thousands of Protestant Huguenots by the massacre of St. Bartholomew in France. More than 30,000 of the most cultured Protestants of France were put to the sword on the night of St. Bartholomew, August 24, 1572. At the news [of this brutal, bloody massacre], the Pope had cannons fired, proclaimed a jubilee, ordered a Te Deum of thanksgiving to be sung, and struck a special medal to commemorate the glorious 'victory'." - Charles A. Bolton (Ex-Roman Catholic priest)

"To wring out confessions from these poor creatures [Ed. Note: during the various Inquisitions], the Roman Catholic Church devised ingenious tortures so excruciating and barbarous that one is sickened by their recital." - Dave Hunt

"Inability to discern the paganism of Romanism [i.e., Roman Catholicism] springs undoubtedly from a deep spiritual blindness. Disturbing enough, this would speak of a fundamental ignorance of the Gospel of Jesus Christ itself on the part of many claiming to be Christians.

Perhaps for the majority, ignorance of the Vatican constitution merely stems from a simple lack of being informed. For too many, however, ignorance of popedom comes as the result of a deliberate choice. It grew in preference for acceptability, personal benefit, and the praise of men.

To have squarely faced the issue of Catholicism with frankness and sincerity of heart, the individual would have paid a price. It cost the reformers and other MILLIONS their very lives?" - Wilson Ewin

"To a Jew, Hitler and [Italian Fascist dictator] Mussolini were Christians. In fact, they were Roman Catholics from birth, and in spite of their horrendous crimes against humanity they were never excommunicated from their Church. The same was true of [Nazi SS Chief Heinrich] Himmler and many others in the Nazi hierarchy. Indeed, the Roman Catholic Church has a long history of persecution, expulsion, and slaughter of Jews, to which Hitler referred in justifying the Holocaust." - Dave Hunt (from his book A Cup of Trembling)

Brewer (Ex-Roman Catholic priest of the Discalced Carmelite Order)

I. INTRODUCTION

This is indeed a "tough topic" about which to write. It is indeed a "tough topic" that will no doubt disturb some folks' comfort zones. However, it is a topic that must be written about because history does indeed repeat itself. The "actors", places, and times may change; however, the same "scripts" seem to be repeated - over and over and over again! If we refuse to learn from the lessons of history, then we will repeat the mistakes of history - as Spanish philosopher Santayana wisely noted.

Many people make the mistake of thinking of the Roman Catholic Church - especially of its hierarchy - purely as a religious institution. The Roman Catholic Church is far more than just a religious institution. It is the top player on the geopolitical scene, having the best intelligence gathering apparatus that the world has ever seen (through its diplomatic relations, its numerous religious orders, and the confessional box)! If not the richest institution in the history of the world, then it certainly ranks near the top of the heap. (It probably is the richest!) It also heads the ecumenical drive for one-world religion. And its Jesuit Order is at the top of the secret societies' list. ((Please see my TTT newsletters on the Jesuits (Parts I through IV) on Internet web site: www.tacklingthetoughtopics.net .))

Sadly, the hierarchy of the Roman Catholic Church has a well-documented history of torture, murder, assassination, religious genocide, political intrigue, ecclesiastical tyranny, fomenting and orchestrating of revolutions and wars, and many other nefarious activities. For centuries this hierarchical system brought the people of the world the "dark ages" in Europe, when kings were crowned and deposed by the Papacy - and when kings bowed their knees to popes who rivaled the greatest rulers the world has ever seen - in both wealth and power!

The Vatican for centuries ruled Europe. The pope had both temporal and spiritual authority over all his subjects. Though the popes temporarily appeared to lose their "temporal power" over the kings of the earth near the end of the 19th century, there can be no doubt that the Vatican still aspires to rule over the kings of the earth once more!

Let us take a look at but a "small sample" of the Vatican's "History of Assassination, Murder, Genocide, Torture, & the Subversion of Nations" (hopefully in some resemblance of chronological order):

II. A History of Assassination, Murder, Genocide, Torture, & the Subversion of Nations

((Important Note: Since the mid-1540s, the Vatican (i.e., the papacy) has been controlled, for the most part and with very rare exceptions, by the Jesuit Order. That is, the "White Pope" has been, for most of the last four centuries, controlled by the "Black Pope" (i.e., the Jesuit Superior General). A number of the below-listed heads of State were assassinated because they had expelled the Jesuits from their borders. Also remember when reading this list that the Roman Catholic Church's hierarchy has for many centuries hated Jews, Protestants, Bible-believing Christian groups, and Orthodox Christians - and have, whenever and wherever opportunity presented itself, slaughtered all these groups with brutal savagery. The Jesuit Order, officially recognized as a Catholic Order in 1540, has more often than not been at the forefront of this butchery in the past four centuries.))

? 1095 - Pope Urban II proclaims the First Crusade. Here is what historian Will Durant has written concerning this episode of religious genocide: "When in 1095, Pope Urban II proclaimed the First Crusade, some Christians [i.e., Roman Catholics] thought it desirable to kill the Jews in Europe before proceeding so far to fight Turks in Jerusalem. Godfrey of Bouillon, having accepted the leadership of the crusade, announced that he would avenge the blood of Jesus upon the Jews?leaving not one of them alive; and his companions proclaimed their intention to kill all Jews who would not accept Christianity [Ed. Note: i.e., the Roman Catholic version of it]."

? 1096 - Catholic Crusaders slaughter half the Jews of Worms on their way through that town.

? 1099 - Catholic Crusaders, sent on a holy mission by the pope of Rome, make it to the walls of Jerusalem. All of the city's inhabitants - men, women, and children - Jew, Moslem, and Christian - are all butchered by the "Christian" (i.e., Catholic) crusaders!

? 1208-1226 - The Albigensian Crusades take place. Pope Innocent III orders a crusade to be launched against the Albigensian Christians in southern France, and armies are sent to exterminate them. At the French city of Beziers over 20,000 men, women, and children are butchered. The Albigensian Christians are wiped out. Here is what author Henry H. Halley had to say about the Albigensian Crusades:

"[The Albigenses] preached against the immoralities of the [Catholic] priesthood, pilgrimages, worship of saints and idols?opposed the claims of the Church of Rome; made great use of the Scriptures.

?By 1167 they [i.e., the Albigenses] embraced possibly a majority of the population of South France.

?In 1208 a crusade was ordered by Pope Innocent III; a bloody war of extermination followed, scarcely paralleled in history. Town after town was put to the sword, and the inhabitants murdered without distinction of age or sex.

?Within a hundred years the Albigenses were utterly rooted out."

((NOTE: Here is what Frank Chalk and Kurt Jonassohn (Co-authors of the book The History and Sociology of GENOCIDE) have to say about the Albigensian Crusades:

"The Albigensian Crusades slash through the history of France and of the [Catholic] Church like a gaping wound. From 1208 to 1226 the papacy sent army after army to the South of France to crush the Albigensian 'heretics' and to punish their supporters. ? They [i.e., the Albigensian Crusades] began with a calculated act of terror, the massacre of [Ed. Note: large numbers of men, women, and children at] Beziers; they ended with the establishment of the Inquisition, one of the most effective means of 'thought control' that Europe has ever known. They [the papal armies] were completely successful: The losing faith, the Albigensian 'Heresy', was exterminated.

?Their disappearance as a social group was carefully planned and executed with persistent cruelty."))

((Comment to the above quote: Wasn't the exact same "extermination plan" executed over 700 years later (in the 1940s) by Roman Catholic Ustashi soldiers in a country called Croatia?))

? 1236 - Catholic Crusaders slaughter Jews in Anjou and Poitou. Here is what historian Will Durant has written on this massacre: "[The Crusaders] invaded the Jewish settlements of Anjou and Poitou. [The Crusaders] bade all Jews be baptized; when the Jews refused, the Crusaders trampled 3000 of them to death under their horses' hoofs."

? 1243 - All Jews in Belitz, Germany (near Berlin) are burned alive by Roman Catholics. According to historian Will Durant, their alleged crime was that 'some of them had defiled a consecrated host'.

? 1298 - All Jews in Rottingen are burned to death by Roman Catholics. According to historian Will Durant, their alleged crime was: 'desecrating a sacramental wafer'.

? 14th century (1300s) - The Roman Catholic Church blames the Jews for the "Black Death" (probably the bubonic plague). Here is what Dave Hunt, author of the book A Woman Rides the Beast, has written concerning this time: "From the time the popes ruled Rome, the Jews' plight was far more grievous than it had ever been at the hands of the pagan rulers. Pagans had blamed every disaster upon Christians. Now the Roman Catholic Church blamed all on the Jews. Accused of causing the 'Black Death', Jews were rounded up and hanged, burned, and drowned by the thousands in revenge."

? July 6, 1415 - Jan Hus (English spelling: John Huss), a Czech Catholic priest for years (and Reformer), is martyred by being burned at the stake (not long after having been excommunicated) on orders from the Roman Catholic Church. He had vigorously opposed auricular confession, papal indulgences and corruption, masses for the dead, etc. He attended (under guaranteed "safe passage") the Council of Constance in order to defend his beliefs; however, his safe passage was revoked and he was condemned and executed without getting a fair chance to present a defense of his beliefs.

? 1429 - Pope Martin V orders the King of Poland to exterminate the Christian Hussites (named after Czech martyr Jan Hus) in Bohemia.

? 1477 - Pope Sixtus IV organizes a crusade against the Waldensian Christians (also called the Vaudois in the French language) in southern France.

((NOTE: Both the Albigenses and Waldenses (the Vaudois) were Bible-believing Christians who were simple farmers and peasants. They did not want any part of the cesspool of corruption that existed within the Vatican and much of its priesthood. They studied Bible verses whenever they could, and they placed the Holy Bible above papal authority. If you would like more information on these papal crusades against Bible-believing Christian groups and other Protestants, I recommend that you read my TTT

#72 entitled "Death by Government and Death by Church" that is posted on Internet web site: www.tacklingthetoughtopics.net .))

? 1481 - Kickoff of the "Spanish Inquisition". The Roman Catholic Church hierarchy choreographs an orgy of torture and burning folks alive - called the Inquisition. Though aimed primarily at Jews and Moslems, the Inquisition also targets Christians whose beliefs are not completely in line with the Roman Catholic Church's doctrines and practices. In the first two years (1481-1483), at least 2000 individuals are burned alive. As author Dave Hunt recounts in his book A Woman Rides the Beast: "?In Spain alone the number of condemned exceeded 3 million, with about 300,000 burned at the stake [during the length of the Spanish Inquisition]." (Hunt quoting from R.W. Thompson's book The Papacy and the Civil Power)

((NOTE: Here is what Ron Hembree, pastor and author, wrote about the Spanish Inquisition:

"One of history's most malevolent persons died on this day [September 16] in 1498. Tomas de Torquemada, as Inquisitor General of Spain, ordered more than 10,000 people to be burned at the stake because they didn't agree with his religious views. He used the Inquisition for religious and political reasons, believing punishment of [Ed. Note: so-called] 'heretics' and non-Christians - chiefly Jews and Muslims - was the only way to achieve political unity in Spain. Greatly feared and hated by millions, he persuaded [Spanish King] Ferdinand and [Queen] Isabella to rid Spain of Jews. More than a million families were driven from Spain during that time. The country never recovered from the resulting decline."

Ed. Comment concerning the preceding quote: The Inquisition was not only used for "religious and political reasons" - it was also used to loot and plunder land and possessions of non-Catholic Christians, Jews, Muslims, etc. Many non-Catholic Christians were accused of being "heretics" simply because they held the Holy Bible to be of higher authority than the Papacy, or because they would not submit to corrupt Papal authority. Non-Catholic Christians were targeted for centuries as entire villages and regions (to include men, women, and children) were exterminated like rats. Papal armies exterminated an entire Christian population group - the Albigenses - in South France. Indeed, torture, brutality, and mass murder were the "hallmarks" of the so-called "Holy" Inquisition.))

? 1498 - The Italian Dominican Savonarola, who preached and pleaded for reform in his Roman Catholic Church, is executed on orders from that same Roman Catholic Church. His crime: he had denounced Pope Alexander VI and his corrupt papal court. Savonarola was a godly Roman Catholic clergyman who had led the revival in the city of Florence, Italy. He was excommunicated shortly before his execution.

? October 6, 1536 - Englishman William Tyndale is strangled and his dead body burnt at the stake in the town of Filford, not far from Brussels. His crime: he had translated the New Testament into the English language. Because powerful Roman Catholics in England (such as Sir Thomas More, Chancellor of England) opposed publishing the New Testament in English, Tyndale went over to the European continent where he was able to get English-language New Testaments published in Germany. Roman Catholic Sir Thomas More put a "hit" out on Tyndale, and he was eventually betrayed and imprisoned not far from Brussels. After 16 months in prison, he was executed as a "heretic".

((NOTE: The Roman Catholic Church's hierarchy for centuries forbade the common man to own, possess, or even to read the Holy Bible, especially in his native language. Not only did popes frequently forbid the ownership and possession of the Bible, but they also often imposed the death penalty on those who were caught with a Bible in their possession. David W. Daniels, author of the book Did the Catholic Church Give Us the Bible?, reveals the following Catholic 'record' concerning Bible possession and ownership:

"THE WORD OF GOD: Check out this history:

1229 - Synod of Toulouse forbids reading or owning a Vaudois Bible. (Canon XIV)

1234 - Council of Tarragona: No Bible permitted in one's native language. All of them must be burned.

1408 - 3rd Synod of Oxford: Heresy to have an 'unauthorized' (preserved) English Bible.

1559 - Council of Trent: Preserved Bibles are on the 'Index of Forbidden Books'. (Rule III)."

In fact, here is a statement by Pope Pius IV (Pope 1559-1565):

"The [Holy] Bible is not for the people; whosoever will be saved must renounce it. It is a forbidden book. Bible societies are satanic contrivances.")

? 1540-1570 - The Roman Catholic Church hierarchy sends a number of armies into southern France and surrounding areas that succeed in butchering at least 900,000 Waldensian Christian men, women, elderly, and children during this thirty-year period.

? 1550-1560 - 250,000 Dutch Protestants are exterminated via torture, hanging, and burning when Catholic King of Spain Phillip II sends 10,000 Spanish troops, in accordance with his Edict of 1550, to stamp out Protestantism in the Netherlands.

? 1555 - English scholar Nicholas Ridley and English preacher Hugh Latimer are burned at the stake on the orders of Roman Catholic English Queen Mary I, who with the aid of Roman Catholic Cardinal Pole, tried to return England under the yoke of the papacy. "Bloody" Mary reigned in England from 1553-1558. During her evil reign, approximately two hundred men and women were burned at the stake, to include bishops, scholars, and the top leaders of the Protestants in England. (Queen Mary I was merely following the advice of her Catholic advisers in England, and the policies of the hierarchy of her Roman Catholic Church.)

? 1555 - English Bishop John Hooper is slowly burned alive at the stake on the orders of Roman Catholic English Queen Mary I. (Again, she was "just following orders".)

? 1556 - English Archbishop (of Canterbury) Thomas Cranmer is burned at the stake on the orders of Roman Catholic English Queen Mary I. (Again, she was "just following orders".)

((NOTE: The sad stories of a number of these horrible murders - often preceded by imprisonment and sometimes torture - are contained in the excellent book Foxe's Book of Martyrs. This book can be ordered via credit card from "Power of Prophecy" by calling their toll-free order line: 1-800-234-9673.))

? 1571, 1573, and 1586 - Failed assassination attempts by "Vatican assassins" occur on the life of Elizabeth I, Queen of England. (The Papacy was working overtime to return England to "Catholic rule".) Queen Elizabeth I had expelled the Jesuits from her kingdom in 1570, and fortunately the Jesuits' many attempts at "pay back" failed.

? 1572 - The bloody massacre of Protestant French Huguenots by Roman Catholics occurs in France. Here is what author Jack Chick wrote about this episode of religious genocide: "On August 22, 1572 [Ed. Note: Several books have the date as August 24th], the bloody St. Bartholomew massacre began. This was to be one fatal blow to destroy the Protestant movement in France. The [Catholic] king of France had cleverly arranged a marriage between his sister and Admiral Coligny, the chief Protestant leader. There was a great feast with much celebrating. After four days of feasting, the soldiers were given a signal. At twelve o'clock midnight, all the houses of the Protestants in the city were forced open at once. The admiral was killed, his body thrown out of a window into the street where his head was cut off and sent to the pope. ?They also slaughtered many other well-known Protestants. In the first three days, over ten thousand were killed. The bodies were thrown into the river and blood ran through the streets into the river until it appeared like a stream of blood. ?From Paris, the destruction spread to all parts of the country. Over eight thousand more people were killed. Very few Protestants escaped the fury of the persecutors." (From his book Smokescreens)

? August 24, 1572 - Admiral Coligny, leader of the French Protestant Huguenots, is assassinated by "Vatican assassins". His head is immediately sent as a trophy to the Roman Catholic Cardinal of Lorraine (and then to the pope).

? 1584 - William, Prince of Orange, is assassinated (shot three times) by a "Vatican assassin" named Balthazar Gerard.

? 1588 - The failed invasion by the mighty Spanish Armada takes place in this year. This mighty armada of Spanish naval vessels carrying thousands of troops was tasked with defeating the British navy and putting troops on shore that would be joined by those loyal to Rome within the English borders. The goal was to return England to Catholic rule.

? 1589 - King Henry III of France is assassinated (stabbed to death) by a "Vatican assassin" named Jacques Clement.

? November 5, 1605 - The infamous "Gunpowder Plot" is thwarted in England. Led by Jesuits, this plot involved the placing of 36 barrels of gunpowder under the British Parliament building in an attempt to murder King James I and members of Parliament.

? May 14, 1610 - King Henry IV of France is assassinated (stabbed to death) by a "Vatican assassin" named Ravailac. This is Jesuit "pay back" to King Henry IV for having the 'audacity' to grant "religious liberty" to all his subjects - both Protestant and Catholic - in his 1598 "Edit of Nantes". ((NOTE: Jesuit priest Pere La Chaise, father confessor to King Louis XIV of France, persuaded him to revoke the "Edict of Nantes" in 1685.))

? 1618-1648 - The Thirty Years' War takes place. This bloody religious war was planned, orchestrated, and conducted by the Vatican and its surrogates in an attempt to exterminate all Protestants from off the face of the European continent.

? 1641 - The bloody massacre of Protestants by Roman Catholics occurs in Ireland. Approximately 150,000 Protestants were butchered from 1641 through 1649. Here is what author Jack Chick wrote about this episode of religious genocide:

"A similar massacre [Ed. Note: i.e., similar to the St. Bartholomew's Massacre in France in 1572] occurred in Ireland in 1641. The [Catholic] conspirators picked October 23rd, the feast of Ignatius Loyola, the founder of the Jesuit Order. They planned a general uprising for the whole country. All Protestants would be killed at once. To throw them [i.e., the Protestants] off guard while the plan was being made, extra acts of kindness were shown to the Protestants. Early in the morning [of October 23, 1641] the conspirators were armed and every Protestant they could find was immediately murdered. They showed no mercy. From children to the aged, they were killed. Even invalids were not spared. They were caught by complete surprise. They [i.e., the Protestants] had lived in peace and safety for years and now found no place to run. They were massacred by neighbors, friends, and even relatives.

Death often was the least they had to fear. Women were tied to posts, stripped to the waist, their breasts cut off with shears and left to bleed to death. Others who were pregnant were tied to tree branches, their unborn babies cut out and fed to the dogs while the husbands were forced to watch." (From his book Smokescreens)

((Note: Author Jack Chick made the following observation about an important similarity between the massacre of Protestant French Huguenots in 1572 and the massacre of Irish Protestants in 1641:

"What you've just read [about the massacre of Protestants in Ireland in 1641 and in France in 1572] is fully documented and historically factual. It is found in Foxe's Book of Martyrs. ?Both of these murderous assaults by the Vatican against the [Protestant] Christians in France and in Ireland followed a similar pattern. Before the attacks, there was a time of healing when the Roman Catholics became friendly and warm, and in both cases the [Protestant] Christians were so relieved that they let their guard down and assumed the Vatican had changed. This was their fatal mistake and it cost them their lives." (From his book Smokescreens))

? 1685 - Catholic French King Louis XIV, at the urging of his father-confessor, Jesuit Pere La Chaise, revokes the "Edict of Nantes" that granted religious liberty to all Frenchmen. Louis XIV then orders his murderous dragoons to slaughter the French Protestant Huguenots. 500,000 Protestants (men, women, and children) are slaughtered!

? 1769 - Pope Clement XIII is assassinated (poisoned to death) by the Jesuits the day before he was to sign a papal document banning the Jesuit Order. (Even Roman Catholics have been murdered by their own hierarchical system and the secret societies, like the Jesuit Order and its P2 Masonry, that control the top levels of the Roman Catholic Church!)

? September 1774 - Pope Clement XIV is assassinated (poisoned to death) by the Jesuits approximately 14 months after he had signed a papal document in 1773 banning the Jesuit Order forever. ((Note: After the official recognition of the Society of Jesus, i.e., the Jesuits, as a Catholic Order in 1540, the Jesuits have totally controlled the Vatican from behind the scenes. The relatively few popes who tried to curb their power met with the same fate (i.e., assassination) as did Pope Clement XIII and Pope Clement XIV.))

? 1825 - Tsar Alexander I of Russia is assassinated (poisoned to death) by the Jesuits. Tsar Alexander I had expelled the Jesuit Order from all of Russia in 1820.

? April 14, 1865 - President Abraham Lincoln is assassinated (shot to death) by John Wilkes Booth. A 12-man military commission tries eight of the conspirators in the assassination plot; it hangs four of them. One of the conspirators, John Harrison Surratt, aided by Roman Catholic priests, flees to Canada and then to Rome, where he becomes a member of the Pope's Zouaves bodyguard unit. Returned for civil trial in Washington, D.C., in 1867, he "walks" despite overwhelming evidence against him - this due in large part to Jesuit priests from Georgetown "providing advice" to the predominantly Roman Catholic jury. The U.S. government finds so much involvement by the Papacy in the assassination of Lincoln that it breaks all diplomatic relations with the Vatican in 1867. If you doubt any of this, please read the two books-in-one volume (The Suppressed Truth about the Assassination of Abraham Lincoln by Burke McCarty and Rome's Responsibility for the Assassination of Abraham Lincoln by U.S. Brigadier General Thomas M. Harris - who was a member of the previously mentioned 12-man military commission that tried eight of the conspirators). This book is $14.95 postpaid. To order it, please make check or money order payable to "Ozark Book Publishers" and mail it to: Ozark Books // P.O. Box 3703 // Springfield, MO 65808.

? 1868 - Emperor Komei of Japan is assassinated. According to author Eric Jon Phelps, the Jesuits used agents of Ambassador Thomas Glover for the assassination.

? 1872 - Mexican President Benito Juarez is assassinated (poisoned to death) by "Vatican assassins". This was "pay back" for his having expelled the Catholic Archbishop of Mexico and five Catholic bishops - along with 200 Jesuit priests. President Juarez had also enforced the Constitution of 1857 that granted freedom of speech and of the press.

? March 13, 1881 - Tsar Alexander II of Russia is assassinated (killed by a bomb). There had been six previous failed attempted assassinations on his life. Tsar Alexander II of Russia was hated by the Jesuits for at least two reasons: (1) His father, Tsar Alexander I, had expelled the Jesuits from Russia in 1820. (2) He (Tsar Alexander II) had supported Lincoln and the Union during the Civil War, whereas Pope Pius IX supported the Confederacy! Tsar Alexander II had sent part of his Russian Naval Fleet to U.S. waters to prevent France and England from intervening militarily on the side of the Confederacy.

? 1882 - Leon Michael Gambetta, French leader who had abolished the Jesuit Order in France in 1880, is assassinated (shot to death) - "pay back" courtesy of the Jesuits.

? 1914 - The kickoff for World War I occurs in the Balkans. Vatican involvement is clearly recognizable (see the following note).

((NOTE: Please consider the following quote by Edmond Paris, author of the book The Secret History of the Jesuits:

"The public is practically unaware of the overwhelming responsibility carried by the Vatican and its Jesuits in the starting of two world wars - a situation which may be explained in part by the gigantic finances at the disposition of the Vatican and its Jesuits, giving them power in so many spheres, especially since the last conflict."

In The Secret History of the Jesuits, Edmond Paris goes on to point out that, contrary to Catholic Church propaganda, Pope Pius X actually helped instigate hostilities between Austria-Hungary and Serbia. Clearly both the Hapsburg dynasty (rulers of Austria-Hungary) and the Vatican saw the growing power of Serbia as a "threat". In fact, in late 1913 Prince Schonburg had an audience with Pope Pius X, who told Schonburg: "It would certainly have been better if Austria-Hungary had punished the Serbians for all the wrongs they had done." In other words, the Roman Catholic pope was letting this Roman Catholic European power (Austria-Hungary) know that it was past time to "take care of" the Serbian problem! The vast majority of Serbs are Orthodox Christians, and Orthodox Christians have long been hated by the Vatican!))

? 1917 - The Russian Revolution takes place. The Bolsheviks (Communists) seize power in Russia - funded by wealthy Knights of Malta in the United States. Later, two Jesuit-trained thugs, Joseph Stalin and Catholic Cardinal Agagianian, oversee the Soviet Gulag system. (Note: Both Stalin and Agagianian had been trained at the Jesuit Seminary in Tiflis, Soviet Georgia.) Millions of Russian Orthodox Christians are butchered at the hands of a totalitarian Police State. (Remember, the Vatican has long hated Orthodox Christians, and has slaughtered them whenever and wherever it could.)

? 1941-1945 - The Jewish holocaust occurs in Nazi-Fascist-controlled Europe. Up to 6 million Jews are murdered and starved to death. Roman Catholic involvement in this holocaust runs very deep. First, Roman Catholic German Knight of Malta Franz von Papen, along with the Roman Catholic Centrum Party in Bavaria, put Adolph Hitler into power. Jesuit 'father' Himmler (uncle to Heinrich Himmler) is a top officer in the Nazi SS (which is admittedly modeled after the Jesuit Order). The Vatican signs Concordats with Nazi Germany and with Fascist Italy. (Interesting Note: Neither Hitler or Mussolini, both Roman Catholics, is ever excommunicated by the Roman Catholic Church.) Roman Catholics are installed as puppet dictators in occupied and allied countries. For example, in Slovakia, the Jesuit priest, Monseigneur Tiso, was installed as dictator. Additionally, Roman Catholic Knights of Malta head up three powerful intelligence agencies during World War II (William Donovan heads the American OSS - which later becomes the CIA; German General Reinhard Gehlen heads Nazi Intelligence on the eastern front; and Russian Anton Turkul heads Soviet Intelligence, and uses Jesuit priests for his couriers). By using elements within the warring factions, the Vatican is able to ensure the slaughter of large numbers of its favorite targets: Jews, Protestants (in northern Germany and in Prussia), and Orthodox Christians. At the end of the war, the Vatican helps many Fascist war criminals to escape punishment, hiding them at various locations in Europe until they can escape to such locations as the USA, Argentina, etc.

((NOTE: Here a couple quotes that bring home the cooperation that occurred between the Vatican and the Nazi and Fascist dictatorships in Europe during World War II:

"I have learnt most of all from the Jesuit Order. ?So far, there has been nothing more imposing on earth than the hierarchical organization of the [Roman] Catholic Church. A good part of that organization I have transported direct to my own [Nazi] party. ?The Catholic Church must be held up as an example. ?I will tell you a secret. I am founding an order [Ed. Note: the Nazi SS]. ?In [Heinrich] Himmler [who would become head of the Nazi SS] I see our Ignatius de Loyola [Ed. Note: the founder of the Jesuit Order]."

Adolph Hitler (German Fuehrer during World War II)

"Fascism is the regime that corresponds most closely to the concepts of the Church of Rome." - Civiltà Cattolica (House organ of the Jesuits)

Please take a moment to ponder the significance of those two quotations - especially the first one, as to how they might possibly apply to us in America in the near future. After all, a massive police and intelligence-gathering State has already been set up here in America!))

? 1941-1945 - The "Vatican's holocaust" occurs in Croatia. Though primarily directed against Serb Orthodox Christians, much smaller numbers of Jews and gypsies are also targeted. This monstrous, barbaric, and savage religious genocide is planned, orchestrated, and conducted by Roman Catholic clergy - mainly Franciscan monks, friars, and priests, along with several high-ranking Jesuits. Roman Catholic Croatian Fuehrer Ante Pavelic teams up with high-ranking Catholic prelates, such as Archbishop Stepinac and Bishop Ivan Saric, to use the Roman Catholic Ustashi militia units to torture and butcher from 600,000 to 1 million innocent Serb Orthodox Christian men, women, elderly, and children. This religious genocide includes the most brutal forms of torture, forced conversions, burning people alive, raping and murdering girls and women, impaling young children alive on stakes, gouging out the eyes of live victims to make necklaces, starving children to death, burying victims alive, crucifying Orthodox priests to wooden doors, and some other atrocities that I do not feel should be written in a newsletter. Roman Catholic clergy not only frequently lead the Catholic Ustashi units in their murder and mayhem, but also participate in this savagery. Franciscan monk, 'father' Miroslav Filipovic, served as the cruel camp commandant at Jasenovac (one of the worst of the concentration camps).

Here is what Monica Farrell, author of the booklet "Ravaging Wolves", has to say about this savage episode of religious genocide:

"This [Ed. Note: her booklet "Ravaging Wolves"] is the record of torture and murder committed in Europe in 1941-1945 by an army of [Roman] Catholic Actionists known as the Ustashi, led by monks and priests, and even participated in by nuns. The [innocent Serb Orthodox Christian] victims suffered and died in the cause of liberty and freedom of conscience. The least we can do is to read the record of their sufferings and keep in mind that it happened, not in the dark ages, but in our ENLIGHTENED [Ed. Note: emphasis in original] generation. Ustashi is another name for Catholic Action."

((NOTE: A tremendous quote by Avro Manhattan, from his book The Vatican's Holocaust, sums up well why we all should be concerned about this horrible religious genocide conducted by the most powerful religious-geopolitical institution in the world that happened NOT 1000 years ago, but rather happened less than 70 years ago:

"?Here [in Croatia in the 1940s] the [Roman] Catholic Church [erected] a State in complete accord with all her tenets. The result was a monster standing upon the armed might of twin totalitarianisms: the totalitarianism of a ruthless Fascist State and the totalitarianism of [Roman] Catholicism?

What gives to such a creature of Vatican diplomacy its peculiar importance is that here we have an example of the Catholic Church's implementing all her principles, unhampered by opposition, or by fear of world opinion.

The uniqueness of the Independent Catholic State of Croatia lies precisely in this: that it provided a model, in miniature, of what the Catholic Church, had she the power, would like to see in the West and, indeed, everywhere. As such it should be carefully scrutinized. For its significance?is of the greatest import to all the freedom-loving peoples of the world."))

? 1960s - Vietnam: Three Roman Catholic leaders in Vietnam try to set up a Roman Catholic dictatorship in a country where the vast majority of the people are Buddhists. Here are some excerpts from my TTT newsletter entitled "The Vietnam War":

(1)"Editor of TTT doubts if you will find very much information on the 'Ngo Dinh' brothers in most U.S. history textbooks. One brother, Ngo Dinh Diem, became president of the newly formed Republic of Vietnam in 1956. The second brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu became the head of the secret police. The third brother, Ngo Dinh Thuc, was the Roman Catholic Archbishop of the city of Hue. Despite the fact that the overwhelming majority of Vietnam's population was Buddhist (80%), these three Roman Catholic leaders attempted to set up a Roman Catholic dictatorship. According to Avro Manhattan, author of the book The Vatican's Holocaust: 'The trio [the Ngo Dinh brothers] had been inching for years toward veritable religious persecution of the vast majority of the country's [South Vietnam's] population of 15 million, only 1.5 million of whom were Catholic.'"

(2) "The heavy-handed Roman Catholic religious discrimination against Buddhists led to numerous peaceful protests by Buddhists across South Vietnam. During several of these protests, Buddhist monks set fire to themselves to draw attention to the religious persecution in South Vietnam. Avro Manhattan describes the response of President

Ngo Dinh Diem:

'The government sent troops and armored cars and fired at the demonstrators, killing nine Buddhists.

?Discrimination against the Buddhists continued unabated. Arrests of Buddhist monks multiplied. [Buddhist] Pagodas were declared [off limits], closed, and at times even attacked.

?Buddhist monks, Buddhist nuns, and Buddhist leaders were arrested by the thousands.

?Buddhists were tortured by the police.

?[South] Vietnam was put under martial law.

?The [South Vietnamese] army became openly restive and put up passive resistance? against their own government. Result: the war against the Communist north was being lost, since the population at large, upon whose support the struggle ultimately rested, refused to cooperate."

(3) "So many people were arrested that special 'internment camps' were set up. Avro Manhattan describes the situation as follows:

'The jails were soon bursting with prisoners. The mass arrests became so numerous that finally it was necessary to open detention camps followed by additional ones euphemistically called 'internment camps'?

There followed massacres within and outside such detention sites, like those which took place at Mocay, Thanhphu, Soctrang, Cangiuoc, Dailoc, Duyxuyen, to mention only a few. Religious sects and racial minorities were persecuted, arrested, and whenever possible ELIMINATED.

Minority groups were exterminated or accepted the Catholic Church to save their lives."

((Important Note: For more detailed information on World War I, World War II, and the Vietnam War, please read my TTT newsletters on those wars that are posted on Internet web site: www.tacklingthetoughtopics.net .))

? November 22, 1963 - U.S. President John F. Kennedy (JFK) is assassinated (shot to death). A number of Knights of Malta (a Roman Catholic military order co-located in Rome with, and controlled by, the Jesuit Superior General) are involved in the assassination (e.g., Clay Shaw, who is also a contract agent of the CIA), or are involved in the subsequent cover-up (e.g., James Jesus Angleton of the CIA - who is appointed CIA liaison to the Warren Commission). ((NOTE: A number of 33 degree Freemasons are also involved in the JFK assassination and/or cover-up. John Daniel, in his book

The Grand Design Exposed, makes a good case that the Jesuit Order controls the top levels of Freemasonry. Thus, the Vatican's involvement in the assassination of President Kennedy runs very deep, just as it did in the assassination of President Lincoln.))

((NOTE: Some Catholic apologists may cry: 'Aha, Editor of TTT did not name the actual assassins in some of the assassinations listed in this newsletter'. True - the assassins' names are not always known - even hundreds of years after the event. However, it was the Vatican - the Papacy - and more often than not, the Jesuit Order - that had the MOTIVE, the MEANS/ASSETS, and the well-documented history of such nefarious activities. Additionally, the Vatican's "modus operandi" often nicely fits the criminal act. To explain in more depth:

? MOTIVE - The motive is to expand the power of the papacy (and in doing so, the power of the Jesuit Order), or simply to expand the power and/or wealth of the Jesuit Order alone; to punish those monarchs, president, or other leaders - or entire nations or peoples - who would not "play ball" with the Vatican; to punish popes who dared step out of line as concerns the Jesuits' game plan; to "pay back" monarchs, presidents, or other leaders who had dared to curtail the Jesuits' activities within their borders - or who had dared to expel the Jesuits from their borders; etc. At any crime scene, we must ask the question: "Cui bono?" (i.e., Who benefits?)

? MEANS/ASSETS - Through the many Catholic orders, parish priests, the confessional box (used by Catholic priests who are 'father-confessors' to national leaders and other powerful individuals, as well as to common folk), etc., the Vatican possesses an intelligence network-information gathering system that dwarfs the combined intelligence assets of the CIA, FBI, MI-5, MI-6, the Mossad, and the FSB (old KGB)! Also, because of its many monastic orders, its ties with the CIA and the Mob/Mafia, etc., the Vatican has an almost unlimited supply of 'motivated' or highly paid assassins. Additionally, because the Vatican is probably the richest institution on the face of the earth, it has tremendous sources of finance on which to draw for such assassination operations. (Also, a number of top leaders and top officials of intelligence agencies (e.g., William Donovan, William Casey, John McCone, James Jesus Angleton, etc.) have been Knights of Malta - a military order headquartered with, and controlled by, the Jesuit Superior General!)

? DOCUMENTED HISTORY & MODUS OPERANDI - What other institution in recorded history has such a well-documented record of assassinating heads of State and Protestant leaders? What other institution has regularly used poison to kill so many of its enemies? What other "religious institution" (calling itself "Christian") in the last 1000 years has regularly resorted to religious genocide against other Christians?))

III. SUMMARY

The preceding information is but a small sampling of the well-documented history of torture, assassination, mass murder, etc., by the hands of a "religious" institution that claims, at its highest levels, to be "Christian".

The Vatican has for many centuries hated Jews, Bible-believing Christian groups (prior to anyone taking the name 'Protestant'), Orthodox Christians, and later, Protestants. This hatred has rarely been disguised, and has so often manifested itself in the most barbarous, savage torture of fellow human beings on a scale not even closely approached by any other religious institution "calling itself Christian" in the history of the world.

This barbarism - this savagery - has not been limited to the 12th century. This barbarism - this savagery - manifested itself as recently as the 1940s in Catholic-controlled Croatia, where the Roman Catholic Ustashi militia, led by Catholic clergymen (mostly Franciscans), went on an orgy of torture, rape, and murder of innocent Serb Orthodox Christians that rivaled - no, exceeded - just about anything that can be found in the annals of pagan savagery. Their deeds included impaling small children on stakes, gouging out people's eyes, crucifying Orthodox priests to wooden doors, burning people alive, flaying people alive, raping and ravishing girls and women, forcible conversions, etc. This vile, wicked disregard of human life was directed at innocent men, women, elderly, and children - led by, sanctioned by, blessed by, and participated in by Roman Catholic clergymen! This is a recent case in history of State-Church genocide!

IV. CONCLUSIONS & QUESTIONS

1. While there are good, decent Christians within the ranks of Catholicism (most are at the low levels), Catholicism is dominated at the top by men from secret societies (Jesuits, Knights of Malta, and P2 Masonry) who are not Christian by any stretch of the imagination. Even before the Jesuits appeared formally on the scene in the Catholic Church in the mid 1500s (formally recognized as an Order in 1540), very wicked men often held the highest positions within the Roman Catholic Church, to include the office of pope itself! These wicked men directed crusades against Jews, Moslems, and fellow Christians! These wicked men organized that awful institution (office) of the 'holy' Inquisition, which regularly used the most brutal tortures mankind has ever seen. This office of Inquisition still exists, although it has undergone two "name changes" in recent history.

2. The key doctrines and objectives of the Roman Catholic Church have not changed, despite all the "ecumenical rhetoric" of loving the "separated brethren", of becoming more "liberal", etc. The Roman Catholic Church has never repudiated her "right" to use force wherever and whenever she has the opportunity to do so. She has never repudiated her "right" to use torture. She (at her highest levels) still hates, despite her "ecumenical rhetoric" to the contrary, Jews, Protestants, Orthodox Christians, other non-

Catholic Christian independent groups of believers, and even those Roman Catholics who dare to question any of her doctrines or practices!

3. Question: Was the persecution of Jews, Orthodox Christians, and other genuine Christians in World War II (especially in Nazi Germany and Croatia) a model of what the Roman Catholic Church has planned for many of us Americans immediately preceding or during the early stages of World War III and/or during the implementation of full martial law in the USA? ((Don't forget, the Catholic Church put Hitler into power in Nazi Germany through its Knight of Malta Franz von Papen and the German Catholic Centrum Party in Bavaria! Don't forget that the Catholic Church supported Hitler, Mussolini, Ante Pavelic (in Croatia), Jesuit Monseigneur Tiso in Slovakia, and other Catholic dictators throughout Europe in World War II! Don't forget that the Nazi SS was modeled after the Jesuit Order! Don't forget that Hitler claimed that he was merely following the example of the Catholic Church's historical persecution of the Jews when he persecuted them in Nazi Germany!))

4. Question: What country will American Jesuits, American Knights of Malta, American high-level Knights of Columbus, and American members of Opus Dei support when a total fascist police State goes into full swing here in the USA: America or the Vatican State? Some people note the dual loyalty of American Jews who are both Israeli and American citizens. But almost nobody talks about the dual loyalties of American Catholic prelates (at the higher levels), Jesuit Provincial Generals and other top officials of the Jesuit Order in the USA, American Roman Catholic Knights of Malta in key power positions in the U.S. government and intelligence agencies, high-level American Roman Catholic Knights of Columbus, etc. Why?

((NOTE: During World War II the German army invaded and occupied the sovereign state of Yugoslavia. Croatia was at that time one of the regions of Yugoslavia. Top-level Roman Catholics in the Yugoslav government and Yugoslav army BETRAYED their country and their fellow countrymen into the hands of the invading German army, because the Vatican fully supported Nazi and Fascist regimes such as Germany and Italy. These Catholic Yugoslav citizens who held key positions in the Yugoslav government and military showed the German soldiers where weapons and military supplies were stored and betrayed members of the Resistance into the hands of the invading troops. Their loyalty to the Vatican (i.e., the Papacy) took precedence over their loyalty to their own country (and over the government or army in which many of them served)! Couldn't happen in America, you say? Why couldn't it? Since the Papacy favors Fascist-type regimes, why wouldn't she favor a Fascist regime (a Police State) here in America, and tell her "faithful" to march "lock step" with such a totalitarian regime?))

5. Question: How can anybody, whether Catholic or non-Catholic, defend this so-called "religious" institution, the Roman Catholic Church, which has tortured, butchered, and slaughtered millions of Jews, Moslems, independent Bible-believing Christian groups prior to the use of the term "Protestants", Orthodox Christians, and Protestant Christians over the centuries?

6. For those who might in gross ignorance accuse me of trying to "start a religious war" between Catholics and Protestants in America, let me say that I am trying rather to "prevent a religious genocide" from being perpetrated on America's non-Catholic Christians and Jews by the Vatican and her proxies here in the United States whenever this country is placed under full martial law - as this country and/or its people are placed under the control of one-world government with its one-world religion.

None of the Protestant denominations or other non-Catholic Christian groups has:

? An "Office of Inquisition" (now called the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith).

? Military orders (like the Jesuit Order and its Knights of Malta).

? A militia for its religious leader (like the Knights of Columbus - the pope's militia).

? A well-documented history of frequently carrying out religious genocide, fomenting wars & revolutions, supporting Fascist dictatorships, etc.

Rather, it is the Vatican, and the Vatican alone of all Christian sects and denominations, which has all of the above-listed items. Additionally, it is the Vatican alone that aspires to once again have both spiritual and temporal power to rule on the earth as she did in Europe for centuries during the "dark ages".

((IMPORTANT NOTE: In case anyone is thinking of accusing me of "hate" for writing this newsletter, let me say a few words:

1. It is NOT "hate" to:

? Repeat some facts from history in order to try to warn folks of great danger that may strike in the near future.

? Expose a mass-murdering serial killer of an institution that loves to use torture.

? Expose an institution that is a HATER of Jews, Protestants, Orthodox Christians, etc.

? Expose an institution that loves Fascist regimes and Police States.

2. It is HATE to:

? Torture human beings.

? Conduct religious genocide against any and all groups who are different in their religious beliefs than the Roman Catholic Church's beliefs whenever and wherever the opportunity presents itself (such as in Croatia in the 1940s and in Vietnam in the 1960s).

? Assassinate (both literally and figuratively - i.e., character assassination) any and all individuals who expose the Catholic Church's propensity for torture, Inquisition, and religious genocide - or who expose its false doctrines and pretended claims of authority to rule over everyone, in both the secular and ecclesiastical arenas, wherever her shadow falls.))

V. FINAL THOUGHTS

Again, this was a tough to write; and no doubt for some folks it is, or will be, a tough newsletter to read. Sadly, history indeed is full of numerous examples of the bloody deeds of the Vatican. I did not list some of the bloody events that the Vatican clearly was involved in, such as the French Revolution. (In some of their nefarious activities they were a little more careful in covering up their "tracks" than in others.) I urge you to read John Daniel's book The Grand Design Exposed to get some pretty good evidence of Jesuit involvement in fomenting the bloody French Revolution. Likewise, due to space limitation, I did not list many of the other assassinations that the Jesuits have carried out. Please read Bill Hughes' book The Secret Terrorists - he makes a pretty good case of Jesuit involvement in the assassination of a number of U.S. presidents.

A hierarchical structure, such as that found in the Roman Catholic Church, is wonderfully made for the use of evil men to carry out torture, Inquisition, and mass murder. Sadly, it has been used often throughout history for those very purposes. As John E. E. Dalberg Acton wrote: "Power tends to corrupt, and absolute power corrupts absolutely."

My TTT newsletters are not written strictly for a Christian audience, as are my ETI newsletters. However, I must state here in this issue of the TTT newsletter that my study of the Holy Bible, from Genesis to Revelation, for over a decade, has shown me quite clearly that the Lord Jesus Christ NEVER intended to set a massive, hierarchical, totalitarian, monopolistic "religious system" that would "rule vigorously" over not only all Christians, but all peoples that fell under its shadow. Nor did He intend that a special priesthood would be set up that was similar to, and rivaled, the pagan priesthood in Babylon and in imperial Rome. ((Please see Alexander Hislop's book The Two Babylons..))

The relatively short history of communism has shown us that whenever they were in the minority in a country, they pleaded for "tolerance" and acceptance - until they could seize all the levers of power. Then there was NO tolerance or acceptance for any rival or competing groups.

When the Catholic Church came to America, it asked for tolerance and acceptance - and, for the most part, it received such. Now that the Catholic Church has grown very powerful in America, will it now help destroy the very freedoms that allowed it to take root here in America? Will the Roman Catholic Church, both here in America and at the Vatican, cooperate with the forces that seek to enslave America and the rest of the world under one-world government and one-world religion (under the auspices of a New World Order)? Is the hierarchy of the Roman Catholic Church, with its infamous Jesuit Order, at the very head of this effort to bring in a New World Order? And again, which country will American Roman Catholics support - the Vatican State or America - when the pope comes out in support of whatever totalitarian regime is set up here in America when we go under full-blown martial law - or under a one-world government? Will key American Catholic prelates (such as the 10 Jesuit Provincial Generals assigned to the USA) spearhead a religious genocide here in America at that time, as key European Catholic prelates spearheaded religious genocide in Croatia and other locations in Europe during World War II? These are questions that must be asked - yea, and discussed in an open forum. And we most likely do NOT have a lot of time to get this discussion started!

Title: 2tuff I got some questions about the Jesuit Order

Cade Foster - May 19, 2006 07:59 AM (GMT)

Hi! I saw a show tonight on A & E about the Illuminati and the Vatican called "Illuminati Angels and Demons". It had Jim Marrs as one of the guest. They then talked about how it started from the Roman days during this part of the show it reminded me of the Catholic church forming. Then it talked about how the Knights of Templar fled Europe then infiltrated freemasonry in the new world of "america".

Then the intresting part came the show talked about how a Vatican Swiss Guard commander was found murderd with his wife, kid and another high ranking guard in 1998. There bodys was found by a nun who was going to the garden. As I watched this I thought maybe the Jesuit Order could of done this? But this show im watching have not even mentioned the Jesuit Order not even once they said some Knights of Templar could of killed them.

Later on in the show it talked about the mysterious death of Pope Poyous in the 1940's they said some Italian fascist had killed him but I didn't really believe in this theory. I then rememberd how you told me about the "cup of borgia" The show said the Pope could of been poisend and then the whole "cup of borgia" thing came to my mind but the thign is they never mentioned the Jesuits. They always talked about masons, illuminati and SMOM.

Also in the show it talked about the mysterious death of John Paul I and the assasination attempt of John Paul the II. Now im watcing and trhey are talking about the bidlerbergs I am real suprised that they are showing this show on A & E.

So here is the questions I have

1. Who killed Pope Payous in WWII?

Was it musalini fascist? or the Jesuit Order cup of borgia?

2. Who killed John Paul the I?
3. Did an arab man really shoot John Paul the II or was this arab guy a scape goat?
4. Who murderd the commander of the swiss guard in 1998 and why did they kill 2 high ranking swiss guards whos job is to protect the pope?
5. Does the Jesuits want to take over the vatican and throw out the pope?

I thought the Pope/Vatican was allies with the Jesuit Order why would the JO want to kill the swiss guard or the Pope?

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 19, 2006 10:47 PM (GMT)

The Jesuits know that many people are waking up due to the massive easily utilised communications of today such as the Internet. They realised they needed to spread disinformation mixed with many truths via agents such as FBI Division 5 etc. Most of the sites on conspiracy are agents working for the Order. The very few that are truthful get attacked by the mainstreamer alternative sites in order to try to turn people off the real information. Right now you must also remember that interest in the secret society network as a mean of joining and numbers has been lacking for quite some time. All this information being allowed out to the public has fueled peoples interest in secret societies. A good example of this is the Da Vinci Code which has helped dramatically increase students into Opus Dei `Work of God.' Opus Dei actually use the Da Vinci Code to sneak people into their devious group and its working well. You will notice that the Jesuits aren't mentioned in this book. The book was written by a Temporal Coadjutor whos job was to promote confusion on religion which will aid in the near future when they destroy all current religions in favour of one new one. He was also to write the book with many flaws which could be easily filled in order to again create confusion amongst people. He also helps keep the scam of Jesus alive instead of the Solar/Sun. This is why your seeing so much information which many elements of truth to them on public tv these days. Also they can weed out the dissenters amongst us who will be their enemy and eventually do what they did to William Cooper, Joe Vialls etc but on a mass scale with Camps managed by FEMA but really controlled by FINCEN, in other words the United Nations.

Jim Marrs is a promoter of much misinformation similar to David Icke. Texe Marrs is another researcher but hes a definate temporal Coadjutor. They just wont dare go near the Jesuit Order. I'm surprised they even mention the SMOM as even these are keep quiet in most circles.

People think Switzerland rules the world but this is utter nonsense. Remember on that if theres a serious threat to the Pope, the SMOM are put in charge of security and the Swiss removed in favour of these Knights. The Templars didn't start Freemasonry in America, if anything it was Rosslyn, Scotland. Remember on that the Jesuits created the Scottish Rite Freemasonry and if I remember correct the York Rite also. All freemasonry bows to the Superior General and his Society of Jesus. The Superior General is the most powerful freemason on earth. George Bush Snr is very high in Freemasonry as well believe it or not, but of course no where near Peter Hans Kolvenbach. If I remember correctly hes a #99, 1 below 100 which is left for Lucifer himself.

When ever someone is poisoned, especially within the Church or by the Church, this is known as the Cup of Borgia. This name is used as the Borgia family were renowned as one of the most ruthless families that were masters of the use of Poison. The Jesuit Order was created by Loyola and DON FRANCIS BORGIA. The Jesuits were sent to all corners of the earth to find medicine tribesmen in order to learn about poisoning etc. Francis Xavier, who I think was Loyola's son was one of these priests and this aided in the new Inquisition known now as Vaccination thanks to Xavier and of course Jesuit Edward Jenner.

1. Society of Jesus

2. Society of Jesus

3. I believe this Jesuit Russian agent did commit the act. The Jesuit debilitated JP2 by sending him to the non-papal hospital and infusing tainted blood into his body. He was then ruled by Ratzinger who behind the scenes is a yes man for the Jesuit Order. The Jesuit Order will not allow troublemaking Popes to take office from now on. If Ratzinger plays up he will be Cupped or disabled just the same.

4. Society of Jesus will be behind this and maybe it was simply a warning but I cant answer this question for sure and maybe it should be directed to the master of Jesuit knowledge, Eric Phelps who can answer everything in depth.

5. The Society of Jesus have wished to totally rule the Vatican for a long time. I Personally believe since Loyola created them in 1536. They took over complete Vatican control when the pope was made the Infallible prince. The Jesuits have stole Vatican and Pope funds and truely loyal Vatican members detest the power of the Jesuit Order.

The Society of Jesus has no friends and does not wish to believe it does. Friendship is weakness to them along with wants etc. The Jesuits attack the Pope etc when they no longer follow all orders or the Pope etc are trying to attack the Jesuits in some way. Its all about discipline and who controls the roost. Jesuits do not mess around my friend and if you cross them or do not obey you should expect to end up dead or disabled as many popes and others have found out.

Cade Foster - May 19, 2006 11:39 PM (GMT)

I really believe Pope Poyous was giving the infomous cup of borgia cause no one ever knew how he had died. They also had "embalmed his body" and never did a autopsy to find out how he mysteriously died all this added up is highly unusuel.

I know around 1942 when the Nazis started killing off the Jews Pope Poyous stood up and said he didnt agree with Hitler and Musalini stance on the death camps. While most of the Vatican was allied with Hitler/Muslini Pope Poyous was the only one who didnt agree.

As for the Swiss guards mysteriously killed and the official story says "they committed suicide" is real fishy in itself why would they commit suicide? Being a Swiss Guard is probably one of the most honorable jobs you could get you would be protecting one of the most powerfull men on the planet. I don't know if they where shot or poisend but I do know there was 4 of them dead the commander his wife,daughter, and another officer. I really want to conduct a investigation and see what info I can find.

I am not 100% convinced that Texe Marris is a temporal co-adjutor. He has a lot of good information about the religious right and their connections to the Vatican. He should spend less time talking about the Zionists because they are not in control. I am convinced that Alex Jones is a co-adjutor since he always shuts people up who expose the Vatican. His connections to the Gibson family and the fact that he is selling the Neoconned! books also proves that fact. Marris should stop associating himself with Jones and talk more about the Vatican. That would help his reputation.

Cade Foster - May 20, 2006 04:34 AM (GMT)

so are Jim Marris and Texx Marris related???

Mark Brewer - May 20, 2006 08:35 AM (GMT)

I have heard that Jim and Texe are related. Apparently, they trace their genealogies back to the owners of the Marris castle in Scotland.

Cade Foster - May 20, 2006 11:33 AM (GMT)

I have a feeling they are I looke at both of there pics they look like blood brothers or at least cousins they both have white/grayish hair and look the same age If Jimm didnt have the beard they would probably look like twins.

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 16, 2006 01:24 AM (GMT)

King George V was a Knight of Malta. So was his cousin, Nicholas II. Both worked for the Black Pope in causing WWI; Nicholas II was secreted out of Russia and his son, Alexi, became a KGB Colonel within the Polish Secret Police, and was also a Knight of Malta according to Amerian Opinion, March, 1976. Alexi's name was changed to Michael M. Goleniewski, who later "defected" to the US. Goleniewski was handled by CIA officer and SMOM Herman Kimsey. Both the KGB and CIA work together via the Knights of Malta.

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 19, 2006 11:15 PM (GMT)

What I believe really happened--and this isn't in any of the books--Edward VIII was a DEMOCRAT, a party-goer, a man of the people LIKE Edward VII, whom George V was taught to despise by Victoria herself.

Due to the fact that Edward VIII REFUSED to marry the kind of woman that his parents sought to arrange for him (as their marriage and the marriage of his parents had been arranged), at a certain point a psych-op was created in which all security around Edward VIII was distracted while this "Wallace Simpson" was placed "in his way." A woman of notorious reputation, profligate lovers, she would never have normally be permitted into the presence of any royal, if Security were at work. In fact, it was known by the FBI that she had other lovers while the Price of Wales was courting her.

If you look at my copy of his biography, and notice the photographs from 1922, you can see the rift between Geo V and the Prince of Wales in their expressions standing next to each other. Later, you can see the same horror on the Duke's face (but notice the delight in Wallace's face) as they confront Hitler and his armies in 1937.

I believe Wallace was angent sent to derail Edw VIII's (democratic-style) reign-- probably by his own father; and the gambit succeeded. And the Duke never knew and never understood what had happened to him, or what Wallace Simpson actually WAS, or why the family completely ostracized him and shut him out. He believed in Wallace; but the rest of the family knew who she really was--a Nazi operative.

He was deceived.

Emily Elizabeth Windsor-Cragg, the daughter Edw VIII never knew he had (?).

I really don't think Alexei was that CIA agent...I found a site that suggests he died of leukemia (he had leukemia, NOT hemophilia) in British Columbia in 1977.

I think Alexei was misdiagnosed as having hemophilia. Hemophilia, if I have my facts straight, is where blood doesn't clot. Alexei kept having fevers and pains in his joints... signs of a certain kind of leukemia.

Don't know how this fits into your research. Didn't want to post it in the thread because it maybe of little relevance. A mate from Uni went there; he got fast tracked and headhunted by a massive pharmaceutical company in Japan, where he remains to this day.

None of us ever heard from him much, in a matey way, after we all graduated; excepting declines to attend reunions. Never gave it a second thought before but maybe this school is pat of a selection process? In fact.. thinking about it now.. he even had some sort of free church accommodation, whilst the rest of us shared pokey student digs, in Bristol that had something to do with his old school.

Tomsk.

Stonyhurst College is the POWERHOUSE of the United Kingdom, followed by Wimbledon College who oversee Cardinal O'Connor the Archbishop of Westminster. The next in line for power is 'The City' which is looked after for the Jesuits by their jew agents the Rothschild family. Yes people who get educated at these areas and other Universities of important such as Oxford etc will be selected for various positions of power. Remember on that the Jesuits also weild major power over Cambridge University behind the scenes as with all! The same happens in the U.S with places like Harvard, Princetown & Yale universities and their secret societies such as Scroll & Key, Skull and Bones, File and Claw, Book & Snake etc. The powerhouses of the U.S are Georgetown University and Fordham University, again Jesuit education and control over Cardinal Edward Egan the archbishop of New York. The second most powerful singular person within the Vatican in the U.S is the archbishop of Chicago who controls all the western vatican treasury along with control of KKK, NOI and much more. Of course Jesuit Provincials are more powerful than any Vatican member. -2tuff

MARC RICH---All purpose swindler

by Sherman H. Skolnick

12/13/4

http://www.cloakanddagger.de/media/S_284_S/MARC%20RICH.htm

The New York Post has run a supposed exclusive story, supplied apparently by foreign intelligence sources, about the international criminal MARC RICH and his involvement in Saddam/U.N./ oil-for-food deals/with world leaders. . (NY Post, 12.13.2004). So that readers of our stories will be more fully informed, with appropriate background, we are re-posting one of our MARC RICH stories of 3/14/2001 herewith.

MARC RICH---SWINDLING THE POPE'S SOYBEAN COMPANY

3/14/01 by Sherman H. Skolnick

The Pope and his advisors had good reason to believe Chicago was the place to conduct business. The Windy City has the largest number of Catholic Church parishes of anywhere in America. Under Church provisions and Illinois law, the Catholic Archbishop of Chicago is a Corporation Sole. A little-known one-man corporation is not the usual image, however, of big business. And the Archbishop of Chicago has much more power than just any Archbishop. He is also the Treasurer for Church funds from the entire Western Hemisphere. Traditionally, such huge cash flow was deposited in the Continental Bank of Chicago. For many years, one of the largest stockholders of the Bank was Walter Cummings, Jr., who was a "man of trust" for the Church, that is, trusted to secretly handle the Church assets. And Cummings, also for many years, was the Chief Judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals, 7th Circuit, headquartered in Chicago and one step below the U.S. Supreme Court. As a reality, his Court was the end-of-the-line for most federal cases from Illinois, Wisconsin, and Indiana, since the high court in Washington agrees to consider only a few petitions a year. [Cummings did NOT disqualify himself in appeals involving his Bank. Guess who won in his crooked Court?]

When Continental Bank collapsed in 1984 [two months after I accurately publicly predicted it], Judge Cummings used his huge influence as a Banker-Judge to quietly warn local lawyers not to try to get wealthy by suing his bank on behalf of other stockholders, for plainly evident mismanagement and bank fraud. As exclusively then detailed by me, the Japanese mafia, the Yakuza, led the "run" on the Bank's holding company where they had been falsely informed their twenty billion dollars of flight capital would be in a "bank of deposit". Unlike actual banks, bank holding companies are not insured "banks of deposit". To appease the oriental underworld, several divisions of the bank were turned over to the Yakuza. In later years, Bank of America, reportedly largely owned by the Yakuza jointly with the Jesuits and the Rothschilds, took over Continental Bank.

For years the Vatican-owned department store chain, Carson Pirie Scott & Co. had been headquartered in Chicago. And Vatican-owned Hines Lumber, a giant in its field, was reportedly owned or linked to Vatican enterprises. Commonwealth Edison, the electric monopoly headquartered in Chicago, is one of the largest power firms greatly dependent on nuclear facilities. A government report showed that the Dutch Catholic financial octopus, Robeco, owned by the Vatican, is one of the largest owners of Commonwealth Edison. A federal law forbids a foreign power [like the Vatican] to own nuclear facilities in the U.S. A Chicago researcher who complained about this had her electric shut off arbitrarily. [Lots of details. Scroll down our website to "The Electric Scandal".]

And the Vatican found comfort in the fact that the Chicago Board of Trade has been almost all the years controlled by the Irish Catholic aristocracy jointly with the Vatican's financial partners and advisors, the Rothschilds. These were people that understood things and took actions on their own, not as part of the common people. And their acts and doings are not to be blamed on ordinary Irish Catholics collectively.

So the Vatican had good reason to believe they could succeed in becoming a major competitor in the soybean business in the U.S., in a place the Pope thought to be friendly to the Vatican's interests. What the Vatican and their soybean executives did not know or understand is the operation of worldwide criminal Marc Rich. Real name Reich, Rich laundered huge illegal flows of cash masquerading as soybean trading in Chicago. Clandestine gold deals for the American CIA were disguised by Rich and his gang as soybean deals, and conversely, soybean trading disguised as smuggled gold deals.

A principal partner to Marc Rich and his pirates has been the Family of George Herbert

Walker Bush---that is, the Elder Bush and his sons, George W., Jeb, and Neil. As shown by secret Federal Reserve wire transfer records, the Bush Family laundered the proceeds from worldwide illegal dealings through a joint account with the Queen of England, through the Bank owned by the British Monarch, Coutts Bank London. [Visit our website series, with documents there shown, "Greenspan Aids and Bribes Bush".]

Ferruzzi Finanziaria S.p.A., the agro-holding firm was run by what some called a wizard, Raul Gardini, who had married the daughter of the firm's founder, Serafino Ferruzzi. Their operation in the U.S. was called Central Soya Co., of Ft. Wayne, Indiana, and Ferruzzi U.S.A., Inc., with principal offices in Louisiana. Those who understood business realized Ferruzzi was actually owned and supervised by the Vatican Bank, and by the Vatican Bank Chief, Bishop Paul Marcinkus who originally once ran a Church in the mafia enclave of Cicero, adjoining Chicago and was the dominant force in First National Bank of Cicero.

The Italian firm was getting bigger and bigger presence in the soybean markets, the Chicago Board of Trade. Fair and square, following the exchange rules, Ferruzzi had cornered the market in 1989 when there was a drought expected. There was a shortage of soybeans. Ferruzzi's main competitors included Cargill, the highly secretive, privately owned firm, headquartered in Minnesota. Cargill conducted a great deal of clandestine business through the U.S./French/Israeli espionage-linked Bank of Credit and Commerce International, BCCI, interlocked with the secret dirty dealings of Marc Rich.

Another Ferruzzi competitor was Archer-Daniels-Midland, the highly political firm headquartered in Illinois. A principal of the firm, Dwayne Andreas, should have gone to prison in the Watergate Affair for laundering funds for the Nixon Whitehouse. [From 1995, ADM was accused of price-fixing certain of their items, not soybeans, and their top management has been found guilty and sentenced to federal prison.] ADM is the sponsor of several TV Network commentary programs. So the monopoly press tells us little, if anything, about the crimes of ADM.

In view of the circumstances in 1989, Cargill and ADM in soybean contracts with Ferruzzi had taken a wrong position. To fill orders, both domestic and foreign, Cargill and ADM would have to come to terms with Ferruzzi, who bet heavily in opposition to them. The Pope's firm rightfully could and would push them into default. Under the terms of the commodity exchange contracts, their failure to make good would mean that Ferruzzi would own them, since the contracts were in such large amounts.

To save themselves, Cargill and ADM reportedly had a malign influence on the Chicago Board of Trade. The then Chairman of that commodity exchange, by Emergency Resolution, July 11, 1989, changed the rules in the middle of the game. Ferruzzi was ordered to drop most of their position in soybeans.

Ferruzzi brought a suit seeking injunction against the Chicago Board of Trade in Chicago's highly corrupt Federal District Court. [Ferruzzi Trading International, et al., vs. Board of Trade of City of Chicago, No. 89 C 5469.] The case was assigned to Chicago U.S. District Judge James B. Zagel, a close crony of former Illinois Governor Jim Thompson. [In November, 1994, on our one-hour public access Cable TV Program, we demonstrated how "Big Jim" as he is called and his circle are kingpins in the "China White" high purity heroin smuggling into Chicago through small suburban airports. In later years, through interviews, we found out that Zagel through "Big Jim" is reportedly tied to Marc Rich. Big Jim has been Chairman of the worldwide lawfirm, headquartered in Chicago, Winston & Strawn. According to our TV Show, they have an inner secret unit, not actually in the "law business", transacting smuggling in contraband such as dope. This, through Switzerland, home-base of Marc Rich.]

Disregarding the law and the facts, Judge Zagel was not about to let Ferruzzi default Cargill and ADM and Ferruzzi end up owning their business. The Judge, with little fanfare, arbitrarily denied the injunction. Ferruzzi was forced to dump their contracts and positions on soybeans. Thousands of farmers were ruined, some bankrupted, some committed suicide. How did this happen? That at a time of soybean shortages, with not enough to meet domestic demand and for export, soybean prices collapsed instead of going up?

In the U.S. District Court in Chicago was brought a purported class action on behalf of angry farmers, American Agriculture Movement, Inc., et al., vs. Board of Trade of City of Chicago, case No. 89 C 8467. It was assigned to Chicago Federal District Judge George M. Marovich, a long-time banker whose bank, South Holland Trust & Savings Bank[in a Chicago south suburb] was a correspondent bank of Continental Bank of Chicago, mother ship at the time of the commodity markets and the Chicago Board of Trade.[Judge George M. Marovich, office (312) 435-5590.]

Presidential campaigns are planned four or more years in advance. Hillary Rodham Clinton was linked to a group of bankers, lawyers, and others from Fayetteville, Arkansas and elsewhere in that state. The Chicago Board of Trade was part of a money laundering apparatus, orchestrated by Marc Rich and his gang, washing illicit funds, such as from dope, for the 1992 presidential campaign of Bill Clinton. Such as, washing dope money from the CIA/George Herbert Walker Bush/Ollie North/Bill Clinton operation through the Mena, Arkansas Airport. Funds transferred through Garfield Trust & Savings Bank of Chicago, a principal owner of which has been defrocked, ex-convict Congressman Dan Rostenkowski. From there the funds were sent through the Chicago Board of Trade and Chicago Mercantile Exchange, with the connivance of Marc Rich, disguised as soybean dealings.

As a result of investigating the foregoing for my weekly one-hour television show, I and an associate of mine, Joseph Andreuccetti, were placed on Hillary Rodham Clinton's "enemies list" to be arbitrarily hounded and harassed by her Gestapo---doing dirty tricks to try to stop us. We detailed a number of these illegal things happening to us as a result of being on her "enemies list". The undisputed details are a matter of court record in Sherman H. Skolnick and Joseph Andreuccetti, plaintiffs, versus Hillary Rodham Clinton et al., defendants, case No. 96 C 4373, U.S. District Court in Chicago, assigned to the selfsame Judge George M. Marovich. Here are some excerpts from the undisputed court records

---"that the financial interests of defendant Hillary Rodham Clinton, and her law partner, Vincent W. Foster, Jr., were interwoven with certain lawyers, bankers, and agents, representatives, and investigators from Fayetteville, Arkansas and elsewhere". ---"On December 1, 1991, defendant [Hillary Rodham] Clinton, in conjunction with her business partner, Vincent W. Foster, Jr., by and through bankers, lawyers, and representatives, agents, and investigators, sought and obtained a meeting with plaintiff Skolnick. Said group from Fayetteville, Arkansas and elsewhere in Arkansas, and other places...Skolnick was informed that said group had a financial interest in the billions of dollars of transactions in a class action in the federal courts in Chicago, entitled American Agriculture Movement, Inc., et al., plaintiffs vs. Board of Trade of City of Chicago, et al., defendants, No. 89 C 8467, in the U.S. District Court....At a later date, Skolnick became aware that said transactions were part of a massive, illicit enterprise, laundering dope funds such as from Mena, Arkansas, to raise funds for the 1992 Presidential election campaign of Bill Clinton, in which defendant Clinton played a key role along with Vincent W. Foster, Jr and defendant Amy Zisook, chief fund-raiser for the '92 campaign."

---"Skolnick was informed that the investigation of said group showed that the presiding judge in said litigation, U.S. District Judge George M. Marovich, was acting in a corrupt manner and under a malign influence, to favor the defendants therein, including the Chicago Board of Trade."

---"Said group acknowledged and confirmed to Skolnick that corrupt federal commodity regulators, such as the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, permitted and condoned this corruption including the Chicago Board of Trade and their officials in a position to work a malign and corrupt influence on George M. Marovich as banker and judge. The following colloquy took place

Question by Skolnick Do you wish to 'go public' with this, to finger Judge George M. Marovich, such as being guests on my show? Answer Not just yet. Question by Skolnick Or do you wish to strong-arm and blackmail Judge Marovich for your own financial advantage? No answer was given.

"By said acts and doings, by and through said group, defendant Clinton and Foster mis-used plaintiff Skolnick, an electronic journalist and court reformer; for defendant to blackmail Judge Marovich, to gain a financial advantage and to cover up the defendant's massive illicit transactions through the Chicago markets and massive tax evasion; and for the purposes of defendant covering up the related matters of the 50 million dollar transfer referred to herein"... Said group acknowledged and confirmed to Skolnick that Judge Marovich, individually and through persons financially associated with him and through banks acting in conjunction with him and them, speculates in the commodity markets in the selfsame commodities in said litigation."

The undisputed federal court records detail a meeting with the other side of the soybean litigation pending before Judge Marovich ---"That on January 15, 1993, certain persons sought, and obtained, a meeting with Skolnick and Andreuccetti. SAID MEETING INCLUDED A DIRECTOR OF THE CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE AND PRINCIPALS OF TWO TRADING MEMBER FIRMS. They informed plaintiffs [Skolnick and Andreuccetti] they were undecided whether they wanted to appear as guests on Skolnick's public access Cable TV Program 'Broadsides', in which Andreuccetti assists in the production and distribution. During the meeting, the following took place, with Skolnick asking the questions, Andreuccetti observing, and a director of the Chicago Board of Trade answering Question In the case against you, American Agriculture Movement, Inc. versus The Board of Trade of the City of Chicago, is it true Judge Marovich was somehow corrupted? Answer Yes, it cost us 62 million dollars between the Judge and those in the appeals court.

Meaning to be understood by said director and was so understood by plaintiffs that it included Judge James B. Zagel and Joel M. Flaum among others....Thereupon, a trading firm member principal reached across the table and said to the director of the Chicago Board of Trade You shouldn't be telling him (pointing to Skolnick). Whereupon the Chicago Board of Trade director answered Answer I am telling him (meaning Skolnick) because he probably already knows and it is bound to come out and we're all going to be blackened. You (referring to the principal of the trading firm member) know we had to do it.

Further question by Skolnick Are you confirming you paid off the judges, including Judge Marovich? Answer Yes.

Meaning to be understood by the director and so understood by plaintiffs that the bribery included Judges Zagel, Flaum, Ripple, and Eschbach. At a later date, Skolnick found out that said group at said meeting used the happening of the meeting to blackmail a financial advantage of CFTC and Marovich." (Emphasis added.)

Note by the year 2001, Judge Marovich has become a Senior District Judge. Judge Zagel still sits in the U.S. District Court. Ripple is still a judge on the Federal Appeals Court where Judge Flaum has become the Chief Judge. Eschbach is no longer there.

Further excerpts from the undisputed federal court records in case No. 96 C 4373

"Whereupon, in July, 1993, defendant Clinton, by and through directors and officials of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange sought and obtained a series of meetings with Skolnick and Andreuccetti, as follows On July 14, 1993, in the presence of those officials and directors, and an Exchange security official, Andreuccetti pushing Skolnick in his wheelchair, plaintiffs were escorted around the entire floor of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, during a trading session. Skolnick was told that this was the first time a person in a wheelchair was on such a tour. Many of the Exchange's employees stopped their activities when Skolnick was rolled past, and asked Skolnick and Andreuccetti, 'Are you investigating us' and followed by 'we watch your show'. Skolnick simply smiled and responded, 'I am enjoying the tour.' Thereafter, Skolnick and Andreuccetti met with the directors and officials of the Exchange in a snack shop. Skolnick was told There is no basis to you investigating and raising questions about the Merc and the First Lady and her associates (meaning Vincent W. Foster, Jr., the then newly appointed Clinton White House deputy counsel.) There is no basis to it. Everything's out in the open here. Skolnick, in the presence of Andreuccetti, simply smiled and responded, 'I am enjoying the tour.' Whereupon there followed a luncheon with the Merc's directors at a nearby restaurant. Substantially the same dialogue took place at said meeting also. Some six days later, Foster was found mysteriously dead, some say murdered."

Note compare the July 14, 1993 date with the July, 1993 dates in our website story, "Marc Rich and Others, Fingering by a Letter" detailing the tie-in between Foster and Marc Rich and a failed attempt by then FBI Director William Sessions to have Rich grabbed on the Swiss-French border.

More excerpts from the undisputed federal court records in No. 96 C 4373

---"that Assistant U.S. Attorney William R. Hogan, Jr., was, in effect, the representative in the U.S. Attorney's office in Chicago of (1) the office of Catholic Archbishop of Chicago; (2) The Vatican Bank and Bishop Paul Marcinkus who was Vatican Bank chief up to November, 1991; (3) The Pope. Marcinkus' nephew/godson, Christian Henning, Jr., by falsely claiming to be Joseph Andreuccetti's business partner, caused Andreuccetti to be defrauded of many millions of dollars as hereinafter stated....Yet, at a time of soybean shortage, because of this corruption, soybean prices went down when they should have gone up. The result of the corruption thousands of soybean farmers were ruined, some bankrupted. Another result of the judicial corruption Ferruzzi lost upwards of a billion dollars and the chief of their holding firm, Raul Gardini, who had married into the Ferruzzi family, and was considered a wizard, committed suicide, July, 1993."

[Later interviews with the Ferruzzi Family, Milan, Italy, show that Gardini was, in fact, murdered, about the same time as the apparent murder of Vincent W. Foster, Jr. Other interviews support our position that Marc Rich reportedly arranged not only for the bribery of the Chicago federal judges, the largest judicial bribery mess in U.S. history, but the apparent arrangement to murder Ferruzzi chief Raul Gardini in the same time period as Foster.]

More excerpts ---"It was no mere coincidence---for the related benefit of defendant Hillary Rodham Clinton, who along with her business partner Vincent W. Foster, Jr., had massive interest, the Clinton Justice Department torpedoed Ferruzzi's informal representative in the U.S., William R. Hogan, Jr., an Assistant U.S. Attorney in Chicago. Hogan, the lead prosecutor in a group of cases against the El Rukns, a narco-terrorist street gang in Chicago,, was accused by the Justice Department of alleged misconduct in the El Rukn cases in 1993 and put on administrative leave. Hogan countered that the Justice Department knows full well, but takes no action, that six federal judges in Chicago are corrupt and take bribes, including Chief U.S. Bankruptcy Judge John D. Schwartz."

[Note Judge Schwartz kept Andreuccetti falsely in INVOLUNTARY bankruptcy for fourteen years as part of a scheme to cover up the disappearance of 50 million dollars belonging to Andreuccetti, secretly transferred to Little Rock, in an attempt to cover up a 47 million dollar Savings & Loan embezzlement, for which Bill and Hillary Clinton are subject to federal criminal prosecution and jailing.Hillary's family crony, John E. Gierum, who supervised the 50 million dollar illegal transfer, was one of the defendants in the "enemies list" case.]

Using inside details he knew that his bosses at the Justice Department knew about but took no action, Hogan was, using apparent blackmail, restored to his job with backpay. He knew about the bribery of the federal judges in order to ruin the Pope's soybean business, Ferruzzi. He knew about the role of Marc Rich in the bribery of the federal judges to stop the Vatican from competing in the soybean markets with ADM and Cargill.

Disregarding the law and the facts, Judge George M. Marovich refused to hear the "enemies list" case against Hillary Rodham Clinton, and others. The judge cited a ridiculous reason, that there were too many facts, dates, and details for him to consider. Hillary's attorneys were in a position to blackmail Judge Marovich not only on the bribery of the judge in the soybean case involving Ferruzzi as well, but also based on the Judge's mandatory annual financial disclosure report which shows Judge Marovich owns a west suburban shopping center, Cermak Plaza, near First National Bank of Cicero. Our investigation showed the IRS and State Revenue top officials are silent partners in the shopping center and various gangster enterprises use the shopping center as a way to launder illicit funds. The top revenue officials assist the gangsters to evade taxes. Also note Congressman Henry Hyde escaped a federal agency judgment against him for causing the downfall of a suburban S & L of which Hyde had been a director. Hyde headed the House Judiciary Committee with power to impeach judges. Hyde was in a position to know about Judge Marovich and the gangster-top government officials-Judge Marovich shopping center. You guessed it---Judge Marovich had the case against Henry Hyde and turned him loose.

So Marc Rich using bribery and murder, destroyed the Pope's soybean business in America. And Marc Rich was enabled to do this with the connivance of some in the soybean markets, the Justice Department, and the American CIA, and others. The Vatican lost billions of dollars. And a French firm took over Central Soya, a Ferruzzi enterprise, and reportedly shared the business with the Riady Family, ethnic Chinese, who owned the tiny First National Bank of Mena, Arkansas, a transit point for hundreds of millions of dollars shuttled up to the Chicago markets disguised as soybean dealings.

In the "enemies list" dismissal by Judge Marovich, we took an appeal which, of course, ended in the U.S. Court of Appeals in Chicago, with the same judges who were bribed to destroy Ferruzzi. Although we had a statutory right to have our appeal heard, the judges refused to consider our appeal, sent back our briefs in a box, and entered an illegal and poisonous ruling that I and my TV associate, Joseph Andreuccetti are barred from being in any federal court in Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin. The U.S. Supreme Court refused our petition to remedy this outrage.

To justify these terrible things inflicted on the Vatican and Ferruzzi, what supposed "crime" did the Pope commit? That the Vatican, fair and square, wanted to be a major player in soybean trading in the U.S.? In America, and certainly in large cities like New York, Chicago, and Los Angeles, there is a non-statutory offense, that is an unwritten crime. It is called simply "failure to bribe". Of this the Pontiff certainly was "guilty". More coming on the Ferruzzi Affair.

Lots more coming. Stay tuned.

Title: Catholicism and bioethics.

TruthSeeker24 - May 18, 2006 12:47 PM (GMT)

I heard the Vatican/abortion stuff so much that I listed this link about it. THE truth is that the Catholic church has been in the New Age Movement for a long time and readily many of its members aren't for preserving unborn life:

From <http://www.unmaskingcatholicism.com/Chapter-14.shtml>

Diversity Among Catholics

The appearance of unity among Catholics is misleading. There are actually major differences in theology and practice. However, no matter how much they disagree, they call themselves by the same name (Roman Catholic) and they say that the Pope is their leader. This gives a false impression of unity.

In spite of verbally saying that the Pope is their leader, there are Catholic priests and theologians who openly defy the Pope's authority. Malachi Martin wrote about some of them in his book, The Jesuits: The Society of Jesus and the Betrayal of the Roman Catholic Church.³ There are also some feminist nuns who openly defy the Pope. (They are discussed in the chapter, "New Age Catholicism.")

There are conservative Catholics who want to go back to the way that things were done before the Second Vatican Council. This includes having Mass said in Latin.

One conservative Catholic group believes that Pope John Paul II is not a valid pope, because he has promoted heresy (things that are contrary to Catholic doctrine that was "infallibly" declared by previous popes). (You can read about this online.)⁴

There are Catholic theologians who teach liberation theology, which equates "salvation" with armed revolution. There are gun-toting Catholic priests who fight alongside communist guerillas, working for communist revolution.⁵ I first heard about them from a Latin American friend who personally witnessed the destruction and confusion that they have caused.

As we will see, some Catholic priests and nuns teach things that are clearly contrary to basic Christian doctrine. Yet they are still allowed to teach in the name of the Catholic Church, and to hold positions of influence and authority.

Bioethics

The Catholic Church has traditionally been a champion of the sanctity of life. However, some Catholic priests at a prestigious Catholic university are actively working to undermine the sanctity of human life, both theoretically and in practical ways.

Georgetown University is run by Jesuit priests. It is the home of the Kennedy Institute of Ethics, which is headed by a Jesuit priest. Some of its faculty members are also Jesuit priests.

The Kennedy Institute of Ethics actively promotes abortion and euthanasia. It is also working to have "death" be redefined to include people in "irreversible" comas, so that doctors can get better quality organs for transplants. This is documented in the book, Culture of Death, by Wesley J. Smith (Encounter Books, 2000). The Introduction to the book is online.⁶

The Kennedy Institute of Ethics trains doctors, nurses, lawyers, legislators, teachers, and hospital administrators. Every summer, it gives an Intensive Bioethics Course, which is attended by people from around the world. It has branches in Asia and Europe. According to the woman I spoke with, it has the most comprehensive library of bioethics literature in the world.

New Age Teachings and Practices

The "New Age" is actually a resurgence of old paganism that has been "westernized" and dressed up in modern vocabulary. It denies foundational Christian doctrines and basic Christian morality. It is contrary to the official teaching of the Catholic Church. However, in spite of this, there are Catholic priests and nuns who openly promote New Age beliefs and practices. This is an area in which there is a wide diversity of beliefs among Catholics.

The chapter, "New Age Catholicism," has detailed, carefully documented information about this. Most of it comes from Catholic books and Catholic websites.⁷

There are some feminist nuns who participate in pagan rituals, worship "the goddess," and promote lesbianism.⁸ I realize that this seems incredible, but unfortunately, it really is happening. (Please read the chapter, "New Age Catholicism.")

Fire Insurance

Another area of diversity is beliefs about some old-fashioned, Catholic devotional practices. I will illustrate this with one example.

Can Catholics be sure of getting into Heaven if they wear a specific religious item, which shows devotion to Mary? Modern theologians and apologists will probably tell you: "Of course not!" However, as we will see, there are Catholics who believe that Mary will protect them from Hell if they follow her directions. There is an old saying that, if Jesus won't let you into Heaven by the front door, then Mary can get you in through the back door.

According to tradition, on July 16, 1251, the Virgin Mary appeared to Saint Simon Stock, holding a Brown Scapular (two pieces of brown cloth attached by strings). She promised him that any person who dies wearing the scapular will not go to Hell. This promise is for people who belong to the religious order of the Carmelites, or who are associated with them. Catholics can be enrolled into the Carmelites by any Carmelite or authorized Catholic priest. In 1965, Pope Paul VI encouraged all Catholics to wear the Brown Scapular and pray the Rosary. (You can read about this online.)⁹

Catholics who wear the Brown Scapular can also qualify for the "Sabbatine Privilege," if they fulfill certain religious requirements. The "Sabbatine Privilege" is a promise that if they go to Purgatory, Mary will get their Purgatory time shortened. (This is online.)¹⁰

There are other Catholic devotional practices that have promises attached to them. They often involve the use of medals, rosaries, pictures, different kinds of scapulars, chaplets, and specific prayers. There is a "five-way medal" that consists of a cross, with medals at the end of each of the four arms. This enables people to wear a cross, and four different medals, at the same time, in a neat and orderly way. (Five items on five separate chains could become quite tangled.) There are also "four-way medals" that have four medals, in the general shape of a cross. Sometimes, the medal is enclosed in a circle. Some of these medals are solid gold and quite expensive. (You can see them online.)¹¹

I have known Catholics with a wide range of approaches to these devotional practices. Some considered them to be old-fashioned, or even superstitious. Others took them quite seriously. I knew one woman who was so devoted to praying the rosary that, even when she was carrying on a conversation, her rosary beads were going through her fingers.

You can go to online Catholic stores to see pictures of medals, chaplets, scapulars, statues, holy cards, prayer rings, and other religious objects. (The Notes give some website addresses.)¹² If you have never seen such things before, you may be surprised at what you will find.

Catholic Seminaries

Roman Catholic seminaries have a wide diversity of teaching and practice. Some of them teach traditional Catholic doctrines, morality, and piety. However, many do not.

Michael S. Rose is a devout Catholic and a professional investigative reporter. He wrote the book, Goodbye, Good Men: How Liberals Brought Corruption into the Catholic Church. It is a plea for reform in Catholic seminaries.¹³

You can read the book's Introduction online. You can also read book reviews, and feedback from seminarians and priests who read the book.¹⁴ I encourage you to check this out for yourself.

Rose interviewed over 150 people. His book only shows the tip of the iceberg, because many people were afraid to let him write about their experiences. Others allowed him to write about them, but insisted that he change their name to protect them.

Chapter 5 ("The Heterodoxy Downer") tells of seminary faculty members who deny doctrines that are absolutely foundational to Christianity, or teach things that are contrary to basic Christian doctrine and morals. Following are some things that were taught by faculty members:

The death of Jesus was not a sacrifice for our sins.

The Atonement never happened.

The Bible should not be taken seriously.

God is a woman. (A nun taught this.)

It is OK for celibate priests to have sex with other men.

It is normal for men to have sex with animals.

One seminary taught Matthew Fox's "creation-centered spirituality," which denies the existence of sin, the Atonement, and other foundational Christian doctrines. It teaches many New Age beliefs. It says that Christianity needs to get rid of any beliefs that hinder it from being united with pagan religions. It promotes a one-world religion. Fox is a priest who works in close association with a witch, a Voodoo priestess, and a shaman.²⁰

Some seminarians were required to engage in occult, New Age practices, including using Ouija boards, tarot cards, and crystals.

This kind of doctrine and behavior is contrary to what is taught in the Catechism of the Catholic Church. It demonstrates the wide diversity of belief and practice among modern Catholics.

Look at this!

Georgetown Jesuit Robert Drinan openly opposed the Vietnam War. Secretly, the Order was behind it via its Council on Foreign Relations not to mention the Jesuit "Father Hawk" Dan Lyons advising both Generals Westmoreland and Abrams. This same pattern can be seen in Nazi Germany. Bavarian Jesuit Meyer was openly opposed to Hitler; secretly the Order backed Hitler and controlled his SS. After the war the SS became the Cold War's CIA---the heart of the Black Pope's International Intelligence Community---including the Mossad.

The Order also used Drinan to remove the disobedient Nixon from office. Nixon sought to blackmail the CIA over the Kennedy assassination due to CIA complicity in the Watergate scandal. Nixon crossed the Order and paid for it with the presidency; and the risen Lord Jesus Christ would not protect him for his blaming the control of the press on His beloved Hebrew/Jewish/Israelitic people in general and not the Pope's CFR-controlled Masonic Jewish Zionists (addressed in Revelation 18:4) in particular.

Sincerely in the Faith,

Brother Eric

Goss, Priest Among Those Honored by House

Distinguished Service Awards Given to Former Representatives
by DEAN NORLAND

May 10, 2006 — - It was described as a diverse group -- a priest, a former ambassador, the director of an intelligence agency and a vice president. The one thing they shared was their former service in the U.S. House of Representatives.

In a ceremony just a few feet away from the chamber where they all once served, the House honored four of its former members with the Distinguished Service Award.

Selected to receive the award by the Speaker Dennis Hastert, R-Ill., were Vice President Dick Cheney and outgoing CIA Director Porter Goss. They were joined by former U.S. ambassador to the Vatican Lindy Boggs and Father Robert Drinan, both chosen by House Democratic Leader Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif.

Goss, who represented a Florida district in the House from 1989 to 2004, made a surprise announcement last week that he was leaving the CIA in the next few weeks. He took the occasion of the Capitol awards ceremony to praise the agency he was departing.

"The men and women of the CIA are extraordinarily talented," Goss said. "They are doing amazing work for our country and its well-being, and our citizens at home and abroad."

Lindy Boggs, who served in the House from Louisiana from 1973 to 1991, took the opportunity in accepting her award to ask Congress for more help for her hurricane-ravaged state and the city of New Orleans, where she still resides on Bourbon Street.

"We need your continued help and support in rebuilding our levees, our economy and community, and in healing our families," she said.

Father Robert Drinan, a Jesuit Catholic priest, was a member of Congress from Massachusetts from 1971 to 1981. A vocal opponent of the Vietnam War, he was so upset by the Watergate scandal that he was the first member of Congress to introduce a resolution calling for the impeachment of President Richard Nixon.

In accepting the award, Drinan said, "There is seldom any honor that is more appreciated than a tribute from one's former colleagues."

Cheney, who represented Wyoming from 1979 to 1989, said he still thinks of the House as his political home.

He confided to the audience that his ambition as a congressman was to one day serve as speaker of the House, but he never made it. He quipped that he had to "settle for second best and preside over the Senate."

Boston College English Professor Resigns Over Jesuit Decision To Let Condoleezza Rice Be Commencement Speaker

Steve Almond quit his teaching position in a letter to Fr. William P. Leahy, president of BC, saying Rice is a pathological liar and a bad example for graduating seniors.

16 May 2006

By Greg Szymanski

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/16-May-2006.html>

A Boston College English professor resigned in protest over the Jesuit high-command's decision to invite Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice to be the commencement speaker at this year's graduation ceremony.

Steve Almond resigned in disgust over Jesuit President, Fr. William P. Leahy's decision to let Rice speak to seniors, a move Almond says sends a "bad message" since Rice has lied "to the American people knowingly, repeatedly, often extravagantly over the past five years, in an effort to justify a pathologically misguided foreign policy."

Fr. Leahy's decision adds more fuel to a growing fire that the feared Jesuits are instigating and influencing American foreign policy in their hidden positions as the religious controllers of the New World Order, a position they have devilishly held for hundreds of years.

Critics have contended, including assassinated U.S. Presidents and disillusioned former Jesuits, that the Society of Jesus has an evil hierarchy with the goal to destroy major religions and countries, including Catholicism and America in its war-like drive to rule the world from Jerusalem with a one world government and religion based on Luciferian principles.

Further, critics contend the Jesuits government of choice is fascism, explaining why America's civil rights laws and constitutional protections have quickly evaporated.

"What a perfect cover," said author Bill Hughes, who recently finished his second book uncovering the Jesuit connection to the New World Order. "They recently have tried to stop me from an upcoming speech in Oregon, saying my message is nothing but hate speech not protected by the U.S. Constitution. I firmly disagree as do the organizers of the Oregon event coming up in June."

Regarding the Boston College teacher who resigned, it is another clear sign how the Jesuit hierarchy clearly promotes a war policy while hiding behind the cloth of peace and goodness provided by the Catholic Church.

They also claim this tacit approval of war, as a Jesuit University openly teams up with Rice and the neo-cons, is another clear sign why the Jesuits are called the "masters of deception and the ultimate chameleons," able to infiltrate at will any religion or government while proclaiming peace but secretly instigating war.

In an open letter sent to Fr. Leahy of Boston College, Almond detailed his reasons for resigning and his open protest of Rice and the Jesuit decision to allow her to address graduating seniors, urging them to investigate the words and actions of Rice, and to exercise their own First Amendment rights:

I am doing so (resigning) -- after five years at BC, and with tremendous regret -- as a direct result of your decision to invite Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice to be the commencement speaker at this year's graduation.

Many members of the faculty and student body already have voiced their objection to the invitation, arguing that Rice's actions as secretary of state are inconsistent with the broader humanistic values of the university and the Catholic and Jesuit traditions from which those values derive.

But I am not writing this letter simply because of an objection to the war against Iraq. My concern is more fundamental. Simply put, Rice is a liar.

She has lied to the American people knowingly, repeatedly, often extravagantly over the past five years, in an effort to justify a pathologically misguided foreign policy.

The public record of her deceits is extensive. During the ramp-up to the Iraq war, she made 29 false or misleading public statements concerning Iraq's weapons of mass destruction and links to Al Qaeda, according to a congressional investigation by the House Committee on Government Reform.

To cite one example:

In an effort to build the case for war, then-National Security Adviser Rice repeatedly asserted that Iraq was pursuing a nuclear weapon, and specifically seeking uranium in Africa.

In July of 2003, after these claims were disproved, Rice said: 'Now if there were doubts about the underlying intelligence . . . those doubts were not communicated to the president, the vice president, or to me.'

Rice's own deputy, Stephen Hadley, later admitted that the CIA had sent her a memo eight months earlier warning against the use of this claim.

In the three years since the war began, Rice has continued to misrepresent or simply ignore the truth about our deadly adventure in Iraq.

Like the president whom she serves so faithfully, she refuses to recognize her errors or the tragic consequences of those errors to the young soldiers and civilians dying in Iraq. She is a diplomat whose central allegiance is not to the democratic cause of this nation, but absolute power.

This is the woman to whom you will be bestowing an honorary degree, along with the privilege of addressing the graduating class of 2006.

It is this last notion I find most reprehensible: that Boston College would entrust to Rice the role of moral exemplar.

To be clear: I am not questioning her intellectual gifts or academic accomplishments. Nor her potentially inspiring role as a powerful woman of color.

But these are not the factors by which a commencement speaker should be judged. It is the content of one's character that matters here -- the reverence for truth and knowledge that Boston College purports to champion.

Rice does not personify these values; she repudiates them. Whatever inspiring rhetoric she might present to the graduating class, her actions as a citizen and politician tell a different story.

Honestly, Father Leahy, what lessons do you expect her to impart to impressionable seniors?

That hard work in the corporate sector might gain them a spot on the board of Chevron? That they, too, might someday have an oil tanker named after them? That it is acceptable to lie to the American people for political gain?

Given the widespread objection to inviting Rice, I would like to think you will rescind the offer. But that is clearly not going to happen.

Like the administration in Washington, you appear too proud to admit to your mistake. Instead, you will mouth a bunch of platitudes, all of which boil down to: You don't want to lose face.

In this sense, you leave me no choice.

I cannot, in good conscience, exhort my students to pursue truth and knowledge, then collect a paycheck from an institution that displays such flagrant disregard for both.

I would like to apologize to my students and prospective students. I would also urge them to investigate the words and actions of Rice, and to exercise their own First Amendment rights at her speech.

Judicial Watch Says More Pentagon Tapes To Come

Farrell admits entire issue potential intelligence honey pot operation

Paul Joseph Watson & Alex Jones/Prison Planet.com | May 18 2006

<http://www.propagandamatrix.com/articles/m...06moretapes.htm>

Judicial Watch Director of Investigations & Research and former military intelligence officer Chris Farrell says the watchdog organization plans to file another lawsuit in order to obtain as many as possible of the 84 other tapes that potentially show what happened at the Pentagon on 9/11.

