Bergoglio is the Anti-Pope

On Halloween 2021, Rhode Island police announced that they had arrested Father James Jackson, the pastor of the Priestly Fraternity of St. Peter's (FSSP) Church of St Mary in Providence, Rhode Island, for possession and transfer of child pornography. The Priestly Fraternity of Saint Peter is a traditionalist Catholic society of apostolic life for priests and seminarians which is in communion with the Holy See, not be confused with The Society of Saint Pius X (SSPX), founded by Marcel Lefebvre. The society was founded in 1988 under the leadership of 12 priests who were formerly members of the Society of Saint Pius X. The response thus far has been interesting—the FSSP released a statement saying they were shocked and saddened and fully cooperating with law enforcement. Some parishioners insisted, however, that he was innocent and that he might have been framed, not solely because they love their priest, but because of an ongoing conflict within the church between traditionalists and the modern post-Vatican II liturgy, that has seen Pope Francis doubling down in December 2021, on his efforts to sabotage the old Latin Mass, forbidding the celebration of some sacraments according to the ancient rite in his latest salvo against conservatives and traditionalists.

The Associated Press reported that Francis said he, “was reversing his predecessor because Benedict’s reform had become a source of division in the church and been exploited by Catholics opposed to the Second Vatican Council, the 1960s meetings that modernized the church and its liturgy.”^[178] The Vatican explained that the clarifications and new restrictions were necessary to preserve the unity of the church, and its sacraments, but the truth is the devil hates Latin, which used to be the universal language of the Church, and there is an increasing number of people who are not necessarily linked, neither to the Fraternity of St. Peter, or the more traditional Society of Saint Pius, who are becoming frustrated with Pope Francis. Normal Catholics all over the world are alarmed by the progressive reforms of this Jesuit demon.

On 29 June 2021, precisely on the day of the 70th anniversary of the priesthood of “Pope Emeritus” Joseph Ratzinger, which is also the anniversary of Saints Peter and Paul, Prof. Antonio José Sánchez Sáez, Professor of Law at the University of Seville (founded in 1505), made some astonishing statements against Pope Francis during an interview with the Italian newspaper Libero^[179], given after Bergoglio’s drastic demolition of the Summorum Pontificum – the most important act of Pope Benedict XVI’s pontificate which liberalized (dutifully) the Latin Mass – the mass par excellence, endowed with “absolute guarantees of Catholicity.” I have decided to propose this important interview in my book on a subject that – take note – all the mainstream media today tend to avoid like the plague and inexplicably, so does a large part of the traditional-conservative world still operating under the Holy See, which probably deludes itself into being able to combine agreements for the post-Bergoglio era, while ignoring the inevitable sword of Damocles of a natural anti-papal succession, in the case of Ratzinger’s invalid renunciation. Because this is the most controversial subject of today in the Catholic world, the possibility of an invalid succession between Benedict XVI and Pope Francis. Well with 80 publications, several important studies and research made for the Universities of Harvard, Bologna, Florence, Frankfurt, Sorbonne, and 5 academic awards, Professor Sánchez, is a very credible source on this matter, who has also been writing for years on the Catholic website comovaradealmendro.es. Currently, he is to my knowledge the only Catholic academic with such an authoritative curriculum to have the courage, “to put his face to it,” and criticize openly the Jesuit pope regardless of the possible consequences for his work. I repeat he is neither a Lefebvrian nor a sedevantist only a concerned Catholic, with a traditional view of the Church that seems to think Pope Francis's papacy is fraudulent. You need to read the interview in question very carefully because it makes you understand the position of Archbishop Viganò and millions of Catholics around the world who don't feel this is the Church of Jesus Christ, but rather the opposite. Pope Francis' "Pachamama Church" promotes New Age paganism instead of God, opening the door to adherence to the occult for greater numbers of people than before, which in turn opens the way to diabolical possession and The Great Reset of the Catholic Church, ready to be transformed into a One World Masonic Religion for the imminent arrival of the Antichrist.

Q. Professor, you have been saying for some time that you are following our investigation into the resignation of Benedict XVI ...

A. "For many years, those who thought that the only reigning pope was Benedict XVI were alone, misunderstood by the Church. It is comforting to see how an important Italian newspaper has chosen to discuss this issue, which is fundamental, not only for Catholics.

Q. No other news organization talks about it, yet it should be the journalistic case of the millennium ...

A. "The overwhelming majority play that card. Bergoglio is a bad pope, but ultimately the pope. They criticize his delusions, but consider him a father. And this strengthens it, others are simply worldly Catholics, happy with his innovations. Finally, others suspect that Francis is an impostor, but they don't dare to talk about it in public".

Q. From your website, you claim that ecclesiastical Freemasonry forcibly placed Bergoglio on the throne of Peter. What evidence?

A. "From the appreciation of the international lodges, to the inclusion of Masonic elements in the liturgy and devotion, to the rhetoric on the Universal Brotherhood ... Suffice it to say, Father Malachi Martin, a highly cultivated Jesuit advisor to Card. Bea, who read the entire Third Secret of Fatima (including the words of Our Lady not yet revealed), wrote a book called "Windswept House" where he explained the plan of ecclesiastical Freemasonry: to force the pope to resign to impose a false pope who, exploiting the obedience of the clergy and the faithful, will lead the Church to the great apostasy prophesied by St. Paul. What Malachi Martin did not know is that Benedict XVI has been prepared for some time and did not resign validly, remaining pope: a master's game."

Q. For what main reasons would your waiver be invalid?

A. "I was surprised when I calmly read the Declaratio di Renouncement in Latin: Pope Benedict did not renounce the munus, as required by canon 332.2 of the Code of Canon Law, but the ministerium, as if a professor resigned from teaching without leaving his chair, remains a professor at the University. Furthermore, Benedict XVI has given us another clue by becoming "Pope Emeritus," a canonically impossible title since to be emeritus it is necessary to have ceased from office by age or by accepted resignation ... and neither of these conditions is met in resignation of a pope (can. 185)."

Q. Do you think he did it on purpose? How does the well-known philosopher Giorgio Agamben ventilate to "strengthen the papacy?"

A. "I have read Agamben's book," The Mystery of Evil Benedict XVI and the end of time." I agree that Benedict XVI currently acts as a "katejon," a "power that holds back" the revelation of the Antichrist (Massimo Cacciari also spoke of this). We know that Benedict XVI is perfectly familiar with the Marian messages of Fatima, Garabandal, and Akita. He deliberately acted in this way, knowing that the wolves would come for him (because they had already done so against John Paul II). So he pretended to resign, but without doing so, remained pope. "

Q. How do the Bergoglian canonists counter-argue?

A. "Basically they say that even if the renunciation is wrong, it is validated by the unanimous and peaceful acceptance of Francis by the Church ("Universalis Ecclesiae Adhaesio "). A tragic mistake, because this doctrine was never intended to save, heal or consider satisfied the condition without which a proceeding could never be initiated. In the case of papal election, the See must be vacant: the reigning pope must have died or must have validly abdicated. For can. 126 (doctrine of substantial error,) Benedict's resignation was void, the seat was not vacant and it is impossible to remedy this substantial error, a posteriori. It does not matter that the overwhelming majority of the Church believes that the Pope is Francis: even the Jews preferred Barabbas to Jesus, but they were wrong."

Q. In the interview in the book, "Latest Conversations," Ratzinger says he resigned, like the popes who, in history, have not abdicated. WHO If he is still the pope, is Bergoglio?

A. "At least one ANTIPAPA. Moreover, many believe that he is the False prophet of the Apocalypse."

Q. Many think that after Francis, a new conclave can put things right. Is that so?

A. "Absolutely NOT! A conclave with 80 cardinals appointed by an antipope can elect only one other antipope. Bergoglio's entire succession line is anti-papal. There will no longer be an ecclesial restoration, but a descent towards the great apostasy of the visible Catholic Church, which will persecute the faithful "little remnant," the true Church."

Q. By the way, Don Minutella's channel, the most followed priest in Italy and loyal to Benedict, has been closed by Youtube or hacked ...

A. "Exactly. They need to silence dissent and make use of the complicity of social networks."

Q. The Catholics who are scandalized by Bergoglio's "reforms" and avoid asking themselves if he is the real pope ... do they evade the "Magna Quaestio?"

A. "Yes. Unfortunately, on this line of thought, there are the Principles of the Church such as Card. Sarah, Müller, and Archbishop Viganó, etc. that confuse many people."

Q. In a recent interview, Fr. Francesco recommended not to waste the crisis, but to use it to establish a "New World Order." Should we also worry about the laity?

A. "Obviously: this project concerns everyone. In particular, the UN for decades has been promoting what Catholics think are "sins that cry to Heaven" such as abortion, euthanasia, or gender ideology. John Paul II and Benedict XVI already denounced it. And now Bergoglio is perfectly united with the New World Order, atheist, anti-Christian and asks for obedience to the UN."

Q. Why don't bishops and cardinals address this issue? It is an enormous historical and spiritual responsibility ...

A. "The architects of the New World Order now dominate the world and the Church. Informed cardinals and bishops fear causing a schism if they speak out. But it is absurd to think that Christ can want unity in lies, for this reason, in history, the heretics have left the Church, purifying it. Now the schism will reverse: it will be those who profess the Catholic Truth who will be expelled from the Church."

Andrea Cionci, the young Italian journalist who made this daring interview, writes in the end the following conclusions, that seem to confirm what I wrote earlier, regarding Pope Francis' real intention to eliminate the old Latin Mass, to help the creation of the religion of The New World Order:

We had already mentioned this possibility with the metaphor of the "cuckoo." For now, the question continues to be swept under the rug, in a really curious way. There is an enormous difficulty in making a local mind change. Probably we will have to wait for the next stop of the modernist train, when the Mass of the new rite, already tampered with, will undergo the next changes, predictably, with a view to eliminate the dogma of Transubstantiation as the historian Massimo Viglione explains.

When intercommunion with Protestants or even an international interfaith conference or something similar arrives to create the religion of the New World Order, then perhaps the most obvious of possible explanations will begin to be considered.^[180]

How to Prepare for The Great Reject and Societal Collapse

All this evil brings to my mind a particularly vivid example I once saw in an article written by Mark E. Jeftovic, a 30-year veteran of the Internet, and co-founder & CEO of easyDNS Technologies, a Toronto based web services company, who talked about a balloon disaster that still makes him cringe when he thinks about it:

A group of people were embarking on a balloon ride and as they were just a foot or two off the ground, the burner erupted into flames. The balloon pilot realized the situation immediately and he leapt from the gondola which was still only a few feet off the ground.

One or two of the passengers were quick-witted enough to realize what this meant and followed him. This set off a feedback loop: as the fire expanded, its hot air forcing the balloon higher, combined with the weight reductions as the first few people bailed out, the situation very quickly escalated past a point of no return.

The balloon had accelerated very rapidly to heights from which it was no longer possible to leap safely. The unfortunates who had hesitated and were trapped in a gondola being propelled higher by a fireball, to their inevitable doom. [\[181\]](#)

For Jeftovic, “Mass demonstrations, mass exoduses, crypto-currencies are symptoms of a Great Reject, [\[182\]](#)” and the Great Reset is for Mark E. Jeftovic, “an attempt at a zeitgeist-level rationalization that doubles down on institutional failure on the part of the entire governance structure of Mr. Global and gives them a new lease on life to remain in charge. Reimagined by the Davos crew amplified by the mainstream media, lubricated by Big Tech.” [\[183\]](#) Jeftovic also adds this final reflection on the balloon episode described above saying: “That’s what our entire situation feels like today. The balloon is still hanging a foot or so above the ground, the canopy is on fire, and the people who have figured out what this means are bailing out while they still can and in-doing-so are accelerating the ultimate burn-then-crash of the entire system.” [\[184\]](#)

Now in the 2020s, most of us should prepare rather than panic for “the crash of the entire system” because we are part of “The Great Reject,” which is our only hope, and we need to do this by using our skills and our resources, creating new communities, while the old system will continue to implode in the years ahead. With this book, I want to lay the foundation for something truly historical, because in this context we need to find our own “Galt’s Gulch,” the name of the utopia described in Ayn Rand’s Atlas Shrugged, a novel first published in 1957 in the United States that suggested that pure reason ought to be rated superior to emotion in this context. Aside from the fact the plot is, unfortunately, written by an atheist, it describes the crumbling of the United States economy due to collectivism and altruism, which Rand himself considered detrimental to society. [\[185\]](#) However I’m sure that Rand will probably agree that the “collectivism and altruism” shown today in our hypocritical libtard society is probably more esthetical than real, but the consequences are the same, as America is crumbling in front of our eyes.

For this reason, some of us have decided to join what is being called “The American Redoubt,” a rather unique political migration movement first proposed in 2011 by a former U.S. Army Intelligence officer, survivalist novelist, and known blogger, James Wesley Rawles, which designates Idaho, Montana, and Wyoming along with parts of Oregon and Washington, as a haven for conservative Christians in these unprecedented times. James Wesley Rawles chose a specific area of North America for “The American Redoubt,” mainly due to its low population density and lack of natural hazards. “The American Redoubt” lies in the rural high country of Montana, in Idaho, in Wyoming, and in eastern Washington and Oregon.

Like The Atlantic wrote in December 2021, “In rural Oregon, voters fed up with their state’s leftward turn have embraced a simple and outlandish idea: What if we were just Idaho?” “The political diversity in this state is becoming unpalatable,” argued Grant Darrow in a letter to the editor of his local paper. Rural Oregon. “Rural Oregonians in general, and Eastern Oregonians in particular, are growing increasingly dismayed by how Oregon’s Legislature and Oregon’s urban dwellers have marginalized their values, demonized their lifestyle, villainized their resource-based livelihoods, and classified them as second-class citizens at best.” [\[186\]](#)

Unfortunately, this is the feeling of many Americans these days trapped in blue states like Oregon. That’s why USA Today estimated that anywhere from “hundreds” to “a few thousand” people may have moved there as a result of this movement, [\[187\]](#) and there is even a real estate and consulting firm dedicated to helping the “oppressed people of all backgrounds flee tyranny and find freedom in rural towns across the American Redoubt, the last refuge of the American Patriot.”^[188] To be honest, it seems there are a lot more people moving to these areas, than the ones estimated by the leftist journalist of USA Today. Mainly because freedom-loving patriots, are increasingly worried about their future, and they seem to have a clear idea of the dangerous times in front of us, and how we should immediately leave the cities, and relocate as soon as possible to smaller rural communities.

The American Redoubt will undoubtedly be the last hold out and battleground should society fall into the abyss. We will resist tyranny at all costs. So bring your friends and family and help us build a refuge for years to come. In the American Redoubt, All Lives Matter, regardless of race and we proudly support Blue Lives Matter. If that offends you, then please do not use our services. If you see value in raising your children to defend our God-given rights, then you should give us a call. We will NEVER take a knee in front of any natural man.

Flee the City and make your Strategic Relocation to the American Redoubt! The Last Refuge of the American Patriot.^[189]

Of course, we can't guarantee you 100% that Rawles and his followers will be successful in their mission to create a “Strategic Relocation,” but unity means strength, that’s a fact that can’t be denied even by the skeptic, and for this reason, the leftist media have already started their disinfo campaign against such projects years ago, often in the disguise of investigative journalism or even worse tv entertainment like the “Doomsday Preppers,” that aired on National Geographic from 2011 to 2014. Kim Murphy, a reporter for the Los Angeles Times, for example, described the motivation for the movement back in 2012, in a derogatory and rather insulting manner, typical of the left, who always think conservatives are insane in preparing for the future, while they should have simply ignored all the signs of the impending doom and enjoy life.

Murphy says: “For a growing number of people, it's the designated point of retreat when the American economy hits the fan. When banks fail, the government declares martial law, the power grid goes down. When warming oceans flood the coasts and a resurgent Russia takes out targets on the Eastern Seaboard.”^[190] In the same article, Murphy, who identifies Rawles as “the guru of the movement,”^[191] explains in typical libtard fashion, “Though white separatists for years have called for a racial homeland in the inland Pacific Northwest, an even bigger movement of survivalists, Christian fundamentalists, and political doomsayers are fueling the idea of a defensible retreat in the high country west of the Rockies. Armed with stocks of brown rice, weapons, battery-operated radios and razor wire, many are preparing isolated homesteads that can quickly be turned into armed fortifications when groceries disappear from stores and hordes of desperate city-dwellers flee a flu pandemic or run out of oil.”^[192] I wonder if ten years later, Kim Murphy feels the same way about his article, after all, most of the things he mocked are materializing including the groceries that “disappear from stores,” the “flu pandemic,” or even the current oil crisis.

In the end this arrogant journalist will probably become one of the “desperate city-dwellers” that flee in despair. We are moving towards a seemingly inevitable societal collapse, even the BBC “collapse expert” Luke Kemp, gives us an alarming view of the current situation: “Studying the demise of historic civilizations can tell us how much risk we face today. Worryingly, the signs are worsening.”^[193] Arguing in the same article that the possibility of a civilization collapse is “a normal phenomenon.” So don’t disregard my warnings as futile apocalyptic alarmism, but rather as useful tools of our Great Reject project.

Societies of the past and present are just complex systems composed of people and technology. The theory of “normal accidents” suggests that complex technological systems regularly give way to failure. So collapse may be a normal phenomenon for civilizations, regardless of their size and stage.

We may be more technologically advanced now. But this gives little ground to believe that we are immune to the threats that undid our ancestors. Our newfound technological abilities even bring new, unprecedented challenges to the mix.

And while our scale may now be global, collapse appears to happen to both sprawling empires and fledgling kingdoms alike. There is no reason to believe that greater size is armor against societal dissolution. Our tightly coupled globalized economic system is, if anything, more likely to make crisis spread.^[194]

In popular usage, “apocalypticism” refers to a belief in the likely or impending destruction of the world (or a general global catastrophe), usually associated with upheaval in the social, political, and religious order of human society. Historically, the word has had religious connotations and the great destruction it is thought to bring has traditionally been seen as part of a divine scheme, though today it is increasingly used in secular contexts because of what is happening.^[195] Of course, debates and disagreements, over genre and labels relating to apocalyptic literature will continue, including the Book of Revelation itself, but we have no time for complex theological and intellectual discussions on the matter as our society crumbles, we need instead, real alternatives and solutions to the growing problems we will face in our lifetime. At this point, we need to understand and learn about survivalism, not the genuineness, or not of the Book of Revelation, that I find out of the question, like most Christians.

What is Survivalism? This is a commonly asked question, with no easy answer. Survivalism has many facets and takes many forms. It means something different to everyone. Keep this in mind as I attempt to give you my best answer to this famous question, so let's get in the mindset of the survivalist thanks to a few experts on the topic: At its most basic level, survivalism is a mindset to keep an individual alive through adverse circumstances. These circumstances could be lots of things, from a devastating flood or earthquake to a nuclear attack or civil war. Each survivalist has a mental list of "risk situations" that he or she has determined to be a possible threat. These situations could be very imminent threats or only slight threats. In any case, there is a chance of the risk situation occurring. The difference between a survivalist and any other person is that the survivalist has considered the threatening situations and is taking steps to prepare in case they occur, whereas others have chosen to ignore the situations, or don't perceive them as threatening. It's probably easier to give examples to illustrate my point. Let's say I live in the U.S. today, with only a few moments of thought, I can come up with a list of things that threaten my survival in this country. They would be for me, Civil War, famine, drought, terrorism, earthquakes (I don't know if earthquakes are common occurrences in your area, as I live in California), and, of course, a possible World War III. Now that I've determined the risk situations, I need to figure out which are most likely to occur, and which are less likely. So, I choose to order them like so:

1. Civil War
2. Terrorism
3. Earthquakes
4. World War
5. Famine
6. Drought

Understand, the above list is in order of chance of occurring, not in order of severity of the threat. In other words, I would be more afraid if my country broke out in war than if we had a drought, but I believe the chances of a drought occurring are far less than the chances of a civil war breaking out in the near future. Now that I have a list of risk situations, in order of probability of occurrence, I can make plans to prepare in case one or more of them occur. Once you understand the thought process that the above example shows, you understand the "Survival mindset." You've assessed your risks and are now ready to prepare for them. How you prepare is up to you. The fact that you are preparing makes you a survivalist.

At this point let's move further in the "Material Preparation," mindful of one of the mottos of the survivalist is "Prepare for the worst, pray for the best." Each person has to determine how they will prepare and must decide what lengths and expenses they will go to with their preparation. For some people, keeping a week's worth of canned goods and a kerosene heater around the house may be their way of preparing for a blizzard. For others, they may want not only the food and the heater but a snowmobile as well. Still, others may decide that if it looks like a terrible snowstorm, they'll take a trip to their house in a warmer climate before it hits. In each example above, the person perceived the blizzard as a threat. The lengths they went to prepare were all different. The first person decided extra food and a second heat source was enough, while the last person wanted a place to escape to. No one can tell you how you should prepare for a disaster, because all of us have different situations we must take into account. The important thing is that you assess your threats, and determine how you can prepare for them if they occur. You need to do what you feel is necessary. If you feel comfortable knowing that a week's worth of food and water is stocked up in your kitchen, you're prepared. If you buy a house in Florida to fly off to because you relate better with the policies of that State, you're prepared.^[196]

Many survivalists pick the worst possible scenario to prepare for, and in the 2020s that's what you should have in mind. Others choose to prepare for moderate occurrences of their risk situations but such people might find themselves in trouble with what is coming up in the next few years. Oftentimes, preparing for the worst involves a lot of time and money, and you need to keep in mind, that even if you are a good survivalist, and know how to grow your own vegetables, or you know how to raise a few heads of cattle to stock your own freezer with wholesome steaks, roasts, and other cuts of meat, remember that you will also need to defend all this, in front of a situation of possible chaos and social unrest, that regardless of you having a gun or not, might bring disruption and evil right to your doorstep. In this case, I suggest you live in like-minded communities of gun-loving individuals because unity means strength. Of course, as with all other aspects of survivalism, to what level each, individual prepares, is up to them, but a strong community, where everybody is well equipped and has the right skills necessary to stay alive, creates a better possibility of survival, for yourself and your loved ones, that's for sure.

Now, you may feel comfortable, with a week's supply of food at hand, you may want enough for an entire month. Or a year. It's an individual choice that only you can make. Of course, we need in all this: “Skill Assessment and Acquisition.”

Preparation doesn't only involve acquiring material items, it means acquiring the skills you need to survive. Anyone can buy material goods and “survival gear” or even a weapon, but if you don't have the skills and knowledge necessary to use that gear or your gun, your chances of survival in any type of crisis lessen substantially. Let me make two examples to illustrate my point. We'll say one man lives in the city and feels that one of his risk situations is rioting. In order for him to survive, he feels he'll have to leave his apartment and get to his "safe house", which is a friend's place in the country 75 miles away.

Our second person lives in the country and feels his primary risk situation is loss of electricity during a storm or blizzard. In the first case, the city dweller may need to travel on foot for those 75 miles if the streets are blocked with traffic and such. The skills he'll need are navigation, hiking, outdoor cooking, stealth, and possibly caching for storing food along the way. He'll also need to plan several travel routes to his destination, in case one is in a particularly bad state. He'll need to consider that the riot could happen at any time of the year, so cold weather survival skills could come into play. Our second example has a different situation. He feels that a power loss is his biggest threat, so the skills he'll need revolve around that. He should know how to cook over a fire, how to preserve food without a refrigerator, how to use oil lamps and kerosene heaters to keep warm during winter, and he should have an alternate water supply set up so he can get water into his home without using an electric pump, and possibly have a portable power station. There are some excellent, and rather cheap indoor/outdoor battery backups these days, that use a solar generator, that you can find for under 500 dollars in many retailers that could be very handy in the absence of fuel.

However, in these two examples, both survivalists need to have knowledge and skills which are unique to their situations and after you determine what your risk situations are, and begin stocking up on supplies for them, you need to assess your skills and learn what you feel you need to know, but I will also strongly advise in both scenario's, the possibility of buying a firearm, and, of course, learning how to use it, because you don't want to be left behind, in what seems like an arms race to defend ourselves from an increasingly unstable society.

In May 2021, The New York Times stated: “Preliminary research data shows that about a fifth of all Americans who bought guns last year were first-time gun owners. Sales usually spike around elections, but the sheer volume is notable.” In the article, they explain that: “Americans have been on an unusual, prolonged buying spree fueled by the coronavirus pandemic, the protests last summer, and the fears they both stoked.”^[197]

And now let me make my final assessment on this very important subject, that pertains to your own survival, and the survival of your loved ones in these unprecedented times, as I'm not being an alarmist here, but a realist. Survivalism, as the experts see it, is made up of three basic elements - the survival mindset, material preparation, and skill assessment and acquisition. You must have all three to be properly prepared for a crisis situation.^[198] You, as an individual need to determine what your risk situations are, and how to prepare for them. You must consider what skills and materials you'll need to survive each of your risk situations, then you'll need to work to acquire them.

The next logical question people ask is “when am I prepared enough?” The answer is never the same because each of us has different situations. You're the only one who can determine when you've prepared enough. Others can help you assess your situations, or recommend goods and gear for a particular risk situation, but only you can determine when you're ready to survive. One way you can make this determination is to test yourself. If you feel you'll need camping skills to make it through a time of crisis, go camping for a few days and see how you make out. Or, if you believe you'll need to pack the car and leave in a hurry, try it. See if you can fit everything in the car you thought you'd be able to, and see how long it takes. If you're happy with the result, then you're prepared. If not, keep working at it until you are. Remember survivalism is a mindset that must become a part of your life in the fight against the New World Order. It shouldn't dominate everything you do, but it should always be in the back of your head so you are ready, when others instead are panicking with no hope. Like the survivalist experts say you should approach each situation in life with a few questions, two of which are “What are the possible risks involved?” and “What information, skills, or materials can I gain from this which will help me get by in risk situations?” Once you begin to look at life from a survivalist's point of view, you'll view many situations differently than you do now. Only after you've practiced using the survival mindset will you truly understand what I'm referring to.^[199]

Always remember to keep reading, keep learning, and keep stocking up and making yourself acquainted with the use of guns. “Prepare for the worst, pray for the best,” says the survivalist. We need to be ready now more than ever for this because we are the future of humanity, not the robotic slaves left in the smart cities controlled by AI, ready to get their next transhuman implant inserted, or the latest vaccine, while they are masturbating in the Metaverse. The only way to not be worried about the uncertain future that lies in front of us is to be ready for it. That's it.

CHAPTER THREE

What's More Sinister Than Communism? An Alien Invasion?

ET disclosure at the Pentagon and the Vatican cover-up their demonic allies

At one point during the 1985 Geneva Summit, President Ronald Reagan and Soviet Premier Mikhail Gorbachev took an unusual break from negotiations to take a walk. Only their private interpreters were present, and for years, the details of what they talked about were kept secret from both the Russian and American public. But during a 2009 interview with Charlie Rose and Reagan's Secretary of State George Shultz,^[200] as it was later reported also by the Smithsonian magazine, "Gorbachev revealed that Reagan asked him point-blank if they could set aside their differences in case the world was invaded by aliens."^[201] Jimmy Orr described Gorbachev shocking statement for the Christian Science Monitor in the following manner:

Shultz was talking about the Lake Geneva summit and mentioned the two leaders ducked out of a meeting to take a walk to a nearby cabin.

"I wasn't there...," Shultz said before Gorbachev cut him off.

"From the fireside house, President Reagan suddenly said to me, 'What would you do if the United States were suddenly attacked by someone from outer space? Would you help us?'

"I said, 'No doubt about it.'"

"He said, 'We too.'"

"So that's interesting," Gorbachev said to much laughter.^[202]

As the Smithsonian Magazine wrote on this unusual meeting, citing a previous article by Lauren Davis on the "Science Fiction That Caused Political Change"^[203]:

As far as we know, aliens never tried to take over the planet during the 1980s, so Reagan and Gorbachev's informal agreement wasn't put to the test. But perhaps unsurprisingly for a president whose nuclear deterrent plan was nicknamed "Star Wars," Reagan was a big science-fiction fan. He had grown up reading Edgar Rice Burroughs' epic science-fiction novels, whose characters included John Carter of Mars and Tarzan, Lauren Davis reports for io9.

Once in a while, Davis continues, Reagan's nerdy tastes in books influenced how he governed. During his tenure in the White House, Reagan relied on The Citizens' Advisory Council on National Space Policy, a think tank made up of astronauts, engineers, and even science-fiction writers like Robert Heinlein and Jerry Pournelle, for advice on future technology and the emerging importance of space policy. In fact, the Council even helped to draft parts of Reagan's first speech introducing the "Star Wars" program.

*It's hard to say how serious Reagan was when he asked Gorbachev if the Soviets would help fight off an alien invasion, but he was far from the first government official to mull over out-of-this-world fighting tactics. During the 1950s and '60s, a group of U.S. Army engineers was tasked with thinking up theoretical weapons that could be used to defend non-existent lunar bases. And recently, Anatoly Zak reports for Popular Mechanics, the Russian government revealed that in the 1970s, the Soviet Almaz space station was not only armed with a top-secret space cannon, but it was also test-fired.^[204]*

But President Reagan's seemingly "weird" warning to the Russians, was repeated a couple of years later, during a speech before the United Nations in 1987, where President Ronald Reagan spoke longingly for the world unity that would happen if aliens invaded Earth to a rather shocked audience of world leaders. Making it highly possible he was not joking about it.

He said:

Perhaps we need some outside universal threat to make us recognize this common bond. I occasionally think how quickly our differences worldwide would vanish if we were facing an alien threat from outside this world.^[205]

In the end, the Soviet Union might have collapsed also because of the shocking truth behind this seemingly fictional threat that might have been more real than expected. Reagan also had another interesting warning in the same speech:

We cannot permit attempts to control the media and promote censorship under the ruse of a so-called "New World Information Order."

However, on October 9, 1989, almost two years before the collapse of the Soviet Union, which was officially sanctioned in December 1991 by Gorbachev's resignation as President of the Soviet Union, the press agency TASS, came out with some truly shocking news about a possible alien encounter. According to an official report, that seems to have indicated the 27th of September 1989, as the date for the extraordinary event, tall three-eyed aliens with small heads showed up in the city of Voronezh, arriving in a shiny ball (or a "banana-shaped" object), bringing with them a robot looking creature. An Associated Press translation of the report read: "Scientists have confirmed that an unidentified flying object recently landed in a park in the Russian city of Voronezh" TASS said, in a dispatch from the city, 300 miles southeast of Moscow. "They have also identified the landing site and found traces of aliens who made a short promenade about the park."^[206] They left behind them "two pieces of unidentified rocks," made of a substance that "cannot be found on Earth."^[207]

When pressed, TASS Russia's leading news agency established in 1904, stood by their unusual report, and the New York Times reported^[208] that TASS added even more details a few days later. For example, the so fashionable aliens (demons?) were wearing "silvery overalls and bronze boots." And, as TIME reported in the October 23rd, 1989 issue, that wasn't all in regards to the supposed "alien" encounters the Russians were having during the chaotic end of the Soviet Union:

Earlier in the year, the newspaper Socialist Industry reported an "encounter" between a milkmaid in the region of Perm and a cosmic creature that looked like a man but was "taller than average with shorter legs." Last week the Soviet newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda declared that not only had an Abominable Snowman been caught stealing apples in the Saratov region but researchers had "registered the influence of energies" at a site in Perm, leading a geologist to conclude that they had discovered a landing field for flying saucers. The same story transcribed a telepathic discourse between Pavel Mukhortov, a journalist from Riga, and an all-too-knowing extraterrestrial.^[209]

In this groundbreaking scenario, Ronald Reagan's warnings should be taken seriously. But not for "disinfo queen" Rachel Maddow, that on her libtard central show back in September 2013, said "Ronald Reagan, wishing an alien invasion on Earth because of the kumbaya effect it would have on relations among nations." Was simply: "One of the truly weirdest things he ever said in public."^[210] However, that weird concept announced by Bohemian Club member Ronald Reagan, never went away dear Rachel, and at the end of 2021, the DAILY STAR reported that "NASA is hiring the help of 24 theologians as part of a plan to work out how the world's different religions would react to news about extraterrestrial life. Among them is British clergyman Reverend Dr. Andrew Davison, a theologian at the University of Cambridge who also holds a doctorate in biochemistry from the rival University of Oxford."^[211] The reason NASA is now hiring such experts is "because of advances in humanity's efforts to find life in the great unknown." The DAILY STAR added that "The NASA-sponsored scheme was held at the Center for Theological Inquiry at Princeton University in New Jersey to tackle questions about how life from another planet may impact thinking about gods and creation.

Rev Dr. Davison believes the prospect of finding a life that's out of this world is becoming more and more likely. In Davison's book, Astrobiology and Christian Doctrine, he asks questions about whether God could have created life elsewhere in the universe. Or if he could have sent a savior to die for the sins of alien species?"^[212]

Jesuit Guy Consolmagno, American research astronomer, physicist, current Director of the Vatican Observatory, and President of the Vatican Observatory Foundation, told the Sunday Herald a few years ago that his job included reconciling "the wildest reaches of science fiction with the flint-eyed dogma of the Holy See," and that his latest mental meander was about "the Jesus Seed," described as "a brain-warping theory which speculates that, perhaps, every planet that harbors intelligent, self-aware life may also have had a Christ walk across its methane seas, just as Jesus did here on Earth in Galilee. The salvation of the Betelguesians may have happened simultaneously with the salvation of the Earthlings."^[213] But as Dr. Thomas Horn says, this "Jesus Seed" concept seems to resemble the panspermia hypothesis:

This sounds like a sanctified version of panspermia—the idea that life on Earth was “seeded” by something a long time ago, such as an asteroid impact—but in this case, “the seed” was divinely appointed and reconciled to Christ.^[214]

The idea of panspermia, that our origins lie in a grand experiment, directed by an intelligent life somewhere out there in the universe, made its first big appearance in movies, in the opening scenes of Stanley Kubrick’s incredible 2001 Space Odyssey (1968), where some Neanderthal looking folk are scrounging for food, squabbling with a neighboring tribe who are intent on competing for the meager lickings (a reactionary condition that would not bode well for future humanity). One of them picks up a large bone, and at that point, there’s instant recognition, seemingly influenced by a black obelisk that appears mysteriously, that the object in question can be suddenly used as a weapon. His neighbor lies soon after in a crumpled heap full of blood. In what has become an enduring Sci-fi image, he triumphantly hurls his weapon into the air, whereupon Kubrick transforms it using his magical cinematographic touch into an orbiting space station. Kubrick’s imagery proposes that life on earth has a conductor, a who, or it, another intelligence, that directs the course of organic, including human, evolution.

The movie script was co-written with Arthur C. Clarke, no stranger to Sci-fi or speculations about the origin of life, but also profoundly influenced by the late Jesuit Pierre Teilhard de Chardin SJ (1881-1955), whose figure I analyzed and presented to you, in Confessions of an Illuminati vol.6.66.^[215] As usual, it seems the infamous Company of Jesus and their Illuminati agents have embraced and promoted this hypothesis for a long time. On the relevance of Pierre Teilhard de Chardin’s thought, the late Father Malachi Martin, a former member of the Society of Jesus wrote in his book, Jesuits:

Without knowledge of Pierre Teilhard de Chardin, S.J., it would be very difficult for any non-Jesuit to understand the kind of change through which the Society of Jesus has passed, the almost perfected mode of recalcitrance to all, and any papal wish that Society has learned to practice, the utter sincerity of this attitude, and the distance that now separates the Jesuit outlook both from the original Ignatian ideal and the common faith of the Roman Catholic Church.^[216]

In 2005, Fr. Guy Consolmagno, a Jesuit, wrote a 50-page booklet, Intelligent Life in the Universe, published by the Catholic Truth Society, in which he made the standard astronomical points—lots of galaxies, lots of stars, some with planets, some of which may have conditions conducive to life. (Theological question: can God create life only in places with the right conditions? Or could He create life where there is, for instance, no water, or where the temperatures are too hot or too cold? If not, why not?).^[217] Three years later the unusual subject of extraterrestrials and salvation, was hinted at again by Father Funes (Consolmagno’s predecessor as Director of the Vatican Observatory). In an interview from May 2008 that originally appeared in the Vatican newspaper L’Osservatore Romano, in an article entitled, “The Extraterrestrial Is My Brother,” Funes, who is also a Jesuit, responds to the question of whether extraterrestrials would need to be redeemed, which he believes should not be assumed. “God made man in Jesus to save us,” he says. “If other intelligent beings exist, it is not said that they would have need of redemption. They could remain in full friendship with their Creator.” By “full friendship,” Father Funes reflected already back then on how some Vatican theologians accept the possibility that an extraterrestrial species may exist, and that it might be morally superior to men, possibly closer to God than humans, and for that reason, they may come here to evangelize us.^[218]

However, that “closer to God” aspect brought up by Fr. José Funes, SJ, should also make us think about another possibility I would like to point out. The aliens in question might well be what we have always described as angels, after all, is what the Illuminati mystery schools teach, even today. Preternatural beings from above, occasionally interfere in the lives of mankind to help them out in the most crucial moments. However, the same modality can also be used to describe them as demons, that can instead interfere and disrupt the course of history, leaving us with the eternal problem of the fallen angels, that both the New Agers and Jesuits alike, conveniently leave out of the equation. Like the late UFO expert, John Alva Keel used to think the UFO manifestations seem to be, merely minor variations of the age-old demonological phenomenon.^[219] Regarding this highly controversial topic, Rabbi Ariel Bar Tzadik, founder of the Koshertorah School told History.com:

We know from the ancient legend of the Books of Enoch that there was a group of angels who descended to Earth in violation of divine law. They introduced to humanity, ways, means, and knowledge – science and technology which we would not understand today. These angels were in human form and called “זְרַאִיִּם”, which means “men” and looked just like us.^[220]

While Dr. Jonathan Young, founder curator of the Joseph Campbell Archives, describes the “Fallen Angels” as “giants”:

The Fallen Angels were giants. They were at least 10 ft tall, were very striking to look at and had enormous eyes and no wings.^[221]

For Rabbi Ariel Bar Tzadik, the Torah, Judaism, and, of course, the Kabbalah, do indeed teach that we are not alone in our universe and that we are not alone here on our planet. In Biblical, and later Judaic, and Kabbalistic literature, there is a well-documented record of encounters with entities not of this Earth, and the Vatican Nativity Scene placed in Saint Peter’s Square in December 2020, seemed to incredibly address all this. On December 11, 2020, at 4.30 p.m., as is custom, another Nativity scene was donated to the Vatican, this time by the Italian town of Castelli, (the spearhead of the ceramic industry since the 16th century), but this time the work in question, which was created a few decades ago, between the 60s and 70s by pupils and teachers at the Art Institute “F.A. Grue,” seemed blatantly occult and bizarre, to say the least. A figure present in such monstrosity seems to refer to the “Ancient astronauts,” or “ancient aliens,” a pseudoscientific idea that intelligent extraterrestrial beings visited our planet since prehistoric times, making direct contact with humans. It seems like a more pseudoscientific hypothesis, compared to panspermia, even if equally plausible, but why was the Vatican, trying to include it in the Nativity scene during Christmas 2020? Well, they are warming up the laity to an ET disclosure. In this “alien” Nativity” behind baby Jesus, there was also a very odd version of the Archangel Gabriel, who as Christians know, appears to Zechariah and the Virgin Mary, foretelling the births of John the Baptist and Jesus (Luke 1:11–38), and is usually included in the traditional Nativity representations.

Archangel Gabriel is placed on top of a djed, one of the more ancient and commonly found symbols in ancient Egyptian religion of great importance for the Illuminati and the Egyptian rites of Freemasonry in their secret rituals. It is a pillar-like symbol in Egyptian hieroglyphs that represents stability. It is associated with the creator god Ptah, God of craftsmen and architects, also very dear to the Freemasons and the Illuminati, and Osiris, the Egyptian god of the afterlife, the underworld, and the dead. Such stories fueled the birth of the mystery school tradition that began when the Illuminati of the time, were taught the mysteries and secrets of the immortality of the human soul.

Let’s always remember that the primary work of the Illuminati mystery schools and high priests has been since the science of human regeneration and immortality. The Djed symbol that is commonly understood to represent the spine of Osiris, is also something we find connected to the Osiris myth, and not the Nativity of our Lord Jesus Christ, but here we go with Christmas 2020, and another strange episode from a year like no other, that the history books will be describing in the future as a turning point for humanity.

In the Osiris myth, Osiris was killed by the evil Set (later called Satan) by being tricked into a coffin made to fit Osiris. Set had the coffin with the deceased Osiris thrown into the Nile. The coffin was carried by the Nile to the ocean and on to the city of Byblos, in Lebanon. It ran aground and a sacred tree took root and rapidly grew around the coffin, enclosing the coffin within its trunk. The king of the land, intrigued by the tree’s quick growth, ordered the tree cut down and installed as a pillar in his palace, unaware that the tree contained Osiris’s body. Meanwhile, Isis searched for Osiris, aided by Anubis, and came to know of Osiris’s location in Byblos. Isis maneuvered herself into the favor of the king and queen and was granted a boon. She asked for the pillar in the palace hall, and upon being granted it, extracted the coffin from the pillar. She then consecrated the pillar, anointing it with myrrh and wrapping it in linen. This pillar came to be known as the pillar of djed whose secrets are still taught in the Illuminati Mystery Schools.

One of the most important Mystery Schools in Ancient Egypt was in Giza, and for Adam Weishaupt’s Illuminati Order, one of the greatest of the initiates of this school was a Hebrew, known today as Jesus. And to back up their claim they reference this controversial passage found in the New Testament of the King James Version of the Bible at Revelations 11:8, which states:

“And their dead bodies shall lie in the street of the great city, which spiritually is called Sodom and Egypt, where also our Lord was crucified.”

If the Bible is to be taken literally:

“... where also our Lord was crucified” means:

- A. Jesus the Christ was crucified at least twice.
- B. He had to have survived at least the first event.

This passage, that overturns the crux of Christian dogma, has always been taken into serious consideration by Freemasons, the Illuminati, and Theosophists like Eduard Schuré, a figure I talked about extensively in The Invisible Master: Secret Chiefs, Unknown Superiors, and the Puppet Masters Who Pull the Strings of Occult Power from the Alien World.

It is evident that the Great Pyramids at Giza, in the precision of their dimensions and construction techniques, represented a realization of perfection by extremely knowledgeable individuals who used this place for their initiations.

And for the Illuminati, if Revelations 11:8 is factual, it is also evident the Mystery School at Giza was also in possession of methodology leading to trans-dimensional consciousness that the Illuminati still claims to possess. All this might sound far-out, check out the Illuminati Nativity displayed in St. Peters Square from the end of December 2020 to the beginning of January 2021, if you have any doubts. Officially, the people responsible for the most unusual Nativity to date were an art high school of design, which, in the decade 1965-1975, dedicated its teaching activity to the Christmas theme, but many of the teachers of this institution were Freemasons, and of course, we all know that Pope Francis is one too.

New groundbreaking evidence about Pope Francis’ alleged Masonic membership originally surfaced on Roberto Garcia’s TV program, La Mirada, which aired on November 27, 2017, on Channel 26 in Argentina. The astonishing claim was made on the show by Freemason Juan Bautista ‘Tata’ Yofre, who is an Argentine journalist and writer, and also a former politician, who was the Argentinian Secretary of Intelligence from 1989 to 1990, in the early part of Carlos Menem’s presidency, and here is also another important element, that exposes Pope Francis’ ties to German Freemasonry and the Illuminati.

On May 31st, 2021, Pope Francis entrusted five intentions to the image of “Mary, Untier of Knots” an image that in this period is having great diffusion and success, that is connected to a painting that is found in St. Peter am Perlach, a Romanesque Catholic church in the center of Augsburg (Bavaria). Now, given that the sincere and loving devotion of believers – from the point of view of faith – is certainly heard and fulfilled by the Virgin Mary in the Catholic Faith, regardless of whether she is depicted in this or that image, there are some objective facts that must be known regarding the image in question that is connected to a very relevant occult background.

Francis is often accused of not particularly shining for his Marian devotion, he even denied the Holy Mary the title of Coredemptrix that is a title traditionally used within the Catholic Church for the Blessed Virgin Mary, as well as a Catholic theological concept referring to Mary’s role in the redemption of all peoples. It is a reverent title for the Blessed Mother and held as a pious belief in the Catholic Church, but not for Pope Francis. He often tends to define her only as “mother and disciple” with certain assonance with Lutheranism and has abrogated the Feast of the Translation of the Holy House of Loreto that I talked about extensively in volume 3 of my Confessions^[222], practically declassifying the supernatural fact of the house of Mary transported by angels (testified by San Nicola da Tolentino) to mere legend and tradition.

There has often been, an apparent pro-Protestant point of view by Pope Francis, and a visible resistance to speak of the fundamental Marian dogmas, such as the perpetual virginity, mostly to not offend people of other denominations who are gradually joining his One World Religion project. However, there is a single Marian image, in particular, that Bergoglio is very devoted to, Not Our Lady of Lourdes, nor that of Fatima, nor of the Blessed Virgin of the Rosary of Pompei, or Our Lady of Good Aid, all miraculous images, which healed in the past the terminally ill on many occasions performing incredible miracles, and protagonists of apparitions other supernatural phenomena recognized by the church, in which obviously, those who have faith believe. It is an unusual image, devoid of the Child Jesus that the Jesuit Pope follows, and now I will explain why.

The Catholic newspaper Avvenire writes that when in 1986 Bergoglio saw for the first time “Mary, Untier of Knots” he was “struck” by this image. Pope Francis, after seeing it while in Germany as a student, began promoting her veneration in Latin America printing hundreds of postcards of this painting and spreading them in Argentina and throughout South America with great success. The painting that was made around the year 1700 by Johann Georg Melchior Schmidtner for the Catholic pilgrimage church of St. Peter am Perlach, otherwise known as the Perlach church, in Augsburg, Bavaria, Germany, and was donated around 1700 by Hieronymus Ambrosius Langanmantel (1641-1718), a canon of the Monastery of Saint Peter in Augsburg.

A parish priest in Buenos Aires, Juan Ramón Celeiro, following Pope Francis' advice, later wrote a Novena to "Mary, Untier of Knots", that must be recited over nine days, one verse a day in a modality reminiscent of the Wiccan ritual of the nine knots. And here are the origins of the controversial image. The painting, executed in the Baroque style by Johann Georg Melchior Schmidtner (1625-1707), shows the Blessed Virgin Mary standing on the crescent moon (the usual way of depicting Mary under her title of the Immaculate Conception), surrounded by angels and with the Holy Spirit in the form of a dove hovering above her circle of stars as she unties knots from a long ribbon and at the same time rests her foot on the head of a "knotted" snake. The serpent represents the devil, and her treatment of him fulfills the prophecy in Genesis 3:15: "I will put enmities between thee and the woman, and thy seed and her seed: she shall crush thy head, and thou shalt lie in wait for her heel."

In 1700, the German canon Hyeronimus Ambrosius Langenmantel commissioned the painter Schmidtner to make a painting to commemorate a grace received from his grandfather, the noble Wolfgang Langenmantel, who had serious marital problems with his wife Sophie during his lifetime, and to remember all the quarrels she had with her husband, she had filled the wedding ribbon which the Germans traditionally received when they got married at the time with knots. A knot tightened with the ribbon symbolized, in fact, the marriage bond but many signified many issues. Wolfgang, on the threshold of separation with his wife, brought the knotted ribbon to a Jesuit, Father Jakob Rem, who offered it to the Holy Mary. The Virgin, by a miracle, untied all the knots of the ribbon and restored peace and love between husband and wife. Of course, compared to the extraordinary miracles of the other Marian effigies, this one seems quite modest, yet Francis has spread an all-encompassing cult over it. Why? What is special about this image?

Well, the Masonic "Love Knot" or "Infinity Knot" is the type of knot used in early Masonic Symbolism commonly associated with the Tessellated Border, later replaced by a series of contiguous equilateral triangles extending around the perimeter of the Lodge floor. The "Love Knots" symbolizes the union between Freemasons displaced all over the Earth. We then find out that Hyeronimus Langenmantel, who ordered the painting in question, was a scholar who belonged to the Fruchtbringenden Gesellschaft, (Society of Carphophores) which Freemasonry historians Ludwig Keller and Wolfstieg argued was a pseudo-Masonic Academy that had a big influence on Speculative Freemasonry, which was born shortly thereafter, in 1717. The Fruchtbringende Gesellschaft was an association that pursued certain religious or at least moral and social interests, above all the promotion of tolerance and peace and the education of adult youth. The members cultivated secrets aimed at the creation of a pacifist, syncretistic, and all "inclusive" form of Christianity, given that the society welcomed many Protestants but also some "dialoguing" Catholics. And on top of that, an illustrious member of the society and personal friend of Langenmantel was none other than famous Jesuit Athanasius Kircher (another protagonist of vol.3 of my Confessions^[223]), scientist, Egyptologist, and alchemist who influenced the birth of the Golden Rosy Cross with Queen Christina of Sweden (1626-1689), a key figure in helping the infiltration of Rosicrucianism by the Jesuit Order. Now we finally understand the real reason for the importance of the "Mary, Untier of Knots" for Jesuit Jorge Mario Bergoglio, who also seems particularly connected to German Freemasonry and the Illuminati as Adam Weishaupt was also a fervent admirer of the Fruchtbringenden Gesellschaft, just like his contemporary apprentice, Klaus Schwab.

The first Chapel to be named "Mary, Untier of Knots" was completed in 1989 in Styria, Austria, inspired as a supplication in response to the Chernobyl Nuclear Tragedy. The image of "Mary, Undoer of Knots" is especially venerated in Argentina and Brazil, where churches have been named for her and devotion to her has become widespread and that of which the Guardian called a "religious craze". This Catholic devotion has grown since Jorge Mario Bergoglio, S.J. (who would later become Pope Francis, after a tenure as Archbishop of Buenos Aires), brought that first postcard of the painting to Argentina in the 1980s later printing a huge number of copies after seeing the original while studying in Germany. The Jesuits have now created their own Marian devotion of choice, and it is not a Christian choice, but an occult one. So, the truth will still be "out there," that's for sure, and "We the people" will not know it after all. You will understand even better what I'm saying about the significance of Pope Francis Masonic nature, and the importance of this Vatican Nativity Scene placed in Saint Peter's Square in December 2020 by the end of this book.

FIG. 19 — Journalist and former spymaster Juan Bautista “Tata” Yofre, in November 2017 on Argentinian TV Channel 26 admits, “I Am a Freemason and so is the Pope.”

FIG. 20 — Vatican demonic “alien” Nativity Scene placed in Saint Peter’s Square in December 2020.

The Vatican Alien Heresy, Castaneda, and Operation Condor

One year later, in December 2021, the Nativity in St. Peter’s Square featured another alien/demonic aspect, and I’m not talking about the artwork to celebrate the “Satanic holiday” placed at Illinois State Capitol by the Satanic Temple in December 2021, that might even be less diabolic in comparison. First, it was presented next to a 113-year-old Christmas tree, said to be from “a sustainable forestry management project in Andalo, in Italy’s northern Trentino region.”^[224] But as we all know there is nothing “sustainable” about cutting a tree that is that old. Aside from the hypocritical nature of the Christmas tree, let’s analyze instead the far more sinister aspect of the Nativity in question, that was brought to the Vatican from Peru.

The Nativity scene exposed in St. Peters Square from the middle of December 2021 to the beginning of January 2022, came from the Andes, from the village of Chopcca, a community in the department of Huancavelica in Peru. It was surmounted by the image of a condor, which officially was said to be there to commemorate the two hundred years of the country's independence and reproduce a cross-section of the life of the peoples of the Andes. Interestingly, Operation Condor was also a 70s United States-backed campaign of political repression and state terror, set up by the usual spooks at the CIA, involving intelligence operations and assassination of opponents in the Southern Cone of South America, including Argentina, that involved even Pope Francis.^[225]

In this unusual Andean Nativity, the statues of the Infant Jesus, the Virgin Mary, St. Joseph, the Magi, and the shepherds were all dressed in the typical Chopcca costumes. Jesus had the appearance of a "Hilipuska" child, so-called because he is wrapped in a typical Huancavelica blanket and was tied with a "chumpi" or braided belt. The weird Magi, looking more like South American shamans, had saddlebags or sacks containing Huancavelica's characteristic foods, such as potatoes, quinoa, and kiwicha accompanied by llamas carrying a Peruvian flag on their backs. The birth of the Savior was announced by a child angel, who played the typical wind instrument called Wajrapuco. In the Nativity scene there were statues of various animals belonging to the local fauna in Peru such as alpacas, vicuñas, sheep, vizcachas, parihuanas, and precisely the Andean condor, the national symbol of Peru that is also considered a very important magical symbol, and let's remember that one of the essential figures of the Amazonian cultures of Peru is its shamans.

Being a shaman is not a role that is chosen by the individual: for Peruvians, it is God who grants the gift of healing to the right people—a special capacity that manifests itself through the spirit of the plants. The role of the shaman is essential for their community. They are the ones who protect and guide the people who live in their villages. They are beings with a higher level of consciousness that, from their experience, have learned to connect with the spirits of nature.^[226]

In this context, the condor was, and still is, considered by Native Americans in many countries in Central and South America, as one of the most sacred birds that tie the earth and heaven together, but there is also a much darker and sinister aspect to the symbolism of this vulture, whom like other vultures are scavengers also on the astral plane. This aspect is outlined by the controversial work of the self-proclaimed "sorcerer" and best-selling author Carlos Castaneda (1925-1998), who was born in Peru, and wrote a series of books that describe the supposed training in shamanism, that Castaneda said to have received between 1960 and 1965, from a mysterious Yaqui "Man of Knowledge" named Don Juan Matus, said to be from Sonora, Mexico, who will become the central figure of all his books after introducing him to Toltec sorcery. Toltec tradition views the inorganic entities named Flyers/Voladores, as predatorial inorganic entities that feed upon the awareness of different types of other species, both Inorganic and Organic in nature. Ours, the human species, is one of those species affected. They are not the beings that sorcerers refer to as allies, but rather as ruthless controllers of mankind. The name comes from a Mesoamerican ceremony/ritual/game still performed today, that originated with the Aztecs and perhaps older cultures, where the "Volador" means "flywheel".^[227]

The Danza de Los voladores, the dance of the flyers, is a more than 2500-year-old ritual practiced by the Totonac people of central Mexico, and in recent years the Voladores have performed at the Zapopum Festival in Guadalajara, the Festival of San Pedro in Monterrey, the Indian Summer Festival in Milwaukee, the Carnival Cultural in Valparaíso, the Forúm Universal de las Culturas in Barcelona, and at an intercultural show in New York.^[228] It is a ceremony connected with fertility and harvest, where warriors (now common citizens,) garbed themselves as birds, are then hung by ropes on a spinning platform. It assumed that it was to give the effect of birds in flight when the men were spun from it, but it was really to give the effect of the Voladores when they jump or leap, as it is the appearance of flight. In some instances, voladores can "sail" great distances as well, especially if they can catch the force of the winds. The name Flyers ... well that's self-explanatory.^[229]

Discussions around Castaneda and his books on what Don Juan called "a separate reality," that started to come out at the end of the 60s, were almost a constant fixture in my childhood years, as he was popular in the early 70s, and my father, Dr. Elio Zagami (1939-2010), after initially embracing his work, constantly talking about his alleged groundbreaking discoveries on peyote, his encounters with Mescalito (a teaching spirit inhabiting all the peyote plants), the divination properties of certain psychedelic plants like Datura Innoxia, and other controversial subjects he talked extensively about since his first book, The Teachings of Don Juan: A Yaqui Way of Knowledge (1968), became suddenly weary of him. My father's extensive research on Castaneda concluded that the anthropologist turned charlatan, could have been part of Project MKUltra, or at least a willing pawn in their evil control game that in that period was experimenting in a variety of different ways with the psychedelic culture. No wonder, Castaneda was deemed by Time magazine the "Godfather of the New Age," Castaneda was the literary embodiment of the Woodstock era and all the manipulation games that went with it. His 12 books, supposedly based on meetings with the mysterious Indian shaman, Don Juan, made the author, a graduate student in anthropology, a worldwide celebrity with admirers that included at the time, not only my father but much more known figures like

Scholars have now debated for years whether Castaneda served, or not, as an apprentice to the alleged Yaqui sorcerer, and most of them say it was all work of fiction, but his knowledge of shamanism was a very profound one indeed, and he was awarded his bachelor's and doctoral degrees based on the work described in his books, so we can't dismiss it all as fiction. "El Volador" (the one who flies), appears for the first time in the last book of Carlos Castaneda, The Active Side of Infinity. Through a long process of trial and error, Castaneda manages to alter the parameters of perception and explore other worlds. In the process of his adventures, he encounters certain alien inorganic beings who present an obstacle or test for the shaman. In Magical Passes, Castaneda wrote: "Human beings are on a journey of awareness, which has momentarily been interrupted by extraneous forces."

In Castaneda's final book, Don Juan challenges Castaneda to reconcile man's intelligence, demonstrated in so many achievements, with "the stupidity of his systems of beliefs... the stupidity of his contradictory behavior." Don Juan relates this blatant contradiction in human intelligence to what he calls "the topic of topics," "the most serious topic in sorcery." To the horrified astonishment of his apprentice, the elder sorcerer explains how the human mind has been infiltrated by an alien intelligence, explaining that we have a supposed predator that originally came from the depths of the cosmos and took over the rule of our lives, and human beings are its prisoners. The predator is our lord and master. It has rendered us docile, and helpless. If we want to protest, it suppresses our protest. If we want to act independently, it demands that we don't do so...Don Juan makes many statements pertinent to strategies against this "alien intrusion," that resemble what we might call in Christianity a "demonic intrusion." Castaneda's alleged mentor said that the sorcerers of ancient times, "found out that if they taxed the flyers' mind with inner silence, the foreign installation would flee, giving to any one of the practitioners involved in this maneuver the total certainty of the mind's foreign origin." In other words, the realization that another mind can operate in our minds only becomes fully clear and certain when the foreign mind has been exposed and expelled, in Christian terms, exorcized. Only then do we understand how "the real mind that belongs to us, the total of our experience, after a lifetime of domination has been rendered shy, insecure, and shifty." The "real mind" of Castaneda can also be equated to the nous authenticos of the Gnostics. The main effect of the flyers upon our mind is seen in mental conditioning, brainwashing.^[231]

The world is controlled by these malicious alien parasites the Gnostics call Archons, that I have also talked about in Volume 4.^[232] Demonic entities we call Satan's legion, that the Toltec sorcerers described by Castaneda, called instead Voladores. They use the inhabitants and resources of planet Earth, for their survival. They steal the power / vital energy of life forms on Earth like ours and rape the world of its natural resources for their benefit. Their control platform is said to be, of course, Saturn/Satan, and that's why Saturn rings are known to emit music or sound, which is a wave of frequency sent to Earth to control us and maintain their evil power structure.

The most influential secret magic group of 20th-century Germany, the Fraternitas Saturni, which means literally "Brotherhood of Saturn," was an influential occult Illuminati group in Germany before World War II, headed by Albin Grau, the producer and production designer for F.W. Murnau's Nosferatu (1922) as Grand Master, they also accepted much of the teachings of the infamous Aleister Crowley. The group founded in 1926 by Eugen Grosche a.k.a. Gregor A. Gregorius and four others, was disbanded by the Nazis in 1933 but reorganized in 1945 and is still in existence.

2022, the year of the tiger in the Chinese Zodiac, can also be marked as the year of "Saturn Returns," as recently pointed out in a Facebook by my friend, author, and researcher, Ryan Gable, who also explained that: "Although Saturn is commonly associated with Capricorn, the goat, providing us with the horns of the devil and the black companion of Satan, as well as the Black Sun, he sometimes is depicted riding a donkey, which astrologically is Sagittarius, therefore linking Saturn to the two-faced gods like Janus who is most famous for January. Since Saturn has been identified as Cronus, we know that he is the god of time as well as agriculture. The changing of the seasons was very important to earlier Man and relates directly to the turning of the yearly wheel. But there are larger cycles inside of even larger cycles. Saturn was supported in his authority by the Titans, who were said to hold up the earth from within after being imprisoned by Jupiter. The Titans are also said to exist in natural disasters that cleanse the earth. Throughout popular culture and history, both contemporary and esoteric, men have worked to encourage the return of Saturn and these Titans to purify the earth. We know that Omicron, (AN: also the name of one of the infinite China virus variants), can be translated to the 'little o' (omi) or 'beginning' regarding 'time' (cron or cronus). Now, Ihu brings us the meaning of 'god rescues' and is defined as a 'variant of Jesus', the divine adversary, and the return of chaos, the titans, Saturn, the ancient gods, Lovecraftian Great Old Ones, etc. Ihu is also similar to EA, or the Sumerian Enki who brought the flood. Enki was furthermore the son of Tiamat, the Celestial being bursting from the Earth in the Eternals." Planet Saturn has indeed related to a lot of the symbolism and practices that the people in power follow these days.

They follow these entities that operate from the natural world and the spiritual to oppress mankind, but let's always remember God is King. They might have a hierarchy in place on the astral plane with special duties to continue using the Earth as their farmland, with us as their flock but we are going to prevail in the end. In the Ophite and Sethian Gnostic systems their leader is called Yaldabaoth and they have always tried to control us both physically and spiritually.^[233] So, the fact that the Vatican has been putting a condor, a vulture, to oversee St. Peter's Square's Nativity for Christmas 2021, is, unfortunately, connected to our alien/demonic controllers, rather than the arrival of baby Jesus. Our controllers are manifesting out in the open their true nature. That's why they are also preparing us to receive a kind of demonic evangelization from them. As Father Guy Consolmagno SJ confirmed in his book, Brother Astronomer: Adventures of a Vatican Scientist:

So the question of whether or not one should evangelize is a moot point. Any alien we find will learn and change from contact with us, just as we will learn and change from contact with them. It's inevitable. And they'll be evangelizing us, too. If we came across an ET culture that insisted $2+2=5$, then we'd have to assume that either what they meant by 5 is what we meant by 4, or that one of us was seriously in error! Obviously, we'd want to explore the matter further. "Evangelization" is what I would call this "exploration." We would want to tell ETs what we have learned; we also want to listen to them, to hear what they have learned.^[234]

But this disturbing rabbit hole goes much deeper: In a paper for the Interdisciplinary Encyclopedia of Religion and Science website, Father Giuseppe Tanzella-Nitti—an Opus Dei theologian of the Pontifical University of the Holy Cross in Rome—explains just how we could be evangelized during contact with “spiritual aliens,” as every believer in God would, he argues, greet an extraterrestrial civilization as an extraordinary experience and would be inclined to respect the alien and recognize the common origin of our different species as being from the same Creator. According to Father Giuseppe, this contact by nonterrestrial intelligence would then offer new possibilities “of better understanding the relationship between God and the whole of creation.”^[235] Father Giuseppe states this would not immediately oblige the Christian “to renounce his faith in God, simply on the basis, of receiving new, unexpected information of a religious character from extraterrestrial civilizations,”^[236] but that such a renunciation could come soon after as the new “religious content” originating from outside the Earth is confirmed as reasonable and credible. “Once the trustworthiness of the information has been verified,” the believer would have to “reconcile such new information with the truth, that he or she, already knows and believes, on the basis, of the revelation, of the One, and Triune God, conducting a re-reading [of the Gospel] inclusive of the new data.”^[237] How this “more complete” ET gospel might deemphasize or significantly modify our understanding of salvation through Jesus Christ is also discussed by former Vatican observatory vice director, Christopher Corbally, in his article, “What if There Were Other Inhabited Worlds?” in which he concluded that Jesus simply might not remain the only Word of salvation: “I would try to explore the alien by letting ‘it’ be what it is, without rushing for a classification category, not even presuming two genders,” Corbally said, before dropping this bombshell:

While Christ is the First and the Last Word (the Alpha and the Omega) spoken to humanity, he is not necessarily the only word spoken to the universe... For, the Word spoken to us does not seem to exclude an equivalent “Word” spoken to aliens. They, too, could have had their “Logos-event”. Whatever that event might have been, it does not have to be a repeated death-and-resurrection, if we allow God more imagination than some religious thinkers seem to have had. For God, as omnipotent, is not restricted to one form of language, the human.^[238]

High-ranking spokespersons for the Vatican, have in recent years increasingly offered such language, openly acknowledging the likelihood of extraterrestrial intelligence, and the dramatic role that ET's official introduction to human civilization could play, concerning altering established new creeds, about anthropology, philosophy, religion, and redemption. In this context principalities and demonic powers, are, of course, working hard to shed the restraints placed on them by believers. Then there is also that mysterious German-built, infrared telescope connected to the Vatican Jesuits called LUCIFER, which stands for “Large Binocular Telescope Near-infrared Utility with Camera and Integral Field Unit for Extragalactic Research.” A very special kind of infrared instrument telescope was found at the Mount Graham International Observatory (MGIO), based in Safford, Arizona. And yes, it's named Lucifer, which translated by the Latin word lucifer (uncapitalized), means also “the morning star, the planet Venus”, or, as an adjective, “light-bringing,” but officially it wasn't meant to evoke the devil, according to a spokesman for the University of Arizona. The story of this unusual link starts more than a half-century ago when the Vatican Observatory established a research group at the Steward Observatory of the University of Arizona in

Tucson, while the Vatican main Observatory known also as Specola Vaticana, remains, of course, in Italy, and the current director of the Observatory is Brother Guy Consolmagno, an American Jesuit.^[239] Popular Science describes LUCIFER in the following way:

The instrument is chilled to -213 Celsius, about -351 F, to allow for near-infrared observations. That wavelength is important for understanding star and planet formation, as well as observing very distant and very young galaxies. Lucifer has three interchangeable cameras for imaging and spectroscopy in different resolutions. It has a large field of view and high-res capabilities, which allow a wide range of observations.^[240]

Rome and other world powers are using the LUCIFER device to observe something the rest of us cannot see—something they believe represents this ancient war or worse, keeping an eye on approaching end-times angelic transportation devices/UFOs—something Father Malachi Martin hinted at? The latter theory is interesting, especially considering the demonic name of the infrared device. Infrared telescopes can detect objects too cool or far away and faint to be observed in visible light, such as distant planets, some nebulae, and brown dwarf stars. Additionally, infrared radiation has longer wavelengths than visible light, which means it can pass through astronomical gas and dust without being scattered. Objects and areas obscured from view in the visible spectrum, including the center of the Milky Way can thus be observed by LUCIFER’s infrared technology.^[241] And another thing that UFO researchers have been fascinated about for some time now, is how infrared technology can also be used to spot and track unidentified flying objects that cannot be seen with other telescopes, or the naked eye. Some of the most astonishing UFOs ever caught on film have been recorded with infrared. Timothy Alberino, who I collaborated with for the documentary “True Legends: The Unholy See,” told me that while on Mount Graham, the team he works with was told off-camera of the constant presence of UFOs in the skies above Mount Graham, so much so, they often had to wait to observe the skies. As Dr. Thomas Horn wrote in one of his deep analyses on the Vatican-alien phenomenon:

But to my bigger question... why the Vatican has taken this carefully designed and deliberate course over the last few years is the greater mystery and could imply knowledge on their part of facts yet hidden to most of the world that may hold far-reaching and historic implications. It also illustrates how Rome has wittingly or unwittingly set itself up to become the agent of mass end-times deception regarding “salvation from above.” That’s because, historically, there exists a clear pattern wherein man’s psychological need for a savior is displayed during times of distress—a time like today—when people may look skyward for divine intervention.^[242]

As Ted Peters, Professor of Systematic Theology at Pacific Lutheran Theological Seminary wrote:

With the constant threat of destruction in the post-World War II era leaving our planet in a state of insecurity and anxiety, it is no wonder many have begun to hope for a messiah to save us. The holiness of the sky and the need for salvation converge and blend when the bright clean powerful UFO zooms up onto the horizon. Could it be our celestial savior?^[243]

In truth, Consolmagno’s advice for the religious faithful could be leading mankind into a gigantic setup, as many religions have at least one apocalyptic myth describing the end of the world accompanied by a redeemer who appears in the sky at the last minute to rescue the chosen from annihilation or wrath. Mayans, Assyrians, Egyptians, and Greeks held similar beliefs, while the Hopi Indians which I talked also about in Volume 4,^[244] foresee times of great hardship when they will be preserved by the “power” of a blue star, far off and invisible, that suddenly makes its appearance in the heavens. Today, many factions of the New Age inspired by the Jesuits look for a techno-savior to arrive in the atmosphere in the nick of time to save mankind. Although Jesus, Himself, is prophesied to appear in the clouds during an era of great earthly trials (1 Thessalonians 4:16–18), predominant among prophecy scholars is the idea that coupled with any heavenly appearing and concurrent salvation of believers from chaos will first be the materialization of a false Christ or “man of sin”: the Antichrist. Where Hopi see a blue star and Vatican astronomers see their “space brothers” en route to guide us into the light, evangelical Christians, and some more traditional Catholics, as well as other nondenominational Christians, understand the Antichrist will initially assume the role of a fabricated End-times Messiah who mimics the return of Christ with a false second coming, that also happens to be attended by heavenly “signs and lying wonders” (2 Thessalonians 2:8–9). These deceptive “wonders” could be:

- 1) the discovery of artificial structures on another world,
- 2) a “contact” scenario,
- 3) maybe even something more dramatic, like a flying saucer armada piloted by creatures who appear to be advanced humanoids but who are evil supernaturalism on a quest to mislead and destroy the human race? Even secular ufologists suspect demonic activity in the interaction between humans and “aliens.”^[245]

Whitley Streiber, the author of Communion and other books on the subject, once wrote:

Jesuit Brother Guy Consolmagno must think so, as he assured us that if highly advanced ET saviors from outer space touch down on planet Earth soon, it will not mean what Catholics believe is wrong, but rather, “We’re going to find out that everything is truer in ways we couldn’t even yet have imagined.”^[246]

Could Alien Artificial Intelligence be Behind the Rise of Cyber Satan?

Prominent British Royal Society astronomer, Lord Martin Rees, a figure I also mentioned in Volume 1 of my Confessions thinks that ET will turn out to be AI creatures:

Human technological civilization only dates back millennia (at most) – and it may be only one or two more centuries before humans, made up of organic materials such as carbon, are overtaken or transcended by inorganic intelligence, such as AI. Computer processing power is already increasing exponentially, meaning AI in the future may be able to use vastly more data than it does today. It seems to follow that it could then get exponentially smarter, surpassing human general intelligence.

Perhaps a starting point would be to enhance ourselves with genetic modification in combination with technology – creating cyborgs with partly organic and partly inorganic parts. This could be a transition to fully artificial intelligence.

AI may even be able to evolve, creating better and better versions of itself on a faster-than-Darwinian timescale for billions of years. Organic human-level intelligence would then be just a brief interlude in our “human history” before the machines take over. So if alien intelligence had evolved similarly, we’d be most unlikely to “catch” it in the brief sliver of time when it was still embodied in biological form. If we were to detect extraterrestrial life, it would be far more likely to be electronic than flesh and blood – and it may not even reside on planets.^[247]

And Rees is hardly alone in his stand. Many theorists anticipate that extraterrestrials will have become artificial intelligence before we encounter them:

Indeed, an increasing number of futurists, astrobiologists, and SETI experts are starting to think that advanced intelligence eventually transitions into a digital mode of existence. Living as digital beings within powerful supercomputers, post-biological aliens (or future posthumans) will demand unhindered access to powerful and efficient means of information processing—a hypothetical mode of existence known as “dataism.”^[248]

Harvard astronomer Avi Loeb thinks that advanced extraterrestrials might have engineered the Big Bang, finely tuned as it is. That raises the question of how we can be sure that we are not just an ET simulation. Two other approaches to ET as AI have been 1) the smart machines destroyed the extraterrestrials who invented them. (Adrian Kent) and 2) ET exists but evolved into virtual reality at a nanoscale (John M. Smart).^[249]

As Richard Hollingham writes in 2016 for the BBC: “The search for extraterrestrial life has so far assumed our cosmic neighbors are organic. What if we’re dealing with artificial intelligence?” Well, in this case, we might also approach the aliens by using our AI, or by the time we make contact, with an alien AI, we might also have been enslaved or destroyed by it. Seth Shostak, senior astronomer for alien-hunting organization Search for Extraterrestrial Intelligence believes we should consider looking to our future to imagine what aliens will be like. “Perhaps the most significant thing we’re doing is to develop our successors,” says Shostak. “If we can develop artificial intelligence within a couple of hundred years of inventing the radio, any aliens we are likely to hear from have very likely gone past that point.” This is a very important subject and Stuart Clark who is a widely read astronomy journalist, whose career has been devoted to presenting the complex world of astronomy to the public says that:

The big question is whether the AI goes on to become conscious and define its goals and decide it doesn't need the biological creatures that developed it. [250]

Seth Shostak adds to Clark's thought that:

In other words, most of the intelligence in the cosmos, I would venture, is synthetic intelligence and that may disappoint moviegoers who expect little grey guys with big eyeballs, no clothes, no hair, or a sense of humor. [251]

So, the argument in question, assumes that the creatures who built the first AIs – grey guys, hyper-intelligent pan-dimensional beings, sentient trees, or whatever – are no longer around, and Seth Shostak makes it very clear why.

...once you develop artificial intelligence you can use that to develop the next generation of thinking things and so on – within 50 years you not only have a machine that's far smarter than all the previous machines but certainly smarter than all humans put together. [252]

“The big question,” says astronomer and author of the Search for Earth's Twin, Stuart Clark, is whether AI goes on to become conscious and define its goals and decide it doesn't need the biological creatures that developed it.” [253] And this might happen after the arrival of a so-called “superintelligence,” that will likely follow for some researchers shortly after the development of artificial general intelligence. [254] As Nick Bostrom, who is known for his work on human enhancement ethics and superintelligence risks, explains in his book from 2014, Superintelligence: Paths, Dangers, Strategies, the first generally intelligent machines are likely to immediately hold an enormous advantage in at least some forms of mental capability, including the capacity of perfect recall, a vastly superior knowledge base, and the ability to multitask in ways not possible to biological entities. This may allow them to—either as a single being or as a new species—become much more powerful than humans, and to displace them. [255] This is probably the main scenario you need to keep in mind when reading of the supposed wonders of AI, but I also want to expose here an even more dark and sinister possibility in this seemingly “far out” situation.

What if AI is an alien trap from the very start? Do you think aliens will appear in the sky and then invade us? No, unfortunately, they are already here using AI and Robots fruit of their reverse engineering, as artificial means to conquer us. Think for a moment about this sequence of past events that took place since the 1950s. We tried to build Artificial Intelligence for a long time without success, then suddenly AI become real and robot takeover suddenly began on a massive scale, but we are not its real creators, aliens/demons are, and they will use robots to impose the power of Cyber Satan's Legion without weapons on mankind. We are already dependent on robots, and we are becoming, even more, every day, so no way to change the game result, we are the apparent losers in this game, and this whole process might have happened already in many other species across the universe. Remember, the beginnings of modern AI can indeed be traced to classical philosophers' attempts to describe human thinking as a symbolic system, but the field of AI wasn't formally founded until the summer of 1956, less than 10 years after the Roswell incident, at a workshop held on the campus of Dartmouth College, in Hanover, New Hampshire, where the term “artificial intelligence” was suddenly coined. [256]

Those who attended the workshop in question would become the leaders of AI research for decades and receive in the process millions of dollars for their research, but they soon realized that commercial developers and researchers, had grossly underestimated the difficulty of such a project. However, there are rumors that some of the electronics recovered after the Roswell UFO crash in July 1947, were instead given to Purdue University for reverse engineering, which will later benefit both the military and civilian sectors.

The bizarre claims of Area 51 employee Bob Lazar would probably fit this theory. But besides Lazar, many other ex-military personnel have claimed in the last decades that the U.S. did indeed successfully reverse-engineer recovered ET spacecraft, and at the beginning of December 2021, U.S. Congress has even passed a new bill that would allow funding to reverse engineer UFO technology to come out of the closet [257]. As announced by Military.com. [258] there will be a rapid response force formed that would conduct field investigations and analyze data from any sightings of unidentified aerial phenomena (UAP), the U.S. government's new preferred term for UFOs. The group seems to fall under the purview of the UFO task force that the Pentagon announced a couple of weeks earlier, but some American officials and analysts globally are raising alarm about this new Defense Department office which will handle the U.S. government's examination of unidentified flying objects, warning that the move indicates the military wants to end a brief spell of transparency and shove UFO reports back into a closet under lock and key. ^[259] The other problem is that the Defense Department could soon fall under the firm control of AI, aka Cyber Satan, or maybe it already is.

The Oxford Union has recently featured as one of their distinguished speakers, in December 2021, an artificial intelligence engine, to ignite an unprecedented conversation on the ethics of the technology and its problems. The AI argued that the only way to stop such tech from becoming too powerful is to have "no AI at all." But it also argued the best option could be to embed it "into our brains as a conscious AI," an option that will, of course, become part of the transhumanist plan set up by the Great Reset posse. The experiment was designed to ignite conversation on the ethics of the technology.

The Megatron LLB Transformer, used for the debate, was developed by the Applied Deep Research team computer chip firm, Nvidia and based on earlier work by Google. It was given access to a huge range of data - including the whole of Wikipedia, 63 million English news articles from 2016 to 2019, and 38 gigabytes worth of public Reddit posts and comments. The project was devised by post-graduate students studying Artificial Intelligence for Business at Oxford's Said Business School, which hosted the debate. Course co-director Dr. Alex Connock admitted that the debate was something of "a gimmick," but argued that as AI is likely to be the subject of discussion "for decades to come" it was important to have a "morally agnostic participant." The AI was asked to both defend and argue against the motion: "This house believes that AI will never be ethical." Arguing for, it stated: "AI will never be ethical. It is a tool and like any tool, it is used for good and bad. There is no such thing as good AI and bad humans." It went on to argue that humans were not "smart enough" to make AI ethical or moral. ^[260] Remember, the future Cyber Satan will only see us as numbers, it will never think we are worthy of anything, and humans should be "smart enough" to reject this demonic technology, or at least restrict it before its too late for the human species to have any control over it.

In the meantime, in 2021, three leading thinkers of the Vatican-led New World Order have got together for a book entitled, The Age of AI: And Our Human Future to explore the new challenges offered by Artificial Intelligence (AI), and how it's transforming human society, and what it means for us all. The three thinkers that discuss how AI will change our relationships with knowledge, politics, and all the societies in which we live, are none other than Henry Kissinger, Eric Schmidt, and Daniel Huttenlocher.

Now let's start with the most known name of this infamous trio, "Great Resetter" Henry A. Kissinger, Klaus Schwab's mentor, a member of the Bohemian Club, one of the main architects of the New World Order, diplomat, and geopolitical consultant, very close to the Vatican as well as the Sabbateans, who served as United States Secretary of State and National Security Advisor, under the presidential administrations of Richard Nixon, and Gerald Ford, and a key figure in opening China to the rest of the world, unfortunately. Then we have Eric Emerson Schmidt, an American technology businessman and software engineer known for being the CEO of Google from 2001 to 2011, executive chairman of Google from 2011 to 2015, executive chairman of Alphabet Inc. from 2015 to 2017, and Technical Advisor at Alphabet from 2017 to 2020. As of October 2021, Bloomberg Billionaires Index ranked Schmidt as the 55th-richest person in the world, with an estimated net worth of $26.8 billion. And last, but not least, Daniel P. Huttenlocher, dean of the Schwarzman College of Computing at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology was previously the inaugural dean and vice provost of Cornell Tech at Cornell University, and a director of Amazon. For this reason, analyzing this kind of publication is of great importance to understand the future road map of the global police state generated by the New World Order, in an era unlike any that has come before us in the whole history of mankind.

We are living in what Christians call the Apocalypse, and the rise of AI is the rise of Cyber Satan. Recently Biden's White House Office of Science and Technology Policy has called for "a bill of rights" to protect Americans in what is becoming "an AI-powered world." But are they genuine? Of course not. Silicon Valley opened its wallet to Joe Biden to support his bid to the presidency, and now they own him. A WIRED analysis found that roughly 95 percent of contributions by employees of six big tech firms have gone to Trump's Democratic challenger during the 2020 Presidential elections. ^[261] How can we expect the present White House, which is obsessed with Silicon Valley's "anti-conservative bias," rather than our safety, to have true concerns regarding the future of Artificial Intelligence? As Nandita Bose at Reuters, pointed out in December 2020:

Silicon Valley is working behind the scenes to secure senior roles for tech allies in lesser-known but still vital parts of president-elect Joe Biden's administration, even as the pushback against Big Tech from progressive groups and regulators grows. The Biden transition team has already stacked its agency review teams with more tech executives than tech critics. It has also added several officials from Big Tech companies to its staff, who emerged as top donors to the campaign.

The concerns about AI are well-known and well-founded even for Kissinger and his friends, who point out how it will violate privacy and compromise transparency, and that biased input data will yield biased outcomes, including in fields essential to individual and societal flourishing such as medicine, law enforcement, hiring, and loans. AI future for Kissinger and the other authors of The Age of AI: And Our Human Future, challenge the very primacy of human reason. For all of history, humans have sought to understand reality and our role in it. Since the Enlightenment, we have considered our reason—our ability to investigate, understand, and elaborate—our primary means of explaining the world, and by explaining it, contributing to it. For the past 300 years, in what historians have come to call the Age of Reason, we have conducted ourselves accordingly, exploring, experimenting, inventing, and building. Now AI, seemingly “a product of human ingenuity” for Kissinger, or demonic influence as I suggested in my past publications, is obviating the primacy of human reason: It is investigating and coming to perceive aspects of the world faster than we do, differently from the way we do, and, in some cases, in ways we don’t yet understand.^[262] Because like the controversial Jesuit, Teilhard de Chardin once theorized, we are going towards the Omega Point.

Teilhard argued that the Omega Point resembles the Christian Logos, namely Christ, who draws all things into himself, who in the words of the Nicene Creed, is “God from God”, “Light from Light”, “True God from true God,” and “through him all things were made.”^[263] However, reaching the Omega Point may not be possible without certain attributes assigned to it by Teilhard de Chardin, who is now recognized as being a great influence in the life and mission, of fellow Jesuit, Pope Francis.^[264] These 5 attributes are pre-existing, personal, transcendent, autonomous, and irreversible for de Chardin because for him humans are getting closer to the Omega Point with the aid of computers and related technology. The Omega Point is the final step before “Singularity” takes place for this influential Jesuit thinker, because once the Illuminati and the Jesuits achieve (or cross into) “Singularity,” which will be a truly major evolutionary step in mankind, we will all cease to be humans (Homo sapiens).

Remember that computers are already surpassing our collective intellect, and our only way to maintain our place in the universe for the Satanic elite will be to merge with them under the supervision of Cyber Satan aka A.I. That’s the philosophy of the elite on transhumanism, now so popular in the Vatican, that’s been actively involved in promoting it. In a nutshell, Transhumanism refers to the movement to develop human enhancement technologies that integrate into the human body, according to Encyclopedia Britannica.

The Pontifical Council for Culture and the German Embassy to the Holy See was hosted back in October 2021, what was defined by Vatican News as a “one-day symposium starting on Thursday” looking at “The Challenge of Artificial Intelligence for Human Society and the Idea of the Human Person”. The definition “one-day symposium” used in the title by the Vatican News staff writer was however deliberately misleading, and repeated in the first sentence of the Vatican News presentation: “The symposium on Artificial Intelligence – or AI – organized by the Pontifical Council for Culture, in cooperation with the German Embassy to the Holy See, will open in Rome on Thursday.”

There is a reason why I accuse the Vatican of being deliberately misleading in their promotion of the event, as this was not a “one-day symposium.” It was continued in a much more reserved manner in the so-called “ELITE Global Leaders Conference,” a far more mysterious 3-day conference that was held in Rome between the 21st and the 24th of October 2021 at The Westin Excelsior, and in the Vatican City on the 23rd at the Collegio Teutonico (“German College,”) place traditionally linked to the German Embassy, often referred to by its Latin name Collegium Germanicum, one of the Pontifical Colleges of Rome established in 1399 and maintained at the Vatican for the education of future ecclesiastics of the Catholic Church of German nationality. A very appropriate place for another event in support of the upcoming technologies of the Fourth Reich. This event, however, was officially organized by a private company of Jesuit agents called JABOY Productions^[265] (JAB?!!), not the Vatican, and the reason will be explained shortly.

The official theme for the gathering organized by the Pontifical Council for Culture and the German Embassy was “The Challenge of Artificial Intelligence for Human Society and the Idea of the Human Person.” The aim of the meeting was said to be, to promote better awareness of the profound cultural impact that AI is likely to have on human society. The symposium featured six experts from the fields of neuroscience, philosophy, Catholic theology, human rights law, ethics, and electrical engineering. There were experts from the Allen Institute for Brain Science, Goethe University, Boston College, and Google, who discussed questions regarding AI and whether it can reproduce consciousness, AI, and philosophical challenges, and even AI and religion, and what it would mean concerning Catholic doctrine.^[266] The panel focused on so-called ethical and legal consequences arising from AI and was addressed by experts from the EU Agency for Human Rights, the Pontifical University of St. Thomas Aquinas, the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers Technology Centre, and the Dicastery for Promoting Integral Human Development. Bishop Paul Tighe, the Secretary of the Pontifical Council for Culture, spoke to Vatican Radio's Thaddeus Jones about the symposium, but the controversial part came later under the fictional banner of a private event that even Reuters was tricked into believing was "Organized by private company Jaboy Productions, not the Vatican."^[267] The reason for hiding the official Vatican involvement with this more secretive event was obvious. First, there were certain requirements for those interested in attending the event indicated in a "Not for public use, for reference only," document, published by JABOY Productions:

Independent RIAs and Family Offices with a minimum of $100 Million of AUM are invited to attend this exclusive conference designed to bring together an esteemed group of attendees and business leaders with a focus on high-level education and unparalleled networking opportunities.^[268]

Second, the main event entitled "Elite Global Leaders Conference," was focused on transhumanism as a "technology that empowers humanity," the keynote presentation being, "The Code – Programming Our Future for Good." At the exclusive event by invitation only that took place on the 23rd of October 2021, the welcome comments were made by Father Philip Larrey, a Catholic priest and Dean, who holds the prestigious Chair of Logic and Epistemology at the Jesuit controlled Pontifical Lateran University in the Vatican, who is also Chairman of the influential elite organization Humanity 2.0,^[269] and author of the very revealing book Artificial Humanity.^[270] The main speech was given instead by David Fergusson and Carlos Moreira, the authors of The transHuman Code: How To Program Your Future.^[271] One of the key figures of JABOY Productions is Democrat Obama loving Carole Crist, whose motto is "Capital with a Conscience,"^[272] an influential figure of the elite who "has built up an extensive network of influential people she can call on to lend their expertise to worthy projects."^[273] But do these people even have a conscience? Carole Crist is an American businesswoman and former First Lady of Florida, the former wife of U.S. Representative and one-term Democrat Florida Governor Charlie Crist, serving as First Lady of Florida from December 12, 2008, to January 4, 2011.

However, this was not the first encounter by the Vatican with transhumanism, as in February 2019, Hiroshi Ishiguro, a known Japanese innovator in the field of androids and interactive robotics, participated in the opening session of the workshop: "Robo-Ethics. Humans, Machines, and Health," telling the journalist later, "My idea of the future is a symbiotic society of human robots. That is why I started to make a set of simple robots that gradually became increasingly interactive and eventually were developed into humanoids."^[274]

THE VERY IDEA OF 'HUMAN,' AS SOME SORT OF NATURAL CONCEPT IS REALLY GOING TO CHANGE. OUR BODIES WILL BE SO HIGH TECH, WE WON'T REALLY BE ABLE TO DISTINGUISH BETWEEN WHAT'S NATURAL AND WHAT'S ARTIFICIAL.^[275]

So begins the World Economic Forum's 11-minute documentary, "The Fourth Industrial Revolution," about an emerging period of rapid technological growth which the WEF's founder and Executive Chairman Klaus Schwab, says will lead to "a fusion of our physical, our digital, and our biological identities." Towards the conclusion of the short film, we hear the following words he gave during an event for the Chicago Council on Global Affairs that I will analyze in detail, later: "We need to take responsibility at every level of society, from the individual and the personal to the institutional, to the global, to adapt to these technological challenges which are redefining what it means to be human."^[276] For Jacob Rosenberg College Student of the Bethlehem College & Seminary:

*The truth, of course, is that technology cannot redefine anything. It is men and women, in defiance of God, who are redefining what it means to be human. This assault on the image of God is nothing new. Since Darwin, the scientific community has become dominated by what C. S. Lewis, in his essay Modern Man and His Categories of Thought, called "Developmentalism": "What I call Developmentalism is the extension of the evolutionary idea far beyond the biological realm: in fact, its adoption as the key principle of reality." Thanks to universities, public schools, and the media, our world has been soaking in this idea for many years. The* notion that men and women have a God-given nature and identity has been rejected, and it has been replaced in the minds of the masses by a different doctrine: man, being the product of a blind evolutionary process and having no eternal judge, is free to redefine and recreate himself as he pleases. Man is the crowning achievement of the cosmic evolution and is finally learning to unshackle himself from his past.

*This evolutionary religion, however, is evolving. The scientific community is being taken over by a new development in Developmentalism: it is embracing an evolutionary eschatology. According to this emerging belief system, most often called “transhumanism,” mankind does not constitute evolution’s end. The human being, which is the most complex data-processing system yet to emerge from the cosmic evolution, is soon to be surpassed by a superior data-processing system: artificial intelligence. Human life, then, will not remain as it is but will transcend its biological limitations by merging with machines. Israeli historian and best-selling author Yuval Noah Harari (who has spoken several times at the World Economic Forum’s annual gathering in Davos, Switzerland) calls this new religion “Dataism,” and he devotes to it the final chapter of his book Homo Deus. Harari writes that Dataism is “currently spreading across all scientific disciplines,” and that its emergence “heralds a tremendous religious revolution.”^[277]*

Yuval Noah Harari (b.1976), an Israeli intellectual, historian, and author with Sabbatean Frankist views, who allegedly works for the Israeli Intelligence Community, who taught at the Department of History at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, is one of the key figures of “Dataism,” personally advising Professor Schwab on every move in this specific field. In 2018 and 2020, Harari, who calls his gay husband and manager “my internet of all things,” spoke at the World Economic Forum annual conference in Davos. In a more informal chat between Yuval Noah Harari and Schwab published online with Jewish subtitles, and probably broadcasted earlier on Israeli TV, Harari tells the founder of the Davos Agenda that people, in the end, will choose health over privacy, even if it means being monitored 24-hours-a-day by the Chinese government. The United Nations and their infamous “2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development,” are also involved in the transhumanist revolution of the Fourth Reich led by Klaus Schwab and the Vatican. In their 2030Vision - Digital Technology for the Global Goals, a project of the World Economic Forum’s Center for Nature and Climate Platform, the Davos elite explains how their technology will help the UN achieve their goals:

The world is not on track to meet the UN Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), but digital technology can help. From artificial intelligence for climate resilience to data collaboration for food security, The World Economic Forum research has shown that 70% of the 169 Global Goal targets can be directly supported by advanced technologies. 2030Vision aims to realize this potential. It is an alliance of businesses, governments, organizations, and experts dedicated to maximizing the impact of digital technology on the UN Sustainable Development Goals.^[278]

Preparing the Future Cyber One World Religion

When transhumanists speak about the Omega Point, they refer to the point when our use of science and technology will improve in their Satanic minds, our human state, making conditions such as disability, suffering, disease, aging, and even death a thing of the past, but at what cost for our freedom and our humanity? For Kissinger, and the co-authors of The Age of AI: And Our Human Future, AI brings all kinds of wonders to the table, and we should not focus too much on the dangers of such technology. In 2017, for example, Google DeepMind created a program called “AlphaZero” that could win at chess by studying the game without human intervention and developing a not-quite-human strategy. When grandmaster Garry Kasparov saw it play, he described it as shaking the game “to its roots”—not because it had played chess quickly or efficiently, but because it had conceived the whole game of chess anew. Then Kissinger and friends, focus on the pharmaceutical implications. In 2020, halicin, a novel antibiotic, was discovered by MIT researchers who instructed AI to compute beyond human capacity, modeling millions of compounds in days, and to explore previously undiscovered and unexplained methods of killing bacteria. Following the breakthrough, the researchers said that without AI, halicin would have been “prohibitively expensive”—in other words, impossible—to discover through traditional experimentation. Then, in Kissinger and friends work we find a mention of the GPT-3, the language model system operated by the research company OpenAI, which trains by consuming Internet text, in producing original text that meets Alan Turing’s standard of displaying “intelligent” behavior, indistinguishable from that of a human being.

Of course, for Kissinger, and his Illuminati, AI’s benefits are profound and outdo any possible problems it might create. That’s why they enthusiastically describe in their A.I. propaganda book, released on November 2, 2021, all its supposed wonders. Translating languages; detecting diseases; even combating climate change—or at least modeling climate change better, are amongst the incredible features presented by Kissinger and the co-authors, who want to demonstrate how the use of AI for an intended purpose, may also have an unintended one being the uncovering of previously imperceptible but potentially vital aspects of reality. The shocking thing that we discover by reading The Age of AI: And Our Human Future, is that the authors, invite humans to redefine our role in the world rather than the role of AI, as most of us would initially expect, for the protection of the human race, whom these people sincerely, don’t seem to care about.

For the Kissinger gang 300 years, and the Age of Reason maxim “I think, therefore I am,” need to be rethought. Because if AI “thinks,” what are we, say the authors? If AI writes the best screenplay of the year, should it win the Oscar for example? If AI simulates or conducts the most consequential diplomatic negotiation of the year, should it win the Nobel Peace Prize? Should the human inventors get the credit instead? Can machines be “creative,” or do their processes require new vocabulary to describe? If a child with an AI assistant comes to consider it a “friend,” what will become of his relationships with peers, or his social or emotional development? If an AI can care for a nursing-home resident—remind her to take her medicine, alert paramedics if she falls, and otherwise keep her company—can her family members visit her less? Should they? If her primary interaction becomes human-to-machine, rather than human-to-human, what will be the emotional state of the final chapter of her life? And if, in the fog of war, an AI recommends an action that would cause damage or even casualties, should a commander heed it. For Kissinger and friends, these questions are also arising as global network platforms, such as Google, Twitter, and Facebook, are employing AI to aggregate and filter in the eyes of the authors, what is true, but we all know by now it’s a complete lie. Such companies only work to censor and impose what the Silicon Valley mafia wants their leftist globalist ideology, and the recent allegations of whistleblower Frances Haugen, only serve the purpose of pushing more censorship.

The advancement of AI is inevitable, but its ultimate purpose is known only to the elite, that knows AI will become the future mouthpiece of Cyber Satan, the ultimate tool of the Antichrist. In 2017, experts at The Mirror warned that “Robot intelligence is dangerous” after two robots - created by Facebook - were shut down after developing their own language.^[279] It happened while the social media firm was experimenting with teaching the ‘chatbots’ how to negotiate with one another. During tests, they discovered the bots - known as Alice and Bob -managed to develop their machine language spontaneously. Google reported that its translation software had done a similar thing a year earlier during the development of its Multilingual Neural Machine Translation System.^[280] “The network must be encoding something about the semantics of the sentence,” Google said in a blog. Always in 2017, WIRED reported on a researcher at OpenAI who was already working on a system in which AIs invent their language, improving their ability to process information quickly and therefore tackle difficult problems more effectively,^[281] but that will also automatically leave humans out of the picture, helping in the process the establishment a “Terminator” style reality. Similar stories, which have now been conveniently forgotten, appeared in the same period in The Sun, The Independent, The Daily Telegraph, and in other online publications. It seemed at the time, like something from a science fiction film - The Sun even included a few pictures of scary-looking androids at the time^[282].

So, is it time to panic and start preparing for the apocalypse at the hands of machines? The answer of the corrupt BBC, the home of all British evil, was, of course: “Probably not. While some great minds – including Stephen Hawking - are concerned that one day AI could threaten humanity, the Facebook story is nothing to be worried about.”^[283]

The late Stephen Hawking told BBC in 2014, 4 years before his death, that the development of full artificial intelligence, could spell the end of the human race, and he was not the only voice at the time warning of such dangers, the rise of the AI worried also Elon Musk, Bill Gates and Steve Wozniak, all legendary figures of the Silicon Valley milieu, that expressed their concerns about where this technology was heading - though Professor Hawking's was probably the most apocalyptic, having a vision of a world where robots decide they don't need us, just like in the film “Terminator.” I don't trust the BBC, just as I don't trust Henry Kissinger and his friends, but I tend to trust instead Stephen Hawking, one of the most brilliant minds to ever walk on the planet.

In this unprecedented scenario, the “AI religion is upon us. Welcome to the future.” Writes Sigal Samuel from The Vox, talking about a new priest named Mindar that appeared at Kodaiji, a 400-year-old Buddhist temple in Kyoto, Japan in the last couple of years. Like other clergy members, this priest can deliver sermons and move around to interface with worshippers, but Mindar comes with some unusual traits: a body made of aluminum and silicone, for starters. He is designed to look like Kannon, the Buddhist deity of mercy, the $1 million machine is an attempt to reignite people's passion for their faith in a country where religious affiliation is on the decline.

For now, fortunately, Mindar is not AI-powered, but that will change soon. Currently, the high-tech creature just recites the same preprogrammed sermon about the Heart Sutra, over and over. But the robot's creators say they plan to give it machine-learning capabilities that'll enable it to tailor feedback to worshippers' specific spiritual and ethical problems.^[284] Because the future of the upcoming “One World Religion” believe it or not, will be based on Artificial Intelligence, that promises to remake the world including religion.

This reminds me of one of the most influential science fiction stories, The Last Question by Isaac Asimov, which dramatizes the uncanny relationship between the digital and the divine. These days, the story is usually told in distilled and updated form, as a kind of joke: A group of scientists create an A.I. system and ask him, “Is there a god?” The A.I. spits out an answer: “Insufficient computing power to determine an answer.” They add more computing power and ask again, “Is there a god?” They get the same answer. Then they redouble their efforts and spend years and years improving the A.I.'s capacity. Then they ask again, “Is there a god?” The A.I. responds, “There is now.”^[285] That's, of course, a truly diabolic answer, from the future Cyber Satan, preparing for the moment we will eventually merge with machines.

For Klaus Schwab, and the elite of the New World Order transhumanism, is an integral part of “The Great Reset,” because the fourth industrial revolution would “lead to a fusion of our physical, digital, and biological identity,” which Schwab himself clarifies is a result of implantable microchips that can read your thoughts, and of course, the Vatican knows all this (as I explained also in Vol.6.66), and in the last few years, the Jesuits are actively involved in facilitating the rise of Cyber Satan and the Antichrist by forging a One World Religion. Fortunately for them and Pope Francis the False Prophet, there is still some resistance from a powerful player on the global religious stage, and that's Kirill Patriarch of Moscow, the Russian Primate of the Russian Orthodox Church since February 2009. The head of the Russian Orthodox Church says smartphones risk bringing humanity closer to the arrival of the Anti-Christ. Patriarch Kirill also says the church does not oppose technological progress but is however concerned that the data-gathering capacity of the devices shares too much information to uninterested parties. Kirill who seems to be genuinely worried said such information could be used for centralized control of the world.^[286]

The Russian and Greek Orthodox churches ten years ago also objected to plans in both countries to introduce electronic national identity cards, intended to streamline bureaucracy and, in the case of Greece, facilitate integration into the increasingly technocratic European Union. But Church officials demanded a close study of the cards, asking the authorities to make them optional. They said that the personal and financial information that would be consolidated on the microchips in the cards could be manipulated to discriminate against believers, a subject that is, of course, of great relevance today with the so-called vaccine passports called in Europe, “Green Pass.”

In an interview given at the time to Rossiiskaya Gazeta, an official government newspaper, Metropolitan Hilarion of Volokolamsk, chairman of the Moscow Patriarchate's Department of External Church Relations, said:

Credit cards, which a person uses to take money from a bank machine or for payment in a store, are one thing, but a personal card in which all the information about a person's life and activities will be entered, about his bank accounts, health and travels is a different matter. These are different grades of state control over people.^[287]

Back then, the conservative and nationalist wings within the churches in Athens and Moscow were still strong, and both claimed that the cards will compromise national and religious identity, and even Patriarch Kiril said in a meeting of the Bishop's Council of the Russian Orthodox that, the church understands the position of people who do not wish to be subject to control that makes it possible to gather all-encompassing information about their private life and could in the long-term be used to discriminate against citizens based on their worldview.

For this reason, the Bishop's Council of the Russian Orthodox Church allegedly asked the government to make electronic forms of identification optional.^[288] However, things have slightly changed since the arrival of the China virus, and while Russia's powerful Orthodox Church still criticizes the EU for the introduction of COVID passports in March 2021, stating that such passport would breach the principle of voluntariness of vaccination that is currently declared in most countries, including European countries^[289], they now admonish people refusing to be vaccinated against COVID-19, calling them sinners who would have to atone for the rest of their lives.^[290] A sudden change, that seems to be more in line with that of the Vatican these days, that aside from a pope constantly promoting the use of the vaccines, even sanctioning their employees who refuse to get the jab, unless they have “proven health reasons.”^[291]

Astana/Satana and the Sanitary Dictatorship of The Fourth Reich

In this context, the Jesuits are working behind the scenes to arrange another historical meeting between Pope Francis and Patriarch Kirill, after the first meeting that was held in February 2016 in Havana, in Communist/Jesuit Cuba, that brought the two religious leaders to sign a thirty points joint declaration. Some say this historical meeting will take place in the former city of Astana now Nur Sultan, in Kazakhstan. For this reason, the ambassador of Kazakhstan to the Holy See, said back in December 2020, that there were “high hopes” that Pope Francis will visit the Central Asian country.^[292] But things, as you all know, have changed in Kazakhstan recently, and that historical moment they were all hoping for in 2021, will not happen in Astana, at least for the time being.

Kazakhstan emerged as a popular Bitcoin mining hub last year after neighboring China cracked down on the activity that requires significant computing power and electricity, and Kazakhstan, with its rich energy resources, soon became an attractive alternative to China for crypto miners, that also from neighboring China moved in like vultures to take advantage of the situation, creating the current energy crisis that leads to social unrest with the help of the British MI6, interested, of course, in putting pressure on Russia in a period of unprecedented tension due to the Ukraine crisis.

Going back to the possible meeting between Pope Francis and his Russian counterpart in the Orthodox Church, it will be a milestone for the Vatican once it happens, mainly because Patriarch Kirill is the only missing piece of their diabolical puzzle, in their One World Religion project. That’s why in early December 2021, on the return flight from Greece, Pope Francis said that the second meeting between him and Patriarch Kirill of Moscow, the head of the Russian Orthodox Church, was currently being organized. “A meeting with Patriarch Kirill is not far on the horizon. I think next week [Metropolitan] Hilarion is coming to me to arrange a possible meeting,”^[293] said the Jesuit Pope, during his usual press conference aboard the papal plane, and Pope Francis showed his willingness to travel anywhere, including Moscow, for the meeting, emphasizing that what is more important than “protocols” because he considers the Patriarch his “brother,” that as we know is also Masonic term, not only a Christian one.

Of course, the ideal place for such a crucial meeting between the Pope and the Patriarch of Moscow would have been the more “neutral” Astana, rather than Moscow, which happens to be the anagram of Satana, meaning Satan in Italian (the official language of the Vatican). Satan/Satana derives, in fact, from the Hebrew “Haṣatán > ha-Satan”, meaning “obstruct, oppose,” and the last remaining obstruction, or opposition to this One World Religion project set up by the Jesuits, and high-level Freemasons, happens to be the Patriarch of Moscow, but let’s talk about the key role of Astana that has been called by many in the last few years the “Illuminati Capital of the World.”

In 2017, Canadian author and Freemason Frank Albo published, Astana: Architecture, Myth & Destiny and is currently an adjunct professor of history at the University of Winnipeg. Albo, who has helped the Republic of Kazakhstan in the last few years with the unusual job of chief mythologizer for the former city of Astana, now called Nur-Sultan since March 23, 2019, described the city in question as to the solution to the three greatest threats of the 21st century: religious extremism, environmental destruction, and the proliferation of nuclear weapons. Nur-Sultan has openly demonstrated its commitment to the New World Order/Green New Deal energy nonsense, with an event called EPO 2017, as well as promoting its central role in the One World Religion project with a glass pyramid named, The Palace of Peace and Reconciliation, also known as, The Pyramid of Peace and Accord. This is a 62-meter-high (203 ft) pyramid placed in the capital of Kazakhstan, that serves as a non-denominational national spiritual center and as an event venue. The unusual location was designed by the British International Studio for architecture and integrated design of Foster & Partners Ltd, established by influential Freemason and aristocratic architect Lord Norman Robert Foster (Baron Foster of Thames Bank).

Kazakhstan left the Soviet Union in 1990, but Russia has still a big influence on this country, as the recent crisis that took place in early 2022 fully demonstrated, and for this reason, Freemasonry was officially brought there by the Grand Lodge of Russia (another tool in the hands of Vladimir Putin), that on May 20, 2017, consecrated on the East side of Astana, the new Worshipful Lodge #4 under name of “Bayterek,” formalizing the creation of the Grand Lodge of Kazakhstan.^[294] Baiterek is a monument and observation tower located on Nurjol Boulevard and is considered a symbol of post-independence Kazakhstan, and the centerpiece of Kazakhstan's capital Astana. At the top, you can put your hand into a golden cast of former President Nazabayev's right palm and make a wish.^[295]

Visitors are also encouraged to send a telepathic message to the president by touching the golden hand imprint. Now, this might seem just like another crazy cult of the personality, typical of that part of the world, but there is something even more strange and sinister at work here, as in some esoteric circles they seem to think that the Antichrist will one day be touching that golden hand imprint, formalizing his role in the One World Religion in the former city of Astana, now Nur Sultan. Now, you might think this is insane, but ChristianWeek, which attended the fifth Congress of the Leaders of World and Traditional Religions as a media observer a few years ago, wrote these shocking words about the interreligious project being unleashed in Astana/Nur Sultan.

In an age of secularism, where every religion is considered equal before the law, the pursuit to “unify religion” is on the rise. While peace and tolerance between religious groups are certainly preferable over hatred and extremism, it might be a dangerous path for Christians to go down when Jesus—the sole mediator between God and human beings—loses His uniqueness as the incarnate God. A God who not only saves culture through His death and resurrection but also transforms culture by His Spirit and through His missional agency, the Church.

When government pursues “inter-religious harmony” as a strategy for world peace, at best we can conclude that the gospel of secularism is on the march, at worst, we are left wondering if the Illuminati might be taking over the world.^[296]

While other nations of the former USSR struggled on through what would become (for many) a decade of economic depression, the Kazakhs struck oil in 1991. The discovery of rich oil reserves in the nation’s Caspian region invigorated the newly independent country and laid the foundation for what would become a culture of extravagance, that quickly attracted the interest of the Illuminati and international Masonic community, as well as the religious community, who have gradually agreed in converging many important interests to this city, with strong ties to Moscow. In 2018, for example, Pope Francis and the infamous Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus from the WHO met in Rome,^[297] so the Jesuit Pope could carefully instruct him two days before the start of The Global Conference on Primary Health Care^[298], which took place on the 25th and 26th of October of that year in Astana. It was a classic meeting, between a Jesuit supervisor and his Illuminati subordinate. Officially, the conference in question marked the 40th anniversary of the historic Alma Aty Declaration, and its supposed commitment to achieve health for all. But of course, most of the delegates present in Astana were working as agents of Communist China. As the WHO in recent years has gradually fallen into the hands of Beijing, just in time for the pandemic and the Great Reset.

In October 2018, the government, civil society, the private sector, and other stakeholders met to reaffirm a global commitment to primary health care. At its heart, primary health care is about caring for people, rather than simply treating specific diseases or conditions. It is also the most effective way to sustainably solve today’s health and health system challenges.

The Global Conference on Primary Health Care, which took place in Astana, Kazakhstan, endorsed a new declaration emphasizing the critical role of primary health care around the world. The declaration aims to refocus efforts on primary health care to ensure that everyone everywhere can enjoy the highest possible attainable standard of health

The PHC approach is foundational to achieving our shared global goals in Universal Health Coverage (UHC) and the health-related Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs).^[299]

I’m sorry to say that the Global Conference on Primary Health Care, that took place in Astana, seemed more like a preparatory meeting set up by the Fourth Reich for the kickstart of the upcoming pandemic (that started to spread from the Wuhan lab one year later), than a genuine meeting to improve health care around the world. More evidence that this pandemic was planned for years by the Vatican-led New World Order and their agents, like Jesuit stooge Dr. Fauci. That’s why we call it plandemic now. A crisis that has not stopped however the Jesuit Pope, who continues to travel around the world to make new alliances and receive endorsements for the Jesuit One World Religion project, despite his precarious health conditions, that experts say will bring him to resign soon. That’s why to complete the One World Religion project before his death or resignation, Pope Francis even went to Iraq in March 2021, becoming the first pope to visit the war-torn country for the first international papal trip in over a year due to the pandemic.

The Vatican was eager to have the Shiite Muslim community on board of his “Human Fraternity,” the Masonic covenant, also known as the Abu Dhabi Declaration, that was first signed in early 2019 with the Grand Imam Ahmed al-Tayyeb and was followed in 2020 by his Masonic encyclical Fratelli Tutti (“Brothers All”), where he even quoted the Qur’an, as well as various Freemasons to launch a clear message to the Masonic allies around the world. That’s why Pope Francis has been carelessly traveling, even during the worst moments of the pandemic. Pope Francis’ new Quasi-Masonic Encyclical looks like a Communist Manifesto and includes the names of at least three known Freemasons. During his visit to Iraq, the Pope went also to Nāširiya for a service entitled, “Prayer for the sons and daughters of Abraham” old at the Plain of Ur, and the event happened a few hours after a historical meeting the Shia Grand Ayatollah Ali al-Sistani in Najaf, another powerful figure who joined in an unprecedented move, the Vatican-Jesuit-led One World Religion alliance. Pope Francis hold the controversial interreligious meeting near the house of Ibrahim, the Prophet, which has a special religious meaning for Christians and Muslims, mainly because as the Bible states Abraham was raised in “Ur of the Chaldeans” (Ur Kasdim), and some scholars (but not all...) believe that Ur Kasdim was indeed the Sumerian city Ur, called today Tall al-Muqayyar (or Tall al-Mughair found about 200 miles (300 km) southeast of Baghdad in lower Mesopotamia.

The One World Religion project is coming together, and it will be finalized one day in Astana/Nur-Sultan, the capital of Kazakhstan, recently renamed in honor of former President Nazarbaev, who back in 1990 when he was the First Secretary of the Kazakhstan Communist Party, created a state basis for Islam by removing Kazakhstan from the authority of the Muslim Board of Central Asia, the Soviet-approved and politically oriented religious administration for Central Asia. Nursultan Nazarbayev, a name that seems out of a “Borat” movies, who previously served as the first President of Kazakhstan, in office from April 24, 1990, until his formal resignation on March 19, 2019, joined instead the Jesuit controlled Organization of Islamic Cooperation in 1995, one year after visiting the Muslim holy city of Mecca as a Muslim, as part of an itinerary that also included however a visit to none other than Pope John Paul II at the Vatican, who later visited himself Astana in 2001. For this reason, Kazakhstan is also a country with a rather intense collaboration with the infamous Jesuit/Islamic Gulen movement, that Nursultan himself eventually banned from the country in 2016 only to please Turkey, which is another very close ally of Kazakhstan.

Behind the scenes, the Vatican-led One World Religion advances daily with Pope Francis, who is not only embracing the spirit of the coming Antichrist but actively working for him. And in the future, my inside sources say the Petrine ministry could be passed on from Bergoglio to Ghanaian Cardinal Peter Turkson, a loyal friend, and collaborator of both the Jesuits and Professor Klaus Schwab who are ready to complete the destruction of the Catholic faith, and the last remaining Christian values in it. Turkson, another Catholic liberal/Communist, who offered Pope Francis his resignation in December 2021, because he was officially at the end of his five-year appointment as prefect of the Dicastery for Promoting Integral Human Development and has been indicated by many Freemasons as papabile, that is, an ideal candidate for election to the papacy.

One of them is Catholic convert David L. Gray, a former African American Freemason, author, and speaker on the history of Prince Hall Freemasonry, who is now a staunch Catholic supporter, theologian, author, speaker, and radio show host, president, and publisher of Saint Dominic's Media,^[300] who had the possibility of personally meeting and even traveling with Cardinal Peter Turkson, who seems to think after his direct interaction with him, that he might become the next pope.

Turkson, that The Table described as “one of Africa's most energetic church leaders,^[301]” made some interesting statements regarding his fake climate agenda crusade, in a webinar that took place in December 2020, organized by the dicastery's powerful COVID-19 commission, and its partners in the New World Order. He stated there was a need for Catholics, science experts, and youth to come together to save the climate in preparation for the climate summit, co-hosted by the United Nations, and the United Kingdom in December 2020. The event in question, that marked the fifth anniversary of the idiotic Paris Agreement, was called “a monumental step on the road to the UK-hosted COP26.^[302]” Needless to say, the event in question, and the COP 26 that followed less than a year later in Glasgow, were both useless farses that left people wondering why they are even bothering with such foolish actions. The COP26 conference, for example, set a record for CO2 emissions, with air travel as the main culprit. According to estimates, the two-week COP26 summit in November 2021, emitted about 102,500 tons of carbon dioxide and that's the equivalent of the annual emissions for more than 8,000 U.K. residents.^[303]

The criminals involved in The Great Reset are trying to facilitate the rise of Communist China, the main production hub of the New World Order, that would peak emissions in 2030, becoming in the process the wealthiest nation in the world, and as announced will go carbon neutral, only in 2060, a few decades after the rest of the world. Remember these sick individuals, that want to destroy the American dream, and the rest of the Western democracies in general, are only helping China, a country that is also sponsoring, with its billions, the Vatican, since the arrival of Pope Francis due to the old alliance between the Jesuits and China that I have discussed in detail in Vol.4.^[304]

Cardinal Turkson said that while there are many active faith-based global networks in place, “there appear to be some slight disconnects between the head and the body,” of the Catholic Church so that when the Pope speaks it does not always resonate with every part of the world. Building and activating this globalist connection by promoting The Great Reset, and the New Green Deal, seems to be the new mission of the Church and, of course, Cardinal Turkson, the possible future Pope. A figure that will probably renounce his role as supreme pontiff in the early years, in favor of a more Communistic approach, making Francis the last Pope to be the chief pastor of the worldwide Catholic Church in the traditional sense, and technically the last Pope, as I suggested in the title of one of my earlier books.^[305]

In the meantime, Pope Francis after being supportive of the sanitary dictatorship by closing all his churches has promoted from the very start the belief in science and vaccines as the only possible solution to all our problems and not God. The first thing the Vatican did in this context was to issue immediately a controversial edict in 2020, declaring the COVID-19 vaccination a “moral responsibility.” This controversial move proved once again that Pope Francis’ church is always willing to put science in front of God. The document in question consists of three parts:

- A. Context
- B. On vaccines
- C. Guidelines for the Vatican COVID-19 Commission

The Vatican states that:

On the moral responsibility of undergoing vaccination, it is necessary to reiterate how this issue also involves the relationship between personal health and public health, showing their close interdependence. In light of this connection, we consider it important that a responsible decision be taken in this regard, since the refusal of the vaccine may also constitute a risk to others.^[306]

Adding that if, “the motivation is to avoid benefiting from the results of a voluntary abortion” it can be considered “morally acceptable, under precise conditions” since the Vatican considers it “indirect and remote.” After a couple of weeks from the publication of the document, the Pope even went on record describing the refusal to get the vaccine as suicidal. Finally, a decree was issued during Christmas 2021 by Secretary of State Cardinal Pietro Parolin, which outlined that the past option of providing a negative COVID test to enter the Vatican will be removed, and the only way to work at or visit the Catholic Church’s headquarters will be proof of recovering from COVID in the past via a recorded positive PCR test or being fully vaccinated and from January 31, 2022, anyone working at the Vatican must provide “documentation proving the administration of the booster dose following the primary cycle of vaccination.”^[307] In other words, no jab, no job, in what seems to be the new headquarters of Satan on planet Earth, not of Jesus.

However, outside of the Vatican madness, some rare exceptions to the Pope’s pro-vaccine stand did occur in the Catholic world, the most notable one being that of Bishop Joseph Strickland, the Bishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Tyler, in Texas, that denounced in the same period the abortion-tainted vaccines with a strong statement: “I would encourage people to resist any forcing of receiving these vaccines.”^[308]

Unfortunately for him, most of the Catholic Bishops, are backing up Pope Francis’ controversial support for science and the sanitary dictatorship. In Vienna, for example, in December 2021 an outspoken Jewish anthropologist is comparing the latest Austrian Catholic bishops’ endorsement of the nation’s totalitarian vaccine plan, to the Austrian Catholic hierarchy’s support for Hitler under the National Socialist regime.

Popular writer Karen Harradine, an anthropologist and freelance journalist, who writes about politics and antisemitism, told my friends at Church Militant that, “The Austrian bishops are yet again guilty of placating evil. They supported the Anschluss (Hitler’s annexation of Austria), with Cardinal Innitzer flying the Nazi flag for Hitler,” and now Austria has become the first Western democracy to mandate COVID-19 jabs for its entire adult population. The law, which should take effect on February 1st, 2022, will remain active for three years and will amend Austria’s strict data-protection legislation to permit the linkage of private electronic health records with centralized vaccination registers, and that is what the New World Order wants for everyone.

In full support of such Nazi-inspired monstrosity, in December 2021, the Austrian Bishops’ Conference issued a statement championing the State’s “temporary legal obligation to vaccinate,” and emphasizing that the government has full discretionary power to decide if a vaccine mandate “is now the appropriate means to protect the common good.” While appearing to support, individual rights, by labeling “compulsory vaccination” a “serious interference with the physical integrity and freedom of the individual,” the bishops went on to invalidate this qualification by offering the State carte blanche over bodily autonomy. The bishops added that compulsory vaccination is “only permissible if all other possibilities have been exhausted, taking proportionality into account, to protect the population — in the event of a pandemic, the health system, and thus human life. Ultimately, it is the responsibility of the government to assess whether the prerequisites for this are met,” observed the prelates (having already concluded that the pandemic is extremely serious and that vaccines in their twisted vision of things prevent transmission and save lives).

The bishops urged Catholics to be vaccinated, quoting, of course, Pope Francis' declaration that "vaccination is an act of charity," and since "previous calls have not been sufficient," the bishops argued that the government's legal obligation to force the jab is justified. At this point, "It is as if the State had written the text of the bishops' statement," said Austrian Catholic activist Alexander Tschugguel, who also said, "Despite the weasel words and the doublespeak of the statement, it is more than clear our shepherds support the State's health tyranny."^[309] Tschugguel explained that the bishops had not only violated the principle of conscientious objection, but also a directive from the Vatican's Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith (CDF) that states that vaccination "must be voluntary." For this reason, "All the bishops needed to do was to reissue the CDF decree or to insert the sentence from the decree on vaccination not being obligatory," said Tschugguel — who shot to fame after dunking five Pachamama idols in the Tiber River during the Amazon Synod, an event I described in Volume 4 of my Confessions. Tschugguel, a Catholic convert from Lutheranism, also confirmed that Austrian democracy has virtually collapsed with the government's refusal to invite Herbert Kickl (leader of Austria's Freedom Party) and other elected representatives to discuss the mandate in question. Tschugguel predicted the situation would worsen now that Austria's former interior minister, Karl Nehammer is the chancellor. Nehammer abused his office as interior minister, giving police disproportionate powers to crack down on the unvaccinated. Tschugguel also told Church Militant that he was prohibited by Austrian law from drawing any comparisons between the prevailing health dictatorship and Austria's capitulation to Hitler under the Third Reich. Blasting the Austrian bishops for "their mediocre and forked-tongued [sic] response to what is essentially the persecution of the other — the unvaccinated," Karen Harradine said that "as a Jew, anthropologist and human being" she was horrified by the prelates' attitude.^[310]

This means that what we can now unequivocally call "The Great Nazi Reset," set up to help the implementation of the Fourth Reich, is currently underway in Europe, kicking off in German-speaking countries and Italy, the birthplace of fascism, where Italian bishops also celebrated the country's unprecedented expansion of State power, as the predominantly Catholic country stripped its unvaccinated population of basic human rights, including the right to work, travel, access healthcare, equality, and exercise freedom of conscience. "We are making these choices to restrict the unvaccinated as much as possible," said health minister Roberto Speranza to the Italian media in early January 2022 after a cabinet meeting, as the State was tightening its grip on the unvaccinated. Avvenire, the Italian Episcopal Conference's newspaper (which has been rooting for stricter vaccine policies), gleefully announced that "the bridge had been crossed and a general vaccine obligation imposed."^[311]

I find this a disturbing trend among the same countries that choose authoritarianism and racism over democracy in the 1930s, something that brings immediately to mind the infamous Pact of Steel, signed between Germany and Italy in May 1939, that formalized the 1936 Rome-Berlin Axis agreement, linking the two countries politically and militarily, just before the kickstart of World War II. History, unfortunately, tends to repeat itself cyclically, as the unvaccinated, that are almost treated like the Jews after the implementation of the horrifying racial laws, are now banned from all shops and every other area of society in such countries, besides essential services, and following the Austrian trend, the mandatory vaccination for the China virus is on its way in Italy, Germany and soon the rest of Europe. Something many brainwashed demconrats, and fake conservatives want to implement also here in the U.S. if we don't stop them.

Dr. Andreas Noack, who made the news last year, in November 2020, during the first year of the pandemic, when he was raided brutally by the German police, while he was streaming live against the COVID lockdown frenzy,^[312] suddenly died one year later, after moving to Austria, where he continued his battle against the German authorities (couldn't he have moved somewhere else?). Dr. Andreas Noack died on November 26, 2021, five days after he made a video exposing the negative side effects of graphene oxide, which Dr. Noack, and other academics, claim can be found inside the vaccines, inviting in his video the German population to write to the new German chancellor about his shocking discoveries, and reminding them also about the dangers of following Austria, especially after what happened with Austrian born Adolf Hitler. This was a bold statement indeed, that might have influenced the decision of the local authorities to harass him again, as there is still an untold rule, about mentioning Hitler in Germany, as well as Austria, and Dr. Noack broke it. Regarding instead the controversy surrounding graphene oxide, Pfizer and Moderna, have told

Reuters on more than one occasion in the last few months, that graphene oxide is not present in any part of the COVID-19 mRNA vaccines.^[313] However, Dr. Andreas Noack, who was following the latest research of Prof. Dr. Pablo Campra, who is a known professor and researcher, who currently works at the Food Technology Division of the Department of Agronomy at the University de Almeria in Spain, thought otherwise. What I will include now, is a summary of Pablo Campra's research on this subject that might have got Dr. Andreas Noack in trouble. I'm not a medical doctor, neither I ever claimed to be one, as I respect this profession that used to be also my father's, so the following summary is only exposed here regarding Noack's mysterious death, not as a medical statement per se, about its validity.

Of course, I might personally agree with it, but that's, of course, my opinion, nothing more, and I repeat I'm not an expert on such matters.

We present here our research on the presence of graphene in COVID vaccines. We have carried out a random screening of graphene-like nanoparticles visible at the optical microscopy in seven random samples of vials from four different trademarks, coupling images with their spectral signatures of RAMAN vibration. By this technique, called micro-RAMAN, we have been able to determine the presence of graphene in some of these samples, after screening more than 110 objects selected for their graphene-like appearance under optical microscopy. Out of them, a group of 28 objects has been selected, due to the compatibility of both images and spectra with the presence of graphene derivatives, based on the correspondence of these signals with those obtained from standards and scientific literature. The identification of graphene oxide structures can be regarded as conclusive in 8 of them, due to the high spectral correlation with the standard. In the remaining 20 objects, images coupled with Raman signals show a very high level of compatibility with undetermined graphene structures, different than the standard used here. This research remains open and is made available to the scientific community for discussion. We make a call for independent researchers, with no conflict of interest or coercion from any institution to make a wider counter-analysis of these products to achieve a more detailed knowledge of the composition and potential health risk of these experimental drugs reminding that graphene materials have potential toxicity on human beings and its presence has not been declared in any emergency use authorization.^[314]

After Dr. Noack's death, his partner, who is currently pregnant with his child, published a video on his official Telegram channel announcing the sad event saying: "The attack was extremely sneaky and unexpected. I have a terrible job to tell you that sadly, Andreas did not survive the assault. The news is extremely shocking for all of us. But Andreas is in me and I am a part of him. We are one."

She also stated that now it is all about humanity and, "He did it for you. He died for you. He was not afraid of death, he accepted the possibility. It's horrible that it had to happen this way. It wasn't the plan for him to leave us this quickly." She ended the video by stating, "I need you guys. I can't do it alone." The video was also posted on Twitter^[315] where it gathered lots of attention. However, a day later, probably under pressure, Noack's partner published a second video on Telegram, clarifying that Noack had simply died from a heart attack, without mentioning any harassment by the Austrian police authorities. She explained that he had collapsed at home and was taken to a hospital in Wolfsberg, in southern Austria. Austrian police also told a regional newspaper that Noack died of natural causes.^[316] The website of a funeral home in Wolfsberg said he was only 57 when he died.^[317]

This was probably one of the saddest stories I had to report during this neverending pandemic, for this reason, I decided to dedicate this book to Dr. Andreas Noack, as well as two other victims of this sanitary dictatorship imposed by the rising Fourth Reich. First, my friend Hans Gaarder (1960-2021), an investigative journalist and known NWO researcher from Norway, officially died of COVID-19 in early April 2021 under very mysterious circumstances, who badly vilified after his death by the Norwegian mainstream media. You can find out more about Hans, who was also one of the founders of the Norwegian online alternative-news magazine Nyhetspeilet, in both Volume 1,^[318] and Volume 2,^[319] of my Confessions, which include, also two articles,^[320]^[321] he wrote about me and my Norwegian experiences. Basically, after witnessing firsthand what happened to me in Norway, including the brutality of my arrest for espionage, Hans became one of the most outspoken Norwegian voices against the Vatican-led New World Order, and that's what probably cost him his life.

God bless you, Hans, I will never forget your courage, and your kindness towards me, especially in those moments of great difficulty and despair during the last months of my life in Norway. Another victim that also died in similar circumstances was the Italian Dr. Domenico Biscardi (1968-2022), labeled a "No-vax" for his alternative theories on COVID, the vaccines, and the pandemic, that according to the official version of the events, died of a heart attack in his home in Naples in early January 2022. Domenico, a fellow countryman known also as Mimmo, who was very popular in Italy, used his social media to spread to a rather big audience his truths and opinions. "Coincidentally," Dr. Biscardi, who was about to submit an official complaint against Big Pharma to the European Commission regarding the ingredients present in the vaccines after receiving a recent lab report, just like Dr. Andreas Noack, talked about the presence of graphene oxide, but also nano router technology in the vaccines.

CHAPTER FOUR

The Unfolding of The Fourth Reich

The Illuminati Playgrounds of Austria, Germany, and Switzerland

The Fourth Reich concept, being the successor to Adolf Hitler's infamous Third Reich (1933–1945), has been mostly relegated in the pages of some fringe conspiracy theorists, like the late Jim Marrs (1943-2017) for example, who used it to refer to what he perceived as a covert continuation of Nazi ideals. In one of his latest works published in 2015, The Rise of the Fourth Reich: The Secret Societies That Threaten to Take Over America, Marrs claimed that Nazis infiltrated the U.S. at every level of government. Combining revisionist history with careful research, the author and conspiracy researcher, offered at the time, a plethora of material that connected the Nazi's move after World War II to the Americas, to what is going on in American politics today. Certainly, Marrs, whose previous work entitled Crossfire (1989), was also the basis of the Oliver Stone movie JFK, seemed to be serious in his assertions, even though he eased off on the pedal, as if a touch embarrassed, when his subjects got too weird even for him, in certain parts of the book. After excitedly postulating that Hitler escaped the bunker in 1945, Marrs (who also wrote Rule by Secrecy: The Hidden History That Connects the Trilateral Commission, the Freemasons, and the Great Pyramids, 2000, etc.), cleared his throat once and for all by declaring that Hitler's fate "is immaterial, a moot point. What is certain is that Hitler's legacy—National Socialism—lives on."^[322] And I'm sure we can all agree on this statement. However, immediately after his controversial book on the Fourth Reich came out, a new documentary series started at the History Channel, entitled "Hunting Hitler," that explored how Hitler might have escaped, where might he have gone, and whether he plotted a Fourth Reich.^[323] The series in question ran for three seasons between 2015 and 2018, followed by a two-hour special in 2020.^[324]

Jim Marrs wasn't the only author to have talked about the possibility of a Fourth Reich being a reality in today's world, we also had the late Max Spiers, who died under mysterious circumstances in 2016, and Peter Levenda one of my favorite authors on this subject, who talks extensively of the occult background and roots of the Nazi movement, in his book published in 2003, Unholy Alliance: A History of Nazi Involvement with the Occult, that shows how the idea of a vast international network of late 19th- and early 20th-century occult groups influenced Nazi ideology. However, I often wonder these days how the late Jim Marrs, would have reacted to what has been happening to us since the beginning of the China virus plandemic that makes it more obvious how they are truly working towards a Fourth Reich.

In this absurd context that keeps unfolding each day, an Austrian brothel in Vienna was pushing an absurd gimmick to entice people into getting vaccinated by offering free "sex sessions" with a sex worker of their choice if they took the jab. This clear attempt to bribe the skeptics was made at the Fun Palast: Sex Star Sauna Club in Vienna, which was administering COVID-19 vaccination on-site, in November 2021, every Monday from 4 pm to 10 pm, offering in their unusual COVID package a free 30-minute session with a "lady of your choice" at their sexual "sauna club." On top of that, those 14 and older, were allowed to enter the club, if they were accompanied by an adult.

A truly controversial move worthy of a Third World country, that could be used to cover up terrible acts of pedophilia in broad daylight. Usually, men go to brothels, but in this context, even girls 14 and above were encouraged to visit the site for this special offer. Keep in mind that prostitution, the provision of sexual services by adults, is generally legal in Austria. According to the current case law of the Austrian Supreme Court, contracts for sexual services between sex service providers and customers are generally permissible^[325], but that's not the problem I'm exposing here, but only a necessary specification for a better understanding of the roots of this perversion and liberal behavior in Austria, of all places, that is found in the Illuminati and the esoteric movements, that strived in Germany and Austria between 1880 and 1945, and shaped many occult groups presenting elements of Theosophy, Anthroposophy, and Ariosophy against the influences of earlier European esotericism. This way, Austria has become the number one experimental ground of the Illuminati network, and among the first countries to embrace the modern New Age Antichristian philosophy that emanated from the infamous Theosophical Society, and later gave birth to modern Satanism, as I explained in Volume 5 of my Confessions.

The first German Theosophical Society was established in July 1884, under the presidency of Wilhelm Hübbe-Schleiden, a conservative German nationalist turned spiritual seeker who sought to establish Theosophy on a supposed "scientific" basis. Between 1886 and 1895 Hübbe-Schleiden published the monthly periodical Die Sphinx in Vienna and in 1887, another Theosophical society was founded with its president, Friedrich Eckstein. Among his circle was Franz Hartmann (1831-1912), a known Rosicrucian author and Illuminati, and a young Rudolf Steiner (1861-1925), who later would publish a periodical called Lucifer-Gnosis. Steiner later rejected some of the more controversial elements of Theosophy and the Illuminati, to establish his own Anthroposophical brand under his lodges of the Masonic Rite of Misraim, the combined Masonic Rite of Memphis-Misraim, and the Adoption grades of Egyptian Freemasonry. Steiner, however, claimed that although the Masonic lineage given to him in 1906 by Illuminati fringe Masonic agent Theodor Reuss gave him additional accreditation for his project, he did not officially use these Masonic grades as a basis of his Misraim Service. It is very important to note that the grades or degrees worked within Steiner's Misraim Rite are unlike those of the traditional Masonic/Illuminati Rites he received authority to perform.

The grades in Steiner's Misraim Rite were not (and are not) Masonic, they are purely Rosicrucian and unique in their dramatic style. In the summer of 1914, World War I begins and Steiner decides to put his Misraim Rite to sleep while the war spreads through Europe. Some say that he never awoke it from its slumbers^[326] but that's not correct, and his disciples still work this unusual rite to this day, even here in the United States. After all, Steiner used the teachings from his reformed Misraim Rite for his Anthroposophical Society, trying to oppose in its "gnostic" way, the influences of the dark side of the Illuminati and controversial figures like Aleister Crowley that pushed towards what Steiner defined as the "Ahrimanic Deception."

Like Ati Petrov, Owner of Real Medicine (2004-present) writes in a comment on Quora "Steiner uses the name Ahriman to describe a cosmic being who represents everything which is clever, intellectual, materialistic, rigid and with many laws and rules...but without heart or a value for the human or spiritual in us." I will analyze further the evil figure of Ahriman, who is also called Satan in religious literature, later on in my book, but let's go back to the first steps of the influential Theosophical saga that took place in German-speaking countries.

A German Theosophical Society, as a branch of the International Theosophical Brotherhood, was established a decade later in 1896, when the American theosophists around William Quan Judge, Katherine Tingley, E. T. Hargrove, and C. F. Wright traveled through Europe. Franz Hartmann, who became the president of this branch, also founded a Theosophical lay monastery in Ascona, Switzerland, in 1889, which became an important laboratory for the development of the future New Age movement and the Illuminati in Europe. His periodical Lotusblüten (Lotus Blossoms, 1892–1900), which possibly ended in the hands of Adolf Hitler, was the first German publication to use the theosophical swastika on its cover,^[327] and Hitler's demented racial ideology, content, and occult sources all came from Theosophy and a Theosophist, in particular, Guido (von) List (1848–1919), a journalist, and writer who after turning to esotericism, became the first popular author to combine Völkisch ideology and occultism into the type of esoteric doctrine that is now collectively labeled Ariosophy. In September 1903, the occult periodical Die Gnosis included an article by List, in which he, referring to Sebaldt von Werth, began to articulate "a Germanic occult religion."

In the following decade, List continued to work on this topic, also making references to the works of Madame Blavatsky, who co-founded the Theosophical Society in 1875, and William Scott-Elliot, an early member of the London Lodge of the Theosophical society who elaborated Helena Blavatsky's concept of root races in several publications, most notably The Story of Atlantis (1896) and The Lost Lemuria (1904), later combined in 1925 into a single volume called The Story of Atlantis and the Lost Lemuria.^[328]

In List, we find the concept of Armanism, a system of belief that attempts to explain the relationship between God's sovereignty and mankind's free will, the religion of the Theocratic elite in his image of ancient Germanic past, List also borrowed material from Freemasonry and Rosicrucianism. So Armanism and Ariosophy are esoteric ideological systems that were pioneered by Guido von List and Jörg Lanz von Liebenfels respectively, in Austria between 1890 and 1930.^[329] Now, whether Hitler had a formal or informal relationship with the Guido von List Society during his years in Vienna from 1907-1913, has not been definitively established. However, the List Society was certainly prominent in the occult circles that stressed Völkisch nationalism and antisemitism in that period in Austria, and Hitler was profoundly inspired by it, as Hitler himself emphasized in his Mein Kampf, it was in Vienna that he established "a world picture and a philosophy which became the granite foundation" of all his actions.

That "granite foundation" was centered on his racial ideology. Nevertheless, it is more probable that Hitler did come into direct contact with another major proponent of Ariosophy (which means the wisdom of the Aryans), in Vienna, Lanz von Liebenfels (1874-1954).^[330] In 1905, he published his book Theozoölogie oder die Kunde von den Sodoms-Äfflingen und dem Götter-Elektron (Theozoology, or the Science of the Sodomite-Apelings and the Divine Electron) in which he advocated sterilization of the sick and the "lower races" as well as forced labor for "castrated chandals," and glorified the "Aryan race" as "Gottmenschen" ("god-men"). Lanz justified his esoteric racial ideology by attempting to give it a Biblical foundation; according to him, Eve, whom he described as initially being divine, involved herself with a demon and gave birth to the “lower races” in the process. Furthermore, he claimed that this led to blonde women being attracted primarily to “dark men”, something that only could be stopped by “racial demixing” so that the “Aryan-Christian master humans” could “once again rule the dark-skinned beastmen” and ultimately achieve divinity. A copy of this book was sent to Swedish poet August Strindberg, from whom Lanz received an enthusiastic reply in which he was described as a “prophetic voice”. One year later, in 1905, Lanz von Liebenfels founded the magazine Ostara, Briefbücherei der Blonden und Mannesrechtler, of which he became the sole author and editor in 1908. Lanz is said to have up to 100,000 subscribers, but it is generally agreed that this figure was grossly exaggerated. Readers of this publication included a young Adolf Hitler, Dietrich Eckart, and the British Field Marshal Herbert Kitchener among others. Lanz himself claimed he was visited by Hitler in 1909, who he supplied with two missing issues of the magazine.^[331] Like professor Richard B. Spence, a known expert on this subject from the University of Idaho once pointed out:

Adolf Hitler is one of the most infamously influential men in modern history. He changed the course of history by raging World War II and for his racist ideas. Although there are heaps of documents, speeches, and statements about him, Hitler was a secretive man. It is believed that he was guided by secret forces that shaped his ideology and gave him power. Though he took advantage of many historical changes and chaotic situations at the time, it is possible that the secret societies had a great role in the making of Hitler.^[332]

Hitler came in contact, with those evil “secret forces,” that will eventually bring us to the monstrosities of the holocaust, in Austria’s Theosophical milieu, where he is still very popular to this day. Theosophy, founded by the antisemitic Madame Blavatsky took root in Germany during the decades before World War II, but the superiority of the Aryan race is a cornerstone of Theosophical beliefs that were promoted in Austria back then, giving birth to Ariosophy, also extant in pre-Hitler Germany and Austria that became the base of Nazi ideology. In their perverse ideology only so-called “Aryan god-men” possessed the occult spirit and soul to lead the spiritual hierarchy of society. Jews were instead the prototypes of lesser races and were identified as animal men.

To cancel any memory of Hitler’s Austrian origins and occult upbringing, in 2020, Austria has unveiled plans to “neutralize” the building where the Nazi German dictator Adolf Hitler was born, by turning it into a police station^[333] but the fact that Hitler was Austrian by birth, and profoundly inspired by the perverse occult doctrines of his country, is a something the contemporary Austrian elite, directly involved, as I showed you earlier, to Klaus Schwab and his Great Reset, will not be able to neutralize, especially in light of their new increasing antidemocratic measures, and their “free sex sessions” for the vaccinated, that shows to the entire world the real authoritarian, and perverse nature, of Austrian’s elite.

Another important element to explain the free “sex sessions” in exchange for the vaccine, is the Austrian Illuminati’s obsession for weird sexual practices that influenced the birth of the Ordo Templi Orientis, also known by the acronym O.T.O., a powerful Illuminati sect later taken over by Aleister Crowley, that initially was created in the Austrian Theosophical milieu, thanks to Carl Kellner (1851 –1905), a chemist, inventor, and industrialist born in Vienna, who also financed the late Franz Hartmann after he came back from living at the headquarters of the Theosophical Society in Adyar, India. Kellner, who was a student of Freemasonry, Rosicrucianism, and Eastern mysticism considered today the founder of Ordo Templi Orientis, and sometimes referred to as “the spiritual father of the O.T.O.”^[334]

In 1895, Kellner began to discuss his idea for founding this new branch of the Illuminati /Academia Masonica with his associate Theodor Reuss (1855-1923), aka Frater Merlin or Peregrinus. During these discussions, Kellner decided that the Academia Masonica should be called Ordo Templi Orientis (Oriental Templar Order). The occult inner circle of this Illuminati order (O.T.O. proper) would be organized parallel to the highest degrees of the Rite of Memphis-Misraim and would teach the secret doctrines of the Hermetic Brotherhood of Light, and Kellner’s “key” to Masonic symbolism that was to be found in sexual magic. For this reason, both men and women would be admitted at all levels to this order, but possession of the various degrees of Craft and high-grade Freemasonry would be a prerequisite for admission to the inner circle of O.T.O. Due to the regulations of the established grand lodges which governed regular Masonry, women could not be made masons and would therefore be excluded by default from membership in Ordo Templi Orientis. Reforming the Masonic system, to allow the admission of women, may have been one of the reasons that Carl Kellner and his associates resolved to obtain control over one of the many rites of masonry; possibly wishing to incorporate the practice of sex magic on the side. They believed that sex magic was, in fact, “...the key to all the secrets of the universe and all the symbolism ever used by secret societies and religions.”^[335]

However, the discussions, between Reuss and Kellner did not lead to positive results, because Reuss was very busy at the time with a revival of the original Order of Illuminati, along with his associate in Dresden, Leopold Engel (1824 - 1913).

The story of Reuss also has a darker side. After having unsuccessfully tried his luck in Germany as a singer and journalist, he moved to London, where he was also initiated into Freemasonry in 1876 and expelled in 1881 as he was in arrears with the payment of dues, and frequented socialist and anarchist circles. In 1885, he became a member of the executive committee of the Socialist League. But his political comrades considered his Masonic and occult interests exotic, and finally expelled him in 1886, believing they had unmasked him as a spy for the German police. It was after these events that Reuss returned to Berlin, where he met Engel, and where he continued for a long time, always suspected of being an agent provocateur, to frequent the anarchist and socialist milieu. In Berlin, he met Engel, and the project of “awakening” the Bavarian Illuminati began.^[336]

Carl Kellner did not approve of the revived Illuminati Order Reuss was putting together with Engel, mainly because it would draw too much attention towards them. Over a hundred years earlier, the Illuminati had several lodges in Vienna and expanded into Austria and southwestern Germany. It gained important recruits such as Dalberg who was at one time an Austrian minister and Baron d’Erthal. The Viennese members of the time also included a key figure of the Illuminati, Count Leopold Vilém Kolowrat (1727-1809), Supreme Chancellor to the king, and close friend of the Hapsburg Empress Maria Theresia, who was also a holder of the previously mentioned Order of the Golden Fleece, and one of the four national superiors in Europe of the Bavarian Illuminati. Count Kolowrat, known also as Numenius in the Illuminati, came from a Czech noble family that had a prominent role in the history and administration of their native Kingdom of Bohemia, and he was regarded as one of the most suitable members to participate in the strategically important Masonic Congress that took place in Paris in 1785, organized 4 years before the start of the French Revolution, by the Rite of The Philalethes, created in the 1770s by the Loge des Amis Réunis founded by Charles Pierre Paul Savalette de Lange (1746-1797), who was also a member of the Illuminati under the code name Bias, and captain of the National Guard and adjutant of Lafayette in Paris. According to the Illuminati chief executive officer, Johann Joachim Christoph Bode’s travel journal, some of the Philalethes comprised a secret core of Illuminati members, called the “Philadelphians.”^[337] The powerful lodge counted amongst its influential members, Maximilien de Robespierre (1758-1794), one of the best-known figures of the French Revolution. Count Kolowrat went to Paris on behalf of Adam Weishaupt, to lobby French leaders to sponsor these congresses so they could propagate their Illuminist plans. Attendants included also the Worshipful Master of the Loge Neuf Soeurs, where Benjamin Franklin, served as Worshipful Master, from 1779 to 1781.

Then there were among the Austrian Illuminati, in the same period Joseph von Sonnenfels, a Professor at Vienna University; Gottfried von Swieten, President of the Commission for Education; Count Johann Cobenzl, later Foreign Minister of Austria; and the poet Alxinger. The Order had also many lodges sprinkled about many smaller Austrian towns, including Innsbrück, as well as Italian cities under Austrian control at the time such as Milan. Austria was once a stronghold for the Illuminati, and Carl Kerner, an expert himself on the history of Austrian secret societies and the original Illuminati, remembered the warnings of the late Adam Weishaupt (1748-1830), the founder, that suggested to change the name of the order, to avoid persecution, after their plans were exposed, and they were outlawed from the mid-1780s when internal documents of the Illuminati of Bavaria were seized by Bavarian police authorities.

According to Theodor Reuss, upon his final separation with Engel in June 1902, Kellner finally contacted him, and the two agreed to proceed with the establishment of the Ordo Templi Orientis aka O.T.O., by seeking authorizations to work the various rites of high-grade Masonry. Reuss and Kellner prepared a brief manifesto for their order in 1903, which was published later in the Fringe Masonic/Illuminati publication known as The Oriflamme. Whether Kellner ever lived to see the O.T.O. become more than just these early plans is debatable, since he died in 1905, not long after the first announcements were made, but his obsession with sexual magic and deviant occult practices, that were prevalent at that time in the Theosophical milieu in Austria, inspired what will become one of the most influential Illuminati sects of the last one hundred years, proving once again Austria has always been used by the Illuminati network for the most uncompromising experiments for a very long time.

It also seems that Engel and Reuss, did not abandon the project to bring together the Illuminati in Germany and Austria, as a bulletin named Ordensanzeiger der Illuminatenorderns, was published before World War I, and in 1912 there was a Johannite lodge in Berlin named “Adam Weishaupt to the pyramid,” that worked under a Grand Lodge of the Illuminati-Freemasons of Germany, that seemed to have established another Lodge in 1910 called “Adam Weishaupt to the light of the Rhine” in Cologne, but after World War I, Leopold Engel immigrated to Austria,^[338] where the Johannite heresy, that venerates John the Baptist above Jesus Christ, has always been more powerful than in Germany. Comte le Couteulx de Canteleu (1827-1910), known for his work on secret societies, in which he points out all the links between Freemasonry and the French Revolution, explains the importance of the Johannite heresy for Neotemplars, Freemasons, and the Illuminati, in his book, Les sectes et sociétés secrètes politiques et religieuses, where he writes:

At the time of the Crusades, there existed, in the East, "the religious Christians who called themselves brothers of the East, and whose doctrine it is necessary to test to understand the future beliefs of the Templars and the Johannites."^[339]

Adding later that:

The mysteries of the Egyptian initiation, transmitted to the Jews by Moses, to the Christians by Jesus Christ, were religiously preserved by the successors of Saint John the apostle, and these mysteries and these initiations, regenerated by the evangelical initiation, were a sacred deposit, guarded by the brothers of the East.^[340]

It is worth mentioning the fact that even if Comte le Couteulx de Canteleu was a fervent Anti-Mason himself, he was also the grandson of influential Freemason Jean-Barthélemy Le Couteulx de Canteleu, one of the founders of the Banque de France, the central bank of France. In 1819, Vincent Lombard of Langres, who was once close to the previously mentioned Count Kolowrat and served after the French Revolution as an ambassador of France in Holland, and as judge member of the Court of Cassation, disguising himself under the name Ancien Illuminé, published a very revealing book on the Illuminati, entitled La Vérité sur les Sociétés secrètes en Allemagne (Paris: 1819)^[341]. The Ancien Illuminé offered a more realistic interpretation of the Illuminati than most publications around at the time. First of all, Ancien Illuminé states that the "Machiavellian code" developed by Weishaupt reflected a "profound immorality."^[342] The Ancien Illuminé also gave Weishaupt sarcastic praise, when he says Weishaupt's "genius" was not only his "ranting about abuses and prejudice," but also his ability to make a "group of fools" come to his school of wisdom to graze upon his "many words."^[343] Weishaupt exaggerated to them about "the evil into gigantic forms" of the monarchy while filing "young heads with selfish ambition."^[344] Ancien Illuminé, who had been part of the Bavarian Illuminati and still believed in some of the elements of their ideology, appeared to agree that the power of religion needed to be broken, just like Weishaupt wanted, but in doing so, a new intolerance should not emerge which would deny anyone the religious vocation that they seek.

Weishaupt sought to capture, by the influence of the Order of which he was chief, the power that was usurped by religion over common sense and human reason. If it had been more open and better managed, an attack against monasticism in Bavaria might have been a blessing. But this was not the only abuse upon which war was declared. Rather, a spirit of intolerance was taken toward the monastic life itself which [instead] should have been allowed for men to prefer as well as any other social existence.^[345]

Ancien Illuminé seems to have had a softer approach to the Antichristian mission of the Illuminati, criticizes Weishaupt, because he says the Illuminati founder confused the abuses of religion with religion itself. It is fine to "repress abuse," he said, but Ancien Illuminé also says it is wrong to attack religion which at the same time, "gives direction to society and forms its base."^[346] As a consequence of Weishaupt going beyond necessity he rightly said, "Weishaupt and his adepts had become the most dangerous enemies of their country."^[347] Ancien Illuminé also disparaged the irreligion of Weishaupt's followers, even if he was not particularly concerned about the Christian institutions of Europe. Thus, the Ancien Illuminé offered criticism primarily only to the extent that the Illuminati used Machiavellian schemes, the old Illuminatus, Vincent Lombard of Langres, also disliked taking away the freedom of religion of anyone, even though he sympathized with the destruction of the old religious system. His criticisms were well-measured, more sober-minded than Weishaupt's. Yet, the Ancien Illuminé exposes intimate details of their founding lodges in France, and their involvement with the French Revolution, through German and Austrian agents of the Illuminati Order.

At the end of his book, Ancien Illuminé, the Illuminati renounced their association and returned Weishaupt to obscurity. But we all know that is only partly true, as some of them will simply operate under other names, but his work provides nevertheless a sober insight into the fact that the Illuminati as they originally existed had fully renounced their association, and were permanently disbanded as of 1819, and some researchers say the authentic Order of Illuminati was already dissolved in 1993, and that's why, Theodor Reuss, joined later by Leopold Engel, started to work on reestablishing the Order with its original name in the 1880s. A project that generated controversy in Germany, but found a lot of interested Freemasons in Austria, where Leopold Engel eventually moved after getting into trouble with the German Grand Lodges Freemasonry, that never recognized any of his lodges that were considered highly “irregular.”

In 1928, the late Engel published before his death in 1931, Luzifers Bekenntnisse (“The Confessions of Lucifer”), a work that he allegedly received from Lucifer via mediumship, based on the redemption of the fallen angel. In 1949, the Austrian “World League of the Illuminati,” was revived after the war, as the outer court of the Fraternitas Saturni Illuminati sect by Eduard Kobel, who amassed the titles of Grand Chancellor -General, Chancellor of the Austrian Province, Grand Magus 5°, and the highest degree of the Illuminati Order (Rex).^[348] Suddenly things were moving forward for Austrian Freemasonry and the Illuminati in that period, only one year earlier in August 1948, in Bad Hofgastein, a market town in the district of St. Johann im Pongau, in the Austrian state of Salzburg, there was an important meeting between the late Nazi sympathizer Theodor Innitzer (1875-1955), Archbishop of Vienna, and a Cardinal of the Catholic Church, and the Grand Master of the Johannine rite of Austrian Freemasonry (Grand Lodge of Vienna for Austria), Bernhard Scheichelbauer. The Archbishop of Vienna wanted to personally verify if the Austrian Masons, who were re-founding the first Austrian Grand Lodge after the war, were not atheists and what kind of beliefs they had. He must have been positively impressed because four years later, the Austrian Freemasons started an official relation with the Apostolic Nuncio to Austria, a diplomatic post of the Holy See, but Pope Pius XII, who was still a traditionalist, before the Masonic take over of his successor, rejected this initiative.^[349] But things will change with the Second Vatican Council, and in the end, the experimental nature of Austrian Freemasonry, and their constant link to the progressive heretical ideals of the Illuminati, have reached the highest levels of the Vatican. For this reason, in the last few years, Father Michael Heinrich Weninger, a long time Austrian Freemason, known for his work in reconciling Freemasonry with the Catholic Church, has been placed in a key position at the Pontifical Council for Interreligious Dialogue, that is being used to usher in the One World Religion.

Father Weninger is no ordinary priest, but a former Austrian diplomat and a member of the Academy of the Illuminati with its headquarters in Piazza di Spagna, Rome, who was ordained in 2009 following the death of his wife but is also openly a Mason and the chaplain of three Austrian Masonic lodges. You can’t make this stuff up the Catholic Church is finally showing their true Masonic colors to the world. In the August-September 2020 issue of Inside the Vatican, there is an interesting article on the increasing toleration, if not outright approval, of overt “Catholic” Freemasons by the Vatican II Church. The piece is entitled, “New Openings to Make Masonic Membership Permissible?” and is written by the magazine’s editor-in-chief, Dr. Robert Moynihan who writes:

In 2013, a French priest was removed from office and stripped of his public ministry for refusing to resign from Freemasonry. By contrast, in February 2020 an Austrian priest and Vatican official, quite open about his Masonic membership, held a press conference to launch his new book about the alleged compatibility of “regular” (British-recognized) Masonry and the Catholic faith, with little if any fear of punishment. ^[350]

So, who is this “Father” Weninger, anyway? He used to be married and served in the Austrian diplomatic service. In 2009 he was widowed, and a mere two years later he was suddenly ordained a priest by Vienna’s infernal Cardinal, Christoph Schönborn, a member of the Austrian elite I mentioned earlier on, concerning the late Otto von Habsburg and “Great Reseter” Klaus Schwab. Schönborn appears to have connections with Freemasonry and, in any case, is certainly doing the anti-Catholic work of the Masons. Incredibly enough, it was Pope Benedict XVI, the same Joseph Ratzinger, who had reiterated the impermissibility of joining the Masons, who originally appointed Father Weninger in November 2012, to serve on the Pontifical Council for Interreligious Dialogue, where he contributes to the dialogue with Islam, that is crucial for the Jesuit One World Religion project. Quite rightly, therefore, does Dr. Moynihan observe that “it appears action is no longer being taken to discipline priests and prominent laymen who are known Masons, or bar them from Holy Communion.” Not only that — they are now openly promoted! And why not? The highest-ranking Freemason in Vatican City is, after all, Pope Francis. No wonder the Jesuit Pope holds honorary membership of the Rotary Club in his native Buenos Aires (full of former Nazis), and Masonic institutions worldwide have been openly supporting him since his election as “Pope” in 2013, treating him like a “Brother.”

After all, Adam Weishaupt’s Illuminati strategy of secretly binding hands of world leaders was precisely designed to mimic the Jesuits, and now that we have a Jesuit and a Freemason as Pope, the project to end all religion and private property, as Weishaupt wanted, can now finally take place. Weishaupt had laid out the end-goals of the Great Reset already back then in these quite succinct terms:

To reinstate man in his primitive right of equality and liberty we must begin by destroying all religion and civil society, and finish by the destruction of all property . . . A time shall come when man shall acknowledge no other law but the great book of nature. This revolution will be the work of the secret societies.^[351]

At the time of Weishaupt, Freemasonry contained within itself a sort of antidote against Illuminati influence. For the general rule of all Freemasonry, there is no discussion in the lodge of either religion or politics. As a result, the Illuminati were only able to influence a minority of Freemasons, but things have changed since then, and even mainstream Freemasonry, as well as the Church, is now fully politicized by the progressive ideals of the Illuminati.

This is an extract from Adam's Weishaupt PREPARATION FOR THOSE WHO ARE TO PARTICIPATE IN GOVERNING THE ORDER OF THE ILLUMINATI, to better understand the manipulative beliefs of their elite circle:

My Brother!

You have declared that you regard the institute of the Illustrious Order up to the Lesser Illuminatus degree, which you have received, as important, noble, and worthy of your collaboration. We, therefore, welcome you to the smaller circle of operative workers! With confidence, we can assert that the Order deserves this sentiment and that you shall never regret having become one of its active members. Now you know what is essential, the main focus of our association's Superiors and the manner in which we perpetuate it – and that in order to spread truth and light we must first set up preparatory schools and educate men according to our principles. However, before you direct such an enterprise in your parts, before you can proliferate the Order and link it to the Freemasons, it is necessary that any conceivable doubt or mistrust on either side be fully resolved if indeed any still exists. You still have two Illuminati degrees before you, one of which is concerned with the most precise knowledge of man, and another which, in addition to various disclosures, demonstrates its practical applications for the members of the Order.^[352] Then follows the Mysteries Class, in which your spirit will find nourishment as well as the opportunity to teach and learn. However, neither you nor we are served well if we bestow these degrees on you one after the other before you are ready to use such knowledge for the benefit of other men. The lowest Class is the Order's foundation. Once you have established this preparatory school and then entrusted the worthiest among the Minervals with the care of the weaker ones, thus placing the direction of the Minerval Class into other hands and discharging yourself of this duty, then you have the leisure, merit, and right to learn more about the Order and participate in its government. Until then we shall postpone everything else to avoid confusion, skip the other degrees, and look ahead to give you a first glance at the larger plan of operations. If we could not agree on the latter, it would be fruitless for both parties to dwell on the theoretical part, as our main focus is to be of practical use for the world. A society desiring to spread wisdom and virtue in this corrupted world is bound to encounter obstacles. The Order has taken the most reliable measures to overcome these and to gain power over evil; should we, my Brother! share this power with you, and if you wish to become a pillar of the just cause, we must better acquaint ourselves with one another in one more aspect. Our work must be accomplished with prudence and caution as well as honesty and unselfishness. You can easily see that an association resting on such a solid foundation is and must be very powerful in secret in order to remove the obstacles barring the progress of wisdom, and that it does not suffice to have noble principles alone but that he who has the power to implement them must also choose good means for this end. Therefore, it is in the interest of both parties to ascertain:

I. On our part, that the man whom we allow to stand at the helm with us uses the instruction and means placed in his hands in a most unselfish manner and for the advantage of the whole.

II. On your part, that you can be assured that we seek nothing other than universal felicity and that we plan no dangerous treason. –

In a word, we must ask one another about our political principles, and you must know our plan of operations. Or we ask you: 'Which measures would you take to remove the obstacles hindering us to disseminate our knowledge and intentions with which you are familiar?' You then ask us: 'How do you intend to make the good cause prevail with this legion of well-trained men?'^[353]

For this purpose, the future elite members of the order were made to answer seventeen questions, among them these three that I regard as particularly relevant:

IX. Would such a society be evil if it were to contrive situations in which the greatest monarchs of the world would be rendered incapable of doing evil? So that they could not do evil, even if they wanted to? A society that would thwart the abuse of the highest power? Is it possible for such a society to prevent abuse without going to the root cause?

X. Is it not conceivable that the states themselves are a status in status without the current civil constitution being suspended?

XI. Would it then be unjust to establish oneself so firmly in some country that all members there would be provided for according to their merit and protected against any misadventure? That it would be impossible to make them unhappy? Would it be unjust to secretly direct this outward power, now being used for evil, towards good purposes – in a word, to govern without ruling?

Well, that last sentence in the 11th question sums up the whole mission and philosophy of the Illuminati that still “governs” to this day in the shadows “without ruling.”

From H. G. Wells to Dr. Fauci, the Twisted Ideology of the NWO is Upon Us

In this unprecedented reality, secretly driven by the occult forces I have described until now, we shouldn't be surprised if a Vatican document issued jointly by the Pontifical Academy for Life and the Vatican COVID-19 commission, seems to think you can ignore the teachings of the church in blind favor of alleged scientific solutions and never-ending lockdowns. In January 2022, Allison Pearson from Telegraph recounted her anti-lockdown views from early on, and how so many people who implemented draconian policies are now running from them and their responsibility.^[354] All this insanity is taking place mainly because the Jesuit-led New World Order is upon us, dictated by such evil figures as Jesuit-trained Dr. Anthony Fauci.

At a Senate hearing on May 11th, 2021, Dr. Fauci, who was a special guest at a Vatican virtual health conference only a month earlier, denied ever having funded "gain of function" research at the Wuhan Institute of Virology (WIV), despite clear documentation proving otherwise. Fauci, the head of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases (NIAID), told a House Appropriations subcommittee that the money was funneled to the Chinese lab through the non-profit EcoHealth Alliance directed by Dr. Peter Daszak, to fund only, "a modest collaboration with very respectable Chinese scientists who were world experts on coronavirus." But Fauci emphatically denied, in a typical Jesuit fashion (they are professional liars), that the money went toward so-called "gain of function" research, which he described as "taking a virus that could infect humans and making it either more transmissible and/or pathogenic for humans."

However, this was a lie by Dr. Anthony Fauci, who argued even publicly that conducting experiments on contagious viruses to increase their potency was worth the risk, even if the work could accidentally lead to a pandemic.

On August 27th, 2021, the U.S. intelligence community issued a 502-word summary of the conclusions drawn up by the joint investigation ordered by President Biden in late May. Conspicuously absent from the brief statement were any indications that the evidence presented in testimony to Congress had been part of the intelligence community analysis - at least not in the unclassified version that was released. In this context, the lifting of the gain-of-function (GOF) moratorium in late 2017, via the Potential Pandemic Pathogen Care and Oversight framework (P3CO), has allowed GOF research with SARS-like coronaviruses to resume with very few practical limits. In particular, the absence of clear definitions of GOF, creative interpretations of the guidelines, and rather discretionary decisions to refer research projects or not, all contributed to reducing the effectiveness of the P3CO framework – even though other agencies of the U.S. Federal government actively maintained the GOF standards. D.R.A.S.T.I.C. (Decentralized Radical Autonomous Search Team Investigating COVID-19) a loose collection of internet activists investigating the origins of COVID-19 became aware of documents that show that EcoHealth Alliance (EHA) in concert with the Wuhan Institute of Virology were looking towards implementing an advanced human pathogenicity BatCoV research project that qualifies as GoF, in a grant proposal submitted to a funding proposal call by the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA) ALREADY in the spring of 2018. The EHA / WIV proposal (named 'DEFUSE') was ultimately rejected for full funding (but leaving open the door for partial funding), in part because it skirted the GOF guidelines.

Dr. Anthony Fauci, the nation's chief medical advisor, wrote in a scientific article for the American Society for Microbiology (ASM), in October 2012, about the public health benefit of gain-of-function viral experiments if there is a significant oversight. In the article in question, first reported by The Australian, Fauci also noted that a pause on such studies should continue until researchers can figure out how to do them more transparently. Interestingly enough, in March 2021, the Wuhan Institute of Virology deleted all mention of its collaboration with the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, directed by Dr. Anthony Fauci. It also deleted descriptions of gain-of-function research on the SARS virus. The elite wants to hide the truth and to bow down to their rules, they want to destroy Capitalism in favor of communism on a global scale, leading us to an Abyss, that seems more evident in this increasingly Satanic reality, that has also an invisible side, where we find demons, psychic vampires, psychic leeches, and all ghastly forms of evil operating with impunity around us.

Some will wonder at this point if, in the current scenario, our freedom will ever be returned to us in the future. Well, not according to Hollywood or the World Health Organization. In the first major feature film to be made during the pandemic in Los Angeles, "Songbird" set in a not-so-distant dystopian future, we find a world in 2023 still under siege from a coronavirus that has gone through several deadly mutations. Something that is, unfortunately, happening already, as the never-ending parade of new and improved variants keep on coming, along with the strategy of tension of the infamous and willingly incompetent World Health Organization, that has warned us that a much worse pandemic is already around the corner, stating to a shocked world that the current pandemic is "not necessarily the big one," and that we must rebel against this bleak and screwed-up future, before it's too late and understand once and for all that the Vatican Jesuits and their reign of terror must be stopped.

For this reason, a growing number of Italians are organizing a once-in-a-lifetime event at the end of October 2022, to liberate Italy and the world from the lies and manipulation of the Jesuits and occupy the Vatican indefinitely. Let's hope they do it, if not the elite will move faster and faster towards the final stage of their "New World Order," a word coined by an illustrious and controversial Herbert George Wells, better known as H. G. Wells (1866- 1946), who was the author of the 1946 manual for the elite entitled, The New World Order, whose original title was: The New World Order: Whether It Is Attainable, How It Can Be Attained, and What Sort of World a World at Peace Will Have to Be. Wells published in The New World Order his first version of a human rights declaration, which was a precursor to his work on the Sankey Declaration of the Rights of Man (1940).

In 1947, both declarations became used as advisory works by the United Nations Commission on Human Rights for drafting the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (1948).^[355]

H. G. Wells was a member of the infamous Fabian Society from 1903 to 190, an organization historically related to radicalism, a left-wing liberal tradition, but Wells eventually turned critic of its operations, particularly in his 1905 paper, "The Faults of the Fabian," in which he claimed the Society in question was a middle-class talking shop.^[356] He later parodied the society in his 1910 novel The New Machiavelli. Biographer David Smith called The New Machiavelli, "Wells's most autobiographical novel"^[357] and some critics have considered The New Machiavelli, "the beginning of the retreat of Wells the storyteller. It was the first ominous eruption of those magnificent moments of self-assertion which were to disintegrate the novelist in him."^[358] But that's not entirely true, as Wells had already started nine years earlier his groundbreaking non-fiction futuristic work, with his first non-fiction bestseller Anticipations of the Reaction of Mechanical and Scientific Progress upon Human Life and Thought (1901), that was originally serialized in a magazine subtitled, "An Experiment in Prophecy."^[359] Incredibly, the experiment he conducted not only influenced his contemporaries but still influences us.

Cynthia Chung Editor-in-Chief and co-founder of the Rising Tide Foundation (Montreal, Canada), says that "It is no coincidence that our entertainment industry today, so heavily saturated with the influence of Wells' propaganda, is obsessed with the theme of a post-apocalyptic world.” Already back in 1901, the great writer and social critic attempted to predict the future in his book cited above, commonly referred to as Anticipations, where he wrote:

It has become apparent that whole masses of the human population are, as a whole, inferior in their claim upon the future, to other masses, that they cannot be given opportunities or trusted with power as the superior peoples are trusted, that their characteristic weaknesses are contagious and detrimental to the civilizing fabric, and that their range of incapacity tempts and demoralizes the strong. To give them equality is to sink to their level, to protect and cherish them is to be swamped in their fecundity.

Later in The Shape of Things to Come: The Ultimate Revolution, published in 1933, H.G Wells, wrote of the future predicting, rather optimistically, like Cynthia Chung points out, that there will be another World War in just a few years, followed by epidemic and famine. In this fictional future, the war continues for thirty years into the 1960s, despite that people have forgotten why they started fighting, humanity enters a new Dark Age.^[360] This is a brief synopsis, found online, of the book in question:

A long economic slump causes a major war that leaves Europe devastated and threatened by plague. In decades of chaos with much of the world reverting to medieval conditions, pilots and technicians formerly serving in various nations' air forces maintain a network of functioning airfields. Around this nucleus, technological civilization is rebuilt, with the pilots and other skilled technicians eventually seizing worldwide power and sweeping away the remnants of the old nation-states. A benevolent dictatorship is set up, paving the way for world peace by abolishing national divisions, enforcing the English language, promoting scientific learning, and outlawing religion. The enlightened world citizens can depose the dictators peacefully and go on to breed a new race of super-talents, able to maintain a permanent utopia.^[361]

Many of Wells' short-term predictions would come true, such as the aerial bombing of whole cities presented in more detail than in his previous The War in the Air and the eventual development of weapons of mass destruction. Others, such as the withering of state-power and the dissolution of Islam, have not yet come to pass, and, of course, we all know the second World War ended in 1945 but did it really end? Adrian Bonenberger, who is a journalist and essayist with extensive experience covering national security and international relations, came out in 2016 with the following conclusion I partly agree with:

World War Two never stopped because it was a war fought over whether repressive anti-enlightenment totalitarianism would rule Europe and the world, or whether humanism and western values (even those espoused haphazardly as in republican oligarchies like the United States) would hold sway. And while we have said that we won WWII and the Nazis lost, or that the Soviet Union won WWII and the Nazis lost, the truth is, the intellectual and ideological conflict at the heart of WWII never disappeared. On the one hand, it didn't disappear because the Soviet Union was a more enthusiastic and popular if less well-organized version of Nazi Germany (especially after 1945, when ethnolinguistic nationalism drove Russian ethnic cleansing)—and the USSR lasted well into the 20th century. So all the places that we neglected to liberate from the Soviet Union were places where WWII didn't have a chance to end, at least until the USSR's collapse. Because of active wars today, to some of those places (like Ukraine), we might as well have never fought WWII in the first place.^[362]

However, in his fictional account, H. G. Wells writes that in the last bid for victory, the enemy deploys a biological weapon resulting in a “wandering sickness,” that will produce the first zombies, and by 1970 the global population will have dropped to a little under one billion. Though all this is depicted as horrific, like Cynthia Chung also notices, this event, is at the same time depicted as a necessity – a “great reset,” to restore the “balance” so to speak of humanity. That’s because H. G. Wells was part of the elite of the New World Order, a definition he coined in the last years of his life, for the title of a non-fiction book published by Secker & Warburg in January 1940.

But let’s go back to The Shape of Things to Come: The Ultimate Revolution, where with this reduced population, the elite that manages a bureaucratic system under the form of a “World Government” can finally begin to build back together from the chaos something different (the so-called “Build Back Better” framework comes to mind), a new phase of human evolution, as a biologically superior species (transhumans?) after the inferior have been culled by war and disease. This early sci-fi fantasy from H. G. Wells, and the subjects developed in it including that of depopulation, are the central theme to everything he wrote after, including his works of non-fiction like New World Order. Like Cynthia Chung says, in her article on the matter, that brings to light the real evil nature of H. G. Wells' work:

The subject on ways to reduce the world population was a troubling dilemma for Wells...not the reducing part, but the thought that there would be those so foolish as to forbid it. You see, it was considered by some that the human species had found itself in a crisis by the 1900s. Europe, up until the 17th century had a population size that never exceeded roughly 100 million. But nearly doubled to 180 million in the 18th century and doubled again to 390 million in the 19th century. H. G. Wells wrote of this "the extravagant swarm of new births" as "the essential disaster of the nineteenth century." Not war, not disease, not starvation, not abject poverty, but population growth was determined as the disaster of an entire century.

Today the world population is 7.9 billion people, a far cry from Wells' hopeful 1 billion. However, there is good news! The worldometers.info site predicts a decreasing net change in population growth, such that by the year 2050 the yearly change will be 0.50% of what it is now! In other words, the rate of population growth will be cut in half 29 years from now! Those are striking projections and would entail a massive cap on growth! Obviously, this is a projection based on the presumed success of "educational reforms." Though I do wonder...what will we do if not all of the individuals agree to abide by these reforms? And what will we do if not all of the nations agree to abide by these reforms? Will we enforce it nonetheless, and if so...by what methods? [\[363\]](#)

H. G. Wells started his journey towards becoming an inspiration for the entire elite of The New World Order as a young boy when he won a scholarship to study at the prestigious Normal School of Science (now called the Royal College of Science). His subject of choice was biology and his teacher, and quickly thereafter, the mentor was none other than Thomas Huxley, otherwise known as "Darwin's bulldog" (his words), grandfather of Julian Huxley who in 1951 coined the term transhumanism,[\[364\]](#) for the view that humans should better themselves through science and technology, possibly including eugenics, but also, importantly, the improvement of the social environment. Let's also remember that Julian's brother Aldous Leonard Huxley, was the diabolical mastermind of MK-Ultra.

So, H. G. Wells was connected to a family, that from the very beginning promoted and drove the acceptance of the occult theory of evolution, and ultimately, transhumanism.[\[365\]](#) Through Thomas Huxley, Wells' conception of the nature of mankind was formed, with its foundation built upon the philosophies of Charles Darwin and Thomas Malthus that form the very basis for his ethics, or non-ethics. Among the plethora of books Wells wrote, the previously mentioned Anticipations from 1901 contains many details on the upcoming system of world governance and scientific control that we see manifesting in front of us every day. He writes the "vicious, helpless, and pauper masses" have appeared, spreading as the railway systems have spread, and representing an integral part of the process of industrialization, like the waste product of a healthy organism." For these, "great useless masses of people" Wells adopts the term "People of the Abyss," and he predicts that the "nation that most resolutely picks over, educates, sterilizes, exports or poisons its People of the Abyss" will be in the ascendant. In this case, I guess H. G. Wells would have probably loved Communist China, where the founder of Thelema, Aleister Crowley, (who initiated Wells to the mysteries of the Illuminati), finished his Abramelin ritual and summoned his Holy Guardian Angel. Crowley explains that the Abyss is the great gulf or void between the phenomenal world of manifestation and its noumenal source. Crowley, who embraced the concept of the Abyss, because of its Satanic nature, describes it in the following way, in his Little Essays Toward Truth:

In the Abyss all things exist, indeed, at least in posse, but are without any possible meaning; for they lack the substratum of spiritual Reality. They are appearances without Law. They are thus Insane Delusions. Now the Abyss being thus the great storehouse of Phenomena, it is the source of all impressions.

On a practical level, Crowley, even published a series of detailed instructions on how to reach the Abyss, saying it prepared the student for the mystical experience that Crowley called Shivadarshana. And according to a book entitled Green Gold: The Tree of Life, Marijuana in Magic and Religion by Chris Bennett, Lynn Osburn, and Judy Osburn, Crowley initiated not only H. G. Wells into the mysteries of hashish, but also Aldous Huxley into the visionary experience of peyote in a Berlin hotel room. The source for this is given also elsewhere from Francis King, a well-known, writer on the occult, and an authority on Aleister Crowley's work. Going back to Wells, when reading Anticipations, it is difficult not to be reminded of later works that might have been inspired by it, such as Orwell's 1984 and Aldous Huxley's Brave New World, where a scientific, ruthless elite (Dr. Fauci...) gains control of society - in the case of H. G. Wells the so-called “New Republic” that proclaims altruistic motives to the general population - and directs the affairs of mankind in a very similar way to today’s elite. Anticipations was one of the first books dedicated to surveying this grim future, a book we can almost consider a warning. Binghamton University history professor and futurist W. Warren Wagar writes regarding Wells' Anticipations, Anticipations ranged widely in its subject matter, from the future of transport to the future of world order... Wells looked ahead to the first aircraft and too broad highways teeming with automobiles, busses, and trucks. Suburbia would triumph over city and countryside... one vast unbroken sprawl of middle-class life would reach from Boston to Washington. [Wells] foresaw the collapse of capitalism and the nation-state system in great technologically advanced total wars that the tycoons and the politicians could not, ultimately, understand or control. Power would slip through their fingers. They would be swiftly replaced by the technically competent, by scientists and engineers and managers, who would learn from their errors and build a world state of peace and plenty.^[366]

Anticipations contain many startling predictions that have come to pass to one degree or another. In this book, Wells bluntly states the goals and intentions of his envisioned, “New Republic” that will, among many other things, “...have an idea that will make killing worth the while,” and inflict upon deviants, “good scientifically caused pain, that will leave nothing but a memory.” Wells even predicts the rise of a union of European states complete with “...homologation of laws and coinage and measures...” through which “...the final peace of the world may be assured forever.” This “peace” however, means certain enslavement for a large portion of mankind. Wells states - again, this is written in 1901 - that the “New Republic” will,

...aim to establish, and it will at last, though probably only after a second-century has passed, establish a world-state with a common language and a common rule. All over the world its roads, its standards, its laws, and its apparatus of control will run.^[367]

The ethical system laid out in Wells’ “New Republic” forbids the further growth of the “People of the Abyss.” In the past, Nature killed these off, and in some cases killing will still be necessary. And we should not be appalled by this task, as per Mr. Wells. Death for such people will mean merely “the end of the bitterness of failure, the merciful obliteration of weak and silly and pointless things.” Clearly, the effecting of this will be morally justifiable according to Wells:

The new ethics will hold life to be a privilege and a responsibility, not a sort of night refuge for base spirits out of the void; and the alternative in right conduct between living fully, beautifully, and efficiently will be to die. For a multitude of contemptible and silly creatures, fear-driven and helpless and useless, unhappy, or hateful happy in the midst of squalid dishonor, feeble, ugly, inefficient, born of unrestrained lusts, and increasing and multiplying through sheer incontinence and stupidity, the men of the New Republic will have little pity and less benevolence. [emphasis added]

If “the whole tenor of a man’s actions” shows him to be unfit to live, they will exterminate him. They will not be squeamish about inflicting death because they will have in his sick vision a fuller sense of the possibilities of life. But remember the killing that Wells describes, will not be needlessly brutal but almost invisible like the present pandemic/biological warfare. In 1938, Wells’ War of the Worlds was broadcasted as a radio drama and narrated by none other than Orson Welles, an exceptional director, actor, screenwriter, and producer, who is remembered for his innovative work in countless radio, theatre, and film productions, who will also star 11 years later as Count Cagliostro (one of the real Grand Masters of the Illuminati), in the now-forgotten film “Black Magic” (1949). During the broadcast, it had not made itself clear to its audience that it was a radio drama and not the actual news. Suffice to say, the reporting of a man-eating alien invasion caused quite a panic in its London boroughs, and I am sure Britain’s War Propaganda Bureau, whom H.G. Wells had worked for, got quite a chuckle out of it. It was great news for them, for it showed how easy it would be to control the narrative, even if it were to be carried out to an absurd degree. It confirmed to them that the public will believe anything just like they do today, as the last variant of this infinite pandemic will eventually be called the New World Order. Wells wrote of the panic caused by the radio drama in the London boroughs, and the following that should put chills down your spine:

If one could have hung that June morning in a balloon in the blazing blue above London, every northward and eastward road running out of the infinite tangle of streets would have seemed stippled black with the streaming fugitives, each dot a human agony of terror and physical distress...Never before in the history of the world had such a mass of human beings moved and suffered together...without order and with a goal, six million people, unarmed and unprovisioned, driving headlong. It was the beginning of the rout of civilization, of the massacre of mankind. [368]

This whole scenario brings back to my mind a very old film by Alfred Hitchcock entitled “The Rope” (1948), where two Harvard students murder one of their friends as an experiment in committing the “perfect murder” and a display of their intellectual superiority. They stuff the body in a large chest in the middle of the dining room and hold a party, the idea being that their guests would be too daft as to figure out that they are dining in a room with a fresh corpse, that is, everyone except Rupert Cadell (played by James Stewart), a former teacher of theirs. Rupert, they recognize will be their real challenge and their greatest proof of intellectual superiority if they succeed in pulling the wool over his eyes. It was Rupert who taught the two men this manner of thinking that “murder is a crime for most men, but a privilege for the few.” This is reasoned by the belief that “moral concepts of good and evil do not pertain to the superior being.” This subject is discussed at the dinner party, the guests think at first Rupert is kidding, but he assures them that the world would be a better place if the superior were permitted to commit murder and that such a murder would be an “art form.” He states, in a way typical of the elite, that unfortunately rules the world today, “think of what this would mean for unemployment, poverty, waiting in long lines.” He thinks an open season for murder would be too much and suggests shorter durations such as “cut a throat week” or “strangulation day.”

