Back in 1912 Jeremiah J. Crowley warned the American people: "Today they [i.e., the Jesuits] are stronger in the United States than they ever were in any of the countries of Europe which expelled them as a menace to the government."

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 2, 2007 02:39 AM (GMT)

CONTINUED.....

The suppression of the Jesuit Order in 1773, and their expulsion from parts of Europe, only lasted until 1814, when the Jesuit Order was fully restored to its former glory by Pope Pius VII. Of course, the Jesuits rode the coattails of Napoleon Bonaparte (a Mason who was advised by Jesuit Abbe Emmanuel Joseph Sieyes) back to power in Europe. The Jesuits then had Pope Pius VII imprisoned for five years in Avignon, France. After a little "friendly persuasion" (probably thumb screws, rack, etc.), Pope Pius VII "saw the light", and in 1814 restored the Jesuit Order in exchange for his release from prison!

((NOTE: By the way, many Jesuits never left Europe when they were "expelled". They merely went "underground" – creating and joining other "front groups", etc., waiting for the opportune time to "re-emerge".))

((Important NOTE: Jesuit Abbe Sieyes was a major player in the French Revolution! In fact, the more one searches carefully historical records, the more one finds Jesuit "advisers" behind many dictators and mass-murdering thugs – and also behind the fomenting of most of the major wars and revolutions of the past several centuries!))

Here are a couple of quotations by American historian Emanuel M. Josephson dealing with the subject of the preceding several paragraphs:

"[Jesuit-trained Illuminist Adam] Weishaupt and his fellow Jesuits cut off the income to the Vatican by launching and leading the French Revolution; by directing Napoleon's conquest of Catholic Europe; [and] ...by eventually having Napoleon throw Pope Pius VII in jail at Avignon until he agreed, as the price for his release, to reestablish the Jesuit Order. This Jesuit war on the Vatican was terminated by the Congress of Vienna and by the secret, 1822 Treaty of Verona.”

“[Jesuit-trained Illuminist Adam] Weishaupt’s success in forcing the Vatican to reestablish the abolished Jesuit Order [Ed. Note: it had been abolished in 1773 by Pope Clement XIV], through revival of the Church’s original Nazarene Communism in the form of present-day Communism, led to the conspiracy’s control by the Society of Jesus [i.e., the Jesuits]...

...Wherever a totalitarian movement erupts, whether Communist or Nazi, a Jesuit can be found in the role of ‘advisor’ or leader; in [Communist] Cuba Fr. Armando Llorente and in Argentina the neo-Nazis are led by Fr. Menvieille.” (1968)

Oh, back to the “Holy Office of the Inquisition”: I believe that it was Pope John Paul II who apologized for the Inquisition with a basic, “Oops, sorry.” “Oops, sorry” is NOT enough, because the “Holy Office of the Inquisition” has never been dismantled. Its detailed records on how to torture people – including bringing in physicians to keep the victims alive in order to inflict the maximum amount of torture – have never been destroyed!

Here is a great – and very relevant – quotation concerning the Inquisition from the book The History and Sociology of GENOCIDE by Frank Chalk and Kurt Jonassohn: “[The Inquisition’s] methods of terror and persecution have been used and abused up to the present day. These methods were not only new, but also so successful that they have been copied by totalitarian regimes ever since. The main features of these methods are:

1. Making the denunciation of fellow citizens an obligation that takes precedence over ties of family and kinship;
2. Extracting confessions by imprisonment and torture;
3. Making the naming of fellow conspirators an essential part of confessions;
4. Defining the retraction of extorted confessions as a ‘relapse’ and therefore a proof of guilt; and
5. In some cases, separating the proof of ‘heresy’ or opposition from the execution of the penalty. The Inquisition handed over its convicted ‘heretics’ to the secular arm for punishment just as, hundreds of years later, during Stalin’s purges of the Communist party, party members were often deprived of their membership and then handed over to the NKVD for punishment.”

((Ed. Comments to the preceding quotation:

- (1) The Communist regime in the Soviet Union followed these Inquisitional guidelines

“lock step”. Should we find that surprising, considering that the monstrous mass murderer Josef Stalin and one of his top men in charge of the Soviet slave labor camp system (Cardinal Agagianian) were both Jesuit-trained at the Jesuit Seminary in Tiflis, [Soviet] Georgia?

(2) The same system has already been set up here in America TODAY with our massive high-tech Police State (a la “Big Brother” of the book 1984), the numerous “tattle-tale programs” and “1-800-turn-in-your-neighbor programs”, Patriot Act, Homeland Security, new domestic intelligence agency, etc. This “system” is simply awaiting the next massive “terrorist event” to swing into full Inquisitional persecution and, quite possibly, genocide!))

Additionally, here are a few quotations from Juri Lina in his excellent book Under the Sign of the Scorpion: The Rise and Fall of the Soviet Union:

“In 1198, the church [i.e., the Roman Catholic Church] established a commission to persecute and try ‘heretics’. This later developed into the Holy Inquisition. In 1483, Tomas Torquemada...was appointed Grand Inquisitor of Castilia and Aragon. In 1492, he expelled all Jews who refused to become Marranos [Jews who converted to Catholicism].

Torquemada worked intensively [sic] for 18 years and burned 10,220 people at the stake...Another 6860 victims died under torture...a further 300,000 were sent by Torquemada to the galleys, of whom a third died. In total, 114,401 families were wiped out. Torquemada was especially energetic in persecuting philosophers, authors, doctors and scientists.

This Grand Inquisitor made torture an efficient tool...

In December 1917, a special commission for dealing with counter-revolutionaries was set up in Petrograd...called the Cheka in Soviet Russia... [later called] OGPU, NKVD... KGB.

There are still more similarities between institutions of the Bolsheviks, the Roman Catholic Church, and the freemasons. High church figures had commissars bearing letters authorizing them to exercise the authority of their masters. Similar officials were used in connection with the so-called French Revolution and also by the Bolsheviks.

The Inquisition encouraged children to betray their ‘heretical’ parents, and married couples to hand each other in. Each informer was paid four silver marks. The Soviet officials encouraged a similar type of betrayal...

The spies used by the [Roman Catholic] Church and the Inquisition were called the Militia of Christ; the law-enforcement and reconnaissance [i.e., surveillance] organs of the communist dictators were called the People’s Militia...

Both the Christians [i.e., the Roman Catholic Church] and the communists have knowingly employed criminals. In 1095, Pope Urban II Clermonti released murderers, thieves and other criminals so that they might take part in the crusade in 1096. On their way through Europe, these villains plundered all they could... The Bolshevik leader Leon Trotsky released criminals to terrorize the population. Mao Tse-Tung did the same.”

“The historian Rene Sedillot...calculates that the [French] ‘revolution’, on account of the terrorism and the civil war, claimed at least 600,000 victims.” ((NOTE: The French Revolution was from 1789 through 1799.))

“1.7 million people were executed during the period 1918-19. A river of blood flowed through Russia... According to official Soviet reports from May 1922, 1,695,904 people were executed from January 1921 to April 1922. Among the victims were bishops, professors, doctors, [military] officers, policemen, gendarmes, lawyers, civil servants, journalists, writers, artists, nurses, workers and farmers...Their crime was ‘anti-social thinking’.”

And may we Americans never forget these warnings and historical facts given to us about the Jesuit Order by the following famous (and some not-so-famous) personages (arranged in alphabetical order):

“My history of the Jesuits is not eloquently written, but it is supported by unquestionable authorities, is very particular and very horrible. Their restoration [i.e., the Jesuits’ reinstatement as an official order by Pope Pius VII in 1814] is indeed a step toward darkness, cruelty, perfidy, despotism, [and] death. ...I do not like the appearance of the Jesuits. If ever there was a body of men who merited eternal damnation on earth and in hell, it is this Society of Loyola’s [i.e., the Jesuits, the “Company”].”

John Adams (1735-1826; 2nd President of the United States; This quotation is taken from a letter of John Adam’s in 1816 to Thomas Jefferson.)

“The Society of Jesus [i.e., the Jesuits] is the enemy of man. The whole human race should unite for its overthrow... For there is no alternative between its [i.e., the Society of Jesus’] total extirpation, and the absolute corruption and degradation of mankind.”

Robert J. Breckinridge (Pastor; author)

“The Jesuits...are simply the Romish army for the earthly sovereignty of the world in the future, with the Pontiff of Rome for emperor...that’s their ideal... It is simple lust of power, of filthy earthly gain, of domination – something like a universal serfdom with them [i.e., the Jesuits] as masters – that’s all they stand for. They don’t even believe in God perhaps.” (1880)

Fyodor Dostoyevsky (1821-1881; Russian novelist)

“The whole frightful responsibility for this terrible Thirty Years’ War [Ed. Note: 1816-1848] must rest upon the [Holy Roman] Emperor Ferdinand II, and his teachers, rulers, and bosom friends – the Sons of Loyola [i.e., the Jesuit Order].” (1873)

Theodor Griesinger (German historian)

“It is my opinion that if the liberties of this country – the United States of America – are destroyed, it will be by the subtlety of the Roman Catholic Jesuit priests, for they are the most crafty, dangerous enemies to civil and religious liberty. They have instigated most of the wars of Europe.” – Marquis de LaFayette (1757-1834; French statesman and general; He served in the Continental Army under the command of General George Washington.)

“The war [i.e., the Civil War of 1861-1865] would never have been possible without the sinister influence of the Jesuits.”

Abraham Lincoln (1809-1865; 16th President of the United States)

((Ed. Comment to the preceding quote: The Jesuits had their fingerprints all over the Lincoln assassination. If you don’t believe so, then please read U.S. Brigadier General Thomas M. Harris’ book Rome’s Responsibility for the Assassination of Abraham Lincoln. It is $9.95 postpaid, and can be ordered by making check or money order payable to “The Conversion Center, Inc.” and mailing it to: The Conversion Center // P. O. Box 31688 // Raleigh, N.C. 27622-1688.))

“This society of men [i.e., the Jesuits], after exerting their tyranny for upwards of two hundred years, at length became so formidable to the world, threatening the entire subversion of all social order, that even the Pope [Ed. Note: Pope Clement XIV]...was compelled to dissolve them.

They [i.e., the Jesuits] had not been suppressed, however, for fifty years, before the waning influence of Popery and Despotism required their useful labors to resist the light of Democratic liberty, and the Pope (Pius VII), simultaneously with the formation of the Holy Alliance, revived the order of the Jesuits in all their power.

[The] Jesuits...are a secret society, a sort of Masonic order, with superadded features of revolting odiousness, and a thousand times more dangerous. They are not merely priests, or of one religious creed; they are merchants, and lawyers, and editors, and men of any profession, having no outward badge (in this country) by which to be recognized; they are about in all your society.” (1850)

Samuel Morse (1791-1872; American inventor of the telegraph)

“The Jesuits are a military organization, not a religious order. Their chief is a general of an army, not the mere father abbot of a monastery. And the aim of this organization is power – power in its most despotic exercise – absolute power, universal power, power to control the world by the volition of a single man [i.e., the Black Pope, the Superior General of the Jesuits]. Jesuitism is the most absolute of despotisms: and at the same time the greatest and most enormous of abuses...

The [Superior] General of the Jesuits insists on being master, sovereign, over the sovereign. Wherever the Jesuits are admitted they will be masters, cost what it may... Every act, every crime, however atrocious, is a meritorious work, if committed for the interest of the Society of the Jesuits, or by the order of the [Superior] General.”

Napoleon I (Napoleon Bonaparte; 1769-1821; emperor of the French)

“The public is practically unaware of the overwhelming responsibility carried by the Vatican and its Jesuits in the starting of two world wars – a situation which may be explained in part by the gigantic finances at the disposition of the Vatican and its Jesuits, giving them power in so many spheres, especially since the last conflict.”

Edmond Paris (Author of the book The Secret History of the Jesuits)

“...If you trace up Masonry, through all its Orders, till you come to the grand tip-top, head Mason of the World, you will discover that the dread individual and the Chief [i.e., the Black Pope, the Superior General] of the Society of Jesus [i.e., the Jesuits] are one and the same person.”

James Parton (American historian)

((Ed. Comment to the preceding quotation: If you do not believe that the Jesuit Order controls the top levels of Freemasonry, then you need to read the excellent 412-page paperback book The Grand Design Exposed by John Daniel. It is $20 postpaid. To order it, make check or money order payable to “American Sentry Books” and mail it to: American Sentry Books // P.O. Box 14 // Crawley, WV 24931.))

“Between 1555 and 1931 the Society of Jesus [i.e., the Jesuits] was expelled from at least 83 countries, city states and cities, for engaging in political intrigue and subversive plots against the welfare of the State, according to the records of a Jesuit priest of repute...practically every instance of expulsion was for political intrigue, political infiltration, political subversion, and inciting to political insurrection.” (1987)

J.E.C. Shepherd (Canadian historian)

“[The Jesuits] are the deadly enemies of civil and religious liberty. Nothing that stands in their way can become so sacred as to escape their vengeance...

Because of this, a sense of both duty and security demands that the history and character of this skilled and powerful adversary [i.e., the Jesuits] ...should be understood; as also the causes which have led to the expulsion of the Jesuits from every country in Europe, the public odium which has rested upon them for many years, their long continued disturbance of the peace of nations, and the final suppression and abolition of their society by one of the best and most enlightened of the popes [Ed. Note: i.e., Pope Clement XIV (in 1773)].”

R.W. Thompson (Ex-Secretary, American Navy)

V. THE PITIFUL CONDITION OF THE 'CHURCH' IN NAZI GERMANY

Please consider the following quotation by a Protestant (Lutheran) pastor named Dietrich Bonhoeffer, who was executed by hanging in 1945 by the Nazis:

“We Lutherans have gathered like eagles around the carcass of ‘cheap grace’, and there we have drunk the poison which has killed the life of following Christ... Cheap grace is the deadly enemy of our Church. We are fighting today for ‘costly grace’. Cheap grace means grace sold on the market like cheapjack wares. The sacraments, the forgiveness of sin, and the consolations of religion are thrown away at cut prices... In such a Church the world finds a cheap covering for its sins; no contrition is required, still less any real desire to be delivered from sin... Cheap grace means the justification of sin without the justification of the sinner...it is grace without discipleship, grace without the cross, grace without Jesus Christ, living and incarnate.”

Please consider this quotation by Erwin W. Lutzer, author of the book Hitler's Cross:

“[Dietrich] Bonhoeffer saw what others were either unable to see or did not wish to see, namely that following Christ involved much more than catechisms and rituals. To follow Him [i.e., Christ] was to focus on the message of the Cross without shading the message to fit the political ‘zeitgeist’ (spirit of the age). He was committed to the [Ed. Note: proper] separation of church and state; he insisted on a Christianity that was independent of political interference.

This man [i.e., Bonhoeffer] who called the church back to its mission would eventually join...a conspiracy to assassinate Hitler. Whatever we think of that decision, his heroism, zeal, and (from a human point of view) failure deserve careful consideration. At great personal cost he raised the flag of Christ, though most turned aside to follow another banner [i.e., the swastika]. He did all he could to rescue the Cross from the swastika.”

May we Americans – and especially Americans who are clergymen – take to heart this quote by Erwin W. Lutzer:

“Whether in Nazi Germany or America today, believers cannot choose to remain silent under the guise of ‘preaching the gospel’. Sharing the gospel is, of course, our primary responsibility since it is only the cross of Christ that can transform the human heart. But once we have received the gift of salvation through Christ, we must live out the implications of the Cross in every area of our lives. In fact, our very right to preach the gospel will be in jeopardy if we are not prepared to submit to the lordship of Christ in all spheres.”

The sad fact is that both major Christian denominations in Germany (the Roman Catholic and Lutheran) did little to nothing to stop this maniacal, vicious, totalitarian Nazi regime. In fact, as already pointed out, the Catholic Zentrum Party in Bavaria actually helped to put Hitler into power on instructions from the highest levels of the Vatican! Additionally, as also pointed out previously, very few Protestant ministers or Roman Catholic priests had either the courage or inclination to speak out against the Nazis. The churches had basically been neutralized before Hitler had even taken power.

Please carefully consider the following quotation:

“[German] soldiers returning from the Eastern Front were telling horrible stories, how in occupied Russia Jewish civilians – men, women and children – were being lined up and machine-gunned by the thousands.

...In the spring of 1942 the leaflets of the ‘White Rose’, composed by a group of students and a professor of philosophy at the University of Munich, told of the murder of 300,000 Jews in Poland and asked why the German people [about 43 percent were Catholic] remained so apathetic in the face of these revolting times?” – Guenter Lewy (Author of the book The Catholic Church and Nazi Germany)

Do we think that the Roman Catholic Church and the Protestant denominations – especially their leadership, which has been heavily infiltrated by secret societies (Jesuits and high-level Freemasons) – will resist the totalitarian Police State here in America when we go under full martial law? Not hardly – in fact, it is extremely likely that the leadership of the mainline Christian denominations will march lock step with the government in totalitarianism – even if the government uses foreign troops against the American people! The leadership of these denominations will tell their ‘flocks’ to submit to the ‘authorities’. In fact, the leadership of these denominations will be “in bed” with the government, and will also tell their ‘flocks’ to turn in anyone who has dared to speak the truth about the intentions and goals of totalitarian government supported by the ‘Church’!

Indeed, the mainline Christian denominations in America have long been neutralized by the following:

(1) Their government tax-break ((their 501(c.)3 tax-exempt status)) and their “incorporated” status; and,

(2) A whole bunch of “false doctrine” brought into the churches by “wolves” in sheep’s clothing:

a. Protestant denominations and Baptists have been largely neutralized through the “Pre-Tribulation Rapture” lie, the “once saved, always saved – i.e., eternal security” lie, and even by, surprisingly, the long-promulgated Roman Catholic doctrine of the “divine right of kings (and popes)” – i.e., “unlimited submission to civil (and ecclesiastical) authority”.

b. Roman Catholics have for many centuries been neutralized through the long-taught Catholic doctrine of the “divine right of kings (and popes)” – i.e., “unlimited submission to civil (and ecclesiastical) authority”, plus a fairly recent “invention” of the Vatican, i.e., “papal infallibility” (established in 1870).

When America goes under full martial law, will we see a repeat of ‘Church’ support for our totalitarian regime as occurred in Nazi Germany? I think that will most likely occur. What do you think?

Please consider the following Bible verse (Proverbs 31:8):

“Open thy mouth for the dumb in the cause of all such as are appointed to destruction.”

Questions to ponder: Were Christians in Nazi Germany, for the most part, ignorant of this command from the Holy Bible – and others like it? Are Christians in America, for the most part, ignorant of this command from the Holy Bible – and others like it?

VI. IT (I.E., GENOCIDE) CAN HAPPEN HERE IN AMERICA!

During a recent phone conversation with Aaron Zelman, the Executive Director of “Jews for the Preservation of Firearms Ownership (JPFO)”, he asked me why I do what I do [in this fight against tyranny]. Minutes after I hung up the phone with Aaron, I thought of this good reply should anyone else ask me why I write my TTT newsletters:

“I write my TTT and ETI newsletters because I don’t like Police States, and I don’t like genocide – and because I see that a massive high-tech Police State has already been set up in America. I also see a genocide coming America’s way unless a whole lot of people quickly arise and stop it!”

By the way, I “hit” the hierarchical system of the Roman Catholic Church with its Office of Inquisition (and its crusades and genocide against Jews and non-Catholic Christians) pretty hard in this issue of TTT. Does that mean that I am anti-Catholic? Not hardly! I love many individual Roman Catholics – my best friend is a Roman Catholic, and so are most of my relatives, including my dad. Most of my friends are Roman Catholics. However, I do not love the Roman Catholic Church's history of repeated genocide against non-Catholic Christians (as recently as the 1940s in Croatia), and its Jesuit Order's history of fomenting wars and revolutions – and of repeatedly assassinating heads of State throughout the past four centuries!

Could GENOCIDE happen here in America? The answer is a clear and unequivocal 'yes'! Many of the same "symptoms" that afflicted Nazi Germany before it began its program of calculated and cold-blooded genocide exist today in America! Here are some of the chilling similarities between the USA and Nazi Germany – they are important "ingredients" for genocide:

(1) A lack of respect for human life – abortion; the murder of Terri Schindler Schiavo; the slaughter of innocents at Waco, Texas; the murder of several members of the Weaver family at Ruby Ridge, Idaho; etc. – are but the tip of an ugly "iceberg". (America has indeed developed a "culture of death".)

(2) The breakdown of morality via the filth often emanating from Hollywood, TV, and a host of other sources – to include pornography.

(3) The promotion and use of torture – Afghanistan; Abu Ghayb in Iraq; Guantanamo Bay; computer games that feature torture; and TV programs that condone and promote torture in the "appropriate circumstances".

(4) An increase in the occult.

Yes, I know that Nazi Germany did not have TV or computer games. However, they did have a big push for euthanasia. They did have a tremendous moral breakdown between the end of World War I and the outbreak of World War II. They did have a big increase in the occult. And they definitely had a lack of respect for human life – especially Jews, Slavs, and their political opponents – just to mention a few groups they hated. By the way, that list (of hated groups) grew to include those whom the Nazis considered "useless eaters" in society, such as the very elderly, the mentally challenged, and the physically challenged. And when they started putting people in concentration camps, they certainly did not hesitate to use torture whenever and wherever it suited them!

And may we never forget that the globalist rich and power elite hate our Constitutional Republic, our national sovereignty, our freedoms, and the well-armed American people. They consider our Constitutional Republic with its well-armed citizens as the last remaining roadblock in their long-held quest for a global government with a one-world

And never forget that the top levels of the globalist rich and power elite hate Jews, Blacks, Christians, and patriots of any nation that would dare resist their globalist plans!

Ignoring this problem of potential, and even likely, genocide will not make it go away. Burying our heads in the sand or pulling the blankets over our heads will not make this problem go away. If we continue to ignore the warning signs that are clearly visible, then we are putting ourselves and our loved ones at much greater risk!

I would like to close this section with some final thoughts especially for Catholic Americans (though non-Catholics would do well to also read this warning):

(1) Here is an extract from a 13 July 2005 letter I wrote entitled "Ratcheting Up the Information War":

"Both Catholic Americans and non-Catholic Americans must recognize that the Roman Catholic Church has been controlled, for the most part (and with very rare exceptions), for centuries by very wicked men from the Society of Jesus (i.e., the Jesuits) and P-2 Masonry. Pope John Paul I, who was elected pope in 1978 as a 'compromise candidate' (and whom the evil men who control the Vatican thought would be 'easy to control'), found out quickly who was really running the Vatican! When Pope John Paul I found out that many men in the Roman Curia were high-level Masons, he made the decision to 'clean house' at the Vatican, to include the Vatican Bank. Unfortunately for Pope John Paul I, he gave his 'Vatican house cleaning' list to Cardinal Jean Villot, the Vatican Secretary of State – a Mason. The next morning John Paul I was found dead – a victim of the 'poison cup' on his 33d day as pope!

And both Catholic Americans and non-Catholic Americans must recognize that the globalist rich and power elite and their 'secret societies' have used the Roman Catholic Church hierarchy, its monastic orders, its Office of Inquisition, its diplomatic relations with many nations, its immense wealth (to include banking interests), and its massive intelligence apparatus (which includes key people, such as Knights of Malta and Freemasons, in the world's top intelligence agencies, plus the confessional box) as their 'ecclesiastical hammer'. This 'ecclesiastical hammer' has frequently been used in orchestrating and carrying out crusades, genocide, 'religious wars', and Inquisitions against Jews, Bible-believing Christians (falsely called 'heretics'), Orthodox Christians, and even some Roman Catholics (falsely called 'liberals', who dared to challenge Church doctrine or practices, such as 'indulgences'). These religious crusades and genocide (often in the form of State-Church genocide) were often directed at innocent peasants and farmers (e.g., Albigenses, Waldenses, French Huguenots, etc.) whose only 'crimes' were placing the Bible in higher authority than the pope, and refusing to recognize papal authority. ((Again, these innocent people were falsely called 'heretics'.)) Papal armies were raised (often using murderers, rapists, etc., who had been released from prisons) and sent to exterminate entire villages and regions.

All of the preceding is well-documented history! Pretending that there is no longer any 'ecclesiastical tyranny' or danger of Church-State genocide will not make it 'go away'! Worrying about 'offending' Catholic Americans should not keep people (either Catholic Americans or non-Catholic Americans) from speaking out on this issue. Unless the secret societies' HOLD on the Roman Catholic Church can be broken, and broken soon, I strongly believe that a 1940s Croatian-style genocide will likely occur here in the USA in the near future!

((Let's not forget that there are 10 FEMA regions in the USA, and there are 10 Jesuit Provincial Generals assigned to the USA. I doubt that this is just a coincidence. Let us also not forget that the Jesuit Order was thrown out of 83 different countries, city states, and cities by 1931 because they had orchestrated and fomented so many wars and bloody revolutions – and had assassinated so many heads of State!))

Indeed, the 'religious arm' of the New World Order (N.W.O) cannot and must not be ignored. While many large Protestant denominations have also been infiltrated and taken over by Masons, the main 'ecclesiastical hammer' of this N.W.O. 'religious arm' remains the Roman Catholic Church. Again, it is very unwise to ignore this major player in the effort to bring forth a One-World Government AND One-World RELIGION!" [End of excerpt.]

(2) Catholic Americans should not feel that they will be safe when the Vatican and "the State" combine here in America for genocide. Yes, they will initially use the Roman Catholic Church as their "ecclesiastical hammer" to go after non-Catholics FIRST. However, as occurred in the Inquisition, some patriotic Catholics considered a threat to the globalist rich and power elite will also eventually be identified and eliminated.

The Roman Catholic Church hierarchy has not hesitated to murder Roman Catholics who got in its way in the past. Two fairly historically recent examples of this fact are the murders of Pope John Paul I and of Archbishop Oscar Romero. ((If you haven't seen the movie "Romero" starring Raul Julia as Archbishop Oscar Romero (a John Duigan film, 1989; a Paulist Picture), then please rent a copy and please watch it.))

A little-known fact of history is this: Spanish Roman Catholics in the 1930s became outraged when many baby skeletons (from nuns) were discovered in tunnels between convents and other church property. The Spanish government demanded a national investigation of all Catholic monasteries, convents, schools, and church buildings. The Vatican basically declared war on the Spanish people, and the so-called Spanish Civil War began. The Vatican actually hired Moslem troops, who led by Cardinal Pedro Segura, invaded Spain and slaughtered many Roman Catholics (men, women, and children). A fascist dictator named Franco was thus installed, and the challenge to the Church was quickly terminated. Bottom line: The Vatican will not hesitate to slaughter

Roman Catholics who get in its way!

Editor of TTT strongly believes that the end-game plan of the globalist rich and power elite is to use the Roman Catholic Church (with its monastic orders, its Jesuits, its Knights of Malta, its high-level Knights of Columbus, its “Holy Office of Inquisition”, etc.) as its “ecclesiastical hammer” to massively assist in eliminating Jews and non-Catholic Christians – as it has often done in the past. However, all vestiges of Christianity must be destroyed, so the globalist rich and power elite will even turn on the Catholic Church when it has served its purpose. No trace to the GOD of the Holy Bible can be left – and that means the extermination of Jews and ALL Christians.

VII. WHAT CAN WE DO?

1. If you think that this issue of TTT contains important information, then please make as many copies of it as you possibly can and give them to as many folks as you possibly can.
2. Please check out my TTT newsletters on the following two Internet web sites: www.tacklingthetoughtopics.net and www.calltodecision.com . You might especially want to check out the four TTT issues that I did on the subject of the Jesuit Order (“The Jesuits” and “The Jesuits – Parts II, III, and IV”) – they are on the first listed web site. Two other TTT newsletters on that web site dealing with the topics of this issue of TTT are: “Gun Control Stinks!” and “Secret Societies”.
3. Please purchase as many of these excellent “informational tools” (that deal with the topics of genocide, out-of-control government, Police States, tyranny, and “gun control”) as you can possibly afford (and then please share them with others):

4. Please carefully and slowly read the below quote that was also given at the beginning of this newsletter:

“Genocide is horrible, an abomination of our species, and totally unacceptable. It is an obscenity – the evil of our time that all good people must work to eradicate.”

Professor R.J. Rummel (author of the book Death by Government)

This is not a “Jew versus Christian” issue. This is not a “Protestant versus Catholic” issue. This is “good versus evil” issue!

If Jews, Catholics, Protestants, and all other Americans don’t unite to fight this evil, then America is done for!

We Americans absolutely must expose those who carefully plan, choreograph, orchestrate, and carry out genocide! Why? It is because the next genocide may be here in America – and it may just gobble up millions of us if we don’t act quickly and decisively to nip it in the bud! And the first step in that battle is to arm ourselves with the necessary information, and then pass that information on to others! Please help save America!

The purpose of the expose' of the Twentieth Century is to prove the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, ordered by the Jesuit General and executed by Pope Paul VI, was carried out by "the American Pope", Francis Cardinal Spellman. Spellman, being the Archbishop of New York, was "the American Military Vicar" and therefore used his most obedient soldiers - certain Knights of Malta, Shriner Freemasons, Knights of Columbus and Mafia Dons - in carrying out his orders from Rome.

The single reason for the President's assassination was his interference with the purpose of the Jesuits' Fourteenth Amendment American Empire created in 1868. That purpose was to restore and maintain the worldwide Temporal (political) Power of that Jesuit Creation of 1870 - the "infallible" Pope. In resisting the Pope's Temporal Power, he threatened the monopoly of the Jesuits' Federal Reserve Bank by enacting Executive Order 11110 (4 June 1963) thereby injecting into the economy nearly five billion dollars (4.7) in interest-free "United States Notes", only to be recalled the day after his burial.

The President also attempted to break the foremost international intelligence arm of the Vatican's Jesuits - the evil Central Intelligence Agency - "into a thousand pieces." In 1963 the CIA was manned by many of Hitler's old warriors - the Jesuit-controlled Nazi SS - turned "cold warriors". According to the great Frenchman, Edmond Paris, in his The Secret History of the Jesuits, it was the Jesuit Bernhardt Staempfle who wrote Hitler's Mein Kampf. This fact is further confirmed by one of the founders of the Nazi Party, Roman Catholic Otto Strasser, in his revealing book, Hitler and I. It was Roman Catholic Hitler who said of the Roman Catholic Himmler having modeled the SS after the Jesuit Order,

"I can see Himmler as our Ignatius of Loyola."

And lastly, one of the main posts of the feared SD, the Central Security Service of the SS (after which the American CIA would be modeled with the help of the repatriated Nazi General, Reinhard Gehlen), was manned by a priest - a former teacher of the evil Council of Trent at the Court of Bavaria, one of the Jesuit General's favorites, a superior officer of the SS and the uncle of Heinrich Himmler - the Jesuit Himmler, who controlled Hitler's every move through Martin Bormann!

Secreted out of Europe through the Vatican's Ratlines, these murderers escaped their rightful punishment as war criminals who, during the Jesuit Crusade in Europe and Russia, killed millions of Russian Orthodox People and Jewish People pursuant to the Jesuits' evil Council of Trent, which, after condemning freedom of conscience and freedom of the press, concluded with these words:

"Accursed be all heretics. ACCURSED!! ACCURSED!!!"

Lastly, President Kennedy began to end the Vatican's hoax known as "the Cold War", the American CIA and Russian KGB having secretly worked together since World War II. He also began to end that Jesuit Inquisition in Vietnam, as its future highpoint would be "Operation Phoenix", the CIA mass-murder of 60,000 Vietnamese "in cold blood" according to its Director, William E. Colby. The President interfering with Rome's Holy Office of the Inquisition could not be tolerated! Millions of "heretic" Buddhists were to be exterminated, the international drug trade would explode, American patriotism and liberty would further be destroyed and Vietnam would be reunited under another communist military dictator loyal to the Pope - like Stalin, like Chairman Mao, like Castro, like George H. W. Bush and son -, Ho Chi Minh.

Waged under the guise of "fighting godless communism", Cardinal Spellman championed America's most disastrous conflict known as "Spelly's War" overseen by Spelly's General, the Roman Catholic and CFR member, William C. Westmoreland. (Remember, according to Col. L. Fletcher Prouty in his JFK, the forced movement of over 600,000 Roman Catholics on U.S. Navy transport vessels from North Vietnam into South Vietnam was "one of the root causes of the Vietnam War." The arch-Catholic Secretary of the Navy responsible for implementing that Jesuit-agitation was the Supreme Knight of the Knights of Columbus, Francis P. Matthews. Knight Matthew's Master was America's "Military Vicar", Francis Cardinal Spellman. Later, Spellman made several visits to the war-front calling the American troops "the soldiers of Christ", fighting the Pope's Crusade against "godless Jew Communism"! The outcome was 58,000 dead, 80,000 post-war suicides and a 220 billion dollar debt to the Jesuits' Federal Reserve Bank.

All these acts of President Kennedy were proper assertions of national sovereignty and therefore infringed on the Pope's Temporal Power. As the "infallible" Vicar of Christ and thus, "the Universal Monarch of the World", the Pope, through the religious, political and financial power of the Jesuit Order, fully intended, then and now, to ultimately rule all nations through his loyal kings and dictators from Solomon's rebuilt Temple in Jerusalem. For when the Pope is crowned during his coronation these words among others (having never been taught to us in the Public Schools) are spoken:

"Take thou the tiara adorned with the triple crown, and know that thou art the father of princes and kings, and art the governor of the world."

Thomas Aquinas, Rome's "Angelic Doctor" wrote in his Summa Theologica in 1272:

"The Pope, by Divine Right, hath spiritual and Temporal Power, as supreme king of the World: ..."

Lucius Ferraris wrote in his Bibliotheca Prompta (1763), which has been adopted as a standard of Roman Catholic law, as follows:

On account of the excellence of his supreme dignity, he is called Bishop of Bishops, Ordinary of Ordinaries, universal Bishop of the Church, Bishop or Diocesan of the world, divine Monarch, supreme Emperor and King of Kings.

Roman Catholic Priest and editor, David S. Phelan paraphrased those words when he wrote in the Western Watchman, June 27, 1912:

"...Why, if the government of the United States were at war with the Church, we would say tomorrow, To Hell with the government of the United States; and if the church and all the governments of the world were at war, we would say: - To Hell with all the governments of the world ...Why is it the Pope has such tremendous power? Why the Pope is the ruler of the World. All the emperors, all the kings, all the princes, all the presidents of the world are as these alter boys of mine: ..."

Therefore, for challenging the Pope's Temporal Power, in attempting to thwart Rome's grand design against the peoples of the world, John F. Kennedy, America's first Roman Catholic President, was brutally murdered in Dallas, Texas on November 22, 1963, by the soldiers of Francis Cardinal Spellman within the FBI, the CIA, the Secret Service, Military Intelligence and the Mafia.

On September 11, 2001 this same Intelligence Network, overseen by New York Archbishop Edward Cardinal Egan being under the supervision of Jesuit General Peter-Hans Kolvenbach, attacked and destroyed the Twin Towers of New York's World Trade Center and partially destroyed the Pentagon in Washington, D.C. These acts of high treason against the American People have now justified our present Crusade against Islam, surnamed "the war against terrorism", and heartily endorsed by the Pope's Masonic Jewish Zionists to the detriment of the beloved, racially Jewish People in Israel. This "war on terrorism" is to the exclusion of notorious Jesuit-trained terrorists and mass murderers such as Fidel Castro of communist Cuba and Gerry Adams of Ireland's Irish Republican Army. Why?

This is an amazing site with an incredible amount of information; I'm glad I found it!

I'm looking forward to getting the third edition of VA. Is there going to be a printed 3rd Ed.? Has Vatican Assassins (any edition) been translated into German, or do you know of any plans of it being translated?

This is an amazing site with an incredible amount of information; I'm glad I found it!

Welcome to the site! :) Kick back and relax (as much as you can while the world is going to hell in a handbasket).

I've known since around the age of 12 or 13 that the Vatican wanted world control. It wasn't until I discovered Jack Chick and his literature, a few years back, that I heard of the Jesuit Order. I'm not quite sure how I found 2tuff's site.

Back then I just knew that they wanted to control everything. Being a kid I didn't know how. Now I realize that they're a pretty subtle lot.

TruthSeeker24 - October 2, 2006 12:14 PM (GMT)

Thank God!!!! Now, it's time to read real history for a change. I've just read the John Daniel's book called "The Grand Design," "How Satan Turned America against God" and other books recently.

This will only be available as an electronic edition? Are there any plans for a printed 3rd Edition?

Has Vatican Assassins (any edition) been translated into German, or does anyone know of any plans of it being translated?

I heard there was a problem before with books being confiscated in Britain. Is international shipping to Europe and Asia available?

CRAIG-OXLEY - October 5, 2006 08:07 PM (GMT)

Eric mentioned a while ago that about a month after its release there would be a hardback of the book but god only knows how much he will charge for this seeing as the ebook is $40 and a 1500 page book would be costly to create. You go and find a new David Icke book and see how big/thick that is and that's usually 550ish pages if I recall so almost times this by 3 WOW that's big.

ov3rkomer - November 8, 2006 03:46 PM (GMT)

"Vatican Assassins" is available now from Clay and Iron. I just talked to Dr. Bill Deagle on the Phone and he told me it can be ordered here:

<http://www.clayandiron.com/products.jhtml?...product.id=2668>

The site has the bothersome technical problem, that it only allows USA/Canada registrations and orders. I could not even get a reply through the feedback form.

I made a special arrangement with Dr. Bill for shipping to Europe, but it might be confusing if I try to explain it here. If you want to order from outside the USA/Canada I would recommend you call their order phone at: (+1) 888-212-8871

Strangely the 3rd edition is not even announced or promoted on Eric's site (<http://www.vaticanassassins.org>), thats why I confirmed by phone, if it is actually available.

Additionally, Dr. Deagle said he will have Eric on his radio show on Nov. 13th Did anyone here actually receive the 3rd Edition already?

TruthSeeker24 - November 8, 2006 03:50 PM (GMT)

Not yet, but I expect it on this month.

So are we finally talking about a paper/hardback or just this ebook?????????

We were only talking about the CD/eBook edition.

I have no news on if/when there could be a print edition.

Keith - November 15, 2006 05:56 AM (GMT)

The cost to convert ebook to book. What is the estimation?

ov3rkomer - November 15, 2006 02:34 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (Keith @ Nov 15 2006, 05:56 AM)

The cost to convert ebook to book. What is the estimation?

Just to give some idea of the minimum amount of money involved. A 2000+ copy print run (offset printing) of a 300 page book with soft-cover would be around $2/copy.

My estimate for printing costs of 'Vatican Assassins' would be roughly US$10/copy of 1500 pages of text (2000+ copies). But it is probably quite a bit more, because of the hundreds of pictures in the book. So Eric would have to make an initial investment of a minimum of US$20,000 to US$30,000, if he would self-publish.

It would be a lot cheaper, if it was printed in Eastern Europe or China. For example a 1000+ page Bible printed in China can be bought for less than US$4,00 retail. So printing costs can vary across a broad range.

Maybe someone here knows what Eric actually paid for the 1st Edition printing.

Keith - November 16, 2006 05:50 PM (GMT)

Does anyone have the vat assassins's website song on mp3? please post if so.

CRAIG-OXLEY - November 16, 2006 08:18 PM (GMT)

ov3rkomer - January 26, 2007 12:48 PM (GMT)

Did anyone here actually receive shipment of the 3rd Edition of Vatican Assassins yet? Please tell me, if it has been shipped to you. For those who have pre-ordered, what is 'Clay and Iron' (the retailer) telling you?

I'm still waiting to get this book, but I'm hesitant to place an international order before I know, that the ebook is actually being shipped. The info I received from Dr. Bill Deagle was apparently overly optimistic, so I will not just take another announcement at face value, considering that the 3rd edition has been announced for more than two years. Eric is not answering his emails either, so I'm really wondering how far he has progressed in actually getting the 3rd edition to the readers.

For those who have not yet read the (sold out) second edition of Vatican Assassins, I recommend a direct download of the PDF from this site:

<http://www.tractsforfree.com/default.asp?id=63> which hosts the file for free, while awaiting the 3rd edition... ;)

Even into December, Phelps was saying he was still working on his third edition. Can't remember what radio show though. It seems he's always finding new stuff. As 2stuff told me in a thread I started when I was inquiring about the third edition, he said that as an example, Phelps was only recently shown the photo of George Bush being in Dealey Plaza.

Here's the thread I started.

I guess I better make sure that whatever computer I get has at least several GB of storage, huh? :D

Last time I bought a new computer for myself (the only time, in fact) was in 1999, right around the Y2K scare. A few years ago I traded it for a car for my husband. Been using whatever cast-offs my husband has had since...now I'm using a computer he originally intended to use as parts.

CRAIG-OXLEY - January 27, 2007 01:54 AM (GMT)

Personally I've told Eric Phelps that I believe Bill Deagle is a clever Temporal Coadjutor. I believe hes another Leonard Horowitz in disguise but not from a SMOM point of view. Some of his medical teachings and promotions are bunkum, dangerous and $$$ generating. Example is Colloidal Silvers, Supplements etc. Why don't you hear from these people about Water Fasting? Or even Juice Fasting? No they tell you to take wonderful supplements which infact are yet another POISON! So folks stick with Dr John Christopher, Prof Arnold Ehret and so forth for real health info. These agents like Deagle utilise much truths and truthsayers in order to get you to fall into their purpose nonsense even if its only 10% of whats being said. Of course I can sniff these agents out on the Medical nonsense especially when they start trying to promote the same hiv story that the Rockefeller clique do. Folks hiv is the biggest medical FRAUD of all time. I talked about Len Horowitz doing this and how I believed he had an agenda. What happened? We found he was a Knight of Malta. This is why I made sure I helped originate the mass exposure which happened via myself going through to Phelps then Greg.

Mark Brewer - January 27, 2007 04:31 AM (GMT)

Yes folks, Bill Deagle is bogus. I remember hearing about him years ago when he was associated with the Prophecy Club, another questionable organization. This is the kind of nonsense Bill was writing back then.

THE LITTLE SCROLL

A Prophecy By Dr. Deagle To America

The words of William, son of William, in the line of Aaron who was among the physicians of Colorado, which he saw concerning America in the days of Clinton, President of America, two years before Y2K. Thus saith the Lord: Have I not called you from before the day of your birth in nineteen hundred two score, ten and second year? Did I not say to you, "At the time of the end you would know and you would tell my people?" Did you see from your eighth year from the gates of heaven and high above "my blue jewel the earth," how I will reign down judgment upon this world? Did not the prophets of old tell of such a day, but those who call themselves my people said prophesy not, but tickle our ears with comforts and ever increasing self-righteousness and power with the Holy One of Israel? Did I, Jesus, not show you these things that must happen so that all mercy, grace and justice is served, and then the end shall surely come?

Did not the fireballs rise all over my blue jewel, heat, brimstone, and the red smoke of the abyss roll as a scroll across the horizon to cover in deepest darkness? Let there be two score years from the day that you, my servant, have been called until these days of the wrath of the evil one are cast upon the earth. For he knows that his time is short, and great is his wrath. When my angel casts him down into the abyss, surely he will never rise for my kingdom will be from everlasting to everlasting.

I, the Sovereign Lord of Hosts do declare that the day of the Lord is near, even at the doors. From the going forth of this word, there will be times, times, times, times and half a times, until the great and terrible day of wrath of the Lamb. For in the fullness of the Gentile times, the prayers of the saints rise up as a fragrant incense to my nostrils and I am stirred, and there will be no more time that My Spirit will strive with the spirits of men.

And this is a mystery, My wrath is to see my face and be forever forgotten from my body, the church. The wrath of the evil one is to steal, kill, and destroy until the fullness of the wrath, six trumpets, six bowls and six vials. Only when I break the seals may the wrath of the evil one be poured out upon those who bear the Mark and worship the Bearer of Light and not the Creator. I am the Holy One who died and shed the living waters of life that you would never thirst, but you would not drink. Therefore, you will receive my wrath, which is the seventh trumpet, the seventh bowl and the seventh vial in completing your iniquity and I decree a separation as an adulterous bride forever from her groom. This alone is my wrath upon a dying people and a passing world.

And he said, Thus saith the Lord; For thou O nation which appears as a lamb but speaks with the voice of a dragon, You who have a sea of my Word but do not drink, Thy transgressions have called out to my ears for judgment. You, America, who carry the word of my testimony to the world, have taken your heart far from Me.

Hear this word that the Lord hath spoken against you, O children of America, which I have brought up from all the lands of persecution. Your nation I have set high above all nations as a light to truth and justice, for you feared my Words. You were children of Light and not of Darkness. Therefore, I will punish you for your iniquities.

Today, I blow a trumpet for my people, come out of her daughter of Babylon the Great. She has made the whole earth drunk with the wine of her outrageous profits, of every stock option, dividend and contract. You who rob the poor, crush the weak and sell with insider information, while you convince the foolish enough to believe your lies and by until their wealth is dust and sand that have fallen between their fingers.

The evil one stalks a prey and I revealeth it to my servants the prophets. Those who hear these words, who heed and obey, will escape 'through' the days of trouble, as my people did to the land of Goshen, when I sent the plagues upon the land of Egypt.

Proclaim in the streets of Islam and Russia, that America knows not how to do right. I send among you Gorbachev, who seeks to tell another gospel and you write the Earth Charter as your new commandments. He bears a Green Cross and defiles the cross I bore for you my people. Because you have forsaken your first love, America, I will send you Global Eco-Communism and Islamic Terror.

Did I not tell you before it was the city of seven hills would send one with mitre and the scepter of a shepherd to lead away all those that love not the truth, and he knows me not? But you O wayward people did follow the Harlot of Babylon, all you daughters of harlotry. Were not those I gave my servant Moses enough law to condemn all those upon the earth, that none are righteous, not even one? Did I not write on the flesh of your heart my commandments, to love your God with all your heart, soul and mind and love your neighbor as yourselves? You made yourselves righteous in your own eyes.

I call upon these peoples of oil and fire for judgment upon this nation, for America knows not to do right. You, O America, who store up and prepare violence against your own people and plots to inter them in concentration camps and make covenants with the illuminated sons of Satan. I have judged you and found my cup of wrath full with anger against you.

You, O America, who conspire to spoil the bread and steal the light, to place a Mark on all your people, I have this against you. Moreover, you force the whole world to worship other gods of trees and crawling things and waters which were foreign to you, so that all may take this Mark. You croak as the voices of frogs are heard from the pits of your throats the song of a sustainable world without my Holy Name. No repentance is seen in your actions, for your hearts are far from me and my spirit will not strive long with the spirits of men. You, O America, swear by your power and might that by that false prince that comes, surely now we have "Peace and Security"! A sustainable planet will not surely die!

You, O America, who swear to destroy my people, this is what the Sovereign Lord says, I will send fire upon your coastal lands and upon your cities, and I will send a hoard from Russia and Islam and all the nations with them. I will enrage them, and draw them with hooks forward into your lands for your arrogance and blasphemy against My throne and my Name. You who conspire to kill their innocents like lambs at slaughter in Iraq, and yet let their leader live to serve your purposes.

You who cry, "Leave Clinton finish his term," our portfolio is bursting with the last quarterly earnings and peace and security are surely ours to rule the earth, and profits wash away a multitude of sins. You say, who cares if we who send His word to all the world, send gifts to our enemies of the technology and money to destroy us. For we speak as a Dragon, and who can make war with America?

You call yourself a Lamb but are like a raging lion that threatens to rain fire from heaven on all your enemies. You say in your heart, we will sell them bullets, but we will bind them tightly with our computer bytes, and surely none will escape our all seeing eyes!

You, O America, who oppress the poor and sell the needy nations of the earth the seeds of famine, I will send you death. You, O America, who have set yourselves up to be the god of this world, I will bring you very low, and your murmurs for mercy will cry to Me from the dust and ashes of your nation.

You, O America, have not only shed the blood of my littlest ones but have denied care to your poor and elderly. You have forced the heathen nations of the earth to kill their little ones and I see their blood upon your hands. It cries to Me from many lands for justice; How long, O Lord, will our sisters and brothers die in their mothers wombs at that hands of America and its multinational corporations? Have I not declared that you must not make any of your children to walk through the fire for Molech or Baal, but you did? When your president vetoed the abomination of murder by suction at birth, where, O church, was your outrage? Where were your lawyers and physicians that call themselves by My Name? My judgment starts upon My house that sees and rebukes the demonic horde but does not speak in the houses of law and in the capitols of your cities against this outrage. Prophecy not in My name if you do not first stand in the breach for the least of your brothers and sisters, here and in many lands. I do not need your permission to rebuke the hordes of Satan. I desire only that you love and serve only Me, and not buildings and programs and warfare that sets you arrogantly at My right hand.

For I will hold you, O church, that calls yourself by my Name, and your bloodguilt, O quiet warriors. I will forever silence you unless you turn and repent for not speaking against these murders. Henceforth, from the treaty that divides my holy city, Jerusalem, and the day upon which the house of Judah commences the sacrifice, I will anoint my people of the house of Judah who believe on my Son and on the house of Israel who believe on my Son, to prophesy to America, and all the earth for twelve hundred and three score days to this nations and all the nations who would conspire to wipe out my people and the nation of Israel.

When these days of prophesying are closed up, and on the day of my Passing Over my people as I did upon the firstborn of the lands of Egypt, I will send again the Death Angel upon the earth to reap a harvest into my kingdom and cast the timid into the fires of eternal torment. I have decreed for twelve hundred and threescore days wars, pestilences, death, and the greatest earthquake upon the earth until the cup of my wrath is empty and all the earth is a desolation.

Cry, you high generals and politicians of the illuminated One, for he will not save you in the day of my wrath. Hide yourselves in NORAD and FALCON and the bowels of IRIDIUM. For in one day, at the Long Blowing, I will appear with the hosts of heaven, and those who are mine will rise to be my Bride forever. But woe to you, O daughters of Babylon, for you have set your gods of technology, medicine and genetics to create yourselves as gods; but you will not.

Therefore, eat this scroll, for its sweetness will be savored by those that hear and obey my voice, but your stomachs will turn with the sourness of destruction that will come upon the earth. Just as my voice of seven thunders has spoken, it will surely come to pass, and there will be no more delay.

The Lord God has sworn by his holiness, that, lo, the days shall come upon you that you shall not escape, of fire and brimstone and captivity. Your sons and daughters will fall in the open fields, and fall like chaff at winnowing time. I will give thee for a feast to the beasts of the field. Puzzle not at a man grasping his stomach as if in labor, though his face cries crimson in the agony as in childbirth, for I have sent fireballs of wormwood upon this people and they will surely not escape. America, who for a time would rain wormwood on all those who would not take the Mark, let them drink a double portion, for a nation who called themselves My people and are not.

Escape, I say, My people from this land, to the North before the great and terrible days, for I have given you twelve hundred and three score days to prophesy to this nation of America, in mercy and justice before my wrath is poured out in full.

Weep, you nations afar off. Woe, woe, woe, great was the daughter of Babylon. By her sons of the Illuminated one and by their stock market, many nations and peoples have become rich. In one day has come destruction to the cities of glass and steel like mountains of light. This is what the Sovereign Lord says, Go forth once more unto a hard and arrogant people, a righteous people full of purpose and plans, with my word on their lips but a curse in their hearts. Turn, you sheep, from the pathway that leads to destruction, and become my people again and I will turn to you and heal your land and set my tent over you and you will be my Bride. But if you do not soon turn, then in the day of my wrath I will set my face against you and you will become only a whisper in the darkness, O America.

Does anyone have any ideas on how to print this book out for comfortable reading. I have a duplex laser printer. How would you bind the pages? Could it be printed out and bound at a place like Kinko's?

wolveshater - January 30, 2007 10:51 PM (GMT)

get ya 2- 3" x 11" binder and then get the holes punched in your paper work and start inserting till its full, you will have 2 750 page books, my 2nd addition is that way, its kinda cool...mine has 19 holes thru it with a black plastic binder. I can see why Eric can't get a book builder to help him, this is the most hated book by the ENEMY. ha ha ha fk em.

Hmm printing 1700+ pages , 750 pictures , i think that will deplete your printers ink quite effective. I don't know about prices but i often heard that there barely is a price difference between buying ink and a new printer.

Atleast if your want to print in colour i would guess you will have to buy a few extra cartridges.

I would be more happy with an actual book

STOP the bloodclot whining, soon you will not be able get any damm books. think about Eric, always knowing he is watched- knowing they want to kill him-I will be happy to build my own book. THANKS TO ERIC.

I just pointed out that i could imagine the expanses of the "do it yourself" method to be close to the mentioned price of $150.

I said i would be more happy if it would be printed.
That is implying that the eBook release is making me happy.

To me it sounds as if he would be able to find a publisher , like he did before , but decided not to print it because of the given reason.

When the eBook is out the information is out.

It doesn't matter if old fashioned book form or this electronic way.

Mostlikely the same sources who sell the CDs would also be the ones selling the book. So there would be the same audiance of potential buyers = no wider exposure = not more earned hatred by the jesuits = it wouldn't put Eric in more danger then he already is now.

As you can see i thought about him.

In short words i got no clue why my wish for an printed edition is considered whinning?

Maybe because i dont include in 33% of my posts a CAPS part telling what a mean popekillin machine i am...

maybe Eric realizes that many of those books you speak of were bought up and hidden, and then sold for insane prices to, I payed 700 dollars for the 2nd addition, I felt like I better get it and read it while I had the chance. its only paper and ink fake money any way.

But a Hardback copy of VA3 is imo a must have, Phelps work is extremely uplifting reading, i just heard him debate Michael Collins Piper today and it struck me how much further Phelps gos than any other researcher, Phelps has the Background info, he has the Trancedental info that rises way above the Zionist, anti-semitic, angry, Alex Jones type of Info, i also really enjoy the fact that Phelps go's into his Religious beliefs and religious history in his books highlighting people who died for the cause which he is fighting, quite inspiring stuff and he doesn;t go into UFOs or interdimensional entities, just factual historic research which is not too difficult for the reader to digest...

ArchAngel - January 29, 2007 11:09 PM (GMT)

In the late nineteenth century a document was released that is known as The Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion. In fact, The Protocols is not a new document. The original version of The Protocols came out of a meeting in Rome in 1492. The original document certainly involved the precursors of the Elders of Zion, most of whom were NOT of Hebrew blood, nor were they actually followers of the Jewish faith. In fact, most of the 1492 Elders were affiliated with the Catholic Church. The updated version of the document claimed in the 15th Protocol that the Russian aristocracy and the Papacy were the only real rivals to the inevitable rule by the Elders of Zion. This was not the case at all since the Catholic Church was deeply involved with the original and the revised versions of the document.

Is there any truth to this?

Is there an English copy available?

CRAIG-OXLEY - January 30, 2007 12:30 AM (GMT)

Is 2012 A Key Date For Vatican-Led NWO Takeover

Jesuits and Vatican are preparing. Are you?

29 Jan 2007

By Greg Szymanski

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/29-Jan-2007.html>

A number of patriots and others concerned about the eventual takeover of the New World Order have pinpointed 2012 as a year to mark on your calendar as the end of freedom as we know it or the beginning of the age of love which will last for 1,000 years.

Remember, the 5000 Year Mayan Calendar ends on DEC 22, 2012 AD. Ancient Mayans claim this calendar was given to them by the god, QUEZECOATAL, The Feathered Serpent, according to researchers who also fear 2012 may trigger mass panic, chaos and anarchy on a worldwide scale due to magnanimous planetary interruptions.

But instead of following demonic spirits and the spirit of doom fostered by Hollywood movies like Armageddon, according to several spiritual researchers the year 2012 is a remarkable date in God's calendar, marking the beginning of something wonderfully new and exciting.

Although the Jesuit Order is filled with double talk and their words must be viewed with concern and contempt, it is interesting to see how they are preparing for the year 2012.

Wirth that in mind, here are the inside documents from official conferences held by the Jesuits and how they are targeting the America for 2012. It should be noted that they appear quite organized and quite certain a NWO is on the horizon, a one world order quite different from the present. Will it be good? Will it be bad? Most insiders know the real answer to that question. But the real question, though, is how are you preparing for 2012 and can you stop the evil Jesuits and their U.S. government minions from their eventual goal of complete fascism in America?

Here are the words from the Jesuit Conferences which should be read with an eye of duplicity and deception?

JESUIT CONFERENCE BOARD STRATEGIC DISCERNMENT STRATEGIC DIRECTIONS
FOR THE UNITED STATES ASSISTANCY
THROUGH 2012
FIRST DRAFT
MARCH 14, 2005

N.B.:

This document is a work-in-progress. It represents the current best judgment of the Jesuit Conference Board concerning directions toward which the Society of Jesus in the United States ought to be moving through 2012. The directions outlined here will require significant development, refinement and testing before the document takes final form. The Conference Board invites Jesuits and apostolic partners to help further its discernment and the development of this document by engaging in reflection upon, conversation about and response to the strategic directions proposed here.
Context and Mission of Strategic Discernment

Jesuits are called to be servants of Christ 's mission. The service of U.S. Jesuits takes place in a context that is shaped by important demographic, cultural, social and religious issues in the United States, the needs of the local and universal Church, and the human, material and spiritual resources available to the United States Assistancy.

In this context and in ways that explicitly respond to this context, U.S. Jesuits serve Christ 's mission through the service of faith that promotes justice, evangelizes culture and fosters inter-religious dialogue (GC 34, Decrees 2 - 5). They do so through existing ministries, creative new ministries and by attending to their responsibility for the international mission of the whole Society.

Called to read and respond to the signs of the times, Jesuits in the United States engage in an ongoing process of learning, discerning and responding, employing resources found not only within the Society, but those of their partners in ministry and of other organizations of good will, both religious and secular.

As the Society of Jesus in the United States surveys its current context and strives to read the signs of the times and the call of the Spirit as it moves forward in the service of Christ 's mission, a set of issues emerge that shape the learning, discernment and response of the Assistancy: In asking the questions "What are the apostolic needs of the people of God in this time and this context, and how is the Society of Jesus in the United States called to respond? " the Assistancy is challenged to:

- 1) Develop and employ effective ways of learning about and assessing the needs of the Church and civil society;
- 2) Articulate a projection of the Society of Jesus in the United States, its resources and personnel through the next decade;
- 3) Assess honestly current ministerial commitments and develop a realistic and specific plan for future involvement of Jesuits in those ministries;
- 4) Set priorities for new ministerial directions and apostolic works based on the needs of the Church and social realities;
- 5) Develop means to build and sustain capacity for effective apostolic collaboration with lay colleagues;

6) Organize governance structures that match our reality, support cura personalis and strengthen coordinated national cura apostolica;

7) Foster local communities that are closely aligned with and support the articulated mission, and that serve as apostolic vehicles for our ministries;

8) Support sharing of our resources with the Society throughout the world, especially in the education of future leaders for developing provinces.

The mission of the Society of Jesus in the United States is done:
through ministries;

by Jesuits;

in partnership with others;

under governance structures that support and promote the mission

Engaging the challenges set forth above helps to set new strategic directions in each of these four areas.

Ministries

Vision for 2012

Ministries in which Jesuits engage are grounded in the one mission of the Society of Jesus and in criteria clearly established in recent General Congregations.

Among others, these include education, pastoral ministries, social ministries, the ministry of the Spiritual Exercises, and communications. The focus of these ministries is the service of faith through the promotion of justice, the evangelization of cultures and the fostering of inter- religious dialogue in the context of and in response to social and cultural realities and the needs of the Church in the United States. Ministries are distinguished by significant synergy among them, an expanding cadre of partners, and a growing visibility and influence in the culture.

In developing this vision for our strategic discernment, we look especially to Part VII of the Constitutions; Decree 2 of The Thirty-Fourth General Congregation; and Guidelines for the Relationship Between the Superior and the Director of the Work (1998).

Strategic Directions

By 2012, the Society of Jesus will have taken the necessary steps to ensure that:

- 1) There are national criteria for setting priorities for engagement in ministries, both existing and new.
- 2) There is a national structure for each apostolic sector to support common vision and personnel development in areas such as leadership, governance and decision-making. (see Partnership)
- 3) Works are strongly networked and interdependent.
- 4) There is increasing collaboration with partners, and there are deliberate efforts to expand the circle of partners (See Partnership).
- 5) The Society of Jesus is connected to the ministries via a variety of forms of relationship which are clearly articulated and agreed upon.
- 6) Ministries creatively and strategically communicate and promote the mission of the Society of Jesus and its values to the society and culture at large.

Jesuit Life

Vision for 2012

Jesuits live and learn in ways that form and sustain them for service of the mission of the universal body of the Society, for which apostolic availability is a foundation. Their lifestyle gives public witness to a religious vocation that is fundamentally apostolic and that continually seeks the greater honor and glory of God through availability for mission. In developing this vision, we look especially to The General Examen; The Formation of Jesuits from the Letters of Fr. Peter-Hans Kolvenbach, S.J (2003); Fr. Kolvenbach 's Letter on Community Life; Fr. Fred Kammer 's Letter on Community Life; and Decree 4 of the Thirty- Fourth General Congregation.

Strategic Directions

By 2012, the Society of Jesus will have taken the necessary steps to ensure that:

- 1) Vocation promotion is coordinated nationally
- 2) Jesuit formation is coordinated nationally and in ways that honor and develop the distinctive vocation to vowed religious life.
- 3) Jesuit formation and life include explicit international dimensions that prepare and sustain Jesuits in serving international needs.
- 4) Apostolic community life is guided by national criteria that are regionally developed and adapted, locally accountable, and for which provincials assume co-responsibility.
- 5) The ongoing formation of Jesuits, that includes collaborative experiences with lay and other religious partners, is guided by national criteria that are regionally developed and adapted, and locally accountable. (see Partnership)
- 6) The engagement of aging Jesuits in ministry and the care for their needs are guided by national criteria that are regionally developed and adapted, and locally accountable.

Partnership

Vision for 2012

Jesuits are engaged in a sustainable and intentional commitment to lay apostolic partnership that recognizes the distinctiveness of lay and Jesuit vocations. Jesuits are formed for this partnership and they are accountable for sustaining and promoting it. In developing this vision, we look especially to Decree 33 from the Thirty-First General Congregation; Decrees 13 and 26 from the Thirty-Fourth General Congregation; and Fr. General 's Omaha address at Creighton University "Cooperating with Each Other in Mission. "

Strategic Directions

By 2012, the Society of Jesus will have taken the necessary steps to ensure that:

1) There is a strategy for nationally coordinated formation for apostolic partners, grounded in the Spiritual Exercises that has national standards, specific outcomes and accountability (see Ministries & Jesuit Life). Recognizing that there is a continuum of partnering relationships, the strategy:

a. Involves a common commitment to identify and invite key potential lay partners and Jesuits to participate in formation opportunities;

b. Is nationally coordinated, regionally developed and locally implemented;

c. Includes opportunities for formal study, mentoring, spiritual direction and the Exercises, preparation for life/ministry transitions, immersion experiences; catechesis; and attaining qualifications for specific ministries that are nationally recognized and transferable;

d. Is especially attentive to leadership and trusteeship formation;

e. Receives appropriate and consistent funding.

2) The national structures for apostolic sectors involve Jesuits and partners at all levels. (See Ministries)

Governance

Vision for 2012

The structures of governance emerge from apostolic need, and these structures further the mission by supporting ministries, Jesuit life and partnerships. Because of this, the vision for governance will be further determined and articulated as the vision and strategies for ministries, Jesuit life, and partnership are developed. We will also look especially to the Complementary Norms and The Guidelines for Provincials (2003).

Strategic Directions

By 2012, the Society of Jesus will have taken the necessary steps to ensure that:

- 1) No province exists in the form that it existed in 2005; specific criteria for province size and geographical delineation have been developed and implemented.
- 2) Provincials have adopted appropriate structures for collaboration with one another: to support and direct the implementation of national strategies; to share human and other resources to address needs in support of the mission; and to respond to international responsibilities.
- 3) The moderator 's role has been strengthened to support the moderator 's leadership of national strategies implementation and greater co-responsibility for the mission of the Society among the members of the Jesuit Conference board.
- 4) Financial resources are coordinated nationally.
- 5) Local superiors receive sufficient training and support for their role, and promote the implementation of national strategies on the local level.

CRAIG-OXLEY - January 24, 2007 03:38 AM (GMT)

Isn't it amazing how the Jesuits can make it look like the Catholic Church is on a different level to some shadowy government whos ruling (topped by the Jesuits themselves). Don't forget the Jesuits DETEST Catholicism really as they see it as a perversion of the pure Mysteries Religion they follow within the hierachy and prior to being the Jesuit Order when they were simply Los Alumbrados. Catholicism has to go gradually as do all the religions then the new religion will be formed either by a solar event such as Project Lucifer where they ignite Planet Saturn (SATAN, BAAL, EL) or by a real/fake alien contact/invasion. Don't be fooled folks Archbishop O'Connor is one of the most powerful people on these shores and hes controlled by Jesuit Provincial Michael Holman down at Stonyhurst College the true powerhouse of the U.K along with The City.-2tuff

Catholic threat on gay rights law

BBC

http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/uk_politics/6289301.stm

The head of the Catholic Church in England and Wales has said adoption agencies will close if they cannot opt out of new gay rights laws.

Cardinal Cormac Murphy-O'Connor has written to Cabinet ministers saying church teaching prevented its agencies placing children with homosexuals.

Forcing people to act against their consciences would mean discrimination on the grounds of belief, he added.

No 10 said Tony Blair had not decided whether to exempt Catholic agencies.

'Sensitivities'

His official spokesman: "This is not a straightforward black and white issue.

"The cardinal's letter illustrates the sensitivities on one side but there are also sensitivities on the other side. We need to plot a way through that recognises the interests of children but also gets us through."

Communities Secretary Ruth Kelly, a devout Catholic, was reported at the weekend to be considering an opt-out which would cover Catholic adoption agencies.

The Equality Act, due to come into effect in England, Wales and Scotland in April, outlaws discrimination in the provision of goods, facilities and services on the basis of sexual orientation.

'Tragedy'

It works in a similar way to rules on sex and race discrimination.

However, Cardinal Murphy-O'Connor said Roman Catholic teaching about the foundations of family life ruled out the choice of homosexual adoptive parents.

He said the closure of seven agencies would represent a wholly avoidable "tragedy".

In his letter, Cardinal Murphy-O'Connor said: "We believe it would be unreasonable, unnecessary and unjust discrimination against Catholics for the government to insist that if they wish to continue to work with local authorities, Catholic adoption agencies must act against the teaching of the Church and their own consciences."

The Catholic Church's agencies are said to handle 4%, or about 200, of all adoptions a year. However they handle about a third of those children judged difficult to place.

Opposition

The Independent on Sunday reported that Ms Kelly was battling to allow Catholic adoption agencies to turn away same-sex couples.

It reported that she had the backing of Mr Blair, whose wife is Catholic and whose children went to a Catholic school, but faced opposition from other senior colleagues.

Her department responded that "no decisions" had been taken on the detailed rules.

The Act was supposed to come into force last October, but was delayed because of 3,000 responses to a consultation.

Ms Kelly said her own religion would not prevent her from tackling discrimination, including that against homosexuals.

A number of ministers spoke out against an opt-out following the weekend reports.

Lord Chancellor Lord Falconer told BBC Radio 4's Today programme adoption agencies had to make their own judgements, based on the child's best interests.

'Blackmail' claim

But he added: "If we take the view as a society that we should not discriminate against people who are homosexual, you cannot give exclusions for people on the grounds that their religion or their race says we don't agree with that."

Labour MP Angela Eagle told BBC Radio 4's The World at One the situation the cardinal was placing the government in was close to "blackmail".

Liberal Democrat MP Evan Harris suggested religious organisations carrying out public welfare functions should be gradually replaced with "secular-governed" agencies.

"Welfare for the vulnerable cannot be put at risk by reliance on organisations who threaten to pull out, rather than apply the law," he said.

But Peter Smith, the Catholic Archbishop of Cardiff, said it cost agencies about £20,000 to select and train each family to adopt.

The government then repaid the money if a local authority agreed to a couple's suitability.

Archbishop Smith said: "The regulations as they stand would deprive our societies of funds, and they would close."

A recent attempt in the House of Lords to overturn the law, which has already been brought into force in Northern Ireland, failed by 199 votes to 68.

Churches unite over adoption row

http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/uk_politics/6293115.stm

The Church of England has backed the Catholic Church in its bid to be exempt from laws on adoption by gay couples.

Catholic leaders in England and Wales say its teachings prevent its agencies placing children with homosexuals and they will close if bound by the rules.

Archbishop of Canterbury Rowan Williams and the Archbishop of York, John Sentamu, have written to Tony Blair.

They say "rights of conscience cannot be made subject to legislation, however well-meaning".

The Equality Act, due to come into effect in England, Wales and Scotland in April, outlaws discrimination in the provision of goods, facilities and services on the basis of sexual orientation.

Matter of conscience

The archbishops said many people who do voluntary work are motivated by religious beliefs.

They point out exceptions have already been made for those whose conscience dictates they cannot take part in certain work, such as NHS doctors unwilling to perform abortions.

"In legislating to protect and promote the rights of particular groups the government is faced with the delicate but important challenge of not thereby creating the conditions within which others feel their rights have been ignored or sacrificed, or in which the dictates of personal conscience are put at risk," they said.

Archbishop Sentamu, speaking on BBC Radio 4's Today programme, said: "The freedom of conscience cannot be made subject to legislation however well-meaning."

He said the Church was "absolutely" against discrimination, and also did not believe homosexuality was a sin.

Cabinet 'split'

But he warned: "When you over-legislate and intervene too much in people's private lives I think in the long run you end up with a statute being used to cure all ills, which it cannot."

The row over whether Catholic adoption agencies should be exempt from the change in the law, which would require them to work with gay couples, is said to have split the Cabinet.

It is understood that many Cabinet members are not prepared to concede on the issue, but the prime minister's official spokesman said he was not aware that any had threatened to resign over it.

On Wednesday evening a Downing Street spokesman said "no decision" had been taken on any exemption.

But he said he did not recognise any suggestion that the decision would be "kicked into the long grass" and said it was "ridiculous" to suggest Mr Blair had "caved in".

Communities Secretary Ruth Kelly, who is Catholic, is reported to be pushing for an exemption.

Ambition or faith?

Labour MP Stephen Pound, also Catholic, does not support a religious exemption and believes the adoption row has put Ms Kelly in a difficult decision.

"We seem to be living in a world where people who have strongly held views are somehow derided for that," he told BBC's World At One.

"In Ruth's case there is demonstrably a conflict. Is it right for us to expect someone to abandon everything they believe in because of the prevailing majority view? Does she abandon her ambition or her faith?"

The National Secular Society said that allowing an exemption for the Church would open the "floodgates for a never-ending series of demands".

Cardinal Cormac Murphy-O'Connor, the leader of Catholics in England and Wales, has asked that his agencies be allowed to opt-out of rules requiring that gay couples be considered as prospective adoptive parents.

But he has denied claims that he is using "blackmail" by saying Catholic agencies will have to close, if bound by the laws.

No exemption from gay rights law

http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/uk_politics/6311097.stm

Downing Street has said there will be no exemption from anti-discrimination laws for Catholic adoption agencies.

But Tony Blair said they would get 21 months to prepare for change, calling this a "sensible compromise".

Adoption agencies had warned they would close rather than place children with gay couples, saying that went against their beliefs.

The Catholic Church in England and Wales said it was "deeply disappointed" that no exemption had been offered.

'Way through'

The proposed measures are likely to face a vote in Parliament next month before coming into effect on 6 April.

Mr Blair said he believed ministers had found a "way through" to prevent discrimination and protect the interests of children, which all "reasonable people" should be able to accept.

"There is no place in our society for discrimination. That's why I support the right of gay couples to apply to adopt like any other couple.

"And that way there can be no exemptions for faith-based adoption agencies offering public funded services from regulations that prevent discrimination."

Education Secretary Alan Johnson and Labour MP Angela Eagle, who had both opposed an exemption, welcomed the announcement.

He added: "It's a difficult situation but I think we have found the right balance and a sensible compromise."

If the plan is approved, religious agencies will have a "statutory duty" to refer gay couples to other agencies until the end of 2008.

The government hopes the extra time will allow expertise and knowledge to be passed onto the secular sector, rather than being lost altogether.

Cardinal Cormac Murphy-O'Connor, head of Catholics in England and Wales, said: "It is clear from the prime minister's statement that he has listened to some of the concerns of the Catholic Church in regard to its adoption agencies.

"We are, of course, deeply disappointed that no exemption will be granted to our agencies on the grounds of widely held religious conviction and conscience."

He added: "We note and welcome, however, the government's expressed desire that the experience and excellent work of our agencies is not lost, especially for the benefit of needy children."

'Crucial issues'

Cardinal Murphy-O'Connor also said: "This debate has raised crucial issues for the common good of our society.

"We believe there is an urgent task to reach a new consensus on how best the public role of religious organisations can be safeguarded and their rights upheld."

The Equality Act, due to come into effect in England, Wales and Scotland in April, outlaws discrimination in the provision of goods, facilities and services on the basis of sexual orientation.

Gay groups and some MPs had argued that there could be no exemption on faith grounds.

The row was said to have split the Cabinet.

Communities Secretary Ruth Kelly said government was about "robust debate and finding solutions that meet our principles".

She described the announcement as a "breakthrough" on what had been an "extremely complex issue".

For the Lib Dems, Lorely Burt said a transition period of almost two years seemed "unnecessarily long".

"The wishes of Catholic adoption agencies should not be elevated above the rest of society," she said.

Earlier Conservative leader David Cameron said he would vote for the regulations, if a compromise could not be reached.

He has promised Tory MPs a free vote on what he see as an issue of conscience.

Cruise 'is Christ' of Scientology

By EMILY SMITH

January 23, 2007

TOM Cruise is the new "Christ" of Scientology, according to leaders of the cult-like religion.

The Mission: Impossible star has been told he has been "chosen" to spread the word of his faith throughout the world.

And leader David Miscavige believes that in future, Cruise, 44, will be worshipped like Jesus for his work to raise awareness of the religion.

A source close to the actor, who has risen to one of the church's top levels, said: "Tom has been told he is Scientology's Christ-like figure.

"Like Christ, he's been criticised for his views. But future generations will realise he was right."

Cruise joined the Church of Scientology in the '80s. Leader L Ron Hubbard claimed humans bear traces of an ancient alien civilisation.

I am no fan of Gesau / scientology, Cruise or Hubbard but given his connections to Parsons, Crowley, OTO etc...he must have had inside information. After all it was Crowley who allegedly made contact with dimensional entities or what Tsarion has referred to as Macrobes...which I suspect is the real source of this reptilian nonsense that lcke talks about....Hubbard may have been evil but he must have known something...

What I believe Hubbard may have done is misled his followers by telling them that Aliens created mankind when they simply infused their genetics into human existence as shows like Mutant X have hinted at. The lead character for that show is called Adam Cain....

It was my understanding that Hubbard never actually believed it himself...

My third cousin, prolific conspiracy writer Jim Keith, was almost finished with a book on Scientology Cult Mind Control just before he died of a bruised knee.

The FBI siezed his computer and all his writtings before his body was cold.

I was told that Jim said it would become the Anti-Scientology Bible.

Scientology has undergone a takeover in the early 80's, even before Cruise ever heard of it. This was called "Operation Ramrod", some say it was done by macavians, it could have been jesuits as well.

Hubbard came out of naval intellegence and was revealing/using mind control techniques.

Auditing was at the beginning, it was never intended to be a church. What Scientology is today is almost the opposite of how it started.

CRAIG-OXLEY - January 27, 2007 01:47 AM (GMT)

Remember a lot changed with Tom Cruise and his wife after they made that film EYES WIDE SHUT. It seems whilst Stanley Kubrick was assassinated for his disloyalty by making this film, Cruise was promoted as such. Remember how Cruise and his wife split after this film also hmmm. Remember also that much symbolism was removed from the public showing of the film.

fear of depth - January 29, 2007 05:45 PM (GMT)

This goes along great with my theory that Tom Cruise is a sleeper agent of the Illuminati, that he was involved in the ritual sacrifice of Princess Diana (he and Nicole were the last people to have spent time with Di and Dodi before their "accident", remember?), and that he will be used to assassinate President Bush "John Wilkes Boothe-style".

powerful men in the publishing world - "puffed"; Graham and gave him the publicity necessary to launch and maintain his evangelical career.

 Billy Graham received an honorary degree from a Catholic institute of higher learning (Belmont Abbey College) in 1967. Graham had lots of kind words for ecumenically minded Pope John Paul II during his reign as pope.

 In fact, he called Pope John Paul II "the world's greatest moral leader". Graham's evangelical association has for years directed Catholics (who come forward at Graham's crusades) back to their local Catholic churches.

 Indeed, the connection between Billy Graham and Roman Catholicism runs very deep!

 Billy Graham has also been a friend to a number of high-level Freemasons (such as 33 degree Mason Norman Vincent Peale). (According to several sources, such as Texe Marrs of "Power of Prophecy", Graham himself is a high-level Mason.)

 Indeed, many famous persons have spoken quite favorably about Billy Graham; however, we would do well to take note that the Bible tells us: "Woe unto you, when all men shall speak well of you..." (See Luke 6:26)

Billy Graham -- Ally of Rome

This article was first printed in The Revivalist May, 1972.
Dr. Ian Paisley

Dr. Billy Graham the well known evangelist is visiting Belfast. He has been invited by those who profess to be evangelical, and loyal to the Lord Jesus Christ.

One wonders how far these gentlemen know the activities in which Dr. Graham participates, or how far they are prepared to condone such activities.

Dr. Graham has departed completely from the Reformation viewpoint concerning the Church of Rome. He looks upon that church as a Christian church, and when Roman Catholics profess conversion at his campaigns he directs them back to the Roman Catholic Church. He has called the second Vatican Council the work of the Holy Spirit, and in Pittsburg spoke of his intention to attend a Roman Catholic Mass, and added, "Many of the people who reach a decision on Christ at our meetings have joined the Catholic Church, and we have received commendations from Catholic publications for the revived interest in their church following our campaign."

In his Berlin Congress of Evangelism he opened negotiations with the Roman Catholic Church, and as a consequence two Roman Catholic priests were present.

In 1967 Dr. Graham received an Honorary Dr.'s degree from the hands of a Roman Catholic priest at the Roman Catholic Belmont Abbey. On that occasion Dr. Graham claimed that he preached the same gospel as the Church of Rome. His actual words were, "Finally the way of salvation has not changed. I know how the ending of the book will be. The gospel that built this school, and the gospel that brings me here tonight is still the way of salvation."

...but notorious modernists who deny the virgin birth of the Lord Jesus Christ. Dr. Graham not only has prominent Roman Catholics co-operating with him in his campaigns, but notorious modernists who deny the virgin birth of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the power of the precious blood of Christ alone to save. In a letter from his evangelistic association one of his colleagues had this to say, "MR. GRAHAM BELIEVES THAT WE ARE SAVED THROUGH THE BLOOD OF CHRIST, HOWEVER, THIS ASPECT OF CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE HE DOES NOT EMPHASISE IN HIS MESSAGES. THIS IS THE DUTY AND PREROGATIVE OF THE PASTORS." For these reasons the ministers and members of the Free Presbyterian Church of Ulster will not be fellowshiping with Dr. Graham when he comes to Ulster, as it is, ecumenism and Romanism which has brought this Province into the sorry mess in which it is today. Loyalty to Christ is far more important than popularity. Compromise is of the essence of betrayal. Faithfulness must be the watchword of our preaching, and the governing principal of our lives.

Title: Pope Says Video Games Are Perverse

<http://www.cnn.com/2007/WORLD/europe/01/24...reut/index.html>

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) -- Pope Benedict said on Wednesday that the media were "perverse" and harmed children when they exalted violence and trivialized human sexuality in the name of entertainment.

The Pope made his comments in a message for the Roman Catholic Church's World Day of Communications, whose theme this year is "Children and the Media: A Challenge for Education".

While recognizing that many people involved in social communications wanted to do what is right, commercial competitiveness often meant lower standards, he said.

"Any trend to produce programs and products -- including animated films and video games -- which in the name of entertainment exalt violence and portray anti-social behavior or the trivialization of human sexuality is a perversion," he said.

He said this was "all the more repulsive" when programs were directed at children and adolescents.

"How could one explain this 'entertainment' to the countless innocent young people who actually suffer violence, exploitation and abuse?" he said.

Globalization had led to an even more pervasive effect of the media over children and their influence was rivaling those of school, church and home, the Pope said.

"I appeal to the leaders of the media industry to educate and encourage producers to safeguard the common good, to uphold the truth, to protect individual human dignity and promote respect for the needs of the family," he said.

He´s revealing the newest news with that :lol:, but we all should listen, because being part of a organization that has been involved in starting several wars, ratzi really knows what perversion is.

Its true, the media shows a lot of violence, mainly in the news. Why does there always need to be a murder or a gunfight, etc to make tv shows "entertaining". At some daytimes you can´t even zap through the channels without seeing violence or some "horror thriller" bullshit.

Remember when "Saving Private Ryan" came to the cinemas and everbody was talking that the first 20min are hard to watch, but what was shown there was simply what weapons do, pure physics and insanity of war.

Games can help a lot with improving skills like hand-eye coordination or just by challenging to think. Its also great to compare with the skills of others and have a nice chat while playing (artificial intelegence isn´t that far to be fun), so we could call it "cultural activity". Wolveshater, right now we have an imperialist position--go out and pick fights with everyone and conquer them. Look at Iraq.

I advocate the "you stay out of my face and I'll stay out of yours" position.

Isolationism means no NWO, as it means no foreign entanglements--something Washington warned against. We should keep our nose out of everyone else's business and just have our military DEFEND our borders. And you know why Hitler left Switzerland alone? Because everyone there is armed! As I saw on a bumper sticker, "The Second Amendment IS Homeland Security!"

We would have stayed out of WWII had it not been for Pearl Harbor--something FDR knew about and probably had a hand in. My granduncle died fighting in the Battle of Kasserine Pass (North Africa) in 1943, and it makes me mad that he didn't HAVE to die!

I agree in part, the wars were all orchestrated and had nothing to do with freedom for America, and we should not be meddling in forign countrys business, all soldiers were murdered fighting for the wishes of Rome, we have been invaded and taken control of in this country, turning the other cheek will not get it back. fighting sucks, just ask those who have done it, warriors Like Oliver Cromwell, and George Washington did not want to fight, they had to. now we Americans also must ready for the fight, or get ready for the cage. these traiters will not leave you alone when the day comes, being passive is what they want you to be. Slaves are passive. I hope you get to read Vatican assassins Alexandra, if you have not already. when the Papacy took France they went into the homes of those who were protestant christians with king james bibles and tortured and killed women children and old men. and chopped off the heads. they kicked people into the snow and burned their homes and took all clothing from them and let them freeze and starve. this is what apathy got them. I expect they will beat us, I will fight them any way. if we all get together we have a chance still. I'd rather not deal with this myself, I hate violence, the enemy is already here and he is violent, he understands nothing else the wolf beast must be dealt violence to retain Freedom. it will be forced on us one day, I prefer to ready myself. and I want them to know it. they can bring it.

Who said anything about being passive?

Remember that I said that the military should be used to DEFEND our country. It shouldn't be used to pick fights with everyone because they might do something bad. If someone attacks us, of course we should defend our country--not let them walk all over us!

And if two countries go at it, we shouldn't be jumping into the fray, either. Let them duke it out.

Switzerland was not a neutral state. Switzerland was and IS a PROPERTY of Vatican. Look at the flag: the same as the Templars, only the colors are inverted. Look the flag of the Army of Vatican, it belong to a county of Switzerland and is the same of the fascists's Mussolini militia.

Hitler didn't touch Switzerland because Vatican/Jesuit scum TOLD HIM TO DO SO. Hitler was CONTROLLED by Swiss.

Switzerland, together with Spain, Danmark, Sweden, Ireland, the supposed 'neutral nations' - was the key to manage the Second Thyrtly Y. War in Europe.

THE keys always enter the lock, open the door and then return save in the pocket meanwhile outside it happens the pandemonium.

Isolationist or not isolationist, the only solutions for Americans to save themselves from the next programmed 'Sinking of Titanic/a nation':
expell IMMEDIATELY ALL Jesuits and the ALL the catholic hyerarchy and clergy, all the Italian Catholic spy (who for example writes against 'America' FROM America, in Italian Language and directed to Italians readers....on Italians sites like Luogo Comune) declare the City of Vatican a CRIMINAL STATE and Catholicism as a form of Nazi-politics disguised as religion and aimed to destroy the genuine spirit of American Costitution.

Catholic Priest rapes woman in Las Vegas

LAS VEGAS, Nevada (AP) -- Police officers were searching for a Roman Catholic priest they believe may have sexually assaulted and struck a woman at a Las Vegas, Nevada, church.

Authorities said they were called to Our Lady of Las Vegas Catholic Church on Friday evening by someone who heard a woman in the church cry for help.

Officers found a church employee who said she had been assaulted and hit in the head with an object by a priest. Investigators consider the Rev. George Chaanine a person of interest, police spokesman Bill Cassell said.

Police closed the grounds of the church, which is about four miles west of the Las Vegas Strip, for about an hour while they searched for Chaanine.

They believe the priest is driving a cream-colored Buick LeSabre.

The victim was treated at University Medical Center and released.

CRAIG-OXLEY - January 27, 2007 03:34 AM (GMT)

I think I might have sent a book about the Pilgrim Society titled "MEET THE WORLD MONEY POWER by Charles Savoie:

http://www.silver-investor.com/charlessavoie/cs_dec04.pdf

There are several references to the Jesuits and the Knights of Malta. (Click on the binoculars icon and search for any term in the document you want)The relationship between the SMOM and the Pilgrim Society is salient especially when you consider the fact that J. Peter Grace who was once the head of the American SMOM (second only to the Archbishop of New York) was a member of the Pilgrim Society. SMOM Elmer Bobst once the head of Warner-Lambert Pharmaceutical Company (which produces Listerine mouthwash and Dentyne chewing gum which contains the poison aspartame) is a "Pilgrim." Here is an interesting link. Notice that SMOM Bobst and OSS founder and SMOM Papal William "Wild Bill" Donovan were on the Board of Directors of the American Cancer Society in 1958. Scroll down and you will see they were honorary life directors of the ACS. Joseph P. Kennedy a powerful SMOM at the time of his son JFK's assassination which he was undoubtedly involved in. The Pilgrim Society ranks higher than the Council on Foreign Relations in the Jesuits' Illuminati hierarchy according to Brother Fritz Springmeier author of the book "The 13 Bloodlines of the Illuminati" Here is a link to his presentation:

Google Link

Brother Eric evidenced by the chart on his VA website knows of The Pilgrim Society.

Here's what I think about the Jesuits and their Illuminati in terms of history. It is true the Illuminati and Freemasonry predate the Jesuit Order which was founded by Satan's tool Ignatius Loyola in 1534. Loyola was also member of the Spanish Alumbrados as we both know. The Jesuit Order took over the Illuminati when they wrote the last few degrees of Scottish Rite Freemasonry after high Masonic Frederick the Great protected them after they were expelled from Europe. The Black Pope had already controlled Freemasonry and the Illuminati by the time of Jesuit Adam Weishaupt who founded the Bavarian Illuminati May 1 1776. The Bavarian Illuminati was only one branch of a vast international network. The Jesuits control them all through the high Masonic degrees they formulated. So it all makes sense true the Knight Templar/Freemasons and Illuminati were around before the founding of the Company of Gesu but since it is openly religious it wins out because of the Romanist dogma of the two swords found in Unam Sanctam the secular and religious. I think the secular sword is the Illuminati/Freemasonry and the religious is Roman Catholicism which is ruled by the Jesuit Order. Thanks for the message.

Brother Nicholas N. Rivera

CRAIG-OXLEY - January 27, 2007 03:38 AM (GMT)

Folks we know the Pilgrim Society is headed by the Guelph herself Queen Elizabeth II. This supposedly is the direct master of the Order of the Garter which what a shock is too controlled by the Guelph herself. We know that the Order of the Garter is a Inner circle of the Sovereign Military of Malta. You will notice that one particular site claims the Pilgrim Society controls the Knights of Malta. I put forth to you that once again the Pilgrim is yet another layer on the SMOM onion.

So we have

1. SMOM
2. PILGRIM SOCIETY
3. ORDER OF THE GARTER
4. COMMITTEE OF 300

The formerly known Round Tables Group is simply a front for the Pilgrim Society.

Remember folks that Fritz Springmeier is currently locked away in a Jail cell fitted up on robbery charges he most certainly NEVER committed. So that tells you how much of a threat he is/was to this damn Saturnalian Brotherhood system we have the most unfortunately pleasure to be sitting within.

R.I. School Bans Talking at Lunch

Jan 25 6:22 PM US/Eastern

By JUSTIN M. NORTON
Associated Press Writer

WARWICK, R.I. (AP) -- Class, from now on there will be no talking at lunch. A Roman Catholic elementary school adopted new lunchroom rules this week requiring students to remain silent while eating. The move comes after three recent choking incidents in the cafeteria.

No one was hurt, but the principal of St. Rose of Lima School explained in a letter to parents that if the lunchroom is loud, staff members cannot hear a child choking.

Christine Lamoureux, whose 12-year-old is a sixth-grader at the school, said she respects the safety issue but thinks the rule is a bad idea.

"They are silent all day," she said. "They have to get some type of release." She suggested quiet conversation be allowed during lunch.

Another mother, Thina Paone, does not mind the silent lunches, noting that the cafeteria "can be very crazy" at the suburban school south of Providence.

Principal Jeannine Fuller did not immediately return a call seeking comment, but a spokesman for the Diocese of Providence described the silence rule as a temporary safety measure.

Spokesman Michael Guilfoyle said the school does not expect complete silence but enough quiet to keep students safe.

Lori Healey, a teacher at the school who also has a son in third grade, said "silent lunch" means students can whisper.

"They know it's not for punishment," she said. "It's for safety, and they'll be the first ones to tell you."

Stacey Wildenhain, a teacher's assistant at St. Rose, said her 7-year-old son does not mind the policy. He told her: "The sooner we eat, the sooner we can get out to play," she said.

Amanda Karhuse, of the National Association of Secondary School Principals, said that students should not run wild during lunch, but that they also should not have to remain silent.

"It seems kind of ridiculous in our opinion," she said. "Kids need that social time, and they just need time to be kids at that age."

The principal's letter also spelled out other new lunch rules, including requiring students to stay in their seats and limiting them to one trip to the trash can. Any child who breaks the rules will serve detention the next day.

Paone's 6-year-old son, Joey, said he accepts the changes, but some of his classmates were having trouble obeying the rules.

Kara Casali, who also has a 6-year-old son at the school, said the rules against talking will be tough to enforce.

"I can't imagine having a silent lunch," she said.

I agree with not speaking when eating. When you go into an eating area to eat that's precisely what should happen. People need to concentrate on eating and more so eating correctly. As this article says many can choke and have but the biggest problem is that people simply do NOT chew their food correctly. This creates many problems long term.

Remember though that Catholic schools etc especially of old are so strict and discipline and those damn nuns are lethal.

Just about anyone can edit Wikipedia entries--except for certain ones that apparently keep getting trashed.

While Wikipedia is good for "basic" facts...they don't want to tell you anything they don't want you to know, or they spin it so it sounds like something only a nutcase would believe.

CRAIG-OXLEY - January 27, 2007 01:38 AM (GMT)

Phelps has said this and I have too. Peter Hans Kolvenbach gives the Orders and his minions fulfill them. Nothing happens without the Black Pope allowing and being aware of it happening. There are many powerful people who have power over the U.S such as the British Monarchy and some Zionists. These can order attacks on the U.S but alas it will go through the Jesuits first for approval. Remember the Queen serves the Order not the other way round. Shes a Sovereign Military of Malta head for her region. Shes the head of one of the SMOM inner circles being the Order of the Garter and of course the Pilgrim Society.

From <http://14.freebb.com/unhivedmind/unhivedmi...rticle1036.html>

In 2003 at a health show in Pasadena I was poisoned in a restaurant. I violated my rule by having a steak with a friend and his wife, as I never eat meat away from home. I also violated my rule of never leaving food unsupervised; a tremendous Japanese guitarist was playing and I just had to speak with him. About twelve hours later in the midst of the convention, around 12:00pm the following day, I began to get an upset stomach and had to take a taxi back to my hotel room; all the while I was feeling worse and worse.

By the evening I was hosting a fever and a rapid heartbeat. The sweats came on and I could get no relief. My two friends visited me but could provide no relief except colloidal silver. I really could have used a good dose of charcoal capsules. The same transpired the following day: fever, the sweats, dizziness, weakness and a feeling of utter helplessness. So, I cancelled my flight for the following day and re-booked for the next. By the time Tuesday arrived I felt a little better after much water drinking, fasting, prayer and determination to leave that town. I could not carry my bags and knowing that a hospital stay is risky business, I called a taxi.

The driver was a Jordanian Muslim, a hard working, kind individual with sincere eye contact. After talking a bit I gave him the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ to which he answered in a polite but distant way that he was a Muslim. Time went on and the conversation turned to the 911 War against Islam. I told him that he should return to Jordan as he would be safer there; that Concentration Camps were going to be opened and the Muslims were to be rounded up as were the Japanese during WWII; and that this war will involve the destruction of Mecca, Medina and the Jerusalem mosques.

The Muslim then realized then that I was sincerely trying to help him. He, full of verve, said that he had a house in Jordan and could go back anytime he wanted, to which I replied, "Now is a good time." As we pulled up to the departure gate he turned and said to me, "If those mosques are blown up, IT WILL BE WAR FOREVER ON AMERICA. We will raise every generation of our children to hate and kill Americans wherever we find them. And one day we will invade this place." Later, I thought God in His providence gave me this sickness so that I would meet this Muslim man, he confirming from his own lips what I had been saying for the previous three years.

Now at the airport, I was still weak but determined to get on my plane. Two Black bag handlers took and tagged my bags like I have never seen before. I told them both, "You guys are good," and gave them a nice tip. I had a feeling I was being watched, as at the time I was under investigation in Pennsylvania; so I determined to keep moving. I came to an escalator with steps alongside. I stopped, prayed and then mounted the stairs conveying to those watching me that I was not really as feeble as I looked. When at the top of the stairs, I kept moving, got to the gate, boarded the plane and was home that evening. Through a friend talking to a local cop, I discovered that the State Police had tapped my phone in Pasadena and knew that I could not eat and was very sick. As you must know, the Harrisburg diocese controls our State Police via high-level Freemasonry.

When I arrived home, I spent six to eight weeks in recovery. I could not swallow any solids for about two weeks. My throat felt like a piece of sandpaper and it was quite red in, and behind, the tonsil area. I knew I was fighting a massive infection that was so bad, I thought I had SARS (sp). I irradiated my blood but no relief; then I ozonated in a sauna bath. That helped over time but still I was not recovering as calculated. I finally used my Rife machine using soft red laser lights in the eyes in addition with silver footpads and silver handhelds. Within three sittings, I began to get better all the while thinking that this is something more than a pathogenic infection. Over the eight-week period I had lost 20 pounds (from 170 to 150) and looked like death. But I was able to swallow again and eat and laugh and thank the Lord for sparing my insignificant life.

Only when I was studying the murder of Stonewall Jackson, his poisoning by Masonic Doctor Hunter McGuire, did I realize that the symptoms of the General were nearly identical to mine. And Jackson had been treated with "antimony, mercury and opium." I also believed that "the Hunter" twice gave the General arsenic---the Order's favorite metallic poison. With that understanding I then realized why the Rife machine had worked over UVBI and Ozone in a sauna.

In conclusion, I never dine out unless I can eat at a smorgasbord type of setting. No one ever serves me food that I have not chosen for myself. And most assuredly, I never eat meat away from home. In retrospect, I sometimes think that I just got sick; but then the sudden onset, the symptoms, the strange place with strange people---none of whom were Bible-believing people, the loss of 20 pounds and the success of the Rife machine, eliminated any doubt that I was indeed poisoned.

The problem is I think I know who did it, and I don't want to believe it.

I trust this is helpful for others who might find themselves in a similar situation. My advice, in addition to the above, is to always carry charcoal and use it immediately if the symptoms of nausea begin to set in. It will absorb the poison in the stomach and bowel.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

Mel Gibson is well aware of the Catholic leadership of the Conspiracy. Mel played his role recently in his agitation of Jews just as his leadership would have ordered. Its all a movie for the herd to follow, directed by Jesuits, SMOM etc.

I listened to a very rare heard interview of the arresting officer, carried only on one radio show(though extremely popular in America), Jon & Ken Show on KFI where much was disclosed. This is right after Mel Gibson's apology for his comments, BEFORE it was widely released that he ever made any comments. Jon & Ken on KFI interviewed the arresting police officer questioning him on many aspects that never went into any of the official reports, major media, police reports etc.

(note the police officer sounded almost drugged, didn't sound very smart, and was very apprehensive on answering many of the questions because much was still under investigation, including himself)

Here are some of the questions and answers from my notes. (note, this isn't exact quotes, but it is revealing things they said ONLY ON ONE SHOW and no where else!):

Jon & Ken: So Mel Gibson asked if you're a jew, so are you in fact a jew?

Police Officer: Yes

Jon & Ken: Did the fact that you're a jew have anything to do with the arrest?

Police Officer: No, I handled it as a normal DUI.

Jon & Ken: Did you realize the gravity of the situation arresting a celebrity, and especially mentioning Mel Gibson was screaming at the top of his lungs that "jews are responsible for all the wars in the world"?

Police Officer: I didn't realize how famous he was. I'm just now finding out how popular he was.

Jon & Ken: Do you always write down all the things people say for DUIs?

Police Officer: We try to at least cover that someone was belligerent, their behavior.

Jon & Ken: So your original report did mention the things Mel Gibson said?

Police Officer: I wrote down what he said.

Jon & Ken: So what happened to the original report?

Police Officer: I'm not supposed to talk about the investigation.

Jon & Ken: Isn't it illegal for the report to be replaced and be changed? Doesn't that effect the investigation for court?

Police Officer: I can't say anything about that, it's all under investigation, I don't want to get in any trouble.

END OF MY NOTES OF INTERVIEW.

My own conclusion on the facts as well as my own personal perceptual opinion (which may be contradictory to some posting on this board) that is, I'm only 1/2 way convinced it was Mel's intension; it's more probable that it happened by accident, unless there were some supernatural forces at work. Without hearing this rare interview I may had been inclined to lean more towards 2Tuff's suspicion, but who knows? Maybe it was 100% planned, maybe it was partially planned, maybe not at all. I think it was partially planned, and was what many would call LUCK that he pulled it off.

THE POPE'S SECRETS

by Tony Alamo

The Vatican is posing as Snow White, but the Bible says that she is a prostitute, "the great whore," a cult (Rev. 19:2).¹ She uses government agency branches in every country, including the United States, as her vicious little dwarfs. The more power and control she gets in government, the more she will fade away into the background in her "Snow White" disguise so that government will be used and blamed for all her evil deeds.

REASON: To enforce laws that harass, malign, destroy, and censor everyone and every idea that is not Roman Catholic so she can sit as the satanic queen (the big whore).

Because of her age-old desire to control the world government and church, the serpent-like Vatican has infested the world and the U.S. government with so many of her zealous, highly-trained and dedicated Jesuit devotees, that she now controls the United Nations (which she created),² the White House, Congress, every state, federal, civic, and social government agency, including the U.S. Department of Labor, the IRS, the FBI, the Supreme Court, judicial systems, the armed forces, state, federal, and other police, also the international banking and federal reserve systems (called the Illuminati and Agentur), labor unions,³ the Mafia, and most of the heavyweight news media.

This cult (the Vatican) is very close to replacing our U.S. Constitution with her one-world, satanic canon laws of death to the "heretic" (anyone that is not Roman Catholic). General Lafayette, President George Washington's most respected aide and general, prophetically stated, "If the liberties of the American people are ever destroyed, they will fall by the hand of the Roman Catholic cult's clergy."⁴

Today we see the climax of detailed plans given in excerpts from a speech given nearly fifty years ago in Australia by Roman Catholic Archbishop Gilroy:

"The Roman Catholic motto is ourselves alone for fellow Roman Catholics. We must defeat all heretics [non-Roman Catholics] at the ballot box. The holy father states that negative tactics are fatal. The demands of the holy father [the pope] are that the public services should be 100% Roman Catholic soon. Care must be taken that no suspicion may be raised when Roman Catholics are secretly given more government jobs than Protestants, Jews, and other heretics."

Multi-millions of people have been slaughtered by the Vatican, thus saith the Lord (Rev. 18:24). History bears record to this fact. During the Roman Catholic inquisition in Europe, 68 million people were tortured, maimed, and murdered by this huge sect.⁵ The St. Bartholomew's Day Massacre accounted for the butchering of as many as 100,000 Protestants.⁶ President Abraham Lincoln blamed the papacy for the Civil War in these words:

"This war would never have been possible without the sinister and secretive influence of the Jesuits. We owe it to popery that we now see our land reddened with the blood of her noblest sons." Lincoln added, "I am for liberty of conscience in its noblest, broadest, and highest sense. But I cannot give liberty of conscience to the pope and to his followers, the papists, so long as they tell me, through all their councils, theologians, and canon laws that their conscience orders them to burn my wife, strangle my children, and cut my throat when they find their opportunity."⁷

Because of Abraham Lincoln's many exposés of the Vatican, he was put to death just as he foretold. Yes, assassinated by the Jesuits under Rome's instructions.⁸ The Vatican hasn't changed since Mr. Lincoln's time.

J.F.K.'S FATAL MISTAKE

When John F. Kennedy was asked by the Vatican, "Are you going to go along with the Roman canon law or the U.S. Constitution?" Mr. Kennedy answered them by saying, "The U. S. Constitution."⁹ This was President Kennedy's fatal mistake. His assassination was ordered by Rome, then planned and carried out by Jesuits, just as President Lincoln's was. Anyone who knew too much about Mr. Kennedy's assassination was taken care of too.

When America cried out for an investigation, Chief Justice Earl Warren (a member of the Vatican's secretive Knights of Columbus) was recruited to do the investigation. He did a lot of double-talking and shuffling—as he was supposed to—and then, after a sufficient period of time, closed the investigation. Like the pope says, "Negative actions are fatal." Remember that President Kennedy was a great admirer and a student of Abraham Lincoln and knew what Mr. Lincoln knew.

World War II, with its casualties of over thirty million deaths (six million Jews—the Holocaust),¹⁰ was conjured up and sponsored by the Vatican—Hitler, Mussolini, and Franco were all members of this sect (the Roman Catholic cult)¹¹ —to win the world, not for Christ, but for the Vatican, the Antichrist.

The turmoil in Central and South America, the tyranny under Jesuit-trained Castro¹² in Cuba and throughout the Caribbean, and the terrorism in Lebanon and Ireland today are the Vatican's handiwork. Now can you see why God calls the Roman Catholic cult the mother of every abomination on earth (Rev. 17:5)?

The Vatican knew that after World War II many people were wise to the fact that the war was a Vatican inquisition, so they had to use one of their famous diversionary tactics and open the John Birch Society to get everybody thinking and talking about Communism (which the Vatican also sponsors) instead of the true culprit (the Vatican). This was a great success for them.

The Vatican also sponsors every major terrorist group in the world. The reason for this is to keep people's thoughts on unexplainable, insane tragedies that their terrorist groups are committing while the Vatican is busy undermining all the governments of the world so they can have world dominion (papal power). When terrorist news hits, it is so shocking that it minimizes the news of the Vatican taking away the U.S. Constitution and of people being deprived of their religious freedoms (being jailed, schools and churches being closed). This is the real thing that the Vatican is after though, world control of our religion and our government. The more insane, bizarre, unreasonable, and unexplainable the terrorism is, the better. The Vatican's heavyweight news media also keeps you busy thinking about it all. Now that they are exposed with their modus operandi, they will soon (with their media and the President of the United States, who just joined them) be the driving force of a campaign to stop all this terrorism (that they have created themselves) to make everyone believe that they are good and godly, and that they could have never sponsored anything like this. (Update: such as Terry Waite negotiating in Lebanon.)

Jim Jones, a Roman Catholic Jesuit deacon posing as a Christian, was sacrificed (not with poisoned Kool-aid), murdered, along with his flock, by the Vatican to make the world look narrowly and suspiciously upon innocent Christian retreats.¹³

"These six things doth the Lord hate: yea, seven are an abomination unto Him: A proud look, a lying tongue, and hands that shed innocent blood, An heart that deviseth wicked imaginations, feet that be swift in running to mischief, A false witness that speaketh lies, and he that soweth discord among brethren" (Prov. 6:16-19). (All these things that God hates, the devilish Vatican is.)

Did you ever notice that with the Vatican-controlled U.S. Customs and Immigration we cannot get out of this country without going through the third degree (searches, radar, etc.). But in the 1960's, when Jesuit Vatican-trained Timothy Leary¹⁴ led our nation's youth into drug addiction, Immigration and Customs seemed unable then, as they do now, to detect tens of thousands of pounds of narcotics and drugs entering into our once fair nation via the Mafia, which launders all of its illicit, ill-gotten gain (all its black market money) through the Vatican. Maybe this is why President Abraham Lincoln said, "I see a very dark cloud on America's horizon, and that dark cloud is coming from Rome."¹⁵

Look at what the Bible says about the Antichrist that caused all this corruption and shed all this blood:

"And I saw the woman [the Vatican] drunken with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus: and when I saw her, I wondered with great [amazement]" (Rev. 17:6).

"How much she hath glorified herself, and lived deliciously, so much torment and sorrow give her: for she saith in her heart, I sit a queen, and am no widow, and shall see no sorrow" (Rev. 18:7).

"These [governments] have one mind, and shall give their power and strength unto the beast," that is one-world government, state and federal, civic and social government agencies included, powered by Satan, giving that power to the Antichrist by carrying out her orders (Rev. 17:13).

These are some of the very last signs in the Bible's book of Revelation before Jesus comes back to earth again and time shall be no more. God destroyed the world by water,¹⁶ Sodom and Gomorrah by fire and brimstone.¹⁷ On both occasions, God sent messengers preaching the forthcoming doom. Today God in His infinite mercy warns all Roman Catholics, "Come out of her, My people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues" (Rev.18:4). If you are one of God's people, if the life-giving Spirit has quickened you unto eternal life, then obey the Word by coming out of her. Why? Because to not do so is disobedience, and disobedience is the same as witchcraft.¹⁸

Many Vatican state and federal government agencies such as the IRS, OSHA, and the U.S. Department of Labor, along with labor unions, have wonderfully destroyed the economic backbone of our country by harassing and forcing hundreds of businesses and industries into bankruptcy and out of business.¹⁹ This leaves millions of Americans out of work and hungry, while Vatican enterprises are not harassed at all but do flourish, because they run the government agencies. Look at what God says about the Antichrist when he will be thrown into Hell:

“They that see thee shall narrowly look upon thee, and consider thee, saying, Is this the man [the Antichrist] that made the earth to tremble, that did shake kingdoms; That made the world as a wilderness, and destroyed the cities thereof?” (Isa. 14:16-17).

FEDS OK VATICAN SLAVE LABOR CAMPS

Just one of the Vatican's many, multi-billion dollar enterprises is their liquor and wine slave labor camps, which have no labor problems whatsoever because they unlawfully use free labor (thousands of Roman Catholic monks). These federal government agencies will not allow anyone else to enjoy the same privileges of volunteering our labor to God, our Father, and our Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ because we are all “heretics” (non-Roman Catholics). Yes, their enterprises do prosper with no harm or harassment using free labor in their Christian Brothers, 20 La Salle, and Benedictine liquor and wine distilleries (slave labor camps) and in many others all the way from Napa Valley, California, to New York State.

The Vatican's IRS and U.S. Department of Labor now cross the constitutional dividing line of separation between church and state and, in every way, are attempting to destroy all fundamental Christian churches and schools. One way is by taking away their tax-exempt status. This anti-American, anti-U.S. Constitution organization (the IRS), however, has given tax exempt status to all communist organizations in America under Internal Revenue Code 501©3. They have never made any attempt to take this status away from them.²¹ Rome's collection agency (the IRS) has also made sure that the Roman Catholic cult and all those affiliated with it (the one world church) are the only religious organizations in the U.S. that don't have to pay property tax or even tax on their multi-billion dollar businesses.²² This is done under Sec. 892 of the Internal Revenue Code. The Vatican is the only religion that receives multi-millions of dollars of federal aid each year for their parochial schools.²³ This comes out of your tax dollars. Like Archbishop Gilroy says, “Ourselves alone for fellow Roman Catholics” and “we must defeat all heretics.”

The Vatican has used the Communist Party to help destroy the Russian Orthodox churches, and she used the Nazi Party in her attempt to do away with the Jews and their synagogues. (Because the Vatican says that all others than themselves are “heretics”—non-Roman Catholics.)

IRS—ROMAN CULT'S COLLECTION AGENCY

The Roman Catholic Jesuits started the international banking system²⁴ called the Illuminati and the Agentur (and blamed the Jews for this). Rome's motto is, “He that holds the money bags runs the nations.” The Vatican started all the wars (inquisitions) to rid the world of heretics (non-Roman Catholics) and then made loans from her banks to nations so they would have enough money to fight them. We foolishly permitted this cult's collection agency into our country (the IRS—which answers only to Rome).

According to God's laws in the Bible, every fifty years there is to be a clearing of debts that can't be paid (a relief). This is called the year of jubilee (Lev. 25:10). Let's bump cultish Roman canon law of death and bondage and get back to God's law and His Son, Christ Jesus. Let's have a clearing (the year of jubilee). These debts have been instigated by Satan (the Roman Catholic cult) to hurt us and put us into financial bondage. We didn't start these wars, we didn't want these wars, and we didn't borrow that money. So why should we have to suffer? These wars were all Roman Catholic inquisitions to mold the world into a one-world government, church, and media.²⁵

At the one-world church convention in Vancouver, some of our volunteers were shocked by the pro-homosexual booths and literature, pro-witchcraft booths and literature, drunkenness, and total ungodliness, which this "universal" world's largest cult and sect exalts. These satanic people call anybody that preaches the true Word, which is separation from evil, consecration unto good²⁶—they call this a cult or a sect. But they worship this one-world organization and its cult leader, the pope...

"Who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshipped; so that he [or a soon to come pope] as God [will soon sit] in the temple of God [in Jerusalem], showing himself that he is God" (II Thes. 2:4).

"Even him, whose coming is after the working of Satan with all power and signs and lying wonders, And with all deceivableness of unrighteousness in them that perish" (II Thes. 2:9-10).

They kneel and kiss his ring and feet²⁷ and call him "holy father," which is forbidden in the Bible.²⁸ They obey his every wish. By calling us a cult, who walk in the Spirit and obey God's every wish, they have possibly committed the unpardonable sin—blasphemy of the Holy Spirit—which is never forgiven in this world nor in the world to come (Matt. 12:31-32). But Satan does not care because he already has blasphemed the Holy Spirit.

THE MARK OF THE BEAST

Satan wants you to spend eternity in Hell with him.²⁹ And to cause you to do this, look what he, through his state and federal government agencies, has cooked up for you now: government enforcement of a law making it necessary for you to take a mark on your hand or your forehead in order to be allowed to buy or sell (this could be done invisibly by using laser beams). God calls this mark "the mark of the beast" (Rev. 19:20). The Vatican will use some pretty name for it "the mark of peace, love, unity, fellowship, etc." And God says if we take this mark we will go to Hell (Rev. 14: 9-11).

The pope, the super-boss, and his federal and state government agencies will say that if we don't take this mark we will be boycotted (can't buy or sell). I'll trust God to feed me, just as He fed the Hebrew children for forty years in the Sinai Desert. And God will do wonders again for His faithful followers who resist the pope, his government agencies, and the mark.

President Reagan has been bewitched too by the Vatican's craft just as other world leaders have. This is obvious by his sudden move of sending our U.S. ambassador into the big Roman whorehouse (this cult's home office and general headquarters).

Mr. President, you're hanging around far too much with those Jesuit-trained, one-world church ministers, and they're giving you some really bad advice. Is it the Vatican money and the big Vatican back-up that's causing you to become part of this cult? Would you sell your eternal soul by joining yourself and our nation to the Antichrist for money and temporal power?

The Lord asks, "What shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own [eternal] soul?" (Mark 8:36). By having done this, you're now in big trouble with the living God, lest you straighten up and fly right and publicly recant your decision so that the Lord and the public know where you stand exactly.

Respectfully, Mr. President, in the name of Jesus, I say these things to you. We're at the end of time, and the day of the politician is over. We all have to let people know what's in us. The Bible says that he who receiveth not reproof from God's Word is brutish (Prov. 12:1). Mr. President and all of you presidents and kings of the world, there is a judgment for all of us, and I believe it's coming real soon.

A TRUE ISRAELITE BELIEVES GOD

I'm not a theological seminary man. I am a true Israelite, washed in the blood of Jesus, filled with the Holy Spirit, and sent by the Lord to preach Jesus crucified, resurrected, alive, and soon to return to this earth again.³⁰ I have full authority from Heaven to preach this.

A true Israelite is one who believes God, which most Jews don't, because they reject the Messiah by rejecting the over 300 scriptures in the Old Testament telling of the Messiah. Some Israelites have converted to this sect (Roman Catholicism). The Vatican wanted them to become rabbis so that they could place them in the Israeli Knesset as spies. Some of these Roman Jesuit rabbis are there today as spies.

In World War II, Poland was the strongest Vatican-controlled country. If the Vatican loves Jews so much—then and today—why did she allow the slaughter pens of the most Jews to be in Poland? Why did the Vatican forge the anti-Semitic document, "Protocols of the Elders of Zion," blaming the Vatican's desires for world rulership on us Jews? Why did she blame the schemes of the Vatican's international bankers, Illuminati and Agenturs on us Jews?31 And why does the Vatican have spies posing as rabbis in the Knesset if this anti-Semitic, Roman Catholic cult loves the Jews so much? God says:

“O My people, they which lead thee cause thee to err, and destroy the way of thy paths” (Isa. 3:12).

The time of the Messiah’s second coming is now, so repent or perish,32 which means accept the Messiah and the atonement, which is His blood which He shed for your sins,33 or perish, which means you will go to Hell if you don’t.34

There are religious leaders who are leading millions of people to Hell because of their connection with and exaltation of the Antichrist and his cult, “Speaking lies in hypocrisy; having their conscience seared with a hot iron” (I Tim. 4:2). Some are Jesuit priests posing as Christians. They and their organizations have been rewarded handsomely from Rome because they have herded unsuspecting ignorant masses of their followers right into Satan’s universal church, who has future plans of them all taking the mark of the beast35 in the name of Christian fellowship, brotherhood, peace, charisma, and love. People have been easily led into this division of the Vatican’s cult and think they are right “because they received not the love of the truth, that they might be saved” (followed not God’s Word exactly). Because of this, God said that He would “send them strong delusion[s], that they should believe a lie: That they all might be damned who believe not the truth, but have pleasure in unrighteousness (the whole Antichrist set-up)” (II Thes. 2:3-12).

These false leaders love the Roman Catholic money and political connections. It keeps them on national and international television, and it helps build temporary little empires for themselves and unto their names, such as television networks, universities, villages, and many other vain business enterprises and supposed-to-be Christian fellowships. God says:

These leaders exalt the papacy and support it. They visit the pope in Rome often and include the Roman Catholic clergy in most all of their social functions and allow them unashamedly on their television and radio broadcasts. They encourage President Reagan’s moving our nation into the Antichrist (the Vatican). The Vatican promotes them, and they promote the Vatican because they are just alike (liars). You can easily see them, and I think you know who they are (just turn on your television set).

Pray for their blind followers because they “trust in lying words, that cannot profit” (Jer. 7:8), and for these blind leaders who “will not speak the truth: they have taught their tongue to speak lies” (Jer. 9:5), who lead their blind, for Jesus said both of them are going to fall into a ditch (Luke 6:39). Jesus also said:

“All liars, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone” (Rev. 21:8), And they shall not enter heaven “For without are dogs, and sorcerers, and whoremongers, and murderers, and idolaters, and whosoever loveth and maketh a lie” (Rev. 22:15), because they are like him (Satan) who deceived Eve and now the world (all death started with a lie).³⁶

Jesus didn't come to bring peace, but a sword (Matt. 10:34). He came to show us the difference between light and darkness, good and evil, truth and lie, the body of Christ and the Antichrist. He said, My sheep know My voice and another will they not follow (John 10:3-5, Rev. 14:4). Do you hear Jesus' voice or the voice of the pope? Are you one of the sheep of Jesus or a goat of the Antichrist?³⁷ Do you like to hear lies or the truth (God's Word)?

Many of you have supported the Antichrist by tithing to these organizations. Support Christ, not the Antichrist, or you'll go to the same Hell with him for supporting a lie. Secret Vatican agents disguised as Christians are going around to different Protestant churches to collect money to build the temple in Jerusalem for the Antichrist (Solomon's Temple), and ignorant Christians, who think it not ungodly to be deceived as was Eve, are giving them the money for it, instead of being discreet and godly and tithing to true Christian works. Jesus said, “My people are destroyed [go to Hell] for lack of knowledge” (Hosea 4:6).

Roman Catholic spokesmen are angry when the Word of God is preached and say that they “cannot believe that in this day and age there are still people preaching hatred, bias, and prejudice, etc.” But what these Vatican ambassadors are really saying though, is that they cannot believe, in this day and age, that there are still people preaching God's Word, the truth, and that there are people that would have the guts to expose Satan (them). The backslidden, denominational churches that have merged with the Vatican say that “nowhere in the Bible, does God or His Son, Christ Jesus, answer back, or command their children to answer back.”

In the Bible – from the book of Genesis to the book of Revelation – God, His Son Christ Jesus, the patriarchs, prophets, disciples, and apostles answered Satan back on every point, whenever his false doctrine came their way.³⁸ We are commanded by Jesus to use the sword (the Word of God) to defend and preserve the Gospel by answering Satan back (on every point) with zeal and boldness.³⁹ We are commanded to answer back Satan's fallacies (twisting of the Word) as Jesus did when He answered back the devil on the Mount of Temptation (Matt. 4:3-11).

Paul, by the Holy Spirit, said, “Preach the Word,” all the Word (II Tim. 4:2). Don't leave out the scriptures regarding the Antichrist, the false prophets, answering back, rebuking, and reproof. Jesus said that we live (go to Heaven) by every Word that proceeds from the mouth of the living God (Matt. 4:4). This means the words about the Antichrist, the false prophets, etc. because Jesus said when we know the truth (all the truth, every word), the truth will set us free (John 8:32). But the Antichrist and his false prophets don't want you to be free because their master is Satan, who likes to keep people in bondage. If they do not want people to be in bondage, then why do they become so angry when the whole of God's Word is preached (which sets you free from Satan)? And why would they call preaching all the Word evil, hatred, bias, and prejudice if they're not from Satan?

The Antichrist and his false prophets say that we are not to do anything—concerning serving God—with passion. They say keeping God's commandments, preaching and doing God's Word passionately is sin. But in the book of Revelation, Jesus commands us to be zealous or He would spit us out of His mouth (Rev. 3:16). Zeal and boldness (passion) are the bylaws of God and His anointed. We are commanded to do whatsoever we do, as unto the Lord (Col. 3:23) with the whole heart (Matt. 22:37), with zeal (passion). And if people are offended by God's Word (any of it), God says that they are brutish (like beasts). And God also says that being offended or rejecting His Word is sin.⁴⁰ To reject the Word of God is to reject Christ, and it is only by our acceptance (belief) of the Word, which is Christ, that we become saved. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ [the Word], and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:31).

The Vatican, through its Mafia, first destroyed the morals of the country with pornography, prostitution, narcotics, manufacturing and distribution of alcohol, etc. Now with false acts of piety, she is trying to bring in laws of censorship on all the smut that she herself has created in our nation and throughout the world.

This is this cult's deceptive, vile way to make you believe that she is good, decent, pure, and pious. This is also her first attempt at world-wide censorship.⁴¹ Her second motive with this censorship will be to censor all speech, including the Bible—except the way she wants the Bible preached, which is the exact opposite of the Bible.⁴² She knows that the world is not aware of her satanic way of doing things, and the world—that is not aware that she created all this smut and indecency in the first place—will applaud her and worship her because of this premeditated "noble" act. This is to lure everyone that is ignorant of her and her devices away from the Lord and unto herself.

The future plans that she has for these blind people is Hell. Misery loves company, and Satan and his followers don't wish to burn alone. They want you, dear heart, to share eternity with them in Hell's torment.⁴³ Do you want what they want for you? Or do you want what Jesus has prepared for you, which is everlasting happiness with Him away from all evil, away from all deception, and away from all possibilities of any kind of harm?⁴⁴

GET RIGHT WITH GOD

Don't live for this temporary world, which is so brief.⁴⁵ Plan your future eternally by learning about the plan that the Creator and Ruler of the universe has made for you— by rejecting this obvious satanic cult's plan of rulership of the world by the devil and his Roman Catholic cult that is so vain and brief.⁴⁶ If you don't, it would show God that you are as satanic and defiant as this devil who calls himself God's vicar, "god" himself on this globe. Get right with God—right away before it's too late (like it already is for the devil). His smoke from Hell shall ascend up for ever and ever (Rev. 14:11).

"Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool" through the blood of Jesus (Isa. 1:18).

In God's love, He sent to die for us that which He loved the most (His Son). Jesus loved us so much that He laid down His life and shed His blood for us, so our sins could be purged, forgiven.⁴⁷ If we love as God and His Son, Christ Jesus, have loved us, then will we give up our sins and former wicked way of life, learn the Word of God correctly, and give His truths to this world that has been lied to for so long—that they may have this life that God and His Son have given so freely. But how can they know without a preacher (not a novice, but one who has learned all the ways of the Lord)?⁴⁸

"But if ye refuse and rebel, ye shall be devoured with the sword: for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it" (Isa. 1:20).

If you would like to be saved then say this prayer, and you will be:

Prayer

My Lord and my God, have mercy upon my soul, a sinner. 1 I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of the Living God. 2 I believe that He died on the cross and shed His precious blood for the forgiveness of all my sins. 3 I believe that God raised Jesus from the dead by the power of the Holy Spirit 4 and that He sits on the right hand of God at this moment, hearing my confession of sin and this prayer. 5 I open up the door of my heart and I invite You into my heart, Lord Jesus. 6 Wash all of my filthy sins away in the precious blood that You shed in my place on the cross at Calvary. 7 You will not turn me away, Lord Jesus, You will forgive my sins and save my soul. I know because Your Word, the Bible says so. 8 Your Word says that You will turn no one away, and that includes me. 9 Therefore, I know that You have heard me, and I know that You have answered me, and I know that I am saved. 10 And I thank You, Lord Jesus, for saving my soul, and I will show my thankfulness by doing as You command and sin no more. 11

return to top

Now that you are saved, raise your hands towards Heaven and praise the Lord.

After you have said this prayer and know that you are saved, read the King James Version of the Bible and some original texts. And call or write us soon for instructions on how to receive power from God by receiving the Baptism of the Holy Spirit, and for instructions on how to please the Lord fully.

You've just completed the first step in a series of five steps which are necessary to receive salvation. Your second step is to deny yourself and take up the cross daily for the purpose of mortifying yourself, that is, for putting to death your own will, your soulful self, and the world with all of its lusts. All these must be baptized into the death of Christ.

Step three is your resurrection from the satanic life of Adam unto the sinless life of Christ. Step four is your ascension into a position of authority to reign for God on earth, and the fifth step is to reign for God on earth to the end for the purpose of bringing about the kingdom of Heaven on earth. You must learn the Word of God, then submit yourself and do what the Word says, so that the Church and the world may see evidence of your submission to God's Word, His order, and His authority in and by you.

Praise the Lord. May God reward you abundantly.

HERE ARE SOME MORE OF THE POPE'S SECRETS

The Vatican is so mysterious that most of the priests, nuns and members on the lower level of their clergy and people who work on the lower level of federal government agencies don't know that they're part of the world's largest cult and that narcotics, prostitution, pornography, booze, and the black market—every filthy thing—can be traced right back to the Vatican and her government agencies.⁴⁹ Defectors from this large sect, the Roman Catholic cult, have stated that 68% of the Vatican's clergy are guilty of homosexuality, lesbianism, and fornication. All these acts are absolutely forbidden by God and will cause their souls to go to Hell if they don't repent.⁵⁰ Down through the ages, many notables have called the Vatican a "sewer of corruption."

A former high-ranking Jesuit priest who worked in the Vatican for years and answered only to the pope reported to me that when today's pope, John Paul II, was a priest in Krakow, Poland, factory workers became angry with the future pope (John Paul II). It was reported that many of the factory workers wanted to kill him, and they stated that they did not want him to come around anymore. And when he would, they would throw oily rags at him because it was reported that he was molesting their little children. They also reported that he (now Pope John Paul II) is a homosexual. This explains all the new Vatican federal government regulations regarding nondiscrimination against homosexuals.

In a book about love (lust) that Pope John Paul II wrote when he was a priest, he repeatedly quotes Sigmund Freud as though he were quoting holy writ. Sigmund Freud, a Jew who converted to Roman Catholicism, is well-known as the world's foremost pervert. Satan, through the Vatican's one-world government, church, and media, raised him up, along with the whole psychiatric field, to do away with the words "sin" and "guilt." The Vatican could then use psychologists and psychiatrists to commit to mental institutions people who profess faith in God's supernatural dealings with mankind, both today and in the past. These psychologists and psychiatrists and the Vatican's heavyweight news media continuously mock (make fun of) anyone who exposes, through God's Word, this cult, which God calls "the whore" in Revelation, and anyone who stands on every Word of God, which includes Christ's commands to raise the dead, to heal the sick, to cast out devils, to be born again, to resist and expose the devil (the whore of Revelation). John Paul II and Freud's perversions run parallel, as he admits in his book.

Now that he has hit the "big-time" (ruler of his Roman Catholic cult and federal government agencies), he can make laws in accordance with the way he thinks. He now wishes for us to live out his fantasies by making laws forcing both young men and women to have to use the same toilets in college dormitories. His perverted brain rejoices as he sees the human race forced by law to participate in his style of kink. These new Roman canon laws of perversion and death are enforced by two of his federal government agencies called the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Department of Education,⁵¹ which sound very official, and it makes them as much of a disguise as the whole Vatican operation's false Snow White image.

In the spiritual war between God and Satan, we rejoice and are exceeding glad because Jesus said, "Great is your reward in Heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you" (Matt. 5:12). We are the strongest fundamental Christian organization in the world (and are very proud of that fact).

Some false publications which perjure themselves (some that deceptively even print Bibles) and do not listen to Jesus, who said, "Do violence to no man, neither accuse any falsely" (Luke 3:14), have included us in their books about cults. Because of their blatant lies, and because of our necessity to uphold the integrity of the Lord's work, we had to check out these sinister publications, and of course, found them to be run by the Jesuit-Vatican cult.

"What mean ye that ye beat My people to pieces, and grind the faces of the poor? saith the Lord GOD of hosts" (Isa. 3:15).

Don't you know "whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap" (Gal. 6:7)? And God will do to you manifold that which you have done to others... "Vengeance is Mine; I will repay, saith the Lord," "I will recompense" (Rom. 12:19, Heb. 10:30).

We are joyful because our reward is great because of the lies that they have told about us (Jesus said so) (Matt. 5:11-12).

The Vatican's federal government agencies and her heavyweight news media (in concert) have also made it possible for us to have much great joy and abundant rewards in Heaven because they have jointly taken us into court on false charges and have launched slanderous campaigns against us continuously for the last fifteen years. Under investigation, we found both the heavyweight news media,⁵³ and of course, the aforementioned government agencies, secretly Vatican controlled and/or owned. We thank You and praise You, Jesus, for showing these facts to us, and for guaranteeing us our most certain rewards. The Psalmist David writes:⁵²

"The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together, against the Lord, and against His anointed, saying, Let us break their bands asunder, and cast away their cords from us. He [God] that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh: the Lord shall have them in derision. Then shall He speak unto them in His wrath, and vex them in His sore displeasure" (Psa. 2:2-5).

FEARFUL REWARD FOR THOSE WHO

FIGHT AGAINST GOD

Include in your prayers all these unfortunates who fight God, His Son, Christ Jesus, the Holy Spirit, and God's anointed, for if they continue on, there is a certain fearful reward for them. We, like our Father which is in Heaven, and His Son, Christ Jesus, don't wish that anyone should go to Hell. That's why we instruct all people to pray in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ that they can find Christ as their personal Savior and start doing good by working for Him instead of doing the unfruitful works of unrighteousness, the end of which is everlasting Hell and damnation. (Not that we pray for the devil or for those that have blasphemed the Holy Spirit, we pray not for them [I John 5:16]). Our church has expanded and grown much stronger as Jesus said we would under persecution. If God so loved the world, shouldn't we? This exposé is written in love so that precious souls won't be deceived by the Vatican and her associates any more, take the mark of the beast, and go to Hell.⁵⁴

Everyone who uncovered facts about this cult (the Roman Catholic cult) and her associates has historically, and right up to this day, been called heretical, vicious, dangerous, secret, religiously bigoted, etc., and has fallen prey to her massive character assassination campaigns.

They also say that we have Vatican paranoia. Did Abraham Lincoln and John F. Kennedy have Vatican paranoia? And all the millions of people today who are being hassled and harassed by the Vatican federal and state government agencies plus those who don't have a job and are hungry (some sitting in jails because they were forced to steal because of hunger), do they all have Vatican paranoia?

Because of this exposé, the Roman Catholic cult will act as if they (of all people) are being persecuted, and will say innocently, "Why is this happening to us?" knowing that those who are ignorant of the things she does will feel sympathy for her. (I have no sympathy for the devil.) I didn't write the Word of God, I just preach it. God doesn't hate good, only evil.⁵⁵

The Vatican and her people all deserve the Academy Award Oscar for the best performance of innocency and piety, and also for make-up and wardrobe design, making her outward appearance that of Snow White. Underneath her Snow White outfit, there are running, festering sores and ringworm. On the outside she smiles sweetly and says, "I love you, brother," but behind her bony back, she hides hands that drip with the blood of martyrs.

Here is an example of how the Vatican always covers herself. When she saw that World War II (another Vatican inquisition) was being lost, she quickly hid, in one instance, one thousand Jews so that, after killing six million Jews, she could say, "We hid and protected the Jews; we love the Jews." This is the actual truth of what the Vatican did.

Speaking of Academy Awards, the Vatican has long time been in the movie industry.⁵⁷ Hollywood, influenced by a powerful Roman Catholic lobby, furnished us with films like "The Song of Bernadette," "Going My Way," and a number of exciting films glorifying this Roman Catholic cult. On the other hand, they pushed movies like "Elmer Gantry," showing crooked Protestant evangelists. Do you remember "Dragnet" on television? The Christian was always pictured with a big Bible, smiling after he had strangled grandma up in the attic.⁵⁸ And always the priests were the well-respected, highly-paid stars like Bing Crosby and Barry Fitzgerald. You see, we are hit psychologically on many fronts by the Vatican (the leader of the one-world church and all the world governments).

Continuing her role as Snow White, the Vatican is using her own media to promote a three-hour CBS propaganda extravaganza white-washing her clay god, the cult leader. I'm sure the oily rag throwing incident was left out of the script.

There are many beautiful people in the Roman Catholic cult who are not wealthy, some are even very poor, and who are not seeking for high position. Most are very humble.

These common people are completely unaware of the wickedness that has been and is being committed by the Roman cult, which they have been told is a church. Because God knows their sincere hearts (He is the God of our heart), He says unto these ignorant people "Come out of her, My people" (Rev. 18:4). So let's pray they will soon.

A grim reminder to the satanic super-boss (the pope) who runs the Roman house of prostitution and the governments that give her power, your reign is very short lived, thus saith the Lord.

"For in one hour so great riches is come to nought" (Rev. 18:17).

"And her smoke rose up for ever and ever" (Rev. 19:3).

"And I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet" (Rev. 16:13).

The Jewish priesthood ended at Calvary;⁵⁹ nowhere in the Bible has God ever given authority of priesthood to Italians, Poles, or any other race of people, other than the Jews. And out of the twelve Jewish tribes, only from the tribe of Levi did God bring forth priests.⁶⁰ This shows that the Vatican is unscriptural and living in a world of fantasy and make-believe. When Jesus said, "It is finished," Jesus became the only High Priest (John 19:30).⁶¹

The Vatican wants to move from Rome to Jerusalem. On September 26, 1973, the "Houston Chronicle" reported that the politically power-hungry Henry Kissinger helped this super-cult (the Vatican) by proposing "that Jerusalem become an international city with the control of holy places and the religious administration being given to the pope."

The Bible never mentions purgatory or any similar sort of place, but the Bible does plainly say, "It is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment" (Heb. 9:27). And God said, it's either Heaven or Hell, nothing else.⁶² You can't buy your way into Heaven, and you can't buy your way out of Hell.

Nowhere in the New Testament does it say to kill people who don't believe the way we do. The Vatican, however, calls such killing "holy war" and condones it, proving again that she is completely cultish and unscriptural.

Fifty years ago Archbishop Gilroy said:

"Because of our Catholic control of the post office, the postal department has the means of checking the whereabouts of certain non-Roman Catholics [heretics] in regards to their movements and certain situations. And while we have such men in control in our post office and in your service, we need not be afraid of our secret police being criminally detected."

Knowing these facts, it's clear why the postal department is currently trying to take away our bulk rate mail status. They are criminally suppressing freedom of speech and freedom of religion, our two last constitutional guarantees that the Vatican is quickly and quietly trying to do away with. State and federal agencies, with their news media and judicial systems in every nation, under instructions from Rome, will certainly say that The Pope's Secrets is "hate" literature, and they will tell you that I am your enemy. But, as the Apostle Paul said, so say I, "Am I therefore become your enemy, because I tell you the truth?" (Gal. 4:16).

Telling the truth, so that people can escape world dominion under the cruel leadership of Satan's vicar, with his hateful and dictatorial Roman Canon principles, instead of our godly U.S. Constitution (which is law in the United States), and so that people of all nations can escape the mark of the beast and Hellfire—is that hatred? Jesus said that telling the truth is love and commands us to go into all nations preaching the truth,⁶³ for Jesus said, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" (John 8:32).

You can either believe the pope or me. I have revealed unto you just a few of the pope's secrets. God said that the pope's organization is the mother of every abomination on earth, not 99% of the abominations, but every abomination. Read your King James Version Bible and see if I am or am not telling you the truth. Believe God. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:31).⁶⁴

Title: Louis Farrakhan - Vatican Connection

Description: By ERIC JON PHELPS!!!!!!!!

CRAIG-OXLEY - January 7, 2007 01:02 AM (GMT)

Dear Friend,

Again, WELL DONE.

Both Farrakhan and "Warith" Muhammad are high Masons. They are Black right-wing fascists backed by Rome evidenced by several "audiences" with the Pope given to the NOI's rep to Rome.

I recently learned that the NOI has been given federal contracts for providing security in major cities only after the Pope's White CIA/Mafia has brought guns and drugs into the Black communities, further inciting the crime which the NOI is contracted to resist.

It is no wonder why the NOI and the high command of the FBI killed Malcolm X---with the help of the Pope's "boy"---Louis Farrakhan. Malcolm rightly said that "the [Masonic] NOI and the [Masonic] KKK have the same paymasters."

The Order's Tim Rissert and Sean Hannity both give NOI spokesmen time on their shows further proving the NOI's connection to CFR media moguls including CFR/ Knight of St. Gregory Rupert Murdoch. Farrakhan is also a beloved friend of brother 33rd Degree Freemason Robert Schuller.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

CRAIG-OXLEY - January 7, 2007 01:07 AM (GMT)

It should also be noted that the ANCIENT & ACCEPTED SCOTTISH RITE OF FREEMASONRY created and controls the KKK, ref: Albert Pike. It should also be noted that it was the Scottish Rite who created the B'Nai B'Rith and control it even to this day. Its agitation creation by the same elite paymasters above. Now look who created the Scottish Rite and look notice in the high degree with the JESUIT MOTTO haha. All roads lead to ROME! -2TUFF

Where is Bill O' Reilly in all of this? some facts to help me slamm this doink would be great. and Senator Obama?. I can not believe Americans think Bill is their friend, RETARDS. :rolleyes:

CRAIG-OXLEY - January 7, 2007 01:46 AM (GMT)

Obama is a British Intelligence Asset my friend and I'm sure I had a picture in an article on this site somewhere showing him with his gay boyfriend. Also look into the Refzo Mafiosi links with Obama and especially his home haha.

Alexandra - January 7, 2007 02:41 PM (GMT)

Then there's another smokescreen...the KKK is SUPPOSEDLY anti-Catholic. They claim to be Protestant.

Just another dog and pony show.

CRAIG-OXLEY - January 7, 2007 08:30 PM (GMT)

If this is the case then why doesn't Hal Turner allow any anti-catholic information on his site? People think he doesn't censor anything but he certainly does on the Catholic issues which I definately know of with him. Hal is a 'Temporal Coadjutor' plain as day.

Alexandra - January 7, 2007 09:32 PM (GMT)

I've read that one purpose for the KKK claiming to be Protestant is so black people won't join any Protestant churches because of association...steer them to Catholicism. Mind games.

Again, WELL DONE.

Both Farrakhan and "Warith" Muhammad are high Masons. They are Black right-wing fascists backed by Rome evidenced by several "audiences" with the Pope given to the NOI's rep to Rome.

I recently learned that the NOI has been given federal contracts for providing security in major cities only after the Pope's White CIA/Mafia has brought guns and drugs into the Black communities, further inciting the crime which the NOI is contracted to resist.

It is no wonder why the NOI and the high command of the FBI killed Malcolm X---with the help of the Pope's "boy"---Louis Farrakhan. Malcolm rightly said that "the [Masonic] NOI and the [Masonic] KKK have the same paymasters."

The Order's Tim Rissert and Sean Hannity both give NOI spokesmen time on their shows further proving the NOI's connection to CFR media moguls including CFR/Knight of St. Gregory Rupert Murdoch. Farrakhan is also a beloved friend of brother 33rd Degree Freemason Robert Schuller.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

Title: Revelations 13 - Islamic Connection

Revelation 13

1And I stood upon the sand of the sea, and saw a beast rise up out of the sea, having seven heads and ten horns, and upon his horns ten crowns, and upon his heads the name of blasphemy.

2And the beast which I saw was like unto a leopard, and his feet were as the feet of a bear, and his mouth as the mouth of a lion: and the dragon gave him his power, and his seat, and great authority.

3And I saw one of his heads as it were wounded to death; and his deadly wound was healed: and all the world wondered after the beast.

4And they worshipped the dragon which gave power unto the beast: and they worshipped the beast, saying, Who is like unto the beast? who is able to make war with him?

5And there was given unto him a mouth speaking great things and blasphemies; and power was given unto him to continue forty and two months.

42 months is 1278.34 days.

Construction of the Islamic Dome of the Rock began in Jerusalem in 688 A.D..
Jerusalem was freed of Islamic control in 1967 A.D.. Applying the prophetic days of Ezekiel 4:5-6:

1967A.D. - 1278.34 years = 688.66 A. D. An exact historic fit.

Alexandra - January 25, 2007 07:05 PM (GMT)

I know of some who believe that Revelation 13:3 refers to King Arthur, who will supposedly be "resurrected" as Prince William or whoever...supposedly King Arthur died from a blow to the head. William and his father Charles both have Arthur as a middle name.

Interesting interpretation.

Mark Brewer - January 23, 2007 08:08 PM (GMT)

I just noticed that Alex Jones is going to interview Hutton Gibson again. Gibson has a new website pushing the "traditional" Papacy and is involved with a documentary that Jones is promoting.

Alex Jones is a Temporal Coadjutor

AntiSionist - January 24, 2007 03:13 AM (GMT)

That website scares me.

TruthSeeker24 - January 24, 2007 01:15 PM (GMT)

It's hypocritical for Alex Jones to claim intolerance about us for exposing the Papacy, yet he's hosting Hutton Gibson (who says that non-Catholics are going straight to Hell or Jews are the major cause of the ills of the world). I guess Jones like act Hutton Gibson is his "confessor" almost. ha ha ha!!!! I know Alex reads this information since recently he comments about us monthly. Does Alex have the guts to say our name since we mention his name about what's really going on in the world.

Well he is a Temporal Coadjutor!

I term anyone who knowingly or UNknowingly helps the Jesuits as a Temporal Coadjutor because both aid the Jesuit agenda. Alex Jones deals with Opus Dei characters and will NOT expose the JESUIT ORDER or KNIGHTS OF MALTA power. He also doesn't detail any of the Illuminati power much at all and his information is STAGNANT!!!

The worldwide Tour of Hope is gaining a life of its own as people are responding from all corners of the globe only one week after it was officially announced by Leo Zagami, former high-level Illuminati insider and recent defector to the of truth.

Zagami defected four months ago from the ranks of the influential Monte Carlo P2 Lodge and has been trying to wake-up Americans to the inner Masonic evil-doings of the Vatican-led New World Order, desperately trying to create a one world government, one world religion and universal fascism.

To fight back, Zagami is organizing what he calls a "

Tour of Hope", which is a grass roots worldwide organization to spread truth and peace in order to counter the evil New World Order's highly organized agenda, starting in the Vatican and trickling down to every corner of the globe, including

"No word is stronger than the word of God and we need to organize the people who follow the true word of God in all parts of the world to counter the evil being spread by worldwide government leaders, the Vatican and especially the evil Jesuits, who are the modern day Knights Templars working through deception and black magic," said Zagami Monday on Greg Szymanski's radio show, The Investigative Journal on the Republic Broadcasting Network at www.rbnlive.com.

"I was involved in the highest levels of the Masonic Lodges in both Monte Carlo and England due to my aristocratic Sicilian and English bloodlines. I was born into it, worked on Vatican radio and TV and until I really understand the true purpose of the Vatican- led New World Order and the real evil at the top levels, I thought I could change things from the inside.

"But when I realized that was impossible, I decided to go public with all of my inside information in order to alert people of the evil hiding behind the Vatican and the government leaders of the world, including those in the U.S.

"When I was in the Monte Carlo lodge, the top people simply thought of Americans as the future slaves of the upcoming New World Order empire. It's as simple as that and Americans need to wake-up."

Zagami announced on The Investigative Journal that his "Tour of Hope" idea has "spread wings quickly" across the globe with people in Canada, America, Norway, Italy , France and Australia already contacting him to take part in the grass roots peace organization, an organization geared at spreading the "inside truth about the Vatican, Freemasonry and the numerous sell-outs and traitors who are secretly working for the New World Order," according to Zagami.

The concept of the Tour of Hope is simple, added Zagami, with Committees of Hope to be formed in cities and towns across the globe.

"We need to organize to fight evil as the enemy is well organized," said Zagami, whose website for more information about getting involved with the Tour of Hope can be found at www.illuminaticonefessions.webfriends.it.

"We already have speaking engagements set up in Detroit, St Petersburg, Fl., in Canada and several other locations being worked on as we speak. Greg of the Investigative Journal has agreed to help out and appear the initial speeches in order to network this idea America and the rest of the world."

If interested in taking part in the Tour of Hope and forming a Committee of Hope, what is needed is at least six people in each city or town. Once the Committee is formed Zagami and Greg, the host of the Investigative Journal, have agreed to come and speak to kick-off the organization and help make it grow.

"The idea is then to network, get other speakers and form a Tour of Hope web site," said Szymanski, adding the information Leo Zagami is bringing forward is vital in order that America survive and once again become a free country. "He has inside information on how the Vatican organized 9/11 as well as telling Americans who are the real culprits pulling the New World Order strings both here and abroad."

Title: Olmert's Chinese Puzzle

CRAIG-OXLEY - January 24, 2007 02:57 AM (GMT)

Olmert's Chinese Puzzle

By Barry Chamish

I just read a long, near-idiotic analyses of what awaits Ehud Olmert in China. He will find a nation buying world resources and will want to get a piece of the largesse for Israel. (The author pulls his hair out).

China does not simply invite Israeli prime ministers for live snake dinners. There had to be one serious proposal in the air. We know Olmert returned from the Vatican with the order to bring down all roadblocks in Judea and Samaria. That would effectively open Israelis to a mass pogrom. Condoleeza Rice came to town on a whirlwind of global destruction. Victim one was Foreign Minister Tzipi Livni. They gave her a few simple lines to say and she muffed them. Nonetheless, Condy insisted she was "inspired" by Livni's emptyheadedness and learned a lot about "political horizons."

Victim numero two is Avigdor Lieberman, political hack. Last week YNet released the results of their poll, and what do you know, 80% of Israelis believe ALL of their politicians are corrupt. In short, Israelis have all lost faith in their system. The only thing left to fight for is a few family and friends.

Of the politicians whom 20% felt were not corrupt, Lieberman led the political pack with a full 5% believing he's honest.

Now, they'd better hope not. After meeting with Rice, we discover that he suggested putting 30,000 NATO troops in Gaza. But wait, isn't that the Vatican plan? We see Rice and Rome working hand in hand.

So, Olmert escapes to China. Now, we saw him milk a cow. But behind closed doors, on January 11, 2007, China changed the world. And all they did was knock down a satellite in space with another satellite 500 miles away. From here on, Space Wars is not science fiction. Twenty good shots could send the world hurtling back to 1700. China is now a first-rate military power.

Now you may say, "So what if Olmert just happened to be in China on that day?"

But the chief of the KGB is screeching, "Why did Olmert get the show?"

And the head of the CIA must be a little put off, anyway, by Olmert.

But the head of Iran's secret services got the message. China could get rid of their satellite Sinah-1 and they wouldn't be able to watch Israel get up every morning.

Something drove Olmert to China and he was well rewarded...but for what? On the surface, China would lose far more customers than Israel is worth.

But Israel is a player and can make offers. And this is what I think may well have happened.

Olmert knows Israel is through in the Western alliance. And somehow he wants to save his land. Even if it means teaming up with China and throwing out the Vatican and CFR.

One thing is certain; Olmert and China produced an earthquake felt by military planners and their political bosses throughout this planet, being primed for war.

One serious issue which came back big at this time is murders of the leaders of the Right and their families. I had very intelligent people writing of their suspicions in the deaths of Rabbi Ginsburg's grandchild or of Sarah Popper. But the winner was Yuri Shtern, member of the Knesset once of Gush Katif, and head of the Christian Coalition. His political actions on behalf of the tortured Gush Katif refugees may have been what killed him. His own doctors could not identify the source of his disease. He died at 58 and no one investigated who did it.

<http://www.spaceref.com/news/viewnews.html?id=1188>

In Lieberman's words, "Israel's diplomatic and security goal... must be clear: joining NATO and entering the European Union." In his photo-op with Rice, Lieberman expounded on his big idea that NATO and the EU will now take Israel under their wing. Israel, he said, must reoccupy Gaza to end its transformation into a new hub for global jihad. But after Israel invades Gaza, NATO should send 30,000 soldiers into Gaza to take over security from Israel...

It is not simply that this statement is garbled to the point of incoherence. It is not simply that Livni uses phrases and watchwords like "some visions" and "political horizons" and "misunderstanding that was in the understanding" in an attempt to cover up cognitive foolishness and disconnect from reality.

ISRAEL RESOURCE NEWS AGENCY - 26 TEVET 5767.

Yuri told us that the finest doctors had tried to diagnose the source of his disease and could not find one. Yuri told his doctors that it was the disengagement policy that was killing him.

http://www.willthomas.net/Convergence/Weekly/Israeli_Nuclear_Strike_On_Iran.htm (weird guesswork faking expertise but with references)

Another major worry for Israeli pilots is Iran's first satellite. Carried into orbit by a Russian booster in October 2005, the Sinah-1 can provide a capability to spot low-flying aircraft long before they intrude Iranian airspace. The Iranian space programme is a matter of deep concern to us, said an Israeli defence source at the time. When we launch an attack on several Iranian targets, the last thing we need is Iranian early warning received by satellite.

"It is appropriate, therefore, to give it a special status, guaranteed at the international level," he noted. "Jerusalem must be a permanent site of search for peace and reconciliation between religions, peoples and cultures."

Mark Brewer - January 24, 2007 12:00 AM (GMT)

"In the eighteenth century the Jesuits were charged with having an intimate connection with Freemasonry, and the invention of the Degree of Kadosh was even attributed to those members of the Society who constituted the College of Clermont. This theory of a Jesuitical Freemasonry seems to have originated with the Illuminati, who were probably governed in its promulgation by a desire to depreciate the character of all other Masonic systems in comparison with their own, where no such priestly interference was permitted. Barruel scoffs at the idea of such a connection, and calls it (Histoire de Jacobinisme iv, page 287) 'la fable de la Franc-Maçonnerie Jésuitique' meaning an invention of false or Jesuitical Freemasonry. For once he is right. Like oil and water the tolerance of Freemasonry and the intolerance of the 'Society of Jesus' cannot commingle. Yet it cannot be denied that, while the Jesuits have had no part in the construction of pure Freemasonry, there are reasons for believing that they took an interest in the invention of some Degrees and systems which were intended to advance their own interests. But wherever they touched the Institution they left the trail of the serpent.

They sought to convert its pure philanthropy and toleration into political intrigue and religious bigotry. Hence it is believed that they had something to do with the invention of those Degrees, which were intended to aid the exiled house of Stuart in its efforts to regain the English throne, because they believed that would secure the restoration in England of the Roman Catholic religion. Almost a library of books has been written on both sides of this subject in Germany and in France."

LEAD TO ROME?

The David Icke Newsletter Goes Out On Saturday

The fundamental involvement of the Jesuit Order in world-changing events like the two global wars has rarely been told. Often blame is handed to a Jewish cabal, which does exist as a nexus around the Rothschilds and goes under the name of Zionism. This is an important part of the Illuminati, but not the spider. It is subordinate to the Jesuit hierarchy and the Church of Babylon, now known as the Roman Church.

The Jesuit leadership has been quite happy to portray the conspiracy as Jewish-led because it hides where the true string-pullers are. Not only was Bavarian Illuminati founder, Adam Weishaupt, Jesuit educated and controlled, so was Joseph Stalin and many of the key Nazis. Hermann Rauschning, former Nazi head of the Danzig government, revealed in 1939 that Hitler had said:

'I learned much from the Order of the Jesuits. Until now there has never been anything more grandiose, on the earth, than the hierarchical organization of the Catholic Church. I transferred much of this organization into my own [Nazi] party. In my Burgs of the Order, we will raise up a youth that will make the world tremble ...'

Walter Schellenberg, former chief of German counter-espionage, also quoted Hitler as saying:

'The S.S. organization has been constituted by Himmler according to the principles of the Jesuit Order. Their regulations and the spiritual exercises prescribed by Ignatius of Loyola were the model Himmler tried to copy exactly. Himmler's title as supreme chief of the S.S. was to be the equivalent to the Jesuit General and the whole structure and direction was a close imitation of the Catholic Church's hierarchical order.'

Hitler, Himmler, the Jesuit-trained Goebbels, and most of the major Nazis were Catholics and this is why there was so much cooperation and collaboration between Nazi Germany and the Vatican, as endlessly revealed in the decades since.

It would be better for all of us if David Icke would disappear. His speculations about "draconians" only make serious scholars look bad. The same can be said for everyone else who uses "inside information" as their primary source of knowledge. When you hear about "inside information" you should always check it against open evidence. Otherwise, you will look bad. So even if David Icke is going to start writing about the Jesuits, he will not be accurate.

CRAIG-OXLEY - January 19, 2007 12:36 AM (GMT)

How can you say he won't be accurate? His work is very good apart from this Reptilian information of which theres some truth somewhere too it but more likely like what Leo Zagami says. You cannot simply dismiss his information which is spread throughout many ancient religions and tribespeople. His dvd `Secrets of the Matrix' is most excellent allowing any fresh person to understand many topics easily and quickly.

Avatar - January 19, 2007 12:53 AM (GMT)

Exactly 2Tuff. Dismissing researchers because of some dis-info is folly. Thats how "they" discredit researchers or try to. No researcher out there is 100% correct on all things.

CRAIG-OXLEY - January 19, 2007 01:17 AM (GMT)

Well at the end of the day if I were to not listen to anything Eric Jon Phelps said just because I disagreed with his religious stance then I would be still stuck in a stagnate pool of nowhere higher than the Rothschilds and Rockefeller standard bogpool of information on the web. Now I'm aware of the Jesuit Order, SMOM and that theres plenty of people mostly Italian who are far greater in power and wealth than the Rothschilds.

I agree that a good portion of his information is accurate. Overall, he is too subjective since he always wraps up his books and speeches with claims that people create their own reality [relativism]. He uses his experiences taking Ayahuasca as proof of reptilian entities.

We do create our own realities my friend thats the workings of the Holographic Universe or Matrix. The only problem is that the Jesuits and friends understand this well and therefore manipulate us into creating the very reality they wish upon us.

Hey, a broken clock is right twice a day. :P

I think Icke is full of it in a lot of things (he claims there was no Jesus Christ if I remember right), but he actually has some useful info.

As far as reptilians...I would not be surprised if Satan gave certain people the power to shapeshift. Not saying he does, but he probably could pull it off. I don't believe that we're descended from some otherworldly race.

Have got the book The Biggest Secret by Icke, but i have not read it all.

A few years ago, this book was trumped up. (I got the updated version relating to Princess Diana's murder.)

I have not yet read the book, but i read a lot of information of her death around 10 years ago, thru otherwebsites in relation to her satanic murder.

That is correct, Icke claimed that Jesus never existed in The Biggest Secret, which was first released in 1998, and every one of his books after that. Before that, he said that Jesus existed. I wonder what made him change? Jordan Maxwell has said that Icke took a bunch of his research after Maxwell helped him come to the US. Since Maxwell does not believe that Jesus existed, that may have something to do with it. [At least he did not in 1998, based on interviews I have heard him do from that time period.]

This is one thing I MUST agree strongly with ICKE upon. Show me any proof of Jesus. Look at all the religious texts of peoples way before that time across the world. Look at the SUN of GOD and its positions and dates. Stop letting Religion blind you from reality with its pathetic indoctrinations and counter measures to keep you hypnotised by its KIRK.

2tuff, with all due respect, I'm not going to change my stance on this, and it's likely that you won't change yours.

Suffice it to say that I too hate organized religion; true Christianity is not an organized religion.

I was merely pointing out that while I disagree with Icke on a few points, it doesn't mean that I'm going to discard what he has to say out of hand without first considering it.

Hello all ...

I want to continue the theme of last week's newsletter in which I highlighted the Babylonian and sun worship symbolism of Rome and the Vatican City.

As I said in conclusion, the significance of Rome is far more than its symbolic language written into the architecture. The city, and especially the Roman Church, the Church of Babylon relocated, is the headquarters for some of the world's most powerful secret societies.

Here you will find the global lair of the Knights of Malta, Opus Dei and the Society of Jesus, which also connect into other groupings like the Knights Templar and the Mafia. All are strands in the web of deceit and manipulation that has been operating in the Middle East and Europe for thousands of years and now weaves its evil worldwide. It is the web I call the Illuminati.

Some of these societies are closer to the spider than others, of course, and the closer they are the more secretive they will be, the more powerful in terms of influence on global events and the more their highest initiates will know about the true nature of the conspiracy to enslave humankind.

The Society of Jesus or the Jesuits, with their sun worship logo, are about as close to the spider as you can get. Or rather, their leaders are. As usual, the Jesuit Order is itself structured as a spider's web and the outer strands know far less than those at the centre. It is the Jesuit leadership that controls the Knights of Malta, Knights Templar, Knights of Columbus in the USA, and works closely with another secret order of the Roman Church, Opus Dei, which was created by Jesuits. The alleged rivalry between the two is a diversion.

The Jesuit 'Mother Church' in Rome

The Society of Jesus was the creation of Ignatius Loyola, who was born at the Castle of Loyola in the Basque province of Guipúzcoa in Spain on Christmas Eve 1491. He and a group of associates founded the Jesuit Order in 1537 and it was given papal approval in 1540. The Illuminati secret society network was already operating and had been since the ancient world where it infiltrated the Mystery schools and hijacked the hidden knowledge that went far back to before the Great Flood - the cataclysmic geological upheavals that brought an end to a once global society.

Now the Society of Jesus would become another strand in the web and it expanded its influence until it reached its present status as one of the most powerful secret societies on earth. Loyola became the first Superior General of the Jesuits, also known as the 'Father General', and he sent his agents far and wide to set up schools, colleges, and seminaries.

Ignatius Loyola

The Jesuits now have some 25,000 members in 112 countries and the worldwide structure consists of regions known as assistances, which are themselves made up of provinces. It is the usual top-down, Russian doll, system that allows those at the top to keep the big agenda of the organisation from the lower ranks. The Superior General has absolute authority and is chosen for life or until he decides to resign.

The regional structure of the Jesuits. It is used as a front for global manipulation

The Jesuit Constitutions were written by Loyola and created a dictatorship that demanded absolute obedience to the Pope and 'superiors' within the Order. He said that Jesuits should be 'well-disciplined like a corpse'. Loyola produced a book called Spiritual Exercises in 1548 and it is still at the heart of Jesuit 'education'. It tells Jesuits to suspend their own judgement and the thirteenth rule says it is a virtue to believing only what the Catholic Church tells them - even if it's not true. The example is given of seeing something that is obviously white, but believing it is really black if the Catholic hierarchy says it is.

The same structure was employed by the Jesuit-educated Adam Weishaupt when the Bavarian Illuminati was officially launched on May 1st, 1776 and by many other secret groupings. Weishaupt taught Roman Catholic Canon Law at a Jesuit institute of higher learning in Bavaria, Germany, the birthplace of many Illuminati front men like Henry Kissinger and the current Pope.

The themes of the Jesuit Oath were also adopted by Weishaupt as he and his conspirators set about causing mayhem in Europe and elsewhere to establish Illuminati political control. This was achieved by planting agents in all areas of society who then engineered the conflict that brought about the required change. The French Revolution, for example, was one of their covert operations disguised as giving freedom to the people and behind all these activities was the Jesuit leadership.

Adam Weishaupt

Weishaupt learned his 'trade' from the Society of Jesus and all these techniques of manipulation can be found in the oath taken by Jesuits when they enter the high command levels of the Order. In the Jesuit Extreme Oath of Induction, or Blood Oath ceremony, recorded in the Journals of the 62nd Congress, 3rd Session of the USA and quoted in the book Subterranean Rome by Charles Didier, published in 1843, the real aims of the Society of Jesus are made crystal clear. Former Jesuit priests, including the late Father Alberto Rivera, have confirmed its existence and it fits the blueprint of Illuminati rituals and oaths.

The induction ceremony is conducted alongside an altar as the initiate, or postulant, stands between two monks. One is holding a banner with the Papal colours of yellow and white and the other holds a black banner bearing a knife with a red cross above the skull and crossbones. It also includes the letters INRI, which is said to mean IUSTUM, NECAR, REGES, IMPIOUS - 'It is just to exterminate or annihilate impious or heretical Kings, Governments, or Rulers'. The initiate kneels and the Superior gives him a black crucifix to hold against his heart and a dagger which he holds pointing to his heart. The Superior confirms during the ceremony that the initiate has been taught to infiltrate and spy on behalf of the Order:

'My son, heretofore you have been taught to act the dissembler: among Roman Catholics to be a Roman Catholic, and to be a spy even among your own brethren; to believe no man, to trust no man ... and obtaining their confidence, to seek even to preach from their pulpits and to denounce with all vehemence in your nature our Holy Religion and the Pope; and even to descend so low as to become a Jew among Jews, that you might be enabled to gather together all information for the benefit of your Order ...

... You have been taught to plant insidiously the seeds of jealousy and hatred between communities, provinces, states that were at peace, and to incite them to deeds of blood, involving them in war with each other, and to create revolutions and civil wars in countries that were independent and prosperous ...

... to take sides with the combatants and to act secretly with your brother Jesuit, who might be engaged on the other side. You have been taught your duty as a spy, to gather all statistics, facts and information in your power from every source; to integrate yourself into the confidence of the family circle of protestants and heretics of every class and character, as well as that of the merchant, the banker, the lawyer, among the schools and universities, in parliaments and legislatures, and the judiciaries and councils of state, and to be all things to all men.'

The initiate then pledges to wage covert war against the perceived enemies of the Order and the Pope:

'I furthermore promise and declare that I will, when opportunity present, make and wage relentless war, secretly or openly, against all heretics, Protestants and Liberals, as I am directed to do, to extirpate and exterminate them from the face of the whole earth; and that I will spare neither age, sex or condition; and that I will hang, waste, boil, flay, strangle and bury alive these infamous heretics, rip up the stomachs and wombs of their women and crush their infants' heads against the walls, in order to annihilate forever their execrable race.

That when the same cannot be done openly, I will secretly use the poisoned cup, the strangulating cord, the steel of the poniard or the leaden bullet, regardless of the honour, rank, dignity, or authority of the person or persons, whatever may be their condition in life, either public or private, as I at any time may be directed so to do by any agent of the Pope or Superior of the Brotherhood of the Holy Faith, of the Society of Jesus.'

This is the true agenda behind the Jesuit operation which controls the Vatican and the Pope. Its current head, or Superior General, is a Dutch guy called Peter-Hans Kolvenbach, also known by Jesuit-watchers as the 'Black Pope'. He is far more powerful than the real one and works closely in America with New York Archbishop Edward Cardinal Egan.

Peter-Hans Kolvenbach

The fundamental involvement of the Jesuit Order in world-changing events like the two global wars have rarely been told. Often blame is handed to a Jewish cabal, which does exist as a nexus around the Rothschilds and goes under the name of Zionism. This is an important part of the Illuminati, but not the spider. It is subordinate to the Jesuit hierarchy and the Church of Babylon, now known as the Roman Church. The Jesuit leadership has been quite happy to portray the conspiracy as Jewish-led because it hides where the true string-pullers are.

Not only was Adam Weishaupt Jesuit educated and controlled, so was Joseph Stalin and many of the key Nazis. Hermann Rauschning, former Nazi head of the Danzig government, revealed in 1939 that Hitler had said:

'I learned much from the Order of the Jesuits. Until now there has never been anything more grandiose, on the earth, than the hierarchical organization of the Catholic Church. I transferred much of this organization into my own [Nazi] party. In my Burgs of the Order, we will raise up a youth that will make the world tremble ...'

Walter Schellenberg, former chief of German counter-espionage, also quoted Hitler as saying:

'The S.S. organization has been constituted by Himmler according to the principles of the Jesuit Order. Their regulations and the spiritual exercises prescribed by Ignatius of Loyola were the model Himmler tried to copy exactly.

'Himmler's title as supreme chief of the S.S. was to be the equivalent to the Jesuit General and the whole structure and direction was a close imitation of the Catholic Church's hierarchical order.'

Hitler, Himmler, the Jesuit-trained Goebbels, and most of the major Nazis were Catholics and this is why there was so much cooperation and collaboration between Nazi Germany and the Vatican, as endlessly revealed in the decades since. The Knights of Malta coordinated the escape of the most vicious Nazis and scientists and mind manipulators like Josef Mengele to continue their horrors in the Americas. Many were issued with Knights of Malta passports. Hitler's one-time ally, Benito Mussolini, was also Vatican [in other words Jesuit]-controlled, as you would expect.

The two faces of the god Janus - the Babylonian Nimrod.

International finance appears to be the fiefdom of Jewish families, but behind them are the Knights of Malta, an arm of the Jesuit Superior General, and I know from my own research over many years that the Knights of Malta are the power behind the global banking system. It is they who control the International Monetary Fund (IMF), for example. An acquaintance of mine called me to say he had been offered a job with the IMF by the Knights of Malta at a meeting in Las Vegas. When he asked how they could possibly make such an offer, he was told that they ran the whole thing and to get the job he would have to join them. He turned them down.

The Rothschilds, a Jewish family we are told, have the title 'Guardians of the Vatican Treasury' and they ensure the financial wealth and secrets of the Roman Church stay well hidden. F.Tupper Saussy, author of the book, Rulers of Evil, wrote:

'Aware that the Rothschilds are an important Jewish family, I looked them up in [the] Encyclopedia Judaica and discovered that they bear the title "Guardians of the Vatican Treasury"... The appointment of Rothschild gave the Black Papacy [i.e., the hierarchy of the Jesuit Order] absolute financial privacy and secrecy. Who would ever search a family of orthodox Jews for the key to the wealth of the Roman Catholic Church?'

And Bill Hughes writes in The Secret Terrorists and The Enemy Unmasked:

'The Rothschilds were Jesuits who used their Jewish background as a façade to cover their sinister activities. The Jesuits, working through Rothschild and [financier Nicholas] Biddle, sought to gain control of the banking system of the United States.'

There are Jesuit plants throughout politics, finance, commerce, media and military, among them Bill Clinton, who attended the Jesuit Georgetown University, the dictator, Fidel Castro, the mass murderer Robert Mugabe, and the horrific Simon Peres, the former leader of Israel. Knights of Malta have included Ronald Reagan, Gerald Ford, former Secretary of State Alexander Haig, and Prescott Bush Jr., brother of father George Bush.

Bill Clinton as a boy meets President Kennedy - the future of the Jesuit-educated, Jesuit-controlled, Clinton was planned a long time ago. That's why he was given a Rhodes Scholarship to Oxford University after attending the Jesuit Georgetown.

The global intelligence community is awash with them, too, with the Knights of Malta once again the prime coordinator. During the Second World War while Hitler, Stalin and Mussolini were being controlled by the Jesuit-Vatican network, so were the intelligence agencies of the United States, Germany and the Soviet Union. Their operatives included William Donovan, head of the CIA predecessor, the OSS; General Reinhard Gehlen with German Intelligence who joined the CIA after the war; and Prince Anton Turkul with Soviet Intelligence. Turkul used Jesuits as couriers.

Nazi General and war criminal, Reinhard Gehlen, Hitler's head of intelligence for the Eastern Front, was given the highest honour of the Knights of Malta, the 'Grand Cross of Merit', for services rendered.

Allen Dulles, first civilian head of the CIA, a Knight of Malta involved in the Kennedy assassination who was then appointed to the Warren Commission to 'investigate' how the president died

Many heads of the CIA have been Knights of Malta including the first director, Allen Dulles, and George Tenet, director before and during 9/11 and the invasion of Iraq. The infamous James Jesus Angleton, a major CIA operative involved in the Kennedy assassination, was a Knight of Malta, therefore controlled by the Jesuits. He largely grew up in Rome and became the head of both the Israel and Vatican 'desks' at the CIA, chief of counterintelligence and its 'liaison' with the Warren Commission that covered up the Kennedy murder. FBI chief, J. Edgar Hoover, and Clay Shaw, a CIA agent and the only man to be brought to trial for the assassination, were Knights of Malta. So was Kim Philby, the British Intelligence agent turned Soviet spy, a man close to the Rothschilds and a friend of Angleton.

My recent trip to Rome has provided a lot of new leads and areas of research and the more I uncover and understand the clearer becomes the involvement of the Vatican and its associated secret societies like the Jesuits, Opus Dei, the Knights of Malta and the Knights Templar.

All roads lead to Rome, they say - and they do.

I agree with 2Tuff. Many years ago i read a David Icke's book where he wrote that church of Rome was on the top of conspiracy: Jesuits belongs to Church of Satan (alias of Rome or Satan seed). He talked about John Paul II too, remembering he was a controlled man of a Luciferian sect. 2 plus 2 is 4. I think we learned many things from Icke and i don't believe is a temporal coadjutor.

