The Rainbow (also called the Antahkarana or Rain-bow Bridge). This is used as a hypnotic device. They also call it an "International Sign of Peace." They claim they are building a rainbow bridge between the personality (you) and the over-soul or Great Universal Mind (literally Sanat Kumara, i.e., Lucifer!). See Isaiah 24:5 which states one reason the Lord is destroying the earth in the latter days is for breaking the everlasting covenant. The rainbow is the sign of the everlasting covenant according to Genesis, chapter nine. ¹⁵²

The year after the first publication of this book, the National Rainbow Coalition was created, a political organization founded by the false champion of civil rights Jesse Jackson is another puppet of the system, who in 1996 joined the operation PUSH coalition to become Rainbow/Push. After the rainbow symbol, what is the symbol of peace par excellence used here in the USA? In 1958, after a period of time that lasted from the Middle Ages, during a protest march against nuclear weapons, this symbol was "brought back to life," and then "re-introduced" mistakenly and falsely, as a symbol of peace. ¹⁵³

It is the symbol created by the British artist and designer Gerald Holtom, for the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament, which then went on to become in the following decades the quintessential symbol of the hippie culture and the anti-military movement since the sixties. It's now used in peace flags of the United States, where it is positioned as an alternative to the stars along with the famous red and white strips, in various peace and environmentalist movements. After the Paris attacks of November, 2015 Jean Jullien, a French graphic designer living in London, created a drawing entitled "Peace for Paris" using the iconic Eiffel Tower in the form of this presumed peace sign.

Wikipedia writes on this symbol: "The symbol is a combination of the semaphore signals for the letters 'N' and 'D,' standing for 'nuclear disarmament.' In semaphore the letter 'N' is formed by a person holding two flags in an inverted 'V,' and the letter 'D' is formed by holding one flag pointed straight up and the other pointed straight down. Superimposing these two signs forms the shape of the centre of the peace symbol." Holtom later wrote to Hugh Brock, editor of Peace News, explaining the genesis of his idea: "I was in despair. Deep despair. I drew myself: the representative of an individual in despair, with hands palm outstretched outwards and downwards in the manner of Goya's peasant before the firing squad. I formalised the drawing into a line and put a circle round it."

Ken Kolsbun, a correspondent of Holtom's, says that the designer came to regret the symbolism of despair, as he felt that peace was something to be celebrated and wanted the symbol to be inverted. Eric Austen is said to have "discovered that the gesture of despair motif had long been associated with the death of man, and the circle with the unborn child." ¹⁵⁴ A Symbol of the transmigration of souls, this ancient Anglo-Saxon rune is actually composed of the "sign of the great bustard," or the impression left by this big bird typical of Central Europe, enclosed in a circle it symbolizes eternity. It is also said to mean progress and peace. ¹⁵⁵ So the great bustard imprint left in the sand from the paw of a great bustard is an ancient symbol of Anglo-Saxon origin, and is then passed on to us through the para-Masonic Illuminati sects like the O.T.O. and the Golden Dawn as means of emancipation from God, to reach in their eyes absolute moral freedom, clearing away all the debris that Christianity may have accumulated in the old world.

The Bustard has an obvious phallic allusion and that is why it appeared frequently in 1968 as an ulterior incitement to full sexual freedom, as the great bustard symbolizes the absolute emancipation from God for the dark side of the Illuminati. There is even more hidden in the dark symbolism of the peace sign. In the past it was known as the “cross of Nero,” but also as “witches foot,” that is in short, a symbol of Satan, which takes its name from one of the worst killers of Christians during the early years of Christianity, the Emperor Nero. ¹⁵⁶

Many people, including many Christians, do not realize the origins of this symbol or why it has become a symbol of peace. An inverted cross, the anchor of the cross enclosed in a circle, is the vision of Nero, who believed it would be possible to bring peace to the world without Christianity, and for this, under his rule, thousands of Christians were martyred. ¹⁵⁷ Nero thought, in his diabolical madness, that there would be a peaceful world without Christ and Christianity, and even more crazy, people use it today as a symbol of peace, this is especially when radical Islam is persecuting Christians for the first time in centuries.

This deception was evident once more in the case of the Church of Satan founder Anton LaVey, who used this symbol as a background for his altar. Lucifer, “the rainbow,” Satan, and “the cross of Nero,” from the emperor who was, among other things, listed as the first Anti-Christ.

Chapter V

The Prophetic Aura of the Illuminati and the New World Order

9/11: the red pill

he ancient Zohar: The Book of Splendor, is studied by Illuminati sects, and Rosicrucians in particular, as one of their main occult guides. We find not only the teachings of a spiritual nature related to Kabbalah, which is considered one of their main sources of inspiration, and their most important manual, but it also contains teachings of a prophetic nature. There are statements that include dates and specifics that demonstrate that we have reached a stage in evolution known as “the End of Days,” which was carefully prepared by New World Order elitists, for the coming of the Messiah. In providing dates and descriptions of the events of this messianic period, the Zohar has predicted with incredible precision, some of the dramatic events of recent years. We learn in the teachings of the Zohar, that one day God will rebuild Jerusalem. Anyone who has visited the holy city can see that for decades they have been expanding every corner of the city. Emphasis should be put on the fact, that unlike many other major cities around the world, for almost two thousand years Jerusalem was a small provincial town, poor and derelict. Until the beginning of this century it was still considered dangerous to dwell outside the perimeter of the old walls, because of possible attacks by raiders and bandits. Only with the return of Jewish Zionists, and especially after Israel's independence in 1948, did the city begin to truly expand.

We find in the Jerusalem of today, new buildings and neighborhoods popping up everywhere across the city. It's written in the Zohar: it will show a certain fixed star sending lightning with seventy flashes and seventy sparks, in the middle of the firmament, for seventy days. Concerning the number 70, which is the value of the letter Ain, that governs the sign of Capricorn, and is a clear sign of political and economic power that seeks to dominate all others: it will appear in the sixth day of the week, on the 25th day of the sixth month. The shocking attacks in New York and Washington on 9/11/2001, occurred in the month of Ellul, the sixth month of the Jewish calendar, on the 23rd day. However, The Zohar speaks specifically of the 25th day of Ellul, but it should be noted that in this case the calculation of the current Jewish calendar is not exactly the same as two thousand years ago, and is considered when making calculations. Two days in a year are about 0.56%, or less than one percent. ¹ Elijah Ben Shlomo Zalman (1720-1797) known as "The Genius of Vilna," is considered one of the most competent rabbis in recent centuries, and stated that the text of the Zohar, that described the destruction of three buildings in "Rome" on the 25th day of Ellul was "wrong for two" days. The Zohar was then corrected to the more accurate version from the Sifra di-Tsni'uta, where it appears in the 23rd day of Elul, which calculates to September 11th. ² New York is the business capital of the American empire, and Washington is the seat of military power. The 9-11 attacks took place on a Tuesday, the day of Mars, the god of war, which is followed by the Illuminati elite devoted to the dark side. As if that was not enough, the prologue of the Zohar tells us the real name of the negative force that will punish the world. This negative force is represented through the metaphor of a dog as interpreted by known contemporary Kabbalist Yehuda Berg: "And since the other party saw this, took courage and sent a dog to eat the offerings. And what's the name of that dog? 'B'ladan' is his name ... and it is not a human being." ³ B'ladan=Bin Laden, the elusive villain of the 9/11 attacks on the Twin Towers, which launched the first decade of the end-times scenario. Some criticize this interpretation, in particular, Professor James A. Beverley in his book, Illustrated Guide to Religions. ⁴ However, the presence of Bin Laden in the international arena officially ends with his alleged murder / human sacrifice that took place on May 1st, 2001, which is the anniversary of the founding of the Illuminati. The president of the United States, Barak Obama, announced his death on the very day that, according to occult tradition, there is a blood sacrifice to appease the gods. May 1st, which not coincidentally is the date for the mysterious and improbable "suicide" of Adolf Hitler, another Illuminati creation, who went on living a comfortable life afterward. This may very well be, the same destiny for Osama Bin Laden.

world order

Some say Osama Bin Laden died ten years earlier in 2001, but the knowledge of his death would have ruined the whole legacy built around him, which was created by the Military Industrial Complex of the NWO. It should be noted, that the period beginning on April 26th until April 30th represents in a series of ceremonies, the union of higher beings in honor of the recurring celebration of Beltaine ("officially" a purely British and Irish pagan festival), but in reality the perfect time for an Illuminati ritual with an epilogue of blood. The Bavarian Illuminati was even founded on the first day after the celebrations, May 1, 1776, a date which also became Labor Day, so dear to socialists, anarchists; communists, and all creations of the Illuminati sects in various Masonic and para-Masonic emanations. The Illuminati elite interpreted the demolition of the Twin Towers as the symbolic destruction of Jachin and Boaz, ⁵ the two columns of the Temple of Jerusalem which are required to further excel in the Great Masonic Work. A gesture with an initiatic value, at least from their elitist point of view, made in their eyes for the good of humanity, and for the Glory of the Great Architect of the Universe. This seems to be the sad truth, but of course regular Masons will dissent on this point. Interestingly enough, in old Jewish tradition, other bloody sacrifices are also spoken about, in the period just before Beltaine. Since ancient times, two days are consecrated to the God Moloch, the 19th and 20th of April. Moloch is a bloodthirsty god that some say requires the sacrifice of children. Moloch is quoted in "The Paradise Lost" by John Milton, who is described as one of the most powerful followers of Satan:

First, Moloch, horrid King, besmeared with blood
Of human sacrifice, and parents' tears;
Though, for the noise of drums and timbrels loud,
Their children's cries unheard that passed through fire
To his grim idol. Him the Ammonite
Worshiped in Rabba and her watery plain,
In Argob and in Basan, to the stream Of utmost Arnon. Nor content with such Audacious neighbourhood, the wisest heart
Of Solomon he led by fraud to build His temple right against the temple of God
On that opprobrious hill, and made his grove
The pleasant valley of Hinnom, Tophet thence
And black Gehenna called, the type of Hell.
Paradise Lost, i. 391-405

According to Milton it was Moloch who convinced King Solomon to build "the temple in front of the temple of God," and for this reason he is often cited as The Corruptor. ⁶

My friend Alex Jones of InfoWars was able to film the ceremony called Cremation of Care at the Bohemian Grove in Northern California. His twin documentaries, Dark Secrets: Inside Bohemian Grove and Secret Rulers of the World, argue that the ceremony is rich in ancient Luciferian, Canaanite, and Babylonian references, and the owl statue represents the god Moloch. ⁷

The cult of Moloch was introduced in Jerusalem by King Solomon, in whose honor children were slain in the valley of Tophet: Also, he defiled Topheth, which is in the steep valley of the son of Hinnom, so that no one would consecrate his son or his daughter, through fire, to Moloch. II Kings 23, 10-Catholic Version. It is a valley carved by the river Hinnom on the south side of Mount Zion, which Jesus later associated with fire, and Catholics with hell. ⁸ Exodus XXII, 28-29, (cited from <http://www.catholic.org/>) states clearly:

28 Do not be slow about making offerings from your abundance and your surplus. You will give me the first-born of your children;

29 You will do the same with your flocks and herds. For the first seven days the firstborn will stay with its mother; on the eighth day you will give it to me. The Bible often mentions human sacrifice, in Joshua VI, 26.

It is said that Joshua took an oath:

26 At that time Joshua made them take this oath before Yahweh: Accursed before Yahweh be the man who rises up and rebuilds this city (Jericho)! On his first-born will he lay its foundations, on his youngest son set up its gates!

Joshua commanded a human sacrifice following the defeat that was suffered by the Israelis, who fought with the people of the city of Ai. The sacrificial victim chosen was Achan, who was accused of the defeat, and was then stoned to death. This sacrifice gave new life to the Israelites who, during a new battle, defeated the army of Ai. ⁹

In the long course of history, a number of important events have taken place on the 19th and 20th of April, where every move is calculated by the Invisible Masters using the science of numerology, and the art of "Synchronicity." Is it a coincidence, as in the recent Paris attacks that occurred on another infamous date, Friday the 13th, or is there something more to it?

There are dates of important events in history that can confirm that there are no coincidences :

The American War of Independence (19 April 1775)

The birth of Hitler (April 20, 1889)

The election of Pope Ratzinger (19 April 2005)

The tragedy of Waco, Texas (April 19, 1993)

The Oklahoma bombing (April 19, 1995)

The massacre at Columbine High School (20 April 1999).

Cosmic "Synchronicity" is required by the Secret Chiefs of Freemasonry and the Illuminati, who need a continuous revitalization of their Eggregore for their power groups. They have created for this reason, the Meditation Room at the United Nations, where the Board of the New World Order gathers in secret complicity. In this place, not only religious oriented leaders, but many politicians, industrialists, including the Bush family, the Clinton's and the Rockefeller's, gather. We could say the Rockefellers are masters of ceremony, as the U.N. building was built on the land donated in 1946 by John D. Rockefeller Jr. ¹⁰ Spiritual leaders or pseudo ones, like the Dalai Lama, and the different Popes, have all been guested in this building and have operated with the Eggregore in question. In the Meditation Room of the UN, the eggregore of the NWO is activated by Illuminati sects and the secret symbolism is only present for those with eyes to see. If an amulet or talisman can prevent an attack from evil energy, then it can be said that the location or temple is a "Sacred" place that can manifest the entity in our dimension. When a Eggregore has existed for a long time, it acquires a relatively independent life, and may no longer wish to obey the impulses that the Master of the group sends through the input of rituals. The originally enslaved Eggregore can become a Master, which explains the rise of deviated movements from their primary purpose assigned, like most of the movements of the New World Order, and in particular, Neo-theosophical or pseudo-Illuminati ones related to the United Nations. Elementary Spirits have approximately the same form of “life” as an Eggregore, and are conjured by the occultist or occult groups. On the subject of Elementals there is an extensive bibliography, and the procedures to manifest them is similar to the ones facilitated for the Eggregore.

The resins used for religious or Masonic rituals, like Frankincense and myrrh, represent the “blood” of the plants used. Such substances help direct mental currents during a Mass or a ritual, and the different Illuminati sects, are part of a global ritual supervised by our leaders to preserve their Eggregore, the one favored by the blood thirsty elite sitting on top of the Pyramid of power.

Children are sacrificed during rituals of witchcraft to receive benefits from the spirits, and men are slaughtered to appease the wrath of the gods or to ingratiate them. In the eyes of modern man, such barbaric customs may seem an unacceptable legacy of the past, and it may be difficult to imagine that respected individuals in positions of power and responsibility, can be part of this macabre horror that reigns supreme among the elite.

Since ancient times man has sacrificed his fellow man and, still, these rituals and beliefs are present in several contemporary cultures: for example, in most of the South American cultures (strongly influenced by the ancient rites of Incan, Mayan and Aztec), or in certain African tribes. ¹¹ The life of an evil Eggregore is ensured by these terrible actions, however the members of a pure Lodge, with their discipline, their spiritual union, their strict observance of Rites of protection and the emanation of love as a spiritual force, can counteract this evil. I linger on the subject of the occult to help you understand where and how such energies are generated, and if possible to help the more diligent reader to block this negativity from their lives and reach a new awareness.

The process of the “Magic Ritual” or “Theurgy,” are the most powerful means of enforcement used by the network of occultists of the New World Order. We must learn to identify these negative activities in order to fight them, and if possible create our own Egregore in order to counteract the damage that is being inflicted on us.

The researcher Gian Guido Benucci summarizes the Egregoric principle as follows:

- The psychic Egregore creatures are created by artificial human thought by a unanimity of purpose, they are vitalized and kept alive by means of Rites and are more powerful, the more powerful are the impulses coming from its leaders.
- They can gain a certain independence and also be free from any work suggestion when they acquire the maximum potential and their leaders do not have the strength to control them any longer.
- They decline or dissolve when they no longer have their power through the rites and sacrifices.
- They are made in the image of a Total Man, a Cosmic Man (principle of plurality in unity) by a “archetype” (an eternal idea of the Platonic system), which is the spirit, the nous, the pneuma (Divine Spirit World).
- These artificial creatures have for the soul, the collective soul of their people, they receive energy pulses (prayers, slogans, uniforms, mantras, litanies) and are able to receive them through a kind of psychic osmosis.

- They have an “astral body,” a sum, made up of the symbols (pentagrams for example) from images (icons, idols, teraphim, statues etc.,) And the intuitive soul and passion of their faithful who is the hypostasis (union spirit-matter) and the vehicle. ¹²

Men with common goals form an Egregore, and when energy is united to form a spiritual Egregore; it can be positive; but also negative and even malignant. This leads us to counter-initiation, a form of reverse initiation, towards the dark side. Those who belong to an institution like the United Nations, or an initiatory order as the many Illuminati sects or Freemasonry’s irregular or deviant branches involved with the occult elite, are all part of a common Egregore psychically integrated through an initiation ritual that becomes their common denominator, where the single individual becomes a cell o f

11 See. “Human Sacrifices: rites, ceremonies and traditions of past and present,” art. cited. ¹² <http://www.animalibera.net/2010/08/il-significato-degli-egregori.html> † Archived 18th July, 2015. world order a much larger structure. This body of initiates, or in the case of the UN, the counterinitiated, are like robots of the New World Order, and soldiers of Satan’s Legion.

When a spiritual Egregore is demonic and evil, the entire group attached to it, in turn, become demonic and wicked. Knowing the meaning of the word “Egregore” and understanding this concept is certainly crucial for those who belong to initiatory orders, but also for those in the outside world. It helps to understand the mistakes that lead to evil being unleashed on the world, and those related to false public perception of the elite; and its institutions. Eliphas Levi invented the term “Occult.” He was a Freemason and Rosicrucian who also introduced the concept of Egregore in modern esotericism; to define any phenomenon of voluntarily oriented collective psyche. In this sense the Egregore is generated by the group mind, when consciously united in the pursuit of a common goal. ¹³ Eliphas Levi also identified the Egregore with the ancient tradition concerning the fathers of the Nephilim. Eliphas Levi, in “The Great Arcanum” of 1868, described them as “terrible beings, that will crush us without pity, because they are unaware of our existence.” ¹⁴

Jean Louis Bernard argues that the term Egregore comes from the sacred books of the Horites of Cilicia, a region in Asia Minor, which then was translated to Aramaic, to Hebrew and Greek. The Egregore corresponds to the guardian angels of the cardinal points in the Book of Enoch, those who watch “the throne of divine glory,” who married the daughters of Seth (See. Genesis, VI). The meaning of the word is precisely “the one who watches” with a probable Egyptian origin from “gergu” or “re-ger” = quiet, with reference “to the invisible and silent regents of humanity, on the sacred mountain.” ¹⁵

The goal of the United Nations should be for the good of humanity, but unfortunately, if the individuals involved, either knowingly or unknowingly, do not follow the rules of conduct, projection, and use the spiritual power necessary to manifest a pure and good Egregore for the world, we are faced with a reality that we could rename “The United Nations of Evil.” Some say this is what happens when you make Saudi Arabia a leader of the UN human rights council ... but that’s another story.

How do you fight an evil Egregore, you may ask? Since the Egregore is formed when a group of people is combined with the exclusive intent and common purpose of creating it, unless the desire to manifest it to a thought form is very strong, the Egregore will dissipate quickly. One of the only ways to defeat an evil Egregore, is to infiltrate the group that created it, and to block their evil intentions. That is, of course, if the Egregore does not kill you first during such a delicate operation!

JRR Tolkien described how the hidden force that drives magic is “the thirst for power.” The black magician, or sorcerer, or witches, want to gain power over others, and to do so they do not hesitate to seek agreements with the forces of evil and this is what the Illuminati sects are practicing. As Tolkien points out, no magic, in itself, is good or bad, black or white: it is the objective you want to achieve that colors the magic of the ritual. The color “black” is “bad” magic because it manifests dark energy, in contrast to “white” that is traditionally tied to light. According to Tolkien, magic was originally a positive manifestation, ¹⁶ however the lust for power can dominate those who practice magical rituals, which can easily corrupt the soul. If the magician cannot resist, he will be seduced by evil and will use the powers acquired for evil purposes.

The “ Wizards of the New World Order” claim to be linked to so-called spirituality and “white magic.” Alice Bailey, who was their icon, described a positive form of “white magic” in numerous writings, but eventually was lead to the dark side with her evil intentions. At times one would expect a more coherent work from people who consider themselves the “enlightened” of society. In Treatise on Cosmic Fire, Bailey writes:

The student must recollect at this juncture the distinction that is made between the work of the black and the white magician. It might be helpful here before proceeding further to look at these distinctions as far as they concern the matter in hand:

First. The white Brother deals with positive electrical energy. The dark Brother deals with the negative electrical energy.

Second. The white Brother occupies himself with the soul of things. The black Magician centres his attention upon the form.

Third. The white Magician develops the inherent energy of the sphere concerned (whether human, animal, vegetable or mineral) and produces results through the self-induced activities of the central life, subhuman, human or super-human. The black Magician attains results through the agency of force external to the sphere involved, and produces transmutation through the agency of resolvents (if so I might term it) or through the method of the reduction of the form, rather than through radiation, as does the white Magician. These differences of method need to be carefully considered and their reaction visualized in connection with different elements, atoms, and forms. ¹⁷

Bailey discusses the nature of the white magician, in which she considers herself an advocate, in The Treaty of White Magic: I would like in this first consideration of our subject to enumerate briefly the facts given in the commentary so as to demonstrate to the aspirant how much is given him for his consideration and helping if he knows how to read and ponder upon that which he reads. The brief exegesis of Rule I give the following statements:

1. The white magician is one who is in touch with his soul.
2. He is receptive to and aware of the purpose and the plan of his soul.
3. He is capable of receiving impressions from the realm of spirit and of registering them in his physical brain.
4. It is stated also that white magic—
 - a. Works from above downwards.
 - b. Is the result of solar vibration, and therefore of egoic energy.
 - c. Is not an effect of the vibration of the form side of life, being divorced from emotion and mental impulse.
5. The downflow of energy from the soul is the result of
 - a. Constant internal re-collectedness.
 - b. Concentrated one-pointed communication by the soul with the mind and the brain.
 - c. Steady meditation upon the plan of evolution.
6. The soul is, therefore, in deep meditation during the whole cycle of physical incarnation, which is all that concerns the student here .

¹⁷ Alice A. Bailey, A Treatise on Cosmic Fire, 1951, (Vitinia di Roma, RM, IT: Casa Editrice NUOVA ERA 1999), p. 261.

world order

7. This meditation is rhythmic and cyclic in nature as is all else in the cosmos. The soul breathes and its form lives thereby.

8. When the communication between the soul and its instrument is conscious and steady, the man becomes a white magician.

9. Therefore workers in white magic are invariably, and through the very nature of things, advanced human beings, for it takes many cycles of lives to train a magician.

10. The soul dominates its form through the medium of the sutratma or life thread, and (through it) vitalizes its triple instrument (mental, emotional and physical) and thus sets up a communication with the brain. Through the brain, consciously controlled, the man is galvanized into intelligent activity on the physical plane. ¹⁸ Baily's words demonstrate a clear hypocrisy underlying the New Age concept, also typical of the so-called "White Magicians" present in the U.N., who do not care about the consequences of their actions. This attitude has transformed them into dangerous black magicians. Our intense thoughts or emotions are grouped with others to create a thought form, the aforementioned Egregore. What must be clarified further at this point, is that the motivation of our thoughts will determine whether these actions will create a positive or negative karma. Your thoughts manifest into reality, and we are responsible for everything we transmit on various levels. It can be understood by the axiom: "Energy follows thought." Only by changing our thoughts, entering principles and ethical values, we can rise out of negative thought forms and create positive change... The harmony in our lives depends on the mastery of our thoughts, because it is our thoughts that manifest our destiny. ¹⁹

The force of our thoughts has enormous power. It is now time to positively change destiny beginning with an interior renovation of the mystery schools and lodges linked to the network of the Illuminati. I began to meditate on this impossible task, after 9/11, when I witnessed the fulfillment of an evil plan that for months had been announced in different ways in different environments close to the Illuminati and Occult Masonry as I mentioned in Volume I. In this Orwellian system, ethics and morals are an option, and not a necessity or a way of life, even for those institutions like Freemasonry, that should defend the ethics and morals of our society.

We are living in a system of compromise created and guided by a perverse and self-righteous Illuminati elite, who love only themselves and their Jesuit and Zionist circles, and not humanity. For me, 9/11 was in essence, like taking the Red Pill, which led to a series of events that have changed my life forever.

The plot for the creation of the so-called “End-Times” he Kabbalah is an esoteric system where we find the secrets of metaphysics which are hidden by Jewish Rabbis, who learn and teach about the mystical and spiritual wisdom contained in the Hebrew Bible. Here we find the prophetic view followed by the Israeli Intelligence, who are heavily influenced by Jewish mysticism, although officially they are not involved in “spirituality.” The tragedies of 9/11 were carefully executed, and the elite warned only a privileged few, including many Jews, but not 4,000, as wrongly stated by the Lebanese Manar TV linked to Hezbollah,²⁰ who are enemies of Israel, and are known to exaggerate from time to time in their propaganda efforts. The collapse saw in fact 110 Israelis dead and hundreds more American Jews injured.²¹ The Jewish leaders could not warn their people in plain language of their prior knowledge of the attacks. Instead, they filtered the information as a prophetic message, to avoid suspicion. They simply recommended to their flock not to go to work that day in New York. In fact, a select few were lucky enough to be warned of the events via the instant messaging service Odigo, but then again they were not only Jews or Israelis, but also included a minority of privileged elitists.

And if you are not yet ready to believe that the events of 9/11 were the fruits of a conspiracy instigated by the New World Order using various factions, let us remember the words of a credible source on the subject, the former Italian President Francesco Cossiga (1928-2010), who was a Grand Cross of Honour and Devotion of the Sovereign Military Order of Malta (also known by the acronym S.M.O.M.), and also was one of the leaders of the notorious secret operation called GLADIO. ²²

Cossiga spoke of 9/11 in the press three years before his death in November 2007, in the Italian newspaper Corriere della Sera stating the following: "All democratic circles of America and Europe ... know well that the disastrous attack was planned and built by the American CIA and the Mossad with the help of the Zionist world to impeach the Arab countries and to induce the Western powers to intervene in Iraq and Afghanistan." ²³ Of course he failed to mention the Catholic faction, but certainly for some, this statement would seem at first glance the statements of a conspiracy theorist. I would like to again stress, that such claims were made by the former president of Italy, a leading country of NATO. Francesco Cossiga was tied to the previously mentioned Giorgio Hugo Balestrieri, and also to the P2, but questioned his past alliances, in that final chapter in his life

Cossiga was an unwilling participant of the murder of Italian Prime Minister Aldo Moro (1916-1978); organized by Henry Kissinger at the Bohemian Grove and orchestrated by the Intelligence expert Steve Pieczenik, while Cossiga was interior minister in Italy. The Italian investigative journalist Gianni Lannes (b. 1965) wrote the following:

Pieczenik, assistant secretary of state under Henry Kissinger, a psychiatrist, and a specialist in "crisis management" and terrorist expert, revealed the hidden truth of this event in a book / interview published in 2008, entitled We killed Aldo Moro. After thirty years a protagonist comes out of the shadows, ²⁴ Pieczenik rubbed shoulders with Francesco Cossiga, in the crucial part of the 55 day affair. It was "the American expert of the U.S. State Department who directed and managed state action with the Italian Red Brigades. His presence at the Italian Interior Ministry has been interpreted by many, in recent years, as a kind of “controller” exercised on a country (Italy) at the time decisive in the balance of East-West.”²⁵

Steve Pieczenik is now retired and living in Florida, and has been repeatedly summoned by the Italian authorities in recent years to answer for his actions in relation to the Aldo Moro case. He was basically only doing his job, and if anything, they should summon Kissinger, but he is an untouchable elitist and still to this day, a driving force of the NWO. Pieczenik, who occasionally appears on Infowars with Alex Jones, seems very witty and Cossiga never forgave himself for the murder of Aldo Moro, also because he was a very devoted Catholic. I can only imagine how Francesco Cossiga, described as a very sensitive person, felt after the brutal assassination of Aldo Moro, which was blamed on a terrorist, knowing very well that it was all a farce organized by the U.S. State Department under orders issued by that criminal Kissinger. I once spoke about it with his psychiatrist, as Cossiga also had some depression problems in the years following the event.

His revelations on 9/11 in his hour of repentance should be taken seriously by all those who want to know the truth about what really happened on 9/11, and the long lasting propaganda and lies of the U.S. Government.