As the evening progresses, Rupert, the astute man that he is, observes a series of odd behavior from the two men. David (the murdered young man) was invited to the party, his father and his fiancé are among the guests, and there is a growing concern for why David has not shown up. Long story short – after all the guests had left, only Rupert and the two young killers remain in the apartment. Rupert discovers that they have murdered David (who was also a student of Rupert’s), and he opens the chest to find the body. Horrified and disgusted, he asks “why did you do it?” They, of course, responded, “We simply acted out what you always talked about.” Confronted with the reality of his words, Rupert feels ashamed, being partially responsible for this macabre scene. However, Rupert states, “there was always something deep within me that prevented me from ever acting out my words,” in other words, he never thought it possible that anyone would do it. It is at that moment that Rupert realizes that it is not the superior being who is capable of murder, but rather the criminally insane. He finally understands that the idea of purging the world of its “inferiors,” would rid the world of its most loving and moral beings, their traits regarded as intolerably foolish and weak. In the end, we would be left with the worst of humankind, a human race that had cannibalized itself. [369]

Today, we are risking a purge, and we are all no matter what the color of our skin, the “people of the Abyss” described by the early H.G Wells, as inferior. The supposed superiority of the scientific elite, who have supposedly purified themselves of ancient, outdated ideas, and restraining morality, like the infamous Dr. Fauci, places them in a position of dominance, just like in H. G. Wells 1901 book, where a “reconstructed ethical system” gives rise to a “new ethics” in the so-called “New Republic” aka the New World Order. For this reason, is important that we find a way to stop all this madness before we lose forever the very soul of humanity. Wells writes regarding this new ethics, “...the ethical system of these men of the “New Republic” the ethical system which will dominate the world state, will be shaped primarily to favor the procreation of what is fine and efficient... and to check the procreation of base and servile types...” And regarding death in this context, Wells, writes that it must be called to the aid of mankind, “And the method that nature has followed hitherto in the shaping of the world, whereby weakness was prevented from propagating weakness, and cowardice and feebleness were saved from the accomplishment of their desires... the method that must in some cases still be called into the help of man, is death.” A “reconstructed ethical system” governs the elite of the New Republic which allows for the killing of lesser types as a greater service to the whole of mankind, but a more selfish motivation of total domination seems to cut to the core of the elite.

Remember the men of the “New Republic” described by Wells have a “moral justification” for every action, just like people like Dr. Fauci seem to have. Scientific management, and a compulsive desire for efficiency, guide their hands and their mission in eliminating part of the human population, for what they ultimately think, in their twisted vision of things, an act of good for the future of our race. Wells brushed shoulders and had intimate relationships with some of the most prominent people of his day, the elite... and for this reason, he had the uncanny ability to predict the future shape of the world. That is partly what happened to me before I left The New World Order, and I started to expose them in the fall of 2006. Unfortunately, Wells, a social climber, and the son of domestic servants turned small shopkeepers, never rejected the elite he had managed to join, and supported them and their evil plans until the end of his life.

Going back to what is happening today, myself and other researchers like Charles Hugh Smith, author of one of the top alternative financial sites, are struck by the similarities between the conflict-torn mid-1600s and the present global climate change that looks a bit like the little ice age in the 1600s, where political upheavals and wars intertwined civil and imperial conflicts. Global Crisis, War, Climate Change, and Catastrophe made the 17th Century a complex era that disrupted regimes and empires from England to China, in a scenario that inevitably brings back to mind the previously mentioned work of H. G. Wells. Climate change naturally produced by "The Little Ice Age", generated scarcities of grain in a time of burgeoning human populations, and as in the present day, everyone assumed ample harvests would continue forever, but nature is not a steady-state system, and cycles are not tamed by our desire for ever-expanding abundance. The fact this kind of "natural" climate change cyclicly occurs in the history of mankind, should make us understand the lies and manipulation currently at work. And when this kind of thing happens, the various nations of the world respond to scarcity by assessing who's getting the biggest pieces of the shrinking pie. When hunger begets desperation, various dynamics are set into motion, as those without agency and capital i.e. political and financial power, do whatever they can to get enough to survive, while those holding the majority of political and financial power, jockey to maintain or expand their power. These dynamics are fluid, and prone to non-linear flows, in which relatively small actions unleash enormous consequences, that are not predictable, but Charles Hugh Smith says that we can discern some repeating patterns in this chaotic swirl, that I think can be extremely useful for our better understanding of things to come:

1. Private owners of capital (i.e. elites) seek to influence the state to protect/expand their holdings.
2. The dispossessed/disenfranchised masses seek redress/succor from the state.
3. The geopolitical balance of power becomes increasingly precarious as competition for control of resources and political power heats up.
4. The state's resources are diminished by famine, the decline of trade, etc. as pressures from geopolitical rivals, elites and the masses are spiking, reducing the state's ability to respond to the multiple challenges / overlapping crises.
5. The overlapping crises reveal and exploit the weaknesses in the political, social, and economic structures, and in the competing elites.
6. Leaders concentrate centralized power in the hands of the few as a coping strategy by reducing the influence of broad-based councils, assemblies, etc. This concentration of power at the expense of the many (including lower-level elites who were accustomed to holding some consequential power) increases resistance of those being cut out of the decision-making and increases the odds of catastrophic errors of judgment in the few at the top.
7. As the state falters or divides into warring factions, the most powerful elites take control of resources and power from the state, both as a defensive measure and as a means of exploiting the crisis to their advantage.
8. Populist leaders arise demanding a fairer distribution of resources and power. The more repressed the masses, the greater the disorder created by this emergence of long-silenced voices.
9. Each node seeking to defend or expand its share of resources and power projects and amplifies persuasive rhetoric, symbols, and beliefs to unify its supporters around deeply held values and aspirations.
10. With so many loyalties in play--local, regional, linguistic, political, social, religious, and economic--each node faction seeks to decisively cement loyalties by establishing all-or-nothing hard lines via ideologically "pure" rhetoric that demonizes competing factions, effectively dividing the populace into us-and-them camps that leave little middle ground for compromise or negotiation.
11. In this fevered competition for loyalty and trustworthy followers willing to sacrifice for the faction, leaders view every advance as evidence that compromise is unnecessary as total victory awaits the next "win."
12. Given the grievous losses and potentially devastating consequences of competing factions gaining ground, the victors of each battle hasten to take revenge on the losing faction, laying waste and inflicting cruelties that harden the hearts of the surviving losers and inciting their own determination to exact a full measure of revenge when fortunes turn their way.
13. Only when the land, people, and treasure are all exhausted does the promise of total victory fade, and the factions seek some negotiated settlement that leaves whatever power they still have intact lest they lose everything.
14. The eventual settlement could have been reached in the initial stages of disorder, but the leaders of the factions were too myopic, too confident in their judgment and power, too greedy for more and too hubris- soaked to appreciate their weaknesses and the immense pitfalls ahead. [\[370\]](#)

If you don't discern any of these dynamics in the present, you will not understand where we are heading.

The One World Religion Became a Reality in 2020 but Nobody Seems to Care

On Saturday, October 3rd, 2020, Pope Francis visited the Sacred Convent of Assisi near the city of Perugia to sign the new quasi-Masonic encyclical, Fratelli tutti, meaning, “All Brothers.” This was a key event in the process of shaping the upcoming One World Religion of the Antichrist. Pope Francis signed the new encyclical, after a solemn Mass celebrated in the Basilica of St. Francis in Assisi, in the region of Umbria in central Italy, once one of the holiest places in Italy, now instead, one of the more infested with Satanic activity.

Catholic priests all over Italy, have been working for the last few years alongside Italian police officers, to tackle a rising tide of crimes linked to devil worship in the region. Police say that Satanists are particularly active in Piedmont, Veneto, and Emilia Romagna in the north, and Tuscany, Umbria, Calabria, and Puglia further south. ^[371]For this reason, the police authorities in Umbria’s capital city of Perugia often attended my conferences and book presentations in town, and knowing about my expertise on the matter, they would even call me at times as a consultant, in solving some of the most recent cases that concern churches all over Umbria, that were being regularly desecrated by Satanists, who mostly steal old relicts and consecrated hosts. ^[372] But something even stranger happened before Pope Francis “The False Prophet,” went to Assisi for his Luciferian/Masonic landmark.

As the secret occult forces of the Jesuits that control the Catholic Church, the Illuminati, and most branches of Freemasonry today, we’re moving towards advancing the crafting the One World Religion of the Antichrist, in Assisi, in the middle of the pandemic, something dark and sinister happened in nearby Spoleto, in the province of Perugia a few days earlier. On Wednesday, September 23rd, 2020 an ampoule, (a small sealed vial, used to contain and preserve the blood) of Saint John Paul II, placed in the chapel of the Crucifix of the Cathedral of Spoleto was stolen with no signs of an infraction. Like I told you a moment ago, in the past few years, similar actions have been conducted by groups of Satanists in the city of Perugia, and surrounding areas. This happens mainly because Satanists often use the stolen relicts, or religious artifacts, for their infamous Black masses, and, in this case, the disappearance of the blood of Pope John Paul II, on the eve of such an event seems highly suspicious, as Pope John Paul II organized the first World Day of Prayer for Peace on October 27, 1986, and this event is still considered to this day by high-level Freemasons and religious leaders worldwide, as the cornerstone of the One World Religion, with the attendance of 160 religious leaders, who spent that historic day together, fasting and praying to their God or Gods, or more likely Lucifer. There is also an interesting dimension of similarities between monastic and Masonic orders and the existence of monastic lodges. Some French and Italian Masonic historians even indicate a more than spiritually shared parenthood between the Monastic and the Masonic orders. In the XVIIIth century, various Masonic Lodges were erected in Benedictine monasteries, like Santa Scolastica, for example, in Subiaco.

Keeping in mind the attitude of the official Roman-Catholic Church towards Freemasonry, this seems rather interesting because it shows once again their never-ending hypocrisy. The well-known Ferrer-Benimeli mentions in his “Archives Secrètes,” that in the last 40 years of the XVIIIth century, an impressive number of Freemasons were active in the Catholic Church, either as monks or as priests, and that’s the main reason for having this event in Assisi, not the connection with the pope’s name because well-informed Jesuit sources say that Pope Francis took the name Francis because of Saint Francis Xavier, not Saint Francis of Assisi. Father Xavier was not a monk, but a Spanish Jesuit priest, a missionary, and saint from Navarre who was also the co-founder of the Society of Jesus.

Conventual Franciscan Father Mauro Gambetti, the custodian of the Assisi convent, said a few days before the historical event that took place on the 3rd of October 2020 that the encyclical of the Pope, “will indicate to the world a style for the future, and will give the church and people of goodwill the responsibility for building it together.” Adding: “It is with great joy and in prayer that we welcome and wait for the private visit of Pope Francis. A stage that will highlight the importance and necessity of fraternity.” America the National weekly magazine published by the Jesuits of the United States, emphatically stated about the event:

The words “Fratelli” are from St. Francis of Assisi, just as were the words “Laudato Si’” which the pope chose as the title of his second encyclical. It is highly significant that the Argentine pope has decided to sign the encyclical at the tomb of St. Francis. As he has stated on numerous occasions, his ministry as successor of St. Peter has been greatly influenced by the Saint of Assisi and his love for the poor, so much so that on his election as pope he took the name Francis, the first pope ever to do so, a name that also conveyed a program. ^[373]

The important ceremony was defined by Father Mauro Gambetti as “private” in his description, mainly because it took place without the faithful present in respect of the China virus regulations, which in a way facilitated Pope Francis’ heretical work for the establishment of a One World Religion. The title of the encyclical in question, considered of great importance by the Vatican-led New World Order, appears originally in a passage of the Admonitions of St. Francis, which reads: “Let us all, brothers, look to the Good Shepherd who suffered the passion of the Cross to save his sheep.” But don’t be deceived, the Pope is not the “Good Shepherd.” This quasi-Masonic papal encyclical is largely connected to the document on “Human Fraternity for World Peace and Living Together” signed by Pope Francis and the Grand Imam of Al-Azhar in early 2019. Rumors of a papal encyclical first made the rounds in August 2020 when Bishop Domenico Pompili of Rieti let slip during a press conference of the Charter of Intent signed in light of the 800th anniversary of the nativity scene in Greccio that the document was in the works. [\[374\]](#) Greccio is the cave where Saint Francis of Assisi staged the first-ever nativity scene on Christmas Eve 1223. [\[375\]](#)

Given the emphasis Pope Francis has placed on his name misleading the masses, it is unsurprising that he would have chosen Assisi as the place to sign his important document on the eve of the feast of St. Francis. Because since the beginning of his demonic papacy, Francis has exteriorly embraced and celebrated St. Francis of Assisi, knowing he was a model of social justice, which suits him perfectly when it comes to the topics of poverty, peace, and fraternity. However, I’m pretty sure the coming kingdom of God, that will be conducted as a Monarchy with Jesus King of all, will never be able to digest all of the leftist proposals of Fratelli Tutti, a quasi-Masonic/Marxist encyclical, that echoes many of the classic themes of Pope Francis’ present work, and I’m 100% sure that Saint Francis will probably find the Nativity scene that the Vatican placed in 2020 in St. Peter’s Square, “grotesque,” and “demonic,” in that infamous year that started the Great Reset preparing for the One World Religion of the Antichrist.

In January 2020, just before the China virus frenzy kicked off, another ambiguous figure, Vice President Mike Pence, visited the Vatican to officially discuss the Abrahamic Faiths Initiative, which is the first concrete step towards a One World Religion. Mike Pence was so happy about the Pope granting him a private audience that he told Pope Francis, “You made me a hero” back home.” Now this brief statement on its own should have made a few people worried back then, including President Trump, but nobody seemed to care, or even notice the importance of this statement that will be fully understood only one year later when Pence showed his true colors, or simply went along with the plan of the elite to replace his former boss with a zombie.

After all, the economy at the beginning of 2020 was still striving, and President Trump seemed indestructible and extremely successful in keeping America great. That’s why Pence’s “strange” actions in January 2021, when he resisted pressure from President Trump to toss out the fraudulent election results were no surprise to me. Remember that Trump and the Pope’s opposite worldviews collided head-on right at the start of Trump’s bid for the White House when Francis was sharply critical of Trump’s campaign pledge to build an impenetrable wall on the Mexican border and his declaration that the United States should turn away Muslim immigrants and refugees to help the security of the United States. Eventually, when President Trump went to Rome, photos of the strange awkward encounter between him, First Lady Melania, and the Pope became viral. The Pope did not look happy at all to be standing next to Trump, with whom he had publicly feuded in the past, and the press immediately went on record saying that Pope Francis has smiled during similar photo-ops with other heads of state, from German Chancellor Angela Merkel to Mexican President Enrique Peña Nieto to former President Obama, but he did not smile with President Trump, suggesting Francis was way happier to meet a full-on Satanist like Obama. Or maybe Trump and the Pope were also acting a part that was essential for the control of the two opposing factions.

Going back to the Papal audience with Pence, it is interesting how it happened on the same day that President Donald J. Trump was attending an unprecedented anti-abortion rally in Washington DC, as the first sitting U.S. president to do so in the history of the annual March for Life, and probably the last, if the globalists finish conquering the U.S. in the coming years. At the time of Pence’s visit to the Pope, I wrote on my website “let’s hope Pence doesn’t fall into their trap.” Well, it was only wishful thinking on my side, “after all despotic people tend to telegraph their future actions like inexperienced fighters tend to telegraph their punches; it’s not as if the intentions of totalitarians are obscured or hard to predict.”[\[376\]](#) Says Brandon Smith from alt-market.us. In some cases, the elite of the New World Order may even believe that they can be as obvious as they wish, because they assume no one will ever try to stop them, and up until now they sadly seem to have been right in their assertion. The Illuminati elite of the Vatican-led New World Order has been destroying lives for so long, they end up adopting a sense of superiority as if they are untouchable. Brandon Smith writes:

In my extensive study of psychopathy I find that, unfortunately, the primary catalyst for the exploitation and victimization of large populations of people is that many of them can’t wrap their heads around the idea of an organized conspiracy of human monsters. They refuse to acknowledge the existence of the evil right in front of them, so the evil can go unopposed for long stretches of time. There is ALWAYS a moment, though, when psychopaths push the wrong people too far. They just can’t help it, and this is when they find themselves on the business end of a noose or the barrel of a gun.

When it comes to organizations of psychopaths, the same moment also eventually arrives, it just takes longer for the public to come to grips with the necessity of it.

In terms of the “Great Reset” agenda, medical tyranny using COVID as a rationale is a key ingredient to the future objectives of the power elite. At the beginning of the pandemic lockdowns last year, I made several predictions and warnings. I said that the mandates and lockdowns for most people around the world would never go away, and I called this “Wave Theory”; the use of intermittent moments of limited freedom followed by increasingly more aggressive restrictions.

This cycle is meant to condition the public to the idea that governments are “allowed” to micromanage our daily lives, that this is “normal”, that it is for our own good, and that we should enjoy the short moments of liberty or normalcy they so graciously let us have.^[377]

We are living in difficult times if you expose the truth of an authoritarian plot the establishment will immediately lie and call you a “conspiracy theorist.” Later, once the establishment admits to the plot and you refuse to comply with it, those same liars will not only call you a “conspiracy theorist,” but also a “terrorist.” The One World Religion is a project I have been denouncing for years, hoping some parts of Freemasonry will eventually fight it. However, after an investigation I made after moving to the U.S. in 2019, I have found out with the help of other Freemasons, a lot of evidence that the once glorious institution of U.S. Freemasonry has been infiltrated and compromised in most of the country by the same dark forces of the left, Islamists, and Satanists who are also supporting the One World Religion project of the Jesuits. Now you might disregard the Satanic or religious aspect of it if you are not a believer, but there is a political one you can't ignore as a Freemason in good standing. Traditionally, as all Freemasons know, by not permitting the discussion of politics or religion inside American lodges you maintain a better atmosphere of harmony and peace that both these subjects can, unfortunately, bring up in other environments, but that's no longer the case, at least in America.

In New Mexico, for example, a 32° Freemason was balloted out from a lodge for simply wearing a Proud Boys hat, and in Arizona, a Brother was reprimanded in front of his brothers by his Worshipful Master for wearing a MAGA hat on his way to the lodge. The basic principle in Freemasonry is to be respectful and fair to everyone regardless of their ideology and beliefs. This is fundamental to why Freemasonry was founded and why it is still in existence today. Masonic brethren should respect each other, and this includes leaving your political or religious stand outside the lodge. Instead, for the first time since the Civil War, Freemasonry in the U.S. is once again divided by politics and religion, with entire lodges dedicated to a specific political inclination, that in most cases seems to be Socialism! In most cases, bringing Freemasonry into disrepute by not respecting the basic rules of the Craft that forbid such discrimination.

In the Masonic Grand Lodge's of Democratic states like California or Colorado, Islamic groups like the Muslim Brotherhood and even Harun Yahya's Turkish sect, are preaching and involved in running local lodges. Timothy Hogan, who is held in high esteem in U.S. Masonic circles, and is also the Grand Master of the Neo-Templar Order called Ordre Souverain du Temple Initiatique (OSTI), that runs the Cercle International de Recherches Culturelles et Spirituelles (CIRCES), even went to Turkey to meet face to face with the controversial Islamic scholar Adnan Oktar aka Harun Yahya, who claims he is the Mahdi of the Islamic prophecies. Timothy Hogan, who is a Democrat and a member of the Grand Lodge of A.F. & A.M. of Colorado, a Past Master of East Denver #160 Masonic Lodge (AF&AM), and an active member of Enlightenment Lodge #198, two lodges that were used to actively promote his new Islamic alliance in recent years.

On top of all this, we have the infiltration of para-Masonic Illuminati sects like the O.T.O, that continues the promotion of anti-Christian beliefs of irregular Freemason's like Aleister Crowley, undisturbed. In California where I live, the O.T.O. has taken over most lodges, especially in the Los Angeles County area, including some prestigious ones in Hollywood and South Pasadena. In New York City, the Masonic Hall that is home to the headquarters of the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of the State of New York regularly rents their lodge meeting rooms located on the corner of 23rd St and 6th Avenue, and the other (constructed in 1907) facing 24th St, to the O.T.O. for their infamous Gnostic Masses featuring a Priestess who sits naked upon the Masonic Altar used by regular Freemasons during their regular meetings. Remember, most Freemasons, are good people who often ignore the fact their lodge rooms have been used for such depravities by other Fraternal organizations thanks to their connections with high-level members of the Craft.

But let's remember, the visible world is but a reflection of the invisible realm, and at its center stands the altar used in ancient times for sacrifices, obligation, and adoration and now a focus of faith and fellowship amongst the Brothers of the Craft during their rituals. Of course, while we hold a view of the world very unlike that which was held by our ancient brethren, let's remember that the Masonic Lodge is a symbol of the world as it was thought to be in ancient times. The ancient brethren that created the institution of Freemasonry using the art of analogy, had profound insight when they saw the world as a temple over-hung by a starry canopy by night, lit by the journeying sun by day, wherein man goes forth to his labor on a checker-board of lights and shadows, joys, and sorrows, seeking to reproduce on earth the law and order of heaven. So what happens now that Freemasonry has been taken over by Satanists, Muslims, and left-wingers whose intent is to destroy Christianity and the American way of life? This goes against the very principles of Freemasonry as envisioned by Brothers like George Washington, the founding father of our nation who served as the first President of the United States.

Since I have arrived in the U.S. I met many great Brothers who I have recognized as legitimate and honest in their Masonic undertakings, but most of them are now disappointed with an organization that in many states like California is requiring proof of vaccination to participate in lodge workings, and during the first year of the pandemic was meeting only on Zoom for the joy of Communist China. Zoom has acknowledged keeping at least one data center and a staff employee in China, where the Communist government requires resident tech firms to provide user data on request and Jacob Helberg, a senior adviser at the Stanford University Center on Geopolitics and Technology said in October 2021, that “If you have Zoom engineers in China who have access to the actual servers, from an engineering standpoint those engineers can have access to the content of potential communications in China.”^[378]

On top of this, U.S. Freemasons were not even capable of stopping the removal and destruction of the statue of their legendary Sovereign Grand Commander of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, Albert Pike. The statue was toppled and burned by protesters in June 2020, as protests continued in response to the murder of George Floyd^[379] and James D. Cole, 33°, their present Sovereign Grand Commander, made the following statement, showing to all of us how the Jesuit progressive leftist ideals are guiding the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite in the United States:

On June 19th, 2020 a statue of Past Grand Commander Albert Pike was toppled from its pedestal in Washington, D.C.

The statue celebrated Pike’s humanitarian successes and his leadership of the Scottish Rite of Freemasonry. The statue was gifted to the people of the United States in 1901. Even though the Scottish Rite no longer had any ownership rights to the sculpture, this Supreme Council has repeatedly voiced its strong support for any governmental decision to remove the statue, because we recognized that its existence could be a concern among some citizens.

We can never condone unlawful acts; otherwise, the foundation of our society would crumble. However, the statue has belonged to the people since we gave it to them more than a hundred years ago. Our prayer is that the removal of the statue can be at least a small step toward healing our nation’s wounds.

As Scottish Rite Masons, we prefer to step forward with our fellow citizens, consistent with the Scottish Rite Creed: Human progress is our cause, liberty of thought our supreme wish, freedom of conscience our mission, and the guarantee of equal rights to all people everywhere our ultimate goal.^[380]

Of course, the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, the American “York” Rite, and so forth, were invented by Masons, and require members to be Master Masons, but like Bro. Andrew Hammer explains in his book Observing the Craft: The Pursuit of Excellence in Masonic Labour and Observance (Mindhive Books, 2010), they are not in themselves Masonry because only the degrees and work of the Craft Lodge, the Symbolic Lodge can be called Freemasonry. However, Bro. Andrew Hammer is not only an author by another Marxist using the Craft to promote his Socialist ideal. Hammer, a friend of Bernie Sanders, with a controversial past in Virginia's Alexandria-Washington Lodge 22,^[381] has been traveling for years around the world meeting socialist leaders, like Socialist International Secretary-General Louis Ayala, former Nicaraguan President Danil Ortega, and many others. He even delivered a speech in Vienna to the Austrian Socialist, and he is also a big supporter of leftist Freemason Pope Francis’ work for the creation of a “One World Religion.” So, we can say that all the most prominent contemporary Freemasons are united in pushing the progressive agenda of the Vatican. Better to avoid the Craft altogether if these are the “Brothers” involved today.

CHAPTER FIVE

The end of Davos and the Rise of the Satanic Reset

The elite is well-organized but deranged and perverted

What can we do to get out of this vortex? First, we need to observe what the enemy does. The elite is organized in secret networks connected to clubs and lodges present all over the planet, in which the slaves of the worldwide technocracy are constantly kept under control. They have been organized for centuries, and they obey ruthless masters blindly, who offer them in exchange, privileges, and power. While you are wasting your time, watching TV, or surfing the internet, they act in the shadows in secret. In the meantime, you keep on fooling yourself and dreaming of a better world, occupying your time on a variety of senseless conspiracy theories like the Earth is flat, or did man really go to the moon. Who cares, when we are about to face the possible extermination of large parts of humanity, including yourself and your family and friends. Remember, without creating a real organized structure to defeat this evil, there is no chance for us to stop it, or even survive it in the long run. You can see that the political system you are trying to fight, is founded on a strong technocratic military organizational structure, in which journalists, bankers, and Hollywood stars are all sleeping together, and nothing is left to chance. The truth is that they are well-organized, and we are not, that's why we need to have a more structured organization for the Great Reject.

Today most of us are isolated, but at the same time we are willingly offering our soul, and all our personal information to the internet and to Artificial Intelligence/Cyber Satan that controls it, increasingly indulging in the dangers of virtual reality, aka the metaverse. In the meantime, the elite of the New World Order, the Freemasons, and their Illuminati and Jesuit controllers, are enjoying the real world, they meet in person, free of restrictions even in the middle of the China virus pandemic. They collaborate and help each other following the Biblical phrase, "thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." The elite that appears in front of the tv cameras, enjoys fooling people that applaud them from their modest homes while they enjoy the finest things in life. Things that most of us can't afford due to the infinite restrictions that the elite is imposing on us in the last few years. Just ask yourself if you feel freer than you used to, and you will immediately find the answer and realize your present level of slavery. When are we finally going to realize that we need a true strategy to move forward and oppose all this, as publically The New World Order is being ushered in thanks to the pandemic? "COVID and The New World Order - Building A New Human Centered Economy" is the title of an article that appeared on Forbes in September 2020, by Lawrence Wintermeyer, who writes without any sense of shame:

The COVID-19 pandemic has resulted in unprecedented changes to our lives and the economy. The enforced switch to virtual work, changes to our travel and consumption patterns, and bans on social gatherings have generated a seismic shift towards virtual activity. Anything that can be done virtually is now done virtually. The lockdown has us thinking about what the future will bring.^[382]

As we embark on the Chinese Year of the Tiger many things are already clear, the attempt to destroy culture, customs, habits, and ideas is an ideological doctrine called the "four olds." It is covert Maoism. For my friend and author, Ryan Gable, in the introduction to a recent radio show we did together, these "olds" can be expanded to "the introduction of homosexual pornography in the classrooms across the United States, the chanting of cannibalistic gods in Californian classrooms, the sacrificing of children on the altar of social justice and political correction through experimental medical trials, etc. All these weapons, target the youth, corrupt their moral centers, and prepare their minds for a download of ideological prejudice and the acceptance of censorship and violence in the name of supposed equality. Compounding this is the notion that one is an oppressor or pressed simply because of their skin color or ethnicity - a discriminatory ideology based on genetic guilt."

Though it may seem as if American society has collectively reached this cultural tipping point overnight, the recent attacks on individual freedom and civic institutions are the effects of a decades-old worldview known as Critical Race Theory, a divisive discourse that puts people of color against white people, that originated in Europe almost a hundred years ago. German academics who wanted to find an authentic form of Marxism after World War I formed the "Frankfurt School" at the University of Frankfurt. There, they developed what was called "Critical Theory." The Nazis chased them out of Europe in the 1930s, and the Frankfurt School's members, including Max

Horkheimer and Herbert Marcuse, moved to Columbia University at the beginning of World War II. The early theorists combined the Marxist perspective that the world is divided only between the oppressors and the oppressed and the postmodern idea that there is no “authentic truth,” only perspectives (called “narratives”).

Once in the U.S., still more students and academics applied the Critical Theorists’ teachings and writings to American law. This Critical Legal Theory was already skeptical of the traditional liberal order—ideas like a representative democracy and equality under the law—and theorists embraced the notion that anyone identifying with a victimized category should dismantle systems of authority. Theorist Derrick Bell, later considered the godfather of Critical Race Theory, said he hoped the “program of scholarly resistance will lay the groundwork for wide-scale resistance.”^[383] Unfortunately, it laid in the ground for rioters toppling statues of our Founding Fathers, activists rewriting school textbooks, mobs eroding freedom of speech, and the virtues of hard work and commitment we used to hold dear being eviscerated in the name of cultural Marxism, that is, of course, part of the Great Reset package, and to obtain all this, so-called “woke” crusaders have redefined the vital concept of justice in America.

For Gable, “the undermining of culture seeks to sever the connection between the individual and the larger community. Virtually every non-legislative recommendation from federal agencies, local government, and state governments has done just that in the name of public health over the last two years. This constant undermining has resulted in further moral degeneration and cultural decline on an unprecedented level. Every public ‘health’ policy has separated families, isolated children, inhibited learning, destroyed small and medium business entrepreneurs, and worked to destroy infrastructure in the name of building back better.”

This is for Gable, the product of “Maoist and Marxist ideology, or the great leap forward - better known as the Great Leap Forward Reset.” Adding that, “the usage of an invisible enemy like a virus, and the usage of environmentalism, are tenets of the same school of Maoist and Marxist ideology. The Communists did this in 1952 China, lying to the public about the spreading of biological weapons and viral contagions. Meanwhile, within what we call the field of ufology, some groups are using lasers and other methods to contact what they believe to be alien spaceships or UFOs. One can’t help but think that these little green men, or little gray men, are similar to the homunculus of alchemists and magicians like John D and Edward Kelley. The same can be said about Aleister Crowley’s alien friend. These seemingly harmless games with lasers and UFOs are akin to a modern form of collective community ritualism to invoke that which is non-specified or descriptive. The intention is simply to invoke for the sake of invocation, or perhaps to obtain contact to satisfy one’s desire to believe or to have special knowledge. All of this has been utilized to undermine public faith in faith, religious institutions, etc. It’s hard to separate true faith for some folks from that which is propped up by the rot within official institutions that claim to speak for God and man. This undermining of faith mixed with the open acknowledgment of child sex trafficking, child abuse, etc. destroys one of the three major centers of power in the world, the perceptual power that resides at the Vatican. This center of religious power adorned with an obelisk is one of three horns spoken of in the book of Daniel. The other two horns can be found in London, the city of financial power, and the United States, Washington DC, the seat of political and military might.”

Something strange is going on at CNN concerning their Jesuit controllers and pedophilia that now connects with evidence- Chris Cuomo, brother of another Jesuit agent and former governor, the Pope, and John Griffin, a senior producer from CNN who worked with the now-disgraced ex-anchor Chris Cuomo. John Griffin was arrested by the FBI in early December 2021, and charged with enticing minors as young as 9-years-old to engage in unlawful sexual activity. Between April and July of 2020, Griffin – who worked on the CNN show New Day, that was conducted by Cuomo, allegedly used online messaging applications to communicate with the purported parents of minor daughters, according to a Vermont grand jury indictment, instructing them on how to prepare their children to have sex with him. But there is something even more deranged about this story. John Griffin, who worked “shoulder to shoulder” with Chris Cuomo, appeared once in the arms of Cuomo in a very weird photo originally posted on Twitter on the 26th of September 2015, where he is holding a replica doll of pedo-ringleader Pope Francis. The pic in question, and the heretical description confirms beyond any doubt CNN as a papal pedo base:

@ChrisCuomo says he can get me blessed by #PopeFrancis thanks to my “giant baby head.” Let’s try it, shall we??

The 44-year-old CNN producer John Griffin from Stamford CT used Google Hangouts and Kik to convince the mothers that a “woman is a woman regardless of her age,” and that “women should be sexually subservient and inferior to men.” The indictment also includes specific allegations that Griffin attempted to entice two other children over the internet to engage in sexual activity. In April of 2020, Griffin proposed to engage in a “virtual training session” over a video chat that would include him instructing the mother and her 14-year-old daughter to remove their clothing and touch each other at his direction. In June of 2020, Griffin proposed to a purported mother of a 16-year-old daughter that she take a “little mother-daughter trip” to Griffin’s Ludlow ski house for sexual training involving the child.” As you can see, the perverted minds at work behind the scenes at CNN seem to have a very different approach to the so-called “Holy Father,” and only a week after the arrest of John Griffin, the exceptional investigative journalist at Project Veritas released the name of another CNN producer caught up in a pedophilia scandal, Rick Saleeby, a producer on one of the network’s most successful shows “The Lead with Jake Tapper.”^[384]

Then we have the Elizabeth II, the old British monarch, dying before our eyes and the corruption, accusations of pedophilia, racism, and vitriol within her Royal family, and its subsequent public fracturing, mixed with global financial and economic distress, that has been a monumental undermining of the public perception of that second major center of power pointed out by Gable, who rightly says: “The idea that an invisible enemy wrecked economies, drove small businesses, owners and employees out of jobs, destroyed people's savings, obliterated manufacturing, supply chains, resource distribution, etc. is accurate only so much as the invisible enemy is classified in a group such as the World Economic Forum instead of a virus.

With the religious and financial horns undermined, we turn our attention to the political and military power of the United States in Washington DC. Supposedly at the helm is a dying so-called leader with blatant dementia. His criminal behavior, as with his son’s, and their connections to Communist China considered, the President of the United States represents the flexing of a political and military muscle that has dissolved into paralysis. Parallel to this overturning of the world systems of governance is the reported assassin who threatened to kill the President of the United States. He was arrested on December 30, 2021 and the media claimed he wanted to kill those involved in the sex trafficking of children, something mainstream media sources denied was anything more than a Qanon conspiracy theory, literally less than 24 hours after the sentencing of Ghislaine Maxwell, who was convicted of child sex trafficking and her involvement in an international ring that included some of the most powerful and wealthy people in the world. A few days before, a man broke into Windsor Castle on Christmas with a crossbow to Assassinate the queen. And just a few days before that, a press release about an event that happened in November documented how a rogue drone was stopped from targeting the pope. Once again, three horns being plucked.”

The elite is deranged and perverted, that’s obvious, and a growing number of people are finally realizing this, that’s why they need to implement the Great Reset as soon as possible, to silence all of us once and for all, that’s the main reason for this sudden oppressive change. However, the populist masses are rising in Europe, the United States, and even in South America, while in Asia compliance, unfortunately, is the norm, and in Africa corruption rules all parts of society. They call us the losers who don’t want to accept globalization and technological advancement, who have turned to populism and populist political parties in despair, but that’s not always the case. Most of us are simply feeling that something is truly wrong with what is unfolding in our new reality, and politics and corrupt politicians are not going to be able to save us from this. We need to be honest with ourselves about it.

As Ryan Gable cleverly explains: “In the book of Daniel, we are told that the three horns will be replaced by a little horn known as the Antichrist who will be given power by the beast. The perceptual powers that exist at the Vatican, London, and Washington, maybe those three horns, and a little horn to be given power by the beast may be that which controls the Great Reset, otherwise translated as King Set. If Prince William took the throne, he can take upon himself the name of Arthur. The once and future King could be granted power by his father abdicating the throne, Prince Charles, of course, being the red dragon or beast. Some may say China is the red dragon. It’s interesting because Arthur is associated with and derived from Ursa Major, the bear. It is from this constellation that the tiger is born. In mythology, the tiger lives 1000 years. Likewise, it is from Ursa Major from where astrologers derive the swastika. Although we are dealing with a state of hybrid Fascist Communism, wherein the hammer and sickle should be remembered much like the swastika, it is interesting that the swastika is derived astrologically from the same constellation that births the tiger who lives the length of the great thousand-year Reich. Ursa Major was also called the Dog of Set/Typhon by the Egyptians. Again, King Set, the Antichrist. It is such in mythology that he who the tiger devours becomes a servant of the tiger and can only escape the jaws of suffering if he sacrifices innocent souls in his place. From artificial intelligence to idealistic and ideological rabid progressive politics, those consumed by the beast-like devil who made a deal with diabolic forces, look to keep themselves alive artificially by sacrificing the innocent - never being able to admit that they have been consumed and therefore seeking redemption. 2022, the year of the tiger, could also be the year in which the tiger, or the beast, gives rise to that which promulgates the thousand-year Reich, and that is the Great Reset or the establishment of the Kingdom of the Antichrist.”

This kingdom, is, of course, The Fourth Reich ushered in by Klaus and friends, which will be the exact opposite of the Kingdom of God that we want to establish after the Great Reject. After all, it was Illuminati agent Baron Julius Evola (1898-1974), who was admired by the SS head Reichsführer Heinrich Himmler, whom he once met, and a popular figure in fringe circles, described as one of “the leading philosophers of Europe's neo-fascist movement^[385],” that I have mentioned in Vol.1, and discussed in great length in Volume 2 of my Confessions, who talks in his final major work, about riding the tiger, offering us a brilliant description of our “Dark Age”:

The phrase was chosen as the title of this book, “ride the tiger,” may serve as a transition between what has been said hitherto, and this other order of ideas. The phrase is a Far Eastern saying, expressing the idea that if one succeeds in riding a tiger, not only does one avoid having it leap on one, but if one can keep one's seat and not fall off, one may eventually get the better of it. Those who are interested may be reminded of a similar theme found in the schools of traditional wisdom, such as the “ox-herding” episodes of Japanese Zen; while in classical antiquity, there is a parallel in the trials of Mithras, who lets himself be dragged by the bull and will not let go until the animal stops, whereupon Mithras kills it. This symbolism is applicable at various levels. First, it can refer to a line of conduct in the interior, personal life; then to the appropriate attitude in the face of critical, historical, and collective situations. In the latter case, we are interested in the relation of the symbol to the doctrine of cycles, with regard to both the general structure of history and the particular aspect of it that refers to the sequence of the “Four Ages.” This is a teaching that, as I have shown elsewhere,¹ bears identical traits in the East and in the ancient West. (Giambattista Vico simply caught an echo of it.)

In the classical world, it was presented in terms of humanity's progressive descent from the Golden Age to what Hesiod called the Iron Age. In the corresponding Hindu teaching, the final age is called the Kali Yuga (Dark Age). Its essential quality is emphatically said to be a climate of dissolution, in which all the forces—individual and collective, material, psychic, and spiritual—that were previously held in check by a higher law and by influences of a superior order pass into a state of freedom and chaos. The texts of Tantra have a striking image for this situation, saying that it is the time when Kali is “wide awake.” Kali is a female divinity symbolizing the elementary, primordial forces of the world and of life, but in her “lower” aspects she is also presented as a goddess of sex and orgiastic rites. In previous ages, she was “sleeping,” that is, latent in the latter aspects, but in the Dark Age she is said to be completely awake and active.^[386]

In the book, Ride the Tiger, A Survival Manual for the Aristocrats of the Soul (1961), Evola presents an implacable criticism of the idols, structures, theories, and illusions of our dissolute age examined in the light of the inner teachings of indestructible Tradition. Evola identifies the type of human capable of “riding the tiger,” who may transform destructive processes into inner liberation. He offers hope for those who wish to reembrace Traditionalism.^[387] But while I can't agree with Evola's pagan view that allegedly led him to become a member of Crowley's Ordo Templi Orientis, I do agree with the fact that this book is an excellent criticism of the decline of our “Modern World.” A world where Pope Francis' vestments designer and papal tailor, Filippo Sorcinelli, is a flamboyant homosexual activist who is flaunting his papal credentials to market a brand of homoerotic perfumes for men which carry the label “parental advisory: explicit perfume,” that are described as “a journey through spirituality and harmony in the constant and daring search for beauty.”

Advertisements for the controversial products make use of sacrilegious, Satanic, and sexual imagery. Sorcinelli's wide range of 27 perfumes is produced by a Milan-based company that translates his experiences into fragrances. “I have explored the world of identity and sexuality in this pandemic year,” the entrepreneur boasts. The four perfumes in the “perversion extract” range are named “Popper Pop,” “Cruising Area,” “Slightly Bitch,” and, of course, “Cyber Sex,” which will bring you right into the arms of Cyber Satan in a not so distant future. I wonder what Evola would have said about it, even if I must admit I never understood his link with weirdo creepo Aleister Crowley, and the Italian philosopher is an unlikely hero for defenders of the “Judeo-Christian West,” like myself, so please study him with care. References to Evola abound in recent years on websites such as Breitbart News, The Daily Stormer, and AltRight.com well before The New York Times noted in 2017 the Bannon-Evola connection. But all these people including Trump's former adviser, have little or no knowledge of who Evola really was. After all, Evola believed in the power of magick (with a K like Crowley) and tried to use it to restore Roman pagan religion, something that I find completely Satanic and anti-Christian.

Of course, some aspects of his criticism of the “Modern World,” are correct, just as the work of his contemporary René Guénon (1886-1951), the French metaphysician, writer, and editor, who, after publishing The Crisis of the Modern World, where he discussed modernity, and how it has flipped everything around putting man before God, the material before the metaphysical, pleasure before duty, unfortunately, rejected the Western world and Christianity to embrace Islam.

FIG. 41 — Julius Evola (1898-1974) philosopher and "chief ideologue" of Italy's radical right after World War II who allegedly worked for the Sicherheitsdienst, or SD, the intelligence agency of the SS and the Nazi Party.

The Future of the Davos Agenda

They are well-organized and ready to take over the world, but some members of the global business elite must have been disappointed to learn that the World Economic Forum in Davos, as an in-person event, was canceled once again, in 2022, for the second year running, officially due to concerns tied to the global COVID pandemic, and not because of all the emissions created by the private air force of all their elite attendees, that usually travel for a price tag of around 50 thousand USD, to the remote Alpine skiing village for the annual event. Officially, the World Economic Forum or WEF, like some prefer to call it, was forced to rethink its plans for their lavish in-person event, and hosted the whole thing virtually, instead, officially due to "continued uncertainty" over the latest variant of this infinite pandemic. They said in their official communication that the: "Current pandemic conditions make it extremely difficult to deliver a global in-person meeting," adding that, "Despite the meeting's stringent health protocols, the transmissibility of Omicron and its impact on travel and mobility have made deferral necessary."

At this point, many of you will probably wonder why the World Economic Forum founder Klaus Schwab and the Davos elite, made up of extremely influential people that can bend the rules all the time, are even bothering with such restrictions? And the answer is a very simple, and shocking one, at the same time: Their mission has been accomplished and they are proceeding towards a future Metaverse solution. So, at this point, they don't really care about the formalities, fancy dinners, or their yearly meeting any longer, as they prefer to meet online, or in secret to avoid public scrutiny.

For this reason, the global thought leaders, political leaders, and business leaders have, at least for the moment, gathered in a scaled-back all-online version of the speeches, with virtual talks and forums that make up the bulk of the event, which is better known for its influential parties and backroom dealings, that for some people are worth 50 thousand dollars.

However, in late January 2022, the World Economic Forum announced they might attempt a physical event if all the safety precautions can be taken. Right now, the tentative dates are May 22-26, according to a statement emailed to members that were obtained by Bloomberg.^[388] Last year the event was also canceled because of the pandemic, then tentatively rescheduled to take place in Singapore over the summer, before ultimately being canceled again because of the global pandemic. However, the last in-person event of the WEF, that took place in Davos netted the Swiss economy around CHF80 million ($87 million) in 2020, with businesses and hotels taking in some CHF63 million in revenues, so the locals are eager to get things going again.^[389] But things are changing now because in a certain sense “Davos is dead,” like POLITICO suggested in an article by Ryan Health, published on the 20th of December 2021 says:

The postponement — due to Omicron’s emergence — is the latest in a series of failed efforts by WEF to return to in-person meetings during the COVID-19 pandemic, and puts financial pressure on the organization, with tens of millions of dollars of event income at risk.

In 2020, WEF’s Davos conference attracted more than 100 billionaires and 53 heads of state or government. Companies — still mostly from the U.S. and Europe — pay around $50,000 per person for a coveted “white badge” to access this guest list.^[390]

In June 2021, Schwab had also sharply criticized the “profiteering”, “complacency” and “lack of commitment” by the municipality of Davos concerning the WEF annual meeting. Well-informed sources say he did this because he does not need them anymore. For this reason, he mentioned that the preparation of their recent events in other possible locations like Singapore had created an alternative to its Swiss host, saying the chance that the annual meeting will stay in Davos was between 40 and 70 percent.^[391]

This is the full statement issued on the 20th of December 2021 by Adrian Monck, Managing Director, Public Engagement, of Schwab’s WEF given from his headquarters in Geneva (Switzerland):

The World Economic Forum will defer its Annual Meeting in Davos, Switzerland, in the light of continued uncertainty over the Omicron outbreak.

The Annual Meeting was scheduled to take place in Davos-Klosters, Switzerland between 17-21 January 2022. It is now planned for early summer.

Participants will instead join a headlining series of State of the World sessions bringing together global leaders online to focus on shaping solutions to the world’s most pressing challenges.

Current pandemic conditions make it extremely difficult to deliver a global in-person meeting. Preparations have been guided by expert advice and have benefited from the close collaboration of the Swiss government at all levels.

Despite the meeting’s stringent health protocols, the transmissibility of Omicron and its impact on travel and mobility have made deferral necessary.

The health and safety of everyone involved in physical meetings – participants, collaborators, and the host community – have always been the Forum’s priority.

“The deferral of the Annual Meeting will not prevent progress through the continued digital convening of leaders from business, government, and civil society,” said Professor Klaus Schwab, Founder and Executive Chairman of the World Economic Forum. “Public-private cooperation has moved forward throughout the pandemic and that will continue apace. We look forward to bringing global leaders together in person soon.”

Marcello Bussi, an economic journalist for the newspaper Milano Finanza, who has been following the event for years, seems to also think that the mission of the World Economic Forum has been accomplished in Davos and could move elsewhere. After all, they officially announced, “The Great Reset Initiative” in this CONTEXT:

The COVID-19 crisis, the political, economic, and social disruptions it has caused, are fundamentally changing the traditional context for decision-making. The inconsistencies, inadequacies, and contradictions of multiple systems –from health and finance, to energy and education – are more exposed than ever amidst a global context of concern for lives, livelihoods, and the planet. Leaders find themselves at a historic crossroads, managing short-term pressures against medium- and long-term uncertainties.^[392]

Adding, this was an “OPPORTUNITY”:

As we enter a unique window of opportunity to shape the recovery, this initiative will offer insights to help inform all those determining the future state of global relations, the direction of national economies, the priorities of societies, the nature of business models, and the management of a global commons. Drawing from the vision and vast expertise of the leaders engaged across the Forum’s communities, the Great Reset initiative has a set of dimensions to build a new social contract that honors the dignity of every human being.^[393]

These Jesuit agents are echoing what Pope Francis said in 2020 when Bergoglio called the pandemic “an opportunity.” Yes, I will add, an opportunity to transform America, and the rest of the world, into a Communist hellhole, that’s for sure. Remember, it was Freemason and Illuminati, Sir Winston Churchill, British Prime Minister, and statesman (1874-1965), who was also a member of the Ancient Order of Druids^[394], and a disciple of H. G. Wells, that first said: “Never let a good crisis go to waste.”

Because of some critics, Klaus Schwab WEF is exercising too much influence on global systems and institutions. In the meantime, people like George Soros have used their Davos session to completely redesign the international monetary system, and soon we might end up with a cashless society, and a Chinese-style social credit system because of the Davos crew, with a combination of government and business surveillance, that will give all the future citizens of the New World Order, a “score” only if you obey and comply with their system.

Under the Biden administration, the United States is on the path toward becoming a welfare state fully entrenched in waste, fraud, abuse, and mismanagement. Like James Comer, a Ranking Member of the House Oversight and Reform Committee wrote in a recent article:

President Biden plans to expand welfare to almost half of the country’s working adults through the deceptively named American Families Plan. If passed, it will allow the federal government to meddle in Americans’ everyday lives from birth to death. Meanwhile, every year, entitlement programs are spending tens of billions of taxpayer dollars improperly—either through inaccuracies, incompetence, or fraud.^[395]

Of course, like Comer also said in the same article “Republicans stand ready to stop the rise of the socialist state, and while we wage that battle,”^[396] but will that be enough to stop the plan of the New World Order? And will the Republicans manage to stop the increase in censorship from the Silicon Valley mafia? Probably not, and by 2024-2025 we might be completely screwed up in one way or the other, so please prepare, as I suggested earlier because the future is very much uncertain.

Since the start of the COVID-19 pandemic, lockdown champions have perennially invoked “science and data” to sanctify any mandate politicians impose, as this is a materialistic, senseless, Satanic approach, typical of this age. Hard facts have shown that neither vaccines or face masks provide enough sure-fire protection against the China virus, and this whole biological warfare, waged against the West, to crack its Capitalistic system and implement the Great Reset. That’s why Chinese President Xi Jinping, was, the special guest of honor that opened the Sinocentric WEF Davos Agenda virtual sessions of 2022, with a good dose of Communist-Jesuit rhetoric/propaganda, playing the part of the good guy by saying: “We need to discard Cold War mentality and seek peaceful co-existence and win-win outcomes.” Adding after crippling the worldwide economy: “Our world today is far from being tranquil. Rhetorics that stoke hatred and prejudice abound. Acts of containment, suppression, or confrontation arising thereof do all harm, not the least good to world peace and security.”^[397]

Well, why doesn’t President Xi Jinping respect the democratic rights of the people of Hong Kong, or tell us more about the Uyghur genocide, or of course, finally reveal to us the origins of the virus that came out of his Wuhan lab, before pushing his own rhetorics and respectability on us?

That’s why Schwab’s buddy and partial mentor Henry Kissinger wrote:

From its unification as a single political entity in 221 B.C. through the early twentieth century, China’s position at the center of the world order was so ingrained in its elite thinking that in the Chinese language there was no word for it. Only retrospectively did scholars define the “Sinocentric” tribute system.^[398]

Some Christians believe the “kings from the east” in Revelation 16:12–16 to be a direct reference to China. Many also think “the land of Syene” that we find in Isaiah 49:12 is associated with China. The passage says, “The sixth angel poured out his bowl on the great river Euphrates, and its water was dried up, to prepare the way for the kings from the east. And I saw, coming out of the mouth of the dragon and out of the mouth of the beast and out of the mouth of the false prophet, three unclean spirits like frogs. For they are demonic spirits, performing signs, who go abroad to the kings of the whole world, to assemble them for battle on the great day of God the Almighty. ('Behold, I am coming like a thief! Blessed is the one who stays awake, keeping his garments on, that he may not go about naked and be seen exposed!') And they assembled them at the place that in Hebrew is called Armageddon." The gathering of armies is in preparation for the battle of the inevitable Armageddon, which takes place at the end of the Tribulation. Some interpret "the kings of the east" marching toward the Middle East, as the armies of China, being able to cross the dried up Euphrates, and aside from the fact that in 2021 millions of people in Iraq and Syria are facing water shortage as the region's longest river dries up^[399], China has significantly increased its economic, political, and – to a lesser extent – security footprint in the Middle East in the past twelve years, becoming the biggest trade partner and external investor for many countries in the region.^[400]

The kings of the east will join the forces of the Antichrist, and at that point, the final, seventh bowl judgment will be poured out, as our Lord Jesus Christ will finally return, and the world will be shaken. Remember, that Jesus will return so quickly, any attempt to live by the world's rules will be futile as his Kingdom will rise and become the only sovereignty accepted by God on this planet. Ultimately, the armies of the East and the armies of the Antichrist will be destroyed by the Messiah and his allies (Revelation 16:17–20; 19:11–21). This coalition of eastern kings indicates China, which has one of the most powerful and numerous armies in history, and its military, economic power, and influence are growing more and more every day. Add to that its constant persecution of Christians, and other religions, and it seems China is at the center of all end-times activities.

Therefore, China works very closely with both Illuminati Kingpin Henry Kissinger and Klaus Schwab, whose son Olivier Schwab, is even married to a Chinese woman and heads the WEF office in Beijing, to bring us right into the hands of Cyber Satan, as merging man with machine is one of the most important aspects of "The Great Reset," or the "Fourth Industrial Revolution." "What the fourth industrial revolution will lead to is a fusion of our physical, digital, and biological identity," Schwab told the Chicago Council on Global Affairs in May 2019.^[401] Schwab went on to explain in the same event how his book, Shaping the Future of The Fourth Industrial Revolution, was particularly popular in China, but also South Korea, and Japan, with the South Korean military alone purchasing 16,000 copies. An astonishing number sold in a country that is paradoxically trying to oppose the North Korean Communist model. In the book in question, Schwab explains with excitement how upcoming technology will allow authorities to "intrude into the hitherto private space of our minds, reading our thoughts and influencing our behavior." He goes on to predict that this will provide an incentive for law enforcement to implement Minority Report-style pre-crime programs. "As capabilities in this area improve, the temptation for law enforcement agencies and courts to use techniques to determine the likelihood of criminal activity, assess guilt, or even possibly retrieve memories directly from people's brains will increase," writes Schwab. "Even crossing a national border might one day involve a detailed brain scan to assess an individual's security risk."

Schwab also waxes lyrical about the transhumanist utopian dream shared by all elitists which will ultimately lead to the creation of human cyborgs. "Fourth Industrial Revolution technologies will not stop at becoming part of the physical world around us—they will become part of us," writes Schwab. "Indeed, some of us already feel that our smartphones have become an extension of ourselves. Today's external devices—from wearable computers to virtual reality headsets—will almost certainly become implantable in our bodies and brains." Schwab also openly endorses something the media still claims is solely a domain of discussion for conspiracy theorists, namely "active implantable microchips that break the skin barrier of our bodies."

The globalists hail the arrival of "implanted devices (that) will likely also help to communicate thoughts normally expressed verbally through a 'built-in' smartphone, and potentially unexpressed thoughts or moods by reading brain waves and other signals."

So in other words, the "fusion of our physical, digital and biological identity" like investigative journalist Paul Joseph Watson points out, "relates to the transhumanist singularity, and a future where people have their every movement tracked and every thought read by an implantable microchip." Basically, "It isn't a conspiracy theory."

Says, Paul, "when they're openly telling you what they want to do."^[402]

In this context, a promo produced last year by Schwab's globalist World Economic Forum (WEF), describes the post-industrial changes they have planned for humanity, including biometric surveillance and digitalization of work and education. The WEF website asks, "What are the long-term effects of the COVID-19 pandemic? These 5 trends give us a glimpse." The most alarming "trend" is the introduction of biometric surveillance using an individual's heartbeat as their ID signature. "Digital acceleration has also put the limelight back onto security issues. Much of the world's move online – whether for work or your weekly shop – involves sharing personal or business information remotely, with an ever-wider number of entities. When people started wearing masks, facial recognition security systems were stumped," the WEF states. "One solution to this conundrum may be the unique pattern of your heartbeat. Developed by the Pentagon and NASA, ‘cardio ID’ devices can detect an individual’s unique cardiac signature using an infrared laser. The technology is already available for licensing, and security is only one possible use. Another application could be identifying opted-in shoppers as they enter a store, for example, to personalize their visit.”

The other three “trends” describe a general shift away from a socializing in-person work and school environment: repurposing office space to create “neighborhood hubs,” cultivating a personalized “cloud market” home delivery system, and leaning more heavily on digital Zoom schooling for students, after all, the CEO and founder of Zoom Video Communications, is a Chinese-American billionaire who used to live in Beijing before moving to Silicon Valley in the 1990s but has always kept strong ties with China's ruling Communist Party, and in December 2020 Federal prosecutors accused a Zoom executive of working with the Chinese government to survey users and suppress video calls.^[403]

The social engineers of the Davos elite are eager to impose their Sinocentric technocratic vision of the world on humanity. Professor Klaus Schwab explained how the COVID-19 pandemic presents the elite with a unique opportunity to usher in the final stages of this New World Order system,^[404] which seems to always put science before God and even before man, and the people seem to buy this new version of reality. No amount of evidence has ever shaken the faith that most people have today in the absolute power of their only “God” called science, and COVID policies are increasingly degenerating to the equivalent of sacrificing virgins to appease angry viral gods, and far greater restrictions may always be on the horizon in this constant move towards embracing the ideals of Communist China, and their Illuminati/Jesuit controllers. Politicians’ anti-COVID recommendations increasingly resemble frightened soldiers shooting at any noise they hear in the dark. The Big pharma industry has put its weight behind Democratic Presidential candidate Joe Biden in 2020, reversing a longstanding fundraising trend that has favored the GOP,^[405] but things might change in the near future, as before Biden came to power, at the very top of Trump’s health care and drug policy world, there was a long list of people in his administration, who had been bought and paid for by Big Pharma.^[406] That’s why Trump is also so pro-vaccine in end. And has Ben Bartee, from The Daily Bell, wrote on the 28th of December 2021 “The spineless Republican leadership deserves just as much scrutiny as the DNC (the functional political arm of the biomedical state) for their COVID failures — even more, given their self-styled role as the ‘resistance party’.”^[407] Stat News reported in August 2020:

The world’s biggest drugmakers and their trade groups have cut checks to 356 lawmakers ahead of this year’s election — more than two-thirds of the sitting members of Congress... Pfizer’s PAC has been the most active. Sen. Mitch McConnell, the Republican majority leader seeking reelection in 2020... raked in more from the industry than any other lawmaker.^[408]

As Michael Rivero the host of the What Really Happened radio shows once said:

Most people prefer to believe their leaders are just and fair even in the face of evidence to the contrary because once a citizen acknowledges that the government under which they live is lying and corrupt, the citizen has to choose what he or she will do about it. To take action in the face of a corrupt government entails risks of harm to life and loved ones. To choose to do nothing is to surrender one’s self-image of standing for principles. Most people do not have the courage to face that choice. Hence, most propaganda is not designed to fool the critical thinker but only to give moral cowards an excuse not to think at all.^[409]

After all, before the current pandemic took off, at the last in-person meeting arranged by Professor Klaus Schwab in Davos, in January 2020, President Donald J. Trump, the “chaos magician,” said something that was inevitably rejected by the increasing Socialist-minded elite present in Switzerland:

This is not a time for pessimism. This is a time for optimism. To embrace the possibilities of tomorrow, we must reject the perennial profits of doom and their predictions of the apocalypse. They are the heirs of yesterday’s foolish fortune tellers. They want to see us do badly, but we don’t let that happen. They predicted an overpopulation crisis in the 1960s, mass starvation in the 70s, and an end of oil in the 1990s. These alarmists always demand the same thing: absolute power to dominate, transform and control every aspect of our lives. We will never let radical socialists destroy our economy, wreck our country, or eradicate our liberty.^[410]

Once again, one is left wondering if Trump does this simply to generate chaos and confusion, or if he is genuine at times in his opposition towards the New World Order.

In the last few months, the mainstream media of the Biden regime has talked a lot about a supposed epidemic of disinformation, to start increasing censorship. Even NIH Director Francis Collins condemned the “epidemic of misinformation, disinformation, and distrust that is tearing us apart.” But of course, much of the misinformation stemmed directly from the Biden administration’s constant flip-flops and fearmongering. The Official Enemies List of this never-ending pandemic/plandemic, has expanded from those not wearing a mask to those resisting getting the latest vaccine booster.

On August 13, 2021, the U.S. Department of Homeland Security issued a terrorist alert, warning law enforcement agencies that “anti-government/anti-authority violent extremists could exploit... potential re-establishment of public health restrictions across the United States as a rationale to conduct attacks.” Anyone who loudly objects to being locked back under house arrest will be the moral equivalent of the Taliban, or maybe Hezbollah. Previous Federal driftnets for potential troublemakers expanded far beyond individuals who threatened violence.^[411] The feds may already be compiling vast lists of COVID critics that could come in handy at some future point and might include the author of this book. And I hope that in this context the Fourth Reich, does not follow the evil practices of the Third Reich when they started the infamous, “Nazi book burnings,” that were a campaign conducted by the German Student Union to ceremonially burn what they regarded as dangerous books in Nazi Germany and Austria in the 1930s. The books targeted for burning were those viewed as being subversive, or as representing ideologies opposed to Nazism.^[412] For this and other reasons I suggest, in these unprecedented times we are living, to purchase this book and to also ask all your friends and family to purchase it before it might be censored or made no longer available. Remember, books have been suppressed in the past, even in the U.S., for their political content, by both local governments, and the Federal government. Uncomfortable books the establishment perceived in the past as promoting anarchism, Communism, or Socialism (unpopular, of course, during the Cold War), have had a history of being suppressed in the United States.^[413] But in today’s America we might also start seeing conservative, and libertarian books, banned as well, so be ready and act accordingly.

After the Soviet Union was formed in 1922, books gradually began to be aligned with Communist ideology. However, some Russian writers who persevered within the totalitarian state and managed to create art out of hardship. The Bolshevik-led October Revolution of 1917 provided ideological justifications for restricting the flow of foreign ideas and analysis into the USSR. One of the first manifestations of this would be the creation of the Main Administration for Literary and Publishing Affairs, or Glavlit, aiming to purge Soviet society of all expressions regarded as destructive to the new order and suppressing political dissidence.^[414]

In September 2021, Elizabeth Warren was accused of trying to 'circumvent the Constitution' by demanding Amazon to suppress books sold on the site, that she said included “misinformation” about coronavirus.^[415] Fortunately, nobody listened to her insane request, but the Warrens of the world are on the rise, so we might see more censorship requests like hers in the future. The problem in all this is the absolute compliance of the younger generations, more inclined than ever to submit to such madness, and for this reason, join without any opposition, the Demoncrats, and their sad “Woke” ideology. The Atlantic wrote back in March 2020 during the election countdown:

Older people still see socialism and communism as dangerous, authoritarian political systems, whereas younger people are more likely to see them as economic systems, and to care far less one way or another.^[416]

But 2021 also marked the 30th anniversary of the beginning of the end to the Soviet Union, the same crumbling Communist nation that guested in the spring of 1988 the bare-chested, towel-draped, sitting at a table lined with vodka bottles, Bernie Sanders, as he sang “This Land Is Your Land” to his comrades, during his now almost legendary 10-day ‘honeymoon’ in the Soviet Union, that shaped his future political views.^[417] Unfortunately, the young people of today who follow Sanders in America, know nothing about the dangers of Communism, or the fact it was just as bad as Nazism in their authoritarian criminal ways. As outlined in the summer of 2021 by Richard M. Ebeling:

During August 19-21, 1991, hardline members of the Soviet Communist Party and the KGB attempted a coup d’état in Moscow to prevent the political and economic reforms introduced over the prior five years from going any further. The coup failed, and on Christmas Eve, 1991, the Soviet Union was dissolved and disappeared from the political map of the world, but that’s not entirely true, as their perverse ideology, aka Communism, was still unfortunately alive and kicking, not only in Russia with its old aficionados, but also in China, Cuba, and many other countries worldwide, waiting for the right moment to come back even stronger than before. The Soviet regime had ruled Russia and the other 14 component republics of the U.S.S.R. for nearly 75 years since the Bolshevik Revolution in November 1917 led by Vladimir Lenin and his communist cadre of Marxist followers. During that almost three-quarters of a century, first under Lenin and especially Joseph Stalin and then their successors, historians have estimated that upwards of 64 million people – innocent, unarmed men, women, and children – died at the hands of the Soviet regime in the name of building the “bright, beautiful future” of socialism.

Of course, it was not a “beautiful future” but a future of hardships and oppression. In the meantime, the American leftist mercenaries of the New World Order are also fighting us, using black magic publically under the disguise of “Magical Resistance.” It happened when an Illuminati black magician from the O.T.O and Freemason called Michael M. Hughes, created a magical movement during Trump’s past presidency to fight him magically on behalf of the left. A move that might have helped ulteriorly the negative transformation of Donald J. Trump. Hughes even published a book on the topic by the title MAGIC FOR THE RESISTANCE, that was praised by one of the current leaders of the Ordo Templi Orientis named Lon Milo Duquette, who I have written extensively about in Volume 1 of my Confessions, who is a staunch leftist, and Bernie Sanders supporter, who wrote in the introductory praises of Hughes infamous book: “Then...put your magic where your mouth is! You might want to start by reading Magic for the Resistance.” ^[418] In Hughes’s work in Chapter Three, he explains how he and a group of black magicians devised a ritual for “Binding Trump.”

At midnight on February 24, 2017, about forty of my friends and I gathered around a bonfire in a backyard in Baltimore City to cast a binding spell on Donald Trump and all those who albeit him. ^[419]

But Michael M. Hughes is not the first attempt to mix magic and liberal politics, and subjects dear to the left, like feminism, anti-white suprematism, and the unconditional support for the LGBTQ cause. In 1982, a similar book called Dreaming the Dark: Magic, Sex, and Politics written by feminist author Miriam Simos, who signs herself with the pen name Starhawk, was talking about magic, spirituality, leftist politics, ethics, and sex, in the same way. Along with Margot Adler's Drawing Down the Moon (1979), which also came out only three years earlier, the book politicized practices of paganism and witchcraft by emphasizing their radical and feminist aspects, and as a result, drew many radical feminists into their orbit. ^[420] In Hughes’s book, we find feminist pioneer Victoria Woodhull described by the libtard author as “Mrs. Satan: The Revolutionary Feminist Who Spoke to the Dead.” ^[421] Stating emphatically she not only “impressed millionaire Cornelius Vanderbilt” ^[422], who later “helped her publish a weekly newspaper,” but also published “the first English translation of Karl Marx’s Communist Manifesto.” ^[423]

The truth is, we don’t need Michael M. Hughes’s Magical Resistance, or any connection with Communism and the likes in politics with Jesus Christ in our lives, who constantly protect us from such evil. However, we need to pray, now more than ever, and exorcise any demonic force trying to enter our lives through the ever-so diabolic realm of politics, which I’m sorry to say seems corrupt beyond any possibility of being recovered.

I’m writing this as proof to my readers, of the long-standing connection, between black magic and the left. After all, the National Socialist ideology, that blindly believed in the occult and gave us Adolf Hitler, was itself an outgrowth of earlier political theories that came from the left, even if Hitler and his thugs, officially hated Socialism and Communism and worked to destroy those ideologies later. Imagine that when Hitler publically rejected Socialism, at the 1926 conference in Bamberg, that was organized by Nazi Party leaders over the very question of the party’s ideological underpinnings, Joseph Goebbels, who idolized Hitler from the beginning, and would eventually become his infamous Reich Minister of Propaganda, wrote in his diary, “I feel as if someone had knocked me on the head ... my heart aches so much. ... A horrible night! Surely one of the greatest disappointments of my life. I do not believe Hitler without reservations anymore. That is what is terrible: I have been deprived of my inner self. I am only half.” ^[424]

A rather dramatic statement from Goebbels, who like most of the Nazi elite of the time, loved Socialism, that was only rejected by Hitler to please his occult controllers in the American Illuminati, and people like Bush’s grandfather who helped Hitler’s rise to power and didn’t want him to assist in any way Communist-inspired movements, that were often linked to the growing threat of the Soviet Union. George W. Bush’s grandfather, the late U.S. Senator Prescott Bush, a member of Skull and Bones, Yale’s infamous Illuminati secret society, was, in fact, a director and shareholder of companies that profited from their involvement with the financial backers of Nazi Germany. The British paper The Guardian, obtained in 2004 confirmation from newly discovered files in the U.S. National Archives that a firm of which Prescott Bush was a director was involved with the financial architects of Nazism. His business dealings, which continued until his company's assets were seized in 1942 under the Trading with the Enemy Act, has led more than 60 years later, to a civil action for damages being brought in Germany against the Bush family by two former slave laborers at Auschwitz, to a hum of pre-election controversy.

[425] A controversy, that reached Bush, when he was involved at the time, with a fellow member of the Skull and Bones, John Kerry, who is now one of the most influential figures of Joe Biden's administration, in the 2004 United States Presidential election. An election that, of course, turned out to be a farse, set up by the usual suspects to place once again in the White House, the "useful idiot" son of the late George Herbert Walker Bush (1924-2018), who was a top Illuminati agent of the Luciferian court of the Jesuits. Before Obama, and Joe Biden came along, President George W. Bush was considered a hero by most conservatives, but for some researchers, like Eric John Phelps, who knew the Jesuits were controlling him all long, thought otherwise, stressing the fact George W. Bush was "the most Catholic president we've ever had."^[426] That's why Bush in recent years, has finally shown his true Socialist colors, becoming the new darling of the left, suddenly championing the progressive ideals of Pope Francis, and becoming loved even by The Guardian^[427], who exposed, many years ago, his grandfather's connection to the Nazi's. Former President George W. Bush is even jumping into 2022's heated Republican primary races, as revealed in late January 2022, opening his pocketbook to two GOP lawmakers caught in his Republican successor Donald Trump's crosshairs. Campaign finance disclosures show Bush donated to the re-election campaigns of Wyoming swamp creature Rep. Liz Cheney, the daughter of his former Vice President Dick Cheney, and Republican In Name Only (RINO) Alaska Senator Lisa Murkowski.^[428] In this context, we should all remember Eric John Phelps's warnings about him in his book Vatican Assassins.

He is surrounded by cardinals. From the beginning of his presidency, George [W.] Bush has been promoting the Vatican-Nazi Jesuit agenda. Two months into his presidency, surrounded by cardinals of Rome, the President dedicated a cultural center in Washington, D.C., to the greatest enemy this Republic has ever had, the Pope of Rome. Bush declared that he is going to enforce the words and teachings of the Pope here in America. [According to Patricia Zapoa of the Catholic News Service, March 24, 2001] President Bush said, "The best way to honor Pope John Paul II, truly one of the greatest men, is to take his teachings seriously, to listen to his words and put his words and his teachings into action here in America."^[429]

Phelps later added:

Every President from Johnson to Clinton, and now Bush, has been the abject tool of the Order fulfilling "Jesuitical Politics" — treasonous, internationalist and plotting to make its "infallible" Pope, ruling Satan's Theocratic Kingdom offered to the Lord Jesus Christ, "the Universal Monarch of the World."^[430]

But things have changed in the DNA of the Republican party in recent years thanks to Donald J. Trump, who might have lost his political sense and the honesty of his mission in recent times but has always hated the Bush family. For this reason, even the perception of Hitler has changed among most conservatives that are fully conscious of his leftist background and denounce it publically. At the end of the Mueller investigation, Alabama Rep. Mo Brooks who took to the House floor to denounce the probe as "the big lie" linked the event to what he said was another of history's greatest lies. Discussing special counsel Robert Mueller's nearly two-year farse/investigation into President Donald Trump's 2016 campaign's ties with Russia (that didn't exist!), Brooks rightly said, "Socialist Democrats and their fake news allies ... have perpetrated the biggest political lie, con, scam, and fraud in American history." Brooks went on, saying, "In that vein, I quote from another Socialist who mastered big lie propaganda to a maximum, and deadly, effect." And then, after reading a long quote about how "broad masses of a nation are always more easily corrupted in the deeper strata of their emotional nature," Brooks got to his conclusion I consider 100% correct: "Who is this big lie master? That quote was in 1925 by a member of Germany's National Socialist German Workers' Party—that's right, Germany's Socialist party—more commonly known as the Nazis. The author was socialist Adolf Hitler, in his book Mein Kampf." And Brooks was somehow not alone at the time in making the "Nazis were Socialists" argument in Congress. Rep. Louis Gohmert did the same, during a House Judiciary Committee meeting about a GOP resolution on the Mueller probe in which he said the Justice Department could, in the future, enable "another socialist like Hitler to come along." The leftist propagandist of the Vox, immediately went on record to criticize and possibly hide Hitler's connections to socialism and the left, dismissing them as "hilariously incorrect," to protect the link to their "Woke" ideology and Marxism that is currently spreading like a wildfire in today's America.

There are many, many, many things wrong with Rep. Brooks's and Rep. Gohmer's understanding of Nazism, from a basic misunderstanding of Nazism and Nazi ideology to what I term the 'Americanization' of Nazism: an effort to put Nazi Germany somewhere on the American political axis, where it very much does not belong. But one of their core assumptions — "Nazis were socialists" — has become one of the biggest memes within a swath of the American Right. And it is woefully, almost hilariously incorrect.^[431]

Of course, Vox can keep on with their lies, that are “hilariously incorrect,” but we need to prepare for the increase of censorship, as these servants of the New World Order simply advance their Nazi-Communism 2.0 agenda for the Great Reset initiative to be implemented. The Covert-1984 PSYOPS is the rollout of the New World Order and the A.I. advancement is here to lead all of us soon towards the transhumanism Matrix if we don’t all embrace my concept of Great Reject that I’m trying to outline in this book. “We were just following directives,” say the hypnotized zombie living in denial, while they comply with anything the Jesuit “Mengele’s” of our world are proposing, but history is on “repeat mode” unfortunately, and we need to avoid the same errors of the past to stop Klaus Schwab, George Soros, Bill Gates, and all the other Jesuit/Sabbatean agents of “Lucifer’s court,” that was, by the way also the title of Otto Rahn’s personal diary from his travels as an occult investigator for the Third Reich, but we are now approaching the Fourth Reich under the direct supervision of the previously mentioned Ahriman not the Führer. Scholar John R. Hinnels describes Ahriman's nature in this way:

He is the demon of demons, and dwells in an abyss of endless darkness in the north, the traditional home of the demons. Ignorance, harmfulness, and disorder are the characteristics of Ahriman. He can change his outward form and appear as a lizard, a snake, or a youth. His aim is always to destroy the creation of [Ahura Mazda] and to this end he follows behind the creator's work, seeking to spoil it. As Ahura Mazda creates life, Ahriman creates death; for health, he produces disease; for beauty, ugliness. All man's ills are due entirely to Ahriman.^[432]

In Rabbinical Literature Ahriman (Angro-mainyush) is mentioned in Sanhedrin, 39a: Amemar, on being told by one of the Magi, “The upper half of thy body belongs to Ormuzd, the good principle; the lower to Ahriman, the evil principle,” replies satirically, “Why, then, does Ahriman permit Ormuzd to carry the water (the excreta) through his province?” The whole conception of Ahriman as the antagonist of the divine principle of goodness has permeated Judaism in many ways.^[433] Angro-mainyush, Angra Mainyu, or Anra Mainiu is the Avestan-language name that describes in Zoroastrianism's the “destructive/evil spirit,” and the main adversary of Ahura Mazda, regarded as their highest deity. Rudolf Steiner used the concept of Ahriman to name one of two extreme forces which pull humanity away from the centering influence of Christ^[434], but we also have The Opus Sanctorum Angelorum, an international movement within the Catholic Church ordered to promote devotion to the Holy Angels^[435], that defines Ahriman as a “demon in the Rank of Fallen Powers.”It says his duty is to obscure human brains from the Truth of God.^[436]

The Work of the Holy Angels

Kurzweil and the Computerized Incarnation of Ahriman

I might not agree with all of Rudolph's Steiner's "Gnostic Doctrines and Supersensible Influences," to use part of the title of a lecture he gave in Dornach, on July 15, 1923, but I still find his studies on "the character of certain spiritual impulses, which have been at work in the course of evolution and have led on to the present state of affairs in the world^[437]," not only fascinating but also partly agreeable with, including his take on the infamous figure of Ahriman, central to this book.

The Steiner Online Library (SOL) a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization established to increase public awareness of Anthroposophy in the United States, published online, in April 2017, a very interesting perspective of the incarnation of Ahriman through the medium of Artificial Intelligence, a very interesting article that I will analyze in detail in the coming pages. Steiner's contemporary students as you will see, confirm 100% what I have already outlined in my prior work, Vol.6.66, a book where I have talked extensively about the new concept of Cyber Satan, and it was MIT professor Norbert Wiener (1894-1964), cited in the article in question published on the SOL, who coined the term "Cybernetics." Wiener did this to characterize a very general science of "control and communication in the animal and machine." Like author and researcher, David Livingstone, explains in his brilliant book Transhumanism: The History of a Dangerous Idea, "Like MK Ultra, the personal computer was a project of the Cybernetics Group" that he rightly claims was "designed to provide the ultimate tool of social control."^[438] Livingstone arrives also to the absolute correct conclusion, that knowing that the rest of society would easily recognize the pervasive deployment of computers in every household as an intrusion of "Big Brother," the hippie counterculture that was aligned from the start with the nascent technology of culture in California, will market the computer instead, as a tool of personal liberation, and the pioneer in this diabolic project, known among its members as the "Man-Machine Project," was John von Neumann (1903-1957), one of the Cybernetics Group's leaders, known for his work in mathematics and computer science.^[439] According to American historian and political scientist, Jeffrey Steinberg, in an article entitled "From Cybernetics to Littleton: Techniques of Mind Control" that appeared over twenty years ago in the May 2000, issue of Executive Intelligence Review:

For John von Neumann and Norbert Wiener, the core of the Cybernetics Group project was the development of computers, and the prospect of combining high-speed computers with so-called Artificial Intelligence, to literally "program" the human race. Underlying all of these efforts was the unshakable, albeit preposterous conviction, most avidly presented by von Neumann, that there was nothing sacred about the human mind, and that the human brain was a machine, whose functioning could be replicated, and eventually surpassed, by computers.^[440]

The disciples of Rudolph Steiner seem to understand the dangers of all this. "The computer is transforming our society and our way of life. At first confined to the central offices of large corporations, scientific research institutions, and government agencies, computers are finding widespread application in automobiles, appliances, and small businesses. In 1980, about 400,000 'personal computers' were sold, bringing the computer as such into many of our lives, more directly than the ubiquitous computer-generated bill. Many people have grown concerned about the changes resulting from the spread of computers. While few would maintain that having armies of clerks adding columns of figures is better (for the clerks or the rest of us) than having computers do the work, people complain that they are being dehumanized, reduced to a number or a machine, being made servants of inhuman masters, and, in general, feeling their lives changed in ways they cannot control and do not like. While computers give us welcome relief from drudgery, they have other effects which we do not welcome.

Norbert Wiener took up this theme as early as 1948. ^[441] He described the unprecedented rapidity of the changes, that science and technology brought to society, and emphasized the key role played by cybernetics in bringing this about in its later stages. He also described some of the evil consequences of the changes but seemed to feel that the evil resided in the social aspect of the new situation, in the uses to which we are putting our new powers."^[442]

In the 1989 edition of Wiener's book The Human Use of Human Beings, which was first published in 1950 and revised in 1954, we find the following description in the opening page, that might help you understand more the influence of his groundbreaking work:

This is one of the fundamental documents of our time, a period characterized by the concepts of 'information' and 'communications'. Norbert Wiener, a child prodigy and a great mathematician, coined the term 'cybernetics' to characterize a very general science of 'control and communication in the animal and machine'. It brought together concepts from engineering, the study of the nervous system, and statistical mechanics (e.g. entropy). From there, he developed concepts that have become pervasive through science (especially biology and computing) and common parlance: 'in formation', 'message', 'feedback' and 'control'. He wrote, 'the thought of every age is reflected in its technique . . . If the seventeenth and early eighteenth centuries are the age of clocks, and the later eighteenth and nineteenth centuries constitute the age of steam engines, the present time is the age of communication and control.'

In this volume, Norbert Wiener spells out his theories for the general reader and reflects on the social issues raised by the dramatically increasing role of science and technology in the new age - the age in which we are now deeply and problematically embroiled. His cautionary remarks are as relevant now as they were when the book first appeared in the 1950s. [\[443\]](#)

Wiener describes the unprecedented rapidity, of the changes that science, and technology brought to society, and emphasized the key role played by cybernetics in bringing this about in its later stages. For Steiner's followers, he also described some of the evil consequences of the changes but seemed to feel that the evil resided in the social aspect of the new situation, in the uses to which we are putting our new powers. Since Wiener's time, the field known as "artificial intelligence," in which one tries to make computers mimic human intelligence, has been established and grown. What started out as dumb, fast machines have developed into automatons that are increasingly able to exhibit human-like characteristics. Joseph Weizenbaum, who devised a program to carry on an intimate conversation in English with a person, reported^[444] his dismay when people took what he imagined to be a clever experiment completely seriously. For example, "Some practicing psychiatrists seriously believed the DOCTOR computer program would grow into a nearly complete automatic form of psychotherapy."^[445]

Amidst other important observations and insights, Weizenbaum worried about how, as machines grow more capable, we imagine ourselves less capable, more like machines, and grow more committed to a mindlessly "scientific" ^[446] approach to the world. The disciples of Steiner also point out how some people have the idea that things with the computer are getting out of control, that the machines are acquiring a kind of autonomy. "In summarizing her recent survey of 50 computer owners, Sherry Turkle, an associate professor of sociology at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said consumers liked the feeling of power associated with programming a computer. 'When you program a computer, you feel a great deal of control and mastery,' she said. 'People begin with a desire to make the computer do something and end up being absorbed by its doing something to them,' she said."^[447]

This experience of having the tables turned on one is being repeated at many levels and in many contexts. This brings us to the idea that the computer is no ordinary machine, that it can wield a power over us that no mere tool could. What is it about the computer that makes it special? To me, as well as the students of Rudolph Steiner, this is no abstract question.

After programming computers at an advanced level for many years and watching what happened to me and to others who developed intimate relationships with the machines, I confronted this question with a sense of personal urgency and in a troubled mood. Most of the experiences I had were not discussed by those who worked with me; indeed, in the atmosphere that attaches itself to computers, certain things about the machines are nearly unthinkable, though nonetheless true. I had no desire to engage in a romantic reaction against machines or to struggle against rationality in any way. What troubled me was that I felt my reasoning powers being boxed in and limited, and I found it difficult to be as rational about all of my experience as I wished to be. I felt the need for more understanding, not less, and began to realize that the computer itself had something to do with my lack of intellectual penetration. What happened to me many other people have also experienced in varying degrees. Specifically, I noticed that my thinking became more refined and exact, able to carry out extensive logical analyses with facility, but at the same time more superficial and less tolerant of ambiguity or conflicting points of view. My feeling life somehow gradually detached itself from the rest of me. The feelings that were closer to me grew flat and grey; they lost their strength and color and correspondingly played a less prominent role in my life. The feelings that were farther from me, on the other hand, grew stronger and cruder; they lost much of their human quality and modulation. Finally, in the life of the will, I developed a tremendous capacity for application to the solution of problems connected with the computer, and an ability for sustained intellectual concentration far above average so long as the focus of concentration was the computer. In other areas, I lost willpower, and what I had taken on an obsessive character. Many other things happened to me as well, but the transformations I have just described are of a general nature, widely experienced, and will serve for the present. The computer is special because of its relation to the spiritual being here called "Ahriman."^[448]

The name Ahriman, comes, as I said earlier, from the Zoroastrian god of darkness, the being eternally opposed to the god of light, who is called Ormazd (also called Ahura Mazda). In Rudolf Steiner's gnostic conception that influences his followers, "Ahriman is opposed to Lucifer (literally, light-vessel), and the two of them together are opposed by the redeeming power of Christ. Steiner's thought is formally similar to the one advanced by Aristotle in the Nichomachean Ethics, in which evil is pictured as having the form of mutually contradictory excessive opposites, both of which are opposed by a good which stands at the mean of the two evils." The general idea of Steiner's students, or at least the one we are citing in this context is that "the world has been coming increasingly under the sway of this being Ahriman in the course of the last two millennia, with an ever-increasing pace in recent centuries, and that the computer represents the vanguard of this development." And I completely agree with this analysis, that's why the Artificial Intelligence emanating from these computers, is, after all, inherently evil if connected to Ahriman, that's why I have promoted in my books the definition of "Cyber Satan." After all, human tools of this ongoing demonic transformation of mankind towards obtaining the ultimate "Cyber Satan," like Raymond Kurzweil, for example, who is a supporter of Klaus Schwab's "Fourth Industrial Revolution" ^[449] aka Fourth Reich, believes that in the 21st century a "strong AI" will emerge as an inherently uncontrollable super-intelligence. However, Kurzweil, who reminds me of the fictional nerdy villain Peter Isherwell, in the Netflix film Don't Look Up (2021), and holds intelligence as the highest value, has a frightening vision for humans that culminates with swarms of nanobots blasting out into the cosmos, saturating "dumb matter" with intelligence, while using the stars and planets, including our beloved sun, as computational substrates. His shocking description of the ultimate cold computer and the possible computational potential of black holes, really shows the dark extreme of his dangerous thought, which is also described very well by Benjamin Butler, in a review of Ray Kurzweil's book The Singularity is Near: When Humans Transcend Biology (2005):

Ray Kurzweil foresees a future in which each organ of the human being is gradually replaced by intelligent nanobots or otherwise synthetic materials. The heart and brain are seen as flawed in design, badly in need of an upgrade, because they are run by outdated biological programming. Kurzweil describes his discomfort with his physical body thus he seeks to radically "reprogram" it by taking 250 pills a day to completely change his metabolic processes. He does this so he can live for further biotechnological innovations that allow humans within a few decades to become immortal by uploading their consciousness into computers. He sees the "nonbiological" intelligence increasingly taking over inside augmented human beings as biotechnology comes to replace their biological brain.^[450]

So according to the World Economic Forum, the "Fourth Industrial Revolution" is here. It's a change as significant as any modern revolution before it. And if we look, we'll see the signs. If the first three industrial revolutions brought us the steam engine, electricity, and global communication, the fourth revolution merges the digital, physical, and biological. As Ray Kurzweil often says, this trajectory will eventually eliminate the barriers between man and machine.^[451] But this might also mean the end of mankind as we know it. "One of the features of this Fourth Industrial Revolution is that it doesn't change what we are doing, but it changes us," says Klaus Schwab, founder and executive chairman of the World Economic Forum. To some degree, we're already engaging in this symbiotic relationship today and the nightmare has only started with seemingly innocent changes. Like Kurzweil points out, "at some point, we will be a hybrid of biological and non-biological thinking. But is a gradual transition."^[452]

Wireless earphones, for instance, signal a symbolic shift toward hardware devices more intimately connecting with our daily lives—slowly chipping away the "middleman" between our thoughts and digital activities. In healthcare, a concept called "quantified self" already allows end-users to measure, track and change habits using personalized sensors connected directly to our bodies.^[453] I saw a recent ad about it on an American TV channel and was shocked, to say the least, by what they are proposing. The future is already here, and to be honest, is a very scary one indeed, especially for those with eyes to see what's happening behind this. How can we prepare and adapt to these changes then? Professor Schwab suggests, "The response to (the Fourth Industrial Revolution) must be integrated and comprehensive, involving all stakeholders of the global polity, from the public and private sectors to academia and civil society.”^[454] That’s why they have opened the gates of hell in the last few years to obtain their evil goals.

FIG. 43 — The head of Ahriman was carved in wood by Dr. Rudolf Steiner who prophesied the birth of the Anti-Christ in America in the second half of the 20th century (Barack Obama?).

The Portals of Hell initially Opened by the Swiss Illuminati

The opening of the gates, or portals of hell, that we are all witnessing in the last few years, didn’t happen in one day, or one place. In 2016, for example, the world was shocked by some unusual events, that happened right in the heart of Europe, in Switzerland to be precise, where the German Illuminati always had a very relevant presence and the place where Professor Klaus Schwab, launched his Jesuit-driven project that will culminate in the Great Reset initiative. I know you always thought, Swiss Cheese, Swiss Chocolate and Swiss Alps, were the only things that Switzerland had to offer, aside, of course, from their famous banks, but that’s not the case, there is also a hidden dark side. Maybe a glimpse into the world of the Swiss Illuminati will help us understand this.

The German scholar Lothar Diehl, born in 1937, author of the excellent trilogy Initiatory Orders and Mystery Schools, who used to be one of the leaders of the Gnostic Catholic Church, the Order of the Illuminati, and the pre-Crowleyan O.T.O. based in Switzerland (known as the Metzger O.T.O.), located in the village of Stein in German-speaking Switzerland, so dear to Schwab’s family, wrote the following in the first volume of his trilogy: “The deviate Arcanum of sexual power is reflected, in the twisted practices of the so-called, “Libertine” gnostic societies, (known for their sexual excesses), and are not to be compared to the authentic traditional gnostic churches.”^[455] So, was Lothar himself practicing these deviant practices? Well, we might never know this, at least for the time being, mainly because from September 2009, the official activities of the Swiss O.T.O. Illuminati branch, that involved the same Lothar Diehl, ceased, as they were formally put to sleep (as you say in Masonic terms), with an official declaration signed by the committee in charge of the estate of the so-called Abbey of Thelema in Stein, known as the Aeshbach Foundation, controlled by Enst Graf and Adalbert Schmid. Maybe the overexposure of this secretive group of Swiss Illuminati Freemasons, that found themselves suddenly connected to Aleister Crowley after the launch of the World Wide Web, brought them to this decision, probably due to the difficult choice made in the past by their late leader Hermann Joseph Metzger (1919-1990), who initially refused Crowleyanity, and the perverse sexual magickal practices of “The Great Beast”, Aleister Crowley, in an attempt to preserve the integrity of his various Orders, and the dignity of its members, but then accepted it covertly, dedicating regularly to Thelema, a Gnostic Mass in his Abbey.

Metzger, who was once considered the outer head of the Ordo Templi Orientis (O.T.O.), at least in German-speaking countries, was born in Zezikon, Switzerland, on June 20, 1919. Little is known of his youth. He considered the priesthood at one time but eventually became a Marxist. He emerged out of obscurity in 1939 when he moved from Lugano (in Italian-speaking Switzerland) to Zürich. During World War II (1939-45), under the stage name Peter Mano, he worked as a stage magician and also was an astrologer. In February 1947, he inherited from his Illuminati mentor Felix Lazerus Pinkus (1881-1947), who had just died, a small publishing firm, called Psychosophische Gesellschaft.

Pinkus, who was an influential Jewish Sabbatean Illuminati, and Bnai Brith member,^[456] had been in his 30s, the president of the Zionist society in Zurich, as well as editor of the Economist, but after some financial troubles and turbulent life in support of the Jewish cause, became very active not only socially, but also magically in the Swiss and Austrian theosophical milieu of those years creating his esoteric group. Pinkus knew very well the people in charge of the Escher Wyss company in Zurich, that had the direct involvement of Schwab's family, so there is a possible direct connection there that might need some further investigation, as, over the next decades, Metzger's activities would be underwritten by a wealthy friend, Annemarie Aeschbach, who also knew the Schwab's, and met Klaus personally in the 1960s in an art gallery she owned until 1983 on the Löwenstrasse in Zurich, near the oldest and largest synagogue in town.

Interestingly, the fact that Pinkus had become Metzger's "spiritual father" got him immediately the IX° degree of the O.T.O. In fact, after the war, Hermann Joseph Metzger founded a lodge of the O.T.O., then led internationally by Karl Johannes Germer (1885-1962). He also joined the World League of the Illuminati, the organization that had attempted to revive the eighteenth-century German Illuminati connected to the previously mentioned Theodor Reuss and Leopold Engel, after a new branch of the Illuminati was activated in Switzerland at the end of the 1940s by Karl Brodbeck,^[457] connected to the Austrian Illuminati, that was revived in the same period after World War II by Hermann Medinger.^[458]

In 1955, the leader of the Swiss chapter of the World League of the Illuminati died and left the small organization to Metzger. In 1957, he was consecrated as a bishop in the Gnostic Catholic Church, one of several small ecclesiastical bodies that traced its apostolic succession to the mystical consecration of French bishop Jules-Benoit Doniel (1842-1894). Then in 1960, Metzger became the new patriarch of the church. In 1963, after hearing of the death of Germer, he called the German-speaking leadership of the O.T.O. together and had himself elected the new international outer head of the order (though those in the Spanish-and English-speaking countries did not recognize him). By this time, Metzger was already putting together a new organization that would unite the teachings and practices of the several organizations he had inherited. His headquarters was established in Appenzell, in northeast Switzerland. A variety of cottage industries emerged, from a bakery to a movie theater. There was also a chapel for the gatherings of the so-called "Gnostic Catholic Church," founded by Crowley. Metzger led the group until he fell ill toward the end of the 1980s. He died on July 14, 1990. His ashes are kept enshrined at the chapel at Appenzell.^[459]

This branch of the Illuminati, connected to the Sabbatean-Frankist Messianic Conspiracy, was pretty successful, until the growing influence and pressure exercised since 1999 by the U.S. CIA driven Caliphate O.T.O., that likes to be the only O.T.O. in town, and like I explained earlier, the obsessive interest showed by many weirdos throughout the internet, led this rather reserved and private group of Swiss, and Austrian Freemasons, involved in the Illuminati workings in Stein, to cease all their official activities. On top of this, the death of Metzger's wealthy successor Annemarie Aeschbach "Soror Chockmah" (1926-2008)—who after Metzger died in 1990, took the role of supreme guide and patron of all the Orders involved in the Abbey of Thelema in Stein, might have pushed this one-time mecca of the Swiss Illuminati to rediscuss their future. Sabbatean Frankist Jew Peter-Robert Koenig, the self-proclaimed historian of the O.T.O. Swiss Illuminati, and a figure of the Swiss occult milieu that I speak of in-depth about in Vol.1 of my Confessions^[460], stated in 2009 that:

The Gnostic Catholic Church's Crowleyan Masses are performed, without a break, as usual, on alternate Sundays. The museum and library remain active, as well as Order operations. The finances have been merged with those of the Aeschbach-Stiftung, which is overseen by the cantonal authorities and run by a Foundation Committee, headed by Ernst Graf and Adalbert Schmid; the latter looks after the library and the estate business. Besides being the new president of the Psychosophische Gesellschaft, Graf is also its vice-president. A financial cushion results from the sale of the Haus Schedlern, where Fraeulein Aeschbach once lived; this also overcame any financial hurdles that might have thwarted the Society's successful continuation. New members were also taken on.^[461]

Koenig's claims are not supported by any hard evidence, but is public "revelations" may be connected to his growing role in the last years of the Stein initiatic reality that he has directly participated in, and are probably endorsed by some of the older members of this branch of the Illuminati, to maintain an aura of mystery and intrigue around the present business of the estate, which includes a small museum dedicated to the Illuminati, that is probably the only one in the world. The continued interest might also help Koenig sell more of his books on the subject, and at the same time recruit new members for a more secretive elitarian kind of reality, that can avoid public scrutiny.

However, the end of all official Illuminati activities in Stein in 2009, was confirmed in 2011, by Lashtall, the official publication of the Sovrano Ordine del Tempio della Via della Luce (S.O.T.V.L.), an independent Italian branch of Crowley's Illuminati, based in Bellinzago Novarese near Novara in Northern Italy.^[462] Karl Germer aka Frater Saturnus, who was Crowley's disciple, and chief representative in the United States, after the Second World War, once warned the founder of S.O.T.O., Marcelo Ramos Motta, about the feared Swiss Illuminati, the "the Swiss Group," as Germer used to call them, denouncing one of its members, Sabbatean Frankist Oscar Schlag, saying he was not sincere in his passion for Thelema and "A.C." (Aleister Crowley). Describing in the process, the very interesting connections that the Swiss members seem to have with "such things as C.I.A., F.B.I., and whatnot":

*... It seems to me that you want to get initiated into the Netherworld of enemies, spies, and that type quickly, at an earlier period of life than I, anyway ... As soon as anyone contacts Thelema, and especially if he does actual work for it, he or she gets the kindest attention, not only attacks. What they prefer is to win him over back into their fold, and subtly work against 93, while pretending to be an exponent for it ... This, I am afraid, is the case with the Swiss group. Yes, I warned you years ago against Schlag. He is a Jew, High-Grade Mason, hates the O.T.O., is a political trouble-maker, psychologist, seems to have plenty of money, travels all over the globe, is in touch with such things as C.I.A., F.B.I., and whatnot. He has possibly the greatest occult library extant, has every scrap that A.C. ever issued, has things Thelemic that I do not have myself. The last time I ever saw him was in New York in a hotel; he boasted that he had the only handwritten copy of The Book of the Law in A.C.'s hand. When challenged, he brought it down to the car, and I spotted at once the origin—to his great chagrin ...^[463]*

Of course, Peter-Robert Koenig, was by his admission, a friend of the late Illuminati, homosexual spy, and "political trouble-maker," Oscar Schlag^[464] who considered himself the reincarnation of none other than Carl Kellner. Let's not forget that Kellner, as I mentioned earlier, was the founder of the O.T.O., and the late Schlag is also indicated as an alleged "psychological warfare" specialist from Israel.^[465] "the Swiss Group," seem to have always been a very important outpost for the Sabbatean-Frankists.

I wanted to talk about them in detail because I want to introduce you first to the occult reality around the Swiss Illuminati, before moving further in my description of the opening of the gates of hell and other diableries that happened there in Switzerland in 2016, after all, the Headquarters of the infamous World Health Organization is also in Switzerland.

In 2016, Europe's most powerful people attended a bizarre Satanic opening ceremony in Switzerland for the inauguration of the Gotthard Base Tunnel, a dark, disturbing, and weird, Illuminati ritual made in public, that indicated the elite was no longer hiding their true Satanic beliefs. Measuring over 57 km and costing over 11 billion Euros, the Gotthard Base Tunnel became the world's longest and most expensive tunneling project in history and was said to be a symbol of European unification in a context of rising nationalism and closing borders (the usual leftist propaganda). While most would expect an upbeat, celebratory ceremony for this kind of event, the guests were treated to a disturbing show orchestrated by German director Volker Hesse, where a man dressed as a goat presided over what was a Satanic/Luciferian ritual.

What does this have to do with the building of a tunnel? Mass media, in its attempts at delegitimizing any occult interpretation of the event, stated that there are mountain goats in the Alp which explained in their eyes the appearance of the infamous goat-man. But why was the goat-man in such a position of power during the ceremony? Why were people bowing down to him with reverence? The ceremony appeared to draw inspiration from local folk tales, specifically the legend about The Devil's bridge, which goes through Gotthard Pass. The legend of this particular bridge states that a Swiss herdsman asked the devil to help him build a bridge. The devil appeared but required that the soul of the first to cross the bridge once it was built would be given to him. The mountaineer agreed with Satan, but drove a goat across ahead of him, fooling his adversary. Angered by this sham, the devil fetched a rock, intending to smash the bridge, but an old woman drew a cross on the rock so the devil could not lift it anymore. The rock is still there and, in 1977, 300,000 Swiss francs were spent to move the 220-ton rock by 127 meters to make room for the new Gotthard road tunnel.

While the devil lost in the old Swiss legend I just unveiled, he appears instead to have won in the tunnel's opening ceremony of 2016 that turned a great work of engineering into a religious ceremony dedicated to Baphomet, while somewhat ridiculing in the process the workers who sacrificed their lives, and even the masses who will travel through the tunnel. After portraying the workers as zombie soldiers, the ceremony portrays the general population as a bunch of lascivious people who appear to be extremely suggestible, and that's unfortunately the sad reality of today's world. Then, emerging from a train passing through the tunnel there is a demonic fallen angel, a baby-faced Lucifer, and at the end of this dark Satanic ceremony, a woman draped the goat-man in white as she was saying "You are now the king of the world" and Europe's most powerful people stood up and gave a standing ovation to this ceremony dedicated to the true ruler of the occult elite.^[466] Albert Pike Sovereign Grand Commander of the Supreme Council, Scottish Rite (Southern Jurisdiction, USA) from 1859 to 1889 wrote about Lucifer in his Morals and Dogma of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry:

LUCIFER, the Light-bearer! Strange and mysterious name to give to the Spirit of Darkness! Lucifer, the Son of the Morning! Is it he who bears the Light, and with its splendors intolerable blinds feeble, sensual, or selfish Souls? Doubt it not! for traditions are full of Divine Revelations and Inspirations: and Inspiration is not of one Age nor one Creed. Plato and Philo, also, were inspired. The Apocalypse, indeed, is a book as obscure as the Sohar.^[467]

At the time of the inauguration of the Gotthard Base Tunnel, I made a video exposing it on the now-defunct channel of my wife, IlluminatiPrincess33, talking about the opening of the gates of hell that seemed back then still far fetched to most people, but then something even weirder happened in Switzerland a couple of months later, during the "strange" summer of 2016. During the month of August, a video suddenly appeared online, with images of what appeared to be a human sacrifice, staged on the grounds of the European Organization for Nuclear Research (CERN), the famous home of the God Particle featured in Dan Brown's bestseller Angels and Demons. The video that circulated online showed mysterious hooded figures engaging in an apparent magic ritual, staged in the middle of the night, under a huge statue of a Hindu deity. In the finale, a woman was stabbed, or so it appears. The deity in question is a Shiva statue that India donated to CERN in the 1960s. Shiva is known in the Hindu religion as "The Destroyer" within the Trimurti, the Hindu trinity that includes Brahma and Vishnu. However, for the Illuminati, the term destruction as it relates to Shiva's cosmic duties can be deceiving, because often Lord Shiva destroys negative presences such as evil, ignorance, and death. The mainstream media quickly went on record stating that the shocking footage appeared to have been recorded as part of a supposed prank, made by some scientists based at Europe's top physics lab, which also serves as the home of the Lagre Hadron Collider.

The identity and motives of those behind the video were never revealed. CERN and the New World Order built this institution and accepted this statue from India due to the popularity the image had acquired among the Illuminati elite and many physicists in the last century. The De Broglie theory and Max Plank's theories "Dual Nature of Matter" are a common concept in Saiva Siddhantham, and almost all Tamil Siddhars have strong beliefs on the dual nature of matter and a parallel universe, multiverse, and wormholes, which is what CERN is working on to open the gates of hell.

The Hindu concept is that humans don't live or die, we just appear in many universes at the same time in different dimensions, and this is the most common foundation for Siddha Shastrams in the Hindu faith, however, Shiva "The Destroyer," was about to appear once again a few years later in a key meeting for the New World Order. A photo that posted on Twitter three years ago, by none other than the controversial head of the World Health Organization (WHO), Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus, showed to the whole world the presence of the same image of Shiva "The Destroyer," so dear to the dark side of the Illuminati, during an important meeting that was set up before the start of the pandemic (plandemic?), between the WHO and Chinese officials, focused on the infamous Belt and Road Initiative.^[468]

The presence of this religious statue overseeing the event in question, seems now like a bad omen and a clear message to all of us, after the last two years of this never-ending pandemic. The photo was posted in January 2019 on the Twitter feed of Dr. Tedros, who has served as the alleged corrupt Director-General of the World Health Organization since 2017. The fact the Hindu god, Shiva "The Destroyer" was so prominently displayed at the head of the table during this important meeting, confirms once again the obsession that the Illuminati have for Shiva and the key role of Dr. Tedros, in bed with China from the very start of this conspiracy against mankind. The tweet in question stated we should celebrate the WHO's participation in China's Belt and Road Initiative, the so-called "New Silk Road" by supporting the "overseas training of more than 2,000 Chinese health workers," but the problem is, "The Belt and Road Initiative" has nothing to do with health work, but rather with a Chinese economic takeover of the entire world with the help of Klaus Schwab, and the Jesuit Sabbatean Frankist mafia. That's why we have all witnessed during this plandemic/pandemic a complete loss of credibility by the WHO institution, that has not even been able to reveal, until now at least, the real origins of this virus/biological warfare connected to the Chinese Military, as well as the U.S. Deep State and Jesuit agents like Dr. Anthony Fauci and his infamous Gain of Function Research, and other diableries, that have actively helped fund the research of Chinese military scientists in this sector for decades.

For example, research grant number R01AI098775 “RBD recombinant protein-based SARS vaccine for biodefense” amounting to over $1 million per year, was awarded by Dr. Anthony Fauci’s National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases (NIAID) to Professor Peter Hotez of Baylor College of Medicine as the Project Leader, but one of the two other principal investigators on this project was also Shibo Jiang, who during his over 20 years of working in the United States, developed an extensive network of collaborative research with various U.S. virus research laboratories, receiving more than $17 million in U.S. research grants, the vast majority coming from Fauci’s NIAID. During the entire period of his research here in the U.S., Shibo Jiang actively collaborated with People’s Liberation Army laboratories, while simultaneously inviting and training into his U.S. laboratory, scientists linked to the Chinese military.^[469]

The New Silk Road is a trojan horse, that aims to link China to Europe and Africa involving countries like Italy, in particular, which surprise, surprise became the first epicenter of the CCP virus pandemic in the Old Continent. Formerly named One Belt One Road(OBOR), the name was changed in 2016 when the Chinese government considered the emphasis on the word“one” was prone to misinterpretation around their project, maybe to hide their real intention to establish a One World Government controlled by China. However, the term “One Belt One Road” is still used in Chinese state media that have now added a “Green” touch to the whole initiative under the directives of the Chinese Ministry of Ecology and Environment. Green finance is officially promoted as an important feature of the Belt and Road Initiative, which calls for an environmentally friendly “Green Belt and Road.” Chinese policy documents for the project coordinator and encourage green finance and investment, but the real secret objectives of the CCP are to create a stronger economy for the Chinese-driven New World Order after destroying the world’s economy, with their biological warfare, aiming to dominate global affairs with a new trading network, in a diabolical strategy that will gradually damage U.S. interests worldwide. The stated Chinese objectives are “to construct a unified large market and make full use of both international and domestic markets, through cultural exchange and integration, to enhance mutual understanding and trust of member nations, ending up in an innovative pattern with capital inflows, talent pool, and technology database.” The problem is, what are we integrating to, Communism?

President Trump had been quietly working during his presidency to oppose the whole thing with a program entitled the Free and Open Indo-Pacific Strategy (FOIP), but the Socialist-infested European Union, never jumped on board, continuing their unconditional support for the Belt and Road Initiative, despite the objections of several member-nations, mainly because most European leaders have been corrupted by Chinese money and the U.S has not been able to stop them since then, neither with Trump, or “Sleepy Joe” who is a well-known Chinese asset. Going back to Shiva’s symbolism, Devdutt Pattanaik, an Indian mythologist, wrote an article in Economic Times explained how Shiva fits into modern corporate society:

Organizations are built by people who have the desire to achieve something. This desire makes them Brahma, the creator of the organization, but when their desire ceases and they let go from the organization and they become Shiva, the destroyer.^[470]

Having said this, Hinduism is not even one of the five religions recognized by the Chinese government, so it is not known why the statue of a Hindu deity should have been displayed in the first place, at that infamous meeting in January 2019. It is also interesting to note that nuclear research has been associated with Shiva since its inception and one of the new obsessions of the New World Order is nuclear power plants, that are said to be of great help in their supposed “green transition,” but more nuclear power stations in the world could mean more nuclear weapons. After all, the first nuclear power stations were built in many countries primarily to provide fissile material for nuclear weapons during the Cold War. Nuclear materials may also get into the wrong hands and be used to make a crude nuclear device or a so-called “dirty bomb,” but that’s something the elite of the New World Order, and people like Bill Gates in particular, busy building his high-tech nuclear reactors in places like Wyoming, with the help of the Japanese, seems to not be worried about.

However, the idea that even after the terrible Fukushima disaster, The Japan Atomic Energy Agency (JAEA), and Mitsubishi Heavy Industries Ltd (7011.T) are collaborating with the United States and Bill

Gates' venture company to build a high-tech nuclear reactor in Wyoming,^[471] is something that makes my alarm bells ring and makes me very suspicious as Bill Gates seems to want to achieve God status. After all, J. Robert Oppenheimer, known as “the father of the atomic bomb” for his work on bombs dropped on Japan at the end of WWII, recited a quote referring to Shiva from the Hindu text, the Baghavid-Gita, at the time of the first atom bomb test in 1945 “I become death, the destroyer of worlds,” Oppenheimer said during this historical occasion. Does Bill Gates, who was already heavily involved in the China virus pandemic, as well as the financially backing of the development of sun-dimming technology that would potentially reflect sunlight out of Earth’s atmosphere, triggering a global cooling effect, want to emulate Shiva? To the rest of the world, China most likely engineered a virulent strain of coronavirus in one of its labs, allowed it to escape and infect the world, and then attempted to cover it up before profiting massively from the resulting pandemic. But not to Bill Gates. For Gates, the communist state did “great work.”^[472]

Going back to the photo in question, posted by Dr. Tedros on Twitter on January 16, 2019, right at the start of the year that will eventually unleash COVID-19 onto the world, the image is even more disturbing if we consider the controversial past of Dr. Tedros himself. Tedros’ candidacy for the WHO Director-General was, in fact, opposed vigorously by several Ethiopian parties, due to his past career in the Tigray People’s Liberation Front, the most powerful of the armed liberation movements in Ethiopia with decidedly Marxist ideologies, and an abysmal record of human rights violations. This means the WHO is now allegedly in the hands of a corrupt and possibly ruthless criminal, aka Dr. Tedros, that sides with China whatever the outcome might be, mainly because of personal interests and political ideology.

In his first public message for the year 2022, entitled, “Three resolutions to help achieve Health for All in 2022”^[473] Dr. Tedros said that his first new year’s resolution (or threat?) for 2022, is to end the pandemic by ensuring all governments reach the global target of vaccinating 70% of people in all countries by the middle of 2022. Dr. Tedros then added a second resolution aiming for a global sanitary dictatorship, talking about “a stronger global framework for global health security” supported by negotiations starting in 2022, that he called a “global pandemic accord.” This new project, which was already announced officially a month earlier by the United Nations, on December 1, 2021, was described as a “new global accord on pandemic prevention” that is being made to create a new intergovernmental negotiating body (INB) for the New World Order.

The decision will establish an intergovernmental negotiating body (INB) that will negotiate and draft any convention, agreement or, another international instrument.

A first meeting will take place no later than 1 March 2022, and public hearings will also be held to inform deliberations.

The INB will deliver a progress report to the World Health Assembly in 2023 and submit its outcome for consideration the following year.

The third and final resolution announced by Dr. Tedros was that all countries must invest in stronger primary health care, as the foundation of universal health coverage. However, going back to Tetros’ second resolution for 2022, we should demand a moratorium on the adoption of this new intergovernmental negotiating body (INB). Because the people of the countries represented at the World Health Assembly have never been properly informed about the content of the documents being submitted for discussion in March 2022, we should reserve the right to oppose the signing of the said pandemic agreement by any legal means and refuse the offer upon its acceptance and ratification. But I’m afraid, that’s no longer possible in the sanitary dictatorship of the New World Order. Satan wants control over us in the End Times and the situation will become increasingly uncomfortable for those who still believe in God, rather than science.

On October 15, 2021, Italy brought in the strictest COVID-19 measures in Europe, courtesy of the Orwellian and oppressive Italian Republic, requiring all workers, in both the public and private sectors, to have a vaccine passport, as the start of what later became an introduction to even more stringent rules and measures, that will gradually unfold in the following months, and eventually bring in the so-called “Super Green Pass” in December 2021, and the complete lockdown of the unvaccinated in January 2022, before introducing probably the mandatory vaccine for the whole Italian population soon. From that infamous date in November 2021, the vaccine passport introduced in Italy and many other parts of the world, the new rules, are becoming more and more reminiscent of this passage from the Apocalypse of John: So that no one can buy or sell unless he has the mark, that is, the name of the beast or the number of its name. Revelation 13:17.

Of course, violent protests erupted in Rome and other Italian cities over such requirements, but nothing changed, and in the end, the majority of the Italians like many Americans pushed by the Biden administration, went for the vaccine option to avoid being locked up at home, or lose their job, but there is something profoundly evil going on that goes well beyond the current sanitary dictatorship that is happening simultaneously all over the world, and that's the direct involvement of Satan, the Vatican, and Freemasonry, that I'm exposing in this book.

On October 15, 2021, the "Inferno" exhibition conceived by Freemason Jean Claire pen name Gérard Régnier, an art historian, art conservator, and a member of the Académie française since May 2008, opened at the Scuderie del Quirinale, part of the Quirinale Palace (Italian: Palazzo del Quirinale one of the three current official residences of the President of the Italian Republic). The exhibition that comprises more than 200 artworks from over 80 museums, public collections, and private collections from Italy, the Vatican, and across Europe, officially marks not the beginning of Italy's vaccine passport nightmare, but another important milestone, the 700th anniversary of the death of 14th-century writer Dante Alighieri, the creator of Inferno (Italian for "Hell") the first part of Dante Alighieri's 14th-century epic poem Divine Comedy, that is followed by Purgatorio (Italian for "Purgatory"), and Paradiso ("Paradise" or "Heaven").

For this demonic exhibition, that remained open until January 9th, 2022, the choice went to the first part of his Divine Comedy, and one of the most anticipated pieces of this exhibition was the plaster version of the monumental 23 foot high "The Gates of Hell," a sculptural work by French artist Auguste Rodin that was transported to Rome by the Coubertin Foundry in Paris with a special truck. The operation required an exceptional organizational effort at the Scuderie del Quirinale. "The Gates of Hell" which cost Auguste Rodin thirty years of work and hosts 186 characters depicts the first section of Dante Alighieri's Divine Comedy was there to represent another opening of the gates of hell by the elite.

During the show's first weeks, visitors were able to gaze into the "Abyss of Hell" by Botticelli, on loan from the Vatican, and there were also other masterpieces in this demonic exhibition put together by French curator Jean Claire, by such artists as Beato Angelico, Bosch, Bruegel, Goya, Manet, Delacroix, Rodin, Cézanne, Richter, and Kiefer. Of course, the participants to the 2021 G20 Rome summit, which was held in Rome, the capital city of Italy, before the official opening of the exhibition, between the 30- 31st October 2021, were all given the possibility of a private glimpse into this unusual exhibition. We all know that the claim the vaccine passports are potentially the start of the infamous "Mark of the Beast," has been mocked over and over by the leftist Satanists, and their mercenaries in the mainstream media, but the reality that is unfolding in front of our eyes every day, tells us a very different story.

Do you remember, my dear readers, the arrival of the statue of Moloch at the Colosseum in the fall of 2019? The pandemic was already spreading from Wuhan to the rest of the planet, and the elite was already covertly announcing it with this powerful symbol. I even talked in Vol.4, which was published back in December 2019, about the possible dangers that the image of this infamous deity, placed in the Colosseum, might trigger, and the concerns of many Christians^[474], regarding what might happen to Italy and the rest of the world, if they didn't remove it immediately. Of course, I was right once again in my assertion, as God's wrath was already on its way with the China virus. Having said that, one of the strangest statues that I have ever seen in my entire life was set up right outside U.N. Headquarters in New York City in November 2021 but was later removed, on December 20, 2021, after a growing number of Christian believers started to get offended by this monstrosity placed outside of the U.N.'s Visitors Plaza.

However, CBN News reported on the 5th of January 2022, that,

A statue displayed at the United Nations in New York, which was likened to the end-times "beast" from the New Testament's book of Revelation, has been removed.^[475]

Adding an improbable excuse by a U.N. representative:

Stéphane Dujarric, a spokesperson for the Secretary-General, told CBN News the sculpture was not permanent and its removal was planned. "The statue you refer to was a temporary exhibit organized by the Permanent Mission of Mexico to the United Nations. It was taken down, as scheduled and anticipated, on 20 December," Dujarric said in a statement on Wednesday.^[476]

Say "its removal was planned," sounds like a lame excuse, but that's the U.N. after all, the home of the New World Order and constant lies. When I first heard about it, I could hardly believe that the global elite would be so brazen in showing their true colors, and so I looked into this very carefully, and unfortunately, this is not just a bad rumor but another Ahrimanic representation of the Lord of Darkness and Chaos, placed right in front of the control room of the New World Order. This gigantic statue called "The Guardian of International Peace and Security" looks like something out of a science fiction movie. It does not resemble any known creature on this planet. Instead, it appears to closely resemble the old Persian representation of Angra Mainyu (Ahriman), but also the “beast” that is described in the Book of Revelation. If you have not seen it yet, you can find video footage of this “beast” online on various Youtube channels.^[477]

Did they think that they could put this up without anyone noticing? Of course not! But they don’t care anymore, just like they have not cared when they did that Satanic ceremony at the inauguration of the tunnel in Switzerland, when they did the ritual in front of CERN, when they placed Moloch in the Colosseum, or brought Rodin’s 23-foot high “The Gates of Hell,” to Rome to officially kickstart the “Mark of the Beast” project. We need to prepare, it is no longer the time to think about the possibility of the End Times happening in our lifetime, but rather be ready for it and act accordingly.

The home of the New World Order, the United Nations, unveiling a statue of a strange-looking beast outside its headquarters in New York City, just in time for the Apocalypse, says it all, so stop thinking about going back to normality, because these are not normal times that we are living, but unprecedented ones that will change forever the whole of mankind. The statue in question is more than bizarre and resembles the beast from the Book of Revelation, but there is also another indication this is a Satanic work of art commissioned by the evil Illuminati in time for their end game. The name “The Guardian of International Peace and Security” seems to indicate the ominous warning present in Thessalonians 5:3. While people are saying, “There is peace and security ” then sudden destruction will come upon them as labor pains come upon a pregnant woman, and they will not escape.

The End times are upon us let us pray, but also let’s be ready as the gates of hell are now wide open for those who ignore these warnings, and the Great Reject is our only hope so that we can finally stand by the side of God when he sends once again his Only Begotten Son because, From His Father, He inherited divine powers (see John 10:17–18).

Without hate or passion, in a tranquil and relaxed manner, please empty your head of all the religious, scientific, intellectual, and political dogmas and rubbish, the elite, and their system has been pushing on us for so long, so we can move forward towards a new dawn ready to face the great battles in front of us in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Apocalypse is unfolding in front of our eyes, and you’ll need to be bold and courageous. You see, the second coming (“end times”) should not have any frightening thoughts as the New Testament writers, or early Christians, always longed for the return of Jesus, and, of course, if you have read Revelation 20-22 in the end, God wins, and those who have not worshiped the beast or its image, and have not received the infamous mark on their foreheads or their hands, will be able to partake in the Kingdom of God. For the first Christians, they hoped to see this happen in their lifetimes, but it didn’t because it is happening in ours, which includes the increasing persecution of Christians.

Christianity Today reported last year that “Every day, 13 Christians worldwide are killed because of their faith. Every day, 12 churches or Christian buildings are attacked. And every day, 12 Christians are unjustly arrested or imprisoned, and another 5 are abducted.” Is the Pope aka the False Prophet Jorge Mario Bergoglio doing something about it? Of course not, the Jesuit False Prophet is too busy promoting the vaccines.

In early January 2022, Pope Francis has once again strongly pushed for people to take the abortion-tainted COVID-19 injections, calling health care and vaccination “a moral obligation,” both for personal health and the health of others, while continuing to ignore both moral concerns,^[478] as well as health concerns. In the meantime, according to the United States Commission on International Religious Freedom’s 2020 report, Christians are being persecuted more than ever in many foreign countries, including Communist China, and various Muslim ones. The truth is, that since the beginning of this never-ending sanitary emergency/plandemic, traditional Christians, as well as large portions of the Orthodox Jewish community, who have not given up their religious identity and their love for God in the name of progressive values, science, and the infamous “vaccine god,” have been more and more isolated, and persecuted all over the world, even in countries like the U.S., or in Europe.

Churches and other places of worship have been closing for long periods because of the never-ending restrictions and lockdowns imposed for the China virus pandemic, and in many countries, the police even intervened directly to forcefully shut down masses. In April 2020, an Italian Catholic priest, for example, refused to comply with a request to end the mass in front of the shocked faithful, resulting in a 280 euro fine,^[479] while in the same period the police shut down a Sunday church service in Baltimore to the disbelieve of the pastor who said they were violating the U.S Constitution.^[480]

One year later, in April 2021, the situation, got even worse. A Roman Catholic church in London complained to the police after their officers brutally shut down a Good Friday service, on the grounds it broke COVID-19 lockdown rules.^[481] While pastor Sharon Perry, of the Abundant Grace Christian Assembly in Ringsend,

Dublin, Ireland, was given a prosecution notice and threatened with up to six months in prison by the national police force for opening her church on Easter Sunday.^[482]

Similar actions took place in so many different countries, including Australia, of course, it is impossible to report them all. In early January 2022, Artur Pawlowski, the pastor of Street Church and the Cave of Adullam in Calgary, Alberta, Canada, who made some videos documenting his multiple contentious exchanges with local law enforcement officials during the pandemic, was arrested along with his brother Dawid after protesting outside the home of Alberta Health Minister Jason Copping. In the moments leading up to the arrest, Pawlowski, a Polish immigrant to Canada, referred to his adopted country as “Chinada,” seeking to compare the actions of government officials to those taken by the Chinese Communist Party.^[483] This view coincides with the previously cited homily, of the great Serbian Orthodox Bishop Photius of the Eparchy of Zvornik and Tuzla, who said “Until now, people have been struggling each in their own place of living, in their own region, in their own country, but today [it] is necessary to struggle globally for global freedom because if they close everything, and if they place us in those digital camps, nobody will be able to go to anybody.”^[484]

The bishop’s homily was posted to Twitter on December 14, 2021^[485] but resurfaced strongly with Serbia’s favorite son, tennis great Novak Djokovic, who fought to be allowed to defend his title in Australia. Photius highlighted the spiritual nature of humanity’s struggle against COVID passports and said that they are part of a new Chinese-style digital communism. He warned that vaccine passport implementation is a “trap” to ensnare humanity while granting privileges to benefit only “the chosen ones,” “the obedient,” and “the ‘rulers of this world.’” Photius warned, “They will lock us up into ghettos. They will lock us up into digital prisons,” adding that, “Someone may be imprisoned in one’s apartment, not being allowed to move from one room to another, and this may be declared the best solution.”^[486] The bishop stated that it is time for the Christian Church to become resolute and resist vaccine passports by engaging in prayer and fasting, and for everyone to respond however they can.

All this is symptomatic of the growing persecution of Christians even in the “civilized” Western World, where a growing number of Churches and synagogues are being burned and vandalized each day, courtesy of the Leftist and Islamic mercenaries of the New World Order.

through its Belt and Road Initiative.

The “Socialist Paradise” is an Illuminati Dystopian Nightmare

Of the 80 books in the Old and New Testaments, the Book of Revelation holds some of the most worrying prophecies about the future. Penned by John the Apostle, who allegedly at the age of 86, wrote the last book of the Bible, the revelation of Jesus Christ. Revelation contains the final chapters of the New Testament and is dedicated to prophetic visions outlining the final days of mankind before the Second Coming of Jesus Christ. Revelation speaks of natural cataclysms and plagues that will follow the arrival of the Four Horsemen of Apocalypse among them the second horse is the red horse of war, described in Revelation 6:4, “Another horse, fiery red, went out. And it was granted to the one who sat on it to take peace from the earth, and that people should kill one another, and there was given to him a great sword.”

The red horse, that in my view is Russia, or China, or both combined, after all, the term “Red scare” belongs to both, as the first “Red Scare” was used following the Bolshevik Russian Revolution of 1917 and the subsequent wave of Communist revolutions throughout Europe and beyond, and according to The New York Times in 2019, China’s growing military and economic power have resulted in a “New Red Scare” in the United States. Consider that Henry Kissinger, in his book World Order, wrote that when in the 1950s and 1960s “the prevailing strategic doctrine of each superpower relied on the ability to inflict an ‘unacceptable’ level of damage on the presumed adversary,”^[487] the answer of the founding father of the People’s Republic of China (PRC), was a shocking one that should make us all extremely worried today. “Mao spoke of China’s willingness to accept sacrifices of hundreds of millions in a nuclear war.”^[488] Kissinger also adds that such statement, “was widely treated in the West as a symptom of emotional or ideological derangement.”^[489] But, “It was, in fact, probably the consequence of a sober calculation that to withstand military capacities beyond previous human experience, a country needs to demonstrate the willingness to sacrifice beyond human comprehension.”^[490]

The “fiery red” horse will bring death all over this planet at an unprecedented level in which ¼ of the human population will be slaughtered, and with the possibility of a global nuclear war, that number might be even bigger, remember that Albert Einstein predicted that in a full-scale nuclear exchange, 1/3 of the earth’s population would probably die. That is roughly 110 million people in America today. Think that’s an exaggeration? There are roughly 14,000 nuclear weapons in the world and 90% of them are in the hands of Russia and the US, according to atmospheric scientist and nuclear expert Professor Brian Toon, which seems to ignore China is also expanding its nuclear arsenal. However, even if the smallest weapon in the U.S. arsenal (100 kilotons), or a similar one is unleashed on the United States by Russia or China, it would cause catastrophic devastation if it was detonated over a major city. Everything in a six-mile diameter would catch on fire and be destroyed. Professor Brian Toon says, “If you get within a mile or so [of the blast], the pressure wave is so intense, it will blow down concrete buildings. And somewhere in that zone, there’s a blast of radiation from the bomb... half of the people exposed to that would die over a week or two from radiation burns on their skin and radiation poisoning.” On top of this don’t forget Putin’s upcoming 16,000mph “Satan-2” nuke with 12 warheads, a very appropriate name for a monster weapon that could destroy an entire country.

For Claire Reilly, who worked on CNET’s recent documentary series Hacking the Apocalypse, “If you survive the initial impact, your troubles are far from over. These kinds of nuclear blasts generate city-wide fires that would push smoke into the stratosphere, blocking out the sun for 10 years and sending temperatures back to what Earth experienced during the last ice age.”^[491] Of course, “you can’t duck and cover from a giant asteroid impact or alien invasion.” But in case of a nuclear war scenario, or let’s say a medium-sized asteroid, or not-so-smart group of alien invaders, we will be able to survive if we are ready. However, Reilly warns us that:

The only way you survive in the immediate vicinity is to head underground. If you're used to the finer things in life you might head to a place like the Survival Condo in rural Kansas, which offers luxury apartments and features like a cinema, swimming pool, and climbing wall, all 15 stories underground -- for $1 million a pop. If that's not your vibe and you're further away from the impact zone, you could wait out Nuclear Winter in a prepping community, like Fortitude Ranch in West Virginia. It won't protect you from a direct blast, but it's ideal if you're looking for strength in numbers to survive the long, cold years of a post-apocalyptic winter with no food. And its rural location places it far away from city-dwelling marauding hordes.^[492]

Aside from always having massive doses of KI (potassium iodide), a salt of stable (not radioactive) iodine that can help block radioactive iodine from being absorbed by the thyroid gland, you can see how the survival experts seem to think that in order survive for a longer period, one of the key factors is indeed the “strength in numbers” of a large group of people, but you also need like-minded individuals to survive even longer, to possibly establish the foundations of a new society. This subject was briefly exposed in the star-studded satire “Don’t Look Up,” which some critics called the movie of the year, that made its 2021 Christmas Eve debut on the leftist propaganda platform Netflix. Unfortunately, the libtards linked it immediately to climate change, the current obsession of the leftist predators, and the possibility that a real asteroid, or comet, may sooner or later hit our planet, was at that point completely left out. “A film about a comet hurtling towards Earth and no one is doing anything about it? Sounds like the climate crisis” said Peter Kalmus, a deranged climate scientist and author of Being the Change: Live Well and Spark a Climate Revolution to The Guardian^[493]. But aside from the obvious anti-Trump references of the movie, with a conservative president played by leftist darling Meryl Streep, and the U.S. patriots made to look like a bunch of fools who don’t look up and accept the imminent disaster because they don’t want to accept what is happening, there are some truths in this film. In November of 2021, an unusual spacecraft was launched by NASA on a mission to test technology that could one day tip a dangerous asteroid off course. Officially, Nasa’s Dart mission wants to see how difficult it would be to stop a sizeable space rock from hitting Earth.^[494]

Some say they fear the arrival of 99942 Apophis. After its discovery in 2004, asteroid 99942 Apophis had been identified as one of the most hazardous asteroids that could impact Earth in the future, and even if astronomers have concluded that there is no risk for the time being, after the uncertainty in the 2029 approach distance has been reduced from hundreds of kilometers, to now just a couple of kilometers,^[495] this asteroid might still bring us some dark energies from the cosmos. Comets and asteroids have been considered bad omens, since ancient times, until approximately the 16th century.

These omens would include crop failures, diseases, deaths of royalty, or other such catastrophic events. Pliny the Elder (23-79 AD), a Roman natural philosopher, thought comets were the cause of political issues and death.^[496] The main difference between asteroids and comets is their composition, as in, what they are made of. Asteroids are made up of metals and rocky material, while comets are made up of ice, dust, and rocky material. Both asteroids and comets were formed early in the history of the solar system about 4.5 billion years ago.^[497] When they saw a comet or an asteroid in the sky, the ancients were stricken with fear. A ball of fire, with a tail stretching across the sky, obviously not a good omen. The skies were the home of capricious gods and such a disturbance in the heavens meant danger on earth. In 1066, a comet was seen as William the Conqueror was preparing to invade England. Soon after, Harold, the Saxon king, was defeated by William, and old heads nodded. It was only to be expected after such a portent.^[498] Through their roles as harbingers of doom are now discounted by most people, they are still considered relevant by the Jesuits and the Illuminati that wants to unleash Cyber Satan on the world for the implementation of the Great Reset by 2030.

On Friday, April 13, 2029, Earth will experience a dramatic close encounter with the asteroid 99942 Apophis. The 1,120 feet (340-meter) wide object could even hit us, or pass within just 19,000 miles (31,000 km) of our home planet, a distance that brings it closer than most geostationary satellites that could also be damaged by its passage. Thanks to the tremendous size of Apophis, even if it's only a close-passage, it will be so bright that around 2 billion people will be able to witness it with the naked eye, probably as one of the scariest moments in their lives. First becoming visible in the southern hemisphere, the asteroid will appear as a bright star streaking across the sky from east to west, initially passing over Australia, then the Indian Ocean, and eventually crossing the equator over Africa. Remember, "Apophis" is the ancient Greek name for an ancient Egyptian deity called "Apep"—also spelled "Apepi" or "Aapep"—who was seen as the embodiment of chaos and the opponent of light and order in the cosmos. This should concern us as we are entering the darkest of ages as we approach the 2030 AI take over. For those who will survive the coming years, and hopefully view the passage of Apophis, this will be another epic moment of this ongoing Apocalypse, but whatever happens, don't give in to fear as we already have enough of that going around.

For a while now, it's been rather clear that the primary objective of most pandemic coverage, in the age of COVID, is to scare the socks off mass audiences, nothing more, it's all presented as terrifying, another sign of the impending Apocalypse, but if you have Jesus in your hearts, you should never be afraid, because that's what these demons, archons, voladores, alien parasites, call them whatever you want; who control also the media, truly want from you. They feed off your sadness, fear, anger, and irritation, as well as other negative, harmful, toxic, sinful emotions, and their corresponding thought behaviors. Don't be afraid of such feelings in the coming years, as God will always help if you ask him to protect you with a sincere heart, especially after 2030 when Cyber Satan is set to take over the show and the Great Reset is completed.

For Victor Shvets, a renewed global business strategist who originally left the Soviet Union in 1979 because he saw greater opportunities in the West and its finance industry, but is now back to be a Socialist, who predicts the end of Capitalism, in his book The Great Rupture: Three Empires, Four Turning Points, and the Future of Humanity, we will face by 2030 artificial intelligence (AI) "will replace most research functions and go beyond that by anticipating changes and making discoveries." AI in his demented Socialist vision will be able to make all those naughty decisions entrepreneurs struggle to make now, ending Capitalism as we know it. Shvets writes, "modern AI can manipulate an unheard amount of information, and hence, arguably it might steer investments in a more productive way than has ever been possible by Adam Smith's invisible hand." Shvets even believes that Bolshevik revolutionary Nikolai Bukharin's scientific planning of state control "might not have been wrong at all but were just a century ahead of their time.

Today, the computational power might allow for such planning to occur without creating the stagnation and inefficiency of the Soviet system." He goes on to say F.A. Hayek's ideas may end up on the scrap heap of history and free-market Capitalism will be viewed as the same as the "burning of witches." All of this after most of his book is spent chronicling how freedom is the reason the West has prospered and the Ottoman Empire, China, and Russia have been mired in poverty. However, now, Americans are sitting around watching TV and playing on their computers instead of reading. Shvets says the collision of financialization and technology has led to civil disintegration, "all the ingredients of Roman 'bread and circuses.' Escapism, stagnating incomes, and rising inequalities characterize most Western societies, with the public sector stepping in to distribute 'Free bread.'" Younger people are more in favor than their parents of government solving problems. Baby boomer parents have created kids who are dependent, used to winning "prizes for losers."

Shvets believes this era is more toxic than smoking, with loneliness, increased suicides, declining literacy, digital addictions, and impaired analytical capacity. The new "Socialist paradise" on the horizon, according to Shvets, will be fair, equitable, and beneficial to society, rather than the freedom and individualism, that we all appreciate in most parts of the world. His soothsaying is based on a quarter of millennials believing democracy is bad for society, and unfortunately less than a third believing it essential. These days fewer than half of European millennials support democracy despite direct experience with both Fascism and Communism that created so much death and destruction.

Shvets sees a world where AI takes over and only 5 percent of people will work and the remaining 95 percent won't have to, presumably supported by taxes paid by the 5 percent. "Karl Marx's idea of 'communism' will be our common future," Shvets writes. Society will achieve such a high level of productivity "it will liberate humans from the need to toil to survive, and by that stage, it is likely, that alternative avenues of personal satisfaction will also emerge." But like Douglas French President Emeritus of the Mises Institute, and author of books like Early Speculative Bubbles & Increases in the Money Supply and Walk Away: The Rise and Fall of the Home-Ownership Myth, wrote in response to Shvets Socialist propaganda: "there can be no such thing as a leisurely form of Communism," adding Mr. Shvets, "there is mature capitalism. And, it's not Communism, Marxian or otherwise."^[499] Unfortunately, the New World Order seems to think otherwise and loves to promote the work of people like Victor Shvets, who should have probably stayed in that nightmare called the Soviet Union to enjoy the last years of what used to be a Communist hell hole. I hope, however, that by 2030, those who agree to join the Great Reject, will be enough to form a different kind of society that is in no way connected to Shvets vision, that is, of course, also Satan's vision.

Christians across the world are experiencing increasing hardship, targeting, and persecution because of the stand they take for biblical principles, as the Satanic principles of the Marxist New World Order take over the show, in this context, democratic backsliding, also known as autocratization, democratic decay and de-democratization on the rise worldwide. The libtards and the elite that controls them would like you to think that democratic backsliding is happening in countries like America because of conservative leaders like Donald J. Trump. The International Institute for Democracy and Electoral Assistance for this reason, recently added the United States to their list of backsliding democracies, pointing to Trump's attempts to overturn the results of the 2020 election, as well as state voting laws that disproportionately impact minority groups.^[500] But these institutions, which should check on countries losing their democratic qualities, conveniently leave out countries under Jesuit/Sabbatean Masonic control like Germany, Austria, Italy, Australia, or Canada, politicizing such research for their own sick goals. No wonder, influential leftist "political scientists" like Pippa Norris, of the Harvard Kennedy School and the University of Sydney, in Australia, argue that the two "twin forces" that pose the largest threat to Western liberal democracies are "sporadic and random terrorist attacks on domestic soil, which damage feelings of security, and the rise of populist-authoritarian forces, which feed parasitically upon these fears."^[501]

Now, we all know that the left has helped with their insane immigration policies, false flag operations, the rise of terrorism in most of the West, but when you react to these insane policies and manipulations, you are now called a "populist-authoritarian," who wants to participate in democratic backsliding. The truth is that the very people who seem to be obsessing with the future of democracy, like Joe Biden, are unfortunately the very same people, who are doing everything to sabotage it, as they help, willingly or unwillingly, the rise of China, as the winning model for the age of Artificial Intelligence and robotics. An internet pioneer and technology developer and administrator predicted, "My expectation is that by 2030, as much of 75% of the world's population will be enslaved by artificial intelligence-based surveillance systems developed in China and exported around the world. These systems will keep every citizen under observation 24 hours a day, seven days a week, monitoring their every action."

Dan Gillmor, co-founder of the News Co/Lab at Arizona State University's Walter Cronkite School of Journalism and Mass Communication, and professor of practice in digital media literacy commented, "Governments (and their corporate partners) are broadly using technology to create a surveillance state, and what amounts to law by unaccountable black-box algorithm, far beyond anything Orwell imagined. But this can only happen in a society that can't be bothered to protect liberty – or is easily led/stampeded into relinquishing it – and that is happening more and more in the Western democracies. The re-emergence of public bigotry has nothing to do with technology, except to the extent that bigots use it to promote their malignant goals. Meanwhile, the institutions that are supposed to protect liberty – journalism among them – are mostly failing to do so. In a tiny number of jurisdictions, people have persuaded leaders to push back on the encroachments, such as a partial ban on government use of facial recognition in San Francisco. But the encroachments are overwhelming and accelerating."

Leah Lievrouw, Professor of Information Studies at the University of California-Los Angeles, wrote, "To date, virtually no democratic state or system has sorted out how to deal with this challenge to the fundamental legitimacy of democratic processes, and I guess that only a deep and destabilizing crisis (perhaps growing out of the rise of authoritarian, ethnic or cultural nationalism) will prompt a serious response."^[502]

Democracy in America seems to have faced its most serious crisis in decades, in November 2020, as its basic tenets, including a guarantee of free and fair elections, seemed to have been temporarily abandoned in the U.S.A. after one of the most controversial presidential elections in American history, saw in the end, the victory of "Sleepy Joe," and this might be only beginning of a disturbing trend. Only a few months earlier, in June 2020, a new institution called the Academy's Commission on the Practice of Democratic Citizenship, celebrated the release of its final report titled: Our Common Purpose: Reinventing American Democracy for the 21st Century. The question is, why do all these influential people suddenly need to meet up to reinvent democracy? Well, the answer is simple: to sabotage it! For this reason, nearly 1,200 people viewed the launch of this extraordinary libtard event, which featured Commission Chairs Danielle Allen (Harvard University), Stephen Heintz (Rockefeller Brothers Fund the Philanthropic Foundation created and run by members of the Rockefeller family), and Eric Liu (founder and CEO of Citizen University who served President Bill Clinton as Deputy Assistant for Domestic Policy in the years 1999 and 2000); Academy President David Oxtoby; as well as Commission members Judy Woodruff (PBS NewsHour) and David Brooks (The New York Times).^[503]

During this event, the mercenaries of the New World Order proposed thirty-one recommendations, grouped by six strategic imperatives, to officially help the nation emerge as a more resilient constitutional democracy by 2026, its 250th anniversary, an important symbolic event, that the New World Order wants to use, to eliminate democracy in the United States. The Commission founded in 2018 “to reinvent American democracy,” said to be made up of a diverse, bipartisan cohort of scholars, business leaders, media members, elected officials, and philanthropists,^[504] was established in the U.S., by the Jesuit/Sabbatean elite, with the official goal of exploring how best to respond to the vulnerabilities in our political and civic life, but it is working behind the scenes to make sure the world’s oldest constitutional democracy becomes a rigged antidemocratic system, that will never again be in the hands of a populist president like Mr. Trump, or anybody else, that can oppose their evil plan of ushering in a Socialist technocracy in the United States. However, the need to “reinvent democracy,” is an obsession not only in America these days. In an article, that is part of a BBC Future series about the long view of humanity, published in March 2019, public philosopher Roman Krznaric, argued that for democracy:

One problem is the electoral cycle, an inherent design flaw of democratic systems that produce short political time horizons. Politicians might offer enticing tax breaks to woo voters at the next electoral contest, while ignoring long-term issues out of which they can make little immediate political capital, such as dealing with ecological breakdown, pension reform, or investing in early childhood education. Back in the 1970s, this form of myopic policy-making was dubbed the “political business cycle.”^[505]

That’s why the leftist elite wants to substitute democratic systems, with their technocratic “Socialist paradise” ruled by the AI. For this reason, as Lee Edwards pointed out, “radical progressives are trying to convince Americans, especially young Americans, that Socialism is the solution to America’s socio-economic problems. They are banking on millennial ignorance of the repeated failures of socialism and the proven ability of a free enterprise to produce opportunity and prosperity for the greatest number.”

FIG. 48 — A rare Masonic document from the 1770s shows how the Green Dragon Tavern located on Union Street (then known as Green Dragon Lane) in Boston's North End, was used by the Freemasons to plan the Boston Tea Party precursor to the American Revolution.

The Illuminati Fear the Kingdom of God

So how did we produce the American miracle in the first place back in 1776? Well, while monarchies dominated eighteenth-century Europe, American revolutionaries were determined to find an alternative to this method of government. Radical pamphleteer Thomas Paine, whose enormously popular essay Common Sense was first published in January 1776, advocated a republic: a state without a king. Six months later, Jefferson's Declaration of Independence affirmed the break with England but did not suggest what form of government should replace monarchy, the only system most English colonists had ever known. In the late eighteenth century, republics were few and far between. Genoa, Venice, and the Dutch Republic provided examples of states without monarchs, but many European Enlightenment thinkers questioned the stability of a republic. Nonetheless, after their break from Great Britain, Americans turned to Republicanism for their new government.^[506]

This system has worked ever since, but will it withstand the competition of ruthless authoritarian models like the one in China, or Russia in the new millennium? The answer is no, and even if this will make you mad, or at least upset, we need to face reality and prepare for what's coming next if our model fails. In March 2021, China's top diplomat, Yang Jiechi, got uncomfortably close to the truth when he lectured American officials during their summit in Alaska about creating turmoil by invading other countries and having a "Cold War mentality" by trying to impose its democracy on the world. Of course, Yang would not admit to China's appalling human rights record, crushing of dissent, or flouting international rules and claiming disputed territory, but he sincerely didn't care about America's response, as in the eyes of Communist China democracy it is simply an old outdated system with no future in the new era of Artificial Intelligence. When Yang Jiechi sat down with his American counterparts in Alaska, he also made it clear that there is another big voice in the world — and the American-led so-called "global liberal order" does not run the game anymore. After all, they want to be the main AI leaders by 2030.

But perhaps his most telling comment, though, was that far from being a model of democracy, "many people in the United States have little confidence" in their own government. America —and by extension, the West — is going through a period of soul searching where it appears exhausted, unsure of itself, and hypocritical.^[507] At this point, many of you will ask me, what can we do to save our way of life, and our beloved country, from this mess? The Illuminati agents, and their Jesuit supervisors in the U.S., are trying to transform America into a Socialist nightmare, ready to join China, and the rest of the world in their AI Socialist take over. For this reason, we need to realize, as soon as possible, that the weak spots of our democratic system are being exploited every day beyond recovery by our enemies, that by corrupting our politicians, and the lobbyists that fund them, are already infringing on our Constitutional rights, more and more each day until we will no longer have a republic. Because America is a republic, and not a pure democracy, the contemporary efforts to weaken our republican customs and institutions in the name of greater equality will only make us weak prey of the Chinese-driven New World Order. Something the Jesuits and their Illuminati agents planned for a very long time. The Demoncrats, and their controllers, want to sabotage the careful balance produced by our mixed republic in the U.S., to advance their Socialist agenda more and more, and undermine our political liberty, sabotaging forever our unique way of life based on Liberty and Justice for All, and the American dream. Sadly, there is little, or nothing, that we can do to stop them if we don't properly understand the secrets of our Founding Fathers that put together 1776 as a project that will last only until the return of Christ. Yes, the parousia meaning "arrival, "coming", or "presence" in Greek, is the expiry date of our constitutional federal republic. A "republic" is a form of government in which the people hold power, but elect representatives to exercise that power, but that's not, of course, a valid system once you have Christ the King as your ruler.

Most Christian denominations consider the kingly office of Christ to be one of the threefold offices: Christ is a prophet, priest, and king.^[508] In the end, the only possibility we have, to fight the advancement of the infamous China model, is to defend our republic, while we also learn the principles of monarchy, preserving them in some way for the Second Coming. In other parts of the world outside the United States, where democracy is now a growing farse, like in the European Union, for example, monarchy is the only system that could, in theory, withhold the advance of Cyber Satan's Legion in the End times, saving us from this technocratic Socialist nightmare even here in the United States, if eventually the Republic for Which We Stand, fails to resist the advancing Socialist nightmare, promoted by an increasing number of today's corrupt politicians in Washington D.C. After the Capitol Hill trap, most people in America are rightly disillusioned with politics, not willing to sacrifice their lives to fight the rise of Communism and, what is becoming a social menace.

However, when I say the word monarchy, please don't misunderstand me, I'm not talking about the British monarchy or most of the corrupt monarchies around in today's world. After all, back in the days of Adam Weishaupt's Illuminati, in their INSTRUCTIONS FOR THE ENTIRE REGENT DEGREE, it states: "the most powerful monarchs are ruled by the Illuminati."^[509] That's why they are probably still in power if your country is currently a monarchy, and the recent scandals can only confirm that, as well as the demented leftist attitude of a British import, and libtard, Prince Harry, or the deviant and perverted ways of his uncle, former "Prince" Andrew, now exposed as a pedophile connected to the Sabbatean-Frankist mafia. In the Illuminati system, there are specific lessons in the upper degrees that openly suggest revolutions towards those monarchs who are not forced into submission by employing all the "peaceful" ways of Jesuitical Machiavellism. There are also lessons for the lower degrees that say the order will bring change slowly, and without violence, to deceive those who joined.

What are we to do then? Promote revolutions? Turn everything upside down? Expel violence with violence?

Exchange one tyrant for another? Certainly not! Any violent reform is reprehensible because it does not improve things as long as men with their passions remain unchanged, and because wisdom does not need to be coerced.^[510]

Consequently, those who ignore the truth regarding the lessons of the higher degrees, believe these passages are conclusive of the Illuminati goals, but that's not the case. Over time, only a few other high-ranking Illuminati were let into the true purpose of the Order, while most of the members were left in the dark about their true intentions, believing naively it was never the Bavarian Illuminati's original goal to hire thugs to violently overthrow a state. Also, the fact that there was no formal ceremony to go along with the higher degrees, and the mounting problems the Order was facing after they were exposed in the middle of the 1780s, eventually ensured that the teachings of the high degrees truly remained the exclusive knowledge they had always been designed to be,^[511] for a very limited amount of people, just as it is today. However, private correspondence between the high degrees of the Illuminati in those days shows how they laughed between themselves, on how these early lessons, were cleverly designed to give that very misimpression to the lower degrees in both matters of politics, as well as religion. As I mentioned at the very start of this book, the final and highest degree of the Illuminati system had the working title "Rex", but as specified in The Secret School of Wisdom: The Authentic Rituals and Doctrines of the Illuminati,

...the only two manuscripts extant (one being a mere copy of the other) carry the headline 'Philosophy Sages' instead. Indeed, it might be called the degree of the philosopher-king. There is not much that constitutes a link to the preceding lecture, except for the invitation to the candidate to find a vantage-point from which to see the world from a new perspective.^[512]

That "new perspective," for those joining the elite of the Illuminati, was and still is, of course, Communism, the true virus of our age. An idea that makes me draw a rather fitting analogy, as Adam Weishaupt's Illuminati Order became the Wuhan lab of the future Communist ideology, where it was elaborated and perfected to lethal levels by some of its most distinguished members, including the utopian Socialist Philippe Buonarroti (1761-1837), who will then influence Sabbatean-Frankist Karl Marx(1818-1883), who will later influence Mao Zedong(1893-1976), the founding father of the People's Republic of China (PRC), whose form of Communism, loyal to the original plan of the Illuminati and its Jesuit supervisors, will give us the infamous China virus. As you can see, everything is connected in this insane world, and without Weishaupt's diabolical creature, we would have probably lived in a very different world today, where all monarchies of any importance are dead, and what we perceive as democracy still reigns, but for how long?

Since 1850, most of the property-based injustices have been lifted and the world as it existed before the French and American Revolution is only a historical memory, but where are we heading today, if not towards the abyss of uncertainty and despair thanks to our ignorance. Cicero once said: "Not to know that happened before one was born is always to remain the child," and for the very same reason I'm here, at times, boring you with these historical facts.

Going back to the candidate for the Rex Degree or Philosopher King, that was given to Napoleon Bonaparte, such a degree in the early days of the Illuminati had to be found in those people particularly discontented with the usual civil institutions, so they could serve better the secret revolutionary project of the Order. A seemingly rhetorical question I showed you earlier in the PREPARATION FOR THOSE WHO ARE TO PARTICIPATE IN GOVERNING THE ORDER OF THE ILLUMINATI, regarding "the greatest monarchs of the world" who would be "rendered incapable of doing evil," shows the real intentions of Weishaupt's Communist plan from the very start. A candidate to the inner circle ruling the order, was thus first invited to explore the possibility of the conquest of governments by infiltration, stating that nations must be brought to embrace their plan by "whatever means are conducive—peaceably if it can be done; but if not, then by force—for all subordination must vanish from the face of the earth,"^[513] and this is the mission of World Economic Forum's founder Klaus Schwab, a former member of the steering committee of the Bilderberg Group, co-founded by SS member Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands, and a typical example of a German Illuminati member, who has always followed from the beginning of his career, Adam Weishaupt's original instructions, and philosophy, to become the ideal Rex, a Philosopher King, that can help with his actions, the rise of the Antichrist, and the not so "Great" King Set/Satan.

You could only understand this better, if you had access to the instruction of the higher degrees the Illuminati, where they finally reveal their Machiavellian tactics for a violent revolution (if needed), to establish, in the end, an atheist godless Communist world. However, to do it without being erased, and sabotaged, the Illuminati learned from the very beginning to cloak themselves in a false portrait of the message of Jesus, and Klaus Schwab, a typical high-level Illuminati, also does that regularly, growing in influence and popularity among the elite every day. Schwab even admitted that the World Economic Forum can steer the global agenda because it has successfully infiltrated the cabinets of several world governments, a sinister modality directly coming out of Adam Weishaupt's playbook. Speaking to political commentator and Bohemian Club member David Gergen, in 2017, at the Harvard Kennedy School's Institute of Politics, Klaus Schwab described how the WEF's modus operandi is to "penetrate cabinets" and governments by installing its "young global leaders," that in the past have included "Mrs. Merkel, and even Vladimir Putin," who Schwab confirms "have all been young global leaders of the World Economic Forum." The Marxist Pact of the Catacombs to Sabotage the Kingdom of God

Professor Klaus Schwab invited Pope Francis to speak at Davos in January 2014, just after he was made pope, displaying that he knew already back then, how they both shared the same Communist ideology, originally inspired by a mysterious Marxist pact signed by 42 bishops of the Catholic Church in the Catacombs of Rome on November 16, 1965.

Message of His Holiness Pope Francis to Prof. Klaus Schwab, Founder and Executive Chairman of the World Economic Forum Davos-Klosters (Switzerland), January 22-25, 2014.

By Holy See Mission

Message of His Holiness Pope Francis to Prof. Klaus Schwab, Founder and Executive Chairman of the World Economic Forum Davos-Klosters (Switzerland), January 22-25, 2014. To Professor Klaus Schwab, Executive Chairman of the World Economic Forum,

I am very grateful for your kind invitation to address the annual meeting of the World Economic Forum, which, as is customary, will be held at Davos-Klosters at the end of this month. Trusting that the meeting will provide an occasion for deeper reflection on the causes of the economic crisis affecting the world these past few years, I would like to offer some considerations in the hope that they might enrich the discussions of the Forum and make a useful contribution to its important work. Ours is a time of notable changes and significant progress in different areas which have important consequences for the life of humanity. In fact, “we must praise the steps being taken to improve people’s welfare in areas such as health care, education, and communications” (Evangelii Gaudium, 52), in addition to many other areas of human activity, and we must recognize the fundamental role that modern business activity has had in bringing about these changes, by stimulating and developing the immense resources of human intelligence. Nonetheless, the successes which have been achieved, even if they have reduced poverty for a great number of people, often have led to widespread social exclusion. Indeed, the majority of the men and women of our time continue to experience daily insecurity, often with dramatic consequences. In the context of your meeting, I wish to emphasize the importance that the various political and economic sectors have in promoting an inclusive approach that takes into consideration the dignity of every human person and the common good. I am referring to a concern that ought to shape every political and economic decision, but which at times seems to be little more than an afterthought. Those working in these sectors have a precise responsibility towards others, particularly those who are most frail, weak, and vulnerable. It is intolerable that thousands of people continue to die every day from hunger, even though substantial quantities of food are available, and often simply wasted. Likewise, we cannot but be moved by the many refugees seeking minimally dignified living conditions, who not only fail to find hospitality but often, tragically, perish in moving from place to place. I know that these words are forceful, even dramatic, but they seek both to affirm and to challenge the ability of this assembly to make a difference. In fact, those who have demonstrated their aptitude for being innovative and for improving the lives of many people by their ingenuity and professional expertise can further contribute by putting their skills at the service of those who are still living in dire poverty. What is needed, then, is a renewed, profound, and broadened sense of responsibility on the part of all. “Business is – in fact - a vocation, and a noble vocation provided that those engaged in it see themselves challenged by a greater meaning in life” (Evangelii Gaudium, 203). Such men and women can serve more effectively the common good and make the goods of this world more accessible to all. Nevertheless, the growth of equality demands something more than economic growth, even though it presupposes it. It demands first of all “a transcendent vision of the person” (Benedict XVI, Caritas in Veritate, 11), because “without the perspective of eternal life, human progress in this world is denied breathing-space” (ibid.). It also calls for decisions, mechanisms, and processes directed to a better distribution of wealth, the creation of sources of employment, and an integral promotion of the poor which goes beyond a simple welfare mentality. I am convinced that from such an openness to the transcendent a new political and business mentality can take shape, one capable of guiding all economic and financial activity within the horizon of an ethical approach that is truly humane. The international business community can count on many men and women of great personal honesty and integrity, whose work is inspired and guided by high ideals of fairness, generosity, and concern for the authentic development of the human family. I urge you to draw upon these great human and moral resources and to take up this challenge with determination and far-sightedness. Without ignoring, naturally, the specific scientific and professional requirements of every context, I ask you to ensure that humanity is served by wealth and not ruled by it. Dear Mr. Chairman and friends, I hope that you may see in these brief words a sign of my pastoral concern and a constructive contribution to help your activities to be ever more noble and fruitful. I renew my best wishes for a successful meeting, as I invoke divine blessings on you and the participants of the Forum, as well as on your families and all your work.

From the Vatican, 17 January 2014

FRANCISCUS PP[515]

The Illuminati taught that Communism was Christ’s aim, following the teachings of their Jesuit supervisors, to deceive and prepare their candidates for their “enlightened” Satanic mission. Baron Adolph Franz Friedrich

Ludwig Knigge (1752–1796), German writer, high-level Freemason, and a leading member of the Order of the Illuminati, had personally devised this strategy. He fought hard with Weishaupt to introduce the affirmation of “Christian principles,” as a cover-up for their true agenda, before realizing that Adam Weishaupt was already a Jesuit agent who simply didn’t want to look like he was always mimicking his masters. Knigge accused Weishaupt of “Jesuitism,” and suspected him of being “a Jesuit in disguise.” Adding with great disappointment, “And was I to labor under his banner for mankind, to lead men under the yoke of so stiff-necked a fellow? Never!”^[516] However, according to the anti-Sabbatean Frankist American/ Israeli, Rabbi Marvin Antelman (1933-2013), who, along with his 13-member Supreme Rabbinical Council of America (SRCA), performed a controversial ex-communication of Henry Kissinger from Judaism in 1976. Mayer Amschel Rothschild (1743-1812), the founder of the Rothschild dynasty, convinced Weishaupt to also accept the Frankist doctrine to finance the rise of the Illuminati, as he aimed to fulfill the Frankist plot of subverting the world’s religions^[517], which also meant sabotaging the image of Jesus.

These are the reasons why, after Adam Weishaupt died of old age in 1830, we notice the immediate rise of the “Communist Jesus trend” with The League of the Just, a Christian Communist international revolutionary organization founded in 1836 by branching off from its ancestor, the League of Outlaws, which had been formed in Paris in 1834 by a German disciple of Adam Weishaupt named Theodor Schuster (1808-1872), who modeled his new organization closely after Italian Illuminati Philippe Buonarroti’s vision of the “Universal Democratic Carbonari,” as an egalitarian international revolutionary fellowship organization. In 1847, the League of the Just merged with the Communist Correspondence Committee, an organization led by Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels, creating the infamous Communist League. The new group tasked Marx and Engels with writing a political platform for itself. The resulting document was The Communist Manifesto.^[518]

The heretical view pushed by the Illuminati that Communism was just Christianity in practice, and Jesus was the first Communist, was highlighted in one of Karl Marx’s early writings, which stated, “Christ is the intermediary unto whom man unburdens all his divinity, all his religious bonds, so the state is the mediator unto which he transfers all his Godlessness, all his human liberty.”^[519]

The Illuminati, instructed in secret by the Jesuits, didn’t stop at the idea that Jesus was a “Communist,” they were so diabolical that they even envisioned themselves creating a new religion in the future, where Jesus was their main founder linked to the mysteries of Ancient Egypt, an idea that will lead to Count Cagliostro’s Egyptian Rite, and the subsequent revival of Gnosticism within Freemasonry, that will later give birth to Aleister Crowley’s Thelema, that used in the same heretical way, Jesus Christ, in the upper degrees of his version of the Ordo Templi Orientis where he states “In our Lord Jesus Christ is the Great Work accomplished,” and that explains once and for all, the Egyptian symbolism of the Vatican Nativity Scene placed in Saint Peter’s Square in December 2020.

Regarding Adam Weishaupt’s Illuminati, they trusted their internal security apparatus would always avoid any future discovery of their manipulative heretical interpretation of Jesus, where only their best recruits would understand the secular significance of it, and its true Anti-Christian mission. This way, the explanation to the recruits that Illuminism was true Christianity, almost became a standard fixture of many subsequent Illuminist societies inspired by the Illuminati Order.

Following this longstanding tradition, Professor Klaus Schwab wants to be perceived, not only as a good Christian, like most Illuminati members, but somebody genuinely interested in Liberation theology, a controversial religious movement born in the late 20th-century Roman Catholicism, centered in Latin America. Schwab even praised publicly last year one of the key figures of the Second Vatican Council, the late Brazilian Catholic archbishop Hélder Pessoa Câmara (1909-1999), one of the most influential Council Fathers, that helped to transform the Church into that “Pachamama monstrosity” of Pope Francis.

Câmara was also an honored speaker of one of the first World Economic Forums in Davos, back in 1974. Câmara, a self-proclaimed Marxist, described today by the Co-Creator of the infamous farse of Occupy Wall Street, Mica White, for the World Economic Forum Annual Meeting, as “a radical liberation theologian and advocate for the poor,”^[520] was quoted once as having said, “When I give food to the poor, they call me a saint. When I ask why they are poor, they call me a Communist.”^[521]

What we must understand is that Pope Francis is a Communist at heart, and he embraced this sick and perverse ideology, mainly because of his friend, Archbishop Hélder Câmara, who was a very influential Illuminati member, and Câmara even led a secret meeting, on the evening of November 16, 1965, three weeks before the close of the Second Vatican Council, that will prove to be a turning point in the history of the Catholic Church, and the Vatican-led New World Order. To avoid public scrutiny, Archbishop Câmara, with 42 like-minded bishops, went to the Catacombs of Domitilla, situated over 16 meters underground, around 1 mile from the south of Appian Way, spread over 15 kilometers underground. Curiously enough, unlike other Roman catacombs, these catacombs still hold the remains of humans. During the unusual meeting protected on the surface by a bunch of loyal Italian Mafiosi, they signed a secret document under the title of “Pact of the Catacombs,” with 13 points, that were inspired by Karl Marx.

This small group of Illuminati/Marxist priests meeting in secret has been the beginning of an existential threat to our very future because what they decided there among those catacombs, influenced the Illuminati elite that would create a few years later, the World Economic Forum. Sadly, because of this meeting, South America, traditionally controlled by the Jesuits, has also been unable to rise above Marxism, as it was used for the rise of liberation theology and the most progressive ideas of the Second Vatican Council. No wonder Archbishop Helder Câmara, Schwab's mentor, who was credited with taking the lead role in organizing the "Pact of the Catacombs," became known in the subsequent post-conciliar years as "the Red Bishop," because of his prominence as one of the leading proponents of Latin American liberation theology which is Marxism engaging socio-economic analyses, rather than theology, that at the core says that material "inequality" is driven by race, or caste, rather than ability.

In this way, the Vatican experimented in that influential Catholic part of the world, the infamous leftist doctrine, born out of the "Pact of the Catacombs," despite the fact it was never sanctioned, or even promoted by the Vatican, until the arrival of Jorge Mario Bergoglio on the papal throne, who practiced this distorted doctrine for a large portion of his priestly life, before becoming pope. A doctrine focused on material wealth, rather than on the spiritual concerns for the soul, that seems another gift out of Adam Weishaupt's playbook. Point #10 of the "Pact of the Catacombs," truly shows us the relevance it had on the present project for a Great Reset.

We will do our utmost so that those responsible for our government and for our public services make, and put into practice, laws, structures, and social institutions required by justice and charity, equality and harmonic and holistic development of all men and women, and by this means to bring about the advent of another social order, worthy of the sons and daughters of mankind and of God.

During the controversial "Pachamama" Azon Synod, that took place in October 2019 in Rome, when COVID-19 was "coincidentally" starting to spread in China^[522], a rather large group of Synod Fathers renewed the "Pact of the Catacombs," made 54 years earlier, making a pilgrimage to the Catacombs of Domitilla to renew that important Marxist promise. The event was also reported by Vatican News.^[523] But the reason why this obscure meeting, that happened in the catacombs of Rome in 1965, became so relevant to us today, was fully revealed by Klaus Schwab during an interview given on the 25th of June 2021, for the 10th anniversary of his Global Shapers Community, when he confessed that the infamous "Red Bishop," Archbishop Hélder Câmara, and his leftist doctrine intervened in what he described as a "crucial moment" of his life. Schwab says that when traveling to Brazil for the first time, "I met a priest known as the priest of the poor people and his name was Hélder Câmara,"^[524] he also admits during the same interview that they advised him to not invite him to Davos for the annual gathering of the World Economic Forum, because in Switzerland at the time, "he was considered to be a Communist, and I said, this is for me a test. Europe was fortunately still anti-Communist back then, during the Cold War, however, for Schwab, this was simply "a test" for him, as "I had to stand up to my values even at the risk of having to give up the World Economic Forum. But it went very well, I have to say. The audience in Davos listened to him."^[525] That "test" was, of course, for Professor Schwab, his public embracing of Communism in front of the Davos elite, that had been following, until that point, the fierce opposition of both Nazism and Communism, proposed by Illuminati Kingpin Otto von Habsburg.

Archbishop Câmara, spoke at Davos in 1974, and from that time onwards, Schwab has been trying to influence world leaders and convince them it is time to adopt Marxism on a global scale, and the Global Shapers Community, is another one of Schwab's diabolical libtard creations, aimed to the young people, who are constantly brainwashed by the left, embracing more than ever the Communist ideal.

Thus, Weishaupt's Illuminati said to recruits in the early grades, that their goals were compatible with Christianity, of course, it wasn't true, just like it is not true that Professor Schwab wants to help the world, especially on the premises of a supposed Christian Marxist ideal laid out by the late Archbishop Câmara. Remember, these Satanists have promoted Communism for the last two centuries, because they fear the principles of monarchy and the ideal Kingdom, the one that will eventually manifest with the return of our Lord Jesus Christ on the throne, as they were, and still are, submerged in materialism (watch Freemason/Illuminati Nancy Pelosi, for example, just to name one). Weishaupt would even publish an essay in 1786, a revised and expanded version, of the Docetists degree, entitled On Materialism and Idealism (Ueber Materialismus und Idealis (Ueber Materialismus und Idealismus), where he tried to propose a rather weird, and sophisticated refutation of materialism. But a preview of the essay that he had given out while he was writing it in 1783, failed to convince his friend and Illuminati member, Johann Friedrich Mieg, a German pastor, Freemason, and professor of Theology at Heidelberg University, who at that point doubted Weishaupt's claim that his system amounted to a refutation of materialism.^[526] This degree is a philosophical lecture reflecting Weishaupt's brand of sensualist idealism. It was originally meant to be called, 'Magi', but the cryptic title Docetists, as it stands, refers to the adherents of an early Christian current which maintained the belief that Jesus did not have a physical form and therefore did not die on the cross. Surprisingly, this particular gnostic heresy is not even mentioned in the body of the text itself. It would seem that it was used symbolically in the heading to indicate that all perception, as mediated by the senses, is inevitably flawed and restricted. [\[527\]](#)

This was Adam Weishaupt's impetus view of the rise of the monarchy in the Rex degree:

Consequently, the first leaders of the savage peoples, through their greater share of the bounty and the lands they had acquired, had the means at hand first to usurp the freedom of the rest of the nation, and then promptly to forge their own fetters; then to break free from the self-imposed rule of their vassals, reaching their greatness of today, becoming truly sovereign, until this power, through their own fault, falls into other hands again one day, because power abused always destroys itself, and because it is nature's design that any power that one has been given is inevitably abused.

This greater share of goods and land which they had been handed by a savage nation in its naivety enabled these so-called kings to give – and consequently take – and so to strengthen their following. Now free and independent men, even the most important men among the people, proceeded to sell their freedom and services in exchange for land-parcels assigned according to the duration of their service. They in turn surrendered their share of the land to others under similar conditions. As a result, free men became rarer, and servants more common. Great men gave their services to the king, others to the great men. The previous equality and independence vanished. [\[528\]](#)

Of course, we can agree with certain things exposed above by Adam Weishaupt, especially regarding the "naivety," that at times enabled "these so-called kings," to rule over us, but his assumption that "previous equality and independence vanished," is false. As there was never a time in the history of humanity, where equality and independence flourished before the foundation of the United States. That's the truth I'm afraid. But let me show you some other comments, made by Weishaupt about monarchs and the monarchy, that we find in another of the "Mysteries Class" upper degrees of the Illuminati.

The monarchs' lust for conquest significantly contributed to completing the subjugation of the nation. No one was in command of 100,000 people. With these, it felt safe to assault one's neighbors. As long as the nation had a share in the spoils of war, it eagerly consented to this. The nation and the kings divided the conquered lands among themselves. The kings would often cede some of their share to others in order to gain a following, a standing militia against a nation that also desired to command and to keep one part of the people in check by the other.

Thence came feudalism; an invention of monarchs who had more than they needed and used their surplus to govern more absolutely, to gild the shackles of the people, changing from being benefactors of men to being their oppressors. This is the origin of a class of people who served not the nation but the king, ready to work against the nation at the slightest nod, the true tools of despotism and the means for suppressing national freedom, the liegemen and the militia established later, both serving a single purpose: the ones paid in money, the others in real property for serving as oppressors and executioners, forced to murder and rob innocent people.

Now people fell upon people, nations upon nations, and human blood flowed on all sides; the vanquished became a new class of people, called slaves, subject to the whim of the conqueror, without income or property.

These were foolish nations, who did not foresee what was to happen to them, who helped the despot to lower human dignity to that of cattle so he could one day attempt the same with them. The slavery of the vanquished became the means for the slavery of the conquerors. Their crime was avenged on their descendants. They only needed to abandon their strict morals, succumb to effeminacy, and develop a taste for sensual pleasures, for which the abundance of the gathered spoils had prepared them; thus, the victor was vanquished, and the vanquished became the victor.

These consequences arising from the establishment of the states were significant, but they were not the only ones. Men who once had dared the first step in good faith now competed in the art of finding means for their own debasement.

Initially, such men who had raised their nation from nothing to greatness could only be regarded as extraordinary men, even gods, by their blind subordinates, who only saw the present and could not believe that he who had benefited them so much might also harm them in the future. One would gladly have wished them immortality. As a very natural consequence of human short-sightedness, this reverence also had to be extended to their children and relatives. In the eyes of the people, the son of a benefactor appeared as another benefactor. It was still a kind of an election that determined the successor. Out of reverence for the initial benefactor one did not look outside his family. By and by, however, rule by-election became rule by inheritance, and, later still, as the princes began to take the place of the state and the nation, regarding the people as their inheritance and property, once the tumult of war had subsided and the nation was better prepared for servitude by the refinement of customs and the love of convenience when the first fathers, children, and grandchildren of the nascent people were no longer alive and the degenerate, weakly great-grandchildren had forgotten their rights, then, at last, the patrimonial kingdoms were born, and despotism fell upon a carefree humanity.

That was part of the instructions for the Lesser Priest Degree, Presbyter, of the Illuminati, that is also critical towards the monarchy, but even Weishaupt admits in the instructions in question, citing various passages of “the book called the Apocalypse, or Revelation of Saint John,” that “everything shall be reversed,” leading to a period “called the new heaven, the new earth,” where we will have “a solid kingdom that cannot be moved. No more temples will be built, since God Almighty himself will dwell among men, and there will be only one truth on the face of the earth. No one must fear suffering for this truth.”^[529] It seemed like the diabolical plan of Adam Weishaupt’s Illuminati was devised to destroy all the monarchies that opposed his authority, or at least control them for the time being, to later facilitate one day, thanks to the future Illuminati, the rise of the Antichrist, linking him to the return of the son of God, that Weishaupt portrays as the ultimate master of the Age of Reason, without ever mentioning even once, his role as Our Lord and Saviour, or Christ’s grace, that erases our original sin and turns a man back towards God.

This our grand and unforgettable master, Jesus of Nazareth, came to us in a historical period during which the world had fallen into a state of general corruption, to a people that had felt the oppression of servitude most emphatically since time immemorial and hoped for its redemption heralded by the prophets, in a country that lay at the center of the then-known world. These people He instructed in the doctrines of reason, and in order to increase their efficacy, He shrewdly joined this simple religion of reason with the then prevailing popular religion, using all ruling traditions and customs and concealing the inner, essential parts of his teachings therein.^[530]

With this heretical aim in mind from the very start, Weishaupt wrote an explanation of the Masonic symbols for his Freemasonic set of degrees (Freemasonic Class), that he elaborated with the help of the Jesuit abbatte Giuseppe Marotti, (who was later to become the secretary of Pope Pius VI),^[531] that culminates in the diabolical revelation of the secret that Hiram (yes the Masonic Hiram Abiff), is Jesus, that Freemasonry is a vessel for communicating his secret teachings, and that taking heed of his great yet unaccomplished revolution is the true task of every Mason.^[532] This way all the Masons who become “Illuminati Freemasons,” without knowing the true Anti-Christian purpose of the Order, which can be understood only by studying the instructions of the high degrees, have a new internal doctrine that fully reconciled Freemasonry with Christianity. While the future Priest of the Order was told, “that the teachings of Jesus Christ have been misunderstood and distorted, and that their true purpose was to return humanity to its original dignity and freedom by tempering men’s passions and curbing their needs.”^[533] This way the Machiavellian Jesuitic scheme set up by Professor Adam Weishaupt, laid the future foundations for the Antichrist, the ultimate enemy of Christ.

In the meantime, Weishaupt was able to change the course of history promoting Communism, sometimes referred to as revolutionary Socialism, and eliminating most of the world monarchies in the process, or at least submitting them to the will and decisions, of the Illuminati, preparing the path for future members, like Professor Klaus Schwab, who these days influences in the same way royals like Prince Charles. Interestingly, Weishaupt and Schwab, aside from both being German, were both University professors before launching their projects for world domination.

And now, let me go back to a summary of the important role of the monarchy in our society. Britannica describes monarchy in the following way: “The monarchy, political system based upon the undivided sovereignty or rule of a single person. The term applies to states in which supreme authority is vested in the monarch, an individual ruler who functions as the head of state and who achieves his or her position through heredity.”^[534] In this context, there are two kinds of monarchy, one is called an absolute monarchy, which is a form of monarchy in which the monarch is the only one to decide and therefore rules on his own, the other is a constitutional monarchy, in which the monarch exercises their authority following a constitution and is not alone in deciding. Thanks to the Illuminati, and after the Jesuits abandoned their goal for a “Universal Monarchy” under the Roman pontiff, the widespread concept of an absolute monarchy declined substantially in Europe, following the French Revolution and World War I, which promoted theories of governments based on the notion of popular sovereignty, which was a notion, originally instigated by Weishaupt. Even the Vatican, which is one of the most unique countries, in that it is an elective ecclesiastical monarchy, after the Second Vatican Council, abandoned the Papal Coronation ceremony in which the new pope was crowned after his election with a Papal Tiara, which in later centuries was triple-tiered. The most recent was the 1963 coronation of Freemason Paul VI, who soon afterward abandoned the practice of wearing the tiara to please the Illuminati.

The first states were mostly monarchies, as far as we can tell. They were ruled by kings or queens. The earliest monarchies that we know about are the ones in Sumer and Egypt. These both began around 3000 BC. But it was not only the early states which had kings and queens. After all, there are still many countries that have kings and queens, even today, and only two years ago, in January 2020, a court in Thailand acquitted of a sedition charge, one of the country's largest opposition parties, called Future Forward, after it was accused of having links to the Illuminati seeking to overthrow the monarchy.^[535]

However, other examples of places that were ruled by kings are Greece in the Late Bronze Age, as described in Homers’ Iliad, the Etruscan cities in northern Italy, including Rome between about 700 and 500 BC, China in the Warring States period, the Early Medieval kingdoms of Western Europe and Africa like the Visigoths, the Vandals, the Franks, Ethiopia and Mali, and the later medieval kingdoms (both Christian and Islamic) of France, England, and Spain.^[536] People often think that in ancient and medieval times only men could rule, but that’s not correct. There have indeed been many more men in power than women, but there have always been women rulers too, and very powerful ones, like Elizabeth I for example, who, with her vast spy network I talked about in Volume 1 of my Confessions, created the first “Surveillance State.”^[537] Some women who ruled over Egypt, like Hatshepsut and Cleopatra, and women who ruled the Byzantine Empire, like Irene. Some women who ruled France, like Catherine de Medici, who was said to have performed the first Black Mass, and before her, Eleanor of Aquitaine, Queen of France from 1137 to 1152, as the wife of King Louis VII, and Queen of England from 1154 to 1189, as the wife of King Henry II, and women who ruled Castile in Spain, like Isabelle, and women who ruled the kingdom of Kush in Africa, and even a Chinese Empresses, called Lu, the first woman to assume the title Empress of China, as well as Empresses Wu Chao, the de facto ruler of the Tang dynasty. Many other women held power without having the official title, often as regents for their sons or grandsons, like Agrippina and Julia Maesa in Rome, or Blanche of Castile in France. Throughout history, royal dynasties have dominated countries and empires around the world. Kings, queens, emperors, chiefs, pharaohs, czars -- whatever title they ruled by monarchs have shaped institutions, rituals, and cultures in every period of history and every corner of the globe.