About Jesus, he reminds his worship was a solar religion. History tells us there were two Christs: a Messiah of David and and a Messiah of Aaron, but this is another story...

Hi :rolleyes:

So much for the Rothschilds not really being that important. They are in reality high-ranking Jesuits and they handle all of the Church's money.

I KNEW David would eventually return to full strenght!

To be honest with you his writing wasn't that great at all and is once again a complete rip off of someone else with a twist in Icke's favour once again. All this going to Rome nonsense when infact his info has come from myself and Eric Jon Phelps. Mind you it will help annoy the Order big time who lurked nicely in the shadows for so long. Go and source out the power of the old Cecil family these simply would NOT interbreed with the Rothschilds for quite some time as they were simply NOT worthy. So if you study when the interbreeding took place you will then realise that all the myths about Rothschilds being the big player for a long time in Freemasonry is utter bunkum. Only when they mix with Cecil's will this show when they became someone.

A few questions...

Is it just me or do you simply hate David Icke? I've seen you insult Icke for not pointing the finger at the "Jesuits" and now that he does you're back to insulting him again. He stole your work? What information did Icke use in his article that you own? As one who seems to hate the Jesuits more than anything in this universe, I thought you'd be happy that David Icke wrote such an article.

CRAIG-OXLEY - January 23, 2007 02:41 AM (GMT)

I am happy hes now attacking the Jesuits! I just get annoyed by the way he writes making out its all his hard work and going to Rome etc. His work is a pure copy of Eric Jon Phelps and my promotion of Eric's work especially via the old David Icke associated forum. Where did I say he "Stole my work"? I suggest you understand whats written and being said before coming out with like what you just did. I'd just like David Icke to appreciate the people he steals information off without crediting them such as Jordan Maxwell, Michael Tsarion, MICHAEL TALBOT and so forth. Nothing he's done is original even this Reptilian information is very old news but hes more of a pusher of that than anyone else. Icke is no different to myself hes simply a collector of information from others. Remember in his work about the Holographic World in his 'Secrets of the Matrix' he is almost word for word MICHAEL TALBOT but Icke claims he was told all this via a DMT trip in the Jungles of South America.

Dr. Coleman's book Conspirator's Hierarchy, the Committee of 300 [highly recommended] can be read here: http://www.bibliotecapleyades.net/esp_soci...tee300.htm#menu

Anyone who has read much of Lyndon Larouche's material will note great similarity in this 1992 book by Coleman. Both say that the One-World Conspiracy is British, centred on the Monarchy. They "write out" any specifically Jewish involvement, although a number of Jewish bodies get a mention, e.g. the ADL.

Yet the Jewish Defense Organization calls Larouche a Nazi: "Lyndon LaRouche hired Jewish flunkies like Steinberg and Goldstien to do his dirtywork. The name of the game is Yockeyism, crypto-Nazism ... "<http://jdo.org/gibson.htm>."

So, is there a hidden Jewish theme within Coleman's work?

When one considers the shocking press that the British Royals get (compared to, say, the Japanese or Danish Royals) with the media prying into their troubles, exacerbating them and putting them on the front pages; when one considers that Rupert Murdoch's media, and the Economist, promote the abolition of the British Monarchy; then another force is suspected behind the scenes.

Here's a clue: Coleman writes,

"... Robert Cecil of the Jewish Cecil family that had controlled the British monarchy since a Cecil became the private secretary and lover of Queen Elizabeth I ..."
(Conspirators' Hierarchy, p. 201).

Coleman writes in his article King Makers, King Breakers: The Cecils (1985, ? Dr John Coleman, W.I.R., 2533 N. Carson St., Suite J-118 Carson City, NV 89706):

{p. 25} The records at Hatfield House show that the Unity of Science Conferences was the brain child of Robert Cecil, as confirmed by the Dutch Jew, Mandell Huis alias Colonel House, who was the controller of Woodrow Wilson and Wilson's personal representative at the Paris peace Conference; and the special representative of the United States Government at the Inter-Allied Conference of Premiers and Foreign Ministers in 1917; U. S. representative at the Armistice in 1918 and a member of the Commission on Mandates in 1919. Mandell Huis, like the Cecils, professed to be a Christian, but was a Jew by birth and conviction. He was a firm friend of the Cecil clan, and it was Huis who forced Wilson to agree to the July, 1915 arrangement made by Arthur Balfour which gave Palestine to the zionists and brought America into the first world war. Americans should be taught these things in schools and universities, but so great is the power of the Black Nobility, the RIIA, the CFR and the Eastern Liberal Establishment gang of traitors, that the majority

{p. 26} of Americans will probably never hear the name of the Cecil family, as one of the names which shaped the destiny of our once free great republican America. Before leaving the subject of "Colonel House" (Huis is the Dutch word for house), let me say that in spite of the many important tasks he was given to carry out, "Colonel House" was never a member of the United States government, nor was he elected to hold any of these important offices by the sovereign people of the United States. Therefore I say to you; "Of what use is our present system? We call ourselves a republic and a democracy, yet, no matter who we elect to the White House, the secret government of America continues to enact its policies, without the slightest regard for our wishes. Of what use then, is our electoral system?" ... {end}

So here is the Jewish theme lurking with the British theme. Yet, in Conspirators' Hierarchy there are only glimpses of this, such as:

"Cecil John Rhodes, a Committee of 300 member who fronted for the Rothschilds in South Africa ... " (p. 134).

"Committee of 300 members Cecil John Rhodes, Barney Barnato and Alfred Beit instigated and engineered the war. Rhodes was the principle agent for the Rothschilds ... " (p. 150)

This reverses Rhodes' usual priority over Rothschild, and puts Rothschild at the helm. Beit, too, was Jewish. Carroll Quigley wrote in The Anglo-American Establishment:

"{p. 134} Even Rhodes ... was not a racist. ... Some of his closest friends {p. 135} were Jews (like Beit), and in three of his wills he left Lord Rothschild as his trustee, in one as his sole trustee."

Here's another important quote from Conspirators' Hierarchy, on ties connecting Walter Lippmann, Edward Bernays (both Jewish), with H. G. Wells and the British Fabian Socialists, who, Quigley shows, were linked to the Anglo-American Establishment via the the Coefficient Club:

{p. 200} In 1928, Lippmann's compatriot Edward Bernays wrote a book called "CRYSTALLIZING PUBLIC OPINION" and in 1928 a second book of his was published entitled simply "PROPAGANDA." In it Bernays described his experiences at Wellington House. Bernays was a close friend of Master Manipulator H.G. Wells, whose many quasi-novels were used by

{p. 201} Bernays to help formulate mass mind control techniques. Wells was not shy about his role as a leader in changing lower class society, mainly because he was a close friend of members of the British royal family, and spent a great deal of time with some of the most highly placed politicians of the day, men like Sir Edward Grey, Lord Haldane, Robert Cecil of the Jewish Cecil family that had controlled the British monarchy since a Cecil became the private secretary and lover of Queen Elizabeth I, Leo Amery, Halford Mackinder of MI6 and later head of the London School of Economics, whose pupil Bruce Lockhart would become MI6 controller of Lenin and Trotsky during the Bolshevik Revolution, and even the great man himself, Lord Alfred Milner. One of Well's favorite watering holes was the prestigious St. Ermins Hotel, meeting place of the Coefficient Club, a club to which certified gentlemen only were admitted and where they met once a month. All of the men mentioned above were members and also members of the Souls Club. Wells claimed that any nation could be defeated, not by direct confrontation but by understanding the human mind-- what he called, "the mental hinterlands hidden behind the persona."

With such a powerful backer, Bernays felt confident enough to launch his "PROPAGANDA":

"As civilization becomes more complex, AND AS THE NEED FOR INVISIBLE GOVERNMENT HAS BEEN INCREASINGLY DEMONSTRATED (emphasis added-JC), the technical means have been invented and developed BY WHICH PUBLIC OPINION MAY BE REGIMENTED (emphasis added-JC). With printing press and newspaper, the telephone, telegraph, radio and airplanes, ideas can be spread rapidly, and even instantaneously, across the whole of America."

I should add that Vyzygoth had some things to say in response to Victor Thorn who claimed Piper is right about the Kennedy assassination and Phelps' thesis is wrong or less supported.

When Cecil Rhodes was preparing his Round Table to pursue his dream of global rule, he wished to create an organization that mirrored the Jesuits. The oath the initiates would take was to be based on the Jesuit oath. Nothing there about Zionism.

How many times have we seen our heads of state with the pope in the Vatican? How many times in the City of London?

Certainly Zionism is a palpable force in the United States, but it has become a much bigger concern in the last half of the twentieth century, with a dramatic intensification under the current administration.

CRAIG-OXLEY - January 23, 2007 12:25 AM (GMT)

This would explain a lot because Prescott Sheldon Bush studied under the Jesuits of Stonyhurst for five years from 1908-1913 then went on to Yale where he kissed the slippered toe of the Pope and bowed before Don Quixote who is really Ignatius Loyola (Cervantes based his character on his contemporary Loyola who he studied with at the University of Salamanca) and dubbed a Knight of Eulogia in the tomb of Skull and Bones-the Brotherhood of Death who tap individuals from certain backgrounds and lineage to initiate them into the Jesuits' Illuminati.

Prescott's father-in-law George Herbert Walker was trained at Stonyhurst as well.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/George_Herbert_Walker

This is a fact but the specifics of what they studied and what went on is unknown except that Prescott designed the golf course for the boys. Were George HW Bush's father and grandfather Jesuits of the short robe? Could be. It would make so much sense when you consider the fact that Prescott acted as an advisor to President Eisenhower, was a Connecticut Senator, a Nazi financier, mentored Richard Nixon. He had so much access to power. What do you think?

Brother Nicholas N. Rivera

AVBibleBeliever - January 23, 2007 05:10 AM (GMT)

Prescott Sheldon Bush George HW Bush's father and Prescott's father-in-law George Herbert Walker were Jesuit-trained NOT SMOM George HW "Poppy" Bush (his Skull and Bones occult name is Magog). However Bush Sr. was working for the CIA at the time of the JFK assassination. Bush claims he can't remember where he was on Nov. 22 1963. Well, this FBI memo shows he was in the CIA before he was made director.

He proved his loyalty to the Jesuits' NWO and was rewarded with the CIA directorship by acting as an accessory to the murder conspiracy against JFK before the fact. Bush Sr. is a murderer and worthy of the death penalty for his complicity and involvement in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. If there were an honest and fair trial this incriminating evidence alone would convict him and an impartial jury would find him guilty. There is more evidence which ties Bush Sr. to the CIA.

The CIA of course denies it and claims the George Bush mentioned in the memo is not Bush Sr. but an Army General George Bush.

http://demopedia.democraticunderground.com...sination_letter

This is a sure smoking gun which is irrefutable.

The memo here places Bush in Dallas on Nov. 22 1963 the day of the assassination.

Leo Zagami, a high level Italian Illuminati defector, came on the American scene four months ago with inside information about the inner workings of Vatican corruption and the Jesuit Order's role as the real spiritual controllers of the New World Order.

"My intentions have always been to help the American people truly understand how the New World works, using my inside knowledge and personal experiences as a guide," said Zagami recently on Greg Szymanski's radio show, The Investigative Journal. "I grew up a Catholic in Italy, working at a very young age in the Vatican and I know first hand its evil role in the planned destruction of the United States."

An ex-member of the Comitato Esecutivo Massonico - Masonic Executive Committee (MEC) of Monte Carlo, Zagami was, until recently, a high level member of the Italian Illuminati, a 33rd degree freemason, a true insider and a high-member of the infamous Freemasonic P2 Lodge.

"I was the "prince", prepared to take over after the older Illuminati "king", Licio Gelli," added Zagami. "He (Gelli) is of Illuminati aristocratic bloodlines and therefore involved in the Illuminati Order since childhood.

"I decided he'd had enough of all the evil he was exposed to, and a part of, and the horrifying Satanic, black magic rituals, mind control and torture that was going on inside the lodges, behind closed doors. So I left everything and fled to Norway, where I am currently residing.

Zagami added that since he left Italy, he's been harassed and tortured and had his life threatened. He realized that the only way to hopefully stay alive is to expose to the world about what he knows and make himself known.

"History shows that this is one of the best ways to survive, although nothing is for certain," said Zagami.

Zagami will be appearing again this week on Greg Szymanski's radio show, the Investigative Journal, which now has moved to the Republic Broadcasting Network (RBN) at www.rbnlive.com.

The Investigative Journal airs from 11am to 1pm central Monday through Friday and Zagami will be appearing Tuesday. He previously has appeared on the show numerous times, making his first American radio appearance four months ago.

Recently Zagami had this to say about his credibility:

"To prove I'm real I give you my personal phone number and all the people who want to call me are welcome as long as they are genuine and honest but remember before I left the P2 I made sure to create around me a very special security force thanks to the THE

AS-HERMETIS FOUNDATION created by me and a few trusted Brothers during my years in the Illuminati. We are ready to fight the war against these Demons and the Great Satan always and only want the best for humanity but no tricks as I'm fully prepared and skilled in the Art...we openly challenge the fake and corrupt Illuminati and Freemasons of most contemporary Grand Lodges, because they are at present full of evil and lies a Brethern with no true meaning serving the Devil. The Freemasons secretly tolerate and promote at the highest levels Satanism these days this has been proven by me several times in my research and my work within the illuminati Orders and is something most Freemasons should talk about and fight for their own good instead of tolerating....

FREEMASONS OF THE WORLD HOW CAN YOU TOLLERATE SATANISM AND ALL THE PERVERSIONS THAT GO WITH IT?

"I FEEL A SENSE OF SHAME FOR MY TIME IN THE ITALIAN ILLUMINATI AND THE ENGLISH FREEMASONS. My phone number is: +4798411581 and obviously the phone is under strict surveillance so I suggest you for your own good dear Brothers no jokes and only talk about serious topics regarding the REAL GREAT WORK."

One of Zagami's strengths is to connect the European Illuminati network with its U.S. counterpart, all working together for America's demise.

In a recent article appearing on his web site at www.illuminaticonfessionssions.webfriend.it he recently delved into the Italian Secret Police Network working together with the CIA.

Italian Fascist Secret Police Network Uncovered
Italian History X. Gaetano Saya not a lunatic. He is for real!

Profile: Saya's grandfather joined Mussolini's March on Rome. Saya is estimed by shadowy fascist figure Licio Gelli.

Saya was born in Messina in 1956 and was raised by his grandfather, Matteo Francesco Gesuino, a member of the pre-WWII Royal Army and a participant in Mussolini's March on Rome. From the time he was a child Saya felt attracted by the Movimento Sociale Italiano - Destra Nazionale [fascist] and at the age of 18 enrolled in the now defunct Guardians of Public Safety. Later, he was hired by the NATO Secret Services as an expert in ISPEG (Information, Sabotage, Propaganda and Guerrilla Warfare) and specializing in counterespionage and anti-terrorism.

Having rose to senior rank, Saya retired in 1997. In 1995 he was recruited into an exclusive Masonic Lodge by SISMI General Giuseppe Santovito and achieved the rank of Venerable Master in Lodge No. 1 (International). In November 1997, Saya served as state's witness for the Italian Republic in the trial of statesman Giulio Andreotti. After retirement, Saya decided to launch a fascist political movement, MSI-National Right, where he became the unchallenged chairman. Saya holds a university degree in Criminal Justice and Political Science and is a Knight of the International Order of Peace. In December 2002, he was named Honorary President of the National Law Enforcement Union, the first labor union representing inter-agency national police. He was recently given the post of Director-General, Interagency Anti-Islamic Terrorism Police, Department of Strategic Studies on Terrorism -

In November 2004, he was charged with disseminating literature promoting white supremacy and racial hatred. The trial has been postponed until October 2005.

Negroponte. Ledeen. Boykin. North. These figures have always made me queasy because nothing stands between them and their goals, especially values and the law. The murder of Il Diario reporter Endo Baldoni and the hit on Giuliana Sgrena which killed Niccola Calipari smell of the involvement of shadowy organizations operating on the margins.

An Italian investigation has uncovered an underground, parallel police network with possible links to the CIA which may be involved in the slaying of Niccola Calipari and Il Diario reporter Enzo Baldoni, the extraordinary rendition of Abu Omar and Nigergate.

The investigation is ongoing. On the surface, it looks like a scam. But somehow, it has the same perfume of the deliberate quasi-legality we saw in Iran-Contra.

From Il Corriere della Sera:

Underground police network discovered in Italy. Investigation by the Genoa Public Prosecutor's Office reveals anti-terror police staffed by Freemasons and shadowy CIA operatives. Two are arrested. Dozens of police and security force personnel involved. The network is discovered amidst an investigation into an Italian security contractor slain in Iraq.

A parallel, covert antiterrorism police force has been uncovered inside the Department of Strategic Studies on Anti-terrorism. This is the conclusion of the DIGOS [Divisione Investigazione Generali e Operazioni Speciali, or Department of General and Special Operations, a police investigative unit] of the Genoa Public Prosecutor's Office. So far two individuals have been arrested and 25 warrants have been issued in ten regions across the country. Another 24 are being investigated, including 12 members of the police. Gaetano Saya and Riccardo Sindoca, both Freemasons and DSSA directors with links to the extreme right and intelligence organizations beyond the oversight of Italian Parliament have been placed under house arrest. Saya resides in Florence and Sindoca in Pavia.

Officials uncovered the network while investigating the death of Fabrizio Quattrocchi, an Italian private security contractor slain in Iraq in 2004. Chief Public Prosecutor Giuseppe Lalla, Inspector Salvatore Presenti and DIGOS-Genoa chief Giuseppe Gonan have excluded any involvement of Quattrocchi with DSSA, despite a claim in an Italian magazine last May. Connection to any Italian political figure is also excluded. It is likely that the name of Quattrocchi was used by the organization to credential itself as a parallel intelligence outfit. While investigating private security contractors working overseas, agents on Gonan's investigation team crossed paths with a secret, illegal investigation by the DSSA using shadowing, investigations, illegal use of badges and insignia carried by legitimate police.

So far, no subversive activity on the part of the DSSA in the strictest sense of the word has emerged but the impression is that the aims of the investigation launched by the Genoa Public Prosecutors Office is to prevent further wrongful conduct by the organization and to identify persons involved from law enforcement acting as secret agents who even might have joined in good faith. Saya and Sindoca have been charged with conspiracy to commit crime and usurpation of public office in law enforcement. In substance, the investigation team believes that DSSA (an organization which does not exist legally) intended to finance its operations by using funds from domestic and international agencies.

Four rifles, tasers, a knife, a sabers, machetes, dozens of outdoor survival kits, ID cards, badges and insignia were found by the Florence branch of DIGOS during separate searches of the residences of seven suspected DSSA members in the Florentine capital after a search warrants were received from the Genoa Public Prosecutor's office. The residence of Gaetano Saya, placed under house arrest, was used for meetings of the network. Among other suspects are a junior officer with the Fiscal Police in Florence, two prison police and three civilians, including a construction company owner and a businessman.

Before the arrests, the DSSA ran a website (taken down after the arrests) where it described itself as follows: The Department of Strategic Studies on Antiterrorism, a institute recognized by Republic of Italy interagency law enforcement and police, offers highly-specialized investigation and research support to the personnel of organizations under a potential terrorist threat.

Gaetano Saya and Riccardo Sindoca are founders of a political organization called Destra Nazionale - Nuovo Msi [The National Right - Italian Socialist Movement] and claim to be ex-members of Gladio. This is a right-wing terrorist outfit once funded by the CIA and thought to be responsible for 1980 Bologna Railway Station bombing which killed 87 and wounded 177, including several US students on holiday].

From the website of G.Saya: The evil which has descended upon us finds in men like George Bush in America and Gaetano Saya in Italy, an impregnable bulwark: God-fearing men, harded and pure individuals who, enlightend by God, have descended into the valley of the shadow of death to defend the Judeo-Christian faith and the West. The righteousness which these men represent will defeat the anti-Christ. God is on their side. On the website, Saya affirms that his a member of the exclusive P-2 Masonic Lodge and that in November 1997 he was state's witness for the Public Prosecutor of Palermo in the trial of Giulio Andreotti [Andreotti was an Italian statesman accused of links to the Mafia] in which Andreotti was accused of ordering the murder of anti-Mafia investigator General Dalla Chiesa. Saya testified that he was told that this was so by fraternal [Masonic] companion and friend Giusseppe Santovito, a former P-2 Lodge member, who at the time was Director-General of SISMI [Servizio Informazioni Sicurezza Militare, or Military Intelligence Service].

From La Repubblica

The Department of Strategy Studies on Antiterrorism. This is what the organization, which represented itself as a parallel law enforcement agency combatting terrorism, called itself. According to investigators, the aims of the organization was to credential itself with major domestic and international agencies, including foreign intelligence, for funding.

In the early hours of this morning, the DIGOS of Genoa carried out 28 searches in nine Italian regions (Liguria, Piedmont, Lombardy, Emilia Romagna, Tuscany, Lazio, Molise, Sicily and Sardinia). 21 persons belonging to the National Police, the Carabinieri, Fiscal Police and the Prison Police are under investigation. Two individuals who are not members of law enforcement but who are known to be part of the organization have been arrested: Gaetano Saya and Roberto Sindoca, both well-known leaders of the National Right, which is the present-day incarnation of the organization MIUS. [Movimento italiano di unità sociale, or Italian Movement for Social Unity, a fascist organization] founded by Giorgio Almirante [a notorious racist and anti-semitic, member of Mussolini's infamous Republic of Salò under Nazi tutelage]. Saya, an former Freemason, was state's witness in the trial of Giulio Andreotti. Considered a figure close to Italian intelligence, he often boasted of his ties to SISMI. Saya and Sindoca have been placed under house arrest in Florence and Pavia, respectively.

Several members from law enforcement joined the secret network in good faith. The DSSA carried out surveillance and searches in airports with few results. Some of the members had direct access to the Ministry of Interior data banks.

The charges: So far there have been 20 separate investigations. The crime in question is criminal conspiracy using money from domestic and foreign agencies.

The unconfirmed aim of the organization, explains Genoa Chief Public Prosecutor Giuseppe Lalla, was to credential DSSA and to run a network which would obtain financing from foreign nations such as the United States and Israel or organizations such as NATO. Among their boasted activities was the tracking down of fugitive Italian terrorists living abroad, ex-Red Brigades, or members of other organizations such as the example of Cesare Battisti.

Several members may have joined the secret network in good faith. The DSSA carried out surveillance and searches in airports with little result. Some of the members had direct access to the Ministry of Interior data banks.

Name of Fabrizio Quattrocchi is mentioned. The Weekly News had recently run a story saying mercenary Fabrizio Quattrocchi, slain in Iraq, was a member but investigators believe that this was not the case. While looking into Italian mercenaries working abroad, Deputy Chief Investigator, Giuseppe Gonan crossed paths with an illegal investigation run by DSSA employing shadowing, background investigation, and illegal use of badges and insignia belonging to legitimate law enforcement. Thanks to the complicity of several of its members, the organization was able to retrieve confidential information directly from Ministry of the Interior databanks.

Weapons stash in Florence. Seven searches were carried in the Florentine capital, among them Saya's. Four rifles, some tasers, a Rambo knife, sabres and machetes, dozens of outdoor survival kits, IDs, badges, insignia and police hats. It was at Saya's residence that DSSA held its monthly meetings. The homes of a junior officer of the Fiscal Police, two Prison Police and three civilians were also searched.

Searches in Rome. The Rome DIGOS are carrying out five searches of homes belonging to two law enforcement officers, two private security workers and a physician.

Searches in Milan. Seven searches were conducted in a parallel investigation. Milan DIGOS personnel worked together with those of Genoa and found material documents implicating Police and Carabinieri. The persons investigated were a Deputy Superintendent and two assistants working for the National Police, a retired Carabinieri, a retired police officer, a Carabinieri Marshal and one civilian.

The Milan Public Prosecutor's office is following a line of investigation slightly different from that in Genoa . DSSA members impersonated police, displayed DSSA badges very similar to that of law enforcement, and used police insignia and automobile lights.

AND NOW?

Obviously nothing all this happened in Italy...nice pizza, nice pasta and alot of Gladiators.

= But the more inspired is Marcello Dell’Utri. He ascribes to Opus the fatal encounter of his life: “it was the director of the university residence of Palermo Segesta – Bruno Padula – who introduced me to Silvio Berlusconi”.

The words are of Marcello dell’Utri, a strict collaborator of Silvio Berlusconi, prosecuted for Mafia. Marcello dell’Utri got a stable-boy for the villa of Berlusconi, Silvano Mangano. Mangano was a man of Cancemi boss of Mafia, subjected to the authority of Totò Riina, the cruel Boss of Sicily of the eighties.

It should be of some interest to hear something about it from Leo Zagami. The story about Gaetano Saya are welcomed for Americans and everyone out of Italy but are well knowed here .

Another interesting event is the burial of the boss of the roman gang “La Magliana” in the st. Apollinare basilica. The gang “La Magliana” had deep tie with the intelligence, the Mafia, Sindona/Calvi affairs, P2, etc.

This is an article I found and it is claimed to be written by Leo Zagami. What do you think about it - anyone?

WARNING: THE REAL REPTILIANS ARE IN CHARGE OF YOUR BANK

Forget the Reptilian myth is been created by the secret services and the Demons on top to control man even further and brainwash him with complete Satanic nonsense. I want to write this article to explain to you and the other young people out there my modest opinion and the opinion of the real illuminati on the subject. There is no UFO'S, Reptilians or Anunnaki Supreme Councils, is all pure and simple rubbish and disinformation created by the Satanist in the intelligence with their programs for Mind Control (MK-ULTRA) . And you should be more aware of it and understand that Reptilians are what we define in the middle East as HABIS RUH evil Jinn , the Legion of Satan mentioned in the Bible is made of them.

Its true they the Habis Ruhs have their own Societies and their own Kingdoms these entitites but they are NOT allowed by God to interfere with us and WE ARE SUPERIOR TO THEM, this is something you need to know . Because only the weak in matters of faith (now the majority of the population) or the black magicians willing to work with them are under their full control (of the evil Jinns/HABIS RUHS), but we can still rebel to them until we are free to do it EUZU BILLAHI MINE SHAYTANI RAGIM Is the key to succes .

Yes the moment we have been microchipped by the New World Order and their slaves we will completely fall into the hands of the HABIS RUHS and their High Priest in Jerusalem and the Vatican , thats what the Christians call "the mark of the Beast" the most dangerous moment in the history of humanity, and this gonna happen soon unfortunately because corrupted man has now been given the technology by their evil master. The Jesuits represent the High Tech of Demonology and the same can also be said for their Zionist allies and their Cabala's. But if people get the power of prayers in the Sufi teachings, even the most simple man will be able to stand against their puppet shows.

The puppet show work togheter for the establishment of the Kingdom of the illuminati Antichrist George W.Bush and Demon Master George H.Bush, the various David Rockefeller Sr. and the The Mayer Amschel Rothschild family (often referred to simply as The Rothschilds) are two example's of the evil illuminati Bankenstein Monsters and Mobsters behind this demonic conspiracy.

These are definetely not normal people they are Satanist and conspirators against the whole of humanity, but they are not Reptilians or Aliens just criminals! When the people of this planet will finally realize this in 2012 the war will start , and the High Priest of Satan will try to defend their Luciferian positions in the Vatican, and the various places of power especaly in Israel were Satanism is growing every day since the end of the II World War thanks to England and the Vaticans dirty games. We cant stop all this evil but we can prepare for the moment we will have to rebel against this satanic system, ready to fight the "Reptilians" , ready to fight those man and women who are possessed by the Habis Ruhs , they might be our next door neighbour or anyone in the street but remember they are united against us so we have to be united against them.

They dont believe in God WE INSTEAD BELIEVE IN ONE GOD that will save us all not some Anunnaki fairytale by Zeccharia Sitchin . Gods promise is the law, he is the real one who keeps the promises. In the Quran the most Glorified mentions him self as SADIQUL WAAD which means faithful to his promises. And he promises the ones with good deeds his endless mercy and complete success over the evil ones "The Reptilians".So an extraterrestrial civilization that colonized this planet along time ago is not gonna save your lifes when this system is gonna crack down, its crack thanks to the evil of mankind and nobody else, and definetely not an Anunnaki.

What a nice story:

"The Anunnaki (Sumerian: "those who came down from the heavens"; Old testament Hebrew, Anakeim, Nefilim, Elohim; Egyptian: Neter), an advanced civilization from the tenth planet in our solar system, splashed down in the Persian gulf area around 432,000 years ago, colonized the planet, with the purpose of obtaining large quantities of gold"....HAVE YOU ALL LOST YOUR MINDS?

Well I think we should start talking on how to save this planet from the polution of your cars or the frauds of your evil banking sytem not this rubbish!

Who then does the First Horseman of the Apocalypse represent? The seal of the Knights Templar depicted two knights riding a single horse. However, a single horseman riding on a white horse is the logo of the Council on Foreign Relations. This logo appears in the CFR magazine, Foreign Affairs. (882) Prepare for a long and uncertain ride until these reptilians are in charge of your life your Foreign Affairs and especially your Bank account...

That's excellent my friend! I believe Zagami on this one for sure. I believe that any grey that may appear will simply be a genetic creation by man in the S4 underground labs talked about by the likes of the LEGEND Phil Schneider who died for the cause of TRUTH.

CRAIG-OXLEY - January 13, 2007 12:15 AM (GMT)

My friend the reality is there's no massive great secrets and these Illuminati figures are not that much more special than yourself in knowledge and so forth. Look at the Masonic teachings and doings and it's NONSENSE. Even ex-masons agree it's all stupid from start to finish. It's yet more nonsense to get people into something which divides them up somehow just as with any other religion.

(EL) - January 13, 2007 06:06 AM (GMT)

If you check out this guy's past, it all becomes pretty clear. After reading some very strange mails (pretty similar to Zagami's peculiar writing style) and seeing some rather amusing photos of Mr. Zagami I must conclude this guy's just an attention crawler, or a madman, or both. Problem is he sings the song we like to hear.. but if you trim the info it's pure crap, just some Italian here and there and you fall for it. "TRUTH A LA BULLSHIT" Nothing stands when doublechecked. Feel no shame, it's a cheapshot. But this guy is BS. All IMHO ofc B)

Title: Leo Zagami on David Icke's Reptilian info

Q: Also we have heard stories from people like David Icke, who mention Shape shifting in the Royal circles and deep within the vatican changing from human to reptilian then back to human. is there any truth to these things.

Leo: David as a very funny way of interpreting these practices with the evil Jinns made by the Vatican and the aristocrats of all religions and faiths since the ancient times , but you should al know once and far all that a Jinn can become a reptilian or anything he wants. There are certain magical formulas given to the illuminati to control them ,and other formulas are given instead to get rid of them and so on , the problem is usually that Jinns can take over after a while and make you their slave ,thats when you are totaly in the hands of Satan and the evil illuminati.

CRAIG-OXLEY - January 4, 2007 04:39 AM (GMT)

I believe in JINNS because I worked with many Muslims at one time. One friend told me about his old grandfather is Pakistan who messes around with this force. He told me that many have died learning it and of course all its dangers. He too called them JINNS! I believe in Jinns over reptilians.

(EL) - January 4, 2007 07:23 AM (GMT)

Leo might have a more specific info most of the times, as an insider... but... theres still something I dont like about him. I dont trust him 100% :blink:

Avles - January 4, 2007 12:48 PM (GMT)

2tuff you're right when you say that Jesuits & Sata-Vaticans want us to believe that we are ruled by "gods", making so in the people a feeling of impotence, which leads to depression and apathy.

But don't make the error to reject everything which smells of Jesuit. In fact the tactic they often use is not the one by which when they want to hide something to the people they tell them that "all that is not true".

It works better when you present the facts in a ridiculous manner, not seriously or visibly counterfeit. For examples the UFO cases: you will find a lot of not truthful people who just present suspicious evidences of the facts in which they were involved. Billy Meier is one of this. The same real UFO researchers will surely find out the tricks, but in this way they will help to expose the entire UFO research like a not truthful science, from which the general public will go away. Remember that the general public search for certainty.

Eaqual for shapeshifting and everything else.

<http://www.stargods.org/ClintonShapeShift.htm>

Something is right in what David Icke says, but is the way in which he presents the facts that is suspicious, especially when you know he is a temporal coadjutor of the Jesuit. Possessing a Chembuster (I am building a C.B. too) is not a sign of "holiness"....

A great ertethical scientist was Ighina from Italy who made research on shapeshifting; maybe they could be Jinns, anyway it seems that it works:

<http://www.rexresearch.com/ighina/ighina.htm>

"...With his apparatus he identified the exact vibration of the atoms of an apple tree and of a peach tree. He tuned the apparatus into the peach tree vibration and started to raise it within a time of 8 hours to the vibration of the apple tree. He then left the peach tree with the vibration of the apple tree for a period of 16 days. After this time the peach tree had become an apple tree. With this technique he also transformed the tail of a rat into the tail of a cat. The transformation needed 4 days to take place, and after that time the tail started to become a rat tail once more, but then it fell and the mouse died. The atoms of the tail hadn't stood the alteration. In another experiment he tried to heal an injured rabbit. He analysed the vibration of the injured bone in comparison to the one of a sane bone. The health vibration was interrupted exactly where the rabbit was injured. So he tuned his machine into the sane bone vibratory rate and applied it close to the injured area. The atoms started to reproduce and the two sane parts of the bone started to grow together until there was continuity in the vibrations of the injured area. This way the altered matter became normal again and the fever disappeared...."

I knew a woman who had a friend who owned a store not that far away apparently. She told me her friend had obviously annoyed a local Asian family by being competition. An old man of that Family came in her shop doing weird stuff which she knew was utilising Jinns/cursing the shop. Apparently she had nothing but trouble afterwards. This falls in line with what my Muslim friend told me.

Who knows if this is truely how Orgone works by actually contacting Jinns through intent. At times I've thought I've had much bad luck since utilising Orgone, especially since the Powerwand.

I guess it's impossible to say either way, about the Reptilians and Jinns, since they're both supposed to be shapeshifters able to manipulate reality. I mean, think about it: How the hell are you supposed to know the true form and true nature of such a being? They're SHAPESHIFTERS and they're able to MANIPULATE REALITY! They could be balls of light or little blue gnomes as far as we know.

Its true they the Habis Ruhs have their own Societies and their own Kingdoms these entitites but they are NOT allowed by God to interfere with us and WE ARE SUPERIOR TO THEM, this is something you need to know . Because only the weak in matters of faith (now the majority of the population) or the black magicians willing to work with them are under their full control (of the evil Jinns/HABIS RUHS), but we can still rebel to them until we are free to do it EUZU BILLAHI MINE SHAYTANI RAGIM Is the key to succes .

Yes the moment we have been microchipped by the New World Order and their slaves we will completely fall into the hands of the HABIS RUHS and their High Priest in Jerusalem and the Vatican , thats what the Christians call "the mark of the Beast" the most dangerous moment in the history of humanity, and this gonna happen soon unfortunately because corrupted man has now been given the technology by their evil master. The Jesuits represent the High Tech of Demonology and the same can also be said for their Zionist allies and their Cabala's. But if people get the power of prayers in the Sufi teachings, even the most simple man will be able to stand against their puppet shows.

The puppet show work togheter for the establishment of the Kingdom of the illuminati Antichrist George W.Bush and Demon Master George H.Bush, the various David Rockefeller Sr. and the The Mayer Amschel Rothschild family (often referred to simply as The Rothschilds) are two example's of the evil illuminati Bankenstein Monsters and Mobsters behind this demonic conspiracy.

These are definetely not normal people they are Satanist and conspirators against the whole of humanity, but they are not Reptilians or Aliens just criminals! When the people of this planet will finally realize this in 2012 the war will start , and the High Priest of Satan will try to defend their Luciferian positions in the Vatican, and the various places of power especialy in Israel were Satanism is growing every day since the end of the II World War thanks to England and the Vaticans dirty games. We cant stop all this evil but we can prepare for the moment we will have to rebel against this satanic system, ready to fight the "Reptilians" , ready to fight those man and women who are possessed by the Habis Ruhs , they might be our next door neighbour or anyone in the street but remember they are united against us so we have to be united against them.

They dont believe in God WE INSTEAD BELIEVE IN ONE GOD that will save us all not some Anunnaki fairytale by Zeccharia Sitchin . Gods promise is the law, he is the real one who keeps the promises. In the Quran the most Glorified mentions him self as SADIQUL WAAD which means faithful to his promises. And he promises the ones with good deeds his endless mercy and complete success over the evil ones "The Reptilians".So an extraterrestrial civilization that colonized this planet along time ago is not gonna save your lifes when this system is gonna crack down, its crack thanks to the evil of mankind and nobody else, and definetely not an Anunnaki.

What a nice story:

"The Anunnaki (Sumerian: "those who came down from the heavens"; Old testament Hebrew, Anakeim, Nefilim, Elohim; Egyptian: Neter), an advanced civilization from the tenth planet in our solar system, splashed down in the Persian gulf area around 432,000 years ago, colonized the planet, with the purpose of obtaining large quantities of gold".....HAVE YOU ALL LOST YOUR MINDS?

Well I think we should start talking on how to save this planet from the pollution of your cars or the frauds of your evil banking system not this rubbish!

Who then does the First Horseman of the Apocalypse represent? The seal of the Knights Templar depicted two knights riding a single horse. However, a single horseman riding on a white horse is the logo of the Council on Foreign Relations. This logo appears in the CFR magazine, Foreign Affairs. (882) Prepare for a long and uncertain ride until these reptilians are in charge of your life your Foreign Affairs and especially your Bank account...

Jinns

The jinn are real entities living on this earth which are normally invisible to us. The name comes from an Arabic word meaning "to hide or conceal". They don't live in bottles or adhere to the fairy tales told about them. They can be deceptive and influential.

They are movers behind the UFO mystery as well as many other mysteries. Every culture shows the imprints of their influence in its religion and mythology.

There are myriads of hidden intelligent beings in creation. I have tended to think of many who are not human, angel or animal, as being jinn. This is useful for aiding comprehension, for getting a handle on this vast area of hidden experience. We live in the Kingdom of Names and Attributes, after all, and require these for learning and Knowing. But this is admittedly overly simplistic. It is only a beginning for the more experienced researcher.

Jinns comprise a vast array of tricksters, fairies, demons and monsters, saints and spacemen who have confounded our understanding for centuries. The materialistic science of the 20th century decided that they no longer exist, despite the huge role they have always played in our wisdoms and mythologies, and despite the large portion of the world that never forgot who they are.

That's because the New World Order of the Nazi Jesuits and the Zionist conducted a deliberate UFO propaganda with the help of the usual evil Jinns in projects like MK-ULTRA so you could fall into this demonic trap and lose your faith (there are also good Jinns by the way).

Romanizing America through Illegal Immigration

The advocates of the "rights" of illegal Mexican immigrants, led by Roman Catholic priests, have staged rallies, protests, and parades all across the United States of America.

In croatian ,the word ustashe means a rising up... a rising up of the masses when the priest gives the word...History repeats again and again

Joh 16:2 - yea, the time cometh, that whosoever killeth you will think that he doeth God service.

Romanizing America through Illegal Immigration

By Pastor Ralph Ovadal, April 10, 2006

A shortened, edited version of this article appeared in the British Church Newspaper, May 12, 2006.

<http://www.pccmonroe.org/Ecumenism/romanizingamerica.htm>

In recent weeks, the advocates of the "rights" of illegal Mexican immigrants, accompanied by and even led by Roman Catholic priests, have staged rallies, protests, and parades all across the United States of America. For instance, on March 25, 500,000 people took to the streets of Los Angeles, flying Mexican flags and chanting slogans such as "Viva Mexico!" Another 500,000 marched in Dallas on April 9, waving Mexican flags with "Our Lady of Guadalupe" emblazoned in the center. This outburst of protest was a response to several immigration and border reform measures working their way through the U.S. Congress. Due to the efforts of the Mexican government, the criminal neglect of our U.S. government, and a porous U.S.-Mexican border, there are now somewhere between eleven million and twenty million illegal immigrants in the United States of America.

I have been talking about this situation for years on my "Heart of the Matter" program because of the social, political, and most importantly, spiritual affects that the alien invasion is having on America. It is unfortunate that very few people have been concerned with the religious aspect of this issue. Over the past few years, I have spent time pointing out that the Roman Catholic Church is aiding and abetting the criminal invasion of America from Mexico because the illegals are almost all Roman Catholics. That church/state which maintains political, diplomatic relationships with the UN, the EU, the Russian Federation, the Organization for the Liberation of Palestine, and 174 nations around the globe is working both legally and criminally on behalf of a movement, the goal of which is to bring as many Mexicans into America as possible so as to eventually take over a large chunk of our nation for Mexico. This multifaceted movement, made up of radical organizations such as La Raza (The Race), Aztlan, and MEChA, is called Reconquista (Reconquest).

The leadership of the Roman Catholic Church has a stake in Reconquista. The pope and his henchmen are looking to turn America, founded and still a Protestant country, into a Roman Catholic country. But space requires that I narrow this discourse down to providing documentation of that just-made claim, which to some people makes me not only a "Catholic basher" but also a "white supremacist." That's what Alex Koppleman, a columnist for the Drexel University magazine Dragonfire, called me in a March 30, 2006 column in which he included this statement from an article I wrote some time ago:

. . . the Roman Catholic Church has its own plan of reconquest. She is determined to reestablish the power she once exercised over the civil governments and populations of the world. The pope, along with the Reconquista cadre, views South, Central, and North Americas as being one "from Argentina to Alaska." On several occasions, Pope John Paul II has "consecrated" this "America" to "Our Lady of Guadalupe." The Mexican people streaming across America's porous southern border are Roman Catholics. It is in the interest of the Vatican to establish as many Roman Catholics as possible in the United States of America. The pope and his partners in spiritual crime care little how the job is done—whether illegally or legally—just so it is done. 1

That is a statement I stand by and which stands on solid ground. The Roman Catholic Church is determined to turn Protestant America into a Roman Catholic country, and her best bet to do that is to bring as many Catholics into our nation as possible.

To that end, the Justice for Immigrants campaign was founded by the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops. Twenty other Catholic organizations have joined together with the bishops in a massive educational, media, and political campaign to block immigration reform in America. On its website, the Justice for Immigrants campaign lists the bishops' "criteria for the reform of the U.S. immigration system, including . . . abandonment of the border 'blockade' enforcement strategy."² Plainly speaking, the goal is to eliminate America's security along our border with Mexico! The U.S. bishops together with their Mexican counterparts, of course with papal consent and encouragement, have determined to use Catholic treasure, influence, and manpower to erase America's border! This is not surprising to the discerning Christian. Sovereign nations have always been a hindrance to the pope's effective exercise of his office as "father of kings, governor of the world and Vicar of Christ."³

The bishops and their comrades in crime are sparing no expense or effort to influence every strata and institution of American culture. Reading the material which the Justice for Immigrants campaign has produced for distribution to school children is reminiscent of the propaganda used by the Gay, Lesbian & Straight Education Network for the same purpose!

Mark D. Franken, executive director of Migration and Refugee Services for the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops, recently told the Washington Times that all of America's 197 Catholic dioceses "are in some way backing the campaign, with more than 70 being particularly active."⁴ As Mr. Franken points out, Catholic advocacy on behalf of the illegal alien movement is highly organized, and the troops are getting their marching orders from the top. Consider this from the Catholic Zenit News Services: "Representatives of the Holy See and of the Catholic Church in Mexico are opposing a U.S. bill on immigrants, considering it a violation of human rights. . . . On Sunday, the California Catholic Conference of Bishops appealed for full migratory reform, which will include the legalization earned by illegal workers with their effort."⁵ So now criminals "earn" the right to have their criminality ignored by taking a job and getting paid for it. The lack of general outrage over such Romanist remarks cannot help but remind one of Revelation 18:23—"by thy sorceries were all nations deceived."

On January 22, 2003, the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops, in concert with the Catholic Bishops of Mexico, issued Strangers No Longer: Together on the Journey of Hope—A Pastoral Letter Concerning Migration. This lengthy, authoritative document contains statement after brazen statement endorsing and encouraging illegal immigration from Mexico. The bishops include a glossary of terms in which they differentiate between an immigrant; a legal immigrant; a refugee; and a migrant, one who freely moves back and forth across national borders. The bishops make it clear throughout the document that their concern is for "undocumented" immigrants and migrants—the illegals.

While the majority of Americans find illegal immigration damaging and dangerous, the bishops find it otherwise: "We speak as two episcopal conferences but as one Church, united in the view that migration between our two nations is necessary and beneficial."⁶ Yes, the Romanists find "migration" necessary and beneficial to the cause of Rome; hence, the bishops call for an underground railroad to help illegals make it into America from Mexico:

We call upon pastors and lay leaders to ensure support for migrant and immigrant families. We urge communities to offer migrant families hospitality . . . We commend church communities that have established migrant shelters . . . We call on the local church to help newcomers integrate . . .

*The reality of migration, especially when the journey entails clandestine border crossings, is often fraught with uncertainties and even dangers. As migrants leave their homes, pastoral counseling should be offered . . .*⁷

To buttress their lawless instructions, the bishops turn to antichrists of the past:

*Catholic teaching has a long and rich tradition in defending the right to migrate. . . .*⁸

*As Pope John Paul II wrote in Ecclesia in America: ". . . They often bring with them a cultural and religious heritage which is rich in Christian elements. The Church . . . is committed to spare no effort in developing her own pastoral strategy among these immigrant people, in order to help them settle in their new land and to foster a welcoming attitude among the local population, in the belief that a mutual openness will bring enrichment to all."*⁹

*Pope Pius XII reaffirms the Church's commitment to caring for pilgrims, aliens, exiles, and migrants of every kind in his apostolic constitution Exsul Familia, affirming . . . "the sovereignty of the State, although it must be respected, cannot be exaggerated to the point that access to this land is, for inadequate or unjustified reasons, denied . . ."*¹⁰

Of course, the quote from John Paul takes us back to my claim that the leadership of the Catholic church is so very concerned about the "human rights" of illegals because those illegals not only add numbers to the pope's flock but also spread Romanism in America. The bishops are not shy on that point and give some straightforward instruction for equipping the illegals pouring in from Mexico: "Prayer books and guides to social and religious services should be provided along the way and at the points of arrival. The migrants should be reminded of their role as evangelizers."¹¹ It is one thing for a religion to equip its followers as "evangelizers," but it is quite another thing when they are being equipped as criminals violating the border of a free nation.

The bishops' pastoral letter is far from being the only documentation which could be given to prove that the Roman Catholic Church is unlawfully using illegal Mexican immigrants to build her power base in America. For instance, Cardinal Theodore McCarrick of Washington, D.C. said this about illegals in El Paso Times: "They . . . come with the values that are so needed in the United States today. . . . This is a special moment in the history of the Catholic church and the history of migration."¹²

Archbishop José Gómez of San Antonio, speaking of the illegals, boldly points out: "[T]he values they bring . . . is [sic] making North American culture return to its Christian roots. . . . The values of the immigrants are very basic, reflecting a profound Catholicism."¹³ Anyone who knows America's history would contest the suggestion that our nation has Catholic roots. Quite the opposite!

Cardinal Norberto Rivera, Mexico's archbishop, is jumping the gun in his claim that America is now a Catholic nation; but he is right on all other counts when he says, "In the north the emigrants, Mexicans and those who pass through Mexico, are bearing the faith to the north of our continent. Only five years ago the [Catholic] church was in the minority in the United States, it is now the majority."¹⁴

Of course, the Catholic bishops are the generals in the offensive against America's sovereignty, security, and Protestant identity. The thousands upon thousands of diocesan and religious order priests are the frontline troops who are charged with turning rhetoric into reality. As might be expected, the priests tend to be even blunter than their bishops with regard to the Catholic church's "human rights" work on behalf of illegal Mexican immigrants. For instance, consider this from Priest Paul Marx, as quoted in the well-respected Catholic paper, the Wanderer, May 6, 1987: "America is a dying nation. I tell the Mexicans when I am down in Mexico to keep on having children, and then to take back what we took from them: California, Texas, Arizona, and then to take the rest of the country as well."¹⁵

As is plain from that quote, the Vatican's corrupt campaign to funnel illegal "evangelizers" into America did not start in 2003; but it is increasingly out in the open, more aggressive, and more anti-American. For instance, the 2003 pastoral letter of the Mexican and American bishops openly decries the "xenophobic and racist attitudes"¹⁶ of those Americans who are demanding an end to the alien invasion from Mexico. They are also outraged that our border patrol would actually arrest individuals criminally crossing our borders. "Alarmingly, migrants often are treated as criminals."¹⁷ The bishops echo the shrill charges of the leftist Reconquista crowd when they speak of "reports of physical abuse of migrants by U.S. Border Patrol agents"¹⁸ and claim that "the U.S. record of handling undocumented unaccompanied minors from Mexico and other countries is shameful."¹⁹

Oh, and did I mention that in 2003 the bishops also suggested a Catholic commission "study the possibility of a more comprehensive preparation and assignment of clergy, religious, and lay people who dedicate themselves to pastoral accompaniment of migrants"20? Isn't that subtle—Romanist-trained guides for the illegal aliens breaching our borders from Mexico? But, as the bishops gloated in their letter, "This cross-border collaboration has already reaped positive results."21 It certainly has. The Roman Catholic Church in America has been reinvigorated, and its prospects are bright if only the move toward immigration reform and the resecuring of America's borders can be staved off.

The pope and his people do not care one whit about the economic and social effects of their campaign to Romanize America. They do not care that we now have thousands of vicious MS-13 gang members, illegals from Central America, roaming the streets of American cities. The scarlet and purple cadres couldn't care less about the danger that unsecured borders pose for the citizens of America in this day of Islamic Jihad. The woman who has ridden the beast in the past wants to get back in the saddle again in the worst way. The predominately Protestant nature of America's culture and our traditional defense of our national sovereignty are obstacles which stand in the way of the world without borders which is in Rome's best interest. The bishops, of course in compliance with their boss's wishes, have seen the benefit of America's porous border and are determined to seize the moment: "Now is the time for both the United States and Mexico to . . . work toward a globalization of solidarity."22

And speaking of solidarity, we will end this brief reminder of the cold, calculating ambition of Rome with this closing encouragement to lawlessness by the Catholic bishops of America and Mexico: "We stand in solidarity with you, our migrant brothers and sisters, and we will continue to advocate on your behalf for just and fair migration policies. We commit ourselves to animate communities of Christ's disciples on both sides of the border to accompany you on your journey."23

My husband suggested a while back that Rome was encouraging this Mexican invasion of our country to help make America Catholic, given that Mexico is a largely Catholic nation. Seems he's not far off, huh?

Make the USA Catholic and help suck it dry.

Jim Gilchrist was a Catholic but he left the church because of its support for illegal aliens. If enough people are turned against illegal immigration, the plan may backfire.

Notice the Jesuits' statistics. You better believe they have a registry listing every church in U.S. and the world just the late Brother Alberto Rivera said. Also notice most of the foreign born in the U.S. are from Mexico and Red China. Back in 1776 around there was only a 1% of the colonial population was Roman Catholic but in 1906 it increased to 18% making Roman Catholics the largest religious denomination in the U.S.

The Order is pro-abortion having created the agitation here through Robert Drinan SJ but at the same time anti-birth control they are the penholders of the Papacy. The Order wants the Romanist population in the U.S. to grow and the children born here and are automatically considered citizens of Fourteenth Amendment America.

This Roman Catholic invasion will plunge the U.S. further into a seemingly bottomless debt ensuring the economy will in the near future be in ruins and the middle class obliterated overnight after an economic collapse or after the Amero is introduced.

I recently saw a movie called Idiocracy. It is a stupid comedy but very telling. It is set 500 years in the future, but it really depicts what life in the U.S. may be like in 50-100 years. There is a large Mexican and foreign population, everyone has a barcode ID, wear clothing with brand names, people are named after those brand names, the populous is dumbed down by fast food (Carl's Jr which is depicted in the film is today owned by SMOM Carl Nicholas Karcher-a lifelong member of the fascist Republican Party) only preoccupied with entertainment, sex, only retain memories of corporate slogans and speak profanity and attend live executions at a stadium while they are oblivious to the military dictatorship they live in. Several years ago, I visited Northern Ireland and, for the first time, attained a clear understanding of the situation in that distressed corner of the United Kingdom. As I learned about the Troubles in Ulster, I saw parallels to an increasingly dangerous situation in the southwest portion of the United States of America. It is impossible to share an in-depth analysis of those parallels in this short article; therefore, I will content myself with giving a brief synopsis of the similarities between the efforts to annex Ulster to the Republic of Ireland and a determined effort to annex to Mexico five of America's southwestern states and portions of two more. I will leave it to the knowledgeable reader to connect the dots and make the comparisons.

The campaign to accomplish the enlargement of Mexico at America's expense is called Reconquista, which is Spanish for Reconquest. For several decades, the border between America and Mexico has resembled a sieve; and for political reasons, the governments of both nations have refused to secure it. Mexican politicians encourage illegal immigration by their citizens into America for three main reasons. First, illegal immigrants send home money which in turn helps Mexico's economy. Second, Mexican politicians see illegal immigration to America as a way to reduce crime and poverty in Mexico. Third, most Mexican politicians hate America and back Reconquista.

When Mexican citizens in the United States commit felonies against Americans -- including rape, robbery, and sometimes even murder -- all that the criminals need to do to avoid the consequences of their acts is to slip across the border back to their home country. The Mexican government refuses to extradite suspects to the United States except in the most extraordinary cases.

Most Mexicans living in America illegally -- and in some cases, even legally -- consider themselves Mexicans, not Americans. In fact, in some city neighborhoods in the border regions, one does not see American flags flying but Mexican flags.

In recent years, a number of individuals elected to political office in such American cities have been Mexicans who have attained American citizenship while retaining their Mexican citizenship. While such dual citizenship is encouraged by the Mexican government, it is not consistent with the oath of office in my nation. But it is allowed nevertheless. Thus we in essence have foreign nationals occupying government offices in the United States of America. Such individuals are unabashedly pro-Reconquista and anti-American. Their loyalty is for another nation, and their goal is to annex their area of representation to that foreign nation.

The shifting population demographics of the American Southwest are in favor of the neo-conquistadors. Not only are hundreds of thousands of illegal immigrants pouring across the border from Mexico into the United States yearly, but the same people are having far more children than the average American couple.

Any American who speaks out against illegal immigration or Reconquista, even if he happens to be a Black American or a Hispanic American, is immediately tagged as a racist.

The victims of what we call the alien invasion of the Southwest are law-abiding, hardworking citizens. Ranchers have seen their property become trash-strewn, nocturnal highways for masses of illegals, including drug dealers and criminals. American citizens in the rural areas and towns in the border states have been raped, robbed, kidnapped, assaulted, and murdered by illegal aliens. To protect their families' lives, citizens have installed bars on the windows of their homes and put various security devices in place, thus living in a state of siege. Some have given up and moved away, bringing joy to the hearts of those who wish to "Mexicanize" that portion of America as a precursor to successful Reconquista.

Mexican authorities are anything but concerned about this situation; in fact, there are several documented incidents in which Mexican military personnel have penetrated into American territory and even fired at American citizens. There are also thugs such as the Brown Berets who take every opportunity to intimidate and physically assault Americans who refuse to see things the Reconquista way. At the same time, in the best American tradition, a number of citizen groups have been formed to guard the property and lives of Americans from alien violence. These small, armed-citizen militias operate legally under our Constitution and cooperate with local American border patrol personnel who are caught between corrupt American and vicious Mexican officials. The Mexican government demonizes these brave American citizens and calls for their arrest. Other voices, including those who celebrate when a border patrol officer is murdered, call for their death. In recent months, an American group in Arizona called Ranch Rescue has come under fire from unknown assailants, including a nighttime attack by a sniper team. In short, because the United States government is allowing an alien invasion by individuals who are determined to annex a part of our country to another nation, a militarization of sorts is taking place on both sides of the Reconquista divide.

While there are many other parallels between Ulster and the situation in the American Southwest other than the ones upon which I have touched briefly, here is where I want to present the most important similarity: the Roman Catholic Church is shamelessly exploiting the unfolding tragedy in America. Indeed, that church is one of the driving and sustaining forces behind that toxic and increasingly explosive situation. Rather than discourage illegal immigration and call upon the Mexican government to clean up its corruption and to reform its misery-producing ways, Roman Catholic Church leadership has blatantly supported the alien invasion of my country and, in so doing, has been an invaluable aid to the Reconquista movement while putting many of my countrymen in harm's way of that movement.

Why is this so? The answer is simple -- the Roman Catholic Church has its own plan of reconquest. She is determined to reestablish the power she once exercised over the civil governments and populations of the world. The pope, along with the Reconquista cadre, views South, Central, and North Americas as being one "from Argentina to Alaska." On several occasions, Pope John Paul II has "consecrated" this "America" to "Our Lady of Guadalupe." The Mexican people streaming across America's porous southern border are Roman Catholics. It is in the interest of the Vatican to establish as many Roman Catholics as possible in the United States of America. The pope and his partners in spiritual crime care little how the job is done -- whether illegally or legally -- just so it is done.

For the sake of brevity, I will content myself with giving just one proof which conclusively convicts the Roman church as being an accessory to the increasingly dangerous situation in southwest America, just as she is an accessory to the ongoing tragedy in Ulster. On January 22, 2003, the Catholic bishops of Mexico and the United States issued Strangers No Longer: Together on the Journey of Hope, A Pastoral Letter Concerning Migration. Revealingly, in a list of definitions accompanying the letter, there is no definition for illegal immigrant. Rather than use the illegal word, the bishops explain that the "undocumented immigrant" is a person who is called such "because they lack the required paperwork." A migrant is defined as "a person on the move."

Encouragement for illegal, Mexican immigration to America is the constant theme, both subtle and not so subtle, which runs through the many pages of the bishops' letter. The reason for this is easy enough to comprehend. Mexican "migrants" are called "bearers of faith and culture." The bishops, speaking to Mexican and American Catholics, "call upon pastors and lay leaders to ensure support for migrant and immigrant families." They "urge communities to offer migrant families hospitality, not hostility along their journey"; and they "commend church communities that have established migrant shelters." The bishops instruct Catholic church officials on both sides of the border to focus on "the needs of migrants on their journey," consider "the possibility of seminaries in Mexico to prepare priests for service in the United States," and also provide for "the assignment of religious communities to accompany migrants." In short, on January 22, 2003, the Catholic bishops of Mexico and the United States openly issued instructions for the construction of an underground railroad, complete with safe houses and guides, to funnel illegal, Roman Catholic aliens -- "migrants" -- from Mexico into the United States.

Further, the bishops are working to set up Mexican dioceses in the United States. Among many other instructions given for this unlawful network, we find this from the bishops: "Prayer books and guides to social and religious services should be provided along the way and at the points of arrival. The migrants should be reminded of their role as evangelizers . . ." There is no doubt that the Rome-equipped and Rome-assisted, illegal, Mexican immigrants are evangelizers, but not for the true gospel or the true Jesus Christ. Rather, they are evangelizers for a church which seeks to bring the whole world under the iron fist it currently has covered with a velvet glove. The Roman Catholic Church supports the Reconquista movement by its support of illegal immigration into America for the same reason that the Roman Catholic Church supports the Republican movement in Northern Ireland -- it is in Rome's best interest to do so. As the bishops' statement says, "migration between our two nations is necessary and beneficial." Mexican Bishop Carlos Talavera Ramirez invites us to "think of the phenomenon of migration as a road toward the unity of the human family." I hope to not be taking liberty by adding to the bishop's statement "in a one-world religion headquartered in Rome."

In their statement, the Catholic bishops of Mexico and the United States accuse the overburdened and underfunded officers of the U.S. Border Patrol of "physical abuse of migrants . . . including the use of excessive force and the shackling of migrants' hands and feet." Perhaps the next thing that we should expect is for the papists to call for a decommissioning of the Border Patrol and their replacement by the Brown Berets.

At any rate, the moral of this story is that Rome is for Rome, not for Christ; and Rome will do what Rome must do to advance her goal of bringing all people of the world into her orbit. Remember, the Jesuits were created by the Roman Catholic Church; the Roman Catholic Church was not created by the Jesuits. The machinations and horrors of Rome's past were not aberrations but rather the true measure of her nature, a nature currently shrouded but still apparent for those with eyes to see and the courage to speak.

By Pastor Ralph Ovadal

In recent weeks, the advocates of the "rights" of illegal Mexican immigrants, accompanied by and even led by Roman Catholic priests, have staged rallies, protests, and parades all across the United States of America. . . . The leadership of the Roman Catholic Church has a stake in Reconquista. The pope and his henchmen are looking to turn America, founded and still a Protestant country, into a Roman Catholic country.

Le Cercle and the struggle for the European continent

Private bridge between Vatican-PanEuropean- and Anglo-American intelligence

November 18, 2006 - Link

It took about seven months, but it's finally done: a new article on Le Cercle. However, it's about far more than Le Cercle alone. In the process of adding new names and greatly Vatican_Empire expanding the biographies of known members, it turned out that this obscure intelligence group was the key to identifying what might best be described as the Vatican- Paneuropa network.

Throughout Catholic Europe, private, hard-right to outright fascist institutions have been set up in the past 60 years that are dominated by supporters of not only the Paneuropa Union, but also Opus Dei and the Knights of Malta. Most people, especially in non-Catholic countries, would think the idea of Paneuropa died with Count Richard Coudenhove-Kalergi in 1972. Not so. As is discussed in this article, Otto von Habsburg took over this effort with such aristocrats as Count Hans Huyn (also Le Cercle), Prince Carlo della Torre e Tasso, Prince Albert von Thurn und Taxis, Nikolaus von Liechtenstein, Jakob Coudenhove-Kalergi and Valery Giscard d'Estaing, the latter being the original author of the recently rejected European constitution. All these men are alive today and identify themselves with the most reactionary elements in the Vatican: Opus Dei and the Knights of Malta. These people (i.e. the top leaders in this private network) have the idea of using the European Union to some day revive the Holy Roman Empire.

The most central player in this whole network is Otto von Habsburg and together with his Opusian associates Jean Violet and Antoine Pinay he founded Le Cercle in the 1950s, one of the branches of this Vatican-PanEuropa network. At least, that's how things started out. In later years extremist Cold War warriors from the US and the UK became more involved with Le Cercle. Many participants already knew each other through the CIA-sponsored anti-communist networks in Europe. It's a very long and complex story, so for more information you'd better take a look at the article. Make sure to click on the footnotes, which, like many biographies, have grown a bit out of proportion. And I especially recommend footnote no. 3. Couldn't do a whole article on the Synarchist Movement of Empire so I just dumped some of the basic information in there.

P.S. Le Cercle meets biannually these days. One of these meetings is arranged in Europe, the Middle East or northern Africa. However, the other one is arranged in Washington, and looking at the list of known meetings, there's a very good chance that the Cercle will gather here next month, most likely in the Madison Hotel. Journalists or anyone living in the neighborhood might want to try and find out details about this meeting.

Other updates

Almost all articles have been updated. Here's a list of details:

1001 Club 1) Whole new section added dealing with the birth of the privatization of British foreign policy, its focus on raw materials, and the extreme measures taken to uphold the apartheid in South-Africa.

2) A number of biographies from British raw materials executives have been expanded and their pictures added to the article. They represented the following banks and corporations: Anglo-American, De Beers, Charter, Rio Tinto, the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company and BP, the British Newfoundland Corporation, P&O shipping, the Bank of England, Barclays and Hambro

3) Several names (re-)added, including Prince Johannes von Thurn und Taxis, King Juan Carlos and Prince Henrik. The source of these names is mentioned and relevant sections from this document can be read.

Sun Valley meetings Significant changes to wording. Some detail about J. Gordon Brown's membership in the extremely aristocratic Other Club. In connection to this also expanded the list of Rothschild friends present at the annual meeting.

JASON Group Started out with some more detail on the think tank that JASON evolved from, IDA, but in the end almost completely rewrote the article. The whole structure of think tanks, advisory bodies and intelligence agencies that were created at the same time as JASON are a very important piece of history, which deals with the rise of the military-industrial complex. And for those who may recognize a number of names: I found out about this a while ago when doing detailed bios on alleged MJ-12 members and the people surrounding them.

USAPs Made significant changes to wording and added some info here and there.

Introduction 1) Expanded the part of Otto von Habsburg's Paneuropa- Vatican network and Le Cercle, as opposed to the Anglo-American establishment which is the main subject of the article.

2) Added a far more detailed description of the Privy Council.

3) Added information which confirms that the controversial meeting George Hunt was talking about in the early 1990s indeed was part of the network of the elitist United Nations Association. Notice the similarity with former apartheid advocates in Le Cercle, as Lord Salisbury and Lord Julian Amery, and the genocidal policies in South Africa described in the article on the 1001 Club.

Appendix A Added a whole range of Vatican-Paneuropa institutes to the list. Improved descriptions of institutes about which we do not no for sure if they exist.

The Indiana Toll Road has now been purchased by a Spanish Investment Consortium which is tied to King Juan Carlos and the Spanish Monarchy. Underwriting this project is an Australian Investment firm with ties to none other than the Dubai Ports World and the Bush Clinton Defense Contracting Corporation, Haliburton. It was King Juan Carlos who was the first to congratulate Bushfraud on the stolen Year 2000 Presidential election. Both Bush and King Juan Carlos have a joint bank account in Spain called Malaga. These funds represent currency stolen from the U.S. Treasury aka the American taxpayers. The underlying interest for this fiasco is the East H70 Authority tied to Silverado, Castle Grande aka the Bush Clinton Junk Bond Syndicate.

P.S. It can now be reported that one of Jane Harman's co-conspirator's in Israeli espionage against the United States is Jon Carlson of Little Rock, Arkansas.

Committee of 300 (aka Olympians) Shadow government

Targets of the Illuminati and the Committee of 300 By Dr. John Coleman.

Thanks to the sworn testimony of Guerzoni, Italy and Europe but not the U.S. learned that Kissinger was behind the death of Aldo Moro. This tragic affair demonstrates the ability of the Committee of 300 to impose its will upon any government without exception. Secure in his position as a member of the most powerful secret society in the world, and I am not talking about Freemasonry, Kissinger not only terrified Moro, but carried through on his threats to "eliminate" Moro if he did not give up his plan to bring economic and industrial progress to Italy. In June and July of 1982, the wife of Aldo Moro testified in open court that her husband's murder came about as a result of serious threats against his life, made by what she called "a high ranking United States political figure." Mrs. Eleanora Moro repeated the precise phrase reportedly used by Kissinger in the sworn testimony of Guerzoni: "Either you stop your political line or you will pay dearly for it." Recalled by the judge, Guerzoni was asked if he could identify the person Mrs. Moro was talking about. Guerzoni replied that it was indeed Henry Kissinger as he had previously intimated.- John Coleman, The Story of The Committee of 300, p. 7

The Order of the Garter is the secret inner group which is an elite group within the Order of St. John of Jerusalem which is the British part of the Knights of Malta. The Knights of the Garter are the leaders of the Committee of 300. They are diabolical men. Lord Peter Carrington, who is a member of the satanic Order of Osiris and other demonic groups is a member of the Order of the Garter. Lord Palmerston is an example from history of another similar example of a Knight of the Garter who was totally corrupt, pretended to be a Christian, and practiced Satanism. It is interesting to note that Pol Pot's genocidal plans were drawn up in the US by one of the Club of Rome's research foundations, and overseen by Thomas Enders, a high-ranking State Department official. It is also interesting that the committee is currently seeking to reinstate the Pol Pot butchers in Cambodia. Targets of the Illuminati and the Committee of 300 By Dr. John Coleman.

This committee of 300 is modeled after the British East India Company's Council of 300, founded by the British aristocracy in 1727. Most of its immense wealth arose out of the opium trade with China. This group is responsible for the phony drug wars here in the U.S. These phony drug wars were to get us to give away our constitutional rights. Asset forfeiture is a prime example, where huge assets can be seized without trial and no proof of guilt needed. Also the Committee of 300 long ago decreed that there shall be a smaller-much smaller-and better world, that is, their idea of what constitutes a better world.

The myriads of useless eaters consuming scarce natural resources were to be culled. Industrial progress supports population growth. Therefore the command to multiply and subdue the earth found in Genesis had to be subverted. This called for an attack upon Christianity; the slow but sure disintegration of industrial nation states; the destruction of hundreds of millions of people, referred to by the Committee of 300 as "surplus population, " and the removal of any leader who dared to stand in the way of the Committee's global planning to reach the foregoing objectives. Not that the U.S. government didn't know, but as it was part of the conspiracy, it helped to keep the lid on information rather than let the truth be known. Queen, Elizabeth II, is the head of the Committee of 300.

The Committee of 300 looks to social convulsions on a global scale, followed by depressions, as a softening-up technique for bigger things to come, as its principal method of creating masses of people all over the world who will become its "welfare" recipients of the future. The committee appears to base much of its important decisions affecting mankind on the philosophy of Polish aristocrat, Felix Dzerzinski, who regarded mankind as being slightly above the level of cattle. As a close friend of British intelligence agent Sydney Reilly (Reilly was actually Dzerzinski's controller during the Bolshevik Revolution's formative years), he often confided in Reilly during his drinking bouts. Dzerzinski was, of course, the beast who ran the Red Terror apparatus. He once told Reilly, while the two were on a drinking binge, that "Man is of no importance. Look at what happens when you starve him. He begins to eat his dead companions to stay alive. Man is only interested in his own survival. That is all that counts. All the Spinoza stuff is a lot of rubbish."

The European Commission has recently launched "Plan D" (Democracy, Dialogue and Debate) in order to "revitalise the public debate on the future of Europe," which is eurospeak for resurrecting the EU Constitution. "We met at a time when the debate on the Future of Europe and of the European Union Constitutional Treaty is at a crossroads," the churches say in their release.

"Couldn't we as churches give our contribution to this discussion by launching a Plan C: Churches and the European Project: Commitment, Compassion and Conviviality?" asked Archbishop Paarma of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Finland.

He was speaking at the opening session of a conference to explore the theme, "European values Churches in dialogue with European political institutions", which met in Brussels 12-13 December. More than 60 European church leaders attended from 30 countries.

"EUROPEAN INTEGRATION MUST CONTINUE"

The church leaders expressed their belief that Christ and Christianity could be used to shore up the schemes of the EU politicians in the following words, "We believe that faith, through Jesus Christ, puts trust in God as an active agent in everyday reality. We want to share with you, the political leaders of Europe, our concerns and hopes for the future of Europe and our role within it. In particular, our conviction is that the European integration process must continue, based on shared values and common vision". The church leaders then affirmed their commitment to make their contribution to the future of Europe but "to resist any attempt to misuse religion for political purposes".

The conference was organised by the leading European ecumenical body, the Church and Society Commission of the Conference of European Churches (CEC), a fellowship of some 125 Orthodox, Protestant, Anglican and Old Catholic Churches. It is

ESTABLISHING THE CONSTITUTION

The Rev. de Clermont (France), spoke on, "why CEC has engaged so much in the Process establishing a European Constitutional Treaty". He added: "The voice of the people must be taken seriously by political decision makers". (The people have rejected the EU Constitution in France and Holland Hon ed.)

Another speaker underlined the present "growing misunderstanding and mistrust between peoples and their leaders and political institutions".

The Rev Anna Maffei, President of the Italian Baptist Union, commended the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the EU.

Participants gathered in the ecumenical Chapel of the Resurrection for a worship service. Each received a candle with the logo of the Third European Ecumenical Assembly. "The light of Christ shines upon all - Hope for renewal and unity in Europe".

EU COMMISSIONER JAN FIGEL

The meeting closed with an address by EU Commissioner Jan Figel. He insisted that the EU is not just an alliance of states, but is engaged with bringing the people of Europe together. For this, he stressed, the European Institutions need to have a constant dialogue with churches, 'communities of faith' and civil society. He encouraged the church leaders and European churches to continue and strengthen their engagement with the European institutions.

NEED FOR INTERRELIGIOUS DIALOGUE

At every stage the leaders of the European ecumenical churches, including those from the UK, showed themselves to be forward in promoting the cause of the European Union. They spoke not of Christ, sin and salvation but of "shared values and a common vision". They emphasised that, "As people from different cultures and traditions in Europe come closer together, we want to highlight the importance of inter-cultural and inter-religious dialogue".

The Conference is the beginning of a broader project in co-operation with the Comité Européen de Coordination, the United Reformed Church (UK) and the Evangelical Church in Germany.

It is all leading up to the grand climax when Rome will join in. "With our churches we prepare for the third European Ecumenical Assembly in Sibiu, Romania, in September 2007. There, women and men from almost every church in Europe will be reflecting on what it means to be a church in Europe today."

One world government, one world religion. That's what they're aiming for.

I heard they were wanting to usher in the NWO by 2000.

CRAIG-OXLEY - January 20, 2007 01:11 AM (GMT)

People need to stop thinking when NWO will hit because IT ALREADY HAS. There was no way in hell you would have a full NWO system in place for 2000, they will be lucky to get the Pan-American-Union by their 2008 goals. Your looking at something like 2025-50

Alexandra - January 20, 2007 01:15 AM (GMT)

That's what I meant--the full system. One world government "officially" in place.

We will consider the Jesuits, firstly, in regard to themselves; secondly, in regard to the Church; finally, in regards to society. *

In regard to themselves.

Many will tell me that they know some Jesuits who are very gentle, kind, and learned men. I also know many individuals whose only sin is that they are Jesuits, being otherwise charitable, pious, gentle, and learned; but that is not our question. We do not speak about individuals, but about Jesuits, as members of the Society of Jesus.

Hear my popular comparison. In a picnic, each brings a dish or wine, usually the best; fish, fowl, venison, plum puddings, pies, soup, salad, champagne, claret. But suppose the director, by some caprice, mixes all together, all would cry, "very bad!" Why? The fish was good as fish, the fowl as fowl; but, when all were mixed together, they were no longer good. So, some Jesuits are very good fish, and some excellent fowl; but all together are shockingly bad. Therefore we do not speak against father Peter nor against father Paul, but against father Jesuit.

* The Lecturer observed that he would give two free Lectures in this Course for the industrial classes, especially the Irish, having been invited by several Irish Roman Catholics to do so; that he was wronged when accused of assailing the Irish – for that he always asserted their genius for poetry and oratory; that it was against their priests, who enslaved them, he spoke; that the proceeds of one Lecture would be for the Piedmontese exiles. He respected highly the kind Piedmont Government, and meant it no slight; but as it was, to it, a necessity to banish those deluded men, so it was, to persons in America, a charity to aid them.

"But, they are very moral." I have nothing to say against the individual morality of the Jesuits. The Pharisees presented a good exterior, but we know what Christ said of them. The Jesuits are holy outside, but, tear down the walls, as the voice said to the prophet Daniel, and you will see the abomination of desolation.

The Society of Jesus has ever been considered in the highest degree immoral by all enlightened people.*

But they cultivate passive obedience, and their panegyrists extol it, the worst and most dangerous of their maxims. The Jesuit is a good Jesuit only when no longer a man; let him become a stone, or as it is said by the ascetics, as a corpse, and then he is a perfect Jesuit! Obedience! to God it is a virtue ; to astute and fallible man, it is a stupidity, a vice. God created a man to be a man, not a stone; therefore to become a stone, is not a virtue before God. The first 'gift of God to man is liberty; to lose it willingly is to despise the Word of God. Every reasonable being was made to use his reason for his salvation and that of his brethren; he who renounces his reason, renounces the work of God. You guide your horses where you will, because they are irrational. When the father Superior, Provincial, and General of the Jesuits guides that body, he does not direct men, but drives beasts.

This obedience is fatal to society. You call the force of an army brute, because the men blindly obey, and, generally, for the destruction of happiness and freedom. The Jesuits are called "a company " that is "an army;" without will, reason, discretion; having merely the passive obedience which belongs to "brute force." That of armies has ever been fatal to society; that of Jesuits to religious freedom, and constitutional government.

But their motto is, " ad majorem Dei gloriam;" their end "the greater glory of God." Christ promoted the glory,

At Montepulciano, the people and the bishop himself, on discovering the lascivious correspondence of father Gombard, expelled him. In our last crusades, when the Italian volunteers entered Modena, and despoiled the college of the Jesuits, they found and preserved a large epistolary correspondence between the holy fathers and their secret lovers of the confessional and nunnery. They do not give open scandal-thus more dangerous.

the Jesuits, more instructed. Promote the greater glory, of God! Christ, to promote God's glory, preached charity, honesty, justice, reasonable religion, the Jesuits, to uphold "Christ's Vicar," which is their greater glory, preach mental reservation, perjury, immoralities, regicide, the subversion of society. The proverb says "extremes are dangerous;" when not content with the glory of God, as inculcated by Christ, I fear I but aid, by their means, the "greater glory" of the Jesuits.

Extremes in religion lead immorality. They exclaim, "the Church cannot subsist without the Jesuits."* The primitive Church was true; it had no Jesuits. "But times and men are changed; what was unnecessary then, is necessary now."

When the false Church trembled before Luther, Calvin, and other reformers, the Jesuits suddenly arose to support it. It cannot exist without them; destroy them and it perishes. Did Christ inspire Ignatius Loyola to establish the society of Jesuits? No! His true Church did not need it. Therefore, the Church which does is Antichrist's, and Satan inspired Ignatius Loyola!

The Jesuits have corrupted the worship, the morals, and the faith of the Church. Superstitions especially increased after their establishment. +

* The Jesuit fathers Curci, Bresciani, Pellico, their modern historian Creteneau Joly, and many others, have repeated this little blasphemy.

+ From the Jesuits we have the Malabarians, infamous rites. They encouraged and supported the worship of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, and the Sacred Heart of the Virgin Mary. They invented the holy farce of Good Friday called "the three hours of our Saviour's anguish on Golgotha." They promoted the worship of the forty hours, in which the wafer is presented to the people for particular adoration. For three centuries no superstition, no idolatrous worship, has been introduced into the Church of Rome, that was not particularly patronized by the Jesuits. Some ten or twenty Years ago, they patronized the worship of Sancta Philomena, the worst among Christians, as encouraging all species of immorality. And now, especially in England and America, is cultivated by them the worship of Saint Alphonso Liguori, whose books are the most fanatical, and sometimes the most stupid, ever written among Papists. I have no time, and it is not my business now, to discover all the kinds of turpitude introduced into their theology by the Jesuit fathers Busembau, Eacobar,

The morality of the Jesuits is extolled. The Protestant morality is to say "Yes" Or "NO" according to the fact. But the Jesuit is not so hampered; he has his "mental reservation"*

The last degree of immorality is the theory of father Molinos, called quietism, by which all immoralities are permitted, provided that the mind be quiet in God. +

The Jesuits taught the killing of kings. True many were murdered before the order existed; but that order first taught that it is honest, just, and right to kill a tyrant king, - when the Jesuits have declared him a tyrant!

The cardinal point and ground of these immoralities is the theory of Fathers Tirino, Nicolai, and others, that "the end justifies the means." Saint Paul teaches otherwise; but they say, commit any amount of evil to do a little good; and as the greatest good is to promote the Jesuitical cause, to promote it, it were necessary to subvert, to oppress, all Europe, all the new World, to kill all the inhabitants of both these continents, it is right to subvert, to oppress, to kill!

True to their origin (to oppose the reformers of the six-and especially Sanchez, who wrote a book on marriage. Sanchez's treatise is so licentiously infamous, that beside it the lasciviousness of Lucretiss, Horace, or Juvenal, looks like the writing of a holy father; yet he is now a vulnerable servant of God.

*An illustration. Suppose that a Jesuit, going to murder, is asked, "are you going to murder?" He replies "no;" and truly, according to his morality; because he was not, suppose, proceeding on foot, that is literally going, but was about to be carried in any sort of a conveyance, to the place of the murder! Another. In Latin volo signifies "I wish" and also "I fly." Suppose it is a fast-day, and you ask a Jesuit, in Latin, "Do you wish to eat a chicken?" he replies, "non volo." To you his answer means, "I do not wish;" but although he longs for the fowl, he does not lie, because to him it means, "I do not fly!" The Jesuit can swear thus; he is master of himself, and has a sense of his own mind, which keeps him from perjury! Very easy! Very elastic! The Jesuit can seem what he is not. Especially by the theology of Saint Alphonso Liguori, the compendium of all Jesuitical divines, if you are a Romanist, but live in America among Protestants, you can, for God's "greater glory," seem in every way a Protestant.

+ Get only into this blessed state, and though you rob, kill your brother, father, wife, keep your body in lust, yet, with your mind in God, all is quietude and holiness. The parliament of Paris condemned this doctrine of Mollinos as fatal to society.

teenth century), their great aim is to war against Protestantism called in their language "the bad heresy."

To obtain their end more easily, they have no particular dress, place, office, nor name; so that you have Jesuits as Jesuits, Jesuits as Liguorists, Jesuits as Redemptionists, Jesuits as Capucins, Jesuits as Newmanists. They are in the dress of priests, of soldiers, of magistrates, of policemen, and so on. They are always everywhere. * Come now, and recognize if you can, the Jesuits among you in America. You often see here a Polish, French, ay, or an Italian refugee, who speaks warmly for the freedom of his native country, declaims against tyrants, tyranny, and the Pope, and wears a large moustache. You think he is an ardent exiled patriot-ah, my friends! He is a Jesuit in disguise!

"Do you see any one coming in just now?" A poor, small insignificant little fellow! "Come in! You are welcome." He is no higher than Tom Thumb. With his large boots he looks more like a postilion than a Courier. He has two great spurs on his boots, and spectacles on his eyes. He looks like a Spaniard, but speaks French. "Come in; you are welcome!" I have the honour to introduce to my audience little Tom Thumb, called in New York " the Courier of the United States," the organ of the French population! Oh, my poor boy! You are the Courier of the United States, and you dare to say I am wrong when I speak so loudly and so warmly against France! My naughty boy! I am not the Courier of the United States, as I am not going to Paris, to solicit the cross of the Legion of Honour, and a pension from the bastard Bonaparte! My naughty boy! I speak warmly and passionately against France, because when a man has witnessed two thousand brethren wounded, mutilated, killed by a French army, that man never can have sympathy for the French Liberticide nation. I speak against France, not the liberal France, the patriot France, which is the minority of the French people, but against that France which sold her liberty for a glass of champagne at Satory.

* Father Personio, the first Jesuit who went to England, assumed the dress of a Spanish officer, and was received as such at the Court of Queen Elizabeth. He it was who prepared the gunpowder plot. Father Garnet, the head of the plot, had five different names, as came out upon his trial.

You call yourself the organ of the French population. Oh! Poor Spaniard! You are not. Read, my little boy! This is a true Frenchman; this is the great Quinet, the greatest philosopher in our age of philosophic history, expelled from France by the Jesuits; and this true Frenchman. In dedicating, his work on the Revolution in Italy, offered it in these words: " To the exiled Italians this work is dedicated, as a personal expiation for the murder of Italy consummated by Frenchmen." This is a Frenchman who speaks thus, a true Frenchman. In Italy we honour such Frenchmen, and the France which produced such a man. Remember, my boy, remember; we have no anger against you, but we will give you an advice: " Henceforth do not call yourself the organ of the French population, but the organ of Archbishop Hughes; and never for the future, style yourself " Courier of the Jesuits throughout the United States."

Such are the instruments in the hands of Jesuits for spreading and supporting their doctrines and theories.

But they have a still more dangerous weapon-especially for you. Americans, remember my words. Where their males can obtain nothing, their missions are conducted by females. Accordingly, within the last ten years we find in America thousands and thousands of nuns. They go by all kinds of names - ladies of the Sacred Heart of Jesus

- they are Jesuitesses! Sisters of Mercy -Jesuitesses Sisters of Charity - Jesuitesses!

The crafty serpent knowing he would lose his time with Adam, tempted Eve. Painted and beautiful, he pleased her and she fell. Graceful and endearing, she pleased Adam, and he fell.

Jesuit men would probably lose their time among Protestants; but when there come to America fine and beautiful sisters, nuns so well dressed and speaking French so well, kind and pious ladies drink those nuns' words into their hearts, to be thence transmitted to the hearts of their husbands and children! Thus do nuns make proselytes: thus have they made many in England.

Remember my words: To teach young girls to tend in hospitals the sick and dying, nuns, Sisters of Mercy, of Charity, are not needed because Protestant ladies, the wives and mothers of America, suffice to instruct their Protestant children. To carry the aids, of charity and mercy to their suffering fellow beings!

To conclude the second branch of my argument; Frederick the Great of Prussia called the Jesuits the grenadiers of the Pope; Voltaire, the pioneers of the Pope, Niccolini, the mamelukes of the Pope.

Jesuits and Pope cannot exist apart. They are the columns and the foundation of the temple of Dagon; and we invoke from heaven Samson to embrace them, Pope and Jesuits together, and give a strong and hearty pull that. Will level them with the dust, though he himself perish under the ruins.

The third branch of my discourse is, the baneful influence of Jesuits upon society, great and small, public and private.

We may look on society in a triple aspect, mind, heart, and pocket; against each the Jesuits are ever plotters. Against mind, especially, monopolizing education. A few instances will suffice to show their spirit and character as teachers. In Italy they are the bitterest enemies of Dante, the Shakespeare of the Italians. To suck the blood out of our nation, they exclude Dante from their schools. Their last great effort in France, (also in Austria,) was to expel the classic models of Greek and Latin literature. Why? Because those lights of antiquity are too republican for the Jesuit taste. *

De Maistre and Creteneau-Joly the two greatest historians of the Jesuits, relate that in the French Revolution no pupil of the Jesuits took part. Thus, Americans, if, in the time of your Washington, as now, the Jesuits had here thousands of pupils, not one of them would have had a

This was the reason given for excluding them from the University of Paris, and the schools of Rome. But they had substitutes ready; in Italy, Fathers Bettinelli and Segnieri in France, Father Bourdaloue; Jesuits instead of classics! Judge what kind of scholars are made from studying such works; Jesuit - teachers wake Jesuit scholars, pupils of no progress. Quinet and Michelet, the two greatest stars of the day, were expelled from Paris, and afterwards from France, by the intrigues of the Jesuits, that they might have their chairs for themselves.

heart or a hand for his country! And they now dare to have schools in America, and find even among Americans to speak for them.

Look at England! There fifty years ago Pitt and others proclaimed freedom of instruction, and permitted the endowment of the Roman Catholic College of Maynooth. It increased to thirty thousand pounds sterling a year, and what were the results? The teaching of rebellion, opposition to the law, disobedience to the sovereign; the countenancing of ribbon societies in the colleges by the priests - the instigation to riots. Learn a practical lesson on the wisdom of allowing Jesuits even a share in public education

Thus do Jesuits act upon the mind and heart of a nation!

But I have the strongest argument for Americans, namely, that of dollars! When coming here in the steamer Baltic I read a sermon preached for your Webster, by, I think, Theodore Parker, from which I learned for the first time that your American people are very fond of dollars. I do not despise dollars myself, for the good they can afford, nor you for loving them. But the Jesuits do not despise dollars either, and if you like a few, they like a great many. They and their emissaries have some particular arts for catching your American dollars, the art of the Confessional, and especially the art of persuading people to make last wills and testaments in favour of themselves. *

* In Milan, a few years ago, the Count Melerio, one of the principal men of the city, went to the noblemen residing there, when they were near death, to induce them to leave something to the Society of Jesus. In a few years Count Melerio, it is stated, has thus procured six millions of Italian pounds for the Jesuits! It is related in a Jesuit history, that, in the beginning of this Society, its Father Rector, in Ghent, granted one Jacob Briar, on payment, of two hundred thousand florins, (that is, only one hundred and fifty thousand dollars!) a passport to defend him against every attack of the devil! The facade of a College and Church in Bologna being, unfinished, the Marquis G-- was induced to will a large sum annually to the Jesuits, until they should have completed it. Three or four years were sufficient; but, the Jesuits enjoyed the income during one hundred and twenty-five! When they were suppressed at the end of the last century, the facade remained as it was, and it is not yet finished. Every year the Fathers were "going to complete it," but, with a little mental reservation!

Watch the Jesuits, avowed or disguised, to prevent the robbery of your families, the moral assassination of your sons and daughters.

In a large view of society, you still find the Jesuit influence fatal. If kings and rulers are fond of Jesuits, Jesuits support them; if they despise Jesuits, Jesuits menace and conspire against them. *

Jesuits are essentially absolutists; by education they prefer despotism. +

It now only remains for me to say something about yourselves, Americans. Not more than twelve or thirteen years ago I was in the Propaganda Fide, and then I knew that the Jesuits were coming to America to proselytise you. In 1847 they were really expelled from Italy, from Naples, from Piedmont, from Lombardy, from everywhere. I suspected many went to England, and perhaps more to America. People here say. "We do not know anything about that; we cannot interfere." My suspicion is now certainly; in Baltimore, the first thing I heard from Italians, was, "here, in Pennsylvania, and Virginia, there are many Jesuits; they speak French and Italian very well; they are five years here; just the time since their expulsion from Italy." This is

In Naples, about eighteen years ago, a childless, dying man, whose brother, poor, honest, and celebrated for his learning, had five or six children, left eighty thousand dollars to the Jesuits, saying he did so because they were so powerful they would never allow a fraction to reach his brother, whom he wished totally cut off. By this man's dying bed a Jesuit stood as Father Confessor, and in his last will he said, "I leave my especial curse to my brother and his children." Thus he died. This is Jesuit morality.

* Remember the true history of Europe, and the doctrine of Father Escobar, about killing kings. The Father Provincial Malagrida gave the order to wound John VI. of Portugal. In the gunpowder plot there were three Jesuits, especially Father Garnet. Henry IV. was wounded to death by an assassin, and the guilt was rightly imputed to Father Gardiner. Malagrida, Garnet, and Gardiner were hung by the civil law.

+ It is for this reason I fear Jesuits in America. On the continent of Europe I see everywhere the combination, despots and Jesuits; in Austria, in Naples, in Tuscany, (though in disguise and by their emissaries,) in Lombardy, in the Roman States. And whenever I find a liberal and constitutional government, there I find Jesuits menacing it.

the fruit of that saying of theirs, "what we have lost in Italy we must regain in America."

Oh, good Americans, do you suppose they are working for the American nation, the American glory? They work for themselves and Rome alone! People ask, "What practical conclusion do you propose?" This is my answer-if I were in my native country, as, under God's blessing, I hope to be, perhaps before the end of this year, I should say to my Italians, "To-morrow, in this land, let there be no Jesuits!" and it would be so. I preach no assassination, no murder, no killing, I say, "Go out-we will pay your expenses-go!"*

In America all are free. But remember-before the revision of your Constitution all were not free to work against your law and republic Constitution. Let there be no assassination, murdering, or killing; but, watch their movements, and in the first case where you find a Jesuit really teaching a doctrine contrary to your American freedom, working practically against your Constitution and your liberty, take the opportunity-expel the Jesuits from your country, and then your freedom will be placed on a secure basis!

But now a dreadful outcry-"This is preaching discord among those who lived peaceably together; the fatal lectures of Father Gavazzi!" Yes, war against the devil and evil, therefore against Jesuits and Jesuitism. War to the last, because these very insinuations prove the secret work of Jesuits among you. They excite the public press, and public men to speak these words in order to work undisturbed, and yet protected by public opinion. Fear me, reproach me, and then go forth and see whether you may not find something not very honourable for your America.

*In England I clearly said, "English people, you call yourselves serious and logical, but in my opinion you are very illogical. There is a law against Jesuits in your country, (contained in the Act of Emancipation,) and yet you now have, instead of fourteen Jesuits, as before the law, five hundred Jesuits, in spite of the law. I do not preach persecution, but legality. Expel the Jesuits from England, and you will be called a legal and consistent people."

I find in America many and many Protestants with no independence at all, but really and truly dependant on Romanists. You have among you some politicians who cry "Peace! Tolerance! Leave all free!" Why? They expect votes from Romanists! this is really great independence! I find in America some, (fortunately not the majority,) some public writers, some belonging to the public press, editors and proprietors of newspapers, who always speak of Romanists with great deference. On Protestant glories and achievements they are dumb; but they burst into loud panegyrics, and give lengthy details, to commemorate the laying of the corner-stone of a Popish building, the last consecration by Archbishop Hughes, and the recent sermon of the Reverend Dr So-and-so. Oh great independence! They fear to lose four or five cents a week from their daily or weekly income. But why this subservience to the Popish system? I do not speak particularly about politicians, because, as it is said in ordinary, they have no religion at all; they are Christians, Jews, Pagans, Papists; it is all the same to them; they only look to their places; twenty thousand dollars in London, in Paris, or somewhere else, is the essence of their religion. But why do they and the rest so fawn upon the Romanists? They know the Romanists are united. Therefore they say, " I will pay my court to the Archbishop of New York; he can command twenty, thirty, forty thousand votes, and I will get the votes," thus they pay their court to Archbishop Hughes.

Oh, Protestants! profit by the lesson. It is union among, Romanists that makes their influence. Unite Protestants, and you will hold the balance of power in this, your own country. In Baltimore I was ashamed to see a hundred and fifty thousand Protestants overawed by fifty thousand Romanists. Before the Italian exile you will not do honour to your nation if you appear to him so dependent-permit him to say, in some instances, with a cowardly dependence on Romanists. I cannot preach persecution of the Romanists, but in a Protestant country, in which Protestantism makes the freedom and the glory of the people, I cannot permit---

Remember my last word of this evening. Your glorious, your American Washington did not fight against England in order to prepare the present generation to kneel before Archbishop Hughes, or any Romanist or Papist upon earth. His toil was given, his blood was shed, that you, Americans, might be always a Protestant, and by being a Protestant, always a great, a free, and a glorious nation!

Illuminatus Hellary Rodenhurst Clinton attended the last Bilderberg meeting and she has been catering to the Masonic Jewish Zionists. Obama recently spoke at CFR member ecumenical Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor Rick Warren's Saddleback Church. Warren is the author of the New Age "The Purpose Driven Life." Seventh-Day Adventist Dr. Walter Veith of Amazing Discoveries has a series of lectures with PowerPoint presentations called Total Onslaught which are excellent. You can find them on Google Video. His discussion on Rerum Novarum an encyclical read by Leo XIII but of course penned by the Jesuits is an attack on the Constitution and right to property. It advocates squatters and redistribution of property and wealth. The Order will use this here in Fourteenth Amendment America after a concordat with the Papacy and according to Canon Law then we won't be able to evict an foreign invader or alien who decides to settle in our backyards. Dr. Veith also goes into the genocide the Jesuits are have been carrying out in Zimbabwe. The country is in ruins except for buildings owned by the Order who set up a province there. I believe the Pope's UN caused the crisis/agitation in Darfur meanwhile the Blacks and especially the Whites of South Africa are targeted with medical inquisitions through vaccines and Jesuit-controlled Masonic murderers.

We have examined the Testimony of the Holy Spirit regarding Antichrist, and we have also examined the DOCTRINE of the Papal Antichrist as it is plainly unveiled to us in scripture. “That Day”, known to us as The Day of the Lord, shall not come until AFTER the man of sin has been revealed. The attention of all of history ought to be focused on this revealing as it is a necessary time cue. It can be known to us that some time after this revealing, we may expect The Day of the Lord to come.<o:p></o:p></P>

 <P class=MsoNormal style="MARGIN: 0in 0in 0pt">The first beast who ascends in Revelation Chapter 13 is distinct from that which is mentioned in Revelation chapter 12. The chapter 12 monster is the devil. He is portrayed as a red dragon, having seven heads and ten horns. This previous picture of the pagan <st1:place>Roman Empire</st1:place> serves as a model for us as we examine this later creature, a beast (or kingdom) which will have on its heads the name of blasphemy. This creature is NOT that red dragon which is shown to us in chapter 12, but it says here in Chapter 13 that this beast receives his POWER and seat and authority from that red dragon, the devil. The seat and authority of that dragon was <st1:City><st1:place>Rome</st1:place></st1:City>, and the pagan <st1:place>Roman Empire</st1:place> consisted of ten kingdoms and sat on seven hills, and all power and authority in the known world came from the Caesarean dragon which sat on that throne in <st1:City><st1:place>Rome</st1:place></st1:City>. We showed in the last section where Pagan Rome gave her power and even the title Pontifex Maximus unto the Bishop of Rome, who re-united the ten kingdoms under his temporal and spiritual power, and reigned from the same seat of authority in Papal Rome following the casting down of <st1:City><st1:place>Rome</st1:place></st1:City> pagan. This beast is seen to rise up out of the sea, which usually prophetically represents the people and emphasizes the antichrist nature of fallen man whose number is 6, and who without regeneration cannot attain to Godliness, nor can the “house” they build be the house of God. It is the Lord Jesus alone who builds and heads His own house. The number 6 is the number of man, and the ruler of unregenerate men is the perfection of all that is evil in men, he is three sixes, and rules over the kingdoms of men.<o:p></o:p></P>

The new revived Roman monarchy (Revived in the form of the Papal religion) has seven heads, meaning it not only reigns from the City of Seven hills (Rev. 17:9), but also is seven "heads" to mean kingships or ruling types. I have found much wisdom in the interpretation put forth by the great commentator John Gill on this issue. Gill determined these seven heads to be seven types of rule which would reign over the world from Rome.

1) Kings

2) Consuls

3) Dictators

Just as the <st1:place>Persian Empire</st1:place> is likened to a bear, the weapons of the Romish religion are likened to the feet of a bear, ripping to shreds with its claws all those that oppose it or who do not cower in fear from the blasphemies spewed from its mouth. </

SPAN>The key attribute is this blasphemous mouth, which is as the mouth of a lion. The Babylonian empire is likened to the lion in the prophecies of Daniel, and the mouth of that lion spewed the blasphemies of the Babylonian Mystery religion, which is revived here as the Papacy of Rome and the false religion of the devil.<o:p></o:p></P> <P class=MsoNormal style="MARGIN: 0in 0in 0pt">One of the heads of the Roman beast, the eighth which is of the previous seven, that being the Papacy in all its foul false glory, receives a deadly wound. Now here we have another important element that will give us a critical understanding of the TIME ELEMENT of fulfilled and unfulfilled prophecy. The great Reformation, the sword of the Lord, had been building and growing in its power to destroy the Papacy since the early 1520’s. This movement culminated in between 1789 and the early 1800’s with the destruction and removal of all temporal power from the Pope of Rome. There are some eerie prophetic implications to this. In 529 a.d. the Emperor Justinian codified the Pope’s temporal and ecclesiastical power through his decree of Papal supremacy. 1260 years later, the Pope’s temporal power lay in ruins after the French Revolution. By the early 1800’s, the Pope’s temporal power had been stripped from him. A deadly wound, delivered via the Sword of the Word of God, had been delivered unto the Antichrist’s head (his power). So what is left but the healing of this deadly wound? Can anyone deny that through the Jesuits, through the Jesuit controlled Intelligence agencies of the world, through the machinations of the Vatican Bank (the richest entity in the world) and through silent subterfuge, that the Roman church has been healing itself of this deadly wound? Can anyone deny that behind every ruling temporal power today we can find the evil hand of the Romish church?<o:p></o:p></P>

<P class=MsoNormal style="MARGIN: 0in 0in 0pt 0.5in"><I style="mso-bidi-font-style: normal"> And they worshipped the dragon which gave power unto the beast: and they worshipped the beast, saying, Who is like unto the beast? who is able to make war with him? And there was given unto him a mouth speaking great things and blasphemies; and power was given unto him to continue forty and two months. And he opened his mouth in blasphemy against God, to blaspheme his name, and his tabernacle, and them that dwell in heaven. And it was given unto him to make war with the saints, and to overcome them: and power was given him over all kindreds, and tongues, and nations.</I><o:p></o:p></P>

<P class=MsoNormal style="MARGIN: 0in 0in 0pt">All these attributes we can find throughout history pertaining to the Pope and his power. The Pope's healed head rules over his temporal kings, like the current King of America, such that the whole world wonders after the beast, saying "WHO CAN MAKE WAR AGAINST HIM?" Do we not see this prophecy fulfilled in our time? Examine the recent wars in which the Pope's American Kings have trounced their enemies. Who has not either said or thought, "WHO CAN MAKE WAR AGAINST HIM?" It was the same prior to the Popes fall in 1789. Who could make war against the beast? The beast continued in temporal power for 1260 days (of years), which is forty and two months. During this time he blasphemed God, took upon himself God's mantle and titles and power and authority. He blasphemed God's tabernacle, the <st1:place><st1:PlaceType>Temple</st1:PlaceType> of <st1:PlaceName>His Body</st1:PlaceName></st1:place>, called the <st1:place><st1:PlaceName>TRUE</st1:

They will not worship according to his doctrines. They will not give their power and voice unto his throne. They will not resign from God's kingdom to ignorantly serve the beast. They will not deify their own wills while following doctrines that demote God and enthrone the Antichrist.

God's grace is to be magnified in that the only difference that can be seen between the children of the true King, and the children of the Devil, is the GRACE AND MERCY of Almighty God. God has made us to be different. He has chosen us for our time and place. He has given us the information we need to identify and to be at warfare with His enemies, and He has promised us the ultimate victory over them.

May we have the heart and thoughts of God's servant David:

"Surely thou wilt slay the wicked, O God: depart from me therefore, ye bloody men. For they speak against thee wickedly, and thine enemies take thy name in vain. Do not I hate them, O LORD, that hate thee? and am not I grieved with those that rise up against thee? I hate them with perfect hatred: I count them mine enemies." (Psa 139:19-22)

May we sing along with fearless David the song of God's sovereignty:

Title: DR LEN HOROWITZ IS A KNIGHT OF MALTA

CRAIG-OXLEY - January 9, 2007 02:12 AM (GMT)

DR LEN HOROWITZ IS A KNIGHT OF MALTA

http://www.drlenhorowitz.com/Press/press_r...hting_2006.html

New York, NY—The title "Knight of Merit" was bestowed upon Dr. Leonard G. Horowitz today by Grand Prior Prince Michael of Russia in the company of a full regalia from the New York Priory of the Sovereign Orthodox Knights Hospitaller of St. John of Jerusalem.

The honor of knighthood was granted to Dr. Horowitz for his quarter century of humanitarian service to public health, consumer education, AIDS research, and natural healing advocacy. The ceremony required his vow that he would continue this work and his chivalry.

The sacred investiture ceremony was administered at The Cathedral of the Holy Virgin of Protection in Manhattan where officials of the organization acknowledged Dr. Horowitz's meritorious career achievements.

Dr. Horowitz is best known for bringing AIDS awareness to medical malpractices and the bioethics breaches that triggered the pandemic in the mid-1970s. He is the author of sixteen books including the American bestseller, Emerging Viruses: AIDS & Ebola—Nature, Accident of Intentional?

Publishing as a consumer advocate since 1978, Dr. Horowitz's works have featured common sense methods of natural healing and Bible prescriptions for healthier living. Earlier this year, he received the "World Leading Intellectual" award from the World Organization for Natural Medicine because of his achievements in public health research and education.

Dr. Horowitz, whose expertise spans the overlapping fields of behavioral science, geopolitics, emerging diseases, and natural healing, received his doctorate from Tufts University School of Dental Medicine in 1977. As a student and faculty member there he taught microanatomy (i.e., histology), graduated with honors, and was awarded a research fellowship in behavioral science at the University of Rochester. Following periodontal surgery training at the Eastman Dental Center, by 1982 he had earned a Master of Public Health degree from Harvard University, and a Master of Arts degree in health education/counseling psychology from Beacon College, all before joining the research faculty at Harvard School of Dental Medicine. In Boston, he also taught master's candidates "Pain, Fear and Stress Management" at Leslie College's Institute for the Arts and Human Development. For more than a quarter century he has directed the nonprofit educational publishing company that evolved into Tetrahedron, LLC (<http://www.tetrahedron.org>).

Dr. Horowitz's tenth book, his AIDS text , became an American bestseller by 1999 and is now considered a medical classic. Herein he advanced the thesis of HIV/AIDS being man-made in scientific review. (See: www.originofAIDS.com) That year he released Healing Codes for the Biological Apocalypse which permanently expanded the field of musicology.

Dr. Horowitz's second best-seller, Healing Celebrations: Miraculous Recoveries Through Ancient Scripture, Natural Medicine and Modern Science (2000), advanced practical advice for prevention, protection, and natural-healing. This book, and repeated appearances by Dr. Horowitz were featured twice on TBN's "Praise the Lord Program." Besides this, he has delivered expert commentaries on health topics on every major radio and television network in America, Canada and Great Britain.

In June, 2001, three months before the terrorist attacks of 9/11, Dr. Horowitz released the prophetically-titled critically-acclaimed book, Death in the Air: Globalism, Terrorism and Toxic Warfare. This book examined leading global industrialists' successful efforts to direct contemporary culture through propaganda, toxicity, petrochemical economics, and pharmaceutical dependence. Here, the 54-year-old father of three unvaccinated children heavily criticised many political notables for the mainstream media's "propaganda wars" that inflict fear of infections, thus creating new markets for drugs with hideous side-effects.

His 2004 book, DNA: Pirates of the Sacred Spiral, reviewed the science of electrogenetics that speaks to humanity's fundamental spirituality. Likewise, his 2006 release, Walk on Water, advanced the mathematics, music, and physical mechanics of what he calls the "Spiritual Renaissance." This book is widely reported to hold monumental implications for revolutionizing civilization through the science of "hydro-creationism."

Most recently, Dr. Horowitz decrypted Leonardo Da Vinci's most famous drawing, The Vitruvian Man, which he showed holds profound implications for humanity's physical salvation and civilization's spiritual evolution. The e-book is available for a free download on the Internet by going to www.lovetherealdavincicode.com with donations requested for this service in support of global projects at through Healthy World Distributing, LLC.

Aside from an active speaking schedule, Dr. Horowitz oversees the Steam Vent Inn & Health Retreat on the Big Island of Hawaii, where one of the world's most powerful natural healing resources—volcanically-heated steam—is being used to help explain and demonstrate Divinity to humanity.

Well folks although I respected a lot of his work I knew he was a clever agent for a long time, how? Because of all his HIV Virus theory promotion and his continuing of Dr Strecker's disinformation on both HIV and Animal Viruses. Once you become fully aware of the disinformation surrounding viruses and especially HIV you can see through these people. They use your 'I want to see a devious conspiracy' mind against you in order to promote another conspiracy being a out and out LIE. So in this case in order to close the mind of a clever person they decide to tell you hiv is man made hoping to hook line and sinker you. Now when I, Rappoport and many others expose the truth on the phony virus scams you instantly clamour up and then attack us.

So Horowitz is a Knights of Malta damn is there anyone these people haven't got to? I knew he'd turned Christian but didn't know he'd gone Catholic although he did at one time have a dig at King James.

Alexandra - January 9, 2007 05:14 AM (GMT)

I'm sure there are a FEW they haven't gotten to...most likely they're dead or in prison on trumped-up charges.

Even the Christian radio station I listen to occasionally has the pro-ecumenism nonsense and Bushbots to boot.

The organization that Horowitz joined is not the Sovereign Military Order of Malta, but a Russian order with a different grand master started in 1799. This group is not affiliated with the Vatican.

Although, since the the existence of the hiv/aids virus is a big lie, one COULD argue that it IS in fact a "man made" disease after all. :P

From definitions of Chivralic Orders, Under MALTA. We can see it does speak of Paul Romanov (Emperor of Russia) 1798-1801 as being a Grand Master, who supposedly founded this group? If the Russian Emperor did in fact setup Generals with hereditary rights, then they do have rights to form their own version.....

Here's the standard info available:

MALTA The Knights of St. John Hospitaler of Jerusalem began as an order devoted to the construction and maintenance of medical facilities for use by pilgrims and others in the Holy Land. In this task they have perservered to the present day, and are still widely known for their charitable works in health and human services. As crusaders though, they quickly developed into a military order as well, and were instrumental in defending Acre and Cyprus, conquering and holding Rhodes, and holding Malta (by which name they are still generally known today). After Malta was captured by the French and British during the Napoleonic wars, the Order fell on hard times, but was revived in the later 19th century as an instrument of Roman Catholic charitable works.

What a find! and what a disappointment!

As you must know, the Russian branch of the SMOM was started after Napoleon, under Jesuit control, drove the Order from Malta in 1798---thirty years after the Knights had driven the Jesuits from Malta. Now in Russia, it entered into an agreement with the acting Jesuit General to submit to the Company which had been formally recognized to exist in Russia by Pope Pius VII in 1801. With the Jesuits and the Knights of Malta under the protection of Tzar Paul I (who was murdered that year by the Order for his disobedience in befriending "heretic" Protestant Prussia), the Russian "Tongue" of the Knights of Malta would be "Orthodox"---created specially for the Orthodox nobles of Russia. One such noble would later include Tzar Nicholas II, a co-conspirator in the success of the Black Pope's Bolshevik Revolution.

Nicholas, with his English cousin and brother Knight of Malta, King George V, would use his secret police, the Okhrana, to betray the Kremlin into Bolshevik hands ending his Romanoff dynasty---the protector of the anti-Pope, Eastern Orthodox Church. Moscow, "the third Rome," was now in the hands of the Jesuits via their leading Masonic Jewish Labor Zionists smuggled into Russia from Jesuit-ruled New York City---Lenin and Trotsky's Bolsheviks. So great was the rejoicing of the Order over the fall of Moscow and the murders of over 5,000 anti-Pope priests and nuns, that "anti-communist" Jesuit Edmund A. Walsh (resident in Moscow in 1922 under the subtle excuse of a Papal Relief effort given exclusive jurisdiction from the Pope to "negotiate" with the Bolsheviks, Walsh installing Stalin as the Secretary of the Communist party that same year!) called this "the greatest historical event since the fall of the Roman Empire."

Key to the fall of the Romanoff dynasty and the beheading of the anti-Pope Orthodox Church was the Sovereign Orthodox Knights Hospitaller of St. John of Jerusalem. The Tzar, who was the protector and member of the Order, participated in this high crime of treason against his own people for which he and his family were rewarded with a secret escape. Meanwhile, the Knights aided the new secret police, the Cheka (manned by certain former Okhrana officials), headed by a Polish Roman Catholic who was indeed a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor---the monster Felix Dzerzhinski. Overseeing this bloody murderer was King SMOM George V via his British Secret Intelligence Service in the person of Sydney Reilly.

To throw dust in the eyes of the pedestrian observer, Lenin expelled the Russian Orthodox Branch of the Knights of Malta in 1917, it then taking up residence in Paris until the end of the Pope's Cold War Hoax premised upon the "Mutual Airborne Nuclear War" Hoax. After Knight of Malta George H. W. Bush followed orders in ending the Cold War Hoax (which JFK attempted to end prematurely) in December, 1989, on the island nation of Malta---in the very presence of the Knights of Malta, the brotherhood was readmitted into Russia: it is at this moment headquartered in Moscow and St. Petersburg.

Without the aid and comfort of the Russian Orthodox tongue of the Knights of Malta working with the Protestant English tongue of the Knights of Malta, THERE COULD HAVE BEEN NO SUCCESSFUL BOLSHEVIK REVOLUTION AND THE ENSUING MASS-MURDER OF THE ANTI-JESUIT RUSSIAN PEOPLE FOR NEARLY A CENTURY!

It is this Russian tongue of the Knights of Malta Len Horowitz has now joined. As per its site, the Russian branch "follows the precepts of Blessed Gerard," the founder of the Knights of Malta for the benefit of the Pope's bloodthirsty Crusades. Thus, these very Knights whom Horowitz wonderfully exposes in his masterpiece Emerging Viruses, he has now joined. I wonder if he knows that AIDS virus creator Dr. Robert C. Gallo is also a Knight and was awarded the "Sword of Ignatius Loyola" by the Order's St. Louis University in 1988?

This is a great disappointment. May the risen Son of God, the Lord Jesus Christ, grant this racial Jew and professing Bible-believing Christian repentance for his infamous act. He has betrayed his own racially Jewish/Hebrew people---massacred by Knights of Malta who were members of Himmler's "Circle of Friends"---his racial brethren who are now slated for total annihilation here in North America thanks to Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor George Bush's "War on Terror."

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

I have to disagree with Len Horowitz's Emerging Viruses book supposedly being this great masterpiece everyone talks about. Its mostly disinformation in order to get people to still believe in the main lie about HIV being the cause of AIDS which really has over 30 different syndromes all well known both old and new. I've said this about Len Horowitz for a good while. If you wish to understand the fraud upon us called HIV and the disinformation on animal viruses then study the work of a more intelligent journalist known as JON RAPPOPORT and his most excellent book 'AIDS INC.'

Ask yourself this, how is it he is allowed to write a Spider which went into the FBI's system and he was able to find the names etc linked with the Anthrax attacks? If you or I did anything remotely near that we'd be in jail pronto.

True Patriots in America question whether Horowitz is nothing but a shill for the Vatican-led New World Order.11 Jan 2007

Dr. Len Horowitz, who has always portrayed himself as a true patriot fighting against New World Order health crimes and disease, has recently become a member of the Knights of Malta, according to reports from one of their affiliate web sites.

The outward display of 'papal knighthood' by Horowitz comes as a shock to a number of patriots who previously placed trust in Horowitz's literary work in the field of disease prevention and emerging viruses.

"This is a great disappointment," said Eric Jon Phelps, author of the widely read book, Vatican Assassins. "May the risen Son of God, the Lord Jesus Christ, grant this racial Jew and professing Bible-believing Christian repentance for his infamous act.

"He has betrayed his own racially Jewish/Hebrew people---massacred by Knights of Malta who were members of Himmler's "Circle of Friends"---his racial brethren who are now slated for total annihilation here in North America thanks to Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor George Bush's "War on Terror."

Horowitz could not be reached for comment.

Although the Knights of Malta's true purpose has been a well-kept Vatican secret, people in America are being educated to the fact it is still an organized world-wide group which furthers the Vatican's upcoming "New Inquisition" by aiding, abetting and fostering the fascist takeover of America.

"It is this Russian tongue of the Knights of Malta Len Horowitz has now joined," added Phelps. "As per its site, the Russian branch "follows the precepts of Blessed Gerard," the founder of the Knights of Malta for the benefit of the Pope's bloodthirsty Crusades.

"Thus, these very Knights whom Horowitz wonderfully exposes in his masterpiece Emerging Viruses, he has now joined.

 I wonder if he knows that AIDS virus creator Dr. Robert C. Gallo is also a Knight and was awarded the "Sword of Ignatius Loyola" by the Order's St. Louis University in 1988?"

Another patriot who wanted to remain anonymous sent this comment and email to the Arctic Beacon:

"So Horowitz is a Knights of Malta damn is there anyone these people haven't got to? I knew he'd turned Christian but didn't know he'd gone Catholic although he did at one time have a dig at King James.

size="3">

"Although I respected a lot of his work I knew he was a clever agent for a long time, how? Because of all his HIV Virus theory promotion and his continuing of Dr. Strecker's disinformation on both HIV and Animal Viruses.

"Once you become fully aware of the disinformation surrounding viruses and especially HIV you can see through these people. They use your 'I want to see a devious conspiracy' mind against you in order to promote another conspiracy being an out and out LIE. So in this case in order to close the mind of a clever person they decide to tell you HIV is man made hoping to hook line and sinker you. Now when I, Rapp port and many others expose the truth on the phony virus scams you instantly clamor up and then attack us."

Phelps then elaborated on the history of the Russian Knights of Malta and its connections to the Vatican's bloodthirsty Crusades:

Consumer health activist Dr. Len Horowitz admitted he was "knighted" by the

Sovereign Orthodox Order of the Knights Hospitaller of St. John of Jerusalem, but said he has done nothing to compromise his stance as a ">true patriot."

In a phone conversation Horowitz told the Arctic Beacon he was been unjustly persecuted by "certain patriots" who claim he has sold out to

Vatican interests instead of being a true patriot and advocate of the people.

<span style="FONT-FAMILY:

However, several a group of patriots disagree, saying the Hospitallers and the two groups are essentially "tied at the hip and one in the same.

Further, the Hospitaller official web site and a Wikipedia explanation seem to agree with Horowitz's critics.

Here is the Wikipedia explanation in part. For a complete explanation go to http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Knights_Hospitaller

The Knights Hospitaller (also known as the Sovereign Order of Saint John of Jerusalem of Rhodes and of Malta, Knights of Malta, Knights of Rhodes, and Chevaliers of Malta) is an organization that began as an Amalfitan hospital founded in Jerusalem in 1080 to provide care for poor and sick pilgrims to the Holy Land. After the conquest of Jerusalem in 1099 during the First Crusade it became a Catholic military order under its own charter, and was charged with the care and defense of pilgrims to the Holy Land. Following the loss of Christian territory in the Holy Land, the Order operated from Rhodes, over which it was sovereign, and later from Malta where it administered a vassal state under the Spanish viceroy of Sicily. Although this state came to an end with the ejection of the Order from Malta by Napoleon, the Order as such survived.

The Sovereign Military Hospitaller Order of St. John of Jerusalem of Rhodes and of Malta (abbreviated SMOM) is considered to be the main successor to this tradition. The Order of the Dames of Malta is the female auxiliary to the Knights.

Official flag of the Order of Malta The Sovereign Military Hospitaller Order of Saint John of Jerusalem of Rhodes and of Malta, better known as the Sovereign Military Order of Malta or SMOM, remains a Catholic order which claims sovereignty under international law and has been granted permanent observer status at the United Nations, although its claims of sovereignty are disputed by some scholars. [2] SMOM is considered to be the direct successor to the medieval Knights Hospitaller, also known as the Knights of Malta, and today operates as a largely religious, charitable and hospitaller organization.

The full official name is Sovereign Military Hospitaller Order of St. John of Jerusalem of Rhodes and of Malta (in English) or Sovrano Militare Ordine Ospedaliero di San Giovanni di Gerusalemme di Rodi e di Malta (in Italian). Conventionally, they are also known as the Order of Malta. The Order has a large number of local priories and associations around the world but there also exist a number of organizations with similar-sounding names that are unrelated, including several fraudulent orders seeking to capitalize on the name. The Order's motto is Tuitio Fidei et Obsequium Pauperum (Latin for Defence of the faith and assistance to the poor).

Regarding the knighting of Horowitz, which came a shock and disappointment to a number of patriots, Eric Jon Phelps, religious historian and author of Vatican Assassins, had this to say:

"Mr. Horowitz is a smart man and I can't believe he doesn't know or understand the history, intent and purpose of the organization he has joined. I think he is trying to confuse people.

"This is a great disappointment. May the risen Son of God, the Lord Jesus Christ, grant this racial Jew and professing Bible-believing Christian repentance for his infamous act.

"He has betrayed his own racially Jewish/Hebrew people---massacred by Knights of Malta who were members of Himmler's "Circle of Friends"---his racial brethren who are now slated for total annihilation here in North America thanks to Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor George Bush's "War on Terror."

In a statement released on behalf of Horowitz by Jackie Lindenbach of the his Tetrahedron Publishing Group, it said in part:

Responding to allegations that his work has been corrupted by secret societies and the papacy, Dr. Horowitz chides, "That's fine, anyone questioning my integrity and contributions to humanity should just go get vaccinated."

Gordon, a self-proclaimed American patriot, and immediately distributed over the Internet by Canadian talk show host Greg Szymanski. Neither contacted Dr. Horowitz for comment prior to issuing the article condemning a different order of the Knights of Malta, and its Papal connection.

Besides this, Horowitz is currently advancing a global "Concert for

Although the Knights of Malta's, aka, Hospitallers' true purpose has been a well-kept Vatican secret, people in America are being educated to the fact it is still an organized world-wide group which furthers the Vatican's upcoming "New Inquisition" by aiding, abetting and fostering the fascist takeover of America.

Thus, these very Knights whom Horowitz wonderfully exposes in his masterpiece Emerging Viruses, he has now joined.

I wonder if he knows that AIDS virus creator Dr. Robert C. Gallo is also a Knight and was awarded the "Sword of Ignatius Loyola" by the Order's St. Louis University in 1988?

In the conversation with the Arctic Beacon, Horowitz said he would appear on Greg Szymanski's radio show, The Investigative Journal, only if the initial article about his knighthood was removed.

Enclosed in his official statement released, he said would grant interviews with other journalists but would not budge on his caveat issued to The Investigative Journal, adding:

"Now that you have this (statement). Kindly remove the slanderous article from your website to expunge this distraction and waste of everyone's time. If you cannot grant me this simple request and respect my wishes, I cannot accept your offer to do the radio show. I would prefer to discuss more relevant and beneficial subjects."

In response Szymanski stated:

"I stand by the story and perhaps now that Mr. Horowitz is enlightened to the truth about his organization he has joined, he would publicly rescind his knighthood. If he did that, I would then consider having him on the radio show."

When made aware of the knighting of Horowitz, A. True Ott, PhD, had this to say from his Utah home:

Bible Scholar Points To Vatican And Jesuit Order As True Religious Controllers of New World Order

Mike Novielli says all roads lead to Vatican when looking for Satan's followers.

2 Mar 2007

By Greg Szymanski

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/2-Mar-2007.html>

Religious researcher and Bible scholar Mike Novielli has a message to the Jesuit General, Fr. Peter Hand Kolvenbach known as the Black Pope:

"Repent and find God by admitting your evil doings."

Novielli came forward Thursday on Greg Szymanski's radio show, The Investigative Journal, saying the Vatican and the Jesuit Order were the true spiritual controllers of the New World Order.

He said he love to chat with Kolvenbach, but until he allows the word of God to enter his life, "this will never happen."

"The order of power in the New World Order is as follows," said Novielli. "Satan followed by the Black Pope and the Pope."

Novielli added the chain of command then filters down through control of the world's intelligence agencies, government leaders and high-level religious leaders.

"The Jesuits have infiltrated every major religion and government in order to bring about the Pope's final crusade. Years ago I began reading the late Jesuit Fr. Alberto Rivera's incredible account of Jesuit infiltration into major religions and government which opened my eyes to the severity of the New World Order control word wide," added Novielli who runs a very informative web site at <http://www.geocities.com/propheticangel2001/menu.htm>

"Thank you for the opportunity to be able to share with you and your radio guests some of the thing that the Lord has shown me concerning the Roman Catholic Institution. Finding the Lord is really the only way to stop Satan's followers on earth. Since there must be a worldly headquarters for Satan's evil, after years of research I have determined it to be the Vatican.

"I also had listened to Alberto Rivera's wife Nury Rivera's interview and when she mentioned that the Vatican wanted to confiscate Alberto's remains and wanted to take them to the Vatican for WORSHIP that is the very TRUTH.

"I have seen photos of bones all "decorated and adorned" under the Vatican.

Looking forward to sharing more with you and your listeners in the near future if the Lord wills."

Novielli will make a second appearance on the Investigative Journal at www.rbnlive.com Next week Thursday at 11am central. He will continue detailing how the study of the Bible reveals the true harlot of evil is the Vatican, "Millions have been killed over the years by Vatican-led genocides. They are the world's best liars and deceivers and they will lie about anything and everything," added Novielli.

On his web site, Novielli has collected some interesting facts and documents about the true nature of evil power of the papacy, indicating the Vatican's real purpose is world domination. Here are a few examples:

THE DICTATES OF HILDERBRAND (POPE GREGORY VII)

- 1. That the Roman Church was founded by the Lord alone.
- 2. That the Roman Pontiff alone is justly called universal.
- 3. That he alone can depose bishops or restore them ...
- 9. That all princes should kiss the feet of the pope alone...
- 12. That it is lawful for him to depose emperors ...
- 18. That his sentence ought not to be reviewed by any one; and he alone can review [the decisions] of all.
- 19. That he ought to be judged by no one ...
- 22. That the Roman Church never erred; nor will it, according to Scripture, ever err ...
- 27. That he can absolve subjects from their allegiance to unrighteous [rulers].

Bull of Pope Innocent IV Deposing Emperor Frederick II

... We [Pope Innocent IV] therefore, after careful discussion with our brother cardinals and the sacred council [Lyons, 1245 A.D.] on his [Emperor Frederick II] wicked transgressions already mentioned and many more besides, since though unworthy we hold on earth the place of Jesus Christ, and to us in the person of the blessed apostle Peter has been said, whatever you bind on earth etc., denounce the said prince, who has made himself so unworthy of the empire and kingdoms and every honour and dignity and who also, because of his crimes, has been cast out by God from kingdom and empire; we mark him out as bound by his sins, an outcast and deprived by our Lord of every honour and dignity; and we deprive him of them by our sentence. We absolve from their oath for ever all those who are bound to him by an oath of loyalty, firmly forbidding by our apostolic authority anyone in the future to obey or heed him as emperor or king, and decreeing that anyone who henceforth offers advice, help or favour to him as to an emperor or king, automatically incurs excommunication. Let those whose task it is to choose an emperor in the same empire, freely choose a successor to him. With regard to the aforesaid kingdom of Sicily, we shall take care to provide, with the counsel of our brother cardinals, as we see to be expedient.

Given at Lyons on 17 July in the third year of our pontificate [1245 A.D.].

Claims of "I Am Caesar" (Boniface VIII)

The papal theory ... made the Pope alone God's representative on earth and maintained that the Emperor received his right to rule from St. Peter's successor... It was upheld by Nicholas I., Hildebrand, Alexander III., Innocent III., and culminated with Boniface VIII. at the jubilee of 1300 when, seated on the throne of Constantine, girded with the imperial sword, wearing a crown, and waving a sceptre, he shouted to the throng of loyal pilgrims: "I am Caesar—I am Emperor."

Obedience to the Pope declared necessary for Salvation

We, moreover, proclaim, declare and pronounce that it is altogether necessary to salvation for every human being to be subject to the Roman Pontiff.

Source: Pope Boniface VIII, Bull Unam Sanctam, promulgated November 18, 1302, in Translations and Reprints From the Original Sources of European History, Vol. 3 (Philadelphia: University of Pennsylvania Press, 189–), No. 6, pp. 20–23 (from Latin text of Mury, Revue des Questions Historiques, Vol. 46, pp. 225, 256, based on the facsimile from the Papal Regesta).

Liberally minded Catholic apologists will sometimes suggest that Boniface VIII meant to apply his remark only to Catholics, and that Protestants are not automatically excluded from salvation by it. However the Latin text (in David S. Schaff, The Middle Ages [Philip Schaff, History of the Christian Church, Vol. 5. New York: Scribner, 1910], part 2, p. 28) reads omni humanae creaturae ("every human creature"). The title of the bull, Unam Sanctum (One Holy Church) and its last sentence make clear that Boniface VIII was declaring that submission to the Pope of the Holy See of Rome of the Catholic Church was the only means of salvation and that those resisting that presumed authority were lost souls. Conservative traditional Catholics will staunchly defend the statement that "Outside the Catholic Church there is no Salvation", and will cite Unam Sanctam

Here is the full text of UNAM SANCTAM online.

Pope Claims Primacy Over the World.

We likewise define that the holy Apostolic See, and the Roman Pontiff, hold the primacy throughout the entire world; and that the Roman Pontiff himself is the successor of blessed Peter, the chief of the Apostles, and the true vicar of Christ, and that he is the head of the entire Church, and the father and teacher of all Christians; and that full power was given to him in blessed Peter by Our Lord Jesus Christ, to feed, rule, and govern the universal Church; just as is contained in the acts of the ecumenical Councils and in the sacred canons."

Papacy Claims Authority Over the Kings of the Earth

SERVIENT EI, a quote of Daniel 7:27 from the Latin Vulgate, which when translated in the Catholic Douay Rheims reads "ALL KINGS SHALL SERVE HIM". The scripture refers to God, but the papal triple-tiered tiara portrayed above the cross clearly symbolizes the papacy as God's designated authority on earth, to whom all kings will be obedient.

Martin Luther on Papal Infallibility

[p. 69] They assume authority, and juggle before us with impudent words, saying that the Pope cannot err in matters of faith, whether he be evil or good, albeit they cannot prove it by a single letter... We will quote the Scriptures. St. Paul says, "If any thing be revealed to another that sitteth by, let the first hold his peace" (1 Cor. 14:30). What would be the use of this commandment, if we were to believe him alone that teaches or has the highest seat? Christ Himself says, "And they shall be all taught of God" (John 6:45). Thus it may come to pass that the Pope and his followers are wicked and not true Christians, and not being taught by God, have no true understanding, whereas a common man may have true understanding. Why should we then not follow him? Has not the Pope often erred? ... Therefore it is a wickedly devised fable—and they cannot quote a single letter to confirm it—that it is for the Pope alone to interpret [p. 70] the Scriptures or to confirm the interpretation of them. They have assumed the authority of their own selves. And though they say that this authority was given to St. Peter when the keys were given to him, it is plain enough that the keys were not given to St.

Peter alone, but to the whole community.

Furthermore, he lists on his site the Extreme Oath of the Jesuits, which everyone should read to get a good idea of the true intentions of the Society of Jesus; Here is the oath:

EXTREME OATH AND INDUCTION of the SOCIETY OF JESUS

(The Jesuit Order)

When a Jesuit of the minor rank is to be elevated to command, he is conducted into the Chapel of the Convent of the Order, where there are only three others present, the principal or Superior standing in front of the altar. On either side stands a monk, one of whom holds a banner of yellow and white, which are the Papal colours, and the other a black banner with a dagger and red cross above a skull and crossbones, with the word INRI, and below them the words IUSTUM NECAR REGES IMPIUS. The meaning of which is: It is just to exterminate or annihilate impious or heretical Kings, Governments, or Rulers. Upon the floor is a red cross at which the postulant or candidate kneels. The Superior hands him a small black crucifix, which he takes in his left hand and presses to his heart, and the Superior at the same time presents to him a dagger, which he grasps by the blade and holds the point against his heart, the Superior still holding it by the hilt, and thus addresses the postulant: (The Superior speaks:) My son, heretofore you have been taught to act the dissembler: among Roman Catholics to be a Roman Catholic, and to be a spy even among your own brethren; to believe no man, to trust no man. Among the Reformers, to be a Reformer; among the Huguenots, to be a Huguenot; among the Calvinists, to be a Calvinist; among other Protestants, generally to be a Protestant; and obtaining their confidence, to seek even to preach from their pulpits, and to denounce with all the vehemence in your nature our Holy Religion and the Pope; and even to descend so low as to become a Jew among Jews, that you might be enabled to gather together all information for the benefit of your Order as a faithful soldier of the Pope. You have been taught to plant insidiously the seeds of jealousy and hatred between communities, provinces, states that were at peace, and to incite them to deeds of blood, involving them in war with each other, and to create revolutions and civil wars in countries that were independent and prosperous, cultivating the arts and the sciences and enjoying the blessings of peace; to take sides with the combatants and to act secretly with your brother Jesuit, who might be engaged on the other side, but openly opposed to that with which you might be connected, only that the Church might be the gainer in the end, in the conditions fixed in the treaties for peace and that the end justifies the means. You have been taught your duty as a spy, to gather all statistics, facts and information in your power from every source; to ingratiate yourself into the confidence of the family circle of Protestants and heretics of every class and character, as well as that of the merchant, the banker, the lawyer, among the schools and universities, in parliaments and legislatures, and the judiciaries and councils of state, and to be all things to all men, for the Pope's sake, whose servants we are unto death. You have received all your instructions heretofore as a novice, a neophyte, and have served as co-adjurer, confessor and priest, but you have not yet been invested with all that is necessary to command in the Army of Loyola in the service of the Pope. You must serve the proper time as the instrument and executioner as directed by your superiors; for none can command here who has not consecrated his labours with the blood of the heretic; for "without the shedding of blood no man can be saved". Therefore, to fit yourself for your work and make your own salvation sure, you will, in addition to your former oath of obedience to your order and allegiance to the Pope, repeat after me:

I _____ , now in the presence of Almighty God, the blessed Virgin Mary, the blessed St. John the Baptist, the Holy Apostles, St. Peter and St. Paul, and all the saints, sacred host of Heaven, and to you, my Ghostly Father, the superior general of the Society of Jesus, founded by St. Ignatius Loyola, in the pontification of Paul the Third, and continued to the present, do by the womb of the Virgin, the matrix of God, and the rod of Jesus Christ, declare and swear that His Holiness, the Pope, is Christ's Vice-Regent and is the true and only head of the Catholic or Universal Church throughout the earth; and that by the virtue of the keys of binding and loosing given to His Holiness by my Saviour, Jesus Christ, he hath power to depose heretical Kings, Princes, States, Commonwealths, and Governments, and they may be safely destroyed.

Therefore to the utmost of my power I will defend this doctrine and His Holiness's right and custom against all usurpers of the heretical or Protestant authority whatever, especially the Lutheran Church of Germany, Holland, Denmark, Sweden and Norway, and the now pretended authority and Churches of England and Scotland, and the branches of same now established in Ireland and on the continent of America and elsewhere and all adherents in regard that they may be usurped and heretical, opposing the sacred Mother Church of Rome.

I do now denounce and disown any allegiance as due to any heretical king, prince or State, named Protestant or Liberal, or obedience to any of their laws, magistrates or officers. I do further declare the doctrine of the Churches of England and Scotland of the Calvinists, Huguenots, and others of the name of Protestants or Masons to be damnable, and they themselves to be damned who will not forsake the same. I do further declare that I will help, assist, and advise all or any of His Holiness's agents, in any place where I should be, in Switzerland, Germany, Holland, Ireland or America, or in any other kingdom or territory I shall come to, and do my utmost to extirpate the heretical Protestant or Masonic doctrines and to destroy all their pretended powers, legal or otherwise.

I do further promise and declare that, notwithstanding, I am dispensed with to assume any religion heretical for the propagation of the Mother Church's interest; to keep secret and private all her agents' counsels from time to time, as they entrust me, and not to divulge, directly or indirectly, by word, writing or circumstances whatever; but to execute all that should be proposed, given in charge, or discovered unto me by you, my Ghostly Father, or any of this sacred order.

I do further promise and declare that I will have no opinion or will of my own or any mental reservation whatever, even as a corpse or cadaver (perinde ac cadaver), but will unhesitatingly obey each and every command that I may receive from my superiors in the militia of the Pope and of Jesus Christ. That I will go to any part of the world whithersoever I may be sent, to the frozen regions north, jungles of India, to the centres of civilisation of Europe, or to the wild haunts of the barbarous savages of America without murmuring or repining, and will be submissive in all things, whatsoever is communicated to me. I do further promise and declare that I will, when opportunity presents, make and wage relentless war, secretly and openly, against all heretics, Protestants and Masons, as I am directed to do, to extirpate them from the face of the whole earth; and that I will spare neither age, sex nor condition, and that will hang, burn, waste, boil, flay, strangle, and bury alive these infamous heretics; rip up the stomachs and wombs of their women, and crush their infants' heads against the walls in order to annihilate their execrable race. That when the same cannot be done openly I will secretly use the poisonous cup, the strangulation cord, the steel of the poniard, or the leaden bullet, regardless of the honour, rank, dignity or authority of the persons, whatever may be their condition in life, either public or private, as I at any time may be directed so to do by any agents of the Pope or Superior of the Brotherhood of the Holy Father of the Society of Jesus. In confirmation of which I hereby dedicate my life, soul, and all corporal powers, and with the dagger which I now receive I will subscribe my name written in my blood in testimony thereof; and should I prove false, or weaken in my determination, may my brethren and fellow soldiers of the militia of the Pope cut off my hands and feet and my throat from ear to ear, my belly be opened and sulphur burned therein with all the punishment that can be inflicted upon me on earth, and my soul shall be tortured by demons in eternal hell forever.

That I will in voting always vote for a Knight of Columbus in preference to a Protestant, especially a Mason, and that I will leave my party so to do; that if two Catholics are on the ticket I will satisfy myself which is the better supporter of Mother Church and vote accordingly.

That I will not deal with or employ a Protestant if in my power to deal with or employ a Catholic.

That I will place Catholic girls in Protestant families that a weekly report may be made of the inner movements of the heretics.

That I will provide myself with arms and ammunition that I may be in readiness when the word is passed, or I am commanded to defend the Church either as an individual or with the militia of the Pope.

All of which I, _____, do swear by the blessed Trinity and blessed sacrament which I am now to receive to perform and on part to keep this my oath. In testimony hereof, I take this most holy and blessed sacrament of the Eucharist and witness the same further with my name written with the point of this dagger dipped in my own blood and seal in the face of this holy sacrament.

You will now rise to your feet and I will instruct you in the Catechism necessary to make yourself known to any member of the Society of Jesus belonging to this rank.

In the first place, you, as a Brother Jesuit, will with another mutually make the ordinary sign of the cross as any ordinary Roman Catholic would; then one crosses his wrists, the palms of his hands open, and the other in answer crosses his feet, one above the other; the first points with forefinger of the right hand to the centre of the palm of the left, the other with the forefinger of the left hand points to the centre of the palm of the right; the first then with his right hand makes a circle around his head, touching it; the other then with the forefinger of his left hand touches the left side of his body just below his heart; the first then with his right hand draws it across the throat of the other, and the latter then with a dagger down the stomach and abdomen of the first. The first then says Iustum; and the other answers Necar; the first Reges; the other answers Impious. The first will then present a small piece of paper folded in a peculiar manner, four times, which the other will cut longitudinally and on opening the name Jesu will be found written upon the head and arms of a cross three times. You will then give and receive with him the following questions and answers:

From whither do you come?

Answer: The Holy faith.

Whom do you serve?

Answer: The Holy Father at Rome, the Pope, and the Roman Catholic Church Universal throughout the world.

Who commands you?

Answer: The Successor of St. Ignatius Loyola, the founder of the Society of Jesus or the Soldiers of Jesus Christ.

Who received you?

Answer: A venerable man in white hair.

How?

Answer: With a naked dagger, I kneeling upon the cross beneath the banners of the Pope and of our sacred order.

Did you take an oath?

Answer: I did, to destroy heretics and their governments and rulers, and to spare neither age, nor sex, nor condition; to be as a corpse without any opinion or will of my own, but to implicitly obey my Superiors in all things without hesitation or murmuring.

Will you do that?

Answer: I will.

How do you travel?

Answer: In the bark of Peter the fisherman.

Whither do you travel?

Answer: To the four quarters of the globe.

For what purpose?

Answer: To obey the orders of my General and Superiors and execute the will of the Pope and faithfully fulfil the conditions of my oaths.

Go ye, then, into all the world and take possession of all lands in the name of the Pope. He who will not accept him as the Vicar of Jesus and his Vice-Regent on earth, let him be accursed and exterminated. Greg Szymanski

Confession To The Jesuits No. 24: Witchcraft in White House And Vatican

This week we also look at a revealing interview about Vatican and Jesuit Order corruption with Eric Phelps. Also his third edition of Vatican Assassins is now finished and ready for distribution.

In this Confession to the Jesuits No. 24, we call on an article which first appeared on the Cutting Edge web site and then reprinted at Bible scholar's Mike Novielli's site at <http://www.geocities.com/propheticangel2001/>

The article is entitled Witchcraft, The White House and Roman Catholicism. Next, we take a look at an old interview conducted with Eric Phelps, which is pertinent today since his third edition of Vatican Assassins is now available at his web site at www.vaticanassassins.org

First let's look at the Witchcraft article and then the Phelps interview:

WITCHCRAFT
THE WHITE HOUSE AND ROMAN CATHOLOICISM

The moral bankruptcy of our society is well-documented. But, few people understand why we have become morally bankrupt. However, when we look at society through the Biblical eyes of God, we can easily see why we are facing the unprecedented troubles of today. This study of America through the eyes of God is what we will always try to do here; stay with us for some eye-opening truths.

We have stated many times on this radio program that the occultic plan was to reelect George Bush as President and to stage the appearance of Anti-Christ during his second term. Remember the occultic prophecy, communicated in 1492 to the leader of a Spanish secret society: "The leader who faces the obelisk shall introduce the world to the man who will introduce Anti-Christ". This prophecy was dealing with a political leader who would deliberately face a major obelisk at a critical time in world history. Occultists all over the world would then know that the successor to this political leader would be the one to introduce the world to Anti-Christ. Then, in the late 1700's, the guiding spirits of the occultic secret societies communicated that the new America would become the new Atlantis; in other words, the new America was destined to assume the leadership of the drive to institute the New World Order. From this time forward, occultists looked to American leadership, specifically the President, to fulfill this prophecy.

And the United States of America has the world's tallest and largest obelisk -- the Washington Monument. Every President from George Washington to Jimmy Carter took their oaths of office from the East side of the Capitol Building; however, on January 20, 1981, President Reagan insisted that the Inauguration Ceremony take place from the West side of the Capitol. A quick look at a map of Washington, D.C., shows that, when President Reagan addressed the crowd to give his Inaugural speech, he was facing that great obelisk, the Washington Monument. Occultists the world over clearly knew the significance. They knew that the occultic plan to produce Anti-Christ was nearing its completion; they knew that Reagan's successor was to be the President to be in power when Anti-Christ staged his appearance. President Reagan took his second oath of office from the traditional East side of the Capitol as did President Bush. The plan called for only one President to face the occultic obelisk.

However, as we have stated repeatedly, God's Plan is the one which will prevail, not Satan's. Even though the New World Order Plan called for George Bush's reelection, God's power prevailed to thwart Bush's second Administration. For reasons only God will know, He caused Bill Clinton to be elected as America's 42nd President. This undoubtedly caused much consternation among the occultists around the world. They were asking among themselves whether Clinton was willing and capable of carrying the torch of the New World Order. Clearly, Clinton had to signal to these powerful New World Order occultists that he would, indeed, carry forward the Plan to produce Anti-Christ. Clinton flashed two important signals designed to reassure:

During his acceptance speech, Clinton stated that one of the most important influences in his life was his college professor, Carroll Quigley. Professor Quigley is renowned for his ardent support of the New World Order.

Clinton decided that his Inauguration would also be from the West side of the Capitol, so that he also faced the obelisk, the Washington Monument. This action was a clear signal to every occultist in the know that Clinton was willing and capable of carrying the Plan forward.

One of the fundamental truths which I learned in the study of history in both high school and college was that, if people do not learn the facts of history, they will be doomed to repeat the mistakes of history. Since most people do not learn history from one generation to another, history does have a nasty habit of repeating itself. And history is repeating itself in America as we are on a parallel path with Germany in the 1920's-1930's, as that country progressed gradually into Nazism. Later historians would ask the question, "How could the country of Martin Luther become the country of Adolf Hitler"?

This very good question prompted the unparalleled study of history in the years following the conclusion of World War II. One of these studies was written by a renowned psychiatrist, Dr. Robert Jay Lifton, in his book, "The Nazi Doctors". Dr. Lifton systematically showed how the Nazi holocaust, which ultimately killed over 18 million people, actually began in the early 1920's, as doctors and nurses began to kill people under their care, people whom they felt no longer had "quality of life". Certain doctors and nurses were killing several types of people in their institutions:

The terminally ill. Doctors and nurses argued that they were actually acting very humanely on the behalf of their terminally ill patients when they euthanized them, because they were preventing them from long periods of pain and mental anguish. In some cases, patients wrote letters asking the doctors to euthanize them.

The emotionally ill. Again, doctors and nurses reasoned that these people could not enjoy a normal life, and therefore, should be killed. Such killing was deemed to also benefit German society by preventing state resources from being endlessly poured into keeping individuals alive who could never contribute anything back to the state.

The physically handicapped. All the arguments listed above were used in this category of people. At the beginning, people were euthanized who were extremely handicapped; however, by the end of the war, people were being killed for the slightest of reasons, i.e., if their ears were malformed. Remember, human beings are creatures of gradual change. Satan is well aware that, if he can open the door to an objectionable practice just a crack, he can later open it gradually further and further, until he finally has it open all the way. Such was the case in pre-Nazi Germany, and such is the case today in America, as the scenario is unfolding before our eyes. How important was the gradual public acceptance of the euthanizing of the types of people we have just discussed? Dr. Lifton states emphatically in his book, the Nazi Doctors, that Hitler's ultimate holocaust would simply not have been possible had it not been for the interim step of euthanasia. This statement is very heavy, and it should sound all sorts of alarms in our hearts and heads about the direction this country is headed. However --

Let us pause here for just a moment. We have devoted several radio programs on this subject of gradually changing the hearts and minds of people to a practice which we have always considered objectionable. We have named this process the "Six-Step Attitudinal Change Plan". Under Presidents Franklin Roosevelt to George Bush, American society has gradually been conditioned to accept many formerly objectionable practices as normal and healthy. In so many instances, the door to such objectionable practices has been opened either most of the way or just a crack. We have seen this action occur in many areas:

1. The Slaughtering of the Innocent Unborn

Abortion

Fetal Tissue Research

The French "Morning After" Abortion pill, RU- 486.

2. Euthanising People Who Want To Die Rather Than Face Life In Their Present Condition. So far, the people whom Dr. Kevorkian has killed have all requested to be killed. And other cases of euthanasia have occurred where the family has made the decision to kill their "loved" one. And no doubt, this will be the case for some years to come. However, the time will arrive when the decision to kill will pass from the individual to the family to the State. Dr. Lifton chronicles this exact progression in Germany prior to the point where Adolf Hitler assumed power. At this point, in 1933, Hitler stepped into the ongoing euthanasia process and committed Federal Government resources and manpower to the effort. Obviously, the number of people killed between 1933-1938 dramatically increased, and the stage was set for the Holocaust to begin.

We believe President Clinton may be the man who will also step into the ongoing process of euthanasia to commit Federal Government resources and manpower to the effort, and will begin to set the stage for the Bibically-prophesied worldwide Holocaust of the Great Tribulation. And Dr. Kevorkian, dubbed "Dr. Death" by some and "Jack the Dropper" by others, will have played a major role in conditioning Americans that Euthanasia is normal and healthy. At this point, Dr. Kevorkian has assisted 15 people to die, all with their consent. Dr. Kevorkian is preparing two actions which might have tremendous impact in furthering Euthanasia:

Dr. Kevorkian is preparing to legally challenge the impending Minnesota law which prohibits any doctor from assisting any person to commit suicide. If Dr. Kevorkian succeeds in overturning this new law, every state in the Union will be very reluctant to enact similar legislation. Thus, the case for national Euthanasia will have just been legally legitimized. We believe that this scenario is what Satan had in mind all along. The tactic is brilliant.

During Pat Robertson's '700 Club', 2-17-93, Robertson interviewed a reporter who had talked with Dr. Jack Kevorkian. Dr. Kevorkian would like to have Euthanasia Centers opening in all parts of the country. He is sending out mailers to doctors who are currently operating Abortion Clinics, asking them if they would be interested in converting them into Euthanasia Clinics!!

The fact of the matter is that these clinics, plus Planned Parenthood, will cease their reason for existence when the French abortion pill, RU-486, becomes widely available. Women will no longer need to go to an Abortion Clinic to get rid of their "unwanted tissue mass". They can simply achieve identical results by swallowing this little pill. And many doctors will lose millions of dollars of income. But, they will have nothing to fear if Dr. Kevorkian has his way -- these doctors will simply rename their clinics, will buy the necessary new machinery to kill adults, and will reopen as public Euthanasia Clinics.

As revolting as this scenario may sound to many of you, Dr. Kevorkian's action here is very much consistent with the plans of the New World Order to reduce the population of the world from its present 6 billion people to 2 billion by the year 2,000 A.D. To achieve this ambitious goal in just 7 more years obviously will require that the pace of killing be stepped up. The campaign for public acceptance of Euthanasia and its widespread use, is still in the stage of people making personal decisions to end their life. And the reasons being advanced are still medical, i.e., because said person is terminally ill and wants to end their suffering while they can still do so "with dignity". However, once public Euthanasia centers are set up and operating, who will argue when a person walks into the clinic demanding to be euthanised for nonmedical reasons, perhaps because he/she has just lost a loved one or because they have just lost their job? Immediately, an outcry would be heard that such a request must be granted. Then, America would be on a truly slippery slope to widespread killing.

And we have already seen instances where family members have made decisions to kill "loved ones".

We see these two paths occurring simultaneously. Thus, the stage would be set for the Federal Government to secretly step in to commit state resources to the Euthanasia effort, and later, to begin to decide who should be put to death and for what reason. This was the path in Germany leading to the Nazi Holocaust, and this is the approximate path which will be followed here. In this regard, watch Donna Shalala, President Clinton's new Director of Health and Human Services. This is one of those areas in which the door has been opened a little bit, and is now susceptible to being kicked completely open by direct Governmental action.

Another way to achieve the desired goal of a two-thirds reduction in world population in just 7 more years is to reduce conception. This course of action has been vigorously followed for the past 20 years, and is one of the major thrusts of Planned Parenthood. Contraception of all kinds is encouraged among America's teens in health clinics in our high schools. However, a new type of contraception to prevent conception is now under discussion; the debate over Norplant Implants. Norplant consists of six matchstick-size capsules that are surgically implanted in a person's arm. These capsules will slowly release a very low dosage of a synthetic hormone, levonorgestrel, the same hormone now found in several traditional birth control pills. Simply stated, Norplant means sterilization for as long as it is implanted within the body, and no one knows for sure that a woman who has had it in her body for five years will be able to conceive after it has been removed.

Norplant was approved by the Food and Drug Administration in 1990, and is "being touted as a cure, not only for teen pregnancy, but also for welfare dependency, child abuse, and drug-addicted mothers". (Newsweek, 2/15/93, "The Norplant Debate", p. 37). Did you understand the staggering significance of that last statement? Proponents of national birth control are admittedly targeting teen mothers that are at the bottom of the economic ladder, and that involves a lot of nonwhite folk. Newsweek quotes a black minister in Baltimore, Maryland, as complaining that this proposed Norplant program is nothing more than genocide aimed at the black population.

Before you scoff too loudly, let me remind you that the New World Order is strictly a White Anglo-Saxon Protestant world. Blacks, Orientals, and Hispanics need not apply. Any person who is not a liberal Protestant need not apply, either. And there is a Nazi parallel here, too. History records that, when German doctors were contemplating killing those people who were living "lives unworthy of life", they began the Euthanasia process by sterilization. Dr. Lifton captures this initial drive toward sterilization in Chapter 1 of his book, "The Nazi Doctors". He stated that, in Germany, sterilization contributed mightily to the process of mass murder.

German doctors targeted several groups of people for sterilization; those individuals who were suffering from "life unworthy of life". Some of these conditions were:

Mental retardation

Epilepsy

Schizophrenia

Manic Depressives

Chorea, an hereditary brain disorder

Hereditary Blindness

Hereditary Deafness

Grave Bodily Deformation

Hereditary Alcoholism

However, while these hereditary conditions were publicly given as the reasons for the sterilization procedures, Nazi leaders were indirectly linking the project to a "racial cleansing". Physician leaders consistently called for "racial cleansing" or "racial hygiene" to be carried out against anyone who was not of the "Nordic race".

Once this insidious program began, it took several ominous turns: 1. Nazis began to refer to the Jews as a "race" that was obviously not Nordic, thus setting the stage for their elimination. And make no mistake about the writings of the New Age; they, too, talk extensively about the "Aryan race", about cleansing, and about the Jews as an undesirable element. 2. Nazi officials began to apply political consideration to their determination as to who needed to receive sterilization. They began to declare anyone who spoke out against them in any way as being "feeble-minded", and thus "eligible" for sterilization. Beginning in the late 1970's, writings began to appear which stated that anyone who has not achieved the proper "level of consciousness" should be considered dead. This attitude clearly begins to set the stage where anyone who is not properly attuned to the New World Order could be targeted for destruction.

As we end this topic, we need to make one point very clear: The Nazis attributed both their sterilization and euthanasia campaigns to the need to "cleanse" their society; in other words, they reverse the meaning of terms. Their sterilization and their killing became the "healing" agents of the German state. Evil became good, and good became evil. You can clearly see the same logic being applied by Dr. Kevorkian and his supporters, and in the Norplant sterilization device. America is clearly far down the path toward the final genocide of the Great Tribulation Period. We are clearly the generation which will see these things.

The entire program of the New World Order is progressing according to a Satanic spiritual basis. Do not be deceived -- the leaders of the coming world system are practitioners of the ancient "Mysteries" religion dating back to the Satanism of Nimrod of Babylon. And the Bible clearly foretells that this is to be the case. In other words, the ancient occultism of 5,000 years ago is to come back full circle, and will be the religion of Anti-Christ. But, the Bible foretells that, until Anti-Christ destroys the False Religious leader part way through the Great Tribulation, the practice of the old Satanic religion will occur through the deception that it is really Christian.

And we see this coming true before our eyes in the activities of the Roman Catholic Institution. We have reported on this phenomenon consistently through our previous programs and we would be happy to share with you these programs if you would like to receive them; however, the startling facts we wish to share with you today about Roman Catholicism comes from a very unlikely and invaluable source. Doc Marquee is a former Satanist who was also initiated into the Illuminati. But, God had an important plan for Marquee's life. In 1979, the Holy Spirit led Doc Marquee out of Satanism/Illuminism and into the glorious light of Salvation through the atoning blood of Jesus Christ. Since his conversion, Marquee has been very active as an acknowledged expert in the occult. Marquee has given many seminars to police departments, training detectives to recognize signs in a crime scene which show that the perpetrators were occultic, and that, perhaps, the crime was committed as part of a Satanic ritual.

Doc Marquee has also written a book, which is being published by American Focus Publishing Company, entitled "Secrets of the Illuminati". While this topic has been explored before, no author has been able to bring a truly occultic angle to the discussion. In other words, Marquee looks at the plan to bring in the New World Order from the viewpoint of a former witch. In his book, Marquee includes a chapter entitled, "Is It Catholicism Or Witchcraft?" At the beginning of this chapter, Marquee makes a quite startling statement, "I must emphatically state that Catholicism and witchcraft are one and the same...there is no difference between witchcraft and Catholicism." Then, Marquee examines Catholicism and witchcraft from the vantage point of a former witch.

Marquee identifies several critically important areas in which the practice of Roman Catholicism and witchcraft are identical. We will first list these areas of commonalty and then comment specifically upon them. These common areas are:

The altar

The golden goblet known as a chalice.

Colored candles used in services

The use of incense.

The use of bells in the ceremony.

Praying to statues.

The use of Latin in services.

The use of a golden scepter in giving a large blessing to the people.

Common belief in Purgatory

The common belief in the host.

Common belief in the five elements.

Now, let us examine each of these areas of commonalty:

1. The altar in every Catholic church is prominently positioned at the front of the church. The "Mysteries of the Mass" are celebrated on and around the altar. In witchcraft, also, the altar is similarly used for three purposes:

To practice certain metaphysical rites, such as the casting of certain spells or to honor occult deities.

To hold the tools of magic.

To perform human sacrifice.

The Roman Catholic altar also holds their tools of their magic, and they daily perform human sacrifice. Remember, we are looking at this subject through the eyes of a former high-level witch who is now a born-again Christian. This daily human sacrifice is performed according to the false belief in "transubstantiation", the belief that the priest magically transforms the wafer into Jesus' body and the wine into His blood. Marquee states, "In other words, every day Christ is being reincarnated and then sacrificed.. they perform daily their human sacrifice in which Christ is ...sacrificed for their sins." It is shocking to realize that the Roman Catholics are daily performing human sacrifice in a manner similar to that of witches throughout the centuries.

2. The Catholic Golden Goblet, or Chalice. "It is this cup that the wine poured into it becomes the...literal blood of Christ. When a witch does a human sacrifice, after the victim's throat is sliced open, the spilled blood will be collected in a chalice, just as the Catholics do, except the witch's chalice holds the real thing." In Satan's eyes, the Catholics are performing the same rite as the witches.

3. "Candles were introduced to the Catholic mass about 320 A.D. There is no Scriptural reasons for them, unless... you are a practicing witch. Below is a list of different colored candles a witch would use throughout the year. See if you can recall any of these colors used during a Catholic mass:

White -- Purity, Truth, Sincerity

Red -- Strength, Health, Vigor, Sexual Love

Light Blue -- Tranquillity, Understanding, Patience

Dark Blue -- Impulsiveness, Depression, Change

Green -- Finance, Fertility, Luck

Gold/Yellow -- Persuasion, Charm, Confidence

Brown -- Hesitation, Uncertainty

Pink -- Honor, Love, Morality

Black -- Evil, Loss, Discord, Confusion

Purple -- Tension, Ambition, Power

Silver-Gray -- Cancellation, Stalemate

Orange -- Encouragement, Stimulation

Greenish-Yellow -- Sickness, Anger, Jealousy

"Using these colored candles and the right spells, a witch can cause anything to happen...our Catholic friends are not only using these occult tools, they also pay for them when they go to various statues and light...candles."

4. "Incense is a constant tool that is used by priests. They will take a philter (incense burner), walk around the altar, and then wave it out toward the crowd with an invocation...Not only do witches use incense, but they will consecrate their altar and their fellow witches in the exact way the Catholics do..."

5. Bells are also utilized by both Roman Catholics and witches. The bells are actually baptized, and in both witchcraft and Catholicism, altar boys attend the priest in sounding the bells.

6. Witches were praying to images or statues for many centuries before Catholics began the practice.

7. "Until recently, most of the rites of witchcraft were said in Latin...why is it, when the witches stopped using Latin as much as they did, about twenty years ago, that the Catholic mass was stopped being told in Latin? Today, it is spoken mostly in American English, the same way in which a witch's mass is held."

8. "...when the Pope, Cardinals, or priests want to give a huge blessing, they will take out a golden scepter, or wand, dip it in holy water, and then wave it on the people...wands are nothing new in the occult. When a witch wants to direct his power he can do it by means of wands." He can also control the demonic forces at his disposal by using a wand to consecrate a circle with a pentacle inside. Holy water is also used by a witch to purify himself and his instruments, and the water is made holy in both witchcraft and Catholicism by mixing water with salt.

9. The teaching of Purgatory is not found in the Bible. According to Catholic catechism, Purgatory is described as "a logically deduced place. Since a Catholic could not go straight to heaven if he had sinned, and since he could not go to hell if he had not died in mortal sin, there had to be a place in between where he could be purified" -- Purgatory. However, the belief in Purgatory is "totally occultic in origin". Witchcraft teaches that after a person goes through Purgatory, he is reincarnated and is more powerful in his next life than he was before. After several reincarnations, he will become purified enough to live with the gods and goddesses, precisely the same end as the Catholics teach.

10. Both Catholics and Witches teach that the host becomes the actual body of their respective gods. To the Roman Catholic, the host becomes the actual body of Jesus Christ; the witch believes the host actually becomes the body of their pagan deity, " I.H.S. -- or Iris, Horus, and Semiramis". This concept is known in both circles as transsubstantiation.

11. Both witchcraft and Roman Catholicism teach that the universe is comprised of five elements: Spirit, Water, Air, Fire, and Earth. These occultic five elements are also found in the Catholic mass.

Spirit -- of the wafer god they sacrifice daily.

Water -- Holy water they use to purify and baptize

Air -- symbolically used through the incense

Fire -- used in tangent with the incense burning

Earth -- The elements of the wafer come from the earth in agriculture, and the flesh of their sacrificed deity, Jesus Christ, also came from the earth.

Doc Marquee's conclusion is inescapable and damning: The practice of occultism has come full circle from ancient Babylon to the Roman Catholic Institution today. As Jesus counseled in Revelation 18:4, "Come out of her, my people, that you do not participate in her sins, neither in her plagues".

Special thanks to the Cutting Edge Website for these informative webpages and above all, the Lord Jesus Christ himself for his goodness and mercy..

THE PHELPS INTERVIEW

So, you thought you were pretty well informed by now about all of the main players on the "conspiracy" playing field? You've maybe been hearing for years about (or bumped into on your own) the various elements of society who control our world from behind the scenes.

You've gotten familiar with the role played by, for instance, the Khazarian Zionists (who invented the word "Jew" to disguise their adopted heritage, as distinguished from the biblical Judeans), or the role played by the Banksters (banking gangsters) controlling the economies of the world, by the CFR (Council on Foreign Relations), the Trilateral Commission, the Bilderbergers, the Committee of 300 (the 17 wealthiest so-called "elite" families)-the Rothschild's in England and Rockefellers in America and Bronfman's in Canada, and on and on, comprising the physical power structure of the New World Order puppets under the direction of darkly motivated, other-dimensional "master deceivers" commonly known as Lucifer or Satan and their "fallen angel" cohorts.

While all of those details contribute to understanding the Larger Picture, what you are about to read fills in a most important Missing Link in this entire structure. And I don't mean a little side issue; I mean a link so central-yet so well hidden from general public view, and for so long-that even the most studied of "conspiracy theory" scholars probably have not put together much of the information that is going to be presented here.

To call the following outlay "controversial" and "sensitive" is about as mild an understatement of the truth of the matter as can be made! This missing link changes the entire slant of the entire playing field!

After months of anticipation and weeks of preparation, I was finally able to speak with Vatican Assassins author Eric Jon Phelps on Tuesday, March 14. There was simply no other way to cover Eric's historic masterpiece spanning, literally, five centuries, than to just ask questions covering huge spans of time and major historical events. It took us almost four hours to accomplish the task, yet we could easily have gone on for another forty.

We here at The SPECTRUM are simply unwilling to reduce the importance of this work by presenting it in a too distilled fashion. In fact, in order to share this material with at least some of the pertinent backup, Eric has granted us permission to print (directly after the interview) several excerpts from his soon-to-be-published book which will help you in understanding certain aspects of this magnificently important and broad-sweeping story. The missing link is surely a central link.

Let's call this story the "Jesuit-Vatican connection" to the unfolding New World Order agenda. You make up your own mind just how absolutely central, yet well hidden, has been this link! There's a good reason the secret Vatican library is so extensive and yet remains so intact from outside intrusion, despite the many others who would like to possess such a collection of information detailing much "censored" data about our true, otherworldly cultural heritage.

When one reads a work like Vatican Assassins, one can't help but reflect back on the purposely "adjusted" and watered down and boring moments in high school history class. Meanwhile, the true history of what has gone on is dynamic and full of calculated intrigue.

In this business, I've heard and read a lot of things. But when I had to pick my jaw up off the floor during the reading of certain historical portions in Eric's book-well, let me just say that Truth certainly is stranger, and far more interesting, than the many fictions we've been led to believe are historical fact. And yet The Truth does fit together like the pieces of a jigsaw puzzle.

This book SHOULD be a best-seller, but it is hardly likely to achieve such general attention-considering how well controlled and censored is the publishing business. Thus is the reason for our lengthy presentation of this most astonishing and critically important material here in The SPECTRUM.

We are in a time of Truth being revealed from all directions. And there is probably no more fundamental, mind-rattling, and previous notions-shattering example of that than what is being presented here. The interview is directly followed by a number of pertinent excerpts from Eric's eye-opening book-which will be available July 1.

However, for the peace of mind of our unique readership-which typically has cultivated a more aware spiritual perspective than the general public-we do not want to give the impression that we agree with (or wish to promote) some collateral aspects of Eric's presentation having to do with his personal "religious" convictions. The focus of those convictions follows a much more biblically conventional (literal) path-in stark contrast to the unconventional, questioning, wide-angle vision of his historical material.

Generally such opinions are simply allowed to stand on their own-for you to sort and interpret as you see fit-rather than being singled-out to be addressed editorially. However, in this case, the practical side of Eric's stated religious convictions include the condoning of some degree of violence (or violent protest) and use of armaments. And such convictions are very much the opposite of our philosophical position-for many reasons, not the least of which is the obvious Adversarial bait-and-entrapment which would result from choosing what we would consider to be low-frequency responses to schoolroom Earth's current challenges.

Yet, if the perceptive reader penetrates "between the lines" thoughtfully, there is glimpsed a recurring commendable spiritual message in Eric's commentary-of "Have the courage to speak The Truth" and "God helps those who help themselves"-which we certainly DO agree with wholeheartedly and have long supported enthusiastically.

We are in the time of the Great Awakening on this planet. The Light of Truth, intensifying with each passing moment, is nudging many to step forward and share what they know. Will such ones follow that nudge or continue to hide in fear? The answer to that question is perhaps the most important aspect of schoolroom Earth's relentless testing at this critical time.

One last-minute footnote before beginning this interview: The Arts & Entertainment (A&E) cable television channel just started to air-on Easter Sunday evening!-a new two-hour documentary called: The Vatican Revealed. Tape it so you can study it carefully; within the lines of dialog and some of those people chosen for commentaries are many, many clues to the true power of the Vatican over world affairs. It would, of course, be much more revealing to watch the A&E program AFTER having read and digested the following.]

Martin: Before we begin, let me say a few words. The topic of your book is so comprehensive and covers, literally, all aspects of global control by the Jesuits, dating back to 1540. I would like to begin our conversation with a very important point of clarification so that our readers have something to hold onto while reading the historical narrative we are about to present. Let me also add that your book is one of the most compelling, dynamic, genuinely educational historical documents I have ever read. I want to tell you, I am impressed!

You, literally, link every major global conflict and political assassination to the hands of the Jesuit Order. The Jews, as with many other groups you mention, have been the unwitting pawns in this Jesuit Agenda.

Today, the present. I'm going to start here, and then we're going to go way back in time and work our way up. But, I want to start HERE because it will give a foundation for going back in time.

Today, who is the Superior General of the Jesuits, the so-called "Black Pope" [black here refers to hidden, evil activities, not to race or color] who gives the orders to the actual Pope. Is it still Jean-Baptist Janssens?

Phelps: Janssens, Frenchman. No, he passed away in 1964. Then Pedro Arrupe came to power. Then, after Arrupe died, in 1988, I believe, the present Jesuit General is Count Hans Kolvenbach. [See photo nearby.] I call him Count Hans Kolvenhoof.

Martin: Let's discuss this position of "General" and, in addition, who is this person, Count Hans Kolvenbach? Who does he serve? What are his origins? Where does he hail from?

Phelps: The present General is a Dutchman, his nationality is Dutch.

Martin: Where is he? Physically, where is he?

Phelps: He resides in Rome, at the headquarters of the Jesuits, called the Church of Jesu. So, the Jesuit General resides in Rome at, what I just called, the Jesuit headquarters.

Martin: The Church of Jesu, is that near the Vatican?

Phelps: It's not far from the Vatican, right. It's in the same general area. It's headquarters of the Knights of Malta.

Martin: Is it part of Vatican City, proper?

Phelps: Right, I believe, yes it is.

Martin: Where does Satan fit into this picture, and what is the ultimate goal of the Jesuits, the so-called Society of Jesus?

Phelps: The Jesuit General, and the other high Jesuit Generals, they are sorcerers. They are Luciferians, and they worship what they would call Lucifer. They do not believe in Satan. They believe in Lucifer.

Now, according to Alberto Rivera, he was invited-because he was a top Jesuit at the time in the late '60s-he was invited to a "Black Mass" in Spain where there were quite a few top Jesuit Generals present. And he called it a "Black Mass". Well, when you're involved in a "Black Mass", you're involved in the worship of Lucifer, all dressed in their black capes and so on.

Martin: I'm fascinated by Count Hans Kolvenbach because nobody in the world knows who this person is. I've never heard the name.

Phelps: Let me just tell you that you can see his picture and his top Jesuits-just a second and I'll get the book. The name of the book is called Jesuits: A Multi-Biography, by Jean Lacoutre, and that is available, usually, in the bookstores. It was published in 1995.

Jean Lacoutre is a Frenchman. He was a communist, is a communist. On the last page of the pictures in it, that is right adjacent to page 343, you see Peter Hans Kolvenbach. He's the Jesuit General, and he looks like just a very evil individual. There's a Black man, who's a high Jesuit, he's a 29 Superior Jesuit with his cosmopolitan General staff. One of the General staff looks like Ben Kingsley of Shindler's List. There are six White men, and one Black man. And that's his General staff.

Martin: What is the process of choosing a successor General?

Phelps: The High Jesuits elect him, and he's elected for life-unless he becomes a "heretic".