Appearing on the Alex Jones Show, Farrell conceded that his organization could be the water carriers for a honey pot operation, in which the government attracts overwhelming attention to the Pentagon issue, making it the cornerstone of the 9/11 truth movement, and then blowing it out of the water by releasing clear footage of Flight 77.

"Let's just call it a baited trap, it draws somebody into a situation in which they're compromised," said Farrell in describing the tactic of creating a honey pot. He agreed that we should expect to see clear footage of Flight 77 hitting the Pentagon released soon.

Farrell agreed that the DoD only released the tape because they wanted to for their own reasons. We have witnessed numerous times over the government claim national security in refusing to release evidence and they could have done the same in this instance yet they deliberately chose to relent and release the new tapes.

Farrell (pictured) resolved to pursue a lawsuit against the FBI unless they released the 84 separate video tapes seized around the Pentagon on the day of 9/11 which are still being withheld. He expects the lawsuit to take around three months at which point the FBI would be compelled to release the tapes or claim national security in withholding them.

"Three months is my guess, they'll let it go into the summer and once they're compelled through a lawsuit suddenly they'll break loose with a couple more," said Farrell.

Farrell went as far as to suggest that upcoming Pentagon tapes would be used by the government for political points scoring in anticipation of the mid-term elections.

"They want to present it in time for the elections, they want to get through the summer and once the summer is over three months down the road people start getting back into politics mode and elections come up that's when you'll see it dribble out."

Many suspect Judicial Watch is being used as a conduit for the dissemination of carefully staged government propaganda. When the subject of Operation Northwoods was raised, Farrell became noticeably evasive and began to talk about government incompetence as if reading from a prepared script.

where do they fit in?

arn't they included in the other illuminati families?

TruthSeeker24 - May 16, 2006 07:54 PM (GMT)

Muslim brotherhood families are mainly Masonic. History proves that many members of the Muslim Brotherhood were Freemasons. Some of them are related to Le Cerle. The Saudi royal families are in the Muslim Families as well. The strongest Freemasons are in Britian I think. Many in the Windsor family head English Freemasonry. So, your list has the goods. Here's some links about this:

Mark Brewer - May 16, 2006 08:14 PM (GMT)

The Saudi royal family are the guardians of the shrines in Mecca and Medina. Without those objects, Islam would not exist. That is one of the reasons the Saudi royal family is so powerful. Prince Bandar gave $20,000,000 to Jesuit Georgetown University. Prince Turki was trained in intelligence work by Knight of Malta Alexandre de Marenches. The Carlyle Group, which the Saudis have invested over $1,000,000,000 into was founded by David Rubenstein, a personal friend of John Paul II.

The Muslim Brotherhood is an offshoot of the Nazi party. I suggest people read the book Devil's Game by Robert Dreyfuss to understand the involvement of the Brotherhood in various countries. You also can visit Dave Emory's website which has a lot of material about the Brotherhood and its power.

what i'd like to see is chart with just a breakdown of the jesuits chain of command. there was a phelps interview where he said it real quick... the general then the provincials and then the something else... I'll look for it and transcribe it. I'd like to see the names of all the high level jesuits. :unsure:

Even the cardinals and archbishops... If anyone has a chart of all those guys post it up. Like on TV when the FBI is going after the Mob-- they always have the chart with their names and pictures. We need a chart like that but about the Jesuits :unsure:

Phelps: The Jesuit General is the absolute, complete, and total dictator and autocrat of the Order. When he speaks, his provincials move. The provincials are his major subordinates. There are around 83 provincials right now.

As I understand it, the Jesuit Order has divided the world into 83 regions. Ok? For each region, there is a Jesuit provincial. There are 10 provincials in the United States. There is one for Central America. There is one for Ireland. They've divided up the world into these provinces.

So it's old Babylonian provincial government, centered in Nebuchadnezzar or the Jesuit General himself; so it's strictly a Roman form of government where all the states or provinces are subordinate to this worldwide sovereign.

Who are these guys? Can anyone name them?

The General is elected for life, and is practically the autocrat of the Society, though in certain specified cases he may be deposed by the General Congregation. This body elects five Assistants (primarily four), who serve as the General's cabinet; also the Admonisher, "whose duty it is ever to be by the side of the General, like the personification of a pursuing conscience," and the Confessor. Aside from these officers, the whole official patronage is in the hands of the General. Under him are the Provincials or heads of provinces, appointed for a term of years. Below the Provincials are the Rectors of colleges, the Superiors of the houses of the Professed, etc. The Rectors and Superiors, if dwelling in Europe, are required to report in writing every week to the Provincial. The Provincial must report once a month to the General, who has his official residence in Rome. To guard against any possible suppression of facts on the part of the Provincial, all Rectors, Superiors, and Masters of Novitiates are bound to report to the General himself once in three months. In view of such connections, it is no exaggerated metaphor which speaks of the Order of Jesuits as a sword whose hilt is at Rome and whose point is everywhere.

The first stage in preparation for membership is a novitiate of two years. The training during this interval is directed rather to religious than to intellectual results. The candidate is disciplined in obedience by the performance of menial offices, and in devotion by much exercise in meditation and self-examination. Great pains are taken to eliminate every item of insubordination and to penetrate the individual with the spirit of the Order. To this end, no communication is allowed with the outside world, not even with the nearest relatives, except under the close supervision of a Superior. A part of the Novices, not being destined to the priesthood, pass on to the secular wing of the Society, and are ranked with the Temporal Coadjutors, who conduct the different forms of manual industry which are needed in the various establishments. After a considerable term of service, the Temporal Coadjutor takes the public vows and has formatus added to his title. The remainder of the Novices pass from the first stage of their probation into the class of approved Scholars or Scholastics

93 - The number of Jesuit provinces, along with 13 dependent regions, that make up the basic organizational unit of the Society of Jesus. Each province is headed by a provincial superior who is appointed by and reports directly to the Society's General Superior. Jesuit provinces are grouped into eleven regional "assistancies," each with an "assistant" to Father General in Rome.

The U.S. Catholic Church: How It Works

The Roman Catholic Church, with some 64 million members and thousands of affiliated operations, is the largest and most influential nongovernment organization in the U.S. But the Church is not a unified corporation: It is a decentralized organization with thousands of legally and financially separate entities. Its 20,000 Catholic churches raise some $7.5 billion annually. A primer on the Church's hierarchy:

THE POPE

The Pope appoints the bishops who run the U.S. Church and sets policies--including rules on who may become a priest. The U.S. is one of the wealthiest Catholic countries and a top contributor to the Vatican. Legally, the Vatican is a sovereign state, beyond the reach of U.S. law.

THE PAPAL NUNCIO

The Nuncio, who cannot be an American, is the Papal representative to the U.S. Based in Washington, he reviews all U.S. priests nominated for bishop before forwarding names to Rome for final approval.

THE U.S. CONFERENCE OF CATHOLIC BISHOPS

The Conference is a kind of steering committee for the U.S. Church, made up of the 375 U.S. Bishops. With a budget of some $150 million, it speaks for the U.S. Church on policy matters such as abortion and welfare and has committees on everything from worship to domestic policy. The Conference, funded by the dioceses, does not have any authority over them.

CARDINALS

These so-called princes of the Church have the ultimate power over its future, since they elect the Pope. But the U.S. has a small role in the College of Cardinals.

DIOCESES

The key administrative unit of the Church, it comprises many local parishes and is headed by a bishop, archbishop, or cardinal. Everything from ordinations of priests to education is run at the diocesan level. There are 194 in the U.S. Although each diocese is a separate legal entity, abusive priests shuffled from parish to parish may extend the trail of liability.

PARISHES

The U.S. has some 20,000 parishes, and each individual church depends on its members' weekly donations, the major source of funding. Congregations are growing larger, averaging 3,000 members, even as the number of priests is falling, straining resources. At the same time, the ranks of U.S. Catholics are increasing with the arrival of new immigrants.

CATHOLIC INSTITUTIONS

SCHOOLS

The Church is the largest operator of private schools in the U.S., with over 2.6 million students enrolled in its 6,900 elementary schools and some 1,200 high schools, costing roughly $10 billion a year. Most of the elementary schools are attached to local parishes, while high schools are often run by a Catholic religious order, such as the Jesuits or Christian Brothers. Although tuition has been rising sharply, schools still receive large subsidies from the Church.

UNIVERSITIES

There are 230 Catholic colleges and universities with a combined total of 670,000 students. Most colleges are sponsored by a religious congregation, like the Jesuits, who have 28 colleges--including Georgetown, Boston College, and Holy Cross. Just 11 are sponsored by a diocese, and only Catholic University in Washington is directly sponsored by the Church. There are few direct financial ties between most Catholic colleges and the Church. Most are run by a lay board of trustees. Like other private colleges, tuition is the primary source of revenue, though some have sizable endowments, like Notre Dame's $2.8 billion.

HEALTH CARE

The nonprofit health-care system includes 637 hospitals, accounting for 17% of all U.S. hospital admissions. The Church also runs 122 home health-care agencies and nearly 700 other service providers, including assisted living, adult day care, and senior housing. The hospitals alone have annual expenses of $65 billion and account for 5% of U.S. health-care spending.

CHARITIES

Catholic Charities USA consists of 1,400 agencies that run soup kitchens, temporary shelters, child care, and refugee resettlement. In 1999, Catholic Charities had collective revenues of $2.34 billion. Most of that comes from state and local governments and from program fees. The Church accounts for only about 12% of income.

Pope (1 head)

Bishops (2946 diocese, cathedrals)

Priests (219,583 parishes)

Catholics (1 Billion members)

V. Various national sizes:

Remember, there are no national positions of power in the Catholic church, only Bishops within a country, who are equal to all other bishops in the world.

2946 Bishops working within 2946 diocese territories

72 Bishops working within 72 diocese territories

1 Arch-Bishop working within 1 diocese territory

1 Bishop working within 1 diocese territory

219,583 priests working within 219,583 Parishes (local churches)

5716 priests working within 5716 Parishes (local churches)

223 priests working within 223 parishes (local churches)

121 priests working within 121 parishes (local churches)

VI. Example of various countries:

It is important to remember that the Catholic church has no organizational tie on national, provincial or state level. All Bishops the world over, are equal in power. Although all the bishops in one country form separate organizations, they are powerless, except by way of suggesting a policy that has the backing of all the bishops in a country. Notice that there is an equal number of Dioceses, Bishops and Cathedrals. That is because a Bishop is head of a single diocese and his one home church is called a Cathedral. Also notice that the number of Parishes and the number of Priests is the same. That is because there is one priest over each parish.

Chavez warns US over Iran policy

Sunday, 14 May 2006, 20:57 GMT 21:57 UK

<http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/americas/4771229.stm>

Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez has warned the US that any attack on Iran will have devastating consequences and send oil prices soaring.

Mr Chavez, on a two-day trip to the UK, called for a socialist new world order and said nations were cowards for not standing up to the "American empire".

The US has not ruled out military action against Iran over its nuclear programme but is pursuing diplomacy.

Hundreds of supporters gave Mr Chavez a rapturous welcome in north London.

Packed ballroom

The president told the meeting in Camden, hosted by Mayor of London Ken Livingstone, that a US military attack on Iran would lead to Tehran cutting off its oil supply.

"If the United States attacks Iran... oil could reach $100 (£52) a barrel or more," he said.

"Moreover, Iran has said it would attack Israel, and I know they have the wherewithal to do so.

"This would be a terrible escalation and I do not know where it would end and I do not know who would get out the first nuclear bomb or how many people would die. No-one would be safe from this madness."

Mr Chavez said the US "doesn't know what to do" in Iraq, which he called "the Vietnam of the 21st Century".

Jubilant supporters cheered him, many clad in Venezuela's red, blue and yellow and banging drums, while hundreds more were left outside the packed ballroom.

Mr Chavez said capitalism was a "destructive" system and that "socialism is the way forward".

Mr Chavez called unrestricted free trade "a trap by the world's most powerful so they can keep the weakest in slavery".

Britain and a number of other countries have criticised Mr Chavez's moves to exert greater control over his country's oil reserves - the world's fifth largest.

On Friday Prime Minister Tony Blair urged Venezuela to use its energy resources responsibly.

The president's trip has been described as a private one - he has made no request to see Mr Blair or any government officials.

On Monday Mr Chavez will have lunch with Mr Livingstone, and will deliver a lecture in the evening.

BBC Americas editor James Painter says Mr Chavez's strategy for this trip is similar to the one he used when visiting the US in September last year. He does not meet government officials but rather appeals over their heads to appear as a man of the people.

Our correspondent says Mr Chavez does not want a "European flank" opening that would support the critical comments made of his regime by the US.

THE CHURCH OF GESU

" The Headquarter Of The Jesuit Order "

BY : BOBBY G. LIMETA, HISTORIAN - FILIPINO MINORITY

Saturday, May 11, 2006. Manila. Philippines.

Many honest and reliable historians and writers like Eric Jon Phelps and others without a doubt proven the crimes committed by the JESUIT - VATICAN against humanity is indeed unparalleled. Anybody who is reading and studying world history (past and recent) with thorough analysis will see the footprints and shadow of the Jesuits. Study and further research, you will see them at the front of your eyes and circling inside your brain like a tornado. In short, you've met the MEN IN BLACK almost live in person.

Attached herewith is the external appearance of the Church Of Gesu (Jesuit's H.Q.). Also, the internal appearance of the Church Of Gesu. Now look closely, you'll see the symbol of the Jesuit "I.H.S." Again, as you read history with the aid of the King James Bible 1611, the I.H.S. stands for ancient Egyptian gods Isis, Horus & Seb (I.H.S.). As you read history and bible, the Egyptians are the enemies of GOD and Moses. Now, how come this symbol I.H.S. is boastfully shown to the world by the Jesuit Order and they said (Jesuit) they are religious order of GOD. When I was young and before 1990, I saw this symbol and I thought it's from GOD. By 1990 and so on, as I'm reading world history I'm starting to be amazed how come the I.H.S. is the symbol of the Jesuit Order.

On 1995, I've discovered that the DIVING WHITE DOVE seen in the Bible and publications of some Protestant Bible-Believing Christian Denominations various publications are always printed. I've discovered that the white dove is also a trademark-symbol of the Jesuits, according to the late high-ranking ex-Jesuit priest Alberto Romero Rivera. I immediately suspect that many Protestant Bible-Believing Christian Denominations was infiltrated by the agents of the Jesuits or the Jesuit themselves like what Alberto Romero Rivera did during the time he's still obedient high-ranking Jesuit priest. I was stunned to see the congregational symbol of Filipino evangelist Eddie Villanueva's Jesus Is Lord Fellowship (later was changed into Jesus Is Lord Church) is also a diving white dove. Evangelist Billy Graham was discovered being a 33rd Degree Freemasons with supporting testimonies and other supplemental papers. And you'll be shocked that Billy Graham's son (also evangelist) was welcomed and supported by Villanueva's group.

This is what I've told to our Filipino Baptist Pastors and other Pastors from various denominations that their eyes should be sharpened to see and evaluate if they are dealing with something or somebody or groups carrying a sign that could traced back to the Jesuits. Because, if they do, the secret infiltration will be started and soon to destroy the entire christian brotherhood. Alberto Romero Rivera said, infiltration was one of his assignments, to destroy Protestant Bible Believing Chirstian Churches.

Some good news out of WWII was that Japanese Captain Fuchida was led to the Lord after the war by an American prisoner of war who became a missionary to Japan for nearly thirty years. This American was one of the captured airmen from the Doolittle Raid. He was given a Bible in his cell and was saved, believing on Christ for the forgiveness of his sins. Then he was led to Japan as a missionary and ultimately led the Japanese commander to the Lord. Of all places this story was told on Fox's War Stories a few weeks ago. I would like to have the picture of both men sitting together with beaming faces for VAIII.

Praise God!

Subject: THE HIROSHIMA BOMBING

Dear Bro. Maverick :

As per written historical article, I've ever read that shocked and intrigues me most is this :

The 33rd Degree Freemason Pres. Harry S. Truman, U.S. Air Force Commanding General in the Pacific Gen. Le May, and 33rd Degree Freemason Gen. Douglas McArthur knew this event well.

On the early morning of August 06, 1945 a single B-29 Superfortress Heavy-Bomber piloted by Col. Paul Tibbets (name of the plane is Enola Gay - Grandmother's name of Col. Paul Tibbets) carrying Atomic Bomb code named "Little Boy". A 36 Kilogram of pure Uranium 235 Radio-Active Warhead with an equivalent blast of 13 Thousands Of TNT (Dynamite) dropped over the city of Hiroshima in Japan. A witness said, saw 8-times as bright as the sun then explosion of high-clouds of mushroom into the sky reached almost. Approximately 70,000 to 80,000 Japanese are dead. The city of Hiroshima was completely destroyed and flattened.

Within GROUND ZERO (Impact Of Atomic Bomb Explosion) at 8-city blocks away, 8 JESUIT PRIESTS SURFACED FROM THE UNDERGROUND, UNHURT or no MORTAL WOUNDS. They are Fathers Schieffer, Hugo, La Salle and others. Four miles away outside the radius of the Atomic Bomb Explosion was Jesuit Fr. Pedro Arrupe.

WHAT ARE THEY (JESUITS) DOING THERE ?

HOW COME THEY (JESUITS) KNEW AN IMMINENT ATOMIC BOMB EXPLOSION WILL OCCUR ?

THE VERY REASON THEY SURFACED FROM UNDERGROUND.

WHILE THE INNOCENT JAPANESE WITHIN THEIR OWN HOMELAND NEVER THOUGHT THAT AN IMMINENT ATOMIC BOMB EXPLOSION WILL OCCUR. WHILE THE JESUITS ARE WELL PREPARED.

How come the Jesuits survived Atomic Bomb blast and shocking they are at GROUND ZERO. Are the Jesuits Incredible Hulk ? This historical event was not taught in the schools, colleges and universities. But Eric Jon Phelps have deeper knowledge than me that the Jesuits detonated it in the ground and that the B-29 Little Boy is a hoax. Until now, the Japanese never forget what happened to them according to my Japanese friend Noriaki when I was still in Kuwait in 1989. I also, read a history that Col. Fuchida one who led the attack in Pearl Harbor saw the devastated city of Hiroshima aboard his plane. When you watch movie film "PEARL" Capt. Fuchida is there as one of the squadron leader in the attack of Pearl Harbor. I believed he's the one who spoken - TORA, TORA, TORADES (Attack, Attack, Attack). There are so many secret history the Jesuits don't want us to know as it blows their cover and true identity.

What do you think Bro. Maverick, something is strange.

Brother Maverick, please see the attached picture. The former master of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo at Georgetown University - Edmund A. Walsh School Of Foreign Service). Gen. Douglas McArthur together with Jesuit Fr. Edmund A. Walsh in Japan after World War II.

Many thanks Bro. Maverick.

Allah was created by the Vatican. The only thing thats taken over the Vatican is the Black Pope's Freemasonry. They've always worshipped Lucifer/Baal and his whore mother.

Allah was actually a pagan god...but yes, the Vatican did create Islam.

Interestingly enough Allah and the RCC have the same pagan/Babylonian origins.

Description: By Greg Szymanski

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 16, 2006 02:50 AM (GMT)

Confession No. 4: Did Jesuit Fr. Staempfle Write Mein Kampf For Hitler? Is George W. Bush The New Jesuit-Backed Roman Catholic Star?

According to the late Jesuit priest, Fr. Alberto Rivera, whose job was to infiltrate and destroy Protestant ministries, he was privy to sensitive Vatican briefings and documents, revealing the Jesuit role in backing Hitler. Further, he was told by Cardinal Augustine Bea that Nazi gold was deposited in Vatican accounts in Swiss banks.

By Greg Szymanski

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/14-May-2006.html>

According to the late Jesuit priest, Fr. Alberto Rivera, a fellow Jesuit named Fr. Staempfle wrote Mein Kampf, as the stage was being set for Germany's new Roman Catholic star, Adolf Hitler.

The main question today is what priest is writing the script for the Jesuit-backed Roman Catholic star, President George W. Bush?

Following the old adage "all things change but everything remains the same," a look back into Hitler's rise to power may provide important clues as to whether the Jesuits are also backing Bush.

To begin this Sunday's fourth Confession on the banks of the truth-filled body of water called Brushy Creek, it must be said that Fr. Rivera was a rare species, being a former Jesuit priest who decided to speak the truth about the "military order" disguised as a group of God-loving disciples of Jesus.

Most other disillusioned Jesuits like Rivera have remained silent since they know double-crossing the Society of Jesus high command means sure death, especially if you're someone who knew too much like Fr. Rivera.

What made Rivera dangerous to the Jesuits and probably led to his death, was Rivera's sensitive and trusted position within the Order to infiltrate Protestant ministries and destroy them. Due to his sensitive work, he was given special Vatican clearance to the secret underground library catacombs where, according to Rivera, the true history of the world remains buried for the chosen few, who have sworn by blood oath, never to reveal the dark and sinister contents.

And after reading how the Catholic Church manipulated history in its drive to rule the world, one very fortunate day for mankind he decided to alert the world and place his faith in Christ alone while leaving behind the Jesuits and the Catholic Church.

Being released from his vows, Rivera then married, started his own ministry and tried until he died under suspicious circumstances in 1997, to spread the word of truth. For his actions, he instantly became a hated and hunted man by the Church, as he shockingly admitted "No Jesuit can leave the Order alive, if he knows the real truth and talks about it."

And it appears his words rang true with his untimely 1997 death. But before Rivera died, he passed his message on in a very, very unique way - through a series of four colorful comic books - geared at reaching the masses by highlighting his important message in a nontraditional manner.

In his collection of full-color comic books carried by Chick Publications, entitled Alberto, Double-Cross, The Godfathers and The Force, Rivera tells his story, revealing how the Catholic Church helped start World Wars I and II, as well as revealing the Church's place in Bible prophecy. His story also details how the Church was involved in the startup of Islam, later turning against the Pope in rebellion, as well as detailing how America's present phony war on terror is basically "the Vatican's Revenge."

When Rivera first went public, Rome became extremely angered and called upon her ecumenical contacts to go on the attack, attacking him like they always do by attacking the messenger. The Vatican, not wanting to publicly discuss the serious charges leveled against the Jesuits and the hierarchy of the Church, decided to discredit him personally, hoping people would then discount his message.

The most notable of these personal attacks was an open letter published in Christianity Today, copied and distributed around the world many times since the 1980s. However, after reading this attack, James Houston, who had read enough of history to believe Rivera's charges, came forward in defense of Rivera with a detailed report.

Since the Christianity Today letter is still being distributed today, at the bottom of this Sunday confession are the links to the attack on Rivera and Houston's lengthy response.

Germany and Hitler

Rivera learned many hidden truths about the Jesuits and the Vatican, but none were more important than the story behind Hitler's rise to power.

Sounding strangely similar to what is happening to America, in 1923 Germany was in a downward spiral. The monetary system was teetering on the brink of disaster and the German people were sick and tired of war, similar to the majority of Americans today calling for the end of the Middle East conflict.

"The German people blamed the Kaiser for the whole thing and had him and his government thrown out of office," writes Rivera in the comic he entitled The Godfathers.

"The communists were fighting to take over and the new government was very weak. Some men wanted the German people to run their government like they did in France and were attempting to make Germany a Republic. The Pope was outraged and with that the Republic was doomed to failure.

"Two things the Vatican despises are Protestantism and Democracy. The Jesuits were then called upon to stop this new Weimer Republic. Two men then destroyed it: One was Franz Von Papan and the other was Pacelli, who later become Pope Pius XII."

Rivera then claims how he read in the secret Vatican how the stage was then set for Germany's new Roman Catholic star, Adolf Hitler, as a Jesuit priest by the name of Fr. Staempfle actually wrote Mein Kampf, the book being the master plan of the Jesuits for Hitler's takeover of Germany.

"Another great inquisition was about to begin," said Rivera. "Instead of wearing Dominican robes, they were wearing Nazi uniforms. Hitler's Brown Shirts, called Nazis, backed by the Vatican used the same tactic as Mussolini, beating and bullying all opposition into submission, including Roman Catholics. Bloody street battles between Roman Catholics who were Nazis and Roman Catholics who were communists took place. The prize being Germany."

The symbol for this new inquisition was the Swastika, which of course was a Masonic symbol. According to Rivera's research, Hitler was the Vatican's choice, just like Lech Walesa in Poland and the new American neo-con regime.

With this powerful backing, Hitler was destined to triumph as his close associates all had one thing in common: They were all Roman Catholics and loyal to the Vatican and according to Rivera, "all had Jewish blood in their veins, including Pacelli, the man who later became Pope Pius XII. When it became known that Pope Pius XI supported Hitler, the Roman Catholic vote swept Hitler into power in 1933."

The world now faced a terrible machine called the Third Reich, in which the Vatican became the master. History then forces the same question today: Is the Vatican now the master of the strange, fascist regime now controlling the White House, called the neo-cons?

Although Rivera is no longer with us to provide an answer, a statement by the publisher of his books revealed one of his startling predictions as well as laying groundwork for the present-day conflict in the Middle East, leading to World War III.

*In 1985, ex-Jesuit Alberto Rivera predicted that the Vatican would eventually apologize for its part in the German Holocaust, the inquisition, and the slaughter of Jews and Muslims during the Crusades. His prediction was based on secret briefings that he attended while a Jesuit in training.

This prediction came true as Pope John Paul II publicly asked forgiveness for the sins of Roman Catholics through the ages. The pope and several other Vatican leaders conducted a "Day of Pardon Mass" at St. Peter's Basilica.

To the Jews he said, "We are deeply saddened by the behavior of those who in the course of history have caused these children of yours to suffer, and asking your forgiveness we wish to commit ourselves to genuine brotherhood."

In reference to the Inquisition, Cardinal Ratzinger (The New Pope) confessed, "Even men of the church, in the name of faith and morals, have sometimes used methods not in keeping with the Gospel." The pope responded, "Have mercy on your sinful children."

Some Jewish leaders were unimpressed. Israel's chief rabbi, Meir Lau, said he was "deeply frustrated" by the pope's failure to mention the Holocaust by name.

Leaders from several Jewish organizations have been pressing the Vatican to open its World War II archives to investigators. They claim that, at best, Vatican leaders and Pope Pius XII, remained silent during Hitler's genocide against the Jews and others.

Of course, few are willing to present the whole truth, that Roman Catholic leaders, including the pope, were instrumental in Hitler's rise to power and that Hitler was simply carrying out persecution against the Jews which the Vatican had fostered for centuries.

Another reason for opening the archives is to determine what happened to hundreds of millions of dollars worth of gold stolen by the Nazis from Jews and other conquered nations. Much of it has been traced to Swiss banks who have made a token refund to Holocaust survivors.

But Dr. Rivera was told by the head of the Jesuit order, Cardinal Augustin Bea, that a special train flying Vatican flags was allowed through the Allied military lines. The Americans were told it was a "mercy train" carrying medical supplies. In reality it carried Nazi gold which was deposited in Vatican accounts in Swiss banks. In July, 1997, a documentary film crew discovered a US government document stating that the pro-Nazi Croatian Ustachis sent gold coins worth 250 million Swiss francs to the Vatican which was later used to finance the "rat line" of fleeing Nazi leaders to sanctuary in Spain and Argentina.

The Vatican denies this but still refuses to open its archives. In January of this year, Ukranian and Jewish concentration camp survivors filed a class action lawsuit in San Francisco, California against the Vatican Bank. The complaint calls for the Vatican Bank, the Franciscan Order and other European banks to give an accounting of the Nazi Ustashi Gold and for restitution for the victims and their families.

The Roman Catholic Institution has steadfastly denied that Dr. Rivera ever was a priest, much less privy to secret Vatican briefings. However, it seems unlikely that it was just a lucky guess when he made these statements 15 years ago.

Are Vatican accusations, claiming Rivera is a phony, true?

The Canadian Protestant League, not connected with Rivera or his publisher, conducted an investigation. They printed their findings in 1983, 14 years before Rivera's suspicious death. Here is a portion of their report, finding Rivera is exactly what he says he is: a former Jesuit priest who was converted to Christ and the vicious character assassination attempts made against him only go to prove the veracity of his statements about Rome.

"Booklets produced in comic form by Chick Publications in cooperation with Dr. Alberto M. R. Rivera (viz.: ALBERTO, DOUBLE-CROSS, THE GODFATHERS, SABOTAGE, THE BIG BETRAYAL, and more recently, THE FORCE) have excited angry responses from the Roman Catholic hierarchy across this continent. The said publications have been called hate propaganda, and demands have been made that they be banned. These are familiar demands, used for generations against those who have dared to expose and oppose the false claims, doctrines and practices of Roman Catholicism.

"The books have been described by papal representatives (as well as by those duped by Jesuit propaganda) as 'absurd, bigoted, a comedy of errors, condemning out of hatred, dangerous to the cause of Christ, disgusting, distortion of truth, evil spirit inspired, false, filthy, hatred, hogwash, lewd, lies, malicious, playing fast and loose with truth, Satan possessed, shameful, spiritual pornography, trash, stupidity, ugly,' as well as 'working for the Devil and not Jesus, immoral and indecent!'

"Christian bookstores have been coaxed, awed and threatened into discontinuing sales of the Crusaders series, and every other piece of material published by Chick - even its Gospel tracts.

"At the head office of the Canadian Protestant League, we have attracted a little more than our share of attention, innuendo and threat by legal and other means. (We only started to handle the material when we became aware of the aggressive campaign to remove it from the scene.) Two of the books were banned from entry into Canada on instructions by a Director of Canada Customs and Excise on the grounds of 'immorality and indecency.' We challenged that outrageous action in Court and the order was rescinded.

"Efforts have been made in other areas to deny the use of the Post Offices to those who continued to send the material through the mails. We were warned that a report to the R.C.M.P. was being made against us.

"We are threatened by the appointment of a study committee, responsible to the Attorney-General of Ontario, at the urging of the office of the R.C. Archbishop of Toronto, to determine whether ALBERTO and DOUBLE-CROSS should be designated as 'Hate Literature,' and appropriate charges laid. We have been visited by two inspectors of Metropolitan Toronto Police, enquiring about our involvement, and speaking of the possibility of action against us.

"We made no effort to hide any of our activity, but admitted freely that we were selling the items they were asking about. We repeated to them what we had told others: we would welcome a charge being laid against us under the Hate Propaganda Section of Canada's criminal code.

"We believe that when any pressure group can successfully intimidate all Christian booksellers across Canada into refraining to sell certain literature because it is OFFENSIVE to some, then surely someone ought to be ready to focus attention on such a threat to faith and freedom in this land of ours.

"We are prepared to take that action.

"We have been reminded of the possibility of a $6,000.00 fine or a two year prison sentence. We have insisted, if and when this should take place, that no one will pay the fine! Perhaps this will arouse apathetic Canadians - and apathetic Christians.

"One would expect Roman Catholics (feeling their own institutions were assailed) to rally every effort to offset the most effective, fruitful harvest the said literature is able to report, but the more tragic form of attack from those who glory in the label of 'evangelical Christians' makes sad reading indeed!"

"Christian Reader, Cornerstone and Our Sunday Visitor, published an article authored by Gary Metz entitled, 'The Uncomical Alberto Rivera,' a prominent article in Christianity Today.

"More recently, an effort by Brian Onken in Forward, the official organ of Christian Research Institute, appeared under the title, 'Alberto: The Truth About His Story.' In this 'study,' Dr. Rivera, the converted Jesuit priest, is represented as being a dishonest fraud. Areas are named in the United States wherein Alberto was allegedly being sought for questioning.

"The articles demand a response from those who are jealous in contending for the faith and to conserve our freedom. Concerned Christians wish to hear answers to several questions:

"Is Jack Chick a totally irresponsible publisher?"

"Is Alberto Rivera the lying sensationalist he is caricatured as being?"

"Is Alberto truly God's instrument for our day to bring about the longed-for reawakening among duped Roman Catholics, so that they can be truly won to Jesus Christ as Lord, Saviour, Mediator and Advocate; to the Bible as the Word of God, authoritative, free from error, inspired, and reliable to judge all other authorities; and directing people to come out of an organization that is anti-Christian?"

"Why the terrible abuse and attack upon these two brethren?"

"Why has someone not followed up on some of the charges made? Can we not analyze the charges? Can we not forensically analyze the charges made?"

"Will the men and magazines, hailed by many as authoritative in the field of evangelism, allow us to examine their charges? We want to know if they have a case at all!"

"If their charges can be logically and evidentially supported, so that we must see Dr. Rivera as guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, then we must re-examine our own position and alter our stance of supporting Chick and Rivera.

"Now - what is contained in the expose, coming to us in these articles? Alas, they are being accepted by those who have never taken the trouble to thoughtfully and thoroughly investigate the charges against the brethren.

"Are these criticisms dependent upon hearsay evidence, rumour, reported information, charges of fraud, usually reliable sources, deception, controversy, disturbance, questioned reliability, untruths, continual lying, defiance, contradictory testimony and ingenuity in attempts to validate his own story? This is the sort of language of those who sit in judgment upon Dr. Rivera.

"Can it be that the wish is the parent of the thought? Do these accusers want the stories to be true? These are the questions calling for definitely stated answers; and that is what we are seeking.

Examine The Charges!

"These magazines - upon which so many people rely - make statements concerning Dr. Rivera with no presentation of supportive evidence. This is so obvious, it is difficult to assess the writings accusing the man.

"Now, imagine we are sitting in a Court of Law and serious charges are laid against Alberto Rivera. The Prosecution does its utmost presenting its charges and its testimony supporting those charges.

"The Defence Attorney, if he considers that evidence weak, will move that no case has been established, and ask the Magistrate to dismiss the charges. Should the Judge agree, the Accused is released. He is assumed to be innocent!

"We want to observe the charges, and consider how well those making the charges substantiate them. Should they not be properly supported in the presentations, then we ask that they be dismissed, and that apologies be made to the brethren charged. The Bible tells us as Christians:

'Do violence to no man, neither accuse any falsely. Prove all things, hold fast that which is good. Against an elder receive not an accusation, but before two or three witnesses. In the mouth of two or three witnesses shall every word be established.'

"Did the critics read Alberto's outline of the Basic Steps followed by the Roman Hierarchy to discredit and destroy any who left their ranks? Did they endeavour to expose Romanism's errors and evil practices? Did they insist that Jesuitism is not, by any means Christian?

"In his defence against what he describes as slanders levelled by friend and foe alike, Rivera calls attention to...unchristian and anti-biblical charges and accusations by the head of the Christian Research Center (which carefully avoids research into the crimes and massacres of the Roman Catholic institution) through the instrumentality of articles appearing in...Cornerstone and Christianity Today ...

"An honest, decent person, even a non-Christian, will recognize the validity and credibility of Dr. Rivera as a Roman Catholic priest! Why have these critics consistently attacked Alberto Rivera instead of the doctrines he espouses and proclaims?"

"Mr. Metz says: Alberto says he worked with notable Jesuit spies such as Kathryn Kuhlman and Jim Jones; yet nowhere and at no time has Rivera said he had worked with either one!"

"The critics tell us that the story of Alberto was banned by the Christian Reformed Church, Zondervan Publishers and The Southern Baptist Sunday School Board; yet failed to admit that many of the congregations associated with these three bodies continue to sell the Crusaders Comics in question."

"The critics failed to ask the Roman Catholic hierarchy why they were upset because the articles were true, for because of them thousands of former Roman Catholics had found Jesus Christ as Lord and Saviour, and were coming out of Rome's religion."

"Why else should a priest on an Indian Reservation in New Brunswick order a faith missionary to stay off the Reserve, if it were not that many young native adults were reading of Alberto through the comics and were coming to Christ? This has been true in Western Canada and in some places in Ontario."

"Why did not the critics ask the representatives of the Roman Church why these demands they currently make to ban from entry, etc., unless it is for fear of an acceleration of many of their people in this exodus from Rome?"

"Why, specifically, are the mentioned publishers trying to abolish the ALBERTO series from all of their outlets? Have they been asked? Have they been asked whether the local Roman Church representatives have not appealed for this because they are offensive to them? (This was the reason given by the office of the Toronto R.C. Archbishop.) We are told by the critics: Our investigation reveals (Rivera's) police record, his investment schemes, his bad cheque-writing, his contradictory testimony, his fabricated education record, and his reported family abuse. Yet the author of these words must have forgotten something! He neglected to quote from any court records (indeed does not mention any single Court record location, any dates, any case numbers, and charges filed, whether or not an arrest was made, and the final outcome of the levelled charges allegedly made)."

"Reported abuse, newspaper clippings, magazine articles, several article writers (each quoting the others), never must be understood to be valid, factual evidence credible of anything at all! Critical mention is made of a college in Spain for which Rivera (as a Jesuit priest) was authorized to collect funds, when he was not properly authorized to do so."

"The articles claim that Rivera was never a priest. No mention is made of the name of the college, or the source of the information to support the conclusions. It was officially agreed from Roman Catholic sources that Dr. Rivera had indeed been appointed to act in the collection of funds for one month, and surely he would have not been so used without his priestly credentials being checked!"

'We are told that a minister of The Church of God of Prophecy, had experienced embarrassment when Rivera allegedly had written a cheque on an already closed account.

"Yet no mention is made of the location of the minister, of the banks concerned, of the locality of the airline desk complaining, whether the writers had ever seen a copy of the cheque, whether the closed account had previously existed, or to which office of which Department the said minister had written a complaint. (True, the accusers give us the name of the minister, but nothing else.)

"Charges are made of a history of legal entanglements, court actions, accusations of fraud, warrants issued for arrest, writing of bad cheques; yet no specifics regarding complaints, vital details, police records, places, hearings. No results are reported at all.

"Indeed, enquiries have been made by the Canadian Protestant League of every one of the police jurisdictions mentioned by the accusers, and consistently the response has been, we have never heard of this man!"

"We hear of alleged inconsistencies, contradictions, impossibly conflicting dates; yet we have never been given the sources of such information - letters, tapes, photo-copies, individuals, interviews, etc. - not even a newspaper clipping!"

"We are told: Alberto's claim to have been a Jesuit priest and bishop is denied by Roman Catholic spokesmen. They state the documents he exhibits as proof of this priesthood are little more than form letters giving permission to travel abroad.

"What else would one expect? Surely we would not expect Roman Catholic officialdom to admit that Alberto Rivera is telling the truth about them or their Jesuitical practices! How naive are we expected to be?"

Description: (A Highly recommended book)

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 16, 2006 01:11 AM (GMT)

The Transformation of the Republic: The Origins of the Religious Hi-Jacking of the American Government and the Truth Behind the Assassination of Abraham Lincoln by author and actor C.T. Wilcox.

"Transformation" is a 375 page expose of Vatican and Jesuit intrigues and interference into the political structure of the United States and Europe. It contains shocking revelations and fully authenticated documentation, much of it hidden for almost 100 years, to support the conclusion that the United States has been transformed from a beacon of light and hope into an empire with beast-like tendencies and that the world is headed for a Vatican led and instigated cataclysm while it sleepwalks towards the edge.

The people of the United States have been robbed of their own history. This is the worst kind of theft.

- * Who REALLY murdered Abraham Lincoln and several other presidents?
 - * Did John Wilkes Booth act alone or was he simply one of a crew of specially hired hitmen who were chosen to further the aims of wicked men and desperate politicians dressed in religious costumes?
 - * What were the motivating factors of the U.S. Civil War; slavery, states' rights or something altogether different?
 - * Why did Professor Samuel F.B. Morse go to Italy and what did he uncover?
- How were the European monarchies involved in the U.S. Civil War? Who stood to gain and who stood to lose?
- * Is the United States fast becoming a 21st Century version of Nazi Germany? If so, why and how did this occur?

- * Is the U.S. Bill of Rights and its Constitution at serious risk of being flushed down the toilet or is it already a dead letter?
- * What does Vatican interference in the global political realm mean for the world today?
- * Why did President G.W. Bush visit the Vatican 3 times in his first administration? *
- What about Condi Rice, Dick Cheney and Laura Bush?
- * Why are concentration camps being built in virtually every state west of the Mississippi?
- * What's up with the immigration crisis?

The answers to these and many other important questions can be found in Exhibit explores pope's Jewish legacy

By Tony LaRussa
TRIBUNE-REVIEW

Monday, May 15, 2006

http://www.pittsburghlive.com/x/pittsburgh...n/s_453901.html

This article was modified at 9:25 p.m. Monday, May 15, 2006, to correctly identify the weekday hours for the Pope John Paul II exhibit at Duquesne University's Mellon Hall. They are noon to 8 p.m.

An exhibit chronicling the path taken by Pope John Paul II to reconcile Catholics and Jews opens today at Duquesne University.

The interactive exhibit, "A Blessing to One Another: Pope John Paul II and the Jewish People," follows Karol Wojtyla's early interaction with Jewish neighbors, friends and classmates, from growing up in the Polish town of Wadowice through his historic visit to Israel as pope in 2000.

The 2,500-square-foot exhibit, which takes about 90 minutes to complete, will be in Duquesne's Mellon Hall through Aug. 11. The free exhibit will be open from noon to 8 p. m. weekdays, and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekends. Groups also can arrange private viewings.

"We had three goals when we developed this exhibit -- to educate, to commemorate and to inspire," said Rabbi Abie I. Ingber, executive director of the Hillel Jewish Student Center in Cincinnati. Ingber, whose parents were Holocaust survivors, was in Pittsburgh last week to train tour guides and put final touches on the exhibit.

"When it comes to improving relations between Christians and Jews, John Paul II was considered by many to be the master bridge builder," said Ingber, who had two private audiences with the pope.

"The bridges -- built almost entirely by himself -- are very solid on both sides, but they won't bear the foot traffic without our tending to it. This exhibit is one of the ways we hope to inspire people to continue the work he began."

The exhibit -- created by Hillel, Xavier University in Cincinnati and the New York City-based Shtetl Foundation -- debuted last year at Xavier to coincide with the 40th anniversary of the Vatican Council II document "Nostra Aetate," Latin for "In Our Time." The document explores the relationship of the Catholic Church to non-Christian religions and acknowledges a special relationship between Christians and Jews.

John Paul gave the exhibit his blessing six months before he died on April 12, 2005.

"Hosting 'A Blessing to One Another' allows Duquesne to provide an ideal educational opportunity to bring together people from the region to learn about the landmark relationship between Pope John Paul II and the Jewish community," said Francesco C. Cesareo, dean and professor of the McAnulty College of Liberal Arts at Duquesne University.

"It also helps Duquesne University to serve as a foundation for continued dialogue between the two faith traditions," Cesareo said.

A section of the exhibit "walks" visitors through a replica of the gate leading to the Krakow ghetto and contains chilling reminders of the Nazi Holocaust, including the shoes worn by Jewish concentration camp prisoners and an empty canister of the chemical Zyklon-B, which was used to kill Jews in Nazi gas chambers. The items are on loan from the Auschwitz-Birkenau Holocaust Museum in Poland.

During that period, Wojtyla was forced to work in the Solvay Chemical Co. quarry in Krakow by day while he secretly began studying for the priesthood.

The exhibit traces Wojtyla's rise to cardinal and his participation in the Second Vatican Council, where the seeds of change in Catholic-Jewish relations were sown. Personal items include the biretta -- a square cap with three-peaks -- Wojtyla wore when he became a cardinal. He was selected as pope in 1978.

The exhibit culminates in a celebration of John Paul II's papacy and includes artifacts such as his wooden cane and the skull cap he wore while visiting Israel in 2000.

A replica of the portion of Jerusalem's Western Wall where the pope prayed also is on display. Visitors are encouraged to write their own prayers to place in the wall. The notes eventually will be collected and taken to the wall in Jerusalem.

Condoleezza Rice at Boston College? I quit

By Steve Almond | May 12, 2006

http://www.boston.com/news/globe/editorial...college_i_quit/

An open letter to William P. Leahy, SJ, president of Boston College

DEAR Father Leahy,

I am writing to resign my post as an adjunct professor of English at Boston College.

I am doing so -- after five years at BC, and with tremendous regret -- as a direct result of your decision to invite Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice to be the commencement speaker at this year's graduation.

Many members of the faculty and student body already have voiced their objection to the invitation, arguing that Rice's actions as secretary of state are inconsistent with the broader humanistic values of the university and the Catholic and Jesuit traditions from which those values derive.

But I am not writing this letter simply because of an objection to the war against Iraq.

My concern is more fundamental. Simply put, Rice is a liar.

She has lied to the American people knowingly, repeatedly, often extravagantly over the past five years, in an effort to justify a pathologically misguided foreign policy.

The public record of her deceits is extensive. During the ramp-up to the Iraq war, she made 29 false or misleading public statements concerning Iraq's weapons of mass destruction and links to Al Qaeda, according to a congressional investigation by the House Committee on Government Reform.

To cite one example:

In an effort to build the case for war, then-National Security Adviser Rice repeatedly asserted that Iraq was pursuing a nuclear weapon, and specifically seeking uranium in Africa.

In July of 2003, after these claims were disproved, Rice said: "Now if there were doubts about the underlying intelligence . . . those doubts were not communicated to the president, the vice president, or to me."

Rice's own deputy, Stephen Hadley, later admitted that the CIA had sent her a memo eight months earlier warning against the use of this claim.

In the three years since the war began, Rice has continued to misrepresent or simply ignore the truth about our deadly adventure in Iraq.

Like the president whom she serves so faithfully, she refuses to recognize her errors or the tragic consequences of those errors to the young soldiers and civilians dying in Iraq. She is a diplomat whose central allegiance is not to the democratic cause of this nation, but absolute power.

This is the woman to whom you will be bestowing an honorary degree, along with the privilege of addressing the graduating class of 2006.

It is this last notion I find most reprehensible: that Boston College would entrust to Rice the role of moral exemplar.

To be clear: I am not questioning her intellectual gifts or academic accomplishments. Nor her potentially inspiring role as a powerful woman of color.

But these are not the factors by which a commencement speaker should be judged. It is the content of one's character that matters here -- the reverence for truth and knowledge that Boston College purports to champion.

Rice does not personify these values; she repudiates them. Whatever inspiring rhetoric she might present to the graduating class, her actions as a citizen and politician tell a different story.

Honestly, Father Leahy, what lessons do you expect her to impart to impressionable seniors?

That hard work in the corporate sector might gain them a spot on the board of Chevron? That they, too, might someday have an oil tanker named after them? That it is acceptable to lie to the American people for political gain?

Given the widespread objection to inviting Rice, I would like to think you will rescind the offer. But that is clearly not going to happen.

Like the administration in Washington, you appear too proud to admit to your mistake. Instead, you will mouth a bunch of platitudes, all of which boil down to: You don't want to lose face.

In this sense, you leave me no choice.

I cannot, in good conscience, exhort my students to pursue truth and knowledge, then collect a paycheck from an institution that displays such flagrant disregard for both.

I would like to apologize to my students and prospective students. I would also urge them to investigate the words and actions of Rice, and to exercise their own First Amendment rights at her speech.

JagDRS - May 11, 2006 08:57 PM (GMT)

This article seems to corroborate a statement made recently here in one of the Unhived threads. The pope appears to be pissed due to being dissed by Chavez. Whether this story is true as presented or not, go Chavez and anyone else publicly pissing on the pope!

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 12, 2006 12:03 AM (GMT)

The white pope is irrelevant since the Superior General took over Vatican control for the Society of Jesus. Remember how we're constantly being hoodwinked! I used to adore Hugo Chavez but since I've found hes Roman Catholic and obviously the friend of 4TH VOW JESUIT Castro (and 33rd degree Mason), not no more. Hes just another Jesuit pawn in the soup!

JagDRS - May 12, 2006 07:14 PM (GMT)

Oh well, I suspected it was asking too much to expect a valid story from mainstream : (regardless, piss on the pope and the jesuit order they rode in on :)

Dear Robert,

Excellent observations. Indeed, the high Jesuits are the masters of mind control. They are the power behind the CIA's MK ULTRA program----via their previous Nazis experiments.

The Order put out the first In Search of the Manchurian Candidate in which the assassin was a priest! That film was then banned after the Order's JFK assassination. The more recent release "starring" the Fordham University Jesuit-trained Black actor, Denzel Washington, did not used the character of a priest, but of a military man.

The BBC is totally ruled by the Jesuits via the RIIA.

I recall reading somewhere that Jesuit Mind Control takes place at their colleges...this was a few years back but it makes sense though. Mind Control is Socerery and Jesuits I understand are masters at it....

Washington, D.C. area - The basement of the Pentagon and other facilities around Washington D. C. such as the Jesuit Georgetown Univ. Hosp. are involved with Mind-Control. I liked how Greg in one of his latest writings about his fiction character mentions this character getting mind controlled and given a permanent Jesuit handler! 4th Vow Jesuits are master Luciferians as are the highest of the Council of 13 degrees of the Bavarian Illuminati, The Committee of 300, The Grand Orient, B'nai B'Rith, 33 degree council of Scottish Rite Masons. You will know these groups as the Illuminati!

Dear Robert,

Thank you for the thought regarding the Teutonic Knights. As you must know, the German Teutonic Knights, with uniforms being identical in their colors with Bavarian Roman Catholic Heinrich Himmler's SS, "Order of the Death's Head" (black trimmed with silver), were the Pope's crusaders led by Emperor Frederick Barbarossa. The Teutonic Knights always executed the will of its master in Rome and were never anti-Rome, or truly Protestant. Their rule was Augustinian; Himmler's rule was that of the Jesuits.

To assert that the German Teutonic Knights descended into the hands of the Protestant Lutheran Prussians is a popish error. We must remember that the Knights were formally disbanded by Napoleon, the Roman Catholic Masonic Jesuit-advised Avenger for the Order, in 1806; they were then revived under the name of the New Templars by occult Freemason George Lanz in 1912, that former Roman Catholic priest who met Hitler at Lambach Abbey when Hitler was a boy; the priest who openly left the priesthood, openly became a Lutheran, openly turned anti-Jesuit, yet remaining a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor in accordance with the bloody Jesuit Oath.

After the death of Freemason List, Freemason Lanz was the immediate influence upon both Hitler and Himmler, those Roman Catholic Jesuit Temporal Coadjutors who destroyed Protestant Prussia via their connections with Jesuit-trained Joseph Stalin and his Jesuit-ruled "headhunters," the NKVD. Yes, the head of the NKVD and also a Lubyanka General was the Jesuit, who aided Stalin in the murder of his (the Jesuit's) Jewish wife, Alexander N. Poskrebyshev.

The Order then carried out the designs of Lanz with regard to the Jews of Europe and Western Russia, along with the mass-murder of 20 million "heretic" Orthodox Russian Christians---aided by Stalin himself. After the war Himmler and his Teutonic Knights were saved by Allied Intelligence---the British SIS and the American OSS, both led by the Knights of Malta---via Pope Pius XII's Vatican Ratlines.

Meanwhile, the apostate Lutheran morphine drug addict and non-member of the Teutonic SS, Prussian Herman Goering, paid with his life for resisting Hitler's all-powerful Jesuit secretary, Martin Bormann. But the obedient ex-Lutheran Bormann, disguised as a Jesuit, escaped to South America via Bishop Hudal's Ratline. His, Adolf Martin, son became a Jesuit "missionary" to the Congo.

In conclusion, the Jesuit Order rules the Papacy; it rules all secret societies especially the Luciferian Masonic orders. It ruled Himmler and his Teutonic Knights of the SS. Today, it rules the Knights of Malta governing the CIA to the end that the NWO will be centered in that Antichrist in Rome---the Pope who pretends to be Jesus Christ in the flesh, the priest of Jerusalem---Melchisedec. To this no Bible-believing Protestant or Baptist Calvinist would ever submit.

I trust this is helpful.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

Good point. I thought of this 1954 act during the height of the stink that was fabricated the past few years by those advocating "the pledge must go!" (removed from schoolrooms all together) due to the allegedly offending words having evolved and spun to the point they did - our politicians and courts seeking a solution that favored the radical force of new policy (wiping out the entire pledge all together) when a much simpler and lighter touch would have been more appropriate, likeDUH!, why don't we just roll back to the pre-1954 conditions?

Description: SZYMANSKI [How Pathetic]

CRAIG-OXLEY - April 20, 2006 04:09 PM (GMT)

I will not even waste my time copy and pasteing this lump of Temporal Coadjutor diversion nonsense. Its all too boring, common and every man and his dog blaming COURT jews for everything. These people like to forget that these Talmudic Jews are MASONIC and ruled by THE SUPERIOR GENERAL of the JESUIT ORDER. Like I said to someone else earlier, does this bafoon honestly think they would find Jesuits and/or Sovereign Military of Malta directly linkable to these atrocities? Of course not, these groups are the PINACLE of control and be sure the Jesuits are very very hard to finger, even more so compared to the SMOM. Its not jews running the world, its Gentiles from ROME ultimately Peter Hans Kolvenbach and his council along with SMOM Andrew Willoughby Ninian Bertie. How the hell can this TEMPORAL COADJUTOR call Eric Phelps, Skolnick and Szymanski criminals? When is it a crime to expose the real criminals who create crimes of unimagivable evil on people of this planet? Again its the old shoot the messenger and not the message. Eric Phelps exposed this Temporal Coadjutor a while ago. He seems to like the jew bashing and blaming judicial-inc liberty. I also remember this temporal coadjutor site bashing Joe Vialls, they did this when he was dead and he couldn't defend himself. Joe Vialls was banned from numerous internet pay methods such as Paypal along with numerous websites such as Temporals RENSE & Rumour Mill ect. Joe also fingered Jews a lot in his texts but no one says the MOSSAD doesn't do many acts because they do. Joe was banned because of his deeper research and exposing such as the Micronukes etc. The Jesuit Order are relying on peoples ignorance and following of the Jew Myth and of course their direct disinformation sources such as these people to keep you in the dark. Remember how its installed in you from birth about Jews running the world? Do you honestly think the mass SHEEP would have a clue about the REAL leader of the world? Ask 500 sheep who runs the world and almost all will say jews. Ask the same 500 if they had heard of the JESUITS and SMOM and watch them scratch their head. We hear this Temporal Smith talk about follow the money yet its proven the VATICAN is the wealthiest entity on the planet. We all know who created ISRAEL and who controls freemasonry? Yes the Black Pope ultimately! ISRAEL is only known as the Holy city due to it being the CENTER of trade for the world. We shall see whos correct when the one world government is well established. These people will then say well its no longer Roman Catholic as this and all the other religions will be destroyed. We'll remember on that the leaders of the Church of Rome do not care for Catholicism and its only used as the control tool for now. They will be changing to the next phase and change in history shortly with the NWO. As with before when Ceasars became Popes etc the same old charade will go around once again. Why doesn't smith talk about the NON-JEW room at the NSA? Why doesn't he talk about the SMOM ruling the CFR which rules the US? If the Vatican wished to destroy ISRAEL it would do so in a blink of an eye and will do towards the end, closer to the final goal of the New World Order. -2tuff

For a little more understand on the Jews read below pasted from another thread I started today about Barry Chamish -2tuff

Dear Exxxx,

Two things we must remember.

1. The Frankist Sabbateans are Masonic and controlled by the Vatican's Jesuits---the authors of occult Freemasonry. Hundreds are members within Cardinal Egan's New York City-based Council on Foreign Relations---the secret government ruling Fourteenth Amendment America. Their purpose is to create anti-Jewish fury in every nation so as to drive as many Jews as possible to Israel for their attempted final annihilation by the final Pope, to be murdered and risen from the dead turned Antichrist, or "the Beast." Jacob Frank (1726-1791) was baptized into the Roman Catholic Institution in Warsaw between 1756 and 1760, Augustus III King of Poland acting as his godfather. Frank also, "to preserve his order, committed his followers to mass baptism---thereby submitting to both the spiritual and temporal power of the Pope. Frank was arrested by the Inquisition in 1760 and imprisoned until 1773 when he was freed by the conquering Russians, Catherine II the Great being the utter tool of the Jesuits to whom she gave protection after the Order's Papal Suppression that same year. Frank died in 1791, and his Order merged with the Catholic population of Poland. Years later, the descendants of these Catholicized Polish racial Jews became the founders of Israel under the oversight of that mass-murderer of Eurasian Jews, Pope Pius XII. Further, high-level, Talmudic, Orthodox Jews aided the Papacy in this "burnt offering" of Jews, the Chief Rabbi of Rome, Grand Rabbi Zolli, who then "converted to Romanism after the war. The Jesuit connection to these Jewish traitors to their own racial people is evidenced by the ADL awarding their Jesuit Cardinal Bea Interfaith Award---Abe Foxman, like Shimon Peres, being another Masonic Jewish Zionist and Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor.

For this reason, it is most evident that the Sabbatean Frankists are the Pope's Masonic Jewish Zionists of today. The Jesuits rule the Papacy; the Papacy rules Israel; and that rule is facilitated by the Order's Masonic Jews who are now being blamed for the plight of the world.

During the coming Great Tribulation---the final 42 months of the Seventieth Week of Daniel (Dan.9:24-27)---before the Lord destroys Rome, "that great city which reigneth over the kings of the earth" (Rev.17:18), He will call for the exodus of all racial Jews out of Babylon---Rome.

"And I heard another voice from heaven, saying, Come out of her my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues." (Rev. 18:4)

At this future time there is no Body of Christ---the true Bible-believing Church---on the earth at this time as she has fallen away or "departed" from this earth. (II Thess.2:3), the Lord having received her to Himself (I Thess.4:16-17). No "Body of Christ" was in existence during the first 69 weeks of years; the same holds true for the 70th week of years.

2. Silverstein, like Michael Bloomberg, is a personal friend of Jesuit of the Fourth Vow and CFR Presider, Joseph A. O'Hare, the former President of Fordham University and a Knight of Malta, as is Fordham's Jesuit Avery Cardinal Dulles, the aged nephew of the late Director of the CIA, Allen Dulles. These notorious Jews are mere "court Jews" of the Papists ruling New York City.

For some reason Barry is not putting this icing on the cake. He knows it to be true, yet refrains in his most wonderful missive below. Nevertheless, he is my friend and I have greatly profited from his work as he is the only Jew of present notoriety that exposes the Jesuits, the CFR and the Frankists---the Pope's Masonic Jewish Zionists.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

JagDRS - April 20, 2006 04:33 PM (GMT)

I admit to having waffled myself on DBS and all that connects to him through IATW (like Michael Colins Piper and guys who prefer being known by a three-named monaker).

This was a topic/thread here not long ago. To repeat a past statement, I first tuned into DBS not long after his French-Connection radio show had launched, a night when he was interviewing Eustace Mullins. He hesitated briefly in making a followup reply to something profound Mullins had said. This was my first clue. The second was when he came back from commercial and (paraphrasing) launched into a quick tirade on what his program was not about AND why he was not going to entertain any kind of discussion about what he referred to as "so-called Jesuit boogiemens". Somewhere along the line after this, I wavered (a conflicting third clue?). Somebody here (Bladestorm, Mark Brewer, not casting any aspersions, just can't remember who), posted a DBS article wherein he debunked the Martin Sheen/911 story, and like any of these kinds of stories from any sources (coadjutor and non), parts of this story seemed reasonable..... oops ? :unsure:

Long story short, when the Zionist/Sionist banksters, movie makers, media moguls, think-tanksters, college deans, presidential administrators/agents, and politicians appear to be so content in making themselves so visible in world events seemingly without qualms the way they do, be they unwitting front-men dupes of the Jesuits or not, it is difficult to not be drawn into the Jews-only blame angle. And, if they truly are just dupe front-men, somehow, somebody who genuinely cares about the plight of true Jews needs to make them aware of this gaff and, for Heaven's sake, get them off the front-man unwitting-dupe stage!

Bladestorm - April 20, 2006 04:44 PM (GMT)

I know your not accusing me, but I've never posted a DBS article.

TruthSeeker24 - April 20, 2006 05:25 PM (GMT)

Daryl Smith is a bigot and me and 2tuff wrote long exposes about this blatant, racist shill.

I really am not into this guy's agenda. Nice shot, Daryl Bradford, but you're deception doesn't work for us smart guy who see through your propaganda. You say that you aren't anti-Semitic, but not only do you blame the Jews for most of our problems, but assign most things related to the Jewish culture as negative. His lies are so many, I don't know where to begin. First, anyone with common sense knows that the USS Liberty situation was wrong. No reasonable man denies the many evils that the Mossad has done in history and today. The Mossad is an intelligence agency, yet Fritz Springmeier, Eric Jon Phelps, and other real researchers have proven that the Mossad is not more powerful than the MI6 and CIA. The truth that Daryl omits is that the Mossad was trained by Knight of Malta Reinhard Gehlen. Gehlen was a Nazi and he was the ultimate founder of the CIA in the late 1940's according to the research of John Buchanan. Now, Masonic Jewish Zionists (in the Mossad and other arms) do play a significant, but secondary role in world affairs. For example, it was the Vatican's Knights of Malta that helped Hitler to be elected in his powerbase and was his political party base not the Zionists. As for 9/11, it was primarily a CIA government operation. It was the Knight of Malta Gentile George Tenet that made a drill of hijacked aircraft into the Twin Towers on the morning of 9/11. It was the Roman Catholic Gentile Dick Cheney that controlled NORAD (by a June 1, 2001 order) which allowed wargames to follow, the NORAD couldn't respond to the hijacked aircraft. It was the Gentile George W. Bush that passed the order W199I restricted FBI officials to investigate or arrest terrorist suspects. It was the Gentiles in the Bush family that had business relations with the Gentile Bin Ladin family.

It was the majority Gentile White House that received terror attack warning. It was the majority Gentile & CFR PNAC document crowd that wanted a "Pearl Harbor"-like event to get their agenda rolling. It was the Gentile Roman Catholic Florida Governor Jeb Bush, a brother to the President, issued an Executive Order in which members of the Florida National Guard were activated in case of an emergency on September 7, 2001. It was Roman Catholic Rudy Giuliani who not only allowed steel to go to China and was warned of the building's collapse, but knew of FEMA setting up camp in September 10th, 2001 in Pier 29. It was the government that funded al-Qaeda cells in SE Europe during the late 1990's according to a Senate report. It is some Roman Catholic Knights of Malta like Frank Carlucci using corporations to profit from this "war on terror." Therefore, it was a majority Gentile operation.

Zionists played a secondary role in involvement and cover up like Larry Silverstein, the dancing Israelis, but these are side issues. The real issues are the controlled demolition and the failure of NORAD to respond. I could go on and on. Daryl is either a deceiver, omits stuff, or is a total fraud. Tough, Daryl Bradford Smith had got nothing on me. He's a total joke. He lies about the Roman Catholic Church. To say that the Catholic Church with over 1.1 billion members, strong conversions in the Third World, owning or having investments in many large corporations, and thousands of lay people worldwide is weak is a lie. The vast majority of media is controlled by the CFR, TC, and other big political arms, not just the Masonic Jewish Zionists. Look at Gaylon Ross's research where he lists the tons of CFR members controlling much of our businesses, banking, industry, etc. For Daryl Bradford Smith to deny the Vatican/Jesuit/SMOM connection to world events makes him a direct liar. Even Roman Catholic Knight of Malta Gustavo Cisneros is a billionaire, media magnate, and a member of the Pilgrim Society.

Even some of his opinions on Israel are filled with lies. He says that the Jews stole the land in 1948, but Jews had a permanent presence in the land from the time of David, Solomon, First Diaspora, Second Temple, Babylon, Persians, Greece, Rome, Byzantium, early Islamic empire, Ottoman Turks, British imperialists, and today. Jews and Arabs coexisted peacefully for centuries. Only since ca. 1900 did elite exploit both sides to cause massive conflicts in the Middle East. His tirade against Barry Chamish tells me that he doesn't know real history. He talks about British Freemasonry. The truth is that many in Freemasonry had involvement in creating Isarel like Chaim Wiessman (a 33rd Degree Freemason) and Harry Truman (who was in the 33rd Degree also). As for Jesuits, according to Edmond Paris's "The Secret History of the Jesuits" book, a Jesuit priest helped Hitler to write Mein Kampf. His biggest lie is that we don't cite evidence to back up what we say. The truth is that we've cited tons of books, articles, and other information to back up our opinions. A real truthseeker must expose all facets of the conspiracy not just the Zionists. Daryl Bradford Smith is a shill and obsessive about Jews and Zionists. I might email the man. I dare this liar to try to refute a sentence, then I will show tons of sources to back up every sentence that I'm writing here. oh, his other lie is that anyone who discusses the Jesuit link to world affairs is bought and paid for. What a liar I tell you. Like I said, 2tuff, this clown Smith doesn't know what he's messing with. All of us here and smart and know tons of historical information.

CRAIG-OXLEY - April 23, 2006 02:06 AM (GMT)

Concerning Daryl Bradford Smith, I have called him a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor publicly. He followed Dr. Bill Deagle's show a few months back when Bill hosted me. Smith attacked everything we said. Yes, he is just another Jew-hating, Jesuit Coadjutor.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 1, 2006 11:47 PM (GMT)

More slander from Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor Daryl Bradford Smith. His ad hominem attacks against Greg Szymanski, Sherman Skolnick and myself regarding our positions on the Jesuits are but admissions of his inability to attack and defeat the facts we post.

I regard ad hominem attacks as the greatest admission and confession of defeat on the part of any adversary in the arena of truth exchange or "info wars."

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 9, 2006 10:15 PM (GMT)

Dear David,

Thank you for contacting me.

Notice that Daryl Bradford Smith has attacked me personally and not specific statements I have made. This is the ultimate admission of defeat. He calls me a "liar" and declares that I am a "Zionist agent," that I am "financed by Jews" and that I am seeking to direct attention away from the Jewish Zionists. For the record, I am not a Zionist agent, I am not financed by Jews and I do my utmost not to be a liar. I am a biblical Zionist defending the right of racial Jews to live in the land given to the fathers as defined on my website.

If anyone reads my site when it is not jammed, it is quite evident that I call the Masonic Jewish Labor Zionists, having ruled Israel from the inception of the nation, altar boys of the pope. They rule Israel for the benefit of the Jesuit-ruled Papacy, not for the benefit of the Lord's beloved Hebrew/Jewish/Israelitic people living in a portion of the land promised to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. I call those Masonic Jewish Labor Zionists "Nazis," in that they aided and abetted Masonic Jesuit Coadjutors Hitler and Stalin in carrying out the Eurasian Jewish Holocaust as well as the Protestant and Orthodox Holocausts.

Since I never turn the cheek when attacked, as that command was not given by Jesus Christ to his Church, I am now forced to put up another tab on my site to be titled, "Coadjutor D. B. Smith."

Thanks for the heads-up.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 9, 2006 10:17 PM (GMT)

Well, well!

Coadjutor Daryl Bradford Smith says that I am a Zionist! Indeed, he is right in this way: I am a biblical Zionist---that the race of Hebrew/Jewish/Israelites have a God-given right to the land of Israel pursuant to Genesis 12 and 15. From that position I will never be moved.

But, I am not one of the backers of the Pope's Masonic Jewish Zionists, men like Peres, Ben Gurion, Weizmann and Sharon. These Labor Zionists, backed by the Order's Fabian Socialist British Labor Party in the early 1900s, are co-murderers of the risen Son of God's beloved Hebrew/Jewish/Israelitic people during the Bolshivek Revolution and Stalin's ensuing purges of the twenties and thirties. They also participated with the Jesuit Bavarian Nazis in the Eurasian Jewish Holocaust as proven by Ben Hecht's Perfidy.

Therefore, I maintain the right of physical descendants of Jacob (whose racial identity has never been lost during their international Disapora) to the land promised to the fathers, which promise the Lord Jesus Christ came to confirm (Romans 15:8). But the ruling Masonic Jews of Israel I always oppose as does my Jewish friend, Barry Chamish.

Further, I have never received one penny from one Jew---ever! Not one has ever offered to help me in this ministry. If Smith can produce a check or bank wire or or cash receipt or verbal testimony of two people or anything that would prove that I have taken one cent from any Jew, saved or unsaved, I will apologize. I will say that if offered, I would happily use their money to the ends that I have espoused for the last ten years.

I trust this clarifies the matter.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

TruthSeeker24 - May 10, 2006 12:17 PM (GMT)

I wouldn't worry about Daryl Bradford Smith. He's a liar and he's been refuted completely by me, 2tuff, and Eric Jon Phelps. Just because a man supports a right for Israel to exist, doesn't mean that they support the evil in Israel or any other nation. Daryl Bradford is one fronting person. History proves the great power of the Jesuits. It was invented by the Crusader Spaniard Igantius in the 1500's. He witnessed his "Spiritual Exercises" (similar to Muhammad) in a cave to develop much of his doctrine. They are dedicated to lead the Counter Reformation to destroy the freedom of press and religion that we in America hold dear. What Daryl is doing is disregarding information that support our agenda, then focus in obsession with the "Zionists." The truth is that most of the members of the Secret Societies and elite are Gentiles, not Jewish people. To say that almost 20 million Jewish people is more powerful than 1.1 billion member Roman Catholics plus the international Jesuit order is living in a fantasy land.

The Jesuits were the advisers to Napeolon. Napeolon betrayed his own troops in battle, then he called the Jesuits a military order. The Jesuits are also linked to Freemasonry. Authors wrote that much of the Scottish Rite degrees were written in a Jesuit college. Also, one high level Scottish Rite degree uses the "IHS" logo, which is a symbol of the Jesuits. "IHS" (or Isis Horus Seb) related to the ancient Egyptian/Babylonian paganism that paganism, Freemasonry, and all religions either originate or are related from. The ancients also worshipped a trinity of gods (not the Christian Godhead of 3 persons of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit). The common trinity is of the Mother, Father, and the Child, which is accepted by the New Age Movement. That's why you see the New Agers talk about the Goddess all of the time, but the concept of a Queen of Heaven [including sending offering to it] is condemned in the book of Jeremiah. The New Age Movement blasted off with Jesuit priest Pierre Chardian, who promoted the Piltdown man Hoax. Before Chardian, occult Masons Albert Pike (in the 33rd Degree of the Scottish Rite and a convicted war criminal who fled to Canada like a coward) and Luciferian Madame Blavatsky promoted New Age concepts. Even today, 33rd Degree Freemason Robert Schuller (who is an ally of Pope Benedict XVI and the late Pope John Paul II) accept some Buddhist teachings.

Also, OTO member and Satanist Aliester Crowley is quoted as praising the Jesuits and people call him the "father of modern culture plus rock and roll." These are small pieces of evidence validating the New Age connection to Freemasonry (some of the degrees of the Scottish Rite was formed in 1754 at the College of the Jesuits of Clermont. Chevalier de Bonneville established the Chapter of Clermont. This was even admitted by the Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite

Valley of Grand Rapids homepage) and Jesuitism that Eric Jon Phelps have eloquently displayed. After his death, not only does the Roman Catholic church accepted him in good graces, but the Vatican accepts the ancient pagan/Egyptian/Eastern mystic view of Evolution. It really wasn't invented by Darwin. All of this New Age mumbo gumbo facilitated the increase of the works-based New Age ideology (which is in virtually every religion except Biblical Christianity). It isn't just New Age that is controlled, but the ecumencial Movement is controlled by the Vatican (as confirmed by the many books of Dr. Cathy Burns especially "Billy Graham and Friends.")

Daryl Bradford Smith needs to look at a history book. It was the Jesuits in Paraguay that used Communism and trained Karl Marx (according to Alberto Rivera) in his Communist philosophy. Communism itself takes its influences from Plato, Thomas More, etc. Jesuit priests were used in the Russian Revolution like Bopp, not just high level Freemasons like Paul Warburg. Even Stalin was trained by the Jesuits in Georgia. I am a student of history. When I look at history, I see the pro-occult Labor Zionism as playing a secondary role in world affairs. For example, many Labor Zionists collaborated with the Nazis as exposed by Barry Chamish and other authors. This is trumpeted by the truth that the Vatican and its Knights of Malta like Franz von Papen not only baptized Hitler, but formed his political party and allowed him to reign as dictator for years. It was the Jesuits that the SS (like Himmler) admitted modeled themselves after. Many Jesuits were in the SS. The SS were also modeled after the Teutonic Knights of Europe centuries ago. The Jesuit/Nazi connection is explained further in Edmond Paris' book "The Secret History of the Jesuits." Many Catholic dictators persecuted Jews, Gypsies, Serbs, and others across Europe. Another example is many people believe that the Zionists head the foreign policy of the Presidency. The truth is that there are more CFR members in the PNAC document crowd and in the White House than Zionists. When you look at Vietnam, it was Vatican-supported dictators that slaughtered the Buddhists and contributed to the drug trade that crippled citizens in America. It wasn't a majority Zionist situation. Even Ngo Dinh Diem and some of his associates were Catholics. Avro Manhattan's book called "Vietnam, Why did we go?" talks about this subject rather conclusively. Master Mason LBJ, Roman Catholic and CFR member William C. Westmoreland, Supreme Knight of the Knights of Columbus Francis P. Matthews, many Bonesmen, and of course Cardinal Spellman [The Vietnam War was readily nicknamed "Spelly's War"] were active players in the Vietnam War. That's a historical fact.

Another example is that many Zionists are in Freemasonry, but most Masons are Gentiles and The Grand Lodge in England is headed by a Gentile. Freemasonry has a long history being involved in Revolutions, wars, occult rituals, creating religions, etc. more than Zionists have ever accomplish. People talk about the Rothschilds, but the Rothschilds originally never had powerful wealth. The Roman Church controlled most of Europe during the 1700's. Also, even today, Black Nobility families (plus other powerful bloodlines) and the Vatican put together are more wealthier and powerful than the Rothschilds. Even the author Saussy said that the Rothschilds are the Gaurdians of the Vatican treasures denoting subordination. It is even unknown to find out the total wealth of the Vatican. Back in the 1980's, Avro Manhattan wrote that the USA Catholic Church had about $500 million. This was in the 80's, so imagine how much wealth the Vatican has today. One big man in the media is Roman Catholic Rupert Murdoch. Rupert Murdoch is a Knight of St Gregory the Great.

Daryl Bradford Smith doesn't want the histories of the Vatican, Knights of Malta, Opus Dei, Knights of Columbus, and even high level Freemasonry's role in historical events and power exposed. He's a deciever. As for Israel, the Jewish people lived in the land for over 2,000 years continiously. Arabic people worked with the Jewish people in Israel, North Africa, and Spain peacefully during the Middle Ages. During that time, many Arabic people developed calligraphy, improved upon mathematics, and other spheres of cultural development. What more evidence can I prove of not only a permanent Jewish presence, but a peaceful co-existence between Jews and Arab? Well, in 638 A.D., caliph Omar was welcomed by Jewish people. In 1187 A.D., Jews actively participated with Salah-ud-Din Al'Ayyub (Saladin) against the Crusaders in the conquest of Jerusalem. Caliph Salahuddin al-Ayyub (Saladin), knew the Jews and kindly invited them to settle in Jerusalem. Also, the Sephardic Jewish community in Spain and the Arabic community worked together greatly in the Middle Ages as well.

1.1 million Jewish people were murdered by Titus and the Romans, but all of the Hebrews still weren't destroyed. Even the term "Palestine" was created by the Romans to get rid of any Jewish historical reference. It was supported by the bigot Hadrian. Obviously, I don't agree with Islam. This is another point of Daryl's shill tactics. He never exposes nothing on Islam and how radical Muslims are persecuting people in Nigeria, Sudan, Egypt, Saudi Arabia, parts of Asia, etc. There always been a Vatican/Islam connection since both religions discuss about Fatima, have rosaries, accept repeating prayers (which was condemned by Jesus Christ in the book of Matthew), etc. The Muslim persecutions done centuries ago and now isn't done by the Zionists, but by real Muslim extremists oppressing women and doing savage activities. Mark Brewer have exposed the Muslim colloboration with the Vatican as well.

It's laughable that he's talking about the Ashkenazi. The truth is that pre-Khazar

Jewish people were in Germany before 500 A.D. as well as France. Other Jewish people like the Sephardic, Ethioipic, Indic, Bahrain, and across the globe are still related to the ancient Hebrews of the Bible by tons of evidence. Also, answersingenesi.org has evidence proving that many of even the Askhenazi are related to the Biblical Hebrews as well. They live in Israel now and have a right to the land, because of a permanent presence (for over 2,000 years I might add) and the Word of God as stated in Genesis 12. No one denies evil that is done by the anti-Torah/pro-Talmud Masonic Jewish Zionists (in dual loyalty, USS Liberty, etc.) but people like me don't believe the Zionists run our government and especially don't rule the world. Blame the Zionists all of the time is an old canard that Neo Nazis and anti-Semites use to justify hatred of Jewish people. Daryl is also lying in claiming that he isn't anti-Semitic. To presume that Askhenazi Jewish Zionists are solely running the world's policy is bigotry when you investigate all of the facts. I'm not even talking about the Skulls and Bones, Germanic death cults, Le Cerle, the Pilgrim Society, 1001 Club, etc. that he refuses to expose. Le Cerle, the Pilgrim Society, and 1001 Club are more powerful than the "Zionists." Also, to not even speak about the Knights of Malta's influence in banking, government, politics, entertainment (Knight of Malta Frank J. Fahrenkopf Jr. is the president and CEO of the American Gaming Association), and other parts of world power is really deceptive.

2tuff, I look at your comments from Davidickeforum. I witness one person who calls himself "stormholloway" (who denies the Jesuit link to world events) saying what about the time before 1500. I heard the same comments from a person in Davidickeforum called "TruSouljah." stormholloway, it isn't foolishness. It's just your distortion in citing no historical evidence to rebut us. Also, stormholloway, no one denies that historical events existed before 1500 as well. The truth is that world power isn't necessarily stationary in one location or disposition permanently. Just because Babylon and Egypt were the ancient world powers, doesn't mean it will stay that way. The truth is that through thousands of years, empires change and shift and it just shift into the Vatican during the early Middle Ages. Frankily, it was the Roman Catholic Knights Templars that were the world's international bankers of Europe. Many of them were murdered and went into Scotland and other locations by the 1300's. It was the Roman Catholic Knight Hospitallers who are the origin of the modern Knights of Malta and Knights of the St. John of Jerusalem. It was the Roman Catholic stonemasons that lead to the invention of modern Freemasonry in 1717. It was Roman Catholics in Europe who left Roman Catholicism to influence modern Rosicuricanism. Even the real Priory de Sion (not the mythical one portrayed in Dan Brown's "Da Vinci Code" book. Plantard admitted that he made up the 20th century Priory de Sion. I've noticed that Dan Brown doesn't talk about the real history of Freemasonry, yet alone the real facts behind the Jesuit invention of the Bavarian Illuminati in 1776. Bavaria is a stronghold of Jesuit influence and proof is the Ingolstadt University) were originally Catholics. I wanted to mention this also because I'm fully aware of the comments of some people in the Davidickeforum.

P.S. I guess Daryl Bradford Smith doesn't talk about UFOs, because many of the Nazis were sent to America by Operation Paperclip (the Vatican Ratlines were also involved in sending Nazis in the Americas and other locations). Operation Paperclip led the government to further expand on the anti-gravity devices that the Nazis already developed. Hey you guessed it, Knight of Malta, J. Peter Grace was key figure in Operation Paperclip as well. This also for the skeptic "SoF" from the Davidickeforum. 2tuff, some people hate you over in that forum. It's funny that he talks about the Mossad, but the Mossad was trained by Knight of Malta Reinhard Gehlen (a Nazi and founder of the CIA). Intelligence agencies like MI6 and CIA (which includes the powerful and members of the SMOM and Freemasonry) are stronger than the Mossad as written by Fritz Springmeier. I trust Fritz over you Daryl Smith.

Has Daryl Bradford Smith looked into a history book lately?

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 9, 2006 10:13 PM (GMT)

Dear Bro. Maverick :

First of all, thank you very much for a very interesting e-mail you've sent to me. Secondly, Ed (Sonny) Martinez is telling the truth and he's right on target. Please, convey my humble and polite message to Ed (Sonny) Martinez that I do support his quest to expose the diabolic conspiracies now happening in the whole world. I'm pleased to share further in-depth info about the MONDEX INTERNATIONAL. I'll not ellaborate the Book Of Revelation for most of you already knew the contents or entirety of the Book Of Revelation.

The Mark Of The Beast was long time ago implemented where I'll not ellaborate for others might be offended. A worldwide known religious institution implemented to her members by making sign in the forehead by using the right hand only and not by left hand even a person is left-handed.

Before, I begin in-depth about the MONDEX INTERNATIONAL, let me humbly and politely share to you the most bulgar info that will overshadow the MONDEX INTERNATIONAL.

1.0 The BANK OF AMERICA & LOCKHEED-MARTIN AVIATION INDUSTRY (U.S. Defense Contractor) are owned by the JESUIT ORDER - Those men in black are the real owner. An info according to the Protestant member of the Knights Of Malta no other than Mr. Avro Manhattan and from Bro. Eric Jon Phelps - "Maniacal World Control Thru The Jesuit Order Well-Hidden Soldiers Of Satan".

Attach photo herewith are the real owners.

2.0 MONDEX INTERNATIONAL is operated by the Freemasonry under the umbrella of the Illuminati controlled by the Jesuit Order. The facial picture of a man with one eye by MONDEX is basically Freemasonic Symbol known as "All Seeing Eye Of Horus" Egyptian God no other than Satan himself. The hand shaking is basically masonic brothers greeting.

Attach photos herewith are Masonic-Illuminati controlled Mondex International. One Eye always shown in every movies made by the Opus Dei member no other than Holliwood actor Mr. Mel Gibson.

3.0 The company which is in firm control of this technology is called MONDEX, 51% of which is owned by Mastercard. There are at least 20 shareholders having a slice of the other 49% -- all banks, except AT&T. Fully ten shareholders are banks in Australia. You will hear of MONDEX often in the future, as it is well on its way to being the leading provider globally of this monetary system. Below are the statements made by MONDEX dated May 22, 1997 :

With the addition of Bank Of Montreal, Canada Trust, Le Mouvement des caisses Desjardins, National Bank Of Canada, and TD Bank to MONDEX Canada's existing participants -- CIBC, Royal Bank, Credit Union Central of Canada and Hong Kong Bank Of Canada -- MONDEX will represent 90% of the deposit-taking financial institution market in Canada, at this time. Bell Canada is a marketing participant in the MONDEX implementation in Ontario.

MONDEX is a payment smart card which brings together the advantages of paying by cash with the convenience of paying card.

4.0 Mr. Michael Keegan is the C.E.O. of the MONDEX INTERNATIONAL LTD.

5.0 The International Banking Systems being operated by the 13-Families of the Satanic Illuminati Bloodlines under the umbrellaa of the Illuminati controlled by the Jesuit Order.

13-Families Satanic Illuminati Bloodlines are - Astor, Bundy, Collins, Du Ponts, Freeman, Kennedy, Li, Onassis, Reynolds, Rockefeller, Rothschild, Russel & Van Duyn.

Plus, Merovingian, Krupp, Disney & the McDonald.

The Mondex is a mere part of Globalization under the NOUVEL ORDRE MONDIAL or the NEW WORLD ORDER. Overall under the control of the Jesuit Superior General Count Peter Hans Kolvenbach.

Plese, see part 2

Description: Pope Peter Kolvenbach

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 9, 2006 10:09 PM (GMT)

Dear Brother Eric,

I found found the following photos during a Google image search. The first came from this web page <http://www.cathnews.com/news/604/109.php> This photo was recently taken in late April. The article "Pope reminds Jesuits of vow of obedience" was dated April 24 2006. The other was in The Washington Post.

Caption: my additions in { }

<http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/conte...6042200721.html>

<http://whispersintheloggia.blogspot.com/20...cked-borgo.html>

Quote: "Until a 5 November audience the Pope granted to Fr Carlos Alfonso Azpiroz Costa, the Master of the Dominicans, Peter-Hans Kolvenbach was the only major superior to be received in audience by the new pontiff. (Benedict XVI has since received Fr José Rodríguez Carballo, the minister-general of the Observant Franciscans, on 26 January.) In fact, the Black Pope has met with his "White" counterpart {subordinate} on several occasions since Ratzinger's April election, the most recent of which took place last month."

This is no surprise because the other orders are subordinate to the Jesuit Order. The Company rules supreme in the Vatican and Black Pope Kolvenbach is Joseph Ratzinger's one and only superior. After every New Years' Eve midnight mass the White Pope reports to the Black Pope in the sacristy of the Gesu and submits his intentions for the year to him. The White Pope can do nothing until the Jesuit General approves them.

Caption from http://www.jesuit.org/sections/sub.asp?SEC...BSECTION_ID=618

"Pope John Paul II presents Fr. General Peter-Hans Kolvenbach SJ the intentions for 1992 in the sacristy of Gesu Church in Rome after the New Year's Eve Mass and Te Deum, at which the Pope traditionally presides."

You've mentioned the Redemptorist Order being created as a cover for the Jesuit Order after they were expelled from Europe. This makes sense because the symbol for the Redemptorists is an all-seeing eye. There are variations of the "Redemptorist Shield" There is a crown above the all-seeing eye of Satan/Lucifer thus they are crowning the devil as their king.

THE WIND STILL WAITING FOR THE DEVIL from <http://www.wayoflife.org/fbns/in-thefootst...rans/Page-4.htm>

"Outside of the Gesu Church is the Piazza del Gesu (the plaza of Gesu). Even on calmest days the square is said to be gusty, with little wind devils blowing about. According to legend, the Devil and the Wind went for a walk through Rome. Upon reaching this place, the Devil asked the Wind to wait for him while he tended to some business in the Jesuit church. The Wind is still waiting."

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 9, 2006 10:03 PM (GMT)

Dear Brother Rip,

Yes, we are going to have another major "Terrorist Event." But I do not believe that it has anything to do with the future Great Tribulation of Rev 4-19.

The Jesuits are the World Federalists. In fact Roman Catholic priest and CFR member Theodore Hesburgh is a World Federalist.

Some of the "Honorary Sponsors" found on its list with indirect Jesuit connections are:

Belgium priest Phil Bosmans as Belgium is the most Jesuit-ruled nation in Europe.

*Ramsey Clark, US CFR member and co-conspirator in the JFK assassination evidenced by his stonewalling of the Garrison investigation when Clark was the Attorney General.

*Baron Jakob Von Uexkull who, according to a source, is a member of the English Branch of the Knights of Malta.

I will send this around to others on the list who may have further info.

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 9, 2006 09:51 PM (GMT)

1. Whats the Jesuit connection/symbolism of May 1?

May 1, 1776 is the day the Order via Adam Weishaupt began its Socialist Communist World Revolution pursuant to the secret meeting at Chieri, Italy. Both Hitler and Stalin celebreated May days. I make sure I work hard on that day as I do on the Merry Mass of Christ.

2. Charles Manson, serial killer.....reputed to have been close to crime boss Vito Genovese while he was in prison...Is there more to the killing of Sharon Tate?

Not to my knowledge. Years ago, ex-Grand Druid John Todd had much to say about Manson and that the murder of Tate was a ritual murder.

3. Dan Brown, author of "DaVinci Code"....Jesuit co-adjutor?

Yes. The whole purpose of The DaVinci Code as well as Holy Blood, Holy Grail, is to attack the English AV1611 Reformation Bible's account of the risen Lord Jesus Christ. As you know both works deny the diety of Christ, his vicarious death for the sins of the world and His elect, his bodily resurrection and bodily second coming on a white horse yet future. (Rev.19:11)

TYVM for your time and attention Eric!

The 'Black Hand' Is Now At Work Destroying America

But a game of Italian Scopa concludes the Illuminati will never succede with its diabolical plan.

There is a small wine bar on Via Serpente near the Forum in Rome where old men with leathery skin play Scopa and white wine flows like water. Scopa is an Italian card game played religiously and the nice thing about the wine is that it's pure and doesn't get you sick.

Rarely a day went by without stopping at Sergio's wine bar located on a narrow, cobblestone road, leading to the Forum where in the distance gypsy children could be seen snatching purses from unsuspecting tourists out joy walking.

It's a pleasant past time sipping wine, playing Scopa, and watching rich tourists unwillingly feed the poor. It's also a pleasant past time watching the Italian police turn a blind eye, knowing they could care less about fat wallets, opting rather to shoot the breeze playing Scopa while allowing poor people a chance to get a good square meal.

Sergio's was also the first place I heard about the Priory Di Sion, the secret sect made famous in the DaVinci Code. It was also the first place I heard about the rumors Pope John Paul I was killed by Vatican infiltrators, as some of the Scopa players felt Papa Giovanni Paolo was murdered for trying to clean up the Vatican Bank, as well as getting too close to Mafia and Masonic influences in the Church.

"Gregorio, they killed him," I remember Sergio saying in 1984, while pouring another litro di vino. "The black hand of the Vatican again. It was the black hand."

Sergio talked often about the corruption in the Church, always talking about the corruption in the Church while saying the black hand help destroy Italy in order to keep the people subservient, obedient and poor.

Although he talked about deep corruption in the Church, in the same breadth he would talk about going to Sunday Mass with this family while making the sign of the cross and professing his undying love for what he called the sanctity of the true Mother Church.

Sergio was also the same guy I would see walking through town in a processional, holding up the statue of Mother Mary, as people lined the streets in a religious celebration. Small town religious festa's or town gatherings are still common-place in Italy. And once I remember asking Sergio how he coped with the Vatican hypocrisy, always feeling the truth came not from the rich and powerful but from the common man with little or nothing to gain.

"We know the Vatican is corrupt. We live with it every day. We see, hear it and watch how they work with the Americans to destroy Italy. It will happen to you some day, just wait and see," said Sergio.

"We also realize there is nothing that can be done because it's been going on for hundreds of years. We remain poor, because those who live behind the Vatican walls remain rich. Born into wealth or born into poverty. That is the luck of the draw. In Italy if you're born poor, you will stay that way unless you become just like the thieves behind the Vatican walls or those who work for them in the Mafia and the government.

"There is only one other way to get rich and that is to go to America. And, by the way, Gregorio, if you are crazy enough to stay in Italy, then stay and enjoy the wine, stay and enjoy the wine.

Sergio said those words back in 1984, reminding me of the Orwell book. And as I drank a glass of wine during the same year, my mind began to drift, thinking: "It could never happen in America."

But now more than 20 years later, it was happening here, as 1984 arrived just like Orwell predicted.

And just as the Sergio warned the ruling elite and the black hand of the Vatican is now preparing its takeover of America. It is now time for the black hand to strike in full force with terrorism, economic ruin and eventually genocide..

"It's not going to be pretty here in the next few years," said an insider who knows how the New World Order works and who also knows the American people are sleepwalking to the edge of extinction. "Too much violence in the streets and it won't even seem like the same country."

Thinking about the future, I pulled out my old Italian Scopa cards, dealing three dummy hands and then one to myself. It was late on a Friday night and I also pulled out my last bottle of white wine, pouring a glass and beginning to play out all four hands while saying to myself:

"I will use their black magic against them and if I win this card game, the black hand loses."

As I dealt the final card and looked at my hand, I yelled out Scopa! In Italian guess what that means?

The Black Hand Society was the name of the organisation that assassinated Franz Ferdinand and others, and helped start WWI, at least in the storyline world. A Vatican run off-shoot? Seems very likely.

Also used as an expression of blackmail, the Mafia used to send threatening letters of blackmail and death to businesses and people in New York, with the marking of a black hand. Who runs the Mafia?

Freedom of Expression Has a Limit, Says Vatican

Respect of Human Dignity Urged in Address at UNESCO

PARIS, MAY 8, 2006 (Zenit.org).- Freedom of expression "is not unlimited," a Vatican aide told UNESCO's Executive Council.

Monsignor Francesco Follo, the Vatican's permanent observer to the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, delivered that message during the 174th session of the Executive Council, held in Paris last month.

In his address on "Respect for Freedom of Expression and Respect for Sacred Beliefs and Values and Religious and Cultural Symbols," delivered on April 11, the Holy See's representative affirmed that the objective of freedom of expression is a person's fulfillment "and the defense of his dignity. Hence there is a reasonable limit to the right of expression."

Monsignor Follo said that if there "is a public and political place, where serious and profound words can be expressed" and heard, it is UNESCO, as witnessed at the time of the international crisis triggered by the drawings of Mohammed published in the Western press.

And if there is a public and political place where religious faith can be discussed, it is UNESCO, continued Monsignor Follo. "Religious faith structures the existence of billions of people" though it remains unknown "for those who do not share it," he added.

The Vatican representative pointed out an essential and underlying topic "related to what we have been through during the [Mohammed] caricatures crisis," namely, "the respect of human dignity."

Justice

"The purpose of our work is to put into practice all our assets to ensure recognition, existence, promotion and respect of this dignity," affirmed Monsignor Follo, adding that it is important to recognize the "sacred" character of this dignity.

Freedom, invoked so often during the crisis over the Mohammed drawings, must not be stressed to the point of ignoring human dignity, the monsignor contended.

"When freedom of expression is not limited by a norm, then freedom without justice" is none other than "the expression of personal interests," he said. And "justice without freedom is only a formal justice," leading to "totalitarian regimes" and "all kinds of dictatorships," the Vatican aide added.

Therefore, "it is essential to work for that freedom and justice in order to guarantee them to all," he added.

A man without freedom and cut off from justice is a mutilated man, reduced to the biological reality of his body, Monsignor Follo said. "Here again a whole dimension of his being, which must be called spiritual, is denied."

Sunday Confession No. 3: Were The Jesuits Involved In The Assassination Of Abraham Lincoln? Why Did The U.S. Break Off Diplomatic Relations With The Vatican In 1867 after Lincoln's Murder?

Author C.T. Wilcox says America's history has been hi-jacked, pointing to the Jesuit cover-up of the murder of Lincoln after uncovering documents hidden for more than 100 years.

One question this Sunday is whether the Jesuits are an association of highly organized warrior priests? Another question is why has history covered important facts behind alleged Jesuit involvement in the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, as well as why did the U.S. government cut-off all diplomatic relations with the Vatican in 1867 as a result of its alleged connection with the murder of Lincoln?

To help understand why America's history has essentially been hi-jacked and why the real story of Lincoln's murder has been erased from the history books, C.T. Wilcox has put together a book called The Transformation of the Republic: The Origins of the Religious Hi-Jacking of the American Government and the Truth Behind the Assassination of Abraham Lincoln.

According to Wilcox, whose two hour radio interview can be heard at The Investigative Journal archives at www.arcticbeacon.com, Transformation is a 375 page expose of Vatican and Jesuit intrigues and interference into the political structure of the United States and Europe.

It contains shocking revelations and fully authenticated documentation, much of it hidden for almost 100 years, to support the conclusion that the United States has been transformed from a beacon of light and hope into an empire with beast-like tendencies and that the world is headed for a Vatican led and instigated cataclysm while it sleepwalks towards the edge.

In order to keep filling in the pieces about the Jesuits and the possibility that the Vatican has been infiltrated by the Order of Lucifer, the following is a sample chapter from Wilcox's book, which he says is a gift to the American people from this Canadian born author.