In 1929, this manipulation was fully realized by Edward Bernays, in his essay "Propaganda," where he clearly explains how the advent of democratic forms of government and so-called individual freedoms, along with industrialization, produced the objective need (by the part of the political and economic establishment) to govern from the top, manipulating the thinking and the behavior of the masses, both as voters and as consumers. This is why today mental manipulation has become a technology and a science in which both governments and private corporations invest a lot more money than any other field of psychology. The spread of knowledge is an essential tool we can use to defend our freedoms and liberties. Not surprisingly, before the rise of all the great dictators in history, the media has been manipulated and controlled, to shape the minds of the people. ²⁶

Jesuit Illuminati and Communism ...

A

Adam Weishaupt (1748-1830) founded the Bavarian Illuminati (which is a modern offshoot of the real ancient mystery schools of the Illuminati), whose origins are tied to the Jesuits and Jewish finance. He aimed to organize a minority of agitators that could guide man to the realization of the ultimate Goal: "Being Free," ²⁷ or at least that was his official intention functional to his Deist creed. As Wikipedia states: Deism has no creed, articles of faith, or holy book. Neither Satan nor hell exists, only symbols of evil which can be overcome by man's own reasoning.

In an exclusive speech for the so-called "Mysteries Class" of the Illuminati, reserved for Epopts and priests, he explains that Jesus "has prepared his kingdom for us" and "provided a certain number of the best and most illuminated ones." ²⁸

Furthermore, Weishaupt states to his chosen ones that The letter G (Author's note: the one used in Masonry), reminds us of the word Grace, and sheds light on the origins of the name Illuminati, originating from the early Christians who were called the Illuminati after their baptism, ²⁹ which was in short their initiation. Weishaupt stated to the candidate of the Mysteries that true Christianity was perpetuated only in the lap of true Freemasonry.³⁰ There is further explanation based on a number of key steps of the New Testament,³¹ and according to Weishaupt, these important teachings demonstrate that the Illuminati must unite the world “in a single family to preserve the true secrets of its doctrine, and the light of reason.”³² The key steps in Latin for the “Epopts,” degree show how the Illuminati³³ were required to perceive this sacred role. At this point, in his instructions, Adam Weishaupt attacks Freemasonry which was guilty of having created degrees and unnecessary teachings, that have nothing to do with real tradition: “False Templars, false Rosicrucians, etc., came to the fore in large numbers.”³⁴ On this point, I agree.

Secrecy in early Christianity, was an important role used by the Illuminati and Weishaupt, that originally drove them to “hide their true doctrines behind hieroglyphs, and themselves behind the names of other societies.”³⁵

For Weishaupt and his Illuminati, “It is easy to imagine that the fate of Jesus’ old and new disciples was miserable and sad, just as he had prophesied.”³⁶ Thus for the Illuminati, secrecy is necessary to avoid “persecution from the outside.”³⁷ Weishaupt sets out the system of directives on the formation of the character of man in detail. He appears to be the perfect emulator of Machiavelli, in the application of the old adage, “the end justifies the means.” He recommended to be appreciative toward women and compliment them often; so they become docile as lambs. ³⁸ Weishaupt was not only a brilliant conspirator and agitator but a pawn of a subversive plan by the Illuminati order he created in 1776. French author Serge Hutin writes:

Before us there is placed, the existence on Earth of an invisible hierarchy of leaders, who watch that the movements of history are conducted according to the general rules, transcending the single individual and also the group (and where appropriate the systematic use of force, which in certain cycle periods of humanity, are necessary). In this case, are men just pawns in the chessboard of history? ³⁹

Hutin describes the philosophy of the Illuminati:

Ultimately, to build and achieve the ideal society you must go through several generations, through the experience of an authoritarian society. Far from being a disorganized spontaneous motion, revolutionary action must be prepared and conducted with machiavelic method, first secretly and then openly. As soon as the old government topples, a new group must be ready to assume power. ⁴⁰

Weishaupt seems to have prophesied exactly this period for society. He was consciously advocating with his practical vision, and his elaborate methods in the field of mind control and manipulation, a unique form of Secret Society, with a completely different approach from traditional Masonic teaching, applied for the first time with scientific efficacy, within a secret society made up of many cells, united to achieve global control.

Weishaupt revealed in his revolutionary theory, a direct precursor to the activities of “Irregular” Freemasons like Lenin, or Abu Bakr al-Baghdadi. Even the leader of the Bolsheviks once said: “No event is improvised,” who was inspired by Weishaupt and his Order. In this context we find Communism, which was conceived by the Jesuits and then realized by German philosopher and economist of Jewish origin Karl Marx

then realized by German philosopher and economist of Jewish origin Karl Marx (1818-1883), whose objective was the creation of a fully centralized dictatorship and a submissive authority of state, encompassing the entire world. This is the main purpose of the deviant side of Rosicrucianism, which the elite embed with Witchcraft and Satanism; which in turn created the corrupt and deviant side of Freemasonry, the deviant side of the Illuminati and Martinism, and pushed for the establishment of a dictatorial form of World Government; with an emphasis on material progress, and the destruction of organized religion to elevate man to the status of “man equals God.”

The root for man is man himself ... The criticism of religion comes to the doctrinal conclusion that, for man, The Supreme Being is the man. ... We want to get rid of everything that is supernatural, so we declared war once and for all to religion. (Karl Marx).

All religious ideas are crazy! God is a monstrous corpse. Faith in God is a monstrous cowardice. (Lenin).

No neutrality in the face of Religion. Against the propagators of religious nonsense, the Communist Party can only continue the war. (Stalin). ⁴¹

Catho-Communism is spreading like a disease around the world and Pope Francis, the Jesuit Pope, seems to love Communism. But let us now return to Adam Weishaupt, and learn what his vision of Jesus was: “We repeat that Jesus has not founded a new religion, but simply wanted to restore the natural religion. Giving to the world a unit, spreading light and wisdom of His morals, fighting prejudices, His intention was to teach us to govern ourselves and to restore freedom and equality among men.”

For Weishaupt, every man must find in himself the inner Light, to become equal to Jesus. This is the doctrine of the founder of the Bavarian Illuminati. ⁴²

In July of 2015, Pope Francis accepted from the Communist President of Bolivia Evo Morales, a medallion and crucifix engraved with the hammer and sickle, originally designed by a Spanish Jesuit Luis Espinal, assassinated by military dictatorship in the eighties. To investigate the origin of this peculiar crucifix, the Bolivian site Oxigeno.Bo, interviewed Xavier Albo, a Jesuit anthropologist and linguist, native of Catalonia, who has lived in Bolivia since 1952, where he gained Bolivian citizenship. He is a friend of Espinal, and one of the best known Jesuit researchers in the country. It is he who in fact retains the original cross, which measures 40 by 50 cm, and the one delivered by Morales to the Pope—he explains—is in fact a replica. ⁴³

So the Jesuits and Father Xavier Albo SJ hold the original cross with the hammer and sickle, not the Communist government of Bolivia. In 1937, Pope Pius XI had to say this about Communism: Communism is intrinsically wrong, and it is not acceptable in any field by anyone who wants to save Christian civilization. ⁴⁴ After 1958, with the appointment of the first Masonic Pope in history Pope Roncalli, ideals changed drastically in the Vatican.

Returning to again to Weishaupt, who was blinded by a hypocritical form of anticlericalism, which tied him in secret to important figures of the Jesuits of that time, such as the Illustrious Jesuit Monsignor Joseph Marotti (Giuseppe Marotti), future sec retary of Pope Pius VI, linked to Franz Xaver von Zwackh, who was initially Adam Weishaupt's right hand man.⁴⁵ Marotti influenced the drafting of the Masonic rituals of Weishaupt's Illuminati, within the system created by Weishaupt, secretly contributing Jesuit influence to the center of this new secret society.

Weishaupt was a perfect puppet for these hidden puppeteers: on the one hand the Jesuits, who obviously could blackmail him knowing his weak spots; on the other the growing Jewish lobby; thanks to families like the Rothschilds, who have since become one of the key families, handling the world of finance for the establishment of the New World Order. As a Bavarian, Adam learned Czech and Italian as a child, and in school, he mastered Latin, Greek and, with his father's help, Hebrew. With his avid scholarship and knack for languages, his Jesuit superiors thought he would be a natural for overseas missionary work, perhaps in the Americas or in Asia.

But Adam rebelled against Jesuit discipline, resisting their overtures and eventually became the professor of Canon Law at the University of Ingolstadt. Beginning around 1768, Adam began "the collection of a large library for the purpose of establishing an academy of scholars." He read every ancient manuscript and text he and his associates could lay their hands on. Adam grew interested in the occult, and was obsessed with the Great Pyramid of Giza, a place of great occult power, indeed.

He was convinced that the edifice was a prehistoric temple of initiation. In 1770, he made the acquaintance of Franz Kolmer, a Danish merchant who lived for many years in Alexandria, and had made several trips to Giza. The following year, 1771, Adam decided to found a secret society aimed at "transforming" the human race,⁴⁶ but inside him there resided a great lust for earthly power and an enormous presumption that he could control everything and everyone. For this reason, Weishaupt was never able to convey fair and complete esoteric teachings in the mystery school present in his order. The Illuminati became only a school of manipulation and control, based on Jesuit and Masonic style methodology, which would serve to exercise power on a global scale thanks to the triumph of REASON. This so-called “reason,” could eventually see the fall of all established religions which is exactly what is happening today. The fall of religion in favor of atheism and relativism, and the rise of religious fundamentalism and terrorist organizations that are constituted in ways that often resemble Weishaupt’s creation.

In 1780, Adam Weishaupt entered a period of collaboration with Baron Adolf von Knigge (1752-1796), a true initiate who supervised part of the ritual structure of the order. He was a Freemason and an initiate of the highest level, who did not want any form of compromise with outside groups, like the Jesuits, and was actually more willing to contribute a truly initiatic element.

Wikipedia using as reference René le Forestier ⁴⁷ who wrote about Knigge in the following way:

In 1780, Knigge joined Adam Weishaupt’s Bavarian Illuminati and his work with the Illuminati gave the group a great deal of publicity. But in 1783 dissensions arose between Knigge and Weishaupt, which resulted in the Knigge’s final withdrawal from the group on 1 July 1784. Knigge stated that he could no longer endure Weishaupt’s pedantic domineering, which frequently assumed offensive forms. He accused Weishaupt of “Jesuitism,” and suspected him of being “a Jesuit in disguise” (Nachtr., I, 129).

“And was I,” he adds, “to labor under his banner for mankind, to lead men under the yoke of so stiff-necked a fellow?—Never!”⁴⁸

Baron Knigge was certainly not lying when he called Weishaupt “a Jesuit in disguise,” revealing who this controversial founder of the Order of the Illuminati really was. In the meantime, Weishaupt obviously did not like Knigge’s criticism and began a persecution of his ex-collaborator: “Knigge’s involvement with the Illuminati, his support of the advancement of human rights, and a period of serious illness led to the loss of support of his aristocratic sponsors and finally his fortune.” If Knigge would have compromised with Weishaupt and the Jesuits, he could have died a rich man, however: “Knigge found a measure of financial stability again with a position in Bremen in 1790. He died in Bremen in 1796.”⁴⁹

Adam Weishaupt’s deviant teachings found other groups around the world eager to receive his teachings and adopt his modalities in the following years. In the United States, the Skull and Bones was founded at Yale University in 1832. The ritual of the Order of Skull & Bones recites:

There is a devil, a Don Quixote and a Pope who has one foot sheathed in a white monogrammed slipper resting on a stone skull. The initiates are led into the room one at a time. And once an initiate is inside, the Bonesmen shriek at him. Finally, the Bonesman is shoved to his knees in front of Don Quixote as the shrieking crowd falls silent. And Don Quixote lifts his sword and taps the Bonesman on his left shoulder and says, “By order of our order, I dub thee knight of Euloga.”⁵⁰

Adam Weishaupt, at the time Court Counselor of the Duke of Saxony-Gotha, published in 1787, a brief essay entitled “On Materialism And Idealism.” This rare text is finally being translated and adapted into the English language by, among others, my friend Josef Wages, who is the co-writer and editor of the first book to actually portray accurately the rituals of the Illuminati, published in 2015 and entitled,

The Secret School of Wisdom: The Authentic Rituals and Doctrines of the Illuminati.

A short extract of “On Materialism And Idealism,” translated by the late Jeva SinghAnand who died in 2015, and edited by Brother Josef, should give the reader a more clear idea of Weihaupt’s mission and his “reason” crusade:

The thinker acknowledges the merits of this revealed religion with gratitude: for he also has his weaknesses, just as the mind of the wisest man has its boundaries, by which his prospects are limited. But it also makes him believe that by virtue of religion, he is entitled to use his powers as he deems sufficient, without therefore doubting their great value with regard to others or himself. He feels entitled to give his concepts of reason as well as those of religion the degree of certainty and conviction to the fullest extent of his capacities; he even feels obligated not to console himself with one-sided proofs. He who has been gifted with more knows the duty no weaker man can have, to compare the reasons of both parties, to seek reconciliation, and thereby to achieve for himself the highest degree of certainty. This examination brings him additional benefits: it serves him to humble human pride and brashness, to draw his attention to that which is dearer to him, to encourage him to lead an active life and to preserve him from speculation, dreams, and confusion; it serves him to show people what they don’t know, what they will never experience in this life in any manner; it serves him to uncover much that is inconsistent and arbitrary in our favorite philosophical systems, to warn people of errant paths, to open their eyes to the magnificence of God and His works in a new, unique, and irrefutable manner, to lead people to the boundaries of all human knowledge, and to make them understand that they, who place so much value on their intellect, are ridiculing many incomprehensible things without cause, that even certain impossibilities may be things that are quite possible; it thus rather serves him to affirm revealed religion, to make its sense of necessity more palpable and clear, rather than disputing it. ⁵¹

Unfortunately in 1915, this “ highest degree of certainty” culminated into the creation of the secret German organization called Spartacus, (initiatc name of Adam Weishaupt), an organization that marked the first stages of the human tragedy we know as Communism. A writtten manifesto of the Spartacist League (Spartakusbund) appeared in Germany in November 1918, written by Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg. The League subsequently renamed itself the Kommunistische Partei Deutschlands (KPD), joining the Comintern in 1919.

In January 1919, a mysterious order was created by the Spartacist cells attempting to seize power in Germany, but a bloody revolt was organized by Freikorp, on orders of the Chancelor Friedrich Ebert. Hundreds of Spartacists, including Liebknecht and Luxemburg, would be killed in the following weeks by Freikorp, ⁵² and another Illuminati sect will emerge victorious. Serge Hutin, writes the following on the subject:

It is usually said that opposites attract. We should therefore not see any impossibility in the fact that Hitler executives were fascinated by Wesihaupt’s system, the most modern and perfected that relies upon an active minority to make revolutions. As it was an advanced technique of uprising and coup, therefore, perfectly suitable for use even by the worst enemies of socialism. ⁵³

This happened with the Thule Society, and their counter-revolutionary political force, formed to oppose Communism and the Spartacists. The Thule society is a very influential occult branch of the Illuminati sects whose ideological legacy was set into motion by the German National Socialist Party (NSDA). Adolf Hitler was initiated into the Thule Society in 1919 by Dietrich Eckart. ⁵⁴ According to Hans Thomas Hakl, the esoteric and occult content of the Thule Society was almost absent from this system, ⁵⁵ just as in the Order of the

Illuminati. In 1920, Hitler became the supreme leader of the National Socialist Party, secretly supported by the American Illuminati elite and big business. My friend Pierluigi Tombetti, considered one of Italy's leading experts on the esoteric side of Nazism, explains in one of his books that Wall Street began to send millions of dollars in support of the Nazi Party, by both bank subsidiaries and companies linked to the Rockefellers, and the Rothschilds.⁵⁶ Ford and Dupont (General Motors), IBM, and even Coca

After rebelling from Adam Weishaupt, Baron Von Knigge, after the convent of Wilhelmsbad, together with Baron Dittfurth, began a major reform of The Mother Grand Lodge of Eclectic Union, Frankfurt. It is described by the late Masonic historian, and high level Italian Illuminati, Vincenzo Soro, as the center of a new and ingenious system based on absolute Masonic tolerance of all Masonic Rites and all particular beliefs.

This system has all the regular Grand Lodges, and was formed according to the original system of the Grand Lodge of London of 1717, that practice and govern the first three degrees of Freemasonry, which already contain roughly the entire "Secret Doctrine" of Freemasonry. But unlike what happened and still happens in the jurisdiction of certain Grand Lodges which prohibit “Master Mason” knowledge and possession of the High Degrees of any rite, and require the practice of a given Masonic system by outlawing all others, the member of this Masonic Obedience could study and investigate all the known rites, from the most common to the most obscure, either as a whole or in each of the grades.

In The Middle Chamber of the 3rd degree, there is a portion of Initiation dedicated to the introduction of the system, and all the rituals, and the particular doctrines of each of these systems are carefully explained. The initiate is thus enabled to follow the rite, or rites, that he preferred, to bind to this or that Masonic body, without failing in any way his duties to The Mother Grand Lodge of Eclectic Union.⁵⁸ This system claims first place because of the filial persistency with which it adhered with England, and distanced itself from the blighting influence of High Degrees, Strict Observance and other Masonic aberrations of that time. There is no mystery to the history of this peculiar Masonic body, its Minutes are full and complete from the earliest, to the latest; its records are admirably preserved; every statement—on their authority—and rests on documentary evidence and, from 1742, literally no question is open to doubt.⁵⁹

However, this system, commendable in terms of Masonic teaching, was put aside with the arrival of Adolf Hitler, which as I demonstrated in Volume I, was another puppet of the hidden rulers, who acted with revenge, eliminating this Masonic tradition that opposed so strongly the Jesuits and Adam Weishaupt. That’s why the Mother Grand Lodge of Eclectic Union did not resume their operations at the revival of Freemasonry in Germany after World War II, when there was the unification of all the old Masonic obediences on April 27th, 1958, with the founding act of the United Grand Lodges of Germany.⁶⁰ They had all the papers in order so what could be the reason? The Invisible Masters decided to shut them down without a second thought.

From that point onwards the Mother Grand Lodge of Eclectic Union became a mere curiosity and an object of study and research for historians of Freemasonry. Masonic eclecticism in a compartmentalized world like Freemasonry, was far from being considered an added value to the Masonic Brotherhood, since the majority of Freemasons, to this day, have a sectarian attitude, which drives them to be silent and obedient servants of a singular Rite. These hypocrites at the top of the Masonic pyramid, the various Grand Masters, Sovereign Grand Commanders and First Grand Principals, still enjoy the so-called secret knowledge of the supposed mysteries in privileged study groups of the Masonic elite, which I was able to join in the past during my active life in “Regular Freemasonry.”

Returning again to Weishaupt, he was raised a Catholic of Jewish descent, and that is what many researchers follow without any conclusive evidence. The first genealogical research about the Weishaupt family is not present in the records of the church before the last years of the 1600s, which would confirm in part, the view of him being of Jewish faith. The well-known Freemason and future Prime Minister Winston S. Churchill, when he was still a journalist, wrote an article in February 1920, in the British newspaper Illustrated Sunday Herald, that not only implies that Adam Weishaupt was of Jewish origin, as told in books published in the late 1800s; but was also part of an International Jewish Conspiracy that from the Order of the Illuminati until Communism, broke with its origins and its past traditions, and was plotting for world domination:

SOME people like Jews, and some do not; but no thoughtful man can doubt the fact that they are beyond all question the most formidable and the most remarkable race which has ever appeared in the world. And it may well be that this same astounding race may at the present time be in the actual process of producing another system of morals and philosophy, as malevolent as Christianity was benevolent, which, if not arrested would shatter irretrievably all that Christianity has rendered possible. It would almost seem as if the gospel of Christ and the gospel of Antichrist were destined to originate among the same people; and that this mystic and mysterious race had been chosen for the supreme manifestations, both of the divine and the diabolical. The National Russian Jews, in spite of the disabilities under which they have suffered, have managed to play an honourable and successful part in the national life even of Russia. As bankers and industrialists they have strenuously promoted the development of Russia's economic resources, and they were foremost in the creation of those remarkable organisations, the Russian Co-operative Societies. In politics their support has been given, for the most part, to liberal and progressive movements, and they have been among the staunchest upholders of friendship with France and Great Britain.

International Jews.

In violent opposition to all this sphere of Jewish effort rise the schemes of the International Jews. The adherents of this sinister confederacy are mostly men reared up among the unhappy populations of countries where Jews are persecuted on account of their race. Most, if not all, of them have forsaken the faith of their forefathers, and divorced from their minds all spiritual hopes of the next world. This movement among the Jews is not new. From the days of Spartacus—Weishaupt to those of Karl Marx, and down to Trotsky (Russia), Bela Kun (Hungary), Rosa Luxembourg (Germany), and Emma Goldman (United States), this world-wide conspiracy for the overthrow of civilisation and for the reconstitution of society on the basis of arrested development, of envious malevolence, and impossible equality, has been steadily growing. It played, as a modern writer, Mrs. Webster, has so ably shown, a definitely recognisable part in the tragedy of the French Revolution. It has been the mainspring of every subversive movement during the Nineteenth Century; and now at last this band of extraordinary personalities from the underworld of the great cities of Europe and America have gripped the Russian people by the hair of their heads and have become practically the undisputed masters of that enormous empire.

For Churchill, the struggle with Communism meant unconditional support for Zionism: "Zionism offers the third sphere to the political conceptions of the Jewish race. In violent contrast to international communism. ... The struggle which is now beginning world order between the Zionist and Bolshevik Jews is little less than a struggle for the soul of the Jewish people." ⁶¹

It is understandable how the State of Israel was created in the context of the typical strategy of Problem-Reaction-Solution described many times by David Icke. It was developed in the decades that preceded, and then put into place, with the support of Freemasonry and other secret societies of the Illuminati network at large. This, of course, included the resistance that officially opposed the order of Weishaupt, as required by the Divide and Conquer philosophy. As you may remember, from the first volume of my Confessions, the "Illuminati," the illuminated ones, are certainly not created with Adam Weishaupt, who was rather a late emanation in a series of mystery schools and secret societies present in our world since ancient times. Of course the system Weishaupt devised created a unique method of control and infiltration of Freemasonry that was later copied by other secret societies.

Despite his possible Jewish origins, with the arrival of Knigge, Weishaupt actually excluded Jews, monks, women and members of other secret societies. But this exclusion saw many exceptions. The end of the brief Knigge Era marked the official end of the relationship between "Regular" Freemasonry and the Order of the Illuminati of Adam Weishaupt. From that time, the Illuminati became completely independent from the outside influences of any Masonic order or Rosicrucian college. They are controlled secretly by the Jesuits, still to this day, with the Academy of the Illuminati created in Rome by Professor Giuliano Di Bernardo, Grand Master of the International Academy of the Illuminati closely linked to the Company of Jesus, which has declared: "The academy, with regard to relations with the Masons, must not fall into the error of the Bavarian Illuminati. The decision of Baron Knigge to link the Order to Freemasonry, on the one hand it determined the development, the other involved them in persecutions that marked their destruction.”⁶²

The real Illuminati, the truly illuminated are those who work for God, for the good and progress of humanity. These manipulators are false prophets, atheists and libertines, who serve the Antichrist and build strong alliances between the devil and holy water. People like Professor Giuliano Di Bernardo, or his assistant Piergiorgio Bassi, are linked to the powerful Cardinal Tarcisio Bertone, and the Jewish lobby. In the past, Bernardo has shared a certain obsession for the Book of Enoch, which tells of the aforementioned Moloch, who was the highest representative of a race of fallen angels; better known as the Watchers. This first section of the Book of Enoch describes the fall of the Watchers, the angels who fathered the Nephilim and narrates the travels of Enoch in the heavens.⁶³

Who are the Watchers or fallen angels and why was the early Church and the modern Vatican so concerned about them? Genesis 6:1-4 says: “When men began to multiply on the face of the Earth, and daughters were born to them, that the sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were fair; and took them wives of all which they chose.”

Traditionally the Ben Eloha or “sons of God” numbered several hundred and descended to Earth on Mount Harmon. Significantly, this was a sacred place to both the Canaanites and the Hebrews who invaded their land. In later times, elaborate shrines devoted to the gods Baal, Zeus, Helios, Pan and the goddess Astarte were built on its slopes. These Ben Elohim or “fallen angels” were also known as the Watchers, the Grigori and the Irin.

In Jewish mythology, the Grigori were originally a superior order of angels who dwelt in the highest heaven with God, and resembled human beings in their appearance. The title “Watcher” simply means one who watches, those who watch, those who are awake, or those who do not sleep. These titles reflect the unique relationship between the Watchers and the human race since ancient times. In the esoteric Luciferian tradition they were a special elite order of angelic beings created by God to be earthly shepherds of the first primitive humans. It was their task to observe and watch over the emerging human species and report back on their progress. However, they were confined by a divine prime directive, that was specifically ordered, to not interfere in human evolution. Unfortunately, they decided to ignore God's command and defy His orders and became teachers to the human race, with unfortunate repercussions for both themselves and humanity. Most of the information we have about the Watchers and their activities comes from the apocryphal Book of Enoch. In the orthodox Bible the prophet Enoch, from the Hebrew "hanokh" or instructor, is a mysterious figure. In Genesis 4:16-23, he is described as the son of Cain, the "first murderer," and the first city built is named after him. Further on in Genesis 5:18-19, and several generations later, Enoch is named as the son of Jared, and it is during his lifetime that the Watchers either arrive, or incarnate in human bodies. In the apocryphal Book of Jubilee, allegedly dictated by "an angel of the Lord" to Moses on Mount Sinai, when he also received the Ten Commandments, it says that Enoch was, "the first among men that are born on Earth, who learn writing, knowledge and wisdom." It says that Enoch wrote down "the signs of Heaven" (the zodiac signs) according to their months in a book. This was so human beings would know the seasons of the years in relation to the order of the months and their respective stellar and planetary influences. The indication is that Enoch received this information from extraterrestrial angelic sources, the Watchers, and therefore he was a cultural exemplar. ⁶⁴

These alien beings chose to come to Earth in human form to study, love and join the children of God. In the end, they were punished by God, who segregated their leader Moloch, to the depths of an unknown desert, condemning all those who follow him, to live forever on Earth with no glory and no name. This is after these alien beings had the opportunity to instruct mankind on science, causing the apparent cultural leap made in the Bronze Age, with the offspring produced, called Nephilim.⁶⁵ So what is the reason for offering children in sacrifice to Moloch? (The Bible says, “passed through the fire.”)

Besides the story of Moloch, similar at times to that of the fallen angel Azazel, who is also an angel sent to watch over humanity, that created the Nephilim race with human women, and gave the world the gift of prohibited knowledge.⁶⁶ The closeness and overlapping of the two myths creates much confusion on the real importance of Moloch as commander in chief of the alien invasion. For this reason, the dark side of the Illuminati of Judaism and Freemasonry are devoted to Moloch in particular.⁶⁷ There are many initiates ready to rule the world after simply receiving some spurious Illuminati, Masonic or chivalric recognition. However, such rewards are given by the usual elitists for a reason. This in order to link you to a sick and perverse system, that secretly worships an alien god, a Satanic evil entity—Moloch.

FIG. 36 – Introductory page of Le Crocodile, the magical-epical poem of Louis Claude De Saint-Martin, published in Paris in 1799 by the Cercle Social.

Adam Weishaupt and his associates wished to rule the world, be we should only wish to rule ourselves through God's grace. A God who has given us the knowledge of True Masonry, through Enoch (Idris for Muslims). According to Cagliostro, the gift of the Science of the Holy Spirit, will be granted to us once again in all its glory, in the end-times by the Messiah Jesus. He will destroy the Anti Christ and all Evil manifested on Earth. In the past there have been historical figures of importance that have manifested on Earth as one of many Anti Christs; such as Hilter, Mussolini, and Napoleon Bonaparte, who was by the way, initiated in Weishaupt's Illuminati by Giuseppe Balsamo/Count Cagliostro, in the Roman countryside. ⁶⁸

Napoleon stated that the revolutionary motto Liberté, Égalité, Fraternité (Liberty, Equality, Fraternity), represented the Spirit of God, and although the motto was often called into question, it finally established itself under the Third Republic, and was placed in the 1958 French Constitution, and is now part of French National heritage. I might add from a Masonic point of view, that these three words must be interpreted in an initiatic way, to comprehend them fully, and to understand their true meaning, which is far from the egalitarian superficial nonsense it portrays.