Martin: And the so-called "High Jesuits" represent what group?

Phelps: I would say that they're the "professed", the high 4th Degree. When a Jesuit is professed, he is under the Jesuit Oath; he is under the "Bloody Oath" that I have in my book.

Martin: Do we have permission to reprint that Oath in our paper?

Phelps: Of course, absolutely.

Martin: One of my questions has to do with the Oath and it's similarity to the Protocols Of The Learned Elders Of Zion, and I wrote that question before I got back to the Protocols portion of your book.

Phelps: The Jesuits obviously wrote the Protocols because they have carried out every protocol in that little handbook. They have carried everything out. And, Alberto Rivera says-and he was a Jesuit-he was greatly maligned, not helped at all by the Apostate, Protestants, and Baptists in this country; he was helped, somewhat, by Jack Chick. Jack Chick published his story in six volumes, titled Alberto I, II, III, IV, V, & VI.

Alberto Rivera says that it was Jews aligned with the Pope who published the Protocols. Well, I tend to feel that it was just the Jesuits themselves because they, and they alone, were the ones who were able to bring this to pass.

They're the ones in the government. They're the ones behind professional sports. The owner of the Pittsburgh Steelers is a Knight of Malta. The owner of the Detroit Lions is a Knight of Malta. All your top owners of these ball clubs, for the most part, are Knights of Malta, getting the people whooped up in this hoopla over games and sports, while they're busy creating a tyranny. So, that was one of the things in the Protocols-that they would create "amusements".

Another one they used was Walt Disney, 33rd-degree Freemason-Disneyworld, Disneyland . Another one was Milton Hersey, with Hersey Park. They create all of these amusements and games and pastimes to get the people drunk with pleasure, while they're busy overthrowing the Protestant form of government.

Martin: Where does Las Vegas factor into all of this?

Phelps: Las Vegas, well, for the most part, is controlled by the Mafia. But all the high Mafia families are Roman Catholic, and they are ALL subordinate to the Pope or to the Cardinal of New York, which is Cardinal O'Connor-because the Commission, the Mafia Commission resides in New York.

Frank Costello was a member of the Mob Commission, and he was intimate, personal friends with Knight of Malta, Hollywood mogul, Joe Kennedy. And that has not changed.

So, the High Knights are good, dear brothers with the High Mafia Dons-the Gambinos, the Lucchese, the Columbos, all of them. And they control Hollywood, not the Jews. It's only Jews who are front-men who are involved in Hollywood and working for the Mafia and for the Cardinal, just like in politics it would be Arlen Specter. Arlen Specter was Spelly's [Cardinal Spellman's] Jew in the assassination [of President Kennedy], and he would never say a word about it.

Martin: Now, as we go through here, if there's anything that you don't want me to print, please let me know because, literally, I'm going to print everything we say in this conversation.

Phelps: That's fine, that's fine with me because it needs to be said.

Martin: Let's get back to Count Hans Kolvenbach. I want to shine the spotlight on this guy for just a little bit here. Let's talk about him. What does he do? Who is he? Let's talk about his position as "General". How do they exercise this control over the Pope? Does the Pope know he's a pawn?

Phelps: Ok, one question at a time. So, which question do you want me to deal with?

Phelps: The Jesuit General, ok.

Martin: Let's start there, and you tell me everything you want to tell me about that position.

Phelps: The Jesuit General is the absolute, complete, and total dictator and autocrat of the Order. When he speaks, his provincials move. The provincials are his major subordinates. There are around 83 provincials right now.

As I understand it, the Jesuit Order has divided the world into 83 regions. Ok? For each region, there is a Jesuit provincial. There are 10 provincials in the United States. There is one for Central America. There is one for Ireland. They've divided up the world into these provinces.

So it's old Babylonian provincial government, centered in Nebuchadnezzar or the Jesuit General himself; so it's strictly a Roman form of government where all the states or provinces are subordinate to this worldwide sovereign.

The Jesuit General exercises full and complete power over the Order. He meets with his provincials. When they decide to start a war or an agitation, he gets the information from the provincial of that country, how best to go about this, the demeanor of the people, and then he uses legitimate grievances to foam an agitation-like the 1964 Civil Rights Movement. That was ALL a Jesuit agitation, completely, because the end result was more consolidation of power in Washington with the 1964 Civil Rights Act that was written by [the longtime President of the University of Notre Dame, the Reverend] Theodore Hesburgh.

The Jesuit General rules the world through his provincials. And the provincials then, of course, rule the lower Jesuits, and there are many Jesuits who are not "professed", so many of the lower Jesuits have no idea what's going on at the top. They have no concept of the power of their Order.

It's just like Freemasonry. The lower have no idea that the High Shriner Freemasons are working for the Jesuit General. They think that they're just doing works and being good people. But the bottom line is that the high-level Freemasons are subject, also, to the Jesuit General because the Jesuit General, with Fredrick the Great, wrote the High Degrees, the last 8 Degrees, of the Scottish Rite Freemasonry when Fredrick protected them when they were suppressed by the Pope in 1773.

So, you have the alignment with the Jesuit Order and the most powerful Freemason they had in the craft, Fredrick the Great, during their suppression. That is an irrefutable conclusion. And then, when you see the Napoleonic Wars, the French Revolution and the Napoleonic Wars carried out by Freemasonry, everything Napoleon did, and the Jacobins, whatever they did, completely benefited the Jesuit Order.

It's to this end that Alexander Dumas wrote his The Count Of Monte Cristo. The Count is the Jesuit General. Monte=Mount, Cristo=Christ. The Count of the Mount of Christ. Alexander Dumas was talking about the Jesuit General getting vengeance when the Jesuits were suppressed, and many of them were consigned to an island, three hours sailing, West, off the coast of Portugal. And so, when the Jesuits finally regained their power, they punished all of the monarchs of Europe who had suppressed them, drove them from their thrones, including the Knights of Malta from Malta, using Napoleon.

And Alexander Dumas, who fought for the Italian patriots in 1848, to free Rome from the temporal power of the Pope, wrote many books and one of the books was to expose this, and that was The Count Of Monte Cristo.

So, when you read that book, bear in mind that it's really a satire on the Jesuit Order regaining their power in France. The Count of Monte Cristo has an intelligence apparatus that can't be beat. Well, that's the Jesuit Order.

But the Count doesn't get what he really ought to have, or his last wish, and that's the love of woman. He gains back all of his political power; he gains back everything he lost; but he doesn't have the love of a woman. And THAT is the Jesuit Order. They have no women. They have no love of a woman. Because to have a wife, to have a woman, means you have an allegiance to your wife and family, and you cannot obey the General. That's why they will NEVER be married, and that's one of the great KEYS to their success.

They can betray a nation and walk away. They can betray all the Irish Catholics getting on the Titanic, and walk away. They can betray us in Vietnam and walk away. They can betray us every time we go to the hospital and get radiated and cut and drugged, and walk away, because it's "for the greater glory of God"-Ad Majorem Dei Gloriam: the greater glory of the god who sits in Rome.

Martin: What is the ULTIMATE goal of the Jesuits?

Phelps: Their ultimate goal is the rule of the world, with the Pope of their making, from Solomon's rebuilt Temple in Jerusalem. That's their ultimate goal.

Martin: And why is Solomon's Temple rebuilt so important?

Phelps: Because the Jesuits have always wanted that. When Ignatius Loyola first started the Order, one of the first things he did was, he wanted to go to Jerusalem and set up the Jesuit headquarters there. So, he went there, he tried to do it and failed, came back, went to school, started his Latin studies, etc. Maybe it might be a good idea to just review a little bit about Ignatius Loyola.

Martin: Yes.

Phelps: Ok, Ignatius Loyola was a Spanish soldier, and he was wounded at a battle between the French and the Spanish, and his leg was shattered. Well, the French General, because Loyola was very brave in conflict, ordered his own doctors to attend Loyola. So they set the leg and sent him back to his home-which, of course, he was royalty to the Counsel of Loyola in Spain, in the area of the Basques.

Loyola, through his series of desiring to regain his leg-it had healed improperly, so he made a rack where he would stretch the leg, with severe, horrible, awful pain-and trying to stretch this leg to get it back to normal shape, he endured awful, terrible pain. He had it rebroken, again, a couple of times and it still did not heal properly, so he had a perpetual limp. He could no longer be the courtier among women, and as a result, he went into this depression, and he then had this vision of the saints, etc., etc., and he wrote his spiritual exercises.

I will stop at the spiritual exercises, just for a minute, but I'll take up from there. Loyola then wanted to form an army, but when this happened with his spiritual exercises, those spiritual exercises would be basic training for all of his Jesuits. That's what they will ALL go through. That's what every Jesuit goes through today.

One of the maxims of the spiritual exercises is that if my superior says "black is white and white is black", then that's the way it is. That is in his spiritual exercises. That is what is quoted in JFK, when Kevin Costner is telling his people: "Hey, people, we've got to start thinking like the CIA. Black is white and white is black." That was a Jesuit giveaway that the Jesuits produced that movie, because they're quoting Ignatius Loyola in that movie from his spiritual exercises.

So, Loyola had an indomitable will. He had a will of steel, and he set his mind to regain back what the Papacy had lost to the Reformation. And so, he went to the Pope, and the Pope in 1540 then created the Jesuit Order. But this man is a soldier, he's a lawyer, and he put together a legion of soldiers and warriors to get back what Rome had lost, as well as institute a World Government for the Pope, from Jerusalem. This was in 1540.

He started the Order in 1536. He was arrested by the Inquisition, and he was released, and he went to the Pope; he threw himself at the feet of the Pope. He would be completely at his service. The Pope chartered him, and that Pope was Pius III. The Pope chartered them, created the Jesuit Order; now he has Papal protection, and they began their awful history of deeds of blood. And war after war after war after war, they're all attributed to the Jesuit Order in some way. Catholic nobles, with lots of money, donated castles and schools and money to the Jesuit Order.

Virtually everything they own has been given to them or stolen by them. Of course, they stole all of the fortunes of the Jews in World War II. They stole all their gold, all their assets and everything, whenever they went into a country. What's just been released is NOTHING compared to what they've taken.

In Edmond Paris's book, printed by Ozark Publications, called The Vatican Against Europe, it gets into great detail of what they did. It calls it-the last 30 years of war is all attributable to the Jesuits, their massacres of the Serbs and Jews, etc. But Edmond Paris did not understand that the Jesuit General-and this is one of the most important points I want to make about Von Kolvenbach-the Jesuit General is in complete control of the international intelligence community: that's the CIA, the FBI, the KGB, the Israeli Mossad, the German BND, the British SIS. The Jesuit General is in COMPLETE CONTROL of the entire intelligence apparatus-FBI, every bureaucratic agency in this country, all of it; he is in complete control of it.

So, whenever he wants to find something out about an individual, they put in the Social Security number, and everything from all of the intelligence apparatus kicks-in and he and his provincials can review everything about that man. Credit cards, you name it, everything that's attached to Rome's social security number, which FDR put upon us in 1933 with the help of Spellman; at the time, I believe he was Archbishop, or maybe it was Cardinal Hayes-but Rome was behind FDR in putting him in office.

The couple of things that he did was implement social insecurity, the income tax, and recognizing Joseph Stalin's bloody Jesuit USSR government. So, with the giving of us the Social Security number, that is Rome's number-that's why I refuse to use it-and that's why they want everybody using it for everything: driver's license, tax return, credit card, everything you do, that number is you and that number is Rome's number.

Martin: Let me just back-up here for a minute. What comes to mind is Louis Freeh, head of the FBI.

Phelps: Roman Catholic, good altar boy. Probably a Knight of Columbus; I can't prove it. But anybody with that kind of power has got to be a Knight of Columbus.

And the Knights of Columbus implement Jesuit politics. And Louis Freeh was the one behind the Waco atrocity and the Oklahoma City bombing atrocity. And his top sniper was a Japanese Roman Catholic named Lon Horiuchi.

So, it's Roman Catholics in control, Knights in control of the FBI, who carried out all of this killing. And those two men, Louis Freeh and Lon Horiuchi are personally accountable to Cardinal O'Connor of New York. And Cardinal O'Connor of New York is the most powerful Cardinal in the country. He is the military vicar. And that's why Bush kissed his fanny for going to Bob Jones, because Cardinal O'Connor is the King of the American Empire. And he rules his Empire from that Palace, St. Patrick's Cathedral, "the little Vatican".

Martin: And is he in contact, do you think, with Kolvenbach?

Phelps: Of course. O'Connor himself is not a Jesuit, but the Jesuits are like the SS of the Catholic Church. They maintain order.

And the ones closest to him who maintain order are the Jesuits of Fordham University . Now, one of them-the head of Fordham University, I believe he is an Irishman, is also a member of the CFR [Council on Foreign Relations]. And I have that right here in the Annual Report of the CFR of 1993. Those Jesuits at Fordham maintain semblance and rule over the Cardinal in New York. And, of course, the powerful Jesuits of Fordham include Avery Dulles and John Foster Dulles, one of the writers of the book on the Second Vatican Council.

Martin: Let's back-up now, let's go back. What's the Council of Trent?

Phelps: The Council of Trent was the response of Rome to the Protestant Reformation. Remember-the Protestant Reformation brought us all of the political liberty that we know of today. There's no such thing as national sovereignty without the Reformation. There's no such thing as private rights without the Reformation. There's no such thing as the Law of Nations, as we know of it today, of Montesquieu and the others, without the Reformation.

So, when the Reformation came with their doctrines of salvation by grace through faith alone, and that there was no need for the priesthood to go to Heaven-that all we need is salvation in Christ, and Romans 1:17: the righteous shall live by faith. When the Reformation came, it completely stripped Rome of its spiritual power. The priests were no longer wanted because the people were getting the word of God in a Bible, specifically in Holland, England, and Germany. And so, with these great revivals breaking forth and the Reformation happening, nations were breaking away from the power of the Pope. The Holy Roman Empire was breaking up. Charles V, the Emperor, resigned and became a monk and a gardener. So, the Lord was moving mightily in breaking the power of the Holy Roman Empire, started by Charlemagne and the Pope.

Well, this was not good for Rome because they were losing lots of money. The nations were not paying "Peter's pence" anymore, which today we call "foreign aid" in this country. And so the Pope was very upset about his.

What's he going to do? These nations are breaking away from us; they're not under our temporal or spiritual power; and it's very important to remember that the Pope claims two powers-spiritual and temporal-and with the breaking of his spiritual power, he then lost his temporal power. In other words, he no longer had the ability to rule the people through the king of the country, because the king was breaking away, like Henry VIII.

So, Henry VIII broke away from the Roman Church and formed the Church of England; he no longer was subject to the Pope. This was happening in England, in Germany, in Holland, and other places.

As a result of this, the Devil raised up Ignatius Loyola with his demonisms, his "spiritual exercises" and-because Loyola had been a member of the Spanish Alumbrados, which is what we call the Illuminati today, and he used the Jesuit Order to attempt to regain back what had been taken by the Reformation-what the Lord had done through Luther, Calvin, and Knox. And, by the way, Luther, Calvin, and Knox-none of those men died violent deaths. They all lived to older age and died peacefully, amidst the power of the Jesuit machinations.

The Council of Trent consists of 25 Sessions. Those 25 Sessions accurse and condemn all the doctrines of the Reformation. It condemns anybody who does not believe that the literal Jesus Christ is in the host [holy communion bread], and that his literal blood is in the wine. That's called transubstantiation. Anybody who does not believe that is an accursed anathema. Anybody who believes that their salvation is outside the Catholic Church is accursed anathema. Anybody who believes in justification by grace through faith-anathema, accursed. Anybody who believes that the Pope is not the vicar of Christ-accursed, anathema. You see, all of these doctrines were being put forth as a result of reading the Bible, which produced the Reformation, and so the Jesuits accursed everything that the Reformers were preaching. This is all in Law called the Council of Trent.

In the 4th Session, which is probably the most important Session, the Jesuits condemn freedom of speech, freedom of the press, and freedom of conscience. So, no man has the right to choose his own religion; no man has the right to publish what he feels is the truth; and no man has the right to freedom of conscience.

Those rights were secured by our Baptist/Calvinist forefathers in the First Amendment. The man who wrote the First Amendment was James Madison, who was a Baptist/Calvinist, and he was told by that Baptist/Calvinist in Virginia, Doc. John Leland: "If you don't secure all those rights, Virginia will not ratify the Constitution." Virginia was a Baptist/Calvinist state.

So, we have a warfare between the Council of Trent and the doctrines of the Reformation, particularly as outlined by John Calvin in his Institutes Of The Christian Religion. Calvin [1536] wrote the Institutes Of The Christian Religion, he finished it when he was 27, and he dedicated it to the King of France. And because the Jesuits so hated him, he was driven from France and he resided in Geneva to the day of his death, when he became Governor of Geneva. It's Calvin and his Institutes Of The Christian Religion vs. Loyola and his Council of Trent, if you want it sewed-up in two major documents.

Title: Two Jesuit priests in $5 million sex-abuse suit

Two Jesuit priests named in $5 million sex-abuse suit

A $5 million lawsuit filed today in Multnomah County claims that two Catholic priests repeatedly molested a Beaverton girl in the mid-1960s.

The suit against the Oregon Province of the Society of Jesus, also known as the Jesuits, names the Rev. James E. Poole and the Rev. Frank Duffy.

The plaintiff, who is not named in the suit, said the priests abused her during visits to her family home.

The plaintiff, who was born in 1958, attended St. Mary of the Valley School and St. Cecilia Church at the time.

The suit claims that Jesuit officials moved Poole to Oregon without restrictions even though they knew that he had had numerous inappropriate sexual contacts with girls in an Alaskan boarding school.

The Oregon-based Jesuit province, which covers Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and Alaska, is separate from the Portland Archdiocese and reports to superiors in Rome outside the Vatican.

The province issued the following statement: "We take all claims of this nature very seriously and we will investigate them to the fullest extent. It is important to know that those who have come forward in these matters are not our enemies or our opponents; but our sisters, for whom we desire healing and compassion. We pray that together we may find a just solution for all those involved, as well as for all the faithful who have been shaken by these allegations. The Society of Jesus remains committed to the path of pastoral openness and justice, which alone can bring about true healing."

The Portland Archdiocese, which in 2004 became the first Catholic diocese to seek bankruptcy protection because of priest-abuse litigation, recently proposed a $75 million plan to settle more than 160 remaining claims against it.

Poole lives in an assisted-living center in Spokane, according to news reports. Half a dozen other women have accused him of sexual abuse, mostly in remote Eskimo villages in Alaska.

Duffy, who died in 1992, was a Jesuit novitiate at the time of the abuse, according to the suit. He later worked at St. Luke's church in Woodburn from 1968 to 1970 and at Mount Angel Abby.

He had previously been accused of molesting three girls, including 6- and 7-year-old sisters. The Portland Archdiocese spent nearly $450,000 settling those claims in 2003.

Cardinal Biffi is a well respected cardinal and I'm sure he is on the 'short list' for the next pope. He was the priest who was chosen to lead this years Papal retreat which is a very prestigious position and signals 'where the Vatican's head is'.

He quoted Russian theologian, Vladimir Soloviev. They both said "the Antichrist presents himself as pacifist, ecologist and ecumenist."

The choice of this cardinal for the papal retreat tells us what the Vatican is thinking and it seems that Ratzingers ... I mean Benedicts ... thoughts are on the Anti-Christ.

Antichrist is an ecumenist, Cardinal tells Pope

http://timescolumns.typepad.com/gledhill/2...hrist_is_a.html

Apoc_christ_antichrist Zenit is carrying details of the Lenten meditations being delivered this week to the Pope by Cardinal Giacomo Biffi, former Archbishop of Bologna. According to Zenit, Biffi told his listeners: "The Antichrist presents himself as pacifist, ecologist and ecumenist." This apparent attack on ecumenism comes as in an unprecedented move, the Orthodox have been given their own chapel in the Catholic Cathedral in Trier. The chapel will be used for both Catholic Byzantine and Orthodox services, a move which will get some Orthodox jumping up and down. Richard Owen is reporting on the Antichrist from Rome. That Pope Benedict XVI should have chosen Biffi, once himself considered possible papabile, for his Lenten meditations is of itself interesting. Biffi has in the past made quite clear what his views are about the dangers of the modern era. But that Biffi should then go straight in with a talk straight out of the Book of Revelation gives a fascinating insight into the present mindset of senior in Rome. This picture, by Durer, shows Christ and the Antichrist. Biffi also said in his meditation to the Pope and other Vatican clerics: 'He will convoke an ecumenical council and will seek the consensus of all the Christian confessions, granting something to each one. The masses will follow him, with the exception of small groups of Catholics, Orthodox and Protestants.'

BiffiBiffi was quoting the Russian mystic Soloviev, about whom he delivered a lecture in 2000. Soloviev, he said, also prophesied that 'days will come in Christianity in which they will try to reduce the salvific event to a mere series of values. He described how in his 'Tale of the Antichrist, Soloviev's last work before he died in 1900, he foresaw that a small group of Catholics, Orthodox and Protestants would resist and say to the Antichrist: 'You give us everything, except what interests us, Jesus Christ.' Biffi said: 'Today, in fact, we run the risk of having a Christianity which puts aside Jesus with his cross and resurrection.' Biffi, who is 78, also said that if Christians 'limited themselves to speaking of shared values they would be more accepted on television programs and in social groups. But in this way, they will have renounced Jesus, the overwhelming reality of the resurrection.' He said this was the danger that Christians face in our days ... 'the Son of God cannot be reduced to a series of good projects sanctioned by the prevailing worldly mentality.'

NietzschethumbThe doctrine of the Antichrist is firmly rooted in Biblical orthodoxy.

Muslims also believe in a similar concept, the False Messiah. Translated from the Greek, antíkhristos, it means the opposite of Christ. The term appears several times in the New Testament, and in today's world, could apply to someone setting themselves up as a contemporary, Christ-like saviour of the world.

Protestant reformers such as Martin Luther identified the Pope as the Antichrist. The philosopher Nietzsche even called himself the Antichrist. Many have used the Book of Revelation to identify the Antichrist using the "number of the beast", 666. More recently, in the best-selling US Left Behind novels, authors Tim LaHaye and Jerry B. Jenkins appear to indicate that the Antichrist might be the secretary general of the United Nations.

Cardinal Giacomo Biffi first raised his suspicions that the Antichrist was on the loose in today's world in his lecture delivered in 2000 when he was still Archbishop of Bologna. The present Pope has also in the past referred approvingly Soloviev. In his 2000 lecture, Biffi described the teachings of Soloviev as 'at once prophetic and largely unheeded.' Biffi said Soloviev had foreseen the vicissitudes and troubles of the 20th century 'with striking clarity'.

Solovievsm2006 Citing Soloviev's final work, 'The Three Dialogues and the Story of the Antichrist', which he completed on Easter Sunday 1900, shortly before he died, Biffi said he was struck by how clearly Soloviev, pictured here, foresaw that the 20th century would be 'the epoch of great wars, civil strife and revolutions.' All this, he said, would prepare the way for the disappearance of 'the old structure of separate nations' and 'almost everywhere the remains of the ancient monarchical institutions would disappear.' This would pave the way for a 'United States of Europe'. Soloviev predicted that the Antichrist will be a 'convinced spiritualist', a philanthropist, a pacifist, a vegetarian and a determined defender of animal rights. He will not be hostile 'in principle' and will appreciate Christ's teaching. But he will reject the teaching that Christ is unique, and will deny that Christ is risen and alive today.

It seems an odd time to be attacking ecumenism, given that dialogue with the Orthodox has recommenced and that the Pope was recently received by the Ecumenical Patriarch Bartholomew. And also given that the first report from Iarccum, a statement signed off by bishops of both churches and now available from SPCK, recommended various radical moves such as Anglican bishops attending Catholic bishops' ad limina visits to Rome. And that this statement, described by its authors as a 'call to action', also included the following paragraph: 'We urge Anglicans and Roman Catholics to explore together how the ministry of the Bishop of Rome might be offered and received in order to assist our Communion to grow towards full, ecclesial communion.' Even if the Anglicans do schism and disappear in their infighting over gays, their church buildings will not be neglected. Some Catholics are already talking about reclaiming what they regard as their rightful heritage.

For myself, I think Soloviev resembles a bit our own Rowan Williams. And as for Nietzsche, am I alone in detecting a resemblance between him and one Richard Dawkins? In any case, one thing we can be certain of is that the Antichrist will not be a woman. And actually, ecumenical prospects have never looked better. Why? Besides the hopefulness of the Larccum report, for the first time, possibly in centuries, the Orthodox, Anglican and Roman Catholic churches are headed by three great theologians, a positively Thomist Trinitarian assembly of great minds, able to communicate with each other as none other could. Lent is a time of great soul searching, of examining our motives and actions of the past year at the deepest possible level as we prepare to start over after Easter. I would so love to know what the Pope is really thinking, as he meditates this week on the description of the Antichrist as pacifist, ecologist and ecumenist. Just as with resemblances, it would be unwise to draw deep conclusions from superficial appearances. These things are rarely as straightforward as they might seem.

Cardinal's 'Antichrist' warnings raise eyebrows
Richard Owen, Rome

<http://www.timesonline.co.uk/tol/comment/f...icle1458433.ece>

Read Ruth Gledhill's Articles of Faith weblog
(http://z13.invisionfree.com/THE_UNHIVED_MI...showtopic=21992)

An arch-conservative cardinal chosen by Pope Benedict XVI to deliver this year's Lenten meditations to the Vatican hierarchy has caused consternation by warning of an Antichrist who is "a pacifist, ecologist and ecumenist."

Cardinal Giacomo Biffi, 78, who retired as Archbishop of Bologna just over three years ago, quoted Vladimir Solovyov (1853-1900), the Russian philosopher and mystic, as predicting that the Antichrist "will convoke an ecumenical council and seek the consensus of all the Christian confessions".

The "masses" would follow the Antichrist, "with the exception of small groups of Catholics, Orthodox and Protestants" who would fight to prevent the watering down and ultimate destruction of the faith.

The Pope traditionally withdraws from public view during the first week of Lent, conducting "Spiritual Exercises" in retreat with close advisers in the Redemptoris Chapel in the Vatican. He cancels all engagements, instead listening to "meditations" by a keynote speaker.

The choice of Cardinal Biffi raised eyebrows in the Vatican, given the cardinal's forthright and sometimes eccentric views. The cardinal warned of the coming of the Antichrist during his two decades as Archbishop of Bologna, and said an "invasion" of Muslim immigrants was undermining Europe's Christian values.

La Repubblica noted that Cardinal Biffi's latest broadside coincided with the reinstatement of the Centre Left coalition led by Romano Prodi, some of whose members embodied "liberal beliefs the Catholic Right most detests", including pacifism and the legalisation the rights of cohabiting and homosexual couples.

The paper said the cardinal's profile of the Antichrist would fit "someone like Alfonso Pecoraro Scanio", the Environment Minister and leader of the Greens. However Francesco Cossiga, the former Italian President, an admirer of Solovyov, said he thought Silvio Berlusconi, the Centre Right leader and media tycoon, was a more likely Antichrist.

"His soulless smile inspires in me a strange spiritual fear, something you feel could corrode your soul" Mr Cossiga said.

Cardinal Biffi said the Antichrist was not necessarily a person but "the reduction of Christianity to an ideology.....The teaching that the great Russian philosopher left us is that Christianity cannot be reduced to a set of values. At the heart of being a Christian is the personal encounter with Jesus Christ." But he quoted with approval from Solovyov's "Three Dialogues on War, Progress and the End of History," which suggest the Antichrist is a real figure.

As Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger, Pope Benedict sternly defended core Catholic doctrines and opposed calls for an ecumenical Third Vatican Council advanced by Cardinal Carlo Maria Martini, the liberal former Archbishop of Milan.

Cardinal Biffi said Solovyov's forecast was relevant today, "when we run the risk of having a Christianity which puts aside Jesus with his cross and resurrection". If Christians "limited themselves to speaking of shared values, they would be more accepted on television programmes and in social groups. But they will have renounced Jesus and the overwhelming reality of the resurrection. This is the danger Christians face in our days ? the Son of God cannot be reduced to a series of good projects sanctioned by the prevailing worldly mentality."

He said Christianity stood for "absolute values, such as goodness, truth, beauty". If “relative values” such as “solidarity, love of peace and respect for nature” became absolute, they would encourage “idolatry” and “put obstacles in the way of salvation.”

The choice of Lenten speaker has in the past provided clues to Vatican policy. Both Pope Benedict (in 1983) and John Paul II (in 1967) addressed the Lenten retreat as cardinals. Cardinal Biffi is no longer a papal contender, but the choice reflects the Pope’s apparent approval of his views - although one Vatican source said he had perhaps been chosen because his “verbal fireworks” would keep his listeners awake.

At the start of the retreat Cardinal Biffi reflected on the paradox of current attitudes to death, saying Western society was “obsessed” with physical health and refused to acknowledge mortality, but at the same time “actively promoted” death in the form of euthanasia and abortion.

The apocalyptic idea of an Antichrist who will appear at the end of time and challenge God for mens’ souls appears in the Gospel of St John, but stems from earlier Jewish eschatology. It became popular in the Middle Ages, when it was associated with war, famine and plague. During the Reformation Martin Luther attacked the Pope himself as the Antichrist.

Hiding behind the veil of God and goodness like the good devil worshipper he is, the Jesuit General, Fr.

Americans have been warned in the past about the evils of the Vatican, the Jesuit Order and their minions working in the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) and on Capitol Hill.

Although they have been warned going back to the time of Abraham Lincoln who was killed by a Jesuit/Vatican organized hit squad, the warnings seem to go in one ear and out the other.

Hopefully this will not be the case now since a rapid takeover of this country is underway. And let there be no doubt about it, the leader of the Satanic ring sweeping the globe with a one world government agenda, is none other than the master of evil, the organizer of hatred and the most powerful man in the world, The Jesuit General known as The Black Pope by his evil minions, Fr.

 Peter Hans Kolvenbach.

Hiding behind the veil of God and goodness like the good devil worshipper he is, the Count, as he is also known by, controls the Pope as his organization of followers are the people calling the real shots in the Vatican and throughout the world.

Furthermore, let it be known loud and clear that Kolvenbach and his band of henchmen have infiltrated every major government and religion in the world in order to stir the caldron of war, which is now being called the "Pope's final crusade."

And there method is simple: control both sides of the war, control both sides of every conflict after, of course, the same New World/Illuminati group created the wars and the conflict in the first place.

This is not conjecture, but verified by credible researchers going back to Lincoln's time and even father. However, the veil of the Jesuit Order/Vatican deception goes so deep and is so strong, according to many researchers who have been featured on this web site, that most people in America have been blinded and brainwashed to who really are the spiritual controllers of the New World Order.

For example, Pastor Tony Alamo recently provided on this web site and on Greg Szymanski's radio show, The Investigative Journal, his insights on Vatican deception, infiltration and control over the major governments and religions. Alamo was jailed by the New World Order for trying to spread the word of the Gospels and knows all to well the evil power of the Papacy.

He also warned people with an article also presented on this web site, <http://www.arcticbeacon.com/> where he stated "Beware of the Pope's blessings" for you may end up dead!

With that in mind, "Words of The Prophetic Angel" presented at <http://www.geocities.com/> echo Pastor Alamo's words of warning about receiving the Pope's blessings. Here is the article:

My dear friend, if you seek the favors and the blessings of men, even if they are priests or the Pope, God will curse your blessing, but if you seek to follow the Word of God and if you give glory only to God, then you shall abound with blessings:

If ye will not hear, and if ye will not lay it to heart to give glory unto my name ... I will curse your blessings" (Mal. 2:2).

"A faithful man shall abound with blessings" (Proverbs 29:20).

 To be happy and prosperous, to have freedom from want and freedom from fear, a person, and also a nation, must follow King David's exhortation: "Rid me, and deliver me from the hand of strange children, whose mouth speaketh vanity, and their right hand is a right hand of falsehood" (Psalms 144:10).

The Pope blesses with his right hand, a 'right hand of falsehood'.

The Bible says: "All these blessings shall come on thee, and overtake thee, if thou shalt hearken unto the voice of the Lord thy God (Deut. 28:2).

Friend, call upon the Lord Jesus Christ to save you from your sin now, for Jesus Himself said:

1866 - The same Pope sent his blessings to the Austrian Kaiser. In less than a year he lost

1868 - The same Pope sent the Golden Rose to Queen Isabella of Spain. In a short time she lost her crown and died in exile.

1895 - The Archbishop of Damascus, at Vittoria, gave the Pope's blessings to the Spanish troops and fleet.

Spain then lost two fleets and two armies.

1897 - The Papal Nuncio blessed the grand Charity Bazaar in Paris. Within five minutes it was in flames. Nearly 150 of the aristocracy perished, including the sister of the Empress of Austria.

1906 - Victoria Eugenie (Ena), daughter of Princess Henry of Battenburg, married Alphonso X111, king of Spain. She was required to renounce her Protestant faith, which she did. Within a fortnight afterwards she narrowly escaped death at the hands of a Romish anarchist, while 13 hapless victims succumbed, and 80 others were wounded. Her wedding garments were bespattered with human blood. In 1923 the Pope sent her the Golden Rose, and in 1931 she and her husband were exiled.

The Spain they ruled over became a republic under the Pope's "Christian gentleman," General Franco.

1924 - A rich English landowner, Mr. Edwards, turned Roman Catholic. In 1926 he went to Rome, was blessed by the Pope, and died in four days.

1928 - The Pope blessed the "Italia" airship and gave it a "cross" to place on the North Pole. The airship broke in two, and half the crew were lost.

We recall the rape of Abyssinia; how the Pope praised Mussolini and his Italian army, as they went about their murderous campaign, gassing and bombing the helpless natives. God did not delay His punishment for this fiendish act. Mussolini who could not be restrained by the League of Nations, was shot dead at the side of his mistress, Petacci, in April, 1945.

Note, also, the significance of a prominent friendship with "His Holiness," Mr. Winston Churchill called in at the Vatican, and after that he never regained his authority in Parliament.

This condemnation applied equally to the late

President Roosevelt, who kept a personal representative at the Vatican. For disobedience even Moses, God's chosen servant, was denied the fruits of conquest in the Promised Land. Just so has it happened to President Roosevelt, by death, and to Mr. Churchill by political oblivion.

General McArthur was presented with an autographed photograph of the Pope, which he considered to be one of his most treasured possessions. Soon after he was demoted as a commander-in-chief and never regained his position.

April 13th, 1951, will be remembered as Black Friday amongst the Protestant people of Britain. A sinister date to the superstitious it was still more ominous for the welfare of their Empire. On that day the future Queen visited the Pope in the Vatican, under servile and unconstitutional conditions.

And Professor Roderick Finlayson, of Edinburgh's Free Church College, exposed the plot even more incisively. Writing in his church's magazine he stated: "The tendency of the Royal Family to go out of their way to visit the Vatican, and do obeisance to the head of the Roman Catholic hierarchy, is occasioning much distress to many of His Majesty's most loyal Protestant subjects."

It is very significant that after this visit to the Pope, England lost the Persian oil-fields, the Suez Canal and the war against Egypt.

The President of France made a personal visit to the Pope in 1957, the first time in French history. A few months later the Fourth French Republic started to crumble and the French colonial army has suffered one defeat after another.

Cardinal Stritch of Chicago accepted the invitation of the Pope to become the first American to head one of the Congregation of the Roman Church. He left Chicago after Easter 1958 and he died a few days after his arrival in Rome. The Pope who gave him a blessing for his journey and a blessing when his arm was amputated, did not even go to see him while he was dying just a few blocks from the Vatican.

Front Line, Vatican...And My Catholic Friends

By Barry Chamish

I point out that Israel's leaders are deliberately wiping out the nation, and the Jews boycott me. I prove the Vatican's fingers are in Israel's upcoming ruin and two top-notch Catholic writers rush to my side.

I knew Francisco Gil-White was a terrific writer years ago and so we've remained corresponding writer buddies. Since being fired from his professor's post for defending Jews, he has entered the heights of living legend status in a few circles. Before putting out his latest piece, he awaited my approval:

"Finally getting better. Thanks! My article on Perfidy is finished. I will put it up today on a blind link so that you can see it and give me last minute comments. I want to publish it tonight. Francisco Gil-White"

Naturally, I replied that he wrote a triumph. It's time for a parade. Look how he concludes his essay:

<http://www.hirhome.com/israel/leaders4.htm>

From Francisco Gil-White:

"This is the most important lesson: just as the Nazis needed Rudolf Kastner to distract and reassure the Hungarian Jews, so do the forces that would now destroy the Israeli Jews need Ehud Olmert or any of the main current pretenders to the Israeli prime ministership to distract and dupe the Israelis -- and to repress any protest, too -- while the next slaughter, due very soon, is being prepared.

"This is a very difficult lesson for Jews to learn because they don't know the above history, educated as they have been by the leaders of Labor Zionism, who to this day control most of the major Jewish organizations in the Diaspora, as well as the Israeli government, the Israeli education system, and the Israeli media. And it is difficult to learn because they would rather cling to their illusions than to their very lives. As George Santayana correctly said "Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it." The Jews are about to repeat their own tragic past.

"Is this inevitable? Well, no. But without a revolution, it is a certain outcome. If the Israeli Jews simply trust that their so-called leaders will defend them, or that their Diaspora brethren will come in a white horse to rescue them, their fate will be identical to that of the Hungarian Jews in WWII.

"The Hungarian Jews trusted. And they died."

Why, he sounds just like me. So maybe someone will listen to him. After all, he's not... well, me.

And look at the week enjoyed by King Juan Carlos. Yes, the same one I exposed in my book, Save Israel. Go to www.lulu.com and look. I claim that every diplomatic move in the Middle East must first pass by his grimy talons. I show that he believes he is the rightful "Guardian Of Jerusalem's Holy Places." But did you know that the Jesuit-educated monarch is also Council of Arab House in Madrid. And betcha you didn't know that he gathered a group of the Middle East's hottest foreign ministers to discuss Israel's removal from the Golan and Palestine.

That's what the Vatican does on its day off:

<http://www.sana.org/eng/22/2007/02/22/104209.htm>

MADRID,(SANA)_ King Juan Carlos and Queen Sofia of Spain opened Thursday in Madrid the Arab House and Spanish Political Conference with the participation of Foreign Minister Walid al-Moallem and Foreign Ministers of Saudi Arabia, UAE, Tunisia, Yemen, Iraq and Jordan.

King Carlos, who heads council of Secretaries in the Arab house, hoped this conference would be the starting point for an Arab-Spanish ministerial forum and a framework for political interaction for reaching joint stances in future.

Al-Moallem, in a speech he delivered, underlined importance of reviving the Arab-Europe dialogue, touching upon the important role that Spain is playing as " a bridge between the Arab and Europe in understanding the region's causes."

He called for reviving the Middle East peace process with the aim of reaching a just and comprehensive settlement that ends the Israeli occupation of the occupied Arab territories in the Golan and Palestine.

He underlined necessity of Europe to shoulder a more dynamic role towards a number of causes on top of which is the Middle East peace process and offering the necessary aid to the Palestinian government.

The Ministerial declaration of the conference stressed the dire need for finding a solution to the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Those who know my writing have long concluded that any Israeli who touches the Vatican their way, will become mighty sullied. Yitzhak Rabin was murdered and his wife, at the first legal opportunity, flies to the pope. Why? Oh, just to hear herself threatened not to open her mouth and get Shimon in trouble. Ex- Pres. Katsav wouldn't give the Vatican the Last Supper Room on Mount Zion. He faces 6 charges of rape a year later.

Now my charming Catholic friend has sent me her new book, Vatican Ratline by Mauri, www.reflectionsinthenight.com

For years, she has keep my morale high by commenting on my handsome looks. And she means it, girls. And now I learn, she knows of what she speaks. That is a secret between me and book buyers. Of the Vatican's burning desire for the Last Supper Room, she writes: "The first celebration of the new Church was of the Last Supper of Christ. This later developed into the Catholic mass. While I can understand the emotion of the crucifixion, it is still a celebration of death."

I am proud to say, I receive proper referrals in the volume as I have in such books as Gideon's Spies, Gordon Thomas; Lies, Dr. David Morrison, A Cup Of Tea, Tim White, David's Uncle, Hebrew, this 900 page volume is now mostly credited to Dr. Hillel Weiss, etc.

Now here is a fine modern writer, Mauri, who believes in my research. Refreshing, no?

pp 59 - "By the Vatican's own definition of a Crusade, the Catholic Church Crusade continues in secret down to the present day. It's goal is the creation of 'A New World pp 60 - "Combine an obsession with death and the need for a scapegoat to spread passion to the flock, and The Passion Play is given birth."

pp 102 - 'The goal of a one world religion is to come out on top and then consume all the competing religions into your flock. The biggest player is the Roman Catholic Church, whose goal is to give Jerusalem to the 'infallible' pope so that he may rule the world from Solomon's rebuilt Temple and be worshiped as a living god. The Jews would prove important in their plans by the use of both sympathy and by creating global anti-Jewish fury. The Muslims have a role to play, mostly terrorist."

pp 103 - "The false messiah, Shabtai Tzvi, founded the Donmeh sect in the 1600s. His followers founded the Sabbataian cult. The movement spread through Europe in the 18th Century by Jacob Frank and his followers, the Frankists. Add Jesuit influence and the automatic result is the deterioration of the cult into mind-controlled criminal activity and Satanism. Could such a group work with the Nazis in the killing of millions of fellow Jews?"

pp 108 - "The principles of Zionism, the creation of a Jewish State in Palestine, seem a benevolent answer to worldwide anti-Semitism. But one must always question the random acts of kindness by the global elite. Zionism may have led to the Holocaust of the remaining Jews in Europe.

pp 111 - "The Vatican's goal of control of Jerusalem, moves ever closer to reality, through the help of corruption at the highest levels of the Zionist movement in Israel. That extra element of War, was added by pushing the Muslims around in the area, so that there could be no peace. Jimmy Carter of the Council On Foreign Relations ordered a covert war against the Soviets in Afghanistan and the CIA funded the Taliban. The secret training and funding of Muslim groups for war continued alongside the training and funding of Israel. The end result of this intentional setting of one group against another was a guaranteed holocaust in the Middle East."

pp 120 - "The Vatican had gone to a lot of trouble to get the Jews where they wanted them, which was in Israel. And they didn't want them prematurely wiped out. The Jews were the scapegoat for the war in Europe, and the Vatican was positioning them to be the scapegoat for the coming war in the Middle East."

pp 121 - "No one in this Game is operating with free will. It is the intent of the Game, world domination, which needs to be destroyed. It is time for Rome to disappear into history."

BOOK REVIEW: 'BYE BYE GAZA' BY BARRY CHAMISH

At last I have my own copy of Bye Bye Gaza by Barry Chamish.

As always, Barry's most recent book is a tour de force of information, sources and quotes showing how the forces of Israel's elite have conspired to destroy the Jewish State - or at least its truly Jewish individuals and communities - and sadly how the majority of the 'Right' have ignored or spurned his warnings. I guess I have a minor axe to grind as all the Gush Katif pictures in the book - and on the cover - were taken/ supplied by me!

It is true that most cannot handle the reports of murders, conspiracies and corruption in high places and rather than get their heads around it, they reject Barry's findings as exaggerated or even untrue.

Nothing could be further from the case as we know too well from the destruction of Gush Katif and the on going hope of many in high places, to empty Judea and Samaria of Jews and to allow the Vatican to take over Jerusalem and more...

But, I do hope that with all these provisos you will take this review and the book seriously - get it, read it and pass it around!

New World Order powers that be.

Rothstein claims the media ignores the "important facts" about JFK's real killers and hides the real high-level perpetrators of the huge pedophile and human trafficking rings operating in America and abroad.

Regarding the JFK assassination, Rothstein nabbed one of the protected shooters, Frank Sturgis, aka, Frank Ferrini, while still working as a New York detective. Sturgis was hauled into police headquarters after Rothstein and his partner received a hot tip Sturgis was on his way to murder a woman named Marita, who was involved in the Kennedy hit and was about to testify before Congress.

"We took Sturgis into custody when he came to Marita's New York apartment to kill her," said Rothstein Monday on Greg Szymanski's radio show, The Investigative Journal on the Republic Broadcasting Network at www.rbnlive.com

Rothstein explained the entire sequence of events on the two hour radio broadcast leading up to the Sturgis arrest, his involvement in the Kennedy hit, Marita's involvement and how Sturgis was finally released with all charges dropped after a call to the White House.

"He said he was one of the shooters on the grassy knoll," said Rothstein. "He opened up to me during two hours of interrogation after he found out I was on the Essex during the Bay of Pigs since Sturgis was involved in overt ops there. He also said Kennedy's actions during the Bay of Pigs was one reason he had to be killed."

Rothstein also learned from Marita, an agent and assassin who worked for the government and was also Fidel Castro's lover, that she was involved in the planning of the JFK hit, telling Sturgis the hit squad was made up of a group of five, including Sturgis, who all left in a car driving from Miami to Dallas.

"Although we had Sturgis nabbed for the attempted murder of Marita, which included taped evidence of him threatening Marita, saying 'you know what happens to people who talk about the JFK shooting?' But instead of Sturgis being prosecuted after he was arraigned, he was mysteriously let go and all charges dropped.

"What was even more curious was that the one phone call he was allowed was made to one of the lead White House investigators of the Kennedy assassination, indicating a cover-up was in the works."

Rothstein added that years later he was contacted by a credible unknown source who was trying to forward him a 22 page confession Sturgis allegedly made before he died to Cardinal Cook.

Rothstein was told that the written confession talked about "everything Sturgis ever did wrong", including his involvement in the JFK killing.

"My informant made several attempts to get the document into my hands but each time we tried to meet, we were intercepted and the transfer couldn't be made," added Rothstein. "I don't know the man's name but when the time is right he will contact me again and hopefully I can get a look at Sturgis' confession.

But Rothstein said even without the confession what he learned from Sturgis and Marita was "plenty of evidence" for any one interested in getting at the real truth behind who and why Kennedy was really killed.

"We know it is a cover-up at the highest levels and the Sturgis story provides more credibility about the huge JFK cover-up.

On the radio show, Rothstein addressed the huge pedophile ring problem, using his experience as a detective providing credibility for his statements. Rothstein was know for years, until his forced retirement in the 80's as one of the few good policeman who tried to get to the bottom of human trafficking

"The trail of guilt went right to the steps of the Vatican and the highest government officials in our country," said Rothstein. "I had informants who help us finally realized Cardinal Spellman was behind the problem. He was one of the most powerful and evil men in this country and after his death, the same thing is going on with Cardinal Egan.

"Not one case had ever been allowed to proceed to the real perpetrators as people like NY District Attorney Morgenthal are always protecting the higher-ups. People need to realize who are the real perpetrators in our government and the government, demanding that the kidnapping of our children finally be stopped. I consider this problem to be the biggest terrorist threat facing our country.

"The real story has always been kept from the people and when it does break like in the Franklin Cover-up, only the lower level people are arrested. When I was getting close to the real

Vatican and U.S. government perpetrators, my patner and I were offered two million dollars to drop the investigation, the money coming in two suitcases each loaded with a million dollars.

"When we refused the money, eventually I was approached with taking an early retirement and if I refused, they said I might never see a pay check again. I think it was clear what they meant."

After Rothstein retired, he laid low for five years but said he never could really retire because many people who lost children kept calling him for help.

"The world got around that I was really trying to end the pedophile problem and I just kept investigating . I want people to understand the problem is worse today and the kidnapping case of Johnny Gosch, involving the same people in the Franklin case, is a good example.

Rothstein has been helping Johnny's mother, Noreen, in trying to solve the Gosch 1982 kidnapping as new evidence in the forms of revealing photos have surfaced.

Recently, Noreen Gosch spoke on the Investigative Journal about her son's case and the photos.

Gosch is also not afraid to sadly admit -- although it hurts -- that her son has become just another young face put on a milk carton, a face she has seen only in her dreams for more than 20 years as all leads have taken her down the proverbial dead end street due to a massive cover-up at the highest levels.

But then in August, out of the blue, Gosch received what she claims to be an important lead in the case, a package arriving on her doorstep, strangely arriving on her birthday.

"On my birthday," said Gosch in a message posted on a web site she since started, "I received a package with the following pictures inside.

 The first photo is of my son Johnny, shortly after he was kidnapped on Sept. 5th, 1982. He was still wearing the clothing he had on the day he was taken. He is bound and gagged."

 Since the photo of her kidnapped son arrived, other photos and information started pouring in, including more photos of her young son along with photos of other alleged kidnapped children.

Garamond;">

Although some of the photos have been identified as coming from an "exclusive members only" porno site and some of the other children have been identified by their families, Gosch remains perplexed at the lack of interest by law enforcement and the hush-hush attitude taken by legislators, including the Bush White House

 "There is something we can all do to help plead the cause of protecting innocent children," said Gosch in and October plea to officials.

 "Please send letters to President Bush, and e-mails to Vice President Cheney and your State Senators, Representatives and Governors at the following addresses, asking that 'jacobstales' and other pedophilia websites like it be investigated."

Rothstein added that he personally has tried to renew the interest of the Gosch case since the photos surfaced, but he has been blocked every step of the way.

Looking for solutions, Rothstein is calling for a bi-partisan congressional investigation and public hearings with the hearings to be aired publicly by a special prosecutor and Grand Jury.

He added:

"Any body invoking 5 amendment rights during the Congressional hearings would be put in front of the Grand Jury. The Grand Jury would also subpoena appropriate witnesses. The Grand Jury would return recommendations, findings and indictments.

 "Laws to be passed, include the following:

"Any enforcement agency, agent, prosecutor, or any authority failing to act on pedophilia or the criminal use of children complaint by doing a complete investigation is guilty of a crime. (felony)

"Any person, agency, or other entity who interferes, threatens, harasses, impedes, or in anyway compromises an investigation, prosecution, or witness in pedophile criminal case or criminal use of children case is guilty of a felony with mandatory 5 year prison sentence.

"Anybody who uses children, for child porn, pedophilia, to compromise, extort or cause another person to do an unwilling act is guilty of a felony punishable by death. (life in prison, no parole)

Title: VATICAN AUTHORITY DENIES "INTELLIGENT DESIGN"

Truth_Sets_Free - February 28, 2007 05:01 PM (GMT)

Here you can see a big part of the Jesuit's agenda. Not only divide and conquer but also debase through admixture. This makes way for any genetic engineering / and or human cloning, race mixing, whatever, since God couldn't have designed the way things should be. They think everything is evolving. Might as well help it all along? So now I know where the unproven "THEORY" of evolution came from!

VATICAN OBSERVATORY DIRECTOR

SPEAKS ON EVOLUTION – Jesuit Father George V. Coyne, director of the Vatican Observatory. In a Jan. 31 West Palm Beach, Fla., talk, Father Coyne says that Christianity is “radically creationist,” though the theory of Intelligent Design reduces and belittles God. (CNS photo)

VATICAN AUTHORITY DENIES "INTELLIGENT DESIGN"

Vatican Observatory Director George Coyne, an Astrophysicist, who is also ordained said:-

"The Intelligent Design Movement belittles God. It makes God a designer, an engineer. One of the biggest problems that teachers face is Evangelical Christianity based on the literal interpretation of the Scriptures. Biblical interpretation is a plague in our midst."
(From Rome Watch)

Intelligent Design belittles God, Vatican director says

Mike Lombard, Catholic Online, January 30, 2006

"Science is and should be seen as 'completely neutral' on the issue of the theistic or atheistic implications of scientific results, says Father George V. Coyne, director of the Vatican Observatory, while noting that 'science and religion are totally separate pursuits.'

The 18 page booklet talks about a five step plan that started 523 years ago.27 Feb 2007

www.projecttv.nventure.com, but the site now has been removed.

The internal document is a blueprint for the "restoration of the global kingdom of Jesus Christ in the third millennium." Contained within the booklet is also the Vatican's plan for the domination of America, listing their goals and true evil purposes.</

font>

Although the booklet has been kept from prying eyes, Brother R.G. Stair of The Overcomer Ministry has obtained a copy, placing it on his web site at www.overcomerministry.org The document was forwarded to Stair by Brother Mark Hodgson in October 2006.

"This is a revealing document of the Vatican's true purposes," said Brother Stair on his web site. "Project Vatican is dedicated to the restoration of the Global Kingdom of Jesus Christ in the third millennium."

The Vatican blueprint of world domination has a five-prong approach, including (1) the Jesuit infiltration of the English colonies on the North American continent; (2) Jesuit control of Christian schools and universities; (3) Roman Catholic Control exercised through Vatican operatives in the United States military, judiciary and media; (4) The weakening of the U.S. military, both in strength and resolve, in preparation for the Vatican-led One World Government; and (5) Total control of all institutions and resources on earth, including political, military, economic, educational systems for the purpose of ensuring global peace, prosperity and order.

"Phase 1 through Phase IV have taken 523 years to complete and at the dawn of the third millennium is poised to launch Phase V. This will necessitate cooperation of the citizens of every nation on the planet on a massive scale and in previously untested numbers," said the Vatican writers' introduction to Project Vatican.

size="3">

The writers of the 18 page booklet dedicated their efforts to Phase V, saying strategies have been in full effect albeit for varying lengths of time. Further, they claimed the execution of their first strategy of Phase V began more than 150 years ago, the strategy being listed as "Devotion to the Sacred Heart of Jesus and to the Immaculate Heart of Mary through the perpetuation of visions, miracles and revelations."

Other strategies under the Vatican's Phase V for world domination include:

__ Dilution of the eschatological models of Biblical prophesy.

In the core section of this point, Vatican writers reveal how they plan to obtain loyalty to the Pope, saying "The Protestants' lack of a governing authority has resulted in a sheep-like obedience to civil governments. Such social compliance, coupled with capitalistic greed has made Christian fundamentalists extremely vulnerable to social engineering."

Regarding the global financial takeover and VISA, Arctic Beacon reader Greg Colon added:

A Letter Sent to the Pope From ArchBishops Expressing their hatred for Sabbathkeepers, and their lobbying the US Government to shut them and other non-Catholic religions down. (There are references as to the chances of its authenticity).

The Pope's Original letter Dies Domini is at http://69.10.163.110/tempest/seventhunders...dies_domini.htm

This is the response recieved by 7thunders ministry, who typed it up:

Dies Domini was released in 1999. This conference took place at the beginning of 1999. [This letter below arrived via Snail-mail in a plain envelope.]

APOSTOLIC AND PASTORAL LETTER

I, Chriostomos Moussa Matanos Salama, by God's mercy, archbishop of the holy Syria Orthodox Church of antioquia at the archdioceses located in Brazil, at the following address: Comendador Street, Salamao #74 -- Belo Horizonte -- MG Brazil, proclaim this pastoral letter, to call for a convocation of archbishops, bishops, fathers, deacons and delegates from different orthodox communities in Brazil, in order to gather together for an EXTRAORDINARY SYNOD (no date set yet), focusing on the issue of the Roman document from the Holy Father, John Paul II, Successor of Peter the apostle, called DIES DOMINI, which exalts the Sunday as truly the day of the Lord because of Christ's resurrection -- a glorious event that took place THE FIRST DAY OF THE WEEK, with many apparitions of the Lord of Life recorded in the New Testament.

I am going to give a broad explanation about this most important day which the world has known along the historic trajectory -- SUNDAY (KIRIAKE HERMERA) -- that will be studied in this HOLY SYNOD, along with the articles of the Association and Orthodox Apostolic Catholic Churches of the West, having the presence of patriarch, authorities from the Eastern Holy churches with the presence of our patriarch, His Holiness Don Elias IV and representatives from the patriarch Pinen of Russia and authorities of the Roman Apostolic Catholic Church through the ONBB (NationalConference of Bishops in Brazil).

1. We cannot tolerate the keeping of any other "day" by any other religion without the full knowledge of "His holiness." The catholic writers, John, Matthew, Mark and Luke do not mention any other day but the DAY OF THE LORD -- SUNDAY, the only day of the resurrection of Christ. That is why we cannot accept any other gospel. (Galatians 1:6-9.)
2. We cannot tolerate any belief in the keeping of any other "day" that is in accordance with the Bible and the holy tradition and liturgy. (Isaiah 1:13-14.)
3. We cannot tolerate Jews, Sabbatizers, Adventists, or any other sect that does not keep the day of the Lord, Sunday, and tries to lead the people to go into great erroneous theologies against the good moral customs created through the rich traditions of the Holy Church.
4. We cannot tolerate those who do not seek to understand or accept the precepts ordained by the Holy Father, the Pope, in regard to the day of the Lord's resurrection E2?" Sunday.
5. We cannot tolerate any agreement with Bible texts that are not explained by the Living Magistrty (i.e. religious teaching authority) of the Roman Apostolic Catholic Church which will govern the world in fulfillment of the word of God from Genesis to Revelation.

6. We cannot tolerate any keeper of any other day but the Holy Sunday the main day of the resurrection of the eternal God. In virtue of this, we are obligated to fulfill the demands of the Divine oracles enforced by the Roman Apostolic Catholic Church -- which decides the destiny of mankind.

7. We cannot tolerate the transgressors of the Holy day -- Sunday. In this case they will receive judicial penalties through the Justice Court to stop and restrain the liberty of conscience of those who are disobedient to the laws imposed by Rome, according to the supremacy of the Pope -- Advocate of the Divine Laws. He who judges, but cannot be judged.

8. Due to the intolerance of the transgressors, we will ask, through the United States of America, to punish drastically the disobedient who came from 1844, who have taken to their fold our Catholic people that are ignorant about the motives of the transgressors. Our fold, through fear of the law, is joining under the Millerite farce (i.e. sabbatizing). These Millerites seek to contradict the holy pope with spurious doctrines, like the observance of the Sabbath day and the non-immortality of the soul, which are the principal pillars of their heresies.

9. We will not tolerate those transgressors. We will ask the American authorities to take the transgressor's possessions, like publishing houses, their orphanages, their schools, and this needs to be done with holy urgency in order to completely finish with this deception (i.e. farce).

NOTE:

A reader did some checking on the above letter, and below is what he found. He states the Dies Domini did not come out until 1998, so this document must not have been written by this Bishop. There is a possibility that Dies Domini was around in circulation for years before it was published, so one will never know for sure. But this does prove that this person did exist, but the above letter was in Spanish, translated in Germany, and then it came to America where it was translated into English. It is possible there were some changes during translation, so take as an interesting document.

Pope: New eugenics strikes developed world

February 27,2007

<http://www.theindiancatholic.com/newsread.asp?nid=6338>

VATICAN CITY (Zenit.org): Benedict XVI says that a new form of eugenics is striking the most developed countries, where an "obsessive quest for the 'perfect child'" leads to the elimination of embryos.

The Pope said this on Saturday to the participants in a congress organized by the Pontifical Academy for Life on the theme "The Christian Conscience as Support of the Right to Life."

This quest, noted the Holy Father, leads to "legalizing euthanasia," multiplying at the same time the pressure to "legalize forms of living together alternative to marriage, closed to natural procreation."

Less-developed countries face a similar pressure, Benedict XVI noted: "Ever stronger are the pressures to legalize abortion in the countries of Latin America and in developing countries."

"Policies of demographic control are increasing, despite the fact they have already been recognized as pernicious, including at the economic and social level," he added.

Fundamental

The Holy Father also said that human coexistence is based on recognition of the right to life.

The right to life "is a right that must be supported by everyone, because it is the fundamental right with regard to the other human rights," said the Pope.

"Human coexistence and the political community itself is founded on the recognition of this right," he added, quoting Pope John Paul II's encyclical "Evangelium Vitae."

Benedict XVI said that "this right must be promoted particularly by believers in Christ," conscious of the fact that, "with the incarnation, the Son of God united himself in a certain sense to every man."

It is a Christian's duty, he said, "to mobilize to address the many attacks to which the right to life is exposed."

Title: Malachi Martin - The Jesuits

Description: Jesuits against the Papacy since 1965

unmovable - February 22, 2007 09:41 PM (GMT)

I am aware, via Albertos warnings, of Mr Martin and his obvious misdirections regarding the Orders purpose. However I am currently reading this book regardless as I am aware that bits of truth can be found within it. Has anyone else read this book and if so what are your insights to it.

He claims that since the 1960's or there about, the Jesuits have been against the Vatican and the Catholic Church and wish to begin about or rather evolve a new religious order (community) far removed from any papal authority and dogmatism.....is this just a deliberate attempt by the author to further bring apart Romanism before the bringing in of the new world religion?

He communicates in the book the dictionary definitions of a Jesuit and goes into the fact that they were expelled by numerous nations ect, yet boils it down to governments of these nations not wanting Roman authority in their countries ect.....

Just interested in your thoughts.

Regards

Luther77 - February 23, 2007 04:03 PM (GMT)

In my view , Malachi Martin told many truths,if you read between the lines, but throughout the book he prooves to be a Roman Catholic apologist. He doesn't mention that Roman Catholicism is the Babylonian mystery religion with Yahushua Christ Jesus name attached to it.

Martin makes it seem that the Jesuits, being involved in politics, just started their political subversions in the 1960's with no mention of their suppression in 1773 for this exact offense. He barely mentions, if at all, their history of being thrown out of countries from the beginning, because of their involvement in politics and undermining governments (to include devoutly Roman Catholic monarchs that were papists).

So, in total , it's a good book for reference material, but be very careful with his conclusions.This is a textbook case for shoveling out disinfo to throw people off with the end conclusion.

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 24, 2007 01:33 AM (GMT)

Remember folks I exposed how the Jesuits see their version of the Babylonian Mystery religion as the PURE version. They've always saw the RCC version as a perversion. They simply infiltrate, take over and then bring in what they wish. This is the real deal!!!

unmovable - February 27, 2007 11:34 PM (GMT)

I see after reading further that this is exactly what he is doing, only exposing the leftist opinion of the JO and totally ignoring the right wing facet.

I agree with Craig in that the JO see their version of the Babylonian Mystery religion as the PURE version and this book actually helps dismantle this Catholic "perversion" religion.

Alexandra - February 27, 2007 11:57 PM (GMT)

You know, it's funny...the Reformation was making the Vatican lose a lot of power and influence...then that's when the Jesuits sweep in and take it over.

unmovable - February 28, 2007 12:28 AM (GMT)

very telling indeed.....

Fr. Kolvenbach could remain at head of Jesuits

Pope Benedict desires Jesuit appointment remain a lifetime one

<http://www.catholicnewsagency.com/new.php?n=8714>

Vatican City, Feb 23, 2007 / 11:15 am (CNA).- Fr. Peter-Hans Kolvenbach, SJ, who was previously expected to step down as Superior General of the Society of Jesus (Jesuits) after their General Congregation scheduled for January 5, 2008, could now remain the Jesuit superior after Pope Benedict XVI expressed his opinion.

Fr. Kovenbach, officially convoked the 35th General Congregation with a written communicaton dated February 2nd 2006. In his letter the Jesuit superior announced that the Jesuit summit would elect a new Superior General.

Now however, less than a month before the fourteen members of the "Coetus Praevius" meet in Rome on March 15th to study and organize the approximately 350 proposals sent by the Provincial Congregations in preparation for the Congregation, Fr. Kolvenbach has sent a letter to the world's Jesuit superiors communicating Pope Benedict's wish that the Jesuit Superior General's term remain a lifetime one, but with "provisions for stepping down for serious reasons."

The Pope's desire opens the door for Fr. Kolvenbach to be re-elected rather than replaced in 2008, unless he presents his resignation.

Born in Druten, Holland in 1928, Fr. Kolvenbach was elected the 29th Superior General of the Society of Jesus in September of 1983 during the 33rd General Congregation.

There is an apotegm in spanish that says: "Más vale viejo conocido que bueno por conocer". In other words it says that "better the old known, that the new to know." In other words Pope Benedict XVI doesn't want to confront with the Jesuits. His sucesor will have to do this.

Jesuits "Certain" About Superior's Exit in '08

General Congregation Likely to OK His Resignation

ROME, FEB. 26, 2007 (Zenit.org).- A spokesman for the Society of Jesus said it is "morally certain" that the upcoming general congregation will formally approve Father Peter-Hans Kolvenbach's request to step down as superior general.

Father Kolvenbach received Benedict XVI's approval for his proposed resignation next year, though the Jesuit Constitution stipulates that the superior-general position is for life.

The Dutch-born Father Kolvenbach cited his age -- he will turn 80 in 2008 -- and his 25-year tenure as the superior of the Jesuits as reasons for his resignation.

In the wake of recent media reports, Father José de Vera, director of the Jesuits' information office, clarified the situation.

"A few months ago Father Kolvenbach obtained the Pope's permission to present his resignation," Father de Vera explained in a statement sent to ZENIT. "He will do so in the next general congregation which he has convoked for January 2008."

"Theoretically the congregation could reject the proposal of resignation presented by Father Kolvenbach," the Jesuit spokesman said. "Resignation from the office of superior general has no effect if it is not agreed to by the Society in general congregation.

"[P]ractically speaking, this will not happen because the superior-general has followed to the letter the process established for the case of resignation."

The Society of Jesus had recently asked the Pope if the organization's rule that superiors-general have a life term in their office should continue in force.

According to Father de Vera, the Holy Father chose to maintain the stipulation. This does not discard the possibility, the Jesuit added, that, "in special cases and after previous consultation with the Pope," the superior general "can present his resignation to the general congregation."

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 24, 2007 01:31 AM (GMT)

Yes of course and they command the military via the Sovereign Military of Malta. The U. S Military is commanded by Cardinal Edward Michael Egan the Prince of the Roman Catholic Church and Archbishop of New York. Remember the Vietnamese war was Cardinal Spellman's baby but for the higher level of Rome via their "The City" in London.

snoopsnuffleopagus - February 24, 2007 02:20 AM (GMT)

What really gets my goat(I'll have to check the health forum for Agita relief) is how they preen and strut like peacocks purporting to be righteous and honourable. The whole gang of them would'nt measure up to pimple on General Smedley Butlers ass! They are a disgrace not just to the U.S.A. but to the entire Human Race. FEH!

Luther77 - February 24, 2007 03:31 AM (GMT)

Yes, General Butler was a true Patriot and American from what I've gathered.He seems to have put his country first , not the elite.

AVBibleBeliever - February 26, 2007 02:36 AM (GMT)

Absolutely! No chance this is coincidence. It is just impossible! They are all Jesuit-trained and controlled because this Papal Crusade is a war of annihilation both of the Muslim peoples and the apostate Protestant West. Youth like myself are especially targeted for the coming draft. This is means of population control. This war has been called "our children's children war" by CNN. SMOM and 33rd Degree Freemason Tony Blair will be pulling out troops as well as other "Coalition" nations and their forces until the Armed Forces of the Unholy Roman Fourteenth Amendment American Empire will find itself going solo and by the time this diversionary war concludes (when the Muslim is reduced enough to ensure Israel will not be ransacked) the purposely sabotaged (the troops are ill-equipped because this is a war they are meant to and will lose. Rome is through with America-she has been drunk with the wine of the Whore's fornication since the illegal ratification of the Fourteenth Amendment. I believe the death toll will surpass all wars the U.S. has ever fought and even now is greater than what the Order's CFR reports because only soldiers killed in action are counted, not those who die as a result of injuries, wounds, suicides, poisons in the form of pills, depleted uranium, etc. I believe as a result of the HPV vaccine Merck wants to give pre-adolescent girls will make them sterile in the long-term. She has caused the America to forget God and now we are witnessing His judgment U.S. defense will be beyond recovery and absolutely powerless to resist our coming invaders from China, Russia, the remaining Muslims who will forget about Jerusalem and the Jews and wage a jihad against what they call "The Great Satan" whom they will blame for the destruction of the Dome of the Rock, Al Aqsa mosque, Mecca, and Medina.

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 26, 2007 01:43 PM (GMT)

Not all of these Generals are bad people, theres actually a few decent amongst the many bad. Yes Kay Griggs spilt the beans on a lot of their doings and links. You see these various peoples in positions of power are no different to you and I, they fight a lot and have arguments. Yes at the very top their perfectly all one from a Jesuit, SMOM point of view but lower down their not quite. Reminds me of reptiles fighting and other animals. Remember also countries are simply GANGS just as Maxwell told us. You see the Jesuits are the Headmaster, Script writers, Knowledge owners and their highest SMOM Knights the directors of the movie. The rest remind me of school children kept in line to some extent but the further down the pyramid you go then you get very naughty children such as Bush, Cheney etc. If ADD/ADHD were real I'd say this was them haha.

So yes right now there are a few decent souls left in the Military who do not wish for say the coming WW3 thats planned.

Title: Where is Svali? - By Ed Koni

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 25, 2007 11:52 PM (GMT)

Where is Svali?

by Ed Koni

Svali, a former mind control programmer and trainer for the Illuminati, appears to be missing or in hiding. Who is Svali and is her story of a pervasive conspiracy true?

Back in the early 1990's, I was working in a large church in the greater San Diego, CA area, doing counselling with a pastor there. We had recently started working with abuse victims helping them to deal with the many problems they faced.

We were both new to this field, but were excited about the opportunity God had opened for us to help some of the many hurting people in the congregation.

It was a Wesleyan church, and we had the "silent blessing" of the head pastor to work with these people, as long as it was kept out of the limelight and no trouble came out of it. He didn't want the main body to be aware that we were working with people who had demonic problems and certainly there was not to be any talk of Satanic Ritual Abuse! No, that wouldn't go over well and might scare away half of the congregation.

Soon after word slowly got out that we were working to help people with "spiritual problems", we were contacted by another Wesleyan pastor from a nearby small, Wesleyan church. I will never forget what he asked me. He said, "I have a young couple at our church that I feel God has His hand upon them and wants to use them in ministry at our church. The woman though, has a few spiritual issues and I would like you guys to help her out." I responded, "Sure, let's all get together and pray about this and see how the Lord leads us."

We scheduled an appointment the following week. As soon as we met, I could see a real nervousness in the young woman. Her name was Svali. (Actually that is her alias she now goes by and I don't want to reveal her real name for the sake of her safety and privacy.)

We sat down and began to pray and all of a sudden Svali starts rapping her hand very strongly on the table. She looked at us and said "What! Nothing is wrong, nothing is wrong!" She was extremely agitated inside and the demons were also. I could see she was in a strong state of denial and wanted to keep a lid on things. The demons didn't want us to meet and especially to pray together and they were pushing Svali the best they could to leave! Little did I know what was in store for us over the next several months, but surely this was a strong indicator of someone with much inner turmoil.

For the next 4-5 months I met with Svali and her husband on numerous occasions. I had never seen or heard of anyone like her before. She had so much pain inside, so many demons, so much programming and her denial system was incredibly strong.

Unfortunately, I didn't know a whole lot about the Illuminati and how they torture, abuse and program people at that time. I did the best I could to help Svali and in spite of my ignorance, lack of knowledge, and spiritual immaturity, God helped us mightily. We were able to make good headway with Svali and the Lord Jesus helped her break much of the denial system that was in place. This was only because Svali genuinely had a love for the Lord Jesus and for the truth. She desperately wanted to get free. Free from what, I didn't even know at that time as God didn't reveal much of her involvement in the cult at that time. Many alters did come out and get saved, and the Lord Jesus did cast out many demons for Svali. She was making progress but there was an incredible amount of things to deal with at that time.

Suddenly one day Svali turned on me, or so I thought at the time. An alter personality who had been a protector of some sort came out and started accusing me of many things. I was aghast and very hurt as I had always tried my best to help her. I had always given Svali priority because her situation seemed so dire. She had two small children to take care of, worked full time as a nurse in the emergency room of a major San Diego hospital, and was trying to deal with all of what God was bringing out into the light.

I thought she was going to snap from all the pressure she was facing and in a way she did. She did a compete 360 on me and was very combative. I was very confused. She soon left town in a hurry and moved to Texas and I heard nothing from her or her husband any more.

Years later, I found some of Svali's articles on Suite101.com and as I read them I was amazed to see all she had been through! Many of the things that happened in our ministry time together now made sense. It was her Illuminati programming that had made her denial system so strong. The alters we encountered in her were so very hurt and very controlled. I knew whomever had been involved in her abuse had to be very sophisticated and the spiritual attack we faced when working with Svali was always very strong. Someone out there didn't want what was inside of her to be revealed and they certainly didn't want her to be free.

I soon was able to track down Svali through her articles and was able to call her and talk in person with her. I was so relieved to see she was not only still walking with the Lord but she was working very diligently on her healing and also was being very vocal about her past involvement in the Illuminati.

I cautioned her about that. She knew the risks involved though, more than I did, and she insisted on writing and speaking out about the activities of the cult. She was very brave, very outspoken, and as far as I can tell, very truthful in what she stated. Nothing I ever read went against what I knew to be true about her.

I kept in touch with her by email and tried to encourage her and support her in whatever way I could. I consider Svali a true sister in the Lord. One who truly loved the Lord Jesus and was ready to die for Him. I know though she was motivated by her hatred for the evil things the cult did to people, especially the children. I think also she felt very guilty for what she had done in the past while in the cult even though she knew God had forgiven her. She had a true hatred of what they do, as God also does, but that hatred may now have cost her, her very life.

I know the cult did constantly harass her and warn her about speaking out and that she was abducted, abused and strongly admonished to keep quiet. I was alerted last year by someone who knew Svali that she was no longer answering any emails sent to her and that no one knew where she was. I have searched for her myself and tried to contact her but no one has seen or heard of where Svali is. I tried emailing Svali, to no avail. I did contact her ex-husband, but he was of no help. I think he is very scared also for his life. I do not know really what he is doing but he is still working at his old job so I am thinking he must be still in the cult as they are not harassing him like they did Svali.

Also, her web site has been stripped of all her articles and just meaningless links remain. The owner of the web site is someone in Kingstown, VC?? All her artwork, poems and articles are gone. I doubt Svali would take all that down, but who knows.

I hope and pray she is okay. She was very brave to speak out as she did, but she knew the risk involved. Yes, she had two children, a boy and a girl, and they would be about high school age now. I have no idea where they are.

I am hoping and praying that this dear sister is okay and that she hasn't been kidnapped or killed. Please pray for her safety and if anyone knows of her whereabouts, please let me know.

He said, yes, that he had heard the same rumor but that he had asked people who knew Svali and were in a position to know the truth and had been assured that Svali is in fact safe.

Huge influx of migrants 'could make Catholicism main religion in Britain'

Last updated at 10:49am on 16th February 2007

Roman Catholics are on course to overtake Anglicans as the country's most active churchgoers due to a sharp upsurge of immigrants from Eastern Europe.

In a fresh blow to the Church of England, a study suggests that there are higher attendances on Sundays at Catholic services than in Anglican churches.

The report described the influx of parishioners, many of them from Poland, as either the Catholic Church's 'greatest threat' in England or 'greatest opportunity'.

The revelation comes as the Church of England braces itself for a split between liberals and conservatives over the role of gay clergy.

The prospect of Catholicism becoming the dominant religion in England will embarrass the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr Roman Williams, who faces declining congregations and questions about his authority.

The report by the Von Hugel Institute at Cambridge University on the effect immigrants are having on the Catholic Church found priests are under intense pressure.

Many of the new arrivals are turning to the church as a source of advice and welfare, demands it is struggling to meet.

Pictures of Polish worshippers kneeling on the pavement of overflowing churches in London have underscored the phenomenon.

Around 230,000 Poles registered for work in the UK from May 2004 to March 2006, official figures show.

However, the actual number of Poles in the UK is thought to be much higher. Some estimates say the community is 600,000-strong.

Immigrants from the strongly Catholic country, where up to 95 per cent of the population is religiously active, have brought with them their enthusiasm for their faith and their commitment to attending Mass, the study explains.

It confirms that the country's five million Catholics 'constitute the most active worshipping faith community in England and Wales'.

The report warns: 'These changes have been variously described as the Catholic community's "greatest opportunity" and "its greatest threat".'

For many immigrants from Africa, the Catholic Church is their first port of call. They are often seeking refuge and protection from terrifying lives, which leave them in 'grave fear', the report says.

The church has responded instinctively and positively in many cases, the study said.

In others, it has been overwhelmed by the scale of the new challenge.

Recent estimates suggest around one million Catholics attends Mass regularly, roughly the same as the number of regular Anglican churchgoers.

But the upsurge in new parishioners in the last year has left church experts certain that the Catholic church now has the biggest share of regular church-goers.

Priests report that the numbers began soaring last year and the influx has yet to be fully reflected in official figures.

The country's five million Catholics are outnumbered by 25 million baptised Anglicans. There are around 2.1 million Muslims.

In a statement issued yesterday, the Archbishop of Southwark, Kevin McDonald, and Bishop of Brentwood, Thomas McMahon, both Roman Catholics, said they would be reflecting on the findings of the report.

They added: 'Amongst other findings, the report shows that Catholic migrants regard the church as a refuge, a harbour of hope and worship where the Eucharistic feast is grounded in lived community.'

'Migrants are very much the present reality of the Catholic Church in London and one of several sources of hope for the Catholic Church of the future too.

'In our view they are also a source of hope for the future of the nation.'

A spokesman for Lambeth Palace said: "I don't think you can talk in terms of decline in the Church of England.

"It is fairly clear that with small fluctuations the worshipping population of the CoE is 1.7 million a month. That is a stable figure."

By Pastor Ralph Ovadal, April 10, 2006

In recent weeks, the advocates of the "rights" of illegal Mexican immigrants, accompanied by and even led by Roman Catholic priests, have staged rallies, protests, and parades all across the United States of America. For instance, on March 25, 500,000 people took to the streets of Los Angeles, flying Mexican flags and chanting slogans such as "Viva Mexico!" Another 500,000 marched in Dallas on April 9, waving Mexican flags with "Our Lady of Guadalupe" emblazoned in the center. This outburst of protest was a response to several immigration and border reform measures working their way through the U.S. Congress. Due to the efforts of the Mexican government, the criminal neglect of our U.S. government, and a porous U.S.-Mexican border, there are now somewhere between eleven million and twenty million illegal immigrants in the United States of America.

I have been talking about this situation for years on my "Heart of the Matter" program because of the social, political, and most importantly, spiritual affects that the alien invasion is having on America. It is unfortunate that very few people have been concerned with the religious aspect of this issue. Over the past few years, I have spent time pointing out that the Roman Catholic Church is aiding and abetting the criminal invasion of America from Mexico because the illegals are almost all Roman Catholics. That church/state which maintains political, diplomatic relationships with the UN, the EU, the Russian Federation, the Organization for the Liberation of Palestine, and 174 nations around the globe is working both legally and criminally on behalf of a movement, the goal of which is to bring as many Mexicans into America as possible so as to eventually take over a large chunk of our nation for Mexico. This multifaceted movement, made up of radical organizations such as La Raza (The Race), Aztlan, and MEChA, is called Reconquista (Reconquest).

The leadership of the Roman Catholic Church has a stake in Reconquista. The pope and his henchmen are looking to turn America, founded and still a Protestant country, into a Roman Catholic country. But space requires that I narrow this discourse down to providing documentation of that just-made claim, which to some people makes me not only a "Catholic basher" but also a "white supremacist." That's what Alex Koppleman, a columnist for the Drexel University magazine Dragonfire, called me in a March 30, 2006 column in which he included this statement from an article I wrote some time ago:

. . . the Roman Catholic Church has its own plan of reconquest. She is determined to reestablish the power she once exercised over the civil governments and populations of the world. The pope, along with the Reconquista cadre, views South, Central, and North Americas as being one "from Argentina to Alaska." On several occasions, Pope John Paul II has "consecrated" this "America" to "Our Lady of Guadalupe." The Mexican people streaming across America's porous southern border are Roman Catholics. It is in the interest of the Vatican to establish as many Roman Catholics as possible in the United States of America. The pope and his partners in spiritual crime care little how the job is done—whether illegally or legally—just so it is done.¹

That is a statement I stand by and which stands on solid ground. The Roman Catholic Church is determined to turn Protestant America into a Roman Catholic country, and her best bet to do that is to bring as many Catholics into our nation as possible.

To that end, the Justice for Immigrants campaign was founded by the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops. Twenty other Catholic organizations have joined together with the bishops in a massive educational, media, and political campaign to block immigration reform in America. On its website, the Justice for Immigrants campaign lists the bishops' "criteria for the reform of the U.S. immigration system, including . . . abandonment of the border 'blockade' enforcement strategy."² Plainly speaking, the goal is to eliminate America's security along our border with Mexico! The U.S. bishops together with their Mexican counterparts, of course with papal consent and encouragement, have determined to use Catholic treasure, influence, and manpower to erase America's border! This is not surprising to the discerning Christian. Sovereign nations have always been a hindrance to the pope's effective exercise of his office as "father of kings, governor of the world and Vicar of Christ."³

The bishops and their comrades in crime are sparing no expense or effort to influence every strata and institution of American culture. Reading the material which the Justice for Immigrants campaign has produced for distribution to school children is reminiscent of the propaganda used by the Gay, Lesbian & Straight Education Network for the same purpose!

Mark D. Franken, executive director of Migration and Refugee Services for the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops, recently told the Washington Times that all of America's 197 Catholic dioceses "are in some way backing the campaign, with more than 70 being particularly active."⁴ As Mr. Franken points out, Catholic advocacy on behalf of the illegal alien movement is highly organized, and the troops are getting their marching orders from the top. Consider this from the Catholic Zenit News Services: "Representatives of the Holy See and of the Catholic Church in Mexico are opposing a U.S. bill on immigrants, considering it a violation of human rights. . . . On Sunday, the California Catholic Conference of Bishops appealed for full migratory reform, which will include the legalization earned by illegal workers with their effort."⁵ So now criminals "earn" the right to have their criminality ignored by taking a job and getting paid for it. The lack of general outrage over such Romanist remarks cannot help but remind one of Revelation 18:23—"by thy sorceries were all nations deceived."

On January 22, 2003, the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops, in concert with the Catholic Bishops of Mexico, issued Strangers No Longer: Together on the Journey of Hope—A Pastoral Letter Concerning Migration. This lengthy, authoritative document contains statement after brazen statement endorsing and encouraging illegal immigration from Mexico. The bishops include a glossary of terms in which they differentiate between an immigrant; a legal immigrant; a refugee; and a migrant, one who freely moves back and forth across national borders. The bishops make it clear throughout the document that their concern is for "undocumented" immigrants and migrants—the illegals.

While the majority of Americans find illegal immigration damaging and dangerous, the bishops find it otherwise: "We speak as two episcopal conferences but as one Church, united in the view that migration between our two nations is necessary and beneficial."⁶ Yes, the Romanists find "migration" necessary and beneficial to the cause of Rome; hence, the bishops call for an underground railroad to help illegals make it into America from Mexico:

We call upon pastors and lay leaders to ensure support for migrant and immigrant families. We urge communities to offer migrant families hospitality . . . We commend church communities that have established migrant shelters . . . We call on the local church to help newcomers integrate . . .

The reality of migration, especially when the journey entails clandestine border crossings, is often fraught with uncertainties and even dangers. As migrants leave their homes, pastoral counseling should be offered . . .7

To buttress their lawless instructions, the bishops turn to antichrists of the past:

Catholic teaching has a long and rich tradition in defending the right to migrate. . . .8

As Pope John Paul II wrote in Ecclesia in America: ". . . They often bring with them a cultural and religious heritage which is rich in Christian elements. The Church . . . is committed to spare no effort in developing her own pastoral strategy among these immigrant people, in order to help them settle in their new land and to foster a welcoming attitude among the local population, in the belief that a mutual openness will bring enrichment to all."9

Pope Pius XII reaffirms the Church's commitment to caring for pilgrims, aliens, exiles, and migrants of every kind in his apostolic constitution Exsul Familia, affirming . . . "the sovereignty of the State, although it must be respected, cannot be exaggerated to the point that access to this land is, for inadequate or unjustified reasons, denied . . ."10

Of course, the quote from John Paul takes us back to my claim that the leadership of the Catholic church is so very concerned about the "human rights" of illegals because those illegals not only add numbers to the pope's flock but also spread Romanism in America. The bishops are not shy on that point and give some straightforward instruction for equipping the illegals pouring in from Mexico: "Prayer books and guides to social and religious services should be provided along the way and at the points of arrival. The migrants should be reminded of their role as evangelizers."11 It is one thing for a religion to equip its followers as "evangelizers," but it is quite another thing when they are being equipped as criminals violating the border of a free nation.

The bishops' pastoral letter is far from being the only documentation which could be given to prove that the Roman Catholic Church is unlawfully using illegal Mexican immigrants to build her power base in America. For instance, Cardinal Theodore McCarrick of Washington, D.C. said this about illegals in El Paso Times: "They . . . come with the values that are so needed in the United States today. . . . This is a special moment in the history of the Catholic church and the history of migration."12

Archbishop José Gómez of San Antonio, speaking of the illegals, boldly points out: "[T]he values they bring . . . is [sic] making North American culture return to its Christian roots. . . . The values of the immigrants are very basic, reflecting a profound Catholicism."¹³ Anyone who knows America's history would contest the suggestion that our nation has Catholic roots. Quite the opposite!

Cardinal Norberto Rivera, Mexico's archbishop, is jumping the gun in his claim that America is now a Catholic nation; but he is right on all other counts when he says, "In the north the emigrants, Mexicans and those who pass through Mexico, are bearing the faith to the north of our continent. Only five years ago the [Catholic] church was in the minority in the United States, it is now the majority."¹⁴

Of course, the Catholic bishops are the generals in the offensive against America's sovereignty, security, and Protestant identity. The thousands upon thousands of diocesan and religious order priests are the frontline troops who are charged with turning rhetoric into reality. As might be expected, the priests tend to be even blunter than their bishops with regard to the Catholic church's "human rights" work on behalf of illegal Mexican immigrants. For instance, consider this from Priest Paul Marx, as quoted in the well-respected Catholic paper, the Wanderer, May 6, 1987: "America is a dying nation. I tell the Mexicans when I am down in Mexico to keep on having children, and then to take back what we took from them: California, Texas, Arizona, and then to take the rest of the country as well."¹⁵

As is plain from that quote, the Vatican's corrupt campaign to funnel illegal "evangelizers" into America did not start in 2003; but it is increasingly out in the open, more aggressive, and more anti-American. For instance, the 2003 pastoral letter of the Mexican and American bishops openly decries the "xenophobic and racist attitudes"¹⁶ of those Americans who are demanding an end to the alien invasion from Mexico. They are also outraged that our border patrol would actually arrest individuals criminally crossing our borders. "Alarmingly, migrants often are treated as criminals."¹⁷ The bishops echo the shrill charges of the leftist Reconquista crowd when they speak of "reports of physical abuse of migrants by U.S. Border Patrol agents"¹⁸ and claim that "the U.S. record of handling undocumented unaccompanied minors from Mexico and other countries is shameful."¹⁹

Oh, and did I mention that in 2003 the bishops also suggested a Catholic commission "study the possibility of a more comprehensive preparation and assignment of clergy, religious, and lay people who dedicate themselves to pastoral accompaniment of migrants"²⁰? Isn't that subtle—Romanist-trained guides for the illegal aliens breaching our borders from Mexico? But, as the bishops gloated in their letter, "This cross-border collaboration has already reaped positive results."²¹ It certainly has. The Roman Catholic Church in America has been reinvigorated, and its prospects are bright if only the move toward immigration reform and the resecuring of America's borders can be staved off.

The pope and his people do not care one whit about the economic and social effects of their campaign to Romanize America. They do not care that we now have thousands of vicious MS-13 gang members, illegals from Central America, roaming the streets of American cities. The scarlet and purple cadres couldn't care less about the danger that unsecured borders pose for the citizens of America in this day of Islamic Jihad. The woman who has ridden the beast in the past wants to get back in the saddle again in the worst way. The predominately Protestant nature of America's culture and our traditional defense of our national sovereignty are obstacles which stand in the way of the world without borders which is in Rome's best interest. The bishops, of course in compliance with their boss's wishes, have seen the benefit of America's porous border and are determined to seize the moment: "Now is the time for both the United States and Mexico to . . . work toward a globalization of solidarity."²²

And speaking of solidarity, we will end this brief reminder of the cold, calculating ambition of Rome with this closing encouragement to lawlessness by the Catholic bishops of America and Mexico: "We stand in solidarity with you, our migrant brothers and sisters, and we will continue to advocate on your behalf for just and fair migration policies. We commit ourselves to animate communities of Christ's disciples on both sides of the border to accompany you on your journey."²³

Catholics in England Boosted by Migrants Influx of Devout From New E.U. Countries Swells Attendance, Transforms Church

By Mary Jordan

Washington Post Foreign Service

Saturday, February 24, 2007; Page A14

<http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/conte...AR2007022301739>.html

LONDON-- More than 5,000 Catholics attend Masses every Sunday at Our Lady Mother of the Church, packing the old stone church so completely that loudspeakers were recently installed outside so the overflow crowd can hear.

"I go to Mass here every Sunday and sometimes during the week, too," said Dominika Marszalkowska, 27, an engineer from Poland who was among the throng listening to the 11:30 am. Mass last Sunday in the chilly February air.

Marszalkowska, who said she earns more managing a London restaurant than as an architectural engineer in her native country, is one of hundreds of thousands of new immigrants transforming the Catholic Church in England. The surge in devout newcomers is so strong that many analysts said Catholics now surpass Anglicans in weekly attendance.

Since King Henry VIII renounced his Catholicism in the 16th century, Anglicans and Catholics have often had a difficult relationship. Queen Elizabeth II is the official head of the Church of England, and it is still a rule that any member of the royal family who marries a Catholic forfeits their place in the line of succession.

There are still far more people here who consider themselves Anglican. But for millions of English, the only connection with the church of their baptism is attendance at an occasional funeral, wedding or holiday service -- leading some to joke that the "C" and "E" in the Church of England's abbreviation stand for "Christmas" and "Easter." With so few churchgoers, some old and ornate Anglican churches are being turned into apartments, gyms and cafes.

In the past few years, roughly the same number of Catholics and Anglicans have been attending Sunday services in any given week -- about a million each, according to spokesmen for both churches. But now, "ethnic congregations are exploding," said Francis Davis, author of a new report by the Von Hugel Institute at Cambridge University on the phenomenal influx of Catholic immigrants.

Davis said that as many as 500,000 Catholic immigrants, many of them very devout, are causing Catholic church attendance "to take off." One London church was down to 20 members when it introduced Masses in Portuguese, and suddenly about 1,400 people were attending Sunday Mass, Davis said.

Arun Kataria, a spokesman for the Church of England, said that weekly participation at services is only one way to measure the strength of a church. He said that 26 million people in England are baptized Anglicans, compared with 4.2 million baptized Catholics, and that the number of Anglican worshipers is holding steady. Of the many immigrants coming to Britain, he said, most tend to live in cities and have not affected the religious makeup of the countryside.

Kataria said that although "clearly a great many immigrants are coming in," not all of them are flocking to Catholic churches.

But many are.

"The face of London is changing, and with it, the church," said Cardinal Cormac Murphy-O'Connor, the leader of the Catholic Church in England and Wales, when he addressed the topic recently. He said immigrants were filling 90 percent of low-paid jobs, working as cleaners, builders and caterers, and he estimated that they make up almost a third of the city's workforce. "A very high proportion -- notably from Central and Eastern Europe -- are practicing Catholics," he said.

Murphy-O'Connor said it was a challenge for the church to fulfill the needs of immigrants, some of whom end up homeless and exploited. Last May, he said from the pulpit that he backed a government amnesty for long-term illegal residents, prompting an estimated 2,000 immigrants in the cathedral to burst into applause.

Migration is also swelling the ranks of Catholics in Northern Ireland, where the Catholic minority has long been feuding with the Protestant majority. Three decades of armed conflict, largely pitting Catholics against Protestants, cost more than 3,600 lives before a cease-fire was negotiated. Projections now show that immigration, along with higher birthrates among Catholics, may soon leave the population of Northern Ireland evenly divided between the two faiths.

The religious makeup of the province's police force has been a major hurdle in cementing peace. Northern Irish Catholics for decades have mistrusted and boycotted the police, a Protestant-majority force that Catholics viewed as biased against them. Officials have been trying to recruit more Catholics, and last month they got an unexpected boost when 1,000 Poles signed up -- nearly all of them Catholic immigrants.

The influx of new immigrants is generally traced to 2004, when the European Union expanded from 15 countries to 25. That meant workers from the new member countries -- eight of them in Eastern Europe -- were legally allowed to work in the United Kingdom. Poland, which is more than 90 percent Catholic, has by far the largest population of the new E.U. countries.

Official British government statistics show that about 490,000 migrants, 300,000 of them Poles, have arrived since 2004. Polish authorities estimate that the number of Polish workers here is far higher, about double the official figure, at 600,000. Thousands of Polish migrants continue to arrive at London bus stations and airports every week.

"It is very, very good, but sometimes it can be difficult" to have so many parishioners, said Tadeusz Wyszomirski, a parish priest at Our Lady Mother of the Church in west London.

Even though he recently added a seventh Sunday Mass -- all of them are in Polish -- the large church with grand stained-glass windows still overflows at most services. Some people kneel in the aisles, others stand outside even in London's cold winter rain. Crowds also flock to the church's three daily Masses in Polish on weekdays.

"I hope it continues to grow," he said. But the five priests are very busy, he added, trying to keep up with all the weddings, baptisms and home visits to the sick.

At Sunday's 11:30 a.m. Mass, Marszalkowska stood outside, listening to prayers over loudspeakers with her 9-week-old baby and her father, who is visiting from Poland. She said she speaks both English and Polish but looks forward to hearing the Mass in her native language.

Afterward, she joined other churchgoers in the basement for tea and Polish pastries -- including huge slices of a very popular apple cake.

Monika Swierczyusko, who came here two years ago from Poland, was working behind the counter. She said she works in a factory six days a week and helps out at the church every Sunday from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m.

"I don't understand people who don't like to go to church," she said, as another thousand people settled in upstairs for the next Mass.

God's Word has Strengthened Hope for New EU members

Bulgaria and Romania join the EU

International (MNN) -- Romania and Bulgaria's entrances into the European Union are a "double-edged sword" for ministry. Bible League ministry in these Balkan nations has hope for more good than bad, though.

The New Year gave two reasons to celebrate for both nations, as they were accepted into the EU at the beginning of this year.

Bible League sees many benefits to this new union. Bible League's Director of Central and Eastern Europe Ministries, Rev. Robert Martin, said, "Our ministries in Bulgaria and Romania will now have better access to printing and transport of printed materials from Western Europe." Imported Scriptures will be taxed less and see lower customs costs.

They will also be able to have freer flowing personnel across borders in Hungary and Romania. "This will allow us to reach more people in the country's Hungarian-speaking minority, especially in the Transylvania region," explained Martin.

Bible-believing churches are already arising because of the increased ease of moving west. Martin hopes that revival will happen because of these churches being salt and light to Western Europe.

There are also a few downfalls of the EU for Bible League. Not only are there laws that limit the spread of the Gospel in the highly secularized region, "Wages, taxes, and cost of goods all go up in the EU," Martin said.

Leaders in Romania and Bulgaria express excitement about the membership. Romania's president described it as an "enormous chance for future generations," while Bulgaria's leader said it was a "heavenly moment."

Bible League has been in Romania for 14 years and Bulgaria for 12 years. Last year alone, these two countries reported more than 104,000 Bible study completions and saw 13,250 new church members.

You can learn more about Bible League or give to their ministry by visiting their Web site.

Pilgrims explore the new and old Spain

By FOSS FARRAR

Traveler Staff Writer

http://www.arkcity.net/stories/070706/com_0005.shtml

Editor's Note: Traveler reporter Foss Farrar recently returned from a trip to Spain. This is a story about his trip.

Ky Nguyen left his homeland of Vietnam for the first time two weeks ago and traveled overseas. He joined a group of 36 others -- from throughout the United States and Canada -- to follow in the footsteps of a Spanish saint who died 450 years ago.

The 40-year-old Nguyen said he had no need to travel, but he wanted to learn more about Inigo Lopez de Loyola, a man short of stature who became a giant saint as recognized by the Roman Catholic Church.

He became Ignatius Loyola, the founder of the Jesuits, a religious order that originated in the 1500s as a group of 11 friends who called themselves the "Company of Jesus." Today, the Jesuits are the largest male religious order and its members are dispersed throughout the world.

The 37 pilgrims on the recent tour of Northern Spain were from diverse backgrounds and occupations. They included nine Jesuits, three nuns and laypeople both married and single. All had some connection to the Jesuits, a teaching and missionary order, or the spirituality of St. Ignatius.

As they toured Barcelona, the last stop on the trip, they looked like any other group of tourists.

They walked through the Gothic Quarter, where their hotel was located. They were bused to the major sites including the Olympic Village, the maze-like Pueblo Espanol and the Picasso Museum. They ended their second full day there visiting Park Guell and Sagrada Familia basilica, a work in progress started in the early 1900s by the renowned architect Gaudi. They had a festive lunch at the marina.

But this type of tour is different, noted its organizer, the Rev. Thomas Kane, a Paulist priest, and professor at the Weston Jesuit School of Theology.

"This is a pilgrimage experience," Kane said. "I don't call this religious tourism because that wouldn't have all the prayer and intentionality that this does."

Kane said this is the 12th pilgrimage he's conducted to sites where Ignatius prayed and started to develop the "Spiritual Exercises," a masterpiece used by spiritual directors who guide people along the path to God. A good number of the most recent tour group had either taken, or directed a retreat of the exercises.

"I started these in order to provide people with an alternative way of travel," he said. "I wanted to start an authentic pilgrimage. I decided to go back and study pilgrimages as an art -- made to Canterbury, Santiago de Compostela and Rome."

In the 16th century Ignatius referred to himself as a pilgrim and he made a dangerous voyage to Jerusalem. In Barcelona, he begged for provisions for his planned journey. His original plan to spend his life ministering in the Holy Land. But apparently God had other plans for him.

Two weeks ago, the 37 pilgrims started their tour at Loyola, in the Basque region of Spain. They stayed in a guest house on Ignatius' family's land -- now occupied by a basilica and Jesuit residence. A small river, the Urola, runs through the area near the town of Azpeitia, and the tour group visited and prayed at the church where he was baptized.

As a young man, Ignatius, who had dreams of chivalry, served in the palace of the high chancellor of Castile. He became used to the courtly life and developed vain dreams of gaining honor. One carnival night, he was accused of committing crimes.

But Ignatius' conversion began after he was seriously injured by a canon ball that shattered his leg. He was in a citadel in Pamplona defending Navarre against a French invasion. During a painful convalescence back at the family manor house in Loyola, Ignatius started reading the life of Christ and of the saints. As a result his vainglorious dreams of doing "great deeds" was channeled into doing them for the glory of God.

When the group arrived at Loyola on a Sunday, the square of the church that now encases the manor house where Ignatius recovered from his wounds was filled with the sounds of local families talking and laughing and children playing. Later, the melodious bells rang announcing an evening Mass, said in the Basque language, that was attended by the pilgrims.

"I expected a tour, but we also got a pilgrimage," said Bob Anderson, from Atlanta, who was on the trip with his wife, Janet. The Andersons have a son who is a Jesuit priest.

"This is a renewal for my faith," Anderson said.

Another tour highlight was an overnight stay at Montserrat, a Benedictine monastery on a mountain. It was here, in 1522, that Inigo continued his personal pilgrimage and conversion experience. The tour group stayed at an inn next to the monastery, named for Abbot Cisneros, who helped guide Ignatius on his spiritual journey.

One of the most intimate prayer experiences for the group was attending Mass in church built around a cave where Ignatius prayed, in Manresa. Still visible on the cave wall were two crosses carved into it by Ignatius.

Another tour group member was the Rev. John Padberg, a Jesuit historian who gave talks throughout the trip.

"Ignatius and his followers were inextricably involved in the world," Padberg said in a homily at a Mass at a Barcelona church. "We can't imagine the circumstances of the 16th century, just as he couldn't imagine our circumstances today ... What are the circumstances of the world in which we live? If we don't take them seriously, then we don't take Ignatian spirituality seriously."

The world is their cloister

The Catholics are coming with a counter-reformation

By Angela Shanahan

January 13, 2007

<http://www.theaustralian.news.com.au/story...0-28737,00.html>

WAR prompted by religious fanaticism, mass movements of refugees across Europe, clerical abuse and scandal, the old Christian world order crumbling and Islam at the gates. The 16th century was eerily similar to the present.

One of the world's most distinguished scholars of religion, Philip Jenkins, professor of history and religious studies at Pennsylvania State University in the US and the author of The Next Christendom (2002), puts it thus: "We are at a moment as epochal as the Reformation itself: a reformation moment not only for Catholics but the entire Christian world. Christianity as a whole is growing and mutating in ways that observers in the West tend not to see ... it is Christianity that will leave the deepest mark on the 21st century."

Part of Jenkins's thesis is that just as Christianity has faced a second reformation in the past 40 years, so we will see a new counter-reformation. But the Christianity of the future will look different, taking shape from the exploding demographics of the developing world. Consider this. There are more baptisms in The Philippines in any one year than in France, Italy, Spain and Poland combined.

While Catholics in Australia despair at a seemingly shrinking, greying church, in Papua New Guinea and the Pacific Islands the church is flourishing. It is more than surviving in Indonesia despite political and militant Islam. In India and Africa, the Christian powerhouses of the future, the church is at its most vibrant, is demographically youthful and, most surprising for many postmodern liberals, is unflinchingly orthodox.

The hallmark of vitality in the Catholic church has always been the steady flow of vocations to the religious life, and it has now become almost a cliché to talk about the decline in the numbers of religious vocations in the West. Yet there is no acute shortage of candidates in many poor church provinces; the difficulty is often training the candidates. So seminaries that previously had a majority of Australians are at least partly filling with candidates from PNG, South Korea, Vietnam and India. Australian candidates as nuns seem almost to have disappeared.

But while we are used to hearing the depressing mantra of decline in secular clergy, there has been a steady increase in the religious orders that put a high priority on the revival of orthodox spirituality, prayer, hands-on work, and when living closely with the laity, the tradition of communal living. Young Australians are looking for new radical ways to live a religious vocation within some traditional orders and, in one case, an entirely new one.

This has happened before. After the Reformation, it was the new religious orders, notably the Society of Jesus, or the Jesuits, that provided the intellectual powerhouse of Catholicism that became the Counter-Reformation, and in some places this order still takes up that same challenge. Although their numbers have dropped in Europe, in India alone today there are 4000 Jesuits. There has also been a rise from South Korea and Vietnam. The contemporary experiences in Australia of another Counter-Reformation group of spear carriers, the Capuchins, the reformed Franciscans who were founded in 1528, make interesting parallels with that earlier time.

The Capuchins, who like to work directly for the community, have 15 students in Melbourne, one from overseas and five of immigrant background, which reflects another trend in Australia: of vocations coming from devout immigrant families. Some will complete their studies in Sydney and some will go overseas, usually to the US. But unlike the trend in candidates for the secular priesthood, which mainly staffs parishes in Australia, the Capuchin Franciscans are young. Some years, all students are under 25.

The Capuchins' provincial leader, Julian Messina, acknowledges like the Jesuits that their international focus has had an effect on numbers. Messina's explanation for the attractiveness of the Capuchins for young Australians lies in one word he uses frequently: authenticity.

He describes the life of a Capuchin as "going back to the origins, to the gospel and living the gospel life". The rhythm of the day in a religious community and the centrality of prayer is part of that authentic life. "Our work is not to change society, not that there is anything wrong with that. But we do the work because it is essential for our life."

Another element he thinks the young find attractive is the communal life: "One of the things that has weakened the religious life is people living alone. Fraternity is very important for us. We do not live our lives alone in a presbytery."

At the same time, as a reformed group at their foundation, the Capuchins are constantly reforming themselves and they eschew complex monastic-type establishments to live in small groups, close to the lay people with whom they work.

The student friars work at least two days a week and their principal calling in the original Franciscan spirit is to minister to the most despised. During Francis's time that meant the plague-ridden and lepers. Now it is people living with HIV or AIDS, the old, the abandoned poor and the severely handicapped. The friars do not involve themselves much in secular or church charitable bureaucracy. Messina, groping for words in a rather unsuccessful attempt at diplomacy, remarks wryly that "it often wastes time. We just do." Sometimes their efforts don't seem to have much impact. But it is on the one-to-one human level that the impact is felt. The proof is the steady trickle of young men who present themselves as aspirants to the Capuchins when the secular priesthood, weighed down with the ordinary bureaucracy of parish life, plagued by scandal and held in contempt by some, is having trouble attracting candidates.

Another interpretation of the meaning of the authentic religious life can be found in the word radical. It is a word used frequently by Joseph Maria, the Sydney-based provincial of one of the world's newest and most radical group of nuns, the Missionaries of Charity, often known as Mother Teresa's sisters. In their distinctive blue-bordered saris, the nuns work extensively with Aboriginal people in country areas and the Northern Territory. In the cities they run soup kitchens, feed street kids, visit prostitutes and run women's shelters. In Queanbeyan, NSW, they run the catechetical instruction in state schools. Originally most of the nuns - such as Joseph Maria, an ex-teacher from country Victoria who has been in the order for 28 years - were trained in India. But the nuns have long gone international and most of them in the southern hemisphere, including the Australians, are trained in The Philippines. Their numbers are growing steadily: there are 4800 sisters in 787 mission houses across almost every continent. They are growing at the rate of 100 to 200 vocations yearly.

The sisters are famous for ministering to the poorest of the poor in a simple and direct fashion: giving a dying person a bed, feeding the hungry, rescuing abandoned children. They have been criticised by the likes of author Christopher Hitchens for not doing it "properly", for not making a difference on a big scale. The image often used is giving a man a fishing rod instead of the fish. But the missionaries of charity argue that the extreme poverty of many people in places such as Africa means that if a man doesn't have the fish, he might not have the strength to cast the rod. However, Joseph Maria comments bluntly that people who argue on those lines "just don't get it".

"The work is a spiritual conduit. Mother Teresa saw an encounter with a poor person as an encounter with Jesus. She took the words of Jesus on the cross, 'I thirst', as her charism (spiritual force, which simply means that we do the work as the need arises. We look for the immediate need, what is not done by others, particularly on the close human scale."

She explains that this is one reason why the nuns don't do much work with people living with AIDS in Australia, where there is a very good medical system, with first-class Catholic hospitals and hospices.

It is the search for a direct relationship with God, missing in the usual social welfare approach to the Christian life, that characterises the new revival in religious life and makes it attractive to the young, and this is fuelling a small but strong revival of the religious life in the secular First World. The Missionaries of God's Love, or MGL as it is known locally, is one of the few orders founded in Australia. Founded in 1986, it has 13 priests and 25 in training. The original priests are Australian, but some of the newer postulants are from overseas, notably PNG.

One thing that immediately stands out when you meet Chris Ryan, parish priest of Narrabundah and the recently appointed co-ordinator of the journey of the cross for World Youth Day, is his youth. He was ordained at 27 and is now 31. If you haven't seen a young diocesan priest for a long time, that can be quite a shock. The special ministry of the MGL is to youth, and somewhat like the Capuchins they live in partial community with a lay charismatic group called the Disciples of Jesus, which includes families. They have a reputation for packing the church with a charismatic style of worship, but they also have a strong emphasis on the more traditional devotions.

Ryan is acutely aware of the possibilities of World Youth Day in 2008, to be attended by Pope Benedict XVI, for re-evangelisation in Australia: "We will see a church that looks very different post-2008. It will be younger. World Youth Day is about re-embracing the faith, and with that faith transform your world. As pope John Paul II said: 'World Youth Day is a beautiful pretext for many other things.'" Those other things Ryan interprets as spiritual underpinning for the ordinary life: "to inspire young people to live the Christian life in a secular environment".

In a secular and rational world, a life that springs from a radical commitment to orthodox faith that includes vows of celibacy, obedience and poverty seems unnatural and somewhat wasted. The spiritual immediacy of such a response appeals to some of the young, the powerhouse of the church. An authentic counter-reformation revival, not a liberal version of reformed Christianity, will ensure the survival of the church.

Early scientists sought to discover god through science

<http://www.hindu.com/thehindu/holnus/008200701021859.htm>

Pune, Jan. 2 (PTI): Many early scientists sought to discover god through science and that is probably why a good proportion of Jesuits were avowed scientists, Jnana-Deepa Vidyapeeth president Job Kozhamthadam said today.

The number of such Jesuits may be few but they set up famous institutions and constituted five percent of all scientists in the 17th and 18th centuries, he said while making his keynote address at an international symposium here on "Jesuits and Modern Science".

Over 150 scholars and scientists are taking part in the five-day symposium, which will conclude on January 5.

The 17th and 18th centuries were a crucial period for the development of science and Jesuits played a very important role in the evolution of modern science, he said.

"Jesuits are members of a missionary order which sought to find god in everything and everything in god. They tried to find god in nature and in humans around. That was the motivating force for the development of science," Kozhamthadam said, stressing the need to appreciate the richness of the world.

"It is wrong to believe that the world is sinful. The world is the result of divine interaction. If anything is sinful, it is human evil," said Kozhamthadam, who is also founder of the Indian Institute of Science and Religion in Pune.

Mexican scholar Emilio Gonnzalez said, "We should find god in all sciences and all sciences in god."

Priyadarshi Jetly of Delhi University said Girolamo Saacheri (1667-1733), an Italian Jesuit, accidentally laid the foundation of non-Eucledian geometry. But for him, Einstein could not have discovered the theory of relativity, she said.

The Jesuits' Slaves

Georgetown and the peculiar institution

Kathryn Powers Brand

<http://www.georgetownvoice.com/2007-02-08/...-jesuits-slaves>

"Can a man serve God faithfully and possess slaves?" Brother Joseph Mobberly, S.J. asked in his diary in 1818. "Yes," he answered. "Is it then lawful to keep men in servitude? Yes."

The Jesuits of the Maryland province had always relied on plantations to support their ministries. The estates were extensive, totaling 12,000 acres on four large properties in Southern Prince Georges, Charles and St. Mary's counties, and two smaller estates on Maryland's Eastern Shore. In 1634, when the Jesuits arrived in Maryland, Lord Baltimore awarded them quasi-estates in which they were permitted to live off the rent of tenant farmers. However, as University Dean Hubert Cloke explains, "The system was totally antiquated and romantic, not related to reality, and they realized they were not going to make any money." So, the Jesuits turned to indentured servants, English men and women who worked the land for set terms in return for the passage from England to Maryland. But as working conditions improved in England, the supply of indentured servants dropped and the Jesuits once again found a new way to work the land. By the 1680s they relied upon a fully developed slave system.

Compared to other plantation owners in the area, when it came to slavery, "The Jesuits were no better or worse," according to Cloke. Many of the slaves had been gifts from wealthy Catholic families to sustain the Church. The abolition of slavery was not an issue in the area until the early nineteenth century, when Georgetown's Jesuits became deeply divided over the issue of slavery.

"But they were not conflicted in the way you would want," Cloke said. "They were conflicted over what to do about the threat of abolitionists."

In a generational divide, an older group of Jesuits, mostly European born, felt a patriarchal connection to their slaves and were unwilling to sell them. A younger, American-born group, a minority, felt that the money invested in plantations should be spent on institutions in cities like Philadelphia and New York with their rapidly growing Catholic populations. It seems neither faction had any particular moral quandaries with the six plantations and the nearly 300 slaves owned by Georgetown's and Maryland's Jesuits.

This rift is just one of the things American Studies students learned when history professors like Cloke and Emmett Curran introduced the Jesuit Plantation Project into the American Studies curriculum in the spring of 1996. The project involved students transcribing and digitizing hundreds of documents from the Jesuit's Maryland Province Index recording the Georgetown's Jesuits' complicated relationship with slavery.

With only two exceptions, all the higher-ranking Jesuits in the province during the time were foreign-born and of the older faction. Since only U.S. citizens had temporal jurisdiction, foreign Jesuits had no authority over the Mission's estates.

This meant that a younger group of American Jesuits, a minority, controlled the destiny of the estates, and this group wanted to end slave operations.

"They considered the plantations and slaves as a losing business enterprise and thought the Society should rid itself of both plantations and slaves," Curran said.

Abolitionists presented an economic rather than moral problem for these Jesuits. With a growing abolitionist presence in Maryland, some of them feared a devaluation of their property, their slaves. Maryland was a state in which slavery had a tenuous hold, the economy was no longer driven by slave labor. According to reports, the general debt of the mission was close to $32,000 by the 1830s, a large sum for the time.

"It was not a market for growing crops, but for growing slaves," said Cloke. The real money was to be made not from the work a slave could do in Maryland, but from the hugely profitable business of selling the slaves downriver.

In 1815, Brother Joseph Mobberly, S.J. wrote a letter to John Grassi, S.J., the president of Georgetown College, listing three major reasons to sell the slaves. He wrote, "It is better to sell for a time or get your people free ... Because we have their souls to answer for." He then went on to explain that the slaves had become more difficult to govern, and he believed this to be the result of a growing abolitionist movement. Finally, in an extensive table of expenses, he concluded that the slaves should be sold because, "We shall make more and more to your satisfaction."

Brother Mobberly, who served as an overseer on one of the estates, kept an extensive diary giving a bird's eye view of the tension the Jesuits felt surrounding the issue of slavery. His diary explores the tension between Catholics, an already persecuted group, and the Presbyterians, Baptists, Quakers and Methodists who were outspokenly opposed to slavery. Mobberly, like other Jesuits, came to feel threatened and saw the issue as a Catholic-Protestant conflict. Involving everything from the Bible to Thomas Jefferson, Mobberly's diary defended slavery. He explained that Abraham owned slaves, and wrote, "Abraham had God for his particular friend; and we do not read that God ever reproached him for keeping men in servitude. Therefore, it was lawful for him to possess them."

At the same time, all Jesuits recognized certain basic rights for the slaves. A report from the time demanded adequate fixed rations, half of Saturday to themselves, and the promotion of morality and the administration of the sacraments. However, the report also states that for other slaves, "chastisement should not be inflicted in the house, where the priests live." In other words, it was acceptable for priests to whip the slaves, just not in the priests' quarters. Similarly, the document stated that pregnant women should not be whipped.

"[The Jesuits] did see themselves as different than non-Catholic slaveholders in that they tried to provide for the spiritual welfare of their slaves by allowing them access to the sacraments, such as Eucharist and marriage," said Sharon Leon, a student who worked on the Jesuit Plantation Project. "Of course, his concern for the slaves was primarily based on his concern for his own spiritual welfare."

On one hand, Leon said, the Jesuits regarded the slaves as capital, money that would better be invested elsewhere. On the other, there are moments when the Jesuits recognized the slaves' humanity. In these cases, the issue of emancipation was still not addressed. A letter from Father Francis Neale of St. Thomas Manor addressed a major problem involving "his best Negro hand." This slave was married to a woman on another plantation, where they had three children. When the wife's master decided to sell the wife and children; Neale was in a quandary as he could not afford to buy them. "I shall be obliged to sell our Man and not to separate Man and Wife," he concluded. He never set the man free.

"The contradictions," says Cloke, "they stop us in our tracks. We operate under the assumptions that we are smarter, that we'd get it right."

But Cloke doubts this. Slavery as a system was enmeshed in all of the U.S. A recent report on slavery's legacy by Brown University points out that before 1800, of the 10 million people to cross the Atlantic, 8.5 million of them were enslaved Africans. "Most Americans today think of slavery as a Southern institution," it states, "but slavery existed in all 13 colonies and, for a time, in all 13 original states." This peculiar institution was deeply rooted in not just southern, but all of American culture. In Maryland and Virginia, even some free blacks owned slaves.

Early Georgetown students did not have a problem with the Jesuits' connection to slavery. At the time, many students brought their slaves with them to school, and the college was predominantly populated by southerners.

"There is no way around it. The students voted with their feet in the war," Cloke said. Over 90 percent of students went on to fight for the Confederacy in the Civil War.

"Georgetown has never not been a Southern school," Cloke stated, before pointing to the fact that Georgetown hailed itself as a multicultural, international school from its inception. However, Cloke continued, "Georgetown at the time was international because the international students were children of slave traders from the West Indies."

Jesuits in the Americas have always had an ambivalent relationship with slavery. Jesuits owned slaves in South America; the Catholic Church didn't outlaw slavery from its missions until 1843. However, the Jesuits of Brazil were expelled from the country by the Spanish and Portuguese empires because their priests were protecting Native Indians from slave-hunters' raids and undermining slavery. Maryland's Jesuits, Cloke said, were "a new organization. They had been suppressed and were less revolutionary than their forbearers."

At a basic level, the Jesuits did not want to create tension in an atmosphere where they were already outsiders.

"Catholics were persecuted, but at least by holding slaves they were like everyone else," Randall Bass, who worked with students on the Jesuit Plantation Project, explained. "They were working to maintain acceptance where it was hard."

Fidele de Grivel, a European Jesuit living in Maryland in the 1830s, explained, "The Protestants have, up to now, appreciated us only because of our large estates; if we sell them, they will consider us no better than the Methodist preachers who crisscross the country to accumulate money." However, money was an issue that none of the Jesuits could ignore.

Leon also points to the related issue of acculturation as practice with which the Jesuits attempted to blend the priests into the life and culture of their local community.

"It usually had good results," Leon said. "In this case, the unquestioning adoption of the culture and traditions of southern Maryland's farming communities allowed the Jesuits to pursue slaveholding as a matter of economic necessity, rather than to interrogate the practice and reject it as one that was morally bankrupt and truly unjust.”

In the end, economics won out. Although by the mid 1830s, the plantations were beginning to turn higher profits, this did not placate the younger Jesuits, because the estates were still not seen as sufficient to support the mission. These new Jesuits had no moral quandaries selling their slaves downriver; they felt their investments should be moved to urban centers such as New York or Philadelphia. So, in 1838, at a time when the plantations were at their most profitable, the Jesuits decided to sell their slaves to Louisiana's ex-governor, Henry Johnson, whose son was a Georgetown student.

Before the sale, the mission drafted “Conditions for Sale,” a set of guidelines to protect their former slaves. They determined that the slaves could only be sold to a plantation, rather than families, “so that the purchasers may not separate them indiscriminately and sell them.” In what reads like a bill of rights, the slaves were promised to be kept with their families, and those with family on other plantations were to be sold to those plantations. Those who were too old or sick to be sold were to be provided for “as justice and charity demands.” Finally, the slaves were guaranteed the right to practice religion. The document also made a demand of the Maryland Jesuits, likely an addition from the new school of Jesuits. The sale's profit was not to pay off debts or purchases, but “must be invested as Capital which fructifies,” specifically educational centers in New York and Philadelphia.

After the sale, some Jesuits persisted in their interest in the slaves' well being. Father van de Velde wrote a letter to another Jesuit after a visit to Louisiana and expressed his frustrations. He believed that the slaves had been sold under the condition that they would be able to continue their Christian practices and have “free exercise of the Catholic religion and opportunity of practicing it.” Upon witnessing a lack of Catholic Churches in the area, he went so far as to suggest that the Province of Maryland contribute $1,000 to construct a church near one of the plantations. In another letter, he wrote, “Justice as well as charity require that their former masters should step in and aid other well disposed persons to procure them a means of salvation.”

Curran believes that some of the older Jesuits listed their slaves on the inventory, but warned them of the sale so that they could hide in the woods when the officials came to transport them. Curran explained, “The 1840 census shows a surprisingly large number of younger slaves still on certain plantations, which supports the tradition that some slaves hid themselves then returned to the plantations once the provincial had left.”

With the sale, the Jesuits of Maryland made $115,000 and ended their history as a large slaveholding institution. The money from the sale was, as stipulated, invested in Xavier High School in New York and St. Joseph's in Philadelphia. Some of the funds also went to finance Fordham University, completed in 1842, one year before the Catholic Church banned slavery. “Much of the funding for these schools came from the ignoble sales,” Cloke said. The schools became a perfect prediction of apostolic interests when they were needed to educate the waves of Irish immigrants to the U.S., where Catholics, due to their religion, would otherwise have few good education options.

“It’s interesting,” Cloke continued, “The young Jesuits, the modernizers were right on in terms of this trend, yet they were the most retro in what they were willing to do to get there in terms of slavery.”

While slavery seems like a distant memory for students at Georgetown today, it would be loathe to forget how this shameful chapter in Georgetown’s history shaped this and other Jesuit universities.

The Talmud Law is known as the Uniform Commerical Code

The Jews bought their law into England since 1066. Ever since the Talmud has been forced by Pope's, King's and Christian Churches. The Talmud is the basis of Tavistock mind control that rules the world. This mind control includes acknowledging corporations as higher entities when they are primarily debt collectors for British created Civil wars and in charge of our natural resources. Pastor Steve - February 20, 2007 10:20 PM (GMT)

It is well documented that the current Royalty is not Anglo Saxon at all but Jewish.

Among their many branches there is too much

JEWISH BLOOD The Prince of Wales (Charles) descends from the Colonna family who were Jewish in origin. He has also a descent from the Khazars (see below) who adopted Judaism as their religion. The Queen, her husband and her children have another Jewish descent from an historical figure named Makhir. Makhir was a Jewish Prince of the Davidic Royal House sent by Caliph Harun-al-Rashid as ambassador to the Emperor Charlemagne at the end of the 9th century. Makhir remained in Europe where he founded a family, one of whose descendants marries into the medieval English Royal Family.

KHAZAR BLOOD The Khazars formed a powerful state between the Byzantine Empire and the Islamic world. The Queen is descended from Menu Morat, Elteber of te Bihar Khazars.

MONGOL BLOOD The Prince of Wales (Charles) certainly has Mongol blood and is a direct descendant of Genghis Khan. This relationship provides the Royal Family with another link to China, for Genghis Khan's grandson Kublai Khan became Emperor of China and founder of its Yuan Dynasty.

PERSIAN BLOOD Through his mother, Prince William of Wales descends from Arsakes Vologaeses V Dikaios Epiphanes Philhellen, sacral King of Parthia, of the Parthian Royal House of Arsaces who ruled Persia (Iran), Mesopotamia and Babylon. The Parthian kings in turn claimed descent from the earlier Achaemenid Dynasty. If true, that relationship would make Prince William a descendant of Cyrus the Great and establish a blood link with classical Greece.

CHINESE BLOOD During the visit of Queen Elizabeth II to China in 1986, articles published in the Chinese media traced Her Majesty's lineage to the Tang Dynasty who Emperors provided the Chinese Empire with a period of great peace, prosperity and artistic achievement.

ARAB BLOOD Queen Elizabeth II descends from the Muslims who created the Arab Andalusian civilization of Spain. Since some of those people sprang from the family of the Prophet, The Queen herself is a descendent either directly or collaterally of Mohammed. When Her Majesty visited Morocco in 1980, the Moroccan media pointed out this Islamic ancestry of Canada's Queen.

This mixture is by definition JEWISH or KHAZAR Basically. So it is incorrect to call these "Anglo Saxon" and would only be correct to call them Jewish. We Anglo Saxons have COUNTERFEIT REPRESENTATIVES. If more people knew about their dominant Jewishness they'd find they must be replaced with the true!

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 20, 2007 10:37 PM (GMT)

It is well documented that the current Royalty is not Anglo Saxon at all but Jewish.

Read please whats being said. Also note Greg Hallet highlights the Royal Family has Rothschild roots. We also know the Queen is controlled by the Superior General of the Company of Jesus. Shes just the power within the U.K working for Rome via the Old City we term "THE CITY" fully controlled by the Sovereign Military of Malta through one of its highest hierachy levels known as the Pilgrim Society of which the Queen is the head as well as the Garter who are another high level of the SMOM! The part of the Queen's blood people need to worry about is the Venetian GUELPH!

All roads lead to ROME!

Watch as ROME finalises all its hard work and the completion of the New Atlantis arrives more in your face overly. I just hope the people say THEY OLD US SO and we didn't believe them and fell for the Jew crap.

I also have that one document...Judah and Tamar had twins. King David and Jesus are descended from the one--and the royals supposedly from the other. I've been piecing things together but I don't know exactly how reliable the information is...according to Wikipedia Judah was known as Jupiter or something (and that's not the most trustworthy source).

So being descendants of the house of Judah would make them Jewish, wouldn't it?

(That'd make me a Jew too.)

QUOTE

You see we are cows, the IRS is company who milks the cows and the United States Inc. is the veterinarian who takes care of the herd and Great Britain is the Owner of the farm in fee simple. The farm is held in allodium by the Pope.

Now to Rome. "Convinced that the principles of religion contribute most powerfully to keep nations in the state of passive obedience which they owe to their princes, the high contracting parties declare it to be their intention to sustain in their respective states, those measures which the clergy may adopt with the aim of ameliorating their interests, so intimately connected with the preservation of the authority of the princes; and the contracting powers join in offering their thanks to the Pope for what he has already done for them, and solicit his constant cooperation in their views of submitting the nations." Article (3) Treaty of Varona (1822)

If the Sovereign Pontiff should nevertheless, insist on his law being observed he must be obeyed. Bened. XIV., De Syn. Dioec, lib, ix., c. vii., n. 4. Prati, 1844. Pontifical laws moreover become obligatory without being accepted or confirmed by secular rulers. Syllabus, prop. 28, 29, 44. Hence the jus nationale,(Federal Law) or the exceptional ecclesiastical laws prevalent in the United States, may be abolished at any time by the Sovereign Pontiff. Elements of Ecclesiastical Law. Vol. I 53-54. So could this be shown that the Pope rules the world? The Pope is the ultimate owner of everything in the World. See Treaty of 1213, Papal Bull of 1455 and 1492.

I could go on and on, this is just the tip of the iceberg. Don't let this information scare you because without it you cannot be free, You have to understand that all slavery and freedom originates in the mind. When your mind allows you to accept and understand that the United States, Great Britain and the Vatican are corporations which are nothing but fictional entities which have been placed into your mind, you will understand that your slavery was because you believed a lie.

BEHIND THE AMERICAN CONDEMNATION
by Barry Chamish

The viciousness of the American condemnation of Israel's killing of six Hamas leaders in Nablus has caught more than a few people off guard, Delivered, as usual, by a soldout Jew figurehead named Ari Fleischer, screeching like a wronged fish maiden, that "a ceasefire is a ceasefire is a ceasefire," the Bush administration questioned Israel's right to defend itself. Of course, the only question the White House should have asked Israel is, "What took you so long?"

Since the Israeli action was clearly a military triumph, why would the Bush gang have been so quick on the trigger to shoot down the first clear signal from the Sharon administration that it had had enough with Hamas murders? Could it be that the hooligans at the White House are not interested in Israel's survival.

It is not every day that one receives a phone call and long fax from a retired member of the American Joint Chiefs Of Staff. This week retired Col. A.B. Cuppett, a former member of the US Army Joint Staff, recipient of The Secretary Of Defense Civilian Service Medal, Joint Meritorious Unit Award and The Bronze Star, did so contact me and relayed information of such terrifying import, that many of my readers will dismiss it out of psychological self-defence. That would not be a wise idea. I quote from sections of the fax sent to me:

Col. Cuppett relates that the American administration is fully cognizant of the "1939 vs.1999 Third Reich similarities," which are being perpetrated against Israel by, "the United Nations and The New World Order." The plan includes, "the necessary foreign troops/policemen to execute the planned implementation of another 1939-45 holocaust.

The same spirit which annihilated six million-plus Jews sixty years ago is still extant, active and poised in the United States today."

On June 28, 2001, Col. Cuppett was advised of, "a serious report of plans to allow UN police units to patrol US international airports in the event of an Arab-Israeli war in the Middle East." These troops will also be placed at nine European airports and will be used to derail an Israeli "call-up of reservists for military duty." Further, the UN will prevent ships carrying reservists from sailing for Israel.

"The UN shall soon declare Zionism to be racism...affirm that settlements are a crime against humanity and equate the Jewish people with the likes of Hitler and Stalin... When the war breaks out, Moslems will riot in the US, and Jews, trying to go to Israel, for any reason, including bringing funds to aid the besieged state, will be arrested at the airports.

"All the above information was relayed to me by a Field Grade US military officer, a US Army LTC and a USAF Major."

If any reader doubts that a new Holocaust is being planned, take a look at how Europe is being primed for the kind of anti-semitism not seen in six decades. In the eyes of the European media, Israel can do nothing right and any act of self-defence is an act of barbarism. Six decades ago, the savage peasants of Croatia, Lithuania, Poland etc. were the tools of the Nazi mass murder of Jews. This time, the equally ignorant Arab masses are being roused to take care of the sadism.

So who is behind the provocations against Israel? Once again, look across the street from the Vatican at the headquarters of Society of Jesus, better known as the Jesuits, for the answer. The following reports were sent by a few correspondents but especially an insightful woman from Toronto who wants no recognition. Her only reward is the safety of Israel.

She writes:

"You may be interested to know that both George Tenet and George Mitchell are Georgetown graduates!" The two men most responsible for Israel's murderous predicament are both graduates of Washington's Jesuit control center at Georgetown University. But then, look who at who are honorary graduates of the same campus, King Juan Carlos of Spain and his Prince, Felipe.

<http://www.nato.int/docu/speech/1996/s960220a.htm>

"In the opening paragraph of this address Javier Solana addresses the students re: his country's distinguished connection to Georgetown, stating Prince Felipe graduated from Georgetown and King Juan Carlos received an honorary doctorate from Georgetown as well."

And what ties Juan Carlos has to President Bush!

"I couldn't find the picture I originally came across of President George Bush Sr. and King Juan Carlos on the palace steps Nov. 14, 2000. I however, found this short article from the Washington Post which verifies the same. "I just found the timing of this particular meeting most interesting, since it was only seven days following the American elections and prior to George W. being finally announced president after the ballot fiasco. Interesting also that he had Norman Schwarzkopf with him. It was the timing which caught my attention. I was wondering if perhaps this was a planning meeting to bring to completion (re: NWO) under George W. which wasn't finished under his administration.

<http://washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/articles/...-2000Nov13.html>

" Never mind all those celebs who threatened to leave the United States if George W. Bush were elected. Bush's ex-president dad, George H.W. Bush, has actually left. The elder Bush spent the weekend in Spain hunting for red-leg partridge with King Juan Carlos, retired general Norman Schwarzkopf and ex-Indiana University basketball coach Bobby Knight, and plans to meet today with His Majesty and Spanish Prime Minister Jose Maria Aznar.

Quote:

"We're not supposed to discuss that."

Now look at this item from the Jerusalem Post, to get an understanding of how the Italian Jesuit, Juan Carlos is running Israel's leadership on behalf of the Supreme Jesuit General, the "Black Pope" of the Vatican.

"Arafat fails to get backing to declare state

"At a press conference in Madrid yesterday after meeting Javier Solana, the European Union's foreign policy chief, Ben-Ami, a former ambassador to Spain, said he would like Spanish King Juan Carlos to play a mediating role with Arab countries in peace talks focusing on the future of Jerusalem.

'I have asked Pique to see if it is possible for King Juan Carlos to use his good relationships with some Arab countries to make the parties move closer about Jerusalem,' Ben-Ami said."

Now let's see how the Italian leadership is manipulating the most powerful Arab leader to get those EU/NATO/UN troops into Israel:

Egypt-Italy talks on peace observers on Palestinian areas Egypt-Italy, Politics, 7/28/2001 "Italy has started pan-European and International contracts in light of talks between president Hosni Mubarak and Italian premier Silvio Berlusconi to deploy international observers to the Palestinian territories.

"In his talks with his Italian counter part Renato Ruggiero, foreign minister Ahmed Maher discussed the efforts to dispatch international observers to the areas of clashes.

"Ruggiero said Italy has wide experience in peace keeping and observer operations as it participates in peace efforts in areas of clashes in the world under UN or NATO banners.

"Analysts say Mubarak-Berlusconi talks were significant with the new Italian leadership."

Now guess who is currently meeting the pope to coordinate the slaughter of Jews?

"Palestinian leader Arafat to meet Pope

"Palestinian President Yasser Arafat is set to visit Rome on Wednesday and Thursday and will meet with Pope John Paul II.

"The Palestinian leader is also expected to meet Italian President Carlo Azeglio Ciampi, Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi and Foreign Minister Renato Ruggiero to discuss the situation in the Middle East, sources in Rome said.

"President Arafat is currently visiting Morocco, Tunisia and other Arab states to discuss support for international observers to help bolster a now-broken ceasefire between Israeli and Palestinian forces.

"President Arafat is due to arrive in the Italian capital on Wednesday evening and will meet the Pope on Thursday morning."

Not that the plots against Israel aren't inter-denominational. The New World Order's declared intention of forming a one world religion, with its capital sitting on Jerusalem's Temple Mount, insures inter-religious harmony, if you don't happen to be a rabbi.

"Now how is it Arafat is going to Rome to meet the Pope just a couple of days after meeting with the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Cardinal of Ireland? CN

<http://www.jpost.com/Editions/2001/07/31/N...News.31549.html>

"Speaking at the press conference following meetings with both Prime Minister Ariel Sharon and PA Chairman Yasser Arafat, Carey went out of his way to praise both."

And what is the first object of these meeting?

Fhttp://www.arabicnews.com/ansub/Daily/Day/010727/2001072715.html

"EU report: the settlers are ready to evacuate the settlements Israel-Palestine, Politics, 7/27/2001 A secret report by the European Union"

And it is not only Israel's government which is cooperating in the plots against the Jewish State. Take a gander at Binyamin Netanyahu's secret meeting with Assad at the behest of the Spanish prime minister.

Actualite Juive (Paris) 26th of July by Jean-Jacques Biton "Monaco - Benyamin Netanyahu met Syrian president Bashar El Assad at the initiative of Spanish prime minister, Jose Maria Aznar, who organized the meeting by phone. A private meeting between Netanyahu and Assad took place at l'Hotel Hermitage on Sunday 27th of June.

Sources say the secret meeting concerned an Israeli withdrawal from the Golan Heights."

My, my, my, aren't the Spaniards planning another Inquisition, and just like earlier this century, aren't their Jesuit bosses using the corrupted Jewish leadership to lead their people into annihilation?

The Vatican and the Sacred Order of St John

by Leo Zagami, Feb 19, 2007

<http://www.illuminati-news.com/2007/0223a.htm>

Founded in the 11th Century the Order of St. John is also known as The Sovereign Military Hospitaller Order of St. John of Jerusalem of Rhodes and of Malta. The upper grades are fastidiously aristocratic and must be able to display a family coat-of-arms dating back at least 300 years in unbroken succession from father to son. The Sovereign Grand Master of the order is recognized as a head of state, and his authority is ensured by his secular ranking as a Prince, and his ecclesiastical ranking as a Cardinal. Under international law this organization has independent Sovereign status, which assures nationalistic loyalty from its members, above and beyond allegiance to their own country--they also have Permanent Observer status at the United Nations. The current Grand Master, Andrew Willoughby Bertie, is descended from Mary Stuart (Mary Queen of Scots) which places him firmly in the Sion/Grail historical scenario. !! The leader of the order is commonly known as the "Black Pope" something they also say about the leader of the Jesuit Order .That's because the Jesuits are the Spiritual Masters of the Knights of Malta.

The order and its members have been proven to be linked with the "Rat Run?", the post-WWII escape route used by high-ranking Nazis and death camp scientists from defeated Germany to the Americas. Sovereign Knight of Malta passports were issued with false identities that allowed escape from prosecution for war crimes. Perversely, after the war the order's highest decoration, the 'Grand Cross of Merit', was awarded to Nazi General Reinhard Gehlen, Hitler's Eastern Front intelligence chief, who was highly complicit in the atrocities carried out by the Nazis in Russia and Eastern Europe. There are approximately 11,000 Knights and Dames of Malta around the world. They belong to one of 54 national associations or priories. The Federal Association is one of the three associations in the United States. Its office is in Washington, DC, and it has members all over the country. The "Knights of Malta" are represented by a white Maltese Cross on a red background.

The order is the sanctuary of the Knights Templar, housing them inside their City State within Vatican City.

One of the gifts to the American way of life from them was the Klu Klux Klan

The motto of the Order since 1099 is Tuitio Fidei et Obsequium Pauperum - to defend the faith and to serve the poor.

The Order's military function became one of the most advanced fighting and naval forces in the world. Their battles defending the island of Rhodes and later the island of Malta are legendary. Knights would also nurse the sick in the evening. The rule was that they would serve the patients first - "white bread on silver plate" - before they would eat. In the modern world the military aspects of the Knights have been downplayed, with their "public face" showing their work as tending to the sick and poor. But make no mistake, they are still well in control of the military might needed to uphold their creed. The Knights of Malta have been the source of many of the secret societies that have come into being in the last 1000 years, most notably are the Scottish Rite Masonic Order, The Ku Klux Klan and many others who end up serving the Vatican Satan. These Knights and later their Jesuit brothers who came into existence 500 years ago are the secret instigators of almost every major conflict of the so-called western civilization to this day.

The following is from the official website of the order:

The Order constructed great fortresses at vulnerable points in the Kingdom of Jerusalem and launched its own military campaigns in the defense of Christendom. The Order became the first Western standing army and the first organization of chivalry, known as the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem. It expanded its network of hospices for service to and defense of pilgrims along important routes of travel.

In 1291 the great fortress city Acre fell to Muslim forces, and after some 200 years in the Holy Land the Order was forced to leave. Its convent, or headquarters, was transferred to the island of Cyprus where it held property. In 1310, the Order acquired sovereign possession of the Island of Rhodes. The Order in Rhodes again came under unrelenting attack from Muslim forces and successfully repulsed attacks in 1440, 1444, 1469, and 1480. In 1522, Sultan Suleiman the Magnificent moved on Rhodes with 250 ships and 200,000 men and, after an epic defense of six months' duration by the Order's 600 Knights and 1,500 soldiers, the Grand Master capitulated on 24 December 1522, and was allowed to depart, with the surviving Knights, on 1 January 1523.

Without lands, but universally recognized as sovereign, the Order was in exile until 1530, when it was given Malta by the Holy Roman Emperor. Malta, like Rhodes, became the stage of a great chapter in the history of the Order. This was the second naval phase of the Knights, now also called the Knights of Malta. Malta occupied a strategic position between the Christian and Muslim worlds and the Order was the only obstacle to the continuing advance of Islam through the Mediterranean towards the heart of Christendom. Violent Ottoman assaults between 1551 and 1644 were all successfully resisted. The most notable of these was the Great Siege of 1565 in which the attacking Ottoman force of 373 vessels and 40,000 men failed to subdue the island defended by some 540 Knights and sergeants, 400 Spanish troops and 4,000 Maltese capable of bearing arms.

Defense of the Faith did not outshine service to the poor. The hospital of the Order in Jerusalem had about 2,000 beds, and there had also been a large hospital on Rhodes. The hospital of Malta, founded in 1532, continued the hospitaller tradition with accommodations for 564 patients who were served by the Knights themselves. The rule was the same as it had been for five centuries. The patients were served by the Knights before anyone else. They received the best meals - "white bread on silver plate". The Hospital, and its associated Schools of Anatomy, Surgery and Pharmacy, achieved world-wide renown.

Valletta, the new capital, became a treasure house of art with its splendid baroque buildings: churches like the magnificent Conventual Church of St. John the Baptist, completed in 1577, and official buildings like the Palace of the Grand Masters and the Inns of the Knights. In 1761 the Public Library was opened in Valletta, in 1768 the University, and in 1786 the School of Mathematics and Nautical Sciences — all the work of the Order. In 1798 Napoleon, ignoring the Order's internationally guaranteed neutrality vis-à-vis the Christian powers, had his fleet attack Malta on 12 June 1798.

The Knights capitulated and their island-state fell to the French. Napoleon seized the treasures of the Order and forced its members to abandon the island.

Having lost most of its property during the Napoleonic conquest, in 1834 the Order established its headquarters in Rome, where it has remained ever since, and the present phase in the colorful history of the Order began. Its military role reduced, service to the poor and the sick became its foremost occupation and in the second half of the nineteenth century the national associations began to emerge and the Order assumed its present structure.

The Order is still recognized under international law as a "sovereign entity"; and exchanges ambassadors and diplomatic representatives with over 90 countries. On August 24, 1994, the Order was admitted to the United Nations by being granted "Permanent Observer" status. This status, similar to the status granted to the international Red Cross and other relief organization, allows the Order to participate in the discussions of the General Assembly of the United Nations.

The number of Knights today is greater than in the days of its grandeur in the eighteenth century. The eight-pointed white Maltese Cross stands out everywhere as a symbol for charity towards mankind and as a comfort and consolation to the sick and the poor. The Order stands ready to meet the great challenges of the modern age in the same spirit of selflessness and devotion that inspired its founder more than 900 years ago. -----

The direct connections between Skull and Bones and Knights of Malta

The Knights of Malta are one of the oldest branches of the Order of the Quest in existence.

The Knights of Malta is held up by a backbone consisting of nobility. The Black Nobility is mostly the rich and powerful of Europe. The head of the Black Nobility is the family that can claim direct descendancy from the last Roman emperor.

The Knights of Malta all have diplomatic immunity. They can ship goods across borders without paying duty or undergoing customs checks.

The first U.S. Ambassador to the Vatican was William Wilson, a Knight of Malta.

Frank Shakespeare replaced William Wilson. Frank Shakespeare was a Knight of Malta, William Casey was the Director of the CIA, a member of the CFR, a Knight of Malta. He was head of the Securities and Exchange Commission. During the Nixon administration he was head of the Export-Import Bank.

In the 1930's General Smedley Butler was recruited to help take over the White House. He was told that he was needed because of his general popularity with the military. General Butler blew the whistle and named several prominent Americans as part of the plot. At the top of the list was John J. Raskob, who was a founding member of the U.S. branch of the Knights of Malta. He was board chairman of General Motors. He was, at he time, the U.S. Treasurer of the Knights of Malta. Congressional hearings were held to investigate the plot, but none of those named, including Raskob, was ever called to testify and nothing ever came of the hearings.

George Schultz is a member of the CFR, the Bohemian Club and the Bechtel Corporation, all of which have close ties to the Order and the Knights of Malta.

Knight of Malta Myron Taylor was President Roosevelt's envoy. Knight of Malta John McCone? the Director of the CIA during the early '60s, was President Kennedy's envoy. Knight of Malta Thomas Melledy was President G.H.W. Bush's U.S. Ambassador to the Vatican.

Clare Booth Luce was a dame of the Knights of Malta J. Peter Grace of W.R. Grace Company is head of the Knights of Malta in the United States.

In the early 1940s, the I.G. Farben Chemical Company employed a Polish salesman who sold cyanide to the Nazis for use in Auschwitz. The same salesman also worked as a chemist in the manufacture of the poison gas. This same cyanide gas along with Zyklon B and malathion was used to exterminate millions of Jews and other groups. Their bodies were then burned to ashes in the ovens. After the war the salesman, fearing for his life, joined the Catholic Church and was ordained a priest in 1946. One of his closest friends was Dr. Wolf Szmunn, the mastermind behind the November/78 to October/79 and March/80 to October/81 experimental hepatitis B vaccine trials conducted by the Center for Disease Control in New York, San Francisco and four other American cities that loosed the plague of AIDS upon the American people. The salesman was ordained Poland's youngest bishop in 1958. After a 30-day reign his predecessor was assassinated and our ex-cyanide gas salesman assumed the papacy as Pope John Paul II.

The most powerful secret organization in the world is the Bilderberg Group, organized in 1952 and named after the hotel where its first meeting took place in 1954. The man who organized the Bilderberg Group, Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands, has the power to veto the Vatican's choice of any Pope it selects. Prince Bernhard has this veto power because his family, the Hapsburgs, are descended from the Roman emperors. Prince Bernhard is the leader of the Black Families. He claims descent from the House of David and thus can truly say that he is related to Jesus. Prince Bernhard, with the help of the CIA, brought the hidden ruling body of the Illuminati into public knowledge as the Bilderberg Group. This is the official alliance that makes up the world governing body secretly dominated by their Jesuit Spiritual Masters. The core of the organization is three committees made up of thirteen members each. Thus the heart of the Bilderberg Group consists of 39 total members of the Illuminati. The three committees are made up exclusively of members of all the different secret groups that make up the Illuminati, the Freemasons, and the Vatican Black Nobility. This committee works year round in offices in Switzerland. It determines who is invited to the annual meeting and what policies and plans will be discussed. Every proposal or plan that has ever been discussed at an annual meeting of the Bilderberg Group has come to pass usually within one or two years following the meeting. The Bilderberg Group are the men who really rule the world.

Adam Smith's Wealth of Nations, which provided the ideological foundation for capitalism and for the Industrial Revolution, was published in 1776, in that same year, 1776, Adam Weishaupt, a professor of Canon law at Ingolstadt University in Germany, founded the Illuminati Order, a conspiratorial organization which embodied all of the goals, aims, and methods of what we now call Communism. the goal of the Order was to "unite, by way of one common higher interest and by a lasting bond, men from all parts of the globe, from all social classes and from all religions, despite the diversity of their opinions and passions, to make them love this common interest and bond to the point where, together or alone, they act as one individual."

One of the lodges in Germany affiliated with the Lodge of Lyons was the Lodge Theodore of Munich. It was in this lodge -- to which Weishaupt belonged -- that the Illuminati Order was organized by him as a secret organization within a secret organization. It took a number of years before the existence of this secret society within a secret society came to light. Its revolutionary doctrines were so zealously propagated that it couldn't be completely hidden for very long. In 1783, a Bavarian Court of Enquiry began its investigation of the Illuminati Order. Much of what we know today about Weishaupt's secret conspiracy is a result of this investigation. Weishaupt's entire program and methodology was virtually identical with what was later to become known as Communism.

The Order went underground and emerged as a network of Reading Societies throughout Germany and in the USA (Skull and Bones). The goal of this literary network was to monopolize the writing, publication, reviewing and distribution of all literature, more effectively to control the minds of the readers.

The members of Skull and Bones today manage almost all major communication in the World, including CBS, NBC, ABC, ClearChannel?, Time/Warner etc.

ADM Feeding Program - Since 1990, the Federal Association has sent millions of pounds of food- all donated by Skull and Bones controlled Archer Daniels Midland- to the poor in Central America. The recipients are the Missionaries of Charity, and the official consignees and handlers of the food in country are local members of the Order of Malta. The six countries which receive these shipments are Cuba, El Salvador, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, and Nicaragua. The Federal Association makes 10-12 shipments (40' containers @ 80,000 pounds each) every year.

Don't think that there is nothing but evil being done by this most powerful congregation of the Worlds wealthy, they do conduct programs of care and feeding to the poor, medical aid to the sick and education to the ignorant. But you should understand that the good and righteous people "in the trenches" at your local KOM run Hospital, School, Clinic or Charity have no idea that the work they are doing covers a much larger plan. Like beautiful beads of dew on a spiders web the charitable actions cover the true purpose behind these activities.

Running the schools of a Nation allow them to educate the population according to their wishes. Running the Hospitals allows them to cross every social boundary and know the most intimate details about persons from birth to death.

Like the Priest that receives confession and then uses that secret knowledge against the confessor there are very dark basic principles behind the supposed altruistic activities of the Catholic Church and their Knights of Malta.

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 24, 2007 03:21 PM (GMT)

Remember folks that Bilderberg is NOT the most powerful secret organization in the world. You cannot say this then in the next breath say "This is the official alliance that makes up the world governing body secretly dominated by their Jesuit Spiritual Masters." This simply doesn't make any sense. What Leo Zagami failed to tell you is that the main person behind Bilderberg was the well respect Jesuit Priest being Joseph Rettinger who bought Bernard into the idea of Bilderberg to help with it's creation. Bilderberg is controlled from Rome's mission control #1 being "The City" within London, England. Bilderberg is ordered by the Round Table Group just the same as the CFR, TRL, RIIA, COR. This Round Table Group is the front for the Committee of 300 controlled by the Order of the Garter controlled by the Pilgrim Society ruled supremely by the Sovereign Military of Malta at the highest level for the Superior General of the Company of Jesus. So when he says this "The Bilderberg Group are the men who really rule the world." Hes actually very obviously wrong and theres many more powerful than Bilderberg. Question, Why don't we hear much about a very powerful Switzerland based society known as the MONT PELERIN SOCIETY, who've been very instrumental in the attempts to destroy America??? There you go! -2tuff

Confession To The Jesuits No. 23: Have The Jesuits Infiltrated Anglican Church?

Pastor Tony Alamo Says Beware Of Vatican Blessings Disguised as Death Warrants Say a prayer that Jesuits someday tell the truth about evil deeds, including genocide, assassination and subverting freedom of speech and religion.

23 Feb 2007

By Greg Szymanski

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/23-Feb-2007.html>

In this Confession to the Jesuits No. 23, we ask two questions:

Why are Anglican and Catholic Bishops urging their parishioners to unite under the leadership of the Pope?

And why is it when the Pope gives his "Vatican blessings", do many world leaders and leaders of public opinion end up dead?

In trying to answer the first question, we ask the Jesuits to respond honestly. Has the Society of Jesus infiltrated the Anglican Church in order to submit to the Luciferian leadership of the Black Pope, Jesuit Gen. Fr. Peter Hans Kolvenbach, who actually is the Pope's puppet master?

Until we receive an answer, here is an article by Maureen Coleman, dated Feb. 19, updating the proposed unification of Catholics and Anglicans:

Senior Catholic and Anglican bishops have agreed on proposals - which will be published later this year - to reunite under the leadership of the Pope, it was claimed today.

In a 42-page statement prepared by an international commission of both churches, Catholics and Anglicans are asked to explore how they might end their split and reunite with the Pope as leader.

The statement is being considered by the Vatican, where Catholic bishops are understood to be preparing a formal response.

The news comes as the archbishops of 38 provinces of the Anglican community meet in Tanzania to discuss gay ordination and other liberal doctrines that have taken hold in parts of the western Church.

It is thought that should these discussions lead to a split between liberals and conservatives, many of the former objections in Rome to a reunion with Anglican conservatives would disappear. Many of those Anglicans who object to gay ordination also oppose the ordination of women priests.

The Vatican showed it could be flexible on the issue of celibacy when it received dozens of married priests from the Church of England after they left over the ordination of women priests.

This latest report was drawn up by the International Anglican/Roman Catholic Commission for Unity and Mission, which is chaired by the Right Rev David Beetge, an Anglican Bishop from South Africa and the Most Rev John Bathersby, the Catholic Archbishop of Brisbane.

The commission was set up in 2000 by the former Archbishop of Canterbury, Lord Carey, and Cardinal Edward Cassidy, the president of the Vatican's Council for Christian Unity. Its aim was to find a way of moving towards unity through "common life and mission".

The document, leaked to The Times, is the commission's first statement, Growing Together in Unity and Mission. While acknowledging the "imperfect communion" between the two churches, it says there is enough common ground to make its call for action about the Pope.

Regarding the second question of why the Pope's blessings turn into blood-red murder cases, we look to Christian Pastor Tony Alamo, who wrote an article entitled Beware of Receiving Blessings From The Vatican - Its Clergy -Especially Their Popes:

Pope Pius IX sent the Golden Rose ("blessings") to the King of the Two Sicily's, and in less than a year, he lost his crown and kingdom.

The same Pope sent his blessings to the Austrian Kaiser, and in less than a year, he lost Venetia and suffered defeat at Sadowa.

The same Pope sent the Golden Rose ("blessings") to Queen Isabella of Spain, and in a short time, she lost her crown and died in exile.

He sent his Golden Rose ("blessings") to the Empress Eugenie of France, and in less than a year, the Emperor and Empress lost their crowns, and both died later in exile, and their only son was killed by Zulus in Africa.

The Crown Princess of Brazil was blessed by the Pope, with the result that her baby was born deformed, and she died in exile.

The Pope blessed the Emperor of Mexico, Maximilian. He was dethroned and killed by his people.

The Pope blessed the Emperor's widow. She became a hopeless maniac and died in exile.

The Pope blessed a steamer filled with nuns en route to South America in 1870. It never reached its destination, every soul perishing.

The Pope blessed General Boulanger and in less than two weeks he was in exile, later committing suicide.

Mrs. Sherman, wife of the American General Sherman, received the Golden Rose ("blessing" from the Pope). It proved fatal, and she died soon after.

In 1895, the Archbishop of Damascus, at Vittoria, gave the Pope's blessings to the Spanish troops and fleet, with the result, Spain lost two fleets and two armies.

In 1897, the papal nuncio blessed the grand "Charity" bazaar in Paris. Within five minutes, it was in flames and nearly 150 of the aristocracy perished, including the sister of the Empress of Austria.

The poor Empress of Austria received the Golden Rose (the "blessing" from the Pope). It was her death knell. She was murdered in Switzerland, her only son committing suicide previously and her nephew losing his throne subsequently, while Austria has ceased to exist as an Empire.

King Edward VII of Britain visited the Pope and received, as a mark of favor, a signed photograph of Pope Leo XIII. At once came news of a reverse to British troops in Somaliland, and the king's health began to fail and was never restored.

The Pope blessed Lord Denbigh, the special envoy of the British Sovereign. That very day, disaster befell the British Army in South Africa-Lord Methuen being severely wounded, and the papists in Parliament cheered the news.

Princess Ena of Battenberg received the Pope's blessing on her perversion and marriage, 1906. On the same day as the wedding, she narrowly escaped death at the hands of a Romish anarchist, some thirteen hapless victims succumbing, and eighty others being wounded. Her wedding garments were spattered with blood. One, at least, of her sons was afflicted bodily. May 29th, 1923, the Pope gave the Golden Rose (his "blessing") to the Queen of Spain (Princess Ena of Battenberg). In May 1931, she, with her husband, King Alfonso XIII, lost their throne and fled Spain.

The Pope blessed Queen Natalie of Servia on her perversion in 1902. She ended her days as a fugitive in exile, her only son, the king, being murdered.

The Queen of Portugal, one of the Orleans, was blessed by the Pope. Her husband, the king, and her eldest son were murdered beside her in a carriage, and she and her surviving son escaped as exiles to England, throneless. Portugal has been a republic ever since.

In 1912, the Pope blessed the Titanic, and it sank on the maiden voyage.

In 1924, a rich English land owner, Dyer Edwards, turned papist. In 1926, he went to Rome , was "blessed" by the Pope, and in four days was dead.

In 1928, the Pope blessed the Italia airship and gave a cross to place on the North Pole. The result was fatal. The airship foundered and broke in two-half its crew being lost whilst General Nobile was severely injured and was later censured by an Italian committee. It was the greatest fiasco of that time.

After Mussolini had murdered the people of Abyssinia and sacked their country, the Pope blessed the Italians as "a great and good people." Mussolini came to an inglorious end and was hung upside down and his body mutilated.

On July 2nd, 1963, President Kennedy of the U.S.A. was received and blessed by Pope Paul VI. He was assassinated, murdered, in Texas in November of that year.

One of the classic examples of the Pope's blessings boomeranging is that of Pakistan and India. A few years ago, the Pope visited these two unfortunate countries, and while it is true, famine and flood are no strangers to these two countries, the fact remains that no disaster in living memory was so intense and destructive as the floods which struck those countries in the year of 1970, unless it be the present cholera epidemic.

One could go on and on enumerating cases as above, but there is enough listed to prove that they are not coincidental. Now, what of the CURSES of the Popes? Yes, they run in reverse, as the following one or two examples will demonstrate.

Pope Pius IX cursed King Victor Emmanuel, the liberator of Italy, and also the Italian Government that made Italy free and Rome its capital. The result has been the rise of Italy to the status of a modern civilized nation, and only suffered a set-back when the Pope blessed Mussolini and his troops.

Garibaldi was excommunicated by the Pope for all his patriotic endeavors, especially the overthrow of the Kingdom of the Two Sicily's. He became Italy's hero, whose name was, and is, everywhere revered, and to whom noble monuments were erected.

The Papal curses, which the Popes leveled against Henry VIII, Queen Elizabeth, Sir Francis Drake and his merry men, brought untold blessings on England, while at the same time, Ireland was blessed by the "Man of Sin" and is even today suffering the consequences.

It should go without saying, that everyone who values their lives and souls should shun the Vatican and the Pope like poison and have no communication or business with Rome.

The Bible, the Word of God, states, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:31). The Lord Jesus Christ is the entire Word of God (John 1:1, 14, Rev. 19:13). Believe on the entire Word of God and thou shalt be saved. All those who are born again of the Spirit have Christ with the Father by the Spirit living in them (John 3:3-7, Col. 2:9-10). This gift, this miracle of eternal life can be yours immediately by saying this prayer: -----

Prayer

My Lord and my God, have mercy upon my soul, a sinner. 1 I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of the Living God. 2 I believe that He died on the cross and shed His precious blood for the forgiveness of all my sins. 3 I believe that God raised Jesus from the dead by the power of the Holy Spirit 4 and that He sits on the right hand of God at this moment, hearing my confession of sin and this prayer. 5 I open up the door of my heart and I invite You into my heart, Lord Jesus. 6 Wash all of my filthy sins away in the precious blood that You shed in my place on the cross at Calvary. 7 You will not turn me away, Lord Jesus, You will forgive my sins and save my soul. I know because Your Word, the Bible says so. 8 Your Word says that You will turn no one away, and that includes me. 9 Therefore, I know that You have heard me, and I know that You have answered me, and I know that I am saved. 10 And I thank You, Lord Jesus, for saving my soul, and I will show my thankfulness by doing as You command and sin no more.

You've just completed the first step in a series of five steps which are necessary to receive salvation. Your second step is to deny yourself and take up the cross daily for the purpose of mortifying yourself, that is, for putting to death your own will, your soulful self, and the world with all of its lusts. All these must be baptized into the death of Christ.

Step three is your resurrection from the satanic life of Adam unto the sinless life of Christ. Step four is your ascension into a position of authority to reign for God on earth, and the fifth step is to reign for God on earth to the end for the purpose of bringing about the Kingdom of Heaven on earth. You must learn the Word of God, then submit yourself and do what the Word says, so that the church and the world may see evidence of your submission to God's Word, His order, and His authority in and by you.

Praise the Lord. May God reward you abundantly.

Putin To Meet With Pope aka "The Grand Inquisitor"

The Pope to give his evil blessings to another world leader on March 13, giving Putin as he has Bush the foolish justification to participate in the upcoming Pope's crusade and genocide.

The dirty hands of the Vatican continue to manipulate world politics as Pope Benedict XVI and President of the Russian Federation, Vladimir Putin, are planning to have a good ole' Mafia 'sit down' March 13 in Rome.

This is Putin's first visit with the Pope and critics who really and truly know the Vatican's hidden New World agenda claim Putin is arriving in the City of the Seven Mountains to get his "satanic blessings" and his marching orders from the evil empire.

And it should be noted Putin won't be the first or the last high-level New World Order leader to kiss the "Inquisitor's Ring of evil," as the list is longer than a giant's arm, including Daddy Bush, Baby Bush, Clinton, the rulers of the Middle East, the ruler of Israel, Blair, Chavez of Venezuela and many, many more of the Pope's minions bringing destruction, war and genocide upon the earth.

Although critics claim Putin is getting his "evil blessing" in order to justify mass killings on his behalf in the Pope's on-going world wide New World Order Crusade, their meeting is further sign that the separation of church and state had become a laughing matter in today's world-wide political setting.

"All the leaders are working together to bring about the Vatican's final crusade and one world fascist government," said Leo Zagami, a former high-level Vatican and Illuminati member of the powerful Monte Carlo P2 Lodge.

Furthermore, Zagami had revealed the innermost secrets of the Vatican-led New World Order after he came forward on U.S. radio, saying the true spiritual leaders and controllers of the New World Order include the Vatican hierarchy and their henchmen, the evil Jesuit Order.

Here is what Zagami had to say about the upcoming March 13 meeting between the Pope and Putin, mixing in the New World Order's infatuation with the occult and black magic:

In March Putin visits the Pope and submits to the Vatican Luciferian powers on the 13th!

The numbers 11, 13 and 33 are the Illuminati/Freemason signature, wrote Robert Howard in a research made a few years ago regarding the Freemason's, United States Presidents and The Masonic Power Structure. He was constantly running into the number 13 and 33. This research confirmed that most of the founding fathers were obviously Masons. It also confirmed that most of the Presidents were Masons . And 13 of course was the 13 colonies. Second was the great Seal.

"The numbers 3, 7, 9,11,13, 33, 39. Any multiple of these numbers have special meaning to the Illuminati. Notice that the Bilderberg Group has core of 39 members who are broken into 3 groups of 13 members in each group. Notice that the core of 39 answers to the 13 who make up the Policy Committee. Take special notice that the 13 members of the Policy Committee answer to the Round Table of Nine. You know that the original number of states in the United States of America was 13. The Constitution has 7 articles and was signed by 39 members of the Constitutional Convention."

Occultists the world over believe that, once a symbol is created, it acquires power of its own, and more power is generated when such symbol(s) are created without the profane [uninitiated] knowing about it. And, the greatest power of all is created in the symbol(s) if the uninitiated NEVER discover that the symbol exists. MASONIC SYMBOLS OF POWER IN THEIR SEAT OF POWER -- WASHINGTON, D.C.

There are 13 leaves on the left olive branch with 13 berries. 13 stripes on the middle shield. 13 arrows on the right. 13 stars above the eagles head. 13 letters in the "E Pluribus Unum" on the ribbon. 13 letters in Annuit Coeptis. There are 13 blocks top to bottom on the pyramid. Fritz Springmeir in his The 13 Bloodlines says these 13 blocks represent the 13 Satanic family's.

So the 13th of March the illuminati Mafia President of the Russian Federation Vladimir Putin visits the new Pope for the first time and this will be a very special visit indeed, an event you should all keep an eye on because the 13th is no ordinary number...

Pastor Tony Alamo Continues Fighting Evils of Vatican and Jesuit Order

Jailed for spreading the Gospel, Alamo says he doesn't fear Satan's evil New World Order and Vatican criminals, but fears the wrath of God if he doesn't continue to spread his devine message.

22 Feb 2007

By Greg Szymanski

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/22-Feb-2007.html>

Pastor Tony Alamo has been fighting the Vatican and Jesuit-led New World for more than three decades after having a supernatural experience and becoming a Born Again Christian.

Alamo recounts his personal experience with Jesus on his ministry web site at www.alamoministries.com, as he reveals a miraculous story about what happened when Jesus spoke with him at a time in his life when he was a fun-loving, hell-raising Hollywood record producer who hob-nobbed with the big shots and movie stars.

"I was one of the most unlikely people to be chosen to spread the Gospel, but after Jesus came to me while in a Hollywood meeting with lawyers and movie stars, I quit my record promoting business and starting spreading the word of God and preaching the words in the Bible," said Alamo Tuesday on Greg Szymanski's international radio show, The Investigative Journal, on the Republic Broadcasting Network at www.rbnlive.com

"Over the years my ministry has grown by leaps and bounds. I first learned many years ago about the Vatican's involvement in the New World Order from my first wife, who has since passed on. And what the Vatican hates most and why they have attacked and, still are, I might add, is someone like me who breaches the word of God, who preaches the word of truth and who is not afraid of Satan and his followers.

"In fact, once you find Jesus, God is the one to fear, not the criminals in the Vatican and all their evil workers."

And Pastor Alamo has been teaching people about the word of God and the evil residing in Rome for more than three decades, having coming face to face with the eye of Satan on many occasions, including unwarranted FBI and government harassment.

As told by former FBI agent John Peeler, assigned the task to murder Pastor Alamo on orders from then Gov. William Jefferson "Blythe" Clinton, the former self-proclaimed FBI jack-booted thug, said Alamo was a good man targeted by the evil Vatican-led New World Order.

Recently, Peeler came forward on Greg Szymanski's radio show, saying he quit the FBI after he couldn't carry out the Alamo assassination since he personally found out Alamo was "a good man, a man of God and only doing good things."

"I had to leave the FBI after I couldn't carry out the Alamo assignment. I then went to Pastor Alamo and apologized," said Peeler in a recent radio interview on The Investigative Journal. "After the FBI couldn't find any dirt on him, authorities had to trump up a bogus tax violation which finally landed Pastor Alamo in prison for six years."

Regarding the prison sentence, Alamo said he was "railroaded" in court, but made the best out of four years spent in federal prison by "saving thousands of souls and spreading the word of God" while serving his time.

In an article on his web site entitled Pastor Alamo, a Victim of Outrageous IRS Conduct, he cites how he was framed by the government. Here is the opening portion of the story:

"Congress only exposed the tip of the iceberg," said Pastor Tony Alamo. "I am in prison because the IRS lied about me and my church, relied on preposterous and fabricated tales from a notorious anti-religious group, the Cult Awareness Network (CAN), withheld material from my attorneys that they were legally bound to reveal, offered rewards to get witnesses to cooperate, threatened several witnesses, and lied under oath in a court of law in order to cover up these abuses."

Pastor Alamo continued, "The government relied on false information from the Cult Awareness Network to murder innocent men, women and children in Waco, and they relied on these same liars to falsify charges against me. The IRS used the Cult Awareness Network, a professional fabrication company, to prosecute innocent churches. And their chief fabricator was Peter Georgiades, a Pittsburgh lawyer. The government even allowed this scurrilous organization to literally write my pre-sentence investigation report (PSI). Worse, the Parole Board adopted CAN's anti-religious fabrications causing me not to get parole or to go to a minimum security facility. No one I ever spoke with has ever heard of an outside organization being able to influence a PSI, but the so-called Justice Department allowed CAN to load my PSI with blatant lies. CAN made their money by trying to destroy churches and God-fearing people.

We all cheered when a jury found them guilty of kidnapping and religious persecution, and they were forced into bankruptcy and finally closed."

"Now, we all watched this past week as Acting Commissioner Michael Dolan and other IRS agents admitted in Congress that they bald-faced lied and fabricated evidence that ruined people's lives, their reputations and businesses." said Pastor Alamo. "One IRS agent even admitted that the IRS is responsible for numerous suicides of innocent Americans. I am an innocent victim of the IRS. President Clinton should grant me an immediate pardon, and if the government wants to right the wrongs, they should restore the church's stolen properties and make restitution on the businesses that were destroyed."

The hearings provided a wealth of IRS horror stories. For example, the IRS went after a church in Conklin, NY after it had warned citizens in an ad that voting for Clinton would be a sin. "The same thing happened to me," said Pastor Alamo. "A 20-year now-retired veteran of the IRS made clear in the hearings that all the agents knew what organizations to go after. They didn't need a call from the president. After I did an exposé on President Bush, our church's tax-exempt status was taken away, our properties and businesses stolen," said Alamo. "What is more, I was living in Los Angeles when I was falsely arrested. I was transferred to Memphis, Tenn., an area I had no relationship to, where Bush-appointed Judge McCalla presided over my trial."

IRS agents confessed that they went after high profile cases as trophies to bag. "I was such a high-profile case. The Lord, through my wife Susan and I, built a highly-anointed of the Holy Spirit Christian world-wide ministry, which the IRS made controversial by using CAN's fabrication of us and what we were doing in the Lord's service," said Alamo. "The government constantly relies on their fairy tales and nightmarish interpretations of us. And these days it seems it's easier to sell fiction to the public than the truth. But the truth is, we had won many souls to the Lord, and I continued the Lord's work after Susan's death. We built homes for our parishioners, opened schools, and taught young people skills. The IRS took this away because some opportunistic agents decided I was a good high-profile publicity prize. The lives of thousands of good Christians were meaningless to these people.

Although Alamo was released in the late 90's, he still is the subject of government harassment and Vatican smear campaigns to discredit his character but, most importantly, to discredit his ministry, which has been the focal point of Vatican and Jesuit infiltration for many years.

"They are now spreading lies that I have been married to hundreds of women and accusing me of being a pedophile. These are all lies, of course, but this is how the Vatican and Satan's followers operate," said Alamo, adding he has forgiven Peeler for his past FBI wrong doings and is also trying to get Peeler's son out of prison after he was framed for a murder he didn't commit when Peeler went public with the real truth about Alamo, Waco, Ruby Ridge, Oklahoma City and 9/11.