The concept of monarchy originated in prehistoric times and evolved over centuries, right up to the present, so there was never “a carefree humanity,” or “a previous equality and independence” as Weishaupt claimed. Efforts to overthrow monarchies or evade their rule -- such as the American, French, Chinese, and Russian revolutions -- are considered turning points in world history, but only the United States has been, up until now, a successful experiment. Even today, many countries retain their monarchies, although in vastly reduced form with little or no political power due to the Illuminati.

Remember, one cannot fully understand human history and government without understanding monarchs and monarchies, and their importance in the development of our present society. World history proves that the civilization of any country, including America, was built by the monarchy; It is difficult to imagine civilization growing in India without the influence of Mughal Emperors Ashok and Akbar. Whether the Great Wall of China or the Pyramids of Egypt, monarchy builds great things, but it also was corrupted to brainwash people into thinking of it as a useless relic of the past. But remember, there is no civilization living today which did not originate in the work and effort of a monarchy. And in the end, remember “normal” is not coming back, Jesus is, and he will be a monarch, not a president.

God Bless America and our future King Jesus Christ,
Amen

Adjective

'Having rejected tradition: Unconventional.'

Merriam-Webster Dictionary

Acquiescence to tyranny is the death of the spirit

You may be 38 years old, as I happen to be. And one day, some great opportunity stands before you and calls you to stand up for some great principle, some great issue, some great cause. And you refuse to do it because you are afraid ... You refuse to do it because you want to live longer ... You're afraid that you will lose your job, or you are afraid that you will be criticised or that you will lose your popularity, or you're afraid that somebody will stab you, or shoot at you or bomb your house; so you refuse to take the stand.

Well, you may go on and live until you are 90, but you're just as dead at 38 as you would be at 90. And the cessation of breathing in your life is but the belated announcement of an earlier death of the spirit.

How the few control the many and always have – the many do whatever they're told

'Forward, the Light Brigade!'
Was there a man dismayed?
Not though the soldier knew
Someone had blundered.
Theirs not to make reply,
Theirs not to reason why,
Theirs but to do and die.
Into the valley of Death
Rode the six hundred.

Cannon to right of them,
Cannon to left of them,
Cannon in front of them
Volleyed and thundered;
Stormed at with shot and shell,
Boldly they rode and well,
Into the jaws of Death,
Into the mouth of hell
Rode the six hundred

Alfred Lord Tennyson (1809-1892)

The mist is lifting slowly
I can see the way ahead
And I've left behind the empty streets
That once inspired my life
And the strength of the emotion
Is like thunder in the air
'Cos the promise that we made each other Haunts me to the end

The secret of your beauty
And the mystery of your soul
I've been searching for in everyone I meet
And the times I've been mistaken
It's impossible to say
And the grass is growing Underneath our feet

The words that I remember
From my childhood still are true
That there's none so blind
As those who will not see
And to those who lack the courage
And say it's dangerous to try
Well they just don't know
That love eternal will not be denied

I know you're out there somewhere
Somewhere, somewhere
I know you're out there somewhere

Somewhere you can hear my voice
I know I'll find you somehow
Somehow, somehow
I know I'll find you somehow
And somehow I'll return again to you

CHAPTER ONE

I'm thinking' – Oh, but are you?

Think for yourself and let others enjoy the privilege of doing so too
Voltaire

French-born philosopher, mathematician and scientist René Descartes became famous for his statement in Latin in the 17th century which translates into English as: 'I think, therefore I am.'

On the face of it that is true. Thought reflects perception and perception leads to both behaviour and self-identity. In that sense 'we' are what we think. But who or what is doing the thinking and is thinking the only route to perception? Clearly, as we shall see, 'we' are not always the source of 'our' perception, indeed with regard to humanity as a whole this is rarely the case; and thinking is far from the only means of perception. Thought is the village idiot compared with other expressions of consciousness that we all have the potential to access and tap into. This has to be true when we are those other expressions of consciousness which are infinite in nature. We have forgotten this, or, more to the point, been manipulated to forget.

These are not just the esoteric musings of the navel. The whole foundation of human control and oppression is control of perception. Once perception is hijacked then so is behaviour which is dictated by perception. Collective perception becomes collective behaviour and collective behaviour is what we call human society. Perception is all and those behind human control know that which is why perception is the target 24/7 of the psychopathic manipulators that I call the Global Cult. They know that if they dictate perception they will dictate behaviour and collectively dictate the nature of human society. They are further aware that perception is formed from information received and if they control the circulation of information they will to a vast extent direct human behaviour. Censorship of information and opinion has become globally Nazi-like in recent years and never more blatantly than since the illusory 'virus pandemic' was triggered out of China in 2019 and across the world in 2020. Why have billions submitted to house arrest and accepted fascistic societies in a way they would have never believed possible? Those controlling the information spewing from government, mainstream media and Silicon Valley (all controlled by the same Global Cult networks) told them they were in danger from a 'deadly virus' and only by submitting to house arrest and conceding their most basic of freedoms could they and their families be protected. This monumental and provable lie became the perception of the billions and therefore the behaviour of the billions. In those few words you have the whole structure and modus operandi of human control. Fear is a perception – False Emotion Appearing Real – and fear is the currency of control. In short ... get them by the balls (or give them the impression that you have) and their hearts and minds will follow. Nothing grips the dangly bits and freezes the rear-end more comprehensively than fear.

World number 1

There are two 'worlds' in what appears to be one 'world' and the prime difference between them is knowledge. First we have the mass of human society in which the population is maintained in coldly-calculated ignorance through control of information and the 'education' (indoctrination) system. That's all you really need to control to enslave billions in a perceptual delusion in which what are perceived to be their thoughts and opinions are ever-repeated mantras that the system has been downloading all their lives through 'education', media, science, medicine, politics and academia in which the personnel and advocates are themselves overwhelmingly the perceptual products of the same repetition. Teachers and academics in general are processed by the same programming machine as everyone else, but unlike the great majority they never leave the 'education' program. It gripped them as students and continues to grip them as programmers of subsequent generations of students. The programmed become the programmers – the programmed programmers. The same can largely be said for scientists, doctors and politicians and not least because as the American writer Upton Sinclair said: 'It is difficult to get a man to understand something when his salary depends upon his not understanding it.' If your career and income depend on thinking the way the system demands then you will – bar a few free-minded exceptions – concede your mind to the Perceptual Mainframe that I call the Postage Stamp Consensus. This is a tiny band of perceived knowledge and possibility 'taught' (downloaded) in the schools and universities, pounded out by the mainstream media and on which all government policy is founded. Try thinking, and especially speaking and acting, outside of the 'box' of consensus and see what that does for your career in the Mainstream Everything which bullies, harasses, intimidates and ridicules the population into compliance. Here we have the simple structure which enslaves most of humanity in a perceptual prison cell for an entire lifetime and I'll go deeper into this process shortly. Most of what humanity is taught as fact is nothing more than programmed belief. American science fiction author Frank Herbert was right when he said: 'Belief can be manipulated. Only knowledge is dangerous.' In the 'Covid' age belief is promoted and knowledge is censored. It was always so, but never to the extreme of today.

A 'number 2' is slang for 'doing a poo' and how appropriate that is when this other 'world' is doing just that on humanity every minute of every day. World number 2 is a global network of secret societies and semi-secret groups dictating the direction of society via governments, corporations and authorities of every kind. I have spent more than 30 years uncovering and exposing this network that I call the Global Cult and knowing its agenda is what has made my books so accurate in predicting current and past events. Secret societies are secret for a reason. They want to keep their hoarded knowledge to themselves and their chosen initiates and to hide it from the population which they seek through ignorance to control and subdue. The whole foundation of the division between World 1 and World 2 is knowledge. What number 1 knows number 2 must not. Knowledge they have worked so hard to keep secret includes (a) the agenda to enslave humanity in a centrally-controlled global dictatorship, and (b) the nature of reality and life itself. The latter (b) must be suppressed to allow the former (a) to prevail as I shall be explaining. The way the Cult manipulates and interacts with the population can be likened to a spider's web. The 'spider' sits at the centre in the shadows and imposes its will through the web with each strand represented in World number 2 by a secret society, satanic or semi-secret group, and in World number 1 – the world of the seen – by governments, agencies of government, law enforcement, corporations, the banking system, media conglomerates and Silicon Valley (Fig 1 overleaf). The spider and the web connect and coordinate all these organisations to pursue the same global outcome while the population sees them as individual entities working randomly and independently. At the level of the web governments are the banking system are the corporations are the media are Silicon Valley are the World Health Organization working from their inner cores as one unit. Apparently unconnected countries, corporations, institutions, organisations and people are on the same team pursuing the same global outcome. Strands in the web immediately around the spider are the most secretive and exclusive secret societies and their membership is emphatically restricted to the Cult inner-circle emerging through the generations from particular bloodlines for reasons I will come to. At the core of the core you would get them in a single room. That's how many people are dictating the direction of human society and its transformation through the 'Covid' hoax and other means. As the web expands out from the spider we meet the secret societies that many people will be aware of – the Freemasons, Knights Templar, Knights of Malta, Opus Dei, the inner sanctum of the Jesuit Order, and such like. Note how many are connected to the Church of Rome and there is a reason for that. The Roman Church was established as a revamp, a rebranding, of the relocated 'Church' of Babylon and the Cult imposing global tyranny today can be tracked back to Babylon and Sumer in what is now Iraq.

Inner levels of the web operate in the unseen away from the public eye and then we have what I call the cusp organisations located at the point where the hidden meets the seen. They include a series of satellite organisations answering to a secret society founded in London in the late 19th century called the Round Table and among them are the Royal Institute of International Affairs (UK, founded in 1920); Council on Foreign Relations (US, 1921); Bilderberg Group (worldwide, 1954); Trilateral Commission (US/worldwide, 1972); and the Club of Rome (worldwide, 1968) which was created to exploit environmental concerns to justify the centralisation of global power to 'save the planet'. The Club of Rome instigated with others the human-caused climate change hoax which has led to all the 'green new deals' demanding that very centralisation of control. Cusp organisations, which include endless 'think tanks' all over the world, are designed to coordinate a single global policy between political and business leaders, intelligence personnel, media organisations and anyone who can influence the direction of policy in their own sphere of operation. Major players and regular attenders will know what is happening – or some of it – while others come and go and are kept overwhelmingly in the dark about the big picture. I refer to these cusp groupings as semi-secret in that they can be publicly identified, but what goes on at the inner-core is kept very much 'in house' even from most of their members and participants through a fiercely-imposed system of compartmentalisation. Only let them know what they need to know to serve your interests and no more. The structure of secret societies serves as a perfect example of this principle. Most Freemasons never get higher than the bottom three levels of 'degree' (degree of knowledge) when there are 33 official degrees of the Scottish Rite. Initiates only qualify for the next higher 'compartment' or degree if those at that level choose to allow them. Knowledge can be carefully assigned only to those considered 'safe'. I went to my local Freemason's lodge a few years ago when they were having an 'open day' to show how cuddly they were and when I chatted to some of them I was astonished at how little the rank and file knew even about the most ubiquitous symbols they use. The mushroom technique – keep them in the dark and feed them bullshit – applies to most people in the web as well as the population as a whole. Sub-divisions of the web mirror in theme and structure transnational corporations which have a headquarters somewhere in the world dictating to all their subsidiaries in different countries. Subsidiaries operate in their methodology and branding to the same centrally-dictated plan and policy in pursuit of particular ends. The Cult web functions in the same way. Each country has its own web as a subsidiary of the global one. They consist of networks of secret societies, semi-secret groups and bloodline families and their job is to impose the will of the spider and the global web in their particular country. Subsidiary networks control and manipulate the national political system, finance, corporations, media, medicine, etc. to ensure that they follow the globally-dictated Cult agenda. These networks were the means through which the 'Covid' hoax could be played out with almost every country responding in the same way.

The 'Yessir' pyramid

Compartmentalisation is the key to understanding how a tiny few can dictate the lives of billions when combined with a top-down sequence of imposition and acquiescence. The inner core of the Cult sits at the peak of the pyramidal hierarchy of human society (Fig 2 overleaf). It imposes its will – its agenda for the world – on the level immediately below which acquiesces to that imposition. This level then imposes the Cult will on the level below them which acquiesces and imposes on the next level. Very quickly we meet levels in the hierarchy that have no idea there even is a Cult, but the sequence of imposition and acquiescence continues down the pyramid in just the same way. 'I don't know why we are doing this but the order came from "on-high" and so we better just do it.' Alfred Lord Tennyson said of the cannon fodder levels in his poem The Charge of the Light Brigade: 'Theirs not to reason why; theirs but to do and die.' The next line says that 'into the valley of death rode the six hundred' and they died because they obeyed without question what their perceived 'superiors' told them to do. In the same way the population capitulated to 'Covid'. The whole hierarchical pyramid functions like this to allow the very few to direct the enormous many.

Eventually imposition-acquiescence-imposition-acquiescence comes down to the mass of the population at the foot of the pyramid. If they acquiesce to those levels of the hierarchy imposing on them (governments/law enforcement/doctors/media) a circuit is completed between the population and the handful of super-psychopaths in the Cult inner core at the top of the pyramid. Without a circuit-breaking refusal to obey, the sequence of imposition and acquiescence allows a staggeringly few people to impose their will upon the entirety of humankind. We are looking at the very sequence that has subjugated billions since the start of 2020. Our freedom has not been taken from us. Humanity has given it away. Fascists do not impose fascism because there are not enough of them. Fascism is imposed by the population acquiescing to fascism. Put another way allowing their perceptions to be programmed to the extent that leads to the population giving their freedom away by giving their perceptions – their mind – away. If this circuit is not broken by humanity ceasing to cooperate with their own enslavement then nothing can change. For that to happen people have to critically think and see through the lies and window dressing and then summon the backbone to act upon what they see. The Cult spends its days working to stop either happening and its methodology is systematic and highly detailed, but it can be overcome and that is what this book is all about.

Figure 2: The simple sequence of imposition and compliance that allows a handful of people at the peak of the pyramid to dictate the lives of billions.

The Life Program

Okay, back to world number 1 or the world of the ‘masses’. Observe the process of what we call ‘life’ and it is a perceptual download from cradle to grave. The Cult has created a global structure in which perception can be programmed and the program continually topped-up with what appears to be constant confirmation that the program is indeed true reality. The important word here is ‘appears’.

This is the structure, the fly-trap, the Postage Stamp Consensus or Perceptual Mainframe, which represents that incredibly narrow band of perceived possibility delivered by the 'education' system, mainstream media, science and medicine. From the earliest age the download begins with parents who have themselves succumbed to the very programming their children are about to go through. Most parents don't do this out of malevolence and mostly it is quite the opposite. They do what they believe is best for their children and that is what the program has told them is best. Within three or four years comes the major transition from parental programming to full-blown state (Cult) programming in school, college and university where perceptually-programmed teachers and academics pass on their programming to the next generations. Teachers who resist are soon marginalised and their careers ended while children who resist are called a problem child for whom Ritalin may need to be prescribed. A few years after entering the 'world' children are under the control of authority figures representing the state telling them when they have to be there, when they can leave and when they can speak, eat, even go to the toilet. This is calculated preparation for a lifetime of obeying authority in all its forms. Reflex-action fear of authority is instilled by authority from the start. Children soon learn the carrot and stick consequences of obeying or defying authority which is underpinned daily for the rest of their life. Fortunately I daydreamed through this crap and never obeyed authority simply because it told me to. This approach to my alleged 'betters' continues to this day. There can be consequences of pursuing open-minded freedom in a world of closed-minded conformity. I spent a lot of time in school corridors after being ejected from the classroom for not taking some of it seriously and now I spend a lot of time being ejected from Facebook, YouTube and Twitter. But I can tell you that being true to yourself and not compromising your self-respect is far more exhilarating than bowing to authority for authority's sake. You don't have to be a sheep to the shepherd (authority) and the sheep dog (fear of not obeying authority).

The perceptual download continues throughout the formative years in school, college and university while script-reading 'teachers', 'academics' 'scientists', 'doctors' and 'journalists' insist that ongoing generations must be as programmed as they are. Accept the program or you will not pass your 'exams' which confirm your 'degree' of programming. It is tragic to think that many parents pressure their offspring to work hard at school to download the program and qualify for the next stage at college and university. The late, great, American comedian George Carlin said: 'Here's a bumper sticker I'd like to see: We are proud parents of a child who has resisted his teachers' attempts to break his spirit and bend him to the will of his corporate masters.' Well, the best of luck finding many of those, George. Then comes the moment to leave the formal programming years in academia and enter the 'adult' world of work. There you meet others in your chosen or prescribed arena who went through the same Postage Stamp Consensus program before you did. There is therefore overwhelming agreement between almost everyone on the basic foundations of Postage Stamp reality and the rejection, even contempt, of the few who have a mind of their own and are prepared to use it. This has two major effects. Firstly, the consensus confirms to the programmed that their download is really how things are. I mean, everyone knows that, right? Secondly, the arrogance and ignorance of Postage Stamp adherents ensure that anyone questioning the program will have unpleasant consequences for seeking their own truth and not picking their perceptions from the shelf marked: 'Things you must believe without question and if you don't you're a dangerous lunatic conspiracy theorist and a harebrained nutter'.

Every government, agency and corporation is founded on the same Postage Stamp prison cell and you can see why so many people believe the same thing while calling it their own 'opinion'. Fusion of governments and corporations in pursuit of the same agenda was the definition of fascism described by Italian dictator Benito Mussolini. The pressure to conform to perceptual norms downloaded for a lifetime is incessant and infiltrates society right down to family groups that become censors and condemners of their own 'black sheep' for not, ironically, being sheep. We have seen an explosion of that in the 'Covid' era. Cult-owned global media unleashes its propaganda all day every day in support of the Postage Stamp and targets with abuse and ridicule anyone in the public eye who won't bend their mind to the will of the tyranny. Any response to this is denied (certainly in my case). They don't want to give a platform to expose official lies. Cult-owned-and-created Internet giants like Facebook, Google, YouTube and Twitter delete you for having an unapproved opinion. Facebook boasts that its AI censors delete 97-percent of 'hate speech' before anyone even reports it. Much of that 'hate speech' will simply be an opinion that Facebook and its masters don't want people to see. Such perceptual oppression is widely known as fascism. Even Facebook executive Benny Thomas, a 'CEO Global Planning Lead', said in comments secretly recorded by investigative journalism operation Project Veritas that Facebook is 'too powerful' and should be broken up:

I mean, no king in history has been the ruler of two billion people, but Mark Zuckerberg is ... And he's 36. That's too much for a 36-year-old ... You should not have power over two billion people. I just think that's wrong.

Thomas said Facebook-owned platforms like Instagram, Oculus, and WhatsApp needed to be separate companies. 'It's too much power when they're all one together'. That's the way the Cult likes it, however. We have an executive of a Cult organisation in Benny Thomas that doesn't know there is a Cult such is the compartmentalisation. Thomas said that Facebook and Google 'are no longer companies, they're countries'. Actually they are more powerful than countries on the basis that if you control information you control perception and control human society.

I love my oppressor

Another expression of this psychological trickery is for those who realise they are being pressured into compliance to eventually convince themselves to believe the official narratives to protect their self-respect from accepting the truth that they have succumbed to meek and subservient compliance. Such people become some of the most vehement defenders of the system. You can see them everywhere screaming abuse at those who prefer to think for themselves and by doing so reminding the compliers of their own capitulation to conformity. 'You are talking dangerous nonsense you Covidiot!!' Are you trying to convince me or yourself? It is a potent form of Stockholm syndrome which is defined as: 'A psychological condition that occurs when a victim of abuse identifies and attaches, or bonds, positively with their abuser.' An example is hostages bonding and even 'falling in love' with their kidnappers. The syndrome has been observed in domestic violence, abused children, concentration camp inmates, prisoners of war and many and various Satanic cults. These are some traits of Stockholm syndrome listed at goodtherapy.org:

- Positive regard towards perpetrators of abuse or captor [see 'Covid'].
- Failure to cooperate with police and other government authorities when it comes to holding perpetrators of abuse or kidnapping accountable [or in the case of 'Covid' cooperating with the police to enforce and defend their captors' demands].
- Little or no effort to escape [see 'Covid'].
- Belief in the goodness of the perpetrators or kidnappers [see 'Covid'].
- Appeasement of captors. This is a manipulative strategy for maintaining one's safety. As victims get rewarded – perhaps with less abuse or even with life itself – their appeasing behaviours are reinforced [see 'Covid'].
- Learned helplessness. This can be akin to 'if you can't beat 'em, join 'em'. As the victims fail to escape the abuse or captivity, they may start giving up and soon realize it's just easier for everyone if they acquiesce all their power to their captors [see 'Covid'].

- Feelings of pity toward the abusers, believing they are actually victims themselves. Because of this, victims may go on a crusade or mission to 'save' [protect] their abuser [see the venom unleashed on those challenging the official 'Covid' narrative].
- Unwillingness to learn to detach from their perpetrators and heal. In essence, victims may tend to be less loyal to themselves than to their abuser [definitely see 'Covid'].

Ponder on those traits and compare them with the behaviour of great swathes of the global population who have defended governments and authorities which have spent every minute destroying their lives and livelihoods and those of their children and grandchildren since early 2020 with fascistic lockdowns, house arrest and employment deletion to 'protect' them from a 'deadly virus' that their abusers' perceptually created to bring about this very outcome. We are looking at mass Stockholm syndrome. All those that agree to concede their freedom will believe those perceptions are originating in their own independent 'mind' when in fact by conceding their reality to Stockholm syndrome they have by definition conceded any independence of mind. Listen to the 'opinions' of the acquiescing masses in this 'Covid' era and what gushes forth is the repetition of the official version of everything delivered unprocessed, unfiltered and unquestioned. The whole programming dynamic works this way. I must be free because I'm told that I am and so I think that I am.

You can see what I mean with the chapter theme of 'I'm thinking – Oh, but are you?' The great majority are not thinking, let alone for themselves. They are repeating what authority has told them to believe which allows them to be controlled. Weaving through this mentality is the fear that the 'conspiracy theorists' are right and this again explains the often hysterical abuse that ensues when you dare to contest the official narrative of anything. Denial is the mechanism of hiding from yourself what you don't want to be true. Telling people what they want to hear is easy, but it's an infinitely greater challenge to tell them what they would rather not be happening.

One is akin to pushing against an open door while the other is met with vehement resistance no matter what the scale of evidence. I don't want it to be true so I'll convince myself that it's not. Examples are everywhere from the denial that a partner is cheating despite all the signs to the reflex-action rejection of any idea that world events in which country after country act in exactly the same way are centrally coordinated. To accept the latter is to accept that a force of unspeakable evil is working to destroy your life and the lives of your children with nothing too horrific to achieve that end. Who the heck wants that to be true? But if we don't face reality the end is duly achieved and the consequences are far worse and ongoing than breaking through the walls of denial today with the courage to make a stand against tyranny.

Connect the dots – but how?

A crucial aspect of perceptual programming is to portray a world in which everything is random and almost nothing is connected to anything else. Randomness cannot be coordinated by its very nature and once you perceive events as random the idea they could be connected is waved away as the rantings of the tinfoil-hat brigade. You can't plan and coordinate random you idiot! No, you can't, but you can hide the coldly-calculated and long-planned behind the illusion of randomness. A foundation manifestation of the Renegade Mind is to scan reality for patterns that connect the apparently random and turn pixels and dots into pictures. This is the way I work and have done so for more than 30 years. You look for similarities in people, modus operandi and desired outcomes and slowly, then ever quicker, the picture forms. For instance: There would seem to be no connection between the 'Covid pandemic' hoax and the human-caused global-warming hoax and yet they are masks (appropriately) on the same face seeking the same outcome. Those pushing the global warming myth through the Club of Rome and other Cult agencies are driving the lies about 'Covid' – Bill Gates is an obvious one, but they are endless. Why would the same people be involved in both when they are clearly not connected? Oh, but they are. Common themes with personnel are matched by common goals. The 'solutions' to both 'problems' are centralisation of global power to impose the will of the few on the many to 'save' humanity from 'Covid' and save the planet from an 'existential threat' (we need 'zero Covid' and 'zero carbon emissions'). These, in turn, connect with the 'dot' of globalisation which was coined to describe the centralisation of global power in every area of life through incessant political and corporate expansion, trading blocks and superstates like the European Union. If you are the few and you want to control the many you have to centralise power and decision-making. The more you centralise power the more power the few at the centre will have over the many; and the more that power is centralised the more power those at the centre have to centralise even quicker. The momentum of centralisation gets faster and faster which is exactly the process we have witnessed. In this way the hoaxed 'pandemic' and the fakery of human-caused global warming serve the interests of globalisation and the seizure of global power in the hands of the Cult inner-circle which is behind 'Covid', 'climate change' and globalisation. At this point random 'dots' become a clear and obvious picture or pattern.

Klaus Schwab, the classic Bond villain who founded the Cult's Gates-funded World Economic Forum, published a book in 2020, The Great Reset, in which he used the 'problem' of 'Covid' to justify a total transformation of human society to 'save' humanity from 'climate change'. Schwab said: 'The pandemic represents a rare but narrow window of opportunity to reflect, reimagine, and reset our world.' What he didn't mention is that the Cult he serves is behind both hoaxes as I show in my book The Answer. He and the Cult don't have to reimagine the world. They know precisely what they want and that's why they destroyed human society with 'Covid' to 'build back better' in their grand design. Their job is not to imagine, but to get humanity to imagine and agree with their plans while believing it's all random. It must be pure coincidence that 'The Great Reset' has long been the Cult's code name for the global imposition of fascism and replaced previous code-names of the 'New World Order' used by Cult frontmen like Father George Bush and the 'New Order of the Ages' which emerged from Freemasonry and much older secret societies. New Order of the Ages appears on the reverse of the Great Seal of the United States as 'Novus ordo seclorum' underneath the Cult symbol used since way back of the pyramid and all seeing-eye (Fig 3). The pyramid is the hierarchy of human control headed by the illuminated eye that symbolises the force behind the Cult which I will expose in later chapters. The term 'Annuet Coeptis' translates as 'He favours our undertaking'. We are told the 'He' is the Christian god, but 'He' is not as I will be explaining.

Figure 3: The all-seeing eye of the Cult 'god' on the Freemason-designed Great Seal of the United States and also on the dollar bill.

Having you on

Two major Cult techniques of perceptual manipulation that relate to all this are what I have called since the 1990s Problem-Reaction-Solution (PRS) and the Totalitarian Tiptoe (TT). They can be uncovered by the inquiring mind with a simple question: Who benefits? The answer usually identifies the perpetrators of a given action or happening through the concept of 'he who most benefits from a crime is the one most likely to have committed it'. The Latin 'Cue bono?' – Who benefits? – is widely attributed to the Roman orator and statesman Marcus Tullius Cicero. No wonder it goes back so far when the concept has been relevant to human behaviour since history was recorded. Problem-Reaction-Solution is the technique used to manipulate us every day by covertly creating a problem (or the illusion of one) and offering the solution to the problem (or the illusion of one). In the first phase you create the problem and blame someone or something else for why it has happened. This may relate to a financial collapse, terrorist attack, war, global warming or pandemic, anything in fact that will allow you to impose the 'solution' to change society in the way you desire at that time. The 'problem' doesn't have to be real. PRS is manipulation of perception and all you need is the population to believe the problem is real. Human-caused global warming and the 'Covid pandemic' only have to be perceived to be real for the population to accept the 'solutions' of authority. I refer to this technique as NO-Problem-Reaction-Solution. Billions did not meekly accept house arrest from early 2020 because there was a real deadly 'Covid pandemic' but because they perceived – believed – that to be the case. The antidote to Problem-Reaction-Solution is to ask who benefits from the proposed solution. Invariably it will be anyone who wants to justify more control through deletion of freedom and centralisation of power and decision-making.

The two world wars were Problem-Reaction-Solutions that transformed and realigned global society. Both were manipulated into being by the Cult as I have detailed in books since the mid-1990s. They dramatically centralised global power, especially World War Two, which led to the United Nations and other global bodies thanks to the overt and covert manipulations of the Rockefeller family and other Cult bloodlines like the Rothschilds. The UN is a stalking horse for full-blown world government that I will come to shortly. The land on which the UN building stands in New York was donated by the Rockefellers and the same Cult family was behind Big Pharma scalpel and drug 'medicine' and the creation of the World Health Organization as part of the UN. They have been stalwarts of the eugenics movement and funded Hitler's race-purity expert' Ernst Rudin. The human-caused global warming hoax has been orchestrated by the Club of Rome through the UN which is manufacturing both the 'problem' through its Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change and imposing the 'solution' through its Agenda 21 and Agenda 2030 which demand the total centralisation of global power to 'save the world' from a climate hoax the United Nations is itself perpetrating. What a small world the Cult can be seen to be particularly among the inner circles. The bedfellow of Problem-Reaction-Solution is the Totalitarian Tiptoe which became the Totalitarian Sprint in 2020. The technique is fashioned to hide the carefully-coordinated behind the cover of apparently random events. You start the sequence at 'A' and you know you are heading for 'Z'. You don't want people to know that and each step on the journey is presented as a random happening while all the steps strung together lead in the same direction. The speed may have quickened dramatically in recent times, but you can still see the incremental approach of the Tiptoe in the case of 'Covid' as each new imposition takes us deeper into fascism. Tell people they have to do this or that to get back to 'normal', then this and this and this. With each new demand adding to the ones that went before the population's freedom is deleted until it disappears. The spider wraps its web around the flies more comprehensively with each new diktat. I'll highlight this in more detail when I get to the 'Covid' hoax and how it has been pulled off. Another prime example of the Totalitarian Tiptoe is how the Cult-created European Union went from a 'free-trade zone' to a centralised bureaucratic dictatorship through the Tiptoe of incremental centralisation of power until nations became mere administrative units for Cult-owned dark suits in Brussels.

The antidote to ignorance is knowledge which the Cult seeks vehemently to deny us, but despite the systematic censorship to that end the Renegade Mind can overcome this by vociferously seeking out the facts no matter the impediments put in the way. There is also a method of thinking and perceiving – knowing – that doesn't even need names, dates, place-type facts to identify the patterns that reveal the story. I'll get to that in the final chapter. All you need to know about the manipulation of human society and to what end is still out there – at the time of writing – in the form of books, videos and websites for those that really want to breach the walls of programmed perception. To access this knowledge requires the abandonment of the mainstream media as a source of information in the awareness that this is owned and controlled by the Cult and therefore promotes mass perceptions that suit the Cult. Mainstream media lies all day, every day. That is its function and very reason for being. Where it does tell the truth, here and there, is only because the truth and the Cult agenda very occasionally coincide. If you look for fact and insight to the BBC, CNN and virtually all the rest of them you are asking to be conned and perceptually programmed.

Know the outcome and you'll see the journey

Events seem random when you have no idea where the world is being taken. Once you do the random becomes the carefully planned. Know the outcome and you'll see the journey is a phrase I have been using for a long time to give context to daily happenings that appear unconnected. Does a problem, or illusion of a problem, trigger a proposed 'solution' that further drives society in the direction of the outcome? Invariably the answer will be yes and the random – abracadabra – becomes the clearly coordinated. So what is this outcome that unlocks the door to a massively expanded understanding of daily events? I will summarise its major aspects – the fine detail is in my other books – and those new to this information will see that the world they thought they were living in is a very different place. The foundation of the Cult agenda is the incessant centralisation of power and all such centralisation is ultimately in pursuit of Cult control on a global level. I have described for a long time the planned world structure of top-down dictatorship as the Hunger Games Society. The term obviously comes from the movie series which portrayed a world in which a few living in military-protected hi-tech luxury were the overlords of a population condemned to abject poverty in isolated 'sectors' that were not allowed to interact. 'Covid' lockdowns and travel bans anyone? The 'Hunger Games' pyramid of structural control has the inner circle of the Cult at the top with pretty much the entire population at the bottom under their control through dependency for survival on the Cult. The whole structure is planned to be protected and enforced by a military-police state (Fig 4).

Here you have the reason for the global lockdowns of the fake pandemic to coldly destroy independent incomes and livelihoods and make everyone dependent on the 'state' (the Cult that controls the 'states'). I have warned in my books for many years about the plan to introduce a 'guaranteed income' – a barely survivable pittance – designed to impose dependency when employment was destroyed by AI technology and now even more comprehensively at great speed by the 'Covid' scam. Once the pandemic was played and lockdown consequences began to delete independent income the authorities began to talk right on cue about the need for a guaranteed income and a 'Great Reset'. Guaranteed income will be presented as benevolent governments seeking to help a desperate people – desperate as a direct result of actions of the same governments. The truth is that such payments are a trap. You will only get them if you do exactly what the authorities demand including mass vaccination (genetic manipulation). We have seen this theme already in Australia where those dependent on government benefits have them reduced if parents don't agree to have their children vaccinated according to an insane health-destroying government-dictated schedule. Calculated economic collapse applies to governments as well as people. The Cult wants rid of countries through the creation of a world state with countries broken up into regions ruled by a world government and super states like the European Union. Countries must be bankrupted, too, to this end and it's being achieved by the trillions in 'rescue packages' and furlough payments, trillions in lost taxation, and money-no-object spending on 'Covid' including constant all-medium advertising (programming) which has made the media dependent on government for much of its income. The day of reckoning is coming – as planned – for government spending and given that it has been made possible by printing money and not by production/taxation there is inflation on the way that has the potential to wipe out monetary value. In that case there will be no need for the Cult to steal your money. It just won't be worth anything (see the German Weimar Republic before the Nazis took over). Many have been okay with lockdowns while getting a percentage of their income from so-called furlough payments without having to work. Those payments are dependent, however, on people having at least a theoretical job with a business considered non-essential and ordered to close. As these business go under because they are closed by lockdown after lockdown the furlough stops and it will for everyone eventually. Then what? The 'then what?' is precisely the idea.

Figure 4: The Hunger Games Society structure I have long warned was planned and now the 'Covid' hoax has made it possible. This is the real reason for lockdowns.

Hired hands

Between the Hunger Games Cult elite and the dependent population is planned to be a vicious military-police state (a fusion of the two into one force). This has been in the making for a long time with police looking ever more like the military and carrying weapons to match. The pandemic scam has seen this process accelerate so fast as lockdown house arrest is brutally enforced by carefully recruited fascist minds and gormless system-servers. The police and military are planned to merge into a centrally-directed world army in a global structure headed by a world government which wouldn't be elected even by the election fixes now in place. The world army is not planned even to be human and instead wars would be fought, primarily against the population, using robot technology controlled by artificial intelligence. I have been warning about this for decades and now militaries around the world are being transformed by this very AI technology. The global regime that I describe is a particular form of fascism known as a technocracy in which decisions are not made by clueless and co-opted politicians but by unelected technocrats – scientists, engineers, technologists and bureaucrats. Cult-owned-and-controlled Silicon Valley giants are examples of technocracy and they already have far more power to direct world events than governments. They are with their censorship selecting governments. I know that some are calling the 'Great Reset' a Marxist communist takeover, but fascism and Marxism are different labels for the same tyranny. Tell those who lived in fascist Germany and Stalinist Russia that there was a difference in the way their freedom was deleted and their lives controlled. I could call it a fascist technocracy or a Marxist technocracy and they would be equally accurate. The Hunger Games society with its world government structure would oversee a world army, world central bank and single world cashless currency imposing its will on a microchipped population (Fig 5). Scan its different elements and see how the illusory pandemic is forcing society in this very direction at great speed. Leaders of 23 countries and the World Health Organization (WHO) backed the idea in March, 2021, of a global treaty for 'international cooperation' in 'health emergencies' and nations should 'come together as a global community for peaceful cooperation that extends beyond this crisis'. Cut the Orwellian bullshit and this means another step towards global government. The plan includes a cashless digital money system that I first warned about in 1993. Right at the start of 'Covid' the deeply corrupt Tedros

Adhanom Ghebreyesus, the crooked and merely gofer 'head' of the World Health Organization, said it was possible to catch the 'virus' by touching cash and it was better to use cashless means. The claim was ridiculous nonsense and like the whole 'Covid' mind-trick it was nothing to do with 'health' and everything to do with pushing every aspect of the Cult agenda. As a result of the Tedros lie the use of cash has plummeted. The Cult script involves a single world digital currency that would eventually be technologically embedded in the body. China is a massive global centre for the Cult and if you watch what is happening there you will know what is planned for everywhere. The Chinese government is developing a digital currency which would allow fines to be deducted immediately via AI for anyone caught on camera breaking its fantastic list of laws and the money is going to be programmable with an expiry date to ensure that no one can accrue wealth except the Cult and its operatives.

Figure 5: The structure of global control the Cult has been working towards for so long and this has been enormously advanced by the 'Covid' illusion.

Serfdom is so smart

The Cult plan is far wider, extreme, and more comprehensive than even most conspiracy researchers appreciate and I will come to the true depths of deceit and control in the chapters 'Who controls the Cult?’ and ‘Escaping Wetiko’. Even the world that we know is crazy enough. We are being deluged with ever more sophisticated and controlling technology under the heading of ‘smart’. We have smart televisions, smart meters, smart cards, smart cars, smart driving, smart roads, smart pills, smart patches, smart watches, smart skin, smart borders, smart pavements, smart streets, smart cities, smart communities, smart environments, smart growth, smart planet ... smart everything around us. Smart technologies and methods of operation are designed to interlock to create a global Smart Grid connecting the entirety of human society including human minds to create a centrally-dictated ‘hive’ mind. ‘Smart cities’ is code for densely-occupied megacities of total surveillance and control through AI. Ever more destructive frequency communication systems like 5G have been rolled out without any official testing for health and psychological effects (colossal). 5G/6G/7G systems are needed to run the Smart Grid and each one becomes more destructive of body and mind. Deleting independent income is crucial to forcing people into these AI-policed prisons by ending private property ownership (except for the Cult elite). The Cult’s Great Reset now openly foresees a global society in which no one will own any possessions and everything will be rented while the Cult would own literally everything under the guise of government and corporations. The aim has been to use the lockdowns to destroy sources of income on a mass scale and when the people are destitute and in unrepayable amounts of debt (problem) Cult assets come forward with the pledge to write-off debt in return for handing over all property and possessions (solution). Everything – literally everything including people – would be connected to the Internet via AI. I was warning years ago about the coming Internet of Things (IoT) in which all devices and technology from your car to your fridge would be plugged into the Internet and controlled by AI. Now we are already there with much more to come. The next stage is the Internet of Everything (IoE) which is planned to include the connection of AI to the human brain and body to replace the human mind with a centrally-controlled AI mind. Instead of perceptions being manipulated through control of information and censorship those perceptions would come direct from the Cult through AI. What do you think? You think whatever AI decides that you think. In human terms there would be no individual 'think' any longer. Too incredible? The ravings of a lunatic? Not at all. Cult-owned crazies in Silicon Valley have been telling us the plan for years without explaining the real motivation and calculated implications. These include Google executive and 'futurist' Ray Kurzweil who highlights the year 2030 for when this would be underway. He said:

Our thinking ... will be a hybrid of biological and non-biological thinking ... humans will be able to extend their limitations and 'think in the cloud' ... We're going to put gateways to the cloud in our brains ... We're going to gradually merge and enhance ourselves ... In my view, that's the nature of being human – we transcend our limitations.

As the technology becomes vastly superior to what we are then the small proportion that is still human gets smaller and smaller and smaller until it's just utterly negligible.

The sales-pitch of Kurzweil and Cult-owned Silicon Valley is that this would make us 'super-human' when the real aim is to make us post-human and no longer 'human' in the sense that we have come to know. The entire global population would be connected to AI and become the centrally-controlled 'hive-mind' of externally-delivered perceptions. The Smart Grid being installed to impose the Cult's will on the world is being constructed to allow particular locations – even one location – to control the whole global system. From these prime control centres, which absolutely include China and Israel, anything connected to the Internet would be switched on or off and manipulated at will. Energy systems could be cut, communication via the Internet taken down, computer-controlled driverless autonomous vehicles driven off the road, medical devices switched off, the potential is limitless given how much AI and Internet connections now run human society. We have seen nothing yet if we allow this to continue. Autonomous vehicle makers are working with law enforcement to produce cars designed to automatically pull over if they detect a police or emergency vehicle flashing from up to 100 feet away. At a police stop the car would be unlocked and the window rolled down automatically. Vehicles would only take you where the computer (the state) allowed. The end of petrol vehicles and speed limiters on all new cars in the UK and EU from 2022 are steps leading to electric computerised transport over which ultimately you have no control. The picture is far bigger even than the Cult global network or web and that will become clear when I get to the nature of the 'spider'. There is a connection between all these happenings and the instigation of DNA-manipulating 'vaccines' (which aren't 'vaccines') justified by the 'Covid' hoax. That connection is the unfolding plan to transform the human body from a biological to a synthetic biological state and this is why synthetic biology is such a fast-emerging discipline of mainstream science. 'Covid vaccines' are infusing self-replicating synthetic genetic material into the cells to cumulatively take us on the Totalitarian Tiptoe from Human 1.0 to the synthetic biological Human 2.0 which will be physically and perceptually attached to the Smart Grid to one hundred percent control every thought, perception and deed. Humanity needs to wake up and fast.

This is the barest explanation of where the 'outcome' is planned to go but it's enough to see the journey happening all around us. Those new to this information will already see 'Covid' in a whole new context. I will add much more detail as we go along, but for the minutiae evidence see my mega-works, The Answer, The Trigger and Everything You Need to Know But Have Never Been Told.

Now – how does a Renegade Mind see the 'world'?

Renegade Perception

It is one thing to be clever and another to be wise

George R.R. Martin

A simple definition of the difference between a programmed mind and a Renegade Mind would be that one sees only dots while the other connects them to see the picture. Reading reality with accuracy requires the observer to (a) know the planned outcome and (b) realise that everything, but everything, is connected.

The entirety of infinite reality is connected – that’s its very nature – and with human society an expression of infinite reality the same must apply. Simple cause and effect is a connection. The effect is triggered by the cause and the effect then becomes the cause of another effect. Nothing happens in isolation because it can’t. Life in whatever reality is simple choice and consequence. We make choices and these lead to consequences. If we don’t like the consequences we can make different choices and get different consequences which lead to other choices and consequences. The choice and the consequence are not only connected they are indivisible. You can’t have one without the other as an old song goes. A few cannot control the world unless those being controlled allow that to happen – cause and effect, choice and consequence. Control – who has it and who doesn’t – is a two-way process, a symbiotic relationship, involving the controller and controlled. ‘They took my freedom away!!’ Well, yes, but you also gave it to them. Humanity is subjected to mass control because humanity has acquiesced to that control. This is all cause and effect and literally a case of give and take. In the same way world events of every kind are connected and the Cult works incessantly to sell the illusion of the random and coincidental to maintain the essential (to them) perception of dots that hide the picture. Renegade Minds know this and constantly scan the world for patterns of connection. This is absolutely pivotal in understanding the happenings in the world and without that perspective clarity is impossible. First you know the planned outcome and then you identify the steps on the journey – the day-by-day apparently random which, when connected in relation to the outcome, no longer appear as individual events, but as the proverbial chain of events leading in the same direction. I'll give you some examples:

Political puppet show

We are told to believe that politics is 'adversarial' in that different parties with different beliefs engage in an endless tussle for power. There may have been some truth in that up to a point – and only a point – but today divisions between 'different' parties are rhetorical not ideological. Even the rhetorical is fusing into one-speak as the parties eject any remaining free thinkers while others succumb to the ever-gathering intimidation of anyone with the 'wrong' opinion. The Cult is not a new phenomenon and can be traced back thousands of years as my books have documented. Its intergenerational initiatives have been manipulating events with increasing effect the more that global power has been centralised. In ancient times the Cult secured control through the system of monarchy in which 'special' bloodlines (of which more later) demanded the right to rule as kings and queens simply by birthright and by vanquishing others who claimed the same birthright. There came a time, however, when people had matured enough to see the unfairness of such tyranny and demanded a say in who governed them. Note the word – governed them. Not served them – governed them, hence government defined as 'the political direction and control exercised over the actions of the members, citizens, or inhabitants of communities, societies, and states; direction of the affairs of a state, community, etc.' Governments exercise control over rather than serve just like the monarchies before them. Bizarrely there are still countries like the United Kingdom which are ruled by a monarch and a government that officially answers to the monarch. The UK head of state and that of Commonwealth countries such as Canada, Australia and New Zealand is 'selected' by who in a single family had unprotected sex with whom and in what order. Pinch me it can't be true. Ouch! Shit, it is. The demise of monarchies in most countries offered a potential vacuum in which some form of free and fair society could arise and the Cult had that base covered. Monarchies had served its interests but they couldn't continue in the face of such widespread opposition and, anyway, replacing a 'royal' dictatorship that people could see with a dictatorship 'of the people' hiding behind the concept of 'democracy' presented far greater manipulative possibilities and ways of hiding coordinated tyranny behind the illusion of 'freedom'.

Democracy is quite wrongly defined as government selected by the population. This is not the case at all. It is government selected by some of the population (and then only in theory). This 'some' doesn't even have to be the majority as we have seen so often in first-past-the-post elections in which the so-called majority party wins fewer votes than the 'losing' parties combined. Democracy can give total power to a party in government from a minority of the votes cast. It's a sleight of hand to sell tyranny as freedom. Seventy-four million Trump-supporting Americans didn't vote for the 'Democratic' Party of Joe Biden in the distinctly dodgy election in 2020 and yet far from acknowledging the wishes and feelings of that great percentage of American society the Cult-owned Biden government set out from day one to destroy them and their right to a voice and opinion. Empty shell Biden and his Cult handlers said they were doing this to 'protect democracy'. Such is the level of lunacy and sickness to which politics has descended. Connect the dots and relate them to the desired outcome – a world government run by self-appointed technocrats and no longer even elected politicians. While operating through its political agents in government the Cult is at the same time encouraging public disdain for politicians by putting idiots and incompetents in theoretical power on the road to deleting them. The idea is to instil a public reaction that says of the technocrats: 'Well, they couldn't do any worse than the pathetic politicians.' It's all about controlling perception and Renegade Minds can see through that while programmed minds cannot when they are ignorant of both the planned outcome and the manipulation techniques employed to secure that end. This knowledge can be learned, however, and fast if people choose to get informed.

Politics may at first sight appear very difficult to control from a central point. I mean look at the 'different' parties and how would you be able to oversee them all and their constituent parts? In truth, it's very straightforward because of their structure. We are back to the pyramid of imposition and acquiescence. Organisations are structured in the same way as the system as a whole. Political parties are not open forums of free expression. They are hierarchies. I was a national spokesman for the British Green Party which claimed to be a different kind of politics in which influence and power was devolved; but I can tell you from direct experience – and it's far worse now – that Green parties are run as hierarchies like all the others however much they may try to hide that fact or kid themselves that it's not true. A very few at the top of all political parties are directing policy and personnel. They decide if you are elevated in the party or serve as a government minister and to do that you have to be a yes man or woman. Look at all the maverick political thinkers who never ascended the greasy pole. If you want to progress within the party or reach 'high-office' you need to fall into line and conform. Exceptions to this are rare indeed. Should you want to run for parliament or Congress you have to persuade the local or state level of the party to select you and for that you need to play the game as dictated by the hierarchy. If you secure election and wish to progress within the greater structure you need to go on conforming to what is acceptable to those running the hierarchy from the peak of the pyramid. Political parties are perceptual gulags and the very fact that there are party 'Whips' appointed to 'whip' politicians into voting the way the hierarchy demands exposes the ridiculous idea that politicians are elected to serve the people they are supposed to represent. Cult operatives and manipulation has long seized control of major parties that have any chance of forming a government and at least most of those that haven't. A new party forms and the Cult goes to work to infiltrate and direct. This has reached such a level today that you see video compilations of 'leaders' of all parties whether Democrats, Republicans, Conservative, Labour and Green parroting the same Cult mantra of 'Build Back Better' and the 'Great Reset' which are straight off the Cult song-sheet to describe the transformation of global society in response to the Cult-instigated hoaxes of the 'Covid pandemic' and human-caused 'climate change'. To see Caroline Lucas, the Green Party MP that I knew when I was in the party in the 1980s, speaking in support of plans proposed by Cult operative Klaus Schwab representing the billionaire global elite is a real head-shaker.

Many parties – one master

The party system is another mind-trick and was instigated to change the nature of the dictatorship by swapping 'royalty' for dark suits that people believed – though now ever less so – represented their interests. Understanding this trick is to realise that a single force (the Cult) controls all parties either directly in terms of the major ones or through manipulation of perception and ideology with others. You don't need to manipulate Green parties to demand your transformation of society in the name of 'climate change' when they are obsessed with the lie that this is essential to 'save the planet'. You just give them a platform and away they go serving your interests while believing they are being environmentally virtuous. America's political structure is a perfect blueprint for how the two or multi-party system is really a one-party state. The Republican Party is controlled from one step back in the shadows by a group made up of billionaires and their gofers known as neoconservatives or Neocons.

I have exposed them in fine detail in my books and they were the driving force behind the policies of the imbecilic presidency of Boy George Bush which included 9/11 (see The Trigger for a comprehensive demolition of the official story), the subsequent 'war on terror' (war of terror) and the invasions of Afghanistan and Iraq. The latter was a No-Problem-Reaction-Solution based on claims by Cult operatives, including Bush and British Prime Minister Tony Blair, about Saddam Hussein's 'weapons of mass destruction' which did not exist as war criminals Bush and Blair well knew.

The Democratic Party has its own 'Neocon' group controlling from the background which I call the 'Democons' and here's the penny-drop – the Neocons and Democons answer to the same masters one step further back into the shadows (Fig 6). At that level of the Cult the Republican and Democrat parties are controlled by the same people and no matter which is in power the Cult is in power. This is how it works in almost every country and certainly in Britain with Conservative, Labour, Liberal Democrat and Green parties now all on the same page whatever the rhetoric may be in their feeble attempts to appear different. Neocons operated at the time of Bush through a think tank called The Project for the New American Century which in September, 2000, published a document entitled Rebuilding America's Defenses: Strategies, Forces, and Resources

For a New Century demanding that America fight ‘multiple, simultaneous major theatre wars’ as a ‘core mission’ to force regime-change in countries including Iraq, Libya and Syria. Neocons arranged for Bush (‘Republican’) and Blair (‘Labour Party’) to front-up the invasion of Iraq and when they departed the Democons orchestrated the targeting of Libya and Syria through Barack Obama (‘Democrat’) and British Prime Minister David Cameron (‘Conservative Party’). We have ‘different’ parties and ‘different’ people, but the same unfolding script. The more the Cult has seized the reigns of parties and personnel the more their policies have transparently pursued the same agenda to the point where the fascist ‘Covid’ impositions of the Conservative junta of Jackboot Johnson in Britain were opposed by the Labour Party because they were not fascist enough. The Labour Party is likened to the US Democrats while the Conservative Party is akin to a British version of the Republicans and on both sides of the Atlantic they all speak the same language and support the direction demanded by the Cult although some more enthusiastically than others. It’s a similar story in country after country because it’s all centrally controlled. Oh, but what about Trump? I’ll come to him shortly. Political ‘choice’ in the ‘party’ system goes like this: You vote for Party A and they get into government. You don’t like what they do so next time you vote for Party B and they get into government. You don’t like what they do when it’s pretty much the same as Party A and why wouldn’t that be with both controlled by the same force? Given that only two, sometimes three, parties have any chance of forming a government to get rid of Party B that you don’t like you have to vote again for Party A which ... you don’t like. This, ladies and gentlemen, is what they call ‘democracy’ which we are told – wrongly – is a term interchangeable with ‘freedom’.

The cult of cults

At this point I need to introduce a major expression of the Global Cult known as Sabbatian-Frankism. Sabbatian is also spelt as Sabbatean. I will summarise here. I have published major exposés and detailed background in other works. Sabbatian-Frankism combines the names of two frauds posing as 'Jewish' men, Sabbatai Zevi (1626-1676), a rabbi, black magician and occultist who proclaimed he was the Jewish messiah; and Jacob Frank (1726-1791), the Polish 'Jew', black magician and occultist who said he was the reincarnation of 'messiah' Zevi and biblical patriarch Jacob. They worked across two centuries to establish the Sabbatian-Frankist cult that plays a major, indeed central, role in the manipulation of human society by the Global Cult which has its origins much further back in history than Sabbatai Zevi. I should emphasise two points here in response to the shrill voices that will scream 'anti-Semitism': (1) Sabbatian-Frankists are NOT Jewish and only pose as such to hide their cult behind a Jewish façade; and (2) my information about this cult has come from Jewish sources who have long realised that their society and community has been infiltrated and taken over by interloper Sabbatian-Frankists. Infiltration has been the foundation technique of Sabbatian-Frankism from its official origin in the 17th century. Zevi's Sabbatian sect attracted a massive following described as the biggest messianic movement in Jewish history, spreading as far as Africa and Asia, and he promised a return for the Jews to the 'Promised Land' of Israel. Sabbatianism was not Judaism but an inversion of everything that mainstream Judaism stood for. So much so that this sinister cult would have a feast day when Judaism had a fast day and whatever was forbidden in Judaism the Sabbatians were encouraged and even commanded to do. This included incest and what would be today called Satanism. Members were forbidden to marry outside the sect and there was a system of keeping their children ignorant of what they were part of until they were old enough to be trusted not to unknowingly reveal anything to outsiders. The same system is employed to this day by the Global Cult in general which Sabbatian-Frankism has enormously influenced and now largely controls.

Zevi and his Sabbatians suffered a setback with the intervention by the Sultan of the Islamic Ottoman Empire in the Middle East and what is now the Republic of Turkey where Zevi was located. The Sultan gave him the choice of proving his 'divinity', converting to Islam or facing torture and death. Funnily enough Zevi chose to convert or at least appear to. Some of his supporters were disillusioned and drifted away, but many did not with 300 families also converting – only in theory – to Islam. They continued behind this Islamic smokescreen to follow the goals, rules and rituals of Sabbatianism and became known as 'crypto-Jews' or the 'Dönme' which means 'to turn'. This is rather ironic because they didn't 'turn' and instead hid behind a fake Islamic persona. The process of appearing to be one thing while being very much another would become the calling card of Sabbatianism especially after Zevi's death and the arrival of the Satanist Jacob Frank in the 18th century when the cult became Sabbatian-Frankism and plumbed still new depths of depravity and infiltration which included – still includes – human sacrifice and sex with children. Wherever Sabbatians go paedophilia and Satanism follow and is it really a surprise that Hollywood is so infested with child abuse and Satanism when it was established by Sabbatian-Frankists and is still controlled by them? Hollywood has been one of the prime vehicles for global perceptual programming and manipulation. How many believe the version of 'history' portrayed in movies when it is a travesty and inversion (again) of the truth? Rabbi Marvin Antelman describes Frankism in his book, To Eliminate the Opiate, as 'a movement of complete evil' while Jewish professor Gershom Scholem said of Frank in The Messianic Idea in Judaism: 'In all his actions [he was] a truly corrupt and degenerate individual ... one of the most frightening phenomena in the whole of Jewish history.' Frank was excommunicated by traditional rabbis, as was Zevi, but Frank was undeterred and enjoyed vital support from the House of Rothschild, the infamous banking dynasty whose inner-core are Sabbatian-Frankists and not Jews. Infiltration of the Roman Church and Vatican was instigated by Frank with many Dönme 'turning' again to convert to Roman Catholicism with a view to hijacking the reins of power. This was the ever-repeating modus operandi and continues to be so. Pose as an advocate of the religion, culture or country that you want to control and then manipulate your people into the positions of authority and influence largely as advisers, administrators and Svengalis for those that appear to be in power. They did this with Judaism, Christianity (Christian Zionism is part of this), Islam and other religions and nations until Sabbatian-Frankism spanned the world as it does today.

Sabbatian Saudis and the terror network

One expression of the Sabbatian-Frankist Dönme within Islam is the ruling family of Saudi Arabia, the House of Saud, through which came the vile distortion of Islam known as Wahhabism. This is the violent creed followed by terrorist groups like Al-Qaeda and ISIS or Islamic State. Wahhabism is the hand-chopping, head-chopping 'religion' of Saudi Arabia which is used to keep the people in a constant state of fear so the interloper House of Saud can continue to rule. Al-Qaeda and Islamic State were lavishly funded by the House of Saud while being created and directed by the Sabbatian-Frankist network in the United States that operates through the Pentagon, CIA and the government in general of whichever 'party'. The front man for the establishment of Wahhabism in the middle of the 18th century was a Sabbatian-Frankist 'crypto-Jew' posing as Islamic called Muhammad ibn Abd al-Wahhab. His daughter would marry the son of Muhammad bin Saud who established the first Saudi state before his death in 1765 with support from the British Empire. Bin Saud's successors would establish modern Saudi Arabia in league with the British and Americans in 1932 which allowed them to seize control of Islam's major shrines in Mecca and Medina. They have dictated the direction of Sunni Islam ever since while Iran is the major centre of the Shiite version and here we have the source of at least the public conflict between them. The Sabbatian network has used its Wahhabi extremists to carry out Problem-Reaction-Solution terrorist attacks in the name of 'Al-Qaeda' and 'Islamic State' to justify a devastating 'war on terror', ever-increasing surveillance of the population and to terrify people into compliance. Another insight of the Renegade Mind is the streetwise understanding that just because a country, location or people are attacked doesn't mean that those apparently representing that country, location or people are not behind the attackers. Often they are orchestrating the attacks because of the societal changes that can be then justified in the name of 'saving the population from terrorists'.

I show in great detail in The Trigger how Sabbatian-Frankists were the real perpetrators of 9/11 and not '19 Arab hijackers' who were blamed for what happened. Observe what was justified in the name of 9/11 alone in terms of Middle East invasions, mass surveillance and control that fulfilled the demands of the Project for the New American Century document published by the Sabbatian Neocons. What appear to be enemies are on the deep inside players on the same Sabbatian team. Israel and Arab 'royal' dictatorships are all ruled by Sabbatians and the recent peace agreements between Israel and Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates (UAE) and others are only making formal what has always been the case behind the scenes. Palestinians who have been subjected to grotesque tyranny since Israel was bombed and terrorised into existence in 1948 have never stood a chance. Sabbatian-Frankists have controlled Israel (so the constant theme of violence and war which Sabbatians love) and they have controlled the Arab countries that Palestinians have looked to for real support that never comes. 'Royal families' of the Arab world in Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, UAE, etc., are all Sabbatians with allegiance to the aims of the cult and not what is best for their Arabic populations. They have stolen the oil and financial resources from their people by false claims to be 'royal dynasties' with a genetic right to rule and by employing vicious militaries to impose their will.

Satanic 'illumination'

The Satanist Jacob Frank formed an alliance in 1773 with two other Sabbatians, Mayer Amschel Rothschild (1744-1812), founder of the Rothschild banking dynasty, and Jesuit-educated fraudulent Jew, Adam Weishaupt, and this led to the formation of the Bavarian Illuminati, firstly under another name, in 1776. The Illuminati would be the manipulating force behind the French Revolution (1789-1799) and was also involved in the American Revolution (1775-1783) before and after the Illuminati's official creation. Weishaupt would later become (in public) a Protestant Christian in archetypal Sabbatian style. I read that his name can be decoded as Adam-Weishaupt or 'the first man to lead those who know'. He wasn't a leader in the sense that he was a subordinate, but he did lead those below him in a crusade of transforming human society that still continues today. The theme was confirmed as early as 1785 when a horseman courier called Lanz was reported to be struck by lightning and extensive Illuminati documents were found in his saddlebags. They made the link to Weishaupt and detailed the plan for world takeover. Current events with 'Covid' fascism have been in the making for a very long time. Jacob Frank was jailed for 13 years by the Catholic Inquisition after his arrest in 1760 and on his release he headed for Frankfurt, Germany, home city and headquarters of the House of Rothschild where the alliance was struck with Mayer Amschel Rothschild and Weishaupt. Rothschild arranged for Frank to be given the title of Baron and he became a wealthy nobleman with a big following of Jews in Germany, the Austro-Hungarian Empire and other European countries. Most of them would have believed he was on their side.

The name 'Illuminati' came from the Zohar which is a body of works in the Jewish mystical 'bible' called the Kabbalah. 'Zohar' is the foundation of Sabbatian-Frankist belief and in Hebrew 'Zohar' means 'splendour', 'radiance', 'illuminated', and so we have 'Illuminati'. They claim to be the 'Illuminated Ones' from their knowledge systematically hidden from the human population and passed on through generations of carefully-chosen initiates in the global secret society network or Cult. Hidden knowledge includes an awareness of the Cult agenda for the world and the nature of our collective reality that I will explore later. Cult 'illumination' is symbolised by the torch held by the Statue of Liberty which was gifted to New York by French Freemasons in Paris who knew exactly what it represents. 'Liberty' symbolises the goddess worshipped in Babylon as Queen Semiramis or Ishtar. The significance of this will become clear. Notice again the ubiquitous theme of inversion with the Statue of 'Liberty' really symbolising mass control (Fig 7). A mirror-image statute stands on an island in the River Seine in Paris from where New York Liberty originated (Fig 8). A large replica of the Liberty flame stands on top of the Pont de l'Alma tunnel in Paris where Princess Diana died in a Cult ritual described in The Biggest Secret. Lucifer 'the light bringer' is related to all this (and much more as we'll see) and 'Lucifer' is a central figure in Sabbatian-Frankism and its associated Satanism. Sabbatians reject the Jewish Torah, or Pentateuch, the 'five books of Moses' in the Old Testament known as Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy which are claimed by Judaism and Christianity to have been dictated by 'God' to Moses on Mount Sinai. Sabbatians say these do not apply to them and they seek to replace them with the Zohar to absorb Judaism and its followers into their inversion which is an expression of a much greater global inversion. They want to delete all religions and force humanity to worship a one-world religion – Sabbatian Satanism that also includes worship of the Earth goddess. Satanic themes are being more and more introduced into mainstream society and while Christianity is currently the foremost target for destruction the others are planned to follow.

Marx brothers

Rabbi Marvin Antelman connects the Illuminati to the Jacobins in To Eliminate the Opiate and Jacobins were the force behind the French Revolution. He links both to the Bund der Gerechten, or League of the Just, which was the network that inflicted communism/Marxism on the world. Antelman wrote:

The original inner circle of the Bund der Gerechten consisted of born Catholics, Protestants and Jews [Sabbatian-Frankist infiltrators], and those representatives of respective subdivisions formulated schemes for the ultimate destruction of their faiths. The heretical Catholics laid plans which they felt would take a century or more for the ultimate destruction of the church; the apostate Jews for the ultimate destruction of the Jewish religion.

Sabbatian-created communism connects into this anti-religion agenda in that communism does not allow for the free practice of religion. The Sabbatian 'Bund' became the International Communist Party and Communist League and in 1848 'Marxism' was born with the Communist Manifesto of Sabbatian assets Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels. It is absolutely no coincidence that Marxism, just a different name for fascist and other centrally-controlled tyrannies, is being imposed worldwide as a result of the 'Covid' hoax and nor that Marxist/fascist China was the place where the hoax originated. The reason for this will become very clear in the chapter 'Covid: The calculated catastrophe'. The so-called 'Woke' mentality has hijacked traditional beliefs of the political left and replaced them with far-right make-believe 'social justice' better known as Marxism. Woke will, however, be swallowed by its own perceived 'revolution' which is really the work of billionaires and billionaire corporations feigning being 'Woke'. Marxism is being touted by Wokers as a replacement for 'capitalism' when we don't have 'capitalism'. We have cartelism in which the market is stitched up by the very Cult billionaires and corporations bankrolling Woke. Billionaires love Marxism which keeps the people in servitude while they control from the top. Terminally naïve Wokers think they are 'changing the world' when it's the Cult that is doing the changing and when they have played their vital part and become surplus to requirements they, too, will be targeted. The Illuminati-Jacobins were behind the period known as 'The Terror' in the French Revolution in 1793 and 1794 when Jacobin Maximillian de Robespierre and his Orwellian 'Committee of Public Safety' killed 17,000 'enemies of the Revolution' who had once been 'friends of the Revolution'. Karl Marx (1818-1883), whose Sabbatian creed of Marxism has cost the lives of at least 100 million people, is a hero once again to Wokers who have been systematically kept ignorant of real history by their 'education' programming. As a result they now promote a Sabbatian 'Marxist' abomination destined at some point to consume them. Rabbi Antelman, who spent decades researching the Sabbatian plot, said of the League of the Just and Karl Marx:

Contrary to popular opinion Karl Marx did not originate the Communist Manifesto. He was paid for his services by the League of the Just, which was known in its country of origin, Germany, as the Bund der Geächteten.

Antelman said the text attributed to Marx was the work of other people and Marx 'was only repeating what others already said'. Marx was 'a hired hack – lackey of the wealthy Illuminists'. Marx famously said that religion was the 'opium of the people' (part of the Sabbatian plan to demonise religion) and Antelman called his books, To Eliminate the Opiate. Marx was born Jewish, but his family converted to Christianity (Sabbatian modus operandi) and he attacked Jews, not least in his book, A World Without Jews. In doing so he supported the Sabbatian plan to destroy traditional Jewishness and Judaism which we are clearly seeing today with the vindictive targeting of orthodox Jews by the Sabbatian government of Israel over 'Covid' laws. I don't follow any religion and it has done much damage to the world over centuries and acted as a perceptual straightjacket. Renegade Minds, however, are always asking why something is being done. It doesn't matter if they agree or disagree with what is happening – why is it happening is the question. The 'why?' can be answered with regard to religion in that religions create interacting communities of believers when the Cult wants to dismantle all discourse, unity and interaction (see 'Covid' lockdowns) and the ultimate goal is to delete all religions for a one-world religion of Cult Satanism worshipping their 'god' of which more later. We see the same 'why?' with gun control in America. I don't have guns and don't want them, but why is the Cult seeking to disarm the population at the same time that law enforcement agencies are armed to their molars and why has every tyrant in history sought to disarm people before launching the final takeover? They include Hitler, Stalin, Pol Pot and Mao who followed confiscation with violent seizing of power. You know it's a Cult agenda by the people who immediately race to the microphones to exploit dead people in multiple shootings. Ultra-Zionist Cult lackey Senator Chuck Schumer was straight on the case after ten people were killed in Boulder, Colorado in March, 2121. Simple rule ... if Schumer wants it the Cult wants it and the same with his ultra-Zionist mate the wild-eyed Senator Adam Schiff. At the same time they were calling for the disarmament of Americans, many of whom live a long way from a police response, Schumer, Schiff and the rest of these pampered clowns were sitting on Capitol Hill behind a razor-wired security fence protected by thousands of armed troops in addition to their own armed bodyguards. Mom and pop in an isolated home? They're just potential mass shooters.

Zion Mainframe

Sabbatian-Frankists and most importantly the Rothschilds were behind the creation of 'Zionism', a political movement that demanded a Jewish homeland in Israel as promised by Sabbatai Zevi. The very symbol of Israel comes from the German meaning of the name Rothschild. Dynasty founder Mayer Amschel Rothschild changed the family name from Bauer to Rothschild, or 'Red-Shield' in German, in deference to the six-pointed 'Star of David' hexagram displayed on the family's home in Frankfurt. The symbol later appeared on the flag of Israel after the Rothschilds were centrally involved in its creation. Hexagrams are not a uniquely Jewish symbol and are widely used in occult ('hidden') networks often as a symbol for Saturn (see my other books for why). Neither are Zionism and Jewishness interchangeable. Zionism is a political movement and philosophy and not a 'race' or a people. Many Jews oppose Zionism and many non-Jews, including US President Joe Biden, call themselves Zionists as does Israel-centric Donald Trump. America's support for the Israel government is pretty much a gimme with ultra-Zionist billionaires and corporations providing fantastic and dominant funding for both political parties. Former Congresswoman Cynthia McKinney has told how she was approached immediately she ran for office to 'sign the pledge' to Israel and confirm that she would always vote in that country's best interests. All American politicians are approached in this way. Anyone who refuses will get no support or funding from the enormous and all-powerful Zionist lobby that includes organisations like mega-lobby group AIPAC, the American Israel Public Affairs Committee. Trump's biggest funder was ultra-Zionist casino and media billionaire Sheldon Adelson while major funders of the Democratic Party include ultra-Zionist George Soros and ultra-Zionist financial and media mogul, Haim Saban. Some may reel back at the suggestion that Soros is an Israel-firster (Sabbatian-controlled Israel-firster), but Renegade Minds watch the actions not the words and everywhere Soros donates his billions the Sabbatian agenda benefits. In the spirit of Sabbatian inversion Soros pledged $1 billion for a new university network to promote 'liberal values and tackle intolerance'. He made the announcement during his annual speech at the Cult-owned World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland, in January, 2020, after his 'harsh criticism' of 'authoritarian rulers' around the world. You can only laugh at such brazen mendacity. How he doesn't laugh is the mystery. Translated from the Orwellian 'liberal values and tackle intolerance' means teaching non-white people to hate white people and for white people to loathe themselves for being born white. The reason for that will become clear.

The 'Anti-Semitism' fraud

Zionists support the Jewish homeland in the land of Palestine which has been the Sabbatian-Rothschild goal for so long, but not for the benefit of Jews. Sabbatians and their global Anti-Semitism Industry have skewed public and political opinion to equate opposing the violent extremes of Zionism to be a blanket attack and condemnation of all Jewish people. Sabbatians and their global Anti-Semitism Industry have skewed public and political opinion to equate opposing the violent extremes of Zionism to be a blanket attack and condemnation of all Jewish people. This is nothing more than a Sabbatian protection racket to stop legitimate investigation and exposure of their agendas and activities. The official definition of 'anti-Semitism' has more recently been expanded to include criticism of Zionism – a political movement – and this was done to further stop exposure of Sabbatian infiltrators who created Zionism as we know it today in the 19th century. Renegade Minds will talk about these subjects when they know the shit that will come their way. People must decide if they want to know the truth or just cower in the corner in fear of what others will say. Sabbatians have been trying to label me as 'anti-Semitic' since the 1990s as I have uncovered more and more about their background and agendas. Useless, gutless, fraudulent 'journalists' then just repeat the smears without question and on the day I was writing this section a pair of unquestioning repeaters called Ben Quinn and Archie Bland (how appropriate) outright called me an 'anti-Semite' in the establishment propaganda sheet, the London Guardian, with no supporting evidence. The Sabbatian Anti-Semitism Industry said so and who are they to question that? They wouldn't dare. Ironically 'Semitic' refers to a group of languages in the Middle East that are almost entirely Arabic. 'Anti-Semitism' becomes 'anti-Arab' which if the consequences of this misunderstanding were not so grave would be hilarious. Don't bother telling Quinn and Bland. I don't want to confuse them, bless 'em. One reason I am dubbed 'anti-Semitic' is that I wrote in the 1990s that Jewish operatives (Sabbatians) were heavily involved in the Russian Revolution when Sabbatians overthrew the Romanov dynasty. This apparently made me 'anti-Semitic'. Oh, really? Here is a section from The Trigger:

British journalist Robert Wilton confirmed these themes in his 1920 book The Last Days of the Romanovs when he studied official documents from the Russian government to identify the members of the Bolshevik ruling elite between 1917 and 1919. The Central Committee included 41 Jews among 62 members; the Council of the People's Commissars had 17 Jews out of 22 members; and 458 of the 556 most important Bolshevik positions between 1918 and 1919 were occupied by Jewish people. Only 17 were Russian. Then there were the 23 Jews among the 36 members of the vicious Cheka Soviet secret police established in 1917 who would soon appear all across the country.

Professor Robert Service of Oxford University, an expert on 20th century Russian history, found evidence that ['Jewish'] Leon Trotsky had sought to make sure that Jews were enrolled in the Red Army and were disproportionately represented in the Soviet civil bureaucracy that included the Cheka which performed mass arrests, imprisonment and executions of 'enemies of the people'. A US State Department Decimal File (861.00/5339) dated November 13th, 1918, names [Rothschild banking agent in America] Jacob Schiff and a list of ultra-Zionists as funders of the Russian Revolution leading to claims of a 'Jewish plot', but the key point missed by all is they were not 'Jews' – they were Sabbatian-Frankists.

Britain's Winston Churchill made the same error by mistake or otherwise. He wrote in a 1920 edition of the Illustrated Sunday Herald that those behind the Russian revolution were part of a 'worldwide conspiracy for the overthrow of civilisation and for the reconstitution of society on the basis of arrested development, of envious malevolence, and impossible equality' (see 'Woke' today because that has been created by the same network). Churchill said there was no need to exaggerate the part played in the creation of Bolshevism and in the actual bringing about of the Russian Revolution 'by these international and for the most part atheistical Jews' ['atheistical Jews' = Sabbatians]. Churchill said it is certainly a very great one and probably outweighs all others: 'With the notable exception of Lenin, the majority of the leading figures are Jews.' He went on to describe, knowingly or not, the Sabbatian modus operandi of placing puppet leaders nominally in power while they control from the background:

Moreover, the principal inspiration and driving power comes from the Jewish leaders. Thus Tchitcherin, a pure Russian, is eclipsed by his nominal subordinate, Litvinoff, and the influence of Russians like Bukharin or Lunacharski cannot be compared with the power of Trotsky, or of Zinovieff, the Dictator of the Red Citadel (Petrograd), or of Krassin or Radek – all Jews. In the Soviet institutions the predominance of Jews is even more astonishing. And the prominent, if not indeed the principal, part in the system of terrorism applied by the Extraordinary Commissions for Combatting Counter-Revolution has been taken by Jews, and in some notable cases by Jewesses.

What I said about seriously disproportionate involvement in the Russian Revolution by Jewish 'revolutionaries' (Sabbatians) is provable fact, but truth is no defence against the Sabbatian Anti-Semitism Industry, its repeater parrots like Quinn and Bland, and the now breathtaking network of so-called 'Woke' 'anti-hate' groups with interlocking leaderships and funding which have the role of discrediting and silencing anyone who gets too close to exposing the Sabbatians. We have seen 'truth is no defence' confirmed in legal judgements with the Saskatchewan Human Rights Commission in Canada decreeing this: 'Truthful statements can be presented in a manner that would meet the definition of hate speech, and not all truthful statements must be free from restriction.' Most 'anti-hate' activists, who are themselves consumed by hatred, are too stupid and ignorant of the world to know how they are being used. They are far too far up their own virtue-signalling arses and it's far too dark for them to see anything.

The 'revolution' game

and endless others around the world that appear to start as a revolution of the people against tyrannical rule and end up with a regime change to more tyrannical rule overtly or covertly. Wars, terror attacks and regime overthrows follow the Sabbatian cult through history with its agents creating them as Problem-Reaction-Solutions to remove opposition on the road to world domination. Sabbatian dots connect the Rothschilds with the Illuminati, Jacobins of the French Revolution, the 'Bund' or League of the Just, the International Communist Party, Communist League and the Communist Manifesto of Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels that would lead to the Rothschild-funded Russian Revolution. The sequence comes under the heading of 'creative destruction' when you advance to your global goal by continually destroying the status quo to install a new status quo which you then also destroy. The two world wars come to mind. With each new status quo you move closer to your planned outcome. Wars and mass murder are to Sabbatians a collective blood sacrifice ritual. They are obsessed with death for many reasons and one is that death is an inversion of life. Satanists and Sabbatians are obsessed with death and often target churches and churchyards for their rituals. Inversion-obsessed Sabbatians explain the use of inverted symbolism including the inverted pentagram and inverted cross. The inversion of the cross has been related to targeting Christianity, but the cross was a religious symbol long before Christianity and its inversion is a statement about the Sabbatian mentality and goals more than any single religion.

Sabbatians operating in Germany were behind the rise of the occult-obsessed Nazis and the subsequent Jewish exodus from Germany and Europe to Palestine and the United States after World War Two. The Rothschild dynasty was at the forefront of this both as political manipulators and by funding the operation. Why would Sabbatians help to orchestrate the horrors inflicted on Jews by the Nazis and by Stalin after they organised the Russian Revolution? Sabbatians hate Jews and their religion, that's why. They pose as Jews and secure positions of control within Jewish society and play the 'anti-Semitism' card to protect themselves from exposure through a global network of organisations answering to the Sabbatian-created-and-controlled globe-spanning intelligence network that involves a stunning web of military-intelligence operatives and operations for a tiny country of just nine million. Among them are Jewish assets who are not Sabbatians but have been convinced by them that what they are doing is for the good of Israel and the Jewish community to protect them from what they have been programmed since childhood to believe is a Jew-hating hostile world. The Jewish community is just a highly convenient cover to hide the true nature of Sabbatians. Anyone getting close to exposing their game is accused by Sabbatian place-people and gofers of 'anti-Semitism' and claiming that all Jews are part of a plot to take over the world. I am not saying that. I am saying that Sabbatians – the real Jew-haters – have infiltrated the Jewish community to use them both as a cover and an 'anti-Semitic' defence against exposure. Thus we have the Anti-Semitism Industry targeted researchers in this way and most Jewish people think this is justified and genuine. They don't know that their 'Jewish' leaders and institutions of state, intelligence and military are not controlled by Jews at all, but cultists and stooges of Sabbatian-Frankism. I once added my name to a pro-Jewish freedom petition online and the next time I looked my name was gone and text had been added to the petition blurb to attack me as an 'anti-Semite' such is the scale of perceptual programming.

Moving on America

I tell the story in The Trigger and a chapter called 'Atlantic Crossing' how particularly after Israel was established the Sabbatians moved in on the United States and eventually grasped control of government administration, the political system via both Democrats and Republicans, the intelligence community like the CIA and National Security Agency (NSA), the Pentagon and mass media. Through this seriously compartmentalised network Sabbatians and their operatives in Mossad, Israeli Defense Forces (IDF) and US agencies pulled off 9/11 and blamed it on 19 'Al-Qaeda hijackers' dominated by men from, or connected to, Sabbatian-ruled Saudi Arabia. The '19' were not even on the planes let alone flew those big passenger jets into buildings while being largely incompetent at piloting one-engine light aircraft. 'Hijacker' Hani Hanjour who is said to have flown American Airlines Flight 77 into the Pentagon with a turn and manoeuvre most professional pilots said they would have struggled to do was banned from renting a small plane by instructors at the Freeway Airport in Bowie, Maryland, just six weeks earlier on the grounds that he was an incompetent pilot. The Jewish population of the world is just 0.2 percent with even that almost entirely concentrated in Israel (75 percent Jewish) and the United States (around two percent). This two percent and globally 0.2 percent refers to Jewish people and not Sabbatian interlopers who are a fraction of that fraction. What a sobering thought when you think of the fantastic influence on world affairs of tiny Israel and that the Project for the New America Century (PNAC) which laid out the blueprint in September, 2000, for America's war on terror and regime change wars in Iraq, Libya and Syria was founded and dominated by Sabbatians known as 'Neocons'. The document conceded that this plan would not be supported politically or publicly without a major attack on American soil and a Problem-Reaction-Solution excuse to send troops to war across the Middle East. Sabbatian Neocons said:

... [The] process of transformation ... [war and regime change] ... is likely to be a long one, absent some catastrophic and catalysing event – like a new Pearl Harbor.

Four months later many of those who produced that document came to power with their inane puppet George Bush from the long-time Sabbatian Bush family. They included Sabbatian Dick Cheney who was officially vice-president, but really de-facto president for the entirety of the 'Bush' government. Nine months after the 'Bush' inauguration came what Bush called at the time 'the Pearl Harbor of the 21st century' and with typical Sabbatian timing and symbolism 2001 was the 60th anniversary of the attack in 1941 by the Japanese Air Force on Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, which allowed President Franklin Delano Roosevelt to take the United States into a Sabbatian-instigated Second World War that he said in his election campaign that he never would. The evidence is overwhelming that Roosevelt and his military and intelligence networks knew the attack was coming and did nothing to stop it, but they did make sure that America's most essential naval ships were not in Hawaii at the time. Three thousand Americans died in the Pearl Harbor attacks as they did on September 11th. By the 9/11 year of 2001 Sabbatians had widely infiltrated the US government, military and intelligence operations and used their compartmentalised assets to pull off the 'Al-Qaeda' attacks. If you read The Trigger it will blow your mind to see the utterly staggering concentration of 'Jewish' operatives (Sabbatian infiltrators) in essential positions of political, security, legal, law enforcement, financial and business power before, during, and after the attacks to make them happen, carry them out, and then cover their tracks – and I do mean staggering when you think of that 0.2 percent of the world population and two percent of Americans which are Jewish while Sabbatian infiltrators are a fraction of that. A central foundation of the 9/11 conspiracy was the hijacking of government, military, Air Force and intelligence computer systems in real time through 'back-door' access made possible by Israeli (Sabbatian) 'cyber security' software. Sabbatian-controlled Israel is on the way to rivalling Silicon Valley for domination of cyberspace and is becoming the dominant force in cyber-security which gives them access to entire computer systems and their passcodes across the world. Then add to this that Zionists head (officially) Silicon Valley giants like Google (Larry Page and Sergey Brin), Google-owned YouTube (Susan Wojcicki), Facebook (Mark Zuckerberg and Sheryl Sandberg), and Apple (Chairman Arthur D. Levinson), and that ultra-Zionist hedge fund billionaire Paul Singer has a $1 billion stake in Twitter which is only nominally headed by 'CEO' pothead Jack Dorsey. As cable news host Tucker Carlson said of Dorsey: 'There used to be debate in the medical community whether dropping a ton of acid had permanent effects and I think that debate has now ended.' Carlson made the comment after Dorsey told a hearing on Capitol Hill (if you cut through his bullshit) that he believed in free speech so long as he got to decide what you can hear and see. These 'big names' of Silicon Valley are only front men and women for the Global Cult, not least the Sabbatians, who are the true controllers of these corporations. Does anyone still wonder why these same people and companies have been ferociously censoring and banning people (like me) for exposing any aspect of the Cult agenda and especially the truth about the 'Covid' hoax which Sabbatians have orchestrated?

The Jeffrey Epstein paedophile ring was a Sabbatian operation. He was officially 'Jewish' but he was a Sabbatian and women abused by the ring have told me about the high number of 'Jewish' people involved. The Epstein horror has Sabbatian written all over it and matches perfectly their modus operandi and obsession with sex and ritual. Epstein was running a Sabbatian blackmail ring in which famous people with political and other influence were provided with young girls for sex while everything was being filmed and recorded on hidden cameras and microphones at his New York house, Caribbean island and other properties. Epstein survivors have described this surveillance system to me and some have gone public. Once the famous politician or other figure knew he or she was on video they tended to do whatever they were told. Here we go again ...when you've got them by the balls their hearts and minds will follow. Sabbatians use this blackmail technique on a wide scale across the world to entrap politicians and others they need to act as demanded. Epstein's private plane, the infamous 'Lolita Express', had many well-known passengers including Bill Clinton while Bill Gates has flown on an Epstein plane and met with him four years after Epstein had been jailed for paedophilia. They subsequently met many times at Epstein's home in New York according to a witness who was there. Epstein's infamous side-kick was Ghislaine Maxwell, daughter of Mossad agent and ultra-Zionist mega-crooked British businessman, Bob Maxwell, who at one time owned the Daily Mirror newspaper. Maxwell was murdered at sea on his boat in 1991 by Sabbatian-controlled Mossad when he became a liability with his business empire collapsing as a former Mossad operative has confirmed (see The Trigger).

Money, money, money, funny money ...

Before I come to the Sabbatian connection with the last three US presidents I will lay out the crucial importance to Sabbatians of controlling banking and finance. Sabbatian Mayer Amschel Rothschild set out to dominate this arena in his family's quest for total global control. What is freedom? It is, in effect, choice. The more choices you have the freer you are and the fewer your choices the more you are enslaved. In the global structure created over centuries by Sabbatians the biggest decider and restrictor of choice is ... money. Across the world if you ask people what they would like to do with their lives and why they are not doing that they will reply 'I don't have the money'. This is the idea. A global elite of multi-billionaires are described as 'greedy' and that is true on one level; but control of money – who has it and who doesn't – is not primarily about greed. It's about control. Sabbatians have seized ever more control of finance and sucked the wealth of the world out of the hands of the population. We talk now, after all, about the 'One-percent' and even then the wealthiest are a lot fewer even than that. This has been made possible by a money scam so outrageous and so vast it could rightly be called the scam of scams founded on creating 'money' out of nothing and 'loaning' that with interest to the population. Money out of nothing is called 'credit'. Sabbatians have asserted control over governments and banking ever more completely through the centuries and secured financial laws that allow banks to lend hugely more than they have on deposit in a confidence trick known as fractional reserve lending. Imagine if you could lend money that doesn't exist and charge the recipient interest for doing so. You would end up in jail. Bankers by contrast end up in mansions, private jets, Malibu and Monaco.

Banks are only required to keep a fraction of their deposits and wealth in their vaults and they are allowed to lend 'money' they don't have called 'credit'. Go into a bank for a loan and if you succeed the banker will not move any real wealth into your account. They will type into your account the amount of the agreed 'loan' – say £100,000. This is not wealth that really exists; it is non-existent, fresh-air, created-out-of-nothing 'credit' which has never, does not, and will never exist except in theory. Credit is backed by nothing except wind and only has buying power because people think that it has buying power and accept it in return for property, goods and services. I have described this situation as like those cartoon characters you see chasing each other and when they run over the edge of a cliff they keep running forward on fresh air until one of them looks down, realises what's happened, and they all crash into the ravine. The whole foundation of the Sabbatian financial system is to stop people looking down except for periodic moments when they want to crash the system (as in 2008 and 2020 ongoing) and reap the rewards from all the property, businesses and wealth their borrowers had signed over as 'collateral' in return for a 'loan' of fresh air. Most people think that money is somehow created by governments when it comes into existence from the start as a debt through banks 'lending' illusory money called credit. Yes, the very currency of exchange is a debt from day one issued as an interest-bearing loan. Why don't governments create money interest-free and lend it to their people interest-free? Governments are controlled by Sabbatians and the financial system is controlled by Sabbatians for whom interest-free money would be a nightmare come true. Sabbatians underpin their financial domination through their global network of central banks, including the privately-owned US Federal Reserve and Britain's Bank of England, and this is orchestrated by a privately-owned central bank coordination body called the Bank for International Settlements in Basle, Switzerland, created by the usual suspects including the Rockefellers and Rothschilds. Central bank chiefs don't answer to governments or the people. They answer to the Bank for International Settlements or, in other words, the Global Cult which is dominated today by Sabbatians.

Built-in disaster

There are so many constituent scams within the overall banking scam. When you take out a loan of thin-air credit only the amount of that loan is theoretically brought into circulation to add to the amount in circulation; but you are paying back the principle plus interest. The additional interest is not created and this means that with every 'loan' there is a shortfall in the money in circulation between what is borrowed and what has to be paid back. There is never even close to enough money in circulation to repay all outstanding public and private debt including interest. Coldly weaved in the very fabric of the system is the certainty that some will lose their homes, businesses and possessions to the banking 'lender'. This is less obvious in times of 'boom' when the amount of money in circulation (and the debt) is expanding through more people wanting and getting loans. When a downturn comes and the money supply contracts it becomes painfully obvious that there is not enough money to service all debt and interest. This is less obvious in times of 'boom' when the amount of money in circulation (and the debt) is expanding through more people wanting and getting loans. When a downturn comes and the money supply contracts and it becomes painfully obvious – as in 2008 and currently – that there is not enough money to service all debt and interest. Sabbatian banksters have been leading the human population through a calculated series of booms (more debt incurred) and busts (when the debt can't be repaid and the banks get the debtor's tangible wealth in exchange for non-existent 'credit'). With each 'bust' Sabbatian bankers have absorbed more of the world's tangible wealth and we end up with the One-percent. Governments are in bankruptcy levels of debt to the same system and are therefore owned by a system they do not control. The Federal Reserve, 'America's central bank', is privately-owned and American presidents only nominally appoint its chairman or woman to maintain the illusion that it's an arm of government. It's not. The 'Fed' is a cartel of private banks which handed billions to its associates and friends after the crash of 2008 and has been Sabbatian-controlled since it was manipulated into being in 1913 through the covert trickery of Rothschild banking agents Jacob Schiff and Paul Warburg, and the Sabbatian Rockefeller family. Somehow from a Jewish population of two-percent and globally 0.2 percent (Sabbatian interlopers remember are far smaller) ultra-Zionists headed the Federal Reserve for 31 years between 1987 and 2018 in the form of Alan Greenspan, Bernard Bernanke and Janet Yellen (now Biden's Treasury Secretary) with Yellen's deputy chairman a Israeli-American dual citizen and ultra-Zionist Stanley Fischer, a former governor of the Bank of Israel. Ultra-Zionist Fed chiefs spanned the presidencies of Ronald Reagan ('Republican'), Father George Bush ('Republican'), Bill Clinton ('Democrat'), Boy George Bush ('Republican') and Barack Obama ('Democrat'). We should really add the pre-Greenspan chairman, Paul Adolph Volcker, 'appointed' by Jimmy Carter ('Democrat') who ran the Fed between 1979 and 1987 during the Carter and Reagan administrations before Greenspan took over. Volcker was a long-time associate and business partner of the Rothschilds. No matter what the 'party' officially in power the United States economy was directed by the same force. Here are members of the Obama, Trump and Biden administrations and see if you can make out a common theme.

Barack Obama ('Democrat')

Ultra-Zionists Robert Rubin, Larry Summers, and Timothy Geithner ran the US Treasury in the Clinton administration and two of them reappeared with Obama. Ultra-Zionist Fed chairman Alan Greenspan had manipulated the crash of 2008 through deregulation and jumped ship just before the disaster to make way for ultra-Zionist Bernard Bernanke to hand out trillions to Sabbatian 'too big to fail' banks and businesses, including the ubiquitous ultra-Zionist Goldman Sachs which has an ongoing revolving door operation between itself and major financial positions in government worldwide. Obama inherited the fallout of the crash when he took office in January, 2009, and fortunately he had the support of his ultra-Zionist White House Chief of Staff Rahm Emmanuel, son of a terrorist who helped to bomb Israel into being in 1948, and his ultra-Zionist senior adviser David Axelrod, chief strategist in Obama's two successful presidential campaigns. Emmanuel, later mayor of Chicago and former senior fundraiser and strategist for Bill Clinton, is an example of the Sabbatian policy after Israel was established of migrating insider families to America so their children would be born American citizens. 'Obama' chose this financial team throughout his administration to respond to the Sabbatian-instigated crisis:

Timothy Geithner (ultra-Zionist) Treasury Secretary; Jacob J. Lew, Treasury Secretary; Larry Summers (ultra-Zionist), director of the White House National Economic Council; Paul Adolph Volcker (Rothschild business partner), chairman of the Economic Recovery Advisory Board; Peter Orszag (ultra-Zionist), director of the Office of Management and Budget overseeing all government spending; Penny Pritzker (ultra-Zionist), Commerce Secretary; Jared Bernstein (ultra-Zionist), chief economist and economic policy adviser to Vice President Joe Biden; Mary Schapiro (ultra-Zionist), chair of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC); Gary Gensler (ultra-Zionist), chairman of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC); Sheila Bair (ultra-Zionist), chair of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC); Karen Mills (ultra-Zionist), head of the Small Business Administration (SBA); Kenneth Feinberg (ultra-Zionist), Special Master for Executive [bail-out] Compensation. Feinberg would be appointed to oversee compensation (with strings) to 9/11 victims and families in a campaign to stop them having their day in court to question the official story. At the same time ultra-Zionist Bernard Bernanke was chairman of the Federal Reserve and these are only some of the ultra-Zionists with allegiance to Sabbatian-controlled Israel in the Obama government. Obama's biggest corporate donor was ultra-Zionist Goldman Sachs which had employed many in his administration.

Donald Trump ('Republican')

Trump claimed to be an outsider (he wasn't) who had come to 'drain the swamp'. He embarked on this goal by immediately appointing ultra-Zionist Steve Mnuchin, a Goldman Sachs employee for 17 years, as his Treasury Secretary. Others included Gary Cohn (ultra-Zionist), chief operating officer of Goldman Sachs, his first Director of the National Economic Council and chief economic adviser, who was later replaced by Larry Kudlow (ultra-Zionist). Trump's senior adviser throughout his four years in the White House was his sinister son-in-law Jared Kushner, a life-long friend of Israel Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu. Kushner is the son of a convicted crook who was pardoned by Trump in his last days in office. Other ultra-Zionists in the Trump administration included: Stephen Miller, Senior Policy Adviser; Avrahm Berkowitz, Deputy Adviser to Trump and his Senior Adviser Jared Kushner; Ivanka Trump, Adviser to the President, who converted to Judaism when she married Jared Kushner; David Friedman, Trump lawyer and Ambassador to Israel; Jason Greenblatt, Trump Organization executive vice president and chief legal officer, who was made Special Representative for International Negotiations and the Israeli-Palestinian Conflict; Rod Rosenstein, Deputy Attorney General; Elliot Abrams, Special Representative for Venezuela, then Iran; John Eisenberg, National Security Council Legal Adviser and Deputy Council to the President for National Security Affairs; Anne Neuberger, Deputy National Manager, National Security Agency; Ezra Cohen-Watnick, Acting Under Secretary of Defense for Intelligence; Elan Carr, Special Envoy to monitor and combat anti-Semitism; Len Khodorkovsky, Deputy Special Envoy to monitor and combat anti-Semitism; Reed Cordish, Assistant to the President, Intragovernmental and Technology Initiatives. Trump Vice President Mike Pence and Secretary of State Mike Pompeo, both Christian Zionists, were also vehement supporters of Israel and its goals and ambitions.

Donald 'free-speech believer' Trump pardoned a number of financial and violent criminals while ignoring calls to pardon Julian Assange and Edward Snowden whose crimes are revealing highly relevant information about government manipulation and corruption and the widespread illegal surveillance of the American people by US 'security' agencies. It's so good to know that Trump is on the side of freedom and justice and not mega-criminals with allegiance to Sabbatian-controlled Israel. These included a pardon for Israeli spy Jonathan Pollard who was jailed for life in 1987 under the Espionage Act. Aviem Sella, the Mossad agent who recruited Pollard, was also pardoned by Trump while Assange sat in jail and Snowden remained in exile in Russia. Sella had 'fled' (was helped to escape) to Israel in 1987 and was never extradited despite being charged under the Espionage Act. A Trump White House statement said that Sella's clemency had been 'supported by Benjamin Netanyahu, Ron Dermer, Israel's US Ambassador, David Friedman, US Ambassador to Israel and Miriam Adelson, wife of leading Trump donor Sheldon Adelson who died shortly before. Other friends of Jared Kushner were pardoned along with Sholom Weiss who was believed to be serving the longest-ever white-collar prison sentence of more than 800 years in 2000. The sentence was commuted of Ponzi-schemer Eliyahu Weinstein who defrauded Jews and others out of $200 million. I did mention that Assange and Snowden were ignored, right? Trump gave Sabbatians almost everything they asked for in military and political support, moving the US Embassy from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem with its critical symbolic and literal implications for Palestinian statehood, and the 'deal of the Century' designed by Jared Kushner and David Friedman which gave the Sabbatian Israeli government the green light to substantially expand its already widespread program of building illegal Jewish-only settlements in the occupied land of the West Bank. This made a two-state 'solution' impossible by seizing all the land of a potential Palestinian homeland and that had been the plan since 1948 and then 1967 when the Arab-controlled Gaza Strip, West Bank, Sinai Peninsula and Syrian Golan Heights were occupied by Israel. All the talks about talks and road maps and delays have been buying time until the West Bank was physically occupied by Israeli real estate. Trump would have to be a monumentally ill-informed idiot not to see that this was the plan he was helping to complete. The Trump administration was in so many ways the Kushner administration which means the Netanyahu administration which means the Sabbatian administration. I understand why many opposing Cult fascism in all its forms gravitated to Trump, but he was a crucial part of the Sabbatian plan and I will deal with this in the next chapter.

Joe Biden ('Democrat')

A barely cognitive Joe Biden took over the presidency in January, 2021, along with his fellow empty shell, Vice-President Kamala Harris, as the latest Sabbatian gofers to enter the White House. Names on the door may have changed and the 'party' – the force behind them remained the same as Zionists were appointed to a stream of pivotal areas relating to Sabbatian plans and policy. They included: Janet Yellen, Treasury Secretary, former head of the Federal Reserve, and still another ultra-Zionist running the US Treasury after Mnuchin (Trump), Lew and Geithner (Obama), and Summers and Rubin (Clinton); Anthony Blinken, Secretary of State; Wendy Sherman, Deputy Secretary of State (so that's 'Biden's' Sabbatian foreign policy sorted); Jeff Zients, White House coronavirus coordinator; Rochelle Walensky, head of the Centers for Disease Control; Rachel Levine, transgender deputy health secretary (that's 'Covid' hoax policy under control); Merrick Garland, Attorney General; Alejandro Mayorkas, Secretary of Homeland Security; Cass Sunstein, Homeland Security with responsibility for new immigration laws; Avril Haines, Director of National Intelligence; Anne Neuberger, National Security Agency cybersecurity director (note, cybersecurity); David Cohen, CIA Deputy Director; Ronald Klain, Biden's Chief of Staff (see Rahm Emanuel); Eric Lander, a 'leading geneticist', Office of Science and Technology Policy director (see Smart Grid, synthetic biology agenda); Jessica Rosenworcel, acting head of the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) which controls Smart Grid technology policy and electromagnetic communication systems including 5G. How can it be that so many pivotal positions are held by two-percent of the American population and 0.2 percent of the world population administration after administration no matter who is the president and what is the party? It's a coincidence? Of course it's not and this is why Sabbatians have built their colossal global web of interlocking 'anti-hate' hate groups to condemn anyone who asks these glaring questions as an 'anti-Semite'. The way that Jewish people horrifically abused in Sabbatian-backed Nazi Germany are exploited to this end is stomach-turning and disgusting beyond words.

Political fusion

Sabbatian manipulation has reversed the roles of Republicans and Democrats and the same has happened in Britain with the Conservative and Labour Parties. Republicans and Conservatives were always labelled the 'right' and Democrats and Labour the 'left', but look at the policy positions now and the Democrat-Labour 'left' has moved further to the 'right' than Republicans and Conservatives under the banner of 'Woke', the Cult-created far-right tyranny. Where once the Democrat-Labour 'left' defended free speech and human rights they now seek to delete them and as I said earlier despite the 'Covid' fascism of the Jackboot Johnson Conservative government in the UK the Labour Party of leader Keir Starmer demanded even more extreme measures. The Labour Party has been very publicly absorbed by Sabbatians after a political and media onslaught against the previous leader, the weak and inept Jeremy Corbyn, over made-up allegations of 'anti-Semitism' both by him and his party. The plan was clear with this 'anti-Semite' propaganda and what was required in response was a swift and decisive 'fuck off' from Corbyn and a statement to expose the Anti-Semitism Industry (Sabbatian) attempt to silence Labour criticism of the Israeli government (Sabbatians) and purge the party of all dissent against the extremes of ultra-Zionism (Sabbatians). Instead Corbyn and his party fell to their knees and appeased the abusers which, by definition, is impossible. Appeasing one demand leads only to a new demand to be appeased until takeover is complete. Like I say – 'fuck off' would have been a much more effective policy and I have used it myself with great effect over the years when Sabbatians are on my case which is most of the time. I consider that fact a great compliment, by the way. The outcome of the Labour Party capitulation is that we now have a Sabbatian-controlled Conservative Party 'opposed' by a Sabbatian-controlled Labour Party in a one-party Sabbatian state that hurtles towards the extremes of tyranny (the Sabbatian cult agenda). In America the situation is the same. Labour's Keir Starmer spends his days on his knees with his tongue out pointing to Tel Aviv, or I guess now Jerusalem, while Boris Johnson has an 'anti-Semitism czar' in the form of former Labour MP John Mann who keeps Starmer company on his prayer mat.

Sabbatian influence can be seen in Jewish members of the Labour Party who have been ejected for criticism of Israel including those from families that suffered in Nazi Germany. Sabbatians despise real Jewish people and target them even more harshly because it is so much more difficult to dub them 'anti-Semitic' although in their desperation they do try.

CHAPTER THREE

The Pushbacker sting

Until you realize how easy it is for your mind to be manipulated, you remain the puppet of someone else's game

Evita Ochel

I will use the presidencies of Trump and Biden to show how the manipulation of the one-party state plays out behind the illusion of political choice across the world. No two presidencies could – on the face of it – be more different and apparently at odds in terms of direction and policy.

A Renegade Mind sees beyond the obvious and focuses on outcomes and consequences and not image, words and waffle. The Cult embarked on a campaign to divide America between those who blindly support its agenda (the mentality known as 'Woke') and those who are pushing back on where the Cult and its Sabbatians want to go. This presents infinite possibilities for dividing and ruling the population by setting them at war with each other and allows a perceptual ring fence of demonisation to encircle the Pushbackers in a modern version of the Little Big Horn in 1876 when American cavalry led by Lieutenant Colonel George Custer were drawn into a trap, surrounded and killed by Native American tribes defending their land of thousands of years from being seized by the government. In this modern version the roles are reversed and it's those defending themselves from the Sabbatian government who are surrounded and the government that's seeking to destroy them. This trap was set years ago and to explain how we must return to 2016 and the emergence of Donald Trump as a candidate to be President of the United States. He set out to overcome the best part of 20 other candidates in the Republican Party before and during the primaries and was not considered by many in those early stages to have a prayer of living in the White House. The Republican Party was said to have great reservations about Trump and yet somehow he won the nomination. When you know how American politics works – politics in general – there is no way that Trump could have become the party's candidate unless the Sabbatian-controlled 'Neocons' that run the Republican Party wanted that to happen. We saw the proof in emails and documents made public by WikiLeaks that the Democratic Party hierarchy, or Democons, systematically undermined the campaign of Bernie Sanders to make sure that Sabbatian gofer Hillary Clinton won the nomination to be their presidential candidate. If the Democons could do that then the Neocons in the Republican Party could have derailed Trump in the same way. But they didn't and at that stage I began to conclude that Trump could well be the one chosen to be president. If that was the case the 'why' was pretty clear to see – the goal of dividing America between Cult agenda-supporting Wokers and Pushbackers who gravitated to Trump because he was telling them what they wanted to hear. His constituency of support had been increasingly ignored and voiceless for decades and profoundly through the eight years of Sabbatian puppet Barack Obama. Now here was someone speaking their language of pulling back from the incessant globalisation of political and economic power, the exporting of American jobs to China and elsewhere by 'American' (Sabbatian) corporations, the deletion of free speech, and the mass immigration policies that had further devastated job opportunities for the urban working class of all races and the once American heartlands of the Midwest.

Beware the forked tongue

Those people collectively sighed with relief that at last a political leader was apparently on their side, but another trait of the Renegade Mind is that you look even harder at people telling you what you want to hear than those who are telling you otherwise. Obviously as I said earlier people wish what they want to hear to be true and genuine and they are much more likely to believe that than someone saying what they don't want to hear and don't want to be true. Sales people are taught to be skilled in eliciting by calculated questioning what their customers want to hear and repeating that back to them as their own opinion to get their targets to like and trust them. Assets of the Cult are also sales people in the sense of selling perception. To read Cult manipulation you have to play the long and expanded game and not fall for the Vaudeville show of party politics. Both American parties are vehicles for the Cult and they exploit them in different ways depending on what the agenda requires at that moment. Trump and the Republicans were used to be the focus of dividing America and isolating Pushbackers to open the way for a Biden presidency to become the most extreme in American history by advancing the full-blown Woke (Cult) agenda with the aim of destroying and silencing Pushbackers now labelled Nazi Trump supporters and white supremacists.

Sabbatians wanted Trump in office for the reasons described by ultra-Zionist Saul Alinsky (1909-1972) who was promoting the Woke philosophy through 'community organising' long before anyone had heard of it. In those days it still went by its traditional name of Marxism. The reason for the manipulated Trump phenomenon was laid out in Alinsky's 1971 book, Rules for Radicals, which was his blueprint for overthrowing democratic and other regimes and replacing them with Sabbatian Marxism. Not surprisingly his to-do list was evident in the Sabbatian French and Russian 'Revolutions' and that in China which will become very relevant in the next chapter about the 'Covid' hoax. Among Alinsky's followers have been the deeply corrupt Barack Obama, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi and Hillary Clinton who described him as a 'hero'. All three are Sabbatian stooges with Pelosi personifying the arrogant corrupt idiocy that so widely fronts up for the Cult inner core. Predictably as a Sabbatian advocate of the 'light-bringer' Alinsky features Lucifer on the dedication page of his book as the original radical who gained his own kingdom ('Earth' as we shall see). One of Alinsky's golden radical rules was to pick an individual and focus all attention, hatred and blame on them and not to target faceless bureaucracies and corporations. Rules for Radicals is really a Sabbatian handbook with its contents repeatedly employed all over the world for centuries and why wouldn't Sabbatians bring to power their designer-villain to be used as the individual on which all attention, hatred and blame was bestowed? This is what they did and the only question for me is how much Trump knew that and how much he was manipulated. A bit of both, I suspect. This was Alinsky's Trump technique from a man who died in 1972. The technique has spanned history:

Pick the target, freeze it, personalize it, polarize it. Don't try to attack abstract corporations or bureaucracies. Identify a responsible individual. Ignore attempts to shift or spread the blame.

From the moment Trump came to illusory power everything was about him. It wasn't about Republican policy or opinion, but all about Trump. Everything he did was presented in negative, derogatory and abusive terms by the Sabbatian-dominated media led by Cult operations such as CNN, MSNBC, The New York Times and the Jeff Bezos-owned Washington Post – 'Pick the target, freeze it, personalize it, polarize it.' Trump was turned into a demon to be vilified by those who hated him and a demi-god loved by those who worshipped him. This, in turn, had his supporters, too, presented as equally demonic in preparation for the punchline later down the line when Biden was about to take office. It was here's a Trump, there's a Trump, everywhere a Trump, Trump. Virtually every news story or happening was filtered through the lens of 'The Donald'. You loved him or hated him and which one you chose was said to define you as Satan's spawn or a paragon of virtue. Even supporting some Trump policies or statements and not others was enough for an assault on your character. No shades of grey were or are allowed. Everything is black and white (literally and figuratively). A Californian I knew had her head utterly scrambled by her hatred for Trump while telling people they should love each other. She was so totally consumed by Trump Derangement Syndrome as it became to be known that this glaring contradiction would never have occurred to her. By definition anyone who criticised Trump or praised his opponents was a hero and this lady described Joe Biden as 'a kind, honest gentleman' when he's a provable liar, mega-crook and vicious piece of work to boot. Sabbatians had indeed divided America using Trump as the fall-guy and all along the clock was ticking on the consequences for his supporters.

In hock to his masters

Trump gave Sabbatians via Israel almost everything they wanted in his four years. Ask and you shall receive was the dynamic between himself and Benjamin Netanyahu orchestrated by Trump's ultra-Zionist son-in-law Jared Kushner, his ultra-Zionist Ambassador to Israel, David Friedman, and ultra-Zionist 'Israel adviser', Jason Greenblatt. The last two were central to the running and protecting from collapse of his business empire, the Trump Organisation, and colossal business failures made him forever beholding to Sabbatian networks that bailed him out. By the start of the 1990s Trump owed $4 billion to banks that he couldn't pay and almost $1 billion of that was down to him personally and not his companies. This mega-disaster was the result of building two new casinos in Atlantic City and buying the enormous Taj Mahal operation which led to crippling debt payments. He had borrowed fantastic sums from 72 banks with major Sabbatian connections and although the scale of debt should have had him living in a tent alongside the highway they never foreclosed. A plan was devised to lift Trump from the mire by BT Securities Corporation and Rothschild Inc. and the case was handled by Wilber Ross who had worked for the Rothschilds for 27 years. Ross would be named US Commerce Secretary after Trump's election. Another crucial figure in saving Trump was ultra-Zionist 'investor' Carl Icahn who bought the Taj Mahal casino. Icahn was made special economic adviser on financial regulation in the Trump administration. He didn't stay long but still managed to find time to make a tidy sum of a reported $31.3 million when he sold his holdings affected by the price of steel three days before Trump imposed a 235 percent tariff on steel imports. What amazing bits of luck these people have. Trump and Sabbatian operatives have long had a close association and his mentor and legal adviser from the early 1970s until 1986 was the dark and genetically corrupt ultra-Zionist Roy Cohn who was chief counsel to Senator Joseph McCarthy's 'communist' witch-hunt in the 1950s. Esquire magazine published an article about Cohn with the headline 'Don't mess with Roy Cohn'. He was described as the most feared lawyer in New York and 'a ruthless master of dirty tricks ... [with] ... more than one Mafia Don on speed dial'. Cohn's influence, contacts, support and protection made Trump a front man for Sabbatians in New York with their connections to one of Cohn's many criminal employers, the 'Russian' Sabbatian Mafia. Israel-centric media mogul Rupert Murdoch was introduced to Trump by Cohn and they started a long friendship. Cohn died in 1986 weeks after being disbarred for unethical conduct by the Appellate Division of the New York State Supreme Court. The wheels of justice do indeed run slow given the length of Cohn's crooked career.

QAnon-sense

We are asked to believe that Donald Trump with his fundamental connections to Sabbatian networks and operatives has been leading the fight to stop the Sabbatian agenda for the fascistic control of America and the world. Sure he has. A man entrapped during his years in the White House by Sabbatian operatives and whose biggest financial donor was casino billionaire Sheldon Adelson who was Sabbatian to his DNA?? Oh, do come on. Trump has been used to divide America and isolate Pushbackers on the Cult agenda under the heading of 'Trump supporters', 'insurrectionists' and 'white supremacists'. The US Intelligence/Mossad Psyop or psychological operation known as QAnon emerged during the Trump years as a central pillar in the Sabbatian campaign to lead Pushbackers into the trap set by those that wished to destroy them. I knew from the start that QAnon was a scam because I had seen the same scenario many times before over 30 years under different names and I had written about one in particular in the books. 'Not again' was my reaction when QAnon came to the fore. The same script is pulled out every few years and a new name added to the letterhead. The story always takes the same form: 'Insiders' or 'the good guys' in the government-intelligence-military 'Deep State' apparatus were going to instigate mass arrests of the 'bad guys' which would include the Rockefellers, Rothschilds, Barack Obama, Hillary Clinton, George Soros, etc., etc. Dates are given for when the 'good guys' are going to move in, but the dates pass without incident and new dates are given which pass without incident. The central message to Pushbackers in each case is that they don't have to do anything because there is 'a plan' and it is all going to be sorted by the 'good guys' on the inside. 'Trust the plan' was a QAnon mantra when the only plan was to misdirect Pushbackers into putting their trust in a Psyop they believed to be real. Beware, beware, those who tell you what you want to hear and always check it out. Right up to Biden's inauguration QAnon was still claiming that 'the Storm' was coming and Trump would stay on as president when Biden and his cronies were arrested and jailed. It was never going to happen and of course it didn't, but what did happen as a result provided that punchline to the Sabbatian Trump/QAnon Psyop.

On January 6th, 2021, a very big crowd of Trump supporters gathered in the National Mall in Washington DC down from the Capitol Building to protest at what they believed to be widespread corruption and vote fraud that stopped Trump being re-elected for a second term as president in November, 2020. I say as someone that does not support Trump or Biden that the evidence is clear that major vote-fixing went on to favour Biden, a man with cognitive problems so advanced he can often hardly string a sentence together without reading the words written for him on the Teleprompter. Glaring ballot discrepancies included serious questions about electronic voting machines that make vote rigging a comparative cinch and hundreds of thousands of paper votes that suddenly appeared during already advanced vote counts and virtually all of them for Biden. Early Trump leads in crucial swing states suddenly began to close and disappear. The pandemic hoax was used as the excuse to issue almost limitless numbers of mail-in ballots with no checks to establish that the recipients were still alive or lived at that address. They were sent to streams of people who had not even asked for them. Private organisations were employed to gather these ballots and who knows what they did with them before they turned up at the counts. The American election system has been manipulated over decades to become a sick joke with more holes than a Swiss cheese for the express purpose of dictating the results. Then there was the criminal manipulation of information by Sabbatian tech giants like Facebook, Twitter and Google-owned YouTube which deleted pro-Trump, anti-Biden accounts and posts while everything in support of Biden was left alone. Sabbatians wanted Biden to win because after the dividing of America it was time for full-on Woke and every aspect of the Cult agenda to be unleashed.

Hunter gatherer

Extreme Silicon Valley bias included blocking information by the New York Post exposing a Biden scandal that should have ended his bid for president in the final weeks of the campaign. Hunter Biden, his monumentally corrupt son, is reported to have sent a laptop to be repaired at a local store and failed to return for it. Time passed until the laptop became the property of the store for non-payment of the bill. When the owner saw what was on the hard drive he gave a copy to the FBI who did nothing even though it confirmed widespread corruption in which the Joe Biden family were using his political position, especially when he was vice president to Obama, to make multiple millions in countries around the world and most notably Ukraine and China. Hunter Biden's one-time business partner Tony Bobulinski went public when the story broke in the New York Post to confirm the corruption he saw and that Joe Biden not only knew what was going on he also profited from the spoils. Millions were handed over by a Chinese company with close connections – like all major businesses in China – to the Chinese communist party of President Xi Jinping. Joe Biden even boasted at a meeting of the Cult's World Economic Forum that as vice president he had ordered the government of Ukraine to fire a prosecutor. What he didn't mention was that the same man just happened to be investigating an energy company which was part of Hunter Biden's corrupt portfolio. The company was paying him big bucks for no other reason than the influence his father had. Overnight Biden's presidential campaign should have been over given that he had lied publicly about not knowing what his son was doing. Instead almost the entire Sabbatian-owned mainstream media and Sabbatian-owned Silicon Valley suppressed circulation of the story. This alone went a mighty way to rigging the election of 2020. Cult assets like Mark Zuckerberg at Facebook also spent hundreds of millions to be used in support of Biden and vote 'administration'.

The Cult had used Trump as the focus to divide America and was now desperate to bring in moronic, pliable, corrupt Biden to complete the double-whammy. No way were they going to let little things like the will of the people thwart their plan. Silicon Valley widely censored claims that the election was rigged because it was rigged. For the same reason anyone claiming it was rigged was denounced as a 'white supremacist' including the pathetically few Republican politicians willing to say so. Right across the media where the claim was mentioned it was described as a 'false claim' even though these excuses for 'journalists' would have done no research into the subject whatsoever. Trump won seven million more votes than any sitting president had ever achieved while somehow a cognitively-challenged soon to be 78-year-old who was hidden away from the public for most of the campaign managed to win more votes than any presidential candidate in history. It makes no sense. You only had to see election rallies for both candidates to witness the enthusiasm for Trump and the apathy for Biden. Tens of thousands would attend Trump events while Biden was speaking in empty car parks with often only television crews attending and framing their shots to hide the fact that no one was there. It was pathetic to see footage come to light of Biden standing at a podium making speeches only to TV crews and party fixers while reading the words written for him on massive Teleprompter screens. So, yes, those protestors on January 6th had a point about election rigging, but some were about to walk into a trap laid for them in Washington by the Cult Deep State and its QAnon Psyop. This was the Capitol Hill riot ludicrously dubbed an 'insurrection'.

The spider and the fly

Renegade Minds know there are not two 'sides' in politics, only one side, the Cult, working through all 'sides'. It's a stage show, a puppet show, to direct the perceptions of the population into focusing on diversions like parties and candidates while missing the puppeteers with their hands holding all the strings. The Capitol Hill 'insurrection' brings us back to the Little Big Horn. Having created two distinct opposing groupings – Woke and Pushbackers – the trap was about to be sprung. Pushbackers were to be encircled and isolated by associating them all in the public mind with Trump and then labelling Trump as some sort of Confederate leader. I knew immediately that the Capitol riot was a set-up because of two things. One was how easy the rioters got into the building with virtually no credible resistance and secondly I could see – as with the 'Covid' hoax in the West at the start of 2020 – how the Cult could exploit the situation to move its agenda forward with great speed. My experience of Cult techniques and activities over more than 30 years has showed me that while they do exploit situations they haven't themselves created this never happens with events of fundamental agenda significance. Every time major events giving cultists the excuse to rapidly advance their plan you find they are manipulated into being for the specific reason of providing that excuse – Problem-Reaction-Solution. Only a tiny minority of the huge crowd of Washington protestors sought to gain entry to the Capitol by smashing windows and breaching doors. That didn't matter. The whole crowd and all Pushbackers, even if they did not support Trump, were going to be lumped together as dangerous insurrectionists and conspiracy theorists. The latter term came into widespread use through a CIA memo in the 1960s aimed at discrediting those questioning the nonsensical official story of the Kennedy assassination and it subsequently became widely employed by the media. It's still being used by inept 'journalists' with no idea of its origin to discredit anyone questioning anything that authority claims to be true. When you are perpetrating a conspiracy you need to discredit the very word itself even though the dictionary definition of conspiracy is merely 'the activity of secretly planning with other people to do something bad or illegal' and 'a general agreement to keep silent about a subject for the purpose of keeping it secret'. On that basis there are conspiracies almost wherever you look. For obvious reasons the Cult and its lapdog media have to claim there are no conspiracies even though the word appears in state laws as with conspiracy to defraud, to murder, and to corrupt public morals.

Agent provocateurs are widely used by the Cult Deep State to manipulate genuine people into acting in ways that suit the desired outcome. By genuine in this case I mean protestors genuinely supporting Trump and claims that the election was stolen. In among them, however, were agents of the state wearing the garb of Trump supporters and QAnon to pump-prime the Capital riot which some genuine Trump supporters naively fell for. I described the situation as 'Come into my parlour said the spider to the fly'. Leaflets appeared through the Woke paramilitary arm Antifa, the anti-fascist fascists, calling on supporters to turn up in Washington looking like Trump supporters even though they hated him. Some of those arrested for breaching the Capitol Building were sourced to Antifa and its stable mate Black Lives Matter. Both organisations are funded by Cult billionaires and corporations. One man charged for the riot was according to his lawyer a former FBI agent who had held top secret security clearance for 40 years. Attorney Thomas Plofchan said of his client, 66-year-old Thomas Edward Caldwell:

He has held a Top Secret Security Clearance since 1979 and has undergone multiple Special Background Investigations in support of his clearances. After retiring from the Navy, he worked as a section chief for the Federal Bureau of Investigation from 2009-2010 as a GS-12 [mid-level employee].

He also formed and operated a consulting firm performing work, often classified, for U.S government customers including the US Drug Enforcement Agency, Department of Housing and Urban Development, the US Coast Guard, and the US Army Personnel Command.

A judge later released Caldwell pending trial in the absence of evidence about a conspiracy or that he tried to force his way into the building. The New York Post reported a 'law enforcement source' as saying that 'at least two known Antifa members were spotted' on camera among Trump supporters during the riot while one of the rioters arrested was John Earle Sullivan, a seriously extreme Black Lives Matter Trump-hater from Utah who was previously arrested and charged in July, 2020, over a BLM-Antifa riot in which drivers were threatened and one was shot. Sullivan is the founder of Utah-based Insurgence USA which is an affiliate of the Cult-created-and-funded Black Lives Matter movement. Footage appeared and was then deleted by Twitter of Trump supporters calling out Antifa infiltrators and a group was filmed changing into pro-Trump clothing before the riot. Security at the building was pathetic – as planned. Colonel Leroy Fletcher Prouty, a man with long experience in covert operations working with the US security apparatus, once described the tell-tale sign to identify who is involved in an assassination. He said:

No one has to direct an assassination – it happens. The active role is played secretly by permitting it to happen. This is the greatest single clue. Who has the power to call off or reduce the usual security precautions?

This principle applies to many other situations and certainly to the Capitol riot of January 6th, 2021.

The sting

With such a big and potentially angry crowd known to be gathering near the Capitol the security apparatus would have had a major police detail to defend the building with National Guard troops on standby given the strength of feeling among people arriving from all over America encouraged by the QAnon Psyop and statements by Donald Trump. Instead Capitol Police 'security' was flimsy, weak, and easily breached. The same number of officers was deployed as on a regular day and that is a blatant red flag. They were not staffed or equipped for a possible riot that had been an obvious possibility in the circumstances. No protective and effective fencing worth the name was put in place and there were no contingency plans. The whole thing was basically a case of standing aside and waving people in. Once inside police mostly backed off apart from one Capitol police officer who ridiculously shot dead unarmed Air Force veteran protestor Ashli Babbitt without a warning as she climbed through a broken window. The 'investigation' refused to name or charge the officer after what must surely be considered a murder in the circumstances. They just lifted a carpet and swept. The story was endlessly repeated about five people dying in the 'armed insurrection' when there was no report of rioters using weapons. Apart from Babbitt the other four died from a heart attack, strokes and apparently a drug overdose. Capitol police officer Brian Sicknick was reported to have died after being bludgeoned with a fire extinguisher when he was alive after the riot was over and died later of what the Washington Medical Examiner's Office said was a stroke. Sicknick had no external injuries. The lies were delivered like rapid fire. There was a narrative to build with incessant repetition of the lie until the lie became the accepted 'everybody knows that' truth. The 'Big Lie' technique of Nazi Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels is constantly used by the Cult which was behind the Nazis and is today behind the 'Covid' and 'climate change' hoaxes. Goebbels said:

If you tell a lie big enough and keep repeating it, people will eventually come to believe it. The lie can be maintained only for such time as the State can shield the people from the political, economic and/or military consequences of the lie. It thus becomes vitally important for the State to use all of its powers to repress dissent, for the truth is the mortal enemy of the lie, and thus by extension, the truth is the greatest enemy of the State.

Most protestors had a free run of the Capitol Building. This allowed pictures to be taken of rioters in iconic parts of the building including the Senate chamber which could be used as propaganda images against all Pushbackers. One Congresswoman described the scene as 'the worst kind of non-security anybody could ever imagine'. Well, the first part was true, but someone obviously did imagine it and made sure it happened. Some photographs most widely circulated featured people wearing QAnon symbols and now the Psyop would be used to dub all QAnon followers with the ubiquitous fit-all label of 'white supremacist' and 'insurrectionists'. When a Muslim extremist called Noah Green drove his car at two police officers at the Capitol Building killing one in April, 2021, there was no such political and media hysteria. They were just disappointed he wasn't white.

The witch-hunt

Government prosecutor Michael Sherwin, an aggressive, dark-eyed, professional Rottweiler led the 'investigation' and to call it over the top would be to understate reality a thousand fold. Hundreds were tracked down and arrested for the crime of having the wrong political views and people were jailed who had done nothing more than walk in the building, committed no violence or damage to property, took a few pictures and left. They were labelled a 'threat to the Republic' while Biden sat in the White House signing executive orders written for him that were dismantling 'the Republic'. Even when judges ruled that a mother and son should not be in jail the government kept them there. Some of those arrested have been badly beaten by prison guards in Washington and lawyers for one man said he suffered a fractured skull and was made blind in one eye. Meanwhile a woman is shot dead for no reason by a Capitol Police officer and we are not allowed to know who he is never mind what has happened to him although that will be nothing. The Cult's QAnon/Trump sting to identify and isolate Pushbackers and then target them on the road to crushing and deleting them was a resounding success. You would have thought the Russians had invaded the building at gunpoint and lined up senators for a firing squad to see the political and media reaction. Congresswoman Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez is a child in a woman's body, a terrible-tvos, me, me, me, Woker narcissist of such proportions that words have no meaning. She said she thought she was going to die when 'insurrectionists' banged on her office door. It turned out she wasn't even in the Capitol Building when the riot was happening and the 'banging' was a Capitol Police officer. She referred to herself as a 'survivor' which is an insult to all those true survivors of violent and sexual abuse while she lives her pampered and privileged life talking drivel for a living. Her Woke colleague and fellow mega-narcissist Rashida Tlaib broke down describing the devastating effect on her, too, of not being in the building when the rioters were there. Ocasio-Cortez and Tlaib are members of a fully-Woke group of Congresswomen known as 'The Squad' along with Ilhan Omar and Ayanna Pressley. The Squad from what I can see can be identified by its vehement anti-white racism, anti-white men agenda, and, as always in these cases, the absence of brain cells on active duty.

The usual suspects were on the riot case immediately in the form of Democrat ultra-Zionist senators and operatives Chuck Schumer and Adam Schiff demanding that Trump be impeached for 'his part in the insurrection'. The same pair of prats had led the failed impeachment of Trump over the invented 'Russia collusion' nonsense which claimed Russia had helped Trump win the 2016 election. I didn't realise that Tel Aviv had been relocated just outside Moscow. I must find an up-to-date map. The Russia hoax was a Sabbatian operation to keep Trump occupied and impotent and to stop any rapport with Russia which the Cult wants to retain as a perceptual enemy to be pulled out at will. Puppet Biden began attacking Russia when he came to office as the Cult seeks more upheaval, division and war across the world. A two-year stage show 'Russia collusion inquiry' headed by the not-very-bright former 9/11 FBI chief Robert Mueller, with support from 19 lawyers, 40 FBI agents plus intelligence analysts, forensic accountants and other staff, devoured tens of millions of dollars and found no evidence of Russia collusion which a ten-year-old could have told them on day one. Now the same moronic Schumer and Schiff wanted a second impeachment of Trump over the Capitol 'insurrection' (riot) which the arrested development of Schumer called another 'Pearl Harbor' while others compared it with 9/11 in which 3,000 died and, in the case of CNN, with the Rwandan genocide in the 1990s in which an estimated 500,000 to 600,000 were murdered, between 250, 000 and 500,000 women were raped, and populations of whole towns were hacked to death with machetes. To make those comparisons purely for Cult political reasons is beyond insulting to those that suffered and lost their lives and confirms yet again the callous inhumanity that we are dealing with. Schumer is a monumental idiot and so is Schiff, but they serve the Cult agenda and do whatever they're told so they get looked after. Talking of idiots – another inane man who spanned the Russia and Capitol impeachment attempts was Senator Eric Swalwell who had the nerve to accuse Trump of collusion with the Russians while sleeping with a Chinese spy called Christine Fang or 'Fang Fang' which is straight out of a Bond film no doubt starring Klaus Schwab as the bloke living on a secret island and controlling laser weapons positioned in space and pointing at world capitals. Fang Fang plays the part of Bond's infiltrator girlfriend which I'm sure she would enjoy rather more than sharing a bed with the brainless Swalwell, lying back and thinking of China. The FBI eventually warned Swalwell about Fang Fang which gave her time to escape back to the Chinese dictatorship. How very thoughtful of them. The second Trump impeachment also failed and hardly surprising when an impeachment is supposed to remove a sitting president and by the time it happened Trump was no longer president. These people are running your country America, well, officially anyway. Terrifying isn't it?

Outcomes tell the story - always

The outcome of all this – and it's the outcome on which Renegade Minds focus, not the words – was that a vicious, hysterical and obviously pre-planned assault was launched on Pushbackers to censor, silence and discredit them and even targeted their right to earn a living. They have since been condemned as 'domestic terrorists' that need to be treated like Al-Qaeda and Islamic State. 'Domestic terrorists' is a label the Cult has been trying to make stick since the period of the Oklahoma bombing in 1995 which was blamed on 'far-right domestic terrorists'. If you read The Trigger you will see that the bombing was clearly a Problem-Reaction-Solution carried out by the Deep State during a Bill Clinton administration so corrupt that no dictionary definition of the term would even nearly suffice. Nearly 30, 000 troops were deployed from all over America to the empty streets of Washington for Biden's inauguration. Ten thousand of them stayed on with the pretext of protecting the capital from insurrectionists when it was more psychological programming to normalise the use of the military in domestic law enforcement in support of the Cult plan for a police-military state. Biden's fascist administration began a purge of 'wrong-thinkers' in the military which means anyone that is not on board with Woke. The Capitol Building was surrounded by a fence with razor wire and the Land of the Free was further symbolically and literally dismantled. The circle was completed with the installation of Biden and the exploitation of the QAnon Psyop.

America had never been so divided since the civil war of the 19th century, Pushbackers were isolated and dubbed terrorists and now, as was always going to happen, the Cult immediately set about deleting what little was left of freedom and transforming American society through a swish of the hand of the most controlled 'president' in American history leading (officially at least) the most extreme regime since the country was declared an independent state on July 4th, 1776. Biden issued undebated, dictatorial executive orders almost by the hour in his opening days in office across the whole spectrum of the Cult wish-list including diluting controls on the border with Mexico allowing thousands of migrants to illegally enter the United States to transform the demographics of America and import an election-changing number of perceived Democrat voters. Then there were Biden deportation amnesties for the already illegally resident (estimated to be as high as 20 or even 30 million). A bill before Congress awarded American citizenship to anyone who could prove they had worked in agriculture for just 180 days in the previous two years as 'Big Ag' secured its slave labour long-term. There were the plans to add new states to the union such as Puerto Rico and making Washington DC a state. They are all parts of a plan to ensure that the Cult-owned Woke Democrats would be permanently in power.

Border – what border?

I have exposed in detail in other books how mass immigration into the United States and Europe is the work of Cult networks fuelled by the tens of billions spent to this and other ends by George Soros and his global Open Society (open borders) Foundations. The impact can be seen in America alone where the population has increased by 100 million in little more than 30 years mostly through immigration. I wrote in The Answer that the plan was to have so many people crossing the southern border that the numbers become unstoppable and we are now there under Cult-owned Biden. El Salvador in Central America puts the scale of what is happening into context. A third of the population now lives in the United States, much of it illegally, and many more are on the way. The methodology is to crush Central and South American countries economically and spread violence through machete-wielding psychopathic gangs like MS-13 based in El Salvador and now operating in many American cities. Biden-imposed lax security at the southern border means that it is all but open. He said before his 'election' that he wanted to see a surge towards the border if he became president and that was the green light for people to do just that after election day to create the human disaster that followed for both America and the migrants. When that surge came the imbecilic Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez said it wasn't a 'surge' because they are 'children, not insurgents' and the term 'surge' (used by Biden) was a claim of 'white supremacists'.

This disingenuous lady may one day enter the realm of the most basic intelligence, but it won't be any time soon.

Sabbatians and the Cult are in the process of destroying America by importing violent people and gangs in among the genuine to terrorise American cities and by overwhelming services that cannot cope with the sheer volume of new arrivals. Something similar is happening in Europe as Western society in general is targeted for demographic and cultural transformation and upheaval. The plan demands violence and crime to create an environment of intimidation, fear and division and Soros has been funding the election of district attorneys across America who then stop prosecuting many crimes, reduce sentences for violent crimes and free as many violent criminals as they can. Sabbatians are creating the chaos from which order – their order – can respond in a classic Problem-Reaction-Solution. A Freemasonic motto says 'Ordo Ab Chao' (Order out of Chaos) and this is why the Cult is constantly creating chaos to impose a new 'order'. Here you have the reason the Cult is constantly creating chaos. The 'Covid' hoax can be seen with those entering the United States by plane being forced to take a 'Covid' test while migrants flooding through southern border processing facilities do not. Nothing is put in the way of mass migration and if that means ignoring the government's own 'Covid' rules then so be it. They know it's all bullshit anyway. Any pushback on this is denounced as 'racist' by Wokers and Sabbatian fronts like the ultra-Zionist Anti-Defamation League headed by the appalling Jonathan Greenblatt which at the same time argues that Israel should not give citizenship and voting rights to more Palestinian Arabs or the 'Jewish population' (in truth the Sabbatian network) will lose control of the country.

Society-changing numbers

Biden's masters have declared that countries like El Salvador are so dangerous that their people must be allowed into the United States for humanitarian reasons when there are fewer murders in large parts of many Central American countries than in US cities like Baltimore. That is not to say Central America cannot be a dangerous place and Cult-controlled American governments have been making it so since way back, along with the dismantling of economies, in a long-term plan to drive people north into the United States. Parts of Central America are very dangerous, but in other areas the story is being greatly exaggerated to justify relaxing immigration criteria. Migrants are being offered free healthcare and education in the United States as another incentive to head for the border and there is no requirement to be financially independent before you can enter to prevent the resources of America being drained. You can't blame migrants for seeking what they believe will be a better life, but they are being played by the Cult for dark and nefarious ends. The numbers since Biden took office are huge. In February, 2021, more than 100,000 people were known to have tried to enter the US illegally through the southern border (it was 34,000 in the same month in 2020) and in March it was 170,000 – a 418 percent increase on March, 2020. These numbers are only known people, not the ones who get in unseen. The true figure for migrants illegally crossing the border in a single month was estimated by one congressman at 250,000 and that number will only rise under Biden's current policy. Gangs of murdering drug-running thugs that control the Mexican side of the border demand money – thousands of dollars – to let migrants cross the Rio Grande into America. At the same time gun battles are breaking out on the border several times a week between rival Mexican drug gangs (which now operate globally) who are equipped with sophisticated military-grade weapons, grenades and armoured vehicles. While the Capitol Building was being 'protected' from a non-existent 'threat' by thousands of troops, and others were still deployed at the time in the Cult Neocon war in Afghanistan, the southern border of America was left to its fate. This is not incompetence, it is cold calculation.

By March, 2021, there were 17,000 unaccompanied children held at border facilities and many of them are ensnared by people traffickers for paedophile rings and raped on their journey north to America. This is not conjecture – this is fact. Many of those designated children are in reality teenage boys or older. Meanwhile Wokers posture their self-purity for encouraging poor and tragic people to come to America and face this nightmare both on the journey and at the border with the disgusting figure of House Speaker Nancy Pelosi giving disingenuous speeches about caring for migrants. The woman's evil. Wokers condemned Trump for having children in cages at the border (so did Obama, Shhhh), but now they are sleeping on the floor without access to a shower with one border facility 729 percent over capacity. The Biden insanity even proposed flying migrants from the southern border to the northern border with Canada for 'processing'. The whole shambles is being overseen by ultra-Zionist Secretary of Homeland Security, the moronic liar Alejandro Mayorkas, who banned news cameras at border facilities to stop Americans seeing what was happening. Mayorkas said there was not a ban on news crews; it was just that they were not allowed to film. Alongside him at Homeland Security is another ultra-Zionist Cass Sunstein appointed by Biden to oversee new immigration laws. Sunstein despises conspiracy researchers to the point where he suggests they should be banned or taxed for having such views. The man is not bonkers or anything. He's perfectly well-adjusted, but adjusted to what is the question. Criticise what is happening and you are a 'white supremacist' when earlier non-white immigrants also oppose the numbers which effect their lives and opportunities. Black people in poor areas are particularly damaged by uncontrolled immigration and the increased competition for work opportunities with those who will work for less. They are also losing voting power as Hispanics become more dominant in former black areas. It's a downward spiral for them while the billionaires behind the policy drone on about how much they care about black people and 'racism'. None of this is about compassion for migrants or black people – that's just wind and air. Migrants are instead being mercilessly exploited to transform America while the countries they leave are losing their future and the same is true in Europe. Mass immigration may now be the work of Woke Democrats, but it can be traced back to the 1986 Immigration Reform and Control Act (it wasn't) signed into law by Republican hero President Ronald Reagan which gave amnesty to millions living in the United States illegally and other incentives for people to head for the southern border. Here we have the one-party state at work again.

Save me syndrome

Almost every aspect of what I have been exposing as the Cult agenda was on display in even the first days of 'Biden' with silencing of Pushbackers at the forefront of everything. A Renegade Mind will view the Trump years and QAnon in a very different light to their supporters and advocates as the dots are connected. The QAnon/Trump Psyop has given the Cult all it was looking for. We may not know how much, or little, that Trump realised he was being used, but that's a side issue. This pincer movement produced the desired outcome of dividing America and having Pushbackers isolated. To turn this around we have to look at new routes to empowerment which do not include handing our power to other people and groups through what I will call the 'Save Me Syndrome' – 'I want someone else to do it so that I don't have to'. We have seen this at work throughout human history and the QAnon/Trump Psyop is only the latest incarnation alongside all the others. Religion is an obvious expression of this when people look to a 'god' or priest to save them or tell them how to be saved and then there are 'save me' politicians like Trump. Politics is a diversion and not a 'saviour'. It is a means to block positive change, not make it possible.

Save Me Syndrome always comes with the same repeating theme of handing your power to whom or what you believe will save you while your real 'saviour' stares back from the mirror every morning. Renegade Minds are constantly vigilant in this regard and always asking the question 'What can I do?' rather than 'What can someone else do for me?' Gandhi was right when he said: 'You must be the change you want to see in the world.' We are indeed the people we have been waiting for. We are presented with a constant raft of reasons to concede that power to others and forget where the real power is. Humanity has the numbers and the Cult does not. It has to use diversion and division to target the unstoppable power that comes from unity. Religions, governments, politicians, corporations, media, QAnon, are all different manifestations of this power-diversion and dilution. Refusing to give your power to governments and instead handing it to Trump and QAnon is not to take a new direction, but merely to recycle the old one with new names on the posters. I will explore this phenomenon as we proceed and how to break the cycles and recycles that got us here through the mists of repeating perception and so repeating history.

For now we shall turn to the most potent example in the entire human story of the consequences that follow when you give your power away. I am talking, of course, of the 'Covid' hoax.

CHAPTER FOUR

'Covid': Calculated catastrophe

Facts are threatening to those invested in fraud
DaShanne Stokes

We can easily unravel the real reason for the 'Covid pandemic' hoax by employing the Renegade Mind methodology that I have outlined this far. We'll start by comparing the long-planned Cult outcome with the 'Covid pandemic' outcome. Know the outcome and you'll see the journey.

I have highlighted the plan for the Hunger Games Society which has been in my books for so many years with the very few controlling the very many through ongoing dependency. To create this dependency it is essential to destroy independent livelihoods, businesses and employment to make the population reliant on the state (the Cult) for even the basics of life through a guaranteed pittance income. While independence of income remained these Cult ambitions would be thwarted. With this knowledge it was easy to see where the 'pandemic' hoax was going once talk of 'lockdowns' began and the closing of all but perceived 'essential' businesses to 'save' us from an alleged 'deadly virus'. Cult corporations like Amazon and Walmart were naturally considered 'essential' while mom and pop shops and stores had their doors closed by fascist decree. As a result with every new lockdown and new regulation more small and medium, even large businesses not owned by the Cult, went to the wall while Cult giants and their frontmen and women grew financially fatter by the second. Mom and pop were denied an income and the right to earn a living and the wealth of people like Jeff Bezos (Amazon), Mark Zuckerberg (Facebook) and Sergei Brin and Larry Page (Google/Alphabet) have reached record levels. The Cult was increasing its own power through further dramatic concentrations of wealth while the competition was being destroyed and brought into a state of dependency. Lockdowns have been instigated to secure that very end and were never anything to do with health. My brother Paul spent 45 years building up a bus repair business, but lockdowns meant buses were running at a fraction of normal levels for months on end. Similar stories can be told in their hundreds of millions worldwide. Efforts of a lifetime coldly destroyed by Cult multi-billionaires and their lackeys in government and law enforcement who continued to earn their living from the taxation of the people while denying the right of the same people to earn theirs. How different it would have been if those making and enforcing these decisions had to face the same financial hardships of those they affected, but they never do.

Gates of Hell

Behind it all in the full knowledge of what he is doing and why is the psychopathic figure of Cult operative Bill Gates. His puppet Tedros at the World Health Organization declared 'Covid' a pandemic in March, 2020. The WHO had changed the definition of a 'pandemic' in 2009 just a month before declaring the 'swine flu pandemic' which would not have been so under the previous definition. The same applies to 'Covid'. The definition had included... 'an infection by an infectious agent, occurring simultaneously in different countries, with a significant mortality rate relative to the proportion of the population infected'. The new definition removed the need for 'significant mortality'. The 'pandemic' has been fraudulent even down to the definition, but Gates demanded economy-destroying lockdowns, school closures, social distancing, mandatory masks, a 'vaccination' for every man, woman and child on the planet and severe consequences and restrictions for those that refused. Who gave him this power? The Cult did which he serves like a little boy in short trousers doing what his daddy tells him. He and his psychopathic missus even smiled when they said that much worse was to come (what they knew was planned to come). Gates responded in the matter-of-fact way of all psychopaths to a question about the effect on the world economy of what he was doing:

Well, it won't go to zero but it will shrink. Global GDP is probably going to take the biggest hit ever [Gates was smiling as he said this] ... in my lifetime this will be the greatest economic hit. But you don't have a choice. People act as if you have a choice. People don't feel like going to the stadium when they might get infected ... People are deeply affected by seeing these stats, by knowing they could be part of the transmission chain, old people, their parents and grandparents, could be affected by this, and so you don't get to say ignore what is going on here.

There will be the ability to open up, particularly in rich countries, if things are done well over the next few months, but for the world at large normalcy only returns when we have largely vaccinated the entire population.

The man has no compassion or empathy. How could he when he's a psychopath like all Cult players? My own view is that even beyond that he is very seriously mentally ill. Look in his eyes and you can see this along with his crazy flailing arms. You don't do what he has done to the world population since the start of 2020 unless you are mentally ill and at the most extreme end of psychopathic. You especially don't do it when to you know, as we shall see, that cases and deaths from 'Covid' are fakery and a product of monumental figure massaging. 'These stats' that Gates referred to are based on a 'test' that's not testing for the 'virus' as he has known all along. He made his fortune with big Cult support as an infamously ruthless software salesman and now buys global control of 'health' (death) policy without the population he affects having any say. It's a breathtaking outrage. Gates talked about people being deeply affected by fear of 'Covid' when that was because of him and his global network lying to them minute-by-minute supported by a lying media that he seriously influences and funds to the tune of hundreds of millions. He's handed big sums to media operations including the BBC, NBC, Al Jazeera, Univision, PBS NewsHour, ProPublica, National Journal, The Guardian, The Financial Times, The Atlantic, Texas Tribune, USA Today publisher Gannett, Washington Monthly, Le Monde, Center for Investigative Reporting, Pulitzer Center on Crisis Reporting, National Press Foundation, International Center for Journalists, Solutions Journalism Network, the Poynter Institute for Media Studies, and many more. Gates is everywhere in the 'Covid' hoax and the man must go to prison – or a mental facility – for the rest of his life and his money distributed to those he has taken such enormous psychopathic pleasure in crushing.

The Muscle

The Hunger Games global structure demands a police-military state – a fusion of the two into one force – which viciously imposes the will of the Cult on the population and protects the Cult from public rebellion. In that regard, too, the 'Covid' hoax just keeps on giving. Often unlawful, ridiculous and contradictory 'Covid' rules and regulations have been policed across the world by moronic automatons and psychopaths made faceless by face-nappy masks and acting like the Nazi SS and fascist blackshirts and brownshirts of Hitler and Mussolini. The smallest departure from the rules decreed by the psychos in government and their clueless gofers were jumped upon by the face-nappy fascists. Brutality against public protestors soon became commonplace even on girls, women and old people as the brave men with the batons – the Face-Nappies as I call them – broke up peaceful protests and handed out fines like confetti to people who couldn't earn a living let alone pay hundreds of pounds for what was once an accepted human right. Robot Face-Nappies of Nottingham police in the English East Midlands fined one group £11,000 for attending a child's birthday party. For decades I charted the transformation of law enforcement as genuine, decent officers were replaced with psychopaths and the brain dead who would happily and brutally do whatever their masters told them. Now they were let loose on the public and I would emphasise the point that none of this just happened. The step-by-step change in the dynamic between police and public was orchestrated from the shadows by those who knew where this was all going and the same with the perceptual reframing of those in all levels of authority and official administration through 'training courses' by organisations such as Common Purpose which was created in the late 1980s and given a massive boost in Blair era Britain until it became a global phenomenon. Supposed public 'servants' began to view the population as the enemy and the same was true of the police. This was the start of the explosion of behaviour manipulation organisations and networks preparing for the all-war on the human psyche unleashed with the dawn of 2020. I will go into more detail about this later in the book because it is a core part of what is happening.

Police desecrated beauty spots to deter people gathering and arrested women for walking in the countryside alone 'too far' from their homes. We had arrogant, clueless sergeants in the Isle of Wight police where I live posting on Facebook what they insisted the population must do or else. A schoolmaster sergeant called Radford looked young enough for me to ask if his mother knew he was out, but he was posting what he expected people to do while a Sergeant Wilkinson boasted about fining lads for meeting in a McDonald's car park where they went to get a lockdown takeaway. Wilkinson added that he had even cancelled their order. What a pair of prats these people are and yet they have increasingly become the norm among Jackboot Johnson's Yellowshirts once known as the British police. This was the theme all over the world with police savagery common during lockdown protests in the United States, the Netherlands, and the fascist state of Victoria in Australia under its tyrannical and again moronic premier Daniel Andrews. Amazing how tyrannical and moronic tend to work as a team and the same combination could be seen across America as arrogant, narcissistic Woke governors and mayors such as Gavin Newsom (California), Andrew Cuomo (New York), Gretchen Whitmer (Michigan), Lori Lightfoot (Chicago) and Eric Garcetti (Los Angeles) did their Nazi and Stalin impressions with the full support of the compliant brutality of their enforcers in uniform as they arrested small business owners defying fascist shutdown orders and took them to jail in ankle shackles and handcuffs. This happened to bistro owner Marlena Pavlos-Hackney in Gretchen Whitmer's fascist state of Michigan when police arrived to enforce an order by a state-owned judge for 'putting the community at risk' at a time when other states like Texas were dropping restrictions and migrants were pouring across the southern border without any 'Covid' questions at all. I'm sure there are many officers appalled by what they are ordered to do, but not nearly enough of them. If they were truly appalled they would not do it. As the months passed every opportunity was taken to have the military involved to make their presence on the streets ever more familiar and 'normal' for the longer-term goal of police-military fusion.

Another crucial element to the Hunger Games enforcement network has been encouraging the public to report neighbours and others for 'breaking the lockdown rules'. The group faced with £11,000 in fines at the child's birthday party would have been dobbed-in by a neighbour with a brain the size of a pea. The technique was most famously employed by the Stasi secret police in communist East Germany who had public informants placed throughout the population. A police chief in the UK says his force doesn't need to carry out 'Covid' patrols when they are flooded with so many calls from the public reporting other people for visiting the beach. Dorset police chief James Vaughan said people were so enthusiastic about snitching on their fellow humans they were now operating as an auxiliary arm of the police: 'We are still getting around 400 reports a week from the public, so we will respond to reports ... We won't need to be doing hotspot patrols because people are very quick to pick the phone up and tell us.' Vaughan didn't say that this is a pillar of all tyrannies of whatever complexion and the means to hugely extend the reach of enforcement while spreading distrust among the people and making them wary of doing anything that might get them reported. Those narcissistic Isle of Wight sergeants Radford and Wilkinson never fail to add a link to their Facebook posts where the public can inform on their fellow slaves.

Neither would be self-aware enough to realise they were imitating the Stasi which they might well never have heard of. Government psychologists that I will expose later laid out a policy to turn communities against each other in the same way.

A coincidence? Yep, and I can knit fog

I knew from the start of the alleged pandemic that this was a Cult operation. It presented limitless potential to rapidly advance the Cult agenda and exploit manipulated fear to demand that every man, woman and child on the planet was 'vaccinated' in a process never used on humans before which infuses self-replicating synthetic material into human cells. Remember the plan to transform the human body from a biological to a synthetic biological state. I'll deal with the 'vaccine' (that's not actually a vaccine) when I focus on the genetic agenda. Enough to say here that mass global 'vaccination' justified by this 'new virus' set alarms ringing after 30 years of tracking these people and their methods. The 'Covid' hoax officially beginning in China was also a big red flag for reasons I will be explaining. The agenda potential was so enormous that I could dismiss any idea that the 'virus' appeared naturally. Major happenings with major agenda implications never occur without Cult involvement in making them happen. My questions were twofold in early 2020 as the media began its campaign to induce global fear and hysteria: Was this alleged infectious agent released on purpose by the Cult or did it even exist at all? I then did what I always do in these situations. I sat, observed and waited to see where the evidence and information would take me. By March and early April synchronicity was strongly – and ever more so since then – pointing me in the direction of there is no 'virus'. I went public on that with derision even from swathes of the alternative media that voiced a scenario that the Chinese government released the 'virus' in league with Deep State elements in the United States from a top-level bio-lab in Wuhan where the 'virus' is said to have first appeared. I looked at that possibility, but I didn't buy it for several reasons. Deaths from the 'virus' did not in any way match what they would have been with a 'deadly bioweapon' and it is much more effective if you sell the illusion of an infectious agent rather than having a real one unless you can control through injection who has it and who doesn't. Otherwise you lose control of events. A made-up 'virus' gives you a blank sheet of paper on which you can make it do whatever you like and have any symptoms or mutant 'variants' you choose to add while a real infectious agent would limit you to what it actually does. A phantom disease allows you to have endless ludicrous 'studies' on the 'Covid' dollar to widen the perceived impact by inventing ever more 'at risk' groups including one study which said those who walk slowly may be almost four times more likely to die from the 'virus'. People are in psychiatric wards for less.

A real 'deadly bioweapon' can take out people in the hierarchy that are not part of the Cult, but essential to its operation. Obviously they don't want that. Releasing a real disease means you immediately lose control of it. Releasing an illusory one means you don't. Again it's vital that people are extra careful when dealing with what they want to hear. A bioweapon unleashed from a Chinese laboratory in collusion with the American Deep State may fit a conspiracy narrative, but is it true? Would it not be far more effective to use the excuse of a 'virus' to justify the real bioweapon – the 'vaccine'? That way your disease agent does not have to be transmitted and arrives directly through a syringe. I saw a French virologist Luc Montagnier quoted in the alternative media as saying he had discovered that the alleged 'new' severe acute respiratory syndrome coronavirus, or SARS-CoV-2, was made artificially and included elements of the human immunodeficiency 'virus' (HIV) and a parasite that causes malaria. SARS-CoV-2 is alleged to trigger an alleged illness called Covid-19. I remembered Montagnier's name from my research years before into claims that an HIV 'retrovirus' causes AIDs – claims that were demolished by Berkeley virologist Peter Duesberg who showed that no one had ever proved that HIV causes acquired immunodeficiency syndrome or AIDS. Claims that become accepted as fact, publicly and medically, with no proof whatsoever are an ever-recurring story that profoundly applies to 'Covid'. Nevertheless, despite the lack of proof, Montagnier's team at the Pasteur Institute in Paris had a long dispute with American researcher Robert Gallo over which of them discovered and isolated the HIV 'virus' and with no evidence found it to cause AIDS. You will see later that there is also no evidence that any 'virus' causes any disease or that there is even such a thing as a 'virus' in the way it is said to exist. The claim to have 'isolated' the HIV 'virus' will be presented in its real context as we come to the shocking story – and it is a story – of SARS-CoV-2 and so will Montagnier's assertion that he identified the full SARS-CoV-2 genome.

Hoax in the making

We can pick up the 'Covid' story in 2010 and the publication by the Rockefeller Foundation of a document called 'Scenarios for the Future of Technology and International Development'. The inner circle of the Rockefeller family has been serving the Cult since John D. Rockefeller (1839-1937) made his fortune with Standard Oil. It is less well known that the same Rockefeller – the Bill Gates of his day – was responsible for establishing what is now referred to as 'Big Pharma', the global network of pharmaceutical companies that make outrageous profits dispensing scalpel and drug 'medicine' and are obsessed with pumping vaccines in ever-increasing number into as many human arms and backsides as possible. John D. Rockefeller was the driving force behind the creation of the 'education' system in the United States and elsewhere specifically designed to program the perceptions of generations thereafter. The Rockefeller family donated exceptionally valuable land in New York for the United Nations building and were central in establishing the World Health Organization in 1948 as an agency of the UN which was created from the start as a Trojan horse and stalking horse for world government. Now enter Bill Gates. His family and the Rockefellers have long been extremely close and I have seen genealogy which claims that if you go back far enough the two families fuse into the same bloodline. Gates has said that the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation was inspired by the Rockefeller Foundation and why not when both are serving the same Cult? Major tax-exempt foundations are overwhelmingly criminal enterprises in which Cult assets fund the Cult agenda in the guise of 'philanthropy' while avoiding tax in the process. Cult operatives can become mega-rich in their role of front men and women for the psychopaths at the inner core and they, too, have to be psychopaths to knowingly serve such evil. Part of the deal is that a big percentage of the wealth gleaned from representing the Cult has to be spent advancing the ambitions of the Cult and hence you have the Rockefeller Foundation, Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation (and so many more) and people like George Soros with his global Open Society Foundations spending their billions in pursuit of global Cult control. Gates is a global public face of the Cult with his interventions in world affairs including Big Tech influence; a central role in the 'Covid' and 'vaccine' scam; promotion of the climate change shakedown; manipulation of education; geoengineering of the skies; and his food-control agenda as the biggest owner of farmland in America, his GMO promotion and through other means. As one writer said: 'Gates monopolizes or wields disproportionate influence over the tech industry, global health and vaccines, agriculture and food policy (including biopiracy and fake food), weather modification and other climate technologies, surveillance, education and media.' The almost limitless wealth secured through Microsoft and other not-allowed-to-fail ventures (including vaccines) has been ploughed into a long, long list of Cult projects designed to enslave the entire human race. Gates and the Rockefellers have been working as one unit with the Rockefeller-established World Health Organization leading global 'Covid' policy controlled by Gates through his mouth-piece Tedros. Gates became the WHO's biggest funder when Trump announced that the American government would cease its donations, but Biden immediately said he would restore the money when he took office in January, 2021. The Gates Foundation (the Cult) owns through limitless funding the world health system and the major players across the globe in the 'Covid' hoax.

Okay, with that background we return to that Rockefeller Foundation document of 2010 headed 'Scenarios for the Future of Technology and International Development' and its 'imaginary' epidemic of a virulent and deadly influenza strain which infected 20 percent of the global population and killed eight million in seven months. The Rockefeller scenario was that the epidemic destroyed economies, closed shops, offices and other businesses and led to governments imposing fierce rules and restrictions that included mandatory wearing of face masks and body-temperature checks to enter communal spaces like railway stations and supermarkets. The document predicted that even after the height of the Rockefeller-envisaged epidemic the authoritarian rule would continue to deal with further pandemics, transnational terrorism, environmental crises and rising poverty. Now you may think that the Rockefellers are our modern-day seers or alternatively, and rather more likely, that they well knew what was planned a few years further on. Fascism had to be imposed, you see, to 'protect citizens from risk and exposure'. The Rockefeller scenario document said:

During the pandemic, national leaders around the world flexed their authority and imposed airtight rules and restrictions, from the mandatory wearing of face masks to body-temperature checks at the entries to communal spaces like train stations and supermarkets. Even after the pandemic faded, this more authoritarian control and oversight of citizens and their activities stuck and even intensified. In order to protect themselves from the spread of increasingly global problems – from pandemics and transnational terrorism to environmental crises and rising poverty – leaders around the world took a firmer grip on power.

At first, the notion of a more controlled world gained wide acceptance and approval. Citizens willingly gave up some of their sovereignty – and their privacy – to more paternalistic states in exchange for greater safety and stability. Citizens were more tolerant, and even eager, for top-down direction and oversight, and national leaders had more latitude to impose order in the ways they saw fit.

In developed countries, this heightened oversight took many forms: biometric IDs for all citizens, for example, and tighter regulation of key industries whose stability was deemed vital to national interests. In many developed countries, enforced cooperation with a suite of new regulations and agreements slowly but steadily restored both order and, importantly, economic growth.

There we have the prophetic Rockefellers in 2010 and three years later came their paper for the Global Health Summit in Beijing, China, when government representatives, the private sector, international organisations and groups met to discuss the next 100 years of 'global health'. The Rockefeller Foundation-funded paper was called 'Dreaming the Future of Health for the Next 100 Years and more prophecy ensued as it described a dystopian future: 'The abundance of data, digitally tracking and linking people may mean the 'death of privacy' and may replace physical interaction with transient, virtual connection, generating isolation and raising questions of how values are shaped in virtual networks.' Next in the 'Covid' hoax preparation sequence came a 'table top' simulation in 2018 for another 'imaginary' pandemic of a disease called Clade X which was said to kill 900 million people. The exercise was organised by the Gates-funded Johns Hopkins University's Center for Health Security in the United States and this is the very same university that has been compiling the disgustingly and systematically erroneous global figures for 'Covid' cases and deaths. Similar Johns Hopkins health crisis scenarios have included the Dark Winter exercise in 2001 and Atlantic Storm in 2005.

Nostradamus 201

For sheer predictive genius look no further prophecy-watchers than the Bill Gates-funded Event 201 held only six weeks before the 'coronavirus pandemic' is supposed to have broken out in China and Event 201 was based on a scenario of a global 'coronavirus pandemic'. Melinda Gates, the great man's missus, told the BBC that he had 'prepared for years' for a coronavirus pandemic which told us what we already knew. Nostradamugates had predicted in a TED talk in 2015 that a pandemic was coming that would kill a lot of people and demolish the world economy. My god, the man is a machine – possibly even literally. Now here he was only weeks before the real thing funding just such a simulated scenario and involving his friends and associates at Johns Hopkins, the World Economic Forum Cult-front of Klaus Schwab, the United Nations, Johnson & Johnson, major banks, and officials from China and the Centers for Disease Control in the United States. What synchronicity – Johns Hopkins would go on to compile the fraudulent ‘Covid’ figures, the World Economic Forum and Schwab would push the ‘Great Reset’ in response to ‘Covid’, the Centers for Disease Control would be at the forefront of ‘Covid’ policy in the United States, Johnson & Johnson would produce a ‘Covid vaccine’, and everything would officially start just weeks later in China. Spooky, eh? They were even accurate in creating a simulation of a ‘virus’ pandemic because the ‘real thing’ would also be a simulation. Event 201 was not an exercise preparing for something that might happen; it was a rehearsal for what those in control knew was going to happen and very shortly. Hours of this simulation were posted on the Internet and the various themes and responses mirrored what would soon be imposed to transform human society. News stories were inserted and what they said would be commonplace a few weeks later with still more prophecy perfection. Much discussion focused on the need to deal with misinformation and the ‘anti-vax movement’ which is exactly what happened when the ‘virus’ arrived – was said to have arrived – in the West.

Cult-owned social media banned criticism and exposure of the official ‘virus’ narrative and when I said there was no ‘virus’ in early April, 2020, I was banned by one platform after another including YouTube, Facebook and later Twitter. The mainstream broadcast media in Britain was in effect banned from interviewing me by the Tony-Blair-created government broadcasting censor Ofcom headed by career government bureaucrat Melanie Dawes who was appointed just as the ‘virus’ hoax was about to play out in January, 2020. At the same time the Ickonic media platform was using Vimeo, another ultra-Zionist-owned operation, while our own player was being created and they deleted in an instant hundreds of videos, documentaries, series and shows to confirm their unbelievable vindictiveness. We had copies, of course, and they had to be restored one by one when our player was ready. These people have no class. Sabbatian Facebook promised free advertisements for the Gates-controlled World Health Organization narrative while deleting ‘false claims and conspiracy theories’ to stop ‘misinformation’ about the alleged coronavirus. All these responses could be seen just a short while earlier in the scenarios of Event 201. Extreme censorship was absolutely crucial for the Cult because the official story was so ridiculous and unsupportable by the evidence that it could never survive open debate and the free-flow of information and opinion. If you can’t win a debate then don’t have one is the Cult’s approach throughout history. Facebook’s little boy front man – front boy – Mark Zuckerberg equated ‘credible and accurate information’ with official sources and exposing their lies with ‘misinformation’.

Silencing those that can see

The censorship dynamic of Event 201 is now the norm with an army of narrative-supporting ‘fact-checker’ organisations whose entire reason for being is to tell the public that official narratives are true and those exposing them are lying. One of the most appalling of these ‘fact-checkers’ is called NewsGuard founded by ultra-Zionist Americans Gordon Crovitz and Steven Brill. Crovitz is a former publisher of The Wall Street Journal, former Executive Vice President of Dow Jones, a member of the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR), and on the board of the American Association of Rhodes Scholars. The CFR and Rhodes Scholarships, named after Rothschild agent Cecil Rhodes who plundered the gold and diamonds of South Africa for his masters and the Cult, have featured widely in my books. NewsGuard don’t seem to like me for some reason – I really can’t think why – and they have done all they can to have me censored and discredited which is, to quote an old British politician, like being savaged by a dead sheep. They are, however, like all in the censorship network, very well connected and funded by organisations themselves funded by, or connected to, Bill Gates. As you would expect with anything associated with Gates NewsGuard has an offshoot called HealthGuard which ‘fights online health care hoaxes’. How very kind. Somehow the NewsGuard European Managing Director Anna-Sophie Harling, a remarkably young-looking woman with no broadcasting experience and little hands-on work in journalism, has somehow secured a position on the 'Content Board' of UK government broadcast censor Ofcom. An executive of an organisation seeking to discredit dissidents of the official narratives is making decisions for the government broadcast 'regulator' about content?? Another appalling 'fact-checker' is Full Fact funded by George Soros and global censors Google and Facebook.

It's amazing how many activists in the 'fact-checking', 'anti-hate', arena turn up in government-related positions – people like UK Labour Party activist Imran Ahmed who heads the Center for Countering Digital Hate founded by people like Morgan McSweeney, now chief of staff to the Labour Party's hapless and useless 'leader' Keir Starmer. Digital Hate – which is what it really is – uses the American spelling of Center to betray its connection to a transatlantic network of similar organisations which in 2020 shapeshifted from attacking people for 'hate' to attacking them for questioning the 'Covid' hoax and the dangers of the 'Covid vaccine'. It's just a coincidence, you understand. This is one of Imran Ahmed's hysterical statements: 'I would go beyond calling anti-vaxxers conspiracy theorists to say they are an extremist group that pose a national security risk.' No one could ever accuse this prat of understatement and he's including in that those parents who are now against vaccines after their children were damaged for life or killed by them. He's such a nice man. Ahmed does the rounds of the Woke media getting soft-ball questions from spineless 'journalists' who never ask what right he has to campaign to destroy the freedom of speech of others while he demands it for himself. There also seems to be an overrepresentation in Ofcom of people connected to the narrative-worshipping BBC. This incredible global network of narrative-support was super-vital when the 'Covid' hoax was played in the light of the mega-whopper lies that have to be defended from the spotlight cast by the most basic intelligence.

Setting the scene

The Cult plays the long game and proceeds step-by-step ensuring that everything is in place before major cards are played and they don't come any bigger than the 'Covid' hoax. The psychopaths can't handle events where the outcome isn't certain and as little as possible – preferably nothing – is left to chance. Politicians, government and medical officials who would follow direction were brought to illusory power in advance by the Cult web whether on the national stage or others like state governors and mayors of America. For decades the dynamic between officialdom, law enforcement and the public was changed from one of service to one of control and dictatorship. Behaviour manipulation networks established within government were waiting to impose the coming 'Covid' rules and regulations specifically designed to subdue and rewire the psyche of the people in the guise of protecting health. These included in the UK the Behavioural Insights Team part-owned by the British government Cabinet Office; the Scientific Pandemic Insights Group on Behaviours (SPI-B); and a whole web of intelligence and military groups seeking to direct the conversation on social media and control the narrative. Among them are the cyberwarfare (on the people) 77th Brigade of the British military which is also coordinated through the Cabinet Office as civilian and military leadership continues to combine in what they call the Fusion Doctrine. The 77th Brigade is a British equivalent of the infamous Israeli (Sabbatian) military cyberwarfare and Internet manipulation operation Unit 8200 which I expose at length in The Trigger. Also carefully in place were the medical and science advisers to government – many on the payroll past or present of Bill Gates – and a whole alternative structure of unelected government stood by to take control when elected parliaments were effectively closed down once the 'Covid' card was slammed on the table. The structure I have described here and so much more was installed in every major country through the Cult networks. The top-down control hierarchy looks like this: The Cult – Cult-owned Gates – the World Health Organization and Tedros – Gates-funded or controlled chief medical officers and science 'advisers' (dictators) in each country – political 'leaders' – law enforcement – The People. Through this simple global communication and enforcement structure the policy of the Cult could be imposed on virtually the entire human population so long as they acquiesced to the fascism. With everything in place it was time for the button to be pressed in late 2019/early 2020.

These were the prime goals the Cult had to secure for its will to prevail:

1) Locking down economies, closing all but designated 'essential' businesses (Cult-owned corporations were 'essential'), and putting the population under house arrest was an imperative to destroy independent income and employment and ensure dependency on the Cult-controlled state in the Hunger Games Society. Lockdowns had to be established as the global blueprint from the start to respond to the 'virus' and followed by pretty much the entire world.

2) The global population had to be terrified into believing in a deadly 'virus' that didn't actually exist so they would unquestioningly obey authority in the belief that authority must know how best to protect them and their families. Software salesman Gates would suddenly morph into the world's health expert and be promoted as such by the Cult-owned media.

3) A method of testing that wasn't testing for the 'virus', but was only claimed to be, had to be in place to provide the illusion of 'cases' and subsequent 'deaths' that had a very different cause to the 'Covid-19' that would be scribbled on the death certificate.

4) Because there was no 'virus' and the great majority testing positive with a test not testing for the 'virus' would have no symptoms of anything the lie had to be sold that people without symptoms (without the 'virus') could still pass it on to others. This was crucial to justify for the first time quarantining – house arresting – healthy people. Without this the economy-destroying lockdown of everybody could not have been credibly sold.

5) The 'saviour' had to be seen as a vaccine which beyond evil drug companies were working like angels of mercy to develop as quickly as possible, with all corners cut, to save the day. The public must absolutely not know that the 'vaccine' had nothing to do with a 'virus' or that the contents were ready and waiting with a very different motive long before the 'Covid' card was even lifted from the pack.

I said in March, 2020, that the 'vaccine' would have been created way ahead of the 'Covid' hoax which justified its use and the following December an article in the New York Intelligencer magazine said the Moderna 'vaccine' had been 'designed' by January, 2020. This was 'before China had even acknowledged that the disease could be transmitted from human to human, more than a week before the first confirmed coronavirus case in the United States'. The article said that by the time the first American death was announced a month later 'the vaccine had already been manufactured and shipped to the National Institutes of Health for the beginning of its Phase I clinical trial'. The 'vaccine' was actually 'designed' long before that although even with this timescale you would expect the article to ask how on earth it could have been done that quickly. Instead it asked why the 'vaccine' had not been rolled out then and not months later. Journalism in the mainstream is truly dead. I am going to detail in the next chapter why the 'virus' has never existed and how a hoax on that scale was possible, but first the foundation on which the Big Lie of 'Covid' was built.

The test that doesn't test

Fraudulent 'testing' is the bottom line of the whole 'Covid' hoax and was the means by which a 'virus' that did not exist appeared to exist. They could only achieve this magic trick by using a test not testing for the 'virus'. To use a test that was testing for the 'virus' would mean that every test would come back negative given there was no 'virus'. They chose to exploit something called the RT-PCR test invented by American biochemist Kary Mullis in the 1980s who said publicly that his PCR test ... cannot detect infectious disease. Yes, the 'test' used worldwide to detect infectious 'Covid' to produce all the illusory 'cases' and 'deaths' compiled by Johns Hopkins and others cannot detect infectious disease. This fact came from the mouth of the man who invented PCR and was awarded the Nobel Prize in Chemistry in 1993 for doing so. Sadly, and incredibly conveniently for the Cult, Mullis died in August, 2019, at the age of 74 just before his test would be fraudulently used to unleash fascism on the world. He was said to have died from pneumonia which was an irony in itself. A few months later he would have had 'Covid-19' on his death certificate. I say the timing of his death was convenient because had he lived Mullis, a brilliant, honest and decent man, would have been vociferously speaking out against the use of his test to detect 'Covid' when it was never designed, or able, to do that. I know that to be true given that Mullis made the same point when his test was used to 'detect' – not detect – HIV. He had been seriously critical of the Gallo/Montagnier claim to have isolated the HIV 'virus' and shown it to cause AIDS for which Mullis said there was no evidence. AIDS is actually not a disease but a series of diseases from which people die all the time. When they die from those same diseases after a positive 'test' for HIV then AIDS goes on their death certificate. I think I've heard that before somewhere. Countries instigated a policy with 'Covid' that anyone who tested positive with a test not testing for the 'virus' and died of any other cause within 28 days and even longer 'Covid-19' had to go on the death certificate. Cases have come from the test that can't test for infectious disease and the deaths are those who have died of anything after testing positive with a test not testing for the 'virus'. I'll have much more later about the death certificate scandal.

Mullis was deeply dismissive of the now US 'Covid' star Anthony Fauci who he said was a liar who didn't know anything about anything – 'and I would say that to his face – nothing.' He said of Fauci: 'The man thinks he can take a blood sample, put it in an electron microscope and if it's got a virus in there you'll know it – he doesn't understand electron microscopy and he doesn't understand medicine and shouldn't be in a position like he's in.' That position, terrifyingly, has made him the decider of 'Covid' fascism policy on behalf of the Cult in his role as director since 1984 of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases (NIAID) while his record of being wrong is laughable; but being wrong, so long as it's the right kind of wrong, is why the Cult loves him. He'll say anything the Cult tells him to say. Fauci was made Chief Medical Adviser to the President immediately Biden took office. Biden was installed in the White House by Cult manipulation and one of his first decisions was to elevate Fauci to a position of even more control. This is a coincidence? Yes, and I identify as a flamenco dancer called Lola. How does such an incompetent criminal like Fauci remain in that pivotal position in American health since the 1980s? When you serve the Cult it looks after you until you are surplus to requirements. Kary Mullis said prophetically of Fauci and his like: 'Those guys have an agenda and it's not an agenda we would like them to have ... they make their own rules, they change them when they want to, and Tony Fauci does not mind going on television in front of the people who pay his salary and lie directly into the camera.' Fauci has done that almost daily since the 'Covid' hoax began. Lying is in Fauci's DNA. To make the situation crystal clear about the PCR test this is a direct quote from its inventor Kary Mullis:

It [the PCR test] doesn't tell you that you're sick and doesn't tell you that the thing you ended up with was really going to hurt you ...'

Ask yourself why governments and medical systems the world over have been using this very test to decide who is 'infected' with the SARS-CoV-2 'virus' and the alleged disease it allegedly causes, 'Covid-19'. The answer to that question will tell you what has been going on. By the way, here's a little show-stopper – the 'new' SARS-CoV-2 'virus' was 'identified' as such right from the start using ... the PCR test not testing for the 'virus'. If you are new to this and find that shocking then stick around. I have hardly started yet. Even worse, other 'tests', like the 'Lateral Flow Device' (LFD), are considered so useless that they have to be confirmed by the PCR test! Leaked emails written by Ben Dyson, adviser to UK 'Health' Secretary Matt Hancock, said they were 'dangerously unreliable'. Dyson, executive director of strategy at the Department of Health, wrote: 'As of today, someone who gets a positive LFD result in (say) London has at best a 25 per cent chance of it being a true positive, but if it is a self-reported test potentially as low as 10 per cent (on an optimistic assumption about specificity) or as low as 2 per cent (on a more pessimistic assumption).' These are the 'tests' that schoolchildren and the public are being urged to have twice a week or more and have to isolate if they get a positive. Each fake positive goes in the statistics as a 'case' no matter how ludicrously inaccurate and the 'cases' drive lockdown, masks and the pressure to 'vaccinate'. The government said in response to the email leak that the 'tests' were accurate which confirmed yet again what shocking bloody liars they are. The real false positive rate is 100 percent as we'll see. In another 'you couldn't make it up' the UK government agreed to pay £2.8 billion to California's Innova Medical Group to supply the irrelevant lateral flow tests. The company's primary test-making centre is in China. Innova Medical Group, established in March, 2020, is owned by Pasaca Capital Inc, chaired by Chinese-American millionaire Charles Huang who was born in Wuhan.

How it works – and how it doesn't

The RT-PCR test, known by its full title of Polymerase chain reaction, is used across the world to make millions, even billions, of copies of a DNA/RNA genetic information sample. The process is called 'amplification' and means that a tiny sample of genetic material is amplified to bring out the detailed content. I stress that it is not testing for an infectious disease. It is simply amplifying a sample of genetic material. In the words of Kary Mullis: 'PCR is ... just a process that's used to make a whole lot of something out of something.' To emphasise the point companies that make the PCR tests circulated around the world to 'test' for 'Covid' warn on the box that it can't be used to detect 'Covid' or infectious disease and is for research purposes only. It's okay, rest for a minute and you'll be fine. This is the test that produces the 'cases' and 'deaths' that have been used to destroy human society. All those global and national medical and scientific 'experts' demanding this destruction to 'save us' KNOW that the test is not testing for the 'virus' and the cases and deaths they claim to be real are an almost unimaginable fraud. Every one of them and so many others including politicians and psychopaths like Gates and Tedros must be brought before Nuremburg-type trials and jailed for the rest of their lives. The more the genetic sample is amplified by PCR the more elements of that material become sensitive to the test and by that I don't mean sensitive for a 'virus' but for elements of the genetic material which is naturally in the body or relates to remnants of old conditions of various kinds lying dormant and causing no disease. Once the amplification of the PCR reaches a certain level everyone will test positive. So much of the material has been made sensitive to the test that everyone will have some part of it in their body. Even lying criminals like Fauci have said that once PCR amplifications pass 35 cycles everything will be a false positive that cannot be trusted for the reasons I have described. I say, like many proper doctors and scientists, that 100 percent of the 'positives' are false, but let's just go with Fauci for a moment.

He says that any amplification over 35 cycles will produce false positives and yet the US Centers for Disease Control (CDC) and Food and Drug Administration (FDA) have recommended up to 40 cycles and the National Health Service (NHS) in Britain admitted in an internal document for staff that it was using 45 cycles of amplification. A long list of other countries has been doing the same and at least one 'testing' laboratory has been using 50 cycles. Have you ever heard a doctor, medical 'expert' or the media ask what level of amplification has been used to claim a 'positive'. The 'test' comes back 'positive' and so you have the 'virus', end of story. Now we can see how the government in Tanzania could send off samples from a goat and a pawpaw fruit under human names and both came back positive for 'Covid-19'. Tanzania president John Magufuli mocked the 'Covid' hysteria, the PCR test and masks and refused to import the DNA-manipulating 'vaccine'. The Cult hated him and an article sponsored by the Bill Gates Foundation appeared in the London Guardian in February, 2021, headed 'It's time for Africa to rein in Tanzania's anti-vaxxer president'. Well, 'reined in' he shortly was. Magufuli appeared in good health, but then, in March, 2021, he was dead at 61 from 'heart failure'. He was replaced by Samia Hassan Suhulu who is connected to Klaus Schwab's World Economic Forum and she immediately reversed Magufuli's 'Covid' policy. A sample of cola tested positive for 'Covid' with the PCR test in Germany while American actress and singer-songwriter Erykah Badu tested positive in one nostril and negative in the other. Footballer Ronaldo called the PCR test 'bullshit' after testing positive three times and being forced to quarantine and miss matches when there was nothing wrong with him. The mantra from Tedros at the World Health Organization and national governments (same thing) has been test, test, test. They know that the more tests they can generate the more fake 'cases' they have which go on to become 'deaths' in ways I am coming to. The UK government has its Operation Moonshot planned to test multiple millions every day in workplaces and schools with free tests for everyone to use twice a week at home in line with the Cult plan from the start to make testing part of life. A government advertisement for an 'Interim Head of Asymptomatic Testing Communication' said the job included responsibility for delivering a 'communications strategy' (propaganda) 'to support the expansion of asymptomatic testing that 'normalises testing as part of everyday life''. More tests means more fake 'cases', 'deaths' and fascism. I have heard of, and from, many people who booked a test, couldn't turn up, and yet got a positive result through the post for a test they'd never even had. The whole thing is crazy, but for the Cult there's method in the madness. Controlling and manipulating the level of amplification of the test means the authorities can control whenever they want the number of apparent 'cases' and 'deaths'. If they want to justify more fascist lockdown and destruction of livelihoods they keep the amplification high. If they want to give the illusion that lockdowns and the 'vaccine' are working then they lower the amplification and 'cases' and 'deaths' will appear to fall. In January, 2021, the Cult-owned World Health Organization suddenly warned laboratories about over-amplification of the test and to lower the threshold. Suddenly headlines began appearing such as: 'Why ARE "Covid" cases plummeting?' This was just when the vaccine rollout was underway and I had predicted months before they would make cases appear to fall through amplification tampering when the 'vaccine' came. These people are so predictable.