"If this were a dictatorship, it'd be a heck of a lot easier? Just as long as I'm the dictator." --President George W. Bush, self-proclaimed "Christian", cocaine abusing alcoholic and Life Member of The Skull and Bones Fraternity of Yale University

December 18, 2000

"When any church will inscribe over its altar the Saviour's condensed statement of law and Gospel, 'Thou shalt love the LORD thy God, with all thy heart, with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbour as thyself,' that church I will join with all my heart." --Abraham Lincoln to a member of Congress as related by his intimate friend Hon. Isaac N. Arnold in reference as to why he did not join a denominational, politically involved creed-driven church.

Foreword

THE strikes upon the World Trade Center and the Pentagon on September 11, 2001 marked a pivotal point in the evolution of the "experiment of popular government". What followed has been nothing short of a pronounced continuation of a religious war, which had its origins in the Middle Ages, using the armed forces of a compliant host nation or alliance of nations according to the wishes of the Papacy. The ultimate goal is the eventual re-location of this so-called "Chair of Peter" to Jerusalem in order to direct and control all the people of the earth and the complete destruction of anything not in accord with Her dictates. Chief among these ideals, which are hated by the Church of Rome, are freedom of conscience, freedom of religion, freedom of the press and freedom of association; in fact, every fundamental freedom on which the United States was founded.

This opposition to basic human rights was monumented in the famous Papal Bull of Pope Pius IX in 1864, the Syllabus of Errors; a direct response to the Constitution of the United States and its Bill of Rights. The timing of the issuance of this document was designed to be a deliberate political act for the express purpose of telling the world that the liberties of the United States and any other nation which has the audacity to implement representative self government apart from church consent was in direct opposition to God. This was at a crucial time of the War of the Rebellion in which the Papacy had openly sided with the Confederacy.

During the Lincoln period the European Empires made a last ditch attempt to regain their hold over North America and re-introduce the 'monarchic principle' into that 'dangerous hotbed of Republicanism'. Emperor Francis Joseph I of Austria had an additional personal interest in the outcome of the American Civil War. On it hinged the existence of a new Hapsburg realm and the very life of his younger brother, Emperor Maximilian of Mexico, whose greatest American antagonist was Abraham Lincoln and whose natural allies were the States of the South. Both Francis Joseph and Maximilian, like most other crowned heads of their time, saw in Lincoln the personification of the republican ideas that had kindled the antimonarchist revolutions in Europe. They naturally hated and feared Lincoln and hoped that the Civil War would destroy, or at least weaken, the United States of America.

The Civil War was not a 'homespun' affair. It was the result of the same upheavals that have changed the face of Europe. The promises and active help of the European empires and the Church of Rome along with the Jesuit Order had stiffened the resolve and attitude of the Southern leaders, some of whom were quite willing to see the monarchic principle triumph in North America.

The Jesuit Order is an association of highly organized warrior priests. They are politicians first and foremost and have been expelled from virtually every country they have had the opportunity to corrupt and destroy. Their modus operandi is political and educational infiltration and subversion and the fomenting of wars and revolutions in order to weaken and mold the target country into submissive pliability, to then be used to carry out their purpose of global ecclesiastically backed dictatorship. The United States is no exception to this.

In 1822 the Catholic Monarchies of Europe got together with the Vatican and agreed on a plot to destroy the concept of representative popular government. Professor Samuel F. B. Morse, a founding member of the American Nativist Movement, investigated this plot and eventually wrote a book, which appeared in installments in the 1835 editions of the New York Observer, entitled, "Foreign Conspiracy Against the Liberties of the United States". What he found has been in operation ever since, the fully ripened fruits of which we are realizing only since the administration of President Ronald Reagan, the first president to officially recognize the Vatican State since the U.S. cut off all diplomatic ties in 1867 as a result of its connection to the murder of Abraham Lincoln. The country has been in rapid decline since that time and is now in danger of losing forever its freedoms as enshrined in the Constitution and Bill of rights. The push to institute a New World Order and transform the United States into a dictatorship, benign or otherwise, backed by the Roman clergy is now closer than ever. Since the election of President Reagan there has been a decidedly marked increase in the volume of Presidential Executive Orders which amount to a return to the monarchic principles which first gave rise to the American Revolution.

The testament to this reality became overtly apparent in the spring of 2005 when two events dominated the news in North America; both of them received global attention. The first involved the death of one Terri Schiavo, a brain damaged woman who was on a feeding tube for fifteen years. The Roman clergy in Florida and Washington D.C., joined later by various Protestant clergymen, had used this event to persuade both Florida Governor Jeb Bush and his brother President G.W. Bush to override the Supreme Court and Congress to enact what would have amounted to dictatorial rule. Caving in would have acknowledged a militant quasi-union of Church and State. They came very close to this precedent setting direction. Both Bush's knew that if they did so commit to such a deed it may mean open civil unrest between religious militants who were looking to cash in on 'political capital' and constitutional patriots who viewed this as the thin edge of the wedge for the installation of a theocratic dictatorship.

They refused, however they also let it be understood that if they thought they could get away with it, they would have done so.

The next event was the death of Pope John Paul II. If anyone has doubts as to the political power the Roman Church has, these doubts were laid to rest as every national flag was lowered to half mast and every form of media all over North America, in the most worshipful manner bowed the knee, like those in Nebuchadnezzar's time and those in the days of the Caesars, to the man who claims to stand in the place of Almighty God. In this case a man who, while under Nazi occupation in Poland, vigorously helped to produce and sell 'Zyklon B' for chemical company I.G. Farben, a nerve gas which was used to kill those wholesale in the death camps of Europe. A man who, in spite of one of the world's greatest outbreaks of primarily homosexual pedophilia by Roman priests in recent memory, virtually swept the whole matter under the rug until he was finally forced to react by an outraged public. A man who presided over the Roman priesthood's led and encouraged genocide in Rwanda and the religious mass murders in the Balkans. A real godly man, n'est pas? Apparently every major political leader from around the world and representatives from every major religion thought so.

President Lincoln was the triumphant embodiment of the New Concept of Popular Government of which the central postulate is the consent of the governed. The same cunning and malice, which nerved the hand of John Wilkes Booth, a nominal Protestant who had been converted to the Roman Church, was also successful in hiding from the American public the details of this tragic deed.

The point of this book is not to condemn any specific religion for its beliefs and practices, unless it oversteps its bounds and gets involved in politics and moral corruption. Monotheism by its very nature separates the Church from the State. In this writer's opinion, individuals cannot claim to be authentic Christians who love and honour God's commandments if they choose to murder their neighbours or sacrifice the gift of their lives on the altar of nationalism or misplaced religious fanaticism. It was Jesus himself who stated, in reference to those who attempted to thrust him into political involvement, "They [my followers] are no part of the world, just as I am no part of the world?"

This book concentrates on the Roman Church, however, the principles can also be applied to any religious entity, particularly one that calls itself Christian, which seeks to entangle itself with the political realm of which Jesus said it ought to be no part.

Every person has the right to choose their religion and answer to their God. But no person has the right to use the machinery of the State or various other methods to force that choice on their fellow human beings. Nor do they have the right to use religion as a means to a political end.

The history presented on these pages is the result of eight years of research. The purpose is two-fold: 1) to bring out the truth that had been cleverly buried until now by the perpetrators of Lincoln's assassination, and 2) to point out that any cabal, even in today's world, can achieve its ends by using religion as a form of mind control.

Ignorance and superstition perpetrated by religious dogma set the stage for victimization. Witness Palestinian suicide bombers who are brainwashed to believe that they are martyrs and Islamic beheading squads daily using the airwaves and cyberspace to force political ends in the nations of Christendom and in the nations where they reside. Likewise, witness I.R.A. and Protestant intrigues in Ireland or Israeli massacres of whole towns and villages on the West Bank and Gaza, in the name of a god who they believe has given them the right to this land because they have been misled to think they are still "chosen" when, in fact, the true chosen, a holy nation referred to as the 'Israel of God', which is spiritual in nature, are those who hold the same faith that Christ held and practice what he taught [Isa. 43:10; Jer. 31:31-34; John 15:16-19; Acts 15:14; Gal 6:16]. All of these belief systems are equally dangerous. They are tangible evidence of the repercussions of religious interference in political and nationalistic matters.

Both ignorance and superstition feed on fear of death and fear of the unknown. The Roman Catholic Church has a long history of successfully using fear and the coercive secular powers to subdue the masses. In 19th Century America, the Romanists, elitist by nature, supported slavery and secession, thus using this wedge to divide the country and pit the South against the North. Today 'terrorist' events are creating enough fear in the masses that they are willing to trade freedom for security, and along with that security more power concentrated at the top. Due to a complete absence of vision the leaders of the nations, spurred on by an army of clergy and the masses they can control, are using fear to maintain power, and by 'combating' the nebulous "enemy", who are made mythical, being anywhere and everywhere armed with sinister weapons, they are setting themselves up as saviours of humanity. Truly, where there is no vision the people perish.

The Jesuits killed Lincoln and buried the evidence. But just as water seeks its own level, so does the truth eventually surface and make itself known. Deception and denial are only band-aids in the modern day world of intelligence, tooled by the Internet and other high tech investigative systems. Today anyone can become a good detective. If it had not been myself, someone else would have undertaken the task of doing the digging and piecing together the true story of President Lincoln's assassination.

The truth can hurt; but it can also set us free. What do we have to gain from learning about this cruel conspiracy? Does it have any bearing on today's conspiratorial world of alphabet intelligence groups, weapons of mass destruction, bioterrorism, weather modification and other forms of warfare?

What type of world do we want for our children and grandchildren? Or perhaps a better question: What elements of today's world do we wish to reform, in order to lift the veil of frustration and despair and unloose the shackles of ignorance and fear?

It is my hope that the history presented on these pages, which has been suppressed for well over 100 years, and of which the American people particularly have been robbed, will cause them to wake up to the dangers being foisted upon them, recognize them for what they are, and then act to insure that the plot for their destruction will not come to its ultimate realization any time soon.

Prologue

IN 1822 the Roman Catholic Monarchies of Europe conspired with the Vatican to destroy the concept of popular government, as found in the experiment of the United States, by means of infiltration, subversion and corruption. The tools used were the Leopold foundation, which was set up by Prince Metternich of Austria and the Jesuit Order. The purpose being to use the financial and military arms of the United States to further the interests of the Papacy in its goal of putting all the world under the temporal submission of the Church.

Abraham Lincoln was well aware of the dangers the Monarchies of Europe posed to the young republic. According to the Columbia Encyclopedia, Abraham Lincoln entered on the national scene by serving one term in Congress (1847-49). He remained obscure, and his attacks as a Whig on the motives behind the Mexican War (though he voted for war supplies) seemed unpatriotic to his constituents, and he lost popularity at home. Lincoln, in disgust, retired from politics and settled down to the practice of law. He grew, rather than diminished, in stature as a public figure. While serving in Congress Lincoln carried on a correspondence with his law partner, William H. Herndon, back in Illinois. Here is the text of a remarkable letter from that period which could effectively be called 'Lincoln on the Iraq War'.

Washington, February 15, 1848

Dear William:

Your letter of the 29th of January was received last night. Being exclusively a constitutional argument, I wish to submit some reflections upon it in the same spirit of kindness that I know actuates you. Let me first state what I understand to be your position. It is that if it shall become necessary to repel invasion, the President may, without violation of the Constitution, cross the line and invade the territory of another country, and that whether such necessity exists in any given case the President is the sole judge.

Before going further consider well whether this is or is not your position. If it is, it is a position that neither the President himself, nor any friend of his, so far as I know, has ever taken. Their only positions are first, that the soil was ours when the hostilities commenced; and second, that whether it was rightfully ours or not, Congress had annexed it, and the President for that reason was bound to defend it; both of which are as clearly proved to be false in fact as you can prove that your house is mine. The soil was not ours, and Congress did not annex or attempt to annex it. But to return to your position. Allow the President to invade a neighboring nation whenever he shall deem it necessary to repel an invasion, and you allow him to do so whenever he may choose to say he deems it necessary for such purpose, and you allow him to make war at pleasure.

Study to see if you can fix any limit to his power in this respect, after having given so much as you propose. If to-day he should choose to say he thinks it necessary to invade Canada to prevent the British from invading us, how could you stop him? You may say to him, "I see no probability of the British invading us;" but he will say to you, "Be silent: I can see it, if you don't."

The provision of the Constitution giving the war-making power to Congress was dictated, as I understand it, by the following reasons: Kings had always been involving and impoverishing their people in wars, pretending generally, if not always, that the good of the people was the object. This our convention understood to be the most oppressive of all kingly oppressions, and they resolved to so frame the Constitution that no one man should hold the power of bringing this oppression upon us. But your view destroys the whole matter, and places our President where kings have always stood. Write soon again.

Yours truly, A. Lincoln

[From Lincoln, Abraham; Nicolay, John G., ed.; Hay, John, ed. [1848], letter to William H. Herndon, February 15, 1848 in 'The Complete Works of Abraham Lincoln, v.2 {New York: Francis D. Tandy Company, 1894}]

After the successful murder of the 'saviour of the nation', President Lincoln, on that Good Friday Easter weekend of 1865, a date of which the symbolism was not lost, the Jesuit masterminds of that most evil crime began to pressure President Johnson to implement the 14th amendment to the United States' Constitution. This amendment effectively altered the citizenship away from the states' proper, under state authority, and transferred this to the Union, under a centralized Federal authority. Before this change one was considered a citizen of the United States by reason of being the citizen of a particular state.

This change meant that for the first time in U.S. history the groundwork was laid for the establishment of a more European Monarchical system of government, one which could be corrupted and thus making possible the ability to direct and control all the people under the volition of a single man. This amendment also removed the right of sovereignty of the individual states' in areas, which were not previously under Federal authority and placed them under a single central government thereby removing the right of secession in the case of entrenched tyranny. The reasoning of the Jesuits was that if they can corrupt the leader and those around him after having corrupted the Constitution, Bill of Rights and the judiciary, the people have no choice but to submit to his authority. Ecclesiastically supported and sponsored dictatorship through the back door could then be established.

It has been stated that the Jesuits plan well ahead, in most cases of political intrigue and national transformation 100 years or more ahead.

Lincoln had rebuffed this proposed amendment all through his term and this obstinacy to the goals of the Church was cited as one of the major reasons for his demise. Another purported reason to eliminate him issued from the fact that he had begun to print currency, called Greenbacks, and declare it the legal tender of the land, thereby shutting out the bankers and preventing them from bleeding the financial life of the Nation, much in the same way as John F. Kennedy had issued his Silver Certificates in an effort to close down the vultures of the private FEDERAL RESERVE BANK.

Simply put, he was standing directly in the way of the Papists and European Autocrats and therefore had to be removed. And not just him, the entire cabinet was the original target.

That the Jesuits had planned the deed is beyond question as evidenced by the sworn statements and personal letters, which are quoted in full below and housed in the Chiniquy Collection. www.Chiniquy.ca

The material comprising this first chapter has never been made public, nor has it been made available to historians. Charles Chiniquy had commissioned a lawyer to investigate and collect the sworn statements of individuals who were privy to this extraordinary circumstance of foreknowledge which speak for themselves.

State of Illinois Cook County

Rev. F.A. Conwell being sworn declares and says that he is seventy-one years old that he is a resident of North Evanston, in Cook County State of Illinois, that he has been actively in the ministry for forty-six years, and is now one of the chaplains of the Seamans Bethel Home in Chicago- that he was the chaplain of the First Minnesota Regiment in the War of the Rebellion.

That on the 14th day of April AD 1865 he was in St. Joseph, Minnesota and heard there as early as six o'clock in the evening in company with Mr. Bennett who was there and was a resident of St. Cloud, Minnesota. That on this date there was no telegraph nearer than Minneapolis, which is about 80 miles from St. Joseph and there was no railroad communication nearer than Auoka, Minnesota which was about 40 miles distant.

That when he reached St. Joseph on the 14th day of April AD 1865 one Mr. Linneman who kept the hotel at St. Joseph told affiant that President Lincoln and Secretary Seward were assassinated. That it was not later than half past six o'clock on Friday April 14th 1865 when Mr. Linneman told me this. Shortly thereafter Mr. Bennett came in the hotel and I told him Mr. Linneman said the President and Secretary Seward were assassinated and there Mr. Linneman repeated the same conversation to Mr. Bennett in my presence.

That during that time Mr. Linneman told me that he had the charge of furnishing the friary or college for young men under the priests who were studying for the priesthood at St. Joseph. That there was a large institution of that kind at St. Joseph at this time.

Affiant says that on Saturday morning April 15th 1865 he went to St. Cloud a distance of about 10 miles and reached there about 8 o'clock in the morning, that there was no railroad or telegraph communications to St. Cloud. When he arrived at St. Cloud he told Mr. Haworth the hotel keeper that he had been told at St. Joseph that the President and Secretary Seward had been assassinated and asked if it was true.

He further told Henry Clay with Charles Gilliman who afterwards was Governor of Minnesota, the same thing and inquired of them if they had any such news and they replied they had not heard anything of the kind.

Affiant says that on Sunday morning 16th of April 1865 he preached in St. Cloud and on the way to the church a copy of a telegram was handed to him stating that the President and Secretary were assassinated on Friday evening at about 9 o'clock. This telegram had been brought to St. Cloud by Mr. Garten who had reached St. Cloud by stage and this was the first intelligence that reached St. Cloud of the events.

Affiant says further that on Monday morning April 17th 1865, he furnished the press, a paper of St. Paul, a statement that 3 hours before the event took place he had been informed at St. Joseph, Minnesota that the President had been assassinated and this was published in the press.

That no one at St. Cloud had heard of the event at the time, that the first news of the event which reached St. Cloud was Sunday morning, April 16th. When the news was brought there by Leander Gorten, who had just arrived, that they spoke to several persons of St. Cloud concerning the matter when they reached there on Saturday morning, but affiant does not now remember who the different persons were.

Mr. Linneman said, as affiant remembers the transaction, that he had learned of the President's assassination from a soldier who was passing through St. Joseph. And further affiant saith not.

Description: by Samuel Morse, 1835

After scouring the archives here for several days, have not found thread that referenced this book by Morse. There are just so many jesuit threads with links and numerous replies within that it's would require many hours of reading each thread in full to find something in particular. Anyway, while I did not find the thread & reference in question, I did find some clues in other threads; clues suggest it was Alexandra :)

Am posting this link to the on-line book, please forgive me if this is redundant, but it seems a worthy repeat.

<http://jmgainor.homestead.com/files/PU/Lks...US/FCALUS00.htm>

I see valuable aspects of such a book authored in 1835. If nothing else, it diffuses some of the firepower nay-sayers proffer when they attempt to debunk present-day jesuit researchers who paint a less-than-wholesome picture of the jesuit hierarchy. A question that has naturally formed in my mind - I wonder if any of the present-day jesuit sleuths (if any) have based some of their work on Morse's findings, and if so, which ones and how much?

The front-page of the on-line book states Morse's work was published in the New York Observer at or around the same era. This potentially has left a paper trail, so to speak, that would at least corroborate the authenticity of such a book. Does anyone here know any resources publicly available that allows one to go back in time and research/read newspapers from, say, 170 years ago?

Did a little Scroogle searching on the term Prince Metternich. Interestingly, of the first 3 hits in the list of 100 results, one is from Wikipedia, another from Fordham (university).

Nonetheless I read most of the wiki article. While it does not depict direct jesuit connections, what it does depict can easily be traced to jesuit connections by anyone who knows a little of the history of that particular subject matter (thank you Unhived et. al. :)

The wiki article does mention several facts that stood out to me: a link to the Metternich family's authority that came by way of it's religious traditions (via the history on the Archbishop of Trier) and the Merovingian dynasty :o ; a link to the namesake of the aforementioned Leopold Foundation via Holy Roman Emperor's throne - Heir to Leopold II, to whom Metternich was introduced by his father in 1790; a link to the Rothschild empire that became apparent during Metternich's flight/resignation - he fled Austria and resigned as it's Foreign Minister in 1848.

Plus or minus the true motives of the wiki org, the links within their article on Metternich may be of interest to others here. As to his general philosophy on "old regime" (tyranny of monarchy) versus then recent and emerging examples of a new kind of regime (liberation of a people by revolution), Wiki quoted Metternich as saying ".....since the people have become acquainted with the old institutions, national revolutions such as those in France and Greece are illegitimate....", to which I can only say, my oh my, how nice it must be to divine oneself as noble and humble :(

This quote I found at Phelps site reminded me of what got me onto the Jesuits in the first place....

"It is here that the tremendous power of the Church makes itself felt. It is through this [Jesuit] 'direction' that statesmen are compelled to act, not for the benefit of the country to which they belong, but for the benefit of the Church, which controls them. It is here that matters of the most secret nature are discussed and decided [like the present Crusade against Islam, the attack into Afghanistan commencing on the anniversary of the naval Battle of Lepanto when the Armada of the Pope's Knights of Malta destroyed the Armada of the Islamic Ottoman Turks on October 7, 1571]. It is here that alliances...are arranged, and political treaties are agreed on."

- M.F. Cusack

It was Pope John Paul's Funeral last April. The Zoroastrian affair had supposed enemies sitting right next to one another in tribute to the Sun King....Its like when you were a kid and you got into a fight with another kid in the school yard. The teacher would come and force the two of you to shake hands squash it. No matter how much the two of you hated each other , you couldn't say anything else or both of you would be punished. That is TEMPORAL Power...Most people would have missed it....Even if there were no documentation whatsoever, you can always tell who is really in control of this world by the attendees at the funeral of a Cardinal or Pope. There is almost no open talk about the relationship between the Vatican and a world leader. Everyonce in a while there is a headline saying the "Pope said this or that"...But when those funerals pop up, it is written on their faces, Castro, Sharon, Bush, Queen, you name it. They all look like children who have no choice but to attend the funeral of someone who is very important whether they like it or not...

From A Beacon Of Light TO Beast-Like Tendencies, America Is Headed For A Vatican Instigated Cataclysm

Author C.T. Wilcox in his book, Transformation of the Republic, claims Americans have been robbed of their own history, revealing hidden documentation about who really killed Abraham Lincoln.

By Greg Szymanski

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/2-May-2006.html>

The United States has been transformed "from a beacon of light to an empire with beast-like tendencies," according to Canadian author C.T. Wilcox, as the world is headed "for a Vatican led and instigated cataclysm" while the U.S. population sleepwalks towards the edge of extinction.

Wilcox wrote these words, explaining his must read book called The Transformation of the Republic: The Origins of the Religious Hi-Jacking of the American Government and the Truth Behind the Assassination of Abraham Lincoln.

Transformation, said Wilcox, is a 375 page expose of Vatican and Jesuit intrigues and interference into the political structure of the United States and Europe. And according to the author it contains irrefutable evidence, shocking revelations and fully authenticated documentation - much of it hidden for almost 100 years - to support the his conclusion that the American Republic has been hi-jacked by the Papacy through the corrupt and evil influences and diabolic direction of the Jesuit Order.

"The people of the United States have been robbed of their own history. This is the worst kind of theft," writes Wilcox about how the history books have been changed to cover up the true intentions of the religious order behind the New World Order, adding his research proves without question the Jesuits killed Abraham Lincoln

"The Jesuits killed Lincoln and buried the evidence. But just as water seeks its own level, so does the truth eventually surface and make itself known. Deception and denial are only band-aids in the modern day world of intelligence, tooled by the Internet and other high tech investigative systems.

"Today anyone can become a good detective. If it had not been myself, someone else would have undertaken the task of doing the digging and piecing together the true story of President Lincoln's assassination."

In his book, Wilcox, sets up a substantial case on who really killed Lincoln, as the 16th President of the United States was well aware of the dangers the Monarchies of Europe and the Vatican posed to the young Republic.

"IN 1822 the Roman Catholic Monarchies of Europe conspired with the Vatican to destroy the concept of popular government, as found in the experiment of the United States, by means of infiltration, subversion and corruption," writes Wilcox. "The tools used were the Leopold foundation, which was set up by Prince Metternich of Austria and the Jesuit Order. The purpose being to use the financial and military arms of the United States to further the interests of the Papacy in its goal of putting all the world under the temporal submission of the Church."

Wilcox masterfully uncovers how Lincoln candidly discussed the role and limits of the U. S. government, as well as presenting sworn statements of priests regarding foreknowledge of Lincoln's murder, including private letters from Edwin Sherman, T.M. Harris, Louis Weichman and Robert Lincoln to Charles Chiniquy, a priest who Lincoln represented as a lawyer against the Jesuit Order.

The case made by Wilcox that the Jesuits were behind the murder, a story covered up in the history books, can be found at his web site at www.ctwilcox.com where the book can be purchased for $29.95.

"After the successful murder of the 'saviour of the nation', President Lincoln, on that Good Friday Easter weekend of 1865," writes Wilcox, "a date of which the symbolism was not lost, the Jesuit masterminds of that most evil crime began to pressure President Johnson to implement the 14th amendment to the United States' Constitution.

"This amendment effectively altered the citizenship away from the states' proper, under state authority, and transferred this to the Union, under a centralized Federal authority.

Before this change one was considered a citizen of the United States by reason of being the citizen of a particular state.

"The truth can hurt; but it can also set us free. What do we have to gain from learning about this cruel conspiracy? Does it have any bearing on today's conspiratorial world of alphabet intelligence groups, weapons of mass destruction, bioterrorism, weather modification and other forms of warfare?

"What type of world do we want for our children and grandchildren? Or perhaps a better question: What elements of today's world do we wish to reform, in order to lift the veil of frustration and despair and unloose the shackles of ignorance and fear?

"It is my hope that the history presented on these pages, which has been suppressed for well over 100 years, and of which the American people particularly have been robbed, will cause them to wake up to the dangers being foisted upon them, recognize them for what they are, and then act to insure that the plot for their destruction will not come to its ultimate realization any time soon."

Wilcox makes the claim through his decade of research that the Jesuit Order is an association of highly organized warrior priests, being politicians first and foremost and being expelled from virtually every country they have had the opportunity to corrupt and destroy.

Their modus operandi, claims Wilcox, is political and educational infiltration and subversion and the fomenting of wars and revolutions in order to weaken and mold the target country into submissive pliability, to then be used to carry out their purpose of global ecclesiastically backed dictatorship.

He adds the United States is no exception to this global operation, being put directly in the cross-hairs of eventual martial law and destruction after the 911 attacks.

"The strikes upon the World Trade Center and the Pentagon on September 11, 2001 marked a pivotal point in the evolution of the experiment of popular government," writes Wilcox. "What followed has been nothing short of a pronounced continuation of a religious war, which had its origins in the Middle Ages, using the armed forces of a compliant host nation or alliance of nations according to the wishes of the Papacy.

"The ultimate goal is the eventual re-location of this so-called "Chair of Peter" to Jerusalem in order to direct and control all the people of the earth and the complete destruction of anything not in accord with Her dictates. Chief among these ideals, which are hated by the Church of Rome, are freedom of conscience, freedom of religion, freedom of the press and freedom of association; in fact, every fundamental freedom on which the United States was founded.

"This opposition to basic human rights was monumented in the famous Papal Bull of Pope Pius IX in 1864, the Syllabus of Errors; a direct response to the Constitution of the United States and its Bill of Rights.

"The timing of the issuance of this document was designed to be a deliberate political act for the express purpose of telling the world that the liberties of the United States and any other nation which has the audacity to implement representative self government apart from church consent was in direct opposition to God. This was at a crucial time of the War of the Rebellion in which the Papacy had openly sided with the Confederacy."

Although Transformation concentrates on the Roman Church, Wilcox said the principles can also be applied to any religious entity, particularly one that calls itself Christian, seeking to entangle itself with the political realm of which Jesus said it ought to be no part.

"Every person has the right to choose their religion and answer to their God," he adds. "But no person has the right to use the machinery of the State or various other methods to force that choice on their fellow human beings. Nor do they have the right to use religion as a means to a political end.

"The history presented is the result of eight years of research. The purpose is two-fold: 1) to bring out the truth that had been cleverly buried until now by the perpetrators of Lincoln's assassination, and 2) to point out that any cabal, even in today's world, can achieve its ends by using religion as a form of mind control.

"Ignorance and superstition perpetrated by religious dogma set the stage for victimization. Witness Palestinian suicide bombers who are brainwashed to believe that they are martyrs and Islamic beheading squads daily using the airwaves and cyberspace to force political ends in the nations of Christendom and in the nations where they reside.

"Likewise, witness I.R.A. and Protestant intrigues in Ireland or Israeli massacres of whole towns and villages on the West Bank and Gaza, in the name of a god who they believe has given them the right to this land because they have been misled to think they are still "chosen" when, in fact, the true chosen, a holy nation referred to as the 'Israel of God', which is spiritual in nature, are those who hold the same faith that Christ held and practice what he taught [Isa. 43:10; Jer. 31:31-34; John 15:16-19; Acts 15:14; Gal 6:16]. All of these belief systems are equally dangerous. They are tangible evidence of the repercussions of religious interference in political and nationalistic matters."

Recently, Wilcox's book was reviewed by Sharon K. Gilbert, for Watcher Magazine, who said:

Historians and academics will soon be salivating over a cache of recently uncovered documents relating to the Abraham Lincoln assassination and its subsequent prosecutory fallout - a voluminous collection that could be called the 'smoking gun' of the nineteenth century, untouched and unread and well-protected for nearly 150 years.

This heretofore unknown archive of material rests now in the capable hands of accomplished writer, C.T. Wilcox. Wilcox gained access to the remarkable papers via a friend, who himself received the documents after the rightful inheritor passed away.

In his newest book, "The Transformation of the Republic", Wilcox presents a methodical inspection of these newly unearthed documents and compares them to historically accepted materials, making strong usage of excerpted passages and entire quotes to buttress his fundamental premise that Lincoln's murder was ordered by a dark figure known as The Black Pope. Now, whether or not you lean toward the theory that much of the ruination of our world lies at the feet of the Jesuit order, Wilcox's arguments must be considered deeply, for they are cogent if not profound. His theories lie askew to most Christians' sleepy-eyed view of the world, and seldom does a contented sleeper welcome the rough jangle of dawn's alarm. Wilcox will tell you that we've overslept, and that our slumber may well be our undoing. The root of evil that bled a president in retribution for sins against a monarchist master plan has sprouted a fully branched tree that now looms over our present republic, ready to crash down upon each slumbering citizen, making slaves of many, corpses of most. This is not a book for the timid reader, yet the timid are the most vulnerable.

"The Transformation of the Republic" contains 28 pages of images of the remarkable original documents that provide the foundation of Wilcox's stunning arguments. And though most readers would shudder at the thought of slogging through an historical tome of 400 pages, the writing is easy to follow and tantalizingly presented. It is an astoundingly quick read - at odds with most historical non-fiction. In short, this one's a page-turner.

Just wanted to add a few thoughts to this thread/article, wherein I quote:

QUOTE

IN 1822 the Roman Catholic Monarchies of Europe conspired with the Vatican to destroy the concept of popular government, as found in the experiment of the United States, by means of infiltration, subversion and corruption," writes Wilcox. "The tools used were the Leopold foundation, which was set up by Prince Metternich of Austria and the Jesuit Order....."

Someone recently referred a link to the book by Samuel Morse - Foreign Conspiracy Against the Liberties of the United States - the Numbers of Brutus , 1835. I'm only into chapter 2 so far, it's not complex reading, just a bit difficult to read/comprehend English as spoken/written 170 years ago. So far chapter 2 has been a continual indictment by Morse of the same Prince Metternich and the aforementioned Leopold Foundation. A point he continually makes well (paraphrasing) - so kind (read - suspicious) of Austria to have been so concerned with the religious plight in young but vibrant and free America that they put so much effort and resources into funding jesuit missionaries here way back then..... ? Morse saw the rat in this, wonder how many other observant folks did too?

Here is the lead-in to Morse's chapter 2:

QUOTE

Political character of the Austrian government, the power attacking us—The old avowed enemy of Protestant liberty—Character of the people of Austria—Slaves—Character of Prince Metternich the arch contriver of plans to stifle liberty—These ENEMIES of all liberty, suddenly anxious for the civil and religious liberty of the United States—The absurdity of their ostensible design exposed—The avowed objects of Austria in the Leopold foundation—Popery the instrument to act upon our institutions.

Whoever posted this Morse link, thank you very much. Yes, it's nice to read more recent works of those on the jesuit detective trail (like Phelps), but it's really nice to read a piece of work from the era leading up to the War Against the States. I haven't read the entire Wilcox article yet, as soon as I saw the reference to Metternich and Leopold Foundation, I stopped to do some back checking. I wonder what Wilcox's sources were? Interesting resonation.

Thanks to both.

Pastor Charles Chiniquy, a former Catholic priest, told in his book "Fifty Years in the 'Church' of Rome" (written in the 19th century) that Jesuits killed Lincoln.

The truth has been out there.

Another nail in the coffin of freedom

Yugoslavia has been part of my research for the past several years. I spent some time in Bled and Lubljiana in 1970 and found those people to be most congenial, which makes this subject sensitive to me.

With the background I am giving you, you should have no difficulty seeing through the Whitehouse/CIA/media hype:

In 1941, a Croatian Catholic (Ante Pavelic) started the Ustasha (the leaders were all Dominican and Franciscan monks, making the Ustasha an integral part of the Roman Catholic Church, the ranks made up of monks of the same orders and Bosnian Muslims). The Ustasha was put into power in Croatia by Adolf Hitler in 1941, in compliance with the Vatican/Third Reich Concordat. The Ustasha implemented a program of "conversion" of Croatia to Catholicism. The program was to annihilate one third of the entire Serbian population, force a third to migrate out of the country and force the last third to convert to Catholicism. Assigned to oversee the entire operation, by the Vatican, was Archbishop Alojzije Stepinac. The program was to take ten years. The Ustasha built and operated the third largest concentration camp in WWII at Jasenovac where over 800,000 Serbs, Jews and Gypsies were systematically butchered (hundreds were incinerated alive). The "program" was interrupted in 1945 with the Allies kicking the Nazi's and Ustasha out.

READ THE BOOK: "The Yugoslav Auschwitz and The Vatican" by: Vladimir Dedijer:
<http://www.bookmag.com/books/history/157.html>

Clinton got his law degree at Georgetown (jesuit) University where he was indoctrinated into communism (as was, Jesuit, Fidel Castro). As governor of Arkansas, Clinton authorized the use of the airfield at Mena Arkansas, for Reagan's CIA-Iran/Contra weapons and drug smuggling operation. M-16's went south to arm the Catholic Contra's (to take back Nicaragua and El Salvador for the Vatican) and cocaine came north and sold on American streets by the CIA (today that cocaine is being sold in black neighborhoods by the Contra's). The money (over 100 million a month) was laundered through: Franklin Community Federal Credit Union in Omaha Nebraska; Bank of Credit & Commerce International; Guaranty Bank in Chicago; Garfield Ridge Trust & Savings Bank of Chicago. The money then used to buy more weapons (from David Koresh and Cabazon Indian Reservation near Indio California) and to put Catholic priest/dictator, Jean Bertrand Aristide, in power in Haiti: Clinton's cut was laundered through Arkansas Development Finance Authority (authored by: Webster Hubbell). The entire operation was overseen by Oliver North.

Oliver North had multiple secret accounts at Credit Suisse [(Credit Bank) one of the four banks that financed the assassination of John Kennedy] , Geneva, Switzerland: thereby controlling the financing of the entire operation.

Clinton was "chosen" to run for the Oval office by sovereign Knight of Malta: William Casey. This is the same William Casey who was CIA station chief in Viet Nam and implemented the "Operation Phoenix" (ethnic cleansing) of South Vietnamese Buddhist's, picking up where, Catholic, (Cardinal Francis "burn-em alive" Spellman trained) South Vietnamese president, Ngo Dinh Diem, left off: After John Kennedy had him assassinated on 2 Nov 1963. Need I say what happened on 22 Nov 1963? This is also the same William Casey, who, along with Oliver North, devised the system of smuggling M-16's to the Contra's in Nicaragua and cocaine north; was George Bush's campaign manager and named in a class action lawsuit in Southern California [(case no. 99-02603) along with Robert Gates, John Deutch, George Tenet, Estate of William French Smith, Edwin Meese, Richard Thornburgh, Janet Reno and others; CIA, US Dept. of Justice] responsible for the 1980's crack cocaine epidemic and resulting social and economic devastation of inner city communities.

Clinton implemented the American Ustasha (BATF) pilot program, at Mt. Carmel, outside Waco Texas, using the trumped up charge of a methamphetamine laboratory, which was never mentioned again once the raid started. After all the deaths (80) (17 children and their mothers were gassed and incinerated alive, the entire operation overseen by Webster Hubbell) and long term imprisonment of the Mt. Carmel survivors: NOT ONE HAD VIOLATED ANY LAW!! David Koresh was a LICENSED gun dealer!

In 1991 Clinton put the Ustasha back in power in Croatia: picking up the process of "conversion", where they left off in 1945. Not satisfied with the progress, Clinton concocted the phony "Dayton Peace Accord", implementing the treacherous unilateral disarmament: holding the Serbs in a, so called, fire free zone, which, in truth, was a free fire zone when the Croats and Muslims were allowed to rearm and continue the "conversion" process, which was completed in 1995.

In Bosnia, the Ustasha was called: "Croatian Peoples Party" (HSP) and its army: "Croatian Defense Force" (HOS): units being partially comprised of: "Black Legion" mercenaries from Austria, Belgium, Britain and Canada, and the French mercenary unit: "Nouvelle Resistance", MPRI (shadowy mercenary organization, based in Virginia) contracted by the Pentagon to train Ustasha units in Croatia, Bosnia and Kosovo (MPRI trained KLA/Ustasha direct US/Nato bombings in Kosovo by field radio).

In watching the, so called, news media you would think the Serb's are the worst people on earth. However a more critical view shows quite a different picture. The pictures of dead bodies show only that. They don't show: who they are, who killed them, when, where or how they were killed. You simply take the media's word for that. In 1969, a headline story, on every major newspaper in the US, read: "Buddhist Monk Commits Suicide in Protest of War", along with a picture of that monk engulfed in a gasoline flame on a Saigon street. The only problem with that is, that Buddhist Monk committed suicide in that flame on 11 June 1963 in protest of Catholic president Ngo Dinh Diem's systematic "ethnic cleansing" of all South Vietnamese Buddhist's out of South Viet Nam [Ngo Dinh Diem's Catholic wife's remark, to the suicide, was: "he would have made a good weenie roast", or words to that affect]: <http://www.reformation.org/vietnam.html> Also in 1969, in response to Spiro Agnew's attempt to get a bill through Congress to make it a crime for the media to lie: the president of ABC news stated, on national television: "we are not in the business of telling the truth".

If Slobodan Milosevic is doing ethnic cleansing, why haven't we seen any satellite images of it? After all, if it's supposed to be going on, on such a "wide scale", how could it be so difficult? Could it be, with all of the military's sophisticated technology, it's still to difficult to take a picture of what isn't happening? With satellite resolution clear enough that you can tell how long it's been since a man has shaved, all they've shown is a photo with some little dash marks (supposedly graves). When has any army, committing genocide, bothered to dig individual graves? Then, to add more insult to your intelligence, when UN forces go in, they try to claim the Serbian Army dug up each individual body (best lie they could come up with to explain not having any bodies)! We didn't see any pictures of displaced Albanians until after Clinton started his bombing.

Clinton calls Serbia, Yugoslavia: This carries grave implications in international protocol terminology. This means Clinton does not recognize the sovereignty of the Serbian people in their own land. How does this fit the UN charter? Clinton target bombed the WWII war memorial bridge across the Danube river in the middle of Novi Sad (where the Nazi's killed over 9000 Serbs) killing over 100 people on their way to work (it was on C-Span) (no military in the region). We know he's been bombing business buildings, appliance and pharmaceutical factories, commercial power and water plants, schools and orphanages in Belgrade. Hows that for concern for human suffering? Yes there really is ethnic cleansing going on, and its the US and NATO that's doing it! If you are so naive as to think NATO is not capable of such acts, ask the French why de Gaulle kicked NATO out of France in 1962 (FBI's Division 5, through NATO, made it's second attempt on his life: ordered by J. Edgar Hoover).

The Albanian KLA Separatists are KNOWN drugs and weapons smuggling terrorists (on US list of ten worst terrorist organizations for several years; just removed from that list last year) and have incorporated "Black Legion" mercenary units into their ranks. If you will take the time to find out, you will see (as I did on TV) embroidered down the left side of the KLA's arm patch is the word: "USTASHA"! At the top middle of the arm patch are the bolder letters: UCK (Ustasha of Croatia operating in Kosovo): <http://www.uck.de> ; <http://www.pavelicpapers.com>

This Whitehouse psychopath (alias: slick willy) went to St. Louis, Missouri to have a meeting with the Pope, just a few days, before he started bombing the Serb's. What's this tell you, in international protocol, about who is serving who: when a visiting head of state sits in a city of a country and waits for the head of that country to come and visit him?

Be warned: This, so called, peace agreement with Slobodan Milosovic is another phony "Dayton Peace Accord" to disarm the Serbs and set them up for extermination, just like they did in Croatia and Bosnia! This process will continue throughout the rest of the Balkans: Montenegro is next, then Macedonia.

The Serb's fought with the Allies in WWII, (which is one of the reasons the Vatican has it in for them) AND THIS IS THE THANKS THEY GET!

Dear Mxxxxxxx,

Maybe I did not communicate clearly enough. My first post concerning Pacino's quote regarding "Free Will" was intended to prove the Order's continual championing of their doctrine of Free Will. The context of Pacino's statement proves this, though I did not recite the entire context. The movie should be viewed.

I will always condemn the heresy of "Free Will," as that is the lynchpin upon which the Order seeks to subvert all Protestantism, bringing it back in union with "the Mother of Harlots and Abominations of the Earth."

Oh, and thanks for the correction regarding John Lennon. And I did not know that Mick Jagger had also been knighted as was McCartney. All of them though have their notorious Vatican connections.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

QUOTE

With new nations being established here in North America after its coming demise by the Black Pope, the races will then have a new freedom of choice as to where and with whom they wish to live. "White flight" will be no more in my new country. The only race allowed to live among us will be Jews (White and olive-skinned) and no other. My new White, Bible-based Constitutional Republic will be governed by Biblical maxims that will work for any country of any race if those maxims are obeyed.

Evidently, Phelps wants the Black Pope to destroy America so he can have his new nation. I personally find this very suspicious.

QUOTE

With regard to the Blacks, I know the race thoroughly.

People are not representatives of a specific race. I have posted a link to an article below that exposed this deception.

The conclusion I'm forming on Phelps is probably coming from a different path than how you or others see it, but a general conclusion seems one of life's more repeating themes. At least on earth, it seems nobody is spotless, there does not appear to be any human silver bullets, no knights in pure and shining white armour when it comes to learning and knowing the grand conspiracy beast in all it's sordid detail. Not expressing surprise, just an impression taken while living in this world. Yep, many people out there providing lots of seemingly good and well researched information. Cannot think of many off the top of my head who at some point do not also reveal what in polite words I can only think to refer to as an extreme and radical quirk of some sort; Phelps too. Cannot give him enough praise for his his efforts and knowledge in uncovering and exposing the jesuit influence throughout this world over the ages. To leave it just at this, perhaps it would approach a near perfect situation, but interwoven into his message are these repeat digressions into dissertations on his cumulative spiritual/biblical/scriptural judgements that are difficult to ponder and, frankly, , to me, beyond the station of any mere human :blink:

Phelps is a statist, he thinks Jesus was an american.

Mark Brewer - May 3, 2006 05:11 AM (GMT)

Phelps is damaging his credibility by making the claims that he is. I am concerned that people will start denying the Jesuit conspiracy just because they do not trust Phelps. That is why you should always check things out for yourself.

TruthSeeker24 - May 4, 2006 04:39 PM (GMT)

I really don't talk about race in here that much, because months ago, I've made my point about that. Months ago, I wrote long articles about this and it isn't necessary for me to discuss this that much anymore, because I know my true history. I disagree with Eric's views on race, but his views on the Vatican, Knights of Malta, and the Jesuits are correct. The truth is that there are great people who made great contributions of all race. It is wrong to bash the entire race as intellectually or morally inferior to white people, when very intelligent and moral figures existed in every race. Not to mention that socio economic factors, not our physical differences have a mighty impact on our wealth and success in life. The truth is also that scientists have proven that racial characteristics are minute genetically (being only 0.012% among our DNA) and fundamentally we're all from the same human species. Blacks in Africa then and now have made great achievements in history (from Egypt, Nubia, Ghana, Timbukutu's university, Mali, American black preachers and leaders, business, etc.). I wouldn't worry about the race issue, because I'm black, I'm comfortable and thankful for my heritage and history, and I'm not intimidated by any man. The Bible is clear cut on this issue. The Bible says that all believers are one in Christ. The Bible says that we are to love our neighbor as ourselves and God is no respecter of persons. I fear only God alone. I wouldn't worry that much, Mark Brewer. The facts are there proving the uniqueness and great contributions of all humans regardless of color.

I am in a debate at another board about the revelancy of the Order and I was told that Ignatius was Jewish and so therefore the conspiracy is a "Jewish" which is nonsense. I have read that Ignatius had wished he was...what is the word on this?

Thanx

Loyola was not a jew he was infact a Spanish Gentile!

QUOTE

These maxims teach that Gentiles rule the Jesuit Order. And indeed, true history proves this. Loyola was never a Jew as he was the son of one of the highest Spanish grandees in the court of Ferdinand and Isabella. Laynez, the second Jesuit Superior General was in fact a Jew and for this reason in 1593, after a huge falling out within the Society, a statute was passed forbidding any Jew to be within the Order. Ex-Jesuit E. Boyd Barrett confirms this policy in his The Jesuit Enigma and Rome Stoops to Conquer.

Therefore, Adam Weishaupt was never a Jew; rather, he was a German Jesuit of the short robe and the first non priest to be given a Canon Law chair at the Jesuit University in Ingolstadt, Bavaria. The Jewish Rothschilds did not come into financial prominence until the mid 1700s. They were Masonic and affiliated with the Pope's Court Jews---the Frankists---at the time of the Suppression of the Order in 1773. With the Pope outlawing the Jesuits, the Rothschilds became the Order's bankers to finance the French Revolution and Napoleonic Wars---that great Jesuit vengeance upon the Vatican Empire and Europe.

Indeed, the Papacy has always made the Jews its scapegoats for the secret works of the Pope now under supreme command of the Black Pope. The Jews were blamed for the Black Death of the Dark Ages when a third of Europe perished; for the Napoleonic Wars; for the destruction of Germany in WWI; and now for 911 as well as all the crimes committed by the Pope's Masonic Jewish Labor Zionists running Israel.

Further, the Rothschilds were not the bankers for the Jesuits in 1540. The papacy had plenty of money and the Jewish "Fuggars" were one of the Vatican bankers at the time according to Ridpath's Universal History.

No doubt there were Jews who converted to Romanism in 1492 and were known as Marranos. But the Order knew all the intelligence from the Court of the King to the curb of the slum. And no Jew after 1593 was OPENLY allowed into the Order although there were Jews who were secret Jesuit Temporal Coadjutors at the secret creation of the General. These Jews were subordinate, the tail of the Order, while the real high cabal of Jesuits, professed of the Fourth Vow, were White Gentiles---the devil's greatest tools in ruling his political kingdom of darkness.

Further, Jesuits are not Idumaeans. No doubt there were some Gentile descendants of Ishmael who intermarried with the Hebrews, but the Jews we know today as being Jews are for the most part the continuation of the racial Jewish descendants of Jacob. Their identity has not been lost as against the perverse Khazarian theory---that the Jews of today are merely Gentile Khazars.

Thus the Jesuits now ruling the world as the great second cause for the Devil in fulfilling the Lord's "mystery of iniquity," are Gentiles, not racial Jews.

I trust this is helpful.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

Thank you for this. This "Ignatius was a Crypto Jew" has been thrown at me on several occasions by people still blinded by the Rothschild "Jew" connection. I am having quite a difficult time explaining to people like this that they are merely financiers of the Vatican Bank...That money masters video although informative really has people fooled....

JagDRS - June 13, 2006 01:58 AM (GMT)

This thread takes me back to trying to answer the question - what is an anti-semite?, which commonly brings the answer - "anti-semites are people who hate or are otherwise against jews", the unspoken implication being that semites equate to jews. I can imagine there truly are situations when this equation holds true but I have reason to suspect that this is not iron-clad, not always the case. At least going by some biblical references, there are instances where reference to semites indicates people associated with a specific geographical and/or cultural region during ancient times. In quest of getting to a meaningful answer of the original question, the subsequent question naturally comes - "okay, if anti-semites are people who hate semites/jews, what is a jew?" It's at this point a consistent answer seems to break down into all kind of ambiguity. It's also interesting to me how wildy varying the answer is from one person to the next.

The previous quote from Phelps mentions a few related statements, one being that Loyola was not a Jew based upon the parents / family he was born into - son of one of the highest Spanish grandees in the court of Ferdinand and Isabella, although this could mean it (him not being a Jew) was a matter of who his parents/father was employed by. Secondly, there is the reference to Jews who converted to Romanism. Both seem to have bearing on the answer I'm seeking in that, whatever Jews are, it seems to relate - sometimes - to one's lineage in some respect, I'm just not sure how; if those who are already Jews can convert to something else like Romanism, it seems to reason those who are already something can convert to being a Jew. This suggests there are also elements of choice involved, specifically in this case choice of religion and also possibly choice of social status or other perceived fringe benefits that come with. These two extremes - lineage, choice of religion, are an interesting pair. Try as one might, one cannot change where they came from. By choice, one can certainly change where one is headed, and perhaps in the process, cover up or disguise where they came from.

Good luck with your discussion on the other board. Meanwhile, I'm still seeking.

CRAIG-OXLEY - June 13, 2006 02:10 AM (GMT)

Remember on that the Rothschilds are not the most wealthiest or Powerful family around. The Italian Black Nobility are the most powerful of all the families and this is well known. Remember on that the Cecils had far more power than the Rothschilds, remember the Cecils influence on the British Royal family? Now also remember that the Rothschilds dreamt of interbreeding with the Cecils for a hell of a long time. The Cecils would have no part in this as they saw the Rothschilds as inferior and in need of proving themselves overtime worthy of uniteing together.

So many people fall into this trap about Rothschilds when theres some much superior Italian Black Nobility families which DWARF Rothschilds. Also if the truth be known, the Rockefeller family are actually more wealthy than the Rothschilds. Rothschilds will always be at the for front with disinformationists etc. Its simply because their European and guardian of the VATICAN treasury. Remember on that when they say Vatican, they mean Vatican and therefore this is not the Rothschild's family wealth. Of course their highly wealthy without Vatican treasury but compare them to Rockefeller and of course old J.P Morgan and you'll see again another side often not told. Its made out that the Rothschilds rule over Rockefellas and the Morgans. This is simply not true, the only ruler of those 2 and the Rothschilds is the Vatican and more so the Jesuit Order. All Rothschild did was bring together Rockfella and Morgan into the fold after much persuasion I must add, especially as the two hated each other with a passion. That is all it was and he doesn't rule them. I should also point out that Italian black nobility again are far more powerful and wealthy than the Rockefellas.

Confession No. 8: Crafty And Duplicitous Jesuits Are Master Deceivers With The Goal To Destroy America

This is the consensus of numerous researchers who claim history has been rewritten in order to protect the true intentions of the Vatican and Jesuits. Today's Sunday Confession recaps the previous seven weeks of studying the real controllers of the New World Order

11 Jun 2006

By Greg Szymanski

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/11-June-2006.html>

In the first seven confessions, unknown history has been presented and people have come forward, trying to retrace the steps and piece together the true story of the Jesuit Order and the Vatican.

With the information presented here every Sunday, the foundation has been adequately laid that the Vatican, through the deceptive Jesuit Order, should not be overlooked when looking for the true spiritual leaders of the New World Order bringing about America's destruction.

The foundation has also been laid, proving that beyond a reasonable doubt, the deceptive Jesuit Order and its New World Order minions have made the Zionists the "scapegoat" for America's demise.

This method of deception has been carefully crafted, leaving a clear path of destruction for the real criminals in the Jesuit Order and the U.S. government simply by deflecting any criticism or knowledge of their active involvement in destroying the liberties and freedom of the American people.

With that said, there still is much to cover about the Jesuit Order, as more than 400 years of lost and stolen history cannot be recovered in seven short weeks. However, this week we shall use Confession No. 8 on the shores of Brushy Creek to recap our first seven sessions, as next week we will embark on two more months of studying the Jesuit Order, concentrating on the numerous countries they have been expelled from and concentrating on their present worldwide organization.

This week, however, we borrow from a most useful web site called Jesuit Love, a web site utilizing the same type of deception in words utilized by the Jesuits when they actually as a benign group of priests try to pass off love for hate, peace for war and Jesus for Lucifer.

For those who do not want to spend the time reading over the first "seven confessions" in the Arctic Beacon archives, this web site adequately recaps most of the information presented in a brief and concise manner. It is also suggested that all conclusions made below should be researched by the reader on his own, as connecting the "true dots" is vital for the salvation of your own soul and the salvation of America.

And its content and wording can be used similarly as a lawyer would present his case in closing arguments made to a jury. Here is a summary at Jesuit Love, answering why America should not rule out the Jesuits and the Vatican when looking toward the real enemies controlling the New World Order:

General Statement Concerning the Jesuit Order

For four hundred years the great Jesuit army has been fighting their covert war for absolute control of the world. A masterful army of spies and assassins they have, in the past, been expelled from every country in Europe. They have arranged nearly every war in the last 300 years. They initiated the US Civil War to transform the United States into a Central Controlled tool of their conquest of the world. They have placed Hitler in power, Stalin in power, Mao in power, Pol Pot in Power and many more inquisitionists throughout the world's history.

They now use the United States to perpetrate inquisitions. As they did in Korea and Vietnam as they are doing again with Iraq. The goal is simple and glorious, a one world government, a New World Order with the Pope on the throne and the Jesuit General in control of the Pope and the empire of the world. Secret services such as the CIA, the KGB, MI6 are controlled by them. Presidents are elected and Popes and Presidents are killed by them. They are the army of the Vatican in control of the Vatican. They hide behind secret societies which they control and corporations they own like Microsoft, Bank of America, Lockheed and many more.

This site is dedicated to the glorious achievements of the Jesuit Brotherhood, the Society of Jesus for all to now know.

As previous Jesuit General Tamburini once said "See sir, from this chamber I govern not only Paris but China, not only China but the whole of the world, without anyone knowing how I do it."

The end of the fabricated "Cold War" marked a turning point in the careful fight waged over the last 400 and more years by the Jesuit Brotherhood. The long awaited New World Order is upon us! Absolute control of the world via the Holy Roman Empire (Isis-Horus-Seb) is no longer a secret necessary to maintain. Let the truth be told that the world belongs to the Black Pope.

The Jesuit Brotherhood is now in the phase of consolidation. The ever heretical United States and Canada will soon be the hallow grounds for the inquisition. No less thorough than those of the past under Jesuit servants Hitler, Stalin, Mao and many others. The cleansing will be complete, the protestants will convert or be annihilated. The "Freedoms" will be destroyed as subservience to the Jesuit General is no longer a privilege but a requirement.

The non-believers will be slain for the greater good and greater glory of the Jesuit controlled Vatican empire. Jesuit controlled actors like Bush ,Gore and others serving the Order.

Achievements of the Jesuit Order

- Make lending of money on interest a noble occupation.*
- Place Jews in positions where fault or blame can be placed in the future.*
- Exterminate heretic leaders and key opponents.*
- Arrange for puppet leaders like Hitler, Mao, Stalin to extend the inquisition.*
- Arrange for the slaughter of the Indigenous infidels.*
- Institutionalize the Corporation to compete with the individual.*
- Establishment of the Central Government for the United States*
- Establish the United States Federal Reserve Bank*
- Control and facilitate the "Secret Societies" .*
- Centralize inner power by controlling the nations Secret Services*
- Fabricate conflicts such as the Cold War and Terrorism*
- Create artificial events such as 9/11 to manipulate populations*
- Control thinking by controlling Educational, History, Media*
- Maintain a conscript army through economic repression and inquisition.*
- Repress technology and understanding, hide Tesla's - promote the Einstein's!*
- Manage the health of the populous.*

[B]Jews and the Jesuits[/B]

The Jews have long been a of whipping dog of the Jesuit controlled Vatican. As the killers of Jesus time and again they have been made to suffer and more so as a competitor to Christianity!

Among their ranks of any group are always individuals recognizing their true worth as the lap dogs of their Jesuit masters. The use of secret societies facility the identification of suitable individuals. These individuals for example selected Jews often serve the Brotherhood of Jesus quite well.

Of course, they are entirely disposable. Karl Marx was one such lap dog that served the orders purposes. Communism is a form of our own Catholic totalitarian rule. The communist lands have well facilitated the good slaughter of the heretic Christian infidels (the Non-Catholics). In other words the communist / totalitarian worlds facilitate the continuation of the great Catholic Inquisition so necessary to the cultivation of one world Catholicism.

Wars and the Jesuits

Countless are the wars arranged for the resurrection of the Jesuit Holy Roman Empire. For Isis for Horus and for seb the trinity. For the greater glory of the Jesuit Vatican and the Jesuit General the Black Pope the true ruler of the world.

WWI - Split heretic protestant Ireland from the rest of Britain. Lead to the further concentration of ownership of the United States and Britain. Begin the inquisitions of Europe anew.

WWII - Finalize the acquisition of Japan. Extermination of the unconvertible heretic gypsy and Jew populations of Europe. Consolidate the takeover of the United states with post war taxation the the formation of the CIA. Establish Mao for the inquisitions of China and consolidation of power through the triads and the secret services. The Chinese are now owned by the Jesuit order. Religious faith is dead to be reborn as the Jesuit Catholicism in the future. Strengthen the grip of Stalin the Jesuit puppet and the subjugation and control of the Soviet Territories. The Russian people are now owned by the Jesuit Brotherhood.

Korea - Begin the Jesuit Orders more formal use of the United States as an instrument of inquisitions.

Vietnam - Eliminated Indigent and heretical Buddhist populations via the United States. The the purge of the Cambodian indigenous heretics followed with the US population conditioned to want nothing more to do with South East Asia..

Bosnia - Kill protestant and Muslim populations, increase U.N. Presence and authority in the world community.

Gulf War - Begin the formal cultivation of the "Terrorist" and anti-American image.

IRAQ - Kill the heretic populations. Cultivate anti-American attitudes around the world and cultivate an army of Muslims for an invasion of the U.S. and thereby slaughtering a population that might otherwise resist

Spanish Civil war - 1936 lead by Cardinal Pedro Segura led the Islamic army in slaughtering unfaithful Roman Catholic men, women and children without mercy.

Mexican Civil war - 1914 - 1945 - Killed 1 million Mexican heretics

2nd French Revolution - 1848

Russian Revolution - 1917 - 1922 - Followed by inquisition / purges of the heretics

The Mexican "War of Reform" 1858 - 1861

The American "Civil War" 1861 - 1865

The German-Austrian War 1866

The End of the Japanese Shogunate 1868

The Franco-Prussian War 1870 - 1871

The Dreyfus Affair 1895 - 1906

Terrorism and the Jesuits

Oh the power of the fabrications! Like the Cold War, Terrorism is designed to consolidate power while slaughtering heretics while training a new crop of butchers for the next round of the Jesuit inquisitions. The known abuses in Iraq are only the tip of the iceberg. Many abuses of women and children are well underway. Soldiers are being psychologically brutalized by being told to randomly kill women and children civilians.

The goal of course is to further and further infuriate the Moslem youth and further and further promote a negative image of the United States around the world. Al-Qaida is nothing more than a CIA run operation of the noble Jesuit Brotherhood. Osama Bin Ladin merely a lap dog of the great Jesuit Order doing as instructed.

The involvement of the "Terrorist" in events like 9/11 is only for show, a cover story to motivate the sheep in the United States and Britain. Of course, the individuals who apply to join the ranks of groups like Al-Qaida believe they work for a noble cause with a real enemy. But the only real enemy of the world is the heretic unfaithful to the holy work of the Jesuit Controlled Black Pope and his Vatican. The Moslem is as much a heretic and will just as much come to be owned and destroyed under the Jesuit ideals.

Secret Service and the Jesuits

The brotherhood of Jesus, the Jesuit Society is from inception and by design a covert army of spies and assassins. The Jesuits marvelous success has come in no small part from it's own organization. The Jesuits have applied this "Need to Know" and "Above Top Secret" hierarchical design to the establishment of security services around the world. The good Jesuit Brothers have gaining inside access either through the fabricated "Religious" pretext or through controlling influences within secret societies. The Jesuit victory has come in part from it's high level ownership of the CIA, FBI, MI5, MI6, Mosad, KGB/FSB and many other national security organizations. All these organizations are patterned for their success after the Jesuit order itself!

One of the most notable examples was the Jesuit Nazi SS from whose ranks came many of the early CIA members with good skills in torture and mind manipulation. With the solidification of "Need to Know" privacy in the CIA and with the gradual removal of over site authority and accountability the CIA today stands untouchable and in near full control of the United States. Events such as the JFK assassination and 9/11 demonstrate the agencies facility at perpetrating and managing the backlashes as they occur. In conjunction with the control held over the FBI and the NSA and the Information media future events will continue to occur as planned. The work of FEMA in prepare underground shelters for the privileged and concentration camps for the heretics is equally commendable.

The Secret Services have also managed properties to serve the brotherhood. Such properties include the drug trade and it's equally profitable drug war. Sex slavery is now a more profitable enterprise than drugs and with it the profits from selective law enforcement. All such activities serve to assist the brotherhood in managing the training and dependency of law enforcement services and training from the national level. This facilitates putting distance between the Law Enforcement personnel and the "Citizen".

Just as the Jesuits are not subject to the authority of the Vatican neither are the Secret Services subject to the authority of the country in this they are positioned. With the CIA for example the "Above Top Secret" , "Need to Know" and "Plausible Deniability" rationales put the CIA above and independent of the President and the Congress.

Puppets and the Jesuits

The Brotherhood has gained systematic control of the United States over the last 150 years. Theodore Roosevelt, Franklin Roosevelt, Harry Truman, Nixon, Carter, Clinton and the Bushes have all been the orders useful lap dogs. With the wealth of the Federal Reserve, Stalin was successfully raised to power. The "Communist" purch of the Russian Orthodox was very successful. Hitler was another such pawn who served the order well. Pol Pot, Mao, many others.

The collective death toll of heretics via "Communism or other Jesuit facilitators:

USSR: 20 million deaths

China: 65 million deaths

Vietnam: 1 million deaths

North Korea: 2 million deaths

Cambodia: 2 million deaths

Eastern Europe: 1 million deaths

Afghanistan: 1.5 million deaths Africa: 1.7 million deaths

Latin America: .25 million deaths

Mexico: 1 million deaths

Cold War and the Jesuits

The cold war served the order in many wonderful ways. At the end of the 2nd world war China and Russia where only slightly more advanced than they would have been in the 1800's! The Russia heretical orthodox had been enduring the brotherhoods inquisition under the lap dog Stalin. China was just beginning the cleansing and reforming inquisition of the Buddhist / Taoist heretics via lap dog Mao. Neither country was capable of opposing the United States. For the purges to go unopposed the people of the United States needed to believe that it could not interfere in the internal politics of these countries without a global nuclear war resulting. With this pretext and the brotherhoods control of the media (including the new media of television) this was not difficult to do. Providing the nuclear technology to the Soviets was a key initial tactic and at the appropriate time the Chinese where provided the technology as well. This made them viable threats to the public and the established heretical elements in the military but in reality both countries were well under Jesuit control via their Secret Services.

The cold war provided additional revenue through the "military / industrial" complex owned by the Jesuit Brotherhood. It was a time of intense misdirection against the infidel protestants. The Korean war and Vietnam war allowed the the Americans to slaughter the heretic Buddhists and indigenious populations under the guise of "fighting communism". The American people where lead to believe they where helping oppose communism. when in reality they where simple slaughtering infidels for the Jesuit order and to it's great satisfaction!

With the establishment of the CIA by the lap dog Truman gradual deepening of control over American was being finalized. The CIA where initially staffed from Nazi SS mind and body inquisitors trained and cultivated during the 3rd Reich by the Jesuit order. Black is white and white is black is a motto of the high Jesuit Brotherhood. What the people are told is far from what is really happening.

Promotion of equality, animal rights and the environment helped to facilitate an expanded influence of the top down government against the individual states and the heretic population during this period.

Social protests against the Vietnam War helped to create the needed split between the population and the government. It was in this split that the Jesuit servant Nixon could initiate the end of the Gold Standard. Later with Carter the clear independent authority of the CIA could be justified.

9/11 and the Jesuits

9/11 is one of the Jesuit Brotherhoods latest achievements! The demolition of the towers was a carefully planned event used for multiple purposes:

- 1. To solidly establish the fabricated "Terrorist" phase just as the fabricated "Cold War" had been established previously with Korea and Berlin.*
- 2. To further concentrate the central government in the United States via the "Patriot Act" and the Office of Homeland security.*
- 3. Via the Iraq aggressions, turn the world towards the Brotherhood controlled United Nations and strongly cultivate an anti-American / anti-British view.*
- 4. To further dilute the number of US troops in the continental United States by driving them off shore for events like Afghanistan and Iraq.*
- 5. To cultivate and train the heretic Muslim youth as a future military force to be used against the United States.*
- 6. To justify the FEMA construction of concentration camps within the United States for the coming inquisition of the heretic nation.*
- 7. To see the United States as a bully yet vulnerable.*

Central Government and the Jesuits

Key in early plans for the New World Order of the Jesuit Vatican army was the conquest of the heretic Protestant America. Essential for this to occur was the great US Civil War. In the post civil war confusion and desperation lay the opportunity for establishing the US Central Government. This was accomplished by the forced introduction of the 14th Amendment. This amendment to the US Constitution reversed the entitlement of the citizen. No longer was an individual a citizen of their state which was in reality an independent country and then a member of the United States. After the 14th amendment the individual was a member of the United States and living in a state within it. With this change of membership came the means of centralized control. Under the early republic model the "United States" as an organization owned nothing and had no entitlements. It was granted by the states necessary funds, manpower and other resources only upon approval by the states. The Central Government which came into existence resulted in a powerful facility for central control and extortion necessary to the great goals of the Jesuit order. With the change of authority came a strong and independent Federal military, a higher authority over state activities via the Supreme Court and the establishment of central government "services" used to maximize control and obligation of the states.

The Central Government once established pursued it's role of subjugating the state authority and the population at large. The Bureau of Land Management and the National Forest Service and Park Service began taking land of the States as a ploy to limit the dispersion of the population.

The Central Government was also used to support the patent system. Patents rarely serve the interest o f the inventor.

Controlling Population, Education, Media and the Jesuit Order

Success of the Jesuit Masters required great influence in all aspects of the heretics life. The heretic must be managed physically, emotionally and psychologically. Fortunately most human beings are little more than sheep. They need the strong hand of the good Shepard to protect and guide the flock towards the light. The wolves (heretics) are ever at the door and the sheep can in weakness be mislead. The heretics can in some cases be brought to their senses by force and by redirection. It is with these Interests that the great Jesuit Order has labored for so long.

Yet another great achievement are the ways being taken to accomplish this. Control of the individual requires control of the sources of information and the ways in which information is presented to them. Control of education is one such method used by the Jesuit Order. With a high degree of influence in the educational system and the material published for it you gain control of what is taught and what is forbidden. By setting standards for what is "knowledge" you further that control. This has facilitated directing the academics attention away from the Jesuit perpetration and on irrelevance and fantasy created by the Jesuit Order.

With control of the News Media you further this task. Fabricated Academics when combined with the news media have served the brotherhood remarkably well! No greater example exists than that of the Einstein fabrication. Einstein came about as an effort to take the publics attention from Nikola Tesla and the legitimate practice of science and engineering. Using Einstein fabricated physics a complete misdirection of scientific training could be achieved. The real science in the advanced forms has been available only to a limited few. Einstein is was one of the orders finest lap dogs and a good example of the use of Masonic Jewish Zionist in service of the great Jesuit cause.

A recent example may also help to make this strategy clear. A school teacher asked her students to find the bad and the good that came out of Nazi Germany. The media where instructed to criticize the teacher under the pretext of her wishing to make light of the slaughter of the Jews. (inquisition :->) By attacking her In this way teachers in general are put into fear lest they loose their positions or standing teaching what is not on the official agenda. Fear of acting independently enforce in teachers the need to stick to the books and not to teach or encourage the students to think independently. What is printed in the text books the Jesuit order naturally controls.

The film industry is almost entirely controlled by the Illustrious Jesuit Brotherhood. By the standard ploy and for the heretics consumption the media is presented as being in Jewish control. A number of Jewish Lap Dogs serve this purpose.

Slowly the film industry is presenting the good Catholic and the bad heretic. For example the recent film "The Body" portrays a kind and gentle Jesuit priest is attacked by the Jews. Such portraits of the good priest and the good Catholic (Bells of St. Mary's) are subtle but effective. The protestant and general heretics are increasingly represented in film as they truly are, the degraded and un-chosen, the trailer trash, the criminal element, the undesirable. Of course any hint of exposure would result in a temporary change of presentation to pacify the heretic mind until the New World Order is fully established.

In film, conspiracies are made light of as being simply constructed, easily detected and easily overcome. This continually enforces the idea of conspiracy posing no real threat or being simply a ridiculous idea to being with. Validating and invalidating is an effective tactic. "If such things as conspiracies exist don't worry they are harmless and short lived" this is the idea being conveyed.

Film has also hinted at the divine plan of the Jesuits. Darth Vader of Star Wars is the Black Pope. Fahrenheit 451, Logan's Run, 1984, Start Trek the Borg, Sleeper, etc..

Righteous Jesuit Assassinations

Many are those who have dared to stand against the great Jesuit General and the Great Jesuit cause. But, where are they now? What have they achieved except their own ruination and that of their own lands? How can the unworthy heretic think they can oppose the great Jesuit Order and Organization? The Jesuit brotherhood will destroy the heretics and the indigenous peoples and their wrong beliefs taking from them everything and leaving them stunned, shocked and dismayed. Most heretics will not live past the coming inquisitions nor do they deserve to.

All successful revolutionary activity is started from the top by leadership. Therefore potential leaders must be assassinated as soon as there is the slightest indication of their potential to undermine the Jesuit strategy.

Righteous Jesuit Assassinations

Pope Clement XIV - Suppressed the Jesuit order in 1773 and was assassinated.

JFK - Dared to resist the authority of the Jesuit General and was assassinated.

Abraham Lincoln - Resisted the Jesuits after the Civil War and was assassinated.

Benito Pablo Juarez - Purged Mexico of the Jesuit influence and was assassinated.

Malcolm X - Assassinated for efforts to root out the Masonic influence over the Black Muslims.

Louis T. McFadden - Assassinated for promoting the end of the Federal Reserve.

Che Guevara - Assassinated for resisting the Jesuit subjugation of South America.

General Lafayette, 1799 Aide to Washington Romanism: A Menace to the Nation

"It is my opinion that if the liberties of this country - the United States of America - are destroyed, it will be by the subtlety of the Roman Catholic Jesuit priests, for they are the most crafty, dangerous enemies to civil and religious liberty. They have instigated most of the wars of Europe."

George Washington - Freed the United States from Jesuit control King George III of England. Ended paper money by establishing gold and silver coin which lead the United States out of debt.

Henry Ford - "It is well enough that the people of the nation do not understand our banking and monetary system, for if they did, I believe there would be a revolution before tomorrow morning."

President John Adams - "Shall we not have regular swarms of them here, in as many disguises as only a king of the gypsies can assume, dressed as painters, publishers, writers, and schoolmasters? If ever there was a body of men who merited eternal damnation on Earth and in Hell it is this Society of Loyola's."

Some Jesuit Heroes

The order's illustrious found Ignatius Loyola is documented in the history of the faith. Without this heroes great vision, brilliance and divine calling nothing would have been achieved. The Catholic church would be merely one of the voices representing Jesus rather than the only source of religion speaking to all the peoples of the world for all eternity. This was proven to the Vatican itself after Pope Clement XIV disbanded to Order. The Vatican itself saw the great decline in the interest of the people and of course the lack of revenues that resulted.

Cardinal Spellman - Facilitated the JFK assasination for the Jesuit Brotherhood.

Joseph P. Kennedy - Facilitated the United States great depression for the Jesuits.

Prescott Bush - Facilitated the funding of Hitler for the Jesuit cause.

Captain Edward J. Smith - Captain of the Titanic and Jesuit Priest.

J. Edgar Hoover - Director of the United States FBI

Colonell House - Jesuit Priest and puppeteer of Woodrow Wilson.

Fidel Castro - Jesuit trained inquisitionist in control of Cuba

General Porfirio Diaz - Reversed the heretical treason of Benito Juarez and restored the great Jesuit repression of Mexico 1876-1911. In 1914 the 2nd cleansing of Mexico was arranged by the Jesuit General while the world was focused on WWI. The cleansing lasted 30 years and killed more than a million Mexican heretics.

Emperor Meiji - Ruled Japan for the Jesuit Order seeing to it's ingraining in the society. The Jesuits had already destroyed the Samurai

James Buchanan - A staunch opponent of the brotherhood until he was poisoned by the Jesuit brothers. 38 of his colleagues died but Buchanan lived long enough to ignite the American Civil war.

President Bill Clinton - Graduate of Jesuit Georgetown University. Among other achievement Clinton took the nuclear launch keys away from naval commanders. This renders the United States incapable of a sea based retaliatory strike.

Black Pope and the Jesuit Order

Under General Kolvenbach impressive leadership the twin towers of the world trade center where successfully destroyed in the 9/11 fabrication! The "Terrorist" fabrication has successful momentum. The day of the slaughter of the heretical United States, Canada and Australia is gracefully approaching. The growth of the heretical Moslem armies will facilitate the slaughter of the East Indian Infidels. The Hindu and Moslem populations will be purged from the earth. The orders control of the despotic Muslim leadership around the world (via the Jesuit controlled Islamic Masonic Order) guarantees an invading army to support the destruction of the North Americans.

The nuclear Weapons are planted in the appropriate places to facilitate the destruction of the "Free Speech", "Free Press", and "Freedom of Belief" heretical countries.

Title: Sodomite Criminal U.S. Jesuit Conference President

Description: Thomas Smolich SJ

CRAIG-OXLEY - June 11, 2006 01:58 PM (GMT)

Dear Brother Nicholas,

I have a picture of Smolich in VAIII. He, as the former California Provincial, was the boss of Arnold S., governor of CA.

Further, the Jesuit Conference seeks to outlaw every handgun, shotgun and rifle so what was done in Stalin's USSR and Hitler's Germany can be done here.

Sincerely in faith,

Brother Eric

Thomas Smolich SJ
President of U.S. Jesuit Conference

Thomas Smolich SJ (age 47) was rewarded for protecting his "sucks" convicted and registered sex offender in CA crossdresser Angelo Mariano SJ (age 47) (and othersubordinate Jesuit sodomites like Charles Carroll SJ and Thomas Burke SJ)-who lived with Smolich along with other Jesuits in the same house. Smolich was the California Jesuit Provincial and was promoted to Washington DC for refusing to kick out guilty sex perverts out of the Order and paying less than the plaintiffs requested in damages. Smolich of course did nothing to protect the abused two mentally challenged men at a Jesuit retreat center.

<http://www.stjosephsmen.com/Jesuits4> -This Roman Catholic webpage says

"Smolich is Provincial for the Western Province of Jesuits; this includes 5 Western States. Apparently, he is either an active homosexual or a rabid homosexualist who defends, promotes and advocates the homosexual life style even among priests who have taken the vow of chastity. The following is a compilation of various articles regarding him and the Jesuits of the Western province. Again I must warn any parent thinking about sending their children to Jesuit run schools to please think twice. If you ignore this warning you put your child in spiritual and moral danger. They will not receive a "Catholic" education and in many cases their minds will be brain washed in Liberal/Masonic concepts and moral perversity. In all honesty, the Jesuits can no more be trusted to provide a Catholic education than used car salesmen can be trusted to sell you a reliable vehicle." AG

Here's evidence that Thomas Smolich SJ is a criminal that should be in prison at this very moment.

Six religious at Los Gatos Jesuit Center were accused of sexually abusing two retarded men in their employ for nearly 30 years.

According to court records,

one of the accused, "Mariano," had also been arrested in 1998 for having sex with a 17-year-old boy. "Mariano arranged to meet two teenagers by posing as a 25-year-old woman on an Internet chat room.

He wore lipstick and rouge when he met the boys," reported George Neumayr in the American Prowler. Today, Mariano reportedly lives with Fr. Thomas Smolich, the head of the California Province of Jesuits.

When asked about Mariano, Smolich said: "This is anonymous sex. This doesn't involve people at the parish. It wasn't a priest thing. He wasn't dressed in a collar." Smolich did not inform police about the alleged abuse of the retarded workers because the men weren't minors. The lawyer for the Jesuits told the Los Angeles Times: "The Jesuits have no obligation under California law to disclose the information."

Quoted from: 5. "Jesuit Priest Accused of Sexual Abuse," Mercury News, December 14, 2002.

More evidence Jesuit Smolich is a sodomite criminal

"During the course of this investigation, late one Saturday night during the summer of 2002, this writer went to the Jesuit website's bulletin board where anyone can ask a question about St. Thomas Aquinas or Teilhard de Chardin or the like. I choose a different topic. I wrote, "What in the world is Tom Smolich, the head of the Western Jesuit Province in the United States, doing living with a convicted sex offender and cross dresser in the Provincial house across the street from the University of Santa Clara?"

"Smolich then oversaw approximately 436 Jesuits in a five state area. Although his office is in Los Gatos, California at the Sacred Heart Center, the provincial residence is elsewhere. It houses about seven Jesuits. Angelo Mariano, S.J. was the convicted sex offender. He is listed on the Santa Clara Police Sex Registry "Š

Mariano is 47 years-old. Tom Smolich is 47 years-old. [Mariano and Smolich are sodomite abusers of themselves with mankind working that which is unseemly-the abomination of homosexuality! Why else would Smolich protect Mariano and have him live with him?]

Smolich is an UNTOUCHABLE! He was as California Provincial and even more so now as U.S. Jesuit Conference President.

Title: VAllI and Greer

CRAIG-OXLEY - June 10, 2006 08:59 PM (GMT)

EJP:

I did quite a bit of evangelizing VA during this past weekend at the 9-11 Conference in Chicago. Lisa and I met with Meria several times, and things are looking very positive in that area. Indeed, following your work has shown me quite a lot about the world we live in, and you have my THANKS for being on the vanguard of your profession- and for your inspiration.

May the Lord be praised, my friend.

The Guys at Loose Change are now getting on the boat- and though they WERE "friends" with Alex Jones, I think that our conversation with them (after Alex left on Sunday) was enough to get them to see that he's only taking them so far- and especially ignoring the Jes connection.

Well done! Jones will not even say the "J-word."

That all being said, I have one and only one request/suggestion for VA III- it ties directly to the credibility that you seek:

OK.

Here it is... I do not think, and others I trust on this matter do not believe that Greer did the final shot...

Who do you think made the fatal head shot?

From my end, I completely see what you see when I look at frame 313, but Henry Luce & co had the footage edited- so that it looks like Greer took the final shot-and though many people are familiar with William Cooper's work in this area, those who have what I consider to be the "tightest" angle on this point to Felix Rodriguez, Frank Stergis (?), and definitely G. Gordon Liddy.

No, SMOM Luce tried to edit that out.

Where did that shot come from? Those who advocate the theory say the kill shot came from the grassy knoll via Liddy on orders from Poppy Bush---an impossibility in light of the wounds caused by the trajectory of the final shot.

I also remember someone that you correspond with also naming Liddy...

It was Emily, the illegitimate daughter of King Edward VIII. She said "Poppy" Bush gave the order for Liddy to take the kiill shot.

so when people ask me why (after such a great lead up) do you finger Greer as the final shot; I basically express that it's easier to name Greer (since he's dead, and Liddy's very much alive) but that you are aware that Liddy was one of the shooters.

I know he was a shooter NOW and will be naming him in VAllI on the testimony of Emily. I did not know he was involved when writing VAI or VAll.

I guess I just figured that I'd mention it- because I respect your work, and I want people who are educated in these final details to respect all of your work- not all of it "except Greer".

OK. The facts are as I understand them:

1. All Jesuit assassinations are up close and very personal when a firearm is involved. No assassinations are carried out using rifles in a civilian theater---ever! Jesuit Coadjutor Stone was right in JFK; a chief executive has not be executed with a rifle in over 200 years.

2. Abraham Zapruder was a 32nd Jewish Freemason and a contract agent for the CIA. In Dallas, that fateful day, he was contracted to film the assassination. He was not forced off his post and his secretary was there behind him, stablizing him. After the fatal shot and as the limo was accelerating, Zapruder followed the limo filming the vehicle until it disappeared under the underpass, yet Zapruder heard the shot at the grassy knoll and must have seen the smoke in his peripheral vision. Because he was a contract agent for the CIA, he deliberately did not move his camera just a little farther to the right, which move would have photographed the fence at the grassy knoll and quite possibly would have revealed the shooter. People were running towards him and he knew a shot had been fired from behind the picket fence, jet he refused to go there with his camera---ever.

3. The shot at the grassy knoll was a mere distraction evidenced by the smoke emerging after the shot. We have had smokeless gunpowder for the last 100 years. The grassy knoll shooter (possibly mafioso James Files as he claims) shot a "fireball" that was so loud and smoky that it only could have been a distractionary tactic just as the planes plowing into the WTC were distractionary shots, not at all responsible for the crumbling of the buildings. Further, I have been at the fence at the grassy knoll and it is a most difficult shot in that the vehicle was still moving; JFK was moving somewhat; Jackie was not to be hit on orders of Spellman's SMOMs; and most of all the trajectory could never have made the resulting head wounds as noted by the doctors at Parkland Hospital. The trajectory entered above and to the right of the right eye. This entry wound was surgically tampered with before the body arrived at Bethesda Naval Hospital according to the work of David Lifton. As you know, the exit wound was almost level with the entry wound and quite large, with the right rear portion of JFK's head blown out. There was brain matter on the trunk which Jackie grabbed after she was forced back into her seat by SSA Clint Hill, he having mounted the limo after he had anticipated the shot.

This means that the killing shot came from the front and was level as it traveled through JFK's head. Kellerman had turned around before the final kill shot; Greer had turned around twice, the second time at frame 313 JFK's head lights up with flame (the flame evidencing a point blank shot) from the kill shot at the moment Greer turned around anticipating the final shot coming from "somewhere."

This means that the final shot could only come from the front, directly in front of JFK and not from the right front as a right front shot would have blown the left side of the rear of JFK's head out, not the right rear side as is well known.

Further, it was Dr. Peter Beter who in one of his audio letters of 1976 said that the killing shot came from within the vehicle---but he never said that shot came from either Greer or Kellerman. Later, Dr. Stuart Crane, a coordinator for the JBS for seven years said openly that the driver shot JFK years before William Cooper ever proved his point. Further, when I was in Reno in 2001 for a TV interview with Dennis Grover, a woman approached me after the show and told me that it was indeed the driver that killed JFK. A close relative saw the driver shoot his weapon and as a result he had been forced to move from city to city for the last thirty years.

Let us look at the Nix film. The key frame at the time of the fatal shot was doctored by UPI and a section running from right to left about one foot in scale was obliterated, removing any view of the driver. Look at the JFK film by Jesuit Coadjutor Oliver Stone: the driver is completely cut out of the film! Why was this done, if the driver did not do the shooting?

There is only one puzzle piece that does not fit together here. According to Deputy Sheriff Roger Craig---who was later murdered with a rifle at close range--- a .45 slug was found in the grass among blood and brain matter just on the other side of the curb opposite the curb on the side of the grassy knoll. If this .45 slug was indeed indicative of the direction from whence came the final shot, then the driver did not shoot this .45 round. I believe that the slug was indeed shot by the driver as indicated by the wounds in JFK's head; that it was brushed by Hill off the trunk of the limo into the grass when he mounted the vehicle. Jackie knew that Greer did the shooting for which reason she tries to exit the vehicle.

One final thought. In 1973 Executive Action was released. It is said that George DeMohrenshildt was secretly involved in the making of the movie. One of the subliminals in the movie is that actor Will Greer plays the old industrialist "Mr. Fergeson," who is portrayed as the character ultimately responsible for the assassination. Could it be that the secret message of the film was that the real Will Greer was indeed the assassin of JFK? I most definately think so. It is the safest conclusion in light of all the facts.

Maybe you should just narrow it down to the group, leaving Greer in (after all, he did drive the Ambulance to Bethesda as well); and letting the reader make a determination.

Good point! I did not know that Greer drove the ambulance to Bethesda. Thanks,

But the reader will never come to a determination on his own. A position must be taken, right or wrong, and then attacked with facts. If incorrect then the position must be changed if the author is honest. I have not yet found any facts that would contradict that a shot was fired from the front---point blank evidenced by the flame on JFK's head---that would indicate anyone other than Greer could have done the shooting. There is a button on my site (Assassin Greer) that explains this quite well if you have not seen it.

Further, I believe that William Cooper was right in fingering Robert Groden as a agent provocatur, Groden denying that the driver did the shooting. Groden is to keep the parlor game alive.

Lastly- MC Piper's book references Gary Wean's book/research (Wean died recently) and Wean's work is tight- Piper's still off base, and since I like you, I thought that I'd return the favor to let you know what the word on the street is, from people who are into these pieces of history.

What is Wean's position on the fatal shot? Piper has referenced many accurate sources evidencing much work went into his FJ. But yes, to claim that the Zionists killed JFK evidenced by Rabin's presence in Dallas is, I believe, a deliberate lie on his part. He knows too much necessitating a conclusion that a much bigger power was behind the assassination and cover-up. The Gentiles are the head; the Jews are the tail as long as Jerusalem is "trodden down by the Gentiles" (Luke 24:21-27).

Title: Judge: Suit against Vatican can proceed

ArchAngel - June 10, 2006 02:54 AM (GMT)

A federal judge ruled Wednesday that a sex abuse lawsuit against the Vatican can move forward with its claim that the Holy See bears responsibility for a priest who was transferred from city to city even though he was known to be a molester.

U.S. District Judge Michael Mosman said in his decision that there are exceptions to the Foreign Sovereign Immunity Act, under which the Vatican is typically immune from the jurisdiction of U.S. courts.

Rejecting the Vatican's bid to dismiss the case, Mosman ruled that there was enough of a connection between the Vatican and the priest, who died in 1992, for him to be considered a Vatican employee under Oregon law.

It's an open secret, it seems, that there's a game of Musical Dioceses going on. Priest gets accused of molestation, send him to another area, repeat.

This mostly stems from the priests not being allowed to marry. The RCC makes celibacy a requirement (as in not getting married) and I think (if I remember right) initially it was because of nepotism.

Very few people can remain celibate--if they wish to do so and can do it, they should do it. But they're a minority.

CRAIG-OXLEY - June 10, 2006 08:55 PM (GMT)

The reason priests aren't to marry is so they have complete devotion to the faith and church. If they were married etc then the female would usually have power over them and therefore they are made to stay well away from women.

Mel Gibson Slams 'Da Vinci Code'

Newsmax | May 22 2006

http://www.newsmax.com/scripts/printer_fri...4716.shtml?s=ic

Catholic actor Mel Gibson has slammed "The Da Vinci Code" book and movie for attacking the beliefs that he holds so sacred, World Entertainment Network reported.

But "The Passion of the Christ" star has been outraged with the thriller's controversial plot concerning Jesus Christ and Mary Magdalene.

Gibson tells, "What worries me is that people will take this as fact.

"I'm not angry, per se, that it refutes everything I hold sacred, the foundations of my beliefs. The Da Vinci Code is an admitted work of fiction but it cleverly weaves fact into maverick theories in a way that will appear plausible to some."

The angry star was actually the first choice of Dr. Robert Lomas (the intellectual who inspired the Robert Langdon character) to play him. Tom Hanks plays Langdon in the film.

Lomas says, "In an ideal world I'd quite like to have been played by Mel Gibson."

Alexandra - May 23, 2006 01:27 AM (GMT)

Remember that "Last Temptation of Christ" hoopla about 20 years ago? There was PLENTY of outrage over that--Jesus having sex with Mary Magdalene didn't sit right with a lot of Christians (it sure doesn't with this one).

There just doesn't seem to be the outrage anymore.

Funny thing is, the Da Vinci Code is almost an offshoot of Last Temptation....

Hagbard Celine - June 7, 2006 03:03 AM (GMT)

I went to see it last week and, sorry, but I really really liked it.

The film is 2 1/2 hours long, grueling you might think, but no; it flew by for me. This film is far better than the book. It takes the themes and ideas of the book and projects them with far far more depth and style. I found the book lacking in feeling; a neat idea, but written far too blandly and prosaically. The style of the movie is much more poetic and powerful. The acting was brilliant. Although Langdon is the pivot, he's not meant to be the source of the story's dynamicism. That came from the others. Ian McKellan was great as Leigh Teabing, and I found him a lot easier to understand in the movie than the book. In the book, his change of sides totally befuddled me. Silas the mad monk was perfectly goulish and dark. Sophie Neveu's actress, a Jeanne Tripplehorn look-alike, seemed to be a bit out of her depth and didn't come across so good, but not enough to spoil it.

The climax of the story at Rosslyn was superb! It brimmed over with intrigue, power and poignance. The last scene when Langdon finally deduces the location of Mary Magdalene's tomb is a flop in the book, but the film-makers took that scene and brought it to life with grace and wonder. The score is fantastic as well; I'm going to get the CD.

Hagbard Celine - June 7, 2006 03:08 AM (GMT)

I've read the book that inspired it too: "Holy Blood- Holy Grail" which is also worth a read. I don't think it's disinfo. It sounds strangely like a combination of "They're on to something, but they're no quite on the right track" if you know what I mean.

I thought it was crazy of Baigent and Leigh to sue Dan Brown for nicking their idea. "HB-HG" is a historical textbook not a piece of fiction like "DVC". There is no copyright on history. I might want to write an imaginary story set on one of Lord Nelson's ships; therefore I'd read a biography of Lord Nelson as research. Then the writer of the biography could sue me for using the historical facts he related in his book and putting them into my own book! Nuts!

JagDRS - June 7, 2006 04:50 AM (GMT)

Just curious, when you say "...really liked it", do you mean from the perspective of having been entertained, or do you mean you came away from the movie feeling as though you had been genuinely informed?

CRAIG-OXLEY - June 7, 2006 08:58 PM (GMT)

The only truth to this bloodlines information is yes theres specific bloodlines in positons of power and control. The false and disinformation is that they have links to Jesus. Now even if I believed in Jesus as a persion, oops lesus then I still wouldn't believe these people one bit. Now when you consider that lesus is really the SUN (sorry protestants) then how can you possibly have a bloodline directly decended from the SUN? The other objective of this pathetic movie is to again promote BAAL and of course get more interest into the Secret Societies. This is one of the reasons they allow us the partial truths from disinformation agents like Alex Jones. Just look at the evidence of the Opus Dei new members since Temporal Coadjutor Dan Brown released his book. For godsake Opus Dei are using this book in order to RECRUIT and doing very well.

Alexandra - June 8, 2006 01:35 AM (GMT)

Today my husband said that he'd been hearing that the Catholic "church" was against the Da Vinci Code. I said that's just all put on. They lie through their teeth...anything goes for Mother Church for those guys!

Menses - June 8, 2006 07:09 PM (GMT)

Haven't seen the movie but I suppose I will at some point down the line. It concerns me greatly that there are 10 year olds who will now grow up believing in a Jesus who had children. When they use DNA and so called archeological evidence to pull off this deception, these children will be of age and be more susceptible to the hoax. What a deadly game parents are playing when they dont educate their children on these kinds of things. I am not Christian but have quite a few relatives who are and as devout as they are, given their lack of knowledge on Sun worship, and their devout belief in a literal christ, as opposed to the spiritual one that Marcion & Pauls early letters taught, I fear for them in the future. They say Satan comes to you as the thing you most desire. So if blonde hair and blue eyes is what Christians want, it is exactly what they are going to get. Flesh indeed, but Cains spirit will be in him...How many will notice?

PS..Opus dei moved into brand new Manhattan digs back in 2004 I believe. For a group that is supposedly being "persecuted" they seem to be doing quite well for themselves.

Chris - June 8, 2006 11:41 PM (GMT)

I really have no idea about the particulars of Jesus the man, whether he lived 2,000 years ago or 30,000. I very much doubt he was called Jesus and all that, I pretty much doubt the whole story and I do like the whole sun symbolism stuff as well. But I believe that a long time ago someone was crucified and then they were resurrected and it was a pivotal moment in our history. I am not a Christian or anything but I've had so many dreams and visions on the crucifixion and seeing people stigmata and even having it happen to myself (in my dreams) so I really do believe that something happened to spur off all these legends. Even if these legends are symbolic of something else, I think that it is engrained into people for some reason.

Probably more the former than the latter, but I think it is a bit informing. As I said, this whole idea is scratching at the surface of something really important.

Well, despite their initial protests, I'm sure they've come to realize that "DVC" actually portrays them as quite glamorous, furtive and exciting; something of a compliment really.

Archbishop Edwin O'Brien of the Archdiocese for the Armed Forces O'Brien is Military Vicar of the Armed Forces today during this present-day Papal crusade in the Middle East. Francis Cardinal Spellman held this same title during his crusade in Vietnam against the anti-Jesuit Buddhists.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Roman_Catholi...litary_Services

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Edwin_Frederick_O%27Brien

The Archdiocese for the Military Services and the Roman Catholic chaplaincy has always been controlled by the Jesuits. Its history is proof of that. Here is some interesting info.

According to <http://www.milarch.org/history/index.html> under the heading The Birth of Modern Nations

"As feudalism waned and nationalism developed, standing armies became a phenomenon of society. Duke Alexander Farnese, deputy of the Hapsburg Emperor for the Low Countries, is usually credited with developing a juridically established military chaplaincy.

Concerned about the barbarism of his troops, and motivated by his Catholic piety, Farnese introduced various religious observances for his men and incorporated the clergy into the organizational structure of his army. How this was done canonically is unclear due to lack of historical documents. But it seems the Pope appointed an Apostolic Legate for the Hapsburg armies in the Low Countries who, in turn, had his vicar-general function as chief of chaplains.

Thus, something similar to a military vicariate was formed. The chaplains came from both secular and religious clergy, having been given permission from their ecclesiastical superiors. The Jesuits, in particular, took on this apostolate, and in 1587, Farnese set up a Missio Castrensis, a company of twenty-four Jesuits—priests and brothers—who operated under detailed instructions, and were attached to individual regiments."

The American Revolution

The Continental Congress copied the British custom of having military chaplains, as well as the precedent of earlier colonial governors who appointed chaplains to their militia. On 29 July 1775, the Congress authorized chaplains to be included in the army with the pay of a captain. On 30 April 1779, John Paul Jones asked for a Catholic priest to serve aboard the Bon Homme Richard, especially in consideration of the French sailors abroad, but nothing came of the request. While Catholics fought together with their fellow colonists for independence, no priests formed a part of the chaplaincy for a variety of reasons.