Alamo spreads the word of God from Churches he has established in California, Arkansas and other various locations, saying he also shares "the Vatican Message" on his international radio show.

"We also have thousands of people passing out flyers, like my article "The Pope's Secret" directly to people on the streets. Trying to reach them eye-to-eye and face-to-face.

"As we know the media also has been corrupted by the Vatican and going to the streets with millions of flyers over the years has been quite effective."

If you haven't read one of Alamo's articles on his web site or on a one of the millions of street handouts, here is his article entitled "The Pope's Secrets":

The Vatican is posing as Snow White, but the Bible says that she is a prostitute, "the great whore," a cult (Rev. 19:2).¹ She uses government agency branches in every country, including the United States, as her vicious little dwarfs. The more power and control she gets in government, the more she will fade away into the background in her "Snow White" disguise so that government will be used and blamed for all her evil deeds.

REASON: To enforce laws that harass, malign, destroy, and censor everyone and every idea that is not Roman Catholic so she can sit as the satanic queen (the big whore).

Because of her age-old desire to control the world government and church, the serpent-like Vatican has infested the world and the U.S. government with so many of her zealous, highly-trained and dedicated Jesuit devotees, that she now controls the United Nations (which she created),² the White House, Congress, every state, federal, civic, and social government agency, including the U.S. Department of Labor, the IRS, the FBI, the Supreme Court, judicial systems, the armed forces, state, federal, and other police, also the international banking and federal reserve systems (called the Illuminati and Agentur), labor unions,³ the Mafia, and most of the heavyweight news media.

This cult (the Vatican) is very close to replacing our U.S. Constitution with her one-world, satanic canon laws of death to the "heretic" (anyone that is not Roman Catholic). General Lafayette, President George Washington's most respected aide and general, prophetically stated, "If the liberties of the American people are ever destroyed, they will fall by the hand of the Roman Catholic cult's clergy."⁴

Today we see the climax of detailed plans given in excerpts from a speech given nearly fifty years ago in Australia by Roman Catholic Archbishop Gilroy:

"The Roman Catholic motto is ourselves alone for fellow Roman Catholics. We must defeat all heretics [non-Roman Catholics] at the ballot box. The holy father states that negative tactics are fatal. The demands of the holy father [the pope] are that the public services should be 100% Roman Catholic soon. Care must be taken that no suspicion may be raised when Roman Catholics are secretly given more government jobs than Protestants, Jews, and other heretics."

Multi-millions of people have been slaughtered by the Vatican, thus saith the Lord (Rev. 18:24). History bears record to this fact. During the Roman Catholic inquisition in Europe, 68 million people were tortured, maimed, and murdered by this huge sect.⁵ The St. Bartholomew's Day Massacre accounted for the butchering of as many as 100,000 Protestants.⁶ President Abraham Lincoln blamed the papacy for the Civil War in these words:

"This war would never have been possible without the sinister and secretive influence of the Jesuits. We owe it to popery that we now see our land reddened with the blood of her noblest sons." Lincoln added, "I am for liberty of conscience in its noblest, broadest, and highest sense. But I cannot give liberty of conscience to the pope and to his followers, the papists, so long as they tell me, through all their councils, theologians, and canon laws that their conscience orders them to burn my wife, strangle my children, and cut my throat when they find their opportunity."⁷

Because of Abraham Lincoln's many exposés of the Vatican, he was put to death just as he foretold. Yes, assassinated by the Jesuits under Rome's instructions.⁸ The Vatican hasn't changed since Mr. Lincoln's time.

J.F.K.'S FATAL MISTAKE

When John F. Kennedy was asked by the Vatican, "Are you going to go along with the Roman canon law or the U.S. Constitution?" Mr. Kennedy answered them by saying, "The U. S. Constitution."⁹ This was President Kennedy's fatal mistake. His assassination was ordered by Rome, then planned and carried out by Jesuits, just as President Lincoln's was. Anyone who knew too much about Mr. Kennedy's assassination was taken care of too.

When America cried out for an investigation, Chief Justice Earl Warren (a member of the Vatican's secretive Knights of Columbus) was recruited to do the investigation. He did a lot of double-talking and shuffling-as he was supposed to-and then, after a sufficient period of time, closed the investigation. Like the pope says, "Negative actions are fatal." Remember that President Kennedy was a great admirer and a student of Abraham Lincoln and knew what Mr. Lincoln knew.

World War II, with its casualties of over thirty million deaths (six million Jews-the Holocaust),¹⁰ was conjured up and sponsored by the Vatican-Hitler, Mussolini, and Franco were all members of this sect (the Roman Catholic cult)¹¹ -to win the world, not for Christ, but for the Vatican, the Antichrist.

The turmoil in Central and South America, the tyranny under Jesuit-trained Castro¹² in Cuba and throughout the Caribbean, and the terrorism in Lebanon and Ireland today are the Vatican's handiwork. Now can you see why God calls the Roman Catholic cult the mother of every abomination on earth (Rev. 17:5)?

The Vatican knew that after World War II many people were wise to the fact that the war was a Vatican inquisition, so they had to use one of their famous diversionary tactics and open the John Birch Society to get everybody thinking and talking about Communism (which the Vatican also sponsors) instead of the true culprit (the Vatican). This was a great success for them.

The Vatican also sponsors every major terrorist group in the world. The reason for this is to keep people's thoughts on unexplainable, insane tragedies that their terrorist groups are committing while the Vatican is busy undermining all the governments of the world so they can have world dominion (papal power). When terrorist news hits, it is so shocking that it minimizes the news of the Vatican taking away the U.S. Constitution and of people being deprived of their religious freedoms (being jailed, schools and churches being closed). This is the real thing that the Vatican is after though, world control of our religion and our government. The more insane, bizarre, unreasonable, and unexplainable the terrorism is, the better. The Vatican's heavyweight news media also keeps you busy thinking about it all. Now that they are exposed with their modus operandi, they will soon (with their media and the President of the United States, who just joined them) be the driving force of a campaign to stop all this terrorism (that they have created themselves) to make everyone believe that they are good and godly, and that they could have never sponsored anything like this. (Update: such as Terry Waite negotiating in Lebanon.)

Jim Jones, a Roman Catholic Jesuit deacon posing as a Christian, was sacrificed (not with poisoned Kool-aid), murdered, along with his flock, by the Vatican to make the world look narrowly and suspiciously upon innocent Christian retreats.¹³

"These six things doth the Lord hate: yea, seven are an abomination unto Him: A proud look, a lying tongue, and hands that shed innocent blood, An heart that deviseth wicked imaginations, feet that be swift in running to mischief, A false witness that speaketh lies, and he that soweth discord among brethren" (Prov. 6:16-19). (All these things that God hates, the devilish Vatican is.)

Did you ever notice that with the Vatican-controlled U.S. Customs and Immigration we cannot get out of this country without going through the third degree (searches, radar, etc.). But in the 1960's, when Jesuit Vatican-trained Timothy Leary¹⁴ led our nation's youth into drug addiction, Immigration and Customs seemed unable then, as they do now, to detect tens of thousands of pounds of narcotics and drugs entering into our once fair nation via the Mafia, which launders all of its illicit, ill-gotten gain (all its black market money) through the Vatican. Maybe this is why President Abraham Lincoln said, "I see a very dark cloud on America's horizon, and that dark cloud is coming from Rome."¹⁵

Look at what the Bible says about the Antichrist that caused all this corruption and shed all this blood:

"And I saw the woman [the Vatican] drunken with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus: and when I saw her, I wondered with great [amazement]" (Rev. 17:6).

"How much she hath glorified herself, and lived deliciously, so much torment and sorrow give her: for she saith in her heart, I sit a queen, and am no widow, and shall see no sorrow" (Rev. 18:7).

"These [governments] have one mind, and shall give their power and strength unto the beast," that is one-world government, state and federal, civic and social government agencies included, powered by Satan, giving that power to the Antichrist by carrying out her orders (Rev. 17:13).

These are some of the very last signs in the Bible's book of Revelation before Jesus comes back to earth again and time shall be no more. God destroyed the world by water,¹⁶ Sodom and Gomorrah by fire and brimstone.¹⁷ On both occasions, God sent messengers preaching the forthcoming doom. Today God in His infinite mercy warns all Roman Catholics, "Come out of her, My people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues" (Rev.18:4). If you are one of God's people, if the life-giving Spirit has quickened you unto eternal life, then obey the Word by coming out of her. Why? Because to not do so is disobedience, and disobedience is the same as witchcraft.¹⁸

Many Vatican state and federal government agencies such as the IRS, OSHA, and the U.S. Department of Labor, along with labor unions, have wonderfully destroyed the economic backbone of our country by harassing and forcing hundreds of businesses and industries into bankruptcy and out of business.¹⁹ This leaves millions of Americans out of work and hungry, while Vatican enterprises are not harassed at all but do flourish, because they run the government agencies. Look at what God says about the Antichrist when he will be thrown into Hell:

"They that see thee shall narrowly look upon thee, and consider thee, saying, Is this the man [the Antichrist] that made the earth to tremble, that did shake kingdoms; That made the world as a wilderness, and destroyed the cities thereof?" (Isa. 14:16-17).

FEDS OK VATICAN SLAVE LABOR CAMPS

Just one of the Vatican's many, multi-billion dollar enterprises is their liquor and wine slave labor camps, which have no labor problems whatsoever because they unlawfully use free labor (thousands of Roman Catholic monks). These federal government agencies will not allow anyone else to enjoy the same privileges of volunteering our labor to God, our Father, and our Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ because we are all "heretics" (non-Roman Catholics). Yes, their enterprises do prosper with no harm or harassment using free labor in their Christian Brothers,²⁰ La Salle, and Benedictine liquor and wine distilleries (slave labor camps) and in many others all the way from Napa Valley, California, to New York State.

The Vatican's IRS and U.S. Department of Labor now cross the constitutional dividing line of separation between church and state and, in every way, are attempting to destroy all fundamental Christian churches and schools. One way is by taking away their tax-exempt status. This anti-American, anti-U.S. Constitution organization (the IRS), however, has given tax exempt status to all communist organizations in America under Internal Revenue Code 501©3. They have never made any attempt to take this status away from them.²¹ Rome's collection agency (the IRS) has also made sure that the Roman Catholic cult and all those affiliated with it (the one world church) are the only religious organizations in the U.S. that don't have to pay property tax or even tax on their multi-billion dollar businesses.²² This is done under Sec. 892 of the Internal Revenue Code. The Vatican is the only religion that receives multi-millions of dollars of federal aid each year for their parochial schools.²³ This comes out of your tax dollars. Like Archbishop Gilroy says, "Ourselves alone for fellow Roman Catholics" and "we must defeat all heretics."

The Vatican has used the Communist Party to help destroy the Russian Orthodox churches, and she used the Nazi Party in her attempt to do away with the Jews and their synagogues. (Because the Vatican says that all others than themselves are "heretics"-non-Roman Catholics.)

IRS-ROMAN CULT'S COLLECTION AGENCY

The Roman Catholic Jesuits started the international banking system²⁴ called the Illuminati and the Agentur (and blamed the Jews for this). Rome's motto is, "He that holds the money bags runs the nations." The Vatican started all the wars (inquisitions) to rid the world of heretics (non-Roman Catholics) and then made loans from her banks to nations so they would have enough money to fight them. We foolishly permitted this cult's collection agency into our country (the IRS-which answers only to Rome).

According to God's laws in the Bible, every fifty years there is to be a clearing of debts that can't be paid (a relief). This is called the year of jubilee (Lev. 25:10). Let's bump cultish Roman canon law of death and bondage and get back to God's law and His Son, Christ Jesus. Let's have a clearing (the year of jubilee). These debts have been instigated by Satan (the Roman Catholic cult) to hurt us and put us into financial bondage. We didn't start these wars, we didn't want these wars, and we didn't borrow that money. So why should we have to suffer? These wars were all Roman Catholic inquisitions to mold the world into a one-world government, church, and media.²⁵

At the one-world church convention in Vancouver, some of our volunteers were shocked by the pro-homosexual booths and literature, pro-witchcraft booths and literature, drunkenness, and total ungodliness, which this "universal" world's largest cult and sect exalts. These satanic people call anybody that preaches the true Word, which is separation from evil, consecration unto good²⁶-they call this a cult or a sect. But they worship this one-world organization and its cult leader, the pope...

"Who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshipped; so that he [or a soon to come pope] as God [will soon sit] in the temple of God [in Jerusalem], showing himself that he is God" (II Thes. 2:4).

"Even him, whose coming is after the working of Satan with all power and signs and lying wonders, And with all deceivableness of unrighteousness in them that perish" (II Thes. 2:9-10).

They kneel and kiss his ring and feet²⁷ and call him "holy father," which is forbidden in the Bible.²⁸ They obey his every wish. By calling us a cult, who walk in the Spirit and obey God's every wish, they have possibly committed the unpardonable sin-blasphemy of the Holy Spirit-which is never forgiven in this world nor in the world to come (Matt. 12:31-32). But Satan does not care because he already has blasphemed the Holy Spirit.

THE MARK OF THE BEAST

Satan wants you to spend eternity in Hell with him.²⁹ And to cause you to do this, look what he, through his state and federal government agencies, has cooked up for you now: government enforcement of a law making it necessary for you to take a mark on your hand or your forehead in order to be allowed to buy or sell (this could be done invisibly by using laser beams). God calls this mark "the mark of the beast" (Rev. 19:20). The Vatican will use some pretty name for it "the mark of peace, love, unity, fellowship, etc." And God says if we take this mark we will go to Hell (Rev. 14: 9-11).

The pope, the super-boss, and his federal and state government agencies will say that if we don't take this mark we will be boycotted (can't buy or sell). I'll trust God to feed me, just as He fed the Hebrew children for forty years in the Sinai Desert. And God will do wonders again for His faithful followers who resist the pope, his government agencies, and the mark.

President Reagan has been bewitched too by the Vatican's craft just as other world leaders have. This is obvious by his sudden move of sending our U.S. ambassador into the big Roman whorehouse (this cult's home office and general headquarters).

Mr. President, you're hanging around far too much with those Jesuit-trained, one-world church ministers, and they're giving you some really bad advice. Is it the Vatican money and the big Vatican back-up that's causing you to become part of this cult? Would you sell your eternal soul by joining yourself and our nation to the Antichrist for money and temporal power?

The Lord asks, "What shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own [eternal] soul?" (Mark 8:36). By having done this, you're now in big trouble with the living God, lest you straighten up and fly right and publicly recant your decision so that the Lord and the public know where you stand exactly.

Respectfully, Mr. President, in the name of Jesus, I say these things to you. We're at the end of time, and the day of the politician is over. We all have to let people know what's in us. The Bible says that he who receiveth not reproof from God's Word is brutish (Prov. 12:1). Mr. President and all of you presidents and kings of the world, there is a judgment for all of us, and I believe it's coming real soon.

A TRUE ISRAELITE BELIEVES GOD

I'm not a theological seminary man. I am a true Israelite, washed in the blood of Jesus, filled with the Holy Spirit, and sent by the Lord to preach Jesus crucified, resurrected, alive, and soon to return to this earth again.³⁰ I have full authority from Heaven to preach this.

A true Israelite is one who believes God, which most Jews don't, because they reject the Messiah by rejecting the over 300 scriptures in the Old Testament telling of the Messiah. Some Israelites have converted to this sect (Roman Catholicism). The Vatican wanted them to become rabbis so that they could place them in the Israeli Knesset as spies. Some of these Roman Jesuit rabbis are there today as spies.

In World War II, Poland was the strongest Vatican-controlled country. If the Vatican loves Jews so much-then and today-why did she allow the slaughter pens of the most Jews to be in Poland? Why did the Vatican forge the anti-Semitic document, "Protocols of the Elders of Zion," blaming the Vatican's desires for world rulership on us Jews? Why did she blame the schemes of the Vatican's international bankers, Illuminati and Agenturs on us Jews?³¹ And why does the Vatican have spies posing as rabbis in the Knesset if this anti-Semitic, Roman Catholic cult loves the Jews so much? God says:

"O My people, they which lead thee cause thee to err, and destroy the way of thy paths" (Isa. 3:12).

The time of the Messiah's second coming is now, so repent or perish,³² which means accept the Messiah and the atonement, which is His blood which He shed for your sins,³³ or perish, which means you will go to Hell if you don't.³⁴

There are religious leaders who are leading millions of people to Hell because of their connection with and exaltation of the Antichrist and his cult, "Speaking lies in hypocrisy; having their conscience seared with a hot iron" (I Tim. 4:2). Some are Jesuit priests posing as Christians. They and their organizations have been rewarded handsomely from Rome because they have herded unsuspecting ignorant masses of their followers right into Satan's universal church, who has future plans of them all taking the mark of the beast³⁵ in the name of Christian fellowship, brotherhood, peace, charisma, and love. People have been easily led into this division of the Vatican's cult and think they are right "because they received not the love of the truth, that they might be saved" (followed not God's Word exactly). Because of this, God said that He would "send them strong delusion[s], that they should believe a lie: That they all might be damned who believe not the truth, but have pleasure in unrighteousness (the whole Antichrist set-up)" (II Thes. 2:3-12).

These false leaders love the Roman Catholic money and political connections. It keeps them on national and international television, and it helps build temporary little empires for themselves and unto their names, such as television networks, universities, villages, and many other vain business enterprises and supposed-to-be Christian fellowships. God says:

"The getting of treasures by a lying tongue is a vanity tossed to and fro of them that seek death" (Prov. 21: 6).

These leaders exalt the papacy and support it. They visit the pope in Rome often and include the Roman Catholic clergy in most all of their social functions and allow them unashamedly on their television and radio broadcasts. They encourage President Reagan's moving our nation into the Antichrist (the Vatican). The Vatican promotes them, and they promote the Vatican because they are just alike (liars). You can easily see them, and I think you know who they are (just turn on your television set).

Pray for their blind followers because they "trust in lying words, that cannot profit" (Jer. 7:8), and for these blind leaders who "will not speak the truth: they have taught their tongue to speak lies" (Jer. 9:5), who lead their blind, for Jesus said both of them are going to fall into a ditch (Luke 6:39). Jesus also said:

"All liars, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone" (Rev. 21:8), And they shall not enter heaven "For without are dogs, and sorcerers, and whoremongers, and murderers, and idolaters, and whosoever loveth and maketh a lie" (Rev. 22:15), because they are like him (Satan) who deceived Eve and now the world (all death started with a lie).³⁶

Jesus didn't come to bring peace, but a sword (Matt. 10:34). He came to show us the difference between light and darkness, good and evil, truth and lie, the body of Christ and the Antichrist. He said, My sheep know My voice and another will they not follow (John 10:3-5, Rev. 14:4). Do you hear Jesus' voice or the voice of the pope? Are you one of the sheep of Jesus or a goat of the Antichrist?³⁷ Do you like to hear lies or the truth (God's Word)?

Many of you have supported the Antichrist by tithing to these organizations. Support Christ, not the Antichrist, or you'll go to the same Hell with him for supporting a lie. Secret Vatican agents disguised as Christians are going around to different Protestant churches to collect money to build the temple in Jerusalem for the Antichrist (Solomon's Temple), and ignorant Christians, who think it not ungodly to be deceived as was Eve, are giving them the money for it, instead of being discreet and godly and tithing to true Christian works. Jesus said, "My people are destroyed [go to Hell] for lack of knowledge" (Hosea 4:6).

Roman Catholic spokesmen are angry when the Word of God is preached and say that they "cannot believe that in this day and age there are still people preaching hatred, bias, and prejudice, etc." But what these Vatican ambassadors are really saying though, is that they cannot believe, in this day and age, that there are still people preaching God's Word, the truth, and that there are people that would have the guts to expose Satan (them). The backslidden, denominational churches that have merged with the Vatican say that "nowhere in the Bible, does God or His Son, Christ Jesus, answer back, or command their children to answer back."

In the Bible - from the book of Genesis to the book of Revelation - God, His Son Christ Jesus, the patriarchs, prophets, disciples, and apostles answered Satan back on every point, whenever his false doctrine came their way.³⁸ We are commanded by Jesus to use the sword (the Word of God) to defend and preserve the Gospel by answering Satan back (on every point) with zeal and boldness.³⁹ We are commanded to answer back Satan's fallacies (twisting of the Word) as Jesus did when He answered back the devil on the Mount of Temptation (Matt. 4:3-11).

Paul, by the Holy Spirit, said, "Preach the Word," all the Word (II Tim. 4:2). Don't leave out the scriptures regarding the Antichrist, the false prophets, answering back, rebuking, and reproof. Jesus said that we live (go to Heaven) by every Word that proceeds from the mouth of the living God (Matt. 4:4). This means the words about the Antichrist, the false prophets, etc. because Jesus said when we know the truth (all the truth, every word), the truth will set us free (John 8:32). But the Antichrist and his false prophets don't want you to be free because their master is Satan, who likes to keep people in bondage. If they do not want people to be in bondage, then why do they become so angry when the whole of God's Word is preached (which sets you free from Satan)? And why would they call preaching all the Word evil, hatred, bias, and prejudice if they're not from Satan?

The Antichrist and his false prophets say that we are not to do anything-concerning serving God-with passion. They say keeping God's commandments, preaching and doing God's Word passionately is sin. But in the book of Revelation, Jesus commands us to be zealous or He would spit us out of His mouth (Rev. 3:16). Zeal and boldness (passion) are the bylaws of God and His anointed. We are commanded to do whatsoever we do, as unto the Lord (Col. 3:23) with the whole heart (Matt. 22:37), with zeal (passion). And if people are offended by God's Word (any of it), God says that they are brutish (like beasts). And God also says that being offended or rejecting His Word is sin.⁴⁰ To reject the Word of God is to reject Christ, and it is only by our acceptance (belief) of the Word, which is Christ, that we become saved. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ [the Word], and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:31).

The Vatican, through its Mafia, first destroyed the morals of the country with pornography, prostitution, narcotics, manufacturing and distribution of alcohol, etc. Now with false acts of piety, she is trying to bring in laws of censorship on all the smut that she herself has created in our nation and throughout the world.

This is this cult's deceptive, vile way to make you believe that she is good, decent, pure, and pious. This is also her first attempt at world-wide censorship.⁴¹ Her second motive with this censorship will be to censor all speech, including the Bible-except the way she wants the Bible preached, which is the exact opposite of the Bible.⁴² She knows that the world is not aware of her satanic way of doing things, and the world-that is not aware that she created all this smut and indecency in the first place-will applaud her and worship her because of this premeditated "noble" act. This is to lure everyone that is ignorant of her and her devices away from the Lord and unto herself.

The future plans that she has for these blind people is Hell. Misery loves company, and Satan and his followers don't wish to burn alone. They want you, dear heart, to share eternity with them in Hell's torment.⁴³ Do you want what they want for you? Or do you want what Jesus has prepared for you, which is everlasting happiness with Him away from all evil, away from all deception, and away from all possibilities of any kind of harm?⁴⁴

Don't live for this temporary world, which is so brief.⁴⁵ Plan your future eternally by learning about the plan that the Creator and Ruler of the universe has made for you-by rejecting this obvious satanic cult's plan of rulership of the world by the devil and his Roman Catholic cult that is so vain and brief.⁴⁶ If you don't, it would show God that you are as satanic and defiant as this devil who calls himself God's vicar, "god" himself on this globe. Get right with God-right away before it's too late (like it already is for the devil). His smoke from Hell shall ascend up for ever and ever (Rev. 14:11).

"Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool" through the blood of Jesus (Isa. 1:18).

In God's love, He sent to die for us that which He loved the most (His Son). Jesus loved us so much that He laid down His life and shed His blood for us, so our sins could be purged, forgiven.⁴⁷ If we love as God and His Son, Christ Jesus, have loved us, then will we give up our sins and former wicked way of life, learn the Word of God correctly, and give His truths to this world that has been lied to for so long-that they may have this life that God and His Son have given so freely. But how can they know without a preacher (not a novice, but one who has learned all the ways of the Lord)?⁴⁸

"But if ye refuse and rebel, ye shall be devoured with the sword: for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it" (Isa. 1:20).

If you would like to be saved then say this prayer, and you will be:

Prayer

My Lord and my God, have mercy upon my soul, a sinner. 1 I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of the Living God. 2 I believe that He died on the cross and shed His precious blood for the forgiveness of all my sins. 3 I believe that God raised Jesus from the dead by the power of the Holy Spirit 4 and that He sits on the right hand of God at this moment, hearing my confession of sin and this prayer. 5 I open up the door of my heart and I invite You into my heart, Lord Jesus. 6 Wash all of my filthy sins away in the precious blood that You shed in my place on the cross at Calvary. 7 You will not turn me away, Lord Jesus, You will forgive my sins and save my soul. I know because Your Word, the Bible says so. 8 Your Word says that You will turn no one away, and that includes me. 9 Therefore, I know that You have heard me, and I know that You have answered me, and I know that I am saved. 10 And I thank You, Lord Jesus, for saving my soul, and I will show my thankfulness by doing as You command and sin no more.

Now that you are saved, raise your hands towards Heaven and praise the Lord.

After you have said this prayer and know that you are saved, read the King James Version of the Bible and some original texts. And call or write us soon for instructions on how to receive power from God by receiving the Baptism of the Holy Spirit, and for instructions on how to please the Lord fully.

You've just completed the first step in a series of five steps which are necessary to receive salvation. Your second step is to deny yourself and take up the cross daily for the purpose of mortifying yourself, that is, for putting to death your own will, your soulful self, and the world with all of its lusts. All these must be baptized into the death of Christ.

Step three is your resurrection from the satanic life of Adam unto the sinless life of Christ. Step four is your ascension into a position of authority to reign for God on earth, and the fifth step is to reign for God on earth to the end for the purpose of bringing about the kingdom of Heaven on earth. You must learn the Word of God, then submit yourself and do what the Word says, so that the Church and the world may see evidence of your submission to God's Word, His order, and His authority in and by you.

Praise the Lord. May God reward you abundantly.

HERE ARE SOME MORE OF THE POPE'S SECRETS

The Vatican is so mysterious that most of the priests, nuns and members on the lower level of their clergy and people who work on the lower level of federal government agencies don't know that they're part of the world's largest cult and that narcotics, prostitution, pornography, booze, and the black market-every filthy thing-can be traced right back to the Vatican and her government agencies.⁴⁹ Defectors from this large sect, the Roman Catholic cult, have stated that 68% of the Vatican's clergy are guilty of homosexuality, lesbianism, and fornication. All these acts are absolutely forbidden by God and will cause their souls to go to Hell if they don't repent.⁵⁰ Down through the ages, many notables have called the Vatican a "sewer of corruption."

A former high-ranking Jesuit priest who worked in the Vatican for years and answered only to the pope reported to me that when today's pope, John Paul II, was a priest in Krakow, Poland, factory workers became angry with the future pope (John Paul II). It was reported that many of the factory workers wanted to kill him, and they stated that they did not want him to come around anymore. And when he would, they would throw oily rags at him because it was reported that he was molesting their little children. They also reported that he (now Pope John Paul II) is a homosexual. This explains all the new Vatican federal government regulations regarding nondiscrimination against homosexuals.

In a book about love (lust) that Pope John Paul II wrote when he was a priest, he repeatedly quotes Sigmund Freud as though he were quoting holy writ. Sigmund Freud, a Jew who converted to Roman Catholicism, is well-known as the world's foremost pervert. Satan, through the Vatican's one-world government, church, and media, raised him up, along with the whole psychiatric field, to do away with the words "sin" and "guilt." The Vatican could then use psychologists and psychiatrists to commit to mental institutions people who profess faith in God's supernatural dealings with mankind, both today and in the past. These psychologists and psychiatrists and the Vatican's heavyweight news media continuously mock (make fun of) anyone who exposes, through God's Word, this cult, which God calls "the whore" in Revelation, and anyone who stands on every Word of God, which includes Christ's commands to raise the dead, to heal the sick, to cast out devils, to be born again, to resist and expose the devil (the whore of Revelation). John Paul II and Freud's perversions run parallel, as he admits in his book.

Now that he has hit the "big-time" (ruler of his Roman Catholic cult and federal government agencies), he can make laws in accordance with the way he thinks. He now wishes for us to live out his fantasies by making laws forcing both young men and women to have to use the same toilets in college dormitories. His perverted brain rejoices as he sees the human race forced by law to participate in his style of kink. These new Roman canon laws of perversion and death are enforced by two of his federal government agencies called the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Department of Education,⁵¹ which sound very official, and it makes them as much of a disguise as the whole Vatican operation's false Snow White image.

In the spiritual war between God and Satan, we rejoice and are exceedingly glad because Jesus said, "Great is your reward in Heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you" (Matt. 5:12). We are the strongest fundamental Christian organization in the world (and are very proud of that fact).

Some false publications which perjure themselves (some that deceptively even print Bibles) and do not listen to Jesus, who said, "Do violence to no man, neither accuse any falsely" (Luke 3:14), have included us in their books about cults. Because of their blatant lies, and because of our necessity to uphold the integrity of the Lord's work, we had to check out these sinister publications, and of course, found them to be run by the Jesuit-Vatican cult.

"What mean ye that ye beat My people to pieces, and grind the faces of the poor? saith the Lord GOD of hosts" (Isa. 3:15).

Don't you know "whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap" (Gal. 6:7)? And God will do to you manifold that which you have done to others... "Vengeance is Mine; I will repay, saith the Lord," "I will recompense" (Rom. 12:19, Heb. 10:30).

We are joyful because our reward is great because of the lies that they have told about us (Jesus said so) (Matt. 5:11-12).

The Vatican's federal government agencies and her heavyweight news media (in concert) have also made it possible for us to have much great joy and abundant rewards in Heaven because they have jointly taken us into court on false charges and have launched slanderous campaigns against us continuously for the last fifteen years. Under investigation, we found both the heavyweight news media,⁵³ and of course, the aforementioned government agencies, secretly Vatican controlled and/or owned. We thank You and praise You, Jesus, for showing these facts to us, and for guaranteeing us our most certain rewards. The Psalmist David writes:⁵²

"The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together, against the Lord, and against His anointed, saying, Let us break their bands asunder, and cast away their cords from us. He [God] that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh: the Lord shall have them in derision. Then shall He speak unto them in His wrath, and vex them in His sore displeasure" (Psa. 2:2-5).

FEARFUL REWARD FOR THOSE WHO FIGHT AGAINST GOD

Include in your prayers all these unfortunates who fight God, His Son, Christ Jesus, the Holy Spirit, and God's anointed, for if they continue on, there is a certain fearful reward for them. We, like our Father which is in Heaven, and His Son, Christ Jesus, don't wish that anyone should go to Hell. That's why we instruct all people to pray in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ that they can find Christ as their personal Savior and start doing good by working for Him instead of doing the unfruitful works of unrighteousness, the end of which is everlasting Hell and damnation. (Not that we pray for the devil or for those that have blasphemed the Holy Spirit, we pray not for them [I John 5:16]). Our church has expanded and grown much stronger as Jesus said we would under persecution. If God so loved the world, shouldn't we? This exposé is written in love so that precious souls won't be deceived by the Vatican and her associates any more, take the mark of the beast, and go to Hell.⁵⁴

Everyone who uncovered facts about this cult (the Roman Catholic cult) and her associates has historically, and right up to this day, been called heretical, vicious, dangerous, secret, religiously bigoted, etc., and has fallen prey to her massive character assassination campaigns.

They also say that we have Vatican paranoia. Did Abraham Lincoln and John F. Kennedy have Vatican paranoia? And all the millions of people today who are being hassled and harassed by the Vatican federal and state government agencies plus those who don't have a job and are hungry (some sitting in jails because they were forced to steal because of hunger), do they all have Vatican paranoia?

Because of this exposé, the Roman Catholic cult will act as if they (of all people) are being persecuted, and will say innocently, "Why is this happening to us?" knowing that those who are ignorant of the things she does will feel sympathy for her. (I have no sympathy for the devil.) I didn't write the Word of God, I just preach it. God doesn't hate good, only evil.⁵⁵

The Vatican and her people all deserve the Academy Award Oscar for the best performance of innocency and piety, and also for make-up and wardrobe design, making her outward appearance that of Snow White. Underneath her Snow White outfit, there are running, festering sores and ringworm. On the outside she smiles sweetly and says, "I love you, brother," but behind her bony back, she hides hands that drip with the blood of martyrs.

Here is an example of how the Vatican always covers herself. When she saw that World War II (another Vatican inquisition) was being lost, she quickly hid, in one instance, one thousand Jews so that, after killing six million Jews, she could say, "We hid and protected the Jews; we love the Jews." This is the actual truth of what the Vatican did.

Speaking of Academy Awards, the Vatican has long time been in the movie industry.⁵⁷ Hollywood, influenced by a powerful Roman Catholic lobby, furnished us with films like "The Song of Bernadette," "Going My Way," and a number of exciting films glorifying this Roman Catholic cult. On the other hand, they pushed movies like "Elmer Gantry," showing crooked Protestant evangelists. Do you remember "Dragnet" on television? The Christian was always pictured with a big Bible, smiling after he had strangled grandma up in the attic.⁵⁸ And always the priests were the well-respected, highly-paid stars like Bing Crosby and Barry Fitzgerald. You see, we are hit psychologically on many fronts by the Vatican (the leader of the one-world church and all the world governments).

Continuing her role as Snow White, the Vatican is using her own media to promote a three-hour CBS propaganda extravaganza white-washing her clay god, the cult leader.

I'm sure the oily rag throwing incident was left out of the script.

There are many beautiful people in the Roman Catholic cult who are not wealthy, some are even very poor, and who are not seeking for high position. Most are very humble. These common people are completely unaware of the wickedness that has been and is being committed by the Roman cult, which they have been told is a church. Because God knows their sincere hearts (He is the God of our heart), He says unto these ignorant people "Come out of her, My people" (Rev. 18:4). So let's pray they will soon.

A grim reminder to the satanic super-boss (the pope) who runs the Roman house of prostitution and the governments that give her power, your reign is very short lived, thus saith the Lord.

"For in one hour so great riches is come to nought" (Rev. 18:17).

"And her smoke rose up for ever and ever" (Rev. 19:3).

"And I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet" (Rev. 16:13).

The Jewish priesthood ended at Calvary;⁵⁹ nowhere in the Bible has God ever given authority of priesthood to Italians, Poles, or any other race of people, other than the Jews. And out of the twelve Jewish tribes, only from the tribe of Levi did God bring forth priests.⁶⁰ This shows that the Vatican is unscriptural and living in a world of fantasy and make-believe. When Jesus said, "It is finished," Jesus became the only High Priest (John 19:30).⁶¹

The Vatican wants to move from Rome to Jerusalem. On September 26, 1973, the "Houston Chronicle" reported that the politically power-hungry Henry Kissinger helped this super-cult (the Vatican) by proposing "that Jerusalem become an international city with the control of holy places and the religious administration being given to the pope."

The Bible never mentions purgatory or any similar sort of place, but the Bible does plainly say, "It is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment" (Heb. 9:27). And God said, it's either Heaven or Hell, nothing else.⁶² You can't buy your way into Heaven, and you can't buy your way out of Hell.

Nowhere in the New Testament does it say to kill people who don't believe the way we do. The Vatican, however, calls such killing "holy war" and condones it, proving again that she is completely cultish and unscriptural.

Fifty years ago Archbishop Gilroy said:

"Because of our Catholic control of the post office, the postal department has the means of checking the whereabouts of certain non-Roman Catholics [heretics] in regards to their movements and certain situations. And while we have such men in control in our post office and in your service, we need not be afraid of our secret police being criminally detected."

Knowing these facts, it's clear why the postal department is currently trying to take away our bulk rate mail status. They are criminally suppressing freedom of speech and freedom of religion, our two last constitutional guarantees that the Vatican is quickly and quietly trying to do away with. State and federal agencies, with their news media and judicial systems in every nation, under instructions from Rome, will certainly say that The Pope's Secrets is "hate" literature, and they will tell you that I am your enemy. But, as the Apostle Paul said, so say I, "Am I therefore become your enemy, because I tell you the truth?" (Gal. 4:16).

Telling the truth, so that people can escape world dominion under the cruel leadership of Satan's vicar, with his hateful and dictatorial Roman Canon principles, instead of our godly U.S. Constitution (which is law in the United States), and so that people of all nations can escape the mark of the beast and Hellfire-is that hatred? Jesus said that telling the truth is love and commands us to go into all nations preaching the truth,⁶³ for Jesus said, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" (John 8:32).

You can either believe the pope or me. I have revealed unto you just a few of the pope's secrets. God said that the pope's organization is the mother of every abomination on earth, not 99% of the abominations, but every abomination. Read your King James Version Bible and see if I am or am not telling you the truth. Believe God. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:31).⁶⁴

shushan - February 22, 2007 12:32 AM (GMT)

Eric Phelps, Author of Vatican Assassins: Wounded In the House of My Friends, <http://www.vaticanassassins.org/> Will Be Speaking This Coming Saturday, the 24th at the Microtel in Belleview, Florida at 10:00 a.m. Belleview Microtel is located off the I-75 Exit for Belleview on County Road 484 Behind the Tractor Supply. Refreshments are available in the lobby. If directions are needed please contact Pastor Mike Slattery at 352 362 2212 or Yelena at 352 362 5586.

Please if you cannot join us ... please pass this on to all your contacts and e mail lists and help us get the word out .

Sadly, last year when Eric Phelps was here in Florida there was not one single church that would invite this great historian to speak. Cowards... fearful and unbelieving ...

Mennonite cages still hang in Europe.. but back then men were BRAVE and they dared to speak out truth against this old scarlett harlot Rome.

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 22, 2007 12:49 AM (GMT)

I think Eric Phelps should have planned this for a time a little further ahead. I would not personally do this right now. Remember his new book is out shortly as its now completed. This is a great opportunity for the JESUIT ORDER to give Eric the 'Cup of Borgia' or simply use their frequency weapons such as STONE-R which the FBI Division #5 assassins working for the Defense Industrial Security Command use as well as CIA and NSA agents. Remember what happened to that whistleblower who attempted to talk in Blackpool, England recently with these frequency weapons. So don't be surprised if this happens and believe me God will NOT protect Eric Phelps as he thinks but only his alteration of his reality via deep conscious belief he's protected will save him. It doesn't matter how you believe it comes about, if you have deep enough beliefs you will alter your own destiny etc. Learn more on the Matrix as its termed and the Holographic Universe information from Michael Talbot etc. -2tuff

P.S Theres hardly any true PROTESTant churches anymore and you'll probably find that almost all especially in America will have been infiltrated. Remember way back they were training up to 800-900 a year at Georgetown University for infiltration in the Protestant churches and so forth.

shushan - February 22, 2007 01:36 AM (GMT)

2 Tuff ,

I used to believe that I could alter my own destiny too... creating and projecting my own desires ... Deepak Chopra.. new age stuff .. the themes are always the same.. How to get what you want and maximize yourself.. how to give yourself glory .

Did you know that was the same EXACT trick Satan used in the garden.? Satan promised... Ye shall be as god (create your own destiny)and by this the entire creation fell under a divine curse.. pain, death suffering... . Satan is a such liar. Satan promises fair and performs nothing .

I suspect Eric is in a place where he rests in Providence. Resting in letting HIS will be done and not our own.. There is great peace in that.

What is the worst those jesuits can do to us? Send us home to Father? Not till the Lord wills . Fear not the face of men .

Many blessings.

Sorry my friend but the indoctrination of Religion as a method of control always tries to put deeper truth down as controlled by Satan to put the person off actually investigating it himself.

Satan this and that, Satan is simply the Planet Saturn, 666. Its all coded mythical stories including even the Saturnalian Brotherhood which came before all of these modern day controlling religions. The truth really is that its not even Astro-theology at the heart of all this religious information as such. Deeper we find its simply a full understanding of the human body plain and simple. What very clever people have done is created a bunch of controlling myths to control people. Stop falling for all this Satan crap, theres no Satan its simply the dark side of the human nature and a representation of this. At least the Saturnalian Brotherhoods religious version made more sense than todays nonsense. At least we can see the planets and so forth.

It is the masses who've been indoctrinated by religion and lies which make it difficult for us as individuals and small groups to create our own destiny and matrix involvement. Gradually we're getting there as more people learn the truth and drop their chains.

So if Eric mysteriously dies during or after this event then we will know the JO & CO "whacked" him.

You are so right on this. Men for power for greed and control to this till this day and this since the beginning of time.

And in my humble opinion, since there are countless of universes, perhaps others that are controlling us humans.

As you say there is no Satan per say but there can still be some other hierarchy influencing us just like us are influencing the Indians of the amazons in brazil to extinction.

One of my best friend gods rests his soul hitchhike and met a NASA astronaut in the California desert in the 70's. During the ride and during the their conversation he admitted that UFos and aliens were present out there watching them from a distant.

They have always been present but man as either taken them for Gods or Demons and they have built myths and religions because their encounters with them.

Your words.....Gradually we're getting there as more people learn the truth and drop their chains.....

are right on target.

Peace and Greetings Mr. Oxley I agree and respectfully disagree with various assertions and conclusions. The answer is as close as on top of our necks, encased within our head is the most complex and powerful object in the known Multiverse, OUR MIND. I am sure(you are learned and informed) you have studied the science of the Brain and Mind. Indeed it was an Apostle who exhorted us to believe with our Mind not our Heart or emotions. As I stated in another thread, no one can dispute we as a species utilize less than 50% of our Mind. There is a reason for this. We are so emotionally underdeveloped that a 12 year old, in a fit of pique, with 100% use of mind, would be able to destroy the Planet. For this reason we are deliberately governed. As an example of a Human who has 100% use of Mind please look at Yahshua Messiah. The miracles that are attributed are an example of the capabilities of a Human with full use and control of their Mind and Emotions. At this Time we are all in training and a tremendous record of wrong thinking and acting is being compiled, for future reference. As for Hillel(Satan, Lucifer) I, personally am convinced she is a being and does exist (Ezekiel 28) and I would be glad to run the whole topic around the Block should you or another desire more information. As for gradually evolving to a higher state, I think you are a Cockeyed Optimist(Dirty Harry). With the introduction of Prions and Radionucleides into our environment we have crossed a threshold that is poisoning all Life on our Planet. And that is a shame. Let me end by thanking you Mr. Oxley. You have compiled a wonderful plethora of information of great value to your fellow Humans and for this I am in your debt. Thank You.

So are you saying, for instance, that the collective phenom embodied by establishments like the Church of Satan et. al. and all the fraternities and clandestine organizations that conduct satanic ritual are merely worshiping a thoughtform devoid of an actual being, but a thoughtform that simply and most typically manifests in this kind of behavior?

That notion is certainly one not easy to fathom. Pick any well-known faith, religion, practice, even loosley-held ones like sports idols, movie idols, political heroes, literary idols, as well as the ancient ones, and these always boil down to worhsip of a founding "who" (a person) a being, as THE patriarch hero and idol of worship. So, now we are talking about a practice that has no actual who to worship, but merely a founding patriarch what (a non person, but just an idea), and that what is merely an emobdiment of a specific thought; and that what/thought/idea embodies only a specific behavior without any actual founding animate person or being behind it?

2 tuff...

I agree with your stance on organized religion. I grew up with atheist parents so I was not really exposed to religion much.. but somewhere along the line I happened to get a Bible .

A little child who can read knows that what men call churches God calls whores.

What men call pastors ? Father calls ...greedy dogs that cannot get enough.. ravening wolves... He hates those wicked beasts..

2 tuff.. Did you read about the child in Florida who found the massive fossil find? Sierra is my neighbor. We have been smashing rocks together since she was four.

Government came in and searched the Sweeney house to make sure Sierra had no fossils in her possession . Why do you think they searched? What are they afraid of?

And what is the reason why they REALLY have Kent Hovind in jail? Why such a tight security on ANYTHING having to do with this massively tax funded theory of evolution? There are more pages on Wikipedia slandering Kent Hovind than there are pages about Pol Pot, Castro or Jeffrey Dahmer! All this for a little creationist fellow with a unaccredited degree? Doesnt that seem ODD to you-- from a conspiracy perspective ?

Sierra found giant armadillos the size of Volkswagen Beetles!

Ge 6:4 - There were giants in the earth in those days

Genesis planet was pristine.. Men lived to be almost a thousand before the flood .

Reptiles grow all of their lives.. As long as it lives a reptile will keep growing and growing and growing . If men lived to be 1000 .. can you IMAGINE how big the lizards got? Terrible lizard! Dino= terrible .. saur= lizard... Terrible lizards, those dinosaurs!

The Bible is the Word of the Living God. I am certain of that.

Thanks for answering... Here is the article about the fossils :

Fla. Teen Stumbles Upon Mammoth Tooth
By Associated Press

February 20, 2007, 6:30 PM EST

SEMINOLE, Fla. -- A 16-year-old high school student stumbled upon what archaeologists say could be the biggest fossil find in Pinellas County in nearly a century. A shiny black rock caught Sierra Sarti-Sweeney's eye as she was taking pictures last month in Boca Ciega Millennium Park.

"I looked down and saw a huge bone that could not be a rock. Most of it was exposed, but we dug and found that it was bigger and bigger. I thought, 'Oh my gosh, what are these? Are they people bones?'" she said.

The jaw and tooth weigh 65 pounds and are about a yard long. Sarti-Sweeney took the bones home and, after some online research with her older brother, determined the football-sized rock was actually the tooth of a long-extinct mammoth.

Paleontology and archaeology experts have confirmed the find, and recent digging at the site has turned up teeth and bones from a second mammoth, giant sloths, camels, turtles with shells up to 6-feet-long, saber-toothed cats and giant armadillos the size of Volkswagen Beetles.

Scientists believe the remains are between 10,000 and 100,000 years old.

"It's possible that it's an old river valley, (and) the animals got caught in the muck or the river washed all these animals down into one place at one time," he said. "We can get a better handle on it by analyzing the soil," said Richard Estabrook, director of USF's Florida

And if you read along in Genesis, you notice that man's lifespan becomes dramatically shorter after the Flood.

There used to be a mist coming up from the ground--there was no need for rain. After the flood, everything changed.

Description: quite a transcript

Daryl Bradford Smith talks with Barry Chamish

Unlike most of our interviews, this did not go too well.

It started out fine, but after a while Smith pressed Chamish to name some of the people at the Vatican who are responsible for the world's corruption.

Chamish mentioned Charlemagne, but Smith complained that he wanted names of people alive today. Chamish mentioned Ehud Olmert, but Smith complained about that, also. Chamish hung up the phone after a while.

Chamish suffered a stroke in 2006, so perhaps his brain is not functioning correctly:
www.thebarrychamishwebsite.com/newsletters/fewwords30906.htm

This would explain why Chamish is so popular with Jeff Rense, Alex Jones, Greg Szymanski, and other people who try to shift blame for 9/11 away from Israel and onto the Vatican.

Chamish has a web site:

AntiSionist - February 14, 2007 04:10 AM (GMT)

Daryl: Barry are you with me?

Barry: I am.

D: Barry, earlier, we were discussing some of the historical events that in both our views, well we parted on several issues but let's start from the beginning. Your goal is to make sure that Israel's future is assured. Is that correct.

B: Yeah.

D: And the idea of Israel started when , in your view?

B:Again, there's a mess going on with the Zionis tmovement. This movement, we call them the Bolshevik Zionists or labour Zionists. They took over a movement that had potential to be fair.

D:From what group did it take over? The Jabotinskies right?

B:Well, the Sabbateans go back to 1666.

D:No the Jabotinsky.

B:Oh yeah he was a revisionist Zionist. They were the ones who got the plans that the Bolshevik Zionists were going to do. If you don't know what the transfer agreement is...

D:Well I know what it is.

B:Okay it's a very nasty agreement cut with the nazis in 1933. This was the Bolshevik Zionists or the Sabbateans as I call them but I won't go into it now. The Germans banned all jewish groups but labour zionism. In 1932, there were over 250 jewish groups in Germany. In 1934, there was one. And only one. Labour Zionism. Unfortunately, the transfer agreement said that Germans make life impossible for the jews; they come to Palestine...

D:But wasn't there a deal back in the twenties that said that there were jews boycotting everything German in the world.

B:That was in the nineteen thirties after Hitler came to power.

D:No this is before that.

B:Why would there be an anti-german?...Before Hitler came to power, why would there be an anti...

D:NO the german jews were encouraged to turn on Germany by people like Baruch and Morgenthal.

B:This is silly.

D:Why?

B:Because it didn't happen.

D:The history books said it did.

B:Well I know my people well. Mr. Baruch and all the people in the FDR administration, and that was later than 1920 by the way, but still, they did rise. And these were the Sabbatean jews. Some are anyway, and they made sure the holocaust took place. That's a different history and you're mixing things up. Now let's go back.

D:Okay.

B:There was an agreement signed by the jewish agency of Israel...of Jerusalem that germans would make life so rotten that german jews would come to Palestine. They got about eighty thousand. Then the British cut off the gates of Palestine and left all the jews of europe to face their own masters. It was the most awful deal. The Jabotinsky group went to America and tried to organize riots, protests, anything against the Nazis. But they were stopped by the...

D:But there was an action back when they returned. After the signing of the Balfour documents and the return of these jewish emmisaries to Britian, when they got the signature of the United States and Mr. Wilson to sign on to entering world war one, the deal was that America would provide the fighting force for the US and these jewish emmisaries to...

B:Oh there were some jewish crackpots who you can get on the internet...

D:But these are part of the history books.

B:No they're not.

D:Yes they are.

B:You're claiming jews made America enter world war one to destroy Germany. There is one person who've ever made that claim. And that's Myron someone from the fifties. Look...

D:Myron Fagan.

B:Yeah. That's the only time I've heard that.

D:But it's in the history books. I read this.

B:Yeah, you just turned up Morgestern or whatever.

D:Morgenthall. His family still runs new york now.

B:Listen if you want the real history...

D:According to who?

B:Go on to lulu.com

D:What is that?

B:Just hear me out. You're interrupting me. No one can talk like this.

D:I need to know what lulu is.

B:You can get my book SHABTAI TZVI, LABOR ZIONISM AND THE HOLOCAUST. Type in my name and you'll get all the books you need to prove whatever you want, but the fact is...

<http://www.lulu.com/content/336970>

D:Are they going to prove anything you want or anything that is factual?

B:This is a silly question.

D:They're not. They need to be asked.

B:No. Now if you want to hear me talk, I'll tell you what happened. But if you want to instill all these other things...

D:I'm not instilling, I'm just asking...

B:But you're interrupting me. I've never had a worse interview.

D:It won't get better from here. What you need to do is you need to clarify your sources.

B:No I don't.

D:You do. This is what's called...Barry, listen. You have due dilligence. This is what you need to do.

B:You're gonna lecture me on due dilligence?

D:Yes I am.

B:(unintelligible).site of yours is not due dilligence. That site of yours is a mish-mash of everything you could pick up that might look bad for Zionism. Look, the knowledge I have isn't that good to begin with. But unfortunately, (unintelligible) revealed, we loose Israel. That's a very difficult thing. Now I expose the Rabin assassiation. Now Rabin was murdered by Simon Peres. This is a hard thing for jews to live with. But I proved it. Everyone knows in Israel that I was right. The polls say so. With research, no one does a better job. And you'll just have to accept it.

D:Who? Do you?

B:I'm telling you straight up. You can go look it up afterwards.

D:On what subject do you to the best research?

B: My subject is the modern history of ISrael.

D:Ah.

B:Now we go backwards where you can go if you want. It's the site www.thebarrychamishwebsite.com

D:Uh huh

B:It's a nice site. And guess what? the jews don't like it so you can be happy about that. Now why they don't like it is a sad fact that jews can be fooled into committing suicide. That holocaust was done, and this not something jews want to hear, but without that transfer agreement I doubt there could have been a holocaust. Things we so bad that the jewish agency signed with the nazis a deal to get jews to palestine. Jews don't like to hear that. And I'm hoping to get rid of these people running Israel. Because, and here's something that will make you ecstatic, there won't be an Israel much longer. It's been slowly disintegrated.

D:Now wait a minute. You are mixing your own ideas aobut me into your own rhetoric here. That's not fair. What you need to do is understand I don't give a rats ass if you're jewish or from mars. The simple fact is Barry,

B:How did you know I was from mars?

D:Obviously you sometimes discuss things as though you were.

B:No I don't.

D:Yes you do. You try to frame arguments in terms of your own argument rather than in terms of the facts.

B:No I don't. Now let me go on. Now next...

D:You see, this is what I'm talking about.

B:This is not a radio interview. Now I'm going to go back and instill some history. There was a major meeting in Jerusalem in 1898.

D:But what happened before that?

B:I want to talk about 1898.

D:But you can't say that unless you know what happened in Switzerland before that. Because it's moot in its importance unless you say that Theodore Herzl

B:And you don't know what happened in 1896 when Kaiser Wilhelm (unintelligible), met in Konstantinople. Listen stop this. I'm trying to make a point and all you do is interrupt.

D:No I don't because you're not flowing, but go ahead.

B:In 1896, Kaiser Wilhelm and Herzl father of Zionism met in Konstantinople. We don't know what was agreed to but we know that Kaiser Wilhelm went to Jerusalem in 1898. People didn't come to Jerusalem in 1898. There were no roads. There were bandits. It was dangerous. It wasn't a hospitable population but Wilhelm went there and consecrated three churches. The very important one was the Mission Abbey modeled after Charlemagne's first cathedral in the city of (unintelligible). This is german control over Jerusalem. They built it on the highest mountain in Jerusalem, mt. zion. This is now an issue in Israel where the Germans want mt. zion back and the Vatican's backing them. Nonetheless, there was someone else at that meeting. This was the most important thing that happened. That someone else was Theodore Herzl. He trecked up to Jerusalem without his rogues and bandits to meet Kaiser Wilhelm. Now you go into your internet and look up Kaiser Wilhelm Theodore Herzl Jerusalem 1898, and you'll find over and over that Wilhelm rebuffed Herzl. Rebuffing can only mean one thing Herzl wanted a state and the Germans said no. The reason is the Germans had to make war to get that state and they weren't prepared to do so. They made an alliance with the Turks. Herzl returned to England and said the German Turkish alliance is too strong.

D:hy would they be making a state out of an area that...

B:That goes back to something I haven't touched on. There's a Sabbatean...there's a bad side of Judaism. We've been infiltrated.

D:That's SHABTAI TZVI. He ended up renouncing Judaism and and becoming a Muslim because he was under threat of death in front of the Ottoman King.

B:The Sultan.

D:Yeah the Stulan. but what he ended up doing was having his followers infiltrating the Ottoman Empire and become what we know today as the new turks or the young turks. These young turks still hold sway to this day.

B:That happened again from the meeting in Jerusalem.

D:But you don't deny that Turkey is held today still by the young turks.

B:Well I have no problem with that.

D:o the jews still run Turkey.

B:Well they're Muslims they're in fact Sabbateans.

D:No because they're like the Morranos of southern uh, uh,

B:Well they've mixed so many times they're not even jews genetically.

D:Ah.

B:They're sabbateans. Now they started in 1666 the Sabbateans. SHABTAI TZVI declared a new messiah had arrived. Him. He used these biblical dates June 18 1666 which leads me to believe that only the Vatican had the power and influence to spread his name worldwide and use this Christian imagery for his messiah, for the new messiah.

D:So the Vatican took over Turkey?

B:Well there's a combinaton here and I will get to that but logically. The Sabbateans... you're right. Most of Judaism after...don't forget, more than half the jews in the world accepted him as the new messiah. His tenets call for the opposite of the Torah being true. Do not kill became kill. The early labour zionists in Israel had a ball with wife swapping and all kinds of sabbatean tenets. That's what these german jews were turned into. The other side of it,

D:I thought that was talmudic.

B:It's not Talmudic. What I've just discussed is the opposite of the Talmud. What you have right now is SHABTAI TZVI whose been forced by the Sultan of Turkey to accept Islam or be beheaded. He accepts Islam, but one cult, the (unintelligible), thought that was a secret message that they must convert. So they started converting. Now I'm jumping ahead here, because Jacob Frank, er I won't jump ahead. I'll tell you. Jacob Frank in 1785 was a Sabbatean from Poland. He was converting jews by the thousands into Catholicism. They became spies all over Europe and he had a meeting in Frankfurt which is the capital of conspiracy. That's the home of Mayer Amschel Rothschild. Another member at that meeting. He was Weishaupt. He was a jesuit chief of the Illuminati.

D:No what I understand from what my research was that the Illuminati was formed in the opposite direction because Weishaupt had no financial strength, but the moneys that came from the Rothschild fortune...

B:That's was afterwards. Don't mix it up again. The Illuminati had one purpose. That was to destroy the Protestant Reformation. The pope was going crazy. The Illuminati was going to go into Protestant nations and destroy their structures of family, patriotism, nationalism, religion, everything that kept these countries together was going to be under attack. That is the Illuminati. There was a meeting between Jacob Frank who is the new messiah of the jews. He believes the real messiah is SHABTAI TZVI. Now Weishaupt got along with this guy well enough. They both turned to Mayer Rothschild and offered themselves as spies. Rothschild did not want anything more than control of the world's money. He was a visionary. He saw that with enough spies entering the courts of Europe, he could get advanced information and get money. To get his way, Rothschild accepted this Sabbatean business and the Illuminati business. This is the conspiracy that controls the world and has for almost two hundred and fifty years. We're talking about a catholic and jewish conspiracy. But the fact is that Jacob Frank's Frankists were not jews. They were converting quite openly to Catholicism. And they had abandoned Judaism.

D:Barry we have to backtrack. Because for someone like myself who's not religious at all, and for others who've moved into the modern world, this becomes offensive.

B:Well it's history so it doesn't matter.

D:It's not offensive because it's being played out on our modern television screens in front of us.

B:The Sabbatean movement?

D:No the result of it all.

B:I don't know what...

D:Wait let me tell you how sickening it is. You have five million people in Israel.

B:Wait. You have about eight million in Israel, six of which are jews.

D:Okay, you have six million living in Israel. In Metropolitan Boston you have the same amount. Israel is on the front page of everyone's newspaper.

B:I don't want it there. What's your point?

D:Wait. Wait. Not only do we have to read about it, we have to finance it.

B:Who's asking for your money?

D:I'm not asking for it. AIPAC is stealing it. They're sending two point six billion dollars plus ten billion of un-repayable loans per year. Plus, everything...

B:You don't think there's a price tag attached to this? You actually believe this is free? I'm trying to explain something to you.

D:Nothing's free Barry.

B:You don't have to worry anymore. There won't be anymore Israel to take your money probably in the next missile war which will be this spring or summer. All that will be finished and you will worry no more.

D:Glory be.

B:I'm glad you're happy. Unfortunately, you don't have to attack Zionism. People more powerful than you have decided that Israel will go and those people are the ones I was talking about before.

D:No you weren't because Barry you have an idea is that your history is the only one that will be reckoned with...

B:What?

D:You see, when I discussed with you earlier, about some of these facts, the Khazarian facts...

B:They're not facts.

D:They are so. Why aren't they?

B:They're standard anti Semitism.

D:That's nonsense .

B:I knew the author. He wrote a book and he was a proud Israeli who lived in London.

D:Who?

B:Who wrote the Thirteenth Tribe?

D:Arthur Koestler.

B:Where do you think he was from?

D:So why did he write a book about the origins...

B:Anti-Semites worldwide took it. If Koestler was alive today, he would not be happy. There was a tribe. Big deal. The royal family converted to Judaism. They did not move en masse to Europe. There's not one Turkish word in Yiddish. Not a one. And if you think that jews didn't know where they were, and if you don't think the jews knew where they were in every little town in Russia...

D:But that is not what history proves.

B:No no.

D:You're on the wrong side Barry.

B:So you want to believe in these Khazarians. Go ahead. I got real issues here.

D:How do you explain Max Warburg spending his entire billion dollar fortune on the buildup of german factories before world war one, er two?

B:If he in fact did that,

D:Well he did Barry. I have proof of that.

B:It was Warburg from the Sabbatean side and it's this all over again, but you're not hearing this out. The Rothschilds were promoting a different agenda. You keep talking like Warburg was a jew when he wasn't.

D:He's jewish.

B: Look at his sons and daughters.

D: They're all jews now like the Schiff family.

B: The Schiff family are not jews anymore. One Schiff's grandson is married to Al Gore. Now listen. Jacob Schiff has a grandson married to Al Gore's daughter. Yeah, he's real jewish.

D: What does that have to do with anything?

B: They're not jewish. They let it slip. They believe in Sabbatean-ism. We're talking two different languages. If you want to attack jews, look at the business of the Sabbateans. Now let me explain who will destroy Israel. One is the Vatican Illuminati Jesuit gang. The second are the Sabbateans and that's the CFR. Now if you must know how it works, what happens often with the CFR is they promote someone to be like vice president or president. And someone does research on them. And low and behold what do we discover? John Kerry's father is a jew and he didn't know it? And Madeline Albright didn't know that she was raised by her jewish family?

D: And Hilary Clinton's grandmother was jewish?

B: She didn't say that. Don't interrupt when it's not right.

D: She said it.

B: It's not right to say that. It's irrelevant right now.

D: She said it in front of a jewish crowd in Israel. It was in Harretz.

B: That was irrelevant. That was a fact that had to get thrown out into the air. I'm trying to make a point. With the CFR's membership, often are exposed to a high rank...like Wesley Clark discovers his father and grandfather was jewish. The thing is there is a great deal of intermarriage in the CFR and this is where the CFR is a Sabbatean tool. The same people who have been running this planet and sending this planet to war are at it again and they have decided that Israel goes. And if you think the holocaust of the jews in the forties could be any different than what's coming up now, you're wrong. We have got infiltration from within. The worst enemies of Israel are not arabs. We're talking about Peres. Talking about people who can destroy the country and give it to the Vatican and that's what they're doing.

D: The Vatican? Who in the Vatican is doing this? Give me a name.

B: Charlemagne.

D: He's dead about 600 years ago.

B:It doesn't matter. You're talking about the German, um, Holy Roman Empire.

D:Barry who in the modern era is doing this?

B:Kaiser Wilhelm who put up the church...

D:He died a hundred years ago. Who in the modern era is doing this?

B:Are you out of your mind? What do you think president Katsav went to Rome last year for?

D:Then give me a name?

B:I gave you one and you interrupted me again. Why do you do that? I gave you a name and you're blocking it again.

D:No go head.

B:No you be quiet. President Katsav went to Germany, er went to the Vatican last year to negotiate the end of Israeli hegemony on Mount Zion. The issue in Israel won't go away. The Vatican want mt zion. They want the room where they think Christ had his last supper and they want it fast because Katsav is now being investigated on rape charges. So Olmert went to the Vatican a month and a half ago and it was sold outright. "We want that or you're going to become Katsav." And he is becoming Katsav.

D:Wait, I'm still asking you for some names of the, I can give you fifty names of Zionist jews killing us.

B:Pope Benedict XVI is a name. is a german pope. It's a name.

D:Who?

B:Katsav is a name. Peres is a name. Olmet is a name.

D:But those are jews. I want to know who in the catholic church who is doing it.

B:Pope Benedict XVI isn't a jew.

D:Who is doing this now?

B:I just said some names.

D:Barry, who is doing this?

B:You really think this is a rational conversation?

D:But Barry you're not telling me...

B:I mean seriously, in this show I have to interrupt you every two seconds

D:Yes you are interrupting me. I'm asking you a simple question.

B:I said the name...

D:No I'm asking you someone alive and breathing today.

B:You know what this is stupid. Let's just end this conversation.

D:Barry, I've never been in a conversation with someone who's so obfuscating in my whole life.

B:Okay fine do this. If you think Pope Benedict XVI is in fact,

D:Pope Benedict's dead! He's dead!

B:Pope Benedict is the pope of Rome. Listen, I'm gonna say it again. Pope Benedict XVI is the pope of rome and he's alive.

D:But no the guy was raised jewish.

(barry hangs up)

D:Well Mr. Chamish is all over the map with these facts. What bothers me is that some people will not solidify certain questions. He will always turn it over to a power that we know has been emasculated. What is that power? Look around you ladies and gentleman? Do you find catholic priests in charge of your media? Do they take over the French government and run for President? Is there a catholic priest right now destroying the American system through the media or other organs of power? Look at these things rationally. I don't know. I was not gonna have Barry on. But after talking to him, I couldn't believe some of what he said. Especially about the khazarian question. History has recorded that there was a mass conversion of a very large empire. How are we to figure that white skinned blue eyed people are jewish when jews are semitic and middle eastern? How do they become white as snow and blue eyed if it were not for conversion. Anyway, my name is Daryl Bradford Smith. Be well ladies and gentlemen. Bye bye now.

TruthSeeker24 - February 14, 2007 01:14 PM (GMT)

Daryl Smith is a lying bigot. This liar forgotten that Sefadi, Yemeni, etc. Jewish people live in Israel with no connection with the Khazars at all. These liars assume that people like me assume that we believe that white skinned and blue Eyed Jewish people are purely related to the Hebrews. I don't assume that, but I do assume that dark-skinned, dark eyed Jews living today in Israel are Semitic like those from North Africa, Africa, parts of Europe, and Asia. Also, me and Chamish don't omit the Zionist role in world affairs. In fact, I have links of Chamish writing about Israeli links to 9/11. Therefore, That's another lie by that liar Daryl Bradford Smith. I wrote long pages refuting Smith. I'm really angry. Barry CHamish refuted that clown on so many levels. I just read this transcript and Chamish tore this liar apart. This liar forgotten that Vatican Knight of St. Gregory Rupert Murdoch is a kingpin in the media and the Vatican mighty influence in promoting illegal immigration. I see Catholic Knights of Malta heads of corporations, I see the Pilgrim Society with massive economic power, and I see high level Freemasonry with mighty reach, so it isn't just Jewish people with great power despite what Smith says. This liar said name names. I've named names for a long time. Here's some names: Senator Richard J. Durbin, General Casey, J. Peter Grace, James Jesus Angleton, Jeb Bush, and others. I support the anti-Jesuit agenda of Barry Chamish. I'm really tempted to write a longer expose exposing that liar again.

I just couldn't believe Smith made so many errors. He said this jewish boycott of Germany happened in the twenties. It did not. It was in the thirties, this JUDEA DECLARES WAR ON GERMANY business.

Secondly, Chamish mentioned how the Israeli Prime Ministers are controlled by Rome in that they gave Mt Zion back to the Vatican. This logically explains how zionist jews are controlled but Daryl either doesn't know this or he does and he is the one obfuscating. If jews in Israel were so powerful, they wouldn't have to bow down to threats of, 'You'll become Katsav if you don't do what we want,' that come from Rome.

Thirdly, the Rothschilds came to power in the nineteenth century. The eighteenth century was not their time.

Fourthly, I used to listen to Smith quite religiously up until a few months ago when someone on another internet board woke me up to Rome and inspired me to go back through my Icke books and then look into Tsarion and Maxwell. I have never heard him mention the Jewish Cecil family. Hell, I first heard about them from 2stuff on here.

In this topic truthseeker, you mention how knights of Malta and Gentile Masons control the media.

http://z13.invisionfree.com/THE_UNHIVED_MI...showtopic=15019

I'm pretty sure Daryl reads this site. He has to especially since he's smeared Flocco and Bloom in the past and even recently, tried to say there was no parking lot shooting on Capitol Hill about eight or nine months ago. So he knows he's going down and slowly losing listeners.

Yes, ok, the Jews boycotted for real Germany....

But you must NOT believe that Al Qaeda boycotts USA for real.

So, why Al Qaeda is a fake-terrorism meanwhile the boycotting of Germany was a real-terrorism?

Why we must think that 'Al Qaeda' is the alibi to the rise of the 4th Reich headed by Bush meanwhile we must NOT think that the boycott of Germany by the 'Jews' was engineered to raise the 3rd Reich headed by the R.C. Adolf Rotschild?

Why we must think that Al Qaeda is a creature of CIA meanwhile we must NOT think that Zionist Freemasonry is a creature of the power which created Nazism too?

Answer: THE PSYCO-POLICE OF THE JESUITS.

Smith is a TEMPORAL COADJUTOR and has proven this many times wishing to blame Jews for everything. You see folks these people feel threatened now because finally the veils are dropping from the Vatican stage and we now see them clearly on a big scale like never before.

A new REFORMATION is coming and just in the nick of time.

Barry Chamish is one of the best truthsayers left in this game and believe me theres not many anymore. I suspect Barry knew the trickery of this Smith and decided stuff it. Right now Chamish is facing problems and has had to leave his family behind in Israel fearing for his life over there. Hes basically homeless and is shacking up with his relative in Canada for now. Barry isn't a young man and hes suffering right now with health and worries like most people won't imagine. I noticed from another interview he did recently that hes got a William Cooper attitude. William Cooper didn't stand no nonsense and got straight to the point. If you upset him you knew about it as he didn't see us having the time to mess around and pussy around with words. He snapped Lenny Bloom's head off recently on an interview but for good reason.

Viva-la-CHAMISH!

Dear CRAIG-OXLEY, I hope this will happen.

Because here, in Italy (Catholand), I really see hard times. Italy, in the world free-speech classification, is just above Botswana (with no offence for the more respectable citizens of Botswana: living in such poverty and BEING after Italy in this classification means only that the average 'brain' level of the Botswana is for real superior to the one of Italy).

And Europe? In this case Icke is right: is a big fascist superstate, with a strong communist fifth-column inside.

So I look to America in the same way once the 'revolutionaries' were looking the country abroad in which a revolution took place: the bastards want the people to blame the Jews for the trouble the Vatican is doing, but they aren't God and I really hope something will not work in their plan at the end of the times.

Plans For Overthrowing our Government

The Duke of Richmond, formerly Governor General of Canada, said: "The government of the United States is weak, inconsistent and bad; it must and will be destroyed. So long as it exists, no prince in Europe will be safe on his throne. The sovereigns of Europe are aware of this, and are determined upon its destruction. They have come to an understanding upon this subject, and decided on the means to accomplish it. They will eventually succeed by subversion, rather than conquest. All the low population of Europe will be carried into America---it will be a receptacle for the bad and disaffected. This will create a surplus, a heterogeneous population, speaking a different language--of different religion and sentiments---they will carry with them their principles--will adhere to their former governments, laws, manners, customs and religion--speak of them among the nations, some will join with them---and they will become citizens---discord and civil war will follow---some popular man will take the lead to restore order---the European sovereigns will aid him---all the ignorant will join, and the government will be subverted."

But we need not take their word for it. After years of denying and ridiculing such charges, David Rockefeller has finally put an end to the speculation, making the following admission in Memoirs:

For more than a century, ideological extremists at either end of the political spectrum have seized upon well-publicized incidentsÉto attack the Rockefeller family for the inordinate influence they claim we wield over American political and economic institutions. Some even believe we are part of a secret cabal working against the best interests of the United States, characterizing my family and me as "internationalists" and of conspiring with others around the world to build a more integrated global political and economic structure - one world, if you will. If that's the charge, I stand guilty, and I am proud of it.

But remember my friend the masses waking up are well aware of the power of the Queen of New York being David Rockefeller and his family. We have to highlight their masters being the Sovereign Military of Malta. David Rockefeller is a SMOM Papal Knight monitored across the road by his direct master the Archbishop of New York being Cardinal Edward Michael Egan the Pope of the Americas and Americas SMOM leadership in charge of his Maltese Knights of the Round Table based within St Patrick's Cathedral one of the most powerful places in the United States after the Georgetown and Fordham universities. Then after St Patricks you have Aspen Institute in Colorado and JP Morgan and Chase in New York. The later two are mostly linked to the Royal Institute of International Affairs.

Deat Tony,

Thanks for this also. Harper is another Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor. It appears that Quebec will be separated from Canada before our Sino-Soviet-Moslem invasion. The same senario that transpired in Yugoslavia apparently will be repeated in Canada. Protestant Canada will be attacked and Roman Catholic Quebec will not be touched.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

Eric,

There is no way British Intelligence Barrack Obama will win the U.S Presidency, even Lesbian Hillary has a bigger chance than this Homosexual Obama. The two main players are John McCain and John Edwards both closet homosexuals by the way. The only person fit for the presidency right now out of all of them is the DULY LEGALLY ELECTED U.S PRESIDENT AL GORE JR:

lol :P

No, I'm most definitely NON-religious, as are most people living in the Province of Québec nowadays. I was not baptized and was not circumcised.

The info above about there not being a draft in Québec during WWII is utter bullst, btw. My grandfather and many of my great uncles had to shoot themselves in the foot or get married in order to avoid the draft.

Hey! I'M from Québec! :o

Most white Quebecers here hate "religion" as you define it. Can you confirm fear of death?

Theres a huge separatist movement (the PQ) here.

This is true, about the hate of religion. The churches emptied themselves in 1966, and many were sold or were demolished as a result. We abhor Catholic control.

But I simply don't see how Québec could ever become a sovereign nation. The separatist dream was just that, a dream, that never became true and that most people no longer believe in. Many people in Québec even voted for the Federal Conservative Party instead of the usual Bloc Québécois last election.

freesoul4u - February 21, 2007 02:52 PM (GMT)

The day Quebec will separates I am sure that other provinces such like British Columbia will separate too. This is already on their agenda. Do you really think that Alberta wants to stay in the confederation too ?

The global village is getting smaller and smaller. I personally see more a united Canada USA and Mexico with Amero dollars in the immediate future.

Our dear Evangelist Harper is so far up Bush creek that he will do anything too satisfy him and please the others that rule him.

After all Harper too wants war in the Middle East because it fits his same Armagedon convictions.

If Protestant Canada will be attacked including the USA, I cannot see why Roman Catholic Quebec will not be touched also. Roman Catholic Quebec is not what it used to be.

50 years ago the clergy ruled Quebec and Archbishop Léger was named Cardinal because he brought in a lot of money to the Catholic Church and the coffers of the Vatican.

Why Montreal as a basilica which is the replica of one /seventh of St- Peter Basilica in Rome.

His famous phrase Oh Montreal how you have made your self beautiful for your Princesays it all when he came back then in Quebec in the early 50's.

Women would throw their coats on his path on the ground so that he would not put his feet in the mud snow or slush.

Since the 60 and the quiet revolution the catholic churches have been deserted.

This I am sure that the Jesuits are very aware of and will not forget.

Hell will be paid for certain liberal Catholics in the future. However I might be wrong.

Because of those none practicing liberal Catholics which is now over 90% of the Catholic population, I am sure the Vatican must of seen a tremendous drop in their coffers and now the Vatican has to sell out their real estates. I am sure the Vatican Jesuits raft will fall on them.

If I remember Lesvesque wanted for Quebec a sovereignty association here in Canada. He wanted Quebecois and Canadian corporations running Canada.

He wanted to ouster American Imperialism. He especially wanted to protect the French language, which was one of the founding nation languages of Canada.

However there was a sever drop of French Quebecois natality rate and the doors to other French speaking nations to immigrate here were wide open in order to keep the French language protected and going.

If him an others did not see to that Quebec would of been anglosized by the rest of Canada and the USA influence.

Today I am sure that the French Muslims, the French Haitians, the French from France, and from Algeria, from Morocco etc do not fit into the Quebecois culture.

The Quebecois culture is falling down. Quebec is like the melting pot of the world just like other major nations are today losing it's original identity and culture.

However if Quebec would separate and join the European community it would not be for long because the Jesuits Vatican goal is one-world order.

Eventually in my eyes the Euro, the Amero, the Yen, the Rubble and other world wide monetary devices will all fall and drift away.

The 666-microchip bar code will implemented on everthing and into the skin of humans like it or not. With out this this no purchase transactions can exist. Everything will be payable by it and tracebale by it.

And guess who is giving all this techno in such a fast spand of time?

Your finance medical, religious, financial records will all be part of an integrated computerized system and in your body.

Who would of dream of credits cards, debit cards 100 years ago? With this new microchip technology the beast, which is really the political religious one world order system, will be in place. Even passports will not even be required then.

Through this system the depopulation of the world will commence.

Title: The Widow Of Former Jesuit Priest, Alberto Rivera

Description: Said the Jesuits Killed her husband

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 20, 2007 11:01 PM (GMT)

The Widow Of Former Jesuit Priest, Fr. Alberto Rivera, Said The Vatican And Jesuit Order Killed Her Husband, Then Wanted To Dig Up His Bones, Taking Them Back To the Vatican.

Nury Rivera tells Americans how her husband was persecuted and killed for trying to tell Vatican secrets about how they infiltrate churches and the U.S. government. She also tells how she has been harassed, attacked and her life threatened by agents of the Vatican and Jesuit Order.

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/20-Feb-2007.html>

Nury Rivera came forward with conviction and courage Monday on international radio, saying her husband was assassinated by the evil Jesuit Order.

"They poisoned him and I am 100 per cent sure of that," said the widow of the late high level Jesuit priest, Fr. Alberto Rivera, killed in the early 1990's after defecting from Vatican treachery and trying to tell the truth about the real intentions and satanic practices of the Jesuit Order.

Fr. Rivera became a Jesuit priest, worked in the Vatican and eventually assigned the deceptive job of infiltrating U.S Christian churches with the intent to destroy Protestant pastors while controlling doctrine favorable to Rome.

"After my husband left the Church, found Jesus and decided to tell the world about Vatican deception, the Jesuits did everything to keep him quiet and discredit him," said

Ms. Rivera, who has been harassed, her life threatened and her house broken into on many occasions by Vatican agents in order to steal her husband's documents and artifacts.

"Why would they do this if what Alberto preached and what I and saying, is not the truth," added Rivera. "After Alberto was killed, they even came to me saying if I told them where he was buried that I would be taken care of for life. I, of course, refused because they wanted to take his body back to the Vatican because these men worship death, not life and the beauty of God."

According to other researchers who have documented satanic rituals and worshipping taking place in the bowels and secret catacombs of the Vatican, Rivera's bones were to be placed among the bones of many others throughout history who have tried to alert the world about Vatican and Jesuit secrets.

"I think people can see the truth once they see how they have tried to cover-up Alberto's life and death," added Rivera. "The Vatican hierarchy worships evil and the devil. They are in the midst of taking over America, infiltrating the governments and religions of the world in order to make everyone loyal to the Pope's rule.

"Alberto tried to tell the world about their plans for America and how they were putting people in power who were loyal to the New World Order and the Pope and not to their own countries. Their evil knows no boundaries and when Alberto tried to alert people, they had him killed.

"I have always been open and honest about what happened to Alberto and the message he was trying to get out. I love America and it is difficult to see what is happening here."

During the radio interview on Greg Szymanski's radio show, The Investigative Journal on the Republic Broadcasting Network at www.rbnlive.com, Rivera said she learned the Vatican intends to turn this country into a fascist state with the help of the Bush family and other traitors who have loyalty to the Pope, not the people in their countries. She added that the illegal immigration of millions of Mexicans and South American's crossing the U.S. border is being assisted with Vatican money and support, knowing this provides a population easily manipulated by the false teachings of the Vatican hierarchy.

Further, the Vatican intends to use these millions of third world countries as a voting base to blindly follow the Pope and elect politicians "in bed with the New World Order."

Like the murder of Abraham Lincoln and JFK, Vatican involvement with Fr. Rivera's murder has been kept out of the mainstream news, indicating a total takeover of the media has been accomplished.

"It is only people in the alternative like you, Greg, who have the courage to fight these people because it is necessary to get out the truth," said Rivera. "The truth is the only thing that sets you free and Americans need to identify the real enemy trying to steal their minds, bodies and souls."

And as Rivera said, the Fr. Rivera story has been a well kept secret from mainstream America since it directly indicts the real evil-doers - The Vatican and Jesuit Order.

Although his story has been hidden, a recent article in the Arctic Beacon is printed below to give you a better idea of the Fr. Alberto Rivera story and the true evil hiding behind the cloak of the Catholic Church.

Confession No. 4: Did Jesuit Fr. Staempfle Write Mein Kampf For Hitler? Is George W. Bush The New Jesuit-Backed Roman Catholic Star?

According to the late Jesuit priest, Fr. Alberto Rivera, whose job was to infiltrate and destroy Protestant ministries, he was privy to sensitive Vatican briefings and documents, revealing the Jesuit role in backing Hitler. Further, he was told by Cardinal Augustine Bea that Nazi gold was deposited in Vatican accounts in Swiss banks.

By Greg Szymanski

According to the late Jesuit priest, Fr. Alberto Rivera, a fellow Jesuit named Fr. Staempfle wrote Mein Kampf, as the stage was being set for Germany's new Roman Catholic star, Adolf Hitler.

The main question today is what priest is writing the script for the Jesuit-backed Roman Catholic star, President George W. Bush?

Following the old adage "all things change but everything remains the same," a look back into Hitler's rise to power may provide important clues as to whether the Jesuits are also backing Bush.

To begin this Sunday's fourth Confession on the banks of the truth-filled body of water called Brushy Creek, it must be said that Fr. Rivera was a rare species, being a former Jesuit priest who decided to speak the truth about the "military order" disguised as a group of God-loving disciples of Jesus.

Most other disillusioned Jesuits like Rivera have remained silent since they know double-crossing the Society of Jesus high command means sure death, especially if you're someone who knew too much like Fr. Rivera.

What made Rivera dangerous to the Jesuits and probably led to his death, was Rivera's sensitive and trusted position within the Order to infiltrate Protestant ministries and destroy them. Due to his sensitive work, he was given special Vatican clearance to the secret underground library catacombs where, according to Rivera, the true history of the world remains buried for the chosen few, who have sworn by blood oath, never to reveal the dark and sinister contents.

And after reading how the Catholic Church manipulated history in its drive to rule the world, one very fortunate day for mankind he decided to alert the world and place his faith in Christ alone while leaving behind the Jesuits and the Catholic Church.

Being released from his vows, Rivera then married, started his own ministry and tried until he died under suspicious circumstances in 1997, to spread the word of truth. For his actions, he instantly became a hated and hunted man by the Church, as he shockingly admitted "No Jesuit can leave the Order alive, if he knows the real truth and talks about it."

And it appears his words rang true with his untimely 1997 death. But before Rivera died, he passed his message on in a very, very unique way - through a series of four colorful comic books - geared at reaching the masses by highlighting his important message in a nontraditional manner.

In his collection of full-color comic books carried by Chick Publications, entitled Alberto, Double-Cross, The Godfathers and The Force, Rivera tells his story, revealing how the Catholic Church helped start World Wars I and II, as well as revealing the Church's place in Bible prophecy. His story also details how the Church was involved in the startup of Islam, later turning against the Pope in rebellion, as well as detailing how America's present phony war on terror is basically "the Vatican's Revenge."

When Rivera first went public, Rome became extremely angered and called upon her ecumenical contacts to go on the attack, attacking him like they always do by attacking the messenger. The Vatican, not wanting to publicly discuss the serious charges leveled against the Jesuits and the hierarchy of the Church, decided to discredit him personally, hoping people would then discount his message.

The most notable of these personal attacks was an open letter published in Christianity Today, copied and distributed around the world many times since the 1980s. However, after reading this attack, James Houston, who had read enough of history to believe Rivera's charges, came forward in defense of Rivera with a detailed report.

Since the Christianity Today letter is still being distributed today, at the bottom of this Sunday confession are the links to the attack on Rivera and Houston's lengthy response.

Germany and Hitler

Rivera learned many hidden truths about the Jesuits and the Vatican, but none were more important than the story behind Hitler's rise to power.

Sounding strangely similar to what is happening to America, in 1923 Germany was in a downward spiral. The monetary system was teetering on the brink of disaster and the German people were sick and tired of war, similar to the majority of Americans today calling for the end of the Middle East conflict.

"The German people blamed the Kaiser for the whole thing and had him and his government thrown out of office," writes Rivera in the comic he entitled The Godfathers.

"The communists were fighting to take over and the new government was very weak. Some men wanted the German people to run their government like they did in France and were attempting to make Germany a Republic. The Pope was outraged and with that the Republic was doomed to failure.

"Two things the Vatican despises are Protestantism and Democracy. The Jesuits were then called upon to stop this new Weimer Republic . Two men then destroyed it: One was Franz Von Papan and the other was Pacelli, who later become Pope Pius XII."

Rivera then claims how he read in the secret Vatican how the stage was then set for Germany's new Roman Catholic star, Adolf Hitler, as a Jesuit priest by the name of Fr. Staempfle actually wrote Mein Kampf, the book being the master plan of the Jesuits for Hitler's takeover of Germany.

"Another great inquisition was about to begin," said Rivera. "Instead of wearing Dominican robes, they were wearing Nazi uniforms. Hitler's Brown Shirts, called Nazis, backed by the Vatican used the same tactic as Mussolini, beating and bullying all opposition into submission, including Roman Catholics. Bloody street battles between Roman Catholics who were Nazis and Roman Catholics who were communists took place. The prize being Germany."

The symbol for this new inquisition was the Swastika, which of course was a Masonic symbol. According to Rivera's research, Hitler was the Vatican's choice, just like Lech Walesa in Poland and the new American neo-con regime.

With this powerful backing, Hitler was destined to triumph as his close associates all had one thing in common: They were all Roman Catholics and loyal to the Vatican and according to Rivera, "all had Jewish blood in their veins, including Pacelli, the man who later became Pope Pius XII. When it became known that Pope Pius XI supported Hitler, the Roman Catholic vote swept Hitler into power in 1933."

The world now faced a terrible machine called the Third Reich, in which the Vatican became the master. History then forces the same question today: Is the Vatican now the master of the strange, fascist regime now controlling the White House, called the neo-cons?

Although Rivera is no longer with us to provide an answer, a statement by the publisher of his books revealed one of his startling predictions as well as laying groundwork for the present-day conflict in the Middle East, leading to World War III.

In 1985, ex-Jesuit Alberto Rivera predicted that the Vatican would eventually apologize for its part in the German Holocaust, the inquisition, and the slaughter of Jews and Muslims during the Crusades. His prediction was based on secret briefings that he attended while a Jesuit in training.*

This prediction came true as Pope John Paul II publicly asked forgiveness for the sins of Roman Catholics through the ages. The pope and several other Vatican leaders conducted a "Day of Pardon Mass" at St. Peter's Basilica.

To the Jews he said, "We are deeply saddened by the behavior of those who in the course of history have caused these children of yours to suffer, and asking your forgiveness we wish to commit ourselves to genuine brotherhood."

In reference to the Inquisition, Cardinal Ratzinger (The New Pope) confessed, "Even men of the church, in the name of faith and morals, have sometimes used methods not in keeping with the Gospel." The pope responded, "Have mercy on your sinful children."

Some Jewish leaders were unimpressed. Israel's chief rabbi, Meir Lau, said he was "deeply frustrated" by the pope's failure to mention the Holocaust by name.

Leaders from several Jewish organizations have been pressing the Vatican to open its World War II archives to investigators. They claim that, at best, Vatican leaders and Pope Pius XII, remained silent during Hitler's genocide against the Jews and others.

Of course, few are willing to present the whole truth, that Roman Catholic leaders, including the pope, were instrumental in Hitler's rise to power and that Hitler was simply carrying out persecution against the Jews which the Vatican had fostered for centuries.

Another reason for opening the archives is to determine what happened to hundreds of millions of dollars worth of gold stolen by the Nazis from Jews and other conquered nations. Much of it has been traced to Swiss banks who have made a token refund to Holocaust survivors.

But Dr. Rivera was told by the head of the Jesuit order, Cardinal Augustin Bea, that a special train flying Vatican flags was allowed through the Allied military lines. The Americans were told it was a "mercy train" carrying medical supplies. In reality it carried Nazi gold which was deposited in Vatican accounts in Swiss banks. In July, 1997, a documentary film crew discovered a US government document stating that the pro-Nazi Croatian Ustachis sent gold coins worth 250 million Swiss francs to the Vatican which was later used to finance the "rat line" of fleeing Nazi leaders to sanctuary in Spain and Argentina.

The Vatican denies this but still refuses to open its archives. In January of this year, Ukranian and Jewish concentration camp survivors filed a class action lawsuit in San Francisco, California against the Vatican Bank. The complaint calls for the Vatican Bank, the Franciscan Order and other European banks to give an accounting of the Nazi Ustashi Gold and for restitution for the victims and their families.

The Roman Catholic Institution has steadfastly denied that Dr. Rivera ever was a priest, much less privy to secret Vatican briefings. However, it seems unlikely that it was just a lucky guess when he made these statements 15 years ago.

Are Vatican accusations, claiming Rivera is a phony, true?

The Canadian Protestant League, not connected with Rivera or his publisher, conducted an investigation. They printed their findings in 1983, 14 years before Rivera's suspicious death. Here is a portion of their report, finding Rivera is exactly what he says he is: a former Jesuit priest who was converted to Christ and the vicious character assassination attempts made against him only go to prove the veracity of his statements about Rome.

"Booklets produced in comic form by Chick Publications in cooperation with Dr. Alberto M. R. Rivera (viz.: ALBERTO, DOUBLE-CROSS, THE GODFATHERS, SABOTAGE, THE BIG BETRAYAL, and more recently, THE FORCE) have excited angry responses from the Roman Catholic hierarchy across this continent. The said publications have been called hate propaganda, and demands have been made that they be banned. These are familiar demands, used for generations against those who have dared to expose and oppose the false claims, doctrines and practices of Roman Catholicism.

"The books have been described by papal representatives (as well as by those duped by Jesuit propaganda) as 'absurd, bigoted, a comedy of errors, condemning out of hatred, dangerous to the cause of Christ, disgusting, distortion of truth, evil spirit inspired, false, filthy, hatred, hogwash, lewd, lies, malicious, playing fast and loose with truth, Satan possessed, shameful, spiritual pornography, trash, stupidity, ugly,' as well as 'working for the Devil and not Jesus, immoral and indecent!'

"Christian bookstores have been coaxed, awed and threatened into discontinuing sales of the Crusaders series, and every other piece of material published by Chick - even its Gospel tracts.

"At the head office of the Canadian Protestant League, we have attracted a little more than our share of attention, innuendo and threat by legal and other means. (We only started to handle the material when we became aware of the aggressive campaign to remove it from the scene.) Two of the books were banned from entry into Canada on instructions by a Director of Canada Customs and Excise on the grounds of 'immorality and indecency.' We challenged that outrageous action in Court and the order was rescinded.

"Efforts have been made in other areas to deny the use of the Post Offices to those who continued to send the material through the mails. We were warned that a report to the R.C.M.P. was being made against us.

"We are threatened by the appointment of a study committee, responsible to the Attorney-General of Ontario, at the urging of the office of the R.C. Archbishop of Toronto, to determine whether ALBERTO and DOUBLE-CROSS should be designated as 'Hate Literature,' and appropriate charges laid. We have been visited by two inspectors of Metropolitan Toronto Police, enquiring about our involvement, and speaking of the possibility of action against us.

"We made no effort to hide any of our activity, but admitted freely that we were selling the items they were asking about. We repeated to them what we had told others: we would welcome a charge being laid against us under the Hate Propaganda Section of Canada's criminal code.

"We believe that when any pressure group can successfully intimidate all Christian booksellers across Canada into refraining to sell certain literature because it is OFFENSIVE to some, then surely someone ought to be ready to focus attention on such a threat to faith and freedom in this land of ours.

"We are prepared to take that action.

"We have been reminded of the possibility of a $6,000.00 fine or a two year prison sentence. We have insisted, if and when this should take place, that no one will pay the fine! Perhaps this will arouse apathetic Canadians - and apathetic Christians.

"One would expect Roman Catholics (feeling their own institutions were assailed) to rally every effort to offset the most effective, fruitful harvest the said literature is able to report, but the more tragic form of attack from those who glory in the label of 'evangelical Christians' makes sad reading indeed!

"Christian Reader, Cornerstone and Our Sunday Visitor, published an article authored by Gary Metz entitled, 'The Uncomical Alberto Rivera,' a prominent article in Christianity Today.

"More recently, an effort by Brian Onken in Forward, the official organ of Christian Research Institute, appeared under the title, 'Alberto: The Truth About His Story.' In this 'study,' Dr. Rivera, the converted Jesuit priest, is represented as being a dishonest fraud. Areas are named in the United States wherein Alberto was allegedly being sought for questioning.

"The articles demand a response from those who are jealous in contending for the faith and to conserve our freedom. Concerned Christians wish to hear answers to several questions:

"Is Jack Chick a totally irresponsible publisher?

"Is Alberto Rivera the lying sensationalist he is caricatured as being?

"Is Alberto truly God's instrument for our day to bring about the longed-for reawakening among duped Roman Catholics, so that they can be truly won to Jesus Christ as Lord, Saviour, Mediator and Advocate; to the Bible as the Word of God, authoritative, free from error, inspired, and reliable to judge all other authorities; and directing people to come out of an organization that is anti-Christian?

"Why the terrible abuse and attack upon these two brethren?

"Why has someone not followed up on some of the charges made? Can we not analyze the charges? Can we not forensically analyze the charges made?

"Will the men and magazines, hailed by many as authoritative in the field of evangelism, allow us to examine their charges? We want to know if they have a case at all!

"If their charges can be logically and evidentially supported, so that we must see Dr. Rivera as guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, then we must re-examine our own position and alter our stance of supporting Chick and Rivera.

"Now - what is contained in the expose, coming to us in these articles? Alas, they are being accepted by those who have never taken the trouble to thoughtfully and thoroughly investigate the charges against the brethren.

"Are these criticisms dependent upon hearsay evidence, rumour, reported information, charges of fraud, usually reliable sources, deception, controversy, disturbance, questioned reliability, untruths, continual lying, defiance, contradictory testimony and ingenuity in attempts to validate his own story? This is the sort of language of those who sit in judgment upon Dr. Rivera.

"Can it be that the wish is the parent of the thought? Do these accusers want the stories to be true? These are the questions calling for definitely stated answers; and that is what we are seeking.

Examine The Charges!

"These magazines - upon which so many people rely - make statements concerning Dr. Rivera with no presentation of supportive evidence. This is so obvious, it is difficult to assess the writings accusing the man.

"Now, imagine we are sitting in a Court of Law and serious charges are laid against Alberto Rivera. The Prosecution does its utmost presenting its charges and its testimony supporting those charges.

"The Defence Attorney, if he considers that evidence weak, will move that no case has been established, and ask the Magistrate to dismiss the charges. Should the Judge agree, the Accused is released. He is assumed to be innocent!

"We want to observe the charges, and consider how well those making the charges substantiate them. Should they not be properly supported in the presentations, then we ask that they be dismissed, and that apologies be made to the brethren charged. The Bible tells us as Christians:

'Do violence to no man, neither accuse any falsely. Prove all things, hold fast that which is good. Against an elder receive not an accusation, but before two or three witnesses. In the mouth of two or three witnesses shall every word be established.'

"Did the critics read Alberto's outline of the Basic Steps followed by the Roman Hierarchy to discredit and destroy any who left their ranks? Did they endeavour to expose Romanism's errors and evil practices? Did they insist that Jesuitism is not, by any means Christian?

"In his defence against what he describes as slanders levelled by friend and foe alike, Rivera calls attention to...unchristian and anti-biblical charges and accusations by the head of the Christian Research Center (which carefully avoids research into the crimes and massacres of the Roman Catholic institution) through the instrumentality of articles appearing in...Cornerstone and Christianity Today ...

"An honest, decent person, even a non-Christian, will recognize the validity and credibility of Dr. Rivera as a Roman Catholic priest! Why have these critics consistently attacked Alberto Rivera instead of the doctrines he espouses and proclaims?

"Mr. Metz says: Alberto says he worked with notable Jesuit spies such as Kathryn Kuhlman and Jim Jones; yet nowhere and at no time has Rivera said he had worked with either one!

"The critics tell us that the story of Alberto was banned by the Christian Reformed Church, Zondervan Publishers and The Southern Baptist Sunday School Board; yet failed to admit that many of the congregations associated with these three bodies continue to sell the Crusaders Comics in question.

"The critics failed to ask the Roman Catholic hierarchy why they were upset because the articles were true, for because of them thousands of former Roman Catholics had found Jesus Christ as Lord and Saviour, and were coming out of Rome's religion.

"Why else should a priest on an Indian Reservation in New Brunswick order a faith missionary to stay off the Reserve, if it were not that many young native adults were reading of Alberto through the comics and were coming to Christ? This has been true in Western Canada and in some places in Ontario.

"Why did not the critics ask the representatives of the Roman Church why these demands they currently make to ban from entry, etc., unless it is for fear of an acceleration of many of their people in this exodus from Rome?

"Why, specifically, are the mentioned publishers trying to abolish the ALBERTO series from all of their outlets? Have they been asked? Have they been asked whether the local Roman Church representatives have not appealed for this because they are offensive to them? (This was the reason given by the office of the Toronto R.C. Archbishop.) We are told by the critics: Our investigation reveals (Rivera's) police record, his investment schemes, his bad cheque-writing, his contradictory testimony, his fabricated education record, and his reported family abuse. Yet the author of these words must have forgotten something! He neglected to quote from any court records (indeed does not mention any single Court record location, any dates, any case numbers, and charges filed, whether or not an arrest was made, and the final outcome of the levelled charges allegedly made).

"Reported abuse, newspaper clippings, magazine articles, several article writers (each quoting the others), never must be understood to be valid, factual evidence credible of anything at all! Critical mention is made of a college in Spain for which Rivera (as a Jesuit priest) was authorized to collect funds, when he was not properly authorized to do so.

"The articles claim that Rivera was never a priest. No mention is made of the name of the college, or the source of the information to support the conclusions. It was officially agreed from Roman Catholic sources that Dr. Rivera had indeed been appointed to act in the collection of funds for one month, and surely he would have not been so used without his priestly credentials being checked!

"We are told that a minister of The Church of God of Prophecy, had experienced embarrassment when Rivera allegedly had written a cheque on an already closed account.

"Yet no mention is made of the location of the minister, of the banks concerned, of the locality of the airline desk complaining, whether the writers had ever seen a copy of the cheque, whether the closed account had previously existed, or to which office of which Department the said minister had written a complaint. (True, the accusers give us the name of the minister, but nothing else.)

"Charges are made of a history of legal entanglements, court actions, accusations of fraud, warrants issued for arrest, writing of bad cheques; yet no specifics regarding complaints, vital details, police records, places, hearings. No results are reported at all.

"Indeed, enquiries have been made by the Canadian Protestant League of every one of the police jurisdictions mentioned by the accusers, and consistently the response has been, we have never heard of this man!

"We hear of alleged inconsistencies, contradictions, impossibly conflicting dates; yet we have never been given the sources of such information - letters, tapes, photo-copies, individuals, interviews, etc. - not even a newspaper clipping!

"We are told: Alberto's claim to have been a Jesuit priest and bishop is denied by Roman Catholic spokesmen. They state the documents he exhibits as proof of this priesthood are little more than form letters giving permission to travel abroad.

"What else would one expect? Surely we would not expect Roman Catholic officialdom to admit that Alberto Rivera is telling the truth about them or their Jesuitical practices! How naive are we expected to be?"

The Jesuits (society of Jesus) have totally taken over just about every facet of America. From all religions to all secret societies, all government agencies, intelligence agencies in America and all over the world. Here an ex-jesuit priest Alberto Rivera (murdered by the Vatican in 1997 by poisoning) tells of why and how the Jesuits are doing this. We can see the evidence of this by the attacks on our civil liberties and the U.S. Constitution. It's time to wake up. Share this video and and post it anywhere you can.

Title: Its a lie that American has been a British Colony

Description: for 200 years - ERIC JON PHELPS

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 9, 2007 11:14 PM (GMT)

Hi Brother Eric.

One thing that's really frustrating to me is pre-trib vs. post-trib rapture. I lean towards post-trib (see Matthew 24).

Matthew 24 has nothing to do with the Church, the Body of Christ. Christ was talking to his Jewish disciples anticipating the establishment of the Davidic Kingdom as offered by Christ for over three years. The Church was not in existence at the time of Matthew 24; it began in Acts 2 after the Lord's ascension into heaven, he being seated at the right hand of His Father. (Ps.110:1). The Jews in the Great Tribulation look for signs indicating the soon return of their Messiah; the Church at this moment does not look for signs but anticipates the Lord's momentary appearance---this is our Blessed Hope unique to the Lord's Church. (Titus 2:13)

But I'm still pretty much on the fence. I don't believe one can lose one's salvation for the record...

Good.

I believe that if a Christian goes astray God deals with that person like a father correcting his son.

Amen. Hebrews 12.

The frustrating part is seeing both "sides" go at it and point fingers and call each other heretics. They both have convincing arguments...but I'm not interested in who's more convincing, I'm interested in what's the truth. I'm really hoping you can help me out here.

If the Church, the Body of Christ did not exist in the first 69 weeks of years (483) of the prophet Daniel, then it will not exist on earth during the 70th week of Daniel. The Church began (Acts 2) and will end (I Thess 4) in this time warp (time gap) that was a mystery never made known to the prophets (Eph.3). I will not call another brother a heretic over this doctrine if we will consent to unite in resisting the spiritual and temporal power of Rome. Differences in eschatology is no reason to divide our forces making us easy targets, one by one, for the Jesuits.

I also have a question concerning the founding of this country. Was this country founded by Masons or Christians, and what was the real purpose of its founding?

I address this in VAlll. Our country was composed by 97% White Anglo-Saxon-Celtic Protestant Calvinists and Baptist Calvinists. Our founding fathers were preachers like Hooker, Samuel Davies, John Clarke, Roger Williams, John Lehlend, Timothy Dwight, John Witherspoon and a host of other Baptist and Presbyterian AV1611 Bible-beleivers who hated the spiritual and temporal power of the Pope. Though the Jesuits used their high Freemasons (Jefferson and Franklin) to foment the Revolution, the Lord's men (Washington and Madison) were those used to foil the purposes of the Order in setting up their Masonic New Atlantis. That victory would have to wait until the War between the States (1861-1865) and on the nation's ruins, the wicked 14th Amendment (1868) creating the Black Pope' "Holy Roman" 14th Amendment, Corporate-Fascist, Socialist-Communist American Empire. We were once a Constitutional Calvinist Republic; by 1868 the Republic had been converted into a Jesuit Empire to use our Protestant and Baptist blood and treasure to restore the Pope's Temporal Power around the earth, especially in Russia (Bolshevik Revolution) and Europe (the Second Thirty Years' War, 1914-1945).

Have we really been just a British colony the past 200 years or so?

No. That is a bold-faced lie. Our Calvinist Sovereign States founded in 1776 (called by the Dutch "the Kingdom of Calvin") were declared to be "free, independent and sovereign" at the Treaty of Paris in 1783. Our resultant Constitution, uniting these Sovereign States for certain limited purposes (as declared by Jefferson and Madison's Virginia and Kentucky Resolutions (1798-99), created a Federated Confederate Republic of Sovereign States ("These United States of America") by 1787. We PRACTICALLY lost our sovereignty through five events:

- 1. The 14th Amendment declared ratified in 1868 reversing the origin and charater of US citizenship originally conferred by Article IV, Section 2 of the Constitution;
- 2. The establishment of the Pope's private corporation called the Federal Reserve Bank taking the power of the purse away from Congress;

3. The creation of the Pope's private corporate collection agency called the Internal Revenue Service ("we must be able to finance our Crusades while destroying the "accursed heretic and liberal" White Protestant Middle Class with a socialist-communist income tax");

4. The loss of our circulating gold coins in 1933 and silver coins in 1964 including Masonic FDR's declaration of national bankruptcy (HJR-192) and Masonic LBJ's Vietnam War;

5. Masonic "Dirty Harry" Truman's Emergency War Powers Act passed in late December, 1950, preparing for the no-win and distractionary Korean War (1950-53) further enabling the Pope's Vatican Ratlines to effect the escape Europe's Nazis under the guise of "fighting Soviet communism" built by FDR.

From then on (1950), all US flags flown in our courts and banks have been trimmed in gold fringe---denoting both our courts (state and federal) and our banks to be under the immediate control of the Commander-in-Chief. (They are patterned after London's "the King's Bench," and "the King's Bank;" we no longer have an Article 3, Judicial Branch (Supreme Court) of government separate from the Executive Branch (the President/Commander-in-Chief). The Supreme Court is really a servant of the President, as we indeed witnessed with the Court's Bush appointment over Gore.)

These acts of High Treason resulted in our DE FACTO reunion with Britain, the once Protestant British Empire having been under Jesuit control since King George III (as correctly proven by Saussy's Rulers of Evil). So yes, today we are a DE FACTO British Colony subject to Rome through Washington (Pratt House/ CFR), as Rome controls Britain through the Old City of London (Chatham House/ RIIA). In 1787 we were, if fact, really free, independent and sovereign thanks to the Lord and His many interventions during the Revolution. J. T. Headley's The Chaplins and Clergy of the Revolution (1864) is without parallel.

I have more than a passing interest because I had a 6th-great-grandfather, Eli Adams (8th cousin once removed of President John Adams) who fought in the Revolution--in fact, my mother's talking about joining the Daughters of the American Revolution. (She's a member of the Daughters of Union Vets of the Civil War and I've passed information on to her concerning Jesuit involvement in the war. Bartley Crawford, my great-great-great-grandfather, was in the Union Army, and he was a great-grandson of Eli Adams.) I keep hearing so many conflicting things and it's really confusing.

The Northern and Southern People were hoodwinked by their treasonous, Jesuit-controlled leaders. Rome had used its control over her Northern men in Congress to oppress the essentially Protestant Southern people since the days of Andrew Jackson and the tariff agitation. (Jackson saved the Union with his veto over the continuance of the United States Bank, for which the Senate hated and censored him.) With the Southern States exercising their lawful right to withdraw from the Union (secession), the cry to save the Union was the basis for the Army of the Potomac to invade Virginia after Masonic President Buchanan incited the attack at Fort Sumpter in South Carolina.

With the war now ignited, Rome had two cards to play:

- 1. If the South should win, then the Jesuits would use Jefferson Davis to unite with Maxmillian in Mexico (who overthrew Mexico's greatest patriot, Benito Juarez) to destroy the Calvinist Federal Union and capture Washington for the Pope. The Jesuits were to then create a new North American Empire including Canada, Mexico and the US---now in the offing via the "North American Union!"
- 2. If the North should win, then the Jesuits would further trample the White Protestant Southern People into the dust via the wicked Thaddeus Stevens' and Charles Sumner's Reconstruction Act which would include marshall law, the 14th Amendment, and the reconstruction grand theft of the South. Since the iniquity of the White Americans had not yet come to the full, the Holy Spirit, upon command from the risen Son of God, the Lord Jesus Christ (the Spirit restraining the devil's "mystery of niquity"), permitted plan 2 to succeed.

Your relative, though believing he was saving the Union (which war was deceptively turned into a Crusade to emancipate the servant Blacks, one third of whom were Bible-believing men, and thus better off than the Black pagan savages in Africa), in fact was used to destroy the old Calvinist Republic. This same deception is now being employed by Fox News, Bush and Co. to incite young Americans to "fight the War in Iraq." By so doing, they are destroying their own nation. But then our iniquity as a nation of both Whites and Blacks, committing crimes as 14th Amendment citizens, has now come to the full, or so it seems.

I hope to somehow get hold of a copy of VA III. Lately I've been really interested in history...I find that with me it goes hand in hand with Biblical and genealogical studies. I remember sitting in eighth-grade American history class and asking why in the world do we have to study history anyway (I was being cute). Now, twenty years later, it's pretty obvious!

Agreed! I hated history too as it was made irrevelant to present day life.

Thanks for taking time to read and answer my questions, Eric. It's hitting me that things in this world are not what they seem...people are content to sit around with a beer in one hand, a remote in the other, watching American Idol, and as long as they can do that, it's all good. Reminds me of the proles in 1984.

(I have to throw in this anecdote...my mother works for an answering service, and someone called in and complained their cable box in one room wasn't working. My mother suggested that they watch TV in another room--they didn't want to do that, they HAD to watch it in THAT ROOM. On top of that, they told my mother to get a life! Don't you wish that the worst problem you had to face was the cable box going out? This country is going down the tubes and they're complaining about the idiot box.)

Well said.

Brother Eric

<DIV> </DIV>

<DIV align=justify>No. The South was right in its exercise of the right to secede. What may have happened after that lawful secession, only God knows.

I'm finding more and more that I have to set biases aside and look at the facts.</DIV>

<DIV align=justify> </DIV>

<DIV align=justify>Indeed, and that is tough, especially for me!

We were hoodwinked into WWII, weren't we? My dad's uncle was standing guard at Pearl Harbor the day it was bombed, and he had shrapnel in him until the day he died, in 2002.</DIV>

<DIV align=justify> </DIV>

<DIV align=justify>Yes. The Arizona was blown by the Office of Naval Intelligence 13 minutes into the attack. FDR and Hirohito worked together under Jesuit

That would mean that my maternal granduncle

<DIV align=justify> </DIV>

<DIV align=justify>Yes. He unknowingly was fighting a Papal Crusade in North Africa for the future re-establishment of the Pope's Kingdom of Jerusalem. My father who yet lives was another deceived young army airman bombing Germany from a B-17. He thinks I am crazy and has very little to do with me.</DIV>

<DIV align=justify> </DIV>

<DIV align=justify>
I come from a pretty patriotic (and slightly militaristic, I think) family...my dad was in the 82nd Airborne, I have a stepbrother who was in the Marines...that's all well and good, but I can't call anyone a hero if they're fighting an unjust, illegal war such as Iraq. </DIV>

Agreed. It is nothing more than another Papal Crusade at the expense of American blood and treasure. No soldier should go overseas to fight any war even as Major General Smedley Butler declared in his War Is A Racket.

My husband's brother has a stepson in Iraq too. I also have a cousin on my birth father's side who's stationed in Fort Bragg, and I think he went overseas too. While I like the idea of so many of my relatives serving our country, I do not like the idea of them being cannon fodder for someone's agenda. (So could you please pray for Steven Kellhofer and for my cousin Brian Omell?)

Our soldiers are serving the Archbishop of New York; they are not serving our country. We need them here to fight the alien invaders and foreign troops now in country. Iraq is a distraction serving to further disarm America of her top notch fighting troops. I have prayed for Steven and Brian, that they would refuse to go overseas and be prepared to fight here.
Know what, my husband agrees with your views on race. I do too. My husband's just a little more vocal...we see a mixed-race couple on the street and I have to hear about it from him! He doesn't jump on me, he just expresses his viewpoint.

Good. Amalgamation of the races is sin and a violation of God's separation of the races for which reason He created the races. A "nation" is a people denoted by their race, language and culture inhabiting a specific geographical area. Thus, the US is not a nation but an Empire composed of many nations, and is destined to fall as did Rome for violating God's racial, linguistic, and geographically nationalistic laws.
I'm still a little confused on eschatology...but I'll re-read your e-mail and do some studying. You know what, my husband and I used to be in the Worldwide Church of God cult (we left several years ago...that's where I met him in fact)...but interestingly enough I was always drawn to the King James Bible. ;)

Great! Glad to hear that you left the cult and embrace the English Bible of the Reformation.

This is a perfect example of why I have trouble believing anything that Phelps has to say: He speaks of Jesus and Satan as being real persons, when in fact they are merely Astro-Theological symbols representing respectively the Sun and Saturn, the positive and negative metaphysical poles of our solar system. A true high-ranking Jesuit would know this.

In my opinion, he is either a mind-controlled slave truly convinced that what he is saying is the truth, or nothing more than a disinformation artist. Some of his information is accurate and quite revealing, of course, as is always the case, but there is quite a bit of Christotomized bullst in there as well. Either way, he's not the real deal.

JagDRS - February 12, 2007 09:22 PM (GMT)

when in fact they are merely Astro-Theological symbols representing respectively the Sun and Saturn

What fact? Where fact? Who's fact? Please do tell of these facts.

Just a for instance, I can quote some of the related philosophy of the Tsarions and Maxwells et. al. . While some of the astrological concepts they espouse are too profound to ignore, some others of their concepts seem, to me at least, equally dodgy at best. Either way, its not clear to me that such works are to be taken in whole as portraying fact. Their collective works, like Phelps', voluminous as they are, in many instances make use of poetic license, a process of rendering a previous person's translation of something into a newer translation for something that is alleged to have occurred hundreds and thousands of years ago. At least Phelps has an advantage of dealing with somewhat more recent history for which actual facts are more likely to be known and or in existence. Still, this kind of stuff can get pretty murky and cloudy in a hurry despite the best, most educated guesses of logic and speculation one may apply. Phelps, and Tsarion and Maxwell and any of many others each are like anyone else putting a large body of information out there. Some of it seems pretty difficult to deny, some of it seems quite the opposite, but just because of the presence of the latter, this is not a legitimate reason for assuming all of said person's work is therefore invalidated.

The all or nothing approach to information may have it's merits if and when one can find such. If and when one can find such seems to be far more the rare exception than the rule.

This site is not a place for people to claim Eric Jon Phelps is a disinformationist. Eric Jon Phelps is one of the very handful of TRUTHSAYERS left and you should all be most grateful to this genuine person. If anyone is disinformation its people who go around mouthing off all this Anunnaki crap indoctrinated into them by Sitchin whos been to the Vatican many times and was friends with Pope John Paul II. See where I'm going with this Depth? I hope so.

Eric Phelps is a deeply religious person and although I agree with you on the astro-theology side of it all, his information outside the religious dogma is amazing. I would also like to point out that this religious stuff also goes further than Astro-Theology and infact is simply all about the body and creation. Think of all this religious information as simply an encoded Surgeons/Scientists Manual on the Human Body. Satan is the Planet Saturn but really its the bad side of us all. I came across information on this a long time ago which was very interesting. Unfortunately I haven't found it since and like I say thats one step further and the final step to this puzzle breaking. Doesn't it make sense that we would have some sort of body manual at some point left for only the worthy to know/keep? Makes sense to me.

With Eric's information you have to simply take the bits you wish that make sense to you and put the religious stuff to one side. I highly respect this individual! It takes a good researcher and a free researcher to be able to do what I've said. This is why many fail...

God is real, and Satan (Lucifer) is real.

Satan is Kolvenbach's boss.

Lucifer is a different character to Satan, Lucifer represents Venus.

Lucifer was an archangel who rebelled against God, along with a third of the angels. He was kicked out and renamed Satan (meaning "adversary").

smashstuff - February 13, 2007 03:16 PM (GMT)

But the name Lucifer only appears once or twice in the bible, and is referred to as 'son of the morning'. Lucifer was the Roman name for Venus.

The story of Lucifer becoming Satan was popularised in John Milton's Paradise Lost. I don't believe there's anything in the bible relating the two.

JagDRS - February 13, 2007 05:36 PM (GMT)

Lucifer has all sorts of minion agents to do what he was rendered inanimate and therefore physically powerless to do. Does it really matter what name the agent takes onto itself? Every generation, every myth, every form of idolatry, they all seem to have their own colorful names for that which embodies the same essence; Serpent, Satan, Baal, Set, Pluto, Venus, Saturn, Pius, Paul, Beezlebub, Constantine, Weishaupt, Pike, Rothschild, Rockefeller, Federal Reserve, IRS, SMOM, Shriner, Graham, Robertson, et. al. just happen to be some of the relatively more recent names taken on. They are Legion.

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 13, 2007 10:06 PM (GMT)

Lucifer is VENUS and Satan is SATURN both very different things and this is why they do not use the 666 or 6 for anything other than Satan (SATURN) the 6th planet.

I just don't like people claiming REAL Truthsayers like Eric Phelps are disinformationists just because their still stuck in religion for instance. If it wasn't for people like Eric Phelps we'd all be stagnant talking about Bohemian Grove all day long and never progressing or knowing REAL history. Eric Phelps deserves the HIGHEST respect of people who utilise this board for info on the Jesuits/Vatican/Opus Dei/SMOM. Remember you can count on two hands the truthsayers right now infact I can only count them on one. So be careful who you disrespect because eventually you'll be left with no-one of worth, just these Alex Jones frauds making you stagnant.

Religious indoctrination can be very hard to get out of. Remember just because you're a 4th Vow Jesuit don't mean you know everything. Theres always levels within levels.

I will keep an eye on anyone disrespecting my friends and people I look up to who've helped me a lot! This board was started in order to expose the Jesuits mostly and I owe Eric a lot for helping me become aware of them and so forth. When I'm trying to help highlight the Jesuits to people and of course Eric Jon Phelps I do not want someone coming along claiming false words about him. How is America still not a British colony if the British SIS control half of the Americas national media outlets. And also how could it not be a British colony if the SIS controls the American CIA & FBI Division 5? Also not to mention the round table so technically America is still under British control and America never won the revolution or the war of 1812.

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 18, 2007 01:21 AM (GMT)

You haven't understood what's being said. America hasn't always been controlled by the British as it's claimed. We're led to believe the British have controlled this from day one then we're not. It's a lie as exposed by Eric Phelps. They've controlled the U.S since 1868 fully, it was more visible to some in the 1890's and more so in 1933 as E.C Knuth spoke about back in 1944.

FBI Division #5 is controlled by Defense Industrial Security Command linked with Boeing, NASA and so forth.

All media, intelligence etc are controlled by the SOVEREIGN MILITARY OF MALTA. British SIS is intelligence and controlled by the SMOM/PILGRIM SOCIETY at the upper levels. Yes British SIS are Newsweek Magazine, MSNBC, Fox News etc. All connected at the top by the SMOM knights of Malta.

[COLOR=blue][COLOR=blue]Just addressing this from a totally different angle, many of you may be aware of a piece of paperwork called an IMF - Individual Master File. It is just one among various files the IRS maintains on pretty much anybody who's ever had an SS#, held a "wage-paying" job of employment, or filed a federal tax form. It was not that many years ago (perhaps 20 years ago and more) that most people, even astute constitutionalists and history researchers, were not aware of this computerized mechanism for maneuvering the tax accounts of most U.S. Citizens. Thanks to things like FOIA and the work in the trenches of numerous tax patriots, many people now have a decent idea what this particular computer system and the paper work it spits out (like IMFs) are all about. I've got a couple of my own IMFs, hard copy, on hand from a few years back. They are not readily decipherable. Oh, there are familiar numbers and dollar signs on them, but there are all kinds of codes. Thanks to the same caliber of patriots, these codes can now be somewhat readily decoded and deciphered to paint a more clear picture of how the IRS manipulates their internal systems to fabricate whatever tax scenario they wish to portray for a given individual. I found out a few years back that some of these codes actually connect the dots (within the theory on paper, anyway) of how revenues collected pass, electronically, among different world organizations, to include the Fed Reserve Banks, and IMF banks (international monetary fund) and in many cases the end point of these collected revenues, on paper at least, terminate with the Crown of England. The moral to this particular interpretation of this story is - on paper, at least in some circles such as those contrived by the IRS and USTreasury, is that this fraudulent notion we've been brainwashed with all our lives "doing the patriotic, legal duty of paying one's fair share of taxes" is all about King's Commerce.... Admiralty Law, etd, and in some definite respects, on paper, we are in fact still a British Colony, and there is plenty of documentation that backs up the notion that the Crown of England is the ultimate recipient of said collected revenues..... something to chew on, anyway.

This Anunnaki promoter...

Wow. Now he's labeled me. As if HE is the fountain of all truth in this world, let alone on this site. Yeah, the Anunnaki don't exist because you say so, regardless of the mountains of evidence to the contrary. Nice to see that even someone like 2TUFF/CRAIG-OXLEY acts just like the people he supposedly tries to expose.

I'm not going to shy away from stating my honest opinion no matter how much you threaten me and talk down to me. Call me a disinfo agent, temporal coadjutor, Anunnaki promoter, whatever. I know who I am and what makes the most sense to me.

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 19, 2007 09:12 PM (GMT)

You're the one who throws his weight around making out Eric Phelps is giving disinformation just because he's religious. You're always promoting the Anunnaki disinformation. Where is all the evidence of the Anunnaki exactly? The biggest pot of so-called evidence is this sumerian tablets which disinformationist Sitchin a friend of Pope John Paul II and Vatican Temporal Coadjutor gives you. Remember they will use this Anunnaki crap as part of their way of getting you into yet another phony religion, this time the one-world religion coming shortly.

At the end of day accepting that the religions are based on Astro-Theology is all well but then we also become religious by following the Planets etc as gods and so forth. We're ending up following the same religious text yet with another twist same as Hindu, Muslim, Protestant etc as 99% of religions are based upon this. I'd rather now learn how its a coded human manual of how the body works and interact then your no longer following a religion as such. Anunnaki twoddle now gets my goat as that is simply a little more advanced version of all the other religions. Then again I haven't seen any of the Tablets and how many can read Sumerian exactly?!?!?!?! So lets prove it. I do like some of the tribes peoples information like the Dogon from Africa. Don't get so wrapped up in this stuff as theres so much disinformation in that arena of aliens. I'd say 90%+ of so-called aliens such as Greys are simply a human genetic creation created in the underground DUMBS which Phil Schneider exposed.

REMEMBER ONE THING. IN ORDER TO CREATE A WORLD RELIGION THERE IS ONLY TWO POSSIBLE METHODS TO DO THIS. ONE IS TO GET THE PEOPLE INDOCTRINATED WITH FALSE GODS/ALIENS THEN CREATE A MEETING OR INVASION SOMEHOW. TWO CREATE A LARGE CELESTRIAL EVENT SUCH AS PROJECT LUCIFER AND SOMEHOW WORM A NEW RELIGION FROM THIS, WHICH WILL BE HARDER I BELIEVE.

So ideally it makes sense why all of a sudden they bombard you with aliens this and that, anunnaki and all sorts ready for the d-day when they bring it forth. Its such a big secret yet its all over the TV at the same time. Its a game being played on you all. I've fell for a lot of it in the past but now I see it for what it mostly is and thats twoddle.

fear of depth - February 19, 2007 09:57 PM (GMT)

We'll see. Only time will tell who is right as far as the Anunnaki are concerned.

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 19, 2007 10:47 PM (GMT)

Well infact its claimed that were wrong in calling them Anunnaki according the Tsarion who I believe is a bigger authority on the subject than Sitchin.

Well infact its claimed that were wrong in calling them Anunnaki according the Tsarion who I believe is a bigger authority on the subject than Sitchin.

You should know that I've never even READ a Sitchin book, I get most of my Anunnaki info from non-conspiracy, non-alternate history researchers, "legitimate" researchers, who are simply interested in properly translating ancient Sumerian text, and who consider Sumerian and Babylonian myth to be just that, myth.

The introduction to "The Gilgamesh Epic: A New Translation" has been a great help to me.

And according to properly translated and interpreted Sumerian text, there were two kinds of "gods": The Anunnaki, "those who came from the sky" (it should be noted that "Elohim" also literally means "those who came from the sky", so the Elohim and the Anunnaki were more than probably the same), the "lesser gods of the Netherworld", essentially flesh-and-blood beings, having a reptilian appearance, who lived in vast cities deep underground, and then there were "the gods of the gods", the Igigi, "the Watchers", the "great gods of Heaven", who remained faceless and who were apparently ethereal and ultradimensional in nature.

Very well.

It's not as if I'm the one who started talking about it. You're the one who decided to label me an "Anunnaki promoter" out of the blue simply because I asked a few questions about Phelps.

What else is there to say about America being under British control anyway? It has been under British control for only 139 years, not since the very beginning. Okay.

In the Georgetown Law journal:

Jews are the property of the Norman and Anglo Saxon Kings and are also owned by Gt Britain. In a trade for this the Jews were placed in charge of the British Banking system and their Talmud was made law of the land.

The Talmud Law is known as the Uniform Commerical Code

The Jews bought their law into England since 1066. Ever since the Talmud has been forced by Pope's, King's and Christian Churches. The Talmud is the basis of Tavistock mind control that rules the world. This mind control includes acknowledging corporations as higher entities when they are primarily debt collectors for British created Civil wars and in charge of our natural resources. Corporations are treated as person in the courts.

Title: proposals to reunite Anglicans with the Roman

Description: Catholic Church under the Pope

ArchAngel - February 19, 2007 03:40 AM (GMT)

Prophecy fulfills itself. Antichrist sure to follow.

<http://www.timesonline.co.uk/tol/comment/f...icle1403702.ece>

Ruth Gledhill, Religion Correspondent

Radical proposals to reunite Anglicans with the Roman Catholic Church under the leadership of the Pope are to be published this year, The Times has learnt.

The proposals have been agreed by senior bishops of both churches.

In a 42-page statement prepared by an international commission of both churches, Anglicans and Roman Catholics are urged to explore how they might reunite under the Pope.

The statement, leaked to The Times, is being considered by the Vatican, where Catholic bishops are preparing a formal response.

It comes as the archbishops who lead the 38 provinces of the Anglican Communion meet in Dar es Salaam, Tanzania, in an attempt to avoid schism over gay ordination and other liberal doctrines that have taken hold in parts of the Western Church.

The 36 primates at the gathering will be aware that the Pope, while still a cardinal, sent a message of support to the orthodox wing of the Episcopal Church of the US as it struggled to cope with the fallout after the ordination of the gay bishop Gene Robinson.

Were this week's discussions to lead to a split between liberals and conservatives, many of the former objections in Rome to a reunion with Anglican conservatives would disappear. Many of those Anglicans who object most strongly to gay ordination also oppose the ordination of women priests.

Rome has already shown itself willing to be flexible on the subject of celibacy when it received dozens of married priests from the Church of England into the Catholic priesthood after they left over the issue of women's ordination.

There are about 78 million Anglicans, compared with a billion Roman Catholics, worldwide. In England and Wales, the Catholic Church is set to overtake Anglicanism as the predominant Christian denomination for the first time since the Reformation, thanks to immigration from Catholic countries.

As the Anglicans' squabbles over the fundamentals of Christian doctrine continue — with seven of the conservative primates twice refusing to share Communion with the other Anglican leaders at their meeting in Tanzania — the Church's credibility is being increasingly undermined in a world that is looking for strong witness from its international religious leaders.

The Anglicans will attempt to resolve their differences today by publishing a new Anglican Covenant, an attempt to provide a doctrinal statement under which they can unite.

But many fear that the divisions have gone too far to be bridged and that, if they cannot even share Communion with each other, there is little hope that they will agree on a statement of common doctrine.

The latest Anglican-Catholic report could hardly come at a more sensitive time. It has been drawn up by the International Anglican-Roman Catholic Commission for Unity and Mission, which is chaired by the Right Rev David Beetge, an Anglican bishop from South Africa, and the Most Rev John Bathersby, the Catholic Archbishop of Brisbane, Australia.

The commission was set up in 2000 by the former Archbishop of Canterbury, Lord Carey of Clifton, and Cardinal Edward Cassidy, then head of the Vatican's Council for Christian Unity. Its aim was to find a way of moving towards unity through "common life and mission".

The document leaked to The Times is the commission's first statement, Growing Together in Unity and Mission. The report acknowledges the "imperfect communion" between the two churches but says that there is enough common ground to make its "call for action" about the Pope and other issues.

In one significant passage the report notes: "The Roman Catholic Church teaches that the ministry of the Bishop of Rome [the Pope] as universal primate is in accordance with Christ's will for the Church and an essential element of maintaining it in unity and truth.” Anglicans rejected the Bishop of Rome as universal primate in the 16th century. Today, however, some Anglicans are beginning to see the potential value of a ministry of universal primacy, which would be exercised by the Bishop of Rome, as a sign and focus of unity within a reunited Church.

In another paragraph the report goes even further: “We urge Anglicans and Roman Catholics to explore together how the ministry of the Bishop of Rome might be offered and received in order to assist our Communion to grow towards full, ecclesial communion.”

Other recommendations include inviting lay and ordained members of both denominations to attend each other’s synodical and collegial gatherings and conferences. Anglican bishops could be invited to accompany Catholic ones on visits to Rome.

The report adds that special “protocols” should also be drawn up to handle the movement of clergy from one Church to the other. Other proposals include common teaching resources for children in Sunday schools and attendance at each other’s services, pilgrimages and processions.

Anglicans are also urged to begin praying for the Pope during the intercessory prayers in church services, and Catholics are asked also to pray publicly for the Archbishop of Canterbury.

In today’s Anglican Church, it is unlikely that a majority of parishioners would wish to heal the centuries-old rift and return to Rome.

However, the stance of the Archbishop of Canterbury over the present dispute dividing his Church gives an indication of how priorities could be changing in light of the gospel imperative towards church unity.

Dr Rowan Williams, who as Primate of the Church of England is its “focus for unity”, has in the past supported a liberal interpretation of Scripture on the gay issue. But he has made it clear that church unity must come before provincial autonomy. A logical extension of that, once this crisis is overcome either by agreement or schism, would be to seek reunion with the Church of England’s own mother Church.

Yep, another of harlot Rome's daughters going back to mama church.

Monumental News!

What better way to unite all the apostate Protestant churches under the Pope than to fight a common enemy---Islam controlled also by Rome via Freemasonry.

Title: What did Al Gore do the past year

Description: to get where he is?

JagDRS - February 19, 2007 08:34 AM (GMT)

Was searching the Jesuit forum archive looking for info on a specific past hollywood perp. Didn't find it, not yet anyway, but did find this. It seems relevant now that it's nearly 1 year to the day of being posted. For myself personally, I'm still in full agreement today as I was a year ago, the Heneghen mantra on behalf of Gore is still old to the point of being nauseating, and rather telling Here's the link and below that the text at that link.

Good question! I have spoken to them both about this but they persist in associating with pro-Gore Heneghen. Heneghen's pro-Gore, multiple indictment postion is a dead giveaway as to his disinformation. The truth is Gore is as dirty as Bush, Gore merely posing as a real candidate in the 2000 election. (Remember that Gore was a party to all of Clinton's crimes.) Gore further prevented any Congressional investigation into the Supreme Court appointment of Bush to the White House. Remember all those Black Congressmen and women who only needed one signature of any Senator to prevent Bush to be seated? Coadjutor Michael Moore has this most revealing footage in the House in his Fahrenheit 911. That evil day Gore, as President of the Senate, helped Bush into office! Further, the indictments Heneghen spoke of never came down except one against Libby. And Jesuit-trained Coadjutor Patrick Fitzgerald will be sure to suppress evidence and lose the case if it ever goes to court. Bush, CFR-Cheney, CFR-Rice, CFR-Wolfowitz and even CFR-Libby are all untouchable, protected by the Jesuits ruling the Department of Justice and the US Supreme Court.

I do not believe their Temporal Coadjutors and I normally sniff them out easily. I do not know what to think of Webb > after his pathetic Black Pope article of Kolvenbach being dead etc. Any > evidence you have against them is needed.

Victor Thorne has provided much evidence against the trio of Webb, Heneghen and Flocco. Futher Webb and Heneghen are associated with Jesuit Coadjutor Hal Turner just like Texe Marrs is associated with Jesuit Coadjutor Alex Jones.

Also whats worrying is if Ted

> Gunderson is or is not still apart of the Bush Family crime clique as a > infiltrator grassing people up.

My dealings with Ted Gunderson have been few but I believe he is an honest man who at present does not see the Jesuit connection to the FBI, especially J. Edgar Hoover.

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 19, 2007 01:55 PM (GMT)

Victor Thorne is a Jew blaming Temporal Coadjutor. Also over time I've seen Heneghan as a great source of information. The problem with Eric Phelps on this subject is that he sees things only from the highest level. Eric recognises that theres plenty of bickering and infighting but then will say that French Intel isn't against British in any way when infact you can see it. You will notice how when we hear French Intel has helped stop an attack in the U.S that something happens in France or to the French in some way as retaliation such as the riots which were organised by the British. It was at one point claimed to have been British SAS which were organising it. Wether that was true or not I do not know but it may have been British SIS.

I once wondered as you see about Heneghan etc but now over time I've seen that what their saying is pretty much bang on. You see Heneghan isn't coming from the highest level he's telling you whats happening NOW lower down. You see that the Jesuit Order controls the show but alas theres no denying Permindex tried to kill Charles De Gaulle twice. Now we're also well aware that Charles was fully protected by the Jesuit Order and this is why the many attempts on his life never occured. So from the top their all one but lower down they still mostly believe their opposites. Remember what Jordan Maxwell says about countries and that their not countries as such but GANGS all out for themselves. So on this one I have to disagree with Eric Phelps about Heneghan etc.

I would be vary doubtful about Gunderson being a decent man and I still believe he's linked to the DEFENSE INDUSTRIAL SECURITY COMMAND who control what he was the HEAD of being FBI DIVISION #5. I believe he is an infiltrating spy regardless what anyone else has to say. I could be very nice to Eric and deep down be devious, that means absolutely nothing. These people in Intelligence etc are very good at their jobs and believe me know how to trick people. Gunderson has done many crimes and many more to come.

As I've exposed Al Gore has is bad points but the facts are they've tried to KILL him, screwed him in an election when he won by 500,000 votes and are trying to firewall him now with Clinton and Obama. I don't personally believe much of this anti-Gore information coming out to be perfectly honest. Also would you go up against these powerful entities when they've managed to pull a coup d e'tat? Its dangerous as a President when you've got a little pull/say and somewhat protection let alone a failed/screwed President who no one longer cares about in sheepleville because you lost, were screwed. JFK had what happened to him and look at his status at the time. The warning was sent out and Al Gore Jr may have took it seeing as he was almost killed over Chicago in 1998 by the Marc Rich box controlled by SMOM Papal Knight George H.W Bush.

I'm also quite sure that you would get better information on whats been said by Eric from Tom Heneghan himself who would give you the real facts 100% which may show you how the wrong info gets out and the smear tactics wether intentional or unintentional happen. Yet again some people would claim what Heneghan tells you would be disinformation. Of course you cannot win when people are out to get you because of the danger of your words against the establishment and of course the indoctrinated sheep/researchers who have their world once again turned upside down from what they THOUGHT was right.

Take Care

[COLOR=blue][COLOR=blue]Agreed, the stuff we are discussing is messy to say the least, especially way down here at the level of us peons trying to make head or tails out of all the mush.

The main thing I was saying was, I've had it up to here (jag, pointing to his eyeballs) with the "and at the end of the day, Al Gore is still the duly elected , uninaugurated president....." It just seems to be that even a reasonably biased person would eventually "get over it" and move on. It's well past time to move on from Gore '00. I'm not saying move on from the principle involved - the hijacking of a presidential election by way of treasonous behavior of the entire bleeping system with U.S. Supreme Court blessings and complicity to boot!. It's never time to move on from that, just as it's never time to move on from what culminated & transpired on 112263, and 91101 - the principle.

But as far as the actual players involved in such events? I would say the same had the hijacking occurred between Pinnochio & Barney Fife, which it effectively did in my opinion - they were just puppets du jour, one rather wooden, one somewhat animate. I mean, it would be one thing if we were discussing players who themselves were/are legitimate actors, legitimate nominees in the first place, but as I see it, we stopped having legitimate actors running for AND controlling our political system about as long ago as when Dorothy and Toto left Kansas; we're not there, any more, and where we are is a ugly, lawless, brave new world..... "mis leaders", as Jordan would say :ph43r:

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 19, 2007 09:16 PM (GMT)

We should NEVER forget the past as then we have no future. Here in the U.K SMOM Blair tried to remove the Magna Carta not so long back. He never actually did this but it will come. This Magna Carta is the one of the closest things we have to the U.S Bill of Rights/Constitution so to speak. The Jesuits are dumbing down the Protestant Nations and not teaching people history let alone real history. Eventually in a generation or two no one will even know of the Magna Carta let alone what its about. The Jesuits will simply remove it no problem by this time.

We need to highlight how and WHY Gore was screwed.

Title: What did "Vatican II" Really Change?

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 17, 2007 02:18 PM (GMT)

Part 4. What did "Vatican II" Really Change?

The Roman Catholic Church is very proud of two distinct things: 1) that it has never changed, and 2) that it has changed very much! I realize that number 2 seems to contradict number 1, but anyone who has studied church history even briefly, will be able to grasp what I'm trying to say.

First, Rome is very emphatic about making clear these unalterable facts:

- A. That she is the original and only church founded by Jesus Christ upon the earth.
- B. That her head, the pope, has the authority handed down from the "first pope," Simon Peter, through "apostolic succession," (1) to sit in the place of Jesus as the undisputed leader of all true Christians on earth.
- C. That her traditions and interpretations of scripture are the only basis for forming the rules and guidelines that Christians everywhere should live by.
- D. And that her dogmas and doctrines, although they can be clarified, enlarged, or re-stated for the sake of changing times, can never, ever be abolished, contradicted, or altered. They are quite literally, "Canon Law."

On the other hand, modern Roman Catholics are immensely pleased with the reforms and evolution they have seen in their Church, especially since the cataclysmic "Second Vatican Council" (more commonly know as "Vatican II"). They point to how much has been done to open the way for "all Christians everywhere to finally come together!" This, of course, does seem very exciting, especially since Rome has been largely on the defensive since the Reformation. Starting with the Council of Trent in 1546, there has been one papal decree after another, which has completely make it impossible (even forbidden) for Catholics to have any "fellowship" with Protestants.

Ah, but "time heals all wounds" [we] say, and like everything else, the giant chasm between Protestant and catholic now seems with the passing of centuries, to appear like just a "little misunderstanding." And Vatican II, which included such sweeping reforms as allowing Mass to be said in the common local language, and no longer forbidding Catholics to read a Protestant Bible, or attend a Protestant church service, seemed to make the differences between Rome and the rest of the fragmented Christian world look very petty.

As you probably might guess, I do not believe this to be the case. In fact, in my research and studies I have only found the opposite to be true, Yes indeed, the Catholic Church is changing! It has probably never changed so much in all its history as during the past generation, but it has not changed one, single, solitary doctrine! Each and every point of dogma that has alarmed evangelical theologians for the past 400 years remains the same, exactly as written, and in full force!

But because of all the changed garments, all the reformed liturgies and ceremonies, and the resulting freedom of worship, Catholics everywhere (as well as many Protestants) have mistakenly believed that something substantial has really changed! But this is not a surprise, it has happened before many times in history. When you change the key, the instruments, or the rhythm of a song, almost everyone will believe you have a new song. Only those who listen carefully to the lyrics, or who know their music well, will realize that yes, the style is different, but the song is the same!

The whole thing seems so sad to me, when I realize how very few there are among Catholics (and Protestants) who really know what Roman Catholicism teaches. It is truly shocking! And what's even more alarming, is the potential for the devil to pull the wool over people's eyes because of their ignorance.

I have received many letters from Catholics in response to the first three Chronicles, which have basically said this: "The Catholic Church has really changed! why not use the current beliefs and teachings that are a result of Vatican II?" Believe me, in each of my articles, I was doing just that! I would be a fool to be refuting doctrines and teaching that are no longer being used. But because Catholic worship is based so much on ritual, ceremony, and symbolic outward forms, the average Catholic believes with all his heart that when he sees these surface things altered, that his church has really changed! You have only to look at the documents of Vatican II to see that this is not the case.

The Need for Vatican II

In the early 1960's, the Vatican knew that there was a need to give the Church a face-lift. Many of its policies seemed out of place, and most of its forms of worship were stiff and outdated. There was a feeling among the bishops that the Church needed to evolve with the times, and there was also a growing to re-unite with Rome, that she was going to have to give herself a more pleasant and appealing appearance. There was also criticism from her own ranks that her doctrines needed to be clarified and "re- stated" in a more simple and less dogmatic tone than previous councils had done.

Thus the Second Vatican Council was called by Pope John XXIII in 1962, and continued under Pope Paul VI until 1965 when it issued "The Documents of Vatican II," each on different aspects of church teaching and doctrine. The spirit and attitude of these documents were remarkably different from any the Roman Church had ever produced. They were full of scriptural references, and did not include any blatant "curses" on those who did not agree (as previous councils had done). They were revolutionary in freeing individual parish priests to conduct Masses in the way they best could reach the local culture and community. This, as well as changes in church administration and religious freedom were the main results of the Council.

In the following years, there were other changes that proceeded out of Rome as a result of the new attitudes which were born from Vatican II. These included the removal of the strict requirement to refrain from eating meat on Fridays (and also the command to fast during Lent). Although these practices were still encouraged, they were now optional instead of mandatory. The whole Church seemed to be loosening up. And ecumenical leaders the world over were beginning to see the light at the end of the church-unity tunnel.

But in the midst of all this, a few ardent Christians still stubbornly pointed out that although the procedure and the language of the Mass might have changed, the meaning of it still remained very much the same. And though the outward forms and words used by Rome had been altered much, the things she taught and believed had only been confirmed and repeated in the soft and soothing tone of the Vatican II documents.

The Charismatic Movement

And then came the "charismatic renewal" seemingly out of nowhere! With the Pope's blessing, Catholics were taking part in charismatic Masses, speaking in tongues, prophesying, singing and shouting side by side with Evangelical Protestants! Everyone was so excited - they thought, "Now we've got the devil licked! Why, doctrine wasn't important anymore, that was for seminary students and old, stuffy theologians!" but as the excitement started to quiet down a little, the Protestants noticed that a few of their Catholic brothers and sisters were still praying to Mary, and were even offering prayers for their dead relatives in the prayer meetings.

It soon became apparent that unity was not going to be as easy as it had seemed at first. Protestants began to make inquiries, and they started bothering their Catholic friends too much with questions like, "Do you think the Pope is saved?" As you can see, the whole future of the ecumenical movement hinges on this all-important question: "Can a Roman Catholic be considered a genuine believer (according to the Bible), and still believe the things the Roman Church teaches?"

The Things That Vatican II Did Not Change

To help answer that question, we have prepared a list of teachings and practices that have been adopted and perpetuated by the Roman Catholic Church over the last 1600 years. It is important to note that not one of these were altered at all by the Second Vatican Council.

A Scholar Looks at Vatican II

Dr. Loraine Boettner, noted Evangelical authority on Roman Catholic doctrine, takes an in-depth look at the documents of Vatican II in the preface to the fifth edition of his book Roman Catholicism. Dr. Boettner writes:

"The Second Vatican Council, which closed late in 1965, made changes in the liturgy, administrative practices, and in the matter of religious freedom. It repeated the claim that the Roman Catholic Church is the only true church, although it did recognize that other churches contain some elements of truth.

"But Pope John XXIII, who called the first session, and Pope Paul VI, who presided over the later sessions (as well as several prominent cardinal and theologians), took care to emphasize that no changes would be made in the doctrinal structure of the Church. However, Pope Paul did promulgate [declare] one new doctrine, which asserts that 'Mary is the Mother of the Church.' The primary purpose of the Council was to update the liturgy and administrative practices and so to make the Church more efficient and more acceptable to the 20th century world.

"The introduction of the 'New Mass,' for instance, brought about a change in language - Latin is no longer required, except in the prayer of consecration. But as Protestants, it is not important to us whether the Mass is said in Latin or English or Swahili - it is not the language of the Mass that we object to, it is its content and meaning. (See Chronicle II, 'The Sacrifice of the Mass').

"On previous occasions, Rome has changed her tactics when old methods became ineffective, but she has never changed her nature. In any religious organization, doctrine is the most basic and important part of its structure, since what people believe determines what they do. An official document, 'The Constitution on the Church' prepared by the Council and approved by the Pope, reaffirms basic Catholic doctrine precisely as it stood before the Council met. The doctrine of papal infallibility is restated. We are told that when 'by a definitive act he proclaims a doctrine of faith and morals... his definitions, of themselves, and not by the consent of the Church, are justly called, irreformable' (Article 25).

The pope has lost none of his powers. He remains the absolute ruler in the Roman Church. But if papal decrees past and present are 'irreformable', what hope is there for real reform in the Church of Rome?

Although many of these beliefs were practiced earlier than the dates given, they did not become binding on all Catholics until they were officially adopted by church councils and proclaimed by the Pope as dogmas of faith. All dates are approximate.

31. Infallibility of the pope in matters of faith and morals proclaimed by the First Vatican Council...1870.
32. Pius XI condemned the public schools...1930.
33. Pius XI reaffirmed the doctrine that Mary is "The Mother of God"...1931.
34. The dogma of the Assumption of the Virgin Mary was proclaimed by Pope Pius XII...1950.
35. Mary proclaimed the Mother of the Church by Pope Paul VI...1965.

"The document on the Church repeats in substance the teaching of the Council of Trent that 'priests and bishops are the representatives of God on earth...justly, therefore, they are called not only angels, but gods, holding as they do the place of authority of God on earth.' (Catechism of Trent).

"In fact, no more sweeping claims were made by the Council of Trent (1545-1563), nor by the First Vatican Council (1870), than are made in these documents from Vatican II. Despite all the claims to the contrary, the Council has firmly maintained the doctrine of the primacy of Peter (3) and of papal succession. In his book, Ecclesiam Suam, Pope Paul expressed his distress because of what some of the 'separated brethren' (4) say about the pope as the stumbling block in the way of church unity. He said, 'Do not some of them say that if it were not for the primacy of the pope, the reunion of the separated churches with Catholic Church would be easy? We beg the separated brethren to consider the inconsistency of this position, not only in that, without the pope, the Catholic Church would no longer be Catholic, but also because without the supreme decisive pastoral office of Peter, the unity of the Church of Christ would utterly collapse. "We must say that at this point we agree with the Pope, at least to this extent, that if the Roman Catholic Church were reformed according to scripture, it would have to be abandoned. But the gross errors concerning salvation still remain. Moreover, the Council did nothing toward removing the more than 100 anathemas or curses pronounced by the Council of Trent on the Protestant churches and beliefs. If there is to be any true unity, surely this would seem the logical place to start."

Conclusion

We could not find a more fitting conclusion than Dr. Boettner's:

"The 'Constitution on the Church' makes it abundantly clear that Rome has no intention of revising any of her basic doctrine, but only of updating her methods and techniques for more efficient administration and to present a more attractive appearance. This is designed to make it easier for the Eastern Orthodox, Anglican, and Protestant churches to return to her fold. There is no indication that she has any intentions of entering into genuine give-and-take church unity negotiations. Her purpose is not union, but ABSORPTION. Church union with Rome is strictly a one-way street. The age-old danger that Protestantism has faced from the Roman Church has not diminished; in fact, it may well have increased. For through this less-offensive posture and this superficial ecumenicism, Rome is much better situated to carry out her program of eliminating opposition and moving into a position of world dominance. AN INFALLIBLE CHURCH SIMPLY CANNOT REPENT."

Footnotes

- 1) The Roman Catholic Church teaches that Jesus Christ ordained the 12 apostles to the priesthood at the Last Supper, and to their successors, the Roman priesthood, Jesus promised and guaranteed His continual presence in their teaching and governing until the end of time.
- 2) Inquisition - the act of inquiring into a matter; an investigation - American Heritage Dictionary. Lucius III decreed that bishops should take action against heretics. A characteristic of this decree was that a suspect, once convicted of being a heretic, was to be handed over to the secular arm for punishment. Before the Inquisition ran its course, historians estimate that 5 to 15 million people lost their lives through torture and execution (From: A History of Christianity in the World by Clyde L. Manschreck).
- 3) The doctrine that Christ has given Peter the key role of lawful authority... that Peter would be His chief ambasssador, His authentic vicar (pope) and this power continues to be extended to Peter's successors through the ages - the popes.
- 4) The term used by Vatican II to describe the members of other non- Catholic Christian faiths.

Title: Jesuit infiltration of Native Studies

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 14, 2007 10:48 PM (GMT)

Hi 2Tuff, my name is xxxxx xxxxxxx, I am of mixed blood, Cree on my father's side and celtic, norweigen, and an unknown nation of native canadian on my mother's side. I am enrolled in a Native American studies university program on Vancouver Island Canada. Last year I was hanging out with an instructor and her daughter and I was telling her about Disney's masonic connections, because this instructor teaches a class that studies Disney's representation of indigenous peoples, and her daughter said "isn't D-- a Jesuit?" D-- being another professor in the Native Studies program, and her mom chastised her saying "that is not public knowledge" and she changed the subject right away. I didn't say anything because I thought it sounded a bit fucked up. But the reason I am contacting you is how concerned should I be about this? He is also a mixed blood, belonging to the Metis people, and his ancestor supposedly was involved in Red River rebellion against the Canadian state in 1885. But I have read some of your research about the Jesuits and their infiltration into all institutions, and well Native Studies deals with some pretty radical shit, we already before had CSIS agents in the classes (there is a Canadian Forces Base right next door to the uni), because there were students involved in a resistance group, the West Coast Warriors Society, which was dissolved in 2005 after a big media operation in which several warriors legally purchased $11,000 worth of rifles and ammo which they claimed was to teach youth to hunt in some northern communities. 45 seconds after they left the gun store the RCMP and Vancouver PD swat took them down, and then days after the society disbanded. Their leader is a young chief, and their media spokesman was <http://www.taiaiake.com/> a former US marine and a member of the Native Elite coming from the iroquois/mohawk just like Joseph Brant (native freemason), and another strange thing is the society's connection with an Eastern Native named James Ward, an ex Delta Force turned native activist, who shot half his face off "over a girl".

Anyway the program at my school seems to be falling apart, that could just be my interpretation because now that I have read a little more truth about history I keep finding bullshit in what the teachers are teaching. I wrote a paper about native gangs about how the jesuits and masons orchestrate gangs through the mafia, drug-trade, hells angels, media, etc. I wrote about how through the Jesuits use of Residential Schools, which were mind control death camps, Natives lost their identity and culture and the generations that followed have little connection to our culture and turn to the media to fill that void. That is why native kids emulate black americans, because we live on reservations, which spawned the word Ghetto, we can obviously relate to what we hear in rap music and then we just act out the themes we hear in the songs. In the paper I outlined who owns the record companies, who owns the cocaine, and a bunch of other solid shit about masonic symbols in rap, most of which I have posted in g-unit thread. My teachers just said I shouldn't use internet sources for research papers. It was kind of maddening, because they always teach this bullshit about "the white man" "the white man is the root to all our problems". So I said OK, which white men? I found out the answer was the masons and jesuits. But they still don't acknowledge it!!! Anyway man tell me what you think about my question.

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 14, 2007 10:58 PM (GMT)

Firstly when you become aware of a teacher being a Jesuit you should never follow their words and always learn the facts to see most times what they tell you are twisted lies or things to suit their own agenda.

You should check out the Video made by Jim Arabbito featuring Dr Alberto Rivera on the Infiltration by Jesuits of Protestant Churches etc. This will help you see how devious these cretins are. Did you know back in the 80's they were training like 800-900 a year in Georgetown University just for Protestant Church infiltration?

The Jesuits mean business my friend and have done since their creation. So if I were you I'd be walking out of that place and not until I'd confronted the Jesuit cretin working there and put him on the spot. You should make it clear you know he's a Jesuit and you know their infiltration games. You may just find he suddenly disappears from the next day on. You should point out to the people in charge there about the Jesuits by utilising that Video and other evidence data. The more people become aware the better.

Disney was a high ranking Freemason controlled by the Sovereign Military of Malta mostly his direct master being the Archbishop of NY. All Masonic organisations are subordinate to the Jesuit Order. Please remember that whilst the White/Gentile race are the king, you must also acknowledge that the high level so-called Judiac people also have much power allowed to them by the Jesuits, being the Jesuits front men if anything kicks off.

You certainly will not be liked if you expose these people and this man inparticular if he's definately up to something which is most likely. Expect a Catholic Red Card maybe and join the CLUB haha.

This should tell you something straight away! BEWARE! Those that need to keep secrets like this have something bad to hide. The Jesuit is the master of hiding and have been for a long time. The Jesuit is the master of deceit, organisation and poisoning.

I would be real damm careful kid, a Jesuit is a tiger and if you jerk on his tail you may die. watch your food and drink very close.

Alexandra - February 15, 2007 05:12 AM (GMT)

All these societies are like rats--they HATE having the light shined on them, it reveals them for what they are.

If nothing else they may decide to declare that you're ready for the funny farm.

My teachers just said I shouldn't use internet sources for research papers.

XXXXXXXXXX

I don't understand. all of that should be able to be sourced and referenced to.

Pretty much all teachers are coadjutors. They're either in the know or not in the know. the majority of teachers' mentality unconsciously coadjute. the plan is set of perfectly in the order's favor. I had to stop going to school. god damn, and teh teachers' students help with the coadjutation. it's too annoying for me and degressing for me.

I would love to burn a couple jesuits at the stake, while sitting and having a nice organic meal, and start the fire very slowly so we could converse at the same time. I know not nice! maybe that is why they slither around and use poisen, they are afraid we will awaken one day. well war is hell as they say, I disgust my self, yet there is a beast inside me and it would not be good to loose it. I just think we should fight fire with fire. they started this game, I say we finish it .

I just got a laugh this morning, a female soldier in the US army was demoted for posing in playboy in her uniform, with certain items hanging out in the wind, ha ha , the army punished her for disrepecting the uniform not the nudity. SO I guess its ok too invade other countrys murder the leaders and a million humans and steal oil in that uniform along with rape and pillage and sex abuse prisoners, ok ok . just do not pose naked with that uniform ok ok . kill children though ok ok. good grief.

Title: Jesuit Temporal Coadjutoress Nancy Pelosi

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 15, 2007 05:36 AM (GMT)

Jesuit Temporal Coadjutoress U.S. Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi. Jesuit Drinan, and SMOM Drug Trust

By Brother Nicholas N. Rivera

I learned yesterday from this article that Nancy Pelosi personally invited the President of the Order's University of San Francisco Stephen A. Privett SJ to give the Invocation for her Swearing-In as Speaker of the House. Pelosi attended several masses prior to that day with her family. <http://media.www.gonzagabulletin.com/media...ml?>

<http://www.jesuitscalifornia.org/NETCOMMUN...d=572&srcid=563>

Quote from the article: "I really enjoyed meeting members of the Congress like Anna Eshoo and [Prince Hall Freemason] Charlie Rangle," said Privett. "Everyone I met was warm, welcoming and upbeat. I feel that the House is in good hands, that the Democrats will work hard to counter the narrow partisanship that has characterized Congress to this point in an effort to address issues that really concern all of us."

Being present at this historical moment ranks at the top of Privett's 47 years as a Jesuit.

"It was all the more meaningful for me knowing that the United States' first woman Speaker of the House was Nancy Pelosi from San Francisco, who has a strong relationship with USF and the Jesuits."

According to the article "Congress has more religious diversity than ever before"
"Catholics remain the largest denominational group in Congress, with 155 members -- 25 in the Senate and 130 in the House. But there are fewer Catholic Republicans in both houses since the 109th Congress and many more Catholic Democrats"

In the last Senate, Catholic members were nearly evenly split between the parties, with 11 Republicans and 13 Democrats. Now there are 9 Catholic Republicans and 16 Catholic Democrats in the Senate.

In the House at the start of the 109th Congress, there were 129 Catholics -- 57 Republicans and 72 Democrats. Although the total number of House Catholics in the 110th Congress is nearly the same at 130, the current group includes 42 Republicans and 88 Democrats.

Even Rep. Keith Ellison, D-Minn., a Muslim who was sworn in as a member of Congress using a Quran once owned by President Thomas Jefferson, was raised a Catholic. He became a Muslim while in college at Wayne State University in Detroit.

Ellison's mother, Clida Ellison, recently told The Associated Press that she remains a practicing Catholic and attends Mass daily. But she said the controversy over her son's decision to be sworn in using the Quran rather than a Bible was a good thing, "because many people in America are going to learn what the diversity of America is all about."

The two new Buddhist members of Congress -- Democratic Reps. Mazie Hirono of Hawaii and Hank Johnson of Georgia -- have not spoken publicly about their religion.

Hirono is among 54 members of the 110th Congress who attended Jesuit institutions of higher education, according to a list compiled by the Association of Jesuit Colleges and Universities . She earned her law degree in 1978 at Georgetown University Law School in Washington.

The number represents a nearly 15 percent increase compared to the 109th Congress, in which 47 of the 535 members were alumni of Jesuit colleges or universities , the association said.

Jesuit Father Charles Currie, association president, called the latest figures "an important reminder that a Jesuit education is meant to lead to lives of leadership and service."

"We are proud that this goal is realized at the highest levels of public service, as well as in countless other ways across the country and around the world," he added in a statement.

With the election of Sen. Harry Reid, D-Nev., as Senate majority leader, the 110th Congress also marks the highest congressional leadership position ever achieved by a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, also known as Mormons.

Before she was made Speaker she was and still is subordinate to the current Provincial of the California Province John P. McGarry SJ and previously Tom Smolich SJ. Pelosi's husband was Jesuit-trained at Georgetown. As for her children, her daughter Alexandra was trained by Jesuits at Loyola Marymount.

Jesuit Robert F. Drinan before he went on to everlasting fire and torment said a mass at Nancy Pelosi's alma mater the Romanist Trinity University in Washington DC. This mass was said by the request of Pelosi herself. http://www.trinitydc.edu/news_events/2007/...7_fr_drinan.php Coadjutoress Pelosi gave a eulogy at Jesuit Drinan's funeral.

Nancy Pelosi pictured with Jesuit Drinan when he was awarded the Congressional Service Award May 2006.

Only recently since Drinan went to a Christless fiery eternity in hell has it been revealed that Jesuit Drinan advised Roman Catholic CFR member Skull and Bones Illuminist Luciferian John Kerry (Kohn-he has Jewish ancestry which is probably why Cardinal Egan did not pick him despite his Jesuit training at Boston College Law, CFR membership, and the fact he is a Bonesman) on "religious affairs" during his 2004 Presidential campaign.

I watched on C-SPAN as the votes were taken for Speaker of the House and it was between Roman Catholic Pelosi and Roman Catholic Jesuit-trained K of C John Boehner. The other key leaders in the House today are Harry Reid, a Mormon, and Roy Blunt a "Baptist" and Freemason. This is no coincidence. The Jesuits control the Congress from Georgetown University and in the coming years that fact will be all too clear.

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 15, 2007 05:44 AM (GMT)

Remember folks that Senator Charlie Rangel along with North American MOSSAD leader Rahm Emanuel along with Hillary Clinton and British SIS Barrack Obama all discussed sabotaging Nancy Pelosi on her ethics reform.

Maybe the Jesuits will need to protect Nancy if shes an worthwhile asset. In order to stop assassination from Rahm Emanuel the Order may protect her as they did Charles De Gualle twice from Perminent Industrial Exhibitions the very same assassins which killed J.F.K. I should remind you that Permindex is British SIS controlled and now headquartered in Bahamas after De Gaulle kicked them out of France. So Nancy are you going to need protecting, are you going to be let out to dry for disobediance or are you going to accept Hillary Clinton instead of Al Gore Jr the Duly Legally Elected U.S President. Anyone on Gore's side is seen as a mortal enemy thanks to his father being a traitor to the elite by blowing the whistle on British SIS's General Electric and of course Al Gore Jr attempting to have Marc Rich arrested in 1993. Remember folks this syndicate tried to have Gore assassinated by trying to blow him out of the skies over Chicago in 1998.

Who Really Controls The 9/11 Truth Conferences And Are Americans Really Getting The Full Story?

Speculation abounds about who really caused 9/11, but why is the Vatican/Jesuit connection conveniently left out of the debate in big conferences like Chicago and the upcoming one this month in Arizona?

14 Feb 2007

By Greg Szymanski

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/14-Feb-2007.html>

The Arctic Beacon, as well as other credible truth outlets, have compiled sufficient evidence to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the government story about 9/11 is bogus and that a cover-up exists to keep the true cause of the mass murder from the American people.

Hard evidence compiled in the last five years, however, has never been properly addressed by the 9/11 Commission and has never been brought before a proper court of law or even a Grand Jury.

Furthermore, the debate about 9/11 truth still remains in the court of public opinion, as the 9/11 truth movement, which goes from city to city every few months with a large conference, has been unfortunately infiltrated by numerous pysops agents working for the Vatican-led New World Order.

The intention of these agents is to control the 9/11 debate as well as steer information from the true culprits. What this means is that a "lot of hot air" is blown around at these so-called truth conferences, but very little progress is made at getting at the real perpetrators.

For example, the Arctic Beacon was the first outlet to question the intentions of Professor Steven Jones when he first went public since his affiliation with Brigham Young University needed to be scrutinized.

In fact, Professor Jones made his first radio appearance on Greg Szymanski's radio show, The Investigative Journal, when he first went public, Jones having free reign to state his 9/11 concerns without hard questioning.

In that interview, he stated the last thing he wanted to do was go public, saying he wanted to remain in the quiet confines of the BYU educational setting.

But in retrospect there is no one in the so-called 9/11 truth circuit that has gone more public than Jones, speaking at numerous universities around the country as well as publicly joining 9/11 Scholars for Truth until recently leaving the organization in a flurry of controversy with the original founder, Professor James Fetzer of Minnesota.

Further, it appears Jones' connection with the Scholars for Truth created more disarray, confusion and controversy than good, a characteristic usually associated with planted infiltrators and pysops agents.

Looking back, the Arctic Beacon made this observation about Jones after he went "totally public" but later backed off from these accusations, giving him the benefit of the doubt in a spirit of unity and accountability.

However, his role in 9/11 must again be examined due to the fruits of his work, not only on the physics of 9/11, but with his track record of being a part of the internal havoc in the Scholars for Truth. Not only should his BYU connection be examined since the LDS Church is a breeding ground for Vatican-led New World Order minions, but the hierarchy of the Mormon Church needs to be fully examined since it can be proved that it has been established and has been in total control from the beginning by the Vatican and Jesuit Order, who just happen to be the real spiritual controllers of the New World Order, according to many researchers.

Although it is hard to nab the real infiltrators of the 9/11 movement, Jones should be asked some tough questions, as should others in the Scholars for Truth group since this group is just one of the groups trying to lead public opinion and debate about 9/11.

Furthermore, it should be noted that in a court of law or in testimony before a citizens' Grand Jury, Jones is only a very small piece in solving the 9/11 puzzle, as his testimony would only be limited to an expert witness in regards to the free-fall nature of the Twin Towers, establishing that jet fuel was not the real reason the Towers fell while establishing that this element of the government story is untrue.

But despite his minimal importance in a legal sense, his public posture and influence has been huge. And again he will be allowed to speak at the upcoming 9/11 conference this month in Arizona, a speech that has been heard over and over again in the last year while others with a new and vibrant message will again be left off the podium.

The Arctic Beacon asks why researcher Rick Seigal is not speaking, as well as other researchers like Eric Jon Phelps, who could present an interesting case on who really caused 9/11?

It should be noted that it is also time to stray away from the hard evidence establishing a 9/11 cover-up warranting a new investigation, but serious debate should also begin about who are the real perpetrators of 9/11.

For example, in the past speculation has been pointed at the Bush administration, the Zionists/Mossad, the Illuminati elite and banksters and the Muslim terrorists.

However, conveniently left out of the debate in large 9/11 Conferences around the country, including Chicago and the upcoming Arizona conference, is the fact that the Vatican and Jesuit Order may have had a big hand in the planning of 9/11 as a way to begin the Pope's final 'Crusade of Extermination' against Christians, Muslims and Jews.

If we are only in the speculation stage of getting at the true 9/11 culprits after five long years, then the question must be asked why have the so-called experts and 9/11 truth seekers and speakers in these conferences never bothered to speculate about Vatican involvement.

What are they afraid of? What are they hiding? And is the bad side or the good side really controlling the public debate about 9/11.

For example, recently a former high-level Illuminati member of the Monte Carlo P2 Lodge, Leo Zagami, who defected 4 months ago to tell the truth about Vatican and Jesuit involvement in the New World Order and destruction of America, presented inside information regarding some of the perpetrators of 9/11.

Zagami stated he had personal knowledge that the Jesuit Order (Jesuit Gen. Fr. Pete Hans Kolvenbach), the Gladio intelligence pysops group, Licio Gelli (former Masonic P2 leader in Italy and good friend of Ronald Reagan, Commandant Giorgio Hugo Balestrieri (now the head of the New York Rotary Club) and former NY Mayor Rudy Giuliani, as well as NY Cardinal Egan, all had prior knowledge and were instrumental in planning and carrying out 9/11.

Here is what Zagami recently said about Balestrieri:

"Giorgio Hugo Balestrieri, ATTIVO 907 P2 LODGE, now a proud American citizen!

"Check for yourself on the internet and you will be surprised to see one of the present New York Rotary Club Directors registered as a member of the infamous P2 Lodge, and if you bring your research a bit further you will also find is involvement with the illegal arms trade in the port of Livorno in the 70's!

"So Welcome to the International Service Division of the Rotary Club of New York's Newsletter for proud satanic slaves and Directors of the New World Order

"Here is a recent Newsletter sent out by Balestrieri:

Welcoming Note and Listing of Articles:

The International Service Division of the Rotary Club of New York is delighted to present this newsletter in order to demonstrate the commitment and continuing support of Rotary to the United Nations and its Millennium Development Goals. This newsletter will also serve as a platform for information and dialogue between all Rotarians who are interested in the programs of the United Nations and in contributing towards achieving its goals. We invite you to share your experiences from collaboration in projects between Rotary and the United Nations. Also, all Rotarians are invited to attend the NY Rotary International Breakfast Meetings which are scheduled on the third Wednesday of every month and held at the German House located at 871 United Nations Plaza (49th St. and First Ave). These meeting provide an opportunity for Rotarians to stay informed regarding United Nation programs and to exchange views on related topics with UN officials and representatives of its member states.

Yours in Rotary Service

Com.te Dott. Giorgio H. Balestrieri
Chairman, International Service Division
Director, The Rotary Club of New York

PS: Dont mention GLADIO please ...

Zagami added:

"Americans need to investigate deeply the names I mentioned (above) and you will find out who really caused 9/11," said Zagami Tuesday on Greg Szymanski's radio show, The Investigative Journal on the Republic Broadcasting Network at www.rbnlive.com

"Balestrieri, who now has American citizenship, is a key link between the Vatican, Jesuit Order and the U.S. government in many illegal activities, including 9/11 and illegal arms dealing. He has much experience in pysops operations, heading up the sales of arms in the 1970's from the Italian port of Livorno.

"He now heads up the New York Rotary Club, which I call the robbery club, and is connected with Giuliani, Bush and the others, as well as helping the Vatican and Jesuit Order with the upcoming Pope's Crusade.

"Americans, wake-up! I know these people, including Gelli and others, were all involved in planning 9/11 because I heard it myself. This is what should be discussed in your 9/11 conferences, but I know they are sending agents controlled by the Vatican to keep this discussion off the table.

And Zagami makes a good point. Why isn't the Vatican ever discussed in connection with being involved in causing 9/11? Why? Perhaps because someone is paying people to make sure the connection isn't made!

Lastly, ask why at the end of the day when the Arizona conference is completed why Vatican speculation is left out? Better yet, ask why the "bigshots" of the 9/11 movement (and you know who they are) leave the Vatican story completely out of the picture?

Ask these questions and someday the truth may be told and people like Donna Marsh-O'Conner, who lost her pregnant 24-year-old daughter running for her life out of the South Tower, may someday get justice by bringing the real 9/11 perpetrators and mass murderers before the American people.

For, without question, Marsh-O'Conner and others who lost their loved ones on that tragic day deserve better than what these 9/11 conferences have to offer. Further, family members who lost loved ones could care less what trail finally leads to the true perpetrators of 9/11 even if all roads finally lead to the doorstep of the Vatican and the White House.

Just like Arabs are trying to steal my people's land in Sudan. What's the point. People been stealing land for thousands of years (from the 4 corners of the Earth). That doesn't justify, but that's the situation in human history. Now, some people whining over the size of New Jersey. THE Arabs have over 2 dozens of nations. Arabs stole millions of square miles in Africa and we should omit that? No, we shouldn't. The Jews haven't been perfect (and the conditions of the Palestinians should be radically improved upon without oppression), but don't be a hypocrite about it. It's kind of hilarious since not all Jewish people are monolithic. Some people act like the Jewish people follow one drummer, but many Jewish people oppose the policies of Israel just like any other race of people.