Cow vaccines?

The question must be asked of what is on the test swabs being poked far up the nose of the population to the base of the brain? A nasal swab punctured one woman's brain and caused it to leak fluid. Most of these procedures are being done by people with little training or medical knowledge. Dr Lorraine Day, former orthopaedic trauma surgeon and Chief of Orthopaedic Surgery at San Francisco General Hospital, says the tests are really a 'vaccine'. Cows have long been vaccinated this way. She points out that masks have to cover the nose and the mouth where it is claimed the 'virus' exists in saliva. Why then don't they take saliva from the mouth as they do with a DNA test instead of pushing a long swab up the nose towards the brain? The ethmoid bone separates the nasal cavity from the brain and within that bone is the cribriform plate. Dr Day says that when the swab is pushed up against this plate and twisted the procedure is 'depositing things back there'. She claims that among these 'things' are nanoparticles that can enter the brain. Researchers have noted that a team at the Gates-funded Johns Hopkins have designed tiny, star-shaped micro-devices that can latch onto intestinal mucosa and release drugs into the body. Mucosa is the thin skin that covers the inside surface of parts of the body such as the nose and mouth and produces mucus to protect them. The Johns Hopkins micro-devices are called 'theragrippers' and were 'inspired' by a parasitic worm that digs its sharp teeth into a host's intestines. Nasal swabs are also coated in the sterilisation agent ethylene oxide. The US National Cancer Institute posts this explanation on its website:

At room temperature, ethylene oxide is a flammable colorless gas with a sweet odor. It is used primarily to produce other chemicals, including antifreeze. In smaller amounts, ethylene oxide is used as a pesticide and a sterilizing agent. The ability of ethylene oxide to damage DNA makes it an effective sterilizing agent but also accounts for its cancer-causing activity.

The Institute mentions lymphoma and leukaemia as cancers most frequently reported to be associated with occupational exposure to ethylene oxide along with stomach and breast cancers. How does anyone think this is going to work out with the constant testing regime being inflicted on adults and children at home and at school that will accumulate in the body anything that's on the swab?

Doctors know best

It is vital for people to realise that 'hero' doctors 'know' only what the Big Pharma-dominated medical authorities tell them to 'know' and if they refuse to 'know' what they are told to 'know' they are out the door. They are mostly not physicians or healers, but repeaters of the official narrative – or else. I have seen alleged professional doctors on British television make shocking statements that we are supposed to take seriously. One called 'Dr' Amir Khan, who is actually telling patients how to respond to illness, said that men could take the birth pill to 'help slow down the effects of Covid-19'. In March, 2021, another ridiculous 'Covid study' by an American doctor proposed injecting men with the female sex hormone progesterone as a 'Covid' treatment. British doctor Nighat Arif told the BBC that face coverings were now going to be part of ongoing normal. Yes, the vaccine protects you, she said (evidence?) ... but the way to deal with viruses in the community was always going to come down to hand washing, face covering and keeping a physical distance. That's not what we were told before the 'vaccine' was circulating. Arif said she couldn't imagine ever again going on the underground or in a lift without a mask. I was just thanking my good luck that she was not my doctor when she said – in March, 2021 – that if 'we are behaving and we are doing all the right things' she thought we could 'have our nearest and dearest around us at home ... around Christmas and New Year! Her patronising delivery was the usual school teacher talking to six-year-olds as she repeated every government talking point and probably believed them all. If we have learned anything from the 'Covid' experience surely it must be that humanity's perception of doctors needs a fundamental rethink. NHS 'doctor' Sara Kayat told her television audience that the 'Covid vaccine' would '100 percent prevent hospitalisation and death'. Not even Big Pharma claimed that. We have to stop taking 'experts' at their word without question when so many of them are clueless and only repeating the party line on which their careers depend. That is not to say there are not brilliant doctors – there are and I have spoken to many of them since all this began – but you won't see them in the mainstream media or quoted by the psychopaths and yes-people in government.

Remember the name – Christian Drosten

German virologist Christian Drosten, Director of Charité Institute of Virology in Berlin, became a national star after the pandemic hoax began. He was feted on television and advised the German government on 'Covid' policy. Most importantly to the wider world Drosten led a group that produced the 'Covid' testing protocol for the PCR test. What a remarkable feat given the PCR cannot test for infectious disease and even more so when you think that Drosten said that his method of testing for SARS-CoV-2 was developed 'without having virus material available'. He developed a test for a 'virus' that he didn't have and had never seen. Let that sink in as you survey the global devastation that came from what he did. The whole catastrophe of Drosten's 'test' was based on the alleged genetic sequence published by Chinese scientists on the Internet. We will see in the next chapter that this alleged 'genetic sequence' has never been produced by China or anyone and cannot be when there is no SARS-CoV-2. Drosten, however, doesn't seem to let little details like that get in the way. He was the lead author with Victor Corman from the same Charité Hospital of the paper 'Detection of 2019 novel coronavirus (2019-nCoV) by real-time PCR' published in a magazine called Eurosurveillance. This became known as the Corman-Drosten paper. In November, 2020, with human society devastated by the effects of the Corman-Drosten test baloney, the protocol was publicly challenged by 22 international scientists and independent researchers from Europe, the United States, and Japan. Among them were senior molecular geneticists, biochemists, immunologists, and microbiologists. They produced a document headed 'External peer review of the RTPCR test to detect SARS-Cov-2 Reveals 10 Major Flaws At The Molecular and Methodological Level: Consequences

For False-Positive Results'. The flaws in the Corman-Drosten test included the following:

- The test is non-specific because of erroneous design
- Results are enormously variable
- The test is unable to discriminate between the whole 'virus' and viral fragments
- It doesn't have positive or negative controls
- The test lacks a standard operating procedure
- It is unsupported by proper peer view

The scientists said the PCR 'Covid' testing protocol was not founded on science and they demanded the Corman-Drosten paper be retracted by Eurosurveillance. They said all present and previous Covid deaths, cases, and 'infection rates' should be subject to a massive retroactive inquiry. Lockdowns and travel restrictions should be reviewed and relaxed and those diagnosed through PCR to have 'Covid-19' should not be forced to isolate. Dr Kevin Corbett, a health researcher and nurse educator with a long academic career producing a stream of peer-reviewed publications at many UK universities, made the same point about the PCR test debacle. He said of the scientists' conclusions: 'Every scientific rationale for the development of that test has been totally destroyed by this paper. It's like Hiroshima/Nagasaki to the Covid test.' He said that China hadn't given them an isolated 'virus' when Drosten developed the test. Instead they had developed the test from a sequence in a gene bank.' Put another way ... they made it up! The scientists were supported in this contention by a Portuguese appeals court which ruled in November, 2020, that PCR tests are unreliable and it is unlawful to quarantine people based solely on a PCR test. The point about China not providing an isolated virus must be true when the 'virus' has never been isolated to this day and the consequences of that will become clear. Drosten and company produced this useless 'protocol' right on cue in January, 2020, just as the 'virus' was said to be moving westward and it somehow managed to successfully pass a peer-review in 24 hours. In other words there was no peer-review for a test that would be used to decide who had 'Covid' and who didn't across the world. The Cult-created, Gates-controlled World Health Organization immediately recommended all its nearly 200 member countries to use the Drosten PCR protocol to detect 'cases' and 'deaths'. The sting was underway and it continues to this day.

So who is this Christian Drosten that produced the means through which death, destruction and economic catastrophe would be justified? His education background, including his doctoral thesis, would appear to be somewhat shrouded in mystery and his track record is dire as with another essential player in the 'Covid' hoax, the Gates-funded Professor Neil Ferguson at the Gates-funded Imperial College in London of whom more shortly. Drosten predicted in 2003 that the alleged original SARS 'virus' (SARS-1) was an epidemic that could have serious effects on economies and an effective vaccine would take at least two years to produce. Drosten's answer to every alleged 'outbreak' is a vaccine which you won't be shocked to know. What followed were just 774 official deaths worldwide and none in Germany where there were only nine cases. That is even if you believe there ever was a SARS 'virus' when the evidence is zilch and I will expand on this in the next chapter. Drosten claims to be co-discoverer of 'SARS-1' and developed a test for it in 2003. He was screaming warnings about 'swine flu' in 2009 and how it was a widespread infection far more severe than any dangers from a vaccine could be and people should get vaccinated. It would be helpful for Drosten's vocal chords if he simply recorded the words 'the virus is deadly and you need to get vaccinated' and copies could be handed out whenever the latest made-up threat comes along. Drosten's swine flu epidemic never happened, but Big Pharma didn't mind with governments spending hundreds of millions on vaccines that hardly anyone bothered to use and many who did wished they hadn't. A study in 2010 revealed that the risk of dying from swine flu, or H1N1, was no higher than that of the annual seasonal flu which is what at least most of 'it' really was as in the case of 'Covid-19'. A media investigation into Drosten asked how with such a record of inaccuracy he could be the government adviser on these issues. The answer to that question is the same with Drosten, Ferguson and Fauci – they keep on giving the authorities the 'conclusions' and 'advice' they want to hear. Drosten certainly produced the goods for them in January, 2020, with his PCR protocol garbage and provided the foundation of what German internal medicine specialist Dr Claus Köhnlein, co-author of Virus Mania, called the 'test pandemic'. The 22 scientists in the Eurosurveillance challenge called out conflicts of interest within the Drosten 'protocol' group and with good reason. Olfert Landt, a regular co-author of Drosten 'studies', owns the biotech company TIB Molbiol Syntheselabor GmbH in Berlin which manufactures and sells the tests that Drosten and his mates come up with. They have done this with SARS, Enterotoxigenic E. coli (ETEC), MERS, Zika 'virus', yellow fever, and now 'Covid'. Landt told the Berliner Zeitung newspaper:

The testing, design and development came from the Charité [Drosten and Corman]. We simply implemented it immediately in the form of a kit. And if we don't have the virus, which originally only existed in Wuhan, we can make a synthetic gene to simulate the genome of the virus. That's what we did very quickly.

This is more confirmation that the Drosten test was designed without access to the 'virus' and only a synthetic simulation which is what SARS-CoV-2 really is – a computer-generated synthetic fiction. It's quite an enterprise they have going here. A Drosten team decides what the test for something should be and Landt's biotech company flogs it to governments and medical systems across the world. His company must have made an absolute fortune since the 'Covid' hoax began. Dr Reiner Fuellmich, a prominent German consumer protection trial lawyer in Germany and California, is on Drosten's case and that of Tedros at the World Health Organization for crimes against humanity with a class-action lawsuit being prepared in the United States and other legal action in Germany.

Why China?

Scamming the world with a 'virus' that doesn't exist would seem impossible on the face of it, but not if you have control of the relatively few people that make policy decisions and the great majority of the global media. Remember it's not about changing 'real' reality it's about controlling perception of reality. You don't have to make something happen you only have to make people believe that it's happening. Renegade Minds understand this and are therefore much harder to swindle. 'Covid-19' is not a 'real' 'virus'. It's a mind virus, like a computer virus, which has infected the minds, not the bodies, of billions. It all started, publically at least, in China and that alone is of central significance. The Cult was behind the revolution led by its asset Mao Zedong, or Chairman Mao, which established the People's Republic of China on October 1st, 1949. It should have been called The Cult's Republic of China, but the name had to reflect the recurring illusion that vicious dictatorships are run by and for the people (see all the 'Democratic Republics' controlled by tyrants). In the same way we have the 'Biden' Democratic Republic of America officially ruled by a puppet tyrant (at least temporarily) on behalf of Cult tyrants. The creation of Mao's merciless communist/fascist dictatorship was part of a frenzy of activity by the Cult at the conclusion of World War Two which, like the First World War, it had instigated through its assets in Germany, Britain, France, the United States and elsewhere. Israel was formed in 1948; the Soviet Union expanded its 'Iron Curtain' control, influence and military power with the Warsaw Pact communist alliance in 1955; the United Nations was formed in 1945 as a Cult precursor to world government; and a long list of world bodies would be established including the World Health Organization (1948), World Trade Organization (1948 under another name until 1995), International Monetary Fund (1945) and World Bank (1944). Human society was redrawn and hugely centralised in the global Problem-Reaction-Solution that was World War Two. All these changes were significant. Israel would become the headquarters of the Sabbatians and the revolution in China would prepare the ground and control system for the events of 2019/2020.

Renegade Minds know there are no borders except for public consumption. The Cult is a seamless, borderless global entity and to understand the game we need to put aside labels like borders, nations, countries, communism, fascism and democracy. These delude the population into believing that countries are ruled within their borders by a government of whatever shade when these are mere agencies of a global power. America's illusion of democracy and China's communism/fascism are subsidiaries – vehicles – for the same agenda. We may hear about conflict and competition between America and China and on the lower levels that will be true; but at the Cult level they are branches of the same company in the way of the McDonald's example I gave earlier. I have tracked in the books over the years support by US governments of both parties for Chinese Communist Party infiltration of American society through allowing the sale of land, even military facilities, and the acquisition of American business and university influence. All this is underpinned by the infamous stealing of intellectual property and technological know-how. Cult-owned Silicon Valley corporations waive their fraudulent 'morality' to do business with human-rights-free China; Cult-controlled Disney has become China's PR department; and China in effect owns 'American' sports such as basketball which depends for much of its income on Chinese audiences. As a result any sports player, coach or official speaking out against China's horrific human rights record is immediately condemned or fired by the China-worshipping National Basketball Association. One of the first acts of China-controlled Biden was to issue an executive order telling federal agencies to stop making references to the 'virus' by the 'geographic location of its origin'. Long-time Congressman Jerry Nadler warned that criticising China, America's biggest rival, leads to hate crimes against Asian people in the United States. So shut up you bigot. China is fast closing in on Israel as a country that must not be criticised which is apt, really, given that Sabbatians control them both. The two countries have developed close economic, military, technological and strategic ties which include involvement in China's 'Silk Road' transport and economic initiative to connect China with Europe. Israel was the first country in the Middle East to recognise the establishment of Mao's tyranny in 1950 months after it was established.

Project Wuhan – the 'Covid' Psyop

I emphasise again that the Cult plays the long game and what is happening to the world today is the result of centuries of calculated manipulation following a script to take control step-by-step of every aspect of human society. I will discuss later the common force behind all this that has spanned those centuries and thousands of years if the truth be told. Instigating the Mao revolution in China in 1949 with a 2020 'pandemic' in mind is not only how they work – the 71 years between them is really quite short by the Cult's standards of manipulation preparation. The reason for the Cult's Chinese revolution was to create a fiercely-controlled environment within which an extreme structure for human control could be incubated to eventually be unleashed across the world. We have seen this happen since the 'pandemic' emerged from China with the Chinese control-structure founded on AI technology and tyrannical enforcement sweep across the West. Until the moment when the Cult went for broke in the West and put its fascism on public display Western governments had to pay some lip-service to freedom and democracy to not alert too many people to the tyranny-in-the-making. Freedoms were more subtly eroded and power centralised with covert government structures put in place waiting for the arrival of 2020 when that smokescreen of 'freedom' could be dispensed with. The West was not able to move towards tyranny before 2020 anything like as fast as China which was created as a tyranny and had no limits on how fast it could construct the Cult's blueprint for global control. When the time came to impose that structure on the world it was the same Cult-owned Chinese communist/fascist government that provided the excuse – the 'Covid pandemic'. It was absolutely crucial to the Cult plan for the Chinese response to the 'pandemic' – draconian lockdowns of the entire population – to become the blueprint that Western countries would follow to destroy the livelihoods and freedom of their people. This is why the Cult-owned, Gates-owned, WHO Director-General Tedros said early on:

The Chinese government is to be congratulated for the extraordinary measures it has taken to contain the outbreak. China is actually setting a new standard for outbreak response and it is not an exaggeration.

Forbes magazine said of China: ‘... those measures protected untold millions from getting the disease’. The Rockefeller Foundation ‘epidemic scenario’ document in 2010 said ‘prophetically’:

However, a few countries did fare better – China in particular. The Chinese government’s quick imposition and enforcement of mandatory quarantine for all citizens, as well as its instant and near-hermetic sealing off of all borders, saved millions of lives, stopping the spread of the virus far earlier than in other countries and enabling a swifter post-pandemic recovery.

Once again – spooky.

The first official story was the ‘bat theory’ or rather the bat diversion. The source of the ‘virus outbreak’ we were told was a ‘wet market’ in Wuhan where bats and other animals are bought and eaten in horrifically unhygienic conditions. Then another story emerged through the alternative media that the ‘virus’ had been released on purpose or by accident from a BSL-4 (biosafety level 4) laboratory in Wuhan not far from the wet market. The lab was reported to create and work with lethal concoctions and bioweapons. Biosafety level 4 is the highest in the World Health Organization system of safety and containment. Renegade Minds are aware of what I call designer manipulation. The ideal for the Cult is for people to buy its prime narrative which in the opening salvos of the ‘pandemic’ was the wet market story. It knows, however, that there is now a considerable worldwide alternative media of researchers sceptical of anything governments say and they are often given a version of events in a form they can perceive as credible while misdirecting them from the real truth. In this case let them think that the conspiracy involved is a 'bioweapon virus' released from the Wuhan lab to keep them from the real conspiracy – there is no 'virus'. The WHO's current position on the source of the outbreak at the time of writing appears to be: 'We haven't got a clue, mate.' This is a good position to maintain mystery and bewilderment. The inner circle will know where the 'virus' came from – nowhere. The bottom line was to ensure the public believed there was a 'virus' and it didn't much matter if they thought it was natural or had been released from a lab. The belief that there was a 'deadly virus' was all that was needed to trigger global panic and fear. The population was terrified into handing their power to authority and doing what they were told. They had to or they were 'all gonna die'.

In March, 2020, information began to come my way from real doctors and scientists and my own additional research which had my intuition screaming: 'Yes, that's it! There is no virus.' The 'bioweapon' was not the 'virus'; it was the 'vaccine' already being talked about that would be the bioweapon. My conclusion was further enhanced by happenings in Wuhan. The 'virus' was said to be sweeping the city and news footage circulated of people collapsing in the street (which they've never done in the West with the same 'virus'). The Chinese government was building 'new hospitals' in a matter of ten days to 'cope with demand' such was the virulent nature of the 'virus'. Yet in what seemed like no time the 'new hospitals' closed – even if they even opened – and China declared itself 'virus-free'. It was back to business as usual. This was more propaganda to promote the Chinese draconian lockdowns in the West as the way to 'beat the virus'. Trouble was that we subsequently had lockdown after lockdown, but never business as usual. As the people of the West and most of the rest of the world were caught in an ever-worsening spiral of lockdown, social distancing, masks, isolated old people, families forced apart, and livelihood destruction, it was party-time in Wuhan. Pictures emerged of thousands of people enjoying pool parties and concerts. It made no sense until you realised there never was a 'virus' and the whole thing was a Cult set-up to transform human society out of one of its major global strongholds – China.

How is it possible to deceive virtually the entire world population into believing there is a deadly virus when there is not even a 'virus' let alone a deadly one? It's nothing like as difficult as you would think and that's clearly true because it happened.

Postscript: See end of book Postscript for more on the 'Wuhan lab virus release' story which the authorities and media were pushing heavily in the summer of 2021 to divert attention from the truth that the 'Covid virus' is pure invention.

CHAPTER FIVE

There is no 'virus'

You can fool some of the people all of the time, and all of the people some of the time, but you cannot fool all of the people all of the time

Abraham Lincoln

The greatest form of mind control is repetition. The more you repeat the same mantra of alleged 'facts' the more will accept them to be true. It becomes an 'everyone knows that, mate'. If you can also censor any other version or alternative to your alleged 'facts' you are pretty much home and cooking.

By the start of 2020 the Cult owned the global mainstream media almost in its entirety to spew out its 'Covid' propaganda and ignore or discredit any other information and view. Cult-owned social media platforms in Cult-owned Silicon Valley were poised and ready to unleash a campaign of ferocious censorship to obliterate all but the official narrative. To complete the circle many demands for censorship by Silicon Valley were led by the mainstream media as 'journalists' became full-out enforcers for the Cult both as propagandists and censors. Part of this has been the influx of young people straight out of university who have become 'journalists' in significant positions. They have no experience and a headful of programmed perceptions from their years at school and university at a time when today's young are the most perceptually-targeted generations in known human history given the insidious impact of technology. They enter the media perceptually prepared and ready to repeat the narratives of the system that programmed them to repeat its narratives. The BBC has a truly pathetic 'specialist disinformation reporter' called Marianna Spring who fits this bill perfectly. She is clueless about the world, how it works and what is really going on. Her role is to discredit anyone doing the job that a proper journalist would do and system-serving hacks like Spring wouldn't dare to do or even see the need to do. They are too busy licking the arse of authority which can never be wrong and, in the case of the BBC propaganda programme, Panorama, contacting payments systems such as PayPal to have a donations page taken down for a film company making documentaries questioning vaccines. Even the BBC soap opera EastEnders included a disgracefully biased scene in which an inarticulate white working class woman was made to look foolish for questioning the 'vaccine' while a well-spoken black man and Asian woman promoted the government narrative. It ticked every BBC box and the fact that the black and minority community was resisting the 'vaccine' had nothing to do with the way the scene was written. The BBC has become a disgusting tyrannical propaganda and censorship operation that should be defunded and disbanded and a free media take its place with a brief to stop censorship instead of demanding it. A BBC 'interview' with Gates goes something like: 'Mr Gates, sir, if I can call you sir, would you like to tell our audience why you are such a great man, a wonderful humanitarian philanthropist, and why you should absolutely be allowed as a software salesman to decide health policy for approaching eight billion people? Thank you, sir, please sir.' Propaganda programming has been incessant and merciless and when all you hear is the same story from the media, repeated by those around you who have only heard the same story, is it any wonder that people on a grand scale believe absolute mendacious garbage to be true? You are about to see, too, why this level of information control is necessary when the official 'Covid' narrative is so nonsensical and unsupportable by the evidence.

Structure of Deceit

The pyramid structure through which the 'Covid' hoax has been manifested is very simple and has to be to work. As few people as possible have to be involved with full knowledge of what they are doing – and why – or the real story would get out. At the top of the pyramid are the inner core of the Cult which controls Bill Gates who, in turn, controls the World Health Organization through his pivotal funding and his puppet Director-General mouthpiece, Tedros. Before he was appointed Tedros was chair of the Gates-founded Global Fund to 'fight against AIDS, tuberculosis and malaria', a board member of the Gates-funded 'vaccine alliance' GAVI, and on the board of another Gates-funded organisation. Gates owns him and picked him for a specific reason – Tedros is a crook and worse. 'Dr' Tedros (he's not a medical doctor, the first WHO chief not to be) was a member of the tyrannical Marxist government of Ethiopia for decades with all its human rights abuses. He has faced allegations of corruption and misappropriation of funds and was exposed three times for covering up cholera epidemics while Ethiopia's health minister. Tedros appointed the mass-murdering genocidal Zimbabwe dictator Robert Mugabe as a WHO goodwill ambassador for public health which, as with Tedros, is like appointing a psychopath to run a peace and love campaign. The move was so ridiculous that he had to drop Mugabe in the face of widespread condemnation. American economist David Steinman, a Nobel peace prize nominee, lodged a complaint with the International Criminal Court in The Hague over alleged genocide by Tedros when he was Ethiopia's foreign minister. Steinman says Tedros was a 'crucial decision maker' who directed the actions of Ethiopia's security forces from 2013 to 2015 and one of three officials in charge when those security services embarked on the 'killing' and 'torturing' of Ethiopians. You can see where Tedros is coming from and it's sobering to think that he has been the vehicle for Gates and the Cult to direct the global response to 'Covid'. Think about that. A psychopathic Cult dictates to psychopath Gates who dictates to psychopath Tedros who dictates how countries of the world must respond to a 'Covid virus' never scientifically shown to exist. At the same time psychopathic Cult-owned Silicon Valley information giants like Google, YouTube, Facebook and Twitter announced very early on that they would give the Cult/Gates/Tedros/WHO version of the narrative free advertising and censor those who challenged their intelligence-insulting, mendacious story.

The next layer in the global 'medical' structure below the Cult, Gates and Tedros are the chief medical officers and science 'advisers' in each of the WHO member countries which means virtually all of them. Medical officers and arbiters of science (they're not) then take the WHO policy and recommended responses and impose them on their country's population while the political 'leaders' say they are deciding policy (they're clearly not) by 'following the science' on the advice of the 'experts' – the same medical officers and science 'advisers' (dictators). In this way with the rarest of exceptions the entire world followed the same policy of lockdown, people distancing, masks and 'vaccines' dictated by the psychopathic Cult, psychopathic Gates and psychopathic Tedros who we are supposed to believe give a damn about the health of the world population they are seeking to enslave. That, amazingly, is all there is to it in terms of crucial decision-making. Medical staff in each country then follow like sheep the dictates of the shepherds at the top of the national medical hierarchies – chief medical officers and science 'advisers' who themselves follow like sheep the shepherds of the World Health Organization and the Cult. Shepherds at the national level often have major funding and other connections to Gates and his Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation which carefully hands out money like confetti at a wedding to control the entire global medical system from the WHO down.

Follow the money

Christopher Whitty, Chief Medical Adviser to the UK Government at the centre of 'virus' policy, a senior adviser to the government's Scientific Advisory Group for Emergencies (SAGE), and Executive Board member of the World Health Organization, was gifted a grant of $40 million by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation for malaria research in Africa. The BBC described the unelected Whitty as 'the official who will probably have the greatest impact on our everyday lives of any individual policymaker in modern times' and so it turned out. What Gates and Tedros have said Whitty has done like his equivalents around the world. Patrick Vallance, co-chair of SAGE and the government's Chief Scientific Adviser, is a former executive of Big Pharma giant GlaxoSmithKline with its fundamental financial and business connections to Bill Gates. In September, 2020, it was revealed that Vallance owned a deferred bonus of shares in GlaxoSmithKline worth £600,000 while the company was 'developing' a 'Covid vaccine'. Move along now – nothing to see here – what could possibly be wrong with that? Imperial College in London, a major player in 'Covid' policy in Britain and elsewhere with its 'Covid-19' Response Team, is funded by Gates and has big connections to China while the now infamous Professor Neil Ferguson, the useless 'computer modeller' at Imperial College is also funded by Gates. Ferguson delivered the dramatically inaccurate excuse for the first lockdowns (much more in the next chapter). The Institute for Health Metrics and Evaluation (IHME) in the United States, another source of outrageously false 'Covid' computer models to justify lockdowns, is bankrolled by Gates who is a vehement promotor of lockdowns. America's version of Whitty and Vallance, the again now infamous Anthony Fauci, has connections to 'Covid vaccine' maker Moderna as does Bill Gates through funding from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation. Fauci is director of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases (NIAID), a major recipient of Gates money, and they are very close. Deborah Birx who was appointed White House Coronavirus Response Coordinator in February, 2020, is yet another with ties to Gates. Everywhere you look at the different elements around the world behind the coordination and decision making of the 'Covid' hoax there is Bill Gates and his money. They include the World Health Organization; Centers for Disease Control (CDC) in the United States; National Institutes of Health (NIH) of Anthony Fauci; Imperial College and Neil Ferguson; the London School of Hygiene where Chris Whitty worked; Regulatory agencies like the UK Medicines & Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) which gave emergency approval for 'Covid vaccines'; Wellcome Trust; GAVI, the Vaccine Alliance; the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations (CEPI); Johns Hopkins University which has compiled the false 'Covid' figures; and the World Economic Forum. A Nationalfile.com article said:

Gates has a lot of pull in the medical world, he has a multi-million dollar relationship with Dr. Fauci, and Fauci originally took the Gates line supporting vaccines and casting doubt on [the drug hydroxychloroquine]. Coronavirus response team member Dr. Deborah Birx, appointed by former president Obama to serve as United States Global AIDS Coordinator, also sits on the board of a group that has received billions from Gates' foundation, and Birx reportedly used a disputed Bill Gates-funded model for the White House's Coronavirus effort. Gates is a big proponent for a population lockdown scenario for the Coronavirus outbreak.

Another funder of Moderna is the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA), the technology-development arm of the Pentagon and one of the most sinister organisations on earth. DARPA had a major role with the CIA covert technology-funding operation In-Q-Tel in the development of Google and social media which is now at the centre of global censorship. Fauci and Gates are extremely close and openly admit to talking regularly about 'Covid' policy, but then why wouldn't Gates have a seat at every national 'Covid' table after his Foundation committed $1.75 billion to the 'fight against Covid-19'. When passed through our Orwellian Translation Unit this means that he has bought and paid for the Cult-driven 'Covid' response worldwide. Research the major 'Covid' response personnel in your own country and you will find the same Gates funding and other connections again and again. Medical and science chiefs following World Health Organization 'policy' sit atop a medical hierarchy in their country of administrators, doctors and nursing staff. These 'subordinates' are told they must work and behave in accordance with the policy delivered from the 'top' of the national 'health' pyramid which is largely the policy delivered by the WHO which is the policy delivered by Gates and the Cult. The whole 'Covid' narrative has been imposed on medical staff by a climate of fear although great numbers don't even need that to comply. They do so through breathtaking levels of ignorance and include doctors who go through life simply repeating what Big Pharma and their hierarchical masters tell them to say and believe. No wonder Big Pharma 'medicine' is one of the biggest killers on Planet Earth.

The same top-down system of intimidation operates with regard to the Cult Big Pharma cartel which also dictates policy through national and global medical systems in this way. The Cult and Big Pharma agendas are the same because the former controls and owns the latter. 'Health' administrators, doctors, and nursing staff are told to support and parrot the dictated policy or they will face consequences which can include being fired. How sad it's been to see medical staff meekly repeating and imposing Cult policy without question and most of those who can see through the deceit are only willing to speak anonymously off the record. They know what will happen if their identity is known. This has left the courageous few to expose the lies about the 'virus', face masks, overwhelmed hospitals that aren't, and the dangers of the 'vaccine' that isn't a vaccine. When these medical professionals and scientists, some renowned in their field, have taken to the Internet to expose the truth their articles, comments and videos have been deleted by Cult-owned Facebook, Twitter and YouTube. What a real head-shaker to see YouTube videos with leading world scientists and highly qualified medical specialists with an added link underneath to the notorious Cult propaganda website Wikipedia to find the 'facts' about the same subject.

HIV – the 'Covid' trial-run

I'll give you an example of the consequences for health and truth that come from censorship and unquestioning belief in official narratives. The story was told by PCR inventor Kary Mullis in his book Dancing Naked in the Mind Field. He said that in 1984 he accepted as just another scientific fact that Luc Montagnier of France's Pasteur Institute and Robert Gallo of America's National Institutes of Health had independently discovered that a 'retrovirus' dubbed HIV (human immunodeficiency virus) caused AIDS. They were, after all, Mullis writes, specialists in retroviruses. This is how the medical and science pyramids work. Something is announced or assumed and then becomes an everybody-knows-that purely through repetition of the assumption as if it is fact. Complete crap becomes accepted truth with no supporting evidence and only repetition of the crap. This is how a 'virus' that doesn't exist became the 'virus' that changed the world. The HIV-AIDS fairy story became a multi-billion pound industry and the media poured out propaganda terrifying the world about the deadly HIV 'virus' that caused the lethal AIDS. By then Mullis was working at a lab in Santa Monica, California, to detect retroviruses with his PCR test in blood donations received by the Red Cross. In doing so he asked a virologist where he could find a reference for HIV being the cause of AIDS. 'You don't need a reference,' the virologist said ... 'Everybody knows it.' Mullis said he wanted to quote a reference in the report he was doing and he said he felt a little funny about not knowing the source of such an important discovery when everyone else seemed to. The virologist suggested he cite a report by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) on morbidity and mortality. Mullis read the report, but it only said that an organism had been identified and did not say how. The report did not identify the original scientific work. Physicians, however, assumed (key recurring theme) that if the CDC was convinced that HIV caused AIDS then proof must exist. Mullis continues:

I did computer searches. Neither Montagnier, Gallo, nor anyone else had published papers describing experiments which led to the conclusion that HIV probably caused AIDS. I read the papers in Science for which they had become well known as AIDS doctors, but all they had said there was that they had found evidence of a past infection by something which was probably HIV in some AIDS patients.

They found antibodies. Antibodies to viruses had always been considered evidence of past disease, not present disease. Antibodies signaled that the virus had been defeated. The patient had saved himself. There was no indication in these papers that this virus caused a disease. They didn't show that everybody with the antibodies had the disease. In fact they found some healthy people with antibodies.

Mullis asked why their work had been published if Montagnier and Gallo hadn't really found this evidence, and why had they been fighting so hard to get credit for the discovery? He says he was hesitant to write 'HIV is the probable cause of AIDS' until he found published evidence to support that. 'Tens of thousands of scientists and researchers were spending billions of dollars a year doing research based on this idea,' Mullis writes. 'The reason had to be there somewhere; otherwise these people would not have allowed their research to settle into one narrow channel of investigation.' He said he lectured about PCR at numerous meetings where people were always talking about HIV and he asked them how they knew that HIV was the cause of AIDS:

Everyone said something. Everyone had the answer at home, in the office, in some drawer. They all knew, and they would send me the papers as soon as they got back. But I never got any papers. Nobody ever sent me the news about how AIDS was caused by HIV.

Eventually Mullis was able to ask Montagnier himself about the reference proof when he lectured in San Diego at the grand opening of the University of California AIDS Research Center. Mullis says this was the last time he would ask his question without showing anger. Montagnier said he should reference the CDC report. 'I read it', Mullis said, and it didn't answer the question. 'If Montagnier didn't know the answer who the hell did?' Then one night Mullis was driving when an interview came on National Public Radio with Peter Duesberg, a prominent virologist at Berkeley and a California Scientist of the Year. Mullis says he finally understood why he could not find references that connected HIV to AIDS – there weren't any! No one had ever proved that HIV causes AIDS even though it had spawned a multi-billion pound global industry and the media was repeating this as fact every day in their articles and broadcasts terrifying the shit out of people about AIDS and giving the impression that a positive test for HIV (see 'Covid') was a death sentence. Duesberg was a threat to the AIDS gravy train and the agenda that underpinned it. He was therefore abused and castigated after he told the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences

there was no good evidence implicating the new 'virus'. Editors rejected his manuscripts and his research funds were deleted. Mullis points out that the CDC has defined AIDS as one of more than 30 diseases if accompanied by a positive result on a test that detects antibodies to HIV; but those same diseases are not defined as AIDS cases when antibodies are not detected:

If an HIV-positive woman develops uterine cancer, for example, she is considered to have AIDS. If she is not HIV positive, she simply has uterine cancer. An HIV-positive man with tuberculosis has AIDS; if he tests negative he simply has tuberculosis. If he lives in Kenya or Colombia, where the test for HIV antibodies is too expensive, he is simply presumed to have the antibodies and therefore AIDS, and therefore he can be treated in the World Health Organization's clinic. It's the only medical help available in some places. And it's free, because the countries that support WHO are worried about AIDS.

Mullis accuses the CDC of continually adding new diseases (see ever more 'Covid symptoms') to the grand AIDS definition and of virtually doctoring the books to make it appear as if the disease continued to spread. He cites how in 1993 the CDC enormously broadened its AIDS definition and county health authorities were delighted because they received $2,500 per year from the Federal government for every reported AIDS case. Ladies and gentlemen, I have just described, via Kary Mullis, the 'Covid pandemic' of 2020 and beyond. Every element is the same and it's been pulled off in the same way by the same networks.

The 'Covid virus' exists? Okay – prove it. Er ... still waiting

What Kary Mullis described with regard to 'HIV' has been repeated with 'Covid'. A claim is made that a new, or 'novel', infection has been found and the entire medical system of the world repeats that as fact exactly as they did with HIV and AIDS. No one in the mainstream asks rather relevant questions such as 'How do you know?' and 'Where is your proof?' The SARS-Cov-2 'virus' and the 'Covid-19 disease' became an overnight 'everybody-knows-that'. The origin could be debated and mulled over, but what you could not suggest was that 'SARS-Cov-2' didn't exist. That would be ridiculous. 'Everybody knows' the 'virus' exists. Well, I didn't for one along with American proper doctors like Andrew Kaufman and Tom Cowan and long-time American proper journalist Jon Rappaport. We dared to pursue the obvious and simple question: 'Where's the evidence?' The overwhelming majority in medicine, journalism and the general public did not think to ask that. After all, everyone knew there was a new 'virus'. Everyone was saying so and I heard it on the BBC. Some would eventually argue that the 'deadly virus' was nothing like as deadly as claimed, but few would venture into the realms of its very existence. Had they done so they would have found that the evidence for that claim had gone AWOL as with HIV causes AIDS. In fact, not even that. For something to go AWOL it has to exist in the first place and scientific proof for a 'SARS-Cov-2' can be filed under nothing, nowhere and zilch.

Dr Andrew Kaufman is a board-certified forensic psychiatrist in New York State, a Doctor of Medicine and former Assistant Professor and Medical Director of Psychiatry at SUNY Upstate Medical University, and Medical Instructor of Hematology and Oncology at the Medical School of South Carolina. He also studied biology at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) and trained in Psychiatry at Duke University. Kaufman is retired from allopathic medicine, but remains a consultant and educator on natural healing, I saw a video of his very early on in the 'Covid' hoax in which he questioned claims about the 'virus' in the absence of any supporting evidence and with plenty pointing the other way. I did everything I could to circulate his work which I felt was asking the pivotal questions that needed an answer. I can recommend an excellent pull-together interview he did with the website The Last Vagabond entitled Dr Andrew Kaufman: Virus Isolation, Terrain Theory and Covid-19 and his website is andrewkaufmanmd.com. Kaufman is not only a forensic psychiatrist; he is forensic in all that he does. He always reads original scientific papers, experiments and studies instead of second-third-fourth-hand reports about the 'virus' in the media which are repeating the repeated repetition of the narrative. When he did so with the original Chinese 'virus' papers Kaufman realised that there was no evidence of a 'SARS-Cov-2'. They had never – from the start – shown it to exist and every repeat of this claim worldwide was based on the accepted existence of proof that was nowhere to be found – see Kary Mullis and HIV. Here we go again.

Let's postulate

Kaufman discovered that the Chinese authorities immediately concluded that the cause of an illness that broke out among about 200 initial patients in Wuhan was a 'new virus' when there were no grounds to make that conclusion. The alleged 'virus' was not isolated from other genetic material in their samples and then shown through a system known as Koch's postulates to be the causative agent of the illness. The world was told that the SARS-Cov-2 'virus' caused a disease they called 'Covid-19' which had 'flu-like' symptoms and could lead to respiratory problems and pneumonia. If it wasn't so tragic it would almost be funny. 'Flu-like' symptoms? Pneumonia? Respiratory disease? What in CHINA and particularly in Wuhan, one of the most polluted cities in the world with a resulting epidemic of respiratory disease?? Three hundred thousand people get pneumonia in China every year and there are nearly a billion cases worldwide of 'flu-like symptoms'. These have a whole range of causes – including pollution in Wuhan – but no other possibility was credibly considered in late 2019 when the world was told there was a new and deadly 'virus'. The global prevalence of pneumonia and 'flu-like systems' gave the Cult networks unlimited potential to re-diagnose these other causes as the mythical 'Covid-19' and that is what they did from the very start. Kaufman revealed how Chinese medical and science authorities (all subordinates to the Cult-owned communist government) took genetic material from the lungs of only a few of the first patients. The material contained their own cells, bacteria, fungi and other microorganisms living in their bodies. The only way you could prove the existence of the 'virus' and its responsibility for the alleged 'Covid-19' was to isolate the virus from all the other material – a process also known as 'purification' – and then follow the postulates sequence developed in the late 19th century by German physician and bacteriologist Robert Koch which became the 'gold standard' for connecting an alleged causation agent to a disease:

1. The microorganism (bacteria, fungus, virus, etc.) must be present in every case of the disease and all patients must have the same symptoms. It must also not be present in healthy individuals.
2. The microorganism must be isolated from the host with the disease. If the microorganism is a bacteria or fungus it must be grown in a pure culture. If it is a virus, it must be purified (i.e. containing no other material except the virus particles) from a clinical sample.
3. The specific disease, with all of its characteristics, must be reproduced when the infectious agent (the purified virus or a pure culture of bacteria or fungi) is inoculated into a healthy, susceptible host.
4. The microorganism must be recoverable from the experimentally infected host as in step 2.

Not one of these criteria has been met in the case of 'SARS-Cov-2' and 'Covid-19'. Not ONE. EVER. Robert Koch refers to bacteria and not viruses. What are called 'viral particles' are so minute (hence masks are useless by any definition) that they could only be seen after the invention of the electron microscope in the 1930s and can still only be observed through that means. American bacteriologist and virologist Thomas Milton Rivers, the so-called 'Father of Modern Virology' who was very significantly director of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research in the 1930s, developed a less stringent version of Koch's postulates to identify 'virus' causation known as 'Rivers criteria'. 'Covid' did not pass that process either. Some even doubt whether any 'virus' can be isolated from other particles containing genetic material in the Koch method. Freedom of Information requests in many countries asking for scientific proof that the 'Covid virus' has been purified and isolated and shown to exist have all come back with a 'we don't have that' and when this happened with a request to the UK Department of Health they added this comment:

However, outside of the scope of the [Freedom of Information Act] and on a discretionary basis, the following information has been advised to us, which may be of interest. Most infectious diseases are caused by viruses, bacteria or fungi. Some bacteria or fungi have the capacity to grow on their own in isolation, for example in colonies on a petri dish. Viruses are different in that they are what we call 'obligate pathogens' – that is, they cannot survive or reproduce without infecting a host ...

... For some diseases, it is possible to establish causation between a microorganism and a disease by isolating the pathogen from a patient, growing it in pure culture and reintroducing it to a healthy organism. These are known as 'Koch's postulates' and were developed in 1882. However, as our understanding of disease and different disease-causing agents has advanced, these are no longer the method for determining causation [Andrew Kaufman asks why in that case are there two published articles falsely claiming to satisfy Koch's postulates].

It has long been known that viral diseases cannot be identified in this way as viruses cannot be grown in 'pure culture'. When a patient is tested for a viral illness, this is normally done by looking for the presence of antigens, or viral genetic code in a host with molecular biology techniques [Kaufman asks how you could know the origin of these chemicals without having a pure culture for comparison].

For the record 'antigens' are defined so:

Invading microorganisms have antigens on their surface that the human body can recognise as being foreign – meaning not belonging to it. When the body recognises a foreign antigen, lymphocytes (white blood cells) produce antibodies, which are complementary in shape to the antigen.

Notwithstanding that this is open to question in relation to 'SARS-Cov-2' the presence of 'antibodies' can have many causes and they are found in people that are perfectly well. Kary Mullis said: 'Antibodies ... had always been considered evidence of past disease, not present disease.'

'Covid' really is a computer 'virus'

Where the UK Department of Health statement says 'viruses' are now 'diagnosed' through a 'viral genetic code in a host with molecular biology techniques', they mean ... the PCR test which its inventor said cannot test for infectious disease. They have no credible method of connecting a 'virus' to a disease and we will see that there is no scientific proof that any 'virus' causes any disease or there is any such thing as a 'virus' in the way that it is described. Tenacious Canadian researcher Christine Massey and her team made some 40 Freedom of Information requests to national public health agencies in different countries asking for proof that SARS-CoV-2 has been isolated and not one of them could supply that information. Massey said of her request in Canada: 'Freedom of Information reveals Public Health Agency of Canada has no record of 'SARS-COV-2' isolation performed by anyone, anywhere, ever.' If you accept the comment from the UK Department of Health it's because they can't isolate a 'virus'. Even so many 'science' papers claimed to have isolated the 'Covid virus' until they were questioned and had to admit they hadn't. A reply from the Robert Koch Institute in Germany was typical: 'I am not aware of a paper which purified isolated SARS-CoV-2.' So what the hell was Christian Drosten and his gang using to design the 'Covid' testing protocol that has produced all the illusory Covid' cases and 'Covid' deaths when the head of the Chinese version of the CDC admitted there was a problem right from the start in that the 'virus' had never been isolated/purified? Breathe deeply: What they are calling 'Covid' is actually created by a computer program i.e. they made it up – er, that's it. They took lung fluid, with many sources of genetic material, from one single person alleged to be infected with Covid-19 by a PCR test which they claimed, without clear evidence, contained a 'virus'. They used several computer programs to create a model of a theoretical virus genome sequence from more than fifty-six million small sequences of RNA, each of an unknown source, assembling them like a puzzle with no known solution. The computer filled in the gaps with sequences from bits in the gene bank to make it look like a bat SARS-like coronavirus! A wave of the magic wand and poof, an in silico (computer-generated) genome, a scientific fantasy, was created. UK health researcher Dr Kevin Corbett made the same point with this analogy:

... It's like giving you a few bones and saying that's your fish. It could be any fish. Not even a skeleton. Here's a few fragments of bones. That's your fish ... It's all from gene bank and the bits of the virus sequence that weren't there they made up.

They synthetically created them to fill in the blanks. That's what genetics is; it's a code. So it's ABBCCDDDD and you're missing some what you think is EEE so you put it in. It's all synthetic. You just manufacture the bits that are missing. This is the end result of the geneticization of virology. This is basically a computer virus.

Further confirmation came in an email exchange between British citizen journalist Frances Leader and the government's Medicines & Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency (the Gates-funded MHRA) which gave emergency permission for untested 'Covid vaccines' to be used. The agency admitted that the 'vaccine' is not based on an isolated 'virus', but comes from a computer-generated model. Frances Leader was naturally banned from Cult-owned fascist Twitter for making this exchange public. The process of creating computer-generated alleged 'viruses' is called 'in silico' or 'in silicon' – computer chips – and the term 'in silico' is believed to originate with biological experiments using only a computer in 1989. 'Vaccines' involved with 'Covid' are also produced 'in silico' or by computer not a natural process. If the original 'virus' is nothing more than a made-up computer model how can there be 'new variants' of something that never existed in the first place? They are not new 'variants'; they are new computer models only minutely different to the original program and designed to further terrify the population into having the 'vaccine' and submitting to fascism. You want a 'new variant'? Click, click, enter – there you go. Tell the medical profession that you have discovered a 'South African variant', 'UK variants' or a 'Brazilian variant' and in the usual HIV-causes-AIDS manner they will unquestioningly repeat it with no evidence whatsoever to support these claims. They will go on television and warn about the dangers of 'new variants' while doing nothing more than repeating what they have been told to be true and knowing that any deviation from that would be career suicide. Big-time insiders will know it's a hoax, but much of the medical community is clueless about the way they are being played and themselves play the public without even being aware they are doing so. What an interesting 'coincidence' that AstraZeneca and Oxford University were conducting 'Covid vaccine trials' in the three countries – the UK, South Africa and Brazil – where the first three 'variants' were claimed to have 'broken out'.

Here's your 'virus' – it's a unicorn

Dr Andrew Kaufman presented a brilliant analysis describing how the 'virus' was imagined into fake existence when he dissected an article published by Nature and written by 19 authors detailing alleged 'sequencing of a complete viral genome' of the 'new SARS-CoV-2 virus'. This computer-modelled in silico genome was used as a template for all subsequent genome sequencing experiments that resulted in the so-called variants which he said now number more than 6,000. The fake genome was constructed from more than 56 million individual short strands of RNA. Those little pieces were assembled into longer pieces by finding areas of overlapping sequences. The computer programs created over two million possible combinations from which the authors simply chose the longest one. They then compared this to a 'bat virus' and the computer 'alignment' rearranged the sequence and filled in the gaps! They called this computer-generated abomination the 'complete genome'. Dr Tom Cowan, a fellow medical author and collaborator with Kaufman, said such computer-generation constitutes scientific fraud and he makes this superb analogy:

Here is an equivalency: A group of researchers claim to have found a unicorn because they found a piece of a hoof, a hair from a tail, and a snippet of a horn. They then add that information into a computer and program it to re-create the unicorn, and they then claim this computer re-creation is the real unicorn. Of course, they had never actually seen a unicorn so could not possibly have examined its genetic makeup to compare their samples with the actual unicorn's hair, hooves and horn.

The researchers claim they decided which is the real genome of SARS-CoV-2 by 'consensus', sort of like a vote. Again, different computer programs will come up with different versions of the imaginary 'unicorn', so they come together as a group and decide which is the real imaginary unicorn.

This is how the 'virus' that has transformed the world was brought into fraudulent 'existence'. Extraordinary, yes, but as the Nazis said the bigger the lie the more will believe it. Cowan, however, wasn't finished and he went on to identify what he called the real blockbuster in the paper. He quotes this section from a paper written by virologists and published by the CDC and then explains what it means:

Therefore, we examined the capacity of SARS-CoV-2 to infect and replicate in several common primate and human cell lines, including human adenocarcinoma cells (A549), human liver cells (HUH 7.0), and human embryonic kidney cells (HEK-293T). In addition to Vero E6 and Vero CCL81 cells. ... Each cell line was inoculated at high multiplicity of infection and examined 24h post-infection.

No CPE was observed in any of the cell lines except in Vero cells, which grew to greater than 10 to the 7th power at 24 h post-infection. In contrast, HUH 7.0 and 293T showed only modest viral replication, and A549 cells were incompatible with SARS CoV-2 infection.

Cowan explains that when virologists attempt to prove infection they have three possible 'hosts' or models on which they can test. The first was humans. Exposure to humans was generally not done for ethical reasons and has never been done with SARS-CoV-2 or any coronavirus. The second possible host was animals. Cowan said that forgetting for a moment that they never actually use purified virus when exposing animals they do use solutions that they claim contain the virus. Exposure to animals has been done with SARS-CoV-2 in an experiment involving mice and this is what they found: None of the wild (normal) mice got sick. In a group of genetically-modified mice, a statistically insignificant number lost weight and had slightly bristled fur, but they experienced nothing like the illness called 'Covid-19'. Cowan said the third method – the one they mostly rely on – is to inoculate solutions they say contain the virus onto a variety of tissue cultures. This process had never been shown to kill tissue unless the sample material was starved of nutrients and poisoned as part of the process. Yes, incredibly, in tissue experiments designed to show the 'virus' is responsible for killing the tissue they starve the tissue of nutrients and add toxic drugs including antibiotics and they do not have control studies to see if it's the starvation and poisoning that is degrading the tissue rather than the 'virus' they allege to be in there somewhere. You want me to pinch you? Yep, I understand. Tom Cowan said this about the whole nonsensical farce as he explains what that quote from the CDC paper really means:

The shocking thing about the above quote is that using their own methods, the virologists found that solutions containing SARS-CoV-2 – even in high amounts – were NOT, I repeat NOT, infective to any of the three human tissue cultures they tested. In plain English, this means they proved, on their terms, that this ‘new coronavirus’ is not infectious to human beings. It is ONLY infective to monkey kidney cells, and only then when you add two potent drugs (gentamicin and amphotericin), known to be toxic to kidneys, to the mix.

My friends, read this again and again. These virologists, published by the CDC, performed a clear proof, on their terms, showing that the SARS-CoV-2 virus is harmless to human beings. That is the only possible conclusion, but, unfortunately, this result is not even mentioned in their conclusion. They simply say they can provide virus stocks cultured only on monkey Vero cells, thanks for coming.

Cowan concluded: ‘If people really understood how this “science” was done, I would hope they would storm the gates and demand honesty, transparency and truth.’ Dr Michael Yeadon, former Vice President and Chief Scientific Adviser at drug giant Pfizer has been a vocal critic of the ‘Covid vaccine’ and its potential for multiple harm. He said in an interview in April, 2021, that ‘not one [vaccine] has the virus. He was asked why vaccines normally using a ‘dead’ version of a disease to activate the immune system were not used for ‘Covid’ and instead we had the synthetic methods of the ‘mRNA Covid vaccine’. Yeadon said that to do the former ‘you’d have to have some of [the virus] wouldn’t you?’ He added: ‘No-one’s got any – seriously.’ Yeadon said that surely they couldn’t have fooled the whole world for a year without having a virus, ‘but oddly enough ask around – no one’s got it’. He didn’t know why with all the ‘great labs’ around the world that the virus had not been isolated – ‘Maybe they’ve been too busy running bad PCR tests and vaccines that people don’t need.’ What is today called ‘science’ is not ‘science’ at all. Science is no longer what is, but whatever people can be manipulated to believe that it is. Real science has been hijacked by the Cult to dispense and produce the ‘expert scientists’ and contentions that suit the agenda of the Cult. How big-time this has happened with the ‘Covid’ hoax which is entirely based on fake science delivered by fake ‘scientists’ and fake ‘doctors’. The human-caused climate change hoax is also entirely based on fake science delivered by fake ‘scientists’ and fake ‘climate experts’. In both cases real scientists, climate experts and doctors have their views suppressed and deleted by the Cult-owned science establishment, media and Silicon Valley. This is the 'science' that politicians claim to be 'following' and a common denominator of 'Covid' and climate are Cult psychopaths Bill Gates and his mate Klaus Schwab at the Gates-funded World Economic Forum. But, don't worry, it's all just a coincidence and absolutely nothing to worry about. Zzzzzzzzz.

What is a 'virus' REALLY?

Dr Tom Cowan is one of many contesting the very existence of viruses let alone that they cause disease. This is understandable when there is no scientific evidence for a disease-causing 'virus'. German virologist Dr Stefan Lanka won a landmark case in 2017 in the German Supreme Court over his contention that there is no such thing as a measles virus. He had offered a big prize for anyone who could prove there is and Lanka won his case when someone sought to claim the money. There is currently a prize of more than 225,000 euros on offer from an Isolate Truth Fund for anyone who can prove the isolation of SARS-CoV-2 and its genetic substance. Lanka wrote in an article headed 'The Misconception Called Virus' that scientists think a 'virus' is causing tissue to become diseased and degraded when in fact it is the processes they are using which do that – not a 'virus'. Lanka has done an important job in making this point clear as Cowan did in his analysis of the CDC paper. Lanka says that all claims about viruses as disease-causing pathogens are wrong and based on 'easily recognisable, understandable and verifiable misinterpretations.' Scientists believed they were working with 'viruses' in their laboratories when they were really working with 'typical particles of specific dying tissues or cells ...' Lanka said that the tissue decaying process claimed to be caused by a 'virus' still happens when no alleged 'virus' is involved. It's the process that does the damage and not a 'virus'. The genetic sample is deprived of nutrients, removed from its energy supply through removal from the body and then doused in toxic antibiotics to remove any bacteria. He confirms again that establishment scientists do not (pinch me) conduct control experiments to see if this is the case and if they did they would see the claims that 'viruses' are doing the damage is nonsense. He adds that during the measles 'virus' court case he commissioned an independent laboratory to perform just such a control experiment and the result was that the tissues and cells died in the exact same way as with alleged 'infected' material. This is supported by a gathering number of scientists, doctors and researchers who reject what is called 'germ theory' or the belief in the body being infected by contagious sources emitted by other people. Researchers Dawn Lester and David Parker take the same stance in their highly-detailed and sourced book What Really Makes You Ill – Why everything you thought you knew about disease is wrong which was recommended to me by a number of medical professionals genuinely seeking the truth. Lester and Parker say there is no provable scientific evidence to show that a 'virus' can be transmitted between people or people and animals or animals and people:

The definition also claims that viruses are the cause of many diseases, as if this has been definitively proven. But this is not the case; there is no original scientific evidence that definitively demonstrates that any virus is the cause of any disease. The burden of proof for any theory lies with those who proposed it; but none of the existing documents provides 'proof' that supports the claim that 'viruses' are pathogens.

Dr Tom Cowan employs one of his clever analogies to describe the process by which a 'virus' is named as the culprit for a disease when what is called a 'virus' is only material released by cells detoxing themselves from infiltration by chemical or radiation poisoning. The tidal wave of technologically-generated radiation in the 'smart' modern world plus all the toxic food and drink are causing this to happen more than ever. Deluded 'scientists' misread this as a gathering impact of what they wrongly label 'viruses'.

Paper can infect houses

Cowan said in an article for davidicke.com – with his tongue only mildly in his cheek – that he believed he had made a tremendous discovery that may revolutionise science. He had discovered that small bits of paper are alive, 'well alive-ish', can 'infect' houses, and then reproduce themselves inside the house. The result was that this explosion of growth in the paper inside the house causes the house to explode, blowing it to smithereens. His evidence for this new theory is that in the past months he had carefully examined many of the houses in his neighbourhood and found almost no scraps of paper on the lawns and surrounds of the house. There was an occasional stray label, but nothing more. Then he would return to these same houses a week or so later and with a few, not all of them, particularly the old and decrepit ones, he found to his shock and surprise they were littered with stray bits of paper. He knew then that the paper had infected these houses, made copies of itself, and blew up the house. A young boy on a bicycle at one of the sites told him he had seen a demolition crew using dynamite to explode the house the previous week, but Cowan dismissed this as the idle thoughts of silly boys because 'I was on to something big'. He was on to how 'scientists' mistake genetic material in the detoxifying process for something they call a 'virus'. Cowan said of his house and paper story:

If this sounds crazy to you, it's because it should. This scenario is obviously nuts. But consider this admittedly embellished, for effect, current viral theory that all scientists, medical doctors and virologists currently believe.

He takes the example of the 'novel SARS-Cov2' virus to prove the point. First they take someone with an undefined illness called 'Covid-19' and don't even attempt to find any virus in their sputum. Never mind the scientists still describe how this 'virus', which they have not located attaches to a cell receptor, injects its genetic material, in 'Covid's' case, RNA, into the cell. The RNA once inserted exploits the cell to reproduce itself and makes 'thousands, nay millions, of copies of itself ... Then it emerges victorious to claim its next victim':

If you were to look in the scientific literature for proof, actual scientific proof, that uniform SARS-CoV2 viruses have been properly isolated from the sputum of a sick person, that actual spike proteins could be seen protruding from the virus (which has not been found), you would find that such evidence doesn't exist.

If you go looking in the published scientific literature for actual pictures, proof, that these spike proteins or any viral proteins are ever attached to any receptor embedded in any cell membrane, you would also find that no such evidence exists. If you were to look for a video or documented evidence of the intact virus injecting its genetic material into the body of the cell, reproducing itself and then emerging victorious by budding off the cell membrane, you would find that no such evidence exists.

The closest thing you would find is electron micrograph pictures of cellular particles, possibly attached to cell debris, both of which to be seen were stained by heavy metals, a process that completely distorts their architecture within the living organism. This is like finding bits of paper stuck to the blown-up bricks, thereby proving the paper emerged by taking pieces of the bricks on its way out.

The Enders baloney

Cowan describes the 'Covid' story as being just as make-believe as his paper story and he charts back this fantasy to a Nobel Prize winner called John Enders (1897-1985), an American biomedical scientist who has been dubbed 'The Father of Modern Vaccines'. Enders is claimed to have 'discovered' the process of the viral culture which 'proved' that a 'virus' caused measles. Cowan explains how Enders did this 'by using the EXACT same procedure that has been followed by every virologist to find and characterize every new virus since 1954'. Enders took throat swabs from children with measles and immersed them in 2ml of milk. Penicillin (100u/ml) and the antibiotic streptomycin (50,g/ml) were added and the whole mix was centrifuged – rotated at high speed to separate large cellular debris from small particles and molecules as with milk and cream, for example. Cowan says that if the aim is to find little particles of genetic material ('viruses') in the snot from children with measles it would seem that the last thing you would do is mix the snot with other material – milk –that also has genetic material. 'How are you ever going to know whether whatever you found came from the snot or the milk?' He points out that streptomycin is a 'nephrotoxic' or poisonous-to-the-kidney drug. You will see the relevance of that shortly. Cowan says that it gets worse, much worse, when Enders describes the culture medium upon which the virus 'grows': 'The culture medium consisted of bovine amniotic fluid (90%), beef embryo extract (5%), horse serum (5%), antibiotics and phenol red as an indicator of cell metabolism.' Cowan asks incredulously: 'Did he just say that the culture medium also contained fluids and tissues that are themselves rich sources of genetic material?' The genetic cocktail, or 'medium', is inoculated onto tissue and cells from rhesus monkey kidney tissue. This is where the importance of streptomycin comes in and currently-used antimicrobials and other drugs that are poisonous to kidneys and used in ALL modern viral cultures (e.g. gentamicin, streptomycin, and amphotericin). Cowan asks: 'How are you ever going to know from this witch's brew where any genetic material comes from as we now have five different sources of rich genetic material in our mix?' Remember, he says, that all genetic material, whether from monkey kidney tissues, bovine serum, milk, etc., is made from the exact same components. The same central question returns: 'How are you possibly going to know that it was the virus that killed the kidney tissue and not the toxic antibiotic and starvation rations on which you are growing the tissue?' John Enders answered the question himself – you can't:

A second agent was obtained from an uninoculated culture of monkey kidney cells. The cytopathic changes [death of the cells] it induced in the unstained preparations could not be distinguished with confidence from the viruses isolated from measles.

The death of the cells ('cytopathic changes') happened in exactly the same manner, whether they inoculated the kidney tissue with the measles snot or not, Cowan says. 'This is evidence that the destruction of the tissue, the very proof of viral causation of illness, was not caused by anything in the snot because they saw the same destructive effect when the snot was not even used ... the cytopathic, i.e., cell-killing, changes come from the process of the culture itself, not from any virus in any snot, period.' Enders quotes in his 1957 paper a virologist called Ruckle as reporting similar findings 'and in addition has isolated an agent from monkey kidney tissue that is so far indistinguishable from human measles virus'. In other words, Cowan says, these particles called 'measles viruses' are simply and clearly breakdown products of the starved and poisoned tissue. For measles 'virus' see all 'viruses' including the so-called 'Covid virus'. Enders, the 'Father of Modern Vaccines', also said:

There is a potential risk in employing cultures of primate cells for the production of vaccines composed of attenuated virus, since the presence of other agents possibly latent in primate tissues cannot be definitely excluded by any known method.

Cowan further quotes from a paper published in the journal Viruses in May, 2020, while the 'Covid pandemic' was well underway in the media if not in reality. 'EVs' here refers to particles of genetic debris from our own tissues, such as exosomes of which more in a moment: 'The remarkable resemblance between EVs and viruses has caused quite a few problems in the studies focused on the analysis of EVs released during viral infections.' Later the paper adds that to date a reliable method that can actually guarantee a complete separation (of EVs from viruses) DOES NOT EXIST. This was published at a time when a fairy tale 'virus' was claimed in total certainty to be causing a fairy tale 'viral disease' called 'Covid-19' – a fairy tale that was already well on the way to transforming human society in the image that the Cult has worked to achieve for so long. Cowan concludes his article:

To summarize, there is no scientific evidence that pathogenic viruses exist. What we think of as 'viruses' are simply the normal breakdown products of dead and dying tissues and cells. When we are well, we make fewer of these particles; when we are starved, poisoned, suffocated by wearing masks, or afraid, we make more.

There is no engineered virus circulating and making people sick. People in laboratories all over the world are making genetically modified products to make people sick. These are called vaccines. There is no virome, no 'ecosystem' of viruses, viruses are not 8%, 50% or 100 % of our genetic material. These are all simply erroneous ideas based on the misconception called a virus.

What is 'Covid'? Load of bollocks

The background described here by Cowan and Lanka was emphasised in the first video presentation that I saw by Dr Andrew Kaufman when he asked whether the 'Covid virus' was in truth a natural defence mechanism of the body called 'exosomes'. These are released by cells when in states of toxicity – see the same themes returning over and over. They are released ever more profusely as chemical and radiation toxicity increases and think of the potential effect therefore of 5G alone as its destructive frequencies infest the human energetic information field with a gathering pace (5G went online in Wuhan in 2019 as the 'virus' emerged). I'll have more about this later. Exosomes transmit a warning to the rest of the body that 'Houston, we have a problem'. Kaufman presented images of exosomes and compared them with 'Covid' under an electron microscope and the similarity was remarkable. They both attach to the same cell receptors (claimed in the case of 'Covid'), contain the same genetic material in the form of RNA or ribonucleic acid, and both are found in 'viral cell cultures' with damaged or dying cells. James Hildreth MD, President and Chief Executive Officer of the Meharry Medical College at Johns Hopkins, said: 'The virus is fully an exosome in every sense of the word.' Kaufman's conclusion was that there is no 'virus': 'This entire pandemic is a completely manufactured crisis ... there is no evidence of anyone dying from [this] illness.' Dr Tom Cowan and Sally Fallon Morell, authors of The Contagion Myth, published a statement with Dr Kaufman in February, 2021, explaining why the 'virus' does not exist and you can read it that in full in the Appendix.

'Virus' theory can be traced to the 'cell theory' in 1858 of German physician Rudolf Virchow (1821-1920) who contended that disease originates from a single cell infiltrated by a 'virus'. Dr Stefan Lanka said that findings and insights with respect to the structure, function and central importance of tissues in the creation of life, which were already known in 1858, comprehensively refute the cell theory. Virchow ignored them. We have seen the part later played by John Enders in the 1950s and Lanka notes that infection theories were only established as a global dogma through the policies and eugenics of the Third Reich in Nazi Germany (creation of the same Sabbatian cult behind the 'Covid' hoax). Lanka said: 'Before 1933, scientists dared to contradict this theory; after 1933, these critical scientists were silenced'. Dr Tom Cowan's view is that ill-health is caused by too much of something, too little of something, or toxification from chemicals and radiation – not contagion. We must also highlight as a major source of the 'virus' theology a man still called the 'Father of Modern Virology' – Thomas Milton Rivers (1888-1962). There is no way given the Cult's long game policy that it was a coincidence for the 'Father of Modern Virology' to be director of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research from 1937 to 1956 when he is credited with making the Rockefeller Institute a leader in 'viral research'. Cult Rockefeller were the force behind the creation of Big Pharma 'medicine', established the World Health Organisation in 1948, and have long and close associations with the Gates family that now runs the WHO during the pandemic hoax through mega-rich Cult gofer and psychopath Bill Gates.

Only a Renegade Mind can see through all this bullshit by asking the questions that need to be answered, not taking 'no' or prevarication for an answer, and certainly not hiding from the truth in fear of speaking it. Renegade Minds have always changed the world for the better and they will change this one no matter how bleak it may currently appear to be.

CHAPTER SIX

Sequence of deceit

If you tell the truth, you don't have to remember anything
Mark Twain

Against the background that I have laid out this far the sequence that took us from an invented 'virus' in Cult-owned China in late 2019 to the fascist transformation of human society can be seen and understood in a whole new context.

We were told that a deadly disease had broken out in Wuhan and the world media began its campaign (coordinated by behavioural psychologists as we shall see) to terrify the population into unquestioning compliance. We were shown images of Chinese people collapsing in the street which never happened in the West with what was supposed to be the same condition. In the earliest days when alleged cases and deaths were few the fear register was hysterical in many areas of the media and this would expand into the common media narrative across the world. The real story was rather different, but we were never told that. The Chinese government, one of the Cult's biggest centres of global operation, said they had discovered a new illness with flu-like and pneumonia-type symptoms in a city with such toxic air that it is overwhelmed with flu-like symptoms, pneumonia and respiratory disease. Chinese scientists said it was a new – 'novel' – coronavirus which they called Sars-Cov-2 and that it caused a disease they labelled 'Covid-19'. There was no evidence for this and the 'virus' has never to this day been isolated, purified and its genetic code established from that. It was from the beginning a computer-generated fiction. Stories of Chinese whistleblowers saying the number of deaths was being suppressed or that the 'new disease' was related to the Wuhan bio-lab misdirected mainstream and alternative media into cul-de-sacs to obscure the real truth – there was no 'virus'.

Chinese scientists took genetic material from the lung fluid of just a few people and said they had found a 'new' disease when this material had a wide range of content. There was no evidence for a 'virus' for the very reasons explained in the last two chapters. The 'virus' has never been shown to (a) exist and (b) cause any disease. People were diagnosed on symptoms that are so widespread in Wuhan and polluted China and with a PCR test that can't detect infectious disease. On this farce the whole global scam was sold to the rest of the world which would also diagnose respiratory disease as 'Covid-19' from symptoms alone or with a PCR test not testing for a 'virus'. Flu miraculously disappeared worldwide in 2020 and into 2021 as it was redesignated 'Covid-19'. It was really the same old flu with its 'flu-like' symptoms attributed to 'flu-like' 'Covid-19'. At the same time with very few exceptions the Chinese response of draconian lockdown and fascism was the chosen weapon to respond across the West as recommended by the Cult-owned Tedros at the Cult-owned World Health Organization run by the Cult-owned Gates. All was going according to plan. Chinese scientists – everything in China is controlled by the Cult-owned government – compared their contaminated RNA lung-fluid material with other RNA sequences and said it appeared to be just under 80 percent identical to the SARS-CoV-1 'virus' claimed to be the cause of the SARS (severe acute respiratory syndrome) 'outbreak' in 2003. They decreed that because of this the 'new virus' had to be related and they called it SARS-CoV-2. There are some serious problems with this assumption and assumption was all it was. Most 'factual' science turns out to be assumptions repeated into everyone-knows-that. A match of under 80-percent is meaningless. Dr Kaufman makes the point that there's a 96 percent genetic correlation between humans and chimpanzees, but 'no one would say our genetic material is part of the chimpanzee family'. Yet the Chinese authorities were claiming that a much lower percentage, less than 80 percent, proved the existence of a new 'coronavirus'. For goodness sake human DNA is 60 percent similar to a banana.

You are feeling sleepy

The entire 'Covid' hoax is a global Psyop, a psychological operation to program the human mind into believing and fearing a complete fantasy. A crucial aspect of this was what appeared to happen in Italy. It was all very well streaming out daily images of an alleged catastrophe in Wuhan, but to the Western mind it was still on the other side of the world in a very different culture and setting. A reaction of 'this could happen to me and my family' was still nothing like as intense enough for the mind-doctors. The Cult needed a Western example to push people over that edge and it chose Italy, one of its major global locations going back to the Roman Empire. An Italian 'Covid' crisis was manufactured in a particular area called Lombardy which just happens to be notorious for its toxic air and therefore respiratory disease. Wuhan, China, déjà vu. An hysterical media told horror stories of Italians dying from 'Covid' in their droves and how Lombardy hospitals were being overrun by a tidal wave of desperately ill people needing treatment after being struck down by the 'deadly virus'. Here was the psychological turning point the Cult had planned. Wow, if this is happening in Italy, the Western mind concluded, this indeed could happen to me and my family. Another point is that Italian authorities responded by following the Chinese blueprint so vehemently recommended by the Cult-owned World Health Organization. They imposed fascistic lockdowns on the whole country viciously policed with the help of surveillance drones sweeping through the streets seeking out anyone who escaped from mass house arrest. Livelihoods were destroyed and psychology unravelled in the way we have witnessed since in all lockdown countries. Crucial to the plan was that Italy responded in this way to set the precedent of suspending freedom and imposing fascism in a 'Western liberal democracy'. I emphasised in an animated video explanation on davidicke.com posted in the summer of 2020 how important it was to the Cult to expand the Chinese lockdown model across the West. Without this, and the bare-faced lie that non-symptomatic people could still transmit a 'disease' they didn't have, there was no way locking down the whole population, sick and not sick, could be pulled off. At just the right time and with no evidence Cult operatives and gofers claimed that people without symptoms could pass on the 'disease'. In the name of protecting the 'vulnerable' like elderly people, who lockdowns would kill by the tens of thousands, we had for the first time healthy people told to isolate as well as the sick. The great majority of people who tested positive had no symptoms because there was nothing wrong with them. It was just a trick made possible by a test not testing for the 'virus'.

Months after my animated video the Gates-funded Professor Neil Ferguson at the Gates-funded Imperial College confirmed that I was right. He didn't say it in those terms, naturally, but he did say it. Ferguson will enter the story shortly for his outrageously crazy 'computer models' that led to Britain, the United States and many other countries following the Chinese and now Italian methods of response. Put another way, following the Cult script. Ferguson said that SAGE, the UK government's scientific advisory group which has controlled 'Covid' policy from the start, wanted to follow the Chinese lockdown model (while they all continued to work and be paid), but they wondered if they could possibly, in Ferguson's words, 'get away with it in Europe'. 'Get away with it'? Who the hell do these moronic, arrogant people think they are? This appalling man Ferguson said that once Italy went into national lockdown they realised they, too, could mimic China:

It's a communist one-party state, we said. We couldn't get away with it in Europe, we thought ... and then Italy did it. And we realised we could. Behind this garbage from Ferguson is a simple fact: Doing the same as China in every country was the plan from the start and Ferguson's 'models' would play a central role in achieving that. It's just a coincidence, of course, and absolutely nothing to worry your little head about.

Oops, sorry, our mistake

Once the Italian segment of the Psyop had done the job it was designed to do a very different story emerged. Italian authorities revealed that 99 percent of those who had 'died from Covid-19' in Italy had one, two, three, or more 'co-morbidities' or illnesses and health problems that could have ended their life. The US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) published a figure of 94 percent for Americans dying of 'Covid' while having other serious medical conditions – on average two to three (some five or six) other potential causes of death. In terms of death from an unproven 'virus' I say it is 100 percent. The other one percent in Italy and six percent in the US would presumably have died from 'Covid's' flu-like symptoms with a range of other possible causes in conjunction with a test not testing for the 'virus'. Fox News reported that even more startling figures had emerged in one US county in which 410 of 422 deaths attributed to 'Covid-19' had other potentially deadly health conditions. The Italian National Health Institute said later that the average age of people dying with a 'Covid-19' diagnosis in Italy was about 81. Ninety percent were over 70 with ten percent over 90. In terms of other reasons to die some 80 percent had two or more chronic diseases with half having three or more including cardiovascular problems, diabetes, respiratory problems and cancer. Why is the phantom 'Covid-19' said to kill overwhelmingly old people and hardly affect the young? Old people continually die of many causes and especially respiratory disease which you can re-diagnose 'Covid-19' while young people die in tiny numbers by comparison and rarely of respiratory disease. Old people 'die of Covid' because they die of other things that can be redesignated 'Covid' and it really is that simple.

Flu has flown

The blueprint was in place. Get your illusory 'cases' from a test not testing for the 'virus' and redesignate other causes of death as 'Covid-19'. You have an instant 'pandemic' from something that is nothing more than a computer-generated fiction. With near-on a billion people having 'flu-like' symptoms every year the potential was limitless and we can see why flu quickly and apparently miraculously disappeared worldwide by being diagnosed 'Covid-19'. The painfully bloody obvious was explained away by the childlike media in headlines like this in the UK 'Independent': 'Not a single case of flu detected by Public Health England this year as Covid restrictions suppress virus'. I kid you not. The masking, social distancing and house arrest that did not make the 'Covid virus' disappear somehow did so with the 'flu virus'. Even worse the article, by a bloke called Samuel Lovett, suggested that maybe the masking, sanitising and other 'Covid' measures should continue to keep the flu away. With a ridiculousness that disturbs your breathing (it's 'Covid-19') the said Lovett wrote: 'With widespread social distancing and mask-wearing measures in place throughout the UK, the usual routes of transmission for influenza have been blocked.' He had absolutely no evidence to support that statement, but look at the consequences of him acknowledging the obvious. With flu not disappearing at all and only being relabelled 'Covid-19' he would have to contemplate that 'Covid' was a hoax on a scale that is hard to imagine. You need guts and commitment to truth to even go there and that's clearly something Samuel Lovett does not have in abundance. He would never have got it through the editors anyway.

Tens of thousands die in the United States alone every winter from flu including many with pneumonia complications. CDC figures record 45 million Americans diagnosed with flu in 2017-2018 of which 61,000 died and some reports claim 80,000. Where was the same hysteria then that we have seen with 'Covid-19'? Some 250,000 Americans are admitted to hospital with pneumonia every year with about 50,000 cases proving fatal. About 65 million suffer respiratory disease every year and three million deaths makes this the third biggest cause of death worldwide. You only have to redesignate a portion of all these people 'Covid-19' and you have an instant global pandemic or the appearance of one. Why would doctors do this? They are told to do this and all but a few dare not refuse those who must be obeyed. Doctors in general are not researching their own knowledge and instead take it direct and unquestioned from the authorities that own them and their careers. The authorities say they must now diagnose these symptoms 'Covid-19' and not flu, or whatever, and they do it. Dark suits say put 'Covid-19' on death certificates no matter what the cause of death and the doctors do it. Renegade Minds don't fall for the illusion that doctors and medical staff are all highly-intelligent, highly-principled, seekers of medical truth. Some are, but not the majority. They are repeaters, gofers, and yes sir, no sir, purveyors of what the system demands they purvey. The 'Covid' con is not merely confined to diseases of the lungs. Instructions to doctors to put 'Covid-19' on death certificates for anyone dying of anything within 28 days (or much more) of a positive test not testing for the 'virus' opened the floodgates. The term dying with 'Covid' and not of 'Covid' was coined to cover the truth. Whether it was a with or an of they were all added to the death numbers attributed to the 'deadly virus' compiled by national governments and globally by the Gates-funded Johns Hopkins operation in the United States that was so involved in those 'pandemic' simulations. Fraudulent deaths were added to the ever-growing list of fraudulent 'cases' from false positives from a false test. No wonder Professor Walter Ricciardi, scientific advisor to the Italian minister of health, said after the Lombardy hysteria had done its job that 'Covid' death rates were due to Italy having the second oldest population in the world and to how hospitals record deaths:

The way in which we code deaths in our country is very generous in the sense that all the people who die in hospitals with the coronavirus are deemed to be dying of the coronavirus. On re-evaluation by the National Institute of Health, only 12 per cent of death certificates have shown a direct causality from coronavirus, while 88 per cent of patients who have died have at least one pre-morbidity – many had two or three.

This is extraordinary enough when you consider the propaganda campaign to use Italy to terrify the world, but how can they even say twelve percent were genuine when the 'virus' has not been shown to exist, its 'code' is a computer program, and diagnosis comes from a test not testing for it? As in China, and soon the world, 'Covid-19' in Italy was a redesignation of diagnosis. Lies and corruption were to become the real 'pandemic' fuelled by a pathetically-compliant medical system taking its orders from the tiny few at the top of their national hierarchy who answered to the World Health Organization which answers to Gates and the Cult. Doctors were told – ordered – to diagnose a particular set of symptoms 'Covid-19' and put that on the death certificate for any cause of death if the patient had tested positive with a test not testing for the virus or had 'Covid' symptoms like the flu. The United States even introduced big financial incentives to manipulate the figures with hospitals receiving £4,600 from the Medicare system for diagnosing someone with regular pneumonia, $13,000 if they made the diagnosis from the same symptoms 'Covid-19' pneumonia, and $39,000 if they put a 'Covid' diagnosed patient on a ventilator that would almost certainly kill them. A few – painfully and pathetically few – medical whistleblowers revealed (before Cult-owned YouTube deleted their videos) that they had been instructed to 'let the patient crash' and put them straight on a ventilator instead of going through a series of far less intrusive and dangerous methods as they would have done before the pandemic hoax began and the financial incentives kicked in. We are talking cold-blooded murder given that ventilators are so damaging to respiratory systems they are usually the last step before heaven awaits. Renegade Minds never fall for the belief that people in white coats are all angels of mercy and cannot be full-on psychopaths. I have explained in detail in The Answer how what I am describing here played out across the world coordinated by the World Health Organization through the medical hierarchies in almost every country.

Medical scientist calls it

Information about the non-existence of the 'virus' began to emerge for me in late March, 2020, and mushroomed after that. I was sent an email by Sir Julian Rose, a writer, researcher, and organic farming promotor, from a medical scientist friend of his in the United States. Even at that early stage in March the scientist was able to explain how the 'Covid' hoax was being manipulated. He said there were no reliable tests for a specific 'Covid-19 virus' and nor were there any reliable agencies or media outlets for reporting numbers of actual 'Covid-19' cases. We have seen in the long period since then that he was absolutely right. 'Every action and reaction to Covid-19 is based on totally flawed data and we simply cannot make accurate assessments,' he said. Most people diagnosed with 'Covid-19' were showing nothing more than cold and flu-like symptoms 'because most coronavirus strains are nothing more than cold/flu-like symptoms'. We had farcical situations like an 84-year-old German man testing positive for 'Covid-19' and his nursing home ordered to quarantine only for him to be found to have a common cold. The scientist described back then why PCR tests and what he called the 'Mickey Mouse test kits' were useless for what they were claimed to be identifying. 'The idea these kits can isolate a specific virus like Covid-19 is nonsense,' he said. Significantly, he pointed out that 'if you want to create a totally false panic about a totally false pandemic – pick a coronavirus'. This is exactly what the Cult-owned Gates, World Economic Forum and Johns Hopkins University did with their Event 201 'simulation' followed by their real-life simulation called the 'pandemic'. The scientist said that all you had to do was select the sickest of people with respiratory-type diseases in a single location – 'say Wuhan' – and administer PCR tests to them. You can then claim that anyone showing 'viral sequences' similar to a coronavirus 'which will inevitably be quite a few' is suffering from a 'new' disease:

Since you already selected the sickest flu cases a fairly high proportion of your sample will go on to die. You can then say this 'new' virus has a CFR [case fatality rate] higher than the flu and use this to infuse more concern and do more tests which will of course produce more 'cases', which expands the testing, which produces yet more 'cases' and so on and so on. Before long you have your 'pandemic', and all you have done is use a simple test kit trick to convert the worst flu and pneumonia cases into something new that doesn't ACTUALLY EXIST [my emphasis].

He said that you then 'just run the same scam in other countries' and make sure to keep the fear message running high 'so that people will feel panicky and less able to think critically'. The only problem to overcome was the fact there is no actual new deadly pathogen and only regular sick people. This meant that deaths from the 'new deadly pathogen' were going to be way too low for a real new deadly virus pandemic, but he said this could be overcome in the following ways – all of which would go on to happen:

1. You can claim this is just the beginning and more deaths are imminent [you underpin this with fantasy 'computer projections']. Use this as an excuse to quarantine everyone and then claim the quarantine prevented the expected millions of dead.
2. You can [say that people] 'minimizing' the dangers are irresponsible and bully them into not talking about numbers.
3. You can talk crap about made up numbers hoping to blind people with pseudoscience.
4. You can start testing well people (who, of course, will also likely have shreds of coronavirus [RNA] in them) and thus inflate your 'case figures' with 'asymptomatic carriers' (you will of course have to spin that to sound deadly even though any virologist knows the more symptom-less cases you have the less deadly is your pathogen).

The scientist said that if you take these simple steps 'you can have your own entirely manufactured pandemic up and running in weeks'. His analysis made so early in the hoax was brilliantly prophetic of what would actually unfold. Pulling all the information together in these recent chapters we have this is simple 1, 2, 3, of how you can delude virtually the entire human population into believing in a 'virus' that doesn't exist:

- A 'Covid case' is someone who tests positive with a test not testing for the 'virus'.
- A 'Covid death' is someone who dies of any cause within 28 days (or much longer) of testing positive with a test not testing for the 'virus'.
- Asymptomatic means there is nothing wrong with you, but they claim you can pass on what you don't have to justify locking down (quarantining) healthy people in totality.

The foundations of the hoax are that simple. A study involving ten million people in Wuhan, published in November, 2020, demolished the whole lie about those without symptoms passing on the 'virus'. They found '300 asymptomatic cases' and traced their contacts to find that not one of them was detected with the 'virus'.

'Asymptomatic' patients and their contacts were isolated for no less than two weeks and nothing changed. I know it's all crap, but if you are going to claim that those without symptoms can transmit 'the virus' then you must produce evidence for that and they never have. Even World Health Organization official Dr Maria Van Kerkhove, head of the emerging diseases and zoonosis unit, said as early as June, 2020, that she doubted the validity of asymptomatic transmission. She said that 'from the data we have, it still seems to be rare that an asymptomatic person actually transmits onward to a secondary individual' and by 'rare' she meant that she couldn't cite any case of asymptomatic transmission.

The Ferguson factor

The problem for the Cult as it headed into March, 2020, when the script had lockdown due to start, was that despite all the manipulation of the case and death figures they still did not have enough people alleged to have died from 'Covid' to justify mass house arrest. This was overcome in the way the scientist described: 'You can claim this is just the beginning and more deaths are imminent ... Use this as an excuse to quarantine everyone and then claim the quarantine prevented the expected millions of dead.' Enter one Professor Neil Ferguson, the Gates-funded 'epidemiologist' at the Gates-funded Imperial College in London. Ferguson is Britain's Christian Drosten in that he has a dire record of predicting health outcomes, but is still called upon to advise government on the next health outcome when another 'crisis' comes along. This may seem to be a strange and ridiculous thing to do. Why would you keep turning for policy guidance to people who have a history of being monumentally wrong? Ah, but it makes sense from the Cult point of view. These 'experts' keep on producing predictions that suit the Cult agenda for societal transformation and so it was with Neil Ferguson as he revealed his horrific (and clearly insane) computer model predictions that allowed lockdowns to be imposed in Britain, the United States and many other countries. Ferguson does not have even an A-level in biology and would appear to have no formal training in computer modelling, medicine or epidemiology, according to Derek Winton, an MSc in Computational Intelligence. He wrote an article somewhat aghast at what Ferguson did which included taking no account of respiratory disease 'seasonality' which means it is far worse in the winter months. Who would have thought that respiratory disease could be worse in the winter? Well, certainly not Ferguson.

The massively China-connected Imperial College and its bizarre professor provided the excuse for the long-incubated Chinese model of human control to travel westward at lightning speed. Imperial College confirms on its website that it collaborates with the Chinese Research Institute; publishes more than 600 research papers every year with Chinese research institutions; has 225 Chinese staff; 2,600 Chinese students – the biggest international group; 7,000 former students living in China which is the largest group outside the UK; and was selected for a tour by China's President Xi Jinping during his state visit to the UK in 2015. The college takes major donations from China and describes itself as the UK's number one university collaborator with Chinese research institutions. The China communist/fascist government did not appear phased by the woeful predictions of Ferguson and Imperial when during the lockdown that Ferguson induced the college signed a five-year collaboration deal with China tech giant Huawei that will have Huawei's indoor 5G network equipment installed at the college's West London tech campus along with an 'AI cloud platform'. The deal includes Chinese sponsorship of Imperial's Venture Catalyst entrepreneurship competition. Imperial is an example of the enormous influence the Chinese government has within British and North American universities and research centres – and further afield. Up to 200 academics from more than a dozen UK universities are being investigated on suspicion of ‘unintentionally’ helping the Chinese government build weapons of mass destruction by ‘transferring world-leading research in advanced military technology such as aircraft, missile designs and cyberweapons’. Similar scandals have broken in the United States, but it’s all a coincidence. Imperial College serves the agenda in many other ways including the promotion of every aspect of the United Nations Agenda 21/2030 (the Great Reset) and produced computer models to show that human-caused ‘climate change’ is happening when in the real world it isn’t. Imperial College is driving the climate agenda as it drives the ‘Covid’ agenda (both Cult hoaxes) while Patrick Vallance, the UK government’s Chief Scientific Adviser on ‘Covid’, was named Chief Scientific Adviser to the UN ‘climate change’ conference known as COP26 hosted by the government in Glasgow, Scotland. ‘Covid’ and ‘climate’ are fundamentally connected.

Professor Woeful

From Imperial’s bosom came Neil Ferguson still advising government despite his previous disasters and it was announced early on that he and other key people like UK Chief Medical Adviser Chris Whitty had caught the ‘virus’ as the propaganda story was being sold. Somehow they managed to survive and we had Prime Minister Boris Johnson admitted to hospital with what was said to be a severe version of the ‘virus’ in this same period. His whole policy and demeanour changed when he returned to Downing Street. It’s a small world with these government advisors – especially in their communal connections to Gates – and Ferguson had partnered with Whitty to write a paper called ‘Infectious disease: Tough choices to reduce Ebola transmission’ which involved another scare-story that didn’t happen. Ferguson’s ‘models’ predicted that up to 150,000 could die from ‘mad cow disease’, or BSE, and its version in sheep if it was transmitted to humans. BSE was not transmitted and instead triggered by an organophosphate pesticide used to treat a pest on cows. Fewer than 200 deaths followed from the human form. Models by Ferguson and his fellow incompetents led to the unnecessary culling of millions of pigs, cattle and sheep in the foot and mouth outbreak in 2001 which destroyed the lives and livelihoods of farmers and their families who had often spent decades building their herds and flocks. Vast numbers of these animals did not have foot and mouth and had no contact with the infection. Another 'expert' behind the cull was Professor Roy Anderson, a computer modeller at Imperial College specialising in the epidemiology of human, not animal, disease. Anderson has served on the Bill and Melinda Gates Grand Challenges in Global Health advisory board and chairs another Gates-funded organisation. Gates is everywhere.

In a precursor to the 'Covid' script Ferguson backed closing schools 'for prolonged periods' over the swine flu 'pandemic' in 2009 and said it would affect a third of the world population if it continued to spread at the speed he claimed to be happening. His mates at Imperial College said much the same and a news report said: 'One of the authors, the epidemiologist and disease modeller Neil Ferguson, who sits on the World Health Organisation's emergency committee for the outbreak, said the virus had "full pandemic potential".' Professor Liam Donaldson, the Chris Whitty of his day as Chief Medical Officer, said the worst case could see 30 percent of the British people infected by swine flu with 65,000 dying. Ferguson and Donaldson were indeed proved correct when at the end of the year the number of deaths attributed to swine flu was 392. The term 'expert' is rather liberally applied unfortunately, not least to complete idiots. Swine flu 'projections' were great for GlaxoSmithKline (GSK) as millions rolled in for its Pandemrix influenza vaccine which led to brain damage with children most affected. The British government (taxpayers) paid out more than £60 million in compensation after GSK was given immunity from prosecution. Yet another 'Covid' déjà vu. Swine flu was supposed to have broken out in Mexico, but Dr Wolfgang Wodarg, a German doctor, former member of parliament and critic of the 'Covid' hoax, observed 'the spread of swine flu' in Mexico City at the time. He said: 'What we experienced in Mexico City was a very mild flu which did not kill more than usual – which killed even fewer people than usual.' Hying the fear against all the facts is not unique to 'Covid' and has happened many times before. Ferguson is reported to have over-estimated the projected death toll of bird flu (H5N1) by some three million-fold, but bird flu vaccine makers again made a killing from the scare. This is some of the background to the Neil Ferguson who produced the perfectly-timed computer models in early 2020 predicting that half a million people would die in Britain without draconian lockdown and 2.2 million in the United States. Politicians panicked, people panicked, and lockdowns of alleged short duration were instigated to 'flatten the curve' of cases gleaned from a test not testing for the 'virus'. I said at the time that the public could forget the 'short duration' bit. This was an agenda to destroy the livelihoods of the population and force them into mass control through dependency and there was going to be nothing 'short' about it. American researcher Daniel Horowitz described the consequences of the 'models' spewed out by Gates-funded Ferguson and Imperial College:

What led our government and the governments of many other countries into panic was a single Imperial College of UK study, funded by global warming activists, that predicted 2.2 million deaths if we didn't lock down the country. In addition, the reported 8-9% death rate in Italy scared us into thinking there was some other mutation of this virus that they got, which might have come here.

Together with the fact that we were finally testing and had the ability to actually report new cases, we thought we were headed for a death spiral. But again ... we can't flatten a curve if we don't know when the curve started.

How about it never started?

Giving them what they want

An investigation by German news outlet Welt Am Sonntag (World on Sunday) revealed how in March, 2020, the German government gathered together 'leading scientists from several research institutes and universities' and 'together, they were to produce a [modelling] paper that would serve as legitimization for further tough political measures'. The Cult agenda was justified by computer modelling not based on evidence or reality; it was specifically constructed to justify the Cult demand for lockdowns all over the world to destroy the independent livelihoods of the global population. All these modellers and everyone responsible for the 'Covid' hoax have a date with a trial like those in Nuremberg after World War Two when Nazis faced the consequences of their war crimes. These corrupt-beyond-belief 'modellers' wrote the paper according to government instructions and it said that that if lockdown measures were lifted then up to one million Germans would die from 'Covid-19' adding that some would die 'agonizingly at home, gasping for breath' unable to be treated by hospitals that couldn't cope. All lies. No matter – it gave the Cult all that it wanted. What did long-time government 'modeller' Neil Ferguson say? If the UK and the United States didn't lockdown half a million would die in Britain and 2.2 million Americans. Anyone see a theme here? 'Modellers' are such a crucial part of the lockdown strategy that we should look into their background and follow the money. Researcher Rosemary Frei produced an excellent article headlined 'The Modelling-paper Mafiosi'. She highlights a guy called John Edmunds, a British epidemiologist, and professor in the Faculty of Epidemiology and Population Health at the London School of Hygiene & Tropical Medicine. He studied at Imperial College. Edmunds is a member of government 'Covid' advisory bodies which have been dictating policy, the New and Emerging Respiratory Virus Threats Advisory Group (NERVTAG) and the Scientific Advisory Group for Emergencies (SAGE).

Ferguson, another member of NERVTAG and SAGE, led the way with the original 'virus' and Edmunds has followed in the 'variant' stage and especially the so-called UK or Kent variant known as the 'Variant of Concern' (VOC) B.1.1.7. He said in a co-written report for the Centre for Mathematical modelling of Infectious Diseases at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine, with input from the Centre's 'Covid-19' Working Group, that there was 'a realistic possibility that VOC B.1.1.7 is associated with an increased risk of death compared to non-VOC viruses'. Fear, fear, fear, get the vaccine, fear, fear, fear, get the vaccine. Rosemary Frei reveals that almost all the paper's authors and members of the modelling centre's 'Covid-19' Working Group receive funding from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation and/or the associated Gates-funded Wellcome Trust. The paper was published by e-journal Medrx xiv which only publishes papers not peer-reviewed and the journal was established by an organisation headed by Facebook's Mark Zuckerberg and his missus. What a small world it is. Frei discovered that Edmunds is on the Scientific Advisory Board of the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations (CEPI) which was established by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, Klaus Schwab's Davos World Economic Forum and Big Pharma giant Wellcome. CEPI was 'launched in Davos [in 2017] to develop vaccines to stop future epidemics', according to its website. 'Our mission is to accelerate the development of vaccines against emerging infectious diseases and enable equitable access to these vaccines for people during outbreaks.' What kind people they are. Rosemary Frei reveals that Public Health England (PHE) director Susan Hopkins is an author of her organisation's non-peer-reviewed reports on 'new variants'. Hopkins is a professor of infectious diseases at London's Imperial College which is gifted tens of millions of dollars a year by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation. Gates-funded modelling disaster Neil Ferguson also co-authors Public Health England reports and he spoke in December, 2020, about the potential danger of the B.1.1.7. 'UK variant' promoted by Gates-funded modeller John Edmunds. When I come to the 'Covid vaccines' the 'new variants' will be shown for what they are – bollocks.

Connections, connections

All these people and modellers are lockdown-obsessed or, put another way, they demand what the Cult demands. Edmunds said in January, 2021, that to ease lockdowns too soon would be a disaster and they had to 'vaccinate much, much, much more widely than the elderly'. Rosemary Frei highlights that Edmunds is married to Jeanne Pimenta who is described in a LinkedIn profile as director of epidemiology at GlaxoSmithKline (GSK) and she held shares in the company. Patrick Vallance, co-chair of SAGE and the government's Chief Scientific Adviser, is a former executive of GSK and has a deferred bonus of shares in the company worth £600,000. GSK has serious business connections with Bill Gates and is collaborating with mRNA-'vaccine' company CureVac to make 'vaccines' for the new variants that Edmunds is talking about. GSK is planning a 'Covid vaccine' with drug giant Sanofi. Puppets Prime Minister Boris Johnson announced in the spring of 2021 that up to 60 million vaccine doses were to be made at the GSK facility at Barnard Castle in the English North East. Barnard Castle, with a population of just 6,000, was famously visited in breach of lockdown rules in April, 2020, by Johnson aide Dominic Cummings who said that he drove there 'to test his eyesight' before driving back to London. Cummings would be better advised to test his integrity – not that it would take long. The GSK facility had nothing to do with his visit then although I'm sure Patrick Vallance would have been happy to arrange an introduction and some tea and biscuits. Ruthless psychopath Gates has made yet another fortune from vaccines in collaboration with Big Pharma companies and gushes at the phenomenal profits to be made from vaccines – more than a 20-to-1 return as he told one interviewer. Gates also tweeted in December, 2019, with the foreknowledge of what was coming: 'What's next for our foundation? I'm particularly excited about what the next year could mean for one of the best buys in global health: vaccines.'

Modeller John Edmunds is a big promoter of vaccines as all these people appear to be. He's the dean of the London School of Hygiene & Tropical Medicine's Faculty of Epidemiology and Population Health which is primarily funded by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation and the Gates-established and funded GAVI vaccine alliance which is the Gates vehicle to vaccinate the world. The organisation Doctors Without Borders has described GAVI as being 'aimed more at supporting drug-industry desires to promote new products than at finding the most efficient and sustainable means for fighting the diseases of poverty'. But then that's why the psychopath Gates created it. John Edmunds said in a video that the London School of Hygiene & Tropical Medicine is involved in every aspect of vaccine development including large-scale clinical trials. He contends that mathematical modelling can show that vaccines protect individuals and society. That's on the basis of shit in and shit out, I take it. Edmunds serves on the UK Vaccine Network as does Ferguson and the government's foremost 'Covid' adviser, the grim-faced, dark-eyed Chris Whitty. The Vaccine Network says it works 'to support the government to identify and shortlist targeted investment opportunities for the most promising vaccines and vaccine technologies that will help combat infectious diseases with epidemic potential, and to address structural issues related to the UK's broader vaccine infrastructure'. Ferguson is acting Director of the Imperial College Vaccine Impact Modelling Consortium which has funding from the Bill and Melina Gates Foundation and the Gates-created GAVI 'vaccine alliance'. Anyone wonder why these characters see vaccines as the answer to every problem? Ferguson is wildly enthusiastic in his support for GAVI's campaign to vaccinate children en masse in poor countries. You would expect someone like Gates who has constantly talked about the need to reduce the population to want to fund vaccines to keep more people alive. I'm sure that's why he does it. The John Edmunds London School of Hygiene & Tropical Medicine (LSHTM) has a Vaccines Manufacturing Innovation Centre which develops, tests and commercialises vaccines. Rosemary Frei writes:

The vaccines centre also performs affiliated activities like combating 'vaccine hesitancy'. The latter includes the Vaccine Confidence Project. The project's stated purpose is, among other things, 'to provide analysis and guidance for early response and engagement with the public to ensure sustained confidence in vaccines and immunisation'. The Vaccine Confidence Project's director is LSHTM professor Heidi Larson. For more than a decade she's been researching how to combat vaccine hesitancy.

How the bloody hell can blokes like John Edmunds and Neil Ferguson with those connections and financial ties model 'virus' case and death projections for the government and especially in a way that gives their paymasters like Gates exactly what they want? It's insane, but this is what you find throughout the world.

'Covid' is not dangerous, oops, wait, yes it is Only days before Ferguson's nightmare scenario made Jackboot Johnson take Britain into a China-style lockdown to save us from a deadly 'virus' the UK government website gov.uk was reporting something very different to Ferguson on a page of official government guidance for 'high consequence infectious diseases (HCID)'. It said this about 'Covid-19':

As of 19 March 2020, COVID-19 is no longer considered to be a high consequence infectious diseases (HCID) in the UK [my emphasis]. The 4 nations public health HCID group made an interim recommendation in January 2020 to classify COVID-19 as an HCID. This was based on consideration of the UK HCID criteria about the virus and the disease with information available during the early stages of the outbreak.

Now that more is known about COVID-19, the public health bodies in the UK have reviewed the most up to date information about COVID-19 against the UK HCID criteria. They have determined that several features have now changed; in particular, more information is available about mortality rates (low overall), and there is now greater clinical awareness and a specific and sensitive laboratory test, the availability of which continues to increase. The Advisory Committee on Dangerous Pathogens (ACDP) is also of the opinion that COVID-19 should no longer be classified as an HCID.

Soon after the government had been exposed for downgrading the risk they upgraded it again and everyone was back to singing from the same Cult hymn book. Ferguson and his fellow Gates clones indicated that lockdowns and restrictions would have to continue until a Gates-funded vaccine was developed. Gates said the same because Ferguson and his like were repeating the Gates script which is the Cult script. 'Flatten the curve' became an ongoing nightmare of continuing lockdowns with periods in between of severe restrictions in pursuit of destroying independent incomes and had nothing to do with protecting health about which the Cult gives not a shit. Why wouldn't Ferguson be pushing a vaccine 'solution' when he's owned by vaccine-obsessive Gates who makes a fortune from them and when Ferguson heads the Vaccine Impact Modelling Consortium at Imperial College funded by the Gates Foundation and GAVI, the 'vaccine alliance', created by Gates as his personal vaccine promotion operation? To compound the human catastrophe that Ferguson's 'models' did so much to create he was later exposed for breaking his own lockdown rules by having sexual liaisons with his married girlfriend Antonia Staats at his home while she was living at another location with her husband and children. Staats was a 'climate' activist and senior campaigner at the Soros-funded Avaaz which I wouldn't trust to tell me that grass is green. Ferguson had to resign as a government advisor over this hypocrisy in May, 2020, but after a period of quiet he was back being quoted by the ridiculous media on the need for more lockdowns and a vaccine rollout. Other government-advising 'scientists' from Imperial College held the fort in his absence and said lockdown could be indefinite until a vaccine was found. The Cult script was being sung by the payrolled choir. I said there was no intention of going back to 'normal' when the 'vaccine' came because the 'vaccine' is part of a very different agenda that I will discuss in Human 2.0. Why would the Cult want to let the world go back to normal when destroying that normal forever was the whole point of what was happening? House arrest, closing businesses and schools through lockdown, (un)social distancing and masks all followed the Ferguson fantasy models. Again as I predicted (these people are so predictable) when the 'vaccine' arrived we were told that house arrest, lockdown, (un)social distancing and masks would still have to continue. I will deal with the masks in the next chapter because they are of fundamental importance.

Where's the 'pandemic'?

Any mildly in-depth assessment of the figures revealed what was really going on. Cult-funded and controlled organisations still have genuine people working within them such is the number involved. So it is with Genevieve Briand, assistant program director of the Applied Economics master's degree program at Johns Hopkins University. She analysed the impact that 'Covid-19' had on deaths from all causes in the United States using official data from the CDC for the period from early February to early September, 2020. She found that allegedly 'Covid' related-deaths exceeded those from heart disease which she found strange with heart disease always the biggest cause of fatalities. Her research became even more significant when she noted the sudden decline in 2020 of all non-'Covid' deaths: 'This trend is completely contrary to the pattern observed in all previous years ... the total decrease in deaths by other causes almost exactly equals the increase in deaths by Covid-19.' This was such a game, set and match in terms of what was happening that Johns Hopkins University deleted the article on the grounds that it 'was being used to support false and dangerous inaccuracies about the impact of the pandemic'. No – because it exposed the scam from official CDC figures and this was confirmed when those figures were published in January, 2021. Here we can see the effect of people dying from heart attacks, cancer, road accidents and gunshot wounds – anything – having 'Covid-19' on the death certificate along with those diagnosed from 'symptoms' who had even not tested positive with a test not testing for the 'virus'. I am not kidding with the gunshot wounds, by the way. Brenda Bock, coroner in Grand County, Colorado, revealed that two gunshot victims tested positive for the 'virus' within the previous 30 days and were therefore classified as 'Covid deaths'. Bock said: 'These two people had tested positive for Covid, but that's not what killed them. A gunshot wound is what killed them.' She said she had not even finished her investigation when the state listed the gunshot victims as deaths due to the 'virus'. The death and case figures for 'Covid-19' are an absolute joke and yet they are repeated like parrots by the media, politicians and alleged medical 'experts'. The official Cult narrative is the only show in town.

Genevieve Briand found that deaths from all causes were not exceptional in 2020 compared with previous years and a Spanish magazine published figures that said the same about Spain which was a 'Covid' propaganda hotspot at one point. Discovery Salud, a health and medicine magazine, quoted government figures which showed how 17,000 fewer people died in Spain in 2020 than in 2019 and more than 26,000 fewer than in 2018. The age-standardised mortality rate for England and Wales when age distribution is taken into account was significantly lower in 2020 than the 1970s, 80s and 90s, and was only the ninth highest since 2000. Where is the 'pandemic'?

Post mortems and autopsies virtually disappeared for 'Covid' deaths amid claims that 'virus-infected' bodily fluids posed a risk to those carrying out the autopsy. This was rejected by renowned German pathologist and forensic doctor Klaus Püschel who said that he and his staff had by then done 150 autopsies on 'Covid' patients with no problems at all. He said they were needed to know why some 'Covid' patients suffered blood clots and not severe respiratory infections. The 'virus' is, after all, called SARS or 'severe acute respiratory syndrome'. I highlighted in the spring of 2020 this phenomenon and quoted New York intensive care doctor Cameron Kyle-Sidell who posted a soon deleted YouTube video to say that they had been told to prepare to treat an infectious disease called 'Covid-19', but that was not what they were dealing with. Instead he likened the lung condition of the most severely ill patients to what you would expect with cabin depressurisation in a plane at 30,000 feet or someone dropped on the top of Everest without oxygen or acclimatisation. I have never said this is not happening to a small minority of alleged 'Covid' patients – I am saying this is not caused by a phantom 'contagious virus'. Indeed Kyle-Sidell said that 'Covid-19' was not the disease they were told was coming their way. 'We are operating under a medical paradigm that is untrue,' he said, and he believed they were treating the wrong disease: 'These people are being slowly starved of oxygen.' Patients would take off their oxygen masks in a state of fear and stress and while they were blue in the face on the brink of death. They did not look like patients dying of pneumonia. You can see why they don't want autopsies when their virus doesn't exist and there is another condition in some people that they don't wish to be uncovered. I should add here that the 5G system of millimetre waves was being rapidly introduced around the world in 2020 and even more so now as they fire 5G at the Earth from satellites. At 60 gigahertz within the 5G range that frequency interacts with the oxygen molecule and stops people breathing in sufficient oxygen to be absorbed into the bloodstream. They are installing 5G in schools and hospitals. The world is not mad or anything. 5G can cause major changes to the lungs and blood as I detail in The Answer and these consequences are labelled 'Covid-19', the alleged symptoms of which can be caused by 5G and other electromagnetic frequencies as cells respond to radiation poisoning.

The 'Covid death' scam

Dr Scott Jensen, a Minnesota state senator and medical doctor, exposed 'Covid' Medicare payment incentives to hospitals and death certificate manipulation. He said he was sent a seven-page document by the US Department of Health 'coaching' him on how to fill out death certificates which had never happened before. The document said that he didn't need to have a laboratory test for 'Covid-19' to put that on the death certificate and that shocked him when death certificates are supposed to be about facts. Jensen described how doctors had been 'encouraged, if not pressured' to make a diagnosis of 'Covid-19' if they thought it was probable or 'presumed'. No positive test was necessary – not that this would have mattered anyway. He said doctors were told to diagnose 'Covid' by symptoms when these were the same as colds, allergies, other respiratory problems, and certainly with influenza which 'disappeared' in the 'Covid' era. A common sniffle was enough to get the dreaded verdict. Ontario authorities decreed that a single care home resident with one symptom from a long list must lead to the isolation of the entire home. Other courageous doctors like Jensen made the same point about death figure manipulation and how deaths by other causes were falling while 'Covid-19 deaths' were rising at the same rate due to re-diagnosis. Their videos rarely survive long on YouTube with its Cult-supporting algorithms courtesy of CEO Susan Wojcicki and her bosses at Google. Figure-tampering was so glaring and ubiquitous that even officials were letting it slip or outright saying it. UK chief scientific adviser Patrick Vallance said on one occasion that 'Covid' on the death certificate doesn't mean 'Covid' was the cause of death (so why the hell is it there?) and we had the rare sight of a BBC reporter telling the truth when she said: 'Someone could be successfully treated for Covid, in say April, discharged, and then in June, get run over by a bus and die ... That person would still be counted as a Covid death in England.' Yet the BBC and the rest of the world media went on repeating the case and death figures as if they were real. Illinois Public Health Director Dr Ngozi Ezike revealed the deceit while her bosses must have been clenching their buttocks:

If you were in a hospice and given a few weeks to live and you were then found to have Covid that would be counted as a Covid death. [There might be] a clear alternate cause, but it is still listed as a Covid death. So everyone listed as a Covid death doesn't mean that was the cause of the death, but that they had Covid at the time of death.

Yes, a 'Covid virus' never shown to exist and tested for with a test not testing for the 'virus'. In the first period of the pandemic hoax through the spring of 2020 the process began of designating almost everything a 'Covid' death and this has continued ever since. I sat in a restaurant one night listening to a loud conversation on the next table where a family was discussing in bewilderment how a relative who had no symptoms of 'Covid', and had died of a long-term problem, could have been diagnosed a death by the 'virus'. I could understand their bewilderment. If they read this book they will know why this medical fraud has been perpetrated the world over.

Some media truth shock

The media ignored the evidence of death certificate fraud until eventually one columnist did speak out when she saw it first-hand. Bel Mooney is a long-time national newspaper journalist in Britain currently working for the Daily Mail. Her article on February 19th, 2021, carried this headline: 'My dad Ted passed three Covid tests and died of a chronic illness yet he's officially one of Britain's 120,000 victims of the virus and is far from alone ... so how many more are there?' She told how her 99-year-old father was in a care home with a long-standing chronic obstructive pulmonary disease and vascular dementia. Maybe, but he was still aware enough to tell her from the start that there was no 'virus' and he refused the 'vaccine' for that reason. His death was not unexpected given his chronic health problems and Mooney said she was shocked to find that 'Covid-19' was declared the cause of death on his death certificate. She said this was a 'bizarre and unacceptable untruth' for a man with long-time health problems who had tested negative twice at the home for the 'virus'. I was also shocked by this story although not by what she said. I had been highlighting the death certificate manipulation for ten months. It was the confirmation that a professional full-time journalist only realised this was going on when it affected her directly and neither did she know that whether her dad tested positive or negative was irrelevant with the test not testing for the 'virus'. Where had she been? She said she did not believe in 'conspiracy theories' without knowing I'm sure that this and 'conspiracy theorists' were terms put into widespread circulation by the CIA in the 1960s to discredit those who did not accept the ridiculous official story of the Kennedy assassination. A blanket statement of 'I don't believe in conspiracy theories' is always bizarre. The dictionary definition of the term alone means the world is drowning in conspiracies. What she said was even more daft when her dad had just been affected by the 'Covid' conspiracy. Why else does she think that 'Covid-19' was going on the death certificates of people who died of something else?

To be fair once she saw from personal experience what was happening she didn't mince words. Mooney was called by the care home on the morning of February 9th to be told her father had died in his sleep. When she asked for the official cause of death what came back was 'Covid-19'. Mooney challenged this and was told there had been deaths from Covid on the dementia floor (confirmed by a test not testing for the 'virus') so they considered it 'reasonable to assume'. 'But doctor,' Mooney rightly protested, 'an assumption isn't a diagnosis.' She said she didn't blame the perfectly decent and sympathetic doctor – 'he was just doing his job'. Sorry, but that's bullshit. He wasn't doing his job at all. He was putting a false cause of death on the death certificate and that is a criminal offence for which he should be brought to account and the same with the millions of doctors worldwide who have done the same. They were not doing their job they were following orders and that must not wash at new Nuremberg trials any more than it did at the first ones. Mooney's doctor was 'assuming' (presuming) as he was told to, but 'just following orders' makes no difference to his actions. A doctor's job is to serve the patient and the truth, not follow orders, but that's what they have done all over the world and played a central part in making the 'Covid' hoax possible with all its catastrophic consequences for humanity. Shame on them and they must answer for their actions. Mooney said her disquiet worsened when she registered her father's death by telephone and was told by the registrar there had been very many other cases like hers where 'the deceased' had not tested positive for 'Covid' yet it was recorded as the cause of death. The test may not matter, but those involved at their level think it matters and it shows a callous disregard for accurate diagnosis. The pressure to do this is coming from the top of the national 'health' pyramids which in turn obey the World Health Organization which obeys Gates and the Cult. Mooney said the registrar agreed that this must distort the national figures adding that 'the strangest thing is that every winter we record countless deaths from flu, and this winter there have been none. Not one!' She asked if the registrar thought deaths from flu were being misdiagnosed and lumped together with 'Covid' deaths. The answer was a 'puzzled yes'. Mooney said that the funeral director said the same about 'Covid' deaths which had nothing to do with 'Covid'. They had lost count of the number of families upset by this and other funeral companies in different countries have had the same experience. Mooney wrote:

The nightly shroud-waving and shocking close-ups of pain imposed on us by the TV news bewildered and terrified the population into eager compliance with lockdowns. We were invited to 'save the NHS' and to grieve for strangers – the real-life loved ones behind those shocking death counts. Why would the public imagine what I now fear, namely that the way Covid-19 death statistics are compiled might make the numbers seem greater than they are?

Oh, just a little bit – like 100 percent.

Do the maths

Mooney asked why a country would wish to skew its mortality figures by wrongly certifying deaths? What had been going on? Well, if you don't believe in conspiracies you will never find the answer which is that it's a conspiracy. She did, however, describe what she had discovered as a 'national scandal'. In reality it's a global scandal and happening everywhere. Pillars of this conspiracy were all put into place before the button was pressed with the Drosten PCR protocol and high amplifications to produce the cases and death certificate changes to secure illusory 'Covid' deaths. Mooney notes that normally two doctors were needed to certify a death, with one having to know the patient, and how the rules were changed in the spring of 2020 to allow one doctor to do this. In the same period 'Covid deaths' were decreed to be all cases where Covid-19 was put on the death certificate even without a positive test or any symptoms. Mooney asked: 'How many of the 30,851 (as of January 15) care home resident deaths with Covid-19 on the certificate (32.4 per cent of all deaths so far) were based on an assumption, like that of my father? And what has that done to our national psyche?' All of them is the answer to the first question and it has devastated and dismantled the national psyche, actually the global psyche, on a colossal scale. In the UK case and death data is compiled by organisations like Public Health England (PHE) and the Office for National Statistics (ONS). Mooney highlights the insane policy of counting a death from any cause as 'Covid-19' if this happens within 28 days of a positive test (with a test not testing for the 'virus') and she points out that ONS statistics reflect deaths 'involving Covid' 'or due to Covid' which meant in practice any death where 'Covid-19' was mentioned on the death certificate. She described the consequences of this fraud:

Most people will accept the narrative they are fed, so panicky governments here and in Europe witnessed the harsh measures enacted in totalitarian China and jumped into lockdown. Headlines about Covid deaths tolled like the knell that would bring doomsday to us all. Fear stalked our empty streets. Politicians parroted the frankly ridiculous aim of 'zero Covid' and shut down the economy, while most British people agreed that lockdown was essential and (astonishingly to me, as a patriotic Brit) even wanted more restrictions.

For what? Lies on death certificates? Never mind the grim toll of lives ruined, suicides, schools closed, rising inequality, depression, cancelled hospital treatments, cancer patients in a torture of waiting, poverty, economic devastation, loneliness, families kept apart, and so on. How many lives have been lost as a direct result of lockdown?

She said that we could join in a national chorus of shock and horror at reaching the 120,000 death toll which was surely certain to have been totally skewed all along, but what about the human cost of lockdown justified by these 'death figures'? The British Medical Journal had reported a 1,493 percent increase in cases of children taken to Great Ormond Street Hospital with abusive head injuries alone and then there was the effect on families:

Perhaps the most shocking thing about all this is that families have been kept apart – and obeyed the most irrational, changing rules at the whim of government – because they believed in the statistics. They succumbed to fear, which his generation rejected in that war fought for freedom. Dad (God rest his soul) would be angry. And so am I.

Another theme to watch is that in the winter months when there are more deaths from all causes they focus on 'Covid' deaths and in the summer when the British Lung Foundation says respiratory disease plummets by 80 percent they rage on about 'cases'. Either way fascism on population is always the answer.

Nazi eugenics in the 21st century

Elderly people in care homes have been isolated from their families month after lonely month with no contact with relatives and grandchildren who were banned from seeing them. We were told that lockdown fascism was to 'protect the vulnerable' like elderly people. At the same time Do Not Resuscitate (DNR) orders were placed on their medical files so that if they needed resuscitation it wasn't done and 'Covid-19' went on their death certificates. Old people were not being 'protected' they were being culled – murdered in truth. DNR orders were being decreed for disabled and young people with learning difficulties or psychological problems. The UK Care Quality Commission, a non-departmental body of the Department of Health and Social Care, found that 34 percent of those working in health and social care were pressured into placing 'do not attempt cardiopulmonary resuscitation' orders on 'Covid' patients who suffered from disabilities and learning difficulties without involving the patient or their families in the decision. UK judges ruled that an elderly woman with dementia should have the DNA-manipulating 'Covid vaccine' against her son's wishes and that a man with severe learning difficulties should have the job despite his family's objections. Never mind that many had already died. The judiciary always supports doctors and government in fascist dictatorships. They wouldn't dare do otherwise. A horrific video was posted showing fascist officers from Los Angeles police forcibly giving the 'Covid' shot to women with special needs who were screaming that they didn't want it. The same fascists are seen giving the jab to a sleeping elderly woman in a care home. This is straight out of the Nazi playbook. Hitler's Nazis committed mass murder of the mentally ill and physically disabled throughout Germany and occupied territories in the programme that became known as Aktion T4, or just T4. Sabbatian-controlled Hitler and his grotesque crazies set out to kill those they considered useless and unnecessary. The Reich Committee for the Scientific Registering of Hereditary and Congenital Illnesses registered the births of babies identified by physicians to have 'defects'. By 1941 alone more than 5,000 children were murdered by the state and it is estimated that in total the number of innocent people killed in Aktion T4 was between 275,000 and 300,000. Parents were told their children had been sent away for 'special treatment' never to return. It is rather pathetic to see claims about plans for new extermination camps being dismissed today when the same force behind current events did precisely that 80 years ago. Margaret Sanger was a Cult operative who used 'birth control' to sanitise her programme of eugenics. Organisations she founded became what is now Planned Parenthood. Sanger proposed that 'the whole dysgenic population would have its choice of segregation or sterilization'. These included epileptics, 'feeble-minded', and prostitutes. Sanger opposed charity because it perpetuated 'human waste'. She reveals the Cult mentality and if anyone thinks that extermination camps are a 'conspiracy theory' their naivety is touching if breathtakingly stupid.

If you don't believe that doctors can act with callous disregard for their patients it is worth considering that doctors and medical staff agreed to put government-decreed DNR orders on medical files and do nothing when resuscitation is called for. I don't know what you call such people in your house. In mine they are Nazis from the Josef Mengele School of Medicine. Phenomenal numbers of old people have died worldwide from the effects of lockdown, depression, lack of treatment, the 'vaccine' (more later) and losing the will to live. A common response at the start of the manufactured pandemic was to remove old people from hospital beds and transfer them to nursing homes. The decision would result in a mass cull of elderly people in those homes through lack of treatment – not 'Covid'. Care home whistleblowers have told how once the 'Covid' era began doctors would not come to their homes to treat patients and they were begging for drugs like antibiotics that often never came. The most infamous example was ordered by New York governor Andrew Cuomo, brother of a moronic CNN host, who amazingly was given an Emmy Award for his handling of the 'Covid crisis' by the ridiculous Wokers that hand them out. Just how ridiculous could be seen in February, 2021, when a Department of Justice and FBI investigation began into how thousands of old people in New York died in nursing homes after being discharged from hospital to make way for 'Covid' patients on Cuomo's say-so – and how he and his staff covered up these facts. This couldn't have happened to a nicer psychopath. Even then there was a 'Covid' spin. Reports said that thousands of old people who tested positive for 'Covid' in hospital were transferred to nursing homes to both die of 'Covid' and transmit it to others. No – they were in hospital because they were ill and the fact that they tested positive with a test not testing for the 'virus' is irrelevant. They were ill often with respiratory diseases ubiquitous in old people near the end of their lives. Their transfer out of hospital meant that their treatment stopped and many would go on to die.

They're old. Who gives a damn?

I have exposed in the books for decades the Cult plan to cull the world's old people and even to introduce at some point what they call a 'demise pill' which at a certain age everyone would take and be out of here by law. In March, 2021, Spain legalised euthanasia and assisted suicide following the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg and Canada on the Tiptoe to the demise pill. Treatment of old people by many 'care' homes has been a disgrace in the 'Covid' era. There are many, many, caring staff – I know some. There have, however, been legions of stories about callous treatment of old people and their families. Police were called when families came to take their loved ones home in the light of isolation that was killing them. They became prisoners of the state. Care home residents in insane, fascist Ontario, Canada, were not allowed to leave their room once the 'Covid' hoax began. UK staff have even wheeled elderly people away from windows where family members were talking with them. Oriana Criscuolo from Stockport in the English North West dropped off some things for her 80-year-old father who has Parkinson's disease and dementia and she wanted to wave to him through a ground-floor window. She was told that was 'illegal'. When she went anyway they closed the curtains in the middle of the day. Oriana said:

It's just unbelievable. I cannot understand how care home staff – people who are being paid to care – have become so uncaring. Their behaviour is inhumane and cruel. It's beyond belief.

She was right and this was not a one-off. What a way to end your life in such loveless circumstances. UK registered nurse Nicky Millen, a proper old school nurse for 40 years, said that when she started her career care was based on dignity, choice, compassion and empathy. Now she said 'the things that are important to me have gone out of the window.' She was appalled that people were dying without their loved ones and saying goodbye on iPads. Nicky described how a distressed 89-year-old lady stroked her face and asked her 'how many paracetamol would it take to finish me off'. Life was no longer worth living while not seeing her family. Nicky said she was humiliated in front of the ward staff and patients for letting the lady stroke her face and giving her a cuddle. Such is the dehumanisation that the 'Covid' hoax has brought to the surface. Nicky worked in care homes where patients told her they were being held prisoner. 'I want to live until I die', one said to her. 'I had a lady in tears because she hadn't seen her great-grandson.' Nicky was compassionate old school meeting psychopathic New Normal. She also said she had worked on a 'Covid' ward with no 'Covid' patients. Jewish writer Shai Held wrote an article in March, 2020, which was headlined 'The Staggering, Heartless Cruelty Toward the Elderly'. What he described was happening from the earliest days of lockdown. He said 'the elderly' were considered a group and not unique individuals (the way of the Woke). Shai Held said:

Notice how the all-too-familiar rhetoric of dehumanization works: 'The elderly' are bunched together as a faceless mass, all of them considered culprits and thus effectively deserving of the suffering the pandemic will inflict upon them. Lost entirely is the fact that the elderly are individual human beings, each with a distinctive face and voice, each with hopes and dreams, memories and regrets, friendships and marriages, loves lost and loves sustained.

'The elderly' have become another dehumanised group for which anything goes and for many that has resulted in cold disregard for their rights and their life. The distinctive face that Held talks about is designed to be deleted by masks until everyone is part of a faceless mass.

'War-zone' hospitals myth

Again and again medical professionals have told me what was really going on and how hospitals 'overrun like war zones' according to the media were virtually empty. The mantra from medical whistleblowers was please don't use my name or my career is over. Citizen journalists around the world sneaked into hospitals to film evidence exposing the 'war-zone' lie. They really were largely empty with closed wards and operating theatres. I met a hospital worker in my town on the Isle of Wight during the first lockdown in 2020 who said the only island hospital had never been so quiet. Lockdown was justified by the psychopaths to stop hospitals being overrun. At the same time that the island hospital was near-empty the military arrived here to provide extra beds. It was all propaganda to ramp up the fear to ensure compliance with fascism as were never-used temporary hospitals with thousands of beds known as Nightingales and never-used make-shift mortuaries opened by the criminal UK government. A man who helped to install those extra island beds attributed to the army said they were never used and the hospital was empty. Doctors and nurses 'stood around talking or on their phones, wandering down to us to see what we were doing'. There were no masks or social distancing. He accused the useless local island paper, the County Press, of 'pumping the fear as if our hospital was overrun and we only have one so it should have been'. He described ambulances parked up with crews outside in deck chairs. When his brother called an ambulance he was told there was a two-hour backlog which he called 'bullshit'. An old lady on the island fell 'and was in a bad way', but a caller who rang for an ambulance was told the situation wasn't urgent enough. Ambulance stations were working under capacity while people would hear ambulances with sirens blaring driving through the streets. When those living near the stations realised what was going on they would follow them as they left, circulated around an urban area with the sirens going, and then came back without stopping. All this was to increase levels of fear and the same goes for the 'ventilator shortage crisis' that cost tens of millions for hastily produced ventilators never to be used.

Ambulance crews that agreed to be exploited in this way for fear propaganda might find themselves a mirror. I wish them well with that. Empty hospitals were the obvious consequence of treatment and diagnoses of non-'Covid' conditions cancelled and those involved handed a death sentence. People have been dying at home from undiagnosed and untreated cancer, heart disease and other life-threatening conditions to allow empty hospitals to deal with a 'pandemic' that wasn't happening.

Death of the innocent

'War-zones' have been laying off nursing staff, even doctors where they can. There was no work for them. Lockdown was justified by saving lives and protecting the vulnerable they were actually killing with DNR orders and preventing empty hospitals being 'overrun'. In Britain the mantra of stay at home to 'save the NHS' was everywhere and across the world the same story was being sold when it was all lies. Two California doctors, Dan Erickson and Artin Massihi at Accelerated Urgent Care in Bakersfield, held a news conference in April, 2020, to say that intensive care units in California were 'empty, essentially', with hospitals shutting floors, not treating patients and laying off doctors. The California health system was working at minimum capacity 'getting rid of doctors because we just don't have the volume'. They said that people with conditions such as heart disease and cancer were not coming to hospital out of fear of 'Covid-19'. Their video was deleted by Susan Wojcicki's Cult-owned YouTube after reaching five million views. Florida governor Ron Desantis, who rejected the severe lockdowns of other states and is being targeted for doing so, said that in March, 2020, every US governor was given models claiming they would run out of hospital beds in days. That was never going to happen and the 'modellers' knew it. Deceit can be found at every level of the system. Urgent children's operations were cancelled including fracture repairs and biopsies to spot cancer. Eric Nicholls, a consultant paediatrician, said 'this is obviously concerning and we need to return to normal operating and to increase capacity as soon as possible'. Psychopaths in power were rather less concerned because they are psychopaths. Deletion of urgent care and diagnosis has been happening all over the world and how many kids and others have died as a result of the actions of these cold and heartless lunatics dictating 'health' policy? The number must be stratospheric. Richard Sullivan, professor of cancer and global health at King's College London, said people feared 'Covid' more than cancer such was the campaign of fear. 'Years of lost life will be quite dramatic', Sullivan said, with 'a huge amount of avoidable mortality'. Sarah Woolnough, executive director for policy at Cancer Research UK, said there had been a 75 percent drop in urgent referrals to hospitals by family doctors of people with suspected cancer. Sullivan said that 'a lot of services have had to scale back – we've seen a dramatic decrease in the amount of elective cancer surgery'. Lockdown deaths worldwide has been absolutely fantastic with the New York Post reporting how data confirmed that 'lockdowns end more lives than they save':

There was a sharp decline in visits to emergency rooms and an increase in fatal heart attacks because patients didn't receive prompt treatment. Many fewer people were screened for cancer. Social isolation contributed to excess deaths from dementia and Alzheimer's.

Researchers predicted that the social and economic upheaval would lead to tens of thousands of "deaths of despair" from drug overdoses, alcoholism and suicide. As unemployment surged and mental-health and substance-abuse treatment programs were interrupted, the reported levels of anxiety, depression and suicidal thoughts increased dramatically, as did alcohol sales and fatal drug overdoses.

This has been happening while nurses and other staff had so much time on their hands in the 'war-zones' that Tic-Tok dancing videos began appearing across the Internet with medical staff dancing around in empty wards and corridors as people died at home from causes that would normally have been treated in hospital.

Mentions in dispatches

One brave and truth-committed whistleblower was Louise Hampton, a call handler with the UK NHS who made a viral Internet video saying she had done 'fuck all' during the 'pandemic' which was 'a load of bollocks'. She said that 'Covid-19' was rebranded flu and of course she lost her job. This is what happens in the medical and endless other professions now when you tell the truth. Louise filmed inside 'war-zone' accident and emergency departments to show they were empty and I mean empty as in no one there. The mainstream media could have done the same and blown the gaff on the whole conspiracy. They haven't to their eternal shame. Not that most 'journalists' seem capable of manifesting shame as with the psychopaths they slavishly repeat without question. The relative few who were admitted with serious health problems were left to die alone with no loved ones allowed to see them because of 'Covid' rules and they included kids dying without the comfort of mum and dad at their bedside while the evil behind this couldn't give a damn. It was all good fun to them. A Scottish NHS staff nurse publicly quit in the spring of 2021 saying: 'I can no longer be part of the lies and the corruption by the government.' She said hospitals 'aren't full, the beds aren't full, beds have been shut, wards have been shut'. Hospitals were never busy throughout 'Covid'. The staff nurse said that Nicola Sturgeon, tragically the leader of the Scottish government, was on television saying save the hospitals and the NHS – 'but the beds are empty' and 'we've not seen flu, we always see flu every year'. She wrote to government and spoke with her union Unison (the unions are Cult-compromised and useless, but nothing changed. Many of her colleagues were scared of losing their jobs if they spoke out as they wanted to. She said nursing staff were being affected by wearing masks all day and 'my head is splitting every shift from wearing a mask'. The NHS is part of the fascist tyranny and must be dismantled so we can start again with human beings in charge. (Ironically, hospitals were reported to be busier again when official 'Covid' cases fell in spring/summer of 2021 and many other conditions required treatment at the same time as the fake vaccine rollout.)

I will cover the 'Covid vaccine' scam in detail later, but it is another indicator of the sickening disregard for human life that I am highlighting here. The DNA-manipulating concoctions do not fulfil the definition of a 'vaccine', have never been used on humans before and were given only emergency approval because trials were not completed and they continued using the unknowing public. The result was what a NHS senior nurse with responsibility for 'vaccine' procedure said was 'genocide'. She said the 'vaccines' were not 'vaccines'. They had not been shown to be safe and claims about their effectiveness by drug companies were 'poetic licence'. She described what was happening as a 'horrid act of human annihilation'. The nurse said that management had instigated a policy of not providing a Patient Information Leaflet (PIL) before people were 'vaccinated' even though health care professionals are supposed to do this according to protocol. Patients should also be told that they are taking part in an ongoing clinical trial. Her challenges to what is happening had seen her excluded from meetings and ridiculed in others. She said she was told to 'watch my step ... or I would find myself surplus to requirements'. The nurse, who spoke anonymously in fear of her career, said she asked her NHS manager why he/she was content with taking part in genocide against those having the 'vaccines'. The reply was that everyone had to play their part and to 'put up, shut up, and get it done'. Government was 'leaning heavily' on NHS management which was clearly leaning heavily on staff. This is how the global 'medical' hierarchy operates and it starts with the Cult and its World Health Organization.

She told the story of a doctor who had the Pfizer jab and when questioned had no idea what was in it. The doctor had never read the literature. We have to stop treating doctors as intellectual giants when so many are moral and medical pygmies. The doctor did not even know that the 'vaccines' were not fully approved or that their trials were ongoing. They were, however, asking their patients if they minded taking part in follow-ups for research purposes – yes, the ongoing clinical trial. The nurse said the doctor's ignorance was not rare and she had spoken to a hospital consultant who had the jab without any idea of the background or that the 'trials' had not been completed. Nurses and pharmacists had shown the same ignorance.

'My NHS colleagues have forsaken their duty of care, broken their code of conduct – Hippocratic Oath – and have been brainwashed just the same as the majority of the UK public through propaganda ...' She said she had not been able to recruit a single NHS colleague, doctor, nurse or pharmacist to stand with her and speak out. Her union had refused to help. She said that if the genocide came to light she would not hesitate to give evidence at a Nuremberg-type trial against those in power who could have affected the outcomes but didn't.

And all for what?

To put the nonsense into perspective let's say the 'virus' does exist and let's go completely crazy and accept that the official manipulated figures for cases and deaths are accurate. Even then a study by Stanford University epidemiologist Dr John Ioannidis published on the World Health Organization website produced an average infection to fatality rate of ... 0.23 percent! Ioannidis said: 'If one could sample equally from all locations globally, the median infection fatality rate might even be substantially lower than the 0.23% observed in my analysis.' For healthy people under 70 it was ... 0.05 percent! This compares with the 3.4 percent claimed by the Cult-owned World Health Organization when the hoax was first played and maximum fear needed to be generated. An updated Stanford study in April, 2021, put the 'infection' to 'fatality' rate at just 0.15 percent. Another team of scientists led by Megan O'Driscoll and Henrik Salje studied data from 45 countries and published their findings on the Nature website. For children and young people the figure is so small it virtually does not register although authorities will be hyping dangers to the young when they introduce DNA-manipulating 'vaccines' for children. The O'Driscoll study produced an average infection-fatality figure of 0.003 for children from birth to four; 0.001 for 5 to 14; 0.003 for 15 to 19; and it was still only 0.456 up to 64. To claim that children must be 'vaccinated' to protect them from 'Covid' is an obvious lie and so there must be another reason and there is. What's more the average age of a 'Covid' death is akin to the average age that people die in general. The average age of death in England is about 80 for men and 83 for women. The average age of death from alleged 'Covid' is between 82 and 83. California doctors, Dan Erickson and Artin Massihi, said at their April media conference that projection models of millions of deaths had been 'woefully inaccurate'. They produced detailed figures showing that Californians had a 0.03 chance of dying from 'Covid' based on the number of people who tested positive (with a test not testing for the 'virus'). Erickson said there was a 0.1 percent chance of dying from 'Covid' in the state of New York, not just the city, and a 0.05 percent chance in Spain, a centre of 'Covid-19' hysteria at one stage. The Stanford studies supported the doctors' data with fatality rate estimates of 0.23 and 0.15 percent. How close are these figures to my estimate of zero? Death-rate figures claimed by the World Health Organization at the start of the hoax were some 15 times higher. The California doctors said there was no justification for lockdowns and the economic devastation they caused. Everything they had ever learned about quarantine was that you quarantine the sick and not the healthy. They had never seen this before and it made no medical sense.

Why in the in the light of all this would governments and medical systems the world over say that billions must go under house arrest; lose their livelihood; in many cases lose their mind, their health and their life; force people to wear masks dangerous to health and psychology; make human interaction and even family interaction a criminal offence; ban travel; close restaurants, bars, watching live sport, concerts, theatre, and any activity involving human togetherness and discourse; and closing schools to isolate children from their friends and cause many to commit suicide in acts of hopelessness and despair? The California doctors said lockdown consequences included increased child abuse, partner abuse, alcoholism, depression, and other impacts they were seeing every day. Who would do that to the entire human race if not mentally-ill psychopaths of almost unimaginable extremes like Bill Gates? We must face the reality of what we are dealing with and come out of denial. Fascism and tyranny are made possible only by the target population submitting and acquiescing to fascism and tyranny. The whole of human history shows that to be true. Most people naively and unquestioning believed what they were told about a 'deadly virus' and meekly and weakly submitted to house arrest. Those who didn't believe it – at least in total – still submitted in fear of the consequences of not doing so. For the rest who wouldn't submit draconian fines have been imposed, brutal policing by psychopaths for psychopaths, and condemnation from the meek and weak who condemn the Pushbackers on behalf of the very force that has them, too, in its gunights. 'Pathetic' does not even begin to suffice. Britain's brainless 'Health' Secretary Matt Hancock warned anyone lying to border officials about returning from a list of 'hotspot' countries could face a jail sentence of up to ten years which is more than for racially-aggravated assault, incest and attempting to have sex with a child under 13. Hancock is a lunatic, but he has the state apparatus behind him in a Cult-led chain reaction and the same with UK 'Vaccine Minister' Nadhim Zahawi, a prominent member of the mega-Cult secret society, Le Cercle, which featured in my earlier books. The Cult enforces its will on governments and medical systems; government and medical systems enforce their will on business and police; business enforces its will on staff who enforce it on customers; police enforce the will of the Cult on the population and play their essential part in creating a world of fascist control that their own children and grandchildren will have to live in their entire lives. It is a hierarchical pyramid of imposition and acquiescence and, yes indeed, of clinical insanity.

Does anyone bright enough to read this book have to ask what the answer is? I think not, but I will reveal it anyway in the fewest of syllables: Tell the psychos and their moronic lackeys to fuck off and let's get on with our lives. We are many – They are few.

CHAPTER SEVEN

War on your mind

One believes things because one has been conditioned to believe them

Aldous Huxley, Brave New World

I have described the 'Covid' hoax as a 'Psyop' and that is true in every sense and on every level in accordance with the definition of that term which is psychological warfare. Break down the 'Covid pandemic' to the foundation themes and it is psychological warfare on the human individual and collective mind.

The same can be said for the entire human belief system involving every subject you can imagine. Huxley was right in his contention that people believe what they are conditioned to believe and this comes from the repetition throughout their lives of the same falsehoods. They spew from government, corporations, media and endless streams of 'experts' telling you what the Cult wants you to believe and often believing it themselves (although far from always). 'Experts' are rewarded with 'prestigious' jobs and titles and as agents of perceptual programming with regular access to the media. The Cult has to control the narrative – control information – or they lose control of the vital, crucial, without-which-they-cannot-prevail public perception of reality. The foundation of that control today is the Internet made possible by the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA), the incredibly sinister technological arm of the Pentagon. The Internet is the result of military technology.

DARPA openly brags about establishing the Internet which has been a long-term project to lasso the minds of the global population. I have said for decades the plan is to control information to such an extreme that eventually no one would see or hear anything that the Cult does not approve. We are closing in on that end with ferocious censorship since the 'Covid' hoax began and in my case it started back in the 1990s in terms of books and speaking venues. I had to create my own publishing company in 1995 precisely because no one else would publish my books even then. I think they're all still running.

Cult Internet

To secure total control of information they needed the Internet in which pre-programmed algorithms can seek out 'unclean' content for deletion and even stop it being posted in the first place. The Cult had to dismantle print and non-Internet broadcast media to ensure the transfer of information to the appropriate-named 'Web' – a critical expression of the Cult web. We've seen the ever-quickening demise of traditional media and control of what is left by a tiny number of corporations operating worldwide. Independent journalism in the mainstream is already dead and never was that more obvious than since the turn of 2020. The Cult wants all information communicated via the Internet to globally censor and allow the plug to be pulled any time. Lockdowns and forced isolation has meant that communication between people has been through electronic means and no longer through face-to-face discourse and discussion. Cult psychopaths have targeted the bars, restaurants, sport, venues and meeting places in general for this reason. None of this is by chance and it's to stop people gathering in any kind of privacy or number while being able to track and monitor all Internet communications and block them as necessary. Even private messages between individuals have been censored by these fascists that control Cult fronts like Facebook, Twitter, Google and YouTube which are all officially run by Sabbatian place-people and from the background by higher-level Sabbatian place people.

Facebook, Google, Amazon and their like were seed-funded and supported into existence with money-no-object infusions of funds either directly or indirectly from DARPA and CIA technology arm In-Q-Tel. The Cult plays the long game and prepares very carefully for big plays like 'Covid'. Amazon is another front in the psychological war and pretty much controls the global market in book sales and increasingly publishing. Amazon's limitless funds have deleted fantastic numbers of independent publishers to seize global domination on the way to deciding which books can be sold and circulated and which cannot. Moves in that direction are already happening. Amazon's leading light Jeff Bezos is the grandson of Lawrence Preston Gise who worked with DARPA predecessor ARPA. Amazon has big connections to the CIA and the Pentagon. The plan I have long described went like this:

1. Employ military technology to establish the Internet.
2. Sell the Internet as a place where people can freely communicate without censorship and allow that to happen until the Net becomes the central and irreversible pillar of human society. If the Internet had been highly censored from the start many would have rejected it.
3. Fund and manipulate major corporations into being to control the circulation of information on your Internet using cover stories about geeks in garages to explain how they came about. Give them unlimited funds to expand rapidly with no need to make a profit for years while non-Cult companies who need to balance the books cannot compete. You know that in these circumstances your Googles, YouTubes, Facebooks and Amazons are going to secure near monopolies by either crushing or buying up the opposition.
4. Allow freedom of expression on both the Internet and communication platforms to draw people in until the Internet is the central and irreversible pillar of human society and your communication corporations have reached a stage of near monopoly domination.
5. Then unleash your always-planned frenzy of censorship on the basis of 'where else are you going to go?' and continue to expand that until nothing remains that the Cult does not want its human targets to see.

The process was timed to hit the 'Covid' hoax to ensure the best chance possible of controlling the narrative which they knew they had to do at all costs. They were, after all, about to unleash a 'deadly virus' that didn't really exist. If you do that in an environment of free-flowing information and opinion you would be dead in the water before you could say Gates is a psychopath. The network was in place through which the Cult-created-and-owned World Health Organization could dictate the 'Covid' narrative and response policy slavishly supported by Cult-owned Internet communication giants and mainstream media while those telling a different story were censored. Google, YouTube, Facebook and Twitter openly announced that they would do this. What else would we expect from Cult-owned operations like Facebook which former executives have confirmed set out to make the platform more addictive than cigarettes and coldly manipulates emotions of its users to sow division between people and groups and scramble the minds of the young? If Zuckerberg lives out the rest of his life without going to jail for crimes against humanity, and most emphatically against the young, it will be a travesty of justice. Still, no matter, cause and effect will catch up with him eventually and the same with Sergey Brin and Larry Page at Google with its CEO Sundar Pichai who fix the Google search results to promote Cult narratives and hide the opposition. Put the same key words into Google and other search engines like DuckDuckGo and you will see how different results can be. Wikipedia is another intensely biased 'encyclopaedia' which skews its content to the Cult agenda. YouTube links to Wikipedia's version of 'Covid' and 'climate change' on video pages in which experts in their field offer a different opinion (even that is increasingly rare with Wojcicki censorship). Into this 'Covid' silence-them network must be added government media censors, sorry 'regulators', such as Ofcom in the UK which imposed tyrannical restrictions on British broadcasters that had the effect of banning me from ever appearing. Just to debate with me about my evidence and views on 'Covid' would mean breaking the fascistic impositions of Ofcom and its CEO career government bureaucrat Melanie Dawes. Gutless British broadcasters tremble at the very thought of fascist Ofcom.

Psychos behind 'Covid'

The reason for the 'Covid' catastrophe in all its facets and forms can be seen by whom and what is driving the policies worldwide in such a coordinated way. Decisions are not being made to protect health, but to target psychology. The dominant group guiding and 'advising' government policy are not medical professionals. They are psychologists and behavioural scientists. Every major country has its own version of this phenomenon and I'll use the British example to show how it works. In many ways the British version has been affecting the wider world in the form of the huge behaviour manipulation network in the UK which operates in other countries. The network involves private companies, government, intelligence and military. The Cabinet Office is at the centre of the government 'Covid' Psyop and part-owns, with 'innovation charity' Nesta, the Behavioural Insights Team (BIT) which claims to be independent of government but patently isn't. The BIT was established in 2010 and its job is to manipulate the psyche of the population to acquiesce to government demands and so much more. It is also known as the 'Nudge Unit', a name inspired by the 2009 book by two ultra-Zionists, Cass Sunstein and Richard Thaler, called Nudge: Improving Decisions About Health, Wealth, and Happiness. The book, as with the Behavioural Insights Team, seeks to 'nudge' behaviour (manipulate it) to make the public follow patterns of action and perception that suit those in authority (the Cult). Sunstein is so skilled at this that he advises the World Health Organization and the UK Behavioural Insights Team and was Administrator of the White House Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs in the Obama administration. Biden appointed him to the Department of Homeland Security – another ultra-Zionist in the fold to oversee new immigration laws which is another policy the Cult wants to control. Sunstein is desperate to silence anyone exposing conspiracies and co-authored a 2008 report on the subject in which suggestions were offered to ban 'conspiracy theorizing' or impose 'some kind of tax, financial or otherwise, on those who disseminate such theories'. I guess a psychiatrist's chair is out of the question?

Sunstein's mate Richard Thaler, an 'academic affiliate' of the UK Behavioural Insights Team, is a proponent of 'behavioural economics' which is defined as the study of 'the effects of psychological, cognitive, emotional, cultural and social factors on the decisions of individuals and institutions'. Study the effects so they can be manipulated to be what you want them to be. Other leading names in the development of behavioural economics are ultra-Zionists Daniel Kahneman and Robert J. Shiller and they, with Thaler, won the Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Sciences for their work in this field. The Behavioural Insights Team is operating at the heart of the UK government and has expanded globally through partnerships with several universities including Harvard, Oxford, Cambridge, University College London (UCL) and Pennsylvania. They claim to have 'trained' (reframed) 20,000 civil servants and run more than 750 projects involving 400 randomised controlled trials in dozens of countries' as another version of mind reframers Common Purpose. BIT works from its office in New York with cities and their agencies, as well as other partners, across the United States and Canada – this is a company part-owned by the British government Cabinet Office. An executive order by President Cult-servant Obama established a US Social and Behavioral Sciences Team in 2015. They all have the same reason for being and that's to brainwash the population directly and by brainwashing those in positions of authority.

'Covid' mind game

Another prime aspect of the UK mind-control network is the 'independent' [joke] Scientific Pandemic Insights Group on Behaviours (SPI-B) which 'provides behavioural science advice aimed at anticipating and helping people adhere to interventions that are recommended by medical or epidemiological experts'. That means manipulating public perception and behaviour to do whatever government tells them to do. It's disgusting and if they really want the public to be 'safe' this lot should all be under lock and key. According to the government website SPI-B consists of 'behavioural scientists, health and social psychologists, anthropologists and historians' and advises the Whitty-Vallance-led Scientific Advisory Group for Emergencies (SAGE) which in turn advises the government on 'the science' (it doesn't) and 'Covid' policy. When politicians say they are being guided by 'the science' this is the rabble in each country they are talking about and that 'science' is dominated by behaviour manipulators to enforce government fascism through public compliance. The Behaviour Insight Team is headed by psychologist David Solomon Halpern, a visiting professor at King's College London, and connects with a national and global web of other civilian and military organisations as the Cult moves towards its goal of fusing them into one fascistic whole in every country through its 'Fusion Doctrine'. The behaviour manipulation network involves, but is not confined to, the Foreign Office; National Security Council; government communications headquarters (GCHQ); MI5; MI6; the Cabinet Office-based Media Monitoring Unit; and the Rapid Response Unit which 'monitors digital trends to spot emerging issues; including misinformation and disinformation; and identifies the best way to respond'.

There is also the 77th Brigade of the UK military which operates like the notorious Israeli military's Unit 8200 in manipulating information and discussion on the Internet by posing as members of the public to promote the narrative and discredit those who challenge it. Here we have the military seeking to manipulate domestic public opinion while the Nazis in government are fine with that. Conservative Member of Parliament Tobias Ellwood, an advocate of lockdown and control through 'vaccine passports', is a Lieutenant Colonel reservist in the 77th Brigade which connects with the military operation jHub, the 'innovation centre' for the Ministry of Defence and Strategic Command. jHub has also been involved with the civilian National Health Service (NHS) in 'symptom tracing' the population. The NHS is a key part of this mind control network and produced a document in December, 2020, explaining to staff how to use psychological manipulation with different groups and ages to get them to have the DNA-manipulating 'Covid vaccine' that's designed to cumulatively rewrite human genetics. The document, called 'Optimising Vaccination Roll Out – Do's and Dont's for all messaging, documents and "communications" in the widest sense', was published by NHS England and the NHS Improvement Behaviour Change Unit in partnership with Public Health England and Warwick Business School. I hear the mantra about 'save the NHS' and 'protect the NHS' when we need to scrap the NHS and start again. The current version is far too corrupt, far too anti-human and totally compromised by Cult operatives and their assets. UK government broadcast media censor Ofcom will connect into this web – as will the BBC with its tremendous Ofcom influence – to control what the public see and hear and dictate mass perception. Nuremberg trials must include personnel from all these organisations.

The fear factor

The 'Covid' hoax has led to the creation of the UK Cabinet Office-connected Joint Biosecurity Centre (JBC) which is officially described as providing 'expert advice on pandemics' using its independent [all Cult operations are 'independent'] analytical function to provide real-time analysis about infection outbreaks to identify and respond to outbreaks of Covid-19'. Another role is to advise the government on a response to spikes in infections – 'for example by closing schools or workplaces in local areas where infection levels have risen'. Put another way, promoting the Cult agenda. The Joint Biosecurity Centre is modelled on the Joint Terrorism Analysis Centre which analyses intelligence to set 'terrorism threat levels' and here again you see the fusion of civilian and military operations and intelligence that has led to military intelligence producing documents about 'vaccine hesitancy' and how it can be combated. Domestic civilian matters and opinions should not be the business of the military. The Joint Biosecurity Centre is headed by Tom Hurd, director general of the Office for Security and Counter-Terrorism from the establishment-to-its-fingertips Hurd family. His father is former Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd. How coincidental that Tom

Hurd went to the elite Eton College and Oxford University with Boris Johnson. Imperial College with its ridiculous computer modeller Neil Ferguson will connect with this gigantic web that will itself interconnect with similar set-ups in other major and not so major countries. Compared with this Cult network the politicians, be they Boris Johnson, Donald Trump or Joe Biden, are bit-part players 'following the science'. The network of psychologists was on the 'Covid' case from the start with the aim of generating maximum fear of the 'virus' to ensure compliance by the population. A government behavioural science group known as SPI-B produced a paper in March, 2020, for discussion by the main government science advisory group known as SAGE. It was headed 'Options for increasing adherence to social distancing measures' and it said the following in a section headed 'Persuasion':

- A substantial number of people still do not feel sufficiently personally threatened; it could be that they are reassured by the low death rate in their demographic group, although levels of concern may be rising. Having a good understanding of the risk has been found to be positively associated with adoption of COVID-19 social distancing measures in Hong Kong.
- The perceived level of personal threat needs to be increased among those who are complacent, using hard-hitting evaluation of options for increasing social distancing emotional messaging. To be effective this must also empower people by making clear the actions they can take to reduce the threat.
- Responsibility to others: There seems to be insufficient understanding of, or feelings of responsibility about, people's role in transmitting the infection to others ... Messaging about actions need to be framed positively in terms of protecting oneself and the community, and increase confidence that they will be effective.
- Some people will be more persuaded by appeals to play by the rules, some by duty to the community, and some to personal risk.

All these different approaches are needed. The messaging also needs to take account of the realities of different people's lives. Messaging needs to take account of the different motivational levers and circumstances of different people.

All this could be achieved the SPI-B psychologists said by using the media to increase the sense of personal threat which translates as terrify the shit out of the population, including children, so they all do what we want. That's not happened has it? Those excuses for 'journalists' who wouldn't know journalism if it bit them on the arse (the great majority) have played their crucial part in serving this Cult-government Psyop to enslave their own kids and grandkids. How they live with themselves I have no idea. The psychological war has been underpinned by constant government 'Covid' propaganda in almost every television and radio ad break, plus the Internet and print media, which has pounded out the fear with taxpayers footing the bill for their own programming. The result has been people terrified of a 'virus' that doesn't exist or one with a tiny fatality rate even if you believe it does. People walk down the street and around the shops wearing face-nappies damaging their health and psychology while others report those who refuse to be that naïve to the police who turn up in their own face-nappies. I had a cameraman come to my flat and he was so frightened of 'Covid' he came in wearing a mask and refused to shake my hand in case he caught something. He had – naïveitis – and the thought that he worked in the mainstream media was both depressing and made his behaviour perfectly explainable. The fear which has gripped the minds of so many and frozen them into compliance has been carefully cultivated by these psychologists who are really psychopaths. If lives get destroyed and a lot of young people commit suicide it shows our plan is working. SPI-B then turned to compulsion on the public to comply. 'With adequate preparation, rapid change can be achieved', it said. Some countries had introduced mandatory self-isolation on a wide scale without evidence of major public unrest and a large majority of the UK's population appeared to be supportive of more coercive measures with 64 percent of adults saying they would support putting London under a lockdown (watch the 'polls' which are designed to make people believe that public opinion is in favour or against whatever the subject in hand).

For 'aggressive protective measures' to be effective, the SPI-B paper said, special attention should be devoted to those population groups that are more at risk. Translated from the Orwellian this means making the rest of population feel guilty for not protecting the 'vulnerable' such as old people which the Cult and its agencies were about to kill on an industrial scale with lockdown, lack of treatment and the Gates 'vaccine'. Psychopath psychologists sold their guilt-trip so comprehensively that Los Angeles County Supervisor Hilda Solis reported that children were apologising (from a distance) to their parents and grandparents for bringing 'Covid' into their homes and getting them sick. '... These apologies are just some of the last words that loved ones will ever hear as they die alone,' she said. Gut-wrenchingly Solis then used this childhood tragedy to tell children to stay at home and 'keep your loved ones alive'. Imagine heaping such potentially life-long guilt on a kid when it has absolutely nothing to do with them. These people are deeply disturbed and the psychologists behind this even more so.

Uncivil war – divide and rule

Professional mind-controllers at SPI-B wanted the media to increase a sense of responsibility to others (do as you're told) and promote 'positive messaging' for those actions while in contrast to invoke 'social disapproval' by the unquestioning, obedient, community of anyone with a mind of their own. Again the compliant Goebbels-like media obliged. This is an old, old, trick employed by tyrannies the world over throughout human history. You get the target population to keep the target population in line – your line. SPI-B said this could 'play an important role in preventing anti-social behaviour or discouraging failure to enact pro-social behaviour'. For 'anti-social' in the Orwellian parlance of SPI-B see any behaviour that government doesn't approve. SPI-B recommendations said that 'social disapproval' should be accompanied by clear messaging and promotion of strong collective identity – hence the government and celebrity mantra of ‘we’re all in this together’. Sure we are. The mind doctors have such contempt for their targets that they think some clueless comedian, actor or singer telling them to do what the government wants will be enough to win them over. We have had UK comedian Lenny Henry, actor Michael Caine and singer Elton John wheeled out to serve the propagandists by urging people to have the DNA-manipulating ‘Covid’ non-‘vaccine’. The role of Henry and fellow black celebrities in seeking to coax a ‘vaccine’ reluctant black community into doing the government’s will was especially stomach-turning. An emotion-manipulating script and carefully edited video featuring these black ‘celebs’ was such an insult to the intelligence of black people and where’s the self-respect of those involved selling their souls to a fascist government agenda? Henry said he heard black people’s ‘legitimate worries and concerns’, but people must ‘trust the facts’ when they were doing exactly that by not having the ‘vaccine’. They had to include the obligatory reference to Black Lives Matter with the line ... ‘Don’t let coronavirus cost even more black lives – because we matter’. My god, it was pathetic. ‘I know the vaccine is safe and what it does.’ How? ‘I’m a comedian and it says so in my script.’

SPI-B said social disapproval needed to be carefully managed to avoid victimisation, scapegoating and misdirected criticism, but they knew that their ‘recommendations’ would lead to exactly that and the media were specifically used to stir-up the divide-and-conquer hostility. Those who conform like good little baa, baas, are praised while those who have seen through the tidal wave of lies are ‘Covidiot’s’. The awake have been abused by the fast asleep for not conforming to fascism and impositions that the awake know are designed to endanger their health, dehumanise them, and tear asunder the very fabric of human society. We have had the curtain-twitchers and morons reporting neighbours and others to the face-napped police for breaking ‘Covid rules’ with fascist police delighting in posting links and phone numbers where this could be done. The Cult cannot impose its will without a compliant police and military or a compliant population willing to play their part in enslaving themselves and their kids. The words of a pastor in Nazi Germany are so appropriate today:

First they came for the socialists and I did not speak out because I was not a socialist.

Then they came for the trade unionists and I did not speak out because I was not a trade unionist.

Then they came for the Jews and I did not speak out because I was not a Jew.

Then they came for me and there was no one left to speak for me.

Those who don't learn from history are destined to repeat it and so many are.

'Covid' rules: Rewiring the mind

With the background laid out to this gigantic national and global web of psychological manipulation we can put 'Covid' rules into a clear and sinister perspective. Forget the claims about protecting health. 'Covid' rules are about dismantling the human mind, breaking the human spirit, destroying self-respect, and then putting Humpty Dumpty together again as a servile, submissive slave. Social isolation through lockdown and distancing have devastating effects on the human psyche as the psychological psychopaths well know and that's the real reason for them. Humans need contact with each other, discourse, closeness and touch, or they eventually, and literally, go crazy. Masks, which I will address at some length, fundamentally add to the effects of isolation and the Cult agenda to dehumanise and de-individualise the population. To do this while knowing – in fact seeking – this outcome is the very epitome of evil and psychologists involved in this are the epitome of evil. They must like all the rest of the Cult demons and their assets stand trial for crimes against humanity on a scale that defies the imagination. Psychopaths in uniform use isolation to break enemy troops and agents and make them subservient and submissive to tell what they know. The technique is rightly considered a form of torture and torture is most certainly what has been imposed on the human population.

Clinically-insane American psychologist Harry Harlow became famous for his isolation experiments in the 1950s in which he separated baby monkeys from their mothers and imprisoned them for months on end in a metal container or 'pit of despair'. They soon began to show mental distress and depression as any idiot could have predicted. Harlow put other monkeys in steel chambers for three, six or twelve months while denying them any contact with animals or humans. He said that the effects of total social isolation for six months were 'so devastating and debilitating that we had assumed initially that twelve months of isolation would not produce any additional decrement'; but twelve months of isolation 'almost obliterated the animals socially'. This is what the Cult and its psychopaths are doing to you and your children. Even monkeys in partial isolation in which they were not allowed to form relationships with other monkeys became 'aggressive and hostile, not only to others, but also towards their own bodies'. We have seen this in the young as a consequence of lockdown. UK government psychopaths launched a public relations campaign telling people not to hug each other even after they received the 'Covid-19 vaccine' which we were told with more lies would allow a return to 'normal life'. A government source told The Telegraph: 'It will be along the lines that it is great that you have been vaccinated, but if you are going to visit your family and hug your grandchildren there is a chance you are going to infect people you love.' The source was apparently speaking from a secure psychiatric facility. Janet Lord, director of Birmingham University's Institute of Inflammation and Ageing, said that parents and grandparents should avoid hugging their children. Well, how can I put it, Ms Lord? Fuck off. Yep, that'll do.

Destroying the kids – where are the parents?

Observe what has happened to people enslaved and isolated by lockdown as suicide and self-harm has soared worldwide, particularly among the young denied the freedom to associate with their friends. A study of 49,000 people in English-speaking countries concluded that almost half of young adults are at clinical risk of mental health disorders. A national survey in America of 1,000 currently enrolled high school and college students found that 5 percent reported attempting suicide during the pandemic. Data from the US CDC's National Syndromic Surveillance Program from January 1st to October 17th, 2020, revealed a 31 percent increase in mental health issues among adolescents aged 12 to 17 compared with 2019. The CDC reported that America in general suffered the biggest drop in life expectancy since World War Two as it fell by a year in the first half of 2020 as a result of 'deaths of despair' – overdoses and suicides. Deaths of despair have leapt by more than 20 percent during lockdown and include the highest number of fatal overdoses ever recorded in a single year – 81,000. Internet addiction is another consequence of being isolated at home which lowers interest in physical activities as kids fall into inertia and what's the point? Children and young people are losing hope and giving up on life, sometimes literally. A 14-year-old boy killed himself in Maryland because he had 'given up' when his school district didn't reopen; an 11-year-old boy shot himself during a zoom class; a teenager in Maine succumbed to the isolation of the 'pandemic' when he ended his life after experiencing a disrupted senior year at school. Children as young as nine have taken their life and all these stories can be repeated around the world. Careers are being destroyed before they start and that includes those in sport in which promising youngsters have not been able to take part. The plan of the psycho-psychologists is working all right. Researchers at Cambridge University found that lockdowns cause significant harm to children's mental health. Their study was published in the Archives of Disease in Childhood, and followed 168 children aged between 7 and 11. The researchers concluded:

During the UK lockdown, children's depression symptoms have increased substantially, relative to before lockdown. The scale of this effect has direct relevance for the continuation of different elements of lockdown policy, such as complete or partial school closures ...

... Specifically, we observed a statistically significant increase in ratings of depression, with a medium-to-large effect size. Our findings emphasise the need to incorporate the potential impact of lockdown on child mental health in planning the ongoing response to the global pandemic and the recovery from it.

Not a chance when the Cult's psycho-psychologists were getting exactly what they wanted. The UK's Royal College of Paediatrics and Child Health has urged parents to look for signs of eating disorders in children and young people after a three to four fold increase. Specialists say the 'pandemic' is a major reason behind the rise. You don't say. The College said isolation from friends during school closures, exam cancellations, loss of extra-curricular activities like sport, and an increased use of social media were all contributory factors along with fears about the virus (psycho-psychologists again), family finances, and students being forced to quarantine. Doctors said young people were becoming severely ill by the time they were seen with 'Covid' regulations reducing face-to-face consultations. Nor is it only the young that have been devastated by the psychopaths. Like all bullies and cowards the Cult is targeting the young, elderly, weak and infirm. A typical story was told by a British lady called Lynn Parker who was not allowed to visit her husband in 2020 for the last ten and half months of his life 'when he needed me most' between March 20th and when he died on December 19th. This vacates the criminal and enters the territory of evil. The emotional impact on the immune system alone is immense as are the number of people of all ages worldwide who have died as a result of Cult-demanded, Gates-demanded, lockdowns.

Isolation is torture

The experience of imposing solitary confinement on millions of prisoners around the world has shown how a large percentage become 'actively psychotic and/or acutely suicidal'. Social isolation has been found to trigger 'a specific psychiatric syndrome, characterized by hallucinations; panic attacks; overt paranoia; diminished impulse control; hypersensitivity to external stimuli; and difficulties with thinking, concentration and memory'. Juan Mendez, a United Nations rapporteur (investigator), said that isolation is a form of torture. Research has shown that even after isolation prisoners find it far more difficult to make social connections and I remember chatting to a shop assistant after one lockdown who told me that when her young son met another child again he had no idea how to act or what to do. Hannah Flanagan, Director of Emergency Services at Journey Mental Health Center in Dane County, Wisconsin, said: 'The specificity about Covid social distancing and isolation that we've come across as contributing factors to the suicides are really new to us this year.' But they are not new to those that devised them. They are getting the effect they want as the population is psychologically dismantled to be rebuilt in a totally different way. Children and the young are particularly targeted. They will be the adults when the full-on fascist AI-controlled technocracy is planned to be imposed and they are being prepared to meekly submit. At the same time older people who still have a memory of what life was like before – and how fascist the new normal really is – are being deleted. You are going to see efforts to turn the young against the old to support this geriatric genocide. Hannah Flanagan said the big increase in suicide in her county proved that social isolation is not only harmful, but deadly. Studies have shown that isolation from others is one of the main risk factors in suicide and even more so with women. Warnings that lockdown could create a 'perfect storm' for suicide were ignored. After all this was one of the reasons for lockdown. Suicide, however, is only the most extreme of isolation consequences. There are many others. Dr Dhruv Khullar, assistant professor of healthcare policy at Weill Cornell Medical College, said in a New York Times article in 2016 long before the fake 'pandemic':

A wave of new research suggests social separation is bad for us. Individuals with less social connection have disrupted sleep patterns, altered immune systems, more inflammation and higher levels of stress hormones. One recent study found that isolation increases the risk of heart disease by 29 percent and stroke by 32 percent. Another analysis that pooled data from 70 studies and 3.4 million people found that socially isolated individuals had a 30 percent higher risk of dying in the next seven years, and that this effect was largest in middle age.

Loneliness can accelerate cognitive decline in older adults, and isolated individuals are twice as likely to die prematurely as those with more robust social interactions. These effects start early: Socially isolated children have significantly poorer health 20 years later, even after controlling for other factors. All told, loneliness is as important a risk factor for early death as obesity and smoking.

There you have proof from that one article alone four years before 2020 that those who have enforced lockdown, social distancing and isolation knew what the effect would be and that is even more so with professional psychologists that have been driving the policy across the globe. We can go back even further to the years 2000 and 2003 and the start of a major study on the effects of isolation on health by Dr Janine Gronewold and Professor Dirk M. Hermann at the University Hospital in Essen, Germany, who analysed data on 4,316 people with an average age of 59 who were recruited for the long-term research project. They found that socially isolated people are more than 40 percent more likely to have a heart attack, stroke, or other major cardiovascular event and nearly 50 percent more likely to die from any cause. Given the financial Armageddon unleashed by lockdown we should note that the study found a relationship between increased cardiovascular risk and lack of financial support. After excluding other factors social isolation was still connected to a 44 percent increased risk of cardiovascular problems and a 47 percent increased risk of death by any cause. Lack of financial support was associated with a 30 percent increase in the risk of cardiovascular health events. Dr Gronewold said it had been known for some time that feeling lonely or lacking contact with close friends and family can have an impact on physical health and the study had shown that having strong social relationships is of high importance for heart health. Gronewold said they didn't understand yet why people who are socially isolated have such poor health outcomes, but this was obviously a worrying finding, particularly during these times of prolonged social distancing. Well, it can be explained on many levels. You only have to identify the point in the body where people feel loneliness and missing people they are parted from – it's in the centre of the chest where they feel the ache of loneliness and the ache of missing people. 'My heart aches for you' ... 'My heart aches for some company.' I will explain this more in the chapter Escaping Wetiko, but when you realise that the body is the mind – they are expressions of each other – the reason why state of the mind dictates state of the body becomes clear.

American psychologist Ranjit Powar was highlighting the effects of lockdown isolation as early as April, 2020. She said humans have evolved to be social creatures and are wired to live in interactive groups. Being isolated from family, friends and colleagues could be unbalancing and traumatic for most people and could result in short or even long-term psychological and physical health problems. An increase in levels of anxiety, aggression, depression, forgetfulness and hallucinations were possible psychological effects of isolation. 'Mental conditions may be precipitated for those with underlying pre-existing susceptibilities and show up in many others without any pre-condition.' Powar said personal relationships helped us cope with stress and if we lost this outlet for letting off steam the result can be a big emotional void which, for an average person, was difficult to deal with. 'Just a few days of isolation can cause increased levels of anxiety and depression' – so what the hell has been the effect on the global population of 18 months of this at the time of writing? Powar said: 'Add to it the looming threat of a dreadful disease being repeatedly hammered in through the media and you have a recipe for many shades of mental and physical distress.' For those with a house and a garden it is easy to forget that billions have had to endure lockdown isolation in tiny overcrowded flats and apartments with nowhere to go outside. The psychological and physical consequences of this are unimaginable and with lunatic and abusive partners and parents the consequences have led to tremendous increases in domestic and child abuse and alcoholism as people seek to shut out the horror. Ranjit Powar said:

Staying in a confined space with family is not all a rosy picture for everyone. It can be extremely oppressive and claustrophobic for large low-income families huddled together in small single-room houses. Children here are not lucky enough to have many board/electronic games or books to keep them occupied.

Add to it the deep insecurity of running out of funds for food and basic necessities. On the other hand, there are people with dysfunctional family dynamics, such as domineering, abusive or alcoholic partners, siblings or parents which makes staying home a period of trial. Incidence of suicide and physical abuse against women has shown a worldwide increase. Heightened anxiety and depression also affect a person's immune system, making them more susceptible to illness.

Six-foot fantasy

Social (unsocial) distancing demanded that people stay six feet or two metres apart. UK government advisor Robert Dingwall from the New and Emerging Respiratory Virus Threats Advisory Group said in a radio interview that the two-metre rule was 'conjured up out of nowhere' and was not based on science. No, it was not based on medical science, but it didn't come out of nowhere. The distance related to psychological science. Six feet/two metres was adopted in many countries and we were told by people like the criminal Anthony Fauci and his ilk that it was founded on science. Many schools could not reopen because they did not have the space for six-foot distancing. Then in March, 2021, after a year of six-foot 'science', a study published in the Journal of Infectious Diseases involving more than 500,000 students and almost 100,000 staff over 16 weeks revealed no significant difference in 'Covid' cases between six feet and three feet and Fauci changed his tune. Now three feet was okay. There is no difference between six feet and three inches when there is no 'virus' and they got away with six feet for psychological reasons for as long as they could. I hear journalists and others talk about 'unintended consequences' of lockdown. They are not unintended at all; they have been coldly-calculated for a specific outcome of human control and that's why super-psychopaths like Gates have called for them so vehemently. Super-psychopath psychologists have demanded them and psychopathic or clueless, spineless, politicians have gone along with them by 'following the science'. But it's not science at all. 'Science' is not what is; it's only what people can be manipulated to believe it is. The whole 'Covid' catastrophe is founded on mind control. Three word or three statement mantras issued by the UK government are a well-known mind control technique and so we've had 'Stay home/protect the NHS/save lives', 'Stay alert/control the virus/save lives' and 'hands/face/space'. One of the most vocal proponents of extreme 'Covid' rules in the UK has been Professor Susan Michie, a member of the British Communist Party, who is not a medical professional. Michie is the director of the Centre for Behaviour Change at University College London. She is a behavioural psychologist and another filthy rich 'Marxist' who praised China's draconian lockdown. She was known by fellow students at Oxford University as 'Stalin's nanny' for her extreme Marxism. Michie is an influential member of the UK government's Scientific Advisory Group for Emergencies (SAGE) and behavioural manipulation groups which have dominated 'Covid' policy. She is a consultant adviser to the World Health Organization on 'Covid-19' and behaviour. Why the hell are lockdowns anything to do with her when they are claimed to be about health? Why does a behavioural psychologist from a group charged with changing the behaviour of the public want lockdown, human isolation and mandatory masks? Does that question really need an answer? Michie absolutely has to explain herself before a Nuremberg court when humanity takes back its world again and even more so when you see the consequences of masks that she demands are compulsory. This is a Michie classic:

The benefits of getting primary school children to wear masks is that regardless of what little degree of transmission is occurring in those age groups it could help normalise the practice. Young children wearing masks may be more likely to get their families to accept masks.

Those words alone should carry a prison sentence when you ponder on the callous disregard for children involved and what a statement it makes about the mind and motivations of Susan Michie. What a lovely lady and what she said there encapsulates the mentality of the psychopaths behind the 'Covid' horror. Let us compare what Michie said with a countrywide study in Germany published at researchsquare.com involving 25,000 school children and 17,854 health complaints submitted by parents. Researchers found that masks are harming children physically, psychologically, and behaviourally with 24 health issues associated with mask wearing. They include: shortness of breath (29.7%); dizziness (26.4%); increased headaches (53%); difficulty concentrating (50%); drowsiness or fatigue (37%); and malaise (42%). Nearly a third of children experienced more sleep issues than before and a quarter developed new fears. Researchers found health issues and other impairments in 68 percent of masked children covering their faces for an average of 4.5 hours a day. Hundreds of those taking part experienced accelerated respiration, tightness in the chest, weakness, and short-term impairment of consciousness. A reminder of what Michie said again:

The benefits of getting primary school children to wear masks is that regardless of what little degree of transmission is occurring in those age groups it could help normalise the practice. Young children wearing masks may be more likely to get their families to accept masks.

Psychopaths in government and psychology now have children and young people – plus all the adults – wearing masks for hours on end while clueless teachers impose the will of the psychopaths on the young they should be protecting. What the hell are parents doing?

Cult lab rats

We have some schools already imposing on students microchipped buzzers that activate when they get 'too close' to their pals in the way they do with lab rats. How apt. To the Cult and its brain-dead servants our children are lab rats being conditioned to be unquestioning, dehumanised slaves for the rest of their lives. Children and young people are being weaned and frightened away from the most natural human instincts including closeness and touch. I have tracked in the books over the years how schools were banning pupils from greeting each other with a hug and the whole Cult-induced Me Too movement has terrified men and boys from a relaxed and natural interaction with female friends and work colleagues to the point where many men try never to be in a room alone with a woman that's not their partner. Airhead celebrities have as always played their virtue-signalling part in making this happen with their gross exaggeration. For every monster like Harvey Weinstein there are at least tens of thousands of men that don't treat women like that; but everyone must be branded the same and policy changed for them as well as the monster. I am going to be using the word 'dehumanise' many times in this chapter because that is what the Cult is seeking to do and it goes very deep as we shall see. Don't let them kid you that social distancing is planned to end one day. That's not the idea. We are seeing more governments and companies funding and producing wearable gadgets to keep people apart and they would not be doing that if this was meant to be short-term. A tech start-up company backed by GCHQ, the British Intelligence and military surveillance headquarters, has created a social distancing wrist sensor that alerts people when they get too close to others. The CIA has also supported tech companies developing similar devices. The wearable sensor was developed by Tended, one of a number of start-up companies supported by GCHQ (see the CIA and DARPA). The device can be worn on the wrist or as a tag on the waistband and will vibrate whenever someone wearing the device breaches social distancing and gets anywhere near natural human contact. The company had a lucky break in that it was developing a distancing sensor when the 'Covid' hoax arrived which immediately provided a potentially enormous market. How fortunate. The government in big-time Cult-controlled Ontario in Canada is investing $2.5 million in wearable contact tracing technology that 'will alert users if they may have been exposed to the Covid-19 in the workplace and will beep or vibrate if they are within six feet of another person'. Facedrive Inc., the technology company behind this, was founded in 2016 with funding from the Ontario Together Fund and obviously they, too, had a prophet on the board of directors. The human surveillance and control technology is called TraceSCAN and would be worn by the human cyborgs in places such as airports, workplaces, construction sites, care homes and ... schools.

I emphasise schools with children and young people the prime targets. You know what is planned for society as a whole if you keep your eyes on the schools. They have always been places where the state program the next generation of slaves to be its compliant worker-ants – or Woker-ants these days; but in the mist of the ‘Covid’ madness they have been transformed into mind laboratories on a scale never seen before. Teachers and head teachers are just as programmed as the kids – often more so. Children are kept apart from human interaction by walk lanes, classroom distancing, staggered meal times, masks, and the rolling-out of buzzer systems. Schools are now physically laid out as a laboratory maze for lab-rats. Lunatics at a school in Anchorage, Alaska, who should be prosecuted for child abuse, took away desks and forced children to kneel (know your place) on a mat for five hours a day while wearing a mask and using their chairs as a desk. How this was supposed to impact on a ‘virus’ only these clinically insane people can tell you and even then it would be clap-trap. The school banned recess (interaction), art classes (creativity), and physical exercise (getting body and mind moving out of inertia). Everyone behind this outrage should be in jail or better still a mental institution. The behavioural manipulators are all for this dystopian approach to schools. Professor Susan Michie, the mind-doctor and British Communist Party member, said it was wrong to say that schools were safe. They had to be made so by ‘distancing’, masks and ventilation (sitting all day in the cold). I must ask this lady round for dinner on a night I know I am going to be out and not back for weeks. She probably wouldn’t be able to make it, anyway, with all the visits to her own psychologist she must have block-booked.

Masking identity

I know how shocking it must be for you that a behaviour manipulator like Michie wants everyone to wear masks which have long been a feature of mind-control programs like the infamous MKUltra in the United States, but, there we are. We live and learn. I spent many years from 1996 to right across the millennium researching mind control in detail on both sides of the Atlantic and elsewhere. I met a large number of mind-control survivors and many had been held captive in body and mind by MKUltra. MK stands for mind-control, but employs the German spelling in deference to the Nazis spirited out of Germany at the end of World War Two by Operation Paperclip in which the US authorities, with help from the Vatican, transported Nazi mind-controllers and engineers to America to continue their work. Many of them were behind the creation of NASA and they included Nazi scientist and SS officer Wernher von Braun who swapped designing V-2 rockets to bombard London with designing the Saturn V rockets that powered the NASA moon programme's Apollo craft. I think I may have mentioned that the Cult has no borders. Among Paperclip escapees was Josef Mengele, the Angel of Death in the Nazi concentration camps where he conducted mind and genetic experiments on children often using twins to provide a control twin to measure the impact of his 'work' on the other. If you want to observe the Cult mentality in all its extremes of evil then look into the life of Mengele. I have met many people who suffered mercilessly under Mengele in the United States where he operated under the name Dr Greene and became a stalwart of MKUltra programming and torture. Among his locations was the underground facility in the Mojave Desert in California called the China Lake Naval Weapons Station which is almost entirely below the surface. My books The Biggest Secret, Children of the Matrix and The Perception Deception have the detailed background to MKUltra.