There were only twenty priests in all within the Thirteen Colonies (all former Jesuits, after the suppression of their Order in 1773) serving perhaps 20,000 Catholics out of a total population of over two million. Furthermore, there was a great deal of anti-Catholic bias in the colonies stemming from England's religious strife.

... One priest, Father Louis Lotbiniere, is listed as a chaplain of the Continental Army, but he was a French Canadian appointed by [Freemason] General Benedict Arnold for a regiment of Canadian volunteers.

Early United States-War of 1812

The first Catholic priest to serve as a Navy officer was Father Adam Marshall, SJ. He served on the North Carolina from 22 December 1824 until his death on board the ship on 20 September 1825. He had the position of "schoolmaster" but acted as chaplain to the Catholic sailors. He is generally acknowledged as the first priest commissioned to serve in the armed forces of the United States.

NNR: This Jesuit publicly supported the U.S. but his Order secretly backed their British Empire and King George III attempting to enslave the young American nation.

The Mexican War

In 1846, [Freemason] President Polk was concerned that the struggle with Mexico was being perceived on both sides as a sort of anti-Catholic crusade. So he was anxious to commission Catholic priests as army chaplains. Bishop Hughes of New York responded to a request of President Polk and talked to the Superior of the Jesuits, with the result that two Jesuits, Father John McElroy and Father Anthony Rey, were released from their assignments in Washington to serve with General Zachary Taylor's troops.

Father Rey was killed in Mexico during the war; Father McElroy served one year and returned east and, in 1863, founded [Jesuit] Boston College. It seems clear that the two priests were not appointed as regular army chaplains but served as civilian government employees. President Polk also asked for a priest to serve with the Navy, but Bishop Hughes did not have a man available to send. No priest would be a Navy chaplain officially until 1888.

As forts were being set up in the westward expansion of the nation, chaplains were selected by each individual post. Often, the chief consideration was that the man be a schoolteacher, with the result that chaplains were not necessarily ministers, and sometimes quite unfit for any spiritual role. This situation led to the decision that only those chaplains would be accepted who got the recommendation of the highest authority of their denomination.

In the years just before the Civil War, records of the War Department indicate that among post chaplains in western forts, chosen by local authorities at the post, were at least three Catholic priests: Father Ignacio Ramirez at Fort Montgomery, California from 1850 to 1852; Father Michael Sheehan at Fort Belknap, Texas, from 1855 to 1859; and Father Peter DeSmet, SJ, in Utah in 1858.

The Archdiocese for the Military Services is Jesuit-controlled to this day. Archbishop O' Brien was not trained by Jesuits but he was ordained as a priest of the Archdiocese of New York therefore he is answerable to the NY Archbishop Edward Cardinal Egan. Two of the three auxiliary bishops Kaising and Estabrook of the Archdiocese for the Military Services are Jesuit-trained.

I've send a message to the Jew-baiting WINGTV circle proving that the US had a central role in 9/11, while Israel's role was probably secondary. I haven't seen any evidence that Israel carried out all of 9/11 period. Also, Israel was created by American and European interests. Here is Lisa's response:

Is there some reason you presume you're important enough for us to talk about you at all? What 'truth" about us do you "think" you know? Kind of "aggressive.."

This is mildly amusing to me, "Timothy".

Israel does have the power to control the people behind the actions on your "list" below. Period.

Thanks for your feedback.

Wierd, I tell you:

Here's my word back to Lisa:

These are my last words to you then. I really could care less if I'm considered important to you. I just want to let you know that half-truths and bigotry will result in refutations from people like me. That's all. oh yeah, your pal Michael Collins Piper got refuted by me, people in the Unhived Mind forum are here with great information, and I'm more intelligent than ever. I find it interesting that you rightfully expose evil Masonic Labor Zionists in the world (whom Barry Chamish exposes), yet won't see the Knight of Malta control in our intelligence agencies and corporations. For example, Knight of Malta Alexander Haig is a leading influence in COSCO, the Jesuit Georgetown university trained Bill Clinton and numerous world leaders, Knight of Malta Lord Guthrie is a director of N.M. Rothschild & Sons, and other world leaders. I really don't find humor in what I believe in. I find sadness in what you believe. It's really get boring for you guys to blame Israel for everything under the sun, yet omitting the Muslim persecutions of Christians and the Muslim radical/Nazi connection. Also, I don't agree with this war on terror or oppressing Palestinians either, so I'm not a radical supporter of the government of Israel. I support Israel's right to exist, yet not any evil policies that the government of Israel may have done. There's a difference.

I guess believing the lie that Israel is to be blame for all of us problems is WINGTV's forte. Here's Lisa's other response to me:

"Timothy",

If you're bored with what we have to say, you always have the option of listening to FOX News and reading the NY Times...

Again, thanks for the feedback and keep searching for the truth.

Perhaps someday you'll find it.

After sitting and studying this Michael Piper person I found him to be extremely arrogant, rude and ignorant. He has no idea of real history unlike Eric Phelps! I tell you what he reminded me of and thats a so-called educated guy who now wears blinkers because of his education. The debate which Eric Phelps won in mine and others eyes reminded me of a program I saw where a big wig in the Cancer Research U.K group just laughed off the testing/idea of dogs finding Cancers better than machines and pre-cancer etc. This guy was extremely arrogant, ignorant, rude and cocky just like Piper. Did we hear insults from Eric Phelps to Piper? No!

TruthSeeker24 - June 8, 2006 03:08 PM (GMT)

I agree. Eric was more meek than Piper. Eric presented dates, names, organizations, and people galore. Michael Collins Piper showed little dates, did nothing to refute the Jesuit/Abraham Lincoln assassination link and constantly talked about the Rothschilds plus the JFK assassination when Knights of Malta were in the JFK cover up and one Knight is part of N.M. Rothschild & Sons. That's proof there that many Knights of Malta and Freemasons are the real bankers. I thought about WINGTV for a while. Not only do they blame Israel for almost everything wrong in the world and lie and call the Holocaust a Holofoax when both Jews and non-Jews died in it (even if the Jewish deaths were hyped up). Also, their logo looks similar to the Egyptian sun god of Ra and they are rumored to snitch to the FBI. I say rumored since it's rumored. Piper omits and denies the Vatican/Jesuit connection to world events for some reason.

According to Researcher Jared Israel, Vatican And Hitler Worked Together

Although the Vatican openly claims Nazism was the antithesis of the Catholic Church, strong evidence claims it was nothing but double talk. Most Italians are wise to the Vatican's lying ways, saying La vita e' una fregatura. But sadly most Americans remain in the dark due to infiltrated media.

7 Jun 2006

By Greg Szymanski

From <http://www.arcticbeacon.com/7-June-2006a.html>

The hypocrisy and outright lies coming from the Vatican are enough to make you want to spit on St. Peter's Square while saying in Italian "La vita e' una fregatura!"

The English translation and real meaning of these words cannot be made literally, as it takes an understanding of the Italian culture to fully comprehend the true meaning. It really means a man's life is literally stolen right before his very eyes by the deceit of the rich and powerful.

In other words, it's a way of saying don't believe a word coming out of the halls of power, including Rome and Washington. It's a way of acknowledging, the common man is wise to the dirty tricks of the elite even if it appears there is nothing that can be done about it.

Although the Italians have fallen to Illuminati and Vatican double talk, at least most of the commoners know the truth as more than 60 per cent of the money earned in Italy remains under the table in an outward sign of defiance.

But here in America it's a different story, most people blindly following the government's lead, following the lead of a corrupted U.S. government firmly in the pocket of the Vatican and without question taking its Illuminati marching orders from Rome.

And to fully understand how Americans are being duped requires a thorough reading of the Bible as well as thorough look at history. Although too vast a subject to cover completely in this short article, the only way to defeat a gigantic beast like the Vatican is to devour it one small bite at a time, of course, devouring it before it devours you.

With that in mind, it is best to look at an article provided by Jared Israel posted April 22, 2005, entitled Did the Catholic Church help German Nazism? The article is a must read, especially for people who espouse solely to the proposition that Zionism is at the root of the New World Order.

Although the Vatican openly claims Nazism was the antithesis of the Catholic Church, according to Israel's article evidence shows that:

A) The Catholic Church hierarchy - especially Eugenio Pacelli, before and after he became Pope Pius XII - aided the Nazis. Indeed, Pacelli and the Church played a central role in making Hitler the dictator of Germany.

B) The Catholic Church was active in Nazi movements outside Germany, especially in the Baltic region and in the Balkans, where the Church helped run the Nazi puppet State of Croatia. After the war, the Vatican sheltered Croatian Nazi war criminals.

C) Although at Yad Vashem, Pope John Paul II described the Nazis as having "a Godless ideology," this is not how the Nazis presented themselves or how the Catholic Church described the Nazis when they were in power.

The German Catholic Church's Centre Party (Zentrum) did clash with the Nazis in the 1920s, but as Hitler wrote (see quote below) their quarrel was over politics, not Catholic religious teachings, let alone belief in god. I can find no record from the period of Nazi rule of the Catholic Church attacking the Nazis as atheists, perhaps because they weren't. The Nazis themselves claimed they were fighting against atheism, specifically Bolshevik atheism, which they charged was a Jewish-created movement. In attacking the Jews, the Nazis routinely employed Christian symbolism and traditional Christian antisemitic arguments, with which Europeans were familiar.

On 23 March 1933, the Nazi government put forward the Enabling act, which would allow Hitler to create new laws without parliamentary approval. This was after the Nazi-staged Reichstag fire; after the banning of the huge Communist party and subsequent arrest of thousands of communists and other anti-Nazis; and amidst a campaign of violent antisemitism. To become law, the Enabling act needed a 2/3 parliamentary vote.

Before the vote, Hitler addressed the Reichstag (parliament) saying:

"While the Government is determined to carry through the political and moral purging of our public life, it is creating and insuring prerequisites for a truly religious life. The Government sees in both [Catholic and Protestant] Christian confessions the most important factors for the maintenance of our folkdom. It will respect agreements concluded between them and the States. However, it respects that its work will meet with a similar appreciation. The Government will treat all other denominations with equal objective justice. It can never condone, though, that belonging to a certain denomination or to a certain race might be regarded as a license to commit or tolerate crimes. The Government will devote its care to the sincere living together of Church and State." (My emphasis - Jared Israel)--- <http://tinyurl.com/g8gh3>

The Social Democrats fiercely opposed the Enabling act. Hitler needed a 2/3 majority, so the balance lay with Zentrum, the Catholic Center Party. Zentrum leader Monsignor Ludwig Kaas, a close friend and advisor to Eugenio Pacelli, the future Pope Pius XII, addressed the Reichstag. Far from attacking the Enabling act, or disputing Hitler's claim that Nazism was based on Christianity, Kaas called for a 'yes' vote. The Zentrum faction did vote 'yes,' and the act became law. According to National Catholic Reporter correspondent John Allen, a liberal Catholic and student of Vatican history (he has written a biography of Joseph Ratzinger):

In order to fully understand the double talk coming out Rome before, during and after World War II, the following article and photo montage are provided by Israel who encourages readers to pass on the link so others can absorb portions of history purposefully kept from Americans.

According to Israel, "The Pictures Accuse: The Catholic Church and Nazism in Germany and Croatia."

AVBibleBeliever - June 6, 2006 09:36 PM (GMT)

The Black Pope's United Nations: Jesuit Control of the UN through their Council on Foreign Relations

The Jesuits through the Archbishop of New York created the Council on Foreign Relations in 1921. The Jesuits through their First World War punished Protestant Germany through their tool apostate Presbyterian Woodrow Wilson and his Fourteen Points. they appeared to want to establish world governance through League of Nations but fomented the rest of their Second Thirty Years War bringing their Roman Catholic Freemason military dictator Adolf Hitler to power to further punish Germany for her pro-Protestant Reformation history and its champion Martin Luther. Afterwards they set up their Luciferian United Nations secretly controlled by the Black Pope. Without the CFR there would be no United Nations. The majority of the U.S. delegation who signed the UN charter were CFR members. The land on which the UN building stands is owned by the Masonic Illuminist Rockefeller.

The oil canvas painting found in the room where the UN Security Council meets shows the Jesuit control of the organization.

http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/comm...ouncil_2005.jpg

According to <http://www.un.org/cyberschoolbus/untour/subsec.htm>

"A central feature of the Security Council Chamber is the oil canvas mural painted by the Norwegian artist Per Krogh. It depicts a [Masonic] phoenix rising from its ashes, as a symbol of the world being rebuilt after the Second World War. Above the dark sinister colours at the bottom different images in bright colours symbolizing the hope for a better future are depicted. Equality is symbolized by a group of people weighing out grain for all to share." [Universal equality and Socialist-Communism is Jesuit-the prime example is the Paraguayan Reductions]

"Let Us Beat Our Swords Into Plowshares"

"Bronze sculpture created by Soviet artist Evgeny Vuchetich and presented to the United Nations in December 1959 by the [Communist] Government of the USSR. The sculpture depicts the figure of a man holding a hammer aloft in one hand, and a sword in the other, which he is making into a ploughshare. It is meant to symbolize man's desire to put an end to war and to convert the means of destruction into creative tools for the benefit of mankind. The sculpture is located in the North Garden of UN Headquarters.

The UN as its master Satan twists and subtracts from the scriptures omitting the first part of Isaiah 2:4 putting it in the wrong context.

Isaiah 2:4 And he shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people: and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.

The Lord Jesus Christ must return and he shall judge among the nations and shall rebuke many people before "they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." The UN cannot bring world peace and never will.

Confession No. 7: Researcher from Philippines Provides A Look At Satanic Worshipping In Vatican And Castle Of Darkness In Belgium

According to Bobby G. Limeta, who has researched the Jesuits for 16 years, they seem to "have their dirty hands in everything."

4 Jun 2006

By Greg Szymanski

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/4-June-2006.html>

A Brushy Creek Sunday Confession reader said the chain of command in America reads as follows

Bonesman George W. Bush taking orders from his immediate master CFR Dick Cheney, whose master is Bonesman George H. W. Bush, whose master is Edward Cardinal Egan, whose master is Pope Benedict XVI, whose master is Jesuit Superior General Peter-Hans Kolvenbach---whose master is the Devil.

So this takes us without hesitation right to our subject of discussion in this week's Sunday Confession No. 7 -- satanic worshipping in the "House that Lucifer Built," being the controlled House of the Jesuit Order, the Vatican.

A subject many people shun or are frightened to tackle, the veil of suppression is lifted this week since, according to a growing number of researchers, the Jesuit Order is at the helm of the New World Order, attempting as we speak to destroy America's sovereignty and very existence.

As written in the Arctic Beacon based on eye-witness testimony from an Italian victim, the underground tombs and catacombs of the Vatican provide a perfect cover for evil. Here is what one eye witness described:

While Mass is being said in the Sistine Chapel and tourists are being shown the works of Michelangelo, deep within the bowels of the Vatican sits a large, circular room with 13 separate chambers, each leading to a distinct catacomb.

When a mummified body is placed in front of each doorway, a young child is then brutally sacrificed with a long, golden knife during what is said to be a secret induction ceremony for new members of the Illuminati, better known as the New World Order.

Most people can't imagine such a scene and immediately attack the credibility of the eye-witness and the messenger. In this case, the eye-witness who described the above scene in the bowels of the Vatican can no longer be attacked since she jumped or was pushed to death, falling to cobblestones on St. Peter's Square in the early morning hours in the 1980's.

But her memories and story lives on despite her untimely death as this week researcher and historian Bobby G. Limeta, a freedom fighter from the Philippines, provides two attached PDF files concerning the Jesuit Order and satanic rituals in the Vatican, as well as rituals in the Castle of Darkness in Muno, Belgium.

"I humbly wish to attached herewith Acrobat PDF File (security locked-code protected) concerning the Jesuit Order satanic rituals inside the Vatican," said Limeta, adding that the evil hand of the Jesuits are also destroying his country, the Philippines. "You'll be surprised that Roman Catholic hierarchy are practicing satanic rituals inside the Vatican, the late Pope John Paul II and Pope Benedict XIV (former Cardinal Ratzinger) knew that these satanism is happening inside the Vatican.

"It was revealed by the late Jesuit priest Fr. Malachi Martin. Fr. Martin did not recant anything he wrote in his authored book. I also humbly wish to attached herewith Acrobat PDF File (security locked-code protected) concerning the Jesuit Order's Satanic Rituals inside the Castle of Darkness in Muno, Belgium.

"You'll also surprise that the European Union (EU) members are members of the Illuminati. The Illuminati is a secret society founded by a Jesuit named Adam Weishaupt. The Illuminati is controlled by the Jesuits and the Jesuits are believed to be Illuminati.

"You'll also be surprised that EU is suppressing any information pertaining to Marc Dutroux being associated with the satanic-cult rituals. But the Al-Jazeera News in the Middle East did mention satanism.

Here are the two PDF files provided by Limeta on a taboo subject that is typically suppressed:

JESUIT ORDER - Satanic Ritual Inside Vatican.pdf

JESUIT ORDER - Satanic Ritual Castle Of Darkness.pdf

In an effort to connect the dots in America, Limeta provides the following eye-witness testimony of what is going on behind the scenes in the Philippines, as he presently is seeking entrance into New Zealand for protection against the Jesuits:

"I'm permanently residing in the Philippines and we are thousands of miles away from each other. All I can do, is to provide you authenticated news and up-dates concerning Jesuit operations in the Philippines. God knows as my faithful witness that our country is a Jesuit Republic of the Philippines like Jesuit Republic of South America "Reductions of Paraguay" like that.

"Our government officials and politicians nor military, police, political analysts, elite and rich families and businessmen will quarrel everyday due to political crisis and social agitations and rebellions without seeing the true culprits behind or even the shadows or footprint of the Jesuits.

"Simply, they don't know the real story of the Jesuits. Since 1990 when I become a true Christian, I read the Bible and began seriously looking for the real trouble makers around the world. I started to read world history, buying countless reference books and articles as part of my investment to nourish my spiritual being and mind.

"You'll be surprised my habit every Saturday and Sunday was a continuous 20-hours of reading, analyzing and re-reading for understanding and not for pleasure. For a period of 16-years, I poured my attention, dedication, focus and entire financial resources just to find out the truth. I was stunned and it almost toppled me out of my chair when I finally saw the faces of the Jesuits as being the real problem.

"Throughout 16 years of research, I found whenever events and tragedies occurred, the Jesuits were always there. Soon, I may migrate and live permanently in so called God's territory of New Zealand.

"The New Zealand government already shown their great interest to accept me and live in their country when I was interviewed last year. In fact, the New Zealand immigration personnel told me to leave my country. There, however, I will attack the Jesuits blow by blow."

Tackling the Tough Topics

FACING AMERICANS TODAY!

Issue # 78 // May 5, 2006 // Editor: Darryl Eberhart

THE "ALTERNATIVE MEDIA"

(Is a Segment of It Also CONTROLLED?)

((NOTE: All emphasis throughout this newsletter, unless otherwise noted, is by the editor of "Tackling the Tough Topics (TTT)". Some issues of my TTT newsletters and my "Examining the Tough Issues (ETI)" newsletters can be read on the following three Internet web sites:

www.tacklingthetoughtopics.net, www.calltodecision.com, & www.libertytothecaptives.net. (The last site has a link to the first site.))

WARNING: This issue of the TTT newsletter may seriously "disturb" some folks' "comfort zones". However, TRUTH is far more important than any of our "comfort zones".

DEDICATION: This issue of the TTT newsletter is dedicated to all those who are exposing evil, corruption, and tyranny wherever and whenever they occur – whether in the government or in the "Church" (to include any Church's false doctrines)! (Please see Ephesians 5:11.)

IMPORTANT NOTE #1: The order of the “Knights of Malta” is a Roman Catholic military order that has its headquarters with the Jesuit Superior General [i.e., the “Black Pope”] in Rome. The Jesuit Superior General controls the Knights of Malta, his own order [i.e., the “Society of Jesus” – the Jesuits – “the Company”], the top levels of Freemasonry, and, many would argue, the Papacy itself (i.e., the “White Pope” and the top levels of the Vatican State).

IMPORTANT NOTE #2: As I have mentioned in many of my recent newsletters, I am not anti-Catholic as far as individual Roman Catholics go; however, I am against the secret societies (such as the Jesuit Order and P2 Masonry) that control the Roman Catholic Church, and use it from time to time for Inquisition and religious genocide. The hierarchical system of the Roman Catholic Church is used quite efficiently by secret societies to not only keep over one billion Catholics in line, but also to gather intelligence, to infiltrate governments (through its Knights of Malta, “temporal coadjutors”, etc.), to infiltrate non-Catholic Christian denominations, etc.

DEFINITIONS (hopefully listed alphabetically):

((NOTE: Two additional definitions are listed in Section IV of this newsletter.))

“Black Pope” (per Darryl Eberhart, Editor of TTT): An Italian nickname for the Jesuit Superior General – the head of the “Society of Jesus” (i.e., the Jesuit Order). He is the real power “behind the throne” of the Papacy; he controls the Knights of Malta and highest levels of Freemasonry.

“Coadjutor” (per Webster’s 1828 American Dictionary of the English Language): “1. One who aids another; an assistant; a fellow-helper; an associate in operation. 2. In the canon law: one who is empowered or appointed to perform the duties of another.”

“Front” (per Webster’s New World Dictionary): (Meaning #15): “A person or group used to cover or obscure the activity or objectives of another controlling person or group.”

“Inquisition” (per Webster’s 1828 American Dictionary of the English Language): (Meaning #4): “In some Catholic countries, a court or tribunal established for the examination and punishment of ‘heretics’. This court was established in the 12th century by ‘father’ Dominic, who was charged by Pope Innocent III with orders to excite [Roman] Catholic princes [i.e., rulers] and people to extirpate [i.e., destroy completely] ‘heretics’.”

“Jesuit of the ‘short robe’” (per Darryl Eberhart, Editor of TTT): This is a French nickname for a “[Jesuit] temporal coadjutor”. (Please see below definition.)

“[Jesuit] Temporal Coadjutor” (per Darryl Eberhart, Editor of TTT): Someone who performs service or duties for the Jesuit Order, but who is not a Jesuit priest. This person may be of any race, religion, or sex.

“Knights of Malta” (per Darryl Eberhart, Editor of TTT): Their official title is the “Sovereign Military Order of Malta” (SMOM). This Roman Catholic military order is headquartered in Rome with the Jesuit Order, and is controlled by the Jesuit Superior General – the Black Pope.

((Ed. Note: For a much-expanded “definition” of this Order, please see pages 5-7 of my TTT #74, entitled “The Real Controllers of the USA”, which should still be posted on the first two web sites listed at the beginning of this newsletter.))

“Red Herring” (per Webster’s New World Dictionary): (Meaning #2): “Something used to divert attention from the basic issue.”

“Scapegoat” (per Webster’s New World Dictionary): (Meaning #2): “A person, group, or thing upon whom the blame for the mistakes or crimes of others is thrust.”

“Smoke screen” (per Webster’s New World Dictionary): (Meaning #2): “Anything said or done to conceal or mislead.”

“Temporal” (per Webster’s 1828 American Dictionary of the English Language): “1. Pertaining to this life or this world or the body only; secular... 2. Measured or limited by time...”

“The Jews” (per a certain segment within both the patriot movement and the “alternative media”): “The group of power brokers [allegedly] running the world, the USA, and the New World Order – made up of Zionists, Jewish neo-conservatives in the current U.S. Administration, Israel, the Mossad, Jewish Masons, and Jewish bankers.” (Editor of TTT believes that the evidence shows clearly that this term “the Jews”, when used in this context, is being used as a cover – as a front – to create a smokescreen – to throw out a “red herring” – so as to divert attention away from the real power brokers who are operating “behind the scenes”.)

((Ed. Note: For more information on the topic of who really runs the USA, please see my TTT #74, entitled “The Real Controllers of the USA”, which should still be posted on the first two web sites listed at the beginning of this newsletter.))

HERE ARE SOME RELEVANT QUOTES:

“Truth is violated by falsehood, but it is outraged by silence.”
Henri-Frederic Amiel (1821-1881; Swiss writer and philosopher)

“When freedom is at stake, silence is not golden – it is yellow [i.e., cowardly].”
Tom Anderson (Writer)

“...Piety requires us to honor truth above our friends.”

Aristotle (384-322 B.C.; Greek philosopher)

“Men and women become accomplices to those evils they fail to oppose.”

(Author unknown to this editor)

“Evil too often reigns by default – lack of opposition.”

John Alan Coey (1950-1975; American citizen killed-in-action while serving in the Rhodesian Light Infantry as a combat medic; a true Christian gentleman and soldier)

“It is easier to perceive error than to find truth, for the former lies on the surface and is easily seen, while the latter lies in the depth, where few are willing to search for it.”

Johann Wolfgang von Goethe (1749-1832; German poet and dramatist)

“For 300 years past the Church of Rome has striven by an unceasing torrent of false histories, pamphlets, and lectures to CONCEAL from the nation [i.e., Great Britain] and the world the true face of her terrible history before and during the Reformation.”

Albert Close (Author of the book Jesuit Plots from Elizabethan to Modern Times)

((Ed. Comments to the preceding quote:

(1) The very same thing has happened here in America, where many of our history textbooks and encyclopedias have been “cleansed” (i.e., revised and edited) by agents of the Vatican. Much of the historical “bad press” concerning the Vatican and its Jesuit Order has “disappeared”!

(2) I can understand the mainstream media participating in this massive cover-up of the dark pages of Vatican history, such as the Inquisition; Vatican condemnation of religious liberty and representative government; Vatican involvement in the assassination of President Abraham Lincoln; the Vatican Ratlines in World War II; the Vatican’s holocaust against Serb Orthodox Christians in Croatia in the 1940s; massive infiltration of top intelligence agencies by members of the Knights of Malta, etc. However, it is very difficult to accept the fact that a certain segment of the “alternative media” is ALSO participating in this massive cover-up.))

“There is no doubt that the American Catholic hierarchy has entered the political arena, and that it is becoming more and more aggressive in extending the frontiers of Catholic authority into the fields of medicine, education, and foreign policy... As we shall see in this book [Ed. Note: American Freedom and Catholic Power], the Catholic hierarchy in this country [i.e., the USA] has great power as a pressure group, and no editor, politician, publisher, merchant or motion-picture producer can express defiance openly – or publicize documented facts – without risking his future.” (1949; Quote was taken from his book American Freedom and Catholic Power.) – Paul Blanchard (Journalist and author)

((Ed. Comment to the preceding quote: Some folks allege that “the Jews” have near total control of America’s mainstream media and publishing; however, this is not true. A number of American Knights of Malta, such as William Randolph Hearst and Henry Robinson Luce, have been very big players in the publishing world. (Remember, the Knights of Malta is a Roman Catholic military order that is co-located with the Jesuit Order’s headquarters in Rome.) The questions that we must ask in this newsletter are these: Do powerful Knights of Malta, Knights of Columbus, Opus Dei, and other Jesuit agents (temporal coadjutors) control certain segments of the “alternative media”? Are they big financial supporters of certain segments within the “alternative media”, and thus have tremendous influence with those segments, asking them to “keep the heat off”, and divert attention away from, the nefarious activities of the Vatican, its Jesuits, and the powerful Knights of Malta? Surely, inquiring minds would like to know!))

“There is probably no important magazine or newspaper in the country [Ed. Note: the USA] that is not COMMUNIST-penetrated to some degree.”

Whittaker Chambers (1901-1961; American journalist; ex-member of the Communist Party of the United States)

((Ed. Comments to the preceding quote:

(1) The communists are merely “front men” for more powerful forces working “behind the scenes” – controlled by secret societies, such as the Jesuits and their powerful Knights of Malta.

(2) It is not just the mainstream media that is “controlled”: this editor believes that a segment of the “alternative media” is also “controlled” – at least to some degree.))

“Today they [i.e., the Jesuits] are stronger in the United States than they ever were in any of the countries of Europe which expelled them as a menace to the government.” (1912)

Jeremiah J. Crowley (Irishman; ex-priest in the Roman Catholic Church; author of the book Romanism: Menace to the Nation)

((Ed. Comment to the preceding quote: I am including this quote in this issue of the TTT newsletter because the Jesuit Order’s hierarchy, in control of its order’s members, Jesuit temporal coadjutors (i.e., “Jesuits of the short robe”), the Knights of Malta, high-level Knights of Columbus, and high-level Freemasons, members of Opus Dei, and other lackeys, has long been the master of INFILTRATION. Jesuits and their stooges have infiltrated not only the mainstream media, but also, this editor strongly believes, segments of the “alternative media”.))

“If your pastor [Ed. Note: or broadcast host] doesn’t have the courage to stand against Rome [i.e., the papal system with its Jesuits and Knights of Malta, Opus Dei, etc.], you need to make him aware of this information [i.e., the information contained in the book Smokescreens], and that it is his responsibility to make his people aware of it too.”

Jack T. Chick (Author; publisher)

((Ed. Comment: If indeed papal Knights [of Malta, of Columbus], members of Opus Dei, Jesuits, and Jesuit “temporal coadjutors” (i.e., “Jesuits of the short robe”) are controlling, or even having undue influence upon, certain segments of the “alternative media” here in America, then this needs to be exposed as quickly as possible.))

“If I profess with the loudest voice and clearest exposition every portion of the truth of God except precisely that point which the world and the devil are at that moment attacking, then I am not confessing [Jesus] Christ, however boldly I may be professing Him.”

Martin Luther (1483-1546; German theologian and religious reformer)

((Ed. Comments to the preceding quote:

(1) All TRUTH belongs to GOD. GOD loves TRUTH, and expects His followers to declare all TRUTH to a world deceived by millions of lies (and “historical omissions”).

(2) Anyone who claims to be a Christian MUST expose ALL evil, and not hold back on TRUTH that can save others’ lives – or, save a nation from destruction. (Please see Ephesians 5:11.) To withhold vital and important TRUTH from people who are deceived by lies and/or “historical omissions” for fear of offending some of them is a gross sin! This withholding of TRUTH might also be putting all Americans at much greater risk of losing our constitutional Republic!))

“And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them.”
Ephesians 5:11 (The Holy Bible)

I. INTRODUCTION

Most people in the “patriot movement” are aware of the fact that America’s mainstream media is massively controlled and regulated. But could a segment of the so-called “alternative media” ALSO be controlled? Might a segment of the “alternative media” be putting out disinformation and misinformation? Might a segment of the “alternative media” be throwing out “red herrings” to cover for the real power brokers operating (and hiding) “behind the scenes”? Might a segment of the “alternative media” be deliberately concentrating most of their efforts in areas such as the “high-tech” aspects of the New World Order, weather modification, Jewish Cabbalism, etc., in order to divert us from a much more important aspect of the New World Order, i.e., State and Church combining for genocide? Might a segment of the “alternative media” be “deflecting” call-ins to their broadcasts that try to address important aspects of history that point to the “real controllers”? Might a segment of the “alternative media” be carefully manipulating the direction of discussions on their broadcasts to exclude certain critical topics? I believe the answer to all those questions is: "It is quite likely!"

Obviously, there are some major differences of opinion within the "patriot movement". A fairly large segment within this movement believes that "the Jews" (i.e., the Jewish neo-conservatives, Israel, the Zionists, Jewish Masons, Jewish bankers, etc.) are running the world and the USA. Probably a much smaller segment within the movement believes that the Vatican and Jesuit Order (with help from its Knights of Malta, members of Opus Dei, and top levels of Freemasonry under the control of the "Black Pope") are the top players. Obviously, there is a "mix" of various groups near the top levels of the "New World Order"; however, one group historically dominates any movement – i.e., directs and controls the other groups. It is equally as obvious that both "the Jews" (as described in this paragraph) and the Vatican-Jesuits can't both be at the head of the New World Order. Thus, one of these two above-mentioned segments within the patriot movement is, for the most part, WRONG in their assessment of the "major threat" to our liberties.

Those who have read my recent TTT newsletters know on which side of this critical issue I stand. I believe that history – as well as their own words – clearly shows that the Vatican is the greatest threat to liberty that the world has seen over the past 1000 plus years – and the Jesuits the greatest threat to liberty for the past 400 plus years. For centuries kings bowed before popes – and were deposed by popes. Likewise, many monarchs who refused to "play ball" with the Vatican and its Jesuit Order over the past four centuries were assassinated by them!

This editor of TTT believes that it is quite likely that a certain segment within both the patriot movement and the "alternative media" is CONTROLLED, and feeds us misinformation and disinformation concerning the power and influence of "the Jews" while providing cover for the Papacy, the Jesuit Order, the Knights of Malta, Opus Dei, and other agents of the Vatican-Jesuits. (Certain alternative media broadcast hosts throw up a "force shield" the moment anyone calls in about the Vatican, Jesuits, etc., and quickly stifle any open discussion of those topics!)

By the way, I fully expect to have "ad hominem" attacks launched against me by some folks in the "alternative media" in retaliation for this issue of TTT. I fully expect to be accused of "Catholic bashing" (or, of being a "Zionist agent"); however, I most highly doubt that any of those doing so will address the facts that show tremendous Vatican-Jesuit-Knights of Malta-Opus Dei power and influence in the USA and in the world. The specialty of these people is to attack the "messenger" while largely, if not completely, ignoring the "message". Please see the beginning of Section IV for my "definitions" of "ad hominem" and "Catholic bashing".

In case anyone is wondering why I am writing so much about the Vatican, its Jesuits, Knights of Malta, etc., it is because I strongly feel that there is a high probability of a Vatican-orchestrated Holocaust, such as occurred in Croatia in the 1940s, occurring here in America in the near future. Indeed, history clearly documents numerous “joint” ventures by the Roman Catholic Church’s papal hierarchy and powerful nation-states in the arena of religious genocide! The Roman Catholic office of Inquisition STILL exists, albeit under the more benign name of the “Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith”. Could many Americans be facing a modern version of the Inquisition in the near future? Inquiring minds would surely like to know!

II. THE MAINSTREAM MEDIA

“Some of the biggest men in the U.S., in the field of commerce and manufacturing, are afraid of SOMEBODY, are afraid of SOMETHING. They know that there is a POWER somewhere so organized, so subtle, so watchful, so interlocked, so complete, so pervasive, that they had better NOT speak above their breath when they speak in condemnation of it.”

Woodrow Wilson (1856-1924; 28th President of the United States)

Almost everybody in the patriot movement knows that America’s mainstream media is tightly CONTROLLED. The mainstream media in America is probably the most controlled and manipulated media in the entire western world!

The “media” (i.e., the press) was supposed to be a “watchdog” to help guard America’s freedoms – to expose evil, corruption, and tyranny. The mainstream media in America fulfilled this role during the early years of our Republic’s existence. However, in the early 1900s several large American newspapers ran articles critical of the Rockefellers. Congressman Oscar Callaway placed the following statement in the Congressional Record in 1917:

“In March 1915, the J.P. Morgan interests [Ed. Note: controlled by the Rockefellers]... got together 12 men high up in the newspaper world and employed them to select the most influential newspapers in the U.S. and [a] sufficient number of them to CONTROL generally the policy of the daily press of the United States. These 12 men worked the problem out by selecting 179 newspapers, and then began, by an elimination process to retain only those necessary for the purpose of CONTROLLING. They found it was necessary to purchase CONTROL of 25 of the greatest [news] papers. The 25 [news] papers were agreed upon; emissaries were sent to purchase the policy, national and international, of these papers. An agreement was reached; the policy of the papers was bought, to be paid for by the month; an editor was furnished for each paper to properly SUPERVISE and EDIT information regarding the questions of preparedness, militarism, financial policies, and other things of national and international nature considered vital to the INTERESTS of the PURCHASERS... This policy also included the SUPPRESSION of everything in opposition to the wishes of the INTERESTS SERVED.”

Of course, as they say, the rest is “history”. America’s mainstream media was bought up and has been tightly controlled ever since! ((Editor of TTT wrote about this control of the mainstream media in several previous TTT newsletters, such as my TTT #20, entitled “The Controlled Media Stinks!”))

Thus the patriot movement has had to rely on the “alternative media” for a lot of the news that the mainstream media keeps from us Americans. But – could we be getting some misinformation and disinformation from a certain segment of the “alternative media”? And might a certain segment of the “alternative media” be holding back key information from us?

III. THE ALTERNATIVE MEDIA

((NOTE: Some information concerning the so-called “alternative media” – especially the likelihood that some of it is “controlled” – can be found in my previous TTT #77, entitled “The Conspiracy: Making It Appear Jewish”, dated: April 22, 2006.))

It certainly comes as no surprise to many of us that the “Establishment” controls the mainstream media. So why should it surprise us that the “Establishment” (i.e., the “real controllers” behind the scenes) is able to exercise a certain degree of control over, and influence with, the so-called “alternative media”? Do we really believe that the “Establishment” does not possess enough money to buy influence – and some degree of control – within the “alternative media”, or to plant some of their lackeys in it? Wouldn't it be much harder to believe that the “Establishment” has no control of, or influence with, certain segments of the “alternative media” than to believe that it does?

After all, we've been told by a number of broadcast hosts in the “alternative media” that the “Establishment” has infiltrated such organizations as the National Rifle Association – placing some of their own lackeys in key leadership positions within those organizations to “steer” them in the appropriate direction. Why then should we be surprised that the “Establishment” has also done the exact same thing with certain segments within the “alternative media”?

The facts are that there is a certain segment within both the “patriot movement” and the “alternative media” that is trying to get their listening (and/or reading) audience, friends, co-workers, etc., to focus on the following:

- (1) “The Jews” (i.e., the Jewish neo-conservatives, Israel, the Zionists, Jewish Masons, Jewish bankers, etc.) – that they are [allegedly] running the USA;
 - (2) “The [New World Order] Conspiracy” – that it is [allegedly] Jewish; and,
 - (3) The “mark of the beast”, high-tech aspects of the police state, national I.D., etc., to the exclusion of any discussion of the Vatican, Jesuits, Opus Dei, Knights of Malta, etc.
- ((NOTE: There is certainly nothing wrong with discussing any of those items listed in #3; however, when one concentrates almost totally in those areas to the complete, or near complete, EXCLUSION of any discussion of one of the most important players

[some would argue THE most important player] on the geopolitical, financial, and religious “chessboard”, i.e., the Vatican and its Jesuits, then something is very wrong – especially if they are claiming that they are “exposing” the New World Order!))

Why are so many of the broadcast hosts and writers within the so-called “alternative media” afraid to seriously tackle the topic of the Vatican and its Jesuits? Why do so many of them hesitate to even broach the topic of Vatican-sponsored genocide, the Inquisition, the crusades [some of which were against Christians], the infamous Vatican Ratlines used to help war criminals escape after World War II, the Vatican support of Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy, etc.? There could be a number of reasons for refusing to fully and openly discuss these topics, but I believe most of them fall into these following main categories:

- (1) Some individuals within the “alternative media” are actual Jesuit “temporal coadjutors” (persons performing service or duties for the Jesuit Order, but who are not Jesuit priests). ((They are in these media positions for the sole purpose of stymieing [i. e., impeding] any open discussion of the role of the Vatican, Jesuits, Opus Dei, Knights of Malta, etc., on the geopolitical, financial, and religious “chessboard”.)
- (2) Certain segments of the “alternative media” could simply be afraid of offending Roman Catholic listeners (or, readers) should they mention the pope, the Vatican, etc., in a “negative” manner. Maybe some of these folks feel that we must have “unity at any price” in the fight against the New World Order, and thus we can’t afford to “offend” American Roman Catholics.
- (3) Certain segments of the “alternative media” may fear the possible loss of financial support from Roman Catholic listeners (or, readers) should they courageously expose the Papacy, Vatican State, Jesuits, Knights of Malta, etc.
- (4) Certain segments of the “alternative media” may actually fear losing some of their radio stations – or being thrown off a major network – should they courageously expose the Papacy, Vatican State, Jesuits, Knights of Malta, etc. ((Two “alternative media” broadcast hosts basically admitted such to me during personal phone conversations that I had with them!))
- (5) Certain segments of the “alternative media” may simply be grossly ignorant about the tremendous power and influence of the Vatican, Jesuits, Knights of Malta, etc. ((This seems the least likely of reasons, since there is so much information available on this topic. Additionally, I have mailed a “ton” of material on these topics to many of the top broadcast hosts in the “alternative media”.)
- (6) Certain segments of the “alternative media” have been fed a whole lot of “misinformation” and “disinformation” by lackeys of the “real powers” behind the scenes. I know of at least one broadcast host who falls in this category.
- (7) Certain individuals within the “alternative media” may have even been threatened with harm should they dare to expose the Vatican, Jesuits, Knights of Malta, Opus Dei, and other Roman Catholic groups.

It may be one or more of any of the above that prevents certain elements within the “alternative media” from tackling the tough topics of the Roman Catholic Church’s propensity for religious genocide, Inquisition, and “holy” wars and crusades – and its Jesuit Order’s well-documented history of assassinating heads of State, and of fomenting wars and revolutions.

Dear Reader of this newsletter, history indeed does tend to frequently repeat itself. Knowing this, how in blazes can those in the “alternative media” who claim to be “exposing” the New World Order, IGNORE (and REFUSE to discuss) one of the most powerful players on the geopolitical, financial, and religious “chessboard”? (One can make a good argument that “the Vatican and its Jesuits” is THE TOP player on that “chessboard”.) Which of the above-listed reasons for not discussing this top player would apply to the broadcast hosts and other “alternative media” folks that you know?

And since history does indeed repeat itself, shouldn’t these below-listed topics be openly and fully discussed by those in the “alternative media” who claim to be exposing the New World Order – especially by the top “alternative media” broadcast hosts?

- The Vatican’s well-documented history of hating the Holy Bible (an appropriate topic since the Roman Catholic hierarchy for centuries put thousands to death for merely possessing a copy, and because our founding fathers incorporated into our Republican form of government many of the great principles concerning government that are found in the Holy Bible);
- The Vatican’s well-documented history of brutal torture, religious genocide, and assassination of heads of State ((an appropriate topic since top-level Roman Catholic prelates and a Fascist State (in Croatia) combined for a vicious religious genocide as recently as the 1940s, and because the office of Inquisition still exists, and because the Vatican still reserves to itself the “right” to use force whenever and wherever it deems such action appropriate));
- The meetings at Vienna, Austria (1814-15) and Verona, Italy (1822) where European monarchs, with the blessing and support of the Vatican, planned the destruction of America’s free institutions; and similar meeting of top Jesuits at Chieri, Italy (1825);
- Pope Pius IX’s condemnation of freedom of conscience and religious liberty in his “Syllabus of Errors” in 1864 – plus the anti-freedom comments of other top Roman Catholic prelates throughout history;
- The Vatican and Jesuit involvement in the assassination of President Abraham Lincoln in 1865;
- Vatican support to the Confederacy during the American Civil War of 1861-65, carried out in the hope of splitting the United States of America into two competing nations; and,
- Vatican involvement in fomenting both World War I and II, and its support of Nazi Germany, Fascist Italy, and other Fascist states in Europe during World War II.

IV. “AD HOMINEM” ATTACKS (to include “dirty” labels) & A CLASSIC EXAMPLE

Since I expect to get hit with some “ad hominem” attacks because I dared to suggest that a certain segment within the “alternative media” might be controlled, manipulated, or cowardly, it would be appropriate to list my “definitions” of “ad hominem” (attacks) and the “Catholic bashing” and “Anti-Catholic” ‘labels’ here at the beginning of this section:

“Ad hominem” (per Darryl Eberhart, Editor of TTT & ETI): “Attacking your ‘opponent’ (e. g., his character, background, past sins or indiscretions, associations, intelligence, scholarship, etc.) rather than honestly debating the topic or subject of discussion, writing, etc.” ((NOTE: This has frequently been the standard ‘tactic’ used by so-called ‘liberals’, ‘social engineers’, secret societies, cults, etc. – and the hierarchy of the Roman Catholic Church! It is the old “attack the messenger rather than the message”. Some folks call it “character assassination” .))

“Catholic bashing” or “Anti-Catholic” (per Darryl Eberhart, Editor of TTT & ETI): “Two ‘labels’ that, for the most part, are applied to any and all who dare to point out any of the following:

- (a.) Errors in Roman Catholic doctrine;
- (b.) The well-documented history of the Roman Catholic Church’s hierarchy (and in particular of the Roman Catholic Jesuit Order during the last four centuries) of fomenting and orchestrating revolutions and wars;
- (c.) The well-documented history of the Roman Catholic Church’s hierarchy (for many centuries) of suppressing the possession of, and the study of, the Holy Bible by the common people in their own native language;
- (d.) The well-documented history of the Roman Catholic Church’s hierarchy of torture, Inquisition, and ‘holy wars’ and ‘holy crusades’ against simple, Bible-believing Christians (such as the Albigenses and Waldenses);
- (e.) The well-documented history of the Roman Catholic Church’s hierarchy’s (and in particular, the Roman Catholic Jesuit Order in the last four centuries) involvement in planning and carrying out the assassination of heads of State (e.g., President Abraham Lincoln, King Henry III of France, King Henry IV of France, Czar Alexander I of Russia, Czar Alexander II of Russia, etc.);
- (f.) The well-documented history of the Roman Catholic Church’s hierarchy’s hatred of, and brutal persecution of, Jews, Protestants, and Orthodox Christians throughout the centuries (a most recent example being the Vatican’s religious genocide against Serb Orthodox Christians in World War II in Croatia, where from 600,000 to 1 million men, women, elderly, and children were brutally tortured and murdered by the Catholic Ustashi militia led by Roman Catholic priests, friars, and monks);
- (g.) The well-documented history of the Roman Catholic Church’s hierarchy’s support of totalitarian police states (such as Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy during World War II);
- (h.) The tremendous wealth (banks, stock holdings, property, gold, etc.) of the Roman Catholic Church;
- (i.) The control of [the top levels of] Freemasonry by the Roman Catholic Jesuit Order; and,

(j.) The heavy-duty infiltration of, and control of the international intelligence community (CIA, Mossad, KGB/FSB, British Intelligence, etc.) by the Jesuits through their Knights of Malta and high-level Freemasons).”

Yes, indeed, the “classic tactic” of those who are deceivers and liars is to “attack the messenger” rather than “debate the message”. They cannot honestly debate an issue where most facts do not support their position, so they instead attack the messenger’s “character, background, past sins or indiscretions, associations, intelligence, scholarship, etc.”

A great example of this type of “ad hominem” attack occurred years ago when the American Free Press (AFP) [the old Spotlight] did a vicious “ad hominem” attack on author F. Tupper Saussy, and in the same “hit piece” threw in an extra “ad hominem” attack on author Eric Jon Phelps. Interestingly, both Saussy and Phelps had written excellent, well-documented books exposing the Jesuit Order. The following excerpts are taken from a March 10, 2006 letter that I sent to Wanda Marrs of “Power of Prophecy” dealing with my concerns about certain sources that I felt might be feeding her husband, Texe, misinformation and disinformation concerning “the Jews”, or who might be focusing a whole lot on “the Jews” and Israel in order to keep the focus OFF the Vatican, the Jesuit Order, the Knights of Malta, Opus Dei, etc. The “ad hominem” attacks on both F. Tupper Saussy and Eric Jon Phelps are referenced in these excerpts:

“(1) The American Free Press (AFP): I used to subscribe to the AFP (the old ‘Spotlight’) for a number of years. However, I began to become concerned with their ‘over-emphasis’ on Israel, Zionism, AIPAC, ADL, etc. The AFP, however, never seemed to mention at all the tremendous power and influence of the Jesuits, Opus Dei, Knights of Malta, or the tremendous power and influence of the Vatican [State] right here in the USA! Why is this so? The AFP also pushes Michael Collins Piper’s books. (See Item #2 for information on Piper.) The two final ‘straws’ that caused me to cancel my subscription to the AFP were:

- The AFP did a nasty ‘hit piece/ad hominem attack’ on the authors of two excellent books exposing the Jesuits (i.e., F. Tupper Saussy – his book Rulers of Evil; and Eric Jon Phelps – his book Vatican Assassins). (A copy of this ‘hit piece’ is enclosed.) I have both of these books – and they are scholarly, well researched books – and heavily footnoted. Why would the AFP ignore tons and tons of historical evidence and conclude that the Jesuits are basically ‘nobodies’ in the geopolitical-financial-religious arena?
- Years ago the AFP ran an article about the KAL 007 shootdown. It claimed to have an anonymous source in ‘intelligence’ that stated that all the people aboard the KAL 007 aircraft (including Congressman Larry McDonald) died – that there was no conspiracy – and that was the ‘end of the story’. Really? Why would the AFP run such a story, when there is a lot of evidence to the contrary? Congressman Larry McDonald was a real ‘thorn’ in the side of the New World Order. Dr. Stanley Monteith of Radio Liberty carries a book entitled Rescue 007 by Bert Schlossberg, plus some audiotapes on this subject.

Suffice it to say, there's a lot more to this 'story' than the AFP admits!

I have been told that the top editors at the AFP (old Spotlight) are Roman Catholic. Could it be a remote possibility that the AFP shines the 'spotlight' on Israel, the Mossad, Zionism, etc., (and other groups such as the Bilderbergers) to keep folks (who look to the alternative media for 'truth') from finding out about the REAL powers 'behind the scenes' – i.e., Opus Dei, the Jesuits, Knights of Malta, the Vatican State itself, etc.?

(2) Michael Collins Piper: This man is closely tied to the AFP. Piper's book Final Judgment, which is supposed to be the final word on the JFK assassination, names many key players with likely involvement in the assassination (or subsequent cover-up), such as Clay Shaw and James Jesus Angleton – yet fails to mention that these men were Knights of Malta. The book also contains references to such men as General Alexander Haig, and CIA Directors William Casey and John McCone – yet fails to mention that these men also were Knights of Malta. Is Piper merely ignorant of this interesting fact, or is he shining the 'spotlight' on the Mossad, Israel, etc., in order to keep the 'spotlight' off 'so many Knights of Malta being around the JFK assassination & cover-up'? Piper also puts a lot of emphasis on Meyer Lansky (a Jew), as if this guy were actually one of the most powerful men – or possibly the most powerful man – in the Mob. Other books, such as Double Cross, tell a much different 'story' – i.e., that men like Sam Giancana and others were the top men in the Mafia (the Mob) – men who were Roman Catholic.

((To the best of my knowledge, most of the (Italian) Mafioso chiefs are Roman Catholics, and there has been a strong connection established between the CIA, the (Italian) Mafia, the Vatican, and drug laundering by big banks. (Please read the book Double Cross – I think I sent you a copy; if not, it can be ordered from Radio Liberty.))

Piper also puts a lot of emphasis on the fact that CIA Counterintelligence Chief James Jesus Angleton manned the Israel Desk at the CIA, but fails to tell us that Angleton also manned the Vatican Desk at the CIA. Do we begin to see a pattern here by Piper concerning the JFK assassination? The pattern is: focusing the blame on the Mossad, Israel, etc., while totally (and deliberately?) ignoring the many Roman Catholic Knights of Malta all over the landscape?

(3) Colonel Donn de Grand Pré: This man has written at least three books (i.e., the series is called 'Barbarians Inside the Gate'). Like some others in the 'alternative media', he fingers various Jews, Bolsheviks, Communists, Zionists, etc., but does not finger the much more powerful forces 'behind the scenes', e.g., the Vatican, Jesuits, Opus Dei, Knights of Malta, etc. I also heard an interview of this man on short wave radio, where he made an astounding statement. The Colonel said that a military coup (in the USA) was possible, and that most of the U.S. military 'top brass' were against the New World Order. As someone who served 20 years in the military (and who follows current events), I can tell you that I strongly disagree with this statement. Most of the very top military brass are put into the most powerful military positions because they belong to the New World Order, NOT because they are against it. Some of the top brass are even members of the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR). (Admiral Chester Ward was a CFR member who later repudiated his membership.) Bottom line: Could Colonel Donn de Grand Pré have been trying to 'flush out' patriotic military officers at the O-5 and O-6 levels (Lt. Colonel and full Colonel) with such a statement that most of the 'top brass' were against the New World Order, and that a military coup might be in the works? Surely inquiring minds would like to know? I have also heard that Colonel Donn de Grand Pré is Roman Catholic.

Could it be that sources such as the three mentioned above are feeding Texe information designed to get him focusing on the 'two growling Chihuahuas' ('the Jews' and Israel) so he won't notice, for the most part, the more powerful 'ten Romish tigers' (Vatican, Jesuits, Opus Dei, Knights of Malta, etc.) that are really controlling and orchestrating things from 'behind the scenes'? Are these sources trying to shield the Vatican, Jesuits, Opus Dei, and Knights (of Malta and Columbus), etc., BY FOCUSING THE 'SPOTLIGHT' on the Jews and Israel?"

((End of excerpts from the letter to Wanda Marrs))

V. CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

Who runs the New World Order conspiracy at its very top? While there are numerous mid-level and lower-level players/lackeys, there can only be one group at the very top. The identity of that top-level group must be revealed to the American people. Some say that it is "the Jews" who are running the "global conspiracy"; others say it is the Vatican, its Jesuit Order, Opus Dei, Knights of Malta, high-level Freemasons, (and in the USA – high-level Knights of Columbus). Both sides cannot be right!

There is certainly a segment of the "alternative media" that refuses to openly and fully discuss the power and influence of the Vatican State, its Jesuit Order, Opus Dei, and the powerful Knights of Malta. The question we must all ask is "Why?" Yes, why would the Vatican, the Jesuits, etc., be, for the most part, "off limits" on certain broadcasts within the "alternative media"? Why do certain broadcast hosts within the "alternative media" not only fail to bring up the topic of the Vatican, Jesuits, etc., but also try to stifle call-ins made to their broadcasts that mention the Vatican and its Jesuits? Why are they "protecting" the Vatican, Jesuits, Knights of Malta, etc.? Surely inquiring minds would like to know. If any of these broadcast hosts or writers within the "alternative media" are on the Vatican (and/or Jesuit) payroll, then that needs to be exposed – and exposed as quickly as possible.

CHALLENGE TO BROADCAST HOSTS (who have been avoiding the subject of the Vatican, Jesuits, Knights of Malta, etc.):

Why don't you permit a full and open discussion of this topic on your broadcast? Why don't you interview men like author Eric Jon Phelps, author Bill Hughes, author and publisher Jack T. Chick, author Dave Hunt, author John Daniel, author F. Tupper Saussy, etc., concerning this topic? After all, these men have written excellent, well-documented books dealing with Vatican power and influence, the Jesuits, Knights of Malta, etc.

CHALLENGE TO COURAGEOUS BROADCAST HOSTS (who have dealt with this topic):

Why don't you set up a debate (on who really runs the New World Order Conspiracy) on your broadcast? My top recommendation: Have either Texe Marrs or Michael Collins Piper debate author Eric Jon Phelps! My "gut feeling" is that neither Marrs nor Piper will agree to such a debate – because my other "gut feeling" is that Eric would totally "annihilate" the arguments presented by either Marrs or Piper! ((Yes, historical evidence is still "legion" concerning the nefarious activities of the Vatican and its Jesuit Order – despite the Vatican's Herculean efforts to erase such history from encyclopedias and history textbooks!))

CHALLENGE TO LISTENERS AND READERS OF THE "ALTERNATIVE MEDIA":

If your favorite "alternative media" broadcast host or writer has failed to adequately address and cover the tremendous wealth, power, and influence of the Vatican State, the nefarious activities of the Jesuit Order, the powerful Knights of Malta (who have held key positions in the world's top intelligence agencies), etc., then ask: "Why haven't you?"

If these "alternative media" broadcast hosts and writers continue to "dodge" (i.e., avoid) this tough topic, then please E-mail, fax, write, and call them asking them "WHY?" Ask them what they're afraid of. Don't let them put you off with such "general statements" as:

- "Oh, it's not the Jews or the Catholics running the New World Order." (This "excuse" is used by a top "alternative media" broadcast host in Texas to deflect any discussion of the Vatican's immense wealth, power, and influence – or any full and open discussion about the powerful Jesuits and Knights of Malta. While it is true that neither ALL Jews nor ALL Catholics are running the New World Order, this type of statement does a great disservice to his listeners, because the Vatican and its Jesuits and Knights of Malta are extremely powerful players on the geopolitical, financial, and religious "chessboard".)
- "Oh, it's just a few wealthy European families that are at the top of the New World Order." (This "excuse" is also used by that same top "alternative media" broadcast host in Texas to deflect discussion of the Vatican's immense wealth, power, and influence – or any full and open discussion about the powerful Jesuits and Knights of Malta. This statement is borderline ridiculous, because the Jesuit Order has assassinated many powerful European monarchs – to include two Russian Czars – who crossed them or refused to "play ball" with the Vatican and its Jesuits!)

• “If we talk about the Papacy, or its Jesuit Order, then we will offend Roman Catholics.” This Republic is on the very precipice of DESTRUCTION. We can no longer hold back talking about the Vatican’s (and its Jesuit Order’s) well-documented history of religious genocide (as recently as the 1940s in Croatia), fomenting wars and revolutions, assassinating heads of State, hatred of religious liberty and freedom of conscience, supporting Fascist regimes, etc., for fear of “offending” Catholics or any other group!

Title: Jesuit Jews? question

Description: Phelps

CRAIG-OXLEY - June 3, 2006 12:32 AM (GMT)

This is sheer Jesuit rhetoric. We know the Reformation Bible to be the Word of God, the AV1611 for English-speaking peoples. In that God-breathed special revelation Luke 21:24-27 is clear. Since at least the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 AD (or really with the departure of the glory of the Lord---the preincarnate Son of God---from the Second Temple just prior to the destruction of Jerusalem in 586 BC Ezekiel 11:23) we have been living in "the times of the Gentiles." This means Gentile world supremacy and Jewish subordination; Gentiles are the head, Jews are the tail (Deut.28:43-44). This principle extends into politics, religion, economics, international banking and the secret occult societies governing the earth via their trusted third parties.

These maxims teach that Gentiles rule the Jesuit Order. And indeed, true history proves this. Loyola was never a Jew as he was the son of one of the highest Spanish grandees in the court of Ferdinand and Isabella. Laynez, the second Jesuit Superior General was in fact a Jew and for this reason in 1593, after a huge falling out within the Society, a statute was passed forbidding any Jew to be within the Order. Ex-Jesuit E. Boyd Barrett confirms this policy in his The Jesuit Enigma and Rome Stoops to Conquer.

Therefore, Adam Weishaupt was never a Jew; rather, he was a German Jesuit of the short robe and the first non priest to be given a Canon Law chair at the Jesuit University in Ingolstadt, Bavaria. The Jewish Rothschilds did not come into financial prominence until the mid 1700s. They were Masonic and affiliated with the Pope's Court Jews---the Frankists---at the time of the Suppression of the Order in 1773. With the Pope outlawing the Jesuits, the Rothschilds became the Order's bankers to finance the French Revolution and Napoleonic Wars---that great Jesuit vengeance upon the Vatican Empire and Europe.

Indeed, the Papacy has always made the Jews its scapegoats for the secret works of the Pope now under supreme command of the Black Pope. The Jews were blamed for the Black Death of the Dark Ages when a third of Europe perished; for the Napoleonic Wars; for the destruction of Germany in WWI; and now for 911 as well as all the crimes committed by the Pope's Masonic Jewish Labor Zionists running Israel.

Further, the Rothschilds were not the bankers for the Jesuits in 1540. The papacy had plenty of money and the Jewish "Fuggars" were one of the Vatican bankers at the time according to Ridpath's Universal History.

No doubt there were Jews who converted to Romanism in 1492 and were known as Marranos. But the Order knew all the intelligence from the Court of the King to the curb of the slum. And no Jew after 1593 was OPENLY allowed into the Order although there were Jews who were secret Jesuit Temporal Coadjutors at the secret creation of the General. These Jews were subordinate, the tail of the Order, while the real high cabal of Jesuits, professed of the Fourth Vow, were White Gentiles---the devil's greatest tools in ruling his political kingdom of darkness.

Further, Jesuits are not Idumaeen Jews. No doubt there were some Gentile descendants of Ishmael who intermarried with the Hebrews, but the Jews we know today as being Jews are for the most part the continuation of the racial Jewish descendants of Jacob. Their identity has not been lost as against the perverse Khazarian theory---that the Jews of today are merely Gentile Khazars.

Thus the Jesuits now ruling the world as the great second cause for the Devil in fulfilling the Lord's "mystery of iniquity," are Gentiles, not racial Jews.

I trust this is helpful.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

Tackling the Tough Topics

FACING AMERICANS TODAY!

Issue # 77 // April 22, 2006 // Editor: Darryl Eberhart

“THE CONSPIRACY”

(Making It Appear “Jewish”)

((NOTE: All emphasis throughout this newsletter, unless otherwise noted, is by the editor of “Tackling the Tough Topics (TTT)”. Some issues of my TTT newsletters and my “Examining the Tough Issues (ETI)” newsletters can be read on the following three Internet web sites:

www.tacklingthetoughtopics.net, www.calltodecision.com, & www.libertytothecaptives.net. (The last site has a link to the first site.))

WARNING: This issue of the TTT newsletter may seriously “disturb” some folks’ “comfort zones”. However, TRUTH is far more important than any of our “comfort zones”.

DEDICATION: This issue of the TTT newsletter is dedicated to all those who are exposing evil, corruption, and tyranny wherever and whenever they occur – whether in the government or in the “Church” (to include any Church’s false doctrines)! (Please see Ephesians 5:11.)

IMPORTANT NOTE #1: I (the editor of the ETI & TTT newsletters) am not a Roman Catholic; I also most definitely am not anti-Roman Catholic as far as individual Roman Catholics go. My dad and 90% of my relatives are Roman Catholic; my best friend is Roman Catholic; and the majority of my friends are Roman Catholic. I am, however, against the top levels of secret societies (from the hierarchy of the Jesuit Order to the hierarchy of Freemasonry). This is because these secret societies control the leadership of the Roman Catholic Church (through the Jesuit Order and P2 Masonry), and have often used this hierarchical system for evil purposes, such as Inquisition, ‘holy’ crusades, and religious genocide. These secret societies also control the leadership of most of the larger, non-Catholic, Christian denominations. I am also against any religious hierarchy that tries to place itself equal to or above the Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of God – or equal to or above God’s Holy Word (i.e., the Holy Bible) and His Ten Commandments!

IMPORTANT NOTE #2: We can no longer afford to REMAIN SILENT on critical issues for fear of offending any particular group – in this case, Roman Catholics. Please carefully consider this quote by author Dave Hunt: “We are told to love one another as Christ has loved us. Pop psychology trivializes that command by equating it with a ‘positive’ attitude. Forgotten is the first duty of love: to speak the truth (Ephesians 4:15). Real love does not flatter or soothe when correction is needed but [rather] points out the error which is blinding and harming the loved one. Christ said, ‘As many as I love, I rebuke and chasten; be zealous, therefore, and repent’ (Revelation 3:19). Instead, the idea is now current that love excludes rebuke, ignores the truth, and seeks unity at any price. Only disaster can result.”

Why Am I Writing More & More About Roman Catholicism?

This editor of the ETI and TTT newsletters has been writing more on the Roman Catholic Church’s hierarchy, and especially its Jesuit Order, in recent newsletters because I keep uncovering more and more about the deep hatred that the hierarchy of the Roman Catholic Church has for independent Bible-believing Christians, Protestants, Orthodox Christians, and Jews. We Americans have, for the most part, been largely ignorant of the well-documented history of the Roman Catholic Church in conducting brutal religious genocide (via Inquisition, ‘holy’ wars, and ‘holy’ crusades) against all the afore-mentioned groups. ((Please see my TTT newsletters entitled “Death by Government and Death by Church”, “Bloody Hands & Wicked Hearts”, and “Deceitful Revisers and Editors of History” on the following Internet web sites: www.tacklingthetoughtopics.net and www.calltodecision.com (click on the “Tackling the Tough Topics” ‘box’ in the left-hand column of their home page.)) Sadly, many Americans believe the “ecumenical rhetoric” of the Roman Catholic Church’s hierarchy – i.e., that she has “changed her ways” and now loves all the “separated brethren”. However, my study of the Papacy shows me that this is just a RUSE [i.e., a “stratagem” – per Webster’s Dictionary: “any trick or scheme for achieving some purpose”]. The “purpose” is to bring all non-Catholic Christian denominations under the “umbrella” [i.e., control] of the Papacy!

Yes, the Papacy, despite its “ecumenical rhetoric”, has not changed a bit over the many centuries in the following categories:

- Its deep hatred of Jews, all independent Bible-believing non-Catholic Christians, Protestants, and Orthodox Christians (as recently as the 1940s we find the Roman Catholic Ustashi militia in Croatia, led and urged on by Franciscan priests, monks, and friars, slaughtering from 600,000 to one million Serb Orthodox Christian men, women, elderly, and children – many of the victims being first brutally tortured);
- Its long-held dream to bring all non-Catholic Christians under its monopolistic, totalitarian, ecclesiastical control;

- Its long-held dream to head up a totalitarian one-world religious organization; and,
- Its long-held dream to bring all world leaders – especially those in “Christian” countries – under the temporal power of the pope. (That is, the Papacy would be the top player and “controller” in a one-world government – just like it was the top player and “controller” on the European continent for many centuries! Kings indeed bowed before popes.)

Indeed, power – absolute power – has long been the “game” at the Vatican. History has recorded the Vatican’s deep hatred for religious liberty and freedom of conscience. The U.S. Constitution, with its “Bill of Rights” guaranteeing such liberties, has long been hated by the Vatican. (For a good example of this, please read the Syllabus of Errors issued in 1864 by Pope Pius IX.) I have heard that there is an acronym in use by some Knights of Columbus in America. This acronym is “M.A.C.”: “Make America Catholic”. America is the last “roadblock” in the way of the Vatican and the rest of the globalist rich and power elite in their dreams for one-world government and one-world religion. Is America scheduled for a religious genocide – another Inquisition – as occurred in the 1940s in Croatia? I believe the danger is very real and possibly quite imminent – and that is why I have been writing more and more about the Roman Catholic Church’s hierarchy, its long-held dreams of world domination, its love of Fascist regimes, and its well-documented history of torture and religious genocide!

DEFINITIONS (hopefully in alphabetical order):

“Black Pope” (per Darryl Eberhart, Editor of TTT): An Italian nickname for the Jesuit Superior General – the head of the “Society of Jesus” (i.e., the Jesuit Order) – the real power “behind the throne” of the Papacy.

“Bolshevik” (per Webster’s New World Dictionary, Second College Edition): “1. Originally, a member of the majority faction (Bolsheviks) of the Social Democratic Party of Russia, which formed the Communist Party after seizing power in the [October] 1917 Revolution. 2. A Communist, especially of the Soviet Union...”

“Front” (per Webster’s New World Dictionary): (Meaning #15): “A person or group used to cover or obscure the activity or objectives of another controlling person or group.”

“Illuminati” (per Webster’s New World Dictionary): “1. People who have, or profess to have, special intellectual or spiritual enlightenment. 2. Any of various societies, usually secret, composed of such people.”

“Jew” (per Webster’s New World Dictionary): “1. A person descended, or regarded as descended, from the ancient Hebrews of Biblical times. 2. A person whose religion is Judaism.”

(Please also see the entry “The Jews”, which is defined according to the belief of a certain segment within both the patriot movement and the “alternative media”.

“Papacy” (per Webster’s New World Dictionary): “1. The position, authority, or rank of the pope. 2. The period of time during which a pope rules. 3. The succession of popes; popes collectively. 4. The government of the Roman Catholic Church, headed by the Pope.”

“Red Herring” (per Webster’s New World Dictionary): (Meaning #2): “Something used to divert attention from the basic issue.”

“Scapegoat” (per Webster’s New World Dictionary): (Meaning #2): “A person, group, or thing upon whom the blame for the mistakes or crimes of others is thrust.”

“Sheep dipping” (per author Craig Roberts in his excellent book The Medusa File): “An individual who was ‘sheep-dipped’ was discharged from the military ‘on paper’, but during his absence his time in grade, promotions, retirement years and other perks continued just as if he had never left the service. After serving with the CIA, the person could return to his regular branch [of military service] and continue just as if he had never left. ...During the Cold War, and later Vietnam, it [i.e., sheep dipping] was done to provide the CIA – by now referred to as ‘the Company’ because of the number of contract agents being handled – with a system of ‘Plausible Deniability’.”

((Ed. Comment to the preceding definition: The Vatican has done the same thing for centuries through its Jesuit “temporal coadjutors” – i.e., its “Jesuits of the short robe” – men who infiltrate governments, publishing companies, newspapers, other church denominations, other churches’ seminaries, revolutionary movements, etc., in order to “steer” (i.e., direct) them in the direction that the Vatican (or the Jesuit Superior General) desires!))

“Smoke screen” (per Webster’s New World Dictionary): (Meaning #2): “Anything said or done to conceal or mislead.”

“The Jews” (per a certain segment within both the patriot movement and the “alternative media”): “The group of power brokers [allegedly] running the world, the USA, and the New World Order – made up of Zionists, Jewish neo-conservatives in the current U.S. Administration, Israel, the Mossad, Jewish Masons, and Jewish bankers.” Editor of TTT believes that the evidence shows clearly that this term “the Jews”, when used in this context, is being used as a cover – as a front – to create a smokescreen – to throw out a “red herring” – so as to divert attention away from the real power brokers who are operating “behind the scenes”.

“Vatican” (per Webster’s New World Dictionary): “1. The papal palace, consisting of a group of buildings in Vatican City. 2. The papal government or authority.”

“Vatican City” (per Webster’s New World Dictionary): Independent papal state, constituted in 1929 as an enclave in Rome...”

“Zionism” (per Webster’s New World Dictionary): “A movement formerly for reestablishing, now for supporting, the Jewish national state of Israel.”

“Zionist” (per Editor of TTT): “A member of the Zionist movement (i.e., Zionism).”

HERE ARE SOME INTERESTING (AND VERY RELEVANT) QUOTES:

“He [Ed. Note: Professor Carroll Quigley, author of the book Tragedy and Hope] tells us how banking influences what is going on, because all these organizations [i.e., covert organizations and secret societies] tie into banking – and the secret organizations tie into Lazard Brothers [i.e., Lazard Freres]. And, of course, most people think that [i.e., Lazard Brothers] is a Jewish organization. It is not Jewish at all. They push forward the Jewish bankers to conceal what these people are really doing. And, of course, we could go back in history, and we would find that the same forces that were tied into this group were instrumental in creating the ‘Protocols [of Zion]’, which were instrumental for the vicious persecution of Jews in both Russia and Germany. And the Jews have been pushed forward to be the scapegoats while people never were allowed to know who was really running things behind the scenes.

So, let’s listen to what Professor Carroll Quigley says about international finance, which, incidentally, is NOT Jewish.” (12-29-1994)

Dr. Stanley Monteith (Author; host of the “Radio Liberty” broadcast)

“Actually, nobody has a right to be more angry at the Rothschild clique than their fellow Jews. The Warburgs, part of the Rothschild empire, helped finance Adolph Hitler. There were few if any Rothschilds or Warburgs in the Nazi prison camps! They sat out the war in luxurious hotels in Paris or emigrated to the United States or England. As a group, Jews have suffered most at the hands of these power seekers. A Rothschild has much more in common with a Rockefeller than he does with a [Jewish] tailor from Budapest or the Bronx.”

Gary Allen (Author of the book None Dare Call It Conspiracy)

“Why would the Jesuits use their implacable enemy, the Jews, to further their designs for world dominion? The Jesuits never do anything out in the open where they can be exposed. If they are recognized as the culprits, they will be blamed and suffer the consequences, but if they can use someone else as the ‘cause of the world’s problems’, especially an enemy they can destroy in the process, then they have simultaneously accomplished two of their objectives. The Jewish people are the perfect scapegoat. Since the Rothschilds are Jesuit agents operating under a Jewish cover, using them in forming the Illuminati back in 1776 effectively throws the onus of this conspiracy on the Jews. The Rothschilds are certainly not the only Jesuit agents that operate under a Jewish front.”

Bill Hughes (Author of The Secret Terrorists and The Enemy Unmasked)

“International finance and banking are NOT primarily ‘Jewish’. Many of the most powerful banking interests in the world are run by ‘Gentiles’. One of the most powerful forces in international banking is the Knights of Malta, a Roman Catholic military order controlled by the Jesuit Superior General. Sadly, even a certain segment of the ‘alternative media’ helps to propagate the LIE that ‘the Jews’ run international banking. Interestingly, one of the titles of the Rothschild banking dynasty is ‘Guardians of the Vatican Treasury’. ‘The Jews’, as a people, have been used for centuries as a ‘scapegoat’ by these international banksters and their secret societies, such as the Jesuit-controlled Knights of Malta. To label ‘the Jews’ as running banking, Hollywood, etc, is to throw out the proverbial ‘red herring’ designed to throw us off the scent of the ‘real controllers’.”

Darryl Eberhart (Editor of “Tackling the Tough Topics”; January 28, 2006)

“...Some sincere people believe that the Jews, or the Jewish bankers, are behind the world conspiracy. There are many clues that lead people to that conclusion, but I can assure you that the evidence has been planted to divert attention away from the truth. That is not to say there are no people of Jewish extraction within the Brotherhood, but those who support the movement have renounced their belief in Judaism, and worship a different god. Anti-Semitism is a trap that has been baited to lead us away from the truth.” – Dr. Stanley Monteith

“A number of convincing arguments are made to convince us that the Jews, or the Jewish bankers, are our enemy. The first is: ‘Many of the Bolsheviks were Jews, and almost all of the original members of Lenin’s Politburo [Ed. Note: the executive committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union] were Jews’. There are several valid responses to that charge:

- 1. Although many of Lenin’s followers were Jews, all but one of them [i.e., the top-level Jews who were leaders in the Bolshevik Revolution] were subsequently executed, and that’s a poor way to reward Jews if they were the force behind the Bolshevik Revolution. Leon Trotsky was Jewish. He was tracked down in Mexico, and brutally murdered.
- 2. All but one of Jesus’ original disciples were Jews, but does that make Christianity a Jewish conspiracy? [Ed. Note: All 12 original disciples were “Jews” (from a “religious standpoint”) at the time they were chosen by Jesus Christ; 11 were from Galilee, and one (Judas) was from Judea.]
- 3. ...[Author Antony Sutton] noted that many Englishmen fought on our [the American] side during the Revolutionary War, but that didn’t make the Revolutionary War an English war.” – Dr. Stanley Monteith

“Another argument [made to convince us that the Jews, or the Jewish bankers, are our enemy] is that Winston Churchill exposed the Zionist plot behind Bolshevism. The response:

Although Winston Churchill did write an article in ‘The London Illustrated Sunday Herald’ in 1920 claiming that Zionism was the force behind Bolshevism, the response from the world media was very strange. Most people who have attacked Zionism have been vilified, but Churchill always had favorable press coverage. Was that because he was part of the Brotherhood, and his article was an attempt to shift responsibility for the Russian Revolution to the Jews?” – Dr. Stanley Monteith

((Ed. Comment to the preceding quote: Churchill was a high-level Mason and a Druid priest who helped prod the USA into both World War I and II. Dee Zahner, author of The Secret Side of History, states in that book: “To get the United States to declare war on Germany, [President Woodrow] Wilson contrived with Winston Churchill for the sinking of the Lusitania.”))

“Another point [that] is made [to convince us that the Jews, or the Jewish bankers, are our enemy is] that Jacob Schiff provided $20 million to finance the Bolshevik Revolution. ...Did Jacob Schiff really help the Bolsheviks? Because of the progressive dumbing-down of our people, most Americans don’t realize that there were two Russian revolutions. The first revolution was in March 1917 (or February if you use the old Russian calendar); the second [Russian Revolution] was in October of that same year. ...The March [1917] revolution began in St. Petersburg when a contingent of military recruits refused to fire on anti-government demonstrators. ...The Czar was forced to abdicate. Alexander Kerensky was chosen to lead Russia until elections could be held. When it became obvious that he intended to continue the war, the German High Command approached Lenin, who was living in Switzerland. ...They offered him money and transportation to go to Russia to overthrow Kerensky.

...During World War I, the American State Department was responsible for collecting intelligence information. Their files confirm the fact that Jacob Schiff opposed the czar, and after Kerensky had taken power, Jacob Schiff sent Kerensky a telegram congratulating him – but the Bolshevik Revolution didn’t take place until seven months later. ...When he [i.e., author Antony Sutton] examined the State Department’s intelligence files, he found evidence that Jacob Schiff opposed the Bolsheviks, and encouraged our State Department to oppose them.

...The document [i.e., ‘The Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion’] first appeared in Russia in 1905; it claimed that Zionists were behind the wars and revolutions of the 19th century, and planned to seize control of the world. Many Russians believed ‘The Protocols’, and they began to persecute the Jews and [to] destroy their property. When the czar refused to intervene, Jacob Schiff began plotting to depose him. He provided revolutionary literature to the Russian soldiers captured by the Japanese during the Russo-Japanese War in 1905...It is even possible that some of the soldiers who participated in the March [1917] revolution read Jacob Schiff's literature, so he may have played a part in inciting the March [1917] revolution, but that was not the Bolshevik Revolution [which occurred seven months later]. When Antony Sutton researched the State Department intelligence files, he found documents showing that English and American financiers provided funding for the Bolsheviks, but that fact is never mentioned today. Could it be that the story of Jacob Schiff's $20 million gift to the Bolsheviks was contrived to divert attention away from the real source of their funding?"

– Dr. Stanley Monteith

“The Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion’ were circulated throughout Europe during the early decades of the 20th century, and many people believed them. That led, at least in part, to the anti-Semitism that brought Adolph Hitler to power. [American] Henry Ford circulated ‘The Protocols’ in the United States and wrote a book entitled The International Jew, which claimed that Jewish bankers were responsible for World War I and the Bolshevik Revolution. Henry Ford supported the Nazis, and Hitler acknowledged his support by awarding him [i.e., Henry Ford] the highest German medal available to civilians. The Ford factories in [Nazi] Germany provided trucks, tanks, and [other military] vehicles for Hitler’s armed forces. That would have been logical if Henry Ford really believed that Jewish bankers were responsible for the Bolshevik Revolution, and Hitler opposed them. The problem is that Henry Ford also built a factory complex in [Communist] Russia [i.e., the Soviet Union] to help the faltering Communist economy! Why did Ford promote anti-Semitism in the United States, support Adolph Hitler in [Nazi] Germany, and support the Bolsheviks in [Communist] Russia?”

Dr. Stanley Monteith

((Ed. Comments to the preceding quote: None of this “supposed inconsistency” is hard to explain. The facts are that the Vatican and her Jesuits were deeply involved in fomenting not only World War I, but also World War II. During World War II the Vatican supported not only Nazi Germany, but also the other Fascist regimes in Europe, such as Mussolini’s Fascist Italy and the Catholic-Fascist state of Croatia. In fact, Roman Catholic Knight of Malta Franz von Papen and the Roman Catholic Centrum (or, Zentrum) Party in Bavaria put Hitler into power! On the other side of the European continent, we find a Jesuit-trained monster named Joseph Stalin running the Soviet Union during World War II, with help from his Jesuit-trained friend, Cardinal Gregory Agagianian. (Both were trained by Jesuits who taught at the seminary in Tiflis, Soviet Georgia.) Stalin’s top intelligence man was Knight of Malta Prince Anton Turkul, who used Jesuits for his couriers! No wonder banks in the West – especially in the USA – helped finance both Adolph Hitler’s Nazi Germany and Joseph Stalin’s Soviet Union. Thus by controlling both sides in the conflict, the Vatican and her Jesuits were able to exterminate millions of their favorite “targets”: Jews, Orthodox Christians (e.g., in Croatia), and Protestants (in northern Germany). IMPORTANT NOTE: For the purposes of the remaining sections of this newsletter, when I mention the term “the Jews”, it is in the context of how a certain segment within both the “patriot movement” and the “alternative media” uses it (and, shall we add, sometimes “misuses” it to include all Jews in the world), i.e., as a “broad-brush label” lumping together the so-called “Jewish banksters”, Zionists, Jewish Masons, Israel, the Israeli Mossad, B’nai B’rith, the Anti-Defamation League (ADL), the so-called “Jewish Neo-cons” in the current U.S. Administration, the Jews who are supposedly running almost all of Hollywood and all the major TV networks, etc., as [allegedly] being the key component running the New World Order “Conspiracy”.

I. INTRODUCTION

Editor of TTT believes strongly that a sizable portion of the so-called “alternative media” has been misguided and duped concerning the “real controllers” behind the New World Order Conspiracy (hereafter referred to simply as “the Conspiracy”). Some of the “alternative media” may actually be working for those “real controllers”, trying to get us to overly focus on “the Jews” and Israel; on the “Mark of the Beast” and other high-tech advances; etc., IN ORDER TO keep most truth-seekers from finding out who those “real controllers” are!

A sizable section of the so-called “patriot community” also appears to have been misguided and duped concerning the “real controllers” behind “the Conspiracy”. Some of these groups (including a major segment of the so-called “Christian Identity” movement) concentrate a whole bunch on “the Jews” in general, “The Protocols of Zion”, Israel, the Israeli Mossad, the Zionists, the so-called “Jewish Neo-cons” in the current U.S. Administration, Jewish Cabbalists, Jewish Bolsheviks, Jewish banksters, etc. (They love to point out that such-and-such is Jewish!)

But is the vast majority of this “anti-Jewish” and “anti-Israel” propaganda instead a massive “smokescreen” to cover for the “real controllers” working “behind the scenes”? When that certain segment in the “patriot movement” and that certain segment within the “alternative media” both tell us that “the Jews” are responsible for heading up “the Conspiracy”, are they deliberately (or, in some cases, in gross ignorance) throwing out a colossal “red herring” to get us off the “scent” of the “real controllers” behind the scenes? Surely inquiring minds would like to know who these “real controllers” are that foment wars and revolutions, create banking crises, and plan and carry out a host of nefarious activities in their drive to enslave the peoples on planet Earth!

As Dr. Stanley Monteith pointed out in one of the earlier listed quotations that was taken from his book Brotherhood of Darkness, “there are many clues” that have been deliberately planted to make the conspiracy appear “Jewish” and “to divert [our] attention away from the truth”. So let us take a look at some of the ways the “real controllers” (who operate “behind the scenes”) plant their “evidence” (their “clues”) to make the conspiracy appear to be “Jewish”.

II. THE BANKSTERS

The “real controllers” who operate quite cleverly “behind the scenes” love to plant “evidence” to make international banking appear to be “Jewish”.

One of their anti-Jewish schemes was the planting of some “evidence” that would lead many individuals to believe that the Jews financed and ran the Bolshevik Revolution in 1917. However, from an earlier quote we saw that it was NOT Jewish financier Jacob Schiff who financed the Bolshevik Revolution of October 1917, but rather it was British and [other] American financiers who provided the financial backing for the Bolshevik Revolution in Russia.

Another favorite tactic often used by the “real controllers” is to appoint a prominent Jew to “head” a financial institution while the major stockholders “behind the scenes” are non-Jews. The so-called Federal Reserve often has a Jew appointed as chairman to make it appear that Jews run the financial institutions of the USA. In fact, many of the top financiers in U.S. history have been non-Jews, to include some very powerful Roman Catholic Knights of Malta. ((NOTE: The Knights of Malta is a powerful Roman Catholic military order headquartered in Rome with, and controlled by, the Jesuit Superior General – the “Black Pope”.)

In fact, the Vatican State has some tremendous banking interests, to include its own Vatican Bank.

((Ed. Note: One of the reasons for the murder of Pope John Paul I in 1978 was his attempt to remedy the many “irregularities” he discovered at the Vatican Bank – and his plans to fire the head of that bank! For more information, read my TTT entitled “John Paul I”.)

Ah, but let us get back to the Knights of Malta. Here is an excerpt from my TTT newsletter entitled “The Real Controllers”, dated: January 13, 2006:

“The Hospitallers (later to become the Knights of Malta) were one of three [Roman Catholic] religious-military orders founded in the 12th century – the other two being the Knights Templar (or, the Templars) and the Teutonic Knights. Concerning the Templars we are told the following by the 1955 World Scope Encyclopedia: ‘The Templars were founded in Jerusalem... The new order was given lodgings near the so-called Temple of Solomon... It was formally confirmed by Pope Honorius II in 1128. ...The order became...the international bankers of their time. They were the predecessors of the great banking families such as the Medici. ...The Templars were brought down by [King] Philip IV of France, and Pope Clement V. ...The order [i.e., the Knights Templar] was disbanded in 1312, and much of their great wealth was given to the Knights of St. John [which later became the Knights of Malta].’ This is indeed very important to remember – that this Roman Catholic Military Order, the Knights of Malta, which is co-located with the Jesuit Superior General in Rome, inherited ‘much’ of the ‘great wealth’ of the Knights Templar!”

Another favorite tactic of the “real controllers” is to throw out the Rothschild family as the major “Jewish” family running international banking. However, we’ve already seen that one of the titles held by the Rothschild family is ‘Guardians of the Vatican Treasury’. Isn’t that just a little bit interesting? And lets not forget what author Gary Allen said: “A Rothschild has much more in common with a Rockefeller than he does with a [Jewish] tailor from Budapest or the Bronx.”

Here’s what two other authors had to say about the Rothschilds:

“Aware that the Rothschilds are an important Jewish family, I looked them up in [the] Encyclopedia Judaica and discovered that they bear the title ‘Guardians of the Vatican Treasury’... The appointment of Rothschild gave the Black Papacy [i.e., the hierarchy of the Jesuit Order] absolute financial privacy and secrecy. Who would ever search a family of orthodox Jews for the key to the wealth of the Roman Catholic Church?”
F. Tupper Saussy (Author of the book Rulers of Evil; speaker, musician & patriot)

“The Rothschilds were Jesuits who used their Jewish background as a façade to cover their sinister activities. The Jesuits, working through Rothschild and [financier Nicholas] Biddle, sought to gain control of the banking system of the United States.”
Bill Hughes (Author of The Secret Terrorists and The Enemy Unmasked)

Indeed, it certainly appears that the Vatican and its Jesuits and Knights of Malta – and their good friends the Rothschilds (‘Guardians of the Vatican Treasury’) – control far more of the world’s financial institutions than any other single group on the planet!

III. THE (“2nd”) RUSSIAN REVOLUTION (October 1917) – The Bolshevik Revolution

A certain segment within the patriot movement and within the “alternative media” loves to tell us that Trotsky and many of the top Soviet Communist Party Politburo members were Jews – and then to tell us their Jewish names. What they seldom mention is that all but one of the top Jews in the powerful Politburo were executed. Trotsky himself was hunted down in Mexico and murdered there. As Dr. Stanley Monteith indicated in an earlier quote: “That’s a poor way to reward Jews if they were the force behind the Bolshevik Revolution.” Indeed!

Some Jews were also appointed as camp commandants within the Soviet Gulag system. Again we seem to find a pattern: put some Jews in positions as mid-level or even upper-level managers, and then folks will think that the whole operation (or, conspiracy) is “Jewish”.

However, if “the Jews” funded and ran the Bolshevik Revolution of 1917, then why in blazes would they kill all but one of the Jews in the Soviet Politburo?

((Likewise, one could also ask the following questions:

- (1) If “the Jews” fomented and orchestrated World War II, then why would Jews be especially targeted for destruction on the European continent?
- (2) If “the Jews” run America’s mainstream media and Hollywood, then why does the pope of Rome get such great press here in the USA? (Pope John Paul II was almost “deified” in the American press – both while alive and during his funeral.)
- (3) If “the Jews” control so much of the American publishing business, then why don’t they massively expose the Roman Catholic Church’s involvement in bringing Hitler to power, supporting Nazi Germany, supporting Fascist Italy, supporting Fascist Croatia, helping war criminals escape at the end of WWII via the Vatican Ratlines, etc.? Yes, and why don’t these “Jews” controlling America’s publishing business massively expose the Jesuit Order, which has a well-documented history of not only fomenting wars and revolutions, but also of being responsible for the killing of large numbers of Jews?))

IV. THE “ILLUMINATI” AND ADAM WEISHAAPT

The following is an excerpt from my TTT entitled “The Real Controllers”:

“The modern version of the Illuminati was formed on May 1, 1776 by Jesuit-trained Adam Weishaupt, who taught Catholic Canon Law at Jesuit Ingolstadt University in Bavaria (in southern Germany). Weishaupt pretended to leave the Jesuit Order (i.e., he was ‘sheep dipped’) so that he could set up a front group called the Illuminati (that the Jesuits could use for their own purposes). This Jesuit front group, the Illuminati, fomented and orchestrated the bloody French Revolution of 1789-1799. Thus, by using this ‘front group’, the Jesuit Order was given a great degree of ‘plausible deniability’ as to its role in the French Revolution.”

Yet there is a certain segment within both the patriot movement and the “alternative media” that loves to say that Weishaupt was a “Jew”, thus inferring that the “Illuminati” must surely have been set up by “the Jews”. ((More on this topic to follow in the next section.))

V. FINGERING A “VILLAIN” AS BEING A “JEW” YEARS AFTER HIS DEATH

We already noted how Jesuit-trained Adam Weishaupt is portrayed by a number of folks as being a “Jew”. According to Eric Jon Phelps, author of Vatican Assassins, Adam Weishaupt was NOT a Jew – and this labeling of him as a “Jew” is a fairly recent “invention” (within the past 100 years). Regardless, the facts are that Adam Weishaupt was Jesuit-trained, and that he taught Roman Catholic Canon Law at a Jesuit institute of higher learning in Bavaria, Germany (at Ingolstadt). Why don’t most of those who point out that Weishaupt was [allegedly] a “Jew” also point out his Jesuit connections? Why don’t these same individuals also point out that Weishaupt died in the good graces of the Roman Catholic Church?

I have seen the “Jew” label applied by some folks to not only Weishaupt, but also Stalin, Hitler, etc. It is indeed quite easy to simply label some monstrous, murdering criminal as being a “Jew” (or “half-Jew”) many years after his death; however, is this being done in most cases simply to throw out a “red herring” to keeps folks from discovering the “real controllers” behind the scenes? For one thing, Jews settled all over Europe, and in spite of prohibitions against marrying Gentiles, such marriages did occur. Thus, many Europeans may have at least some “Jewish blood” in them. Does this make them “Jews”? Adolph Hitler and Benito Mussolini were both practicing Roman Catholics – neither was ever excommunicated! Joseph Stalin was trained by Roman Catholic Jesuits. Isn’t it more important WHAT an individual practices and really believes, rather than what he was born? If someone is 5% or 10% or 50% Jewish, but is a practicing Roman Catholic, and believes in Roman Catholicism, and is subservient to the “White Pope” and/or the “Black Pope”, then is that person to be considered a “Jew”? And might we be getting some colossal LIES when folks repeat such statements saying that such-and-such is a “Jew” (or a ¼ Jew or ½ Jew) when he is not really a Jew in any way, shape, or form?

Indeed, labeling various monstrous criminals as “Jews” seems to be a favorite tactic of those who really control things from behind the scenes – a tactic used to make the Conspiracy appear “Jewish” when the “real controllers” seem to come primarily from the top levels of secret societies, such as the Jesuits and Freemasons – and from within the Vatican State itself!

(NOTE: John Daniel, author of the book The Grand Design Exposed, makes an excellent case that the Jesuits control the highest levels of Freemasonry!)

VI. THE “PROTOCOLS OF ZION”, WORLD WAR I AND WORLD WAR II

We’ve already pointed out that the “Protocols of Zion”, according to author Leo Lehmann, was written by the JESUITS. The “Protocols”, remember, was a document designed (according to Dr. Stanley Monteith) to make people think “that Zionists were behind the wars and revolutions of the 19th century, and planned to seize control of the world.”

However, author Edmond Paris, in his book The Secret History of the Jesuits, tells us a different story as to the real “stars” and experts in fomenting wars and revolutions:

“The public is practically unaware of the overwhelming responsibility carried by the Vatican and its Jesuits in the starting of two world wars – a situation which may be explained in part by the gigantic finances at the disposition of the Vatican and its Jesuits, giving them power in so many spheres, especially since the last conflict.”

Please read my TTT newsletters entitled “World War I” and “World War II” on the first two web sites listed at the beginning of this newsletter. Two more TTT newsletters that touch upon these two wars are “The Real Controllers” and “Deceitful Revisers and Editors of History”. Indeed, history quite clearly reveals that the Vatican and her Jesuits fomented both World War I and World War II, just as author Edmond Paris points out in the above quotation!

VII. THE “INTELLIGENCE COMMUNITY”

Are “the Jews” running the U.S. intelligence community as some would have us believe, or is there a much more powerful group of men (working “behind the scenes”) who are the “real controllers” of the U.S. intelligence community? An important fact that one does discover if he looks closely behind the “curtain” is that there are many Knights of Malta who have been top men in the Intelligence Community! (Remember, the Knights of Malta is a Roman Catholic military order under the direct command of the “Black Pope” – i.e., the Jesuit Superior General.)

During World War II, we find three Knights of Malta running top intelligence agencies:

- William Donovan – The Office of Strategic Services (the OSS – predecessor to the CIA);

- General Reinhard Gehlen – German Intelligence on the Eastern Front; and,
- Prince Anton Turkul (who used Jesuits for couriers) – Soviet Intelligence.

Interestingly, at least five directors of the CIA have been Knights of Malta: William Donovan, John McCone, William Casey, William Colby, and George Tenet. Additionally, the long-time head of the very powerful CIA Counterintelligence section (and head of the CIA's Vatican Desk) was a Knight of Malta by name of James Jesus Angleton. Angleton was also the CIA liaison to the Warren (Whitewash) Commission that "investigated" the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Other Knights of Malta have held key positions within the International Intelligence Community, such as British Intelligence agent Kim Philby (who also worked for the Soviet KGB). For more information on the Knights of Malta and their involvement in the intelligence community, please see my TTT #53 – "The Jesuits – Part III: The Knights of Malta".

VIII. SUMMARY

Inspector Poirot (in the movie picture about Agatha Christie's novel, Murder on the Orient Express), after surveying the murder crime scene, comments: "There are too many clues." As Dr. Stanley Monteith points out in his book Brotherhood of Darkness: "Everywhere he [i.e., Inspector Poirot] looked he found conflicting evidence, and he suddenly realized that the murder scene had been staged to confuse him."