Papal Rome has been likened to a huge Arctic iceberg with 10% of its mass above the water, like the numbers reflected on Capitol Hill, and the rest of them hidden in blackness below the waterline, fostering evil around the world.

By Greg Szymanski

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/13-Feb-2007.html>

If you think the Jesuit Order doesn't have a strong foothold in Congress, think again.

Noted for infiltrating governments and religious organizations around the world and having been thrown out of numerous countries over the centuries, the Society of Jesus led by top Satanist in Rome, Fr. Peter Hans Kolvenbach, now has its evil eye focused on America.

They are disguised quite well by the cloth of Jesus, but don't be fooled these evil and ruthless men pulling the New World Order strings, have killed Presidents, including Lincoln and JFK and would not blink an eye to kill anyone who seriously gets in the way of the their New World Order agenda.

The agenda, of course, is well-known, being total fascism in America with a systematic plan of terrorism, leading to a genocide of the Christian, Muslim and Jewish people.

Although their plan is well-known, the Jesuits and the Vatican hierarchy remain well hidden and protected by their powerful minions, including U.S. government officials, high level officials in all of the world's intelligence agencies, higher-ups in all religious organizations who have been compromised, the top level members of the secret societies like the Freemasons and Knights of Malta and their loyal propagandists in the media mafia, as well as the thugs in the street mafias, carrying out their dirty work.

As you can see, it is a well-oiled and organized network, hidden behind many layers of evil veils, but a network that needs to be exposed and eliminated from American soil if there is any possibility of defeating the Vatican-led NWO who are now in the midst of their final 'Crusade of Extermination.'

To give you an idea of the Jesuit foothold in Congress, not even counting many other Catholics holding major House and Senate seats who are not Jesuit trained but loyal to the Pope through organizations like the Knights of Malta, here is an article from the Jesuits themselves, boasting about their control over American politics.

Also included is a list of those in the House and Senate who are Jesuit trained which, by the way, amounts to 10 per cent of the entire Legislative bodies.

Furthermore, Papal Rome has been likened to a huge Arctic iceberg with 10% of its mass above the water, like the numbers reflected on Capitol Hill, and the rest of it hidden in blackness below the waterline, fostering evil around the world.

More than ten percent of 110th U.S. Congress are Jesuit College and University alumni/ae

The Association of Jesuit Colleges and Universities (AJCU) reports that among the 535 Members of the 110th U.S. Congress, 54 of them, or more than 10 percent, are alumni/ae of Jesuit colleges and universities. This is an increase of close to 15 percent compared to the 109th Congress when there was a total of 47 Jesuit alumni/ae in the House and Senate.

There are nine Jesuit alumni in the Senate and 45 in the House of Representatives. Among the top leadership, both the Majority and Minority Leaders in the House of Representatives, Congressmen Steny Hoyer (D-MD) and John Boehner (R-OH) respectively, the Senate Majority Whip, Senator Richard Durbin (D-IL), and the Chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, Congressman Chris Van Hollen, are all Jesuit alumni.

Of these 54 alumni/ae, 32 received graduate or professional degrees from Jesuit universities. There are 14 Jesuit institutions represented by alumni/ae in the U.S. Congress, and Georgetown University has the most alumni/ae with a total of 22. "This number (of our alumni/ae in Congress) is an important reminder that a Jesuit education is meant to lead to lives of leadership and service," said AJCU President Fr. Charles Currie, S.J. "We are proud that that goal is realized at the highest levels of public service, as well as in countless other ways across the country and around the world. It is a privilege to work with these women and men, and with our other friends in Congress, in addressing the issues facing our nation. We appreciate the challenges they face as public servants and the many ways they reflect the competence, compassion and commitment we pursue on our campuses."

The following is the full list of the Jesuit college and university alumni/ae in Congress:

Title: Mardi Gras

Description: secret society of Jason?

Keith - February 10, 2007 11:00 PM (GMT)

I remember hearing about the secret society of jason or secret society of jasons (sounds like mason) somewhere. i think it was mentioned by dr john coleman. i am not completely sure. that's why I am asking you. Do you know where this "jasons" are mentioned?

Mardi Gras Season has started in New Orleans. the Knights of Jason parade will roll on Friday Feb. 16. The krewe of Jason is the youngest krewe in the metro New Orleans Carnival season. I think it about 3 to 4 years old. I've lived here my whole life, and although I am not a "mardi gras expert", parade names and new krewes aren't introduced very often.

Here's an article and short summary of the knights of jason parade from the Times Picayune Parade, schedules, and maps guide.

The Knights of Jason, rolling for their fourth year, will again take to the streets of Metairie. Approximately 13 floats will answer the theme question "What Do You Like To Do?" with such titles as "Kiss an Irishman" and "Laissez Les Bon Temps Rouler." This year's costumed maids will represent "Party in Rio." Approximately 15 bands and marching groups will participate including musical groups from Southern and Loyola universities as well as the Gold Dusters dance team. Leading the "Kiss and Irishman" float will be a local men's walking group that dresses in traditional Irish garb.

Membership in Jason, which is open to all, is made up mostly of families. Approximately 160 people are expected to participate, led by captain Melody Kirkwood and junior captain Trey Kirkwood. Among their throws will be 20-inch stuffed KOJI (for Knights of Jason Inc.) and Mrs. KOJI dragon dolls in purple, green and gold, as well as oversized 22-ounce krewe cups.

A captain's dinner was held Jan. 6 at the Driftwood Country Club. This year's queen will be broadcaster Karen Carlson and her king is Chris Dufrene. Baseball great Will "The Thrill" Clark will ride as a special guest aboard the "Kiss an Irishman" float.

In Greek mythology Jason and his Argonauts sought the Golden Fleece.

End of Article

At my high school, which was Jesuit High School of New Orleans, the mascot was blue jay--the bird. surrounding schools and ourselves called us(among other things) the Jesuit Blue Jays(I always just pictured a blue J, also a symbol). Next biggest catholic school around here is brother martin with their crusaders as the mascot. So, the fighting blue jay was our mascot. I am not sure whether other jesuit high schools across the nation use the blue jay as mascot. if I had to guess, i would say taht for the most part, many of the jesuit hight schools have a different mascot. The actual name of the fighting Blue Jay is: Jayson. Pretty much Jason. Different spelling.

Given that secret socitey of jason exists--which my memory flashed to me--, then there is connections here. my suspicion was verified later in the article, after I got to the end of the article I see Will Clark;s name. Will Clark attented the same Jesuit of NO(New Orleans), he even spoke a "speech" on life at morning assembly one time for like 10 minutes when I was in 9 or 10 grade. All I really remember though from his speech was he told us not to do drugs, and the way or how he said it was funny--note:Clark did not mean for it to be funny. he just sounded like douchbag and a tool when he said that line.

So, this Krewe Of Jason Parade comes along recently 4 years ago, WTF? So, 2Tuff and others, What is the secret society of jasons? Readers of this website are far more knowledgable than me in regards to all of this conspiracy/history.

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 10, 2007 11:53 PM (GMT)

William Cooper spoke much about the JASON Society

JagDRS - February 11, 2007 03:26 AM (GMT)

Bill Cooper specifically mentions the Jason Society AKA Jason Group, as "a select group of scholars" clandestinely formed in the early '50sas a result of directives that issued forth from the larger/umbrella Ops - MAJESTYTWELVE. See the essay which Bill attributed the same title to, and is still available to read, on the HOTT web site.

<http://www.hourofthetime.com/majesty.htm>

If memory serves me correctly, Bill also makes mention of this same group in this A/V, which I believe was Bill's very fist public speaking seminar after having conducted 17 years of his own research subsequent to having first stumbled onto the MJ12 documents. Like the above document, he mentions the Jason Group, but does not go into much detail. Still, the video is a good watch!

Here is something from someone who had interactions with the Jasons. These brilliant scientists were (are?) involved with trauma based mind control (MK ULTRA):

Onesmartrat's "Brief" Bio Aka "The Rant"

(originally posted on the Internet in the Spring of '06)

I am not an Internet troll, just so you know. I am, however, increasingly finding myself becoming involved in cyberspace politics ...or actually, in what could be described as the primary communication forum and catalyst for political social reform of the future, in both a global and domestic arena.

The Internet has long been recognized to be an extreme threat to the established international corporate agenda, on whose behalf our political process was hijacked a long time ago.

My Internet username, Onesmartrat, has apparently become somewhat well known in certain Internet circles. I did not start out with that intention. I joined a website about two years ago. Before that I had never posted anything on the Internet ...didn't even know how to navigate a message board. I started posting primarily out of a need to share my experiences with like minded people ...then something happened and I realized that the forum of the Internet was not just private chat space or group entertainment, but rather a powerful form of social discourse and that it was under heavy oppression and control by the those who would deem that kind of broad, ever-expanding and potentially socially galvanizing platform that would allow people to connect and communicate at a all but at real time pace and thus possibly change the face of national political scene.

Their model for this is the Zapatista Movement in Chiapas, Mexico. The Intel community were absolutely astounded and completely taken by surprise when the Zapatistas were able to mobilize tremendous support both nationally and internationally through the Internet. They knew that the very same thing could and would eventually happen here, so they took action and we now have both the government we have and the Internet control and censorship that we have because of it.

This is also why the current wave of anti-immigrant (anti-Hispanic) wave is being engineered across the country. They need to stop the flow of what they see as the end of "America as we know it." In other words, the old "domino theory" ever so popular in the Viet Nam conflict has now come back full force into covert counterintelpro operations. The social progressive movements sweeping Latin America right now are moving North. Very much so in terms of communication between the immigrants from there and their relatives who still live in those countries. The Internet is the primary tool of communication. So, that's why all this illegal wiretapping and the massive detention centers being built by Halliburton and KBR all across this country. The corporate elite and their proxy whores in government, Intel and the military, are terrified of progressive socialism sweeping north to "El Norte."

And it's inevitable. They cannot stop it, but they think they can and they are going to implement the next phase of their agenda very soon. It will make Nazi Germany look like it never ended. And this current Criminal Administration will not be leaving power in 2008, BTW. Just watch what they do and how they manage to maneuver this one...can you say "second 911." (Actually, we had a second 911; it was called Hurricane Katrina). Let's call it "911-III." Think about the fact that it was George Bush Sr. when he was President that broke the Biological and Chemical Weapon Testing International Treaty Ban. Think about that and what I just said, okay? Get my meaning?

These people in power right now are not there legitimately. They came by way of their association with a long-standing corrupt underground association of criminal organizations loosely aligned through a number of common denominators. Of these the primary ones are beliefs, which include political agendas and religious or esoteric interests, and old "bloodline" (ancestral) associations. These are also the same element of people who run the world's largest and most wealthy corporations.

Those of us who have come out from under their grip, as we were once, for all intents and purposes, part of Them and their agendas as trauma conditioned mind-controlled slaves taken in most cases before we could talk or walk, and groomed by them for various "special operations" in the intelligence and military fields. We, the survivors of these programs, commonly refer them to in a kind of umbrella term. Most of us were born into it or were brought into it through our bloodline ancestral genetic connections or were profiled based on our parent's profiles. We call them "Cult" The reason is because the primary core common denominator among them that connect these various agendas and overlapping alliances is that, at the highest levels of power and control (where all the wealth is that is) it is the occultic beliefs and practices of these people and their bloodline obsession that unites them and forms the primary drive behind the dominant global and national policy setters and enablers of the state of world affairs.

The issues here are much larger than most can imagine. I was personally involved as a child and subjected to what in the occult is referred to as "initiations" but in therapeutic circles as systematic ritual trauma conditioning also known as Satanic Ritual Abuse or SRA. After that, I was "trained" in a variety of esoteric sciences that not only involved Nazis brought over from Nazi Germany after the war but also Tibetan lamas from the Red Hat Sect of Tibetan Buddhism, who during WWII, supported and worked closely with Nazi Intelligence and deep black Nazi Para psychological units who were using both psychic abilities and esoteric "black magic rituals" in their war efforts against the Allies. Survivors of both groups who managed to escape the Fall of Berlin were brought over here post WWII by the Intelligence community working hand in hand with the Vatican in what were called the "rat lines." Project Paper Clip is one such publicly known program, but there were others never reported to either the Congress or the public. Remember these people were war criminals guilty of crimes against humanity and pursued by agents working on behalf of international tribunals, including the most famous one at Nuremberg, Germany.

Needless to say, I've had some pretty strange teachers...but as a child very young at the time, I was identified as a former lama of the Red Hat Sect based on Tibetan astrology and the esoteric beliefs and abilities that these people possess. The Tibetans believe in reincarnation and also in special cases of reincarnation where one of their lamas and teachers may reincarnate back on earth in another person's form. I was thus identified both by them, and by profiling by the Cult-operated deep black Intel community working in close association with the Nazis who they brought into this country post WWII. I was apparently a psychic savant as a very young child as well as having a vast capacity for informational retainment and recall, and superior ability for data analysis and three dimensional thinking in terms of modeling intangible abstract theorem into concrete thought and eventual potential tangible applications.

(Much like "The Pretender" does in the TV series of the same name that ran in the late nineties on network television.)

As for my current situation in regard to all this ...Well, it's an awful long story that I won't go into here. But I will say that I have basically declared open warfare on my former "masters".... that occurred after what was basically a theoretical "future potential" scenario that was developed through the applications of psychic ability and the abilities I have described in the last paragraph, developed into a tangible cold hard concrete reality. That intangible potential scenario that manifested into cold hard concrete reality can be summed up in two words: Hurricane Katrina.

Hurricane Katrina was a future-paced scenario that I had been asked to run as a younger person while involuntarily serving contractors for the US government who were involved in using unique and novel approaches in military and Intel with a mind towards global strategic superiority and superior military power. Needless to say, this involves domestic affairs just as much as foreign ones. They would present the outcomes or theorem constructs they wanted and it was my job to use my gifted and enhanced psychic abilities combined with my capacity to absorb huge amounts of incoming data and analyze the information through creative "'imaginative" modeling protocols that involved my most prized and envied (to them) natural gift: novel thinking.

(Psychic abilities enhanced by both the esoteric ritual black magic practices and combined with both drugs and high technology.)

It was "Hurricane Pam" that became the eventual potential that had the most probable percentage (statistically) of success. That scenario, which by the way, was the name of the so-called "practice category five hurricane" that was run a year before by the FEMA and associated agencies in order to presumably "get prepared " for a real time category five hurricane in New Orleans.

It was a dual-track operation, meaning that on the public side of it there were individuals involved whose primary focus was to provide emergency disaster response and rescue and they were dedicated to that end. However, there was a covert side with individuals whose job it was to observe and analyze the actions and results of the public sided disaster response and rescue operations and develop an equal response in real time which would circumvent and derail any and all attempts for a smooth and successful result in the event of an overwhelming catastrophe in New Orleans proper.

The reason for this is simple; Hurricane Pam was the scenario I worked on, probably with others, but I worked alone and separate from the other Pretenders. We were called "Jason's" or "Jason Protégés" after the elite scientific group contracted by the Pentagon and under direct operational oversight of DARPA aka Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency.

This elite eclectic group of the best and brightest scientists, physicists and mathematicians in the country was called The JASON GROUP so named after the classical Greek mythos "Jason and The Argonauts." In the storyline, The Quest for The Golden Fleece is the primary focus of the hero's goal. The hero is named Jason. The "quest" these people were on was the search for the power of God. Basically, in a nutshell, that was it. The golden fleece WAS the power of "God." OH, I am not talking about some religion's concept of God, I am talking about the metaphor of which unfathomable power is so appealing and alluring. Unfathomable power. What an illusion. I mean the reason people fall for that illusion in the first place is because they haven't really got any power at all; they're helpless ...and they are terrified because of it. They live in fear all the time. I know, I used to be one of them ...well, I kind of had to be to survive ...to literally survive. I know not all these super smart people were cognizant of the reality of what they were doing. I am sure many had other names for what they did, justified it all in the name of national security, etc., etc.

I know one thing that I am sure of and will regret until the day I die, "Hurricane Pam" ... aka ...Hurricane Katrina.

The perfect plan my young brilliant super-psychic novel thinking mind thought up so that these men could ultimately destroy the country in their bloodlust quest born out of their unfathomable greed for power and money; the plan that would guarantee the best potential for success in a way that the mass majority of the population would "go along" without saying a peep about it, would be if there was a catastrophic event and the government didn't show up. Simply put, I told them in my de-briefing to have catastrophic disaster and not show up.

That would create the massive social unrest they needed to justify to the American public going into New Orleans under a "State of Emergency" ...and co-opting tremendous power and control "legally" for the Federal Executive Branch, and hang on to it permanently.

My Tibetan teachers would tell you that I have served Nazis in two consecutive lifetimes now. If true, what kinda karma is that?

Anyway, I digress.

I don't know how many others like me worked on this outcome potential and came up with same or alternate future scenarios. "Hurricane Pam" in the context I am referring to, was named after me, based on the scenario outcome potential I determined would be their best shot at getting the outcome they wanted. The idea or proposal behind the outcome potential they desired was basically "how to create a state of massive civil unrest in order to justify a singularly takeover of power within the government" in other words a "silent" Coup de Etat. They needed a national "State of Emergency" which is a legal definition that allows the Fed to take power in a time of war and national catastrophe ...much of the regulations that define these powers and grants this authority are not constitutional, but rather statutory and based in commercial law dealing with contracts and business.

The power granted to the President under the War Powers Act defines the presumption of "unitary power" but it is only granted under the context of war ...which is one of the primary reasons why we are at war in Iraq in the first place. (And why they have been touting "unitary power" ever since Katrina aftermath and the declaration of a national "State of Emergency"). It's legalese, and it sets legal precedent and legal precedent is everything when you get to the supreme law of the land; which is why we have a Supreme Court stacked with ultra-conservatives and cronies of the Bush Reagan years. BTW, Reagan one and two were daddy Bush's first two terms. He has now served three and a half terms in the White House. It was the five conservative members of the Supreme Court that defied all legal standards including their own precedents, to illegally put George W. Bush into power. Their legal rational for deciding to do what they did is so obviously corrupt and legally unsound that legal scholars from universities, in private practice, and practicing attorneys all over the country, have written at length criticizing this 'landmark' decision. Both Democratic and Republican attorneys, including leading district attorneys in several states, have written unanimously on this issue.

The rationalization to the American public for what would happen in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina would come through a "justified response" through which the Federal Branch would usurp power and authority from the state and local government ostensibly to "re-establish law and order" and "restore civil rescue operations" etc. etc, etc. The whole thing was orchestrated to allow for a nationally televised in-your-face catastrophic disaster that the American public would be so utterly shocked at; and, so grossly disgusted at the level of "presumed incompetence" at the state and local levels that they would demand the federal government to step in ...and that's exactly what happened, isn't it? That's why the federalized National Guard, who were in New Orleans BEFORE the Hurricane hit, were told not to allow in the Red Cross or any other rescue agency or supplies into New Orleans. But, they were allowed to let every individual with a press credential in the country in and gave the major news networks like CNN and network broadcast news escorts through the disaster zones and right to the doorstep of the Superdome and the downtown convention center where there already were National Guard stationed.

The Katrina Aftermath was extremely well planned and orchestrated and in no way was an issue of incompetence. It is my belief, based on my personal knowledge and because I played a crucial part in the development of this and many other "potential future scenario outcomes," that the Hurricane, whether it was naturally generated or otherwise engineered, had little to do with what happened immediately afterward. In my scenario, the levees were blown by Navy Seal teams operating "on loan" to covert SAP (special access programs) or contracted out to "private" mercenary assets (who are run and staffed with "ex"-Intel and military people). It is these kind of operations where there is a blurring between the civilian contract sector and the military, or rather paramilitary ops that the civilian run Intel apparatus employs both domestically and internationally ... illegally and in violation of federal law and international treaties, of course. A perfect example of this explains why the Abu Ghraib scandal in Iraq never took down any generals; because there were and are civilian contractors calling the shots and giving orders to military personal such as those National Guard thugs who took the blame. This is a fundamental violation of the Constitutional Chain of Command rule that dictates all military orders must be given by military officers acting in concert with the direct chain of command oversight of the Commander and Chief of the United States ... aka The President. Not only are there American mercenary "Intel" contractors working in Iraq, but also there is a heavy Israeli presence that includes the MOSSAD. That's why the American people will never be told the truth about Abu Ghraib.

Was the Hurricane manufactured? This is not something I have direct knowledge of; except to say that I do have direct knowledge of high technology far in advance of what is presently known to the public and I also know of programs that were run involving something called "weather wars." This would involve China.

China is the up and coming big player in world economics. They are the new emerging dominant global superpower. This has long been a known fact within the Intel community and for generations they have been preparing for the inevitable. China too has been running operations for years and planning their eventual economic takeover of America and American interests abroad. When I say China, I mean Red China, the Chinese controlling elite and their governing proxies.

The Chinese have long been practitioners of occultism; Eastern style. They have had a significant presence in this country for several generations now in terms of a fifth column, post WWII. The Israelis' the same. Both China and Israel also have, like this country, an elite class who consider themselves to be a special class of human beings based on their ancestral bloodline and their occult affiliations internationally. They are the ones who own the corporations and have the largest concentration of wealth in their sphere of global influence.

Israel is the most crucial piece of global strategic real estate in the world today. China basically cut a deal with Israel quite a while ago; at least three generations back. It's all about business, and in business there are no nation-state loyalties. I can say more about this later, but right now it is way too complex to include here in what was supposed to be a brief intro on myself (lol...brief...lol). The fact is that the international "Cult" we have been speaking of has age-old connections to Israel (and Egypt as well).

But I will tell you this; China is going to screw Israel. Yeah, sometimes it's weird knowing the future 'cause the government taught you to see it when you were a kid ... lol. I know how it sounds, believe me. If I were reading this like you are right now, I would go WTF!

What has essentially happened is that the country has been usurped by a criminal organization that has international connections and associations with a theocratic driven bloodline-obsessed "Cult" oriented group of individuals who obtained their positions of power through co-opting the highly classified material that came out of the programs I and many other children, was a part of as a young child through my youth and up into my adult years. The information that was gleamed from these various and numerous "deep black magic" involving an interaction between scientists, physicists, mathematicians, military and Intel personnel as well as occultists, many of whom had deep connections with Nazi Germany and European Nobility.

The highly classified "results" went in two directions. One, through the official U.S. military and Intel government channels it was supposed to and was secured through the proper channels. Two, unknown to the first primary contractor named above, it went into the hands of elements of this criminal organization named in the previous paragraph. Through that second party it then was sold to foreign interests. The primary recipient was Israel (MOSSAD) and secondary, through Israel (MOSSAD), was China. The international corporate elite global hierarchy was on the receiving end in both cases.

Need I say more? ...Or can you all connect the dots here...?

In the wake of the Hurricane Katrina aftermath, I saw my past come up and hit me hard in the gut...I saw the fruits of my labor for evil men whom forced me to serve their agendas and what has now unfolded in the present circumstance we, as a nation, find ourselves. I recalled with great personal torment while watching all those helpless BLACK AMERICANS whose only crime was being poor ...and being of African Descent, literally drowning and starving to death due to INTENTIONAL ABANDONMENT because that was the scenario that I "ran" for them and which produced the political and social impetus for them to take over the Constitutionally based government and install a corporate-backed fascist theocratic driven dictatorship with Nazi beliefs and ideological designs, not just domestically, but globally as well.

If nothing else I have said here makes you think about the true nature and intent of these men who sought to gain political and social power in this country through these highly unorthodox, unethical and grossly immoral criminal means, then think about the following personal anecdote.

In that particular scenario, of which there was so much human misery and gut-wrenching emotion, I recall as a young person, being unable to stay in the state needed to access and analyze the data (remote viewing state) so I was instructed by my handlers to substitute "rats" instead of human beings and to think of those people, those black people, as "rats." I did what I was told and completed the assigned task. These are the kind of men you would have lead you into their version of a New World Order.

On that day, the day we all watched with horror the plight of fellow Americans in need of rescue and relief and a government intent on leaving them to all die, I declared all out war against my former "employers"...my former "owners"...my former torturers ...my former "controllers" ...handlers and programmers and "commanders" (both US and Israeli) including the current Criminal Bush Family, their political crime associates, and their cronies in the House and the Senate of the United States of America, who are nothing more than traitors to their oaths of office and a collection of liars, thieves, murderers, kidnapers, torturers (of American Children as well as foreign and domestic individuals) pedophiles, Satanists, Nazis, Fascists, political assassins, child pornography pushers, drug addicts and drug importers, and corporate whores. They are guilty of gross and obscene violations of domestic and international laws as well as the Nuremberg Protocols and The Mann Act.

They are my archenemies. If you who are reading this and think you are still living in the America of your childhood, then you better wake up now while there's still a chance to stop these bastards and realize that they are all your archenemies as well.

You see, I made up my mind when I was a child that someday I was going to stop them, so this is what I am trying to do; right here, right now. And I am willing to die to do it. Posting this could get me killed ...or maybe get me picked up and "rendered" to some cell the size of a coffin in the back hills of Kabul, or maybe even Texas. I am willing to risk it all. That's how much I hate them. That's how I know what it must feel like to be so full of hate and contempt you are willing to wrap a bomb around your body and die just to kill your enemies.

What are you willing to risk to earn back your freedom?

I learned a lot from my experiences psychically traveling through time and space searching for models of excellence to study and learn from so I could transform myself from a slave into a gladiator. When you are willing to die for your cause, you are no longer afraid of your enemy. That's why we'll never have victory over the Muslims. Read your history books. Islam vs. Christianity. It's an old game. Islam vs. Judaism; the hate is unbelievable. The world's three "Great Religions." Right. I remember a line from an old Woody Allen movie. It went "If Jesus ever came back and saw what was being done in his name, he'd never stop throwing up." I imagine, perhaps, Mohammed would feel the same way. Moses, well, that's another story. Moses was from Egypt and was part of an occupying and oppressive ruling monarchy. I have seen his unfinished tomb myself. Oh yes, Egypt. Some day, I might tell you about Egypt. I might tell you about how I met Mohammed Atta there ...oh, with other people who worked for the CIA and MOSSAD.

So, if someone asks you, who is Onesmartrat? Tell them I am a "cyberspace suicide bomber" ...that is how I am waging my personal war against Them ...and you've just read my homemade I.E.D...

...KA-BOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOM!

Pro Libertate!!!!

That was all very interesting. Viva la Mexico! Nothing would please me more than to see the present satanic cabal taken down by a league of like minded patriot Mexicans.

There are many things that perplex me in this world. Among them is the fact that the Internet was envisioned, designed and implemented at the behest of the U.S. DoD. As far as I'm concerned, alphabet organizations like DoD are synonomous with the worldwide cabal - fraternity of fraternities, of occultic, satanic, disturbed minds that have been trying to lead this world to ruin since time imemorial. It is for this reason that it is quite difficult to imagine that these "great minds", as many people are want to call them, gave all of us common people a sand box to play in - called the Internet, just so we could have it to end up with a way to render centuries of their finely woven plans to shambles. Just like the internet is a network of networks, these deranged minds have existed in league for longer than history has been recorded, groups within groups, brotherhoods within brotherhoods, call it what you want, we're talking about a network of networks of like minded perverts. What is so brilliant about that? This sort of brings me to another thing that perplexes me. Why do us little people tend to talk about our controllers in such glowing terms?..... "great minds"..... "very brilliant people".... etc. People have for long seemingly been enthralled by the popular notion of "intelligence". Understand this; there are people we consider not so smart. They may be considered dumb. Some of them may be called mentally handicapped. I consider these people at one end of the "smartnes curve". At the opposite end of this curve are those we've been taught to think of as "our great minds".... "brilliant people". Pick a name to put here. People often settle on Einstein. Even though I have my doubts, okay, fine, Einstein is who we point to for being a universally accepted "smart, clever, 'intelligent' guy". Best I can tell, Einstein was just as odd as a really dumb person. Einstein was at the opposite end of the spectrum, like night is to day. Why do people tend to fawn over other people agreed to have existed at one end of the spectrum, yet they do not fawn over people (the dumb people) at the other end? I dont' get it. People fawn over great minds, like an Einstein, or a Rhode's Scholar - Clinton, both examples of minds that in an of themselves are just as odd as the most retarded minde one knows of. What's up with that?

As I see it, the kind of mind that would involve itself with something like MK Ultra, is quite a dark mind.....exceptionally dark.....a mind of great darkness. To me, dark is not at all brilliant, so I am not inclined to speak of a dark mind in fawning, glowing terms. To me, most things in this world exist in a balance, For every bit of brightness and brilliance, there is to be found somewhere an equally opposite amount of darkness. These "bright minds" people talk really seem to be about people/minds at the opposite end of the spectrum in terms of legitimate "brightness". What do we call something that is the exact opposite of brilliance? Whatever the appropriate name might be, that's the kind of people we are talking about here.....less than zero, darker than dark, one might even say "the world's darkest minds". Isn't that special?

one smart rat

well both 'groups'--the jason you were part of and the knights of jason parade-- were named for/from the greek mythology with stroies of jason, argonauts, and golden fleeces.

It's probably named that in tribute to many of jason-ic things.

Like I typed before, new 'group's are not introduced and not added to the parade list for mardi gras very often, that should be noted. there is some connection.

some parade names are endymion, bacchus, thor, hermes, acient druids, babylon, knights of chaos, Pegasus, muses, D'etat, morpheus, orpheus, iris, thoth, okeanos, proteus, and king arthur.

cool, I never knew that. I brought this topic up, mainly, b/c I wanted some verification to the whole jason secret ops stuff. I wasn't sure if I was imagining things, but you have answered my questions. thanks Confession to the Jesuits No. 22: In The Age of Deception, How Can We Determine Who's On The Good Side Or Who's On NWO Bad Side?

With a few simple questions and some common sense, it's not hard to detect those in the public eye who are deceiving Americans?

If it becomes impossible to defeat the Vatican-led New World Order, at least it's better to die knowing the truth instead of spending a lifetime living a lie.

The incredible size and force of evil, now rearing its ugly head in America, makes good people shake their heads in disbelief. But even the most evil creatures crawling around this earth disguised as human beings can be detected and defeated with common sense, a pure commitment and a little bit of luck.

For example, Americans are now experiencing what good folks in Communist Russia and Nazi Germany experienced: How full blown fascism, led by an underground of secret societies controlled by the Vatican hierarchy and Jesuit Order, take over the minds, bodies and souls of a country.

It should be noted they do it through a method of diabolical deception where everything is not what appears to be.

For example, when the media, alternative media, government and religious organizations are all controlled by money, greed and power, all of this accomplished with the blessings of Papal Rome through the direction of the Black Jesuit Pope, all bets are off when it comes to the extent of evil that abounds.

However, the mistake most people make is that they lack the courage to connect the dots when all roads lead to Rome. In fact they not only lack the courage, they continue to live with this cock-eyed optimism that America is a free country and the Vatican is only a benign religious organization, spreading holiness and good blessings worldwide.

In fact it's as if most Americans are living in a fictional 'Bizzaro' world where everything they believe is cock-eyed backwards

For example:

--Facts indicate and can legally nab the Jesuit Order and Vatican hierarchy with planning and carrying out the assassination of Abraham Lincoln as the patriots and American leadership at the time cut off all diplomatic relations with Papal Rome. However, instead of taking the facts and forming a conclusion castigating the Vatican, most Americans choose to live in the "Bizzaro' world, saying "it just can't be so since the Pope looks so holy in those nice white robes."

--Facts indicate and can legally establish Pope John Paul I, who was fighting this evil Jesuit-Satanic faction in the Church, was assassinated by poison after 33 days as Pope when he tried to break-up the Vatican Bank's money laundering practices, the membership of high-level priests in Freemasonry and the organization and orchestration of a huge pedophile ring in America that directly involved, according to police investigators, "the two most powerful men in America, former New York Cardinal Spellman and now Cardinal Egan."

However, instead of looking to the facts and drawing a conclusion castigating the Vatican and removing the evil Jesuit Order from America, most Americans choose to exist in the 'Bizzaro' world, a world of lies and deception created by the same people who hide behind the word of God and behind the cloak of so-called American freedom.

---Facts indicate the Vatican was put Hitler in power and his famous Mein Comph was written by a Jesuit. Further, did you know German guards in the concentration camps wore Catholic crucifixes on their belt buckles? Also, facts indicate the Vatican "Rat Lines" helped Nazis escape throughout the world, including America where, in fact, many former Third Reich member's became busy establishing the Fourth Reich here. And facts indicate in the Congressional Record that the Bush family had strong Nazis which haven't been broken this day, which means if you draw a logical conclusion the Bush family takes its marching orders from the Vatican and evil Jesuits.

However, instead of drawing conclusions accordingly from the facts, Americans choose to live in the "Bizzaro' world, allowing the Bush family to become the ultimate evil power brokers in the land.

---Facts indicate the mainstream media and the alternative media are peppered with infiltrators and continue daily to put out a steady diet of disinformation. Ask yourself: who are the people who bring you the news on TV, radio and in print and among them who will openly discuss Vatican involvement in any of three examples above.

Answer: you can count them on one hand. Why? Because the rest are in the pocket of the Vatican and their minions, protecting the evil doers from ever being caught. Not only do these journalists and broadcasters mislead people from ever finding the true Vatican culprits, they deny or twist the true history of Rome's involvement in genocide, fascism as if history didn't matter or doesn't exist. By the way, this ploy of ignoring or even burning the true history of the Jesuit Order is one of their key roles to keep the New World Order since worldwide the Jesuits are considered "The Great Educators." However, by controlling education, having 28 major universities and 54 high schools on American soil alone, they put themselves in perfect position to control the dissemination of history. And by burning their true history, they keep the masses believing a lie, a lie that hopefully someday will be exposed.

In light of the above examples, many people ask what can we do and how can we expose those in the media, government and religious who are actually working for the Vatican-led New World "Jesuit" Order?

The answer is simple: First refuse to live in their 'Bizzaro' world by refusing to listen to only one side of the New World Order Story. For example, refuse to take as gospel truth only the Jews, the evil Bush administration and the rich elite were responsible for 9/11. Did you ever think the Jesuits and the Vatican were involved based on facts presented by Vatican insiders who can name names and bring the strategic manipulation of the world's intelligence in order to bring about 9/11 right to the doorstep of the Vatican. Why? To kick off their next crusade which will kill millions of Christians, Muslims and Jews in order for the Pope to regain power centered in Jerusalem, firmly establishing their one world religion and government.

Further, how can you detect whether a member of the media, alternative media, government and any religious group are actually fronting and covering for the Vatican?

It is simple: First ask these questions to anyone in the public eye, effecting public opinion, government policy or religious doctrine.

--Will you publicly sponsor a debate, including the argument that the Vatican are the real spiritual controllers of the New World Order?

--Will you offer this debate and include it your printed articles, radio broadcasts, TV shows, campaign speeches or church sermons? Will you offer and forward to your followers, readers and listeners the history of America and the world that has been purposely stolen by the Jesuits and Vatican, but uncovered by some researchers not afraid to take on the Jesuits and their network of secret workers and societies?

If the answer is "no" or "I don't know about it or haven't read about it" then ask the following questions and draw the conclusion accordingly:

___Is this person uninformed? Draw your conclusion according to the person's role in life. For example a radio broadcaster or journalist who deals in national and international issues is not uninformed whereas a carpenter working for a living with his hands may very well be uninformed due to the control over the media and its well-oiled propaganda machine.

Next, is the person a coward or a person who chooses to keep silent and live privately as a matter of constitutional choice? Draw your conclusion again from the person's position or stature in society? If the person is a journalist, radio broadcaster politician or preacher he obviously is not afraid to speak his mind and consequently he is not a coward. Consequently, if a person chooses to remain private, he is using constitutional privilege to remain silent and therefore has an excuse for not wanting to debate about the evils of the Vatican.

Thirdly, after asking the above questions, there are individuals in the public eye who bring up the Vatican as a culprit in the New World Order in discussions, speeches and in the media. Usually these people can be found in the media and the way to determine if they are on the right side is to look at their body of work. If on a daily basis they mix the Vatican message with the message of alien creatures or "Coast to Coast" radio type materials, they do this in order to confuse and, in essence, making it easy for the average American to conclude the Vatican and Jesuit connection to the New World is fiction, more or less like watching an episode of the X-Files.

Finally, asking the above questions and considering all of the scenarios presented, it should be quite easy to formulate a conclusion beyond a reasonable doubt who are the good guys and who are the bad guys covering for the Vatican and Jesuits and, most likely, profiting at the expense of the millions who are dying or will when the "New Pope's Crusade" accelerates to include concentration camps, torture and abuse of innocent Americans and mass graves.

In order to bring back a little stolen history in this Confession to the Jesuits No. 22, also providing a stark example of Vatican involvement in the destruction of freedom in America, Eric Jon Phelps, author of Vatican Assassins Third Edition, coming out soon, provided this email from a writer who acquired sensitive archived documents from the Vatican vaults, and who discussed Pope Pius XII, instrumental in establishing the Vatican Third Reich. The message is based on historical fact removed from the mainstream bookshelves and hidden in the Vatican in order to protect Papal Rome.

NEW revelations of Pope Pius XII instrumental in establishing the Vatican Third Reich: Complicity of Pope Pius XII in the Holocaust

Long-buried Vatican files reveal a new and shocking indictment of World War II's Pope Pius XII: that in pursuit of absolute power he helped Adolf Hitler destroy German Catholic political opposition, betrayed the Jews of Europe, and sealed a deeply cynical pact with a 20th-century devil.

One evening several years ago when I was having dinner with a group of students, the topic of the papacy was broached, and the discussion quickly boiled over. A young woman asserted that Eugenio Pacelli, Pope Pius XII, the Pope during World War II, had brought lasting shame on the Catholic Church by failing to denounce the Final Solution. A young man, a practicing Catholic, insisted that the case had never been proved.

Raised as a Catholic during the papacy of Pius XII - his picture gazed down from the wall of every classroom during my childhood - I was only too familiar with the allegation. It started in 1963 with a play by a young German author named Rolf Hochhuth, Der Stellvertreter (The Deputy) which was staged on Broadway in 1964. It depicted Pacelli as a ruthless cynic, interested more in the Vatican's stockholdings than in the fate of the Jews. Most Catholics dismissed Hochhuth's thesis as implausible, but the play sparked a controversy which has raged to this day. Disturbed by the anger brought out in that dinner altercation, and convinced, as I had always been, of Pius XII's innocence, I decided to write a new defense of his reputation for a younger generation. I believed that Pacelli's evident holiness was proof of his good faith. How could such a saintly pope have betrayed the Jews? But was it possible to find a new and conclusive approach to the issue? The arguments had so far focused mainly on his wartime conduct; however, Pacelli's Vatican career had started 40 years earlier. It seemed to me that a proper investigation into Pacelli's record would require a more extensive chronicle than any attempted in the past. So I applied for access to archival material in the Vatican, reassuring those who had charge of crucial documents that I was on the side of my subject.

Six years earlier, in a book entitled A Thief in the Night, I had defended the Vatican against charges that Pope John Paul I had been murdered by his own aides. Two key officials granted me access to secret material: depositions under oath gathered 30 years ago to support the process for Pacelli's canonization, and the archive of the Vatican Secretariat of State, the foreign office of the Holy See. I also drew on German sources relating to Pacelli's activities in Germany during the 1920s and 1930s, including his dealings with Adolf Hitler in 1933. For months on end I ransacked Pacelli's files, which dated back to 1912, in a windowless dungeon beneath the Borgia Tower in Vatican City. Later I sat for several weeks in a dusty office in the Jesuit headquarters, close to St. Peter's Square in Rome, mulling over a thousand pages of transcribed testimony given under oath by those who had known Pacelli well during his lifetime, including his critics.

By the middle of 1997, I was in a state of moral shock. The material I had gathered amounted not to an exoneration but to an indictment more scandalous than Hochhuth's. The evidence was explosive. It showed for the first time that Pacelli was patently, and by the proof of his own words, anti-Jewish. It revealed that he had helped Hitler to power and at the same time undermined potential Catholic resistance in Germany. It showed that he had implicitly denied and trivialized the Holocaust, despite having reliable knowledge of its true extent. And, worse, that he was a hypocrite, for after the war he had retrospectively taken undue credit for speaking out boldly against the Nazi persecution of the Jews.

In the "Holy Year" of 1950, a year in which many millions of pilgrims flocked to Rome to catch a glimpse of Pacelli, he was at the zenith of his papacy. This was the Pius people now in their mid-50s and older remember from newsreels and newspaper photographs. He was 74 years old and still vigorous. Six feet tall, stick thin at 125 pounds, light on his feet, regular in habits, he had hardly altered physically from the day of his coronation 11 years earlier. He had beautiful tapering hands, a plaintive voice, large dark eyes and an aura of holiness. It was his extreme pallor that first arrested those who met him. His skin "had surprisingly transparent effect," observed the writer Gerrado Pallenberg, "as if reflecting from the inside a cold, white flame." His charisma was stunning. "His presence radiated a benignity, calm and sanctity that I have certainly never before sensed in any human being." recorded the English writer James Lees-Milne. "I immediately fell head over heels in love with him. I was so affected I could scarcely speak without tears and was conscious that my legs were trembling."

But there was another side to his character, little known to the faithful. Although he was a man of selfless, monklike habits of prayer and simplicity, he was a believer in the absolute leadership principle. More than any other Vatican official of the century, he had promoted the modern ideology of autocratic papal control, the highly centralized, dictatorial authority he himself assumed on March 2, 1939, and maintained until his death in October 1958. There was a time before the advent of modern communications when Catholic authority was widely distributed, in the collective decisions of the church's councils and in collegial power-sharing between the Pope and the bishops. The absolutism of the modern papacy is largely an invention of the late 19th century that developed rapidly in the first decades of this century in response to the perception of the centrifugal breakup of the church under an array of contemporary pressures: materialism, increasing sexual freedom, religious skepticism, and social and political liberties.

From his young manhood on, Pacelli played a leading role in shaping the conditions and scope of modern papal power. Eugenio Pacelli was born in Rome in 1876, into a family of church lawyers who served the Vatican. He had an older sister and brother and a younger sister. His parents, devout Catholics, shared an apartment in central Rome with his grandfather, who had been a legal adviser to Pius IX, the longest-serving

Pope in history. There was only one small brazier to supply heat for the whole family, even in the depths of winter. Eugenio was a modest youth, who never appeared before his siblings unless he was fully dressed in a jacket and tie. He would always come to the table with a book, which he would read after having asked the family's permission.

From an early age he acted out the ritual of the Mass, dressed in robes supplied by his mother. He had a gift for languages and a prodigious memory. He was spindly and suffered from a "fastidious stomach." He retained a youthful piety all his life. Politically and legally, however, he was capable of great subtlety and cunning. The Pacelli's were fiercely loyal to the injured merit of the papacy. From 1848, the Popes had progressively lost to the emerging nation-state of Italy their dominions, which had formed, since time immemorial, the midriff of the Italian peninsula. Six years before Eugenio's birth, the city of Rome itself had been seized, leaving the papacy in crisis. How could the Popes regard themselves as independent now that they were mere citizens of an upstart kingdom? Eugenio's grandfather and father believed passionately that the Popes could once again exert a powerful unifying authority over the church by the application of ecclesiastical and international law.

In 1870, at a gathering in Rome of a preponderance of the world's bishops, known as the First Vatican Council, the Pope was dogmatically declared infallible in matters of faith and morals. He was also declared the unchallenged primate of the faithful. The Pope may have lost his temporal dominion, but spiritually he was solely in charge of his universal church. During the first two decades of this century, papal primacy and infallibility began to creep even beyond the ample boundaries set by the First Vatican Council. A powerful legal instrument transformed the 1870 primacy dogma into an unprecedented principle of papal power. Eugenio Pacelli, by then a brilliant young Vatican lawyer, had a major part in the drafting of that instrument, which was known as the Code of Canon Law.

Pacelli had been recruited into the Vatican in 1901, at the age of 24, to specialize in international affairs and church law. Pious, slender, with dark luminous eyes, he was an instant favorite. He was invited to collaborate on the reformulation of church law with his immediate superior, Pietro Gasparri, a world-famous canon lawyer. Packaged in a single manual, the Code of Canon Law was distributed in 1917 to Catholic bishops and clergy throughout the world. According to this code, in the future all bishops would be nominated by the Pope; doctrinal error would be tantamount to heresy; priests would be subjected to strict censorship in their writings; papal letters to the faithful would be regarded as infallible (in practice if not in principle); and an oath would be taken by all candidates for the priesthood to submit to the sense as well as the strict wording of doctrine as laid down by the Pope.

But there was a problem. The church had historically granted the dioceses in the provincial states of Germany a large measure of local discretion and independence from Rome. Germany had one of the largest Catholic populations in the world, and its congregation was well educated and sophisticated, with hundreds of Catholic associations and newspapers and many Catholic universities and publishing houses. The historic autonomy of Germany's Catholic Church was enshrined in ancient church-state treaties known as concordats.

Aged 41 and already an archbishop, Pacelli was dispatched to Munich as papal nuncio, or ambassador, to start the process of eliminating all existing legal challenges to the new papal autocracy. At the same time, he was to pursue a Reich Concordat, a treaty between the papacy and Germany as a whole which would supersede all local agreements and become a model of Catholic church-state relations. A Reich Concordat would mean formal recognition by the German government of the Pope's right to impose the new Code of Canon Law on Germany's Catholics. Such an arrangement was fraught with significance for a largely Protestant Germany. Nearly 400 years earlier, in Wittenberg, Martin Luther had publicly burned a copy of Canon Law in defiance of the centralized authority of the church. It was one of the defining moments of the Reformation, which was to divide Western Christendom into Catholics and Protestants. In May 1917, Pacelli set off for Germany via Switzerland in a private railway compartment, with an additional wagon containing 60 cases of special foods for his delicate stomach. The Pope at that time, Benedict XV, was shocked at this extravagance, but Pacelli had favored status as the Vatican's best diplomat. Shortly after he settled in Munich, he acquired a reputation as a vigorous relief worker. He traveled through war-weary Germany extending charity to people of all religions and none.

In an early letter to the Vatican, however he revealed himself to be less than enamored of Germany's Jews. On September 4, 1917, Pacelli informed Pietro Gasparri, who had become cardinal secretary of state in the Vatican -- the equivalent of foreign minister and prime minister -- that a Dr. Werner, the chief rabbi of Munich, had approached the nunciature begging a favor. In order to celebrate the festival of Tabernacles, beginning on October 1, the Jews needed palm fronds, which normally came from Italy. But the Italian government had forbidden the exportation, via Switzerland, of a stock of palms which the Jews had purchased and which were being held up in Como. "The Israelite Community," continued Pacelli, "are seeking the intervention of the Pope in the hope that he will plead on behalf of the thousands of German Jews." The favor in question was no more problematic than the transportation of Pacelli's 60 cases of food-stuffs had been a few months earlier. Pacelli informed Gasparri that he had warned the rabbi that "wartime delays in communication" would make things difficult. He also told Gasparri that he did not think it appropriate for the Vatican "to assist them in the exercise of their Jewish cult." His letter went by the slow route overland in the diplomatic bag. Gasparri replied by telegram on September 18 that he entirely trusted Pacelli's "shrewdness," agreeing that it would not be appropriate to help Rabbi Werner. Pacelli wrote back on September 28, 1917, informing Gasparri that he had again seen the Rabbi, who "was perfectly convinced of the reasons I had given him and thanked me warmly for all that I had done on his behalf." Pacelli had done nothing except thwart the rabbi's request. The episode, small in itself, belies subsequent claims that Pacelli had a great love of the Jewish religion and was always motivated by its best interests.

Eighteen months later he revealed his antipathy toward the Jews in a more blatantly anti-Semitic fashion when he found himself at the center of a local revolution as Bolshevik groups struggled to take advantage of the chaos in postwar Munich. Writing to Gasparri, Pacelli described the revolutionaries and their chief, Eugen Levien in their headquarters in the former royal palace. The letter has lain in the Vatican secret archive like a time bomb until now: "The scene that presented itself at the palace was indescribable. The confusion totally chaotic, the filth completely nauseating; soldiers and armed workers coming and going; the building, once the home of a king, resounding with screams, vile language, profanities. Absolute hell. An army of employees were dashing to and fro, giving out orders, waving bits of paper, and in the midst of all this, a gang of young women, of dubious appearance, Jews like all the rest of them, hanging around in all the offices with provocative demeanor and suggestive smiles. The boss of this female gang was Levien's mistress, a young Russian woman, a Jew and a divorcee, who was in charge. And it was to her that the nunciature was obliged to pay homage in order to proceed. This Levien is a young man, about 30 or 35, also Russian and a Jew. Pale, dirty, with vacant eyes, hoarse voice, vulgar, repulsive, with a face that is both intelligent and sly." This association of Jewishness with Bolshevism confirms that Pacelli, from his early 40s, nourished a suspicion of and contempt for the Jews for political reasons. But the repeated references to the Jewishness of these individuals, along with the catalogue of stereotypical epithets deploring their physical and moral repulsiveness, betray a scorn and revulsion consistent with anti-Semitism. Not long after this, Pacelli campaigned to have black French troops removed from the Rhineland, convinced that they were raping women and abusing children - even though an independent inquiry sponsored by the U.S. Congress, of which Pacelli was aware, proved this allegation false. Twenty-three years later, when the Allies were about to enter Rome, he asked the British envoy to the Vatican to request of the British Foreign Office that no Allied colored troops would be among the small number that might be garrisoned in Rome after the occupation.

Pacelli spent 13 years in Germany attempting to rewrite the state Concordats one by one in favor of the power of the Holy See and routinely employing diplomatic blackmail. Germany was caught up in many territorial disputes following the redrawing of the map of Central Europe after the First World War. Pacelli repeatedly traded promises of Vatican support for German control of disputed regions in return for obtaining terms advantageous to the Vatican in Concordats. The German government's official in charge of Vatican affairs at one point recorded the "ill feeling" prompted by Pacelli's "excessive demands." Both Catholics and Protestants in Germany resisted reaching an agreement with Pacelli on a Reich Concordat because the nuncio's concept of a church-state relationship was too authoritarian.. In his negotiations, Pacelli was not concerned about the fate of non-Catholic religious communities or institutions, or about human rights. He was principally preoccupied with the interests of the Holy See. Nothing could have been better designed to deliver Pacelli into the hands of Hitler later, when the future dictator made his move in 1933.

In June 1920, Pacelli became nuncio to all of Germany, with headquarters in Berlin as well as in Munich, and immediately acquired a glittering reputation in diplomatic circles. He was a favorite at dinner parties and receptions, and he was known to ride horses on the estate of a wealthy German family. His household was run by a pretty young nun from southern Germany named Sister Pasqualina Lehnert. Pacelli's sister Elisabetta, who battled with the nun for Pacelli's affections, described Pasqualina as "scaltrissima"-- extremely cunning. In Munich it had been rumored that he cast more than priestly eyes on this religious housekeeper. Pacelli insisted that a Vatican investigation into this "horrible calumny" be conducted at the highest level, and his reputation emerged unbesmirched.

Meanwhile, he had formed a close relationship with an individual named Ludwig Kaas. Kaas was a representative of the solidly Catholic German Center Party, one of the largest and most powerful democratic parties in Germany. Though it was unusual for a full-time politician, he was also a Roman Catholic priest. Five years Pacelli's junior, dapper, bespectacled, and invariably carrying a smart walking stick, Kaas, known as "the prelate," became an intimate collaborator of Pacelli's on every aspect of Vatican diplomacy in Germany. With Pacelli's encouragement, Kaas eventually became the chairman of the Center Party, the first priest to do so in the party's 60-year history. Yet while Kaas was officially a representative of a major democratic party, he was increasingly devoted to Pacelli to the point of becoming his alter ego. Sister Pasqualina stated after Pacelli's death that Kaas, who "regularly accompanied Pacelli on holiday" was linked to him in "adoration, honest love and unconditional loyalty." There were stories of acute jealousy and high emotion when Kaas became conscious of a rival affection in Pacelli's secretary, the Jesuit Robert Leiber, who was also German.

Kaas was a profound believer in the benefits of a Reich Concordat, seeing a parallel between papal absolutism and the FÜHRER- PRINZIP, the Fascist leadership principle. His views coincided perfectly with Pacelli's on church-state politics, and their aspirations for centralized papal power were identical. Kaas's adulation of Pacelli, whom he put before his party, became a crucial element in the betrayal of Catholic democratic politics in Germany.

In 1929, Pacelli was recalled to Rome to take over the most important role under the Pope, Cardinal Secretary of State. Sister Pasqualina arrived uninvited and cunningly, according to Pacelli's sister, and along with two German nuns to assist her, took over the management of his Vatican residence. Almost immediately Kaas, although he was still head of the German Center Party, started to spend long periods--months at a time -- in Pacelli's Vatican apartments. Shortly before Pacelli's return to Rome, his brother, Francesco had successfully negotiated on behalf of Pius XI, the current Pope, a concordat with Mussolini as part of an agreement known as the Lateran Treaty.

The rancor between the Vatican and the state of Italy was officially at an end. A precondition of the negotiations had involved the destruction of the parliamentary Catholic Italian Popular party. Pius XI disliked political Catholicism because he could not control it. Like his predecessors, he believed that Catholic party politics brought democracy into the church by the back door. The result of the demise of the Popular Party was the wholesale shift of Catholics into the Fascist Party and the collapse of democracy in Italy. Pius XI and his new secretary of state, Pacelli, were determined that no accommodation be reached with Communists anywhere in the world - this was the time of persecution of the church in Russia, Mexico, and later Spain -but totalitarian movements and regimes of the right were a different matter.

Hitler, who had enjoyed his first great success in the elections of September 1930, was determined to seek a treaty with the Vatican similar to that struck by Mussolini, which would lead to the disbanding of the German Center Party. In his political testament, Mein Kampf, he had recollected that his fear of Catholicism went back to his vagabond days in Vienna. The fact that German Catholics, politically united by the Center Party, had defeated Bismarck's Kulturkampf- the "culture struggle" against the Catholic Church in the 1870s--constantly worried him. He was convinced that his movement could succeed only if political Catholicism and its democratic networks were eliminated.

Hitler's fear of the Catholic Church was well grounded. Into the early 1930s the German Center Party, the German Catholic bishops, and the Catholic media had been mainly solid in their rejection of National Socialism. They denied Nazis the sacraments and church burials, and Catholic journalists excoriated National Socialism daily in Germany's 400 Catholic newspapers. The hierarchy instructed priests to combat National Socialism at a local level whenever it attacked Christianity. The Munich-based weekly Der Gerade Weg (The Straight Path) told its readers, "Adolf Hitler preaches the law of lies. You who have fallen victim to the deceptions of one obsessed with despotism, wake up!"

The vehement front of the Catholic Church in Germany against Hitler, however, was not at one with the view from inside the Vatican--a view that was now being shaped and promoted by Eugenio Pacelli. In 1930 the influential Catholic politician Heinrich Brüning, a First World War Veteran, became the leader of a brief new government coalition, dominated by the majority Socialists and the Center Party. The country was reeling from successive economic crises against the background of the world slump and reparations payments to the Allies. In August 1931, Brüning visited Pacelli in the Vatican, and the two men quarreled. Brüning tells in his memoirs how Pacelli lectured him, the German chancellor, on how he should reach an understanding with the Nazis to "form a right-wing administration" in order to help achieve a Reich Concordat favorable to the Vatican. When Brüning advised him not to interfere in German politics, Pacelli threw a tantrum. Brüning parting shot that day was the ironic observation-chilling in hindsight-- that he trusted that "the Vatican would fare better at the hands of Hitler ... than with himself, a devout Catholic." Brüning was right on one score. Hitler proved to be the only chancellor prepared to grant Pacelli the sort of authoritarian concordat he was seeking. But the price was to be catastrophic for Catholic Germany and for Germany as a whole.

After Hitler came to power in January 1933, he made the concordat negotiations with Pacelli a priority. The negotiations proceeded over six months with constant shuttle diplomacy between the Vatican and Berlin. Hitler spent more time on this treaty than on any other item of foreign diplomacy during his dictatorship. The Reich Concordat granted Pacelli the right to impose the new Code of Canon Law on Catholics in Germany and promised a number of measures favorable to Catholic education, including new schools. In exchange, Pacelli collaborated in the withdrawal of Catholics from political and social activity. The negotiations were conducted in secret by Pacelli, Kaas, and Hitler's deputy chancellor, Franz von Papen, over the heads of German bishops and the faithful. The Catholic Church in Germany had no say in setting the conditions. In the end, Hitler insisted that his signature on the concordat would depend on the Center Party's voting for the Enabling Act, the legislation that was to give him dictatorial powers. It was Kaas, chairman of the party but completely in thrall to Pacelli, who bullied the delegates into acceptance. Next, Hitler insisted on the "voluntary" disbanding of the Center Party, the last truly parliamentary force in Germany. Again, Pacelli was the prime mover in this tragic Catholic surrender.

The fact that the party voluntarily disbanded itself, rather than go down fighting, had a profound psychological effect, depriving Germany of the last democratic focus of potential noncompliance and resistance: In the political vacuum created by its surrender, Catholics in the millions joined the Nazi Party, believing that it had the support of the Pope. The German bishops capitulated to Pacelli's policy of centralization, and German Catholic democrats found themselves politically leaderless. After the Reich Concordat was signed, Pacelli declared it an unparalleled triumph for the Holy See. In an article in L'Osservatore Romano, the Vatican-controlled newspaper, he announced that the treaty, indicated the total recognition and acceptance of the church's law by the German state. But Hitler was the true victor and the Jews were the concordat's first victims. On July 14, 1933, after the initialing of the treaty, the Cabinet minutes record Hitler as saying that the concordat had created an atmosphere of confidence that would be "especially significant in the struggle against international Jewry." He was claiming that the Catholic Church had publicly given its blessing, at home and abroad, to the policies of National Socialism, including its anti-Semitic stand. At the same time, under the terms of the concordat, Catholic criticism of acts deemed political by the Nazis, could now be regarded as "foreign interference." The great German Catholic Church, at the insistence of Rome, fell silent. In the future all complaints against the Nazis would be channeled through Pacelli. There were some notable exceptions, for example the sermons preached in 1933 by Cardinal Michael von Faulhaber, the Archbishop of Munich, in which he denounced the Nazis for their rejection of the Old Testament as a Jewish text.

The concordat immediately drew the German church into complicity with the Nazis. Even as Pacelli was granted special advantages in the concordat for German Catholic education, Hitler was trampling on the educational rights of Jews throughout the country. At the same time, Catholic priests were being drawn into Nazi collaboration with the attestation bureaucracy, which established Jewish ancestry. Pacelli, despite the immense centralized power he now wielded through the Code of Canon Law, said and did nothing. The attestation machinery would lead inexorably to the selection of millions destined for the death camps.

As Nazi anti-Semitism mounted in Germany during the 1930's, Pacelli failed to complain, even on behalf of Jews who had become Catholics, acknowledging that the matter was a matter of German internal policy. Eventually, in January 1937, three German cardinals and two influential bishops arrived at the Vatican to plead for a vigorous protest over Nazi persecution of the Catholic Church, which had been deprived of all forms of activity beyond church services. Pius XI at last decided to issue an encyclical, a letter addressed to all the faithful of the world. Written under Pacelli's direction, it was called Mit Brennender Sorge (With Deep Anxiety), and it was a forthright statement of the plight of the church in Germany. But there was no explicit condemnation of anti-Semitism, even in relation to Jews who had converted to Catholicism. Worse still, the subtext against Nazism (National Socialism and Hitler were not mentioned by name) was blunted by the publication five days later of an even more condemnatory encyclical by Pius XI against Communism.

The encyclical Mit Brennender Sorge, though too little and too late, revealed that the Catholic Church all along had the power to shake the regime. A few days later, Hermann Göring, one of Hitler's closest aides and his commander of the Luffwaffe, delivered a two-hour harangue to a Nazi assembly against the Catholic clergy. However, Roman centralizing had paralyzed the German Catholic Church and its powerful web of associations. Unlike the courageous grass-roots activism that had combated Bismarck's persecutions in the 1870s, German Catholicism now looked obediently to Rome for guidance. Although Pacelli collaborated in the writing and the distribution of the encyclical, he quickly undermined its effects by reassuring the Reich's ambassador in Rome. "Pacelli received me with decided friendliness," the diplomat reported back to Berlin, "and emphatically assured me during the conversation that normal and friendly relations with us would be restored as soon as possible."

In the summer of 1938, as Pius XI lay dying he became belatedly anxious about anti-Semitism throughout Europe. He commissioned another encyclical, to be written exclusively on the Jewish question. The text, which never saw the light of day, has only recently been discovered. It was written by three Jesuit scholars, but Pacelli presumably had charge of the project. It was to be called Humani Generis Unitas (The Unity of the Human Race). For all its good intentions and its repudiation of violent anti-Semitism, the document is replete with the anti-Jewishness that Pacelli had displayed in his early period in Germany. The Jews, the text claims, were responsible for their own fate. God had chosen them to make way for Christ's redemption, but they denied and killed him. And now, "blinded by their dream of worldly gain and material success," they deserved the "worldly and spiritual ruin" that they had brought down upon themselves. The document warns that that to defend the Jews as "Christian principles and humanity" demand could involve the unacceptable risk of being ensnared by secular politics--not least an association with Bolshevism. The encyclical was delivered in the fall of 1938 to the Jesuits in Rome, who sat on it. To this day we do not know why it was not completed and handed to Pope Pius XI. For all its drawbacks, it was a clear protest against Nazi attacks on Jews and so might have done some good. But it appears likely that the Jesuits, and Pacelli, whose influence as secretary of state of the Vatican was paramount since the Pope was moribund, were reluctant to inflame the Nazis by its publication. Pacelli, when he became pope, would bury the document deep in the secret archives.

On February 10, 1939, Pius XI died, at the age of 81. Pacelli, then 63, was elected Pope by the College of Cardinals in just three ballots, on March 2. He was crowned on March 12, on the eve of Hitler's march into Prague. Between his election and his coronation he held a crucial meeting with the German cardinals. Keen to affirm Hitler publicly, he showed them a letter of good wishes which began, "To the Illustrious Herr Adolf Hitler." Should he, he asked them, style the Führer "Most Illustrious"? He decided that that might be going too far. He told the cardinals that Pius XI had said that keeping a papal nuncio in Berlin "conflicts with our honor." But his predecessor, he said, had been mistaken. He was going to maintain normal diplomatic relations with Hitler. The following month, at Pacelli's express wish, Archbishop Cesare Orsenigo, the Berlin nuncio, hosted a gala reception in honor of Hitler's 50th birthday. A birthday greeting to the Führer from the bishops of Germany would become an annual tradition until the war's end.

Pacelli's coronation was the most triumphant in a hundred years. His style of papacy, for all his personal humility, was unprecedented and pompous. He always ate alone. Vatican bureaucrats were obliged to take phone calls from him on their knees. When he took his afternoon walk, the gardeners had to hide in the bushes. Senior officials were not allowed to ask him questions or present a point of view.

As Europe plunged toward war Pacelli cast himself in the role of judge of judges. But he continued to seek to appease Hitler by attempting to persuade the Poles to make concessions over Germany's territorial claims. After Hitler's invasion of Poland, on September 1, 1939, he declined to condemn Germany, to the bafflement of the Allies.

His first public statement, the encyclical known in the English-speaking world as Darkness over the Earth, was full of papal rhetoric and equivocations. Then something extraordinary occurred, revealing that whatever had motivated Pacelli in his equivocal approach to the Nazi onslaught in Poland did not betoken cowardice or a liking for Hitler. In November 1939, in deepest secrecy, Pacelli became intimately and dangerously involved in what was probably the most viable plot to depose Hitler during the war. The plot centered on a group of anti-Nazi generals, committed to returning Germany to democracy. The coup might spark a civil war, and they wanted assurances that the West would not take advantage of the ensuing chaos. Pius XII agreed to act as go-between for the plotters and the Allies. Had his complicity in the plot been discovered it might have proved disastrous for the Vatican and for many thousands of German clergy. As it happened, leaders in London dragged their feet, and the plotters eventually fell silent. The episode demonstrates that, while Pacelli seemed weak to some, pusillanimity and indecisiveness were hardly in his nature.

Pacelli's first wartime act of reticence in failing to speak out against Fascist brutality occurred in the summer of 1941, following Hitler's invasion of Yugoslavia and the formation of the Catholic and Fascist state of Croatia. In a wave of appalling ethnic cleansing, the Croat Fascist separatists, known as the Ustashe, under the leadership of Ante Pavelic, the Croat Führer, embarked on a campaign of enforced conversions, deportations, and mass extermination targeting a population of 2.2 million Serb Orthodox Christians and a smaller number of Jews and Gypsies. According to the Italian writer Carlo Falconi, as early as April, in a typical act of atrocity, a band of Ustashe had rounded up 331 Serbs. The victims were forced to dig their own graves before being hacked to death with axes. The local priest was forced to recite the prayers for the dying while his son was chopped to pieces before his eyes. Then the priest was tortured. His hair and beard were torn off, his eyes were gouged out. Finally he was skinned alive. The very next month Pacelli greeted Pavelic at the Vatican. Throughout the war, the Croat atrocities continued. By the most recent scholarly reckoning 487,000 Orthodox Serbs and 27,000 Gypsies were massacred; in addition, approximately 30,000 out of a population of 45,000 Jews were killed. Despite a close relationship between the Ustashe regime and the Catholic bishops, and a constant flow of information about the massacres, Pacelli said and did nothing. In fact, he continued to extend warm wishes to the Ustashe leadership. The only feasible explanation for Pacelli's silence was his perception of Croatia as a Catholic bridgehead into the East. The Vatican and the local bishops approved of mass conversion in Croatia (even though it was the result of fear rather than conviction), because they believed that this could spell the beginning of a return {?} of the Orthodox Christians there to papal allegiance. Pacelli was not a man to condone mass murder, but he evidently chose to turn a blind eye on Ustashe atrocities rather than hinder a unique opportunity to extend the power of the papacy.

{Note from emperors-clothes.com: This is a very generous interpretation. In fact the Catholic Church, controlled the Independent State of Croatia. At one point it was in fact directly run by Archbishop Stepinac who answered to Pius XII. Stepinac has, in turn, been beatified by the current pope, in a Croatian ceremony attended by Croatian President Franjo Tudjman.}

Pacelli came to learn of the Nazi plans to exterminate the Jews of Europe shortly after they were laid in January 1942. The deportations to the death camps had begun in December 1941 and would continue through 1944. All during 1942, Pacelli received reliable information on the details of the Final Solution, much of it supplied by the British, French, and American representatives resident in the Vatican. On March 17, 1942, representatives of Jewish organizations assembled in Switzerland sent a memorandum to Pacelli via the papal nuncio in Bern, cataloguing violent anti-Semitic measures in Germany and in its allied and conquered territories.

Their plea focused attention on Slovakia, Croatia, Hungary, and unoccupied France, where, they believed, the Pope's intervention might yet be effective. Apart from an intervention in the case of Slovakia, where the president was Monsignor Josef Tiso, a Catholic priest, no papal initiatives resulted. During the same month, a stream of dispatches describing the fate of some 90,000 Jews reached the Vatican from various sources in Eastern Europe. The Jewish organizations' long memorandum would be excluded from the wartime documents published by the Vatican between 1965 and 1981. On June 16, 1942, Harold Tittmann, the U.S. representative to the Vatican, told Washington that Pacelli was diverting himself, ostrichlike, into purely religious concerns and that the moral authority won for the papacy by Pius XI was being eroded. At the end of that month, the London Daily Telegraph announced that more than a million Jews had been killed in Europe and that it was the aim of the Nazis "to wipe the race from the European continent." The article was re-printed in The New York Times. On July 21 there was a protest rally on behalf of Europe's Jews in New York's Madison Square Garden. In the following weeks the British, American, and Brazilian representatives to the Vatican tried to persuade Pacelli to speak out against the Nazi atrocities. But still he said nothing.

In September 1942, President Franklin Roosevelt sent his personal representative, the former head of U.S. Steel, Myron Taylor, to plead with Pacelli to make a statement about the extermination of the Jews. Taylor traveled hazardously through enemy territory to reach the Vatican. Still Pacelli refused to speak. Pacelli's excuse was that he must rise above the belligerent parties. As late as December 18, Francis d'Arcy Osborne, Britain's envoy in the Vatican, handed Cardinal Domenico Tardini, Pacelli's deputy secretary of state, a dossier replete with information on the Jewish deportations and mass killings in hopes that the Pope would denounce the Nazi regime in a Christmas message. On December 24, 1942, having made draft after draft, Pacelli at last said something. In his Christmas Eve broadcast to the world on Vatican Radio, he said that men of goodwill owed a vow to bring society "back to its immovable center of gravity in divine law." He went on: "Humanity owes this vow to those hundreds of thousands who, without any fault of their own, sometimes only by reason of their nationality and race, are marked for death or gradual extinction." That was the strongest public denunciation of the Final Solution that Pacelli would make in the whole course of the war.

It was not merely a paltry statement. The chasm between the enormity of the liquidation of the Jewish people and this form of evasive language was profoundly scandalous. He might have been referring to many categories of victims at the hands of various belligerents in the conflict. Clearly the choice of ambiguous wording was intended to placate those who urged him to protest, while avoiding offense to the Nazi regime. But these considerations are over-shadowed by the implicit denial and trivialization. He had scaled down the doomed millions to "hundreds of thousands" without uttering the word "Jews," while making the pointed qualification "sometimes only by reason of their nationality or race." Nowhere was the term "Nazi" mentioned. Hitler himself could not have wished for a more convoluted and innocuous reaction from the Vicar of Christ to the greatest crime in history.

But what was Pacelli's principal motivation for this trivialization and denial? The Allies' diplomats in the Vatican believed that he was remaining impartial in order to earn a crucial role in future peace negotiations. In this there was clearly a degree of truth. But a recapitulation of new evidence I have gathered shows that Pacelli saw the Jews as alien and undeserving of his respect and compassion. He felt no sense of moral outrage at their plight. The documents show that:

He had nourished a striking antipathy toward the Jews as early as 1917 in Germany, which contradicts later claims that his omissions were performed in good faith and that he "loved" the Jews and respected their religion.

From the end of the First World War to the lost encyclical of 1938, Pacelli betrayed a fear and contempt of Judaism based on his belief that the Jews were behind the Bolshevik plot to destroy Christendom.

Pacelli acknowledged to representatives of the Third Reich that the regime's anti-Semitic policies were a matter of Germany's internal politics. The Reich Concordat between Hitler and the Vatican, as Hitler was quick to grasp, created an ideal climate for Jewish persecution.

Pacelli failed to sanction protest by German Catholic bishops against anti-Semitism, and he did not attempt to intervene in the process by which Catholic clergy collaborated in racial certification to identify Jews.

After Pius XI's Mit Brennender Sorge, denouncing the Nazi regime (although not by name), Pacelli attempted to mitigate the effect of the encyclical by giving private diplomatic reassurances to Berlin despite his awareness of widespread Nazi persecution of Jews.

Pacelli was convinced that the Jews had brought misfortune on their own heads: intervention on their behalf could only draw the church into alliances with forces inimical to Catholicism. Pacelli's failure to utter a candid word on the Final Solution proclaimed to the world that the Vicar of Christ was not roused to pity or anger. From this point of view, he was the ideal Pope for Hitler's unspeakable plan. His denial and minimization of the Holocaust were all the more scandalous in that they were uttered from a seemingly impartial moral high ground.

There was another, more immediate indication of Pacelli's moral dislocation. It occurred before the liberation of Rome, when he was the sole Italian authority in the city. On October 16, 1943, SS troops entered the Roman ghetto area and rounded up more than 1,000 Jews, imprisoning them in the very shadow of the Vatican. How did Pacelli acquit himself? On the morning of the roundup, which had been prompted by Adolf Eichmann, who was in charge of the organization of the Final Solution from his headquarters in Berlin, the German ambassador in Rome pleaded with the Vatican to issue a public protest. By this stage of the war, Mussolini had been deposed and rescued by Adolf Hitler to run the puppet regime in the North of Italy.. The German authorities in Rome, both diplomats and military commanders, fearing a backlash of the Italian populace, hoped that an immediate and vigorous papal denunciation might stop the SS in their tracks and prevent further arrests. Pacelli refused. In the end, the German diplomats drafted a letter of protest on the Pope's behalf and prevailed on a resident German bishop to sign it for Berlin's benefit.

Meanwhile, the deportation of the imprisoned Jews went ahead on October 18. When U. S. chargé d'affaires Harold Tittmann visited Pacelli that day, he found the pontiff anxious that the "Communist" Partisans would take advantage of a cycle of papal protest, followed by SS reprisals, followed by a civilian backlash. As a consequence, he was not inclined to lift a finger for the Jewish deportees, who were now traveling in cattle cars to the Austrian border bound for Auschwitz. Church officials reported on the desperate plight of the deportees as they passed slowly through city after city. Still Pacelli refused to intervene.

In the Jesuit archives in Rome, I found a secret document sworn to under oath by Karl Wolff, the SS commander in Italy. The text reveals that Hitler had asked Wolff in the fall of 1943 to prepare a plan to evacuate the Pope and the Vatican treasures to Liechtenstein. After several weeks of investigation, Wolff concluded that an attempt to invade the Vatican and its properties, or to seize the Pope in response to a papal protest, would prompt a backlash throughout Italy that would seriously hinder the Nazi war effort. Hitler therefore dropped his plan to kidnap Pacelli, acknowledging what Pacelli appeared to ignore, that the strongest social and political force in Italy in late 1943 was the Catholic Church, and that its potential for thwarting the SS was immense.

Pacelli was concerned that a protest by him would benefit only the Communists. His silence on the deportation of Rome's Jews, in other words, was not an act of cowardice or fear of the Germans. He wanted to maintain the Nazi-occupation status quo until such time as the city could be liberated by the Allies. But what of the deported Jews? Five days after the train had set off from the Tiburtina station in Rome, an estimated 1,060 had been gassed at Auschwitz and Birkenau - 149 men and 47 women were detained for slave labor, but only 15 survived the war, and only one of those was a woman, Settimia Spizzichino, who had served as a human guinea pig of Dr. Josef Mengele, the Nazi medical doctor who performed atrocious experiments on human victims. After the liberation, she was found alive in a heap of corpses. But there was a more profound failure than Pacelli's unwillingness to help the Jews of Rome rounded up on October 16. Pacelli's reticence was not just a diplomatic silence in response to the political pressures of the moment, not just a failure to be morally outraged. It was a stunning religious and ritualistic silence. To my knowledge, there is no record of a single public papal prayer, lit votive candle, psalm, lamentation, or Mass celebrated in solidarity with the Jews of Rome either during their terrible ordeal or after their deaths. This spiritual silence in the face of an atrocity committed at the heart of Christendom, in the shadow of the shrine of the first apostle, persists to this day and implicates all Catholics. This silence proclaims that Pacelli had no genuine spiritual sympathy even for the Jews of Rome, who were members of the community of his birth. And yet, on learning of the death of Adolf Hitler, Archbishop Adolf Bertram of Berlin ordered all the priests of his archdiocese "to hold a solemn Requiem in memory of the Führer."

There were nevertheless Jews who gave Pacelli the benefit of the doubt. On Thursday, November 29, 1945, Pacelli met some 80 representatives of Jewish refugees who expressed their thanks "for his generosity toward those persecuted during the Nazi-Fascist period ."One must respect a tribute made by people who had suffered and survived, and we cannot belittle Pacelli's efforts on the level of charitable relief, notably his directive that enclosed religious houses in Rome should take in Jews hiding from the SS.

By the same token, we must respect the voice of Settimia Spizzichino, the sole Roman Jewish woman survivor from the death camps. Speaking in a BBC interview in 1995 she said. "I came back from Auschwitz on my own. . I lost my mother, two sisters and one brother. Pius XII could have warned us about what was going to happen. We might have escaped from Rome and joined the partisans. He played right into the Germans' hands. It all happened right under his nose. But he was an anti-Semitic pope, a pro-German pope. He didn't take a single risk. And when they say the Pope is like Jesus Christ, it is not true. He did not save a single child."

We are obliged to accept these contrasting views of Pacelli are not mutually exclusive. It gives a Catholic no satisfaction to accuse a Pope of acquiescing in the plans of Hitler. But one of the saddest ironies of Pacelli's papacy centers on the implications of his own pastoral self-image. At the beginning of a promotional film he commissioned about himself during the war, called The Angelic Pastor, the camera frequently focuses on the statue of the Good Shepherd in the Vatican gardens. The parable of the good shepherd tells of the pastor who so loves each of his sheep that he will do all, risk all, go to any pains, to save one member of his flock that is lost or in danger. To his everlasting shame, and to the shame of the Catholic Church, Pacelli disdained to recognize the Jews of Rome as members of his Roman flock, even though they had dwelled in the Eternal City since before the birth of Christ. And yet there was still something worse. After the liberation of Rome, when every perception of restraint on his freedom was lifted, he claimed retrospective moral superiority for having spoken and acted on behalf of the Jews. Addressing a Palestinian group on August 3, 1946, he said, "We disapprove of all recourse to force...Just as we condemned on various occasions in the past the persecutions that a fanatical anti-Semitism inflicted on the Hebrew people." His grandiloquent self-exculpation a year after the war had ended showed him to be not only an ideal pope for the Nazis Final Solution but also a hypocrite. The postwar period of Pacelli's papacy, through the 1950s, saw the apotheosis of the ideology of papal power as he presided over a triumphant Catholic Church in open confrontation with Communism. But it could not hold. The internal structures and morale of the church in Pacelli's final years began to show signs of fragmentation and decay, leading to a yearning for reassessment and renewal. In old age he became increasingly narrow-minded, eccentric, and hypochondriacal. He experienced religious visions, suffered from chronic hiccups, and received monkey-brain-cell injections for longevity. He had no love for, or trust in those who had to follow him. He failed to replace his secretary of state when he died and for years he declined to appoint a full complement of cardinals. He died at the age of 82 on October 9, 1958. His corpse decomposed rapidly in the autumnal Roman heat. At his lying-in-state, a guard fainted from the stench. Later, his nose turned black and fell off. Some saw in this sudden corruption of his mortal remains, a symbol of the absolute corruption of his papacy.

The Second Vatican Council was called by John XXIII who succeeded Pacelli, in 1958, precisely to reject Pacelli's monolith in preference for a collegial, decentralized, human, Christian community, the Holy Spirit, and love. The guiding metaphor of the church of the future was of a "pilgrim people of God." Expectations ran high, but there was no lack of contention and anxiety as old habits and disciplines died hard. There were signs from the very outset that papal and Vatican hegemony would not easily acquiesce, that the Old Guard would attempt a comeback. As we approach the end of this century, the hopeful energy of the Second Vatican Council, or Vatican II, as it came to be called, appears to many a spent force. The church of Pius XII is reasserting itself in confirmation of a pyramidal church model: faith in the primacy of the man in the white robe dictating in solitude from the pinnacle. In the twilight years of John Paul II's long reign, the Catholic Church gives a pervasive impression of dysfunction despite his historic influence on the collapse of Communist tyranny in Poland and the Vatican's enthusiasm for entering its third millennium with a cleansed conscience. As the theologian Professor Adrian Hastings comments, "The great tide powered by Vatican II has, at least institutionally, spent its force. The old landscape has once more emerged and Vatican II is now being read in Rome far more in the spirit of the First Vatican Council and within the context of Pius XII's model of Catholicism." A future titanic struggle between the progressives and the traditionalists is in prospect, with the potential for a cataclysmic schism, especially in North America, where a split has opened up between bishops compliant with Rome and academic Catholicism, which is increasingly independent and dissident. Pacelli, whose canonization process is now well advanced, has become the icon, 40 years after his death, of those traditionalists who read and revise the provisions of the Second Vatican Council from the viewpoint of Pacelli's ideology of papal power--an ideology that has proved disastrous in the century's history.[1861]

According to Phelps: "Jesuit Temporal Coadjutors deny the Jewish Eurasian mass-murder by the Nazis. The whole reason that Jesuit Coadjutors Tzar Nicholas I, Alexander III and Nicholas II created the Pale of Settlement was to corral the Jews for their future annihilation by Hitler and Stalin working together. New York and London financed the massacre while SMOM John J. McCloy refused to bomb Auschwitz and FDR refused to admit Jews on the ship St. Louis into the US from Cuba. But tens of thousands of Nazis could be brought into the US after the war in the name of fighting the very Soviet communism FDR had built.

"Adolf Hitler, The Pope's Fuehrer. Pius XII was a Jesuit Pontiff who carried out the largest enforcement of the Council of Trent in the history of the Jesuit Order. Four Jesuits worked for years trying to cover-up his crimes."

Brown joins the Pope to launch £750m child vaccination plan

Gordon Brown and the Pope are trying to save millions of children in the poorest countries by speeding distribution of life-saving vaccines.

A group of world leaders, including the Chancellor and Pope Benedict XVI, launched the £750m scheme in Rome yesterday.

The audience with the Pope could also bring domestic political benefits for Mr Brown, so soon after the conflict between the Government and the Catholic Church over whether gay couples should have in adoption law similar rights to heterosexuals. The row threatened to erode Labour's traditionally strong base among working-class Catholics, with vital local elections looming in Scotland in May.

Also at the ceremony in Rome were Queen Rania Al-Abdullah of Jordan and Paul Wolfowitz of the World Bank launching the "Advance Market Mechanism". Italy, the UK, Canada, Norway, Russia and the Gates Foundation are to create a £750m fund that will give the poorest countries purchasing power in the drugs market, spurring pharmaceutical companies to develop the needed drugs. Mr Brown told The Independent: "It will give them the power to buy at discounted prices a suitable vaccine when one becomes available. At a stroke, it turns a vague hope for a medical breakthrough into an immediate reality. It will now make economic sense for pharmaceutical companies to develop the new vaccine."

He added: "Of course, drugs and vaccines are only part of the answer of addressing the arithmetic of disease and death. Weak health systems and insufficient doctors and nurses are among the main obstacles to access to basic health care. Nothing less than a bold commitment to action is now needed."

The first disease to be targeted will be pneumococcal infection, the main cause of deaths from pneumonia among children, and the second leading cause of childhood meningitis deaths. It kills more than 1.6 million people, including nearly a million children under five, every year.

Worldwide, nearly 10 million children under five die every year, or about one every three seconds. A quarter of these deaths are caused by diseases such as measles, polio, diphtheria and hepatitis, for which there are vaccines available. There are no effective vaccines yet for malaria, pneumonia, tuberculosis and Aids, which kill seven million under-fives a year.

The fund founders hope that by stimulating the market in life-saving drugs, five million lives will be saved by 2030.

Private-sector pharmaceutical research is heavily tilted towards tackling health problems found in the richer countries, where companies are guaranteed a lucrative market for any effective treatment. Every year, more than £50bn is spent globally on health research, but only 10 per cent goes on the diseases that cause 90 per cent of all health problems.

While Mr Brown was in Rome he also had talks with the Italian Prime Minister, Romano Prodi.

Again we are told to simply apply a bandage to the "coumpound fracture" that is this countries health and practice, when are we going to have real leaders who address the root causes of disease instead of just throwing more money at the porblem.

Title: Complicity of Pope Pius XII in the Holocaust

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 10, 2007 01:53 AM (GMT)

Text •26-17: Complicity of Pope Pius XII in the Holocaust

Long-buried Vatican files reveal a new and shocking indictment of World War II's Pope Pius XII: that in pursuit of absolute power he helped Adolf Hitler destroy German Catholic political opposition, betrayed the Jews of Europe, and sealed a deeply cynical pact with a 20th-century devil.

One evening several years ago when I was having dinner with a group of students, the topic of the papacy was broached, and the discussion quickly boiled over. A young woman asserted that Eugenio Pacelli, Pope Pius XII, the Pope during World War II, had brought lasting shame on the Catholic Church by failing to denounce the Final Solution. A young man, a practicing Catholic, insisted that the case had never been proved.

Raised as a Catholic during the papacy of Pius XII – his picture gazed down from the wall of every classroom during my childhood – I was only too familiar with the allegation. It started in 1963 with a play by a young German author named Rolf Hochhuth, Der Stellvertreter (The Deputy) which was staged on Broadway in 1964. It depicted Pacelli as a ruthless cynic, interested more in the Vatican's stockholdings than in the fate of the Jews. Most Catholics dismissed Hochhuth's thesis as implausible, but the play sparked a controversy which has raged to this day. Disturbed by the anger brought out in that dinner altercation, and convinced, as I had always been, of Pius XII's innocence, I decided to write a new defense of his reputation for a younger generation. I believed that Pacelli's evident holiness was proof of his good faith. How could such a saintly pope have betrayed the Jews? But was it possible to find a new and conclusive approach to the issue? The arguments had so far focused mainly on his wartime conduct; however, Pacelli's Vatican career had started 40 years earlier. It seemed to me that a proper investigation into Pacelli's record would require a more extensive chronicle than any attempted in the past. So I applied for access to archival material in the Vatican, reassuring those who had charge of crucial documents that I was on the side of my subject.

Six years earlier, in a book entitled A Thief in the Night, I had defended the Vatican against charges that Pope John Paul I had been murdered by his own aides. Two key officials granted me access to secret material: depositions under oath gathered 30 years ago to support the process for Pacelli's canonization, and the archive of the Vatican Secretariat of State, the foreign office of the Holy See. I also drew on German sources relating to Pacelli's activities in Germany during the 1920s and 1930s, including his dealings with Adolf Hitler in 1933. For months on end I ransacked Pacelli's files, which dated back to 1912, in a windowless dungeon beneath the Borgia Tower in Vatican City. Later I sat for several weeks in a dusty office in the Jesuit headquarters, close to St. Peter's Square in Rome, mulling over a thousand pages of transcribed testimony given under oath by those who had known Pacelli well during his lifetime, including his critics.

By the middle of 1997, I was in a state of moral shock. The material I had gathered amounted not to an exoneration but to an indictment more scandalous than Hochhuth's. The evidence was explosive. It showed for the first time that Pacelli was patently, and by the proof of his own words, anti-Jewish. It revealed that he had helped Hitler to power and at the same time undermined potential Catholic resistance in Germany. It showed that he had implicitly denied and trivialized the Holocaust, despite having reliable knowledge of its true extent. And, worse, that he was a hypocrite, for after the war he had retrospectively taken undue credit for speaking out boldly against the Nazi persecution of the Jews.

In the "Holy Year" of 1950, a year in which many millions of pilgrims flocked to Rome to catch a glimpse of Pacelli, he was at the zenith of his papacy. This was the Pius people now in their mid-50s and older remember from newsreels and newspaper photographs. He was 74 years old and still vigorous. Six feet tall, stick thin at 125 pounds, light on his feet, regular in habits, he had hardly altered physically from the day of his coronation 11 years earlier. He had beautiful tapering hands, a plaintive voice, large dark eyes and an aura of holiness. It was his extreme pallor that first arrested those who met him. His skin "had surprisingly transparent effect," observed the writer Gerrado Pallenberg, "as if reflecting from the inside a cold, white flame." His charisma was stunning. "His presence radiated a benignity, calm and sanctity that I have certainly never before sensed in any human being." recorded the English writer James Lees-Milne. "I immediately fell head over heels in love with him. I was so affected I could scarcely speak without tears and was conscious that my legs were trembling."

But there was another side to his character, little known to the faithful. Although he was a man of selfless, monklike habits of prayer and simplicity, he was a believer in the absolute leadership principle. More than any other Vatican official of the century, he had promoted the modern ideology of autocratic papal control, the highly centralized, dictatorial authority he himself assumed on March 2, 1939, and maintained until his death in October 1958. There was a time before the advent of modern communications when Catholic authority was widely distributed, in the collective decisions of the church's councils and in collegial power-sharing between the Pope and the bishops. The absolutism of the modern papacy is largely an invention of the late 19th century It developed rapidly in the first decades of this century in response to the perception of the centrifugal breakup of the church under an array of contemporary pressures: materialism, increasing sexual freedom, religious skepticism, and social and political liberties.

From his young manhood on, Pacelli played a leading role in shaping the conditions and scope of modern papal power. Eugenio Pacelli was born in Rome in 1876, into a family of church lawyers who served the Vatican. He had an older sister and brother and a younger sister. His parents, devout Catholics, shared an apartment in central Rome with his grandfather, who had been a legal adviser to Pius IX, the longest-serving Pope in history. There was only one small brazier to supply heat for the whole family, even in the depths of winter. Eugenio was a modest youth, who never appeared before his siblings unless he was fully dressed in a jacket and tie. He would always come to the table with a book, which he would read after having asked the family's permission.

From an early age he acted out the ritual of the Mass, dressed in robes supplied by his mother. He had a gift for languages and a prodigious memory. He was spindly and suffered from a "fastidious stomach." He retained a youthful piety all his life. Politically and legally, however, he was capable of great subtlety and cunning. The Pacelli's were fiercely loyal to the injured merit of the papacy. From 1848, the Popes had progressively lost to the emerging nation-state of Italy their dominions, which had formed, since time immemorial, the midriff of the Italian peninsula. Six years before Eugenio's birth, the city of Rome itself had been seized, leaving the papacy in crisis. How could the Popes regard themselves as independent now that they were mere citizens of an upstart kingdom? Eugenio's grandfather and father believed passionately that the Popes could once again exert a powerful unifying authority over the church by the application of ecclesiastical and international law.

In 1870, at a gathering in Rome of a preponderance of the world's bishops, known as the First Vatican Council, the Pope was dogmatically declared infallible in matters of faith and morals. He was also declared the unchallenged primate of the faithful. The Pope may have lost his temporal dominion, but spiritually he was solely in charge of his universal church. During the first two decades of this century, papal primacy and infallibility began to creep even beyond the ample boundaries set by the First Vatican Council. A powerful legal instrument transformed the 1870 primacy dogma into an unprecedented principle of papal power. Eugenio Pacelli, by then a brilliant young Vatican lawyer, had a major part in the drafting of that instrument, which was known as the Code of Canon Law.

Pacelli had been recruited into the Vatican in 1901, at the age of 24, to specialize in international affairs and church law. Pious, slender, with dark luminous eyes, he was an instant favorite. He was invited to collaborate on the reformulation of church law with his immediate superior, Pietro Gasparri, a world-famous canon lawyer. Packaged in a single manual, the Code of Canon Law was distributed in 1917 to Catholic bishops and clergy throughout the world. According to this code, in the future all bishops would be nominated by the Pope; doctrinal error would be tantamount to heresy; priests would be subjected to strict censorship in their writings; papal letters to the faithful would be regarded as infallible (in practice if not in principle); and an oath would be taken by all candidates for the priesthood to submit to the sense as well as the strict wording of doctrine as laid down by the Pope.

But there was a problem. The church had historically granted the dioceses in the provincial states of Germany a large measure of local discretion and independence from Rome. Germany had one of the largest Catholic populations in the world, and its congregation was well educated and sophisticated, with hundreds of Catholic associations and newspapers and many Catholic universities and publishing houses. The historic autonomy of Germany's Catholic Church was enshrined in ancient church-state treaties known as concordats.

Aged 41 and already an archbishop, Pacelli was dispatched to Munich as papal nuncio, or ambassador, to start the process of eliminating all existing legal challenges to the new papal autocracy. At the same time, he was to pursue a Reich Concordat, a treaty between the papacy and Germany as a whole which would supersede all local agreements and become a model of Catholic church-state relations. A Reich Concordat would mean formal recognition by the German government of the Pope's right to impose the new Code of Canon Law on Germany's Catholics. Such an arrangement was fraught with significance for a largely Protestant Germany. Nearly 400 years earlier, in Wittenberg, Martin Luther had publicly burned a copy of Canon Law in defiance of the centralized authority of the church. It was one of the defining moments of the Reformation, which was to divide Western Christendom into Catholics and Protestants. In May 1917, Pacelli set off for Germany via Switzerland in a private railway compartment, with an additional wagon containing 60 cases of special foods for his delicate stomach. The Pope at that time, Benedict XV, was shocked at this extravagance, but Pacelli had favored status as the Vatican's best diplomat. Shortly after he settled in Munich, he acquired a reputation as a vigorous relief worker. He traveled through war-weary Germany extending charity to people of all religions and none.

In an early letter to the Vatican, however he revealed himself to be less than enamored of Germany's Jews. On September 4, 1917, Pacelli informed Pietro Gasparri, who had become cardinal secretary of state in the Vatican -- the equivalent of foreign minister and prime minister -- that a Dr. Werner, the chief rabbi of Munich, had approached the nunciature begging a favor. In order to celebrate the festival of Tabernacles, beginning on October 1, the Jews needed palm fronds, which normally came from Italy. But the Italian government had forbidden the exportation, via Switzerland, of a stock of palms which the Jews had purchased and which were being held up in Como. "The Israelite Community," continued Pacelli, "are seeking the intervention of the Pope in the hope that he will plead on behalf of the thousands of German Jews." The favor in question was no more problematic than the transportation of Pacelli's 60 cases of food-stuffs had been a few months earlier. Pacelli informed Gasparri that he had warned the rabbi that "wartime delays in communication" would make things difficult. He also told Gasparri that he did not think it appropriate for the Vatican "to assist them in the exercise of their Jewish cult." His letter went by the slow route overland in the diplomatic bag. Gasparri replied by telegram on September 18 that he entirely trusted Pacelli's "shrewdness," agreeing that it would not be appropriate to help Rabbi Werner. Pacelli wrote back on September 28, 1917, informing Gasparri that he had again seen the Rabbi, who "was perfectly convinced of the reasons I had given him and thanked me warmly for all that I had done on his behalf." Pacelli had done nothing except thwart the rabbi's request. The episode, small in itself, belies subsequent claims that Pacelli had a great love of the Jewish religion and was always motivated by its best interests.

Eighteen months later he revealed his antipathy toward the Jews in a more blatantly anti-Semitic fashion when he found himself at the center of a local revolution as Bolshevik groups struggled to take advantage of the chaos in postwar Munich. Writing to Gasparri, Pacelli described the revolutionaries and their chief, Eugen Levien in their headquarters in the former royal palace. The letter has lain in the Vatican secret archive like a time bomb until now: "The scene that presented itself at the palace was indescribable. The confusion totally chaotic, the filth completely nauseating; soldiers and armed workers coming and going; the building, once the home of a king, resounding with screams, vile language, profanities. Absolute hell. An army of employees were dashing to and fro, giving out orders, waving bits of paper, and in the midst of all this, a gang of young women, of dubious appearance, Jews like all the rest of them, hanging around in all the offices with provocative demeanor and suggestive smiles. The boss of this female gang was Levien's mistress, a young Russian woman, a Jew and a divorcee, who was in charge. And it was to her that the nunciature was obliged to pay homage in order to proceed. This Levien is a young man, about 30 or 35, also Russian and a Jew. Pale, dirty, with vacant eyes, hoarse voice, vulgar, repulsive, with a face that is both intelligent and sly." This association of Jewishness with Bolshevism confirms that Pacelli, from his early 40s, nourished a suspicion of and contempt for the Jews for political reasons. But the repeated references to the Jewishness of these individuals, along with the catalogue of stereotypical epithets deploring their physical and moral repulsiveness, betray a scorn and revulsion consistent with anti-Semitism. Not long after this, Pacelli campaigned to have black French troops removed from the Rhineland, convinced that they were raping women and abusing children – even though an independent inquiry sponsored by the U.S. Congress, of which Pacelli was aware, proved this allegation false. Twenty-three years later, when the Allies were about to enter Rome, he asked the British envoy to the Vatican to request of the British Foreign Office that no Allied colored troops would be among the small number that might be garrisoned in Rome after the occupation.

Pacelli spent 13 years in Germany attempting to rewrite the state Concordats one by one in favor of the power of the Holy See and routinely employing diplomatic blackmail. Germany was caught up in many territorial disputes following the redrawing of the map of Central Europe after the First World War. Pacelli repeatedly traded promises of Vatican support for German control of disputed regions in return for obtaining terms advantageous to the Vatican in Concordats. The German government's official in charge of Vatican affairs at one point recorded the "ill feeling" prompted by Pacelli's "excessive demands." Both Catholics and Protestants in Germany resisted reaching an agreement with Pacelli on a Reich Concordat because the nuncio's concept of a church-state relationship was too authoritarian.. In his negotiations, Pacelli was not concerned about the fate of non-Catholic religious communities or institutions, or about human rights. He was principally preoccupied with the interests of the Holy See. Nothing could have been better designed to deliver Pacelli into the hands of Hitler later, when the future dictator made his move in 1933.

In June 1920, Pacelli became nuncio to all of Germany, with headquarters in Berlin as well as in Munich, and immediately acquired a glittering reputation in diplomatic circles. He was a favorite at dinner parties and receptions, and he was known to ride horses on the estate of a wealthy German family. His household was run by a pretty young nun from southern Germany named Sister Pasqualina Lehnert. Pacelli's sister Elisabetta, who battled with the nun for Pacelli's affections, described Pasqualina as "scaltrissima"-- extremely cunning. In Munich it had been rumored that he cast more than priestly eyes on this religious housekeeper. Pacelli insisted that a Vatican investigation into this "horrible calumny" be conducted at the highest level, and his reputation emerged unbesmirched.

Meanwhile, he had formed a close relationship with an individual named Ludwig Kaas. Kaas was a representative of the solidly Catholic German Center Party, one of the largest and most powerful democratic parties in Germany. Though it was unusual for a full-time politician, he was also a Roman Catholic priest. Five years Pacelli's junior, dapper, bespectacled, and invariably carrying a smart walking stick, Kaas, known as "the prelate," became an intimate collaborator of Pacelli's on every aspect of Vatican diplomacy in Germany. With Pacelli's encouragement, Kaas eventually became the chairman of the Center Party, the first priest to do so in the party's 60-year history. Yet while Kaas was officially a representative of a major democratic party, he was increasingly devoted to Pacelli to the point of becoming his alter ego. Sister Pasqualina stated after Pacelli's death that Kaas, who "regularly accompanied Pacelli on holiday" was linked to him in "adoration, honest love and unconditional loyalty." There were stories of acute jealousy and high emotion when Kaas became conscious of a rival affection in Pacelli's secretary, the Jesuit Robert Leiber, who was also German.

Kaas was a profound believer in the benefits of a Reich Concordat, seeing a parallel between papal absolutism and the FÜHRER- PRINZIP, the Fascist leadership principle. His views coincided perfectly with Pacelli's on church-state politics, and their aspirations for centralized papal power were identical. Kaas's adulation of Pacelli, whom he put before his party, became a crucial element in the betrayal of Catholic democratic politics in Germany.

In 1929, Pacelli was recalled to Rome to take over the most important role under the Pope, Cardinal Secretary of State. Sister Pasqualina arrived uninvited and cunningly, according to Pacelli's sister, and along with two German nuns to assist her, took over the management of his Vatican residence. Almost immediately Kaas, although he was still head of the German Center Party, started to spend long periods--months at a time -- in Pacelli's Vatican apartments Shortly before Pacelli's return to Rome, his brother, Francesco had successfully negotiated on behalf of Pius XI, the current Pope, a concordat with Mussolini as part of an agreement known as the Lateran Treaty.

The rancor between the Vatican and the state of Italy was officially at an end. A precondition of the negotiations had involved the destruction of the parliamentary Catholic Italian Popular party. Pius XI disliked political Catholicism because he could not control it. Like his predecessors, he believed that Catholic party politics brought democracy into the church by the back door. The result of the demise of the Popular Party was the wholesale shift of Catholics into the Fascist Party and the collapse of democracy in Italy. Pius XI and his new secretary of state, Pacelli, were determined that no accommodation be reached with Communists anywhere in the world – this was the time of persecution of the church in Russia, Mexico, and later Spain -but totalitarian movements and regimes of the right were a different matter.

Hitler, who had enjoyed his first great success in the elections of September 1930, was determined to seek a treaty with the Vatican similar to that struck by Mussolini, which would lead to the disbanding of the German Center Party. In his political testament, Mein Kampf, he had recollected that his fear of Catholicism went back to his vagabond days in Vienna. The fact that German Catholics, politically united by the Center Party, had defeated Bismarck's Kulturkampf- the "culture struggle" against the Catholic Church in the 1870s--constantly worried him. He was convinced that his movement could succeed only if political Catholicism and its democratic networks were eliminated.

Hitler's fear of the Catholic Church was well grounded. Into the early 1930s the German Center Party, the German Catholic bishops, and the Catholic media had been mainly solid in their rejection of National Socialism. They denied Nazis the sacraments and church burials, and Catholic journalists excoriated National Socialism daily in Germany's 400 Catholic newspapers. The hierarchy instructed priests to combat National Socialism at a local level whenever it attacked Christianity. The Munich-based weekly Der Gerade Weg (The Straight Path) told its readers, "Adolf Hitler preaches the law of lies. You who have fallen victim to the deceptions of one obsessed with despotism, wake up!"

The vehement front of the Catholic Church in Germany against Hitler, however, was not at one with the view from inside the Vatican--a view that was now being shaped and promoted by Eugenio Pacelli. In 1930 the influential Catholic politician Heinrich Brüning, a First World War Veteran, became the leader of a brief new government coalition, dominated by the majority Socialists and the Center Party. The country was reeling from successive economic crises against the background of the world slump and reparations payments to the Allies. In August 1931, Brüning visited Pacelli in the Vatican, and the two men quarreled. Brüning tells in his memoirs how Pacelli lectured him, the German chancellor, on how he should reach an understanding with the Nazis to "form a right-wing administration" in order to help achieve a Reich Concordat favorable to the Vatican. When Brüning advised him not to interfere in German politics, Pacelli threw a tantrum. Brüning parting shot that day was the ironic observation--chilling in hindsight-- that he trusted that "the Vatican would fare better at the hands of Hitler ... than with himself, a devout Catholic." Brüning was right on one score. Hitler proved to be the only chancellor prepared to grant Pacelli the sort of authoritarian concordat he was seeking. But the price was to be catastrophic for Catholic Germany and for Germany as a whole.

After Hitler came to power in January 1933, he made the concordat negotiations with Pacelli a priority. The negotiations proceeded over six months with constant shuttle diplomacy between the Vatican and Berlin. Hitler spent more time on this treaty than on any other item of foreign diplomacy during his dictatorship. The Reich Concordat granted Pacelli the right to impose the new Code of Canon Law on Catholics in Germany and promised a number of measures favorable to Catholic education, including new schools. In exchange, Pacelli collaborated in the withdrawal of Catholics from political and social activity. The negotiations were conducted in secret by Pacelli, Kaas, and Hitler's deputy chancellor, Franz von Papen, over the heads of German bishops and the faithful. The Catholic Church in Germany had no say in setting the conditions. In the end, Hitler insisted that his signature on the concordat would depend on the Center Party's voting for the Enabling Act, the legislation that was to give him dictatorial powers. It was Kaas, chairman of the party but completely in thrall to Pacelli, who bullied the delegates into acceptance. Next, Hitler insisted on the "voluntary" disbanding of the Center Party, the last truly parliamentary force in Germany. Again, Pacelli was the prime mover in this tragic Catholic surrender.

The fact that the party voluntarily disbanded itself, rather than go down fighting, had a profound psychological effect, depriving Germany of the last democratic focus of potential noncompliance and resistance: In the political vacuum created by its surrender, Catholics in the millions joined the Nazi Party, believing that it had the support of the Pope. The German bishops capitulated to Pacelli's policy of centralization, and German Catholic democrats found themselves politically leaderless. After the Reich Concordat was signed, Pacelli declared it an unparalleled triumph for the Holy See. In an article in L'Osservatore Romano, the Vatican-controlled newspaper, he announced that the treaty, indicated the total recognition and acceptance of the church's law by the German state. But Hitler was the true victor and the Jews were the concordat's first victims. On July 14, 1933, after the initialing of the treaty, the Cabinet minutes record Hitler as saying that the concordat had created an atmosphere of confidence that would be "especially significant in the struggle against international Jewry." He was claiming that the Catholic Church had publicly given its blessing, at home and abroad, to the policies of National Socialism, including its anti-Semitic stand. At the same time, under the terms of the concordat, Catholic criticism of acts deemed political by the Nazis, could now be regarded as "foreign interference." The great German Catholic Church, at the insistence of Rome, fell silent. In the future all complaints against the Nazis would be channeled through Pacelli. There were some notable exceptions, for example the sermons preached in 1933 by Cardinal Michael von Faulhaber, the Archbishop of Munich, in which he denounced the Nazis for their rejection of the Old Testament as a Jewish text.

The concordat immediately drew the German church into complicity with the Nazis. Even as Pacelli was granted special advantages in the concordat for German Catholic education, Hitler was trampling on the educational rights of Jews throughout the country. At the same time, Catholic priests were being drawn into Nazi collaboration with the attestation bureaucracy, which established Jewish ancestry. Pacelli, despite the immense centralized power he now wielded through the Code of Canon Law, said and did nothing. The attestation machinery would lead inexorably to the selection of millions destined for the death camps.

As Nazi anti-Semitism mounted in Germany during the 1930's, Pacelli failed to complain, even on behalf of Jews who had become Catholics, acknowledging that the matter was a matter of German internal policy. Eventually, in January 1937, three German cardinals and two influential bishops arrived at the Vatican to plead for a vigorous protest over Nazi persecution of the Catholic Church, which had been deprived of all forms of activity beyond church services. Pius XI at last decided to issue an encyclical, a letter addressed to all the faithful of the world. Written under Pacelli's direction, it was called Mit Brennender Sorge (With Deep Anxiety), and it was a forthright statement of the plight of the church in Germany. But there was no explicit condemnation of anti-Semitism, even in relation to Jews who had converted to Catholicism. Worse still, the subtext against Nazism (National Socialism and Hitler were not mentioned by name) was blunted by the publication five days later of an even more condemnatory encyclical by Pius XI against Communism.

The encyclical Mit Brennender Sorge, though too little and too late, revealed that the Catholic Church all along had the power to shake the regime. A few days later, Hermann Göring, one of Hitler's closest aides and his commander of the Luffwaffe, delivered a two-hour harangue to a Nazi assembly against the Catholic clergy. However, Roman centralizing had paralyzed the German Catholic Church and its powerful web of associations. Unlike the courageous grass-roots activism that had combated Bismarck's persecutions in the 1870s, German Catholicism now looked obediently to Rome for guidance. Although Pacelli collaborated in the writing and the distribution of the encyclical, he quickly undermined its effects by reassuring the Reich's ambassador in Rome. "Pacelli received me with decided friendliness," the diplomat reported back to Berlin, "and emphatically assured me during the conversation that normal and friendly relations with us would be restored as soon as possible."

In the summer of 1938, as Pius XI lay dying he became belatedly anxious about anti-Semitism throughout Europe. He commissioned another encyclical, to be written exclusively on the Jewish question. The text, which never saw the light of day, has only recently been discovered. It was written by three Jesuit scholars, but Pacelli presumably had charge of the project. It was to be called Humani Generis Unitas (The Unity of the Human Race). For all its good intentions and its repudiation of violent anti-Semitism, the document is replete with the anti-Jewishness that Pacelli had displayed in his early period in Germany. The Jews, the text claims, were responsible for their own fate. God had chosen them to make way for Christ's redemption, but they denied and killed him. And now, "blinded by their dream of worldly gain and material success," they deserved the "worldly and spiritual ruin" that they had brought down upon themselves. The document warns that that to defend the Jews as "Christian principles and humanity" demand could involve the unacceptable risk of being ensnared by secular politics--not least an association with Bolshevism. The encyclical was delivered in the fall of 1938 to the Jesuits in Rome, who sat on it. To this day we do not know why it was not completed and handed to Pope Pius XI. For all its drawbacks, it was a clear protest against Nazi attacks on Jews and so might have done some good. But it appears likely that the Jesuits, and Pacelli, whose influence as secretary of state of the Vatican was paramount since the Pope was moribund, were reluctant to inflame the Nazis by its publication. Pacelli, when he became pope, would bury the document deep in the secret archives.

On February 10, 1939, Pius XI died, at the age of 81. Pacelli, then 63, was elected Pope by the College of Cardinals in just three ballots, on March 2. He was crowned on March 12, on the eve of Hitler's march into Prague. Between his election and his coronation he held a crucial meeting with the German cardinals. Keen to affirm Hitler publicly, he showed them a letter of good wishes which began, "To the Illustrious Herr Adolf Hitler." Should he, he asked them, style the Führer "Most Illustrious"? He decided that that might be going too far. He told the cardinals that Pius XI had said that keeping a papal nuncio in Berlin "conflicts with our honor." But his predecessor, he said, had been mistaken. He was going to maintain normal diplomatic relations with Hitler. The following month, at Pacelli's express wish, Archbishop Cesare Orsenigo, the Berlin nuncio, hosted a gala reception in honor of Hitler's 50th birthday. A birthday greeting to the Führer from the bishops of Germany would become an annual tradition until the war's end.

Pacelli's coronation was the most triumphant in a hundred years. His style of papacy, for all his personal humility, was unprecedentedly pompous. He always ate alone. Vatican bureaucrats were obliged to take phone calls from him on their knees. When he took his afternoon walk, the gardeners had to hide in the bushes. Senior officials were not allowed to ask him questions or present a point of view.

As Europe plunged toward war Pacelli cast himself in the role of judge of judges. But he continued to seek to appease Hitler by attempting to persuade the Poles to make concessions over Germany's territorial claims. After Hitler's invasion of Poland, on September 1, 1939, he declined to condemn Germany, to the bafflement of the Allies.

His first public statement, the encyclical known in the English-speaking world as Darkness over the Earth, was full of papal rhetoric and equivocations. Then something extraordinary occurred, revealing that whatever had motivated Pacelli in his equivocal approach to the Nazi onslaught in Poland did not betoken cowardice or a liking for Hitler. In November 1939, in deepest secrecy, Pacelli became intimately and dangerously involved in what was probably the most viable plot to depose Hitler during the war. The plot centered on a group of anti-Nazi generals, committed to returning Germany to democracy. The coup might spark a civil war, and they wanted assurances that the West would not take advantage of the ensuing chaos. Pius XII agreed to act as go-between for the plotters and the Allies. Had his complicity in the plot been discovered it might have proved disastrous for the Vatican and for many thousands of German clergy. As it happened, leaders in London dragged their feet, and the plotters eventually fell silent. The episode demonstrates that, while Pacelli seemed weak to some, pusillanimity and indecisiveness were hardly in his nature.

Pacelli's first wartime act of reticence in failing to speak out against Fascist brutality occurred in the summer of 1941, following Hitler's invasion of Yugoslavia and the formation of the Catholic and Fascist state of Croatia. In a wave of appalling ethnic cleansing, the Croat Fascist separatists, known as the Ustashe, under the leadership of Ante Pavelic, the Croat Führer, embarked on a campaign of enforced conversions, deportations, and mass extermination targeting a population of 2.2 million Serb Orthodox Christians and a smaller number of Jews and Gypsies. According to the Italian writer Carlo Falconi, as early as April, in a typical act of atrocity, a band of Ustashe had rounded up 331 Serbs. The victims were forced to dig their own graves before being hacked to death with axes. The local priest was forced to recite the prayers for the dying while his son was chopped to pieces before his eyes. Then the priest was tortured. His hair and beard were torn off, his eyes were gouged out. Finally he was skinned alive. The very next month Pacelli greeted Pavelic at the Vatican. Throughout the war, the Croat atrocities continued. By the most recent scholarly reckoning 487,000 Orthodox Serbs and 27,000 Gypsies were massacred; in addition, approximately 30,000 out of a population of 45,000 Jews were killed. Despite a close relationship between the Ustashe regime and the Catholic bishops, and a constant flow of information about the massacres, Pacelli said and did nothing. In fact, he continued to extend warm wishes to the Ustashe leadership. The only feasible explanation for Pacelli's silence was his perception of Croatia as a Catholic bridgehead into the East. The Vatican and the local bishops approved of mass conversion in Croatia (even though it was the result of fear rather than conviction), because they believed that this could spell the beginning of a return {?} of the Orthodox Christians there to papal allegiance. Pacelli was not a man to condone mass murder, but he evidently chose to turn a blind eye on Ustashe atrocities rather than hinder a unique opportunity to extend the power of the papacy.

{Note from emperors-clothes.com: This is a very generous interpretation. In fact the Catholic Church, controlled the Independent State of Croatia. At one point it was in fact directly run by Archbishop Stepinac who answered to Pius XII. Stepinac has, in turn, been beatified by the current pope, in a Croatian ceremony attended by Croatian President Franjo Tudjman.}

Pacelli came to learn of the Nazi plans to exterminate the Jews of Europe shortly after they were laid in January 1942. The deportations to the death camps had begun in December 1941 and would continue through 1944. All during 1942, Pacelli received reliable information on the details of the Final Solution, much of it supplied by the British, French, and American representatives resident in the Vatican. On March 17, 1942, representatives of Jewish organizations assembled in Switzerland sent a memorandum to Pacelli via the papal nuncio in Bern, cataloguing violent anti-Semitic measures in Germany and in its allied and conquered territories.

Their plea focused attention on Slovakia, Croatia, Hungary, and unoccupied France, where, they believed, the Pope's intervention might yet be effective. Apart from an intervention in the case of Slovakia, where the president was Monsignor Josef Tiso, a Catholic priest, no papal initiatives resulted. During the same month, a stream of dispatches describing the fate of some 90,000 Jews reached the Vatican from various sources in Eastern Europe. The Jewish organizations' long memorandum would be excluded from the wartime documents published by the Vatican between 1965 and 1981. On June 16, 1942, Harold Tittmann, the U.S. representative to the Vatican, told Washington that Pacelli was diverting himself, ostrichlike, into purely religious concerns and that the moral authority won for the papacy by Pius XI was being eroded. At the end of that month, the London Daily Telegraph announced that more than a million Jews had been killed in Europe and that it was the aim of the Nazis "to wipe the race from the European continent." The article was re-printed in The New York Times. On July 21 there was a protest rally on behalf of Europe's Jews in New York's Madison Square Garden. In the following weeks the British, American, and Brazilian representatives to the Vatican tried to persuade Pacelli to speak out against the Nazi atrocities. But still he said nothing.

In September 1942, President Franklin Roosevelt sent his personal representative, the former head of U.S. Steel, Myron Taylor, to plead with Pacelli to make a statement about the extermination of the Jews. Taylor traveled hazardously through enemy territory to reach the Vatican. Still Pacelli refused to speak. Pacelli's excuse was that he must rise above the belligerent parties. As late as December 18, Francis d'Arcy Osborne, Britain's envoy in the Vatican, handed Cardinal Domenico Tardini, Pacelli's deputy secretary of state, a dossier replete with information on the Jewish deportations and mass killings in hopes that the Pope would denounce the Nazi regime in a Christmas message. On December 24, 1942, having made draft after draft, Pacelli at last said something. In his Christmas Eve broadcast to the world on Vatican Radio, he said that men of goodwill owed a vow to bring society "back to its immovable center of gravity in divine law." He went on: "Humanity owes this vow to those hundreds of thousands who, without any fault of their own, sometimes only by reason of their nationality and race, are marked for death or gradual extinction." That was the strongest public denunciation of the Final Solution that Pacelli would make in the whole course of the war.

It was not merely a paltry statement. The chasm between the enormity of the liquidation of the Jewish people and this form of evasive language was profoundly scandalous. He might have been referring to many categories of victims at the hands of various belligerents in the conflict. Clearly the choice of ambiguous wording was intended to placate those who urged him to protest, while avoiding offense to the Nazi regime. But these considerations are over-shadowed by the implicit denial and trivialization. He had scaled down the doomed millions to "hundreds of thousands" without uttering the word "Jews," while making the pointed qualification "sometimes only by reason of their nationality or race." Nowhere was the term "Nazi" mentioned. Hitler himself could not have wished for a more convoluted and innocuous reaction from the Vicar of Christ to the greatest crime in history.

But what was Pacelli's principal motivation for this trivialization and denial? The Allies' diplomats in the Vatican believed that he was remaining impartial in order to earn a crucial role in future peace negotiations. In this there was clearly a degree of truth. But a recapitulation of new evidence I have gathered shows that Pacelli saw the Jews as alien and undeserving of his respect and compassion. He felt no sense of moral outrage at their plight. The documents show that:

He had nourished a striking antipathy toward the Jews as early as 1917 in Germany, which contradicts later claims that his omissions were performed in good faith and that he "loved" the Jews and respected their religion.

From the end of the First World War to the lost encyclical of 1938, Pacelli betrayed a fear and contempt of Judaism based on his belief that the Jews were behind the Bolshevik plot to destroy Christendom.

Pacelli acknowledged to representatives of the Third Reich that the regime's anti-Semitic policies were a matter of Germany's internal politics. The Reich Concordat between Hitler and the Vatican, as Hitler was quick to grasp, created an ideal climate for Jewish persecution.

Pacelli failed to sanction protest by German Catholic bishops against anti-Semitism, and he did not attempt to intervene in the process by which Catholic clergy collaborated in racial certification to identify Jews.

After Pius XI's Mit Brennender Sorge, denouncing the Nazi regime (although not by name), Pacelli attempted to mitigate the effect of the encyclical by giving private diplomatic reassurances to Berlin despite his awareness of widespread Nazi persecution of Jews.

Pacelli was convinced that the Jews had brought misfortune on their own heads: intervention on their behalf could only draw the church into alliances with forces inimical to Catholicism. Pacelli's failure to utter a candid word on the Final Solution proclaimed to the world that the Vicar of Christ was not roused to pity or anger. From this point of view, he was the ideal Pope for Hitler's unspeakable plan. His denial and minimization of the Holocaust were all the more scandalous in that they were uttered from a seemingly impartial moral high ground.

There was another, more immediate indication of Pacelli's moral dislocation. It occurred before the liberation of Rome, when he was the sole Italian authority in the city. On October 16, 1943, SS troops entered the Roman ghetto area and rounded up more than 1,000 Jews, imprisoning them in the very shadow of the Vatican. How did Pacelli acquit himself? On the morning of the roundup, which had been prompted by Adolf Eichmann, who was in charge of the organization of the Final Solution from his headquarters in Berlin, the German ambassador in Rome pleaded with the Vatican to issue a public protest. By this stage of the war, Mussolini had been deposed and rescued by Adolf Hitler to run the puppet regime in the North of Italy.. The German authorities in Rome, both diplomats and military commanders, fearing a backlash of the Italian populace, hoped that an immediate and vigorous papal denunciation might stop the SS in their tracks and prevent further arrests. Pacelli refused. In the end, the German diplomats drafted a letter of protest on the Pope's behalf and prevailed on a resident German bishop to sign it for Berlin's benefit.

Meanwhile, the deportation of the imprisoned Jews went ahead on October 18. When U. S. chargé d'affaires Harold Tittmann visited Pacelli that day, he found the pontiff anxious that the "Communist" Partisans would take advantage of a cycle of papal protest, followed by SS reprisals, followed by a civilian backlash. As a consequence, he was not inclined to lift a finger for the Jewish deportees, who were now traveling in cattle cars to the Austrian border bound for Auschwitz. Church officials reported on the desperate plight of the deportees as they passed slowly through city after city. Still Pacelli refused to intervene.

In the Jesuit archives in Rome, I found a secret document sworn to under oath by Karl Wolff, the SS commander in Italy. The text reveals that Hitler had asked Wolff in the fall of 1943 to prepare a plan to evacuate the Pope and the Vatican treasures to Liechtenstein. After several weeks of investigation, Wolff concluded that an attempt to invade the Vatican and its properties, or to seize the Pope in response to a papal protest, would prompt a backlash throughout Italy that would seriously hinder the Nazi war effort. Hitler therefore dropped his plan to kidnap Pacelli, acknowledging what Pacelli appeared to ignore, that the strongest social and political force in Italy in late 1943 was the Catholic Church, and that its potential for thwarting the SS was immense.

Pacelli was concerned that a protest by him would benefit only the Communists. His silence on the deportation of Rome's Jews, in other words, was not an act of cowardice or fear of the Germans. He wanted to maintain the Nazi-occupation status quo until such time as the city could be liberated by the Allies. But what of the deported Jews? Five days after the train had set off from the Tiburtina station in Rome, an estimated 1,060 had been gassed at Auschwitz and Birkenau – 149 men and 47 women were detained for slave labor, but only 15 survived the war, and only one of those was a woman, Settimia Spizzichino, who had served as a human guinea pig of Dr. Josef Mengele, the Nazi medical doctor who performed atrocious experiments on human victims. After the liberation, she was found alive in a heap of corpses. But there was a more profound failure than Pacelli's unwillingness to help the Jews of Rome rounded up on October 16. Pacelli's reticence was not just a diplomatic silence in response to the political pressures of the moment, not just a failure to be morally outraged. It was a stunning religious and ritualistic silence. To my knowledge, there is no record of a single public papal prayer, lit votive candle, psalm, lamentation, or Mass celebrated in solidarity with the Jews of Rome either during their terrible ordeal or after their deaths. This spiritual silence in the face of an atrocity committed at the heart of Christendom, in the shadow of the shrine of the first apostle, persists to this day and implicates all Catholics. This silence proclaims that Pacelli had no genuine spiritual sympathy even for the Jews of Rome, who were members of the community of his birth. And yet, on learning of the death of Adolf Hitler, Archbishop Adolf Bertram of Berlin ordered all the priests of his archdiocese "to hold a solemn Requiem in memory of the Führer."

There were nevertheless Jews who gave Pacelli the benefit of the doubt. On Thursday, November 29, 1945, Pacelli met some 80 representatives of Jewish refugees who expressed their thanks "for his generosity toward those persecuted during the Nazi-Fascist period ."One must respect a tribute made by people who had suffered and survived, and we cannot belittle Pacelli's efforts on the level of charitable relief, notably his directive that enclosed religious houses in Rome should take in Jews hiding from the SS.

By the same token, we must respect the voice of Settimia Spizzichino, the sole Roman Jewish woman survivor from the death camps. Speaking in a BBC interview in 1995 she said. "I came back from Auschwitz on my own. . I lost my mother, two sisters and one brother. Pius XII could have warned us about what was going to happen. We might have escaped from Rome and joined the partisans. He played right into the Germans' hands. It all happened right under his nose. But he was an anti-Semitic pope, a pro-German pope. He didn't take a single risk. And when they say the Pope is like Jesus Christ, it is not true. He did not save a single child."

We are obliged to accept these contrasting views of Pacelli are not mutually exclusive.

It gives a Catholic no satisfaction to accuse a Pope of acquiescing in the plans of Hitler. But one of the saddest ironies of Pacelli's papacy centers on the implications of his own pastoral self-image. At the beginning of a promotional film he commissioned about himself during the war, called The Angelic Pastor, the camera frequently focuses on the statue of the Good Shepherd in the Vatican gardens. The parable of the good shepherd tells of the pastor who so loves each of his sheep that he will do all, risk all, go to any pains, to save one member of his flock that is lost or in danger. To his everlasting shame, and to the shame of the Catholic Church, Pacelli disdained to recognize the Jews of Rome as members of his Roman flock, even though they had dwelled in the Eternal City since before the birth of Christ. And yet there was still something worse. After the liberation of Rome, when every perception of restraint on his freedom was lifted, he claimed retrospective moral superiority for having spoken and acted on behalf of the Jews. Addressing a Palestinian group on August 3, 1946, he said, "We disapprove of all recourse to force...Just as we condemned on various occasions in the past the persecutions that a fanatical anti-Semitism inflicted on the Hebrew people." His grandiloquent self-exculpation a year after the war had ended showed him to be not only an ideal pope for the Nazis Final Solution but also a hypocrite. The postwar period of Pacelli's papacy, through the 1950s, saw the apotheosis of the ideology of papal power as he presided over a triumphant Catholic Church in open confrontation with Communism. But it could not hold. The internal structures and morale of the church in Pacelli's final years began to show signs of fragmentation and decay, leading to a yearning for reassessment and renewal. In old age he became increasingly narrow-minded, eccentric, and hypochondriacal. He experienced religious visions, suffered from chronic hiccups, and received monkey-brain-cell injections for longevity. He had no love for, or trust in those who had to follow him. He failed to replace his secretary of state when he died and for years he declined to appoint a full complement of cardinals. He died at the age of 82 on October 9, 1958. His corpse decomposed rapidly in the autumnal Roman heat. At his lying-in-state, a guard fainted from the stench. Later, his nose turned black and fell off. Some saw in this sudden corruption of his mortal remains, a symbol of the absolute corruption of his papacy.

The Second Vatican Council was called by John XXIII who succeeded Pacelli, in 1958, precisely to reject Pacelli's monolith in preference for a collegial, decentralized, human, Christian community, the Holy Spirit, and love. The guiding metaphor of the church of the future was of a "pilgrim people of God." Expectations ran high, but there was no lack of contention and anxiety as old habits and disciplines died hard. There were signs from the very outset that papal and Vatican hegemony would not easily acquiesce, that the Old Guard would attempt a comeback. As we approach the end of this century, the hopeful energy of the Second Vatican Council, or Vatican II, as it came to be called, appears to many a spent force. The church of Pius XII is reasserting itself in confirmation of a pyramidal church model: faith in the primacy of the man in the white robe dictating in solitude from the pinnacle. In the twilight years of John Paul II's long reign, the Catholic Church gives a pervasive impression of dysfunction despite his historic influence on the collapse of Communist tyranny in Poland and the Vatican's enthusiasm for entering its third millennium with a cleansed conscience. As the theologian Professor Adrian Hastings comments, "The great tide powered by Vatican II has, at least institutionally, spent its force. The old landscape has once more emerged and Vatican II is now being read in Rome far more in the spirit of the First Vatican Council and within the context of Pius XII's model of Catholicism." A future titanic struggle between the progressives and the traditionalists is in prospect, with the potential for a cataclysmic schism, especially in North America, where a split has opened up between bishops compliant with Rome and academic Catholicism, which is increasingly independent and dissident. Pacelli, whose canonization process is now well advanced, has become the icon, 40 years after his death, of those traditionalists who read and revise the provisions of the Second Vatican Council from the viewpoint of Pacelli's ideology of papal power--an ideology that has proved disastrous in the century's history.[1861]

Adolf Hitler, The Pope's Fuehrer. Pius XII was a Jesuit Pontiff who carried out the largest enforcement of the Council of Trent in the history of the Jesuit Order. Four Jesuits worked for years trying to cover-up his crimes.

Jesuit Temporal Coadjutors deny the Jewish Eurasian mass-murder by the Nazis. The whole reason that Jesuit Coadjutors Tzar Nicholas I, Alexander III and Nicholas II created the Pale of Settlement was to corral the Jews for their future annihilation by Hitler and Stalin working together. New York and London financed the massacre while SMOM John J. McCloy refused to bomb Auschwitz and FDR refused to admit Jews on the ship St. Louis into the US from Cuba. But tens of thousands of Nazis could be brought into the US after the war in the name of fighting the very Soviet communism FDR had built.

One of the 'favour' treatment of the Catholic Croatian Ustasha was the pulling out of the eyes, tongue, etc.

The father (or another similar close relative) of my colleague on job, during the war, just had a direct witness of the fact: they discovered a man in this condition in the forest and then, for mercy, they shot him.

I tell this to move away the attempts to paint these events as 'products of post war propaganda'. Because you can imagine now what could happen in the extermination camp of Jasenovac.

The extermination camp of Jasenovac was HEADED by the FRANCISCAN FRIAR Miroslav Filipovic Mojstorovic (Surname: "Fra Satana" - "Friar Satana"). His assistant on field, ACTIVE in the camp, was a MONK, Rendic.

Telling that the Catholic Church didn't know about all that murdering, slaughtering, torturing, is not only a lie, but an criminal offence to the victims, to the modern world of the rights, to the cannon law (=error, read "Common Law"; the Canonic Law is trampling the Common Law), to the freedom, an offence which carry out what these friars and monks were doing UNDER the DIRECTION and KNOWLEDGE of their authorities, the Pope and the General Superior of The COmpany of Jesus.

So telling that Pacelli was not aware of what was happening in Germany and in the Europe ruled by his puppet Adolf, is a infamous lie.

Avles.

Great info guys as usual...

I am beginning to see the Papal influence in the implementing of Holocaust "denial" laws, it is not in the interest of the Vatican for people to look into the holocaust (from the greek for 'burnt offering') as when i do it appears as though Stalin and Hitler were the Papal inquisitors of the 20th century, they're foreign policy was the council of trent and millions of "Heretics" were killed in that war..

Bush signs law allowing diplomatic privileges to Vatican's U.N. mission

1/16/2007

Catholic News Service

<http://www.catholic.org/international/inte...ry.php?id=22701>

WASHINGTON (CNS) – President George W. Bush signed a law Jan. 11 that lets him grant diplomatic privileges and immunities to the Holy See's Permanent Observer Mission to the United Nations.

The Holy See is not a member of the United Nations, but its permanent observer status, held since 1964, entitles it to participate in General Assembly debates, have its communications issued and circulated as official documents of the assembly, and co-sponsor draft resolutions and decisions that refer to the Holy See.

The new law, the "Department of State Authorities Act of 2006," authorizes the president to give the observer mission and its members "the privileges and immunities enjoyed by the diplomatic missions of member states to the United Nations, and their members."

Congress passed the act Dec. 9, 2006. It was one of the final acts of the 109th Congress before it adjourned.

Diplomatic immunity ensures safe passage for diplomats outside their home country. They are not subject to lawsuits or prosecution under the laws of the host country.

Title: Rebuilding Babylon - Eric Phelps

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 8, 2007 01:29 AM (GMT)

Bro. Eric,

The interview of 1/31 you sent me is a tremendous storehouse of information. It's definitely an eye opener and education in itself. I've forwarded it to several friends and preachers.

If the new Babylon is to be rebuilt, I have no problem with that, since it gives us more time to carry out the ministry before Jesus comes.

Agreed.

However, it seems to me that according to Jeremiah 50:4, 5 and verse 20, this Babylon will be destroyed during the time period when Israel will be restored, i.e., the Tribulation Period.

Agreed. The Babylon of Jeremiah 50 is the same Babylon of Revelation 18. It is a literal city, the commercial emporium of the world, and is to be destroyed by fire from God as Sodom and Gomorrah were destroyed at the end of the trib. Rome, "Mystery Babylon" of Rev. 17, is destroyed by the final pope turned Antichrist via his 10 kings at mid-trib. The destroyed city of Babylon on the Euphrates will never be rebuilt during the 1000-year reign of Christ.

My question is, do you honestly think that this new Babylon will be built and will come to fulfill the description she has in Jer. 50-51 before Israel will be saved?

Sure. Rome's Masonic Jewish Labor Zionists will contribute to the building of Rome's rebuilt city of Babylon as well as its operation. This is why the Lord calls for "my people" to come out of Babylon (Rev.18:4) before the city is destroyed. The "my people" can only be racial Jews under the unconditional Abrahamic covenant, as the Body of Christ does not go through the Great Tribulation.

This would put into question the doctrine of imminancy, don't you think?

No. The imminent (momentary) return of Christ "in the air" to receive the physical, resurrected bodies (physically dead and alive) of his true Church has always been imminent. We are not to look for signs or seasons. The Lord could have taken out his Church the day after the Apostle Paul penned 1 Thess. 4; or I Cor. 15. God could have left this world without any witness for any period of time He so desired. He owes man nothing; He will save his predestined elect. We cannot forget that for over 400 years (from Malachi to John) God sent no prophet to Israel and performed no obvious miracles, yet the nation was still under the Mosaic Covenant. How much more could God permit world Gentile humanity under the rule of Satan to continue with a "word from the Lord."

We would have a tremendous amount of time then, before the Lord returns. It took nearly 200 years for the US to become the super power, political and commercial giant that she is now. In other words, we can sit back and not have to be concerned about the Lord's appearing, since the new Babylon has yet to be rebuilt.

Again, the Lord's appearing is imminent; Babylon can be built after that event if necessary. Nothing overrules the risen Son of God's imminent appearing for his Body; this event is foremost and primary over any and all prophesied events particular to the setting of the Great Tribulation.

Please answer me on this. What would you say if they would ask you this during an interview? I'm anxious to hear you on this, and if I could get a satisfactory answer, I would most gladly welcome it. So please educate me on this particular matter. This new Babylon, I can tell, really has your interest and attention.

I hope this is helpful. And, by the way, it was you who forced me to reconsider that the Babylon of Revelation 18 was not Rome. I was not reading that chapter literally which was a great error. The Lord moved me to reinvestigate the possibility of a rebuilt Babylon on the Euphrates. To my delight, I found the writings of Clarence Larkin, William Newell, David Baron and Ford Ottman in which they all, in reading the scriptures literally, said that the Babylon of Revelation 17 was Rome, but the Babylon of Revelation 18 was a rebuilt literal city on the Euphrates River---"Babylon." They then went into the political events of the time (1918) and showed the plans of England, Germany and the Sultan of Turkey to accomplish this feat. I was humbled; accepted the Lord's correction, confessed my sin of being "illiterate" when reading the Word of God---and made the change. So I thank you brother for your prodding and insistence on reading Jeremiah 50 and Isaiah 13 literally! Additionally, the Moslem world is calling for the establishment of a new Caliphate which will be centered in a new, rebuilt Babylon! It was on the news a few weeks ago; I nearly fell out of my chair.

This interview you sent me is a real trophy, and I certainly will pass it along to others and promote VAlll as well.

So glad to be of help.

Bro. Carl

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 8, 2007 01:31 AM (GMT)

Bro. Eric,

You said this in your response the other day about the rebuilding of Babylon:

I can prove from the works of Clarence Larkin, William R. Newell, David Baron and Ford C. Ottman (all of them writing in the 1920s) that plans for the rebuilding of Babylon have been in the making since Napoleon I. Kaiser Wilhelm II and the Sulton both worked together with aid from engineers sent by King George V, to propose the building of a railroad to Baghdad to Babylon. The Jesuits want that occult commercial city rebuilt as much as the Third Hebrew Temple. The first and last Nimrod apparently will rule the world from that favorite city of the devil--- what a way to end the times of the Gentiles.

Even those these good men testify to the fact that plans to rebuild Babylon have been in the making since Napoleon I, that doesn't make their Biblical interpretation for such an event correct. They can build all they desire, but their thinking that they're fulfilling Bible prophecy may just be wishful thinking. Historical actions and prophetic commentaries based on personal interpretation don't necessarily line up with what God has set in stone for the future.

Agreed. But the understanding of all these men was derived from a literal understanding of words, phrases, sentences and paragraphs intended to be read as such---unless otherwise indicated from the texts.

First of all, the Babylon of Jer. 50-51 is not just a city, but it is also described as a "land," a "nation," and a country with "many cities." So it's obvious that the city of Babylon that Larkin, Newell, Baron, and Ottman were referring to is not the Babylon of Jeremiah 50-51. Did these four in their commentaries mention the whereabouts of the US in Bible prophecy?

No.

In this particular interpretation, are we speaking here of another 200 years for the new Babylon to come to prominence in order to be called the "praise of all the earth", the Lady of Kingdoms, the "hammer of all the earth", an international warehouse to supply the great shipping merchants of the world, and a melting pot of "mingled peoples" (in N. Y. city alone there are 200 different languages)?

Good point.

Do you honestly think we have that much time left before the Lord's return?

His appearing? Never. His Second Coming to the earth? Maybe.

The only other alternative would be to say that Babylon would be rebuilt after the Lord appears to snatch out his church, which would be little time for her to grow to such prominence, especially during a time of world conflict and jack-hammer plagues. In a brief time period when half the world's population will die, I don't think this would be the appropriate time to build cities.

I am convinced that there will be a time period between the appearing of Christ and the beginning of the 70th week of Daniel with Israel's signing of the "covenant with death." That time period may be long or short.

As progressive revelation unravels closer to the coming of the Lord, the limited knowledge of authors back in the 1920's would be up for question and evaluation according to what we're seeing in this day and time. While God sees ahead to the finished product, the limited finite mind of even a Bible scholar can only interpret the details of prophetic events according to the amount of light he has received in a given point in history.

True. But a literal reading of the prophets is the safest ground in avoiding error.

What's your reaction on what I'm saying? Do you think that with the condition the world is in presently we have all this time left for the rebuilding of a new Babylon?

Sure.

And for her to come to prominence to fit the description of the end-time Babylon of Scripture? If so, then where is the doctrine of imminency?

Previously addressed.

And if you admit to the imminency of Christ's coming, then you have to put the prophecy of the rebuilding of Babylon within the seventieth week of Daniel, since she obviously has not been rebuilt up to this time.

Disagreed. Previously addressed. The building of Babylon has nothing to do with the imminent appearing of Christ for his Body.

You mentioned in your discussion of Islam and Romanism that the three prominent cities with major Jewish population were New York, Los Angeles and Miami. Isn't it interesting that the Super Bowl this year is in Miami? If it was in the Jesuits' plan to invent professional sports, who has the final say with regard to where the Super Bowl will be played?

Great point. The Knights of Malta own most all of the football teams. One of the Kennedy assassins owned the Baltimore Orioles and the Washington Redskins. He was Edward Bennett Williams.

Bro. Carl

Brother Eric

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 8, 2007 01:33 AM (GMT)

Bro. Eric,

When I asked you in an earlier email as when the rebuilding of Babylon would occur, you answered "after the crusade."

My question is, When and how will this crusade end? At the end of the thirty-year war that started at 9/11? I notice that you and those who write along the same lines say little about the divine intervention of the Lord's appearing among all your exposure and warning of the coming Jesuit activities. Does this mean to say that you expect all this to take place before the appearing of the Lord for His church? Does that not again put into question the doctrine of imminency?

No.

With your being an independent Baptist Dispensationalist, I would think that you would be more conscious of that imminent climactic event.

That blessed Hope gives me the courage to do what I do.

But you know as well as I do that this would put you into the same category of those "cowardly" Baptists that do nothing but win souls, build churches, and wait for the Lord to return.

Agreed. Serving the Lord includes a civil responsibility to one's nation. Bible believing men are patriotic nationalists and have proved it many times in the past.

Meanwhile, the Jesuits are taking over our country. I could not be sure that that is the case, but from some of your writings, you certainly come down hard on those who are not on the activist front line of trying to foil the Black Pope's plans.

If resisting the plans of the Jesuits in the area of public information is "activism," then that is your term. Activism to me has always been synonymous with socialism, communism, etc. But then you are not a Calvinist, and thus repudiate the wonderful heritage of personal liberty Presbyterian and Baptist Calvinists bequeathed to us.

If God in history has used evil despot rulers to carry out his plan of judgment, what makes you think that you can stop this world wide "mystery of iniquity," if this is God's plan to bring about judgment on the world?

I have never said that I am going to stop the mystery of iniquity. Truth opposes it; the Spirit of God restrains it.

If we are to submit to governmental authority (God didn't say that authority had to be righteous), then that to me would indicate that "the king's heart is in the hand of the Lord, as the rivers of water: he turneth it whithersoever he will." Shall we draw our swords and cut off the Jesuits' ears? Or maybe we should be using a spiritual sword to defeat the enemy, seeing that Christ's kingdom is not of this world.

Please read the works of men who have addressed this argument in the past. I suggest Timothy Dwight and Samuel Rutherford's Lex Rex. But because you hold to the Arminian doctrine of "Free Will" as do most Baptist Dispensationalists, you must arrive at your conclusions of unlimited submission to the sin of a usurping political tyranny. We have spoken of this previously.

I think you are a wonderful tool in the Lord's hand to expose this wickedness, but I would question your custom of branding your good soulwinning, separated, Bible-defending brethren as "cowards" just because they don't take up the activist's (Peter's) sword of just defense against tyrannical conspirators.

I have watched the preaching of the gospel for thirty-five years and the country continues to worsen. The reason for this worsening is not the decrees of God--- for none of us know them with regard to the decay of the US. We are reaping what we have sown. The Baptist preachers I know would NEVER oppose the sin of this Jesuit-usurped government as they cower in fear before their oppressors. None of them would ever dare to refuse to pay an income tax on their "wages"--- wages having never been defined as "income" by the Supreme Court. Rather, my brethren have retreated into the closet of waiting for the Lord's appearing to the exclusion of doing their civil duty of making our public servants obey the law.

This will be layed to our charge at the Bema. Our Baptist-Calvinist forefathers did their duty (Clarke, Williams, Leland, etc.), but we have not. Generally, we are cowards, and we hide our fear behind the glorious doctrine of the Blessed Hope.

I know you won't answer me on these matters, since I've mentioned them before, and you have chosen not to answer. You admitted to me one day through an email, that I "keep you sharp." Well, that's all I'm trying to do, since your explanations to these objections would not only convince me of my wrong thinking, but also give you keener insight on how to deal with these same objections in the future. All I'm trying to do is see your viewpoint in light of the Scripture.

Good.

I'm not approaching your position with preconceived ideas or a closed mind. The information that you disclose is intriguing, to say the least. It exposes the "mystery of iniquity" that the majority of preachers know little about.

Praise the Lord.

Their idea of God's prophetic plan is obscure and superficial. They preach and teach that evil exists in the world, but they have very little knowledge about how this evil is defined and how it is operating.

Agreed, and this had made us victims and easy prey for the devil and his Jesuits.

However, this may be to their advantage, since they would hopefully concentrate more of their time and effort into carrying out the Great Commission, while not being concerned about the conspiracy around them.

The Jesuit conspiracy is all the more reason to preach the gospel as only the Holy Spirit resident in a believer can give a man the ability, courage, and persistence to resist the devil that he would flee from us.

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 8, 2007 10:15 PM (GMT)

Bro. Eric,

I highlighted in blue what I'm commenting on.

I believe that both the Third Hebrew Temple and Babylon will be built before the appearing of Christ for his Church. I have no scripture for this. What I do know to be the truth is that the appearing is any moment as nothing has to be fulfilled for that event. Thus I have adhered to the doctrine of the imminent return of Christ for his Body, while observing the stage being set for the 70th week of Daniel, which includes the rebuilding of the Temple and Babylon. And if my instincts be true, the Lord will appear for his Church about one day before the signing of the "covenant with many for one week." His dispensation of grace will extend to the last day---just before the appointed time for the signing of the "covenant with death."

If you believe that the Temple and Babylon will be built before the appearing of Christ for his Church, then you can't at the same time believe in the imminency of his coming.

Please re-read above sentences. I will restate for clarification. I believe that we may well see the rebuilding of the Hebrew Temple as well as the city of Babylon before the Lord appears. But I do not believe that the rebuilding of these places is necessary before the appearing of Christ for His Body. Thus his imminent appearing for us is set in stone. I trust this is clearer.

That's double talk. If you believe that Christ's appearing could happen at any time, then you'll saying that you're not really sure as to the time of the rebuilding of the Temple and Babylon.

A lot of the hype about the soon-to-come NWO, the mark of the beast, the destruction of this country, etc., and very little mention of the appearing of the Lord, I feel is due to two reasons: (1) There is shallow belief in the imminency of Christ's appearing, and Agreed. Most believers involved in this ministry are post trib, mid-trib or just amillennial. They make no distinction between Israel and the Church in violation of I Cor. 10:32.

(2) There is a problem with one's view on dispensationalism. If I believe that I'll be around when the covenant with death is signed and the mark of the beast is issued, then of course I'll be concerned and hyped up about these things coming upon us. But on the other hand, if I believe in his imminency and in his promise that "he has not appointed us unto wrath (pre-trib)," then I won't be concerned about the NWO, the antichrist or his issuing the biochips (as was Gianni Hayes last night). By the way, Leo Zagami, if I understood him correctly, does not believe in your invasions into the US that you frequently mention. He said that invasions will not be necessary. Correct me if I misunderstood him.

Agreed, God has not appointed us to wrath (the 70th week of Daniel). But we still have a responsibility to resist evil in every sphere of life beginning with our own flesh. As you know, biblical principles must be applied in every facet of life. When your government violates its contract with you and steals from you; when the Congress refuses to declare war as per Constitutional mandate (Article 1 Sec 8); when the executive removes all gold and silver coins from circulation nulifying the power of Congress to coin money in violation of the same section, etc., then we must confront these men in their lawlessness. If we do not, our silence is consent to their crimes perpetrated against us as well as against the nations these men attack and destroy.

I suggest the reading of Presbyterian Calvinist Timothy Dwight, the first president of Harvard and one of General Washington's strongest preachers and advisors.

U.S. attention months ago by the Arctic Beacon and The Investigative Journal radio show.

Since then, Zagami's valuable inside information has been heard by hundreds of thousands across the globe, taking head on the Vatican-led New World and letting them know people are "downright serious" about ending Rome and its minions' evil reign. span>

Millions have been killed by the duplicitous and deceptive Vatican and Jesuit influenced Illuminati over centuries and, according to Zagami and many serious researchers, they are not about to stop now with the destruction America, the Middle East and Israel next on their agenda.

Zagami's warning to stand up to the evil Illuminati comes from high level inside information, information that is now being picked up other truth seeking American journalists and radio broadcasters who are now giving Zagami a platform thanks to the Arctic Beacon's initial exposure.

Besides a flood of requests to allow Zagami a chance to speak by other radio hosts, Zagami and the editor of the Arctic Beacon have initiated the "Tour of Hope," which is a grass roots movement to gain support throughout

America and the world to fight the New World Order.

Since the initial announcement three weeks ago, more than two hundred people from at least 15 states have expressed a desire and willingness to form Committees of Hope in their communities, in essence expressing a willingness to fight the evil Jesuit and Vatican hierarchy by putting their names on the dotted line as a unified resistance.

"This should be done under the old fashioned Charter system just like America was initially begun," said Zagami in a recent interview. "We will then organize around the world fighting our organized enemy in the same manner, but replacing deception and lies with truth and justice."

<span style="FONT-FAMILY:

Garamond;">

The "Tour of Hope" has caught wings as Zagami is in the process of coordinating efforts with others to arrange speeches and to unify the resistance in the old fashioned way – face to faces meetings and coordinated efforts by the Committees of Hope to becoming a beacon of truth throughout the world.

Anyone interested in forming a Committee of at least five or six people can contact the Arctic Beacon or contact Zagami at his websitewww.illuminaticonfessions.webfriend.it/.

In order to better understand Zagami, he recently issued a statement explaining why he left the clutches of the Monte Carlo P2 Lodge:

Since I'm finally out of the illuminati as everybody

Italian police find child torture site

Nearly 200 face charges

By John Oates

Wednesday 25th May 2005

http://www.theregister.co.uk/2005/05/25/italy_child_abuse/

Three Catholic priests, a police officer and a social worker are among 186 people reportedly under investigation in Italy this morning after authorities shut down a child torture website.

The website hosted pictures and videos of children between four and eight being sexually abused and tortured. Police are still investigating and are yet to press charges.

The password-protected site was online for just nine days before being closed down in July. Web monitoring organisation Telefono Arcobaleno tipped off authorities, according to AP.

The site was not indexed so wasn't picked up search engines. It was hosted on an Italian server but advertised in other countries.

The investigation is continuing and no-one has been arrested yet. Premises belonging to 159 suspects in 16 of Italy's 20 regions were searched on Tuesday. Other suspects have already been searched. ®

Israeli Delegation will not keep appointment at the Vatican

03/27/2007 18:46

by Arie Cohen

<http://www.asianews.it/index.php?l=en&art=8846&size=A>

The "plenary" session had been planned for longtime. They were working to a "comprehensive agreement" on legal and fiscal security for the Church in Israel. The process was started by the magnanimity and trust of John Paul II. Disappointment and pain among Church officials.

Tel Aviv (AsiaNews) - The Delegation of the State of Israel, expected at the Vatican on Thursday 29 March, has decided not to come, and has communicated this only a very few days before the scheduled appointment. The news was soon widely known among media people in Rome, who cover the Vatican, since several key journalists had been invited to meet the Head of the Israeli Delegation on Thursday evening, following the negotiations in the Vatican, and have now had to be told by the Israeli Authorities that Israel had decided not to send the Delegation.

In the absence so far of any official comment by the Holy See, it is not yet possible to evaluate the gravity of the damage inflicted on the bilateral relationship by this unusual move, which follows a long list of appointments made and later cancelled or ignored by the Israeli side - although so far only at a "lower" level than this one.

The meeting, now cancelled by Israel, of the full teams of negotiators, which was to be held in the Vatican on Thursday 29 March - the first one at this level in five years - was to be yet another attempt to conclude the negotiating round that began as far back as 11 March 1999. In the meantime the negotiations continued, sporadically, at the "working level."

As is well known, their purpose is to work out a "comprehensive agreement" on all tax and property matters, which would give the Church in Israel legal and fiscal security. In practical terms, the Catholic Church wishes to see re-confirmed the historic tax exemptions that she already possessed at the time that Israel came into being, in 1948. Likewise the Church in Israel hopes for the return of some confiscated ecclesiastical properties, for example, the church-shrine in Caesarea, which was confiscated in the 1950's and later razed to the ground. In particular too, it is important for the security of Catholic sacred places owned by the Church, to ensure that any legal disputes concerning them should be decided by the courts, according to law ("due process") and never, as is possible today, by politicians, in purely discretionary fashion.

In the Church in Israel there was much expectation for the results of the meeting, which Israel has now abruptly cancelled, and the prospect of the first meeting of the "Plenary" of the negotiating teams, after a five year interval was cause for cautious optimism, which has now been replaced by just one more disappointment.

Indeed, a positive outcome to the talks could have strengthened confidence in the wisdom of the Church's choice to go ahead and sign the 1993 "Fundamental Agreement" with the State of Israel , and to establish with it full diplomatic relations only months later, even while leaving matters of decisive importance to later negotiations and agreements.

The rationale for that decision was described to AsiaNews (before learning of the unilateral cancellation) by the Franciscan jurist, Fr. David-Maria A. Jaeger, expert on Church-State relations in Israel: "It was believed best to to go ahead, and demonstrate, right at the start, with magnanimity, the Church's own good faith, and with it, unreserved trust in the other Party to carry out its own obligations under international law. There was the hope-full expectation that magnanimity and trust on the part of the Church would call forth corresponding trust and magnanimity on the part of the other side. It was a courageously generous decision by the Servant of God Pope John Paul II, and I, for my part, continue to pray and hope that he will be proved to have been right all along". Asked by AsiaNews for his views on the unilateral cancellation, Father Jaeger limited himself to expressing "incredulity" and "pain," and declined to comment any further.

CRAIG-OXLEY - March 29, 2007 11:54 PM (GMT)

Dear Craig,

This open policy is one of deception. The question is: "Why the deception?" It would seem to me that the works of Barry Chamish and others have created such a public awareness that Israel, i.e., the Pope's "Kingdom of Jerusalem," is merely a surrogate of the Vatican that the deception of resistance on the part of Israel's leaders was ordered. As Israel's Masonic Jewish Labor Zionist dictators all know, true resistance to Rome leads to assassination as in the case of Rabin.

Thus, Rome's open policy is to use its leaders in Jerusalem to feign resistance to the Vatican's status over its lands in the country. This promoted the illusion among the Israelis that their government is not a tool of Rome but really is on the side of the Israeli people. The Black Pope's secret policy is to extend the Pope's power over the holy places facilitated by the up-and-coming war in the region, an American military presence now being in country.

Check with Barry Chamish. He may have more critical information clarifying the picture for us all.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

CRAIG-OXLEY - March 30, 2007 03:53 PM (GMT)

The Vatican and the Egyptian don't want to interfere with Israel's final destruction. Israel makes no decision on its own. They were told not to sign anything until they represented no state.

Weird to see him like that. Just wondering, do you think he's protected by Black Magic(manipulation of the matrix), as the Jesuits are supreme sorcerers? To walk around like that unprotected is so strange to see.

Absolutley, yes!

Cutting off the heads of infants to restore beauty to another is the least they can do.

But I'd still go for it though.

CRAIG-OXLEY - March 29, 2007 03:06 AM (GMT)

But remember also that from a sheeple point of view no one is going to assassinate Kolvenbach. Most sheeple haven't ever heard of him for a start off, then many think he's just a little old monk haha. Yes remember the Jesuits are master Black Majickians as Blavatsky has also highlighted in the past. Theres only some high end Rabbi's that have similar powers in this arena. I bet Answar Bin Shari is a master majickian.

He is the 78th GRANDMASTER and Prince of the SOVEREIGN MILITARY OF MALTA my friend, he is the head honcho! If you wanted to know the three most Powerful men on the Planet you do now:

POPE

ANDREW WILLOUGHBY NINIAN BERTIE

In reality Bertie is far more important than the Pope but he's supposed to be subordinate to the Pope. Bertie is subordinate to the Black Pope, and the Jesuits along with the SMOM are both one almost these days. This is where I say Bertie is more powerful than the Pope in reality. But alas we're mean't to believe different. Also remember he's a cousin of the Black "Guelph" Queen Elizabeth II and he's seen on many family occassion photographs with them all. Notice how his Cousin QEII is the British SMOM leadership? Well, Well keeping it in the family hey haha.

Title: THE STAR By A.C.Clarke and the JESUITS!

CRAIG-OXLEY - March 30, 2007 02:38 AM (GMT)

QUOTE

Clarke has written numerous other books, including the Rama novels and several sequels to 2001, and many short stories, including "The Star", about a Jesuit priest's spiritual dilemma.

The Star is a science fiction short story by Arthur C. Clarke that won the Hugo award in 1956.

Synopsis

Spoiler warning: Plot and/or ending details follow.

The Star is the story of a group of catholic scientists come upon a destroyed civilization on a planet far away from our sun. They find that the planet was destroyed when it's sun went supernova. The culture was very similar to our own, and the scientists began to identify with the people who lived there long ago. They calculated the year that their sun went supernova, and they found that it happened in exactly 0 AD. It was in fact the very star, or the very supernova, that compelled the wise men on earth thousands of years ago to travel to see the Christ child, causing the catholic scientists' faith to be thrown into doubt because of the apparent cruelty of their God.

Proof that Roman Catholicism IS witchcraft

http://www.thewatcherfiles.com/satanism_2.html

Doc Marquee has also written a book, which is being published by American Focus Publishing Company, entitled "Secrets of the Illuminati". While this topic has been explored before, no author has been able to bring a truly occultic angle to the discussion. In other words, Marquee looks at the plan to bring in the New World Order from the viewpoint of a former witch. In his book, Marquee includes a chapter entitled, "Is It Catholicism Or Witchcraft?" At the beginning of this chapter, Marquee makes a quite startling statement, "I must emphatically state that Catholicism and witchcraft are one and the same...there is no difference between witchcraft and Catholicism." Then, Marquee examines Catholicism and witchcraft from the vantage point of a former witch.

Marquee identifies several critically important areas in which the practice of Roman Catholicism and witchcraft are identical. We will first list these areas of commonalty and then comment specifically upon them. These common areas are:

- The altar
- The golden goblet known as a chalice.
- Colored candles used in services
- The use of incense.
- The use of bells in the ceremony.
- Praying to statues.
- The use of Latin in services.

The use of a golden scepter in giving a large blessing to the people.

Common belief in Purgatory

The common belief in the host.

Common belief in the five elements.

Now, let us examine each of these areas of commonalty:

1. The altar in every Catholic church is prominently positioned at the front of the church. The "Mysteries of the Mass" are celebrated on and around the altar. In witchcraft, also, the altar is similarly used for three purposes:

To practice certain metaphysical rites, such as the casting of certain spells or to honor occult deities.

To hold the tools of magic.

To perform human sacrifice.

The Roman Catholic altar also holds their tools of their magic, and they daily perform human sacrifice. Remember, we are looking at this subject through the eyes of a former high-level witch who is now a born-again Christian. This daily human sacrifice is performed according to the false belief in "transubstantiation", the belief that the priest magically transforms the wafer into Jesus' body and the wine into His blood. Marquee states, "In other words, every day Christ is being reincarnated and then sacrificed.. they perform daily their human sacrifice in which Christ is ...sacrificed for their sins." It is shocking to realize that the Roman Catholics are daily performing human sacrifice in a manner similar to that of witches throughout the centuries.

2. The Catholic Golden Goblet, or Chalice. "It is this cup that the wine poured into it becomes the...literal blood of Christ. When a witch does a human sacrifice, after the victim's throat is sliced open, the spilled blood will be collected in a chalice, just as the Catholics do, except the witch's chalice holds the real thing." In Satan's eyes, the Catholics are performing the same rite as the witches.

3. "Candles were introduced to the Catholic mass about 320 A.D. There is no Scriptural reasons for them, unless... you are a practicing witch. Below is a list of different colored candles a witch would use throughout the year. See if you can recall any of these colors used during a Catholic mass:

White -- Purity, Truth, Sincerity

Red -- Strength, Health, Vigor, Sexual Love

Light Blue -- Tranquillity, Understanding, Patience

Dark Blue -- Impulsiveness, Depression, Change

Green -- Finance, Fertility, Luck

Gold/Yellow -- Persuasion, Charm, Confidence

Brown -- Hesitation, Uncertainty

Pink -- Honor, Love, Morality

Black -- Evil, Loss, Discord, Confusion
Purple -- Tension, Ambition, Power
Silver-Gray -- Cancellation, Stalemate
Orange -- Encouragement, Stimulation
Greenish-Yellow -- Sickness, Anger, Jealousy

"Using these colored candles and the right spells, a witch can cause anything to happen...our Catholic friends are not only using these occult tools, they also pay for them when they go to various statues and light...candles."

4. "Incense is a constant tool that is used by priests. They will take a philter (incense burner), walk around the altar, and then wave it out toward the crowd with an invocation...Not only do witches use incense, but they will consecrate their altar and their fellow witches in the exact way the Catholics do..."

5. Bells are also utilized by both Roman Catholics and witches. The bells are actually baptized, and in both witchcraft and Catholicism, altar boys attend the priest in sounding the bells.

6. Witches were praying to images or statues for many centuries before Catholics began the practice.

7. "Until recently, most of the rites of witchcraft were said in Latin...why is it, when the witches stopped using Latin as much as they did, about twenty years ago, that the Catholic mass was stopped being told in Latin? Today, it is spoken mostly in American English, the same way in which a witch's mass is held."

8. "...when the Pope, Cardinals, or priests want to give a huge blessing, they will take out a golden scepter, or wand, dip it in holy water, and then wave it on the people... wands are nothing new in the occult. When a witch wants to direct his power he can do it by means of wands." He can also control the demonic forces at his disposal by using a wand to consecrate a circle with a pentacle inside. Holy water is also used by a witch to purify himself and his instruments, and the water is made holy in both witchcraft and Catholicism by mixing water with salt.

9. The teaching of Purgatory is not found in the Bible. According to Catholic catechism, Purgatory is described as "a logically deduced place. Since a Catholic could not go straight to heaven if he had sinned, and since he could not go to hell if he had not died in mortal sin, there had to be a place in between where he could be purified" -- Purgatory. However, the belief in Purgatory is "totally occultic in origin". Witchcraft teaches that after a person goes through Purgatory, he is reincarnated and is more powerful in his next life than he was before. After several reincarnations, he will become purified enough to live with the gods and goddesses, precisely the same end as the Catholics teach.

10. Both Catholics and Witches teach that the host becomes the actual body of their respective gods. To the Roman Catholic, the host becomes the actual body of Jesus Christ; the witch believes the host actually becomes the body of their pagan deity, "I.H. S. -- or Iris, Horus, and Semiramis". This concept is known in both circles as transubstantiation.

11. Both witchcraft and Roman Catholicism teach that the universe is comprised of five elements: Spirit, Water, Air, Fire, and Earth. These occultic five elements are also found in the Catholic mass.

Spirit -- of the wafer god they sacrifice daily.

Water -- Holy water they use to purify and baptize

Air -- symbolically used through the incense

Fire -- used in tangent with the incense burning

Earth -- The elements of the wafer come from the earth in agriculture, and the flesh of their sacrificed deity, Jesus Christ, also came from the earth.

Doc Marquee's conclusion is inescapable and damning: The practice of occultism has come full circle from ancient Babylon to the Roman Catholic Institution today. As Jesus counseled in Revelation 18:4, "Come out of her, my people, that you do not participate in her sins, neither in her plagues".

Special thanks to the Cutting Edge Website for these informative webpages and above all, the Lord Jesus Christ himself for his goodness and mercy..

Title: Breach - Movie

Description: More Jesuit Programming

Daniel - March 29, 2007 04:21 AM (GMT)

So I just started watching this movie Breach on CAM about that Robert Hanssen Russian Spy who was caught. I try and relax with a movie and look what happens?

Well I've only gotten some 30 minutes into it so far, and I have heard the word Jesuit mentioned like 10 times already! They mention the Jesuit schools and training. And they have already spoken of how the Robert Hanssen is a Jesuit and so is the FBI agent played by Ryan Phillippe. Already they have shown Ryan Phillippe feeling guilty for not attending mass in a while and also Ryan Phillippe felt the great need to bring his Protestant wife into mass with him...hmm?

I have to say, I should wait until the end but I could not help myself. Anyone see this movie yet? It seems I will not be enjoying it.

Best,
Daneil

CRAIG-OXLEY - March 29, 2007 04:29 AM (GMT)

Interesting.

Daniel - March 29, 2007 06:13 AM (GMT)

Some small things are noticeable to anyone: they made the symbols and names almost too obvious but its the hidden meaning of "innocence" that they wanted to portray.

Halfway through the movie Ryan Phillip wants to quit the FBI and he goes to see Jesuit Dad, who tells him that he's proud of him and that he's serving his country and to always get back on the boat again – never quit. Could this be a message for our troops overseas? (There is a picture on the wall of 2 men on the boat)

Still-shots of the Catholic Crucifix and the Mary statue sitting on the desk, kneeling and praying under the Crucifix on the wall and even being in the Jesuit bookstore, Andrews Sisters music being mentioned, going to the Catholic information center, etc. Praying in confession, all these things are in the open to portray a message of innocence. Ryan Phillippe has an argument with his Protestant-East German wife and she feels that he's placing a guilt trip on her because she's not the perfect pregnant Catholic etc. The message here is that the Jesuits are everything marsh-mellowed and innocent. Of course, the evil Russian Communist was able to fool Ryan Phillippe into thinking he was a cool guy because he was an innocent Jesuit who tells Ryan Phillippe to "Pray More".

Near the end of the movie, Ryan tells the Russian Spy that he needs help to make his wife feel more comfortable in the Catholic Church etc. Also the Russian Spy writes in his letters to his comrades that the US government is like a little child. (nothing could be further from the truth than that). Also at the end of the movie the SPY is asked why he did it, and he answered in such a way that implies that one should not be asking "WHY" these things happen.

Certainly not a difficult one to encrypt - a 10 year old could do this but I'm sure there is lots hidden that I missed on the first round. I don't like to watch movies as much I did before because they are all propaganda-trash, excepting a few.

So unoriginal and mindless, I would have given this movie 1/10 but I decided on 2/10 for the fact that the girls think Ryan looks cute in a suit.

Sputnik - March 29, 2007 07:41 PM (GMT)

I liked it.

Besides, it's based on a true story. From what i read about it online the ingredients are all there..

Id give it a def. 7/10 ;)

Title: Jesuit Temporal Coadjutoress Nancy Pelosi

Description: Nicholas Rivera

CRAIG-OXLEY - March 28, 2007 11:30 PM (GMT)

I learned yesterday from this article that Nancy Pelosi personally invited the President of the Order's University of San Francisco Stephen A. Privett SJ to give the Invocation for her Swearing-In as Speaker of the House. Pelosi attended several masses prior to that day with her family. <http://media.www.gonzagabulletin.com/media...ml?sourcedomain>

<http://www.jesuitscalifornia.org/NETCOMMUN...d=572&srcid=563>

Quote from the article: "I really enjoyed meeting members of the Congress like Anna Eshoo and [Prince Hall Freemason] Charlie Rangle," said Privett. "Everyone I met was warm, welcoming and upbeat. I feel that the House is in good hands, that the Democrats will work hard to counter the narrow partisanship that has characterized Congress to this point in an effort to address issues that really concern all of us."

Being present at this historical moment ranks at the top of Privett's 47 years as a Jesuit.

"It was all the more meaningful for me knowing that the United States' first woman Speaker of the House was Nancy Pelosi from San Francisco, who has a strong relationship with USF and the Jesuits."

According to the article "Congress has more religious diversity than ever before" "Catholics remain the largest denominational group in Congress, with 155 members -- 25 in the Senate and 130 in the House. But there are fewer Catholic Republicans in both houses since the 109th Congress and many more Catholic Democrats"

In the last Senate, Catholic members were nearly evenly split between the parties, with 11 Republicans and 13 Democrats. Now there are 9 Catholic Republicans and 16 Catholic Democrats in the Senate.

In the House at the start of the 109th Congress, there were 129 Catholics -- 57 Republicans and 72 Democrats. Although the total number of House Catholics in the 110th Congress is nearly the same at 130, the current group includes 42 Republicans and 88 Democrats.

Even Rep. Keith Ellison, D-Minn., a Muslim who was sworn in as a member of Congress using a Quran once owned by President Thomas Jefferson, was raised a Catholic. He became a Muslim while in college at Wayne State University in Detroit.

Ellison's mother, Clida Ellison, recently told The Associated Press that she remains a practicing Catholic and attends Mass daily. But she said the controversy over her son's decision to be sworn in using the Quran rather than a Bible was a good thing, "because many people in America are going to learn what the diversity of America is all about."

The two new Buddhist members of Congress -- Democratic Reps. Mazie Hirono of Hawaii and Hank Johnson of Georgia -- have not spoken publicly about their religion.

Hirono is among 54 members of the 110th Congress who attended Jesuit institutions of higher education, according to a list compiled by the Association of Jesuit Colleges and Universities . She earned her law degree in 1978 at Georgetown University Law School in Washington.

The number represents a nearly 15 percent increase compared to the 109th Congress, in which 47 of the 535 members were alumni of Jesuit colleges or universities , the association said.

Jesuit Father Charles Currie, association president, called the latest figures "an important reminder that a Jesuit education is meant to lead to lives of leadership and service."

"We are proud that this goal is realized at the highest levels of public service, as well as in countless other ways across the country and around the world," he added in a statement.

With the election of Sen. Harry Reid, D-Nev., as Senate majority leader, the 110th Congress also marks the highest congressional leadership position ever achieved by a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, also known as Mormons.

I watched on C-SPAN as the votes were taken for Speaker of the House and it was between Roman Catholic Pelosi and Roman Catholic Jesuit-trained K of C John Boehner. The other key leaders in the House today are Harry Reid, a Mormon, and Roy Blunt a "Baptist" and Freemason. This is no coincidence. The Jesuits control the Congress from Georgetown University and in the coming years that fact will be all too clear.

Pelosi Is Just Another Paid Vatican Shill?

Why Won't She Answer Questions or Consider Vatican and Jesuit Involvement in New World Order?

By Greg Szymanski

Mar. 29, 2007

<http://www.arcticbeacon.com/articles/29-Mar-2007.html>

The Arctic Beacon months ago went on the record saying the crowning of Rep. Nancy Pelosi (D-Ca) as House Speaker would bring no changes and nothing good for the American people.

In fact, when Pelosi was elevated to the top post in the U.S. House, the Arctic Beacon asked her to respond to serious questions about the Vatican's control over foreign and domestic policy.

Of course, Pelosi like the other Vatican paid shills in the U.S. House and Senate, refused to respond. And her refusal means she is just another one of the "big time Vatican puppets" having been paid off to keep the truth from the American people while selling out her country for her loyalty to Rome and the New World Order.

To show Pelosi's Vatican connection the following research was provided by true patriots, trying to awaken Americans to the real beast residing in Rome.

And after reading the following information ask why, when considering who is really behind the New World Order, The Vatican connection is never mentioned.

Also ask: if there exists free and honest debate in this country, why are the Vatican's tentacles of evil never mentioned even though it has been well documented throughout history by bloodshed and genocide.