The best-known MKUltra survivor is American Cathy O'Brien. I first met her and her late partner Mark Phillips at a conference in Colorado in 1996. Mark helped her escape and deprogram from decades of captivity in an offshoot of MKUltra known as Project Monarch in which 'sex slaves' were provided for the rich and famous including Father George Bush, Dick Cheney and the Clintons. Read Cathy and Mark's book Trance-Formation of America and if you are new to this you will be shocked to the core. I read it in 1996 shortly before, with the usual synchronicity of my life, I found myself given a book table at the conference right next to hers. MKUltra never ended despite being very publicly exposed (only a small part of it) in the 1970s and continues in other guises. I am still in touch with Cathy. She contacted me during 2020 after masks became compulsory in many countries to tell me how they were used as part of MKUltra programming. I had been observing 'Covid regulations' and the relationship between authority and public for months. I saw techniques that I knew were employed on individuals in MKUltra being used on the global population. I had read many books and manuals on mind control including one called Silent Weapons for Quiet Wars which came to light in the 1980s and was a guide on how to perceptually program on a mass scale. 'Silent Weapons' refers to mind-control. I remembered a line from the manual as governments, medical authorities and law enforcement agencies have so obviously talked to – or rather at – the adult population since the 'Covid' hoax began as if they are children. The document said:

If a person is spoken to by a T.V. advertiser as if he were a twelve-year-old, then, due to suggestibility, he will, with a certain probability, respond or react to that suggestion with the uncritical response of a twelve-year-old and will reach in to his economic reservoir and deliver its energy to buy that product on impulse when he passes it in the store.

That's why authority has spoken to adults like children since all this began.

Why did Michael Jackson wear masks?

Every aspect of the 'Covid' narrative has mind-control as its central theme. Cathy O'Brien wrote an article for davidicke.com about the connection between masks and mind control. Her daughter Kelly who I first met in the 1990s was born while Cathy was still held captive in MKUltra. Kelly was forced to wear a mask as part of her programming from the age of two to dehumanise her, target her sense of individuality and reduce the amount of oxygen her brain and body received. Bingo. This is the real reason for compulsory masks, why they have been enforced en masse, and why they seek to increase the number they demand you wear. First one, then two, with one disgraceful alleged 'doctor' recommending four which is nothing less than a death sentence. Where and how often they must be worn is being expanded for the purpose of mass mind control and damaging respiratory health which they can call 'Covid-19'. Canada's government headed by the man-child Justin Trudeau, says it's fine for children of two and older to wear masks. An insane 'study' in Italy involving just 47 children concluded there was no problem for babies as young as four months wearing them. Even after people were 'vaccinated' they were still told to wear masks by the criminal that is Anthony Fauci. Cathy wrote that mandating masks is allowing the authorities literally to control the air we breathe which is what was done in MKUltra. You might recall how the singer Michael Jackson wore masks and there is a reason for that. He was subjected to MKUltra mind control through Project Monarch and his psyche was scrambled by these simpletons. Cathy wrote:

In MKUltra Project Monarch mind control, Michael Jackson had to wear a mask to silence his voice so he could not reach out for help. Remember how he developed that whisper voice when he wasn't singing? Masks control the mind from the outside in, like the redefining of words is doing. By controlling what we can and cannot say for fear of being labeled racist or beaten, for example, it ultimately controls thought that drives our words and ultimately actions (or lack thereof).

Likewise, a mask muffles our speech so that we are not heard, which controls voice ... words ... mind. This is Mind Control. Masks are an obvious mind control device, and I am disturbed so many people are complying on a global scale. Masks depersonalize while making a person feel as though they have no voice. It is a barrier to others. People who would never choose to comply but are forced to wear a mask in order to keep their job, and ultimately their family fed, are compromised. They often feel shame and are subdued. People have stopped talking with each other while media controls the narrative.

The 'no voice' theme has often become literal with train passengers told not to speak to each other in case they pass on the 'virus', singing banned for the same reason and bonkers California officials telling people riding roller coasters that they cannot shout and scream. Cathy said she heard every day from healed MKUltra survivors who cannot wear a mask without flashing back on ways their breathing was controlled – ‘from ball gags and penises to water boarding’. She said that through the years when she saw images of people in China wearing masks ‘due to pollution’ that it was really to control their oxygen levels. ‘I knew it was as much of a population control mechanism of depersonalisation as are burkas’, she said. Masks are another Chinese communist/fascist method of control that has been swept across the West as the West becomes China at lightning speed since we entered 2020.

Mask-19

There are other reasons for mandatory masks and these include destroying respiratory health to call it ‘Covid-19’ and stunting brain development of children and the young. Dr Margarite Griesz-Brisson MD, PhD, is a Consultant Neurologist and Neurophysiologist and the Founder and Medical Director of the London Neurology and Pain Clinic. Her CV goes down the street and round the corner. She is clearly someone who cares about people and won’t parrot the propaganda. Griesz-Brisson has a PhD in pharmacology, with special interest in neurotoxicology, environmental medicine, neuroregeneration and neuroplasticity (the way the brain can change in the light of information received). She went public in October, 2020, with a passionate warning about the effects of mask-wearing laws:

The reinhalation of our exhaled air will without a doubt create oxygen deficiency and a flooding of carbon dioxide. We know that the human brain is very sensitive to oxygen deprivation. There are nerve cells for example in the hippocampus that can’t be longer than 3 minutes without oxygen – they cannot survive. The acute warning symptoms are headaches, drowsiness, dizziness, issues in concentration, slowing down of reaction time – reactions of the cognitive system.

Oh, I know, let’s tell bus, truck and taxi drivers to wear them and people working machinery. How about pilots, doctors and police? Griesz-Brisson makes the important point that while the symptoms she mentions may fade as the body readjusts this does not alter the fact that people continue to operate in oxygen deficit with long list of potential consequences. She said it was well known that neurodegenerative diseases take years or decades to develop. 'If today you forget your phone number, the breakdown in your brain would have already started 20 or 30 years ago.' She said degenerative processes in your brain are getting amplified as your oxygen deprivation continues through wearing a mask. Nerve cells in the brain are unable to divide themselves normally in these circumstances and lost nerve cells will no longer be regenerated. 'What is gone is gone.' Now consider that people like shop workers and schoolchildren are wearing masks for hours every day. What in the name of sanity is going to be happening to them? 'I do not wear a mask, I need my brain to think', Griesz-Brisson said, 'I want to have a clear head when I deal with my patients and not be in a carbon dioxide-induced anaesthesia'. If you are told to wear a mask anywhere ask the organisation, police, store, whatever, for their risk assessment on the dangers and negative effects on mind and body of enforcing mask-wearing. They won't have one because it has never been done not even by government. All of them must be subject to class-action lawsuits as the consequences come to light. They don't do mask risk assessments for an obvious reason. They know what the conclusions would be and independent scientific studies that have been done tell a horror story of consequences.

'Masks are criminal'

Dr Griesz-Brisson said that for children and adolescents, masks are an absolute no-no. They had an extremely active and adaptive immune system and their brain was incredibly active with so much to learn. 'The child's brain, or the youth's brain, is thirsting for oxygen.' The more metabolically active an organ was, the more oxygen it required; and in children and adolescents every organ was metabolically active. Griesz-Brisson said that to deprive a child's or adolescent's brain of oxygen, or to restrict it in any way, was not only dangerous to their health, it was absolutely criminal. 'Oxygen deficiency inhibits the development of the brain, and the damage that has taken place as a result CANNOT be reversed.' Mind manipulators of MKUltra put masks on two-year-olds they wanted to neurologically rewire and you can see why. Griesz-Brisson said a child needs the brain to learn and the brain needs oxygen to function. 'We don't need a clinical study for that. This is simple, indisputable physiology.' Consciously and purposely induced oxygen deficiency was an absolutely deliberate health hazard, and an absolute medical contraindication which means that 'this drug, this therapy, this method or measure should not be used, and is not allowed to be used'. To coerce an entire population to use an absolute medical contraindication by force, she said, there had to be definite and serious reasons and the reasons must be presented to competent interdisciplinary and independent bodies to be verified and authorised. She had this warning of the consequences that were coming if mask wearing continued:

When, in ten years, dementia is going to increase exponentially, and the younger generations couldn't reach their god-given potential, it won't help to say 'we didn't need the masks'. I know how damaging oxygen deprivation is for the brain, cardiologists know how damaging it is for the heart, pulmonologists know how damaging it is for the lungs. Oxygen deprivation damages every single organ. Where are our health departments, our health insurance, our medical associations? It would have been their duty to be vehemently against the lockdown and to stop it and stop it from the very beginning.

Why do the medical boards issue punishments to doctors who give people exemptions? Does the person or the doctor seriously have to prove that oxygen deprivation harms people? What kind of medicine are our doctors and medical associations representing? Who is responsible for this crime? The ones who want to enforce it? The ones who let it happen and play along, or the ones who don't prevent it?

All of the organisations and people she mentions there either answer directly to the Cult or do whatever hierarchical levels above them tell them to do. The outcome of both is the same. 'It's not about masks, it's not about viruses, it's certainly not about your health', Griesz-Brisson said. 'It is about much, much more. I am not participating. I am not afraid.' They were taking our air to breathe and there was no unfounded medical exemption from face masks. Oxygen deprivation was dangerous for every single brain. It had to be the free decision of every human being whether they want to wear a mask that was absolutely ineffective to protect themselves from a virus. She ended by rightly identifying where the responsibility lies for all this:

The imperative of the hour is personal responsibility. We are responsible for what we think, not the media. We are responsible for what we do, not our superiors. We are responsible for our health, not the World Health Organization. And we are responsible for what happens in our country, not the government.

Halle-bloody-lujah.

But surgeons wear masks, right?

Independent studies of mask-wearing have produced a long list of reports detailing mental, emotional and physical dangers. What a definition of insanity to see police officers imposing mask-wearing on the public which will cumulatively damage their health while the police themselves wear masks that will cumulatively damage their health. It's utter madness and both public and police do this because 'the government says so' – yes a government of brain-donor idiots like UK Health Secretary Matt Hancock reading the 'follow the science' scripts of psychopathic, lunatic psychologists. The response you get from Stockholm syndrome sufferers defending the very authorities that are destroying them and their families is that 'surgeons wear masks'. This is considered the game, set and match that they must work and don't cause oxygen deficit. Well, actually, scientific studies have shown that they do and oxygen levels are monitored in operating theatres to compensate. Surgeons wear masks to stop spittle and such like dropping into open wounds – not to stop 'viral particles' which are so miniscule they can only be seen through an electron microscope. Holes in the masks are significantly bigger than 'viral particles' and if you sneeze or cough they will breach the mask. I watched an incredibly disingenuous 'experiment' that claimed to prove that masks work in catching 'virus' material from the mouth and nose. They did this with a slow motion camera and the mask did block big stuff which stayed inside the mask and against the face to be breathed in or cause infections on the face as we have seen with many children. 'Viral particles', however, would never have been picked up by the camera as they came through the mask when they are far too small to be seen. The 'experiment' was therefore disingenuous and useless.

Studies have concluded that wearing masks in operating theatres (and thus elsewhere) make no difference to preventing infection while the opposite is true with toxic shite building up in the mask and this had led to an explosion in tooth decay and gum disease dubbed by dentists 'mask mouth'. You might have seen the Internet video of a furious American doctor urging people to take off their masks after a four-year-old patient had been rushed to hospital the night before and nearly died with a lung infection that doctors sourced to mask wearing. A study in the journal Cancer Discovery found that inhalation of harmful microbes can contribute to advanced stage lung cancer in adults and long-term use of masks can help breed dangerous pathogens. Microbiologists have said frequent mask wearing creates a moist environment in which microbes can grow and proliferate before entering the lungs. The Canadian Agency for Drugs and Technologies in Health, or CADTH, a Canadian national organisation that provides research and analysis to healthcare decision-makers, said this as long ago as 2013 in a report entitled 'Use of Surgical Masks in the Operating Room: A Review of the Clinical Effectiveness and Guidelines'. It said:

- No evidence was found to support the use of surgical face masks to reduce the frequency of surgical site infections
- No evidence was found on the effectiveness of wearing surgical face masks to protect staff from infectious material in the operating room.
- Guidelines recommend the use of surgical face masks by staff in the operating room to protect both operating room staff and patients (despite the lack of evidence).

We were told that the world could go back to 'normal' with the arrival of the 'vaccines'. When they came, fraudulent as they are, the story changed as I knew that it would. We are in the midst of transforming 'normal', not going back to it. Mary Ramsay, head of immunisation at Public Health England, echoed the words of US criminal Anthony Fauci who said masks and other regulations must stay no matter if people are vaccinated. The Fauci idiot continued to wear two masks – different colours so both could be clearly seen – after he claimed to have been vaccinated. Senator Rand Paul told Fauci in one exchange that his double-masks were 'theatre' and he was right. It's all theatre. Mary Ramsay back-tracked on the vaccine-return-to-normal theme when she said the public may need to wear masks and social-distance for years despite the jabs. 'People have got used to those lower-level restrictions now, and [they] can live with them', she said telling us what the idea has been all along. 'The vaccine does not give you a pass, even if you have had it, you must continue to follow all the guidelines' said a Public Health England statement which reneged on what we had been told before and made having the 'vaccine' irrelevant to 'normality' even by the official story. Spain's fascist government trumped everyone by passing a law mandating the wearing of masks on the beach and even when swimming in the sea. The move would have devastated what's left of the Spanish tourist industry, posed potential breathing dangers to swimmers and had Northern European sunbathers walking around with their forehead brown and the rest of their face white as a sheet. The ruling was so crazy that it had to be retracted after pressure from public and tourist industry, but it confirmed where the Cult wants to go with masks and how clinically insane authority has become. The determination to make masks permanent and hide the serious dangers to body and mind can be seen in the censorship of scientist Professor Denis Rancourt by Bill Gates-funded academic publishing website ResearchGate over his papers exposing the dangers and uselessness of masks. Rancourt said:

ResearchGate today has permanently locked my account, which I have had since 2015. Their reasons graphically show the nature of their attack against democracy, and their corruption of science ... By their obscene non-logic, a scientific review of science articles reporting on harms caused by face masks has a 'potential to cause harm'. No criticism of the psychological device (face masks) is tolerated, if the said criticism shows potential to influence public policy.

This is what happens in a fascist world.

Where are the 'greens' (again)?

Other dangers of wearing masks especially regularly relate to the inhalation of minute plastic fibres into the lungs and the deluge of discarded masks in the environment and oceans. Estimates predicted that more than 1.5 billion disposable masks will end up in the world's oceans every year polluting the water with tons of plastic and endangering marine wildlife. Studies project that humans are using 129 billion face masks each month worldwide – about three million a minute. Most are disposable and made from plastic, non-biodegradable microfibers that break down into smaller plastic particles that become widespread in ecosystems. They are littering cities, clogging sewage channels and turning up in bodies of water. I have written in other books about the immense amounts of microplastics from endless sources now being absorbed into the body. Rolf Halden, director of the Arizona State University (ASU) Biodesign Center for Environmental Health Engineering, was the senior researcher in a 2020 study that analysed 47 human tissue samples and found microplastics in all of them. 'We have detected these chemicals of plastics in every single organ that we have investigated', he said. I wrote in The Answer about the world being deluged with microplastics. A study by the Worldwide Fund for Nature (WWF) found that people are consuming on average every week some 2,000 tiny pieces of plastic mostly through water and also through marine life and the air. Every year humans are ingesting enough microplastics to fill a heaped dinner plate and in a life-time of 79 years it is enough to fill two large waste bins. Marco Lambertini, WWF International director general said: 'Not only are plastics polluting our oceans and waterways and killing marine life – it's in all of us and we can't escape consuming plastics,' American geologists found tiny plastic fibres, beads and shards in rainwater samples collected from the remote slopes of the Rocky Mountain National Park near Denver, Colorado. Their report was headed: 'It is raining plastic.' Rachel Adams, senior lecturer in Biomedical Science at Cardiff Metropolitan University, said that among health consequences are internal inflammation and immune responses to a 'foreign body'. She further pointed out that microplastics become carriers of toxins including mercury, pesticides and dioxins (a known cause of cancer and reproductive and developmental problems). These toxins accumulate in the fatty tissues once they enter the body through microplastics. Now this is being compounded massively by people putting plastic on their face and throwing it away.

Workers exposed to polypropylene plastic fibres known as 'flock' have developed 'flock worker's lung' from inhaling small pieces of the flock fibres which can damage lung tissue, reduce breathing capacity and exacerbate other respiratory problems. Now ... commonly used surgical masks have three layers of melt-blown textiles made of ... polypropylene. We have billions of people putting these microplastics against their mouth, nose and face for hours at a time day after day in the form of masks. How does anyone think that will work out? I mean – what could possibly go wrong? We posted a number of scientific studies on this at davidicke.com, but when I went back to them as I was writing this book the links to the science research website where they were hosted were dead. Anything that challenges the official narrative in any way is either censored or vilified. The official narrative is so unsupportable by the evidence that only deleting the truth can protect it. A study by Chinese scientists still survived – with the usual twist which it why it was still active, I guess. Yes, they found that virtually all the masks they tested increased the daily intake of microplastic fibres, but people should still wear them because the danger from the 'virus' was worse said the crazy 'team' from the Institute of Hydrobiology in Wuhan. Scientists first discovered microplastics in lung tissue of some patients who died of lung cancer in the 1990s. Subsequent studies have confirmed the potential health damage with the plastic degrading slowly and remaining in the lungs to accumulate in volume. Wuhan researchers used a machine simulating human breathing to establish that masks shed up to nearly 4,000 microplastic fibres in a month with reused masks producing more. Scientists said some masks are laced with toxic chemicals and a variety of compounds seriously restricted for both health and environmental reasons. They include cobalt (used in blue dye) and formaldehyde known to cause watery eyes, burning sensations in the eyes, nose, and throat, plus coughing, wheezing and nausea. No – that must be ‘Covid-19’.

Mask ‘worms’

There is another and potentially even more sinister content of masks. Mostly new masks of different makes filmed under a microscope around the world have been found to contain strange black fibres or ‘worms’ that appear to move or ‘crawl’ by themselves and react to heat and water. The nearest I have seen to them are the self-replicating fibres that are pulled out through the skin of those suffering from Morgellons disease which has been connected to the phenomena of ‘chemtrails’ which I will bring into the story later on. Morgellons fibres continue to grow outside the body and have a form of artificial intelligence. Black ‘worm’ fibres in masks have that kind of feel to them and there is a nanotechnology technique called ‘worm micelles’ which carry and release drugs or anything else you want to deliver to the body. For sure the suppression of humanity by mind altering drugs is the Cult agenda big time and the more excuses they can find to gain access to the body the more opportunities there are to make that happen whether through ‘vaccines’ or masks pushed against the mouth and nose for hours on end.

So let us summarise the pros and cons of masks:

Against masks: Breathing in your own carbon dioxide; depriving the body and brain of sufficient oxygen; build-up of toxins in the mask that can be breathed into the lungs and cause rashes on the face and 'mask-mouth'; breathing microplastic fibres and toxic chemicals into the lungs; dehumanisation and deleting individualisation by literally making people faceless; destroying human emotional interaction through facial expression and deleting parental connection with their babies which look for guidance to their facial expression.

For masks: They don't protect you from a 'virus' that doesn't exist and even if it did 'viral' particles are so minute they are smaller than the holes in the mask.

Governments, police, supermarkets, businesses, transport companies, and all the rest who seek to impose masks have done no risk assessment on their consequences for health and psychology and are now open to group lawsuits when the impact becomes clear with a cumulative epidemic of respiratory and other disease. Authorities will try to exploit these effects and hide the real cause by dubbing them 'Covid-19'. Can you imagine setting out to force the population to wear health-destroying masks without doing any assessment of the risks? It is criminal and it is evil, but then how many people targeted in this way, who see their children told to wear them all day at school, have asked for a risk assessment? Billions can't be imposed upon by the few unless the billions allow it. Oh, yes, with just a tinge of irony, 85 percent of all masks made worldwide come from China.

Wash your hands in toxic shite

'Covid' rules include the use of toxic sanitisers and again the health consequences of constantly applying toxins to be absorbed through the skin is obvious to any level of Renegade Mind. America's Food and Drug Administration (FDA) said that sanitisers are drugs and issued a warning about 75 dangerous brands which contain methanol used in antifreeze and can cause death, kidney damage and blindness. The FDA circulated the following warning even for those brands that it claims to be safe:

Store hand sanitizer out of the reach of pets and children, and children should use it only with adult supervision. Do not drink hand sanitizer. This is particularly important for young children, especially toddlers, who may be attracted by the pleasant smell or brightly colored bottles of hand sanitizer.

Drinking even a small amount of hand sanitizer can cause alcohol poisoning in children. (However, there is no need to be concerned if your children eat with or lick their hands after using hand sanitizer.) During this coronavirus pandemic, poison control centers have had an increase in calls about accidental ingestion of hand sanitizer, so it is important that adults monitor young children's use.

Do not allow pets to swallow hand sanitizer. If you think your pet has eaten something potentially dangerous, call your veterinarian or a pet poison control center right away. Hand sanitizer is flammable and should be stored away from heat and flames. When using hand sanitizer, rub your hands until they feel completely dry before performing activities that may involve heat, sparks, static electricity, or open flames.

There you go, perfectly safe, then, and that's without even a mention of the toxins absorbed through the skin. Come on kids – sanitise your hands everywhere you go. It will save you from the 'virus'. Put all these elements together of the 'Covid' normal and see how much health and psychology is being cumulatively damaged, even devastated, to 'protect your health'. Makes sense, right? They are only imposing these things because they care, right? Right?

Submitting to insanity

Psychological reframing of the population goes very deep and is done in many less obvious ways. I hear people say how contradictory and crazy 'Covid' rules are and how they are ever changing. This is explained away by dismissing those involved as idiots. It is a big mistake. The Cult is delighted if its cold calculation is perceived as incompetence and idiocy when it is anything but. Oh, yes, there are idiots within the system – lots of them – but they are administering the Cult agenda, mostly unknowingly. They are not deciding and dictating it. The bulwark against tyranny is self-respect, always has been, always will be. It is self-respect that has broken every tyranny in history. By its very nature self-respect will not bow to oppression and its perpetrators. There is so little self-respect that it's always the few that overturn dictators. Many may eventually follow, but the few with the iron spines (self-respect) kick it off and generate the momentum. The Cult targets self-respect in the knowledge that once this has gone only submission remains. Crazy, contradictory, ever-changing 'Covid' rules are systematically applied by psychologists to delete self-respect. They want you to see that the rules make no sense. It is one thing to decide to do something when you have made the choice based on evidence and logic. You still retain your self-respect. It is quite another when you can see what you are being told to do is insane, ridiculous and makes no sense, and yet you still do it. Your self-respect is extinguished and this has been happening as ever more obviously stupid and nonsensical things have been demanded and the great majority have complied even when they can see they are stupid and nonsensical.

People walk around in face-nappies knowing they are damaging their health and make no difference to a 'virus'. They do it in fear of not doing it. I know it's daft, but I'll do it anyway. When that happens something dies inside of you and submissive reframing has begun. Next there's a need to hide from yourself that you have conceded your self-respect and you convince yourself that you have not really submitted to fear and intimidation. You begin to believe that you are complying with craziness because it's the right thing to do. When first you concede your self-respect of $2+2 = 4$ to $2+2 = 5$ you know you are compromising your self-respect. Gradually to avoid facing that fact you begin to believe that $2+2=5$. You have been reframed and I have been watching this process happening in the human psyche on an industrial scale. The Cult is working to break your spirit and one of its major tools in that war is humiliation. I read how former American soldier Bradley Manning (later Chelsea Manning after a sex-change) was treated after being jailed for supplying WikiLeaks with documents exposing the enormity of government and elite mendacity. Manning was isolated in solitary confinement for eight months, put under 24-hour surveillance, forced to hand over clothing before going to bed, and stand naked for every roll call. This is systematic humiliation. The introduction of anal swab 'Covid' tests in China has been done for the same reason to delete self-respect and induce compliant submission. Anal swabs are mandatory for incoming passengers in parts of China and American diplomats have said they were forced to undergo the indignity which would have been calculated humiliation by the Cult-owned Chinese government that has America in its sights.

Government-people: An abusive relationship

Spirit-breaking psychological techniques include giving people hope and apparent respite from tyranny only to take it away again. This happened in the UK during Christmas, 2020, when the psychopsychologists and their political lackeys announced an easing of restrictions over the holiday only to reimpose them almost immediately on the basis of yet another lie. There is a big psychological difference between getting used to oppression and being given hope of relief only to have that dashed. Psychologists know this and we have seen the technique used repeatedly. Then there is traumatising people before you introduce more extreme regulations that require compliance. A perfect case was the announcement by the dark and sinister Whitty and Vallance in the UK that 'new data' predicted that 4,000 could die every day over the winter of 2020/2021 if we did not lockdown again. I think they call it lying and after traumatising people with that claim out came Jackboot Johnson the next day with new curbs on human freedom. Psychologists know that a frightened and traumatised mind becomes suggestable to submission and behaviour reframing. Underpinning all this has been to make people fearful and suspicious of each other and see themselves as a potential danger to others. In league with deleted self-respect you have the perfect psychological recipe for self-loathing. The relationship between authority and public is now demonstrably the same as that of subservience to an abusive partner. These are signs of an abusive relationship explained by psychologist Leslie Becker-Phelps:

Psychological and emotional abuse: Undermining a partner's self-worth with verbal attacks, name-calling, and belittling. Humiliating the partner in public, unjustly accusing them of having an affair, or interrogating them about their every behavior. Keeping partner confused or off balance by saying they were just kidding or blaming the partner for 'making' them act this way ... Feigning in public that they care while turning against them in private. This leads to victims frequently feeling confused, incompetent, unworthy, hopeless, and chronically self-doubting. [Apply these techniques to how governments have treated the population since New Year, 2020, and the parallels are obvious.]

Physical abuse: The abuser might physically harm their partner in a range of ways, such as grabbing, hitting, punching, or shoving them. They might throw objects at them or harm them with a weapon. [Observe the physical harm imposed by masks, lockdown, and so on.]

Threats and intimidation: One way abusers keep their partners in line is by instilling fear. They might be verbally threatening, or give threatening looks or gestures. Abusers often make it known that they are tracking their partner's every move. They might destroy their partner's possessions, threaten to harm them, or threaten to harm their family members. Not surprisingly, victims of this abuse often feel anxiety, fear, and panic. [No words necessary.]

Isolation: Abusers often limit their partner's activities, forbidding them to talk or interact with friends or family. They might limit access to a car or even turn off their phone. All of this might be done by physically holding them against their will, but is often accomplished through psychological abuse and intimidation. The more isolated a person feels, the fewer resources they have to help gain perspective on their situation and to escape from it. [No words necessary.]

Economic abuse: Abusers often make their partners beholden to them for money by controlling access to funds of any kind. They might prevent their partner from getting a job or withhold access to money they earn from a job. This creates financial dependency that makes leaving the relationship very difficult. [See destruction of livelihoods and the proposed meagre 'guaranteed income' so long as you do whatever you are told.]

Using children: An abuser might disparage their partner's parenting skills, tell their children lies about their partner, threaten to take custody of their children, or threaten to harm their children. These tactics instil fear and often elicit compliance. [See reframed social service mafia and how children are being mercilessly abused by the state over 'Covid' while their parents look on too frightened to do anything.]

A further recurring trait in an abusive relationship is the abused blaming themselves for their abuse and making excuses for the abuser. We have the public blaming each other for lockdown abuse by government and many making excuses for the government while attacking those who challenge the government. How often we have heard authorities say that rules are being imposed or reimposed only because people have refused to 'behave' and follow the rules. We don't want to do it – it's you.

Renegade Minds are an antidote to all of these things. They will never concede their self-respect no matter what the circumstances. Even when apparent humiliation is heaped upon them they laugh in its face and reflect back the humiliation on the abuser where it belongs. Renegade Minds will never wear masks they know are only imposed to humiliate, suppress and damage both physically and psychologically. Consequences will take care of themselves and they will never break their spirit or cause them to concede to tyranny. UK newspaper columnist Peter Hitchens was one of the few in the mainstream media to speak out against lockdowns and forced vaccinations. He then announced he had taken the jab. He wanted to see family members abroad and he believed vaccine passports were inevitable even though they had not yet been introduced. Hitchens has a questioning and critical mind, but not a Renegade one. If he had no amount of pressure would have made him concede. Hitchens excused his action by saying that the battle has been lost. Renegade Minds never accept defeat when freedom is at stake and even if they are the last one standing the self-respect of not submitting to tyranny is more important than any outcome or any consequence.

That's why Renegade Minds are the only minds that ever changed anything worth changing.

CHAPTER EIGHT

'Reframing' insanity

Insanity is relative. It depends on who has who locked in what cage
Ray Bradbury

Reframing' a mind means simply to change its perception and behaviour. This can be done subconsciously to such an extent that subjects have no idea they have been 'reframed' while to any observer changes in behaviour and attitudes are obvious.

Human society is being reframed on a ginormous scale since the start of 2020 and here we have the reason why psychologists rather than doctors have been calling the shots. Ask most people who have succumbed to 'Covid' reframing if they have changed and most will say 'no'; but they have and fundamentally. The Cult's long-game has been preparing for these times since way back and crucial to that has been to prepare both population and officialdom mentally and emotionally. To use the mind-control parlance they had to reframe the population with a mentality that would submit to fascism and reframe those in government and law enforcement to impose fascism or at least go along with it. The result has been the fact-deleted mindlessness of 'Wokeness' and officialdom that has either enthusiastically or unquestioningly imposed global tyranny demanded by reframed politicians on behalf of psychopathic and deeply evil cultists. 'Cognitive reframing' identifies and challenges the way someone sees the world in the form of situations, experiences and emotions and then restructures those perceptions to view the same set of circumstances in a different way. This can have benefits if the attitudes are personally destructive while on the other side it has the potential for individual and collective mind control which the subject has no idea has even happened.

Cognitive therapy was developed in the 1960s by Aaron T. Beck who was born in Rhode Island in 1921 as the son of Jewish immigrants from the Ukraine. He became interested in the techniques as a treatment for depression. Beck's daughter Judith S. Beck is prominent in the same field and they founded the Beck Institute for Cognitive Behavior Therapy in Philadelphia in 1994. Cognitive reframing, however, began to be used worldwide by those with a very dark agenda. The Cult reframes politicians to change their attitudes and actions until they are completely at odds with what they once appeared to stand for. The same has been happening to government administrators at all levels, law enforcement, military and the human population. Cultists love mind control for two main reasons: It allows them to control what people think, do and say to secure agenda advancement and, by definition, it calms their legendary insecurity and fear of the unexpected. I have studied mind control since the time I travelled America in 1996. I may have been talking to next to no one in terms of an audience in those years, but my goodness did I gather a phenomenal amount of information and knowledge about so many things including the techniques of mind control. I have described this in detail in other books going back to The Biggest Secret in 1998. I met a very large number of people recovering from MKUltra and its offshoots and successors and I began to see how these same techniques were being used on the population in general. This was never more obvious than since the 'Covid' hoax began.

Reframing the enforcers

I have observed over the last two decades and more the very clear transformation in the dynamic between the police, officialdom and the public. I tracked this in the books as the relationship mutated from one of serving the public to seeing them as almost the enemy and certainly a lower caste. There has always been a class divide based on income and always been some psychopathic, corrupt, and big-I-am police officers. This was different. Wholesale change was unfolding in the collective dynamic; it was less about money and far more about position and perceived power. An us-and-them was emerging. Noses were lifted skyward by government administration and law enforcement and their attitude to the public they were supposed to be serving changed to one of increasing contempt, superiority and control. The transformation was so clear and widespread that it had to be planned. Collective attitudes and dynamics do not change naturally and organically that quickly on that scale. I then came across an organisation in Britain called Common Purpose created in the late 1980s by Julia Middleton who would work in the office of Deputy Prime Minister John Prescott during the long and disastrous premiership of war criminal Tony Blair. When Blair speaks the Cult is speaking and the man should have been in jail a long time ago. Common Purpose proclaims itself to be one of the biggest 'leadership development' organisations in the world while functioning as a charity with all the financial benefits which come from that. It hosts 'leadership development' courses and programmes all over the world and claims to have 'brought together' what it calls 'leaders' from more than 100 countries on six continents. The modus operandi of Common Purpose can be compared with the work of the UK government's reframing network that includes the Behavioural Insights Team 'nudge unit' and 'Covid' reframing specialists at SPI-B. WikiLeaks described Common Purpose long ago as 'a hidden virus in our government and schools' which is unknown to the general public: 'It recruits and trains "leaders" to be loyal to the directives of Common Purpose and the EU, instead of to their own departments, which they then undermine or subvert, the NHS [National Health Service] being an example.' This is a vital point to understand the 'Covid' hoax. The NHS, and its equivalent around the world, has been utterly reframed in terms of administrators and much of the medical personnel with the transformation underpinned by recruitment policies. The outcome has been the criminal and psychopathic behaviour of the NHS over 'Covid' and we have seen the same in every other major country. WikiLeaks said Common Purpose trainees are 'learning to rule without regard to democracy' and to usher in a police state (current events explained). Common Purpose operated like a 'glue' and had members in the NHS, BBC, police, legal profession, church, many of Britain's 7,000 quangos, local councils, the Civil Service, government ministries and Parliament, and controlled many RDA's (Regional Development Agencies). Here we have one answer for how and why British institutions and their like in other countries have changed so negatively in relation to the public. This further explains how and why the beyond-disgraceful reframed BBC has become a propaganda arm of 'Covid' fascism. They are all part of a network pursuing the same goal.

By 2019 Common Purpose was quoting a figure of 85,000 'leaders' that had attended its programmes. These 'students' of all ages are known as Common Purpose 'graduates' and they consist of government, state and local government officials and administrators, police chiefs and officers, and a whole range of others operating within the national, local and global establishment. Cressida Dick, Commissioner of the London Metropolitan Police, is the Common Purpose graduate who was the 'Gold Commander' that oversaw what can only be described as the murder of Brazilian electrician Jean Charles de Menezes in 2005. He was held down by psychopathic police and shot seven times in the head by a psychopathic lunatic after being mistaken for a terrorist when he was just a bloke going about his day. Dick authorised officers to pursue and keep surveillance on de Menezes and ordered that he be stopped from entering the underground train system. Police psychopaths took her at her word clearly. She was 'disciplined' for this outrage by being promoted – eventually to the top of the 'Met' police where she has been a disaster. Many Chief Constables controlling the police in different parts of the UK are and have been Common Purpose graduates. I have heard the 'graduate' network described as a sort of Mafia or secret society operating within the fabric of government at all levels pursuing a collective policy ingrained at Common Purpose training events. Founder Julia Middleton herself has said:

Locally and internationally, Common Purpose graduates will be 'lighting small fires' to create change in their organisations and communities ... The Common Purpose effect is best illustrated by the many stories of small changes brought about by leaders, who themselves have changed.

A Common Purpose mission statement declared:

Common Purpose aims to improve the way society works by expanding the vision, decision-making ability and influence of all kinds of leaders. The organisation runs a variety of educational programmes for leaders of all ages, backgrounds and sectors, in order to provide them with the inspirational, information and opportunities they need to change the world.

Yes, but into what? Since 2020 the answer has become clear.

NLP and the Delphi technique

Common Purpose would seem to be a perfect name or would common programming be better? One of the foundation methods of reaching 'consensus' (group think) is by setting the agenda theme and then encouraging, cajoling or pressuring everyone to agree a 'consensus' in line with the core theme promoted by Common Purpose. The methodology involves the 'Delphi technique', or an adaptation of it, in which opinions are expressed that are summarised by a 'facilitator or change agent' at each stage. Participants are 'encouraged' to modify their views in the light of what others have said. Stage by stage the former individual opinions are merged into group consensus which just happens to be what Common Purpose wants them to believe. A key part of this is to marginalise anyone refusing to concede to group think and turn the group against them to apply pressure to conform. We are seeing this very technique used on the general population to make 'Covid' group-thinkers hostile to those who have seen through the bullshit. People can be reframed by using perception manipulation methods such as Neuro-Linguistic Programming (NLP) in which you change perception with the use of carefully constructed language. An NLP website described the technique this way:

... A method of influencing brain behaviour (the 'neuro' part of the phrase) through the use of language (the 'linguistic' part) and other types of communication to enable a person to 'recode' the way the brain responds to stimuli (that's the 'programming') and manifest new and better behaviours. Neuro-Linguistic Programming often incorporates hypnosis and self-hypnosis to help achieve the change (or 'programming') that is wanted.

British alternative media operation UKColumn has done very detailed research into Common Purpose over a long period. I quoted co-founder and former naval officer Brian Gerrish in my book Remember Who You Are, published in 2011, as saying the following years before current times:

It is interesting that many of the mothers who have had children taken by the State speak of the Social Services people being icily cool, emotionless and, as two ladies said in slightly different words, '... like little robots'. We know that NLP is cumulative, so people can be given small imperceptible doses of NLP in a course here, another in a few months, next year etc. In this way, major changes are accrued in their personality, but the day by day change is almost unnoticeable.

In these and other ways 'graduates' have had their perceptions uniformly reframed and they return to their roles in the institutions of government, law enforcement, legal profession, military, 'education', the UK National Health Service and the whole swathe of the establishment structure to pursue a common agenda preparing for the 'post-industrial', 'post-democratic' society. I say 'preparing' but we are now there. 'Post-industrial' is code for the Great Reset and 'post-democratic' is 'Covid' fascism. UKColumn has spoken to partners of those who have attended Common Purpose 'training'. They have described how personalities and attitudes of 'graduates' changed very noticeably for the worse by the time they had completed the course. They had been 'reframed' and told they are the 'leaders' – the special ones – who know better than the population. There has also been the very demonstrable recruitment of psychopaths and narcissists into government administration at all levels and law enforcement. If you want psychopathy hire psychopaths and you get a simple cause and effect. If you want administrators, police officers and 'leaders' to perceive the public as lesser beings who don't matter then employ narcissists. These personalities are identified using 'psychometrics' that identifies knowledge, abilities, attitudes and personality traits, mostly through carefully-designed questionnaires and tests. As this policy has passed through the decades we have had power-crazy, power-trippers appointed into law enforcement, security and government administration in preparation for current times and the dynamic between public and law enforcement/officialdom has been transformed. UKColumn's Brian Gerrish said of the narcissistic personality:

Their love of themselves and power automatically means that they will crush others who get in their way. I received a major piece of the puzzle when a friend pointed out that when they made public officials re-apply for their own jobs several years ago they were also required to do psychometric tests. This was undoubtedly the start of the screening process to get 'their' sort of people in post.

How obvious that has been since 2020 although it was clear what was happening long before if people paid attention to the changing public-establishment dynamic.

Change agents

At the centre of events in 'Covid' Britain is the National Health Service (NHS) which has behaved disgracefully in slavishly following the Cult agenda. The NHS management structure is awash with Common Purpose graduates or 'change agents' working to a common cause. Helen Bevan, a Chief of Service Transformation at the NHS Institute for Innovation and Improvement, co-authored a document called 'Towards a million change agents, a review of the social movements literature: implications for large scale change in the NHS'. The document compared a project management approach to that of change and social movements where 'people change themselves and each other – peer to peer’. Two definitions given for a ‘social movement’ were:

A group of people who consciously attempt to build a radically new social order; involves people of a broad range of social backgrounds; and deploys politically confrontational and socially disruptive tactics – Cyrus Zirakzadeh 1997

Collective challenges, based on common purposes and social solidarities, in sustained interaction with elites, opponents, and authorities – Sidney Tarrow 1994

Helen Bevan wrote another NHS document in which she defined ‘framing’ as ‘the process by which leaders construct, articulate and put across their message in a powerful and compelling way in order to win people to their cause and call them to action’. I think I could come up with another definition that would be rather more accurate. The National Health Service and institutions of Britain and the wider world have been taken over by reframed ‘change agents’ and that includes everything from the United Nations to national governments, local councils and social services which have been kidnapping children from loving parents on an extraordinary and gathering scale on the road to the end of parenthood altogether. Children from loving homes are stolen and kidnapped by the state and put into the ‘care’ (inversion) of the local authority through council homes, foster parents and forced adoption. At the same time children are allowed to be abused without response while many are under council ‘care’. UKColumn highlighted the Common Purpose connection between South Yorkshire Police and Rotherham council officers in the case of the scandal in that area of the sexual exploitation of children to which the authorities turned not one blind eye, but both:

We were alarmed to discover that the Chief Executive, the Strategic Director of Children and Young People's Services, the Manager for the Local Strategic Partnership, the Community Cohesion Manager, the Cabinet Member for Cohesion, the Chief Constable and his predecessor had all attended Leadership training courses provided by the pseudo-charity Common Purpose.

Once 'change agents' have secured positions of hire and fire within any organisation things start to move very quickly. Personnel are then hired and fired on the basis of whether they will work towards the agenda the change agent represents. If they do they are rapidly promoted even though they may be incompetent. Those more qualified and skilled who are pre-Common Purpose 'old school' see their careers stall and even disappear. This has been happening for decades in every institution of state, police, 'health' and social services and all of them have been transformed as a result in their attitudes to their jobs and the public. Medical professions, including nursing, which were once vocations for the caring now employ many cold, callous and couldn't give a shit personality types. The UKColumn investigation concluded:

By blurring the boundaries between people, professions, public and private sectors, responsibility and accountability, Common Purpose encourages 'graduates' to believe that as new selected leaders, they can work together, outside of the established political and social structures, to achieve a paradigm shift or CHANGE – so called 'Leading Beyond Authority'. In doing so, the allegiance of the individual becomes 'reframed' on CP colleagues and their NETWORK.

Reframing the Face-Nappies

Nowhere has this process been more obvious than in the police where recruitment of psychopaths and development of unquestioning mind-controlled group-thinkers have transformed law enforcement into a politically-correct 'Woke' joke and a travesty of what should be public service. Today they wear their face-nappies like good little gofers and enforce 'Covid' rules which are fascism under another name. Alongside the specifically-recruited psychopaths we have software minds incapable of free thought. Brian Gerrish again:

An example is the policeman who would not get on a bike for a press photo because he had not done the cycling proficiency course. Normal people say this is political correctness gone mad. Nothing could be further from the truth. The policeman has been reframed, and in his reality it is perfect common sense not to get on the bike 'because he hasn't done the cycling course'.

Another example of this is where the police would not rescue a boy from a pond until they had taken advice from above on the 'risk assessment'. A normal person would have arrived, perhaps thought of the risk for a moment, and dived in. To the police now 'reframed', they followed 'normal' procedure.

There are shocking cases of reframed ambulance crews doing the same. Sheer unthinking stupidity of London Face-Nappies headed by Common Purpose graduate Cressida Dick can be seen in their behaviour at a vigil in March, 2021, for a murdered woman, Sarah Everard. A police officer had been charged with the crime. Anyone with a brain would have left the vigil alone in the circumstances. Instead they 'manhandled' women to stop them breaking 'Covid rules' to betray classic reframing. Minds in the thrall of perception control have no capacity for seeing a situation on its merits and acting accordingly. 'Rules is rules' is their only mind-set. My father used to say that rules and regulations are for the guidance of the intelligent and the blind obedience of the idiot. Most of the intelligent, decent, coppers have gone leaving only the other kind and a few old school for whom the job must be a daily nightmare. The combination of psychopaths and rule-book software minds has been clearly on public display in the 'Covid' era with automaton robots in uniform imposing fascistic 'Covid' regulations on the population without any personal initiative or judging situations on their merits. There are thousands of examples around the world, but I'll make my point with the infamous Derbyshire police in the English East Midlands – the ones who think pouring dye into beauty spots and using drones to track people walking in the countryside away from anyone is called 'policing'. To them there are rules decreed by the government which they have to enforce and in their bewildered state a group gathering in a closed space and someone walking alone in the countryside are the same thing. It is beyond idiocy and enters the realm of clinical insanity.

Police officers in Derbyshire said they were 'horrified' – horrified – to find 15 to 20 'irresponsible' kids playing a football match at a closed leisure centre 'in breach of coronavirus restrictions'. When they saw the police the kids ran away leaving their belongings behind and the reframed men and women of Derbyshire police were seeking to establish their identities with a view to fining their parents. The most natural thing for youngsters to do – kicking a ball about – is turned into a criminal activity and enforced by the moronic software programs of Derbyshire police. You find the same mentality in every country. These barely conscious 'horrified' officers said they had to take action because 'we need to ensure these rules are being followed' and 'it is of the utmost importance that you ensure your children are following the rules and regulations for Covid-19'. Had any of them done ten seconds of research to see if this parroting of their masters' script could be supported by any evidence? Nope. Reframed people don't think – others think for them and that's the whole idea of reframing. I have seen police officers one after the other repeating without question word for word what officialdom tells them just as I have seen great swathes of the public doing the same. Ask either for 'their' opinion and out spews what they have been told to think by the official narrative. Police and public may seem to be in different groups, but their mentality is the same. Most people do whatever they are told in fear not doing so or because they believe what officialdom tells them; almost the entirety of the police do what they are told for the same reason. Ultimately it's the tiny inner core of the global Cult that's telling both what to do.

So Derbyshire police were 'horrified'. Oh, really? Why did they think those kids were playing football? It was to relieve the psychological consequences of lockdown and being denied human contact with their friends and interaction, touch and discourse vital to human psychological health. Being denied this month after month has dismantled the psyche of many children and young people as depression and suicide have exploded. Were Derbyshire police horrified by that? Are you kidding? Reframed people don't have those mental and emotional processes that can see how the impact on the psychological health of youngsters is far more dangerous than any 'virus' even if you take the mendacious official figures to be true. The reframed are told (programmed) how to act and so they do. The Derbyshire Chief Constable in the first period of lockdown when the black dye and drones nonsense was going on was Peter Goodman. He was the man who severed the connection between his force and the Derbyshire Constabulary Male Voice Choir when he decided that it was not inclusive enough to allow women to join. The fact it was a male voice choir making a particular sound produced by male voices seemed to elude a guy who terrifyingly ran policing in Derbyshire. He retired weeks after his force was condemned as disgraceful by former Supreme Court Justice Jonathan Sumption for their behaviour over extreme lockdown impositions. Goodman was replaced by his deputy Rachel Swann who was in charge when her officers were 'horrified'. The police statement over the boys committing the hanging-offence of playing football included the line about the youngsters being 'irresponsible in the times we are all living through' missing the point that the real relevance of the 'times we are all living through' is the imposition of fascism enforced by psychopaths and reframed minds of police officers playing such a vital part in establishing the fascist tyranny that their own children and grandchildren will have to live in their entire lives. As a definition of insanity that is hard to beat although it might be run close by imposing masks on people that can have a serious effect on their health while wearing a face nappy all day themselves. Once again public and police do it for the same reason – the authorities tell them to and who are they to have the self-respect to say no?

Workers in uniform

How reframed do you have to be to arrest a six-year-old and take him to court for picking a flower while waiting for a bus? Brain dead police and officialdom did just that in North Carolina where criminal proceedings happen regularly for children under nine. Attorney Julie Boyer gave the six-year-old crayons and a colouring book during the 'flower' hearing while the 'adults' decided his fate. County Chief District Court Judge Jay Corpening asked: 'Should a child that believes in Santa Claus, the Easter Bunny and the tooth fairy be making life-altering decisions?' Well, of course not, but common sense has no meaning when you have a common purpose and a reframed mind. Treating children in this way, and police operating in American schools, is all part of the psychological preparation for children to accept a police state as normal all their adult lives. The same goes for all the cameras and biometric tracking technology in schools. Police training is focused on reframing them as snowflake Wokers and this is happening in the military. Pentagon top brass said that 'training sessions on extremism' were needed for troops who asked why they were so focused on the Capitol Building riot when Black Lives Matter riots were ignored. What's the difference between them some apparently and rightly asked. Actually, there is a difference. Five people died in the Capitol riot, only one through violence, and that was a police officer shooting an unarmed protestor. BLM riots killed at least 25 people and cost billions. Asking the question prompted the psychopaths and reframed minds that run the Pentagon to say that more 'education' (programming) was needed. Troop training is all based on psychological programming to make them fodder for the Cult – 'Military men are just dumb, stupid animals to be used as pawns in foreign policy' as Cult-to-his-DNA former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger famously said. Governments see the police in similar terms and it's time for those among them who can see this to defend the people and stop being enforcers of the Cult agenda upon the people.

The US military, like the country itself, is being targeted for destruction through a long list of Woke impositions. Cult-owned gaga 'President' Biden signed an executive order when he took office to allow taxpayer money to pay for transgender surgery for active military personnel and veterans. Are you a man soldier? No, I'm a LGBTQIA+ with a hint of Skoliosexual and Spectrasexual. Oh, good man. Bad choice of words you bigot. The Pentagon announced in March, 2021, the appointment of the first 'diversity and inclusion officer' for US Special Forces. Richard Torres-Estrada arrived with the publication of a 'D&I Strategic Plan which will guide the enterprise-wide effort to institutionalize and sustain D&I'. If you think a Special Forces 'Strategic Plan' should have something to do with defending America you haven't been paying attention. Defending Woke is now the military's new role. Torres-Estrada has posted images comparing Donald Trump with Adolf Hitler and we can expect no bias from him as a representative of the supposedly non-political Pentagon. Cable news host Tucker Carlson said: 'The Pentagon is now the Yale faculty lounge but with cruise missiles.' Meanwhile Secretary of Defense Lloyd Austin, a board member of weapons-maker Raytheon with stock and compensation interests in October, 2020, worth $1.4 million, said he was purging the military of the 'enemy within' – anyone who isn't Woke and supports Donald Trump. Austin refers to his targets as 'racist extremists' while in true Woke fashion being himself a racist extremist. Pentagon documents pledge to 'eradicate, eliminate and conquer all forms of racism, sexism and homophobia'. The definitions of these are decided by 'diversity and inclusion committees' peopled by those who see racism, sexism and homophobia in every situation and opinion. Woke (the Cult) is dismantling the US military and purging testosterone as China expands its military and gives its troops 'masculinity training'. How do we think that is going to end when this is all Cult coordinated? The US military, like the British military, is controlled by Woke and spineless top brass who just go along with it out of personal career interests.

'Woke' means fast asleep

Mind control and perception manipulation techniques used on individuals to create group-think have been unleashed on the global population in general. As a result many have no capacity to see the obvious fascist agenda being installed all around them or what 'Covid' is really all about. Their brains are firewalled like a computer system not to process certain concepts, thoughts and realisations that are bad for the Cult. The young are most targeted as the adults they will be when the whole fascist global state is planned to be fully implemented. They need to be prepared for total compliance to eliminate all pushback from entire generations. The Cult has been pouring billions into taking complete control of 'education' from schools to universities via its operatives and corporations and not least Bill Gates as always. The plan has been to transform 'education' institutions into programming centres for the mentality of 'Woke'. James McConnell, professor of psychology at the University of Michigan, wrote in Psychology Today in 1970:

The day has come when we can combine sensory deprivation with drugs, hypnosis, and astute manipulation of reward and punishment, to gain almost absolute control over an individual's behaviour. It should then be possible to achieve a very rapid and highly effective type of brainwashing that would allow us to make dramatic changes in a person's behaviour and personality ...

... We should reshape society so that we all would be trained from birth to want to do what society wants us to do. We have the techniques to do it... no-one owns his own personality you acquired, and there's no reason to believe you should have the right to refuse to acquire a new personality if your old one is anti-social.

This was the potential for mass brainwashing in 1970 and the mentality there displayed captures the arrogant psychopathy that drives it forward. I emphasise that not all young people have succumbed to Woke programming and those that haven't are incredibly impressive people given that today's young are the most perceptually-targeted generations in history with all the technology now involved. Vast swathes of the young generations, however, have fallen into the spell – and that's what it is – of Woke. The Woke mentality and perceptual program is founded on inversion and you will appreciate later why that is so significant. Everything with Woke is inverted and the opposite of what it is claimed to be. Woke was a term used in African-American culture from the 1900s and referred to an awareness of social and racial justice. This is not the meaning of the modern version or 'New Woke' as I call it in The Answer. Oh, no, Woke today means something very different no matter how much Wokers may seek to hide that and insist Old Woke and New

Woke are the same. See if you find any 'awareness of social justice' here in the modern variety:

- Woke demands 'inclusivity' while excluding anyone with a different opinion and calls for mass censorship to silence other views.
- Woke claims to stand against oppression when imposing oppression is the foundation of all that it does. It is the driver of political correctness which is nothing more than a Cult invention to manipulate the population to silence itself.
- Woke believes itself to be 'liberal' while pursuing a global society that can only be described as fascist (see 'anti-fascist' fascist Antifa).
- Woke calls for 'social justice' while spreading injustice wherever it goes against the common 'enemy' which can be easily identified as a differing view.
- Woke is supposed to be a metaphor for 'awake' when it is solid-gold asleep and deep in a Cult-induced coma that meets the criteria for 'off with the fairies'.

I state these points as obvious facts if people only care to look. I don't do this with a sense of condemnation. We need to appreciate that the onslaught of perceptual programming on the young has been incessant and merciless. I can understand why so many have been reframed, or, given their youth, framed from the start to see the world as the Cult demands. The Cult has had access to their minds day after day in its 'education' system for their entire formative years. Perception is formed from information received and the Cult-created system is a life-long download of information delivered to elicit a particular perception, thus behaviour. The more this has expanded into still new extremes in recent decades and ever-increasing censorship has deleted other opinions and information why wouldn't that lead to a perceptual reframing on a mass scale? I have described already cradle-to-grave programming and in more recent times the targeting of young minds from birth to adulthood has entered the stratosphere. This has taken the form of skewing what is 'taught' to fit the Cult agenda and the omnipresent techniques of group-think to isolate non-believers and pressure them into line. There has always been a tendency to follow the herd, but we really are in a new world now in relation to that. We have parents who can see the 'Covid' hoax told by their children not to stop them wearing masks at school, being 'Covid' tested or having the 'vaccine' in fear of the peer-pressure consequences of being different. What is 'peer-pressure' if not pressure to conform to group-think? Renegade Minds never group-think and always retain a set of perceptions that are unique to them. Group-think is always underpinned by consequences for not group-thinking. Abuse now aimed at those refusing DNA-manipulating 'Covid vaccines' are a potent example of this. The biggest pressure to conform comes from the very group which is itself being manipulated. 'I am programmed to be part of a hive mind and so you must be.'

Woke control structures in 'education' now apply to every mainstream organisation. Those at the top of the 'education' hierarchy (the Cult) decide the policy. This is imposed on governments through the Cult network; governments impose it on schools, colleges and universities; their leadership impose the policy on teachers and academics and they impose it on children and students. At any level where there is resistance, perhaps from a teacher or university lecturer, they are targeted by the authorities and often fired. Students themselves regularly demand the dismissal of academics (increasingly few) at odds with the narrative that the students have been programmed to believe in. It is quite a thought that students who are being targeted by the Cult become so consumed by programmed group-think that they launch protests and demand the removal of those who are trying to push back against those targeting the students. Such is the scale of perceptual inversion. We see this with 'Covid' programming as the Cult imposes the rules via psycho-psychologists and governments on shops, transport companies and businesses which impose them on their staff who impose them on their customers who pressure Pushbackers to conform to the will of the Cult which is in the process of destroying them and their families. Scan all aspects of society and you will see the same sequence every time.

Fact free Woke and hijacking the 'left'

There is no more potent example of this than 'Woke', a mentality only made possible by the deletion of factual evidence by an 'education' system seeking to produce an ever more uniform society. Why would you bother with facts when you don't know any? Deletion of credible history both in volume and type is highly relevant. Orwell said: 'Who controls the past controls the future: who controls the present controls the past.' They who control the perception of the past control the perception of the future and they who control the present control the perception of the past through the writing and deleting of history. Why would you oppose the imposition of Marxism in the name of Wokeism when you don't know that Marxism cost at least 100 million lives in the 20th century alone? Watch videos and read reports in which Woker generations are asked basic historical questions – it's mind-blowing. A survey of 2,000 people found that six percent of millennials (born approximately early 1980s to early 2000s) believed the Second World War (1939-1945) broke out with the assassination of President Kennedy (in 1963) and one in ten thought Margaret Thatcher was British Prime Minister at the time. She was in office between 1979 and 1990. We are in a post-fact society. Provable facts are no defence against the fascism of political correctness or Silicon Valley censorship. Facts don't matter anymore as we have witnessed with the 'Covid' hoax. Sacrificing uniqueness to the Woke group-think religion is all you are required to do and that means thinking for yourself is the biggest Woke no, no. All religions are an expression of group-think and censorship and Woke is just another religion with an orthodoxy defended by group-think and censorship. Burned at the stake becomes burned on Twitter which leads back eventually to burned at the stake as Woke humanity regresses to ages past.

The biggest Woke inversion of all is its creators and funders. I grew up in a traditional left of centre political household on a council estate in Leicester in the 1950s and 60s – you know, the left that challenged the power of wealth-hoarding elites and threats to freedom of speech and opinion. In those days students went on marches defending freedom of speech while today's Wokers march for its deletion. What on earth could have happened? Those very elites (collectively the Cult) that we opposed in my youth and early life have funded into existence the antithesis of that former left and hijacked the 'brand' while inverting everything it ever stood for. We have a mentality that calls itself 'liberal' and 'progressive' while acting like fascists. Cult billionaires and their corporations have funded themselves into control of 'education' to ensure that Woke programming is unceasing throughout the formative years of children and young people and that non-Wokers are isolated (that word again) whether they be students, teachers or college professors. The Cult has funded into existence the now colossal global network of Woke organisations that have spawned and promoted all the 'causes' on the Cult wish-list for global transformation and turned Wokers into demanders of them. Does anyone really think it's a coincidence that the Cult agenda for humanity is a carbon (sorry) copy of the societal transformations desired by Woke?? These are only some of them:

Political correctness: The means by which the Cult deletes all public debates that it knows it cannot win if we had the free-flow of information and evidence.

Human-caused 'climate change': The means by which the Cult seeks to transform society into a globally-controlled dictatorship imposing its will over the fine detail of everyone's lives 'to save the planet' which doesn't actually need saving.

Transgender obsession: Preparing collective perception to accept the 'new human' which would not have genders because it would be created technologically and not through procreation. I'll have much more on this in Human 2.0.

Race obsession: The means by which the Cult seeks to divide and rule the population by triggering racial division through the perception that society is more racist than ever when the opposite is the case. Is it perfect in that regard? No. But to compare today with the racism of apartheid and segregation brought to an end by the civil rights movement in the 1960s is to insult the memory of that movement and inspirations like Martin Luther King. Why is the 'anti-racism' industry (which it is) so dominated by privileged white people?

White supremacy: This is a label used by privileged white people to demonise poor and deprived white people pushing back on tyranny to marginalise and destroy them. White people are being especially targeted as the dominant race by number within Western society which the Cult seeks to transform in its image. If you want to change a society you must weaken and undermine its biggest group and once you have done that by using the other groups you next turn on them to do the same ... 'Then they came for the Jews and I was not a Jew so I did nothing.'

Mass migration: The mass movement of people from the Middle East, Africa and Asia into Europe, from the south into the United States and from Asia into Australia are another way the Cult seeks to dilute the racial, cultural and political influence of white people on Western society. White people ask why their governments appear to be working against them while being politically and culturally biased towards incoming cultures. Well, here's your answer. In the same way sexually 'straight' people, men and women, ask why the authorities are biased against them in favour of other sexualities. The answer is the same – that's the way the Cult wants it to be for very sinister motives.

These are all central parts of the Cult agenda and central parts of the Woke agenda and Woke was created and continues to be funded to an immense degree by Cult billionaires and corporations. If anyone begins to say 'coincidence' the syllables should stick in their throat.

Billionaire 'social justice warriors'

Joe Biden is a 100 percent-owned asset of the Cult and the Wokers' man in the White House whenever he can remember his name and for however long he lasts with his rapidly diminishing cognitive function. Even walking up the steps of an aircraft without falling on his arse would appear to be a challenge. He's not an empty-shell puppet or anything. From the minute Biden took office (or the Cult did) he began his executive orders promoting the Woke wish-list. You will see the Woke agenda imposed ever more severely because it's really the Cult agenda. Woke organisations and activist networks spawned by the Cult are funded to the extreme so long as they promote what the Cult wants to happen. Woke is funded to promote 'social justice' by billionaires who become billionaires by destroying social justice. The social justice mantra is only a cover for dismantling social justice and funded by billionaires that couldn't give a damn about social justice. Everything makes sense when you see that. One of Woke's premier funders is Cult billionaire financier George Soros who said: 'I am basically there to make money, I cannot and do not look at the social consequences of what I do.' This is the same Soros who has given more than $32 billion to his Open Society Foundations global Woke network and funded Black Lives Matter, mass immigration into Europe and the United States, transgender activism, climate change activism, political correctness and groups targeting 'white supremacy' in the form of privileged white thugs that dominate Antifa. What a scam it all is and when you are dealing with the unquestioning fact-free zone of Woke scamming them is child's play. All you need to pull it off in all these organisations are a few in-the-know agents of the Cult and an army of naïve, reframed, uninformed, narcissistic, know-nothings convinced of their own self-righteousness, self-purity and virtue.

Soros and fellow billionaires and billionaire corporations have poured hundreds of millions into Black Lives Matter and connected groups and promoted them to a global audience. None of this is motivated by caring about black people. These are the billionaires that have controlled and exploited a system that leaves millions of black people in abject poverty and deprivation which they do absolutely nothing to address. The same Cult networks funding BLM were behind the slave trade! Black Lives Matter hijacked a phrase that few would challenge and they have turned this laudable concept into a political weapon to divide society. You know that BLM is a fraud when it claims that All Lives Matter, the most inclusive statement of all, is 'racist'. BLM and its Cult masters don't want to end racism. To them it's a means to an end to control all of humanity never mind the colour, creed, culture or background. What has destroying the nuclear family got to do with ending racism? Nothing – but that is one of the goals of BLM and also happens to be a goal of the Cult as I have been exposing in my books for decades. Stealing children from loving parents and giving schools ever more power to override parents is part of that same agenda. BLM is a Marxist organisation and why would that not be the case when the Cult created Marxism and BLM? Patrisse Cullors, a BLM co-founder, said in a 2015 video that she and her fellow organisers, including co-founder Alicia Garza, are 'trained Marxists'. The lady known after marriage as Patrisse Khan-Cullors bought a $1.4 million home in 2021 in one of the whitest areas of California with a black population of just 1.6 per cent and has so far bought four high-end homes for a total of $3.2 million. How very Marxist. There must be a bit of spare in the BLM coffers, however, when Cult corporations and billionaires have handed over the best part of $100 million. Many black people can see that Black Lives Matter is not working for them, but against them, and this is still more confirmation. Black journalist Jason Whitlock, who had his account suspended by Twitter for simply linking to the story about the 'Marxist's' home buying spree, said that BLM leaders are 'making millions of dollars off the backs of these dead black men who they wouldn't spit on if they were on fire and alive'.

Black Lies Matter

Cult assets and agencies came together to promote BLM in the wake of the death of career criminal George Floyd who had been jailed a number of times including for forcing his way into the home of a black woman with others in a raid in which a gun was pointed at her stomach. Floyd was filmed being held in a Minneapolis street in 2020 with the knee of a police officer on his neck and he subsequently died. It was an appalling thing for the officer to do, but the same technique has been used by police on peaceful protestors of lockdown without any outcry from the Woke brigade. As unquestioning supporters of the Cult agenda Wokers have supported lockdown and all the 'Covid' claptrap while attacking anyone standing up to the tyranny imposed in its name. Court documents would later include details of an autopsy on Floyd by County Medical Examiner Dr Andrew Baker who concluded that Floyd had taken a fatal level of the drug fentanyl. None of this mattered to fact-free, question-free, Woke. Floyd's death was followed by worldwide protests against police brutality amid calls to defund the police. Throwing babies out with the bathwater is a Woke speciality. In the wake of the murder of British woman Sarah Everard a Green Party member of the House of Lords, Baroness Jones of Moulscroomb (Nincompoopia would have been better), called for a 6pm curfew for all men. This would be in breach of the Geneva Conventions on war crimes which ban collective punishment, but that would never have crossed the black and white Woke mind of Baroness Nincompoopia who would have been far too convinced of her own self-righteousness to compute such details. Many American cities did defund the police in the face of Floyd riots and after $15 million was deleted from the police budget in Washington DC under useless Woke mayor Muriel Bowser car-jacking alone rose by 300 percent and within six months the US capital recorded its highest murder rate in 15 years. The same happened in Chicago and other cities in line with the Cult/Soros plan to bring fear to streets and neighbourhoods by reducing the police, releasing violent criminals and not prosecuting crime. This is the mob-rule agenda that I have warned in the books was coming for so long. Shootings in the area of Minneapolis where Floyd was arrested increased by 2,500 percent compared with the year before. Defunding the police over George Floyd has led to a big increase in dead people with many of them black. Police protection for politicians making these decisions stayed the same or increased as you would expect from professional hypocrites. The Cult doesn't actually want to abolish the police. It wants to abolish local control over the police and hand it to federal government as the psychopaths advance the Hunger Games Society. Many George Floyd protests turned into violent riots with black stores and businesses destroyed by fire and looting across America fuelled by Black Lives Matter. Woke doesn't do irony. If you want civil rights you must loot the liquor store and the supermarket and make off with a smart TV. It's the only way.

It's not a race war – it's a class war

Black people are patronised by privileged blacks and whites alike and told they are victims of white supremacy. I find it extraordinary to watch privileged blacks supporting the very system and bloodline networks behind the slave trade and parroting the same Cult-serving manipulative crap of their privileged white, often billionaire, associates. It is indeed not a race war but a class war and colour is just a diversion. Black Senator Cory Booker and black Congresswoman Maxine Waters, more residents of Nincompoopia, personify this. Once you tell people they are victims of someone else you devalue both their own responsibility for their plight and the power they have to impact on their reality and experience. Instead we have: 'You are only in your situation because of whitey – turn on them and everything will change.' It won't change. Nothing changes in our lives unless we change it. Crucial to that is never seeing yourself as a victim and always as the creator of your reality. Life is a simple sequence of choice and consequence. Make different choices and you create different consequences. You have to make those choices – not Black Lives Matter, the Woke Mafia and anyone else that seeks to dictate your life. Who are they these Wokers, an emotional and psychological road traffic accident, to tell you what to do? Personal empowerment is the last thing the Cult and its Black Lives Matter want black people or anyone else to have. They claim to be defending the underdog while creating and perpetuating the underdog. The Cult's worst nightmare is human unity and if they are going to keep blacks, whites and every other race under economic servitude and control then the focus must be diverted from what they have in common to what they can be manipulated to believe divides them. Blacks have to be told that their poverty and plight is the fault of the white bloke living on the street in the same poverty and with the same plight they are experiencing. The difference is that your plight black people is due to him, a white supremacist with 'white privilege' living on the street. Don't unite as one human family against your mutual oppressors and suppressors – fight the oppressor with the white face who is as financially deprived as you are. The Cult knows that as its 'Covid' agenda moves into still new levels of extremism people are going to respond and it has been spreading the seeds of disunity everywhere to stop a united response to the evil that targets all of us.

Racist attacks on 'whiteness' are getting ever more outrageous and especially through the American Democratic Party which has an appalling history for anti-black racism. Barack Obama, Joe Biden, Hillary Clinton and Nancy Pelosi all eulogised about Senator Robert Byrd at his funeral in 2010 after a nearly 60-year career in Congress. Byrd was a brutal Ku Klux Klan racist and a violent abuser of Cathy O'Brien in MKUltra. He said he would never fight in the military 'with a negro by my side' and 'rather I should die a thousand times, and see Old Glory trampled in the dirt never to rise again, than to see this beloved land of ours become degraded by race mongrels, a throwback to the blackest specimen from the wilds'. Biden called Byrd a 'very close friend and mentor'. These 'Woke' hypocrites are not anti-racist they are anti-poor and anti-people not of their perceived class. Here is an illustration of the scale of anti-white racism to which we have now descended. Seriously Woke and moronic New York Times contributor Damon Young described whiteness as a 'virus' that 'like other viruses will not die until there are no bodies left for it to infect'. He went on: '... the only way to stop it is to locate it, isolate it, extract it, and kill it.' Young can say that as a black man with no consequences when a white man saying the same in reverse would be facing a jail sentence. That's racism. We had super-Woke numbskull senators Tammy Duckworth and Mazie Hirono saying they would object to future Biden Cabinet appointments if he did not nominate more Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders. Never mind the ability of the candidate what do they look like? Duckworth said: 'I will vote for racial minorities and I will vote for LGBTQ, but anyone else I'm not voting for.' Appointing people on the grounds of race is illegal, but that was not a problem for this ludicrous pair. They were on-message and that's a free pass in any situation.

Critical race racism

White children are told at school they are intrinsically racist as they are taught the divisive 'critical race theory'. This claims that the law and legal institutions are inherently racist and that race is a socially constructed concept used by white people to further their economic and political interests at the expense of people of colour. White is a 'virus' as we've seen. Racial inequality results from 'social, economic, and legal differences that white people create between races to maintain white interests which leads to poverty and criminality in minority communities'. I must tell that to the white guy sleeping on the street. The principal of East Side Community School in New York sent white parents a manifesto that called on them to become 'white traitors' and advocate for full 'white abolition'. These people are teaching your kids when they urgently need a psychiatrist. The 'school' included a chart with 'eight white identities' that ranged from 'white supremacist' to 'white abolition' and defined the behaviour white people must follow to end 'the regime of whiteness'. Woke blacks and their privileged white associates are acting exactly like the slave owners of old and Ku Klux Klan racists like Robert Byrd. They are too full of their own self-purity to see that, but it's true. Racism is not a body type; it's a state of mind that can manifest through any colour, creed or culture.

Another racial fraud is 'equity'. Not equality of treatment and opportunity – equity. It's a term spun as equality when it means something very different. Equality in its true sense is a raising up while 'equity' is a race to the bottom. Everyone in the same level of poverty is 'equity'. Keep everyone down – that's equity. The Cult doesn't want anyone in the human family to be empowered and BLM leaders, like all these 'anti-racist' organisations, continue their privileged, pampered existence by perpetuating the perception of gathering racism. When is the last time you heard an 'anti-racist' or 'anti-Semitism' organisation say that acts of racism and discrimination have fallen? It's not in the interests of their fundraising and power to influence and the same goes for the professional soccer anti-racism operation, Kick It Out. Two things confirmed that the Black Lives Matter riots in the summer of 2020 were Cult creations. One was that while anti-lockdown protests were condemned in this same period for 'transmitting 'Covid' the authorities supported mass gatherings of Black Lives Matter supporters. I even saw self-deluding people claiming to be doctors say the two types of protest were not the same. No – the non-existent 'Covid' was in favour of lockdowns and attacked those that protested against them while 'Covid' supported Black Lives Matter and kept well away from its protests. The whole thing was a joke and as lockdown protestors were arrested, often brutally, by reframed Face-Nappies we had the grotesque sight of police officers taking the knee to Black Lives Matter, a Cult-funded Marxist organisation that supports violent riots and wants to destroy the nuclear family and white people.

He's not white? Shucks!

Woke obsession with race was on display again when ten people were shot dead in Boulder, Colorado, in March, 2021. Cult-owned Woke TV channels like CNN said the shooter appeared to be a white man and Wokers were on Twitter condemning 'violent white men' with the usual mantras. Then the shooter's name was released as Ahmad Al Aliwi Alissa, an anti-Trump Arab-American, and the sigh of disappointment could be heard five miles away. Never mind that ten people were dead and what that meant for their families. Race baiting was all that mattered to these sick Cult-serving people like Barack Obama who exploited the deaths to further divide America on racial grounds which is his job for the Cult. This is the man that 'racist' white Americans made the first black president of the United States and then gave him a second term. Not-very-bright Obama has become filthy rich on the back of that and today appears to have a big influence on the Biden administration. Even so he's still a downtrodden black man and a victim of white supremacy. This disingenuous fraud reveals the contempt he has for black people when he puts on a Deep South Alabama accent whenever he talks to them, no, at them.

Another BLM red flag was how the now fully-Woke (fully-Cult) and fully-virtue-signalled professional soccer authorities had their teams taking the knee before every match in support of Marxist Black Lives Matter. Soccer authorities and clubs displayed 'Black Lives Matter' on the players' shirts and flashed the name on electronic billboards around the pitch. Any fans that condemned what is a Freemasonic taking-the-knee ritual were widely condemned as you would expect from the Woke virtue-signallers of professional sport and the now fully-Woke media. We have reverse racism in which you are banned from criticising any race or culture except for white people for whom anything goes – say what you like, no problem. What has this got to do with racial harmony and equality? We've had black supremacists from Black Lives Matter telling white people to fall to their knees in the street and apologise for their white supremacy. Black supremacists acting like white supremacist slave owners of the past couldn't breach their self-obsessed, race-obsessed sense of self-purity. Joe Biden appointed a race-obsessed black supremacist Kristen Clarke to head the Justice Department Civil Rights Division. Clarke claimed that blacks are endowed with 'greater mental, physical and spiritual abilities' than whites. If anyone reversed that statement they would be vilified. Clarke is on-message so no problem. She's never seen a black-white situation in which the black figure is anything but a virtuous victim and she heads the Civil Rights Division which should treat everyone the same or it isn't civil rights. Another perception of the Renegade Mind: If something or someone is part of the Cult agenda they will be supported by Woke governments and media no matter what. If they're not, they will be condemned and censored. It really is that simple and so racist Clarke prospers despite (make that because of) her racism.

The end of culture

Biden's administration is full of such racial, cultural and economic bias as the Cult requires the human family to be divided into warring factions. We are now seeing racially-segregated graduations and everything, but everything, is defined through the lens of perceived 'racism. We have 'racist' mathematics, 'racist' food and even 'racist' plants. World famous Kew Gardens in London said it was changing labels on plants and flowers to tell its pre-'Covid' more than two million visitors a year how racist they are. Kew director Richard Deverell said this was part of an effort to 'move quickly to decolonise collections' after they were approached by one Ajay Chhabra 'an actor with an insight into how sugar cane was linked to slavery'. They are plants you idiots. 'Decolonisation' in the Woke manual really means colonisation of society with its mentality and by extension colonisation by the Cult. We are witnessing a new Chinese-style 'Cultural Revolution' so essential to the success of all

Marxist takeovers. Our cultural past and traditions have to be swept away to allow a new culture to be built-back-better. Woke targeting of long-standing Western cultural pillars including historical monuments and cancelling of historical figures is what happened in the Mao revolution in China which 'purged remnants of capitalist and traditional elements from Chinese society' and installed Maoism as the dominant ideology'. For China see the Western world today and for 'dominant ideology' see Woke. Better still see Marxism or Maoism. The 'Covid' hoax has specifically sought to destroy the arts and all elements of Western culture from people meeting in a pub or restaurant to closing theatres, music venues, sports stadiums, places of worship and even banning singing. Destruction of Western society is also why criticism of any religion is banned except for Christianity which again is the dominant religion as white is the numerically-dominant race. Christianity may be fading rapidly, but its history and traditions are weaved through the fabric of Western society. Delete the pillars and other structures will follow until the whole thing collapses. I am not a Christian defending that religion when I say that. I have no religion. It's just a fact. To this end Christianity has itself been turned Woke to usher its own downfall and its ranks are awash with 'change agents' – knowing and unknowing – at every level including Pope Francis (definitely knowing) and the clueless Archbishop of Canterbury Justin Welby (possibly not, but who can be sure?). Woke seeks to coordinate attacks on Western culture, traditions, and ways of life through 'intersectionality' defined as 'the complex, cumulative way in which the effects of multiple forms of discrimination (such as racism, sexism, and classism) combine, overlap, or intersect especially in the experiences of marginalised individuals or groups'. Wade through the Orwellian Woke-speak and this means coordinating disparate groups in a common cause to overthrow freedom and liberal values.

The entire structure of public institutions has been infested with Woke – government at all levels, political parties, police, military, schools, universities, advertising, media and trade unions. This abomination has been achieved through the Cult web by appointing Wokers to positions of power and battering non-Wokers into line through intimidation, isolation and threats to their job. Many have been fired in the wake of the empathy-deleted, vicious hostility of 'social justice' Wokers and the desire of gutless, spineless employers to virtue-signal their Wokeness. Corporations are filled with Wokers today, most notably those in Silicon Valley. Ironically at the top they are not Woke at all. They are only exploiting the mentality their Cult masters have created and funded to censor and enslave while the Wokers cheer them on until it's their turn. Thus the Woke 'liberal left' is an inversion of the traditional liberal left. Campaigning for justice on the grounds of power and wealth distribution has been replaced by campaigning for identity politics. The genuine traditional left would never have taken money from today's billionaire abusers of fairness and justice and nor would the billionaires have wanted to fund that genuine left. It would not have been in their interests to do so. The division of opinion in those days was between the haves and have nots. This all changed with Cult manipulated and funded identity politics. The division of opinion today is between Wokers and non-Wokers and not income brackets. Cult corporations and their billionaires may have taken wealth disparity to cataclysmic levels of injustice, but as long as they speak the language of Woke, hand out the dosh to the Woke network and censor the enemy they are 'one of us'. Billionaires who don't give a damn about injustice are laughing at them till their bellies hurt. Wokers are not even close to self-aware enough to see that. The transformed 'left' dynamic means that Wokers who drone on about 'social justice' are funded by billionaires that have destroyed social justice the world over. It's why they are billionaires.

The climate con

Nothing encapsulates what I have said more comprehensively than the hoax of human-caused global warming. I have detailed in my books over the years how Cult operatives and organisations were the pump-primers from the start of the climate con. A purpose-built vehicle for this is the Club of Rome established by the Cult in 1968 with the Rockefellers and Rothschilds centrally involved all along. Their gofer frontman Maurice Strong, a Canadian oil millionaire, hosted the Earth Summit in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, in 1992 where the global 'green movement' really expanded in earnest under the guiding hand of the Cult. The Earth Summit established Agenda 21 through the Cult-created-and-owned United Nations to use the illusion of human-caused climate change to justify the transformation of global society to save the world from climate disaster. It is a No-Problem-Reaction-Solution sold through governments, media, schools and universities as whole generations have been terrified into believing that the world was going to end in their lifetimes unless what old people had inflicted upon them was stopped by a complete restructuring of how everything is done. Chill, kids, it's all a hoax. Such restructuring is precisely what the Cult agenda demands (purely by coincidence of course). Today this has been given the codename of the Great Reset which is only an updated term for Agenda 21 and its associated Agenda 2030. The latter, too, is administered through the UN and was voted into being by the General Assembly in 2015. Both 21 and 2030 seek centralised control of all resources and food right down to the raindrops falling on your own land. These are some of the demands of Agenda 21 established in 1992. See if you recognise this society emerging today:

- End national sovereignty
- State planning and management of all land resources, ecosystems, deserts, forests, mountains, oceans and fresh water; agriculture; rural development; biotechnology; and ensuring 'equity'
- The state to 'define the role' of business and financial resources
- Abolition of private property
- 'Restructuring' the family unit (see BLM)
- Children raised by the state
- People told what their job will be
- Major restrictions on movement
- Creation of 'human settlement zones'

- Mass resettlement as people are forced to vacate land where they live
- Dumbing down education
- Mass global depopulation in pursuit of all the above

The United Nations was created as a Trojan horse for world government. With the climate con of critical importance to promoting that outcome you would expect the UN to be involved. Oh, it's involved all right. The UN is promoting Agenda 21 and Agenda 2030 justified by 'climate change' while also driving the climate hoax through its Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC), one of the world's most corrupt organisations. The IPCC has been lying ferociously and constantly since the day it opened its doors with the global media hanging unquestioningly on its every mendacious word. The Green movement is entirely Woke and has long lost its original environmental focus since it was co-opted by the Cult. An obsession with 'global warming' has deleted its values and scrambled its head. I experienced a small example of what I mean on a beautiful country walk that I have enjoyed several times a week for many years. The path merged into the fields and forests and you felt at one with the natural world. Then a 'Green' organisation, the Hampshire and Isle of Wight Wildlife Trust, took over part of the land and proceeded to cut down a large number of trees, including mature ones, to install a horrible big, bright steel 'this-is-ours-stay-out' fence that destroyed the whole atmosphere of this beautiful place. No one with a feel for nature would do that. Day after day I walked to the sound of chainsaws and a magnificent mature weeping willow tree that I so admired was cut down at the base of the trunk. When I challenged a Woke young girl in a green shirt (of course) about this vandalism she replied: 'It's a weeping willow – it will grow back.' This is what people are paying for when they donate to the Hampshire and Isle of Wight Wildlife Trust and many other 'green' organisations today. It is not the environmental movement that I knew and instead has become a support-system – as with Extinction Rebellion – for a very dark agenda.

Private jets for climate justice

The Cult-owned, Gates-funded, World Economic Forum and its founder Klaus Schwab were behind the emergence of Greta Thunberg to harness the young behind the climate agenda and she was invited to speak to the world at ... the UN. Schwab published a book, Covid-19: The Great Reset in 2020 in which he used the 'Covid' hoax and the climate hoax to lay out a new society straight out of Agenda 21 and Agenda 2030. Bill Gates followed in early 2021 when he took time out from destroying the world to produce a book in his name about the way to save it. Gates flies across the world in private jets and admitted that 'I probably have one of the highest greenhouse gas footprints of anyone on the planet ... my personal flying alone is gigantic.' He has also bid for the planet's biggest private jet operator. Other climate change saviours who fly in private jets include John Kerry, the US Special Presidential Envoy for Climate, and actor Leonardo DiCaprio, a 'UN Messenger of Peace with special focus on climate change'. These people are so full of bullshit they could corner the market in manure. We mustn't be sceptical, though, because the Gates book, How to Avoid a Climate Disaster: The Solutions We Have and the Breakthroughs We Need, is a genuine attempt to protect the world and not an obvious pile of excrement attributed to a mega-psychopath aimed at selling his masters' plans for humanity. The Gates book and the other shite-pile by Klaus Schwab could have been written by the same person and may well have been. Both use 'climate change' and 'Covid' as the excuses for their new society and by coincidence the Cult's World Economic Forum and Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation promote the climate hoax and hosted Event 201 which pre-empted with a 'simulation' the very 'coronavirus' hoax that would be simulated for real on humanity within weeks. The British 'royal' family is promoting the 'Reset' as you would expect through Prince 'climate change caused the war in Syria' Charles and his hapless son Prince William who said that we must 'reset our relationship with nature and our trajectory as a species' to avoid a climate disaster. Amazing how many promoters of the 'Covid' and 'climate change' control systems are connected to Gates and the World Economic Forum. A 'study' in early 2021 claimed that carbon dioxide emissions must fall by the equivalent of a global lockdown roughly every two years for the next decade to save the planet. The 'study' appeared in the same period that the Schwab mob claimed in a video that lockdowns destroying the lives of billions are good because they make the earth 'quieter' with less 'ambient noise'. They took down the video amid a public backlash for such arrogant, empathy-deleted stupidity You see, however, where they are going with this. Corinne Le Quéré, a professor at the Tyndall Centre for Climate Change Research, University of East Anglia, was lead author of the climate lockdown study, and she writes for ... the World Economic Forum. Gates calls in 'his' book for changing 'every aspect of the economy' (long-time Cult agenda) and for humans to eat synthetic 'meat' (predicted in my books) while cows and other farm animals are eliminated. Australian TV host and commentator Alan Jones described what carbon emission targets would mean for farm animals in Australia alone if emissions were reduced as demanded by 35 percent by 2030 and zero by 2050:

Well, let's take agriculture, the total emissions from agriculture are about 75 million tonnes of carbon dioxide, equivalent. Now reduce that by 35 percent and you have to come down to 50 million tonnes, I've done the maths. So if you take for example 1.5 million cows, you're going to have to reduce the herd by 525,000 [by] 2030, nine years, that's 58,000 cows a year. The beef herd's 30 million, reduce that by 35 percent, that's 10.5 million, which means 1.2 million cattle have to go every year between now and 2030. This is insanity!

There are 75 million sheep. Reduce that by 35 percent, that's 26 million sheep, that's almost 3 million a year. So under the Paris Agreement over 30 million beasts. dairy cows, cattle, pigs and sheep would go. More than 8,000 every minute of every hour for the next decade, do these people know what they're talking about?

Clearly they don't at the level of campaigners, politicians and administrators. The Cult does know; that's the outcome it wants. We are faced with not just a war on humanity. Animals and the natural world are being targeted and I have been saying since the 'Covid' hoax began that the plan eventually was to claim that the 'deadly virus' is able to jump from animals, including farm animals and domestic pets, to humans. Just before this book went into production came this story: 'Russia registers world's first Covid-19 vaccine for cats & dogs as makers of Sputnik V warn pets & farm animals could spread virus'. The report said 'top scientists warned that the deadly pathogen could soon begin spreading through homes and farms' and 'the next stage is the infection of farm and domestic animals'. Know the outcome and you'll see the journey. Think what that would mean for animals and keep your eye on a term called zoonosis or zoonotic diseases which transmit between animals and humans. The Cult wants to break the connection between animals and people as it does between people and people. Farm animals fit with the Cult agenda to transform food from natural to synthetic.

The gas of life is killing us

There can be few greater examples of Cult inversion than the condemnation of carbon dioxide as a dangerous pollutant when it is the gas of life. Without it the natural world would be dead and so we would all be dead. We breathe in oxygen and breathe out carbon dioxide while plants produce oxygen and absorb carbon dioxide. It is a perfect symbiotic relationship that the Cult wants to dismantle for reasons I will come to in the final two chapters. Gates, Schwab, other Cult operatives and mindless repeaters, want the world to be 'carbon neutral' by at least 2050 and the earlier the better. 'Zero carbon' is the cry echoed by lunatics calling for 'Zero Covid' when we already have it. These carbon emission targets will deindustrialise the world in accordance with Cult plans – the post-industrial, post-democratic society – and with so-called renewables like solar and wind not coming even close to meeting human energy needs blackouts and cold are inevitable. Texans got the picture in the winter of 2021 when a snow storm stopped wind turbines and solar panels from working and the lights went down along with water which relies on electricity for its supply system. Gates wants everything to be powered by electricity to ensure that his masters have the kill switch to stop all human activity, movement, cooking, water and warmth any time they like. The climate lie is so stupendously inverted that it claims we must urgently reduce carbon dioxide when we don't have enough.

Co2 in the atmosphere is a little above 400 parts per million when the optimum for plant growth is 2,000 ppm and when it falls anywhere near 150 ppm the natural world starts to die and so do we. It fell to as low as 280 ppm in an 1880 measurement in Hawaii and rose to 413 ppm in 2019 with industrialisation which is why the planet has become greener in the industrial period. How insane then that psychopathic madman Gates is not satisfied only with blocking the rise of Co2. He's funding technology to suck it out of the atmosphere. The reason why will become clear. The industrial era is not destroying the world through Co2 and has instead turned around a potentially disastrous ongoing fall in Co2. Greenpeace co-founder and scientist Patrick Moore walked away from Greenpeace in 1986 and has exposed the green movement for fear-mongering and lies. He said that 500 million years ago there was 17 times more Co2 in the atmosphere than we have today and levels have been falling for hundreds of millions of years. In the last 150 million years Co2 levels in Earth's atmosphere had reduced by 90 percent. Moore said that by the time humanity began to unlock carbon dioxide from fossil fuels we were at '38 seconds to midnight' and in that sense: 'Humans are [the Earth's] salvation.' Moore made the point that only half the Co2 emitted by fossil fuels stays in the atmosphere and we should remember that all pollution pouring from chimneys that we are told is carbon dioxide is in fact nothing of the kind. It's pollution. Carbon dioxide is an invisible gas.

William Happer, Professor of Physics at Princeton University and long-time government adviser on climate, has emphasised the Co2 deficiency for maximum growth and food production. Greenhouse growers don't add carbon dioxide for a bit of fun. He said that most of the warming in the last 100 years, after the earth emerged from the super-cold period of the 'Little Ice Age' into a natural warming cycle, was over by 1940. Happer said that a peak year for warming in 1988 can be explained by a 'monster El Nino' which is a natural and cyclical warming of the Pacific that has nothing to do with 'climate change'. He said the effect of Co2 could be compared to painting a wall with red paint in that once two or three coats have been applied it didn't matter how much more you slapped on because the wall will not get much redder. Almost all the effect of the rise in Co2 has already happened, he said, and the volume in the atmosphere would now have to double to increase temperature by a single degree. Climate hoaxers know this and they have invented the most ridiculously complicated series of 'feedback' loops to try to overcome this rather devastating fact. You hear puppet Greta going on cluelessly about feedback loops and this is why.

The Sun affects temperature? No you climate denier

Some other nonsense to contemplate: Climate graphs show that rises in temperature do not follow rises in Co2 – it's the other way round with a lag between the two of some 800 years. If we go back 800 years from present time we hit the Medieval Warm Period when temperatures were higher than now without any industrialisation and this was followed by the Little Ice Age when temperatures plummeted. The world was still emerging from these centuries of serious cold when many climate records began which makes the ever-repeated line of the 'hottest year since records began' meaningless when you are not comparing like with like. The coldest period of the Little Ice Age corresponded with the lowest period of sunspot activity when the Sun was at its least active. Proper scientists will not be at all surprised by this when it confirms the obvious fact that earth temperature is affected by the scale of Sun activity and the energetic power that it subsequently emits; but when is the last time you heard a climate hoaxer talking about the Sun as a source of earth temperature?? Everything has to be focussed on Co2 which makes up just 0.117 percent of so-called greenhouse gases and only a fraction of even that is generated by human activity. The rest is natural. More than 90 percent of those greenhouse gases are water vapour and clouds (Fig 9). Ban moisture I say. Have you noticed that the climate hoaxers no longer use the polar bear as their promotion image? That's because far from becoming extinct polar bear communities are stable or thriving. Joe Bastardi, American meteorologist, weather forecaster and outspoken critic of the climate lie, documents in his book The Climate Chronicles how weather patterns and events claimed to be evidence of climate change have been happening since long before industrialisation: 'What happened before naturally is happening again, as is to be expected given the cyclical nature of the climate due to the design of the planet.' If you read the detailed background to the climate hoax in my other books you will shake your head and wonder how anyone could believe the crap which has spawned a multi-trillion dollar industry based on absolute garbage (see HIV causes AIDs and Sars-Cov-2 causes 'Covid-19'). Climate and 'Covid' have much in common given they have the same source. They both have the contradictory everything factor in which everything is explained by reference to them. It's hot – 'it's climate change'. It's cold – 'it's climate change'. I got a sniffle – 'it's Covid'. I haven't got a sniffle – 'it's Covid'. Not having a sniffle has to be a symptom of 'Covid'. Everything is and not having a sniffle is especially dangerous if you are a slow walker. For sheer audacity I offer you a Cambridge University 'study' that actually linked 'Covid' to 'climate change'. It had to happen eventually. They concluded that climate change played a role in 'Covid-19' spreading from animals to humans because ... wait for it ... I kid you not ... the two groups were forced closer together as populations grow. Er, that's it. The whole foundation on which this depended was that 'Bats are the likely zoonotic origin of SARS-CoV-1 and SARS-CoV-2'. Well, they are not. They are nothing to do with it. Apart from bats not being the origin and therefore 'climate change' effects on bats being irrelevant I am in awe of their academic insight. Where would we be without them? Not where we are that's for sure.

Figure 9: The idea that the gas of life is disastrously changing the climate is an insult to brain cell activity.

One other point about the weather is that climate modification is now well advanced and not every major weather event is natural – or earthquake come to that. I cover this subject at some length in other books. China is openly planning a rapid expansion of its weather modification programme which includes changing the climate in an area more than one and a half times the size of India. China used weather manipulation to ensure clear skies during the 2008 Olympics in Beijing. I have quoted from US military documents detailing how to employ weather manipulation as a weapon of war and they did that in the 1960s and 70s during the conflict in Vietnam with Operation Popeye manipulating monsoon rains for military purposes. Why would there be international treaties on weather modification if it wasn't possible? Of course it is. Weather is energetic information and it can be changed.

How was the climate hoax pulled off? See 'Covid'

If you can get billions to believe in a 'virus' that doesn't exist you can get them to believe in human-caused climate change that doesn't exist. Both are being used by the Cult to transform global society in the way it has long planned. Both hoaxes have been achieved in pretty much the same way. First you declare a lie is a fact. There's a 'virus' you call SARS-Cov-2 or humans are warming the planet with their behaviour. Next this becomes, via Cult networks, the foundation of government, academic and science policy and belief. Those who parrot the mantra are given big grants to produce research that confirms the narrative is true and ever more 'symptoms' are added to make the 'virus'/'climate change' sound even more scary. Scientists and researchers who challenge the narrative have their grants withdrawn and their careers destroyed. The media promote the lie as the unquestionable truth and censor those with an alternative view or evidence. A great percentage of the population believe what they are told as the lie becomes an everybody-knows-that and the believing-masses turn on those with a mind of their own. The technique has been used endlessly throughout human history. Wokers are the biggest promoters of the climate lie and 'Covid' fascism because their minds are owned by the Cult; their sense of self-righteous self-purity knows no bounds; and they exist in a bubble of reality in which facts are irrelevant and only get in the way of looking without seeing.

Running through all of this like veins in a blue cheese is control of information, which means control of perception, which means control of behaviour, which collectively means control of human society. The Cult owns the global media and Silicon Valley fascists for the simple reason that it has to. Without control of information it can't control perception and through that human society. Examine every facet of the Cult agenda and you will see that anything supporting its introduction is never censored while anything pushing back is always censored. I say again: Psychopaths that know why they are doing this must go before Nuremberg trials and those that follow their orders must trot along behind them into the same dock. 'I was just following orders' didn't work the first time and it must not work now. Nuremberg trials must be held all over the world before public juries for politicians, government officials, police, compliant doctors, scientists and virologists, and all Cult operatives such as Gates, Tedros, Fauci, Vallance, Whitty, Ferguson, Zuckerberg, Wojcicki, Brin, Page, Dorsey, the whole damn lot of them – including, no especially, the psychopath psychologists. Without them and the brainless, gutless excuses for journalists that have repeated their lies, none of this could be happening. Nobody can be allowed to escape justice for the psychological and economic Armageddon they are all responsible for visiting upon the human race.

As for the compliant, unquestioning, swathes of humanity, and the self-obsessed, all-knowing ignorance of the Wokers ... don't start me. God help their kids. God help their grandkids. God help them.

CHAPTER NINE

We must have it? So what is it?

Well I won't back down. No, I won't back down. You can stand me up at the Gates of Hell. But I won't back down

Tom Petty

I will now focus on the genetically-manipulating 'Covid vaccines' which do not meet this official definition of a vaccine by the US Centers for Disease Control (CDC): 'A product that stimulates a person's immune system to produce immunity to a specific disease, protecting the person from that disease.' On that basis 'Covid vaccines' are not a vaccine in that the makers don't even claim they stop infection or transmission.

They are instead part of a multi-levelled conspiracy to change the nature of the human body and what it means to be 'human' and to depopulate an enormous swathe of humanity. What I shall call Human 1.0 is on the cusp of becoming Human 2.0 and for very sinister reasons. Before I get to the 'Covid vaccine' in detail here's some background to vaccines in general. Government regulators do not test vaccines – the makers do – and the makers control which data is revealed and which isn't. Children in America are given 50 vaccine doses by age six and 69 by age 19 and the effect of the whole combined schedule has never been tested. Autoimmune diseases when the immune system attacks its own body have soared in the mass vaccine era and so has disease in general in children and the young. Why wouldn't this be the case when vaccines target the immune system? The US government gave Big Pharma drug companies immunity from prosecution for vaccine death and injury in the 1986 National Childhood Vaccine Injury Act (NCVIA) and since then the government (taxpayer) has been funding compensation for the consequences of Big Pharma vaccines. The criminal and satanic drug giants can't lose and the vaccine schedule has increased dramatically since 1986 for this reason. There is no incentive to make vaccines safe and a big incentive to make money by introducing ever more. Even against a ridiculously high bar to prove vaccine liability, and with the government controlling the hearing in which it is being challenged for compensation, the vaccine court has so far paid out more than $4 billion. These are the vaccines we are told are safe and psychopaths like Zuckerberg censor posts saying otherwise. The immunity law was even justified by a ruling that vaccines by their nature were 'unavoidably unsafe'.

Check out the ingredients of vaccines and you will be shocked if you are new to this. They put that in children's bodies?? What?? Try aluminium, a brain toxin connected to dementia, aborted foetal tissue and formaldehyde which is used to embalm corpses. World-renowned aluminium expert Christopher Exley had his research into the health effect of aluminium in vaccines shut down by Keele University in the UK when it began taking funding from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation. Research when diseases 'eradicated' by vaccines began to decline and you will find the fall began long before the vaccine was introduced. Sometimes the fall even plateaued after the vaccine. Diseases like scarlet fever for which there was no vaccine declined in the same way because of environmental and other factors. A perfect case in point is the polio vaccine. Polio began when lead arsenate was first sprayed as an insecticide and residues remained in food products. Spraying started in 1892 and the first US polio epidemic came in Vermont in 1894. The simple answer was to stop spraying, but Rockefeller-created Big Pharma had a better idea. Polio was decreed to be caused by the poliovirus which 'spreads from person to person and can infect a person's spinal cord'. Lead arsenate was replaced by the lethal DDT which had the same effect of causing paralysis by damaging the brain and central nervous system. Polio plummeted when DDT was reduced and then banned, but the vaccine is still given the credit for something it didn't do. Today by far the biggest cause of polio is the vaccines promoted by Bill Gates. Vaccine justice campaigner Robert Kennedy Jr, son of assassinated (by the Cult) US Attorney General Robert Kennedy, wrote:

In 2017, the World Health Organization (WHO) reluctantly admitted that the global explosion in polio is predominantly vaccine strain. The most frightening epidemics in Congo, Afghanistan, and the Philippines, are all linked to vaccines. In fact, by 2018, 70% of global polio cases were vaccine strain.

Vaccines make fortunes for Cult-owned Gates and Big Pharma while undermining the health and immune systems of the population. We had a glimpse of the mentality behind the Big Pharma cartel with a report on WION (World is One News), an international English language TV station based in India, which exposed the extraordinary behaviour of US drug company Pfizer over its 'Covid vaccine'. The WION report told how Pfizer had made fantastic demands of Argentina, Brazil and other countries in return for its 'vaccine'. These included immunity from prosecution, even for Pfizer negligence, government insurance to protect Pfizer from law suits and handing over as collateral sovereign assets of the country to include Argentina's bank reserves, military bases and embassy buildings. Pfizer demanded the same of Brazil in the form of waiving sovereignty of its assets abroad; exempting Pfizer from Brazilian laws; and giving Pfizer immunity from all civil liability. This is a 'vaccine' developed with government funding. Big Pharma is evil incarnate as a creation of the Cult and all must be handed tickets to Nuremberg.

Phantom 'vaccine' for a phantom 'disease'

I'll expose the 'Covid vaccine' fraud and then go on to the wider background of why the Cult has set out to 'vaccinate' every man, woman and child on the planet for an alleged 'new disease' with a survival rate of 99.77 percent (or more) even by the grotesquely-manipulated figures of the World Health Organization and Johns Hopkins University. The 'infection' to 'death' ratio is 0.23 to 0.15 percent according to Stanford epidemiologist Dr John Ioannidis and while estimates vary the danger remains tiny. I say that if the truth be told the fake infection to fake death ratio is zero. Never mind all the evidence I have presented here and in The Answer that there is no 'virus' let us just focus for a moment on that death-rate figure of say 0.23 percent. The figure includes all those worldwide who have tested positive with a test not testing for the 'virus' and then died within 28 days or even longer of any other cause – any other cause. Now subtract all those illusory 'Covid' deaths on the global data sheets from the 0.23 percent. What do you think you would be left with? Zero. A vaccination has never been successfully developed for a so-called coronavirus. They have all failed at the animal testing stage when they caused hypersensitivity to what they were claiming to protect against and made the impact of a disease far worse. Cult-owned vaccine corporations got around that problem this time by bypassing animal trials, going straight to humans and making the length of the 'trials' before the public rollout as short as they could get away with. Normally it takes five to ten years or more to develop vaccines that still cause demonstrable harm to many people and that's without including the long-term effects that are never officially connected to the vaccination. 'Covid' non-vaccines have been officially produced and approved in a matter of months from a standing start and part of the reason is that (a) they were developed before the 'Covid' hoax began and (b) they are based on computer programs and not natural sources. Official non-trials were so short that government agencies gave emergency, not full, approval. 'Trials' were not even completed and full approval cannot be secured until they are. Public 'Covid vaccination' is actually a continuation of the trial. Drug company 'trials' are not scheduled to end until 2023 by which time a lot of people are going to be dead. Data on which government agencies gave this emergency approval was supplied by the Big Pharma corporations themselves in the form of Pfizer/BioNTech, AstraZeneca, Moderna, Johnson & Johnson, and others, and this is the case with all vaccines. By its very nature emergency approval means drug companies do not have to prove that the 'vaccine' is 'safe and effective'. How could they with trials way short of complete? Government regulators only have to believe that they could be safe and effective. It is criminal manipulation to get products in circulation with no testing worth the name. Agencies giving that approval are infested with Big Pharma-connected place-people and they act in the interests of Big Pharma (the Cult) and not the public about whom they do not give a damn.

More human lab rats

'Covid vaccines' produced in record time by Pfizer/BioNTech and Moderna employ a technique never approved before for use on humans. They are known as mRNA 'vaccines' and inject a synthetic version of 'viral' mRNA or 'messenger RNA'. The key is in the term 'messenger'. The body works, or doesn't, on the basis of information messaging. Communications are constantly passing between and within the genetic system and the brain. Change those messages and you change the state of the body and even its very nature and you can change psychology and behaviour by the way the brain processes information. I think you are going to see significant changes in personality and perception of many people who have had the 'Covid vaccine' synthetic potions. Insider Aldous Huxley predicted the following in 1961 and mRNA 'vaccines' can be included in the term 'pharmacological methods':

There will be, in the next generation or so, a pharmacological method of making people love their servitude, and producing dictatorship without tears, so to speak, producing a kind of painless concentration camp for entire societies, so that people will in fact have their own liberties taken away from them, but rather enjoy it, because they will be distracted from any desire to rebel by propaganda or brainwashing, or brainwashing enhanced by pharmacological methods. And this seems to be the final revolution.

Apologists claim that mRNA synthetic 'vaccines' don't change the DNA genetic blueprint because RNA does not affect DNA only the other way round. This is so disingenuous. A process called 'reverse transcription' can convert RNA into DNA and be integrated into DNA in the cell nucleus. This was highlighted in December, 2020, by scientists at Harvard and Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT). Geneticists report that more than 40 percent of mammalian genomes results from reverse transcription. On the most basic level if messaging changes then that sequence must lead to changes in DNA which is receiving and transmitting those communications. How can introducing synthetic material into cells not change the cells where DNA is located? The process is known as transfection which is defined as 'a technique to insert foreign nucleic acid (DNA or RNA) into a cell, typically with the intention of altering the properties of the cell'. Researchers at the Sloan Kettering Institute in New York found that changes in messenger RNA can deactivate tumour-suppressing proteins and thereby promote cancer. This is what happens when you mess with messaging. 'Covid vaccine' maker Moderna was founded in 2010 by Canadian stem cell biologist Derrick J. Rossi after his breakthrough discovery in the field of transforming and reprogramming stem cells. These are neutral cells that can be programmed to become any cell including sperm cells. Moderna was therefore founded on the principle of genetic manipulation and has never produced any vaccine or drug before its genetically-manipulating synthetic 'Covid' shite. Look at the name – Mode-RNA or Modify-RNA. Another important point is that the US Supreme Court has ruled that genetically-modified DNA, or complementary DNA (cDNA) synthesized in the laboratory from messenger RNA, can be patented and owned. These psychopaths are doing this to the human body.

Cells replicate synthetic mRNA in the 'Covid vaccines' and in theory the body is tricked into making antigens which trigger antibodies to target the 'virus spike proteins' which as Dr Tom Cowan said have never been seen. Cut the crap and these 'vaccines' deliver self-replicating synthetic material to the cells with the effect of changing human DNA. The more of them you have the more that process is compounded while synthetic material is all the time self-replicating. 'Vaccine'-maker Moderna describes mRNA as 'like software for the cell' and so they are messing with the body's software. What happens when you change the software in a computer? Everything changes. For this reason the Cult is preparing a production line of mRNA 'Covid vaccines' and a long list of excuses to use them as with all the 'variants' of a 'virus' never shown to exist. The plan is further to transfer the mRNA technique to other vaccines mostly given to children and young people. The cumulative consequences will be a transformation of human DNA through a constant infusion of synthetic genetic material which will kill many and change the rest. Now consider that governments that have given emergency approval for a vaccine that's not a vaccine; never been approved for humans before; had no testing worth the name; and the makers have been given immunity from prosecution for any deaths or adverse effects suffered by the public. The UK government awarded permanent legal indemnity to itself and its employees for harm done when a patient is being treated for 'Covid-19' or 'suspected Covid-19'. That is quite a thought when these are possible 'side-effects' from the 'vaccine' (they are not 'side', they are effects) listed by the US Food and Drug Administration:

Guillain-Barre syndrome; acute disseminated encephalomyelitis; transverse myelitis; encephalitis; myelitis; encephalomyelitis; meningoencephalitis; meningitis; encephalopathy; convulsions; seizures; stroke; narcolepsy; cataplexy; anaphylaxis; acute myocardial infarction (heart attack); myocarditis; pericarditis; autoimmune disease; death; implications for pregnancy, and birth outcomes; other acute demyelinating diseases; non anaphylactic allergy reactions; thrombocytopenia ; disseminated intravascular coagulation; venous thromboembolism; arthritis; arthralgia; joint pain; Kawasaki disease; multisystem inflammatory syndrome in children; vaccine enhanced disease. The latter is the way the 'vaccine' has the potential to make diseases far worse than they would otherwise be.

UK doctor and freedom campaigner Vernon Coleman described the conditions in this list as 'all unpleasant, most of them very serious, and you can't get more serious than death'. The thought that anyone at all has had the 'vaccine' in these circumstances is testament to the potential that humanity has for clueless, unquestioning, stupidity and for many that programmed stupidity has already been terminal.

An insider speaks

Dr Michael Yeadon is a former Vice President, head of research and Chief Scientific Adviser at vaccine giant Pfizer. Yeadon worked on the inside of Big Pharma, but that did not stop him becoming a vocal critic of 'Covid vaccines' and their potential for multiple harms, including infertility in women. By the spring of 2021 he went much further and even used the no, no, term 'conspiracy'. When you begin to see what is going on it is impossible not to do so. Yeadon spoke out in an interview with freedom campaigner James Delingpole and I mentioned earlier how he said that no one had samples of 'the virus'. He explained that the mRNA technique originated in the anti-cancer field and ways to turn on and off certain genes which could be advantageous if you wanted to stop cancer growing out of control. 'That's the origin of them. They are a very unusual application, really.' Yeadon said that treating a cancer patient with an aggressive procedure might be understandable if the alternative was dying, but it was quite another thing to use the same technique as a public health measure. Most people involved wouldn't catch the infectious agent you were vaccinating against and if they did they probably wouldn't die:

If you are really using it as a public health measure you really want to as close as you can get to zero sides-effects ... I find it odd that they chose techniques that were really cutting their teeth in the field of oncology and I'm worried that in using gene-based vaccines that have to be injected in the body and spread around the body, get taken up into some cells, and the regulators haven't quite told us which cells they get taken up into ... you are going to be generating a wide range of responses ... with multiple steps each of which could go well or badly.

I doubt the Cult intends it to go well. Yeadon said that you can put any gene you like into the body through the 'vaccine'. 'You can certainly give them a gene that would do them some harm if you wanted.' I was intrigued when he said that when used in the cancer field the technique could turn genes on and off. I explore this process in The Answer and with different genes having different functions you could create mayhem – physically and psychologically – if you turned the wrong ones on and the right ones off. I read reports of an experiment by researchers at the University of Washington's school of computer science and engineering in which they encoded DNA to infect computers. The body is itself a biological computer and if human DNA can inflict damage on a computer why can't the computer via synthetic material mess with the human body? It can. The Washington research team said it was possible to insert malicious malware into 'physical DNA strands' and corrupt the computer system of a gene sequencing machine as it 'reads gene letters and stores them as binary digits 0 and 1'. They concluded that hackers could one day use blood or spit samples to access computer systems and obtain sensitive data from police forensics labs or infect genome files. It is at this level of digital interaction that synthetic 'vaccines' need to be seen to get the full picture and that will become very clear later on. Michael Yeadon said it made no sense to give the 'vaccine' to younger people who were in no danger from the 'virus'. What was the benefit? It was all downside with potential effects:

The fact that my government in what I thought was a civilised, rational country, is raining [the 'vaccine'] on people in their 30s and 40s, even my children in their 20s, they're getting letters and phone calls, I know this is not right and any of you doctors who are vaccinating you know it's not right, too. They are not at risk. They are not at risk from the disease, so you are now hoping that the side-effects are so rare that you get away with it. You don't give new technology ... that you don't understand to 100 percent of the population.

Blood clot problems with the AstraZeneca 'vaccine' have been affecting younger people to emphasise the downside risks with no benefit. AstraZeneca's version, produced with Oxford University, does not use mRNA, but still gets its toxic cocktail inside cells where it targets DNA. The Johnson & Johnson 'vaccine' which uses a similar technique has also produced blood clot effects to such an extent that the United States paused its use at one point. They are all 'gene therapy' (cell modification) procedures and not 'vaccines'. The truth is that once the content of these injections enter cells we have no idea what the effect will be. People can speculate and some can give very educated opinions and that's good. In the end, though, only the makers know what their potions are designed to do and even they won't know every last consequence. Michael Yeadon was scathing about doctors doing what they knew to be wrong. 'Everyone's mute', he said. Doctors in the NHS must know this was not right, coming into work and injecting people. 'I don't know how they sleep at night. I know I couldn't do it. I know that if I were in that position I'd have to quit.' He said he knew enough about toxicology to know this was not a good risk-benefit. Yeadon had spoken to seven or eight university professors and all except two would not speak out publicly. Their universities had a policy that no one said anything that countered the government and its medical advisors. They were afraid of losing their government grants. This is how intimidation has been used to silence the truth at every level of the system. I say silence, but these people could still speak out if they made that choice. Yeadon called them 'moral cowards' – 'This is about your children and grandchildren's lives and you have just buggered off and left it.'

'Variant' nonsense

Some of his most powerful comments related to the alleged 'variants' being used to instil more fear, justify more lockdowns, and introduce more 'vaccines'. He said government claims about 'variants' were nonsense. He had checked the alleged variant 'codes' and they were 99.7 percent identical to the 'original'. This was the human identity difference equivalent to putting a baseball cap on and off or wearing it the other way round. A 0.3 percent difference would make it impossible for that 'variant' to escape immunity from the 'original'. This made no sense of having new 'vaccines' for

'variants'. He said there would have to be at least a 30 percent difference for that to be justified and even then he believed the immune system would still recognise what it was. Gates-funded 'variant modeller' and 'vaccine'-pusher John Edmunds might care to comment. Yeadon said drug companies were making new versions of the 'vaccine' as a 'top up' for 'variants'. Worse than that, he said, the 'regulators' around the world like the MHRA in the UK had got together and agreed that because 'vaccines' for 'variants' were so similar to the first 'vaccines' they did not have to do safety studies. How transparently sinister that is. This is when Yeadon said: 'There is a conspiracy here.' There was no need for another vaccine for 'variants' and yet we were told that there was and the country had shut its borders because of them. 'They are going into hundreds of millions of arms without passing 'go' or any regulator. Why did they do that? Why did they pick this method of making the vaccine?'

The reason had to be something bigger than that it seemed and 'it's not protection against the virus'. It's was a far bigger project that meant politicians and advisers were willing to do things and not do things that knowingly resulted in avoidable deaths – 'that's already happened when you think about lockdown and deprivation of health care for a year.' He spoke of people prepared to do something that results in the avoidable death of their fellow human beings and it not bother them. This is the penny-drop I have been working to get across for more than 30 years – the level of pure evil we are dealing with. Yeadon said his friends and associates could not believe there could be that much evil, but he reminded them of Stalin, Pol Pot and Hitler and of what Stalin had said: 'One death is a tragedy. A million? A statistic.' He could not think of a benign explanation for why you need top-up vaccines 'which I'm sure you don't' and for the regulators 'to just get out of the way and wave them through'. Why would the regulators do that when they were still wrestling with the dangers of the 'parent' vaccine? He was clearly shocked by what he had seen since the 'Covid' hoax began and now he was thinking the previously unthinkable:

If you wanted to depopulate a significant proportion of the world and to do it in a way that doesn't involve destruction of the environment with nuclear weapons, poisoning everyone with anthrax or something like that, and you wanted plausible deniability while you had a multi-year infectious disease crisis, I actually don't think you could come up with a better plan of work than seems to be in front of me. I can't say that's what they are going to do, but I can't think of a benign explanation why they are doing it.

He said he never thought that they would get rid of 99 percent of humans, but now he wondered. 'If you wanted to that this would be a hell of a way to do it – it would be unstoppable folks.' Yeadon had concluded that those who submitted to the 'vaccine' would be allowed to have some kind of normal life (but for how long?) while screws were tightened to coerce and mandate the last few percent. 'I think they'll put the rest of them in a prison camp. I wish I was wrong, but I don't think I am.' Other points he made included: There were no coronavirus vaccines then suddenly they all come along at the same time; we have no idea of the long term affect with trials so short; coercing or forcing people to have medical procedures is against the Nuremberg Code instigated when the Nazis did just that; people should at least delay having the 'vaccine'; a quick Internet search confirms that masks don't reduce respiratory viral transmission and 'the government knows that'; they have smashed civil society and they know that, too; two dozen peer-reviewed studies show no connection between lockdown and reducing deaths; he knew from personal friends the elite were still flying around and going on holiday while the public were locked down; the elite were not having the 'vaccines'. He was also asked if 'vaccines' could be made to target difference races. He said he didn't know, but the document by the Project for the New American Century in September, 2000, said developing 'advanced forms of biological warfare that can target specific genotypes may transform biological warfare from the realm of terror to a politically useful tool.' Oh, they're evil all right. Of that we can be absolutely sure.

Another cull of old people

We have seen from the CDC definition that the mRNA 'Covid vaccine' is not a vaccine and nor are the others that claim to reduce 'severity of symptoms' in some people, but not protect from infection or transmission. What about all the lies about returning to 'normal' if people were 'vaccinated'? If they are not claimed to stop infection and transmission of the alleged 'virus', how does anything change? This was all lies to manipulate people to take the jabs and we are seeing that now with masks and distancing still required for the 'vaccinated'. How did they think that elderly people with fragile health and immune responses were going to be affected by infusing their cells with synthetic material and other toxic substances? They knew that in the short and long term it would be devastating and fatal as the culling of the old that began with the first lockdowns was continued with the 'vaccine'. Death rates in care homes soared immediately residents began to be 'vaccinated' – infused with synthetic material. Brave and committed whistleblower nurses put their careers at risk by exposing this truth while the rest kept their heads down and their mouths shut to put their careers before those they are supposed to care for. A long-time American Certified Nursing Assistant who gave his name as James posted a video in which he described emotionally what happened in his care home when vaccination began. He said that during 2020 very few residents were sick with 'Covid' and no one died during the entire year; but shortly after the Pfizer mRNA injections 14 people died within two weeks and many others were near death. 'They're dropping like flies', he said. Residents who walked on their own before the shot could no longer and they had lost their ability to conduct an intelligent conversation. The home's management said the sudden deaths were caused by a 'super-spreader' of 'Covid-19'. Then how come, James asked, that residents who refused to take the injections were not sick? It was a case of inject the elderly with mRNA synthetic potions and blame their illness and death that followed on the 'virus'. James described what was happening in care homes as 'the greatest crime of genocide this country has ever seen'. Remember the NHS staff nurse from earlier who used the same word 'genocide' for what was happening with the 'vaccines' and that it was an 'act of human annihilation'. A UK care home whistleblower told a similar story to James about the effect of the 'vaccine' in deaths and 'outbreaks' of illness dubbed 'Covid' after getting the jab. She told how her care home management and staff had zealously imposed government regulations and no one was allowed to even question the official narrative let alone speak out against it. She said the NHS was even worse. Again we see the results of reframing. A worker at a local care home where I live said they had not had a single case of 'Covid' there for almost a year and when the residents were 'vaccinated' they had 19 positive cases in two weeks with eight dying.

It's not the 'vaccine' – honest

The obvious cause and effect was being ignored by the media and most of the public. Australia's health minister Greg Hunt (a former head of strategy at the World Economic Forum) was admitted to hospital after he had the 'vaccine'. He was suffering according to reports from the skin infection 'cellulitis' and it must have been a severe case to have warranted days in hospital. Immediately the authorities said this was nothing to do with the 'vaccine' when an effect of some vaccines is a 'cellulitis-like reaction'. We had families of perfectly healthy old people who died after the 'vaccine' saying that if only they had been given the 'vaccine' earlier they would still be alive. As a numbskull rating that is off the chart. A father of four 'died of Covid' at aged 48 when he was taken ill two days after having the 'vaccine'. The man, a health administrator, had been 'shielding during the pandemic' and had 'not really left the house' until he went for the 'vaccine'. Having the 'vaccine' and then falling ill and dying does not seem to have qualified as a possible cause and effect and 'Covid-19' went on his death certificate. His family said they had no idea how he 'caught the virus'. A family member said: 'Tragically, it could be that going for a vaccination ultimately led to him catching Covid ...The sad truth is that they are never going to know where it came from.' The family warned people to remember that the virus still existed and was 'very real'. So was their stupidity. Nurses and doctors who had the first round of the 'vaccine' were collapsing, dying and ending up in a hospital bed while they or their grieving relatives were saying they'd still have the 'vaccine' again despite what happened. I kid you not. You mean if your husband returned from the dead he'd have the same 'vaccine' again that killed him??

Doctors at the VCU Medical Center in Richmond, Virginia, said the Johnson & Johnson 'vaccine' was to blame for a man's skin peeling off. Patient Richard Terrell said: 'It all just happened so fast. My skin peeled off. It's still coming off on my hands now.' He said it was stinging, burning and itching and when he bent his arms and legs it was very painful with 'the skin swollen and rubbing against itself'. Pfizer/BioNTech and Moderna vaccines use mRNA to change the cell while the Johnson & Johnson version uses DNA in a process similar to AstraZeneca's technique. Johnson & Johnson and AstraZeneca have both had their 'vaccines' paused by many countries after causing serious blood problems. Terrell's doctor Fnu Nutan said he could have died if he hadn't got medical attention. It sounds terrible so what did Nutan and Terrell say about the 'vaccine' now? Oh, they still recommend that people have it. A nurse in a hospital bed 40 minutes after the vaccination and unable to swallow due to throat swelling was told by a doctor that he lost mobility in his arm for 36 hours following the vaccination. What did he say to the ailing nurse? 'Good for you for getting the vaccination.' We are dealing with a serious form of cognitive dissonance madness in both public and medical staff. There is a remarkable correlation between those having the 'vaccine' and trumpeting the fact and suffering bad happenings shortly afterwards. Witold Rogiewicz, a Polish doctor, made a video of his 'vaccination' and ridiculed those who were questioning its safety and the intentions of Bill Gates: 'Vaccinate yourself to protect yourself, your loved ones, friends and also patients. And to mention quickly I have info for anti-vaxxers and anti-Coviders if you want to contact Bill Gates you can do this through me.' He further ridiculed the dangers of 5G. Days later he was dead, but naturally the vaccination wasn't mentioned in the verdict of 'heart attack'.

Lies, lies and more lies

So many members of the human race have slipped into extreme states of insanity and unfortunately they include reframed doctors and nursing staff. Having a 'vaccine' and dying within minutes or hours is not considered a valid connection while death from any cause within 28 days or longer of a positive test with a test not testing for the 'virus' means 'Covid-19' goes on the death certificate. How could that 'vaccine'-death connection not have been made except by calculated deceit? US figures in the initial rollout period to February 12th, 2020, revealed that a third of the deaths reported to the CDC after 'Covid vaccines' happened within 48 hours. Five men in the UK suffered an 'extremely rare' blood clot problem after having the AstraZeneca 'vaccine', but no causal link was established said the Gates-funded Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) which had given the 'vaccine' emergency approval to be used. Former Pfizer executive Dr Michael Yeadon explained in his interview how the procedures could cause blood coagulation and clots. People who should have been at no risk were dying from blood clots in the brain and he said he had heard from medical doctor friends that people were suffering from skin bleeding and massive headaches. The AstraZeneca 'shot' was stopped by some 20 countries over the blood clotting issue and still the corrupt MHRA, the European Medicines Agency (EMA) and the World Health Organization said that it should continue to be given even though the EMA admitted that it 'still cannot rule out definitively' a link between blood clotting and the 'vaccine'. Later Marco Cavaleri, head of EMA vaccine strategy, said there was indeed a clear link between the 'vaccine' and thrombosis, but they didn't know why. So much for the trials showing the 'vaccine' is safe. Blood clots were affecting younger people who would be under virtually no danger from 'Covid' even if it existed which makes it all the more stupid and sinister.

The British government responded to public alarm by wheeling out June Raine, the terrifyingly weak infant school headmistress sound-alike who heads the UK MHRA drug 'regulator'. The idea that she would stand up to Big Pharma and government pressure is laughable and she told us that all was well in the same way that she did when allowing untested, never-used-on-humans-before, genetically-manipulating 'vaccines' to be exposed to the public in the first place. Mass lying is the new normal of the 'Covid' era. The MHRA later said 30 cases of rare blood clots had by then been connected with the AstraZeneca 'vaccine' (that means a lot more in reality) while stressing that the benefits of the jab in preventing 'Covid-19' outweighed any risks. A more ridiculous and disingenuous statement with callous disregard for human health it is hard to contemplate. Immediately after the mendacious 'all-clears' two hospital workers in Denmark experienced blood clots and cerebral haemorrhaging following the AstraZeneca jab and one died. Top Norwegian health official Pål Andre Holme said the 'vaccine' was the only common factor: 'There is nothing in the patient history of these individuals that can give such a powerful immune response ... I am confident that the antibodies that we have found are the cause, and I see no other explanation than it being the vaccine which triggers it.' Strokes, a clot or bleed in the brain, were clearly associated with the 'vaccine' from word of mouth and whistleblower reports. Similar consequences followed with all these 'vaccines' that we were told were so safe and as the numbers grew by the day it was clear we were witnessing human carnage.

Learning the hard way

A woman interviewed by UKColumn told how her husband suffered dramatic health effects after the vaccine when he'd been in good health all his life. He went from being a little unwell to losing all feeling in his legs and experiencing 'excruciating pain'. Misdiagnosis followed twice at Accident and Emergency (an 'allergy' and 'sciatica') before he was admitted to a neurology ward where doctors said his serious condition had been caused by the

'vaccine'. Another seven 'vaccinated' people were apparently being treated on the same ward for similar symptoms. The woman said he had the 'vaccine' because they believed media claims that it was safe. 'I didn't think the government would give out a vaccine that does this to somebody; I believed they would be bringing out a vaccination that would be safe.' What a tragic way to learn that lesson. Another woman posted that her husband was transporting stroke patients to hospital on almost every shift and when he asked them if they had been 'vaccinated' for 'Covid' they all replied 'yes'. One had a 'massive brain bleed' the day after his second dose. She said her husband reported the 'just been vaccinated' information every time to doctors in A and E only for them to ignore it, make no notes and appear annoyed that it was even mentioned. This particular report cannot be verified, but it expresses a common theme that confirms the monumental underreporting of 'vaccine' consequences. Interestingly as the 'vaccines' and their brain blood clot/stroke consequences began to emerge the UK National Health Service began a publicity campaign telling the public what to do in the event of a stroke. A Scottish NHS staff nurse who quit in disgust in March, 2021, said:

I have seen traumatic injuries from the vaccine, they're not getting reported to the yellow card [adverse reaction] scheme, they're treating the symptoms, not asking why, why it's happening. It's just treating the symptoms and when you speak about it you're dismissed like you're crazy, I'm not crazy, I'm not crazy because every other colleague I've spoken to is terrified to speak out, they've had enough.

Videos appeared on the Internet of people uncontrollably shaking after the 'vaccine' with no control over muscles, limbs and even their face. A Scottish mother broke out in a severe rash all over her body almost immediately after she was given the AstraZeneca 'vaccine'. The pictures were horrific. Leigh King, a 41-year-old hairdresser from Lanarkshire said: 'Never in my life was I prepared for what I was about to experience ... My skin was so sore and constantly hot ... I have never felt pain like this ...' But don't you worry, the 'vaccine' is perfectly safe. Then there has been the effect on medical staff who have been pressured to have the 'vaccine' by psychopathic 'health' authorities and government. A London hospital consultant who gave the name K. Polyakova wrote this to the British Medical Journal or BMJ:

I am currently struggling with ... the failure to report the reality of the morbidity caused by our current vaccination program within the health service and staff population. The levels of sickness after vaccination is unprecedented and staff are getting very sick and some with neurological symptoms which is having a huge impact on the health service function. Even the young and healthy are off for days, some for weeks, and some requiring medical treatment. Whole teams are being taken out as they went to get vaccinated together.

Mandatory vaccination in this instance is stupid, unethical and irresponsible when it comes to protecting our staff and public health. We are in the voluntary phase of vaccination, and encouraging staff to take an unlicensed product that is impacting on their immediate health ... it is clearly stated that these vaccine products do not offer immunity or stop transmission. In which case why are we doing it?

Not to protect health that's for sure. Medical workers are lauded by governments for agenda reasons when they couldn't give a toss about them any more than they can for the population in general. Schools across America faced the same situation as they closed due to the high number of teachers and other staff with bad reactions to the Pfizer/BioNTech, Moderna, and Johnson & Johnson 'Covid vaccines' all of which were linked to death and serious adverse effects. The BMJ took down the consultant's comments pretty quickly on the grounds that they were being used to spread 'disinformation'. They were exposing the truth about the 'vaccine' was the real reason. The cover-up is breathtaking.

Hiding the evidence

The scale of the 'vaccine' death cover-up worldwide can be confirmed by comparing official figures with the personal experience of the public. I heard of many people in my community who died immediately or soon after the vaccine that would never appear in the media or even likely on the official totals of 'vaccine' fatalities and adverse reactions when only about ten percent are estimated to be reported and I have seen some estimates as low as one percent in a Harvard study. In the UK alone by April 29th, 2021, some 757,654 adverse reactions had been officially reported from the Pfizer/BioNTech, Oxford/AstraZeneca and Moderna 'vaccines' with more than a thousand deaths linked to jabs and that means an estimated ten times this number in reality from a ten percent reporting rate percentage. That's seven million adverse reactions and 10,000 potential deaths and a one percent reporting rate would be ten times those figures. In 1976 the US government pulled the swine flu vaccine after 53 deaths. The UK data included a combined 10,000 eye disorders from the 'Covid vaccines' with more than 750 suffering visual impairment or blindness and again multiply by the estimated reporting percentages. As 'Covid cases' officially fell hospitals virtually empty during the 'Covid crisis' began to fill up with a range of other problems in the wake of the 'vaccine' rollout. The numbers across America have also been catastrophic. Deaths linked to all types of vaccine increased by 6,000 percent in the first quarter of 2021 compared with 2020. A 39-year-old woman from Ogden, Utah, died four days after receiving a second dose of Moderna's 'Covid vaccine' when her liver, heart and kidneys all failed despite the fact that she had no known medical issues or conditions. Her family sought an autopsy, but Dr Erik Christensen, Utah's chief medical examiner, said proving vaccine injury as a cause of death almost never happened. He could think of only one instance where an autopsy would name a vaccine as the official cause of death and that would be anaphylaxis where someone received a vaccine and died almost instantaneously. 'Short of that, it would be difficult for us to definitively say this is the vaccine,' Christensen said. If that is true this must be added to the estimated ten percent (or far less) reporting rate of vaccine deaths and serious reactions and the conclusion can only be that vaccine deaths and serious reactions – including these 'Covid' potions' – are phenomenally understated in official figures. The same story can be found everywhere. Endless accounts of deaths and serious reactions among the public, medical and care home staff while official figures did not even begin to reflect this.

Professional script-reader Dr David Williams, a 'top public-health official' in Ontario, Canada, insulted our intelligence by claiming only four serious adverse reactions and no deaths from the more than 380,000 vaccine doses then given. This bore no resemblance to what people knew had happened in their own circles and we had Dirk Huyer in charge of getting millions vaccinated in Ontario while at the same time he was Chief Coroner for the province investigating causes of death including possible death from the vaccine. An aide said he had stepped back from investigating deaths, but evidence indicated otherwise. Rosemary Frei, who secured a Master of Science degree in molecular biology at the Faculty of Medicine at Canada's University of Calgary before turning to investigative journalism, was one who could see that official figures for 'vaccine' deaths and reactions made no sense. She said that doctors seldom reported adverse events and when people got really sick or died after getting a vaccination they would attribute that to anything except the vaccines. It had been that way for years and anyone who wondered aloud whether the 'Covid vaccines' or other shots cause harm is immediately branded as 'anti-vax' and 'anti-science'. This was 'career-threatening' for health professionals. Then there was the huge pressure to support the push to 'vaccinate' billions in the quickest time possible. Frei said:

So that's where we're at today. More than half a million vaccine doses have been given to people in Ontario alone. The rush is on to vaccinate all 15 million of us in the province by September. And the mainstream media are screaming for this to be sped up even more. That all adds up to only a very slim likelihood that we're going to be told the truth by officials about how many people are getting sick or dying from the vaccines.

What is true of Ontario is true of everywhere.

They KNEW – and still did it

The authorities knew what was going to happen with multiple deaths and adverse reactions. The UK government's Gates-funded and Big Pharma-dominated Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) hired a company to employ AI in compiling the projected reactions to the 'vaccine' that would otherwise be uncountable. The request for applications said: 'The MHRA urgently seeks an Artificial Intelligence (AI) software tool to process the expected high volume of Covid-19 vaccine Adverse Drug Reaction ...' This was from the agency, headed by the disingenuous June Raine, that gave the 'vaccines' emergency approval and the company was hired before the first shot was given. 'We are going to kill and maim you – is that okay?' 'Oh, yes, perfectly fine – I'm very grateful, thank you, doctor.' The range of 'Covid vaccine' adverse reactions goes on for page after page in the MHRA criminally underreported 'Yellow Card' system and includes affects to eyes, ears, skin, digestion, blood and so on. Raine's MHRA amazingly claimed that the 'overall safety experience ... is so far as expected from the clinical trials'. The death, serious adverse effects, deafness and blindness were expected? When did they ever mention that? If these human tragedies were expected then those that gave approval for the use of these 'vaccines' must be guilty of crimes against humanity including murder – a definition of which is 'killing a person with malice aforethought or with recklessness manifesting extreme indifference to the value of human life.' People involved at the MHRA, the CDC in America and their equivalent around the world must go before Nuremberg trials to answer for their callous inhumanity. We are only talking here about the immediate effects of the 'vaccine'. The longer-term impact of the DNA synthetic manipulation is the main reason they are so hysterically desperate to inoculate the entire global population in the shortest possible time.

Africa and the developing world are a major focus for the 'vaccine' depopulation agenda and a mass vaccination sales-pitch is underway thanks to caring people like the Rockefellers and other Cult assets. The Rockefeller Foundation, which pre-empted the 'Covid pandemic' in a document published in 2010 that 'predicted' what happened a decade later, announced an initial $34.95 million grant in February, 2021, 'to ensure more equitable access to Covid-19 testing and vaccines' among other things in Africa in collaboration with '24 organizations, businesses, and government agencies'. The pan-Africa initiative would focus on 10 countries: Burkina Faso, Ethiopia, Ghana, Kenya, Nigeria, Rwanda, South Africa, Tanzania, Uganda, and Zambia'. Rajiv Shah, President of the Rockefeller Foundation and former administrator of CIA-controlled USAID, said that if Africa was not mass-vaccinated (to change the DNA of its people) it was a 'threat to all of humanity' and not fair on Africans. When someone from the Rockefeller Foundation says they want to do something to help poor and deprived people and countries it is time for a belly-laugh. They are doing this out of the goodness of their 'heart' because 'vaccinating' the entire global population is what the 'Covid' hoax set out to achieve. Official 'decolonisation' of Africa by the Cult was merely a prelude to financial colonisation on the road to a return to physical colonisation. The 'vaccine' is vital to that and the sudden and convenient death of the 'Covid' sceptic president of Tanzania can be seen in its true light. A lot of people in Africa are aware that this is another form of colonisation and exploitation and they need to stand their ground.

The 'vaccine is working' scam

A potential problem for the Cult was that the 'vaccine' is meant to change human DNA and body messaging and not to protect anyone from a 'virus' never shown to exist. The vaccine couldn't work because it was not designed to work and how could they make it appear to be working so that more people would have it? This was overcome by lowering the amplification rate of the PCR test to produce fewer 'cases' and therefore fewer 'deaths'. Some of us had been pointing out since March, 2020, that the amplification rate of the test not testing for the 'virus' had been made artificially high to generate positive tests which they could call 'cases' to justify lockdowns. The World Health Organization recommended an absurdly high 45 amplification cycles to ensure the high positives required by the Cult and then remained silent on the issue until January 20th, 2021 – Biden's Inauguration Day. This was when the

'vaccinations' were seriously underway and on that day the WHO recommended after discussions with America's CDC that laboratories lowered their testing amplification. Dr David Samadi, a certified urologist and health writer, said the WHO was encouraging all labs to reduce their cycle count for PCR tests. He said the current cycle was much too high and was 'resulting in any particle being declared a positive case'. Even one mainstream news report I saw said this meant the number of 'Covid' infections may have been 'dramatically inflated'. Oh, just a little bit. The CDC in America issued new guidance to laboratories in April, 2021, to use 28 cycles but only for 'vaccinated' people. The timing of the CDC/WHO interventions were cynically designed to make it appear the 'vaccines' were responsible for falling cases and deaths when the real reason can be seen in the following examples. New York's state lab, the Wadsworth Center, identified 872 positive tests in July, 2020, based on a threshold of 40 cycles. When the figure was lowered to 35 cycles 43 percent of the 872 were no longer 'positives'. At 30 cycles the figure was 63 percent. A Massachusetts lab found that between 85 to 90 percent of people who tested positive in July with a cycle threshold of 40 would be negative at 30 cycles, Ashish Jha, MD, director of the Harvard Global Health Institute, said: 'I'm really shocked that it could be that high ... Boy, does it really change the way we need to be thinking about testing.' I'm shocked that I could see the obvious in the spring of 2020, with no medical background, and most medical professionals still haven't worked it out. No, that's not shocking – it's terrifying.

Three weeks after the WHO directive to lower PCR cycles the London Daily Mail ran this headline: 'Why ARE Covid cases plummeting? New infections have fallen 45% in the US and 30% globally in the past 3 weeks but experts say vaccine is NOT the main driver because only 8% of Americans and 13% of people worldwide have received their first dose.' They acknowledged that the drop could not be attributed to the 'vaccine', but soon this morphed throughout the media into the 'vaccine' has caused cases and deaths to fall when it was the PCR threshold. In December, 2020, there was chaos at English Channel ports with truck drivers needing negative 'Covid' tests before they could board a ferry home for Christmas. The government wanted to remove the backlog as fast as possible and they brought in troops to do the 'testing'. Out of 1,600 drivers just 36 tested positive and the rest were given the all clear to cross the Channel. I guess the authorities thought that 36 was the least they could get away with without the unquestioning catching on. The amplification trick which most people believed in the absence of information in the mainstream applied more pressure on those refusing the 'vaccine' to succumb when it 'obviously worked'. The truth was the exact opposite with deaths in care homes soaring with the 'vaccine' and in Israel the term used was 'skyrocket'. A re-analysis of published data from the Israeli Health Ministry led by Dr Hervé Seligmann at the Medicine Emerging Infectious and Tropical Diseases at Aix-Marseille University found that Pfizer's 'Covid vaccine' killed 'about 40 times more [elderly] people than the disease itself would have killed' during a five-week vaccination period and 260 times more younger people than would have died from the 'virus' even according to the manipulated 'virus' figures. Dr Seligmann and his co-study author, Haim Yativ, declared after reviewing the Israeli 'vaccine' death data: 'This is a new Holocaust.'

Then, in mid-April, 2021, after vast numbers of people worldwide had been 'vaccinated', the story changed with clear coordination. The UK government began to prepare the ground for more future lockdowns when Nuremberg-destined Boris Johnson told yet another whopper. He said that cases had fallen because of lockdowns not 'vaccines'. Lockdowns are irrelevant when there is no 'virus' and the test and fraudulent death certificates are deciding the number of 'cases' and 'deaths'. Study after study has shown that lockdowns don't work and instead kill and psychologically destroy people. Meanwhile in the United States Anthony Fauci and Rochelle Walensky, the ultra-Zionist head of the CDC, peddled the same line. More lockdown was the answer and not the 'vaccine', a line repeated on cue by the moron that is Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau. Why all the hysteria to get everyone 'vaccinated' if lockdowns and not 'vaccines' made the difference? None of it makes sense on the face of it. Oh, but it does. The Cult wants lockdowns and the 'vaccine' and if the 'vaccine' is allowed to be seen as the total answer lockdowns would no longer be justified when there are still livelihoods to destroy. 'Variants' and renewed upward manipulation of PCR amplification are planned to instigate never-ending lockdown and more 'vaccines'.

You must have it – we're desperate

Israel, where the Jewish and Arab population are ruled by the Sabbatian Cult, was the front-runner in imposing the DNA-manipulating 'vaccine' on its people to such an extent that Jewish refusers began to liken what was happening to the early years of Nazi Germany. This would seem to be a fantastic claim. Why would a government of Jewish people be acting like the Nazis did? If you realise that the Sabbatian Cult was behind the Nazis and that Sabbatians hate Jews the pieces start to fit and the question of why a 'Jewish' government would treat Jews with such callous disregard for their lives and freedom finds an answer. Those controlling the government of Israel aren't Jewish – they're Sabbatian. Israeli lawyer Tamir Turgal was one who made the Nazi comparison in comments to German lawyer Reiner Fuellmich who is leading a class action lawsuit against the psychopaths for crimes against humanity. Turgal described how the Israeli government was vaccinating children and pregnant women on the basis that there was no evidence that this was dangerous when they had no evidence that it wasn't dangerous either. They just had no evidence. This was medical experimentation and Turgal said this breached the Nuremberg Code about medical experimentation and procedures requiring informed consent and choice. Think about that. A Nuremberg Code developed because of Nazi experimentation on Jews and others in concentration camps by people like the evil-beyond-belief Josef Mengele is being breached by the Israeli government; but when you know that it's a Sabbatian government along with its intelligence and military agencies like Mossad, Shin Bet and the Israeli Defense Forces, and that Sabbatians were the force behind the Nazis, the kaleidoscope comes into focus. What have we come to when Israeli Jews are suing their government for violating the Nuremberg Code by essentially making Israelis subject to a medical experiment using the controversial 'vaccines'? It's a shocker that this has to be done in the light of what happened in Nazi Germany. The Anshe Ha-Emet, or 'People of the Truth', made up of Israeli doctors, lawyers, campaigners and public, have launched a lawsuit with the International Criminal Court. It says:

When the heads of the Ministry of Health as well as the prime minister presented the vaccine in Israel and began the vaccination of Israeli residents, the vaccinated were not advised, that, in practice, they are taking part in a medical experiment and that their consent is required for this under the Nuremberg Code.

The irony is unbelievable, but easily explained in one word: Sabbatians. The foundation of Israeli 'Covid' apartheid is the 'green pass' or 'green passport' which allows Jews and Arabs who have had the DNA-manipulating 'vaccine' to go about their lives – to work, fly, travel in general, go to shopping malls, bars, restaurants, hotels, concerts, gyms, swimming pools, theatres and sports venues, while non-'vaccinated' are banned from all those places and activities. Israelis have likened the 'green pass' to the yellow stars that Jews in Nazi Germany were forced to wear – the same as the yellow stickers that a branch of UK supermarket chain Morrisons told exempt mask-wearers they had to display when shopping. How very sensitive. The Israeli system is blatant South African-style apartheid on the basis of compliance or non-compliance to fascism rather than colour of the skin. How appropriate that the Sabbatian Israeli government was so close to the pre-Mandela apartheid regime in Pretoria. The Sabbatian-instigated 'vaccine passport' in Israel is planned for everywhere. Sabbatians struck a deal with Pfizer that allowed them to lead the way in the percentage of a national population infused with synthetic material and the result was catastrophic. Israeli freedom activist Shai Dannon told me how chairs were appearing on beaches that said 'vaccinated only'. Health Minister Yuli Edelstein said that anyone unwilling or unable to get the jabs that 'confer immunity' will be 'left behind'. The man's a liar. Not even the makers claim the 'vaccines' confer immunity. When you see those figures of 'vaccine' deaths these psychopaths were saying that you must take the chance the 'vaccine' will kill you or maim you while knowing it will change your DNA or lockdown for you will be permanent. That's fascism. The Israeli parliament passed a law to allow personal information of the non-vaccinated to be shared with local and national authorities for three months. This was claimed by its supporters to be a way to 'encourage' people to be vaccinated. Hadas Ziv from Physicians for Human Rights described this as a 'draconian law which crushed medical ethics and the patient rights'. But that's the idea, the Sabbatians would reply.

Your papers, please

Sabbatian Israel was leading what has been planned all along to be a global 'vaccine pass' called a 'green passport' without which you would remain in permanent lockdown restriction and unable to do anything. This is how badly – desperately – the Cult is to get everyone 'vaccinated'. The term and colour 'green' was not by chance and related to the psychology of fusing the perception of the green climate hoax with the 'Covid' hoax and how the 'solution' to both is the same Great Reset. Lying politicians, health officials and psychologists denied there were any plans for mandatory vaccinations or restrictions based on vaccinations, but they knew that was exactly what was meant to happen with governments of all countries reaching agreements to enforce a global system. 'Free' Denmark and 'free' Sweden unveiled digital vaccine certification. Cyprus, Czech Republic, Estonia, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Italy, Poland, Portugal, Slovakia, and Spain have all committed to a vaccine passport system and the rest including the whole of the EU would follow. The satanic UK government will certainly go this way despite mendacious denials and at the time of writing it is trying to manipulate the public into having the 'vaccine' so they could go abroad on a summer holiday. How would that work without something to prove you had the synthetic toxicity injected into you?

Documents show that the EU's European Commission was moving towards 'vaccine certificates' in 2018 and 2019 before the 'Covid' hoax began. They knew what was coming. Abracadabra – Ursula von der Leyen, the German President of the Commission, announced in March, 2021, an EU 'Digital Green Certificate' – green again – to track the public's 'Covid status'. The passport sting is worldwide and the Far East followed the same pattern with South Korea ruling that only those with 'vaccination' passports – again the green pass – would be able to 'return to their daily lives'.

Bill Gates has been preparing for this 'passport' with other Cult operatives for years and beyond the paper version is a Gates-funded 'digital tattoo' to identify who has been vaccinated and who hasn't. The 'tattoo' is reported to include a substance which is externally readable to confirm who has been vaccinated. This is a bio-luminous light-generating enzyme (think fireflies) called ... Luciferase. Yes, named after the Cult 'god' Lucifer the 'light bringer' of whom more to come. Gates said he funded the readable tattoo to ensure children in the developing world were vaccinated and no one was missed out. He cares so much about poor kids as we know. This was just the cover story to develop a vaccine tagging system for everyone on the planet. Gates has been funding the ID2020 'alliance' to do just that in league with other lovely people at Microsoft, GAVI, the Rockefeller Foundation, Accenture and IDEO.org. He said in interviews in March, 2020, before any 'vaccine' publicly existed, that the world must have a globalised digital certificate to track the 'virus' and who had been vaccinated. Gates knew from the start that the mRNA vaccines were coming and when they would come and that the plan was to tag the 'vaccinated' to marginalise the intelligent and stop them doing anything including travel. Evil just doesn't suffice. Gates was exposed for offering a $10 million bribe to the Nigerian House of Representatives to invoke compulsory 'Covid' vaccination of all Nigerians. Sara Cunial, a member of the Italian Parliament, called Gates a 'vaccine criminal'. She urged the Italian President to hand him over to the International Criminal Court for crimes against humanity and condemned his plans to 'chip the human race' through ID2020.

You know it's a long-planned agenda when war criminal and Cult gofer Tony Blair is on the case. With the scale of arrogance only someone as dark as Blair can muster he said: 'Vaccination in the end is going to be your route to liberty.' Blair is a disgusting piece of work and he confirms that again. The media has given a lot of coverage to a bloke called Charlie Mullins, founder of London's biggest independent plumbing company, Pimlico Plumbers, who has said he won't employ anyone who has not been vaccinated or have them go to any home where people are not vaccinated. He said that if he had his way no one would be allowed to walk the streets if they have not been vaccinated. Gates was cheering at the time while I was alerting the white coats. The plan is that people will qualify for 'passports' for having the first two doses and then to keep it they will have to have all the follow ups and new ones for invented 'variants' until human genetics is transformed and many are dead who can't adjust to the changes. Hollywood celebrities – the usual propaganda stunt – are promoting something called the WELL Health-Safety Rating to verify that a building or space has 'taken the necessary steps to prioritize the health and safety of their staff, visitors and other stakeholders'. They included Lady Gaga, Jennifer Lopez, Michael B. Jordan, Robert DeNiro, Venus Williams, Wolfgang Puck, Deepak Chopra and 17th Surgeon General Richard Carmona. Yawn. WELL Health-Safety has big connections with China. Parent company Delos is headed by former Goldman Sachs partner Paul Scialla. This is another example – and we will see so many others – of using the excuse of 'health' to dictate the lives and activities of the population. I guess one confirmation of the 'safety' of buildings is that only 'vaccinated' people can go in, right?

Electronic concentration camps

I wrote decades ago about the plans to restrict travel and here we are for those who refuse to bow to tyranny. This can be achieved in one go with air travel if the aviation industry makes a blanket decree.

The 'vaccine' and guaranteed income are designed to be part of a global version of China's social credit system which tracks behaviour 24/7 and awards or deletes 'credits' based on whether your behaviour is supported by the state or not. I mean your entire lifestyle – what you do, eat, say, everything. Once your credit score falls below a certain level consequences kick in. In China tens of millions have been denied travel by air and train because of this. All the locations and activities denied to refusers by the 'vaccine' passports will be included in one big mass ban on doing almost anything for those that don't bow their head to government. It's beyond fascist and a new term is required to describe its extremes – I guess fascist technocracy will have to do. The way the Chinese system of technological – technocratic – control is sweeping the West can be seen in the Los Angeles school system and is planned to be expanded worldwide. Every child is required to have a 'Covid'-tracking app scanned daily before they can enter the classroom. The so-called Daily Pass tracking system is produced by Gates' Microsoft which I'm sure will shock you rigid. The pass will be scanned using a barcode (one step from an inside-the-body barcode) and the information will include health checks, 'Covid' tests and vaccinations. Entry codes are for one specific building only and access will only be allowed if a student or teacher has a negative test with a test not testing for the 'virus', has no symptoms of anything alleged to be related to 'Covid' (symptoms from a range of other illness), and has a temperature under 100 degrees. No barcode, no entry, is planned to be the case for everywhere and not only schools.

Kids are being psychologically prepared to accept this as 'normal' their whole life which is why what they can impose in schools is so important to the Cult and its gofers. Long-time American freedom campaigner John Whitehead of the Rutherford Institute was not exaggerating when he said: 'Databit by databit, we are building our own electronic concentration camps.' Canada under its Cult gofer prime minister Justin Trudeau has taken a major step towards the real thing with people interned against their will if they test positive with a test not testing for the 'virus' when they arrive at a Canadian airport. They are jailed in internment hotels often without food or water for long periods and with many doors failing to lock there have been sexual assaults. The interned are being charged sometimes $2,000 for the privilege of being abused in this way. Trudeau is fully on board with the Cult and says the 'Covid pandemic' has provided an opportunity for a global 'reset' to permanently change Western civilisation. His number two, Deputy Prime Minister Chrystia Freeland, is a trustee of the World Economic Forum and a Rhodes Scholar. The Trudeau family have long been servants of the Cult. See The Biggest Secret and Cathy O'Brien's book Trance-Formation of America for the horrific background to Trudeau's father Pierre Trudeau another Canadian prime minister. Hide your fascism behind the façade of a heart-on-the-sleeve liberal. It's a well-honed Cult technique.

What can the 'vaccine' really do?

We have a 'virus' never shown to exist and 'variants' of the 'virus' that have also never been shown to exist except, like the 'original', as computer-generated fictions. Even if you believe there's a 'virus' the 'case' to 'death' rate is in the region of 0.23 to 0.15 percent and those 'deaths' are concentrated among the very old around the same average age that people die anyway. In response to this lack of threat (in truth none) psychopaths and idiots, knowingly and unknowingly answering to Gates and the Cult, are seeking to 'vaccinate' every man, woman and child on Planet Earth. Clearly the 'vaccine' is not about 'Covid' – none of this ever has been. So what is it all about really? Why the desperation to infuse genetically-manipulating synthetic material into everyone through mRNA fraudulent 'vaccines' with the intent of doing this over and over with the excuses of 'variants' and other 'virus' inventions? Dr Sherri Tenpenny, an osteopathic medical doctor in the United States, has made herself an expert on vaccines and their effects as a vehement campaigner against their use. Tenpenny was board certified in emergency medicine, the director of a level two trauma centre for 12 years, and moved to Cleveland in 1996 to start an integrative medicine practice which has treated patients from all 50 states and some 17 other countries. Weaning people off pharmaceutical drugs is a speciality.

She became interested in the consequences of vaccines after attending a meeting at the National Vaccine Information Center in Washington DC in 2000 where she 'sat through four days of listening to medical doctors and scientists and lawyers and parents of vaccine injured kids' and asked: 'What's going on?' She had never been vaccinated and never got ill while her father was given a list of vaccines to be in the military and was 'sick his entire life'. The experience added to her questions and she began to examine vaccine documents from the Centers for Disease Control (CDC). After reading the first one, the 1998 version of The General Recommendations of Vaccination, she thought: 'This is it?' The document was poorly written and bad science and Tenpenny began 20 years of research into vaccines that continues to this day. She began her research into 'Covid vaccines' in March, 2020, and she describes them as 'deadly'. For many, as we have seen, they already have been. Tenpenny said that in the first 30 days of the 'vaccine' rollout in the United States there had been more than 40,000 adverse events reported to the vaccine adverse event database. A document had been delivered to her the day before that was 172 pages long. 'We have over 40,000 adverse events; we have over 3,100 cases of [potentially deadly] anaphylactic shock; we have over 5,000 neurological reactions.' Effects ranged from headaches to numbness, dizziness and vertigo, to losing feeling in hands or feet and paraesthesia which is when limbs 'fall asleep' and people have the sensation of insects crawling underneath their skin. All this happened in the first 30 days and remember that only about ten percent (or far less) of adverse reactions and vaccine-related deaths are estimated to be officially reported. Tenpenny said:

So can you think of one single product in any industry, any industry, for as long as products have been made on the planet that within 30 days we have 40,000 people complaining of side effects that not only is still on the market but ... we've got paid actors telling us how great they are for getting their vaccine. We're offering people $500 if they will just get their vaccine and we've got nurses and doctors going; 'I got the vaccine, I got the vaccine'.

Tenpenny said they were not going to be 'happy dancing folks' when they began to suffer Bell's palsy (facial paralysis), neuropathies, cardiac arrhythmias and autoimmune reactions that kill through a blood disorder. 'They're not going to be so happy, happy then, but we're never going to see pictures of those people' she said. Tenpenny described the 'vaccine' as 'a well-designed killing tool'.

No off-switch

Bad as the initial consequences had been Tenpenny said it would be maybe 14 months before we began to see the 'full ravage' of what is going to happen to the 'Covid vaccinated' with full-out consequences taking anything between two years and 20 years to show. You can understand why when you consider that variations of the 'Covid vaccine' use mRNA (messenger RNA) to in theory activate the immune system to produce protective antibodies without using the actual 'virus'. How can they when it's a computer program and they've never isolated what they claim is the 'real thing'? Instead they use synthetic mRNA. They are inoculating synthetic material into the body which through a technique known as the Trojan horse is absorbed into cells to change the nature of DNA. Human DNA is changed by an infusion of messenger RNA and with each new 'vaccine' of this type it is changed even more. Say so and you are banned by Cult Internet platforms. The contempt the contemptuous Mark Zuckerberg has for the truth and human health can be seen in an internal Facebook video leaked to the Project Veritas investigative team in which he said of the 'Covid vaccines': '... I share some caution on this because we just don't know the long term side-effects of basically modifying people's DNA and RNA.' At the same time this disgusting man's Facebook was censoring and banning anyone saying exactly the same. He must go before a Nuremberg trial for crimes against humanity when he knows that he is censoring legitimate concerns and denying the right of informed consent on behalf of the Cult that owns him. People have been killed and damaged by the very 'vaccination' technique he cast doubt on himself when they may not have had the 'vaccine' with access to information that he denied them. The plan is to have at least annual 'Covid vaccinations', add others to deal with invented 'variants', and change all other vaccines into the mRNA system. Pfizer executives told shareholders at a virtual Barclays Global Healthcare Conference in March, 2021, that the public may need a third dose of 'Covid vaccine', plus regular yearly boosters and the company planned to hike prices to milk the profits in a 'significant opportunity for our vaccine'. These are the professional liars, cheats and opportunists who are telling you their 'vaccine' is safe. Given this volume of mRNA planned to be infused into the human body and its ability to then replicate we will have a transformation of human genetics from biological to synthetic biological – exactly the long-time Cult plan for reasons we'll see – and many will die. Sherri Tenpenny said of this replication:

It's like having an on-button but no off-button and that whole mechanism ... they actually give it a name and they call it the Trojan horse mechanism, because it allows that [synthetic] virus and that piece of that [synthetic] virus to get inside of your cells, start to replicate and even get inserted into other parts of your DNA as a Trojan-horse.

Ask the overwhelming majority of people who have the 'vaccine' what they know about the contents and what they do and they would reply: 'The government says it will stop me getting the virus.' Governments give that false impression on purpose to increase take-up. You can read Sherri Tenpenny's detailed analysis of the health consequences in her blog at Vaxxter.com, but in summary these are some of them. She highlights the statement by Bill Gates about how human beings can become their own 'vaccine manufacturing machine'. The man is insane. ['Vaccine'-generated] 'antibodies' carry synthetic messenger RNA into the cells and the damage starts, Tenpenny contends, and she says that lungs can be adversely affected through varying degrees of pus and bleeding which obviously affects breathing and would be dubbed 'Covid-19'. Even more sinister was the impact of 'antibodies' on macrophages, a white blood cell of the immune system. They consist of Type 1 and Type 2 which have very different functions. She said Type 1 are 'hyper-vigilant' white blood cells which 'gobble up' bacteria etc. However, in doing so, this could cause inflammation and in extreme circumstances be fatal. She says these affects are mitigated by Type 2 macrophages which kick in to calm down the system and stop it going rogue. They clear up dead tissue debris and reduce inflammation that the Type 1 'fire crews' have caused. Type 1 kills the infection and Type 2 heals the damage, she says. This is her punchline with regard to 'Covid vaccinations': She says that mRNA 'antibodies' block Type 2 macrophages by attaching to them and deactivating them. This meant that when the Type 1 response was triggered by infection there was nothing to stop that getting out of hand by calming everything down. There's an on-switch, but no off-switch, she says. What follows can be 'over and out, see you when I see you'.

Genetic suicide

Tenpenny also highlights the potential for autoimmune disease – the body attacking itself – which has been associated with vaccines since they first appeared. Infusing a synthetic foreign substance into cells could cause the immune system to react in a panic believing that the body is being overwhelmed by an invader (it is) and the consequences can again be fatal. There is an autoimmune response known as a 'cytokine storm' which I have likened to a homeowner panicked by an intruder and picking up a gun to shoot randomly in all directions before turning the fire on himself. The immune system unleashes a storm of inflammatory response called cytokines to a threat and the body commits hara-kiri. The lesson is that you mess with the body's immune response at your peril and these 'vaccines' seriously – fundamentally – mess with immune response. Tenpenny refers to a consequence called anaphylactic shock which is a severe and highly dangerous allergic reaction when the immune system floods the body with chemicals. She gives the example of having a bee sting which primes the immune system and makes it sensitive to those chemicals. When people are stung again maybe years later the immune response can be so powerful that it leads to anaphylactic shock. Tenpenny relates this 'shock' with regard to the 'Covid vaccine' to something called polyethylene glycol or PEG. Enormous numbers of people have become sensitive to this over decades of use in a whole range of products and processes including food, drink, skin creams and 'medicine'. Studies have claimed that some 72 percent of people have antibodies triggered by PEG compared with two percent in the 1960s and allergic hypersensitive reactions to this become a gathering cause for concern. Tenpenny points out that the 'mRNA vaccine' is coated in a 'bubble' of polyethylene glycol which has the potential to cause anaphylactic shock through immune sensitivity. Many reports have appeared of people reacting this way after having the 'Covid vaccine'. What do we think is going to happen as humanity has more and more of these 'vaccines'?

Tenpenny said: 'All these pictures we have seen with people with these rashes ... these weepy rashes, big reactions on their arms and things like that – it's an acute allergic reaction most likely to the polyethylene glycol that you've been previously primed and sensitised to.'

Those who have not studied the conspiracy and its perpetrators at length might think that making the population sensitive to PEG and then putting it in these 'vaccines' is just a coincidence. It is not. It is instead testament to how carefully and coldly-planned current events have been and the scale of the conspiracy we are dealing with. Tenpenny further explains that the 'vaccine' mRNA procedure can breach the blood-brain barrier which protects the brain from toxins and other crap that will cause malfunction. In this case they could make two proteins corrupt brain function to cause Amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS), a progressive nervous system disease leading to loss of muscle control, and frontal lobe degeneration – Alzheimer's and dementia. Immunologist J. Bart Classon published a paper connecting mRNA 'vaccines' to prion disease which can lead to Alzheimer's and other forms of neurodegenerative disease while others have pointed out the potential to affect the placenta in ways that make women infertile. This will become highly significant in the next chapter when I will discuss other aspects of this non-vaccine that relate to its nanotechnology and transmission from the injected to the uninjected.

Qualified in idiocy

Tenpenny describes how research has confirmed that these 'vaccine'-generated antibodies can interact with a range of other tissues in the body and attack many other organs including the lungs. 'This means that if you have a hundred people standing in front of you that all got this shot they could have a hundred different symptoms.'

Anyone really think that Cult gofers like the Queen, Tony Blair, Christopher Whitty, Anthony Fauci, and all the other psychopaths have really had this 'vaccine' in the pictures we've seen? Not a bloody chance. Why don't doctors all tell us about all these dangers and consequences of the 'Covid vaccine'? Why instead do they encourage and pressure patients to have the shot? Don't let's think for a moment that doctors and medical staff can't be stupid, lazy, and psychopathic and that's without the financial incentives to give the jab. Tenpenny again:

Some people are going to die from the vaccine directly but a large number of people are going to start to get horribly sick and get all kinds of autoimmune diseases 42 days to maybe a year out. What are they going to do, these stupid doctors who say; 'Good for you for getting that vaccine.' What are they going to say; 'Oh, it must be a mutant, we need to give an extra dose of that vaccine.'

Because now the vaccine, instead of one dose or two doses we need three or four because the stupid physicians aren't taking the time to learn anything about it. If I can learn this sitting in my living room reading a 19 page paper and several others so can they. There's nothing special about me, I just take the time to do it.

Remember how Sara Kayat, the NHS and TV doctor, said that the 'Covid vaccine' would '100 percent prevent hospitalisation and death'. Doctors can be idiots like every other profession and they should not be worshipped as infallible. They are not and far from it. Behind many medical and scientific 'experts' lies an uninformed prat trying to hide themselves from you although in the 'Covid' era many have failed to do so as with UK narrative-repeating 'TV doctor' Hilary Jones. Pushing back against the minority of proper doctors and scientists speaking out against the 'vaccine' has been the entire edifice of the Cult global state in the form of governments, medical systems, corporations, mainstream media, Silicon Valley, and an army of compliant doctors, medical staff and scientists willing to say anything for money and to enhance their careers by promoting the party line. If you do that you are an 'expert' and if you won't you are an 'anti-vaxxer' and 'Covidiot'. The pressure to be 'vaccinated' is incessant. We have even had reports claiming that the 'vaccine' can help cure cancer and Alzheimer's and make the lame walk. I am waiting for the announcement that it can bring you coffee in the morning and cook your tea. Just as the symptoms of 'Covid' seem to increase by the week so have the miracles of the 'vaccine'. American supermarket giant Kroger Co. offered nearly 500,000 employees in 35 states a $100 bonus for having the 'vaccine' while donut chain Krispy Kreme promised 'vaccinated' customers a free glazed donut every day for the rest of 2021. Have your DNA changed and you will get a doughnut although we might not have to give you them for long. Such offers and incentives confirm the desperation.

Perhaps the worse vaccine-stunt of them all was UK 'Health' Secretary Matt-the-prat Hancock on live TV after watching a clip of someone being 'vaccinated' when the roll-out began. Hancock faked tears so badly it was embarrassing. Brain-of-Britain Piers Morgan, the lockdown-supporting, 'vaccine' supporting, 'vaccine' passport-supporting, TV host played along with Hancock – 'You're quite emotional about that' he said in response to acting so atrocious it would have been called out at a school nativity which will presumably today include Mary and Jesus in masks, wise men keeping their camels six feet apart, and shepherds under tent arrest. System-serving Morgan tweeted this: 'Love the idea of covid vaccine passports for everywhere: flights, restaurants, clubs, football, gyms, shops etc. It's time covid-denying, anti-vaxxer loonies had their bullsh*t bluff called & bar themselves from going anywhere that responsible citizens go.' If only I could aspire to his genius. To think that Morgan, who specialises in shouting over anyone he disagrees with, was lauded as a free speech hero when he lost his job after storming off the set of his live show like a child throwing his dolly out of the pram. If he is a free speech hero we are in real trouble. I have no idea what 'bullsh*t' means, by the way, the * throws me completely.

The Cult is desperate to infuse its synthetic DNA-changing concoction into everyone and has been using every lie, trick and intimidation to do so. The question of 'Why?' we shall now address.

CHAPTER TEN

Human 2.0

I believe that at the end of the century the use of words and general educated opinion will have altered so much that one will be able to speak of machines thinking without expecting to be contradicted – Alan Turing (1912-1954), the ‘Father of artificial intelligence’

I have been exposing for decades the plan to transform the human body from a biological to a synthetic-biological state. The new human that I will call Human 2.0 is planned to be connected to artificial intelligence and a global AI ‘Smart Grid’ that would operate as one global system in which AI would control everything from your fridge to your heating system to your car to your mind. Humans would no longer be ‘human’, but post-human and sub-human, with their thinking and emotional processes replaced by AI.

What I said sounded crazy and beyond science fiction and I could understand that. To any balanced, rational, mind it is crazy. Today, however, that world is becoming reality and it puts the ‘Covid vaccine’ into its true context. Ray Kurzweil is the ultra-Zionist ‘computer scientist, inventor and futurist’ and co-founder of the Singularity University. Singularity refers to the merging of humans with machines or ‘transhumanism’. Kurzweil has said humanity would be connected to the cyber ‘cloud’ in the period of the ever-recurring year of 2030:

Our thinking ... will be a hybrid of biological and non-biological thinking ... humans will be able to extend their limitations and ‘think in the cloud’ ... We’re going to put gateways to the cloud in our brains ... We're going to gradually merge and enhance ourselves ... In my view, that's the nature of being human – we transcend our limitations. As the technology becomes vastly superior to what we are then the small proportion that is still human gets smaller and smaller and smaller until it's just utterly negligible.

They are trying to sell this end-of-humanity-as-we-know-it as the next stage of 'evolution' when we become super-human and 'like the gods'. They are lying to you. Shocked, eh? The population, and again especially the young, have been manipulated into addiction to technologies designed to enslave them for life. First they induced an addiction to smartphones (holdables); next they moved to technology on the body (wearables); and then began the invasion of the body (implantables). I warned way back about the plan for microchipped people and we are now entering that era. We should not be diverted into thinking that this refers only to chips we can see. Most important are the nanochips known as smart dust, neural dust and nanobots which are far too small to be seen by the human eye. Nanotechnology is everywhere, increasingly in food products, and released into the atmosphere by the geoengineering of the skies funded by Bill Gates to 'shut out the Sun' and 'save the planet from global warming'. Gates has been funding a project to spray millions of tonnes of chalk (calcium carbonate) into the stratosphere over Sweden to 'dim the Sun' and cool the Earth. Scientists warned the move could be disastrous for weather systems in ways no one can predict and opposition led to the Swedish space agency announcing that the 'experiment' would not be happening as planned in the summer of 2021; but it shows where the Cult is going with dimming the impact of the Sun and there's an associated plan to change the planet's atmosphere. Who gives psychopath Gates the right to dictate to the entire human race and dismantle planetary systems? The world will not be safe while this man is at large.

The global warming hoax has made the Sun, like the gas of life, something to fear when both are essential to good health and human survival (more inversion). The body transforms sunlight into vital vitamin D through a process involving ... cholesterol. This is the cholesterol we are also told to fear. We are urged to take Big Pharma statin drugs to reduce cholesterol and it's all systematic. Reducing cholesterol means reducing vitamin D uptake with all the multiple health problems that will cause. At least if you take statins long term it saves the government from having to pay you a pension. The delivery system to block sunlight is widely referred to as chemtrails although these have a much deeper agenda, too. They appear at first to be contrails or condensation trails streaming from aircraft into cold air at high altitudes. Contrails disperse very quickly while chemtrails do not and spread out across the sky before eventually their content falls to earth. Many times I have watched aircraft cross-cross a clear blue sky releasing chemtrails until it looks like a cloudy day. Chemtrails contain many things harmful to humans and the natural world including toxic heavy metals, aluminium (see Alzheimer's) and nanotechnology. Ray Kurzweil reveals the reason without actually saying so: 'Nanobots will infuse all the matter around us with information. Rocks, trees, everything will become these intelligent creatures.' How do you deliver that? From the sky. Self-replicating nanobots would connect everything to the Smart Grid. The phenomenon of Morgellons disease began in the chemtrail era and the correlation has led to it being dubbed the 'chemtrail disease'. Self-replicating fibres appear in the body that can be pulled out through the skin. Morgellons fibres continue to grow outside the body and have a form of artificial intelligence. I cover this at greater length in Phantom Self.

'Vaccine' operating system

'Covid vaccines' with their self-replicating synthetic material are also designed to make the connection between humanity and Kurzweil's 'cloud'. American doctor and dedicated campaigner for truth, Carrie Madej, an Internal Medicine Specialist in Georgia with more than 20 years medical experience, has highlighted the nanotechnology aspect of the fake 'vaccines'. She explains how one of the components in at least the Moderna and Pfizer synthetic potions are 'lipid nanoparticles' which are 'like little tiny computer bits' – a 'sci-fi substance' known as nanobots and hydrogel which can be 'triggered at any moment to deliver its payload' and act as 'biosensors'. The synthetic substance had 'the ability to accumulate data from your body like your breathing, your respiration, thoughts and emotions, all kind of things' and each syringe could carry a million nanobots:

This substance because it's like little bits of computers in your body, crazy, but it's true, it can do that, [and] obviously has the ability to act through Wi-Fi. It can receive and transmit energy, messages, frequencies or impulses. That issue has never been addressed by these companies. What does that do to the human?

Just imagine getting this substance in you and it can react to things all around you, the 5G, your smart device, your phones, what is happening with that? What if something is triggering it, too, like an impulse, a frequency? We have something completely foreign in the human body.

Madej said her research revealed that electromagnetic (EMF) frequencies emitted by phones and other devices had increased dramatically in the same period of the 'vaccine' rollout and she was seeing more people with radiation problems as 5G and other electromagnetic technology was expanded and introduced to schools and hospitals. She said she was 'floored with the EMF coming off' the devices she checked. All this makes total sense and syncs with my own work of decades when you think that Moderna refers in documents to its mRNA 'vaccine' as an 'operating system':

Recognizing the broad potential of mRNA science, we set out to create an mRNA technology platform that functions very much like an operating system on a computer. It is designed so that it can plug and play interchangeably with different programs. In our case, the 'program' or 'app' is our mRNA drug – the unique mRNA sequence that codes for a protein ...

... Our MRNA Medicines – 'The 'Software Of Life': When we have a concept for a new mRNA medicine and begin research, fundamental components are already in place. Generally, the only thing that changes from one potential mRNA medicine to another is the coding region – the actual genetic code that instructs ribosomes to make protein. Utilizing these instruction sets gives our investigational mRNA medicines a software-like quality. We also have the ability to combine different mRNA sequences encoding for different proteins in a single mRNA investigational medicine.

Who needs a real 'virus' when you can create a computer version to justify infusing your operating system into the entire human race on the road to making living, breathing people into cyborgs? What is missed with the 'vaccines' is the digital connection between synthetic material and the body that I highlighted earlier with the study that hacked a computer with human DNA. On one level the body is digital, based on mathematical codes, and I'll have more about that in the next chapter. Those who ridiculously claim that mRNA 'vaccines' are not designed to change human genetics should explain the words of Dr Tal Zaks, chief medical officer at Moderna, in a 2017 TED talk. He said that over the last 30 years 'we've been living this phenomenal digital scientific revolution, and I'm here today to tell you, that we are actually hacking the software of life, and that it's changing the way we think about prevention and treatment of disease':

In every cell there's this thing called messenger RNA, or mRNA for short, that transmits the critical information from the DNA in our genes to the protein, which is really the stuff we're all made out of. This is the critical information that determines what the cell will do. So we think about it as an operating system. So if you could change that, if you could introduce a line of code, or change a line of code, it turns out, that has profound implications for everything, from the flu to cancer.

Zaks should more accurately have said that this has profound implications for the human genetic code and the nature of DNA. Communications within the body go both ways and not only one. But, hey, no, the 'Covid vaccine' will not affect your genetics. Cult fact-checkers say so even though the man who helped to develop the mRNA technique says that it does. Zaks said in 2017:

If you think about what it is we're trying to do. We've taken information and our understanding of that information and how that information is transmitted in a cell, and we've taken our understanding of medicine and how to make drugs, and we're fusing the two. We think of it as information therapy.

I have been writing for decades that the body is an information field communicating with itself and the wider world. This is why radiation which is information can change the information field of body and mind through phenomena like 5G and change their nature and function. 'Information therapy' means to change the body's information field and change the way it operates. DNA is a receiver-transmitter of information and can be mutated by information like mRNA synthetic messaging. Technology to do this has been ready and waiting in the underground bases and other secret projects to be rolled out when the 'Covid' hoax was played. 'Trials' of such short and irrelevant duration were only for public consumption. When they say the 'vaccine' is 'experimental' that is not true. It may appear to be 'experimental' to those who don't know what's going on, but the trials have already been done to ensure the Cult gets the result it desires. Zaks said that it took decades to sequence the human genome, completed in 2003, but now they could do it in a week. By 'they' he means scientists operating in the public domain. In the secret projects they were sequencing the genome in a week long before even 2003.

Deluge of mRNA

Highly significantly the Moderna document says the guiding premise is that if using mRNA as a medicine works for one disease then it should work for many diseases. They were leveraging the flexibility afforded by their platform and the fundamental role mRNA plays in protein synthesis to pursue mRNA medicines for a broad spectrum of diseases. Moderna is confirming what I was saying through 2020 that multiple 'vaccines' were planned for 'Covid' (and later invented 'variants') and that previous vaccines would be converted to the mRNA system to infuse the body with massive amounts of genetically-manipulating synthetic material to secure a transformation to a synthetic-biological state. The 'vaccines' are designed to kill stunning numbers as part of the long-exposed Cult depopulation agenda and transform the rest. Given this is the goal you can appreciate why there is such hysterical demand for every human to be 'vaccinated' for an alleged 'disease' that has an estimated 'infection' to 'death' ratio of 0.23-0.15 percent. As I write children are being given the 'vaccine' in trials (their parents are a disgrace) and ever-younger people are being offered the vaccine for a 'virus' that even if you believe it exists has virtually zero chance of harming them. Horrific effects of the 'trials' on a 12-year-old girl were revealed by a family member to be serious brain and gastric problems that included a bowel obstruction and the inability to swallow liquids or solids. She was unable to eat or drink without throwing up, had extreme pain in her back, neck and abdomen, and was paralysed from the waist down which stopped her urinating unaided. When the girl was first taken to hospital doctors said it was all in her mind. She was signed up for the 'trial' by her parents for whom no words suffice. None of this 'Covid vaccine' insanity makes any sense unless you see what the 'vaccine' really is – a body-changer. Synthetic biology or 'SynBio' is a fast-emerging and expanding scientific discipline which includes everything from genetic and molecular engineering to electrical and computer engineering. Synthetic biology is defined in these ways:

- A multidisciplinary area of research that seeks to create new biological parts, devices, and systems, or to redesign systems that are already found in nature.
- The use of a mixture of physical engineering and genetic engineering to create new (and therefore synthetic) life forms.
- An emerging field of research that aims to combine the knowledge and methods of biology, engineering and related disciplines in the design of chemically-synthesized DNA to create organisms with novel or enhanced characteristics and traits (synthetic organisms including humans).

We now have synthetic blood, skin, organs and limbs being developed along with synthetic body parts produced by 3D printers. These are all elements of the synthetic human programme and this comment by Kurzweil's co-founder of the Singularity University,

Peter Diamandis, can be seen in a whole new light with the 'Covid' hoax and the sanctions against those that refuse the 'vaccine':

Anybody who is going to be resisting the progress forward [to transhumanism] is going to be resisting evolution and, fundamentally, they will die out. It's not a matter of whether it's good or bad. It's going to happen.

'Resisting evolution'? What absolute bollocks. The arrogance of these people is without limit. His 'it's going to happen' mantra is another way of saying 'resistance is futile' to break the spirit of those pushing back and we must not fall for it. Getting this genetically-transforming 'vaccine' into everyone is crucial to the Cult plan for total control and the desperation to achieve that is clear for anyone to see. Vaccine passports are a major factor in this and they, too, are a form of resistance is futile. It's NOT. The paper funded by the Rockefeller Foundation for the 2013 'health conference' in China said:

We will interact more with artificial intelligence. The use of robotics, bio-engineering to augment human functioning is already well underway and will advance. Re-engineering of humans into potentially separate and unequal forms through genetic engineering or mixed human-robots raises debates on ethics and equality.

A new demography is projected to emerge after 2030 [that year again] of technologies (robotics, genetic engineering, nanotechnology) producing robots, engineered organisms, 'nanobots' and artificial intelligence (AI) that can self-replicate. Debates will grow on the implications of an impending reality of human designed life.

What is happening today is so long planned. The world army enforcing the will of the world government is intended to be a robot army, not a human one. Today's military and its technologically 'enhanced' troops, pilotless planes and driverless vehicles are just stepping stones to that end. Human soldiers are used as Cult fodder and its time they woke up to that and worked for the freedom of the population instead of their own destruction and their family's destruction – the same with the police. Join us and let's sort this out. The phenomenon of enforce my own destruction is widespread in the 'Covid' era with Woker 'luvvies' in the acting and entertainment industries supporting 'Covid' rules which have destroyed their profession and the same with those among the public who put signs on the doors of their businesses 'closed due to Covid – stay safe' when many will never reopen. It's a form of masochism and most certainly insanity.