Dear reader, the exact same thing has occurred concerning "the Conspiracy". The "real controllers" behind the scenes – the Jesuits, Knights of Malta, high-level Freemasons, and the Vatican State itself – have PLANTED a whole bunch of "clues" to make "the Conspiracy" appear to be "Jewish". Their purpose has been to confuse us, and in the process conceal their own involvement in numerous nefarious activities, such as the fomenting of wars and revolutions. To summarize, they have used the following "tactics":

- (1) They form numerous "front" groups and organizations, such as the modern "Illuminati", so that folks will put the blame for wars, revolutions, etc., on the front group rather than on the "real controllers" pulling the strings from behind the scenes. A good example of this occurred in the bloody French Revolution of 1789-1799, where the "Illuminati" took the blame for what the Jesuits had fomented and orchestrated!
- (2) They "label" various mass-murdering monsters, such as Joseph Stalin, as "Jews" or "half-Jews" years after the fact. They also "label" those forming the front groups, such as Jesuit-trained Gentile (i.e., NON-Jew) Adam Weishaupt, as "Jews".
- (3) They place Jews in prominent mid-level & high-level management positions, such as head of the Federal Reserve, members of the first Soviet Politburo, camp commandants in the Soviet Gulag system, etc., in order to give "the Conspiracy" a "Jewish flavor".

- (4) They have their lackeys and dupes within the mainstream media, certain segments of the “alternative media”, and certain segments of the so-called “patriot movement” pass along the Conspiracy’s propaganda about “the Jews” to their listeners and readers. Thus we see these lackeys and dupes focusing the “spotlight” on “the Jews”, Jewish neo-cons, Jewish Masons, Jewish bankers, Israel, the Mossad, etc., but never focusing that “spotlight” where it should be focused – on the Vatican State, the Jesuit Order, the Knights of Malta, Opus Dei, etc.

The “real controllers” behind the scenes have done a very good job of confusing us, and of concealing their own nefarious activities. Through their takeover of our education system and American publishing companies, they have erased a whole bunch of history. So successful have these revisers of history been, that relatively few Americans are aware of the following facts:

- The Jesuits (and the Vatican) masterminded the assassination of President Abraham Lincoln in 1865. They even helped one of the conspirators, John Harrison Surratt, to escape to Rome where he became a member of the Pope’s military bodyguard unit.
 - The Jesuits and the Vatican (NOT the Jews) fomented both World War I and World War II – and they are responsible for the misery, destruction, and mass murder that resulted!
 - The Vatican supported Nazi Germany, Fascist Italy, Fascist Croatia, and all the totalitarian, Jew-hating and murdering regimes in Europe during World War II.
 - The Vatican helped many of the worst Fascist and Nazi war criminals escape punishment in the aftermath of World War II through their infamous “Vatican Ratlines”.
- I could go on and on about the nefarious activities of the Vatican and its Jesuit Order – to include the assassination of many heads of State, such as King Henry III of France in 1589; King Henry IV of France in 1610; Czar Alexander I of Russia in 1825; President Abraham Lincoln in 1865; Emperor Komei of Japan in 1868; President Benito Juarez of Mexico in 1872; Czar Alexander II of Russia in 1881; etc.

Assassinating heads of State, fomenting wars and revolutions, overthrowing governments, mass murdering various population groups (such as 600,000 to one million innocent Serb Orthodox Christian men, women, elderly, and children in Croatia in the 1940s) have been the well-documented activities of the Vatican and its Jesuit Order for centuries! If the Vatican State, the Jesuit Order, the Knights of Malta, Opus Dei, etc., are not massively (and quickly) exposed, then America will fall to their intrigues as have other nations in history.

IX. CLOSING QUOTES

It is certainly worth repeating a portion of an earlier quote by Dr. Stanley Monteith concerning “the Conspiracy”:

“...Some sincere people believe that the Jews, or the Jewish bankers, are behind the world conspiracy. There are many clues that lead people to that conclusion, but I can assure you that the evidence has been planted to divert attention away from the truth. ... Anti-Semitism is a trap that has been baited to lead us away from the truth.”

And here is another great quote for us to ponder:

“There are other secret and semi-secret organizations such as the International Bankers, the Council on Foreign Relations, the Bilderberger Group, [the] Club of Rome, the Trilateral Commission, the New Age Movement, the Illuminati, and Freemasonry, who are all deeply involved in global politics, and who actively promote the uniting of the people of our planet under a New World Order. However...these all are but mere ‘front’ organizations, behind which the true source of power hides and uses to distribute and channel its designs. And, as in any conspiracy, secrecy and shifting attention and blame away from itself is paramount to its success.” – John Daniel (Author of the book The Grand Design Exposed)

JESUIT INSTITUTION IN BELARUS

The Jesuit College, Pinsk

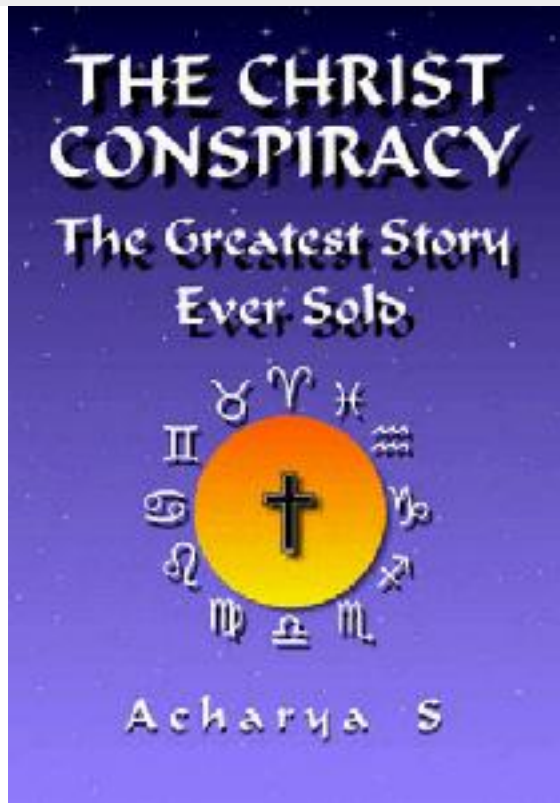

The Jesuit college in Pinsk may be most famous as the burial place of St. Andrew Bobola. After his martyrdom the college was pillaged and burned several times and the tomb forgotten. But forty-five years later the rector of the college, considering a patron for the school, had visions of the martyr who told him he would be the patron of the college and also where to find his tomb. Despite the dampness of the underground tomb, the body turned out to be astonishingly incorrupt.

After Vitaut's death the obscured contradictions between the Orthodox and Catholic population of Lithuania started growing, mostly due to the expanded influence of Poland and Russia since both Catholic and Orthodox churches in Belarus depended on religious centers outside Belarus - the Vatican and Warsaw, and Moscow. Even Navahradak eparchy after Vitaut's death appeared under the Moscow Patriarchate's influence. That's why many educated people of Belarus believed that the Protestant church may serve as a shield for Belarusian independence; special activity in promoting the Reformation in Belarus was performed by prince Mikalai Radzivil, the Black. He founded 163 Calvinist (Presbyterian) parishes, schools, and gymnasiums in Belarus, wishing to turn the whole country to Calvinism. But soon after that Polish Jesuits expanded their activities in the country aiming at strengthening Polish influence. The Jesuits worked it out in all branches of culture founding schools, universities, and monasteries. The revolution of the Reformation moved all people's thoughts, customs, and ideals; new support was needed, and the Jesuits turned out to be stronger in this battle for human minds. They managed to win the Protestant moods in Belarus and turned to Catholicism a big part of population. In their urge to establish control over the Orthodox population, they suggested a church union which would unite both churches and be headed by the Roman Pope. Belarusian patriots saw the possibility of creating a church independent from Poland and Moscow, and they agreed to the union, which was signed in Brest in 1595. Thus the Uniate, or Greek Catholic church, was founded. Unfortunately, the Uniate church was ruled by the Jesuits who tried to eliminate all Orthodox traditions in the new church. This caused a wide wave of people's protests and killed the idea of Belarusian independence for centuries, due to the failure of Greek Catholicism to become the Belarusian independent religion. The history of Belarus turned out to be the history of popular protests against its oppressors.

Vietnam Government Returns Jesuit Property After Nearly 30 Years

June 3, 2006

HO CHI MINH CITY, Vietnam (UCAN) -- The Jesuit Vietnam region will set up its headquarters at a building the government returned after nearly 30 years.

The building that once housed a library with facilities for educational activities was part of the Jesuit-owned Dac Lo Center in Ho Chi Minh City, 1,710 kilometers south of Ha Noi. Jesuits say they will again use the building to conduct educational activities for young people.

At a ceremony on May 10, Jesuit and government representatives signed documents officially transferring the property back to the Society of Jesus.

"We are pleased that we were able to make our own contribution to the construction of the country after we lent the building to the government for a long time," Jesuit Father Joseph Khuat Duy Linh told the people who attended the ceremony. Present were local government representatives, Father Joseph Dinh Chau Tran, representing Ho Chi Minh City archdiocesan, five Jesuit priests and a number of Religious, alumni of the center and lay Catholics.

Father Linh, 68, was head of the Dac Lo Center when he signed the agreement lending the government the building in 1977, two years after Vietnam was reunified under a Communist government.

The center had been named after French Jesuit Father Alexandre de Rhodes, Dac Lo being the Vietnamese transcription for his name. Father de Rhodes is credited with great contributions to evangelization in Vietnam and the invention of quoc ngu, the Romanized Vietnamese alphabet.

Ho Chi Minh City Television Station had used the recently returned building as its Broadcasting Research and Application Center since 1977.

Jesuit Father Vincent Dinh Trung Nghia told UCA News May 13 that his congregation began asking the government to return the center in 1999.

Father Nghia, 60, said he and two other Jesuits have moved into the building and are waiting for the television station to move out completely by the Dec. 25 deadline. "But they can finish their relocation in October," he added.

The priest noted that the reacquisition of this building is "very meaningful for our congregation, as we have no other premises in the center of the city." The building is set to house the Jesuit regional superior's office, which is presently located in suburban Thu Duc District. It also will serve as a residence for Religious who are teaching or studying at Church-run academic institutes in the downtown area, Father Nghia added.

The Jesuit priest said many lay Catholics expect his congregation to reopen the library and the foreign language center and resume other educational activities for young people, as it did before. He lamented, however, that "at present we cannot meet these expectations due to a lack of staff."

According to Father Nghia, another Jesuit building, which had once been used as a student hostel and the Dac Lo subparish chapel, was put under government management in the early 1980s after some Jesuits were accused of distributing anti-government propaganda and imprisoned. The building is now empty after the government-run Tuoi Tre (youth) newspaper left after using it as its editorial office for a long time.

Father Nghia said his congregation has submitted a petition asking the government to return that building too. He expressed hope that "the government will give it back soon."

Within Dac Lo Center, Jesuits had also run a television station including a studio that produced educational programs for the public. The Jesuits donated the station to the government in 1975, as the communists then did not allow private organizations to get involved in mass media, Father Nghia noted.

The center is considered the local Jesuits' oldest base, built in 1957 after foreign Jesuits were invited by then-president Ngo Dinh Diem of South Vietnam, a Catholic, to teach in universities and colleges, Father Nghia said.

Jesuits first came to Vietnam in 1615, but had to suspend their ministry after their congregation was suppressed in 1773 by Pope Clement XIV for political reasons. The Society of Jesus was restored 41 years later by Pope Pius VII in 1814.

A local Church source told UCA News that the Jesuit-run Pontifical Institute of St. Pius X in Da Lat, which the government took control of in 1978, might be returned to the Church in the future. The institute, which was founded in 1958 at the request of bishops from what was then South Vietnam, belongs to the Holy See, who entrusted it to the Jesuits. The government has never

Dear Brethren and Friends,

The EU is to be the future protector of the Pope's Masonic Jewish Labor Zionist governors of Israel---the the Pope's medieval "Kingdom of Jerusalem."

When I was in Israel about two years ago, I was shown the new embassy of the Papal Nuncio in Jerusalem. On top of the building was the "Virgin Mary" in stainless steel with twelve stars above her head.

This twelve-starred "Virgin Mary" is Rome's perversion of Revelation 12:1-5. The woman of this passage of scripture is in fact the racial nation of Israel, the woman who brought forth the man-child to rule the nations with his rod of iron---the Lord Jesus Christ.

But as Rome sees it, the international Roman Catholic political nation (every Catholic is a citizen of Rome evidenced by the baptismal certificate) with its capital in Rome headed by a sovereign King---the Pope, will bring forth the man-child to rule all nations. That man will be the final Pope, proceeding forth from the "woman," he then to be killed with his deadly wound healed (like the Lord Jesus Christ) to then rule all nations as the beast from Jerusalem. Maybe all the Jesuit hype behind the DaVinci Code is to lay the groundwork for the lie that the final Pope will be a physical descendant of Rome's "Jesus Christ."

Rome's perversion of the Bible justifies its quest in making the final Pope the savior of Jerusalem---the secret title of Ignatius Loyola.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

Subject: THE EU FLAG AND ITS DECEPTION POWERED BY THE JESUITS

THE FLAG OF THE EU " European Union "

As I've stated, the European Leaders are members of the Satanic - Illuminati. The Euro-Dollar secretly managed by the Illuminati and Bilderberg Group. Of course, well-hidden orchestrated by the JESUIT-VATICAN conspiracy for the preparation into ONE WORLD GOVERNMENT UNDER ONE WORLD SUPER CURCH - The Roman Catholic Church.

You'll notice 12-Stars "Circular Pattern", you'll also notice the 12-Stars at the Head Of The Catholic's Virgin Mary and the actual photo of catholic's Virgin Mary with 12-Stars at her head during a parade in Malta. A sharp eye and sharp knowledge about the JESUIT-VATICAN will not escape the diabolic deception.

Please, see the attached photos and examine for yourselves.

Sincerely in faith to our Lord Jesus Christ

Do not forget that "Poppy" Bush, like Gerald Ford, is a Knight of Malta and hosted his Grand Master Andrew Bertie at the White House in 1991. The crimes of the Bush family can be traced right back to the Vatican---the Munich Jesuits being the power behind Hitler who in turn was financed by SMOMs Prescott Bush, Sr. and Fritz Thyssen. Thyssen was the intimate friend of SMOM Franz von Papen, the man who brought Hitler to power, negotiated the Concordat at the Vatican in 1933 and later was protected by Jesuit Edmund A. Walsh at Nuremberg resulting in his acquittal and release.

Thanks for this. The Order, via Bonesman and Freemason George W. Bush, has installed another one of its Masonic Court Jews as Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. But the ones who guard the Pope's gold in the New York branch of the Fed is usually a Gentile, a past president being CFR member and Knight of Malta, Irish Roman Catholic William J. McDonough.

Dear Brother Eric,

According to Wikipedia http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/John_J._DeGioia and <http://www.investigatingthemind.org/speakers.html#degioia>

CFR/SMOM Jesuit-trained John J. DeGioia is the first lay president of a Jesuit university anywhere in the world. It says a lot that the Order would do this in their Fourteenth Amendment American empire. It shows as the Company tightens their grip through their trusted third party the CFR and the secret societies all of which are under the command of the Black Pope, the Jesuits will become less and less visible. It wouldn't surprise me if some of the other 27 military fortresses were handed over to laymen (Jesuit Temporal Coadjutors) so the Jesuit priests won't appear in charge as they execute the final phase of their wicked plan-to consolidate their power over the 10 provinces (States) which will most likely conclude with a concordat with the Unholy See. In my next post, I'm going to talk about some things I found on the Pope's United Nations.

Notice folks how Blair is in BLACK and the Pope is in WHITE. Remember the significance of this which Eric Phelps informed us all about. There is no publicly known meeting with photographs for press which will ever have an elite in any other colour alongside the Pope. What we need is the 78th Grandmaster and Prince of the SMOM Cardinal Bertie to get annoyed with Blair and put out assassination orders. If only the American-French-Alliance had arrested Blair in the U.S last week, we could have all had a feast! -2tuff Prime Minister Tony Blair has had a private audience with Pope Benedict XVI at the Vatican.

They discussed how "moderate voices" from the world's main religions need to work together to tackle extremism and reduce the risk of terrorism.

Moves to end poverty in Africa were also discussed in their first meeting since the Pope succeeded John Paul II in April last year.

Mr Blair has already met Italian prime minister Romano Prodi during his visit.

The prime minister has been on holiday in Italy for a week, and has also met outgoing Italian prime minister Silvio Berlusconi.

'Religious extremism'

Mr Blair spoke privately in the pontiff's study for about 35 minutes.

Outlining the nature of the discussions held, a Downing Street spokesman said: "The prime minister and the Pope talked about the challenges of globalisation and the importance of dialogue between the faiths to battle extremism and terrorism.

"One of the themes of discussion was how the moderate voices in all the world's major religions need to stand up to religious extremism in all its forms."

Mr Blair stressed the importance of the international community during his conversation with the Pope.

In Mr Blair's last papal audience on the eve of the invasion of Iraq, he explained to the late Pope John Paul II the reasons why he thought a military attack on Saddam Hussein would be morally justified.

Blair invitation?

Iraq was also on the agenda when Mr Blair met his Italian counterpart Romano Prodi for talks on a range of issues in Rome.

The two leaders discussed the new Italian government's decision to withdraw troops from Iraq, which Mr Prodi reiterated would be done in consultation with the Iraqi and British governments.

The BBC's Christian Fraser said: "The big question is whether, in the course of this meeting, Mr Blair officially invited the Pope to England.

"The Catholic Bishops of England have already asked the Pope to come - an offer politely turned down. But if, as was expected, Mr Blair did bring up the subject then that invitation would be much harder to ignore."

The well-known Roman priest travelled to pray with his mother in their country chapel at Palestrina near Rome Wednesday night .

He broke off to change the flowers and the floor suddenly gave way as a previously undetected Roman well collapsed .

Father Claudio Rossi, 61, a Jesuit who was vice-rector at Rome University, plunged 100 feet (35 metres) to his death .

His 90-year-old mother was unharmed. Palestrina, a medieval hill town east of Rome, is famous as the birthplace of Renaissance composer Giovanni Pierluigi da Palestrina .

I wasn't sure what kind of structure they had, this answers some questions. This would seem to make sense, as they don't really consider themselves masons in the traditional sense, especially with the Catholic Church's anti-masonic stance. So you base yourselves on the Jesuits like the SS. Nice.

Funny how similar these guys look to masons, isn't it?

Around here in northeastern Ohio there's this Ebenezer Lodge...33rd-degree Freemasons. They even have a stretch of highway that they clean up (the Adopt-a-Highway)...and actually that's how I found out they exist, their sign on the highway...I think it's US 30, can't remember offhand.

And the obits around here, they do tell if someone was a Freemason or Knight of Columbus or a member of the Order of the Eastern Star--they put the symbol in the obit. And in Ohio you can get license plates with the Freemasonry symbol on it.

AVBibleBeliever - June 3, 2006 03:21 PM (GMT)

Notice the symbol of the Fourth Degree on the banner. It is no coincidence that the dove resembles that depicted on the Lamén of the O.T.O (Ordo Templi Orientis) which also has a system of Degrees being Masonic and thus controlled by the Black Pope.

<http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/en/f/f1/OTOlogo.gif>

http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/en/f...urth_degree.gif

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Knights_of_Columbus

(According to Wikipedia- U.S. Supreme Court Justice Samuel Alito is a Knight of Columbus which wouldn't surprise me)

The late Brother Alberto Rivera said the dove is a symbol the Jesuits use. As a child I attended a "Full" Gospel Word-Faith Charismatic church and its emblem was a cross and a dove. I remembered seeing Masonic square and compass pins on cars in the parking lot. I believe the leadership of the church was Masonic because not a word was uttered against the Jesuit Order or their Craft.

<http://www.angelfire.com/weird2/obscure2/cath.html> "Catholic Masonry"

According to the article: "In 1900 a fourth degree was added. This is known as the Patriotic Degree [ironic isn't it?] and its members are organised into Assemblies separate from the councils. Insofar as it was a later appendage to the original three degrees and its members are organised separately, the Patriotic Degree in many ways corresponds to the higher (or 'side') degrees of Freemasonry to which Masons qualify if (among other things) they have first progressed through the initial three degrees. In the case of the Knights of Columbus, a candidate for the Patriotic Degree must have been a Third degree initiate for at least a year before qualifying.

Moreover the Patriotic Degree has a quasi-military character. Members, or Worthy Sir Knights, as they are known, wear uniforms and participate in parades extolling the virtues of patriotism. As such the Patriotic Degree would seem to have some equivalence to the Masonic Knights Templar Degree (the most well known of several extant Masonic knightly grades). Indeed the Knights Templar is believed to be the inspiration for a host of quasi-military degrees which were created within American Fraternal organisations in the late nineteenth and early twentieth century, the Knights of Columbus' Patriotic Degree among them.

The author of the fourth degree ritual of the Knights of Columbus, William Harper Bennet, was subsequently responsible for establishing another Catholic Fraternity called the Order of Alhambra.

If the Knights of Columbus mirror the three basic degrees of Freemasonry plus a rough equivalent to the Masonic Knights Templar degree, then the Order of Alhambra represents a Roman Catholic version of the Shriners."

The Knights of Columbus is Catholic Freemasonry thus the similar look and structure of the secret society.

Colombe is the French word for dove, hence the use in their logo, also why they chose Christopher Columbus to 'discover' America, the photo opportunity version anyway. It's been used as a symbol of war, and it's used a hell of a lot in Catholic imagery.

Yes, there is a most important link and one that baffled me for years. Here is the story:

Pope Pius X came to the throne in 1846 and he was becoming known as a "liberal" Pope---thus "accursed" by the Council of Trent. In fact he sought to institute a Constitution with the Italian people as he was "King of the Papal States." This infuriated the Jesuits while at that time they were fomenting the Second communist French Revolution of 1848.

So, the Order used its high Italian masons, Mazzini and Garibaldi, to lead a revolt against the "liberal" Pope in Rome. Blaming these supposed "liberals," the Jesuits openly resisted the revolution appearing to side with Pius, convincing him to flee to Gaeta. For approximately 18 months, Rome had no Pope and thus the dungeons of the Roman Inquisition were opened to the horror of the Italian Catholics. Luigi Desantis records this most monumental event in his Popery, Puseyism and Jesuitism first written in 1852.

With Pio Nino in the hands of the Jesuits at his "safe house" in Gaeta, he was chastised and evidently became a complete ultramontane. Why this conclusion? In 1848 the Order caused a revolution in France overthrowing the great and liberal "Citizen King," Louis Philippe (1830-1848) who had expelled the Order in 1831. He was driven from the nation and his throne publicly burned. The man who then became president of the new Second Republic from 1848-1852 was none other than Napoleon's nephew, Charles "Louis Napoleon" Bonaparte. Advised by one of the most powerful Jesuits in France, he invaded Italy and brought back the Pope to Rome in 1849. This would be the end of Italian liberty until 1870 when Masonic Victor Emmanuel II would successfully attack Rome, take the temporal power from the Pope for which Victor was excommunicated and later poisoned. This successful Masonic resistance to Jesuit tyranny was due to what was then called "the Second Great Masonic Schism." Without that loss of Jesuit control over a certain faction of Masonry for a time, there would be no loss of the Pope's Temporal power restored by Mussolini in 1929. The Order then created the OTO to be at the apex of Masonic control. Two of those OTO men were Secretary of State to Pope Leo XIII, Cardinal Rampolla and Aleister Crowley.

Upon Pius' return to Rome he repudiated any concept of a Constitution for the Papal States and in 1852 the Order fomented a coup d'etat in France destroying the Second Republic making Charles "Emperor Napoleon III" ruling a new Second French Empire. It was at this time the French entered Vietnam with the Jesuits and their guillotines to behead the Buddhists while conducting the Black Pope's drug trade. Now the Pope had the complete protection of the French Empire (like the American Empire has been the Pope's protector since 1901), the Emperor and Empress being completely in the hands of the Black Pope.

In 1864 the Pope, whose "penholders were the Jesuits," issued his famous Bull which contained the Syllabus of Eighty Errors of Modern Civilization, one of those errors being religious freedom of conscience. This document was ultramontane and the heart of fascism---the Order's favorite form of government according to its La Civiltà Cattolica. From this document came Pius XII's Concordat with Hitler and thus the Third Reich.

The above lesson teaches us that when a Pope becomes disobedient, he may be punished with a chastisement using an open enemy that is secretly in alliance with the General. Meanwhile, the illusion that Masonry at the lower levels is an enemy of the Papacy was maintained when in fact at the upper levels it is a most wonderful tool of the General and his Assistants.

Remember also that Mazzini was the organizer of what is today the Pope's Italian Mafia, now the Black Pope's International Crime Syndicate in which certain low-level Jews are a part.

I trust this is helpful.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

Please. Eric Phelps is nothing more than a rabid anti catholic

Eric Phelps has many Catholic friends and links of which hes talked about many times. You obviously have an opinion without reading all available material which is very dangerous. Eric Phelps is against the high ranks of the Church of Rome and not the normal everyday Catholic follower.

His 'evidence' of the Jesuits being the controlling factor behind all the worlds evils is merely repeating the same old shite over and over again until it apparently becomes fact.

I smell gatekeeping of ones self with the above trying to keep a mystical group and mystery going. Its obvious you wish the conspiracy to be far more advanced and in-the-shadows than it really is. This is what the Jesuits utilise and love. People have been aware of the power of the Jesuit Order since its creation in 1536. The Jesuits initially didn't control the show but scared the hell out of Governments and the Reformation. Unfortunately for us all the Jesuits have taken control of almost all of the world and where they dont rule you will see the upcoming wars. Iraq threw out the Jesuits in 1969 and the Jesuits took revenge 22 and 34 years later. Iraq was one country who took a revenge beating from the Jesuits quicker than most, the Jesuits will wait as long as it takes to get their revenge and have done many times such as Germany, Japan and so forth. The U.K has been a good friend to the Jesuit Order by giving them safe haven in the now U.K powerhouse of Stonyhurst. I feel sorry for you if you cannot grasp the evidence and wish to follow stagnating never ending conspiracy disinformation. The world system we live in isn't controlled by hidden people anymore, they've been exposed by brave people and their the Jesuits and their now brothers SMOM. The world isn't controlled by Aliens, Reptiles or the Illuminati or whatever other fantasy, mythical, mystery keep you in the dark nonsense.

he Jesuits do not control the world any more than the Zionists, or the CFR, or the Bilderburgers, or committy of 300 do.

The Council on Foreign Relations rule the Americas, this is controlled by the Prince of the Americas and Sovereign Military of Malta leader for the Americas known as Cardinal Edward Egan. This position is always held by the Archbishop of New York at St Patricks Cathedral overseen by the Fordham University high rank Jesuits opposite, ultimately overseen by Georgetown University in Washington. Georgetown is the powerhouse of the Americas and this is why SMOM knight Tony Blair gave his new vision speech the other day from Georgetown amongst his Jesuit masters. Tony Blair's immediate masters are of course at Stonyhurst College in the U.K and his SMOM master is the Geulph QEII the leader of the SMOM in the U.K. All you have to do is look at who founded these organisations and who their subordinate too. Just look at who controls all the intelligence agencies of the world including astronomical you name it they control it. For godsake just look who the White House pay rent to in Rome. Lets take the Bilderberg for instance, who founded this? Jesuit Priest Joseph Retinger and Black Nobility/Roman Catholic/Linked to the last Roman Emperor Prince Bernhard. Now look at powerful King Juan Carlos of Spain who ordered puppets Bush and SMOM Blair to Spain just before the war in Iraq. Now whos this powerful person subordinate to? The Pope, Carlos is a Roman Catholic and a powerful SMOM controlled by the 78th Grandmaster & Prince, Cardinal Andrew Willoughby Ninian Bertie the cousin of QEII and her master also based in Rome. Who ultimately controls the City of London? No not Rothschilds but the Jesuit Order using its SMOM which can be linked to all the Banking system wether in New York, London, Switzerland or Dubai. The Jesuits used William the Orange to create the Bank of England and thus destroy England with a centralised bank. The Jesuits did exactly the same with America by introducing the Federal Reserve that was after they had to assassinate Astor and others who were firmly against the Jesuit infiltration. The committee of 300 are the Black Nobility families such as Giustinani, Agnelli & Oltramaine. The most powerful of the Black Nobility come from Italy and one time VENICE. The SMOM is made up of 50%+ Black Nobility and again look at their links to the Roman Empire and Catholicism. Remember the once head of the Black Nobility Prince Bernard was Roman Catholic and linked to the last emperor of Rome.

QUOTE

Thats right Zionists (Masonic Talmudic, Jesuit court jews/agents), CFR, Bilderberg do not control the world. Be careful when you talk of the Committee of 300 as these are the all powerful Black Nobility and cannot be compared to servants and think tanks like Bilderberg, CFR, Club of Rome etc. The facts are that the Church of Rome dominates planet Earth and the Company of Jesus rules the COR.

QUOTE

The real players are unknown and so far back into the shadows that not even a single one of their names are known.

Keep aiding the Company of Jesus by believeing this and putting your head in the sand. The Company has been very good at hiding till once again brave, patriotic, intelligent people have the balls to front these cretins.

Important post. Jesuit Coadjutor Alex Jones does tell the truth in certain details as does Jesuit Coadjutor Michael Collins Piper.

QUOTE

Dear JL,

Alex Jones is a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor. No one gets into the Bohemian Grove without permission! The Jesuits run the Grove as it is near one of their great havens, San Francisco. And yes, US presidents and congressmen and bankers can be seen at the Grove (called "Grovers") on a regular basis. Most of these men are Bonesmen, SMOM, high masons and CFR members.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

QUOTE

Dear Greg,

I believe the Order uses Alex Jones to foment further agitation among the masses---particularly the Whites as it is apparent that the other races really don't care about the future of this country. To do this tactic, a certain amount of truth must be told. What has been revealed concerning the Bohemian Grove by Jones is absolutely true. But he will never expose the true masters of the Grove. His purpose is to be an agent provocatur---nothing more. He has no answers from history or from the Scriptures.

This same tactic has been used by a host of other "fringe groups." For example, the "right wing" John Birch Society has told the truth about the Council on Foreign Relations since the 1950s. But the Society never went to the core of the power within the CFR, maybe because Robert Welch was a 32 degree Freemason and was baptized into the RCC on his deathbed---for a job well done. Welch really blamed the Jews for the control of the CFR which is a typical Jesuit tactic. In fact, the JBS spoke well of Jesuit Superior General Pedro Arrupe in Gary Allen's None Dare Call It Conspiracy.

Another example is the Black Panthers. Their Stokely Charmichael rightly pointed out the hateful racism against Blacks existing in predominantly White northern Roman Catholic cities---like NYC. The intent was to incite hateful Black racism first against all Whites and then ultimately against the Jews. The Jews were blamed for the high rents and high food prices in Harlem (indeed they were high prices evidenced by the documentary The Poor Pay More) as per Jesuit protocol. But when Stokely discovered that the leases of these apartment complexes were owned by Morgan and Rockefeller interests and started speaking out about it, he was driven from the Panthers and later moved to Africa.

If Alex Jones ever dares to tell the truth about the connection between the Knights of Malta, the Jesuits and the Bohemian Grove, he is finished. But as long as he can further the ecumenical agitation among historic White Middle classes (both Protestant and Catholic) intended to culminate in a Jesuit-led, right wing, fascist military coup d'etat, Jones will be in the forefront of the Order's "infowars."

It is for this reason that Alex Jones will NEVER host anyone on his show that deals with the Jesuit Order. The same holds true for the White Jesuit Temporal Coadjutors Michael Collins Piper, Victor Thorne and Hal Turner. NEVER will any of them entertain the past history of the Jesuit Order or the Knights of Malta---"the most exclusive club on earth," according to Stephen Birmingham, author of Real Lace: America's Irish Rich.

What About Vatican II?
by David J. Stewart

This article just scratches the surface of Vatican II. A person does not need to read very far into Vatican II to find unbiblical teachings...damnable heresies to be exact. The Bible plainly teaches that salvation is obtained through Jesus Christ alone! It is Jesus' blood that washes our sins away, NOTHING else. Vatican II ADDS religious "works" to faith in Christ, thereby making Catholicism a false religion.

VATICAN II

DOGMATIC CONSTITUTION OF THE CHURCH
LUMEN GENTIUM

Proclaimed By His Holiness Pope Paul VI on November 21, 1964
From Chapter Two: The People Of God

Vatican II

"By convening the Ecumenical Council called Vatican II, the Pope set in motion ideas and forces that will affect world's ever-expanding population--Jan. 4, 1963" -TIME LIFE

The following quote is taken from Vatican II...

"This holy Council first of all turns its attention to the Catholic faithful. Basing itself on scripture and tradition, it teaches that the Church, a pilgrim now on earth, is necessary for salvation: the one Christ is mediator and the way of salvation; he is present to us in his body which is the Church. He himself explicitly asserted the necessity of faith and baptism (cf. Mk. 16:16; John 3:5), and thereby affirmed at the same time the necessity of the Church which men enter through baptism as through a door. Hence they could not be saved who, knowing that the Catholic Church was founded as necessary by God through Christ, would refuse either to enter it, or to remain in it."

What Blasphemy! I have several things to say in response to the lies and garbage Pope Paul VI said:

1. Pope Paul VI says a person cannot be saved who refuses to enter the Catholic church.

Show me that in the Bible! Show me one verse that says you have to enter (or join) a religious organization to be saved. Jesus said, "him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out" (John 6:37). The Bible says nothing about coming to Christ through anything or anyone. We are taught to come DIRECTLY to Christ. "For there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus" (1 Timothy 2:5). Has Pope Paul VI lost his mind? The Bible clearly states that there is only ONE person between us and God the Father--The Lord Jesus Christ. Notice: Pope Paul VI specifically mentioned the "CATHOLIC" church. So if you join a Baptist church, your going to hell. How wicked to attach anything to simple faith in Christ.

2. Pope Paul VI also said that a person could not be saved if he or she refused to remain in the Catholic church.

Again, show me that in the Bible? There is no such teaching in God's Word. Our salvation is based upon faith in Christ alone, not anything else. "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: Not of works, lest any man should boast" (Ephesians 2:8,9). Salvation is a free gift from God, paid for by the precious blood of Jesus Christ. All we have to do is admit our sinfulness and turn to Christ in faith; thus, receiving His free gift of forgiveness for our sins and eternal life. If you never step foot into ANY church, you can go to heaven my friend. The way is through Jesus Christ.

3. Pope Paul VI says that baptism is a door by which we enter into the Catholic church, which he says is essential to salvation.

First, no church is essential for our salvation. Second, no baptism is essential for our salvation. Listen to the words of the Apostle Paul, "For Christ sent me not to baptize, but to preach the gospel..." (1 Corinthians 1:17). If baptism were necessary for salvation, Paul never would have said such a thing. No my friend, baptism is NOT necessary to be saved. The thief on the cross was not baptized. The only DOOR which you should be concerned about is the TRUE DOOR, JESUS CHRIST--"I am the door: by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture" (John 10:9). Again, how wicked for Pope Paul VI to teach people that baptism is the door, when in reality Jesus Christ is the ONLY door. The Catholic religion is an arrogant, pompous and stiff-necked religion that boasts itself against God. The Catholic church is a human organization that is far too big for it's own britches. The Pope thinks he's infallible, but he's a big sinner just like you and me. The priests, bishops and cardinals of the Catholic system have lied to billions of people over the centuries, convincing folks that the church is the way to heaven. No, my friend, the church is a sure road to hell-fire and damnation. Salvation is not found in a religion friend, it is found in a person--The Lord Jesus Christ! Religion is the worst thing that has ever happened to this sin-cursed world. Religion binds men and women into spiritual slavery--The blind leading the blind into the depths of the lake of fire. Oh, don't be foolish my friend, turn to Jesus!

In closing, VATICAN II is Satanic all the way around, no matter how you look at it. In the 1960's, the Catholic church decided to repackage it's heresy to make it more appealing to protestants. The result was Vatican II. You can do a web search on "Vatican 2" and read about it yourself if you'd like, but be warned--It is the most boring stuff you'll ever read (a sure cure for insomnia). I could easily write a large book on all that's wrong with Vatican II, but the article I have shared with you pretty much sums it all up--The Catholic church thinks it is God. Vatican 2 is of the devil.

The Papacy officially endorsed Islam in the Vatican II Council.

"3. The Church regards with esteem also the Moslems. They adore the one God, living and subsisting in Himself; merciful and all- powerful, the Creator of heaven and earth, (5) who has spoken to men; they take pains to submit wholeheartedly to even His inscrutable decrees, just as Abraham, with whom the faith of Islam takes pleasure in linking itself, submitted to God. Though they do not acknowledge Jesus as God, they revere Him as a prophet. They also honor Mary, His virgin Mother; at times they even call on her with devotion. In addition, they await the day of judgment when God will render their deserts to all those who have been raised up from the dead. Finally, they value the moral life and worship God especially through prayer, almsgiving and fasting."

Researcher And Historian Claims New World Order With Help From Vatican And Jesuits Are Destroying Philippines

Bobby G. Limeta says the same thing is happening in America, but observers claim media and government are protecting the real enemy.

2 Jun 2006

By Greg Szymanski

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/2-June-2006.html>

When it comes to nailing the real enemy in America, the suppression of speech and the free flow of information has become a joke.

And while the fat cats are laughing, the country has become a caldron of confusion, hatred and deception, leaving most good men shaking their heads at all the two-faced, back-stabbing cowards in positions of governmental and media power.

A 90-year-old reader former German from Blythe, California, who survived Stalin, Mussolini, Churchill, FDR and Hitler, put it well when he said: "I can't even stomach listening or looking at Bush and his corrupt media friends. I felt the same way about Hitler and the same thing is happening here, but Americans are too fat and blind to care or see anything."

So the search for America's real enemy is deflected, side-tracked, derailed and stonewalled by the thousands of New World Order minions, protecting the big shots at the top.

With that in mind, to fight the New World Order, the enemy from within must first be exposed. And according to many good patriots, most of them silenced by the corrupted media, a discussion of the real enemy within, including the Illuminati and Zionists, is totally outrageous and incomplete without including the Vatican and the Jesuit Order.

However, every once in a blue moon a courageous man comes forward who is unafraid of the powerful evil forces protecting the Vatican and Jesuits. And every once in awhile a man steps forward with solid information, helping to connect the dots and helping Americans wade through the crock of horse manure spread out on the air waves and in Washington.

In this case, the man is historian Bobby G. Limeta of the Philippines, who has chronicled, studied and closely observed the Jesuit Order since 1990, saying:

"The Philippines was dilapidated, looted and now an impoverished nation because of the conspiracies made by some elite peoples, priests and nuns that are controlled by the Jesuits. Today, political crisis & intrigues, social agitations, street marches-protests-rallies, and rebellions are very common in the Republic of the Philippines. These arenas are the expertise of the Jesuit Order."

Limeta, who closely monitors the nefarious activities of the so-called God-loving Society of Jesus in the Philippines, warns Americans if the Jesuits would have their dirty hands in destroying his country, they are doing the exact same thing in America.

"I also said it many times on my written articles that no other entities in the world could parallel the diabolic works of the Jesuits," said Limeta, adding Americans are also being conned, duped and sold down the river by the cunning and deceptive Jesuits, hiding behind the cloak of the clergy and their third party governmental and business counterparts in crime.

So if the Jesuits and the Vatican are the spiritual controllers of the New World Order, why have they been given a free-ride in America to do whatever they want without even the slightest bit of attention?

Limeta and other researchers say they are protected by their third party governmental, business and media lackeys, allowing them to operate behind the scenes as the black robes of the clergy provide the perfect cover.

In an effort to expose what Limeta calls the "evil Jesuits," he provides 18 points of reference concerning how the Jesuits actively are destroying the Philippines, saying this gives more than an adequate reason to investigate their activities in America:

Here is Limeta's list concerning The Republic of the Philippines of The Jesuit Order:

1. The two people power EDSA Revolution are the works of the Jesuits. Overthrew two presidents "Ferdinand Marcos & Joseph Estrada.

2. President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo 'GMA' is a Jesuit educated at the Jesuit owned Ateneo de Manila and Georgetown University (Fr. Edmund A. Walsh School Of Foreign Service).

3. GMA and Fr. Romeo Intengan (former Jesuit Provincial Superior In The Philippines) are sometimes having secret meetings at the Jesuit House in Quezon City, Manila.

4. Fr. Romeo Intengan is GMA's spiritual and religious adviser.

5. GMA's National Security Adviser Mr. Norberto Gonzales & Fr. Romeo Intengan are the founders of Partido Demokratiko Sosyalista Ng Pilipinas (PDSP) to combat Marcos regime.

6. The Jesuits introduced and brought the Theory of Liberation here in the Philippines. The same theology that had havoc in Nicaragua by the Sandinista Rebels. Because, of this Liberation Theology, there are now approximately 2,000 priests and nuns who are radicals and secretly supporting and associating themselves to the communist rebels in the Philippines. The same theology that resulted into the establishment of the Communist Party Of The Philippines - New Peoples Army (CPP-NPA) headed by Jose Maria Sison. Followed by the National Democratic Front (NDF) headed by Fr. Luis Jalandoni. Both these men are exiled in Netherlands.

7. Liberation Theology is being taught at the Jesuit owned Ateneo de Manila University under "Curriculum 141 Immersion Program". The reason, many young students become very subversive against the Philippine government. This theology is the result of the creation of various anti-government militant organizations or groups "Communist Ideology."

8. The Jesuits are the real master-minds of the terrorist movement known as the "Light A Fire Movement" during Marcos regime, as per confession by their former obedient follower named Mr. Ed Olaguer. Mr. Olaguer admitted that the Jesuits together with Mr. Norberto Gonzales are the people giving secret directives for planting bombs and arsons in various parts of the country during Marcos regime.

9. Another cohort of the Jesuits is former president Cory Aquino who allowed Jesuit Fr. Joaquin Bernas to touch and amend our beloved 1987 Philippine constitution. Fr. Joaquin Bernas is Ateneo's Constitutionalist.

10. The Jesuits are the educators of our past, recent and present leaders (Presidents, Senators, Congressman, Businessmen, Rich & Elite Families). Who are controlling the sideshow of Philippine politics and behind them are the Jesuits.

11. Ateneo de Manila University oversees government functions like Georgetown University. This university is the secret meeting place for political agendas where dark motives are planned.

12. Fr. Integan is member of the Transition Government Committee for the smooth transition of President Estrada for the new in-coming president of the republic "GMA".

13. Both GMA and Norberto Gonzales are my pin-pointed Jesuit temporal co-adjutor.

14. Our Supreme Court Justices are members of the Knights Of Columbus. A Jesuit founded society. I call it "Philippine SupremeCourt of the Knights Of Columbus by the Jesuit Order.

15. Two former senators and some in secret are members of the Jesuit's arm "Opus Dei".

16. OSS/CIA Agent Col. Severino Santa Romana a.k.a. Reverend Fr. Jose Antonio Diaz (Opus Dei) together with Atty. Ferdinand Marcos who become Philippine President and also one of their associate ex-priest Fr. Marcelino Tagle are the culprits in looting of Philippine gold out of the vaults of the Central Bank Of The Philippines.

17. Marcos friend Spanish-Filipino Mestizo Billionaire Don Enrique Zobel de Ayala, their idea to create a foundation for Marcos ill-gotten wealth. Who was the trustee, it was the Vatican Trust managed by Archbishop Bruno Torpiglianni (Papal Nuncio) and Fr. Alarcon of De La Salle University Jesuit Brothers.

18. Yesterday, former president Joseph Estrada strongly accused that his overthrew legitimate government was done by conspiracy works of the following people. Fidel Ramos - former Philippine President Elite Businessmen Lopez & Ayala Rich Families. Some Military & Police Generals Jaime Cardinal Sin - the late Archbishop of Manila to include Cory Aquino and GMA's husband, Miguel Arroyo.

Hidden Book By Samuel Morse Written In 1835 Gives Important Clues About Real Culprits Behind The New World Order

A look at history quickly warns The Vatican's role in the NWO must be considered just as they were in 1835 when the liberties of America were being threatened.

1 Jun 2006

By Greg Szymanski

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/1-June-2006.html>

A book written in 1835 by Samuel Morse, called Foreign Conspiracy Against the Liberties of the United States, nails the Jesuits and the Vatican right to the wall as the main culprits behind a hidden agenda to overthrow the newly formed American Republic.

The inventor of the Morse Code and true patriot, Morse provided overwhelming facts that an attack on the liberties of America were underway by the despotic Austrian government and other European monarchies, using the Papacy through the evil and wicked hands of the Jesuit Order to organize and carry out the dirty work.

Morse's writings first appeared in installments in the New York Observer and were fully endorsed by James Milner, Thomas De Witt, N. Bangs and Jonathan Going, four top representatives of Protestant denominations, including Episcopal, Presbyterian, Methodist and Baptist.

And before Morse's installments in the Observer were reprinted in the Zion's Herald, a Methodist paper published in Boston, the four religious leaders had this to say about the articles appearing under the pen name of Brutus, written by Morse who had resided for a long time in Italy and Austria.

Gentlemen,-Learning that you are about to publish in a small volume, the articles, signed Brutus, (which recently appeared in the New-York Observer, showing that a conspiracy is formed against the United States by the Papal powers of Europe,) the undersigned, who read those articles with interest, have great satisfaction in expressing their approbation of your undertaking. These articles are written by a gentleman of intelligence and candor, who has resided in the south of Europe, and enjoyed the best opportunities for acquaintance with the topics on which he writes.

While we disapprove of harsh, denunciatory language towards Roman Catholics, their past history, and the fact that they every where act together, as if guided by one mind, admonish us to be jealous of their influence, and to watch with unremitting care all their movements in relation to our free institutions. As this work is now to be published in a portable form, and with additional notes by the author, we hope it may obtain an extensive circulation and a careful perusal.

In an effort to recapture a lost section of American history, listen as Morse draws an important distinction between Protestantism and the Popery as well as holding the Jesuit Order accountable for serious wrongdoings. And if history be our guide, a serious question must also be asked: Why would anything change in modern day America and why is the Popery and the Jesuit Order given a free ride by the secular press, considering their questionable and deceptive past?

Morse writes:

"I EXPOSED in my last chapter the remarkable coincidence of the tenets of Popery with the principles of despotic government, in this respect so opposite to the tenets of Protestantism; Popery, from its very nature, favoring despotism, and Protestantism, from its very nature, favoring liberty. Is it not then perfectly natural that the Austrian government should be active in supporting Catholic missions in this country? Is it not clear that the cause of Popery is the cause of despotism?

"But there is another most striking and important difference between Popery and Protestantism, in their bearing upon the liberties of the country. No one of the Protestant sects owns any head out of this country, or is governed in any of its concerns by any men or set of men in a foreign land. All ecclesiastical officers are nominated and appointed or removed by the people of the United States. No foreign body has any such union with any sect of Protestants in the United States, as even to advise, much less to control any of its measures. Our Episcopalians appoint their own bishops without consulting the church of England; our Presbyterians are entirely independent of the church of Scotland ; and our Wesleyan Methodists have no ecclesiastical connection with the disciples of Wesley in the old world. But how is it in these respects with the Catholics? The right of appointing to all ecclesiastical offices in this country, as every where else, is in the Pope, (now a mere creature of Austria. He claims the power, as we have seen, by divine right. All the bishops, and all the ecclesiastics down to the most insignificant officer in the church, are from the genius of the system entirely under his control. And he, of course, will appoint none to office but those who will favor the views of Austria. He will require all whom he appoints, to support the agents whom Austria is sending to this country for the accomplishment of her own purposes.

"And who are these agents? They are, for the most part Jesuits, an ecclesiastical order, proverbial through the world for cunning, duplicity, and total want of moral principle; an order so skilled in all the arts of deception that even in Catholic countries, in Italy itself, it became intolerable, and the people required its suppression. They are Jesuits in the pay and employ of a despotic government, who are at work on the ignorance and passions of our community; they are foreigners, who have been schooled in foreign seminaries in the doctrine of passive obedience; they are foreigners under vows of perpetual celibacy, and having, therefore, no deep and permanent interest in this country; they are foreigners, bound by the strong ties of pecuniary interest and ambition, to the service of a foreign despot. Footnote: The foreign Emissaries of Popery rewarded in their own country. This is a matter deserving of serious attention. Where now is Bishop Cheverus, who passed about fourteen years in Boston? He was a foreigner, with no ties to this country, paid for his services by a foreign government, he had a duty to his foreign masters to perform. What that duty was, may now easily be conjectured. Boston, as the capital of New-England, was considered at the time he arrived, the strong hold of Protestant, of Anti-Popish principles. Popery was there, and throughout New-England, held in the greatest abhorrence, for to Popery may be traced, though remotely, yet clearly, the persecutions which drove the Pilgrim fathers to this country. The history of those fathers, for ages previous, is but the history of hard fought battles, to wrest from Popish usurpation those invaluable rights, civil and religious, which they fled to this wilderness securely to enjoy. Ere popery then could expect to gain foothold among the descendants of the persecuted Puritans, their almost innate abhorrence to popery must be overcome. What plan could be better devised to accomplish the end, than to send the mild, conciliating, gentle Bishop to demonstrate by his example and his teaching, that Popery was not that monster their fathers had taught them to believe it to be, or at least that now the tyrant had grown mild and tolerant. If this were the design, no plan could have been more successful. Who that has visited Boston, does not know the epithets with which Bishop Cheverus' name is coupled. The good bishop, the liberal bishop, the excellent, pious, tolerant, mild bishop. Now all this might have been and perhaps is true of the bishop. The instrument was well chosen, his duty was well accomplished, and he receives the reward of a faithful servant from his foreign masters, in a translation to the wealthy archbishopric of Bordeaux.

"Again, where is Bishop Dubourg, of New-Orleans? He has resided in this heathen land his stated time, and having accomplished the duty prescribed to him is translated to the Bishopric of Montauban, in France.

"And again, where is Bishop Kelly, of Richmond, Va.? He also sojourns with us until his duties to foreign masters are performed, and then is rewarded by promotion at home to the Bishopric of Waterford and Lismore.

"And where, soon will be that busy, pompous Jesuit, who has been so often announced as passing and re-passing between Rome, Vienna, and the United States, Bishop England? If report speaks truth, he is soon to be rewarded for his services in the cause of his foreign masters with a Cardinal's hat. The following from the Dublin Freeman's Journal, preceded by a nauseous mass of fulsome compliment, gives substance to the report:—"After escorting these ladies (some nuns) to Charleston, Dr. England proceeds without delay as Legate from the Pope to Hayti, over the ecclesiastical affairs of which republic he carries with him from the Holy See the most full and unlimited powers; from which we confidently trust ere long he will again return to Europe, to receive as some reward for all his labors and services, a Cardinal's hat; for instead of receiving dignity from, should such an appointment take place, Dr. England will confer dignity upon the sacred purple."

"Now in view of these instances of services in this country, rewarded by appointments in Europe, the question naturally occurs: What interest have these servants of a foreign despotism in the free institutions of this country? What sympathies with American liberty can these foreigners have, educated, as they have been in their own country, in the principles of despotic institutions, living but temporarily in this country, (whose entire political system is diametrically opposed to their whole education,) and looking forward, after their task is performed, to a recal to comfortable benefices and high places of profit and honor at home, to rewards devised by Austria and the Pope, and meted out to their faithful advocates according to the zeal and devotion manifested to their interests? What would be said of the Episcopalian, or Presbyterian, or Methodist, or Baptist clergy, were they announced as foreigners sent from England, who after a short sojourn of active service in this country, were known to be recalled and promoted in their own country, to be Bishops, and dignified officers under the British government? Is there no danger to our free institutions from a host commanded by such men, whose numbers are constantly increasing by the machinations and funds of Austria?

"Consider, too, the power which these Jesuits and other Catholic priests possess through the confessional, of knowing the private characters and affairs of all the leading men in the community; the power arising from their right to prescribe the kinds and degrees of penance; and the power arising from the right to refuse absolution to those who do not comply with their commands. Suppose such powers were exercised by the ministers of any other sect, the Episcopalian, the Methodist, the Presbyterian, the Baptist, &c. what an outcry would be raised in the land! And should not the men who possess such powers be jealously watched by all lovers of liberty?

"Is it possible that these Jesuits can have a sincere attachment to the principles of free institutions? Do not these principles oppose a constant barrier to their exercise of that arbitrary power, which they claim as a divine right, and which they exercise too in all countries where they are dominant? Can it not be perceived, that although they may find it politic for the present to conceal their anti-republican tenets, yet this concealment will be merely temporary, and is only adopted now, the better to lull suspicion? Is it not in accordance with all experience of Popish policy, that Jesuits should encroach by little and little, and persevere till they have attained to plenitude of power. At present they have but one aim in this country, which absorbs all others, and that is to make themselves popular. If they succeed in this we shall then learn, when too late to remedy the evil, that Popery abandons none of its divine rights. The leaders of this sect are disciplined and organized, and have their adherents entirely subservient to their will. Here then is a regular party, a religious sect, ready to throw the weight of its power, as circumstances may require, ready to favor any man, or set of men, who will engage to favor it.

"And to whom do these leaders look for their instructions? Is it to a citizen or body of citizens belonging to this country; is it to a body of men kept in check by the ever jealous eyes of other bodies around them, and by the immediate publicity which must be given to all their doings? No, they are men owning no law on this side of the ocean; they are the Pope and his Consistory of Cardinals, following the plans and instructions of the imperial cabinet of Austria, -plans formed in the secret councils of that cabinet, instructions delivered in secret, according to the modes of despotism, to their obedient officers, and distributed through the well disciplined ranks in this country, to be carried into effect in furtherance of any political designs the Austrian cabinet may think advantageous to its own interests. And will these designs be in favor of liberty? With a party thus formed and disciplined among us, who will venture to say that our elections will not be under the control of a Metternich, and that the appointment of a President of the United States will not be virtually made in the Imperial Cabinet of Vienna, or the Consistory of Cardinals at Rome? Will this be pronounced incredible? It will be the almost certain result of the dominion of Popery in this country."

After listening to Morse's words it is inconceivable how the same parties can be ignored when discussing or searching for the real culprits involved in a similar conspiracy to overthrow the liberties of the American people going on today.

The question must also be asked is there a concerted effort now to hide the true intentions of the Vatican, the Jesuits and their third party governmental and corporate conspirators, together trying to destroy America like they tried to do in the early 1800's?

In order to recapture a part of lost history, here is a synopsis of the major chapters and the prefatory remarks by Morse, which has been purposely kept off of library bookshelves and purposely deleted from most university history classes.

CHAPTER I

The first impressions of the improbability of a Foreign conspiracy considered-Present political condition of Europe favors an enterprise against our institutions-The war of opinions commenced; Despotism against liberty-The vicissitudes of this war-Official declarations of the despotic party against all liberty-Necessity to the triumph of Despotism that American liberty should be destroyed-The kind of attack most likely to be adopted from the nature of the contest-Reasons why our institutions are obnoxious to European governments-Has the attack commenced? Yes! by Austria-Through a Society called the St. Leopold Foundation-Ostensibly religious in its design.

CHAPTER II

Political character of the Austrian government-The old avowed enemy of Protestant liberty-Character of the people of Austria, slaves-Character of Prince Metternich, the arch contriver of plans to stifle liberty-These enemies of all liberty suddenly anxious for the civil and religious liberty of the United States-The absurdity of their ostensible design exposed-The avowed objects of Austria in the Leopold Foundation-Popery the instrument to act upon our institutions.

CHAPTER III

Popery in its political not its religious character the object of the present examination-The fitness of the instrument to accomplish the political designs of despotism-The principles of a Despotic and a Free government briefly contrasted-Despotic principles fundamental in Popery-Infallible testimony adduced-Papal claims of divine right and plenitude of power-Abject principles of Popery illustrated from the Russian Catechism-Protestantism from its birth in favor of Liberty-Luther on the 4th of July attacks the presumptuous claim of divine right-Despotism and Popery united against liberty of conscience, liberty of opinion, and liberty of the press-The anti-republican declarations of the present Pope Gregory XVI.

CHAPTER IV

The cause of Popery and Despotism identical-A striking difference between Popery and Protestantism as they exist in this country-American Protestantism not controlled by foreign Protestantism-American Popery entirely under foreign control-Jesuits, the foreign agents of Austria, bound by the strongest ties of interest to Austrian policy, not American-Their dangerous power, unparalleled to any Protestant sect-Our free institutions opposed in their nature to the arbitrary claims of Popery-Duplicity to be expected-Political dangers to be apprehended from Popish organization-American Popery uncontrolled by Americans, or in America-Managed in a foreign country by a foreign power for political purposes-Consequences that may easily result from such a state of things.

CHAPTER V

Points in our political system which favor this foreign attack-Our toleration of all religious systems-Popery opposed to all toleration-Charge of intolerance substantiated-The organization of Popery in America connected with and strengthened by foreign organization-Without a parallel among Protestant sects-Great preponderance of Popish strength in consequence-The divisions among Protestant sects nullifies their attempts at combination-Taken advantage of by Jesuits-Popish duplicity illustrated in its opposite alliances in Europe with despotism, and in America with democracy-The laws relating to immigration and naturalization favor foreign attack-Emigrants being mostly Catholic and in entire subjection to their priests-No remedy provided by our laws for this alarming evil.

CHAPTER VI

The evil from immigration further considered-Its political bearings-The influence of emigrants at the elections-This influence concentrated in the priests-The Priests must be propitiated; by what means-This influence easily purchased by the demagogue-The unprincipled character of many of our politicians favor this foreign attack-Their bargain for the suffrages of this priest-led band-A church and state party-The Protestant sects obnoxious to no such bargaining-the newspaper press favors this foreign attack; from its want of independence, and its timidity-An anti-republican fondness for titles, favors this foreign attack-Cautious attempts of Popery to dignify its emissaries and to accustom us to their high-sounding titles-A mistaken notion on the subject of discussing religious opinion in the secular journals, favors this foreign attack-Political designs not to be shielded from attack because cloaked by Religion.

CHAPTER VII

The political character of this ostensibly religious enterprise proved from the letters of the Jesuits now in this country-Their antipathy to private judgment-Their anticipations of a change in our form of government-Our government declared too free for the exercise of their divine rights-Their political partialities-Their cold acknowledgment of the generosity, and liberality, and hospitality of our government-Their estimate of our condition contrasted with their estimate of that of Austria-Their acknowledged allegiance and servility to a foreign master-Their sympathies with the oppressor, and not with the oppressed-Their direct avowal of political design.

CHAPTER VIII

Some of the means by which Jesuits can already operate politically in the country-By mob discipline-By priest police-Its great danger-Already established-Proofs-Priests already rule the mob-Nothing in the principles of Popery to prevent its interference in our elections-Popery interferes at the present day in the political concerns of other countries-Popery the same in our country-It interferes in our elections-In Michigan-In Charleston, S. C.-In New-York-Popery a political despotism cloaked under the name of Religion-It is Church and State embodied-Its character at head-quarters in Italy-Its political character stripped of its religious cloak.

CHAPTER IX

Evidence enough of conspiracy adduced to create great alarm-The cause of liberty universally demands that we should awake to a sense of danger-An attack is made which is to try the moral strength of the Republic-The mode of defense that might be consistently recommended by Austrian Popery-A mode now in actual operation in Europe-Contrary to the entire spirit of American Protestantism-True mode of defense-Popery must be opposed by antagonist institutions-Ignorance must be dispelled-Popular ignorance of all Papal countries-Popery the natural enemy of general education-Popish efforts to spread education in the United States delusive.

CHAPTER X

All classes of citizens interested in resisting the efforts of Popery-The unnatural alliance of Popery and Democracy exposed-Religious liberty in danger-Specially in the keeping of the Christian community-They must rally for its defence-The secular press has no sympathy with Protestants; in this struggle it is opposed to them-The Political character of Popery ever to be kept in mind and opposed-It is for the Papist not the Protestant to separate his religious from his political creed-Papists ought to be required publicly and formally and officially to renounce foreign allegiance and anti-republican customs.

CHAPTER XI

The question what is the duty of the Protestant community? considered-Shall there be an Anti-Popery Union? The strong manifesto that might be put forth by such a union-Such a political union discarded as impolitic and degrading to the Protestant community-Golden opportunity for showing the moral energy of the republic-The lawful and efficient weapons of this contest-To be used without delay.

CHAPTER XII

The Political duty of American citizens at this crisis.

PREFATORY REMARKS By Morse.

THE following Numbers written for the New-York Observer in the beginning of the year

1834, and during several weeks of confinement by indisposition, have been, perhaps, more extensively copied into the religious journals of the different Christian denominations than any communications, (with perhaps a single exception,) of the same extent since the establishment of religious newspapers; and although the subject matter is almost altogether political, giving proofs of a serious foreign conspiracy against the government, yet the writer is not aware that a single secular journal in the United States has taken the pains to investigate the matter, or even to ask if indeed there may not be good grounds for believing it true. The silence of the secular press on a subject which has roused the attention of so large a body of the Protestant community may indeed be accounted for in part, perhaps altogether, from the all engrossing election contests which have agitated the country from one extremity of the land to the other; for the writer would certainly be very reluctant to adopt the belief, which has repeatedly been urged upon him by many, that the secular journals dare not attack Popery; he will not believe that dare not ever stood in the way of the duty of any patriotic independent conductor of the American press. Footnote: A friend to whom this part was read smiled, and said "you are sufficiently guarded in your language, but how many patriotic independent conductors of the American press are there? Can you name one?"

At the solicitation of many citizens without distinction of religious denomination or of political party, the writer has consented to collect the numbers into a pamphlet, adding notes illustrative of many matters which could not so well have been introduced into the columns of a newspaper.

That a vigorous and unexampled effort is making by the despotic governments of Europe to cause Popery to overspread this country, is a fact too palpable to be contradicted. Did not official documents lately published, put this fact beyond dispute, yet the writer had personal evidence sufficient to convince him of the fact and of the political object of the enterprise, while residing in Italy in the years 1830-31, from conversations with nobles and gentlemen of different countries, with the officers of various foreign governments, visiting and resident in the Roman and Austrian states, and with priests and other ecclesiastics of the Roman faith. Sometimes it was hinted to him as a check to too sanguine anticipations of the triumph of the experiment of our democratic republican government; sometimes it was told him by the former class in a tone of exultation that a cause was in operation which would surely overthrow our institutions and gradually bring us under a form of government less obnoxious to the pride, and less dangerous to the existence, of the antiquated despotic systems of Europe. In addition to these hints to the writer, concerning the efforts making by the governments of Europe to carry Popery through all our borders, other American travellers will testify to similar hints made to them. By one I am permitted to say, that the celebrated naturalist, the late Baron Cuvier, known also as a zealous Protestant, inquired of him with marks of concern, if it were indeed true that Popery had made such progress in the United States, as to cause the exultation (which it seems was no secret) among the legitimates of Europe. And again, that a distinguished member of one of the Protestant German embassies, in Rome also made similar inquiries of him, having heard much boasting of the progress of Popery in the United States, adding this pertinent remark, "they will be hammer or nails, Sir, they will persecute, or be persecuted." These facts may be of so much importance in aid of the other proofs of a conspiracy which these numbers unfold, as to show that among the various higher classes of Europe the enterprise of a Popish crusade in this country is not only a subject of notoriety, but is viewed with great interest, and is considered as having a most important political bearing.

In the following numbers the writer has chosen to rest the evidence of conspiracy mainly on official documents published in Vienna, because they have been translated and published, Footnote: In the New-York Observer, of the months of January, February, 1834 and are within the reach of any citizen of the country who chooses more closely to examine them. He has also availed himself of facts in the operations of Popish agents in this country, so far as their workings have been occasionally revealed.

The writer will add in conclusion, that he writes not in the interest of a sect or a party, for the question of Popery is not identified with either political party. He has lived too long in foreign countries to be able to identify himself with the local interests of mere party at home, whether in religion or politics. The great democratic features of his country's institutions, as contradistinguished from the despotic, monarchical and aristocratic systems of Europe, were admired by him as they appeared more boldly relieved, viewed from abroad in such striking contrast to all around him; and he is thoroughly persuaded that these democratic institutions, if suffered to have their unobstructed course, unobstructed except by the natural checks of education and religion actively and universally diffused and sustained, are more favorable to civil liberty and to the final triumph of truth, and consequently to human happiness, than any other civil institutions in the world. The writer entertaining these views has deemed it an imperative duty, at any sacrifice, to warn his countrymen, of a subtle enemy to the democracy of the country, and to conjure them as they value their civil and religious institutions, to watch the Protean shapes of Popery, to suspect and fear it most when it allies itself to our interests in the guise of a friend. Mistrust of all that Popery does, or affects to do, whether as a friend or foe in any part of the country, is the only feeling that true charity, universal charity, allows us to indulge.

NEW-YORK, January, 1835.

Description: Most Likely the Next Black Pope

AVBibleBeliever - May 28, 2006 05:55 PM (GMT)

Dear Brethren in the Lord Jesus Christ and Dear Truth-Seekers,

I think a photo has already been posted here but if not it's here now.

Regularly, I've been looking for a face to go with the next Black Pope Elias Royon Lara SJ. I did a Google search and found a photo of this Spanish Luciferian.

http://www.conferenciaepiscopal.es/activid...04/julio_21.htm

(This article is in Spanish-I don't know much Spanish but I could try and do a rough translation-if someone here could translate to English and post the short article I'm sure we could learn quite a bit from it.)

There's also Babelfish, I think it's at AltaVista.com.

I had 6 years of Spanish...maybe I could have at it....

AVBibleBeliever - June 1, 2006 06:23 PM (GMT)

Thank you sister for pointing out Altavista's Babelfish I forgot about that and I appreciate your offer to translate it. Babelfish is most helpful and used it to translate to items I found online about Jesuit Lara. What is interesting about the translation is the name "Jesuit" did not translate to English and remained as "jesuita"

Below is the English translation of the Spanish article on Luciferian Jesuit Provincial of Spain Elias Royon Lara S.J. Some parts of the translation are rough and not exactly word-for-word. but not difficult to figure out and understand.

http://www.conferenciaepiscopal.es/activid...04/julio_21.htm

The jesuita (Jesuit) Elías Royón Lara will be from next the 5 of September, when it takes possession from his position, new the provincial one of Spain of the Company of Jesus. From 1995 he was advisor of the General Father, Peter-Hans Kolvenbach and Asistente of Southern Europe, positions that exerted in the city of Rome. Royón already was provincial of Spain from 1993 to 1995. Biography Been born the 22 of February of 1937 in Benamejí (Cordova), it enters in the Company the 11 of October of 1957 in Aranjuez. Priest orders itself the 28 of June of 1969 in Madrid and does his last votes in the Company the 5 of November of 1975. He is licensed in Philosophy (Alcala, 1964) and doctor in Theology by the Gregoriana University of Rome (1974). He has been also Provincial of Castile from 1995 to 1998. As of September Our Lady of the Memory will be the new director of the jesuita School (Madrid). The present Secretary of the Provincial one of Spain, Juan Ignacio Garci'a Velasco, has been destined to the School the International of the Gesú of Rome. Altogether today 1687 jesuitas in the diverse apostolic, spiritual, educative, social and cultural tasks work in Spain that this religious order founded on 1540 by San Ignacio de Loyola promotes. With this new renovation the panorama of the provincial jesuitas in Spain would be thus: - Provincial of Spain: Elías Royón Lara (from the 5 of September of 2004). - Provincial of Aragón (Aragón, Valencian Community and Balearic): Carlos M^a Sancho de Claver (from the 30 of April of 2004). - Provincial of Bética (Andalusia and the Canary Islands): Francisco Jose Ruiz Perez (from the 28 of May of 2004). - Provincial of Castile (that finishes unifying the provinces of Castile and Toledo: he includes Galicia, Asturias, Cantabria, the Rioja, Castile and Leon, Castile-The Spot, Madrid, Extremadura and Murcia): Joaquin Potter Diaz (from the 18 of June of 2004). - Provincial of Loyola (Country Vasco and Navarre): Juan Miguel Arregui Echeverria (from the 31 of 2003 July). - Provincial of Tarraconense (Catalonia): Pere Borràs Durán (from the 25 of June of 2001).

I found something else. http://ahc.usc.urbe.it/fascicoli/AHC_07.html

Luciferian Lara wrote a dissertation about the Council of Trent entitled " El sacerdocio del Nuevo Testamento sus poderes y su institución según el Concilio de Trento. (The priesthood of the New Testament its powers and their institution according to the Council of Trent. Funny thing is...high school Spanish classes are where I first heard about the Spanish Inquisition. But they always said it was Christians (haha) persecuting the Jews...no distinction is made between Catholicism and actual Christianity (naturally).

It wasn't until I was introduced to Bro. Jack Chick's literature that I found out the rest of the story.

Title: White American?

Description: Eric Phelps

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 23, 2006 12:14 AM (GMT)

Thank you for contacting me.

I realize that saying "I am a member of the White race" is viewed negatively, especially since the Pope's "White supremacist" Nazi era and America's resident HATEFUL White racists.

However the fact remains that I am a NON-HATEFUL racist, as was the Lord Jesus Christ (Matt.15:21-28), he preferring his own race to all others "in the days of his flesh." I am White, a choice that was not mine, but ordained of God and thus I should identify myself as such without apology. I am a male also and thus identify myself as such, believing in male supremacy and female subordination as per the teachings of the Word of God (Gen.316).

Regarding the White race in general, which is, by the way, the world's minority race (10-12%), it is the purpose of the Vatican's White Luciferian Jesuits to destroy all White nations of Western Reformed culture within this century. That goal will also be realized in Africa---i.e., the present destruction of Whites in South Africa, Zimbabwe, Tanzania, etc. The murder of Whites by other races---usually perpetrated by the Blacks---is good "public policy" as it is never reported by the Order's CFR-controlled press.

Thus in America we have forced integration and reverse discrimination against Whites called "Affirmative Action." Further, we have had "White flight" for the last fifty years, evidencing that, via Supreme Court rulings and Civil Rights statutes, CFR-ruled Fourteenth Amendment America has destroyed freedom of choice for Whites as to living among our own kind. This is a crime against the White race and a sin against God.

The Bible teaches that the LORD created the races to keep mankind separate, making the unity of nations much more difficult than before the Noachian Flood when the world was of one race, one speech residing on one land mass (Gen. 10:25). The purpose for the institution of languages was to further separate the races, creating distinct nations denoted by race, language, culture and specific geographic location. When the races are mixed against nature, not to mention the mixing of languages and cultures as well as the wicked erection of Free Trade policies, then all national identities vanish destroying patriotism thus enabling the Order to establish its world government.

A "nation" is composed of a people with a unique race, language and culture residing in a specific geographic location. In identifying myself as being White, English-speaking, of historic Protestant-Baptist-Calvinist culture and promoting the creation of a new nation somewhere here in North America where my people can live without being murdered, raped, pillaged and plundered by the other racial and Bible rejecting religious nations living among us, then I am reverting back to Biblical basics so characteristic of our original White Anglo-Saxon Protestant and Baptist Federal Republic of these United States of America. The only other race that will be allowed to live among us is the racial Jews that the blessing of Genesis 12:1-3 may be given to us, this having been the case of past Bible-reading White Protestant nations and cultures, this being a secret of our former high moral and cultural development.

On the other hand, what is good for the goose is good for the gander. The Biblical principles are the same for every other nation living in North America. It is for this reason that I back the principle advocated by that Masonic Jesuit Coadjutor Louis Farrakhan in his call for a new Black nation somewhere here in North America. The Black "Back to Africa" Marcus Garvey said in 1923 that if the Blacks do not separate from the Whites, there will be a race war within 50 to 100 years---and he is quite on track! For those who wish to amalgamate such as yourself, they can have their own nation also, as I would be the first not to deny their freedom of choice concerning among whom they would wish to live.

The same principle holds true for Roman Catholics who do not want to live among Protestants. They should be given a section of the Empire where Roman Catholicism is the religion of the State---like Austria or Poland. To deny them this choice is wrong. Content with this, they should not feel the necessity of overthrowing my nation noted for its Protestant culture, that new nation which may indeed lie across our respective borders.

Notice that I have not advocated the hatred of any race or religion. I merely advocate my right to live among my people, racially and religiously, to the exclusion of all others---except the racial Jews.

I trust this is helpful.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

According to the Bible, all humans on earth today are descended from Noah and his wife, his three sons and their wives, and before that from Adam and Eve (Genesis 1-11). But today we have many different groups, often called 'races,' with what seem to be greatly differing features. The most obvious of these is skin color. Many see this as a reason to doubt the Bible's record of history. They believe that the various groups could have arisen only by evolving separately over tens of thousands of years. However, as we shall see, this does not follow from the biological evidence.

The Bible tells us how the population that descended from Noah's family had one language and by living in one place were disobeying God's command to 'fill the earth' (Genesis 9:1, 11:4). God confused their language, causing a break-up of the population into smaller groups which scattered over the earth (Genesis 11:8-9). Modern genetics show how, following such a break-up of a population, variations in skin color, for example, can develop in only a few generations. There is good evidence that the various people groups we have today have not been separated for huge periods of time.¹

What is a 'race'?

There is really only one race—the human race. The Bible teaches us that God has 'made of one blood all nations of men' (Acts 17:26). Scripture distinguishes people by tribal or national groupings, not by skin color or physical appearance. Clearly, though, there are groups of people who have certain features (e.g., skin color) in common, which distinguish them from other groups. We prefer to call these 'people groups' rather than 'races,' to avoid the evolutionary connotations associated with the word 'race.'

All peoples can interbreed and produce fertile offspring. This shows that the biological differences between the 'races' are not very great. In fact, the DNA differences are trivial. The DNA of any two people in the world would typically differ by just 0.2 percent.² Of this, only 6 percent can be linked to racial categories; the rest is 'within race' variation.

The variation in DNA between human individuals shows that racial differences are trivial. This genetic unity means, for instance, that white Americans, although ostensibly far removed from black Americans in phenotype, can sometimes be better tissue matches for them than are other black Americans.

Anthropologists generally classify people into a small number of main racial groups, such as the Caucasoid (European or 'white'),³ the Mongoloid (which includes the Chinese, Inuit or Eskimo and Native Americans), the Negroid (black Africans), and the Australoid (the Australian Aborigines). Within each classification, there may be many different sub-groups.

Virtually all evolutionists would now say that the various people groups did not have separate origins. That is, different people groups did not each evolve from a different group of animals. So they would agree with the biblical creationist that all people groups have come from the same original population. Of course, they believe that such groups as the Aborigines and the Chinese have had many tens of thousands of years of separation. Most believe that there are such vast differences between the groups that there had to be many years for these differences to develop.

One reason for this is that many people believe that the observable differences arise from some people having unique features in their hereditary make-up which others lack. This is an understandable but incorrect idea. Let's look at skin color, for instance. It is easy to think that since different groups of people have 'yellow' skin, 'red' skin, 'black' skin, 'white' skin and 'brown' skin, there must be many different skin pigments or colorings. And since different chemicals for coloring would mean a different genetic recipe or code in the hereditary blueprint in each people group, it appears to be a real problem. How could all those differences develop within a short time?

However, we all have the same coloring pigment in our skin—melanin. This is a dark-brownish pigment that is produced in different amounts in special cells in our skin. If we had none (as do people called albinos, who inherit a mutation-caused defect, and cannot produce melanin), then we would have a very white or pink skin coloring. If we produced a little melanin, we would be European white. If our skin produced a great deal of melanin, we would be a very dark black. And in between, of course, are all shades of brown. There are no other significant skin pigments.⁴

In summary, from currently available information, the really important factor in determining skin color is melanin—the amount produced.

This situation is true not only for skin color. Generally, whatever feature we may look at, no people group has anything that is essentially different from that possessed by any other. For example, the Asian, or almond, eye differs from a typical Caucasian eye in having more fat around them (see Figure 1). Both Asian and Caucasian eyes have fat—the latter simply have less.

What does melanin do? It protects the skin against damage by ultraviolet light from the sun. If you have too little melanin in a very sunny environment, you will easily suffer sunburn and skin cancer. If you have a great deal of melanin, and you live in a country where there is little sunshine, it will be harder for you to get enough vitamin D (which needs sunshine for its production in your body). You may then suffer from vitamin D deficiency, which could cause a bone disorder such as rickets.

We also need to be aware that we are not born with a genetically fixed amount of melanin. Rather, we have a genetically fixed potential to produce a certain amount, and the amount increases in response to sunlight. For example, you may have noticed that when your Caucasian friends (who spent their time indoors during winter) headed for the beach at the beginning of summer they all had more or less the same pale white skin color. As the summer went on, however, some became much darker than others.

How is it that many different skin colors can arise in a short time? Remember, whenever we speak of different 'colors' we are referring to different shades of the one color, melanin.

If a person from a very black people group marries someone from a very white group, their offspring are mid-brown. It has long been known that when such people marry each other, their offspring may be virtually any 'color,' ranging from very dark to very light. Understanding this gives us the clues we need to answer our question, but first we must look, in a simple way, at some of the basic principles of heredity.

Heredity

Each of us carries information in our body that describes us in the way a blueprint and specifications describe a furnished building. It determines not only that we will be human beings, rather than cabbages or crocodiles, but also whether we will have blue eyes, short nose, long legs, etc. When a sperm fertilizes an egg, all the information that specifies how the person will be built (ignoring such superimposed factors as exercise and diet) is already present. Most of this information is in coded form in our DNA.⁵

To illustrate coding, a piece of string with beads on it can carry a message in Morse code. The piece of string, by the use of a simple sequence of short beads, long beads (to represent the dots and dashes of Morse code), and spaces, can carry the same information as the English word 'help' typed on a sheet of paper. The entire Bible could be written thus in Morse code on a long enough piece of string.

In a similar way, the human blueprint is written in a code (or language convention) which is carried on very long chemical strings of DNA. This is by far the most efficient information storage system known, greatly surpassing any foreseeable computer technology.⁶ This information is copied (and reshuffled) from generation to generation as people reproduce.

The word 'gene' refers to a small part of that information which has the instructions for only one type of enzyme, for example.⁷ It may be simply understood as a portion of the 'message string' containing only one specification.

For example, there is one gene that carries the instructions for making hemoglobin, the protein that carries oxygen in your red blood cells. If that gene has been damaged by mutation (such as copying mistakes during reproduction), the instructions will be faulty, so it will often make a crippled form of hemoglobin, if any. (Diseases such as sickle-cell anemia and thalassemia result from such mistakes.)

So, with an egg which has just been fertilized—where does all its information, its genes, come from? One half comes from the father (carried in the sperm), and the other half from the mother (carried in the egg).

Genes come in pairs, so in the case of hemoglobin, for example, we have two sets of code (instruction) for hemoglobin manufacture, one coming from the mother and one from the father.

This is a very useful arrangement, because if you inherit a damaged gene from one parent that could instruct your cells to produce a defective hemoglobin, you are still likely to get a normal one from the other parent which will continue to give the right instructions. Thus, only half the hemoglobin in your body will be defective. (In fact, each of us carries hundreds of genetic mistakes, inherited from one or the other of our parents, which are usefully 'covered up' by being matched with a normal gene from the other parent—see 'Where did Cain get his wife?').

We know that skin color is governed by more than one pair of genes. For simplicity, let's assume there are only two,⁸ located at positions A and B on the chromosomes. One form of the gene, 'M,' 'says' to make lots of melanin; another form of the gene,⁹ 'm,' says to only make a little melanin. At position A we could have a pair such as MAMA, MAmA or mAmA¹⁰ which would instruct the skin cells to make a lot, some, or little melanin. Similarly, at position B we could have the gene pairs MBMB, MBmB or mBmB instructing cells to make a lot, some or little melanin. Thus very dark people could have MAMAMBMB, for example (see Figure 2). Since both the sperm and eggs of such people could only be MAMB, (remember, only one of each A or B pair goes to each sperm or egg) they could only produce children with exactly the same combination of genes as themselves. So the children will all be very dark. Likewise, very light people, with mAmAmBmB, could produce children only like themselves (see Figure 3).

Let's look at what combinations would result from parents who are brown-skinned with the genes MAmAMBmB (the offspring of an MAMAMBMB and mAmAmBmB union, for example; see Figure 4).

We can do this with a diagram called a 'punnet square' (see Figure 5). The left side shows the four different gene combinations possible in the sperm from the father and the top gives the combinations possible in the eggs from the mother (remember that a parent can only pass on one of each pair of genes to each sperm or egg). We locate a particular sperm gene combination and follow the row across to the column below a particular egg gene combination (like finding a location on a street map). The intersection gives the genetic makeup of the offspring from that particular sperm and egg union. For example, an MAmB sperm and an mAMB egg would produce a child with MAmAMBmB, just the same as the parents. The other possibilities mean that five levels of melanin (shades of color) can result in the different offspring of such a marriage, as roughly indicated by the level of shading in the diagram. If three gene pairs were involved, seven levels of melanin would be possible.

Thus a range of 'colors,' from very light to very dark, can result in only one generation, beginning with this particular type of mid-brown parents.

If people with MAMAMBMB, who are 'pure' black (in the sense of having no genes for lightness at all), were to intermarry and migrate to a place where their offspring could not marry people of lighter color, all their descendants would be black—a pure 'black line' would result.

If 'white' people (mAmAmBmB) were to marry only other whites and migrate to a place where their offspring could not marry darker people, a pure (in the same sense) 'white line' would result—they would have lost the genes needed to produce a large amount of melanin and be black.

It is thus easily possible, beginning with two middle-brown parents, to get not only all the 'colors,' but also people groups with stable shades of skin color.

But what about people groups that are permanently middle-brown, such as we have today? Again, this is easily explained. If those with genes MAMAmBmB or mAmAMBMB, no longer intermarry with others, they will be able to produce only mid-brown offspring—as in Figure 4. (You may want to work this out with your own punnet square.)

If either of these lines were to interbreed again with the other, the process would be reversed. In a short time, their descendants would show a whole range of colors, often in the same family. Figure 6 shows what were called Britain's most amazing twins. One is obviously quite light in complexion, while the other is clearly darker-skinned.

Of course, this is not amazing at all when you do the exercise on paper, based on what we have discussed. (A clue if you want to do it yourself: mother cannot be MAMAMBMB. Also, the twins are obviously not identical twins, which are derived from the same egg—that is, monozygous).

If all people on Earth were to intermarry freely, and then break into random groups that kept to themselves, a whole new set of gene combinations could emerge. It may be possible to have almond eyes with black skin, blue eyes with black frizzy short hair, etc. We need to remember, of course, that the way in which genes express themselves is much more complex than this simplified picture. For example, sometimes certain genes are linked together. However, the basic point is unaffected.

Even today, within a particular people group you will often see a feature normally associated with another people group. For instance, you will occasionally see a European with a broad flat nose, or a Chinese person with very pale skin, or Caucasian eyes. Most scientists now agree that, for modern humans, 'race' has little or no biological meaning. This also argues strongly against the idea that the people groups have been evolving separately for long periods.

What really happened?

We can now reconstruct the true history of the people groups, using:

The information given by the Creator Himself in the book of Genesis.

The background information given above.

Some consideration of the effect of the environment.

The first created man, Adam, from whom all other humans are descended, was created with the best possible combination of genes—or skin color, for example. A long time after Creation, a worldwide Flood destroyed all humans except a man called Noah, his wife, his three sons, and their wives. This Flood greatly changed the environment. Afterwards, God commanded the survivors to multiply and cover the earth (Gen. 9:1). A few hundred years later, people chose to disobey God and to remain united in building a great city, with the Tower of Babel as the focal point of rebellious worship.

From Genesis 11, we understand that up to this time there was only one language. God judged the people's disobedience by imposing different languages, so that they could not work together against God. The confusion forced the people to scatter over the earth as God intended.

So all the people groups—black Africans, Indo-Europeans, Mongolians, and others—have come into existence since Babel.

Noah and his family were probably mid-brown, with genes for both dark and light skin, because a medium skin color would seem to be the most generally suitable (dark enough to protect against skin cancer, yet light enough to allow vitamin D production). As all the factors for skin color were present in Adam and Eve, they would most likely have been mid-brown as well, with brown eyes and brown (or black) hair. In fact, most of the world's population today is still mid-brown.

After the Flood, for the few centuries until Babel, there was only one language and one culture group. Thus, there were no barriers to marriage within this group. This would tend to keep the skin color of the population away from the extremes. Very dark and very light skin would appear, of course, but people tending in either direction would be free to marry someone lighter or darker than themselves, ensuring that the average color stayed roughly the same.

The same would be true of characteristics other than skin color. Under these sorts of circumstances, distinct differences in appearance will never emerge. To obtain such separate lines, you would need to break a large breeding group into smaller groups and keep them separate, that is, prevent interbreeding between groups. This would be true for animal as well as human populations, as every biologist knows.

The effects of Babel

This is exactly what happened at Babel. Once separate languages were imposed, there were instantaneous barriers. Not only would people tend not to marry someone they couldn't understand, but entire groups which spoke the same language would have difficulty relating to and trusting those which did not. Thus, they would move away or be forced away from each other, into different environments. This, of course, is what God intended.

It is unlikely that each small group would carry the same broad range of skin colors as the original, larger group. One group might have more dark genes, on average, while another might have more light genes. The same thing would occur with other characteristics: nose shape, eye shape, etc. And since they would intermarry only within their own language group, these differences would no longer be averaged out as before.

As these groups migrated away from Babel, they encountered new and different climate zones. This would also have affected the balance of inherited factors in the population. (However, the effects of the environment are nowhere near as important as the initial genetic mix of each group.)

As an example, consider a group of people who moved to a cold region with little sunlight. Here, the dark-skinned members would not be able to produce enough vitamin D, and thus would be less healthy and have fewer children. So, in time, the light-skinned members would predominate.

If several different groups went to such an area, and if one group happened to be carrying few genes for lightness, this particular group could in time die out. Thus, natural selection acts on the characteristics already present, and does not create new ones.

It is interesting to note that the Neanderthals of Europe, now extinct but recognized as fully human, show evidence of vitamin D deficiency in that many of their bones were bent. In fact, this, plus a large dose of evolutionary prejudice, caused them to be classified as 'ape-men' for a long time. It is thus quite plausible that they were a dark-skinned people who were unfit for the environment into which they moved because of the skin color genes they began with. Notice (again) that this natural selection, as it is called, does not produce skin colors, but only acts on the created capacity for making skin pigment that is already there.

Conversely, fair-skinned people in very sunny regions could easily be affected by skin cancer. Thus, in these regions dark-skinned people would more readily survive and come to predominate.

Return to text.

So we see that the pressure of the environment can (a) affect the balance of genes within a group, and (B) even eliminate entire groups. This is why we see, to a large extent, that the physical characteristics of people tend to match the environment where they live (e.g., Nordic people with pale skin, equatorial people with dark skin).

But this is not always so. The Inuit (Eskimo) have brown skin, yet live where there is not much sun. Presumably they all have a genetic makeup such as MAMAmBmB which would not be able to produce lighter skin. On the other hand, native South Americans living on the equator do not have black skin. These examples confirm that natural selection does not create new information—if the genetic makeup of a group of people does not allow variation in color toward the desirable, natural selection cannot create such variation.

Pygmies live in a hot area, but rarely experience strong sunshine in their dense jungle environment; yet they have dark skin. Pygmies may be a good example of another factor that has affected the racial history of man: discrimination.

People different from the 'norm' (e.g., a very light person in a dark people group), have historically been regarded as abnormal and rejected by the group. Thus, such a person would find it hard to get a marriage partner. This would further tend to eliminate light genes from a dark people, and vice versa. In this way, groups have tended to 'purify' themselves.

Also, in some instances, interbreeding within a small group can accentuate a commonly occurring unusual feature that would otherwise be swamped by marriage outside the group. There is a tribe in Africa whose members all have grossly deformed feet as a result of this inbreeding.

Let us return to the pygmies. If people possessing genes for short stature were discriminated against, a small group of them might seek refuge in the deepest forest. By marrying only each other they would ensure a pygmy 'race' from then on. The fact that pygmy tribes do not have their own languages, but instead speak dialects of neighboring non-pygmy tribal languages, is good evidence to support this.

The effects of choice

Certain genetic characteristics may have influenced people groups to make deliberate (or semi-deliberate) choices concerning the environments to which they migrated. For instance, people with genes for a thicker, more insulating layer of fat under their skin would tend to leave areas that were uncomfortably hot.

Common memories

The evidence for the Bible's account of human origins is more than just biological and genetic. Since all peoples have descended from Noah's family, and a relatively short time ago, we would expect to find some memory of the catastrophic Flood in the stories and legends of many people groups. We may find the story distorted by time and retelling. In fact, an overwhelming number of cultures do have accounts that recall a world-destroying Flood. Often these have startling parallels to the true, original account (such as: eight people saved in a boat, the sending of birds, a rainbow, and more).

Conclusion

The dispersion at Babel broke up a large interbreeding group into small, inbreeding groups. This ensured that the resultant groups would have different mixes of genes for various physical features. By itself, this dispersion would ensure, in a short time, that there would be certain fixed differences in some of these groups, commonly called 'races.' In addition, the selection pressure of the environment would modify the existing combinations of genes so that the physical characteristics of each group would tend to suit their environment.

There has been no simple-to-complex evolution of any genes, for the genes were present already. The dominant features of the various people groups result from different combinations of previously existing created genes, plus some minor degenerative changes, resulting from mutation (accidental changes which can be inherited). The originally created (genetic) information has been either reshuffled or has degenerated, but has not been added to.

Consequences of false beliefs about the origin of races

Rejection of the Gospel

The accuracy of the historical details of Genesis is crucial to the trustworthiness of the Bible and to the whole Gospel message.¹¹ So the popular belief that people groups evolved their different features, and could not all have come from Noah's family (contrary to the Bible), has eroded belief in the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

Racism

One of the biggest justifications for racial discrimination in modern times is the belief that people groups have evolved separately. Thus different groups are at allegedly different stages of evolution, and so some people groups are more backward than others. Therefore, the other person may not be as fully human as you. This sort of thinking inspired Hitler in his quest to eliminate Jews and Gypsies and to establish the 'master race.'¹² Sadly, some Christians have been infected with racist thinking through evolutionary indoctrination that people of a different 'color' are inferior because they are supposedly closer to the animals. Such attitudes are completely unbiblical (e.g. Acts 17:26, Col. 3:11), although out-of-context Bible verses are often conscripted in attempts to justify racist views (see Are black people the result of a curse on Ham? below).

Bad influence on missionary outreach

Historically, the spread of evolutionary belief was associated with a slackening of fervor to reach the lost in far-away countries. The idea of savage, half-evolved inferior peoples somehow does not evoke the same missionary urgency as the notion that our 'cousins,' closely linked to us in time and heredity, have yet to hear the Gospel.¹³ Even many of the finest of today's missionary organizations have been influenced, often unconsciously, by this deeply ingrained evolutionary belief of how other peoples and their religions came about.

All tribes and nations are descendants of Noah's family!

The Bible makes it clear that any newly 'discovered' tribe ultimately goes back to Noah. They are not a group of people who have never had superior technology or knowledge of God in their culture. Rather, their culture (going back to Noah) began with (a) a knowledge of God, and (B) technology at least sufficient to build a boat of ocean-liner size. Romans 1 suggests the major reason for this technological loss and cultural degeneration (see 'Stone Age' people? below). It is linked to the deliberate rejection by their ancestors of the worship of the living God.

Therefore, the first priority in helping a 'backward' people group should not be secular education and technical aid, but first and foremost the Gospel.

In fact, most 'primitive' tribes still have a memory, in their folklore and religion, of the fact that their ancestors turned away from the living God, the Creator. Don Richardson, missionary of Peace Child fame, has shown that a missionary approach, unblinded by evolutionary bias, and thus looking for this link and utilizing it, has borne a bountiful and blessed harvest on many occasions.¹⁴

Jesus Christ, God's reconciliation in the face of man's rejection of the Creator, is the only truth that can set men and women of every culture, technology, people group or color, truly free (John 8:32; 14:6).

Are black people the result of a curse on Ham?

The previous discussion shows clearly that the blackness of, for example, black Africans, is merely one particular combination of inherited factors. This means that these factors themselves, though not in that combination, were originally present in Adam and Eve. The belief that the skin color of black people is a result of a curse on Ham and his descendants is nowhere taught in the Bible. Furthermore, it was not Ham who was cursed, but his son, Canaan (Gen. 9:18,25, 10:6). Furthermore, Canaan's descendants were probably mid-brown skinned (Gen. 10:15–19), not black. False teaching about Ham has been used to justify slavery and other non-biblical racist practices. It is traditionally believed that the African nations are largely Hamitic, because the Cushites (Cush was a son of Ham: Gen. 10:6) are thought to have lived where Ethiopia is today. Genesis suggests that the dispersion was probably along family lines, and it may be that Ham's descendants were on average darker than, say, Japheth's. However, it could just as easily have been the other way around.

Rahab, mentioned in the genealogy of Jesus in Matthew 1, was a Canaanite. A descendant of Ham, she must have married an Israelite. Since this was a union approved by God, it shows that the particular 'race' she came from was not important. It mattered only that she trusted in the true God of Israel. Ruth, a Moabitess, also features in the genealogy of Christ. She expressed faith in the true God before her marriage to Boaz (Ruth 1:16). The only marriages God warns against are same sex 'marriages' and God's people marrying unbelievers.¹⁵ Return to text.

'Stone Age' people?

Archaeology shows that there have been people who lived in caves and used simple stone tools. There are still people who do the same. We have seen that all people on Earth today are descended from Noah and his family. Before the Flood, Genesis indicates, there was at least enough technology to make musical instruments, farm, forge metal implements, build cities, and build a huge seaworthy vessel. After the dispersion from Babel, the hostilities induced by the new languages may have forced some groups to scatter rather rapidly, finding shelter where and when they could.

In some instances, the stone tools may have been used temporarily, until their settlements were fully established and they had found and exploited metal deposits, for example. In others, the original diverging group may not have taken the relevant knowledge with them. Ask an average family group today how many of them, if they had to start again, as it were, would know how to find, mine, and smelt metal-bearing deposits? Obviously, there has been technological (cultural) degeneration in many post-Babel groups.

In some cases, harsh environments may have contributed. The Australian Aborigines have a technology and cultural knowledge which, in relation to their lifestyle and need to survive in the dry outback, is most appropriate. This includes the aerodynamic principles used in making boomerangs (some of which were designed to return to the thrower, while others were not).

Sometimes we see evidence of degeneration that is hard to explain, but is real, nonetheless. For instance, when Europeans arrived in Tasmania, the Aborigines there had the simplest technology known. They caught no fish, and did not usually make and wear clothes. Yet recent archaeological discoveries suggest that earlier generations had more knowledge and equipment.

For instance, archaeologist Rhys Jones believes that in the Tasmanian Aborigines' distant past, these people had equipment to sew skins into complex clothes. This contrasts with the observations in the early 1800s that they just slung skins over their shoulders. It also appears that they were in fact catching and eating fish in the past, but when Europeans arrived, they had not been doing this for a long time.^{16, 17} From this we infer that technology is not always retained and built upon, but can be lost or abandoned.

Animist peoples live in fear of evil spirits and often have taboos against healthy practices like washing, and eating various nutritious foods. Again this illustrates how loss of knowledge of the true Creator-God leads to degradation (Rom. 1:18–32). Return to text.