Yes, the French "Revolutionary" motto actually hides an elitist interpretation, where "Equality" is only among Freemasons of the same degree, and as we know France is a Masonic Republic. Indeed, to understand this subject in depth we should study the works of the "Unknown Philosopher" who created this motto, Louis Claude de Saint-Martin (1730-1803), in his important book Le Crocodile (1792). (FIG. 36)

Professor Fabienne Moore of the University of Oregon writes:

Saint-Martin belonged to the generation who turned a page in history, as it witnessed the end of the Ancient Régime and survived revolutionary turmoil. His was the rare case of an aristocrat who lost his fortune but saved his head, genuinely embracing the Revolution as revealed by his Lettre à un ami, an extraordinary anti-clerical document vindicating the revolutionaries for having eliminated the gangrène of aristocrats and priests. Simultaneously, Saint-Martin wrote his only work of fiction about the Revolution, a sprawling allegory quickly exiled from the Canon: "Le Crocodile." ⁶⁹

Saint-Martin achieved notoriety with his first treatise , Des Erreurs et de la vérité (1775), a condemnation of the erroneous practices of the Church, and of the philosophers propagating materialism and sensualism, his first book that became, after his death, the target of accusations that it played a role in fomenting the French Revolution.⁷⁰

Napoleon, unfortunately was possessed by a demon who controlled and used him as a pawn in the hands of occult rulers, just like Adolf Hitler. A few days after Napoleon visited the Great Pyramid of Giza, where he participated in a secret ritual that shocked him forever, he decided to bomb a mosque in Cairo. This act of war was definitely the result of his growing demonic possession and the chaos that eventually brought him to his tragic death by poisoning, a solution desired by the elite of the European Royal Houses, the most conservative faction of the Illuminati elite, to remove him from the game once and for all.

He had a very important role in this brotherhood, as shown by an important artifact still displayed in the U.S. headquarters of AMORC (FIG. 37). Serge Hutin writes:

In the Archives of AMORC they preserve a document proving that Napoleon had reached the supreme dignity of the Rosicrucian Order, that of Imperator, in the esoteric sense the Latin word is given. According to trustworthy rumors, Napoleon hid in the walls of a castle where he had lived temporarily in the Champagne region, on the eve of his departure for Elba, Rosicrucian documents of great importance.

Napoleon did not believe the time was ripe for dispensing absolute power to a single “Illuminati” dictator or tyrant. This figure can be not only be a single individual, or a single entity—as the Bible itself states that there are “many Antichrists.”⁷²

However, in 2016, the advent of such a character seems not only desired, but strongly supported by many contemporary Illuminati, such as Grand Master Giuliano Di Bernardo, who in a somewhat controversial publication, presented the figure of the ideal “Illuminati Tyrant.” It seems that his stance did not go down well in Romania, a very important country in Masonic and the international geopolitical arena, where Di Bernardo had been expanding activities in recent years. After presenting this publication it created such dissatisfaction among its members, that he was forced to abruptly halt his project. Both his orders of chivalry and the Illuminati in that country in one night, went from hundreds of members to half a dozen people. The reason for this reaction is to be found in the recent history of this country, linked to the brutal dictatorship of Nicolae Ceausescu, President of Romania and President of the State Council of Romania from 1967, until December 1989, when in no time at all he was deposed, tried and sentenced to death. It is probably too early for the Romanians to embrace another tyrant, even an “illuminated” one.

Is it time for an Illuminati tyrant?

L

Let's discover who Giuliano di Bernardo is, this mysterious Illuminati Grand Master, said to be one of the most influential Illuminati power players in the world. He is a Professor of Philosophy of Science and a member of the Scientific Council of the Académie Internationale de Philosophie des Sciences. He was, as some of you may know, the Grand Master of the Grand Orient of Italy (1990-1993), and the founder and Grand Master of the Regular Grand Lodge of Italy (1993-2002). On his website he describes himself as the Grand Master of the Dignity Order, officially created in 2011 for “the defense of human dignity.” He is also the President and Grand Master of the International Academy of the Illuminati, a new but influential Illuminati sect based on a mix of Weishaupt's teachings and some Jesuitry, founded in 2002.⁷³ The operative arm of the Illuminati Academy is originally described in this way:

In 2002, convinced that humanity needed a more authoritative guide of Freemasonry, he has retired from Masonry and founded the “International Academy of the Illuminati,” understood as a modern revival of the “Order of the Illuminati,” which worked in Germany in the eighteenth century. The Academy of the Illuminati is made up of eminent philosophers, scientists, mathematicians, lawyers, economists, entrepreneurs, artists, communicators, regardless of sex, race, language, religion, and culture.

For a short period in 2008, he was also the Grand Prior of the Order of St. Constantine the Great, that is described as a centuries-old tradition in many countries of Europe and the United States, whose Grand Master is the Illuminati Prince Sergio Jesús Paleólogo Vassallo, descendent of a Byzantine emperor.⁷⁴ The Order of Prince Paleólogo describes Emperor Constantine as the “promoter of a New World Order.”⁷⁵ According to Prince Sergio Jesús Paleólogo Vassallo, the NWO was created at the founding of Christianity, built by Emperor Constantine. In any case, for some reason that we can not yet understand or speculate on, the partnership between Di Bernardo and the Prince Paleólogo did not last very long, and Grand Master Di Bernardo left his new project with the Imperial Byzantine nobility and their Order of St. Constantine the Great, in 2009, without dissolving his own Priory, which would simply be absorbed and reactivated in 2011 as the Dignity Order, another step in the “Dignity saga,” originally launched by Di Bernardo in 1992, in Lucerne Switzerland, with his Dignity Lodge.

During his debut with the Chivalric reality of the Byzantine prince, Illuminati Grand Master Giuliano Di Bernardo gave an interesting interview to the Italian newspaper Corriere della Sera on July 19, 2008, where he explained his new passion for Chivalry, and the abandonment of the Masonic aprons as a amalgam for unifying the elite: “Against Freemasonry” he said, “there are too many prejudices. Who knows, maybe a knightly order recognized by church and state could be the new dress.”⁷⁶ And now, let us reflect on a few short excerpts from the book, The Human Knowledge: From physics to sociology to religion (La conoscenza umana: dalla fisica alla sociologia alla religione) by Professor and former Grand Master of Freemasonry Giuliano Di Bernardo, founder of Dignity. (FIG. 38) This is an essay published in Venice in 2010, that will help you understand that the contemporary

Illuminati sects at the top of the pyramid are preparing very seriously for the advent of what Di Bernardo describes as the “Illuminati Tyrant,” known as the Anti Christ. So let’s learn, thanks to Di Bernardo’s description, the characteristics of this future leader of the New World Order, and what we should expect in the coming years from him. Professor Di Bernardo is adamant in stating that this illuminated dictator will be required to limit civil liberties as an urgent necessity for society. Please ponder the revelations of the Grand Master of the International Academy of the Illuminati Prof. Giuliano Di Bernardo, published rather recently, not two or three hundred years ago, which is the maximum expression of contemporary Illuminati thought in the world:

There is, ultimately, only one possibility: that global ethics should be imposed. If democracy is unable to impose it, then you need to think of another form to exercise power. Aristotle would say that, after slipping into the anarchy of democracy, only the tyrant can restore order in society and ensure everyone not only the survival but also well-being and happiness. Aristotle would say that the tyrant should be “Enlightened,” with the purest expression of wisdom. The Illuminati Tyrant, however, does not come from nowhere: its advent is to be prepared with care by men of quality, regardless of gender, language, skin color, religion, culture. ⁷⁷

The writer believes in ethics and in its ability to unite people around a future project. But such a project, to express the common good, if necessary, should be imposed. If it can not be imposed by a democratic state, then we must look to a different source of state power which, in my view, is represented by the Illuminati tyrant. The tyrant of which we speak is not like the tyrants that we have known during the history of humanity, in its various appearances, from the tyrant of Syracuse to Hitler. This Tyrant is an enlightened man of great charisma, exceptional intellectual gifts and profound wisdom. He must know how to combine reason with emotions, which are the pillars that support the whole person. He must be able to understand the material needs of humanity but must also know how to shape it with the highest spiritual values (the true, the good, the beautiful, the right). A man with these qualities does not rule by terror but with the agreement, because everyone will recognize and accept his enlightened guidance. A man so powerful, authoritative the wise would know which way to direct the genetic changes for the creation of the new man. Submitting to his enlightened leadership, humanity would avoid the risk of self-destruction. The illuminated Tyrant, however, did not come from nothing or from the mind of Jupiter as Minerva. Its advent must be prepared even now to men of quality, regardless of sex, skin color, language, religion and culture, which I call "Illuminati." They are the ones who will create the historical and social conditions from which emerge at the right time, the one who will have to rise to supreme leader of mankind. ⁷⁸

Indeed, how could a man living in a democratic state, where there is a tendency to level down humanity, gain power and authority to rule the world as an Illuminati tyrant? Under normal conditions it would be impossible. But the conditions prevailing in the world now are degenerating gradually, so it is easy to predict that it will come to a point where the social rules will be broken and will inevitably slip into anarchy. At that point, as Aristotle argued, overcoming anarchy will only be possible with the creation of the tyrant which will delegate all powers, on condition that he carry-order in society. It is only at this stage of humanity that could the Illuminati Tyrant make its appearance. Unlike all the other tyrants, he is endowed with the qualities described above, and will direct the evolution of the human species. He, and only he, assisted by scientists, can decide how to create the new man. ⁷⁹

thus becoming the ultimate controller and “Big Brother.”

Di Bernardo declared covertly to writer and journalist Ferruccio Pinotti in his book, Fratelli d'Italia “Brothers of Italy” the following words, offering further proof of who is really in control of the perverse power that dominates this planet and the New World Order, hand in hand with the Church and the Opus Dei, which is powerful Israeli Freemasonry. Giuliano di Bernardo writes:

I started the relationship with Israel when I was Grand Master of the Grand Orient of Italy. And gradually they strengthened. So much so that Israeli Freemasonry, when in 1993 I left the GOI, removed the recognition to the Grand Orient to give it to the Regular Grand Lodge of Italy. Italian Freemasons wanted a breakthrough, which initially meant a suffering for Italian Jewish Masons. But the Grand Master Fuchs had no hesitation in doing so at the time. Even today I have very close relations with Israeli Freemasonry, on a personal basis as part of the Illuminati. On the other hand there has always been a strong relationship between Judaism and Freemasonry: Masonic rituals, especially the Anglo-Saxon ones, give great importance to the history of Israel and many legends, such as the Temple of Solomon, they enter the Masonic ritual in their own right. There has always been interest among Jews to Freemasonry. If we take the Royal Arch Rite, in England, we realize that it is built on literature related to the 12 tribes of Israel. There is therefore a doctrinal interest in Israel and Judaism for Freemasonry. An interest that is also political in nature: the relationship of the Jewish state with the United States over time have occurred through Freemasonry, especially through common membership of some Masters, like me, to the Accepted Scottish Rite.

78 Ibid., p. 234.

79 Ibid., p. 235.

80

What is the mysterious Dignity project, that is not only a pseudo Chivalric Order?

For years, prior to establishing this Order as a secret Masonic lodge behind the scenes of Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry, it went undisturbed and in parallel with other more or less visible emanations created over the years by Professor Di Bernardo with the approval of the highest offices of English, Israeli and American Freemasonry, and of course the Regular Grand Lodge of Italy. The latter created by the same Professor Di Bernardo in April 1993, through a schism masterminded by Dignity and operated within the Grand Orient of Italy (G.O.I.), with the approval of the United Grand Lodge of England. This was after a defamatory accusation of “corruption,” was made about the Freemasons of the G.O.I., who have never forgiven him.

This historic turning point divided the already fragmented Italian Masonic scene made up of over a hundred Masonic Obediences. What most of the Masonic international community still does not know, is that Di Bernardo officially and secretly filed the memorandum and the name of the new project back in 1992.

The key operation of this phase took place on April 11, 1993, with the support of some of the biggest in International Freemasonry, like Lord Northampton, banker Mario Conde, and Professor Vittorio Mathieu. The presence in the same body of Masons, with members of the Opus Dei, seemed to be a sign that past incompatibility, was now considered obsolete in front of the “Great Work” of the New World Order. Behind the now famous Masonic “divorce” between Giuliano Di Bernardo and the Grand Orient Italy, there was his new creation, Dignity. Incidentally, in the articles of the secret Lodge, located in Lucerne, Haldenstrasse 40, we find the same ideals that reappear, after ten years, with the establishment of its International Academy of the Illuminati. There is also proof of the occult influence of this secret super Lodge in the new project of the Regular Grand Lodge of Italy, just read this particular passage of the official speech made at the Grand Lodge on the 6th of April 2002, on the occasion of the installation of Giuliano Di Bernardo’s Masonic successor Grand Master Fabio Venzi (which currently holds the post), as it marked the official retirement from Freemasonry by Giuliano Di Bernardo, who would later become, despite his apparent aversion to Freemasonry, one of its new occult guides:

I hope not to disappoint your trust, that Professor Giuliano Di Bernardo, founder of GLRI can increase the strength and credibility of our obedience. What are the guidelines that I intend to follow in my path to guide GLRI? What I hope for the Italian Freemasonry and the Regular Grand Lodge of Italy, representing in the Italian territory the Anglo-Saxon tradition, is the achievement of a true “Dignity” to Freemasonry: the creation of conditions that make people feel proud to be such Masons. ⁸¹

The words of GM Fabio Venzi have a double meaning, but only to those initiated into the real mysteries. They refer to him as “the professor,” and include the word “Dignity,” which is put later in quotes deliberately, to emphasize its strategic importance. The structure on their official site describe Dignity as follows:

Dignity is an esoteric international order that can be represented as a pyramid whose summit is the Grand Master, Founder and Grand Master of Dignity Giuliano Di Bernardo. Institutional purpose of the Order is the defense of human dignity , ⁸⁰ Ferruccio Pinotti, Ibid., p. 399, [emphasis added].

⁸¹ <http://www.glri.it/pdf/allocuzioni/nuovoumanesimo.pdf> ‡ Archived 27th July, 2015. world order which is the condition of moral nobility in which man is placed from his intrinsic qualities and by his very nature. The notion of “dignity,” therefore, inherent to man as such, expresses a universal characteristic, which is found in all people, regardless of sex, age, race, religion, language and culture. Thereby, it is a constitutive element of man, in the sense that, if the man loses his dignity, then it is no longer man. Because the dignity of man is an irrepressible given as an expression of his nature, it is found in all philosophical anthropology, from religious to secular. However, in the world we live in, dignity is scorned and humiliated. Many men and women are forced to live without dignity. And for this reason humanity is losing the ideal values that it has always supported. Even faith in God is dying and mankind seems to get lost in the mists of atheism and utilitarianism.

Since the concept of “dignity” is universal, its scope is unlimited. In his area of responsibility includes, therefore, the many qualities that characterize human nature. An Order which proposes the defense of human dignity must choose among the many qualities that make it up, those who, within a scale of values, are to be considered primary and essential. This choice will have to take into account the particular historical conditions and quotas facing humanity. In the world we live in, the defense of human dignity means, mainly, the defense of ethnic minorities, women, the weak and the persecuted. For our Order, and the defense of these aspects of human dignity it is the primary institutional goal, which will be built with the highest spiritual morals. Dignity is an order that is inspired by the esoteric societies and initiation dates in the history of mankind. Typical examples are Orphic and Pythagorean Secret Societies, in ancient times, and those of the Rosicrucians, Illuminati and other similar, in more recent times. Dignity aims to promote moral improvement, in cultural and social man. In particular, it is pursuing the development of intellectual activities such as philosophy, science, medicine, law, economics, art, religion, communication through projects that express harmony and respect for all views of man and life. In a universal vision, Dignity proposes and promotes ethical and cultural projects, with the participation of all those who have within them the light to illuminate the darkness that threaten humanity. Particular importance will be given to the education of the younger generation, providing them with not only the tools to learn about the world they live in, but also the ethical and spiritual principles to create harmony among men. ⁸²

Grand Priors, Priors, Commanders, Dignitaries, Ladies and Knights of the Dignity Order established according to Di Bernardo “for the Defense of the Dignity of Man,” participate annually in an International Convention usually held in Sicily, in a secret location chosen at the discretion of Di Bernardo, and the International Academy of the Illuminati.

To understand Di Bernardo further, I have included below a rare interview given ten years ago to the famous Italian journalist Giacomo Amadori, entitled “The Illuminati exist and are among us,” published by the Italian magazine “Panorama” in May 2006:

Giacomo Amadori: Do Dan Brown’s books and other rumors about it have some truth?

Giuliano Di Bernardo: “In the legends there’s always some truth. Every fiction is based on fragments of truth.”

GA: But what is the Academy of the Illuminati?

GDB: It aims to bring together men who are the light bearers, men of quality, serving the world.

82 <http://www.dignityorder.com/it/l-ordine/il-manifesto-dell-ordine> ‡ Archived 27th July, 2015.

GA: The Order of the Illuminati in the U.S. is pretty serious. It is whispered that the hard core of this elite are the most important American or Americanized families, from the Kennedys to the Rockefellers, the Rothschilds to the Onassis.

GDB: “Some of these names are correct,” admitted Di Bernardo.

GA: Amongst the international experts of lodges, secret societies and the esoteric, the name of Bill Clinton circulates.

GDB: “Certainly he has imposed on human events a deep sense of rationality” says the President of the Italian Illuminati, fifty in all. “A few, but of high level.”

GA: Are there any politicians?

GDB: Very few: our project is above parties and governments and has nothing subversive.

GA: In past years it was rumored the existence of a secret lodge founded by Di Bernardo in Lucerne, Switzerland, called Dignity, an association similar to that of the Illuminati, perhaps the Mother Lodge of the Italian academics. Within Dignity there were men of all religions, the Anglican Lord Northampton, Pro Grandmaster of English Freemasonry, Abraham Foxman, the powerful leader of the AntiDefamation League, the Emir of Dubai Mohammed bin Rashid Al-Maktoum and important Austrian Jesuits.

GDB: “The bad publicity scuppered the project, which was made in the name of transparency and had already received the consent of the canton of Lucerne” assures Di Bernardo.

GA: It turns out that the Illuminati of Bavaria would be the authors of the new “testament of Satan” and that their aim would be to divide the masses and corrupt politicians with sex and money to gain control of the world government. Di Bernardo smiles.

GDB: Nonsense. The power we seek is not a political one. Of course, as Brown points out, to separate fact from fiction can be difficult because of the massive amount of misinformation that has been spread about this secret society.

GA: Inside the academy there is a hierarchy: you enter with the rank of squares, you will become circles (the symbol of perfection), and triangles (the tool used by the demiurge of Plato to create the world). Geometric symbols and rituals associated with the concept of light characterize the group.

GDB: Esotericism is the basis of our research and the light can be identified both with reason and with the gods.

GA: Goodbye to anticlericalism then?

GDB: Initially the Illuminati in Bavaria fought the Jesuit dominance. Today it is different. The religious notions are essential to defeat the darkness. Even if the goal is a more genuine religion.

GA: One last question: how do you join?

GDB: You have to be presented and the proposal must be voted on and ac world order cepted. There is also an initiation rite, but what I can not explain it. ⁸³

Of course the phrase “fighting the Jesuit superpower,” is pure disinformation from Di Bernardo, who apparently during a meeting of Dignity a couple of years ago in the north of Italy, had the nerve to accuse me of being “a fool that speaks of reptilians.”

He did this before symbolically tearing up a picture of me in front of his “Knights.” Well what can I say? The “reptilians” are not my speciality.

Di Bernardo, first Grand Master of Freemasonry, and later Illuminati Grand Master, should explain the serious accusations officially made against his ex-Brothers of the Grand Orient of Italy on April 13th, 1993. This was done in a formal document (FIG. 39) that heralded the beginning of his Regular Grand Lodge of Italy, created thanks to illegal secret funds provided by the United Grand Lodge of England, thanks to the support of people like Spencer Douglas David Compton, the 7th Marquess of Northampton. (b.1946)

The amount given to Giuliano Di Bernardo for his new Masonic project in Italy was two and a half million British pounds, secretly pulled out of the coffers of the prestigious English institution and given directly to Di Bernardo, thanks to a bank account tied to his Swiss Dignity project, of which the majority of British Freemasons, to this day, know absolutely nothing about. This is such a delicate subject for the UGLE, as it touches on the secret funding of a foreign Obedience. Even the mention of it, is forbidden in Great Queen Street headquarters of English Freemasonry. I was expelled from the UGLE for taking a stand against this corruption, so nothing they do on Great Queen Street surprises me. They act contrary to the basic tenets of Freemasonry.

espite the alleged “enlightenment” promoted by Grand Master of the Illuminati Giuliano Di Bernardo, and other Grand Masters like him, the conditions of the world seem to be getting worse, and the Kingdom of a Thousand Years prophesied by the mysterious Rosicrucians, who unfortunately had a false start with the “Thousand Year Reich” of the Nazis, now have another problematic beginning with the United Nations and their Jesuit/Zionist influence. In the Bible, a thousand years are needed to bring the earth and humanity to original perfection, after the physical elimination by holy war of of all opponents of God.⁸⁴ The date 2020, and the previous date December 21, 2012, do not mark the end of the world, but rather the beginning of a new phase. Although the scenario that you have in front of your eyes in ten years, if we continue to believe in the fairy tales of politicians and their occult handlers, will be the one painted by the movie “Mad Max,” both in the old edition of 1979, and in the new one in 2015, where they emphasized the problem of water, which is of prime importance. The elite of the New World Order wish to buy all the water, all over the planet, and then close the taps and make it the price of gold. So prepare as soon as possible resources to make your community independent with food and energy before 2020. In this context, the Roman Catholic Church that could have originally opposed all this, was infiltrated during the Second Vatican Council, which took off with Pope Roncalli known as Pope John XXIII the first Freemason Pope in history, a topic which I will discuss further in Volume III. It was he who unjustly disposed of poor Cardinal Giuseppe Siri, who was duly elected by the conclave, with a Masonic coup in the Vatican. This scenario was repeated again in

Most Worshipful Grand Master,

I wish to inform you that, due to the corruption in which Freemasons of the Grand Orient of Italy are involved, on April the 16th, 1993, I shall resign from the office of Grand Master.

I also wish to inform you that, according to the ancient usages and customs of Freemasonry, on April the 17th, 1993, in Rome, before the Representatives of foreign regular Grand Lodges, seven Lodges formerly belonging to the Grand Orient of Italy shall constitute the GRAN LOGGIA REGOLARE D'ITALIA (Regular Grand Lodge of Italy), of which I shall be appointed Grand Master.

I hereby invite you to attend to the solemn ceremony that will mark the beginning, in Italy, of a Freemasonry made of men whose aim is that of working for the moral improvement of mankind.

Please accept, on this occasion, my signs of highest consideration and esteem.

Yours Fraternally,

Giuliano Di Bernardo

Rome, April the 13th, 1993

FIG. 39 – Official Statement to the Duke of Kent, the Grand Master of the United Grand Lodge of England, issued on April 13th, 1993, by Prof. Giuliano di Bernardo as outgoing Grand Master of the Grand Orient of Italy, announcing the establishment of the Regular Grand Lodge of Italy.

the 1963 papal conclave, when Sirri, who had already taken the name of Pope Gregory XVII, was blocked from taking on his new office by another Freemason, Pope Paul VI, born Giovanni Battista Enrico Antonio Maria Montini, of Jewish descent, perhaps the most Masonic of all popes. It was thanks to this Masonic infiltration of the Vatican, that a conciliary document called Nostra Aetate, was formulated by Jesuit Cardinal Augustin Bea. The magazine of the conservative pre-Vatican II Catholics called “Sodalitium,” declared in 1994 that: “The philo-Jewish attitude of Cardinal Bea caused him to be accused of being a secret agent of ‘B’nai B’rith.’ Leon de Poncins accused Bea of being of Jewish origin, his real surname, was apparently Beja or Behar, acting in the Second world order Vatican Council as a secret agent of the ‘B’nai B’rith.’”⁸⁵

The faculty for Jewish Studies of the prestigious Gregorian University in Rome, heir of the Roman College founded originally by Ignatius of Loyola, founder of the Jesuits, is now dedicated to Cardinal Bea. In 2014, the Cardinal Bea Centre for Judaic Studies celebrated 50 years of conciliar declaration, called Nostra Aetate. The Nostra Aetate was co-written with Freemason Jules Isaac, basically a Communist, and part of the international Jewish lobby operating for the Illuminati. Jules Isaac was a member of the B’nai B’rith; which is another form of Freemasonry addressed only to Jewish people, so even more exclusive and sectarian. In the aforementioned article Sodalitium, there was mention of a book published in France called, Mystères et secrets du B’nai B’rith released in Italy in 1999 as “Mysteries and secrets of the B’nai B’rith.” The largest international Jewish organization, authored by French journalist Emmanuel Ratie, who stated: “On this subject, nothing so comprehensive, detailed and yet well documented was ever written.” Emmanuel Ratie begins the Italian edition of his book in this way:

B'nai B'rith, which in Hebrew means "Sons of the Alliance" was founded in the U.S. in 1843. It is reserved exclusively to Jews. Today it has more than 500,000 brothers and sisters as affiliates in fifty different countries. The international elite of the various Jewish communities, from Sigmund Freud to Albert Einstein, has been or is a member. It is certainly the oldest, most popular and arguably the most influential international Jewish organization. For example, it was the B'nai B'rith which obtained the recognition of the State of Israel by President Harry Truman. It was always the B'nai B'rith that was able to obtain from the Catholic Church to change its teaching for the second millennium, in regards to Judaism, in the Second Vatican Council. In 1905, Jacob Schiff, the American banker and senior official of the B'nai B'rith stated: "If the Tsar does not want to give our people the freedom desired, then a revolution will establish a republic through which you will get those rights." Twelve years later, in 1917, the Bolshevik Revolution will upset Russia expanding its influence throughout the world, and Tsar was murdered along with his family. ... August '94, Silvio Berlusconi, then head of government, had to apologize to Abraham Foxman (ADL director) for a statement by his Minister Mastella, who insinuated that it was the reaction of the American Jewish lobby to determine the fall of the Italian lira in the international money market. This organization which follows the rules of a Masonic organization is mostly unknown to the public, but has exercised, and still exercises an enormous influence on world events. This is the first independent investigation dedicated to the Mysteries and secrets of the B'nai B'rith worldwide. It contains many unpublished documents and is therefore an explosive book, able to answer questions that every citizen has the right to ask. ⁸⁶

Emmanuel Ratie immediately speaks of the fact, that we know little to nothing about this mysterious order, and adds that he did very extensive research using trusted sources:

At the National Library in France there is nothing about the B'nai B'rith, except for a modest booklet in Hebrew, one in German dated 1932, another one in English and one quarter of an extremist anti-Semitic one ... Virtually nothing also at the Library of Congress in Washington and nothing at the British Library in London. However, according to the Encyclopedia Judaica (1970) B'nai B'rith, or Children of the Alliance, is "the oldest and numerous Judaic organization of mutual assistance, meeting in lodges and chapters in 45 countries. The number of its States is approximately 500,000 men, women and young people. There are 1,700 male lodges of which 25% outside the USA, with 210,000 men and a budget of about $ 13 million. Its programs covers all Jewish interests and they also include several other geared to the broader aims of the community."