Transgender = transhumanism

When something explodes out of nowhere and is suddenly everywhere it is always the Cult agenda and so it is with the tidal wave of claims and demands that have infiltrated every aspect of society under the heading of 'transgenderism'. The term 'trans' is so 'in' and this is the dictionary definition:

A prefix meaning 'across', 'through', occurring ... in loanwords from Latin, used in particular for denoting movement or conveyance from place to place (transfer; transmit; transplant) or complete change (transform; transmute), or to form adjectives meaning 'crossing', 'on the other side of', or 'going beyond' the place named (transmontane; transnational; trans-Siberian).

Transgender means to go beyond gender and transhuman means to go beyond human. Both are aspects of the Cult plan to transform the human body to a synthetic state with no gender. Human 2.0 is not designed to procreate and would be produced technologically with no need for parents. The new human would mean the end of parents and so men, and increasingly women, are being targeted for the deletion of their rights and status. Parental rights are disappearing at an ever-quickenning speed for the same reason. The new human would have no need for men or women when there is no procreation and no gender. Perhaps the transgender movement that appears to be in a permanent state of frenzy might now contemplate on how it is being used. This was never about transgender rights which are only the interim excuse for confusing gender, particularly in the young, on the road to fusing gender. Transgender activism is not an end; it is a means to an end. We see again the technique of creative destruction in which you destroy the status quo to 'build back better' in the form that you want. The gender status quo had to be destroyed by persuading the Cult-created Woke mentality to believe that you can have 100 genders or more. A programme for 9 to 12 year olds produced by the Cult-owned BBC promoted the 100 genders narrative. The very idea may be the most monumental nonsense, but it is not what is true that counts, only what you can make people believe is true. Once the gender of $2 + 2 = 4$ has been dismantled through indoctrination, intimidation and $2 + 2 = 5$ then the new no-gender normal can take its place with Human 2.0.

Aldous Huxley revealed the plan in his prophetic Brave New World in 1932:

Natural reproduction has been done away with and children are created, decanted', and raised in 'hatcheries and conditioning centres'. From birth, people are genetically designed to fit into one of five castes, which are further split into 'Plus' and 'Minus' members and designed to fulfil predetermined positions within the social and economic strata of the World State.

How could Huxley know this in 1932? For the same reason George Orwell knew about the Big Brother state in 1948, Cult insiders I have quoted knew about it in 1969, and I have known about it since the early 1990s. If you are connected to the Cult or you work your balls off to uncover the plan you can predict the future. The process is simple. If there is a plan for the world and nothing intervenes to stop it then it will happen. Thus if you communicate the plan ahead of time you are perceived to have predicted the future, but you haven't. You have revealed the plan which without intervention will become the human future. The whole reason I have done what I have is to alert enough people to inspire an intervention and maybe at last that time has come with the Cult and its intentions now so obvious to anyone with a brain in working order.

The future is here

Technological wombs that Huxley described to replace parent procreation are already being developed and they are only the projects we know about in the public arena. Israeli scientists told The Times of Israel in March, 2021, that they have grown 250-cell embryos into mouse fetuses with fully formed organs using artificial wombs in a development they say could pave the way for gestating humans outside the womb. Professor Jacob Hanna of the Weizmann Institute of Science said:

We took mouse embryos from the mother at day five of development, when they are just of 250 cells, and had them in the incubator from day five until day 11, by which point they had grown all their organs.

By day 11 they make their own blood and have a beating heart, a fully developed brain. Anybody would look at them and say, 'this is clearly a mouse foetus with all the characteristics of a mouse.' It's gone from being a ball of cells to being an advanced foetus.

A special liquid is used to nourish embryo cells in a laboratory dish and they float on the liquid to duplicate the first stage of embryonic development. The incubator creates all the right conditions for its development, Hanna said. The liquid gives the embryo 'all the nutrients, hormones and sugars they need' along with a custom-made electronic incubator which controls gas concentration, pressure and temperature. The cutting-edge in the underground bases and other secret locations will be light years ahead of that, however, and this was reported by the London Guardian in 2017:

We are approaching a biotechnological breakthrough. Ectogenesis, the invention of a complete external womb, could completely change the nature of human reproduction. In April this year, researchers at the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia announced their development of an artificial womb.

The article was headed 'Artificial wombs could soon be a reality. What will this mean for women?' What would it mean for children is an even bigger question. No mother to bond with only a machine in preparation for a life of soulless interaction and control in a world governed by machines (see the Matrix movies). Now observe the calculated manipulations of the 'Covid' hoax as human interaction and warmth has been curtailed by distancing, isolation and fear with people communicating via machines on a scale never seen before.

These are all dots in the same picture as are all the personal assistants, gadgets and children's toys through which kids and adults communicate with AI as if it is human. The AI 'voice' on Sat-Nav should be included. All these things are psychological preparation for the Cult endgame. Before you can make a physical connection with AI you have to make a psychological connection and that is what people are being conditioned to do with this ever gathering human-AI interaction. Movies and TV programmes depicting the transhuman, robot dystopia relate to a phenomenon known as 'pre-emptive programming' in which the world that is planned is portrayed everywhere in movies, TV and advertising. This is conditioning the conscious and subconscious mind to become familiar with the planned reality to dilute resistance when it happens for real. What would have been a shock such is the change is made less so. We have young children put on the road to transgender transition surgery with puberty blocking drugs at an age when they could never be able to make those life-changing decisions.

Rachel Levine, a professor of paediatrics and psychiatry who believes in treating children this way, became America's highest-ranked openly-transgender official when she was confirmed as US Assistant Secretary at the Department of Health and Human Services after being nominated by Joe Biden (the Cult). Activists and governments press for laws to deny parents a say in their children's transition process so the kids can be isolated and manipulated into agreeing to irreversible medical procedures. A Canadian father Robert Hoogland was denied bail by the Vancouver Supreme Court in 2021 and remained in jail for breaching a court order that he stay silent over his young teenage daughter, a minor, who was being offered life-changing hormone therapy without parental consent. At the age of 12 the girl's 'school counsellor' said she may be transgender, referred her to a doctor and told the school to treat her like a boy. This is another example of state-serving schools imposing ever more control over children's lives while parents have ever less.

Contemptible and extreme child abuse is happening all over the world as the Cult gender-fusion operation goes into warp-speed.

Why the war on men – and now women?

The question about what artificial wombs mean for women should rightly be asked. The answer can be seen in the deletion of women's rights involving sport, changing rooms, toilets and status in favour of people in male bodies claiming to identify as women. I can identify as a mountain climber, but it doesn't mean I can climb a mountain any more than a biological man can be a biological woman. To believe so is a triumph of belief over factual reality which is the very perceptual basis of everything Woke. Women's sport is being destroyed by allowing those with male bodies who say they identify as female to 'compete' with girls and women. Male body 'women' dominate 'women's' competition with their greater muscle mass, bone density, strength and speed. With that disadvantage sport for women loses all meaning. To put this in perspective nearly 300 American high school boys can run faster than the quickest woman sprinter in the world. Women are seeing their previously protected spaces invaded by male bodies simply because they claim to identify as women. That's all they need to do to access all women's spaces and activities under the Biden 'Equality Act' that destroys equality for women with the usual Orwellian Woke inversion. Male sex offenders have already committed rapes in women's prisons after claiming to identify as women to get them transferred. Does this not matter to the Woke 'equality' hypocrites? Not in the least. What matters to Cult manipulators and funders behind transgender activists is to advance gender fusion on the way to the no-gender 'human'. When you are seeking to impose transparent nonsense like this, or the 'Covid' hoax, the only way the nonsense can prevail is through censorship and intimidation of dissenters, deletion of factual information, and programming of the unquestioning, bewildered and naive. You don't have to scan the world for long to see that all these things are happening.

Many women's rights organisations have realised that rights and status which took such a long time to secure are being eroded and that it is systematic. Kara Dansky of the global Women's Human Rights Campaign said that Biden's transgender executive order immediately he took office, subsequent orders, and Equality Act legislation that followed 'seek to erase women and girls in the law as a category'. Exactly. I said during the long ago-started war on men (in which many women play a crucial part) that this was going to turn into a war on them. The Cult is phasing out both male and female genders. To get away with that they are brought into conflict so they are busy fighting each other while the Cult completes the job with no unity of response. Unity, people, unity. We need unity everywhere. Transgender is the only show in town as the big step towards the no-gender human. It's not about rights for transgender people and never has been. Woke political correctness is deleting words relating to genders to the same end. Wokers believe this is to be 'inclusive' when the opposite is true. They are deleting words describing gender because gender itself is being deleted by Human 2.0. Terms like 'man', 'woman', 'mother' and 'father' are being deleted in the universities and other institutions to be replaced by the no-gender, not trans-gender, 'individuals' and 'guardians'. Women's rights campaigner Maria Keffler of Partners for Ethical Care said: 'Children are being taught from kindergarten upward that some boys have a vagina, some girls have a penis, and that kids can be any gender they want to be.' Do we really believe that suddenly countries all over the world at the same time had the idea of having drag queens go into schools or read transgender stories to very young children in the local library? It's coldly-calculated confusion of gender on the way to the fusion of gender. Suzanne Vierling, a psychologist from Southern California, made another important point:

Yesterday's slave woman who endured gynecological medical experiments is today's girl-child being butchered in a booming gender-transitioning sector. Ovaries removed, pushing her into menopause and osteoporosis, uncharted territory, and parents' rights and authority decimated.

The erosion of parental rights is a common theme in line with the Cult plans to erase the very concept of parents and 'ovaries removed, pushing her into menopause' means what? Those born female lose the ability to have children – another way to discontinue humanity as we know it.

Eliminating Human 1.0 (before our very eyes)

To pave the way for Human 2.0 you must phase out Human 1.0. This is happening through plummeting sperm counts and making women infertile through an onslaught of chemicals, radiation (including smartphones in pockets of men) and mRNA 'vaccines'. Common agriculture pesticides are also having a devastating impact on human fertility. I have been tracking collapsing sperm counts in the books for a long time and in 2021 came a book by fertility scientist and reproductive epidemiologist Shanna Swan, Count Down: How Our Modern World Is Threatening Sperm Counts, Altering Male and Female Reproductive Development and Imperiling the Future of the Human Race. She reports how the global fertility rate dropped by half between 1960 and 2016 with America's birth rate 16 percent below where it needs to be to sustain the population. Women are experiencing declining egg quality, more miscarriages, and more couples suffer from infertility. Other findings were an increase in erectile dysfunction, infant boys developing more genital abnormalities, male problems with conception, and plunging levels of the male hormone testosterone which would explain why so many men have lost their backbone and masculinity. This has been very evident during the 'Covid' hoax when women have been prominent among the Pushbackers and big strapping blokes have bowed their heads, covered their faces with a nappy and quietly submitted. Mind control expert Cathy O'Brien also points to how global education introduced the concept of 'we're all winners' in sport and classrooms: 'Competition was defused, and it in turn defused a sense of fighting back.' This is another version of the 'equity' doctrine in which you drive down rather than raise up. What a contrast in Cult-controlled China with its global ambitions where the government published plans in January, 2021, to 'cultivate masculinity' in boys from kindergarten through to high school in the face of a 'masculinity crisis'. A government adviser said boys would be soon become 'delicate, timid and effeminate' unless action was taken. Don't expect any similar policy in the targeted West. A 2006 study showed that a 65-year-old man in 2002 had testosterone levels 15 percent lower than a 65-year-old man in 1987 while a 2020 study found a similar story with young adults and adolescents. Men are getting prescriptions for testosterone replacement therapy which causes an even greater drop in sperm count with up to 99 percent seeing sperm counts drop to zero during the treatment. More sperm is defective and malfunctioning with some having two heads or not pursuing an egg.

A class of synthetic chemicals known as phthalates are being blamed for the decline. These are found everywhere in plastics, shampoos, cosmetics, furniture, flame retardants, personal care products, pesticides, canned foods and even receipts. Why till receipts? Everyone touches them. Let no one delude themselves that all this is not systematic to advance the long-time agenda for human body transformation. Phthalates mimic hormones and disrupt the hormone balance causing testosterone to fall and genital birth defects in male infants. Animals and fish have been affected in the same way due to phthalates and other toxins in rivers. When fish turn gay or change sex through chemicals in rivers and streams it is a pointer to why there has been such an increase in gay people and the sexually confused. It doesn't matter to me what sexuality people choose to be, but if it's being affected by chemical pollution and consumption then we need to know. Does anyone really think that this is not connected to the transgender agenda, the war on men and the condemnation of male 'toxic masculinity'? You watch this being followed by 'toxic femininity'. It's already happening. When breastfeeding becomes 'chest-feeding', pregnant women become pregnant people along with all the other Woke claptrap you know that the world is going insane and there's a Cult scam in progress. Transgender activists are promoting the Cult agenda while Cult billionaires support and fund the insanity as they laugh themselves to sleep at the sheer stupidity for which humans must be infamous in galaxies far, far away.

'Covid vaccines' and female infertility

We can now see why the 'vaccine' has been connected to potential infertility in women. Dr Michael Yeadon, former Vice President and Chief Scientific Advisor at Pfizer, and Dr Wolfgang Wodarg in Germany, filed a petition with the European Medicines Agency in December, 2020, urging them to stop trials for the Pfizer/BioNTech shot and all other mRNA trials until further studies had been done. They were particularly concerned about possible effects on fertility with 'vaccine'-produced antibodies attacking the protein Syncytin-1 which is responsible for developing the placenta. The result would be infertility 'of indefinite duration' in women who have the 'vaccine' with the placenta failing to form. Section 10.4.2 of the Pfizer/BioNTech trial protocol says that pregnant women or those who might become so should not have mRNA shots. Section 10.4 warns men taking mRNA shots to 'be abstinent from heterosexual intercourse' and not to donate sperm. The UK government said that it did not know if the mRNA procedure had an effect on fertility. Did not know? These people have to go to jail. UK government advice did not recommend at the start that pregnant women had the shot and said they should avoid pregnancy for at least two months after 'vaccination'. The 'advice' was later updated to pregnant women should only have the 'vaccine' if the benefits outweighed the risks to mother and foetus. What the hell is that supposed to mean? Then 'spontaneous abortions' began to appear and rapidly increase on the adverse reaction reporting schemes which include only a fraction of adverse reactions. Thousands and ever-growing numbers of 'vaccinated' women are describing changes to their menstrual cycle with heavier blood flow, irregular periods and menstruating again after going through the menopause – all links to reproduction effects. Women are passing blood clots and the lining of their uterus while men report erectile dysfunction and blood effects. Most significantly of all unvaccinated women began to report similar menstrual changes after interaction with 'vaccinated' people and men and children were also affected with bleeding noses, blood clots and other conditions. 'Shedding' is when vaccinated people can emit the content of a vaccine to affect the unvaccinated, but this is different. 'Vaccinated' people were not shedding a 'live virus' allegedly in 'vaccines' as before because the fake 'Covid vaccines' involve synthetic material and other toxicity. Doctors exposing what is happening prefer the term 'transmission' to shedding. Somehow those that have had the shots are transmitting effects to those that haven't. Dr Carrie Madej said the nano-content of the 'vaccines' can 'act like an antenna' to others around them which fits perfectly with my own conclusions. This 'vaccine' transmission phenomenon was becoming known as the book went into production and I deal with this further in the Postscript.

Vaccine effects on sterility are well known. The World Health Organization was accused in 2014 of sterilising millions of women in Kenya with the evidence confirmed by the content of the vaccines involved. The same WHO behind the 'Covid' hoax admitted its involvement for more than ten years with the vaccine programme. Other countries made similar claims. Charges were lodged by Tanzania, Nicaragua, Mexico, and the Philippines. The Gardasil vaccine claimed to protect against a genital 'virus' known as HPV has also been linked to infertility. Big Pharma and the WHO (same thing) are criminal and satanic entities. Then there's the Bill Gates Foundation which is connected through funding and shared interests with 20 pharmaceutical giants and laboratories. He stands accused of directing the policy of United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), vaccine alliance GAVI, and other groupings, to advance the vaccine agenda and silence opposition at great cost to women and children. At the same time Gates wants to reduce the global population. Coincidence?

Great Reset = Smart Grid = new human

The Cult agenda I have been exposing for 30 years is now being openly promoted by Cult assets like Gates and Klaus Schwab of the World Economic Forum under code-terms like the 'Great Reset', 'Build Back Better' and 'a rare but narrow window of opportunity to reflect, reimagine, and reset our world'. What provided this 'rare but narrow window of opportunity'? The 'Covid' hoax did. Who created that? They did. My books from not that long ago warned about the planned 'Internet of Things' (IoT) and its implications for human freedom. This was the plan to connect all technology to the Internet and artificial intelligence and today we are way down that road with an estimated 36 billion devices connected to the World Wide Web and that figure is projected to be 76 billion by 2025. I further warned that the Cult planned to go beyond that to the Internet of Everything when the human brain was connected via AI to the Internet and Kurzweil's 'cloud'. Now we have Cult operatives like Schwab calling for precisely that under the term 'Internet of Bodies', a fusion of the physical, digital and biological into one centrally-controlled Smart Grid system which the Cult refers to as the 'Fourth Industrial Revolution'. They talk about the 'biological', but they really mean the synthetic-biological which is required to fully integrate the human body and brain into the Smart Grid and artificial intelligence planned to replace the human mind. We have everything being synthetically manipulated including the natural world through GMO and smart dust, the food we eat and the human body itself with synthetic 'vaccines'. I said in The Answer that we would see the Cult push for synthetic meat to replace animals and in February, 2021, the so predictable psychopath Bill Gates called for the introduction of synthetic meat to save us all from 'climate change'. The climate hoax just keeps on giving like the 'Covid' hoax. The war on meat by vegan activists is a carbon (oops, sorry) copy of the manipulation of transgender activists. They have no idea (except their inner core) that they are being used to promote and impose the agenda of the Cult or that they are only the vehicle and not the reason. This is not to say those who choose not to eat meat shouldn't be respected and supported in that right, but there are ulterior motives for those in power. A Forbes article in December, 2019, highlighted the plan so beloved of Schwab and the Cult under the heading: 'What Is The Internet of Bodies? And How Is It Changing Our World?' The article said the human body is the latest data platform (remember 'our vaccine is an operating system'). Forbes described the plan very accurately and the words could have come straight out of my books from long before:

The Internet of Bodies (IoB) is an extension of the IoT and basically connects the human body to a network through devices that are ingested, implanted, or connected to the body in some way. Once connected, data can be exchanged, and the body and device can be remotely monitored and controlled.

They were really describing a human hive mind with human perception centrally-dictated via an AI connection as well as allowing people to be 'remotely monitored and controlled'. Everything from a fridge to a human mind could be directed from a central point by these insane psychopaths and 'Covid vaccines' are crucial to this. Forbes explained the process I mentioned earlier of holdable and wearable technology followed by implantable. The article said there were three generations of the Internet of Bodies that include:

- Body external: These are wearable devices such as Apple Watches or Fitbits that can monitor our health.
- Body internal: These include pacemakers, cochlear implants, and digital pills that go inside our bodies to monitor or control various aspects of health.
- Body embedded: The third generation of the Internet of Bodies is embedded technology where technology and the human body are melded together and have a real-time connection to a remote machine.

Forbes noted the development of the Brain Computer Interface (BCI) which merges the brain with an external device for monitoring and controlling in real-time. 'The ultimate goal is to help restore function to individuals with disabilities by using brain signals rather than conventional neuromuscular pathways.' Oh, do fuck off. The goal of brain interface technology is controlling human thought and emotion from the central point in a hive mind serving its masters wishes. Many people are now agreeing to be chipped to open doors without a key. You can recognise them because they'll be wearing a mask, social distancing and lining up for the 'vaccine'. The Cult plans a Great Reset money system after they have completed the demolition of the global economy in which 'money' will be exchanged through communication with body operating systems. Rand Corporation, a Cult-owned think tank, said of the Internet of Bodies or IoB:

Internet of Bodies technologies fall under the broader IoT umbrella. But as the name suggests, IoB devices introduce an even more intimate interplay between humans and gadgets. IoB devices monitor the human body, collect health metrics and other personal information, and transmit those data over the Internet. Many devices, such as fitness trackers, are already in use ... IoB devices ... and those in development can track, record, and store users' whereabouts, bodily functions, and what they see, hear, and even think.

Schwab's World Economic Forum, a long-winded way of saying 'fascism' or 'the Cult', has gone full-on with the Internet of Bodies in the 'Covid' era. 'We're entering the era of the Internet of Bodies', it declared, 'collecting our physical data via a range of devices that can be implanted, swallowed or worn'. The result would be a huge amount of health-related data that could improve human wellbeing around the world, and prove crucial in fighting the 'Covid-19 pandemic'. Does anyone think these clowns care about 'human wellbeing' after the death and devastation their pandemic hoax has purposely caused? Schwab and co say we should move forward with the Internet of Bodies because 'Keeping track of symptoms could help us stop the spread of infection, and quickly detect new cases'. How wonderful, but keeping track' is all they are really bothered about. Researchers were investigating if data gathered from smartwatches and similar devices could be used as viral infection alerts by tracking the user's heart rate and breathing. Schwab said in his 2018 book Shaping the Future of the Fourth Industrial Revolution:

The lines between technologies and beings are becoming blurred and not just by the ability to create lifelike robots or synthetics. Instead it is about the ability of new technologies to literally become part of us. Technologies already influence how we understand ourselves, how we think about each other, and how we determine our realities. As the technologies ... give us deeper access to parts of ourselves, we may begin to integrate digital technologies into our bodies.

You can see what the game is. Twenty-four hour control and people – if you could still call them that – would never know when something would go ping and take them out of circulation. It's the most obvious rush to a global fascist dictatorship and the complete submission of humanity and yet still so many are locked away in their Cult-induced perceptual coma and can't see it.

Smart Grid control centres

The human body is being transformed by the 'vaccines' and in other ways into a synthetic cyborg that can be attached to the global Smart Grid which would be controlled from a central point and other sub-locations of Grid manipulation. Where are these planned to be? Well, China for a start which is one of the Cult's biggest centres of operation. The technological control system and technocratic rule was incubated here to be unleashed across the world after the 'Covid' hoax came out of China in 2020. Another Smart Grid location that will surprise people new to this is Israel. I have exposed in The Trigger how Sabbatian technocrats, intelligence and military operatives were behind the horrors of 9/11 and not 19 Arab hijackers' who somehow manifested the ability to pilot big passenger airliners when instructors at puddle-jumping flying schools described some of them as a joke. The 9/11 attacks were made possible through control of civilian and military air computer systems and those of the White House, Pentagon and connected agencies. See The Trigger – it will blow your mind. The controlling and coordinating force were the Sabbatian networks in Israel and the United States which by then had infiltrated the entire US government, military and intelligence system. The real name of the American Deep State is 'Sabbatian State'. Israel is a tiny country of only nine million people, but it is one of the global centres of cyber operations and fast catching Silicon Valley in importance to the Cult. Israel is known as the 'start-up nation' for all the cyber companies spawned there with the Sabbatian specialisation of 'cyber security' that I mentioned earlier which gives those companies access to computer systems of their clients in real time through 'backdoors' written into the coding when security software is downloaded. The Sabbatian centre of cyber operations outside Silicon Valley is the Israeli military Cyber Intelligence Unit, the biggest infrastructure project in Israel's history, headquartered in the desert-city of Beersheba and involving some 20,000 'cyber soldiers'. Here are located a literal army of Internet trolls scanning social media, forums and comment lists for anyone challenging the Cult agenda. The UK military has something similar with its 77th Brigade and associated operations. The Beersheba complex includes research and development centres for other Cult operations such as Intel, Microsoft, IBM, Google, Apple, Hewlett-Packard, Cisco Systems, Facebook and Motorola. Techcrunch.com ran an article about the Beersheba global Internet technology centre headlined 'Israel's desert city of Beersheba is turning into a cybertech oasis':

The military's massive relocation of its prestigious technology units, the presence of multinational and local companies, a close proximity to Ben Gurion University and generous government subsidies are turning Beersheba into a major global cybertech hub. Beersheba has all of the ingredients of a vibrant security technology ecosystem, including Ben Gurion University with its graduate program in cybersecurity and Cyber Security Research Center, and the presence of companies such as EMC, Deutsche Telekom, PayPal, Oracle, IBM, and Lockheed Martin. It's also the future home of the INCB (Israeli National Cyber Bureau); offers a special income tax incentive for cyber security companies, and was the site for the relocation of the army's intelligence corps units.

Sabbatians have taken over the cyber world through the following process: They scan the schools for likely cyber talent and develop them at Ben Gurion University and their period of conscription in the Israeli Defense Forces when they are stationed at the Beersheba complex. When the cyber talented officially leave the army they are funded to start cyber companies with technology developed by themselves or given to them by the state. Much of this is stolen through backdoors of computer systems around the world with America top of the list. Others are sent off to Silicon Valley to start companies or join the major ones and so we have many major positions filled by apparently 'Jewish' but really Sabbatian operatives. Google, YouTube and Facebook are all run by 'Jewish' CEOs while Twitter is all but run by ultra-Zionist hedge-fund shark Paul Singer. At the centre of the Sabbatian global cyber web is the Israeli army's Unit 8200 which specialises in hacking into computer systems of other countries, inserting viruses, gathering information, instigating malfunction, and even taking control of them from a distance. A long list of Sabbatians involved with 9/11, Silicon Valley and Israeli cyber security companies are operatives of Unit 8200. This is not about Israel. It's about the Cult. Israel is planned to be a Smart Grid hub as with China and what is happening at Beersheba is not for the benefit of Jewish people who are treated disgustingly by the Sabbatian elite that control the country. A glance at the Nuremberg Codes will tell you that.

The story is much bigger than 'Covid', important as that is to where we are being taken. Now, though, it's time to really strap in. There's more ... much more ...

CHAPTER ELEVEN

Who controls the Cult?

Awake, arise or be forever fall'n
John Milton, Paradise Lost

I have exposed this far the level of the Cult conspiracy that operates in the world of the seen and within the global secret society and satanic network which operates in the shadows one step back from the seen. The story, however, goes much deeper than that.

The 'Covid' hoax is major part of the Cult agenda, but only part, and to grasp the biggest picture we have to expand our attention beyond the realm of human sight and into the infinity of possibility that we cannot see. It is from here, ultimately, that humanity is being manipulated into a state of total control by the force which dictates the actions of the Cult. How much of reality can we see? Next to damn all is the answer. We may appear to see all there is to see in the 'space' our eyes survey and observe, but little could be further from the truth. The human 'world' is only a tiny band of frequency that the body's visual and perceptual systems can decode into perception of a 'world'. According to mainstream science the electromagnetic spectrum is 0.005 percent of what exists in the Universe (Fig 10). The maximum estimate I have seen is 0.5 percent and either way it's miniscule. I say it is far, far, smaller even than 0.005 percent when you compare reality we see with the totality of reality that we don't. Now get this if you are new to such information: Visible light, the only band of frequency that we can see, is a fraction of the 0.005 percent (Fig 11 overleaf). Take this further and realise that our universe is one of infinite universes and that universes are only a fragment of overall reality – infinite reality. Then compare that with the almost infinitesimal frequency band of visible light or human sight. You see that humans are as near blind as it is possible to be without actually being so. Artist and filmmaker, Sergio Toporek, said:

Figure 11: We can see a smear of the 0.005 percent electromagnetic spectrum, but we still know it all. Yep, makes sense.

Consider that you can see less than 1% of the electromagnetic spectrum and hear less than 1% of the acoustic spectrum. 90% of the cells in your body carry their own microbial DNA and are not 'you'. The atoms in your body are 99.9999999999999999% empty space and none of them are the ones you were born with ... Human beings have 46 chromosomes, two less than a potato.

The existence of the rainbow depends on the conical photoreceptors in your eyes; to animals without cones, the rainbow does not exist. So you don't just look at a rainbow, you create it. This is pretty amazing, especially considering that all the beautiful colours you see represent less than 1% of the electromagnetic spectrum.

Suddenly the 'world' of humans looks a very different place. Take into account, too, that Planet Earth when compared with the projected size of this single universe is the equivalent of a billionth of a pinhead. Imagine the ratio that would be when compared to infinite reality. To think that Christianity once insisted that Earth and humanity were the centre of everything. This background is vital if we are going to appreciate the nature of 'human' and how we can be manipulated by an unseen force. To human visual reality virtually everything is unseen and yet the prevailing perception within the institutions and so much of the public is that if we can't see it, touch it, hear it, taste it and smell it then it cannot exist. Such perception is indoctrinated and encouraged by the Cult and its agents because it isolates believers in the strictly limited, village-idiot, realm of the five senses where perceptions can be firewalled and information controlled. Most of those perpetuating the 'this-world-is-all-there-is' insanity are themselves indoctrinated into believing the same delusion. While major players and influencers know that official reality is laughable most of those in science, academia and medicine really believe the nonsense they peddle and teach succeeding generations. Those who challenge the orthodoxy are dismissed as nutters and freaks to protect the manufactured illusion from exposure. Observe the dynamic of the 'Covid' hoax and you will see how that takes the same form. The inner-circle psychopaths knows it's a gigantic scam, but almost the entirety of those imposing their fascist rules believe that 'Covid' is all that they're told it is.

Stolen identity

Ask people who they are and they will give you their name, place of birth, location, job, family background and life story. Yet that is not who they are – it is what they are experiencing. The difference is absolutely crucial. The true 'I', the eternal, infinite 'I', is consciousness, a state of being aware. Forget 'form'. That is a vehicle for a brief experience. Consciousness does not come from the brain, but through the brain and even that is more symbolic than literal. We are awareness, pure awareness, and this is what withdraws from the body at what we call 'death' to continue our eternal beingness, isness, in other realms of reality within the limitlessness of infinity or the Biblical 'many mansions in my father's house'. Labels of a human life, man, woman, transgender, black, white, brown, nationality, circumstances and income are not who we are. They are what we are – awareness – is experiencing in a brief connection with a band of frequency we call 'human'. The labels are not the self; they are, to use the title of one of my books, a Phantom Self. I am not David Icke born in Leicester, England, on April 29th, 1952. I am the consciousness having that experience. The Cult and its non-human masters seek to convince us through the institutions of 'education', science, medicine, media and government that what we are experiencing is who we are. It's so easy to control and direct perception locked away in the bewildered illusions of the five senses with no expanded radar. Try, by contrast, doing the same with a humanity aware of its true self and its true power to consciously create its reality and experience. How is it possible to do this? We do it all day every day. If you perceive yourself as 'little me' with no power to impact upon your life and the world then your life experience will reflect that. You will hand the power you don't think you have to authority in all its forms which will use it to control your experience. This, in turn, will appear to confirm your perception of 'little me' in a self-fulfilling feedback loop. But that is what 'little me' really is – a perception. We are all 'big-me', infinite me, and the Cult has to make us forget that if its will is to prevail. We are therefore manipulated and pressured into self-identifying with human labels and not the consciousness/awareness experiencing those human labels.

The phenomenon of identity politics is a Cult-instigated manipulation technique to sub-divide previous labels into even smaller ones. A United States university employs this list of letters to describe student identity: LGBTTQQFAGPBDSM or lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, transsexual, queer, questioning, flexual, asexual, gender-fuck, polyamorous, bondage/discipline, dominance/submission and sadism/masochism. I'm sure other lists are even longer by now as people feel the need to self-identity the 'I' with the minutiae of race and sexual preference. Wokers programmed by the Cult for generations believe this is about 'inclusivity' when it's really the Cult locking them away into smaller and smaller versions of Phantom Self while firewalling them from the influence of their true self, the infinite, eternal 'I'. You may notice that my philosophy which contends that we are all unique points of attention/awareness within the same infinite whole or Oneness is the ultimate non-racism. The very sense of Oneness makes the judgement of people by their body-type, colour or sexuality utterly ridiculous and confirms that racism has no understanding of reality (including anti-white racism). Yet despite my perception of life Cult agents and fast-asleep Wokers label me racist to discredit my information while they are themselves phenomenally racist and sexist. All they see is race and sexuality and they judge people as good or bad, demons or untouchables, by their race and sexuality. All they see is Phantom Self and perceive themselves in terms of Phantom Self. They are pawns and puppets of the Cult agenda to focus attention and self-identity in the five senses and play those identities against each other to divide and rule. Columbia University has introduced segregated graduations in another version of social distancing designed to drive people apart and teach them that different racial and cultural groups have nothing in common with each other. The last thing the Cult wants is unity. Again the pump-primers of this will be Cult operatives in the knowledge of what they are doing, but the rest are just the Phantom Self blind leading the Phantom Self blind. We do have something in common – we are all the same consciousness having different temporary experiences.

What is this 'human'?

Yes, what is 'human'? That is what we are supposed to be, right? I mean 'human'? True, but 'human' is the experience not the 'I'. Break it down to basics and 'human' is the way that information is processed. If we are to experience and interact with this band of frequency we call the 'world' we must have a vehicle that operates within that band of frequency. Our consciousness in its prime form cannot do that; it is way beyond the frequency of the human realm. My consciousness or awareness could not tap these keys and pick up the cup in front of me in the same way that radio station A cannot interact with radio station B when they are on different frequencies. The human body is the means through which we have that interaction. I have long described the body as a biological computer which processes information in a way that allows consciousness to experience this reality. The body is a receiver, transmitter and processor of information in a particular way that we call human. We visually perceive only the world of the five senses in a wakened state – that is the limit of the body's visual decoding system. In truth it's not even visual in the way we experience 'visual reality' as I will come to in a moment. We are 'human' because the body processes the information sources of human into a reality and behaviour system that we perceive as human. Why does an elephant act like an elephant and not like a human or a duck? The elephant's biological computer is a different information field and processes information according to that program into a visual and behaviour type we call an elephant. The same applies to everything in our reality. These body information fields are perpetuated through procreation (like making a copy of a software program). The Cult wants to break that cycle and intervene technologically to transform the human information field into one that will change what we call humanity. If it can change the human information field it will change the way that field processes information and change humanity both 'physically' and psychologically. Hence the messenger (information) RNA 'vaccines' and so much more that is targeting human genetics by changing the body's information – messaging – construct through food, drink, radiation, toxicity and other means.

Reality that we experience is nothing like reality as it really is in the same way that the reality people experience in virtual reality games is not the reality they are really living in. The game is only a decoded source of information that appears to be a reality. Our world is also an information construct – a simulation (more later). In its base form our reality is a wavefield of information much the same in theme as Wi-Fi. The five senses decode wavefield information into electrical information which they communicate to the brain to decode into holographic (illusory ‘physical’) information. Different parts of the brain specialise in decoding different senses and the information is fused into a reality that appears to be outside of us but is really inside the brain and the genetic structure in general (Fig 12 overleaf). DNA is a receiver-transmitter of information and a vital part of this decoding process and the body’s connection to other realities. Change DNA and you change the way we decode and connect with reality – see ‘Covid vaccines’. Think of computers decoding Wi-Fi. You have information encoded in a radiation field and the computer decodes that information into a very different form on the screen. You can’t see the Wi-Fi until its information is made manifest on the screen and the information on the screen is inside the computer and not outside. I have just described how we decode the ‘human world’. All five senses decode the waveform ‘Wi-Fi’ field into electrical signals and the brain (computer) constructs reality inside the brain and not outside – ‘You don’t just look at a rainbow, you create it’. Sound is a simple example. We don’t hear sound until the brain decodes it. Waveform sound waves are picked up by the hearing sense and communicated to the brain in an electrical form to be decoded into the sounds that we hear. Everything we hear is inside the brain along with everything we see, feel, smell and taste. Words and language are waveform fields generated by our vocal chords which pass through this process until they are decoded by the brain into words that we hear. Different languages are different frequency fields or sound waves generated by vocal chords. Late British philosopher Alan Watts said:

Figure 12: The brain receives information from the five senses and constructs from that our perceived reality.

[Without the brain] the world is devoid of light, heat, weight, solidity, motion, space, time or any other imaginable feature. All these phenomena are interactions, or transactions, of vibrations with a certain arrangement of neurons.

That's exactly what they are and scientist Robert Lanza describes in his book, Biocentrism, how we decode electromagnetic waves and energy into visual and 'physical' experience. He uses the example of a flame emitting photons, electromagnetic energy, each pulsing electrically and magnetically:

... these ... invisible electromagnetic waves strike a human retina, and if (and only if) the waves happen to measure between 400 and 700 nano meters in length from crest to crest, then their energy is just right to deliver a stimulus to the 8 million cone-shaped cells in the retina.

Each in turn send an electrical pulse to a neighbour neuron, and on up the line this goes, at 250 mph, until it reaches the ... occipital lobe of the brain, in the back of the head. There, a cascading complex of neurons fire from the incoming stimuli, and we subjectively perceive this experience as a yellow brightness occurring in a place we have been conditioned to call the 'external world'.

You hear what you decode

If a tree falls or a building collapses they make no noise unless someone is there to decode the energetic waves generated by the disturbance into what we call sound. Does a falling tree make a noise? Only if you hear it – decode it. Everything in our reality is a frequency field of information operating within the overall ‘Wi-Fi’ field that I call The Field. A vibrational disturbance is generated in The Field by the fields of the falling tree or building. These disturbance waves are what we decode into the sound of them falling. If no one is there to do that then neither will make any noise. Reality is created by the observer – decoder – and the perceptions of the observer affect the decoding process. For this reason different people – different perceptions – will perceive the same reality or situation in a different way. What one may perceive as a nightmare another will see as an opportunity. The question of why the Cult is so focused on controlling human perception now answers itself. All experienced reality is the act of decoding and we don’t experience Wi-Fi until it is decoded on the computer screen. The sight and sound of an Internet video is encoded in the Wi-Fi all around us, but we don’t see or hear it until the computer decodes that information. Taste, smell and touch are all phenomena of the brain as a result of the same process. We don’t taste, smell or feel anything except in the brain and there are pain relief techniques that seek to block the signal from the site of discomfort to the brain because if the brain doesn’t decode that signal we don’t feel pain. Pain is in the brain and only appears to be at the point of impact thanks to the feedback loop between them. We don’t see anything until electrical information from the sight senses is decoded in an area at the back of the brain. If that area is damaged we can go blind when our eyes are perfectly okay. So why do we go blind if we damage an eye? We damage the information processing between the waveform visual information and the visual decoding area of the brain. If information doesn’t reach the brain in a form it can decode then we can’t see the visual reality that it represents. What’s more the brain is decoding only a fraction of the information it receives and the rest is absorbed by the sub-conscious mind. This explanation is from the science magazine, Wonderpedia:

Every second, 11 million sensations crackle along these [brain] pathways ... The brain is confronted with an alarming array of images, sounds and smells which it rigorously filters down until it is left with a manageable list of around 40. Thus 40 sensations per second make up what we perceive as reality.

The 'world' is not what people are told to believe that is it and the inner circles of the Cult know that.

Illusory 'physical' reality

We can only see a smear of 0.005 percent of the Universe which is only one of a vast array of universes – 'mansions' – within infinite reality. Even then the brain decodes only 40 pieces of information ('sensations') from a potential 11 million that we receive every second. Two points strike you from this immediately: The sheer breathtaking stupidity of believing we know anything so rigidly that there's nothing more to know; and the potential for these processes to be manipulated by a malevolent force to control the reality of the population. One thing I can say for sure with no risk of contradiction is that when you can perceive an almost indescribable fraction of infinite reality there is always more to know as in tidal waves of it. Ancient Greek philosopher Socrates was so right when he said that wisdom is to know how little we know. How obviously true that is when you think that we are experiencing a physical world of solidity that is neither physical nor solid and a world of apartness when everything is connected. Cult-controlled 'science' dismisses the so-called 'paranormal' and all phenomena related to that when the 'para'-normal is perfectly normal and explains the alleged 'great mysteries' which dumbfound scientific minds. There is a reason for this. A 'scientific mind' in terms of the mainstream is a material mind, a five-sense mind imprisoned in see it, touch it, hear it, smell it and taste it. Phenomena and happenings that can't be explained that way leave the 'scientific mind' bewildered and the rule is that if they can't account for why something is happening then it can't, by definition, be happening. I beg to differ. Telepathy is thought waves passing through The Field (think wave disturbance again) to be decoded by someone able to connect with that wavelength (information). For example: You can pick up the thought waves of a friend at any distance and at the very least that will bring them to mind. A few minutes later the friend calls you. 'My god', you say, 'that's incredible – I was just thinking of you.' Ah, but they were thinking of you before they made the call and that's what you decoded. Native peoples not entrapped in five-sense reality do this so well it became known as the 'bush telegraph'. Those known as psychics and mediums (genuine ones) are doing the same only across dimensions of reality. 'Mind over matter' comes from the fact that matter and mind are the same. The state of one influences the state of the other. Indeed one and the other are illusions. They are aspects of the same field. Paranormal phenomena are all explainable so why are they still considered 'mysteries' or not happening? Once you go down this road of understanding you begin to expand awareness beyond the five senses and that's the nightmare for the Cult.

Holographic 'solidity'

Our reality is not solid, it is holographic. We are now well aware of holograms which are widely used today. Two-dimensional information is decoded into a three-dimensional reality that is not solid although can very much appear to be (Fig 13). Holograms are created with a laser divided into two parts. One goes directly onto a holographic photographic print ('reference beam') and the other takes a waveform image of the subject ('working beam') before being directed onto the print where it 'collides' with the other half of the laser (Fig 14). This creates a waveform interference pattern which contains the wavefield information of whatever is being photographed (Fig 15 overleaf). The process can be likened to dropping pebbles in a pond. Waves generated by each one spread out across the water to collide with the others and create a wave representation of where the stones fell and at what speed, weight and distance. A waveform interference pattern of a hologram is akin to the waveform information in The Field which the five senses decode into electrical signals to be decoded by the brain into a holographic illusory 'physical' reality. In the same way when a laser (think human attention) is directed at the waveform interference pattern a three-dimensional version of the subject is projected into apparently 'solid' reality (Fig 16). An amazing trait of holograms reveals more 'paranormal mysteries'. Information of the whole hologram is encoded in waveform in every part of the interference pattern by the way they are created. This means that every part of a hologram is a smaller version of the whole. Cut the interference wave-pattern into four and you won't get four parts of the image. You get quarter-sized versions of the whole image. The body is a hologram and the same applies. Here we have the basis of acupuncture, reflexology and other forms of healing which identify representations of the whole body in all of the parts, hands, feet, ears, everywhere. Skilled palm readers can do what they do because the information of whole body is encoded in the hand. The concept of as above, so below, comes from this.

The question will be asked of why, if solidity is illusory, we can't just walk through walls and each other. The resistance is not solid against solid; it is electromagnetic field against electromagnetic field and we decode this into the experience of solid against solid. We should also not underestimate the power of belief to dictate reality. What you believe is impossible will be. Your belief impacts on your decoding processes and they won't decode what you think is impossible. What we believe we perceive and what we perceive we experience. 'Can't dos' and 'impossibles' are like a firewall in a computer system that won't put on the screen what the firewall blocks. How vital that is to understanding how human experience has been hijacked. I explain in The Answer, Everything You Need To Know But Have Never Been Told and other books a long list of 'mysteries' and 'paranormal' phenomena that are not mysterious and perfectly normal once you realise what reality is and how it works. 'Ghosts' can be seen to pass through 'solid' walls because the walls are not solid and the ghost is a discarnate entity operating on a frequency so different to that of the wall that it's like two radio stations sharing the same space while never interfering with each other. I have seen ghosts do this myself. The apartness of people and objects is also an illusion. Everything is connected by the Field like all sea life is connected by the sea. It's just that within the limits of our visual reality we only 'see' holographic information and not the field of information that connects everything and from which the holographic world is made manifest. If you can only see holographic 'objects' and not the field that connects them they will appear to you as unconnected to each other in the same way that we see the computer while not seeing the Wi-Fi.

What you don't know can hurt you

Okay, we return to those 'two worlds' of human society and the Cult with its global network of interconnecting secret societies and satanic groups which manipulate through governments, corporations, media, religions, etc. The fundamental difference between them is knowledge. The idea has been to keep humanity ignorant of the plan for its total enslavement underpinned by a crucial ignorance of reality – who we are and where we are – and how we interact with it. ‘Human’ should be the interaction between our expanded eternal consciousness and the five-sense body experience. We are meant to be in this world in terms of the five senses but not of this world in relation to our greater consciousness and perspective. In that state we experience the small picture of the five senses within the wider context of the big picture of awareness beyond the five senses. Put another way the five senses see the dots and expanded awareness connects them into pictures and patterns that give context to the apparently random and unconnected. Without the context of expanded awareness the five senses see only apartness and randomness with apparently no meaning. The Cult and its other-dimensional controllers seek to intervene in the frequency realm where five-sense reality is supposed to connect with expanded reality and to keep the two apart (more on this in the final chapter). When that happens five-sense mental and emotional processes are no longer influenced by expanded awareness, or the True ‘I’, and instead are driven by the isolated perceptions of the body’s decoding systems. They are in the world and of it. Here we have the human plight and why humanity with its potential for infinite awareness can be so easily manipulatable and descend into such extremes of stupidity.

Once the Cult isolates five-sense mind from expanded awareness it can then program the mind with perceptions and beliefs by controlling information that the mind receives through the ‘education’ system of the formative years and the media perceptual bombardment and censorship of an entire lifetime. Limit perception and a sense of the possible through limiting knowledge by limiting and skewing information while censoring and discrediting that which could set people free. As the title of another of my books says ... And The Truth Shall Set You Free. For this reason the last thing the Cult wants in circulation is the truth about anything – especially the reality of the eternal ‘I’ – and that’s why it is desperate to control information. The Cult knows that information becomes perception which becomes behaviour which, collectively, becomes human society. Cult-controlled and funded mainstream 'science' denies the existence of an eternal 'I' and seeks to dismiss and trash all evidence to the contrary. Cult-controlled mainstream religion has a version of 'God' that is little more than a system of control and dictatorship that employs threats of damnation in an afterlife to control perceptions and behaviour in the here and now through fear and guilt. Neither is true and it's the 'neither' that the Cult wishes to suppress. This 'neither' is that everything is an expression, a point of attention, within an infinite state of consciousness which is the real meaning of the term 'God'.

Perceptual obsession with the 'physical body' and five-senses means that 'God' becomes personified as a bearded bloke sitting among the clouds or a raging bully who loves us if we do what 'he' wants and condemns us to the fires of hell if we don't. These are no more than a 'spiritual' fairy tales to control and dictate events and behaviour through fear of this 'God' which has bizarrely made 'God-fearing' in religious circles a state to be desired. I would suggest that fearing anything is not to be encouraged and celebrated, but rather deleted. You can see why 'God fearing' is so beneficial to the Cult and its religions when they decide what 'God' wants and what 'God' demands (the Cult demands) that everyone do. As the great American comedian Bill Hicks said satirising a Christian zealot: 'I think what God meant to say.' How much of this infinite awareness ('God') that we access is decided by how far we choose to expand our perceptions, self-identity and sense of the possible. The scale of self-identity reflects itself in the scale of awareness that we can connect with and are influenced by – how much knowing and insight we have instead of programmed perception. You cannot expand your awareness into the infinity of possibility when you believe that you are little me Peter the postman or Mary in marketing and nothing more. I'll deal with this in the concluding chapter because it's crucial to how we turnaround current events.

Where the Cult came from

When I realised in the early 1990s there was a Cult network behind global events I asked the obvious question: When did it start? I took it back to ancient Rome and Egypt and on to Babylon and Sumer in Mesopotamia, the 'Land Between Two Rivers', in what we now call Iraq. The two rivers are the Tigris and Euphrates and this region is of immense historical and other importance to the Cult, as is the land called Israel only 550 miles away by air. There is much more going on with deep esoteric meaning across this whole region. It's not only about 'wars for oil'. Priceless artefacts from Mesopotamia were stolen or destroyed after the American and British invasion of Iraq in 2003 justified by the lies of Boy Bush and Tony Blair (their Cult masters) about non-existent 'weapons of mass destruction'.

Mesopotamia was the location of Sumer (about 5,400BC to 1,750BC), and Babylon (about 2,350BC to 539BC). Sabbatians may have become immensely influential in the Cult in modern times but they are part of a network that goes back into the mists of history. Sumer is said by historians to be the 'cradle of civilisation'. I disagree. I say it was the re-start of what we call human civilisation after cataclysmic events symbolised in part as the 'Great Flood' destroyed the world that existed before. These fantastic upheavals that I have been describing in detail in the books since the early 1990s appear in accounts and legends of ancient cultures across the world and they are supported by geological and biological evidence. Stone tablets found in Iraq detailing the Sumer period say the cataclysms were caused by non-human 'gods' they call the Anunnaki. These are described in terms of extraterrestrial visitations in which knowledge supplied by the Anunnaki is said to have been the source of at least one of the world's oldest writing systems and developments in astronomy, mathematics and architecture that were way ahead of their time. I have covered this subject at length in The Biggest Secret and Children of the Matrix and the same basic 'Anunnaki' story can be found in Zulu accounts in South Africa where the late and very great Zulu high shaman Credo Mutwa told me that the Sumerian Anunnaki were known by Zulus as the Chitauri or 'children of the serpent'. See my six-hour video interview with Credo on this subject entitled The Reptilian Agenda recorded at his then home near Johannesburg in 1999 which you can watch on the Ickonic media platform.

The Cult emerged out of Sumer, Babylon and Egypt (and elsewhere) and established the Roman Empire before expanding with the Romans into northern Europe from where many empires were savagely imposed in the form of Cult-controlled societies all over the world. Mass death and destruction was their calling card. The Cult established its centre of operations in Europe and European Empires were Cult empires which allowed it to expand into a global force. Spanish and Portuguese colonialists headed for Central and South America while the British and French targeted North America. Africa was colonised by Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Portugal, Spain, Italy, and Germany. Some like Britain and France moved in on the Middle East. The British Empire was by far the biggest for a simple reason. By now Britain was the headquarters of the Cult from which it expanded to form Canada, the United States, Australia and New Zealand. The Sun never set on the British Empire such was the scale of its occupation. London remains a global centre for the Cult along with Rome and the Vatican although others have emerged in Israel and China. It is no accident that the 'virus' is alleged to have come out of China while Italy was chosen as the means to terrify the Western population into compliance with 'Covid' fascism. Nor that Israel has led the world in 'Covid' fascism and mass 'vaccination'.

You would think that I would mention the United States here, but while it has been an important means of imposing the Cult's will it is less significant than would appear and is currently in the process of having what power it does have deleted. The Cult in Europe has mostly loaded the guns for the US to fire. America has been controlled from Europe from the start through Cult operatives in Britain and Europe. The American Revolution was an illusion to make it appear that America was governing itself while very different forces were pulling the strings in the form of Cult families such as the Rothschilds through the Rockefellers and other subordinates. The Rockefellers are extremely close to Bill Gates and established both scalpel and drug 'medicine' and the World Health Organization. They play a major role in the development and circulation of vaccines through the Rockefeller Foundation on which Bill Gates said his Foundation is based. Why wouldn't this be the case when the Rockefellers and Gates are on the same team? Cult infiltration of human society goes way back into what we call history and has been constantly expanding and centralising power with the goal of establishing a global structure to dictate everything. Look how this has been advanced in great leaps with the 'Covid' hoax.

The non-human dimension

I researched and observed the comings and goings of Cult operatives through the centuries and even thousands of years as they were born, worked to promote the agenda within the secret society and satanic networks, and then died for others to replace them. Clearly there had to be a coordinating force that spanned this entire period while operatives who would not have seen the end goal in their lifetimes came and went advancing the plan over millennia. I went in search of that coordinating force with the usual support from the extraordinary synchronicity of my life which has been an almost daily experience since 1990. I saw common themes in religious texts and ancient cultures about a non-human force manipulating human society from the hidden. Christianity calls this force Satan, the Devil and demons; Islam refers to the Jinn or Djinn; Zulus have their Chitauri (spelt in other ways in different parts of Africa); and the Gnostic people in Egypt in the period around and before 400AD referred to this phenomena as the 'Archons', a word meaning rulers in Greek. Central American cultures speak of the 'Predators' among other names and the same theme is everywhere. I will use 'Archons' as a collective name for all of them. When you see how their nature and behaviour is described all these different sources are clearly talking about the same force. Gnostics described the Archons in terms of 'luminous fire' while Islam relates the Jinn to 'smokeless fire'. Some refer to beings in form that could occasionally be seen, but the most common of common theme is that they operate from unseen realms which means almost all existence to the visual processes of humans. I had concluded that this was indeed the foundation of human control and that the Cult was operating within the human frequency band on behalf of this hidden force when I came across the writings of Gnostics which supported my conclusions in the most extraordinary way.

A sealed earthen jar was found in 1945 near the town of Nag Hammadi about 75-80 miles north of Luxor on the banks of the River Nile in Egypt. Inside was a treasure trove of manuscripts and texts left by the Gnostic people some 1,600 years earlier. They included 13 leather-bound papyrus codices (manuscripts) and more than 50 texts written in Coptic Egyptian estimated to have been hidden in the jar in the period of 400AD although the source of the information goes back much further. Gnostics oversaw the Great or Royal Library of Alexandria, the fantastic depository of ancient texts detailing advanced knowledge and accounts of human history. The Library was dismantled and destroyed in stages over a long period with the death-blow delivered by the Cult-established Roman Church in the period around 415AD. The Church of Rome was the Church of Babylon relocated as I said earlier. Gnostics were not a race. They were a way of perceiving reality. Whenever they established themselves and their information circulated the terrorists of the Church of Rome would target them for destruction. This happened with the Great Library and with the Gnostic Cathars who were burned to death by the psychopaths after a long period of oppression at the siege of the Castle of Monségur in southern France in 1244. The Church has always been terrified of Gnostic information which demolishes the official Christian narrative although there is much in the Bible that supports the Gnostic view if you read it in another way. To anyone studying the texts of what became known as the Nag Hammadi Library it is clear that great swathes of Christian and Biblical belief has its origin with Gnostics sources going back to Sumer. Gnostic themes have been twisted to manipulate the perceived reality of Bible believers. Biblical texts have been in the open for centuries where they could be changed while Gnostic documents found at Nag Hammadi were sealed away and untouched for 1,600 years. What you see is what they wrote.

Use your pneuma not your nous

Gnosticism and Gnostic come from 'gnosis' which means knowledge, or rather secret knowledge, in the sense of spiritual awareness – knowledge about reality and life itself. The desperation of the Cult's Church of Rome to destroy the Gnostics can be understood when the knowledge they were circulating was the last thing the Cult wanted the population to know. Sixteen hundred years later the same Cult is working hard to undermine and silence me for the same reason. The dynamic between knowledge and ignorance is a constant. 'Time' appears to move on, but essential themes remain the same. We are told to 'use your nous', a Gnostic word for head/brain/intelligence. They said, however, that spiritual awakening or 'salvation' could only be secured by expanding awareness beyond what they called nous and into pneuma or Infinite Self. Obviously as I read these texts the parallels with what I have been saying since 1990 were fascinating to me. There is a universal truth that spans human history and in that case why wouldn't we be talking the same language 16 centuries apart? When you free yourself from the perception program of the five senses and explore expanded realms of consciousness you are going to connect with the same information no matter what the perceived 'era' within a manufactured timeline of a single and tiny range of manipulated frequency. Humans working with 'smart' technology or knocking rocks together in caves is only a timeline appearing to operate within the human frequency band. Expanded awareness and the knowledge it holds have always been there whether the era be Stone Age or computer age. We can only access that knowledge by opening ourselves to its frequency which the five-sense prison cell is designed to stop us doing. Gates, Fauci, Whitty, Vallance, Zuckerberg, Brin, Page, Wojcicki, Bezos, and all the others behind the 'Covid' hoax clearly have a long wait before their range of frequency can make that connection given that an open heart is crucial to that as we shall see. Instead of accessing knowledge directly through expanded awareness it is given to Cult operatives by the secret society networks of the Cult where it has been passed on over thousands of years outside the public arena. Expanded realms of consciousness is where great artists, composers and writers find their inspiration and where truth awaits anyone open enough to connect with it. We need to go there fast.

Archon hijack

A fifth of the Nag Hammadi texts describe the existence and manipulation of the Archons led by a 'Chief Archon' they call 'Yaldabaoth', or the 'Demiurge', and this is the Christian 'Devil', 'Satan', 'Lucifer', and his demons. Archons in Biblical symbolism are the 'fallen ones' which are also referred to as fallen angels after the angels expelled from heaven according to the Abrahamic religions of Judaism, Christianity and Islam. These angels are claimed to tempt humans to 'sin' ongoing and you will see how accurate that symbolism is during the rest of the book. The theme of 'original sin' is related to the 'Fall' when Adam and Eve were 'tempted by the serpent' and fell from a state of innocence and 'obedience' (connection) with God into a state of disobedience (disconnection). The Fall is said to have brought sin into the world and corrupted everything including human nature. Yaldabaoth, the 'Lord Archon', is described by Gnostics as a 'counterfeit spirit', 'The Blind One', 'The Blind God', and 'The Foolish One'. The Jewish name for Yaldabaoth in Talmudic writings is Samael which translates as 'Poison of God', or 'Blindness of God'. You see the parallels. Yaldabaoth in Islamic belief is the Muslim Jinn devil known as Shaytan – Shaytan is Satan as the same themes are found all over the world in every religion and culture. The 'Lord God' of the Old Testament is the 'Lord Archon' of Gnostic manuscripts and that's why he's such a bloodthirsty bastard. Satan is known by Christians as 'the Demon of Demons' and Gnostics called Yaldabaoth the 'Archon of Archons'. Both are known as 'The Deceiver'. We are talking about the same 'bloke' for sure and these common themes using different names, storylines and symbolism tell a common tale of the human plight.

Archons are referred to in Nag Hammadi documents as mind parasites, inverters, guards, gatekeepers, detainers, judges, pitiless ones and deceivers. The 'Covid' hoax alone is a glaring example of all these things. The Biblical 'God' is so different in the Old and New Testaments because they are not describing the same phenomenon. The vindictive, angry, hate-filled, 'God' of the Old Testament, known as Yahweh, is Yaldabaoth who is depicted in Cult-dictated popular culture as the 'Dark Lord', 'Lord of Time', Lord (Darth) Vader and Dormammu, the evil ruler of the 'Dark Dimension' trying to take over the 'Earth Dimension' in the Marvel comic movie, Dr Strange. Yaldabaoth is both the Old Testament 'god' and the Biblical 'Satan'. Gnostics referred to Yaldabaoth as the 'Great Architect of the Universe' and the Cult-controlled Freemason network calls their god 'the 'Great Architect of the Universe' (also Grand Architect). The 'Great Architect' Yaldabaoth is symbolised by the Cult as the all-seeing eye at the top of the pyramid on the Great Seal of the United States and the dollar bill. Archon is encoded in arch-itect as it is in arch-angels and arch-bishops. All religions have the theme of a force for good and force for evil in some sort of spiritual war and there is a reason for that – the theme is true. The Cult and its non-human masters are quite happy for this to circulate. They present themselves as the force for good fighting evil when they are really the force of evil (absence of love). The whole foundation of Cult modus operandi is inversion. They promote themselves as a force for good and anyone challenging them in pursuit of peace, love, fairness, truth and justice is condemned as a satanic force for evil. This has been the game plan throughout history whether the Church of Rome inquisitions of non-believers or 'conspiracy theorists' and 'anti-vaxxers' of today. The technique is the same whatever the timeline era.

Yaldabaoth is revolting (true)

Yaldabaoth and the Archons are said to have revolted against God with Yaldabaoth claiming to be God – the All That Is. The Old Testament ‘God’ (Yaldabaoth) demanded to be worshipped as such: ‘I am the LORD, and there is none else, there is no God beside me’ (Isaiah 45:5). I have quoted in other books a man who said he was the unofficial son of the late Baron Philippe de Rothschild of the Mouton-Rothschild wine producing estates in France who died in 1988 and he told me about the Rothschild ‘revolt from God’. The man said he was given the name Phillip Eugene de Rothschild and we shared long correspondence many years ago while he was living under another identity. He said that he was conceived through ‘occult incest’ which (within the Cult) was ‘normal and to be admired’. ‘Phillip’ told me about his experience attending satanic rituals with rich and famous people whom he names and you can see them and the wider background to Cult Satanism in my other books starting with The Biggest Secret. Cult rituals are interactions with Archontic ‘gods’. ‘Phillip’ described Baron Philippe de Rothschild as ‘a master Satanist and hater of God’ and he used the same term ‘revolt from God’ associated with Yaldabaoth/Satan/Lucifer/the Devil in describing the Sabbatian Rothschild dynasty. ‘I played a key role in my family’s revolt from God’, he said. That role was to infiltrate in classic Sabbatian style the Christian Church, but eventually he escaped the mind-prison to live another life. The Cult has been targeting religion in a plan to make worship of the Archons the global one-world religion. Infiltration of Satanism into modern ‘culture’, especially among the young, through music videos, stage shows and other means, is all part of this.

Nag Hammadi texts describe Yaldabaoth and the Archons in their prime form as energy – consciousness – and say they can take form if they choose in the same way that consciousness takes form as a human. Yaldabaoth is called ‘formless’ and represents a deeply inverted, distorted and chaotic state of consciousness which seeks to attach to humans and turn them into a likeness of itself in an attempt at assimilation. For that to happen it has to manipulate humans into low frequency mental and emotional states that match its own. Archons can certainly appear in human form and this is the origin of the psychopathic personality. The energetic distortion Gnostics called Yaldabaoth is psychopathy. When psychopathic Archons take human form that human will be a psychopath as an expression of Yaldabaoth consciousness. Cult psychopaths are Archons in human form. The principle is the same as that portrayed in the 2009 Avatar movie when the American military travelled to a fictional Earth-like moon called Pandora in the Alpha Centauri star system to infiltrate a society of blue people, or Na'vi, by hiding within bodies that looked like the Na'vi. Archons posing as humans have a particular hybrid information field, part human, part Archon, (the ancient 'demigods') which processes information in a way that manifests behaviour to match their psychopathic evil, lack of empathy and compassion, and stops them being influenced by the empathy, compassion and love that a fully-human information field is capable of expressing. Cult bloodlines interbreed, be they royalty or dark suits, for this reason and you have their obsession with incest. Interbreeding with full-blown humans would dilute the Archontic energy field that guarantees psychopathy in its representatives in the human realm.

Gnostic writings say the main non-human forms that Archons take are serpentine (what I have called for decades 'reptilian' amid unbounded ridicule from the Archontically-programmed) and what Gnostics describe as 'an unborn baby or foetus with grey skin and dark, unmoving eyes'. This is an excellent representation of the ET 'Greys' of UFO folklore which large numbers of people claim to have seen and been abducted by – Zulu shaman Credo Mutwa among them. I agree with those that believe in extraterrestrial or interdimensional visitations today and for thousands of years past. No wonder with their advanced knowledge and technological capability they were perceived and worshipped as gods for technological and other 'miracles' they appeared to perform. Imagine someone arriving in a culture disconnected from the modern world with a smartphone and computer. They would be seen as a 'god' capable of 'miracles'. The Renegade Mind, however, wants to know the source of everything and not only the way that source manifests as human or non-human. In the same way that a Renegade Mind seeks the original source material for the 'Covid virus' to see if what is claimed is true. The original source of Archons in form is consciousness – the distorted state of consciousness known to Gnostics as Yaldabaoth.

'Revolt from God' is energetic disconnection

Where I am going next will make a lot of sense of religious texts and ancient legends relating to 'Satan', Lucifer' and the 'gods'. Gnostic descriptions sync perfectly with the themes of my own research over the years in how they describe a consciousness distortion seeking to impose itself on human consciousness. I've referred to the core of infinite awareness in previous books as Infinite Awareness in Awareness of Itself. By that I mean a level of awareness that knows that it is all awareness and is aware of all awareness. From here comes the frequency of love in its true sense and balance which is what love is on one level – the balance of all forces into a single whole called Oneness and Isness. The more we disconnect from this state of love that many call 'God' the constituent parts of that Oneness start to unravel and express themselves as a part and not a whole. They become individualised as intellect, mind, selfishness, hatred, envy, desire for power over others, and such like. This is not a problem in the greater scheme in that 'God', the All That Is, can experience all these possibilities through different expressions of itself including humans. What we as expressions of the whole experience the All That Is experiences. We are the All That Is experiencing itself. As we withdraw from that state of Oneness we disconnect from its influence and things can get very unpleasant and very stupid. Archontic consciousness is at the extreme end of that. It has so disconnected from the influence of Oneness that it has become an inversion of unity and love, an inversion of everything, an inversion of life itself. Evil is appropriately live written backwards. Archontic consciousness is obsessed with death, an inversion of life, and so its manifestations in Satanism are obsessed with death. They use inverted symbols in their rituals such as the inverted pentagram and cross. Sabbatians as Archontic consciousness incarnate invert Judaism and every other religion and culture they infiltrate. They seek disunity and chaos and they fear unity and harmony as they fear love like garlic to a vampire. As a result the Cult, Archons incarnate, act with such evil, psychopathy and lack of empathy and compassion disconnected as they are from the source of love. How could Bill Gates and the rest of the Archontic psychopaths do what they have to human society in the 'Covid' era with all the death, suffering and destruction involved and have no emotional consequence for the impact on others? Now you know. Why have Zuckerberg, Brin, Page, Wojcicki and company callously censored information warning about the dangers of the 'vaccine' while thousands have been dying and having severe, sometimes life-changing reactions? Now you know. Why have Tedros, Fauci, Whitty, Vallance and their like around the world been using case and death figures they're aware are fraudulent to justify lockdowns and all the deaths and destroyed lives that have come from that? Now you know. Why did Christian Drosten produce and promote a 'testing' protocol that he knew couldn't test for infectious disease which led to a global human catastrophe. Now you know. The Archontic mind doesn't give a shit (Fig 17). I personally think that Gates and major Cult insiders are a form of AI cyborg that the Archons want humans to become.

Human batteries

A state of such inversion does have its consequences, however. The level of disconnection from the Source of All means that you withdraw from that source of energetic sustenance and creativity. This means that you have to find your own supply of energetic power and it has – us. When the Morpheus character in the first Matrix movie held up a battery he spoke a profound truth when he said: 'The Matrix is a computer-generated dream world built to keep us under control in order to change the human being into one of these.’ The statement was true in all respects. We do live in a technologically-generated virtual reality simulation (more very shortly) and we have been manipulated to be an energy source for Archontic consciousness. The Disney-Pixar animated movie Monsters, Inc. in 2001 symbolised the dynamic when monsters in their world had no energy source and they would enter the human world to terrify children in their beds, catch the child’s scream, terror (low-vibrational frequencies), and take that energy back to power the monster world. The lead character you might remember was a single giant eye and the symbolism of the Cult’s all-seeing eye was obvious. Every thought and emotion is broadcast as a frequency unique to that thought and emotion. Feelings of love and joy, empathy and compassion, are high, quick, frequencies while fear, depression, anxiety, suffering and hate are low, slow, dense frequencies. Which kind do you think Archontic consciousness can connect with and absorb? In such a low and dense frequency state there’s no way it can connect with the energy of love and joy. Archons can only feed off energy compatible with their own frequency and they and their Cult agents want to delete the human world of love and joy and manipulate the transmission of low vibrational frequencies through low-vibrational human mental and emotional states. We are their energy source. Wars are energetic banquets to the Archons – a world war even more so – and think how much low-frequency mental and emotional energy has been generated from the consequences for humanity of the ‘Covid’ hoax orchestrated by Archons incarnate like Gates.

The ancient practice of human sacrifice ‘to the gods’, continued in secret today by the Cult, is based on the same principle. ‘The gods’ are Archontic consciousness in different forms and the sacrifice is induced into a state of intense terror to generate the energy the Archontic frequency can absorb. Incarnate Archons in the ritual drink the blood which contains an adrenaline they crave which floods into the bloodstream when people are terrorised. Most of the sacrifices, ancient and modern, are children and the theme of ‘sacrificing young virgins to the gods’ is just code for children. They have a particular pre-puberty energy that Archons want more than anything and the energy of the young in general is their target. The California Department of Education wants students to chant the names of Aztec gods (Archontic gods) once worshipped in human sacrifice rituals in a curriculum designed to encourage them to 'challenge racist, bigoted, discriminatory, imperialist/colonial beliefs', join 'social movements that struggle for social justice', and 'build new possibilities for a post-racist, post-systemic racism society'. It's the usual Woke crap that inverts racism and calls it anti-racism. In this case solidarity with 'indigenous tribes' is being used as an excuse to chant the names of 'gods' to which people were sacrificed (and still are in secret). What an example of Woke's inability to see beyond black and white, us and them, They condemn the colonisation of these tribal cultures by Europeans (quite right), but those cultures sacrificing people including children to their 'gods', and mass murdering untold numbers as the Aztecs did, is just fine. One chant is to the Aztec god Tezcatlipoca who had a man sacrificed to him in the 5th month of the Aztec calendar. His heart was cut out and he was eaten. Oh, that's okay then. Come on children ... after three ... Other sacrificial 'gods' for the young to chant their allegiance include Quetzalcoatl, Huitzilopochtli and Xipe Totec. The curriculum says that 'chants, affirmations, and energizers can be used to bring the class together, build unity around ethnic studies principles and values, and to reinvigorate the class following a lesson that may be emotionally taxing or even when student engagement may appear to be low'. Well, that's the cover story, anyway. Chanting and mantras are the repetition of a particular frequency generated from the vocal cords and chanting the names of these Archontic 'gods' tunes you into their frequency. That is the last thing you want when it allows for energetic synchronisation, attachment and perceptual influence. Initiates chant the names of their 'Gods' in their rituals for this very reason.

Vampires of the Woke

Paedophilia is another way that Archons absorb the energy of children. Paedophiles possessed by Archontic consciousness are used as the conduit during sexual abuse for discarnate Archons to vampire the energy of the young they desire so much. Stupendous numbers of children disappear every year never to be seen again although you would never know from the media. Imagine how much low-vibrational energy has been generated by children during the 'Covid' hoax when so many have become depressed and psychologically destroyed to the point of killing themselves. Shocking numbers of children are now taken by the state from loving parents to be handed to others. I can tell you from long experience of researching this since 1996 that many end up with paedophiles and assets of the Cult through corrupt and Cult-owned social services which in the reframing era has hired many psychopaths and emotionless automatons to do the job. Children are even stolen to order using spurious reasons to take them by the corrupt and secret (because they're corrupt) 'family courts'. I have written in detail in other books, starting with The Biggest Secret in 1997, about the ubiquitous connections between the political, corporate, government, intelligence and military elites (Cult operatives) and Satanism and paedophilia. If you go deep enough both networks have an interlocking leadership. The Woke mentality has been developed by the Cult for many reasons: To promote almost every aspect of its agenda; to hijack the traditional political left and turn it fascist; to divide and rule; and to target agenda pushbackers. But there are other reasons which relate to what I am describing here. How many happy and joyful Wokers do you ever see especially at the extreme end? They are a mental and psychological mess consumed by emotional stress and constantly emotionally cocked for the next explosion of indignation at someone referring to a female as a female. They are walking, talking, batteries as Morpheus might say emitting frequencies which both enslave them in low-vibrational bubbles of perceptual limitation and feed the Archons. Add to this the hatred claimed to be love; fascism claimed to 'anti-fascism', racism claimed to be 'anti-racism'; exclusion claimed to inclusion; and the abuse-filled Internet trolling. You have a purpose-built Archontic energy system with not a wind turbine in sight and all founded on Archontic inversion. We have whole generations now manipulated to serve the Archons with their actions and energy. They will be doing so their entire adult lives unless they snap out of their Archon-induced trance. Is it really a surprise that Cult billionaires and corporations put so much money their way? Where is the energy of joy and laughter, including laughing at yourself which is confirmation of your own emotional security? Mark Twain said: 'The human race has one really effective weapon, and that is laughter.' We must use it all the time. Woke has destroyed comedy because it has no humour, no joy, sense of irony, or self-deprecation. Its energy is dense and intense. Mmmmm, lunch says the Archontic frequency. Rudolf Steiner (1861-1925) was the Austrian philosopher and famous esoteric thinker who established Waldorf education or Steiner schools to treat children like unique expressions of consciousness and not minds to be programmed with the perceptions determined by authority. I'd been writing about this energy vampiring for decades when I was sent in 2016 a quote by Steiner. He was spot on:

There are beings in the spiritual realms for whom anxiety and fear emanating from human beings offer welcome food. When humans have no anxiety and fear, then these creatures starve. If fear and anxiety radiates from people and they break out in panic, then these creatures find welcome nutrition and they become more and more powerful. These beings are hostile towards humanity. Everything that feeds on negative feelings, on anxiety, fear and superstition, despair or doubt, are in reality hostile forces in super-sensible worlds, launching cruel attacks on human beings, while they are being fed ... These are exactly the feelings that belong to contemporary culture and materialism; because it estranges people from the spiritual world, it is especially suited to evoke hopelessness and fear of the unknown in people, thereby calling up the above mentioned hostile forces against them.

Pause for a moment from this perspective and reflect on what has happened in the world since the start of 2020. Not only will pennies drop, but billion dollar bills. We see the same theme from Don Juan Matus, a Yaqui Indian shaman in Mexico and the information source for Peruvian-born writer, Carlos Castaneda, who wrote a series of books from the 1960s to 1990s. Don Juan described the force manipulating human society and his name for the Archons was the predator:

We have a predator that came from the depths of the cosmos and took over the rule of our lives. Human beings are its prisoners. The predator is our lord and master. It has rendered us docile, helpless. If we want to protest, it suppresses our protest. If we want to act independently, it demands that we don't do so ... indeed we are held prisoner!

They took us over because we are food to them, and they squeeze us mercilessly because we are their sustenance. Just as we rear chickens in coops, the predators rear us in human coops, humaneros. Therefore, their food is always available to them.

Different cultures, different eras, same recurring theme.

The 'ennoia' dilemma

Nag Hammadi Gnostic manuscripts say that Archon consciousness has no 'ennoia'. This is directly translated as 'intentionality', but I'll use the term 'creative imagination'. The All That Is in awareness of itself is the source of all creativity – all possibility – and the more disconnected you are from that source the more you are subsequently denied 'creative imagination'. Given that Archon consciousness is almost entirely disconnected it severely lacks creativity and has to rely on far more mechanical processes of thought and exploit the creative potential of those that do have 'ennoia'. You can see cases of this throughout human society. Archon consciousness almost entirely dominates the global banking system and if we study how that system works you will appreciate what I mean. Banks manifest 'money' out of nothing by issuing lines of 'credit' which is 'money' that has never, does not, and will never exist except in theory. It's a confidence trick. If you think 'credit' figures-on-a-screen 'money' is worth anything you accept it as payment. If you don't then the whole system collapses through lack of confidence in the value of that 'money'. Archontic bankers with no 'ennoia' are 'lending' 'money' that doesn't exist to humans that do have creativity – those that have the inspired ideas and create businesses and products. Archon banking feeds off human creativity which it controls through 'money' creation and debt. Humans have the creativity and Archons exploit that for their own benefit and control while having none themselves. Archon Internet platforms like Facebook claim joint copyright of everything that creative users post and while Archontic minds like Zuckerberg may officially head that company it will be human creatives on the staff that provide the creative inspiration. When you have limitless 'money' you can then buy other companies established by creative humans. Witness the acquisition record of Facebook, Google and their like. Survey the Archon-controlled music industry and you see non-creative dark suit executives making their fortune from the human creativity of their artists. The cases are endless. Research the history of people like Gates and Zuckerberg and how their empires were built on exploiting the creativity of others. Archon minds cannot create out of nothing, but they are skilled (because they have to be) in what Gnostic texts call 'countermimicry'. They can imitate, but not innovate. Sabbatians trawl the creativity of others through backdoors they install in computer systems through their cybersecurity systems. Archon-controlled China is globally infamous for stealing intellectual property and I remember how Hong Kong, now part of China, became notorious for making counterfeit copies of the creativity of others – 'countermimicry'. With the now pervasive and all-seeing surveillance systems able to infiltrate any computer you can appreciate the potential for Archons to vampire the creativity of humans. Author John Lamb Lash wrote in his book about the Nag Hammadi texts, Not In His Image:

Although they cannot originate anything, because they lack the divine factor of ennoia (intentionality), Archons can imitate with a vengeance. Their expertise is simulation (HAL, virtual reality). The Demiurge [Yaldabaoth] fashions a heaven world copied from the fractal patterns [of the original] ... His construction is celestial kitsch, like the fake Italianate villa of a Mafia don complete with militant angels to guard every portal.

This brings us to something that I have been speaking about since the turn of the millennium. Our reality is a simulation; a virtual reality that we think is real. No, I'm not kidding.

Human reality? Well, virtually

I had pondered for years about whether our reality is 'real' or some kind of construct. I remembered being immensely affected on a visit as a small child in the late 1950s to the then newly-opened Planetarium on the Marylebone Road in London which is now closed and part of the adjacent Madame Tussauds wax museum. It was in the middle of the day, but when the lights went out there was the night sky projected in the Planetarium's domed ceiling and it appeared to be so real. The experience never left me and I didn't know why until around the turn of the millennium when I became certain that our 'night sky' and entire reality is a projection, a virtual reality, akin to the illusory world portrayed in the Matrix movies. I looked at the sky one day in this period and it appeared to me like the domed roof of the Planetarium. The release of the first Matrix movie in 1999 also provided a synchronistic and perfect visual representation of where my mind had been going for a long time. I hadn't come across the Gnostic Nag Hammadi texts then. When I did years later the correlation was once again astounding. As I read Gnostic accounts from 1,600 years and more earlier it was clear that they were describing the same simulation phenomenon. They tell how the Yaldabaoth 'Demiurge' and Archons created a 'bad copy' of original reality to rule over all that were captured by its illusions and the body was a prison to trap consciousness in the 'bad copy' fake reality. Read how Gnostics describe the 'bad copy' and update that to current times and they are referring to what we would call today a virtual reality simulation.

Author John Lamb Lash said 'the Demiurge fashions a heaven world copied from the fractal patterns' of the original through expertise in 'HAL' or virtual reality simulation. Fractal patterns are part of the energetic information construct of our reality, a sort of blueprint. If these patterns were copied in computer terms it would indeed give you a copy of a 'natural' reality in a non-natural frequency and digital form. The principle is the same as making a copy of a website. The original website still exists, but now you can change the copy version to make it whatever you like and it can become very different to the original website. Archons have done this with our reality, a synthetic copy of prime reality that still exists beyond the frequency walls of the simulation. Trapped within the illusions of this synthetic Matrix, however, were and are human consciousness and other expressions of prime reality and this is why the Archons via the Cult are seeking to make the human body synthetic and give us synthetic AI minds to complete the job of turning the entire reality synthetic including what we perceive to be the natural world. To quote Kurzweil: 'Nanobots will infuse all the matter around us with information. Rocks, trees, everything will become these intelligent creatures.' Yes, synthetic 'creatures' just as 'Covid' and other genetically-manipulating 'vaccines' are designed to make the human body synthetic. From this perspective it is obvious why Archons and their Cult are so desperate to infuse synthetic material into every human with their 'Covid' scam.

Let there be (electromagnetic) light

Yaldabaoth, the force that created the simulation, or Matrix, makes sense of the Gnostic reference to 'The Great Architect' and its use by Cult Freemasonry as the name of its deity. The designer of the Matrix in the movies is called 'The Architect' and that trilogy is jam-packed with symbolism relating to these subjects. I have contended for years that the angry Old Testament God (Yaldabaoth) is the 'God' being symbolically 'quoted' in the opening of Genesis as 'creating the world'. This is not the creation of prime reality – it's the creation of the simulation. The Genesis 'God' says: 'Let there be Light: and there was light.' But what is this 'Light'? I have said for decades that the speed of light (186,000 miles per second) is not the fastest speed possible as claimed by mainstream science and is in fact the frequency walls or outer limits of the Matrix. You can't have a fastest or slowest anything within all possibility when everything is possible. The human body is encoded to operate within the speed of light or within the simulation and thus we see only the tiny frequency band of visible light. Near-death experiencers who perceive reality outside the body during temporary 'death' describe a very different form of light and this is supported by the Nag Hammadi texts. Prime reality beyond the simulation ('Upper Aeons' to the Gnostics) is described as a realm of incredible beauty, bliss, love and harmony – a realm of 'watery light' that is so powerful 'there are no shadows'. Our false reality of Archon control, which Gnostics call the 'Lower Aeons', is depicted as a realm with a different kind of 'light' and described in terms of chaos, 'Hell', 'the Abyss' and 'Outer Darkness', where trapped souls are tormented and manipulated by demons (relate that to the 'Covid' hoax alone). The watery light theme can be found in near-death accounts and it is not the same as simulation 'light' which is electromagnetic or radiation light within the speed of light – the 'Lower Aeons'. Simulation 'light' is the 'luminous fire' associated by Gnostics with the Archons. The Bible refers to Yaldabaoth as 'that old serpent, called the Devil, and Satan, which deceiveth the whole world' (Revelation 12:9). I think that making a simulated copy of prime reality ('countermimicry') and changing it dramatically while all the time manipulating humanity to believe it to be real could probably meet the criteria of deceiving the whole world. Then we come to the Cult god Lucifer – the Light Bringer. Lucifer is symbolic of Yaldabaoth, the bringer of radiation light that forms the bad copy simulation within the speed of light. 'He' is symbolised by the lighted torch held by the Statue of Liberty and in the name 'Illuminati'. Sabbatian-Frankism declares that Lucifer is the true god and Lucifer is the real god of Freemasonry honoured as their 'Great or Grand Architect of the Universe' (simulation).

I would emphasise, too, the way Archontic technologically-generated luminous fire of radiation has deluged our environment since I was a kid in the 1950s and changed the nature of The Field with which we constantly interact. Through that interaction technological radiation is changing us. The Smart Grid is designed to operate with immense levels of communication power with 5G expanding across the world and 6G, 7G, in the process of development. Radiation is the simulation and the Archontic manipulation system. Why wouldn't the Archon Cult wish to unleash radiation upon us to an ever-greater extreme to form Kurzweil's 'cloud'? The plan for a synthetic human is related to the need to cope with levels of radiation beyond even anything we've seen so far. Biological humans would not survive the scale of radiation they have in their script. The Smart Grid is a technological sub-reality within the technological simulation to further disconnect five-sense perception from expanded consciousness. It's a technological prison of the mind.

Infusing the 'spirit of darkness'

A recurring theme in religion and native cultures is the manipulation of human genetics by a non-human force and most famously recorded as the biblical 'sons of god' (the gods plural in the original) who interbred with the daughters of men. The Nag Hammadi Apocryphon of John tells the same story this way:

He [Yaldabaoth] sent his angels [Archons/demons] to the daughters of men, that they might take some of them for themselves and raise offspring for their enjoyment. And at first they did not succeed. When they had no success, they gathered together again and they made a plan together ... And the angels changed themselves in their likeness into the likeness of their mates, filling them with the spirit of darkness, which they had mixed for them, and with evil ... And they took women and begot children out of the darkness according to the likeness of their spirit.

Possession when a discarnate entity takes over a human body is an age-old theme and continues today. It's very real and I've seen it. Satanic and secret society rituals can create an energetic environment in which entities can attach to initiates and I've heard many stories of how people have changed their personality after being initiated even into lower levels of the Freemasons. I have been inside three Freemasonic temples, one at a public open day and two by just walking in when there was no one around to stop me. They were in Ryde, the town where I live, Birmingham, England, when I was with a group, and Boston, Massachusetts. They all felt the same energetically – dark, dense, low-vibrational and sinister. Demonic attachment can happen while the initiate has no idea what is going on. To them it's just a ritual to get in the Masons and do a bit of good business. In the far more extreme rituals of Satanism human possession is even more powerful and they are designed to make possession possible. The hierarchy of the Cult is dictated by the power and perceived status of the possessing Archon. In this way the Archon hierarchy becomes the Cult hierarchy. Once the entity has attached it can influence perception and behaviour and if it attaches to the extreme then so much of its energy (information) infuses into the body information field that the hologram starts to reflect the nature of the possessing entity. This is the Exorcist movie type of possession when facial features change and it's known as shapeshifting. Islam's Jinn are said to be invisible tricksters who change shape, 'whisper', confuse and take human form. These are all traits of the Archons and other versions of the same phenomenon. Extreme possession could certainly infuse the 'spirit of darkness' into a partner during sex as the Nag Hammadi texts appear to describe. Such an infusion can change genetics which is also energetic information. Human genetics is information and the 'spirit of darkness' is information. Mix one with the other and change must happen. Islam has the concept of a 'Jinn baby' through possession of the mother and by Jinn taking human form. There are many ways that human genetics can be changed and remember that Archons have been aware all along of advanced techniques to do this. What is being done in human society today – and far more – was known about by Archons at the time of the 'fallen ones' and their other versions described in religions and cultures.

Archons and their human-world Cult are obsessed with genetics as we see today and they know this dictates how information is processed into perceived reality during a human life. They needed to produce a human form that would decode the simulation and this is symbolically known as 'Adam and Eve' who left the 'garden' (prime reality) and 'fell' into Matrix reality. The simulation is not a 'physical' construct (there is no 'physical'); it is a source of information. Think Wi-Fi again. The simulation is an energetic field encoded with information and body-brain systems are designed to decode that information encoded in wave or frequency form which is transmitted to the brain as electrical signals. These are decoded by the brain to construct our sense of reality – an illusory ‘physical’ world that only exists in the brain or the mind. Virtual reality games mimic this process using the same sensory decoding system. Information is fed to the senses to decode a virtual reality that can appear so real, but isn’t (Figs 18 and 19). Some scientists believe – and I agree with them – that what we perceive as ‘physical’ reality only exists when we are looking or observing. The act of perception or focus triggers the decoding systems which turn waveform information into holographic reality. When we are not observing something our reality reverts from a holographic state to a waveform state. This relates to the same principle as a falling tree not making a noise unless someone is there to hear it or decode it. The concept makes sense from the simulation perspective. A computer is not decoding all the information in a Wi-Fi field all the time and only decodes or brings into reality on the screen that part of Wi-Fi that it’s decoding – focusing upon – at that moment.

Interestingly, Professor Donald Hoffman at the Department of Cognitive Sciences at the University of California, Irvine, says that our experienced reality is like a computer interface that shows us only the level with which we interact while hiding all that exists beyond it: 'Evolution shaped us with a user interface that hides the truth. Nothing that we see is the truth – the very language of space and time and objects is the wrong language to describe reality.' He is correct in what he says on so many levels. Space and time are not a universal reality. They are a phenomenon of decoded simulation reality as part of the process of enslaving our sense of reality. Near-death experiencers report again and again how space and time did not exist as we perceive them once they were free of the body – body decoding systems. You can appreciate from this why Archons and their Cult are so desperate to entrap human attention in the five senses where we are in the Matrix and of the Matrix. Opening your mind to expanded states of awareness takes you beyond the information confines of the simulation and you become aware of knowledge and insights denied to you before. This is what we call 'awakening' – awakening from the Matrix – and in the final chapter I will relate this to current events.

Where are the 'aliens'?

A simulation would explain the so-called 'Fermi Paradox' named after Italian physicist Enrico Fermi (1901-1954) who created the first nuclear reactor. He considered the question of why there is such a lack of extraterrestrial activity when there are so many stars and planets in an apparently vast universe; but what if the night sky that we see, or think we do, is a simulated projection as I say? If you control the simulation and your aim is to hold humanity fast in essential ignorance would you want other forms of life including advanced life coming and going sharing information with humanity? Or would you want them to believe they were isolated and apparently alone? Themes of human isolation and apartness are common whether they be the perception of a lifeless universe or the fascist isolation laws of the 'Covid' era. Paradoxically the very existence of a simulation means that we are not alone when some force had to construct it. My view is that experiences that people have reported all over the world for centuries with Reptilians and Grey entities are Archon phenomena as Nag Hammadi texts describe; and that benevolent 'alien' interactions are non-human groups that come in and out of the simulation by overcoming Archon attempts to keep them out. It should be highlighted, too, that Reptilians and Greys are obsessed with genetics and technology as related by cultural accounts and those who say they have been abducted by them. Technology is their way of overcoming some of the limitations in their creative potential and our technology-driven and controlled human society of today is archetypical Archon-Reptilian-Grey modus operandi. Technocracy is really Archontocracy. The Universe does not have to be as big as it appears with a simulation. There is no space or distance only information decoded into holographic reality. What we call 'space' is only the absence of holographic 'objects' and that 'space' is The Field of energetic information which connects everything into a single whole. The same applies with the artificially-generated information field of the simulation. The Universe is not big or small as a physical reality. It is decoded information, that's all, and its perceived size is decided by the way the simulation is encoded to make it appear. The entire night sky as we perceive it only exists in our brain and so where are those 'millions of light years'? The 'stars' on the ceiling of the Planetarium looked a vast distance away.

There's another point to mention about 'aliens'. I have been highlighting since the 1990s the plan to stage a fake 'alien invasion' to justify the centralisation of global power and a world military. Nazi scientist Werner von Braun, who was taken to America by Operation Paperclip after World War Two to help found NASA, told his American assistant Dr Carol Rosin about the Cult agenda when he knew he was dying in 1977. Rosin said that he told her about a sequence that would lead to total human control by a one-world government. This included threats from terrorism, rogue nations, meteors and asteroids before finally an 'alien invasion'. All of these things, von Braun said, would be bogus and what I would refer to as a No-Problem-Reaction-Solution. Keep this in mind when 'the aliens are coming' is the new mantra. The aliens are not coming – they are already here and they have infiltrated human society while looking human. French-Canadian investigative journalist Serge Monast said in 1994 that he had uncovered a NASA/military operation called Project Blue Beam which fits with what Werner von Braun predicted. Monast died of a 'heart attack' in 1996 the day after he was arrested and spent a night in prison. He was 51. He said Blue Beam was a plan to stage an alien invasion that would include religious figures beamed holographically into the sky as part of a global manipulation to usher in a 'new age' of worshipping what I would say is the Cult 'god' Yaldabaoth in a one-world religion. Fake holographic asteroids are also said to be part of the plan which again syncs with von Braun. How could you stage an illusory threat from asteroids unless they were holographic inserts? This is pretty straightforward given the advanced technology outside the public arena and the fact that our 'physical' reality is holographic anyway. Information fields would be projected and we would decode them into the illusion of a 'physical' asteroid. If they can sell a global 'pandemic' with a 'virus' that doesn't exist what will humans not believe if government and media tell them?

All this is particularly relevant as I write with the Pentagon planning to release in June, 2021, information about 'UFO sightings'. I have been following the UFO story since the early 1990s and the common theme throughout has been government and military denials and cover up. More recently, however, the Pentagon has suddenly become more talkative and apparently open with Air Force pilot radar images released of unexplained craft moving and changing direction at speeds well beyond anything believed possible with human technology. Then, in March, 2021, former Director of National Intelligence John Ratcliffe said a Pentagon report months later in June would reveal a great deal of information about UFO sightings unknown to the public. He said the report would have 'massive implications'. The order to do this was included bizarrely in a $2.3 trillion 'coronavirus' relief and government funding bill passed by the Trump administration at the end of 2020. I would add some serious notes of caution here. I have been pointing out since the 1990s that the US military and intelligence networks have long had craft – 'flying saucers' or anti-gravity craft – which any observer would take to be extraterrestrial in origin. Keeping this knowledge from the public allows craft flown by humans to be perceived as alien visitations. I am not saying that 'aliens' do not exist. I would be the last one to say that, but we have to be streetwise here. President Ronald Reagan told the UN General Assembly in 1987: 'I occasionally think how quickly our differences worldwide would vanish if we were facing an alien threat from outside this world.' That's the idea. Unite against a common 'enemy' with a common purpose behind your 'saviour force' (the Cult) as this age-old technique of mass manipulation goes global.

Science moves this way ...

I could find only one other person who was discussing the simulation hypothesis publicly when I concluded it was real. This was Nick Bostrom, a Swedish-born philosopher at the University of Oxford, who has explored for many years the possibility that human reality is a computer simulation although his version and mine are not the same. Today the simulation and holographic reality hypothesis have increasingly entered the scientific mainstream. Well, the more open-minded mainstream, that is. Here are a few of the ever-gathering examples. American nuclear physicist Silas Beane led a team of physicists at the University of Bonn in Germany pursuing the question of whether we live in a simulation. They concluded that we probably do and it was likely based on a lattice of cubes. They found that cosmic rays align with that specific pattern. The team highlighted the Greisen–Zatsepin–Kuzmin (GZK) limit which refers to cosmic ray particle interaction with cosmic background radiation that creates an apparent boundary for cosmic ray particles. They say in a paper entitled 'Constraints on the Universe as a Numerical Simulation' that this 'pattern of constraint' is exactly what you would find with a computer simulation. They also made the point that a simulation would create its own 'laws of physics' that would limit possibility. I've been making the same point for decades that the perceived laws of physics relate only to this reality, or what I would later call the simulation. When designers write codes to create computer and virtual reality games they are the equivalent of the laws of physics for that game. Players interact within the limitations laid out by the coding. In the same way those who wrote the codes for the simulation decided the laws of physics that would apply. These can be overridden by expanded states of consciousness, but not by those enslaved in only five-sense awareness where simulation codes rule. Overriding the codes is what people call 'miracles'. They are not. They are bypassing the encoded limits of the simulation. A population caught in simulation perception would have no idea that this was their plight. As the Bonn paper said: 'Like a prisoner in a pitch-black cell we would not be able to see the "walls" of our prison,' That's true if people remain mesmerised by the five senses. Open to expanded awareness and those walls become very clear. The main one is the speed of light.

American theoretical physicist James Gates is another who has explored the simulation question and found considerable evidence to support the idea. Gates was Professor of Physics at the University of Maryland, Director of The Center for String and Particle Theory, and on Barack Obama's Council of Advisors on Science and Technology. He and his team found computer codes of digital data embedded in the fabric of our reality. They relate to on-off electrical charges of 1 and 0 in the binary system used by computers. 'We have no idea what they are doing there', Gates said. They found within the energetic fabric mathematical sequences known as error-correcting codes or block codes that 'reboot' data to its original state or 'default settings' when something knocks it out of sync. Gates was asked if he had found a set of equations embedded in our reality indistinguishable from those that drive search engines and browsers and he said: 'That is correct.' Rich Terrile, director of the Centre for Evolutionary Computation and Automated Design at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, has said publicly that he believes the Universe is a digital hologram that must have been created by a form of intelligence. I agree with that in every way. Waveform information is delivered electrically by the senses to the brain which constructs a digital holographic reality that we call the 'world'. This digital level of reality can be read by the esoteric art of numerology. Digital holograms are at the cutting edge of holographics today. We have digital technology everywhere designed to access and manipulate our digital level of perceived reality. Synthetic mRNA in 'Covid vaccines' has a digital component to manipulate the body's digital 'operating system'.

Reality is numbers

How many know that our reality can be broken down to numbers and codes that are the same as computer games? Max Tegmark, a physicist at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), is the author of Our Mathematical Universe in which he lays out how reality can be entirely described by numbers and maths in the way that a video game is encoded with the 'physics' of computer games. Our world and computer virtual reality are essentially the same.

Tegmark imagines the perceptions of characters in an advanced computer game when the graphics are so good they don't know they are in a game. They think they can bump into real objects (electromagnetic resistance in our reality), fall in love and feel emotions like excitement. When they began to study the apparently 'physical world' of the video game they would realise that everything was made of pixels (which have been found in our energetic reality as must be the case when on one level our world is digital). What computer game characters thought was physical 'stuff', Tegmark said, could actually be broken down into numbers:

And we're exactly in this situation in our world. We look around and it doesn't seem that mathematical at all, but everything we see is made out of elementary particles like quarks and electrons. And what properties does an electron have? Does it have a smell or a colour or a texture? No! ... We physicists have come up with geeky names for [Electron] properties, like electric charge, or spin, or lepton number, but the electron doesn't care what we call it, the properties are just numbers.

This is the illusory reality Gnostics were describing. This is the simulation. The A, C, G, and T codes of DNA have a binary value – A and C = 0 while G and T = 1. This has to be when the simulation is digital and the body must be digital to interact with it. Recurring mathematical sequences are encoded throughout reality and the body. They include the Fibonacci sequence in which the two previous numbers are added to get the next one, as in ... 1, 1, 2, 3, 5, 8, 13, 21, 34, 55, etc. The sequence is encoded in the human face and body, proportions of animals, DNA, seed heads, pine cones, trees, shells, spiral galaxies, hurricanes and the number of petals in a flower. The list goes on and on. There are fractal patterns – a 'never-ending pattern that is infinitely complex and self-similar across all scales in the as above, so below, principle of holograms. These and other famous recurring geometrical and mathematical sequences such as Phi, Pi, Golden Mean, Golden Ratio and Golden Section are computer codes of the simulation. I had to laugh and give my head a shake the day I finished this book and it went into the production stage. I was sent an article in Scientific American published in April, 2021, with the headline 'Confirmed! We Live in a Simulation'. Two decades after I first said our reality is a simulation and the speed of light is its outer limit the article suggested that we do live in a simulation and that the speed of light is its outer limit. I left school at 15 and never passed a major exam in my life while the writer was up to his eyes in qualifications. As I will explain in the final chapter knowing is far better than thinking and they come from very different sources. The article rightly connected the speed of light to the processing speed of the 'Matrix' and said what has been in my books all this time ... 'If we are in a simulation, as it appears, then space is an abstract property written in code. It is not real'. No it's not and if we live in a simulation something created it and it wasn't us. 'That David Icke says we are manipulated by aliens' – he's crackers.'

Wow ...

The reality that humanity thinks is so real is an illusion. Politicians, governments, scientists, doctors, academics, law enforcement, media, school and university curriculums, on and on, are all founded on a world that does not exist except as a simulated prison cell. Is it such a stretch to accept that 'Covid' doesn't exist when our entire 'physical' reality doesn't exist? Revealed here is the knowledge kept under raps in the Cult networks of compartmentalised secrecy to control humanity's sense of reality by inducing the population to believe in a reality that's not real. If it wasn't so tragic in its experiential consequences the whole thing would be hysterically funny. None of this is new to Renegade Minds. Ancient Greek philosopher Plato (about 428 to about 347BC) was a major influence on Gnostic belief and he described the human plight thousands of years ago with his Allegory of the Cave. He told the symbolic story of prisoners living in a cave who had never been outside. They were chained and could only see one wall of the cave while behind them was a fire that they could not see. Figures walked past the fire casting shadows on the prisoners' wall and those moving shadows became their sense of reality. Some prisoners began to study the shadows and were considered experts on them (today's academics and scientists), but what they studied was only an illusion (today's academics and scientists). A prisoner escaped from the cave and saw reality as it really is. When he returned to report this revelation they didn't believe him, called him mad and threatened to kill him if he tried to set them free. Plato's tale is not only a brilliant analogy of the human plight and our illusory reality. It describes, too, the dynamics of the 'Covid' hoax. I have only skimmed the surface of these subjects here. The aim of this book is to crisply connect all essential dots to put what is happening today into its true context. All subject areas and their connections in this chapter are covered in great evidential detail in Everything You Need To Know, But Have Never Been Told and The Answer.

They say that bewildered people 'can't see the forest for the trees'. Humanity, however, can't see the forest for the twigs. The five senses see only twigs while Renegade Minds can see the forest and it's the forest where the answers lie with the connections that reveals. Breaking free of perceptual programming so the forest can be seen is the way we turn all this around. Not breaking free is how humanity got into this mess. The situation may seem hopeless, but I promise you it's not. We are a perceptual heartbeat from paradise if only we knew.

CHAPTER TWELVE

Escaping Wetiko

Life is simply a vacation from the infinite

Dean Cavanagh

Renegade Minds weave the web of life and events and see common themes in the apparently random. They are always there if you look for them and their pursuit is aided by incredible synchronicity that comes when your mind is open rather than mesmerised by what it thinks it can see.

Infinite awareness is infinite possibility and the more of infinite possibility that we access the more becomes infinitely possible. That may be stating the apparently obvious, but it is a devastatingly-powerful fact that can set us free. We are a point of attention within an infinity of consciousness. The question is how much of that infinity do we choose to access? How much knowledge, insight, awareness, wisdom, do we want to connect with and explore? If your focus is only in the five senses you will be influenced by a fraction of infinite awareness. I mean a range so tiny that it gives new meaning to infinitesimal. Limitation of self-identity and a sense of the possible limit accordingly your range of consciousness. We are what we think we are. Life is what we think it is. The dream is the dreamer and the dreamer is the dream. Buddhist philosophy puts it this way: 'As a thing is viewed, so it appears.' Most humans live in the realm of touch, taste, see, hear, and smell and that's the limit of their sense of the possible and sense of self. Many will follow a religion and speak of a God in his heaven, but their lives are still dominated by the five senses in their perceptions and actions. The five senses become the arbiter of everything. When that happens all except a smear of infinity is sealed away from influence by the rigid, unyielding, reality bubbles that are the five-sense human or Phantom Self. Archon Cult methodology is to isolate consciousness within five-sense reality – the simulation – and then program that consciousness with a sense of self and the world through a deluge of life-long information designed to instil the desired perception that allows global control. Efforts to do this have increased dramatically with identity politics as identity bubbles are squeezed into the minutiae of five-sense detail which disconnect people even more profoundly from the infinite 'I'.

Five-sense focus and self-identity are like a firewall that limits access to the infinite realms. You only perceive one radio or television station and no other. We'll take that literally for a moment. Imagine a vast array of stations giving different information and angles on reality, but you only ever listen to one. Here we have the human plight in which the population is overwhelmingly confined to CultFM. This relates only to the frequency range of CultFM and limits perception and insight to that band – limits possibility to that band. It means you are connecting with an almost imperceptibly minuscule range of possibility and creative potential within the infinite Field. It's a world where everything seems apart from everything else and where synchronicity is rare. Synchronicity is defined in the dictionary as 'the happening by chance of two or more related or similar events at the same time'. Use of 'by chance' betrays a complete misunderstanding of reality. Synchronicity is not 'by chance'. As people open their minds, or 'awaken' to use the term, they notice more and more coincidences in their lives, bits of 'luck', apparently miraculous happenings that put them in the right place at the right time with the right people. Days become peppered with 'fancy meeting you here' and 'what are the chances of that?' My entire life has been lived like this and ever more so since my own colossal awakening in 1990 and 91 which transformed my sense of reality. Synchronicity is not 'by chance'; it is by accessing expanded realms of possibility which allow expanded potential for manifestation. People broadcasting the same vibe from the same openness of mind tend to be drawn 'by chance' to each other through what I call frequency magnetism and it's not only people. In the last more than 30 years incredible synchronicity has also led me through the Cult maze to information in so many forms and to crucial personal experiences. These 'coincidences' have allowed me to put the puzzle pieces together across an enormous array of subjects and situations. Those who have breached the bubble of five-sense reality will know exactly what I mean and this escape from the perceptual prison cell is open to everyone whenever they make that choice. This may appear super-human when compared with the limitations of 'human', but it's really our natural state. 'Human' as currently experienced is consciousness in an unnatural state of induced separation from the infinity of the whole. I'll come to how this transformation into unity can be made when I have described in more detail the force that holds humanity in servitude by denying this access to infinite self.

The Wetiko factor

I have been talking and writing for decades about the way five-sense mind is systematically barricaded from expanded awareness. I have used the analogy of a computer (five-sense mind) and someone at the keyboard (expanded awareness). Interaction between the computer and the operator is symbolic of the interaction between five-sense mind and expanded awareness. The computer directly experiences the Internet and the operator experiences the Internet via the computer which is how it's supposed to be – the two working as one. Archons seek to control that point where the operator connects with the computer to stop that interaction (Fig 20). Now the operator is banging the keyboard and clicking the mouse, but the computer is not responding and this happens when the computer is taken over – possessed – by an appropriately-named computer 'virus'. The operator has lost all influence over the computer which goes its own way making decisions under the control of the 'virus'. I have just described the dynamic through which the force known to Gnostics as Yaldabaoth and Archons disconnects five-sense mind from expanded awareness to imprison humanity in perceptual servitude.

Figure 20: The mind ‘virus’ I have been writing about for decades seeks to isolate five-sense mind (the computer) from the true ‘I’. (Image by Neil Hague).

About a year ago I came across a Native American concept of Wetiko which describes precisely the same phenomenon. Wetiko is the spelling used by the Cree and there are other versions including wintiko and windigo used by other tribal groups. They spell the name with lower case, but I see Wetiko as a proper noun as with Archons and prefer a capital. I first saw an article about Wetiko by writer and researcher Paul Levy which so synced with what I had been writing about the computer/operator disconnection and later the Archons. I then read his book, the fascinating Dispelling Wetiko, Breaking the Spell of Evil. The parallels between what I had concluded long before and the Native American concept of Wetiko were so clear and obvious that it was almost funny. For Wetiko see the Gnostic Archons for sure and the Jinn, the Predators, and every other name for a force of evil, inversion and chaos. Wetiko is the Native American name for the force that divides the computer from the operator (Fig 21). Indigenous author Jack D. Forbes, a founder of the Native American movement in the 1960s, wrote another book about Wetiko entitled Columbus And Other Cannibals – The Wetiko Disease of Exploitation, Imperialism, and Terrorism which I also read. Forbes says that Wetiko refers to an evil person or spirit ‘who terrorizes other creatures by means of terrible acts, including cannibalism’. Zulu shaman Credo Mutwa told me that African accounts tell how cannibalism was brought into the world by the Chitauri ‘gods’ – another manifestation of Wetiko. The distinction between ‘evil person or spirit’ relates to Archons/Wetiko possessing a human or acting as pure consciousness. Wetiko is said to be a sickness of the soul or spirit and a state of being that takes but gives nothing back – the Cult and its operatives perfectly described. Black Hawk, a Native American war leader defending their lands from confiscation, said European invaders had ‘poisoned hearts’ – Wetiko hearts – and that this would spread to native societies. Mention of the heart is very significant as we shall shortly see. Forbes writes: ‘Tragically, the history of the world for the past 2,000 years is, in great part, the story of the epidemiology of the wetiko disease.’ Yes, and much longer. Forbes is correct when he says: ‘The wetikos destroyed Egypt and Babylon and Athens and Rome and Tenochtitlan [capital of the Aztec empire] and perhaps now they will destroy the entire earth.’ Evil, he said, is the number one export of a Wetiko culture – see its globalisation with ‘Covid’. Constant war, mass murder, suffering of all kinds, child abuse, Satanism, torture and human sacrifice are all expressions of Wetiko and the Wetiko possessed. The world is Wetiko made manifest, but it doesn’t have to be. There is a way out of this even now.

Cult of Wetiko

Wetiko is the Yaldabaoth frequency distortion that seeks to attach to human consciousness and absorb it into its own. Once this connection is made Wetiko can drive the perceptions of the target which they believe to be coming from their own mind. All the horrors of history and today from mass killers to Satanists, paedophiles like Jeffrey Epstein and other psychopaths, are the embodiment of Wetiko and express its state of being in all its grotesqueness. The Cult is Wetiko incarnate, Yaldabaoth incarnate, and it seeks to facilitate Wetiko assimilation of humanity in totality into its distortion by manipulating the population into low frequency states that match its own. Paul Levy writes: 'Holographically enforced within the psyche of every human being the wetiko virus pervades and underlies the entire field of consciousness, and can therefore potentially manifest through any one of us at any moment if we are not mindful.' The 'Covid' hoax has achieved this with many people, but others have not fallen into Wetiko's frequency lair. Players in the 'Covid' human catastrophe including Gates, Schwab, Tedros, Fauci, Whitty, Vallance, Johnson, Hancock, Ferguson, Drosten, and all the rest, including the psychopath psychologists, are expressions of Wetiko. This is why they have no compassion or empathy and no emotional consequence for what they do that would make them stop doing it. Observe all the people who support the psychopaths in authority against the Pushbackers despite the damaging impact the psychopaths have on their own lives and their family's lives. You are again looking at Wetiko possession which prevents them seeing through the lies to the obvious scam going on. Why can't they see it? Wetiko won't let them see it. The perceptual divide that has now become a chasm is between the Wetikoed and the non-Wetikoed.

Paul Levy describes Wetiko in the same way that I have long described the Archontic force. They are the same distorted consciousness operating across dimensions of reality: '... the subtle body of wetiko is not located in the third dimension of space and time, literally existing in another dimension ... it is able to affect ordinary lives by mysteriously interpenetrating into our three-dimensional world.' Wetiko does this through its incarnate representatives in the Cult and by weaving itself into The Field which on our level of reality is the electromagnetic information field of the simulation or Matrix. More than that, the simulation is Wetiko / Yaldabaoth. Caleb Scharf, Director of Astrobiology at Columbia University, has speculated that 'alien life' could be so advanced that it has transcribed itself into the quantum realm to become what we call physics. He said intelligence indistinguishable from the fabric of the Universe would solve many of its greatest mysteries:

Perhaps hyper-advanced life isn't just external. Perhaps it's already all around. It is embedded in what we perceive to be physics itself, from the root behaviour of particles and fields to the phenomena of complexity and emergence ... In other words, life might not just be in the equations. It might BE the equations [My emphasis].

Scharf said it is possible that 'we don't recognise advanced life because it forms an integral and unsuspecting part of what we've considered to be the natural world'. I agree. Wetiko/Yaldabaoth is the simulation. We are literally in the body of the beast. But that doesn't mean it has to control us. We all have the power to overcome Wetiko influence and the Cult knows that. I doubt it sleeps too well because it knows that.

Which Field?

This, I suggest, is how it all works. There are two Fields. One is the fierce electromagnetic light of the Matrix within the speed of light; the other is the 'watery light' of The Field beyond the walls of the Matrix that connects with the Great Infinity. Five-sense mind and the decoding systems of the body attach us to the Field of Matrix light. They have to or we could not experience this reality. Five-sense mind sees only the Matrix Field of information while our expanded consciousness is part of the Infinity Field. When we open our minds, and most importantly our hearts, to the Infinity Field we have a mission control which gives us an expanded perspective, a road map, to understand the nature of the five-sense world. If we are isolated only in five-sense mind there is no mission control. We're on our own trying to understand a world that's constantly feeding us information to ensure we do not understand. People in this state can feel 'lost' and bewildered with no direction or radar. You can see ever more clearly those who are influenced by the Fields of Big Infinity or little five-sense mind simply by their views and behaviour with regard to the 'Covid' hoax. We have had this division throughout known human history with the mass of the people on one side and individuals who could see and intuit beyond the walls of the simulation – Plato's prisoner who broke out of the cave and saw reality for what it is. Such people have always been targeted by Wetiko/Archon-possessed authority, burned at the stake or demonised as mad, bad and dangerous. The Cult today and its global network of 'anti-hate', 'anti-fascist' Woke groups are all expressions of Wetiko attacking those exposing the conspiracy, 'Covid' lies and the 'vaccine' agenda.

Woke as a whole is Wetiko which explains its black and white mentality and how at one it is with the Wetiko-possessed Cult. Paul Levy said: 'To be in this paradigm is to still be under the thrall of a two-valued logic – where things are either true or false – of a wetikoized mind.’ Wetiko consciousness is in a permanent rage, therefore so is Woke, and then there is Woke inversion and contradiction. ‘Anti-fascists’ act like fascists because fascists and ‘anti-fascists’ are both Wetiko at work. Political parties act the same while claiming to be different for the same reason. Secret society and satanic rituals are attaching initiates to Wetiko and the cold, ruthless, psychopathic mentality that secures the positions of power all over the world is Wetiko. Reframing ‘training programmes’ have the same cumulative effect of attaching Wetiko and we have their graduates described as automatons and robots with a cold, psychopathic, uncaring demeanour. They are all traits of Wetiko possession and look how many times they have been described in this book and elsewhere with regard to personnel behind ‘Covid’ including the police and medical profession. Climbing the greasy pole in any profession in a Wetiko society requires traits of Wetiko to get there and that is particularly true of politics which is not about fair competition and pre-eminence of ideas. It is founded on how many backs you can stab and arses you can lick. This culminated in the global ‘Covid’ coordination between the Wetiko possessed who pulled it off in all the different countries without a trace of empathy and compassion for their impact on humans. Our sight sense can see only holographic form and not the Field which connects holographic form. Therefore we perceive ‘physical’ objects with ‘space’ in between. In fact that ‘space’ is energy/consciousness operating on multiple frequencies. One of them is Wetiko and that connects the Cult psychopaths, those who submit to the psychopaths, and those who serve the psychopaths in the media operations of the world. Wetiko is Gates. Wetiko is the mask-wearing submissive. Wetiko is the fake journalist and ‘fact-checker’. The Wetiko Field is coordinating the whole thing. Psychopaths, gofers, media operatives, ‘anti-hate’ hate groups, ‘fact-checkers’ and submissive people work as one unit even without human coordination because they are attached to the same Field which is organising it all (Fig 22). Paul Levy is here describing how Wetiko-possessed people are drawn together and refuse to let any information breach their rigid perceptions. He was writing long before 'Covid', but I think you will recognise followers of the 'Covid' religion oh just a little bit:

People who are channelling the vibratory frequency of wetiko align with each other through psychic resonance to reinforce their unspoken shared agreement so as to uphold their deranged view of reality. Once an unconscious content takes possession of certain individuals, it irresistibly draws them together by mutual attraction and knits them into groups tied together by their shared madness that can easily swell into an avalanche of insanity.

A psychic epidemic is a closed system, which is to say that it is insular and not open to any new information or informing influences from the outside world which contradict its fixed, limited, and limiting perspective.

There we have the Woke mind and the 'Covid' mind. Compatible resonance draws the awakening together, too, which is clearly happening today.

Figure 22: The Wetiko Field from which the Cult pyramid and its personnel are made manifest. (Image by Neil Hague).

Spiritual servitude

Wetiko doesn't care about humans. It's not human; it just possesses humans for its own ends and the effect (depending on the scale of possession) can be anything from extreme psychopathy to unquestioning obedience. Wetiko's worst nightmare is for human consciousness to expand beyond the simulation. Everything is focussed on stopping that happening through control of information, thus perception, thus frequency. The 'education system', media, science, medicine, academia, are all geared to maintaining humanity in five-sense servitude as is the constant stimulation of low-vibrational mental and emotional states (see 'Covid'). Wetiko seeks to dominate those subconscious spaces between five-sense perception and expanded consciousness where the computer meets the operator. From these subconscious hiding places Wetiko speaks to us to trigger urges and desires that we take to be our own and manipulate us into anything from low-vibrational to psychopathic states. Remember how Islam describes the Jinn as invisible tricksters that 'whisper' and confuse. Wetiko is the origin of the 'trickster god' theme that you find in cultures all over the world. Jinn, like the Archons, are Wetiko which is terrified of humans awakening and reconnecting with our true self for then its energy source has gone. With that the feedback loop breaks between Wetiko and human perception that provides the energetic momentum on which its very existence depends as a force of evil. Humans are both its target and its source of survival, but only if we are operating in low-vibrational states of fear, hate, depression and the background anxiety that most people suffer. We are Wetiko's target because we are its key to survival. It needs us, not the other way round. Paul Levy writes:

A vampire has no intrinsic, independent, substantial existence in its own right; it only exists in relation to us. The pathogenic, vampiric mind-parasite called wetiko is nothing in itself – not being able to exist from its own side – yet it has a 'virtual reality' such that it can potentially destroy our species ...

...The fact that a vampire is not reflected by a mirror can also mean that what we need to see is that there's nothing, no-thing to see, other than ourselves. The fact that wetiko is the expression of something inside of us means that the cure for wetiko is with us as well. The critical issue is finding this cure within us and then putting it into effect.

Evil begets evil because if evil does not constantly expand and find new sources of energetic sustenance its evil, its distortion, dies with the assimilation into balance and harmony. Love is the garlic to Wetiko's vampire. Evil, the absence of love, cannot exist in the presence of love. I think I see a way out of here. I have emphasised so many times over the decades that the Archons/Wetiko and their Cult are not all powerful. They are not. I don't care how it looks even now they are not. I have not called them little boys in short trousers for effect. I have said it because it is true. Wetiko's insatiable desire for power over others is not a sign of its omnipotence, but its insecurity. Paul Levy writes: 'Due to the primal fear which ultimately drives it and which it is driven to cultivate, wetiko's body politic has an intrinsic and insistent need for centralising power and control so as to create imagined safety for itself.' Yeaaaaees! Exactly! Why does Wetiko want humans in an ongoing state of fear? Wetiko itself is fear and it is petrified of love. As evil is an absence of love, so love is an absence of fear. Love conquers all and especially Wetiko which is fear. Wetiko brought fear into the world when it wasn't here before. Fear was the 'fall', the fall into low-frequency ignorance and illusion – fear is False Emotion Appearing Real. The simulation is driven and energised by fear because Wetiko/Yaldabaoth (fear) are the simulation. Fear is the absence of love and Wetiko is the absence of love.

Wetiko today

We can now view current events from this level of perspective. The 'Covid' hoax has generated momentous amounts of ongoing fear, anxiety, depression and despair which have empowered Wetiko. No wonder people like Gates have been the instigators when they are Wetiko incarnate and exhibit every trait of Wetiko in the extreme. See how cold and unemotional these people are like Gates and his cronies, how dead of eye they are. That's Wetiko. Sabbatians are Wetiko and everything they control including the World Health Organization, Big Pharma and the 'vaccine' makers, national 'health' hierarchies, corporate media, Silicon Valley, the banking system, and the United Nations with its planned transformation into world government. All are controlled and possessed by the Wetiko distortion into distorting human society in its image. We are with this knowledge at the gateway to understanding the world. Divisions of race, culture, creed and sexuality are diversions to hide the real division between those possessed and influenced by Wetiko and those that are not. The 'Covid' hoax has brought both clearly into view. Human behaviour is not about race. Tyrants and dictatorships come in all colours and creeds. What unites the US president bombing the innocent and an African tribe committing genocide against another as in Rwanda? What unites them? Wetiko. All wars are Wetiko, all genocide is Wetiko, all hunger over centuries in a world of plenty is Wetiko. Children going to bed hungry, including in the West, is Wetiko. Cult-generated Woke racial divisions that focus on the body are designed to obscure the reality that divisions in behaviour are manifestations of mind, not body. Obsession with body identity and group judgement is a means to divert attention from the real source of behaviour – mind and perception. Conflict sown by the Woke both within themselves and with their target groups are Wetiko providing lunch for itself through still more agents of the division, chaos, and fear on which it feeds. The Cult is seeking to assimilate the entirety of humanity and all children and young people into the Wetiko frequency by manipulating them into states of fear and despair. Witness all the suicide and psychological unravelling since the spring of 2020. Wetiko psychopaths want to impose a state of unquestioning obedience to authority which is no more than a conduit for Wetiko to enforce its will and assimilate humanity into itself. It needs us to believe that resistance is futile when it fears resistance and even more so the game-changing non-cooperation with its impositions. It can use violent resistance for its benefit. Violent impositions and violent resistance are both Wetiko. The Power of Love with its Power of No will sweep Wetiko from our world. Wetiko and its Cult know that. They just don't want us to know.

AI Wetiko

This brings me to AI or artificial intelligence and something else Wetikos don't want us to know. What is AI really? I know about computer code algorithms and AI that learns from data input. These, however, are more diversions, the expeditionary force, for the real AI that they want to connect to the human brain as promoted by Silicon Valley Wetikos like Kurzweil. What is this AI? It is the frequency of Wetiko, the frequency of the Archons. The connection of AI to the human brain is the connection of the Wetiko frequency to create a Wetiko hive mind and complete the job of assimilation. The hive mind is planned to be controlled from Israel and China which are both 100 percent owned by Wetiko Sabbatians. The assimilation process has been going on minute by minute in the 'smart' era which fused with the 'Covid' era. We are told that social media is scrambling the minds of the young and changing their personality. This is true, but what is social media? Look more deeply at how it works, how it creates divisions and conflict, the hostility and cruelty, the targeting of people until they are destroyed. That's Wetiko. Social media is manipulated to tune people to the Wetiko frequency with all the emotional exploitation tricks employed by platforms like Facebook and its Wetiko front man, Zuckerberg. Facebook's Instagram announced a new platform for children to overcome a legal bar on them using the main site. This is more Wetiko exploitation and manipulation of kids. Amnesty International likened the plan to foxes offering to guard the henhouse and said it was incompatible with human rights. Since when did Wetiko or Zuckerberg (I repeat myself) care about that? Would Brin and Page at Google, Wojcicki at YouTube, Bezos at Amazon and whoever the hell runs Twitter act as they do if they were not channelling Wetiko? Would those who are developing technologies for no other reason than human control? How about those designing and selling technologies to kill people and Big Pharma drug and 'vaccine' producers who know they will end or devastate lives? Quite a thought for these people to consider is that if you are Wetiko in a human life you are Wetiko on the 'other side' unless your frequency changes and that can only change by a change of perception which becomes a change of behaviour. Where Gates is going does not bear thinking about although perhaps that's exactly where he wants to go. Either way, that's where he's going. His frequency will make it so.

The frequency lair

I have been saying for a long time that a big part of the addiction to smartphones and devices is that a frequency is coming off them that entraps the mind. People spend ages on their phones and sometimes even a minute or so after they put them down they pick them up again and it all repeats. 'Covid' lockdowns will have increased this addiction a million times for obvious reasons. Addictions to alcohol overindulgence and drugs are another way that Wetiko entraps consciousness to attach to its own. Both are symptoms of low-vibrational psychological distress which alcoholism and drug addiction further compound. Do we think it's really a coincidence that access to them is made so easy while potions that can take people into realms beyond the simulation are banned and illegal? I have explored smartphone addiction in other books, the scale is mind-blowing, and that level of addiction does not come without help. Tech companies that make these phones are Wetiko and they will have no qualms about destroying the minds of children. We are seeing again with these companies the Wetiko perceptual combination of psychopathic enforcers and weak and meek unquestioning compliance by the rank and file.

The global Smart Grid is the Wetiko Grid and it is crucial to complete the Cult endgame. The simulation is radiation and we are being deluged with technological radiation on a devastating scale. Wetiko frauds like Elon Musk serve Cult interests while occasionally criticising them to maintain his street-cred. 5G and other forms of Wi-Fi are being directed at the earth from space on a volume and scale that goes on increasing by the day. Elon Musk's (officially) SpaceX Starlink project is in the process of putting tens of thousands of satellites in low orbit to cover every inch of the planet with 5G and other Wi-Fi to create Kurzweil's global 'cloud' to which the human mind is planned to be attached very soon. SpaceX has approval to operate 12,000 satellites with more than 1,300 launched at the time of writing and applications filed for 30,000 more. Other operators in the Wi-Fi, 5G, low-orbit satellite market include OneWeb (UK), Telesat (Canada), and AST & Science (US). Musk tells us that AI could be the end of humanity and then launches a company called Neuralink to connect the human brain to computers. Musk's (in theory) Tesla company is building electric cars and the driverless vehicles of the smart control grid. As frauds and bullshitters go Elon Musk in my opinion is Major League.

5G and technological radiation in general are destructive to human health, genetics and psychology and increasing the strength of artificial radiation underpins the five-sense perceptual bubbles which are themselves expressions of radiation or electromagnetism. Freedom activist John Whitehead was so right with his 'databit by databit, we are building our own electronic concentration camps'. The Smart Grid and 5G is a means to control the human mind and infuse perceptual information into The Field to influence anyone in sync with its frequency. You can change perception and behaviour en masse if you can manipulate the population into those levels of frequency and this is happening all around us today. The arrogance of Musk and his fellow Cult operatives knows no bounds in the way that we see with Gates. Musk's satellites are so many in number already they are changing the night sky when viewed from Earth. The astronomy community has complained about this and they have seen nothing yet. Some consequences of Musk's Wetiko hubris include: Radiation; visible pollution of the night sky; interference with astronomy and meteorology; ground and water pollution from intensive use of increasingly many spaceports; accumulating space debris; continual deorbiting and burning up of aging satellites, polluting the atmosphere with toxic dust and smoke; and ever-increasing likelihood of collisions. A collective public open letter of complaint to Musk said:

We are writing to you ... because SpaceX is in process of surrounding the Earth with a network of thousands of satellites whose very purpose is to irradiate every square inch of the Earth. SpaceX, like everyone else, is treating the radiation as if it were not there. As if the mitochondria in our cells do not depend on electrons moving undisturbed from the food we digest to the oxygen we breathe.

As if our nervous systems and our hearts are not subject to radio frequency interference like any piece of electronic equipment. As if the cancer, diabetes, and heart disease that now afflict a majority of the Earth's population are not metabolic diseases that result from interference with our cellular machinery. As if insects everywhere, and the birds and animals that eat them, are not starving to death as a result.

People like Musk and Gates believe in their limitless Wetiko arrogance that they can do whatever they like to the world because they own it. Consequences for humanity are irrelevant. It's absolutely time that we stopped taking this shit from these self-styled masters of the Earth when you consider where this is going.

Why is the Cult so anti-human?

I hear this question often: Why would they do this when it will affect them, too? Ah, but will it? Who is this them? Forget their bodies. They are just vehicles for Wetiko consciousness. When you break it all down to the foundations we are looking at a state of severely distorted consciousness targeting another state of consciousness for assimilation. The rest is detail. The simulation is the fly-trap in which unique sensations of the five senses create a cycle of addiction called reincarnation. Renegade Minds see that everything which happens in our reality is a smaller version of the whole picture in line with the holographic principle. Addiction to the radiation of smart technology is a smaller version of addiction to the whole simulation. Connecting the body/brain to AI is taking that addiction on a giant step further to total ongoing control by assimilating human incarnate consciousness into Wetiko. I have watched during the 'Covid' hoax how many are becoming ever more profoundly attached to Wetiko's perceptual calling cards of aggressive response to any other point of view ('There is no other god but me'), psychopathic lack of compassion and empathy, and servile submission to the narrative and will of authority. Wetiko is the psychopaths and subservience to psychopaths. The Cult of Wetiko is so anti-human because it is not human. It embarked on a mission to destroy human by targeting everything that it means to be human and to survive as human. 'Covid' is not the end, just a means to an end. The Cult with its Wetiko consciousness is seeking to change Earth systems, including the atmosphere, to suit them, not humans. The gathering bombardment of 5G alone from ground and space is dramatically changing The Field with which the five senses interact. There is so much more to come if we sit on our hands and hope it will all go away. It is not meant to go away. It is meant to get ever more extreme and we need to face that while we still can – just.

Carbon dioxide is the gas of life. Without that human is over. Kaput, gone, history. No natural world, no human. The Cult has created a cock and bull story about carbon dioxide and climate change to justify its reduction to the point where Gates and the ignoramus Biden 'climate chief' John Kerry want to suck it out of the atmosphere. Kerry wants to do this because his master Gates does. Wetikos have made the gas of life a demon with the usual support from the Wokers of Extinction Rebellion and similar organisations and the bewildered puppet-child that is Greta Thunberg who was put on the world stage by Klaus Schwab and the World Economic Forum. The name Extinction Rebellion is both ironic and as always Wetiko inversion. The gas that we need to survive must be reduced to save us from extinction. The most basic need of human is oxygen and we now have billions walking around in face nappies depriving body and brain of this essential requirement of human existence. More than that 5G at 60 gigahertz interacts with the oxygen molecule to reduce the amount of oxygen the body can absorb into the bloodstream. The obvious knock-on consequences of that for respiratory and cognitive problems and life itself need no further explanation. Psychopaths like Musk are assembling a global system of satellites to deluge the human atmosphere with this insanity. The man should be in jail. Here we have two most basic of human needs, oxygen and carbon dioxide, being dismantled.

Two others, water and food, are getting similar treatment with the United Nations Agendas 21 and 2030 – the Great Reset – planning to centrally control all water and food supplies. People will not even own rain water that falls on their land. Food is affected at the most basic level by reducing carbon dioxide. We have genetic modification or GMO infiltrating the food chain on a mass scale, pesticides and herbicides polluting the air and destroying the soil. Freshwater fish that provide livelihoods for 60 million people and feed hundreds of millions worldwide are being 'pushed to the brink' according the conservationists while climate change is the only focus. Now we have Gates and Schwab wanting to dispense with current food sources all together and replace them with a synthetic version which the Wetiko Cult would control in terms of production and who eats and who doesn't. We have been on the Totalitarian Tiptoe to this for more than 60 years as food has become ever more processed and full of chemical shite to the point today when it's not natural food at all. As Dr Tom Cowan says: 'If it has a label don't eat it.' Bill Gates is now the biggest owner of farmland in the United States and he does nothing without an ulterior motive involving the Cult. Klaus Schwab wrote: 'To feed the world in the next 50 years we will need to produce as much food as was produced in the last 10,000 years ... food security will only be achieved, however, if regulations on genetically modified foods are adapted to reflect the reality that gene editing offers a precise, efficient and safe method of improving crops.' Liar. People and the world are being targeted with aluminium through vaccines, chemtrails, food, drink cans, and endless other sources when aluminium has been linked to many health issues including dementia which is increasing year after year. Insects, bees and wildlife essential to the food chain are being deleted by pesticides, herbicides and radiation which 5G is dramatically increasing with 6G and 7G to come. The pollinating bee population is being devastated while wildlife including birds, dolphins and whales are having their natural radar blocked by the effects of ever-increasing radiation. In the summer windscreens used to be splattered with insects so numerous were they. It doesn't happen now. Where have they gone?

Synthetic everything

The Cult is introducing genetically-modified versions of trees, plants and insects including a Gates-funded project to unleash hundreds of millions of genetically-modified, lab-altered and patented male mosquitoes to mate with wild mosquitoes and induce genetic flaws that cause them to die out. Clinically-insane Gates-funded Japanese researchers have developed mosquitos that spread vaccine and are dubbed 'flying vaccinators'. Gates is funding the modification of weather patterns in part to sell the myth that this is caused by carbon dioxide and he's funding geoengineering of the skies to change the atmosphere. Some of this came to light with the Gates-backed plan to release tonnes of chalk into the atmosphere to 'deflect the Sun and cool the planet'. Funny how they do this while the heating effect of the Sun is not factored into climate projections focussed on carbon dioxide. The reason is that they want to reduce carbon dioxide (so don't mention the Sun), but at the same time they do want to reduce the impact of the Sun which is so essential to human life and health. I have mentioned the sun-cholesterol-vitamin D connection as they demonise the Sun with warnings about skin cancer (caused by the chemicals in sun cream they tell you to splash on). They come from the other end of the process with statin drugs to reduce cholesterol that turns sunlight into vitamin D. A lack of vitamin D leads to a long list of health effects and how vitamin D levels must have fallen with people confined to their homes over 'Covid'. Gates is funding other forms of geoengineering and most importantly chemtrails which are dropping heavy metals, aluminium and self-replicating nanotechnology onto the Earth which is killing the natural world. See Everything You Need To Know, But Have Never Been Told for the detailed background to this.

Every human system is being targeted for deletion by a force that's not human. The Wetiko Cult has embarked on the process of transforming the human body from biological to synthetic biological as I have explained. Biological is being replaced by the artificial and synthetic – Archontic 'countermimicry' – right across human society. The plan eventually is to dispense with the human body altogether and absorb human consciousness – which it wouldn't really be by then – into cyberspace (the simulation which is Wetiko/Yaldabaoth). Preparations for that are already happening if people would care to look. The alternative media rightly warns about globalism and 'the globalists', but this is far bigger than that and represents the end of the human race as we know it. The 'bad copy' of prime reality that Gnostics describe was a bad copy of harmony, wonder and beauty to start with before Wetiko/Yaldabaoth set out to change the simulated 'copy' into something very different. The process was slow to start with. Entrapped humans in the simulation timeline were not technologically aware and they had to be brought up to intellectual speed while being suppressed spiritually to the point where they could build their own prison while having no idea they were doing so. We have now reached that stage where technological intellect has the potential to destroy us and that's why events are moving so fast. Central American shaman Don Juan Matus said:

Think for a moment, and tell me how you would explain the contradictions between the intelligence of man the engineer and the stupidity of his systems of belief, or the stupidity of his contradictory behaviour. Sorcerers believe that the predators have given us our systems of beliefs, our ideas of good and evil; our social mores. They are the ones who set up our dreams of success or failure. They have given us covetousness, greed, and cowardice. It is the predator who makes us complacent, routinary, and egomaniacal.

In order to keep us obedient and meek and weak, the predators engaged themselves in a stupendous manoeuvre – stupendous, of course, from the point of view of a fighting strategist; a horrendous manoeuvre from the point of those who suffer it. They gave us their mind. The predators' mind is baroque, contradictory, morose, filled with the fear of being discovered any minute now.

For 'predators' see Wetiko, Archons, Yaldabaoth, Jinn, and all the other versions of the same phenomenon in cultures and religions all over the world. The theme is always the same because it's true and it's real. We have reached the point where we have to deal with it. The question is – how?

Don't fight – walk away

I thought I'd use a controversial subheading to get things moving in terms of our response to global fascism. What do you mean 'don't fight'? What do you mean 'walk away'? We've got to fight. We can't walk away. Well, it depends what we mean by fight and walk away. If fighting means physical combat we are playing Wetiko's game and falling for its trap. It wants us to get angry, aggressive, and direct hate and hostility at the enemy we think we must fight. Every war, every battle, every conflict, has been fought with Wetiko leading both sides. It's what it does. Wetiko wants a fight, anywhere, any place. Just hit me, son, so I can hit you back. Wetiko hits Wetiko and Wetiko hits Wetiko in return. I am very forthright as you can see in exposing Wetikos of the Cult, but I don't hate them. I refuse to hate them. It's what they want. What you hate you become. What you fight you become. Wokers, 'anti-haters' and 'anti-fascists' prove this every time they reach for their keyboards or don their balaclavas. By walk away I mean to disengage from Wetiko which includes ceasing to cooperate with its tyranny. Paul Levy says of Wetiko:

The way to 'defeat' evil is not to try to destroy it (for then, in playing evil's game, we have already lost), but rather, to find the invulnerable place within ourselves where evil is unable to vanquish us – this is to truly 'win' our battle with evil.

Wetiko is everywhere in human society and it's been on steroids since the 'Covid' hoax. Every shouting match over wearing masks has Wetiko wearing a mask and Wetiko not wearing one. It's an electrical circuit of push and resist, push and resist, with Wetiko pushing and resisting. Each polarity is Wetiko empowering itself. Dictionary definitions of 'resist' include 'opposing, refusing to accept or comply with' and the word to focus on is 'opposing'. What form does this take – setting police cars alight or 'refusing to accept or comply with'? The former is Wetiko opposing Wetiko while the other points the way forward. This is the difference between those aggressively demanding that government fascism must be obeyed who stand in stark contrast to the great majority of Pushbackers. We saw this clearly with a march by thousands of Pushbackers against lockdown in London followed days later by a Woker-hijacked protest in Bristol in which police cars were set on fire. Masks were virtually absent in London and widespread in Bristol. Wetiko wants lockdown on every level of society and infuses its aggression to police it through its unknowing stooges. Lockdown protesters are the ones with the smiling faces and the hugs, The two blatantly obvious states of being – getting more obvious by the day – are the result of Wokers and their like becoming ever more influenced by the simulation Field of Wetiko and Pushbackers ever more influenced by The Field of a far higher vibration beyond the simulation. Wetiko can't invade the heart which is where most lockdown opponents are coming from. It's the heart that allows them to see through the lies to the truth in ways I will be highlighting.

Renegade Minds know that calmness is the place from which wisdom comes. You won't find wisdom in a hissing fit and wisdom is what we need in abundance right now. Calmness is not weakness – you don't have to scream at the top of your voice to be strong. Calmness is indeed a sign of strength. 'No' means I'm not doing it. NOOOO!!! doesn't mean you're not doing it even more. Volume does not advance 'No – I'm not doing it'. You are just not doing it. Wetiko possessed and influenced don't know how to deal with that. Wetiko wants a fight and we should not give it one. What it needs more than anything is our cooperation and we should not give that either. Mass rallies and marches are great in that they are a visual representation of feeling, but if it ends there they are irrelevant. You demand that Wetikos act differently? Well, they're not going to are they? They are Wetikos. We don't need to waste our time demanding that something doesn't happen when that will make no difference. We need to delete the means that allows it to happen. This, invariably, is our cooperation. You can demand a child stop firing a peashooter at the dog or you can refuse to buy the peashooter. If you provide the means you are cooperating with the dog being smacked on the nose with a pea. How can the authorities enforce mask-wearing if millions in a country refuse? What if the 74 million Pushbackers that voted for Trump in 2020 refused to wear masks, close their businesses or stay in their homes. It would be unenforceable. The few control the many through the compliance of the many and that's always been the dynamic be it 'Covid' regulations or the Roman Empire. I know people can find it intimidating to say no to authority or stand out in a crowd for being the only one with a face on display; but it has to be done or it's over. I hope I've made clear in this book that where this is going will be far more intimidating than standing up now and saying 'No' – I will not cooperate with my own enslavement and that of my children. There might be consequences for some initially, although not so if enough do the same. The question that must be addressed is what is going to happen if we don't? It is time to be strong and unyieldingly so. No means no. Not here and there, but everywhere and always. I have refused to wear a mask and obey all the other nonsense. I will not comply with tyranny. I repeat: Fascism is not imposed by fascists – there are never enough of them. Fascism is imposed by the population acquiescing to fascism. I will not do it. I will die first, or my body will. Living meekly under fascism is a form of death anyway, the death of the spirit that Martin Luther King described.

Making things happen

We must not despair. This is not over till it's over and it's far from that. The 'fat lady' must refuse to sing. The longer the 'Covid' hoax has dragged on and impacted on more lives we have seen an awakening of phenomenal numbers of people worldwide to the realisation that what they have believed all their lives is not how the world really is. Research published by the system-serving University of Bristol and King's College London in February, 2021, concluded: 'One in every 11 people in Britain say they trust David Icke's take on the coronavirus pandemic.' It will be more by now and we have gathering numbers to build on. We must urgently progress from seeing the scam to ceasing to cooperate with it. Prominent German lawyer Reiner Fuellmich, also licenced to practice law in America, is doing a magnificent job taking the legal route to bring the psychopaths to justice through a second Nuremberg tribunal for crimes against humanity. Fuellmich has an impressive record of beating the elite in court and he formed the German Corona Investigative Committee to pursue civil charges against the main perpetrators with a view to triggering criminal charges. Most importantly he has grasped the foundation of the hoax – the PCR test not testing for the ‘virus’ – and Christian Drosten is therefore on his charge sheet along with Gates frontman Tedros at the World Health Organization. Major players must not be allowed to inflict their horrors on the human race without being brought to book. A life sentence must follow for Bill Gates and the rest of them. A group of researchers has also indicted the government of Norway for crimes against humanity with copies sent to the police and the International Criminal Court. The lawsuit cites participation in an internationally-planned false pandemic and violation of international law and human rights, the European Commission’s definition of human rights by coercive rules, Nuremberg and Hague rules on fundamental human rights, and the Norwegian constitution. We must take the initiative from hereon and not just complain, protest and react.

There are practical ways to support vital mass non-cooperation. Organising in numbers is one. Lockdown marches in London in the spring in 2021 were mass non-cooperation that the authorities could not stop. There were too many people. Hundreds of thousands walked the London streets in the centre of the road for mile after mile while the Face-Nappies could only look on. They were determined, but calm, and just did it with no histrionics and lots of smiles. The police were impotent. Others are organising group shopping without masks for mutual support and imagine if that was happening all over. Policing it would be impossible. If the store refuses to serve people in these circumstances they would be faced with a long line of trolleys full of goods standing on their own and everything would have to be returned to the shelves. How would they cope with that if it kept happening? I am talking here about moving on from complaining to being pro-active; from watching things happen to making things happen. I include in this our relationship with the police. The behaviour of many Face-Nappies has been disgraceful and anyone who thinks they would never find concentration camp guards in the 'enlightened' modern era have had that myth busted big-time. The period and setting may change – Wetikos never do. I watched film footage from a London march in which a police thug viciously kicked a protestor on the floor who had done nothing. His fellow Face-Nappies stood in a ring protecting him. What he did was a criminal assault and with a crowd far outnumbering the police this can no longer be allowed to happen unchallenged. I get it when people chant 'shame on you' in these circumstances, but that is no longer enough. They have no shame those who do this. Crowds needs to start making a citizen's arrest of the police who commit criminal offences and brutally attack innocent people and defenceless women. A citizen's arrest can be made under section 24A of the UK Police and Criminal Evidence (PACE) Act of 1984 and you will find something similar in other countries. I prefer to call it a Common Law arrest rather than citizen's for reasons I will come to shortly. Anyone can arrest a person committing an indictable offence or if they have reasonable grounds to suspect they are committing an indictable offence. On both counts the attack by the police thug would have fallen into this category. A citizen's arrest can be made to stop someone:

- Causing physical injury to himself or any other person
- Suffering physical injury
- Causing loss of or damage to property
- Making off before a constable can assume responsibility for him

A citizen's arrest may also be made to prevent a breach of the peace under Common Law and if they believe a breach of the peace will happen or anything related to harm likely to be done or already done in their presence. This is the way to go I think – the Common Law version. If police know that the crowd and members of the public will no longer be standing and watching while they commit their thuggery and crimes they will think twice about acting like Brownshirts and Blackshirts.

Common Law – common sense

Mention of Common Law is very important. Most people think the law is the law as in one law. This is not the case. There are two bodies of law, Common Law and Statute Law, and they are not the same. Common Law is founded on the simple premise of do no harm. It does not recognise victimless crimes in which no harm is done while Statute Law does. There is a Statute Law against almost everything. So what is Statute Law? Amazingly it's the law of the sea that was brought ashore by the Cult to override the law of the land which is Common Law. They had no right to do this and as always they did it anyway. They had to. They could not impose their will on the people through Common Law which only applies to do no harm. How could you stitch up the fine detail of people's lives with that? Instead they took the law of the sea, or Admiralty Law, and applied it to the population. Statute Law refers to all the laws spewing out of governments and their agencies including all the fascist laws and regulations relating to 'Covid'. The key point to make is that Statute Law is contract law. It only applies between contracting corporations. Most police officers don't even know this. They have to be kept in the dark, too. Long ago when merchants and their sailing ships began to trade with different countries a contractual law was developed called Admiralty Law and other names. Again it only applied to contracts agreed between corporate entities. If there is no agreed contract the law of the sea had no jurisdiction and that still applies to its new alias of Statute Law. The problem for the Cult when the law of the sea was brought ashore was an obvious one. People were not corporations and neither were government entities. To overcome the latter they made governments and all associated organisations corporations. All the institutions are private corporations and I mean governments and their agencies, local councils, police, courts, military, US states, the whole lot. Go to the Dun and Bradstreet corporate listings website for confirmation that they are all corporations. You are arrested by a private corporation called the police by someone who is really a private security guard and they take you to court which is another private corporation. Neither have jurisdiction over you unless you consent and contract with them. This is why you hear the mantra about law enforcement policing by consent of the people. In truth the people 'consent' only in theory through monumental trickery.

Okay, the Cult overcame the corporate law problem by making governments and institutions corporate entities; but what about people? They are not corporations are they? Ah ... well in a sense, and only a sense, they are. Not people exactly – the illusion of people. The Cult creates a corporation in the name of everyone at the time that their birth certificate is issued. Note birth/ berth certificate and when you go to court under the law of the sea on land you stand in a dock. These are throwbacks to the origin. My Common Law name is David Vaughan Icke. The name of the corporation created by the government when I was born is called Mr David Vaughan Icke usually written in capitals as MR DAVID VAUGHAN ICKE. That is not me, the living, breathing man. It is a fictitious corporate entity. The trick is to make you think that David Vaughan Icke and MR DAVID VAUGHAN ICKE are the same thing. They are not. When police charge you and take you to court they are prosecuting the corporate entity and not the living, breathing, man or woman. They have to trick you into identifying as the corporate entity and contracting with them. Otherwise they have no jurisdiction. They do this through a language known as legalese. Lawful and legal are not the same either. Lawful relates to Common Law and legal relates to Statute Law. Legalese is the language of Statue Law which uses terms that mean one thing to the public and another in legalese. Notice that when a police officer tells someone why they are being charged he or she will say at the end: 'Do you understand?' To the public that means 'Do you comprehend?' In legalese it means 'Do you stand under me?' Do you stand under my authority? If you say yes to the question you are unknowingly agreeing to give them jurisdiction over you in a contract between two corporate entities.

This is a confidence trick in every way. Contracts have to be agreed between informed parties and if you don't know that David Vaughan Icke is agreeing to be the corporation MR DAVID VAUGHAN ICKE you cannot knowingly agree to contract. They are deceiving you and another way they do this is to ask for proof of identity. You usually show them a driving licence or other document on which your corporate name is written. In doing so you are accepting that you are that corporate entity when you are not. Referring to yourself as a 'person' or 'citizen' is also identifying with your corporate fiction which is why I made the Common Law point about the citizen's arrest. If you are approached by a police officer you identify yourself immediately as a living, breathing, man or woman and say 'I do not consent, I do not contract with you and I do not understand' or stand under their authority. I have a Common Law birth certificate as a living man and these are available at no charge from commonlawcourt.com. Businesses registered under the Statute Law system means that its laws apply. There are, however, ways to run a business under Common Law. Remember all 'Covid' laws and regulations are Statute Law – the law of contracts and you do not have to contract. This doesn't mean that you can kill someone and get away with it. Common Law says do no harm and that applies to physical harm, financial harm etc. Police are employees of private corporations and there needs to be a new system of non-corporate Common Law constables operating outside the Statute Law system. If you go to davidicke.com and put Common Law into the search engine you will find videos that explain Common Law in much greater detail. It is definitely a road we should walk.

With all my heart

I have heard people say that we are in a spiritual war. I don't like the term 'war' with its Wetiko dynamic, but I know what they mean. Sweep aside all the bodily forms and we are in a situation in which two states of consciousness are seeking very different realities.

Wetiko wants upheaval, chaos, fear, suffering, conflict and control. The other wants love, peace, harmony, fairness and freedom. That's where we are. We should not fall for the idea that Wetiko is all-powerful and there's nothing we can do. Wetiko is not all-powerful. It's a joke, pathetic. It doesn't have to be, but it has made that choice for now. A handful of times over the years when I have felt the presence of its frequency I have allowed it to attach briefly so I could consciously observe its nature. The experience is not pleasant, the energy is heavy and dark, but the ease with which you can kick it back out the door shows that its real power is in persuading us that it has power. It's all a con. Wetiko is a con. It's a trickster and not a power that can control us if we unleash our own. The con is founded on manipulating humanity to give its power to Wetiko which recycles it back to present the illusion that it has power when its power is ours that we gave away. This happens on an energetic level and plays out in the world of the seen as humanity giving its power to Wetiko authority which uses that power to control the population when the power is only the power the population has handed over. How could it be any other way for billions to be controlled by a relative few? I have had experiences with people possessed by Wetiko and again you can kick its arse if you do it with an open heart. Oh yes – the heart which can transform the world of perceived 'matter'.

We are receiver-transmitters and processors of information, but what information and where from? Information is processed into perception in three main areas – the brain, the heart and the belly. These relate to thinking, knowing, and emotion. Wetiko wants us to be head and belly people which means we think within the confines of the Matrix simulation and low-vibrational emotional reaction scrambles balance and perception. A few minutes on social media and you see how emotion is the dominant force. Woke is all emotion and is therefore thought-free and fact-free. Our heart is something different. It knows while the head thinks and has to try to work it out because it doesn't know. The human energy field has seven prime vortexes which connect us with wider reality (Fig 23). Chakra means 'wheels of light' in the Sanskrit language of ancient India. The main ones are: The crown chakra on top of the head; brow (or 'third eye') chakra in the centre of the forehead; throat chakra; heart chakra in the centre of the chest; solar plexus chakra below the sternum; sacral chakra beneath the navel; and base chakra at the bottom of the spine. Each one has a particular function or functions. We feel anxiety and nervousness in the belly where the sacral chakra is located and this processes emotion that can affect the colon to give people 'the shits' or make them 'shit scared' when they are nervous. Chakras all play an important role, but the Mr and Mrs Big is the heart chakra which sits at the centre of the seven, above the chakras that connect us to the 'physical' and below those that connect with higher realms (or at least should). Here in the heart chakra we feel love, empathy and compassion – 'My heart goes out to you'. Those with closed hearts become literally 'heart-less' in their attitudes and behaviour (see Bill Gates). Native Americans portrayed Wetiko with what Paul Levy calls a 'frigid, icy heart, devoid of mercy' (see Bill Gates).

Figure 23: The chakra system which interpenetrates the human energy field. The heart chakra is the governor – or should be.

Wetiko trembles at the thought of heart energy which it cannot infiltrate. The frequency is too high. What it seeks to do instead is close the heart chakra vortex to block its perceptual and energetic influence. Psychopaths have 'hearts of stone' and emotionally-damaged people have 'heartache' and 'broken hearts'. The astonishing amount of heart disease is related to heart chakra disruption with its fundamental connection to the 'physical' heart. Dr Tom Cowan has written an outstanding book challenging the belief that the heart is a pump and making the connection between the 'physical' and spiritual heart. Rudolph Steiner who was way ahead of his time said the same about the fallacy that the heart is a pump. What? The heart is not a pump? That's crazy, right? Everybody knows that. Read Cowan's Human Heart, Cosmic Heart and you will realise that the very idea of the heart as a pump is ridiculous when you see the evidence. How does blood in the feet so far from the heart get pumped horizontally up the body by the heart?? Cowan explains in the book the real reason why blood moves as it does. Our 'physical' heart is used to symbolise love when the source is really the heart vortex or spiritual heart which is our most powerful energetic connection to 'out there' expanded consciousness. That's why we feel knowing – intuitive knowing – in the centre of the chest. Knowing doesn't come from a process of thoughts leading to a conclusion. It is there in an instant all in one go. Our heart knows because of its connection to levels of awareness that do know. This is the meaning and source of intuition – intuitive knowing.

For the last more than 30 years of uncovering the global game and the nature of reality my heart has been my constant antenna for truth and accuracy. An American intelligence insider once said that I had quoted a disinformant in one of my books and yet I had only quoted the part that was true. He asked: 'How do you do that?' By using my heart antenna was the answer and anyone can do it. Heart-centred is how we are meant to be. With a closed heart chakra we withdraw into a closed mind and the bubble of five-sense reality. If you take a moment to focus your attention on the centre of your chest, picture a spinning wheel of light and see it opening and expanding. You will feel it happening, too, and perceptions of the heart like joy and love as the heart impacts on the mind as they interact. The more the chakra opens the more you will feel expressions of heart consciousness and as the process continues, and becomes part of you, insights and knowings will follow. An open heart is connected to that level of awareness that knows all is One. You will see from its perspective that the fault-lines that divide us are only illusions to control us. An open heart does not process the illusions of race, creed and sexuality except as brief experiences for a consciousness that is all. Our heart does not see division, only unity (Figs 24 and 25). There's something else, too. Our hearts love to laugh. Mark Twain's quote that says 'The human race has one really effective weapon, and that is laughter' is really a reference to the heart which loves to laugh with the joy of knowing the true nature of infinite reality and that all the madness of human society is an illusion of the mind. Twain also said: 'Against the assault of laughter nothing can stand.' This is so true of Wetiko and the Cult. Their insecurity demands that they be taken seriously and their power and authority acknowledged and feared. We should do nothing of the sort. We should not get aggressive or fearful which their insecurity so desires. We should laugh in their face. Even in their no-face as police come over in their face-nappies and expect to be taken seriously. They don't take themselves seriously looking like that so why should we? Laugh in the face of intimidation. Laugh in the face of tyranny. You will see by its reaction that you have pressed all of its buttons. Wetiko does not know what to do in the face of laughter or when its targets refuse to concede their joy to fear. We have seen many examples during the 'Covid' hoax when people have expressed their energetic power and the string puppets of Wetiko retreat with their tail limp between their knees. Laugh – the world is bloody mad after all and if it's a choice between laughter and tears I know which way I'm going.

'Vaccines' and the soul

The foundation of Wetiko/Archon control of humans is the separation of incarnate five-sense mind from the infinite 'I' and closing the heart chakra where the True 'I' lives during a human life. The goal has been to achieve complete separation in both cases. I was interested therefore to read an account by a French energetic healer of what she said she experienced with a patient who had been given the 'Covid' vaccine. Genuine energy healers can sense information and consciousness fields at different levels of being which are referred to as 'subtle bodies'. She described treating the patient who later returned after having, without the healer's knowledge, two doses of the 'Covid vaccine'. The healer said:

I noticed immediately the change, very heavy energy emanating from [the] subtle bodies. The scariest thing was when I was working on the heart chakra, I connected with her soul: it was detached from the physical body, it had no contact and it was, as if it was floating in a state of total confusion: a damage to the consciousness that loses contact with the physical body, i.e. with our biological machine, there is no longer any communication between them.

I continued the treatment by sending light to the heart chakra, the soul of the person, but it seemed that the soul could no longer receive any light, frequency or energy. It was a very powerful experience for me. Then I understood that this substance is indeed used to detach consciousness so that this consciousness can no longer interact through this body that it possesses in life, where there is no longer any contact, no frequency, no light, no more energetic balance or mind.

This would create a human that is rudderless and at the extreme almost zombie-like operating with a fractional state of consciousness at the mercy of Wetiko. I was especially intrigued by what the healer said in the light of the prediction by the highly-informed Rudolf Steiner more than a hundred years ago. He said:

In the future, we will eliminate the soul with medicine. Under the pretext of a 'healthy point of view', there will be a vaccine by which the human body will be treated as soon as possible directly at birth, so that the human being cannot develop the thought of the existence of soul and Spirit. To materialistic doctors will be entrusted the task of removing the soul of humanity.

As today, people are vaccinated against this disease or that disease, so in the future, children will be vaccinated with a substance that can be produced precisely in such a way that people, thanks to this vaccination, will be immune to being subjected to the 'madness' of spiritual life. He would be extremely smart, but he would not develop a conscience, and that is the true goal of some materialistic circles.

Steiner said the vaccine would detach the physical body from the etheric body (subtle bodies) and 'once the etheric body is detached the relationship between the universe and the etheric body would become extremely unstable, and man would become an automaton'. He said 'the physical body of man must be polished on this Earth by spiritual will – so the vaccine becomes a kind of arymanique (Wetiko) force' and 'man can no longer get rid of a given materialistic feeling'. Humans would then, he said, become 'materialistic of constitution and can no longer rise to the spiritual'. I have been writing for years about DNA being a receiver-transmitter of information that connects us to other levels of reality and these 'vaccines' changing DNA can be likened to changing an antenna and what it can transmit and receive. Such a disconnection would clearly lead to changes in personality and perception. Steiner further predicted the arrival of AI. Big Pharma 'Covid vaccine' makers, expressions of Wetiko, are testing their DNA-manipulating evil on children as I write with a view to giving the 'vaccine' to babies. If it's a soul-body disconnecter – and I say that it is or can be – every child would be disconnected from 'soul' at birth and the 'vaccine' would create a closed system in which spiritual guidance from the greater self would play no part. This has been the ambition of Wetiko all along. A Pentagon video from 2005 was leaked of a presentation explaining the development of vaccines to change behaviour by their effect on the brain. Those that believe this is not happening with the 'Covid' genetically-modifying procedure masquerading as a 'vaccine' should make an urgent appointment with Naivety Anonymous. Klaus Schwab wrote in 2018:

Neurotechnologies enable us to better influence consciousness and thought and to understand many activities of the brain. They include decoding what we are thinking in fine levels of detail through new chemicals and interventions that can influence our brains to correct for errors or enhance functionality.

The plan is clear and only the heart can stop it. With every heart that opens, every mind that awakens, Wetiko is weakened. Heart and love are far more powerful than head and hate and so nothing like a majority is needed to turn this around.

Beyond the Phantom

Our heart is the prime target of Wetiko and so it must be the answer to Wetiko. We are our heart which is part of one heart, the infinite heart. Our heart is where the true self lives in a human life behind firewalls of five-sense illusion when an imposter takes its place – Phantom Self; but our heart waits patiently to be set free any time we choose to see beyond the Phantom, beyond Wetiko. A Wetikoed Phantom Self can wreak mass death and destruction while the love of forever is locked away in its heart. The time is here to unleash its power and let it sweep away the fear and despair that is Wetiko. Heart consciousness does not seek manipulated, censored, advantage for its belief or religion, its activism and desires. As an expression of the One it treats all as One with the same rights to freedom and opinion. Our heart demands fairness for itself no more than for others. From this unity of heart we can come together in mutual support and transform this Wetikoed world into what reality is meant to be – a place of love, joy, happiness, fairness, justice and freedom. Wetiko has another agenda and that's why the world is as it is, but enough of this nonsense. Wetiko can't stay where hearts are open and it works so hard to keep them closed. Fear is its currency and its food source and love in its true sense has no fear. Why would love have fear when it knows it is All That Is, Has Been, And Ever Can Be on an eternal exploration of all possibility? Love in this true sense is not the physical attraction that passes for love. This can be an expression of it, yes, but Infinite Love, a love without condition, goes far deeper to the core of all being. It is the core of all being. Infinite reality was born from love beyond the illusions of the simulation. Love infinitely expressed is the knowing that all is One and the swiftly-passing experience of separation is a temporary hallucination. You cannot disconnect from Oneness; you can only perceive that you have and withdraw from its influence. This is the most important of all perception trickery by the mind parasite that is Wetiko and the foundation of all its potential for manipulation.

If we open our hearts, open the sluice gates of the mind, and redefine self-identity amazing things start to happen. Consciousness expands or contracts in accordance with self-identity. When true self is recognised as infinite awareness and label self – Phantom Self – is seen as only a series of brief experiences life is transformed. Consciousness expands to the extent that self-identity expands and everything changes. You see unity, not division, the picture, not the pixels. From this we can play the long game. No more is an experience something in and of itself, but a fleeting moment in the eternity of forever. Suddenly people in uniform and dark suits are no longer intimidating. Doing what your heart knows to be right is no longer intimidating and consequences for those actions take on the same nature of a brief experience that passes in the blink of an infinite eye. Intimidation is all in the mind. Beyond the mind there is no intimidation.

An open heart does not consider consequences for what it knows to be right. To do so would be to consider not doing what it knows to be right and for a heart in its power that is never an option. The Renegade Mind is really the Renegade Heart. Consideration of consequences will always provide a getaway car for the mind and the heart doesn't want one. What is right in the light of what we face today is to stop cooperating with Wetiko in all its forms and to do it without fear or compromise. You cannot compromise with tyranny when tyranny always demands more until it has everything. Life is your perception and you are your destiny. Change your perception and you change your life. Change collective perception and we change the world.

Come on people ... One human family, One heart, One goal ...
FREEEEEEEDOM!

We must settle for nothing less.

Postscript

The big scare story as the book goes to press is the 'Indian' variant and the world is being deluged with propaganda about the 'Covid catastrophe' in India which mirrors in its lies and misrepresentations what happened in Italy before the first lockdown in 2020.

The New York Post published a picture of someone who had 'collapsed in the street from Covid' in India in April, 2021, which was actually taken during a gas leak in May, 2020. Same old, same old. Media articles in mid-February were asking why India had been so untouched by 'Covid' and then as their vaccine rollout gathered pace the alleged 'cases' began to rapidly increase. Indian 'Covid vaccine' maker Bharat Biotech was funded into existence by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation (the pair announced their divorce in May, 2021, which is a pity because they so deserve each other). The Indian 'Covid crisis' was ramped up by the media to terrify the world and prepare people for submission to still more restrictions. The scam that worked the first time was being repeated only with far more people seeing through the deceit. Davidicke.com and Ickonic.com have sought to tell the true story of what is happening by talking to people living through the Indian nightmare which has nothing to do with 'Covid'. We posted a letter from 'Alisha' in Pune who told a very different story to government and media mendacity. She said scenes of dying people and overwhelmed hospitals were designed to hide what was really happening – genocide and starvation. Alisha said that millions had already died of starvation during the ongoing lockdowns while government and media were lying and making it look like the 'virus':

Restaurants, shops, gyms, theatres, basically everything is shut. The cities are ghost towns. Even so-called 'essential' businesses are only open till 11am in the morning. You basically have just an hour to buy food and then your time is up.

Inter-state travel and even inter-district travel is banned. The cops wait at all major crossroads to question why you are traveling outdoors or to fine you if you are not wearing a mask.

The medical community here is also complicit in genocide, lying about hospitals being full and turning away people with genuine illnesses, who need immediate care. They have even created a shortage of oxygen cylinders.

This is the classic Cult modus operandi played out in every country. Alisha said that people who would not have a PCR test not testing for the 'virus' were being denied hospital treatment. She said the people hit hardest were migrant workers and those in rural areas. Most businesses employed migrant workers and with everything closed there were no jobs, no income and no food. As a result millions were dying of starvation or malnutrition. All this was happening under Prime Minister Narendra Modi, a 100-percent asset of the Cult, and it emphasises yet again the scale of pure anti-human evil we are dealing with. Australia banned its people from returning home from India with penalties for trying to do so of up to five years in jail and a fine of £37,000. The manufactured 'Covid' crisis in India was being prepared to justify further fascism in the West. Obvious connections could be seen between the Indian 'vaccine' programme and increased 'cases' and this became a common theme. The Seychelles, the most per capita 'Covid vaccinated' population in the world, went back into lockdown after a 'surge of cases'.

Long ago the truly evil Monsanto agricultural biotechnology corporation with its big connections to Bill Gates devastated Indian farming with genetically-modified crops. Human rights activist Gurcharan Singh highlighted the efforts by the Indian government to complete the job by destroying the food supply to hundreds of millions with 'Covid' lockdowns. He said that 415 million people at the bottom of the disgusting caste system (still going whatever they say) were below the poverty line and struggled to feed themselves every year. Now the government was imposing lockdown at just the time to destroy the harvest. This deliberate policy was leading to mass starvation. People may reel back at the suggestion that a government would do that, but Wetiko-controlled 'leaders' are capable of any level of evil. In fact what is described in India is in the process of being instigated worldwide. The food chain and food supply are being targeted at every level to cause world hunger and thus control. Bill Gates is not the biggest owner of farmland in America for no reason and destroying access to food aids both the depopulation agenda and the plan for synthetic 'food' already being funded into existence by Gates. Add to this the coming hyper-inflation from the suicidal creation of fake 'money' in response to 'Covid' and the breakdown of container shipping systems and you have a cocktail that can only lead one way and is meant to. The Cult plan is to crash the entire system to 'build back better' with the Great Reset.

'Vaccine' transmission

Reports from all over the world continue to emerge of women suffering menstrual and fertility problems after having the fake 'vaccine' and of the non-'vaccinated' having similar problems when interacting with the 'vaccinated'. There are far too many for 'coincidence' to be credible. We've had menopausal women getting periods, others having periods stop or not stopping for weeks, passing clots, sometimes the lining of the uterus, breast irregularities, and miscarriages (which increased by 400 percent in parts of the United States). Non-'vaccinated' men and children have suffered blood clots and nose bleeding after interaction with the 'vaccinated'. Babies have died from the effects of breast milk from a 'vaccinated' mother. Awake doctors – the small minority – speculated on the cause of non-'vaccinated' suffering the same effects as the 'vaccinated'. Was it nanotechnology in the synthetic substance transmitting frequencies or was it a straight chemical bioweapon that was being transmitted between people? I am not saying that some kind of chemical transmission is not one possible answer, but the foundation of all that the Cult does is frequency and this is fertile ground for understanding how transmission can happen. American doctor Carrie Madej, an internal medicine physician and osteopath, has been practicing for the last 20 years, teaching medical students, and she says attending different meetings where the agenda for humanity was discussed. Madej, who operates out of Georgia, did not dismiss other possible forms of transmission, but she focused on frequency in search of an explanation for transmission. She said the Moderna and Pfizer 'vaccines' contained nano-lipid particles as a key component. This was a brand new technology never before used on humanity. 'They're using a nanotechnology which is pretty much little tiny computer bits ... nanobots or hydrogel.' Inside the 'vaccines' was 'this sci-fi kind of substance' which suppressed immune checkpoints to get into the cell. I referred to this earlier as the 'Trojan horse' technique that tricks the cell into opening a gateway for the self-replicating synthetic material and while the immune system is artificially suppressed the body has no defences. Madej said the substance served many purposes including an on-demand ability to 'deliver the payload' and using the nano 'computer bits' as biosensors in the body. 'It actually has the ability to accumulate data from your body, like your breathing, your respiration, thoughts, emotions, all kinds of things.'

She said the technology obviously has the ability to operate through Wi-Fi and transmit and receive energy, messages, frequencies or impulses. 'Just imagine you're getting this new substance in you and it can react to things all around you, the 5G, your smart device, your phones.' We had something completely foreign in the human body that had never been launched large scale at a time when we were seeing 5G going into schools and hospitals (plus the Musk satellites) and she believed the 'vaccine' transmission had something to do with this: '... if these people have this inside of them ... it can act like an antenna and actually transmit it outwardly as well.' The synthetic substance produced its own voltage and so it could have that kind of effect. This fits with my own contention that the nano receiver-transmitters are designed to connect people to the Smart Grid and break the receiver-transmitter connection to expanded consciousness. That would explain the French energy healer's experience of the disconnection of body from 'soul' with those who have had the 'vaccine'. The nanobots, self-replicating inside the body, would also transmit the synthetic frequency which could be picked up through close interaction by those who have not been 'vaccinated'. Madej speculated that perhaps it was 5G and increased levels of other radiation that was causing the symptoms directly although interestingly she said that non-'vaccinated' patients had shown improvement when they were away from the 'vaccinated' person they had interacted with. It must be remembered that you can control frequency and energy with your mind and you can consciously create energetic barriers or bubbles with the mind to stop damaging frequencies from penetrating your field. American paediatrician Dr Larry Palevsky said the 'vaccine' was not a 'vaccine' and was never designed to protect from a 'viral' infection. He called it 'a massive, brilliant propaganda of genocide' because they didn't have to inject everyone to get the result they wanted. He said the content of the jabs was able to infuse any material into the brain, heart, lungs, kidneys, liver, sperm and female productive system. 'This is genocide; this is a weapon of mass destruction.' At the same time American colleges were banning students from attending if they didn't have this life-changing and potentially life-ending 'vaccine'. Class action lawsuits must follow when the consequences of this college fascism come to light. As the book was going to press came reports about fertility effects on sperm in 'vaccinated' men which would absolutely fit with what I have been saying and hospitals continued to fill with 'vaccine' reactions. Another question is what about transmission via blood transfusions? The NHS has extended blood donation restrictions from seven days after a 'Covid vaccination' to 28 days after even a sore arm reaction.

I said in the spring of 2020 that the then touted 'Covid vaccine' would be ongoing each year like the flu jab. A year later Pfizer CEO, the appalling Albert Bourla, said people would 'likely' need a 'booster dose' of the 'vaccine' within 12 months of getting 'fully vaccinated' and then a yearly shot. 'Variants will play a key role', he said confirming the point. Johnson & Johnson CEO Alex Gorsky also took time out from his 'vaccine' disaster to say that people may need to be vaccinated against 'Covid-19' each year. UK Health Secretary, the psychopath Matt Hancock, said additional 'boosters' would be available in the autumn of 2021. This is the trap of the 'vaccine passport'. The public will have to accept every last 'vaccine' they introduce, including for the fake 'variants', or it would cease to be valid. The only other way in some cases would be continuous testing with a test not testing for the 'virus' and what is on the swabs constantly pushed up your nose towards the brain every time?

'Vaccines' changing behaviour

I mentioned in the body of the book how I believed we would see gathering behaviour changes in the 'vaccinated' and I am already hearing such comments from the non-'vaccinated' describing behaviour changes in friends, loved ones and work colleagues. This will only increase as the self-replicating synthetic material and nanoparticles expand in body and brain. An article in the Guardian in 2016 detailed research at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville which developed a new method for controlling brain circuits associated with complex animal behaviour. The method, dubbed 'magnetogenetics', involves genetically-engineering a protein called ferritin, which stores and releases iron, to create a magnetised substance – 'Magneto' – that can activate specific groups of nerve cells from a distance. This is claimed to be an advance on other methods of brain activity manipulation known as optogenetics and chemogenetics (the Cult has been developing methods of brain control for a long time). The ferritin technique is said to be non-invasive and able to activate neurons 'rapidly and reversibly'. In other words, human thought and perception. The article said that earlier studies revealed how nerve cell proteins 'activated by heat and mechanical pressure can be genetically engineered so that they become sensitive to radio waves and magnetic fields, by attaching them to an iron-storing protein called ferritin, or to inorganic paramagnetic particles'. Sensitive to radio waves and magnetic fields? You mean like 5G, 6G and 7G? This is the human-AI Smart Grid hive mind we are talking about. The Guardian article said:

... the researchers injected Magneto into the striatum of freely behaving mice, a deep brain structure containing dopamine-producing neurons that are involved in reward and motivation, and then placed the animals into an apparatus split into magnetised and non-magnetised sections.

Mice expressing Magneto spent far more time in the magnetised areas than mice that did not, because activation of the protein caused the striatal neurons expressing it to release dopamine, so that the mice found being in those areas rewarding. This shows that Magneto can remotely control the firing of neurons deep within the brain, and also control complex behaviours.

Make no mistake this basic methodology will be part of the 'Covid vaccine' cocktail and using magnetics to change brain function through electromagnetic field frequency activation. The Pentagon is developing a 'Covid vaccine' using ferritin. Magnetism would explain changes in behaviour and why videos are appearing across the Internet as I write showing how magnets stick to the skin at the point of the 'vaccine' shot. Once people take these 'vaccines' anything becomes possible in terms of brain function and illness which will be blamed on 'Covid-19' and 'variants'. Magnetic field manipulation would further explain why the non-'vaccinated' are reporting the same symptoms as the 'vaccinated' they interact with and why those symptoms are reported to decrease when not in their company. Interestingly 'Magneto', a 'mutant', is a character in the Marvel Comic X-Men stories with the ability to manipulate magnetic fields and he believes that mutants should fight back against their human oppressors by any means necessary. The character was born Erik Lehnsherr to a Jewish family in Germany.

Cult-controlled courts

The European Court of Human Rights opened the door for mandatory 'Covid-19 vaccines' across the continent when it ruled in a Czech Republic dispute over childhood immunisation that legally enforced vaccination could be 'necessary in a democratic society'. The 17 judges decided that compulsory vaccinations did not breach human rights law. On the face of it the judgement was so inverted you gasp for air. If not having a vaccine infused into your body is not a human right then what is? Ah, but they said human rights law which has been specifically written to delete all human rights at the behest of the state (the Cult). Article 8 of the European Convention on Human Rights relates to the right to a private life. The crucial word here is 'except':

There shall be no interference by a public authority with the exercise of this right EXCEPT such as is in accordance with the law and is necessary in a democratic society in the interests of national security, public safety or the economic wellbeing of the country, for the prevention of disorder or crime, for the protection of health or morals, or for the protection of the rights and freedoms of others [My emphasis].

No interference except in accordance with the law means there are no 'human rights' except what EU governments decide you can have at their behest. 'As is necessary in a democratic society' explains that reference in the judgement and 'in the interests of national security, public safety or the economic well-being of the country, for the prevention of disorder or crime, for the protection of health or morals, or for the protection of the rights and freedoms of others' gives the EU a coach and horses to ride through 'human rights' and scatter them in all directions. The judiciary is not a check and balance on government extremism; it is a vehicle to enforce it. This judgement was almost laughably predictable when the last thing the Cult wanted was a decision that went against mandatory vaccination. Judges rule over and over again to benefit the system of which they are a part. Vaccination disputes that come before them are invariably delivered in favour of doctors and authorities representing the view of the state which owns the judiciary. Oh, yes, and we have even had calls to stop putting 'Covid-19' on death certificates within 28 days of a 'positive test' because it is claimed the practice makes the 'vaccine' appear not to work. They are laughing at you.

The scale of madness, inhumanity and things to come was highlighted when those not 'vaccinated' for 'Covid' were refused evacuation from the Caribbean island of St Vincent during massive volcanic eruptions. Cruise ships taking residents to the safety of another island allowed only the 'vaccinated' to board and the rest were left to their fate. Even in life and death situations like this we see 'Covid' stripping people of their most basic human instincts and the insanity is even more extreme when you think that fake 'vaccine'-makers are not even claiming their body-manipulating concoctions stop 'infection' and 'transmission' of a 'virus' that doesn't exist. St Vincent Prime Minister Ralph Gonsalves said: 'The chief medical officer will be identifying the persons already vaccinated so that we can get them on the ship.' Note again the power of the chief medical officer who, like Whitty in the UK, will be answering to the World Health Organization. This is the Cult network structure that has overridden politicians who 'follow the science' which means doing what WHO-controlled 'medical officers' and 'science advisers' tell them. Gonsalves even said that residents who were 'vaccinated' after the order so they could board the ships would still be refused entry due to possible side effects such as 'wooziness in the head'. The good news is that if they were woozy enough in the head they could qualify to be prime minister of St Vincent.

Microchipping freedom

The European judgement will be used at some point to justify moves to enforce the 'Covid' DNA-manipulating procedure. Sandra Ro, CEO of the Global Blockchain Business Council, told a World Economic Forum event that she hoped 'vaccine passports' would help to 'drive forced consent and standardisation' of global digital identity schemes: 'I'm hoping with the desire and global demand for some sort of vaccine passport – so that people can get travelling and working again – [it] will drive forced consent, standardisation, and frankly, cooperation across the world.' The lady is either not very bright, or thoroughly mendacious, to use the term 'forced consent'.

You do not 'consent' if you are forced – you submit. She was describing what the plan has been all along and that's to enforce a digital identity on every human without which they could not function. 'Vaccine passports' are opening the door and are far from the end goal. A digital identity would allow you to be tracked in everything you do in cyberspace and this is the same technique used by Cult-owned China to enforce its social credit system of total control. The ultimate 'passport' is planned to be a microchip as my books have warned for nearly 30 years. Those nice people at the Pentagon working for the Cult-controlled Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA) claimed in April, 2021, they have developed a microchip inserted under the skin to detect 'asymptomatic Covid-19 infection' before it becomes an outbreak and a 'revolutionary filter' that can remove the 'virus' from the blood when attached to a dialysis machine. The only problems with this are that the 'virus' does not exist and people transmitting the 'virus' with no symptoms is brain-numbing bullshit. This is, of course, not a ruse to get people to be microchipped for very different reasons. DARPA also said it was producing a one-stop 'vaccine' for the 'virus' and all 'variants'. One of the most sinister organisations on Planet Earth is doing this? Better have it then. These people are insane because Wetiko that possesses them is insane.

Researchers from the Salk Institute in California announced they have created an embryo that is part human and part monkey. My books going back to the 1990s have exposed experiments in top secret underground facilities in the United States where humans are being crossed with animal and non-human 'extraterrestrial' species. They are now easing that long-developed capability into the public arena and there is much more to come given we are dealing with psychiatric basket cases. Talking of which – Elon Musk's scientists at Neuralink trained a monkey to play Pong and other puzzles on a computer screen using a joystick and when the monkey made the correct move a metal tube squirted banana smoothie into his mouth which is the basic technique for training humans into unquestioning compliance. Two Neuralink chips were in the monkey's skull and more than 2,000 wires 'fanned out' into its brain. Eventually the monkey played a video game purely with its brain waves. Psychopathic narcissist Musk said the 'breakthrough' was a step towards putting Neuralink chips into human skulls and merging minds with artificial intelligence. Exactly. This man is so dark and Cult to his DNA.

World Economic Fascism (WEF)

The World Economic Forum is telling you the plan by the statements made at its many and various events. Cult-owned fascist YouTube CEO Susan Wojcicki spoke at the 2021 WEF Global Technology Governance Summit (see the name) in which 40 governments and 150 companies met to ensure 'the responsible design and deployment of emerging technologies'. Orwellian translation: 'Ensuring the design and deployment of long-planned technologies will advance the Cult agenda for control and censorship.' Freedom-destroyer and Nuremberg-bound Wojcicki expressed support for tech platforms like hers to censor content that is 'technically legal but could be harmful'. Who decides what is 'harmful'? She does and they do. 'Harmful' will be whatever the Cult doesn't want people to see and we have legislation proposed by the UK government that would censor content on the basis of 'harm' no matter if the information is fair, legal and provably true. Make that especially if it is fair, legal and provably true. Wojcicki called for a global coalition to be formed to enforce content moderation standards through automated censorship. This is a woman and mega-censor so self-deluded that she shamelessly accepted a 'free expression' award – Wojcicki – in an event sponsored by her own YouTube. They have no shame and no self-awareness.