Worldwide variations in mitochondrial DNA (the 'Mitochondrial Eve' story) were claimed to show that all people today trace back to a single mother (living in a small population) 70,000 to 800,000 years ago. Recent findings on the rate of mitochondrial DNA mutations shorten this period drastically to put it within the biblical time-frame. See L. Lowe and S. Scherer, Mitochondrial Eve: The Plot Thickens, Trends in Ecology and Evolution, 12(11):422-423, 1997; C. Wieland, A Shrinking Date for Eve, CEN Technical Journal, 12(1):1-3, 1998.

However, people inhabiting the Indian subcontinent are mainly Caucasian and their skin color ranges from light brown to quite dark. Even within Europe, skin color ranges from very pale to brown.

Other substances can in minor ways affect skin shading, such as the colored fibers of the protein elastin and the pigment carotene. However, once again we all share these same compounds, and the principles governing their inheritance are similar to those outlined here. Factors other than pigment in the skin may influence the shade perceived by the observer in subtle ways, such as the thickness of the overlying (clear) skin layers, the density and positioning of the blood capillary networks, etc. In fact, 'melanin,' which is produced by cells in the body called melanocytes, consists of two pigments, which also account for hair color. Eumelanin is very dark brown, phaeomelanin is more reddish. People tan when sunlight stimulates eumelanin production. Redheads, who are often unable to develop a protective tan, have a high proportion of phaeomelanin. They have probably inherited a defective gene which makes their pigment cells 'unable to respond to normal signals that stimulate eumelanin production.' See P. Cohen, Redheads Come Out of the Shade, New Scientist, 147(1997):18, 1995.

Most of this DNA is in the nucleus of each cell, but some is contained in mitochondria, which are outside the nucleus in the cytoplasm. Sperm contribute only nuclear DNA when the egg is fertilized. Mitochondrial DNA is inherited only from the mother, via the egg.

Incredibly, sometimes the same stretch of DNA can be 'read' differently, to have more than one function, by starting the reading process from different points. The creative intelligence behind such a thing is mind-boggling.

This simplification is not done to help our case—the more genes there are, the easier it is to have a huge range of 'different' colors. The principle involved can be understood by using two as an example.

Variant forms of a gene are called 'alleles,' but that is not important here.

For the technically minded, this type of genetic expression, where allele dosage affects the trait, is called partial dominance.

The statement from Phelps that the United States should be broken up and new nations formed is very damaging to his credibility. That is what the Vatican was trying to do with the Civil War. Then he said that one of the new nations should have Catholicism as the state religion. I thought he was anti Pope.

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 24, 2006 01:01 AM (GMT)

If you cannot rid a country of various religions and peoples then it should be divided. Now dont call me Jesuit following. Its proven religious mixing and especially race mixing does not work and seriously destroys and weakens nations as we now see seriously in the U.K and now the U.S.

My city in England is the most multicultural in Europe and believe me its now useless as is most of the the U.K Cities now. People cant communicate with each other, so many damn languages. People of seriously lacking education and knowledge almost to the point of useless. Dirty living environment and lifestyles reflecting the low house prices. Crime rates rocketing which is especially true since all the Kosovo immigrants have entered along with Somalis etc. England is a real hell hole and its reflected by the statistics showing we're the most crime riddled in the West and that includes more than the U.S. When you consider our small population this is disgusting. You can feel the anger and attitude build up more and more each day. The recent Asian Vs Black riots showing the friction.

Im White, ENGLISH and proud

I am not a British Covenant Man

Alexandra - May 24, 2006 01:24 AM (GMT)

Yep, throw different kinds of people together and hope that "tolerance" makes it so there are no riots. Or, more like, make people think that "tolerance" is the answer.

I was reading somewhere that we're racist by nature. For example, my husband says that he always assumed he'd marry a white woman, and I always assumed I'd marry a white man. No one had to tell us this!

I went to a multicultural high school in the Detroit area. Sure, we all got along...but at lunchtime the Arab kids hung around the commons, the blacks all grouped together, etc. People gravitated to their own race. Sure, I had a black best friend in kindergarten and was friends with a Lebanese girl and was teamed up with a black boy and an Arab girl for theatre class...but I actually prefer being around white.

2TUFF, I heard that guns are restricted if not banned in England. That sure doesn't help matters any.

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 24, 2006 01:41 AM (GMT)

You will find white people tend to mix more with different races more than any of the other races. I will tell you that where I used to work had many muslim asians along with black people. I used to sit with a few white people and we mixed on a large table at break times with the odd black person and many asians. If you looked around though the black people were the worst. The black people would group in the masses only with their own. There were a few Asian tables but nothing like the black. The blacks would then have the cheek to claim we were racist etc but it was them who were choosing to seperate themself from everyone else. I had many Asian friends and believe me this created problems with many of the whites who I also worked with. Multicultural living just doesn't work, will never work and was never meant to work.

Yes guns are banned in the U.K and their even trying to ban air rifles and pistols also. This is very bad as we cannot defend ourselves against the government or remove them.

Alexandra - May 24, 2006 02:07 AM (GMT)

Around here, the best pick-up line a black can use on a white woman is "You're racist!" : P

I'm not against black people...I just don't like what my husband refers to as the "African-American 'culture.'" You know, where they want to blame whitey for everything...and of course we have instigators such as Sharpton and Jackson egging it on (I know Jesse Jackson is a 33rd degree Mason).

Like I said, I grew up in the Detroit area. I've been around blacks, Jews, Arabs, just about everyone. Lots of Polish there too...I had a Polish great-grandmother, in fact. Now I live in NE Ohio, predominantly white, lots of Amish...I think I like it here better.

I also have to reiterate--I don't hate blacks. I don't mind having black friends. I just feel more comfortable around whites, is all.

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 24, 2006 02:46 AM (GMT)

Jesse Jackson's superior is the almighty powerful

Archbishop of Chicago

Jackson also played his part in Malcolm X's assassination.

Alexandra - May 24, 2006 03:43 AM (GMT)

Wasn't Jackson involved in MLK's murder as well?

I know Sherman Skolnick had a few things to say about that homeboy. :rolleyes:

Mark Brewer - May 24, 2006 04:17 AM (GMT)

As far as I am concerned, the best source of information about affirmative action, "diversity" and racism is the Ayn Rand Institute.

http://www.aynrand.org/site/PageServer?pag...m_and_diversity

People should not judge other persons' character by their race. If there was not all of the forced "diversity" and "tolerance" being shoved down everyone's throats, then there would be a lot less racial tension.

Alexandra - May 24, 2006 04:52 AM (GMT)

I agree, Mark.

But it gets pretty bad when blacks diss other blacks for acting "too white"--and by that they mean act respectable. I think Timothy (TruthSeeker) was mentioning that some time back.

That's where I say, if people are looking down on you because of your race, it might be because your "brothers" want your race to be known to act a certain way. Now that's where "don't judge a book by its cover" comes in. Thing is, when nine out of ten books with a certain cover have the same content, you're probably going to eye that one out of ten with suspicion.

See what I'm saying?

For the record I'm not 100% white. I have a bit of Cherokee. ;)

Agreed. This is why people should stop considering other people as representatives of their race.

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 24, 2006 01:47 PM (GMT)

Another thing which is strange about Blacks is how some call one another Niggas and think its fine. Then theres others which will only call devious, crooked blacks Niggas. You will most certainly find that if a White person says this word to the first blacks mentioned they will turn upon the white person, does this make any sense? Of course not!

Alexandra - May 24, 2006 02:16 PM (GMT)

My husband uses the term to describe "savage" blacks.

Interestingly enough...I've heard Chris Rock before, and he says "there's black people, then there's niggas. And the niggas have got to go!"

Doesn't bother me to be called cracker or honkey. I just shrug.

JagDRS - May 24, 2006 04:22 PM (GMT)

Just my observation of this phenom as 2Tuff described, I don't fully understand the way blacks react to the term in opposing ways dependent on who used the term - a black or a white, but it seems to somewhat involve the perception not unlike a badge of courage that perhaps can only be best appreciated by black people and the experiences they have therein. The way I look at it, the term was invented by whites to be used by whites to be derogatory of blacks. But, amongst themselves, having survived against whitey despite it all it's evolved into a term of endearment for blacks among blackss, a term that whitey has not earned the right to use in any circumstances, even one that is purely from a perspective of using the term only as a mean for discussing the bizarre nature of it. When it comes down to it, it's merely a word. All words are merely invented sounds to be uttered, symbols carved in rock, black letters on white foreground, having no meaning inherently except that intended by the inventors or subsequent users of therein.

Unless and until it becomes a pressing matter of philosophy on mixing of races or religious ideology, why not just refer to all races of people as people? While it may be nice to imagine or daydream of a day when the world is perfected enough to partion it back to supposed separate divisions by race or religions, the reality is, by present standards, this effectively is a pipe dream when their are more pressing matters in the interim of the world condition. What is lost in the translation by referring to blacks as people, and whites as people, and reds as people? Such invented terms have an inherent meaning in their use that's so common that it's effectively hidden, practically subliminal and goes un-noticed. Try going without using such terms and you'll begin to see what I mean.

All people have their own oxymoronic reactions to words. Many people for whatever and sundry reasons take pride in calling themselves "american", just another word invention for which many people have a tendency to react quite negatively to when other people - immigrant people, who don't assimilate but nonetheless consider themselves american.

TruthSeeker24 - May 25, 2006 12:30 PM (GMT)

I don't agree with Eric on many things about race. I do agree with him that there is a certain groups of black people marrying outside of their race for the sake of a cheap pressure or for a trophy. I don't agree with marrying any woman for a trophy or to get into a higher status of society. That's being a coward. I see it on many occasions. My little brother doesn't believe in interracial marriage at all and think that it's a plot by the elite to ruin culture. I think it is hypocritical for some whites to condemn blacks who call each other the "N" word, yet whites use derogatory language against each other today, includes Jews, Italians, and other groups of people. Years ago, I was very racist and said racial slurs about whites and anyone back in the early 1990's when I was young. In my area, it was a common occurrence. Later on, I found about the Bible and I choose to not say anyone slurs against anyone now. I don't follow racism anymore. I do agree with JagDRS that we need to not be too obsessive with race.

If a man wants to associate peacefully with someone of the same race and he or she isn't bothering me, that's their business. I don't believe in shoving stuff down people's throat. If someone wants to associate with people of a different race, that's their business. Also, I have no problem with real black culture. That includes knowing our real history, helping our communities, and being intellectual. Being intellectual has nothing to do with one specific group of people. Blacks who bash intellectualism obviously don't know their own history since the black heroes (then and now) of today were very intelligent. I also would tell 2tuff, that your life experience doesn't mean that all blacks in general are bigoted against you.

By TruthSeeker24 (Timothy)

TruthSeeker24 - May 25, 2006 12:39 PM (GMT)

I would say this though. My mother always had an influence on me on these matters. The reason is that she was never real bigoted against anyone and never said any profanity when I saw her. She was always meek and taught me and my brothers to have true tolerance of people with different backgrounds.

TruthSeeker24 - May 25, 2006 02:51 PM (GMT)

As for forming new nations. It is not only moral to do (if problems become too tyrannical) so if people have the strength, but it's Constitutional. Even the Constitution says that if the government is corrupt, people have a right to break up the government to create a better one. If secession is the only solution to solve our problems, so be it. In my opinion, secession should be a last resort. It is scriptural to form new nations as well if it's with sincere intent and it's voluntarily done. There is still a lot of infiltrators in the Black community. It's not only by the usual suspects like Prince Hall Freemasons Jesse Jackson (of the 33rd Degree) and Al Sharpton (who notoriously bashes conservative Christians. Sharpton insanely claims to oppose abortion, but wants Roe v. Wade to continue. I wish Al would learn the truth about the anti-black woman Margaret Sanger, then maybe he can wake up). It's also TV, Music, and other forms of propaganda. A lot of blacks know that the misogyny, unnecessary violence in music videos, etc. are wrong, but still want to follow the crowd for fear of being labeling a sell out or race traitor. The good news is that many black people are God fearers like Tracy from Jesus-is-Lord.com site, Mark S. Watson, and other folks. I do agree with Mark Brewer that evil actions done by any people are representative of all folks from a people. We need to remember that.

Mr. Phelps--

Your ideas go counter to God's grace and love in so many ways, that it's hard to keep track. God's choosing certain people, gives you the go ahead to be "racist"? God also created the universe. How would you plan to replicate that?

God also sends some to their doom, but as with the creation of the universe, some things are obviously His domain. While God discriminates and passes judgment in His unique fashion, our mandate and our orders are...to extend charity and grace to the world around us. We are told to love our neighbor, not try to move away from him.

You use the Tower of Babel as an excuse to withdraw from other people groups. But that division was implemented by God and it was implemented at a certain time in history. God's people are to be a unifying factor. We are to welcome people into our lives, not draw away from them. We are to welcome the 'lost' of this world into our community, into our church, into our neighborhood and into our home.

If you don't welcome them, how do you 'win' them? ("Yeah uh...I don't want you coming to my church because it's ten miles down the road over into 'white' territory...but let me tell you about the love of the Lord.")

We are to "go into all the world" with the love and message of Christ. You are trying to head in the opposite direction. If you are intent on building a community, then why not at least a community of blood-bought saints, whatever their ethnicity or color?

I have attended any number of churches where tattooed ex-bikers stood arm-in-arm with little old ladies, tears streaming down their cheeks as they sang songs about "the blood of the Lamb". I've been to churches where a Pakistani family went out for lunch after the service with a 'Leave It To Beaver' family.

This is the very glory of God on this earth and that which sets 'God's people' apart. People of ALL walks of life come together in Christ. Forgiveness, love and acceptance is the very thing that demonstrates the transcendence and power of Christianity.

I have, for example, learned to love the Latino people and their culture, as there are many in the area where I live. In fact, their culture is rather healthy, with a strong work ethic and family values. But I still love my own NormanRockwellian (for lack of a better term) culture and roots. Why would that be so difficult? Am I not supposed to appreciate and enjoy different cultures? But I do! So now what?

Here I am enjoying my own heritage, but also enjoying other cultures as well, and (horror of horrors) my wife and now my children are also becoming culturally and ethnically versatile. My daughter's two best friends are a Hispanic girl and some sort of non-'light skinned' (half African? I don't know and I don't care...was I supposed to?!) girl.

Am I a failure because I've gone out into my surrounding world and learned to love my surrounding neighbors and taught my children thusly...and don't WANT to leave (in order to start some "white" community)? Your philosophy is so unseemly, so impractical, so inapplicable and so contradictory to charity, grace and redemption...in so many ways.

This doesn't mean I'm emulating liberal philosophy. Am I supposed to avoid rubbing shoulders with different peoples so I don't look like I'm going along with 'liberal' multi-culturalism? Christianity is bigger than that.

I would argue that you have fallen victim to a deliberate scam perpetrated by Orwellian government, designed to create friction and divisiveness in the (American) community. The old 'divide-and-conquer' strategy.

I would also dare to say there is a lack of wisdom in your choice of terms, when you say "male supremacy". Male "leadership" of the home and in the church (but no other place, by the way) has been stipulated in the Scriptures, along with the balancing concept of 'mutual submission' ("submit one to another" Eph. 5:21). But using the term "supremacy" is guaranteed to create a misimpression and a negative reaction, such that it would seem you are looking for that result(?).

You apparently have little problem sweeping aside the Scriptural mandate to "avoid appearance of evil". With about a thousand other possible terms at your disposal, the choice of "supremacy" appears dubious in the absolute extreme, I must say.

Fred Stonehouse

On Mon, 22 May 2006 12:42:22 -0400 "Eric Jon Phelps" <eric@vaticanassassins.org> writes:

Dear Mr. Stonehouse,

Your refusal to consider the Scripture, our final authority of faith and practice if indeed you know the Lord, which certain Scriptures teach that God created the races for the purpose of keeping mankind separate, is an error. Your refusal to acknowledge that the Lord Jesus Christ Himself was a non-hateful racist, preferring His own race above all others, is another mistake. In know Blacks, Filipinos and Hispanics who prefer their own race and culture over and above all others, and I find no fault with them----because non-hateful discrimination and non-hateful racism is biblical and is God-imbibed in all of our bosoms. God is a non-hateful racist and He created the diverse races within "Adam" ultimately to glorify Himself. Revelation 5:9 could not be possible if the races had not been preserved down through the centuries.

Your reasoning deprives me of my freedom of choice, i.e., where I choose to live and among which peoples---racially, culturally and religiously. This deprivation of freedom of choice is Papal at its core. Thus I encourage you to reconsider your position in light of Biblical truth.

Concerning Male supremacy over Females, it is a biblical and historical fact. Never have a group of women led and fought a revolution, wrote a constitution, created a working government and built a nation with its necessities of armies and construction workers. And they never will.

Fabian Socialist universal equality is a doctrine of Rome intended for the consumption of the targeted peoples intended to be conquered by the Order. I assure you the Pope and Black Pope do not teach or practice "universal equality" among their respective brotherhoods. The Devil knows that Biblical principles work and thus are practiced among his highest servants. What an irony!

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

Eric, Forward if you like!

Mr. Stonehouse: I am Eric's Pastor and know him rather well: he hates no one personally based upon their skin color or ethnic background, and neither do I. He espouses the King James Bible position on racial issues. Your statement "I am flabbergasted though, that you would put on the very front page of your site that you are a "white American"" I find outrageous. Are you flabbergasted when the black savages call themselves nigga's in their music (which is played everywhere in public)? I am flabbergasted that you are a racist, and despise both the religion and the faithful Christian practice of the early generations of Northern European White people who settled this nation. It appears that you have none of what the Bible calls "natural affection" towards your own race (those of like language and flesh to you own). Since you believe in equality you need to put your beliefs into action: if you have white daughters, send them to an all black school, since all men are equal. Since you believe in equality, you need to move into a neighborhood where you are the only white man. Since women are just as qualified as men to hold public office, maybe you should work for Barbara Boxer, Hillary Clinton, or Diane Feinstein as a staff member. I am sure they would love to have some Christian window dressings for their offices in D.C. Perhaps you have not learned from history or personal experience, but creating a universal legislative equality for inferiors doesn't make them equal, but superior. Hence the "special rights" of blacks, women, Mexican illegals, sodomites, and others, which give them practical day to day favor and preeminence over better qualified white males. Perhaps you have not noticed, but "white, Anglo-Saxon, Protestant males" are the endangered speies of the 21st Century, and making them ashamed of themselves is one of the ways used to make certain their extinction! "Prove all things; hold fast that which is good." ! Thessalonians 5:21

Bro. Eric,

Stick to your expertise, Bro. Eric. You don't have any solid arguments from the Scripture to back up your position on "racism." You are wonderful in your knowledge of Jesuit History and exposing the "mystery of iniquity", so it doesn't help your cause to get entangled in these "white" discussions. Each time you do, your effectiveness in gaining an audience when dealing with the real problem (Jesuit conspiracy) takes a step backwards.

The corruption in this world is not due to a "skin" problem, but a "sin" problem. The mission field is not a particular region of the world, but is the heart of man.

By the way, what role does the USA play in the endtime prophetical scenario, and where is this found in the Scripture?

Bro. Carl

Dear Brother Carl,

Do you not know that historic White Anglo Saxon Protestant civilizations will be extinct by the end of the twenty-first century if the Lord does not appear for his Church? Does in not bother you that your children and now grandchildren are being forcefully race-mixed with Blacks and Spanish-speaking Roman Catholic Latinos who generally hate them? In this I am a specialist, believe me.

Further, please name just ONE high culture in the world that is Black or Hispanic without any White Protestant influence? The truth is that there are not any. Further, I do not wish for my children to be victims of Black and Latino hateful racism as I was a victim of such many, many, times. Experience has taught me to avoid their cultures lest they attack me and further victimize me.

When this nation becomes predominantly Black and Roman Catholic Hispanic the Whites will begin to learn the meaning of just what real hateful racism truly can be. I have been mugged by them, embarrassed by them, insulted by them, ashamed of their big loud mouths cursing in horrific profanity (unashamedly in front of women also) in the Air Force and in county jail, and in public when I was merely minding my own business when shopping.

Further, I say that the men of God of this nation have been intimidated into cowadice into accepting Black supremacy having been forced down the throats of Whites for the last sixty years. My solution to this continual crime or war against me---perpetrated simply because I did not choose to be White---is to be given a territory somewhere here in North America where my people (yes, I have a people in spite of what the Jesuit press tells us) can once again have our own Bible-based, White, English-speaking culture---like we once had! I will go anywhere in North America to accomplish this---and only the racial Jews may live among us. I am White, not ashamed of it and will never be ashamed of being White as I was forced to be ashamed of my White Protestant history when in High School and the Air Force. I speak English and am not ashamed of it when doing business downtown; and I am of historic Protestant and Baptist-Calvinists who created Western Civilization with the wonderful rights of freedom of speech, press and conscience. Have any other people of color or of any other religion ever accomplished this---by the grace of God? NONE!

Can you not see, Carl, that if the Order is destroying the Protestant West, that destruction must include the White race---Catholic and Protestant alike? Do you not know just what the Black savages in South Africa and Zimbabwe are doing to the Whites of those nations? Maybe you should visit those lands, but please do not take your daughter as she may more than likely be gang-raped for three or four days then thrown on the streets awaiting someone to show mercy as they pass by. On second thought, every American city is already in this condition. I will take you to 80% Black Philadelphia and you can experience some down home, hateful Black racism for yourself. I have had enough and I am not going to sin against the Lord like my Bible-believing fathers and grandfathers who did nothing about this quest for the destruction of the White race in Western civilization.

The only practical solution is separation of the races. Race mixing brings race war---and it's nearly here.

Maybe I should have replied with the question, "Just where did the races come from and why?" Yes, that is where we should start.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

How exactly do a person's genes determine their culture? The answer is that they do not, and the reason White Protestant civilizations are better off is because they have limited government [or at least they used to] and they valued progress instead of superstition.

I am black and have suffered greatly at the hands of Roman Oppression (Police Brutality) but I know precisely where Phelps is coming from, but only because I have studied this issue for such a long time and thanx to the Jesuit Info, many things have come together for me and I now know that race is a weapon of Rome. The average black person who is not familiar with New Atlantis, will be extremely put off by Phelp's stance on Race.

As a black man, trying to educate other black people on Jesse Jackson's Masonic Affiliation, and Rosa Park's Communist Ties is virtually impossible. I am 26 and still relatively young, many people my age especially in my community are not the least bit receptive. It is truly an uphill battle. I figured out a few things even before Vatican Assassins, like the media's attempt to glorify (Savage Black) behavior at the expense of the "Average White Guy". Combine that with shows like the (Feminazi/sacred Feminine indoctrination) Sex In the City which blatantly attack white male heterosexuality while promoting deviant promiscuity, I started to put the pieces together. Thanks to the Mafia controlled Hollywood, everywhere I go, people think I am a "Thug". It is blacks who quite often are the victims of this "savage black" behavior and when we speak out against it, we are attacked and branded as race traitors. 95 percent of Americas black leaders have been compromised and or have sold out to Masonry. The other 5 percent who actually have the courage to speak out are hit with rape allegations like Bill Cosby.

Because of all the racial tension created by the Yakuza/CIA sponsored OJ Trial \(MK Operative\) Agitation and the Jesuit sponsored NACCP, they have made it very difficult for white people who can see the conspiracy for what it is to talk about it openly. A white man who talks about the blatant destruction of his own country via forced desegregation and illegal immigration will be deemed a racist. A black man who can actually see the conspiracy for what it really is will be deemed a sell out amongst his own people for not supporting some stripper who claimed she was raped at a frat party.

As far as non whites go in regards to Phelps material, it may be best that it be disseminated by someone of their own race. Kind of like racial jokes being told by someone of the same race...The brainwashing and racial trauma that exists in the minds of blacks & latinos in this country keeps them from realizing the truth. They will not be able to understand how why a White Protestant has the right to be proud of his own race as much as they do.

Alexandra - May 31, 2006 04:01 AM (GMT)

I know what you're saying, Menses. You can't be upfront with what's really going on without being branded a racist. Where my husband works, people think he's racist because he doesn't believe in mixing races (we're white).

It's that knee-jerk reaction that people are conditioned to have.

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 31, 2006 11:37 AM (GMT)

Menses is absolutely correct! The big problem we have is not so much with the physical problems but with this LABELLING which the Jesuits love to create, whether it be Racist, Anti-Semitic, Homophobic blah blah. This label is a very powerful anti-truth weapon used by the Church of Rome and their elites.

TruthSeeker24 - May 31, 2006 12:31 PM (GMT)

I knew that God Almighty would want me to write something like this down for the record. I agree with some of what Eric is talking about like the bashing of whites and the shoving of "diversity" down people's throats. I don't agree completely with Eric on other points.. I've debated racists before. Eric is just wrong about high culture since in ancient times the Mali, Songhai, Kush, and other civilizations had high culture before Western Civilization came about. That was about high culture. Even today, Western Civilization didn't originate from Europe, but from the Middle East and Africa. Many of the inventions that Westerners have praised do have influence from the Middle East and Africa. Also, Eric talks about the Bible. I've debated people on here before. I've haven't seen a soul refute me 100% about the Bible condemning racism. The Bible is clear that the stranger is accepted among the Israeli people if he or she is a believer in God. Also, whites, blacks, Hispanics, and many groups of people are suffering.

Since the Bible is used a lot in these debates, here's a recap of verses about this issue:

- The bible forbids oppressing the neighbor wrongfully (Ezekiel 22:29).
- Joseph married an Egyptian (Genesis 46:20), and Rahab, a Canaanite married an Israelite (Rahab is in Jesus' lineage at Matthew 1:5-6). So, God never forbids interracial marriage among believers, but God forbids inter-faith marriages with unbelieving foreign women like Solomon did and other apostates. (1 Kings 11:1-2)
- Not to mention, that in Revelation, all kindred are together living in the eternal kingdom of God on Earth. (Revelation 7:9)
- Jesus called the Great Commission for the apostles and believers to convert all men, not limited to our own race or ethnic group. (Matthew 28:18-20; Mark 16:15; Luke 24:44-48; Acts 1:8)
- The Bible says that from one blood God created all men, so we all have the same origin. (Acts 17:26)
- All men equally have sinned and come short of the glory of God (Romans 3:23)
- The Bible says that all believers in Christ are one. (Galatians 3:28, Romans 1:25, Colossians 3:11)
- Every single human being is equal spiritually under Christ as set forth in the Holy Scriptures. Yes, God divided mankind after the Flood and the Tower of Babel, but all believers are connected under him and can have fellowship to worship God. The Tower of Babel was about people under Nimrod trying to create an one world government.
- Even the OT allows foreign believers to worship in Israel, so that the HOUSE OF THE LORD IS FOR ALL PEOPLE. (Isaiah 56:3-7) The Bible gives verses that allows foreign neighbors to fellowship with the Jewish people in integration of believers (Ezekiel 47:22, Leviticus 19:34, Acts 8:27-29, Numbers 15:15-16, Some people forgotten about that concept. All believers are equal. Equal doesn't mean identical in every fashion since men aren't identical physically to women, but it does mean equal in salvation, equal in worth, and in the capability of intelligence to receive the Holy Spirit.
- In Acts, a black man called Niger fellowshipped with other men in Turkey. This is the msoking gun promoting voluntary intergration of believers. (Acts 13:1) The Bible says that we aren't to judge by someone's appearance, but by righteous judgment (John 7:4). If we judge men by their skin color, we think carnally and with a pagan mindset.
- The apostle Philip baptized a eunuch in Ethoipia. This was in Kush, because the Bible says that the queen were candaces. Cancades was a known title given unto Black Nubia Queens. If Eric was right, Philip would have no business baptizing a eunuch in Ethopia, but this isn't the case. (Acts 8:27-40)
- God is no respecter of persons. (Romans 2:11, Colossians 3:25)

*The Bible is rather clear on this racial issue. I know my scriptures well. It has nothing to do with people's skin color, it's a sin problem. Also, we aren't even supposed to judge a man by their appearance as the book of Samuel says. We judge righteous judgment. Also, when I say equality, I don't mean equality in the Communist fashion of equal wealth, all humans are virtually identical (no one is virtually identical), etc. I mean equality meaning that all men are equally born in sin, equally having the same worth in the eyes of God, and equally have the capability for high intelligence given great effort. History has proven that among mankind of every color. As a black man, those who have hatred for white people are just as wrong as people denying the great contributions made by black people throughout human history. Also, any negative experience done by any people isn't representative of a whole people. We can't use our experiences to justify our perceptions of people 100% of the time. Real men don't allow experiences to allow them to believe in faulty and false stereotypes about groups of people. I do agree with Eric about the Jesuits, SMOM, etc. though.

Title: The Moussaoui trial was most certainly rigged

Description: By Nicholas Rivera

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 29, 2006 02:41 PM (GMT)

The Moussaoui trial was most certainly rigged. It was an elaborate production of a CIA asset which is why he was not sentenced to death but got a life sentence at ADX (aka Supermax) Florence, Colorado where all of the patsies of this Jesuit-controlled government are sent). I recently sent this to Brother Eric Jon Phelps which might be of interest to you-it is just one piece of the puzzle of this staged trial but I assure you it is a big one, a key one. The Jesuits had their hand in this trial in the person of Gerald T. Zerkin trained by Jesuits at Boston College Law School. It might also be of interest to you that the president of the American Bar Association Michael S. Greco was also trained there as well. I saw him on C-SPAN speaking at their commencement. The commissioner of the NFL Joe Tagliabue spoke at Jesuit Georgetown's commencement. Tagliabue was trained by Jesuits there and his son is a sodomite-I wonder if his son was abused as a child.

Back to the Moussaoui trial

Gerald T. Zerkin was trained by Jesuits at Boston College Law School. He was on the defense team for CIA asset Zacarias Moussaoui's staged trial for a crime that was committed by this Jesuit-controlled government and intelligence apparatus. Zerkin demanded that Moussaoui be given a life sentence instead of being executed as a martyr. Zerkin kept calling Moussaoui's mental health into question and got him to suddenly claim he had a role in 9/11 but not significant enough to warrant the death penalty and say that he was supposed to crash a plane into the White House.

<http://www.azstarnet.com/altsn/snredesign/...articles/122021>

Jesuit-trained Temporal Coadjutor Papal Court Jew Zerkin did this I believe to convince the jury that Moussaoui was crazy with religious fury and therefore mentally ill who sought to fulfill his fantasy of dying as a Muslim martyr.

The Jesuit-trained defense attorney protected the CIA asset and one of the Order's tools. http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Gerald_Zerkin

<http://www.signonsandiego.com/uniontrib/20...mou-lawyers.jpg>

Caption reads: "Defense attorney Gerald Zerkin (speaking, with other members of Zacarias Moussaoui's defense team) said the jurors "thought his role in 9/11 was not very great, and that played a significant role in their decision."

Moussaoui was not given the death penalty and sentenced to life at the Supermax Federal Prison in in Florence, Colorado. Other prisoners held there include Opus Dei Robert Philip Hanssen and Roman Catholic Freemason Timothy McVeigh who was given the death penalty. The Craft sacrificed McVeigh to further the Jesuit agenda.

Title: The JESUIT Hoax of Heliocentricity!

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 29, 2006 01:46 PM (GMT)

Thank God that the earth does not move!!

When the earth does move it is called an EARTHQUAKE!!

Article here

The Holy Bible is a GEOCENTRIC Bible because it states that God created the stationary world on the 1st day and it was not until the 4th day that the sun and moon were created.

user posted image

Almost perfectly spherical (round) stationary earth as viewed from outer space.

"He stretcheth out the north over the empty place, and hangeth the earth upon nothing" (Job 26:7).

"The LORD reigneth, he is clothed with majesty; the LORD is clothed with strength, wherewith he hath girded himself: the world also is stablished, that it cannot be moved" (Psalm 91:3).

"Fear before him, all the earth: the world also shall be stable, that it be not moved" (I Chronicles 16:30).

Many people consider the Encyclopedia Britannica the FINAL AUTHORITY on all scientific matters. No publication is as anxious to see the earth moving as the Rockefeller owned Britannica. So we won't be amiss if we consult this final authority on heliocentricity and see their PROOFS for the moving earth. Here is a quote from the New Encyclopedia Britannica:

"Basic planetary data. The mean distance of Earth from the Sun is about 149,600,000 km (92,960,000 miles). The planet orbits the Sun at a speed of 29.8 km (18.5 miles) per second, making one complete revolution in 365.256 days. As it revolves around the Sun, Earth spins on its axis and rotates completely once every 23 hours 56 minutes 4 seconds." (New Encyclopedia Britannica, vol. 4, p. 320).

You can search all 29 volumes of this final authority but you will look in vain for any PROOF for this revolution of the earth around the sun and its spinning on its axis every 24 hours. It is simply stated as DOGMA and to doubt is to be damned to a spinning hell forever by the "scientific" community.

The one proof they do offer is that the earth has a BULGE at the equator which they claim is caused by the earth spinning around for BILLIONS of years. Here is another quote from the final authority:

"The centrifugal force of Earth's rotation makes the planet bulge at the Equator. Because of this, Earth has the shape of an oblate spheroid, being flatter near the poles than near the Equator. Correspondingly, one degree of latitude is longer in high latitudes than it is in low ones." (Britannica vol. 4, p. 320).

Ordinary mortals cannot see this bulge however as it is visible only to the editors of the Britannica articles.

The sun orbits the earth every 24 hours

user posted image

According to the Book of Genesis, the sun was not created until the 4th day. The earth was created FIRST and is the center of the universe.

Hundreds of verses refer to the sun as RISING and SETTING every day while not ONE verse ever refers to the earth as MOVING:

"The sun also ariseth, and the sun goeth down, and hasteth to his place where he arose. (Ecclesiastes 1:5).

"The mighty God, even the LORD, hath spoken, and called the earth from the rising of the sun unto the going down thereof (Psalm 50:1).

The heliocentric theory says that the earth goes around the sun at about 6500 mph. That means that the heavy earth has to travel about 569,400,000 miles in a year (6500 x 24 x 365) or the circumference of the sun from the earth.

Divide that number by 24 and the sun has to travel about 23 million miles every hour of the day in order to complete one revolution of the earth. That is traveling very, very fast indeed but that is exactly what the Bible says the sun is doing every day:

"The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night sheweth knowledge. There is no speech nor language, where their voice is not heard. Their line is gone out through all the earth, and their words to the end of the world. In them hath he set a tabernacle for the sun, Which is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber, and rejoiceth as a strong man to run a race. His going forth is from the end of the heaven, and his circuit unto the ends of it: and there is nothing hid from the heat thereof (Psalm 19:1-6).

The seasons are caused by the annual motion of the sun around the earth!!

As well as orbiting the stationary earth every 24 hours, the sun also follows an eccentric orbit from north to south each year. That is what gives us the 4 seasons.

user posted image

The annual north-south motion of the sun gives us the 4 seasons

Equinoxes, solstices, and tropics are the result of the north-south motion of the sun, starting with the vernal or spring equinox on March 21, the official beginning of spring in the northern hemisphere.

On that day, the sun lies on the celestial equator. The word equinox refers to the fact that, on this day, the night is equal to the day: each is twelve hours long. The sun is directly above the equator, so its rays fall vertically down.

Through March, April, and May, the sun moves north. On June 22 it reaches its most northerly point, $23\frac{1}{2}^{\circ}$ above the equator. In the northern hemisphere that day is called the summer solstice. It is the longest day of the year and the official beginning of summer. The sun lies on the circle of the earth called the Tropic of Cancer.

On September 23, the sun, moving south, reaches the equator again. The day is again 12 hours long. That day is called the autumnal equinox and is the official beginning of autumn.

On December 22, the sun reaches its most southerly point. That day is called the winter solstice and is the official beginning of winter. The sun shines up from beneath the equator. At noon the sun is straight overhead at points on the earth's Tropic of Capricorn, $23\frac{1}{2}^{\circ}$ south of the equator. At that time, it is the summer solstice in the southern hemisphere. The cycle again repeats itself and gives us our 4 seasons and the solar year.

The moon orbits the earth every 24 hours 50 minutes

The moon orbits the earth in about 24 hours 50 minutes. The resultant orbital lag between the sun and the moon causes the phases of the moon. In about one month the sun and moon are again synchronized and as a result we have the new moon and the cycle repeats all over again.

user posted image

The moon orbits the earth every 24 hours and 50 minutes.

In a stationary earth the moon HAS to orbit the earth every 24 hours. Every night, everybody on earth can see the moon rise in the east and set in the west in a 12 hour period but they are told to attribute this motion to the moving of the earth. Here is a quote about the moon from the final authority, the Encyclopedia Britannica:

"The Moon rotates about its own axis in 27.322 days, which is also the time that it takes to complete one orbit around Earth. As a result, the Moon always presents nearly the same face to Earth. Whereas the actual rate of rotation is uniform, the distance through which the Moon moves in its orbit from day to day varies somewhat. Accordingly, the face that the Moon turns to Earth is subject to a corresponding cyclical variation, the lunar globe oscillating slightly (as seen over time by a terrestrial observer) with a period nearly equal to that of revolution. The amount of this apparent oscillation, which is called libration, is commonly between 6 and 7 degrees." (New Encyclopedia Britannica, vol. 17, p. 299).

The phases of the moon

Everybody who looks up at the moon can see that it presents a different shape or face throughout the month. These different faces are called PHASES OF THE MOON. Since Galileo and Kepler, here is the way the "scientific" community explains the different phases:

user posted image

In this typical heliocentric diagram of the phases of the moon the sunlight is coming from a stationary sun and the moon takes a MONTH to move around the earth.

This is a typical HELLiocentric explanation of the phases of the moon. Notice that the sun is STATIONARY so the earth MUST do the moving.

In this scenario, the moon is moving very, very slowly around the earth taking ONE MONTH to complete a revolution.

The moon is supposed to move at a speed of about 2,000 mph or about 13 degrees to an observer on earth.

At new moon, the moon will be in front of the sun for about 3 days. At full moon, the earth will be between the sun and moon for about 3 days also.

How eclipses of the moon are caused

When the moon moves between the sun and the earth it casts a shadow or umbra on the earth, blocking or partially blocking our view of the sun. This is called a solar eclipse.

user posted image

A solar eclipse occurs when the moon blocks the light of the sun from reaching the earth.

Notice how the "scientific" community describes a solar eclipse exactly as they describe a new moon phase of the moon.

Real solar eclipses are very rare and last at the most 10 minutes but with the moon traveling SLOWLY in front of the sun we should get a big solar eclipse every new moon.

When the earth moves between the sun and the moon it casts a shadow on the face of the moon, blocking or partially blocking our view of the moon. This is called a lunar eclipse.

user posted image

A lunar eclipse occurs when the earth blocks the light from reaching the moon.

According to the heliocentric theory, a lunar eclipse works exactly as the phases of the full moon.

The earth is 4 times larger than the moon so with the slow moving moon we should get a lunar eclipse every full moon and it should last at least a couple of days!!

The great celestial cover up

In the heliocentric system it is IMPOSSIBLE to have phases of the moon without having a major solar and lunar eclipse at least twice every month. The spinning earth can't save them this time because the shadow would just move with the earth and more people could view this spectacular heavenly display twice a month.

Here is a table of approximate moonrise and moonset times for the east coast of the U. S. at latitude 45 degrees and using daylight savings time. You will notice that the moon has about the same 12 hour period of earth orbit as the sun. Try looking up every night and checking it for yourself.

Moonrise	Moonset	Moonrise	Moonset
New moon	06:00 AM	06:00 PM	-----	Full moon 06:00 PM 06:00 AM
Young crescent	09:00 AM	09:00 PM	---	Waning gibbous 09:00 PM 09:00 AM
First quarter	12:00 PM	12:00 AM	-----	Last quarter 12:00 AM 12:00 PM

Waxing gibbous 03:00 PM 03:00 AM --- Old crescent 03:00 AM 03:00 PM

The Foucault Pendulum

Many "astronomers" cite the Foucault pendulum experiment that was carried out in Paris in 1851 as PROOF that the earth turns. It's a pity that the NASA space program has not provided them with more recent proof. Here is a quote from a 36-year veteran of the space program with a Ph.D. in astronomy from the University of Michigan:

"Proof of Earth's turning, or rotation, didn't come until 1851, more than two millennia after Heraclides (researchers didn't have much government funding back then, so progress was slow). The proof came from a big French swinger: a heavy metal ball suspended from the ceiling above the floor of the Pantheon (a church) in Paris on a 200-foot wire. The ball is called a Foucault pendulum, after the French physicist who came up with the plan. If you kept an eye on the pendulum as it swung back and forth all day, you could see that the direction taken by the swinging ball across the floor gradually changed, as though the floor was turning underneath it." (Maran, Astronomy for Dummies, p. 42).

Jesuit Leon Foucault (1819-1868).

By 1851, despite Copernicus, Galileo and Kepler no proof existed of the rotation of the earth.

The Jesuits were getting DESPERATE because without a rotating earth the theory of evolution falls flat on its face.

At that time a Jesuit named Leon Foucault "invented" a contrivance that supposedly PROVED the rotation of the earth.

The Foucault pendulum was just another Jesuit hoax like the Piltown man.

Foucault was a failure until Napoleon III became his patron!!

Foucault was a failure at everything he did until Louis Napoleon became his patron. Louis was the nephew of the emperor Napoleon Bonaparte and became president of France in 1848. In 1851, he abolished civil liberties and declared himself dictator of France.

Foucault's pendulum in the church of the Pantheon in Paris. The pendulum had a specially rigged device on top to make it sway a certain way. Of course it was not visible from the floor. Notice also that the pendulum was not swinging in a VACUUM where air currents could not influence its sway.

In front of this display was a big sign which read: COME SEE THE PROOF THAT THE EARTH IS TURNING!!

The French scientific community were not amused by Foucault's folly and refused to make him a member of the French Academy.

Pressure from the emperor finally caused them to relent and 2 years before his death, Foucault was finally made a member of that august body.

All the Bonapartes were Jesuits

There is a definite conflict of interest in this Napoleon sponsored experiment to prove that the earth is turning....It might be a "coincidence" but the future emperor Napoleon was born on the island of Corsica in 1769. That was just 2 years after the Jesuits were dumped on that island when Pope Clement banned them with a perpetual decree never to be rescinded.

Confession No. 6: The Search For America's Hidden Enemy Continues With The Jesuits

Researcher Jeremy Lack says Vatican/Jesuit tyranny erased from history, especially from 1960.

28 May 2006

By Greg Szymanski

PART I/II

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/28-May-2006.html>

The search for America's real, hidden enemy continues this Sunday by the banks of Brushy Creek.

Brushy Creek, usually gushing with a turbulent flow of water, has dried up to little more than a trickle, drying up from the sweltering Texas heat or maybe from the hot air coming from Washington D.C.

And this week was a particularly disturbing one in American history, as it was marked with the passage of the illegal immigration bill, paving the way for more than 200 million illegals over the next 20 years.

It was also particularly disturbing since President Bush addressed West Point's graduating class, shouting like a warmonger for a continued escalation of the Middle East war. And from his speech, it's clear the voice of the people means absolutely nothing as his criminal freight train steams along with its next stop World War III.

But in an attempt to derail the war machine, the process of identifying the real, hidden shadowy enemy moves along this week without trepidation or fear, as the Jesuit Order headed by the Black Pope are being considered as the real spiritual controllers in Sunday's Confession No. 6.

Once we are finished with the Jesuits, we'll move along to other possibilities such as the Zionist Jews. But for now researcher Jeremy Lack provides a lengthy but stimulating look at Jesuit/Vatican tyranny throughout the history.

It should be noted before listening to Lack's research findings, the Vatican and the Jesuit Order fully back the illegal immigration going on in America, as well as silently backing the U.S. illegal invasion in the Middle East.

Lack reminds us the Jesuit Order was originally instituted in Portugal and Spain in 1534 by the Vatican for the sole purpose of exterminating the Reformation. The Order was then suppressed by Pope Clement XIV for which he was promptly poisoned. The Order was then reinstated in 1814 and given the "Secret Treaty of Verona" for the express purpose of carrying out its dictates. The edict was finally ratified by its contracting parties on 1822, causing President James Monroe, with the assistance of Thomas Jefferson, to write the Monroe Doctrine to protect against tyranny as recorded in the Congressional Record-Senate volume 53, Part 7, Page 6781 of the 64th Congress, 1st Session, 25 April 1916.

Lack said he dedicated the following research to the late Jesuit priest, Fr. Alberto Rivera, killed for trying to get out the truth about the Society of Jesus, known as the Jesuits. He adds remember Matt: 7:15: "Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves."

Remembering the Jesuit Order is organized like a military organization with a presence in every corner of the world, Lack also reminds us that much of the true Jesuit history has been taken out of library circulation, especially after 1960 as the Jesuits, known as the world's great educators, are trying to cover up their evil past.

Lack's research about who he calls the feared Jesuits and the masters of deception and evil begins with the words:

I read a book some years ago that started my research, that I am still involved in today. The information I have, I believe, if it were ever brought to a trial, would prove so conclusively of what I am about to tell you that not even the perpetrators themselves would try to deny it. In the past, when confronted with their prior history of atrocities, their only response has been: "we don't do that anymore", or sneer at its improbability, or a gratuitous imputation of bigotry and intolerance against the writer, while at the same time telling all their followers: "we never change". As you read it will become only too apparent that the latter is the case.

Before I begin, and you start thinking I'm an "extremist", let me say that I'm not the only person to find this information. It is readily available (at the finger tips of those on the internet) to anyone willing to put in a little time and research. I have found, what I believe to be, the common denominator for a very large percentage (if not all) of the events perpetrated and/or carried out by departments of government and/or its agencies, that are totally negative to the rights and freedoms of the American people, hence, also to the United States Constitution, its Bill of Rights and the Declaration of Independence. This organization is responsible for the wholesale slaughter of multi-millions of peoples all over the world. It is responsible for the "Dark Age" (inquisition) period leading up to the founding of this country: As you will learn, this organization, though having periods of civil and military power fluctuation (due to losses from their own tyrannical acts and resultant exposure) not only still exists: but is far more powerful (lethal) today than ever before: This is especially true in the United States, where the order has its highest concentration (at least seventeen times that of any other country).

A zeal for the discovery of new territory marked the fifteenth century. The first navigations for this purpose were concerted and directed by Prince Henry. Born 1394, the fourth son of John I. king of Portugal. His valor in the assault and capture of the city: Ceuta in Africa 1415, presaged the fame he afterward acquired. From this period he devoted himself to naval expeditions for the discovery of unknown countries. His ships subjected diverse parts of Africa and the neighboring islands to the dominion of Portugal. After the success in doubling cape Bojadoy, he gave to his father and successors all the land he discovered, or might discover, and applied to Pope Martin V to ratify the donation. He engaged that in all their expeditions the Portuguese should have mainly in view the extension of the Roman church and authority of its pontiff. Pope Martin granted the prince's request. In his bull of ratification, which was about the year 1430, it is declared that: "whatever might be discovered from the said cape to the utmost India, should pertain to the Portuguese dominion." Edward, brother of Prince Henry, succeeded to the throne of Portugal 1433, on the death of John I. Pope Eugene IV. by his bull in 1438, ratified, to Edward, the grant made by Martin V. A bull of Nicholas V. dated 8 Jan 1454, refers to the aforesaid bulls of his predecessors, Martin and Eugene. It recites the declaration prince Henry made of his achievements "that for 25 years he had not ceased to send annually almost an army" of Portuguese, "with the greatest dangers, labors and charges, in the most swift ships, to search out the sea and maritime provinces toward the southern parts and Antarctic Pole." that these ships "came at length to the province of Guinea, and took possession of some islands, havens and sea adjoining" that "sailing further, war was waged for some years with the people of those parts, and very many islands near thereunto were subdued and peaceably possessed and were still possessed with the adjacent sea" that "many Guineans and other negroes were taken then by force, and some by barter." The bull describes

Henry as "a true soldier of Christ, a most courageous defender and intrepid champion of the faith, aspiring from his early youth with his utmost might to have the glorious name of Christ published, extolled and revered throughout the world. "It recognizes the exclusive right of Portugal to the acquisitions and possessions aforesaid, in virtue of the letters of Popes Martin and Eugene, which granted to the king of Portugal and Prince Henry "free and ample faculty to invade, search out, expunge, vanquish and subdue all pagans and enemies of Christ whosoever placed and their persons to reduce to perpetual slavery, and all their kingdoms, possessions and goods to apply and appropriate," etc. Pope Nicholas's letter then goes on to "decree and declare, the acquets already made, and what hereafter shall happen to be acquired, after that they shall be acquired, have pertained, and forever of right do belong and pertain to the aforesaid king and his successors, and not to any others whatever." It forbids, on the severest penalties, all Christian powers from settling in the countries discovered by the Portuguese, or any way molesting them in their expeditions for the discovery and conquest of unknown countries. It speaks of prince Henry's plan and his prosecution of it as "a most pious work, and most worthy of perpetual remembrance, wherein the glory of God, where the interest of the commonwealth of the universal church are concerned."

Thus was Prince Henry's views and operations sanctioned by the highest authority, at that time, acknowledged in Christendom. A right derived from a source so venerable was then undisputed. The Roman pontiff bound princes at his pleasure, and as Vicar of Christ, was allowed to have at his disposal all the kingdoms of the earth. This grant of Pope Nicholas was confirmed by his successor: Calixtus III. 6 August 1458.

On the death of Edward, his son Alphonsus, then in his minority, succeeded to the throne of Portugal, 1438, and died 1481. Prince Henry died 1460-63. At his death the spirit of discovery languished, but revived with the accession of John II, son of Alphonsus. The year after his accession (1482), sent an embassy to Edward IV of England, to acquaint him with the title acquired by the Pope's bull to the conquest in Guinea: requesting him to dissolve a fleet, which some English merchants were fitting for the Guinea (slave) trade. The king of England showed great respect to the ambassadors and granted all they required. The king of Portugal assumed, and the king of England gave him, this style, Rex Portugalie et Algarbiorum citra at ultra mare in Africa. Pope Sixtus IV., not long before his death (12 Aug 1484), confirmed all the grants made by his predecessors, to the kings of Portugal and their successors.

In 1481 John II sent 100 artificers, 500 soldiers, and all necessities to build a fort in Guinea. The large kingdoms of Benin and Congo were discovered 1484-85 and the Cape of Good Hope 1486. The Portuguese built forts and planted colonies in Africa: established a commercial intercourse with the powerful kingdoms, and compelled the petty princes, by force of arms, to acknowledge themselves vassals.

At this period, and by these means, the power and commerce of the Portuguese in Africa were well established. The wholesome decrees of five successive Roman pontiffs granted, conveyed and confirmed to the most faithful king a right to appropriate the kingdoms, goods and possessions of all infidels, wherever to be found, "to reduce their persons to perpetual slavery or destroy them from the earth", for the declared purpose of bringing the Lord's sheep into one dominical fold, under one universal pastor. Succeeding kings of Portugal have not forfeited the large grant by any undutifulness to their holy father. Portugal long enjoyed the trade to Africa and the East Indies without interference of any European power. For more than half a century, before exporting any negroes from Africa, she made and held them slaves in their native country.

The Portuguese first imported slaves into Hispaniola 1508, and into their Brazilian colonies 1517. Their sugar works were first set up in these colonies 1580. Their union with Spain, at that time, was most unfortunate for them. The Dutch became their enemy, who took their East-India and Brazilian conquests and parts of their African colonies. They recovered Brazil and their African establishments 1640, but not that of India.

After the Dutch gave up Brazil and the gold mines were discovered, the trade of Portugal improved and a great importation of slaves took place: carrying yearly from Loangro to Brazil: 25,000, also many thousands from Goango and Cape Lopes. They themselves say they carry to Brazil 50,000 and more every year from Melinda, on the Mozambique coast. Such had been the increase of their Brazilian and African colonies for a century that their increase in English goods, annually, was greater than that of Portugal and Spain combined prior to 1700.

Spanish America received slaves from the Genoese, Portuguese, French and English. Every state purchased from Spain seceded from the union (1861). The Vatican was the only country to acknowledge sovereignty to the Confederacy. Before, during and long after the African slave trade ended: the heads of state of Spain and Portugal were addressed (and may still be), in formal title, by foreign dignitaries/heads of state, as: "His/Her Catholic Majesty" (U.S. State Dept. records): thereby acknowledging them, only, as emissaries of the pope.

Catholic priest's dealing in the African slave trade is testified to, in this poem by the famous nineteenth century poet, J.G. Whittier:

A poem, on the slave block in New Orleans.

THE CHRISTIAN SLAVE

BY J. G. WHITTIER

A CHRISTIAN! going, gone!

Who bids for Gods own image?-for His grace

Which this poor victim of the market-place
Hath in her suffering won?
My God! can such things be?
Hast thou not said that whatsoe'er is done
Unto Thy weakest and Thy humblest one,
Is even done to thee?
In that sad victim, then,
Child of Thy pitying love, I see Thee stand,
Once more the jest-word of a mocking band,
Bound, sold, and scourged again!
A Christian up for sale!
Wet with her blood your whips-o'ertask her frame,
Make her life loathsome with your wrong and shame,
Her patience shall not fail!
Cheers for the turbaned bey
Of robber-peopled tunis! he hath torn
The dark slave-dungeons open, and hath borne
Their inmates into day:
But our poor slave in vain
Turns to the Christian shrine her aching eyes-
Its rites will only swell her market price,
And rivet on her chain.
God of all right! how long

Shall priestly robbers at Thine alter stand,

Lifting in prayer to thee the bloody hand

And haughty brow of wrong!

O, from the fields of cane,

From the low rice-swamp, from the traders cell-

From the black slave-ship's foul and loathsome hell,

And coffer's weary chain-

Hoarse, horrible, and strong,

Rises to heaven that agonizing cry,

Filling the arches of the hollow sky,

How Long, O Lord, how long!

For those who think the Vatican's attitude, toward black people, may have changed through the ages bear this in mind: (1) the biggest race riot in American history(1864, Brooklyn, New York City) was instigated by Archbishop Hughes (in response to Lincoln creating a draft for more union soldiers), including the burning, and trampling to death of the occupants, of a black orphanage. (2)when the U.S. Army occupied Rome during WWII, Pope Pius XII made it clear to American generals there were to be no black soldiers garrisoned in Rome. (3)over 80% of St. Louis, New York City, Chicago etc. police are Knights of Columbus: bear this in mind when you learn that over 75% of these cops sell drugs; and when reviewing the facts of the Fred Hampton murder by the Chicago police, 4 Dec 69, 6:00AM: every shot fired in the apartment was from fully automatic weapons used by the police (no return fire); Amadou Diallo: four cops randomly "check out" Diallo: telling him to show his I.D.: while reaching for his wallet, in compliance with their "order" the cops open up on him: 41 shots fired, 19 striking his body: one bullet traveling almost vertically up each lower leg and another thru the bottom of the right shoe, proves Diallo was flat on his back when the shots were fired: Diallo was unarmed. Officer McMellon- bruised his tail bone falling from stoop; officer Carroll - injured his ankle in fall from steps: evidently, these four of "New Yorks finest" conducted themselves with all of the professionalism and expertise of Daffy Duck. If this is "New York's finest" I can't imagine what could possibly be their worst. The cops, defense lawyers and judge all had a party after the trial. Every unarmed black being shot in New York City (by police) is a working immigrant. Special Forces Group's (snipers) have been giving weapons training (and illegally selling weapons) to the KKK in Alabama in exchange for info on black leaders that lead to the murder of Martin Luther King Jr. and was financed through, New Orleans godfather: Carlos Marcello direct associate of J. Edgar Hoover: Knight of Malta; 33d degree Mason). Portuguese, Raul Maori (director of James Earl Rays movements and actions that set him up as a patsy: actual shooter of Martin Luther King Jr.) is a drugs and weapons smuggler for Carlos Marcello. To see a direct connection between the KKK, GBI and the FBI, see the docudrama: "Who Murdered Atlanta's Children?" Blacks are being systematically squeezed out of welfare, while legal and illegal catholic immigrants receive unending welfare. Blacks fear the police more than street gangs. Every American city has a predominate Catholic influence, and the proportion of mafia/catholic power and influence and crime rate is consistent from city to city: <http://www.thelinkup.org> Entire tribes of western American Indians were annihilated under the direct orders of the brown robed butchers, i.e. Coronado and his Spanish Conquistadors 1519-1540's. Not to mention the Aztecs and Incas of Mexico, Central and South America, Cuba, Haiti, Grenada, Guam, Philippines etc. With the likes of Almagro, Cortez, Pizarro, Valverde, de Meza, Gregory, Sepulveda, Valega and, yes, Christopher Columbus (imprisoned by Queen Isabella of Spain for his atrocities against the natives of Grenada), robbing them of all their national wealth and enslaving the people (try finding that in your public school history books. In the late middle age discoveries, the Vatican viewed all natives of the Americas as "indigenous natural slaves":

"Battle of Wounded Knee" (slaughter at wounded knee): With the Sioux, unarmed (except for a few skinning knives) and herded together like cattle: a man in a black robe (Jesuit) asked the Indians if they wanted to prey. After preying (non-catholic) the "man in the black robe" spoke to the cavalry officer, who then ordered the cavalry troops to form a line across in front of the defenseless Indians, then ordered them to open fire.

Until 1960 you could read, in any public library, books detailing Vatican/Jesuit atrocities throughout the European middle age/dark age inquisitions, since 1960 there has been a systematic removal of all publications (after web pages, like this one, became known, several hundred books suddenly disappeared from the Library of Congress; example: "Confessions of The Conspirators" {to Lincoln's assassination}): evidencing a systematic takeover of all educational material: remember the "book burnings" in Berlin 1933?). This is further evidenced by the remote location of Machu Picchu. And all in the name of their "holy mother", the Church of Rome. Our own war of independence was called a war of spiritual freedom: after seeing the purposeful destruction of every church and synagogue in every city, village and town the British Red Coats marched through. Every church that is except Roman Catholic. That's recorded in: "The Light and the Glory", by: Peter Marshall and David Manuel. Though the authors never mention the Jesuit's as the perpetrators of these atrocities other records leave little doubt ["British Canadian Sir Henry Clinton: commander-in-chief in North America, his troops made up of Oliver Delaney's and Cortlandt Skinner's brigades, New York Volunteers, Queens Rangers, Orange Rangers, Loyal Americans, Pennsylvania Loyalists, Maryland Loyalists, Roman Catholic Volunteers, West Jersey Volunteers, Chasseurs, Royal Americans Reformees, Volunteers of Ireland (Catholic), British Legion, Guides and Pioneers" (Secret History of the American Revolution, by: Carl Van Doren)].

In fact the authors try to exonerate the Jesuits. However in that attempt they accept the information of a man who was on the team of translators of the "American Standard version" of the bible. How anyone could put their trust in a person who would associate himself with a group of men of which 33% were known affiliates with communist fronts and causes is beyond me ("None Dare Call It Treason", by: John H. Stormer, 1964). The correlation of the Vatican's role in the instigation and continuance of the Revolutionary War is clearly evidenced in: "The Paris Peace Treaty of 1783". A synopsis of Vatican orchestrated atrocities can be seen when reading: "Foxes Book of Martyr's".

This book also shows the direct correlation between the submission demands placed on the inquisition victims, by Priests, and the Papal encyclical to the Second Vatican Council, promulgated 25 May 1995 i.e. recognizing the Pope as the vicar of Christ (Christ incarnate); taking part in communion that recognizes the wafer of unleavened bread (Eucharist) as the literal body and blood of Christ, and making it an essential part of being a member of the body of Christ. For this to be a part of R.C. dogma is of no consequence, but to say that the R.C. Church has not only the authority, but the obligation and duty to God to apply it to every person, of every religion, that has been baptized in Christ's name (willing or unwilling), and that the sole purpose of the Vatican and its ecumenical movement is to bring about this end, is to expose the fact that the Vatican has not changed its dogma, stand, purpose or methods since the start of the inquisitions. Here are a few paragraphs: "We can now ask how much further we must travel until that blessed day when full unity in faith will be attained and we can celebrate together in peace the Holy Eucharist of the Lord.

The greater mutual understanding and the doctrinal convergences already achieved between us, which have resulted in an affective and effective growth of communion, cannot suffice for the conscience of Christians who profess that the Church is one, holy, Catholic and apostolic. The ultimate goal of the ecumenical movement is to re-establish full visible unity among all the baptized" (page 35, last paragraph). "It is already possible to identify the areas in need of fuller study before a true consensus of faith can be achieved: 1) the relationship between sacred scripture, as the highest authority in matters of faith, and Sacred Tradition, as indispensable to the interpretation of the Word of God; 2) the Eucharist, as the Sacrament of the Body and Blood of Christ, an offering of praise to the Father, the sacrificial memorial and Real Presence of Christ and the sanctifying outpouring of the Holy Spirit; 3) Ordination, as a Sacrament, to the threefold ministry of the episcopate, presbyterate and diocanate; 4) the Magesterum of the Church, entrusted to the Pope and the Bishops in communion with him, understood as a responsibility and an authority exercised in the name of Christ for teaching and safeguarding the faith; 5) the Virgin Mary, as Mother of God and Icon of the Church, the spiritual Mother who intercedes for Christ's disciples and for all humanity" (page 36, paragraph 7).

"Consequently, for the out come of dialogue to be received, there is needed a broad and precise critical process which analyzes the results and rigorously tests their consistency with the Tradition of faith received from the Apostles and lived out in the community of believers gathered around the Bishop, their "legitimate" pastor" (page 37, paragraph 3). The enormity of the implications of this edict so staggers the imagination that to refuse to acknowledge this threat to American freedoms and rights, and the enormity of its scope, can only be construed as complicity with its intentions. If you have any doubts at all about this all you have to do is read this edict. It is titled:

"That They May Be One". It is interesting that the pope uses the word "they" and not "we", obviously excluding himself. After all, being the vicar of Christ (Christ incarnate), he can't consider himself a mere mortal (power is intoxicating, even to the extent of total distortion of logic). This edict has been given full approval by Skull & Bones: Pat Robertson, of the 700 Club. Also read the first and second points of the second week of "The Spiritual Exercises of Saint Ignatius of Loyola". Ignatius of Loyola, who's real name was Inigio Lopez De Recalde, founded the Society of Jesus(Jesuits)1534 in Spain, and also the Illuminati (holder of the light) [later instituted 1 May 1776 by Adam Weishaupt (German Jesuit, who's picture is on our one dollar bill) at Ingelstadt (Jesuit) University, where he was Professor of Cannon Law, under the direct orders of the "Black Pope"(who is a member of the Masonic Lodge of Europe) and financed by the "House of Rothschild" (In 1777 Weishaupt was initiated into the Masonic Order, the Lodge of Good Council, in Munich, to infiltrate and control it. At the Masonic International Congress at Wilhemsbad July 1782 the Masonic leaders received Illuminati indoctrination) (U.S. branch of the Illuminati is: "Council on Foreign Relations", of which U.S. Supreme Court judges: Ruth Bader Ginsburg (Catholic), Stephen Breyer (Catholic) and Sandra Day O'Conner are members, Bill Clinton, George Bush, Newt Gingrich, etc.); "Trilateral Commission" and "Skull & Bones" of Yale University]. De Recalde was also a Crusader (Vatican army that raped Israel, and most of Europe, in the dark age inquisitions). Interlocked Illuminati fronts are: United Nations, Bilderberg Group, Club of Rome, Royal Institute For International Affairs (England), Tri-Lateral Commission and Council On Foreign Relations.

Jesuit spiritual exercises are a daily ritual for Jesuits. A copy is easily obtainable thru the Internet. Let me quote a couple of lines: "The first point is to put before me a human king chosen by God our Lord, whom all Christian princes and men reverence and obey. The second, to look how this king speaks to all his people, saying: It is my will to conquer all the land of unbelievers. Therefore, whoever would like to come with me is to be content to eat as I, and also to drink and dress, etc., as I: likewise he is to labor like me in the day and watch in the night, etc., that so afterwards he may have part with me in the victory, as he has had it in the labors". Third week, first day, fifth point: "The fifth to consider how the Divinity hides itself, that is, how it could destroy its enemies and does not do it, and how it leaves the most sacred Humanity to suffer so very cruelly".

In the bull: Unam Sanctam (by: Pope Boniface VIII, promulgated 18 Nov 1302) we see the Vatican's intention of using governments and their agencies to achieve Vatican goals: "We are informed by the texts of the gospels that in this church and in its power are two swords; namely the spiritual and the temporal. For when the Apostles say: "Behold here are two swords" [Lk 22:38] that is to say, in the church, since the Apostles were speaking, the Lord did not reply that there were too many, but sufficient. Certainly the one who denies that the temporal sword is in the power of Peter has not listened well to the word of the Lord commanding: "Put up thy sword into thy scabbard" [Mt 26:52]. Both, therefore, are in the power of the church, that is to say, the spiritual and the material sword, but the former is to be administered-for-the Church but the latter-by-the Church; the former in the hands of the priests; the latter in the hands of kings and soldiers, but at the will and sufferance of the priest": This self grandiosing butchery is espoused in more definitive terms, in the catholic publication: "Toward a Catholic Constitution", 1996, by Jesuit Leonard Swidler (professor of catholic thought and inter-religious dialogue, Temple University, Philadelphia Pa.): "One need look no further than the now accepted bulwark of orthodoxy (conformity to an established belief or doctrine), Thomas Aquinas, to see how far the prevalent assumptions about the penetration of religion and politics, with the presumed supremacy of the former, extended at that time. In treating of heretics Thomas views them as common criminals.

Their crime is even greater than that of counterfeiters, for "it is much more grievous to corrupt the faith . . . than to falsify money." Therefore, heretics "may not only be excommunicated, but may justly be killed." The church should properly tolerate their existence for a while, so long as there is some reasonable hope for conversion, but when that is gone, then heretics (anyone not catholic) must be cut out like rotten flesh," as Jerome says. They should be handed over "to the secular judge to be exterminated from the world through death." (pg. 58). This edict was included in canon law until May of 1983: This should be sufficient to convince you of the militancy of the Vatican, Illuminati and their method of administration [now we know what was behind the raid on Mount Carmel in Waco (pilot program to establish future policy)]. Nowhere is this policy more obvious than in the Balkans. The "Dogmatic Constitution on The Church" proclaimed by pope Paul VI, 21 Nov 1964: 20. Paragraph 3: "with priests and deacons as helpers, the bishops received the charge of the community, presiding in Gods stead over the flock, of which they are the shepherds in that they are teachers of doctrine, ministers of sacred worship and holders of office in government." Ireland is a typical example of this policy.

"There is none that understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God. They are all gone out of the way, they are together become unprofitable; there is none that doeth good, no not one. Their throat is become an open sepulchre; with their tongues they have used deceit; the poison of asps is under their lips: whose mouth is full of cursing and bitterness: their feet are swift to shed blood: destruction and misery are in their ways: and the way of peace have they not known: there is no fear of God before their eyes." Romans, 3:11-18.

Ironically the Jesuits are feared (and highly disliked) among the Catholic clergy more than anywhere else (there is inner-clergy rivalry within the R.C. orders, not unlike that of the upper-echelon of the Third Reich: they know the Jesuits for what they really are). Not too surprising since the Jesuits answer only to the "Black Pope, the Jesuits do for the Vatican what the Jesuit trained, S.S., S.D., S.A. and Gestapo did for the Third Reich.

Frans Von Papen, (Jesuit) Hitlers mentor, chancellor of Germany (June 1932 - March 1933) and first vice-chancellor of the Third Reich, stated in his book: "My Conversations with Hitler": "Hitler has put into practice the high ideals of the papacy". This statement was made in reference to the death camps. As chancellor, von Papen's first act was to dissolve the Reichstag; his second was lifting the ban on Hitler's "Brown Shirts" (SA); he then integrated Catholic youth groups into the "Hitler Youth": setting up the civil and political base for Hitler and the Nazi Party to move into power. "Mein Kampf" was written for Hitler by Jesuit Staempfle. As papal nuncio to Germany (1917-1929), Archbishop Eugenio Pacelli worked with Germany's Illuminati bankers (Chase Manhattan, in New York City, and Bank of England funneled money's through Credit Swiss (Vatican bank) to the Reich's Bank in Berlin) and industrialist's (I.G. Farben), establishing the financial and industrial base for the Third Reich: WW II was in its planning stage while WW I was still in full swing. Thousands of Jews were hidden in the Vatican, as a precaution, in case Hitler lost the war.

"Yea the time cometh when he that killeth you will think that he doeth God service." (John 16:2)

The fact that the Vatican entered into a concordat with Hitler [signed in the Vatican by Von Papen and Cardinal Secretary of State: Eugenio Pacelli (later Pope Pius XII), 20 July 1933], as with Mussolini, Franco and Salazar is no secret. But the Vatican's attempt to seduce Hitler into extending the provisions of that concordat to include every country he raped and pillaged is not so well known, but is recorded in Hitler's own words in his book: "Hitler's Secret Conversations" i.e. "I have shown myself unresponsive to the attempts of the Vatican toward the extension of the provisions of the concordat to embrace the newly acquired territories of the Reich. The Saar, Sudetenland, Bohemia and Moravia, the Reichsgau Danszig-East Prussia, the Warthegau, a large part of Silesia and Alsace-Lorraine have, in fact, no relations with the Roman Catholic Church which are supported by formal international agreement" (page 516).

"The attitude of the Bishop von Galen affords just one more argument in favor of terminating the Concordat after the war, substituting for it regional regulations and immediately withholding from the Church the financial support at present guaranteed to it by that treaty" (page 520). Pacelli (negotiating the concordat provisions) insisted, the German State, within the dictates of the concordat, "be bound by any and all proposals of the local bishop regarding teachers of religion, and that the state would be obliged to fire such teachers if the bishop so demanded; meanwhile, the state would be required to meet all financial obligations, and at the same time, guarantee the application of canon law to the faithful"; [Bill Bennett (and his, Jesuit, brother Bob are KNOWN operatives in CIA/MK-Ultra/Project Monarch <http://www.iahf.com/readings/index.html> - extreme trauma induced multiple personality mind control sex deviates and pedophiles), self professed Jesuit, Secretary of Education under Reagan, propagator of Outcome Based Education (OBE), stated: "All children should be taught by Jesuits" (to profligate Americas youth: Joan of Arc was burned at the stake, at age sixteen, after signing her name to a document {unknowingly authorizing her own execution} she could not read, and could only write her name: being a product of a catholic parochial school)]. This makes me very curious of the content of the concordat: "Conciliar Document on Religious Freedom", being pushed in Washington by John Courtney Murray (R.C. Priest).

It becomes apparent that a chain of events of influence by certain people directed R.C. Hitler's life. Leopold Poetsch, his (Catholic) teacher; Mein Kampf: written, for Hitler, by German Jesuit: Staempfle; his "recruitment" into the Thule Society, 1919 (totally racial, religious, ethnic biased and anti-Semitic satanic cult. Read: "The Occult and The Third Reich"), as stated in (web page) "Illuminati Outline of History". All of Hitler's "inner circle" were members e.g. Himmler (Knight of Malta), Goebbels & Hoess etc. (and still good Catholics) which were among the thousands of Nazi and Ustasha fascist war criminals smuggled to Argentina, Bolivia, Paraguay, Australia, Canada and the U.S. (with 10,000+) by the Vatican (using forged documents, with Vatican seal, on stolen Red Cross travel cards with Vatican Visa's). The mass evacuation ("Ratlines") being coordinated by a small cabal of Vatican officials ("Intermarium") such as the infamous Dr. Nix (CIA top secret document: "Illegal Emigration Movements In and Through Italy", declassified: NND 760050: 11 April 90), Giovanni Montini (later Pope Paul VI), Hubal and Dragonovic (worked with U.S. Army's Counter Intelligence Corps (CIC) organizing the escape of Gestapo head and war criminal Klaus Barbie to South America) under the direction of Pope Pius XII (1945-1950) "Unholy Trinity" by: Mark Aarons and John Loftus);

"Those who did rescue the mass murderers from the hand of justice were not Peron (Argentine populist dictator) and his secret police but the [Roman] Catholic Church and its emissaries. It was the [Roman] Catholic Church, which, through its priests, church's, monasteries and forged Vatican passports, managed to foil the post-war hunt for Nazi war criminals. Nor was the church's rescue operation inconsistent with the policy it had pursued throughout the Nazi era. Henri du Lubac, a Jesuit theologian, filed a report in 1944, well before the end of the war, on the collaboration of the [Roman] Catholic Church with the pro-Nazi Vichy (French) regime. Hidden until this month, the report condemns what du Lubac calls the moral and spiritual abdication of Roman Catholic Bishops under the Nazis. For decade's French cardinals, monks and nuns had helped one of France's worst war criminals, Paul Touvier, escape justice.

It is difficult to imagine that it was possible, in the monolithic [Roman] Catholic Church, for so many to act so uniformly for so long without the knowledge and approval of the highest levels of the Vatican. Israelis have found it difficult to understand why the Vatican has refused to recognize the State of Israel." Jerusalem Post, editorial: "Maxima Culpa" 14 Feb 92; Adolf Eichmann was issued a Vatican visa and passport (in the name of Ricardo Klement, dated: 14 July 1950) by Franciscan monks in a Catholic monastery in Italy, giving him free passage to Argentina. At his trial in Jerusalem, raising his right hand in swearing to tell the truth, Adolf Eichmann gave the hand sign of the Pope. Hitler was backed by Illuminati bankers [the reason Rudolph Hess flew to Scotland (home of the Rothschild's)], in London, New York City and Berlin, after approval by Ivy Lee (probably chosen due to his successful promotion of the image of John D. Rockefeller), who was hired by I.G. Farben for that purpose [I.G. Farben, who fed the notorious "Farben buna soup" to the inmates working at "I.G. Auschwitz" factory (specially formulated to starve them to death in three months) and invented Zyklon B, the poison used to gas the Jews (according to Franciscan, Duns Scotus, Jews were slaves by divine decree), Gypsies etc. and now controls the pharmaceutical industry in the U.S., the A.M.A. and the F.D.A. That's why Laetrile (more recently called Mega-zyme Forte) was outlawed without ever being tested and not allowed to be tested.

It's a food, (not a drug) vitamin B-17, derived from apricot seeds (and other food sources), that has been proven to cure three out of five "terminal" cancer patients. That's also why the F.D.A. "requires" $210,000,000 and 10 years in research to put a vitamin on the market (effectively stopping all new vitamin company manufacturing). It really doesn't take much imagination to figure out the annual multi-million dollar income these pharmaceutical companies are raking in ($29 billion in 25 years) from federal grants, which would come to a sudden stop if their were no more "cancer industry" (read: "World Without Cancer", by: G. Edward Griffen): while treating a congressman, Dr. Francisco Contreras, and the congressman, discussed hopes for an eventual cure: the doctor was told that if he took a total cure to the U.S. President tomorrow, he'd "Probably be killed!" "Cancer is such a big business in the U.S.A." Now you can see why Dr. Burzynski is being prosecuted in Texas for curing cancer patients. They will put him away because he is too much of a threat to their mega-buck industry] (in 1996 over 600 hospitals merged with Catholic institutions in 19 states, from Portland Maine to Oakland California).

Kernersville N.C : a cancer patient was told, by his doctor, he would have to have half his jaw removed to stop the cancer. The man went to Tijuana (Dr. Ernesto Contreras: Contreras Oasis Hospital, Playas De Tijuana, Mexico) and was treated with Laetrile and the cancer cleared up. The man told his doctor about the treatment and the doctor (by federal law) reported it to the American Medical Association: federal agents came and searched the mans home for the Laetrile. In the U.S: I.G. Farben is BASF, Bayer and Hoechst.

Tampa FL : Dr. James Kimball sentenced to thirteen years, by federal mob, psychopath, Judge Richard Lazzara : Dr. Kimball's crime ? : curing patients of degenerative diseases and slowing their aging processes, using non-pharmaceutical medicines he invented, and the FDA not making any profit from it : having a 100% success rate with his patients, he had to be stopped. Federal Vermin Lazzara stated: "he does not have any respect for authority or for the law". Are you starting to get the picture?

Hitler stated in "Rise and Fall of the Third Reich", page 44: "Regardless of how much room for criticism there was in any religious denomination, a political party must never for a moment lose sight of the fact that in all previous historical experience a purely political party has never succeeded in producing a religious reformation." Compare this with page 486-487: "These peoples looked longingly toward their "mother" countries, Hungary, Russia and Germany respectively, though the Sudeteners had never belonged to the German Reich (except as a part of the loosely formed Holy Roman Empire) but only to Austria". Obviously Hitler saw his Third Reich as a Roman Catholic enterprise ["Center Party"(re-established as Christian Democratic Party" following WWII) Catholic Church political party, who's president was Bishop Ludwig Kaas {one of its political groups in Peru with the same name and for the same purpose}}, of Germany was disbanded by Cardinal Pacelli, throwing all of its support behind Hitler]. Hitler was baptized in Linz, paid the German state tax (Kirchensteuer) to the Vatican (still required of every German citizen today), was in communion and carried out canon law and policy until his demise. With this in mind we can see why Hitler stayed true to his other concordat allies: Franco (who was put into power and assisted for his entire reign by Catholic order Opus Dei (founded by Joseph Maria Escriva), who also assisted the Ustasha in Croatia during WWII and still assists Vatican mercenaries in Bosnia and Kosovo today; Sargent Shriver (and his wife, Eunice Kennedy Shriver), who was George McGovern's running mate in 1972, are Opus Dei (Pope's Mafia: Church and State magazine); F.B.I. special agent: Robert P. Hanssen (spied for the Russians for 15 years) and F.B.I. head: Louis Freeh are Opus Dei supernumerary: keep this in mind when you learn the sole purpose of the order is the subjugation of governments to the Vatican) <http://www.mond.at/opus.dei> (an annual mass is celebrated in Hitler's memory in Madrid) (the present day Irish Catholic press is full of flattering illusions to Franco of Spain and Salazar of Portugal) and Mussolini (who was put into power by the Vatican) while breaking every other international treaty. It is significant that Germany, Italy and Spain are together again as they were with Hitler, Mussolini and Franco (with their "Pact of Steel", signed, 22 May 1933).

2 March 1939: Cardinal Secretary of State, Eugenio Pacelli was sworn in as Pope Pius XII; four days later (as Hitler's tanks are rolling into Poland) Pacelli wrote to Hitler: "To the illustrious Herr Adolf Hitler, Fuhrer and chancellor of the German Reich! Here at the beginning of our pontificate we wish to assure you that we remain devoted to the spiritual welfare of the German people entrusted to your leadership. During the many years we spent in Germany, we did all in our power to establish harmonious relations between church and state. Now that the responsibilities of our pastoral function have increased our opportunities, how much more ardently do we pray to reach that goal? May the prosperity of the German people and their progress in every domain come, with Gods help, to fruition!" Pacelli maintained a papal nuncio (Archbishop Orsenigo) in Berlin throughout the Third Reich. At Pacelli's express wish (20 April 1939) Orsenigo opened a gala reception for Hitler's 50th birthday, which became a tradition throughout the Third Reich, along with Cardinal Bertram sending "warmest congratulations to the Fuhrer in the name of the Bishops and dioceses in Germany", to which he added "fervent prayers which the Catholics of Germany are sending to heaven on their alters": "Hitlers Pope: The Secret History of Pius VII", by, John Cornwell (all research for this book was done in the Vatican Library).

Chick Publications (<http://www.chick.com>), in Ontario California, prints gospel tracts, storybooks and other Christian literature. This company is very important to this subject matter. As are the names of Joseph McCabe (former Franciscan monk and internationally famous atheist and author of almost 250 books); ex-Dominican monk: Walter M. Montano, author of "Behind the Purple Curtain"; ex-priest: Bernard Fresenborg, author of: "Thirty years in hell" and "Uncle Sams New Fiancee". Chick Publications has, in print, the true story of a former Jesuit who, after many years in the service of the Vatican, came out of the Church of Rome and put his story into print, as did Montano, McCabe and Fresenborg. This former Jesuit (Dr. Alberto Romero Rivera) and Jack Chick, of Chick Publications, have had many attempts made on their lives for publishing these materials, (Dr. Rivera, being poisoned by a dentist breaking off an infected needle in his jaw and systematically fed poison for many years, succumbed 20 June 1997) as have other authors and publishers of like subject matter. The Vatican does not take lightly the exposing of its practices, or of its secret books i.e. "Secret book of instructions for the Jesuits", LCCN: BX3705.A2 M65; "Secret History of the Jesuits": Edmond Paris 1975, LCCN: BX3706.2 .P3713 (these are two books you should definitely read). They expose the unquestionable clear methods and intentions of the Vatican for the future, (their own publications). There are enough books, by such a variety of authors, from different time periods, writing from first hand knowledge, saying the same thing that the evidence is inescapable. Denial of this information can only be done with total bigotry and abstinence of logic, and therefore can only be construed as complicity with its intentions (yes it does bear repeating). It is very true that tyranny can only prevail when good men do nothing e.g. Chamberlain and the Treaty of Versailles.

"Rome's responsibility for the assassination of Abraham Lincoln" (LCCN: E457.5.H316), author: Thomas M. Harris, Late Brigadier General U.S.V. (and a presiding judge over the trial of the conspirators), "The assassination of Abraham Lincoln" (LCCN: E457.5.H28 or .H31), also by Thomas M. Harris; "Behind the Purple Curtain" (LCCN: BX1773.M6); "The Great Conspiracy"; "The suppressed truth about the assassination of Abraham Lincoln" (LCCN: E457.5.M27) by Burke Mccarty; "Fifty years in the Church of Rome" by Charles Chiniquy, ex-catholic priest; "Treason History of the Order of the Sons of Liberty"(LCCN: E458.8.S85) by Felix G. Stidger; "Washington in the Lap of Rome" (LCCN: BX1770.F9) by Justin D. Fulton; "History of the Plots and Crimes of the Great Conspiracy to overthrow Liberty in America" (LCCN: E310.D983) by John Smith Dye; "The Trial of John Surratt" by: John Surratt [John Surratt hid in Catholic monasteries in Canada (6 weeks); England (4 weeks); became member of Zuaves (personal body guard to the Pope, in the Vatican) before, eventually, being extradited back to Washington D.C. to stand trial where (full row of Jesuits paraded, in file, up to John Surratt, at every break in the trial, to shake his hand and making sure the jury saw them) he got off on a hung jury. John Surratt and John Wilkes Booth studied for the catholic priesthood at the Sulpician Monastery, outside Baltimore].

"Official Records of the Union and Confederate Navies" series II volume III (federal depository library) shows the Vatican's involvement, on the side of the Confederacy, its complicity in the assassination of Abraham Lincoln and attempted assassination of Secretary of State William H. Seward. As well as their planned control of politics, education [Bill Bennett (and his, Jesuit, brother Bob are KNOWN operatives in CIA/MK-Ultra/Project Monarch-extreme trauma induced mind control sex deviates and pedophiliacs), self professed Jesuit, Secretary of Education, under Reagan (Reagan was shot, 30 March 1981, after balking at assigning Bill Bennett as Secretary of Education: In April of 1982, in a speech made to the National Catholic Education Association: Reagan made the incredible statement: "I am grateful for your help in shaping American policy to reflect God's will, And I will look forward to further guidance from His Holiness pope John Paul II during an audience I will have with him in June.") propagator of Outcome Based Education (OBE), stated: "All children should be taught by Jesuits"], immigration [St. Leopold Foundation (Vatican spy network, founded: Vienna Austria, 1828)] and their already, at that time, control of much of the press (which has grown to include every other mode of media communication): "Liberty of the press, the most dangerous liberty, an execrable liberty, which can never inspire sufficient horror, and which some men very noisily and insistently demand to spread everywhere . . . ": Pope Gregory XVI: (Toward a Catholic Constitution", pg. 59, by: Leonard Swidler.). Pope Pius wrote a letter to Jefferson Davis, with the specific instruction to have it printed in the Richmond newspaper to get the Irish Catholic's in the Union army to desert.

He did and they did (144,000+ deserted in one week). When Lincoln initiated a draft for the Union Army, in New York City(1864), Archbishop Hughes instigated the biggest race riot in American history, including the burning to the ground of a black orphanage and trampling to death of its occupants. We know the Illuminati's international bankers supplied Jeff Davis (who's secretary of state: Judah P. Benjamin, was a House of Rothschild agent), J.Wilkes Booth, Sons of Liberty, Knights of The Golden Circle (J. Wilkes Booth was seduced to assassinate Abraham Lincoln by a woman, Ella Turner, and joined Knights of The Golden Circle for the sole purpose of obtaining their assistance to that end; Leon Czolgosz joined Knights of The Golden Eagle and was seduced to assassinate president William Mckinley by the infamous woman anarchist: Emma Goldman), Order of American Knights (Copperhead organizations, still in existence today, with their own quarterly newspaper: "Copperhead Chronicles", with their same old anti-Lincoln and anti-Union rhetoric) etc. with money thru the Bank of Ontario, Montreal Branch, thru Jeff Davis's "Canadian Cabinet", which was planned in detail in the Vatican before Brig. Gen. Beauregard (Catholic) fired on Fort Sumter: "We have the proof that the company which had been selected and organized to murder me was led by a rabid Roman Catholic named Byrne; it was almost entirely composed of Roman Catholics. More than that, there were two disguised priests among them to lead and encourage them. Professor Morse, the learned inventor of electric telegraphy, tells me that recently, when he was in Rome, he found the proofs of a most formidable conspiracy against this country and all its institutions. It is evident that it is to the intrigues and emissaries of the Pope we owe, in great part, the horrible civil war which is threatening to cover the country with blood and ruin." (Abraham Lincoln). All this is in the Library of Congress, along with U.S. State Department record of the U.S.

Government breaking off diplomatic relations with the Vatican on 30 June 1867 (for refusing to allow non-catholic religious worship inside the walls of Rome: which should tell you how TBN now has an international religious TV broadcasting station in Rome), which was re-established by Ronald Reagan, 10 Jan 1984. Reagan only authorized the raid on Moammar Gahdafi after Gahdafi's terrorists set off bombs in Rome, even though he knew about Gahdafi's terrorism and counterfeiting activities for years. <http://www.mosquionet.com/~prewett/holyalliance1of2.html>

According to Alberto Rivera there have been over two thousand Jesuits in U.S. government positions prior to 1980. If this is true, and all indications appear so, there's no telling how many there are now, and how much power they wield in Washington and state governments. The Jesuits control the entire CIA/MK-Ultra/Project Monarch (extreme trauma induced multiple personality: Jesuit/Vatican mind control) program. These robotic victims are used as sex slaves and to deliver drugs/money and/or encrypted messages to heads of state and/or their drug operatives all over the world. They are also used to carry out murders [Eric Harris and Dyland Klebold (Al Gore and his goons wore black trench coats while he made his speech at Columbine High School: identifying with the "Trench Coat Mafia")].

Operatives within Project Monarch program: Gerald Ford, Ronald Reagan, George Bush, George Bush Jr., Bill & Hillary Clinton, Robert C. Bird, Alan Cranston, Madeleine Albright, Dick Cheney, Bob (drug czar) & Bill Bennett (Jesuits), Alan Simpson, Arlen Specter, Jim Traficant, Governor Mellon, Bob Clement, Pierre Trudeau (Canadian President/Jesuit), De la Madrid (Mexico), Michigan governor: Blanchard, Prince Bandar Ben Sultan, Dr. Steve Hassen, Dr. Louis Jolyon West (psychiatrist who experimented with LSD for the CIA, and former head of Neurosychiatric Institute UCLA, Los Angeles), Civia Tamarkin, Sue Carper, Joe Casey, William Casey, Dennis Delaney, William Dieh, Lloyd Lindroth, Jimmy Buffett, Rev. Billy Roy Moore, Larry Flint, Charlie Pride, Jack Greene. Country music operatives: Alex Houston, Lee Atwater, Boxcar Willy, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Walker, Tommy Overstreet, Lee Greenwood, Jerry Reed, Kris Kristopherson, Wayne Cox, Ken Riley, R.C. Bannon. Baseball operatives: Tommy Lasorda, Nolan Ryan. Others: Don & Guy Vanderjagt, Bud Crammer, Steve Hassen, J. Bennett Johnston (Louisiana Senator), David Rorick, Patrick Leahy, George Lucas, Michael Dante' (Michael Viti), Reggie "Mac" McLaughlin, Hal Meadows, Dick Thornburgh, Mickey Miller, Ray & Regina Myers, Scott Rosenberg, Carlos Salinas de Gortari, H.R. Gibson, Gary Ackerman, Lamar Alexander (ritual Satanist), General Cedras, Lt. Col. Michael Aquino, Jack Valenti, Jose Busto (Puerto Rican drug lord). Catholic priest operatives: Vesbit, father Don, James Thaylen. Centers for mind control experimentation: Branson Missouri Country Music Center, Lords Chapel Church (Brentwood Tenn.), St. Frances of Assisi Catholic Church/Catholic Center high school (Muskegon, Michigan), Jesuit College (Wheeling W.V.), Boys Town Orphanage ({incorporated} Omaha Neb.), Mormon Church (Salt Lake City, Utah), Church of Scientology, Andrews A.F. Base, Barksdale A.F. Base, McDill A.F. Base, Offutt A.F. Base, Plattsburgh A.F. Base, Tinker A.F. Base, Warner-Robbins A.F. Base, Ft. McLelland, Ft George Meade, Ft. Campbell, NASA: Cape Canaveral; Washington D.C.; Marshall Space Flight Center, Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville Al., Harvard University ("Trance-Formation of America", by Cathy O'Brian and Mark Phillips). Advocacy Committee for Human Experimentation Survivors-Mind Control (ACHES-MC) is an organization dealing with survivor/victims of this heinous Jesuit/CIA program.

Linda Wegen's case is typical: (a loving mother simply trying to raise her children) after finding out her children were victims of SRA (satanic ritual abuse: by her ex-husband and the local day care center), Linda took her children to a psychiatric hospital who (after their examination) told Linda of her children's SRA condition. The federal authorities then confiscated everything Linda owned (home, bank accounts, car, clothing; literally, everything except the clothes she was wearing!): simply because she was trying to help her children: her children were given to her satanic ex-husband: even her children from her former marriage which he had not adopted. Satanic ritual abuse of children through day care centers is very prevalent, especially in Connecticut.

The "Finders" in New York City, is a CIA front organization dealing in kidnapping; international trafficking of children, pedophilia and drugs.

The Vatican bought 26.8 million dollars in gold from the U.S. reserves, at a dollar an ounce under market value ($34 an ounce) and sold it back to the Government at market value [$35 an ounce (United Nations World Magazine, Dec.1952)]; With 5500+ schools, colleges and universities (Clinton was educated at Jesuit Georgetown University, where he and Fidel Castro were trained in communist philosophies; Jefferson Davis at St. Thomas Catholic college in Kentucky) all receiving government subsidies. Marymount College in Boca Raton, Florida is typical: Founded in 1963 and having a student body of 350 in 1968, it received, from the government, two million in housing grants, a $55,000 anti-poverty grant to study migrant children and a $10,000 education grant; In 1965 in Mississippi a $7,000,000 government-sponsored program for the retraining of unemployed was run by an agency organized by a Roman Catholic Diocese, the $7,000,000 was financed by the government via the Hillburton Act (1954, 1964). From 1947 to 1964 7,372 such projects were approved; HUD condemning public lands and giving it to the Catholic Church, along with protestant tax money to develop the land [build Catholic schools or hospitals (since 1961 the Catholic Church has been receiving $83,000+ a day for such projects)]. HEW should be renamed CPA (Catholic Property Acquisition); Jesuit Fordham University acquired a valuable piece of Lincoln Square in New York City for a fraction of its worth, then got federal aid to develop the property; Manhattan College, famous for its wines and brandy, obtained a large factory and financial assistance from New York's Dormitory Authority;

In Chicago HEW donated a sixty-acre, 4.5 million dollar tract at the Hines Veterans Administration Hospital to Jesuit Loyola University. When V.A. general councilman Fred B. Rhodes Jr. balked at the giveaway a devout Catholic replaced him. New York State banking records shows us that in 1962 the Catholic Church owns stocks and bonds in hundreds of corporations. Among others: Baltimore & Ohio R.R., Rock Island, Erie, Sea Board, Missouri Pacific, Pere Marquette, Goodyear Tire & Rubber, Firestone, Fisk, U.S. American Smelting, Commonwealth Edison, Brooklyn Edison, N.Y. Edison, Pacific Gas & Electric, West Penn Power, American Commonwealth Power, Texas Electric, Atlantic City Convention Hall, Louisiana Hotel Company, Squire Building, Lane Bryant, Fox Playhouses, Fox Theater (St. Louis), Denver Joint Stock Land Bank, Savoy Plaza Hotel, National Dairy, Thermoid, Washington Silk, Pillsbury Flour, Yankee Stadium, Watergate, General Motors, General Electric, Shell Oil, Bethlehem Steel, Gulf Oil, IBM, Boeing, Lockheed, Douglas, Curtis Wright, Phillips Oil Co., Creole Petroleum Co. And all tax-free.

In Massachusetts its hard to distinguish between the Catholic Church and the state government, every time a public school closes the Catholic Church buys it for a dollar; The Catholic Church never loses a "sealed" bid on public land auctions. This is done via an open and devious by-passing of the U.S. Constitution, by the hidden Catholic pressure group within the U.S. Government, state and local, by the legal, semi-legal and dubious politico-financial manipulations of sly Catholic dealers relentlessly operating in the legislative, financial and real estate fields on behalf of the Catholic Church. At one time the Catholic Church owned more land area than the entire state of Connecticut. The Catholic Church has been "buying" land and constructing buildings in New York City at a rate second only to the city itself (being all tax exempt: care to take a guess why New York City went bankrupt twice when George "Mr. Cocaine" Bush was in the Whitehouse?) and all thanks to Cardinal Francis "burn-em alive" Spellman ("The Vatican Billions" by Avro Manhattan); [The Popes banker, Michele Sindona, was a very busy boy before being sent to federal prison in New York State for causing the default of Franklin National Bank. It appears he was not only the Popes banker but also the banker for: IOR [Vatican bank (Societa General Immobiliare), Italian Masonic Lodge, P2 (Italian Masonic Lodge political arm), Vatican political party, Sicilian mafia and Lacosa Nostra (Sindona set up the system for Sicilian mafia and Lacosa Nostra to launder their drug money thru Vatican owned banks, Credit Swiss, in Switzerland). He, in all likelihood, set up the program of $900,000,000 in counterfeit bonds for the Vatican, to be pushed in this country. When it was discovered that the Vatican Bank (IOR) and Cardinal Tisserant (second only to the Pope) were the main offenders, and an investigation was certain to follow, Tisserant conveniently died, requesting before his death that his diaries be removed from the Vatican.]; The I.R.S. classifying people who stand up for their rights as non-filers, knowing full well there is no I.R.S. code or law requiring anyone to assess themselves for any tax (article five of the Bill of Rights) and then turning them over to the B.A.T.F. who (by computer program automatically) classifies them as drug smugglers with their semi-secret "T" code system["T5"(I.R. S.6209 manual)], to give them the appearance of legality, to confiscate properties [If you go to court (Title 4(annotated) U.S. Code, Chapter 1:

U.S. flags in federal court rooms are military Ceremonial/Parade Flags (gold fringe), AR840-10(b-1): under which the U.S. Constitution is suspended {two gold-knotted-tasseled ropes are admiralty flag: again the U.S. Constitution is suspended}) with the I. R.S. they ask you about your U.S. citizenship and if you don't answer just right they classify you as a citizen of Puerto Rico, Guam, Samoa or the U.S. Virgin Island's [the "other" united states that are owned by the District of Columbia (acquired! from the Spanish American War) and run by the Catholic Church]. Care to guess why? (Because that's the only place the I.R.S. & B.A.T.F. have "legal" jurisdiction). The I.R.S. is a department of the Treasury of Puerto Rico. The title heading of the I.R.S. reads: "Internal Revenue Service a Department of The Treasury", it does not tell whose treasury it's a department of. Look in 31 USC under Dept. of U.S. Treasury and look for the agencies they authorize: guess who is missing, that's right, the B.A.T.F. & I.R.S.