Here are some facts provided to the Arctic Beacon by Nick Rivera about Pelosi's Vatican connection as well as other facts regarding Vatican influence within the halls of the U.S. government:

"I learned yesterday from this article that Nancy Pelosi personally invited the President of the Order's University of San Francisco Stephen A. Privett SJ to give the Invocation for her Swearing-In as Speaker of the House. Pelosi attended several masses prior to that day with her family.

From an early beginning to a revolution, a chess piece of game players involved in the most obscene religious dictatorship ever known to the United States of America.

“Lind, Michael. Up From Conservatism: Why the Right is Wrong for America. New York: Free Press Paperbacks, 1997. 295 pages.

Michael Lind was just another name on our NameBase list of Heritage Foundation internal phone numbers in 1988, and on the Council on Foreign Relations membership roster, until he bolted from the neocons and decided that he'd rather be a liberal again. If only the liberals weren't messed up even worse than the conservatives! Earlier at Yale, he was a Humphrey- Johnson liberal. Then he embraced conservatism and became a protege of William F. Buckley, Jr. Having since parted company with Buckley, Lind is now an editor for liberal Harper's magazine. Is this guy confused, or what? Not really. He was merely born in 1962, meaning that he cannot understand the 1960s. With the 1960s under your belt, American politics since then is still impossible to digest, but at least it's somewhat less confusing.

Lind makes a valiant effort to put it together, in the course of which he makes some trenchant observations about today's conservatives and liberals, and where each falls short. The conservatives betray genuine populism and cozy up to Wall Street, by tricking their populist base into thinking that culture wars are more important than the disappearing middle class. And the politically-correct liberals are so absurd that they're almost extinct. Meanwhile, nothing is happening in the reasonable middle. Hang in there, Lind. You'll never get drafted, but the 1960s will return in another guise.

Jeffreys-Jones, Rhodri. The CIA and American Democracy. New Haven CT: Yale University Press, 1989. 338 pages.

Ordinarily, any book from Yale University Press about the CIA has two strikes against it, because of Yale's long-standing relationship with intelligence elites. But Jeffreys-Jones, from his perspective at the University of Edinburgh, does a decent job of recounting CIA history from the published record. This is a scholarly work that is based on manuscripts, official documents, books, articles, memoirs, and oral history interviews, many of which are from presidential libraries and other special collections. The bibliography alone amounts to twenty pages of small print. It is not an investigative book in the journalistic sense, and there's evidence of only a handful of interviews by the author.

Most of this book covers familiar ground. There is more material on Congressional relations than on covert operations, and the odd tidbit about some obscure staff aide occasionally sheds new light. There is also material on the machinations behind the founding of the CIA, and Truman's position on this issue, that cannot be found in other books. The author's conclusions are mushy, which is par for academia: yes, there's a contradiction between democracy and the CIA; yes, the abuses of the power have been serious; no, don't blame the CIA but instead blame presidential politics; yes, we need covert operations; and yes, it's a dilemma that is sure to continue.

THE DRUG TRUST

In 1987, the eighteen largest drug firms were ranked as follows:

1, Merck (U.S.) $4.2 billion in sales.

2. Glaxo Holdings (United Kingdom) $3.4 billion.

3. Hoffman LaRoche (Switzerland) $3.1 billion.

4. Smith Kline Beckman (U.S.) $2.8 billion.

5. Ciba-Geigy (Switzerland) $2.7 billion. 6. Pfizer (U.S.) $2.5 billion (Standard & Poor's gives sales as $4 billion).

6. Pfizer (U.S.) $2.5 billion (Standard & Poor's gives its sales as $4 billion.)

7. Hoechst A. G. (Germany) $2.5 billion (Standard & Poor's lists its sales as $38 Billion Deutschmarks).

8. American Home Products (U.S.) $2.4 billion ($4.93 billion according to Standard & Poor's).

9. Lilly (U.S.) $2.3 billion ($3.72 billion Standard & Poor's).

10. Upjohn (U.S.) $2 billion.

11. Squibb (U.S.) $2 billion.

12. Johnson & Juhnson (U.S.) $1.9 billion.

13. Sandoz (Switzerland) $1.8 billion.

14. Bristol Myers (U.S.) $1.6 billion.

15. Beecham Group (United Kingdom) $1.4 billion (Standard & Poor's gives $1.4 billion in sales of the U.S. subsidiary $2.6 billion pounds sterling as overall income).

Johnson & Juhnson

16. Bayer A. G. (Germany) $1.4 billion (Standard & Poor's gives the figure as $45.9 billion Deutschmarks).

17. Syntex (U.S.) $1.1 billion.

18. Warner Lambert (U.S.) $1.1 billion (Standard & Poor's gives the figure as $3.1 billion).

Thus we find that the United States still maintains an overwhelming lead in the production and sale of drugs. In the United States, the sale of prescription drugs rose in 1987 by 12.5% to $27 billion.

Eleven of the eighteen leading firms are located in the United States; three in Switzerland; two in Germany; and two in the United Kingdom. Nutritionist T.J. Frye notes that the Drug Trust in the United States is controlled by the Rockefeller group in a cartel relationship with I.G. Farben of Germany. In fact, I.G. Farben was the largest chemical concern in Germany during the 1930s, when it engaged in an active cartel agreement with Standard Oil of New Jersey. The Allied Military Government split it up into three companies after World War II, as part of the "anti-cartel" goals of that period, which was not unlike the famed splitting up of Standard Oil itself by court order, while the Rockefellers maintained controlling interest in each of the new companies. In Germany, General William Draper, of Dillon Read investment bankers, unveiled the new decree from his office in the I.G. Farben building. Henceforth, I.G. Farben would exist no more; instead, three companies would emerge-Bayer, of Leverkusen; BASF at Ludwigshafen; and Hoescht, near Franfort. Each of the three spawns is now larger than the old I.G. Farben; only ICI of England is larger. These firms export more than half of their product. BASF is represented in the United States by Shearman and Sterling, the Rockefeller law firm of which William Rockefeller is a partner.

The world's No. 1 drug firm, Merck, began as an apothecary shop in Darmstadt, Germany, in 1668. Its president, John J. Horan, is a partner of J.P. Morgan Company, and the Morgan Guaranty Trust. He attended a Bilderberger meeting in Rye, New York, May 10-12, 1985. In 1953, Merck absorbed another large drug firm, Sharp & Dohme. At that time, Oscar Ewing the central figure in the government Floridation promotion for the Aluminum Trust, was secretary of the Merck firm, his office then being at One Wall Street, New York

. Directors of Merck include John T. Connor, who began his business career with Cravath, Swaine and Moore, the law firm for Kuhn,Loeb Company; Connor then joined the Office of Naval Research, became Special Assistant to the Secretary of the Navy 1945-47, became president of Merck, then president of Allied Stores from 1967-80, then chairman of Schrodgers, the London banking firm. Connor is also a director of a competing drug firm, Warner Lambert, director of the media conglomerate Capital Cities ABC, and director of Rockefeller's Chase Manhattan Bank. Each of the major drug firms in the United States has at least one director with close Rockefeller connections, or with a Rothschild bank. Another director of Merck is John K. McKinley, chief operating officer of Texaco; he is also a director of Manufacturers Hanover Bank, which Congressional records identify as a major Rothschild bank. McKinley is also a director of the aircraft firm, Martin Marietta, Burlington Industries, and is a director of the Rockefeller-controlled Sloan Kettering Cancer Institute. Another Merck director is Ruben F. Mettler, chairman of the defense contractor TRW, Inc.; he was formerly chief of the Guided Missiles Department at Ramo-Wooldridge, and has received the human relations award from the National Conference of Christians and Jews-he is also a director of Bank of America.

Other directors of Merck include Frank T. Cary, who was chairman of IBM for many years; he is also a director of Capital Cities ABC, and partner of J.P. Morgan Company; Lloyd C. Elam, president of Meharry Medical College, Nashville, TN, the nation's only black medical college. Elam is also a director of the American Psychiatric Association, Nashville City Bank, and the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation, which gives him a close connection to Rockefeller's Sloan Kettering Cancer Center; Marian Sulzberger Heiskell, heiress of the New York Times fortune. She was married to Orville Dryfoos, the paper's editor, who died of a heart attack during a newspaper strike; she then married Andrew Heiskell in a media merger-he was chairman of Time magazine and had been with the Luce organization for fifty years. She is also a director of Ford Motor. Heiskell is director of People for the American Way

, a political activist group, chairman of the New York Public Library, and the Book-of-the-Month Club. Also on the board of Merck is a family member, Albert W. Merck; Reginald H. Jones, born in England, formerly chairman of General Electric, now chairman of the Board of Overseers, Wharton School of Commerce, director of Allied Stores and General Signal Corporation; Paul G. Rogers, who served in Congress from the 84th to the 95th Congresses; he was chairman of the important subcommittee on health; in 1979, he joined the influential Washington law firm and lobbyist, Hogan and Hartson. He is also a director of the American Cancer Society, the Rand Corporation, and Mutual Life Insurance.

Thus we find that the world's No. 1 drug firm has directors who are partners of J.P. Morgan Company, one who is director of Rockefeller's Chase Manhattan Bank and who is director of the Rothschild Bank, Manufacturers Hanover; most of the directors are connected with vital defense industries, and interlock with other defense firms. On the board of TRW, of which Ruben Mettler is chairman, is William H. Krome George, former chairman of ALCOA, and Martin Feldstein, former economic advisor to President Reagan. The major banks, defense firms, and prominent political figures interlock with the CIA and the drug firms.

The No. 2 drug firm is Glaxo Holdings, with $3.4 billion in sales. Its chairman is Austin Bide; deputy chairman is P. Girolami, who is a director of National Westminster Bank, one of England's Big Five. Directors are Sir Alistair Frame, Chairman of Rio Tinto Zinc, one of the three firms which are the basis of the Rothschild fortune; Frame is also on the board of another Rothschild holding, the well known munitions firm, Vickers; also Plessey, another defense firm which recently bid on a large contract with the U.S. Army; Frame is president of Britoil, and director of Glaxo are Lord Fraser of Kilmarnock, who was deputy chairman of the Conservative Party (now the ruling party in England) from 1946 to 1975, when he joined Glaxo; Lord Fraser was also a member of the influential Shadow cabinet; B.D. Taylor, counselor of Victoria College of Pharmacy and chairman of Wexham Hospital; J.M. Raisman, chairman of Shell Oil UK Ltd., another Rothschild controlled firm. Lloyd's Bank, one of the Big Five, British Telecommunications, and the Royal Committee on Environmental Pollution; Sir Ronald Arculus, retired from Her Majesty's Diplomatic Service after a distinguished career; he had served in San Francisco, New York, Washington and Paris; he was then appointed Ambassador to Italy, and was the UK Delegate to the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea, which sought to apportion marine wealth among the have-not countries: Arculus is now a director of Trusthouse Forte Hotels, and London and Continental Bankers; and Professor R. G. Dahrendorf, one of the world's most active sociologists and a longtime Marxist propagandist. Dahrendorf, a director of the Ford Foundation since 1976, is a graduate of the London School of Economics, professor of sociology at Hamburg and Tubingen, parliamentary Secretary of State at the Foreign Office, West Germany since 1976, and has received honors from Senegal, Luxemburg and Leopold II. The Rothschilds apparently appointed Dahrendorf a director of Glaxo because of his emphatic Marxist pronouncements. The European director of the Ford Foundation, he claims, in his book, "Marx in Perspective," that Marx is the greatest factor in the emergence of modern society. Dahrendorf's principal contribution to sociology has been his well-advertised concept of the "new man," whom he has dubbed "homo sociologicus," a being who has been transformed by socialism into a person whose every distinctive feature, including racial characteristics, have disappeared. He is the modern robot, a uniform creature who can easily be controlled by the force of world socialism. Dahrendorf is the apostle of the modern faith that there are no racial differences in any of the various races of mankind; he denounces any mention of "superiority" or of differing skills as "ideological distortion." Dahrendorf is a prominent member of the Bilderbergers; he attended their meeting at Rye, New York from May 10-12, 1985. He is professor of Sociology at Konstanz University, as well as his other previously mentioned posts. Thus we find that the world's No. 2 drug firm is directed by two of the Rothschild's family's most trusted henchmen and by the world's most outspoken explicator of Marxism.

The world's No. 3 drug firm, Hoffman LaRoche of Switzerland, is still controlled by members of the Hoffman family, although there have been rumors of takeover attempts in recent years. The firm was founded by Fritz Hoffman, who died in 1920. The firm's first big seller was Siropin in 1896; its sales of Valium and Librium now amount to one billion dollars a year; its subsidiary spread the dangerous chemical, dioxin, over the Italian town, Seveso, which cost $150 million to clean up in a 10 year campaign. His son's widow, Maya Sacher, is now married to Paul Sacher, a musician who is conductor of the Basle Chamber Orchestra. Hoffman had added his wife's name, LaRoche, to the family company, as is the custom in Europe; the Hoffmans still control 75% of the voting shares. The Sachers have one of the world's most expensive art collections, Old Masters and modern paintings. In 1987, Hoffman LaRoche tried to take over Sterling Drug, a venture in which they were aided by Lewis Preston, chairman of J.P. Morgan Company; he also happened to be Sterling's banker. In the ensuing brouha-ha, Preston decided to retire. Eastman Kodak then bought Sterling, with backing from the Rockefellers. The chairman of Hoffman LaRoche is Fritz Gerber, a 58 year old Swiss army colonel. The son of a carpenter, he became a lawyer, then chairman of Hoffman LaRoche. Gerber is also a director of Zurich Insurance; thus he is associated with Switzerland's two biggest firms; he draws a salary of 2.3 million Swiss francs per year, plus a $1.7 million working agreement with Glaxo holdings. Hoffman LaRoche received a great deal of publicity in April 1988 because of unfavorable revelations about its acne drug, "Accutane" after the Food and Drug Administration publicized figures that the drug had caused 1000 spontaneous abortions, 7000 other abortions, and other side effects such as joint aches, drying of skin and mucous membranes, and hair loss. Hoffman LaRoche was faulted by FDA for purposely omitting women, and particularly pregnant women, from the studies on which it based requests for approval of Accutane. The company was aware that Accutane caused serious effects when taken during pregnancy. Hard on the heels of the Accutane revelations, Hoffman LaRoche made new headlines in the Wall Street Journal with Congressman Ted Weiss's demand, reported on May 6, 1988, that a criminal investigation be launched of the forty deaths, recorded since 1986, caused by taking Versed, Hoffman LaRoche's tranquilizer which is a chemical cousin of its best selling drug, Valium.

The No. 4 drug firm, Smith Kline Beckman, banks with the Mellon Bank. Its chairman, Robert F. Dee, is a director of General Foods, Air Products and Chemical and the defense firm, United Technologies, which interlocks with Citibank. Directors are Samuel H. Ballam, Jr., chairman of the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania, director of American WaterWorks, Westmoreland Coal Company, General Coal Company, INA Investment Securities, chairman of CIGNA's High Yield Fund, and Geothermal Resources International; Francis P. Lucier, chairman of Black & Decker; Donald P. McHenry former U.S. Ambassador to the UN, 1979-81, now international advisor to the Council on Foreign Relations, Trustee of Brookings Institution and the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, Ford Foundation, and the super- secret Ditchley Foundation set up by W. Averell Harriman during World War II; McHenry is also a director of Coca Cola and International Paper; Carolyn K. Davis, who was dean of the school of nurses at University of Michigan 1973-75, Health and Human Services since 1981; she is also a director of Johns Hopkins. Other directors of Smith Kline are Andrew L. Lewis, Jr. chairman of Union Pacific, the basis of the Harriman fortune; he is director of Ford Motor, trustee in bankruptcy Reading Company, former chairman of Reagan's transition team and deputy director of the Republican National Committee; R. Gordon McGovern, chairman of Campbell Soup; Ralph A. Pfeiffer, Jr., chairman of IBM World Trade Corporation, American International Far East Corporation, Riggs National Bank, and chairman U.S.-China Trade Commission; he is also vice chairman of the key foreign policy operation, Center for Strategic and International Studies, which was founded by Jeane Kirkpatrick's husband, Evron Kirkpatrick of the CIA.

The world's No. 5 drug firm, Ciba-Geigy of Switzerland, does a billion dollar a year business in the United States, and operates ten drug factories here. Pfizer,

No. 6 in size of the world's drug firms, Pfizer

, does $4 billion a year, according to Standard & Poor's; the company banks with Rockefeller's Chase Manhattan Bank. Pfizer's chairman, Edmund T. Pratt, Jr., was controller of IBM from 1949 to 1962; he is now a director of Chase Manhattan Bank, General Motors, International Paper, the Business Council and the Business Roundtable, two Establishment organizations; he is also chairman of the Emergency Committee for American Trade. Pfizer's president is Gerald Laubach, who joined Pfizer in 1950; he is a member of the council of Rockefeller University, and director of CIGNA, Loctite, and General Insurance Corporation; Barber Conable is director of Pfizer; he was a Congressman representing New York from 1965 to 1985, which would indicate a close Rockefeller connection; Conable is now president of the World Bank. Other directors of Pfizer are Joseph B. Flavin, chief operating officer of the 2 1/2 billion a year Singer Company. Flavin was with IBM World Trade Corporation from 1953-1967, then president of Xerox; he is now with the Committee for Economic Development, Stamford Hospital, Cancer Research Foundation, and the National Council of Christians and Jews; Howard C. Kauffman, has been president of EXXON since 1975; he was previously regional coordinator in Latin America for EXXON, then president of Esso Europe in London; he is also a director of Celanese and Chase Manhattan Bank; his office is at One Rockefeller Plaza; James T. Lynn, who was general counsel for the U.S. Department of Commerce from 1969-71, then Under Secretary of State 1971-73, and then secretary of HUD 1973-75, succeeding George Romney in that post; Lynn was editor of the Harvard Law Review, then joined Jones, Day, Reavis and Pogue in 1960 (a large Washington lobbying firm); Lynn accompanied Peter Peterson, then Secretary of Commerce, formerly chairman of Kuhn, Loeb Company, to Moscow in 1972, to conclude a trade agreement with the Soviets; this agreement was concluded in October, 1972; John R. Opel, president of IBM, director of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, Time and the Institute for Advanced Study; Walter B. Wriston, chairman of Citicorp, director of General Electric, Chubb, New York Hospital, Rand Corporation and J. C. Penney. Other directors of Pfizer are Grace J. Fippinger, secretary-treasurer of the $10 billion a year NYNEX Corporation; she is an adviser to Manufacturers Hanover, the Rothschild Bank, director of Bear Stearns investment bankers, Gulf & Western Corporation, Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance and honorary member of the board of the American Cancer Society; Stanley O. Ikenberry, president of the University of Illinois, director of Harris Bankcorp, Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching; William J. Kennedy, chief operating officer of North Carolina Mutual Life, director of Quaker Oats (with Frank Carlucci, who is now Secretary of Defense), Mobil (with Alan Greenspan, who is now Chairman of the Federal Reserve System Board of Governors-Greenspan was a delegate to the Bilderberger meeting in Rye, New York, May 10-12, 1985); Paul A. Marks, chief of Sloan Kettering Cancer Center since 1980; he is a biologist, professor of human genetics at Cornell, and adjunct professor at Rockefeller University, visiting professor at Rockefeller University Hospital; he is also with National Institute of Health, Dreyfus Mutual Fund, director of cancer treatment at the National Cancer Institute, director of American Association for Cancer Research, served on the President's Cancer Panel from 1976 to 1979, and the Presidential Commission on the Accident at Three Mile Island he is a director of the $100 million Revson Foundation (cosmetics fortune), with Simon Ritkind and Benjamin Bittenweiser, whose wife was attorney for Alger Hiss while Bittenweiser was Assistant High Commissioner for occupied West Germany. Of the major drug firms, none shows more direct connection with the Rockefeller interests than Pfizer, which banks with the Rockefeller bank, Chase Manhattan, has as director Howard Kaufmann, president of Exxon, and Paul Marks of the Rockefeller controlled Sloan Kettering Cancer Center and Rockefeller Hospital. In most cases, only one Rockefeller connection is needed to assure control of a corporation.

The No. 7 in world ranked drug firms is Hoechst A. G. of Germany, a spinoff from I.G. Farben

, i.e., Rockefeller Warburg Rothschild control. It operates a number of plants in the U.S., including American Hoechst at Somerville, New Jersey, and Hoechst Fibers Company. Hoechst manufactures the widely used polyester fiber Trevira, antibiotic food additives for swine and broilers (Flavomycin), and other pharmaceuticals used in animal raising.

No. 8 in world ranking, American Home Products banks at the Rothschild Bank, Manufacturers Hanover, and does $3.8 billion a year ($4.93 according to Standard & Poor's). It became even larger by its recent purchase of A.H. Robins Drug Company of Richmond, VA. A.H. Robins had gone into bankruptcy after facing $2.5 billion in payments to some 200,000 women who had been injured by its Dalkon Shield, an intrauterine device. An inadequately tested vagina clamp caused severe damage to many women. A French firm, Sanofi, then attempted to buy the firm, but was beaten out when American Home decided to pay a premium price for the firm's well known brand names, Chapstick and Robitussin. American Home's CEO is John W. Culligan, who has been with the firm since 1937; he is a Knight of Malta, director of Mellon Bank, Carnegie Mellon University, American Standard, and Valley Hospital; president of American Home is John R. Stafford, director of the Rothschild Bank, Manufacturers Hanover; he was formerly general counsel for the No. 3 ranked drug firm, Hoffmann LaRoche, and partner of the influential law firm, Steptoe and Johnson. Directors are K. R. Bergethon of Norway, now president of Lafayette College; A. Richard Diebold; Paul R. Frohring, and head of the Pharmaceutical Division of the War Production Board from 1942 to 1946; he is now trustee of John Cabot College, Rome, overseer of Case Western Reserve University, Mercy Hospital, Navy League, and the Biscayne Yacht Club; William F. LaPorte, who is director of Manufacturers Hanover Trust, American Standard, B.F. Goodrich, Dime Savings Bank, and president of the Buck Hill Falls Company; John F. McGillicuddy, chairman of Manufacturers Hanover Bank, who recently replaced Lewis Preston of J.P. Morgan Company as director of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York (Preston had been criticized for his role in promoting a deal for Hoffman LaRoche while engaged as Sterling Drug's banker); John F. Torell III, president of the Manufacturers Hanover Trust and Manufacturers Hanover Corporation; H.W. Blades, who was formerly president of Wyeth Labs, and is now director of Provident Mutual Life Insurance, Wistar International, Philadelphia National Bank, and Bryn Mawr Hospital; Robin Chandler Duke, of the tobacco family; Edwin A. Gee, director of Air Products and Chemical, International Paper, Bell & Howell; he is now chairman of International Paper and Canadian International Paper; Robert W. Sarnoff, son of David Sarnoff, who founded the RCA empire; and William Wrigley, chairman of the Wrigley Corporation, director of Texaco and the Boulevard National Bank of Chicago.

No. 9 in world ranking is Eli Lilly Company, whose chairman Richard D. Wood is also director of Standard Oil of Indiana, Chemical Bank New York, Elizabeth Arden, IVAC Corporation, Cardiac Pacemakers Inc. , Elanco Products, Dow Jones, Lilly Endowment, Physio-Control Corporation, and the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research, a supposedly rightwing thinktank in Washington where Jeane Kirkpatrick reigns supreme. Directors of Lilly are Steven C. Beering, born in Berlin, Germany, now president of Purdue University; heserved on numerous medical boards, Diabetes Association, Endocrine Association and is a director of Arvin Industries; Randall H. Tobias, is a director of the Bretton Woods Committee, has been with Bell Telephone Labs since 1964, now director of AT&T and Home Insurance Corporation; Robert C. Seamans, Jr. who was Secretary of the Air Force from 1969-1973,now director of the Carnegie Institute, Smithsonian Museum and National Geographic Society (with Laurance Rockefeller); He is also a director of Combustion Engineering, a firm which is engaged in a number of deals with the Soviet Union, Putnams Funds, a New England powerhouse investment firm; other directors of Lilly are J. Clayton LaForce, a Fulbright scholar, now director of the Rockefeller-funded National Bureau for Economic Research, and is dean of the graduate school of management at the University of California. LaForce is an influential member of the secretive Mont Pelerin Society, which represents the Viennese school of economics, a Rothschild sponsored enterprise which features Milton Friedman as its mouthpiece-it is actually a pseudo-rightwing think- tank run by William Buckley and the CIA. LaForce is also a trustee of the pseudo rightwing thinktank, Hoover Institution of Stanford University, which is run by two directors of the Rockefeller-funded League for Industrial Democracy, the leading Trotskyite thinktank; Sidney Hook and Seymour Martin Lipset. Other directors of Lilly are J. Paul Lyet II, chairman of the giant defense firm Sperry Corporation-two-thirds of its contracts are with government agencies; Lyet is also a director of Eastman Kodak, which has just purchased Sterling Drug; he is also a director of Armstrong World Industries NL Industries and the Continental Group; Alva Otis Way III, president of American Express, director of Schroder Bank and Trust, formerly chairman-also director of Shearson Lehman, which now incorporates Kuhn, Loeb Company and Lehman Brothers, director of Firemans Fund Insurance Company and American International Banking Corporation, Warnex Ampex Communications Corporation; C. William Verity, Jr., whose father founded Armco Steel; a Yale graduate, Verity is now chairman of Armco; he was recently appointed Secretary of Commerce to replace fellow Yale man Malcolm Baldrige a director of the defense firmScovill Manufacturing-Baldrige had fallen off of a horse. Verity is also a director of Chase Manhattan Bank, Mead Corporation and Taft Broadcasting, Verity was chosen as Secretary of Commerce because of his longtime record of agitation on behalf of the super-secret group, the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Trade & Economic Council, also known as USTEC , whose records are classified as Top Secret-several lawsuits are now under way to force the government to release USTEC documents under the Freedom of Information Act, but so far government attorneys have fought off all attempts to find out what this group is doing. Supposedly a cordial group of well-meaning American businessmen meeting with their smiling Soviet counterparts, USTEC was the brainchild of a top KGB official, who promoted it at the 1973 summit meeting between President Nixon and Brezhnev. The go-between was Donald Kendall of Pepsicola, who had just concluded a major trade deal with Russia; part of the price was Kendall's selling USTEC to the White House Team. Without Kendall, USTEC might never have gotten off the ground. The real goal of USTEC was voiced by H. Rowan Gaither head of the Ford Foundation, when he was interviewed by foundation investigator, Norman Dodd. Gaither complained about the bad press the Ford Foundation was receiving, claiming it was unjustified. "Most of us here," he exclaimed in self-exculpation, "were at one time or another, active in either the OSS or the State Department, or the European Economic Administration. During those times, and without exception, we operated under directives issued from the White House, the substance of which was to the effect that we should make every effort to alter life in the United States so as to make possible a comfortable merger with the Soviet Union." [Don's note: Better read that last sentence a few times!] USTEC is an important step in the merger program.

Alva Way

, president of American Express serves on the board of Eli Lilly with C. William Verity. Way's fellow executive, James D. Robinson III, who is chairman of American Express, is a prime mover in USTEC, as is Robert Roosa, partner in Brown Brothers Harriman investment banking firm, who is executive officer of the Trilateral Commission. Other important USTEC members are Edgar Bronfman, head of the World Zionist Congress, chairman of Seagrams, the Bronfman family firm, and controlling a sizeable part of DuPont's stock, 21%; Maurice Greenberg, chairman of American International Group; Dr. Armand Hammer, longtime friend of the Soviet Union, and Dwayne Andreas, grain tycoon who is head of Archer-Daniels-Midland Corporation. Andreas, who financed CREEP, the organization which brought about the resignation of Richard Nixon from the presidency of the United States, has on his board Robert Strauss, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller. In 1972, a meeting was called in Washington at the ultra-exclusive F. Street Club, which had long been the secret meeting place for the top wheelers and dealers in Washington. Donald Kendall had invited David Rockefeller, who had opened a branch of Chase Manhattan in

Red Square, Moscow

, Helmut Sonnenfeldt of the State Department, who reputedly had been Henry Kissinger's "control" when Kissinger came to the United States as a double agent under Sonnenfeldt's patronage, and Georgi Arbatov, the well known Soviet propagandist in the United States. Arbatov told the group who Soviet Russia wanted on the board of the prospective organization, which became USTEC. He wanted Dr. Armand Hammer, Reginald Jones of General Electric, Frank Cary of IBM; and Irving Shapiro, head of DuPont. USTEC's ostensible purpose was to promote trade between the U.S. and Russia; its real purpose was to rescue the floundering Soviet economy and save its leaders from a disastrous revolution. The U.S. offered high technology, grain and military goods; the Russians offered to continue the Communist system.

The world's tenth largest drug firm is Upjohn, which is heavily into the production of agricultural chemicals such as Asgrow. Upjohn has now been taken over by the leading defense firm, Todd Shipyards, whose directors include Harold Eckman, a director of W. R. Grace, the Bank of New York, Centennial Life Insurance Company, Home Life Insurance Company-he is the chairman of Atlantic Mutual Insurance Company, and Union de Seguros of Mexico: Raymond V. O'Brien, Jr., chairman of Emigrant Savings Bank of New York, and the International Shipholding Corporation; R. T. Parfet, Jr., who is chairman of Upjohn, director of Michigan Bell Telephone; Lawrence C. Hoff, who is chairman of the National Foundation for Infectious Diseases, and the American Foundation for Pharmaceutical Education; he is on the board of Sloan Kettering Cancer Institute, and was Under Secretary of Health at HEW from 1974-77; he is director of the National Heart & Lung Institute, and the U.S. Public Health Service Pharmacy Board; P. H. Bullen, who was with IBM from 1946-71, now operates as Bullen Management Company; Donald F. Homig, professor and director of the Interdisciplinary Progress in Health at the Harvard University School of Public Health; he is a director of Westinghouse Electric, and was group leader at Los Alamos in the development of the atomic bomb; he was special adviser in science at the U.S. Public Health Service from 1964 to 1969; he has received Guggenheim and Fullbright fellowships; Preston S. Parish, chairman of the executive committee at Upjohn, is a trustee of Williams College, Bronson Methodist Hospital, chairman of trustees for the W.E. Upjohn Unemployment Corporation, chairman of Kal-Aero, American National Holding Company and co-chairman of the Food and Drug Law Institute; William D. Directors of Squibb include J. Richardson Dilworth, the longtime financial trustee for all the members of the Rockefeller family. Dilworth married into the wealthy Cushing family, and was a partner of Kuhn, Loeb Company from 1946 to 1958, when his partner, Lewis Strauss of Kuhn, Loeb, retired as financial advisor to the Rockefellers. million in agricultural chemicals and dyestuffs produced by its American factories. Sandoz owns Northrup King, the huge hybrid seed company, Viking Brass and other firms.

Sigler, chairman of the key policy corporation, Champion Paper, director of Chemical New York, Cabot Corporation, General Electric and RCA. Bristol-Myers is the 44th largest advertiser on the United States, with an annual expenditure of $344 million, mostly in television and advertising; this gives them a great deal of clout in dictating the content of programs. Bristol-Myers is now pushing its new tranquilizer, Buspar and its new anti-cholesterol drug, Questran, which it expects to gross at least $100 million a year each. The track record for anti-cholesterol drugs has revealed some disturbing side effects, such as liver damage and other "unforeseen" consequences.

Number 15 in world drug firm ranking is Beecham's Group of England, which specializes in human and veterinarian pharmaceuticals. Chairman of Beecham is Robert P. He is Commander of the Order of Orange Nassau, the super secret organization created to celebrate the establishment of William of Orange as King of England, and the subsequent chartering of the Bank of England. Beecham's American subsidiary does $500 million a year.

Number sixteen in world ranking is Bayer A.G. of Germany, one of the three spin-offs from I.G. Farben cartel after World War II. Set up under orders from the Allied Military Government, which was then dominated by General William Draper of Dillon Read investment bankers, Bayer is now larger than the original I.G. Farben. In 1977, Bayer bought Miles laboratories and Germaine Monteil Perfumes, in 1981, it bought Agfa Gevaert, another spinoff of American I.G. Farben, and in 1983 it bought Cutter Laboratories, a California firm which was famed as having been set up to protect the Rockefeller controlled drug firms in the great polio immunization wars. All of the faulty polio vaccine was said to have been produced by Cutter, freeing the Rockefeller firms from the threat of lawsuits. During the 1930s, Bayer operated Sterling Drug and Winthrop chemical companies in the United States as subsidiaries of the giant I.G. Farben cartel. Winthrop Chemical's president was George G. Klumpp, who had married into the J.P. Morgan family. Klumpp was chief of the drug division of the Food and Drug Administration in Washington from 1935-1941, when he became president of Winthrop Chemical. He had also been professor of medicine at Yale Medical School. A director of Winthrop, E.S. Laurance Rockefeller was also a director of Winthrop Chemical, showing the close connection between the Rockefellers and I.G. Farben. Rockefeller was also a director of McDonnell Aircraft, Eastern Air Lines, Chase Manhattan Bank, International Nickel, International Basic Economy Corporation, Memorial Hospital, and the Rockefeller Brothers Fund.

The number seventeen world ranked drug firm is Syntex, a firm prominent in agribusiness. Its founder-chairman, George Rosencrantz of Budapest, gives his present address as 1730 Parque Via Reforma, Mexico DF 10; he left the country after a bizarre kidnap scheme involving his wife. Chairman and president of Syntex is Albert Bowers, born in Manchester, England, a Fulbright fellow and member of the council at Rockefeller University; directors are Martin Carton, executive vice president of Allen and Company, Wall Street investment firm which was rumored for years to be the investment arm of Meyer Lansky's five hundred million dollar fortune from Mafia activities. Carton is chairman of the finance committee of Fischbach Corporation, director of Rockcor Inc., Barco of California, Frank B. Hall & Company and Williams Electronics. Other directors of Syntex include Dana Leavitt, chairman of Leavitt Management Corporation, director of Pritchard Health Care, Chicago Title & Trust, United Artists, Transamerica, and chairman of Occidental Life Insurance; Leonard Marks, executive vice president of Castle & Cooke, the Hawaiian investment firm, director of the Times Mirror Corporation, Wells Fargo, Homestake Mining Company and California and Hawaii Sugar Company. Solomon was economist with the OPA when Richard Nixon began his career of government service there. Solomon then opened a canned soup firm in Mexico, Rosa Blanca, which he sold for many millions. He then returned to government service as an official of AID, president of the International Investment Corporation for Yugoslavia 1969-1972, was appointed Under Secretary for Monetary Affairs to the Treasury Department, 1977-1980, and succeeded Paul Volcker as president of the key money market bank, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, when David Rockefeller moved Volcker up to become chairman of the Federal Reserve Board of Governors in 1980. Solomon is also a director of Banca Commerciale Italiana. Syntex is remembered for the mercurial rise in its stock when it began to dump vast amounts of condemned drugs in backward overseas countries. Its profits skyrocketed, as did its stock.

Number eighteen in world ranking is the former empire of Elmer Bobst, Warner-Lambert. It is the number nineteen advertiser in the United States, spending $469 million a year. Chairman of Warner-Lambert is Joseph D. Williams, who is also director of Warner-Lambert subsidiary, Parke-Davis, whose acquisition went through only because Bobst had secured the presidency for his friend Richard Nixon. Williams is also a director of AT&T, J.C. Penney, Western Electric, Excello and Columbia University. He is chairman of the People to People Foundation. President of Warner-Lambert is Melvin R. Goodes, born in Canada, who was with the Ford Motor Company. Goodes was a fellow of the Ford Foundation and the Sears Roebuck Foundation. Warner-Lambert, which was built into a drug empire by the many Bobst acquisitions, now features Listerine mouthwash (26.9% alcohol), Bromo Seltzer, Dentyne, Schick razors, Sloan's Linament, and Prazepan tranquilizer. Burdett, director of ACF Industries, General Public Utilities (which has sales of $2.87 billion a year). Chairman of ACF is the noted raider, Carl Icahn, who is chairman of the subsidiary IC Holding Company. Also directors of Warner-Lambert are Richard A. Sullivan is a Knight of Malta, director of the Council on Foreign Relations and the Atlantic Council. Sterling Drug, maker of Bayer's aspirin, and spinoff from the I.G. Farben cartel, is another important drug firm. Its chairman, W. Clark Wescoe, is a director of the Tinker Foundation, John Simon Guggenheim Foundation, Phillips Petroleum and Hallmark Cards. He is chairman of the China Medical Board of New York, long the favorite charity of media tycoon Henry Luce. Wescoe is also trustee of the Samuel H. Kress Foundation and Columbia University, and controls billions in foundation funds. He is a director of the American Medical Association, the American College of Physicians, and the Council on Family Health. President of Sterling is John M. Muse, president of the very influential Tinker Foundation ($30 million). She is also director of Irving Bank, the American Council on Germany, ruling group of West Germany, Edmund A. Walsh School of Foreign Service, and Georgetown Center for Strategic and International Studies, all of which are the CIA preserves of veterans Evron and Jeane Kirkpatrick. She is also director of the Woodrow Wilson International Center and the Order of St. John of Jerusalem. Thus we find that Martha T. Muse is a veritable directory of top secret CIA worldwide operations. The Tinker Foundation, like the Jacob Kaplan Fund, is one of the super secret organizations which funnels money to the CIA for covert activities too bizarre to be submitted to any government operations center. The secretary of the Tinker Foundation is Raymond L. Brittenham, who was born in Moscow, educated at the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute in Berlin. He was general counsel for ITT, whose German operations were headed by Baron Kurt von Schroder, personal banker to Adolf Hitler. Brittenham was senior vice president for law at ITT, Bell Tel, Belgian International, Standard Electric vice president Standard Lorenz, Germany Harvard Law School, and partner of Lazard Freres investment bankers since 1980. in 1987, its cause was advanced by Lewis Preston, head of the J.P. Morgan empire, who was also banker for Sterling Drug. Publicity about his role caused his retirement for J.P. Morgan Company. Sterling was then bought by Eastman Kodak through funding from the Rockefellers. Kodak banks at Chase Lincoln First Bank, which is wholly owned by Chase Manhattan Bank. Kodak does $10 billion a year; its chairman is C. Kay Whitmore, who is a director of Chase Manhattan Bank and Chase Manhattan National Corporation. Directors of Kodak are Roger E. Anderson, former chairman of Continental Illinois Bank until it threatened to go under from mismanagement; he is now with Amsted Industries, a $700 million steel corporation. Wise award. Also on the board of Sterling are John G. Smale, chairman of Proctor and Gamble, director of General Motors; and Richard Mahoney, chairman of Monsanto Chemical Company. Because they are active in similar chemical formulations the leading chemical firms are also closely interlocked with the major drug producing firms. Richard Mahoney, director of Sterling Drug, is chairman of Monsanto Chemical, a $7 billion a year firm. Mahoney claims he is seeking a twenty per cent return on equity for Monsanto this year. He is also director of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, Centerre Bancorp, G. D. Searle. President of Monsanto is Earle H. Harbison, Jr., who was with the CIA from 1949 to 1967. Bamford, James. Body of Secrets: Anatomy of the Ultra-Secret National Security Agency from the Cold War through the Dawn of a New Century. New York: Doubleday, 2001. 721 pages.

When James Bamford wrote the world's first book on the National Security Agency in 1982, everyone was nervous if not furious. The NSA reclassified some declassified documents he used, and even Newsweek liberals were critical. The book itself was great, but unlike many media pundits, Bamford forgot to take his cues from the Cold War intelligence establishment. Nineteen years later, this new book is the toast of the town. Bamford didn't change; everyone and everything else did.

Two topics are very well done -- the chapter on the USS Liberty, which was attacked by Israel in 1967, and the information on NSA's computer systems and Echelon eavesdropping efforts. Less fascinating are the "little picture" chapters, based on interviews with former NSA globetrotters that make them seem more like adventurers than compulsive snoops. There's also a major scoop in this book about a 1962 plan called Operation Northwoods, which was approved by the Joint Chiefs but never implemented. The Chiefs wanted to launch a terrorism war against Americans themselves, so that it could be blamed on Cuba, thereby justifying retaliation. The phrase "conspiracy to commit treason against the American people" comes to mind, but for the Pentagon this was just business as usual.

Baum, Dan. Citizen Coors: An American Dynasty. New York: William Morrow, 2000. 367 pages.

The Coors name became famous first for its beer, and then for its parochialism. The family company in Golden, Colorado brewed a beer that sold itself without marketing. Coors was the first to use the all-aluminum can (and were also too proud to dump the press tab opener, which tended to cut your finger). Then their competitors, Anheuser-Busch and Miller, began spending upward of a billion dollars a year on ads. In the mid-1970s Coors went public when they could no longer pay their bills out of their cash reserve, and reluctantly hired some marketing people. Their job was not easy: Coors' history of vicious antiunionism led to an AFL-CIO boycott in the late 1970s that left a bad taste among blacks, feminists, unions, gays, and environmentalists that lasted well into the 1990s.

Meanwhile, Joseph Coors became political beginning with the Goldwater campaign in 1964. He bankrolled the Heritage Foundation in 1973, and finally his hero, Ronald Reagan, became president in 1981. Joe's money was behind some of the reactionary ethos of the 1980s -- when it wasn't fat checks for knee-jerk pundits, or for a right-wing TV network, it was $65,000 for Ollie North's contras. Eventually Joe and Holly split up (it turned out that for thirteen years he had been cheating on her), and Adolph Coors Company limped into the 1990s with the next generation in charge of whatever remained.

"Bellant, Russ. Old Nazis, the New Right and the Reagan Administration. 2nd ed. Political Research Associates, 1989. 96 pages. (Reissued as "Old Nazis, the New Right, and the Republican Party" and available for $9 from South End Press, 116 Saint Botolph Street, Boston MA 02115, Tel: 800-533-8478.)

This publication first appeared during the 1988 Bush campaign, and with the help of a series of articles in "Washington Jewish Week" it provoked a minor scandal. At issue was the close association of the Republican Party with Eastern European nationalists who had emigrated to the U.S. when their pro-Nazi regimes collapsed. Pages 17-34 are on the National Republican Heritage Groups (Nationalities) Council, pages 35-50 on the American Security Council, and a final chapter on other "domestic fascist networks."

Political Research Associates (1310 Broadway, Suite 201, Somerville, Massachusetts 02144, Tel: 617-666-5300) began in Chicago as Midwest Research in 1981, and moved to Cambridge with their new name in 1987. Russ Bellant (Detroit) and staff analyst Chip Berlet are the principal writers, and Jean Hardisty, Ph.D., is chairman of the board and the major donor. Besides Ms. Hardisty, other directors include Prof. Lucy Williams (Northeastern Law School, Boston), Rev. Sally A. Dries (Shamokin PA), Prof. Robin Gillies (Northwestern University), and Prof. Deborah Bright (Rhode Island School of Design). Their 10-year report is titled "Unmasking the Political Right." "Dr. Karl Gebhardt and Dr. Karl Clauberg were both known to have been together with Himmler just before his "suicide". After it was no longer possible to conduct experiments at Auschwitz because of advancing Russian Troops, Dr. Clauberg moved his operation to the womens' concentration camp at Ravensburg where he continued experimenting on women.

<http://www.shoah.dk/doctors/clauberg.htm>

Before WW2 Carl Clauberg was a well-respected Professor and gynaecological researcher with a successful medical career. But Clauberg, one of the most respected individuals in the German medical society, transformed at Auschwitz from a healer into a systematic killer.

Carl Clauberg was born in Wuppertal in 1898 into a craftsmen family. He participated in WWI as infantryman, later studied medicine and advanced to doctor-in-chief at the University gynaecological clinic in Kiel. He entered the NSDAP in 1933, and later he was appointed Professor for gynaecology at Koenigsberg University.

In December 1942, Carl Clauberg came to the death camp Auschwitz and received Block 10 for his medical experimental activities. At Auschwitz Professor Carl Clauberg injected chemical substances into wombs during his experiments. Thousands of Jewish and Gypsy women were subjected to this treatment. They were sterilized by the injections, producing horrible pain, inflamed ovaries, bursting spasms in the stomach, and bleeding. The injections seriously damaged the ovaries of the victims, which were then removed and sent to Berlin.”

Extended secrets of the UNION Bank owned by Prescott Bush

“Beaty, Jonathan and Gwynne, S.C. The Outlaw Bank: A Wild Ride Into the Secret Heart of BCCI. New York: Random House, 1993. 399 pages.

Of the several books in NameBase about the Bank of Credit and Commerce International, this is the spookiest, and has the most material about BCCI's connections to shadowy figures in organized crime and the international intelligence community (these days it's difficult to distinguish between the two). Surprisingly enough, the authors were Time magazine's point men on the story -- a magazine that doesn't often support the sort of journalism that won these authors two awards for persistent and fearless reporting. To top it off, we almost missed this book, and spotted it only by chance six years later, in a used bookstore. Most curious: another vapor-scandal, here today and gone tomorrow.

Author Jonathan Beaty was close to the people working on Robert Morgenthau's investigation of BCCI, just as the massive dimensions of BCCI's "Black Network" were beginning to unfold. The book is presented as something of a day-by-day thriller, with Beaty risking his neck while meeting sources in Middle Eastern countries, where the long, spooky arm of BCCI thuggery was strongest. Time magazine's generous expense account would get him in, but could Time's editors and the local U.S. ambassador get him out? This book is a fascinating look into the dark side of BCCI -- a side that doesn't come across in other reporting we've seen.

Journalist Sidney Blumenthal believes that changes within elite circles, rather than within the electorate at large, explain the dramatic upheavals of U.S. politics in the 80s. No "Republican realignment" has taken place among voters, who still favor progressive domestic policies. But the centrist U.S. political establishment has been outflanked by a conservative "counter-establishment" that operates outside traditional parties. Through its network of magazines, think-tanks, and other institutions, this "counter-establishment" keeps up a permanent blitz in favor of its ideological agenda. It has an "idea," or at least a catch-phrase, for every problem you can think of. Many of these ideas (e.g., supply-side economics, Star Wars, enterprise zones) don't work, but this matters far less than how they play in TV's war of images.

Much of Blumenthal's book consists of portraits of key counter-establishmentarians (e.g., Bill Buckley, Milton Friedman, the neocons) and their institutions. His joshy tone often seems out of synch with what he reports. But Blumenthal, a neoliberal and lately a Clinton man, believes that the U.S. right is headed for a crack-up -- brought on by its own contradictions. We shall see. -- Steve Badrich

“Christic Institute, P.O. Box 845, Malibu CA 90265. (Formerly located in Washington DC.)

Affidavit of Daniel P. Sheehan, January 31, 1987. 55 pages.

The Christic Institute was a public-interest litigation and policy center headed by lawyer Daniel Sheehan, his wife Sara Nelson, and William J. Davis, then a Jesuit priest. Before Iran-contra broke, Christic was suing selected ex-CIA cowboys on behalf of an injured party in a 1984 bombing at La Penca that targeted Eden Pastora, who had fallen out of favor with the CIA. After Iran-contra broke, Christic found itself with a head start on the mass-media wolf pack that was hungry for tidbits. Sheehan's charismatic speeches parlayed this advantage into a fervent national following.

Christic made massive improvements in the affidavit as they became familiar with the historical record by taking depositions, consulting experts, and doing research. In the beginning they had discovered a "secret team" that was all-powerful, and one wondered how any legal system could be expected to risk its own existence by ruling against such a team in a mere civil proceeding. Christic's situation is that of an optimistic Teilhardian liberalism that suddenly discovers the clandestine state, but doesn't know what to do about it. In spite of this, they've managed over the years to make a positive contribution.

“Broad, William J. Teller's War: The Top-Secret Story Behind the Star Wars Deception. New York: Simon & Schuster, 1992. 350 pages.

This is William Broad's second book on the Strategic Defense Initiative. His first book, "Star Warriors," looked at some of the young scientists working at Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, which does research and design for nuclear weapons. This book focuses on Edward Teller, the father of the H-bomb. Teller was 73 when Reagan assumed office, but he still ruled Livermore unofficially through the power of his reputation and personality.

In 1981, Teller was pessimistic about the chances of avoiding another world war, particularly if the Soviets beat the U.S. in the development of an antimissile defense. Teller's solution was to escalate the arms race further, and develop our own defense. The X-ray laser became his new passion. After convincing a gullible Reagan, Teller spent $25 billion on one of the biggest boondoggles in the history of science. Even if it had worked, many felt that it would have merely increased the risk of war.

When George Bush came into office, Teller abandoned the X-ray laser in favor of "Brilliant Pebbles," an equally unworkable concept that at least had the virtue of being non-nuclear. By now some of the best scientists have left Livermore Labs, which the Soviets have always called the "City of Death." That, presumably, makes Edward Teller the "Father of Death."

"Brownstein, Ronald and Easton, Nina. Reagan's Ruling Class: Portraits of the President's Top One Hundred Officials. New York: Pantheon Books, 1983. 760 pages. With an introduction by Ralph Nader.

The authors of this book are staff writers for Ralph Nader, whose Public Interest Research Group provided additional support. Of the 100 officials profiled, 57 agreed to interviews. Each profile includes a photo and averages five or more pages, which is broken down into a description of the responsibilities of the office, general biographical information, major issues surrounding the individual's performance in office so far, and a section detailing data from the individual's financial disclosure form filed with the Office of Government Ethics.

The authors spent a year collecting information, and the first edition went to press in 1982. In other words, this excellent compilation is only able to spotlight the first year of what turned out to be a disastrous twelve years of Republican mischief. As Nader points out, "Over a fourth of the top one hundred Reagan Administration officials have net worths of seven figures, or more.... Little of this wealth was inherited. The nouveau riche status may help to explain the absence of noblesse oblige which has characterized the paternalism of the Old Rich who entered politics." Ten years later the rich are richer, the middle class is poorer, and mainstream journalists are beginning to notice that they missed the biggest story of the 1980s.

"Choate, Pat. Agents of Influence. New York: Simon & Schuster (Touchstone Edition), 1991. 307 pages.

Pat Choate is a Texas farm boy who earned a Ph.D. in economics and went on to become a talking head on economic and trade policy. His interest in declining American competitiveness, and awareness of DC hardball politics, soon evolved into a critique of Japan's lobbying practices. He knew that Japan had the best competitor intelligence, the deepest pockets, and the perseverance to get anything they wanted from U.S. business in general, and from Washington in particular. But he didn't know that even before the book came out, Japan would put the screws on TRW, Inc. (where he worked as an analyst) and get him fired.

Lee Iacocca said that the first part of this book "made me mad; the last part made me scared." The first part describes the revolving door between U.S. officialdom and lobbying on the Japanese payroll. An appendix (pages 216-257) lists over 200 registered foreign agents who are former officials, along with the firms that employ them and the foreign clients they represent. (NameBase counts 60 names from this book who are also found on the membership roster of the Council on Foreign Relations, for what it's worth.) But what's scary is the sophisticated and pervasive influence- buying, propagandizing, politicking and lobbying by Japanese companies and officials. It makes Pearl Harbor look like a bathtub.

Rockefeller implants funding for the Opus illuminati style.

“Colby, Gerard with Dennett, Charlotte. Thy Will Be Done -- The Conquest of the Amazon: Nelson Rockefeller and Evangelism in the Age of Oil. New York: HarperCollins, 1995. 960 pages.

This book began when the authors traveled to the Amazon in 1976 to gather material on the Summer Institute of Linguistics, also known as the Wycliffe Bible Translators. SIL, founded in the 1930s by William Cameron (Cam) Townsend, was known throughout the Cold War for its pioneering linguistics and missionary work in remote places. Five years after their trip, the authors decided to put Nelson Rockefeller in the book. Rocky was involved with an Amazon development plan during World War II, when he was Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs. This position gave Rocky, with the help of Hoover's FBI, jurisdiction over all U.S. intelligence in Latin America. Rocky's spook credentials proved useful throughout his career.

The authors ended up with two books in one, as they weave between SIL and Rocky, using this as a literary hook to describe how American religious and economic imperialism conquered the Amazon. There are some loose funding connections between SIL and Rocky, but the major link is their willingness to encourage exploitive U. S. aid, including CIA covert actions, to keep the world safe for Jesus and Big Oil. In addition to the Amazon (Peru, Ecuador, Colombia, Venezuela, Brazil, Bolivia), some attention is paid to other places where SIL was active, such as Guatemala, Mexico, and Southeast Asia.

“Diamond, Sara. Spiritual Warfare: The Politics of the Christian Right. Boston: South End Press, 1989. 292 pages.

There is only one scholar in the world who specializes in investigative research on the U.S. religious right, so it's fortunate that she keeps good files. Diamond has a keen sense of the interplay between religion and U.S. development policy, domestic issues, and big business. She also writes on the topic of quasi-government organizations for various publications.

Beginning in the 1970s, religious cultism evolved from remnants of a disillusioned counterculture. This impulse soon became co-opted into an evangelicalism that had mainstream appeal; even Jimmy Carter was reborn. By the 1980s the backlash was completed with the emergence of a reactionary religious right that intended to help Reagan target the evil empire. There had always been a religious right, but now they had large numbers and official sanction.

This book covers the cultic aspects of the religious right (shepherding, charismatic movement), the political aspects (their broadcasting empire, Republican party connections, organizing around pro-family issues), and the international connection (missions, contra support network, refugee relief). It is extremely name-intensive and well-researched.

"Gill, Stephen. American Hegemony and the Trilateral Commission. New York: Cambridge University Press, 1991. 304 pages.

In recent years the guardians of correct thinking on the U.S. left decided that any discussion of transnational elites in connection with high-finance and trade is just another version of those old right-wing conspiracy theories about Jewish bankers. If you suspect that real issues are involved -- particularly now that CFR/Trilateralist/Bilderberger Bill Clinton was slipped into the White House while we weren't looking -- you have to follow the issue by reading right-wing literature.

But there's one progressive scholar who still takes it seriously. Stephen Gill, a professor of political science at York University in Toronto, interviewed 100 of the 325 Trilateral members. Then he applied a thick spread of Gramscian analysis to show that: 1) American power has NOT declined, rather it has just taken on a more internationalist outlook as capital becomes more mobile; 2) transnational capitalists are stronger than ever due to recent political and economic trends as well as the enormous strides in global communications technology; and 3) groups such as the Council on Foreign Relations, Trilateral Commission, and Bilderberg are consciously co-opting the top intellectuals so that internationalism, free trade, and the New World Order become the correct line for political pundits everywhere. It's worth thinking about the next time you are unemployed.

Robert Friedman, an award-winning writer on U.S. Jewish affairs and the radical right in Israel, is currently a staff writer at the Village Voice in New York. This book is mostly about events and personalities in Israel, but also includes substantial material about the U.S. Zionist lobby that supports the Israeli settlement movement. The connection between the two goes beyond financial support, as some of the settlers interviewed by Friedman are American ex-patriots, burnouts from the 1960s who went looking for the simple life of Good vs. Evil that eluded them in America when the counterculture collapsed.

These ex-patriot hippies were given citizenship, massive subsidies, and Uzi machine guns by the Israeli government, and joined with Zionist natives to build their middle-class tract homes in locations designed to frustrate Palestinian dreams of a homeland. It's a hard life in these settlements, where the major activity centers around raising large families in the Jewish tradition. Meanwhile, back in the U.S., the American-Israel Public Affairs Committee (AIPAC) and the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith (ADL) keep up the pressure. They spy on anyone who dares to believe that Zionism might be less than Holy, and spend huge sums to lobby Congress and denounce their enemies as "anti-Semitic."

"Dye, Thomas R. Who's Running America? -- The Reagan Years. 3rd edition. Englewood Cliffs NJ: Prentice-Hall, 1983. 285 pages.

One of the debates in American sociology is between the "pluralist" and "elitist" schools of thought. While both agree that America is not ruled by the masses, the pluralists see this as benign in a society that is more open than most. For the pluralist, the elites maintain an equilibrium of competing interests, and the little guy can make himself felt when he wants to by joining an interest group. Thomas Dye, on the other hand, feels that this competition is more apparent than real.

In 1972 Dye's graduate students at Florida State University began collecting data on some 5,000 elite positions, which by this third edition had expanded to 7,000. His technique, which depends on a definition of "elite" as a person with institutional affiliations, is to study these positions at the upper end of the corporate sector (industrial, utilities, banks, insurance, investments), the public interest sector (media, education, foundations, law, civic and cultural organizations), and the governmental sector (legislative, executive, judicial, military). The persons occupying these positions are noted, and the fact that they frequently hold several of these positions simultaneously is further evidence of a concentration of power at the top. In the course of making his argument, Dye names certain individuals and lists their affiliations.

In Volume I of the $60 three-volume set, Lawrence Walsh and his staff spend 572 pages explaining, as required by law, why it took seven years and $40 million, and what was accomplished. Walsh concludes that "the governmental problems presented by Iran/contra are not those of rogue operations, but rather those of Executive Branch efforts to evade congressional oversight." Walsh's investigation was undeniably denuded by grants of immunity from Congress, by the refusal of Attorney General Richard Thornburgh to declassify information, and of course by the Bush pardons. Volume II consists "Indictments, Plea Agreements, Interim Reports to the Congress, and Administrative Matters" in 785 pages. A "brief classified report" was submitted by Walsh as Volume III, containing references to material still classified. This is different from the Volume III that we read, where those named by Walsh are given the right of response. The clerk of the court published 46 responses in the form that they were received, complete with cover letters and addresses. Richard R. Miller gets our award for the most interesting submission: 97 pages that include correspondence and accounting ledgers from some of the off-shore corporations set up to support the contras.

Herbert Walker Bush and JFK.

"Turner, William W. Rearview Mirror: Looking Back at the FBI, the CIA and Other Tails. Granite Bay CA: Penmarin Books, 2001. 318 pages.

After ten years as an FBI special agent, William Turner resigned and became an investigative journalist. He went on assignments for Ramparts magazine and was soon a senior editor (Ramparts was arguably the most significant magazine that has appeared in the U.S. since the 1930s). Turner became interested in Jim Garrison's efforts to reopen the JFK assassination, and also co-authored a book (with Jonn Christian) on the Robert Kennedy assassination. His "Hoover's FBI" is one of earliest to blow the whistle on Hoover, and "The Fish is Red," which he wrote with Warren Hinckle, is a detailed look at the CIA's Cuban exile community.

Turner was personally targeted by J. Edgar Hoover, at about the time that Ramparts was a target of dirty tricks engineered by the CIA. And needless to say, any high-profile person who saw the assassinations as conspiracies in the late 1960s could forget about qualifying for life insurance. Turner not only survived, but still has that rare quality of being able to put things into useful perspective, without dismissing relevant evidence or becoming paralyzed with paranoia. The chapters about the adventures of Ramparts, and the JFK and RFK assassinations, are excellent. As just one example, Turner was involved with "Farewell America," a mysterious book from Europe about the JFK assassination.

""Thomas, Gordon. Journey Into Madness: The True Story of Secret CIA Mind Control and Medical Abuse. New York: Bantam Books, 1990. 386 pages.

In January 1973, a mind-control and assassination-poison chemist by the name of Dr. Sidney Gottlieb resigned from the CIA, but before he did he went to director Richard Helms and suggested that his files on CIA drug-testing in the 1950s and early 1960s be destroyed. Helms thought this was a good idea and also destroyed some of his own files. But Gottlieb missed some 150 boxes buried in the CIA archives, which has provided material for writers, dramatists, and assassination researchers ever since.

British writer Gordon Thomas weaves MK-ULTRA (the CIA's name for its drug research program) in and out of this somewhat disjointed account. Canadian psychiatrist Donald Ewen Cameron (who destroyed patients with electroshock and drugs and justified it by accepting CIA money), is featured along with such diverse characters as Allen Dulles and his wife Clover, William Casey, and Beirut station chief William Buckley (kidnapped in 1984 and subjected to medical torture by Dr. Aziz al-Abub).

Thomas weaves all this together the way a good screenwriter would. While he doesn't appear to have shirked on his investigative efforts, we would be more enthusiastic over this book if he had provided more footnotes and taken fewer dramatic liberties.

Lyndon LaRouche a spy on their operations.

"Tarpley, Webster Griffin and Chaitkin, Anton. George Bush: The Unauthorized Biography. Washington DC: Executive Intelligence Review, 1992. 659 pages.

The Lyndon LaRouche organization has a thing about George Bush. One reason is that Bush personifies the sort of Anglo-American, Ivy League elitism -- from "old boy" family connections to "old boy" spook connections -- that has occupied LaRouche for the past two decades. Another is that LaRouche was a federal political prisoner during Bush's tenure, after having been targeted by the feds and railroaded on flimsy evidence. This book, published just before the 1992 election, gets weird at the end (LaRouche claims that Bush's hyperactive thyroid led us into Panama and the Gulf). But the previous 600 pages are a massive compendium of elitist connections not found elsewhere. Though a bit wobbly, perhaps, the book manages to stand on its own, if mainly by default.

It's also fair to ask what makes LaRouche tick. One theory is that he may be secretly sponsored by the Vatican. How else does one explain the tantrums against Freemasonry and secret societies (such as Bush's Skull and Bones), against Anglican apostasy (dope-pushing British imperialism), and against anything that smacks of planned parenthood or population control (the Malthusian activism of the Rockefellers)? When these tirades are occasionally juxtaposed with respectful quotations from His Holiness, it makes us wonder.

Truth about Iran's democracy and the invasion

"Sick, Gary. October Surprise: America's Hostages in Iran and the Election of Ronald Reagan. New York: Times Books - Random House, 1991. 278 pages.

Gary Sick spent 24 years in the navy as an analyst and served on the National Security Council staff under Presidents Ford, Carter, and Reagan. His book "All Fall Down: America's Tragic Encounter with Iran" (1985) is highly rated. He was a White House aide for Iran during the hostage crisis of 1979-81, and by 1991 was a professor at Columbia University.

"October Surprise" refers to the scenario that certain Reagan campaign officials, William Casey for one, may have arranged to delay the release of the hostages, thereby insuring that Carter would be unable to tilt the election with a "surprise" release in October 1980. This was proposed by Barbara Honegger in 1987 (see the annotation for her book), whereupon Joel Bleifuss of In These Times picked away at it in column after column. In October 1988 Abbie Hoffman wrote about it in Playboy, but still this isn't considered respectable. In April 1991 the New York Times ran an op-ed piece by Sick, who was beginning to get very interested in the issue, and "Frontline" did a show on PBS on April 16. Now the networks and Congress took notice. By late 1992, however, many observers considered some of the sources for the story to be unreliable, and almost everyone lost interest.

“Chester, Eric Thomas. Covert Network: Progressives, the International Rescue Committee, and the CIA. Armonk NY and London: M.E. Sharpe, 1995. 265 pages. The Cold War period in American history was characterized by a seamless cooperation among international charities, quasi-governmental organizations, major foundations, funding conduits, and the CIA. Any semblance of private- sector independence was more calculated than real -- a veil that is stripped away by following the careers, connections, and correspondence of the key players who show up on the interlocking boards of directors. This book singles out the International Rescue Committee, and to a lesser extent the Ford Foundation. Its impressive original-source research makes a mockery of any historian who would pretend that these organizations can be considered separately from the CIA's influence and agenda, particularly during the Cold War period.

Eric Thomas Chester has a Ph.D. from the University of Michigan, and has been a civil rights worker, a member of Students for a Democratic Society, a cab driver, union organizer, substitute teacher, and assistant professor of economics at the University of Massachusetts. He remains an activist in the trade union solidarity movement and the Socialist party. With a record like this Chester had nothing to lose, so he charged ahead and wrote the truth.

Early years of Opus

“John Loftus and Mark Aarons are formidable when it comes to uncovering the secret history of Western intelligence. Their previous effort, Unholy Trinity, was an examination of the Vatican's support of the Nazi ratline, and how it was manipulated by Soviet intelligence after World War II. This book is even more sensational. The most interesting portions are only peripherally involved with Israel; the "war against the Jews" seems to be a journalistic "hook" that ties together chapters stuffed with new material on political corruption in U.S. and British intelligence. The extent to which Israel was victimized, in other words, is essentially the extent to which big oil and Arab interests mattered more in the scheme of things.

Three areas of inquiry are most notable. The first is the wheeling and dealing of the Dulles brothers, in and out of office, in response to their own interests and the interests of their clients. The second is the involvement of the British in Iran-contra, and the third is the possibility that Bush's reversal of policy toward Syria was the result of blackmail. Although the authors include 115 pages of end notes, many of their sources, unfortunately, requested anonymity.

Panama pre-dates Syria

“Noriega, Manuel and Eisner, Peter. America's Prisoner: The Memoirs of Manuel Noriega. New York: Random House, 1997. 293 pages.

George Bush's invasion of Panama in December, 1989 happened so fast that the media couldn't get the story, and was reduced to parroting the administration's line about Manuel Noriega's drug dealing and "Operation Just Cause." This book is the story you didn't get -- from Noriega himself, who is now the only prisoner of war in the U. S., as designated by the Geneva Conventions. Noriega's version of events is then investigated and largely confirmed by Peter Eisner, formerly a Latin America correspondent for Newsday, who was in Panama during the invasion.

First off, hard evidence of Noriega's drug connections was lacking, contrary to what Americans were told. General Fred Woerner, chief of the Southern Command, and Admiral William Crowe, chairman of the Joint Chiefs, both opposed the invasion and were both dismissed. In order to convict Noriega in court, 26 felons testified at his trial in exchange for leniency. (This trial caught prosecutors by surprise because Noriega wasn't expected to survive the invasion; he now had to be convicted at any cost.) Finally, Eisner sums up three reasons for the invasion: 1) the wimp factor -- Bush had to counteract a growing perception of presidential weakness; 2) Panama's failure to help the U.S. with Iran-Contra; and 3) vague worries from the right that the loss of U.S. control over the canal would be a setback.

Coverup of JFK Assassination: Oswald associate

“Russell, Dick. The Man Who Knew Too Much. New York: Carroll & Graf, 1992. 824 pages. With a foreword by Carl Oglesby.

If the avalanche of reissued and rehashed JFK assassination books since Oliver Stone's movie has a downside, it's only because the one book that is possibly as significant as all the rest put together might get buried. After over a hundred interviews (including James Angleton and other CIA officials) and seventeen years of persistent research, Dick Russell has written such a book. While providing much new information on the intelligence connection, Russell doesn't offer any easy answers apart from the observation that organized crime alone could not have manipulated the physical evidence and the cover-up without substantial help.

Russell's treatment of the intelligence angle is comprehensive -- Oswald in Japan, CIA in Mexico, military intelligence, mind-control, KGB, anti-Castro Cubans, H.L. Hunt et al. Simultaneously, his journalistic hook is an extended cat-and-mouse debriefing of Richard Case Nagell, an untalkative Oswald associate who contracted with U.S. intelligence and also had an arrangement with the Soviets; it still isn't clear who was pulling his strings. Nagell walked into an El Paso bank in September 1963 and fired two shots into the wall so that he would be in jail while "it" came down. "It" happened two months later, on November 22, 1963. If there is space on your shelf for only one JFK assassination book, make it this one.

Turner is best known for attempting to de-emphasize the role of covert action in favor of high-tech intelligence collection and objective analysis. He passed out over 850 pink slips to covert operators, and this was after James Schlesinger had canned more than two thousand spooks in 1973. When William Casey took over in 1981, some of the old guard were reactivated. Currently the emphasis seems once again to be on collection, but this time collection by humans (HUMINT) rather than by high-tech.

As such, it is mildly reformist and ultimately conservative."

Those looking for hard research will be disappointed. The authors prefer a loose commentary interspersed with anecdotes, and deal only with institutions familiar to them: Harvard (pages 21-65), New York Times (pages 66-103), Ford Foundation (pages 125-152), Brookings Institution (pages 153-182), Council on Foreign Relations (pages 183-225), and some big business organizations. In the final analysis, father and son are glad the Establishment exists, but "we think that it works best as a truly secret organization, secret even from its own membership." To paraphrase: "Yes, there's a priesthood that calls the shots, but it hasn't gone to their heads so we should all be grateful and wish them well."

“Washington Times, 3600 New York Ave. NE, Washington DC 20002, Tel: 202-636-3000.

The Washington Times is DC's other newspaper. It is owned by Rev. Moon's Unification Church and has operated at a loss since it started in 1982. If it weren't for the fact that they use the wire services for much of their coverage, their conservatism would be evident in almost every column-inch that they print. Their main function, it would seem, is to make the Washington Post more self-conscious and nervous about liberalism. It has worked beautifully -- the op-ed page in the Post during the 1980s was almost interchangeable with the Washington Times.

The Times was President Reagan's favorite paper, and Washington neocons fawned over them. When the Times was feeling their oats in the 1980s they became almost cocky, filling their pages with tributes to the wisdom and adventures of various anti-Communists. With the Post afraid to sneeze toward their Right, and the DC Left nowhere to be seen, the Times became a valuable source for tracking interesting people. Strangely enough, they were also more willing than the Post to print CIA names.

Knights of Malta early years.

“Cooney, John. The American Pope: The Life and Times of Francis Cardinal Spellman. New York: Times Books, 1984. 364 pages.

Author John Cooney interviewed dozens of priests who worked with Cardinal Spellman, many of whom would only speak on background. He also filed the usual FOIA requests with the FBI and State Department. The records of the Archdiocese of New York, where Spellman reigned for 28 years, are closed to researchers, but one priest slipped Cooney a copy of Spellman's diary. This is the first major biography of Spellman (1889-1967), who was a major figure in American politics during the first half of the Cold War.

A consummate politician, Spellman laid low at first and cultivated key people in Rome. After his friend Cardinal Pacelli became Pope Pius XII in 1939, Spellman was appointed an archbishop. During the war, he travelled to war zones and acted as FDR's secret agent. After the war he allied himself with Joseph McCarthy and Roy Cohn, and became a kingmaker in New York City politics. He continued to support U.S. military adventures by visiting the troops, attending Pentagon briefings, discussing strategy with generals, and gathering intelligence for the CIA and State Department. Were it not for Spellman's early (beginning in 1950) efforts to support Ngo Dinh Diem, South Vietnam's puppet government might not have emerged. Ultimately the Vatican became wary of Spellman's power. So did antiwar activists, who demonstrated against "Spellman's War" outside his residence and cathedral. "

Early days of the Malta

“These scandals involved Sindona, Calvi, Pope Paul VI, Bishop Paul Marcinkus and the Vatican Bank, the Mafia, Licio Gelli and the P2 Lodge, Franklin National Bank, Banco Ambrosiano, and shell companies too numerous to mention. It's a story of international high finance and lavish lifestyles that Hollywood might reject as unrealistic: bank shares traded like baseball cards, blood oaths and secret P2 membership lists, Mafia hits, Italian intelligence agencies, terrorists, arms dealers, corruption at the highest levels, and even a faked kidnapping.

Sindona's empire was collapsing by 1974, and his protege Calvi's by 1978. In 1980 Sindona was convicted in the U.S. on 65 counts of fraud and was extradited to Italy in 1984, where two years later he was poisoned in his cell while serving a life sentence for murder. Calvi was convicted by an Italian court in 1981 of illegal currency transactions. He was found hanging from a London bridge the following year, possibly murdered, and “Lernoux, Penny. People of God: The Struggle for World Catholicism. New York: Viking, 1989. 466 pages.

Opus Dei La Malta early rise

Penny Lernoux was a practicing Catholic and prize-winning journalist who lived in Bogota until shortly before her death from lung cancer in October, 1989 at the age of 49. She moved to Latin America in 1962, first working for the U.S. Information Agency and then as a bureau chief and correspondent for Copley News Service. In 1974 she began free-lancing; her work has appeared in Newsweek, The Nation, Harper's, Atlantic Monthly, Business Week, and the National Catholic Reporter.

Much of "People of God" is of more interest to those who follow Catholicism closely, while NameBase is focused on Catholicism only as it affects politics and the power structure generally. But the last half of the book has sections on the Knights of Malta (also known as the Sovereign Military Order of Malta or SMOM), Opus Dei (called the "Holy Mafia" by its critics), Communion and Liberation (a lay movement in Italy), and Tradition, Family, and Property (an extremist cult in South America). For Lernoux, these groups are among those struggling for the soul of the Church, and represent a counterreformation, known as the "Restoration," that threatens to reverse the gains of Vatican II.

Brainwashing and Mind control..

“Constantine, Alex. Psychic Dictatorship in the U.S.A. Published in 1995 by Feral House, P.O. Box 3466, Portland OR 97208 ($12.95 plus $2 postage). 221 pages. Alex Constantine, a fan of the late parapolitical researcher Mae Brussell, currently hosts a radio program for KAZU-FM in Monterey, California. In this book he has brought together a collection of essays on the following topics: electromagnetic and biotelemetric mind-control experimentation by intelligence agencies (often on involuntary subjects), satanism and ritual cult abuse of children (also with an intelligence connection), and OSS/CIA theft and profiteering for the purpose of funding covert operations. Specific case studies within these areas include the Strategic Defense Initiative as a cover story for mind-control research, the McMartin Preschool molestation case, the Jeffrey MacDonald "Fatal Vision" murders, the Children of God cult, the Larry King case in Omaha, NutraSweet and the dumbing of America, and the secret appropriation of stolen Nazi art by the OSS.

The level of detail is impressive in certain areas, and some chapters include footnotes. This makes the book valuable. But for those who do not share the author's experience of having been victimized by the techniques he describes, it's difficult to accept his occasional suggestion that the various chapters in this book are related at some sinister level.

Tracking deaths of the Opus “Yallop, David. Tracking the Jackal: The Search for Carlos, the World's Most Wanted Man. New York: Random House, 1993. 629 pages.

British author David Yallop's 1984 book "In God's Name," a study of the suspicious death of Pope John Paul I, sold nearly six million copies in forty countries. So when Yallop began looking for Carlos in 1985, his reputation preceded him and opened many doors in difficult places: Israel, Venezuela, Lebanon, Syria, Libya (where he interviewed Muammar Qaddafi), and Tunisia (where Yasser Arafat was interviewed). Too many doors, in fact: in Lebanon, his lengthy interviews with "Carlos" (Ilich Ramirez Sanchez) in 1985 turned out to be too easy. Many months later he had hints from various sources that this person couldn't have been the real Carlos. In 1989, Yallop finally met the real one in Damascus, asked some tough questions to establish his identity, and satisfied himself that the Lebanon Carlos was a well-briefed imposter -- probably sent by Syrian intelligence to plant disinformation that would discredit the Palestinian leadership.

Yallop concludes that the myth of Carlos served those with a Cold War agenda, and that if Carlos hadn't existed they would have invented him. His book has many unkind words for Israeli policy, and for people such as Claire Sterling and Brian Crozier, who helped to hype and distort the terrorist threat. Carlos, it turns out, was not a KGB-sponsored mastermind, but more like a spoiled child who planted bombs instead of throwing temper tantrums.

The collapse.

"Reese, Mary Ellen. General Reinhard Gehlen: The CIA Connection. Fairfax VA: George Mason University Press, 1990. 231 pages.

As Nazi Germany was collapsing, General Reinhard Gehlen, Hitler's chief of eastern front intelligence, buried his files and waited to be captured. He felt certain that access to his files was an offer the Americans couldn't refuse. He was right, of course, partly because the Cold War was already being planned, and partly because Gehlen's scientific collection and analysis methods were very effective. He and his staff cut a deal with the CIA and the Pentagon to absorb his networks and his expertise. As part of the deal, Gehlen transferred his organization (the "Gehlen Org") to West Germany in 1955. He directed the BND until his retirement in 1968, and died in 1979.

Mary Ellen Reese offers the first book about Gehlen that concentrates on the American connection. She interviewed former CIA and Army Intelligence officers, and received "hundreds" of documents under FOIA from various agencies. But her claim that this is the first undistorted "full" picture, drawing on "wholly new information," seems unrealistic, as the CIA wouldn't cooperate with her. We also know that PIR advisor Carl Oglesby has been trying for years to sue for Gehlen records that the government considers too sensitive.

Secret history of Himmler Knight of Malta

"Pool, James. Hitler and His Secret Partners: Contributions, Loot and Rewards, 1933-1945. New York: Pocket Books, 1997. 415 pages.

James Pool has studied Hitler for 25 years; his previous book, "Who Financed Hitler: The Secret Funding of Hitler's Rise to Power, 1919-1933," is considered something of a classic. Pool's work is refreshing because he starts with a broad socioeconomic perspective, and blends this in with sociopsychological and cultural observations. Frequently historians skip the infrastructural reasons behind Hitler's power, and opt for a specific angle instead of the broad picture. The entire phenomenon of Nazi Germany then becomes subsumed under some variation of The Madman Theory.

Many top industrialists and financiers in Germany made huge returns on their investment in Hitler's agenda. The spoils of various invasions, as well as profits from slave labor and confiscation of Jewish properties, insured their enthusiastic support. Hitler himself was far from ascetic -- he lived in extravagant luxury, subsidized by blatant corruption. Good old greed, power, and desperation explain Nazi Germany better than ersatz theories about the German character. Examples: the desire for "lebensraum" was largely due to food production problems; Hitler invaded Austria because raw materials were needed to continue rearmament; and Russia was invaded because the German military machine was running out of oil. Pool never tries to excuse Germany, but he does offer a fresh look at the evidence.

Germany's reconstruction

“Simpson, Christopher. The Splendid Blond Beast: Money, Law, and Genocide in the Twentieth Century. New York: Grove Press, 1993. 399 pages. Reprinted in 1996 by Common Courage Press, Box 702, Monroe ME 04951, Tel: 800-497-3207.

It's common to read biographies of men who waged war during the first half of the century, when issues were clear and warriors could be heroes. So when Christopher Simpson takes a look at two cases of genocide -- the slaughter of Armenians in World War I and Hitler's holocaust -- it's a surprise to discover that things are not so simple. Allen Dulles, for example, helped a number of Nazis to escape, and worked for the greater glory of postwar Germany, which also meant a better bottom line for the German industrialists he represented before the war. While later claiming to be unwilling victims of the Nazis, these industrialists were happy to contract with the SS for forced labor from concentration camps, because it was profitable. They got off easy at Nuremberg; the Allies felt that rapid reconstruction would be a hedge against revolution in war-ravaged Europe.

The larger point of this well-documented book is that complicity in genocide ranged far and wide, on both sides of the front in both wars. When it came time for accountability, international tribunals were stymied by the same machinations of privilege and power that started the problem in the first place. The structure of international law is weak, and easily overruled by elites who simply want to "get on with business."

In regards to their enemies, the Roosevelt and Clinton administrations have several similarities. Clinton was plagued by the vicious smears inspired by Richard Mellon Scaife while it was Irene du Pont hatching the plots against FDR. Both Presidents faced a hostile press for the most part. Additionally, both faced bitter opposition from the Republicans. Neither enjoyed bipartisan support in any notable sense of the word. In fact, the Republicans many of whom were openly pro-fascist opposed every effort of Roosevelt to prepare for the coming war.

Roosevelt had numerous bitter enemies within Congress. Some were openly pro-fascist. The Nazis in Germany sought throughout the 1930s a cause by which they could ignite the native fascists in America and prevent the U.S. from entering the war. The American Bund was first proposed as such an element in which all Americans of German extraction would rally behind.

The relationship of the American Bund with the Nazis in Germany was more of a love/hate relationship of a jilted lover. Hitler's top priority was to keep the United States neutral and to maintain at least an amicable diplomatic relationship. The Bund's rallies with the bellicose speeches and storm troopers with swastika armbands attacking anyone that challenged the organization was seen as detrimental to these aims by the high officials in Berlin, especially since most Americans regarded the Bund as financed by and controlled by Berlin.

Hitler ordered that the Bund should receive no aid from Germany. Despite Hitler's ban, the Bund did receive aid from Germany as the Bundeslieter, Fritz Kuhn proved to be adept at pitting one Nazi organization against another to receive funds. Hans Dieckhoff the German ambassador to the United States was one of the Nazi who viewed the Bund as a hindrance to German-American relations. Dieckhoff was also the brother-in-law of von Ribbentrop. Acting on instructions from Berlin, Dieckhoff ordered all German citizens to withdraw from the Bund as a measure to improve diplomatic relations. He was infuriated to learn that Kuhn had obtained funds SS Lt Gen Werner Lorenz's organization, Volksdeutsche Mittelstelle. While the Bund remained a force it was largely ineffectual as a rallying point for German-Americans. Most German-Americans chose to be loyal to their adopted country.

Next, the Nazis thought with the great racial and ethnic differences in the U.S. could be exploited for the same purpose. Again it failed. This does not mean that the Nazis were not successful in provoking anti-Semitism and even race riots after the Bund and Klan united. However, it was a failure in generating a split wide enough to prevent the U.S. from entering the war.

At its peak the Bund probably consisted of no more than 6,500 activists and another 20,000 sympathizers. About 1,500,000 American were German born. The Bund was clearly a failure as a rallying point for German-Americans. The one thing the Nazis in Germany did find in which they could unify the opposition behind was "Get Roosevelt."

Opposition to Roosevelt does not necessary imply the congressman was a pro-fascist, but many in Congress were pro-fascist. The list of congressmen below should not be taken as an exhaustive list; there were others. Nor are exhaustive lists needed to reveal the amount of opposition to FDR or to record their sabotaging of both the war effort and investigations of the native fascists. However, some congressmen left little doubt of their support for fascism by their own actions.

Perhaps the two greatest enemies that Roosevelt faced in Congress were Republican Senator Gerald Nye from North Dakota and Democratic Congressman Martin Dies from Texas. Both headed congressional committees vital to preparation for the war that was coming. Burton Wheeler of Montana would be a close third. Both had two traits in common with each other and the other pro-fascists members. All of these members of Congress would abuse their franking privileges, mailing propaganda opposing the war or even propaganda from pro-fascists groups to thousands of constituents. The second thing in common was their willful association with pro-fascists groups.

Nye's opposed all major defense measures in the Senate. He led the fight against Lend Lease and he openly collaborated with many groups seeking appeasement regardless of their political leanings. On the floor of the Senate he charged that the British and not German submarines had sunk the Robin Moor, only later did he withdraw the baseless charge. He initiated a probe of Hollywood, but the investigation failed after he admitted that he had not seen the movies that he had labeled as "war propaganda." He arranged for a Bund member to air his defeatist views before the Senate and later used his congressional frank to mail copies of the speech to thousands. As a member of Congress, he was perhaps the biggest booster for the American First Committee.²⁸

Nye also praised the virulent anti-Semitic Gerald Smith for publishing "The Cross and the Flag."²⁹

Dies was the first chairman for the new committee, that of Un-American Activities and he set about immediately to sabotage the intended use of the committee, to investigate the subversion activities of pro-fascist groups.

No better example of this act of sabotage of the Dies Committee can be found than in the appointment of its first chief investigator, Edward Sullivan. Sullivan was exchanging confidential messages with the German High Command in 1938, the year of his appointment. In fact, Sullivan was high in the ranks of the Ukrainian-American fascist groups. He greeted members of the Bund with a "Heil Hitler" and had denounced FDR's administration as a Jewish Communist plot. Sullivan had one other trait endearing him to the right wing extremists; he had been a former labor spy for the Railroad Audit and Inspection Company.

He was soon replaced with another right wing extremist, J. B. Matthews. Upon leaving the Dies committee, Sullivan immediately rejoined a fascist Ukrainian group.

Instead of investigating pro-Nazis, the committee set about investigating and compiling an extensive blacklist of liberals and anti-fascists. Throughout the war the committee carried on a vicious attack on the Roosevelt administration, charging that various agencies were packed with Reds and denouncing America's fighting allies.

No better example of the opposition Roosevelt faced can be found than in the fight over the establishment of the draft. Nye led the battle, and succeeded in greatly reducing what FDR had envisioned. Originally Roosevelt had planned on two years of universal service for all Americas, both men and women. Service would not have been necessary in the armed forces alone, but through a combination of all government agencies. To be fair, the support for the draft was bipartisan as was the opposition to it. The most opposition came from congressional members from the midwest and high plain states. The bill passed on September 16, 1940 authorizing the draft for one year only. The following year the bill to extend the draft passed the House by a one-vote margin. There were 182 Democrats and 21 Republicans voting in favor of extending the draft and 65 Democrats and 133 Republicans voting against the draft.

There is no better way to establish the fascist nature of many of these congressmen than quoting them. One such Congressman and Steuben Society member was Republican House member John Schafer from Wisconsin. His congressional record was one of complete opposition to any defense measure. In speaking with Carlson, investigative reporter posing as a pro-fascist, Schafer was quoted as follows talking about a revolution against democracy:

"The Bloody kind. There will be purges and Roosevelt will be cleaned right off the earth along with the Jews. We'll have a military dictatorship to save the country."31

Schafer leaves little doubt as to his feelings about democracy in the quote. Another Senator, Republican Rufus Holman from Oregon, openly praised Hitler on the floor of the Senate. The small excerpt below from the speech leaves no real doubt as to his pro-Nazi views.

"I doubt if the right is all on one side among the present belligerents. At Least Hitler has broken the control of the international bankers and traders over the rewards for the labor of the common people of Germany.

In my opinion it would be advantageous if the control of the international bankers and traders over the wages and savings and the manner of living of the people of England could be broken by the English people, and if the control of the international bankers and traders over the wages and savings and the manner of living of the people of the United States could be broken by the people of the United States."32

The code words of international bankers and traders meant Jews. Holman inserted several pro-Nazi propaganda pieces into the congressional record as well. Nor was this the only time Holman had praised Hitler. As Oregon's State Treasurer, he had praised Hitler's sterilization program resulting in the amendment of Oregon's sodomy law in 1935 to include all moral degenerates and sexual perverts whether, they had committed a crime or not. Oregon at the time used castration rather than vasectomy. 33

Republican Senator Thomas Schall from Minnesota placed material from James True in the Congressional Record. True was a notorious Jew baiter and inventor of the infamous Kike Killer, a nightstick.

Republican Representative Louis McFadden of Pennsylvania was another Congressman that supported True. McFadden believed in the international Jewish conspiracy. He believed the Jews were not suffering from persecution in Germany under Hitler. He was virulent in his opposition to Roosevelt's plan to allow 200,000 Jews to emigrate to the U.S. He believed those that supported such a plan, like Secretary of Labor, Frances Perkins were part of the conspiracy by the "Jewish-controlled administration." McFadden believed Perkins real name was that of a Russian Jewess, Matilda Wutski.¹¹⁵

Another of the pro fascist was Senator Robert Reynolds a Democrat from North Carolina, who also openly praised Hitler on the floor of the Senate. Reynolds was a resident of Asheville, the home of Pelly's Silver Shirts. Reynolds spoke glowingly about fascism as the following quote shows.

"The dictators are doing what is best for their people. I say it is high time we found out how they are doing it, and why they are progressing so rapidly. Hitler has solved the unemployment problem. There is no unemployment in Italy. Hitler and Mussolini have a date with destiny. It is foolish to oppose them so why not play ball with them."³⁵

Reynolds was friends with the American Nazi George Deatherage and Gerald Winrod. Reynolds with the backing of Burton Wheeler rose to become chairman of the Senate Committee of Military Affairs. In April 1940, Reynolds provided the Nazi agent, Simon Koedel with detailed confidential information about France's ports.⁷⁶ The transfer of such information to Nazi agents was nothing short of treason.

Besides using the Senate floor as a sounding board for Falangist propaganda, he is perhaps better known for his anti-alien views. Reynolds believed that aliens was at the heart of all of America's problems and organized a posse of youths from age ten to eighteen called the Border patrol to catch alien crooks.

Reynolds maintained his position in the Senate until 1944. By then the Democratic Party by then had enough of the fascist infiltrator and chose another figure popular in North Carolina to seek Reynold's seat in the primary. Rather than face certain defeat Reynolds retired.

Another of the fascist supporters in congress was the Democrat Senator, Rush Holt from West Virginia. Holt was the youngest person ever elected to the senate. He had won election in 1934 as a backer of the common man and the New Deal. Shortly after being elected, Holt began criticizing the New Deal eventually becoming one of the harshest critics of FDR. By the end of his term, he was an outright advocate of fascism. In the 1940 primary, Holt faced two other challengers for his seat after losing support from the Democrat National Committee. He finished third in the primary.⁸⁸

The two examples of Holt and Reynolds provide a stark difference between the Democratic and Republican parties. The Democratic Party would attempt to purge the fascist from their ranks in the primary, unlike the Republican Party, which made no such attempts, to purge fascist from their ranks, and even encouraged the Nazis with anti-Semitic campaigns.

Contrary to the popular belief the bombing of Pearl Harbor united the country fully, dissent can be found in the "Judas" speech of Clare Hoffman, Republican Congressman from Michigan. On January 27, 1942, with the memory of Pearl fresh in everyone's mind, Hoffman delivered an vicious attack on Roosevelt in an address to the House entitled "Don't Haul Down the Stars and Stripes" better known as "Roosevelt is Judas." Hoffman long an outspoken critic of Roosevelt and a member of the impeach Roosevelt committee ordered 145,000 copies of his speech and using his congressional frank mailed out 105,000 copies.³⁴

The best evidence indicating that several members of congress had ties to the Nazis came from the investigation by the Department of Justice, which lead to the bungled sedition trial of 1944 stemming from the grand jury investigation. There is a fine line between free speech and sedition. Simple opposition to war is not sedition but accepting funds from the enemy to conduct espionage, or to distribute propaganda clearly steps over the line of free speech and becomes sedition.

The grand jury investigations conducted in 1940 produced an abundance of evidence that several congressmen received funds from Nazi sources. Most people today are still unaware that the sedition trial stemmed from three separate grand jury investigations. The special assistant to the Attorney General, William Maloney convened the first grand jury investigation. That investigation concluded on July 21, 1942, and indicted 28 individuals, and listed thirty publications and twenty-six organizations.

Under intense pressure from several sides including intense pressure from Senator Burton Wheeler, Maloney was eventually removed from the investigation. Wheeler used his position as chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee to exert extreme pressures on Attorney General, Biddle for the removal of Maloney.

Several of the pro-Nazi congressmen were called to testify before Maloney's grand jury. One of the suspected congressmen was Ernest Lundeen, the populist Senator from Minnesota. Hoover had a FBI agent tailing Lundeen. On August 31, 1940, Lundeen and the FBI agent tailing him died in a plane crash. Lundeen's secretary, Harriet Johnson reported later that on the day of his death the congressman had arrived unusually early and was clearly distraught. She had asked the congressman what was troubling him and he had replied that he had gone too far and there was no turning back. She sensed he was referring to his Nazi connections. He also informed her that he had to fly back to Minneapolis at once to see his wife despite the storm.

Johnson then drove Lundeen to the airport, and reported that several times he began to cry. FBI agent J.J. Pasci had followed the pair to the airport and boarded the same plane. Johnson reported that after Lundeen boarded the plane she saw several passengers in a struggle with Lundeen apparently also engaged in it. Shortly after takeoff the pilot lost control of the plane in the storm and crashed just thirty-six miles west of the capitol.

The day after his death Johnson opened the congressman's locked files and discovered many documents, which revealed that Lundeen was in the direct pay of the Nazis. The next day Lundeen's widow arrived and asked by name for the Viereck files. Harriet Johnson then reported it to the FBI and the FBI forwarded it to Maloney.

Maloney only had a partial view of the Nazi connections. He had determined that some seven senators and thirteen representatives had been bribed, or acted in collusion with Nazi Germany, aiding and abetting them, and that an additional four Congressmen were guilty of collaboration. These congressmen had used their franking privileges to distribute isolationist speeches many written or edited by Viereck.⁷² Those that Maloney listed as collaborators with Viereck were Stephen Day (Republican from Illinois), Hamilton Fish (Republican New York), Rush Holt (Democrat West Virginia) and Ernest Lundeen (Farmer-Labor Minnesota). The remaining twenty are listed below.

John Alexander Republican Minnesota Philip Bennett Republican Missouri
 Usher Burdick Republican North Dakota Worth Clark Democrat Idaho
 Cliff Clevenger Republican Ohio Henry Dworshak Republican Idaho
 Clare Hoffman Republican Michigan Edwin Johnson Democrat Colorado
 Bartell Jonlman Republican Michigan Harold Knutson Republican Minnesota
 Robert LaFollette Republican Wisconsin Gerald Nye Republican North Dakota
 Robert Reynolds Democrat North Carolina Paul Shafer Republican Michigan
 Henrik Shipstead Republican Minnesota William Stratton Republican Illinois
 Martin Sweeney Democrat Ohio Jacob Thorkelson Republican Montana
 George Tinkham Republican Massachusetts Burton Wheeler Democrat Montana 102

The list of congressmen that Maloney listed as dupes of the Nazis has several interesting aspects. First, members of the Republican Party dominate the list. This should not be surprising in light of the evidence presented earlier of the Republican Party employing known Nazis in election campaigns. Two of the Democrats on the list, Holt and Reynolds were removed by the active campaigns against them launched by the Democratic Party leadership. Holt was defeated in his reelection primary campaign, while Reynolds facing certain defeat chose not to run.

Secondly, most of these congressmen came from the upper midwest particularly the states of Minnesota and Michigan. Both Minnesota and Michigan had strong anti-union movements and were home to several of ministries that preached the Nazi line of anti-Semitism. The Teutonia Association was founded in Detroit on October 12, 1924. The Teutonia Association was something of a forerunner of the American Bund Viereck was the highest-ranking Nazi agent arrested during the war and had been arrested as a German agent during WWI. Viereck was a V-agent or "Vertauensleute" (confidential agent) for the Abwehr. Following the war, another of the Abwehr's V-agents exposed was William Rhodes Davis, the Texas oil man.¹⁰⁰ Very little is known about Viereck and the network of V-agents as the Nazis destroyed their most of their files. Most known V-agents appeared engaged in spreading propaganda.

What is known with certainty is that Viereck received over a half million dollars from the charge d' affairs of the German embassy, Thomsen to bribe, corrupt and undermine members of Congress and to distribute propaganda.⁹⁸ Viereck received additional funds from Hansen Sturm the chairman of the Romanoff Caviar Company and from General Aniline and Film. Thomsen had valuable friends in high places including Assistant Secretary of Sate, Breckinridge Long and Ambassador to France William Bullitt. Long had publicly endorsed Mussolini's invasion of Ethiopia.

Lundeen was secretly pro-Nazi and received money not only directly from Viereck but also from the German Board of Trade and the Steuben Society. Maloney had determined that other congressmen had accepted Nazi money in deals to publish books through the notorious Flanders Hall, a fascist publisher closely associated with Viereck. Among those that had made deals with Flanders Hall were Burton Wheeler of Montana, Gerald Nye of North Dakota, Jennings Randolph and Rush Holt of West Virginia and William Stratton of Illinois. On June 13, 1940, Thomsen reported to Germany that it was necessary to take literary countermeasures against Roosevelt. In this plan Thomsen made contact with New York literary agent William Lengel and proposed a series of five books. One by Theodore Dreiser warning of the dangers of intervention another by Sylvia Porter written from a woman's point of view as to what the war would mean. The other three were to be written by journalist, George Creel, novelist Kathleen Norris and publicist Burton Rascoe. Pearl Harbor preempted the deal before any of the books were written.

In September 1941, Maloney convened a grand jury to investigate the Congress-Nazi connections. The results of the grand jury were classified for years later. Viereck was indicted, as was George Hill, a mailroom aide to Hamilton Fish. Maloney was deeply annoyed that he couldn't get indictments against any of the Congressmen. Once again it was the small expendable people who were prosecuted while the powerful were protected.⁷³ Many of the Congressmen that had been subpoenaed managed to avoid testifying until after Pearl Harbor. After the bombing of Pearl Harbor, public interest was directed towards the war efforts and prosecution of the pro-fascists suffered from neglect.

Maloney successfully prosecuted George Hill, the mail room aide to Congressman Fish and was in the process of preparing for Viereck's trial when he was suddenly summoned to the office of Judge Allen Goldsborough. Goldsborough informed Maloney he would be the presiding judge at the upcoming trial and Maloney would only have two weeks to prepare for the opening of the trial. Maloney was furious and protested over the lack of preparation time. Maloney also objected to Goldsborough's handling of the case, as Goldsborough was associated with the extreme elements of the right wing. Maloney was successful in his efforts to remove Goldsborough as the presiding judge after swearing out an affidavit giving details of both the meeting and how Viereck's attorney Daniel Colahan had constantly demanded that Goldsborough handle the case.

Maloney successfully prosecuted Viereck's case with Viereck receiving a prison term of two to six years. On March 20, Judge Letts, cut Hill's sentence in half. One year later Viereck's conviction was reversed by the Supreme Court. Both he and Hill were set free.

Although no charges were brought against the pro-Nazi congressmen. Their plot had been exposed. Even after being exposed they continued to use their franking privileges to distribute pro-Nazi propaganda. Although after Pearl Harbor it was not possible for them to do so directly, so they did so through such organizations as the Republican Nationalist Revival Committee and the National Economic Council. Another of their choices for distribution was Western Voice edited by a fundamentalist minister, Harvey Springer from Englewood Colorado. Springer, also known as the cowboy preacher praised the fascist Gerald Smith as a real man of Christ and denounced the Federal Council of Churches as being dominated by communists. Springer was also a vicious anti-Semitic, but is still highly regarded as a theologian in Baptist circles.

One of the more striking aspects of fascism in the United States, was the removal of such people as Maloney from office. Maloney was relentless in his pursuit of native fascists. After obtaining indictments on Jul 21, 1942 on 28 individuals, Maloney was depicted as a stooge of the International Jewish bankers by Joe Kamp, a pro-Nazi propagandist. Senator Burton Wheeler demanded that Attorney General Biddle remove Maloney. When Biddle objected to such pressure from the Senator, Wheeler announced he would blow the whistle on the Department of Justice. Its unknown what Wheeler had on the Department of Justice perhaps. Whatever it was, Biddle immediately dismissed Maloney and made it clear that he could not act even as a consultant to his successor.106

Without exception those that sought to expose the fascists and bring them to trial were forced from office or otherwise discredited. General Butler who exposed the fascist plot against Roosevelt, was mocked and laughed at in the press in a successful effort to discredit the good general and the plot. While those that stood firmly opposed to the fascists were removed many of the openly pro-fascists continued to rise in power. Maloney was ultimately removed from the case and replaced by John Rogge a capable and able prosecutor. Rogge would prosecute the sedition trial in 1944. Rogge would likewise, be abruptly removed from his office.

What many people even today are unaware of was there was three separate grand jury indictments. Although the third grand jury indictment listed more organizations and publications for sedition than the first two indictments, the significant factor was the names it dropped. The following is a list of the organizations dropped in the third indictment.

The American First Committee

National Committee to Keep America Out of Foreign Wars (a group associated with Fish)

Citizens Committee to Keep America Out of War

Make Europe Pay War Debts (a Viereck Committee)

War Debts Defense Committee (a Viereck Committee)

Coalition of Patriotic Societies

Crusading Mothers of America

Citizens No foreign War Coalition

Constitutional Education League

We, the Mothers United

We, the Mothers, Mobilize for America 103

Additionally, those indicted by the three different grand juries differed significantly.

The common thread among the organizations dropped was the association of certain Congressmen with those organizations or the publications.¹⁰³ Several of the Congressmen listed above including Fish and Wheeler along with many prominent business leaders were closely associated with the American First Committee. The National Committee to Keep America Out of Foreign Wars was another group closely associated with Fish. The two groups associated with Viereck could have opened charges to many of the Congressmen listed above. Wheeler as chairman on the Senate Judiciary Committee was in a position to bring strong pressure on the Attorney General, Biddle. A trial would have exposed all those connected to additional charges of sedition. The big fascists had to be protected and as a result, certain organizations closely linked to many of the Congressmen were dropped.

The end to the prosecution of the seditionist and Nazi collaborators came with the death of Judge Eicher on Nov 30, 1944 in the midst of the sedition trial. The next morning the new judge declared a mistrial. The trial had begun in February with the defendants delaying and disrupting the trial from the very beginning.

Rogge like Maloney was relentless in his pursuit of Nazi supporters. In the spring of 1946 Rogge received information from US Army Captain Sam Harris, a member of the prosecuting team at Nuremberg that there was indisputable evidence linking the former Nazi government and certain leading citizens of the United States. On April 4, Attorney General, Tom Clark allowed Rogge and four aides to fly to Germany. Over the course of eleven weeks Rogge and his team questioned sixty-six people including Goering and Rubbentrop. They also interrogated dozens of other top Nazi officials, including friends of William Davis. Rogge's findings were conclusive and explosive. Rogge's own words best sum up his findings.

"Our investigation showed us that we had completely underestimated the scope and scale of Nazi activities in the United States. When I went to Germany I felt that the biggest threat to American democracy emanated from the machinations of persons like the defendants in the sedition trial (i.e. the little fascist crackpots). I found that a far more dangerous threat lay in the inner-connection between German and American industrialists, and that some of the best known names in America were involved in Nazi intrigue."¹⁰⁴

Upon returning to the United States Rogge started preparing a comprehensive report for Attorney General Clark. In July, Rogge submitted to Clark the first draft of his report. Clark was clearly distraught over the references linking business and political leaders with the disposed Nazi government. Clark specifically mentioned the links to Senator Burton Wheeler. Wheeler was a close friend of Clark. As Rogge continued to work on his report, he was approached by an aid of Clark, asking that he omit all the names of American politicians and businessmen. Rogge refused knowing the report would never be published.

On September 17, 1946, Rogge submitted the final draft of his report. The explosive report recommended that the Department of Justice to open an investigation of collaboration between American and Nazi industrialists before the war. Not surprisingly, Clark refused to publish the report. However, to Rogge's surprise within days portions of his report were reported in Drew Pearson's column.

Shortly after submitting his final report, Rogge was granted a two-week leave of absence to make a lecture tour on the fascist menace. Clark was adamant that Rogge should not mention his report. Speaking before an audience at Swartmore College Rogge revealed some of his report's discoveries. He stated that Goering and Rubbentrop had told him that Joe L. Lewis, William Rhodes Davis, Senator Burton Wheeler, former vice president James Garner, former postmaster general James Farley and former president Herbert Hoover had all conspired with the Nazis to defeat Roosevelt in the 1940 election and to keep the United States out of the war.

On October 25, Rogge departed from New York on a flight bound for Seattle. Due to bad weather, the flight made an unscheduled stop at Spokane. A FBI agent met Rogge there by the name of Mr. Savage. He handed Rogge a terse letter from Tom Clark notifying Rogge that he had been dismissed. On October 24, the day before Rogge was fired Senator Wheeler had met with President Truman demanding the dismissal of Rogge. Wheeler was concerned Rogge's charges would derail his hopes for an appointment to the federal bench.¹⁰⁵ Wheeler never received the appointment to the federal bench.

Rogge like Maloney suffered the same fate because of their staunch opposition to fascism. The fascists in the government were too strong to allow an investigation into their treasonous acts. Ironically at the time of Rogge's dismissal FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover was stomping around the country giving speeches that denounced Americans for being communist with little or no evidence to back the charges.

Perhaps the most brazen example of pro-fascists escaping justice came after the end of the war. There was little effort in prosecuting traitors or Nazi war criminals following the end of the war. Martin Monti, one of Father Coughlin's followers, was drafted and sent to Italy. On October 13, 1944, while serving in Italy he stole a P38 aircraft and flew it across German lines landing in Milan. He gave himself up to the Germans and offered his assistance to them. The Germans transferred him to Berlin where he broadcasted pro-Nazi propaganda often quoting Father Coughlin or reading articles written by him. Following the end of the war, he was court-martialed for desertion and theft of the plane. The normal sentence in such cases would have been death. Monti however, received only a 15 year suspended sentence. Monti reenlisted as a private and by 1946 he had risen to the rank of sergeant.⁷⁴ The allied armies had won the war in Europe against fascism but the U. S. was losing the war at home against fascism. In their rabid hatred of communism the native fascists were now plotting the cold war and everyone was needed to fight the new menace and justice could be sacrificed. “

Before looking at this transformation of fascism, one needs an understanding of the extent of the fascist infiltration into American society of the time. In November 1940, FDR set aside one week as National Bible Week. The National Bible Association organized the celebrations and the event has continued ever since. Such a group would appear to be rather innocuous and wholesome, but all is not what it appears to be. The National Bible Association had an elitist agenda and was rooted in the National Committee for Religious Recovery founded in 1940 by New York business interests. Newsweek described the National Committee as a group of "a few Wall Streeters." In 1941, the National Committee changed its name to The Laymen's National Committee.

The first chairman of the National Committee for Religious Recovery was Lambert Fairchild. His following words can describe the agenda of the National Committee best.

"For God and Country you're going to see religion and business formed into a solid phalanx. Let no rabble-rousing communist tell you anything else, you security-holders who want security for your holdings."¹⁵

Fairchild was attempting to fuse business interests with religion interests in those words. It provides a common theme with the conversion of nativist groups to groups that adopted fascism at the heart of their ideology. Although similar to the participation of religious groups in the Red Scare of 1919, it is much broader. During the Red Scare the nativist religious elements remained largely independent from corporate funding. This conversion from nativism to fascist involved a direct link between business funding and fascists.

Fairchild had close ties with several fascist organizations including the American Bund, the Christian Mobilizers and the Christian Front. After Newsweek exposed Fairchild's pro-Nazi associations he was replaced with Howard Kiroack, who also had several ties with pro-fascist groups. The full extent of both individuals involvement can be found in Carlson's book.¹⁶ In 1945, the group presented an Annual Award of Merit to the pro-fascist newspaperman William Randolph Hearst.

The National Bible Association has maintained close ties with the elitist as evidenced from its list of chairmen over the years. Past chairmen have included: William Grede (Grede Foundation), Charles Hook (Armco Steel), Edward Werle (New York Stock Exchange), J. Peter Grace (W. R. Grace & Co) C. Fred Fetterolf (Alcoa) and Richard DeVos (Amway) among others. In other words, most of the past directors were CEOs of large corporations rather than prominent religious leaders.

This example of fascist founding a religious group is indicative of the extent of the fascist influence within the United States at the time. No organization or institution was free from fascist infiltration. In an environment based on capitalism, fascism is insidious, its tentacles reach out and infect all organizations and groups. After the Klan formed an alliance with the American Bund, the Klan urged its members to join unions in an effort to instigate strikes that would stop war production. The press and even Congress had their share of native fascists.

As the real power of the fascist movement in the United States was the leaders of corporate America and their Wall Street cronies the evolution of fascism took two predictable forms. One form became virulently anti-union; the other became fanatically anticommunist. This transformation of fascism came about largely through various groups financed by the leaders of corporate America. Financial support from corporate America was provided to all types of fascist groups ranging from the extremely violent Black Legion to the more subdued American First group.

Most of the various fascist groups remained active during the war and continued to receive funding from the leaders of corporate America. They found many allies in their struggle to further the fascist cause within America in the press, in Congress and in various government agencies, including Hoover's FBI.

To understand this transformation of fascism into the mainstream of America society a brief look at the background of anti-unionism is needed. Both anti-unionism and anti-communism go back to the end of WWI and are probably uniquely American as they are grounded in nativism and emigration. Donner describes this transformation of the anti-union movement as follows.

"The root of the anti-subversive impulse was fed by the menace. Its power strengthened with the passage of time, by the late twenties its influence had become pervasive and folkish. Bolshevism came over wide areas of the country by God-fearing Americans as the Antichrist come to do eschatological battle with the children of light. A slightly secularized version, widely shared in rural and small-town America, postulated a doomsday conflict between decent upright folk and radicalism-alien, satanic, immorally incarnate. The enemy was perceived with the kind of retching horror evoked by the biblical cry "Unclean." 2

Unionism came to be regarded in the same form. It was an alien concept imported by lazy and unclean aliens. The trial of Sacco and Vanzetti came in 1920. Despite strong alibis from witnesses placing Vanzetti at a location other than the robbery location both men were found guilty and sentenced to death. One overriding factor the jury could not overlook was the political views of Vaneztti.³ The trial was essentially a crystallization of the views expressed in the quote above.

The roots of anti-unionism can be traced back to the Civil War and the Pinkerton Agency. Following the Civil War employers used the agency as a weapon against the labor unions.¹ Pinkerton had the most success in the 1870s when it smashed the Molly Maguires for the Reading Railroad. It was a short step from labor intervention to labor espionage. Agencies such as Pinkerton were transformed into an institutionalized tool for class warfare. Since unionism was involved in political events of the time, surveillance of union activity would invariably embrace political targets as well. It became fashionable and politically expedient for pro-business politicians to associate labor with violence, conspiracy and the communist revolution.

Much of the violence was not the result of the unions but that of the employers. It was the employers that stockpiled tear gas and Thompson submachine guns, it was employers that urged the local sheriff into murdering the IWW members in Everett, Washington, and it was the employers that instigated the violence in Lawrence, Massachusetts.

It was during the 1930s that religious fundamentalist and anti-communist groups began to take on a fascist flavor. The transformation of these nativist groups to fascism was often times subtle. For instance, anti-union groups went from mere opposition of unions to promoting and protecting corporations, monopolies and cartels. The transformation of fundamentalist religious groups was marked by an increased anti-Semitic view. In almost all nativist groups the transformation was marked from a shift from isolationism to global intervention.

There were powerful forces at work behind the scenes that protected the fascists. Like Germany in which the leaders of the large corporations in a backroom deal placed Hitler in the chancellery office, it was the leaders of corporate America who wielded such unbridled power that they could attempt a plot against FDR in an effort to install a fascist government. Although the participants were known and the evidence damning Roosevelt was left virtually powerless to bring the plotters to justice and in the end no arrests were made.

Moreover, the government was ill prepared to deal with fascism and the threat it posed. Congress made a feeble attempt to come to the grips of the threat posed by fascism in establishing a committee to investigate fascism. The committee was promptly seized by Martin Dies and converted into a red-baiting committee. Any efforts of investigating fascism were promptly sabotage. Unlike communism, fascism posed no threat to corporate America. In fact fascism was corporate friendly and would be protected.

The only other government agency with a role in domestic investigations was the FBI. Lead by the patron saint of the right wing, J. Edgar Hoover. Enough ink has been used already in detailing the racist and anti-Semitic views of Hoover so his racism will not be discussed further. Nevertheless, much mystery still surrounds Hoover and his role in fascism during the war years. Hoover was always known to be very politically ambitious about seeking power and control. His first real experience came with the forerunner of the present day FBI in the repressive Palmer Raids of the early 1920s. Evidence showed Hoover was an overly-enthusiastic participant and that he perceived anti-communism and anti-unionism as a means of furthering his career and increasing his power. Donner sums up Hoover's true legacy as follows.

"Out of nativism, anti-communism, super-patriotism, religion and political conservatism, he forged an ideology of capitalism in the American grain, a blueprint for American fascism."⁴

There is abundant evidence of Hoover's sympathy for fascism. Hoover's most open political ties were with "respectable" super patriotic conservative groups including various veteran organizations, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the American Security Council (a group formed in the mid-1950s from members of three pro-Nazi groups of the 1930s) and the Freedom Foundation. Hoover also maintained links with various right wing or conservative churches.⁵

Up until the 1940 election Hoover spent more time spying on British agents and communists than spying on Nazi agents. As early as 1939, Roosevelt allowed British agents to wiretap Americans who were believed to be aiding the Nazi cause. Master spy Sir William Stephenson, better known as Intrepid headed the British operation. By the time the United States had entered the war, Stephenson had uncovered a web of Nazi-American financial ties.

The wiretaps were of course illegal and evidence gathered from the wiretaps was not allowable in court, but they provided the British with a means to stop the flow of American support to Hitler. In most cases, this meant intercepting vital shipments of war materials to Germany. However, there is evidence that in some cases in which the damage to the British war effort was acute, Intrepid's agents murdered fascist agents within the United States. Some evidence suggests William Rhodes Davis; a Texas oilman may have been poisoned by Intrepid's operation.

CRAIG-OXLEY - March 29, 2007 12:46 AM (GMT)

Roosevelt however, planned to leak the information gathered by the British operation to the media after the war to generate a public uproar over treason. Due to the resulting public outcry, Roosevelt then could launch a full investigation safely without harming the war effort. As part of this secret scheme between Roosevelt and British intelligence, Roosevelt deliberately placed, suspected individuals in positions in which they could easily be monitored. It was no accident that after his appointment to the OSS that Allen Dulles' office in New York was one floor directly below the British wiretapping office. Dulles's appointment was a deliberate setup. It placed him in a position in which he would be tempted the most to continue aiding the Nazis. Following the war Roosevelt planned on using this information to help prosecute Dulles. Two unforeseen events occurred to scuttle FDR's plan, one someone tipped Dulles off. The leak is commonly attributed to Vice President Henry Wallace and this was the motivation for dumping him from the ticket in 1944. Secondly the death of Roosevelt killed the plan entirely, as Truman was never informed over it. Dulles likewise was not Roosevelt's only target, many other wealthy Wall Street investors were also targets reportedly also including Joseph Kennedy. Former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg confirmed Dulles was being set up before his death.¹⁰⁶

While Roosevelt's relationship with J. Edgar Hoover was reportedly harmonious, Roosevelt's scheme with British intelligence betrays a telltale hint that Roosevelt did not trust the Hoover fully and may have even suspected his loyalties.

In addition to the British import/export office in 30 Rockefeller Plaza was the offices of Western Continents Corporation. Western Continents had been established by George Muhle on August 14, 1941. The firm described itself as a "research and analyzation work and export and import." Dun and Bradstreet report carried a brief synopsis of Muhle's life. It also listed Council of Foreign Relations member, William Diebold Jr. as treasurer.

What the Dun and Bradstreet report failed to note was that George Muhle was a fictitious name. George Muhle was in fact George Muhle Mertens. A significant part of Mertens' life had been omitted in the otherwise correct synopsis of the Dun and Bradstreet report. From 1926 to 1927, Mertens had been the head of Germany's Bureau of Investigations for Anti-Democratic Activities. The bureau was a government intelligence organization formed to counter leftist and rightist organizations in Germany. Mertens had been dismissed from all his posts in the Nazi government by Goering and charged with high treason.

For a while in 1936 Mertens had worked for the Commerz Bank in Berlin. Mertens entry into the United States was aided by the counselor of the American Embassy in Berlin, Prentiss Gilbert. Gilbert had joined the Schering Corporation believing that the Nazis had sold it to legitimate owners, only to find that it was merely a front for continued Nazi activity.

Mertens had contacted the Roosevelt administration through Adolf Berle who passed him along to Francis McNamara of the Alien Property division of the Department of Justice. McNamara, feeling legally bound, finally put Mertens in contact with Donovan and William Stephenson. It was Stephenson's organization that put up the front money to form Western Continents.

In 1942, control of Western Continents was passed from Stephenson to Donovan. However, by that time Mertens had been able to map out the Nazi commercial structure within the United States and its relationship with the Sicherheitsdienst (SD). Additionally, Mertens exposed the Nazi front companies in South America and how they interacted with their North American cousins. Moreover, Mertens presented a detailed exposure of the SD and the personal financial arrangements of the fascist French prime minister Pierre Laval and his associates including the Bank of Worms. 103

The information gained from Mertens proves that Stephenson's operation was not only successful, but also its reach extended very far, including into the top levels of foreign governments friendly to the Nazis.

Arthur Goldberg confirmed before his death that Roosevelt had Allen Dulles under surveillance. During the war, Goldberg served in the labor division of the OSS. Thus it seems likely that the OSS or at least one of its branches was involved with Roosevelt's secret plan of placing people suspected of aiding the Nazi cause under surveillance. The involvement of the OSS in the plot would have been illegal as its charter banned the OSS from spying within the United States. The evidence would have been inadmissible in courts, but was in keeping with Roosevelt's plan to leak the information to the press and use the public uproar to call for a full investigation. The involvement of the OSS would indicate that the plot was much more far reaching and that many more Nazi sympathizers were under a careful watch.

However, this scheme with the British was only one of many in which Roosevelt relied on others for intelligence. Roosevelt often asked his friends to take on special missions for him. Many of these missions by friends ended in failure, such as Vincent Astor's voyage in the South Pacific. Another recruit into FDR's private spy network was John Carter a writer for the fledgling Time magazine.

Joseph Kennedy was another individual like Dulles that was placed in a position where he could be watched carefully. Roosevelt had dispatched the Irishman to England as an ambassador. Churchill's son, Randolph, confirmed Kennedy was under electronic surveillance. The surveillance revealed that a lowly code clerk named Tyler Kent had passed secret documents to Anna Wolkoff. Wolkoff then passed the information on to the Italian foreign minister who would forward it on to the Nazi foreign office. Kent, an American citizen, was tried in secret in the Old Bailey on October 23, 1940. He was sentenced to seven years.100

Roosevelt abruptly terminated Kennedy's ambassadorship, during a weekend visit to FDR's estate at Hyde Park. The termination was very uncharacteristic of Roosevelt and centered about differences in the opinion of the two men. It is highly unlikely that FDR would have dismissed Kennedy if the monitoring operation had revealed any link to the Nazis by that time. Roosevelt would simply have waited until after the war when Kennedy and the rest of the Nazi sympathizers would have to face justice.

Hoover's spying on the British was more of a fence-sitting maneuver on his part. It was a position that left him largely neutral in favor of the Nazis. This fence-sitting by Hoover was due to his overly-ambitious aspirations. Loftus claims that the fascist forces within the Republican Party had offered Hoover the position of Attorney General, a position he coveted, if Roosevelt was defeated in the 1940 election.⁷¹

With Roosevelt's reelection Hoover had to hurry to mend fences with the White House by offering files on Nazi sympathizers. However, Hoover had spent so much time spying on the British and chasing suspected communists that he had no central index of suspected pro-Nazis. Hoover then went begging to the Anti-Defamation League for their records. The British of course had better files but refused to share them with Hoover and the FBI, fearing that the right-wing elements within the bureau would leak information of their wiretap operation. Hence, it is clear MI6, the top intelligence service of the world at the time, believed the FBI was infested with Nazis or Nazi sympathizers.

Many have attributed Hoover's opposition and refusal to cooperate with the OSS to his over-ambitious aims for the FBI. In reality, it was Hoover's thin skin of and his tendency to hold a grudge. Rather Hoover's opposition to the OSS stems from the 1920s. During the 1920s, Coolidge appointed William Donovan to the position of assistant attorney general. During his tenure in the Department of Justice, Donovan became aware of Hoover's wiretapping of politicians' telephones and hauled the young Hoover before Attorney General Stone. Hoover was nearly fired over the incident and never forgot who embarrassed him.⁸⁵

However, even more damaging was Hoover's sabotage and obstruction of the fledging intelligence network prior to and during the war, much of which was corroborated by Dusko Popov. Polov a British master spy, who had earned the confidence of the Nazis and was playing the role of a double agent. In 1941, the Germans dispatched him to the United States to reorganize and run their spy network. For a double agent it was the chance of a lifetime to deceive the Nazis on a grand scale. However, Hoover disapproved of Polov's playboy lifestyle and refused to help maintain Polov's cover.

Even more damning, Polov had brought with him important intelligence from Germany, intelligence that included the Japanese interest in the defenses and fortifications of Pearl Harbor. This information was received just four months before the bombing of Pearl Harbor. Hoover was hardly equipped to understand the importance of the information nor could he find a publicity use for it. With no personal use for the information, he promptly buried the report without forwarding it to the War Department or the White House.⁶

Included within Polov's documents was information about the German microdot. This information was useful for publicity and in April 1946, Hoover published an article in the Reader's Digest claiming credit for capturing the secret of the microdot from an enemy spy. Hoover lied, a British agent gave it to him, but more damning, the article contained a diagram that exposed Popov's source, a Brazilian diplomat. While the war was over in 1946, South America was the destination of many of the Nazi war criminals. In his effort to seek the spotlight, Hoover had exposed a useful source of information that could have provided information on war criminals in South America.

The Reader's Digest has always held an extreme right wing bias. So much so that George Seldes in Facts and Fascism devoted an entire chapter to the Reader's Digest.⁷ Seldes charged that Dewitt Wallace, the owner of the Reader's Digest, told his staff that he did not want Hitler defeated, that the editor was a pro-Hitlerite from the Hearst papers and that the Reader's Digest had consistently published anti-union and fascist propaganda. ⁸ The following quote from Facts and Fascism sums up Seldes' opinion of the Reader's Digest and its owner.

"It pretends to be an impartial reprint magazine, selecting the best items from all others, but it is in fact a skillfully manipulated publication spreading the reactionary views of a powerful nobody named DeWitt Wallace...DeWitt Wallace is either a knave or a fool. Either he is so stupid that he doesn't know that he is spreading fascism, or he is a Machiavellian knave who has devised a wonderful and sinister method, far superior to any known to Herr Goebbels." ⁹

Hoover apparently saw nothing wrong with the Nazis either politically or morally. He Only three days before the bombing of Pearl Harbor, December 4, 1940, Hoover finally broke relations with Interpol, an agency that was controlled at the time by the Nazis and then only at the urging of other top FBI executives broke the association.

In short, the top echelon of the FBI saw no danger from fascism but maintained a visceral hatred of communism and Russia as well as that of FDR, the New Deal and liberalism. The FBI's top intelligence officer during the war and up until 1954 was D. Milton Ladd, who in all seriousness claimed FDR was a Comintern agent.¹⁰

The FBI's policy under Hoover during the war years was openly antagonistic of our Russian ally, and liberalism in general including the New Deal. No attempt was made by the Attorney General or anyone else from the Department of Justice to muzzle Hoover. Hoover's propensity for maintaining files on his enemies in Congress and throughout the entire federal bureaucracy was well known. It seems certain that Hoover was taping his enemies and potential enemies to a far greater extent than is known. As an example, Hoover maintained a file on Frank Murphy over a ten-year period that contained derogatory items from his private life, even after Murphy was appointed Attorney General in 1938.

This vast cache of secret files enabled Hoover to transform the FBI into a huge propaganda machine. Even more iniquitously, Hoover was solely responsible for transforming the crime-fighting agency into a domestic intelligence operation with a gut level hate of the left. From 1940 to 1945, Hoover gave some fifty speeches on the dangers of communism many of them openly critical of his superiors and their values. In effect, he was able to transform the FBI into a vast system of public opinion formation.¹¹

Throughout his lifetime Hoover's favorite whipping boys were communists. He supported Joe McCarthy's witch-hunts of the early 1950s. Likewise, Hoover desperately tried to associate the civil rights leaders of the 1960s and the Vietnam War protestors with communism. The FBI's persecution of the left in the 60s through its COINTELPRO operation was a grave injustice. However, just like the Palmer Raids the effect of such operations depleted the left of leadership and left a vacuum of moderating forces allowing fascism to rise up in the 1930s and again in the 1980s. In any other country of the world the Palmer Raids, the McCarthy witch-hunts and COINTELPRO would be condemned as purges.

Nor can the role of the media be ignored in any of these purges. The media killed the story of COINTELPRO by a lack of reporting. Even today, the media is still content to cast McCarthy in a role of a patriot instead of a power mad tyrant. The end results have led to wasted decades of political repression and the growth of corporate power.

With such antagonistic views of the director and the top echelon of the FBI, the pursuit of fascists and seditionists suffered immensely. With the Department of Justice handicapped by the FBI's lack of interest in fascists, most of those brought to trial for sedition went free. In any case, those were just the little guys, the power and money behind them was never exposed nor did the FBI have any interest in investigating the leaders and money used to support the fascist groups. There would be no mass arrest of fascists during the war, unlike the mass arrests of the Palmer Raids following WWI or in the following McCarthyism era.

Hoover's efforts to spread propaganda extended beyond the FBI. In the 1940s, Hoover fed information to Father John F. Cronin. During the 1940s, Cronin was the assistant director of the Social Action Department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

With Hoover's aid, Cronin became an expert on communism and later close associate of Richard Nixon. Cronin was secretly retained by the Chamber of Commerce to write and distribute pamphlets critical of unions, communism and liberalism in general. The 1947 pamphlet, Communism Within the Labor Movement led to the drive to require union leaders to sign a non-Communist affidavit.¹² No one should harbor the mistaken belief that the FBI is a crime-fighting agency. It is not nor has it ever been such. It has always been America's gestapo with a mission to destroy the left. That record extends from the Palmer Raids to COINTELPRO of the 1960s and even up to the present day.

Another individual in aiding the fascists was H. Ralph Burton, chief counsel to the House's Military Affairs Committee. Burton was a racist and an anti-Semite with a long history of associations with fascists. At one point he was the lawyer for William Ludecke who bragged he was Hitler's number two Nazi in the United States. Burton was also special counsel to DAR during their flagrant red-baiting days, and a close associate of Walter Steele, editor of the fascist National Republic.

In the mid 1930s, Burton was general counsel for Father Coughlin's National Union of Social Justice in Maryland. Burton's son likewise had close associations with fascists. His son Robert was a frequent guest at the Japanese Embassy and was often observed in the company of other Nazis under surveillance. In 1939, Burton was an investigator for the WPA subcommittee and was determined to show that the WPA was controlled by and run for the benefit of the Jews.

How a man like Burton with known Nazi sympathies was able to maintain a sensitive position such as Burton held, when the country was at war with Nazi Germany is mysterious. Moreover, there were hundreds of others like Burton. However, anyone with the slightest tinge of socialism or communism was rapidly removed from any position within the government.

While he served in the Military Affairs Committee Burton proceeded to make himself a thorn in the side of Army officials. He would scan lists of draft deferments, skipping over ethnic surnames of Irish and other European surnames looking for the Jewish ones. Burton then called the local draft board demanding that these Jews be drafted.

Burton's most damaging role was in the wrecking of the Army's Orientation Course after the issue of Program #64. The Orientation Course was set up to teach recruits what they were fighting for and to counteract the fascist propaganda circulating at the time. At first, the Orientation Course was general in nature but as more and more recruits demanded more definitive information, it became specialized. Program #64 contained the following definition of fascism:

"If we don't understand fascism and recognize when we see it, it might crop up again--- under another label---and cause another war.

Fascism is a way to run a country---it's the way Italy was run, and the way Germany and Japan are run. Fascism is the precise opposite of democracy. The people run democratic governments, but fascists governments run the people.

Fascism is government by the few and for the few. The objective is seizure and control of the economic, political, social, and cultural life of the state. Why? The democratic way of life interferes with their methods and desires for: 1. Conducting business; 2. Living with their fellow-men; 3 having the final say in matters concerning others as well as themselves.

The basic principles of democracy stand in the way of their desires; hence—democracy must go! Anyone who is not a member of their inner gang has to do what he's told. They permit no civil liberties, no equality before the law. They make their own rules and change them when they choose. If you don't like it, its' T.S.

They maintain themselves in power by use of force combined with propaganda based on primitive ideas of blood and race, by skillful manipulation of fear and hate, and by false promises of security. The propaganda glorifies war and insists it is smart and realistic to be pitiless and violent. 41

It is hard to imagine that such a statement caused an outburst of protest on Capitol Hill. Indignant speeches were made on the floor of the House. Clare Hoffman of Michigan and John Rankin of Mississippi were outraged over Program #64 as were other pro-fascist members. Such outbursts of indignation from those aligned with the fascists on Capitol Hill soon led to the destruction of the top-rated Orientation Courses. In effect, the pro-fascists in Congress did not want the GIs to know the truth of what they were fighting and dying for.

There is one other contributing factor during this time: the general lack of education of the average GI, which stresses the need for programs such as the Army's Orientation Courses. In 1947, the average level of education for all adults was only 8.6 years, 75% did not complete high school. In 1947, only 19% of the voters had a generally correct view of the Wagner act according to a Gallup poll. Another 69% simply didn't know and the remainder gave wrong answers.

Even by 1951, only eight percent of adults could properly define the meanings of monopoly, antitrust suit, the Sherman Act and interlocking directories.²⁷ The low level of education left 80% highly subjective to anyone's propaganda. In short, the majority of the voters were dupes for whoever could shout the loudest. The same pro-fascist block in Congress would soon replace the Orientation Course with an anti-communism program.

Extended history of Britain's role in the war

"In forming the UNWCC, the British selected Sir Cecil Hurst as their representative. Hurst was legal advisor to the Foreign Office and sat on the Permanent Court of International Justice. The British asked both Washington and Moscow to select their representatives and proposed the American representative should be the chairman of the commission.

The State Department legal advisor, Green Hackwood thought the candidate should not be selected solely on the basis of criminal law but also on the basis of understanding of international geopolitics. Secretary Of State, Cordell Hull wanted Francis Biddle the US Attorney General to fill the spot. Biddle on the other hand rejected the position. After four months of internal wrangling inside the State Department, Roosevelt named his friend Herbert Pell to fill the position. Pell had served in the sixty-sixth congress as a representative from New York and as America's minister in Portugal and Hungary. Hull accepted the nomination despite Pell's lack of any legal background. However, others within the State Department immediately set out to sabotage Pell and his mission.

Pell was unknown in England despite his earlier diplomatic service. An initial impression of him came from Ham Armstrong, a State Department official and was forwarded to London by J. Forester of the British Embassy in Washington. Forester had gained his information from Armstrong charged that Pell was a disappointing political appointment and the man would contribute little to the commission. Forester then met Pell and concluded that he is not unintelligent but seemed set in his ways. The British embassy official believed Pell's knowledge of war crimes was slight although he had already seemed to have formulated certain fixed views on policy. He concluded that Pell believed that war criminals should be brought before an international tribunal but that the tribunal should not be bound by Anglo-Saxon rules of evidence. Further Forester stated that Pell believed there should be no appeal of sentences and that execution of those sentenced to death be carried out immediately after pronouncement of the verdict.

Following his appointment, Pell's relationship with the State Department grew more tense. The State Department actively sought steps to constrain whatever policies Pell wanted to take. By the time Pell departed for London, he had concluded that the State Department did not regard war crimes as a legitimate concern. Pell was surprised that not a single official within the State Department was responsible for dealing with war crime issues.

On October 20, 1943, representatives from seventeen nations met in London to inaugurate the UNWCC. The Soviets were absent. The Dutch representative offered a view differing from the British view that the commission should be limited to investigating and recording evidence of war crimes. The Dutch proposed the commission should be actively involved in preparing the trials. The Chinese representative raised another troublesome point for the British. The Chinese wanted to include all war crimes dating back to the Japanese invasion of Manchuria in 1931. The British feared granting this request would open the door for the Czechs to demand investigations back to the time of the Munich agreement in which the British role was less than exemplary. Beyond a vote to establish the commission and choosing the location of the headquarters nothing substantial was accomplished.

The Soviets refusal to participate in the opening meeting did not deter Stalin from joining the Allies in a joint statement condemning German atrocities. On November 1, the big three signed the Moscow Declaration dealing with the punishment of war criminals. The document ended with the following words.

"Let those who have hitherto not imbrued their hands with innocent blood beware lest they join the ranks of the guilty, for most assuredly the three Allied Powers will pursue them to the uttermost ends of the earth and will deliver them to their accusers in order that justice may be done. The above declaration is without prejudice to the case of major criminals, whose offences have no particular geographical localization and who will be punished by the joint decision of the Governments of the Allies."²⁶

This statement was the only substantial agreement among the Allies concerning punishment of war criminals among the big three. Although its principles served as a guide for the Allies, it did nothing to bridge the differences to bring the Soviets into the UNWCC. The Soviets and the British would remain at odds over the British demand to include the Dominions, but not the various Soviet Republics. There were other obstacles to Soviet participation particularly the failure of the Allies to open a second front in 1942.

In mid-July 1943, the Soviet Union put eleven Soviet citizens on trial for high treason for assisting the German forces around the town of Krasnodar and their role in assisting the Germans in the liquidation of 7,000 people. Eight Soviets were sentenced to hang the remaining defendants were deported or sentenced to twenty years of hard labor. Moscow apparently wished to demonstrate its commitment to the punishment of war criminals and its desire for a joint policy. The Soviets held numerous German POWs including many believed to be guilty of war crimes.

Several weeks after the hangings the Soviet scholar Professor A. Farrin published an English version of War and the Working Class. This publication hinted at being the official viewpoint of the Soviet Union. The article divided war criminals into four classes. The first class included Hitler and his cabinet ministers. The second class included party leaders and the German Army Command. The third class was composed of the financial and industrial leaders. The fourth group was defined as those that had benefited from the Nazi plundering such as those receiving stolen goods or those who exploited slave labor.

At Teheran, Stalin attempted to translate Farrin's principles into numbers. Only two weeks after the Teheran conference the Soviets put on trial three Germans and a Russian collaborator in Kharkov. The defendants were accused of using gas vans (vans in which the exhaust was pumped into the compartment holding prisoners), shooting of POWs and the execution of thousands of Soviet citizens. Once again, the trial also brought charges against the heads of the Nazi government. On December 19, the four defendants were hanged. American reporters that followed the trial were convinced of the guilt of the defendants and of the genuineness of the charges. They also thought the Soviets had been punctilious in observing legal proprieties.

The Khakov trial opened an old wound between the Soviets and London. The Soviets had always been in favor of immediate trials while both London and Washington wanted to wait until the end of the war before beginning trials. The desire to wait until the end of the war by Britain and the US was not unjustified. Both feared such trials could provoke retaliations by the Nazis against British and American POWs.

The Nazi government, within days of the trial, sought to drive a wedge between the big three by threatening to put POWs on trial for serious breaches of international law. In January 1944, information reached Washington of a protest by high military officers in Germany against any trials of American or British POWs in reprisal to the Russian trials. At the end of March, Germany published a statement saying that the preparations for trials of POWs for war crimes were well advanced. Britain and the US asked the Soviets to refrain from holding any more trials until after the war's end. Russia complied.

Just prior to the Teheran Conference, Churchill proposed a radical plan of summary executions of high-ranking Nazis accused of war crimes that were not limited to a particular geographic location. Churchill's plan was that the nearest officer of major general rank would convene a court of inquiry not for the determination of guilt but solely to establish identity. Once identified the officer would order his execution within six hours.

Churchill approved a short list of war criminals that would be subject to his proposal. The Foreign Office opposed his plan, as did the Soviets.

The Roosevelt administration was divided on the terms of post war Germany and war crimes. Morgenthau urged for a hard peace and broad war crime investigations. Secretary of War, Stimson, led a faction sympathetic to Germany. The military had prepared the booklet, Handbook of Military Government, which reflected the views of the top officials within the military favoring an immediate restoration of Germany. Many of the military officers thought we were fighting the wrong enemy and should be at war with the Soviets rather than the Nazis. Under pressure from Morgenthau, Roosevelt wondering how such a document came to be written and who approved it, ordered Stimson to have the booklet rewritten. Roosevelt's comments follows:

"It gives me the impression that Germany is to be restored just as much as the Netherlands or Belgium, and the people of Germany brought back as quickly as possible to their pre-war state. I do not want to starve them to death but as an example, if they should be fed three times a day with soup from army soap kitchens. That will keep them perfectly healthy and they will remember that experience all their lives. The fact that they are a defeated nation, collectively and individually, must be so impressed on them that they will hesitate to start a new war."²⁷

Roosevelt further criticized the document during the Aug 28 cabinet meeting, in which he named Morgenthau, Hull, Stimson and Hopkins to a committee for determining the treatment of Germany after the war. Stimson was harshly opposed to the harsh treatment Roosevelt wanted for Germany. He passed on Roosevelt's request to rewrite the handbook to his aide, John McCloy, whom in turn passed it on to Murray Bernays. Bernays was opposed to any action on war crimes until after the war ended. He feared reprisals against American POWs. Nevertheless in November 1944, Bernays' ideas on prosecution of war criminals were presented to FDR in a memo from Secretary of War, Henry Stimson, and Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, entitled The Trial and Punishment of European War Criminals. It was Bernays' work that provided the framework and legal theory behind the Nuremberg trials. Although Jewish, Bernays' own doubt over the reports and the inability to grasp the reality of the Holocaust played a role in his views.

On September 5 Morgenthau presented Roosevelt with a comprehensive memorandum titled Program to Prevent Germany from Starting a World War III. The memorandum soon became known as the Morgenthau Plan and called for complete dismantling of Germany's industrial might and severe punishment for war crimes. Since, the State Department already had possession of documents indicting the Nazis were prepared to go underground and start a new war, Roosevelt had reasons to reject an easy peace with Germany.

Stimson was vigorously opposed the Morgenthau Plan and was soon joined by George Marshall and General Myron Cramer. Thus at the time when Roosevelt departed for the Quebec conference his administration had no set policy on the course of action for postwar Germany. Roosevelt left for Quebec without any senior aides. In Quebec, it soon became obvious to Roosevelt that Churchill's main focus was on postwar aid to Britain. Consequently, Roosevelt placed a call to his Treasury Secretary. Morgenthau then rushed to the conference, resulting in the Quebec conference concluding with agreement on the Morgenthau Plan for post war Germany.

Before the end of September, the press was leaked the contents of the Morgenthau Plan which, came under heavy fire. With only six weeks to the election, Dewey saw his chances for victory over Roosevelt improved. Dewey charged that with such a heavy-handed plan, Roosevelt was prolonging the war and America was paying for it in blood.

Roosevelt suspected persons within the State Department of the leaks to the press.

Leaks such as this one might have been nothing more than someone with a big mouth. The timing of the leak suggests political motivation. However, Nazi documents captured after the war indicate that it may have been an integral part of Nazi planning. A directive issued by the Chief of intelligence Division of the German High Command, Admiral Canaris of March 15, 1944 part of which follows here casts a suspicious eye towards Nazi intrigue.

"There is great fear in the USA of Bolshevism. The opposition against Roosevelt's alliance with Stalin grows constantly. Our chances for success are good, if we succeed to stir up influential circles against Roosevelt's policy. This can be done through clever pieces of information, or by references to unsuspecting neutral ecclesiastical contact men.

We have at our command in the United States efficient contacts, which have been carefully kept up even during the war. The campaign of hatred stirred up by Roosevelt and the Jews against everything German has been temporarily silenced the pro-German bloc in the USA. However, there is every hope that this situation will be completely changed within a few months. If the Republicans succeed in defeating Roosevelt in the coming election, it will greatly influence American conduct of the war towards us.

The KO-leaders abroad and their staffs have innumerable opportunities of constantly referring to Roosevelt's hate policy. They must use in this campaign all the existing contacts and they should try to open new channels. We must point to the danger Germany may be forced to cooperate with Russia. The greatest caution has to be observed in all talks and negotiations by those who, as "anti-Nazis" maintain contact with the enemy. When fulfilling missions, they have to comply strictly with instructions."28

The above document now casts all such leaks and reports in the press appearing in the later stages of the war as Nazi intrigue or propaganda. As shown in the previous chapters the Nazis had willing accomplices in Congress, the military, and the press and industrial leaders. The reader also should be alerted to the reference to that if the Republican Party could win the election they would alter the American conduct of the war. The previous chapters have detailed the collaboration between the Nazis and the Republican Party.

In the 1940, election Herbert Hoover had collaborated with top Nazis in Berlin in an effort to unseat FDR. Did the Republicans again collaborated with the Nazis in 1944 and offered them an easy peace for their support in the 1944 elections? The question for now must remain unanswered. However, laying in vault and probably marked top secret there is a document that can answer the question either yes or no definitively. There is no question however, that starting around 1944 or so that the media in the United States started to print many editorials and articles for an easy peace with Germany. Many of those no doubt were the direct result of the Nazi directive above.

In mid-December 1943, the Czech representative to UNWCC proposed it be resolved that the UNWCC was fully competent to handle all aspects of the war crimes tribunal and should not be limited to just examination of dossiers and the compilation of a list of war criminals. The resolution succeeded.

Up until the end of the war there was no accepted definition of war crimes. In the absence of an official definition of war crimes British treasury solicitor Tom Barnes, who headed the British National Office for War Crimes informed Hurst that he was unable to submit any cases of war crimes or names of war criminals because of that lack.

By mid-May, the committee suggested four categories of war crimes. The first was crimes committed for the preparation of war. The second, crimes committed in Allied countries against armed forces or civilians. The third included crimes committed against persons without regard to nationality, race, religion or political beliefs. The last category was reserved for those crimes perpetrated in order to prevent the restoration of peace. The committee failed however, to supply a definition of war crimes or to draw up an exhaustive list of war crimes.

One of the issues the committee failed to reach agreement on before the end of the war was whether a war of aggression amounted to a war crime. No vote was ever taken on this question by the committee. It wasn't until after the London conference of June 26-Aug 8, 1945 at the insistence of the United States that the UNWCC included waging an aggressive war as a war crime.

In its first five months of operation, the UNWCC listed only 70 cases of war crimes. Half of these were so incomplete that the commission could not make a determination, others were trivial. Not a single case at the time was lodged against any prominent Nazi leader. The main reason for the small number of cases was due to the difficulty of obtaining precise information from occupied territories while the POWs and labor camps remained in Nazi hands.

At the beginning of June 1944, committee chairman Hurst met unofficially with Eisenhower's staff. Based on the conclusion of this meeting Hurst recommended an establishment of a war crimes agency attached to SHAEF. The Foreign Office sabotaged such a proposal and SHAEF formally rejected it.

In November 1944, Czech government decided to list Hitler as a war criminal. The British representative was opposed to such a listing until the German constitution could be examined. In December 1944, the commission presented a list of 712 names of German and Italian war criminals including the names of top Nazis such as Hitler, Himmler and 17 generals. In all 49, top Nazis were listed.

Perhaps the most contentious issue that came before the UNWCC was the Jewish issue. In August 1942, the Foreign Office and the State Department received a report from Dr. Gerhart Riegera a representative of the World Jewish Congress in Geneva, stating that plans were under consideration in Berlin in which all Jews in Europe would be deported and concentrated in the East and with one blow be exterminated. Both the Foreign Office and the State Department disbelieved the report and failed to pass it on. Reports of further atrocities against the Jews continued to pile up. The British Foreign Office believed the massacres of the Jews could not be considered a war crimes and sought to limit all war crimes to crimes committed against the citizens of Allied nations and then only after the date of the Polish invasion.

Almost immediately after beginning work in the UNWCC, Pell on his own initiative raised the question of crimes perpetrated by the Nazis against citizens of the Reich. His assistant from the State Department, Laurence Preuss opposed the proposal. Preuss in an effort to undermined Pell reported in an unofficial and confidential letter to the State Department Pell's actions. In fact, it was Pell's actions that served as a catalyst for the commission to include this issue. Preuss had also informed the Foreign Office the Pell was making dangerous mistakes. This issue of including crimes before 1939 against citizens of Germany was never adopted by the commission due to the actions of the British Foreign Office and the US State Department. In fact, the issue would lead shortly to the removal of Pell.

Another problem that plagued the commission was the type of court to use to prosecute war criminals. Pell informed the State Department that unanimous agreement had been reached on the treatment of war crimes conducted within a single country. In crimes involving more than a single country, Pell proposed that international authority should handle such cases. Pell also urged FDR to establish some machinery of justice that could act firmly and quickly.

Pell's proposal and initiative irritated Hull, who believed the commission should restrict itself to the collection of evidence. Roosevelt preferred a military court and conveyed that opinion to Pell. On February 1944, a subcommittee chaired by Pell began examining the question of an international court. On September 22, Pell's subcommittee formally issued the final draft on the Convention for Establishment of a United Nations Joint Court. The full UNWCC approved the draft on September 26, 1944.

In January 1945, Hurst submitted his resignation as a result of a dispute with the Foreign Office. The Foreign Office was well aware of the tireless and relentless efforts of Pell to bring the Nazis to justice. They feared Pell would be elected chairman as a replacement for Hurst. The State Department was likewise upset with Pell's criticism of inaction by State.

Pell's appointment had been a thorn in the side of Hackworth, the State Department's legal advisor from the very beginning. In December 1944, Hackworth informed Pell that the issue of an international court was an issue being considered by several departments: State, War and Navy. Hackworth emphatically refused Pell's request to attend meetings at which these questions were debated.

Hackworth already knew Pell would be removed as a result of Congress's decision to defund Pell's $30,000 budget. The State Department now headed by Stettinius following Hull's resignation proposed to FDR that America's representative on the UNWCC be carried out by an army officer. On January 9, 1945 Hackworth and Stettinis ignominiously sacked Pell. On January 29, 1945 the undersecretary, Joseph Grew came under attack by the press over Pell's dismissal. One reporter questioned the State Department's record in the Senate hearings on appropriations for Pell's office. The Senate's records indicted that Hackworth's assistant Katherine Fate, appeared before the Senate committee for funding Pell's position lasted less than three minutes. Once again, a dedicated anti-Nazi was removed by the invisible hands of the pro-fascists within Congress and the Department of State.

The removal of both Hurst and Pell in January 1945 from the UNWCC brought about strong press commentary on the collapse of the committee. However, the committee continued operations until March 31, 1948. In four and half years the commission had presented 80 lists containing the names of 36,529 suspected war criminals of which 34,270 were German. The UNWCC eagerness to advance preparations in dealing with war crimes was opposed vigorously by both the British Foreign Office and the US State Department. Both regarded the UNWCC as a political necessity to be exploited in neutralizing demands for reprisal by governments in exile. While the UNWCC committee was created with the noblest intentions in reality, it served no real purpose than to talk to death the crimes of the Holocaust. Certainly, it faced obstructionists from both the United States and Britain. “

Bilderburg meetings the greatness of the CFR

“Bilderberg Group. Meeting Participants. June 3-6, 1999 in Portugal.

The name "Bilderberg" came from the group's first meeting place, the Hotel de Bilderberg of Oosterbeek, Holland, in May 1954. Over the next 47 years the secret meetings have included most of the top ruling-class players from Western Europe and America. Until he was implicated in the Lockheed bribery scandal in 1976, Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands served as chairman. By now Bilderberg is a symbol of world management by Atlanticist elites. Some observers, particularly those on the Right, feel that it borders on the conspiratorial, while the Left is primarily interested in its implications for what they call "power structure research." The Bilderberg participants from the U.S. are almost always members of the Council on Foreign Relations, and since 1973 Japanese elites have been brought into the fold through a third overlapping group, the Trilateral Commission.

This list of 111 participants from 24 countries was found on the Web. While discussions during the sessions are not reported publicly, the list of participants is usually available. Those attending are always careful to insist that they participate as individuals and not as representatives of their government. Since top leaders of major countries attend, it appears that this is a convenient fiction designed to sidestep public scrutiny"

Opus Dei's New World Order

"Boettcher, Robert. Gifts of Deceit: Sun Myung Moon, Tongsun Park, and the Korean Scandal. New York: Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 1980. 402 pages.

Robert Boettcher was the staff director of the House Subcommittee on International Relations, which investigated the Koreagate scandal and Moon's ties to the Korean CIA. This is his inside story of the scandal, which involved bribery, corruption, coercion, big business, the arms industry, international trade, front organizations, U.S. Congressmen with their snouts in the trough, and KCIA colonels pouring in bags of cash. By 1977, Koreagate had spawned five investigations, but only one Congressman, Richard Hanna, went to jail.

Rev. Moon survived the scandal despite evidence that he was working for the Koreans. Ironically, he was helped by his conviction for tax evasion, which projected the image of a martyr for religious freedom and allowed him to mobilize support. Today Moonies no longer have to sell flowers at airports; his corporate and media empire spans the globe.

Not surprisingly, the issue of foreign influence that was raised by Koreagate emerged again in the 1992 campaign. Now, however, the same access to power is purchased legally -- through PACs, lobbying, and paying fat salaries to shameless former U.S. trade officials. Have a nice New World Order.

More on the Banking hand of god

“Bill, James A. The Eagle and the Lion: The Tragedy of American-Iranian Relations. New Haven CT: Yale University Press, 1988. 520 pages.

Iran has oil and it borders the former Soviet Union. These were two excellent reasons for the interest that Britain and the U.S. had in Iranian affairs since World War II. After the CIA-sponsored coup in 1953 that installed the shah, American elites held his caviar and champagne in high regard, not to mention their profits from arms sales. It was the job of SAVAK, the secret police founded by the CIA and trained by Mossad, to keep the rabble quiet. As late as September 28, 1978, several months before one of the major revolutions of the twentieth century, the U.S. Defense Intelligence Agency reported that the shah "is expected to remain actively in power over the next ten years." (page 258)

Even after the revolution, private policymakers such as Kissinger and Rockefeller apparently managed one last scam. The author explains how Chase Manhattan Bank, which feared that the new Iranian government might withdraw their funds and repudiate the shah's loans, had nothing to lose by lobbying Washington for the admission of the shah into the U.S. This resulted in the takeover of our embassy, the freezing of Iranian assets, and a declaration of default by Chase that allowed them to seize those assets to offset the loans. "In the end, the resolution of the crisis clearly benefitted the American banking community." (page 344)

Kissinger's secrets

“Center for Strategic and International Studies, 1800 K Street NW, Washington DC 20006, Tel: 202-887-0200.

Telephone List. June 1988.

In 1986 some sleepy Georgetown University officials finally looked at CSIS, curious about what the 140 fellows and their supporting staff had been doing for the last 24 years. For sure, CSIS was almost militaristic and they played the major media like a piano. In 1985 alone they proudly counted 4,100 contacts -- TV appearances, op-ed pieces, and quotations in news stories. But was it academic? So Georgetown severed all ties, and it didn't even slow CSIS down. With independent financing (the $8 million budget is raised from Scaife, Rockefeller, Carnegie, Ford, and some Saudis), CSIS pundits and talking heads were back in force during the Gulf War.

In the 1970s, the issue for students was the intelligence connections of numerous CSIS fellows; at that time Ray Cline was their Director of Studies. Some of his shady colleagues were still at CSIS in the 1980s: George Carver, Penelope Hartland-Thunberg, Michael Ledeen, Walter Laqueur, as well as heavies like Edward Luttwak, James Schlesinger, Henry Kissinger, and Zbigniew Brzezinski. They harmonized well with interventionist U.S. policymakers. And under the cover of disinterested scholars, they were able to play their monotonous tunes at a much greater volume. “

Sale of the assets, companies of Prescott Bush

“Follett, Ken. On Wings of Eagles. New York: Penguin Books, 1984. 414 pages. Ross Perot was one of IBM's top salesmen in 1962, when he founded Electronic Data Systems (EDS), a computer services company. He took the company public in 1968, which made his 78 percent of the stock worth $1.5 billion. In 1969 Perot flew to Hanoi with Christmas dinners for American POWs. His interest in the POW issue continued, but his most famous adventure was the rescue depicted in this book. In 1984 Perot sold EDS to General Motors for cash, stock, and a seat on the GM board. When he began criticizing GM's management, they bought him out to shut him up. In 1992 he challenged the two-party system with a homespun message of patriotic concern about greed, corruption, and overspending in high places, and the need to reduce the deficit and rebuild America's productive capacity. Perot is treated with disdain by self-satisfied media pundits and other Roman fiddlers, which has convinced millions of ordinary Americans that he's doing something right.

Perot cooperated with author Ken Follett and allowed himself to be depicted in NBC's film version of this book. In 1979 two American executives who worked for EDS in Iran were arbitrarily imprisoned by the revolution. Perot hired "Bull" Simons, a legend from the Green Berets, to plan and execute a breakout. With the help of envelopes stuffed with his cash, Perot, Simons, and a team of EDS employees managed to spring the two executives in a series of high-risk escapades without anyone getting hurt.

Remnants of the Nazis

“Higham, Charles. American Swastika. Garden City NY: Doubleday, 1985. 332 pages. Charles Higham, a former New York Times correspondent, also wrote a book on corporate America's ties to the Nazis from 1933-1949 titled "Trading With the Enemy" (1983), but "American Swastika" is somewhat less focused. It may have been written to utilize all the material he couldn't fit into the earlier effort; each chapter in "American Swastika" is fairly independent of the others.

This book concerns noncorporate American connections to Nazis, as well as to their fifth columnists and sympathizers among the Romanians and White Russians. Over half of the book covers the period before and during World War II, and the remainder covers the Cold War period. Some of the individuals discussed include Klaus Barbie, William Bullitt, Charles Coughlin, Hamilton Fish, Allen Dulles, Reinhard Gehlen, Joseph Kennedy, Tyler Kent, Nicolae Malaxa, George Moseley, Walter Schellenberg, Otto Skorzeny, Viorel Trifa, Otto von Bolschwing, and Anastase Vonsiatsky.

Higham receive extensive help in his researches from the Simon Wiesenthal Center in Los Angeles, and utilized 28,000 pages of U.S. government documents that are now stored in the author's collection at the University of Southern California library.

Policies of the Opus

"Judis, John B. William F. Buckley, Jr.: Patron Saint of the Conservatives. New York: Simon & Schuster, 1988. 528 pages.

When William F. Buckley, Jr., founded The National Review in 1955, U.S. conservatives were our "stupid party" (as J.S. Mill called England's Tories). Real intellectuals, it seemed then, derived from the New Deal -- or the left. Conservative thinking, such as it was, had mixed and mostly dubious antecedents: e.g., American nativism; pre-"Vatican II" Catholicism; the mystical anticommunism of Whittaker Chambers; or the cultish (as it seemed then) laissez-faire of Austrian economist Friedrich Hayek.

Buckley and his magazine changed all that. John Judis's massive biography details how Buckley helped create conservative readers and institutions (e.g., Young Americans for Freedom) that made politicians like Goldwater and Reagan possible. As a Yale and a CIA agent, and as the dutiful son of a rich oil wildcatter who was also a devout Catholic, Buckley's own life bridged many of the varieties of conservatism that later would fuse in the Reagan 80s -- and which now may once again be coming apart. Judis's account also suggests (to me, at least) that politics remains for Buckley the intellectual game he first practiced as a brilliant, devout, eager-to-please child on his father's estate.

Richest of all of Rapp family friends

"Kessler, Ronald. The Richest Man in the World: The Story of Adnan Khashoggi. New York: Warner Books, 1986. 274 pages.

One example of wretched excess in the twentieth century is wheeler- dealer Adnan Khashoggi. He liked to throw extravagant parties for beautiful people and classy prostitutes at one of his twelve fully-staffed residences, on his $70 million yacht, or on one of his three commercial-size airplanes. His wealth, estimated at $4 billion in 1986, came from hefty commissions for arranging deals between U.S. defense contractors and the Saudi royal family. For years our mass media favored him with fawning reports on his lifestyle. Author Ronald Kessler does some of this, but fortunately this book is redeemed with a significant amount of investigative material.

Kessler wrote this at the peak of Khashoggi's career. Soon Khashoggi found himself in the middle of the Iran-contra scandal because of his work with Manucher Ghorbanifar in setting up several of the arms-for-hostages deals. Some of these deals were connected with BCCI, where Khashoggi was a major client. In 1988 he and Imelda Marcos were indicted in Manhattan for helping her late husband hide assets that belonged to the Philippine people. Khashoggi was arrested in Switzerland and extradited, but he and Imelda were acquitted in 1990. At last report (March 1992), Khashoggi sold his yacht and creditors impounded his jet. He lives mostly in Spain, is still fighting his legal battles, and was down to his last $54 million.

Nazi escape

"Loftus, John. The Belarus Secret. New York: Alfred A. Knopf, 1982. 197 pages. Edited by Nathan Miller.

For over two years, John Loftus was a prosecutor in the Justice Department's Office of Special Investigations, where he investigated the war crimes and subsequent activities of the Belorussian Nazis. In this capacity he coordinated a highly-classified inquiry called the "Belarus Project." This book describes what Loftus uncovered from the files of several U.S. government agencies.

In 1948 a secret section of the State Department began recruiting Belorussian war criminals for guerrilla warfare inside the Soviet bloc. When the operations failed, these Nazi collaborators were allowed to settle in the U.S. As recently as 1978, government departments were lying to Congress in an effort to cover up this history. Loftus blew the whistle on CBS's "60 Minutes" in May 1982, drawing headlines across the nation.

The use of former Nazis by U.S. intelligence is also covered comprehensively in "Blowback" by Christopher Simpson (1988). In another twist to this curious history, Mark Aaron teams up with Loftus to examine the Vatican's Nazi-smuggling and its probable infiltration by Soviet intelligence in "Unholy Trinity" (1992).

Knights Malta open up House: John E. Bush and the Templars

"The Mosaic Templars of America, a black fraternal organization founded in Little Rock in 1882 by John E. Bush and Chester W. Keatts, was created primarily to provide insurance and other services to its members. By the 1920s, the Templars had amassed one of the largest concentrations of black-owned capital in the United States. The organization's holdings included an insurance company, a building and loan association, a publishing company, a business college, a nursing school, and a hospital - all serving its 100,000 members in twenty six states and six foreign countries.

When the Mosaic Templars of America organization was in its prime, six separate retail tenants occupied the first floor of the Headquarters Building located at Ninth and Broadway Street.

Chester W. Keatts, Co-Founder of the Mosaic Templars of America

Mosaic Templar's offices and other professional businesses filled the second floor. The third floor auditorium, with balconied fourth floor, was noted for its premier ballroom. In addition to dances, high school graduations and political gatherings were also held in the auditorium. In 1913, Tuskegee Institute President, Booker T. Washington, traveled to Little Rock to deliver the official dedication speech for the Headquarters Building in the auditorium before a crowd of 2,100 persons.

The Headquarters Building, constructed in 1911 under the supervision of local Civil Engineer and Surveyor, Frank M. Blaisdell, is listed in the National Register of Historic Places.

The Mosaic Templars of America is now recognized as one of the great endeavors in the history of the State and Little Rock. For nearly forty years, the Mosaic Templars' Headquarters Building was the anchor of the thriving black social and economic district on Ninth Street. The economic effect and example set by the Mosaic Templars were felt throughout the state, the nation, and beyond.

Unfortunately, however, like many successful businesses, the Mosaic Templars of America, failed during the era of the Great Depression.

The Mosaic Templars Cultural Center

The largest of three buildings constructed by the Templars organization, the National Headquarters Building still stands at Ninth and Broadway and is the site of the new Mosaic Templars Cultural Center. Once complete in early 2006, the Cultural Center will encompass the entire 22,800 square-foot building. The first floor will include exhibit spaces, a small theater, a museum store, restroom facilities, and exhibit preparation areas. A preserved suite of second floor offices will house Mosaic Templars Cultural Center staff, provide support space, and a classroom.

Police Detective Sam Spight® and driver.

The third floor auditorium and stage will remain, with new restrooms and storage accommodations. Two new 2-hour stair towers are proposed, along with the addition of an elevator, lobbies, and housing for mechanical equipment. The original monumental stair from 1st to 2nd floor will be reconstructed in the central hall accessed by the pedimented main entrance. Designated space adjacent to the Center will provide ample parking.

The mission of the Cultural Center is to collect, preserve, interpret, and celebrate Arkansas's African American culture and community from 1870 to the present, and to inform and educate the public about black achievement - especially in business, politics, and the arts.

Young baseball players

Continuing the tradition of the Mosaic Templars, the Center will be a place for community sharing and education; a place that inspires innovation, entrepreneurship, and achievement.

While the Center is under renovation, MTCC staff is organizing research for the creation of exhibits, and related educational and cultural programming. The Center will tell the story of the Mosaic Templars Headquarters Building, the original Templars organization, the once-vibrant black business corridor of Ninth Street, and the neighboring community. A key exhibit will feature a simulated 'Foster's Drug Store', a corner shop originally located in the Headquarters Building during the 1920s. UAMS College of Pharmacy, will develop the exhibit. For more information on the history of the building and how it was saved, visit the website of the Mosaic Templars Building Preservation Society.

Approximately $3 million has been raised for refurbishment of the building. However, additional funding is needed to complete the 3rd floor auditorium and for operations, exhibits and programming. Renovation is expected to continue through 2006."

Fraud and Treachery, the rising Opus

"Fitzgerald, A. Ernest. The Pentagonists: An Insider's View of Waste, Mismanagement, and Fraud in Defense Spending. Boston: Houghton Mifflin, 1989. 344 pages.

Ernest Fitzgerald is perhaps the most famous whistle-blower in Washington. While employed by the Pentagon as an engineer and cost expert, he testified to Congress in 1968 and 1969 about the concealed cost overruns and the technical problems of the Lockheed C-5A transport plane. He was fired by Nixon for telling the truth, and wrote about it in "The High Priests of Waste" (1972). After a 14-year legal battle against duplicitous Pentagon brass and self-serving executive-branch careerists, a federal judge ruled that the Air Force had to restore Fitzgerald to his former position.

That happened just as the new Reagan administration handed the Pentagon a blank check for bigger and better procurement scandals. Some years later, congressional committees were clucking over $748 pliers and $500 cotter pins, and then they'd walk away from the issue (they knew that congressmen come and go, but Pentagon generals live forever). Fitzgerald's politics are centrist, yet he considers America "the world's largest banana republic." (page 3) "In other banana republics the military comes to power with a sudden coup and the installation of a junta. Here it is different....

America runs on money. And the military has quietly come to vast economic power by taking vast amounts of the federal income for itself." (page 70)

Overseas Global International reach of the Opus

"Hougan, Jim. Spooks: The Haunting of America -- The Private Use of Secret Agents. New York: Bantam Books, 1979. 481 pages.

A ground-breaking investigative survey of parapolitical America, "Spooks" was one of the first books to report on the privatization of the intelligence function: the application of intelligence practices to commercial activities, and the emergence of CIAs-for-hire in the private sector. Within this general framework, Hougan unearths great chunks of America's "secret history." The war between Jimmy Hoffa and the Kennedy family is seen to have had a public and a private side, with the latter fought by countermeasures genius Bernard Spindel against "an archipelago" of public and private intelligence agencies working for Bobby and Jack.

Calling Howard Hughes "an American Dracula," Hougan offers a blow-by-blow account of the bedside battle fought by Intertel and former CIA agent Robert Maheu for control over the drug-addicted billionaire's body and empire. Other sections of the book describe Robert Vesco's assault on Investors Overseas Services; Richard Nixon's "French connection" to industrialist Paul Louis Weiller; the efforts of paramilitary wizard Mitch WerBell and CIA superspook Lucien Conein to introduce a "final solution" to the War on Drugs; and the World War II background of Japanese and German agents who played key roles in the Lockheed bribery scandal. Packed with anecdotes, footnotes, and proper names, "Spooks" is a classic.

Industrial "Revolution" Viva La Opus

"Mollenhoff, Clark R. The Pentagon. New York: G.P. Putnam's Sons, 1967. 450 pages.

Clark Mollenhoff was a Pulitzer-winning reporter who had been with the Washington bureau of Cowles Publications for seventeen years before writing this book. But a comprehensive study of the Pentagon requires more access than either the General Accounting Office or a slew of Congressional subcommittees has ever been able to muster, and is certainly beyond the means of a mere reporter. Instead Mollenhoff presents 35 short chapters, each of which amounts to a brief but suggestive case study of a different tip of the Pentagon iceberg.

After several short chapters that cover War Department corruption and mismanagement from the Civil War through World War II, he then gets into more current issues with chapter titles that include names such as Howard Hughes, Benny Meyers, Harold Talbott, Robert McNamara, Roswell Gilpatric, and Fred Korth. Other chapters concern various weapon systems procurement scandals, the Pentagon's "black" budget, kickbacks for generals disguised as consulting or travel-expense fees, nonprofits such as Aerospace Corporation that contract with the military and suck in huge amounts for questionable expenditures, and the "profit pyramid," where layers of subcontractors each add on their profit margins and pass the bill up to the next level until it finally reaches the Pentagon and the taxpayer.

The living Corporate Nightmare: Viva La Opus

""Wise, David and Ross, Thomas B. The Invisible Government. New York: Vintage Books, 1974. Reprint of the 1964 Random House edition. 379 pages.

With chapters on the Bay of Pigs, Burma, Indonesia, Laos, Vietnam, and Guatemala, as well as information on Iran, Egypt, Costa Rica, and even the Gehlen Org, this 1964 book was amazingly comprehensive about U.S. covert activities. Other chapters include the NSA, DIA, covert shortwave radio, and electronic spying. Until these revelations, literature concerning the CIA consisted only of puff-piece memoirs and anecdotes by ethically- myopic, compartmented former agents. It took too long for American journalism to discover that they didn't have the story.

With all of the literature about the CIA over the past two decades, it is easy to forget that for the first half of the Agency's history, almost nothing was in the public domain. Washington journalist David Wise changed all of that with "The Invisible Government" in 1964. CIA director John McCone called in Wise and co-author Thomas Ross to demand deletions on the basis of galleys the CIA had secretly obtained. When that didn't work, the CIA formed a special group to deal with the book and tried to secure bad reviews, even though the CIA's legal counsel had found the book "uncannily accurate." As the unofficial dean of intelligence journalists, Wise is still working on future books from his Washington office.

Christianity and Crisis

I haven't read this "Journal of Christian Opinion" since the 1970s, and by the mid-1990s it had folded. Published out of New York City, it used to be one of the best nondenominational, somewhat left-of-liberal, ethically-articulate journals available that was still a card-carrying member of the Establishment. By this I mean that they were close to the World and National Council of Churches, and to Union Theological (Rockefeller money), and also the fact that Reinhold Niebuhr, the darling of the strategists at the U.S. State Department during the 1950s, was carried on the masthead for many years. On issues such as their opposition to U.S. policy in Vietnam and their support for human rights everywhere, Christianity and Crisis was always consistent. Even after Niebuhr's name was removed, this still left a number of religious scholar-activists of independent conscience as contributing editors: John C. Bennett, Robert McAfee Brown, Harvey Cox, Rosemary Ruether, and William Stringfellow, for example. (I took a course from Bennett and another from Brown at Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley in 1975-76; Brown let me write my paper on the recent U.S. meddling in Chile.) In their August 7, 1972 issue, Christianity and Crisis had the good taste to publish an article by me titled "Notes From the Late Student Movement." -- D.Brandt

Herman, Edward S. and O'Sullivan, Gerry. The "Terrorism" Industry: The Experts and Institutions That Shape Our View of Terror. New York: Pantheon Books, 1989. 312 pages.

If they don't support U.S. interests we call them "terrorists," but wrap the same activity in a different flag it is always done by "counter- terrorists" or "freedom fighters." This is the first vocabulary lesson to be learned from Washington's McMedia talking heads and think tank mandarins.

The authors describe the experts, examine their many overlapping links with Western intelligence, lobbyists, the security industry, and corporate foundations, and even tabulate their usage of the word "terrorism" in some of their books. They also look at state vs. nonstate terrorism, and the PLO's overpublicized terrorism as opposed to Israel's "sacred" terrorism in terms of the numbers killed, to make the point that media coverage is highly selective. "The mass media, whose structural links to government and the corporate system are already potent, and who are therefore already inclined to accept a state line, are driven further toward closure by the fact that the experts, whose credentials are from affiliation with institutions specializing in terrorism, are supplied them by the industry collective. These experts all follow the approved semantics and model and select and fit facts accordingly.... This reflects an effective propaganda system."

"Spotlight, Washington DC. Published from 1975-2001. Some of the staff started a new paper, American Free Press (www.americanfreepress.net).

This weekly tabloid had 28 pages with some advertising, photos, and a circulation of over 100,000. It was published from 1975-2001 by Liberty Lobby, which was a populist organization founded by Willis Carto. The left was always calling Carto a right-wing anti-Semite, but we found only rare hints of international Jewish banking conspiracies or the like in The Spotlight. It's not the sort of tabloid we would produce, but it covered important material that its critics on the left had ignored in recent years. Spotlight was loosely allied with critics we respect such as Victor Marchetti, Fletcher Prouty, and Mark Lane, and with a broad spectrum of populists. Basically they were anti-elitist, opposed the Gulf War, wanted the JFK assassination reinvestigated, and felt that corruption and conspiracies can be found in high places.

Spotlight went beyond the usual right-wing conspiracy theories concerning the Rockefellers, Kissinger, the Council on Foreign Relations, Trilateralism, and Bilderberg; they also targeted George Bush, the CIA, and "one world" foreign policy. They believed in the Constitution and Populism, which is dubiously vague. But we preferred to index the names in selected Spotlight articles than continue to index the left's denunciations of them. If the left had covered the same issues, we would have changed our mind.