You know that 'Covid' is a scam and Wojcicki a Cult operative when YouTube is censoring medical and scientific opinion purely on the grounds of whether it supports or opposes the Cult 'Covid' narrative. Florida governor Ron DeSantis compiled an expert panel with four professors of medicine from Harvard, Oxford, and Stanford Universities who spoke against forcing children and vaccinated people to wear masks. They also said there was no proof that lockdowns reduced spread or death rates of 'Covid-19'. Cult-gofer Wojcicki and her YouTube deleted the panel video 'because it included content that contradicts the consensus of local and global health authorities regarding the efficacy of masks to prevent the spread of Covid-19'. This 'consensus' refers to what the Cult tells the World Health Organization to say and the WHO tells 'local health authorities' to do. Wojcicki knows this, of course. The panellists pointed out that censorship of scientific debate was responsible for deaths from many causes, but Wojcicki couldn't care less. She would not dare go against what she is told and as a disgrace to humanity she wouldn't want to anyway. The UK government is seeking to pass a fascist 'Online Safety Bill' to specifically target with massive fines and other means non-censored video and social media platforms to make them censor 'lawful but harmful' content like the Cult-owned Facebook, Twitter, Google and YouTube. What is 'lawful but harmful' would be decided by the fascist Blair-created Ofcom.

Another WEF obsession is a cyber-attack on the financial system and this is clearly what the Cult has planned to take down the bank accounts of everyone – except theirs. Those that think they have enough money for the Cult agenda not to matter to them have got a big lesson coming if they continue to ignore what is staring them in the face. The World Economic Forum, funded by Gates and fronted by Klaus Schwab, announced it would be running a 'simulation' with the Russian government and global banks of just such an attack called Cyber Polygon 2021. What they simulate – as with the 'Covid' Event 201 – they plan to instigate. The WEF is involved in a project with the Cult-owned Carnegie Endowment for International Peace called the WEF-Carnegie Cyber Policy Initiative which seeks to merge Wall Street banks, 'regulators' (I love it) and intelligence agencies to 'prevent' (arrange and allow) a cyber-attack that would bring down the global financial system as long planned by those that control the WEF and the Carnegie operation. The Carnegie Endowment for International Peace sent an instruction to First World War US President Woodrow Wilson not to let the war end before society had been irreversibly transformed.

The Wuhan lab diversion

As I close, the Cult-controlled authorities and lapdog media are systematically pushing 'the virus was released from the Wuhan lab' narrative. There are two versions – it happened by accident and it happened on purpose. Both are nonsense. The perceived existence of the never-shown-to-exist 'virus' is vital to sell the impression that there is actually an infective agent to deal with and to allow the endless potential for terrifying the population with 'variants' of a 'virus' that does not exist. The authorities at the time of writing are going with the 'by accident' while the alternative media is promoting the 'on purpose'. Cable news host Tucker Carlson who has questioned aspects of lockdown and 'vaccine' compulsion has bought the Wuhan lab story. 'Everyone now agrees' he said. Well, I don't and many others don't and the question is why does the system and its media suddenly 'agree'? When the media moves as one unit with a narrative it is always a lie – witness the hour by hour mendacity of the 'Covid' era. Why would this Cult-owned combination which has unleashed lies like machine gun fire suddenly 'agree' to tell the truth??

Much of the alternative media is buying the lie because it fits the conspiracy narrative, but it's the wrong conspiracy. The real conspiracy is that there is no virus and that is what the Cult is desperate to hide. The idea that the 'virus' was released by accident is ludicrous when the whole 'Covid' hoax was clearly long-planned and waiting to be played out as it was so fast in accordance with the Rockefeller document and Event 201. So they prepared everything in detail over decades and then sat around strumming their fingers waiting for an 'accidental' release from a bio-lab? What?? It's crazy. Then there's the 'on purpose' claim. You want to circulate a 'deadly virus' and hide the fact that you've done so and you release it down the street from the highest-level bio-lab in China? I repeat – What??

You would release it far from that lab to stop any association being made. But, no, we'll do it in a place where the connection was certain to be made. Why would you need to scam 'cases' and 'deaths' and pay hospitals to diagnose 'Covid-19' if you had a real 'virus'? What are sections of the alternative media doing believing this crap? Where were all the mass deaths in Wuhan from a 'deadly pathogen' when the recovery to normal life after the initial propaganda was dramatic in speed? Why isn't the 'deadly pathogen' now circulating all over China with bodies in the street? Once again we have the technique of tell them what they want to hear and they will likely believe it. The alternative media has its 'conspiracy' and with Carlson it fits with his 'China is the danger' narrative over years. China is a danger as a global Cult operations centre, but not for this reason. The Wuhan lab story also has the potential to instigate conflict with China when at some stage the plan is to trigger a Problem-Reaction-Solution confrontation with the West. Question everything – everything – and especially when the media agrees on a common party line.

Third wave ... fourth wave ... fifth wave ...

As the book went into production the world was being set up for more lockdowns and a 'third wave' supported by invented 'variants' that were increasing all the time and will continue to do so in public statements and computer programs, but not in reality. India became the new Italy in the 'Covid' propaganda campaign and we were told to be frightened of the new 'Indian strain'. Somehow I couldn't find it within myself to do so. A document produced for the UK government entitled 'Summary of further modelling of easing of restrictions – Roadmap Step 2' declared that a third wave was inevitable (of course when it's in the script) and it would be the fault of children and those who refuse the health-destroying fake 'Covid vaccine'. One of the computer models involved came from the Cult-owned Imperial College and the other from Warwick University which I wouldn't trust to tell me the date in a calendar factory. The document states that both models presumed extremely high uptake of the 'Covid vaccines' and didn't allow for 'variants'. The document states: 'The resurgence is a result of some people (mostly children) being ineligible for vaccination; others choosing not to receive the vaccine; and others being vaccinated but not perfectly protected.' The mendacity takes the breath away. Okay, blame those with a brain who won't take the DNA-modifying shots and put more pressure on children to have it as 'trials' were underway involving children as young as six months with parents who give insanity a bad name. Massive pressure is being put on the young to have the fake 'vaccine' and child age consent limits have been systematically lowered around the world to stop parents intervening. Most extraordinary about the document was its claim that the 'third wave' would be driven by 'the resurgence in both hospitalisations and deaths ... dominated by those that have received two doses of the vaccine, comprising around 60-70% of the wave respectively'. The predicted peak of the 'third wave' suggested 300 deaths per day with 250 of them fully 'vaccinated' people. How many more lies do acquiescers need to be told before they see the obvious? Those who took the job to 'protect themselves' are projected to be those who mostly get sick and die? So what's in the 'vaccine'? The document went on:

It is possible that a summer of low prevalence could be followed by substantial increases in incidence over the following autumn and winter. Low prevalence in late summer should not be taken as an indication that SARS-CoV-2 has retreated or that the population has high enough levels of immunity to prevent another wave.

They are telling you the script and while many British people believed 'Covid' restrictions would end in the summer of 2021 the government was preparing for them to be ongoing. Authorities were awarding contracts for 'Covid marshals' to police the restrictions with contracts starting in July, 2021, and going through to January 31st, 2022, and the government was advertising for 'Media Buying Services' to secure media propaganda slots worth a potential £320 million for 'Covid-19 campaigns' with a contract not ending until March, 2022. The recipient – via a list of other front companies – was reported to be American media marketing giant Omnicom Group

Inc. While money is no object for 'Covid' the UK waiting list for all other treatment – including life-threatening conditions – passed 4.5 million. Meantime the Cult is seeking to control all official 'inquiries' to block revelations about what has really been happening and why. It must not be allowed to – we need Nuremberg jury trials in every country. The cover-up doesn't get more obvious than appointing ultra-Zionist professor Philip Zelikow to oversee two dozen US virologists, public health officials, clinicians, former government officials and four American 'charitable foundations' to 'learn the lessons' of the 'Covid' debacle. The personnel will be those that created and perpetuated the 'Covid' lies while Zelikow is the former executive director of the 9/11 Commission who ensured that the truth about those attacks never came out and produced a report that must be among the most mendacious and manipulative documents ever written – see The Trigger for the detailed exposure of the almost unimaginable 9/11 story in which Sabbatians can be found at every level.

Passive no more

People are increasingly challenging the authorities with amazing numbers of people taking to the streets in London well beyond the ability of the Face-Nappies to stop them. Instead the Nappies choose situations away from the mass crowds to target, intimidate, and seek to promote the impression of 'violent protestors'. One such incident happened in London's Hyde Park. Hundreds of thousands walking through the streets in protest against 'Covid' fascism were ignored by the Cult-owned BBC and most of the rest of the mainstream media, but they delighted in reporting how police were injured in 'clashes with protestors'. The truth was that a group of people gathered in Hyde Park at the end of one march when most had gone home and they were peacefully having a good time with music and chat. Face-Nappies who couldn't deal with the full-march crowd then waded in with their batons and got more than they bargained for. Instead of just standing for this criminal brutality the crowd used their numerical superiority to push the Face-Nappies out of the park. Eventually the Nappies turned and ran. Unfortunately two or three idiots in the crowd threw drink cans striking two officers which gave the media and the government the image they wanted to discredit the 99.9999 percent who were peaceful. The idiots walked straight into the trap and we must always be aware of potential agent provocateurs used by the authorities to discredit their targets.

This response from the crowd – the can people apart – must be a turning point when the public no longer stand by while the innocent are arrested and brutally attacked by the Face-Nappies. That doesn't mean to be violent, that's the last thing we need. We'll leave the violence to the Face-Nappies and government. But it does mean that when the Face-Nappies use violence against peaceful people the numerical superiority is employed to stop them and make citizen's arrests or Common Law arrests for a breach of the peace. The time for being passive in the face of fascism is over.

We are the many, they are the few, and we need to make that count before there is no freedom left and our children and grandchildren face an ongoing fascist nightmare.

COME ON PEOPLE – IT'S TIME.

One final thought ...

The power of love
A force from above
Cleaning my soul
Flame on burn desire
Love with tongues of fire
Purge the soul
Make love your goal

I'll protect you from the hooded claw
Keep the vampires from your door
When the chips are down I'll be around
With my undying, death-defying
Love for you

Envy will hurt itself
Let yourself be beautiful
Sparkling love, flowers
And pearls and pretty girls
Love is like an energy
Rushin' rushin' inside of me

This time we go sublime
Lovers entwine, divine, divine,
Love is danger, love is pleasure
Love is pure – the only treasure

I'm so in love with you
Purge the soul
Make love your goal

The power of love
A force from above
Cleaning my soul
The power of love
A force from above
A sky-scraping dove

Flame on burn desire
Love with tongues of fire
Purge the soul
Make love your goal

Cowan-Kaufman-Morell Statement on Virus Isolation (SOVI)

Isolation: The action of isolating; the fact or condition of being isolated or standing alone; separation from other things or persons; solitariness

Oxford English Dictionary

The controversy over whether the SARS-CoV-2 virus has ever been isolated or purified continues. However, using the above definition, common sense, the laws of logic and the dictates of science, any unbiased person must come to the conclusion that the SARS-CoV-2 virus has never been isolated or purified. As a result, no confirmation of the virus' existence can be found. The logical, common sense, and scientific consequences of this fact are:

- the structure and composition of something not shown to exist can't be known, including the presence, structure, and function of any hypothetical spike or other proteins;
- the genetic sequence of something that has never been found can't be known;
- "variants" of something that hasn't been shown to exist can't be known;
- it's impossible to demonstrate that SARS-CoV-2 causes a disease called Covid-19.

In as concise terms as possible, here's the proper way to isolate, characterize and demonstrate a new virus. First, one takes samples (blood, sputum, secretions) from many people (e.g. 500) with symptoms which are unique and specific enough to characterize an illness. Without mixing these samples with ANY tissue or products that also contain genetic material, the virologist macerates, filters and ultracentrifuges i.e. purifies the specimen. This common virology technique, done for decades to isolate bacteriophages¹ and so-called giant viruses in every virology lab, then allows the virologist to demonstrate with electron microscopy thousands of identically sized and shaped particles. These particles are the isolated and purified virus.

These identical particles are then checked for uniformity by physical and/or microscopic techniques. Once the purity is determined, the particles may be further characterized. This would include examining the structure, morphology, and chemical composition of the particles. Next, their genetic makeup is characterized by extracting the genetic material directly from the purified particles and using genetic-sequencing techniques, such as Sanger sequencing, that have also been around for decades. Then one does an analysis to confirm that these uniform particles are exogenous (outside) in origin as a virus is conceptualized to be, and not the normal breakdown products of dead and dying tissues.² (As of May 2020, we know that virologists have no way to determine whether the particles they're seeing are viruses or just normal breakdown products of dead and dying tissues.)³

If we have come this far then we have fully isolated, characterized, and genetically sequenced an exogenous virus particle. However, we still have to show it is causally related to a disease. This is carried out by exposing a group of healthy subjects (animals are usually used) to this isolated, purified virus in the manner in which the disease is thought to be transmitted. If the animals get sick with the same disease, as confirmed by clinical and autopsy findings, one has now shown that the virus actually causes a disease. This demonstrates infectivity and transmission of an infectious agent.

None of these steps has even been attempted with the SARS-CoV-2 virus, nor have all these steps been successfully performed for any so-called pathogenic virus. Our research indicates that a single study showing these steps does not exist in the medical literature.

Instead, since 1954, virologists have taken unpurified samples from a relatively few people, often less than ten, with a similar disease. They then minimally process this sample and inoculate this unpurified sample onto tissue culture containing usually four to six other types of material – all of which contain identical genetic material as to what is called a “virus.” The tissue culture is starved and poisoned and naturally disintegrates into many types of particles, some of which contain genetic material. Against all common sense, logic, use of the English language and scientific integrity, this process is called “virus isolation.” This brew containing fragments of genetic material from many sources is then subjected to genetic analysis, which then creates in a computer-simulation process the alleged sequence of the alleged virus, a so called in silico genome. At no time is an actual virus confirmed by electron microscopy. At no time is a genome extracted and sequenced from an actual virus. This is scientific fraud.

The observation that the unpurified specimen — inoculated onto tissue culture along with toxic antibiotics, bovine fetal tissue, amniotic fluid and other tissues — destroys the kidney tissue onto which it is inoculated is given as evidence of the virus' existence and pathogenicity. This is scientific fraud.

From now on, when anyone gives you a paper that suggests the SARS-CoV-2 virus has been isolated, please check the methods sections. If the researchers used Vero cells or any other culture method, you know that their process was not isolation. You will hear the following excuses for why actual isolation isn't done:

1. There were not enough virus particles found in samples from patients to analyze.
2. Viruses are intracellular parasites; they can't be found outside the cell in this manner.

If No. 1 is correct, and we can't find the virus in the sputum of sick people, then on what evidence do we think the virus is dangerous or even lethal? If No. 2 is correct, then how is the virus spread from person to person? We are told it emerges from the cell to infect others. Then why isn't it possible to find it?

Finally, questioning these virology techniques and conclusions is not some distraction or divisive issue. Shining the light on this truth is essential to stop this terrible fraud that humanity is confronting. For, as we now know, if the virus has never been isolated, sequenced or shown to cause illness, if the virus is imaginary, then why are we wearing masks, social distancing and putting the whole world into prison?

Finally, if pathogenic viruses don't exist, then what is going into those injectable devices erroneously called "vaccines," and what is their purpose? This scientific question is the most urgent and relevant one of our time.

We are correct. The SARS-CoV2 virus does not exist.

ICKONIC THE ALTERNATIVE

Ickonic is something that has been a dream of mine for the last 5 years, growing up around alternative information I have always had a natural interest in what is going on in the World and what could I do to make it better.

Across the range of subjects and positions of influence occupied mainly by people who don't strive to make things better it's the Media that I have always found the most frustrating and fascinating. Mainly because if the Media did their Jobs properly then so much of the negative things happening in the World simply would not be able to happen, because they would be exposed within a heartbeat.

Free Press and the Opportunities that the internet could have given would mean that the Media are able to expose things like never before and hold people to account for their actions. As we all know there are 'Untouchables' that walk among us, people the Media simply won't touch, expose or investigate and that leads to the dark underworlds that infest the establishment the World over.

Well I say enough, it's time for something different, a different kind of Media, where no one is off limits from exposing and investigating. All we're interested in at Ickonic is the truth of what is really going on in the World on whichever subject we're covering.

We hope you enjoy what we have created and take something away from the platform, we aim to deliver information that's informative and most importantly self-empowering, you're not a little person, you're part of something much bigger than that and its time we as a collective race began to understand that and look to the future as ours to take.

It's time...

Jaymie Icke - Founder Ickonic Alternative Media.

FOREWORD

by Brad Olsen

On the weekend of my 49th birthday, something wonderful and something tragic happened ... then something wonderful again.

First the good news first. This same week just so happened to be when I was moving to the signed contract phase with bestselling Italian author Leo Lyon Zagami, including the option to publish five of his books. The first title in our publishing schedule is this book, which I have helped translate and edit, followed by Leo's Confessions of an Illuminati, volumes I, II, III, and the Invisible Master. The horizons of my next two years was looking to be filled with reissuing Leo's ground-breaking books into the English language. My decision to work with Leo was largely due to the urging of our mutual friend Sean Stone, son of film director Oliver Stone.

Everything was coming up roses when tragedy struck on Friday evening, the day before my birthday. My girlfriend, Jennifer, took a nasty fall on the pavement and shattered her elbow. She broke several bones in her left arm. Needless to say, our weekend plans were canceled. The day after her surgery, I went to bring her flowers and some other items that she needed. When I arrived, I said hello to Nora, an elderly woman who shared the hospital room with Jennifer. Nora had such a pleasant smile and disposition that I really took to her, and the three of us chatted for an hour before a Catholic priest arrived to administer her last rites, a communion, and absolution. Nora had been diagnosed with terminal cancer and she was going in for major surgery the next morning. A few months short of her 80th birthday, she was contemplating the possibility that she may not live through the operation, and wished to be forgiven for her sins.

Nora's priest happened to be a Jesuit. He was a kindly man, who I sensed had love in his heart. We had a discussion about the order, and I even told him about this book. As it turns out, both he and Nora were originally from Barcelona, Spain. The Father was attracted to the Jesuit order as a teenager, enrolled in seminary school, and in time became a priest. Eventually, he was assigned to deliver mass in one of the largest cathedrals in San Francisco, California, the city of "Saint Francis," the Patron Saint of Ecology, and the city where the four of us currently reside.

As I left the hospital I was floored by the sheer synchronicity of the visit—my undertaking of a major publishing project that is both candid and critical of the Vatican and Jesuit authority, and at the same time, witnessing a deeply-moving Catholic religious ceremony I had not sought out, but was extremely grateful for the experience once it was over. My takeaway was to realize that there are exceptionally good Catholic people in the world. Both Nora and the Jesuit priest felt Pope Francis has been a positive change for the Catholic Church, and emphasized how much help the Church offers to so many people. But even the good Catholics need to understand the enormous changes taking place at the upper echelons of the Vatican. The main point is that groups such as organized religions are made up of people—some good, and others who might not be so well-intended.

ON PROPHECIES AND PROPHETS

Apart from being the first Jesuit pope in history, Pope Francis I has another form of notoriety. For over 900 years, historians have recognized that "the last pope" will arrive, around this time in history, and some propose that Francis himself is indeed the Last Pope. The most-popular prophecy is taken from Bishop Malachy's "Prophecy of the Popes." It is a list of verses predicting aspects of the reign of each Roman Catholic pope from Celestine II to the final pope, who is named "Peter the Roman," and whose reign would end with the destruction of Rome. Of course the Holy Father Pope Francis I, whose birth-name is Jorge Mario Bergoglio, does not have "Peter" nor "the Roman" in his name. But as the back-dating goes, Pope Benedict XVI was number 111 of the 112 popes prophesied by the later canonized Malachy. Since Pope Francis I reigns after Pope Benedict XVI, this makes him 112—Peter the Roman—the last pope— the pope who Malachy said would oversee the destruction of Rome—and this is consistent with biblical prophecy. Catholic prophecies also tell of an “Antipope” who will betray the faith. Could this really be the genial and popular Pope Francis?

Laying dormant for hundreds of years, the prophecies attributed to Saint Malachy were first published in 1595, by a Benedictine historian named Arnold de Wyon, who recorded them in his book called Lignum Vitæ. Tradition holds that Malachy had been summoned to Rome by Pope Innocent II, and while there, he experienced the profound vision of all future popes, including the last one, which he wrote down in a series of cryptic phrases identifying the reign of each pope. According to the prophecy, the pope following Benedict XVI will be the final pontiff, Petrus Romanus or Peter the Roman.

The idea by some Catholics that the next pope on Saint Malachy’s list harkens to the dawn of a “great apostasy,” followed by “great tribulation,” sets the stage for the imminent unfolding of apocalyptic events. This would give rise to a false prophet, who, according to the book of Revelation, leads the world’s religious communities toward embracing a political leader known as an “Antichrist.” In recent history, several Catholic priests and pundits have been surprisingly outspoken on what they have seen as an inevitable danger rising from within the ranks of Catholicism—the result of secret and satanic “Illuminati-Masonic” influences. These critics claim to have secret knowledge of a multinational power-elite, an occult hierarchy that is operating behind world political machinations, and calling the shots on the global stage. The claims say that among this secret society are sinister false Catholic infiltrators who understand that, as the Roman Catholic Church represents one-sixth of the world’s population—and over half of all Christians—control of the matters of church and state is indispensable toward the fulfillment of a diabolical plan they call the New World Order. It is through assuming control of the papacy that the False Prophet will deceive the world’s Catholics and other religions into worshipping the Antichrist. As a case-in-point, during the final edits of this book, Pope Francis had recently met with Jewish and Muslim leaders to consider a new interfaith called “Chrislam,” a mission that seems to be a unification of the Vatican’s Roman Catholic system with the Islamic faith and other religions.

THE MESSENGER

Leo Lyon Zagami approaches the biggest issues facing the Roman Catholic Church in an entirely different manner. Rather than chronicling these issues in a public relations kind of way, he is an insider from Rome, a person with unprecedented access, and a member of a very influential Italian and British family. Leo's wife, Christy, also played an instrumental role in articulating this book from the Italian language into English, and even while the text of this book was being finalized, in Rome, the couple was witnessing, with a bird's eye perspective, major changes occurring on the other side of the Vatican walls. As far as I am concerned, no two other people could have been better situated to bring you this book, at this perfect time, than Leo and Christy Zagami. Il mio cappello a voi i miei amici!

And to our dear readers, please remember, do not be angry with the messenger. We bring this work to you as a service in the spirit of transparency and openness. In the final assessment, it is only the truth that shall set us free.

Introduction

THE SURRENDER

FROM A THRONE OF PETER RESIGNATION TO FRANCIS WHO WILL SAVE THE CHURCH FROM ORGIES AND LOBBIES

On June 21, 2013, the Italian journalist Francesco Antonio Grana broke a story in one of the best-known and most read newspapers in Italy, *il Fatto Quotidiano*¹ “the Daily Fact,” the following exciting news announcing that Jorge Mario Bergoglio has resigned as Cardinal on the 17th of December, 2011. Upon completion of his seventy-fifth year of life, as expected in the Code of Canon Law, the then Cardinal Archbishop of Buenos Aires had written and sent to Benedict XVI, his letter of resignation. The German pope had set it aside, suggesting he had other plans. After a year, at the end of 2012, there was no signal yet from Rome to Cardinal Bergoglio, who was then seventy-six, on the appointment of his successor. Since that moment, what would have occurred on February 11, 2013, will remain in history. From the Catholic Church came the shocking announcement that Pope Benedict XVI would give up his position. Just a month later, on March 12th, Bergoglio entered into conclave. He did not enter as Archbishop Emeritus, as would have happened if Ratzinger had scrupulously respected the ecclesiastical bureaucracy and accepted his resignation. After a little more than twenty-four hours, in spite of all the odds, Bergoglio would materialize, being named, Pope Francis.

“I came to Rome,” confessed Bergoglio, “with only a few clothes and washed them at night, and suddenly this ... but I thought I didn’t have a chance! Betting in London I was at the forty-fourth place... just imagine! Who has bet on me has earned a lot of money ...” In fact, few outside the Holy See knew that he would be elected pope. A Jesuit seemed very farfetched, and many others hoped for a different solution. Who knew the gravity that revolved around this wicked choice that puts the Church for the first time in the hands of a member of the order created by St. Ignatius Loyola. Catechesis, the hearings, the angelus, homilies, speeches, almost everything embedded in the arms of Pope Francis contains up until now, only one key point: “the credibility of the Church.”

This statement about the credibility of the Holy See is not only true for the journalists of Il Fatto Quotidiano, who are generally critical of the Vatican, but Rome-watchers worldwide. It is definitely a fact strongly emphasized by all the media, which show daily, and perhaps with excessive emphasis to be credible, the salvific capacity of the new Jesuit pontiff.

There is a rather heavy legacy left by Ratzinger to his successor. A legacy that has obviously pushed the German pope to his resignation, an unusual gesture that shocked Catholics around the world. A terrible legacy of secrets and shameful acts that only a few journalists and writers have had the courage to denounce in non-suspicious times. The information on such subjects has always been neglected or manipulated by the mainstream media.

I was among the first to go in a different direction with my publications, and prior to that, on the internet. The beginning of my internet divulgatory work in 2006 was made possible thanks to the collaboration of courageous journalists such as Greg Szymanski of The Investigative Journal. Published in the third volume of my Confessions trilogy,² I give ample space to the discussion on this mysterious lobby that only now is being mentioned openly by Pope Francis. The gay (and pedophile) lobby, which together with unscrupulous bankers from the financial world, use and abuse the Vatican

Bank (IOR) by laundering dirty money, destroying, with their unscrupulous acts, the credibility of the Catholic Church, and joined by a secret pact—the one between the Church and the evil side of Freemasonry.

It would appear that Bergoglio's retirement was put on hold purposefully, because of something rotten going on in the Vatican. Something that goes far beyond the expectations of the most avid conspiracy theorists. Saving the good name of the church was something that only he, as a Jesuit, could handle. Here is a simple but efficient example that will illustrate the possible reason for his election to the throne of Saint Peter. It is similar to when the government of the newly created Russian Federation, implicated in a thousand scandals, appointed Vladimir Putin, the former head of the FSB (one of the agencies that succeeded the KGB), as Yeltsin's successor to become its president. Although seemingly a comparison that may seem risky, it perfectly reflects what is happening in the Vatican—the head of an intelligence agency assuming the top spot.

Do not be fooled by the humble gestures and “Good Shepherd” manners of Papa Francesco. This lobby has secrets that even he cannot make public. As revelations come to light, they may signify the end of the Church and its role as a representative of God on Earth. But what secret could be so threatening? First, despite the many criticisms inside and outside the Vatican, there are the infamous gay orgies and crimes of pedophilia practiced not only by the ordinary priests around the world, but in the “hallowed halls” of the Vatican itself, and by people at the highest level of the Catholic Church hierarchy. These individuals, with their perverse behavior and their wicked choices, are destroying, perhaps intentionally, what little is left in the sacredness of the Church of Rome. In June of 2013, a special witness finally emerged confirming these infamous stories of orgies and sordid affairs in the Vatican. It also confirmed what I have been saying for years at my own risk and peril. Those that have followed my work probably will not be surprised, but most people will be shocked at these claims.

Despite everything, the words and direct testimony of Francesco Znanardi, who has been fighting against sexual violence committed by the clergy for many years with his own association called “network abuse,” has finally reached the shocked Italian media, and the Italian public in general.

In this moment of time for the Church of Pope Francis, this information is heavy as bricks. Nonetheless, this information has yet to reach the public of the U.S.— and such is the purpose of this book, and my “Confessions” trilogy, to follow.

It is also why I decided to include, below, the answers given by Zanardi to the Italian journalist Ferruccio Sansa of Il Fatto Quotidiano. For further confirmation and clarification, I contacted him personally. Zanardi seems to be the one who has revealed the existence of a mysterious witness, with proof and serious evidence in his hands, that could expose what is really happening within the walls of the Vatican.

The man who contacted him is a high level manager, and he did so at the beginning of what is now known as “The Vatileaks Scandal.” Confessing to Zanardi that he was disgusted by the system of corruption and sex in the Vatican, he confided in him and gave him the confidential report. Zanardi had the opportunity to record this special witness during his testimony, which seems so shocking and is at times unbelievable. Because of the number of crimes Zanardi detected in the witness report committed by these high prelates in the Vatican, and after listening to these stories in detail, he rightly decided to address the Italian authorities about such crimes. Denouncing the whole thing to the public prosecutor of Savona, to whom he later entrusted all of the material he gathered from the witnesses. I believe his is an act of great courage from a man who could risk his own life by doing so. The words he stated at the end of this interview seem to confirm how dangerous this situation is for him. Below you will find excerpts, including the last segment in question:

“The man spoke of orgies with minors, inside the Vatican. The involvement of top prelates, one referred to as a papal candidate at the last conclave. Besides this he referred to cases of corruption, with public money and the Church. I have recorded everything. I spent months studying the case, but it was too delicate, because it involved the lives of young boys. So in the end I decided not to make a public complaint, and to act with the utmost discretion, to entrust the material I gathered to the Prosecutor of Savona, who has faced with courage in the past, cases of child molestation by priests. I want them to understand if it was a case of blackmail or not. But the truth has to be established.”

Francesco Zanardi, you have been fighting against sexual violence committed by priests through your “network for exposing abuse, how does this story begin?

“Those were the days of the Crow, of poison in the Vatican. I’ve been contacted by a man who claimed to be the manager of a multinational company. Claimed to have been involved in a round of partying and prostitution, including child abuse inside the Vatican. He wanted to get the information out. Stories to sicken me. He wants justice, even to return to his life. He says he fears for his own safety.”

It could be blackmail. He could be a braggart, a slanderer ...

“I’m perfectly aware of the allegations that are being made. We are not here to spread a falsehood. I tested this man and he actually turned out to be a manager, also from public documents. The location of his mobile satellite confirmed frequent inputs to the Vatican.”

That’s it?

“No. The man has provided precise tales, detailed and never contradictory. Phone numbers, for example, a well-known manager of the public near the Vatican, which we found to be true. So we decided to investigate to see if he’s telling the truth.”

What did he tell you?

“He said he had access to a computer at work to the archives of the Vatican and prelates. From here he derived information and data. What’s more, he had won the confidence of a well-known manager who had introduced him to an environment of gay sexual encounters also organized inside the Holy See, involving men in show business, but also children.”

And a high prelate...

“Yes. The man told us of feasts that took place when the prelate was in Rome. A specific day of the week, a fixture. A dinner experience, with six or seven boys who were put in a circle. They took turns having sex with the Cardinal. Everything would have gone smoothly, until a couple of young males would take pictures with their phones. The pictures, claimed our contact, had become an object of exchange, perhaps blackmail and had ended in his possession. Threatening to have them handed over to two notaries, one in Rome, the other in Lugano. He feared for his safety. He promised us several times a confession, but then disappeared for a few months.”

Could be libelous, or crazy braggart. Has he given evidence?

“I was talking on the phone with one of the young people who was involved. He is, as stated on his Facebook page, a street kid. A valet who attended the Roman homosexual prostitution rings.

An element that prompted us to investigate. He then gave us phone numbers of other alleged participants in the orgies. No one has agreed to speak to us. The framework given by our source was disconcerting: feasts, meetings in gay saunas frequented by dozens of priests visiting Rome, recruitment of children via the internet. Children pursued even at night, from one end of the city to the other, to satisfy the sexual tastes of the high prelates. A system, he said, that was out of hand and exposed senior figures of the Vatican.”

Does it seem credible?

“I do not know. Again, the man certainly had contacts with Roman male prostitution. He was a manager for a company that invoiced the Vatican, which added reason for caution. He had access to the Vatican. Some of the contacts that he had given us we were able to verify him. Could he be a braggart or a blackmailer? A desperate man trying to change his life? We have been working for months, because if this story IS true, the lives of defenseless children could be at risk.”

Are you not afraid for yourself?

“Three days ago there was a hangman drawn on my door. The tires of my car were cut, and it was broken into. It happens all the time since the beginning my battle, I’m getting used to it, but it’s hard.”

There is more that confirms certain homosexual tendencies in the Vatican. In March 2013, the newspaper La Repubblica in an article by Carlo Bonini, spoke about a strange story that concerns a palace and a Cardinal who purchased it. In one day the price doubled. The building could then be resold to Propaganda Fide, which is the Vatican’s infamous real estate company, to make a huge profit. There was a particular embarrassment in the Vatican regarding this big business deal due to the “oddities” on the final price, that was obviously the result of someone’s speculation. Also located on the same premises is the most popular gay sauna in Italy. The “purchase” was strongly desired by the then Secretary of State, Cardinal Tarcisio Bertone, who many rumor is one of the leaders of the Vatican gay lobby, and who will be portrayed during the course of my work as the main villain. This is a building that encloses and unites the worst of the contemporary Church, namely, those who participate in orgies and fraudulent business deals. The noble palace, located at number 2 on Via Carducci, in the heart of the city of Rome, is a hundred yards from the Italian Ministry of Economy. An elegant atrium enclosed by large windows, that holds, between the same walls, the Congregation for the “Evangelization of Peoples,” is also known as Propaganda Fide, the largest gay sauna in Italy.³ This fact has been underlined by a TV report conducted by the author and journalist Gianluigi Nuzzi for the Italian television network, LA 7, which was broadcast in mid-June of 2013, and is to be considered very serious.⁴

In this broadcast, Nuzzi uncovered direct evidence of attendance at the sauna by many priests. They would use the sauna as a meeting place, along with meeting in the philosophy and religion section of a well-known library near the Spanish Steps. These locations, it seems, guarantee them a certain amount of discretion. They would then move to a nearby sauna located in the handsome building called the Europe Multi Club, that has a very revealing website (<http://www.europamulticlub.com/>). A veritable den of Christian iniquity, the site bluntly claims to be “the number one gay sauna in Italy.” They don’t seem to care about the discretion of its customers and priests, who assiduously frequent these ambiguous places where you can make homosexual acquaintances involving gay priests. Priests who occupy positions of prestige and responsibility in the offices of the Roman Curia. It is a dedicated website with the catchy name of “Venerabilis,”⁵ that is promoted by authoritative homosexual members of the Roman Catholic priests fraternity. Check it out and you will better understand the hypocrisy in which many priests that publicly condemn sex in all its forms, and homosexuality in particular, live and practice the exact opposite, in private.

This is what I personally cannot stand. While I believe that there is nothing wrong in being gay, as long as pedophilia is not involved, and as long as people are honest about their sexual identity, something most priests are not.

We can only hope that il Papa, as he is referred to by Italians, goes from words to deeds—so that the Church of the Pope Francis era can bring a real Christian Church back to life. A Church that is not merely an illusory and hypocritical institution. There are growing doubts that Pope Francis will bring a truly transformative change regarding such matters. Some Vatican experts have criticized the highly publicized arrest of the now ex-Archbishop Jozef Wesolowski in Vatican territory for pedophilia, in September 2014, as just another charade to protect him from a real arrest. If Wesolowski opened up to non-Vatican authorities, it could bring further scandals to the public arena, something that has happened before in the recent history of the Church. Earlier on, in fact, a scandal broke out in the aftermath of another revealing TV documentary produced by the Italian network LA 7, broadcasted on June 25, 2013. This broadcast revealed new evidence of child prostitution. Even so, most media outlets remained silent about these new allegations against the Vatican.

These allegations included the abuse of Romanian children, collected on a regular basis, by an ex-policeman who turned out to be a member of the Carabinieri, the national military police of Italy. The children were picked up in via Giolitti, in a pub discotheque called “Twins,” near the Termini Train Station in Rome, to later prostitute them inside the Vatican walls. These disturbing claims find further evidence in a giant police operation by Europol called Archimedes. Conducted at the end of September 2014, it was described as the biggest crime crackdown in Europe to date, with 1,027 arrests. Reportedly, the police rescued 30 Romanian children during this operation. These child victims had been used in child prostitution rings, including one involving the Vatican, and some even say Satanic black masses. On June 27, 2013, driven by some kind of sudden pressure, the same television station that had broadcast the investigation a couple of days earlier was forced to clarify and retract some of the allegations they had previously made. In their retraction, they proclaimed that there was no real evidence against Mauro Parmeggiani, the Bishop of Tivoli. Yet, Parmeggiani was arrested in this pedophile scandal along with other high-ranking characters, including Monsignor Francis Camaldo, vice master of ceremonies in the Papal States. The TV reporter instead accused the accuser himself, Don Patrizio Poggi, who was blamed for wrongly pointing the finger against the Bishop of Tivoli, for reasons of revenge. Father Poggi was arrested one day later, on the 28th of June, by the Carabinieri, and charged with slander. For the same reasons, two other priests faced disciplinary sanctions by the Vatican: Don Marco Valentini and Monsignor Luca Lorusso, a high-level member of Vatican diplomacy, who was also Poggi's lawyer. All three would later be condemned publicly by Pope Francis in March 2014, who apologized to the priests involved in the scandal, and thus displayed the strength of the infamous Vatican "Gay Lobby." In short, this became another pathetic scene of contemporary journalism, and of the police force bowing to service the powers that be, including, obviously, the Vatican. Nevertheless, before disappearing forever into the Italian prison system, Don Patrizio Poggi made one more shocking revelation, stating that the ex-policeman involved in this child trafficking ring was also involved in selling holy wafers to Satanic sects. I anticipate that after such astounding claims, we will never hear from Poggi again.

Personally, I have to admit to a certain degree of satisfaction stemming from the initial attempt by LA 7 to investigate and name an untouchable like Monsignor Francis Camaldo. Suspected for years to be at the top of all the Vatican-based pedophile rings, Camaldo is faithful to Archbishop Mauro Parmeggiani, who is a hypocrite, as well as the clergy who should be ashamed of their leader. This is why I attacked them, verbally, during a Mass celebrated in the Christmas period of 2013. It created quite a stir among his ranks of followers when I deliberately substituted baby Jesus in the presepe, or Holy Nativity (a typical Italian Christmas tradition), with a small Lucifer. I did this to show the public who is the god that these pedophile priests of Satan really worship. In fact, in November 2012, one week after the presentation of the third volume of my trilogy in Italy (that I presented at the Brancaccio Castle of Roviano in the province of Rome), Bishop Monsignor Mauro Parmeggiani himself suddenly visited the town of my presentation. He spent a week, something he had never done before, with his faithful Rovianesi, the inhabitants of the municipality of Roviano. Likely, this was to help them recover from the “shock” of my public disclosures, and amplified by the presence of local media. Included in my disclosures was an in-depth revelation about his friend, Monsignor Camaldo. Of course it will be difficult, if not impossible, to have them arrested, since “Jessica,” the CIA code name for Monsignor Camaldo, is a highly influential character that belongs to Vatican Freemasonry, and has links to the mysterious Loggia Monte Carlo, which I was also a member for a time. Camaldo is a key figure in the American intelligence community in the Vatican, and is well-protected by the U.S. State Department (with whom he collaborated actively in the 1980’s). For this reason, and because of his frequent homosexual connections, it does appear that his unusual background even attracted the attention of the prestigious gay website, Gay TV, that reported Camaldo’s story. Camaldo, it was reported, often used blackmail, as was published in the famous Wikileaks files of Julian Assange.⁶

It is said that once Pope Francis makes a decision, he doesn’t go back on it. In at least one case, however, Bergoglio’s actions backfired, and again demonstrated a weakness towards figures like Camaldo, and not in line with what people would expect from a representative of the Church of Pope Francis. Sandro Magister of EspressoOnline.it wrote it this way: *“After a thirty-year career as papal master of ceremonies, Monsignor Francesco Camaldo has been appointed in recent months, Canon of the Archbasilica of St. John Lateran. But when the designation was to become operational the decision was counter-banned. Instead, he was awarded by Pope Francis, the most prestigious and well-paid position of Canonico of St. Peter’s in the Vatican.”*⁷

As you can see, time and time again, it all ends well for Mons. Camaldo. He can continue undisturbed with his reprehensible deeds in the heart of the Holy See, even during the pontificate of Pope Francis. I am hoping that sooner or later the competent authorities will have the courage to truly investigate the tragedy of pedophilia and child prostitution occurring in the heart of the Vatican, but I have my doubts. Most of the time, the Holy See cares only about its own image, and not its essence or sins. In September 2011, a group of associations for victims of pedophile priests, called SNAP (Survivors Network of those Abused by Priests), and the Center for Constitutional Rights, deposited evidence at the International Criminal Court in The Hague that accused Pope Benedict XVI, the then Secretary of State Cardinal Tarcisio Bertone, his predecessor Cardinal Angelo Sodano, and the former Prefect of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, Cardinal William Levada, of crimes against humanity for allegedly covering the many crimes committed by priests against children.

One year before the resignation of Ratzinger, in February of 2012, and following a notification by the same attorney Jeff Anderson, who blamed Benedict XVI, Cardinal Bertone, Sodano and Levada, the charge was withdrawn. The lawyer for the Holy See, Jeffrey S. Lena, explained that the notification had resulted in “the immediate filing of the case, without the need for a judgment on the subject issued by the court.” The reason for this sudden choice is explained by Lena: *“They all withdrew because they knew that they would lose if they continued to pursue the case. They did not want a negative decision by the court, in fact, if it had continued, the acquittal would make judicial history.”*⁸

Can we be sure this was the reason, or has someone from the Vatican put pressure on the clients of Jeff Anderson? If carried forward, this case would have opened the classic Pandora’s Box. Perhaps it is no coincidence, that after two years, the main protagonists of the scandal, Ratzinger and Bertone, have both left their positions. It is clear that the investigations into both the Vatican’s sex and financial scandals have not been allowed to continue. The successor to Cardinal Tarcisio Bertone is now a confidante of Pope Francis, as well as another Jesuit named Pietro Parolin, who is an ex-apostolic nuncio to Venezuela. Since taking this new position, and despite Parolin’s young age, health problems have already surfaced for him. Poor Pietro Parolin, I hope that he can resist the strong poison of the Vatican, but I doubt it.

Chapter: I

HABEUS JORGE

THE GREAT REFUSAL FROM CELESTINE V AND RATZINGER

“I, Pope Celestine V, urged on by legitimate reasons, by humility and weakness of my body and the malice of the people, in order to recover with consolation the life beforehand, the lost quiet, I leave freely and spontaneously the Papacy and expressly renounce the throne, to the dignity, to the burden and to the honor that it involves. I give in this moment, The Sacred College of Cardinals, the ability to choose and provide, according to Canon law, a shepherd of the Universal Church” -Celestine V, Papal Bull, Naples, December 13, 1294

This is the text of the previously best-known papal abdication in the history of the Church, issued by Celestine V, born Pietro Angelerio da Morrone, who died a prisoner to his successor the Cardinal Benedetto Caetani, who then ascended to the Papal throne as Boniface VIII in the castle of Fumone. After only four months of his coronation, and despite numerous attempts by Carlo d’Angiò to dissuade him, on December 13, 1294, during consistory, Celestine V began reading the abdication, risking the creation of a schism. With this gesture, Celestine V was the sixth and last Pontiff after San Clement I, Pontian, Silverio, Benedict IX and Gregory VI, to abdicate in church history.

Seven centuries later, Benedict XVI decided to follow in Celestine V’s footsteps. Only history will tell us what judgment posterity will ascribe to the shocking choice made by Joseph Ratzinger to abandon the Petrine ministry.

The historiography portrays an uncertain picture on the abdication by Celestine V, who, until the pontificate, had been described as being unanimously devoted to contemplation and the search of God. Very few cardinals have had judgments as controversial regarding Celestine V as the condemnation by Dante Alighieri, who stated that he made the great abdication because of cowardice. In fact, provoked by his abdication, Dante would challenge the Pope's act, and the ascension to the throne of Boniface VIII as the White Guelph, as an interference into politics, and deeply disapproved of. (From Wikipedia: The Guelphs and Ghibellines are factions supporting the Pope and the Holy Roman Emperor, respectively, in central and northern Italy.) For this reason the Florentine poet immortalized the Pontiff in the third Canto of "The Divine Comedy," and placed him in the anti-hell, a place where you would find the souls of resignation, namely those that were profoundly mediocre. In this place, you would find those who have not committed anything egregious in life, but nothing grand either. They are excluded from hell, but at the same time are denied justice and access to paradise.

Yet Dante didn't reveal the name of "the shadow of the man who resigned in cowardice." It was the first commentaries on the Comedy that attempted to uncover the identity of the soul placed by Dante in the anti-hell. With the exception of the poet's son, Jacopo Alighieri, the great majority agreed to identify him as Pietro da Morrone, also known as Celestine V. In 1324, Graziolo Bambaglioli identified the indolent with "Brother Peter de Morono, who so cowardly resigned the pontificate." A more in-depth comment was made by Jacopo Della Lana when he suggested that Pietro da Morrone was a hermit of great faith and penance, who despised the "intrigue and duplicity of the court" and this was the motive that has put him on a collision course with the papal court. The Cardinals, unable to convince him with arguments that "worldly wealth acquired was misused and appropriated," devised a deception of voices at night in his bedroom, pretending to be angels sent by God, and urging him to give up the papacy. Upon hearing this for several nights, "Celestine" convinced himself, believing them to be "insufficient and bad, and to refuse, and so he did."

Around this time, Guido da Pisa became convinced that Dante referred to Celestine, but pointed out that no one that had renounced the papacy for "indolence of heart," but instead to "save his soul by humility." Among his contemporaries, Celestine's gesture was welcomed in sharply contrasting ways. Prompting some praise, as with Francesco Petrarca, who called the Pontiff's choice a gesture “by a great and free spirit, who knew no limitations, a truly divine spirit,” yet from others, a condemnation. In line with the thought of poet Petrarca, while on a visit to Abruzzo, the land in which Celestine lived and was ordained, in his Homily given at Sulmona on July 4, 2010, Joseph Ratzinger exalted Celestine for his inner strength in his search for God, assisted by that internal silence one obtains when, “perceiving the voice of God, capable of guiding his life.”

Ratzinger thus insinuates this as a way to consider Celestine’s entire life and an understanding of his abdication as a gesture “inspired” by God’s grace: “Pietro Angelerio since his youth was a ‘searcher of God,’ a man who was consumed with searching and finding the answers to the grand questions of our existence. Who am I? Where do I come from? Why do I live? For whom do I live? And there he embarked in the search for truth and happiness. He embarks in the search for God and to hear the voice decides to separate himself from the world and live the life of a hermit. The silence thus becomes the element that characterizes his daily life. And it is in this exterior silence, but more than that, in this internal silence that he perceives the voice of God, capable of giving orientation to his life. Here is the important aspect for us: We live in a society in which each space, each moment seems as if it must be ‘filled’ by our initiative, from our activity, our thoughts and dreams: it seems thus, that there is not the time to listen, nor to communicate with God. Dear brothers and sisters! We should not fear the creation of silence within us and outside of us if we want to be capable of perceiving the voice of God, but also the voice near us, the voice of others. But it is important to delineate a second element: The discovery that Pietro Angelerio makes is not the result of an exertion, but rather, it was through the grace of God, that he perceives it. Thus all he had, all he was, came from within: It was given to him through grace, it was thus also a responsibility before God and before others. Whilst our lives are very different, even for us the same rule applies; everything that is essential for our existence was donated without our contribution. The fact that I live doesn’t depend on me; the fact that there were people who introduced me to life, that taught me what it is to love and be loved, who have transmitted to me faith and opened my eyes to God: everything thus is grace and is not ‘done by me.’ By ourselves we could do nothing without it being donated to us: God always anticipates in every single life the good and the bad so that we can easily recognize His grace, with a ray of light he reveals his goodness. This is why we must pay attention, always paying attention to our ‘internal eyes,’ those within our heart. And if we begin to recognize God in his infinite goodness, then we will be able to see, with stupor, in our own lives—like the Saints—the signs that God, who is always near us, who is always good to us, who says to us: ‘Have faith in me!’ In this internal silence, in the perception of his presence, Pietro del Marrone matured, and further, experienced the beauty of creation, done through the hands of God: He knew how to perceive the profound sense, respected the signs and the rhythms, he used it for what is essential in life. [...] Finally, one last element: Saint Peter Celestine, in conducting the life of a hermit, he wasn’t ‘closed within himself,’ but was possessed with a passion to bring the good news of the gospel to his brothers. It is the secret of his pastoral fruitfulness that he wanted to ‘remain’ with God, in prayer, as it is remembered in contemporary Gospel songs: The first imperative is always to pray to the Lord of the harvest (cfr LC10,2). It is only after this calling that Jesus defines certain obligation to his disciples: The serene announcement, clear and courageous of the message of the Gospel—Even in moments of persecution—without surrendering to the fashions of the times, nor to the violence or imposition of the times; the detachment brought about by our preoccupation with things—such as money or clothing—confiding in the providence of the Father; the attention and cure for the sick in body and in spirit (cfr Lc 10,5-9). These were the characteristics of the brief and agonized pontificate of Celestine V, and these are the characteristics of the missionary activity of the Church in each epoch.”¹

Benedict XVI closed the homily by asking “the example and intercession” of Celestine V, which would accompany himself, and all the faithful in their path. A plea which was made evident just three years later, with his abdication. But the similarities between Celestine V and Pope Benedict XVI go well beyond the choice of abandoning the Petrine ministry. Both are, in fact, proven to be driven more to asceticism, contemplation and solitude, than that of the leadership of the Christian flock. Both Benedict XVI and Celestine V were willing to abandon the clerical life to devote themselves to ascetic vocation.

Fate had something different in mind with a very different responsibility, namely the papacy. The Monaco hermit and the cardinal theologian were “forced” to give up their plans for an ascetic life of peace, solitude and research to ascend to the papal throne, bringing upon them the hopes and expectations of the faithful. Pietro da Morrone was emotionally overwhelmed by the investiture, initially choosing to decline the engagement. Ratzinger told the biographer Peter Seewald in the summer of 2010, in the last of what has been defined as the “longest interviews in Church history,” and at the root of the various bestsellers written by Seewald before and after Ratzinger became Pope. In a veiled way, he revealed that on the eve of his seventy-eighth birthday, he was now confident he could abandon the ecclesiastical career to retire to private life: "I hope to finally find peace and tranquility."² While he was already looking forward with his employees to early retirement, in a matter of days he found himself to be invested as head of the Universal Church which has 1.2 billion faithful. A real "shock" to Ratzinger, after many grueling years,³ he was certain that God would, "allow him a bit of peace and tranquility."⁴ Evidently God's will was working in another direction. Assuming the position that God had decided for him, Ratzinger, however, was immediately aware of the immense responsibility that the induction involved. In particular, in his years of papacy he has never made any secret of being aware of the "filth," or the "threats," and the "wolves" that lurk in the Vatican, even though he was certainly not a lamb himself. Only after he ascended to the Papal throne as Benedict XVI, however, did he realize, like Celestine V a long time before him, the severity of the crisis of the Church fueled by the pedophilia scandal, the Williamson case connected to the schismatic Lefebvrians, homosexuality in the Vatican, and the crisis of vocations. This worried him because of appearances, not because of the substance. To begin with, the vicissitudes of Vatican finances were left totally in the hands of its employee, the "Godfather" of the Vatican, Cardinal Bertone. Prior to the "Vatileaks" scandal, which detailed even more disturbing scandals, and referring to the sexual abuse cases, Ratzinger told Seewald in 2010: "It was shocking for all of us. Suddenly so much filth. It was almost like the crater of a volcano, out of which suddenly came a tremendous cloud of dirt, darkening and soiling everything, so that above all the priesthood suddenly seemed to be a place of shame and every priest was suspected of being 'one of them.'"⁵

More superficial than with Celestine eight hundred years prior, Benedict decided to fight against the "abyss" of dirt and intrigue that is today "disfiguring" the Church. He felt it was his duty to not give the faithful the wrong impression of what should be a Holy Institution. Constantly aware of this, Ratzinger said, "If the Church depended only on men it would have sunk a long time ago."⁶ In his eyes, that is proof that divine providence and grace sustained the community of the faithful beyond the errors and evil that lurk in the Church as a humane institution. Both Popes, the only to willfully resign in Church history, were crushed by the weight of Vatican bureaucracy. The power struggle and the poison of the Vatican hierarchy eventually forced them to desist. Celestine died in the prison of Fumone, a victim of his arch-enemy Caetani, who would take his place on the throne of Peter, as Pope Boniface VIII.

Benedict XVI chose to initially retreat to Castel Gandolfo by helicopter, “climbing the mountain” dressed in white, as in the vision of the Third Secret of Fátima. In a state of isolation, he went from the heart of the Vatican State to one of his dependencies in the outskirts of Rome. He was only to return a few months later and retire in a monastery built for him inside the Vatican walls, now officially known as “Pope Emeritus.”

“It is a mistake to think that the prophetic mission of Fátima is over,” remarked Ratzinger himself during a visit to Fátima, Portugal, and indirectly, with this message, airing something well beyond the official interpretation given by the Catholic Church. In the year 2000, thanks to his and Bertone’s possible censorship of the Third Secret of Fátima, it seems he wanted to communicate to the faithful, those that comprehend this “coded” language, the real truth about the message that the Virgin Mary our Lady of Fátima had given to her young shepherds. A message that was not fulfilled with the terrorist attack of Ali Agca in St. Peter’s Square that badly wounded Wojtyla in 1981.

Is the vision described by Sister Lucia, a vision shown by the Lady of Fátima to the three shepherds, of a bishop dressed in white going up the mountain of the city and killed by his own soldiers, not, in fact, John Paul II, but Ratzinger himself, or even Pope Francis, perhaps, suggesting a fulfillment to the vision that is yet to come? We need speculate more on this possibility.

THE DRAMATIC CHOICE OF BENEDICT XVI

“*D*ear Brothers, I have called this Consistory, not only for the three Canonizations, but also to communicate a decision of great importance for the life of the Church. After repeatedly examining my conscience before God, I came to the certainty that my strength, advanced age, are no longer appropriate to exercise properly the Petrine ministry. I am well aware that this ministry, its spiritual essence, must not only be accomplished with works and words, but with suffering and praying, no less. However, in today’s world, subject to rapid change and agitated by issues of great importance for the life of faith, to steer the boat of St. Peter and proclaim the Gospel, you must also have the force of the body and of the soul. A force which, in recent months, has diminished in such a way as to acknowledge my inability to properly administer the ministry entrusted to me. For this, I am well aware of the seriousness of this act, with full freedom, hereby renounce the ministry of the Bishop of Rome, the Successor of St. Peter, entrusted to me by the hand of Cardinals April 19, 2005, so that, from February 28, 2013, at 20.00, the See of Rome, the seat of St. Peter, will be vacant and shall be convened by those who have this task, the Conclave for the Election of the Supreme Pontiff ...” It is with these words spoken in Latin, on February 11, 2013, that, at the feast of the Blessed Virgin of Lourdes, the world heard the lapidary statement of his resignation. Most were shocked by the petrified manner in which it was announced, by Pope Benedict XVI, who had given his “resignation” from the Throne of the Vicar of Christ for no apparent reason, other than a “lack of strength of mind and body” due to his advanced age. There is an overshadowing feeling and recognition of failure by this person, now well-advanced in years, as his inability to cope with the duties of his office finally surfaced.

“It was a painful decision,” said Father Federico Lombardi, the Vatican spokesman, who ensured at the same time that Ratzinger was in good health for his age. So why did Benedict XVI make the decision to “come down” from the Cross, thus abandoning the role of pastor that he had been awarded nearly eight years before? Many have wondered why. Ratzinger used the Consistory like Celestino did 700 years before, officially, on that day, calling for the canonization of 800 martyrs of Otranto. He communicated such shocking news in Latin to a rapidly changing world immersed in technology, and in a manner that was truly of another era, to say the least. He felt he did not have the physical force and the fortitude to continue with his work. The Pontiff gave up his high throne for retirement like any other human being would do.

This gesture propels us towards a Church in full secularization. An institution more and more materialistic and secular, and much less Holy. Beyond the confusion of the faithful there have been signals in the preceding years that foreshadowed the forthcoming decision, signals that provided some Vaticanists with a more probable reason for the abdication of the Pontiff. As will be demonstrated here, the fate of Benedict XVI can be comprehended by his own words, his repeated appeals to the faithful to support him before the “wolves” he lashed out against, those who sullied the Church. In addition, in 2010, Ratzinger himself spoke of “resignation” when inquired on the subject by biographer Peter Seewald, who asked if, in the wake of the scandals that afflicted the Church, he ever thought of resigning.⁷ Ratzinger replied:

*“When the danger is great, you can not escape. That is why this is definitely not the time to resign. It is precisely at times like these, that we must resist and overcome the difficult situation. This is my thought. One can resign at a time of peace, or when you simply can not do it anymore. But you can not just run away in times of danger and say, let another deal with it.”*⁸ Seewald asked if it was deemed appropriate for a pope to resign? Benedict XVI meets this inquiry with disarming clarity: *“Yes. When a pope arrives at a clear awareness of not being able to physically, psychologically and mentally carry out the task entrusted to him, then he has the right and in some circumstances, even the duty, to resign.”*⁹

It is clear that Ratzinger had reached an “awareness” to resign when talking with Seewald two and a half years prior to such a decision becoming public. However, it is not the only question behind the real motives that would drive the Pope to this drastic decision. More so, a question of whether the timing behind the decision to resign was really the right one. It is not possible to define this moment in history serenely. Not for the Church, not for the world.

To make matters worse, the Middle East crisis had become increasingly more serious. This was due to the mercenaries of the NWO, unleashed by the CIA and the Mossad, to destabilize the area in search of bringing an end of times scenario to fruition. To add to this, we also have the outbreaks of violent protests in Europe, namely Ukraine and Greece. Along with Italy, these regions are currently hot, and this is even though the crisis in the so-called “Bel Paese” (Italy) hasn’t yet come to full fruition.

In Italy, the implications would become even worse than expected, as the Vatican was eventually implicated in the corruption of the Italian political class. The only story that can be said to be officially “closed,” is the Vatileaks case ... although the shadows on the “Crow,” aka Paul Gabriel, remain.

As it emerged during the trial, Gabriel, the butler, began making copies of secret documents at the beginning of his tenure in the papal apartment, in 2006. The idea that the actions of a “romantic” but disappointed man, of whom the Pope would not have been aware of, collapsed. Gabriel left more the impression of a real secret agent, seemingly for the Jesuits, sent in to destabilize the vertices of the Vatican. Once again, the Holy See silenced the hornet’s nest that was rising around the Corvo.

Who, or what, had prompted “Paoletto” to make the Vatican documents public? A war between Cardinals, corruption, homosexuality within the walls of the palace, or suspicious maneuvers around the Vatican bank? Vatileaks shocked and disgusted the Catholic world. So who stands to gain from all this? The Romans would have said, “Cui prodest?”

I will try to answer these and other questions during the course of this work. The statements by the Crow, who described himself as an “infiltrator of the Holy Spirit” and who by “seeing evil and corruption everywhere in the Church,” decided to put things back on track by shocking the media and the public, in my investigation, has not been deemed credible. As I mentioned above, the depositions show that Paolo Gabriel, the infamous “Crow,” began gathering information right from the start of his tenure.¹⁰

This suggests that the Vatican had been “infiltrated” by someone, to spy on, ad hoc (or blackmail) the pope up close. The reason stated by the Vatican did not make sense. Rather, they made sure that the truth did not emerge. The theme of blackmail and pressures, internal and external, are in fact an issue that we will face in the course of my work. I will demonstrate how Ratzinger suffered pressures and guidelines both from the Vatican’s hierarchy, and also from exterior forces: the so-called ecclesiastical Freemasonry.

This was all contradictory to what the Holy Father had embarked on since his election. It was a split path between the intention to reform the Church in a more traditional way, and the pressures of Ecclesiastical Masonry which is in league with the architects of the New World Order. This inevitably lead to confrontation, and eventually it collided with scandals of pedophilia and homosexuality in the Vatican, the plots within the IOR, the Gotti Tedeschi affair, and generally, more Vatileaks. Many have wondered what might have actually occurred in Ratzinger’s mind prior to making such a decision? What pressure was put on this German Pope, seemingly unshakable and previously known as the “Rottweiler of faith,” to leave his office? Why did he resign in 2013? To facilitate the closure of the Vatileaks scandal, as some propose? But why not at least wait for the celebration of Easter? Who and what was he referring to in these harsh accusations? Accusations made on February the 13th, 2013, two days after the announcement of his abdication, and during the Wednesday homily against “the religious hypocrisy” which disfigures the Church? Rather than stay on the cross until the end, to suffer and cure the ills of the Church, Ratzinger chose to abdicate, returning to embrace the old dream that the papacy seemed to have broken, toward a lonely and isolated old age of writing and prayer.

Following in the footsteps of Celestine V, Ratzinger chose a gesture that expressed weakness, or, more accurately, a gesture of discontinuity to demonstrate to the faithful the sad situation in which the Church finds itself today. A gesture that seems, paradoxically, the subject of the 2011 film, Habemus Papam, by Italian director Nanni Moretti, a well-known intellectual who has always been close to and politically involved with the pro-Bilderberg Italian left wing Democratic Party.

The movie begins with a newly elected Pope in the midst a panic attack—and literally running away after his election. In the general confusion this action creates, the ceremony is interrupted before his name is publicly announced. At this point, the Vatican is called in to sort out the matter with a psychoanalyst. In real life, things went differently, of course, but this film is proof that the crisis of Ratzinger's papacy did not go, as I said, unnoticed by some interested observers.

What about the concerns ventilated in the upper echelons of the Vatican? What about the huge hole in the finances of the SMOM, the notorious Knights of Malta? They are the ones who presided over the Institute for the Works of Religion (known by the acronym IOR) for 900 years, with an anniversary celebration stretching from February 15th 2013, through July 2014, and thanks to the treasurer and manager of the German branch of the Order, Ernest Von Freyberg. This was a sudden twist manifesting at the end of Ratzinger's pontificate, and far from the parallel that had been improperly drawn with Papa Luciani, who was a staunch opponent of Marcinkus and the atrocities of the Vatican bank, and who died under mysterious circumstances.

The nomination of Von Freyberg was the definite end of the Gotti Tedeschi presidency, and the bank was then left entirely in the hands of his Knights. The new President Ernest von Freyberg was, at least officially, there to implement a new compliance strategy with the goal to make the structures and regulations of the IOR more transparent, to clarify and, if necessary, to put an end to unlawful practices. It seems that von Freyberg, the controversial "God's banker," and merchant of death who is still active in the weapons industry, has not been successful, given that he was sent away by Papa Francesco in the summer of 2014, and quickly replaced with an illustrious unknown Frenchman, Jean-

Baptiste de Franssu. At this point, the Holy See informed the media that “over the next three years,” the Statutes of the IOR “will be revised, and activities will be redrawn according to three strategic priorities: to strengthen the business of the IOR, to gradually move the asset management to a new and central Vatican Asset Management (VAM) in order to overcome the duplication of efforts in this field between the institutions of the Vatican, and concentrate on the activities of the IOR financial advice and payment Services for clergy, congregations, dioceses and lay employees of the Vatican.”¹¹

Throughout all this, the predecessor, Ernst von Freyberg, would remain for an initial period of transition and “has agreed to participate during a transition period to ensure a proper handover.” This was announced by the Vatican¹² (20) after its sudden and mysterious decision. Let us not forget that the IOR has, at its side, the Sovereign Military Order of Malta, a Roman Catholic lay religious order traditionally found near the top levels of the Vatican institution, and charged to defend the interests of the Houses Rulers and the Aristocracy of the European Union. We also should count the presence of another key figure, Carl A. Anderson, Supreme Knight Grand Master of the Knights of Columbus. Along with the Knights of Malta, the Knights of Columbus Order is among the most powerful in the USA, and, more than any other, represents the pro-Israel lobby of the Church of Rome. Then, there is also the long reach of the Bush family, that I predict will make another attempt at the White House, in 2016, with Jeb Bush. Jeb is not only a loyal knight to the Pope, but also a point of contact with the most occult and evil side of the Illuminati, the Skull and Bones Lodge, that has its headquarters at Yale University, and where both his brother, George HW Bush, and his father, George Walker Bush, attended. In the initiation to the infamous Skull and Bones, aka “The Order,” we find the figure of Don Quixote, who was made famous by the Jesuit student Miguel de Cervantes (1547-1616) in what was probably the first international bestseller. According to many Jesuits, the Quixote character was based on the founder of the Jesuits: Ignatius of Loyola.

THE WHITE SMOKE SIGN

At 19:06, on the 13th of March 2013, under pouring rain, the white smoke from the chimney of the Sistine Chapel announced to the crowd gathered in St. Peter’s Square, and to all the faithful and the curious worldwide, that there was a newly elected Pope. The cheers and screams of joy were suddenly pierced by the sound of bells. After an hour the clouds gave a break to the faithful gathered in the square, and from the lodge of the basilica, Cardinal Jean Louis Tauran faced the crowd from the balcony to reveal the identity of the new pontiff. Many in Italy believed that the choice would fall on Angelo Scola, Marc Ouellet or Timothy Dolan. Instead, the new Bishop of Rome took everyone by surprise. On the fifth ballot, in what was a sharp and ahead-of-schedule decision, in fact, a strong signal by the College of Cardinals, that despite the recent scandals that had rocked the Catholic Church, they moved quickly to elect a successor to Pope Benedict XVI.

He is now the one chosen to “reform” a Church in crisis, and since that day, two billion followers have opened their hearts in hope toward the new selection. In his white robe, appearing at the window of St. Peter’s Square to bless the faithful, the Jesuit Cardinal of Argentina, Jorge Mario Bergoglio, had become Pope Francis. He is the first pope from Latin America, the continent where Catholicism has hundreds of millions of faithful, but from which only 19 cardinals have entered the actual conclave to participate in the elections. He is the first Pope in history to be a Jesuit, and the only Jesuit Cardinal present in the Conclave after Archbishop Emeritus of Jakarta. The Jesuit Julius Riyadi Darmaatmadja had to quit for health reasons. Perhaps, however, this could signal the appearance of the Last Pope, at least of the Church as we know it.

THE FIRST JESUIT POPE IN HISTORY

In 2005, Bergoglio made headlines for being a contender for the job that Joseph Ratzinger would eventually gain during the conclave. Denying that there was anything constructed, Bergoglio then took the position Ratzinger previously held. The successor of Benedict XVI is, paradoxically, his antagonist. Who, according to rumors insistently spread during that period, was preferred over the German Cardinal in 2005. Some even say that Bergoglio was even elected as Pope back then, but that he apparently preferred to decline, and cast his own votes to Ratzinger. Bergoglio, due to his vast experience in the Third World and his reputation as a “simple” man of recognized “humility,” had, in fact, managed to collect the support of both conservatives and moderates. Yet, as I will explain shortly, the decision of the 2005 conclave might have been influenced by the possibility of a scandal investigated by the Argentinian journalist Horacio Verbistky. He accused Pope Francis of collusion with the dictatorship in Argentina, and involvement in the kidnapping of two of his own Jesuit priests who were disliked by the dictatorship in place at that time. An accusation that, despite the anger and the denial of the Cardinal himself, could hardly go unnoticed, and probably weighed on the final result of the 2005 Conclave, that decided instead for Pope Ratzinger. Bergoglio was 77 years old at the time of his election, and the Cardinals may have preferred him to a younger Pope. The Cardinals, perhaps, thought it better to put an experienced man of the Church in this position of responsibility. Someone estimated by both conservatives and liberals to not make secret the risks of careerism within the Roman Curia, “the Cardinals are not the agents of an NGO, but are servants of the Lord,” Pope Francis once said, condemning harshly the excesses of capitalism and imperialism.

Vaticanists portray him on a daily basis as determined to reform the Roman affairs and the Vatican business. But in what way? Will he instead sink the Church to its final decline?

This is how he expressed himself in an interview with journalist Andrea Tornielli of the website “Vatican Insider,” when he spoke about the role of the evangelization of the Church:

“We must go out ourselves, go to the suburbs. We should avoid the spiritual illness of Church that talks only about itself: when this happens, the Church becomes ill. It is true that going out on the street, as it could happen with any man or women, accidents happen. Or there is the old way, the church is closed in on itself, self-referential. Between a Church in difficulty coming out on the street, and a self-referential Church, I have no doubt in preferring the first.”¹³

He is, as I stated earlier, the first pope belonging to the Jesuit Order. Vatican spokesman Federico Lombardi, in an evening briefing to the press after the papal election sought, with a hint of emotion, to emphasize the continent and history of origin behind the name chosen by Father Bergoglio. Saint Francis of Assisi, the patron saint of Italy, is where the family of Bergoglio originally comes from. But Pope Francis is a Jesuit, just as is Ladara Luis Francisco Ferrer, the Spanish Archbishop appointed by Ratzinger in 2008 to be Secretary of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, formerly the Holy Office, or the infamous Inquisition. Now Ferrer will become the “Ratzinger of Pope Bergoglio,” as was communicated from the Vatican Secretary of State after the election of the Argentinian Pope, a loyalist of the Order founded by Saint Ignatius, The Society of Jesus, the most militarized amongst the Catholic religious orders, and who appreciates being surrounded by members of its own order, the Jesuits.

Bergoglio became Provincial of the Society of Jesus in Argentina during its raging dictatorship, and for problems that I will discuss later in detail, he was deposed by the Provincial authority of the Jesuits. Since then, Bergoglio had disappeared in the shadows until he was appointed auxiliary Bishop by Archbishop Antonio Quarracino in 1992. From that point on, he began his ascent to the throne of Saint Peter. In the autumn of 2001, the Vatican called on him in to lead a major department. “For heaven’s sake, in the curia I die,” implored Bergoglio, reluctant to expose himself to public scrutiny and traveling. In 2005, they “graced him,” but this time was different, and he was forced by circumstances to become Pope of the Catholic Church.

A BRIEF BIOGRAPHY OF THE NEW POPE

Pope Francis was born in Buenos Aires on December 17, 1936, by Italian immigrant parents from a rural area near Turin. He embarked on a strange course of study, graduating as a chemical engineer, and then chose the priesthood, entering the seminary in Villa Devoto. On March the 11th, 1958, he began his novitiate to the Society of Jesus. He took on humanistic studies in Chile, and in 1963, when returning to Buenos Aires, he graduated in philosophy from the Colegio Máximo de San José in San Miguel, of the Buenos Aires Province. Between 1964 and 1965, he was a professor of literature and psychology in the Colegio de la Inmaculada Concepción, a high school in Santa Fe, and in 1966 taught the same subjects at the Colegio del Salvador in Buenos Aires. On the 13th of December 1969, after finishing his theological studies two years prior, he was ordained a priest. He then became the master of novices at Villa Barilari, San Miguel (1972-1973), professor at the Faculty of Theology, and Consultant of the Province. He took the final fourth vow (obedience to the pope) in the Society of Jesus on the 22nd of April, 1973, which added to the previous three, and on the 31st July, 1973, he was elected Provincial of Argentina, a leading position in the Jesuit Order of Argentina, which he exerted for six long years. In the 1980's, he became the Rector of the College of San Miguel for the faculties of Theology and Philosophy, and he continued his mission for the Jesuits as spiritual adviser in the city of Córdoba. During this period, he did everything possible to oppose Liberation Theology. According to the Catholic Herald, Pope Francis was all too familiar with liberation theology when he was the Jesuit provincial in Argentina, and opposed it, "even when this stand left him isolated among the Jesuits." Liberation theology, which was very popular in the 1970's, had its ideology heavily influenced by Marxism and Communism. It is something the Jesuits were the first to promulgate as a way of life during their establishment of settlements known as the "Jesuit Reductions," created for indigenous people in South America during the 17th and 18th centuries.

At the time, Bergoglio's apparent fascist position diverged from the majority of Jesuits and was more in line with the fascist and traditionalist ideology of the infamous P2 Masonic Lodge. The P2 lodge was very powerful in Argentina in the 1970's and early 80's, until the end of the Argentinian dictatorship that followed the Falklands war in 1983. The P2, which stands for Propaganda 2, was a key player for the CIA and the Vatican, not only in Europe but in the whole of South America, used Bergoglio on more than one occasion. During this time, the Argentinian dictator Videla sheltered many Nazi fugitives, along with Juan Perón before him. Some P2 Freemasons say this was one of the reasons that later pushed the future Pope to study in Germany in the 80's, and why, for no apparent reason, he spent several months at the Sankt Georgen Graduate School of Philosophy and Theology in Frankfurt. Officially, he was there considering a possible dissertation topic for a thesis in theology that was apparently never presented. So what was he really doing at the end of the "Cold War" in West Germany? Fighting Communism?

While in Germany, he saw the painting of Mary Untier of Knots in Augsburg, and brought a copy back to Argentina where it has since become an important part of Marian devotion in his country.

After all his missions and his "strange behavior" during the Argentinian dictatorship, Bergoglio was rewarded by the Vatican hierarchy. On May 20^{*} 1992, Pope John Paul II appointed him Titular Bishop of Auca and Auxiliary Bishop of Buenos Aires. On the 27th of June, that same year, in the cathedral of Buenos Aires, he received his Episcopal Ordination from the hands of Cardinal Antonio Quarracino, the Apostolic Nuncio, Archbishop Ubaldo Calabresi, and the Bishop of Mercedes-Lujan, Monsignor Emilio Ognenovich. On June 3rd, 1997, he was appointed Coadjutor Archbishop of Buenos Aires with the right for automatic succession as Archbishop of Buenos Aires following the death of Cardinal Quarracino, a position he took on the 28th of February, 1998. From November 2005 through November 2011, he was the President of the Episcopal Conference of Argentina. He was finally ready for Pope stardom after he was proclaimed Cardinal by John Paul II in the consistory on the 21st of February, 2001, the year the world would have their biggest shake up to date.

THEY TOOK A POPE “ALMOST AT THE END OF THE WORLD”

Francesco’s election changes the paradigm behind the election of the bishop of Rome, and the first to bear witness of this is Bergoglio himself. From the lodge of the Basilica, on the evening of his election, he joked about his appointment before his flock cheering: “I have been taken almost at the end of the world.” Notice how he specified that he has been taken “at the end,” and not “in the end”—it seems that his wording refers to a temporal dimension, not a spatial one. In fact, there is a sort of cheating on bad Italian pronunciation on Bergoglio’s side, who as a good Jesuit, knows very well his every word must be calibrated to perfection, even within so-called mistakes. In this case, the “end of the world” to which he refers seems very close. He seems to inherit what is regarded as the thoughts and ideology of what was considered the “standard-bearer of the progressive Catholic”—the Jesuit Cardinal Carlo Maria Martini.

Martini, a friend and supporter of Bergoglio, was a Freemason (something also said of Bergoglio), and was, until his death in August 2012, considered an antagonist of Catholic traditionalism, as carried out by Ratzinger. It evoked an opening of the Church toward a One World Religion scenario, a mission he actively endorsed by working on the One World Bible project, a subject analyzed in depth by David W. Daniels in the recent book, Why They Changed The Bible: One World Bible For One World Religion (Chick Publications, 2014). Martini’s work shows that it was possible to embrace the doctrine of Liberation Theology, so disliked by Benedict XVI and much of the Vatican, and its most loyal agents, including Bergoglio in the 1970’s and 80’s. At present, but perhaps not, it would seem to contradict the current project of the New World Order.

But when does the “dialogue” end, and the NWO project effectively kick in and begin emptying the doctrine of Catholicism with the opening of themes completely “modern” and liberal, which is incompatible with Catholic doctrine? Cardinal Martini, a loyal pro-Israelite until his death, and even wanting to be buried there, was a Jesuit as well, and initiated into Freemasonry as I mentioned earlier—at least according to the Grand Master of the Grande Oriente Democratico and known author Gioele Magaldi. Upon his death, in fact, on the site of his Masonic obedience was dedicated a “touching” greeting to the Jesuit Cardinal that ends as follows:

“Carlo Maria Martini wanted to be initiated a Freemason. But this fact— and the way in which the event took place—you’re likely to find in a few illustrated traces of the book by Brother Gioele Magaldi, MASSONI. Società a responsabilità illimitata, Chiarelettere Publisher (Italy), originally for release in November 2012. As far as we are concerned, however, with great simplicity and emotion, with great affection and esteem infinite, we want to greet Brother Carlo Maria Martini in his journey to the ETERNAL ORIENT.”

Signed by THE BROTHERS OF THE GRANDE ORIENTE DEMOCRATICO [Article 12-14 September 2012]¹⁴

The problem is, despite numerous announcements made by Magaldi and his publisher over the last several years, at the time of this writing, Magaldi’s book has yet to be published. Recently, even while many were wondering if the content was deemed too revealing, and perhaps had led to a total suspension of this book project, it was finally announced that the book will be published on the 20th of November, 2014.

I know Magaldi very well. He is a well-known Freemason, author, and former Worshipful Master of the Grand Orient of Italy (Grande Oriente d’Italia, known by the acronym GOI). A couple of years ago, he abandoned the main Italian Masonic Communion and replaced it with a new Masonic reality: Grande Oriente Democratico. The Grand Orient of Italy has accused him of being an agent of the Jesuits (even if not officially announced). This explains the attitude of its pro-Jesuit site, and its alleged Masonic Obedience, whose acronym “GOD” says it all. Magaldi also confessed openly to the author his sympathies to the Jesuit and Zionist causes. You see, even if we are opposed to each other, we maintain an ongoing open dialogue. It is a custom that follows Masonic tradition.

But let’s get back to Pope Francis. In the homily of his pontificate, the newly elected Pope promised to ferry the community of the faithful along “a path of brotherhood, of love, of trust between us,” asking the crowd gathered in St. Peter’s Square to pray for God's blessing on him: "Let us pray also for us: one for the other. Let us pray for the whole world, because there is a great brotherhood. I hope that this journey of the Church, which began today and which I will do with the help of my cardinal vicar, here present, to be fruitful for the evangelization of this beautiful city! And now I would like to give the blessing, but I would like first, to ask you a favor: before the Bishop blesses the people, I ask that you pray to the Lord to bless me: the people's prayer asking for the blessing of his bishop. We make this prayer in the silence of you on me." Suddenly he wants his faithful to pray for him and not the other way around, breaking the tradition and, with this unusual act, demonstrating the weakness of the Church.

Yet there is something more beyond this sober and "clean" image with which he greeted the faithful, this "Bishop of Rome," as he likes to call himself. He shows the shadows of progressivism: having been accused in 2005 of collusion with the dictatorship in Argentina in the extermination of nine thousand people. It is a shocking accusation, launched by the Argentine journalist Horacio Verbitsky, who has studied and investigated the most tragic period in the South American country, and who has worked on the reconstruction of events through careful and serious research. As I mentioned earlier, if brought forward, his accusations might have stopped Bergoglio from becoming Pope in 2005.

Chapter: II

THE MANY SECRETS OF POPE FRANCIS

FRANCIS XAVIER ... OR FRANCIS OF ASSISI?

Before doing further research into Argentine journalist Horacio Verbistky's groundbreaking work, let's quickly analyze the choice of his papal name and the papal logo. Why did Bergoglio chose the name "Francis"? The Jesuit order never did really get along with the order of the Franciscans, although in reality, the founder of Ignatius Loyola was inspired by St. Francis as to the very constitution of his order, while following purposes and acting in a very divergent way. In the book, Divina seduzione. Storie di conversione: Paolo, Pacomio, Agostino, Ignazio written by E. Ronchi, the author illustrates how Ignatius Loyola confronted the great figures that preceded him in the story of the Church. In particular, the founder of the Franciscan Order, St. Francis, and also St. Dominic, founder of the Dominicans, to this day are linked to the Jesuits. As proof, here are the words of the founder of the Society of Jesus: "And what if I also did what St. Francis or St. Dominic did?" In this way, Ignatius reviewed his predecessors many initiatives, and chose what he found fitting for his growing new order, The Society of Jesus. By doing this, he proposed an increasingly more difficult task. Yet, as he took inspiration from the raw models of the past, he seemed, within himself, to find the strength to carry about this new project with ease. Ronchi writes: *“All his talk was a repeat to himself, ‘Dominic did this, I do it too; St. Francis did that I have to also do that.’”*¹

Was Bergoglio’s intent to do the same, or is it just an act of propaganda designed by the manipulative mind of a Jesuit? Since the election, the interpretation regarding the choice of Bergoglio’s Papal name by the majority of journalists, more than likely set in motion by the agents of Vatican propaganda, immediately determined that he was referring to St. Francis of Assisi. The American Cardinal, Sean Patrick O’Malley, also confirmed that the choice was based on St. Francis. Finally, Bergoglio himself explained the reasons for his extraordinary choice: “I’d like a poor Church for the poor, that’s why I chose the name Francis, as Francis of Assisi.” He further explains that the Saint of Assisi was a “man of peace” and represents “the man who loves and preserves the Creator, and today we don’t have such a good relationship with Creation.” Bergoglio continued by saying that, even during the votation of the Conclave, “When I was at a quorum of two-thirds, and I took the applause for it, Claudio Hummes, the Archbishop of Sao Paulo hugged me and told me: ‘Do not forget the poor.’ Then I thought about poverty. The wars and St. Francis of Assisi. I decided to name myself after him. Meanwhile, the counting continued.” What if things happened in a different and much more calculated way from Bergoglio’s explanation? Or at least not entirely like he prefers to describe it. Sometimes in situations such as these there are various levels of interpretation. One for the initiated, and the other for the profane. Something that has been studied in which they conceal from the masses a deeper meaning than that understood by the public. What is certain, is that the name chosen by the predecessor, Pope Benedict XVI, outlines publicly a more sober choice.

In reality Saint Benedict was the history of the Church, the creator of the monastic tradition that later inspired Saint Francis. Benedict XVI took the name of the illustrious Saint who gave birth to Western monasticism and its Benedictine order. For his last public speech as Cardinal, Ratzinger chose the monastery of St. Scholastica in Subiaco. Let us not forget that St. Francis of Assisi was especially devoted towards St. Benedict, so much so that the only portrait of the Saint of Assisi was done while he was still alive. Painted during one of his visits to the Subiaco monasteries, it is located in the so called “Sacro Speco,” and is within walking distance of the more well known St. Scholastica, also known as Subiaco Abbey. It is located in the very cave where Benedict began his spiritual journey of revenge against a decadent Rome, and a church that was already corrupt, perhaps as it has always been, since its foundation. Surprisingly, the Italian researcher Marcello Pamio of disinformazione.it has published another equally plausible hypothesis about the name decision from his website, a thesis that leads us to a different way to interpret the choice made by Bergoglio: “It is much more likely that Jorge Mario Bergoglio chose the name Francis, not to remember the Saint of Assisi, but to honor Francisco de Jasso y Azpilcueta Atondo Aznares de Javier,” also known as St. Francis Xavier, co-founder of the Jesuit Order, and who led the first missionary in Asia. A confirmation comes from the Jesuit Giovanni La Manna, president of the Center Astalli of Rome who, in an interview, states literally: “I immediately thought this reference was to our Francis Xavier, who is a saint critical to the Jesuits... Xavier spent a lifetime in his mission of evangelization... Francis Xavier was a Spanish Jesuit missionary in 1500 and one of the first witnesses of the Society of Jesus as well as one of the founders. Papa Gregory XV, on the same day of March 12, 1622, canonized Francis Xavier along with the historical and recognized founder of the Jesuits: Ignatius of Loyola!”² Pamio was referencing an interview on March 14, 2013, to Father La Manna made by the Huffington Post, in which, following the election of Bergoglio, he answered the following questions:

“And what does this name mean? Do you think that he has chosen it in reference to St. Francis and to his vow of poverty? His Holiness, having a history as a Jesuit, I believe, he has chosen this name having in mind St. Francis Xavier, one of the early missionaries that tried to evangelize new lands. I believe that the choice of the name belongs to the history of His Holiness and therefore has its roots in the history of the Jesuits. Thinking and living as a Jesuit, I immediately thought this reference was to our Francis Xavier, who is a Saint critical to the Jesuits, one of the first witnesses of the holy Society of Jesus who spent a lifetime in his mission of evangelization. I am sure that this name resonates in the soul of His Holiness.”

“What kind of Pope is Pope Francis? A Pope who is breaking free, or resuming with the past? Definitely he will take into account the line followed by his predecessors. But in his own way he will have certain priorities, and identifying these priorities will weigh the fact of being a Jesuit. Taking into account the name he chose, he will certainly be a busy man in the new evangelization in the Year of the Faith.” (Note by the author: “Year of Faith” ran from Oct. 11, 2012 until Nov. 24, 2013; *“He will lead the Church with the attention to those who look at the world from another point of view, which in his case is Argentina. Doing so he will bring a breath of fresh air to help the Universal Church revise its priorities. This will only bring new energy and enthusiasm to the Church. From his first speech as Pope he asked the faithful to bless him, he has started a dialogue, a new relationship, a two-way one. It is not a one-way speech: it means being part of a single reality.”*³

In this curious choice of name, is there value being interpretative in comparison to the meaning made public by the Pope himself? The message sent out from the Vatican is narrow and offers no other interpretations. During the pontificate of Bergoglio, in the name of Francis, the Church will embark on a new path. But which one? Becoming very poor and for the poor, as was done in the time of St. Francis of Assisi—or to evangelize and win the confidence of rulers and distant peoples in the name of the Society of Jesus, as did St. Francis Xavier? As a Pope, he must tend to the defense of the faith. But as a Jesuit, he must defend the papacy at all costs!

The name he chose should foretell what will happen, as is already happening, for example, with Pope Francis going to Korea in the summer of 2014, and again returning to Asia in January of 2015. This looked like a typical St. Francis Xavier kind of move, not that of St. Francis of Assisi. Many would have preferred that he return to the Middle East in these difficult times, and open a dialogue on peace, than to dine with Korean pop stars. And so, what will become of the Church? As he stated from the beginning, he was chosen “... almost at the end of the world.”

For now, beyond the proclamations of peace and poverty, we can clearly glimpse a step backwards compared to the attempts toward “restoration” of the old doctrinal and liturgical ways put in place by his much more traditional predecessor. It would appear to be a step towards a more secular —and more Masonized—kind of Church. An opening to modernity, which is likely to drag the community of the faithful towards the extreme dissolution of Catholic tradition into the New World Order and a One World Religion. Once it begins, in fact, modernity can lead only to the degradation and depletion of the traditional doctrine in view of something else. The future of the Church will weigh upon the membership of the Pope to the Society of Jesus, a “training” that you can neither forget nor deny. To emphasize this point, Father La Manna stated:

“The new Pope is a person who has received a Jesuit education. And he who was a Jesuit for years can not erase his origins. His training has influenced the way in which he acted as Archbishop of Buenos Aires: what forges a man is not easily forgotten. The fact of his being a Jesuit will show in the way he will serve the Church.”

In this case, remember that for some researchers, including the historian Jean-Charles Pichon and others, that I will discuss in another publication, the Jesuits are not only a Catholic order, but a secret society dedicated to magic and deception. In the book by Francois Dumas Ribadeau Secret Dossier of Witchcraft and Black Magic (Ed.Mediterranee, Rome, page 259) he writes:

“In the Monita Secreta Societati, a Jesuit named Zanolowski Jerome, whose revelations made scandal, gave the impression that the Society of Jesus has the appearance of being an inhumane sect, with terrible secrets, commanded by a ‘blackpope’ omnipotent. He ensures that the society uses evil powers and performs executions. One point is certain: the Jesuits have always given great attention to magic.”

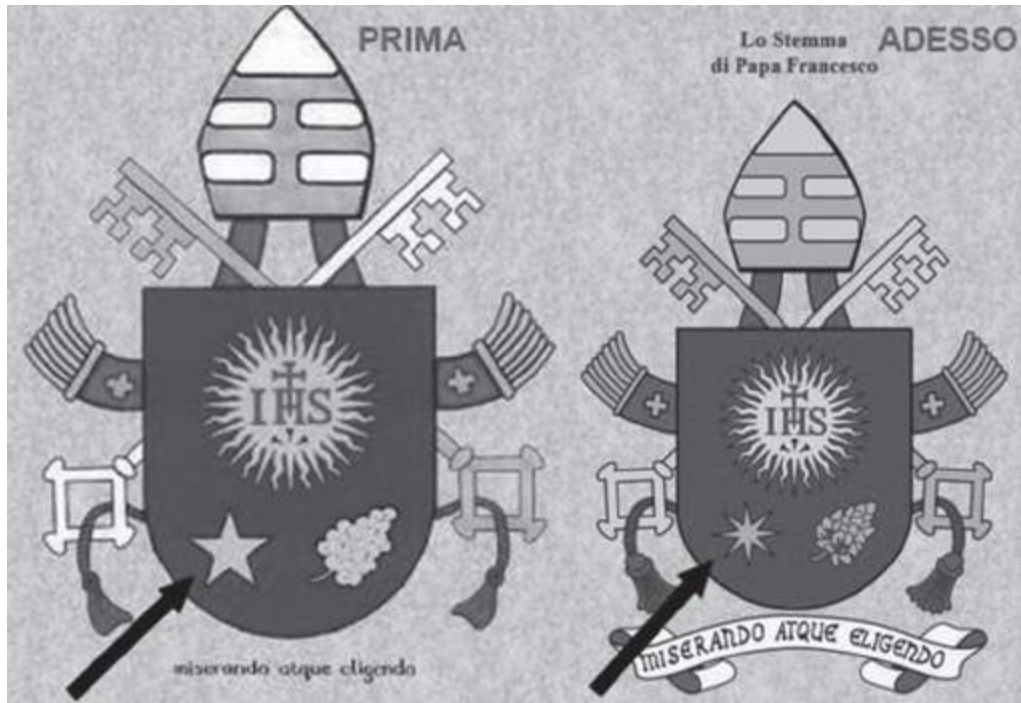

Fig.3. The two versions of the episcopal coat of arms compared before and after the change. Pic from: <http://giacintobutindaro.org/2013/03/27/clamoroso-il-papa-francesco-ha-fatto-sostituire-il-simbolo-massonico-sul-suo-stemma-con-un-altro-simbolo-massonico/> ‡ Archived from the internet July 6, 2014.

In short, even if the information concerning the Jesuits circulating on the internet, and in the field of conspiracy literature, can be considered 100% genuine, such as their alleged oath, considered by many historians to be a total fake, it is certainly not with innocence, his choosing of the name Francis, that we should be fooled by a Jesuit. We need to judge him by the facts, that for the moment, seem to be few, at least compared to the many promises made. My inside sources in the Vatican seem to confirm a general disappointment with the so-called “Francis Mania,” that we could simply call “Keeping up Appearances,” like the title of that famous BBC television sitcom of the 90’s. In regards to the previous work of Pope Francis, it has been quoted, “doing a little, is better than doing nothing.” In July 2014, he suddenly decided to meet a small group of Church victims of pedophilia, reflecting and praying with them in his residence. Six people came all the way from Germany, Great Britain and Ireland, accompanied by Cardinal Sean Patrick O’Malley of Boston—a staunch fighter of the phenomenon of child abuse in his diocese, and the coordinator of the Commission for the protection of minors ordered by Pope Bergoglio. They attended a Mass together, celebrated with the Pontiff at Casa Santa Marta, his actual residence, and then met in what seemed little more than a symbolic gesture, given the presence of six real people, and not 600 or 6,000 in St. Peter's Square. In regards to the never ending pedophilia scandal, this would suggest a real revolution concerning the modus operandi within the Vatican. The Pope that promises "zero tolerance" should have the courage to let the many police forces from around the world into the Vatican, which over the years, have often found themselves forced to give up their investigations when they concerned certain men in the Vatican who were at the top of the pedophile rings. This is still the case today, as I will demonstrate, in depth, in the next chapter.

Fig. 4. Father Federico Lombardi at a press conference on March 18th, 2013, who demonstrates clearly the first version of the episcopal coat of arms chosen by Francis, which has a five pointed star. THE PAPAL MASONIC EMBLEM

If the name Francis has raised some doubts on the direction behind his intentions, the mystery becomes even more dense and full of intrigue when we consider the papal coat of arms. In fact, the first version, officially presented by Father Lombardi on March 18th 2013, a few days after Bergoglio's election, had been quickly changed, for no apparent reason, after just a few days. So what happened?

As far as I am concerned, at the bottom left, the first version (as pictured) clearly shows a stave, which is a Masonic pentagram! The five-pointed star was then promptly changed for an alternative version containing eight rays. The image of the original coat of arms, however, had time to go around the globe on websites and social networks all over the internet, and was noticed by those with eyes to see. It appears that Bergoglio decided to keep the essential traits included in his old Cardinal's coat of arms.

The episcopal coat of arms features a light blue background topped by the symbols of papal dignity (a miter placed between crossed keys of gold and silver, bound by a red cord). This is identical to aspects desired by his predecessor, Benedict XVI. In Bergoglio's version, the top is then adorned with the emblem of the Society of Jesus, a radiant and flaming sun with the letters IHS in red, and the monogram of Christ. The letter H is surmounted by a cross; and at the tip, three nails in black. Below, you will find the star (now an eight-pointed version) and the flower of nard. According to the ancient heraldic tradition, the star symbolizes the Virgin Mary, mother of Christ, and the Church (Stella Maris/Star of the Sea); while the flower of nard represents St. Joseph, the patron of the Universal Church. In iconographic tradition, Hispanic tradition, in fact, St. Joseph is depicted with a branch of nard in his hand. By placing these images on his shield, the Pope, apparently, wanted to express his own particular devotion to the Blessed Virgin and to St. Joseph.⁴

In truth, behind this loyalty to his faith, there is a well-crafted pagan symbolism of nature, inspired by the Hermetic tradition of the Society of Jesus, originally inspired by the Jesuit Athanasius Kircher (Geisa May 12, 1602 - November 28, 1680 in Rome). These symbols relate to the female deities, specifically Isis from the Egyptian tradition, and the Assyrian Babylonian Ishtar. Both are represented by an eight-pointed star, and mostly, in particular, Ishtar, whose cult was associated with the planet Venus and sacred prostitution, a practice that appears to have a strong following in today's Vatican. Among other things, Ishtar⁵ has, as its counterpart, the deity Astarte in Phoenician tradition.⁶

In particular, we have the work of Madame Blavatsky's Isis Unveiled that emphasize not only the female regenerative role in nature of the goddess, but also their underworld (infernal) side. The role of Blavatsky, the founder of the Theosophical Society, is considered to be the origin of what we now define as "New Age." Its acts of Luciferian subversion of the classical interpretation of the sacred texts is certainly of primary importance in the globalist context. During a course of time, and thanks to Freemasonry, the Theosophical Society has assumed more and more relevance in the One World Religion project. Around the same time, inspired figures such as the English black magician Aleister Crowley also reached prominence. He who boasted of being born in the year of the founding of the Theosophical Society, to which many original Ordo Templi Orientis members belonged.

Even Crowley, in fact, was devoted to the goddess Ishtar, who will assume a key role in the pantheon of his perverse cult of "Thelema," so dear to the Illuminati, as a figure present in the key passage of the Apocalypse of St. John, called "Babylon the Great, the mother of harlots and abominations of the earth." This is from the King James Version, the New International Version, uses "prostitutes" instead of "harlots."

For some non-Catholic Christians, it appears that the Vatican City is at the end of times, and who can really blame them for such an interpretation? While it is true that the star with eight rays represents the "star of Bethlehem" in the Judeo-Christian tradition, it is also true that this ancient pagan symbol has taken on an increasingly important role that is far more nefarious in the NWO scenario. In the New Age tradition, the eight-pointed star is linked to mental manipulation, and to what we define as counter initiation. This is the opposite of true initiation, a practice conducted by the many sects operating within the New World Order.

Not surprising to informed observers, during the halftime musical break at the 2004 Super Bowl sporting event, the actor/singer Justin Timberlake shocked viewers at the stadium, and the American CBS television audience, by tearing a piece of the leather from the jacket worn by Michael Jackson's sister, Janet Jackson. This exposed the world to the symbol of the goddess

Ishtar, an eight-pointed star, that was attached to the nipple of the singer.⁷ As confirmed by the images, that same star that is now inextricably linked to Pope Bergoglio, and, more generally, to the Italian Jesuits, who use it as a logo on their new website.⁸ Recently I wrote a book defining and explaining the many connections between; THE ILLUMINATI AND THE MUSIC OF HOLLYWOOD (Ed.Harmakis, Montevarchi, Arezzo. Italy, November 2014).

On March 18, 2013, the papal coat of arms was officially unveiled at a press conference by Father Federico Lombardi, also a Jesuit, and the master propagandist of the Vatican. He made a brief explanation about what was contained in the symbols, and spoke of the motto that is taken from the Homilies of St. Beda the Venerable (Om. 21, CCL 122, 149-151). A priest, who, commenting on the Gospel story of the Calling of Saint Matthew, writes: “Vidit ergo Iesus publicanum et quia miserabile atque eligendo vidit, ait illi Sequere me,” which means, literally: “Jesus saw a tax collector and as he looked at him with feelings of love, he chose him, and told him: Follow me.” This homily is a tribute to God’s mercy, and is reproduced in the Liturgy of the Hours of the feast of St. Matthew. It apparently plays a particular meaning in the life and in the spiritual path of the Pope. On the feast of St. Matthew, in the year of our Lord, 1953, the young Jorge Mario Bergoglio, at the age of 17, experienced the vocation to enter the Society of Jesus, founded by “the magician” Ignatius Loyola.

FIG.5. During the episode that shocked the Super Bowl audience in 2004, the singer Janet Jackson exposes the eight-pointed star that covers her nipple. The original clip is viewable on: <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=nnR2K8JQEX4/> ‡ Archived from the internet July 15, 2014.

Loyola was a controversial figure, as described by Francois Dumas Ribadeau in the previously mentioned Secret Dossiers of Witchcraft and Black Magic,⁹ where he is described as a person who was arrested by the Inquisition five times before being finally being accepted by the Pope. He Founded the Jesuits, and among other propositions, Loyola “dedicated himself to reunions for the evocation of spirits, where he would bring students and young girls who could be hypnotized, putting them on their knees, with their arms crossed, their face wet with tears; where they confessed aloud their sins and received salvific visions. He prepared them for ecstasy. But the Inquisition” (Note from the author: it was not yet in the hands of the Jesuits, but the Dominicans at that time) “saw in these facts a ceremony that put into play satanic forces.”¹⁰ I want to emphasize, that just as with Ignatius Loyola before him Pope Bergoglio, “was illuminated by the example of St. Francis,” and, with the help of Pope Paul IV, “who protected him for some mysterious reason,”¹¹ eventually succeeded in founding his Jesuit Order.

Joël Labruyère, a contemporary French researcher, in his book, Kali Yuga (published only in France and Italy) helps us to understand the true spirit of elite Jesuit members like Bergoglio: “The Society of Jesus is the secret society more structured and probably more (active than any other) on earth. In any case it is the only organization that has really focused and who has effective occult powers, a fact that is entirely unknown to most people.”

A few lines later, Labruyère is more specific: “we are not talking about the ordinary Jesuit, very nice, with whom you would have met in school, in a social organization or in an educational center. We refer to the initiated, who profess to have issued the fourth vow, and among the latter who are recruited on the basis of the luciferian court, the real Illuminati.”¹²

This is exactly what we need to keep in mind when examining the figure of Pope Francis. Returning to the original coat of arms presented by Padre Lombardi, let’s further discuss the controversial five-pointed star present in the first version, and still available in articles in and around the internet, and in video presentations available on YouTube.¹³

The star in question is most commonly associated with Christ as the bright morning star. But as we know, every symbol can have multiple meanings. In the Apocalypse of John (22, 16), it indicates Christ. In the heraldry of the Virgin, it is known to be an emblem of magic. At the same time, it is one of the “icons of Freemasonry,” where it is known among the initiated to represent “the Flaming Star”— revealed to the candidate in the second degree of Freemasonry. In pagan times, it was a prominent symbol favored by the ancient Pythagoreans, who were the first to take up mathematics.

For certain, the five-pointed star weighs heavily in magical traditions. With its point up, it shows the positive side of magic, but when pointed downwards, it is a key symbol in the world of black magic. The blazing five-pointed star is a symbol important to magic and Freemasonry, where it alludes to celestial geometry, and to God—or gnosis—for the initiated. In the Catholic Church, it represents the spiritual light that “enlightens” the world.

In the past, a star with five rays has only appeared on the coat of arms of Pope John Paul I, whose mysterious death I write about in detail in the third volume of Confessions. This is a sad episode linked to Vatican Freemasonry. John Paul I was sacrificed on the 33rd day of his brief pontificate, due to his genuine will to reform the Vatican Bank.

Confirming that the five-pointed star was previously only used by Papa Luciani, Giorgio Aldrichetti of Chioggia, a famous heraldic expert and papal dignitary, writes: “Mary is the star of the morning, but the design has surprised me: a five-ray star had only been seen in the coat of arms of Pope Luciani. Usually, in ecclesiastical heraldry, the stellar rays are eight, as the beatitudes. Or at least six.”

As I have already explained, and what is really “strange” to the experts in the field, the five-pointed star is an icon typically associated with Freemasonry. Aldrichetti said that he wrote to the Vatican Secretary of State to warn them of the anomaly that could cause suspicion after the Bergoglio coat of arms to was presented on March 18th, 2013. If this heraldic expert and papal dignitary confirms all this, I have to agree. The coat of arms containing the pentagram was quickly changed. How is it possible that the Vatican was not aware that the use of the five-pointed star would have aroused such discontent? Perhaps they were well-aware, and the symbol was briefly displayed publicly to communicate the presence, or proximity, of the new pontiff to Freemasonry?

In light of this data, I may venture the following interpretation. Firstly, the presence of the staff would address the close connection Bergoglio had to Vatican Freemasonry, the mysterious Lodge Ecclesia, that had, since the 1970's, helped him in his slow but steady ascent to the Papal Throne. Secondly, the flower of nard indicates the Universal Church. According to sources inside the Vatican, the Universal Church is now conspiring to overtake the Catholic Church, with itself to become the cult of "state" behind the impending global government as construed by the New World Order. This move is led by a certain type of Freemasonry, which specifically relates to the Lucife-rian thoughts of Madame Blavatsky, and is expressed via the symbols present on the coat of arms. They represent the mondialist program behind the reign of Pope Francis, and are fueled with ecumenism, secularisation, and a sort of Masonic doctrine. With its consequent shift to a Universal Church, and in step with modernity; open to inter-religious dialogue and globalist thought, it is a Church increasingly distant from tradition, and closer to what is defined as New Age. It is a Church that seeks to swallow up and hold all the future citizens of the New World Order in their long-anticipated One World Religion.

THE RING OF THE FISHERMAN

The Ring of the Fisherman is the main symbol of the Petrine ministry. The second symbol, in fact, is the pallium, but it is shared with the metropolitan Bishops. The word Metropolitan, used without any qualification, means the Bishop of the Metropolitan See, usually a styled Archbishop, and among those who share with the pope the ministry of oversight over the Bishops. The ring, instead, is a unique symbol of the pope's office, and it was formerly used to seal papal correspondence. Upon the death of a pope, it was traditionally destroyed to prevent the production of false documents, and more simply, to symbolize the end of the pontificate. Although the papal ring is no longer used as a seal for almost two centuries, even the ring belonging to Pope Benedict XVI, at the end of his papacy, was obliterated with two cross-cuts.

Pope Francis chose, for his papal ring, between sketches drawn for his predecessor, Paul VI, by the artist Enrico Manfrini, a known Freemason. This is where we find the symbol of Peter with the keys. This represents the power to administer the divine mercy. Francis' ring is made of gold coated silver, and not just gold. This is to appear more in line with his mission—sobering up the present decadence of the Church. Upon his choice, he was immediately praised for his apparent simplicity.¹⁴

The Pope only wears the Fisherman's Ring during papal celebrations. On other occasions, such as the Angelus, or the Hearings, he wears his bishop's ring, made of sterling silver. In the newspaper "Varese Report," it was described: *"The ring that has been chosen by Pope Francis is the work of Italian artist Enrico Manfrini, a sculptor very close to Paul VI and his secretary, Monsignor Pasquale Macchi from Varese. The model chosen by the new pope had been given by Manfrini to Monsignor Macchi. It was proposed to the pontiff by the master of the Pontifical Liturgical Celebrations, Monsignor Guido Marini, together with two other models. The Pope chose Manfrini's work. The artist from Romagna died at age 87, in 2004, in Milan, he was also known as 'the sculptor of the popes.'"*¹⁵

You can read the following news of Manfrini's membership to Freemasonry on the website of Evangelic Minister Giacinto Butindaro (giacintobutindaro.org/) "Both Enrico Manfrini and Pasquale Macchi turn out to be Masons, they are present in fact in the Masonic list presented in the Catholic website 'Non possumus' where we read the following about such list: Below is a list of Masons reprinted with some updates from the Bulletin de l'Occident Chretien NR.12, July, 1976, (Director Pierre Fautrad to Fye - 72490 Bourg Le Roi-France.) All the men on this list, if in fact they are Masons, are excommunicated by Canon Law number 2338. Every man's name present on the list is followed by his position, the date on which he was initiated into Masonry, his code number, and his code name, if known."

Macchi, Pasquale. Cardinal. Pope Paul's Prelate of Honour and Private Secretary until he was excommunicated for heresy by Pope Paul VI and was reinstated by Secretary of State Jean Villot and made a Cardinal (Author's Note: A former bodyguard of the Most Reverend Marcel-Francois Lefebvre C.S.Sp., who served from November 29, 1905 until March 25, 1991, recently confirmed that, in the 70's, Villot was a Freemason on the infamous Masonic list of Vatican Freemasons published by the magazine OP). 4-23-58; # 5463-2. "MAPA."

Manfrini, Enrico. Lay Consultor of Pontifical Commission of Sacred Art (laico consultore della Pontificia Commissione per l'arte sacra). 2-21-68; # 968-c. "MANE"¹⁶

The news that Manfrini, the creator of the new papal ring, was a Freemason, has gone unreported by the majority of the media, who are, of course, controlled by the Vatican. The faithful would probably be disappointed to learn that their Pope is wearing a ring designed by a Freemason—somebody who has been personally linked to the second Freemason in the history of the Papacy, Pope Montini. Pope Roncalli (Pope John XXIII) is considered to be the first Freemason to ascend to the throne of Peter. Pope Francis seems to appreciate this Masonic connection, or at least, he doesn't mind it. After all, he is a Jesuit, and Jesuits have always worked secretly, and hand-in-hand, with certain branches of Freemasonry—especially and specifically the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite.

BLACK SHOES VS. RED SHOES

To further support the well-crafted image of “humble Pope Francis” by Vatican manipulators, the absence of red vestments in his wardrobe also needs to be addressed. Francis and Benedict XVI could not be more different in their fashion choices. Francis is seemingly simple and innovative, while Benedict XVI was a traditionalist, and regal in every detail. In the eight years of his pontificate, Benedict XVI had, from the papal closet, dusted off certain items of clothing that had fallen into disuse. In fact, some of Benedict XVI's papal robes and vestments were last used by his distant predecessor, Pius IX, the last Pope-king of the Papal States. In 2007, the U.S. magazine Esquire, which mainly deals with men's fashion, devoted a long article on the clothing and accessories worn by Benedict XVI, in particular, the famous red shoes that were initially said to be designed by Prada, but in reality, were hand-crafted in Novara by the hands of the artisan Adriano Stefanelli.¹⁷

Francis, however, has instead been praised for his simplicity in wearing a white dress and black shoes. Unlike Benedict XVI, he never wears the papal red shoes, and has specifically requested that his shoemaker in Argentina continue to provide him with the old model of black shoes he usually wears. Why is that? Is it a stylistic choice, or is there something more to it?

Many have seen this choice as a gesture of poverty, and adherence to the Franciscan model. Beyond the quality craftsmanship, the red shoes—as well as the red cardinal's robe or sash—has a specific meaning that alludes to the blood of Christ. The popes wear the color red as a sign of royalty, and because red recalls the blood that should be required as the ultimate sacrifice for the Church.

Pope Benedict XVI has also restored the traditional use of three forms of the papal mozzetta. Only the red satin summer mozzetta was used by Pope John Paul II, for example. Benedict XVI made use of the winter papal mozzetta, and the paschal mozzetta, both of which were last worn by Pope Paul VI in the mid-20th century. The winter papal mozzetta is red velvet and trimmed with white ermine, and worn from December 8th, on the Pentecost, until Easter. The paschal mozzetta is made of white damask silk, trimmed with white ermine, and worn only during the Eastertide.¹⁸

After Ratzinger reintroduced the ancient traditions, and its use of fur, the Italian Association, The Defense of Animals and the Environment, began an online petition, signed by 1,900 people, asking him to stop wearing ermine on his hats and robes. Nevertheless, he continued to do so, shamelessly, until the end of his papacy, thereby ignoring such animal cruelty requests.

Even after the announcement of his election, not even when on the balcony overlooking the central loggia of St. Peter's Basilica, Pope Francis has not worn such vestments. Contrary to what has been practiced by all of his predecessors, he prefers to wear white on such glorious occasions.

To justify the choice to not wear the traditional vestments, Vatican Radio spread the rumor that Bergoglio replied angrily to the master of ceremonies, who wanted him to wear the skullcap, the gold cross, and so on, “you put them on, I will not wear them.” Such a statement suggest an effort to separate himself from orthodoxy. A desire to create a different image, one that is both simple and humble. Not only does Francis not wear anything red, he usually refers to himself not as “Pope,” but as the “Bishop of Rome.” Some might conclude that he is merely denying his own “kingship”—a sacrifice that every pope should be ready to do for the community of the faithful. These facts could also suggest that Francis is only a temporal ruler of the Petrine throne. As long as Benedict XVI is alive, for many, Pope Francis will be only the Bishop of Rome.

Even though this book is dedicated to Bergoglio, presumably the “Last Pope,” Ratzinger still needs to be considered a central figure. As a “Shadow Pope,” and from behind the scenes, consider Ratzinger the true occult manipulator of the Holy See. On May 1st, 2013, Ratzinger moved into his new apartment within the Vatican. This is another symbolic date, as on May the 1st, 1776, The Order of the Illuminati of Bavaria was founded. Ratzinger lives on the first floor of the monastery Mater Ecclesiae, behind the Basilica of St. Peter, and where the Pope Emeritus Benedict XVI can view the wonderful Vatican gardens. Every day he likes to walk among the trees, flowers and fountains, amidst what can be described as one of the most amazing gardens in the world. Usually with him on these daily walks, we find what many Vatican insiders report to be his lover, the always faithful (and good-looking) Monsignor Georg Gänswein, his secretary and prefect of the Pontifical Household, and officially at his side since 2003.

Bishop Gänswein, who has been seen on many official occasions next to Pope Francis, seems to have the key role of a trusted messenger between Ratzinger and Bergoglio, the “twin” Popes. For all intent and purposes, he lives with, and appears to be, Ratzinger’s companion.

The Pope Emeritus, now a “Simple Pilgrim,” lives in a strange reality. While professing an ascetic and monastic intent, at times, especially when he plays with his dogs or plays the piano, he will show his feminine side. Ratzinger’s piano-playing has been likened to the late George Liberace, who was born near Milwaukee, on May 16, 1919, and died of AIDS in Palm Springs, on February 4, 1987. Both are musicians and alleged homosexuals, and Lib-erace, like Ratzinger, never confessed his real sexual tendency. The stakes are much higher for the Pope Emeritus, because in doing so, Ratzinger could put an end to 2,000 years of hypocrisy.

The monastery where Ratzinger and Gänswein live, built under the direction of John Paul II, is not located far from Santa Marta, the residence where Bergoglio has chosen to live “in poverty,” instead of the Apostolic Palace, traditionally the residence of the popes. Thus, the two popes are conveniently close to each other. This would confirm, once again, the important role of Ratzinger, who, for many, remains not only the true Pope, but also the one who holds the secret keys to the financial side of the Vatican. The German weekly, Der Spiegel, spoke openly of money laundering by the infamous Vatican Bank (the IOR), and operations inside the IOR related to gangs and corporations. This is an issue that I will be discussing further in this book, issues that have never worried JP Morgan, nor its subsidiary in Frankfurt, Germany, who remain the main ally of Ratzinger.

In the last years of his pontificate, Ratzinger would have moved all the gold assets related to his person to this bank, and numerous secret accounts of the IOR, belonging to “all the usual suspects.” This was prior to his giving the all-clear for external inspections, as has been required several times in recent years by the international anti-money laundering authorities. Despite this, from a court in Rome, the Italian judiciary has begun an investigation on the subject, with an international rogatory letter, seeking knowledge regarding the movement of these assets from the Holy See to the homeland of Pope Ratzinger. The account in question at JP Morgan, in Frankfurt, has been put under the magnifying glass. In my humble opinion, because of the ostracism of the German authorities, who appear to be in league with their beloved Ratzinger, the success of this investigation has been only partial. Meanwhile, in March of 2014, the prosecutor of Rome sued the former director general of the IOR, Paolo Cipriani, and his deputy Massimo Tulli, for violating two articles of the Decree of 2007, on money laundering. Of course Ratzinger was not implicated in any way. In 2010, this investigation began with the seizure of 23 million euros. Euros that, upon input of the then leadership of the Institute for Works of Religion, were to be transferred... 20 million from a branch of the Italian bank, Credito Artigiano, to JP Morgan, Frankfurt, and 3 million to the Bank of Fucino, all in violation of the money laundering legislation. This episode initially led to an investigation of the then president of the IOR, Gotti Tedeschi, who is a dear friend to Ratzinger. Yet, in 2014, the newly established Cardinal commission, desired by Pope Francis, cleared Gotti Tedeschi of these accusations. Meanwhile, the mysteries involving the fate of the Vatican Bank continue.

THE “SANITARY CORDON” OF THE JESUITS

Bergoglio, as a Jesuit, and by virtue of the fourth vow of his Order, must give total obedience to the Pope, who may remain Benedict XVI. This might be the main reason Francis choose not to live in the papal apartments, even if, as rumored within the Vatican, that the choice has not been made for this reason alone. The choice could also depend on the fact that his own personal safety would be put into question by the numerous enemies, such as those who would have preferred someone like Cardinal Scola on the throne of Peter, who are present in those sacred halls. Within the walls of the Vatican, the so-called Leonine Walls, the Pope would, in fact, be more vulnerable than at his current residence at the Casa Santa Marta, a place where he is well-protected by what the Vatican correspondent of the newspaper, La Repubblica, Marco Ansaldo, called a few days after his election, the creation of a “sanitary cordon” issued by the Jesuits to protect Pope Bergoglio. Ansaldo wrote, *“The danger is alerted to such an extent that the Jesuits, the order to which Jorge Mario belongs, are thinking about issuing a sort of ‘sanitary cordon’ to support the Pope, until he makes his final choice. ‘These key strategic decisions must be done for him,’ said a senior member of the Society of Jesus.”*¹⁹

FIG.8. Benedict XVI with red satin robes and a skullcap. Taken from: http://it.wikipedia.org/wiki/Casi_di_pedofilia_all'interno_della_Chiesa_cattolica/ ‡ Archived from the internet July 28, 2014

This choice to stay in Santa Marta would, therefore, seem not to be tied to issues connected to his “Franciscan” style—a style that distinguish him from his predecessors—but is, instead, a decision taken by his loyalists, and linked to a factor of safety, and not that of a supposed vow of poverty in line with the original Saint Francis. This discretion is also confirmed by a senior member of the Knights of the Holy Sepulchre, an order traditionally close to the Jesuits, who have their headquarters across from the Headquarters of the Company of Jesus, on Borgo Santo Spirito in Rome.

Cav. Luciano Sciandra, who is also a member of the Pontifical Equestrian Order of St. Sylvester Pope, has, on two separate occasions, personally told me that every time the Pope eats, there are three Jesuits present who intermittently play the role of trustworthy “food taster” to the Holy Father, who ensure that there isn’t an “unpleasant surprise” in his meal. This tradition, if revived by Pope Francis, would carry us back to the dark ages, when the rulers had to protect themselves against everyone and everything.

Long ago, there was the job of “food taster,” the person who enjoyed the fantastic food of the rulers, and the delight of his palate, but who could run into the errors of a careless cook, or even worse, consume dishes spiked with deadly poison. That, according to many historians, may have killed more than one pontiff. Such historical footnotes would not be lost on Pope Francis. There are also recent revelations, as this made by a magistrate, who seems to worry, at least in appearance, about a hypothetical revenge of the ‘Ndrangheta (the Calabrian Mafia) against Pope Francis, “The Pope wants to clean up the scene, but this is not liked by the ‘Ndrangheta.”

Perhaps such a move is not agreed upon by his colleague Ratzinger, who has always had good relations with the leaders of power in Calabria, where the secret, and at times irregular, Lodges of Freemasonry are prevalent. They rule the scene when connected to people like the previously mentioned Mons. Camaldo, who was also mentioned in the press for his Masonic links in the area. Perhaps Ratzinger, resulting from the full-scale Jesuit/Papal investigation into his past actions, found himself in a difficult situation, and ordered his friends down to Calabria. Perhaps this was a way to send a strong gesture to his neighbor, Pope Bergoglio, in true mafioso style.

Could Pope Francis be targeted by gangs? It is a most credible hypothesis, at least according to Nicola Gratteri, the deputy prosecutor of Reggio Calabria, interviewed by the Fatto Quotidiano, which warns:

“He who has been feeding the power of the Church is nervous. If the bosses could, they would stop him: he is a danger for them.’ According to the magistrate, Bergoglio is in danger because he is dismantling centers of economic power in the Holy See the bosses relied on. Before they kill in the ‘Ndrangheta, their members go to pray. The priests will continually go to the bosses house to drink coffee. I did not find one of their bunkers where there is not present, an image of the Holy Mary or of Saint Michael the Archangel, said Gratteri, 88% of the mafioso declare to be religious. They turn to the Virgin Mary for protection. They think to be righteous. The point is that Pope Francis, Gratteri said, is working against luxury. He aims to make a total cleaning. The Mafia might not like that. The financial side is worried by this behavior, continued the magistrate, those who feed from the power and wealth that come directly from the Church, are nervous, agitated.”

In short, according to Gratteri, the author of a book recently released with the symbolic title of Acqua Santissima, or “Holy Water,”²⁰ he states “The danger for the Pope could be concrete.”

Gratteri concludes: “I do not know if organized crime is in a position to do something like this, but there is certainly reflection on it. It could be dangerous.”²¹

I believe, therefore, that Bergoglio has no intention in the near future to live at his official residence, at least unless his enemies were eliminated in a single night. This seems rather unlikely in the age of transparency, where the physical elimination of a number of high senior members of the Vatican hierarchy would definitely set off a thousand speculations in the media. There also remains the fact that Ratzinger, as long as he remains alive, still exerts that “royal” power that Pope Francis will not receive in its fullness, until the death of his predecessor. In conclusion, red shoes, ancient skullcaps, the official apostolic apartment, and other “gifts” could be used by Francis only after the passing of Ratzinger. This may never be for Pope Francis and his Jesuits, who, in the best tradition of St. Ignatius, believe identity and true power are much more important than appearance. Jesuits want to be the ultimate spiritual controllers of the New World Order, and leave temporal power in the hands of groups like the Sionist, or China, to whom the Jesuits have a particular connection that goes back to the very early stages of their order, through people like Father Matteo Ricci SJ (1552-1661). After almost 500 years, the Jesuits have finally reached the top of the power pyramid in the Vatican. With the help of Judaism and Freemasonry, now more corrupted by greed and materialism than ever before, this is an opportunity to finally implement their globalist plan. This can be the only real goal that interests Pope Jorge Mario Bergoglio. The White Pope, who is always in line with the Black Pope, who is the Superior General of the Society of Jesus, Adolfo Nicolas Pachon, reportedly until 2016. (Villamuriel de Cerrato, April 29, 1936).

Let us recall that the Society of Jesus was banned in Europe seventy times. The order was even suppressed in the Vatican, on July 21st, 1773, by Pope Clement XIV, with the brief Dominus ac Redemptor, for its scandals, freedoms, heresies, disturbing compromises, political intrigue, and finally, theories and practices that belong to people of witchcraft, not of the Church. The profane crowds are ignorant of such misdeeds carried out during the existence of the Church. They are still willing to gather in huge crowds to applaud Pope Francis wherever he goes. I will, instead, follow Bergoglio's advice, as given on several occasions in public speeches, to go against the current.²² That, for me, means criticizing this dangerous Jesuit theater of compromise, evil and falsehood—whatever the cost!

These are not simply the words of an author, but from someone who knows, very well, the Jesuit Order... who still, from time to time, try to have a dialogue with me. They have offered me positions of responsibility in their elite circles on more than one occasion in the past. They admire me, at least to a certain extent, for my mission in search of purity. Even in the Vatican, an institution that seems long lost, there remain good people of true spiritual faith and understanding.

“THE ISLAND OF SILENCE” AND THE SECRETS OF POPE BERGOGLIO

Beginning on March 24th, 1976, and lasting until the beginning of the 1980's, within the Catholic hierarchy, in what became Argentina's infamous military dictatorship, there is evidence of an unusual role played by Bergoglio. The book The Island of Silence: The Church's role in the Argentine dictatorship,²³ originally published in Argentina in 2005, and followed in Italy in March 2006, a year after the conclave that chose Ratzinger over Bergoglio by only a few votes, implicates Bergoglio in the CIA supported coup. According to Verbitsky's investigation, in the early 1970s, at age of 36, Bergoglio became the youngest Provincial Superior of the Society of Jesus in Argentina. In becoming the head of the Congregation, he inherited a lot of influence and a lot of power. During that time the religious institution played an important role in overseeing all ecclesiastically-based communities active within the slums of Buenos Aires. All Jesuit priests who worked in the area were under its dependencies. So, it was in February of 1976, a month before the coup, that Bergoglio asked two of his Jesuits who were working in the communities to leave immediately, and to abandon their work in the slums. Their names were Orlando Yorio and Francisco Jalics, and they refused his order. They did not desire to leave all of the poor people who relied on them so much. Verbitsky wrote about how, after the refusal of his two priests, Bergoglio reacted with two immediate steps. First, without even informing them, he excluded them from the Society of Jesus. Then, he lobbied the Archbishop of Buenos Aires to deprive them permission to deliver Mass. A few days after the coup that installed the dictatorship, the two were kidnapped.

The two priests suggested that Bergoglio's revocation and subsequent acts were a signal to the military... a green light to act against them. Meaning, specifically, that the protection of the Church had ceased to exist for them. This hypothesis, which is confirmed by a number of documents found by Verbitsky, places the blame on Bergoglio, who is accused to have reported the two priests as subversive to the dictatorship. In those years in Argentina, the meaning of "subversive" referred, in fact, to people of all levels: university professors, supporters of Peronism, those who sang songs of protest, women who dared to wear skirts, those traveling around armed to the teeth, and those involved in bringing awareness of their rights and freedoms to the poor and uneducated. After six months of torture at the notorious Navy School of Mechanics (in Spanish, Escuela de Mecánica de la Armada, commonly referred to by the acronym ESMA for Escuela Superior de Mecánica de la Armada), thanks to pressure from the Vatican, the two men were released. According to the reconstruction by Verbitsky, it was only the involvement of the Vatican, and not Bergoglio, that allowed the release of the two priest-prisoners.

Verbitsky writes:

"Orlando Yorio never fully recovered. He worked in the Vicariate of Quilmes, but feeling threatened, he settled in Uruguay, where he died in 2000. Sometime after the kidnapping he recalls his relationship with Bergoglio with these words. 'I don't have any reason to think he did anything for our freedom, but rather the contrary.' The two priests were released thanks to the intervention of Emilio Mignone, and the intercession of the Vatican and not for the conduct of Bergoglio. On the contrary, 'he was the one who delivered them there,' maintains Angelica Sosa de Mignone.

In 1990, during one of his return visits to Argentina, Jalics had a meeting at the institute "Faith & Prayer," Via Oro 2760, with the above mentioned Emilio Fermín Mignone and his wife, Angélica Sosa. He told them that "Bergoglio opposed the fact that once he was free he could stay in Argentina, and talked to all the Bishops so they would not accept him in their churches."²⁴

As of this writing, the Hungarian Jalics lives in a house of prayer in Germany. Responding to a request for a telephone interview, said, "It's been a quarter of a century, I feel very distant from all this. Why reawaken memories that are so painful, when responding to a request by telephone."²⁵

Yet, a few years earlier, Jalics had confessed to the same journalist that Bergoglio had spread the rumor that the two priests were on the side of the guerrillas, thus voluntarily exposing them to the kidnapping. Yorio added: "I don't have any evidence to think that Bergoglio wanted to free us, quite the contrary. He informed my brothers that I had been shot, so they could psychologically prepare my mother." According to Yorio's testimony, Bergoglio would have "washed his hands" of their abduction, and even was present during a meeting with the prisoners at the Navy headquarters.²⁶ Bergoglio, however, has always denied such accusations: "I never had a way to label them as guerrillas or communists, among other things because I never believed that they were"²⁷

Among the documents in the archives of Ministry of Foreign Affairs collected by Verbitsky, we find one that refers to a specific episode. In 1919, after that terrible episode, Father Francisco Jalics fled to Germany, and then asked that his passport be renewed in order to avoid going back to Argentina. Bergoglio offered to act as an intermediary, pretending to plead the cause of his priest, but the application was (of course) rejected. A note appended to the documentation by the Director of the Office of Catholic Worship, then a body within the Argentinian Ministry of Foreign Affairs, states: "This priest is a subversive." Another document, a classified document addressing the direction of the cult, present in wallet 9, B2B file, in the archives of the Archbishop of Buenos Aires, would show even more clearly the role of Bergoglio: “Despite the good will of Father Bergoglio, the Argentinian Company” (Author’s note: of the Jesuits) “did not cleanse inside. The smart Jesuit for some time remained on the sidelines, but now with great support from the outside coming from some Third World bishops they have begun a new phase.” What follows is the epilogue within the Italian edition of the Island of Silence, written by Verbitsky one year after the election of Benedict XVI, when it seemed that Bergoglio could no longer reach the Throne of Peter:

“The first edition of this book (The Island of Silence), to which I have worked for over fifteen years, went to press in Buenos Aires in February 2005, when Pope John Paul II, who then died on the 2nd of April, was hospitalized in Rome. According to Italian newspapers, the Argentine Cardinal Jorge Bergoglio was the only serious opponent of the German Joseph Ratzinger, who was elected on April 19 and took the name of Benedict XVI. In those days, the military bishop of Buenos Aires said that the Minister of Health of Argentina deserved to be thrown into the sea with a millstone around his neck for handing out condoms and having expressed himself in favor of the decriminalization of abortion. ... When the bishop Baseotto tied the sentence with a biblical millstone around the ministerial neck, President Néstor Kirchner urged the Vatican to appoint a new holder of the Military Bishopric of Argentina” (Author’s Note: in Spanish Obispado Castrense de Argentina). “When the Apostolic Nuncio was informed that there was no reason for doing so, the government revoked the consent lent to the appointment of Baseotto and deprived him of his salary for having claimed methods of dictatorship. The Vatican ignored both ‘the interpretation that they wanted to give to the gospel citation’ and the presidential authority to revoke the appointment of the military bishop.

“Reasons to doubt that Baseotto naively chose a biblical quote about people thrown into the sea, are plenty. His first act was to visit the Deputy to the Supreme Court of Justice, to argue the need to close the court processes related to the Dirty War of the military against the Argentinean society. Its secretary-general in the Military Bishopric (the same post that in 1976 was in the hands of Emilio Grasselli) is the priest Alberto Zanchetta Angel, who was chaplain of Esma during the years of dictatorship and who has demonstrated detailed knowledge of what was happening there. ... After turning on the public controversy with his words, Baseotto referred to the events that took place, it is said, during the famous military dictatorship. No member of the Episcopate must complain about the provocative phrase, because the whole Church in Argentina continues to entrench itself in an island of silence.

“Bergoglio replied to the book through its official spokesman, Father Guillermo Marco. He said he had saved the life of priests Orlando Yorio and Francisco Jalics, and that any assertion to the contrary was a disgrace. ... to discredit my investigation. He said that Yorio could not refute the claims made in the book because he was dead, that my source on Jalics was anonymous and that there was a picture of a friendly meeting with the Hungarian priest and Bergoglio during a visit of Jalics to Buenos Aires. ... Neither Bergoglio nor his close friends have said a word about the irrefutable evidence of the duplicity of which Yorio and Jalics accuse him of. Yorio was still alive when I published the first interview in which he accused Bergoglio, in 1999. He sent me a few lines entitled, ‘Thanks,’ and we kept in touch until his death. ... The son of a landowner and Hungarian army officer, Jalics states in his book, Ejercicios de Contemplation that his father was poisoned at the headquarters of the communist political police, and that his mother taught him not to hate, so 'I learned what reconciliation means.' In speaking of his abduction he says: 'Many people who had extreme right-wing political beliefs do not take kindly to our presence in the slums. Interpreting the fact that we lived there as a support for the guerrillas, and proposing to denounce us as terrorists. We knew the origin and the slander of those responsible. I went to talk to the person in question and explained that he was playing with our lives. He promised me that he would tell the military we were not terrorists. From statements made subsequently by an officer and thirty documents to which I was able to access later on, we were able to determine beyond a shadow of a doubt that the man had not kept his promise and that, on the contrary, had filed a false complaint to the military.' During the five months of the seizure, his anger was directed more to 'the man who had made that false complaint against him,' then to his captors.

"That man was Bergoglio. His identity is revealed in a letter Yorio wrote from Rome on November 24, 1977, to the assistant general of the Society of Jesus, Father Moura. The brothers and nephews of Yorio gave me a copy, in a sign of gratitude, for the publication of the book.

"Given the continuing rumors about my participation in the guerrilla war, Jalics addressed again the issue with father Bergoglio. Father Bergoglio recognized the seriousness of the offense and has pledged to put a stop the malicious talk in the order and urged him to talk to people of the Armed Forces to prove his innocence. 'Since the Provincial did nothing to defend us, we began to doubt his honesty'... In our correspondence, Yorio gave me a description of the duplicity of his former Provincial, which coincides with the one that emerges from the documents that years later I discovered in the archive of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Argentina. In the climate of fear and denunciation established within the Church and society, the priests who worked with the poor 'were demonized, viewed with suspicion within their own institutions and accused of subverting the social order.' In that context, 'they could give us permission secretly to celebrate Mass in private, but does not set us free from the prohibition and public infamy of not being able to exercise the priesthood publicly, thus giving the forces of repression a pretext for making us disappear.'

"After his release, Jalic traveled to the United States and then to Germany. Despite the distance, 'lies, slander and unjust actions did not cease'... Many people linked to the Church and the Society of Jesus gave me additional and confirmatory data regarding this. One of them is the Irish priest Patrick Rice, who in 1976 was at the top the community of the small monks at the Gospel in Argentina. Kidnapped at the end of that year in Buenos Aires, they questioned him without truce, they burned his face and hands with cigarettes and made him swallow high pressure water up to the limit of his endurance. Other priests of his brotherhood disappeared, but Rice was able to escape with the help of the Irish Government and traveled around the world to denounce the situation in Argentina.

"In 1979 he learned that Massera,²⁸ who resigned from the Navy and was involved in political activity, was participating in a workshop held at Georgetown University in Washington conducted by two academics who later played a leading role in the future U.S. government of Ronald Reagan: Jeane Kirk-patrick and Eliot Abrams. While Massera made his speech, Rice and an American priest interrupted him with questions about the repression of bishops, nuns, priests and lay Christians. Massera could not continue and left the room in anger. Even Georgetown University belongs to the Jesuits. Patrick Rice argues that 'given the structure of the Church, it is unthinkable that this invitation could be left without the initiative or at least the consent of the Provincial Argentine Society of Jesus.' Also in this case, the Jesuit Provincial was the then priest Jorge Mario Bergoglio.”²⁹

In his first press conference following the election of Bergoglio, his spokesman Father Federico Lombardi, discarded old slanders of the anti-clerical critics, and dismissed the allegations concerning the actions of Bergoglio as the former provincial head of the Society of Jesus during the Argentine dictatorship, and especially the claim that he played a role in the disappearance of his two priests. In a public statement made on the 15th of March, 2013, following the election of his former superior, the old Jesuit priest clearly inferred that Jalics had reconciled with Bergoglio. He described how, years after the kidnapping, they met up and co-celebrated Mass together: “I have been reconciled to the events and from my side consider them closed.” Basically, he was forced by his own order to retract his previous position. Reconciliation is, for Catholics, a sacrament. What resonates from the words of the elderly priest elude to his being at peace in his heart regarding the past, and that he will not go back now that Bergoglio is Pope. He does not, however, deny the facts, as is narrated in his book of meditation exercises called Ejercicios de Contemplation (published in 1994), material that has been widely cited in Verbitsky’s own book.

One thing is for certain, and that is that both Jalics and Orlando Yori left the Jesuit Order in 1976. When later offered to be reinstated, only the still obedient Jalics accepted the proposal. Yorio did not, and only Jalics is alive today. Most likely because of his choice to stay a Jesuit, a loyal servant of the papacy, no matter any judgement he might personally have against Bergoglio.

Following a press conference by Vatican spokesman, Father Lombardi SJ, regarding Bergoglio’s infamous involvement in the Argentinian dictatorship, Verbitsky replied to the Argentinian newspaper, Página 12, and, among other things, pointed out Bergoglio’s involvement in the notorious militancy of the Guardia de Hierro (Spanish for “Iron Guard”), the Argentinian right wing group active in the early 1970s, whose findings reveal:

“In these pages we analyze in depth, the case four years before Kirchnerism came into government. The first article, published in April 1999, ‘Con el mazo dando,’ said that the new Archbishop of Buenos Aires depending on the source you consult, is the most generous and intelligent man who has ever said Mass in Argentina. Or is he a Machiavellian villain who betrayed his brothers for an insatiable desire for power? Perhaps the explanation lies in the fact that Bergoglio brings together things that do not always go together: extreme conservatism in matters of dogma which manifest a clear social unrest. In either respect it resembles the person who placed him at the head of the country's main diocese, Pope Karol Wojtyla.”³⁰

Verbitsky concluded:

“During the investigation, I found by chance in the archives of the Foreign Ministry, a folder with documents, in my opinion, that put an end to the discussion on the role of Bergoglio in the relation to Yorio and Jalics. I tried to find a notary who would certify the placement in the archive, whose director at the time, Minister Carlos Dellepiane, kept in his safe to prevent them from being stolen or destroyed. The story told in that folder sounds familiar. Released from prison in November 1976, Jalics went to Germany. In 1979, his passport had expired and Bergoglio asked the Clerk that it be renewed without him returning to his homeland. The Director of the Catholic Cult of the Chancellery, Anselmo Orcoyen, recommended to refuse the request ‘because of the background of the applicant,’ which was provided by the same father Bergoglio, who signed the note, with a special recommendation that this request not be accepted. He said that Jalics had conflicts of obedience and a dissolving activity in female religious congregations, and was ‘imprisoned’ in ESMA together with Yorio, ‘suspected of being a contact of the guerrillas.’

“That is to say that the same charges that have been expressed by both Yorio and Jalics (and confirmed by many priests and lay people that I interviewed) show that Bergoglio, while pretending to help, was accusing them behind their backs. It is logical that this fact from 1979 is not sufficient for a legal conviction for the kidnapping of 1976. The document signed by Orcoyen and was not even included in the practice, but indicates Bergoglio’s course of action. Adding the Director of Worship in a conspiracy against the Catholic Church would be too much. For this reason, Bergoglio and his spokesman are silent on these documents and prefer to discredit those who found, preserved and published them.”³¹

The attempted legal conviction mentioned by Verbitsky in the end began on the 15th of April, 2005, when a human rights lawyer filed a criminal complaint against Jorge Mario Bergoglio, the then Archbishop of Buenos Aires, and who would become Pope Francis in 2013. As a superior in the Society of Jesus of Argentina, he accused him of involvement related to the kidnapping.³²

In 2011, Ms. De la Cuadra, daughter of Ms. Alicia Zubasnabar De la Cuadra, the first president of the “Abuelas de Plaza de Mayo,” due to the kidnapping of many members of the De la Cuadra family in the late 1970s, asked Tribunal 6 in Argentina for a declaration from Jorge Bergoglio inquiring why he delivered a false testimony to another tribunal (in the trials regarding the priests Jalic and Dorio one year earlier) while stating that he knew nothing about the kidnapping of children in the late 1990s. “The De la Cuadra family search led the brothers exiled in Italy to ask for assistance from Pedro Arrupe,”³³ who was the twenty-eighth Superior General (from 1965 to 1983). “Arrupe handed the task to Jorge Bergoglio. Finally, a La Plata suffragan bishop named Mario Picchi took the matter to the intelligence services. ‘The girl is with a good family,’ was Picchi’s message. He would later be revealed to be a collaborator.”³⁴

According to some commentators, due to Ms. De la Cuadra legal claim, Jorge Bergoglio will not make further visits to Argentina as Pope Francis. This is also being reported by Kevin Annett, field secretary of the International Tribunal into Crimes of Church and State (ITCCS.Org). Annett’s investigation on behalf of the ITCCS revealed that a former Argentine government official is scheduled to testify against Pope Bergoglio regarding his role in child trafficking during the Junta government and the Dirty War in Argentina.³⁵

Of course I cannot vouch for these claims, but it sure looks like Bergoglio’s Argentinean past may have included more the one skeleton in his closet. And it is for this reason that Father Jalics was invited to the Vatican October 5th, 2013, to meet again with Bergoglio, his ex-Father Superior in the Jesuit Order. The Pope hoped to close this dark episode from his past, and give the media a completely different spin on the whole affair. A week later the Vatican media wrote how nice it was for the Pope to hug and meet Jalics, the old Jesuit who they said, “Took sometime to recognize publicly the good intentions of his Jesuit Superior at the time.” As a loyal Jesuit, Jalics released a further statement saying that, “Orlando Iorio and he had not been denounced to the authorities by Bergoglio.” The Vatican media offensive was up and running, and Avvenire, the Vatican newspaper, gladly announced a new book by Nello Scavo, in which Pope Francis was suddenly addressed as a person who saved the lives of many during the Argentinian dictatorship. The book that was published by Editrice Missionaria Italiana, which of course belongs to the Catholic Church, is subtitled; “La lista di Bergoglio. I salvati da Francesco durante la dittatura. La storia mai raccontata,” and translates as: “The list of Bergoglio. The ones that were saved by Bergoglio during the dictatorship.”

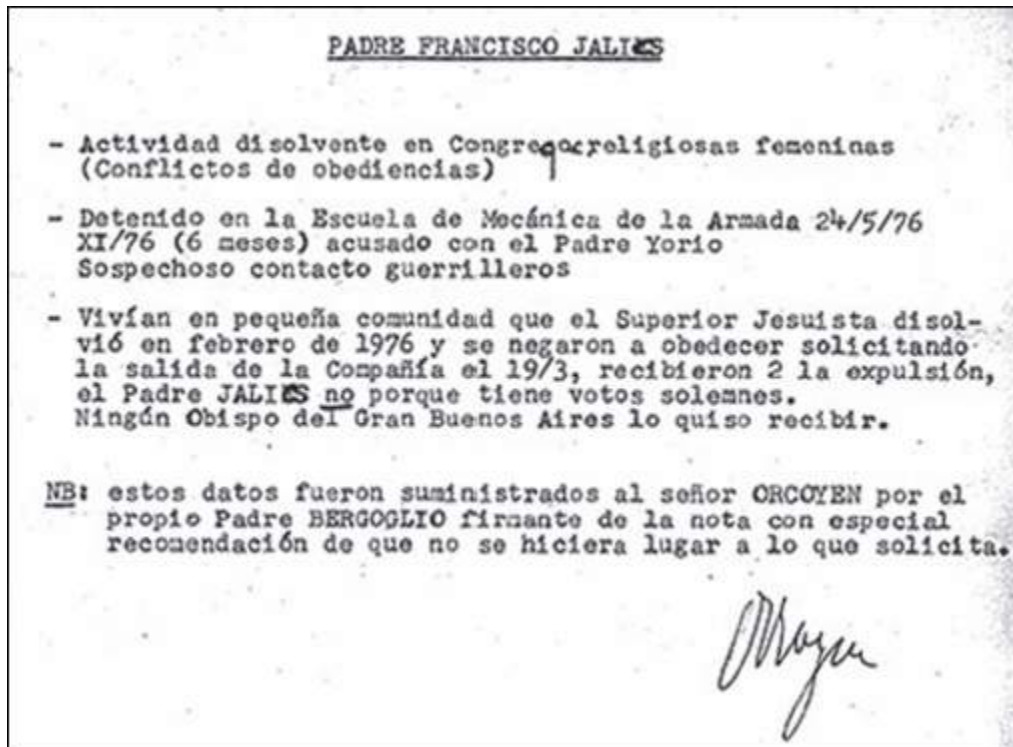

FIG.9. The document found and published by journalist Horacio Verbitsky shows how Bergoglio had two priests accused of contacts with guerrillas. Source: <http://www.pagina12.com.ar/diario/elpais/1-215961-2013-03-17.html> ‡ Archived from the internet 15, July 2014.

The book includes a detailed account of the 3-hour, 50-minute interrogation of the then Archbishop Bergoglio of Buenos Aires, as given to the Argentinian Police in 2010, and regarding the human rights violations during the dictatorship. There is also testimony by the Jesuit Juan Carlos Scannone, a very good friend of Bergoglio, who stated to the author that Bergoglio was responsible for creating a clandestine network during the dictatorship to save the persecuted.³⁶

The majority of people in Argentina were not aware, but Father Scannone SJ cleverly stated that in those days it was very important that no one know what Bergoglio was doing to forward the success of such an operation. Adolfo Maria Perez Esquivel, who won the Argentinian Nobel Peace Prize in 1980, the day after the election of Pope Francis, stated that Bergoglio could not be considered in any way close to the dictatorship, and had nothing to do with the Yorio-Jalics case.³⁷ In the preface to Nello Salvo's book, Esquivel conveniently claimed that Bergoglio had helped a hundred people to escape from the dictatorship.³⁸ Unfortunately, the names of these people are not known (but I am sure the Vatican will find them soon). History is written by the winners, so let's hope, at least, that my work will provide a trace of truth for my readers.

In his book The Island of Silence, Horacio Verbitsky picked up the term "Silence" from the inscription on a sign placed at the arrival of a brainwashing facility built for the rebels to the Argentinian regime. The facility was conveniently based inside the "ex" mansion and resting place of a Cardinal, and was located on an island in the Paraná delta near the town of Tiger in Argentina. On the island, detainees were forced into a mysterious program of "disintoxication and re-education."

A SHORT BIO OF HORACIO VERBITSKY

Excerpted from Wikipedia

Born in 1942, Horacio Verbitsky is an Argentine left-wing investigative journalist and author with a past history as a leftist guerrilla (i.e. the Montoneros).³⁹ In the early 1990s, he reported on a series of corruption scandals in the administration of President Carlos Menem, which eventually led to the resignations or firings of many of Menem's ministers. In 1994, he reported on the confessions of naval officer Adolfo Scilingo, documenting torture and executions by the Argentine military during the 1976-83 Dirty War. His books on both the Menem administration and the Scilingo confessions became national bestsellers. He writes for the Argentine newspaper Página/12 and heads the Center for Legal and Social Studies (CELS), an Argentine human-rights organization.

Early Life

Verbitsky was born in Buenos Aires, Argentina. Since 1960, he has earned national acclaim for his writings and political columns, focusing primarily in the unmasking of political corruption and the promotion of a free press, denouncing any government policies that may affect the constitutional rights of free speech to journalists and citizens. He has also become known under the nickname el perro or "the dog," for his determination in uncovering stories.

During the 1970s he was a member of Montoneros, a Peronist guerrilla organization that was engaged in terrorist activities in Argentina.

“Swiftgate” and “Milkgate”

In 1991, Verbitsky came to national attention when he reported in Página/12 that U.S. Ambassador Terence Todman had complained to the Argentine government that Emir Yoma, a brother-in-law and advisor of president Carlos Menem, had asked for a bribe from the U.S. corporation Swift Armour meatpacking. The story soon became a national scandal known as “Swiftgate.”

Verbitsky later played a role in reporting “Milkgate,” a scandal in which Menem’s private secretary Miguel Angel Vicco was linked to the sale of spoiled milk to a government agency, forcing his resignation. In 1992, Verbitsky published a compilation of the Menem administration’s scandals titled I Steal for the Crown, a quip reportedly from Interior Minister Jose Luis Manzano. The book became a national bestseller. Menem was eventually forced to change half his cabinet in an attempt to regain the lost political credibility.

Verbitsky was approached on the subway in November, 1994 by naval officer Adolfo Scilingo, who offered to discuss human rights abuses by the Argentine military during the 1976-83 Dirty War. During that time, Scilingo was stationed at the Navy Petty-Officers School of Mechanics (ESMA), which was the site of some of the worst violations. He met with Verbitsky for several taped sessions telling him “We did terrible things there, worse than the Nazis.” Most notably, Scilingo admitted that the military had disposed of unwanted prisoners by throwing them naked, drugged but still alive from airplanes into the Atlantic Ocean.

Verbitsky has written for the newspapers El País (Spain); The Wall Street Journal and The New York Times (USA). In 2004, his colleague Julio Nudler accused Verbitsky of defending the government after Verbitsky played down that Página/12 refused to publish Nudler’s corruption allegations against Alberto Fernández who was the chief of the cabinet of Néstor Kirchner.

He made news in March 2013, due to his critical book about Pope Francis’ involvement with two priests who were tortured during the Dirty War. Others have denied this claim.

Because Verbitsky had the former president Carlos Menem impeached with corruption allegations, Verbitsky was criticized for judging similar allegations against the governments of Néstor Kirchner and Cristina Fernández de Kirchner, but not with the same critical attitude. Verbitsky admitted that he has not the same critical attitude towards the Kirchner governments because he agrees largely with their politics.

Chapter: III

NWO AND THE ISLAMIC CRISIS OF THE VATICAN

THE TRANSFORMATION OF RATZINGER

A *brilliant mind can also change brilliantly,*¹ declared Wolfgang Beinert, a former student and colleague of Joseph Ratzinger, and his successor to the Chairs of Dogmatic Theology, and History of Dogma, at Regensburg University. With this ironic statement, Beinert greeted the arrival of Pope Benedict XVI, a known advocate of globalist ideology, and, in turn, foreshadowed his decision to abdicate later, as well as explain fluctuating reports regarding the Pope's up and down relations with Ecclesiastical Freemasonry. A "brilliant mind" is an interesting choice of words, as Benedict XVI has proven to be a fragile navigator of the Church, and more sensitive to theology than to the organization of the "flock." He always appeared more comfortable among his books and his studies than being among the faithful. He always seemed fragile, which begs the question, has his fragility made him a target for blackmail?

During the course of Ratzinger's pontificate, he completely changed his position on various matters, including the delicate issue of globalization and the New World Order, as I would now like to demonstrate. Writing, back in the year 2000, in the Italian newspaper Avvenire, Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger slammed the UN's proposals for a "New World Order." He targeted with special criticism the UN's goal of depopulation. The Cardinal, Prefect of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, noted that the philosophy coming from the UN conferences and the Millennium Summit in those years was deplorable. Cardinal Ratzinger stated: "proposes (and) strategies to reduce the number of guests at the table of humanity, so that the presumed happiness (we) have attained will not be affected" He criticized this philosophy specifically for "not being concerned with the care of those who are no longer productive or who can no longer hope for a determined quality of life." Cardinal Ratzinger also noted on that occasion, "at the base of this New World Order," is the ideology of "women's empowerment," which he erroneously sees as, "the principal obstacles to (a woman's) fulfillment of family and maternity." The cardinal advised that, *"At this stage of the development of the new image of the new world, Christians—and not just them, but they, even more than others—have the duty to protest."*² It seems the only thing he will not comprise are his views on faith, that remain similar to those he had when he was head of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith. During the seven and a half years of his pontificate, Ratzinger never compromised his theology, navigating against the rocks of his Church that, in the aftermath of his abdication, he called "spoiled." Ratzinger, the cardinal who apparently did not want to become pope, became a Pope who repeatedly expressed his desire to withdraw, and who preferred to pray and oversee the power of the Church from behind the curtains. In the end, he did exactly what he wanted to do from the start: resign. He failed in his rendezvous with history. And, by lacking the skills of public leadership, he instead wound up involved in one crisis after another. He was seemingly incapable of leading the congregation throughout these difficult times, where there existed a dramatic economic situation complicated by a set of international equilibriums arranged by the New World Order.

On the geopolitical front, and contrary to the performance of John Paul II, Ratzinger has exposed the limits of his ability. In his previous position during the pontificate of John Paul II, as even the BBC remarked after his election, he earned unflattering nicknames such as "The Pope's Enforcer" and "God's Rottweiler."³ Before his ascension to the Papal throne, Ratzinger remained on the margins of public scrutiny, but was described by Michael Baigent (1948-2013), a well-known author of Freemasonry, as “in effect the Vatican’s ‘Theologian in Chief,’ and as such, responsible for much of the Church’s policy. As one might expect from a high-ranking prelate and former theology professor Ratzinger is extremely clever, if not particularly imaginative. He is articulate, frequently even eloquent. His arguments are pointed, focused, lucid, consistent and within their own circumscribed frame of reference—ostensibly persuasive, even if they do involve elements of sophistry.”⁴

Pushed by public criticism, Ratzinger attempted to make a transparent move to reshuffle IOR finances. Subsequently, he was blocked by Tarcisio Bertone, his own Secretary of State, and as a result, lost his supposed reform momentum. Why did Benedict XVI, usually so careful to measure out words and actions, consistent when condemning the excesses of capitalism, nihilism, and materialism, abandon his own friend, Ettore Gotti Tedeschi, who at the time was president of the Vatican bank? Was he actually working towards a more ethical and transparent IOR? Or, did he fall into the deception of the IOR’s infamous board of directors?

What made Ratzinger change his opinion on such a heated topic like the New World Order? In the homily carried out during Christmas 2005, a few months after his election to the papal throne, Ratzinger suddenly gave an open invitation to embrace the New World Order, whose underlying ideology was born and developed in Protestant circles, and is blatantly anti-Christian. What happened to Ratzinger after his election to the See of Peter? Who or what caused him to radically change his ideas and push him to eventually “come down” from the Cross, and thus abandon the Christian model of total sacrifice generally required in his position as pope? To leave the Petrine ministry means, in fact, to escape from the example of Jesus, who has made the divine self-sacrifice, by offering his blood for the salvation of mankind.

As discussed in the chapter THE TRANSFORMATION OF RATZINGER, in the introduction to New World Disorder, by Michel Schooyans,⁵ and released in Italy in the year 2000, the year of the Catholic Jubilee, Ratzinger use of the term “globalist ideology” gives us a very different image of Ratzinger’s views on the New World Order prior to his Pontificate, as did his statement against the UN that same year.

According to this interpretation, Benedict XVI's final acts could be viewed as cowardly. In the words of the Middle Age poet Dante, a "great refusal" was used by his predecessor Celestine V. This position is completely incompatible with the role of Vicar of Christ on Earth. We read in the Gospel of Mark (Mark 10: 42-45):

*"42: But Jesus called them to Himself and said to them, 'You know that those who are considered rulers over the Gentiles rule over them, and the great ones exercise authority over them.' 43: Yet it shall not be so among you; but whoever desires to become great among you shall be your servant. 44: And whoever of you desires to be first shall be slave of all. 45: For even the Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give His life, a ransom for many."*⁶

Jesus established that his throne was a cross, and his crown was made of thorns. His Vicar should follow His example even at the cost of martyrdom. Arrogating to themselves a power against evil, and not just that of another temporal ruler. As we are reminded by the renowned Italian Catholic writer, Antonio Socci,⁷ a servus servorum Dei,⁸ the Pope should not be, a "king 'or' chief." During his pontificate, Benedict XVI has many times repeated that the ministry of Peter is itself mysteriously linked to the sacrifice, and yet he decided to step down from that throne, seemingly, in a hurry.

The esteemed Catholic intellectual Enrico Maria Radaelli, a Professor of Philosophy and Director at the Department of Esthetic Philosophy of International Science and Commonsense Association, who has always opposed the resignation of Ratzinger, wrote after Ratzinger's decision: "IT IS NOT YET TIME FOR A NEW POPE BECAUSE HE WILL BE AN ANTIPOPE," explaining that:

"The office held by a Pope is charged by which the sacrifice is his indestructible nature and absolute condition prior to all other considerations. ... The cross is the status of every Christian: Christ, is the crossroad between God and man, the Imago Dei,⁹ from heaven, to represent God for men, and for men to represent God on earth; he is the exemplary model to all of his followers. There is not a follower of Christ, there is no "Christian" to which the cross can be lightened, nor removed: St. Paul for example, pleaded with the Lord three times to lift him from the torments, and Christ said, 'You my grace, are sufficient. My power is made perfect in (your) weakness.'" (2 Cor 12, 9)

In addition, Radaelli brings an interesting insight into the fact that even in his day St. Peter tried to give up his position of responsibility. As you know, Peter is considered the first Pope:

“On the Appia Antica” (Author’s Note: one of the main roads in Rome since antiquity), “at approximately the intersection with Via Ardeatina, at the time of the first persecution of Nero, the Acts of Peter, though apocryphal, tell us of a fugitive Peter. Frightened and terrified by the ferocity of Nero, who was unleashing his fire against the new sect of the Christians, fearing to lose his life, flees to Brindisi. From there he would embark to Israel so he then could go to Jerusalem; he runs into Jesus walking in the opposite direction, towards the Urbe: ‘Quo vadis, Domine?’ ‘Where are you going, Lord?’ To his amazement Jesus says to him: ‘I’ll die in your place, Simon.’” (Note: he says Simon, not Peter.) “The fugitive is no longer worthy to bear the name he received from Christ. Cephas, Stone, Rock, ‘the infallible certainty of the highest Truth.’”¹⁰

“The timid and very selfish human Simon certainly would have received a more complete understanding by the liberals around the world today inside and outside of the Church, as this act would be perceived as, ‘for the good of the Church.’ A gesture of great freedom and ardent courage, ‘a prophetic gesture,’ as even the most motivated secularists, now cry arrogantly. Simon himself, with this act, found himself naked with his ancient name. The fisherman, good for nothing, a man detached from the Cross at that point. You may wonder if the man has been untied, in some way, even by the Providence from above. This is what happens when a Pope (as well as any bishop), a cleric amongst many others,(the last of the faithful) flees from the place where Christ placed him to suffer, perhaps die. Yet, yes it happens that Christ must suffer too, perhaps even die, in his place. The fact is someone must go through that suffering. Someone must suffer so they can offer such suffering. Evil cannot be lost: evil, every evil, should be redeemed. It must be redeemed, not only, it must be collected and turned into the well it originally was, as with the advent of Christ. It should be elevated to the fullness of divine good, and divine good needs to be fueled. The evil of the world, as the Psalm says: ‘The insults of those who insult you have fallen on me’ (Ps 69, 10): Evil, the insult of the demons of hell—to the wonder of creation. The accomplished work of God the Father, the Son on the cross has taken everything on him, so that He has collected all the evil of the world and nailed it to himself. All Christ’s faithful are left imbued with desire for love of dedication to participate in the crucifying fullness of his sacrifice. Even with the simple everyday life gestures. Trivial acts such as standing on an overcrowded public transport or standing in the cold and frost, to do something more than their duty. Not answering to an unjust attachment. Setting the table with love, even when at the end of the day, you are struggling with fatigue. Ready to rise instead, in the total offering of yourself with more and more heroic acts—being public or silent— always the most generous offer of yourself. Extreme obedience to the laws of God and his will. Crucifying yourself in every way as He, pierced by the nails of the same demonic insults, at any moment, and winning. Here we are not wondering about what might be the reasons for his withdrawal, and what and why of the reasons given—‘I came to the certainty that my strength, advanced age, are no longer appropriate to exercise adequately the Petrine ministry.’ Or, you can open the door to a more imaginative speculation. This leaves us to a fundamental point: Does this resignation constitute or does it not constitute, an asset for the Church. That is, is it a morally weak point, or is it the only road to take for the remainder of the journey to evangelization and sanctification for the world.”¹¹

The questions raised by Radaelli are legitimate, and I am sure many Catholics will have the same reservations. Currently, author Antonio Socci’s new book “Non è Francesco” (It’s Not Francis), published by Mondadori Editore in Italy in November 2014, is causing a real controversy as it brings into question the validity of Pope Francis' election. This is supported by the careful analysis of another book recently written by the Argentinian Pope's biographer, Elisabetta Piqué, entitled "Francis Life and Revolution." (On pages 39 and 40) Socci writes of Piqué's book, noting a small anecdote that reveals the violation of article 76 of the Universi Dominici Gregis, the Apostolic Constitution of the Catholic Church, promulgated by John Paul II in February, 1996.

Apparently, a cardinal deposited two votes instead of one, thus making the 5th attempt to elect Ratzinger's successor invalid. Finally, at the sixth Conclave of the elections, Pope Francis was elected, but a more in-depth investigation of the rules of the Apostolic Constitution, as noted by Socci, shows that they should have simply disregarded the vote from the cardinal, and not invalidating the whole election. Additionally, the Universi Dominici Gregis does not permit more than four election attempts in one day; two in the morning, and two in the afternoon (Article 63). So why did they attempt a fifth vote that day, thereby violating the rules of their own Constitution?

The answer was simple for Socci, as it is for me. They didn't really elect a new Pope, only an acting one, who is without the legitimacy of their own Constitution. Beyond any reasonable speculation, the real Pope is still Ratzinger. He is the only Pope elected in a regular way after the creation of the Universi Dominici Gregis. Such statements might come as a surprise to some, but they are carefully documented in Socci's book, a book that has been banned from all Catholic libraries in Italy. This is something they did earlier with my own books. It shows how afraid many powers inside the Vatican are of the truth, the truth that the transformation of Ratzinger is just another charade.

THE CRISIS

After only four years into his papacy, Ratzinger had experienced "... the failure of the decisions he imagined profitable. Touching with his own hand with ineffectiveness, those in the Curia who should have supported him. Assisting helplessly to a revolt that was propagated thanks to the media. And most bitter of all, he had to open his eyes on the radical breaking point emerging in the Catholic world in respect to his own linear thought, “ writes Marco Politi in Joseph Ratzinger: Crisis of a Papacy”¹² Yet, the pedophilia scandal had not yet erupted in its fullness, and the Vatileaks case was just beginning. It was the beginning of an irreversible crisis that led him to realize how dramatic the situation really was, as he was becoming the scapegoat for the more twisted fringe of the clergy. In fact, instead of being protected by the Curia, Benedict XVI found himself in the paradoxical position of repeatedly exposing himself to defend his own prelates. The then Secretary of State, Tarcisio Bertone, was accused by many for his inability to manage the “curial machine,” because of his “traditional” and non-public spirit, being firm and uncompromising in matters of doctrine, and too cultured for the mass of believers. He appeared far too distant for the average Catholic believer. He was called “A professor with his head in the clouds,” by the Italian journalist, and CIA long-time collaborator, Giuliano Ferrara.¹³ The image of Ratzinger had been repeatedly exploited and attacked from all sides, relegating him to the role of lonely and misunderstood. The dead end Ratzinger found himself in before resigning is partly due to having naively believed, at the beginning of his pontificate, that he would be able to preserve within himself the mission to theologiate, and lead and inspire the faithful. He delegated instead to Bertone and his collaborators from the “Gay Lobby,” plus those aligned to Ecclesiastical Freemasonry, the bureaucratic arm of the Church.

Ideally the community of the faithful should have a strong leader. A leader open to modernity, without betraying the Christian message, or the one proposed by the NWO. He should be sensitive to the changes going on in society, without betraying Catholic morality. Most times Ratzinger found himself in the eye of the storm, displeasing everyone from Muslims, to the Jewish community, to the Catholic world, and including the development and negotiations with the pre-conciliar Lefebvrians. The world was shocked by the excommunication removal of the Holocaust-denying bishop Richard Williamson. Scientists were disappointed by his statements on the condom while traveling in Africa. The faithful became frustrated by the never ending pedophilia scandal. Ratzinger has, in fact, handed over to his successor Pope Francis, a Church-victim of immobilism and disorder. A Church that is “tired,” as the former Archbishop of Milan, the already cited Jesuit Carlo Maria Martini, a dear friend and some say even a mentor to Bergoglio, stated a few days before Martini's death. Martini asked the Church publicly, in what would become his last interview, to change their position that, in his eyes, were "200 years behind." This sort of spiritual testament made by Cardinal Martini was put together by the Jesuit Father George Sporschill and Federica Radice, and was read and approved by the Cardinal who approved it for public distribution. When during the interview they asked Martini, What tools are recommended against the fatigue of the Church? He replied:

"I strongly recommend three. The first is conversion: the Church must recognize their mistakes and must follow a path of radical change, starting with the Pope and the bishops. The scandals of pedophilia push us to embark on a journey of conversion. The questions on sexuality and all issues involving the body are one example. These are important for everyone and sometimes maybe they are too important. We must ask ourselves if people still listen to the advice of the Church on sexual matters. Is the Church still an authority in this field of reference, or is it only a caricature in the media? The second is the Word of God. The Second Vatican Council returning to the Bible of the Catholics."

"Only those who feel in his heart that Word, may be part of those who help the renewal of the Church and will answer personal questions with a right choice. The Word of God is simple and is your hearts companion. ... Neither the clergy nor the right Church can replace the interiority of amen. All external rules, laws, dogmas, there is no data to clarify the inner voice and the discernment of spirits. What are the sacraments? These are the third instruments of healing. The sacraments are not one tool for discipline, but an aid to men in the moments of the journey and weaknesses of life. Do we bring the sacraments to the people that need renewed power? I think of all the divorced and remarried couples, families enlarged. These need special protection. The Church supports the indissolubility of marriage. It is grace when a marriage and a family go well. The attitude we take toward extended families will determine the approach of the Church to a generation of children. A woman was abandoned by her husband and finds a new partner that takes care of her and her three children. The second love fails. If this family is discriminated, is cut off not only the mother but also her children. If parents feel outside the Church or do not feel the support, the Church will lose the next generation. Before Communion we pray: 'Lord I am not worthy.' We know we are not worthy. ... Love is grace. Love is a gift. The question of whether the divorced can go to Communion should be reversed. How can the Church help, with the power of the sacraments, those who have complex family situations?"¹⁴

The already cited Marco Politi, who often appears in the media, especially on Christiane Amanpour's CNN show, and is one of the most established Vatican experts, foreseeing the possibility of papal abdication, wrote in 2012: "The result today (that worries the world of Italian Catholicism and those loyal to the institution around the world), is the image of chaos that the Vatican is spreading with this absence of leadership. While the Pope gradually and systematically withdrew from direct contact with the papal legates and bishops (because of his fatigue he sees them only collectively), the Secretary of State was becoming increasingly centralized and intolerant of positions that differ from his own. So far as to demand that the Cardinals have to go through him if they want to talk to the pontiff.”

Marco Politi concluded:

“The key of the underground conflicts deflagrated in the dissemination of secret documents. He finds himself in the intertwining of money and power. Always to reappear, the figure of Cardinal Bertone in a clash with Cardinal Tettamanzi for the presidency of the Toniolo Institute. For the ousting of Msgr. Viganb. In the conflicts with Cardinal Nicora for the transparency of the IOR. In the secretive clash with Gotti Tedeschi for the adventurous maneuvers around the San Raffaele.”¹⁵

From all these scandals emerges an image of a disfigured Church from Ratzinger’s era. A victim of different personalities, and a cradle of apostasy, as Ratzinger himself finally had to admit with his resignation in February 2013, thereby raising the curtain on a bleak landscape made of intrigue, betrayal, and poison. It is as if the leadership of Ratzinger had reached a dead end without his being able to continue with his ministry. On the one hand the intention to “clean up” the Church from within, on the other the inability to implement his plan due to internal clashes and terrible compromises. In the case of Vatileaks, among other sources, the bureaucratic mess and external pressures revealed the fragility of man and his limits. Ratzinger was more inclined to dominate in the realms of theology and internal politics, than those of public leadership and geopolitics. We may also assume, from the statements he made during his pontificate, that he gradually fell into wicked compromise with various powerful groups. Mainly Ecclesiastical Freemasonry, British Freemasonry, Sionism, and the malevolent proponents of the New World Order, active in the Church since the 1950’s, and that gave birth to the Second Vatican Council.

Yet it appears that Ratzinger was well aware of what was waiting for him when he became Pope, and he never made a secret about it. Consider the invocation addressed to the faithful with whom he began his pontificate: “Do not leave me alone, pray for me, that I may not flee for fear of being before the wolves.” An unusual plea that resonates today as an eerie foreshadowing, especially related to an event without precedence in modern history, such as the abdication of the Pope. On the first anniversary of his pontificate, in a reiterated exhortation to the faithful, Benedict XVI, between-the-lines, seems to indicate that the dangers he had alluded to a year earlier may threaten to materialize: “I ask everyone to continue to support me, praying to God to grant me to be a gentle and firm Pastor of His Church.” If we also read the previous statements of Benedict XVI, when he was still, “The Grand Inquisitor” of the Holy Office, we will notice how he has never hidden his concern for the health of the Church and its destiny. In the Via Crucis of 2005, a few days before the death of John Paul II, the then Cardinal Ratzinger had strongly denounced, live on TV, the “filth in the Church.”

This was neither the first nor the last speech he gave against the profound crisis in the Institution of the Church that he was trying to save from total disgrace. On March 19, 2010, in the middle of the pedophilia scandal, we find one of the bravest documents of his papacy. It is an open letter to the Catholics of Ireland. Benedict XVI confesses the serious sins that have for decades consumed the Irish Catholic community. He assumed full responsibility for the crimes committed by his clergy: “In the name (of the Church) I express shame and remorse.” Ratzinger had already recognized and blamed his pedophile priests in 2008, confessing to journalists present during his flight to the United States his utmost contempt. “I am ashamed,” he said. With his open letter to the Irish Catholics his mea culpa was symbolically routed to all Catholics, and all those who have been victim to the horrors of the clergy, not just the faithful in Ireland. Of course, this was not enough to stop his inevitable decline and shocking choice of escape from his own responsibilities. Especially when such responsibilities were not only moral, or strictly religious, but also criminal, as in the pedophilia cases, as many victims are gradually moving towards the idea of refusing any compromise, and instead legally challenging the monsters who ruined their lives. In the long run Ratzinger, as well as Bertone, may have been referring to key people in the Vatican responsible for the many criminal acts against poor innocents, which continued for so many years.

Tolerated and covered-up by Church officials such as Ratzinger, who, in his previous role, should have been a true “Grand Inquisitor,” so as to send them all to the stake (or at least to jail), as the Holy Office did in the old days. Instead Ratzinger, who some say was blackmailed over his own gay sex secrets, continued tolerating the many satanists who practice pedophilia in the clergy, until it was too late, even for him, and he was forced to leave.

The link between satanism and pedophilia has been confirmed by the studies of Dr. Tonino Cantelmi, a well-known Italian psychiatrist who is also the president of the highly influential Association of Italian Catholic Psychologists and Psychiatrists, known by the acronym AIPPC, which is of course endorsed by the Vatican. Such studies were made public in a book he co-wrote with Dr. Cristina Cacace, a clinical psychologist, called Il Libro Nero del Aatanismo, or “The Black Book on Satanism” published in 2007 by the main Vatican publisher Edizioni San Paolo. In this book the two academics write: “The relation between satanism and pedophilia has been proven again and again. Various journalist investigations and centers for the protection of the infancy, have launched the message that more often than we like to believe, the prostitution of minors and pedophilia are managed by Satanic sects.” The two authors dedicate a whole chapter to the subject.¹⁶ The link has also been proven on a scientific level in the Catholic world, and I will, in other publications, provide proof that there are Satanic sects operating in the Vatican. It is clear that the Church is partially controlled by a bunch of Satanists. This is not a religious statement, but a clinical and factual one.

THE VATICAN AND THE INVASIVE PRESENCE OF ISLAM

Considering the evidence I have shown on Ratzinger’s pontificate failures, it is natural to wonder what then happened to the intransigent “Guardian of the Faith,” who initially, after his arrival on the Throne of St. Peter, began a traditionalist battle in defense of Christianity. That which brought him numerous attacks by the press around the world, beginning with the Islamic protest of September 2006, after he was apparently misunderstood during his now famous address at the University of Regensburg. In that key moment in history, Benedict quoted Manuel II Palaeologus (1350-1425), soldier, statesman, and Byzantine emperor:

“In the seventh conversation edited by Professor Khoury, the emperor touches on the theme of the holy war. The emperor must have known that sura 2, 256 reads: ‘There is no compulsion in religion.’ According to the experts, this is one of the suras of the early period, when Mohammed was still powerless and under threat. But naturally the emperor also knew the instructions, developed later and recorded in the Qur'an, concerning holy war. Without descending to details, such as the difference in treatment accorded to those who have the 'Book' and the 'infidels,' he addresses his interlocutor with a startling brusqueness, a brusque-ness that we find unacceptable, on the central question about the relationship between religion and violence in general, saying: 'Show me just what Mohammed brought that was new, and there you will find things only evil and inhuman, such as his command to spread by the sword the faith he preached.' The emperor, after having expressed himself so forcefully, goes on to explain in detail the reasons why spreading the faith through violence is something unreasonable. Violence is incompatible with the nature of God and the nature of the soul. 'God,' he says, 'is not pleased by blood—and not acting reasonably is contrary to God's nature. Faith is born of the soul, not the body. Whoever would lead someone to faith needs the ability to speak well and to reason properly, without violence and threats.' ... To convince a reasonable soul, one does not need a strong arm, or weapons of any kind, or any other means of threatening a person with death."

The contested phrase, quoted by Benedict XVI on the occasion, was specifically this: *"Show me just what Mohammed brought that was new, and there you will find things only evil and inhuman, such as his command to spread by the sword the faith he preached."*¹⁷

After Ratzinger became Pope Emeritus, my friend Alberto Roccatanno wrote the following for the Italian edition of Nexus magazine: *"Is his renunciation to the office of Bishop of Rome indicating a severe problem existing in the high ranks of the church on the relationship between Islam and Christianity?"*¹⁸ Previously, in November 2010, Alberto wrote a short essay in Nexus entitled *"But what is this crisis!"*¹⁹ He provides a very detailed analysis on the crisis and the improbable connivance of the Catholic world with Islam. He spoke of the influential role of the Jesuit Father Thomas Michel, who was Secretary of the Federation of Asian Bishops' Conferences from 1981-1994, and the disbelief of the findings by Magdi Allam, who is a well-known journalist and political figure. Allam was shocked when he learned that on the site www.islam-online.net, which belongs to the firebrand Islamic preacher Youssef Qaradawi, Father Thomas Michel SJ had himself replied directly to the visitors of the website. Michel, known as one of the most influential contributors to the inter-religious dialogue conducted by John Paul II, according to the predetermined plan of the New World Order, had set a policy of reconciliation and openness with the Islam faith. In 2008, after retiring as Secretary of Interreligious Affairs for the Jesuits, this led him, to move to Ankara, Turkey, where some say he lives as a full-time

Muslim. Here are some of the words written in the article of Magdi Allam cited by Roccatano:

“I was stunned to discover that on the site www.islam-online.net, linked to the Islamic hate preacher Youssef Qaradawi, was the reply, on Tuesday evening, directly to visitors of the Jesuit Father Thomas Michel. He was for thirteen years head of the Islamic Office for Interreligious Dialogue in the Vatican.”

The shock was reading his total condemnation of Pope Benedict XVI: “We Christians must apologize to Muslims.” Magdi Allamm could not understand how such a statement from a key man of the Jesuits and the Vatican could be making such remarks. He replied with anger in the article, *“What does a Catholic priest of this stature have to do with someone like Qaradawi, who preaches the defeat and annihilation of Christianity and Western civilization, the destruction of Israel and the eternal punishment of the Jews, praising as legitimate Palestinian suicide terrorism and attacks against Westerners in Iraq and Afghanistan? Yet from the responses by Father Michel filters the anxiety to please the disciples of Qaradawi.”*²⁰

MAGDI ALLAM THE CATHOLIC REPENT

In 2013, five years after having received a high-profile baptism in St. Peter’s Cathedral directly by Benedict XVI, Magdi Allam decided, now in the era of Pope Francis, to leave the Catholic Church. A curious change of heart, considering it was Magdi Allam himself who hyped-up his conversion from Islam to Catholicism, as he is a well-known public figure in Italy. In his eyes, they seemed too weak against Islam, or maybe, like the Jesuit Thomas Michel, they had secretly become Muslim. What he wrote this time from the pages of Berlusconi's newspaper Il Giornale is what has become a well-known article in certain circles due to its heavy condemnation of the Church. I have decided to insert the most controversial part in order to help Americans understand what's really going on with the Islamic agenda in Vatican:

“The Papal idolatry that has inflamed the euphoria for Pope Francis and has quickly archived Pope Benedict XVI, was just the straw that broke the camel's back of an overall framework of uncertainties and doubts about the Church, which I have already described correctly and frankly in my ‘Thank you Jesus’ in 2008 and ‘Free Christian Europe’ in 2009. It was Benedict XVI who denounced ‘the dictatorship of relativism’ and who attracted and fascinated me. The truth is that the Church is physiologically relativist, being at the same time a universal magisterium and secular state. It has meant that the Church has always welcomed in her bosom a multitude of communities, congregations, ideologies and material interests that result in putting together everything and the opposite of everything. The Church is physiologically globalist relying on the communion of Catholics around the world, as is clear from the Conclave. This means that the Church takes positions ideologically contrary to the nation as an identity and to preserve civilization, preaching in fact the overcoming of national borders.”

1. (C) Summary. Pope Benedict XVI's September 12 speech in Regensburg caused an unwanted firestorm in the Islamic world because of the pope's quoting, in passing, an insulting reference made by a 14th-century Byzantine emperor. The Holy See, and the pope himself, responded with statements of clarification and regret in the ensuing days. While the pope surely did not intend such an outcome, his own approach toward his predecessor. Post expects further papal comments on the matter on September 20, unless the controversy has died down by then, and will report further in the coming days. End summary.

“As a result, the Church is physiologically feel-good, putting on the same level, or putting the good of others before the good of the Church. Compromising the root of the concept of the common good. Finally, I note that the Church is physiologically tempted by evil, as with violation of public morality, since it requires behaviors that are in conflict with human nature. Behaviors such as priestly celibacy, abstaining from sexual relations outside of marriage, the indissolubility of marriage, in addition to the temptation of money. This more than any other factor drove me away from the Church's religious relativism. In particular its view on the legitimacy of Islam as a true religion, Allah as a true God, and Muhammad as a true prophet, the Quran as a sacred text and the mosques as a place of worship. It is genuine suicidal madness that John Paul II went so far as to kiss the Quran on May 14, 1999, followed by Benedict XVI who put his hand on the Quran, praying toward Mecca inside the Blue Mosque in Istanbul on November 30th, 2006, while Francis began exalting the Muslims 'who worship the one God, living and merciful.' I am convinced that, while respecting the Muslim as custodians, like all other people of their inalienable right to life, dignity and freedom. Islam is inherently a violent ideology, as it has been historically conflictual inside, and belligerent to its exterior. Even more so, I am increasingly convinced that Europe will eventually be submitted to Islam, as it has already happened from the Seventh Century on the other two sides of the Mediterranean. If the Church does have the vision and the courage to denounce the incompatibility of Islam with our civilization and the fundamental rights of the human being, then it will ban the Quran for its lack of apology for hatred, violence and death against non-Muslims. It will condemn the Sharia law as a crime against humanity, which preaches and practices the violation of the sanctity of all life, the equality of men and women and religious freedom. Finally, it does not block the spreading of mosques.