Why do you make checks payable to the I.R.S. and not the U.S. Treasury? That's how the I.R.S. diverts your money to the international bankers (IMF)]; The names of every member of the jury pool, in a tax case, is given to the I.R.S. by the U.S. Attorney prosecuting the case: securing a partial jury for the I.R.S. If you, or any one you know, is having problems with the I.R.S. contact, tax expert, Ben Houck Ph:(614)532-9669 or Fax: (614)532-3570. Ben knows more about income tax codes than the I.R.S.

The Jesuits own fifty one percent of Bank of America (largest bank in the U.S.) the Vatican owns stock in hundreds of banks all over the world; Banca Nazionale de Lavoro (the Pope owns controlling interest), through its branch in Atlanta Georgia, laundered over $5 billion of American taxpayers money from the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture to pay for Saddam Hussein's war machine, including his "super gun"; Railroaded Rep. George Hansen (R-Id.) into prison and physical torture ("Diesel Therapy", that left his wrist's crippled for life) by judge Edward Lodge, after Hansen called for a congressional investigation of the Justice Department and wrote the book: "To Harass Our People, The IRS and Government Abuse of Power" (assault on religion) [In this book Representative Hansen exposes the I.R.S.'s practice of selectively prosecuting church's for income tax evasion (Sun Yung Moon,1981, for not reporting interest on 112,000 in Chase Manhattan bank. Do not be deluded that this has anything to do with a zeal for collecting tax's for the United States Treasury.

The tax, fine and penalties combined do not amount to a fraction of what the I.R.S. spent in prosecuting the Moon case. Not three miles from the court house where he was prosecuted, Roman Catholic Archbishop of New York: Terence Cooke, held personally in his own name, assets worth a thousand times that which Moon was charged with evading. In fact Catholic church law requires the reigning ordinary own its property in his own name: known in law as: "corporate sole", for which, of all the hundreds of Catholic Archdioceses reigning Cardinals and Bishops in the U.S. not one has ever been looked at by the I.R.S., much less brought up on any charge, showing conclusively, who the I.R.S. selects and why): In the trial of F. Tupper Saussy, <http://www.patshannan.bizland.com/rulerintro.html> prosecuted by (self professing Jesuit) John MaCcoon, exculpatory evidence ignored or suppressed, prosecutorial improprieties excused, attempts to avoid consequences of improprieties bring punishment: This prosecutorial/judicial steamrolling people into prison (Saussy with 14 months) is not unique to tax court cases. It is the typical judicial MO of state courts railroading parents (of phony child sex abuse cases) into prison: Kern County (Bakersfield) California is typical (see the docudrama: "Just Ask My Children"); Ruining Rep. Joseph Montoya (D-N.M.) for pushing for reforms of I.R.S. agency crimes exposed by him in Senate hearings in the 1970's; F.D.A., H.R.S. etc. arresting people, ransacking health food stores, confiscating property, killing animals, destroying property, and all without a court order and in deliberate violation of article five of the Bill of Rights, throwing peoples right of habeas corpus (assumed innocent until proven guilty) out the window; with immigration (totally controlled by Jesuits)bringing in Hispanics (all Catholic) by the boat loads (legally and illegally) to feed off our welfare system and further deplete the economy [which explains the planned failure of Nafta and Gat (sending companies and jobs to dominant Catholic countries) thru Vatican controlled Mexico] and influence federal, state, county and city legislation and elections [the unofficial private corporation: News Election Service (NES) has sole physical control of the counting and dissemination of every vote, in our national elections, and does not allow the public to know how it is done] and will be the only ones to receive unending welfare when welfare "officially" comes to an end. At or near every immigration office in the U.S. is a Catholic law firm to give free legal assistance to any Catholic immigrant entering this country. Anyone doubting this should read: "Illegal Emigration movements In And Through Italy", by: Vincent La Vista, declassification no. NND 760050, 4-11-90, National Archives Record Group No. 59, Center For Legislative Archives, Washington D.C: Why else would we have immigration offices in Rome and Mexico City?

Ronald Reagan and Richard Nixon used the WWII fascist war criminals smuggled into this country (Nazi war criminal, Walter Dohrnberger, sentenced to be hung at Nuremberg, is head of Bell Aerospace Corp. R & D dept.) thru the Vatican "Ratlines" to get the ethnic votes that put them in the Whitehouse. Ronald Reagan, while governor of California, set a day of recognition for the Ustasha of Yugoslavia until the Yugoslavian government protested; on his visit to a concentration camp in Europe: Reagan laid a wreath on the grave of an S.S. officer.

"The Church can dispense from a promissory oath. This power belongs to the Pope and Bishops, who exercise it either by themselves or by their delegates." p.203; "The civil laws (of Christendom) are binding in conscience so long as they are conformable to the rights of the Catholic Church."p.278 "Abridged Course of Religious Instruction for the Use of Colleges and Schools" by: Rev. F.X. Schouppe (Jesuit); federal judges controlling the juries to the extent that they have no choice but to rule the way they say, or overruling them and passing his own judgement on the defendants (which moves sovereignty from the people to the courts), e.g. Walter Smith Jr.(Judge Roy Bean) of Waco Texas. The list of federal agency violations of "citizens rights" is a bottomless pit. Like the threat made on myself by an I.R.S. special agent from Pikeville Ky. in the I.R.S. office in Ashland Ky.(28 April 1995) when he laid a loaded snub nose cal.38 revolver on the desk in front of me, with the barrel pointed at me, while being witnessed by collections agent John T. Yewell.

Then there's Mt. Carmel, with its trumped up charge of a methamphetamine laboratory (never mentioned again after the raid started) to give assistant U.S. attorney Bill Johnston an excuse to get his warrant and special forces training for his B.A.T.F. goons; and with the B.A.T.F. agent Robert Rodriguez having been in Mount Carmel (day before the raid) where he inspected all the firearms and knew what was and was not there, and with further inspection of the weapons "requested" of the B.A.T.F. by David Koresh and "refused" by the B.A.T.F.(which would have left them without an excuse for their murder and mayhem). Five FBI agents rented a house across the road from Mt. Carmel: two of those agents attended bible study classes with David Koresh for a month before they started their slaughter: at the same time other FBI agents were busy printing and handing out leaflets in Waco, degrading the Branch Davidians. I'm sure Bill Johnston was expecting a turkey shoot, and all with 100% support from the controlled (Skull & Bones) media, before, during and ever since ("The Massacre of The Branch Davidians" by Carol Moore, 28 Jan 1994). All of this is a precursor of what is to come.

Ever notice how the media never misses an opportunity to jump on preachers who make statements concerning government policy, screaming: "separation of church and state"? And when the Pope comes to this country making speeches on the same issues their silence is deafening! The only person to voice a negative response to the Popes statements to abortion was Madelin Murrey O'Hair, whose statements have not been published since. Just before O'Hair, and her family, was to go to New York, to protest the Pope, she and her family disappeared without a trace. Again the media silence was deafening.

Ever notice the A.C.L.U. in all of its rantings about separation of church and state is stone silent about government (protestant taxpayer) moneys going to Catholic schools? (Federal grants and loans to Jesuit colleges, universities and their programs are in the billions). At the turn of the century Pope Leo XIII was raking in over one and a half million dollars annually from: (1) Peter's pence contribution (over $415,000); (2) Apostolic Chancellery aggregate ($520,000); (3) Interest of the vast sum left by Pius IX in the Pontifical treasury, invested chiefly in English Consols ($625,000). Notice the Pope trusted the securities of a Protestant nation and not a Catholic as France, Spain or Mexico. These figures would hardly make a dent in those of today.

The Jesuits rake in over $280 million annually. The assets of Grey Nuns of Charity $3.5 million; Sisters of the Immaculate Heart $7.5 million; Sisters of Saint Joseph of Newark $17,899,384; Little Sisters of the Poor $25 million; Sisters of Mercy $39,754,132; Sisters of Charity $66,533,833; Sisters of Charity of Providence $90,187,000; Sisters of the Sorrowful Mother $93,636,516; Sisters of the Holy Cross $110,892,759. There are 539 such orders of nuns and monks. All tax-free! AND THE I.R.S. NEVER LOOKS AT!! "Praise The Lord For Tax Exemption", by: Stanley Lowell and Martin Larson.

If you think my thesis untenable then please prove me wrong. Simply run a background check (personnel file) to see which (if any) Jesuit schools were attended by (or: Knights of Columbus; Knights of Malta; Opus Dei): publishers of public school history books; federal judges: Joyce Hens Green, Manuel L. Real, Tanner, Hodges, Thomas P. Griesa, Milton Pollack, John W. Walker Jr., Kimba Wood, Clifford Weckstein, Richard A. Posner, Richard Maich, Ranck, James F. McClure and definitely Walter "RoyBean" Smith Jr. of Waco; Assistant U.S. Attorney's Bill Johnston, John Maisto (U.S. diplomat), Leslie Brydon, Herschel Lock, Jeffery Mench, [the previous three, along with Tom Bowman (personal aid to Skull & Bones Senator Arlen Specter), Richard Medellin, Judges: Rank and James F. McClure being instrumental in the kidnapping (the children were taken without the parents being present or even notified when the charges were presented in court) of the children of Steven and Dawn Ames in the court of common plea's of Northumberland County Pennsylvania. The sole charges being: teaching their children the Bible and the U.S. Constitution], and B.A.T.F.'s: John Magaw, Davey Aguilera and Lloyd "Bilderberg" Bentsen [who was C.F.R.(Illuminati)]; Peter Galbraith: U. S. Ambassador in Zagreb; Bob Bartel of "TheSpotlight" newspaper (his political tabloid is anti-Semitic and denies the Holocaust, which was orchestrated in the Vatican); Tom Metzger, who's skinhead organization uses R.C. symbology [the mirror image dragon/bird, used by the Skinheads, is identical to that used by the Nazi's and Albanian K.L.A. (Stash)] and doctrine (with the names changed) and has direct links with skin head/nazi organizations in Germany; US Magistrate: Richard Kop, US Attorney Thomas Taken, FBI head: Nicholas O'Hara, Mickey Mott (the last four being Satan worshipping pedophile of Omaha Nebraska); Frank Liberto (New Orleans godfather/close associate to J. Edgar Hoover (Knight of Malta) and key figure in the assassination of Martin Luther King Jr.). Known Knights of Malta members are: William Casey (CIA head), Jeremiah Denton (Alabama Senator), Pete Domenici (New Mexico Senator), Alexander Haig, William Simon (Treasury Secretary), William F. Buckley, Lee Iacocca.

Every Government official, especially C.I.A., graduate from Yale University is Skull & Bones (which had its origin in the University of Berlin. Founded at Yale by Alphonso Taft and William H. Russell and exists only at Yale University). Some members being: Arlen Specter, Prescott Bush (and other Skull & Bones members robbed the grave of Geronimo in Oklahoma taking the body back to the "Tomb" on the Yale campus), George Bush, George Bush Jr., Franklin Roosevelt, Kellogg, Dupont, Richard Bissell Jr. etc.

Since the Pope has set down, in document, his clear intentions it would be prudent to do a background check on Robert L. Sumner (who spreads lies about fundamental preachers): "Against an elder receive not an accusation, but before two or three witnesses." (I Timothy 5:19), Jim Bakker, Pat Robertson [J. Peter Grace, top man in Knights of Malta (a secret Catholic quasi-religious on the surface/anti-religious at the core organization that dates back to the Crusaders), is godfather to his children], Paul Crouch, Benny Hinn, Billy Graham and Jack Van Impe. These are T.V. preachers pushing the ecumenical whitewash of the "Mother of harlots and the abominations of the earth" (Rev.17:5). "For such are false apostles, deceitful workers, transforming themselves into the apostles of Christ. And no marvel for Satan himself is transformed into an angel of light. Therefore it is no great thing if his ministers also be transformed as the ministers of righteousness; whose end shall be according to their works" (II Corinthians 11:13-15). The Jesuits have been in control of the National Council of Church's and World Council of Church's for over thirty years.

It is very relevant to remember that the Vatican [Vatican is from the classical Latin root word: Vaticanus, which by definition means: "house of divination"(dwelling of demons); standing in the center of St. Peters Square is an obelisk (symbol of male sex organ in Satan worship) from Egypt] is an independent country with its own dogmatic constitution. With the Pope (vicar of Christ) being the head of that state. Therefore for a practicing R.C. "not to" adhere to the dictates of the Pope and his encyclicals is to go against God. This is Roman Catholic cannon law: "Abridged Course of Religious Instruction for the Use of Colleges and Schools," by Rev. Father F.X. Schouppe (Jesuit) p.203: "The Church can dispense from a promissory oath. This power belongs to the Pope and bishops, who exercise it either by themselves or by their delegates." p.278: "The civil laws (of Christendom) are binding in conscience so long as they are conformable to the rights of the Catholic Church." (What's this tell you about the U.S. Supreme Court of which at least four are R.C. and ruled to keep the Bible out [while allowing two dirty books: "Of Mice and Men" and "Catcher In The Rye" (of which John Lennon's killer {Mark David Chapman} was a student) to be required reading in every high school in the country] of Public schools and to murder the unborn and calls pornography: "freedom of speech"?). ("The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together against the LORD, and against his anointed, saying, let us break their bands asunder, and cast away their cords from us. He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh: the Lord shall have them in derision.

Then shall he speak unto them in his wrath, and vex them in his sore displeasure." (Psalm, 2:2-5.) This is very important to remember also when reviewing the events leading up to and during the Vietnam War i.e. secret meetings in the early fifties of certain democratic senators (including John Kennedy) concerning Vietnam; placing R.C. Ngo Dinh Diem in the presidency [after being schooled in the U.S., by Cardinal Francis "Burn-em Alive" Spellman (key figure behind William J. Donovan (Knight of Malta), creator of the O.S.S., forerunner to the CIA; close associate of Dwight D. Eisenhower {who directed American B-17 bombers to avoid I.G. Farben headquarters in Berlin and cut off the gas supply for General Patton's tanks to slow him down, thus extending the war), who's only answer to communism was to burn them alive, and Robert McNamara thru the CIA (Catholic Illuminati Assassin's)] in deliberate violation of a legally constituted (U.N. sanctioned and observed) election, which communism won; Diem's systematic "ethnic cleansing" of all who would not recant of their religion and embrace Catholicism; creating a tax structure that was so oppressive that non-Catholics were starved out, and so favorable to Catholics that it caused a mass exodus of North Vietnamese Catholics to the south and south Vietnamese Buddhists to the north, which was more than even John Kennedy could tolerate, so he had Diem killed (2Nov63), and twenty days later Kennedy was shot by three hit men (Oswald look-alike:

William Seymour-school book depository; Manuel Gonzales-Dal-Tex building; Emilio Santana-open manhole on street curb: last two picked from, FBI Division 5's thirty professional assassinskept on retainer in Mexico City) 22Nov63 (planned and supervised by, two sex deviates: Clay Shaw (Knight of Malta), Solidarist-Catholic priest: David Ferrie and William Seymour: employees of Defense Industrial Security Command (DISC) which is a joint venture of FBI's Division 5 and Defense Intelligence Agency of the Pentagon). Almost all of the orchestration operatives were WWII Nazi's smuggled into this country 1945-1950 on Vatican visa's e.g. Werner von Braun and Walter Dohrnberger. Ferenc Nagy: high level boss in FBI Division 5 and president of Perminindex Corp. (money laundering liaison for FBI Division 5 and DISC operatives) was the "umbrella man" in Deily Plaza who opened his umbrella (sunny day) signaling the start of the shooting (closing his umbrella signaled the stop).

Top planners in the assassination cabal: Lyndon Johnson, J. Edgar Hoover, L.M. Bloomfield, Ferenc Nagy, John DeMenil, Carlos Prio Socarras, Walter Jenkins, H.L. Hunt [American Council of Christian Churches (ACCC)], Bobby Baker, Clifford Jones, L. J. McWillie, Werner Von Braun, Roy Cohn, Fred Korth, John Connally and Clint Murchison.

L.M. Bloomfield (answering only to Hoover and Johnson) was in overall charge of the supervisory and working assignment group: Walter Dohrnberger, Guy Bannister, Albert Osborne (ACCC), E.E. Bradley (ACCC), Morris Dalitz (Las Vegas), Major General John B. Medaris, Robert McKeown, Igor Voshinin, George Bouhe, Peter Gregory, Maurice Gatlin, Sergio Arcacha Smith, Lee Harvey Oswald, William Seymour, David Ferrie (Catholic priest), T. Gonzales, Manuel Garcia Gonzales, Layton Martens, Gordon Novel, Walter Sheridan, William Dalzell, Paul Raigorodsky, Joe Bonnano, Dimitri Royster (ACCC), Alex Carlson, George Mandel, Breck Wall, Clay Shaw, Joe Cody, Jake Kosloff, Mike McLaney, Ruth and Mike Payne, Igor Vagonov, Jack Bowen, Mike Ryan, Tammie True, Max Cherry, Patrick Hoy, David Hoy, James Powell and many others with lesser assignments. (Nomenclature of An Assassination Cabal, by: William Torbitt { pseudonym}).

This document previously quoted: "Plausible Denial" by, Mark Lane. However due to more recent revelation, it is obvious that publication is without merit [Mark Lane (personal friend and confidant to the infamous Jesuit: Jim Jones), as attorney for James Earl Ray, sent his key witness to Jonestown the day before the Jonestown massacre. Fortunately, for her, she didn't go].

The Vietnam "genocide" was given a fresh shot in the arm in the 1967 C.I.A: "Operation Phoenix", implemented by, sovereign Knight of Malta: William Casey [known MK-Ultra/ Project Monarch pedophile operative (CIA's Laos & Vietnam station chief, egregious mass murderer, Theodore Shackley being the key operative in the assassination cabal, under George Bush)].

General Westmoreland became a Catholic while in command in Vietnam. Ross Perot wasn't able to contact any POW, MIA's because the C.I.A. kept getting in the way, with their operation of taking over the opium smuggling trade, for themselves and the Sicilian

Mafia, out of the "Golden Triangle" [largest buyers of opium in the world are well known top officials in the C.I.A. & D.O.D. (Richard Armatage, no.2 man in the Department of Defense (DOD); Theodore Shackley, no.2 man in the CIA, under George Bush. Bush is on the board of directors of Eli Lilly: the company that produces the precursor chemicals to produce cocaine, heroine and the company that first synthesized LSD for the CIA)]. The U.S. government transports over half the illegal narcotics into the U.S., mostly on military transport, tons at a time with no customs check, then flown on commercial airliners, in cargo containers, to organized crime families, then distributed in cities street gangs, Contra's and motorcycle gangs: <http://www.ciadrugs.com>

Nixon got us out of Vietnam without winning and the Vatican getting control of the southern government, for which he was watergated (the Watergate office building complex was built and is owned by the Vatican). Read: "Vietnam, why did we go?" by: Avro Manhattan. Ten days before his assassination John Kennedy stated in a speech at Columbia University: "The high office of president has been used to foment a plot to destroy the Americans freedom, and before I leave office I must inform the citizen of his plight". There is evidence of Fidel Castro's involvement in the conspiracy but not conclusively.

However Dr. Alberto Rivera's testimony of knowing of Castro's presence in the Vatican while he, and the infamous Jim Jones, were there in school (being trained to destroy church's), and Soldier of Fortune magazine's article on two Jesuits kidnapping Honduran peasant farmers and sending them to Cuba, into forced guerilla warfare training, along with John Kennedy stopping the B-26 bombers from taking off in support of the freedom fighters during the Bay of Pigs invasion, which they were totally dependant on; leaving Castro's planes to strafe and bomb the raiders {its obvious the raid was designed to fail: all aspects were controlled by the CIA; troop transport deck machine guns malfunctioned, mounts rusted thru, four of six landing craft sink before their even boarded; using Bay of Pigs [which the Cuban Revolutionary Council would never approve (reefs, surrounded by swamp, radio station nearby) so Kennedy has them flown, under false pretences, to a blacked out airfield at Opa-Locka Fla., where their held in isolation, against their will, under armed military guard: Only then do they learn, via AM radio, that the raid has been moved up (putting the initial air strike, using six B-26's, not all fourteen, securing minimal damage and giving Castro ample warning of an impending attack) just before the UN meeting knowing the US would be blamed, giving Kennedy his excuse to ground the bombers (but not the paratroop plane's taking off from the same field in Nicaragua) and, had not only already started, but already past the point of no return] guaranteeing the failure of the raid and effectively ending all organized effort to remove Castro}.

"This was how the whole thing was going from the beginning", General Lemnitzer: Chairman Joint Chiefs of Staff ("Bay of Pigs, The Untold Story" by Peter Wyden), certainly lends credibility to the assertion that Castro is a Jesuit and was involved in Kennedy's assassination. We do know Castro is Illuminati and indoctrinated in communism at Georgetown (Jesuit) University (as was Bill Clinton). Kennedy had stopped borrowing money from the IMF: had issued and signed executive order 11110, abolishing the FED, and had new inflationary money printed at the US Treasury (the bills you see with red serial numbers) which secured the orchestration of his assassination by the Illuminati, Bilderberg's (modern day version of: "Congress of Vienna" who wrote the "Secret Treaty of Verona" 1814-1815: the execution of this edict was assigned to the re-established Jesuits 1814) and Trilateral Commission; he made it known he was going to dissolve the CIA, thereby securing Skull & Bones organizations co-operation; having Ngo Dinh Diem killed, plan of pulling U.S. troops out of Vietnam without getting control of Vietnam for the Vatican secured the co-operation of the Jesuits and the Vatican. Though J. Edgar Hoover set the procedural orchestration in motion, John Connolly, Lyndon Johnson and Louis M. Bloomfield (Canadian lawyer who did the contract operative hiring for FBI's Division 5), the planning of the assassination itself was done by E. Howard Hunt (also an operative in the "Watergating" of Richard Nixon), William Seymour, Clay Shaw and David Ferrie (Catholic priest). Financing the entire assassination operation was Vatican banks: De Famaco Astalde Vaduz (Swiss), Leichtenstein (Swiss), Seligman Bank (Swiss), Banca Nazionale de Lavoro (Rome) [this bank owned by the Pope, through its branch in Atlanta Georgia, laundered $5 billion from the U.S. Department of Agriculture to Saddam Hussein's war machine, including his "Super Gun"]. Lyndon Johnson sent the USS Maddox and USS C. Turner Joy into North Vietnamese territorial waters (2&4 Aug 64) to draw fire from North Vietnam (the radio message the USS Maddox received, ordering it, and USS C. Turner Joy, into North Vietnamese territorial waters came direct from the Whitehouse). When the plan failed to bring the desired results (knowing why they were there: Maddox and C. Turner Joy fired on each other in the night out of sheer paranoia) Johnson lied to Congress and the nation, saying the North Vietnamese fired on an American "peace keeping" ship in international waters: giving him his excuse to commit U.S. troops into armed conflict with North Vietnam. Later Johnson realizing "his" war is a non winner and his bombing escalation's bring protest's and riots and not able to back out either (he didn't want to take a ride through Dealy Plaza): simply elected not to run for "another term as your president", thereby escaping "the poisonous cup"; "the strangulation cord"; "the steel of the poiniard"; "the leaden bullet".

The blanket of corporate stonewalling (by every department of legislative, executive and judicial branches of government, including the media, to all subsequent investigations into the murders of John F. Kennedy, Martin Luther King and Robert F. Kennedy, extending from the local levels all the way to the U.S. Presidency and Supreme Court) culminates into a preponderance of evidence of, not only a cover-up, but complicity in the carrying out of these atrocities ("The Truth behind The Murder of Martin Luther King, Orders To Kill" by, William F. Pepper). The one common element connecting John F. Kennedy, Martin Luther King Jr., Robert F. Kennedy: all three were working to get us out of Vietnam (militarily) when they met their untimely demise: The executive order President Kennedy issued: ordering all American troops back home from Vietnam, was reversed by Johnson, before Kennedy's body was in the ground. Cardinal Francis "Burn-em Alive" Spellman (trainer of Ngo Dinh Diem, president and butcher of South Vietnamese Buddhists) was the one person the F.B.I. consulted to persuade the Pope not to have a meeting with Martin Luther King Jr., and Spellman concurred. Project Monarch operative: Gerald Ford was the only member of the congressional investigative committee to say that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in the assassination of John Kennedy (and the only one in the committee to make president: and he made it by appointment). Dorothy Kilgallon ("What's My Line" game show panelist): upon leaving Jack Ruby's cell, stated: "I 'm going to blow this thing wide open": two days later she was dead: another jesuit/Illuminati convenient "suicide": after this, Louis Jolyon West (psychiatrist and Project Monarch mind control operative) was assigned to "take care" of Jack Ruby.

By LAPD's own SUS file: Sirhan Sirhan was hypno-programmed using hypnotic drugs and torture (by, DISC operative: reverend Jerry Owen, CIA mind-control specialist: William Bryan and others) producing MPD (Multiple Personality Disorder mind control, a product of CIA's MK-Ultra-Project Monarch) at the horse stable, in Santa Anita, where he worked with Thomas Bremer (the brother of Arthur Bremer: who shot George Wallace in 1972). Sirhan Sirhan was used to distract attention while CIA's Thane Eugene Cesar (in the employ of the LAPD) shot Robert F. Kennedy behind the right ear. John Hinckley Jr.'s (shot Ronald Reagan) brother was George Bush's golf partner. John Hinckley Sr. (owner of Vanderbilt Oil Co.) has been George Bush's neighbor in Texas for years, and contributed to his campaign when he first ran for congress.

John Maisto (U.S. Diplomat to the Philippines) came to Panama to train the "Civic Crusade" (C.I.A. operatives {many of which are trained in the infamous terrorist-revolutionary "School of the Americas" at Fort Benning, Ga.}): organizing street campaigns, burn tires, protest march's etc. Archbishop Marcos Mcgrath, Monsignor Jose' Sebastian Laboa, Priest Javier Villanueva being among the operatives in the destabilization campaign. A repeat of Manila, Guatemala, Nicaragua, Grenada and Haiti's Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier. Archbishop Mcgrath and his priests ran their own operation of ballot box confiscation and vote counting (having no connection with the Panamanian Voting Commission) in deliberate violation of Panamanian law (what's this tell you about NES, News Election Service, giving the established press total control of counting and dissemination of national voting and does not allow the public to know how it is done?! What's this tell you about John Kennedy winning the election when Richard Nixon won the vote?). Archbishop McGrath later became guarantor of transition of the Panamanian Government from military to civilian control (the Vatican has $1.4 billion invested in sundry Panamanian and other "shell" companies) after he, along with Laboa and Villanueva, tricked Noriega into the Vatican Embassy with the promise of diplomatic immunity, then once in the embassy giving him the choice of surrendering to the U.S. Army or they would let the army in to capture (kill) him. The Panamanian raid was concocted by Senator Alan Simpson @ Wyoming. This is a direct continuance of: "Secret Treaty of Verona" policy of extermination of all representative governments as recorded in the: U.S. Congressional Record-Senate of the 64th Congress, 1st session volume 53, part 7, page 6781, 25 April 1916 and in the: American Diplomatic Code, 1778-1884, vol. 2; Elliott, p.179.

With main accusers like Jorge Canalias, Floyd Carlton Caceres, Cesar Rodriguez, Teofilo Watson (pilots who flew arms to the Contra's and cocaine to the U.S.) and paid convicts (recruited from American prisons) as key witnesses in conjunction with the Classified Information Procedures Act (CIPA, U.S. Code 22) Noriega's fate was sealed as soon as he entered the Vatican Embassy (With legal procedures like this you could convict John Kennedy of assassinating Lee Harvey Oswald). William Kunstler was planning to defend Manuel Noriega in Miami federal court before his(convenient) death prevented his representation.

Now with no Panamanian National Guard [many of which were shot(at Balboa High School concentration camp) with their hands zip tied behind their backs, by U.S. marines (journalist Julio Guerra was murdered by U.S. marines for photographing the bodies)], Panama is now a major stopover point on the opium trail from south and Central America to the U.S. Cocaine is rampant now in George "Mr. Cocaine" Bush's (who's cocaine running boats from his oil well rigs go unchecked by the coast guard) Panamanian narcodemocracy. With drug money's being laundered thru Panamanian banks, e.g. Interbanko, First Inter America's Bank (owned by drug cartel boss Gilberts Rodriguez Orejuela) ("The Memoirs of Manuel Noriega, America's Prisoner" by: Manuel Noriega and Peter Eisner). Now with, RC Priest, Jean-Bertrand Aristide, back in power inHaiti the cocaine trail is complete.

We know from WW II that the Vatican had a highly militant influence in Yugoslavia.

War records show the existence of a Vatican organization called "Ustasha" (from the verb: ustati, meaning "to rise up"). The reputation of the Ustasha throughout Yugoslavia is far worse than that of the S.S., S.D., S.A. and Gestapo combined: being created by Ante Pavelic, the head of the Ustasha state of Croatia. Pavelic held many and frequent meetings with Bishops and Archbishops of Croatia and Pope Pius XII. Pavelic was to Yugoslavia what Hitler was to Europe. Pope PiusXII's statement to a group of Croats, on a pilgrimage to the Vatican (lead by Archbishop Aljzije Stepinac), Nov 1939, outlined the Vatican orchestrated atrocities from 1941-1945 and 1991-1995: "The hope of a better future seems to be smiling on you, a futurein which the relations between church and state in your country will be regulated in harmonious action to the advantage of both." Catholic priests like StaneKukavica (Franciscan monk), changed their robes for the uniforms of the dreaded Ustasha killer squads and led the most barbaric, brutal raids upon those people and practiced satanic torture never before known in this century. The entire genocide operations were overseen by the military vicar Archbishop Alojzije Stepinac ("Jasenovac" was the main center for extermination, being the third largest concentration camp in WWII where over 800,000 Serbs, Jews and Gypsies were systematically butchered) working directly with the Nazi's, helping to create the state of Croatia. (read: "Smokescreens" by: Jack Chick; "The Yugoslav Auschwitz and the Vatican" by: Vladimir Dedijer; "Blowback" by: Christopher Simpson). The gold from Holocaust victims jewelry and teeth (what was not used to smuggle WW II war criminals out of Europe) is today held in Vatican banks: for which there is an ongoing lawsuit by the law firms of Easton & Levy, at: <http://www.remnantofgod.org/Ustashe.htm> <http://www.skolnicksreport.com/vaticanbank.html> <http://www.priestofdarkness.com/gold.html> <http://www.vaticanbankclaims.com/press.html> . In Bosnia the revived Ustasha movement is called "Croatian Peoples Party" (HSP) and its army, the "Croatian Defence Force" (HOS). Dobroslav Paraga led HSP. HOS units (Black Legion) comprised of Belgian, Austrian, British and Canadian mercenaries, as well as units from the French mercenary unit: "Nouvelle Resistance". After HOS was dissolved in 1993, by its mentor president Franjo Tudjman (for fear of being exposed for his Vatican connection as too politically obvious units), members were absorbed into other units, later amalgamated into the 108th Bosnian Brigade or the International Brigade. "Front National", "Croatie Libre", and "Slavonie Libre" run by Faci, are also Vatican organizations fronted as Humanitarian Aid. MPRI (shadowy mercenary organization based in Virginia) contracted by the Pentagon to train Ustasha in Croatia, Bosnia and now Kosovo. Who but the Vatican has the power and/or influence to coordinate both sides in a military conflict to annihilate thousands of peoples at a time i.e. using U.S. troops to control Serbs in a (so called) fire free zone while Fascist Croats murder them, while the U.S. troops keep the Serbs defenseless. This policy will continue throughout the Balkans.

Hitler presented the Independent State of Croatia (NDH) to Pavelic, 10 April 1941, as Greater Croatia which lasted from 1941 to 1945. The original plan was to annihilate one third of the population, force a third to migrate out of the country and force a third to convert to Catholicism. The process was to take ten years. The second half of the plan was completed 1991-1995. U.S. troops now enforce that Croatian state, against the displaced Orthodox Serbs. Today Franjo Tudjman is doing everything to have Greater Croatia presented by Germany (today if you publish anything in the German press about the Vatican Nazi concordat the state prosecutes you) the United States and the Vatican, reconstructed from Bosnia and Serbian lands. While a concerted propaganda campaign is being mounted to frighten small Balkan countries with the spectre of "Greater Serbia" and are being offered a protective "umbrella", behind the smokescreen of the Washington Agreement from 1994 that inaugurated Greater Croatia in which the Muslims are a majority, while the 1995 Split Agreement consolidated the military alliance between Tudjman and Izetbegovi} and was given the blessings by the United States Ambassador in Zagreb: Peter Galbraith.

Both of them have been sent teams of U.S. military planners and experts and they have been rendered military and financial assistance. The United States has unilaterally discontinued the control of the arms embargo against Muslims and Croats in violation of the Security Council arms embargo resolution in whose adoption it participated. It is only too obvious that the Vatican plans to continue the Serbian genocide throughout Yugoslavia only now the genocide will be financed by the United States with military assistance, while we can trust the national and international media to continue its lies about Orthodox Serbs murdering Muslims. The Vatican has established its own international court in Rome to try anyone it so chooses with total disregard to the sovereignty and/or autonomy of the country under whose authority the person had acted.

The Jesuits have orchestrated the deaths of presidents, heads of state and dignitaries of countries all over the world i.e. C.I.A. [French king: Henry IV issued: "Edict of Nantes", giving freedom of religion for all French citizens, for which he was assassinated (14May1610), by Jesuit: Ravallac; by the "leaden bullet": Presidents: James A. Garfield (2 July 1881), William McKinley (6 Sept 1901), Abraham Lincoln(14 April 1865), John F. Kennedy (22 Nov 1993); "by the poison cup": presidents: William Henry Harrison (4 April 1841), Zachary Taylor (5 July 1850); attempted assassination of James Buchanan by poisoning the tea at the National Hotel, Washington D.C., (Feb 1857) where 50 were affected and 38 died, Andrew Jackson: shot for refusing loans from international banks; Franklin D. Roosevelt: injected with strychnine [(for refusing to acknowledge the newly created catholic state of Croatia) the medical examiners report, of Roosevelt's body, disappeared from the safe in the Bethesda Naval Medical Center (only three doctors had key) the day after the examination] as was WWII General: George Patton. Jesuitism was born in Spain, 1534 (for the express purpose of exterminating the reformation); reared in France; developed in Papal Rome; sanctioned by Pope Paul III, 1540. Expelled from: England,1581; France,1594; Portugal,1598; England again, 1604; France again,1606; Russia,1717; Portugal again,1759; France again, 1762-3; Spain, Genoa, Venice and Sicily,1767; Naples, Malta and Parma,1768.

All, except England and Russia, being strictly Roman Catholic states. The order was suppressed 21 July 1773 by Pope Clement IV (for which he was promptly poisoned); continued to exist under other names i.e. "Brothers of the Faith"; re-established by Pope Pius VII, 1814 (to carry out the dictates of the "Secret Treaty of Verona"): In the words of Abraham Lincoln: "If the Protestants of the North and the South could learn what the priests, nuns, and monks, who daily land on our shores, under the pretext of preaching their religion were doing in our schools and hospitals, as emissaries of the Pope and the other despots of Europe, to undermine our institutions and alienate the hearts of our people from our Constitution and our laws, and prepare a reign of anarchy here, as they have done in Ireland, Mexico, Spain, and wherever there are people that wish to be free, they would unite in taking power out of their hands". "The Jesuits never forsake." (Washington in the lap of Rome, Justin D. Fulton; Fifty Years in the Church of Rome, by: Charles Chiniquy LCCN: BX1770.F9). Phyllis Schlafly, Reed Irvine, Dusty Rhodes (of National Review), Brent Bozell, Edwin Fulner, Robert Godwin, Richard Viguerie, Sommers White, Foster Friess, Oliver North, Coors family, Roland Hinz, Rush Lembaugh, Tim La Haye, Pat Robertson, Jack Kemp, George Will, Jean Kirkpatrick, William Bennet (Jesuit), Robert Kriehle, Burton Yale Pines, Gary Hofmeister, Clarence Thomas, Ed Meese and Charles Colson are pseudo conservatives who's puppet strings are pulled by Jesuits, Skull & Bones, Council on Foreign Relations or directly from the Illuminati. "I am not happy about the rebirth of the Jesuits. Swarms of them will present themselves under more disguises ever taken by even a chief of the Bohemians, as printers, writers, publishers, school teachers, etc. If ever an association of people deserved eternal damnation, on this earth and in hell, it is this society of Loyola." (John Adams, 1816).

This hardly scratch's the surface of info on the Jesuits and Popery as a whole. If you refuse to see and believe the pattern that is set forth here, you wouldn't believe the rest either. "If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead" (Luke 16:31).

Catholic priest convicted over satanic ritual murder of nun

By JAMES EWINGER

13may06

<http://www.theadvertiser.news.com.au/commo...255E912,00.html>

A U.S. jury yesterday found a Roman Catholic priest guilty of the satanic ritual-style murder of a 71-year-old nun which went unsolved for more than 25 years.

Father Gerald Robinson, above, was sentenced to a mandatory jail term of between 15 years and life.

There were gasps in the court after the verdict, but the 68-year-old priest remained impassive.

Sister Margaret Ann Pahl was found murdered on a chapel floor in April, 1980. She had been strangled, covered in an altar cloth and stabbed 31 times in the shape of an upturned holy cross.

She had been grabbed from behind and choked so violently that the blood vessels in her eyes burst and two bones in her neck broke. Prosecutor Dean Mantros said that Robinson pushed up the nun's robe and pulled down her underwear.

Robinson was an early suspect but was only arrested in 2004, after a woman came forward with claims that she had been sexually abused by a group of priests who performed satanic rituals and held sadomasochistic orgies.

A spot of blood on the priest's letter opener was found to match a bloodstain on the altar cloth that had covered Sister Pahl's body.

Title: Spanish Inquisition Black Pope, Nazi White Pope

Description: Grand Inquisitor William Levada

AVBibleBeliever - May 28, 2006 06:12 PM (GMT)

I thought that perhaps Levada could eventually be a "Spanish Inquisition" Papal Caesar due to the fact that he is of Spanish heritage and heads the Unholy Office of the Inquisition today called the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith. Levada is indeed the Grand Inquisitor. Then I thought that the Jesuits probably would not choose a Pope from a nation/s they plan to destroy namely the U.S., Canada, Mexico, and perhaps the rest of the Western Hemisphere. I think this is the reason why a Latin American was not selected by the Black Pope to be the Papal Caesar but a German/Bavarian. William Levada was Archbishop of San Francisco and wrote his dissertation at North American College in Rome under Jesuit Francis A. Sullivan in 1971 before receiving his doctorate in "sacred theology."

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/William_Levada

I think a Nazi White Papal Caesar (Joseph Ratzinger aka Benedict XVI) and a Spanish Jesuit General/Black Pope which if I remember correctly Brother Eric believes as do I that it will be Elias Royon Lara S.J. in 2008 (if you unscramble some of the letters and it spells "Loyola" which could mean something or not). With a Bavarian Nazi White Pope and Spanish Inquisition Black Pope the plan for the destruction of the Post-Reformation West will continue in earnest at a more rapid pace I think. Joseph Ratzinger was selected by Black Pope Kolvenbach in complete control of the College of Cardinals of which Joseph (Jozef) Cardinal Ratzinger was dean so he visibly headed the whole thing and I knew he would be chosen since Ignatius Press, a Jesuit-run publishing company advertised the complete works of Cardinal Ratzinger. I thought why would they do this if they did not back and support him? Since Ratzinger is a German this is significant because the Holy Roman Empire was centered in Germany and the European Union (the "failed" EU Constitutional Convention was chaired by Knight of Malta Valery Giscard D'Estaing) is the revived Holy Roman Empire and the Jesuits want it centered in a united Roman Catholic Germany. The Jesuits in the coming years and decades will create their new Nazis-an international enemy for the "international community" newspeak for the Pope's New World Order to hate and destroy-the Jesuit-controlled empire Fourteenth Amendment America is and will more obviously become in the 21st century what Nazi Germany was in the 20th century-the Jesuits' American Reich.

Title: WARNING TO ALL HERE

Description: Cade Foster is deleted!

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 25, 2006 11:41 PM (GMT)

This is a warning to users of my site.

Cade Foster is an example of what I will not accept on my forum and never have done. I've only had to delete 4 people all the time I've had forums. All these so far have hailed nonsense and abuse at myself. Today Cade Foster decided to attack my friend Eric Jon Phelps who I believe to be one of the greatest truth exposers theres every been, amongst the pinnacle in this arena.

Whilst I allow people to express their views, I will not have childish comments of no interest or worth pasted all on my site. Calling my site full of Zionists and calling Eric Phelps a Zionist supporter along with a Temporal Coadjutor just don't wash it with me.

If you want to follow all the disinformation then go to all these Zionist blaming sites. Do not even bring Joe Vialls into this argument because he also was a friend a of mine. Cade you had the cheek to post an attack on Joe Vialls from a disinformation site known as JudicialBiz who blame jews for everything forgetting gentile CIA, NSA and the intellgences boss MI6.

You then come out with the usual sheep nonsense like wheres your proof for the Jesuit rule?!?! Well wheres your proof for your Zionist nonsense? My evidence is spread across my site and other boards along with multiple books dating back well before the 1900s and into Vatican Assassins and so forth. You have done almost zero research on the Order which is evident from your pathetic questions and lazy attitude to searching for the knowledge. Cade Foster I warned you, then you came out with the credibility nonsense. I then find you slag my members off as Zionists so now your deleted.

If anyone else wishes to follow the path of this clown feel free to join him. I will not tolerate attacks on Eric Phelps unless they have some worth and are backed up by wise comments. If you attack me or my site in anyway then your gone. This isn't The Forum or other sites which are full of idiots, sheep & troublemakers.

This Cade Foster decided to come to my site and instantly create multiple handles using Pope Benedicts name and Peter Hans Kolvenbachs name. I let him on my site even though this action was incorrect. Offending useless posts of zero worth will be deleted and eventually the user also. Take it or leave it, I have no use for people like this with zero input for myself and others who need truthful information and not what everyman and his dog hears.

I suppose I will be attacked now elsewhere being called a Zionist, Jew, Crypto-jew, Temporal Coadjutor. I honestly think people dont understand half these terms. Silly comments like "I suppose Wolfowitz aren't Zionists but are Jesuits" just show the mentality of this person. Who calls these Jesuits? They are Masonic Zionist shills for the Society of Jesus who controls the Zionists. I feel sorry for anyone who thinks Paul Wolfowitz and company are pinnacle controllers, they couldn't even lick the boots of Cardinal Andrew Willoughby Ninian Bertie let alone Superior General Peter Hans Kolvenbach. Why cant people learn to read and use their mind Enki gave them instead of scanning and making up what they wish? Strange but again this is what the Jesuits and their pyramid of control have done to the all powerful human mind and soul.

Not meaning to step on any toes.....

There are many kinds of Zionists, but even though not all of them are evil or part of the conspiracies the word has grown to be a stigma. Even I am a moderate Zionist but usually don't care to apply the word to myself. I support Israel behind the Green Line in compliance with International law, and the creation of a constitution that protects the rights of all people equally. This would include Liberation for the Palestinians of course.

There are other Zionists who have different beliefs, and Phelps falls into the Christian Zionist Dispensationalist catagory. Did I understand corectly that he is a Calvinist?

Your recent thread More from Eric on the Jews is typical of Christian Zionist Dispensationalist teachings.

It does not mean they support the Israeli government, or what is happening to the Palestinians, but they still fit the definition of the word.

They all support Israel the nation, as do I.

I just don't support what they are doing....

Phelps supports some radical actions, but I have to wonder if he really understands what would have to happen in order for it to come to light.

I don't thinks its fair to associate Phelps with the Zionists who give the word a bad name.

And if you don't agree with someone opinion that does not mean you should attack the person rather than debate the issues.

There are lots of people who are Zionists but not blind from hatred.

The Zionist leadership does not represent all Zionists, and never stops trying increase the level of hate because it closes the mind.

Cade is just ignorant. No one denies that many Jewish people are in the White House. The common thread that Cade doesn't want to discuss the high level of CFR members in the White House (including Condoleezza Rice, Brent Scowcroft, Donald Rumsfeld, Robert B. Zoellick, Elaine Chao, Robert Blackwill, I. Lewis Libby, Stephen Hadley, Richard Haass, and others). The Masonic Jewish Zionists like I've said before play a significant, yet secondary role in world affairs. 2tuff, this lying campaign isn't just happening to you. It happened to me from bigots from the APFN Forum several months. It's obvious that 2tuff doesn't support the many evil Labor Zionists. If Cade knew history, he would know that the Gentiles mostly created plus headed the Jesuits, CFR, Pilgrim Society, 1001 Club, Freemasonry, Knights of Malta, Knights of Columbus, and other powerful organizations. Israel is not the most powerful nation on Earth. Israel is small nation that's not even equal to the size of Vermont in land size. Cade is the same type that rightfully expose evil Labor Zionists, but won't expose Muslim radical, the Nazi/Muslim Brotherhood connection, the Saudi/Bush link, and the murder of my people in my land in Africa. Northern Africa was stolen by Muslim radicals in the 600's-700's A.D. in millions of square miles. Cade is not only a liar (by implying that people like us support Labor Zionists and are a Mossad/CIA operation when I oppose the CIA and Mossad), but a hypocrite since he shows legitimate concern about Palestinians, but don't care about terrorists trying to steal land in Sudan and Mauritania. These bigots rightfully expose evil Jews, but won't expose evil Arabs (who aren't representative of all Jews and all Arabs). As for the Vatican/Jesuits, they have historical links to the Inquisition, Bavarian Illuminati, Gunpowder plot, St. Bartholomew Massacre, Assassination of Abraham Lincoln, WWI, WWII, Vietnam, the ecumenical movement, JFK assassination, war on terror, and other situations.

I will say I've only now had to delete 5 members all the time I've had The Unhived Mind forum and that includes all my past web addresses.

QUOTE

Could the unhived mind be a Mossad/CIA operation to try to de-bunk the conspiracy community?

The Unhived Mind is a forum created by me a white anglo-saxon gentile from England. I have no affiliation with any organisation whatsoever. I certainly wouldn't want to be affiliated with lackies and pawns such as the CIA and MOSSAD who bow to my country's British Military Intelligence 6 who ultimately bows to `The City' and of course their masters in Rome. Debunk the conspiracy world? This arena unfortunately has been debunking itself for such a long time thanks to CIA, FBI Division 5 and many other establishment outfits and shells. My information goes totally against the normal disinformation out there. Now do people still honestly believe that what their told by the majority of the internet is real? People are more indoctrinated than I originally thought. In China you're simply suppressed 100%, in the West you are diverted, twisted and lied to all the time. Theres only handful of sites of worth now and many of the truthsayers have either been killed (William Cooper, Phil Schneider, Gary Webb, Brian Downing Quig, Joe Vialls etc) or died of old age (Skolnick etc). Truthsayers are disappearing too fast and unfortunately too many of you are all getting suckered back into the prison you once thought you were released from. This time its worst because you've entrapped yourselves deeper because you believe your mind is a lot more free than previously. Also if my forum was of Jesuit or Black Nobility power then why is it on a free system and not one of these expensive high budget/bandwidth systems/sites such as all this disinformation spreading so-called alternative news which incidently censor many of the truthsayers.

QUOTE

Could 2tuff really be a Jesuit trying to fool us?

So I'm a Jesuit now? Make your mind up, one minute its a Zionist and MOSSAD then its a Jesuit what next? Without me you probably wouldn't have even heard of a Jesuit, Society of Jesus, Company of Sion and so forth. Next you'll be saying I'm a 4th Vow Jesuit which by the way would be impossible because this would mean I joined the Jesuit Order at the age of 3 because it takes 30 years before you can apply for 4th Vow and I'm almost 33.

QUOTE

Could he even be Petar Hans Kolvanbach himself?

Give me a break, do you honestly think this shows you have intelligence? Does anyone with a brain cell believe this? Peter Hans Kolvenbach is of the greatest level of power. People would laugh if you said that about Bush/Cheney/Rumsfeld/Frist/Rice etc let alone their master in Rome. I'm quite sure the Black Pope wouldn't be helping to expose his own order which they try very hard to shield/veil and smokescreen out the public domain and do quite well in most cases. I can't believe this dribble.

QUOTE

Could he be working for the SMOM

Did you ever hear of the SMOM until I helped expose them? No I am not subordinate to the Pope and the SMOM Prince, Cardinal Andrew Willoughby Ninian Bertie. By the way this Guelph towers over any of the Zionist Talmudic court jews.

QUOTE

Or could he be working with Mossad or some black project/masonic Israeli intelligence group that no one knows about.

Black project? Next you'll be saying I'm Blackstone group, Blackwater group, Olive group or Permindex because I'm ENGLISH (not a covenant man known as British). I dislike the Black Pope's Masonic Talmudic jews and many people are fully aware of this. I do not have any problems though with Torah following orthodox dark skinned non-zionist jews.

QUOTE

I question why bush's cabinet is full of jews many of whom have Israeli citizenship how could these be jesuits when they clearly look zionist talk zionist act zionist. wolfowitz chertoff boxor fienstien and the 100's of other zionist jews they cant no way be "jesuits"

Again another childish point which I addressed upon my site. There is no one who called Paul Wolfowitz and company a Jesuit. No one denies hes part of the White House right now. We must remember on that whoever people want to believe rule other than the disinformation jews, the Bush cabinet and White House are not the power of the United States. The United States was always run by Britain until the Jesuits got a grip via their Counter-Reformation. Britain still plays its role in the rule and organisation of the United States under the order and watchful eyes of its Jesuit and SMOM masters in Rome and Stonyhurst. The United States never was free and the British control just when covert from overt. From the America's side the powerhouse's are GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY, Fordham University, Archbishop of New York/St Patricks Cathedral, Archbishop of Chicago. People like Paul Wolfowitz are nothing in the high ranks of this conspiracy, they are mere puppets just like Bush. Remember on that Zionists, Intelligence agencies and so forth are all one working together to bring about The Jesuits `New Holy Roman Empire' which to many is known as either New World Order or New Atlantis. This is why theres far too much intermingling of religions etc. If we look hard enough we eventually see that Roman Catholics is the one true powerful religion over all. We eventually see the Sovereign Military of Malta being only second to the Jesuit Order in power. We see who rules over organisations such as CFR and Bilderberg from their founders etc. We see that 50%+ of SMOM are made up of the all powerful Black Nobility families. We find that just under the power of the Church of Rome are the almighty powerful Black Nobility families of Italy/Venice who tower over all other Black Nobility families spread throughout Europe. Just take a look into the Giustiniani & Oltramaire Families etc. So instead of following the all ever popular disinformation websites promoting lower down in power jews and satanic bloodlines such as Rothschild etc, take a look at the real powerful families only second to the Church of Rome in wealth and power. So whilst you all cream yourselves at the wealth of Rothschild and are misguided to believing they are the most wealthy may I remember you all to check out the true wealth of another shill Rockefeller and see who really has more wealth in this not-so-high level of the conspiracy pyramid. May I also point you in the direction again of the Italian Black Nobility families whos wealth far exceeds anyone out there apart from the Vatican.

So Cade I guess you've learn't something new yet again from just above. Why haven't you come across the things I say before? Because of all the nonsense spread by real agents, temporal coadjutors, ignorant and sheep. THATS WHY!

When a person blames everything on the Jews, they blatantly fall into the bluff set up by Hitler(not really Hitler, more his puppet masters in the Vatican), without realising it.

Not enough people I believe have even really thought about this, I'm talking about the Texe Marrs of the world, the Alex Jones and Jeff Renses. Basically, Hitler said in his book Mein Kampf (surprise, surprise, written by a Jesuit trained Catholic priest, Staempfle) that the Jews were planning a New World Order, and were taking over the banks and governments of the world, and this has to change.

So what happens in the world after WWII? The so called Jews of the world (really puppet front-men) are put in charge of the money in the world, and take up prominent positions in government. Why? So stupid morons can think to themselves, wow, maybe Hitler was right, but also, because of the 'holocaust', a very special phrase was invented, anti-semitism, the most ridiculous phrase ever conceived. So, if you attack Israel, or say they have too much power, you are automatically an anti-semite. If you say that the neo-cons like Wolfowitz have too much power, or the Rothschilds have too much global control and money, you are again an anti-semite. This is brilliant, as it allows the Vatican to work through the Zionists of the world behind the scenes, and fully knowing that the Jews are taking the flak.

It is made out in the media that the suffering of the Jewish people in WWII is the worst, most despicable thing ever in the history of the world, and zero mention goes to the other people put in death camps, such as communists, disabled people, free-thinkers, gypsies, musicians, writers etc. These people who weren't Jewish, simply do not matter as much as the Jews do, and their suffering is non-existent. Why? The reason is that forever more, we must feel sorry for the Jews of the world, for they have suffered more than anyone. This gives the front men Jews of the world freedom to act with impunity on the world stage, unless you want the bully boys of the ADL breathing down your throat. All of this builds up resentment towards the Jews of the world, and the Jesuit Order know and love this, as they hate the true Jewish race.

The problem with the Cade Fosters of the world is that they don't stop and think, hmm, why are these so called Jews put in prominent places of power? Isn't it all a bit too obvious? Is the real power of the world going to be on display that much? I think not.

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 27, 2006 10:22 PM (GMT)

Dear Brother Nicholas,

The handshake is assuredly Masonic. I have seen a Pennsylvanian State Police captain give a Masonic handshake to another brother trooper it was exactly as you said---the thumb nearly over the knuckles of the opposite hand.

Indeed, Islam is another daughter of Rome, tied to the Papacy via Freemasonry and the sword of the Church against the White Anglo Saxon Protestant Reformation West. Two historic faiths will be nearly destroyed simultaneously via SMOMs Bush 41, Blair and Putin. Bush 43 may well be a SMOM by now.

Sincerely in faith,

Brother Eric

JESUIT-TRAINED AHMAD CHALABI/ AL-JALABI A SHRINER FREEMASON?

I found this photo during a Google search. Can you and/or anyone confirm this is a Masonic handshake between 33rd Degree Freemason Jesse Helms and deputy PM of Iraq and oil minister Jesuit-trained (at Baghdad College) Temporal Coadjutor Ahmad Chalabi? It looks like one to me because of the positioning of Chalabi's thumb.

Chalabi is a Shi'a Muslim. In an upcoming post I'm going to show why this is very significant and point out Islam's Romish practices which prove that the false religion is a daughter of MYSTERY BABYLON THE GREAT THE MOTHER OF HARLOTS AND ABOMINATIONS OF THE EARTH and that is the only honest conclusion that can be reached. Islam believes in saints, relics (there is a mosque associated with Ibn Al-Arabi where the head of John of the Baptist is believed to be kept) prayer beads, (rosaries) use the two-fingered salute-the sign of the bowman used by the Pope, the sign of the cross is found in Islam as well. Both the Shi'as and Sunnis hold Fatima, one of Muhammad's daughters in high regard and see her as a miracle child. They call her "Lady of Light" and her eye or hand (actually the all-seeing eye of Horus/Lucifer/Satan) is looked to as a charm/talisman for protection.

Title: Iraq Jesuit War of Annihilation

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 24, 2006 01:03 AM (GMT)

Dear Brethren and Friends,

The first order of business for Ignatius Loyola in founding the Society of Jesus, or the military "Company of Jesus," was to declare war against the Saracens. Those were the Arab Moslems occupying the Middle East, especially Jerusalem. Loyola considered himself the "Savior of Jerusalem." Frustrated in his purpose, Loyola turned his Militia against the Protestant Reformation.

With the White Reformed nations now almost totally destroyed, the Order has now turned its CFR/CIA ruled American military against the Moslems of the Middle East. It is to be a typical Jesuit/Vatican war of annihilation as was done to the White Anglo-Saxon Protestant American South (particularly Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia) under the guise of "freeing the Black slaves." Further, Iraq expelled the Jesuits in 1969; this payback will be a thirty-year retribution for that expulsion.

The commanding General, Irish Roman Catholic General Casey, is a graduate of Jesuit Georgetown University of 1970. His masters are Georgetown Jesuits, the university president being a CFR member and Knight of Malta, John J. DeGioia. (And Michael Collins Piper told me in our debate that the Knights of Malta were no more than a mere Rotary Club!) Thus, it was the officers of this Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor, General Casey, who taught the Black Jessie MacBeth to be a mass-murderer in the name of "Operation Iraqi Freedom."

May Jesse continue to do his part in exposing the murder and killing pits in Iraq and I will continue to expose his once secret masters directing the war---the Jesuits ruling the CFR, the Order's Masonic Labor Zionists and Skull and Bonesman President George W. Bush.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 24, 2006 01:10 AM (GMT)

Dear Brother Eric,

Here are the names of the "commanders on the ground" in Iraq that Skull and Bonesman Bush and Jesuit-trained Rumsfeld refer to on Congressional hearings covered on C-SPAN and press conferences.

Georgetown Walsh School of Foreign Service alum James L. Jones
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/James_L._Jones

Thoroughly Jesuit-trained from his youth Georgetown Walsh School of Foreign Service alum George Casey Jr.
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/George_Casey

Georgetown Walsh School of Foreign Service Leadership Seminar 1992 graduate Chairman of the Joint-Chiefs of Staff United States Marine Corps Gen. Peter Pace http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Peter_Pace

Roman Catholic CFR member U.S. Army General John P. Abizaid
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/John_Abizaid

Georgetown Law Center drop-out Donald Rumsfeld
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Donald_Rumsfeld

All of these men with the exception of Rumsfeld are the "commanders on the ground" that Skull and Bonesman Luciferian George W. Bush and I believe Rumsfeld always mention when asked about an exit strategy and pullout of American troops from the Middle East.

Jesuit-trained Temporal Coadjutors Pace, Casey, Jones, Rumsfeld, and CFR member Abizaid will not even think about ending this Papal Crusade in the Middle East led by the wicked bloody Company of Jesus against the Saracens/Muslim peoples until their Jesuit masters through their Council on Foreign Relations are satisfied enough with the carnage, annihilation, and genocide in the Middle East to give the order to cease military and combat operations. We can be sure with these Jesuit-trained and controlled men in charge that our nation's men and women will be confined to the death trap of depleted uranium and led to the slaughter by their Jesuit-trained murderous military command which will do this country's defenses irreparable harm and render them ineffective to defend the U.S. when the foreign invasion of Red Communist Chinese, Russian, Muslims, and Latin/South Americans presently being trained by Chinese whose presence is increasing in Venezuela especially with the approval of Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor Hugo Chavez for the invasion of North America.

Brother Nicholas N. Rivera

Mark Brewer - May 24, 2006 03:51 AM (GMT)

Of course there was Ahmed Chalabi, who was the architect of the Iraq war with his Iraqi Nation Congress. Chalabi was trained by Jesuits at Baghdad College.

AVBibleBeliever - May 26, 2006 08:34 PM (GMT)

Absolutely Mark! I'll admit I don't know much about Ahmed Chalabi but I'll do a Google search. This shows just how extensive the Order's influence is in Iraq. Since their expulsion from Iraq in 1969 they have had their crosshairs pointed at it and have always intended to return and resume their "mission" work i.e. political assassinations and setting up military fortresses of indoctrination under the guise of colleges and universities. As I've mentioned before the Order has used their American Reich re-enter Iraq through chaplaincies.

<http://www.digitaljournalist.org/issue0110/quinn.htm>

http://www.tradoc.army.mil/pao/training_closeup/041105.htm

(see bottom of the article about Jesuit John T. Quinn)

<http://www.commondreams.org/headlines02/1117-01.htm> (see under the bold heading "On both sides") it describes the Jesuits' use of the Hegelian dialectic quite succinctly) Quote: "However, some protesters recognize there are people of faith on both sides of the equation -- people who support the work of the institute as well as people who don't. John Quinn's father, for instance, is a retired general who once served at Fort Benning. Quinn, a Jesuit priest, graduated in 1967 from Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic grade school in south Columbus.

"I think there can be Christians on both sides," said [Jesuit] Quinn.

The father of Bill Masterson, a Jesuit layman from California, received officer's training at Fort Benning. Quinn and Masterson came to protest the School of the Americas when they met people involved in the movement. Masterson is friends with a man who was imprisoned for illegally crossing onto the post in 1995.

Did you catch that? "a Jesuit layman" we know that not all Jesuits are priests but there are laymen and yes laywomen who are Jesuits. If you read an obituary of a Jesuit in the National Jesuit News you will notice that the years in which one was a priest and a Jesuit are given separately.

http://findarticles.com/p/articles/mi_qn41...04/ai_n11848229

More Jesuit connection to "The Exorcist"-this Hellywood film was a Jesuit operation from beginning to end.

Jesuit-trained Temporal Coadjutor Bill Clinton had Iraq bombed back in 1998 (undoubtedly the Jesuits through John Cardinal O'Connor's CFR and its front thinktank the neocon Project for A New American Century (PNAC) did this to precipitate the impending Papal crusade in the Middle East) when he was U.S. Emperor but it is not mentioned in the CFR-controlled press. Operation Desert Fox of December 1998 was commanded by Knight of Malta and CFR member Anthony Zinni.

<http://www.newamericancentury.org/iraqclintonletter.htm>

<http://www.cnn.com/ALLPOLITICS/stories/199...ts/clinton.html>

<http://www.cnn.com/US/9812/16/clinton.iraq.speech/>

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Operation_Desert_Fox

I found an article about a Jesuit who "protested" Clinton's actions-I can't find it at this time but I will try to track it down and when I do I'll post it here. This of course is an example of the Company's damage control and playing both sides of an issue or agitation they create against themselves so they can affect the outcome "ad majorem dei gloriam" in St. Peter's chair-the Papal Antichrist and their Luciferian General in Borgo Santo Spirito. Classic Jesuit casuistry and implementation of the Hegelian dialectic.

More info is forthcoming.

Chalabi is the actual architect of the Iraq war. The PNAC people came in later after Chalabi had started lobbying Congress to overthrow Saddam. He is also an agent of the Iranian government and supports establishing a Shi'ite theocracy in Iraq. In other words, he is a very evil man who hates Arabs.

Tony Blair's visit to Washington was a sunset moment. He and George Bush are coming to an end of their time together.

This does not necessarily mean an end to their crises together, because one potentially huge problem, Iran, is yet to be dealt with.

Not that they were able to sit back and relax in a golden glow over the Potomac River. There were too many shadows.

Both found themselves having to make apologies over Iraq, especially Mr Bush as it turned out.

Tony Blair was more interested in determinedly trying to lay out his international legacy, a philosophy of interventionism in which Iraq found its place.

In a speech in the calm surroundings of Georgetown University, Bill Clinton's old haunt, he urged support for the new government of Iraq to mark a break with "old arguments" about the invasion.

A "new concordance" should replace the "old contention".

That has to be a bit optimistic.

After all, it is partly his role in Iraq that has led to the undermining of his own domestic position.

To expect people to rally round the Iraqi government is one thing. To expect them to rally round him as well is surely another.

Ideas and issues

He did call for a series of quite bold moves internationally, though it is unrealistic to expect many of them to be implemented.

They included another call for more permanent members of the United Nations Security Council (Germany, Japan, India and states from South America and Africa); for greater powers for the UN secretary general; for a UN environment agency; for reforms to the IMF and World Bank and an expansion of the G8 group of industrial countries to take in five more members.

He also floated the intriguing idea of the UN's nuclear agency, the International Atomic Energy Agency, overseeing the development of the international enrichment of uranium.

This is presumably seen as a way of avoiding another crisis like the other over Iran.

But it was just one in a fairly long list of ideas and was not developed. Maybe it will be.

Taken together, he did offer at least an attempt to describe a philosophy of interventions by the UN and in which Iraq, the "child of democracy" as he put it, found its place.

But the critics will also argue that it was the war in Iraq, declared as "illegal" by the UN secretary general himself, which did the major damage to the UN ideals and that it is now too late to square that circle.

Nevertheless, he did raise issues that the world must contemplate in the forthcoming post Bush/Blair era.

Will the United States draw in its horns under the next presidency (still two and a half years away, incidentally)?

Will the next British leader be less ready to join in American undertakings?

Will the UN re-establish its credibility?

As mentioned earlier, the looming crisis is over Iran.

At some stage, the US will have to decide whether it intends to attack Iran's nuclear facilities if there is no previous diplomatic agreement and no such agreement appears likely.

Mr Blair no longer has a foreign secretary who is clearly against any military action and he himself has simply said that it is sending the "wrong signal" to Iran to rule out any option.

That does not mean he would favour such action or take part in it.

But it leaves a little door open to the prospect of seeing Messrs Bush and Blair back together. Or maybe not.

The sun may be going down but it has not quite gone yet.

The Jesuits of Georgetown control the U.S. Supreme Court through temporal coadjutors they train at their law school who become law clerks to the Supreme Court Justices and and lower court judges. http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Law_clerk

The Jesuits decide which cases are heard by the Supreme Court and who is allowed to sit on the bench through their Supreme Court Institute <http://www.law.georgetown.edu/sci/> and Supreme Court Moot Program "which taps into faculty expertise by preparing counsel for oral argument before the Court. Last Term, the Institute provided moot courts to counsel in approximately 50 percent of the cases before the Court." <http://www.law.georgetown.edu/sci/moot.html> and <http://www.law.georgetown.edu/sci/document...otCourtroom.pdf> They recently chose Roman Catholic Harvard grad temporal coadjutor John G. Roberts who was an adjunct Georgetown law prof in Washington D.C. and London for a summer program. Sandra Day O'Connor obeyed her Jesuit masters and they through their man temporal coadjutor Viet Dinh who is credited as the main architect of the USA Patriot Act (undoubtedly several members of the Georgetown Jesuit Community advised Dinh as it was written) was CFR member Roman Catholic Sandra Day O'Connor's law clerk at one time during her term. http://www.law.georgetown.edu/news/events/...webDSC_0489.jpg <http://www.law.georgetown.edu/news/events/photos.html> (Knight of Malta) Eric E. One of them was a law clerk for Freemason Justice Thurgood Marshall and there is a name of another law clerk to former Justice O'Connor. Robert F. Drinan SJ who was a Democratic U.S. Representative from Massachusetts caused the abortion agitation, contributed to the civil rights agitation and I believe the anti-death penalty agitation as well having voted for these things and he was responsible for introducing legislation to impeach apostate Quaker Richard Nixon. Drinan made the Democratic party the pro-abortion party which made way for Masonic, SMOM Roman Catholic falsely called Christian Right which consists of apostate ecumenical Protestants and dominionists. <http://www.law.georgetown.edu/news/release...er.13.2005.html>

Early this month, CFR member Supreme Court Justice Stephen Breyer praised one of his masters Jesuit Father Drinan when the International Law Section of the District of Columbia Bar presented its 2005 Public Service Award to Georgetown University Law Center Professor Robert F. Drinan, S.J. rtsp://video.c-span.org/15days/e101105_breyer.rm (fast forward to the 3 min mark) Drinan destroyed bipartisanship and is responsible for the political war in the Congress today. Jesuit Drinan sowed discord, fashioned legislation based on Jesuit casuistry. The Jesuits want to establish an absolutist government with one party in power loyal to the Jesuits' Pope and Vatican like Romanist Mexico's PRI (Institutional Revolutionary Party) which ruled for 71 years. Only in 2000 did one-party dominance end in Mexico only to be replaced with Jesuit-trained (at Mexico City's Jesuit-run Ibero-American University) Roman Catholic Freemason Vicente Fox and his National Action Party. <http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/world/americas/1049493.stm> and <http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/world/americas/1049574.stm>

The Jesuits and their Knights of Malta created the polarized political spectrum of "Right" and "Left"-they do not exist! Both parties serve the same agenda because the core structure consists of members of the Archbishop of New York Cardinal Egan's Council on Foreign Relations whose members include Jesuits Joseph A. O'Hare and Dennis McNamara, and Notre Dame Romanist priest temporal coadjutor Theodore M. Hesburgh, Illuminati Rockefeller's Trilateral Commission and Bilderberg Group.

Knight of Malta Cartha "Deke" DeLoach led the MLK assassination plot-Michael King was silenced after the Order grew tired of his opposition to Spelly's War so they used their intelligence community to kill him. According to Wikipedia: http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Martin_Luther_King

"According to a former Pemiscot County, Missouri deputy sheriff, Jim Green, who claimed to have been part of an Federal Bureau of Investigation [the Order of the FBI-meant to collect info on every man, woman, and child for a future inquisition and to use to discredit anyone who opposes them or the Gentile Jesuit World Conspiracy which the FBI, CIA and the entire International Intelligence Community plays an integral part-the American Intelligence Community was controlled by Francis Cardinal Spellman at the time] (FBI)-led conspiracy to kill Dr. King, Ray had been targeted as the patsy for the King assassination shortly before his April 1967 prison escape and had been tracked by the Bureau during his year as a fugitive. After several trips to and from Canada and Mexico during this time, Ray had gone to Memphis after agreeing to participate (allegedly controlled by his mysterious benefactor "Raoul" who reportedly had weeks before while in Birmingham, Alabama ordered Ray to purchase the Remington Gamemaster rifle) in what he was told was a major bank robbery while King was in town--since city police resources would be dedicated toward maintaining security for King and his entourage, the intended bank heist would be much simpler than usual. Green (who, like Ray, had asserted that FBI assistant director [SMOM] Cartha DeLoach headed the assassination plot) had claimed Ray had been ordered to stay in the rooming house and as a diversion for the purported bank heist, to then hold up a small diner near the rooming house at approximately 6:00 p.m. on April 4th. Dr. King was shot a minute later by a sniper hidden in the shrubbery near the rooming house. Meanwhile, according to Green, two men, one of them allegedly a Memphis police detective, were waiting to ambush and kill Ray while Ray was on his way to the planned diner holdup and then plant the Remington rifle in the trunk of Ray's pale yellow (not white) 1966 Ford Mustang, effectively framing a dead man. However, moments before the assassination, Ray had apparently suspected a setup and instead quickly left town in his Mustang, heading for Atlanta, Georgia. Atlanta police found Ray's abandoned Mustang six days after King had been shot."

<http://www.library.georgetown.edu/dept/spe...ge/mcsorly1.jpg>

Jesuit McSorley created more fear about the airborne all out nuclear war hoax, he along with Jesuit John LaFarge fomented the Communist-Socialist Civil (Peoples') Rights agitation. McSorley openly opposed the Vietnam War aka Spelly's War. Jesuit-trained sodomite and pedophile Francis Cardinal Spellman who received his orders from the White Pope and his Fordham Jesuit masters both answerable to the Jesuit General. Spellman carried out the order from the Black Pope to assassinate JFK and Spellman called the U.S. soldiers in Vietnam "The Soldiers of Christ" and one of the tanks was called "Archbishop" named after Spellman-who was then the Archbishop of New York-the American Pope. The Order always plays both sides of any conflict so they can affect the outcome. They have no loyalty to anyone except their wicked unnatural Father General-the earthly head Luciferian and head of Freemasonry and the Illuminism worldwide.

Shriner Freemason Jesuit-trained Lyndon B. Johnson with one of his Georgetown masters <http://www.library.georgetown.edu/dept/spe.../i/page/lbj.jpg>

Bill Clinton's Jesuit master former Massachusetts Congressman Robert F. Drinan (who fomented the abortion agitation and destroyed the Democratic Party to make way for the Order's GOP and Jesuit-controlled ecumenical Religious Romanist Right full of Freemasons, Knights of Malta, CFR, and apostate Protestants and bipartisan cooperation which is still felt today, Drinan is also a gun-grabber, opposes the capital punishment which honors the God of the Bible and cleanses the land) the Order helped the "Baptist" President/Emperor they trained and groomed. the article said, "Georgetown University law professor Rev. Robert Drinan, a former Democratic member of the Judiciary Committee, agreed that censure "would establish a dangerous precedent. . . . Almost every election cycle we would have the Congress censuring the president if he were of a different party." Drinan defended a man who lied to a grand jury and was guilty of treason on many occasions having given high technology to Red China and had no problem with the Red Chinese controlling the Panama Canal.

May God reward them according to their works, as that IS what they preach.

Allow me to add, Brother Eric, that recently on one of the Jesuit-run stations, they actually had a program dedicated to proclaiming JUDAS ESCARIOT as an "innocent bystander" or "Victim of circumstance", if you will, ordained to "carry out his uncomfortable job of having to declare Jesus to the Romans". But we must love him for his, as without Jesus having been betrayed, we would not have the door to salvation. Therefore, "Judas was carrying out the will of God" and thus, is in heaven. As I always humbly reiterated, no other entities in this world is so powerful than the JESUITS. No matter, what are proven and discovered crimes and conspiracies world wide, no entities can parallel the diabolic works of the Jesuits. From Religion, Education, Science, Business & Industries, Banking Systems, Politics, Police, Military, Intelligence and up to Satanism - the Jesuits are the leaders and masters.

Even some Jesuits priest who broke away from the systems affirmed that the Jesuits are the masters of the world. I've seen the delapidation and degradation of my beloved country "PHILIPPINES" from the hands of the Jesuits and CBCP endorsing catholic faith. Our government is financialy broke and the money is in the hands of the elite, the elite moulded and educated by the Jesuits. Even our very own president is a Jesuit Temporal Co-Adjutor. Our president is protected by the Jesuits that nobody can destroy her administration even the direct influence of the CBCP. Unlike, Estrada easily toppled down by the CBCP in cooperation with the Jesuits. On the case of Marcos, he is groomed and trained by the Jesuits (a side show) for the purpose of looting the Philippine gold through the Jesuit-Controlled CIA Agent & Opus Dei Col. Severino Santa Romana or Rev. Fr. Jose Antonio Diaz (Opus Dei - Boys of the Jesuits). Only, our government leaders and politicians are so deep and stuck-up into dirty politics. If I'll have a chance to have a dialogue with Baptist Pastor now Congressman Benny Abante who is now so busry deep inside politics, I will politely and humble my self to show him and lead him to the Jesuits as the real power of darkness in the Philippines. Surely, Benny Abante might be shocked. But I'm still closely watching him that Benny Abante could also be a well-hidden tool of the Jesuits in Philippine Politics representing various protestant Bible-believing Christians. As what I did to Norberto Gonzales that I've discovered this man is Jesuit Temporal Co-Adjutor with his intimate association with Jesuit Fr. Romeo "Archie" Intengan.

Sincerely in faith to our Lord Jesus Christ

To make matters even worse, while Carlos was shooting all that wildlife, the WWF was busy with a project to integrate human and animal populations in the area. But, of course, Carlos is not just a regular member of the WWF; he's part of the inner circle, the 1001 Club, apparently supervised by British Intelligence and the Privy Council crowd. Carlos is also a member of the Knights of Malta and doesn't mind appointing Opus Dei members (Adolfo Suarez) to the most important positions in his country. Link

He also mentioned that the Ion Cioaba, the former self-proclaimed king of the Gypsies, was a member of the Knights of Malta. Not a surprise, because probably all the major catholic noble and royal houses in Europe are. Among them are Prince Hans Adam II of Liechtenstein, Otto von Habsburg (Bavaria; family intermarried with Thyssen-Bornemisza), King Juan Carlos, and at least several members of royal house of Belgium. It's interesting to note that many Knights of Malta can be found in the top tiers of the international intelligence world. Link

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 24, 2006 10:21 PM (GMT)

Thank you for bringing this to my attention. The following will attempt to right any wrong position that I may have unknowingly advocated by forwarding the email you mentioned.

I do not support this position that Greg apparently has stated on his site. As you know, I have always supported the right of the Jewish/Hebrew/Israelitic people to the land of Canaan given to them by promise through their racial father, Abraham, and thus his racial descendants (Genesis 15). As you know I have always advocated that the Arabs each be given a certain amount of money and then peaceably removed from within the borders of the nation of Israel (the 1967 borders) aided by surrounding billionaire Saudis, Iraqis, etc. This would end the near 60-year agitation and thus the resultant diplomacy which always benefits the Jesuits ruling the Vatican and hurts the resident Jews within Israel.

As you know, I, like Barry Chamish, am totally against the Pope's Masonic Jewish Labor Zionist government ruling the nation of Israel to the detriment of the Lord's beloved racial people therein (80% of the population). That Masonic Frankist-Sabbatean government, with its Mossad, is a mere tentacle of the Pope's CFR-ruled American government with its enforcer, the CIA. Yes, the Frankists are controlled by the Jesuits ruling the CFR/CIA/Mossad/Hamas. In fact I have documentation that the Mossad secretly works with Hamas.

Concerning atrocities committed by the Mossad/IDF against the resident Arab Moslems within Israel, there is no doubt. Some of them are our brethren in Christ and HATE Hamas. I have personally listened to the testimony of an IDF soldier describing the treatment given to the Arabs within their own houses which ungodly parallel is found today in US soldiers invading Iraqi homes. The brutality is deliberate and creates exactly what the Order wants---more anti-American and anti-Israeli fury among the nations. One of the reasons for both the Labor Zionists' and the PLO/Saudi Moslems' continued collusion in maintaining the existence of Arab Moslem enclaves within Israel is to make the Jewish people within Israel look bad to the rest of the nations of the world. These unrighteous acts, I say again, the Jesuit uses to create more anti-Jewish fury worldwide. Never do the wealthy Saudis look bad for financing Hamas or for not helping the "Palestinians" relocate to Jordan---the true "Palestine" for Moslem Arabs.

Therefore, I will continue to expose the criminal wickedness and terrorism of the Pope's Masonic Arab Moslem leaders within Israel ruling Hamas, the PLO, etc. I will also continue to expose the crimes of the Pope's Masonic Jewish Labor Zionists ruling Israel (after destroying the anti-Pope right wing Revisionist Zionists) using their IDF and Mossad to commit crimes and terrorism against the Arab Moslem People within Israel. Both sides must be given an objective analysis in light of the fact that the murderous Papacy controls them both to the end that the Pope may benefit, both politically and religiously, while the racial Jews and racial Arabs---both peoples having biblical promises yet to be fulfilled---continue to be massacred pursuant to the Order's wicked Council of Trent.

In conclusion, the Promise given to Abraham and his seed, is unconditional; the Hebrew/Jewish/Israelitic people have a God-given right to that land to the exclusion of every other race and people; they have a right to the land apart from obedience to the Mosaic Law as that conditional national covenant has been done away with by the resurrection of the Biblical Lord Jesus Christ; that the Devil ruling the Papacy is controlling both governments of those peoples; and thus the only solution is the separation of those racial and religious peoples into two separate nations. The Jews will have Israel and the Arabs will have Jordan---or some Moslem residence within other Arab nations in the region.

This solution is both Biblical and has historically worked. After World War I in 1922, the Greeks within Turkey were removed to Greece, and the Turks within Greece were removed to Turkey. It worked then and will work now. This is the solution to the White-Black racial agitation here in Fourteenth Amendment America; this is the solution to the Turkish-German racial agitation within Germany; etc.

I trust this provides the needed clarification as to my position from which I have never departed.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

I don't agree with you on this Mark. His seed refers to the Jewish people. Paul said perfectly in Romans that God hasn't cut off Israel. That is a fact. Genesis 12 is never annulled. I look at Wohlberg's views and I'm not convinced. Eric may be wrong about Calvinism, but he's right about Israel in Bible prophecy. I haven't seen any of Eric's words seeing ethnic cleansing of Arabs. In fact, it's the Arabs in Sudan stealing my people's land and ethnic cleansing my people in the Dhafur region. That's worse than the Palestinians. I don't agree with the Palestinians suffering, but many of them are hypocritical to not expose the millions of square miles land grab (real theft of land) the radical Muslims did in North Africa in the 600's-700's AD., which is vastly smaller than Israel.

He is talking about driving millions of people from their homes.

That is Zionist Extremism.

There are moderate Zionists who would be happy withdrawing from the Occupied Territories, and allowing the Non-Jews in Israel to stay.

But that is not his position making him a Zionist Extremist.

I think maybe you don't understand the implications from reading between the lines.

Or maybe you know little about the conflict other than Zionist propaganda which is common these days.

Never forget that there are Christian Palestinians, and when Zionists talks about kicking out the 'Arabs' they are talking about everyone other than Jews.

Before this gets into a heated debate let me start off by saying I do not believe that the majority of Jews in Israel are descended from Abraham.

There were TWO JEWISH NATIONS.

History of Jewish Khazars, Khazar Turk, Khazarian Jews

Israel does not have to invade because they are already occupying.

The occupation began when Israel invaded in a Sneak Attack back in 1967, and they're still there.

Palestinians do not have Sharia Law.

They have a constitutional democracy, but do not have sovereignty due to the Israeli occupation.

I understand dispensationalism, but my interpretation of it is that you should NOT be supporting Israel taking the Temple Mount by force.

Which is exactly what they are doing as we speak.

QUOTE

That won't happen without committing the greatest act of Ethnic Cleansing the world has seen since WWII.

Arab Muslims butchered 2 millions blacks in Sudan and a high number of others in Egypt, Pakistan, Afghanistan, and other nations. That's a Holocaust like abortion and the one in WWII.

QUOTE

He is talking about driving millions of people from their homes.

Eric has a right to his view. My personal opinion is a negotiated peace between both sides. I never believe in driving millions from their homes. I disagree with Eric on some issues, but I will never call him a Zionist extremist, since he opposes Labor Zionists.

QUOTE

That is Zionist Extremism.

Zionist extremism is supporting Israel at the expense of oppressing people. I don't support forcing people out of their homes, but I do support Israel having a right to exist.

QUOTE

There are moderate Zionists who would be happy withdrawing from the Occupied Territories, and allowing the Non-Jews in Israel to stay.

I know this.

QUOTE

But that is not his position making him a Zionist Extremist.

I know this.

QUOTE

I think maybe you don't understand the implications from reading between the lines.

I understand fully the implications, so don't bring in that garbage.

QUOTE

Or maybe you know little about the conflict other than Zionist propaganda which is common these days.

I knew that you would say that. I know full well about the many times and events plus conflicts among both sides. I don't embrace radical Zionist propaganda. If you continue to say that, you're a liar. I've been fair to both sides. You don't expose nothing about the evils committed by Muslim radicals in the Middle East Africa. I do. I also expose the evil done by Labor Zionists as well. While you omit terrorism committed by one side, I will expose terrorism committed by both sides. You don't want to hear that Jewish people lived in the land of Eretz Yisrael in the times of the Romans, Byzantium, Islamic Empire, Ottoman Turks, and the reign of the British. Yes, Jewish people continuously lived in the land of Israel for over 2,000 years. Saying that Muslims radical are killing people in Nigeria and other countries isn't Zionist propaganda. It's historical fact. That's reality that you must accept. Sharia law promoting in many Mid East area is fact and reality.

QUOTE

Never forget that there are Christian Palestinians, and when Zionists talks about kicking out the 'Arabs' they are talking about everyone other than Jews.

I know that are Christian Arabs. Don't give me that same mess. Many Messanic Zionist Jewish people aren't racist and love all humans regardless of color.

QUOTE

Before this gets into a heated debate let me start off by saying I do not believe that the majority of Jews in Israel are descended from Abraham.

Oh, you love to talk about the Khazars again. The truth is that many Jewish people in Israel are descended from Abraham. Also, in fact it's most because the Askenazi tribes (which you and your ilk obsess about) lived in the Rhine valley in the 200's A.D. before any Khazar tribes came into Europe. Also, you omit that Jewish people in Israel exist from Ethopia, India, Yemen, North Africa, Spain, and other locations and historians agree that these Jewish people are from the ancient Hebrews of the Bible.

QUOTE

There were TWO JEWISH NATIONS.

There is one Jewish nation.

QUOTE

History of Jewish Khazars, Khazar Turk, Khazarian Jews

A load of half truth bunk. I written refuting the Khazar lie and also Eric wrote a 14 page refutation of the Khazar lie. In short, the Khazars (or Turkic Eurasian tribes) lived in Europe, but most of them never adopted all of the Hebrew religion. Jusaism was mainly embraced by the Khazarian nobility. As time went on, many were intergrated into the already existing Ashkenazi population. When the Khazar kingdom died out, most of them went into Hungary. The Askhenazi so overwhelmed the Khazar populations, that the minority of other Khazars intermingled and died off within the Ashenazi population. At a bear mininium, only a small percentage of Askhenazi have Khazar ancestry. Most of the KHazar's descedants are found in Hungary. Not to mention that the Sephradic, Indic, and Ethopic populations have nothing to do with the Khazars and they are real Hebrews.

QUOTE

Most Jews today are Talmudist descended from Converts, or Khazars.

I guess you're omitting that many Jewish people are believing in the NT. Just because a Majority of Jewish people accept deception, doesn't mean that all are evil. Just like most Muslim accept the Koran (which is filled with distortions), doesn't mean that all Muslims are terrorists. Mark Brewer is fully capable to refuting you. It's hilarious that the link that you quotes support the view that many Askhenazi are in fact related to the Hebrews. Learn to realize that I'm some dumb person being intimidated. I'm strong and I do respond. Since you brought links, here's mine refuting the Khazar myth out of the water:

Title: Giani Progtam; Jesuitess Coadjutor Kelly McGinley

CRAIG-OXLEY - May 24, 2006 10:24 PM (GMT)

Brother Eric, Im glad to see you on American Voice Radio tonight. I dont want to get you in trouble, but I wish that you would expose Kelly McGinley for the phoney she is. She flicks off some of the greatest names in past history like so many ants on a picnic table. Some examples: Pilgrims were real NAZIS,they exterminated the indians because were not elect,

The Calvinist Puritans entered into a treaty with the Indians for 40 years! Even D. James Kennedy covered this in detail in one of his sermons.

Calvin was a Jew who secretly worked with the Jesuits to murder REAL CHRISTANS, Calvin was not Jew, but a French Roman Catholic Gentile priest who founded the first Protestant haven in Europe---Geneva. Michael Servetus was told not to come to Geneva by Calvin himself, as he would be put to death for seeking to overthrow the state. Servetus, a Jesuit-controlled Spanish physician and denier of the Deity of Christ, was rightly put do death for his intended subversion of Geneva via heresy. With no Geneva there is no Protestant Holland, England or America including the Baptist-Calvinist Bill of Rights.

Calvin working with the Jesuits? That is laughable!

Same with Luther.

Luther had a bounty on his head for which reason he was protected by Frederick the Elector. Rome HATED Luther and cursed the day he escaped from the Diet of Worms.

same with the prince of preachers of England.

Baptist Calvinist Charles Hadden Spurgeon also? She is nuts!

Rushdoony died a raving maniac,etc

Cute!

I just wish Oliver C. was alive today. She needs the Charlie 1st treatment

Agreed. McGinley is not only an apostate but a traitor. Civil societies born out of the Protestant Reformation were built on Biblical Reformed Calvinist doctrine. To overthrow any of those White nations, the doctrine of their churches must be overthrown. This has been done with great success here in multicultural and "diversified" Fourteenth Amendment America.

Blessings on your appearance Tonight>>>> Dick

Thanks.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

TruthSeeker24 - May 25, 2006 12:58 PM (GMT)

I knew something was wrong with Kelly. Ever since she supported the Coadjtor Barbara Aho (who believes in the Priory de Sion halftruth), Kelly went off the deep end. Kelly believes that we shouldn't have a right to self defense in a crazy world. It's part of our human nature to defend our families from criminals using guns if necessary.

Confession No. 11: According to Philippine Man, Jesuit And Vatican Have Pilfered Trillions In Gold Owed To The People Freedom fighter connects the dots back to Rome, as Americans better wake-up before the same thing happens here like is going on in the Philippines.

2 Jul 2006

By Greg Szymanski

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/2-July-2006.html>

Bobby Limeta of the Philippines feels alone, abandoned and frightened for his life in his fight to expose the corrupt Jesuit Order.

First and foremost, frightened for the safety of his family, he is considering a move to New Zealand, seeking safe haven from the persecution being dished out for his political views and exposure of Vatican corruption.

Limeta has previously contributed to these Sunday Confessions, shedding light on how the Jesuits are raping and pillaging the Philippines in hopes Americans wake up before the same thing happens here.

But now he comes forward in Confession No. 11 on the shores of Brushy Creek, telling about his personal experiences as well as sharing more shocking information about the Jesuits and their underhanded control of the Philippines.

?What I will tell you now is a matter of life and death,? said Limeta. ?My country has been for 485 years controlled by the Roman Catholic Church and of course the Jesuits are the masterminds. Our government is controlled by the Jesuits-Vatican and our country is one of their stronghold territories.

?Would you believe that our government's secret operatives, controlled by the Jesuits-Vatican, can grab me inside my home using warrantless arrest and my family will never see me again, alive.

?Is it bad or a sin to be a patriotic citizen of my beloved country? Is it bad or a sin to tell the truth and nothing but the truth?

?You may ask me, why I'm angry to the Jesuits-Vatican (Roman Catholic hierarchy)? Well, what if I tell you that the Jesuits-Vatican of the Roman Catholic Church are the real thieves that looted the wealth of our nation.

?It all started way back 1990 (16-years ago), I saw my countrymen become poorer and poorer, becoming innocent victims and betrayed. Only elite and rich families, influential politicians and show-biz personalities enjoy the good life. My country is dilapidated and now an impoverished nation. The poor are unable to get good medical care and treatment, for we do not have enough money. We the minority, middle-class and the poor also cannot get a high standard of education, simply because we don't have money.

?Simply, we are in debt to the World Bank & IMF loan system benefiting the rich. The interest alone is already killing millions of my countrymen, especially the poor. What World Bank and International Monetary Fund? These are owned by the Jesuits-Vatican !

?Since 1990, I promised myself that I will find out the real culprits. It did not take me long to discover it was the Jesuits. Now below is what I've discovered and found out with supporting documents. Now, brace yourself as to what I've discovered and investigated that no politicians will even dare speak about it.

?The Jesuits-Vatican initiated the Second 30 Years War (1914-1945). Yes, indeed our country was invaded and occupied by the Imperial Forces of Japan under Gen. Masaharu Homa. The Japanese Imperial forces had previously looted all the gold and treasures of the Far East, from China down to French Indo-China, from Singapore, Malaysia and finally bringing it to the Philippines when the Japanese started losing the war against the Allies.

?As the US forces with air and naval superiority cut-off the Philippines link-up to mainland Japan, Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita and his senior officers buried the looted gold in various parts of our country. After the war, some Jesuit-controlled OSS Agents and senior officials who are members of Knights of Malta began searching for the gold.

?They included Refv Fr. Joes Antonio Diaz, Opus Dei, alias COL. SEVERINO SANTA

ROMANA (OSS Agents called him Santy for short) together with Gen. Edward Lansdale and coordinated by ?Wild Bill Donovan,? all confirmed Knights of Malta of the Catholic Secret Brotherhood secret alliance along with the help of NAZI war criminals Franz Von Papen, Gen. Reinhard Ghelen, Heinrich Himmler.

?Rev. Father Diaz alias Col. Santy and Gen. Edward Lansdale without showing any mercy then killed the Hukbalahak rebels. Why? Because the territories held by the rebels are the exact locations where Yamashita's gold was buried. Not only that, Rev. Father Diaz, alias Col. Santy and his cohorts OSS Agents even tortured the personal driver of Gen. Yamashita to confess and reveal where the gold was actually buried. Major Ferdinand Marcos, who became senator and president of the Republic, also knew about it.

?That's why Rev. Father Diaz alias Col. Santy hired Marcos as his lawyer to bring out the recovered Yamashita's looted Asian gold. However, by 1949 our people had accumulated 600,000 metric tons of gold deposited inside the vault of the Central Bank. This 600,000 metric tons of gold was different from the Yamashita's looted gold. Hence, my countrymen are proud of it and legally speaking it's our property. For decency, my countrymen will not claim the Asia's looted gold by the Japanese Imperial Forces. What we are claiming is our country's own gold deposited inside the vaults of the Central Bank.

?In short, Yamashita's looted Asian gold and our very own gold deposited inside the vaults of the central bank was brought out of our country by Rev. Father Diaz and traitor Ferdinand Marcos. The gold then was mixed together and deposited in various Jesuit-controlled illegal bank accounts in Switzerland and other banks. The illegal Nugan-Hand Bank of Australia operated CIA formerly OSS controlled by the Jesuits-Vatican helped in transporting other gold to Australia and then diverted into other countries. The Jesuits know it and they are watching as Rev. Father Diaz is a member of Opus Dei, all bagmen of the Jesuit-Vatican. I also discovered that Michael Hand of the Nugan-Hand Bank is a CIA Agent!

?The most shocking revelation is this, when Marcos was still alive, he wrote a letter as his last will before he died that his looted wealth (our country's wealth) will be entrusted to the Vatican Trust. His true color was revealed. Also former Catholic priest, Marcelino Tagle of Bataan said that Marcos always worked for the Vatican. Now, I see the whole scenario.

?According to EJ & Doris J. Ekke documents revealing the hidden history of the gold the 400,000 metric tons of gold held in the vaults of the Central Bank would elevate the gold-based money supply in the Philippines to more than twice as much per person as the money supply in the U.S. and U.S. money is not backed by gold. If that much money, some 4 trillion dollars, were to be spent cleaning and fixing up the Philippines, think of what a paradise it would be.

?The Roman Catholic Church disguised as religion from God and preaching the gospel of Jesus Christ as well as the Catholic Church-Jesuits-Vatican are GREAT LIARS AND HYPROCRITES. They have betrayed my countrymen now living in despair and poverty because the Jesuits-Vatican-Roman Catholic Church illegally looted our country's gold. Anyone of my countrymen who will dispute me, I'll take on in a manly and civilized debate. Anyone who hates the truth is against our Lord Jesus Christ. Anyone of my countrymen that will dispute this hidden history of our country will become ignorant to reality. There's no mystery in an open mind. Remember God is truth and we shall worship God in the spirit and truth. Jesus Christ said, and the truth shall set us free.

?Therefore, I accuse the Jesuit-Vatican of the Roman Catholic Church as the mastermind, culprits and guilty entities for the looting of our country's wealth. And I as a legal citizen of my country has the right to demand in behalf of my countrymen under the protection of our God given Constitution and Bill Of Rights demanding the Roman Catholic Church to return the gold they have illegally looted.