It is therefore strange that such an association, founded in the United States in 1843, and France in 1932, has never published anything about itself either in France or elsewhere. If you read the collection of newspapers which, remember, are required by law to be deposited in the Bibliotheque Nationale in four copies for any publication made in France (and even the Masons observe this law), it is found that the B'nai B'rith has never made a legal deposit, with the exception of only two numbers of their magazine, the B'nai B'rith Journal. This organization has never filed any of its official brochures in France. This no doubt explains why the non-Jewish French press is undocumented on the subject, and has consecrated to the B'nai B'rith, less than fifty articles since its founding in 1932. Despite the boycott of the legal deposit, you can trace a small part of the publications of the American, French and European B'nai B'rith, thanks to an investigation that lasted several years. If you study in depth you will understand the purpose of the order of B'nai B'rith, that is officially about "enlightening the whole of humanity." The AntiDefamation League of B'nai B'rith (ADL) is their armed wing. ⁸⁷

Wikipedia describes The Anti-Defamation League (ADL):

Formerly known as the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, is an international Jewish non-governmental organization based in the United States. Describing itself as “the nation’s premier civil rights/human relations agency,” the ADL states that it “fights anti-Semitism and all forms of bigotry, defends democratic ideals and protects civil rights for all,” doing so through “information, education, legislation, and advocacy.”⁸⁸

I would like to now address the mysterious origins of the B'nai B'rith. On October 13, 1843, in a Sinsheimer coffee shop, on the dark streets of the Wall Street district, the first B'nai B'rith was founded, which took the name of Bundes-Brueder, literally League of Brothers, a Germanic name because the founders spoke only German and Yiddish. The choice of this Israelite coffee shop is explained by the fact that at the time the Lower East Side had a feud with German Jewish immigrants.⁸⁹ The date of establishment of the B'nai B'rith makes it one of the oldest American associations to ever exist. It saw another 37 years before the Salvation Army came to light, 38 before the Red Cross, 39 for the Knights of Columbus, 47 for the Daughters of the American Revolution and more than 70 for the Kiwanis, the Lyons Club, and The American Legion. The known historian of the B'nai B'rith, Edward E. Grusd, notes very significantly, that there are only two older organizations: “Freemasons and Odd Fellows.” Only in 1859, will the first major Jewish association be created, the Union of Jewish Congregations, which groups all synagogues. At the time, the Jewish-American community had only 25,000 members, and this figure is considered wrong by excess. As we have seen, there was a Sephardic minority, descendant from early settlers, who had names like Cardoza, Carvalho, Seixas and Perreira. At the end of the American Revolution, this minority had, in the United States, fewer than 3,000 families, in which at least two-thirds lived in New York. Nevertheless, it counted among its members prominent figures such as Salomon, a leading stockbroker, an American of Jewish Polish origin, who was one of the major financiers of the American Revolution. Later they added a significant number of immigrants from Eastern Europe, which soon became the majority. Most were of modest origins and lived in poverty. Among them emerged the German Jews, such as Schiff, Warburg, Oppenheimer, Guggenheim, Lehman, and others. Between 1830 and 1880, 200,000 Jews emigrated from Germany to the United States. The wealthy minority, often Sephardic, was divided into “families” joined together on the grounds of common interests and synagogues, and was never in favor of a strong immigration of Ashkenazi Jews.

At that time, apart from the category of undertaker, there was no Jewish organization with philanthropic ends, and most of the communities had their own cemeteries. These “shetl” (Jewish communities), were very divided, with practices and customs that did not entertain relations between them; even marriages between Jews of different communities was considered by many, mixed marriages.

There were, however, specific associations of solidarity, for example, the Landmanschaften, the German Benevolent Society, founded in 1844, merged the following year with the B’nai B’rith. There had already been several attempts at unification, in 1841. Rabbi Isaac Lesser of Philadelphia tried to unite the different associations with a federation of congregations in synagogues called The West.⁹⁰ The introduction to the B’nai B’rith, intended to define their purpose and their mission, is inspired by Masonry, but with a Jewish specificity. Here is the beginning of the preamble: “The Order of B’nai B’rith has set itself the mission order to join the Israelites (this step has become ‘people of Jewish confession’) in order to promote their best interests as well as those of humanity, to develop and raise the moral character of the people of this faith, of inculcating the purest principles of philanthropy, honor and patriotism, to help science and the arts, to help the poor in their needs, to visit and support the sick, to come to the aid of victims of persecution, to bring protection and assistance to the widow and the orphan following the principles of humanism in its highest sense.”

The founders also believed that a Jewish organization should have a Hebrew name, so they kept the initials BB but changed the name: from Bundes-Brueder (League of Brothers) becoming the B'nai B'rith (Sons of the Covenant). B'nai B'rith in Yiddish becomes Bne Briss and it is under this name that it is known in Germany (Unabhaangiger Orden BB). It is also known by the Sephardic term, Beni Berith.

Until 1850, the meetings continued to be held in German and not in English. The Order adopted a motto: Wohlthatigkeit, Bruderliebe und Eintracht, which became Benevolence, Brotherly Love and Harmony in English and Amour Fraternel et Harmonie in French. The menorah or candlestick with seven branches, was adopted as a symbol of the Order in the second meeting "because it symbolizes the light."

Until 1868, the B'nai B'rith used Jewish religious terms for its officers: the president was the Grand Nasi Abh; the Vice President was the Grand Aleph, the Secretary the Grand Sopher. B'nai B'rith states: "Remember that privileged moment in which our ancestors being on the foot of Mount Horeb (Sinai) understood the message: You have to be for me a kingdom of priests, of holy people. ... Throughout the world, for his safety and for the honor of Israel, to act, is how one conceives the high end of the Order. B'nai B'rith has its roots and its name on two alliances essential to the religion of the "chosen people," that of God with Abraham and Isaac but also, and perhaps above all, of that between God and Moses in the Sinai, sealed by a fire in the "sacrifice of salvation" as "blood of the covenant" (cf. Moses, V 1, 17-2, 24 and following). Even after 1868, within the Lodges, they preserved the various denominations." ⁹¹

90 Ibid., p. 8.

Its domain was voluntarily limited to America and its purpose was to provide a highlevel representation of American Jews in the religious as well as in moral and intellectual sense, playing a specific role in Freemasonry. It was the first time in the history of Jews that they organized according to similar guidelines, that were no longer just local and religious. It was necessary to preserve a religion avoiding the diatribes of the synagogue.⁹²

This moment marks a turning point, when the classic environment of the Synagogue is replaced by that of the lodge, which is considered much more stable because of its hierarchy and its rules. By now the elite of the Jewish people obtain an Egregore to shape and develop what became in a short time, the basis for the newly born Zionism ideology promoted by Edmond Benjamin James de Rothschild (1845-1934). Here I will not fall into the trap of anti-Semitism my dear readers, which of course will make me also an easy target of the ADL, the armed wing of B'nai B'rith and the Illuminati. I personally do not care to generalize, and I am neither a stupid "negationist" or a even an anti-Semite. The Rothschilds are not the entirety of the Jewish people, and not all Jews are aware of the policies made by Freemasons, Illuminati and B'nai B'rith members behind the curtains of history.

The first victims are always the general population since antiquity, this is what I realized a long time ago, after meeting a B'nai B'rith representative in Rome at the Foreign Press Association. It was an "un-illuminating" experience, as he was the usual elitist, nothing more, no different from others in similar organizations in the Illuminati Network. The people who fall victim are so manipulated that they don't want to consider the reality I am trying to describe to you. It will upset them, tear apart their illusions, and that's not permitted by the New World Order System supervised by the Grand Alliance between the Jesuits, the Rothschild Zionists and the British Monarchy, operating for global enslavement with Illuminati sects, think tanks, and so on. However, the so-called Conspiracy Theorist, always seem to choose to attack one faction without touching the other, feeding the divide and conquer methodology, instead of a more complex explanation. Such people are not honest in their own vision and the battle against the elite. What I have shown you since the first volume of my Confessions, is a much more complex and compartmentalized reality, made up of a vast network, with many players and different layers. At the top is the United Nations, in their ultimate occult control room. The aforementioned Cardinal Bea, operated as an agent of the B'nai B'rith, working in connection with the powerful Society of Jesus. Immediately after being appointed for this mission by the first Masonic Pope John XXIII (Giuseppe Angelo Roncalli), for the task of developing a "revisionist" document on Jewish-Christian relations, he went on to meet the powerful Jewish Freemason Nahum Goldman, president of the World Jewish Congress. This meeting took place in Rome on the 26th of October 1960, where they decided together the future fate of Catholicism.

On that occasion, Bea asked Goldman, on behalf of Roncalli, to draft a formal document on the new relations with the Jews, with religious freedom at the base of the growing One World Religion. On February 27, 1962, the Memorandum was presented to Bea Goldman and Label Katz (members of B'nai B'rith), on behalf of the World Conference of Jewish Organizations. Well, this draft inspired by Jewish Freemasonry and the World Jewish Congress, produced the Catholic declaration Nostra Aetate, which lite r ally means “in our time,” which is one of the most important documents of the Second Vatican Council. A council controlled by leaders of Freemasonry, the B'nai B'rith, and the Jesuits, who on Oct. 28, 1965, with their Nostra Aetate, changed forever the relations between the Catholic Church and non-Christian religions. On December 18, 2006, the now retired Pope Benedict XVI, greeted 112 members of the B'nai B'rith at the Vatican recalling the Nostra Aetate:

I am pleased to greet this delegation of B'nai B'rith. After the Declaration Nostra Aetate of the Second Vatican Council in 1965, the leaders of B'nai B'rith have visited us on several occasions. Today, 18 December (2006), as a sign of the spirit of understanding, respect and mutual respect that has grown between our two communities, we welcome you and, through you, all those whom you represent.⁹³

The relations between Pope Francis and the B'nai B'rith are well-documented. There are several articles available directly from the website of B'nai B'rith Argentina on this religious “love affair,”⁹⁴ where Jorge Mario Bergoglio is surrounded by his old friends of B'nai B'rith in Argentina. (FIG. 40) It's no wonder that between 1785 and 1786, the noted philosopher who started as a Jesuit seminarist, then became a Barnabite and finally a Freemason and a member of Adam Weishaupt's Illuminati. Carl Leonhard Reinhold (1757-1823), prepared two conferences for the Viennese Masonic Lodge Zur Eintracht wahren—a secret cell of the Order of the Illuminati—entitled The Jewish Mysteries the most ancient religious Freemasonry. In one passage, Reinhold states that the Pope is: “the Supreme Unknown Superior” in another, that, “he takes the place of Aaron.” Read this short passage and perhaps these “Jewish Mysteries” will become less “mysterious”:

Who can believe, brothers, then that pious school of prophets and prodigious men should not be worthy of the important paternal care of the Supreme Unknown Superior (who inside the order takes the place of Aaron and his successors), who the famous Archimedes ab Aquila fulva preached to our brothers with enthusiasm and at the same time with discretion? ⁹⁵

Archimedes ab Aquila fulva was Johann August Starck, also known as Stark (1741-1816). It was an internal schism from 1767 in the Neo-Templar Masonic Rite of the Strict Observance on behalf of the Jesuits. Stark is also mentioned in the writings of Albert Pike. As stated by Gianluca Paolucci the curator of the Italian edition of Reinhold's work: "Leonhard alludes to the pope who was once thought to secretly pull the strings of the alleged 'catholicization' of Freemasonry in Germany." ⁹⁶ This text, described more than two centuries ago by the Illuminati in official documents, takes on new meaning when you consider the frequent meetings of Bergoglio, a.k.a. Aaron, with the merry band of rabbis from B'nai B'rith. You can imagine how Jesus felt 2,000 years ago, in front of an almost identical scenario.

Journalist and author Italian Matteo Simonetti writes: We do not know how true is the famous expression of Louis-Ferdinand Céline. Note by the Author: this is a pseudonym of Louis Ferdinand Auguste Destouches (1894 –1961):

"Mason is a voluntary Jew, a synthetic Jew," but we notice, for example, what was said by the chief rabbi Israel Meir Lau a Ashkenazi Jew on October 26, 1993 in Jerusalem, on the fortieth anniversary of the Grand Lodge of Jerusalem: "the principles of Freemasonry are all contained in the Book of Books of the Jewish people; or by Gustav Karples in his "Ode to B'nai B'rith," where he claims: The ideals of Freemasonry have sprung from Judaism for internal needs [...] Even the terminology and the majority of the Masonic symbols come from Judaism. ⁹⁷

And now we will go deeper into the mysteries, in an analysis of this short but influential essay created by the Illuminati called “The Jewish Mysteries, the most ancient religious Masonry.”

ikipedia writes: “The suppression of the Jesuits in the Empire Portuguese, in France, in the Two Sicilies, in Malta, in Parma and Spanish Empire from 1767 was the result of a series of political moves more than a theological controversy. With the brief Dominus ac Redemptor (July 21, 1773) Pope Clement XIV decided to suppress the Society of Jesus. The Jesuits took refuge therefore in non-Catholic countries, particularly in Prussia and Russia, where the order was largely ignored in its work. The Bollandists moved from Antwerp to Brussels, where they continued their work at the monastery of the Coudenberg; in 1788 it suppressed even the Bollandist government of the Austrian Netherlands.”⁹⁸ Karl Leonhard Reinhold was originally educated as a Jesuit, but after the suppression of the Society of Jesus, he joined the Barnabites, where he taught philosophy. enna, where Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart took his second degree in the Craft. Karl Leonhard Reinhold became not only a member of “Regular” Freemasonry, but also of the Order of the Illuminati of Bavaria, which was hidden within it, becoming one of the greatest thinkers of the time. Reinhold’s controversial work on the Jewish Mysteries as the most ancient form of “Religious Freemasonry,” was published for the first time in Italy in 2011. The Italian press showed an unusual interest on the subject. Here are some excerpts from reviews made at the time in the most important Italian newspapers:

Excerpt from That Mason of Moses. The mysterious origin of Judaism – La Repubblica; 10-12-2011:

The Latest on Moses? He was a “Mason” and pro-Egyptian.

In front of a title that speaks of Judaism as the oldest form of Masonry perhaps some readers will wonder if this is not the usual Judeo-Masonic plot accusation that hit the French revolutionaries in the late 700s formulated by abbot Barruel that became the fixation of the Jesuits of the publication “Civiltà Cattolica” in the years of the fierce anti-Jewish and anti-Masonic battle that saw them share the anti-Semitism card with the “socialism of fools.” The fact is that Reinhold was a Jesuit and Freemason. A fact seemingly unique, that helps to understand how the story is constantly changing the colors of things and the meanings of words. In his time between the Society of Jesus and Freemasonry there was an intense sympathy; Jesuits attended lodges stimulated by the idea that presided over the origin of their order, that of confidence in the revolutionary potential of intelligence as a tool for action of a small enlightened elite by God. Carl Leonhard Reinhold (born in Austria in 1758, died in Weimar in 1823) began his career as a Jesuit and remained one until the dissolution of the Company, a traumatic event for a religious order that felt badly protected by the papacy and saw the dispersal of former members. The history of the Jesuits in the Habsburg Empire and their Masonic past, in a great book by Antonio Trampus, that shows members of the banned religious order flow in Masonic Lodges dividing between a more open side to the ideas of the Enlightenment and Rousseau and a reactionary side that supported absolutism. Reinhold did not follow neither the one nor the other strand of Jesuitism: converted instead to Protestantism by the influence of Herder, and found in Kant himself the master of his life, the one to whom he dedicated his extraordinary capacity of adviser and university professor in the mature stage of its activities. ⁹⁹

Short review – Corriere della Sera; 26-11-2011:

Carl Leonhard Reinhold (1757-1823) entered the Jesuits and, after their suppression, taught philosophy in the Barnabites. Freemason since 1783—he was a member of the lodge “Zur Eintracht wahren,” “For the true harmony”—and decided to leave religious life and promote widespread interest around Kant. He will take the chair in Jena University. Reinhold now comes out, introduced by Jan Assmann and edited by Gianluca Paolucci, The Jewish Mysteries the most ancient religious Masonry (Quodlibet, pp. 264, 18). In it the philosopher outlined the argument that Moses would have been devoted to the pantheistic principle of Oneness—All, that natural religion founded on the banks of the Nile. He wrote: “I don’t think I offend in any way the high regard I have for the truth, as well as mosaic priesthood, if I push myself to consider such a cult, in its basic components, a faithful copy of the esoteric religion of the Egyptians and to affirm that the legislator of the Jews, have apparently targeted, as he could, to initiate all his people to the Egyptian mysteries.” ¹⁰⁰

Sometimes seemingly minor figures better represent the Zeitgeist, the spirit of the time. This is the case of a strange philosopher, Viennese professor Carl Leonhard Reinhold, pupil of the Jesuits, then Barnabite. Defrocked, entered the Viennese Masonic Lodge of the True Harmony, directed by Ignaz von Born, advisor to Emperor Joseph II, and leading Austrian Enlightenment, charismatic personality so overwhelming and inspiring to Mozart (also a Mason) the hieratic figure of Sarastro in “The Magical Flute.” The eighteenth-century Freemasonry was crossing from fairs infighting between factions mystical and rationalistic. Both gave rise to other more secret societies. The rationalist found themselves in the Order of the Illuminati, whose radical program, anticlerical and anti-despotic, soon attracted the attention of some governments that outlawed them. Reinhold, who had joined this association, was forced to leave in a hurry Vienna and repair in more tolerant Duchy of Weimar. Meanwhile he completed his philosophical training with intense attendance of Kantian philosophy, which won him the Chair at the University of Jena. It was here that Reinhold had to play an extraordinary role, influencing profoundly first Schiller later Goethe, who borrowed from him the knowledge of Kantianism. From his professorship Reinhold helped form an extraordinary generation, including the brothers Friedrich and August Wilhelm Schlegel and especially Novalis. Huge was the influence of his booklet, The Jewish Mysteries or the oldest form of Religious Masonry.¹⁰¹

Excerpt from The Alchemical Wedding of Tamino and Pamina – II Sole 24 Ore; Il Sole 24 Ore; 11-2011:

At the head of the lodge was Ignaz von Born, who perhaps inspired the character of Sarastro. And at the invitation of von Born, between 1786 and 1787 Reinhold wrote The Jewish Mysteries the most ancient religious Masonry. The work is a review, bold and provocative, of the figure of Moses. A Prince initiated to the Egyptian mysteries, Moses would have decided to use the secret rituals of the religion of Osiris and Isis to guide his people's exodus from the land of the pharaohs. So, thanks to a trick essentially political in nature, the Jews would be the only people of antiquity to receive a revelation normally destined only to a small elite of scholars.¹⁰²

Of course, after the publication of this book, edited by Gianluca Paolucci, which was met with a degree of success in Italy, there was an immediate reaction from the Vatican media. And to be consistent with my spirit of defiance toward the Vatican and the Jesuits, I want to include below the views and criticism made by the main Italian Catholic daily "Avvenire" on the work of Reinhold, defined by the Catholic journalist Mario Iannacone, as only a Jesuit student. However, this is not true and if you have read the earlier excerpts I included by others papers, the journalist in question was not the only one who indicated Carl Leonhard Reinhold as a former Jesuit, as the most widely read Italian newspaper the “Corriere della Sera” did the same: “he joined the Jesuits and, after their suppression, taught philosophy in the Barnabites.” In addition, the Catholic newspaper did not even mention the fact that at the time the Society of Jesus was dissolved and suffered a long dispersion, in particular the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite. And there is much more info on the subject voluntarily suppressed or manipulated by the Catholic newspaper in the article, that even casts doubt on the research of highly respected Professor Jan Assman, as well as a totally incorrect statement by Iannacone that the Templar myth survived only in Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry: “True for the European Freemasonry but not to the Anglo-Saxon one, which continued to be based on those myths.”

Here the question becomes more complicated, because both Professor Jan Assman and the journalist Mario Iannacone who work and are guided by the Catholic Church for their reviews, do not seem initiates of the highest degrees of Freemasonry. Only an expert in such rituals could talk about this subject in a serious and consistent way.

The Templar myth survived thanks to the Jesuits in the high degrees of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite (from 30° to 33° degree), considered an essential part of continental European Freemasonry, light years away from the Anglo-Saxon version; that if anything has given more space to the Jewish mysteries as seen in the Royal Arch, which only later offer the possibility to access the mysteries of the Neo-Templars for interested Christian Freemasons. These degrees are known in the United States, as the York Rite, which mirrors closely this Masonic system created in England, with slight changes in the underlying structure which does not change the contents taught, or the rituals.

The article in the newspaper “Avvenire” is obviously to some extent, the result of contemporary Jesuit disinformation. Just imagine, after two centuries since their formal return to the Catholic Church in 1814, the Company of Jesus now fully controls the Vatican media through Federico Lombardi SJ (b. 1942), in charge of all information of the Holy See. If you think about it, with the help of the powerful Jewish lobby, the Jesuits have now taken control of the dying Catholic religion, helping to push further its decline. In any case, this is the apologetic article in question that appeared in the Vatican media. Read for yourself to understand the skills of Jesuit disinformation.

Excerpt from Reinhold: a fake Jesuit between Freemason and Illuminist – Avvenire; 14-01-2012:

Here are translated the Jewish Mysteries of Karl Reinhold L, edited by G. Paolucci. The pamphlet, which was concluded in 1786, is difficult to understand if you are not knowledgeable of the struggles that opposed the Masonic tendencies of the late eighteenth century. The author is a philosopher now in the process of reassessment, according to the inaccurate review of Adriano Prosper for La Repubblica, “he began his career as a Jesuit,” before becoming Protestant and then a Freemason. The historian is suggesting a kind of continuity in the career of Reinhold, between “Masonry and the Company of Jesus” as “there was at that time an intense sympathy between the two who shared a common belief in the revolutionary potential of intelligence.”

Misleading statements. To Reinhold, Prosperi and curators ascribe the merit of having defined, in this booklet—handled as a minor classic of illuminism—the benefits that would result from monotheist relativism. Compared to his contemporaries who introduced in their texts perennialist Masonic ideas in deism or pantheism pulling in Atlanteans, Egyptians, Chaldeans, Jews or the Essenes, the book of Reinhold is better argued and concentrates, moderating abstruse Philology, on the punctum: the futility of religious exclusivism and the advantage of a polycentric truth or “relativist” as Prosperi writes (using a anachronistic term).

The “relativism” of Reinhold coincides, however, with the Masonic method and recalls Spinoza’s pantheism. According to the author, Judaism was invented by Moses, who adapted the Egyptian mysteries which would lead both Judaism—or “religious masonry”—what became Freemasonry itself, reserved for the elite. Reinhold believed in equivalence between religions and wisdom traditions and natural truth veiled behind the Egyptian mysteries. Assmann writes in the introduction: the “God of the Old Testament would be a fiction! The adaptation of a lofty concept, philosophical, abstract deity of the understanding of the common men.”

So thought Reinhold referring to Weishaupt, Spinoza and perhaps Giordano Bruno. But Reinhold was not a Jesuit; He studied in a Jesuit collegium but without getting into the Company (as shown in the scientific biography “Karl L. Reinhold and the Enlightenment” by G. Di Giovanni, published by Springer).” He took the Barnabite “vows” in 1780 to teach, then he joined masonry, thus refusing communion with the Church (which condemned “the sect” since 1738). He attended a lodge infiltrated by members of the Illuminati like him, but not close to their ideas as claimed by Assmann, who also adds that Templar myths decayed in the Masonic milieu after 1782 in favor of the Egyptians: true for the European Freemasonry but not for the AngloSaxon one, which continued to be based on those myths. Intricate issues, which they would like to spend in favor in today’s battle in favour of “relativism.” Some Jesuits played a dangerous battle to control the impulses of anti-Christian German lodges and to steer them up in favor of the Stuarts Catholics lodges of the British expatriates present in Italy and France, they played their game so well that even in scholarly introductions (and reviews) today the maze of mirrors deceives. ¹⁰³

The Jesuits should stop their lies through manipulative filtering of the Catholic Church newspaper “Avvenire,” that have nothing to do with true Christianity, if it ever existed. Returning to Karl Leonhard Reinhold, he lived the last years of his life in Kiel, between university and Masonic activities. It was in the period behind the famous Masonic Convent of Wilhelmsbad 1782, that his actions and work were particularly interesting, as we seek answers beyond appearances (and the usual Internet hoaxes) about the Order of the Illuminati of Adam Weishaupt. As I wrote in the first volume of my Confessions, although some agents of disinformation want to prove otherwise, it was at this time, after the Masonic Convent of Wilhelmsbad, that the turning point for Weishaupt's Illuminati took place. They certainly did not disappear, despite being officially dismantled and banned as an order with this name. The Jesuits were able to operate and hide, inside the more reserved and restricted Masonic lodges of the elite, such as Zur Wahren Eintracht in Vienna. Later, there is a gradual growth and expansion of such teachings and methods of control formulated originally by Adam Weishaupt, which will result in new orders and dangerous sects popping up like mushrooms.

There is a real network of the Illuminati of a thousand emanations, and not a single order. Gioele Magaldi, the former Worshipful Master of a prestigious Roman lodge of the Grand Orient of Italy with a strong Jewish presence, reveals the real meaning of the term "Illuminati":¹⁰⁴

This term according to the authors of this volume, is to be considered as the result of Self-attribution by certain members of Masonic and reactionary neoaristocratic circles.

cles. Is instead quite misleading any conspiracy narrative based on the inconsistent assumption of a subsidiary, direct or indirect, of these contemporary "Illuminati" Masons supposedly linked to the Order of the so-called “Bavarian Illuminati” (operating effectively, as such, only from the mid-sixties until the late eighties of the eighteenth century, although some of their suggestions will be taken and processed specifically within Masonic circles decades and centuries later), founded in 1776 by Johan Adam Weishaupt (1748-1830).¹⁰⁵

There remains no doubt that the occult side of the Illuminati, followed these mysterious teachings on the Jewish mysteries produced by the Jesuit / Freemason Reinhold, which brought the creation of the Golden Dawn, and in turn the rise of Aleister Crowley “The Great Beast,” a century later. But this happened only after the Templar myth was put “officially” to sleep at Wilhelmsbad, and stored secretly in the upper echelons of the various Rites / Masonic systems. They instead gave a lot of importance to the Jewish mysteries in the early grades, which are also those of the subsequent Royal Arch. Obviously there are exceptions in the Swedish Rite, where the Templar myth and the chilvaric element are present in the DNA of the system since the apprentice degree, as you are required to be “Christian” to become a Mason or should I should say a pseudo one, at this point.

This is an anomaly, and goes against the “Universal principles” where Freemasonry is considered to be the symbolic bearer in the first three degrees, (Entered Apprentice, Fellowcraft and Master Masons Degrees of Freemasonry). These developments subsequent to Wilhelmsbad undoubtedly facilitated the rise of the Jewish (non Christian) population within Freemasonry, but also the rise of deviant forms of Neo-Templarism in opposition, like the Ordo Templi Orientis, promoted by the dark and perverse side of the Illuminati headed initially by Theodor Reuss (1855-1923).