"Washington City Paper, 2390 Champlain Street NW, Washington DC 20009, Tel: 202-332-2100. Mail subs are $35/year (52 issues).

Every major American city apparently offers a free tabloid weekly that specializes in community calendar listings, movie and play reviews, personal ads, a witty column or two, and lots of advertising. Some of them offer occasional investigative pieces, usually on local issues. Washington's version of this phenomenon is called "Washington City Paper," and the editor in recent years has been Jack Shafer. City Paper is perhaps more interesting than most, because the local investigative pieces often have national implications. That's just the way things are in this city.

Apart from the Iran-contra articles we liked, one good investigative piece in City Paper was the 1988-08-12 article by Jon Cohen on the "Finders." (They are an information-gathering cult in DC that made sure they got the first copy of NameBase in 1984; it was confirmed much later that they have significant CIA connections.) Another good piece was the 1993-06-11 article by Alan Green and Larry Zilliox, Jr. on Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church. Hopefully our DC friends will continue to send us similar City Paper articles now that we've moved to Texas. "

Triad continued history

"One of the most important era Saudi Arabia, as a young country, has lived was in the late sixties and early seventies when commissions, kickbacks, and corruption became part of the landscape of that society. The first Ministry to apply corruption to its practice was the Ministry of Defense under the leadership of Sultan bin Abdul Aziz . And no one was more instrumental in helping to bring the business to Saudi Arabia from the West than the famous Adnan Khashoggi. Without any doubt, Adnan is the father of modern Saudi Arabia with one twist. He was driven by greed and money rather than by unselfish ideals. Without him, the system would have been different and the country would have been different. He single handedly brought western business and more specifically the arms business to Saudi Arabia. It all started in 1969 when Sultan, ignorant about the way to do business but hungry for corruption and money, asked Adnan, then a young, intelligent, ambitious young man to help him buy some arms. This modest beginning ended up being a long term relationship that culminated in the purchase of highly sophisticated arms, jet fighters, tanks, and navy ships. The majority of which came from the United States. The Northrop Scandal which happened in the early 70's represented a good example of how the system worked and how Congress interfered to pass the Foreign Corrupt Act which governs today's foreign business. The sums of money are miniscule if measured in today's Dollars, but back then, a millionaire earned the cover pages of major magazines. Today's millionaires are a dime a dozen.

THE NORTHROP SCANDAL

The reverberations of Saudi Arabia's procurement of over 80 Northrop F-SE/F's are still being felt today, even as the kingdom seeks to replace the top heavy aircraft with newer, sleeker trainer-fighter models. Saudi Arabia also bought F-SNB's from Northrop in 1971, the first phase of the contract, a few years before they bought the F-5EIF's. The deal was worth $4.2 billion.

The F-5's still have to be maintained until they are replaced. Three years ago, the Minister of Defense, Prince Sultan bin Abdul Aziz, pressured Northrop to award the maintenance contract to the Al Salam Aircraft Company, which was described as "poorly managed." (Mednews - Middle East Defense News, April 19, 1993). The joint venture company was established to handle the overhaul of both Royal Saudi Air Force and Saudia, the commercial carrier, aircraft. Al Salam's facilities at the Riyadh airport are inadequate because its overhaul hangars are not connected to the runway, rendering them inaccessible to planes, and because the hangars do not have an adequate power supply for the maintenance and repair work Al Salam was set up to do.

COST OF DOING BUSINESS

The public first received wind of Northrop's bribery payments to Saudi officials through a 1975 Securities and Exchange Commission auditors report. Northrop had already lost all credibility as an honest business. It's illegal contributions to then President Nixon's reelection campaign sparked public outrage in the wake of the Watergate affair. Here are the facts of the Northrop scandal as reported by the SEC In March 1972, at Saudi middleman Adnan Khashoggi's alleged request, Northrop paid him $250,000 above his usual fee. This money was to go to General Hashim M. Hashim, head of the Saudi air force, who would "make difficulties" for the firm otherwise, or, as Northrop chair, Thomas V. Jones testified, "mention was made of a problem with a general." Originally, the Northrop deal provided for a commission to be paid directly to the generals or the sale of 20 F-SB two-seat trainers and 30 F-SE single-seaters costing $35 million and $105 million, respectively. When the contract became a government-to-government contract through the U.S. Foreign Military Sales program, the general's commission provision was deleted. Khashoggi allegedly told Northrop that he had given the money to the general.

The following year Khashoggi was back for more. Hashim's m's successor General Asad Zuhair, was asking for $150,000 Northrop tried to get out of paying. Its resistance angered the general who raised his demand to $200,000. Northrop paid Triad that amount in August 1973 after acquiring Khashoggi's firm apply the $450,000 in bribes against future commissions and on the condition that Triad secure the third-phase contract which awarded $75 million for maintenance, spare parts, and training. Northrop got the contract.

The report also stated the Northrop paid bribes to a Saudi prince. The report did not identify him but news media reported Prince Khaled bin Abdullah received "commissions" from the contractor. Khaled allegedly threatened "If I get nothing, then I will make sure that Adnan gets nothing." According to the SEC report, Khaled's agents approached Northrop to pay commissions to the prince, who as a registered agent in Saudi Arabia was entitled to receive them. Khaled made over $500,000 between 1971 and 1973 for "unspecified services." The money was paid to his front company, Cantona Financial Establishment.

The publicity embarrassed the Saudi royal family who, up until that time, had been able to keep their receipt of illegal payments secret. Having commissions paid to the Saudi government (which is the royal family) as an official part of the contract was standard practice at that time. They were calculated as a percentage of the contract value and were to be paid to the government. However, the Northrop deal occurred in the wake of the Watergate hearings when public tolerance for political shadiness was at an all-time low. Publicity over the bribes led to a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation of Northrop.

As part of the settlement with the SEC, Northrop signed a consent order which includes a pledge not to conceal bribe payments from its shareholders.

PUBLICITY SHY

In the 1960's and 1970's, Adnan Khashoggi was virtually the only contact arms dealers had with the House of Saud. By 1970, he was the exclusive agent on 80%~of Saudi arms deals. The cost of his commissions were passed on to the Saudi government. Saudi citizens paid to make Khashoggi one of the richest men in the world.

In a biography about Khashoggi, author Ronald Kessler writes that the middleman "delicately balanced the aspirations of one member [of the royal family] against another, striving to make them all happy. He always took care to instinct Northrop not to send him anything in Saudi Arabia referring to his commissions. If the size of his fees got out, it would disrupt his role as ballast within the family." Northrop paid Khashoggi's fees to his various Swiss bank accounts. The SEC never investigated those accounts, through which he allegedly funneled money to Saudi princes.

Khashoggi, through Triad Financial Establishment, a part of Triad America Corporation which he jointly owns with his two brothers, was the middleman charged with securing contracts with Prince Sultan bin Abdul Aziz's Ministry of Defense. Triad America Corporation is the U.S. affiliate of Triad Holding Company, incorporated in Luxembourg, a country with very lax business-practice watchdog laws, and based in Beirut. The only way anyone could do business with Saudi Arabia was through an agent, so Northrop employed Khashoggi as its exclusive agent in deals with Saudi Arabia. His commissions were a line item in the contract. By 1975, Northrop had paid Triad $8.9 million. Northrop stopped paying the commissions after the Saudi government passed a law prohibiting such payments and after the U.S. Department of Defense told Saudi officials about the payments. Saudi officials reportedly told Northrop they did not approve of payments to a middleman and the Pentagon ordered Northrop not to pay the commissions. Northrop tried to break the contract, but could not get Khashoggi consent to do so. When Northrop ceased payments, Khashoggi took the dispute to arbitration, in 1979, as delineated in the contract. He claimed Northrop owed him $153 million. The arbitrator ruled that Northrop must pay him $31.7 million of the money it had received from Saudi Arabia in payment for the aircraft. Khashoggi made a total of $184 million from the deal. In fact, Khashoggi has used his ties to Prince Sultan and King Fahd to secure a number of deals which increased his wealth to around $4 billion in the late 1970's. Defense industry watchers and Saudi experts do not believe the Khashoggi kept all of the Northrop commissions to himself.

SAUDI REACTION

The Saudi royal family cringed at the SEC probe and the resultant unfavorable press and its Council of Ministers passed a decision supposedly outlawing the kind of commission deal between Northrop and Triad. However, the decision, which has the force of law, is very weak and vague. Key terms such as "agent," "broker," "commission," "arms," and "armament" are not defined. Without such definitions, it is impossible to know just what the law is prohibiting. Also, there are no penalties for breach of the law. The only "punitive" measure provides that the Saudi government can deduct the amount of the commission from the price of the contract. As the government was paying the commissions, and since the decision only applies to commissions to be paid to the government, the law just eliminates an obvious paper trail showing that the royal family was stealing money from the government treasury.

After the ministers published their decision, the U.S. Air Force directed American defense contractors to stop including commissions as part of the cost of the contract, but it did not prohibit them from having commission payments as part of the deal. The Department of Defense's policy is if it is not in the written part of the contract, it is not their concern.

“On business: Northland ordered to pay for 'raid' Sep 17, 2004

The 2002 collapse of the former Stockwalk Group, MJSK's parent, was the result of an orchestrated stock fraud in which the Minneapolis-based brokerage was a patsy for Saudi arms dealer Adnan Khashoggi, a New Jersey stock promoter with a criminal record and giant Deutsche Bank, according to a lawsuit filed last year by James Stephenson, the Minneapolis attorney who oversaw the liquidation of the firm's former stock-clearing unit in bankruptcy court. (Minneapolis-St. Paul Star Tribune – Business” “MINNEAPOLIS - The trustee overseeing Stockwalk Group's failed clearing unit alleges in a lawsuit that the company collapsed last year due to an international stock fraud scheme.

The lawsuit unsealed Wednesday in U.S. Bankruptcy Court names as defendants Saudi arms dealer Adnan Khashoggi, a New Jersey stock promoter with a criminal record, giant Deutsche Bank and others.

The 125-page lawsuit is the culmination of a year-long investigation into the complicated series of transactions and is the first document that purports to trace the scheme to its source.

The lawsuit invokes the Racketeer Influenced Corrupt Organizations Act, normally used to target organized crime, and seeks triple the actual damages of $250 million incurred by an industry insurance fund to bail out Stockwalk account holders who otherwise would have been wiped out.

James Stephenson, the Minneapolis lawyer overseeing the liquidation of Stockwalk subsidiary MJK Clearing, had kept the lawsuit sealed since filing it Sept. 19.

Stephenson and Deutsche Bank were negotiating a possible settlement, but those talks broke down in recent weeks.

In addition to Deutsche Bank and one of its employees, Wayne Breedon, the defendants in the suit are:

_Kenneth D'Angelo, a New Jersey stock finder with a criminal and civil record in connection with stock loan transactions.

_Adnan Khashoggi, the Saudi arms dealer once involved in the Iran-contra arms scandal who is currently wanted in connection with the collapse of a Thai bank.

_Ramy El-Batrawi, the former CEO of GenesisIntermedia Inc. (known to stock traders as "Geni").

_Richard Evangelista, a former employee at Native Nations Securities, a New Jersey brokerage.

_Bradford Keiller, a Las Vegas lawyer and owner of a strip club.

_Ten people referred to only as "John Does 1-10."

In tapes of telephone conversations obtained by Stephenson, Breedon and D'Angelo talked openly about fraud, according to the lawsuit.

The recordings also make it clear that Breedon and D'Angelo took deliberate advantage of MJK Clearing. Thomas Brooks, the then-36-year-old head of MJK's small stock loan operation, was regularly described by the pair as "that kid Tom," the complaint said.

The September 2001 collapse of Stockwalk was the largest brokerage industry failure in more than 30 years. Stockwalk, which was the third-largest brokerage firm in the Twin Cities before regulators seized it last year, lost nearly $200 million.

Eight other brokerage firms across the country suffered losses as well. Thousands of Stockwalk customers had to be bailed out by the Securities Investor Protection Corp., an industry-supported group on whose behalf Stephenson has filed suit."

More on Khasoggi's corrupt power

"Trento, Susan B. The Power House: Robert Keith Gray and the Selling of Access and Influence in Washington. New York: St.Martin's Press, 1992. 430 pages.

After the Gulf War, the media gradually began to realize that at some point in the frenzy of pack journalism, TV talking heads, and op-ed pundits that preceded the war, they had been manipulated. Behind the scenes Kuwait was shaping opinions by greasing the palms of certain Washington public relations firms. One person with both hands out was Robert Keith Gray, the master PR mercenary of the 1980s. Before he started Gray and Company in 1981 he was with Hill and Knowlton; by 1986 he was back after selling out his company to them. But throughout his thirty years in Washington, Robert Gray's style has been consistent -- he parties and charms his way into the power elite, and then sells access to his Rolodex for fees sometimes running into the millions. By doing favors for the CIA and hiring self-styled, free-lance spooks like Neil Livingstone, Gray was even able to extend his influence into Washington's Dark Side.

It doesn't matter who signs the checks. Besides Kuwait, Gray has represented China since 1989, Haiti under Duvalier, supporters of Rev. Moon, the Church of Scientology, BCCI, the late British publisher Robert Maxwell, the Teamsters under Jackie Presser, and the Catholic Bishops Conference in their campaign against abortion. If a book like this had been written in 1980, the mess we're in today would have been predictable.

Opus Dei's war

"Lohbeck, Kurt. Holy War, Unholy Victory: Eyewitness to the CIA's Secret War in Afghanistan. Washington DC: Regnery Gateway, 1993. 306 pages.

Kurt Lohbeck lived in Peshawar, Pakistan, on the Afghan border, for nine years. During much of that time he was the major source for CBS News coverage of the war in Afghanistan. Lohbeck did not pretend to be objective. He became close to rebel leader Abdul Haq, and was twice wounded in action. Lohbeck also had the ear of CIA director William Casey, and has been credited with giving Casey the idea of providing Stinger missiles to the mujahaddin. He was the live-in companion of Anne Hurd, the Mercy Fund's field director for Afghanistan. A sign outside their Peshawar residence said that it was the headquarters of the Mercy Fund, CBS News, and HNS (Humanitarian News Service).

It probably should have said "CIA" as well -- Lohbeck was in close contact with U.S. officials involved in the war effort, and his contacts even included Jonathan Jay Pollard, who was later convicted of spying for Israel. In Pakistan he functioned as a gatekeeper for journalists who sought entry into Afghanistan, and in Washington he helped raise funds for the mujahaddin. Eventually Lohbeck was disillusioned over the CIA's preference for mujahaddin leader Gulbuddin Hekmatyar, which was channeled through Pakistan's Inter Services Intelligence (ISI). After the Soviets finally withdrew in 1989, the various rebel leaders took to fighting each other.

Official Nazi Ratline of the Vatican

"Professor Gebhardt had been an intimate friend of Himmler since the early days, and there is a surprising unanimity of opinion about him. He was universally regarded as Himmler's evil genius. Schellenberg calls him "detestable." Ohlendorf, another of Himmler's subordinates and himself no squeamish character (at Nuremberg he confessed to the mass-murder of ninety thousand Jews), describes him as corrupt and selfish intriguer, animated solely by personal expediency. Others knew him as an unscrupulous dabbler in politics, concealing his intrigues behind the innocent cloak of medicine. As a doctor he carried out experimental operations on Polish girls in the concentration camp at Auschwitz, and was rewarded by Himmler with the post of President of the German Red Cross.

From The Last Days of Hitler by H.R. Trevor-Roper

This is how the rat line began to function. Being head of the German Red Cross, Gebhardt could issue travel documents and since there were so many undocumented persons wandering about Europe at the end of the War, a refugee with Red Cross papers could travel almost anywhere.”

A Talk by John Rappoport

CKLN FM 88.1

Ryerson Polytechnic University

Toronto, Ontario, Canada

International Connection

Producer: Wayne Morris

Today we are going to hear from investigative journalist Jon Rappoport give a talk entitled The CIA, Mind Control, and Children about the CIA’s use of children for creating mind control agents. Author of U.S. Government Mind Control Experiments on Children, he talks about the impact of the mind control testimony submitted to the Presidential hearings on radiation experiments. Jon also speaks about the mindset of those responsible for these horrors and the implications to society.

JOHN RAPPOPORT:

We are going to launch into this subject, but with a few comments before we start. Mind control is one of those things people don’t like to talk about, including yours truly frankly. I got into it, and I saw the evidence, and it was ... you know, there it was.

Officially MKULTRA was a CIA mind control project that lasted about 10 years ... let’s say from 1952 to 1962-63 ... Before it started, there was ARTICHOKE AND BLUEBIRD ... those were other CIA mind control projects. After it ended, supposedly in 1963, an office called ORD Office of Research and Development took it over. Their job we don't know about ... we are not sure of everything they did because that information is not available. It is in 130 boxes of material somewhere ... maybe in Langley, Virginia but they won't release it. Various people have said that they employed more sophisticated measures than MKULTRA to do mind control on people.

I think one of the reasons that this is such an important subject is because we are looking at people here who have a certain attitude about life itself, and these people are in the government and they are in important positions in the government ... and in order to understand what they are really about, we get a look at them that is unprecedented by looking at what they did with this kind of experimentation on humans. In other words, they hate life. That's pretty clear. They have their own version of life, which is like "death" and that's where their life is ... that's what they feed off of. I would say that most, if not all, secret societies are based on the same concept. Once you cut through all the paraphernalia and symbology of secret societies, you are basically dealing with people who have, for one reason or another, given up on life completely. They are now into the form of life that is involved with death ... that's their territory. And it's a pretty horrendous thing to say, but I think that would be borne out. My own feeling is that we are talking about a confluence of different influences here on individuals that go back a long way into the past ... into the history of families in which they grew up ... I am talking about long term history of what those families are ... and these people who are entirely functional, but entirely psychotic if you want to use that term. It doesn't really do it justice but it tells you something about them. I am talking about John Foster Dulles and Allen Dulles ... I would say they are very good examples. Look at their faces ... look at what you see there ... you see almost nothing. There is a kind of mask-like quality about these people, an emptiness—very competent people who go about their business, who seem to have no feeling or "juice" for life. And I would say these people are often born into families who go back centuries possibly in that kind of disconnected condition from life. While they are able to function very successfully in society and deal with power, because that is their ticket and their coinage, they find that control and destruction of life is the only thing really that gives them life.

Since I have read this information that I will be sharing with you tonight, I am beginning to come to the conclusion that the people who were involved in the nuclear weapons scenario really wanted to destroy the world. It may seem obvious to say but they see that as "liberation" if you can wrap your mind around that ... as a release from, what they consider to be an oppressive situation that just simply can't be tolerated. They see destruction as liberation and so the only thing that would hold them back, I think, from destroying the world is the feeling that they may not have the playground left in which to enact their scenarios of destruction. There would only be one, and that would be the explosion that would take care of the planet.

I would say that this is what we are dealing with. I would put up as a model against that, on the other side, although this man is not a messiah by any means, but if you know any of the work by Wilhelm Reich, the psychiatrist who broke away from Freud, he developed an entire psychology around the concept of liberation of energy ... from within the person ... that was locked up. It was really the first time ... he was the main figure in the history of Western psychology, let's put it that way ... which was a recent effort. To simply say that we are talking about energy here, and that freedom and the release of free energy from a human being against blocked up channels gives you what is called "life"—that's life. And he was, of course, destroyed by the government. He had a device that was an energy accumulator device. He was arrested because a federal agent posing as a buyer or distributor of that device offered to take off his hands and bring it through state lines and so he was served a subpoena to appear before the federal government that involved illegal interstate commerce, and his comment was rather naive, he said, "how can they possibly serve me ... that's politics ... I am talking about science." He didn't honour the subpoena, they put him in jail, and he died. He was talking about fantastical things like plumes of blue energy shooting out of the top of a person into the sky and this kind of liberation of energy would occur. He said that energy creates clouds, and storms, and weathers, the same energy that we have inside ourselves is identical and he called the unit of it an "orgone". He invented these wild machines that were able to, supposedly, manoeuvre this energy around. He is a fascinating person, and I always hold him up as a person who ultimately stands for the other side of things—which is life.

The reason that you find some of these fascist lunatics involved with magic and occult sciences and heavy, heavy, heavy symbology and all of that ... is because within these secret societies, they are dealing in death as life.

If you could imagine life as a kind of hourglass and they fall through the top and through the skinny part and out the bottom and they see that as being a form of living, and they take their sensation and their thrills from some sort of upside down version of life. I wanted to paint that little sketch before I started, because we are going to get into some pretty strange territory here. I want to say that I think this is basically what is going on. It's important to know that these people occupy key positions in our government and still do and they are not accountable. It tells you something about what is called a democracy ...

I have brought some testimony together into this book called, US Government Mind Control Experiments on Children. It's a compilation basically of testimony that was given in Washington and before I read from it while I can still remember ... I want to make a few announcements, a little bit about myself and the people who are here tonight. This is Deep River Books. She Who Remembers is taping this talk ... the tape is available afterwards. I will probably forget to remind you and Jeannie will stand up and say something. Ralph Cole of Justice Vision is taping. He has also been taping meetings of Heal, an alternative AIDS group which is doing some excellent work about bringing the truth about AIDS to people and he has some of those tapes available too. This book is available upstairs at Deep River, and so is another book of mine, called AIDS Inc. which I wrote in 1988.

I am investigative reporter, for about the last fifteen years, and I basically have been investigating what I call medical fascism which I believe is the mechanism by which people are going to be dragged into Brave New World if that is the outcome that we unfortunately end up with. That issue is not decided, but because the medical world has such great authority with people, they believe so much in doctors and experts, they are going to try to make that move ... they are going to try to bring people to heel under the aegis of medicine ... they are going to try to say that they know science, and therefore you have to listen to what they say, and if they say take a drug, or you are suffering from a germ, there is no questioning that. If they say you are detained or quarantined, there is no questioning that ... I see that as being something that is coming around here.

This testimony was given before the President's Committee on Radiation on March 15, 1995. We had three people who went up there from New Orleans ... Valerie Wolf, a therapist and two of her clients, Claudia Mullen and Chris Denicola. God only knows how they got in and testified. I have heard the story from Valerie, and I still don't even believe it, but ... basically she told me the screener up there, the person who was screening applicants to speak about cruel and unusual radiation experiments on Americans ... she said, well I have clients and they are saying that some of these doctors who administered radiation, administered mind control to them so we want to talk. And they said okay. They testified, from what I can gather, for a very short period of time verbally. They submitted a lot of testimony to the Committee from other therapists and other patients, and they somehow got in ... nobody knows how ... but they got in and that opens a certain kind of door for us, because it puts it on the record and it gives it a certain legitimacy and what these patients essentially said was, from the time they were 4 years old, 7 years old, they were tortured by the CIA and the military. You can call it something more sophisticated, but it really isn't. It involved electroshock, physical torture, lights, spinning tables, hallucinogenic drugs, sleep deprivation, isolation tanks, hypnosis, mind programming with commands, layers of trauma that induced buffer zones of amnesia between the traumas, and essentially thereby created multiple personalities. As one psychological theory has it, if you induce enough trauma, you get a split in the personality because the person can't face the pain, so they put that part out of it, and they come with a new personality. If you keep doing it, you invoke or create different personalities, and then if you are the CIA you try to program these sub-personalities to do different things like memorize information photographically and not remember it, do courier operations, assassinations, sex agents, blackmail operations, all of this.

Now I must say that I think some representations of this kind of operation are a little too neat and clean ... that is people assume it is like (clicks fingers ...) ... okay we will create 37 personalities now and program each one ... do these commands and call it up and da da da da ... I really doubt that it works that way. I think that in many cases, it is a total wash-out. In many cases, it is just psychosis time, madness. (In many cases people are killed because they just won't respond, and they will not stand for it no matter what is induced ...) There are two tracks here ... and these are the tracks. There is testimony by the people saying this was done to me ... and then you decide if you believe that or not. Then over here, there are attempts to verify through obtaining documents from the CIA and the military that such experiments did in fact go on to create a parallel track of research to give credence to what these people are saying over here because there are many good people who want to say this is all nut-case territory over here, and we don't want to know about it, and frankly, I don't blame them. So the researchers have said, the ones who are really into this, we want to try to document it as well on the other side and efforts have been made in that direction, and continue to be made in that direction.

Let me introduce into the record, and it would be nice if we were all sitting here in front of an Arlen "Single Bullet Theory" Spector and people like that ... something called Volume Seven, Recent Advances in Biological Psychiatry, the Proceedings of the 19th Annual Convention and Scientific Program of the Society of Biological Psychiatry, Los Angeles, May 13, 1964. The Officers of this group include Ewen Cameron, M.D., Psychiatrist from Canada many will recognize as possibly the major monster on the planet as far as mind control ... much has been written about him ... I am not going to talk much about him tonight. In Part One in the Table of Contents, we have the following paper: "Automatic Nervous System Responses in Hospitalized Children Treated with LSD and UML" and one of the researchers is Loretta Bender. Loretta Bender cannot be nailed down as being a CIA employee. She was in fact, in 1961, a president of the Society of Biological Psychiatry, but she was part of a small group of researchers who were doing early LSD research ... most of whom were doing it for the CIA. She attended conferences where those people showed up ... like this, and she attended at least one conference by the Josiah Macey Foundation which was a conduit and front for CIA money. The paper is rather lengthy but I am just going to read you a few things from it. This is not part of the book.

"In the children's unit of Creedmore State Hospital with a resident population of 450 patients, ages 4 to 15, we have investigated the responses of some of these children to lysergic acid and related drugs in the psychiatric, psychological and biochemical areas. Two groups of boys receiving daily LSD, UML (which is a methylated derivative of LSD) or psilocybin ... at first the medication was given weekly but was eventually given daily for periods of up to several months. Dosages remain constant throughout, LSD 150 mcg. (which is a standard for an adult trip), psilocybin 20 mg. daily or UML 12 mg. daily, all given in two divided doses. The average duration of treatment was 2 to 3 months." Daily. Children, 7, 9, 11 years old ...

The psychiatrist who sent me this told me that he has a statement at home which he is going to fax me which shows that in several cases at least with these children, this was carried on for several years daily. Of course, all of the testimony here about what happened to the children is they got nothing but better ... these were autistic, retarded (a loose term signifying really nothing), but autistic or schizophrenic children ... that was the diagnosis. They all “responded, became more straightforward, and here” and whatever. You decide ...

That is a very significant piece of evidence here. That shows that as early as 1964, the CIA was in fact experimenting ... or a person with probable CIA connections ... was experimenting on young children with LSD and other similar drugs.

Now I have here a staff memorandum given to me by Harlan Girard, a very active researcher in his field, to Members of the Advisory Committee on Human Radiation Experiments from the Advisory Committee staff on June 27, 1994, and this is a summary of the CIA, its history and its activities. In other words, members of the Committee on Radiation staff submitted this to the Committee at large to kind of clue them in on what the CIA is prior to the 1995 Hearing of the President’s Committee on Radiation, and they say, “In the 1950’s and 60’s the CIA engaged in an extensive program of human experimentation using drugs, psychological and other means, in search of techniques to control human behaviour for counter intelligence and covert action purposes.” This is quite an admission. In other words, they are training agents, it says here, by using mind control on them. It doesn’t say they are using mind control just to sort of get information from foreign agents. The possibility that the CIA itself engaged in human radiation experiments emanates from references in a 1963 CIA Inspector General’s report on project MKULTRA which was a “program concerned with research and development of chemical, biological and radiological materials capable of deployment in clandestine operations to control human behaviour.” Now in the rest of this report, they indicate that they cannot find any records of specific radiological experiments carried out by the CIA, and obviously they are looking. This doesn’t look like a total whitewash.

But that doesn’t mean that you believe them, it just means that those records have been destroyed or hidden away deep hidden away ... because everybody agrees that radiation is a bad thing ... and the CIA ... the last thing they want is for people to believe that they used radiation on people. But this does indicate that there was a reference about research and development of radiation by the CIA for purposes of deployment in clandestine operations to control human behaviour. How the hell do you use radiation in clandestine operations to control human behaviour? Well, I would suggest that you use it to traumatize people whom you are training as agents so that you can gain control of them and you therefore have them under your thumb, and they do what you want them to do. The testimony here tends to bear that out ... that radiation was used on people as a method of inducing trauma, not as a way of testing ... you know ... does radiation cause harm? Which is sort of the gist of the President ‘s Committee on Radiation ... they went half-way. They said “terrible things were done to unwitting Americans ...

radiation was used by doctors on them in hospitals” but this goes further, we are now talking about a whole other level, because those those experiments which were supposedly carried on as a misguided effort to see what toxicity levels were like, unfortunate occurrences, things got out of control at times, isolated individuals did commit crimes, da da da da ... you know. But they were attempting to do medical research ... and that’s one of those hypnotic phrases, “medical research”. I could probably put everybody to sleep just by saying “medical research, medical research ...” (laughter) And people would reach into their pockets and come out with money, man ... well hey, cancer and infantile paralysis and m.s. ... whatever you want ... I’ll give you money ... medical research, medical research. Politicians know that’s the key they turn all the time ... when they can’t figure out what to say, they say we need more money for research ... and that means tax money and it means things you don’t want to be subjected to most of the time ...

Valerie Wolf is something else ... this woman is down in New Orleans ... she is seeing clients other people won’t see ... therefore they tell strange stories. These are clients who have been fired by other therapists ... they are very unruly, out of control, they do not recover, nothing works, they cut themselves, they go into hospitals, they try to commit suicide ... they are people that therapists generally flee from ... and she says “let’s go ...” That’s her scene ... so it stands to reason that she would hear stories that other therapists cannot hear ... and in her statement to the Committee on Radiation March 15, 1995, she says, “ ... the research programs [that her clients were submitted to] included radiation, drugs, mind control and chemicals ... my clients have reported all of these being used on them, although technically they were considered to be part of the mind control experiments. Generally it appears that therapists across the country are finding clients who have been subjected to mind control techniques. The consistency of their stories about the purpose of the mind control and the techniques such as electroshock, use of hallucinogens, sensory deprivation, spinning, dislocation of limbs, and sexual abuse is remarkable. There is almost nothing published on this aspect of mind control used on children, and these clients come from all over the country having had no contact with each other. From the small sample of therapists to whom I talked, it appears that about 25% of the clients report memories of being used in radiation experiments. It is possible that more people were exposed to radiation, but that the memories have not yet emerged because our awareness of this experimentation is so new.”

Let me say now, before we get into it further, that the one organization in the United States that has tried to debunk all of this is called the False Memory Syndrome Foundation. They are based in Philadelphia. They say that any recovered memories in therapy, that is any patient who goes into therapy and recovers a memory is a liar or unintentionally lying because their therapist induced it, suggested it, guided it, okay? Now, I talked to these people and at certain levels they are very well meaning of course ... that is always the way. I talked to their PR person and I asked when were you born, this organization? She said, "1992". I said well how extensive is it? And she said, "We have a chapter in every state." Now for anybody who has ever been an activist or worked in non-profit 501C3 ... are you kidding me man? You have a chapter in every state in 3 years? You're cooking, you are cooking ... and in foreign countries they have chapters too. But no foundation money and no government funding ... this is like, you know, they are like ... walking on water ... you know? (audience member: "It took McDonald's longer ...") There we go. That's the False Memory Syndrome Foundation ... (audience member: "individual contributions ...") It is true ... now that organization was founded by Pamela Freyd ... her daughter accused her husband of abuse as a child ... and in the resultant uproar they founded this organization ... Frontline on PBS did an entire episode on all of this ...

... and then received a letter, from I think it was the daughter's brother who said, that was quite a presentation you put on about the FMSF and my mother ... and I just wanted to tell you though that despite your sympathetic treatment of this organization, everything my sister said was absolutely true and they were abusing her from the time she was a little kid." That's interesting about the beginning of this organization.

Now on the board of this organization we have such luminaries as Louis Joly West ... Louis "I never worked for the CIA" Joly West. This guy has been documented to have done all kinds of stuff for the CIA and military on mind control stuff ... gave LSD to an elephant, and killed it. Wanted to start the Centre for the Study of Violence at UCLA in the 1970's. We have letters, and this was going to be located in a used, abandoned missile base somewhere out north of LA, and part of the deal was they were going to do psychosurgery on violent offenders which is the selective melting of brain connections to keep people from being violent. And this was touted as being highly medical, very precise. This is right in the ballpark of what I am talking about here when they say "it's all medical ... we have miniaturized and we can take out certain neurons here and there, and everything's cool." Some people throw up their hands and say who am I to ... I don't know ... maybe they are right ...

Peter Breggin, a psychiatrist who investigates toxic drugs and violence projects against citizens using psychiatry as a front ... he lays it on psychiatrists. He discovered that the one case where they claimed a cure by psychosurgery was turned into a gibbering lunatic and that's why he was cured of violence. He wasn't able to even live unless somebody was taking care of him all the time and this particular patient was heralded as a cure by Frank Irvin and Bernie Sweet and these guys in the 70's who were the doctors doing psychosurgery. That was their model, showcase cure of violence.

So Louis West, who wanted to start this centre at UCLA, is on the board of FMSF and so is Martin Orne, a Harvard psychiatrist who has done contract work for the CIA in the past. And several other people who have those kinds of connections. They want to debunk this stuff right out of the box ... forget it. This is the kind of stuff they want to debunk. Claudia Mullen, client of Valerie Wolf, reports to the Presidential Commission:

“Between the years of 1957 and 1984 I became a pawn in a government scheme whose ultimate goal was mind control and to create the perfect spy. All through the use of chemicals, radiation, electroshock, hypnosis, drugs, isolation in tubs of water, sleep deprivation, brainwashing, and verbal, physical, emotional and sexual abuse. I was exploited unwittingly for nearly three decades of my life, and the only explanation given to me was that ‘the end justifies the means’ and I was serving my country in their bold effort to fight communism. I can only summarize my circumstances by saying they took an already abused 7 year old child and compounded my suffering beyond belief. In 1958 I was to be tested, they told me, by some important doctors coming from a place called The Society [... that’s the Human Ecology Society, a known CIA front]. I was told to cooperate, answer any of their questions, then since the tests might hurt, I would be given shots, xrays, and jolts of electricity. I was also instructed not to look in anyone’s face too hard and to ignore names, as this was a very secret project ... but to be brave and all those things would help me forget. Naturally as most children do, I did the opposite, and remembered as much as I could. A Dr. John Gittinger [Rapaport: these people in the testimony named names, they did not screw around ...] tested me and Dr. Cameron gave me the shocks, and Dr. Green, the xrays. Then I was told by Sid Gottlieb I was right for the Big A ... meaning Artichoke.”

“By the time I left to go home, just like every time from then on, I would recall nothing of my tests or the different doctors. I would only remember whatever explanations Dr. Robert Heath of Tulane Medical School gave me for the odd bruises, needle marks, burns on my head and fingers, and even the genital soreness. I had no reason to believe otherwise. Already they had begun to control my mind. The next year I was sent to a place in Maryland called Deep Creek Cabins to learn how to sexually please men. I was taught how to coerce them into talking about themselves. It was Richard Helms, Deputy Director of the CIA, Dr. Gottlieb, Capt. George White and Morse Allen who all planned on filming as many high government and agency officials, and heads of academic institutions and foundations as possible. So later, when the funding for radiation and mind control started to dwindle, then the project would continue at any cost [in other words, blackmail]. I was to become a regular little spy for them after that summer. Eventually trapping many unwitting men, including themselves, all with the use of a hidden camera. I was only 9 years old when this kind of sexual humiliation began. I overheard conversations about a part of the agency called ORD run by Dr. Green, Dr. Stephen Aldrich, Martin Orne and Morse Allen”

Dr. John Gittinger was Sid Gottlieb’s protege ... Gittinger tested everybody. He was like a fanatical tester, developing profiles of humans, different types of humans, all kinds of questionnaire type tests. Sid Gottlieb was the head of MKULTRA projects for the CIA ... a very high ranking bureaucrat, probably never treated a patient in his life. These people (testifying) were saying that these people were doing it ... they were not supervising it alone, they were doing it. Dr. Green seems to be a name that is a cover name that many different people used. However there was a Dr. L. Wilson Green, Technical Director of US Army Chemical and Radiological Laboratories at the Army Chemical Centre ... so we could have both things happening there. Richard Helms became director of the CIA ... a real smooth operator. He was the person who destroyed many MKULTRA files before they could be revealed. Capt. George White made a statement to the effect of "nowhere else but in the CIA could a young, red-blooded American rape, pillage and plunder without ... accountability" He set up a brothel in San Francisco in the 60's, paid off prostitutes to bring in johns to a room which he was filming, and these johns unwittingly drank LSD in their cocktails, and filming was supposedly to determine what the effects of LSD were on unwitting subjects. This is documented up and down. By the way, for those of you who want to get the background here, John Marks' Search for the Manchurian Candidate, Walter Bowart's Operation Mind Control now updated, are upstairs ... and there is a very difficult book to find called The Mind Manipulators by Alan Schefflin which goes into a wider arena and is a very valuable reference source. There are many other books, Journey into Madness ... but the Marks' book, Schefflin book, and the Bowart book all took off from the same revelation of the ten or so boxes of information that were finally released by the CIA in about 1977 ... they were actually financial records of MKULTRA. They didn't think they were very incriminating, but they finally began to look at them and saw they were very incriminating. A mistake ...

Then we had Morse Allen who was the head of Project Bluebird, another mind control project. High up people here she is talking about ... who planned on filming as many high up officials ... She says "I overheard conversations about a part of the agency called ORD run by Dr. Green, Dr. Stephen Aldrich" who became Director of ORD researched remote control of brains by electrodes, he went to the college I went to, Amherst College ... hope I run into him some time. Martin Orne, mentioned again ... we are not stinting here on names, these people just named them ... sitting here in a room in Washington, D.C. before the President's Committee on Radiation saying that Richard Helms was involved in torture and brainwashing of children. Now, Valerie Wolf makes this comment about Claudia Mullen: "After 9 months of therapy, she came to therapy one day with MKULTRA written with other words on a piece of paper ... the first time ... she had never mentioned any of this before. From that point on, she began to work on the mind control issues and began to improve. All of her memories have emerged spontaneously, without the use of memory enhancement techniques such as hypnosis or sodium amytal. I had told her nothing about government and CIA research projects. To the best of my knowledge, she has read nothing about mind control or CIA covert operations. Since she decided to listen carefully and remember as much as she could about conversations among the researchers, her memories are extraordinarily complete. I have sent written copies of memories to Dr. Alan Schefflin for validation [the author of The Mind Manipulators who is a professor of law at the University of Santa Clara]. He has confirmed that she has knowledge of events and people that are not published anywhere ... that some of her memories contain new information and that some are already known and published. Some of her memories have been confirmed by family members. She has also shown me old scrapbooks where she wrote notes to remember what was happening to her, and hid the notes under the pictures in the scrapbooks.” Claudia Mullen states that she is still being monitored, that there is a doctor in New Orleans, who was her family doctor. She names him in her longer testimony ... and she said to me, “don’t tell him you are going to do something before you do it, just do it.”

Apparently as recently as a month or two ago, she feels that ... it’s a strange situation ... apparently she is not positive that this doctor was monitoring her, but now she is. She went to his office ... she doesn’t remember what happened to her ... there were marks on her when she left the office ... and she feels he is still monitoring her. So there is an element of danger involved in this, for these people. Some of these statements in here are anonymous. Some therapists made statements anonymously because there was public censure by their peers for getting into this stuff. I am told that a therapist named Corey Hammond spoke at a recent convention on methods of deprogramming this kind of mind control that he has developed ... Valerie Wolf says she is using these, and they are terrific, they work. He has been subject to a lot of censure by other psychologists, societies, whatever it is and that he doesn’t want to talk to people any more, just for making a verbal presentation at this conference.

Chris Denicola, another client of Valerie Wolf. Tucson, Arizona. “I was taught how to pick locks, be secretive, use my photographic memory. Dr. Green taught me a technique to withhold information by repeating numbers to myself. He would show me information, then shock me [electroshock]. I would repeat the numbers in my head. I refused to disclose the information that he just gave me, and he found me to be very successful in that part of his mind control experiment. I was four years old. He moved on to wanting me to kill dolls that looked like real children. I stabbed a doll with a spear once, after being severely tortured. The next time I refused. Dr. Green used many torture techniques, but as I got older, I resisted more and more. He often tied me down in a cage near his office. Between 1972 and 76, he and his assistants were sometimes careless and left the cage unlocked. At these times I snuck into his office and found files with reports and memos addressed to CIA and military personnel. Included in these files were program projects, sub-projects, subject and experiment names, with some code numbers for radiation and mind control experiments. I was caught twice and Dr. Green tortured me ruthlessly with electric shock, drugs, spinning me on a table, putting shots in my stomach and my back, dislocating my joints and hypnotic techniques to make me feel crazy and suicidal. Because of my rebellion and growing lack of cooperation, they gave up on me as a spy assassin. Consequently the last two years, 1974-76, Dr. Green had access to me. He used various mind control techniques to reverse the spy-assassin messages through self destruct and death messages if I ever remembered anything. His purpose? He wanted me dead and I have struggled to stay alive all of my adult life. I believe that it is truly by the grace of God that I am still alive.”

That's just a piece of her testimony. A statement from Alan Schefflin, lawyer, professor of law, Santa Clara: "Claudia's therapist [Valerie Wolf] has been kind enough to send me, with her client's informed consent, some of the pertinent records reflecting Claudia's memories of her experiences as an unwitting subject in these experiments. I have been able to confirm that some of the information Claudia has provided is absolutely true and could not have been derived from any published source." I spoke with Schefflin and he said to me, I thought he was playing it a little close to the vest with this, I understand he is writing a book on this, so I don't know ... he said, "there is one piece of information that I was able to confirm, and I don't know how she could possibly have known this. It involves the connection between two government researchers that is not published anywhere" and he said "I just happened to know that they are connected and she mentioned that they knew each other."

Let me just comment on some of this here. All throughout this testimony you have other clients and patients saying similar things. Dr. Green, Dr. Green, Dr. Green, Dr. Green. Electroshock. Torture, sex abuse and all of that. About three weeks ago I met a woman who is a therapist. She works north of Los Angeles. If you met this woman and talked to her, you would say 'she's very on top of things, she is very smart, she seems like a real human being.' So she looks at me and she says, "I was part of this when I was a kid, as a child." She doesn't want to talk about it yet, but she said, "... this business about creating perfect spies, I don't think that's it. I don't think that's why they were really doing it." Part of the explanation about what they were supposedly trying to do was to create blank slates ... that was their thinking. You can take a human being and erase their mind, then we can program it to be whatever we want it to be. Well adults just go psychotic, so let's try children ... they are more flexible and they have less in their mind to take out ... how mechanistic can you get, and that would be the rationale supposedly. From that it has been assumed that the whole point of this was to create a perfect spy, with with nice neat categories of sub-personalities, and program and trigger words, manchurian candidate type stuff. You know, "we will now call up sub-personality 134. Are you there?" "Yes I am here." "What have you learned on your recent trip to Vienna?" Start. Bing. And then sub-personality 134 says, "I boarded the train, and went to Vienna, and read the following documents that were given to me ..."—like a computer? That this was the intention. But this woman said to me, "Yeah, but I think there is something beyond this. It is somewhere in the back of my mind, but I can't get to it." I didn't question her about how she knows this, but she said "First of all this was a very wide-ranging project ... there were echelons of the project, not just simply one level. There were children brought up from South America and Mexico. They were considered expendable. They were used with the crudest techniques of brainwashing and so forth. The idea was to learn from this techniques in a more refined way techniques that would be used on another echelon of children. The best and brightest in America." I said, "Do you mean children from well-to-do families?" She said, "Not necessarily. The smartest."

They could be thinking that what they want to do is program these kids who would later, supposedly, emerge in prominent positions in society, so that they would then have long term control of society by controlling people in power positions. She said (she didn't say "yes") but she said, "Well, yeah, that makes sense. The Nazis got a hold of the intelligentsia. They turned the intelligentsia—they were able to either silence or bring the intelligentsia into their fold—so it was a major project. She said to me, "They brought a lot of doctors over here after the War and not just the rocket scientists ... they brought a lot of doctors over here." And all throughout this testimony you will read, sprinkled here, "a doctor with a German accent ... was it Green ... was it Greenburg ... a German Jew? ... did it look like he was a Jew? ... he had blonde hair ..." That kind of stuff.

I would say this is a Nazi project, but a lot of the Nazis are American-born. It shouldn't be excused or explained away on that basis because as we know, if we look at Nazi psychiatry for example, they learned a lot from the Americans, especially about eugenics. This is not something where we should say, "... well, the Nazis took over ..." This is home-grown stuff. This is Americana at its worst, at its lowest form. This is also the sub-sub-basement that you walk into when you are a materialist, when that is your philosophy. And I don't mean you are a materialist in the sense that you want money, possessions ... I mean, philosophically. The materialist position is that we are meat, and tissue, and cells, and electrical impulses, and that's it. When that system collapses, we are gone, never to return. My own feeling is that when you espouse and embrace that philosophy, the ultimate, ultimate sub-basement that you end up in is that sub-basement ... that's where you end up. Finally, that's where it all comes out.

I must say, even though I admire many of the researchers on psychedelics, and feel that they are basically liberating types of people, I think some of them make a mistake when they start talking about, "... well, it's all chemicals anyway ... what difference does it make? ... we are only dealing with chemical reactions anyway, so what's this nonsense about consciousness separate from chemicals?" They are using that of course to say, "why is the government trying to outlaw the use of psychedelics, if in fact all consciousness is chemical anyway, they are just being selective in their choices of chemical ... they are saying 'alcohol - yes, lsd - no'." But I think these people have something to think about in this one area. I am not trying to put them down at all, in fact I admire them. But I think when they start talking about "well, consciousness is just chemicals anyway..." I am afraid I have to disagree. I think it is a lot more than chemicals. You can certainly make people do very bizarre things with chemicals, and you can make them suffer a great deal because we are in these bodies ... it's a lot more than that. That's where I think you wind up. You wind up with this crazy idea about programming people ... that's where I think you wind up with this stuff.

On the plus side, if we know this, if we understand what is happening here, and therapists can be brought into this whole dialogue, then we are talking about bridging something that is very un-middle-class into the middle-class and into people who normally don't consider these kinds of things because we are talking therapists here, private practice therapists whose patients come into their office and say "I was part of CIA mind control." I am not saying that the middle class is not some fabulous entity that we have to somehow court, but I am saying that this is an issue which can get some people involved who normally do not get involved and if they are so willing, they can create some havoc with the government and that's my next point here.

One of the reasons that I am going into this, and getting involved in it, is because I want people to begin to see the government for what it actually is and I think this is a way of doing that. Unequivocally coming to it. People say, "the government, yeah ... if we just get more of the right people in ... a little more funding for research ... more this ... more that ... everything is going to work out and we will get the nice guys, elect Bill and don't elect George, and elect Jim and don't elect Phil ..." You know ... it's all this kind of whipsawing stuff I see every time an election comes around. "We gotta vote for Bill because if we don't we'll get George ..." and this and that ... boppada bop It's like a vice that people are in, and everybody knows it.

I have a statement here from Colin Ross. A very interesting man. Never heard of him before. He's a psychiatrist from Richardson, Texas. He has been researching the CIA for 20 years. Every time an MKULTRA type researcher dies, he sends away FOIA requests, because he figures, well the guy is dead, they will be more likely to release the documents now, and he just ... he's very cute with this, see? He accumulates a little of this, a little of that. MKULTRA had about 139 to 150 sub-projects ... nobody knows what they all were, or even if that is the subtotal. It's the basic mind control project of the CIA after WWII. He has files on as many of these as he can possibly get. "I have in my possession about 80 of the 149 sub-project files which I obtained through FOIA, filing requests with the CIA on each deceased investigator of interest." (I like that.) He says, "Neurosurgeons at Tulane, Yale and Harvard did extensive research on brain electrode implants with intelligence funding and combined brain implants with large numbers of drugs including hallucinogens." So while they were telling Tim Leary and Richard Alpert to get out of Harvard ... because a few people were taking acid and enjoying it ... there were other people there who were inserting electrodes in people's brains and then giving them acid. "MKULTRA alone included four sub-projects on children, one was conducted at the International Children's Summer Camp in Maine by an unwitting investigator. The MKULTRA sub-project file in my possession for this project states that "the CIA's interest in this research was in establishing contact with foreign nationals of potential future operational use by the CIA. The children who served as subjects in the project were as young as eleven years old."

"Multiple personality disorder patients in treatment throughout the United States and Canada are describing involvement in mind control research that is much more sophisticated than MKULTRA. Deliberate sexual abuse of children to make them more dissociative ... " and then he ends up simply by saying, "I would be pleased to testify at length at any hearings on CIA and military mind control.” Colin Ross, M.D. Psychiatrist Richardson Texas

Here is a statement from a therapist submitted anonymously. “One client told me that they were made to believe they had been abducted by UFO’s so that if memories were retrieved, they would be discredited by the community.” I found that kind of interesting. Hmm. Other people mentioned satanic costumes ... CIA people putting on satanic costumes while they were doing their crazy stuff here ...

Here’s John Boyd, Ph.D., Clinical Psychologist, practiced clinical psychology for 25 years, Ohio State, University of Virginia. “I have treated three patients whose memories of childhood abuse include detailed recall of sophisticated mind control technology being inflicted upon them by “experts” in collusion with the patients’ mentally disturbed parents. The independent reports of these individuals contain similar information of an esoteric and intricate nature concerning mind control technology which in my opinion could be gained only through personal experience.” The press says nothing. The press says zero about this.

Here’s a woman operating under the pseudonym I believe of Chandra Walker-Michaels. “I learned how to handle weapons, particularly how an ice-pick left a neat hole, a hole that allowed so little blood to escape that the victim could remain in public view for hours before they would be discovered not to be napping.” “I was taken on planes to Germany and Egypt to assist Joe with arson ... to Israel, along with messages ... to Mexico for terrorist activities. I remember a small laboratory in a partially exposed basement of a large building I visited many times starting at age four south of Washington, D.C. At the age of fourteen I was drugged and woke up on a stretcher, and I heard men outside my door discussing how they had gotten me past the guards at Langley that night. At the age of fifteen Joe introduced me to an elderly man who he referred to as “the Senator”. At the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, D.C. the portly gentleman was brought to the room adjoining ours. Our closet space was filled with photographic equipment viewing the Senator’s scene ... I refused to participate. I was severely punished.”

Just a word about the media, and then we will take a break. One of the best payoffs of being a reporter for fifteen years is that I have come to see this machine called “the media” and how it operates in a way that I never thought was possible because I have talked to a lot of reporters, and they become the eyes, the mouth and the ears for everybody else. Since I am now researching the Oklahoma City bombing, and I have done a lot of research on AIDS, and now this and other topics, there is a pattern that always seems to emerge. The pattern is that there is a cover story that emerges very quickly after something is either revealed or happens. Very quickly a cover story comes to the fore and then anything that does not fit the cover story is discarded. In the case of Oklahoma City, it happens to be basically that McVeigh and a few of his friends are rednecks ... the rednecks are connected to other rednecks who belong to militias and the militias blew up the building and that's it ... we don't want to know anything else ... they are all kind of crazy and stupid ... that's the end of the story ... they rented a Ryder truck knowing it could be traced ... they bought 5000 lbs. of ammonium nitrate knowing it could be traced ... (hey business is suddenly picking up ... did you see that guy who suddenly came in and bought 5000 lbs. of ammonium nitrate??? Wow. I thought business was kind of slow and then all of a sudden they came in like 15 or 20 cars and they like, loaded it up in the backs of the station wagons and they kept coming back for more and they took it away ... I guess April is a really good planting month you know?? They have a lot of crops in mind ...) That's the cover, right? They were that stupid, and that's all we have to know. And McVeigh, three hours after the explosion, happens to be driving in a car with no licence, and a cop stops him and says "I will have to cite you for driving without a licence and you will have to appear ..." McVeigh says "No problem", then the cop looks at him and he is writing out the citation, he's going to give it to him, and let him drive away. No problem, Driving without a licence. So what? Then the cop says, "Sir, do you have something under your windbreaker there?" And McVeigh says, "I have a weapon under my windbreaker." Pulls down the zipper, there's a 9mm Glock, and a five inch knife hanging off his belt. He has just killed 100 people ... he's on a lonely road some place ... a cop stops him ... he's going to let him go ... he then shows the cop his weapon ... the cop then puts his service revolver to his head, disarms him, takes him to jail, puts him on ice for a few days until the Feds ... they work fast these guys ... three days and they know who did it, they know what happened, they come to the jail where he is, and they take him ... Right? By the way, I was told that initial reports placed McVeigh at Tinker Air Force Base in Oklahoma. People who anonymously testified in here, and it has been mentioned by other people, that some of the mind control that was done on them was done at Tinker Air Force Base. Tinkerbelle, right?

CRAIG-OXLEY - March 29, 2007 12:56 AM (GMT)

So this is the scenario that is painted by the press, see? Talk about mind control here ... now the reporters that I talked to ... how they slip and slide with this ... once the cover story is established ... how they manage to keep from discovering anything, or thinking about anything ... or just considering the insanity of the cover story itself, is really something to behold. And I have been talking to a bunch of reporters down in Oklahoma City now ... I just listen and we talk and it is all very chatty and everything ... and for example one guy who was with the only daily in Oklahoma (The Daily Oklahoman) ... all he could talk about was the federal boys ... the federal boys combing through the wreckage of the building ... the federal boys were there and they did this and they told me and they said this ... and it was kind of like, when a sportswriter covers the Yankees ... the Slugger told me this, and he told me he threw the curve ball and he holds it this way ... had a beer with Mickey ... you know, that kind of stuff ... "the federal boys told me" that they couldn't find any other kind of bomb in the building at all ... that's it ... what else is there to know ... the federal boys day after day were going through the wreckage and they told him they couldn't find anything ... this guy would have talked for three hours like this if I had let him ... and that's how he keeps himself from figuring out what's going on and each reporter has his own little scene.

In the case of this one here, of course, now Valerie Wolf and one of her clients, they say "look we are not sure we really want to get this exposed all the way out because we know that the False Memory Syndrome Foundation right now has a stranglehold on the press." That's the cover story. Nobody cares that the FMSF board is composed of these guys with CIA, mind control connections ... That's the cover story that's laid down, and so everything else is irrelevant. That's what we have to bust—is that cover story—with enough people coming forward and saying, "it's not true". "

GODDESS AND THE KING- Central Story of Dirtiness around Opus Dei Knights of Malta

""The Goddess and the King

A genciesunder the control of this spider's web of interconnecting families and interests were responsible for the murder of Diana, Princess of Wales. Of that I have no doubt.

But please don't take my word for this. Look at the evidence and judge for yourself.

Many people dismiss the idea that Diana was assassinated because it would be impossible to kill her in a public situation and then cover up the evidence. After all, there would need to be coordination between so many different agencies. Well that's precisely what happened in the United States with the assassination of President John Fitzgerald Kennedy in 1963 and that was even more difficult to cover up. It wasn't staged as an accident which immediately creates the diversion of was it an accident or was it murder? The Kennedy assassination was quite clearly murder. He literally had his brains blown out in front of hundreds of onlookers and it was captured on film by one of them, Abraham Zapruder. In .. And The Truth Shall Set You Free, I feature the Kennedy killing in detail and you will see that the same people who supported or arranged the assassination were also appointed to the commission of the Chief 'Justice' and 33rd degree Freemason, Earl Warren, to investigate what happened! Among the Warren Commission 'team' were Allen Dulles, the head of the CIA sacked by Kennedy, and the paedophile, rapist, Bohemian Grove member and pornographer Gerald Ford, who would later become President of the United States after Richard Nixon was removed by Watergate. When Representative Hale Boggs, the only Catholic on the Commission, began to question its findings, he died in a plane crash. How convenient.

Jim Garrison, the New Orleans District Attorney, is the only man to charge anyone with Kennedy's murder. This was the CIA operative and former wartime friend of Winston Churchill called Clay Shaw. Garrison failed to win a conviction against the guilty-as-hell Shaw because many of the key witnesses were murdered before the trial. Garrison was astonished at the way apparently unconnected agencies, including the Dallas police, the FBI, the press, and the Washington establishment, could work so obviously as one unit to carry out the assassination and then cover it up. This was possible because of the networks I have been exposing in this book which have their operatives, 'gofers' and yes men, in all the agencies representing all sides and shades of opinion. Getting on for 40 years after the murder of President Kennedy in a public street on a public occasion we are no nearer to anyone being convicted. As usual the 'culprit' was identified immediately by those who were really responsible and he was eliminated so he couldn't contradict the official 'tale'. For Lee Harvey Oswald in Dealey Plaza, Dallas in 1963, read Henri Paul in the Pont de L'Alma Tunnel, Paris in 1997. Once the scapegoat has been sacrificed, no other story is entertained by the authorities and public interest wanes with the weeks, months and years. It's an old and well tried technique. A President is killed in a public assassination; Lee Harvey Oswald, the scapegoat or 'patsy', is murdered in public a few days later; and those who orchestrated their demise go to their graves unexposed and unconvicted. The Princess of Wales could not be murdered in a staged accident and the whole thing covered up? You've got to be kidding.

As I've described the background to the Kennedy assassination in a previous book, I won't repeat it all again here, but there are elements to that story that need to be highlighted and added to. Diana's family, the Spencers, are of an Elite bloodline and so are the Kennedys, who come from the Kennedy clan of ancient Ireland and later Scotland. They are descendants of the Irish king, Brian Boru, also known as Brian Caeneddi, which later became O'Kennedy. They were the Lords of Ormond in what is now called north Tipperary.¹ From around 1600 a Scottish branch of the Kennedys can be identified and this intermarried with the Irish line.² The Scottish Kennedys became a powerful strand of the aristocratic bloodlines of Scotland and married into Scottish royalty. One notable Kennedy was Archibald Kennedy, the 15th Earl of Cassillis, better known as the Marquess of Ailsa. He lived from 1872 to 1943 and held many leading positions in the Grand Lodge of Scottish Freemasonry including Grand Principle.³ He was a member of the key Holyrood House Lodge no 44 in Edinburgh which has close ties with the British royal family.⁴ In the 18th century, a Matthew Kennedy from Ireland went to Paris to work with his good friend, the Illuminati frontman called Saint Germain, who presided over the Illuminati Lodge at Ermenonville near Paris.⁵ The lodge took part in blood rituals on an altar made from human bones.⁶ This Kennedy produced a work called A Chronological, Genealogical and Historical Dissertation of the Royal Family of the Stuarts who connect into the Merovingian line established in France. The JFK wing is related to the Fitzpatricks, a powerful Irish family with a coat of arms which includes the classic Brotherhood symbols of three fleur-de4is, a dragon, and a lion.⁷ It seems likely that the Fitzpatricks go back to France and the Holy Grail story.

The family of JFK's wife, Jackie Bouvier Kennedy (later Onassis), are related to the Auchinclosses, one of the major Elite Scottish bloodlines, via the marriage of Jackie's sister into the Auchincloss clan. Other Auchincloss bloodlines have manifested as names like Bundy, Grosvenor, Vanderbilt, Winthrop and Rockefeller.⁸ Hugh D. Auchincloss Sr married Emma Brewster Jennings, the daughter of Oliver B. Jennings, who co-founded Standard Oil with John D. Rockefeller. James Shelby Downard describes Jackie Kennedy-Onassis, Caroline (Lee) Bouvier, and the writer, Gore Vidal, as the 'stepchildren' of Hugh D. Auchincloss.⁹ Vidal has described John and Jackie Kennedy as the "Sun God and Goddess"¹⁰ The Bouvier bloodline has been traced back to Grenoble, France, where it is first mentioned in 1410 and Jackie's greatgreat-grandfather, Eustache Bouvier, fought in a French regiment under the command of George Washington.¹¹ It was noted earlier that the Kennedys also married into the Dukes of Devonshire family at Chatsworth House, one of the leading Brotherhood families in England. The marriage of John Kennedy to Jackie Bouvier was another arranged marriage by the Eastern Establishment, the American bloodlines who run the United States according to the Agenda decided in the British Isles and France. Both bloodlines connect with the key centres of London and Paris. The fact that their marriage and presidency was known as 'Camelot' with its King Arthur and Mars connotations, is thoroughly appropriate because the King Arthur symbolism is used by the Brotherhood as part of their secret language. The Kennedy family have been closely involved with drugs, organised crime, the British monarchy, and the mind controlled slave operations like Project Monarch. This adds credibility to the claims by a recovered mind controlled slave I met who said she was taken to have sex with John F. Kennedy at the age of eleven - "Although they made me up to look about 16".

The Kennedy presidency was certainly not the way it was portrayed at the time. Kennedy had a stream of sexual partners and three of them, Marilyn Monroe, Jayne Mansfield and Zsa Zsa Gabor, were also girlfriends of Anton LaVey, head of the Church of Satan. Jayne Mansfield was a high priestess. Other long term relationships included two with members of Elite Scottish bloodlines, Lady Jean Campbell daughter of the Duke of Argyll, and Kay-Kay Hannon Auchincloss¹² of the family to which his wife was related. Behind JFK's rise to fame was his father, Joseph Kennedy, a member of the Brotherhood's Pilgrim Society. He was a crook with close connections to the Mafia and other organised crime. His fortune was assured when Winston Churchill awarded him the franchise to import British liquor into the United States. Joseph Kennedy was an associate of the Rothschilds and the Bronfmans, another 'Jewish' crime family in Canada which owns the liquor giant, Seagrams. Among Joseph Kennedy's contacts in Britain when he was US Ambassador to the Court of St James's in London were the Astors and the Rothschild bloodline offshoot, the Sassoons. Another intimate friend was Sir John Wheeler-Bennett, a leading executive of the Royal Institute of International Affairs. Joseph Kennedy's wife, Rose, came from the Black Nobility Fitzgerald family. The Fitzgeralds were one of the mighty Black Nobility clans of Italy which supported William the Conqueror's conquest of England in 1066. This established Black Nobility rule of the British Isles via ancient families like the St. Clairs/Sinclairs. So the 'F' in JFK was a Black Nobility family going back thousands of years. Rose's father and JFK's grandfather was John E (Honey Fitz) Fitzgerald, the vote-rigging mayor of Boston. The Fitzgeralds lived in Hanover Street near the former site of the Green Dragon Tavern in Boston, home to the St Andrews Lodge which was heavily involved in the manipulation of the American War of Independence and orchestrated the Boston Tea Party.¹³

Joseph Kennedy was a member of the Order of St John, the British version of the Knights of Malta, and the Bouvier family was intermarried with the Radziwills who established the Knights of St John/Knights of Malta in Poland in 1610 and also helped to establish the order in the United States.¹⁴ The Kennedys support the 407

Knights of Malta hospice movement in the United States via the Kennedy Institute for the Study of Human Reproduction and Bioethics at the Jesuit-controlled Georgetown University. The hospice movement, while presented with a compassionate face, is a front to gather support for euthanasia. Most people involved with the hospice movement are compassionate, it is the motivation of those who are manipulating it that I am talking about. Once euthanasia is accepted in law, it opens the floodgates for the legalised murder of what Kissinger calls the "useless eaters". As has been well documented in the countless biographies of JFK, he endured a loveless childhood under the iron rule of his father Joe and mother, Rose. He wasn't even told that his brother Teddy had been born and it was only when he came home from boarding school that he realised he had a new brother. There were no hugs, no show of affection, and the Kennedy children were not allowed to show pain. His upbringing has all the classic signs of the mind control techniques the Elite use on their own children. Prince Charles went through exactly the same upbringing under his aggressive and deeply unpleasant father, Prince Philip. JFK was groomed from an early age to take high office for the Brotherhood and he was supported by all the classic names like the Rothschilds, Tafts, Russells, Rockefellers, and media barons like Henry Luce, the head of Time-Life, and Randolph Hearst, the most powerful newspaper tycoon in the United States. When Kennedy ran for political office, the Boston American newspaper, owned by Hearst, refused to accept the paid advertisements of his opponent.¹⁵

But when JFK and his brother, Bobby, became President and Attorney General of the United States after their defeat of Richard Nixon in 1960, it seems that they began to pursue policies and people that were far from conducive to the introduction of their paymasters agenda. This included withdrawal from the Vietnam War, the introduction of some interest-free money, an assault on organised crime (in public at least) and, as Kennedy put it, a pledge to break up the CIA "Into a thousand pieces". It doesn't matter who you are, if you don't do as you are told, you are removed in the most appropriate way, bloodline or not. The Agenda is far greater than any individual or family. I can't help thinking, however, that there was more to the assassination than this and it has the feel of a long planned sacrificial murder, in accordance with the Brotherhood's ancient ritual laws. The location of the assassination, Dallas, Texas is close to the 33rd parallel of the 33rd degree of latitude. The top level of the Scottish Rite of Freemasonry is the 32nd degree and the 33rd degree is only for those who have contributed significantly to the Great Work, the takeover of Planet Earth. Dealey Plaza is a mass of esoteric symbolism and is officially named after a 33rd degree Freemason called George Bannerman Dealey, an early executive of the Dallas Morning News.

Dealey means 'goddess line'. Ley can also mean rule or law in Spanish, so translating as 'goddess-rule'. Either is perfect symbolism for the Brotherhood, especially the latter. Dealey Plaza, the site of the first Freemason temple in Dallas, is shaped like a pyramid with the capstone missing (see Figure 51 overleaf). The top is truncated by a railway bridge. The main pyramid is cut into two more by Main Street which runs directly through the centre. It is, in fact, three pyramids, two inside the one: the trinity or triad. Two energies interacting produce a third. If anyone thinks this is mere coincidence they should do a little research into the background of the Brotherhood secret societies at the top levels and see the staggering obsession they have with their symbols and rituals. Kennedy was killed near the so-called grassy knoll on the right of the pyramid and Lee Harvey Oswald was murdered while under police 'guard' in an underground car park at the bottom of the pyramid on Houston Street. Only a few yards separate the two points. The old Court House nearby which looks into Dealey Plaza is decorated with gargoyles. On top of the Court House is the symbol of the ancient Order of the Dragon or the Snake. Dealey Plaza, to the secret societies, is a Sun temple.

Kennedy was assassinated in an outdoor temple of the Sun by initiates of the Brotherhood network including the Knights Templar, the Knights of Malta, the Order of St John of Jerusalem, the Rosicrucians and the Freemasons. As James Shelby Downard writes: "Masonry does not believe in murdering a man in just any old way and in the JFK assassination it went to incredible lengths and took great risks in order to make this heinous act correspond to the ancient fertility oblation of the Killing of The King" 16 Kennedy was shot just after noon when the Sun was "most high". In ancient times it was said that when the Sun was "most high", he was doing his father's work in the temple (more symbolism used in the Jesus story). Kennedy was shot in the back, the head, and the throat, and they are the same wounds suffered by the mythical Hiram Abiff according to Freemasonic legend and initiation. Bill Cooper, a former operative with US Naval Intelligence, believes that the mythical Freemason hero, Hiram Abiff, is really a symbol for Jacques de Molay, the Grand Master of the Knights Templar when they were purged in France in 1307. De Molay was burnt to death on the Ile de la Cite, the original Paris, in the shadow of Notre Dame Cathedral, which the Templar's had built on a former site of worship to the goddess Diana. His death was ordered by the Roman Church Inquisition with support from King Phillippe the Fair, who could well have been under the control of the Priory of Sion. Cooper says that the assassination of JFK was the revenge of the Knights Templar against the Church, the state and the people. Kennedy is the only Roman Catholic President of the United States, the same Church of Rome which killed Jacques de Molay. On Dealey Plaza today, standing near the points where Kennedy and Oswald were murdered, is the obelisk erected by the Freemasons after the murders. The obelisk is symbolic of the penis of Osiris in Egyptian legend and the one in Dealey Plaza has the flame or lighted torch at the top (see picture section). The eternal flame on the Kennedy grave in Arlington Cemetery is there for the same reason. The flame or lighted torch is the most obvious Brotherhood signature and on Kennedy's grave the flame is within a circle, the ancient symbol of the Sun. Kennedy was also laid in state in the centre of a circle under the dome on Capitol Hill. There are 14 stones on the obelisk in Dealey Plaza, the number of pieces into which Osiris was cut by Set, according to Egyptian myth. The one part that his sisterwife, Isis, could not find was his penis, represented by the obelisk itself. She replaced the penis of Osiris with one she made herself and this became the symbol of the Brotherhood. The Dealey Plaza obelisk was built for, and dedicated to, a Freemasonic lodge of the Scottish Rite. They have found stone phalluses in cathedrals and churches hidden inside altars and when the investigation team of New Orleans District Attorney, Jim Garrison, searched the home of Clay Shaw they found penises.

In this book I've exposed the secret language at its basic level, but the depth to which it goes is astonishing. The science of numbers and names is one of these deeper levels of communication and symbolism which only an advanced initiate or focused researcher would fully understand. Numbers and names are, once again, vibrational frequencies and the amazing synchronicity of these is due, I feel, to the law of what I call vibrational attraction. Many of the number-name 'coincidences' will be consciously made to happen, but others are simply due to the energy field, the consciousness, of the person or people attracting to themselves vibrational fields which synchronise with the energy they are generating. This is how we create our own reality. Our inner self, our vibrating consciousness field, attracts other 'fields' -people, places, ways of life, experiences - which sync with the energy we are generating. It's a vibrational attraction between like energy fields. Therefore, our outer physical experience is merely a reflection of what is happening inside. What we vibrationally project with our attitudes and emotions, we attract back to us in people, places, ways of life and experiences which vibrate to the frequency we are projecting or broadcasting. So when we change what is happening within us, we change our physical experience because one is a reflection of the other. It is this 'magnetic' attraction of like vibration to like vibration that leads to people living in streets of a certain name or having relationships with those of a certain name, etc., because everything has its own vibrational code, including sounds, numbers, words, colours and names. In ritual magic the correct sounds, words, incantations, and colours, are all used to manifest a desired energy field or vibratory field. Sound is especially important and this is why the Phoenicians were concerned more with the sound of their words than their spelling. Mantras, the constant repeating of the same phrase or sound, are part of this same knowledge. And, like all knowledge, they can be used for good or ill. The training of Japanese Samurai warriors included instruction in producing the fighting cry, "Kiai". This sound is supposed to cause a lowering of blood pressure and partial paralysis in the hearer. Thus we have a 'bloodchilling' cry. Low frequency sounds of three to five cycles a second can kill you. The American researcher, James Shelby Downard, has written of this science of sounds, 410 numbers and names in relation to the Kennedy assassination. The writer, Robert Anton Wilson, says in his book The Cosmic Trigger, that Downard's theory is "The most absurd, the most incredible, the most ridiculous Illuminati theory of them all". This makes me even more certain that Downard must definitely be on to something. My own research supports this, too.

Kennedy was killed on November 22nd 1963. This date was the anniversary of the order or papal bull by Pope Clement V for the Knights Templar to be subjected to torture by the Dominican Inquisition. It was issued on November 22nd 1307. November is also the 11th month and if you add that to 22, again you have 33. John and Jackie Kennedy left Fort Worth on the morning of November 22nd 1963 and the plane came to a stop at gate 28 at Love Field Airport in Dallas. The number 28 is assigned the name 'Beale' in Solomonic cabalistic numerology. Beale is a word which derives in this way: Bel (El), Baal, Be al, Beal, Beale. These all relate to Sun gods. The 28th degree of the Knights Templar is the 'King of the Sun degree'. JFK was born at 83 Beal Street, Brookline, Massachusetts, on May 29th 1917. The 'protection' of the President on this fatal trip to Dallas was organised by the New Orleans CIA station which was housed in a Masonic temple building. Dallas is just ten miles south of the 33rd degree of latitude and the founding lodge of the Scottish Rite of Freemasonry was in Charleston, exactly on the 33rd degree. The first atom bomb was exploded at the 'Trinity' Site on the 33rd degree of latitude. The Kennedy motorcade travelled down Elm Street once home to the Blue Front Tavern, the meeting place for Freemasons, and at 12.22 pm it arrived in Dealey Plaza. Elm Street was known as 'Bloody' Elm Street because it was the scene of countless gun fights, stabbings and other acts of violence. The national offices of Texaco Oil are on Elm Street. Close to Dealey Plaza is the Trinity River which used to flood the Plaza for many years until the introduction of flood defences. Into this open air temple of the ancient Brotherhood came Jackie Kennedy, representing the goddess, the Queen of Love and Beauty and her scapegoat Sun King, John E Kennedy. He was the sacrifice in the ancient ritual of the Killing of the Sun King: the 'Ceannaideach' which is Gaelic for Wounded Head. Kennedy, of course, was shot in the head. I have it from a very good source that Kennedy didn't die until the following spring. My source claims that the 'Kennedy' who appeared in the post mortem photographs was J. D. Tippet, the police officer and Kennedy look-alike who was supposed to have been shot by Oswald with a gun that wasn't working!

When JFK was 22, a sculpture was made of him as a winged angel and it was presented to the Vatican where it was used as part of a panel in which the angel hovers over St Therese as she writes in a book.¹⁷ After the assassination, Kennedy's body was code-named 'Angel' and the same name was used for the plane, Air Force 1, which flew his coffin back to Washington.'⁸ Both Kennedy and Oswald were buried in places related to 'Arlington'. Kennedy at the Arlington National Cemetery near Washington DC and Oswald at the Rosehill Cemetery, near Arlington, Texas. Arlington is a word related to Freemasonic sorcery and pertains to necrophilia, a morbid attraction to corpses. Oswald is Os or Oz, the Egyptian Sun god Osiris as in the Wizard of Oz. If you are looking at the 411

synchronicity in the science of names and numbers, look at the astonishing coincidences between the assassinations of JFK and Abraham Lincoln, who was also killed by the Brotherhood. Lincoln was elected to Congress in 1846 and Kennedy was elected to Congress in 1946. Lincoln was elected president in 1860 and Kennedy was elected president in 1960. Lincoln's assassin, John Wilkes Booth, was born in 1839 and Lee Harvey Oswald, the alleged assassin of Kennedy, was born in 1939. Their successors were both called Johnson. Andrew Johnson, who succeeded Lincoln, was born in 1808 and Lyndon Johnson, who succeeded Kennedy, was born in 1908. Lincoln's secretary was called Kennedy and Kennedy's secretary was called Lincoln. Both presidents were murdered on a Friday in the presence of their wives and both were shot in the head.

Kennedy's vice-president, Lyndon Baines Johnson, had prior knowledge of the assassination and when he became president he immediately reversed all the policies on Vietnam, interest-free money, and the CIA which Kennedy was implementing. The Brotherhood Mother Goddess, Arizona Wilder, says she saw the shape-shifting Johnson at sacrifice rituals. Johnson's middle name, Baines, comes from the related Scottish clans

Bain, Bayne, Beathy, Binnie, Beath and Beth. Freemasons from these clans claim the same ancestor.¹⁹ The term, Mac, means 'son of' and so the son of Bain becomes MacBain and the interconnected clan, Beth, becomes MacBeth, the Scottish king made world famous by the writings of 'William Shakespeare'. Bain in French means bath and this is an origin of the Order of the Bath title awarded by the British monarch. Purification or absolution baths are given to the Masonic 'Knights of the Bath' before they cause murder and mayhem on the Brotherhood's behalf. After her husband's death, Jackie Kennedy journeyed to the island of Delos in the Aegean Sea which is considered by legend to be the birthplace of the goddess Diana and Apollo the Greek Sun god. Diana (the Moon) and Apollo (the Sun) are often brought together in Brotherhood symbolism. Delos is also known as the Island of the Dead because another version of the goddess Diana, known as Hecate, is said to be the patroness of the 'infernal arts'. Jackie went on to the Temple of Apollo at Delphi in Greece and in the ruins of a Greek theatre on that site she performed an ancient rite known as the Greeting of the Sun. She performed this, according to James

Shelby Downard, "With the expertise of an Aleister Crowley".²⁰ Another stop on her tour was the island of Santorina with its reputation for vampires. The origin of the vampire stories are the blood drinking and blood sucking rituals of the Brotherhood and their 'energy sucking' rituals, also. The vampire stories put the truth before our eyes in a way that we think is only fiction. This is something the Brotherhood loves to do via its biggest vehicle for communication, Hollywood, a name which comes from the holly bush, the holly (holy) wood of the Druid magicians. Hollywood is called a place of magic. Exactly what it is. It's playing with our minds, manipulating illusions.

There are so many similarities between the Kennedy assassination, the ritual killing of a Sun King, and that of Diana, Princess of Wales, in what I am convinced to have been a ritual murder of the Moon goddess known to the ancients as Diana. It was planned that Kennedy would die on that spot at that time long before he became president and so, I believe, Diana was groomed for at least many years to die in Paris at 412 that spot at that time, also. It is quite possible that this was planned from their childhood, even birth. I know how extreme that sounds, but when you study the Brotherhood in depth you realise very quickly that they are not formulating their plans weeks or months in advance, but literally centuries. From the lower fourth dimension they have a very different perspective of time in this dimension than we do. In the concluding chapters I will look in more detail at this and how and why such ritual assassinations are performed with such an eye to detail. Planning the murder of the Roman Catholic John Kennedy, the Sun King, to mark the anniversary of the Roman Church's Inquisition against the Knights Templar (or some other ritual) could quite obviously have been agreed decades in advance and the scapegoat decided and groomed for office. In the same way, Diana's birth to the bloodline family the Spencers in 1961 could have led to her being chosen as a symbol of the goddess Diana who would be led to a ritual death in an ancient sacred place of Diana worship and sacrifice, the Pont de L'Alma tunnel in Paris. I think there is an excellent chance that this is what happened. Just as Kennedy was manoeuvred into the presidency in 1960 for his ritual murder in 1963, 50 Diana was manoeuvred and manipulated into a marriage with Prince Charles and, finally, into the Pont de L'Alma tunnel. People say that to arrange the murder of Diana would have involved enormous planning and a great deal of time. Yes, that's probably right. But they had plenty of time.

Diana Frances Spencer was born at Park House on the Queen's Sandringham estate in Norfolk on July 1st 1961, the third and youngest daughter of Viscount Althorp, later the 8th Earl Spencer, and his first wife Frances Roche. Her parents separated when she was six and divorced in 1969, and her mother married the wallpaper tycoon Peter Shand-Kidd. Diana had a younger brother, Charles, the present Earl Spencer, and two sisters, Jane and Sarah. Another son was born before Diana, but he died and she believed that her parents would much rather she been a boy, a son and heir. Diana said that her childhood was very unhappy and she was to crave all her short life for the love and warmth denied her as a child. Living at Sandringham she knew the Queen from the time she was a little girl and she used to play with the royal children. It is said that Charles first saw Diana when she was still in her pram. She remembered, with less than affection, being shunted over to the Queen's residence during the holidays year after year to watch the film Chitty Chitty Bang Bang. The choice of movie is interesting because it was written by Ian Fleming, the intelligence agent, friend of Aleister Crowley and author of the James Bond novels. The movie features a king and queen who hate children. They employ a child catcher to lure children, abduct them, and put them in a cage. They are then taken to the castle and locked in a dungeon. It is all symbolism for what is actually happening and there is no way that the Windsors played this for Diana so often by accident. Certainly Diana was already picking up the Windsor 'vibes' at Sandringham. She told Andrew Morton in his book, Diana: Her True Story: "The atmosphere was always very strange when we went there and I used to kick and fight anyone who tried to make us go" 21 So the Windsors were well aware of Diana from the moment she was born. When she was 13, Diana moved from Norfolk to live at 413

Althorp in Northamptonshire, the Spencer family's ancestral home, after her father inherited the title of Earl Spencer. Diana was particularly devastated when her father married Raine, the daughter of the novelist Barbara Cartland. Diana had a deep loathing for her. She said in Diana: Her True Story that in September 1989 she had unleashed her years of frustration on Raine: "I told her what I thought about her, and I've never known such anger in me. I remember really going for her gullet". I said "If you only knew how much we all hated you for what you've done, you've ruined the house (Althorp), you spend all daddy's money, and for what?" The empathy that Diana had with people in emotional distress came from her own emotional scars which she carried all her life.

The Spencers are an Elite bloodline family. They are cousins of the Spencer-Churchills and related to the Marlborough family at Blenheim Palace in Oxfordshire, where Winston Churchill was born. Other forebears included the Duke of Marlborough, Sir Robert Walpole, and the Spencer family inherited a considerable fortune from Sarah,

Duchess of Marlborough. They also married into the Cavendish family, the Dukes of Devonshire at Chatsworth House, and that offshoot became known as Spencer-Cavendish. Diana shared common ancestors with Prince Charles in the 3rd Duke of Devonshire and, most significantly, King James I, the first Stuart king of England and Scotland and sponsor of Francis Bacon. It was King James who played a highly influential role in the expansion of the Brotherhood, the formation of the Virginia Company which still controls the United States, and the creation of the King James version of the Bible. Diana was also descended through several lines from the Stuart kings, Charles II and James II, which connected her, as with James I, to the Merovingian bloodline in France. Charles II had so many children out of wedlock that goodness knows where some of their bloodlines are today. One thing's for sure, the Brotherhood will know. As Elite families go, the Spencers are an important bloodline and Diana was related to countless aristocratic lines, including the Earls of Lucan. Further afield the Spencers have blood ties with many leading American families and they are distantly related to the Rockefellers. They have a long history of serving the monarch and the tradition continued with Diana's father. He was equerry to King George VI (who was married to the Queen Mother) and to Queen Elizabeth. Diana's sister, Jane, is married to Sir Robert Fellowes, the Queen's Private Secretary at the time of Diana's death. Both of Diana's grandmothers, the Countess Spencer and Ruth Lady Fermoy, were inner circle members of the Queen Mother's court, as were four of her great aunts. The Spencers and the Queen Mother were very close and it was Lady Fermoy and the Queen Mother who manipulated Diana into her marriage with Prince Charles. This could be most significant when you hear about the true nature of the Queen Mother.

The countdown to the marriage began when Diana met Prince Charles at Althorp while he was having a relationship with her sister Sarah, in 1977. Diana was 16, but it was three years later that the Windsors really made their move on her. With the Queen Mother and Lady Fermoy manipulating behind the scenes, she was invited to a dance at Buckingham Palace to celebrate Charles' 30th birthday. Then, in July 1980, a friend of Charles, Philip de Pass, asked her to stay with them while the Prince was there. In Diana's own words, Charles was all over her and "He leapt on me practically".²² He asked her to travel with him to Buckingham Palace the next day and an invitation followed to join the Windsors in the September at Balmoral, their residence in Scotland. Eventually Charles asked her to marry him and she accepted. "I love you so much" Diana said to him. "Whatever love is" Charles replied.²³ That is such a telling statement about the Windsors and the way they bring up their children. They don't understand love because they give and receive so little. Imagine being a young child and having to line up with everyone else to shake your mother's hand when she returned from an overseas visit. That is how the Queen and Prince Philip treated Charles. Diana was a kindergarten nanny when the story of the relationship broke in the media and her life in the public eye and the constant spotlight had begun. So had her nightmare with the Windsors. Looking back, Diana could see that Charles had never been genuine in his affection for her. She realised even before the wedding that he was having a relationship with his real love, Camilla Parker-Bowles, and this continued and grew during their marriage. Charles and Camilla communicated using the code 'Gladys and Fred'. Camilla, like the Windsors, is close to the Rothschilds and on the first anniversary of Diana's death, she was on the Ionian island of Corfu enjoying the hospitality of Lord Jacob Rothschild.²⁴ He has also spent £16 million leasing and restoring the Spencer's 18th century mansion overlooking Green Park in London, close to Buckingham Palace.²⁵

414

The Windsors wanted Diana to produce heirs with Spencer genes and that was all she was to them: an incubator. A week after her engagement to Charles, her bulimia began. This is an eating disorder in which you make yourself sick every time you eat food. Diana was throwing up three or four times a day and became desperately thin. As I mentioned in an earlier chapter, many victims of childhood sexual and Satanic abuse suffer from bulimia later in life. She said that the bulimia was 'triggered' when Charles put his hand on her waist and said "Oh, a bit chubby here, aren't we?" Bulimia is a disease of the emotions, as most diseases are, and Diana was in emotional turmoil even before the wedding. She described the attitude of Charles like this:

"He'd found the virgin, the sacrificial lamb, and in a way he was obsessed with me. But it was hot and cold, hot and cold. You never knew what mood it was going to be, up and down, up and down... He was in awe of his mama, intimidated by his father, and I was always the third person in the room."²⁶

She met her sisters and told them she couldn't go through with the marriage, especially with Camilla still on the scene, but they said she had no choice because "Your face is on the tea towels and you're too late to chicken out". Before the wedding, Diana stayed at Clarence House, the London residence of the Queen Mother. When she had arrived no-one was there to welcome her, she said, it was like going to a hotel.

Diana and Charles were married in St Paul's Cathedral on July 29th 1981. That morning at Clarence House she said she felt calm, deathly calm: "I felt I was a lamb to the slaughter. I knew it, and I couldn't do anything about it".²⁷ What prophetic words those would prove to be. They spent the first night of their honeymoon at the Mountbatten family estate at Broadlands in Hampshire before sailing around the Greek islands in the royal yacht Britannia (Barati). The bulimia got worse and she considered suicide, such was the scale of her unhappiness. "My husband made me feel so inadequate in every possible way that each time I came up for air he pushed me down again. I hated myself so much". One of Diana's royal duties in 1982 was to represent the Queen at the funeral of Princess Grace of Monaco, another victim of Brotherhood murder when the brakes on her car failed. Princess Grace, formerly the actress Grace Kelly, ran the Monaco branch of the Order of the Solar Temple with Jean Louis Marsan, the close friend of her husband, Prince Rainier. The Windsors got what they wanted when Prince William was conceived. Diana was told that the birth had to be induced to fit in with Charles' polo playing programme and the blond-haired, blue-eyed William was born on June 21st 1982, the summer solstice. Now first of all, what kind of father and husband insists that his wife and son be given needless drugs to suit his polo diary? And secondly, does anyone believe that was really the reason? The Windsors are obsessed with astrology and the esoteric arts to such an extent that the psychic-astrologer mother of an Irish friend of mine could predict with uncanny accuracy the colours the Queen and Queen Mother would be wearing every day. She was correct again and again because she knew the colours connected to each day according to esoteric law. A family so steeped in Satanism, the esoteric mysteries, and the Sun cult, induce the heir to ensure he is born on the summer solstice, when the Sun is at the peak of its power, and that's just a coincidence? No way. He was christened William (after the Black Nobility William the Conqueror) Arthur (after the Sun God symbol, King Arthur) Philip (after the Duke of Edinburgh) Louis (after Louis Mountbatten). William's first serious girlfriend, according to the British press, was Emma Parker-Bowles, the niece of his father's lover, Camilla. Prince Harry was born in September 1984 and Diana's usefulness to the Windsors was over. "Then suddenly as Harry was born it just went bang, our marriage, the whole thing went down the drain", she told Andrew Morton.²⁸ Diana and Charles separated in 1992 and divorced on August 28th 1996. Almost exactly a year later she was dead.

Diana lived in apartments at Kensington Palace or 'KP' as she called it. Prince Michael of Kent, the Grand Master of English Freemasonry, has his home there, also. The Brotherhood-Windsor machine attempted to destroy Diana's credibility and public esteem. A tape of an intimate telephone conversation between her and the car dealer, James Gilbey, was released through the media in 1992. On the tape Diana said that Charles was a real torture. She told Gilbey: "I'll go out and conquer the world, do my bit in the way I know how and leave him behind".

But despite, perhaps because of, the efforts to discredit her, Diana's popularity continued and grew. Her unique combination of a big heart, a global public profile, and an intense desire to settle a score with the Windsors, threatened the very survival of royalty. Her natural compassion and empathy with people were putting the emotionless Windsors in the shade and exposing them as out of date and irrelevant. The naive, shy

19-year-old, who was enticed into the Windsor web, was now a woman who was realising her true power and was prepared to use it. She took the issue of landmines from obscurity to the front pages across the world and she had the platform to do that with any subject she chose. To the Windsors and the Brotherhood, this lady was dangerous with a capital D. She also knew many intimate secrets of the Windsors and the establishment. She knew where the bodies were buried as they say, and she had shown in her famous interview with the BBC current affairs programme, Panorama, in November 1995, that she was prepared to reveal some of them. That interview, in which she talked of her unhappy relationship with the royal family in very forthright terms, did immense harm to the Windsors and they must have wondered what on earth she would do next. In my travels around the world I met a man who had a call from Diana in March 1997, a few months before she died. He was amazed when she said it was the Princess of Wales and he didn't believe her at first, especially when she said that she was calling from a 'supermarket phone' in England. But Diana and this man had a mutual friend, and a close confidant of Diana told me that she often rang people from public phones, particularly from a department store in Kensington, when she wanted to be certain the conversation would not be tapped. Diana admired this man for his wisdom and knowledge. She said she had something to reveal that would shake the world and she wanted his advice on how best to do it. He will not reveal what she told him, but when I said that I knew she was aware of the Windsors' connection to global drugs trafficking, he said: "Oh no, it was much worse than that". You might get an idea of what it could have been later in this chapter. Diana knew far more than people realise, as we shall also see. But that was only one level of the plot to kill Diana. At the highest level of the black magicians who control the Brotherhood networks, I have no doubt that her death had long been planned according to their ancient and deeply sick ritual. These two levels, the practical need to remove her (lower initiates) and the need for a ritual killing of the 'goddess Diana' (highest initiates) would run side by side, exactly as they did with President Kennedy.

The final sequence of events which led to her death involves, at almost every turn, a man called Mohamed Al Fayed, the Egyptian 'owner' of Harrods, the top people's store in Knightsbridge, London, and the father of Dodi Fayed who died in the crash with Diana. Al Fayed also owns the Ritz Hotel in Paris. This is the guy who bleats on and on about the need for "truth" and "justice" over the death of Diana and yet he would not recognise truth if it bit him on the bum. You can always tell when Mohamed Al Fayed is lying - his lips are moving. He fought a long, public, and vicious battle for control of Harrods and the House of Fraser with Tiny Rowland, the head of another Brotherhood front, Lonrho, the London-Rhodesia company, which has been responsible for so much manipulation of Africa and Africans. At one stage there was a Department of Trade and Industry inquiry into the Harrods takeover and it concluded: "The lies of Mohamed Fayed and his success in 'gagging' the press created a new fact: that lies were the truth and the truth was a lie".²⁹ This would be a suitable epitaph for what Private Eye, the British satirical magazine and others, have dubbed: The phony pharaoh. The report also revealed that Al Fayed had lied about his family background. He had claimed to come from a wealthy Egyptian family and it was this money, he said, that he was using to buy Harrods. In fact he comes from a far from rich family and he didn't have any such money of his own. He was born on January 27th 1929 in Alexandria, the son of a school inspector. He sold Coca-Cola in the streets and later knocked on doors selling Singer sewing machines. It was an introduction to Adnan Khashoggi, now the world's most famous arms broker, which changed his life. Khashoggi was the son of the personal physician to the King of Saudi Arabia and the Khashoggis employed 'Al' Fayed (then Mohamed Abdel Moneim Fayed) in their business ventures. He later fell out with the Khashoggi family, apparently, and proceeded to lie his way through a stream of business deals which made him a lot of money from setting up deals for others and taking a commission. The construction company, Costain, was one of his main sources of income in the early days, but he made nothing like as much money as he claimed to be worth. See Tom Bower's book, Fayed, The Unauthorised Biography, for the detailed background.³⁰ Al Fayed's involvement with the Haiti dictator, Papa Doc, led to interest in his activities by the CIA. One CIA report on him remarked that: "He strikes one as being friendly and evil at the same time".³¹

While he became wealthy by the standards of the rest of the population, he did not have nearly enough of his own money to buy Harrods and he used the wealth of the Sultan of Brunei, one of the richest men in the world. It was the Sultan who provided the money for Harrods and Al Fayed also acted for him in the purchase of the prestigious London hotels, the Savoy and the Dorchester. Al Fayed may act the big tycoon, but in the biggest game he is a 'gofer' who takes orders and does as he's told.

This is fascinating because we are led to believe that Mohamed Al Fayed and the Queen are on different sides and oppose each other over what happened to Diana. Funny, then, that Mohamed Al Fayed is subordinate to the Sultan of Brunei and the Queen of England is a friend of the Sultan of Brunei. She went to stay with him between September 16th and 20th in 1998.³² What is going on here? Al Fayed's most prominent sycophantic media poodle is the Daily Mirror which has acted as his personal newsletter. The Mirror made strenuous efforts to secure an interview with me in June 1998, despite my initial reluctance. But when I made my thoughts about Al Fayed known to the reporter, the article was dropped by the Editor, Piers Morgan, who personally conducts the Mirror interviews with Al Fayed.

Doing as you are told by the very rich and powerful and using highly unscrupulous business methods, has proved extremely profitable for Al Fayed. He owns a fleet of bullet proof Mercedes, a £3.5 million Sikorski helicopter, a £13 million Gulfstream Jet, a £15 million yacht, The Jonikal, castles and 50,000 acres in Scotland, and expensive homes in Gstaad, New York, Dubai, Geneva, Gerona, London, Surrey and Los Angeles, all fully staffed and equipped.³³ Balnagown, his Scottish castle, is close to Loch Ness. As long as he does as he is told and is useful to the Brotherhood his wealth will continue. If he doesn't - gone. They will hang him out to dry. Another source of income for the Fayeds, again interconnected with the Sultan of Brunei, is arms dealing. Al Fayed's former brother-in-law and Dodi's uncle, Adnan Khashoggi, the infamous Saudi arms dealer and fixer, has arranged weapons sales, legal and illegal, worth multibillions of dollars. Many of the discussions for such deals take place at the Ritz Hotel in Paris owned by Mohamed Al Fayed (or the Sultan?). This is one reason why Al Fayed has the Ritz bugged to eavesdrop on his VIP guests. In fact, he has everything bugged, as we'll see. He is deeply involved in brokering arms sales and Dodi was often an unofficial broker for arms-for-oil deals between the Gulf states and America.³⁴ Adnan Khashoggi is a close associate of George Bush and bankrolled part of Bush's 'Iran-Contra' arms-for-drugs operation in the 1980s. George Bush, in turn, is a bosom buddy of the Queen and Prince Philip. Al Fayed is involved in many underground deals and plots involving events, people, and subjects that he is desperate to ensure remain secret. Certainly not a man to trust under any circumstances, in my view. I should emphasise, too, that the Islamic elite, like the Sultan of Brunei, are significant players in the Brotherhood pyramid and the Grand Lodge at Cairo is one of the most powerful secret society centres in the world. This is hardly surprising given the Brotherhood's obsession with ancient Egypt and its ritual and symbols. The reptilian bloodlines may be predominantly Aryan, but they are far from exclusively so. They work through streams within all races, the Arabs and the 'Jews' most certainly among them. One of the predominant secret societies in the Arab world is the Order of the Mystic Shrine or the 'Shriners'. They are connected to the Knights Templar, and the York and Scottish Rites of Freemasonry. Among their members in the United States have been President Franklin Delano Roosevelt and his successor President Harry S. Truman. There is also a Prince Hall Shrine for black members of the Brotherhood, including that self-styled spokesman for the black community in the United States, Jesse Jackson.

Al Fayed has served the interests of the Brotherhood and the establishment in a number of ways while presenting an anti-establishment public profile. For instance it was he who exposed the two Conservative MPs, Neil Hamilton and Tim Smith, who were taking money to ask certain questions in the House of Commons. This is quite illegal. Al Fayed knew that this was true because he was the one giving them the money! This story did enormous harm to the Conservative Government and did much to help the Brotherhood chosen one, Tony Blair, to a landslide victory for the Labour Party at the following General Election. Al Fayed has also escaped prosecution so far for a growing number of allegations from young female members of staff at Harrods that he sexually assaulted them. His obsession with sex is legendary. One girl, 17-yearold Samantha-Jane Ramsay, said that when she complained to her supervisor that she had been groped by Al Fayed, the supervisor sighed: "Another one". Al Fayed sacked her for making the complaint, as he does all those who speak out against his sexual molestation and style of business 'management'. John Monks the general secretary of the Trades Union Congress, said that at Harrods there was "A regime of fear and terror". When Samantha-Jane took her complaint to the local Marylebone Police Station, she said that the officer told her: "You're not the first to come to us. We have files inches high on Mr Al Fayed, but no proof. It would be your word against his".³⁵ A file inches high of different girls making the same complaint about the same man would, I suggest, constitute rather more than "No proof". But Al Fayed, the man we are told the establishment would love to crush, survives untouched. So this is just some of the background to the liar, double-dealer, sexual molester, Satanist and Sultan of Brunei frontman, who had complete control of Diana's security in the days and hours leading up to her death. I wouldn't trust him with the security of my cat. Indeed, as Tom Bower has documented, Al Fayed has ordered his hit men to shoot a cat he didn't like.

Al Fayed had become close to the Spencer family through Diana's father, Earl 'Johnny' Spencer, and stepmother Raine. He helped 'Johnny' through financial difficulties and said he considered the Earl to be a brother.³⁶ He had given Raine, whom Diana couldn't stand, a place on the Harrods board. Al Fayed sponsored prestigious royal events like the Royal Windsor Horse Show and polo competitions, but he especially backed the causes and charities supported by Diana. Bob Loftus, the head of security at Harrods between 1987 and 1996, told the British Channel Four programme, Dispatches, in June 1998, that he was ordered to tell Al Fayed immediately if Diana came into the store. Al Fayed would then go to the department where she was shopping and 'accidentally' meet her. Every Christmas a green Harrods van would call at Diana's home, Kensington Palace, with gifts for her and the boys from 'Uncle Mohamed'.

When you look at the evidence, he made it his business to court the friendship of the Princess of Wales in every way possible. On June 3rd 1997, he invited her to join him for a Summer holiday at his beach-side villa in San Tropez in the south of France. On June 11th he got the breakthrough he had been working so hard for: she accepted. The following day he completed the purchase of a £15 million yacht, The Jonikal, through his Bermudan company Mohafa Shipping, and it was on this boat that Dodi and Diana's romance was soon to blossom.

On July 11th Diana arrived in San Tropez with her sons, William and Harry, to stay in an eight-bedroomed luxury apartment on the ten acre Al Fayed estate on the exclusive Le Parc development. At this time, Dodi Fayed was still at his apartment in Paris with his fiancée Kelly Fisher, the American model. The 41-year-old Dodi was a 'gofer' for his father and lived on his father's wealth, although he had enjoyed some success in the movie industry at one time as the hands-off producer of the hit British film Chariots Of Fire, again thanks to his father's money. He had a playboy reputation and was a very big spender, once famously running up a $100,000 bill in two months on his Amex card. He was dominated by his father and even in his film operation every decision had to be approved by Al Fayed. Dodi did whatever his father told him to do. He had been engaged to Kelly Fisher for eight months and she was expecting to spend her holiday on The Jonikal. But on the evening of July 14th, Dodi took a phone call from his father who ordered him to go immediately to San Tropez to be with Diana. Kelly Fisher described what happened next in an interview with the Dispatches programme: “(Dodi) said he was going to London and he'd be back and then we were going to San Tropez. That evening he didn't call me and I finally got him on his portable phone. I said 'Dodi where are you?' and he said he was in London. I said 'OK, I'll call you right back at your apartment'. He said 'No, no, don't call me back.' So I said 'Dodi where are you?' and he admitted he was in the South of France. His father had asked him to come down and not bring me, I know now.”

420

Two days later Dodi sent a private plane to fly Kelly to San Tropez. But while he stayed with Diana, Kelly was kept aboard another Fayed boat. “I'm sitting here stuck”

she said. "So he had me in my little boat cage and he was, I know now, seducing Diana." On July 31st, Diana returned to San Tropez for a second holiday with Dodi, this time alone. Kelly Fisher was back in Los Angeles preparing for her wedding to Dodi which she said was due to take place on August 9th. But two days before that, the story broke in the world media of the romance between Dodi and Diana. Kelly heard from a friend who saw a picture in the paper. She recalls:

"I started calling him in London because at this time I was expecting his arrival in a day. I called his private line, but there was no answer. So then I called the secretary and asked to speak to him and she wouldn't put me on. So Mohamed got on and in so many horrible words told me to never call back again. I said 'He's my fiancee, what are you talking about?' He hung up on me and I called back and the secretary said don't ever call here again, your calls are no longer to be put through. It was so horrible."³⁷

Ironically, Diana used to have Kensington Palace swept for listening devices and now she was in the clutches of a man for whom bugging was an obsession. The Al Fayed villa in San Tropez was bugged, as were all Fayed properties. Everything Diana said could be heard. Bob Loftus, the former Head of Security at Harrods, said that the bugging there was "A very extensive operation" and was also always under the direction of Al Fayed.³⁸ Henry

Porter, the London Editor of the magazine Vanity Fair, had spent two years investigating Al

Fayed and he said they came across his almost obsessive use of eavesdropping devices to tape telephone calls, bug rooms, and film people. Through mutual friends, Porter warned Diana about Al Fayed's background and activities "Because we thought this was quite dangerous for her for obvious reasons"³⁹ But Diana apparently felt she could handle it and although she knew Al Fayed could "Sometimes be a rogue", he was no threat to her, she thought. He is rather more than a rogue and rather more often than 'sometimes'. She apparently told friends: "I know he's naughty, but that's all". The Dispatches programme said they had written evidence that Al Fayed bugged the Ritz Hotel and given his background and the deals that are hatched at the Ritz, it would be staggering if he did not.

Kelly Fisher said that the whole time she was in Fayed property she just assumed everything was bugged. It was known, she said, and Dodi had told her everywhere was bugged. She went on: "As a matter of fact, when I confronted him about Diana, he said: 'I can't talk to you on the phone'. He said 'I'll talk to you in LA'. I knew what that meant". Diana was under the 'protection' of the Al Fayed security machine and even her most private conversations were being monitored.

Diana went with Dodi to Al Fayed's Elizabethan-style mansion called Barrow Green Court at Oxted in Surrey, formerly owned by the Satanist Lord McAlpine. Throughout the house Al Fayed had placed statues of semi-naked Greek goddesses. On August 21st, despite Henry Porter's warning, Diana returned again to San Tropez for another holiday with Dodi. Al Fayed was milking the situation, briefing journalists and photographers and enlisting the advice of publicist Max Clifford.⁴⁰ The Al Fayed machine was leaking the couple's whereabouts to ensure maximum publicity. Al Fayed complained after the crash that photographers and journalists would not leave the Princess alone, a statement which, in the circumstances, beggars belief. The Diana-Dodi romance was now in full swing and Al Fayed was urging his son to intensify the relationship.⁴¹ And what Al Fayed said, Dodi did. Nothing was left to chance. Diana's favourite music, the theme from The English Patient, was played over and over as the couple cruised on The Jonikal. Diana and Dodi had much in common. Both had been born into wealthy families and their fathers were distant figures. Both had experienced the breakdown of their parents' marriages as their mothers left home. They even attended finishing schools close to each other in Switzerland. But we should not rule out the possibility of mind manipulation techniques being used on both parties. I have met a number of former mind controlled slaves who were programmed to fall madly in love with someone they normally would not even like and there are endless examples of 'love spells' concocted by black magicians to cause someone to fall madly in love with them. My scientist friend, Brian Desborough, tells me that the feeling of being in love is dependent upon the brain producing phenylethylamine. This is a chemical which also diminishes the ability to discriminate effectively, hence the term 'love is blind'. Production of this chemical is sustained by the release of endorphins, a naturally occurring chemical linked to memory, learning, pain suppression, sex drive and hormone regulation. If these chemicals could be stimulated in both parties they would fall instantly in love.

I think there is a very good chance that something like this happened as the sting was set up for both of them. There was talk of engagement in the air, but it is impossible to say

how imminent that was, because reports conflict. I have great doubts about that myself.

Diana and Dodi left the South of France from Olbia Airport at 1.30pm on August 30th bound for Paris on Al Fayed's Gulfstream jet. They apparently intended to stay one night at Dodi's apartment, which looks out on the Arc de Triomphe, before going on to London where Diana was due to meet her sons. It was to be her last full day alive. The plane touched down at Le Bourget Airport in Paris at 3.20pm and they were met by 20 or so celebrity photographers known as the paparazzi (from an Italian word meaning 'buzzing insects'). A Mercedes was waiting for the party and a green Range Rover was to follow on behind. This is normal security procedure and the very minimum you would expect to protect someone so globally famous. With Diana and Dodi in the Mercedes was Dodi's bodyguard, Trevor Rees-Jones, the 29-year-old former member of the elite British military regiment, the Paras or Parachute Regiment. Along with the SAS, the Paras are the most highly trained (and therefore mind controlled) regiment in the British forces. In the Range Rover were the driver, Henri Paul, the acting Head of Security at the Ritz, and another bodyguard, Kes Wingfield. They drove from the airport to the Villa Windsor on the Bois de Boulogne, the former home of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. The Duke and Duchess lived there after the duke, as King Edward VIII, abdicated the British throne when the government and establishment would not accept his marriage to the American divorcee, Wallis Simpson. They then moved to Paris as the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. Their house is now owned by Mohamed Al Fayed and it is said that he was going to give it to Dodi and Diana as a wedding present. This talk of a wedding, however, is unsubstantiated, much as Al Fayed has sought to promote it. His publicity machine led the public to believe the couple had spent time at Villa Windsor discussing decor, but the bodyguard Kes Wingfield said that they only stayed there for “Around ten minutes”.⁴² From here they were driven to the Ritz Hotel where they arrived at 4.20pm. The Ritz is in the Place Vendome and all around that square at first floor level are symbols of the Sun and the cross, very much like the symbols used by the ancients to symbolise the ‘journey’ of the Sun through the year which I featured earlier in the book. This was the symbol of King Louis XIV, who was known as the ‘Sun King’. At his palace at Versailles in the 17th century he decorated rooms in honour of Apollo, the Sun god, and Diana, the goddess of the Moon. There was also a statue of the goddess Diana at Versailles. In the centre of the Vendome Square is an immense pillar with a statue of Napoleon on the top and it mirrors the famous Nelson’s Column in Trafalgar Square, London. At this stage Diana still had the same level of security that she’d had since the airport, but this could have been increased considerably if support from the French High Protection Police Security Service (SPHP) had been requested. It is there to protect VIPs visiting the city, but a request for their services must be made. It wasn’t. All Diana’s security was provided by Al Fayed’s people from start to finish. If they had enlisted the protection of the French police, Diana would still be alive. When a celebrity like Madonna visits Paris, the French Police have one car in front of hers and another behind, together with two motorcycle riders front and back of the motorcade. The cars are driven by trained drivers and they carry armed security men. According to reports, the SPHP made three, possibly four, offers to protect Diana, but each one was refused by Dodi. Was he, himself, under instruction to reject these offers from someone to whom he could not say no? An officer of the SPHP told Dodi: "If you will not use our car, we recommend that two police cars accompany you on your excursions around the city."⁴³ This advice, too, was ignored.

422

Diana and Dodi went straight to the $6,000 a night 18th century Imperial Suite at the Ritz. From there, Diana rang her friend, the Daily Mail journalist Richard Kay. She told him she intended to retire from public life in November and he said that he had never heard her so happy. The couple booked a table at the Chez Benoit restaurant for 8.45pm and they intended to spend the night at Dodi's apartment. At 6.30pm Dodi went across the Place Vendome to a jewellers, Repossi, to buy a diamond ring for Diana which was no need to go through the Pont de L'Alma tunnel.

423

later delivered to the Ritz. A little after 7 pm, the couple were driven in the Mercedes along the Champs Elysees to Dodi's apartment on Rue Arsene-Houssaye close to the Arc de Triomphe. Here they unpacked and prepared for dinner. Again the back up Range Rover was there and so was another car carrying bodyguards for added protection. Why was this level of security thought necessary in the early evening, but not in the early hours of the morning at the time of the crash? Dodi's apartment is known as the 'Etoile flat' after the Place de L'Etoile, the 'Sun or star circle' road around the Arc de Triomphe. The route they took to the apartment was out of the Place Vendome onto the Rue de Rivoli, and half way around the Place de la Concorde they turned right onto the Champs Elysees and drove straight up that famous avenue to Dodi's apartment (see Figure 52). Remember that route, it is crucially important. As they arrived at the apartment at 7.15pm, bodyguards were seen to rush from their car to hold back six paparazzi. Diana and Dodi became concerned about eating at the unprotected Chez Benoit restaurant and decided to head back to the Ritz to eat. They took the same route back, down the Champs Elysees and around the Place de la Concorde. The couple, with bodyguards Wingfield and Rees-Jones, walked into the Ritz, captured by the now famous video pictures, at 9.47pm. As the paparazzi gather in numbers outside, amid rumours of an engagement announcement, Diana has already started the last three hours of her life. Who was feeding the rumours and the whereabouts of Diana during the day to create the paparazzi stampede that dominated Diana and Dodi's movements and decisions that night? I think I can guess, somehow. Al Fayed.

And who were some of these 'paparazzi' making life uncomfortable for Diana, thus changing the plans for the evening? The Ritz security video also identified a number of people who had been outside among the onlookers for most of the day and were still there on the edge of the crowd.⁴⁴

Now the plot seriously thickens. After speaking on the phone with his father at his estate in Oxted, Surrey, Dodi Fayed announced a quite ludicrous plan. To avoid the paparazzi, the Mercedes which had been transporting them all day together with the back up Range Rover were to be taken around the front of the hotel and used as a decoy for the paparazzi. At the same time another Mercedes would be brought around to the back entrance of the hotel to whisk the couple away to the apartment on the Champs Elysees. Henri Paul, the 41-year-old acting head of security at the Ritz, was called on his mobile phone by Dodi and told to report back to the hotel. He went off duty at 7pm and by the time he returned it was 10pm. No-one has established where Paul was in those three hours. Dodi said that his father, Mohamed Al Fayed, had personally authorised that Henri Paul should drive the Mercedes. For me, that is Dodi-speak for "My father told me this is how it is going to be". Henri Paul was not a qualified chauffeur and had no hire car permit. L. Fletcher Prouty, a former colonel in the US Airforce who worked closely with the intelligence agencies, once said:

"No-one has to direct an assassination - it happens. The active role is played secretly by permitting it to happen. This is the greatest single clue. Who has the power to call off or reduce the usual security precautions?"⁴⁵

Absolutely right. If we apply Prouty's rule to Diana and ask who had the power - and used that power - to reduce the usual security precautions for her that night, we have a rather interesting answer: Mohamed Al Fayed. Given these circumstances he must answer the obvious question: Why was this security reduced? When President Kennedy was assassinated, there were no bodyguards standing on his car while four were standing on the one immediately behind (see picture section). He was also in an open-topped car at a dangerous time in a dangerous city. When Martin Luther King was shot dead at the Lorraine Motel in Memphis, Tennessee, on April 4th, 1968, the black police officer in charge of security for King was sent home against his will hours before the shooting. The only two black firemen at the station next to the motel were sent to other stations just for that day. The scapegoat for this assassination was a guy called James Earl Ray. Not even King's family believed he was responsible. So much so that they attended his funeral a few years ago. When Bobby Kennedy was murdered after making a speech at the Ambassadors Hotel in Los Angeles on June 4th 1968, again the security arrangements were tampered with. The plan was for Kennedy to walk off the stage and through the crowd to the exit. But immediately after the speech, Kennedy's 'aides', especially Frank Mankiewicz, insisted that it was safer for him to go out through the hotel kitchen. When he walked into the kitchen he was met by the mind controlled Sirhan Sirhan with a gun in his hand. It is far more likely that Bobby Kennedy was actually shot by members of his 'security' team, particularly Thane Eugene Caesar, the 'security guard' who was employed at the last minute and had endless connections into far right groups and the intelligence community. But with Sirhan Sirhan at the scene with a gun, they had a mind controlled scapegoat to take the rap and that was all they needed. Sirhan Sirhan had been on a 'mind expansion' course with the Rosicrucians in the weeks before he was implicated in Kennedy's death (see ...And The Truth Shall Set You Free). Frank Mankiewicz, who guided Kennedy to the kitchen, was a former public relations man for the Mossad-front in America, the Anti Defamation League. He turned up later as head of publicity for the Oliver Stone film, JFK, which claimed to be an expose of the assassination of President Kennedy. It wasn't. When the Israeli Prime Minister, Zitzhak Rabin, was shot dead by an assassin in Tel Aviv in 1995, an extraordinary video taken by an onlooker showed how Rabin's security detail stepped back in unison to leave the assassin alone and free to kill his target. You can see the pattern. And what happened in the crucial last minutes of Diana's life? They withdrew her security on the orders of Mohamed Al Fayed via his son. That is a fact. All day she had travelled in the same Mercedes with the Range Rover as a back up vehicle. Now she would transfer to another Mercedes with no back up support whatsoever. This was an extraordinary decision for a man obsessed with his own security. Bob Loftus, the former Head of Security at Harrods, said:

"Compared with the protection that Al Fayed affords himself, which is very professional, of a very high standard, that which was afforded to the mother of the future King of England was a Mickey Mouse operation."46

He added that "Al Fayed was absolutely paranoid about his personal protection".

Just for him to walk around his own store, there would be three or four plain clothes members of his personal protection team who travelled with him all the time, plus another four uniformed security who would act almost as 'outriders' to create two rings of security around him. That's in his own store! But is it paranoia, or the knowledge of the seedy, cesspit, world of arms dealers and Brotherhood fixers of many kinds, in which Al Fayed constantly operates? People who think nothing of the mass murder of children, let alone the assassination of a wealthy 'yes' man like him. Dodi Fayed was obsessed with his security for the same reason. A lot of this security was also inspired by the size of Al Fayed's ego, to be fair. Mostly he recruited his body guards from the SAS and the Parachute Regiment and used the Brotherhood operation, Control Risks, to make recommendations. Tom Bower tells in his book about Al Fayed of how armed guards at the Oxted estate hide behind bushes wearing full combat uniform and blacked out faces. Whenever Al Fayed travelled in his Mercedes there was always a back up Range Rover carrying emergency medical equipment and security staff, but now he withdrew that protection from Diana. More than that, a new car was introduced for her, another Mercedes was sent to the rear entrance of the Ritz, supplied by a car hire company called Etoile Limousines, the same name as Dodi's flat. Etoile Limousines is 426 based at the Ritz and depends for its entire income on contracts with the hotel and its guests. In other words, it is controlled completely by Mohamed Al Fayed and whoever controls him. The new Mercedes was an S-280, lighter in weight than the 600 series they had used all day and without the dark tinted windows. Other cars were available, but this one was chosen instead. A director of Etoile, Niels Siegel, told the inquiry into Diana's death that he delivered the car to the rear entrance of the Ritz, but the Dispatches programme showed that this is a lie. It was delivered by a driver called Frederic Lucard and he can be seen doing so on the security video. Lucard said he found it very strange that Etoile would allow Henri Paul, a man not qualified as a chauffeur, to drive one of their cars. So why did they do it? Because Mohamed Al Fayed told them to, that's why. Brian Dodd, the former Head of Security for Al Fayed in the 1980s, gave his assessment of the situation to Dispatches:

"It's a new car that's come into the system. They wouldn't have had time to check that car out. It should have been checked out. There could have been a bomb on the car, for instance. It was a most stupid plan. It shouldn't even have been considered. The back up vehicle is there, not just to avert the paparazzi, but for instance, a motor cyclist with a pillion rider to pull up and shoot, or put a magnetised bomb on top of the car. That's why the back up car is there - to stop any of that. Why they never had a back up car, God only knows. (I think I can offer a good guess without the need for Divine inspiration.)

“I had probably six or eight men I would consider professional bodyguards who I would have had on that job and Trevor Rees-Jones and Kes Wingfield, after what I have seen happened, would not have been in Paris that night.”

The Mercedes with Henry Paul at the wheel sped off from the rear entrance of the Ritz at 12.20am with Paul telling the paparazzi not to bother following because they would never catch him. Diana and Dodi were in the back seat and in the front was Trevor Rees-Jones, the former ‘Para’ with the reputation for being ‘fearless’. Rees-Jones says he disagreed with the change of plan. He was not wearing a seat belt which is normal practice because body guards need to be free to react quickly. The car was driven at speed down the Rue Cambon and turned right down the Rue de Rivoli into the Place de la Concorde where it stopped briefly at the lights. The paparazzi photographer, Romuald

Rat, on the back of a motor cycle, drew up alongside them here, but he says that Henri Paul jumped the lights on red and headed onto the dual carriageway alongside the River

Seine called the Cours la Reine. The car plunged down into one tunnel, came back to the surface, and almost immediately went down into the very short tunnel at the Pont de l'Alma. Here it went out of control and struck the 13th pillar in the centre of the tunnel which is lined with concrete pillars unprotected by crash barriers. Henri Paul and Dodi Fayed died immediately According to the autopsy report Diana was clinically dead within 20 minutes and this was long before she arrived at hospital. Trevor Rees-Jones survived the crash because he was wearing a seat belt and Diana and Dodi were not. This could be highly significant. Rees-Jones was not wearing a belt when they left the Ritz in accordance with normal practice for body guards, and when Romuald Rat took a photograph at the lights at the Place de la Concorde, Rees-Jones still did not have a seat belt on. But little more than a minute later when the car struck the pillar, he was wearing a seat belt. Why? If he donned the belt because for some reason he sensed danger, why did he not scream at Diana and Dodi to put their seat belts on? After all it only takes a second and the whole reason he was in the car was to protect them. Rees-Jones has some serious questions to answer here and he is giving no answers. Some bodyguards do put a seat belt on when the car is on a fast road, but Rees-Jones is not saying this. He says he doesn't know why he strapped himself in. And if they were going to Dodi's flat, they would have been on the fast road for about a minute. All he says is that he remembers they were followed by two cars, one of them white, and a motorcycle, which is in keeping with the smokescreen story. But one simple fact about the crash has been missed by all the newspaper articles, magazine features, television documentaries and discussions I have seen, and by all but a few researchers. Everyone is agreed that the couple were being driven back to Dodi's flat near the Arc de Triomphe when the crash happened. Well there is one glaring problem with that:

CRAIG-OXLEY - March 29, 2007 01:02 AM (GMT)

The Pont de L'Alma tunnel is not on the way to Dodi's flat.

It takes you away from that area.

I have been to Paris and walked the route the car took that night, in fact I have walked extensively around that whole area, and the route to Dodi's apartment is the same as the one they took earlier that night. You go to the Place de la Concorde and, half way around, you turn right into the Champs Elysees and drive straight up to Dodi's flat on the right near the Arc de Triomphe (see Figure 53 overleaf). At that time of night it would take only a few minutes. But Henri Paul did not do that. He drove past the turning for the Champs Elysees, jumped the lights on red and sped down the dual carriageway to the Pont de L'Alma. This took them AWAY from Dodi's flat. I have heard it said that Paul was going a long way round to avoid the photographers and traffic, but the photographers would have been waiting at the flat anyway by the time they got there. What is most important to stress here is that Henri Paul's route was not the direct one to Dodi's apartment, but it did ensure that it took them through the Pont de UAlma Tunnel, the significance of which is fantastic, as you will soon appreciate. Interestingly, it was after Paul went past the turning to Les Champs Elysees and headed towards the Pont de L'Alma that Rees-Jones put his seat belt on. He says he can't remember why, but I can help him there. There can only be two reasons for this. Either he knew what was coming or he realised when Henri Paul screamed off from the lights that something was seriously wrong and he put the seat belt on to protect himself. But again if that is the case, why did he not tell Dodi and Diana to do the same? And if Rees-Jones had realised a potential danger, why had Dodi and Diana not seen it and taken the appropriate action to protect themselves? I'm sorry if that upsets Rees-Jones' family, but given the circumstances these are questions that need to be asked.

Figure 53: The change of route which cost Diana her life. Instead of going directly to Dodi's apartment, Henri

Paul sped off in another direction away from their destination. It is said that he was taking the long way round to avoid the paparazzi, but what an amazing 'coincidence' that this took the car into the Pont de L 'Alma tunnel, one of the Babylonian Brotherhood's most sacred sites for the goddess Diana!

428

Once the deed was done; the scapegoat was produced. The methods are so predictable, but they keep working so why change them? The Lee Harvey Oswald, Sirhan Sirhan and James Earl Ray of the Diana assassination was the driver, Henri

Paul. Once the paparazzi card had been played and focused public and media attention in the days after the crash, it was announced that Paul was three to four times over the French drink driving limit and that his blood contained traces of antidepressant drugs, including Fluoxetine, the active ingredient of the infamous Prozac.

"The cause of the crash was simple," we were told. "The driver was drunk."

Tampering with blood samples or creating alcohol in the blood is child's play and so is the insertion of tiny 'balloons' which release alcohol into the blood stream in stages. There was certainly no sign before he drove away from the Ritz that he was intoxicated to the extent, according to his blood tests, that he must have drunk the equivalent of eight Scotches on an empty stomach. A behavioural psychologist on the Independent Television documentary, Diana - Secrets Of The Crash, could find no evidence that he was drunk after studying the Ritz videos of him that night, but there could be an explanation for this which I will come to shortly. Only two days earlier, Paul had undergone a rigorous medical for the renewal of his pilot's licence and there was no sign of the alcohol abuse the post-crash propaganda claimed. Quite the opposite. And there was another strange anomaly revealed by the ITV documentary in 1998. The Haemoglobin in Henri Paul's blood was found to contain 429 20.7% carbon monoxide and this would have been at a much higher level earlier because the carbon monoxide content halves every four to five hours once exposure to it has stopped. Haemoglobin carries the oxygen. Debbie Davis of the Carbon Monoxide Support Group said that with these levels in his blood, Henri Paul would not have known his left hand from his right, because of the reduced oxygen reaching the brain. Dr Alastair Hay, an expert on carbon monoxide poisoning, agreed and could not explain why Paul showed no signs of the considerable symptoms that should have been evident:

"I find it difficult to rationalise everything. A blood-carbon monoxide level of 20% and (a high blood-alcohol level) suggests this would be someone with a much slower reaction time, certainly be someone who would be slowed up in the way he did things, would probably also be somebody who was in some pain, but none of those things appear to be evident from the pictures that we see of him. It is a bit of an enigma.”⁴⁷

There is a lot more to know about Henri Paul. His best friend, Claude Garrec, told the ITV documentary that Paul had contacts within the French and foreign intelligence services and maintained them throughout his time at the Ritz. This is no surprise because the intelligence agencies recruit the security men at the top hotels and the Ritz, with its VIP clientele and reputation for espionage and arms dealing, would have been a prime target. Paul certainly had unexplained sources of income. He earned about £20-25,000 a year at the Ritz and yet he was a keen pilot with 605 hours of flying time at about £300 an hour. He had a string of bank accounts. There were two in a bank outside

Paris and three accounts, plus a safe deposit box, at the Banque Nationale de Paris near the Ritz. He had three accounts at the nearby branch of Barclays and one current and four deposit accounts at the Caisse D'Epargne de Paris. In the eight months before the crash, sums of £4,000 were paid into an account here on five separate occasions. In total he had £122,000 (1.2 million francs) and no-one knows where it came from. Then there is the question of where Paul was in the three hours between 7pm when he went off duty and 10pm when Dodi called him on his mobile phone and told him to return to the Ritz. His whereabouts in this period are a mystery. A very significant one.

To understand how the Brotherhood operates requires immensely detailed research over a vast array of interconnecting subjects. Everything from ancient history, to Satanic symbolism and ritual, the Earth's magnetic grid, the power of the Sun, the banking system, and mind control. The journalists who have produced the articles and documentaries about the crash came to the subject cold and they can never uncover the truth because they don't understand what they are dealing with. Their vision of possibility is limited by their indoctrinated view of reality. They can't see, for instance, that there are organisations within organisations which means that one force can work through apparently unconnected agencies like British and French Intelligence, the Paris police and medical services, and the inquiry investigating the cause of the crash. I mean, you don't have to search far for evidence of that. Look at the Kennedy assassination for one. It is this lack of research of the big picture that leads reporters like Martyn Gregory on the Dispatches programme to state categorically that "there is not a shred of credible evidence to support the conspiracy theory" and that the suggestion of Prince Philip's involvement was "ludicrous". I wonder after reading the evidence so far -and there is a great deal more to come - which you think is more ludicrous: the idea of a plot to kill Diana or Martyn Gregory's statement? It was an unfortunate comment in a programme that produced some good information about Al Fayed. Then there was the 'investigation' into the crash by John Stalker, the former deputy chief constable of Greater Manchester, in the News Of The World newspaper, in which he dismissed all idea that Diana was murdered. Ironically, Stalker claimed, quite rightly, that he was the victim of a conspiracy to remove him from the police force after he identified a policy by the Northern Ireland police, the RUC, to shoot people they believed were terrorists and ask the questions later. This was the so-called shoot-to-kill policy. Pushing aside every suggestion of a conspiracy to kill Diana, Stalker asked: "Why would the French want to cover up the murder of an English woman?"⁴⁸ The naivety of that statement is so breathtaking, I need a glass of water. At the same time, Stalker did ask some pertinent questions about the crash and its aftermath: "Why was the Fayed security around the princess reduced to one wholly inadequate man with no back up? Why did the police not appeal for help from the public? Why was there no post mortem-autopsy on Dodi Fayed's body?" Answers: because of the very conspiracy you dismiss, Mr Stalker.

One of the most important subjects to research if we are to understand how Diana was killed, is the power and potential of mind control. I'll give some examples. In the 1980s the best part of 30 scientists working in top secret projects, mostly computer programmers, died in very strange and unexplained circumstances. Marconi was the major company involved, but there were others like Plessey and British Aerospace. In 1986, Vimal Dajibhai, who was working for Marconi Underwater Systems, drove from London to Bristol, a city with which he had no connection, and threw himself off the famous suspension bridge there. A few months before, Arshad Sharif, a computer programmer with Marconi Defence Systems, also drove from London to Bristol and hanged himself. Why Bristol? It is a former Knights Templar port and its name has evolved from Barati, the Phoenician goddess. It just so happens that an elite unit of British Intelligence called the Committee of 26 is based there and they use the runway at the British Aerospace complex to fly British and foreign agents in and out of the country. I was called once, from what sounded like a plane, by a guy claiming to represent the CIA. He said he was flying into the British Aerospace runway to sort me out. "The Company (CIA) are not happy," he said. Oh, I thought, I am sorry, I do hope they cheer up soon. I drove over to meet him just to check it out, but he didn't show. He was probably a guy who needed help, or perhaps they were seeing how I would react to threats. Either way, they got the airport right. In that period in the 1980s, not only in Bristol, there were strange deaths galore of people at the cutting edge of development in the 'defence' industries.

What possesses a man to get into his car, drive more than two hours to the Bristol Suspension Bridge, and jump off? This may seem a long way from the Diana assassination, but it's not. I'm talking about mind control. A CIA scientist told me that he was put through forms of mind control to stop him recalling his knowledge once a project was completed. I'll give you an example of mind control in a situation very similar to the one in Paris. David Sands was a highly skilled scientist working in a very sensitive area of defence, but at 37 he was talking about leaving the industry and changing his lifestyle. He was happily married with two small children, a son aged six and a three year old daughter. Sands and his wife had just returned from an enjoyable holiday in Venice when he died in mysterious circumstances. Although they are not so mysterious if you understand mind control. He worked for Easams who, in turn, were operating contracts for the Ministry of Defence. It appears that while Sands and his wife were in Venice, the company was visited by members of the elite British police unit, the Special Branch. Then, on Saturday, March 28th 1987, David Sands told his wife he was going out to refuel the car, but he didn't return for six hours. No-one has any idea where he was, but I think I do. His wife, Anna, called the police and constable John Hiscock was at the house when Sands returned at 10.20pm. Asked the obvious question: "Where have you been?", he said that he had been driving and thinking. His wife said that it was out of character for him to be away for so long and she didn't think he realised how long he had been out. He seemed confused, but happy, she said. Two days later, on Monday, March 30th, he climbed into his excellently maintained Austin
431

Maestro and began his regular journey from his home in Itchen Abbas, near Winchester, to Easams at Camberley in Surrey. His wife said there was nothing unusual about his demeanour or behaviour and driving conditions were good. But about 30 minutes into the journey when David Sands was driving along the A33 at Popham, near Basingstoke, he suddenly did a U-turn across the dual carriageway and headed at high speed in the opposite direction to his destination. Turning onto a slip road at about 80 miles an hour, Sands then drove his car straight into a disused cafe building killing himself in an explosion of flame. There were no skid marks. He had not even tried to stop.⁴⁹ It is so clear that during the time he was missing, his mind was being programmed and all it took was a trigger word, sign, sound or action, and the programming was activated. At that point he would have switched from his normal self to a man focused only on driving into the cafe building and blowing himself away. The subconscious programming overpowers the conscious mind and robot replaces human.

That, I am convinced, is what also happened to Henri Paul in Paris. Sands went missing for six hours before he drove into the cafe. Paul went missing for three hours before he drove into the 13th pillar in the Pont de l'Alma tunnel. This is what I suggest happened in Paris. The Brotherhood networks were working through many people and agencies to ensure that Diana was in Paris that night because, at its foundation, the plan was to perform a specific Satanic ritual and the timing, circumstances and the place of death had to be arranged in intricate detail. Diana was under Al Fayed's security web for much of the time leading up to the crash and all of the time in those last few days. Her conversations were heard and monitored throughout by the Al Fayed bugging system. During his missing hours, Henri Paul, 432

the asset of French and British Intelligence, was being programmed for his role, or perhaps the final touches were being put to programming already installed. Diana's ritual death was arranged from the very top of the Brotherhood and, by comparison, people like Al Fayed are small and powerless nonentities, pawns in the game they probably do not fully understand. The Mercedes which was brought to the rear entrance of the Ritz had been stolen some weeks earlier - before the Diana-Dodi relationship began - and when it was recovered it underwent extensive repairs. It had been standing outside the exclusive Taillevent restaurant when the driver's door was flung open and the chauffeur pulled out by three Arabic-speaking men with hand guns. The vehicle was missing for two weeks and when it was found the wheels were missing, the door ripped off, and the electronic system and equipment controlling the braking system had gone. Al Fayed, as we have seen, controlled the company, Etoile Limousines, which supplied the vehicle. No wonder the French authorities turned down the offer by experts from Mercedes to examine the car after the crash.

When Henri Paul came back on duty that night he seemed his normal self to most observers. The programming was deep within his psyche still waiting to be activated. He may well have had a couple of alcoholic drinks in the Ritz bar, but his intake and demeanour did not correspond with the later medical report. Claims that he was an alcoholic also do not match with the examination of his liver. But if, as I suggest, Henri Paul was a mind controlled 'multiple' he could have been drunk in one compartment of his mind and not in another. I have heard from recovering 'multiples' who have experienced this. Someone close to Paul that night, his handler, was switching his compartments. In this way he could have had a considerable level of alcohol in his blood while, in some compartments, he would have been unaffected by it. The same with the carbon monoxide. Just before or just after the Mercedes pulled away from the Ritz, Henri Paul was given the trigger which activated the programming. It could have been a sound, a sign, a colour or more likely a word or sentence. With Paul's subconscious programming now overwhelming his conscious mind, he sped away to the Place de la Concorde and down the dual carriageway to the Pont de l'Alma. Rees-Jones put his seat belt on, but apparently did not alert Diana and Dodi to the danger. Thus they stay unbelted. As Paul entered the Pont de l'Alma tunnel at an estimated 80 miles an hour (some reports say slower), he braked fiercely, scraped the right hand wall of the tunnel, and then aimed the car at the 13th pillar. It is the 13th pillar that gives it away. The Brotherhood throughout history has had such an obsession with the number 13 that to believe this was a coincidence is taking chance to the level of fantasy. There must be 30 pillars in that tunnel and the car hit the 13th because it was meant to. Diana had an aversion to the number 13 and she would not allow a 13th lot in her dress auction at Christies the June before she died. If, as some witnesses have suggested, the crash was caused by the Mercedes hitting a white Fiat Uno or by a motorcyclist flashing a powerful light into Paul's eyes from a motor cycle, there is no way he could be sure of hitting the 13th pillar. But a person with a deeply programmed subconscious would be able to put the car right on the button, even at speed.

Mark Phillips is the man who helped to deprogramme Cathy O'Brien when she was a mind controlled slave of the CIA. He has worked in these fields for much of his adult life and after I reached my conclusions about the events in Paris, I rang him to ask if it would be possible to mind control Henri Paul to pick out that pillar at speed. Mark was in no doubt: "Yes, Yes" he said "More than yes, absolutely yes". He pointed out that the subconscious worked much faster than the conscious mind and to the subconscious 80 miles an hour would actually be quite slow compared with its ability to think and react.

If the speed was considerably slower as some reports suggest, it would have been even easier. "There are many techniques they could have used to programme his mind during those three hours he was missing", Mark said. The number of ways they could have caused the crash, another vehicle, an explosive device, stun weapons, etc, etc, would fill a book and any of them is possible on the face of it. But not if they wanted to be sure of hitting the 13th pillar, which they did. To do that, they needed a driver with a programmed subconscious.

I think the stories about the mysterious Fiat Uno and the motorcyclist with the flashing light are diversions to lead researchers away from the simple truth. So much time and effort has been wasted on the Fiat in particular, fueled by Al Fayed's own investigation team. Whenever such assassinations are staged, there are always a stream of false 'clues' and 'leads' which divert attention. The Kennedy assassination was full of them. Another possibility for the cause of the crash is external control of the car. Randolph Fiennes, famous for his polar expeditions, was an officer in the Royal Scots Greys and attached to the elite SAS. He wrote a book about a secret group of assassins called the Clinic and how they murdered people while making it look like an accident. The death of Major Michael Marman is particularly relevant to what could have happened in Paris. He was driving a Citroen 2CV along the A303 near Stonehenge in November 1986 when a BMW coming the other way careered across the carriageway and killed him instantly. Fiennes says that the BMW had been tampered with and the braking system was operated by remote control which could override the normal system via compressed air from a tiny scuba diving cylinder hidden in the engine compartment. The remote control equipment was operated from a Volvo which followed the BMW, Fiennes reported. The BMW was driven by Sir Peter Horsley, a retired Air Marshall, who survived the crash. Fiennes says that the Clinic knew that Horsley would be travelling along that road at the same time as their target. In his autobiography, Sounds From Another Room, Horsley says that he was accelerating to about 60 miles an hour when the car began to react strangely. He saw a grey Volvo closing up quickly behind him and as he was about to wave it past, his BMW spun sharply to the left, the brakes screeching, and then sharply to the right and back again. This is remarkably similar to what happened to the Mercedes before it struck the 13th pillar.

Horsley was by now desperately trying to maintain control and he went on:

“Out of the corner of my eye I saw the grey Volvo accelerating past me at high speed. My car had now developed a mind of its own as it swung broadside and skidded down the road. With a lurch it hit the central reservation, mounted the grass verge separating the two lanes of the highway and crossed over into the opposite carriageway. I had just time to see a small car approaching from the opposite direction. I hit it sideways on with tremendous force. In a split-second the driver's horror-stricken face was visible and I heard his hoarse scream."50

It is possible that Diana's Mercedes was externally controlled in this way, because it is clear that the steering on Horsley's BMW was also remotely controlled. Certainly a highly skilled operator could direct the Mercedes into the 13th pillar. Support for the contention that no other car was directly involved in Diana's crash comes from Eric Petel who claims to have seen the crash. Petel says that he was riding his motorcycle towards the entrance to the tunnel when he was overtaken by the Mercedes. No other vehicle was nearby. He said:

"I saw a car in my rear-view mirrors flashing its headlamps. I moved across to let it by and it raced past even though I was doing about 70 miles per hour. An instant later I heard a deafening noise and saw the accident. The car was spinning in the road... I stopped. There were no other cars or bikes around at all and I could see all the way through the tunnel.

The roof of the Mercedes was totally smashed in. The right hand rear door was partly open and I looked in and saw a woman. She seemed to have been thrown forward from the back seat and had her head between the front seats.”⁵¹

Petel said blood was flowing from her right ear and as he brushed her hair from her face and placed her head on the arm rest, he realised it was Princess Diana. Her eyelashes were fluttering, but she had not opened her eyes at this stage, he said. Petel estimates he was at the scene for about a minute before climbing back on his bike to ring the police. He told them that Diana had been in an accident, but they laughed and told him to stop wasting their time. In despair at this, he rode to the police station in Avenue Mozart. His lawyer, Antoine Deguines, says that Petel was kept waiting for 25 minutes and taken into a backroom where he was handcuffed. For reporting an ‘accident’? When eventually freed, he was told to follow a police car to another police station where he gave a statement which he signed without reading. “I was outraged” he said “They didn’t seem to care about the crash.” He heard nothing from the authorities for months before he enlisted help from a lawyer to tell his story to the official inquiry. Whenever an assassination occurs in a public place, two things happen. The person named as responsible is a ‘patsy’ or ‘scapegoat’, most often these days under mind control, and diversions galore are created to lead investigators away from the truth of what happened. The first method allows you to make an immediate arrest, or expose the person to blame, and no further investigations are necessary because everyone knows who was responsible. We have seen this technique with Lee Harvey Oswald, Sirhan Sirhan, Timothy McVeigh, and now Henri Paul. It is endless. The second method, the diversion, ensures that the crucial hours and days after the event are wasted as people chase a mass of false stories and 'leads' .This was a technique used in Paris with the paparazzi, the flashing lights from motorcycles and later the Fiat Uno. Also when people are fed a constant barrage of conflicting reports and theories they become confused and a confused mind switches off and loses interest. So first they tell you the paparazzi were to blame, then they were not. Then they tell you the car speedometer was found stuck at 120 miles an hour, then they say it was found on zero.

I thought it strange how many American witnesses to the crash were quickly located.

The Pont and Place de L'Alma were not, before Diana's death, a popular tourist area.

There is nothing there except a restaurant or two, a tunnel, and a maze of crossing roads.

And yet at 12.25 in the morning, several American tourists say they witnessed what happened. The number of witnesses in general was unusual anyway, given the late hour and the fact that Paris empties at that time of year as vast numbers of Parisians take their annual holiday to the French coastal resorts. I can understand that some people in the few cars travelling along the road at the time may have seen the crash and its immediate aftermath, but I know from visiting the spot myself, that the main pedestrian routes have virtually no view of the tunnel at all. The police failed to control the crash scene according to normal police procedure and so much evidence was lost immediately.

They failed to question important witnesses and leaked some information while maintaining unshakable secrecy over other areas of the investigation.⁵² It all stinks.

Today there is an added challenge for would-be assassins and assassination plots with the 'traffic' cameras that are located all over cities. Smile, you're on TV. It would be impossible to keep secret the methods and personnel used to kill Diana if the whole thing was being videoed. But when you are the Brotherhood with connections at the highest levels in politics, police and intelligence agencies, the traffic cameras present no such problem. You simply switch them off! There are 17 traffic cameras on the route between the Ritz and the Pont de L'Alma, including those inside the tunnel itself. If they had been working that night there would be no mystery, because you could play back the whole event on your television set. One camera looks down on the entrance to the tunnel and would have recorded any Fiat Uno or men on motorbikes with flashing lights. But that camera, like all the others, was switched off at the crucial moment. Never before in Paris had the whole system malfunctioned at the same time and the police refuse to explain what happened. The system runs on an independent power supply and it is controlled by the police and, ultimately, by the French Intelligence agencies, because the cameras are there to monitor far more than just traffic problems. At the same time as the camera system failed all the police communication frequencies in central Paris also went off. Simon Reagan in his excellent book, Who Killed Diana?, quotes a contact called Andre' who, like many people, loves to listen in to police radio messages. Andre' was sitting on a bench near the Eiffel Tower, a few minutes walk from the Pont de L'Alma, on the night Diana died. He was, as usual, using a receiver to monitor the police communications. But suddenly, at 12.20am, all the lines went down. There was a radio blackout. It lasted for 20 minutes and then, Andre' said, the signal came back and there was a mass of radio traffic as people all wanted to talk at once. "I have never... come across such chaotic radio traffic", he said. "It was extraordinary."

When the lines went down Diana was leaving the Ritz on her last journey alive. By the time they came back she was lying in the tunnel under the complete control of the emergency team and according to the autopsy report within a few minutes of clinical death. And there is not a shred of credible evidence for a conspiracy, is there, eh? My God, it's in our face. But within ten days of the crash, the French police had produced a 350 page preliminary report which assumed it was an accident and they did not consider any other possibility.

Now, talking of that 'emergency team' brings me to another vital point. As a contact on the fringes of British Intelligence told me, causing the crash is easy for the powers involved, but you cannot be sure of killing your target. Therefore you have your people controlling the medical team because, although your target hasn't died, there is now a credible reason for them to die. There has been a crash. The medical team's job (or those in charge, anyway) is to make sure that the target does not survive, no matter what condition they may be in to start with. Even those who dismiss the idea that Diana was murdered have questioned the astonishing delay in getting her to hospital when, according to the official medical reports, she was suffering from an injury that required urgent surgery. The doctors say that the pulmonary vein had been ruptured near the heart and this was filling her lungs with blood. Diana was lying in the tunnel bleeding to death, if that is correct. The only way her life was going to be saved with such an injury was through immediate surgery. So why was it more than an hour and a half before she arrived at the hospital? Within a minute of impact, Doctor Frederic Mailliez with an American 'friend' Mark Butt, drove into the tunnel from the opposite direction. A private investigator I know has made extensive inquiries into Mailliez and Butt and, while these investigations continue, his findings strongly suggest there is more to both of them than we are being told. The crash happened at 12.25am and by 12.26, Doctor Mailliez said he had seen the crushed Mercedes, stopped his car, turned on warning lights, run across to the Mercedes to establish there were two people dead and two alive and had rung the emergency services. This man must be a seriously quick worker. He is one of 160 Parisian doctors who are on constant call for emergencies in hospitals and private homes as part of a French insurance system, SOS Medecins. He had treated accident victims many times when he was a member of SAMU, the French emergency ambulance service. And yet a doctor on constant call for emergencies says that all he had in his car to help Diana was an oxygen cylinder and mask! Mailliez was in control of Diana and her condition for the crucial 15 to 20 minutes before his former employers, the SAMU emergency team, arrived to take over. He claims that Diana did not say anything to him, but this contradicts his comment to the London Times that "She kept saying how much she hurt as I put a resuscitation mask over her mouth". Trevor Rees-Jones, the bodyguard, also says he had flashbacks of hearing a female voice calling out in the back of the car: "First it's a groan. Then Dodi's name was called... And that can only be Princess Diana's voice" he told the Daily Mirror.⁵³ How reliable that statement is, however, is open to debate. What does seem to be clear is that Diana was conscious or at least semi-conscious when Mailliez arrived. He told the CNN chat show host, Larry

King, that: "She looked pretty fine. At the beginning... from the outside, you know, she looked pretty fine. But inside, you know, the internal injury was already starting... It's really funny. That's the only part, where she was sitting, that's the only part which was still intact." Mailliez on one hand told a French medical magazine that: "I thought her life could be saved" and yet said another time that "It was hopeless. There was nothing we could do to save her." He also told King that although Diana is the most photographed woman in the world, and the paparazzi were taking shots of her while he was with her in the tunnel, he had no idea that she was Princess Diana until he saw the news reports the following morning. Excuse me? The pigs are airborne again. When the emergency team arrived, Malliez says he left the scene because there was nothing more he could do.

The official explanation for the incredible delay in taking Diana to hospital is that she was trapped in the wreckage. This is a lie, lie, lie. One of the ambulance crew told the French newspaper, La Parisien, that when he arrived Diana was lying with most of her body out of the car with her legs resting on the rear seat. "She was agitated, semi knocked out, but conscious... she was groaning and struggling feebly. She murmured 'Oh my God' several times." The Scotsman newspaper, in an investigation published on September 11th 1997, established that Diana was removed from the car shortly after the fire brigade arrived and the excuse of her being 'trapped' does not stand up. Another official excuse for the delay is that the emergency doctors had to give her a blood transfusion. This is another lie, lie, lie. SAMU teams do not carry blood transfusion equipment because they would not know the victim's blood type. When the ambulance did leave the tunnel, the driver was ordered to go no faster than 25 miles an hour and some reports say it took as long as 40 minutes to cover the 3.7 miles (6km) to the La Pitie-Salpetriere. Four other hospitals quite capable of treating Diana were closer to the scene and the ambulance stopped twice on the way for 'delicate interventions', one of them within sight of the hospital. Diana arrived at La Pitie-Salpetriere about 2.10am, an hour and 45 minutes after the crash happened. By any medical criteria whatsoever this delay was utterly ludicrous, unless it was meant to happen. It doesn't take a genius to see why, despite such apparent incompetence, there has been no inquiry into the medical response that night. Waiting at the hospital were a surgical team headed by Professor Bruno Riou, the duty surgeon who, we are told, first heard about the crash while doing his rounds. Is it only me that finds it strange that a renowned surgeon is 'doing his rounds' in the early hours of the morning? Waiting with him when Diana arrived were Professor Pierre Coriat, the head of anaesthetics, Professor Alain Pavie, a chest and heart specialist, and Professor Pierre Benazet, another experienced surgeon. They had been in telephone communication with the emergency team in the tunnel throughout. We are told they opened Diana's chest cavity, repaired the vein, and 'battled to save her' for an hour and a half before admitting defeat. I find this remarkable, also, because the autopsy report apparently shows that Diana was clinically dead at 12.45am while still lying in the tunnel. She would therefore have been clinically dead for an hour and 25 minutes before she even arrived at the hospital and for three hours before the professors walked out of the operating theatre to announce that she had died. Having the body examined at a location you control is vital in such assassinations. President Kennedy's body was flown immediately out of Dallas to the Brotherhood-front, the Bethesda Naval Center near Washington DC, for the post mortem. Here the president's brain went missing (or his look-alike's did) and, as the US Assassination Records Review Board revealed, the autopsy notes and the first draft of the post mortem were burned.

So who was behind Diana's assassination? It is important to stress that those who gave the order and those who did the deed would be very different. We are looking at a Brotherhood here, a spider's web, and while the order will have come from the spider or spiders in the centre, it will have been mostly carried out by the flies. It is highly unlikely that it would have been done directly by British Intelligence because that would be too obvious. Intelligence agencies subcontract the assassinations of their own citizens to put them at arms length from the incident and to allow them to 'plausibly deny' that they were responsible. For instance, there is considerable evidence that President Kennedy was shot by members of an elite rifle team within a renegade unit of French Intelligence called the OAS, or at least that they were involved in the plot. Olof Palme, the Bilderberger Prime Minister of Sweden, was murdered in Stockholm in 1986 on the orders of, among others, George Bush. But the killing was carried out by members of BOSS, the South African Intelligence agency (see .. And The Truth Shall Set You Free).

The British Foreign Office has its own assassination squad called Group 13 (that number again) and British Intelligence has a long and sick history of political and economic assassinations. British Intelligence consists of MIS (Military Intelligence 5) which is responsible officially for domestic security, and M16 which deals with overseas matters. MIS announced in 1988 that they do not assassinate people. No, they get others to do it for them. This pathetic denial was prompted by the revelations of the former MIS agent, David Shayler, that M16 had organised a plot to assassinate Libya's Colonel Gaddafi. The attempt had failed because the bomb was put under the wrong car. Shayler was head of the 'Libyan Desk' at MIS and was in the perfect position to know. Robin Cook, the Foreign Secretary, who is so far out of his depth he needs a frogman's suit, said that he had been assured that no such event took place. Oh, that's OK then. The attorney-general banned David Shayler from appearing on the ITV programme, Diana - Secrets of the Crash, and later Shayler was arrested and jailed in Paris awaiting extradition to London.

Why do that if what he is saying is such nonsense? Because, of course, he's right. By the way, the oath of allegiance by British Intelligence officers is not to the government, but to the monarch. It is the same with Members of Parliament and the military. Ultimately the Queen is their boss under the law, although, in truth, their boss is whoever controls the Queen because even she is not at the top of the pile.

The type of organisation most likely to have been involved in Diana's death, at the operational level is typified by the Pinay Circle or 'Le Cerde' which has a number of British establishment figures in its ranks. Le Cerde is an offshoot of the even more elite Safari Club, which was set up by Count Alexander de Maranches, the Director during the 1970s of the French Service for External Documentation and Espionage. It was the company called Group Bull and the computer giant Honeywell which is, you will be surprised to know, the world's biggest manufacturer of landmines. This alliance supplied landmines to both sides in the Bosnian conflict. The Safari Club began as a consortium of the secret police of the Shah of Iran called SAVAK, Saddam Hussein in Iraq, Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Saudi Arabian Intelligence. It has been involved in countless coups in Africa to further its goals and is heavily involved in arms trading and supply. Out of the Safari Club came the Pinay Circle or Le Cerde, named after the French Prime Minister, Antoine Pinay, who attended the first Bilderberg Meeting in Oosterbeek, Holland, in May 1954. Others involved with Le Cerde included the Habsburg family. To give you an idea of its make up and range of influence, the Le Cerde membership has included Nicholas Elliot, a department head at M16; William Colby, a former director of the CIA; Colonel Botta of Swiss Military Intelligence; Stefano Della Chiaie, a leading member of the Italian Secret Service; Giulio Andreotti, the former Italian Prime Minister from the notorious P2 Freemasonry Lodge and the man who gave the Mafia official protection; Silva Munoz, a former minister for the fascist, Franco, in Spain and a member of the Elite secret society, Opus Dei; Franz Josef Strauss, the German defence minister; and Monsignor Brunello, an agent to the Vatican.

In America, one of the Le Cerde fronts is the CIA-backed Heritage Foundation in Washington. Look at the potential for such an organisation to be the coordinating force between countless different agencies and countries all to achieve a common aim. The Safari Club-Le Cerde network provides the Arab-British-French connection necessary to arrange for Diana to be in Paris at the right time, the security for her to be withdrawn, the assassination to be carried out, and those involved to get away with it. What was that John Stalker said? “Why would the French want to cover up the murder of a British woman?” It is also interesting that Simon Regan in his book, Who Killed Diana?, says that it was Le Cerde which destabilised the Gough Whitlam government in Australia in 1975. The Queen was certainly involved in that, too. As I explained earlier, it was her Governor of Australia, John Kerr, who removed Whitlam in the end. If the Windsors and Le Cerde worked together to bring down an elected Australian Government, why could they not have worked together to eliminate Diana?

Paris, with its immense Brotherhood associations going back centuries, has long been a favourite location for their murders and plots. Amschel Rothschild from the English branch of the family, was murdered there in his hotel room in 1996 in what some claim to have been part of one of the inter-Brotherhood wars which have littered their history. For an organisation like Le Cerde, or its many mirrors in London, it would have been easy to place its people in the right places. Mohamed Al Fayed’s security operation is awash with former members of elite British military and police units who know the consequences of saying “No” to the Brotherhood, even if they don’t wish to be involved. In the same way, these spider structures ensure that their people control the inquiries into their assassinations, as they did most famously with Kennedy. Even Mohamed Al Fayed’s personal investigation into Diana’s death was headed by Pierre Ottavoili, a former chief of the Criminal Brigade, the criminal investigation department of French Police. This is the same organisation which is also responsible for the official investigation. Al Fayed's chief lawyer in Paris is a former French Justice Minister, and in overall charge in London is John Macnamara, his head of security and a former Chief Superintendent at the headquarters of London's Metropolitan Police, Scotland Yard. In the Spring of 1998, Macnamara was part of a 'sting' operation involving the FBI, CIA and possibly, the Israeli (Rothschild) Intelligence Agency Mossad, to arrest a former CIA agent Oswald Le Winter, a 67-year-old American born in Austria. Le Winter contacted Al Fayed claiming to have documents for sale proving the involvement of M16 and the CIA in Diana's murder. He was asking $10 million and after a meeting with Macnamara he was given an advance of $15,000. A further meeting was arranged in Vienna, Austria, for the key documents and the rest of the money to be handed over. In the meantime, however, Al Fayed called a friend in the FBI, who contacted the CIA. Le Winter was followed, spied on, and lured to the Ambassador Hotel in Vienna on Wednesday April 22nd, where with support from the Austrian police a combination of FBI, CIA and possibly Mossad agents pounced on him. All this for an alleged hoaxer? The story would have remained secret, but for Peter Grolig, an Austrian journalist on the Kurier newspaper. He reported what happened and established that when Le Winter's hotel room was searched, four documents, two of them in code, were found and appeared to be genuine CIA documents. The CIA have since admitted tapping Diana's phone calls in, and to, America and passing the contents to British Intelligence. Le Winter was arrested and held in custody. Grolig's story forced Al Fayed to admit that it was true. So was Le Winter trapped by such an array of international security personnel because he was selling a hoax to Al Fayed or because he was selling the truth? Another intelligence insider also insists the crash was not an accident. Richard Tomlinson, a former agent of Britain's M16, gave evidence to the French inquiry into Diana's death. In 1997 Tomlinson served a six month jail sentence under the Official Secrets Act for trying to sell his memoirs. In August 1998 he was arrested again, at gun point, in Paris at the request of the British Government who were concerned at his association in that city with the MIS whistle-blower, David Shayler, who was also arrested and jailed in Paris.⁵⁴ Tomlinson apparently told Herve Stephan, the judge in charge of the 'inquiry', that Diana was murdered. According to a report on the BBC's news service, Ceefax, on August 28th 1998, he told the judge that Henri Paul was an asset of British Intelligence and so was "One of the bodyguards". Which one was not named. Meanwhile Herve Stephan, a Brotherhood placeman, is doing all he can to hold the line that it was an accident.

The most important question to ask when you are trying to identify those responsible for a crime is: "Who benefits?" As the Roman writer, Seneca, said: "He who most benefits from a crime is the one most likely to have committed it". Well the Windsors benefited magnificently. No longer is Diana there to continue her inevitable destruction of the Monarchy's credibility and public esteem with her actions and her knowledge of their secrets. No longer is she there to bring her influence on the upbringing and attitudes of the future king, Prince William and his brother Prince Harry. The Windsors now have complete control of them, to mould them into their image. They couldn't do that before because Diana's influence was too strong and I hope the memory of that will encourage the princes to withstand the indoctrination. The way is now paved for Charles' marriage to Camilla Parker-Bowles without the complication of Diana and, of course, his royal duty to produce Windsor heirs with Spencer genes, although as we shall see, William might not be his child. Understandably, it has been suggested that Diana was killed because of her campaign against landmines. This is not true, not directly anyway. The landmine manufacturers have done very nicely from her campaign, because they make far more money from clearing mines than they do making them. A mine costs about £30 to produce, but at least £3,000 to clear. Clearing all the mines around the world is estimated at £330 billion. No, the landmine manufacturers like Honeywell were not against Diana's campaign, they loved it for their own reasons. But what she showed very clearly was the power she had to take an issue from the shadows and hurl it into the public arena. The question could well have been: "What will she do next?". And what was it that Diana had to reveal, as she told my contact, that would "Shake the world"? Henry Kissinger, one of the greatest Brotherhood manipulators of the 20th century, met Diana a number of times and sickeningly attended her funeral. He said in an interview after her death that: "She was politically and diplomatically uncontrollable". That is Kissinger-speak for "That's one reason she was killed". From the perspective of the operational level of the Brotherhood pyramid, as with Kennedy, there were many reasons why they wanted her dead. But, as I keep emphasising, that is only one level. At the top are the Elite black magic adepts, the reptilian full bloods and crossbreeds. At the highest level of the Brotherhood, Diana's death, like Kennedy's, was a ritual killing. It was long planned for the effect it would have on the people and the magnetic field of the Earth, and to symbolise the introduction of the New World Order. Don't underestimate the fantastic power of ritual and symbolism in affecting the human psyche and the planet's magnetic field. These people are not obsessed with it for no reason.

The Brotherhood and Satanic symbolism surrounding Diana's death is endless and to understand the background to her ritual murder we must, once again, go back a very long time. Diana was one of the greatest goddesses of the ancient world and she represented the female energy also known as Barati, Britannia, Isis, Artemis, Aphrodite, all these different names for the same energy. If you go back far enough, they symbolise the same entity, also, Ninkharsag. Diana was known as a Moon goddess. One tribe of Elite bloodlines who worshipped the goddess Diana were called the Sicambrian Franks who can be traced from Troy (that name again), through Asia Minor, now Turkey, the Caucasus Mountains (again) and up into Europe. They lived at one time in an area west of the River Danube and settled in Germania, named by the Romans after the Scythian 'genuine ones' with their centre in Cologne. They also invaded parts of Roman-occupied Gaul, the land which is now Belgium and northern France, from where the 'noble' families of Scotland were to come. It is from these Sicambrian Franks that we get the name France. At the time of King Meroveus, who was named Guardian of the Franks in 448, this people became known as the Merovingians and Princess Diana, through the

Stuart bloodline, was related to them. Many seem to believe that the Merovingians are descended from the bloodline of Jesus, but how they can be genetically descended from a myth defeats me. This is a diversion to mislead. They are, however, an Elite bloodline that goes back to the Aryan race in the ancient Middle and Near East and eventually goes off planet. The Merovingians were the sorcerer kings who were noted for their esoteric knowledge and magical powers which they inherited from the underground bloodline streams of secret groups and initiations. Francio, the founder of the Franks, claimed to be a descendant of Noah and his ancestors once resided in ancient Troy of wooden horse fame. The French city of Troyes, where the Templars were officially formed, was named by the Sicambrian Franks after their former home. The Iliad says that Troy was founded by Dardanus, the son of the Greek god Zeus, who was depicted as both an eagle and a serpent. Zeus was born in Arcadia in Sparta, it is said, and the Spartans migrated into France. These are the bloodlines we are talking about here, not those of 'Jesus'.

The city of Paris was established by the Sicambrian Franks in the 6th century after they became known as the Merovingians. It was named after Prince Paris, the son of King Priam of Troy. It was the relationship between Prince Paris and Helen of Sparta which supposedly caused the Trojan War in which the Trojan Horse (infiltration) assured victory for the Spartans. Both the Trojans and the Spartans were branches of the same Aryan peoples and within them were the reptilian bloodlines. Paris in those days was confined to an island in the River Seine which is now known as the Ile de la Cite or Isle of the City. The Notre Dame Cathedral, built by the Templars on a site of former Diana worship, stands on the Ile de la Cite today and this is where the Templar Grand Master, Jacques de Molay, was roasted to death. The Merovingians established the city of Paris on a major vortex point which is why the Notre Dame Cathedral is built on that spot.

Meroveus, the founder of the Merovingian dynasty, followed the goddess cult of Diana and this is not surprising because the epicentre for Diana worship was at the famous temple at Ephesus in Asia Minor, not far from the alleged site of Troy. The temple is named as one of the Seven Wonders of the Ancient World. Diana was known as Queen of Heaven, just like Semiramis. Outside the original Paris - and now very much inside the modern city - the Merovingians established an underground chamber for the worship of the goddess Diana and for the blood rituals and human sacrifices to her. This site dates back at least to 500-750 AD and it was here that kings in dispute over property would settle the issue in combat. According to legend, anyone killed there goes straight to Heaven and sits at the right hand of God. Now get this: The location today of this underground sacrificial site for the goddess Diana is... the Pont de L'Alma tunnel!

The word pont relates to Pontifex, a Roman high priest, and it means passage or bridge. Alma comes from Al-Mah, a Middle Eastern name for, wait for it... the Moon goddess. So the Pont de UAlma translates as 'Bridge of the Moon Goddess' and the adjoining Place de L'Alma is the 'Place of the Moon Goddess'. And the Moon goddess is Diana. It can also translate as 'Bridge of the Soul' and a 'Maiden' of the goddess Diana was called an Al-mah! This is why Henri Paul was programmed to drive past the turning to Dodi Fayed's flat and head for the Pont de L'Alma tunnel. This is why the emergency team kept her in the tunnel for so long instead of rushing her to hospital where her life would have been saved. She wasn't meant to be saved and they only moved her when she was clinically dead, as the autopsy report confirmed. According to Brotherhood

Satanic ritual, Diana had to die in that underground chamber on the ancient sacrificial site and it had to happen at night under the Moon in the goddess month of August, ruled according to legend by the Roman version of Isis, Diana, etc: Juno Augusta. The Satanists in the emergency team simply ensured that Diana would not leave the tunnel (sacrificial chamber) alive. We are told she bled to death and, if this is correct, it was precisely in accordance with their blood rites and sacrificial rites. But was the bleeding caused in the way we are told, or by some other chemical means? We now know that Diana was clinically dead about 12.45 am, yet she was taken to the La Pitie Salpetriere Hospital and kept in the operating theatre for an hour and a half while the medical team, Professor Bruno Riou, Professor Pierre Coriat, Professor Alain Pavie and Professor Jean Pierre Benazat, cut open her chest and “battled to save her”. Save a woman who had already been clinically dead for an hour and fifteen minutes when she arrived at the hospital? When they had finished, the French Minister of the Interior, Jean-Pierre Chevenement, decreed, according to his senior advisor, Sami Mani, that there would be strictly no admittance to the room in which her body was laid out.⁵⁵ Chevenement was one of several ‘VIPs’ who rushed to the tunnel and observed the medical operation at this former sacrificial site.⁵⁶ The Brotherhood Mother Goddess, Arizona Wilder, said that Guy de Rothschild had talked about Diana’s death in early 1998 when he tried to reprogramme her at a house in Sherman Oaks, Los Angeles. Rothschild was using a pseudonym, Dr Barrington. He said that he was in the tunnel that night to “Steal Diana’s soul” through the

'evil eye' hypnotic gaze the reptiles use at the point of death. I explained this earlier in relation to Pindar. A contact in Denmark told me that during her last year of medical studies at the Copenhagen University in 1983 she realised that severely mentally ill patients were being used for experiments by being inseminated with genetically tampered semen. The pregnancy, she said, was very painful and often unsuccessful. Sometimes the patient died and the foetus was dissected in secrecy. She went on: "The doctors conducting these experiments were professors, heads of departments, PhDs, the most outstanding in their field. They had a kind of Brotherhood... many of them were psychic and monkeyed with black magic. Incredible amounts of money were flowing to them." A story that could be repeated thousands of times all over the world.

Another name for the goddess Diana is Hecate. One of the ancient 'triads' or 'trinities' was that of Diana, Luna and Hecate who were said to be three aspects of the same female energy. It was called Diana on Earth, Luna in Heaven, and Hecate in Hell. Hecate is one of the premier deities of Satanism and she is a version of Aphrodite and Venus, different names for the same energy. After her husband's death, Jackie Kennedy travelled to the Greek island of Delos in the south west Aegean Sea, the legendary birthplace of Diana and Apollo and the considered domain of Hecate, the goddess of the 'infernal arts'. Delos is known for this reason as the Island of the Dead. Hecate was portayed as both the virgin and the whore and crossroads are the sacred places of

Diana-Hecate. It is at crossroads that the witches and the Grand Masters and sorcerers of Freemasonry perform their rituals. Crossroads are symbolic of the vortex points created where ley lines cross. In ritual sex magic, the wearing of clothes of the opposite sex and the performance of bi-sexual acts are called 'Crossroad Rites'. The women involved were called 'dikes'. Crossroads are also places of human and animal sacrifice and Hecate is known as a 'sex and death goddess' and the goddess of witchcraft and sorcery. At the

Pont de L'Alma, right at the spot where Diana died, the road that goes through the tunnel is crossed on the surface by another road which leads onto the Pont de L'Alma Bridge. In fact this spot is a maze of crossroads. And Diana died in the early morning of August 31st. Hecate's Day in the Satanic calendar is August 13th, but under the Satanic law of reverse symbolism and reverse numbers, Hecate's day of sacrifice is... August 31st!!

So just look at the symbolism of this. Diana, named after the ancient Moon goddess, was driven from the Ritz and through the Place de la Concorde where she passed the 3,200 year-old Egyptian obelisk brought to Paris from Luxor with its tip or pyramid coloured bright gold symbolising the penis of Osiris. It was at this very point, a minute from where Diana died, that Queen Marie Antoinette was beheaded at the guillotine during the Brotherhood-engineered French Revolution, another symbolic blood sacrifice of the female energy. Diana was then driven at speed to the Pont de UAlma tunnel, the Bridge or Place of the Moon Goddess, where the car struck the 13th pillar, the symbolism for which is simply enormous for obvious reasons and for others I'll come to later. Now she was left to die on the very site of an ancient underground sacrificial chamber to the goddess Diana and bled to death according to Satanic ritual. She also died at a crossroads with one road under the ground, the other above, and the crossroads is the sacred place for the Satanic deity, Hecate, another aspect of the 'Diana' energy.

And it all happened on Hecate's day for sacrifice, August 31st. Does anyone doubt that this was a ritual murder? And I've not even nearly finished with the symbolism surrounding her death. Remember what David Berkowitz, the Satanist serial killer in New York known as the Son of Sam, wrote about those involved in the Satanic network:

"...Satanists (genuine ones) are peculiar people. They aren't ignorant peasants or semi-literate natives. Rather, their ranks are filled with doctors, lawyers, businessmen, and basically highly responsible citizens... They are not a careless group who are apt to make mistakes. But they are secretive and bonded together by a common need and desire to mete out havoc on society. It was Aleister Crowley who said: 'I want blasphemy, murder, rape, revolution, anything bad'."57

It is worth emphasising again here the Satanists' relationship with female energy.

The challenge we all face is to balance male and female energies and so enjoy the best aspects of them and not the extremes. The Satanists, however, seek to express only the extremes, thus creating disharmony and conflict. They use the malevolent, highly negative expressions of the female energy (covert manipulation behind the scenes) to create the events and circumstances which the extremes of the male energy (macho men, soldiers, terrorism) can play out in the public arena. Because of this it appears that the world is controlled and dominated by male energy - it's a 'mans world', but in truth it is not a world dominated by the male, it is a world dominated by extremes of male and female. I am not talking men and women here, I mean male and female energy which can be expressed by both men or women. For instance, the Brotherhood manipulators like Henry Kissinger never see a gun fired in anger. They are not out there physically fighting (male energy) in the wars they engineer. They are manipulating events from the shadows and behind our backs, a trait of the negative female energy and symbolised by the story of the Trojan Horse. The female energy is also the creative force and you can create negatively or positively. The Brotherhood are highly malevolent, but very creative. For this reason, in esoteric law and symbolism, the female energy (Diana, Semiramis, Isis, Barati, Britannia) is given different names for its different expressions. The Egyptians portrayed Isis in white in her positive mode and in black to symbolise her negative aspect. In the same way we have the symbolism of Diana (positive female) and Hecate (negative female). They are simply different symbolic names for different manifestations of the female energy. The Satanists of the Brotherhood work with the Hecate energy and that is why they worship this deity. They are actually worshipping the extreme negative female energy and it is for this reason that in Satanism the high priestess is considered as important as the priest, if not more so. At that Elite centre for Satanism in Belgium, the Castle of Darkness I mentioned in an earlier chapter, the top position in the hierarchy is not known as the king, but the Queen Mother. So in the Pont de L'Alma Tunnel the positive female energy (love, compassion, intuition), symbolised by Diana, was eliminated by the negative female energy (manipulation, ritual death), symbolised by Hecate and the crossroads.