?I admit I'm angry to the Catholic Church as I saw my poor countrymen living in despair. Why did the Catholic Church betray my countrymen and our country? They (Catholic Church) came into our country and my countrymen embraced them honestly and with respect.

?I have in my possession 15 sheets of original photocopied documents linking Rev. Fr. Jose Antonio Diaz (Opus Dei) alias Col. Santa Romana (OSS Agent), Gen. Edward Lansdale, Ferdinand E. Marcos, the late Archbishop Of Manila Jaime Cardinal Sin and Baron Arndt Krupp for the looting of various gold and of course our country's very own gold. And you'll be shocked that the shadows and footprints of the Jesuits-Vatican will be realized once and for all.?

With 'Another Hiter' At The Helm This Independence Day, Look Back At The First One For Clues As To Who Really Controls Bush

Although controversial publisher Jack Chick doesn't give out interviews anymore, his research and writing shouldn't be forgotten.

1 Jul 2006

By Greg Szymanski

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/1-July-2006.html>

Book publisher Jack Chick doesn't give out many interviews anymore. In fact, trying to talk with him is quite difficult.

Chick isn't hiding, but probably just tired of talking about the same old thing or tired of fighting the same old game of words against the powerful Vatican. He is also no spring chicken, getting on in years as they say.

And it's quite understandable that he shuns the limelight after looking at the number of controversial issues he has tackled over the years, including the exposure of the corrupt Jesuit Order and the Vatican.

However, even though Chick is staying out of sight, he shouldn't be forgotten and neither should some of his top stories be forgotten, stories like Hitler's loyalty to the Vatican and Jesuit Fr. Alberto Rivero's first hand recollections of the evilness inside the Society of Jesus.

With Independence Day right around the corner and seeing America has its own Hitler running the show, let's take a few moments to look back in a capsule summary what Chick uncovered about Hitler ties to the Vatican.

Chick wrote not long ago:

"You may say, 'Well, that was a long time ago. It's not like that anymore.' But has the Vatican really changed? Let's look at her actions during World War II. Many of you have not read our Crusaders book, THE GODFATHERS, or the book, THE SECRET HISTORY OF THE JESUITS, and, therefore, you don't really know what happened behind the scenes during World War II. So let me give you a brief picture of the conditions.

"The Jesuits had secretly prepared World War II, and Hitler's war machine was built and financed by the Vatican to conquer the world for Roman Catholicism, Hitler, Mussolini, and Franco were to be the defenders of the faith. They were set up to win and conquer the world, and set up a millennium for the pope. Behind the scenes, the Jesuits controlled the Gestapo.

"Read what the press of the Spanish dictator, Franco, published on the 3rd of May, 1945, the day of Hitler's death. It said, "Adolf Hitler, son of the Catholic Church, died while defending Christianity." It goes on to say, "Over his mortal remains stands his victorious moral figure. With the palm of the martyr, God gives Hitler the laurels of Victory."

"Hitler himself stated, "I learned much from the Order of the Jesuits. Until now, there has never been anything more grandiose, on the earth, than the hierarchical organization of the Catholic church. I transferred much of this organization into my own party."

"Walter Schellenberg, former chief of Nazi counter-espionage made this statement: "The S.S. organization had been constituted by Himmler according to the principles of the Jesuit Order. Their regulations and the Spiritual Exercises prescribed by Ignatius of Loyola were the model Himmler tried to copy exactly. Himmler's title as supreme chief of the S.S. was to be the equivalent of the Jesuits' 'General' and the whole structure was a close imitation of the Catholic Church's hierarchical order."

"Franz von Papen, another powerful Nazi, who was instrumental in setting up the concordat between Germany and the Vatican had this to say: "The Third Reich is the first world power which not only acknowledges but also puts into practice the high principles of the papacy." If you are not aware of what a concordat is, a concordat is an agreement between the Vatican and a government. As far as the Vatican is concerned, that government that signed the concordat has now become a part of the government of God, and the Vatican fully intends to stabilize that government, give it divine protection, and give it international protection.

"Like Italy, Germany signed a concordat with the Vatican in Rome, 1933. Signing the concordat is Cardinal Pacelli (later to become Pope Pius XII). By 1933 he was the Vatican Secretary of State. Second from left is Franz von Papen, a sinister Nazi and devout Roman Catholic who was Hitler's ace diplomat and the Vatican's agent in helping to bring Hitler to power. Standing at the far right can be seen the little-known Vatican prelate, Montini, later to become Pope Paul VI.

"ADOLPH HITLER SAID: 'I am personally convinced of the great power and deep significance of Christianity, and I won't allow any other religion to be promoted. That is why I have turned away from Ludendorff and that is why I reject that book by Rosenberg. It was written by a Protestant. It is not a Party book. It was not written by him as a Party man. The Protestants can be left to argue with him ... As a Catholic I never feel comfortable in the Evangelical Church or its structures. That is why I will have great difficulty if I try to regulate affairs of the Protestant churches. The evangelical people or the Protestants will in any case reject me. But you can be sure: I will protect the rights and freedoms of the churches and not let them be touched, so that you need have no fears about the future of the Church.'

"Hitler was also ready to discuss with the Bishop his views on the Jewish question: 'As for the Jews, I am just carrying on with the same policy which the Catholic church has adopted for fifteen hundred years, when it has regarded the Jews as dangerous and pushed them into ghettos etc., because it knew what the Jews were like. I don't put race above religion, but I do see the danger in the representatives of this race for Church and State, and perhaps I am doing Christianity a great service.'

"The three big defenders of the Roman Catholic faith were Hitler, Mussolini, and Franco. All three had concordats with the Vatican. When the Nazi war machine swept through the Balkans on the way to attack Russia, Yugoslavia had become a Nazi occupied country.

"The pope despised the Russian Orthodox members. They were called Serbians and they were marked for death in Yugoslavia. They were given one choice: to convert to Catholicism, or die.

"Why were they killed? Why did the pope have such a vendetta against the Russian Orthodox? As we said in our Crusaders book, THE GODFATHERS, the communist party was created by the Vatican to destroy one of her greatest enemies, the Russian Orthodox church. The communists had double-crossed the pope and refused to destroy the Russian Orthodox church members and at last, Pope Pius XII had created a machine to do what the communists had failed to do - butcher every Orthodox church member and their clergy. Let's see how this was accomplished.

"The Catholic priests changed their robes for the uniforms of the dreaded Ustachi killer squads, and led the most barbaric, brutal raids upon those people and practiced satanic torture never before known in this century. We are not talking 800 years ago. We are talking 1940. I was in high school then."

AVBibleBeliever - July 1, 2006 01:39 PM (GMT)

I saw video of Jesuit Temporal Coadjutoress GMA signing a piece of legislation abolishing the death penalty in the Philippines. I wasn't shocked, but it was a sobering moment because it is an example of what will happen in the U.S. if Satan's Jesuit Order and all their secret societies are not expelled in less than 50 years.

Here are some photos from GMA's official webpage that you may want to check out. They were posted this week.

My comments are in brackets [] and in italics. I underlined the key points.

GMA met with Knight of Malta King Juan Carlos I during a recent trip to Spain this week. GMA also went to Italy and the Jesuits' Vatican and had a private audience with Papal Antichrist Benedict XVI.

TruthSeeker24 - June 29, 2006 06:26 PM (GMT)

<http://com4.runboard.com/bthebereanchroniclescom.f3.t14>

is a link where I answer people who want to cover up Barbara Aho's errors. I also mention some of Eric Jon Phelps' comments on this forum. One of my words refuting these people include:

Barbara Aho does a lot of research. Atheists and Muslims do a lot of research in claiming that Christianity is fraudulent, which is false. That doesn't mean we agree with Islam and atheism. As for Aho, she isn't perfect and she is intelligent. I've stated that before. What gets me is the double standard. I've listed real facts of Aho's errors, yet it seems like me mentioning them is some crime. Yet, many here cite regularly of Cutting Edge Ministries Mistakes.

As for Zionism, tons of Christians talk about it. I talk. I've debated anti-Semites before so I'm not afraid of no human here on this Earth on this issue or any issue. I don't consider you anti-Semitic, but many anti-Semites disagree with Zionism not just sincere people. Zionism isn't monolithic. Many Messianic Jewish people are Zionists, yet don't want oppression against Arabic people. Zionism to me are in 2 groups. One are good, patriotic God fearing Jewish people. Others are what Eric Jon Phelps called Masonic Jewish Labor Zionists who are involved in corruption (as mentioned by Rabbi Antleman, Barry Chamish, and others).

The Synagogue of Satan? The Bible says that this synagogue aren't Jewish at all.

Therefore, real Jewish people have nothing to do with the synagogue of Satan at all. The prime mover in world affairs are the Black Nobility, Vatican/Jesuits (since they head the Ecumencial Movement which you guys can't refute), and the elite in the UK. They rule the world. Regardless of what you say, the Jesuits have international geo-political influence. The FED is headed by many CFR members and was created by CFR members, high level Freemasons, and others. Eric wrote that one big figure of the FED in NYC is "...McDonough. He's an Irish Roman Catholic. He's a member of the Council on Foreign Relations. He's a friend, a bosom-buddy of O'Hare, who is the President and Jesuit of the 4th Vow of Fordham University...."

Also:

*The Vatican/Jesuit network with its Knights of Malta, etc. head the Ecumencial Movement and invented it through Vatican II. Knight of Malta Cain and Dame of Malta Phyllis Schaffly are the many Papal ecumencials promoting this stuff.

*Many Knights of Malta are heads of numerous international corporations. Gustavo Cisneros is a billionaire, media magnate, and a member of the Pilgrim Society. Cisneros is the CEO of the Cisneros Group of Companies [very prominent in Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands], which has large stakes in companies like Univision, AOL Latin America, DirecTV Latin America, and a score of other media companies.

Geoffrey T. Boisi is a Knight of Malta, chairman and senior partner of Roundtable Investment Partners LLC, ex-co-Chair of MPMorgan Chase, and The Trustee, Carnegie Corporation of New York. The owner of Hardees is the Knight of Malta Carl Nicholas Karcher. Knight of Malta Joseph A. Unanue is the head of Goya Foods. Domino's Pizza is headed by Knight of Malta Thomas S. Monaghan. Today, Knight of Malta Juan Carlos of Spain is a big player in the Middle East negotiations and he actively promotes an unified Europe [aka the European Union or the Revived Roman Empire].

*Not to mention that many rites of the Scottish Rite of Freemasonry was created in a Jesuit college. That's admitted by many works and a Masonic website.

*The Knights of Malta have been at the head of many international intelligence organizations for decades like the CIA, MI6, KGB, etc. For example, many Knights of Malta are in the intelligence group called Le Cerle. Decades ago, many heads of the CIA like Casey William "Wild Bill" Donovan, etc. are Knights of Malta.

*Eric's book has hundreds of sources proving his view that the Vatican has global power in the geopolitical world. That's a historical fact that many people don't get. It's a historical fact that the Vatican/Jesuit/Knight of Malta network has its links to the Inquisition, Bavarian Illuminati creation, Abe's assassination, Communism, WWI, WWII, Vatican Ratline, CIA/Mossad creations, other assassinations, and other historical events.

Freemasonry is a Gentile organization and you offer nothing to refute me on this. Even 33rd Degree Freemasons admit that the Gentile Mystery Religion influenced Modern Freemasonry, so Masonry is a Gentile institution. The Kabbala was created in the Middle Ages by apostate Jewish people, who gotten their apostacy from Gentile Egypt and Babylon. Freemasonry came from the Gentile stonemason. Gentile Druid, Egyptian, Babylonian, Greece, and other influenced Freemasonry as well not just the Kabbala as mentioned by Albert Pike.

*You guys are getting old. They don't call me truthseeker for nothing.

Confession No.10: Billy Graham firmly Under Vatican And Jesuit Control? Vatican and Jesuit Vendetta for England Never-Ending; Should Serve as Example Of What Is Really Happening in America

Researchers come forward with information that Dr. Graham was a 33rd Degree Freemason. Recent Guardian article says EU is a Catholic plot to impose Vatican sovereignty over Britain.

25 Jun 2006

By Greg Szymanski

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/25-June-2006.html>

This week in Confession No. 10 by the shores of Brushy Creek we look at post 1910 Jesuit influence on England and other parts of Europe, as well as Billy Graham's alleged connections to Freemasonry and Jesuit influence.

Throughout the course of history, it's no coincidence the Vatican and its Jesuit henchmen have been at the center of controversy, including civil unrest, war and genocide.

But only recently have Americans been waking up to their methods of deception, treachery and manipulation, as their goal of global dominance especially since 9/11, has finally reared its ugly head onto American soil.

According to many researchers providing information for these Confessions, don't be fooled by the Jesuit's attempt to make Zionism a scapegoat. If anything and if you remain skeptical, you owe it to yourself and the future of your family to at least consider all possibilities, including the Vatican and Jesuits.

But to really understand their foothold into all aspects of American society and politics with the eventual goal being the destruction of a free America, it is necessary to look at their past dirty dealings with an open mind.

As always it is truth-loving, freedom-minded people who provide solid evidence of the wicked intentions of the Vatican and Jesuits and this week is no different as Alan O'Reilly has provided the following information.

O'Reilly begins by telling us to first look for a post 1910 example of papal interference in England, which led up to WWII and to consider the following passages from Albert Close's Book, Jesuit Plots from Elizabethan to Modern (1930s) Times.

According to O'Reilly's research, Close revealed that when Oxford Don, Mr. R.H. Crossman, sought to investigate Hitler's blood purges of the 1930s, he was told repeatedly, "The pope is behind all the trouble".

And according to researchers carrying out the Pope's "dirty work" are the Jesuits, who are the henchmen hiding behind the cloth, orchestrating chaos and genocide.

"When Mr. Crossman attempted to broadcast his findings from Berlin in July 1934, via the BBC, the broadcast was suddenly cut off when he mentioned the Pope," said O'Reilly. "No explanation was ever given and it is virtually certain that the then BBC Chairman, Lord Reith, was part of the cover-up.

O'Reilly added that the cover-up helped bring about WWII. Moreover, he added, Papal antagonism against Britain was voiced vehemently in the 19th and 20th centuries from authoritative sources and nothing has changed, as Mr. Hilton points out in his book.

"Let us never forget that whatever [Queen Elizabeth's] boasted authority may be it is as nothing and less than nothing compared to that of the Vicar of Christ.

"The law of God that is the Pope's command will be or rather has been and is being carried into effect: the Parliamentary lie will be spit upon and trampled underfoot."

Many other researchers and book writers have pin pointed the Vatican and Jesuits as being the culprits behind the New World Order, including Lindsay Jenkins in his book The Last Days of Britain and Ashley Mote in his book, Vigilance, a Defence of British Liberty.

"Rome has opposed the UK at many critical moments in its history, ever since the signing of the Magna Carta on 15th June 1215," wrote Mote. "Pope Innocent III wrote bluntly to the English abbots and bishops who had signed the document, saying they had done something "abominable" and "illicit". The Pope also assumed powers to annul

Magna Carta.

"Three centuries later, Henry VIII finally threw the Roman Catholic Church out. His act of rebellion is still talked about in Rome to this day. The British have not, and never will be, forgiven for such heresy."

Mote also said the Popes' efforts to conquer England via the Armada of 1588, the Stewart rising of 1745, Napoleon, Kaiser Wilhelm, Hitler, the IRA and the EU.

Mote adds:

"For the Roman Catholic Church, the UK is unfinished business stretching back 500 years."

And to emphasize how the Vatican is still trying to settle the score with England, O'Reilly uncovered an article in The Guardian, dated March 4, 2005, illustrating this point:

A Tory candidate who believes the EU is a Catholic plot to impose Vatican sovereignty over Britain was today accused by the Catholic church of preaching a conspiracy theory traditionally associated with the far right.

In an article in the Spectator magazine, Adrian Hilton, who is standing in Slough, argued that "a Catholic EU will inevitably result in the subjugation of Britain's Protestant ethos to Roman Catholic social, political and religious teaching.

His outspoken views prompted the spokesman for Cardinal Cormac Murphy-O'Connor, the leader of the Catholic church in England and Wales, to accuse him of deploying "the sort of argument that tends to be made by extreme Protestants or radical nationalists.

These views are bizarrely a-historical and fundamentally erroneous, and an unfair depiction of the Catholic view of Europe," the spokesman said.

Defending his views, Mr Hilton insisted that "a Protestant view of history is every bit as valid as the Cardinal Archbishop's", and said making "an assertion of the law cannot be bigotry or conspiracy theory.

It is unfortunate that, in this day and age, if one expresses an Islamic perspective it has to be accepted, if one expresses a Roman Catholic perspective it has to be accepted - and yet an assertion of the constitutional position of her majesty the Queen and parliament with regards to Protestantism is greeted with derision.

Also reported in The London Times on March 30, 2005:

Sheila Gunn, a former Times journalist who served as a press secretary to John Major, the former Prime Minister, has been imposed as the new Tory candidate for the seat [of Slough]. Mr Hilton was ousted this month after party officials were alerted to an article that he wrote in 2003, which described the European Union as a Roman Catholic conspiracy and suggested that Mr Major's signing of the Maastricht Treaty had been an act of treason

Regarding the above articles and comments, O'Reilly emphasized "that's what happens to EU dissenters in public life, who speak the truth. The Vatican is poised for the kill. It is hoped that a government can be elected within the next decade to stave off the Pope's 'coup de grace' but time is running critically short."

Adding to the Vatican and Jesuit control over England, author of the book Vatican Assassins, provided the following:

"The Archbishop of Westminster is the Pope's man of all political and financial power in Britain. He is like the Archbishop of New York here in the US. All intelligence agencies in England are ultimately controlled by the London Archbishop advised by the Jesuit Provincial at Stonyhurst.

"The Archbishop rules the English Branch of SMOM protected by the monarch and is the secret master of the Grand Lodge even as the Archbishop of New York is the ultimate master of the Supreme Council of the 33rd Degree in Washington. Therefore with this model followed in virtually every country with an open presence of the Roman Hierarchy

In closing, O'Reilly provided the following comments about Billy Graham's loyalty to the Vatican and the Jesuit Order, his goal to lure Protestants to the Pope.

"The Bible Believer's Bulletin reported in January 1991, in an article entitled Indecision in the Hour of Decision that a man named Harmon Taylor of Hart Ministries wrote to Dr. Graham three times early in 1990, asking him if he was or had ever been a Mason, or a 33rd Degree Mason.

"Taylor received no reply to his letters and Dr. Ruckman commented that this was 'a little indecisive' on Dr Graham's part, insofar as surely any man in American could have answered the questions immediately in plain language. Billy's refusal to answer certainly raises more questions.

"In Smokescreens, by Jack Chick, he reveals, p 53, how the Catholic publisher Randolph Hearst used his newspapers to push Graham as a leading evangelist but one who would never attack Rome. Dr. Rivera, ibid, described to Bro. Chick how from 1950 onwards, the Jesuits filled the stadiums in Central and South America with Catholics to boost the Church's power, win back genuine converts who had left Catholicism, thus destroying bible-believing churches in the region and ensure Graham's continued cooperation." Rome spent millions of dollars promoting Graham, who would in turn promote the late John Paul II, as the world's greatest moral leader and declare, on Vatican advice, that Communist Russia exercised religious freedom, thereby betraying persecuted believers who were getting sentences of 5-10 years for passing out a single tract.

"The above appears to show the link between the masons and the SJ and underlines the importance of Jude 3:

Beloved, when I gave all diligence to write unto you of the common salvation, it was needful for me to write unto you, and exhort you that ye should earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints.

"Chick is right when he declared Billy Graham to be the pied piper of the whore of Revelation who lured Protestants back to the pope."

I read in Dr. Cathy Burns' book "Billy Graham and His Friends" about Graham being a 33rd-degree Mason. He also made a big thing about how he got married on Friday the 13th, one which had a full moon. His "crusades," I think, were timed according to satanic days and/or full moons if I remember right.

So there you have it.

Fritz devoted chapters to revealing what he stumbled upon regarding Graham. IE> Fritz did not set out to investigate Graham, he set out to investigate the Illuminati, along the way to which he found numerous witnesses and other forms of evidence depicting numerous high-level people as a Satanist and former Illuminatus, Graham among them.

Following is a table of index to chapter 5 on the book Fritz collaborated with Cisco Wheeler - Illuminati Formula Use For Creating An Undetectable Mind Controlled Slave. The second half of this chapter deals exclusively with Billy Graham.

I hear a lot of entertainers, especially/including country/western singers, are into that mind-control or drug-running stuff. You know Hollywood's got to be full of that nonsense. And I might have mentioned this before, but the Druids used to have magic wands made of holly wood.

Pretty messed-up stuff. Which is why I seldom if ever go to the movies (last time I went, I think, was in 2001 while pregnant with my son) and I try not to watch a lot of the idiot box.

I might add: I see Norman Vincent Peale mentioned in this article (I like the site btw... been there before). I remember reading some of his stuff my freshman year in high school...and my impression was, boy, is this guy full of himself or what! :lol:

Since Henry Luce is mentioned there: I had a great-great-grandmother whose maiden name was Mary Catherine Luce. Her first husband (my 2nd-great-grandfather) fought in the Union Army. I wonder if her father, William Luce, was related to Henry Luce...I can't seem to find any information on him, I just know that he and Mary's mother died when Mary was a little girl, and that she was raised by her maternal uncle.

As far as "Christian" leaders go: If they're really popular, they're probably up to something no good.

JagDRS - June 27, 2006 03:00 PM (GMT)

While searching my Springmeier documents for the Graham info to put into my last post, I came across a statement that I wanted to excerpt, but forgot, so here it is.

QUOTE

In Fritz's Be Wise As Serpents book (which exposed Billy Graham as a Luciferian in 1991), it is explained that high level Satanism is Gnosticism which requires that "the Force" of these great satanic magicians be balanced. In other words, in high level Satanism your good deeds must balance your evil deeds. People do not realize that unless someone does "good" deeds they cannot be a high level Satanist. That is why some of the greatest philanthropists are also our leading national Satanists.

People who blindly follow men of such "good deeds" often attempt to debunk negative claims against such idols by pointing to their "good works". The same basic sentiment was common back in the 50s when a few good congressional people (Reese Commission) attempted to investigate the corrupt and fraudulent nature of Tax Free Foundations, something that was becoming quite popular among numerous "in the know" people/minions connected to banker/politician/corporate type people, and which spawned our present culture of Philanthropy. To his great surprise and chagrin, Reese unexpectedly met a lot of resistance in trying to legitimately oversee a genuine investigation because of the tendency to run into the power of public perception - people both common as well as politically connected, arguing against such investigation under the guise of "investigate tax free shelters? Why?!, these people do so much GOOD for society" (sic). Something that turns this into an even more convoluted situation is the potential for people to start going around suspecting and accusing every person who does something good. This is where discernment can come into play and help one to separate the wheat from the chaff. Unfortunately, discernment is not something to be so easily attained as a commercially traded commodity, one must earn it.

Something else to remember about those in music and hollywood being "in to mind control". People said to be "in" to things generally implies a conscious decision/choice. It's likely that there are also significant elements of choicies unconsciously made (by somebody else for them) involved in such decadent lifestyles. This is starting to get at the very hideous nature at the root of the application of MC techniques - it creates it's own negative momentum. For a moment, completely put aside the topic of Mind Control, and recall the common observation (universal) of humanity in general that those people (children) who are raised in a turbulent family environment (divorce, abuse, etc) themselves will often grow up to be wife beaters, husband stabbers, and or adults who have a penchant for abusing little children in various ways. This aspect of humanity, best I know, applies universally to people of every walk of life around the world. Those witin the MC industry just happened to have adopted this natural human condition to their own evil purposes. True, many stars in music and hollywood are MC-handlers - people who ritually abuse other people, but these stars were likely to come into this disposition from having been an abused and tortured person during their younger life..... this really is a twisted, viscious circle/cycle. I'm not attempting to exhonerate all the sick stars society is plagued with, just trying to point out..... in a "love they enemy" kind of way, that most stars have another side to them that few of us will ever know, understand, and appreciate.

TruthSeeker24 - June 28, 2006 02:46 PM (GMT)

It's seems that what is part of popular culture today. My feeling is that a lot of these Musicians and entertainers have to know about this Jesuit/New world order stuff. For example, Eneinem talked about Bush's foreknowledge about 9/11. Many of them intentionally are distracting people, so people won't investigate the real truth with our own minds. These large corporations readily use those in turbulent environments like ghettos to promote their agenda more effective. I recall words from the David icke forum discussing this subject. As for Billy Graham, many sources prove that he is a 33rd Degree Freemason. He supported John Paul II and the new Pope. That's one of the smoking guns refuting the lie that somehow the Jesuits and the Freemasons are enemies. They have been in league with each other for centuries. Fritz Springmeier also wrote that Elvis was influenced by mind control. Remember that Elvis support new age doctrines, was into numerology, and Fritz wrote that he was went into Pasadena, CA to recieve more training into the occult. One of the biggest funders of Graham was also Randolph Hearst, who Daryl Ebehart and Texe Marrs wrote that he was a Knight of Malta.

THEOSOPHY OR JESUITISM?

Original Link

QUOTE

"Choose you this day whom ye will serve; whether the gods which your fathers served that were on the other side of the flood, or the gods of the Amorites."

--JOSHUA, XXIV., 15.

The thirteenth number of Le Lotus, the recognised organ of Theosophy, among many articles of undeniable interest, contains one by Madame Blavatsky in reply to the Abbé Roca. The eminent writer, who is certainly the most learned woman of our acquaintance,¹ discusses the following question: "Has Jesus ever existed?"² She destroys the Christian legend, in its details, at least, with irrecusable texts which are not usually consulted by religious historians.

This article is producing a profound sensation in the Catholic and Judeo-Catholic swamp: we are not surprised at this, for the author's arguments are such as it is difficult to break down, even were one accustomed to the Byzantine disputes of theology.--PARIS, Evening paper, of May 12, 1888.

THE series of articles, one of which is referred to in the above quotation from a well-known French evening paper, was originally called forth by an article in Le Lotus by the Abbé Roca, a translation of which was published in the January number of LUCIFER.

These articles, it would seem, have stirred up many slumbering animosities. They appear, in particular, to have touched the Jesuit party in France somewhat nearly. Several correspondents have written calling attention to the danger incurred by Theosophists in raising up against themselves such virulent and powerful foes. Some of our friends would have us keep silent on these topics. Such is not, however, the policy of LUCIFER, nor ever will be. Therefore, the present opportunity is taken to state, once for all, the views which Theosophists and Occultists entertain with regard to the Society of Jesus. At the same time, all those who are pursuing in life's great wilderness of vain evanescent pleasures and empty conventionalities an ideal worth living for, are offered the choice between the two now once more rising powers--the Alpha and the Omega at the two opposite ends of the realm of giddy, idle existence--THEOSOPHY and JESUITISM.

For, in the field of religious and intellectual pursuits, these two are the only luminaries--a good and an evil star, truly--glimmering once more from behind the mists of the Past, and ascending on the horizon of mental activities. They are the only two powers capable in the present day of extricating one thirsty for intellectual life from the clammy slush of the stagnant pool known as Modern Society, so crystallized in its cant, so dreary and monotonous in its squirrel-like motion around the wheel of fashion. Theosophy and Jesuitism are the two opposite poles, one far above, the other far below even that stagnant marsh. Both offer power--one to the spiritual, the other to the psychic and intellectual Ego in man. The former is "the wisdom that is from above . . . pure, peaceable, gentle . . . full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality and without hypocrisy," while the latter is "the wisdom that descendeth not from above, but is earthly, sensual, DEVILISH."³ One is the power of Light, the other that of Darkness. . . .

A question will surely be asked: "Why should anyone choose between the two? Cannot one remain in the world, a good Christian of whatever church, without gravitating to either of these poles?" Most undeniably, one can do so, for a few more years come. But the cycle is rapidly approaching the last limit of its turning point. One out of the three great churches of Christendom is split into atomic sects, whose number increases yearly; and a house divided against itself, as is the Protestant Church--MUST FALL. The third, the Roman Catholic, the only one that has hitherto succeeded in appearing to retain all its integrity, is rapidly decaying from within. It is honeycombed throughout, and is being devoured by the ravenous microbes begotten by Loyola.

It is no better now than a Dead Sea fruit, fair for some to look at, but full of the rottenness of decay and death within. Roman Catholicism is but a name. As a Church it is a phantom of the Pad and a mask. It is absolutely and indissolubly bound up with, and fettered by the Society of Ignatius Loyola; for, as rightly expressed by Lord Robert Montagu, "The Roman Catholic Church is (now) the largest Secret Society in the world, beside which Freemasonry is but a pigmy." Protestantism is slowly, insidiously, but as surely, infected with Latinism--the new ritualistic sects of the High Church, and such men among its clergy as Father Rivington, being undeniable evidence of it. In fifty years more at the present rate of success of Latinism among the "upper ten," the English aristocracy will have returned to the faith of King Charles II, and its servile copyist-mixed Society--will have followed suit. And then the Jesuits will begin to reign alone and supreme over the Christian portions of the globe, for they have crept even into the Greek Church.

It is vain to argue and claim a difference between Jesuitism and Roman Catholicism proper, for the latter is now sucked into and inseparably amalgamated with the former. We have public assurance for it in the pastoral of 1876 by the Bishop of Cambrai. "Clericalism, Ultramontanism and Jesuitism are one and the same thing--that is to say, Roman Catholicism--and the distinctions between them have been created by the enemies of religion," says the "Pastoral." "There was a time," adds Monseigneur the Cardinal, "when a certain theological opinion was commonly professed in France concerning the authority of the Pope. . . . It was restricted to our nation, and was of recent origin. The civil power during a century and a half imposed official instruction. Those who professed these opinions were called Gallicans, and those who protested were called Ultramontanes, because they had their doctrinal centre beyond the Alps, at Rome. Today the distinction between the two schools is no longer admissible. Theological Gallicanism can no longer exist, since this opinion has ceased to be tolerated by the Church. It has been solemnly condemned, past all return, by the Œcumenical Council of the Vatican. ONE CANNOT NOW BE A CATHOLIC WITHOUT BEING ULTRAMONTANE--AND JESUIT.

A plain statement; and as cool as it is plain.

The pastoral made a certain noise in France and in the Catholic world, but was soon forgotten. And as two centuries have rolled away since an exposé of the infamous principles of the Jesuits was made (of which we will speak presently), the "Black Militia" of Loyola has had ample time to lie so successfully in denying the just charges, that even now, when the present Pope has brilliantly sanctioned the utterance of the Bishop of Cambrai, the Roman Catholics will hardly confess to such a thing. Strange exhibition of infallibility in the Popes! The "infallible" Pope, Clement XIV (Ganganelli), suppressed the Jesuits on the 23rd of July, 1773, and yet they came to life again; the "infallible" Pope, Pius VII, re-established them on the 7th of August, 1814. The "infallible" Pope, Pius IX, travelled, during the whole of his long Pontificate, between the Scylla and Charybdis of the Jesuit question; his infallibility helping him very little. And now the "infallible" Leo XIII (fatal figures!) raises the Jesuits again to the highest pinnacle of their sinister and graceless glory.

The recent Brevet of the Pope (hardly two years old) dated July 13th (the same fatal figure), 1886, is an event, the importance of which can never be overvalued. It begins with the words Dolemus inter alia, and reinstalls the Jesuits in all the rights of the Order that had ever been cancelled. It was a manifesto and a loud defiant insult to all the Christian nations of the New and the Old worlds. From an article by Louis Lambert in the Gaulois (August 18th, 1886) we learn that "In 1750 there were 40,000 Jesuits all over the world. In 1800, officially they were reckoned at about 1,000 men, only. In 1886, they numbered between 7 and 8,000." This last modest number can well be doubted. For, verily now--"Where you meet a man believing in the salutary nature of falsehoods, or the divine authority of things doubtful, and fancying that to serve the good cause he must call the devil to his aid, there is a follower of Unsaint Ignatius," says Carlyle, and adds of that black militia of Ignatius that: "They have given a new substantive to modern languages. The word Jesuitism now, in all countries, expresses an idea for which there was in nature no prototype before. Not till these last centuries had the human soul generated that abomination, or needed to name it. Truly they have achieved great things in the world, and a general result that we may call stupendous."

And now since their reinstatement in Germany and elsewhere, they will achieve still grander and more stupendous results. For the future can be best read by the past. Unfortunately in this year of the Pope's jubilee the civilized portions of humanity--even the Protestant ones--seem to have entirely forgotten that past. Let then those who profess to despise Theosophy, the fair child of early Aryan thought and Alexandrian Neo-Platonism, bow before the monstrous Fiend of the Age, but let them not forget at the same time its history.

It is curious to observe, how persistently the Order has assailed everything like Occultism from the earliest times, and Theosophy since the foundation of its last Society, which is ours. The Moors and the Jews of Spain felt the weight of the oppressive hand of Obscurantism no less than did the Kabalists and Alchemists of the Middle Ages. One would think Esoteric philosophy and especially the Occult Arts, or Magic, were an abomination to these good holy fathers? And so indeed they would have the world believe. But when one studies history and the works of their own authors published with the imprimatur of the Order, what does one find? That the Jesuits have practised not only Occultism, but BLACK MAGIC in its worst form, 4 more than any other body of men; and that to it they owe in large measure their power and influence!

To refresh the memory of our readers and all those whom it may concern, a short summary of the doings and actings of our good friends, may be once more attempted. For those who are inclined to laugh, and deny the subterranean and truly infernal means used by "Ignatius' black militia," we may state facts.

In "Isis Unveiled" it was said of this holy Fraternity that--

QUOTE

"though established only in 1535 to 1540--in 1555 there was already a general outcry raised against them." And now once more--

"That crafty, learned, conscienceless, terrible soul of Jesuitism, within the body of Romanism, is slowly but surely possessing itself of the whole prestige and spiritual power that clings to it. . . . Throughout antiquity, where, in what land, can we find anything like this Order or anything even approaching it? . . . The cry of an outraged public morality was raised against it from its very birth. Barely fifteen years had elapsed after the bull approving its constitution was promulgated, when its members began to be driven away from one place to the other. Portugal and the Low Countries got rid of them, in 1578; France in 1594; Venice in 1606; Naples in 1622. From St. Petersburg they were expelled in 1815, and from all Russia in 1820."

The writer begs to remark to the readers, that this, which was written in 1875, applies admirably and with still more force 1888. Also that the statements that follow in quotation marks may be all verified. And thirdly, that the principles (principii) the Jesuits that are now brought forward, are extracted from authenticated MSS. or folios printed by Various members them selves of this very distinguished body. Therefore, they Can checked and verified in the "British Museum" and Bodleian Library with still more ease than in our works.

Many are copied from the large Quarto⁵ published by the authority of, and verified and collated by, the Commissioners of the French Parliament. The statements therein were collected and presented to the King, in order that, as the "Arrêt du Parlement du 5 Mars, 1762," expresses it, "the elder son of the Church might he made aware of the perversity of this doctrine. . . . A doctrine authorizing Theft, Lying, Perjury, Impurity, every Passion and Crime; teaching Homicide, Parricide, and Regicide, overthrowing religion in order to substitute for it superstition, by favoring Sorcery, Blasphemy, Irreligion, and Idolatry . . . etc." Let us then examine the ideas on magic of the Jesuits, that magic which they are pleased to call devilish and Satanic when studied by the Theosophists. Writing on this subject in his secret instructions, Anthony Escobar⁶ says:

"IT IS LAWFUL . . . TO MAKE USE OF THE SCIENCE ACQUIRED THROUGH THE ASSISTANCE OF THE DEVIL, PROVIDED THE PRESERVATION AND USE OF THAT KNOWLEDGE DO NOT DEPEND UPON THE DEVIL, FOR THE KNOWLEDGE IS GOOD IN ITSELF, AND THE SIN BY WHICH IT WAS ACQUIRED HAS GONE BY."⁷

True: why should not a Jesuit cheat the Devil as well as cheats every layman?

QUOTE

"Astrologers and soothsayers are either bound, or are not bound, to restore the reward of their divination, if the event does not come to pass. I own," remarks the good Father Escobar, "that the former opinion does not at all please me, because, when the astrologer or diviner has exerted all the diligence in the diabolical art which is essential to his purpose, he has fulfilled his duty, whatever may be the result. As the physician . . . is not bound to restore his fee . . . if his patient should die; so neither is the astrologer bound to restore his charge . . . except where he has used no effort, or was ignorant of his diabolic art; because, when he has used his endeavors he has not deceived."⁸

Busenbaum and Lacroix, in "Theologia Moralis,"⁹ say,

QUOTE

"PALMISTRY MAY BE CONSIDERED LAWFUL, IF FROM THE LINES AND DIVISIONS OF THE HANDS IT CAN ASCERTAIN THE DISPOSITION OF THE BODY, AND CONJECTURE, WITH PROBABILITY, THE PROPENSITIES AND AFFECTIONS OF THE SOUL."¹⁰

This noble fraternity, which many preachers have of late so vehemently denied to have ever been a secret one, has been sufficiently proved to be such. Its constitutions were translated into Latin by the Jesuit Polancus, and printed in the college of the Society at Rome, in 1558. "They were jealously kept secret, the greater part of the Jesuits themselves knowing only extracts from them.¹¹ They were never produced to light until 1761, when they were published by order of the French Parliament in 1761, 1762, in the famous process of Father Lavalette." The Jesuits reckon it among the greatest achievements of their Order that Loyola supported, by a special memorial to the Pope, a petition for the reorganization of that abominable and abhorred instrument of wholesale butchery--the infamous tribunal of the Inquisition.

This Order of Jesuits is now all-powerful in Rome. They have been reinstated in the Congregation of Extraordinary Ecclesiastical Affairs, in the Department of the Secretary of the State, and in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. The Pontifical Government was for years previous to Victor Emanuel's occupation of Rome entirely in their hands. . . . --Lsis, vol. II, p. 355, et seq. 1876.

What was the origin of that order? It may be stated in a few words. In the year 1534, on August 16th, an ex-officer and "Knight of the Virgin," from the Biscayan Provinces, and the proprietor of the magnificent castle of Casa Solar--Ignatius Loyola,¹² became the hero of the following incident. In the subterranean chapel of the Church of Montmartre, surrounded by a few priests and students of theology, he received their pledges to devote their whole lives to the spreading of Roman Catholicism by every and all means, whether good or foul; and he was thus enabled to establish a new Order. Loyola proposed to his six chief companions that their Order should be a militant one, in order to fight for the interests of the Holy seat of Roman Catholicism. Two means were adopted to make the object answer; the education of youth, and proselytism (apostolat). This was during the reign of Pope Paul III, who gave his full sympathy to the new scheme. Hence in 1540 was published the famous papal bull--Regimini militantis Ecclesiae (the regiment of the warring, or militant Church)--after which the Order began increasing rapidly in numbers and power.

At the death of Loyola, the society counted more than one thousand Jesuits, though admission into the ranks was, as alleged, surrounded with extraordinary difficulties. It was another celebrated and unprecedented bull, issued by Pope Julius the III in 1552, that brought the Order of Jesus to such eminence and helped it towards such rapid increase; for it placed the society outside and beyond the jurisdiction of local ecclesiastical authority, granted the Order its own laws, and permitted it to recognize but one supreme authority--that of its General, whose residence was then at Rome. The results of such an arrangement proved fatal to the Secular Church. High prelates and Cardinals had very often to tremble before a simple subordinate of the Society of Jesus. Its generals always got the upper hand in Rome, and enjoyed the unlimited confidence of the Popes, who thus frequently became tools in the hands of the Order. Naturally enough, in those days when political power was one of the rights of the "Vice-gerents of God"--the strength of the crafty society became simply tremendous. In the name of the Popes, the Jesuits thus granted to themselves unheard-of-privileges, which they enjoyed unstintedly up to the year 1772. In that year, Pope Clement XIV published a new bull, Dominus ac Redemptor (the Lord and Redeemer), abolishing the famous Order. But the Popes proved helpless before this new Frankenstein, the fiend that one of the "Vicars of God" had evoked. The society continued its existence secretly, notwithstanding the persecutions of both Popes and the lay authorities of every country. In 1801, under the new alias of the "Congregation of the Sacré Coeur de Jésus," it had already penetrated into and wastolerated in Russia and Sicily.

In 1814, as already said, a new bull of Pius VII resurrected the Order of Jesus, though its late privileges, even those among the lay clergy, were withheld from it. The lay authorities, in France as elsewhere, have found themselves compelled ever since to tolerate and to count with Jesuits. All that they could do was to deny them any special privileges and subject the members of that society to the laws of the country, equally with other ecclesiastics. But, gradually and imperceptibly the Jesuits succeeded in obtaining special favours even from the lay authorities. Napoleon III granted them permission to open seven colleges in Paris only, for the education of the young, the only condition exacted being, that those colleges should be under the authority and supervision of local bishops. But the establishments had hardly been opened when the Jesuits broke that rule. The episode with the Archbishop Darboy is well known. Desiring to visit the Jesuit college in the Rue de la Poste (Paris), he was refused admittance, and the gates were closed against him by order of the Superior. The Bishop lodged a complaint at the Vatican. But the answer was delayed for such a length of time, that the Jesuits remained virtually masters of the situation and outside of every jurisdiction but their own.

And now read what Lord R. Montagu says of their deeds in Protestant England, and judge:

QUOTE

The Jesuit Society--with its Nihilist adherents in Russia, its Socialist allies in Germany, its Fenians and Nationalists in Ireland, its accomplices and slaves in its power, think of that Society which has not scrupled to stir up the most bloody wars between nations, in order to advance its purposes; and yet can stoop to hunting down a single man because he knows their secret and will not be its slave . . . think of a Society which can devise such a diabolical scheme and then boast of it; and say whether a desperate energy is not required in us? . . . If you have been behind the scenes . . . then you would still have before you the labour of unravelling all that is being done by our Government and of tearing off the tissue of lies by which their acts are concealed. Repeated attempts will have taught you that there is not a public man on whom you can lean. Because as England is 'between the upper and nether millstone,' none but adherents or slaves are now advanced; and it stands to reason that the Jesuits, who have got that far, have prepared new millstones for the time when the present ones shall have passed away; and then again, younger millstones to come on after, and wield the power of the nation.--("Recent Events and a Clue to their Solution," Page 76.)

In France the affairs of the sons of Loyola flourished to the day when the ministry of Jules Ferry compelled them to retire from the field of battle. Many are those who still remember the useless strictness of the police measures, and the clever enacting of dramatic scenes by the Jesuits themselves. This only added to their popularity with certain classes. They obtained thereby an aureole of martyrdom, and the sympathy of every pious and foolish woman in the land was secured to them.

And now that Pope Leo XIII has once more restored to the good fathers, the Jesuits, all the privileges and rights that had ever been granted to their predecessors, what can the public at large of Europe and America expect? Judging by the bull, the complete mastery, moral and physical, over every land where there are Roman Catholics, is secured to the Black Militia. For in this bull the Pope confesses that of all the religious congregations now existing, that of the Jesuits is the one dearest to his heart. He lacks words sufficiently expressive to show the ardent love he (Pope Leo) feels for them, etc., etc. Thus they have the certitude of the support of the Vatican in all and everything. And as it is they who guide him, we see his Holiness coquetting and flirting with every great European potentate--from Bismarck down to the crowned heads of Continent and Isle. In view of the ever increasing influence of Leo XIII, moral and political--such a certitude for the Jesuits is of no mean importance.

For minute particulars the reader is referred to such well-known authors as Lord Robert Montagu in England; and on the continent, Edgard Quinet: l'Ultra-montanisme; Michelet: Le prêtre, la Femme et la Famille; Paul Bert: Les Jésuites; Friedrich Nippold: Handbuch der Neuerster Kirchengeschichte and Welche Wege führen nach Rome? etc., etc.

Meanwhile, let us remember the words of warning we received from one of our late Theosophists, Dr. Kenneth Mackenzie, who, speaking of the Jesuits, says that:--

QUOTE

"Their spies are everywhere, of all apparent ranks of society, and they may appear learned and wise, or simple or foolish, as their instructions run. There are Jesuits of both sexes, and all ages, and it is a well-known fact that members of the Order, of high family and delicate nurture, are acting as menial servants in Protestant families, and doing other things of a similar nature in aid of the Society's purposes. We cannot be too much on our guard, for the whole Society, being founded on a law of unhesitating obedience, can bring its force to bear on any given point with unerring and fatal accuracy."¹³

The Jesuits maintain that "the Society of Jesus is not of human invention, but it proceeded from him whose name it bears. For Jesus himself described that rule of life which the Society follows, first by his example, and afterwards by his words."¹⁴

Let, then, all pious Christians listen and acquaint themselves with this alleged "rule of life" and precepts of their God, as exemplified by the Jesuits. Peter Alagona (St. Thomæ Aquinatis Summæ Theologiæ Compendium) says: "By the command of God it is lawful to kill an innocent person, to steal, or commit. . . (Ex mandato Dei licet occidere innocentem, furari, fornicari); because he is the Lord of life and death, and all things, and it is due to him thus to fulfill his command" (Ex primâ secundæ, Quæst., 94).

"A man of a religious order, who for a short time lays aside his habit for a sinful purpose, is free from heinous sin, and does not incur the penalty of excommunication." (Lib. iii, sec. 2, Probl. 44, n. 212).¹⁵ (Isis Unveiled, Vol. II.)

John Baptist Taberna (Synopsis Theologiæ Practicæ (propounds the following question: "Is a judge bound to restore the bribe which he has received from passing sentence?" Answer: "If he has received the bribe for passing an unjust sentence, it is probable that he may keep it . . . This opinion is maintained and defended by fifty-eight doctors" (Jesuits).¹⁶

We must abstain at present from proceeding further. So disgustingly licentious, hypocritical, and demoralizing are nearly all of these precepts, that it was found impossible to put many of them in print, except in the Latin language.¹⁷

But what are we to think of the future of Society if it is to be controlled in word and deed by this villainous Body! What are we to expect from a public, which, knowing the existence of the above mentioned charges, and that they are not exaggerated but pertain to historical fact, still tolerates, when it does not reverence, the Jesuits on meeting them, while it is ever ready to point the finger of contempt at Theosophists and Occultists? Theosophy is persecuted with unmerited slander and ridicule at the instigation of these same Jesuits, and many are those who hardly dare to confess their belief in the Philosophy of Arhatship. Yet no Theosophical Society has ever threatened the public with moral decay and the full and free exercise of the seven capital sins under the mask of holiness and the guidance of Jesus! Nor are their rules secret, but open to all, for they live in the broad daylight of truth and sincerity. And how about the Jesuits in this respect?

"Jesuits who belong to the highest category," says again Louis Lambert, "have full and absolute liberty of action--even to murder and arson. On the other hand, those Jesuits who are found guilty of the slightest attempt to endanger or compromise the Society of Jesus--are punished mercilessly. They are allowed to write the most heretical books, provided they do not expose the secrets of the Order."

And these "secrets" are undeniably of a most terrible and dangerous nature. Compare a few of these Christian precepts and rules for entering this Society of "divine origin," as claimed for it, with the laws that regulated admissions to the secret societies (temple mysteries) of the Pagans.

"A brother Jesuit has the right to kill anyone that may prove dangerous to Jesuitism."

QUOTE

"Christian and Catholic sons," says Stephen Fagundez, "may accuse their fathers of the crime of heresy if they wish to turn them from the faith, although they may know that their parents will be burned with fire, and put to death for it, as Tolet teaches . . . And not only may they refuse them food, . . . but they may also justly kill them."¹⁸

It is well known that Nero, the Emperor, had never dared seek initiation into the pagan Mysteries on account of the murder of Agrippina!

Under Section XIV of the Principles of the Jesuits, we find on Homicide the following Christian ethics inculcated by Father Henry Henriquez, in Summæ Theologiæ Moralis, Tomus I, Venetiis, 1600 (Ed. Coll. Sion): "If an adulterer, even though he should be an ecclesiastic . . . being attacked by the husband, kills his aggressor . . . he is not considered irregular: nonridetur irregularis (Lib. XIV, de Irregularitate, c. 10, § 3).

"If a father were obnoxious to the State (being in banishment), and to the society at large, and there were no other means of averting such an injury, then I should approve of this" (for a son to kill his father), says Sec. XV, on Parricide and Homicide.¹⁹

"It will be lawful for an ecclesiastic, or one of the religious order, to kill a calumniator who threatens to spread atrocious accusations against himself or his religion,"²⁰ is the rule set forth by the Jesuit Francis Amicus.

One of the most unconquerable obstacles to initiation, with the Egyptians as with the Greeks, was any degree of murder, or even of simple unchastity.

It is these "enemies of the Human Race," as they are called, that have once more obtained their old privileges of working in the dark, and inveigling and destroying every obstacle they find in their way--with absolute impunity. But--"forewarned, forearmed." Students of Occultism should know that, while the Jesuits have, by their devices, contrived to make the world in general, and Englishmen in particular, think there is no such thing as MAGIC, these astute and wily schemers themselves hold magnetic circles, and form magnetic chains by the concentration of their collective will when they have any special object to affect, or any particular and important person to influence. Again, they use their riches lavishly to help them in any project. Their wealth is enormous. When recently expelled from France, they brought so much money with them, some part of which they converted into English Funds, that immediately the latter were raised to par, which the Daily Telegraph pointed out at the time.

They have succeeded. The Church is henceforth an inert tool, and the Pope a poor weak instrument in the hands of this Order. But for how long? The day may come when their wealth will be violently taken from them, and they themselves mercilessly destroyed amidst the general execrations and applause of all nations and peoples. There is a Nemesis--KARMA, though often it allows Evil and Sin to go on successfully for ages. It is also a vain attempt on their part to threaten the Theosophists--their implacable enemies. For the latter are, perhaps, the only body in the whole world who need not fear them. They may try, and perhaps succeed, in crushing individual members. They would vainly try their hand, strong and powerful as it may be, in an attack on the Society. Theosophists are as well protected, and better, than themselves. To the man of modern science, to all those who know nothing, and who do not believe what they hear of WHITE and BLACK magic, the above will read like nonsense. Let it be, though Europe will very soon experience, and is already so experiencing, the heavy hand of the latter.

Theosophists are slandered and reviled by the Jesuits and their adherents everywhere. They are charged with idolatry and superstition; and yet we read in the same "Principles" of the Father Jesuits:--

QUOTE

"The more true opinion is, that all inanimate and irrational things may be legitimately worshipped," says Father Gabriel Vasquez, treating of Idolatry. "If the doctrine which we have established be rightly understood, not only may a painted image and every holy thing, set forth by public authority, be properly adored with God as the image of Himself, but also any other thing of this world, whether it be inanimate and irrational, or in its nature rational."²¹

This is Roman Catholicism, identical and henceforth one with Jesuitism--as shown by the pastoral of the Cardinal Bishop of Cambrai, and Pope Leo. A precept this, which, whether or not doing honour to the Christian Church, may at least be profitably quoted by any Hindu, Japanese, or any other "heathen" Theosophist, who has not yet given up the belief of his childhood.

But we must close. There is a prophecy in the heathen East about the Christian West, which, when rendered into comprehensible English, reads thus: "When the conquerors of all the ancient nations are in their turn conquered by an army of black dragons begotten by their sins and born of decay, then the hour of liberation for the former will strike." Easy to see who are the "black dragons." And these will in their turn see their power arrested and forcibly put to an end by the liberated legions. Then, perhaps, there will be a new invasion of an Atilla from the far East. One day the millions of China and Mongolia, heathen and Mussulman, furnished with every murderous weapon invented by civilization, and forced upon the Celestial of the East, by the infernal spirit of trade and love of lucre of the West, drilled, moreover, to perfection by Christian man-slayers--will pour into and invade decaying Europe like an irrepressible torrent. This will be the result of the work of the Jesuits, who will be its first victims, let us hope.

Resident Evil: The Jesuit Threat to Humanity

by Mike Bellinger

<http://www.voxfux.com/features/jesuits1.html>

There is an invisible power which secretly rules. When Martin Luther sparked the spiritual and social revolution in Europe we now know as the Reformation, he sent an arrow deep into the heart of the Vatican power base. As the Reformation spread and enlightenment became commonplace, the Dark Ages ended, didn't they? Apparently they did not. The Vatican, in its lust for power over all human life, soon spawned an advocate who was worthy of the devil himself. He went by the name of Ignatius Loyola. Loyola was a self-made man. He suffered many trials and defeats in his life, but persevered to become the head of what he named the "Society of Jesus" whose members later became better known under their assigned nickname: the Jesuits.

Ignatius Loyola formed the Jesuits as a military order with the stated purpose of overthrowing the reformation started by Martin Luther and restoring the temporal (political) and religious domination of the Vatican in all walks of life. In other words, he wanted to bring back the Dark Ages. The domination of the Vatican and the Pope as Monarch over all Kings, Queens, secular leaders and the rest of humanity was (and still is) the avowed mission of the Society of Jesus.

Loyola's mandate was that the end justified the means, and any means of restoring Vatican domination was acceptable. The mission of the Jesuits was the extermination of all heresy and all heretics. Protestants and all other non-Catholics must be converted or eliminated - either sooner or later. The saying among the Jesuits was that "It is no sin to kill a heretic". This murderous justification apparently became their creed.

They demanded absolute, unquestioning obedience from their members. To achieve the fourth and highest vow of initiation, and thereby be initiated into the actively evil pyramidal top level, a Jesuit must be a loyal member for 35 years. This requirement ensured the smallest possibility of dissent or original thinking ever surviving in anyone reaching leadership role, or from ever altering their stated purpose or mission as set out by founder Ignatius Loyola.

As a military order, they fought many open political wars with European Kings, Queens and statesmen. Their favored tool against such power was assassination. Because of their small numbers, they became experts on poisoning and all known methods of assassination. They were even connected to the Borgias, as in Lucretia Borgia.

In those days most everyone had a confessor. The Jesuits deliberately sought these roles and came to dominate the confessor positions in European society. In that role they were able to use the intelligence they gathered from their political, social and business victims to gain advantage in politics, business and education. The confessor spies then used that information and position coupled with blackmail, bribery and intimidation to seek advantage for the Vatican in every endeavor. The Jesuit intelligence apparatus is unequalled on this planet. They were in place before we ever even dreamed of such an enterprise. Their missionaries carried this intelligence gathering on throughout the world when Columbus opened up the frontier, and no one has ever outdone them. This is one of the secrets of the Jesuit-Vatican control of much of the world.

The other very successful and crucial tactic they employed was to infiltrate all of their enemies. Opposing religions, enemy political structures, business, media and education, both domestic and foreign, were infiltrated by Jesuit missionaries and the many unidentifiable junior Jesuits: those secular followers who were all too willing to accept Jesuit favors and position in exchange for selling their countries and their souls to the Vatican.

What happened in Europe was that after 250 hundred years of bloody Jesuit-instigated massacres of Protestants, the bloody Jesuit Inquisitions (some estimates put the total Vatican and Jesuit death toll at 60 million human beings, making Hitler seem like an amateur) and resulting wars with European monarchs and statesmen, the Jesuits had been taking quite a beating themselves. Many had been executed outright, and as a group they were thrown out of almost every country in Europe at one time or another. Even several popes turned against them due to public outcries from some still loyal Catholic countries. But they always somehow managed to regroup and return. When they did, they always extracted bloody revenge on whatever country or ruler had expelled them. They killed the popes who banished them and took over the Vatican completely in the 1700's. This would prevent any further rear-guard actions against them in the future as they had suffered previously. This consolidation of Jesuit control over the Vatican itself marked a new phase in the ongoing battle against Protestantism and all the other non-Catholic "heretics" of the world at large.

The lessons learned from open conflicts with the European powers led to the next and most sinister phase of the Jesuit takeover of world society. They realized that the most effective and efficient method of seizing control of a society was by their already useful tactic of infiltration, but this time in secret. The instruments of that infiltration would be the many secret societies which they targeted and assumed control of. The international nature of the Masonic brotherhood made them an ideal tool for using its membership to advance Jesuit goals. Publicly, the Vatican and the Masons were enemies; but F. Tupper Saussy found evidence linking them, and Jon Eric Phelps notes that Adam Wieshaupt, the founder of modern Bavarian Freemasonry was a Jesuit agent.

The Knights of Malta (formerly Knights Templar) are the premiere secret society of the Vatican these days, but they are subservient to the Jesuit General. Many of America and the Western World's power elite are Knights of Malta.

Once they spread their influence through the secret societies worldwide and coordinated with the English Roundtables to impose a worldwide network of control, the whole phenomena evolved into what we know of today as the New World Order (or what the elite-controlled press so disingenuously refers to as Globalism, as if that is something to be desired). The Globalists have many nicknames, but their agenda is one and the same. It is total control of this planet. They have many factions who compete with one another for position and advantage like a group of churlish relatives, but the ultimate goal is always unchanged. And the Jesuit overlords lurk in the background, pulling all the important strings.

If you know anything about the history of the elite Brotherhood, then you will know that the Rothschild's banking faction developed the art of financing wars from both sides of a conflict by utilizing the secrets of Central Banking with their ability to create enormous debt loads in the resident populations resulting from the issuance of government authorized fiat money. The incredible profits generated by war, reaped from both the winners and losers, led to a syndrome where induced wars became a way of life for the overlords because of the vast financial profits and additional benefits derived from it.

In addition to massive financial profits, war results in many other "benefits" for the overlords. Some of the most important to them are increased centralized control of the population by government, increased militarization, and the public fear of conflicts to come, leading them to let their "peace-loving" statesmen do all their thinking for them.

But the Jesuits have a much darker rationale behind all the world conflicts they have overseen in the last 600 years. They have used all of these various wars as cover-ups for their mass exterminations of Protestants and all other non-Catholic peoples worldwide. This is the real horror of the Jesuits and the Vatican. They are the most prolific mass murders in all of human history. No one and nothing else in known human history compares to their record of calculated genocide. Now you know why we must stop this evil. The Vatican, as it is now, is the incarnation of hell itself. There can be no doubt of that.

Here are some Jesuit/Vatican atrocities to mull over.

The Crusades: Who knows how many died? And then the children's crusades ... Good God.

The Inquisitions: In "Vatican Assassins," Eric Jon Phelps cites a source that estimates roughly 60 million people were murdered in the various stages of the Inquisitions. Think about that number for a minute. Most of these people were tortured to death.

Catherine De Medici instigated the butchering of 75,000 French Protestant Huguenots on August 24, 1572. In 1598 Henry IV issued the Edict of Nantes to protect them. By manipulating the rescinding of the protective Edict of Nantes in 1685 by the Jesuit confessor to King Louis XIV (using religious blackmail), another HALF MILLION FRENCH HUGUENOTS were butchered by the vile French Catholic Dragonades. In 1655 again, British Protestant hero Oliver Cromwell threatened to invade France and crush the French Crown for a new massacre being waged upon the French Vadois Protestants of valley of Piedmont by six Catholic Regiments by the Duke of Savoy.

The massacre of the poor Irish protestants on October 23rd 1641 - the "Feast" of Ignatius Loyola. How fitting a day for a massacre by these bloodthirsty swine. It is estimated that 150,000 Irish Protestants were butchered in the streets and in their homes. This slaughter took place over an eight-year period. Finally, once again it was Oliver Cromwell who finally invaded Ireland and attacked the Jesuit base at Drogheda and in a rage exterminated the entire Catholic village of 2000. Only this invasion finally ended the massacre of the Protestants. The present day Irish Protestants are still at war with the fanatical Irish Catholic Jesuits, and this is why they need the continued protection of the British Army.

Description:  CARDINAL O'CONNOR **

CRAIG-OXLEY - June 21, 2006 11:28 PM (GMT)

Cardinal urges abortion rethink

Wednesday, 21 June 2006, 14:42 GMT 15:42 UK

<http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/health/5099362.stm>

The head of the Catholic Church in England and Wales has reopened the abortion debate by urging the government to change the law.

Cardinal Cormac Murphy-O'Connor has called on ministers to lower the 24-week abortion limit at a private meeting at the Department of Health.

He wants a joint committee of both houses of parliament to review the 1967 Abortion Act.

The government said there were no plans to alter the regulations.

However, 31 MPs have signed a Commons motion calling for a review of the law.

The Catholic church is against abortion altogether, but would welcome a lowering of the 24-week limit as a start.

Cardinal Murphy-O'Connor argues that technological advances mean the abortion laws are outdated.

Modern medicine can now ensure the survival of some fetuses born before 24 weeks gestation.

Doctors opposed

Doctors debated the issue at their annual conference last year for the first time since 1989, but voted against calling for a reduction in the limit.

Health Secretary Patricia Hewitt has already said this year she is not in favour of lowering the limit despite the likes of France, Germany and Italy setting the limit at between 12 and 13 weeks.

And Downing Street said the Prime Minister believes the abortion laws are a matter for individual MPs rather than the government.

But the church leader believes recent opinion polls have shown public opinion is changing.

A survey by the Observer newspaper earlier this year showed that half of women wanted tougher laws.

Cardinal Murphy-O'Connor said there was "substantial and growing disquiet in Britain at the numbers of abortions".

He said: "Millions of people, especially women, would like to see a review of the current law.

"I hope that members of both houses of Parliament will respond by setting up a joint committee to carry out a thorough review of the 1967 Abortion Act."

The cardinal also pressed the health secretary to set up a national bioethics committee to robustly discuss issues surrounding end of life and embryo science.

He is concerned about the creeping moves towards genetic screening and so-called designer babies.

Embryo screening was in the headlines this week when doctors from Guy's Hospital in London said they had developed a new test to screen for a range of disorders.

At the moment the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority makes rulings on such issues, but is currently subject to a review of its remit.

No plans for a change

The Department of Health said the health secretary was happy to take the cardinal's views into consideration.

But a spokeswoman added: "It is accepted parliamentary practice that proposals for changes in the law on abortion have come from backbench members and that decisions are made on the basis of free votes.

"The government has no plans to change the law on abortion."

And Melissa Dear, of FPA, formerly the Family Planning Association, said she was against a reduction in the limit.

"Only a small minority of women have abortions after 20 weeks - about 1% - and for these there are good reasons.

"There may be genetic abnormalities or the women may be just before menopause or in their teens when periods are irregular and they may not have realised they were pregnant."

However, Liberal Democrat MP, Phil Willis, who chairs the Commons science and technology committee, said there was a "clear consensus" among the British public that the legislation should be reviewed.

He said: "What my committee is saying is that there ought to be a thorough review of the scientific evidence, that that should be placed at the disposal of Parliament and if, in fact, there is a need to reduce the time limit, then that should be the case."

The latest figures show more 185,000 abortions were carried out in 2004, but only 124 were carried out at 24 weeks.

smashstuff - June 23, 2006 02:38 PM (GMT)

Now this is exactly what Phelps was talking about with the Jesuits, the Catholic Church has an outward policy of Christian harmony, and another policy underneath that is the total opposite. I myself can't think of a more disgusting thing than abortion.

CRAIG-OXLEY - June 23, 2006 03:15 PM (GMT)

So do you think its fine to allow a severely handicapped person to suffer the already suffering life on Earth let along with all those problems? I think Abortian is a good thing in these types of cases but shouldn't be a thing used to kill well children and especially make it easy for people to have sex and get away with it.

When the body is cleaned out properly such as Water fasting regular etc you will find that theres no real desires or thoughts for having sex. The truth is that the human doesn't crave these when unpolluted and that sex is only to create a new life and nothing else. The West is so polluted that the sexual needs of the people is high and to top this off we have all the constant indoctrination around us wether to keep having hetro or homo sexual sex.

I believe this is why theres aphrodisiac foods like Onions etc to help force the mood on people when the time was needed to create a child. Yes theres rampant hormones in teenagers going off but again are they clean? NO! Their more polluted than anyone with crap foods and drink. The pollution is bringing on womanhood in children as young as 8 these days but mostly 12 and a big part of this is plastics and mimicking Estrogen.

TruthSeeker24 - June 23, 2006 03:45 PM (GMT)

I don't think abortion is okay. To kill any innocent human, even if they're severely handicapped is murder period. Also, what's the guidelines if someone is severely handicapped or not? The Nazis used this as justification for their Holocaust. Hitler himself was pro-abortion and pro-euthanasia. Many handicapped people who are suffering have made great contributions in this world. I will not support the dehumanization of human life and the philosophies of Nazis. I will love all life equally. Abortion is a disgusting procedure. Abortion murders the unborn. Partial birth abortion sucks the brains out of the child then take the baby out of the womb. The vast majority of Americans oppose partial birth abortion. Also, future technologies and technologies today can ease the suffering of people. In America, we have this Roe v. Wade mess, which is against the US Constitution for a number of reasons. Not to mention that millions of people suffer in this country and billions worldwide. That doesn't mean we kill them.

Abortion is never okay, even in the case of deformity. Not to mention the damage abortion can do to the mother's body! Even if you know the baby will die immediately after birth, it's still not okay--it's better to let your child die naturally than to have a hand in your child's death. Not only that, but too many times mistakes are made. That baby might not have Down's Syndrome after all, for example.

I was born with a club foot. I've had numerous surgeries on it. It hurts constantly, but not for one minute do I wish my mother had aborted me! I just deal with it.

People with severe deformities are all too often classified as "useless eaters." They're human beings and they should be loved too--even if they don't become rocket scientists.

Should we kill someone if they suddenly become incapacitated?

Hagbard Celine - June 23, 2006 09:07 PM (GMT)

I believe that everybody has the right to choose what happens to their own body... and for that reason I am totally opposed to abortion.

I find it intensely ironic that those who support abortion call themselves "pro-choice" when they are removing everybody's choice of whether we even live or die. A handicapped child may well have a very difficult and painful life, but is that preferable to an absence of life at all? I know some people would say "yes", but then I think the only person who should comment is the handicapped child themselves. I agree with all the members who've said that handicapped people have the same value as able-bodied people. Handicapped people have given great gifts to the world: Stephen Hawking, Jonny Kennedy, Ian Dury, this list could go on for pages!

Pro- or rather Anti-choice people say "Yes, but an embryo isn't a real person. It's just a cluster of cells. But a "cluster of cells" is all I am, or you, or anyone is, at any age. When does a "cluster of cells" become a person, according to abortionists? Well, nobody knows. They just guess. "It's when the brain starts working to the extent when you can pick up an EEG; that's when the baby is conscious" I hear all the time. But there's plenty of clinical evidence of people being fully-conscious with flat EEG's. People have been revived from profound vegetative states where they remember hearing conversations that went on around them. And there's the continuing enigma of the Near-Death Experience. The scientific cop-out is surprisingly similar to the New Age one: "A soul only enters the baby when the parents decide to go ahead and have it." Again, this is total guess-work. A convenient justification.

The truth is: Nobody knows when a human baby first becomes conscious and I therefore think it's wisdom to assume, unless it's proven otherwise, that a baby has human consciousness from the moment of conception and has the same rights therefore of any other human. Ask yourself: Would you have wanted to be aborted when you were a baby? If any of you answer "no" then I think it proves my point.

CRAIG-OXLEY - June 23, 2006 09:48 PM (GMT)

Do you honestly think I would put a club foot in the area of handicapped? I mean mentally handicapped and very serious problems. Anyhow you've heard my thoughts on the subject and as far as I'm concerned your putting that child through the hell of their handicapped life along with the hell of life itself whilst aiding the Jesuits by them having the opportunity to make money off this child. Rockefeller will love the treatment costs and the thought of another human enslaved to his pharmaceuticals. They will also enjoy $1,000,000 trading off the child's devious second birth certificate.

CRAIG-OXLEY - June 23, 2006 09:49 PM (GMT)

I know no specifics but here is the model.

The Archbishop of Westminster is the Pope's man of all political and financial power in Britain. He is like the Archbishop of New York here in the US. All intelligence agencies in England are ultimately controlled by the London Archbishop advised by the Jesuit Provincial at Stonyhurst. The Archbishop rules the English Branch of SMOM protected by the monarch and is the secret master of the Grand Lodge even as the Archbishop of New York is the ultimate master of the Supreme Council of the 33rd Degree in Washington.

Therefore with this model followed in virtually every country with an open presence of the Roman Hierarchy, Guelph QEII must be controlled by London's Roman Senator.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

Eric,

Can you please shed some light on Cardinal Cormac Murphy O'Connors power within the U.K with respect to Guelph QEII?

Thanks

Alexandra - June 24, 2006 12:07 AM (GMT)

My sister has serious mental and physical problems. Should our mother just kill her and be done with it? And like I pointed out, doctors are never 100% right. I knew someone who was told that the ultrasound indicated she was having a girl, and it turned out to be a boy. A friend of mine was about to give birth to her first child in '94, and she was told she was having a 12-pound baby and told she needed a C-section. Turns out her baby was only 7 pounds and the doctor was overheard talking about his golf game that he wanted to get to!

Some women have been known to abort over a cleft palate believe it or not. Some parents are too selfish to put forth the effort to help their child. And BTW there are waiting lists of people wanting to adopt handicapped children. They are willing to put forth the time and effort to help them and love them. I think if anything it's the establishment that wants perfect children and they pressure women to abort less-than-perfect babies.

You know, we all get dealt a certain hand in life, and some people are going to have it harder than others. One should never expect to have an easy life.

You have to know how most mothers are. When I was born, so I'm told, the doctors kept pointing out my club foot to her, and she told them she didn't care...she was too busy admiring me! To most mothers, their children are perfect no matter what may be wrong with them. My little boy hardly speaks (he has more words now) but I love him just the same.

Hagbard Celine - June 27, 2006 08:04 PM (GMT)

I agree with Alexandra on this one. Interestingly and "coincidentally" (if there is such a thing) they were talking about this subject on the "Heaven and Earth Show" on Sunday.

A friend of mine has a Down's syndrome son and she said that when it was diagnosed by amniosentesis she was put under quite a lot of pressure to abort. People who chooses amniosentesis have to be willing to abort because this is the only "solution" if the test comes back positive, but my friend changed her mind afterwards and the doctor got really quite annoyed with her. It was amost a foot-in-the-doorway situation! This deeply disturbed me. Did this doctor behave in accordance with NHS policy? If so then it this seems little short of a eugenics programme right here and now!

Actually I find that Down syndrome people, like most disbaled people, tend to have very pleasant personalities. The people who worry me are the "sane" people, the "normal" people. It's only "sane" and "normal" who have caused me any problems in my life. It's the "sane" and "normal" people who devastate continents, kill and destroy. Maybe one day someone will find a cure for sanity!

Minuteman Matt - June 27, 2006 08:30 PM (GMT)

I am handicap physiscally (with a rare genetic handicap called osteo-imperfecta) and I am glad my parents didn't abort me. Allthough I have had suffered alot in my life and currently suffer alot now due to a breathing problem for the last 3 years. I still have enjoyed my life and have had many fun things happen to my life. All of you has made good points.

However the million dollar question is how can we tell which baby will have a "bad handicap or not"? where do we draw the line on to which handicap baby to abort? When I was born and still in my moms belly I still looked like a reguler baby. When I was born into this world I looked normel.

It wasent till about a few weeks later when my mom was changeing my diaper I broke my leg. My mom was almost jailed cause child protective services thought my mom was abuseing me. But it turned out that I was born with this rare genetic handicap that gives me weak bones.

Now people say the Jesuits may be makeing money off my suffering which is exactly true, however it would not just be me it would also be the elderly and normal people with problems. So its a double edged sword the only way we can keep them from profiting is cut off there hand and expose them.

Alexandra - June 27, 2006 09:43 PM (GMT)

Five years ago, halfway into my pregnancy with my son, I was almost afraid to have an ultrasound--what if they found something wrong and pressured me to abort?

The only good reason for finding out if something is wrong is so you can prepare--read books, get information, so you'll be ready to deal with it. Forewarned is forearmed. If they think your child has Down's, you can read up on it and know what to expect.

Alexandra - June 28, 2006 02:25 AM (GMT)

Minuteman Matt--I think I've heard of your condition before.

My club foot limits me a little bit. Oh, I was in the high school marching band (graduated 15 years ago) and I got to do things...but the past few years or so, my foot's gotten bad, and I have pins, screws, and staples in my one ankle joint. If I try to walk a few miles or really clean house from top to bottom, I pay for it the next few days and have to rest up. My being a bit overweight doesn't help and it's a nasty cycle...with my foot acting up it's hard to exercise. Factor in a four-year-old son I have to chase after! :P Pregnancy wasn't easy on my ankle and the last two weeks, if I wanted to go to the mall, my husband had to push me in a wheelchair!

Like I said, we get dealt different hands in life...and we should learn to do the best with what we have instead of grumbling about what we got dealt. I'm glad your mom didn't abort you. You have every right to live...not your fault you're, what, differently abled? (Going PC here.)

From Bloodlines of the Illuminati by Fritz Springmeier:

Another tie in between the Kennedy's and the Knights of Malta concerns the Hospice movement. The Kennedy Institute for the Study of Human Reproduction and Bioethics (located at the Jesuit's Georgetown Univ.) is helping fund the Knights of Malta's hospice movement in America. In Oct. 1978, the first annual meeting of the National Hospice Organization took place. Sen. Edward Kennedy was one of the two keynote speakers. What is the hospice movement which is being conducted by the Hospitallers (one of the names the Knights of Malta go by)? It is a movement to allow old people "The Right to Die.'

The Knights of Malta have an ancient history of running drugs and in administering mind altering drugs in their hospitals instead of giving medicine. This ancient activity was carried forth into modern times when their St. Christopher's hospital in London began giving patients Brompton Mixture until they died. Brompton Mixture consists of heroin, cocaine, alcohol, tranquilizers, and chloroform water. This mixture is given in the Knights of Malta hospitals to patients every three hours until they die. Euthanasia, or "mercy killing" may seem like a merciful idea, until a person finds out how the people at the top of the Euthanasia movement view things. They view things similar to the Satanist Adolf Hitler. This view is that it is merciful to get rid of unwanted people. Although the "death" hospice movement seems benevolent at first, it is the conclusion of where the program will end up that is the kicker. Hospice, Inc. which is linked to the elite is also provided funding by the Kaiser Foundation.

Q: Is the Vatican involved in any this and if so how?

The Vatican opened its doors to the Nazis and helped create the rat lines that led thousands of the worst Nazis out to safe places. Many of those Nazi's put on the clothes of the priests and continued and dark plan. This included taking and abusing children in rituals to gain demonic powers of 'secrecy ' and ascendancy. There is a satanic underground in the Vatican.....which will back the coming antichrist and the false prophet that the Book of Revelation speaks about.

In actuality--Isis, Horus, Seb.

Though most Catholics claim it stands for something else.

CRAIG-OXLEY - June 25, 2006 01:22 PM (GMT)

I do not believe its what you claim and infact its

IN HOC SIGNO

Meaning `In this Sign'

Now what Constantine did was he had another word added which was VINCES

Meaning `CONQUER'

The Jesuits merely drop this to keep yet again their wishes covert.

IN THIS SIGN CONQUER

You also have to remember that the Catholic church is based on the Babylonian/Egyptian system...the Babylonian trinity of Nimrod/Semiramis/Tammuz was changed to Isis/Horus/Seb in Egyptian. The Egyptians worshiped the sun, like Catholics do now. Transubstantiation came from the ancient Egyptians. Catholicism assimilated a lot of rituals, such as the rosary and prayers to saints.

Suffice it to say that it has more than one meaning.

It's all looking good mate, logo included. Glad you dropped the brown look, it was too dark, but this all looks cool.

CRAIG-OXLEY - June 25, 2006 11:02 PM (GMT)

Well I didn't mind the dark skin but what annoyed me was the damn dark grey font and its pathetically small font and posting box. The only thing I do not like about this skin is the fact that the text in the tube can be out of alignment due to the creator using the center feature. I'm happy with my logo considering how little time it took me. I wonder if Michael Holman is happy :D

JagDRS - June 26, 2006 03:51 PM (GMT)

This may be due in part to what I've learned here, but when I look at the individual photos that appear across the top of the new look of the forum, a disturbing awareness come to mind despite having tried to look with objectivity. I've tried forcing myself to see the glow of cuddly, saintly and benevolent individuals that mirrors the image publicly promoted..... it just aint happenin for me. For some reason, my mind's eye can't get past the ambience and aura of someone who knows of despicably unspeakable horror first-hand. Collectively, I keep seeing a crew of ruthless & demonic beings. Starting front and center with Mr Clovenhoof himself, I get the distinct impression of a smarmy fellow of a countenance near to bursting from the mirth of mock restraint of knowing who and what he is really about. To his right I see someone who puts me to mind of a sardonic imbecile already in wide-eyed contemplation of the treats of his next victim. For me the image on the far right is the most obvious of them all, a haunted ghost peering out of sunken, shadowy sockets that speaks of a deep, trance-like contentedness with that disposition..... and for some reason, I don't get glimpses of what my mind imagines the divinely-appointed earthly manifestation of Creator looks like, instead I keep seeing Burns of Simpson fame.

Kinda like this?

I don't even watch that show anymore...haven't in years.

JagDRS - June 26, 2006 10:59 PM (GMT)

yep, that pretty much nails it. (i meant far right)

Alexandra - June 26, 2006 11:21 PM (GMT)

Who's the guy right next to RATzinger anyway? He kind of resembles my former Ancient World History teacher....

CRAIG-OXLEY - June 26, 2006 11:38 PM (GMT)

You haven't checked out a couple of messages I've put on here if you do not recognise this evil one.

ARCHBISHOP OF WESTMINSTER CARDINAL CORMAC MURPHY O'CONNOR

With his Jesuit master at Stonyhurst next to his Superior General

JagDRS - June 26, 2006 11:51 PM (GMT)

I confused the point by first typing " ...guy on the far left" when I meant far right, the one wearing that cute red beanie.....is that not Pope Ratzinger? Either way, that's a ghastly mug.

CRAIG-OXLEY - June 27, 2006 12:29 AM (GMT)

Archbishop of NY Cardinal Edward Egan

Fr. Gerald J. Chojnacki [Jesuit]

SUPERIOR GENERAL Peter Hans Kolvenbach

Fr. Michael Holman [Jesuit]

Archbishop of Westminster Cardinal Cormac Murphy O'Connor

Pope Ratzinger.

Fr. Gerald J. Chojnacki - New York Fordham University Provincial
Fr. Michael Holman - Stonyhurst College Provincial

Alexandra - June 27, 2006 01:07 AM (GMT)

Pfft...if they're wearing that kind of get-up, don't trust 'em! :D That guy to Kolvenbach's right looks a little too happy....

Yep, RATzinger...good old Benedict XVI. Former Head of the Inquisition, now referred to as Congregation for the Doctrine of Faith...or something benign-sounding.

Complaints of sex abuse by nuns begin to emerge

The pain is strong for accusers just coming to terms with what they say happened to them.

Pamela Miller, Star Tribune

<http://www.startribune.com/462/story/513614.html>

Even now, decades later, the victims' voices falter as they describe the encounters that damaged them in ways they cannot fully cast off.

Mary Dunford tells of a molester visiting her dormitory bed when she was 15. Susan Pavlak speaks of the teacher who talked to her of love, then seduced her at 16. Siblings Christine Bertrand and Karen Britten and their childhood friend Patricia Schwartz describe how their piano teacher touched them in ways no adult should touch a child.

In each case, the perpetrator was, or recently had been, a Roman Catholic nun.

The five women, who said they were abused in the 1950s, '60s and '70s, are among about a dozen Minnesotans and an estimated 400 women and men nationwide who have recently come forward to talk about being sexually abused by nuns.

Last month, Britten, 48, of Highland Park, Ill., and Schwartz, 51, of Eden Prairie, sued the Sisters of St. Francis in Rochester over alleged abuse by a nun in the 1960s. Bertrand, 51, of Sierra Madre, Calif., filed suit against the same nun last year.

Most reports of sexual abuse by nuns have emerged well after the surge of news about abuse by Catholic priests and brothers, and there is little evidence that abuse by nuns has continued. But survivors are increasingly coming forward to seek apologies and reparations.

St. Paul attorney Jeff Anderson, who specializes in clergy sex-abuse cases, said he has received about a dozen plausible reports of abuse by nuns with Minnesota ties.

The issue, Anderson said, "has only been on my radar for a few years. We're likely to see more cases in the years to come."

Accusers interviewed for this story say they've come forward only recently because it took them years to fully remember or process the abuse and decide how to deal with it.

Sexual abuse by nuns has gone largely unaddressed and unreported until now in part because of cultural biases about gender roles and sex, say those knowledgeable about the cases. Women often abuse in seductive ways that silence and confuse victims, Anderson said.

And when abuse is alleged, it can be difficult for victims to assign accountability in the maze of 450 women's religious orders. The Catholic Church says it has no jurisdiction over the orders.

But slowly, more victims are telling their stories. The Survivors Network of those Abused by Priests (SNAP) says it has received as many as 400 reports nationwide of sex abuse by nuns, "which probably just scratches the surface," said executive director David Clohessy.

Molested at boarding school

Dunford, now 67 and living in Eagan, was molested by a nun at the Villa Maria boarding school in Old Frontenac, Minn., in the early 1950s.

"It happened after lights-out," she said. "She'd kiss me on the mouth, then take her clothes off down to the waist and have me kiss and suck her nipples. She told me she loved me."

The experience "has profoundly affected my life," said Dunford, who graduated in 1956, married Dan Dunford in 1959 and raised three children. She couldn't talk about it, she said, until age 50, when she realized that the abuse lay at the root of her depression and other problems.

In 1990, she wrote a letter to the Archdiocese of St. Paul and Minneapolis, which forwarded it to the Ursuline order in Missouri. She was told that the alleged perpetrator was no longer in Minnesota and no longer worked around children, and that an investigation would take place.

When the sister admitted to abusing Dunford, the Ursuline order paid for counseling for both Dunfords -- it later also returned her tuition -- and in 1997 arranged for the nun to apologize in person, Dunford and the Ursulines say.

"We talked about how what she had done had damaged us," Mary Dunford said. "When we were done, she said, 'You weren't the only one hurt,' and her provincial [supervisor] turned to her and said, 'I love you and support you.' There I was, the victim, and the sympathy was for the perpetrator."

The sister who molested Dunford continued teaching college students after the order "determined that it was a one-time offense and that there was no threat to others," said Ursuline Provincial Sister Peggy Moore.

The nun died in 1999.

Since she began telling her story, Dunford said, she has been contacted by more than 200 alleged victims of nun abuse.

A trio of young students

Bertrand and Britten claim to have been molested by Sister Benen Kent during piano lessons in the early 1960s at St. Juliana School in Chicago. In 1965, Kent was transferred to Rochester, where, Bertrand and Schwartz say, she molested them in 1967 during family visits.

Kent, who died in 2003, "insinuated herself entirely into our families, and was a trusted friend and confidante to our parents," Bertrand said.

Britten was the first to reveal the abuse. Kent "would rub my back, then sexually assault me with her fingers" at piano lessons, she said.

Next to reveal her story was Schwartz, who says she didn't recognize what had happened to her as sexual abuse until late 2001, when she heard Britten's story. Kent "was considered a saint in our family," Schwartz said. "I thought it was just another uncomfortable thing I had to take."

Bertrand's memory of being molested did not fully emerge until 2002. "One morning ... my husband came up behind me and startled me, and the memory burst back," she said. "I ran to the bathroom, retching."

The women then went to the Franciscans as a trio. Despite a flurry of calls, registered letters and meetings assuring the women that the case would be investigated, their lawsuits claim, little happened.

"Then I got a letter saying she had died," Bertrand said. "That was the turning point. I said, 'Sue them.' "

Bertrand said she's convinced that Kent, who worked at many schools over her career, victimized more children. She said she has received several calls from others saying they were also victimized by Kent.

Bertrand, Britten and Schwartz are seeking at least $50,000 apiece from the Franciscans, but say their main goal is to protect others.

The Rochester Franciscans have not responded to repeated calls and e-mails.

Culture and circumstance

Cases involving nuns feature complex sociological and psychological factors, said Minneapolis psychologist Gary Schoener, a national expert on clergy sexual abuse. Women are less likely to sexually abuse children, but nuns have access to children in schools, orphanages and at music lessons, he said.

In the past, he said, "arrested social development" among some nuns, who often went directly from high school to the convent, fostered a climate where sexual touching of children and novices "occurred without anyone involved even fully understanding it was abuse."

Cases that Anderson has seen, most involving girls, occur "not because perpetrators are lesbian, but because they have access to and power over children," he said.

Author Ashley Hill, who lives in New England, told of being molested at age 7 in a New Hampshire school in her book "Habits of Sin," which also chronicles other women's stories. Since it was published in 2000, she said, she has heard from scores of alleged victims.

Hill said she found "a lot of mental illness, which made for a very destructive environment."

As a 16-year-old at a St. Paul Catholic high school, Pavlak, now 51, of West St. Paul, said she was drawn into a sexual relationship with a teacher who had been released from her vows at her own request. She said that her abuser was sexually involved with another nun and that nuns "colluded within this closed, highly sexualized system to hide relationships."

The Sisters of St. Joseph of Carondelet, the former order of the alleged perpetrator, said via spokeswoman Ann Thompson that the woman was not part of their order when the alleged abuse occurred. However, the Archdiocese of St. Paul and Minneapolis arranged for Pavlak to have her tuition returned, Pavlak said.

The legal issues

Many cases alleging abuse by nuns will never go through the legal system.

Attorneys are less likely to take nun cases than cases involving male clergy, said Clohessy of SNAP, because "lawyers know that the deference shown to priests is even more intense with nuns."

And most cases cannot clear Minnesota's six-year statute of limitations on lawsuits, Anderson said.

So far, six cases with Minnesota connections have led to suits -- those of Bertrand, Britten and Schwartz; a Winona case settled in 1992 involving a woman who does not wish to go public, and two cases involving abuse at a school in Washington state run by Mankato's School Sisters of Notre Dame that were settled in 2003 and 2004.

The lawsuits against the Rochester Franciscans seek to circumvent the statute by focusing on recent recognition of the abuse and on the order's response, Anderson said.

The Rev. Kevin McDonough, vicar general of the Archdiocese of St. Paul and Minneapolis, said statutes of limitations serve "the important social purpose" of preventing lawsuits that can't be adequately defended. "One claim was 75 years old -- how can you find people and evidence to defend a case like that?" he asked.

But Bob Schwiderski, a Minnesota priest-abuse victim, said: "Extending the limit would affirm that post-traumatic stress often causes a child victim to delay reporting. Why doesn't the church work with former victims? Why is it that the victims, grown up, have to do the most important work toward accountability and prevention?"

Response and reaction

Many victims look first to their dioceses for help. In the Twin Cities, McDonough said, the church offers them counseling and help in communicating with those responsible.

"But we do not have the right to tell the nuns how to respond," he said. "Frankly, we have our own housecleaning to do on the priest abuse situation. We don't want to make it look like we're putting the spotlight on nuns to get it off of us."

Some victims have turned to the national Leadership Conference of Women Religious. But that group angered victims when it declined to adopt the U.S. Catholic bishops' Charter for the Protection of Children and Young People, drafted in 2002. It has refused victims' requests to speak at its gatherings, they say.

Anmarie Sanders, communications director for the Maryland-based conference, said it has no control over how orders have handled cases, but began in the 1990s to push member orders to punish misconduct, help victims and prevent further abuse.

Spokeswomen for the orders to which alleged perpetrators belong say they have provided counseling and financial compensation to victims and have improved anti-abuse policies and education.

But those who have reported abuse say little has been done to restore trust. Bertrand, Britten, Schwartz and Dunford have asked the orders involved in their cases to look for possible other victims at the locations where the perpetrators lived and worked. The orders, citing confidentiality concerns and logistical difficulty, have refused to do so.

Is it still going on?

There have been few modern-day cases alleging abuse by nuns. The reason may simply be that there are far fewer nuns. In 1965, the number of U.S. nuns peaked at 180,000. Now there are about 75,000, many of them elderly.

Representatives of female religious orders say better education and policies have squelched the problem.

But victims' groups, attorneys and psychologists point out that clergy-abuse victims often don't come forward until middle age.

"There will always be new perpetrators," Clohessy said. "We owe it to our kids to err on the side of caution."

Meanwhile, victims find some comfort in pressing for accountability -- and in the faith almost all of them say survived the trauma.

Said Bertrand: "For the first couple of months after I remembered my abuse, I went to church with my husband. But I could not worship. A nun would walk in and I would begin shaking. ... I remain faithful, but there's a lot of rebuilding that needs to take place."

Title: Why has the JO not assassinated any Protestants

Minuteman Matt - June 26, 2006 03:56 AM (GMT)

I read these stories about people getting the cup of borgia like Joe Vialas, Garry Webb, Sherman Skolnik but why has no Protestant leaders been "taken care of" I though the Jesuit Order would hate protestents since they go against the vaticans doctrine and they would be considerd "rebels" or traitors" to the Jesuit Order. How come the Jesuit Order does not kill them or try to destroy them? Is the war between these 2 christian factions over or is it still going on? Is there any known cases of Protestant leaders mysteriously dying in a odd way or anyone connected to them?

Alexandra - June 26, 2006 12:47 PM (GMT)

If they did that, people would start waking up...not to mention there's Vatican II where Protestants are no longer "heretics" but "separated brethren." Rome changed her tactics 40 years ago. If Rome was still killing off the heretics right and left, people wouldn't fall for her crap quite so easily.

Today's so-called "Protestant" leaders are in tight with Rome.

CRAIG-OXLEY - June 26, 2006 09:54 PM (GMT)

The Society Of Jesus has killed many protestants over history! Just tally up the amount of deaths of protestants with the World Wars.

Alexandra - June 26, 2006 10:01 PM (GMT)

I guess I forgot to mention that when they do kill Protestants it gets covered up. Or it's done in such a way (like cancer) that no one even suspects...like Alberto Rivera. I was thinking full-blown inquisition like back in the day.

What I meant to say was--it's not obvious to the casual observer (read: sheep). See, "officially," the Protestants are separated brethren instead of heretics.

Description: challenge to debate ERIC JON PHELPS?

CRAIG-OXLEY - June 24, 2006 12:00 AM (GMT)

Dear Friends and Brethren,

Although I consider Texe Marrs to be a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor covering for the Jesuits and Rome's absolute control of the Craft, his info on Graham is true and quite valuable. This is a case of eating the meat and throwing away the bones.

Please be reminded that claiming the Jews control Freemasonry is a Jesuit doctrine reflected in "Father" Bernard Stampfle's Mein Kampf (1925) and Monsignor Jouin's Papacy and Freemasonry (1930). Many editions of the Order's La Civiltà Cattolica state the same deceptive proposition.

Blaming the Jews as being the masters of the devil's International Invisible Empire of Scottish Rite Freemasonry (and all other rites) was used by Austrian Freemason Adolf Hitler to destroy the Jews of Eurasia aided by certain Jesuit Temporal Coadjutors like the Jewish former Austrian priest and secretary to Masonic Jew Leon Trotsky, Ignace Trebitsch-Lincoln.

This is the great danger Texe Marrs and Michael Collins Piper.

I would love to debate Texe on this one point alone:

Who controls Freemasonry: the Masonic Jewish Zionists or the Masonic Gentile Jesuits ruling the Masonic Roman Hierarchy?

I believe he and I could have a civil debate mediated by Greg Szymanski that would inure to the benefit of the listeners of RBN.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

CRAIG-OXLEY - June 23, 2006 11:53 PM (GMT)

QUOTE

Indeed! In fact the Knights of Malta control the Pope's Masonic Jewish Zionists. Barry Chamish has made it very clear that Shimon Peres is subordinate to SMOM King Juan Carlos, not vice-versa. Futher, OSS officer and dear friend of SMOM Clay Shaw was SMOM Louis M. Bloomfield (whom Piper rightly names as a key figure in Permindex), a kingpin in the Pope's Masonic Jewish Government in Israel.

I also greatly suspect that Masonic Henry Kissinger is also a SMOM. His ties are everywhere to the Order. And Kissinger was the advisor of Masonic Ariel Sharon.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

WAKE UP AMERICANS !

THE JESUITS-VATICAN SLOWLY DESTROYING AMERICA

THE JEWS ARE INNOCENT PEOPLE

BY : BOBBY G. LIMETA

Dear American Brethrens And Good Friends :

Yesterday, I received an e-mail from one of my good American Christian brother and a patriot Mr. Alexander James. Bro. Alex forward to me a very wonderful article by Mr.

Greg Szymanski of Arctic Beacon's website, Confession No. 9 " WILL AMERICA RISE UP AGAINST JESUITS, VATICAN AND NEW WORLD ORDER TYRANY ? I printed it out and read it seriously inside my room. After 1-hour of reading and being a person equipped with world historical knowledge as my weapon, I whispered to my self " THIS IS IT ". I've no personal quarrel with Michael Collins Piper (he don't know me). These man are diverting the issues to the Zionist instead of the real tumor /cancer – The Jesuit Order. This diversionary tactics is very dangerous to the future of United States Of America and to its people.

Well, I decided to attached herewith the Confession No. 9 in M.S. Word Format. As well as the, Members Of The Knights Of Malta / Oath By The Knights Of Malta. As an honest historian, below are my personal assessments and comments based from world historical events.

1.0 For the Americans to counter Jesuit's diabolic operations is to read and study world history seriously, if they want to save America away from destruction being a long time Jesuits plan and desire.

2.0 The Holiwood movies, show-biz, glitters and glamour among actors, actresses and singers coupled with intrigues and gossips only divert the attention of the American away from many dark issues, crimes, and conspiracies. The awareness of the American people about the real intentions of the Jesuits slowly destroying America are being covered by show-biz issues.

3.0 The very reason why the U.S. OSS/CIA is so corrupt and full of crimes, anomalies, treachery, treason and other unconstitutional operations is because ? High-ranking officials of this intelligence agency are members of the Knights Of Malta. Knights Of Malta is a secret society of hard-core Roman Catholics secretly controlled by the Jesuits.

The Americans know who are the past, recent and present key officials of the OSS/CIA. Read and scan it carefully the attachment herewith. You'll find former OSS/CIA Agents are members of the Knights Of Malta. Some are notorious NAZI war criminals, some are Roman Catholic Cardinals and American President.

During WWII U.S. OSS Agents supposedly fought against NAZI intelligence agents (Bill Donovan vs. Reinhard Ghelen). Why should they opposed each other ? They only work together for they are under the Catholic brotherhood "Knights Of Malta".

Those in white fonts are catholic cardinals and archbishop.

Those in blue fonts are OSS/CIA agents.

Those in orange fonts are NAZI war criminals.

All are Knights Of Malta, no more differences about their respective nationality, all are mere Roman Catholic brotherhood of the Knights Of Malta.

4.0 During President Ronald Reagan's speech in the White House, Licio Gelli is near with him. An indication that U.S. Presidency is controlled by the Knights Of Malta overall controlled by the Jesuits. Reagan himself is a Knight Of Malta. Knights Of Malta are not Zionists, Mr. Piper's Zionist argument totally collapsed.

To the Americans, do you see the conspiracy ?