As Aleister Crowley wrote in his Confessions, a little more than a century after the Masonic Convent of Wilhelmsbad, in regards to the state of North American Freemasonry:¹⁰⁶ they must now hide their Christian roots to allow the initiation of the rich Jews at the top of Freemasonry, Even Crowley who was a known instigator of deviant forms of Masonry, found it hypocritical. The text of Karl Leonhard Reinhold that focuses on the mysteries of the Jewish religion in relation to the Egyptian initiatic mysteries, is exposed in a general reorientation of European Freemasonry.¹⁰⁷

The Illuminati inspired by the Jesuits, sought the return of the deeper answers to the myths and legends that generated modern Speculative Freemasonry,¹⁰⁸ but at the same time they were fomenting relativism. Until the end of the eighteenth century, this scenario expanded with the myth of the Templars, which was connected to the establishment of the Temple of Solomon, an element which remains of fundamental importance in Freemasonry. When the Templar myth was officially put aside because it was considered unfounded at the Masonic Convent of 1782, further studies began on the Masonic mysteries, to form solid roots for the foundation of Freemasonry. The Illuminati Order decided for this rea son, to reveal to their members, the hidden truths of the Jewish belief to their Masons, to help them understand the smaller mysteries of the Hebrews. Ancient Egypt and the history of the people of Israel lead by Moses, then took on a totally new meaning. Reinhold set out to demonstrate in his presentation, that the 613 commandments and prohibitions of the Torah, are nothing more than "hieroglyphics, ceremonies and ritual prescriptions," and they represent "a true copy of the mystery religion of the Egyptians."¹⁰⁹

found in ancient Egypt. Jan Assmann writes, in his introduction to the first Italian edition of this important essay:

In this period the richest Masons began building pyramids in their gardens, while in the same year Giuseppe Balsamo, who called himself “Count of Cagliostro,” founded his Lodges of the “Egyptian Rite.” The research program developed by the mysterious Viennese Lodge is clearly a response to the pioneering publication of Starck in 1783. ¹¹⁰

The work of Starck just mentioned by Jan Assmann, is Starck’s book On the Old and new mysteries (Berlin 1782), which had, according to Assmann, stimulated this important Viennese lodge in their research on the mysteries, and influenced the mood and the work of Illuminati and Freemason Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, for his masterpiece The Magic Flute of 1791. This essay was cited in a study of Starck made by U.S. Freemason Albert Pike (1809-1891), Sovereign Grand Commander of the Supreme Council of the A.A.S.R. for the Southern Jurisdiction of the United States from 1859 until his death. Pike is best known for his book published in 1871, Morals and Dogma of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry, or simply Morals and Dogma, considered to be “the most complete exposition of the philosophy of the Scottish Rite,” a statement made by C. Fred Kleinknecht (1924-2011), who was also a celebrated and important Sovereign Grand Commander of this prestigious Rite of Freemasonry from 1985-2003. But the aforementioned, controversial theologian that some experts believe to be the father of the study of comparative religion and an agent of the Jesuits, was not well-regarded by Reinhold, who actually accused him of Jesuit influence. Reinhold, an Illuminati and former Jesuit (or Jesuit seminarist if we want to believe the Catholic newspaper “Avvenire”), loved to denounce any influences of this kind, because at that time there was an internal war in the Illuminati Network. The Illuminati of The Order of the Golden and Rosy Cross (Orden des Gold-und Rosenkreutz, also the Fraternity of the Golden and Rosy Cross), that is always faithful to the Jesuits, and the anti-Jesuit faction, embedded in deep anti-clericalism, was actually manipulated and instrumental to the Jesuits behind the curtains of history, that with the help of Judaism, fully developed the new plague called Communism, a utopia that originally arises within the order of the Jesuits. Returning to the mysteries of Karl Leonhard Reinhold, Jan Assmann writes:

The Freemasons and the Illuminati specifically recognized in this intuition “the oldest form of Masonry” and considered themselves the legitimate successors to those ancient Egyptian initiates, feeling called to keep burning in the changed conditions of the modern age that original torch of truth and wisdom. ¹¹¹

In his work, Reinhold speaks often about the great influence in the Masonic culture with Judaism, and the influence of the Egyptian tradition which originated it. The recovery of the Egyptian mysteries in their purest form represents to him and the Illuminati—the recovery of the mysteries that lie in the very foundations of the Judeo-Christian culture, the occult key to the absolute rule of the system and the foundation for the subsequent creation of modern Sinarchic Technocracy, that as I showed you earlier was launched by the theories of Alexandre Saint-Ives of Alveydre author of Mission des Juifs (1884). Another “Illuminati” in the broadest sense of the term, the English self-styled Egyptologist Gerald Massey (1828-1907), Grand Master of the Druids, author and high level Freemason, a century later would publish an excellent essay called Book of the Beginnings, where he spoke of the true origins of the Jewish people which he also claimed was in ancient Egypt. Massey makes an extensive analysis in some ways even more profound than that of Reinhold, both from the philological point of view and from a philosophical one: “In this way, by aid of the hieroglyphics, symbolism, and mythology of Egypt we shall be enabled now to get beyond that ‘original Hebrew’ so often appealed to, which has so long served as the last covert and lurking-place of hunted lies. The cave of refuge is found to have a backdoor open with a daylight world welcoming us beyond. Egyptian gives us the primaries of language, the very shapes in which thoughts were formed. Meanings that have been pursued in vain for ages can now be run down to Earth at last. The typical and symbolical may be read in the symbols and the types of those who created the myths, unless in the meantime the obscurity of the cave has produced in us such visual weakness that the organ is henceforth limited to seeing in the dark.”

This huge work was originally published in two volumes in London in 1881, and influenced even Aleister Crowley and his disciple Kenneth Grant.

In the Book of Job, the palace of the prince of glory is juxtaposed with the mishkan of the wicked. ‘Ye say, “Where (is) the house of the prince? and where are the dwellingplaces of the wicked?” The house of the prince in the Ritual is called the Palace of the Great House, in the region of the hill. The dwellings of the wicked were in the ten kars or hells of the damned. The meskhen was the purgatory. The son, as repa and heirapparent, the prince of peace, the anointed one, had various impersonations in Egyptian mythology, as Horus, Khunsu, and lu-em-hept. One of these is represented in the Hebrew mythology by Solomon, the son of David. Khunsu, in relation to Taht or the moon, is the lunar son, who fulfils and completes the double circle of sun and moon. As the solar son he is the child of Amen-Ra. That bears on his head the half circle of the moon; Khunsu carries on his the full round. He is the fulfiller. And this is the significance of Solomon’s name. Shalom (שׁוֹלֵם) means to complete, finish, bring to an end, perfect the whole work begun by some forerunner supposed to be the ante-type.

The meaning of peace is subsidiary to and dependent on this sense of perfecting some work, and completing and finishing the whole. This is done by the son Khunsu, in fulfilling the soli-lunar circle at the vernal equinox. One of Khunsu’s titles is Nefer-hept. Hept means peace; nefer may be read the good, perfect, plant, youth. The Nefer-hept is really the Hebrew prince of peace, or, as Solomon is designated in the Song of Songs, “the king to whom peace belongs.” He is also called the “king of peace with the crown.”

And as nefer is the crown, nefer-hept is the crowned of peace, i.e., the king of peace, synonymous with Solomon, the king of peace with the crown.

The seventy-second psalm is called a “Psalm for Solomon,” and the speaker says, “Give the king thy judgments, and thy righteousness to the king’s son.” Taht was the signer of the sentences passed on the souls of the dead in the hall of the Two Truths. And in praise of the son it is proclaimed with great appropriateness, “In his days shall the righteous flourish so long as the moon endureth.” That is the primary imagery. “I will make the horn of David to bud; I have ordained a lamp for mine anointed.” The horn of the new moon is borne by Taht; the lamp of the full moon by Khunsu. It cannot be shown that Khunsu was considered to be the son of Taut, although he is the lunar child, and carries the full moon on his head but the son in whom the solilunar types were both united was Khunsu, the prince of peace, who in the Hebrew myths is Solomon, the son of David. ¹¹²

This originates from two influential speeches that later became a crucial illuminist booklet written by Leipzig and Weimar between 1785 and 1786 by Reinhold. A large research devoted to the Viennese Masonic lodge Zur wahren Eitragt, committed at the end of the eighteenth century to a complex program of studies promoted by the Adam Wesihaupt’s Illuminati, on mystery cults in search of the origins of Freemasonry. Reinhold’s research would never be personally read by him in an open lodge, but by his friend Martin Joseph Prandstretter, who will do so on the 6th of March and the 3rd of April, 1786. It will also be received in the “sister” lodge Zur Warheit, and not in the Zur wahren Eitragt, for security reasons, because from 1783 the Illuminati were forbidden as well as the Jesuits, and Reinhold would surely have risked a lot in participating to the presentation in person in his own lodge.

Freemasonry & Judaism a strange affair ...

W

When I reached to the end of my research for this chapter, I discovered a very interesting article entitled Freemasonry & Judaism are compatible by Rt. Wor. Bro. Rabbi Dr Raymond Apple Emeritus Rabbi of the Great Synagogue of Sydney, AO RFD, Past Deputy Grand Master of the United Grand Lodge of New South Wales & the Australian Capital Territory. In his brief exposition, the Rabbi and Senior Freemason points out certain lesser known aspects of the relationship between Judaism and Freemasonry, which I think are essential for a full understanding of this subject from the Jewish prospective. Rabbi Raymond Apple writes:

Especially in English-speaking countries, the movement has always had a high proportion of eminent Jewish members, including leading rabbis. Among present day Australian rabbis, high Masonic office is held by Rabbi Shalom Coleman of Perth, Rabbi Chaim Gutnick of Melbourne and myself in Sydney. Other rabbis and ministers are past masters of their lodges. All this clearly indicates that Jews have not found Freemasonry to be incompatible with their Judaism. Why Jewish Masons feel at home with the movement includes the requirement that a Mason must believe in God, and the fact that the Bible occupies a place of honour in the lodge room. Masonic ritual is based largely on biblical words, events and personalities, and the overall emphasis is on ethics, friendship and good works. Admittedly, some of the Hebrew words that figure in Masonic ceremonies are mispronounced and the references to biblical events occasionally get their history wrong, but these are regarded by Jewish Freemasons as incidental issues. No major challenge to Jewish faith is seen in being a Mason or in promoting its ideals.

The Rabbi also talks about the clash between the Catholic Church and Freemasonry calling it “The Christian problem with Freemasonry,” completely ignoring and not mentioning the vast Masonic Christian tradition:

It has often been otherwise among Christians. For a long period, Masonry and the Roman Catholic Church lived in a state of conflict or, at best, of uneasy truce,

world order

though the Catholic position is now increasingly positive. In recent years, however, the Church of England has taken up a critical attitude to the movement, both in Britain and elsewhere in the Anglican communion. In 1988, the synod of the Anglican Church in Australia declared Freemasonry to be “basically incompatible with Christianity.” The Christian problem with Freemasonry is both general (there is an incorrect perception that the movement is a rival religion), and particular, in that it makes no reference to Jesus or the New Testament, at least in the basic three degrees through which most Masons progress.

Masonry responds by insisting that it is religious without being a religion and that it fosters a generally religious attitude to life, but has no theological doctrines, mandatory interpretations or modes of worship.

At this point Raymond Apple insists on the “Universality” of Freemasonry “open to men of all faiths” in the following passage:

“ The omission of Jesus and the New Testament is implicit in the fact that Freemasonry is open to men of all faiths. Jews, Muslims, Hindus and others are as welcome as Christians. But each comes to Masonry with his own religious beliefs and commitments, and when he hears the word “God” in lodge ritual, he attaches to it his own theological interpretation. A Jew will understand the divine name in terms of the pure, indivisible monotheism of Judaism: to him, “God” is “HaShem.” A Christian is free to import into the word “God” his own Christian concepts and understanding.

Then the Rabbi and Past Deputy Grand Master attacked German Freemasonry as being anti-Semitic in the past, a partially inaccurate claim as there were two distinct Masonic factions in Germany before the rise of Nazism. One was clearly Christian and NeoTemplar, known as “Old Prussians,” for this reason not compatible with other religions, the other was the “Humanitarians,” that admitted Jews, and had cosmopolitan ideals. However Rabbi Apple writes:

The history of Freemasonry suggests a major and tragic paradox. In parts of continental Europe, especially 19th-century Germany, there were major objections to Jewish membership of the movement. Anti-Semitism was then endemic in sections of German Freemasonry. Yet the anti-Semite was never rational or consistent, and before long Freemasonry was regularly attacked as “too Jewish,” and therefore dangerous to society. Accusations of Jewish-Masonic plots to undermine and control the world played a role in the Dreyfus affair. They surfaced in that notorious forgery, “The Protocols of the Elders of Zion.” And the German right wing and the Nazis added similar accusations to their anti-Semitic armoury. To Jews, the right to join Freemasonry became a touchstone of religious liberty, an agent of emancipation and social integration. Hence, in the free atmosphere of British countries, Jews were well represented in lodge memberships, and Jewish community leaders were prominent Masons.¹¹³ The late Eric Howe, P.M. Quatuor Coronati Lodge, No. 2076, one of the world’s leading Masonic authorities, from the leading Masonic lodge of research, wrote the following, in complete contrast with the supposed expertise of the Rabbi:

The problem which bedeviled and split the Masonic Order in Germany for years on end was the so-called “Jewish question.” In its original form it referred to religious rather than racial prejudice. The three “Old Prussian” Grand Lodges had always refused to accept Jews for initiation because their Craft degrees were followed by higher ones of a Christian character. Thus, as far as the “Old Prussians” were concerned, one brief but important passage in the Antient Charges was ignored it reads: “Let a man’s religion or mode of worship be what it may, he is not excluded from the order provided he believe in the glorious architect of heaven and Earth and practise the sacred duties of morality.”

113 <http://www.oztorah.com/2008/07/freemasonry-judaism-are-compatible/> ‡
Archived 30th July, 2015.

The six “Humanitarian” Grand Lodges, on the other hand, nominally made no distinction between Christian and Jew. This did not mean that every Jewish candidate could be sure of joining a Lodge, because exclusion by blackball was not unknown. However, once a Jew became a Freemason he could attend “Old Prussian” Craft Lodges as a visitor. Superficially, at least, the overall situation was that the “Old Prussian” Grand Lodges represented ultra-conservative attitudes, while the “Humanitarian” Obediences were more liberally inclined.

The “Jewish question,” in the sense that it was perennially a source of controversy between the two groups, was probably always basically insoluble. Nevertheless, as long as it was solely based on religious prejudice some kind of modus vivendi, although never a completely satisfactory one, was contrived. In a non-Masonic context religious discrimination against Jews gave way after 1870 to political and economic anti-Semitism. Then, during the 1900s we encounter the early stages of the virulent racial anti-Semitism which was to afflict Germany like a disease and which culminated thirty years later in Hitler’s “Final Solution,” meaning genocide. The wave of anti-Semitic propaganda which flooded the country during the years 1910-14 was one of the various manifestations of German nationalism’s overheated condition at that time. The Jew was now presented as the antithesis of all that was “truly German,” hence as the embodiment of a whole range of negative or unattractive qualities.

It never occurred to the pre-1914 anti-Semitic propagandists to attack Freemasonry on the grounds that its Craft rituals incorporate material and symbolism derived from the Old Testament and therefore superficially of “Jewish” origin.

When anti-Masonic propaganda of this kind was first disseminated by the anti-Semitic caucus immediately after the First World War, the Grand Lodges found the proposition that the Craft could conceivably be “tainted” for these reasons so ludicrous that they hardly reacted.

The anti-Semites had already created the “perfidious Jew” archetype before 1914. Yet another archetype, the “perfidious Freemason,” was invented during the war but did not become well-known to most Germans until immediately after their country’s military defeat in 1918. The astonishing proposition that Germany had been the victim of an international Judaeo-Masonic conspiracy began to be current in 1918 and was repeated ad nauseam in a succession of books and pamphlets which were published during the era of the Weimar Republic. The “Judaeo-Masonic Conspiracy” theory was so manifestly silly that the Grand Lodges cannot be blamed for failing to realise that its incessant repetition would ultimately damage the Craft. The “Old Prussian” sector protested that they were Christian institutions and did not admit Jews, but the market for myths was invariably larger than any for reasoned statements. ¹¹⁴

Rabbi Dr Raymond Apple, should acknowledge certain points with a more bias and accurate modality, but of course even within Freemasonry disinformation and manipulated facts seem to be the norm, even for their Senior representatives.

lated facts seem to be the norm, even for their Senior representatives.

My Experience in the New World Order and my War against Satanism and Disinformation

My family

he beginning of this chapter is dedicated to how I was recruited into the New World Order, at the age of 23. My adventure began on April 13, 1993, when I was initiated into the mysteries of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite by Prince Don Giovanni Francesco Alliata di Montereale (1921–1994), in his dual capacity as Grand Master and Sovereign Grand Commander. This was performed “by the sword,” as it is known in Masonic language, with a form of Masonic initiation reminiscent to what is effected in Knighthood Orders. I was also honored without being regularly initiated, pass and raised, in the traditional Masonic manner, with the 33rd degree.

Gioele Magaldi 30° of the A.A.S.R. writes about this unusual form of initiation:

Especially in the past, but even in the present, survives even if in a more covered and secret way, the custom of initiating certain people (for the most diverse reasons) not through the normal, articulated and evocative rituals used by the ordinary lodges or a given Masonic communion / obedience, but through the extraordinary liturgical initiation made by a Grand Master, or a Sovereign Grand Commander, Grand Hierophant or Worshipful Master of a Ur Lodge or a Grand Dignitary delegated by them. In this way, an individual can be “made” a Mason at sight by the ritual sword touchings of a high level Grand Master or his official collaborator, and this kind of initiation is not necessarily transcribed in the records and official lists of the communion / obedience, superlodge or ritual body, but remains in the “memory” only of the initiator and of the few who, with a vocal transmission “mouth to ear,” are made aware of this man. ¹

In February 1909, A U.S. Grand Master made a Mason at Sight out of William H. Taft, then President Elect of the United States. Useful information about this almost unknown Masonic tradition can be found in Making a Mason At Sight by Louis L. Williams, published in 1983 by the Illinois Lodge of Research-Masonic Book Club (based in Bloomington, Illinois). At the time of my initiation, I was the youngest 33° degree ever nominated in Italy. Only Alberto Moscato, former Chief Agent of the O.T.O., was able to obtain this prestigious degree at a relatively young age in Italy. After receiving the 33° degree of the Sovereign Grand Inspector General of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, I was appointed Sovereign Grand Commander, and heir to the throne of Alliata's Rite for Italy. (FIG. 41) This event was unusual, and in the eyes of some skeptics, unlikely. I received this transmission due to my bloodline, in a historical period in Europe, at the end of the Cold War.

I never accepted my role as Alliata's successor as Sovereign of the Rite, and the Rite was passed to the other equally legitimate successors of this prestigious Masonic lineage of Prince Alliata of Montereale. Prince Alliata of Montereale was not only a Grand Master, but also a Sovereign Grand Commander (for life ad vitam), of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Piazza del Gesù. This was a role the Prince retained his entire life due to his prestigious bloodline linked to the Holy Roman Empire connected to the foundations of the Rite. Alliata was Grand Master of the National Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, and spent a period in the Grand Orient of Italy, as a member of the P2 Lodge (membership No. 361). He founded the Association of Aristocrats and Nobles of the Holy Roman Empire, and was involved in politics and Freemasonry with my grandfather, Senator Leopoldo Zagami (1905-1973) who was from the Aeolian Islands next to Sicily. He married a descendant of two of the noblest families of the Holy Roman Empire, my grandmother Lidia. The two noble families were the (Di) Gregorio, one of the most important of the Holy Roman Empire, and Labruto, where we find Don Giovanni Labruto, Judge of the the Royal Supreme Court in 1747 and one of the most influential people of the city of Messina. Messina was the last port for ships arriving from Italy and France. It was an important logistical base for the Knights Templar, as reported in a short essay entitled I Templari in Sicilia (The Templars in Sicily) by Litterio Villari;² that is based on rare documentary evidence that was revealed, despite the destruction and dispersal of the archives of the priories. This essay indicates 1113 as the year the first hospice run by monks and crusaders of the Order of Saint Mary of the Valley of Giosaphat in Jerusalem (Santa Maria di Valle Giosaphat di Gerusalemme) rose in Messina. It became a base of operations for the various knights and religious orders “that gusted for a few decades the Pilgrims going to the Holy Land.”³ against satanism and disinformation

Villari writes that: The Order of the Templars owned its first church in Messina, with adjoining hospice dedicated to St. Mark the Evangelist, in today's building of the Province, not far from the benches of the port. ⁴ This is a place where centuries later the Count of Cagliostro (also a member of my family) would meet the mysterious Althotas, who would become his Chief Secret and who initiated him to the highest mysteries. Returning to Di Gregorio, (FIG. 42) according to Baron Giuseppe Gallup, one of the most credible historic sources on Sicilian nobility: Gregorio, said sometimes De Gregorio, sometimes Di Gregorio, actually originates from Cologne, Germany, and from the family of General Onofrio Bolzani at the service of Emperor Henry I of the Sacred Roman Empire; who rewarded Bolzani for his excellent work in the military with a generous compensation and with the title of Baron of the Holy Roman Empire. Later his son named Gregorio imposed this name to his posterity, and one of his sons Giovanni Di Gregorio was rewarded by Emperor Henry IV for his great services in the military with the government of the city of Cologne in Germany and the ability to have the noble symbol in the main church of the city. ⁵ It remains to this day, as I witnessed many years ago, when I visited this beautiful German city.

The Greek transliteration of Grigori means " Watchers," "those who are awake" and "guard." Watcher is also a term used in connection with biblical angels. There are many other influential people in this family that can confirm the importance of this bloodline. In fact, there are so many that Gallupi's book on the Nobility of Sicily states the following about the (Di) Gregory family: "If we should mention all the distinguished members of this noble lineage it would result in an excessively long account." ⁶ This family expanded into several branches. With the title of Marquis of Poggio Gregorio, that was later injected into the Prince of St. Elia peerage. Also linked with my maternal grandmother, was the aforementioned Labruto family, which in turn was linked to the family of the famous Illuminati Grand Master Giuseppe Balsamo, also so known as "Count Cagliostro."

Returning to my grandfather Leopoldo Zagami, (FIG. 43) at the end of the Second World War he joined a branch of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite (A.A.S.R.) defined by the scholar, Jesuit Father Pietro Pirri SJ of the Historical Institute of the Society of Jesus, as an autonomous Pseudo-Catholic form of Freemasonry. (FIG. 44) The Grand Master and Sovereign Grand Commander of the Rite was the Italian aristocrat Baron Furio Romano Avezzana, (FIG. 45) who died in Rome on the 15th of June 1949.

Subsequently this group made up of a fusion of Lodges loyal to Baron Avezzana, then moved to the headquarters of Piazza Gesù in front of the Jesuit headquarters of the Church of the Gesù, that is the Jesuit Mother Church of the world, where the Italian Supreme Council of the A.A.S.R. still resides. At that time, there was a unification of the various branches of Italian Freemasonry close to the Catholic Church. This took place in Piazza del Gesù, which for fifty years would dominate Italy politically, as the headquarters of the Christian Democrat Party; (Partito della Democrazia Cristiana) and was secretly financed by the U.S. State Department, which was also based next to the headquarters of the Supreme

The “New Age” (L’Era Nuova), was official publication of this group, and in September, 1947, it made the following profession of faith: “In a Catholic country like

FIG. 43 – Leopoldo Zagami, Freemason of the Scottish Rite Ancient and Accepted of Piazza del Gesu, and a member of the Italian Senate who died in the midseventies, with his grandson, the author of this book and future 33° of the A.A.S.R., in a photo dating back to the early seventies .

Italy, the Christianity of the Italian Freemasons can only follow true, Catholic ethics.”

Such a statement was intended to usher in a form of Catholic Freemasonry that could fight Communism, the enemy of the time, during the so-called “Cold War.” It is ironic if you consider, that the same insitutions that were fighting Communism, are the ones that fully endorse it. In 1955, after the death of Baron Risi, who was Avezzana’s successor, Prince Alliata was promoted to the office of Sovereign Grand Commander of the Supreme Council of the 33rd, and last degree of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite for the Italian jurisdiction, recognized thanks to the direct intervention of U.S. Intelligence Chief and Freemason, Dr. Frank Bruno Gigliotti (1896-1975), and by the Th e S u p r e m e C o u n c i l , 3 3 ° , A n c i e n t & A c c e p t e d S c o t t i s h R i t e o f F r e e m a s o n r y , S o u t h e r n J u r i s d i c t i o n , i n W a s h i n g t o n D C , U S A . ⁷

This was a leading position Prince Alliata retained for the rest of his life, because of his bloodline, and its link to the “Grand Constitution of the Thirty-third Degree,” written by Frederick the Great of Prussia in 1786. Alliata also had a prime role in the Intelligence Community during the Cold war, and was one of the key collaborators of the Italo-American, Frank Gigliotti. A well documented historian on the Illuminati Terry Melanson, writes extensively on Giogliotti in an article published online, Frank Gigliotti: Minister, Freemason, OSS and CIA, that is based on credible sources and documentation. FIG. 44 – Masonic Passport issued by the Italian Supreme Council of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Baron Furio Romano Avezzana headquartered in Rome, Via Quintino Sella 60 (site of today’s Japanese Embassy), to Brother Bartolomeo Leopoldo Zagami, belonging to their Lodge of The Sphinx in Messina, testifying his status as 18th Degree of Knight Rose Croix back in 1946. the following section particularly interesting for this research :

If you have studied the history of deep state intrigue, Gladio and stay-behind networks during the Cold war, occasionally you may have come across a fleeting mention of someone named Frank Gigliotti. In Philip Willan’s Puppetsmasters, for example, Gigliotti is described as a “former OSS and then CIA agent” who played a key role in the U.S. negotiations to return control to the Grand Orient Masons, their former headquarters in Palazzo Giustiniani, Rome. “Frank Gigliotti of the U.S. Masonic Lodge,” Daniele Ganser asserts in NATO’s Secret Armies, “personally recruited Gelli and instructed him to set up an anti-Communist parallel government in Italy in close cooperation with the CIA station in Rome.” In Willan’s book as well, Gigliotti is mentioned in a paragraph that begins with Gelli’s initiation into the Grand Orient Masonry.

The parliamentary commission of inquiry investigating the P2 specifically mentions Frank Gigliotti, his OSS/CIA/U.S. Scottish Rite/Grand Orient ties, and draws attention to the conspicuous appearance of (the recently passed) Licio Gelli, once Gigliotti leaves the scene. ⁸

Terry Melanson questions Giogliotti’s mission:

“ This seemingly obscure Mason from the U.S. was meddling in Grand Orient Masonic affairs, on behalf of his Masonic brethren as well as the U.S. government, and was linked to the rise of Gelli and his ascendancy to the leadership of the P2. Who was this man? What was the trajectory of his career? Beginning in 1937 (McCoy 2009 b: 52) and through to his OSS years, Gigliotti was tapped for service by the mysterious army Major General Ralph H. Van Deman, “the father of military Intelligence” who died in 1952. ⁹

Alliata became for a time, a member of the Propaganda 2 Lodge, which later operated independently by the Worshipful Master Licio Gelli. Prince Alliata never participated to the activities of the lodges of Grand Orient of Italy. In the following years he became the promoter of various Masonic and para-Masonic associations and Orders. In 1980, he officially launched the Nobility Order of the Sword and the Eagle (a Masonic-Neo- Templar Order), of which he became the Sovereign Prince and Grand Master.

In 1986, he founded the Cultural Association of Universal Freemasonry of the European Rite, known by the acronym MURE, of which he became president. In 1992, one year before he initiated me, he created The Association of National Academy of Esoteric Sciences—Universal Freemasonry of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite Orient of Italy (R.:S.:A.:A.:O.:I.:), and in 1993, The European Association of the Philosophic Rite (RFE). It was because of a strong Masonic and political bond, between Prince Giovanni Francesco Alliata di Montereale (FIG. 46) and my grandfather Leopoldo Zagami, that I was called to this important life changing event, after a long period of observation and training that lasted several years, beginning during my time spent as a conscript in the Air Force working at the Italian Ministry of Defence Air Force Headquarters. This is where I was initially approached by people that belonged to powerful groups such as Opus Dei and Freemasonry. These were shady figures from military Intelligence, and this is when I began on a path on the edge of legality, that would put me in contact with leaders of the notorious Operation Gladio, and the infamous P2.

In theory, anyone can become part of Freemasonry or Opus Dei, but joining the elite network of the New World Order and their High Collegia is a very different affair. You must be chosen, you can't ask to join. The High Collegia (i.e. "Collegia" plural of "Collegium" which means "joined by law") also known at times in the Rosicrucian tradition as the Invisible College, is the only truly superior secret society able to influence all forms of secret societies and groups. This particular society is composed of indiscernible individuals, whose efforts lead to actions of great importance. Their historical origin can be found in the tradition of the maritime fleet of the Order of the Temple (i.e. the Knights Templar). ¹⁰

This is how the real Illuminati operates, it is not something you can join by reading a book or visiting a website, as Illuminatism asserts. Keep in mind that your average Mason completely ignores the existence of the New World Order, and knows only superficially this vast sectarian network. The common Mason is not permitted to ask certain questions without authorization. Unauthorized questions would cause the common Mason to be isolated by his "Brothers," who would either kick him out or leave him on standby in the apprentice degree, or Fellow Craft degree, for the rest of his Masonic life, without the possibility of joining a Rite, that can only happen after the 3rd degree of Master Mason; therefore blocking the ability for the Mason to obtain further knowledge of the mysteries.

When the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, or the York Rite, are taken seriously by its members, you are trained with a military form of iron discipline and blind obedience which derives from the Knighthood teachings present in the upper degrees of these Masonic systems. The A.A.S.R. as well as the “Egyptian Rites” form a proper occult chain that derives from the Rosicrucian tradition revealed to the candidate only when they reach the 18th degree. Of course this occult element can become dangerous at times, in fact the late high level Freemason and Masonic historian Enrico Simoni (33° gold necklace of the A.A.S.R.), who was also a member of my order (Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis), died prematurely of a brain tumor in 2013, and confessed the following shortly before he died: “12 years ago I began to feel sick and it gradually worsened after I entered the Italian Supreme Council of the Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite.”