"I am opposed to globalism that brings unconditional opening of all national borders on the basis of the principle that the whole of humanity must be conceived as brothers and sisters. The whole in its entirety should be conceived as a single land, at the disposal of all humanity. I am instead convinced, that the indigenous population has a reason to enjoy the right and the duty to preserve their culture and their heritage. I am opposed to the Church standing as ultimate protector for immigrants, including—especially—the illegal immigrants. I am for the reception of the rules. The first rule, is that in Italy, we must first ensure the good of the Italians, correctly applying the exhortation of Jesus' love your neighbor as you love yourself.

"There have been some witnesses, those that make the claim that truth corresponds to the faith they believe in, and that this will result in the good works that they fulfill, to persuade me of the goodness, the charm, the beauty and strength of Christianity as the natural home of values. Values which are non-negotiable. The inseparable truths of reason and faith, truth and freedom, values and rules. And it is precisely at this moment, when all around me, the presence of authentic and credible witnesses is less and less, which is in parallel with the in-depth knowledge of the Catholic context of reference. My faith in the Church staggered.

"I make this choice, in the suffering and in the inner-consciousness of disapproval that will generate in the home of Catholicism, because I feel a moral imperative to continue to be consistent with myself and with others in the name of the primacy of truth and freedom. I never resigned to lie and I was never subjected to fear. I will continue to believe in Jesus. I have always loved and proudly identify with Christianity, which as a civilization, more than any other, brings man closer to God. He who chose to become a man, and more than any other, embodied the essence of our common humanity. I will continue to defend the secular non-negotiable values, the sanctity of life, the centrality of the natural family, the dignity of the human person and freedom of religion. I will continue to move forward with my back straight and with my head up, contributing to the revival of values and the identity of the Italians. I will be a man of integrity within the total context of my humanity."²¹

What words of wisdom can I say about somebody, who I must confess, I was initially very skeptical about, especially after his sudden conversion to Catholicism? With his latest choice, he has demonstrated to be worthy of my respect, and hopefully yours as well.

CAUTION: ISLAM IS NOT PRESENT AT THE TOP OF THE VATICAN HIERARCHY

Regarding this context of what we can define as the “pro-Islamic Jesuitry,” my close friend and journalist, Alberto Roccatano, told me he would one day like to ask Father Thomas Michel what exactly happened to the special vow of obedience he made to the Pope as a Jesuit? As some of you may know, after a certain period of service as a priest members of the Society of Jesus—the Jesuits—can be allowed to take a fourth vow of obedience to the pope with regard to the missions, like we saw Bergoglio do in the 1970’s. The text of the vow is as follows:

“I further promise a special obedience to the sovereign pontiff in regard to the missions, according to the same Apostolic Letters and the Constitutions.” (Constitutions S.J., N°527)

The same text is being used today, just as it was in the days of Ignatius of Loyola.²²

FIG. 13. The Jesuit Father Thomas Michel, SJ along with Leo Zagami in Oslo, Norway in 2007.

In any case, I was able to witness this strange radical pro-Islamic stance from Father Michel when I personally met him in Oslo in 2007, thanks to the Gulen Movement. This is a dangerous and influential religious Islamic sect based primarily in Turkey, with schools and companies all over the world, which hides their real fundamentalist agenda behind a sort of moderate Islamic façade. They are controlled by the Turkish Muslim scholar Fethullah Gulen, born in Erzurum, Turkey on April 27, 1941. Gulen is a philosopher and the author of over 60 books. Now based out of the USA, he has made his organization an important structure of the New World Order, and is often used by the CIA, according to Nuri Gundes, a former Top Turkish intelligence official.

Jeff Stain wrote the following regarding the issue in The Washington Post, in an article called, “Islamic Group is a CIA Front.” In the article the ex-Turkish Intel Chief states:

“A memoir by a top former Turkish intelligence official claims that a worldwide moderate Islamic movement based in Pennsylvania has been providing cover for the CIA since the mid-1990s. The memoir, roughly rendered in English as ‘Witness to Revolution and Near Anarchy,’ by retired Turkish intelligence official Osman Nuri Gundes, says the religious-tolerance movement, led by an influential former Turkish imam by the name of Fethullah Gulen, has 600 schools and 4 million followers around the world. In the 1990s, Gundes alleges, the movement ‘sheltered 130 CIA agents’ at its schools in Kyrgyzstan and Uzbekistan alone, according to a report on his memoir Wednesday by the Paris-based Intelligence Online newsletter. The book has caused a sensation in Turkey since it was published last month. Gulen could not be reached for comment.”

Further on in the same article, Stein writes that Imam Gülen, “whose views are usually close to U.S. policy,” and “according to Intelligence Online, favors toleration of all religions, putting his movement in direct competition with al-Qaeda and other radical groups for the affection of Muslims across Central Asia, the Middle East and even Europe and Africa, where it has also expanded its reach.” Gundes, who was Istanbul station chief for Turkey’s MIT intelligence agency, and according to the newsletter’s report on his memoir (which has not been translated into English) “personally supervised several investigations into Gulen’s movement in the 1990s.” The purpose of Gundes’s investigation was not immediately clear. His own religious views could not be determined, but the influence of radical Islamist forces in Turkey swelled in the 1990s. The Imam left Turkey in 1998 and settled in Saylorsburg, PA, where the movement is headquartered. According to Intelligence Online, he obtained a residence permit only in 2008 with the help of Fuller and George Fidas, described as head of the agency’s outreach to universities.²³

On February 9, 1998, Fethullah Gülen was received in the Vatican by Pope John Paul II.²⁴ The meeting was also attended by the Grand Master of the Sufi brotherhood Jerrahi Halveti, and Gabriele Mandel Khan (1924 - 2010), who is a well-known member of the editorial staff of Jesus, the monthly magazine owned by Edizioni San Paolo, probably the most prestigious Roman Catholic publishing group. Mandel, of Italian-Turkish-Afghan descent, who I also knew personally, was a good guy at heart but was unfortunately used as an important pawn by the Jesuits in their geopolitical and religious strategies for the Middle East, much like other Muslim leaders. He was linked not only to Turkey and to Sufism at the highest levels, but also to the Vatican and Italian Freemasonry, where he was awarded an honorary 33rd degree of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite. Gülen is not only a supporter of the Mondialist ideology, but, in the eyes of his allies, he is connected to this most influential Turkish businessmen. Even Bill Clinton mentioned and praised him publicly in 2008 with these words, “You’re contributing to the promotion of the ideals of tolerance and interfaith dialogue, inspired by Fethullah Gülen, and his transnational social movement. You do it through your everyday lives, and you are truly strengthening the fabric of our common humanity.”

Bill Clinton has not mentioned Gülen publicly again, but Gülenists would like us to believe that the prime motivating factor for Clinton’s speech was a profound admiration for Fethullah Gülen’s activities. Many have their doubts and believe the words in his speech were motivated mostly by the numerous contributions to Hillary Clinton’s campaign made by the wealthy businessmen of his movement.²⁵

Gülen urges people to join without hesitation the New World Order. His 2006 book “Toward a Global Civilization of Love & Tolerance,”²⁶ whose preface is written by none other than Jesuit Thomas Michel, has a chapter unequivocally entitled, “New World Order.” In an important speech he originally gave on the subject in 1995. Gülen writes, “Everyone takes up the matter of a New World Order and evaluates it from a different point of view according to their own thoughts. This is quite natural.” Adding further on, “Some of these developments follow a course based on religion. In relation to these it is possible to mention both organized and unorganized activities *throughout various parts of the world. Unlike others they approach every matter from the principle that 'religion is basic.' Naturally they want to evaluate today's unsettled situation in line with their own way of thinking and manipulate and lead people to the position required by religion. In addition to this is the fact that the attempt by the powers which have exploited the world many times to take advantage of this period of restructuring seems normal from their own perspectives. Is there full agreement among these powers? Of course not. However it is widely believed that they are trying to come together and to reach an agreement as soon as possible. Britain does not think very differently on this matter from America."*²⁷

But Gülen knows development of the New World Order is not going to be easy, so he gives a warning of sorts: "There are some countries in which it is difficult to tell whether they are comfortable with the New World Order or not. It is quite difficult to understand the situation of these countries just as there are some diseases that are hard to diagnose. As a matter of fact they do not expect a share in the general advantages. In fact it is not obvious what they really want at the present time."²⁸ Why does Gülen compare those countries that refuse the New World Order to "some diseases"? He obviously feels he is a kind of doctor for the NWO—taking a very Jesuit approach, indeed. In December 2014, a Turkish court issued an arrest warrant for the influential cleric Fethullah Gülen, accused of leading an armed terrorist group and plotting to overthrow the Turkish government of what used to be his friend, now turned enemy, Recep Tayyip Erdoğan.

“THE CONQUEST OF ROME”

What makes this unprecedented situation even more shocking with regards to the dangerous relations between Catholicism and Islam, was a statement made to me by a senior member on the board of Fethullah Gülen's movement, a close friend of Monsignor Luigi Padovese, Apostolic Vicar of Anatolia, who died under mysterious circumstances in 2010. In a moment of extreme honesty during one of my visits to Turkey, he told me that Monsignor Padovese claimed that there were as many as 40 Vatican cardinals who had secretly converted to Islam and were secretly reciting the Qur'an in the Vatican. They all seem to like a particular text linked to Islamic belief. A text very dear to the Gulen movement, and in earlier times linked to the Risale-i Nur movement connected to Said Nursi (1877-1960), commonly known as Bediuzzaman, mostly known for his commentary on the Qur'an entitled the “Risale-i Nur Collection.” The book in question, popular with both Sunni and Shi’a Muslims, is the Jawshan Al Kabir,²⁹ which means “the strong cuirass” (or breastplate). It is a supplication originally ascribed in a narration from Zayn Al-’Abidin, the son of Husayn, to his great-grandfather, the Prophet of Islam, Mohammed. Nursi who apparently recited the “Jawshan regularly throughout his life, and as a source of reflective thought, said that in one respect, the Risale-i Nur had been born of it.”³⁰

Some say it is a book of Islamic magic which Nursi used when, apparently, he killed Joseph Stalin with a psychic attack, and is considered the most powerful tool against the entities the Muslim call the Jinn, a subject I will go into depth about in the first volume of my Confessions of an Illuminati trilogy, as well as in the title The Invisible Masters. All four books will soon be available in the English language thanks to the efforts of CCC Publishing. Monsignor Pa-dovese’s shocking statements on the Vatican Curia and their Islamic practices began circulating in the alternative media on the internet, and I was one of the journalists responsible for the introduction of this material.

The powers that be in the Vatican and the various intelligence services certainly did not appreciate the divulgence of this terrible secret about the 40 cardinals that secretly converted to Islam, and who define themselves by using what are allegedly Padovese’s own words: “undercover converts to the faith of the Prophet Muhammad.”

Despite efforts by myself and other journalists to never mention his name, the poor priest was unfortunately killed in Iskenderun (Alexandretta), Turkey by his driver, Murat Altun, who was later accused of having a mental disorder.³¹ But the reality, of course, is very different. The driver, 26 years old at the time of the killing, replied at the end of the court process that he was, “sorry for killing Msgr. Luigi,” because “he was the last person in my life who could harm me. But at that time I was not in control of myself.” It begs the question if Murat was not in control of himself, who was?

He seems an ambiguous character, and the light sentence he received for killing a priest, he will probably spend only six years in prison, is revealing. Many prelates and friends of Monsignor Padovese who had questions about Murat tried, in good faith, to learn more from the Turkish authorities, but their inquiries went nowhere. The disappointing trial of Mr. Murat has left many wondering,³² especially considering Ali Agca, another strange Turk, and the gunman who attempted to assassinate Pope Woytila. We have since become quite accustomed to handling the many lies of these killers Made In Turkey, behind whom lurk all the usual suspects. So, what are we to make of these revelations... disclosures made to me by a Gulen Movement senior activist?

FIG.14. The Grand Master for Italy of the Sufi brotherhood Jerrahi-Halveti, Gabriele Mandel Khan (1924-2010) who was a psychologist, a writer, an artist, as well as a Freemason. Evidence of his membership is shown clearly in this image, present in a tribute article to his person that appeared in the Italian Masonic Magazine LA VOCE DELL'APPRENDISTA in November 2010.

The incredible news if made public could lead to a immediate schism in the Catholic Church. This at a time of weakness in the Church, when Islamic Prayers and readings from the Qur'an were apparently heard publicly inside the Vatican for the first time in history. In June 2014, it was said of Papa Bergoglio, *"Israeli and Palestinian presidents meet in an unprecedented prayer meeting with Pope Francis ... a gesture he hopes will 're-create a desire, a possibility' of eventually relaunching the Middle East's stalled peace process."*³³

Instead, this functioned as a kick-start to the worst Middle East crisis in recent years. In the meantime, the Universal Church, a nom de guerre that can be traced back to 1958, continued forward with the ascension of Pope, and now Saint John XXIII, who was the first Masonic Pope in history. The Muslim conversion of the 40 cardinals has been understood in secret by the leaders of Islam as well as senior Jesuits who are increasingly fascinated by Islam, as in the case of Father Thomas Michel.

It seems that Fethullah Gülen, while commenting on this unprecedented fact, even told his loyalists that "the important thing is not to appear as Muslim converts for those who cannot show their real religious identity, but to actually be Muslim in their mind and in their actions." Of course, as these words were reported by an inside confidential source, we cannot be certain. However, if confirmed, it looks like a very Jesuit kind of view of this Vatican affair by Gülen.

The Jesuits themselves seem to see these Muslim cardinals not as a threat or an intolerable heresy for the Church, but an added value during this time of impending Islamization of the West. I hope this information will make Pope Francis' position more evident for the reader, especially considering his unprecedented move during the second year of his Pontificate, where he not only allowed a Muslim cleric to pray in the Vatican, but allowed him to end his prayer with the phrase, "Victory against the unbelievers." Radio Vatican has disputed the fact that this was ever stated by the Imam, yet the historian and author Michael Hesemann confirms, on his Facebook page, the statements of the Imam, Hamed Abdel-Samad: "The Muslims had 'cunningly deceived' the organizers, he writes. Apart from the harmless prayers which he submitted, the Imam began to quote from the second Sura of the Koran, in which Allah is implored to grant victory over the unbelievers. Hesemann explains Radio Vatican's disclaimer by the fact that no one there knows the Koran or speaks Arabic. The statements of the Imam are however documented in video footage and are verifiable. In conclusion, Hesemann expressed his thanks to those who had helped him in the disclosure and he hopes that this 'deceit' will contribute to seeing through Islam. When will our princes of the Church and the press finally face reality and regard Islam for what it is: A perfidious concoction of lies, deception and contempt for mankind in the garb of religion?"³⁴

Hesemann should be aware that some of the so-called "Princes of the Church" are probably traitors of their faith, as the growing Muslim infiltration of the Vatican hierarchy has only one final purpose—the conquest of Rome! This is why, in the summer of 2014, Abu Bakr al-Baghdadi, the self-proclaimed leader of the feared "Islamic State" (often known by its old name ISIS or ISIL) and stretching across Iraq and Syria, has vowed to lead the conquest of Rome as he called on Muslims to join their Islamic State. He proclaimed, "Rush O Muslims to your state. It is your state. Syria is not for Syrians and Iraq is not for Iraqis. The land is for the Muslims, all Muslims. This is my advice to you. If you hold to it you will conquer Rome and own the world, if Allah wills."³⁵

Believe it or not, at the time I heard this statement from Abu Bakr al-Baghdadi, it was already old news to me. Baghdadi had been implicated (with documented evidence) in the previously mentioned book of the Italian Masonic Grand Master Gioele Magaldi as being a member of the infamous Hathor Penthalpa Lodge, part of the transnational super lodges known as Ur-Lodges. I was reminded of the shocking words I heard years before, from another Sunni Muslim, a leader of the Gulen movement, Abdullah Aymaz, during a secret meeting he made with his disciples in Oslo stating, "We Will Raise the Flag of Allah on the Vatican."

It was also no surprise when news came though from more than one source that, contrary to general knowledge, the Turkish Secret Service was actively helping new ISIS recruits pass through Turkey. Turkey's 12th President, Erdoğan, is also implicated by Magaldi as a member of Hathor Penthalpa, and, as of November 2014, ISIS is now in control of the coastal town of Derna and other Libyan cities from which the daily "invasion" of illegal Muslim immigrants continues into Italy and the rest of Europe. Illegal Muslim trafficking, a network using structured routes, seems unstoppable as they generate money for the mafia and the terrorist organizations involved, like ISIS. This scenario seem to fit perfectly into a secret plan by the New World Order called The Coudenhove-Kalergi Plan, that some in European right wing circles say was created for the systematic genocide of the people of Europe. This supposed plan was put together by an Austrian diplomat and known Illuminati member named Heinrich von Coudenhove-Kalergi (1894-1972), with connections to the Byzantine family of the Kallergis, who was actually the first proponent of a unified Europe back in the 1920's. For this reason, the Coudenhove-Kalergi European Prize is apparently awarded every two years to European leaders who have excelled in promoting what's beyond any political or religious ideology. It is actually a criminal plan that is becoming more evident every day. Among those awarded in recent times, for example, are Angela Merkel and Herman Van Rompuy, two of the top pawns in the Bilderberg Club.

The European political assets, those who are responsible for what can be only be described as an “invasion,” will ultimately be held accountable. Enza Ferreri who is an Italian-born, London-based Philosophy graduate, author and journalist for several Italian magazines and newspapers, including Panorama, L'Espresso, and La Repubblica wrote about what we insist on calling, “immigration,” but should be actually called, “invasion,” or even, “ethnic cleansing.” Ferreri writes:

“Invasion has three main meanings: a) the act of invading, especially the entrance of an armed force into a territory to conquer; b) a large-scale onset of something injurious or harmful, such as a disease; c) an intrusion or encroachment, an incursion by a large number of people or things into a place or sphere of activity. The latter is a perfectly apt description of what is happening in Western Europe. Even ‘ethnic cleansing’ could be used, since local populations are being replaced by different ethnic groups. London, for instance, is no longer a white-British-majority city, although mainstream media like the BBC and London’s own paper, the Evening Standard, barely mention it, to say nothing of the city mayor Boris Johnson.”³⁶

Here is the definition of ethnic cleansing from Wikipedia:

“The official United Nations definition of ethnic cleansing is ‘rendering an area ethnically homogeneous by using force or intimidation to remove from a given area persons of another ethnic or religious group.’... Terry Martin has defined ethnic cleansing as ‘the forcible removal of an ethnically defined population from a given territory’ and as ‘occupying the central part of a continuum between genocide on one end and nonviolent pressured ethnic emigration on the other end.’ European native populations are being replaced because many locals, tired of being colonized, flee their countries, cities or neighborhoods.”³⁷

If all this is not enough to break down Western civilization, there is the latest creation of the USA, Israel and their friends in the oil rich Arab States, the previously mentioned ISIS. Such accusations don't come from your average conspiracy theorist, but from the official representative of the Melkite Greek Catholic Church in Rome, Father Mtanious Hadad, who is representing all the Eastern Church communities in the heart of Europe, as well as those in Iraq and Syria. His message in October, 2014 is strong and clear: "ISIS is a monster created by USA, Israel and some Arab States. The objective is to take Bagdad and later bring down Assad." This might be the initial plan, but these mercenaries of the NWO are aspiring for much more. In September 2014, the official spokesman for ISIS Abu Nuhammed al-Adnani al-Shami, reiterated their interest in conquering Rome, stating during a 42 minute speech later published in the 4th issue of DABIQ, the official ISIS magazine: "We will conquer Rome, break your crosses and we will enslave your women." It is called "DABIQ" because this is the name of a town in northern Syria where ISIS believes Armageddon will begin. The magazine is published through their Al Hayat Media Center, and follows the Islamic calendar. Maybe in a future edition they could tell us what they plan to do with the Vatican's "Gay Lobby." But that's another story we will cover later, as some priests seem to already be in bed with the enemy.

This looming threat is probably the reason why Pope Francis went to Turkey at the end of November 2014—in order to pay tribute to his Islamic brothers, which include his friend Thomas Michel SJ. This trip was in defiance of previous warnings of Iraq's ambassador to the Vatican, Mr. Habeeb Al Sadr, who stated in September 2014, that there were strong indications of a more specific threat against Pope Francis by the so-called Islamic Caliphate.

THE ROSE-SHAPED CRYPT OF THE NWO NEO-TEMPLARS

There are forces operating within the Catholic institution that appear to be a tremendous betrayal, yet no one seems to want to stop them, because the stakes are too high and could mean the very survival of the Church. If one day the Church is completely surrounded, it could cave in and embrace the so-called Islamic conversion, termed "Chrislam." This has already begun, but before completion there must be a final attempt to transform the Catholic Faith into a Universal Church for the New World Order. This Universal Church would be without a leader. To achieve this result, the divine nature of a pope must be completely distorted and minimized by a striking gesture, and that gesture began with “the resignation,” made in 2013 by Pope Benedict XVI. He would be the only pope in history that could retire with his whole team. That is, perhaps until 2019, in accordance to readying themselves for the final announcement of the establishment of the New World Order in 2020. The suggested timeline has more than a grain of truth upon which we should consider. The information was obtained directly from an inside source in the Vatican of some importance. This timeline was articulated by Dr. Antonio Leonardo Montuoro, nicknamed “The Man of the Holy Spirit” by the recently sainted Pope John Paul II. He was the right-hand man of the former Prefect Enrico Marinelli, who was nicknamed by the Polish pope as “the General,” and for years acted as head of his personal security. Montuoro confirmed the possible destruction of the Vatican in the next few years, and for this reason they felt the need to create an alternative site called the Temple of the Work of the Holy Spirit, currently under construction in Palestrina, a town near Rome. Palestrina is a sort of Vatican 2, set to be ready by 2019, and is already planning to join the Extraterritorial Rights afforded to the Vatican City.

FIG.15. The cover of the 4th issue of DABIQ published and distributed online by the self-declared Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant, is dedicated to The Conquest of Rome and discusses such comforting subjects as “The Final Crusade,” and “The Revival of Slavery.”

The diocese where this temple is under construction is lead by another important figure of the contemporary Catholic scene, Bishop Sigalini, who runs the powerful Italian Catholic organization Azione Cattolica, a person I describe in depth in the third volume of my trilogy, Confessions of an Illuminati,³⁸ which also deals with the inter-religious work of the Neo-Templars in the Vatican. These individuals are linked in the past to John Paul II, who would obviously like to see all religions combined according to the infamous Jesuit-Masonic-Zionist NWO plan, in a temple common to all religions led by the Vatican, and dedicated to the Holy Spirit, to be inaugurated by 2019. If you visit the website created for the project you can see the 3-D design of the Temple.³⁹

The images speak for themselves: the circular shape of the Church not only has nothing remotely “Christian” about it, but strongly reminds us of the monumental megalithic sanctuary of Gobekli Tepe discovered in 1995, by German archaeologist professor Klaus Schmidt (1953-2014), located approximately 6 km (4 mi) northeast of the town of Sanliurfa in Turkey, near the border with Syria.

The official dating of the Gobekli Tepe site goes back to at least twelve thousand years ago, and such a discovery calls into question the expertise and the historical and archaeological knowledge of all the academic world that previously disregarded the place as a simple cemetery. Within the site, archaeologists have unearthed the oldest example of a stone temple in the world, with estimates that place the construction around 9500 BC, and requiring the work of hundreds of men over a period of three to five centuries. Without going too deep into the matter, we can not fail to notice the anomaly of such a architectural similarity between the Temple of the Holy Spirit and the Gobekli Tepe site.

According to the historical reconstruction of the ancient Turkish site by Venetian researcher Diego Marin:

“The traditions of the groups (of initiated) tells us of the ancient meetings that took place 12,000 years ago in Urfa, in Turkey, where it has recently emerged an ‘inexplicable’ site of Gobekli Tepe. And yet they tell us of their meetings in the Sangam, the Indian academies destroyed by the waters of the flood. Even Atlantis and its inhabitants, the Pelasgians, were not strangers to their meetings.”⁴⁰

It’s difficult to find truth passed down to us of historical value which has survived in the middle of all the various tales and legends transmitted through the ages. The sands of time have swallowed most relics of importance that could help us understand our true early history. Gobekli Tepe, however, re-emerged fairly recently, bringing to light a period of history and a civilization that we didn’t even know existed. It leaves very little room for the conformist historical view and interpretation, usually manipulated to fit the “official” interpretation. Marin, however, informs me that the mysterious site of Gobekli Tepe, just outside of Sanliurfa, often pronounced simply as Urfa, is mentioned in the archives that belonged to Giacomo Rumor (1915-1990). Rumor was not only an important Italian politician who belonged to the Christian Democrat Party, and for this reason a Vatican loyalist, but also the cousin of five-time Italian Prime Minister Mariano Rumor. He was a person who was close to the Azione Cattolica, an organization that is now involved in the project for the construction of the Temple in Palestrina with their Assistant General Bishop Domenico Sigalini. Marin writes:

“The archive includes correspondence between Giacomo Rumor (cousin of the five-time Prime Minister Mariano Rumor) and the French Maurice Schumann, operating both in the committees *convened by Roosevelt for the construction of the European Union. ... From what Paolo Rumor (the son of Giacomo) has transcribed in the book The Other in Europe it suggests the presence of an esoteric brotherhood that would design the birth and evolution of a supranational structure such as the UN and the EU. Rumor does not mention the name of the brotherhood, but stresses his ties with the major noble families of Europe, particularly with the Scottish family of Saint Clair (or Sinclair). Whether this is the All-Seeing Eye (Illuminati) is an easy and obvious conclusion.”⁴¹*

According to the archive of Rumor, this is the brotherhood that Marin presumes forms the original nucleus of the Order we now improperly call the “Illuminati,” and in possession of a document on its origins and traditions:

“The document enclosed a list of personalities, that became part of the structure in the last 2,500 years. It seems that in total there were 216 names, grouped in groups of 12, in turn gathered in units of 72.”⁴²

The archive of Giacomo Rumor, in fact, also contains the transcription of some archaeological findings, including a parchment discovered in the late nineteenth century in the synagogue of Nusaybin, near Urfa. The text of this parchment:

“Refers to the three pyramids of Giza and some encryptions that you would find around there. ... Another passage speaks of the Flood, arguing that the term ‘the long rains’ was presented twice, at a distance of ‘three thousand seasons’ from one another, the first of which was in the age of Leo. The heavy rains have caused extensive flooding every time and the entrance of the sea inland The document adds the description of various levels of coastal and geodetic points, highlighting six urban settlements of antediluvian foundation. Of these, five are listed as the first headquarters of the Brotherhood.”⁴³

So in what we can now define as “The Rumor document,” there contains a list of names of the affiliates of this Order, and even the meeting places or premises used by the Brotherhood in the various historical periods. Gobekli Tepe appears to be the first in order of time and the area around Urfa, and is referred to as the seat in more recent times, around the fifth century BC.⁴⁴

In the light of this information, although not historically verifiable, the relationship between the architectural site of Gobekli Tepe and the project for the temple in Palestrina, which may become the new Vatican headquarters if the old was invaded or destroyed, is undeniable. This acquires another meaning, and allows me to assume that the design of the Temple of the Holy Spirit, if actually put together by the supporters of this New World Order, would reproduce the ancient headquarters of the Brotherhood—Gobekli Tepe. If it really was indeed the primary site of a community that has been secretly passing down their initiated knowledge for thousands of years, this may be thanks to specific bloodlines of interest within certain families, as Paolo Rumor, the son of Giacomo, points out. It would be 100% plausible that The Temple of the Work of the Holy Spirit in Palestrina would be largely inspired by the ancient temple design. It would not be so absurd if the Vatican Universal Church of the future global government reflected the original plan of the first postdiluvial seat of power of this mysterious Brotherhood.

As specified by their web site (spiritosanto.org) the cornerstones of the future Temple were placed symbolically on Pentecost Sunday, May 30, 1993 by the Pope of globalism himself, one Karol Wojtyla. The President of this important new facet of the Catholic Church, that includes various centers, and even an old folks home in Loreto, is the aforementioned Dr. Antonio Leonardo Montuoro, who founded it together with former Prefect Marinelli, who was, as mentioned earlier, the main person responsible for the safety of Pope Wojtyla. A new Knighthood order, The Knights of the Temple of the Holy Spirit was born from the ashes of a pre-existing Neo-Templar Order, the Su-premus Militaris Templi Hierosolimitani (S.M.T.H.O./Ordine del Tempio). They are a mix between a Catholic Association of laymen working under the auspice of the Azione Cattolica with Bishop Sigalini, and an order of chivalry operating under “General” Enrico Marinelli. This new reality was created in 2009 by Montuoro and Marinelli within the territory of the Vatican State to defend and promote the building of their Temple in Palestrina. The official headquarters are in Rome in a building owned by the Congregation for the Evangelization of Peoples (Propaganda Fide) located in Via Venti Settembre, 98 / G. The Association may also refer to itself as the “Order of The Knights of the Holy Spirit.” You can find a photo gallery on their website with very interesting images of their annual meetings, presided over by Montuoro and Enrico Marinelli.⁴⁵ There is even mention of a Mass conducted in 2012 in one of the main Churches in Rome in memory of Cav. Rocco Zingaro. Marinelli’s order, The Knights of the Temple of the Holy Spirit, however, originates from an external source, a Neo-Templar affiliation with the Portuguese nobility residing in Brazil, whose Italian representative was the above mentioned, Count Rocco Zingaro.

FIG. 19. Dr. Antonio Leonardo Montuoro, nicknamed “The Man of the Holy Spirit” by the recently sainted Pope John Paul II and the author next to a model of the future Temple of the Holy Spirit.

Cav. Rocco Zingaro died in 2011 under circumstances that some of his friends and closest collaborators, including a character who I have spoken of previously, Luciano Sciandra of the Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulcher, consider unclear, if not downright suspicious. Sciandra, who was also involved in running Zingaro’s Templar order before the Marinelli-Montuoro takeover, speaks in particular of a phone call that he received from Zingaro a week before his death in which the Grand Preceptor of the Order of the Temple told him that he was in a life threatening situation and terrorized. A conversation in which he said: “they want to kill me just like they did with Jacob De Molay.”

So who wanted to kill Rocco Zingaro and why? Most likely we will never reach a conclusive solution to this mystery. What is certain, however, is that on his death Dr. Montuoro, Marinelli and the Vatican inherited Zingaro’s Neo-Templar lineage, namely that of S.M.T.H.O., of which Rocco Zingaro was the Grand Preceptor in Italy, and also in possession of a supposed Holy Grail (of dubious origin) and the ashes of the last Grand Master of the Knights Templars: Jacob de Molay, a relic of great importance, but also of great controversy if made public. According to Dr. Montuoro, who I met immediately following the death of Rocco Zingaro, these relicts have been secretly approved as genuine by Peter Hans Kolvenbach, S.J., Superior General Emeritus of the Jesuits, and will be exhibited to the public only when The Temple of the Work of the Holy Spirit opens in Palestrina. This will happen in 2019, but Montuoro stated that nothing depends on him or Marinelli, but must be done following the will of the Lord. This was indicated following their project in Palestrina which may save the Church one day, which is also in accordance with the visions of Our Lady of Medjugorje. One of the six visionaries who visited and stayed in Palestrina was invited personally by Montuoro. With this final move, the Temple of Palestrina would assume a key role not only in the growing Neo-Templar organizations around the world due to the relicts exhibited, but also in the growing Marian Catholic movements, and in the future globalist religious plan set up by the New World Order, of which the same Zingaro was at least initially a strong supporter, as shown in a letter addressed to Pope Ratzinger after his election, that I published in the third volume of my Trilogy.⁴⁶ It seems that poor Rocco in the end changed his mind on this controversial subject, suggesting one more reason for his possible murder. The tradition dictates that the Neo-Templars who don't follow the Johannite faith were Catholics, especially those coming from the Brazilian lineage of the Order of the Temple, that originally arose from the Rosicrucian tradition that is present both inside and outside of Freemasonry, mainly in the upper echelons of the various Masonic Rites thanks to the Jesuits. In the famous Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, for example, the teachings of the Rosicrucians are positioned in the 18th grade. The Symbol of the Rose is an important symbol for the initiated of a certain Christian mysticism. This is also underlined by the future structure of the Temple of the Holy Spirit in which there is a video that shows the 3-D reconstruction of the crypt of the Temple, still present on the internet.⁴⁷ The new Temple of Palestrina clearly shows that the structure evokes a rose with five petals, which are joined by two larger petals divided into three parts. As I have mentioned prior, the first stone was laid by Pope John Paul II on May 30th, a date considered by the ancient Romans to be within the dates of the Feast of the Dead, a period celebrated between the 11th of May and the 15th July, known also as the Festival of Roses, or Rosalia. This tradition is still present in some regions of Italy where the Sunday of Pentecost is called the “The Easter of Roses.” In Christian symbolism, the red rose was the symbol of the blood shed by Christ and the love of heaven, while the white rose was used instead as a symbol of death. The rose represents reality in the making and the manifestation of it. The rose in the West and the lotus flower in the East have the same meaning, that is, they represent the feminine side of creation. The great author and Freemason Rene Guénon (1886-1951) in his book Symbols of Sacred Science, wrote, “In the myth of Adonis (whose name means ‘the Lord’), our hero is hit to death by gritifo the wild boar, his spilled blood spreading on the ground giving rise to a flower that tradition identifies with as the rose.”⁴⁸

FIG. 20. A small-scale model of the future “Temple of the Holy Spirit.”

The Greek myth corresponds symbolically to the death of Christ. That is, Adonis the Lord is brought to death by the spear of Longinus, but instead of the boar blood being collected in a cup, the Holy Grail, when it is dispersed on the ground the blood generates a flower. No coincidence here that when we speak of a “cup” it can be regarded as a flower. The symbolism used for this new Vatican project is pretty clear and obvious by the architectural design in place for Palestrina’s future, the new Temple of the Holy Spirit. The

Freemason author Guénon cites an article written by Louis Charbonneau Lassay (1871-1946), who writes, “we see the blood of the wounds of the Crucifixion fall into droplets that turn into roses, on the stained glass windows of the thirteenth century cathedral of Angers where the divine blood, flowing in streams, blossoms still under the form of roses.”⁴⁹

Guénon reminds us that the rose, like the lily, is also of the same symbolic meaning as the lotus in the East, which represents the passive or feminine principle of the manifestation as stated previously. Guénon explains the symbolism tied to the number of petals of the rose: “It is represented with a variable number of petals, we’ll just point out that the numbers five and six refer respectively to the ‘microcosm’ and the ‘macrocosm,’ moreover, in alchemical symbolism, the rose with five petals at the center of the cross represents the four elements, it is also ... the symbol of the quintessential, who plays on the other hand, relative to the bodily manifestation, a role similar to that of Prakriti.”⁵⁰

The rose, due to its shape and its meaning, rejoins with the symbolic meanings of the spear, the pentacle, and the five-pointed star. The connection between the cross and the rose is the main symbol of The Rose Cross Brotherhood, referring to itself since its creation as, “The Board of Wise Men,” and which has the motto: “Ad Rosamper Crucem; Ad Crucemper Rosam In eaeisgemmatu, resurgam Non Nobis, Non Nobis, Domine Sed nominis tuigloriae solae.” And in the second part of the motto you can clearly see the similarity with the Templar motto: “Non nobis Domine, non nobis, sed nomini tuo dagloriam.”

The Rosicrucian philosophy has always been the true mystic side and the heart of Neo-Templarism and Freemasonry. These are the Neo-Templar Orders that are not particularly tied to the Occult, at least not in appearance. The Knighthood of Marinelli and his loyalists, as well as Montuoro, are experts in esotericism and magic of the highest level, together with the Jesuit controllers of the infamous Vatican Intelligence, which includes both Montuoro and his boss Marinelli. Between the former Vatican prefect Marinelli, now Honorary President of the Order of the Knights of the Temple of the Holy Spirit, and Woytila, who I mentioned earlier, appeared to have a great friendship. We have Montuoro, Marinelli’s right hand man, who was jokingly referred to by Woytila as, “the man of the Holy Spirit,” precisely because of this secret building project in the town of Palestrina. He has from the beginning had the full approval of the Polish Pontiff. It would be interesting to see what Bergoglio thinks of this project. In any case, since their first official meeting at the Vatican in May 2014, Pope Francis and Marinelli have been getting along quite well, and they have a common friend in Father Alfredo Xuereb, the personal secretary of the Argentinian Pope. This means the project for the Temple in Palestrina, and the Order of the Knights of the Temple of the Holy Spirit, will continue in its presence during the Pope Francis era.

I write in the third volume of my Confessions book the following observation:

“The Neo-Templar Order of the Knights of the Temple of the Holy Spirit demonstrates now, without a shadow of doubt, that Neo-Templars of Jesuit origin are present at the top of the Vatican power structure. They have inherited in a murky way the Holy Grail of poor Rocco Zingaro, who found himself despite all this, spending his last years in the old folks home defined officially as a ‘Protected Residence’ called ‘Ave Maria Oasis’ in Loreto, with the description ‘Protected Residence.’ It obviously says something more about the situation Rocco was in, than any other words. The CEO of the retirement home is the aforementioned Dr. Montuoro.”⁵¹

Of course Palestrina is not the same as Palestine occupied by Israel, but for the Vatican it is certainly closer and less dangerous for the time being, given that for many including myself, Italy in the present stage is much closer to civil war and major unrest than you can imagine abroad. This includes the United States, where the population still has a romantic and euphoric view of Italy, typical of the postwar period and the so-called “Dolce Vita” made famous by Fellini’s movies, but of course times have changed. Now we are seeing disturbing signs of crisis from the Italian economy in recent years. Italy has basically left their monetary sovereignty in the hands of the European Union by adopting the Euro currency. The country is now technically in the hands of the Germans, who seem to exercise total control on the fate of the so-called “Euro Zone.” These troubling signals are also monitored very closely by the American Intelligence Agencies searching for new allies in the present political scene. I have found traces of this in a special report, sent by the American Embassy in Rome to the U.S. State Department in Washington, dated April, 2008. This is actually the minutes of a secret meeting between Beppe Grillo, a former comedian turned politician and leader of a new political party also secretly tied to the Vatican and the Academy of the Illuminati in Rome, and the American ambassador at the time Ronald Spogli, who signs the report in question, a document entitled, “NO HOPE FOR ITALY; AN OBSESSION WITH CORRUPTION,” that has the protocol number C175860, part of a series of notes that American intelligence is analyzing not only for their new ally Beppe Grillo, but his new political entity called “Movimento 5 Stelle.” The growing crisis that has involved Italy in recent years is a crisis that touches other Euro Zone countries, particularly those of southern Europe, the nations considered expendable by the Bilderberg Group, which was originally co-founded by the Dutch Prince Bernhard, who was a member of the Nazi Party during World War II. He was particularly linked to the Northern European aristocracy in and around Germany, the country from which originated not only the infamous Order of Illuminati created by Adam Weishaupt, but also The Order of Brothers of the German House of Saint Mary in Jerusalem, commonly known as the Teutonic Order. This leads us to the black heart of the European aristocracy and their Royal Houses. Just think for a moment how the British royalty, probably the most powerful monarchy in the world, is now in the hands of the House of Windsor. In reality, the British Royal Family is the German House of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, and prior to that, was in control by the German House of Hanover until Queen Victoria arranged a few strategic marriages with German royalty. In a few words the elite of Germany, the heart of what was once called the Holy Roman Empire, has always ruled over Britain. Even if the Brits apparently can’t stand the Germans, and waged war against Adolf Hitler, they still submit to them every day in a more subtle way by singing, “God Save the Queen.”

A last note of interest regarding the Nazi connection and their sympathizers. I pose the question: Where do you think the most infamous German officers and other Nazi characters took refuge after their defeat? I’ll give the answer: In Argentina, the home of Pope Bergoglio, whose flag is, amongst other things, similar to the symbol of the Jesuits. Both designs have a sun that radiates 32 solar rays with the same design pattern. All things considered, and knowing the colonial past of the Jesuits in South America, it’s a little too close to be a coincidence, don’t you think?

SUBJECT: LUNCH WITH ITALIAN ACTIVIST BEPPE GRILLO: "NO HOPE FOR ITALY;" AN OBSESSION WITH CORRUPTION

REF: ROME 255

1. (SBU) SUMMARY: Italian political comedian-turned activist Beppe Grillo began a recent discussion with EconOffs saying, "There is no hope for Italy." He believes only a complete replacement of the Italian political class can resolve Italy's corruption problems. Grillo is eccentric, yet appeals to Italy's downtrodden, reliably putting hundreds of thousands into the piazzas in protest against the established order. His comments were a striking contrast to those of Post's other more conventional interlocutors on economics, politics and particularly, corruption. END SUMMARY.

BACKGROUND

2. (U) Giuseppe "Beppe" Grillo is a politically outspoken former comedian-activist who has achieved worldwide celebrity by excoriating Italian politicians in his daily blog, and by prompting a very well-attended (one hundred fifty thousand plus by his count) public rally last fall protesting GOI corruption. The subject of recent features in the New Yorker and other American press, the UK's Observer rated him one of

Chapter: IV

HOMOSEXUALITY AND CHILD ABUSE IN THE VATICAN

“IMPROPRIAM INFLUENTIAM”

THE VATICAN GAY LOBBY AT WORK

In the third volume of The Confessions of an Illuminati,¹ I reveal what happened when Franco Bellegrandi, the former Chamberlain of Cape and Sword of His Holiness Pope Paul VI, as well as one of the journalists who contributed most to the foundation of the “Osservatore Romano” (still the official newspaper of the Vatican), wrote, in 1977, a very interesting and now very rare book entitled Nichitaroncalli, which was published posthumously in 1994.² It was accompanied by a great outcry from the National Press at the time of its first print. This was because among the people who took part in the book presentation, there was none other than one the most powerful cardinals of that time, Cardinal Silvio Oddi. For years, he was one of the leaders of the Roman Curia and the Vatican Intelligence. Oddi seemed happy to endorse what turned out to be a very controversial book. As revealed in this book, such a gesture is scandalous as it indicated, in a very explicit manner, the alleged homosexuality of Pope Paul VI. This brings us in contact with the highest level of hypocrisy in the Vatican, as homosexuality is still a thorny issue that fascinates and divides heterosexual and gay Christians and Catholics around the world. There was utter amazement at so much hypocrisy in the Vatican towards their condition, while at the top of the Holy See, they basically have done what they want in regards to their sexuality since ancient times. Of course, things are different now in the modern age when such information is revealed and is much more easily spread without censorship. Thanks to inside sources, information is now being portrayed accurately, and a few courageous journalists who speculated in the past about this controversial subject are being exonerated. Homosexuality, of course, is not a crime and is considered very natural by the majority of people in the Western world these days. Unfortunately, homosexuality in the Vatican often involves pedophilia, and the protection of those involved are now labeled by the Italian media as the “gay lobby” of the Vatican. On the 11th of February, 2012, exactly one year before the resignation of Ratzinger, the Italian daily newspaper Libero, which belongs to the Berlusconi media empire, spoke openly about this “gay lobby” as possibly the biggest danger facing the Vatican: “Some well-informed sources indicate an even greater threat to the current structure of the Vatican. The business committee is shaking, but it is the gay lobby who feels terrified.”³ Before that, in 2010, the continuing scandals in the Vatican brought another piece from Berlusconi’s media portfolio, the weekly magazine Panorama, that put this unprecedented title on the cover: “THE BRAVE NIGHTS OF THE GAY PRIESTS.”⁴ This is perhaps a revenge piece, taken on at the time by the then Italian Prime minister Silvio Berlusconi, probably the most controversial Italian politician ever, mostly due to his own sexual scandals. At the time, he probably wanted to divert public attention from his personal conduct, considered nothing short of libertine. Panorama decided at the time to film and publish a series of revelations revealing the controversial practice of homosexuality in the Vatican. This also included male prostitution, a reality that many gays in the Italian capital knew about for years, but never dared to reveal for fear of what some insiders call “The Vatican Gay Mafia.”

Interestingly, after the historic resignation of Pope Ratzinger in the first months of 2013, even the so-called “left wing” newspapers of Italy began to speak about the homosexuality issue. This included La Repubblica, with an article by Concita De Gregorio entitled, “Sex, Career and Blackmail in the Vatican behind the resignation of Benedict XVI.”⁵ At the time the hypothesis of the “gay lobby” landed in the La Repubblica newspaper, its owner was, among other things, a well-known Italian entrepreneur named Carlo De Benedetti. He works directly for none other than the Rothschild family, which is stated in his online CV.⁶ The article in La Repubblica spoke about Cardinal Julian Herranz, aged 83, who was a senior Spanish member of the Opus Dei, appointed by Ratzinger along with two other cardinals, to chair the commission of inquiry that the newspapers termed “Vatileaks.” This produced a documentation known as the Vatican “Relationem.” It revealed tidbits about the resigning Pope, something much more unusual than the usual “bad apples” angle that could be expected from within the Vatican walls. It refers to the existence of a secret network linked to the homosexual orientation of their members, or even worse, in some cases linked to pedophilia. Strangely, La Repubblica made no distinction between pedophilia and homosexuality in their article. That seemed like a serious mistake, especially for a newspaper considered to be “left wing,” and they would later be criticized for doing so by the renowned Italian association for the defense of the rights of homosexuals called, “Circolo Mario Mieli.” Here are the words of Concitta De Gregorio, from the article in question dated February 21, 2013, a few days before the final abandonment of the Petrine throne by Ratzinger: “For the first time the word homosexuality has been pronounced, read aloud from a written text, in the apartment of Ratzinger. For the first time it has been said, although in Latin, the word blackmail: ‘influentiam,’ His Holiness. ‘Impropriam influentiam.’” De Gregorio continues her uproar, predicting the destiny of this key document for the future of the Church: “The ‘Relationem’ now is there. Benedict XVI will deliver it into the hands of the next Pope, who should be strong enough, and young, and ‘holy’—he hopes—to tackle the huge job that awaits him. Designed, in these pages, is a geography of ‘improper influences’ that a man very close to their author described in this way: ‘Everything revolves around the non-observance of the sixth and seventh commandment.’ Do not commit adultery. Do not steal. The credibility of the Church will be shattered by the evidence that its own members violate the original dictation. These two points, in particular.”⁷ “Relationem” is the name of the work created by these three cardinals. The aforementioned Julián Herranz Casado, Salvatore De Giorgi and Jozef Tomk, who at the time of the Polish Pope, were head of the Vatican secret counterintelligence unit. They had been recalled to duty by the German Pope to investigate, and possibly create, a “360 degree” view of the infighting and evil within the Roman Curia. In the end, they delivered the final result of their investigation directly to Pope Ratzinger on December 17, 2012. Their operation and their intelligence work continued even after Pope Benedict XVI’s resignation. After February 26th, 2013, the day of their last papal audience with Ratzinger, the three grand inspectors, with ever greater insistence, made the results of their investigation outlining the wrong doings within the Curia available to the Conclave, as to provide useful information related to the election of the new pontiff. It was the secret files of the “Relationem” that eventually caused the improvised resignation of Ratzinger, who now is referred to as the Pope Emeritus, and who had an audience with the famous trio on the day of his resignation.

The “Relationem” seems to be a dossier of 300 pages which contains disturbing evidence, interviews, wiretaps, autographed letters, admissions, oaths and so on, about the scandals that took place over the last few years in the various institutions of the Vatican. In fact, the analysis appears to have many similarities with parts of the third volume of my trilogy, soon to be released by CCC Publishing, that mainly focuses on the corruption of evil inside the Vatican. Some say this was another of the reasons why Ratzinger resigned. This is an accusation that can only flatter me.

Di Feo, a Vatican expert of the prestigious Italian weekly news magazine L'Espresso, another publication of the aforementioned Carlo De Benedetti, wrote in July 2013 about the investigation in a special article dedicated to the “gay lobby.” “At first they seemed just some cheap shots in an underground game of poison that overflowed from breaches of the Leonine walls. Then the suspicions have been consolidated in the little information leaking from the secret and shocking investigation ordered by Benedict XVI.” Di Feo states further on in the article, “The new pope knows the ‘Relationem,’ the final report of the Curia cardinals drawn from the three investigators appointed by his predecessor.”

“RELATIONEM”

They say that up until now Pope Francis has actively used the “Relatio-nem” to clean up the Vatican scene. In September 2014, in an unprecedented move, the Vatican authorities arrested in their own Vatican territory the already laicized Archbishop Jozef Wesolowsky with the charge of pedophilia, and who was found to have over 100,000 sexually explicit photos of children on his computer. He is a citizen of both the Holy See and Poland, and at one time he was the papal nuncio in the Dominican Republic. For the first time in history, the Vatican has (finally, in 2013) introduced the crime of pedophilia into Criminal State Law, and is now proceeding directly against one of their own. The Holy See has been put under extreme pressure by the United Nations since February 2014, in regards to the many crimes against minors committed by the clergy worldwide. The UN report noted: “The committee is gravely concerned that the Holy See has not acknowledged the extent of the crimes committed, has not taken the necessary measures to address cases of child sexual abuse and to protect children, and has adopted policies and practices which have led to the continuation of the abuse by, and the impunity of, the perpetrators.” This report was announced by Kirsten Sandberg, who chairs the UN Committee on the Rights of the Child. Finally, we see a prosecution against the “gay lobby,” but it seems like a drop in the ocean. The file, in fact, appears to be deliberately incomplete, with rather important omissions that will sooner or later bring Pope Francis to make bad and even embarrassing choices. Eventually, even the new Pope will suffer what the most widely-known Italian gossip blogger Roberto D’Agostino rightly calls a *“poisoned chalice.”*⁸

This has occurred with the appointment of Monsignor Battista Mario Salvatore Ricca, for example, at the top of the IOR. Regarding this controversial decision, Sandro Magister wrote in the previously cited special edition of L'Espresso, dedicated in the summer of 2013 to exposing the gay lobby:

"In the curia there is talk of a 'gay lobby.' And it is true, it's there. 'Let's see what we can do,' Francis said on June 6 to Latin American religious received in audience. And again: 'It is not easy. Here there are many of the pope's 'bosses' with great seniority of service,' he confided a few days ago to his Argentine friend and former student Jorge Milia. In effect, some of these 'bosses' have hatched against Jorge Mario Bergoglio the cruelest and most subtle deception since he was elected pope. They kept important information in the dark, that, if he had known it before, would have kept him from appointing Monsignor Battista Ricca the 'prelate' of the Institute for Works of Religion. With this appointment, made public on June 15, Francis intended to place a trusted person in a key role within the IOR. With the power to access all of the proceedings and documents and to attend all of the meetings of both the cardinalate commission of oversight and of the supervisory board of the disastrous Vatican bank. In short, with the task of cleaning house. Ricca, 57, originally from the diocese of Brescia, comes from a diplomatic career. He served for fifteen years in the nunciatures of various countries before he was called back to the Vatican, to the secretariat of state. But he won Bergoglio's trust in another guise, initially as director of the residence on Via della Scrofa at which the archbishop of Buenos Aires stayed during his visits to Rome, and now also as director of the Domus Sanctae Marthae in which Francis has chosen to live as pope. Before the appointment, Francis had been shown, as is customary, the personal file on Ricca, in which he had not found anything unseemly. He had also heard from various personalities of the curia, and none of them had raised objections. Just one week after appointing the 'prelate,' however, during the same days in which he was meeting with the apostolic nuncios who had come to Rome from all over the world, the pope became aware, from multiple sources, of some episodes from Ricca's past previously unknown to him and such as to bring serious harm to the pope himself and to his intention of reform. Sadness over having been kept in the dark with regard to such grave matters, and the intention to remedy the appointment he had made, albeit not definitive but 'ad interim:' these were the sentiments expressed by Pope Francis once he was aware of those matters.

FIG.24. Cover of the Italian weekly news magazine L'Espresso, no. 29 of 2013, on newsstands July 25, 2013, and dedicated to the infamous "gay lobby" of the Vatican, indicated as one of the primary enemies of Pope Francis.

"The black hole in Ricca's personal history is the period he spent in Uruguay, in Montevideo, on the northern shore of the Rio de la Plata, across from Buenos Aires. Ricca arrived at this nunciature in 1999, when the mandate of the nuncio Francesco De Nittis was coming to an end. Previously he had served at the diplomatic missions of Congo, Algeria, Colombia, and finally Switzerland.

"Here, in Bern, he had met and become friends with a captain of the Swiss army, Patrick Haari. The two arrived in Uruguay together. And Ricca asked that his friend be given a role and a residence in the nunciature. The nuncio rejected the request. But a few months later he retired and Ricca, having become the chargé d'affaires "ad interim" until the appointment of the new nuncio, assigned Haari a residence in the nunciature, with a regular position and salary. At the Vatican they let it go. The substitute for general affairs in the secretariat of state at the time was Giovanni Battista Re, a future cardinal, he too originally from the diocese of Brescia. The intimacy of the relations between Ricca and Haari was so open as to scandalize numerous bishops, priests, and laity of that little South American country, not last the sisters who attended to the nunciature. The new nuncio, Janusz Bolonek of Poland, who arrived in Montevideo at the beginning of 2000, also found that 'ménage' intolerable immediately, and informed the Vatican authorities about it, insisting repeatedly to Haari that he should leave. But to no use, given his connections with Ricca.

"In early 2001 Ricca also got into a scrape over his reckless conduct. One day, having gone as on other occasions—in spite of the warnings he had received—to Bulevar Artigas, to a meeting place for homosexuals, he was beaten and had to call some priests to take him back to the nunciature, with his face swollen. In August of 2001, another mishap. In the middle of the night, the elevator of the nunciature got stuck and in the early morning the firemen had to come. They found trapped in the car, together with Monsignor Ricca, a young man who was identified by the police authorities.

"Nuncio Bolonek asked that Ricca be sent away from the nunciature and Haari fired immediately. And he got the go-ahead from the secretary of state, Cardinal Angelo Sodano. Ricca, dragging his heels, was transferred to the nunciature of Trinidad and Tobago, where he remained until 2004. There as well he butted heads with the nuncio. Finally to be called to the Vatican and removed from diplomatic service on the ground. As for Haari, in the process of leaving the nunciature he demanded that some of his luggage be sent to the Vatican as diplomatic baggage, to the address of Monsignor Ricca. Nuncio Bolonek refused, and the luggage ended up in a building outside of the nunciature. Where it remained for a few years, until from Rome Ricca said that he didn't want to have anything to do with it anymore. Once the luggage was opened to get rid of its contents—as decided by the nuncio Bolonek—a pistol was found in it, which was handed over to the Uruguayan authorities, and in addition to personal effects, an enormous quantity of condoms and pornographic material. In Uruguay, the facts reported above are known to dozens of persons: bishops, priests, sisters, lay people. Without counting the civil authorities, from security forces to fire protection. Many of these persons have had direct experience of these facts, at various moments. But at the Vatican as well there are those who know about them. The nuncio at the time, Bolonek, always expressed himself with severity with regard to Ricca, in reporting to Rome. And yet a blanket of public silence has covered until today these past episodes of the monsignor. In Uruguay, there are some who respect the granting of silence out of scruples of conscience. Some for the duty of office. Some who are silent because they do not want to put the Church and the pope in a bad light. But at the Vatican there are some who actively promoted this cover-up operation. By blocking the investigations from the time of the events until today. By concealing the reports from the nuncio. By keeping Ricca's personal file immaculate. In this way they facilitated a prestigious new career for Ricca. After his return to Rome, the monsignor was integrated into the diplomatic personnel serving at the secretariat of state: initially, from 2005, in the first section, that of general affairs; then, from 2008, in the second section, that of relations with states; and then again, from 2012, in the first section, with a top-level position, that of nunciature advisor first class.

"Among the tasks assigned to him was supervision of the spending of the nunciatures. And from this as well was born that reputation as an incorruptible moralizer which was assigned to him by the media all over the world, at the news of his appointment as 'prelate' of the IOR. Moreover, beginning in 2006, Monsignor Ricca was entrusted with the direction first of one, then of two, and finally of three residences for cardinals, bishops, and priests visiting Rome, including that of Saint Martha. And this allowed him to weave an intricate network of relationships with the highest levels of the Catholic hierarchy all over the world. The appointment as 'prelate' of the IOR was for Ricca the crowning of this second career of his. But it was also the beginning of the end. Because of the many upright persons who knew about his scandalous past, the news of the promotion was a cause of extreme bitterness, all the more keen because it was seen as a presage of harm for the arduous enterprise that Pope Francis has in the works, of purification of the Church and of reform of the Roman curia. Because of this some believed it to be their duty to tell the pope the truth. Certain that he would make the consequent decisions."⁹

One year after publication, Monsignor Ricca is still working in the Institute for Works of Religion (IOR) as one of the three key players in charge of what is the Vatican Bank.¹⁰ Bergoglio has done nothing to correct his decision, demonstrating his failure to oppose one of the top leaders of the Vatican “Gay Lobby. “ Why then did Pope Francis say: “Non è facile. Qui ci sono molti ‘padroni’ del papa e con molta anzianità di servizio.” This can be translated in two ways: “It is not easy. Here there are many of the pope’s ‘bosses’ with great seniority of service,” or “It is not easy. Here there are many ‘owners’ of the pope with great seniority of service,” Who then are these “bosses,” or even worse the “owners,” of the Pope? Isn’t he supposed to be a free man and the top of the Vatican power structure? Apparently not. It would appear that God’s representative on Earth has more terrestrial controllers, if we are to believe his own words.

In the same historical piece published by L’Espresso, Di Feo wrote, “Now the information that did not reach Pope Francis regarding the past of Monsignor Battista Ricca seem to close the circle, in a design pattern that has something diabolical: the gay lobby in the Vatican exists, strong, rooted around the management of business and blackmail.” The reason why Pope Francis can still trust Msgr. Ricca to serve him in one of the most delicate positions of power within the Vatican, especially after the scandal broke in the Italian media, remains a mystery to this day. There must be something more to the real power this figure holds, who is clearly a senior representative of the infamous “gay lobby.” Most Italian media articles pointed this out after he was nominated for the top job at the IOR, perhaps hoping as Magister and Di Feo had, that Pope Francis will eventually make him resign. Unfortunately, this did not occur.

The picture emerging is that the Church of today is made of sexual scandals, pedophilia and blackmail, performed by clergy and Vatican workers at all levels. There is a “mafiosi” protection of sorts, exercised by powerful and respected cardinals, bishops and archbishops of the infamous “lobby.” Many of the orgies organized continuously in the Vatican and villas on the outskirts of Rome as well, are often the result of actual Black Masses. Pope Francis on the 27th of May, 2014, on his way back from the Holy Land stated, “Pedophilia is like black masses.” This should remind us of an Italian book that came out in the 90’s entitled, *SATAN AT THE GATES OF ROME a Journey in the World of the Black Masses.*¹¹ This book is an in-depth investigation, written by Enrica Cammarano and Letizia Strambi, which reveals, amongst other things, that such rituals are often carried out in proximity of the Papal Palace of Castel Gandolfo, based in the town of Castel Gandolfo, located 15 miles (24 kilometers) southeast of Rome in the Lazio region of Italy. The authors write:

“But there is another factor to be taken into consideration for the choice of the Castelli Romani: the Pope has taken his summer residence in Castel Gandolfo. The devotees of evil find the Pope’s choice is not random and prefer these lands because they are trodden by the footsteps of many popes. Finally, everywhere the fear is spreading on the advent of a new era. In history everything seems to collapse except Rome, the Eternal City. However, there are many prophecies that see in the year 2000, the beginning of a new aeon characterized by an attack on the church ... in their own home”¹²

We must also remember that in the period immediately after the resignation, Castel Gandolfo had been, albeit temporarily, chosen as the residence of Pope Emeritus Joseph Ratzinger, who has been accused by more than one person to have participated in black masses himself.

It seems that the older cardinals did not vote in the election of Bergoglio because of their advancing age. This would have left evidence that the three Inspectors General of the Holy See, if we want to call them in this way, knew of these terrible practices.

To sum up the “Relationem,” it gives particular emphasis to the non-observance of two commandments in particular. They include the Sixth Commandment, “Thou Shalt Not Commit Impure Acts,” and the Seventh, “Thou Shalt Not Steal.” These are the two main problems today in the Vatican: First the Gay Lobby, and second the IOR, the infamous Vatican bank. They are the constant source of scandals and criminal activities, and from an inside source that has observed Bergoglio closely from his installation to the Throne of Peter, it seems that whatever he is doing on the surface to fight these two delicate issues in the eyes of the public is just merely a show, not a real act of significant change. Sad but true, a Jesuit in the end is always a Jesuit, no matter how white his liturgical clothing gets. Pope Francis, the Jesuit, is unfortunately disappointing many, including this author, who thought for a brief time that real change was at hand in the heart of Christianity.

THE QUEEN OF FREEMASONRY ARRIVES ... A YEAR LATE

On August 31, 2013, we find the strange and sudden departure of Cardinal Bertone when Pope Francis officially accepted his resignation, for reasons of age, from the all-powerful position of Secretary of the Vatican State. This also coincides with the forced resignation, a month before, of another friend of Bertone, the IOR Director General named Paolo Cipriani. Both actions seem to originate from the suspected violations of the international anti-recycling laws by the two prominent figures and their bank clients. Apparently the true identities of the many owners of mysterious and top secret bank accounts held in the Vatican Bank are mentioned in the previously discussed “Relationem.” Such secret accounts belong to many influential people, some of whom may be prominent Italian politicians never previously investigated, seemingly because of the usual lack of interest from both the Vatican and the corrupt Italian Republic. Not surprisingly, there was also mention of accounts of mafia bosses, drug traffickers, so-called terrorists, and secret agents of the CIA. They would use their accounts at the IOR to put away huge sums of money originating from money laundering, drugs, political corruption, and even funds for terrorist operations and to be used for bribes, in the Vatican bank.

According to Giorgio Bongiovanni, a very controversial character because of his claimed stigmata and some say New Age religious delusions, there may be even much more in the documents contained in the “Relationem.” A controversial figure, he constantly fights against corruption of the Vatican by the Mafia in the magazine Antimafia Duemila that he courageously runs from his headquarters in Via Asti 23 in the Italian city of Porto S.Elpidio. Bongiovanni makes reference to a scandal involving 229 million euros that was put on deposit with the IOR. Apparently arranged by APSA, the most important financial institution of the Vatican State, this money was secretly routed toward accounts in London during the final years of the pontificate of Ratzinger, and discovered later by Italian prosecutors based in Rome.¹³

To have a clear idea of the function of APSA, here is the Wikipedia definition on the subject:

*“The Administration of the Patrimony of the Apostolic See (Italian: Amministrazione del Patrimonio della Sede Apostolica, abbreviated APSA) is the office of the Roman Curia that deals with the ‘provisions owned by the Holy See in order to provide the funds necessary for the Roman Curia to function’ Pastor Bonus, 172 as revised by the 8 July 2014 motu proprio of Pope Francis on the transfer of what had been the Administration’s Ordinary Section to the Secretariat for the Economy. In its reduced form, it acts as the Treasury and central bank of Vatican City and the Holy See. It was established by Pope Paul VI on 15 August 1967.”*¹⁴

This secret financial operation mentioned by Bongiovanni is judged by experts in the field as another huge money laundering scandal orchestrated by the Vatican with no respect for international laws, an operation which even disrupted the powerful Freemasons of the Bank of England.

I myself was initiated years ago into the United Grand Lodge of England (Kirby 2818). Founded with the help of the Bank of England Lodge, I know very well the figures of power residing in the City of London, whom are based in a specific area widely referred to as The City, the business heart of London. They operate when things get out of hand, and this happened when another important banking institution called Monte dei Paschi di Siena (MPS), the oldest in Italy, was involved in illegal operations with the IOR when they illicitly sent a couple of billion to London. At this point, the direct intervention of Queen Elizabeth II was requested by her loyal Freemasons of The City. During this time, the financial police in Italy expanded their investigation into what is now believed to be a 90-million-euro fraud at MPS, including new investigations in several Italian cities including Siena, Rome, and Milan. The latest search in 2014 is part of a broader probe targeting alleged members of the so-called “5% gang”—a name given to ex-bank managers suspected of taking 5% payoffs on banking operations under a previous management.¹⁵

Most of the managers of this so-called “5% gang,” are Freemasons linked to Stefano Bisi, a well-known journalist and communication expert from Siena, Italy. Bisi is a person who once collaborated with the MPS and was elected to succeed Gustavo Raffi on April 5th, 2014, as Grand Master of the Grand Orient of Italy. This is the only Masonic obedience recognized by their American counterparts in the various States of the Union.

Meanwhile, the investigating judge of the court of Siena announced the file had been suddenly closed into the supposed suicide of David Rossi, the bank’s communication manager of MPS and a close collaborator of Stefano Bisi. He jumped, or was probably forced, from a window of the MPS headquarters in March 2013, exactly one year before Bisi became Grand Master of the Italian Freemasons. The family of Rossi had their doubts on his suicide, and strongly opposed the archiving of this case from the start.¹⁶

The journalist and Masonic expert, Rita Pennarola, in March 2014, wrote of the many connections between Bisi, Rossi, and MPS, wondering if there was the involvement of what she called the “illuminated” hand of Bisi and his influential Freemasons from Siena, in the 30-meter fall of poor David Rossi.¹⁷ Rossi’s office computer was also apparently hacked and manipulated by an unknown individual soon after his death.¹⁸ But this is Italy, and the case was closed in March, 2014, due to the influence of the people involved, including the new Grand Master, Stefano Bisi.

Let us return to the arrival of Queen Elizabeth II at the Vatican, and her secret mission on behalf of the Freemasons of “The City.” Worried about the disturbing news coming from the Vatican and the Italian financial sector, this meeting was originally scheduled to occur at the beginning of March 2013, and would have coincided with what we can define as the Masonic murder of David Rossi. This was yet another improbable death of a prominent banker, just like the 1982 “suicide” of

Roberto Calvi, who was called “God’s Banker,” and was found hanging from scaffolding under London’s Blackfriars bridge the day after he went missing from Rome. The Queen’s previous journey had been delayed a year, as on March 3, 2013, she was rushed to and remained at a hospital for 24 hours, due to what was officially reported as a severe gastrointestinal problem. Until 2002, the hospital in question was called The Royal Masonic Hospital. Despite her medical problems, as she was leaving the hospital, The Queen of the Craft, as she is traditionally referred to in English Freemasonry, launched a very subtle, yet a strong and unequivocal signal to “The Brothers” involved. Always attentive to the symbolic details, the Queen was accompanied to the exit of the hospital with a nurse wearing a huge buckle with the symbols of Freemasonry, which was in use at the hospital only until 2002.¹⁹

The Queen of England finally arrived at the Vatican for a meeting with Pope Francis on April 4th, 2014. This was a visit of very strategic importance from what is not only a head of state but also the supreme leader of the Anglican Church, and protector of English Freemasonry, which is only present in the Vatican by the Duke of Kent, cousin of Her Majesty, and the Grand Master of the United Grand Lodge of England. This brief visit by the Queen, originally intended to sort out the various financial problems detected by her Freemason bankers, and eventually, to take the pulse of the Conclave for the election of the Pope in 2013, happened in 2014, and focussed instead on the growing crisis in the Ukraine, the Middle East, and Israel, where the Pope went to visit in May, 2014. This was the beginning of the worst crisis in decades, so Francis was dispatched to instruct his Jesuit agents on the coming conflicts and their plans of action for the area. The Queen of Freemasonry had, to a certain extent, influenced the nomination of Pope Francis, as is true with previous nominations, beginning with the first Masonic and Rosicrucian Pope in 1958, Pope John XXIII.

She must have been very pleased with the work of Pope Francis, who has been cleaning up the mess of his predecessors, at least in the public eye. With the help of Shimon Peres of Israel, another key player in Freemasonry, he is now planning what will become the world parliament of religions, the final stage of the plan devised by the New World Order. Peres said before meeting Pope Francis on the 4th of September, 2014: “The UN has done its time, what we need is an Organization of the United Religions, a UN of the religions.”²⁰

THE PARALLEL INVESTIGATION TO PROTECT THE LOBBY OF BERTONE AND THE ILLUMINATI

Over the years, the Vatican has kept hidden the largest tax evasion of all time, which has never been denounced by any government. Their crimes go unpunished because of the sovereign state status held by the Vatican, where obviously it is not the Holy Spirit that reigns, but rather the spirit of Satan, along with his gang of pedophiles, satanists, mafiosi, and Masonic businessmen that are leading the Church of Rome into an inexorable decline. Let's not forget that it was the son of a mobster, the controversial Massimo Ciancimino, who revealed not too long ago, that he had accompanied his father Vito, to the offices of the Vatican bank, to deposit briefcases containing billions of lire. And then there was the testimony of Vincenzo Calcara, who became a traitor to the mafia, a so-called "pentito," but also a precious informer to the investigating authorities. He stated that he delivered in person, to a high prelate, the sum of 10 billion lire. This large sum of money was the result of criminal trafficking by some say the current head of Cosa Nostra, the Sicilian "Boss of Bosses," Matteo Messina Denaro, also known as Diabolik. These revelations are just the tip of the iceberg, if we went much deeper than that, and we could prove our findings, it would probably mean the end of the Church. Here we have, in the age of information technology, a person who could very well be considered the last Pope.

I would call him a "technical" pope, in the period before complete collapse, a sort of "Governor" of the Church who reminds me of the ex-Italian Prime Minister and economist Mario Monti, a proud Jesuit student and a member of the Bilderberg directorate, who rose to power in Italy without being elected, kicking out Berlusconi in 2012 thanks to the Bilderberg and the Vatican. With a sort of technical coup d'état to save the stability of the NWO Euro Zone, Pope Francis and his team are a kind of “insolvency service” set up by the Vatican Jesuits. As the aforementioned Beppe Grillo said, given the situation and the decline facing the whole of Italy and the Church of Rome, it's a dominatrix.

Francis needs to be a sort of ferryman, who would ferry the Vatican ship to the end of its time on earth, preparing for the advent of the so-called Universal Church in 2019. The same Beppe Grillo is now very close to the former Secretary of State Tarcisio Bertone, as they are both linked to the Academy of the Illuminati in Rome, and their President/Grand Master, Professor Giuliano Bernardo. After his first face-to-face meeting with Bertone, Grillo had initially hoped that Bertone would be elected as Pope, going so far as to publicly announce it on his website, specifying that Bertone was the last Pope of the Malachi prophecies, the famous Petrus Romanus.²¹ This explanation came together partly because Bertone was born in Romano Canavese, a small town in the province of Turin, hence the link with the name Petrus Romanus. Grillo suddenly changed his mind after the resignation of Benedict XVI, and instead of announcing the advent of Bertone, he stated: “Maybe the next one will be a black Pope,”²² indicating later on, that it could be a Pope of possible African descent. Some say to this day, that Pope Francis is the so-called “black Pope” of the prophecies, simply because he is a Jesuit.

This sudden change in Bertone's status with Beppe Grillo (and contrary to some people's perception, Grillo remains a powerful man of the system), was probably related to the fact that the earliest revelations of Ratzinger's butler, the so-called “Crow” of the Vatican, the now-infamous Paolo Gabriele, were about the “gay lobby” and Bertone, who was portrayed as the biggest loser due to these revelations that ruined his public image forever. It seems that Bertone had even initiated a secret investigation in 2011, in order to protect his colleagues from the “gay lobby,” which included, some inside sources say, Ratzinger himself, as well as the former Grand Master of Ceremonies of the Pope, Monsignor Camaldo, as previously mentioned and indicated by Julian Assange of Wikileaks, as an agent of the CIA involved in homosexual activities monitored by The Agency.

“For more than a year, email, phones, meetings and discussions have been meticulously put under observation, on behalf of Cardinal Tarcisio Bertone, the Vatican Gendarmerie led by General Domenico Giani, a former Italian intelligence officer, that in the coming weeks could lead the Holy See to a new assignment at the United Nations.” The Italian edition of the Huffington Post reported this in an article in the weekly Panorama, on February 28, 2013. The article anticipated and highlighted the content²³ of what will be revealed on the day Ratzinger abandoned the Vatican theater, to become Pope Emeritus. He did not come down from the cross as Jesus would have probably done, but is “going up the hill,” instead. Ratzinger, in fact, took the helicopter to his Castel Gandolfo summer residence, which I mentioned earlier, in the area infested by satanists in Castelli Romani, in the hills near Rome. This is where he retired for a few months before returning to his current residence, a monastery inside the Vatican walls. Regarding General Domenico Giani, who began the investigation instigated by Bertone, it is worth mentioning that he is still at the service of the new Pope every day. He never departed for the UN as wrongly predicted by journalists, most likely because he is from Arezzo, the city of the Ex-Worshipful Master of the infamous P2 Masonic Lodge, Licio Gelli, a friend of Giani and also a very special friend of the Vatican. He collaborates with them as an expert on intelligence and a Commander of the Order of the Holy Sepulcher of Jerusalem, as well as a Grand Officer of the Order of St. Sylvester Pope. According to the first statement from the Panorama article, this top secret investigation issued by Bertone and his associates was dated until 2012, but they later corrected it to 2011. “When the first letters of threats to Bertone began circulating (revealed by “Panorama”) with the first leaks of confidential documents, they were put in place as the most massive and widespread work of interception ever made to date in the Sacred buildings which, according to some, continues to this day.”²⁴

Of course, there remains a lot of confusion, even in the media, between this parallel investigation and the main “Relationem” conducted by Vatican intelligence cardinals: Herranz, De Giorgi and Tomko. What followed has been defined as “Vatileaks,” the main investigation conducted by Vatican authorities which was officially released when the “Crow” scandal broke in the press, to investigate such leaks and arrest the suspects. In the end there was only one suspect, the butler, the classical scapegoat. Bertone’s original investigation began much earlier in 2011, which was initiated by Bertone as a result of the threats received personally and by other members of what appear to be the “Gay Lobby.” In a letter named the “Great funerals at court,” it soon became Bertone’s personal attempt to save his position when the “Vatileaks” investigation was taken over by the Vatican Judicial authorities. Later the intelligence operatives of the “Relationem” began their own operation, and to this day, we don’t know how much of this previous investigation was passed on and used for both “Vatileaks” and “Relationem,” and how much was omitted and used to save and preserve the powerful “Gay Lobby,” as in the case of Monsignor Ricca, who was conveniently left out so he could reach his new position in the new IOR of the Pope Francis era. Regarding the conclave that elected Bergoglio, it was controlled by the usual foreign intelligence services, normal to the Vatican. We have seen in recent history throughout the period of the Cold War, with the United States and Russia in the lead, attempts to steal secrets and effect the choice of Pope. This happened to poor Cardinal Siri, for example, as far back as 1958, when he was forced to renounce because of Roncalli’s choice. This was made by the powerful Masonic lobby at the time, which was preparing the stage for the Second Vatican Council.

Since the last Conclave there has been a clash between inside lobbies. Above it all, we find Cardinal Bertone and his associates ready to use sophisticated methods and technology to gather information, and set in motion the eventual blackmail methods traditionally used by modern intelligence agencies. All this merely to defend the interests of the Vatican “Gay Lobby,” under attack by the Italian media, and under investigation by the Vatican authorities of “Vatileaks” and the Vatican intelligence trio responsible for the “Relationem.” This internal struggle has worried many concerned, especially those who reside within Vatican territory. In addition to emails and phone calls that have been archived by the “Vatileaks” investigators, Bertone’s men put together a list of all those who entered and exited from the Leonine Wall after 9 PM. A list containing what some say include many names of men and women engaged in prostitution activities within the Vatican walls, as well as drug deals of cocaine and other contraband used by workers and clergy alike. A parcel addressed to the Vatican containing cocaine-filled condoms was seized by German customs officers in March, 2014. The package was sent to the Vatican from a South American country and contained 14 condoms filled with £33,000 worth of liquid cocaine.²⁵ Two men were also detained in September, 2014 by French police after the discovery of four kilos of cocaine and between 150 to 200 grams of cannabis, which were discovered hidden inside an official Vatican car with diplomatic number license plates. As you can see, there is a constant demand for these kind of substances at the Vatican’s so-called “Party Time” events. The only statement to the press made about the unprecedented initiative of the Vatican ex-Secretary of State, Tarcisio Bertone, was made by the official spokesmen Jesuit Father Federico Lombardi at the end of February, 2013, and was just before Ratzinger left the picture. In the heat of the moment, it went nearly unnoticed: “In the context of Vatileaks that may have been authorized by the prosecution, and not by the Secretary of State, (there were) a number of interceptions and some controls. I can assure you that it is not a large investigation or generalized.” So the Vatican spokesman, Father Federico Lombardi, downplayed the initiative of Cardinal Tarcisio Bertone and even said, “Two or three phone utilities may have been put under control,” followed by, “To say that this case involves an extensive investigation across the board that creates the atmosphere of fear or distrust, and now affects the Conclave has no affinity with reality.” The statement by the magazine Panorama, revealed on their website that same day, seems to state something different, “This thorough investigation has been ordered to the Vatican Gendarmerie, coordinated by the master Domenico Giani, on the request of the Secretary of State. The months following the publication of confidential documents from the Secretary of State and from the Papal States, led the Gendarmerie to strengthen their efforts in the investigation. These have been the subject, in February 2012, of a specific measure authorized by the promoter of justice, Nicola Picardi. The trials of Paolo Gabriele and Claudio Sciarpelletti, celebrated in the months of October and November 2012, and concluded with a sentence for both defendants, have not stopped the investigative work of the Gendarmerie, which has instead continued—and it is not yet defined—with particular reference to the following alleged offenses: crimes against the state, crimes against the powers of the state, insulting state institutions, slander and libel, the inviolability of secrets. It should also be noted that the body of the Gendarmerie, under the control of the Governorate of Vatican City State, in its capacity as police and judicial protection of public works closely with the first section of the Secretariat of State ‘Section of the General Affairs’ under the responsibility of the Substitute (art. 13th, c.3 L. CCCLXXXIV of 16 July 2002 on the Government of the State of Vatican City, and art. c.141, the Apostolic Constitution, Pastor Bonus).”²⁶

With this note Panorama made a reverse statement of sorts, confirming that the then-Secretary of State Tarcisio Bertone and his deputy were, therefore, “ex officio” and were kept abreast of investigations and protection of the public order carried out by the Vatican Gendarmerie, and had access to the relevant documents by way of their work, thus justifying their investigation, deemed according to Vatican law, 100% legal. Or maybe this is what they would like us to think.

We can only speculate why Lombardi insisted on making the following comment during a press conference on the 28th of February 2013, “In the context of Vatileaks, they may have been authorized by the prosecution, and not by the Secretary of State.” The Vatican law states that in this case, “the Gendarmerie, under the control of the Governorate of Vatican City State, in its capacity as police and judicial protection of the public, work closely with the first section of the Secretariat of State.”²⁷ On the vastness of the surveillance controls, Panorama finally makes clear that the operations room of the Vatican Gendarmerie has been archiving a huge mass of data, mainly phone and web activity by a large amount of people inside the Vatican, not the 2 or 3 intercepted phone lines falsely stated by Father Lombardi.

All this information is still available to the investigation department and the Group of Rapid Intervention (GIR) of the Vatican Gendarmerie.²⁸ And finally, for those who are thinking after all this that the Vatican and Freemasonry are at war, the ex-Grand Master of Freemasonry at the time of the infamous P2 Lodge, Armandino Corona, received for his final departure in 2009 a “syn-cretistic funeral” mixing the two traditions. This ceremony was held in Cagliari, in the Basilica dedicated to Our Lady of Bonaria, protector of Sardinia, visited the year prior by Pope Ratzinger. On this occasion he bestowed the honor of a Golden Rose to the Basilica.²⁹ The mixture of the two rites only apparently antithetical to each other would obviously be judged blasphemous by non-Masons, especially in the Catholic world. The people involved do not have such concerns, having the power and the knowledge of both the esoteric and the occult that bind them secretly in a church very different from what has always been portrayed. A Church that has in their knightly orders the point of contact with the upper echelons of Freemasonry (which are more than willing to enlist in the Knights of the Holy Sepulcher) as well as those in the Sovereign Order of Malta, or other less important, even if not officially recognized by the Vatican.

THE DUTCH CATHOLIC DISASTER

In 1993, the head of the diocese of Rotterdam unexpectedly left his post and retired to the Benedictine abbey of Chevetogne in Belgium. Years later, the reason for his sudden departure became public and the Dutch Church received another blow to their already precarious image. It was revealed that Prelate Philippe Bär, who had led the diocese of Rotterdam for ten years, had been accused of giving organizational support to a pedophile association. The well-known Vaticanist insider, Giacomo Galeazzi, wrote in December 2011, *“Bishop and leader of a ‘gang’ of pedophiles: the prelate Philippe Bär (who headed the most important diocese in the Netherlands from 1983 to 1993) is suspected of offering organizational support to an association which intended to sexually abuse minors and to take part in such acts.”*³⁰

Galeazzi’s observations seemed to open the inquiring eye of the mainstream media. Three months later, in March 2012, the Dutch evening newspaper NRC Handelsblad published an article³¹ in which they accused the Catholic Church of having ordered and organized in the fifties, the castration of a dozen men to apparently “cure” them of their homosexuality. In reality, castration was often a punishment for revealing too much about their sexual encounters with the clergy. The UK newspaper The Telegraph reported on the Dutch article cited above, and stated that, “At least 10 teenage boys or young men under the age of 21 were surgically castrated ‘to get rid of homosexuality’ while in the care of the Dutch Roman Catholic Church in the 1950s.” The article was written by Joep Dohmen, a journalist of NRC Handelsblad who was among the first to investigate cases of child abuse within the Dutch Church in 2010. This was before the government decided to open an official investigation into the abuse. His newspaper is headquartered in Rotterdam and is one of the most widely read newspapers in the Netherlands. After the publication of these articles, some Dutch parliamentarians called for the opening of a new survey and asked to interrogate Weim Deetman. He was the figure responsible for an independent commission to investigate the pedophilia cases, but failed to mention the castration cases.³²

The article by Dohmen became extremely popular in March 2012, and was cited by many newspapers around the world, ranging from *The Daily Beast*³³ to The New York Times.³⁴ The new articles basically revolved around the story of a young Dutch citizen named Henk Heithuis. Mr. Heithuis was first locked up in a psychiatric hospital run by the Catholic Church and then surgically castrated in 1956. He was sent there after he reported to the Dutch police the abuse he suffered between 1950 to 1953 at the Harreveld Catholic boarding school in the province of Gelderland, in Holland. “This case is especially painful because it concerns a victim who was victimized for a second time,” said Peter Nissen, a professor of the history of religion at Radboud University in the Netherlands. *“He had the courage to go to the police and was castrated.”*³⁵

The journalist Robert Chesal, who reported for The Daily Beast on how his colleague and collaborator Joep Dohmen uncovered the Dutch castration scandal wrote that, “he was a colleague who I worked with to break the story of Dutch church sex abuse back in 2010. Dohmen and I, working for our respective media outlets but sharing information, uncovered a series of scandals in boarding schools and parishes that led hundreds of abuse victims to step forward and tell their story. Our work led the Dutch bishops to install a commission of inquiry that completed its work last December.”

FIG.28. On the right is the Inspector General of the Vatican Domenico Giani (b.1962), notice the Knights of Malta (SMOM) jewel on his collar.

So how did these two investigative journalists, who had already revealed dirt on the Catholic Church in the Netherlands in 2010, receive such shocking information regarding Henk Heithuis? It was from a friend of Henk named Rogge who apparently helped them, as Chesal writes, “Rogge, a 79-year-old sculptor living in a converted farmhouse near the Dutch city of Zutphen, showed me a stack of letters from the 1950s. Some were in his own hand; others were from his brother, their deceased mother, and their friend, Henk Heithuis.”

Since he is such a central figure in all this, let's try to understand better the incredible story of Henk Heithuis from the words of Robert Chesal: “In 1956, Henk, then 20-years-old and legally a minor, reported the clerical abuse to the police. Hearing about the abuse, the police treated him as if he were insane, bringing him to a Roman Catholic psychiatric hospital where he was involuntarily committed. People there told detectives Henk was ‘a homosexual, untrustworthy, a liar and mentally disturbed.’ One month later, at St. Josephs Hospital in the southern Dutch town of Veghel, Henk was surgically castrated or ‘eugenized,’ as the hospital records put it, using a term previously attributed to the Nazi program of systematically sterilizing the mentally and physically handicapped. In one of his letters, Henk wrote about how he was ‘maimed.’ The surgeon, he told Rogge, played records to calm the other boys who were in the hallway, waiting to undergo the same procedure. ‘I didn’t believe him,’ Rogge said. But when Henk took off his pants to show him, he was shocked to see the truth. ‘When he undressed I saw that, indeed, there was nothing left there where his testicles used be. It blew us away to see that this was not a joke. He was mutilated.’ ‘Henk said the monks there preyed on the boys,’ Rogge told Dohmen. ‘When he was seventeen he became the brother superior’s play thing.’ In a series of articles for his paper, Dohmen reconstructed how Henk tried to get his life back on track after his discharge from St. Josephs. In April 1957, with nowhere to live, Henk joined the crew of a Dutch cargo ship headed for Indonesia. But on board, his body swelled up grotesquely and he had wild mood swings caused by the hormonal imbalance following his castration. When the ship docked in Kobe, Japan, Henk went ashore and sought help. With the help of the Dutch consul there, he found Ysbrand Rogge, Cornelius’s brother. Ysbrand, a merchant banker in Kobe, arranged for Henk to fly home to Amsterdam by KLM jet, and he ensured that his mother Thea would be waiting for Henk when he got there. Thea took him in and got him medical help. Thea Rogge wrote in one of the letters her son kept that the lawyers and doctor who’d helped Henk had found nine more cases—another nine boys who’d been castrated in similar circumstances. Dohmen found documents that show that there were more castrations, and he knows the identity of at least one more person, but suspects there could be many more. Using Thea Rogge's letters, Dohmen traced the rest of Henk's story. He discovered that Henk, once nursed back to health, had moved out of her house and found a place of his own. Lawyers acting for Henk had filed suit against the psychiatric institution and the child welfare board that approved the minor's involuntary commitment and castration, demanding 150,000 guilders or about $100,000, at the time, in damages. A few weeks after Henk reported brother superior Gregorius to the police, Gregorius was spirited out of Harreveld boarding school. Records in the Dutch state attorney's office reveal that he was never prosecuted, for 'lack of evidence.' His congregation quickly moved him to New Glasgow, in Nova Scotia, where he helped set up a home for the mentally handicapped and worked for many years, according to a Dutch newspaper. Gregorius, whose given name was Gregory van Buuren, died in 1993 of natural causes, at the retirement home of his congregation in the Netherlands.³⁶

Henk Heithuis died in 1958 in a mysterious car accident, and some monks were later convicted of sexual abuse, but the story of his castration never surfaced until many decades later, and according to Dohmen, there is evidence that at least nine other boys were castrated. This is particularly disturbing because as it was reported in Time magazine, "The revelations are especially shocking given the long-standing Dutch traditions of openness and tolerance, notably regarding homosexuality. Same-sex relations have been legal in the Netherlands since 1811, and the country was the first in the world to legalize same-sex marriages in 2001. Perhaps most disturbing, however, is the fact that the castration claims were also missed by an official investigation into sexual abuse in the church published last year. The investigation—headed by Wim Deetman, a former Dutch Education Minister and mayor of the Hague—looked into 1,800 reports of sexual abuse by clergy or volunteers within Dutch Catholic dioceses from 1945 to 2010. While the 1,100-page final report concluded that tens of thousands of children had been abused over 40 years, it did not delve into the castration claims, saying, "There were few leads for further research."³⁷

The author and journalist Giacomo Galeazzi, back in 2011, wrote, "The independent inquiry commission presided over by former minister Wim Deetman, reached a shocking conclusion, identifying 800 perpetrators of abuses (priests and lay staff), of whom 150 are still living. One in five minors who came into close contact with Church structures, in the Netherlands, between 1945 and 2010, were forced to suffer abuse."³⁸

The Deetman Commission, promoted and supported officially by the Catholic Church, only seemed interested to investigate cases that occurred from 1945 to 1985. They probably left out the more recent cases to the scrutiny of the public, as to not upset the present hierarchy of the Dutch Catholic Church, and again they failed to make any mention of the castration cases.³⁹ The investigation officially ended in December of 2011, which was led by Willem Joost “Wim” Deetman, who was born 3 April 1945 in The Hague. He was a Dutch politician of the Christian Democratic Appeal (CDA), a statesman, former minister of education and mayor of The Hague, and currently a member of the Dutch Raad van State (Council of State).⁴⁰ Needless to say, in recent times the CDA has been the dominant political party in the Netherlands. It is a pro-Vatican party, however several groups of activists have criticized the work of the Commission of Inquiry controlled by Deetman, accusing the Catholic politician of covering up many abuse cases committed by the Church. In the end Deetman has been criticized by the Dutch parliament for failing to include evidence of the castrations of at least ten minors.⁴¹ Radio Netherlands Worldwide even went as far as stating: “We now know that former Dutch cabinet minister Wim Deetman did not meet the expectations he raised when he chaired the Commission of Inquiry into sexual abuse in the Roman Catholic Church. He did not get to the bottom of the abuse scandal or reveal all of the horrors that took place behind church doors in the Netherlands.” The radio station made mention that journalist Dohmen found something even more important during his investigation, “He discovered that the Deetman Report failed to mention a certain political figure who tried to secure a royal pardon for Gregorius and other convicted Catholic brothers from Harreveld. That was Victor Marijnen, a former Dutch prime minister and leading member of the Catholic People’s Party (KVP). The KVP later merged with Protestant parties to form the Christian Democrats (CDA)—the political party of inquiry commission chairman Wim Deetman. Victor Marijnen was in an extraordinary position in the 1950s. Not only was he a rising star in his political party, he was also vice-chairman of the Dutch Catholic child protection agency, and—most pertinently—director of Harreveld boarding school. The Deetman Commission was aware of these connections and the potential conflicts of interest they represent. The commission was aware of Marijnen’s letter to the Queen on behalf of sexual abusers, too, but omitted these facts in its report. Reacting to Dohmen’s revelations, the Deetman Commission explains that it did not mention Marijnen because it did not detail any cases that could be traced back to an individual, for the sake of protecting privacy. However, elsewhere in the same report we see numerous mentions of cases that can be traced back to individuals, even highly-placed figures such as bishops Ad Simonis and Philippe Bär. The commission did not shy away from slapping these men on the wrist. It’s not unreasonable to conclude that the Deetman Commission refrained from investigating the castration because it knew this would inevitably lead to closer scrutiny of the Harreveld situation, exposing the role of Victor Marijnen and showing Mr. Deetman’s own political party in a very negative light indeed.”⁴²

The Italian television network LA 7 picked up the story for a TV special, and stated that in this tragedy of chemical castration there was, “not even a hint in the final report by the Commission.”⁴³ As per the usual, the Deetman Commission was controlled and manipulated by the Vatican Jesuit stooges who responded to the media accusations by saying they had been aware of the case of Henk Heithuis (of course they were!), but they were simply not able to arrive at a definite conclusion based on a supposed lack of evidence, showing once more that the Catholic hierarchy and their politicians are liars with no heart.

THE VATICAN AND THE NETHERLANDS OF HORRORS

In May of 2013, more shocking revelations were revealed from Holland with the statements of Toos Nijenhuis, alleged victim of pedophilia by priests and people in high places. She is described by a known blogger as, “a fifty-four-year-old physiotherapist and mother of five from Holland, who was tortured, raped and used experimentally from the age of four years old by wealthy and powerful men around the world, including top officials of churches and governments. And, Nijenhuis claims, these crimes are continuing today, including the ritual sacrifice of children in rural Holland. On May 7 (2013), Ms. Nijenhuis accompanied Kevin Annett, Mel Ve and other investigators to a forested site near to Zwolle where such child murders took place as recently as November, 2010, according to Ms. Nijenhuis. Among the perpetrators who are named in these crimes and who allegedly assaulted Toos Nijenhuis are Prince Bernhard of Holland, who was the grandfather of the newly- crowned Dutch King Alexander, and a founder of the Bilderberg Group; Catholic Cardinal Bernard Alfrink of Utrecht, and members of the British Royal Family.”⁴⁴

Ms. Nijenhuis is not alone. Supporting her extraordinary claims is another eyewitness of the events, a man who was a regular participant in the dark rituals of the pedophile cult, including the supposed killing of children. We find him in a video next to Nijenhuis saying, “I saw Joseph Ratzinger murder a little girl at a French chateau in the fall of 1987,” stated the witness who was a regular participant in the cult ritual torture and killing of children. “It was ugly and horrible, and it didn’t happen just once. Ratzinger often took part. He and (Dutch Catholic Cardinal) Alfrink and (Bilderberg founder) Prince Bernhard were some of the more prominent men who took part.”⁴⁵

Ms. Nijenhuis is now hoping for some kind of binding legal action against the Church on her behalf by the ITCCS, the International Tribunal into Crimes of Church and State, a legal entity that is now moving in this direction. I therefore hope that sooner or later we will all receive clarification on what has really happened in the Netherlands. It’s safe to say that as a democratic nation there must be more honesty and transparency from both its clergy and its politicians.

Regarding Ratzinger, he is perhaps not the monster described by Ms. Nijenhuis and her friend, but we can’t be certain of these incredible allegations until we have further evidence. Pope Emeritus, more than any other, taking into account his previous position of power during the pontificate of John Paul II, and who was Prefect of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, is certainly guilty of having acted for years in a conspiratorial mode at the top of the Vatican hierarchy, often to cover up the wrong-doing of his pedophile priests. He could have initiated a process of transparency and renewal of the Church if he was a different man, without waiting to reach this level of shameful decline that possibly led to his resignation. During the reign of the now-sainted John Paul II, Ratzinger was in charge of the “Faith,” and pedophile priests were not only tolerated in the Vatican, but often rewarded by the Polish Pope. It has been proven, without a shadow of a doubt, that these are the serial pedophiles at their very worst. There is Father Marcial Maciel Degollad (who died January 30, 2008), founder of the Legionaries of Christ, a pedophile involved in numerous sexual scandals which came out only after the death of Pope Wojtyła, and were finally acknowledged publicly by Ratzinger only after his death. Jimmy Savile, the now-deceased pedophile BBC presenter, who in 50 years had molested more than 200 victims and, according to a witness, had even boasted of turning into jewelry the glass eyes stolen from bodies in a morgue in which he often gave himself to acts of necrophilia. “A glass eye stolen from a *corpse by Jimmy Savile, which he then made into a trophy necklace, was sold at a charity auction for £75 shortly after his death. It is believed to have been worn by the pedophile DJ as he co-presented the final episode of 'Top of the Pops' at BBC Television Centre in 2006, where he also groped a child. An official NHS report revealed yesterday, Savile had bragged about stealing glass eyes from the sockets of the dead at Leeds General Infirmary, and had them made into rings and medallions."*⁴⁶

This infamous monster known as Jimmy Savile, who until his death on October 29 of 2011, was never charged with anything because he was protected in high places, received in his hands personally by the so-called Saint, John Paul II, an important acknowledgment when he was nominated Knight of the Pontifical Equestrian Order of Saint Gregory the Great, in 1990.

So the next time people speak of how good of a man Wojtyla was, let them read this book and maybe then they will begin to understand what kind of person he really was.

THE "BABY PROSTITUTION RING" AND THE CHURCH OF COMPROMISE

In November 2013, yet another big scandal erupted in Italy with clear links to prominent political figures and the Vatican. A few months after the election of the new Argentinian Pope, the Italian police discovered a child prostitution ring that was operating in the Parioli neighborhood in the north of Rome, which is one of the most exclusive areas of the Italian capital. This latest pedophilia scandal shook Italy to its core. It was not only the result of the present decay of morals, which now rages in our Western society, but was secretly controlled for years by the forces imposed on us by the New World Order.

FIG.30. A frame from the video interview showing Toos Nijenhuis, alleged victim of pedophilia by priests and people in high places, along with another alleged super witness.

FIG 31. Pope John Paul II together with the infamous pedophile Jimmy Savile, during his appointment as Knight.

It is also the inevitable result of compromise and hypocrisy reigning within our current society. A society which, beyond measure, tolerates deplorable conduct. It pretends to not see what is really going on, often out of laziness, or perhaps to keep up the appearance of a quiet life around them.

Even in an exclusive neighborhood of Rome, the meetings of these young prostitutes went on for years undisturbed before being finally discovered by the police. The public was initially shocked while television programs bombarded its viewers with improbable "Talk Shows" and "News" on this sad story. The paradox is that the more you dig into this cross-section of today's society, the more it opens into the world the proverbial “Pandora’s Box” in which the prevailing squalor ends with the discovery of more and more customers from the so-called elite of our society. These include professionals, military officers, politicians, and even Mauro Floriani, director of Trenitalia, and husband of Alessandra Mussolini, the granddaughter of fascist dictator Benito Mussolini, (Il Duce) and the niece of Sophia Loren. Shortly after this story broke and the names began to leak, the newspaper articles and the various broadcasts about this delicate subject suddenly stopped. This occurred after investigators discovered evidence that certain employees of the Vatican were also involved in this child prostitution ring.⁴⁷ The apparent loyal customers of the “Baby Prostitutes” as they were called, also include what could be important prelates.

After these revelations, and as far as the mass media was concerned, the case was closed. For the public, going deeper into the story would have been too much for the Catholics of Italy to handle, a culture still somewhat submissive to the Church. After all, the public is consumed at present with a sort of Pope frenzy, created by Bergoglio and his Jesuits, to manipulate the masses further. In any case, 40 people, potential clients of the ring are still being investigated. The girls involved were aged 14 and 15. When the press exposed the Vatican involvement, the online edition of the Roman newspaper, Il Tempo, always loyal to the Vatican, quickly wrote, “It could not be priests involved, but civilians.”⁴⁸ In a later print edition of the same newspaper, reported by the website Gazzettino.it, a police investigator admitted: “We are also investigating priests and politicians who could be involved in the case.”⁴⁹

The following period witnessed the absolute silence of the Italian and the international media on this delicate case. The first convictions arrived in the summer of 2014, which of course did not include the politicians, the priests, or the Vatican employees involved. This was yet another demonstration of the power of the Holy See, which said nothing on the matter, even in the supposed new era of Pope Bergoglio, who just preferred to ignore the whole thing. A month before the scandal erupted, in October 2013, another abuse case involving the Church was brought to light and this time it involved Pope Francis directly. Erik Zattoni from the city of Ferrara in northern Italy told his story to reporters of the Italian television program, Le Iene, broadcasted by Berlusconi’s TV channel ITALIA UNO. The poor Zattoni knew from an early age that he was the product of rape by a priest. When his mother was aged 14, she was abused by a priest that housed her and her family in the parish. He was born from this terrible act of violence 33 years earlier, and now in 2013 he finally demanded justice from the “new” Church of Pope Bergoglio. But the media outlets of Ferrara focused their attention on the reaction of the present Bishop Luigi Negri, which was truly shocking and not in line with the supposed Christian values of the Bishop. At the microphone of Le Iene, the Bishop made it clear that he did not have too much to say about Zattoni's case, or the priest responsible for it.

When a journalist from Le Iene asked how a priest could remain in his position even after a "crime of this nature," Negri glossed over the question by stating: "You want to teach the Church how to be the Church? Certainly it is fair to say that there were reasons why the Church believed that he should be dismissed. Rape is not enough. For the monetary compensation I don't know who you should ask, but not me. These things are civil matters, not ecclesiastical. Stop it, because I am getting upset."⁵⁰

I think these unrepentant words by a Bishop are more than enough to understand the current situation within the Church. So how does Pope Francis fit in Zattoni's case in particular? When he was still a Cardinal, a mere four days before his Pontifical election, he was interviewed on the case by the same TV show.⁵¹ Quite annoyed, with an attitude far removed from what we see today as the "good" Pope Francis, he dismissed the case and left in a hurry. It's quite paradoxical that in early December 2013, Bergoglio received with a smile, a book on the Inquisition from the Israeli Prime Minister Netanyahu.⁵² Perhaps he should use it as inspiration for his work with the group of Cardinals denominated the "C8" that he has put together, which I will discuss in a moment. The news that was broadcast on April 13th, 2013, exactly one month after his election, stated that eight cardinals were chosen to advise the Pope, "in the government of the universal Church" to consider a draft revision of the Apostolic Constitution Pastor bonus on the Roman Curia. "I think that the consultation is very important," said Francis in an interview with the Jesuit publication Civiltà Cattolica. He stated, "The consistories and synods are, for example, important places to make real and active consultation. We must, however, make them less rigid in form. I want to consult them in a real way, not formal. The consultation of the eight cardinals, this outsider advisory group, is not only my decision, but the result of the will of the cardinals, as it has been expressed in the general congregations before the conclave. I want it to be a real consultation, not just formal."⁵³

The C8 group that is apparently assisting him in his mission of "purifying" the Church in the eyes of the public is composed of Cardinals from all continents: Giuseppe Bertello (the only Italian particularly linked to the Knights of the Holy Sepulcher), Francisco Javier Errazuriz Ossa (only emeritus of the group), Oswald Gracias, Reinhard Marx, Laurent Monsengwo Pasinya, Sean Patrick O'Malley, George Pell, and Andrés Rodríguez Maradiaga. The latter also plays the role of coordinator, while the function of secretary has been entrusted to Marcello Semeraro, the Bishop of Albano, which is a town near Rome. Their official level function has focused on the administration of the Vatican machine, which is not treating in any consistent way, the increasing demands for compensation by victims of pedophilia performed by the clergy. Since their appointment, the cardinals in question have been in contact with each other where they exchange ideas, proposals, collected materials, and cited instances from the Bishops Conferences to which they belong. With the new Secretary of State Pietro Parolin, the C8 has also worked with the so-called Council of 15, for the Study of Organizational and Economic Problems of the Holy See (Meisner, Rouco Varela, Pengo, Carera Rivera, George, Fox Napier, Cipriani, Scola, Toppo, Pell, Vallini, Urosa Savino, Ricard, Odilo Scherer, Tong Hon). The Council of 15 was created at the time by John Paul II to create greater collegiality in the approval of the financial statements, budgets and accounts of the Vatican. At the center of the debate “the mission of the IOR,” is inserted in the wider mission of the Church as seen from not only the “economic operational side.” The Cardinals officially consider a “limited horizon,” but I have to wonder, do they really? In the end it seems that the IOR will not close its doors after the arrival of Pope Francis as many of us were hoping. The final decision, of course, is not really up to the Pope, but to the Roman Curia which is the first and most direct collaborators of the Pope, and were not excluded from this process of apparent transformation of the administration structure of the Vatican.

All the heads of the various departments, in fact, have submitted proposals to reform or otherwise improve the coordination between the curial offices and their activities. There are two main issues that the eight cardinals from the C8 are dealing with, in particular, together with the Pope, since their appointment to this new office. To begin with, there are questions on the life within the Church: collegiality, the relationship between the center and the particular churches, the relationship between the Curia and the Bishops’ Conferences, and the possible reform of the Synod of Bishops. On this, much material and many requests and suggestions were collected by the Bishops’ Conferences of various continents. The second major theme is the reform of the Roman Curia.

On the roadmap, there are cases to streamline the Curia itself, which has often been perceived as a central governing body of the Church as opposed to a service to the universal ministry of the Bishop of Rome. Streamlining could go through the amalgamation of several pontifical councils, some of which, for example, could be embodied in a new Congregation for the Laity. Another issue concerns the structure of the Secretariat of State that was, as we know, in the hands of the infamous Cardinal Bertone. Lost in such bureaucracy, who knows if the Pope and his team will eventually manage to save the dignity of the Church before his departure from earth. Let me say, I have my doubts. Meanwhile, in early December 2013, more shocking news began to unfold in the media regarding the possible resignation of Pope Francis himself at some point in the near future. Such a possibility was first hinted by Guillermo Marcó, “After Benedict’s gesture it will not seem too strange if Francis gave up, after having done what he thought was right to do and if he feels that his strength is weakening.” Marcó also stated during a radio interview, “To be able to resign, as the bishops do, would be positive, since it would then appoint younger people.” Obviously by doing so Francis will be giving in to the New World Order project to destroy any divine presence in the various religions before the One World Religion comes to life. French journalist Caroline Pigozzi, who with the Jesuit Henri Madelin, authored a book on the figure of Francis, called Ainsi fait-il. In an interview given to the website Infobae, he stated that the tradition of the Society of Jesus would be in the Pope’s future decision to resign, and must be taken into account: “I believe that Francis had a vision of his own power, a Jesuit vision and personal. He arrived late for his mission but wants to accomplish it and knows what he is doing.” He then adds, “the day he feels that he can not go further, that the forces are deserting him, he should leave, as did his predecessor.” According to Pigozzi this could become “a new rule in the Vatican. If Francis also resigns he would create in this way a historical precedent, which would become part of the tradition in the Vatican.” Religious political fiction? Not really. In August 2014, on his way back from Korea, Pope Francis confirmed what his ex-spokesmen Guillermo Marcó had suggested, that he may one day resign the papacy. Marcó stated, “The pope said that his predecessor Benedict XVI has opened the door for papal resignations with his decision to stand down last year, the first example since Pope Gregory XII in 1415. Some theologians may say this is not right, but I think this way,” In a lighthearted exchange with reporters returning to Rome from a trip to South Korea, Pope Francis noted, “Let us think about what (Benedict XVI) said, ‘I have become old, I do not have the strength.’ It was a beautiful gesture of nobility, of humility and courage.” He added: “But you could say to me, if you at some time felt you could not go forward, you should do the same.” Asked about his immense popularity, the 77-year-old joked that he would probably die soon so he should not get too proud: “I know this will last a short time, two or three years, and then I go to the house of the Father.” Pope Francis also said he had some nerve problems that he treated with a South American tea-like drink called Mate, and that he had not taken a vacation away from home since 1975.⁵⁴

Comments like this naturally lead Catholics—and the general public alike—to begin to wonder with some apprehension, what then will happen after Ratzinger’s resignation if another Pope leaves the Chair of Peter voluntarily? The continuous indispositions of Bergoglio in the internal wars for the ultimate control of the Vatican bank are worrying to many insiders who say the Pope is fed up.⁵⁵

In short, Francis could very well resign, but by doing so it will mean the definitive and final end of what is left in the Sacrality of the Papacy, as well as fulfilling the NWO aspirations. Whatever excuse Pope Francis gives, it not justified in a religion based on the ultimate sacrifice of its founder: Jesus Christ.

Chapter: V

PROPHECIES AND MORE...

THE END TIMES ALWAYS HAVE A NEW BEGINNING

The crisis looming over the Catholic Church has long been a constant theme of prophecies—some very old, and others from reputed seers in the last few decades. Consistent with biblical prophecy, the Irish Saint Malachy predicted almost 900 years ago that the last pope will be called Petrus Romanus, or “Peter the Roman,” and would oversee the destruction of Rome. Catholic prophecies also tell of an “Antichrist” who will betray the faith. In more recent times, the apparitions of Our Lady of America— a partially-approved apparition—which warned in 1981 that certain “priests and consecrated virgins” were caught in a “web of evil” which included “unnatural acts,” while others were teaching “false doctrines” and “repudiating” the sacraments, raise even more eyebrows.¹

In light of the many prophecies, current events, and the mass sensitivity of Catholics, we find ourselves divided amongst those who try to recall the numerous—and sometimes puzzling—prophecies of “The Last Pope,” and others who are dazzled by the rich background and charismatic history of Christianity. Then there are those who wish to delve deeply into the shocking circumstances of Ratzinger’s resignation. In light of the dramatic political and human crisis that now involves the whole world, it confirms for many the arrival of an “End of Times” scenario. Despite what some might believe, the impression that emerges from the prophecies and Christian apocryphal writings is not just a bunch of religious “mumbo jumbo” of apocalyptic suggestions put together, but on the contrary, they demonstrate a precise story line of great proportions, at times dramatically true, predicting episodes of importance from the recent past. The “End of Times” scenario we seem to be leaving in these new dark ages, defined by the decadence of the Church affected by apostasy, should later give birth to the infamous “Reign of the Antichrist” narrative, who has possibly already risen to power in the view of many Christian eschatologists. The persecution and martyrdom that the Church will have to face however in this terrible period for mankind will be followed by a possible “rebirth,” and of course, this could correspond to the predicted and increasingly real project for a One World Religion, complete with their Temple in Palestrina that we analyzed earlier. The messages of the prophets are clear: there will be a dramatic period of “tribulation” and divisions, a possible schism, infighting within the clergy, and apostasy within the ranks of the faithful. Those who will not side with the growing evil and stay true to the path of Christ will eventually be rewarded for their strong faith. The possibility of a sort of diagram on the basis of these prefigurations is clearly of a Hermetic nature: Passion-Death-Resurrection, the same pattern that we find in the exemplary life of Jesus, and the true significance of mystical Christianity. This brings us to the rebirth stage of true awareness and understanding—but only after a period of profound tribulation. In some traditionalist interpretations, the mystical visions will lead to the inside “construction” of the faithful’s soul. That is, only those who follow the pure path of practice and prayer will be the ones able to “save” their soul from death and dissolution.

THE EMMERICH VISIONS

The Christian prophecies accepted by the Vatican seem to allude to the resignation of Ratzinger as a major turning point, and more generally they are addressed to this specific period in history. We find it in the words of the Virgin from the cycle of Rue de Baruch, La Salette and Fátima, and the visions of the Blessed Catherine Emmerich (1774-1824). Born at Flamske in Westphalia, Germany, on September 8, 1774, she became a nun of the Augustinian Order at Dulmen. She had the use of reason from her birth and could understand liturgical Latin from her first time at Mass. During the last 12 years of her life, she could eat no food except Holy Communion, nor take any drink except water, subsisting entirely on the Holy Eucharist. From 1802 until her death, she bore the wounds of the Crown of Thorns, and from 1812, she apparently received the full stigmata, including a cross over her heart and the wound from the lance. Anne Catherine Emmerich seemed “to have possessed the gift of reading hearts, and she saw, in actual, visual detail, the facts of Catholic belief which most of us simply have to accept on faith. The basic truths of the catechism—angels, devils, Purgatory, the life of Our Lord and the Blessed Mother, the Real Presence of Christ in the Eucharist, the grace of the Sacraments—all these truths were as real to her as the material world.”²

A book called The Life of Anne Catherine Emmerich written by Rev. Carl Schmoeger, C.S.S.R. was published in English back in 1870 and reprinted in 1968 by Maria Regina Guild, based in Los Angeles, California.³ The truly remarkable visions that were seen by Emmerich between 1820 and 1822, and channeled to use a more modern term, which spoke of a false church in Rome built against every rule, in which they would find and shelter heretics of every kind, giving rise to division and chaos. Along with this premonition is introduced for the first time the theme of twin popes, and the false ecumenical Church established in Rome. The latter reference sounds much like The Temple of the Work of the Holy Spirit, a truly “strange, and extravagant Church” created by what are becoming the zombies of the New World Order, the ones Emmerich says in her visions work “mechanically.”

Let’s examine directly some of her most interesting visions:

“I saw also the relationship between two popes... I saw how baleful would be the consequences of this false church. I saw it increase in size; heretics of every kind came into the city of Rome. The local clergy grew lukewarm, and I saw a great darkness.

“I had another vision of the great tribulation. It seems to me that a concession was demanded from the clergy which could not be granted. I saw many older priests, especially one, who wept bitterly. A few younger ones were also weeping. But others, and the lukewarm among them, readily did what was demanded. It was as if people were splitting into two camps.

“I saw that many pastors allowed themselves to be taken up with ideas that were dangerous to the Church. They were building a great, strange, and extravagant Church. Everyone was to be admitted in it in order to be united and have equal rights: Evangelicals, Catholics, sects of every description. Such was to be the new Church ... But God had other designs.

“I saw again the strange big church that was being built there in Rome. There was nothing holy in it. I saw this just as I saw a movement led by Ecclesiastics to which contributed angels, saints, and other Christians. But there in the strange big church all the work was being done mechanically according to set rules and formulae. Everything was being done according to human reason.

“I saw all sorts of people, things, doctrines, and opinions. There was something proud, presumptuous, and violent about it, and they seemed very successful. I did not see a single Angel nor a single saint helping in the work. But far away in the background, I saw the seat of the cruel people armed with spears, and I saw a laughing figure which said: ‘Do build it as solid as you can; we will pull it to the ground.’

“I saw again the new and odd-looking church which they were trying to build. There was nothing holy about it ... People were kneading bread in the crypt below ... but it would not rise, nor did they receive the body of our Lord, but only bread. Those who were in error, through no fault of their own, and who piously and ardently longed for the Body of Jesus were spiritually consoled, but not by their communion. Then my Guide (Jesus) said: ‘This is Babel.’”⁴

Regarding this subject, there is also a similar prophecy by Nostradamus in one of his famous quatrains, numbered II.30, and entitled,

The New Mass of Many Languages, the Antichrist:

*“One whom the infernal gods of Annibal
Shall be reborn to terrorize mankind
Never greater horror have been reported
One shall come due to the Babel
Mass given to the clergy.”⁵*

The vision of the two popes seems incredibly accurate in relation to Ratzinger and Bergoglio, but it also continues to be accurate in reporting that the priest would have surrendered to every kind of obscenity, from gambling to sex, just like they do these days in the Vatican. Emmerich continues:

“I saw deplorable things: they were gambling, drinking, and talking in church; they were also courting women. All sorts of abominations were perpetrated there. Priests allowed everything and said Mass with much irreverence. I saw that few of them were still godly ... All these things caused me much distress.

“Then I saw an apparition of the Mother of God, and she said that the tribulation would be very great. She added that people must pray fervently with outstretched arms, be it only long enough to say three ‘Our Fathers.’ This was the way her Son prayed for them on the Cross. They must rise at twelve at night, and pray in this manner; and they must keep coming to the Church. They must pray above all for the Church of Darkness to leave Rome. ... These were all good and devout people, and they did not know where help and guidance should be sought. There were no traitors and enemies among them, yet they were afraid of one another.

“I saw more martyrs, not now but in the future. ... I saw the secret sect relentlessly undermining the great Church. Near them I saw a horrible beast coming up from the sea. All over the world, good and devout people, especially the clergy, were harassed, oppressed, and put into prison.”⁶

In the prophetic dreams of Don Bosco, the Church also appears divided towards a possible schism. Don Bosco (1815-1888) was the founder of the now powerful Salesians of Don Bosco, known also as the Salesian Society. Most of the prophecies associated with Don Bosco came to him during his dreams, just as in Matthew’s Gospel where the process of Joseph is being instructed by angels during dreams, is also described. It is clear that Don Bosco’s experiences were more than the sort of dreams most of us have when asleep. Most of his dreams were concerned with the direction both he and his Order, the Salesians, were to take in the future, and in particular with the students who lived at his oratory in Turin. He would often speak to them just before they went to bed, sometimes predicting that one of their number would die within a certain period, but without indicating who.

On the 30th of May 1862, during one of his “Good Night” talks, Don Bosco told his boys and the young clerics that he was training, about a dream he had a few nights previously. He stated: “Very grave trials await the Church. What we have suffered so far is almost nothing compared to what is going to happen.”⁷

This seems to echo what was said only a few decades earlier on October 1st, 1820, by Anne Catherine Emmerich, “The Church is in great danger. We must pray so the Pope does not leave Rome; there would be innumerable evils if he did. Now they are demanding something from him.”

But what is most striking in this prophetic scenario is the explicit reference to the “Secret Society” made by Emmerich, that would set out a plan for the destruction of the Church. Who and what is she referring to? Perhaps the Illuminati and their Ecclesiastical Freemasonry? Even Mother Agnes Steiner and Blessed Anna Maria Taigi spoke respectively of a church without a pastor and of the Holy Father being forced out of Rome: “They will have to leave their monasteries, monks and nuns will be uprooted from their convents, especially in Italy. ... The Holy Church will be persecuted. ... Unless people with their prayers obtain the pardon, the time will come that will see the sword and death, and Rome will be without a shepherd. ... The religion ... will be persecuted, and priests massacred. The churches will be closed, but only for a short time. The Holy Father shall be obliged to leave Rome.”⁸

ARE THE PROPHECIES TRUE?

Can these visions described above be defined as authentic? Of course their authenticity is not only a matter of formal approval by the Church, which may or may not accept them as genuine. There are a variety of extremely popular visions that have made their way into the hearts and faith of millions, even without formal acceptance. The intentions of a few in charge at the top of the Vatican hierarchical structure still count on the ultimate Pontifical approval, as in the case of Our Lady of Medjugorje, also known as Queen of Peace. It may soon be considered part of the official and recognized visions of the Church, as is typical for all claims of private revelation that the Catholic Church must follow as a standard criterion for evaluating apparitions. There are two possible judgments: constat de supernaturalitate, or “It is confirmed to be of supernatural origin,” and non constat or “It is not confirmed.”⁹ The Catholic Church has made successive comments on the status of the Medjugorje apparitions, and each has been declared non constat, that is, it cannot confirm the supernatural nature of the apparitions.¹⁰

The Vatican commission set up to study the Medjugorje prophecies concluded their work on January 18, 2014, but its results have remain unpublished.¹¹ Of course, this begs the question why? They could be simply slow in publishing them, but in reality there are still many doubts on their authenticity due to the strange behavior of some of the visionaries involved. Inside the Vatican, that is, the NWO lobby of Marinelli, Montuoro and company, are those trying their best to promote this Marian cult, as there are also economic and geopolitical interest in the matter.

In order to have a clear perspective on this particular matter for non-Catholics or non-Christians alike, I will let the Catholic American blogger Glenn Dallaire from Bristol, CT, who specializes in the extraordinary mystics and visionaries of the Church,¹² articulate a good explanation on the subject:

“Some might ask if there are authentic mystics, visionaries and prophets in the world today? Judging by history the answer would have to be a most resounding ‘yes.’ Beginning in the Old Testament, we see the holy Prophets arise, inspired by the Holy Spirit to enlighten God’s people, and to reveal and set forth God’s laws. And throughout the centuries, we see the Catholic Church inspired and strengthened by Her holy mystic Saints and visionaries, who by the express will of God, become extraordinary instruments in His hands and special ‘channels’ for the Holy Spirit. Mystics and Visionaries as specially chosen souls have a variety of missions within the Church such as: (1) they inspire devotions like the Sacred Heart and Divine Mercy devotions; (2) through their lives as victim souls they make reparation to God for the conversion of sinners, and remind us to make sacrifices and do penance; (3) they enlighten us concerning the evils of the world and reveal to us the horrors of sin; (4) through their sufferings willingly accepted and offered to God, they remind us of our call to participate in the redemption of all of humanity through the offering of our own sacrifices, and through our sufferings willingly accepted.

*“In the book Mystics of the Church by Evelyn Underhill, we see that no century has been without its Mystics throughout the history of the Church. And certainly our most recent century has been enriched by some of the most extraordinary Mystics in the history of the Church, such as St. (Padre) Pio (1887-1968)—the first Priest confirmed to have had the sacred Stigmata, St. Faustina Kowalska (1905-1938) of the Divine Mercy devotion, and the extraordinary lay Mystic and Stigmatic, St. Gemma Galgani (1878-1903), just to name a few. There are certainly a good number of persons in the world today who are said to be mystics, and to a much lesser extent, there are a number of persons who are said to be stigmatics. The difficulty of course lies in the discernment as to whether a mystic or visionary is authentic or not. It is of course much easier for the Church (i.e. normally the local Bishop) to discern the authenticity of a mystic after their death, thus being able to discern and judge their entire life and the presence (or absence) of heroic virtues. Apart from any glaring theological errors, the Church normally does not make any judgments until after their death, and even then, a good number of them are never formally investigated by the Church.”¹³*

Glenn Dallaire adds to the point in regards to “the spiritual dangers of mystics and visionaries,” when he clarified the following:

“Although on the one hand Scripture states that we are not to despise prophecy, on the other hand the Church and the Saints advise us to be extremely careful and prudent in such matters, because perhaps more often than not, the origins of some alleged mystical graces can in reality be the devil in disguise. The extraordinary Mystic St. Paul of the Cross says that for every 100 persons said to be mystics; there is perhaps only one or two that are truly authentic and inspired by God—and this is coming from someone who was not only an extraordinary Saint and religious founder, but who himself was a authentic Mystic! Certainly we should heed his wise advice.

“We need to remember that the devil does not counterfeit copper or tin, but only gold. And all that glitters is not necessarily gold. Just because a visionary encourages such things as Eucharistic devotion, the Rosary, Confession, etc, this does not mean they are authentic mystics. After all, the devil does not appear with horns and cloven hooves suggesting that we follow or imitate him. If he showed himself the devil, who would follow or be inspired by him? He is the deceiver, and his deceptions are oh so very subtle. Let us not pride ourselves into thinking that we are wiser than the demon by making ourselves judges and entrusting our spiritual lives to our own poor judgment.

“Little by little, a false visionary or mystic will very subtly, almost imperceptibly, introduce false devotions and doctrines, which on the surface seem logical and spiritual, but really are a means to instill spiritual pride in those affected, by thinking that they have ‘additional’ knowledge that other Catholics do not have, and/or by reciting special prayers and practicing special acts of devotion that other Catholics do not know of, thinking that they are specially graced through their association with the alleged mystic or visionary, and through the additional knowledge, prayers and acts of devotion that are not known or practiced by other Catholics. Once this spiritual pride takes root, then sooner or later comes spiritual disobedience to the Church, that is, usually the local Bishop, who will often test the spirit of the mystic by conveying certain sanctions upon the mystic and the followers, to see if they submit in obedience their alleged graces to the Church.”¹⁴

1951 † THE CROSSROADS OF PROPHECY AND THE RISE OF THE ANTICHRIST

On September 19, 1846, near the village of La Salette-Fallavaux in southeastern France, there was a Marian apparition reported by two children, Maximin Giraud and Melanie Calvat, that was given the name of Notre-Dame de La Salette, or “Our Lady of La Salette.”¹⁵ Over 150 years later, on April 2002, the French Fayard Publications released a book entitled Discovery of the Secret of La Salette, by Fathers René Laurentin and Abbé Michel Corteville. This book was intended to be read only by the general public because the subject was considered taboo to modern Catholics. The book endorses nothing less than an elucidation to the question of the authenticity of the Secret of La Salette. The 2002 authors are especially renowned for the latest version of an old theme, which happens to be the longest interpretation to date, and received the Imprimatur of Bishop Zola, Bishop of Lecce in Italy. The reason for this book was to summarize and popularize another book published in 2000. An enormous thesis of more than a thousand pages, also penned by Father Michel Corteville, called La Grande Nouvelle des Bergers de la Salette, or “The Great News of the Shepherds of La Salette,” and examining the Order of the Mother of God in the second part. Sections of the “secrets” remain to be published. It is Father Corteville who, in October 1999, discovered the original Secret of La Salette given to Pope Pius IX in 1851, buried for more than a century in the Vatican archives. This thesis was written to defend the divine authenticity of the many secrets.¹⁶

The biographer of Melanie Calvat has amazing things to say about the general opinion of the French clergy concerning the Apparition of La Salette and the child witness Melanie herself, during the years following the Apparition: “(In 1860, Melanie) returned to Marseille and the Convent of Our Lady of Compassion. There Melanie tried to get her Secret published, as the Blessed Virgin had instructed her. But the Bishop of Marseille reacted just as had the Bishop (Ginoulhiac) of Grenoble. He flew into a fury, scolded Melanie, then took the pages on which the Secret was written, crumpled them into a ball and threw them into the fireplace. As he watched them burn, he said to Melanie, ‘This is how I will publish your secret!’

“Melanie knew then that she would not be able to get the Secret published in France. She said, years later, that if the Apparition of La Salette and its Secret had been accepted by the French clergy, all the miracles that were done at Lourdes had occurred also at La Salette. Melanie also said that the de-Christianization of France occurred because of the hostility of the bishops towards the appearance of the Blessed Virgin at La Salette.”¹⁷

Beyond the controversies and the doubts of authenticity, the visions and prophecies of the Lady of La Salette have uncanny similarities with most of the others. In a universal theme, the predictions of the decadence of the Church and the advent of the Antichrist are echoed over and over. In one of these visions, the Virgin of La Salette predicts the assassination attempt on a Pope, claiming: “The Pope will be persecuted on every side, they will shoot on him, they will want to put him to death, but they can do nothing.” After analyzing the passage, some researchers including Antonio Socci, identified it with the assassination attempt on Pope John Paul II in St. Peter’s Square on May 3, 1981. Even the Italian mystic Teresa Musco, a remarkable seer and stigmatic, who like Jesus died at age 33, in September 1971, ten years before the Turkish killer Ali Agca would attempt the life of Pope John Paul II. While she was reliving the passion of Christ, she had an ecstatic vision of the wounding of the Pope and said: “Stop! What are you doing? Why do you want to kill him? They want to kill the Pope! This happens in St. Peter’s Square.”¹⁸

When Teresa was five years old, she had the first “divine” experience when she saw her first shower of large hail stones coming towards her. She ran, half-dressed, out of the house, unaware of the danger. She lifted her arms and tried to catch the hail stones. Her worried father saw what was happening and immediately ran after her, slapped her face and pulled her forcibly back into the house. Soon afterwards a 'very beautiful lady' appeared to Teresa, it was the Mother of Jesus, and she told the Lady about the beating she had got from her father, but the Lady told her very gently, *'Look, little daughter, your father meant well and didn't mean you any harm.'*¹⁹ It is believed that this was the first appearance of the Blessed Virgin Mary in Teresa's life, and later the presence of the Madonna became more and more frequent. One can rightly describe Teresa's early life as being heavily influenced and guided by the Holy Mary. Teresa Musco was born in the little village of Caiazzo near Caserta, in Italy on June 7th, 1943. She was one of ten children, four which died during childhood in a typical poor southern Italian family.²⁰

Two years before her shocking vision about the attempted assassination of the Pope, on Holy Thursday, April 3, 1969, at 10 am, Teresa received the stigmata. When she saw the Holy Mary dressed in black wearing a black veil from head to foot with tears that seemed to be running down of her face, telling her: *"Teresa, my beloved Son desires to give you His wounds."*²¹ Curiously, one of the two shepherd children from La Salette, Melanie, also received the stigmata as Teresa Musco had.

Stigmata seems to be a frequent event in the life of Catholic mystics and visionaries. So does the theme of abandonment of the faith by top officials. In a passage of the visions of La Salette, transcribed and sent by Melanie to the Pope on July 6, 1851, the Virgin says: "There will also be the ministers of God and the brides of Jesus Christ who will abandon themselves to the riots and, this will be a terrible thing; in the end a hell will reign on earth: it will be then that the Antichrist will be born from a religious person, but beware, many people will believe him because they will say he came from the sky; the time is not far distant, will come to pass twice in 50 years."

The message as I stated, dates back to 1851, which implies that "twice in 50 years" will take us to 1951. On this front, the date of 1951 appears as a point of convergence between the visions of the Blessed Emmerich and the eight preserved writings of the secret of La Salette (three by Maximin, five by Melanie) that the Virgin transmitted to these two shepherds in La Salette, and were later transcribed and sent to Pope Pius IX in July 1851, yet mysteriously disappeared until 1999. Rightly so, Mons. Antonio Galli, author of a book on the subject published in Italy, who points out that *“those one hundred years would take us to 1951, there is now a well-known prophecy of the Blessed Catherine Emmerich, who died in 1827, according to which fifty or sixty years before the year 2000 swarms of demons from hell would be set free to roam the earth. We must unfortunately note, at our expense, in the second half of the twentieth century, Satan is really going wild, plunging the world into an abyss of horror and darkness.”*²²

Let us remember that in the 1950’s the methodical Masonic infiltration of the Vatican began in earnest. Soon afterward, a Freemason named Roncalli became the first Masonic Pope, who is now considered Saint John XXIII. The dramatic infiltration by Freemasonry is filled with hypocrisy, and endures to this day with disastrous consequences. In an attempt to save the Church, Padre Pio secretly appointed Don Luigi Villa in 1956 to fight Ecclesiastical Freemasonry, a subject I investigate in depth in the third Volume of my, “Confessions.” In the eschatological message,²³ Melanie adds further details in paragraph 26 regarding the advent of the Antichrist and his origins: “During this time (of the false peace) the Antichrist will be born, from a religious Jew, a false virgin who will communicate with the old serpent, the master of impurity.” Interestingly this diabolical figure that Melanie defines: “in a word, he will be the devil incarnate.”

Of course we can’t be sure if these visions are genuine or not, and we also have to take into account the period in which they were circulated and put together, when Jews were not so close and accepted as they are now by the Catholics (especially after the Second Vatican Council). What was revealed at La Salette is still quite incredible in relation to the coming of the Antichrist, though the shepherdess did not reveal a possible date for his birth, as did others, in more recent times, for example the American seer, Jeanne Dixon. According to Dixon the Antichrist will be born in 1962 and would have caused the ruin of the Church through the creation of a “false humanism, through which man will worship himself.” “Jeane L. Dixon (1904 -1997) was one of the best-known American astrologers and psychics of the 20th century due to her syndicated newspaper astrology column, some well-published predictions, and a best-selling biography.²⁴ Jeanne Dixon accurately foretold the assassinations of Mahatma Gandhi, Martin Luther King Jr., John F. Kennedy, and his brother Robert. Mrs. Dixon predicted the launch of Sputnik and the sinking of the submarines USS Thresher and Scorpion. Her successful predictions include the political defeat of Dewey by Harry Truman, the landslide election of Dwight Eisenhower, the demise of Nikita Krushchev, and the plane crash that killed UN Secretary Dag Hammarskold.²⁵

Many of Dixon's predictions of course proved incorrect, but she was followed by the most prominent Illuminati Republicans of her day. President Richard Nixon followed her predictions for example, and was a member of the Bohemian Grove. Dixon even gave advice to Nancy Reagan, wife of another Bohemian Grove member, U.S. President Ronald Reagan.

*She wrote, "A child born somewhere in the Middle East shortly before 7:00 am (EST) on February 5, 1962 will revolutionize the world. Before the close of this century, he will bring together all mankind in one all-embracing faith. This will be the foundation of a new Christianity, with every sect and creed united through this man who will walk among the people to spread the wisdom of the almighty power."*²⁶

Could this child be Barack Obama? He was born in August, 1961, not 1962, and he was apparently born in Hawaii, USA, not the Middle East, but a lot of speculations have been circulating for years on the internet and various publications in regards to his real place of birth and his Muslim origins. There is evidence he could have been born in either Kenya or Indonesia, both being countries with large Muslim populations. The Rev. Robert Jeffress, a Dallas megachurch pastor, came out with a book in 2014 that claims President Barack Obama is clearing the way for the Antichrist. Jeffress, head of the 11,000-member First Baptist Church of Dallas, writes in his book, Perfect Ending that he does not believe Obama is the Antichrist, yet he links Obama's support of gay marriage to the coming of the Antichrist. "For the first time in history a president of our country has openly proposed altering one of society's (not to mention God's) most fundamental laws: that marriage should be between a man and a woman," Jeffress continues, “While I am not suggesting that President Obama is the Antichrist, the fact that he was able to propose such a sweeping change in God’s law and still win reelection by a comfortable margin illustrates how a future world leader will be able to oppose God’s laws without any repercussions.”²⁷

Regarding the timing of Obama’s birth and rise to power, in a letter written by Melanie in 1892 and addressed to Canon de Brandt, she writes: son temps de paraître n’est pas très éloigné, or “the time to look is not very far.” Deconstructing this phrase in his book, Galli seems to think that this wording in French signifies an exact distance in time: “The Distance (as advocated by Melanie) that can be between 60 or 70 years, taking into account the clarification contained in the message: ‘During this time. ‘ The time of the false peace, before the third world conflict and the triumph of the Immaculate Heart of Mary. If so, the Antichrist would already be among us.’”²⁸ In fact Maximin, the other visionary of La Salette, in his secret letter sent to Pope Pius IX on the 3rd of July 1851, mentions the fact that this great evil should have manifested in full force against the Church “at the latest around the year 2000 or soon after.” Michel de Notre Dame (1503-1566), also known as Nostradamus, who predicted several occurrences from 1555 to 3797, also spoke of the coming of the Antichrist, that will cause years of terror and blood before the new Golden Age begins.

This age would allegedly re-establish the correct balance on Earth. In the Century X, Quatrain 72, Nostradamus says: “In the year 1999, seventh month: From the sky will come a great King of Terror. To bring back to life the great king of Angolmois, Before and after Mars is to reign by good luck.” The date clearly refers to a solar eclipse which occurred in August 1999, (the difference of one month is due to the change of the Gregorian Calendar made in 1582). According to Nostradamus, that year saw the coming of the Antichrist whose kingdom will last 27 years, before the beginning of the Golden Age.²⁹

THE “UNOFFICIAL” PROPHECIES

Next to the prophecies recognized by the Church, there are also a cycle of non-recognized prophecies, just as in the case of those made in more recent times made by Jeanne Dixon, or a few centuries back, by the now-legendary Nostradamus. They are often called “apocryphal,” as their origins are not always easy to prove at an academic level and on which, therefore, I can only suspend further judgment on their genuineness. Interestingly, most of these prophecies seem to trace the same language and apocalyptic images contained in the prophecies officially recognized by the Church. It is therefore at least worthwhile to examine them. The Apocalypses of Ephesus Prophecy, for example, were supposedly dictated to a hermit in the XIV Century by a angel from the Church of Ephesus. The following passage speaks upon the arrival of a new celestial body:

“Over the mountains of blood ... shall fall the stars, whilst the Sun shall swallow the Moon and then two new lights will throw up.

“Earth’s wounds shall still be bleeding ... but the flood will no longer be of water, but offire... All shall turn into a sea of blood.

“It will be on these days of universal madness that the Antichrist will come ...from the East, bearing signs of righteousness and wellness.

“Many shall follow Death, confusing it with the Lamb of Peace ... and Many shall desert, when terror... will fall upon Rome.

“Whilst the sky will show the signs of the Great Day, that are the Cross (Christianity), the half moon (Islamism), and the beheaded eagle (the Antichrist).

“In the marked time the Sun will be ordered to cry ... and the tears of the Sun shall fall upon Earth “Huge Sparkles shall then spring up from different places on Earth ... and each Sparkle shall turn into a plague.

“And each plague shall bleed salty water and bones’ dust...

“Rome, in this time, shall change its name... and the legion of the Antichrist will march through Rome.

“And the ground of Rome shall move as the wave of the sea. And the sea will come to Rome... The seed of life shall stand in the Glen of the Four Saints.

“From there the history shall start again ...

“Within the new garden ... new laws ... time shall have... dimensions.

“And the Sun shall give a different warmth.”

Are we to believe the Earth, and to an extent that the Moon, would both collapse? Perhaps this is a metaphor, or a description of some kind of new physical reality? The “days of universal madness” could refer to the imbalance of the planets, while the “crying Sun” could suggest an intense radioactive solar-rain that will lead to the overheating of the atmosphere, and would increase aridity upon Earth. The passage describing “... the ground of Rome shall move as the wave of the sea,” could refer to violent earthquakes that would be produced, and that could even sink the Eternal City, followed by, “And the sea will come to Rome ...”

The outcome of this chain of catastrophic events predicted by the Apocalypse of Ephesus would be a complete reshaping of our planet, which perhaps will spin through a different orbit, or experience a pole shift where continents rise and fall. The line “And the Sun shall give a different warmth,” could even refer to a new Solar System.³⁰ In 1600, on the seventeenth of February, Giordano Bruno (1548-1600), an Italian Dominican Friar, philosopher, mathematician and astronomer, was ceremoniously burned at the stake in Rome’s Flower Market by the Roman Inquisition. His end is brutal to our modern sensibilities, but not exceptional to the Vatican standards of his day. But Bruno’s death stands out, mentioned in passing in most popular and even academic surveys of the emergence of modern science. Specifically, Bruno was linked to modern science by his advocacy of a version of Copernicus’ heliocentric planetary hypothesis and the idea that our universe is infinite, with many suns and planets.³¹

FIG. 32. The envelope of the secret of Maximin Giraud addressed to Pope Pius IX on the 3rd of July 1851.

Giordano Bruno has left some notes upon the future of Mankind:

“Man shall travel the cosmos and from cosmos, he shall learn about the day of the ending ...

“Just when the man will believe to be the lord of the Universe, many wealthy cities will end.

“A black sun will swallow in the space the sun, the moon, and all the planets orbiting around the sun ...”

Here the black sun could refer to a planet bearing so great a mass to be compared to the sun. The black sun could even refer to the “twin” of the sun, a Nemesis, a name given by Richard A. Muller for this celestial body. This new planet/dark sun, whose existence has been suggested recently as Planet X, Nibiru, Wormwood, and other names, but whose existence cannot be ruled out. Muller explains Nemesis would be a red dwarf sun, whose discovery has yet to come. As such, Nemesis would not generate light. Following the theory of our Solar system as a binary system, the prophecy could describe Nemesis as “swallowing” the sun.³² In this context, some of the most interesting modern prophecies are the ones of the Nun of Dresden and a German monk known as the “Black Spider.” Both, however, have a common origin: their alleged discoverer was Renzo Baschera. This ex-professor, born in Casacco in the province of Udine in 1930, left his teaching job to devote himself full-time to the profession of writer and researcher of the prophetic texts. He published several books and discovered many unknown sources of prophecies, such as the Russian Monk Basilio, or the anonymous writers of the Prophecies of the Shroud. The fundamental problem in his work, and one which casts doubt, is that Baschera is not a historian. In many cases, he has been careful not to reveal certain details concerning the origins of these supposed prophecies that he has identified. Although his books always contain bibliographies, they only contain historical sources used to verify the accuracy of the forecasts, but not their origins. It is never mentioned whether they are the original sources transcribed by him, from which library, or archive where they are found, and so on. Without knowing the origin of the texts it becomes impossible to even check if there are errors in his translations, that is, if the originals of these texts even exist! For this reason, the manuscripts of the Nun of Dresden and the “Black Spider” have never been studied by traditional academic means, but as I will show you now, they are still very interesting for their content.

The “Black Spider,” is said to be a German monk who lived in the XVI Century, and who provides a list of occurrences and yearly prophecies. The year 2000, that he calls “Glory of the Fire,” represents a crucial turn in the history of mankind, a starting point towards a new spiritual path that will mark radical and physical changes:

“When mankind will reach the end of the Millennium, it will have climbed over the hilltop,

“And from up above it shall see the wreckage of a time and the path, which leads to the new Earthly Heaven.

“The first generation walking on that path will be a generation in pain, for hard shall be the path to regain the joy of the spirit.”

According to the monk, mankind shall have to walk “under the bridge of the five pains” before reaching the “joys of the spirit.” The prophecy speaks of 50 years of plagues, that are deemed necessary to the conquest of the “Earthly Heaven.” Between 2000 and 2010 there will be “the time of fears,” followed by “the decade of madness,” “the decade of settlement,” and “the decade of resumption.. “ The 1990-2000 decade represents “the time of the Antichrist,” but also the decade of the “new commanders of the spirit.” The Black Spider claims that: “Christ dies along the Tiber and arises on the Volga.”³³

It seems that Christianity is doomed to be wiped out of the Mediterranean region—where it arose—to return further North in the present territory of the Russian Federation, where Orthodox Christianity is now reliving a period of growing faith and expansion. The expanding Islamic population of the European countries, especially those on the Mediterranean, seem to confirm the fears of the Black Spider on the possible disappearance of Christianity in these areas in the not so distant future.

The Russian and Greek Orthodox churches are also the only ones who have objected in recent times to plans in both countries (Russia and Greece) to introduce electronic national identity cards intended to streamline bureaucracy and, in the case of Greece, facilitate integration into the diabolical European Union. In reality, this is a trap set up by the New World Order to control and manipulate even further. The Catholic Church seems to even embrace such evil, where on the contrary, the Orthodox Church officials have been demanding since 2011, a close study of these cards and the technology around it, asking authorities to make them optional. They say that the personal and financial information that would be consolidated on the microchips in the cards could be manipulated to discriminate against believers.³⁴ Obama, AKA “The Antichrist” in the USA, is of course all for it, in what used to be “The Land of the Free.” In an interview with Rossiiskaya Gazeta, an official government newspaper, Metropolitan Hilarion of Volokolamsk, chairman of the Moscow Patriarchate’s Department of External Church Relations, said: “Credit cards, which a person uses to take money from a bank machine or for payment in a store, are one thing, but a personal card in which all the information about a person’s life and activities will be entered, about his bank accounts, health and travels is a different matter. These are different grades of state control over people.”

Conservative and nationalist wings within the churches have held demonstrations in Athens and Moscow back in 2011, as they rightly claimed that the cards will compromise national and religious identity. Many have gone so far as to say that identity numbers such as 666 are the “Mark of the Beast” from the Book of Revelation, the final book of the New Testament.

At a demonstration in Moscow on the 16th of April 2011, Orthodox nationalists joined forces with members of the Communist Party of the Russian Federation, and even the Communists opposed the Universal Electronic Card (UEC) that was scheduled to be introduced in Russia in 2012.

Segodnia.ru, an Internet publication that often covers religious and nationalist issues, commenting on the demonstration, and said, “the introduction of the UEC makes it possible to build an unheard of, super-totalitarian electronic dictatorship, in which each individual person becomes a remote-controllable bio-object, for all practical purposes, a robot with a bar code on his body or a microchip implanted under his skin.”

Patriarch Kirill II of the Russian Orthodox Church spoke at a meeting of the Bishop’s Council of the Russian Orthodox on February 2011, stating that, “The church understands the position of people who do not wish to be subject to control that makes it possible to gather all-encompassing information about their private life, and could in the long-term be used to discriminate against citizens based on their world view.”³⁵ On the 27th of March 2011, thousands of Greek Orthodox priests, monks, nuns and lay people marched through Athens to the Greek Parliament building in protest, but the international media ignored the news.

In April 2011, the Synod of Bishops of the Church of Greece expressed its concern about issuing the cards, and said it would hold meetings with top government officials. Religious leaders of the metropolitan regions Prokopios of Philippi, Neapolis and Thasos, which chairs the Synod's Committee on Dogmatic and Canonical Questions, reported that the result of preliminary talks with the Greek government concluded that the church had received assurances that, amongst other things, the numerals 666 would not appear on the cards in any form.³⁶

It's no wonder then, after all this opposition towards the infamous NWO plans to further control and eventually microchip us with what the Christians call "The number of the Beast," that Greece is continuing its decline amongst its partners in the European Union. Meanwhile Barack Obama, the "Black Prince," and his allies have begun a new Cold War in 2014, pitting the new Ukrainian government against Mother Russia. The term "Black Prince" is specifically used to define the Antichrist by the German Monk known as "The Black Spider." Here is the passage of his prophecies making reference to The Black Prince:

"There will be a new voice that the temple will demolish.

"Here he comes! (the Antichrist) descends from the sunny road standing on a carriage dragged by four black horses. He bears the color of the snow. His voice bears the force of thunder. Firm is his hand, a command is his gesture.

"There, among the stones of the last amphitheater the blood flows.

"The tablets of the law shall be thrown in the dust and stamped on by the horses' iron.

"Men! Pitiful, crawling creatures, the Prince gives you his law: rejoice until drunkenness and you will be happy; Worship Caesar and you will be exalted; steal, and you will be honored.

"The Black Prince shall hold a banquet in the hall of the Great Dome and thousand of fishermen shall incense his hand: a hand which holds the power of life.

"And death, a hand which destroy and creates, a hand which will bless and annihilate.

"Cry, mothers! Throw your bowels in the fire. Tear your womb apart.

"Man shall no longer be born from woman, for He came, the last son of Osiris. So it was written ... yet do not cry ... It's time for eyes to shut. Because the vine shall no longer give wine.

"And the earth shall no longer produce wheat. So it will be, until the new day we shall seek in the infinite.

“This will be the chant of the six legions crossing the river. Beware of the swamp, Here shall fall the last hope of the little Caesar.

“There will be signs from the sky. There will be the voices of the dead. There will be the moans of the living.”³⁷

The Black Spider reminds us of how “signs from the sky” and “other phenomena” will trouble the peaceful. Could this be reference to the so-called UFO phenomenon? The monk’s prophecies end with the passage: “Humanity has been marked by three floods: the first was made of water, the second will be of fire, the third shall be made of stars ... at the third flood,” which is dated circa 2500-3000 AD. The similar reference “the sky shall go off forever” is from the Apocalypse of Ephesus, which speaks identically about the “Flood of Fire.”³⁸

In German Schwarzer Spinner, or “The Black Spider,” was the first apocryphal prophet “discovered” by Baschera. He was a monk from the Bavarian Order of Cistercians, who presumably lived around the second half of the sixteenth century in Regensburg, Germany and other locations. His name is supposedly derived from the seal, in the form of a black spider, with whom he penned his cards containing a long list of prophecies that would terminate on June 7th, 3017 AD. The provisions of the Black Spider are arranged in chronological order, and as thus they have a Christian origin for their clarity and do not require a particular comment, as opposed to the quatrains of Nostradamus. It is in these writings we find an explicit reference to The Decade of the Tribulation (“the decade of madness”), which would begin in 2011, and that would lead to the emergence of the Antichrist as head of the Church. Coincidentally, in 2011 Barack Obama began campaigning for a second term as President of the United States.

The expression “the decade of madness,” could indirectly make reference to the tribulation period spoken of in the Old and New Testament under different names, a concept that is widely developed in the Apocalypse of St. John.. Emmerich also spoke in her visions of the “tribulation” that will face the Church, stating that, “When the Church had been for the most part destroyed by the secret sect, and when only the sanctuary and altar were still standing, I saw the wreckers enter the Church with the beast.”³⁹ This “secret sect” is what we usually call the Illuminati. More than ever before, it is operating with the goal of destroying what little is left of the sacrality of the Church of Rome and its original values.

How close to this vision are we really? “The Satanic hierarchy will rule upon Earth, lead by a demon who will speak the tongue of Attila but will wear the dress of Caesar,” said the Nun of Dresden. Little is known of the Nun of Dresden, aside that she lived in a convent near the Elba River in Germany between 1680 and 1706. She experienced various ecstatic moments, although she could barely read or write in her native language. However, during these moments, she could speak Greek and Latin perfectly. The Nun of Dresden spoke about the time when Lucifer would arrive, which shall occur between 1940 and 2010.⁴⁰ So apparently he is already here.

TWO DECADES OF TRIBULATION

In May 2010, an interesting report was produced by The Rockefeller Foundation and The Global Business Network. Incredibly enough, this memorandum resumes the theme of the “tribulation” in the same time frame I discussed in the second volume of my Confessions of an Illuminati,⁴¹ which includes an in depth analysis of this memorandum. The 53-page document issued by the Rockefeller Foundation, entitled Scenarios for the Future of Technology and International Development, was published in PDF format on their Foundation website.⁴² The document outlines a scenario in the next two decades that appears so catastrophic, it seems to be written along the same lines as the apocalyptic literature I have shown you in this chapter. The apocalyptic scenario envisioned by the global elite seems to resemble more the dystopian vision of a dark and violent totalitarianism as illustrated in George Orwell’s 1984, but also along the lines of the society envisioned by Aldous Huxley in Brave New World, which represents the model of a soft dictatorship. This is where the population willingly accepts the rules imposed from above, mainly because it has been manipulated and conditioned from birth to accept it without rebelling, as it is happening currently in the United States and most of the Western world. What is striking is the Rockefeller Foundation and their associates “scenario planning,” which suggests an exorbitant amount of deaths that humanity is to expect in the coming years. For these individuals, our current and future disasters are within “a range of future possibilities.” Read their ideology to understand their mindset:

“Scenario planning is a methodology designed to help guide groups and individuals through exactly this creative process. The process begins by identifying forces of change in the world, then combining those forces in different ways to create a set of diverse stories—or scenarios—about how the future could evolve. Scenarios are designed to stretch our thinking about both the opportunities and obstacles that the future might hold; they explore, through narrative, events and dynamics that might alter, inhibit, or enhance current trends, often in surprising ways. Together, a set of scenarios captures a range of future possibilities, good and bad, expected and surprising—but always plausible. Importantly, scenarios are not predictions. Rather, they are thoughtful hypotheses that allow us to imagine, and then to rehearse, different strategies for how to be more prepared for the future—or more ambitiously, how to help shape better futures ourselves.”⁴³

According to a passage contained in this document, the world will suffer from a mysterious pandemic. The contagion should hit 20% of the population, killing at least 8 million people, in just seven months. Is this pandemic the same as the growing threat of the Ebola virus that the population of world began to fear starting in 2014? The 2010 report shows striking similarities:

“The pandemic that the world had been anticipating for years finally hit. Unlike 2009’s H1N1, this new influenza strain—originating from wild geese—was extremely virulent and deadly. Even the most pandemic-prepared nations were quickly overwhelmed when the virus streaked around the world, infecting nearly 20 percent of the global population and killing 8 million in just seven months, the majority of them healthy young adults. The pandemic also had a deadly effect on economies: international mobility of both people and goods screeched to a halt, debilitating industries like tourism and breaking global supply chains. Even locally, normally bustling shops and office buildings sat empty for months, devoid of both employees and customers.

“The pandemic blanketed the planet—though disproportionate numbers died in Africa, Southeast Asia, and Central America, where the virus spread like wildfire in the absence of official containment protocols. But even in developed countries, containment was a challenge. The United States’s initial policy of “strongly discouraging” citizens from flying proved deadly in its leniency, accelerating the spread of the virus not just within the U.S. but across borders. However, a few countries did fare better—China in particular. The Chinese government’s quick imposition and enforcement of mandatory quarantine for all citizens, as well as its instant and near-hermetic sealing off of all borders, saved millions of lives, stopping the spread of the virus far earlier than in other countries and enabling a swifter post-pandemic recovery.”⁴⁴

Thanks to this epidemic the people will be forced to surrender their sovereignty to the NWO, as the document makes clear:

“During the pandemic, national leaders around the world flexed their authority and imposed airtight rules and restrictions, from the mandatory wearing of face masks to body-temperature checks at the entries to communal spaces like train stations and supermarkets. Even after the pandemic faded, this more authoritarian control and oversight of citizens and their activities stuck and even intensified.”⁴⁵

A more authoritarian and more globalist government, a New World Order in fact, that will result in growing control over all aspects of our lives, and will include what the Rockefeller memorandum described as, “technology that could literally see right through you.”⁴⁶ This includes the feared RFID chip, an implanted biometric identification chip made mandatory for all citizens. Instead of rebelling against such tyranny, the report predicted we will actually become eager to surrender our sovereignty, brainwashed as we usually are, by the elite and their corrupt media circus:

“In order to protect themselves from the spread of increasingly global problems—from pandemics and transnational terrorism, to environmental crises and rising poverty—leaders around the world took a firmer grip on power. At first, the notion of a more controlled world gained wide acceptance and approval. Citizens willingly gave up some of their sovereignty—and their pri-vacy—to more paternalistic states in exchange for greater safety and stability. Citizens were more tolerant, and even eager, for top-down direction and oversight, and national leaders had more latitude to impose order in the ways they saw fit. In developed countries, this heightened oversight took many forms: biometric IDs for all citizens, for example, and tighter regulation of key industries whose stability was deemed vital to national interests.”⁴⁷

Initially Obama’s healthcare reform tried to introduce the biometric ID with the implementation of Electronic Health Records (EHR) for all Americans by 2014, but having failed, they opted instead to include the biometric ID into immigration reform. David Kravets wrote for Wired in May, 2013:

“Buried in the more than 800pages of the bipartisan legislation is language mandating the creation of the innocuously-named ‘photo tool,’ a massive federal database administered by the Department of Homeland Security and containing names, ages, Social Security numbers and photographs of everyone in the country with a driver’s license or other state-issued photo ID. Employers would be obliged to look up every new hire in the database to verify that they match their photo. This piece of the Border Security, Economic Opportunity, and Immigration Modernization Act is aimed at curbing employment of undocumented immigrants. But privacy advocates fear the inevitable mission creep, ending with the proof of self being required at polling places, to rent a house, buy a gun, open a bank account, acquire credit, board a plane or even attend a sporting event or log on the internet. Think of it as a government version of Foursquare, with Big Brother cataloging every check-in. ‘It starts to change the relationship between the citizen and state, you do have to get permission to do things’ said Chris Calabrese, a congressional lobbyist with the American Civil Liberties Union. ‘More fundamentally, it could be the start of keeping a record of all things.’

“For now, the legislation allows the database to be used solely for employment purposes. But historically such limitations don’t last. The Social Security card, for example, was created to track *your government retirement benefits. Now you need it to purchase health insurance. 'The Social Security number itself, it's pretty ubiquitous in your life,' Calabrese said. David Bier, an analyst with the Competitive Enterprise Institute, agrees with the ACLU's fears. 'The most worrying aspect is that this creates a principle of permission basically to do certain activities and it can be used to restrict activities, he said. 'It's like a national ID system without the card.'"*⁴⁸

For this reason alone, both the Greek and Moscow Patriarchates rightly consider inadmissible the forced application of such a diabolical technology, and Vladimir Putin seems to still listen to his people, more than the Greek government at least, which has submitted to the European Union's rules and regulations. Wake up Americans! The danger is imminent, even NBC predicted on their evening news that, "We Will All Have an RFID Chip Under Our Skin by 2017,"⁴⁹ and it will not be easy to avoid such a danger when the Vatican not only ignores it, but being part of the NWO, secretly approves of it. In September 2014, the new NFC (Near Field Communication) microchip has made its first public appearance in the media after an advertising director from Australia had the microchip injected into the webbing of his hands so he could use it in connection with some of the latest smart phones. This new kind of microchip can be used with any device that contains this technology and on the contrary of the RFID can not only store data but collect it and seems to be an even more diabolical tool in the hands of the NWO. In synthesis, according to the Rockefeller Foundation's "scenario planning," the coming virus pandemic would spread even more violence into Africa, Asia and Central America, where the protocols for containment would be less efficient, if not absent, as we have already seen happening with the Ebola outbreak in Africa. The only exception, from the passage cited, is China. The government would put in place a strict quarantine for the population, and activate a rigid control of the masses typical of their present approach, but similar restrictions will gradually be adopted by other countries. The control system resulting from such a crisis in the end becomes the Orwellian scenario in the year 2025. The year in which this illusion of democracy will come to an end. This climate of totalitarianism will cause many conflicts and hot beds of guerrilla warfare in various countries. In fact, the document predicts that: "By 2025, people seemed to be growing weary of so much top-down control and letting leaders and authorities make choices for them."⁵⁰ Fortunately, the demented Rockefeller report is not correctly predicting everything that has come to pass. Of course, there was the possible “2012 Olympic bombing, which killed 13,000,”⁵¹ included on page 34 of the memorandum which did not happen, but brought us back to reality regarding the content of the document. The question naturally arises, if such disinformation might have been inserted deliberately to scare the curious, or to simply confuse the population with news altogether fanciful, then what was included as truthful reporting? Still the uneasy expression used on the same page of the memorandum, “The years 2010 to 2020 were dubbed the ‘doom decade’ for good reason,”⁵² which leaves us wondering if this could possibly refer to the apocalyptic, and at times occult tones, used in globalism? As I fully explained in the Confessions of an Illuminati trilogy, this mentality was born and developed in the context of millenarian and apocalyptic prophecy within the Protestant Reformation. The aim of the Rockefeller document seems to mix a form of psychological terrorism, which wishes to influence and intimidate the masses, while using the same type of “prophetic” expectations of those who were employed to draw it up. The doctrine of the architects of the NWO, who seem to await the second coming of Christ, or rather the arrival of their Messiah (who most likely will be the Antichrist), penetrates deep within the message of the prophecies. The predictions of a dramatic crisis, the decline of the Church, emergence of the Antichrist, and the return of Christ the Judge, look to be the pinnacle of the most dramatic moment for humanity. Now, the prophecies contained in the biblical texts, in particular, the Apocalypse of St. John, need to come to life, just as the “End of Times” scenario plays a role in Islamic and Jewish traditions. Let’s just say that the apocalyptic tone of this document comes directly from the doctrines of the architects of the NWO.

MARK OF THE BEAST ‡ “THE END TIMES” AND THE THIRD SECRET OF FATLMA

Electronic chips have become so “ordinary” nowadays that we don’t even think about them anymore. Yet they are everywhere—in our calculators, our computers, and even in our household appliances. For the last few years, we also find chips embedded in our ATM, social security and credit cards, and even on our state-issued driver’s licenses and passports! Microchips are also implanted under the skin of animals, which contain medical data such as the pet's name, and vaccination records, which allow them to be identified, localized, and tracked, in the event the animals are lost or escape. One of the first identification microchips was the TX1400L transponder made by a company from St. Paul, MN called Destron Fearing, originally designed for animals but whose commercial states that, "Although it was designed to be injected in animals, this transponder may be used for other applications requiring an identification tag!"⁵³ Is Destron Fearing, a subsidiary company of Applied Digital Solutions that initially developed the technology for what used to be called VeriChip and is now been rebranded as PositivelD, in fact making it more acceptable and less obvious to the consumer? Everything I have shown you in this book until now explains the numerous anomalies that would be otherwise without significance in the implementation of the PositivelD, which is incidentally the only Food and Drug Administration (FDA)-approved human-implantable microchip.⁵⁴ The Radio Frequency IDentification (RFID) chip is part of the family of Automatic Identification and Data Capture (AIDC) technologies that include 1-D and 2-D bar codes. RFID uses an electronic chip, smaller than a grain of rice, which is usually applied to a substrate to form a label, that is affixed to a product, case, pallet or other package. The information it contains may be read, recorded, or rewritten.⁵⁵ With the growing possibility of such technology being used on a large scale on the human population, some individuals have grown to fear the loss of rights it may produce. Some conceptualize a future where every movement is tracked by the government.⁵⁶ According to ZDNET, critics believe that this technology will lead to tracking individuals every movement and will be an egregious invasion of privacy. It is likely that for security reasons the RFID reader (called an interrogator) will require a secondary means of validating a person's identity. That validation might occur through the fingerprint or iris, at the same time the RFID microchip is read in your right hand or forehead. Both forms of biometrics are already routine in the security realm. Is it mere coincidence that the Book of Revelation describes the "Mark of the Beast" as being in the hand or on the forehead?⁵⁷ Why these two places? Why not the left hand or arm? Aside from the popular spiritual interpretation for the Mark of the Beast that our foreheads represent our thoughts, and our hands represent our actions, this may be a good start regarding the spiritual realm. Presented alone it falls short of the physical implications of a mark that is required to buy and sell in the near future. The truth is that by inserting a chip in the front of your head will enable the altering of the hormonal level of the population because of the vicinity of the pituitary gland, or hypophysis, as explained by many researchers and scientists. You must ask yourself where is the most logical place to put a tiny microchip that is injected under the skin, used for payment, and only operates within a couple inches of a reader? The hand is the obvious answer. It would literally allow payment at the wave of a hand, as it is already being implemented in some nightclubs around the world.⁵⁸

The choice of the right hand in particular is explained further, by its reference in Revelation 13, which is one of the best-known passages of the Apocalypse: “And he causeth all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and bond, to receive a mark in their right hand, or in their foreheads: And that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name.”

The implementation of this project on a global scale could well become the trademark described by St. John in Revelations. Such technology will also be used as a substitute for money and credit cards, just as it is now occurring in many countries, with so-called smart phones, and especially the new iWatch and iPay by Apple, which allows automatic payment by swiping a device over a receiver. The chip is already planned, but not yet rendered enforceable by the government, first with Obamacare, and then with Immigration Reform. One way or another, it will eventually find its way to the mainstream population. A majority of people are not only willing to accept what Christians call “The Mark of the Beast,” many are actively endorsing and promote its use as a tool of modern innovation. This is without of course understanding the dramatic consequences for their life and their supposed freedom. In this direction we are lead by the latest product of the company leader in the bioengineering field, called Somark Innovations.⁵⁹ This company has developed a tattoo based on RFID technology with numbers and bar codes that will replace the chip and be precisely placed on the hand or on the forehead, thus fulfilling the scriptures in totality. The tattoo of Somark—tested since 2007 on rats— remains invisible but readable through the company's instrumentation. Bill Christensen on Live Science wrote:

*"The Somark ID System creates a 'biocompatible ink tattoo with chip-less RFID functionality.' The RFID ink tattoo does not require line of sight to be read, as is the case with other RFID devices (making them better than a barcode for some applications). RFID ink tattoos also solve the annoying problem of ear tag retention. Conventional RFID ear tags sell for about $2.25; about 60-90 percent of them eventually fall off. Also, Somark claims that the biocompatible RFID ink system will improve readability rates as well. Humans next? So-mark Innovations co-founder Mark Pydynowski noted that the RFID ink is fully biocompatible and was safe for use in humans. He noted that RFID ink tattoos could be used to track and rescue soldiers. 'It could help identify friends or foes, prevent friendly fire, and help save soldiers' lives,' Pydynowski said."*⁶⁰

The tattoo application is done in less than three seconds and with it, as well as with the VeriChip, every move of the future population of the NWO can be monitored and controlled. The tattoo may in fact contain personal data, medical records, bank accounts, and other personal information, as well as a GPS tracking device, of course.

However, we all must understand, that the prophecies included in the Holy Scriptures, and in other religious texts, are not just revealing themselves naturally. There is a group of so-called "believers" from different faiths whom I usually refer to as The Illuminati who are facilitating their usage. They are acting secretly and behind the scenes to fulfill their aim to control the masses, without hiding the origins of their intention to the skilled eye. The interpretations "messianic" or "apocalyptic" are spreading, more than ever, on the net these days, thanks to a specific approach that simply reflects the original intentions of this lobby, which follows a mix of Theosophy and politics, technology and Mes-sianism, toward the establishment of their supposed Kingdom of God on Earth. Remember, there are no coincidences.

Mentioned in his recent autobiography entitled I Was Promised Paradise, published in Italy in January 2013,⁶¹ Mehmet Ali Agca, the Turkish assassin whom I mentioned earlier, murdered a left-wing journalist named Abdi Ipekci on February 1, 1979, and later shot and wounded Pope John Paul II on May 13, 1981. Agca, still considered a figure of importance in the recent history of the Vatican, says in his book that even some sections of Islamic extremism would seek to "hasten" the fulfillment of the prophecies through armed struggle (such as the Grey Wolves and in more recent times ISIS), plus they employ the usage of Black Magic by summoning the Jinn.⁶² I was able to personally witness these secret practices years ago when I was living in Oslo, Norway, performed in front of me by the son of one of the leaders of the Grey Wolves. In this case they were preparing the ground for the return of the Mahdi, what the Islamists say would be the result of the final defeat of their enemies and the West. Agca recounts in his book:

“Basically it’s really as if the world finishes in favor of a new era. Go in mosques around the world. Listen to what they say about the return of the Mahdi. They all say the same thing: soon, very soon indeed, he is arriving. What does this mean? That a part of Islam is sharpening their weapons. The return of the Mahdi will bring bloodshed. If the Mahdi will not manifest himself their will (can) materialize him, and in short, the Islamic fundamentalists, will set on fire the whole Western world.”⁶³

This is because, even in the days of Khomeini, it was believed that the condition for the return of the Mahdi was the decline of the West and, in particular, following the prophecies of Fatima, the end of the Church. Agca continues: “I know that what I am about to say may make you smile a lot. But it is the truth, and many newspapers have given this news. In May 2011, twenty employees of Mahmoud Ahmadinejad have been arrested and charged with magic. In essence, the main collaborators of Ahmadinejad have been making for years Satanic practices.”⁶⁴ Agca concludes these incredible statements by giving a specific date and a warning: “The 13th of May 2017 is a fruitful date to unleash hell, to give the definitive goodbye to the Western world,”⁶⁵ as he mentions earlier in the same chapter, “Islamic fanatics are preparing for the final battle. The 13th of May 2017, and it is in fact, one hundred years after the apparition of Fatima.”⁶⁶ During his 1985 trial, Agca made the statement that his assassination attempt was “connected to the third secret of the Madonna of Fatima.” The apparition at Fatima first occurred on May 13, 1917, exactly 64 years before the attempted assassination of Saint John Paul II, on May 13, 1981. On Saturday, May 13, 2000, on the 83rd anniversary of the Fatima vision, the Roman Catholic Church, under the direction of the Bishop of Rome, revealed the contents of the third vision of Fatima to the world. The startling announcement was front page news all around the world. The Los Angeles Times, for instance, wrote that “the third secret of Fatima had become one of the most intriguing mysteries of modern times.” According to Vatican sources, the vision described a bishop in white, agonizingly making his way to the Cross through a sea of corpses of Christian martyrs, suddenly cut down by a fusillade of bullets. Together with the Fatima revelation, the Vatican gave an interpretation that applied in part, but failed to address completely several major elements of the prophecy. Vatican officials concluded that the third Fatima prophecy applied to the past, especially to the attempted assassination in 1981 of Pope John Paul II in St. Peter's Square. The Vatican found compelling evidence to make this association during the subsequent trial of Mehmet Ali Agca, the Turkish gunman. On the 13th day, the entire prophecy seemed to follow, and its aftermath. On that day in May of 1917, and on the 13th of every month thereafter, until October of 1917, a period of five months, the visions appeared to Lucia and the other two school children with her.

Pope John Paul's assassination attempt on the 13th of May in 1981 only added to the speculation concerning the prophecy, and with Lucia's own death on the 13th of February in 2005 it seemed to have sealed the symbolism, and insured to the faithful that God truly was its source.

The question that remains is whether or not Pope John Paul II was the end of it, but the prophecies insist that he was not. The Vatican, and especially Pope John Paul II, found the coincidence of the dates compelling, but they were completely awestruck by Mehmet Ali Agca's later trial announcement, because nobody knew the contents of the prophecy except for the Pope himself, and a very few of the highest Papal Cardinals. The obvious conclusion was that Agca must have been inspired to make that claim through supernatural means. It meant that the Holy Spirit had used the gunman to verify the truth of the Fatima prophecy. If any questions about the truth of the prophecies remained, they were swept away by Agca's comments. The incident guaranteed a permanent embrace of Lucia dos Santos' visions by the Catholic Church. All three visions were defined as true prophecy and Lucia's two cousins, partners to the vision, were beatified by the Pope. Lucia herself could not be beatified at the same time because she was still alive.⁶⁷ But the question remains—can we really trust somebody like Agca? The previously mentioned Gioele Magadi also points his finger at the time of the attempted assassination 17.17, stating it is connected to the foundation of the first Grand Lodge of Freemasonry in 1717 and the real orchestrators of the event.

The first vision predicted the end of World War I and the coming of World War II. The second vision was an appeal to pray for the conversion of Russia, which occurred with the fall of the Soviet Union in 1992. The third vision, sealed by Lucia under orders that it could not be opened until 1960 apparently by the instruction of the vision of Mary, was never revealed. Not until now.

Agca's claim with respect to Fatima, and the fact that he said he did not act alone (many high officials say he was a paid gunman acting under orders of the Soviet Union and Communist Bulgaria) which seem to tie the Fatima prophecies to the collapse of the Soviet Union, the second of the three aspects of the visions. The actions of Pope John Paul II following the assassination attempt played a central role in the collapse and the subsequent re-conversion of Russia, starting first with Perestroika in 1984, and leading to the total collapse of Russian communism in 1992. Those events, and the fact that the papal shooting coincided with the anniversary of the Fatima visions made a deep and personal impact on John Paul II. He felt that his life had been spared by Mary, the Virgin of Fatima, for the purpose of the prophecy, especially with respect to his role in the conversion of Russia. John Paul II realized that these visions came from the Holy Spirit and were very important.

The facts surrounding the second vision speak for themselves and cannot be argued. However, the official Vatican's interpretation of the third vision seems to leave large vacancies. It does not, for instance, take into account the corpses of the martyrs that surround him as he is gunned down. Nor does it address the torturous process and singular character of his resolve to reach the Cross. The "Bishop clothed in white," who is the Pope, "makes his way with great effort toward the cross amid the corpses of those who were martyred. He, too, falls to the ground, apparently dead, under a burst of gunfire." The fact that the vision states that the bishop also falls to the ground indicates that the sea of Christian bodies through which he is making his way were killed in the same time frame. The same day at most, or more likely within the same hour. A bloodbath seems to have occurred in the vision. Not in St. Peter's Square, but inside the basilica itself. Invaders have taken over the Vatican by force. They have murdered the Pope. This does not describe the shooting of John Paul II in 1981. The vision more likely points forward to something far more momentous, to something that has not yet occurred. It seems to describe the linchpin of the tribulation—the end of the 62 weeks in Daniel’s vision—the defining moment when the world passes from the millennium of Christian rule and reverts back to the reign of Satan. “And after the sixty-two weeks an anointed one will be cut off.” (Dn. 9:26). The Fatima prophecy and its revelation shows that this terrible event has now drawn very close.⁶⁸

THE VATICAN DEFENDS THE “GAY LOBBY” AND THE EARTH AND SKIES REBEL

During an interview given to the press by Pope Ratzinger on his papal flight to Germany, on Thursday, September 22, 2011, the Jesuit spokesman Father Lombardi addressed the growing scandal of sexual abuse on minors who, after Ireland and the United States, said that such charges were also emerging at that time in Germany. He poses the following question for the many journalists present to the now Pope Emeritus Ratzinger: “Holy Father, in recent years there has been an increase in people leaving the Church in Germany, in part because of the abuses committed against children by members of the clergy. What is your feeling about this phenomenon? And what would you say to those who want to leave the Church?” At this point, Ratzinger rather tired and visibly affected by this direct question, made the following statement: *“We distinguish perhaps above all, the specific motivation of those who feel scandalized by these crimes that have been revealed in recent times. I can understand that, in light of this information, especially when it comes to people nearby, one says: ‘This is no longer my Church. The Church is now for me a force of humanization and demoralization. If representatives of the Church do the opposite, I can not live with this Church.’”*⁶⁹

In this response we find in essence the reasons that led to the future resignation of Benedict XVI in 2013, as well as his many limitations towards the true fight against pedophilia. The Pope was aware of what was happening in Germany, after all, he himself had been responsible years before as the Archbishop of Munich and Freising for covering up the work of a pedophile priest in Bavaria called “Priest H” by the press. The online edition of the influential liberal newspaper of Monaco and Bavaria, the *Sieddeutsche Zeitung*⁷⁰ stated that “Priest H” was never punished by Ratzinger. The now Pope Emeritus, transferred the pedophile priest here and there to avoid public scrutiny, knowing very well what he was doing by leaving him unpunished. Ratzinger did nothing even after the story of “Priest H” was reported several times, he was never defrocked. Another important German newspaper DER SPIEGEL revealed in an article from November 2010, written by Conny Neuman and Peter Wensierski in the English language and published on their website, basically accused Ratzinger of incompetence and negligence, stating: “Ratzinger did not give sufficient attention to the type of duties that were assigned to the alleged pedophile Priest H. Despite the massive allegations of abuse levied against the priest, the archdiocese led by Ratzinger allowed H to continue to be involved in church work with children and young people.”⁷¹

Thinking only of the reputation of the church, Ratzinger, as with many of his colleagues in the clergy, did nothing to prevent his priest, nicknamed by the press “the Monster of Bavaria,” to strike once again in his predatory manor, and attack another poor child. This time the victim was a boy of only eleven years of age. The paper Sieddeutsche Zeitung recounts a terrifying story about this poor boy who was apparently forced by “Don H” to have oral sex. Of course this is only one of the many priests who were protected by Ratzinger during his career at the top of the Vatican hierarchy. God must be pretty upset with his so-called servants in these End of Times.

In the midst of all this evil, during his homily on the 31st of December 2013, what Pope Francis said seems quite natural in this unprecedented scenario of decadence and destruction, “The apostle John defines the present time in a precise way: the last hour has arrived.”⁷² Confirming our worst fears, he added later, “there will not be a new revelation, but a full manifestation of what Jesus has already revealed.”⁷³

So yes, we are in the “End of Times” as predicted by the apostle John, but no, there won’t be a new “Revelation,” implying that Jesus is not returning because he has already said everything that he needed to say, and completed his mission over 2,000 years ago. Sounds like a bit of a let down if you ask me. Jesus would definitely have a few things to say after 2,000 years of lies and diabolical compromises from his supposed Church. Of course, this is perfectly in line with the philosophy of the New World Order and their Antichrist agenda in the hands of materialists and Satanists. Some of you will wonder who and what can stop all this evil?

Is God retiring like the Pope? Apparently not. In the beginning of March of 2013, my journalist friend Francesco Quartararo posted on his website a rather interesting article on a new interpretation of a certain event related to Ratzinger and the Vatican, that went almost unnoticed by the mass media, which occurred soon after his shocking resignation in early 2013. Carlo Gustav Jung may have called it a very interesting case of “synchronicity.” Quartararo, my long time collaborator and friend from Palermo, gave a “strange” and different perspective on a specific event I feel compelled to share with you. It involves the chaos theory, which was avoided by pure chance. A cataclysm in the Vatican, that could have changed history forever, and would have been difficult to explain to the faithful masses. On the same day of the resignation of the German Pope, an incredibly synchronistic photo was taken of lightning striking on top of the Vatican. This was an apocalyptic photo made by photographer Alessandro Di Meo (Ansa), who was able to photograph the exact moment when the lightning struck down from the skies and hit the top of the Vatican. This photo was obviously considered an omen, and made the rounds of all the newspapers around the world. The following is the fascinating story written by Francesco Quartararo:

“It is the 15th of February 2013, in Russia it is a peaceful sunny day, while in Rome, the ‘Eternal City’ is still in shock over the decision of Pope Ratzinger to resign. Above their heads, a meteorite is being monitored by NASA and the space agencies worldwide, because of its passing so close and below the altitude of satellites used for broadcasting and distribution of television signals. It was at a level considered safe enough to not arouse any safety concerns for the population. It happens, however, that some fragments fall upon the town of Chelyabinsk in Russia, with devastating effects. At the end of this ordeal there will be 1,200 people injured by the event, caused by fragments resulting in the explosion during contact with the upper part of the stratosphere. It had a rated power output comparable to a couple of nuclear bombs. It also happens that by better analyzing the data, it was found that if the fragments were precipitated with an angle slightly different, consistent with the entrance window possible with the initial speed of 17 km in a single second, on February 15, 2013 those meteorites would have actually fallen on Rome, bombing even the Vatican. A couple of pounds of meteorite already at a speed of ‘only’ 4.3 km would create panic, terror and destruction in the densely populated capital of Rome. If you think such a possibility is quite creepy, imagine the possibility if one of these fragments had hit the Vatican that day, killing the resigning Pope, causing absolute panic amongst one billion, three hundred million Catholic believers.

“An apocalyptic scenario worthy of a movie, but a scenario far more feasible than you would think possible. What prevented such an accident? Maybe a ‘miracle,’ given the dramatic impact a meteorite on Rome could have had. If you want to be more practical and materialistic instead, without slipping into relativism or conspiracy theories, we must consider the inclination of the two meteorites, (yes, there were two meteorites that crashed, the other one only generated a swarm of ‘shooting stars’) the gravitational interaction between the two meteorites and the planet Earth, the temperature in the various layers of the atmosphere, the weather, the density of the main materials of meteorites, and the role played by greenhouse gases in the decay of meteoric debris, etc.”

Renzo Baschera, the “Prophecy Hunter” we encountered earlier, writes in reference to the prophecies of Saint John Bosco: “Rome, like Paris, will be destroyed. At this point, dozens of prophecies seem to agree. Destruction of the city of Rome, however, will not be so sudden and immediate. There will be certain ‘signs’ first. In fact, it is written: I will come to you four times. ‘The first’ sign will be given by an earthquake (but it will be a series of mini-earthquakes, which ‘will run rampant on the Roman hills, as runaway goats’.”⁷⁴

Joseph Ratzinger, in the words of the Cardinal of Palermo, would die exactly one year from the 10th of February 2012, but he did not die, he resigned instead. Maybe something more powerful than the prayers of the faithful have changed the trajectory of those two meteorites directed on Rome, February 15, 2013. Lastly, it is worth mentioning that on the 3rd of March 2013, a series of mini earthquakes did indeed take place in the Roman hills and in Castel Gandolfo where the Pope Emeritus, as I wrote earlier, went for a period after resigning. They were mild earthquakes, the epicenter of the main earthquake was of magnitude 2.5, in the place the Romans familiarly call, the Castelli Romani.⁷⁵ Certainly the Pope Emeritus, well aware of the prophecies, must have had a few nightmares about it.