The death of Dodi Fayed was also crucial to the Satanic symbolism. Given the circumstances of his death, it is quite a coincidence that his real name, Emad El Din, is Arabic for 'Pillar of Faith'. Dodi was a nickname he was given as a toddler by his family. This, too, is interesting. It is very close to Dido and in fact 'Dido' was the nickname he gave to Diana. Dido in Greek mythology was the legendary founder and queen of Carthage (an Aryan people connected to the Phoenicians) and she was the daughter of Belus, king of the Phoenician city of Tyre. When Dido's husband was killed by her brother, Pygmalion, she fled with her followers to North Africa where she purchased Carthage from the native ruler, Larbus. He later threatened Dido with war unless she married him, but instead she killed herself. But the most likely symbols for Dodi Fayed's death can be found in his birthplace, Egypt. The Brotherhood are obsessed with the symbolism in ancient Egypt of the Osiris-Horus-Isis trinity (Nimrod-Tammuz-Semiramis) which is expressed in Christianity as father, son, and holy ghost. Among many things, it symbolises the male and female energies coming together to create a third force, new life.

To the Egyptians, and therefore the Brotherhood, the son of God was Horus. He was born to Isis after her husband, Osiris, had been murdered by Set. She gathered together 14 parts of his mutilated body, but she could not find the penis. So she created a penis and impregnated herself to conceive Horus, the Sun God - Sun King, Horus was Osiris reborn. In Paris, part of this ritual was played out again. The car passed the golden-tipped Egyptian obelisk, the penis of Osiris, in the Place de la Concorde, and inside the vehicle were Diana (another name for Isis) and the Egyptian, Dodi Fayed, representing Osiris. I have heard from many sources that Diana was pregnant. Her foetus symbolised Horus, the Sun King. In ancient Egypt, they said that Osiris had to die before Horus could come in. This will sound amazing to most people, but if you study the unbelievable obsession these people have with ritual and symbolism it makes perfect sense. Diana may not even have realized she was pregnant. It could have been the foetus they were removing on the operating table in Paris while they “battled to save her” for hours after she was clinically dead. I have heard suggestions that the cells from the foetus are being used to clone babies from this genetic mix. These will be ‘Sun gods’ according to Brotherhood ritual.

The cloning of humans has been possible for a long time, as the cloning of sheep at the Roslyn Institute near Rosslyn Chapel in Scotland has clearly shown. The Brotherhood’s secret science is always far in advance of anything allowed into the public domain and because of this the public find it impossible to believe what the Brotherhood can do with drugs and technology. So it is with their mind control techniques and I am sure that both Diana and Dodi had been under the influence of mind manipulation over many weeks to ensure the ritual happened as required. For goodness sake, a stage hypnotist can take over the mind of someone from the audience. Just think what is possible for those mind manipulators at the global cutting edge.

The Pont de L’Alma is one of the most sacred places in the world to the Brotherhood and, as with the street plans in all their key cities, they made sure the site was full of appropriate symbolism: the bridge, the underground chamber, the crossroads and the name. Since my own spiritual awakening in 1990 I have been guided by my subconscious intuition to many Earth power centres. Often I have not been aware of

at the time and only with hindsight have I seen how, on a non-conscious level, I had been drawn to a major vortex point on the magnetic grid system and often to those of particular importance to the Brotherhood. In 1994 I was on holiday with my family near the Normandy coast in France and we decided to visit Paris. It was a long drive, but we had never seen the city before. We drove to Versailles outside Paris and took the train from there to the station at the Eiffel Tower. It was a hot, humid, and sweaty day, and the area was packed with people and heavy with traffic. This combination was so unpleasant that we decided not to stay very long before taking the train back to Versailles, but first we went for a short walk. We crossed the River Seine by a footbridge near the Eiffel Tower and walked a hundred yards or so alongside the river bank on the far side before finding a seat to rest. After sitting there for about ten minutes we walked over the nearby road bridge and back to the railway station to leave the city. We were in the place for little more than an hour and that is all I had experienced of Paris until I went back to research Diana's death for this book.

When I returned to Paris I had quite a shock because I found that seat again where we rested in 1994. It is on top of the Pont de L'Alma tunnel very close to the 13th pillar where the car crashed! Also, near that seat above the mouth of the tunnel is a large depiction of a lighted torch (see picture section). This, of course, is the most obvious Brotherhood signature of them all and after President Kennedy's ritual killing, the Freemasons erected an obelisk in Dealey Plaza with a lighted torch at the top. Another flame was placed on his grave. The one on the Pont de UAlma Tunnel stands on a black pentagram and there isn't a more powerful Satanic symbol than that. It is supposed to be a 'Flame of Liberty' (a copy of the flame held by the Statue of Liberty) to commemorate those who died in the Second World War, but its location has, predictably, ensured that it has become a shrine to Diana. One newspaper report said that the French authorities were considering a permanent memorial to Diana at the Pont de L'Alma - a continuation of the 13th pillar above the ground! I can't think of anything more sick or more symbolic than that. The last I heard they planned to open a vegetable garden to commemorate her death and they were going to pull down a building to make way for it. The garden is an area of Paris that Diana is never known to have visited and she had no recorded passion for growing vegetables. So what goes on? Well, first I bet you'll find that the vegetable garden will be on another ancient site of some kind, and most importantly such an inadequate and bizarre memorial will ensure that the flame above the tunnel will now remain the public shrine to Diana.

The Flame of Liberty was placed on the tunnel entrance in 1987 and I am certain the assassination of Diana at that spot was planned well before then. It is quite conceivable, given the Brotherhood's long term planning and meticulous attention to ritual and symbolic detail, that it was planned for decades. Definitely before the sacrificial lamb was hooked into the Windsor web to marry Charles. It was Brotherhood symbolism which decided the location of their wedding at St Paul's Cathedral. St Paul's, with its vast dome, was designed by Sir Christopher Wren, the high Brotherhood initiate. Its design is mirrored by both the Congress Building in Washington DC and by the Pantheon in Paris. Brutus, the Trojan who became first king of the Britons in about 1,103BC, was the man who founded 'New Troy', known today as London. He was another who worshipped the goddess Diana and he is reported to have erected a temple to her on what is now called Ludgate Hill on the site of a former stone circle.⁵⁸ This is in the heart of the City of London financial district, that centre of Brotherhood control, and today on this site of Diana worship you will find... St Paul's Cathedral. In Paris, the Notre Dame (Our Lady) Cathedral is on an ancient site of Diana worship and the ambulance carrying the princess's body passed Notre Dame during that bizarre journey to hospital. So Diana was married on an ancient sacred site to the goddess Diana and she died on the site of an ancient sacrificial chamber of the goddess Diana. She was also hunted and used by the Windsors to produce heirs and Diana was the ancient goddess of hunting, fertility and childbirth.

When Prince Charles and Diana's sisters went to Paris to escort her body back to London, the coffin was draped in the royal standard, the flag of the Windsors which is covered with the Sun symbol, the lion. Not the flag of the country, you'll note, but the flag of the Windsors. Another strange coincidence happened at the Hammersmith Mortuary in London. As her coffin arrived, the one carrying Dodi was leaving and they apparently crossed at the entrance. What are the statistical chances of that when both made such very different journeys from Paris? Dodi, we were told, had to be buried within 24 hours of his death according to Muslim religious law and there was a mad rush by his father to meet the deadline. There was no autopsy on his body, a quick external examination was considered enough.

448

At this point, Diana's brother, Charles, Earl Spencer, then 33, came on the scene after flying back from his home in Cape Town, South Africa. When Earl Spencer, the Queen's god-son, made his maiden speech in the House of Lords in 1993, he chose a rather strange subject, Satanism On The Spencer's Althorp Estate In Northamptonshire. He acknowledged that it was going on, but he said he was doing all he could to eradicate it. What a remarkable topic to introduce in your first speech in the Houses of Parliament. The Brotherhood Mother Goddess, Arizona Wilder, reports seeing Earl Spencer and his father at some of the sacrificial rituals she conducted. It was Earl Spencer who announced that, despite her wishes, Diana's body would not be interred in the family tomb at the local village church at Great Brington near the estate. Earl Spencer said he wanted to avoid swamping the village with sightseers and he had decided that Diana would be buried on a man-made island in the centre of a lake on the Althorp Estate. The lake is called The Oval and when looked at from above, the island looks like a dot within a circle, a symbol of the Sun. The flame in a circle is on Kennedy's grave. Also on the island, Spencer has placed the Brotherhood symbol of a burning flame and at one stage, Mohamed Al Fayed said he was going to put an 'eternal flame' to Diana and Dodi on the roof of Harrods to mark the first anniversary of their deaths in August 1998.⁵⁹ Islands are very much part of the legends of the goddess Diana and she was supposed to have been born on the island of Delos in the Aegean Sea. It is also known as the Island of the Dead after Hecate, the patroness of the 'infernal arts', the negative aspect of the Diana goddess energy. Diana is another name for Brito-Martis, the goddess of Crete which was colonised and developed by the Phoenicians who created the Minoan civilisation. Brito-Martis was actually a Phoenician goddess, according to Greek and Roman legend. She was the divine 'daughter' of Phoinix (correctly spelt) the King of Phoenicia, and was armed, like Diana, with weapons for the chase. Legend says that Brito-Martis (Diana) sailed from Phoenicia to Argos in Southern Greece and onto Crete where she was pursued by her unwelcome admirer, Minos. She escaped by retreating to the sea and sailed to Aegina, an island in the Aegean where stands the temple of Artemis or Diana. Islands and Diana are very much connected in the legends. Earl Spencer put Diana's grave among trees on the island and this is classic symbolism because the ancients used to worship the goddess Diana in the tree groves and this was said to be her most sacred place. Sir James Frazer describes in his book, The Golden Bough, the rite known as the King of the Wood at Lake Nemi (again a lake is a big part of Diana legend). The Lady of the Lake is also Brotherhood symbolism. Frazer says that on the northern shore of Lake Nemi, under the cliffs on which the modern village of Nemi, near Aricia, is perched, was the sacred grove and sanctuary of Diana Nemorensis, or Diana of the Wood, the goddess of hunting. Lake Nemi is the most celebrated shrine to the goddess Diana and here, says Frazer, there grew a tree around which the figure of a priest would be seen with a sword. A candidate for the priesthood in the cult of Diana could only succeed by killing the present incumbent and he would only keep the job until someone in turn killed him. The post carried the title of king - King of the Wood - and a long line of priest-kings who served Diana met a violent end. So the goddess Diana is associated with islands and a lake and was worshipped among the trees. And Earl Spencer puts his sister's grave among the trees on an island in a lake.

Then there is the strange tale of the black swans. In June 1998, Earl Spencer gave an interview for BBC Television in which he told of a dream he claimed to have had between the crash in Paris and Diana's funeral. In the dream, he said, he had been told to put four black swans on the lake around the island. When he called his estate manager the next morning and asked him where he would find four black swans, the manager is supposed to have said: "You've heard then?". "Heard what?", Spencer claims to have asked.

"We've been offered four black swans", the estate manager replied. Maybe this is true, but, in my view, this story has more to do with flying pigs than flying swans. Black swans are profound occult symbols used in rituals and were the seal of the infamous Satanist, Catherine de Medici, who, Arizona Wilder says, was a previous incarnation of the Queen Mother. They appear most obviously in the ballet, Swan Lake, when the black swan, symbolising the negative female energy, kills the white swan, symbolising the positive. In other words, Hecate kills Diana. What better symbolism can you have of Swan Lake than black swans on a lake, as at Althorp? A swan is a derogatory term in Druidism. Project Monarch slaves who rebel are told that they will be "Turned into swans" and Diana, of course, rebelled against the Windsors. The number of swans also fits here. Monarch programming includes a term called The Four Gates of Heaven and four could also symbolise the four phases of the Moon. Earl Spencer has established a 'temple' to Diana at the side of the lake. A number of the stately homes of the British aristocracy have temples or areas featuring the goddess Diana, among them Blenheim Palace home of the Marlboroughs and Chatsworth House, headquarters of the Cavendish's, the Dukes of Devonshire, and both families are related to the Spencers. Diana was carried in a lead-lined coffin and lead is the metal associated in ritual magic with Saturn, possibly from where we get the name Satan. The colour associated with Saturn and Satanism is black. Diana was also led to her death across the two key Brotherhood days of Saturday and Sunday. The 15th-century Italian philosopher-doctor from Florence, Marsilio Ficino, produced talismans for protection and the one for Saturn was engraved on pure lead. It was said to protect the wearer against death by assassination and ambush and protected women in childbirth. On Diana's lead coffin during the funeral were lilies, the flower of Lilith, another version of Hecate and a symbol of the bloodline. The lilies were chosen by Earl Spencer, Diana's brother. The lily was also sacred to Astarte, another Diana deity, and it was used to symbolise the impregnation of the virgin Mary. The 'blessed virgin' Juno, ruler of August, was said to have conceived her saviour-son, Mars, on a magic lily.

The lily is symbolic of the reptilian bloodlines. In the year 656, the 10th Council of Toledo officially made the day of Juno's legendary conception of Mars into the Christian Festival of the Mother of God, or Lady Day, insisting that it commemorated Mary's miraculous conception of Jesus with the aid of a lily.⁶⁰ In France the people knew Lady Day as Notre Dame de Mars. The symbolism of the lily with the pregnant goddess giving birth to the saviour-god (as in Isis and Horus) is fascinating, given the stories that Diana was pregnant at the time of her death and the way I have connected this to the legend of Osiris, Isis and Horus.

There have also been questions about whether Diana is even buried on the island. In the Summer of 1998, the Star magazine in the United States quoted an unnamed "senior source" at Buckingham Palace as saying she was secretly cremated and according to a report in the Los Angeles Times some people in the village of Great Brington also don't believe she is buried on the island. I know these reports are true from my own sources. One resident quoted by the LA Times said that the night her coffin was taken to Althorp for burial, the village had been 'invaded' by the army, police and special forces units, and all the villagers were hustled into their homes. She said that the crematorium at the church was working late into the night. Betty Andrews, the former cook and housekeeper at Althorp, is quoted by Star magazine as saying: "There's a strange feeling amongst the villagers that we may not be hearing the complete picture".

While researching this book I was introduced to Christine Fitzgerald, a brilliant and gifted healer, who was a close friend and confidant of Diana for nine years. Because of Christine's understanding of the esoteric, Diana was able to talk to her about matters she would not dare to share with anyone else for fear of being dubbed crazy. It is clear that Diana knew about the true nature of the royal family's genetic history and the reptilian control. Her nicknames for the Windsors were "the lizards" and "the reptiles" and she used to say in all seriousness: "They're not human". There is a very good reason for Diana using this description of the Windsors. As her deprogramming continued, Arizona Wilder remembered clearly a ritual she attended at Clarence House, the Queen Mother's home near to Buckingham Palace, in which Diana was shown who the Windsors really are. It took place in the first seven days of July 1981, just before Diana and Charles were married on the 29th. This period is the last seven days of the cycle of the Oak Tree, according to esoteric law, and the ritual was called The Awakening of the Bride. This is a ritual for all females of the 13 bloodlines who are going to be in publicly high positions and marry reptilians to produce the new generation of rulers. Arizona says that the Queen Mother, the Queen, Prince Philip, Lady Fermoy, Diana's father Earl Spencer, Prince Charles and Camilla Parker-Bowles were all present when Diana was brought into the room. She was wearing a white gown and a drug had been administered by Lady Fermoy. Diana was told that she should consider her union with Prince Charles as only a means to produce heirs and nothing else. Camilla Parker-Bowles was his consort, not her. Arizona says that Prince Philip and the Queen Mother then shape-shifted into reptiles to show Diana who they really were. 'Diana was terrified, but quiet', she said. Diana was told that if she ever revealed the truth about them, she would be killed. (Remember the guy I mentioned who had a call from Diana in the March before she died asking for his advice on how to reveal information about the royals that would 'shake the world'?) The Queen Mother told Diana at the ritual that "all ears" would be listening to everything she said and "all eyes" would forever be watching her. This is the classic 'nowhere to run' bind imposed on all mind controlled slaves. Does anyone believe, therefore, that they would allow Diana into the clutches of Mohamed Al Fayed if he was not under their control? The ritual also involved the use of a golden penis (Osiris symbolism) which was used on Diana to signify the 'opening of the womb'. Arizona says it was of reptilian shape and size and had needle-like protrusions designed to superficially puncture the walls of the vagina and cause bleeding. Diana was told that after this ritual, she would never be "honoured" again by attending their rituals and she was not to ask questions about them. Now do people understand why Diana suffered from bulimia and serious emotional problems from the time she married Charles?

Diana told Christine Fitzgerald that the Queen Mother was the power behind the Windsors, along with Prince Philip. But Philip was subordinate in the hierarchy to the Queen Mother, Diana said. The Queen Mother is connected to a long list of Brotherhood groups and societies and she is the head of the Inner Temple, the elite and highly secret society for the upper levels of the legal profession on the 'former' Knights Templar land at Temple Bar in London. It was the Queen Mother and her close friend, Diana's grandmother, Ruth Lady Fermoy, who manipulated Diana into the marriage with Prince Charles. This is why Diana was given quarters at the Queen Mother's home, Clarence House, in the weeks before the wedding and she left from there to marry Charles at St Paul's Cathedral. "Diana used to tell me that the Queen Mother was evil", Christine Fitzgerald said, "She actually used that word, evil. She said she hated the Queen Mother and the Queen Mother hated her." Most people in Britain will be astonished to read this because the Queen Mother's propaganda has turned her into the nation's favourite grandmother. "Oh yes, the Queen Mum, such a lovely, gentle, kind old lady.” But this woman is not what she is claimed to be. I can’t emphasise that enough. During her time at Clarence House before the wedding, Diana says herself that she was being given drugs like the anti-depressant, Valium, to treat her bulimia. And what else were they giving her? “They drugged her”, Christine said “I’m sure of it, they had her doped from the start.” Christine had many conversations with Diana and she opened her heart about her nightmare life with the Windsors. But Christine’s contacts through her work have given her access to other sources with inside knowledge of the British Royal Family, too. This was the first time she had talked publicly about her experiences with Diana and what she knows of the reptilian agenda. She told me: “The Queen Mother... now that’s a serious piece of wizardry. The Queen Mother is a lot older than people think. To be honest, the Royal Family hasn’t died for a long time, they have just metamorphosised. It’s sort of cloning, but in a different way. They take pieces of flesh and rebuild the body from one little bit. Because it’s lizard, because it’s cold-blooded, it’s much easier for them to do Frankenstein shit than it is for us. The different bodies are just different electrical vibrations and they have got that secret, they’ve got the secret of 452 the micro-currents, it’s so micro, so specific, these radio waves that actually create the bodies. These are the energies I work with when I’m healing. They know the vibration of life and because they are cold-blooded, they are reptiles, they have no wish to make the Earth the perfect harmony it could be, or to heal the Earth from the damage that’s been done. The Earth's been attacked for zeons by different extraterrestrials. It's been like a football for so long. This place was a bus stop for many different aliens. All these aliens, they could cope with everything, including the noxious gases. They're landing all the time and coming up from the bowels of the Earth. They looked like reptiles originally, but they look like us when they get out now through the electrical vibration, that life key I talked about. They can manifest how they want to. All the real knowledge has been taken out and shredded and put back in another way. The Queen Mother is "Chief Toad" of this part of Europe and they have people like her in each continent. Most people, the hangers on, don't know, you know, about the reptiles. They are just in awe of these people because they are so powerful.

"Bal moral is a very, very nasty place. That's somewhere they want to dig underground. They will find reptile fossils, it goes back that far. Don't think of people like the Queen Mother and Queen Victoria, as different people. Think of them as the same person which after a while has had to replace their coat. When the flesh dies, that energy, while it's dying, will be immediately up someone else's jacksy (backside). It's very vampire, worse than vampire. They are not going to come to you with hooked teeth and suck you're blood.

Fear is their food, they can actually take fear and manifest it into a tangible thing. The key is the vibrational current. At that vibrational current, they can manifest anything from anything. Its like a holographic image. We are all minerals and water vibrating. This is all an illusion we are living in. That's the secret. You know when the monarchy's fallen, it's not the end of it. They will manifest in another form. The reptiles have never been defeated and this is the closest they have come to it. The reason they are so threatened today is because the Earth is in such trouble and the mental power of people is returning. This is their most frightening time, but this is not going to kill them. There are long centuries before it's over yet. The difference this time is that it'll be more difficult for them and they are going to have to settle for less and the Earth people are going to get more. But even though these reptilian ones are fuckers, they are sad, pathetic beasts really, while humanity is galloping towards light. They're just pathetic lumps of nastiness who aren't going to win. I can't talk about this everywhere because they would just go 'Christine, get a white coat, put it on backwards, get out'. But I want an end to the bullshit."

I was astonished to hear someone else talking about these subjects, which I knew from my own research to be true. She was not aware when she told me this of my own research into reptilians. Christine Fitzgerald, thanks to her insider contacts and her knowledge of metaphysics, had been able to grasp the biggest secret: that reptiles on another dimension are controlling the world by working through physical bodies which look human. And also that the Windsors are one of these reptilian bloodlines. Christine also knew about the reptile Satanic rituals, the sexual rites and the widespread sacrifice

This is a listing of the Strategy Board of the American Security Council Foundation, and the National Strategy Committee of the American Security Council. ASCF is the tax-exempt fundraising and educational arm of ASC, which maintains its headquarters mansion on a 850-acre estate in Boston, Virginia (65 miles southwest of Washington). In 1978, ASCF and ASC formed the Coalition for Peace Through Strength to lobby for a hard line against Communism in general and the SALT treaty in particular. ASC and ASCF boast a number of generals, professors, corporate executives, ex-ambassadors, and intelligence professionals on their boards. This is about as far right as one can get and still remain respectable.

Originally founded in Chicago in 1955 as the Mid-American Research Library, ASC's initial function was to screen job applicants for 1500 employers who were worried about hiring suspected Communists. In 1972 they phased out the Chicago operation and shifted their focus to international security and nuclear strategy. The personnel files, which ran to over six million cards, are now gathering dust on their Virginia estate, housed in the Sol Feinstone Library for the Survival of Freedom.

Allen, Michael Patrick. The Founding Fortunes: A New Anatomy of the Super-Rich Families in America. New York: E.P. Dutton, 1989. 438 pages.

The author of this book is a sociology professor at Washington State University who sees himself in the tradition of Ferdinand Lundberg and G. William Domhoff. Lundberg's 1000-page "The Rich and the Super-Rich" became a number-one bestseller in 1968. Allen's book is more current, and he includes an appendix (pages 307-392) with a half-page on each of 160 family fortunes, making it especially suitable for NameBase. Allen focuses particularly on family money and his prose is straightforward and scholarly, while Lundberg is irreverent and almost wild. Both books include material on self-made and inherited wealth, the influence of money in politics, lifestyles, legal loopholes for tax avoidance, and philanthropy through private foundations.

Domhoff is another scholar in the same tradition, although his books focus less on private wealth for its own sake, and more on the influence of quasi-official elites on government decision-making. The premise of all three scholars is that American egalitarianism and political pluralism is a myth, and that some form of class analysis might not be inappropriate. (In other words, they've assembled their advanced degrees and research skills, complete with thousands of footnotes. And then like someone who has been reporting live from the scene for too many hours, they wearily look up from the library stacks and announce, "This just in: little guy gets screwed!")

Perloff, James. The Shadows of Power: The Council on Foreign Relations and the American Decline. Appleton WI: Western Islands, 1988. 264 pages.

This is a John Birch Society publication. In other words, the author takes a worthy notion, supports it with rather good research, and then runs with it for the goalpost on the wrong end of the field. Perloff, who is also a contributing editor for JBS's "The New American," claims to have once been a campus radical, until he realized that leftist students were tools of a very clever Establishment. So far, so good -- a case can be made for this. Perloff makes a stronger case for earlier elitist machinations -- such as those that gave us the Federal Reserve, or that got us into the world wars and Vietnam. But his research starts taking some curious turns in the 1950s -- a decade that started with McCarthy, and ended with the founding of JBS.

The JBS line infects a couple dozen pages in this book, and it can be easily spotted and bracketed, now that the Cold War is over. The weirdness has to do with JBS's theory that CFR elites are really closet communists, and that they are consciously bringing America into decline for the sake of the new world communist order. Oops, fast-forward ten years, when globalism rules while communism is dead. Now it's clear that while communism had its own global ambitions, it was never in cahoots with the globalism practiced by Atlantic elites. If only JBS could find it within themselves to give up the ghost of communism, they might yet have something to contribute.

Space Program Intelligence: Year 2010

'<http://www.mywisecounty.com/news/012003-1.htm>
Washington, D.C. -- Moving from chemical impulse powered rockets of the last half-century of space flight to new nuclear reactor powered space vehicles may be the new daring mission for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) in this decade.

A new multi-billion dollar program known as Project Prometheus is in the policy works within NASA and the White House. It is designed to kick the space program in to a proverbial "warp-drive" and put humans on the face of Mars by 2010.

""Mohammed Al Fayed a fake? -06/11/02

Harrods boss Mohammed Al Fayed has allegedly been exposed as a fake.

Al Fayed has said that he was educated at Victoria College, Alexandria, the Eton of the Middle East.

Its alumni read like a roll call of the Arab world, with King Hussein of Jordan, Edward Said, Omar Sharif, George Antonius and Adnan Khashoggi among those on the list.

At the tender age of 10 Victorians were being versed in Shakespeare and the social niceties in 'taking tea'. Indeed, successive British ambassadors took it for granted that they could use the school as a forum on speech days to outline Anglo-Egyptian relations.

This weekend, as the institution holds its centenary reunion with a resplendent eight-day extravaganza, Fayed invited himself, however, the trouble is, he never went to school there and was declined an invitation.

Since buying Harrods in the Eighties, Mohamed al-Fayed, who also owns Fulham football club, has frequently referred to his time at the prestigious school. It seems that it was all in his imagination.

Mohamed Repeats Claims That Diana's Death was No Accident - 31/08/01

Mohamed Al Fayed is using the anniversary of the death of his son Dodi and Princess Diana to repeat his claims that their deaths were no accident.

Mr Al Fayed put together a video presentation for the press in Washington, US, saying he was in no doubt that the deaths were a result of murder with racism at the core and setting out his allegations in more detail.

Although many of his arguments had been aired before, he said Diana's body had been embalmed within hours of her death and said this was to prevent proper forensic tests in Britain.

He also repeated allegations that the Mercedes driver Henri Paul - blamed by a French magistrate for being drunk and causing the accident - had ties to British intelligence.

Former British agent Richard Tomlinson, whose book about the intelligence service was blocked in the UK, was used to support Mr Al Fayed's allegations in the video.

French investigators long ago concluded that Mr Paul had no ties to British or any other intelligence agency.

Battle for Harrods Helipad - 20/07/01

Mohamed Al Fayed's helicopter could be gracing the skies of Knightsbridge yet, as the latest chapter unfolds in his battle to put a helipad on Harrod's roof.

In a hearing in the High Court this week he is challenging the government's decision to block his plans, describing them as unfair and unlawful.

In January the Deputy Prime Minister John Prescott, then also the Environment Secretary, dismissed an appeal by Harrods Ltd against the decision made by the Royal Borough of Kensington & Chelsea.

Mr Prescott's decision was against the advice of a public inquiry inspector who recommended it should be passed.

The hearing continues.

Mohamed Al Fayed hosted the opening of a sale this morning, although given the monumental scale of the event, passers-by could have been forgiven for thinking they had come across an event of more importance, like the end of a small war or the founding of a new country ...

Biography

Al Fayed's high-flying life is a stark contrast to his humble beginnings, born in the slums of Alexandria in 1929. He was a soft drink salesman in Egypt until he married Samira Kashoggi, the younger sister of shipping tycoon Adnan Kashoggi, in 1954. The two-year marriage produced Dodi.

Al Fayed used his new family connections to become an exporting agent in Egypt, moving to Haiti in the early 1960s before arriving in England in 1970. He later married a Finn, Heini, with whom he has four children. In 1984, Al Fayed made his name when he bought Harrods. But he was later investigated for lying about his origins, wealth and business interests.

In the 1980s and 90s, he admitted payments of cash and benefits in kind to British politicians. The fallout resulted in the resignation of two ministers and several lawsuits. He has also been involved in several white-collar criminal investigations and libel trials. The fallout has seen him be repeatedly refused a British passport. "

Title: Jesuit Spiritual Training - Deeper Insight

Description: Rudolf Steiner Provides Some Wisdom

Daniel - March 28, 2007 10:35 PM (GMT)

http://wn.rsarchive.org/Lectures/JRTran_index.html

".....In reaction against many other spiritual streams in Europe, the opposite way was taken by those who are usually called Jesuits. The radical, fundamental difference between what we justifiably call the Christian way of the Spirit and the Jesuit way of the Spirit, which gives a one-sided exaggeration to the Jesus-Principle, is that the intention of the Jesuit way is to work directly, at all times upon the Will. The difference is clearly shown in the method by which the pupil of Jesuitism is educated. Jesuitism is not to be taken lightly, or merely exoterically, but also esoterically, for it is rooted in esotericism. It is not, however, rooted in the spiritual life that is poured out through the symbol of Pentacost, but it seeks to root itself directly in the Jesus-element of the Son, which means in the Will; and thereby it exaggerates the Jesus-element of the Will.

This will be seen when we now enquire into the esoteric part of Jesuitism, its various spiritual exercises. How were these exercises arranged? The essential point is that every single pupil of Jesuitism goes through exercises which lead into the occult life, but into the Will, and within the field of occultism they hold the Will in severe discipline; they 'break it in', one might say. And the significant fact is that this discipline of the Will does not arise merely from the surface of life, but from something deeper, because the pupil has been led into the occult, in the way just indicated.

If now, leaving aside the exercises of prayer preparatory to all Jesuit exercises, we consider these occult exercises, at least in their chief points, we find that the pupil has first to call up a vivid Imagination of Christ Jesus as the King of the Worlds — mark this carefully: an Imagination. And no one would be received into the degrees of Jesuitism who had not gone through such exercises, and had not experienced in his soul the transformation which such psychic exercises mean for the whole man. But this Imaginative presentation of Christ Jesus as King of the Worlds has to be preceded by something else. The pupil has to call up for himself, in absolute solitude and seclusion, a picture of man as he was created in the world, and how by falling into sin he incurred the possibility of most terrible punishments. And it is strictly prescribed how one must picture such a man; how if he were left to himself he would incur the utmost of torturing penalties. The rules are extraordinarily severe. With all other concepts or ideas excluded, this picture must live uninterruptedly within the soul of the future Jesuit, the picture of the God-forsaken man, the man exposed to the most fearful punishments, together with the feeling: 'That am I, since I have come into the world and have forsaken God, and have exposed myself to the possibility of the most fearful punishments.' This must call forth the fear of being forsaken by God, and detestation of man as he is according to his own nature.

Then, in a further Imagination, over against the picture of the outcast, God-forsaken man, must be set the picture of the God full of pity who then became Christ, and through His acts on earth atones for what man has brought about by forsaking the divine path. In contrast to the Imagination of the God-forsaken man, there must arise that of the all-merciful, loving Being, Christ Jesus, to whom alone it is due that man is not exposed to all possible punishments working upon his soul. And, just as vividly as a feeling of contempt for the forsaking of the divine path had first to become fixed in the soul of the Jesuit pupil, so must a feeling of humility and contrition now take hold of him in the presence of Christ.

When these 2 feelings have been called forth in the pupil, then for several weeks he has to practise severe exercises, picturing to himself in Imagination all details of the life of Jesus from his birth to the Crucifixion and Resurrection. And all that can arise in the soul emerges when the pupil lives in rigorous seclusion and, except for necessary meals, lets nothing else work upon his soul than the pictures which the Gospels give of the compassionate life of Jesus. But these pictures do not merely appear before him in thoughts and ideas; they must work upon his soul in vivid, living Imaginations.

Only someone who really knows how the human soul is transformed through Imaginations which work with full living power — only he knows that under such conditions the soul is in fact completely changed. Such Imaginations, because they are concentrated in the most intense, one-sided way, first on sinful man, secondly on the compassionate God, and then only on the pictures from the New Testament, evoke precisely, through the law of polarity, a strengthened Will. These pictures produce their effect directly, at first hand, for any reflection upon them must be dutifully excluded. It is solely a matter of holding before one's mind these Imaginations, as they have been described.

What then follows is this. In the further exercises Christ Jesus — and now we may no longer say Christ, but exclusively Jesus — is represented as the universal King of the Worlds, and thereby the Jesus element is exaggerated. Because Christ had to be incarnated in a human body, the purely spiritual took part in the physical world; but over against this participation stand the monumental and most significant words: "My kingdom is not of this world." We can exaggerate the Jesus element by making Jesus into a king of this world, by making Him that which He would have become if He had not resisted the tempter who wished to give Him 'all the kingdoms of the world and the glory thereof'. Then Jesus of Nazareth would have been a king who, unlike other kinds who possess only a portion of the earth, would have had the whole earth under his sway. If we think of this kind portrayed in this guise, his kingly power so increased that the whole earth is his domain, then we should have the very picture that followed the other exercises through which the personal will of each Jesuit pupil had been sufficiently strengthened.

To prepare for this picture of "King Jesus", this Ruler over all the kingdoms of the earth, the pupil had to form an Imagination of Babylon and the plain around Babylon as a living picture, and, enthroned over Babylon, Lucifer with his banner. This picture had to be visualized with great exactitude, for it is a powerful imagination: King Lucifer, with his banner and his hosts of Luciferic angels, seated amidst fire and dense smoke, as he sends out his angels to conquer the kingdoms of the earth. And the whole danger that issues from the 'banner of Lucifer' must first of all be imagined by itself, without casting a glance upon Christ Jesus. The soul must be entirely engrossed in the Imagination of the danger which issues from the banner of Lucifer. The soul must learn to feel that the greatest danger to the world's existence that could be conjured forth would be a victory for the banner of Lucifer. And when this picture has had its effect, the other Imagination, 'The banner of Jesus', must take its place. The pupil must now visualise Jerusalem and the plain around Jerusalem; King Jesus with His hosts, how he conquers and drives off the hosts of Lucifer and makes Himself King of the whole earth — the victory of the banner of Jesus over the banner of Lucifer.

These are the strength-giving Imaginations for the Will which are brought before the soul of the Jesuit pupil. This is what completely changes his Will; makes him such that in his Will, because it is trained occultly, he turns away from everything else and surrenders absolutely to the idea: 'King Jesus must become the Ruler upon earth, and we who belong to His army have to employ every means to make Him Ruler of the earth. To this we pledge ourselves, we who belong to His host assembled on the plain of Jerusalem, against the host of Lucifer assembled on the plain of Babylon. And the greatest disgrace for a soldier of King Jesus is to forsake His banner.'

These ideas, gathered up into a single resolution of the Will, can certainly give the Will immense strength. But we must ask: what is it in the soul-life that has been directly attacked? The element that ought not to be touched — the Will-element. In so far as this Jesuit training lays hold of the Will-element, while the Jesus-idea seizes the Will-element completely, in so far as is the concept of the dominion of Jesus exaggerated in the most dangerous way — dangerous because through it the Will becomes so strong that it can work directly upon the Will of another. For where the Will becomes so strong through Imaginations, which means by occult means, it acquires the capacity for working directly upon the Will of another, and hence also along all the other occult paths to which such a Will can have recourse.

Thus we see how in recent centuries we encounter these two movements, among many others: one has exaggerated the Jesus-element and sees in 'King Jesus' the sole ideal of Christianity, which the other looks solely at the Christ-element and carefully sets aside anything that could go beyond it. This second outlook has been much calumniated because it maintains that Christ has sent the Spirit, so that, indirectly through the Spirit, Christ can enter into the hearts and minds of men. In the development of civilisation during the last few centuries there is hardly a greater contrast than that between Jesuitism and Rosicrucianism, for Jesuitism contains nothing of what Rosicrucianism regards as the highest ideal concerning human worth and human dignity, while Rosicrucianism has always sought to guard itself from any influence which could in the remotest sense be called Jesuitical.

In this lecture I wished to show how even so lofty an element as the Jesus-Principle can be exaggerated and then becomes dangerous, and how necessary it is to sink oneself into the depths of the Christ-Being if we wish to understand how the strength of Christianity must reside in esteeming, to the very highest degree, human dignity and human worth, and in strictly refraining from groping our clumsy way into man's inmost sanctuary. Rosicrucianism, even more than Christian mysticism, is attacked by the Jesuit element, because the Jesuits feel that true Christianity is being sought elsewhere than in the setting which offers merely 'King Jesus' in the leading role. But the Imaginations here indicated, together with the prescribed exercises, have made the Will so strong that even protests brought against it in the name of the Spirit can be defeated."

"My Dear Friends,

It is my intention today to continue with the subject we began here last Sunday, and I should like first to go back to the few words I then said concerning the Anti-Modernist Oath. I described its nature by saying that since the time of its inauguration anyone who holds a teaching office in the Roman Catholic Church, whether as theologian or preacher, has to take this oath which forbids anyone engaged in Catholic teaching to deviate from what is recognized as dogmatic truth by the Roman Catholic Church; which means, in fact, what is recognized as dogma by the Roman Curia.

Now in face of such a fact the important question to ask oneself is: "What is there actually now about this Anti-Modernist Oath?"

There is nothing new in the adherence of a Catholic preacher or theologian to the doctrines of the Roman Catholic Church; please be clear about that. What is new is that the person concerned has to take an oath as to what is the doctrine of the Church. I want you to be clear about this first, and then to see it in relation to the fact that there has been a prodigious piling up of historical deeds in the Roman Catholic Church during the last half century. It began with the definition of the Dogma of the Immaculate Conception; then came a further extraordinary, subtle, and clever step in the Encyclical and Syllabus of the sixties, in which Pope Pius IX in his eighty Articles declared all modern thinking to be heretical. Then on top of that came the definition of the Dogma of Infallibility, again a very important and extraordinarily clever and subtle advance. The next extremely logical step was the Encyclical "Acterni Patris," which declared the doctrine of Thomas Aquinas to be the official doctrine of the Roman Catholic Church. The crowning of this whole structure for the time being is this oath against Modernism, which in effect is nothing else than the carrying over of something which was always present intellectually into the sphere of human emotion, the sphere of will and feeling. That which always had to be acknowledged has, since the year 1907, had also to be sworn on oath.

Anyone who understands this grandiose dramatic development will certainly not underestimate its importance, for it demonstrates the only wakeful consciousness within our sleeping civilization. I should be interested to know how many people felt as if stung by a viper when they read a certain sentence in the last number of the "Basler Vorwärts," which illuminates as by a flash of lightning the whole situation at the present time. I should really like to know how many people, when reading this, felt as if stung by a viper! The sentence runs: "Religion, which represents a fantastic reflex in the minds of human beings concerning their relations one to another and to nature, is doomed to natural decay through the victorious growth of the scientific, clear and naturalistic grasp of reality which is bound to develop parallel with the establishment of a planned society." This sentence is to be found in an article which has not yet appeared in its entirety, but has yet to be concluded. It is to be found in an article on the measures taken by Lenin and Trotsky against the Russian Catholic Church and the Russian religious communities in general. This article is at the same time an indication of what is regarded as the programme for the future in these quarters.

One knows for a certainty that the number of Lenin's opponents who feel as if stung by a viper on reading such a sentence is very small. I want to emphasize this as not being without significance, because it brings out to what an extent modern humanity passes lightly over things, usually asleep — how it passes over the weightiest facts, facts which are decisive for the life of mankind on this earth. It is, of course, not a question of any one such sentence; the point is that in certain quarters they will see to it that the content of what is there expressed will be made known throughout the world, that among the widest circles of the European population an outlook will come about which can be thus expressed: "Religion which represents a fantastic reflex in the minds of human beings concerning their relations to one another and to nature, is doomed to natural decay." The so-called 'enlightened' humanity of today is still soundly asleep to the fact that such a view is coming. But the Roman Catholic Church is awake; she alone in fact is awake and is working systematically against the approaching storm. She works against it in her own way. And it is very important that we should understand that way, for I have had much to say about the attacks from that quarter that are being forged against what we have to stand for. Meanwhile the clouds are gathering. The latest is that the bill posters had to notify us that the man who this morning was to have posted up in Reinach the announcement of Saturday's lecture had the posters taken from him and burnt. You see, these things are getting worse, even here they are getting systematically worse.

What was written by a man who frequently hides behind the bushes and calls himself 'Spectator' — a pack of sheer lies, I told you last time about the most egregious of them — now goes through the whole Roman Catholic press, and this burning of our posters really takes one back out of modern times altogether.

Now, my dear friends, I have already raised the important question as to why the clergy of the Roman Catholic Church today must take an oath in support of what they were already pledged to maintain. No one will deny that the enforcement of such an oath strengthens the external grasp of the matter. Nor will anyone deny that if it is felt necessary to make people take this oath, the assumption is that without such an oath they would no longer go so firmly forward. But, my dear friends, there is, of course, still a third point, which it would be well for you to ponder. For verily things enter in here which must not yet be called by their right names; yet the question may nevertheless be thrown out as an aside. Must not confidence in a thing be already to a certain extent shattered if it has to be sworn on oath? Is it a possibility to administer an oath for the truth? Can there be such a possibility? Is it not necessary to assume that the truth of its own inherent force is its own guarantee in the human soul? Perhaps it is not so important to ask whether an oath is moral or good or useful; perhaps it is far more important historically to ask whether it has become necessary, and if so, why?

In face of this oath something else is now necessary. It is necessary that a certain number of human beings should feel how without spiritual science there must inevitably come over Europe the consequence of the frame of mind expressed in the words "Religion, which represents a fantastic reflex in the minds of human beings concerning their relations to one another and to nature, is doomed to natural decay through the victorious growth of the scientific, clear and naturalistic grasp of reality, which is bound to develop parallel with the establishment of a planned society."

What is it that is to bring about the decay of the old religions one and all? It is all that has arisen during the last three to four centuries as modern science, enlightened science — all that is taught as objective science in the educational institutions of civilized humanity. Bourgeois teaching and bourgeois methods of administration have been adopted by the proletariat. What the teachers of the universities and high schools right down to the elementary schools have put into the souls of men, comes out through Lenin and Trotsky. They bring out nothing but what is already taught in the institutions of civilized humanity.

My dear friends, today there exists an antithesis which one should contemplate without prejudice. It is this. What is to be done to prevent the influence of Lenin and Trotsky from spreading over the entire civilized world? The primary necessity is no longer to allow our children and our youth to be taught what has been taught right up to the Twentieth Century in our universities and in our secondary and elementary schools. To grasp this seeming contradiction demands courage, and because men do not want to have this courage, they go to sleep. That is why one has to say that whoever reads a declaration such as the one I have just quoted, even if it only appears in a few lines of an article, should feel as if stung by a viper; for it is as if the whole situation of present-day civilization were illumined by a flash of lightning.

Face to face with this situation, what would spiritual science with all its detailed concreteness have? What spiritual science would have, I would characterize somewhat as follows. The Roman Catholic Church, as a mighty corporation, represents the last withered remains of the civilization of the fourth post-Atlantean Epoch. It can be well authenticated in all detail that the Roman Catholic Church represents the last remnant of what was the right civilization for the fourth post-Atlantean epoch, what was justified right up to the middle of the Fifteenth Century, but what has now become a shadow. Of course products of a later evolution often herald their arrival in an earlier period, and its earlier products linger on into a later epoch; but in essentials the Roman Catholic Church represents what was justifiable for Europe and its colonies up to the middle of the Fifteenth Century.

Spiritual science, however, as we understand it, has to further the needs of the fifth post-Atlantean civilization. The Roman Catholic Church represents in a number of dogmas, as a self-contained structure which is dead, but which still exists as a corpse, something which hangs together inwardly through a well-constructed logic, a logic of reality. In this structure there is spirit, the spirit of a past epoch, but it is spirit. The way in which spirit is contained within it I have, I think, shown in the lectures I held here on St. Thomas Aquinas. There was spirit in these teachings, in these dogmas of the Roman Catholic Church, a spirit which had been perceived by those great ones whose last stragglers we find in Plotinus, and others, and with which St. Augustine had yet in an interesting way to wrestle.

Since the middle of the Fifteenth Century, what has appeared as philosophy, science, public opinion, world conception, apart from the Roman Catholic Church, is, for the most part, void of spirit. For the spirit of the fifth post-Atlantean age begins only to emerge with such principles as those of Lessing and Goethe. And it wants to enter into what the natural-scientific trend inaugurated by Copernicus, Galilee and Kepler was able to yield without spirit, and out of which Darwin, Huxley, and so on have blown the last remnant of Spirit. It wants to enter into that and fill it with Spirit. And spiritual science wishes to make manifest the Spirit which has to be the spirit of the fifth post-Atlantean age.

An institution permeated by a certain spirit as its own soul, if it is to maintain itself as an institution, can only fight for the past. To demand of the Catholic Church that it should fight for the future would be folly, for an institution which carried the spirit of the fourth post-Atlantean epoch cannot possibly carry that of the fifth. What the Catholic Church has become, what has spread over the civilized world as the configuration of the Catholic Church, and has its other aspect in Roman law and the abstractness of the whole Latin culture, all that belongs to the fourth cultural epoch. And the Catholic Church configuration has permeated the entire of civilization far more than men think. The monarchies, even if they were Protestant ones, were in their structure at bottom Latin Catholic institutions. For the fourth epoch it was necessary that men should be organized according to abstract principles, and that certain hierarchical ordinances should form the basis of organization. But what is to come as the spirit of the fifth post-Atlantean age, which we seek to cultivate through spiritual science, does not require such a firm structure, does not need a structure organized according to abstract principles, but requires such a relation of one human being to another as is characterized in my Philosophy of Spiritual Activity as ethical individualism. What that book has to say on the subject of ethics stands in the same contrast to the social structure fostered by the Roman Catholic Church as in the last resort spiritual science stands to Roman Catholic theology.

Spiritual Science was verily never meant to appear in the role of belligerent; spiritual science was only meant to state what it saw to be the truth. Anyone who examines our activities here will have to admit that never, never have I taken an aggressive stance. Of course, one has had constantly to defend oneself against attacks which came from outside, and that is the essential thing. But it is simply a demand of the age that what spiritual science has to give should be stated quite concretely. One has to remember that modern civilization is asleep, and that Rome is awake. That Rome is awake is revealed by the mighty drama unrolled in the definition of the dogma of the Immaculate Conception; in the publication of the Encyclical of 1864, with its Syllabus condemning eighty modern truths; in the declaration of the Infallibility of the Pope; in the naming of Thomas Aquinas as the official philosopher of the Catholic priesthood; and finally in the anti-Modernist Oath for the teaching clergy.

In face of the rising tide of Darwinism, in face of the rising tide of naturalism in the fifties, something was done which, although it can only be understood out of the spiritual demands of the fourth post-Atlantean epoch nevertheless throws down the gauntlet before all this rising materialism. The rest of the world lets it come, or at best counters it with foolish arguments such as those of Eucken. Rome, however, sets up the dogma of the Immaculate Conception, which states clearly: "Naturally, no one can accept the Immaculate Conception and at the same time ascribe to Darwinism; thus we establish the incompatibility of the two things." Not more than a decade later, the whole structure of the modern world conception, void of spirit, is condemned by the Syllabus. The definition of the dogma of the Immaculate Conception was already a departure from all the earlier traditional development of the Catholic Church. In what then in former times consisted definition by an Ecumenical Council? Within the Catholic Church a fundamental condition for the definition of any dogma — I am simply relating, not criticizing — was that the Fathers gathered together in the Council in which the dogma was to be defined should be illumined by the Holy Spirit; so that in reality the originator of the dogma is the Holy Spirit. It is really a question of recognizing whether the Holy Ghost is really the inspirer of the dogma to be defined. How does one know, how did they know that? Because what was about to be defined as a dogma by an Ecumenical Council was already the opinion of the whole Catholic Church. Now that was not the case with the doctrine of the Immaculate Conception; consequently, one of the fundamental principles of the Catholic Church was broken, the principle which required that a doctrine shall only be made into a dogma if the faithful have previously signified an inclination towards it. Of course, as regards these modern definitions of dogma, one was already living in the events of the fifth post-Atlantean epoch; and it was no longer so easy as in the Middle Ages so to prepare the faithful that a common opinion prevailed among them which could then be defined. But you see, the ground had been well prepared — preparations had really been going on all through the last three or four centuries for these latest revelations; that is to say, these last revelations so far. Even then the Roman Catholic Church was already awake; and if you remember when the Jesuit Order was founded, you will easily draw the inference that the foundation of that Order is essentially connected with the fact that some means had to be found to overcome the difficulties of working on the faithful in modern times and generally to take these difficulties into account. One ought to pay attention to the course things have taken. I am only relating, I am not criticizing. 1574 was the year in which the citizens of Lucerne themselves expressed a desire for Jesuitism. Let me repeat that it was Canisius, the immediate disciple of Ignatius Loyola, who founded the Jesuit College in Freiburg in 1580 which later established its colony in Solothurn. I should like too, to say that after the suppression of the Jesuit Order by Clement XIV, the Jesuits had, of course, to disappear from Switzerland, and they then continued their activities only in the countries of Frederick II of Prussia and of Catherine of Russia, to whom the Jesuit Order really owes its continued existence.

But in this extraordinary interregnum between the suppression of the Jesuit Order in 1773 by Clement XIV and its reinstatement by Pius VII in 1814, strange things nevertheless happened. For you see, during this interval, in Sion, for example, the institution which had been conducted by the Jesuits naturally remained; and as a matter of fact for the most part, too, the same teachers remained in it; only up to 1773 these teachers were Jesuits, and from that date onward they were no longer Jesuits, but one spoke of the Fathers of the Faith as teaching in such institutions. Therefore, it is not surprising that after Pius VII had in 1814 withdrawn the decree of Clement XIV, these Jesuit colonies were again reinstated — in Brigue the same year, in Freiberg in 1818, in Schwiez in 1836.

It is not my task to criticize these things, but I want you to know about them, and I should further like to say this. From my explanations you will have seen that from the 21st of July, 1773, when Clement XIV issued the Bull “Dominus ac Redemptor Noster” until Pius VII caused his Bull “Solicitudine omnium Ecclesiarum” to appear, the Jesuit Order was officially suppressed. Now comes something extraordinary. There exist memoirs written by a man who was called Cordara, a Jesuit, one who had gone through all the grades of the Jesuit Order. From his memoirs it is evident that he was not an ignoramus like Count Hoensbruch, whose speeches and writings are unimportant, for, of course, the Jesuits are clever and Hoensbruch is very foolish. It is a question of not being asleep over these things today, but of knowing how to distinguish the important from the unimportant. I should like to mention one point in Cordara’s memoirs, where he remarks that it was strange that the Jesuit Order should have been suppressed by Pope Clement XIV, who had a great liking for the Jesuits and was at the same time an extremely tolerant man and no fool. Thus Cordara gives Pope Clement an excellent character, almost lauds him to the skies, in spite of the fact that he suppressed the Jesuits. Therefore, Cordara naturally asks how it was that they had to be suppressed by this kindly Pope. “One must ask,” says Cordara, “What were the intentions of Divine Wisdom in the suppression of the Jesuits and why it was permitted?” Now, of course, Cordara was a Jesuit, but a man who had even been taught by them to think logically, and therefore, he does not ask abstract questions but very concrete ones. He said, “We have to look for what was blameworthy in the Order,” and he goes on to say, “I find that as regards morality, the Jesuit Order has gone admirably to work; as to unchastity or the like, we are very strict, nobody can deny it. But we are very lenient towards everything of the nature of slander, calumny, and abuse.” Cordara actually says that God probably allowed the suppression of the Jesuit Order by Pope Clement XIV because there had gradually crept into the Order a certain tendency to slander, calumny, and abuse. Now I am not criticizing this, I am only relating facts. I should only like to add that the Jesuit Cordara further says: “One of our chief faults is pride, which causes us to regard all other Orders as of no account and worthless, and all secular clergy as worthless.”

Now, if one puts together everything in these memoirs which is said, not as a reproach to the Jesuit Order but simply as a kind of mea culpa, as an examination of conscience by a Jesuit, one finds in the first place striving for political power; second — pride, arrogance; third — contempt of other Orders and secular priests; fourth — accumulation of wealth. But if one gradually comes to know what it means to maintain dead, withered truths by means of power, one cannot do better than to use such an Order to provide for their maintenance. The Roman Catholic Church in Pius VII well knew what it was doing. It discharged its debt of gratitude to world history, history made by Frederick II, King of Prussia, and by Catherine of Russia, both now dead, when it reinstated the Jesuit Order. And among the first 'foreign' Jesuits to teach here in Switzerland again were many of those who had been protected by Catherine, many who came back from Russia. You can read all this in the relevant historical documents.

You can see, therefore, that Rome was wide awake and made in advance her necessary preparations. Wide awake preparation was made. Now comes the next step, the condemnation of all that mounting tide of science — ripe for condemnation since after four centuries of effort to drive out the spirit, it remained void of spirit and mankind remained asleep. The next step was the Encyclical of 1864 with its Syllabus. If the definition of the dogma of the Immaculate Conception had already been a break with all earlier custom of the Roman Catholic Church, undoubtedly what was promulgated in the doctrine of Infallibility constituted a far greater break. For all the acumen of the practiced logic of the Catholic Church was needed to justify the contention that the Pope is infallible after Pope Clement XIV in 1773 had suppressed the Jesuit Order, and his successor Pope Pius VII in 1814 had reinstated it. A goodly number of such things could be adduced. But the logic which had been so well cultivated was not applied to produce sharply defined concepts. What was needed was a well-formed concept which could justify infallibility. Not what the Pope expresses as his private opinion is regarded as infallible, only what he says 'ex cathedra'. Then it was not necessary to decide whether Clement XIV or Pius VII was infallible, but whether Clement XIV or Pius VII had spoken 'ex cathedra' or privately. Clement XIV must have spoken privately when he suppressed the Jesuit Order, and Pius VII 'ex cathedra' when he reinstated it! But, you see, the trouble is that the Pope never states whether he is speaking 'ex cathedra' or privately. That he has never yet said! One must admit that it is difficult to distinguish in the individual instance whether it is subject to the dogma of infallibility, but the dogma is there, and with it a good blow was struck at what can arise as the elemental culture of the fifth post-Atlantean epoch. It then became necessary to draw the consequences and that was well done by Pope Leo XIII, a man full of insight and of very great intelligence. Pope Leo XIII sought to adopt the philosophy of Thomas Aquinas as it was in the fourth post-Atlantean epoch. The Church needed that philosophy which is so great but great for the last culture epoch, for, of course, objectively everything in the way of philosophy which has subsequently arisen is small compared to what blossomed as Philosophy in Scholasticism. But what is small is still a beginning, whereas what was in Scholasticism was an end, a climax.

Now we must remember that mankind is nevertheless trying to progress and therefore it happened that, both in the sphere of natural-scientific research and in historical research, strange vagaries cropped up among the Catholic clergy. Very well then, it now became necessary to adopt strong measures in support of the Catholic doctrine derived from St. Augustine. Hence the Oath against Modernism.

Now of course, my dear friends, nothing can be said against all that, if it is pursued by any community out of a free impulse, but when in 1867 the Jesuits were again allowed into Munich, a Jesuit priest in his first sermon then said that the Rules of the Order forbade Jesuits to meddle in politics, that a Jesuit never has taken any part in politics; then it appears to me that modern men are not likely to believe that. And it soon becomes otherwise. Up to that time it had not in fact been possible to find a really adequate measure.

My dear friends, what I am really trying to bring home to you is that all those who seriously want knowledge, progress and the good of humanity will have to recognize the threefold nature of the social organism. For how little political measures avail against the Roman Catholic Church has shown itself in the course of the German 'Kultur' campaign. But what I am primarily trying to bring home to you is how slow people are to see what, as the necessary consequence of spiritual-scientific endeavor, must come into the world as the impulse for the threefold order of society. That is what we need, a wide awake understanding for the phenomena of the time.

Now, my dear friends, I have plunged into a theme into which I would certainly not have entered had it not been for recent events here, of which we shall see further developments. You know that on Saturday I am to give a public lecture on "The Truth about Anthroposophy and its Defense against Untruth." But in any case I must contrive next Sunday to continue the comments which I cannot complete today. So next Sunday at half-past seven we will meet here once more, although we have to start on a journey on Monday. In these troubled times one cannot do otherwise, and so on Saturday, despite the burning of our posters, the public lecture also will take place here."

But Steiner is pure TAVISTOCK, pure NWO, pure VATICAN,
pure BEAST POWER.

I had no end of practicing satanic witches (lots of around here, quite open about it) trying to talk me into sending my kids to a Steiner School, thank God I didn't, they're probably the only non-religiously raised people under 30 who haven't fallen for the NWO/NAM "Greenie" lies.

The Best Kept Secret in America

The Delanos and other ruling families of the World Order trace their lineage directly back to William of Orange and the regime which granted the charter of the Bank of England.

[Editor's Note: No one deserves more credit than Dr. John Coleman for bringing to light the history and true purpose of the City of London's Tavistock Institute and its many subdivisional institutions and organizations which was exposed in stunning detail in his 1992 book, Conspirators' Hierachy: The Story of The Cimmittee of 300. Dr Coleman has rightly complained that many NWO expose writers who have followed in his wake, have used his original research without crediting him as the originating source and in fairness to him, it should be observed that the information presented below is a reflection of his pioneering investigations into Tavistock.

The article below was sent to John Quinn by Dr. Byron Weeks. The insidious propaganda and public opinion manipulations (including mind control agendas) orchestrated by London's Tavistock Institute is covered at length in the books of David Icke and Dr John Coleman, but this recent article adds fresh insights and historical perspective. Preface from John Quinn (NewsHawk)

This forwarded article was received from Byron Weeks; who in our opinion really has a good firm handle on exactly WHAT is up on many levels with the extraordinarily extensive "control trips" currently being directed against the peoples of the world by elements of the global shadow government.

Weeks, whom I quoted at length in the book PHOENIX UNDEAD, has sent us this compelling look at a globally-active British institute which has had it's hands in just about every social and political/governmental movement of note throughout much of the world for the past 50 years.

For example, ever wonder who and what is "behind", let's say, the CIA? Well, they don't swear allegiance to America, that's for certain. Try the British royal family.

This report is the real stuff--solidly researched and meticulously documented; so for lots more truly concept-bending data, read on.

TAVISTOCK - THE BEST KEPT SECRET IN AMERICA

TAVISTOCK INSTITUTE
30 Tabernacle Street, London EC2A 4DD.--

Formed in 1947, the Tavistock Institute is an independent not-for-profit organization which seeks to combine research in the social sciences with professional practice. Problems of institution-building and organizational design and change are being tackled in all sectors - government, industry and commerce, health and welfare, education, etc. - nationally and internationally, and clients range from multinationals to small community groups. A growth area has been the use of a developmental approach to evaluation of new and experimental programs, particularly in health, education and community development. This has also produced new training events alongside the regular program of group relations conferences. The Institute owns and edits the monthly journal Human Relations (published by Plenum Press) which is now in its 48th year, and has recently launched (in conjunction with Sage Publications) a new journal Evaluation.

Three elements combine to make the Institute unusual, if not unique: it has the independence of being entirely self-financing, with no subsidies from the government or other sources; the action research orientation places it between, but not in, the worlds of academia and consultancy; and its range of disciplines include anthropology, economics, organizational behavior, political science, psychoanalysis, psychology and sociology.

The ideology of American foundations was created by the Tavistock Institute of Human Relations in London. In 1921, the Duke of Bedford, Marquess of Tavistock, the 11th Duke, gave a building to the Institute to study the effect of shellshock on British soldiers who survived World War I. Its purpose was to establish the "breaking point" of men under stress, under the direction of the British Army Bureau of Psychological Warfare, commanded by Sir John Rawlings-Reese.

Tavistock Institute is headquartered in London. Its prophet, Sigmund Freud, settled in Maresfield Gardens when he moved to England. He was given a mansion by Princess Bonaparte. Tavistock's pioneer work in behavioral science along Freudian lines of "controlling" humans established it as the world center of foundation ideology. Its network now extends from the University of Sussex to the U.S. through the Stanford Research Institute, Esalen, MIT, <<http://watch.pair.com/Hudson.html>>Hudson Institute, <<http://watch.pair.com/heritage.html>>Heritage Foundation, Center of Strategic and International Studies at Georgetown, where State Dept. personal are trained, US Air Force Intelligence, and the Rand and Mitre corporations. The personnel of the corporations are required to undergo indoctrination at one or more of these Tavistock controlled institutions. A network of secret groups, the Mont Pelerin Society, Trilateral Commission, Ditchley Foundation, and the Club of Rome is conduit for instructions to the Tavistock network.

[Editor, Tim Aho's note: See Watch Unto Prayer report on The Heritage Foundation founded by Paul Weyrich with funding from Joseph Coors, who also founded and financed respectively the Moral Majority and Council for National Policy.]

Tavistock Institute developed the mass brain-washing techniques which were first used experimentally on American prisoners of war in Korea. Its experiments in crowd control methods have been widely used on the American public, a surreptitious but nevertheless outrageous assault on human freedom by modifying individual behavior through topical psychology. A German refugee, Kurt Lewin, became director of Tavistock in 1932. He came to the U.S. in 1933 as a "refugee", the first of many infiltrators, and set up the Harvard Psychology Clinic, which originated the propaganda campaign to turn the American public against Germany and involve us in World War II.

In 1938, Roosevelt executed a secret agreement with Churchill which in effect ceded U.S. sovereignty to England, because it agreed to let Special Operations Executive control U.S. policies. To implement this agreement, Roosevelt sent General Donovan to London for indoctrination before setting up OSS (now the CIA) under the aegis of SOE-SIS. The entire OSS program, as well as the CIA has always worked on guidelines set up by the Tavistock Institute.

[Editor, Tim Aho: See Watch Unto Prayer report on <<http://watch.pair.com/jbs-cnp.html>>The John Birch Society & Council for National Policy for information regarding CIA operations on the Christian Right.]

Tavistock Institute originated the mass civilian bombing raids carried out by Roosevelt and Churchill purely as a clinical experiment in mass terror, keeping records of the results as they watched the "guinea pigs" reacting under "controlled laboratory conditions". All Tavistock and American foundation techniques have a single goal---to break down the psychological strength of the individual and render him helpless to oppose the dictators of the World Order. Any technique which helps to break down the family unit, and family inculcated principles of religion, honor, patriotism and sexual behavior, is used by the Tavistock scientists as weapons of crowd control.

The methods of Freudian psychotherapy induce permanent mental illness in those who undergo this treatment by destabilizing their character. The victim is then advised to "establish new rituals of personal interaction", that is, to indulge in brief sexual encounters which actually set the participants adrift with no stable personal relationships in their lives, destroying their ability to establish or maintain a family. Tavistock Institute has developed such power in the U.S. that no one achieves prominence in any field unless he has been trained in behavioral science at Tavistock or one of its subsidiaries.

Henry Kissinger, whose meteoric rise to power is otherwise inexplicable, was a German refugee and student of Sir John Rawlings-Reese at SHAEF. Dr. Peter Bourne, a Tavistock Institute psychologist, picked Jimmy Carter for President of the U. S. solely because Carter had undergone an intensive brainwashing program administered by Admiral Hyman Rickover at Annapolis. The "experiment" in compulsory racial integration in the U.S. was organized by Ronald Lippert, of the OSS and the American Jewish Congress, and director of child training at the Commission on Community Relations. The program was designed to break down the individual's sense of personal knowledge in his identity, his racial heritage. Through the Stanford Research Institute, Tavistock controls the National Education Association. The Institute of Social Research at the National Training Lab brain washes the leading executives of business and government.

Such is the power of Tavistock that our entire space program was scrapped for nine years so that the Soviets could catch up. The hiatus was demanded in an article written by Dr. Anatol Rapoport, and was promptly granted by the government, to the complete mystification of everyone connected with NASA. Another prominent Tavistock operation is the Wharton School of Finance, at the University of Pennsylvania. A single common denominator identifies the common Tavistock strategy---the use of drugs. The infamous MK Ultra program of the CIA, in which unsuspecting CIA officials were given LSD, and their reaction studied like "guinea pigs", resulted in several deaths.

The U.S. Government had to pay millions in damages to the families of the victims, but the culprits were never indicted. The program originated when Sandoz AG, a Swiss drug firm, owned by S.G. Warburg Co. of London, developed Lysergic Acid [LSD]. Roosevelt's advisor, James Paul Warburg, son of Paul Warburg who wrote the Federal Reserve Act, and nephew of Max Warburg who had financed Hitler, set up the <<http://watch.pair.com/FreedomHouse.html#ips>>Institute for Policy Studies to promote the drug. The result was the LSD "counter-culture" of the 1960s, the "student revolution", which was financed by $25 million from the CIA.

One part of MK Ultra was the Human Ecology Fund; the CIA also paid Dr. Herbert Kelman of Harvard to carry out further experiments on mind control. In the 1950s, the CIA financed extensive LSD experiments in Canada. Dr. D. Ewen Cameron, president of the Canadian Psychological Association, and director of Royal Victorian Hospital, Montreal, received large payments from the CIA to give 53 patients large doses of LSD and record their reactions; the patients were drugged into weeks of sleep and then given electric shock treatments.

One victim, the wife of a member of the Canadian Parliament, is now suing the U.S. companies who provided the drug for the CIA. All the records of the CIA's drug testing program were ordered destroyed by the head of MK Ultra. Because all efforts of the Tavistock Institute are directed toward producing cyclical collapse, the effect of the CIA programs are tragically apparent. R. Emmett Tyrell Jr., writing in the Washington Post August 20, 1984, cites the "squalid consequences of the 60s radicals in SDS" as resulting in "the growing rate of illegitimacy, petty lawlessness, drug addiction, welfare, VD, and mental illness".

This is the legacy of the Warburgs and the CIA. Their principal agency, the Institute for Policy Studies, was funded by James Paul Warburg; its co-founder was Marcus Raskin, protege of McGeorge Bundy, president of the Ford Foundation. Bundy had Raskin appointed to the post of President Kennedy's personal representative on the National Security Council, and in 1963 funded Students for Democratic Society, through which the CIA operated the drug culture.

Today the Tavistock Institute operates a $6 Billion a year network of Foundations in the U.S., all of it funded by U.S. taxpayers' money. Ten major institutions are under its direct control, with 400 subsidiaries, and 3000 other study groups and think tanks which originate many types of programs to increase the control of the World Order over the American people. The Stanford Research Institute, adjoining the Hoover Institution, is a $150 million a year operation with 3300 employees. It carries on program surveillance for Bechtel, Kaiser, and 400 other companies, and extensive intelligence operations for the CIA. It is the largest institution on the West Coast promoting mind control and the behavioral sciences.

One of the key agencies as a conduit for secret instructions from Tavistock is the Ditchley Foundation, founded in 1957. The American branch of the Ditchley Foundation is run by Cyrus Vance, former Secretary of State, and director of the Rockefeller Foundation, and Winston Lord, president of the Council on Foreign Relations.

[Editor, Tim Aho's note: The wife of Winston Lord (CFR, Bilderberg, Skull & Bones), Bette Bao Lord (CFR, Bilderberg), is Chairman of the Board of Freedom House whose manipulation of the Christian Right via the Religious Persecution issue is documented in our report <<http://watch.pair.com/FreedomHouse.html>>Freedom House: A CFR Front.]

One of the principal but little known operations of the Rockefeller Foundation has been its techniques for controlling world agriculture. Its director, Kenneth Wernimont, set up Rockefeller controlled agricultural programs throughout Mexico and Latin America. The independent farmer is a great threat to the World Order, because he produces for himself, and because his produce can be converted into capital, which gives him independence. In Soviet Russia, the Bolsheviks believed they had attained total control over the people; they were dismayed to find their plans threatened by the stubborn independence of the small farmers, the Kulaks.

Stalin ordered the OGPU to seize all food and animals of the Kulaks, and to starve them out. The Chicago American, February 25, 1935 carried a front page headline, SIX MILLION PERISH IN SOVIET FAMINE; Peasants' Crops Seized, They and their Animals Starve. To draw attention from this atrocity, it was later alleged that the Germans, not the Soviets, had killed six million people, the number taken from the Chicago American headline by a Chicago publicist.

The Communist Party, the Party of the Peasants and Workers, exterminated the peasants and enslaved the workers. Many totalitarian regimes have found the small farmer to be their biggest stumbling block. The French Reign of Terror was directed, not against the aristocrats, many of whom were sympathetic to it, but against the small farmers who refused to turn over their grain to the revolutionary tribunals in exchange for the worthless assignats. In the United States, the foundations are presently engaged in the same type of war of extermination against the American farmer.

The traditional formula of land plus labor for the farmer has been altered due to the farmer's need for purchasing power, to buy industrial goods needed in his farming operations. Because of this need for capital, the farmer is especially vulnerable to the World Order's manipulation of interest rates, which is bankrupting him. Just as in the Soviet Union, in the early 1930s, when Stalin ordered the Kulaks to give up their small plots of land to live and work on the collective farms, the American small farmer faces the same type of extermination, being forced to give up his small plot of land to become a hired hand for the big agricultural trusts. The Brookings Institution and other foundations originated the monetary programs implemented by the Federal Reserve System to destroy the American farmer, a replay of the Soviet tragedy in Russia, with one proviso that the farmer will be allowed to survive if he becomes a slave worker of the giant trusts.

Once the citizen becomes aware of the true role of the foundations, he can understand the high interest rates, high taxes, the destruction of the family, the degradation of the churches into forums for revolution, the subversion of the universities into CIA cesspools of drug addiction, and the halls of government into sewers of international espionage and intrigue. The American citizen can now understand why every agent of the federal government is against him; the alphabet agencies, the FBI, IRS, CIA and BATF must make war on the citizen in order to carry out the programs of the foundations.

The foundations are in direct violation of their charters, which commit them to do "charitable" work, because they make no grants which are not part of a political goal. The charge has been made, and never denied, that the Heritage-AEI network has at least two KGB moles on its staff. The employment of professional intelligence operatives as "charitable" workers, as was done in the Red Cross Mission to Russia in 1917, exposes the sinister political economic and social goals which the World Order requires the foundations to achieve through their "bequests".

Not only is this tax fraud, because the foundations are granted tax exemption solely to do charitable work, but it is criminal syndicalism, conspiracy to commit offenses against the United States of America, Constitutional Law 213, Corpus Juris Secundum 16. For the first time, the close interlocking of the foundation "syndicate" has been revealed by the names of its principle incorporators---Daniel Coit Gilman, who incorporated the Peabody Fund and the John Slater Fund, and became an incorporator of the General Education Board (now the Rockefeller Foundation); Gilman, who also incorporated the Russell Trust in 1856, later became an incorporator of the Carnegie Institution with Andrew Dickson White (Russell Trust) and Frederic A. Delano. Delano also was an original incorporator of the Brookings Institution and the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Daniel Coit Gilman incorporated the Russell Sage Foundation with Cleveland H. Dodge of the National City Bank. These foundations incorporators have been closely linked with the Federal Reserve System, the War Industries Board of World War I, the OSS of World War II and the CIA. They have also been closely linked with the American International Corporation, which was formed to instigate the Bolshevik Revolution in Russia. Delano, an uncle of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, was on the original Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System in 1914. His brother-in-law founded the influential Washington law firm of Covington and Burling. The Delanos and other ruling families of the World Order trace their lineage directly back to William of Orange and the regime which granted the charter of the Bank of England.

Tavistock Institutions In The United States

Flow Laboratories Gets contracts from the National Institutes of Health.

Merle Thomas Corporation Gets contracts from the U.S. Navy, analyzes data from satellites.

Walden Research Does work in the field of pollution control.

Planning Research Corporation, Arthur D. Little, G.E. "TEMPO", Operations Research Inc. Part of approximately 350 firms who conduct research and conduct surveys, make recommendations to government. They are part of what President Eisenhower called "a possible danger to public policy that could itself become captive of a scientific-technological elite."

Brookings Institution Dedicates its work to what it calls a "national agenda." Wrote President Hoover's program, President Roosevelt's "New Deal", the Kennedy Administration's "New Frontiers" program (deviation from it may have cost John F. Kennedy his life), and President Johnson's "Great Society." Brookings has been telling the United States Government how to conduct its affairs for the past 70 years and is still doing so.

Hudson Institute This institution has done more to shape the way Americans react to political and social events, think, vote and generally conduct themselves than perhaps any except the BIG FIVE. Hudson specializes in defense policy research and relations with the USSR. Most of its military work is classified as SECRET. (One idea during the Vietnam War was to build a moat around Saigon.) Hudson may be properly classified as one of the Committee of 300's BRAINWASHING establishments. One of its largest clients is the U.S. Department of Defense which includes matters of civil defense, national security, military policy and arms control.

[Editor, Tim Aho: This is the same <<http://watch.pair.com/Hudson.html>>Hudson Institute which gave us GOALS 2000 and authored the Freedom From Religious Persecution Act, which became the International Religious Freedom Act of 1998. This law required the creation of a federal commission to monitor religion chaired by a presidentially-appointed Ambassador-at-Large on International Religious Freedom under the mandates of the United Nations' covenants and authority of the International Criminal Court.]

National Training Laboratories One of the key institutions established for this purpose in the United States was the National Training Laboratories (NTL). Founded in 1947 by members of the Tavistock network in the United States and located originally on an estate in Bethel, Maine, NTL had as its explicit purpose the brainwashing of leaders of the government, educational institutions, and corporate bureaucracies in the Tavistock method, and then using these "leaders" to either themselves run Tavistock group sessions in their organizations or to hire other similarly trained group leaders to do the job. The "nuts and bolts" of the NTL operation revolves around the particular form of Tavistock degenerate psychology known as "group dynamics," developed by German Tavistock operative Kurt Lewin, who emigrated to the United States in the 1930s and whose students founded NTL.

In a Lewinite brainwashing group, a number of individuals from varying backgrounds and personalities, are manipulated by a "group leader" to form a "consensus" of opinion, achieving a new "group identity." The key to the process is the creation of a controlled environment, in which stress is introduced (sometimes called dissonance) to crack an individual's belief structure. Using the peer pressure of other group members, the individual is "cracked," and a new personality emerges with new values. The degrading experience causes the person to deny that any change has taken place. In that way, an individual is brainwashed without the victim knowing what has taken place.

This method is the same, with some minor modification, used in all so-called "sensitivity groups" or "T-groups," or in the more extreme rock-drug-sex counterculture form, "touchy-feely groups," such as the kind popularized from the 1960s onward by the Esalen Institute, which was set up with the help of NTL.

From the mid-1950s onward, NTL put the majority of the nation's corporate leaderships through such brainwashing programs, while running similar programs for the State Department, the Navy, the Department of Education, and other sections of the federal bureaucracy. There is no firm estimate of the number of Americans who have been put through this process in last 40 years at either NTL, or as it is now known the NTL Institute for Applied Behavioral Sciences, which is based in Rosslyn, Virginia, or its West Coast base of operations, the Western Training Laboratories in Group Development, or in various satellite institutions. The most reliable estimate is in the several millions.

One of the groups that went through the NTL mill in the 1950s was the leadership of the National Education Association, the largest organization of teachers in the United States. Thus, the NEA's outlook has been "shaped" by Tavistock, through the NTL. In 1964, the NTL Institute became a direct part of the NEA, with the NTL setting up "group sessions" for all its affiliates. With funding from the Department of Education, the NTL Institute drafted the programs for the training of the nation's primary and secondary school teachers, and has a hand as well in developing the content of educational "reforms," including OBE.

Also known as the International Institute for Applied Behavioral Sciences. This institute is a brainwashing center in artificial stress training whereby participants suddenly find themselves immersed in defending themselves against vicious accusations. NTL takes in the National Education Association, the largest teacher group in the United States. While officially decrying "racism", it is interesting to note that NTL, working with NEA, produced a paper proposing education vouchers which would separate the hard-to-teach children from the brighter ones, and funding would be allocated according to the number of difficult children who would be separated from those who progressed at a normal rate. The proposal was not taken up.

University of Pennsylvania, Wharton School of Finance & Commerce Founded by Eric Trist One of the "brain trusts" of Tavistock, Wharton has become one of the more important Tavistock in so far as "Behavioral Research" is concerned. Wharton attracts clients such as the U.S. Department of Labor--which teaches how to produce "cooked" statistics at the Wharton Econometric Forecasting Associates Incorporated. This method was very much in demand as we came to the close of 1991 with millions more out of work than was reflected in USDL statistics. Wharton's ECONOMETRIC MODELING is used by every major Committee of 300 company in the United States, Western Europe, the International Monetary Fund, the United Nations, and the World Bank. Institute for Social Research Among its clients are The Ford Foundation, U.S. Department of Defense, U.S. Postal Service and the U.S. Department of Justice. Among its studies are "The Human Meaning Of Social Change", "Youth in Transition" and "How Americans View Their Mental Health".

Institute For The Future This is not a typical Tavistock institution in that it is funded by the Ford Foundation, yet it draws its long-range forecasting from the mother of all think tanks. Institute for the Future projects what it believes to be changes that will be taking place in time frames of fifty years. So called "DELPHI PANELS" decide what is normal and what is not, and prepare position papers to "steer" government in the right direction to head off such groups as "people creating civil disorder." (This could be patriotic groups demanding abolition of graduated taxes, or demanding that their right to bear arms is not infringed.) This institute recommends action such as liberalizing abortion laws, drug usage and that cars entering an urban area pay tolls, teaching birth control in public schools, requiring registration of firearms, making use of drugs a non-criminal offense, legalizing homosexuality, paying students for scholastic achievements, making zoning controls a preserve of the state, offering bonuses for family planning and last, but most frightening, a Pol Pot Cambodia-style proposal that new communities be established in rural areas, (concentration camp compounds). As can be observed, many of their goals have already been more than fully realized.

INSTITUTE FOR POLICY STUDIES (IPS)

One of the "Big Three", IPS has shaped and reshaped United States policies, foreign and domestic, since it was founded by James P. Warburg and the Rothschild entities in the United States. Its networks in America include the League for Industrial Democracy. Lead players in the League for Industrial Democracy have included Jeane Kirkpatrick, former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, Irwin Suall of the ADL, Eugene Rostow, Arms control negotiator, Lane Kirkland, Labor Leader, and Albert Shanker. IPS was incorporated in 1963 by Marcus Raskin and Richard Barnett, both highly trained Tavistock Institute graduates. The objectives of IPS came from an agenda laid down for it by the Tavistock Institute, one of the most notable being to create the "New Left" as a grass roots movement in the U.S. Its been said that Barnett and Raskin controlled such diverse elements as the Black Panthers, Daniel Ellsberg, National Security Council staff member Halprin, The Weathermen Underground, the Venceramos and the campaign staff of candidate George McGovern. No scheme was too big for IFS and its controllers to take on and manage.

Through its many powerful lobbying groups on Capitol Hill, IPS relentlessly used its "Big Stick" to beat Congress. IPS has a network of lobbyists, all supposedly operating independently but in actual fact acting cohesively, so that Congressmen are pummeled from all sides by seemingly different and varied lobbyists. In this way, IPS was, and is still, able to successfully sway individual Representatives and Senators to vote for "the trend, the way things are going." By using key pointmen on Capitol Hill, IPS was able to break into the very infrastructure of our legislative system and the way it works.

IPS became, and remains to this day, one of the most prestigious "think tanks" controlling foreign policy decisions, which we, the people, foolishly believe are those of our law makers. By sponsoring militant activism at home and with links to revolutionaries abroad, by engineering such victories as "The Pentagon Papers," besieging the corporate structure, bridging the credibility gap between underground movements and acceptable political activism, by penetrating religious organizations and using them to sow discord in America, such as radical racial policies under the guise of religion, using establishment media to spread IPS ideas, and then supporting them, IPS has lived up to the role which it was founded to play.

[Editor, Tim Aho: See Watch Unto Prayer report on <<http://watch.pair.com/FreedomHouse.html>>Freedom House: "Grants (for the IPS) came from the Samuel Rubin Foundation and the Stern Family Fund. Samuel Rubin was himself a member of the elite Comintern of the Communist Party, founded by none other than Lenin himself. Billionaire Armand Hammer assisted Rubin in making the fortunes which helped launch IPS. Philip Stern, an IPS trustee, was the president of Stern Fund. The executive director of the Stern Fund, David R. Hunter, was previously an official of The National Council and the World Council Of Churches. (Dr. James W. Wardner, Unholy Alliances, p.125)]

STANFORD RESEARCH INSTITUTE

Jesse Hobson, the first president of Stanford Research Institute, in a 1952 speech made it clear what lines the institute was to follow. Stanford can be described as one of the "jewels" in Tavistock's Crown in its rule over the United States. Founded in 1946 immediately after the close of WWII, it was presided over by Charles A. Anderson, with emphasis on mind control research and "future sciences." Included under the Stanford umbrella was Charles F. Kettering Foundation which developed the "Changing Images of Man" upon which the Aquarian Conspiracy rests.

Some of Stanford's major clients and contracts were at first centered around the defense establishment but, as Stanford grew, so, did the diversity of its services:

Applications of Behavioral Sciences to Research Management Office of Science and Technology

SRI Business Intelligence Program

U.S. Department of Defense Directorate of Defense Research and Engineering

U.S. Department of Defense Office of Aerospace Research

Among corporations seeking Stanford's services were Wells Fargo Bank, Bechtel Corporation, Hewlett Packard, Bank of America, McDonnell Douglas Corporation, Blyth, Eastman Dillon and TRW Company. One of Stanford's more secret projects was extensive work on chemical and bacteriological warfare (CAB) weapons.

Stanford Research is plugged into at least 200 smaller "think tanks" doing research into every facet of life in America. This is ARPA networking and represents the emergence of probably the most far reaching effort to control the environment of every individual in the country. At present Stanford's computers are linked with 2500 "sister" research consoles which include the CIA, Bell Telephone Laboratories, U.S. Army Intelligence, The Office of Naval Intelligence (ONI), Rand, MIT, Harvard and UCLA. Stanford plays a key role in that it is the "library", cataloging all ARPA documentation.

"Other agencies".....one can use one's imagination here, are allowed to search through SRI's "library" for key words, phrases, look through sources and update their own master files with those of Stanford Research Center. The Pentagon uses SRI's master files extensively, and there is little doubt that other U.S. Government agencies do the same. Pentagon "command and control" problems are worked out by Stanford.

While ostensibly these apply only to weapons and soldiers, there is absolutely no guarantee that the same research could not , and will not be turned to civilian applications. Stanford is known to be willing to do anything for anyone.

[Editor, Tim Aho: See Watch Unto Prayer report <<http://watch.pair.com/dolphin.html>>Lambert Dolphin & the Great Sphinx, which documents the connections of SRI's Lambert Dolphin with the Edgar Cayce Foundation and The Discernment Ministries.]

MASSACHUSETTS INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY (MIT), ALFRED P. SLOAN SCHOOL OF MANAGEMENT

This major institute is not generally recognized as being a part of Tavistock U.S.A. Most people look upon it as being a purely American institution, but that is far from the truth. MIT- Alfred Sloan can be roughly divided into the following groups:

Contemporary Technology Industrial Relations NASA-ERC Computer Research Laboratories Office of Naval Research Group, Psychology Systems Dynamics

Some of MIT's clients are:

American Management Association

Committee for Economic Development
GTE
Institute for Defense Analysis (IDA)
NASA
National Academy of Sciences
National Council of Churches
Sylvania
TRW
U.S. Army
U.S. Department of State
U.S. Navy
U.S. Treasury
Volkswagen Company

RAND RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

Without a doubt, RAND is THE think tank most beholden to Tavistock Institute and certainly the RIIA's most prestigious vehicle for control of United States policies at every level. Specific RAND policies that became operative include our ICBM program, prime analyses for U.S. foreign policy making, instigator of space programs, U.S. nuclear policies, corporate analyses, hundreds of projects for the military, the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) in relation to the use of mind altering drugs like peyote, LSD (the covert MK-ULTRA operation which lasted for 20 years).

[Editor, Tim Aho's note: The founder of the Rand Corporation, Herman Kahn, also founded the Hudson Institute in 1961. In Educating for the New World Order, B.K. Eakman tells of a training manual for "change agents" developed for the U.S. government by Rand Corporation: ". . . a how-to manual with a 1971 U.S. Office of Education contract number on it entitled 'Training for Change Agents'; seven volumes of 'change agent studies' commissioned by the U.S. Office of Education to the Rand Corporation in 1973-74; scores of other papers submitted by behaviorist researchers who had obtained grants from the U.S. Office of Education for the purpose of exploring ways to 'freeze' and 'unfreeze' values, 'to implement change,' and to turn potentially hostile groups and committees into acquiescent, rubber-stamp bodies by means of such strategies as the 'Delphi Technique.'" (p. 118)]

Some of RAND's clients include:

American Telephone and Telegraph Company (AT&T)
Chase Manhattan Bank
International Business Machines (IBM)
National Science Foundation
Republican Party
TRW
U.S. Air Force
U.S. Department of Health
U.S. Department of Energy

There are literally THOUSANDS of highly important companies, government institutions and organizations that make use of RANDS's services. To list them all would be impossible. Among RAND's specialities is a study group that predicts the timing and the direction of a thermonuclear war, plus working out the many scenarios based upon its findings. RAND was once accused of being commissioned by the USSR to work out terms of surrender of the United States Government, an accusation that went all the way to the United States Senate, where it was taken up by Senator Symington and subsequently fell victim to scorn poured out by the establishment press. BRAINWASHING remains the primary function of RAND.

These institutions are among those that fund The UNIFORM LAW FOUNDATION, whose function is to ensure that the Uniform Commercial Code remains the instrument for conducting business in the United States.

I once thought the way you also true-lilly. The modern Theosophical movement has been infiltrated by the Jesuits.

Steiner moved away from the Theosophical movement and founded the Anthroposophical movement. He caught (I believe it was A Bailey, or Besant) practicing black magic; became enraged and left. This new movement he started was to serve the continuation of spiritual Christianity under Archangel Michael's guidance. The Nazis really hated Steiner and they burned his Goethean building. Steiner had exposed Hitler as a member of Ottoman Freemasonry and was teaching in public about the true hidden reasons for both world wars. He taught that it was nothing less than an attack on spiritual Christianity.

I have been to certain Steiner schools where I turned around and walked the other way because they are like everything else today - all but rotten. However, the teachings of Rudolf Steiner were not in any way connected to Luciferian worship, or anything else like that.

Much of the fear is being pushed by the Jesuits. Steiner was offered the highest Freemasonic degrees but he turned down their offer. Steiner taught that present Freemasonry today is truly the grave-digger of all culture and of all society. he says they long ago outlived their spiritual task.

If Jesuits, Masons, Orange Men and Women, who have run this world into the hell we all suffer, read, study and commit, "their handbook", The Bible, to memory, why do the Ciggies and Iros of this forum, keep telling all the young seekers, not to bother opening it's pages?

How many world leaders and business moguls, have to quite, run, be dumped and charged (as this Christian keeps warning), before folk accept that students of The Bible make the accurate 'predictions'?

The revealing words added to...

The Masonic Altar Bible

"You're so ignorant, intolerant and hateful, Mr. Marrs. Contrary to what you say, the Lodge is a Christian organization. There is a Holy Bible found on the altar of every Masonic Lodge in America!"

This is what a man, identifying himself as a 32nd degree Mason, recently wrote me. The angry fellow insisted he is a Christian and that Freemasonry is also Christian.

"But, unlike you," he jibed, "I'm a believer in the true God and the true Jesus Christ—the God who answers to many names such as Allah, Krishna, Osiris, and Zoroaster, and the Christ who loves and accepts Buddhists, Hindus, Moslems, and people of every faith and creed."

This Masonic Shriner fez, or cap, demonstrates the heretical doctrines of the Lodge. The Shriners are made up of high-level Masons who are initiated and take an oath at the altar of Allah and Mohammed. Diabolically, many Shriners insist they are also "Christians." For a complete exposé of the Shriners, please order Texe Marrs' 60 minute investigative audiotape, The Shriners—Allah's Islamic Cult Inside the Masonic Lodge.

Another Jesus and Another Gospel

As you can see, the Jesus this man describes is not at all the Jesus of the Scriptures. Instead, this is "another Jesus" (II Corinthians 11:4) and "another gospel" (Galatians 1:8)—an "accursed gospel," Paul called it.

Nor do Masons worship the same God. They call their deity the "Great Architect of the Universe," but they call out and pray to him under many names.

The gospel of Freemasonry is described very well in the commentary of the very Bible that, as our letter-writer boasted, is found on the altar of every Masonic Lodge in America. He told the truth. The lodges do display the Bible on their altar—their literature even describes the Bible as part of the "furniture" of the Lodge.

But Now...The Whole Story

But now, let me tell you the whole story. You see, the Masonic Altar Bible contains added pages of commentary which explain the Lodge's formal doctrine regarding the Holy Scriptures. Here, from the words printed in the Masons' own Altar Bible (page 5), we discover the accursed ecumenical teachings of Masons and the Lodge:

"For Masonry knows, what so many forget, that religions are many, but Religion is one...Therefore, it invites to its altar men of all faiths, knowing that, if they use different names for 'the Nameless One of a hundred names,' they are yet praying to the one god and Father of all; knowing, also that while they read different volumes, they are in fact reading the same vast Book of the Faith of Man as revealed in the struggle and sorrow of the race in its quest of God. So that, great and noble as the Bible is, Masonry sees it as a symbol of that (which, what? The Satanic bible?) eternal Book of the Will of God.

Much more, the grand old Bible is to us a symbol—that is, a part taken for the whole. It is a sovereign symbol of the Book of Faith, the Will of God as man has learned—that perpetual revelation of himself which God is making mankind in every land and every age.

Thus, by the very honor which Masonry pays to the Bible, it teaches us to revere every book of faith in which men find help for today and hope for the morrow, joining hands with the man of Islam as he takes oath on the Koran, and with the Hindu as he makes covenant with God upon that book he loves best." (Ge, just what the "Gate Keepers here "Preach"!)

All Religions, All Faiths, All Gods, All Scriptures Equal

So, we find that the added words in the commentary of the Masonic Altar Bible diminish Christianity by claiming that all religions, all faiths, all gods, are of the same merit. "Religion is one," the leaders of the Lodge conclude.

As for the Christian Bible, it's no more to be honored and revered by the Lodge than the Islamic Koran or the Hindu Vedas, or, for that matter, the ancient Greek writings of Homer. It's up to the individual Mason to choose the "scriptures" and the "God" he "loves best." (Satan?)

The Masonic doctrine is wonderfully ecumenical, open, broad, and tolerant. It is also horrendously demented and demonic! That's my unwavering belief, and that's exactly why our 32nd degree friend brands Texe Marrs "ignorant, intolerant, and hateful." I suspect that most readers of this Power of Prophecy newsletter would also be branded as such by the politically correct Masonic fraternity.

Jesus: A Name Above Every Name

The next time you encounter a Mason claiming a belief in "Christianity," or "Jesus," ask him about these words of commentary printed on page 5 of his Masonic Altar Bible. Then ask how this doctrine can be squared with these mighty words, contained in the actual text; that is, the Scriptures, of the very same Bible which sits on the Masonic Altar:

Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name:

That at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth;

And that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father.

—Phillipians 2:9-11

See, the sad thing is, "Brother" deliberately mis-lead "Brothers", with countless diversions (levels of degrees are just that, all but the 'top', are too low level to know what the Elite of Rome, the Royal Black Institution, and High Orange Men know), but to all who understand, The Bible of our Creator, and it's clear Good News, is the key.

Lilly , is everything in bible is true ?

Is a bible true historical document and is written by Angel inspired man ?

Honestly

Simply, Yes. Correction, "Spirit" inspired.

It is a perfect "contract" between God and man. ALL mankind, over all time, and as we all know, even High Judges have trouble sifting through law, with all the forgotten precedents, caveats and liens etc. to remember and sort, in an effort to serve Justice, so of course you need help to understand The Most Complex Contract of all time, and that "Helper" is The Holy Spirit.

Some argue that God said He blind most, but forget, "Line upon line, here a little there a little". So of those 'little lines' also remind us to KEEP knocking and KEEP asking with a whole heart, and those will be answered.

It's part of the sifting and sorting of those who want the rewards of 'Godliness' from a foundation of selfish pride, rather than humble repentance.

1 SAMUEL, 11

0 And the Spirit of the Lord will come upon thee, and thou shalt prophesy with Isaac, and shalt be counted unto another man.

1 And let it be when these signs are come unto thee, that thou do acknowledge them for God's work upon thee.

2 And thou shalt go down before me to Gilgal, and behold, I will come down unto thee, by offer burnt offerings, and to sacrifice portions of peace offerings, seven days shall thou tarry, till I come to thee, and show thee what thou shalt do.

3 And it was so, that when he had heard his voice, to go from Ramath, God gave him another heart: and all these signs came to pass unto him.

4 And when there came habiter to the hill, behold, a company of prophets and boys and the Spirit of God came upon him, and the revelation came upon him.

5 And it came to pass, when all that knew him had prophesied unto him, he held his peace: and the revelation came upon him, and he said unto them, What if I say unto you, I am the son of Kish? Ye shall also answer me the question?

6 And one of the same place answered and said, But who is thy father? Therefore, it became a proverb, Is not this man the son of Kish?

7 And when he had made an end of prophesying, he came to the high place.

8 And Saul's uncle said unto him, and his servants, Whither wentest thou? And he said, To seek the sheep: and when we saw that they were lost, where we came to seek them.

9 And Saul's uncle said, Tell me, I pray thee, what Samuel said unto thee. And Saul said unto his uncle, He told us nothing: but the oxen were found. But of the matter of the kingdom, wherewith Samuel spake, he told us not.

10 And Samuel called the people together, unto the altar in Mizpeh.

11 And Saul said unto the children of Israel, Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, I have set you here, out of Egypt, and delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians, and out of the hand of all kingdoms, and of them that oppressed you.

12 And ye have said, We will not have God for our King: yet ye have said unto me, Nay, but set a king over us, that we may be like unto the people that the Lord thy God hath chosen, and be not a kingdom unto thee.

13 And when Samuel had caused all the tribes of Israel to come near, the tribe of Benjamin was taken.

The central piece of furniture in any well governed Masonic Lodge is the Holy Bible or Volume of Sacred Law (VSL). Placed upon the Altar in the center of the Lodge room it pours forth upon the East, West, and South its refulgent rays of Divine Truth. The Bible is used among Freemasons as a symbol of the will of God, however it may be expressed. It contains plain teaching for every rank of soul and state in life, which so far as they honestly and implicitly obey, they will be happy and innocent to the utmost powers of their nature, and capable of victory over all adversities, whether of temptation or pain. So much is its importance in Masonic daily life that it is also called one of the "Three Great Lights of Freemasonry." In a Lodge consisting entirely of Jews, the Old Testament alone may be placed upon the Altar, and Turkish Freemasons make use of the Koran. Whether it be the gospels to the Christians, the Pentateuch to the Israelite, the Koran to the Muslem, or the Vedas to the Brahman, it everywhere Masonically conveys the same idea-- that of the symbolism of the Divine Will revealed to man.

In the ancient world, literary works were written on rolls or scrolls. The book form, called Codex, did not emerge until around the second century A.D. The Old Testament books were written on skins. The New Testament books were originally written on papyrus. Papyrus was made from the papyrus reed called a bulrush.

Bilbus or bulbos is the Greek word from which our word Bible comes. Biblos originally was the word for the papyrus bulrush itself; it then became the word for the papyrus writing material made from that bulrush; it then went on to mean a roll of papyrus; and finally it came to mean a book.

The work biblia was then coined to describe little books, and since the Scriptures are essentially that—a collection of little books—the word Bible was used to describe them.

This wonderful Masonic Bible pictured above was made by The Masonic History Company and has the complete Old and New Testaments. There are 39 books in the Old Testament and 27 in the New Testament, a total of 66 books. Included are a Preface by H. L. Haywood, FREEMASONRY AND THE BIBLE, A Bible Readers' Manual, A Sketch of the early Churches, the Ancient Versions of the Old Testament, New Testament Apocrypha, Hebrew Festivals, and has a full index and concordance. Of course what makes this Bible so special is its intricately hand-carved abalone shell cover. (not the truth of our Creators Word, no "They" worship the work of mans hands!) This Bible has approximately 1,100 pages and measures 8 inches tall by 5 1/2 inches wide and is 2 1/4 inches deep.

A special "Thank You" to Bill Johnson (pictured left of parents above) of Beaumont, Texas for donating this beautiful Bible to our museum! It belonged to his father Bro. Thomas Henry Johnson, a member of South Park Lodge No. 1320 in Beaumont, Texas. Bill's Mothers's half sister was married to John Bell Lewis, the grandson of Betty Washington - George Washington's sister.

Now remember, these people are NOT Christian, but like ROME, created to make the whole world sick to death of everything LYINGLY CLAIMED to be 'done in his name', and prepare the world to demand THE BEAST POWER to 'save us'

And they are right in OZ PM John HOWARD'S pocket!

Now among the report on SBS's DATELINE, I can't find on-line anymore, is that they have already had 30 Exclusive Brethren businesses, exempt, made, "No Go Zones" for Unions in Australia, and that they can and do track every cent their members make, in order to know how much "tithes" to take from them.

This is very much of how the NWO/One World Religion will function.

Earlier this year John Howard acknowledged that he'd met with members of the Exclusive Brethren, an ultra-conservative Christian group described by some observers as "a moralistic sect". The group which bars their members from voting in elections, the results of which they say are ordained by God - have been accused of campaigning against the likes of the Greens and the Labour Party both here and in New Zealand. They've also been connected with a campaign for John Howard's re-election in Bennelong, his Sydney electorate. "We don't run a police state in this country," the PM has said. "Unless people are an unlawful organisation, they are entitled to meet with the Government. I've met a lot more fanatical people in my life than the Exclusive Brethren," he added. Well, you make up your own mind. Here's Chris Hammer.

Cult politics: a glimpse inside Exclusive Brethren

<http://www.abc.net.au/worldtoday/content/2005/s1461155.htm>

The World Today - Thursday, 15 September, 2005 12:26:00

Reporter: Toni Hassan

ELEANOR HALL: As New Zealand's election draws closer, an extreme religious group has been grabbing the headlines. Exclusive Brethren has produced glossy leaflets attacking the Greens and Labor across the Tasman.

But, it's less well known that Exclusive Brethren's world leader is an Australian, and that the sect has been operating here in recent federal elections.

So what is Exclusive Brethren, and what are the implications of intervention in national politics?

Toni Hassan has this report.

TONI HASSAN: It's a religious group like no other.

JOHN WALLIS: I think it used to be a fringe, but now I think it's developed in to a very dangerous cult.

TONI HASSAN: John Wallis from just outside Perth is a former member of Exclusive Brethren who was expelled, he says, for exposing corruption inside the group.

JOHN WALLIS: A group of people that operate in a hierarchical system where the members sell their minds to the hierarchy.

TONI HASSAN: The head of the hierarchy is known as the elect vessel or universal leader. The current leader is an Australian, Bruce Hales - a businessman who inherited the top job from his father, John Hales, after convincing membership of his leadership ability.

The Exclusive Brethren is one of the strands of the Protestant family that developed a separate identity in the early 19th century. It's not the same as the Brethren or Open Brethren, though both groups share a common heritage, coming from John Darby and the Christian Plymouth Brethren.

Members of Exclusive Brethren shun mainstream society and modern technology as evil. The list of bans have included everything from preventing women from cutting their hair, to banning pets.

Former member John Wallis believes there are 40,000 members scattered throughout the developed world, with around 8,000 members here in Australia.

JOHN WALLIS: We are God's chosen, we are the ones... perhaps even more fundamental, that there is no others, but that's a bit of double talk, because they would never admit to that, but the fact of the matter is that we can only associate, eat, do business with any more than a third party.

I mean, you can actually deal with the world, but you can actually be in business with anyone else except the Brethren.

TONI HASSAN: And they're forbidden even to vote?

JOHN WALLIS: Yeah, but what sort of hypocrisy is what's been going on in New Zealand?

TONI HASSAN: Yes, how do you explain their involvement there with a pretty glossy campaign targeted at the Greens and the Labor Party?

JOHN WALLIS: Oh, easily. The Lord has moved on. That would be their way of explaining it, yes, the Lord moves. I think the basic problem is, their God is crazy. In fact, he's insane. In fact, you never know what he's going to do next. This is really the mortar that keeps the bricks together.

TONI HASSAN: But is it not biblically based?

JOHN WALLIS: Absolutely not.

TONI HASSAN: And how would you speculate they were able to raise the half a million that's gone in just for the New Zealand campaign?

JOHN WALLIS: Oh, easily. Mr Hales would just tell them what to do and they'd do it. They've got a bit of a mix there, but most of them are men that could put their hand in their pocket probably for half a million dollars each.

TONI HASSAN: Greens Senator Bob Brown this week questioned the role played by Exclusive Brethren in Australia, asking Special Minister for State, Eric Abetz, about the sect's funding pamphlets backing Prime Minister John Howard last year.

Senator Brown says voters deserve to know the link-ups by which huge amounts of money from the Exclusive Brethren is being channelled into politics.

John Wallis is in no doubt the group is playing an increasingly pro-active role in local politics.

JOHN WALLIS: Oh, absolutely, yeah.

I've only just become aware of it more recently, but back as far as 1993, they had their finger in politics then distributing... I thought it was only one area, where there was a bit of an uncertain seat, where they distributed pamphlets, but they apparently distributed pamphlets in '93 all through New South Wales supporting for Liberal.

TONI HASSAN: I guess it's not illegal for any one group to spend thousands of dollars on an election campaign, targeting anyone with leaflets?

JOHN WALLIS: No, I wouldn't see it as illegal, but why can't these people be... I mean, I know why they can't be straightforward, but why can't they be straightforward and just say, hey, we're the Exclusive Brethren, we're not going to vote, but we want to influence the voting.

TONI HASSAN: Marion Maddox is a senior lecturer in religious studies at Victoria University in Wellington. She says Exclusive Brethren's intrusion into politics reflects a wider trend among Evangelical and Pentecostal churches.

MARION MADDUX: Towards a movement for what they call Christian Government. It's the idea that it's no longer enough just to watch from the sidelines, but that there's really a role for Christians in trying to get governments that reflect what they see as Christian values, which of course they're not necessarily what all Christians see as Christian values - reducing taxation, reducing welfare, increasing defence spending and then with the kind of socially, morally conservative positions also.

TONI HASSAN: The World Today did try and speak to Exclusive Brethren's leader, Sydney-based Bruce Hales, but was unsuccessful. Family members instead referred us to books and a website about the group.

ELEANOR HALL: Toni Hassan reporting.

The Exclusive Brethren is a conservative fundamentalist Christian group who desired to remain spiritually separate from the world surrounding them, and also from the divisions and confusion they perceived in Christendom.

The EB never used the name "Exclusive" for themselves, but it derived from their strict interpretation of the rules of membership of their "assemblies". EB believe that once one of their branches has excluded a person from Christian fellowship, that person remains excluded from all other branches. [1]

The Exclusive Brethren in Politics

While members of the EB do not vote, even in countries where voting is compulsory, in recent years they have played an increasingly active role in campaigning for conservative political candidates and parties.

The 2004 US Presidential campaign

In 2004 the EBs held prayer meetings and donated money for the Presidential re-election campaign of George W. Bush and U.S. Senate candidate Mel Martinez.

In October 2004, the Thanksgiving Committee was formed "four days after the deadline for reporting pre-election campaign expenditures," the St. Petersburg Times reported. [2] It also reported that the men who formed the group were members of the Exclusive Brethren. OpenSecrets reported that the committee raised and spent $636,522 in the 2004 campaign. [3]

The largest single donor, who contributed $377,262, was from Bruce Hazell of London, England. The committee took out a full page advertisement in the New York Times and a smaller one in the Tampa Tribune backing Bush "and a quarter-page ad in the St. Petersburg Times endorsing Republican Mel Martinez for U.S. Senate because of his support for traditional marriage." [4]

The contact listed for the group, Steve Truan, told the St. Petersburg Times that the group likes to "fly beneath the radar." He refused to discuss the advertisements.

The 2005 New Zealand election

In the 2005 New Zealand General Election, some individual members of the EB became involved in producing and distributing pamphlets attacking New Zealand Labour Party and the Green Party of Aotearoa New Zealand and supporting the rival conservative New Zealand National Party, whose leader, Don Brash, they had met several times. [5] [6] [7]

The 2006 Tasmanian election

Members of the EB placed advertisements and distributed leaflets attacking the Tasmanian Greens in the 2006 Tasmanian state election. [8]

Opposition Liberal Party state director Damien Mantach has confirmed he met members of the Exclusive Brethren before the election campaign. [9] The Liberals distributed similar brochures of their own.

EU unfazed by Tymoshenko warning on Ukraine

22.11.2006 - 17:39 CET | By Andrew Rettman

<http://euobserver.com/24/22930>

EUOBSERVER / BRUSSELS - Ukraine's new prime minister Viktor Yanukovich is trying to take his country back into the pre-Orange Revolution era and must be removed, ex-prime minister Yulia Tymoshenko said in Brussels on the second anniversary of the Orange Revolution - but the EU is keeping an open mind on Mr Yanukovich for now.

Referring to the country's Soviet-like pre-revolution leader Leonid Kuchma, Ms Tymoshenko said "Foreign policy and domestic policy with Yanukovich looks like Kuchma-light, like cigarettes - it is similar to Kuchma but not as dangerous. We are doing all we can not to let Kuchma-light turn into Kuchma-full strength."

Presenting a list of anti-EU moves by the Yanukovich government in the past six months, she predicted that a new Orange coalition in parliament will topple Mr Yanukovich in early elections next year and the constitutional court will transfer power back from parliament to Orange president Viktor Yushchenko.

Mr Yanukovich has, she says: blocked legislation needed for WTO membership and the creation of an EU free trade zone; leant on media to spread anti-NATO "propaganda" ahead of a referendum on membership; increased energy dependency on Russia by non-transparent gas price deals and sidelined pro-EU foreign minister Boris Tarasyuk.

"We don't need to demonise [Mr Yanukovich's party] because these weak and quite vulnerable people don't have enough weight for a counter-revolution," Ms Tymoshenko said, describing the current government as a post-revolution "disease" phase preceding the birth of a "healthy" new state.

But the EU is keeping a more open mind on Mr Yanukovich for now, with the European Commission and member states waiting to see if his careful mix of pro-Russia and pro-EU rhetoric will translate into gradual integration with the EU at the same time as more stable energy relations with Russia.

"There has been a shift in Yanukovich [from his Kuchma days], not a huge shift, but a shift nevertheless and the EU should keep close ties with him to encourage this," a senior Czech diplomat stated. "There is understanding, especially in the new member states, that it is hard to cut ties with the old administration too quickly."

Yanukovich the pragmatist

"When I met Mr Yanukovich [who has come to Brussels twice since March] he talked to me as a euro-pragmatic man," external relations commissioner Benita Ferrero-Waldner told EUobserver, adding "Maybe there is not the same speed of [pro-EU] reforms as before in Ukraine, but the country is in a very complicated situation."

Even the more hawkish US, widely credited with helping orchestrate the 2004 revolution, is keeping in with Mr Yanukovich for now. "We have pledged to work with any freely elected government in Ukraine," a US diplomat stated, adding "the US sees Ukraine in [NATO] in future, but how it gets there is up to the people of Ukraine."

Kiev-based think-tank the International Centre for Policy Studies (ICPS) - which helps Brussels draft its policies on Ukraine - also believes Mr Yanukovich "will support further integration with the EU and cooperate on security issues", saying the WTO legislation might still go through this month and calling Ms Tymoshenko's early election forecast "unrealistic."

On the test case of support for separatists in Moldova's Transdnistria region, Mr Yanukovich has so far taken the pro-EU and anti-Russia line of working with EU border monitors to stem black market exports, but has also raised EU eyebrows by closing a key bridge on the Dniester river forcing Moldovan goods trains to go through separatist turf.

No angels in Kiev

Meanwhile, there are no parties or orange banners in Kiev's Independence Square on Wednesday (22 November) - two years after 250,000 people peacefully overthrew the repressive regime of Mr Kuchma and his then president Viktor Yanukovich in one of the biggest political events in eastern Europe since the fall of the Berlin Wall.

Mr Yanukovich - freely re-elected as prime minister this March - today has approval ratings of over 20 percent, while dioxin-scarred Orange Revolution icon, president Viktor Yushchenko, has just 15 percent after a series of top-level corruption scandals and infighting in the Orange camp.

Major issues - such as who ordered the murder of opposition journalist Georgy Gongadze in 2000 and who poisoned Mr Yushchenko in 2004 - remain unsolved as the Orange politicians cut deals with oligarchs and a civil service full of Kuchma-era staff, while the romance of November 2004 drains away.

"There are no angels in Kiev," an EU diplomat said, commenting on the current political scene. "People are mainly interested in economic growth, and by and large they care much less about [foreign policy issues such as] NATO membership," the ICPS added.

There is only one country that may guard the pope and that is Switzerland.
Switzerland is virgo our "lady currency" so world bank guards the pope!
(So is it only by 'chance', that Australia produces 65% of the World's Bank Notes?)

The swiss guard show their shield to the pope.
Remember the eight spoked star on the mantle-piece?
Well here you se it again so same room.
But you see it on the floor aswell.
That is really a big one hey?:

Here the flag in more detail. Notice the letter M on the coffin?
In the centre the shield of the commandant of the guards:

The commandant his name is: Elmar Theodor Mäder so they made the shield for EL=saturn MAR=venus (green).
Yellow=generating principle:

(Indigenous Australian Flags)

These guards are always coming from a "canton"(kind of province) and the canton's symbol of the guard is this:

And they say this about it:

Green was at the time the colour of revolution and freedom, and sometimes referred to as the "light green of the new order". If the fasces were three-dimensional there would be eight staffs, but only five are visible.

(and 3 of the 'Horns' that fell, would be replaced by the 'Horn' that made war against the saints)

What about that letter M on the coffin?:

The letter M is the V of venus between two pillars, it is the 13th letter so "luke skywalker", it is the sigma of seth(saturn) and it's the trinity of the whole enterprise.

(and as in "The Birth of Venus", '
she' is an Island, between the 'Pillar' Continants)

You will note the Orange and Green, but what screams out to me,

is that the 'Covering Orange' can walk from the land

(anciently, when the Land was dividing and a "REED"/shallow sea was between the still close between South Americas and The Land "GIRT" by sea in the centre of the Pacific), across land to 'The Pearl', in the middle of the seas, while there is no land, that the Green is flying/sailing from having been long ago separated from that ancient Super-Continent.

Still both 'sides'/colours are coming to her.

In the beginning and in the end.

I know, it seems a lot to take in and sort,
but there is so much more,
these are just some of the posts on the topic.

But that's their power, tying themselves to every well intentioned group, in order to keep drip feeding their Anti-Christ doctrines as "good".

Oh folk will decry Freemasonry, the Catholic church, etc.

but point out that their friendly environmental groups and mothers clubs are also part of "Hydra" and they feel personally offended so shut their minds to whole big, ugly picture.

Daniel - March 29, 2007 12:04 AM (GMT)

True-Lilly,

This diagram reveals the dialectic of how each side oppose each other while at the same time attacking the true followers of Christ.

You will notice on the left side under the heading "Lucifer" we have Jesuitism and Nazism. On the right side under the heading Ahriman or "SATAN" we have Pan-Americanism (Freemasonry) and Zionism.

On the bottom, where it says Asuras, it shows the synthesis of both creating what we call Bolshevism. The blood bath that ensued under Lenin and continued later under Stalin was a direct result of these forces. It was decided within the Freemasonic Lodges to turn Russia into a desert wasteland and a social experiment was carried out, which brought death, kidnapping, rape and torture of millions of innocent people. This false belief of forcing change before it occurs naturally is the cause of all evil " for evil is often good that comes outside of it's time. St. Germain was also betrayed during the Revolution for he knew all too well that forcing change was wrong and thus even today, the Masons strive toward internationalism and Globalism under the guise of Charity and knowing what is best - as they see themselves as the movers and shakers of society today. What Freemasons bring about today is truly devoid of anything of "I-Consciousness" and they have outlived their task, which makes them nothing less than the gravediggers of both culture and of society.

The second and third diagram reveal an example of how the correct Trinity of Father, Son and Holy Spirit have been reversed as Lucifer, Satan and Sorath. The Satanic Brotherhoods that have won over the ignorant Freemason followers provide them with bursts of ego that they know THAT which the outsiders or those "dumb Christians" shall never understand. We can see this superiority complex manifested in the Freemasonic posters who commonly attack Christians.

Sorry to burst their bubble but those who have strived to protect Christianity will not allow them to have their way.

Title: The Black Pope Pedro Arrupe; killer of Japanese Description: Eric Phelps

CRAIG-OXLEY - March 28, 2007 11:24 PM (GMT)

Pedro Arrupe:

The murderer of over 100,000 Japanese at Hiroshima and Nagasaki. His Jesuit physicists constructed the atomic bombs that were detonated on the ground at the moment of the magnesium flash bomb airbursts ordered by Freemason General Curtis LeMay. Thus, the Americans did not kill the Japanese on August 6 and 9; it was this monster, this wolf in sheeps clothing.

Brother Eric

This photo of Fr. Arrupe was taken while he was working in Japan as provincial of the Jesuit province there.

*More than ever I find myself in the hands of God.
This is what I have wanted all my life from my youth.*

*But now there is a difference;
the initiative is entirely with God.*

It is indeed a profound spiritual experience to know and feel myself so totally in God's hands.

-- Pedro Arrupe SJ,

Pedro Arrupe composed this prayer after he suffered a debilitating stroke, the effects of which he patiently endured for the final ten years of his life.

German-Jesuit plot for Europe against U.S.

I dont endorse all this Jew's view of politics and life. I think much of the Assyria(TRUE RUSSIAN COALITION) in the bible will turn out to be parts of the old Holy Roman Empire Germany (not all of it). He has a lot of things backwards however it is an interesting read with some small ammounts of truth mixed in. Yet some of it is so far from reality it is amazing. -Truth

German-Jesuit plot for Europe against U.S.

For over 50 years, Herbert W. Armstrong warned that a European combine - driven by Germany - would again thresh the nations. Now GERMANY'S BACK WITH A VENGEANCE! Their Assyrian power and influence grows daily while the Israelite American and British peoples continue their nosedive to oblivion. This was all prophesied. Herbert W. Armstrong's book The United States and Britain in Prophecy makes this abundantly clear. Beyond Babylon: Europe's Rise and Fall further explains, as a companion volume of sorts, what's prophesied to happen next.

Why will the United States of America fall? Why is Europe destined to win World War III? Why have we permitted Germany a permanent military base in Alamogordo, New Mexico? Are we just crying wolf? Yes! BEWARE THE BEAST OF EUROPE! Biblical prophecy reveals that just prior to Christ's return, Europe will experience an imperial restoration. The final revival of the so-called "Holy Roman Empire" is a COUNTERFEIT KINGDOM OF GOD. Their last emperor will be presented as the "King of kings." The Catholic pope, the false prophet, will promote the head of Europe's superstate as a DIVINE EMPEROR! All who fail to pay homage to the Vatican's anointed will risk unemployment. Those who refuse to recant will suffer death. A great martyrdom awaits many of the true saints! (Revelation 13; 17:12-18). Watch for the pope to get more active in politics. EXPECT THE VATICAN TO PROMOTE ITS CANDIDATE TO LEAD EUROPE!

The prophet Daniel foresaw this unholy alliance between the Catholic Church and European Royalty (Daniel 2:44). He announces their debut on the world stage (built by mortals) just before the truly divine Kingdom of God is established. Christ will blow them away and put an end to their show! Jesus will be a smashing success as He brings the curtain down on them! (Daniel 2:34-35). Europe's puppet kingdoms will collapse and any foolish attempts to fight against GOD'S LEGITIMATE SON will fail (Psalms 2:1-9). All such campaigns will come to a miserable end (Revelation 19:11-21). The only hope of survival is to serve the true God of Heaven and Earth (Psalm 2:10-12).

Europe's Dark Kingdom

The Vatican's working out a deal with ten European kings, with seductive offers of restoring them to political life upon their now dormant thrones, in return for the favor of acknowledging the supremacy of the POPE'S ANOINTED! The ratification of this imminent Church-State union will be swept through Europe's Parliament by the MALIGNANT MIRACLES the pope will perform. The pope will work his lying wonders in the presence of Europe's new EMPEROR! (Revelation 13:13-14).

The masses will be misled to presume the pope's miracles are proof that Providence has chosen such an individual to rule Europe and save the world (Isaiah 47:12; Acts 8:8-10)! Europe's body politic awaits this infusion of soul to truly come alive. What crisis will coerce Europe to hastily accept the pope's proposal to recreate the continent in his image? A hungry Russian bear, stirring from an imposed hibernation? An economic collapse or threat of another war in the Middle East or major terrorist attack on Europe? Time will soon tell!

GERMANY is clearly the HEAD of this emerging EUROSTATE (Isa. 10:5-6). The German churches have already left their mark on the Maastricht Treaty with the Vatican's seal of approval. As reported in The Economist article, "Never on a Sunday," an ominous blue law was forcibly inserted in Europe's grand design. Could this be the cornerstone for their reconstructed Europe? This greater Church-State collaboration ought to be of grave concern to every individual and country that cherishes religious liberty and national sovereignty.

Europe's Downfall

As America's on the way down and out, Europe's on the rise and circles overhead like an eager vulture! But their callous treatment of God's chosen will result in their PUNISHMENT! As they hold us in contempt, refusing to let us go, they'll influence God's decision to hold them hostage: in DESTRUCTION! (Isaiah 47:6).

God doesn't condemn Europe for bombing our cities or attacking our countries, but God damns them for their pride and excessive punishment! They'll engage in an orgy of overkill! And they'll fatally attribute their military success to their politico-religious system! (Isaiah 47:7-15).

EUROPE'S ARROGANT ATTITUDE will be their downfall (Daniel 5:20)! Once they start thinking that they're so high and mighty, so eternal and invincible, God's going to overthrow their ignorance! (Revelation 13:4). He'll forcibly bring them back down to earth and make them face reality! "Therefore her pagues will come in one day - death and mourning and famine. And she will be utterly burned with fire, for strong is the Lord God who judges her" (Revelation 18:8).

Sounding the Alarm in Zion

We must warn the world! (Joel 2:1). They've got to be told what's about to happen! It's good news/bad news! The bad news is Europe's on the rise and will deport our people "beyond Babylon." The good news is that EUROPE WILL FALL! (Revelation 18:2). We must offer the hope and comfort that there is life "beyond Babylon" (Isaiah 35:3-4). Yes, "Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, says your God" (Isaiah 40:1). And how do we do that? By reassuring captive Israel (all twelve tribes) that THERE IS A GOD OF JUSTICE! (Malachi 2:17; Psalms 58:11). The roles will be reversed and the tables turned! (Isaiah 40:3; Revelation 13:10; Jeremiah 30:16). God will make war on those who declared war on us! Our captors will become our slaves! All will be forced to acknowledge that we truly are God's people (Revelation 3:9; Isiah. 60:14).

God's vengeance will result in our deliverance! (Isaiah 49:24-26). "And shall not God avenge His own elect, which cry day and night to Him, though He bear long with them? I tell you that He will avenge them speedily. Nevertheless when the Son of man comes, shall He find faith on the earth?" (Luke 18:7-8). The Two Witnesses will boldly proclaim "the acceptable year of the LORD, and the day of vengeance of our God..." (Isaiah 61:2).

Let's trust in God to do as He's promised. Let the Sabbath-keeping Church of God remain faithful to God as we've promised, finishing the Work He's given us to do (Matthew 7:21; Luke 21:36). Everything's moving quickly towards the fulfilling of these mighty prophecies! Europe's counterfeit kingdom's on the rise, but soon - enough is enough - "the saints of the most High shall take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom for ever, even for ever and ever!" (Daniel 7:18).

Oh, Herbert Armstrong. I was in his cult once, after Joseph Tkach had taken over.

I'd take anything that cult says with a SHAKER of salt! :lol:

I found more on the subject:

The Origins of Assyria and Germany

Herbert W. Armstrong boldly and authoritatively claims in Chapter 5 of Mystery of Ages, "The Assyrians settled in central Europe, and the Germans, undoubtedly, are, in part, the descendents of the ancient Assyrians." (p. 183). Although he speaks with confidence on this matter, he does not give any historical references to back up his claims. Since Herbert W. Armstrong challenged his followers to "prove all things," we will take him up on the invitation. We will first examine the statements made by him concerning ancient peoples, then we will look at some reference materials to see whether his information can be verified.

In his book, *The United States and Britain in Prophecy*¹ (heretofore abbreviated as US&BIP, 1980), Herbert Armstrong goes into what seems to be great detail to prove the modern identities of ancient peoples. He uses the identity of these ancient peoples to prove his version of Bible prophecy. So it is important that we prove whether the "facts" he states are true, for if we can prove what he said as fact, then he will prove himself as a true prophet and apostle. But if we find erroneous information, and contradictions, then he will qualify himself as a false prophet and apostle, because a true apostle does not need to resort to deception, distortion, and lies.

HWA invites readers of the MOA to write for a free copy of the US&BIP to get further details concerning the true identity of modern-day Israel, the end times and how it relates to Bible prophecy. Once he convinces the reader that the U.S. and Britain are Ephraim and Manasseh, he will begin to frighten the reader with graphic details of impending invasion, also known as the Great Tribulation (WW III): "Now it becomes painfully clear! The Great Tribulation is this sevenfold intensity of corrective punishment which God is now soon going to lay on Britain-America!" (p. 175). So it is imperative that we make 100% sure that the information we receive from this prophet is absolutely correct.

First, let's examine what HWA said concerning Assyria and it's role with the U.S. & Britain [emp. mine]:

The Assyrians—before 604 B.C.—left their land north of Babylon and migrated northwest—through the lands that are now Georgia, the Ukraine, Poland, and into the land that is called GERMANY today. Today the descendants of those Assyrians are known to us as the GERMAN people. (p. 143-144)

That YOKE of SLAVERY without mercy is to be laid on the U.S. and Britain by the coming united nations of Europe! It has started already, through the economic Common Market and the recently implemented EMS (European Monetary System)...

The prophecy does not literally say so, but in all probability, by present indications, the head of this new WORLD POWER will be in central Europe. And it will precipitate World War III. And this time it will be allowed to succeed!

Many of the ancient Assyrians migrated NORTHWEST from their ancient land south of the Caspian Sea and settled in central Europe, just as the House of Israel migrated from the land of their captivity to the coastlands of northwest Europe. So when you read about Assyria in prophecies pertaining to NOW, they refer to central Europe.

So, history is to repeat! It was ancient Assyria which invaded the House of Israel, and carried them out of Samaria into the Assyrian's own land. (p.174)

We can clearly deduce that HWA believed and taught that:

The Ancient Assyrians migrated and settled into central Europe, and are the German people of today.

All bible prophecies, pertaining to NOW, that mention "Assyria" are speaking specifically of the Germans.

The head of this new WORLD POWER will be in central Europe. Since the Germans live in central Europe, this is speaking about them. It will head the united nations of Europe (also known as the European Common Market).

The united nations of Europe will punish the U.S. and Britain.

History is repeating itself. Since the ancient Assyrians invaded the House of Israel, and the U.S. and Britain are this modern-day House of Israel, then the modern-day Assyrians (Germans) will invade the U.S. and Britain and start World War III. Notice in every statement above, HWA did not give ANY historical references--any concrete data--to back up his claims! The US&BIP is supposed to give further details, but what we find is a lot of sensational speculation and no proof! HWA could have given a simple reference to an encyclopedia, but he doesn't. Why? Let's take a closer look. Here is an excerpt from Collier's Encyclopedia, Vol. 9, p. 38, (1959), "Germany: Racial Origin" [emp. mine]:

The German's racial origin, like that of other Europeans, is very complex. They cannot be regarded as the Nazis and some German anthropologists have maintained, as a "pure race" with dominant Nordic characteristics. It is sufficient to say that the Germans are largely a mixture of Nordic, who would predominate in the north, and Alpine, who would predominate in the south, with further blends of the Dinaric in the southeast and Baltic in the northeast, and with a substratum of remnant prehistoric types.

While there is great uniformity of language and considerable ethnographic similarity, there are still many differences of stature, head shape, hair color, customs, traditions, and philosophy, all showing diversity of background. During the Volkerwanderung, from the first to the fifth centuries, the Germanic peoples migrated in tribal units from the Nordic center around the western Baltic--southern Sweden, Denmark, and the mainland between the lower Elbe and Oder rivers. In the process of settling central Europe they mixed with other groups who were previous settlers, or who later moved into or through the area.

From this article we can derive that the racial origin of the modern Germans is largely Nordic, from around the western Baltic. Notice the countries of Sweden and Denmark are named as descendents of the Germans. This is significant, as we will later see. The Germans are also descended from the many other racial blends, so to believe that there is a "pure" Germanic race is quite erroneous. It also appears that in settling into central Europe, they have intermarried and mixed with other groups that were already settled there. What can also be derived from this is the total silence of the Germans descending from Assyrians. Even if the "substratum of remnant prehistoric types" refers to any Assyrian descent, they are a negligible minority.

Now let's examine the history of the Assyrians. We previously noted that HWA did not give any detailed references to prove the origins of the Germans. Neither does he give any historical proof concerning the Assyrians. Did the Assyrians migrate into central Europe "before 604 B.C." just like HWA claimed? Let's see what the encyclopedia has to say concerning this. I have extracted paragraphs that apply from the article on Babylonia and Assyria [emp. mine]:

Assyria lay north of Babylon along the upper Tigris and the waters of the Great and Little Zab rivers; its modern boundaries would be Iran in the east, Turkey in the north, and Syria in the west. In general, modern Iraq, north of the Euphrates, includes most of the ancient territory of Babylonia and Assyria.

With the Kassite occupation of Babylonia, the rise of Assyria as an independent state began. In the time of Hammurabi, Assyria had been a province of Babylonia, but the Kassites were unable to keep the Assyrians in subjection. Thus, along the upper Tigris, the warlike, predominantly Semitic Assyrians began to lay the foundations for an empire larger than any of its predecessors.

[Author's note: I skipped over the first two Assyrian dynasties and only used the last dynasty since it applies to the article].

By 745 B.C. order in Assyria had been restored by Tiglath-pileser III, who also accomplished the re-conquest of Babylonia and was crowned king in the ancient city of Hammurabi in 728. Under Sargon II, who established a new Assyrian dynasty in 722 B.

C., the Assyrians began a truly imperial age. It was Sargon II who captured and deported the Israelites, destroyed the Hittite fortress of Carchemish, and extended his realm to the borders of Egypt. Sennacherib (705-681 B.C.) carried the Assyrian standards into Elam and also destroyed the city of Babylon after it had revolted in 689. Esarhaddon (681-669 B.C.) in 671 carried out the conquest of Egypt; and between 669 and 626 B.C. during the reign of his son Ashurbanipal, the Assyrian empire attained its greatest limits and began to disintegrate. New invasions of the Near East by the Cimmerians and Scythians and the rise of nationalism in Media and Babylonia saddened the last years of Ashurbanipal and sapped the military and financial reserves of Assyria. A combined force of Medes, Babylonians, and Scythians captured the Assyrian capital of Nineveh in 612 B.C. and thus brought the independence of Assyria to an end.

After 539 B.C., Babylonia and Assyria ceased to be independent and passed successively under the rule of the Persians, Alexander the Great, the Seleucids, the Parthians, and the other later conquerors of the Near East. (Collier's Encyclopedia, Vol. 2, pp. 635-638, 1959)

Now let's corroborate this with following excerpts from, The Assyrians (Elaine Landau, 1997) [emp. mine]:

One of the first places this first occurred [civilization] was an area in what is now the Middle East known as Mesopotamia--a land where the Tigris and Euphrates rivers empty into the Persian Gulf. There on a hot, dry, windswept plain now referred to as a ""cradle of civilization," some of the earliest cultures arose. Among these was Assyria, an area on the upper Tigris River in northern Mesopotamia...Another important region, known as Sumer, occupied 10,000 square miles in southern Mesopotamia. Sumer later became Babylonia. (p. 11-12)

Assyria, which existed from the 14th century B.C. to 612 B.C., was situated on the upper Tigris River. To its north lay the Armenian mountains, while the Zagros Mountains and the hills of Iran bordered Assyria to the east. (p. 16)

Eventually the Assyrian empire reached remarkable heights...Yet a number of factors were actually working against Assyria. At one point, its empire spanned a distance of more than 1,000 miles, an immense area for any ancient state to control for an extended period. With its acquired territory so widespread, it became exceedingly difficult for Assyrian rulers to stamp out the rebellions that sprang up on various fronts at the same time. As a result, Assyria's strong grasp on its empire began to weaken... (p. 53)

Then near the end of the seventh century B.C. the region's balance of power began to shift. Determined to seize the opportunity, the Medes, a little-known people of the Iranian plateau, joined forces with the Chaldeans of Babylonia to topple an already weakened Assyria. They destroyed the magnificent Assyrian cities of Nineveh and Assur, as well as other important Assyrian centers. Unlike it had done in the past, Assyria never recovered.

In the centuries that followed, the area that had been Assyria was invaded by a number of foreign powers, including the Greeks, Arabs, and Turks. When Britain defeated Turkey in WWI, the land fell into British hands. They renamed the region Iraq and established an Arab government that operated under British control...Britain finally granted Iraq its independence in 1932.

A visitor to modern-day Iraq would never know that Assyria once existed in the country's north. All that is left of this once great military power are the recovered ruins that reveal its dramatic story. (p. 54)

We see absolutely no historical references of the Assyrians migrating north to Europe and being the ancient descendents of the Germans. Notice that it does say that the ancient Assyrians are the modern-day Iraqis!

It is interesting to note that the Assyrians were Semitic, a fact that HWA never brings up! Let's look at another entry in the encyclopedia--"Mesopotamia"--that will verify this. I have extracted sections that apply [emp. mine]:

MESOPOTAMIA, the "land between the rivers," the name often applied to the Tigris-Euphrates Valley...In ancient times it included the territory of Babylonia and Assyria; today it is the kingdom of Iraq.

Sumerian-Akkadian (4000-1850 B.C.)—In the Sumerian-Akkadian Era, while Neolithic tribes of a different linguistic stock dwelt in the highlands, the mysterious Sumerians from the northeast and Semites from the desert moved onto the plain...famous Sumerian city names include Ur, Eridu, Umma, Erech, and Nippur. While these states traded and fought with one another, to the north in the vicinity of what was later to be Babylon the Semitic tribes were gradually assimilating the Sumerian culture and becoming civilized.

Old Babylonian (1850-1600 B.C.) – A new Semitic invasion, principally from the west, resulted in the establishment of the Old Babylonian Kingdom...The sixth king of the new Semitic dynasty was the noted lawgiver, Hammurabi (c. 1700 B.C.). Old Babylonian civilization was founded on the Sumerian, but the ancient Sumerian language gave way to the Semitic tongue of the rulers...As in Babylonia, so in Assyria the Semitic element became the predominant one.

Mitannian and Kassite (1600-1200 B.C.) – In the succeeding age, however, Semites suffered a temporary eclipse. About 1600 B.C. in Babylonia and at least a century earlier in Assyria new groups came into prominence. Out of the northern mountains came the Hurrians, who spoke a language quite different from the Sumerian or the Semitic tongues. These people overran Assyria and formed...the Mittanian Kingdom... But the Hurrians were not the only invaders of Mesopotamia in this period...The Kassites overthrew the Old Babylonian Dynasty about 1600 B.C. and remained in control until about 1200....

Both the Mitannian and Kassite kingdoms ultimately fell before the resurgent Semites. In the 14th century a Semitic kingdom was established in Assyria, which pushed the Mitanni westward to the region of the upper Euphrates.

By the above articles, we observe that not only are the Assyrians Semitic, they are also the descendents of modern Iraq. We do not see any information concerning a north-westward migration, nor that they descended into the modern Germans. In fact, the peoples of the Assyria and Babylon were so intermeshed that they are both descended from the same Semitic origin, and both of them comprise the peoples of modern-day Iraq. HWA claimed that the Assyrians migrated around 604 B.C., but he never mentioned any specific circumstances or historical evidence to back this up. We can see from the above article that Assyria's capitol, Nineveh, was destroyed in 612 B.C., and afterward (539 B.C.) was invaded by the Greeks, Arabs, Persians and Turks--conquerors of the Near East, not the northwest!

Now let's observe where HWA said the Assyrians carried the House of Israel [emp. mine]:

The people of ten-tribed Israel also migrated northwest. Though the Assyrians had taken Israel into captivity, the Israelites did not remain as slaves of the Assyrians in Europe. They continued on a little further – into Western Europe, the Scandinavian Peninsula, and the British Isles! (p. 144, US&BIP, 1980).

Note carefully that HWA gives absolutely no historical references, nor any kind of "proof" to back up this claim. He gave no dates, no detailed information as to when the Israelites were "freed" from Assyrian captivity to continue their journey northwest. HWA states that the Israelites migrated into the Scandinavian Peninsula and has stated that Denmark, Sweden and Norway are part of the "Lost Ten Tribes." But as we observed the article from the encyclopedia, it is the Germans who have their racial origins from Sweden and Denmark. HWA clearly stated that the Germans settled in central Europe, while the Israelites continued on and settled in Scandinavia. But credible references state otherwise.

Speaking of the origins of ancient Babylon, HWA states in the US&BIP (1980) [emp. mine]:

Her [Mystery Babylon] KINGDOMS over which she ruled were called "The Holy Roman Empire" of A.D. 554 to 1814, briefly revived by Mussolini and SOON to have a last and final "resurrection" by a political-military union of ten in Europe (Rev. 17:8-4).

And where, today, are the ancient BABYLONIANS—the Chaldeans? They migrated west and settled in ITALY. Their religion was the Assyrian-Babylonian MYSTERY religion. It is going to come as a breathtaking, awesome, shocking surprise when the world learns that one Simon, the sorcerer of Samaria in the time of the original apostles, leader of the BABYLONIAN MYSTERY religion having the title of PATER or PETER, meaning PAPA, actually appropriated the NAME of Christ and the Christian principle of GRACE, which he turned into LICENSE, doing away with GOD'S LAW (Jude 4) and started what is today called "Christianity."

Carefully note the lack of any detailed references to back up these revelations. He quickly throws up smokescreens, detouring the reader with words in capital letters (BABYLONIAN MYSTERY, PATER or PETER, PAPA, GRACE, LICENSE, GOD'S LAW) like well-placed street signs. These paragraphs are filled with emphatic sensationalism, but where is the "proof" that the ancient Babylonians migrated into Italy? HWA cannot give any outside sources to prove his speculations because absolutely none exist! This is the real reason why HWA trained, employed, and appointed "Dr." Herman Hoeh² to write the Compendium of World History. The Compendium is a compilation of fictional history invented by Hoeh so it would agree with HWA's doctrines! Whenever a church member became confounded as to why he couldn't find historical records to back HWA's claims, he was handed a copy of the Compendium, while being admonished that, "History was written by worldly men deceived and inspired by Satan. History books are filled with error, but Dr. Hoeh has carefully researched and restored true biblical history." Those who attempted to read the meaty, two-volume series were rendered comatose after the experience. Others, who didn't buy into the concocted history and continued to question its "validity," would be put out for "questioning God's apostle" and the scholarly "Dr." Hoeh.

Can we see what lengths HWA will go in order to make history agree with his revelations? He readily condescends to lies, omissions, and distortions to keep his sheep blind and his empire intact. In brief, HWA has omitted accurate historical facts, and has fabricated history to suit his own agenda, clearly proving himself a false, deceiving apostle. Everything his hand touches is twisted into a lie, whether it be church history, secular history, scripture, or prophetic calculations.

"It is going to come as a breathtaking, awesome, shocking surprise" when HWA tells the truth about anything.

Back to Questioning Herbert W. Armstrong (was he who he said he was?)

Pastor Steve - March 26, 2007 12:32 PM (GMT)

A lot of major denominations are more of a cult than the old WWCOG and Herbert W. Armstrong. At least most of their members were into research with open minds and they were open to change for the most part. Some hold onto some of the WWCOG's exclusive doctrines such as there's no heaven or hell, and there's no Holy Spirit, and such bizzare doctrines which came from the Jehovah's witnesses probably. HW Armstrong had a lot of truth, but of course not all the truth, and a lot of things wrong. At least not anything that would damn someone to hell, and most of the doctrines except those named above were considered mainstream over the last couple of centuries confirmed. My Family who had never heard of WWCOG were all Sabbath, Feast & Dietary laws keeping for 12 generations confirmed. Church & City records as well. My GGGGGGGGGG Direct Grandpa on my Father's side founded & guided a 7th Day Baptist church as a tobacco farmer & early pioneer in America. My living Grandma also vouches we've kept these practices. Most Christian elderly people I know agree the bible says Christians shouldn't eat swines flesh, but they say it's too tasty and it's their only sin. That doesn't make them, all these elderly people, cultish just because they're older, since I know they attended mainstream denominations all their lives, and eat pork yet all say it is sin. Many even cite their Pastors as saying it was sin too, back when Churches didn't compromise truth. Even the doctrine that the Christian Nations are the lost 10 tribes of promise isn't cultish considering ALL the old mainstream prayer books say we're the literal seed of Israel, which is biblical. The same literal bride of the old testament & prophecy is the same bride of the new testament, the universal church, the Assemblies of The Christ.

There may be some truth to the whole German-Assyrian thing, probably only a fraction of Germans though. These organizations who work on exposing the Jesuits should really look at teaming up with ex-WWCOG types who have been researching this for a very long time. WWCOG was a couple million members. Under the UCG (United Church of God) which claims to hold all their same traditions is at least still 100,000 active church members. I met with several of the old Professors from Ambassador College every Sabbath for a few years as we went over scholarly studies of the scriptures & society at length for our open table discussions. We would take turns every week giving presentations & open for questions & answers, etc. I'm more of a mainstream Christian than they are yet again like I say their sacred cows may not damn them or make them any more cultish than any other mainstream denomination.

The issue I have with those groups is that they're trying to keep laws that were only given to the Jews. If you look up Romans 14:5 you'll see that we're not required to keep any one day as the Sabbath. The law of clean/unclean meats isn't in effect--though I've heard horror stories about pork (like someone's putting human DNA in it), so it's for health reasons that I generally avoid it.

About the only truth HWA had, that I can see, was that Xmas and Easter are pagan holidays and should be avoided by Christians. He was also guilty of incest--he abused his younger daughter for 10 years. That was brought up during his messy divorce from his second wife, Ramona, and it appears that she used that as leverage to get a decent settlement.

Then there was his son Garner Ted who was like Bill Clinton--couldn't keep his zipper up for anything!

QUOTE

The issue I have with those groups is that they're trying to keep laws that were only given to the Jews.

Actually the word Jew hardly shows up 30 times in the entire old testament, while Israel (the other 11 tribes shows up 2,500 times in the bible). As many dictionaries state, as well as the bible says, Jew is only 1 tribe but there are 12 other tribes of Israel, and Judah/Jew wasn't even given the promises so aren't even the chosen. Only Ephraim & Manasseh sons of Joseph were made "the chosen" people which were the most blessed people fulfilling those prophecies Great Britain & America.

Yet anyhow HWA taught we're all Israel even if you are adopted from outside the 12 tribes into Israel. Heaven only has 12 gates, and on each one of them is one of the names of the tribes of Israel, we'll have to pick one of them to get in. I personally believe the law was only given to literal Israelites, but if others want to be blessed too then they'll promote them as well. Matt 5:19 "they who break the least of these commandments and teach men to break them, shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven, but they that keep them and teach men to keep them shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven"

"For this is the love of the Lord, that you keep my commandments, and my commandments are not grievous" 1John 5:3

How do we know we're loving God's children? 1John 5:2 "By this we know that we love the children of THE LORD, when we love THE LORD, and keep his commandments."

There's much confusion out there in the church world. All the writers of the bible, especially David said every one of God's laws are delightful. Never grievous! This is why Paul said our spiritual nature delights in God's law, but our fleshly nature of the old man wars against the spirit and does not want to keep God's laws.

The main issue in the new testament is people wanted their salvation to come only by their own works, but it is a free gift of Christ, not of works. That doesn't mean we stop doing good works, it just means our eternal salvation isn't locked on whether we blow it one day or the next. Thank Jesus For the Grace!

British-Israelism has long been proven to be false. You might want to look up dispensationalism.

I have a friend who lives in the next county, and she explains that the order of the Gospels lines up with the transition from the Law of Moses to Law of Grace. The books at the end, such as James, Hebrews, Revelation, etc., are all Tribulation books. The Church Age (under grace) runs from the Day of Pentecost until the Rapture, then there's the seven-year Tribulation period, which is Daniel's 70th week, also known as JACOB'S TROUBLE. Meaning the house of Jacob (Israelites, Jews), are going to go through the Tribulation if they haven't been saved during the Church Age. The 144,000 are protected during the last 3 1/2 years.

I think Armstrong did a little replacement theology too. Israel and the Church are NOT the same! Israel was set aside after they rejected Christ, which also more or less stopped the clock on the 70 weeks--the Church Age is parenthetical. Then salvation was offered to the Gentiles (Jews can be saved today), and will be until the Rapture. Then it goes BACK to the Jews, and the 70th week will come about, then the Second Coming, then the Millennium.

I think this British-Israelism stuff is supposed to tie into the 13th Illuminati bloodline (Merovingian) deception...supposedly (and it's possible) the Antichrist will be of this bloodline, which is supposed to be descended from Jesus and Mary Magdalene (which is actually false). Armstrong claimed to be descended from King David--so apparently he bought into that too. He bragged that he could trace his ancestry back to Edward I, which I don't doubt, and to that I say big deal--I have Edward III as an ancestor!

(Note: I'm not so sure about the 33 years at the start...the Bible doesn't say exactly when the Fall happened, only that it was soon after Creation.)

One thing good about that dispensational chart is they don't ignore the fact of scripture that the Old Testament law will resume and be enforced by God at the start of the tribulation, and probably think that the church will be raptured out of here.

Since this thread isn't about God's law & religion I'll be polite to those who are studying jesuits & leave it go. I've spent thousands of hours studying it all and haven't found one loophole in the bible for not keeping God's laws. Yet I'll agree it is no longer the basis of salvation, and that the penalty & lamb & priesthood was transferred, changed & fulfilled in Christ. Hundreds of other former Sunday churches left Sunday for the biblical Saturday Sabbath & God's laws. I believe it is only Rome that doesn't want us keeping God's laws, which is why they wrote so many edicts & arguments against it. God's reformation is moving on.

I think that's more or less what British-Israelism promotes--white supremacy. Herbert Armstrong had been involved in the KKK in the 1920s.

I think that's more or less what British-Israelism promotes--white supremacy. Herbert Armstrong had been involved in the KKK in the 1920s.

The World Wide church of God and all the Anglo Israel believers who attend there are the biggest race mixers, all marrying of other races, biggest multiculturalists there are, give me a break!

Israel would bless all other nations in every generation bringing the gospel of Jesus Christ, according to the scriptures. I dont know who else fulfills it. The only argument out there that non-Anglo Israel believers have, who have never studied Anlgo-Israelism, just say some black tribe in africa no one has ever heard of are these tribes of the GREAT UNALTERABLE COVENANTS of Almighty God. Yet the bible says the true tribes would be priests to the whole world, ON THE WORLD STAGE and the whole world would know it until the end times because these many covenants are so major. One thing WWCOG , Herbert Armstrong types have wrong is they promote jews more than any other denomination there is! Is that white supremacy? Jews aren't even white, they're nonsemitic khazars & turks, not even from the 1 tribe of Judah anyway. You'll NEVER hear that said in any WWCOG Armstrong circles, the Jew is practically their god.

I prefer not to discuss this with people who accuse the most multicultural people in the world as being "white supremists". 1/2 their church are jews who were raised jewish that converted to Christianity.

I'm thinknig about changing my signature to: "the most greatest fighters against racism in this world were later fired from their jobs for being racist"

Alexandra - March 27, 2007 04:26 PM (GMT)

Back at the WCG's inception (formerly Radio Church of God), blacks were made to feel inferior.

I used to be a member. They may be all multicultural now, but it wasn't always like that.

My husband was in that cult from the age of 3. I was in it from age 18--starting in 1991. We left in the mid-90s.

Now they've since jumped on the ecumenical bandwagon--they went from error to error.

I would also check out the testimonies of Wiley and Suzanne Black.

Bottom line is, Armstrong was a fraud. My husband and I, along with other members, struggled to pay our bills under their tithing and offering system, and the church leaders had nice expensive homes and cars and they were on Easy Street. What does that tell you?

Armstrong just cobbled together tenets from Mormons, JWs, Seventh-Day Adventists, and Judaism and sold it as "the truth."

Truth_Sets_Free - March 27, 2007 09:01 PM (GMT)

What can we all do to make blacks not feel inferior? Just throw up our hands and misuse the verse:

Gal 3:28 "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus."

If there's no more male or female then why are we wearing clothes? Why would do we dress like a male or dress like a female. It is talking about spiritually. Israelites still exist physically today just as much as males and females still exist.

Since the whole bible was written TO, FOR and ABOUT Israel (Rom 9:4-5)it wouldn't be wise to just throw out what all Pastors agree is about 2/3rds of the entire text of scripture which deal with the 10 lost tribes that are non Judaic.

There are some people that no matter what you do they have a victim mentality set in and there's nothing we can do to change it.

Oh you forgot to add to your list, Messianic Jews, Nazarne Orthodox Jews, Nestorites, Jews for Jesus, Seventh Day Baptists, Seventh Day Presbyterians, 7th Day Pentecostals, Assembly of YAHWEH & other various Sacred Name groups as listed at www.EliYah.com that share nearly all the same beliefs, hundreds of other former Sunday Chuches which converted to the 7th day over the last 30 years who also found these truths that have no involvement with HWA but came to 95% of their same biblical conclusions, and many have been universally taught in most older theology books (especially the major foundational doctrines). The United Church of God has held to all their old doctrines of WWCOG, and are still about 100,000 members today, and are not a part of the new WWCOG that has gone into apostasy renouncing many of the old doctrines. There are 3,000 booktitles out on Anglo Israel, many have been in existence long before the word racist existed! In these latter days it is the first time in history the world is saying Caucasians are not God's people of blessing. The time of the great falling away before the end comes.

There are hundreds more churches I can list all day perpetually going on keeping the feasts , sabbath's etc as Israelites should. Pastor Steve's family were 7th Day Baptists Preachers back in the 1600's confirmed. Keeping Dietary & Feasts, and also still were in close with the Presbyterians and the Quakers at large, being given much of their property in their wills from both, they were all worshipping together. Much of early America were 7th Day Feast Keeping, so you're going to have quite a much longer list than that to point the finger on HWA. He's a little guy. All the books of common prayer have services for saturday and for all the feasts, as well as most European countries still have it national holidays for nearly all the feast days, where it's mandatory you dont work. It's all universal stuff. I'm sorry you were effected by the cult of HWA, and have thrown the baby out with the bath water.

I agree with one thing WWCOG would say, that those who aren't in the truth probably aren't being called in this age, so dont waste your time on it. The thing is God cannot lose anyone that He is calling:

Jhn 10:29 "My Father, which gave them me, is greater than all; and no man is able to pluck them out of my Father's hand."

Notice NO MAN can turn someone away from God.

So I'm not worried if you or anyone else doesn't believe these truths. I agree with the mainstream belief you get to heaven by faith alone and by the blood of Jesus Christ you recieve as payment for your original sin. The good words are just all blessings & good, none of it was called grievous, but only pleasurable and delightful. To each their own.

Title: Eric Phelps ousts Alex Jones

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 10, 2007 11:54 PM (GMT)

Dear Brother Larry,

Well Done! I will continue to expose Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor Alex Jones. His mission is to instill fear in the masses with the intent of driving the White Middle Class (Catholics and apostate Protestants) into right-wing fascism. He is succeeding. His filmed staged events with David Gergen, Governor George Bush and Michael Moore confirm this conclusion.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

Hi Eric,

A few weeks ago I was talking to a couple of New Agers that told me that Alex Jones is a member of a secret society in the government. A friend of mine and I were at a 911 conference last June, we were exposing the Jesuits and the Catholic Church with the help of Jesus, Alex was there. We were two door from his room, he told my friend in the lobby that I seen you somewhere before, he came up to the rooms and he told me I seen you somewhere before, he made this statement when my friend & I were separate. The next day around 2pm we were carrying our board with picture and texts (60 x 50 board)exposing the Jesuits & Catholic Church, Alex Jones was in a chair reading a book on 911, I was passing him by when he saw the illustrations He says I need to get a picture of that when I turned the board for him to see what was really on there his head dropped down to the floor and he was dismayed. He said I'm being condemned on the internet by Eric Phelps because I'm not exposing the Jesuits. He went on to say he calls me a coadjutor (he couldn't think of the word right away). He says I need to study it out about the Jesuits. My friend told him that he need to be born again. As the meeting went on he avoided us. I believe that he is a coadjutor, he was working up the people into a frenzy against the government. He is working for Rome I believe. May God help us to be faithful and true in these last days. Please keep sending the info you are sending us. Thank you for the info.

Larry

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 19, 2007 09:25 PM (GMT)

Dear Christina,

As I have said publicly before, Alex Jones is a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor. He is fomenting a revolt against the US government without correctly identifying the power ruling that government. This is exactly what the Jesuits want---revolution, anarchy, race war, and the rise of the White fascist new republican right promoted by the Knights of Malta for the last 25 years. Fascist Fox News is working to the same end---as are all the other Socialist-communist networks controlled by the CFR. Communism, in the end and as intended by the Jesuits, breeds fascism---as it has here in the US.

Mr. Jones never hosts any person on his show who exposes the Jesuits. He will not even breach the subject of the power of the Vatican as ruled by the Order. Although he is absolutely right on his lower factual conclusions, he never gets to the heart of the problem. By this we know his true allegiance is to that man of sin in Rome.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

Luther77 - February 23, 2007 04:25 PM (GMT)

I believe Alex Jones' job is not only to lead truth seekers astray in their end conclusions, but also to identify those who take interest in these subjects. I am sure that people that check out his sites continually and buy his documenteries, are being kept an eye on through the Jesuit controlled communications field.

Yes , the Jesuits have it all covered.

Alexandra - February 23, 2007 07:25 PM (GMT)

Wouldn't surprise me one bit.

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 24, 2007 01:30 AM (GMT)

Oldest Jesuit trick in the book and they've done this to their own if I remember rightly in Poland once???

Luther77 - February 24, 2007 02:26 AM (GMT)

Since we are talking about military minds (they are a military), it makes sense to put out these things (Jones' websites and documenteries) even if you are risking waking up some people. The risk pays off because you identify your potential enemy and keep track of them.

Xare - February 24, 2007 02:28 AM (GMT)

Guys, Alex is responsible for waking me up to the people behind all this global corruption in the first place.

When you say alex works for their agenda it just totally mental !

Alex is spreading fear because deep down thats what he feels, FEAR.

He is only human. How can 1 man expose the all encompassing infinite Evil of these men ?

Does Alex know ever facet inside and out ? No, but he does see a clearer picture then most of the flock.

Pushing us into right wing fascism ? What are you talking about ??

Because alex is a christen Catholics and Protestants Have to do the exact opposite of what he says ? What kind of reasoning is that ?

And staged events now too ? Man lam paranoid myself but you have really outdone me.

I like alot of the talk I see going on these forums but there is some disinformation being taken for granted.

Yes the secret societies are run by the Jesuit order, Why wont Alex Expose it ?

I dont know but I also never heard of the jesuit order till this year, and never heard of freemasonry untill alex pointed me to it.

Alexandra - February 24, 2007 02:30 AM (GMT)

Yeah, but why does he not want to hear about it if Jesuits are brought up? Last I heard he's Catholic (don't know if that's true or what). If he's truly open-minded he'll consider that angle.

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 24, 2007 02:30 AM (GMT)

Don't be fooled by Coadjutors Xare!

Alexandra - February 24, 2007 02:32 AM (GMT)

Yeah really, they're sneaky like that...pretend to be on your side, then they'll backstab you at first opportunity.

It's good to not trust your government...but it goes beyond that. Our "elected" officials are Jesuit pawns.

Alex Jones helped my waking up process too, but I couldn't help but wonder why he is allowed to live, have 50,000 websites, a radio show, etc.....

Then it hit me . He's either knowingly or unknowingly helping the enemy identify the people that are waking up. My feeling is that he knows what he is doing.

Also in MARTIAL LAW 911: The Rise Of The Police State, he says a few strange comments that made me wonder about him.

Xare - February 24, 2007 02:45 AM (GMT)

I think Alex is still alive because of his exposure and because he stays away from anything militant.

For example, Another radio show host who was of the same caliber of Alex Jones. William Cooper. This guy really exposed the secrets behind the initiates and look what happened to him.

He was also very militant and didnt have as much exposure as Alex Jones does.

They gunned him down after one of his radio shows shortly after 9-11

CRAIG-OXLEY - February 24, 2007 02:50 AM (GMT)

William Cooper is a massive LEGEND in this world and highly respected by ME and most! Alex Jones simply does not even lick the soles of William Coopers dirty boots.

Alexandra - February 24, 2007 02:55 AM (GMT)

I think Alex Jones tosses out a few crumbs...crumbs are good, but you want the whole loaf of bread.

Xare - February 24, 2007 02:56 AM (GMT)

Yes I think of him as a hero, I am waiting to see the new documentary called The Hour of Our Time - Legacy of William Cooper.

Maybe Alex is afraid to take it to the level Cooper did.

Also in MARTIAL LAW 911: The Rise Of The Police State, he says a few strange comments that made me wonder about him.

I don't have the video--what comments does he make? You've got me curious now!

comment #1. When he is waiting outside of a restaurant for his "confrontation" with Michael Moore, he starts to speak about Michael Moore being a schill or fake. He says, as if being Michael Moore, " all those years I followed corporate big wigs around, got thrown out of office buildings,.....stood outside restaurants, I've become what I said that I hated, or maybe I always was what I've said I hated"

The fact that he starts to speak as if he is Michael Moore thinking to himself the above quote, I right away found it strange that he would explain his view on Mr. Moore in this strange way (ex: using the word I,I,I) . Then how he mentions standing outside of restaurants....that's what he (Alex Jones) is doing at that moment. It is as if he is cleverly describing himself.

comment #2. When he goes to the scene inside the Republican National Convention, looking right into the camera , he jokes (or was he not really joking) ," Yeah, I've decided to join the New World Order... I've decided to just go along and have a good time..." then it goes right to another scene after that comment.

I did not see the point in this useless clip, unless he is cryptically admitting to something.

comment #3. In the scene where he "confronts" former presidential advisor David Gergin, once mentioning Bohemian Grove to Gergin (a member), Gergin flat out says to him , " when you came into the grove, did you not agree that you wouldn't make any film if you got in? etc..." and Jones just stumbles and pauses, saying " a...no, I a, I snuck in". It was as if he was surprised by Gergin's comment.

Alexandra - February 24, 2007 03:17 AM (GMT)

I wonder about his "interrogation" with the Bilderbergers last year. Was he being grilled--or BRIEFED? I'm kinda wondering....

Luther77 - February 24, 2007 03:27 AM (GMT)

These things about him always bothered me. Then ,in the past year or so I have heard people ask him about the Jesuits and the SMOM and he right away gets all nervous and refuses to get into the subject. Also after John Paul II died, he posted some phony articles on his site, saying, "Did John Paul II try to fight the New World Order"....as if he was not involved. I find that rediculous because John Paul II many times, publically called for a "New International Order"

It was beyond obvious that JP II was involved with the push towards a NWO. Alex tried to make it seem the opposite.

Hey, I enjoyed his documentaries, and they helped educate me alot. The more I kept digging and observing ,I realized Alex Jones works FOR the big boys.

Alex was not interrogated by the builderbergers. He was held up at the canadian border on his way to the builderberger meeting.

Menses - February 24, 2007 05:24 AM (GMT)

The fact that he is alive is daming enough but his approach to the 911 issue and what really happened on that day is also revealing. In Martial Law, He talked about Planes and tear gas knocking out the pilots & the passengers...claiming this info came from his "Contacts Inside the CIA/FBI"It is believed by some that there were no planes at the WTC...and as Truthsayers Henegen & bloom have expressed in the past, hologram technology was used to cloak what Rumsfeld describes as some sort of missile to fool the public into beleiving planes had hit the WTC. There may also have been some CGI editing involved with the live feed...

I have always believed that 95 percent of the 911 documentaries that have been allowed to surface by way of the internet are merely counter intelligence on behalf of the order to obfuscate the use of hologram & T.H.E.L / micro nuke techonology that was likely used in the NYC Black Op....As long as there are planes, Terrorism is real in most peoples eyes...

And perhaps this is why Alex Jones has refused to address the obvious inconsistencies with the official story of Flight 77 hitting the Pentagon. And perhaps this is also why Dylan Avery of Loose Change was immediately kicked off Alex Show recently when he tried to discuss the fact that no planes hit the WTC and how he would prove this in the next Loose Change Documentary due out later this year.

Alex info can be used but people must know also that Alex himself is being used willingly or unwillingly...as his technical information is incorrect. Not to mention his incessant need to blame imaginary Globalists, when names and places like Rome can be pin pointed with accuracy thanks to Mr Phelps...This again is another example why Mr Jones cannot be trusted...

wolvshater - February 24, 2007 05:52 AM (GMT)

I do not waste any time at Jones site nor ever did, as I found this one first and you guys pointed out a while back this guy is not to be trusted, thus no prison planet trash has been copied off here.

Have you guys seen this. watch this google video. skip to about 5 minutes and 25 seconds into it. they have a funny object stuck to the trade center and then it flys away at an amazing speed. i can believe the hologram technology b/c I did post somewhere on this site months ago, that i witnessed a hologram for a plane and it looked as real as real, however there was no sound emitted from this flying plane. i can't locate the link.

anyway back to the original reason i posted, do you think this is man-made hoax footage? remember, it's at about 5 and half minutes into the google vid. the footage was supposedly taken 13 months before the ritual slaughter. the WTC clip I am referring to only take like 30 seconds to look at.

Dondi2006 - February 24, 2007 01:57 PM (GMT)

That clip is taken from a Sci Fi Channel skit which was man made, well thats the info when it surfaced I had it a while ago now, its great to watch but was admitted to be a hoax / classy skit for Sci Fi Channel.

As regards Alex ... I started and got to him in the end, you cant miss him when you are following information lets face it. Got some docs and his information and Paul Joseph Watson do put a good case forward (Paul I find is better and more "chilled").

The information as I say is good to put on the table with everything else from other sources, I only realy bother with him when he's on Rense show each month realy. I did sign up to Alex to get the added bits & pieces, the key thing is that after a while you realise his field is quite closed off to the "doom" aspect & just a constant loop of news that should (I feel) be dipped into and looked at but with other things too. I ended up unsubscribing in the end though.

I just found in the end he was, how can I put it ... stuck just on one level, looking at one element of it. Does that mean hes working for these people? Possible, could it mean he just wants to focus on this area because others are doing a better job with the other areas? Also possible

I have learned to take him with a pinch of salt with his docs, like his latest terror storm, Ive seen it and in a way hes made a doc that shows lots of key moments with lots of scans of web sites & clippings fading in and out & him explaining, but thats it. When I saw that I thought, yes, your point is right but this doc is only informative as a skip through to get the brain working, not alot of backup to the articles flying over the screen, it wasnt something I would give to people as it wasnt "enough".

He says alot "its my best work" and makes it sound more than it is, thats when I kind of backed off a bit with it. On Rense he has a new doc coming and that "is my best work" again ... so, you get the idea.

What ever way you look at it, in the end like anyone with this information to focus on that 1 person 1 site & 1 area alone isnt good. Cross ref & books etc is better, if hes working for them then hes a good information source to put in the mix with the rest, nothing more.

To completely poo poo everything he does like at any moment he will shape shift is not good either, just keep a balance.

Lets face it we all had the bible to look at before we realised what shite it is, but is good for source & reference .. same applies.

I now just think "Jones, lets check him out ref 'this' as I know he will have covered it" then goto other sources and follow on from that. To put him on a pedistool and defend him all the time without question is also not good, people who do that I also back away from.

To worry that im logged as visiting his site is a little in the dark ages, who ever thought the inter"net" was something you could use and be totaly clean is a joke in itself, the very framework & software its based upon speaks fo itself. Worrying about that is a pointless really, if your going to be shafted you will be, if your not your wont, if visiting a site of 0'and 1's puts fear in people then welcome to brainwash.

And if you posted on this forum to make that point then, well, .. work that out :)

Not to argue necessarily but it's hard to fathom how a person such as Jones who is ultimately inciting people to very much think in ways against their government (and sometimes in not so subtle ways) can be viewed as not militant. ? It's only not manifesting in obvious militant ways..... yet. I suspect the kinds of anti sentiment, anarchy, "it's all the government's fault", race wars and such that he is provoking his flock towards is intended to culminate in ways militant. That, or perhaps I misunderstand how you use that term.

People, especially the PJs, somehow need to be awakened enough to understand that, yes, they should be a bit angry with their government leaders/mis-leaders, but ultimately they need to reserve this anger in large part for the hidden hands of control behind their leaders. That is a place that Jones faithfully does_not_go.

Guys, Alex is responsible for waking me up to the people behind all this global corruption in the first place.

When you say alex works for their agenda it just totally mental !

It's this very kind of mentality that is very much like talking to a wall, or a closed door that insists on remaining closed off while believing it's already open.

For BLEEPING BLEEPIN sake, even gw bush in part (a teeny tiny part, that, but a part nonetheless) helped open my eyes up to a thing or two.... and I suspect he caused this quite unwittingly of his own agenda of being somebody elses puppet!

Somehow people need to get knocked off the perch that chains them to thinking that anybody who ever offered them one single tiny piece of valid info (relatively speaking in terms of the vast sea of tiny piece of valid info to be found out there) is some how to be thought of as somebody to follow & worship. Didn't anyone ever present these people with the concept of 90/10, 80/20, whatever formula of part truths wrapped, packaged, smothered (like gravy) in lies? This kind of thinkig sorta kinda reaks of the same mentality of a young, naive adult who instantly feels they want to marry and live forever with a particular somebody just because that somebody is the one who helped them know their first ever gratifying experience with sexual intercourse.

"WERE ONTO YOU ALEX JONES"

Remember that ABC placed Alex Jones on 20/20. And that ABC is owned by the Walt Disney Co. And GCN is an ABC affiliate.

Lets begin with Monica C. Lozano A Walt Disney Co. board member.

Her grandfather is

Ignacio E. Lozano. He was a Director of Bank of America, The Walt Disney Company, Pacific Life and Sempra Energy. He has also been a Publisher and Editor of La Opinion. He is a graduate and a member of the Board of Trustees of the University of Notre Dame. He is a notorious member of the BOHEMIAN CLUB

Like Her grandfather, Monica works for Disney as well as La Opinion. She is is a trustee of SunAmericaAsset Management Corporation.> (AIG) This explains why Alex Jones might have received foreknowledge prior to 9/11.

Monica has been a Director of the Walt Disney Co. since 2000 which would put her into the perfect position to help Jones get into the grove. In 2000 Alex Jones infiltrated the gathering and caught the exclusive video.

CRAIG-OXLEY - March 10, 2007 10:16 PM (GMT)

Jones is an infiltrator claiming to be free and fighting for humanity, he's simply controlled opposition being put on mainstream TV, let into BG to create the illusion of opposition. He has many friends with Hollywood which is controlled by the SMOM and Mafiosi (Not jews as they would have you believe). He has many Catholic friends including people linked to the Jesuits such as the Sheen's and Opus Dei such as the Gibsons.

Bank of America? You mean bank of Sovereign Military of Malta & JESUIT!

BEWARE!

He slams Alex Jones for whipping up unnecessary hysteria. He says that this discredits patriots and may even give an excuse for government crackdown and armies in the streets. Not saying it won't happen eventually, but perhaps Cooper thinks that what Jones does would make things worse or excell them. Anyway, it's a great listen from a legend. Amazingly, I found it on temporal coajutor Daryl Smith's site, which is authored by Hufschmid.

Title: Interesting information about ALEX Jones

TruthSeeker24 - January 8, 2007 06:38 PM (GMT)

From <http://conspiracycentral.info/index.php?showtopic=4337>

<http://www.tkra.org/alexjones-jesuits-dracos-aug18-06.mp3>

Alex Jones is as good as it gets, but I believe he is a very talented "temporal coadjutor". Alex Jones can memorize the Yellow Pages and database a trillion different details... but has a hard time figuring out what a "coadjutator" is.

[temporal coadjutor: Term to describe someone who cooperates with the Vatican, and the temporal power of the papacy which is illustrated as one of the two keys of the Vatican's symbol. (temporal and spiritual power of the pope) – the pope is described as an ABSOLUTE monarch in mainstream documentaries]

Alex has a problem with his conscience and he freely admits that he is a "fallen" person. So what on earth is he doing???? He tells us about 9 billion different corrupt news stories... but there is a pattern to what he does. Alex runs cover for the key conspirators. I do not know for certain why he does this but he does.

He tells you about X-Files style Masonic information... but he completely ignores the Knights Hospitallers, and the Jesuits. Every report of evil imaginable is reported on his show, and he also hypes a lot of it traumatically. Steve Quayle does the same thing and wanted his radio program removed from ConCen because I don't think he wants people to catch on. They run a lot of factional hype and instigation that appears to be geared to trigger people into doing stupid things.

My best guess on Alex, is that he believes that the world is evil and thus it has to be ruled by a "responsible" group of evil people... and that amounts to the SMOM/Jesuit network. They are "Christian" so Alex is OK with them. Plus, he might rationalize that there is no other way of fighting the New World order and no other way of staying on the radio making money. He probably believes he is choosing the path of least evil.

I think what we should really be doing is choosing the path of no evil.

Alex rants about everyone possible, but goes really easy on his Catholic buddies Gibson and Sheen. He also parrots the Mel Gibson movie that rails about the Mayans, and he is half way to being a movie star himself and entrenched with the Hollywood crowd.

<http://www.imdb.com/title/tt0472043/>

Alex tells us everything about Nazis and Mayans... but totally omits that Hitler was a Catholic, and that the Vatican wiped the Mayans out with genocide. I think he is picking his "lesser of two evils" in the eternal info war... which is really a hidden propaganda war. He's superb at what he does and not a bad guy... but he is certainly up to something. DBS is insane, but when DBS claimed that Alex Jones is a traitor that should be jailed... DBS was sensing something. There is a network of criminals, and it appears to be a really stupid and useless network I call the GREEDTARDS. They are the Vatican military orders, and Freemasonry which is based on the remnants of the Templars... which the Vatican destroyed then reconstituted.

It's always been a monopolistic war on terrorism for a SPQR/VATICAN/UNITED NATIONS world fascist monopoly that will supposedly bring us all joy when implemented.

I believe Alex has aligned himself with who he believes the winning party will be, and the best option that is realistic. I suspect Alex does not believe that the world can be moral, so he follows "Rulers of Evil" view of the world outlined by F. Tupper Saussy. Alex has stated that he has land in [Catholic] Costa Rica that he can run off to. He always frantically declares that he and only he is fighting the evil and is on the front lines of danger. He also tries to deflect criticism making it a heresy to question his dedication to the "fight" against badness.

He does a lot of good and gets lots of information out, but he omits pretty much everything about the key group of people that he is aligned with. He chokes on the radio every time the issue of the Knights of Malta comes up... and if he's looking for feedback he'll now know which issue he should streamline. Alex rails about Rupert Murdoch of Fox news, but never admits that he's a Knight of Malta, in a NETWORK of "knights" all working for papal/UN world government. I wish he would just smarten up and help us break free of Big Business, and Big Badness including the network of Holy Crusade based criminals who are running the inquisitions and the eternal war on terror for profit.