Pertaining to his sudden illness after entering the Italian Supreme Council of the Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite, psychically defending oneself is of utmost importance. We will return to this subject in the last chapter, with a wealth of information that will aid the reader in protecting himself from invisible and sometimes potentially lethal psychic attacks. To the Illuminati there are two important elements: the Egregore, and the occult chain, but both can be polluted and dangerous for those who adventure themselves in such realms with no real knowledge of the occult. Satanic infiltration can occur within infiltrated esoteric bodies which often result in mysterious deaths and other unpleasant occurrences. Enrico Simoni was only one, among a series of many deaths, five to be exact, within the same Supreme Council of the 33° the A.A.S.R. Jurisdiction for Italy, recognized by the Grand Orient of Italy and the U.S. Supreme Councils. They occurred between 2009 and 2010 when Sergio Cimini, Dario Montalenti (Grand Prior), Giuseppe Oliveri of the Lodge Vita Nova Belfiore 116 in Florence, and another 33rd degree gold necklace named Bent Parodi, a Sicilian of noble origins and an Illuminati, all died one after the other, of seemingly natural causes.

Parodi, who died in December 2009, was a journalist and writer, also known as a scholar of world religions and president of the Order of Journalists in Sicily. He was the son of the Duke Ugo Parodi of Belsito; a Sicilian nobleman of Genoese origin, and his mother was Tove Holm-Andersen Danis, a descendant of Hans Christian Andersen. ¹¹ This family however, had a dark side, and were said to be linked to Satanic practices. On the 28th of April 2013, Bent Parodi's tomb located in a family chapel in the small cemetery in Capo d'Orlando in Sicily, was desecrated by an unknown assailant. Stolen was a book, placed on a small altar within a glass case. The book contained the history of religions written by the great Romanian esoteric thinker and author Mircea Eliade, of no economic value, but of great sentimental and energetic value to this network of Illuminati and their sects. Bent Parodi had expressed the wish not to separate from this book even after death, but the wish was not respected, as this book was a material link to his soul for their rituals.

11 See. https://it.wikipedia.org/wiki/Bent_Parodi Archived 30th July, 2015, [emphasis added].

A complaint to the Police Capo d'Orlando was filed on the incident by the Family Foundation chaired by Prof. Carmelo Romeo.¹² On the 7th of September 2013, the Family Foundation then held a new ceremony at the cemetery in Capo d'Orlando, and a new glass case and a new copy of the book by Mircea Eliade was replaced.¹³

Not one member of the present Italian Supreme Council of the A.A.S.R. has said a word publicly on the mysterious death chain that occurred in their Masonic Rite, or on this strange incident that happened at the grave of Ben Parodi. That's because, in 2009, these five Freemasons were the victims of an internal conflict within the Rite. A conflict I personally witnessed between black magicians and white magicians, which erupted in the Supreme Council of the 33rd degree and would eventually kill my friend, Enrico Simoni. In 1919, "the Beast" Aleister Crowley himself, did not succeed in his initial intention to take control of the Supreme Council of the A.A.S.R. in the "Valley" of Detroit. Crowley wrote initially with great enthusiasm: "The accounts of the new Rite (Ordo Templi Orientis) made a great impression; and in particular, attracted the attention of the Supreme Grand Council, Sovereign Grand Inspectors General of the 33rd and Last degree of the Scottish Rite in the Valley of Detroit, Mich. ... I was therefore invited to Detroit, and a series of conferences was held. A

Supreme Grand Council of the 7th Degree of the O.T.O. was formally initiated.”¹⁴

Aleister Crowley’s ridiculous proposals were rejected by the Conservative Christian Masons in the US, who, abruptly put an end to his occult show. According to an article written in 1948, during the time Crowley’s spent in Detroit, he announced plans to build a headquarters patterned after the sun temples of the ancient Chaldeans, with exotic furnishings, fountains spraying jets of perfumed water amid burning jars of incense, silken divans for the faithful to “worship and recline on..” Crowley then left town, and more or less gave up on his project of absorbing the Masonic world into the O.T.O.¹⁵

Worth mentioning, is that in Detroit on the 25th of July, 2015 to the astonishment of people around the world, Satanists were able to publicly inaugurate a statue of Baphomet that cost 100 thousand dollars. A huge amount of money spent for an occult symbol based on the popular design of Eliphas Levi. Of course, the bizarre statue was even more twisted with the addition of two children at its sides. This incredible Satanic stunt was created and promoted by the Satanic Temple of Detroit, generating unprecedented media publicity.

Returning to my family history, I would now like to explore my mother’s side of the family. My mother, Jessica Lyon Young, is descendant of the prestigious Scottish Lyon family, of the Queen Mother of England Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon (1900-2002), the wife of King George VI (1895-1952), (FIG. 47) one of the more Masonic kings who was Grand Master of the Province of Middlesex and in 1936 became Grand Master Mason of Scotland. He was awarded earlier the 33rd degree of the Ancient and Accepted Rite in 1932. There was a great esteem and admiration from British Freemasonry and King George VI, for the family of his wife, Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, that has another important branch the Clan Lyon in Scotland. The important link between Freemasonry and this important Scottish family, was actually stressed publicly by King George VI, during his speech to the Grand Lodge, held in his honor at the Royal Albert Hall in London on 30 June 1939, by the United Grand Lodge of England. It was an official ceremony staged after his sudden coronation as king, to officially depose as English tradition dictates, those that had official assignments within Freemasonry. In his speech, of great historical importance for Freemasonry, he said these exact words, which were also repeated in an article about King George VI, published in 2005 by "Masonic Quarterly," the then official journal of the United Grand Lodge of England:

[...] I have, since my initiation in 1919, been greatly interested in my association with Freemasonry. My work as a Provincial Grand Master for over thirteen years and in other directions gave me real pleasure and I was sorry when it became necessary for me to cease my activities. In this work the Queen also, to whose family connection with the Craft you have alluded, has been interested, and has attended with me various gatherings. ¹⁷

In my family we find the British Royal family of Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, daughter of Claude Bowes-Lyon, the fourteenth Earl of Strathmore and Kinghorne and a second cousin of my grandfather Henry Lyon Young, a member of this illustrious family linked to the mysterious Glamis Castle in Angus Scotland, the subject of many legends and disturbing truths. Lady Glamis for example, was accused of witchcraft and burnt at the stake on Castle Hill in Edinburgh on December 3rd 1540, and this family of Celtic origin apparently made rituals dedicated to Lucifer, the “Morning Star” every Friday. In my family tree are links to the Knights Templars and later Freemasonry, as well as being figures of primary importance in the development of the Scottish Templar legacy. King Robert I (1274 –1329), popularly known as Robert the Bruce, gave protection to survivors of the Knights Templar that fled after the beginning of their persecution by King Philip IV of France; who desired to obtain their wealth, and ordered Pope Clement V to persecute them and extract confessions in a manner nothing short of cruel. Their infamous trials ushered in after the Pastoralis Praeeminentiae, ordered the arrest of the Templars throughout Christendom, thus following a plan concocted in secret since 1305, for the total elimination of the Templar Order. This was a plan that secretly involved the Knights of Malta, who inherited all the churches and land of the Templars after their final dissolution between 1312 and 1314. It was at this time that King Robert I of Scotland established, with the survivors of the Templars, a new order, the Order of the Knights of St. Andrew of Scotland during the Battle of Bannockburn (23-24 June, 1314).

17 See. John Hamil, “The King and the Craft” article in “Masonic Quarterly Magazine,” (n° 14 / July 2005), p. 9.

The Italian Masonic historian Vincenzo Soro writes:

They fled to Scotland where they helped King Robert Bruce win the great battle of Bannockburn, who in gratitude established exclusively for them on the day of St. John the Summer (June 24) of 1314, a special knighthood order named after St. Andrew patron of Scotland, and gave this order functions and privileges of Great Chapter of the famous and venerable Mother-Lodge of Killwinning, reserving the teaching for himself and His successors. According to another version, the Order of the Knights of St. Andrew of Scotland was established as early as the twelfth century by King David I and was attached to the Mother Lodge of “Killwinning” when the Templar refugees arrived in Scotland, which I refuge, teaching its members their secret doctrine is rather those who want to see in this Order the primitive form of the Royal Order of the Thistle Equestrian Order still exists in England but not front 1440. ¹⁸

John Yarker writes in “Arcane Schools” (1909): “ The Chevalier Ramsay, in his Paris Oration of 1737, states that James, Lord Steward of Scotland, in 1286 held a Lodge at Kilwinning and initiated the Earls of Gloucester and Ulster into Freemasonry.” In his History of Scotland, Tytler states that these two Earls were present at a meeting of the adherents of Robert Bruce at Turnbury Castle, that is located 30 miles west of Kilwinning Abbey, where they devised plans for the vindication of his claim to the Scottish throne. The Order of the Thistle, better known in English as The Most Ancient and Most Noble Order of the Thistle, remains the main Scottish chivalric order, and the second in the UK for dignity (after the Garter). Also interesting is the fact that my maternal grandmother, Anne Cumming, also known as Felicity Mason, was a descendant of John Comyn, Earl of Buchan, an important member of the Clan Comyn (another name for the clan and family Cumming).

He was one of the main opponents of Robert the Bruce during the Civil War, in parallel to the Wars of Scottish Independence. He was brutally murdered by Bruce on February 10, 1306 in a Church in Dumfries, as Michael Baigent (1948-2013) and Richard Leigh (1943-2007) wrote in their brilliant essay on the origins and history of Freemasonry entitled, “The Temple and the Lodge.” In this book we find a very detailed account, of some of my ancestors from the Scottish branch of the family in relation to the Templars, and Freemasonry in Scotland. The Comyn family, which included the counties of Buchan and Monteith, was very old and could rival Bruce for power and prestige .

against satanism and disinformation

Bruce murdered his opponent. John Comyn, who was pierced with a knife in front of the main altar and left to bleed to death on the stone floor of the church. ¹⁹ According to various reports he did not die immediately, as the monks attempted to heal his wounds, but when

Robert the Bruce learned about this he went back and eventually finished him off in front of the altar.²⁰

The Clan Comyn,²¹ and the son of John, rallied for revenge with the English in Bannockburn, but he was murdered as well. Clan Comyn was then stripped of all their belongings, which were given to Clan Macpherson, close to Robert Bruce. Despite this, Comyn had a very important role in the wars for Scottish Independence, and were instrumental in winning the Battle of Roslin in 1303, but from that moment, for them began, an inexorable decline.

The Comyn family re-emerged centuries later in England as wealthy bourgeois entrepreneurs, and thanks to the marriage of my great-grandfather, tied themselves to the owners of the most prestigious brewery in Manchester. The Groves were known Freemasons and members of various Chivalric orders. In short, a good match for this family in decline with no financial resources. Going back to Scotland in 1329, King Robert the Bruce died and was succeeded by his nephew Robert II, founder of the historic house of Stuart connected later to the Jesuits and inspiration for the Knights Templar Masonic revival instigated by Chevalier Andrew Michael Ramsay (1686-1743) born in Ayre, Scotland, into a family of ancient Scottish nobility and a tutor of Charles Edward Stuart, also known as Bonnie Prince Charlie. The birth of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite is traditionally linked to the figure of Chevalier Ramsay, who studied theology in Glasgow, and continued his studies in Edinburgh, then serving in the British Army of the Netherlands. At the age of 24, he met François Fénelon Archbishop of Cambrai, who influenced him the rest of his life. After spending five years under his teachings, he converted to Catholicism, and after Cambrai's death, became his spiritual heir. In 1723, he wrote the book, Life of Fénelon which was widely dispersed, and his most important literary work, Travels of Cyrus, was published in London in 1727, that made him one of the most famous French writers of that time. At this point he was elected member of the Royal Society of Sciences of London, and the University of Oxford awarded him an honorary degree. Ramsay's initiation into Freemasonry took place in London in the Lodge "The Horn" in Westminster March 17, 1730, but his first contact with Freemasonry was in Rome in 1724. He was tutor to the son of the “Old Pretender” to the throne of England, James Francis Edward Stuart (known also as James III of England and Ireland and James VII of Scotland), in the Lodge Gormogoni, founded by Wharton. He was committed to Freemasonry and he dedicated all of his energy to it. In Paris, he joined the Lodge “Saint Thomas,” the first French Lodge, founded in 1725 by English Freemasons, Catholic and Stewart supporters. In this Lodge, in December 1736, at the initiation ceremony, he delivered an early version of the famous “Speech” on Templar and Freemasonry that was presented on the 21st of March 1737, in his capacity as Grand Orator to the General Assembly of the Lodges of Paris, where the Grand Master was Charles Radclyffe. The “Speech” can be considered the paper which intended to transform the conception of Freemasonry, in an ambitious plan of reconciliation with the monarchy and the institution of the Catholic Church.

On March 20, 1737 he presented a preview of his future speech to Cardinal Andre Hercule de Fleury, the first minister of Louis XV, but it was never read because the General Assembly of the Lodges was postponed. It would be then published for the first time the following year in Paris, in 1741. His vision of the origins of Freemasonry is more “noble” and adventurous, it does not come from corporations of stonemasons, but from the Crusades, at the time of Godfrey of Bouillon, when in the basement of the Temple of Jerusalem were found, traces of this ancient institution.²² In short, Ramsay became an ideal subject for this project secretly promoted by the Jesuits, to favor the rise of certain high degrees in what would transform shortly afterward, the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite with a clear link to Scotland, but in reality, born in France.

The mysterious “Norwegian politician” any are familiar with my exposure work, through a series of videos, interviews and Internet revelations. Some of the articles and videos found on the internet about me are true, while others have been invented by the enemy to discredit me. My first big public exposure occurred in 2008, with the now famous interview I did for Project Camelot, while I was still living in Oslo. An interview seen over the years by millions of people around the world, which became an Internet classic in conspiracy circles. However, it was filmed in one of the most difficult periods of my life, at the end of my stay in Norway, where I lived for many years, until I clashed with the Satanic interests there. My life since mid-2003, after the beginning of my conflict with the Ordo Templi Orientis, and Scandinavian Freemasonry, became exceedingly worse, as described in the previous volume. I might add that many problems were caused by my close collaboration with the Rus sian Federation, and some of its most senior representatives, which eventually led to the problems I had in London, in Kirby Lodge 2818. This was with my Masonic mentor Julian Reese, ²³ Past Worshipful Master of the Pilgrim Lodge 238, ²⁴ the only lodge in London that works their rituals in German. In its long history they even initiated Theodor Reuss, co-founder of the O.T.O. and many other spies, occultists and Illuminati of the English and German world. Julian Reese for example, worked for British Intelligence in Germany during the Cold War, and hates the Russians, and with the help of the O.T.O., threw me out of Kirby lodge in London, apparently jealous of my position. What I stated above is still in the archives of the United Grand Lodge of England, including the fact that I was using Russian agents to threaten O.T.O. Satanists in Norway, when they threatened to kill me shortly after the conclusion of my investigation on the O.T.O. infiltration of the S.R.I.A., another subject I discuss in detail in Volume I. However, the situation became much worse for me in the summer of 2008, after revealing to the world the alleged identity of the mysterious "Norwegian politician," who was planting disinformation about the actual use of underground bases in Norway. In recent news it has been revealed that these same underground bases were used during the Cold War by the United States, and are being restocked with American tanks and ammunition because of current tensions with Russia. This same “politician” desired to use Project Camelot, aka Kerry Cassidy and Bill Ryan to amplify his lies. The chaotic scenario during that time, resulted eventually in the separation of the duo. Kerry Lynn Cassidy and Bill Ryan officially split in April 2010, over an incident in which Bill outed two whistleblowers who, he considered, were gi v

ing false and misleading information. ²⁵

Kerry Cassidy later spoke about her professional split from Ryan in an open letter (no longer available online), published originally on the Project Camelot blog.

This extract from the letter explains her version of the events, involving the Illuminati:

At the same time, I want to state here that the recent statements of Bill Ryan with regard to Illuminati takeover of Camelot are not only completely unfounded but a subterfuge to cover gross errors in judgment that led him to cast 2 whistleblowers to the dogs... in severe disregard of his pledge to uphold the mission of Camelot and in violation of all that Project Camelot claims to stand for. After repeated requests to Bill Ryan that he reconsider his position and views, I was left with no recourse but to publish this statement. While he will needlessly say, go to great lengths to show the world that one was an unbalanced hoaxer and the other is, he believes, acting as an agent of the Illuminati in a dark plot to take down Camelot, neither is true. Camelot is operating as before with the exception that we have reached the point where working together has become impossible due to our differences in views and interpretations of what it means to have integrity.

Sincerely,
Kerry Lynn Cassidy Co-Founder, Project Camelot

The events surrounding the “Norwegian Politician,” helped me to understand Project Camelot had been compromised by a number of Intelligence agencies interested in stopping them, including the Norwegian PST and the mysterious Surveillance Detection Unit (SDU), a sort of Norwegian GLADIO operation controlled by U.S. Intelligence. The real name of the “Norwegian politician” was Khaqan Khan (FIG. 48) and he was actually working undercover for the Norwegian Police Security Service (Politiets Sikkerhetstjeneste or PST). Something comparable to the British MI5, it is the agency responsible for security and counter-intelligence in the UK. ²⁶ The Norwegian version of the British counterpart is of course unique, but not always as efficient. The PST mixes in their structure Nazi Aryan superiority, typical of most of its Norwegian agents, and the conservative way of the Neo-Templar Masonic Order of the Norwegian Freemasons who practice the Swedish Rite of Freemasonry.

They are the ideal robots for Norway’s Security Service, ruled at the top by the Intel

The PST is described in the following way: “The task of the

The so-called “Norwegian politician,” Khaqan Khan, who sent Project Camelot disinformation about a variety of subjects, was neither “Norwegian,” as he was of Pakistani origins, or a high level “politician.” In truth he was a PST undercover agent, working in a minor political role to cover up his Intelligence activities on behalf of the government within the Muslim community in Oslo. My exposure to his real role for the PST, eventually brought me to my second and last arrest in Norway on July 22 of 2008, thanks to the corrupt Norwegian authorities, who are still secretly protecting Satanists and Islamists like Khaqan Khan, who had ties with the Pakistan Intelligence Services (PIC). The Pakistani Intelligence was one of the key players in 9/11, and is specialized in Islamic false flag attacks on behalf of the New World Order. I met Pakistani operatives during my life and know what I am talking about.

Khaqan Khan’s role demonstrates the Nazi methodology and barbaric ways implemented against me by the Security Police in Norway, typical of the worst Orwellian scenario. They work side by side with Islamists and Satanists, protecting and harboring Islamic terrorists like Mullah Krekar (now under arrest), who I have investigated in reference to his vast terrorist/mercenary network, that includes thousands of affiliates worldwide, and is now linked to ISIS/Daesh. I was able to reveal to the world many of Norway’s darkest secrets on the Internet, including the truth about their underground bases, the Satanic activities of its elite and politicians, and in the end, revealing also the truth about their so-called “moderate” Muslim community. I revealed the identity of their disinfo agent Khaqan Khan, who was dedicating his time on the Internet to sabotage the “Truth Movement” on behalf of the Norwegian PST, directed at the time by the then Prime Minister Jens Stoltenberg (a Satanist)—who is currently the Secretary General of NATO, (FIG. 49) and his friend Jørn Holme. (FIG. 50)

Khaqan Khan’s disinformation campaign was issued by the PST to cover the truth on the existence of mysterious underground bases in Norway, which undoubtedly exist, and are used for various secret purposes by the Norwegian elite, and their military tha t

stockpile huge quantities of gold, and also conduct secret experiments. Khaqan Khan was therefore a skilled disinfo agent using his alleged political activities and ties to the elite to make himself seem more credible. At that time, I was married for a very short time, to a woman who turned out to be a useful tool in service of the Norwegian elite, she is now called Fatma Betül Sarayli who is also, unfortunately, the mother of my son Isak. She was undoubtedly part of a plot used by the Norwegian elite to stop my online Confessions which began back in 2006. Fatma even confessed to this in a SMS message sent after she left, saying she was now looking forward to working with people like Giorgio Hugo Balestrieri and Ezio Giunchiglia (both Monte Carlo Lodge members). Fatma was also politically a member in the same party as Khaqan Khan, the Socialist Left Party (Norwegian: Sosialistisk Venstreparti, Northern Sami: Sosialistalas Gurutbellodat),²⁸ which is a democratic socialist political party leaning towards left wing extremism with close ties to Islam. Inside SV, there is a dangerous mix of left wing native Norwegians, and new Muslim social climbers, recently arriving in the country as immigrants or supposed “refugees.” This is the ideal breeding ground for recruiting double agents, spies and Islamic puppets serving the New World Order. These people aspire to “integrate,” however, for many Muslims, the so-called “integration” and their efforts to promote “multiculturalism” and tolerance wind up in failure, with many of them turning to radicalization, and in the worst case scenario, becoming recruits for Islamic terrorist organizations like ISIS/Daesh.

In this mix is the involvement of the Jesuits, with their hypocritical support for so-called “moderate Islam.” In reality moderate Islam doesn’t exist, because Islam, just as Christianity or Judaism, is in the hands of religious leaders that are serving the New World Order agenda. For this reason, the Islamic Wahhabi elite controls and sponsors Islamic extremism on behalf of the New World Order as radicalization of Islamic citizens is part of the plan, using “moderate” Islam in the West, as an unstoppable trojan horse promoted by strong anti-Christian forces.

Before this difficult time, the Norwegian Government locked me up more than once, in a mental health facility, which occurred after my exposure of the Ordo Templi Orientis, in hopes that the Psychoactive drugs I was forced to take, would silence me forever. This persecution disguised as three different Sanitary Treatments, was forced on me by the PST, in a similar manner to what was done in the old Soviet Union for the most feared political dissidents. My Internet revelations, which began in 2006 with my online Confessions, brought me to an instant upgrade in March 2008, which transformed me from a mad “bipolar” type, into a dangerous “anti-government” spy. All accusations against me were dropped in February 2010, and was never fully explained by the Norwegian authorities.

In the early months of 2008, I made my first attempt to contact the mysterious “Norwegian politician” from Project Camelot known at the time as Zarcov. My friend Atle, who belonged to the Northern Resistance organization, a Scandinavian movement of online activists based in Norway, warned me there was something strange going on in this mail which includes a response by the Project Camelot duo.

Hi again Leo.

I contacted the Project Camelot website regarding our mysterious friend Zarcov and his email. This was all new to them, and this is the email they sent me: “Hi, Atle:

Thanks for your message. That’s very interesting! But no, that message you received was not from us, and we do not know and have never heard of anyone calling themselves Zarcov. So all this is a mystery here. We have NOT heard from our Norwegian Source that he wants to meet Leo Zagami—in fact, as best I know and can remember, Leo Zagami was never discussed between us and him, except that our source did mention him once in an e-mail. So he does know about him. Can you help us make contact with Zarcov? That might be important. We’d be happy to work together with you about this.

Best wishes, Bill and Kerry”

So it seems there is something going on here. Probably nothing to worry about but suspicious it is. “Zarcov” used this email address: fsb000@hotmail.com Anyway, if you want to get in contact with this supposed Norwegian politician I recommend you contact Bill and Kerry at Project Camelot.

Hope your doing fine Leo :)
Best regards, Atle

Three days after my forced 24 hour detention in a cold Norwegian prison cell where I wasn't even given a blanket, on March 4th and 5th, the "Norwegian politician" suddenly appeared. In the meantime, the Norwegian police had returned to my house during my absence to confiscate all my computers, mobile phones and other important documents. Norway is a country that often claims to be an honest and just country, but they are instead slaves of the worst "Police State" in the world. I found myself alone against giants of the Norwegian establishment, mainly for my revelations made earlier through my website "Confessions of an Illuminati," which was considered a danger to the internal security of the country. On several occasions between 2006 and 2008 they tried to make me desist in my mission, once even sending one of the brothers of my ex-wife, a young Muslim police officer, who was eager to enter the Norwegian PST. He appeared at my house and tried to convince me to quit my online disclosure project. This was three months before my ex-wife Fatma left, on Feb. 23, 2008. My ex-wife's Islamist "Master" is the influential Turkish Mus lim cleric and CIA agent Fethullah Gulen, which as I have revealed in Volume I, lives in the USA, and is a puppet of the Jesuits, and the leader of a dangerous terrorist organization secretly controlled by the CIA. In any case this whole situation caused me a lot of stress because I was constantly threatened by e-mail, phone and even on the streets of Norway by the local Muslim community. I received false allegations of violence by my ex-wife, which obviously, being false, were never proven in court or anywhere else, but were used at the time by her, to insure the custody of my son to her.

On the Internet during that period, they even wrote false accusations stating that Fatma had accused me of pedophilia, a completely false allegation never even mentioned by my ex-wife, but that's the kind of disinformation they were trying to spread after my first revelations to Project Camelot. The powerful enemies I gained in Norway, that included the Ordo Templi Orientis and the Order of Norwegian Freemasons, removed me from their country. During this time, news surfaced in mainstream media about Norway's immense underground base used for the conservation and collection of seeds, constructed in order to preserve samples of almost all species of seeds in the world.

It is called The Svalbard Global Seed Vault and is found in the depths of the Arctic Mountain, located on the Norwegian island of Spitsbergen, near the town of Longyearbyen in the remote Arctic Svalbard archipelago, about 1,300 kilometres from the North Pole. The Seed Vault is sponsored by none other than Bill Gates and the Rockefeller Foundation, two giants of the New World Order. In the first email I received from Khaqan Khan, immediately after my first Norwegian arrest in March 2008, he was obviously testing me, with improbable phrases like "There are 18,000 Freemasons in Norway, and we need to catch them," or "Hope you had a nice birthday on the 5th of March, as I know you did not because of the PST." I wish to express to Jens Stoltenberg, now Secretary General of NATO, and his faithful puppet Jørn Holme, as well as Janne Kristiansen, (FIG. 51) who succeeded Holme in the leadership of the PST until 2012, that they are criminals of the worst kind should be brought to justice for their crimes against humanity. Janne Kristiansen had to eventually resign for a scandal that involved Norwegian bonds and military Intelligence, called the E Service, with Pakistan during a parliamentary report.

"The E service has its representatives in these countries, so we cooperate via the E service about this country." ²⁹

Interestingly enough, Khaqan Khan, a Pakistani naturalized Norwegian, had worked in the past as a liaison officer with the Pakistani Intelligence on behalf of Janne Kristiansen, and some of his activities in Norway included working with their infamous Pakistani ²⁹ See.

crime gangs, the A-Gjengen and B-Gjengen run by criminal elements within Oslo's immigrant Pakistani community operating in close contact with the Surveillance Detection Unit (SDU).

This was the first mail I ever received by Khaqan Khan, the Norwegian Politician collaborating with Project Camelot on the 8th of March, 2008:

Hello MR Zagami,

I just heard about your arrest by the PST secret police in Norway on the net.

I to was arrested by the PST when we where going to meet Bill and Kerry in Oslo on the 16 and 17 of February. They did hold me for 7 days and told me that if I was going to talk about Illuminati, Planet X, and underground bases, they would take my children away from me and my wife would be jailed. So I had no means of meeting you or Bill and Kerry on that date, so they gave me your email as you can see from their letter. We have to get inside the Masonic lodges and only you can help doing so. Can you? I am getting monitored by the PST in Norway too, so I hope you get my mail. You can post this E mail with your contacts if you want to. The Illuminati exposure must go on, I knew for a long time that your wife worked with the goverment of Norway, but had no means of telling you because I was monitored by the PST.

We should meet very soon my friend. Your wife is from SV and I am to from the same party (DO NOT POST THIS LINE IN when you give to others on the net this mail thank you) Its all just a cover-up for what is to come. There are 18,000 Freemasons in Norway that we have to expose. The illuminati are evil and they support evil as all the Freemasons do. I think you say Khudafis in Arabic to friends, so I do the same. Hope you had a nice bithday on the 5th of March, as I know you didn't because of the PST. I had a hard time in jail when they put me in! We are brothers Me and You. All Masons in Norway are judges, military, police, lawyers they are minions of the NOW.

Kind regards
Khaqan Khan

Dear Khaqan:

We both wish you well in everything you are doing. We fully understand that you were unable to meet with us. We hope that you are safe and well. Please let us know if you can. Remember that our fax number is on the contact page of our site (001 805-435-2021). We're just posted this update on our What's New page: http://projectcamelot.org/whats_new.html If you can't access our site, we've copied the update below. Leo Zagami would welcome contact with you. He is a very good man. His e-mail address is leoyoung1999@yahoo.com. May we give him your contact details? We will NOT do this without your permission. Here's our update below... Title: Hello Leo from the Norwegian Politician
Thursday, 13 March, 2008 23:36
From: Khaqan Khan <fsb000@hotmail.com>
To: Leo Zagami leoyoungxxx@xxxx.com

Hello Mr Leo, I got your message from my wife. You have to be careful when you contact me on my mobiles or my number. I have 8 mobile phones and all of them are under surveillance by the PST police secret task force in Norway. I too was arrested by the PST when Bill and Kerry was in Norway meeting with you on the 16 or 17. I wish I could come and meet you but as you know I was arrested.

And they are still watching me and my wife and kid, so I know of the dangers you are talking about.

I am real and I am your friend. As you can see from the pictures I am in the SV party to and you can see that SV's leader Kristin Halvorsen is very fond of me and my politics. She tends to have me along with her and with all the other politicians too, as you can see from the pics, who I am now because I wanted you to know you must trust me. This email is monitored by the PST and I will get in trouble for posting to you as the PST will warn me again for contacting you. Trust me I am on your side my friend. Do not send the pictures to others or contact any people about me, the PST will know that I have contacted you and they dont want me to do so because you are an ex Illuminati and a danger to Norway. I will get to jail because of this they have warned me about this before.

kind regards your friend,
Khaqan Khan

Khaqan was never a friend to me, he is the classic spy, monitoring me, on behalf of his powerful friends of the Norwegian elite, (FIG. 52) as the following photos will demonstrate. I would like to thank my friends, <http://www.nyhetsspeilet.no> and Norwegian journalist Hans Gaarder. Hans was very close to me during my last period in Norway; risking arrest, during my own arrest by the PST on July 22, 2008, that led to an indictment for espionage by the PST and a long interrogation by both the police and the PST.

Illuminati is a Greek word meaning Illumination; a name given to those who submitted to Christian baptism. Those that were baptized were called "Illuminati" or Illuminated / Enlightened Ones by the Ante-Nicene clergy, because those who had been baptized into the Apostolic faith, had an enlightened understanding. The understanding of the masses on the Illuminati, is that they are plotting to take over the world since the time of its creation. That's because most people associate the term "Illuminati" with the dark side of the mystery schools, and their complex network of secret societies playing constant conspiracy games on mankind, so they are also right in their assertion. There is a good side to the Illuminati, and their wish is to spread knowledge, like many prophets of our time. Unfortunately, the side of the Illuminati manifesting upon humanity in this day and age try to control such knowledge, or to gain power and to spread lies, like Khaqan Khan. I sincerely hope that by showing to the world the true identity of this dangerous liar and agent of the dark side of the Illuminati, I have helped you to understand a bit better the real intentions of these evil manipulators

leged Ice age was announced, that could begin in 2030, when solar activity will fall by 60 percent during the 2030s, to conditions last seen during the Maunder Minimum of 1645-1715. ³⁰ And if that is not enough, TIME reported that a team of Ukrainian astronomers have discovered a massive asteroid, 2013 TV135, that's on track to hit Earth on Aug. 26, 2032. ³¹ Maybe if we are lucky we can defeat these criminals of the New World Order, before they find refuge underground in one of their many secret bases built around the world, for what seems like an incoming "Apocalypse."

During a long series of interviews created in partnership with respected American investigative journalist Greg Szymanski ten years ago (2006-2007), that aired on the Genesis Communication Network, I spoke about a huge base located under Oslo, constructed for over 2,000 people. This was information I received from local insiders, prior to Khan's appearance. It is confirmed that these bunkers really exist, and that even neighboring Sweden possesses them in abundance. They can move large parts of the population, at any time, and preserve their huge gold reserves. In Sweden, they have been camouflaged as geological repositories, excavated deep within a stable geologic environment. Project Camelot wrote the following note about the ulterior revelations received by various sources on the underground bases after Khaqan Khan's letter was published:

Many friends and correspondents in Norway and Sweden have been in touch, some offering intriguing details. To many of them, this information was not new and confirmed what they had known from other sources. We received specific confirmation from two scientists and one ex-Intelligence source that these facilities exist (and that both Sweden and Switzerland have the facilities to take their entire population underground if need be). A number have asked to be put in touch with the politician who wrote to us. ³²

Now that we know how the elite plan to escape, thanks to its secret bases, I would like to speak further about the incidents that occurred during the summer of 2008, when I returned to Norway after my first arrest, hoping to receive justice and to see my son again. My Norwegian journalist friend, Hans Gaarder was present during my arrest on July 22nd , 2008, exactly three years before the terrorist attacks of Anders Breivik, that I have written about at length in the first volume of my Confessions. ³³ The authorities believe at least officially, that Anders Behring Breivik was acting alone that day, dressed as a policeman, and he was indicted for the two terrorist attacks. The young survivors of the massacre on the island of Utøya, interviewed by the Norwegian newspaper VG, describe an additional killer, who was not wearing a police uniform, but a dive suit, and quickly vanished amid the chaos after the massacre. He apparently had a pistol in his right hand and a rifle on his back—I believe that there were two people who were shooting, says Alexander Stavdal. ³⁴

On this point it seems interesting that Anders himself, who posted an image on the Internet a few hours before the attacks, where he was dressed in a dive suit with an automatic weapon. The attacks of the 22 of July 2011 have “false flag” written all over it, and U.S. journalist and political analyst Webster Griffin Tarpley, in the days following the attacks in question, made these observations:

U.S. and NATO Intelligence have been shown to possess extraordinary capabilities inside Norway, many of which may be operating outside of the control of the Norwegian government. In early November 2010, the Oslo television channel TV2 exposed the existence of an extensive network of paid assets and informants of U.S. Intelligence recruited from the ranks of retired police and other officials. The ostensible goal of this program was the surveillance of Norwegians who were taking part in demonstrations and other activities critical of the United States and its policies. One of the Norwegians recruited was the former chief of the anti-terror section of the Oslo police. Although the goal was supposedly merely surveillance, it is possible to imagine some other and far more sinister activities that could be carried out by such a network of retired cops, including the identification and subversion of rotten apples on the active-duty police force. Some of the capabilities of a network of this type would not be totally alien to the sort of events that have just occurred in Norway.

The official name for the type of espionage cell which the United States was creating in Norway is Surveillance Detection Unit (SDU). The SDUs in turn operate within the framework of the Security Incident Management Analysis System (SIMAS). SIMAS is known to be used for spying and surveillance by U.S. Embassies not just in the Nordic bloc of Norway, Denmark, and Sweden, but worldwide. The terror events also raise the question of whether SIMAS has an operational dimension. Could this apparatus represent a modern version of the Cold War stay behind networks set up in all NATO countries and best-known under the name of the Italian branch, Gladio? ³⁵

On December 4, 2011, I received a request for help from the brother of one of the victims of the massacre on the island of Utøya and Oslo, seventeen-year-old Lejla Selaci. I would like to share it with you, to demonstrate the frustration of the families involved in this sad story, who do not believe that the official version of the events given by the Norwegian authorities, or the insanity of the murderer, initially believed to be suffering from paranoid schizophrenia, although he was later declared in a second opinion “sane and therefore criminally responsible.” ³⁶

This is an enquiry via e-mail sent to <http://www.leozagami.com/> From: Azem Selaci az-m_tba@xxxxxxxxxx Hi Leo, Breivik the Norwegian terrorist killed my sister, Lejla Selaci, 17 years old.

She was in a Norwegian Political Party. and a Leader of AUF. Have you read about Breivik lately? They're saying he is a paranoid schizofren and a psychopath. That's only bullshit! I want you to help me with this, I KNOW THE NORWEGIAN GOVERNMENT is behind this! Breivik was also a Freemason, he started as a 15 year old kid. PLEASE HELP Mr. Zagami I BEG YOU, with your knowledge I can defeat these bastards! Love and peace, 1.

Answer of the author from the pages of this book only:
Love and Peace to you, my dear Azem,

I hope that one day the soul of your sister and the other victims may finally rest in peace and for this reason I pray that the truth of what happened is eventually revealed to you and your family as well as the others involved, so that Norway will one day find the serenity of the past, combined with a greater consciousness about the evil that surrounds us today. So let's pray for a truer analysis of the causes of this useless massacre, not only the material causes, but also the spiritual ones, behind this evil and cowardly act.

I am regret that I could not send Mr. Selaci the above message via email. Unfortunately on the 22nd of July 2008, I was forced to sign a document authorizing the PST to control and monitor my official email address, and for this reason I did not want to contact him via email. I was forced to sign this document with the threat of a longer period of detention, so I prefer to not involved myself with Norwegian citizens. I would like to add, that the AUF Labour Party Youth Movement, the victims of the Utoya Island massacre, were devoted promoters of the Israel Boycott campaign, and two days before, AUF's leader Eskill Pedersen, gave an interview to Dagbladet, Norway's second largest tabloid newspaper, in which he unveiled what he thinks of Israel. Pederson went on to say: "The peace process goes nowhere, and though the whole world expects Israel to comply, they do not. We in the Labour Youth will have a unilateral economic embargo of Israel from the Norwegian side." ³⁷ Perhaps A good reason for Israel to retaliate. Breivik was a regular online poster on several Norwegian Internet sites, notably the blog; document.no, which is run by Hans Rustad, a Jew and extremely pro-Zionist, former left-wing journalist.

Golden Dawn and Supreme Magus of the S.R.I.A., wrote:

The former division included two branches, arithmetic and musical harmony; the latter was further subdivided into the consideration of magnitude at rest—geometry, and magnitude in motion—astronomy. The most striking peculiarities of his doctrines are dependent on the mathematical conceptions, numerical ideas and impersonations upon which his philosophy was founded. were supposed to be the principles of all Real Existences; and as Numbers are the primary constituents of Mathematical Quantities, and at the same time present many analogies to various realities, it was further inferred that the elements of Numbers were the elements of Realities. To Pythagoras himself, it is believed that the natives of Europe owe the first teaching of the properties of Numbers, of the principles of music and of physics; but there is evidence that he had visited Central Asia, and there had acquired the mathematical ideas which form the basis of his doctrine. The modes of thought introduced by Pythagoras, and followed by his successor Jamblicus and others, became known later on by the titles of the “Italian School,” or the “Doric School.”

The followers of Pythagoras delivered their knowledge to pupils, fitted by selection and by training to receive it, in secret; but to others by numerical and mathematical names and notions. Hence they called forms, numbers; a point, the monad; a line, the dyad; a superficies, the triad; and a solid, the tetrad.

1. Intuitive knowledge referred to the Monad type.
2. Reason and causation referred to the Dyad type.
3. Imagination (formorrupa) referred to the Triad type.

4. Sensation of material objects referred to the Tetrad type. ³⁸

Numbers are of great importance in the sealed labyrinth of the Illuminati sects, and in particular number eleven, which the English Freemason Aleister Crowley, the magician par excellence of the Illuminati, defined in his Liber NV sub XI as the key to all Rituals. This number I have discussed in Volume I, appears in the macabre ritual linked to the terrorist attacks of September 2001 in the USA, and the massacre in Utoya and Oslo:

9/11 (September 11) equals $1 + 1 + 9 = 11$

7/22 (July 22) equals $2 + 2 + 7 = 11$

And there is yet another occult link if we further analyze the date 22/07/11, focusing on the pair of numbers 22 and 11. The bomb planted by Anders Breivik in Oslo exploded at 3:26 pm, local time, and if we add $3 + 2 + 6$ it equals 11. On Norway's Utoya island when Breivik went on a shooting rampage there were 560 members of the AUF Labour Party Youth Movement $5 + 6 + 0 = 11$.

Why do all these eleven's keep popping up? The great nineteenth century Freemason and Illuminati William Wynn Westcott offers his take on number eleven in the book appropriately entitled, Numbers: Their Occult Power And Mystic Virtues (1890): This seems to have been the type of a number with an evil reputation among all peoples. The Kabalists contrasted it with the perfection of the Decad, and just as the Sephiroth number is the form of all good things, so eleven is the essence of all that is sinful, harmful and imperfect. With the Ten Sephiroth is contrasted the Eleven Averse Sephiroth, symbols of destruction, violence, defeat and death. On the oldest Tarot cards, the trump called the Tower struck by Lightning, number XVI, shows the Ten Divine Sephiroth on one side and the Eleven Averse Sephiroth on the other side; modern Tarot designs are very much debased.

John Heydon says that by it we know the bodies of Devils and their nature; the Jews understand it in Lilith, Adam's first wife, a she-devil, dangerous to women in confinements; hence they wrote on the walls: Adm Chvh Chvo Lilit, that is, "Adam, Eve, out of doors Lilith."

Jesus, in Matthew 12:43, plainly allows the doctrine that evil spirits may haunt fields, which Grotius says the Jews think; and their word Demon and Field are similar, being Shdim (fi e l d s) and Shdim (evil deities); the Siddim are mentioned in Psalm

106:37. It is called the “Number of Sins” and the “Penitent,” because it exceeds the number of Commandments and is less than twelve, which is the number of Grace and Perfection. But sometimes even eleven receives a favor from God, as in the case of the man who was called in the Eleventh Hour to the vineyard, who yet received the same pay as the others. ³⁹

There were several newspapers and online publications including “Reuters” and “Der Spiegel” who inserted the phrase “Twin attacks,” ⁴⁰ which immediately reminds us of the 9/11 attacks on the Twin Towers. This is called Occult Synchronicity, coordinated by the same group of people who are behind the 9/11 attacks. Numeric sequences are there to prove it, and thanks to Friday the 13th in Paris in 2015, or other terrorist attacks, an absolutely overwhelming reality of occult numbers emerge in front of our eyes. We must not be passive spectators, and take into account the occult value in these attacks. It comes as no surprise that Breivik was a Freemason. Another Mason who was involved in a similar shootout where there were many victims, was Thomas Hamilton, who perpetrated the Dunblane massacre in Scotland, in 1996. The Grand Lodge of Scotland, after all these years, is still trying to hide the evidence of his membership in this important and prestigious Masonic obedience. ⁴¹ Is this perhaps a reason to demonize all those honest people belonging to Freemasonry? These are only isolated cases, the fanatics are the most easy to manipulate. I consider myself a proud Freemason, but certain forms of extremism present in some types of Freemasonry, especially the Swedish Rite, which I have been struggling with for years because of the many irregularities I found in it, include the link of many of its Senior members that should be “Christians,” with Crowleyanity and the Ordo Templi Orientis.

Masonic authorities do nothing about it, because of supposed confidentiality and privacy issues, where they tolerate characters that go completely against Masonic principles. This is of course, when the lodges themselves are not perverted by demonic energies, and actually participate to the crimes in question. Certainly in the case of Anders Breivik, his Christian-fundamentalist views went very well in a “Christian’s only” Masonic context, as the Norwegian one, where the majority of members are like-minded and embrace Christian fundamentalism, all manipulated by the Jesuits. Breivik was expelled by the Grand Master of the Order of Freemasons of Norway later after the tragic attacks of July 22, 2011. Let’s not be deceived by the lies told after the attacks, as Breivik was a brainwashed puppet in the hands of Christian fundamentalists and Zionists. We now turn to Hans Gaarder (FIG. 53) and his direct testimony of the events that took place in Oslo, in 2008, exactly three years before the attacks of Anders Breivik. (FIG. 54)

Leo Zagami victim of Norwegian political abuse by Hans Gaarder

he morning after arriving in Oslo at the end of July 2008, Leo Zagami, his mother Jessica Lyon Zagami, his Norwegian lawyer Arne Berdal and the Norwegian journalist having written this article arrived at the Oslo courthouse some minutes before nine. After taking the elevator to the 8 floor they headed for the courtroom of the meeting. The lawyer was walking first, followed by Leo and his mother and the journalist behind. Halfway between the elevator and the courtroom, suddenly a large group of men pop up out of nowhere, and surround Leo. The only words pronounced are “arrest, PST.”

His hands are immediately handcuffed behind his back. Leo, who was mentally focused on the important meeting in the court regarding his right to be with his son at this moment, remained calm but displayed utter amazement and contempt for the brutal treatment by the emotion—and empathyless policemen. Zagami’s mother, who witnessed it all at close distance, was standing in shock and bewilderment, and started to cry as if she could eventually suffer a nervous breakdown, repeating the words over and over again: “I dont believe it! I dont believe it!”

Ten minutes later the handcuffs had been momentarily removed from Zagami, indicating that the arrest in reality was a setup. The only natural response for Zagami given the circumstances was to enter the courtroom and deliver a statement that the arrest had made it impossible to go ahead with the regular court meeting as planned, and that he felt humiliated by this arrest and was forced by these sad events in renouncing his case and the right to see his son Isak Rumi Zagami.

The “unholy” time and place of this unprovoked arrest gave the situation a bad smell of power abuse by Norwegian authorities, a Nemesis in Zagamis life. Seven policemen had taken part in the arrest, two of them were dressed like civilians just arriving from a gym, while the other five were uniformed robot-like creatures, one of which had been capable of asking Zagami “Where do you keep your hand grenade?” during the body visitation. A father being arrested within the very courthouse and just a few minutes before a crucial meeting regarding his right to maintain contact with his son is so appalling that it is hard to believe, not only for those who hear about it, but as well for those who witnessed how it happened. When the police had observed Zagami appearing in the courthouse, why couldn’t they at least keep quiet and wait outside until the court meeting had finished?

After Zagami had withdrawn the case in front of the Court under the extreme pressure of his arrest, he was handcuffed again and brought by the police to Grønland Police Station and had to wait in a cell for five hours before they started interrogating him. The interrogation consisted of two parts. The first with the PST—the Norwegian secret police—the second with the regular Norwegian Police.

The reason given for the first three hours of heavy interrogation by the PST was statements he had made in a conversation to a friend through Skype (published later on the Internet) where in a typical Italian act of bravado he not only had threatened to kill the Norwegian prime minister Jens Stoltenberg, but also had threatened to bring down the buildings of government and parliament in Norway, something he said out of anger after being notified in the end of May by a Norwegian politician called Khaqan Khan, that he will be arrested if he ever came back to Norway, something that actually happened on the 22nd of July 2008 confirming Leo's worst expectations. In addition to this, he had sent an email to the PST stating that they were a bunch of chickens, amateurs completely out of touch with what actually is going on in the world, and an object of contempt among the secret services and the Intelligence community around the world. If such a lousy half-joking provocation should provoke a response from the PST, wouldn't this be a proof that the insulting accusations of the email actually are valid?

Zagami explained to the interrogatory PST agents that he had not been serious about the death threats, that it's the Italian way of expressing strong emotions through strong words and that he had no means at his disposal that could not be capable of destroying the parliament and the government building of Norway nor any plan or gun or whatever to whack Jens Stoltenberg.

The PST also asked many questions to Leo regarding his Internet collaborators and research fellows and this dubious character called Khaqan Khan, a strange and dubious figure who made contact with Leo immediately after his previous arrest in March 2008. Khaqan Khan stated in his first e-mail to Leo he was his only friend in Norway even if he was collaborating with the PST, because his allegiance lies in any case with his membership in Freemasonry and Leo's Mastership. Unfortunately his membership in Freemasonry and his words turned out to be after a careful examination, only lies really, and possibly part of a clever set-up put together by Leo's ex-wife Fatma Süslü, and elements of the Muslim Norwegian community in retaliation for his new position as an apostate of the Muslim faith.

Apostasy in Islam (Arabic irtidad or riot) is commonly defined as the rejection of
against satanism and disinformation

Islam in word or deed by a person who has been a Muslim. The four major Sunni and the one major Shia Madh'hab (schools of Islamic jurisprudence) agree that a sane adult male apostate must be executed and obviously persecuted by the entire community if he rejects his faith in Islam, this seems also one of the main reasons why Leo Zagami is not allowed now to see his child any longer by his ex-wife Fatma and her family who are apparently very religious and follow all the way the strict rules of the Sharia laws governing apostasy. This is something very difficult for Westerners to understand, but a reality people should put into account when dealing with the Muslim tradition.

The second part of the interrogatory, and the first reason given by the authorities for the assaultive arrest of Zagami earlier in the morning, was that his ex-wife Fatma Süslü had reported to the police that Leo had been threatening her after he had left Norway earlier in 2008. As "proof" of this she had submitted five emails to the police that she had received during the last couple of months. The most remarkable fact regarding those email messages was that none of them had been sent by Leo. The other remarkability was that none of them had content that could be classified as threatening in any way. All the mail messages were from persons who had contacted Leo's ex-wife, proposing to act as intermediaries during the planning of Leo's upcoming trip to Norway, in order to facilitate the son seeing his father during the stay. These concerned individuals were also worried for the possibility of Fatma going to a Muslim country with Leo's son Isak in the summer, especially after Leo had already received threats for his apostasy of Islam in what is known in the Muslim faith as receiving a fatwa, a dangerous situation for Zagami that the Norwegian police finally didn't take lightly and seemed to understand very well. While confronting Zagami with this "evidence of threats" made by Fatma during the interrogation, the interrogating police officer had to put away one email printout after the other, while commenting embarrassed in low voice "this is not a threat" one time after the other, keeping his thoughts about the police officer who had prepared the case for the arrest to himself.

At half past seven in the afternoon, on the same day Zagami was released from police custody, after the two interrogations had been carried out. No charges had been made against him. Zagami's mother had visited the Italian Embassy after the initial shock of witnessing the brutal, provocative and, as it turned out, ill-founded arrest of her son. The embassy had contacted the police headquarters and asked about what was going on. During the interrogations an Italian translator and Zagami's lawyer had been present all the time. The emotional distress behind the aggressive stand of Zagami towards the prime minister of Norway, as the leading figure of the Norwegian authorities, were partly due to the abusive arrests he previously had suffered while in Norway and partly due to his inability to be with his son after the breakup of his marriage. If Zagami had wanted an excuse on behalf of the Norwegian authorities from the prime minister Stoltenberg before the latest arrest took place, such a claim does not appear less reasonable after the last incident in Norway.

(End of article by Hans Gaarder)

Final thoughts on the article by Hans. Once again I thank Hans for his testimony. A couple of weeks before the 22nd of July 2008, Hans reported about the historical meeting of the Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis in Nice, France. This was a turning point in the life of our Order, as Dr. Marco Paret and Ezio Giunchiglia opposed my return to the Monte Carlo Lodge, after I openly sided against the criminal activities of the New World Order. The meeting was held in the nearby Principality of Monaco, and the Nice gathering was a key event in the short history of the Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis, with had the participation of known French occultist and Illuminati, Jean Pierre Giudicelli. This event eventually led to the breakdown of the "Brothers" of the Masonic Executive Committee, and the Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis broke from the Monte Carlo Lodge. Strangely enough during the first stages of the events that took place in February, 2008 in Norway, the first thing my ex-wife was to give an official testimony to the Norwegian Police authorities, about my secret activities in the Monte Carlo Lodge of the P2. Only a government spy, or an informant, would do that.

This was immediately reported to me by my Norwegian lawyer, who called me on my mobile after being notified by the police about her testimony. The Norwegian police authorities however, never explained why they even took her testimony. Fatma had knowledge of a sealed envelope with all the names of the powerful Monte Carlo Lodge. This envelope, which I never opened was given to me by Giunchiglia to avoid the growing interest of the Monegasque authorities towards his “irregular” Masonic body, especially after the growing involvement of French military Intelligence operative Jean Pierre Giudicelli.

For a period after my first problems with the Norwegian authorities and the Ordo Templi Orientis, I gave this sealed envelope, and other top secret documents, that I later used in my Confessions series, to a shaman not affiliated of any Masonic activity; an unsuspecting character and a friend called Lars. He kept them safely in his possession for a couple of years, before I decided to return them to Ezio Giunchiglia in June 2006, at our last official gathering. This was in order to avoid any possible retaliation once I left the Monte Carlo lodge the following month, as tensions were building in the lodge and the outcome was almost certain.

At that point, I decided to officially decline such a responsibility, blaming it on the fact that two of my closest collaborators in Norway had received suspicious visits from the Norwegian police. No one, not even my ex-wife, knew about my decision to give back the sealed envelope. When the police and the PST searched my house for the mysterious sealed envelope during my forced absence, between the 4th and the 5th of March 2008, they must have been pretty disappointed to not find it. C’est la vie, I am not a fool, my dear PST idiots. The Monte Carlo Lodge though “irregular” was highly influential, although it was gradually disbanded, after my public revelations on them erupted online in 2006. The scandal led the powerful lodge, originally created by Count Licio Gelli and Ezio Giunchiglia in the late 1970s, to gradually phase out all its activities in the Principality of Monaco, which, in turn, established the “Regular” Grande Loge Nationale Régulière de la Principauté de Monaco, with the support of the United Grand Lodge of England called by

In a report for Sisse (at the time the civilian secret service until the Italian reform of 2007 transformed it into AISI), states that in 1982, at the top of the Lodge in Monte Carlo, along with now defunct Count Licio Gelli, there was a certain Enrico Frittoli, accountant, owner of an import-export company in the Principality and “man of confidence” to the international arms smuggler, Samuel Cummings, president of the Inter Arms in London.⁴³ He is in turn connected to Ezio Giunchiglia who was not mentioned in the Intelligence report because of his work for SISMI (the Italian military secret service)

vice reformed in 2007, now substituted by AISE). Journalist Gianni Barbacetto describes “The Committee” as “the usual cocktail of strong political, business and nobility” figures. The Monte Carlo lodge ended mainly because of my Confessions, just as the Golden Dawn ended because of Crowley’s writings. In this case, something new and hopefully a lot better was born out the ashes of the Masonic Executive Committee, as Freemasonry Today wrote: The consecration of a new Grand Lodge is a rare event and when such an occasion took place in Monaco it proved to be a day to remember.⁴⁴

The P2 Committee that wanted to conquer the world

n Papa, Mafya, Agca (Pope, Mafia, Agca), Ugur Mumcu, a prominent Turkish journalist wrote the following remarks about the P2 lodge in Monte Carlo: “Henry Kissinger is a member of the Monte Carlo lodge, which is the P2's 'board of directors,' also known as the Monte Carlo Committee. All the members of this lodge are Grand Masters and Masons of the 33rd degree." ⁴⁵ The former Mossad agent Victor Ostrovsky gave valuable testimony of the alliance between the P2 and Israel, or to be more specific, with Mossad in The Other Side of Deception, published in 1994 after his greatly controversial book, By Way of Deception. Ostrovsky wrote:

The ships would arrive at various Italian ports where the Italian secret services (SISMI) would handle the necessary document approval, verifying that the containers were in fact loaded with Italian agricultural products headed for Germany. A sign depicting Italian products was actually affixed to the truck. The manpower for the operation and the driver were supplied by a Mossad Italian ally, the right wing followers of a man named and a group, by then outlawed, called Propaganda Due, and a second group (a NATO offspring like the one in Belgium) named Gladio. ⁴⁶

So Licio Gelli, P2's last Worshipful Master connected to Gladio, and Mossad used his alliances, for arms deals with Italy in the 1980s, with the full approval of NATO. The July, 1981 issue of The Middle East International Journal, established that the P2 had close links with Israel, especially with Mossad, and that the Jewish community in Italy played an important role in this operation. In later years, Carlo de Benedetti, the second richest man in Italy, was discovered to have had a close relationship with the P2 Lodge, and also had very good contacts with the Jewish communities in Europe and the USA. That's why one of the main divisions of the P2 known as the Tirrenia group, is operated with Ezio Giunchiglia's supervision, from the city of Livorno, which has the largest Jewish community in Italy aside from Rome, and one of the most important ports. The foremost names that had contact with the P2 are Henry Kissinger, Edmond de Rothschild, and David Rockefeller. It is evident that people of great importance had a special relationship with the Monte Carlo Committee.

This Lodge was defined in its heyday, between the end of the 1970s and the '80s as one of the more exclusive Masonic circles in the world and the "Super Lodge of Monte Carlo," at least according to Nara Lazzerini, at one time a very close friend of the late Licio Gelli who stated in 1987: "Licio told me that Vittorio Emanuele of Savoy, Prince of Naples and Prince Rainier III were also part of the Lodge."

⁴⁷ When the Italian antiMafia parliamentary commission spoke in detail of the activities of P2 in hundreds of pages, a few references to the mysterious Committee of Monte Carlo also surfaced, officially confirming the existence of this secret group:

47 Gianni Barbacetto art. cit.

The Massonic Executive Committee (MEC) was founded in Monte Carlo before 1981, probably by the same Gelli. Between 1979 and 1980 they had been held in Montecatini and Livorno various Masonic meetings in which Gelli had been strongly opposed. At one of these meetings there was also Ezio Giunchiglia, nuclear expert, assigned to CAMEN (Center Atomic Military Nuclear Energy) provided of the NOS (Security Clearance), possessed only by people deemed reliable by NATO. It may be that the Committee of Monte Carlo was founded by opponents of Gelli, most notably William Rosati, to build a sort of counterpoint to P2. But it is possible that the Committee, founded at the initiative of Gelli, was then conducted by Rosati in a way not acceptable to the Worshipful Master. It remains unclear at this stage the role of Giunchiglia. The parliamentary commission of inquiry on the P2 reported him to the prosecutor in Rome, describing him as an element possibly involved in arms trafficking and connected with the secret services. Giunchiglia is close to Balestrieri, also a member of the MEC, involved in the trafficking of 200 Leopard tanks, and Elio Ciolini, involved in the disinformation campaign to confuse the investigation into the massacre of the Bologna station. After a bad heart attack happened to Rosati, the reins of the committee are taken by Giunchiglia; and through him to Gelli. Giunchiglia is always tied to the Worshipful Master and keeps in touch with him even during the period of his latitancy. ⁴⁸

A detailed description of the structure of the Masonic Executive Committee known also by the acronym MEC:

The MEC, divided into thirty departments, becomes the refuge for many adherents of the old P2. In front of the parliamentary committee, the former Grand Master of Freemasonry Lino Salvini, confirmed that in the period prior to the discovery of the lists, Gelli had in mind to affiliate the members of the P2 to another Grand Lodge abroad. It was the lawyer Federici, well-linked to P2, to disclose details of the operation.

The MEC was founded as a side organization by Gelli, who could send Monte Carlo Committee members their membership, maintaining secrecy, and the freedom to make public the names of others. It would appear the Committee of Monte Carlo marks the last stage of the strategy of Gelli. A strategy that aims to acquire positions of power, with the known method of infiltration of the institutions, the gradual evacuation of any democratic content in their concrete operation, the use of a network of privileged relations between influential men to enslave policy to the interests of a group of occult power.

What is new is that the strategy now takes into account the crisis of the political system, explicitly called into question in the memorandum entitled, "The Universal Freemasonry."

It should be noted one significant step:

The Executive Committee Masonic is not an alternative to the Masonic Lodges, but—on the contrary—their meeting point ... Keeping in mind the absolute indispensability of this medium, the Brother members of the Masonic Executive Committee must therefore study, analyze power in order to conquer it, exercise it, store

it, increase it and make it more balanced. We first of all want to build an assembly of people aware of their value. ... Not a man that makes of politics his landmark, but an individual who gives to his ego point of initiation, for the coherent development of human and existential conditions of collective existence. Masonic individualist cooperation will become a form of politics.

So it does not indicate the way most of the institutional reforms, as in the plan of Democratic Rebirth (Author's Note: Licio Gelli's original plan). No mention of the need to change the form of government or to impress a result, the conquest of power, which will be bent to the purpose specified by the Committee. A creeping "major reform"—change the sign of the institutions without affecting the shape.

Something similar happened in Italy in recent years.

What is most striking, in the aforementioned document of the Monte Carlo Committee, is the extraordinary similarity with the mafia method of infiltration in the institutions and parties. Step three, entitled as "Nonpoliticized" reads:

The Brother may be part of a "democratic" political party, but only for tactical reasons. Its true affiliation is to the Committee, whose directions must always take preference and priority over all others, whatever their origins. That is because he acts keeping in mind the truth and the welfare of all, with no respect for "political plot" as generally used. Politics as such is not part of its interests.

The analogy is especially in the superordination of the associative bond, criminal or occult that is over any other type of affiliation. And there is also the obligation of obedience to the orders of the leaders of the mafia, the "signs" of the Committee in the Decalogue of the MEC. These provisions are, true and proper rules of conduct that are the ones only recognized as such, with a binding force dwarfing the imperative law of the state:

Having viewed the elevation and the complexity of the task it will be appropriate for each member of the Executive Committee to intervene “immediately” on the Brother who commits something unethical for the Committee. This is to enable him not to deviate, or at least to ensure that the other Brothers can intervene promptly to rectify his mistake; a mistake that would harm “seriously” the action of the Body, as well as its credibility and reliability.

In the text, the words in quotes, have a kind of ominous message, and suggest the end of Michele Sindona, Roberto Calvi, and Mino Pecorelli. The intake of the mafia method is complete and final. ⁴⁹

(End of excerpts extracted from the official records of the Parliamentary Anti-Mafia Commission, March 9, 1993 – February 18, 1994)

In the mid-nineties I decided to become part of the Monte Carlo Lodge, and in 1999, when I joined, I felt that I was finally among the P2 elite, and there I could finally accomplish the secret mission given to me in 1993, by Prince Alliata, shortly after my initiation. He told me it was very important to give new direction to his ex-Brothers in the P2 after the end of the Cold War. From the beginning there was a strong desire to reform this important structure of the New World Order, that in turn coordinated, at least during those years, the various factions of so-called “irregular” Freemasonry (mostly of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite) around the world, including the Masonic High Council, the Mother High Council of the World of the Most Ancient and Honourable Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons. Before Alliata died, I was handed secret contracts and documents that could use for the establishment of a new order of "Illuminati," the Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis. It was founded in London and Monte Carlo in 1999, after I was officially initiated into the Masonic Executive Committee led by Ezio Giunchiglia.

My first encounter with Ezio Giunchiglia was in 1997, and was followed by another a couple of years later. It seemed to me that Giunchiglia wanted to distance himself from the late Licio Gelli. He even told me he had broken a chair on the head of Gelli during his last meeting at the P2 Lodge, and he did not want to have anything to do with him. Whether or not this way true, I immediately proposed to Ezio, Alliata's alternative Illuminati project that was to remain secret to the rest of the Masonic community until the official foundation date. In the period of 1993 and 1994, before dying, Prince Don Giovanni Alliata of Montereale better known as Gianfranco, kept this project secret from the eyes of the profane, and continued his Masonic/Knighthood Order chaired by his lieutenant at the time called Benedetto Miseria. (FIG. 55) Miseria was not made aware of the project I had been secretly proposed by the Prince, and to this day is the Sovereign Grand Commander of a minor but influential branch of Alliata's A.A.S.R. Supreme Council called Sovrano Ordine Reale D'Italia. In recent years there has been many splits and many claims to Alliata's Masonic lineage.

Among the different factions fighting to inherit Alliata legacy, besides the aforementioned Benedetto Miseria, and the previously mentioned Adolfo Alessandro Maria Polignano linked to the Order of the Illuminati Knights of Frank G. Rippel,⁵⁰ there is the dangerous Calabrese Freemason named Mattia Salvatore Maria Girdali. (FIG. 56) Girdali is the Grand Master of a pseudo-Masonic body, known as Grand Lodge of God-Knights of Light, and Sovereign Grand Commander of a Supreme Council of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, which claims to derive from Alliata's lineage.⁵¹ The latter is especially dangerous, as he is not only a fraud and a charlatan, with no real continuity with the Alliata lineage, but also an agent involved in the control and monitoring of the Italian Masonic scene on behalf of the Italian Intelligence services. In short, a spy of the New World Order, that for a few months in 2013, tried to enlist me in his project of espionage, offering in exchange the guidance of his Rite as Sovereign Grand Commander, knowing very well this will legitimate its own false claim to the Alliata lineage. The only people that can claim some degree of legitimacy in regards to Alliata's Masonic heritage, apart from myself, are: Alessandro Maria Polignano and more than anyone else, Benedetto Miseria.

In the 1970s, the CIA and the American Illuminati elite pushed for reunification of certain Masonic currents connected to the Piazza del Gesù tradition of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite. This complex situation led to an internal plot in which in the end Prince Alliata lost his historic headquarters in Piazza del Gesù, thanks to the unclear maneuvers of Francesco Bellantonio, later expelled by the Grand Orient of Italy in September 1975. Subsequently, the Prince and his loyalists in the years following the P2 scandal, which influenced the Prince, who nonetheless had been a member of this infamous lodge, went on to achieve far more modest surroundings for his new Masonic projects. The reason was the lack of U.S. funding for anti-communist operations at the end of the Cold War. Such a change did not permit the luxurious premises the Prince and his followers had at one time. In short, it came to the point where Benedetto Miseria, who still has most of the secret papers of Alliata (of course only the Masonic, not the Illuminati ones), was forced, after the chief prosecutor of Palmi, Agostino Cordova, began a nationwide Masonic witch-hunt—to organize his so-called lodge meetings—on a bus parked in a remote location of the Castelli Romani, a known area in the hills near Rome. An incredible story that was told to me by a former Carabinieri officer and 30° Freemason called Valerio Mannucci, who passed on to the more legitimate Grand Lodge of Italy of the A.F. & A.M. (Ancient Free and Accepted Masons) based at Palazzo Vitelleschi in Rome,⁵² where, by the way, many P2 members like Ezio Giunchiglia, wound up after the huge scandal regarding the Propaganda 2 lodge erupted at a worldwide level in the early 1980s. Manucci became later a Monte Carlo lodge member, before terminating all Masonic activities in 2009.

Going back to the late Prince Gianfranco Alliata, on May 11, 1994, Alliata, Benedetto Miseria, and others ended up in handcuffs, as you can still read in the archives of the Italian newspaper “Corriere della Sera,” in an article entitled: “Masonic plot: 4 arrests,” where the journalist states that a “breakthrough in the investigation began in Palmi by Cordova, now a prosecutor in Naples. In handcuffs Giovanni Alliata of Monreale, 73, Miseria Benedetto, Rasoli Alfredo and Salvemini Cosmo Sallustio.” Adding that “Alliata had already been involved with the P2 and Junio Borghese.”⁵³

Prince Junio Valerio Borghese was the architect of the December, 1970 failed Italian coup d'état planned for the night of the 7th or 8th of

December, 1970, and was one of my personal heroes when I was young. The same article continues by stating that Prince Alliata and his lodges, seem to have been involved in a possible coup project, that was orchestrated during the municipal elections in Rome, mentioning the presence of Carabinieri Colonel Antonio Pappalardo, who was nevertheless never investigated. Some say this coup project was supposed to join what later became known as the “Coup d’état of Sax Rubra.” In this operation, the participants to the coup were to direct an assault squad on the headquarters of RAI in Sax Rubra, after an act of destabilization, taking complete control of the Italian National Radio and TV center. ⁵⁴

I was there in those turbulent days in 1993/94 after my initiation, and yes there could have been a very different outcome for Italy and myself if things had gone the way they were originally planned by Prince Alliata. Italy is still far from being ready for a coup, and a possible dictatorship, even the more illuminated one. The same thing almost happened 20 years later, with the Italian Social Protest of 2013, which attempted to follow the consensus of the Italian people. During this uprising, dubbed by some journalists the “Pitchfork protests,” which I was directly involved, I encountered once again Colonel Antonio Pappalardo, one of the best friends of Prince Alliata, and one of the leaders of the “Pitchfork protest.” ⁵⁵

Returning to the events of 1994, a month after his arrest, on the 20th June 1994, during the summer solstice, Prince Gianfranco Alliata of Monreale, my initiator and first Masonic mentor, died at his home on Via Re Tancredi in Rome, where he had been “confined” from May 11th under house arrest. Alliata was a victim of the events at the end of the Cold War, and a true Prince.

In the online archives of the Corriere della Sera, we find a farewell article dedicated to the captive prince, entitled “The funeral of Alliata.

The farewell of the 'prisoner' Prince." Here is a brief excerpt:

Why inflict on an old man of 73, already in a clinic for emphysema, a dishonorable detention, even though in the walls of his house? The indictment for him, Cosimo Sallustio Salvemini, Alfredo Rasoli and Benedetto Miseria was of criminal association and the establishment of secret associations "aimed in interfering with the country's public life." While waving the Savoy flag on the coffin, flowers and medals were covering the coffin. In the front row next to the widow, Donna Rosanna de Chiarardi Candei, there was the brother of Prince Alliata, Don Fabrizio and his sister, Annamaria, with the daughter Dacia. Not far from them Prince Ruspoli. But the big black book placed next to the entrance of the church got numerous signatures, and not only the aristocracy writing on the blank pages their last farewell to Prince Alliata, many are the common names. ⁵⁶

After a series of unpleasant episodes, relating to my work and friendship with Chiara Sonnino, known as "the Bonnie of the Magliana gang," one of the leading Mossad agents in Rome, I finally realized that the reality around me was becoming too dangerous. Intelligence operatives, right wing subversive organizations, and organized crime, could get me in serious trouble sooner or later, as I still needed time to grasp the complex system presented to me by Prince Alliata after the initiation. In the end I decided to leave Italy for good and move to London after the summer of 1994, thanks to the advice given to me by two people so different from each other, at least in appearance, Chiara Sonnino and the late

Prince Alliata of Monreale. They both suggested to me a complete change of scenery and to move abroad so to devote at least part of my life to the “Leo Young” project, that I had successfully built in those years as a record producer and as a DJ, activities with great success for many years to come, after following their advice.⁵⁷

Chiara Sonnino, who helped me financially build my first Lodge, was a very influential Jewish mafia boss from the infamous Magliana Gang, belonging to one of the historical Jewish families of Trastevere and the Jewish Ghetto in Rome. She had worked for the Mossad and Gladio in the past, and fought in the famous Six Day War in 1967—a war fought between Israel, and three Arab states, (Egypt, Syria and Jordan), that resulted in a rapid and total Israeli victory, a lesson of strategy by the Israelis, which confirmed their military superiority and their will to protect the new nation.

Every year, on the important celebration of Jewish Passover, Chiara Sonnino received a letter with personal greetings from one of the leading strategists of the Vatican New World Order, the former Italian Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti (1919-2013), a key figure of the “First Republic.” This confirmed to me the strong link between Israel and the Vatican. The expression, “First Republic,” refers to the political system of the Italian Republic between 1946 and 1994, the year I decided to leave Italy. In April 1994, things were changing for everyone, not only Prince Alliata, and Mrs. Sonnino, who was also arrested like most of the key figures of the Magliana Gang.⁵⁸ It seemed like everyone I knew was suddenly being arrested as a result of the end of the old balance of power in place during the Cold War; and the situation was becoming dangerous. Chiara was arrested after a few months of latitancy, on unjust charges made against her by another well-known female character of the Magliana Gang. A certain Fabiola, manipulated by a foreign Intelligence agency that wanted to get hold of top secret Gladio documentation that Chiara Sonnino was protecting—including the list of all the Gladio members. Her arrest ended up on the front pages of all the Italian newspapers, as Chiara and the other protagonists, were linked to the huge drug trafficking of the Banda della Magliana.⁵⁹ Having said all this, you may be curious to know the history behind this criminal organization I have mentioned. Wikipedia describes the infamous Magliana Gang this way:

The Banda della Magliana (English translation: Magliana Gang) is an Italian criminal organization based in Rome, particularly active throughout the late 1970s until the early 1990s. Given by the media the name refers to the original neighborhood, the Magliana of most of its members. The Banda della Magliana was involved in criminal activities during the Italian years of lead (anni di piombo). The Italian justice tied it to other criminal organizations such as the Cosa Nostra, Camorra or 'Ndrangheta, but most importantly also to neofascist activists such as the Nuclei Armati Rivoluzionari (NAR), responsible for the 1980 Bologna massacre, the secret services (SISMI) and political figures such as Licio Gelli, grand-master of the Freemasonic lodge Propaganda Due (P2). Along with Gladio, the NATO clandestine anti-communist organization, P2 was involved in a strategy of tension during the years of lead, which included false flag terrorist attacks.

These ties, underground compared to their standard (i.e. “run-of-the-mill”) activities (drug dealing, horserace betting, money laundering, etc.), have led the Banda to be related to the political events of the conflict which divided Italy into two during the Cold War, and in particular to events such as the 1979 assassination of journalist Carmine Pecorelli; the 1978 murder of former Prime minister Aldo Moro, also leader of the Christian Democracy who was negotiating the historic compromise with the Italian Communist Party (PCI); the 1982 assassination attempt against Roberto Rosone, vice-president of Banco Ambrosiano; the “Banker of God” Roberto Calvi’s 1982 murder; and also the 1980 Bologna massacre. Finally, the mysterious disappearance of Emanuela Orlandi, a case peripherally linked to former Grey Wolves member Mehmet Ali Ağca's 1981 assassination attempt on Pope John Paul II, has also been related to the gang, though the Emanuela Orlandi case may not be connected to the "Grey Wolves," but may have been one of the "run-of-the-mill" Banda della Magliana criminal activities, the Orlandi kidnap designed specifically to persuade the legally immune Vatican Bank to restore inequitably retained funds to Banco Ambrosiano creditors. ⁶⁰

Years later, I met Chiara Sonnino by pure chance on the streets of Rome, in the summer of 2012, after almost twenty years had elapsed since the last time I saw her in 1994. I was in the Ostiense district, driving with my Japanese translator Hal Yamanouchi, when I noticed Chiara Sonnino in the street and called out to her. Immediately, after greeting me, she said that the judges that had her arrested in the mid 1990s were looking for her top secret lists of members from the Stay Behind network, known as Gladio. However, she confessed with a big smile that she managed to hide the list before being arrested, and she was able to make it disappear. So in the end, the powerful people she was protecting by not giving out the list, got her out of prison after only one year and a half. Chiara Sonnino, clear of all accusations, and protected by the Mossad, became a successful artist, but unfortunately after this strange synchronistic meeting, she was killed, brutally hit by a car while walking her two dogs. Apparently she had been revenged by the famous "Jewish Brigades" working for Mossad in Rome, but all this was kept secret from the media, because her murder would immediately alert the curiosity of the press if made public, as it related to the infamous Magliana Gang. The last words she told me when we met that day were "the people have a romantic idea of the Magliana Gang, they don't even imagine the truth, I would like to clear this out with you in a book." Unfortunately, that book will never be written, may she rest in peace.

Returning to 1994, the Cold War was over, Gladio had simmered down, and Italy soon would begin the Berlusconi era. It can be said that the time was right for my voluntary exile and a new life in London from September 1994, in the world capital of my two favorite M's, Music and Masonry.

I lived in London for eight years, in between my frequent trips around the world mainly to Switzerland, Russia and Scandinavia, I moved permanently to Norway in January 2003. They were fantastic years, where I devoted myself entirely to my passion for music, and at the same time the study of Freemasonry, esoterism and the occult, with considerable results, including a vast collection of initiations into a variety of Masonic Rites, secret societies and obscure sects of the Illuminati Network. I was invited to join the Ordo Templi Orientis, the Fraternitas Saturni, the Fraternitas Rosicruciana Antiqua (F.R.A.), creating for them the Aula Lucis Cagliostro in London, and there was my initiation in the Monte Carlo Lodge, where I immediately co-founded the Ordo I I luminatorum Universalis. This is not to forget my time in the Theosophical Society, and my brief involvement in the foundation of the Albion O.T.O., plus my Masonic “Regularization” in the United Grand Lodge of England, that coincided with my work for S.R.I.A. and the well-known anti-sectarian Freemason Robert A. Gilbert. Last but not least, I look back fondly at my time with the not so Regular Grand Lodge of England, Regular Grand Lodge of England, 2006. Let’s now focus on my work for the New World Order and their secret network after Alliatà’s initiation in 1993. I was used as an international observer and a messenger for the various lodges and chapters, transforming me into a “Merchant of Light” in the tradition shown in Sir Francis Bacon’s New Atlantis, a book which had been just reissued in Italy, by Freemason and P2 member, Silvio Berlusconi. ⁶¹

I liked being a noble traveler, an ancient tradition of the various sects of the Illuminati network, and very often I found myself involved in diplomatic and Intelligence business, so I used my cover as a DJ and record producer to move “with discretion and originality” as Ezio Giunchiglia used to say. He, in fact, admired my new and quite unusual, but very effective technique, to move in the spotlight and at the same time remain invisible to most of the Intelligence community worldwide. I must admit that I’ve always liked my DJ activity. I did my part as a genuine artist and it certainly was not only a guest appearance in the music scene as I left my mark in the most cutting-edge music.

The famous Italian DJ Claudio Coccoluto, who was one of my closest collaborators at the time, in one of his rare interviews in the English language for the Red Bull Academy in Rome, in the year 2004, stated publicly that I was known to music enthusiasts as DJ Leo Young, and was responsible for the influence of a certain type of music in London in the nineties. In those years various music stars related to my work, including the popular group Prodigy and DJ Harvey.⁶² Music was therefore not a secondary passion but became my job for almost two decades. At the apex of my career I would call "Cosmic," my Eclectic Sound was made up of a strange mix of soundtracks, electronic music, House, Afro, Jazz, and even New Wave, with a touch of Disco and Funk. Earlier on in the late 1980s, when I was considered the organizer of the first Italian Rave, I was one of the first promoters and DJs of Detroit Techno, introducing for the first time in Europe in the early 90s, legends like Underground Resistance and Juan Atkins.

Democritus wrote: "Much of what is perceived, is not perceived by us." And Dr. Norman F. Dixon, a British psychologist, author of Subliminal Perception: the Nature of a Controversy,⁶³ said in 1971 "It may be impossible to resist instructions which are not consciously experienced. There would seem to be a close parallel between these phenomena and those associated with post hypnotic suggestion and neurotic compulsive response." For this reason, music, the study of frequencies, and what are known as subliminal messages or Auditory Masking, became my natural element for a few years. It is the best way to covertly transmit secret messages from one side of the planet to the other, and push the Thelemic and Luciferian propaganda I would promote at the time. I remained on the side of the New World Order until 2006, when I decided to leave the Monte Carlo Lodge.

Some researchers, say there is no evidence of an impact of auditory subliminal stimuli on human behavior, but subliminal messages and certain frequencies bypass conscious recognition. Dr. Lechnar comments on the definition of subliminal perception, and the studies of Dr. Dixon and his aforementioned book, in the following way:

63 Norman F. Dixon, Subliminal Perception: The Nature of a Controversy (European Psychology), (New York: McGraw-Hill Inc., 1971).

One of the controversies surrounding the existence of subliminal perception is its definition. Subliminal means “below threshold.” An apple placed in complete darkness would be below the visual threshold for perception. It is not until the lighting on the apple increases to a sufficient level for recognition is it considered “above threshold.” The minimum stimulation necessary to detect a particular stimulus (not necessarily recognize), is called the absolute threshold. However, the required amount of lighting on the apple for identification is different for everyone, and therefore what may be subliminal to one person may not be subliminal to another. It is generally accepted that a perception is subliminal if a great majority of the audience can not perceive it consciously. So what is perception? Perception is the brain’s reception of incoming stimuli.

Dr. Key said perception is total and instantaneous, but only 1/1000th of this is consciously recognized and processed. The rest is either stored in subconscious memory or dumped as irrelevant information. Although we do not fully understand how the brain perceives the world, advertisers have no interest in the motor and gears of the brain. It only cares that the brain is influenced the most by visual stimulation and there are certain ways to stimulate the brain without its conscious awareness. Dixon provides a good definition of subliminal perception, which he words as “subliminal reception.”

- 1) The subject responds without awareness to stimulus.
- 2) Subject knows he is being stimulated, but doesn’t know what it is.

For the rest of the paper, I will use the above definition for subliminal perception. Subliminal messages will therefore be the transmission of subliminal content using methods which the brain subconsciously perceives but is not consciously aware. Adding in regards to the experimental confirmation in this field:

Since the 19th century researchers have been performing psychological tests to confirm the existence of subliminal perception. N. F. Dixon has compiled over 500 studies on this topic and concluded in his book that subliminal perceptions exists beyond any reasonable doubt. He said, "It would seem that reports of percepts may be influenced by stimulation which the percipient is not aware. Certainly, it can be claimed that the having of a conscious percept does not exclude the possibility of subliminal effects." His book is held in such esteem one advertiser quoted "Dixon's book is basic reading for our creative department. We think of it as an operational bible." Ironically, Dixon never guessed his work would be used for commercial exploitation. ⁶⁴ Reading Dixon's book early on in my life, was of great benefit for my work and my understanding about this complex subject that fascinated me since I was in my teens. I published a book not so long ago in Italy, about my time in the music business, the topics of frequency manipulation, mind control, and the occult side of show business. ⁶⁵ I began producing my own music in 1988, and the first solo dance track I ever recorded two years later was based on samples taken from an old self hypnosis tape, and the use of certain frequencies.

Chapter VII

Apologists and the Excessive Use of the Taxil Mystification

In the New World of relativism

Leo Taxil was the pseudonym of Marie Joseph Gabriel Antoine Jogand Pagès, a long time pornographer and journalist, and a scandalous figure who was strongly anti-Catholic. He was initially accused of defamation because of a book he published in 1881 entitled, Les Amours de Pie IX secrètes par un ancien camérier secret du pape , (The secret loves of Pius IX for an old chamberlain of the pope). Taxil was a Jew, who at the age of 5 enrolled in an institution run by the Jesuits, and it seems that this experience created his hatred for the Church. Leo Taxil became yet another instrument to draft disinformation on behalf of the Jesuits, and shortly you'll understand why.

On April 20, 1884, Pope Leo XIII issued an encyclical letter, the Humanum Genus, in which the Pope waged war against Freemasonry, accusing them of conspiring against the values of the Church. This is a different Church than the post-conciliar Church we have now, that fully embraces Freemasonry after being infiltrated and neutralized indefinitely during the The Second Vatican Council (Latin: Concilium Oecumenicum Vaticanum Secundum, informally known as Vatican II), but in those days things were different and Freemasonry and the Church were at war with each other.

The theme of the letter addressed by Pope Leo XIII, to the Patriarchs Primates Archbishops and Bishops, was the "Condemnation of the Masonic Philosophical and Moral Relativism" and demonstrated, "the purpose and nature of the Masonic sect," denouncing to the world, "the sect of the Freemasons, born against any law and right." The pope communicated to the Catholic world that this danger was already understood by his predecessors: "They already did this by reflecting on the future, gave the signal, warning those princes and populations not to fall into their cunning and insidious plots." ¹

After the publication of this papal encyclical, Leo Taxil, or those who controlled him (the Jesuits), set up a truly diabolical plan in which Leo Taxil submitted to a sensational public conversion (a fake one of course), to Catholicism. He announced his intention to repair the damage that he felt was done to the Catholic faith by being a pornographer. Remember, we are talking about a Jew educated by Jesuits, a skilled individual, and a real expert in the art of manipulation. Check out his face in one of the portraits or black and white photos of the period to understand what kind of person he was.

Taxil proved right away with this gesture that he knew the art of propaganda and entertainment all too well. Remember that the Jesuits of the publication, Civiltà Cattolica (Catholic Civilization) had defined his conversion only two years prior as: Taxil “the unclean pornographer.”² Now, all of a sudden, they are allies in the presumed battle against Satanism and Freemasonry, in reality a disinformation campaign that will ultimately damage Freemasonry more than the Church. In 1887, Taxil received audience with Pope Leo XIII, who believed in him, and not the Bishop of Charleston, which reflected the noble spirit of Freemasons in that mostly Protestants city, which as we know had a special role in the creation of the first Supreme Council of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite in 1801.³

In 1896, the first person to start publicly questioning the Taxil affair was the famous Masonic researcher and author Joseph Gabriel Findel, who wrote about the non-existence of the Luciferian conspiracy promoted by Leo Taxil, and accused the Jesuits of having organized yet another, devious plot.⁴ So when the Taxil/Jesuit disinformation campaign ended the following year in 1897 after 12 years of lies, Taxil promptly mentioned Findel’s statement, denying any connection with the Jesuits who backed him in this farse. But should we believe him? Of course not—he was a Jesuit agent!

The first work produced by Leo Taxil after his feigned conversion years earlier, was a history of Freemasonry in four volumes, containing fictitious testimonies from supposed eyewitnesses who participated in alleged Satanic rituals inside Freemasonry. The amount of work required to compose so many books in so little time, makes you wonder if the Jesuits did not actually help him write the texts themselves. If he had not devoted himself to disinformation he would surely have scaled the heights of Freemasonry in no time for sure. The Secret Chiefs, however, decided something different for Leo Taxil, during a time when Anti-Masonry seemed to grow every day, especially in France, and the public desperately needed a hero. Taxil incarnated this figure in an act of disturbance towards the system.

Past Grand Master Freemason and Sovereign Grand Commander of the Scottish Rite Luigi Pruneti writes on the Taxil affair: “Beelzebub, in the season of science and technology, steel and coal seemed resurrected from a distant past, the sooty mists of the Middle Ages, from the folds of the distressing wars of religion. He is the lord of darkness, he laughed at Pasteur and positivism, Marx and the Industrial Revolution and, grinning, left hell to sit down in the Masonic temples.”⁵

Leo Taxil with the help of a mysterious co-worker named Dr. Karl Hacks, (who operated under the pseudonym of Dr. Bataille), wrote another book, entitled Le Diable au XIX siècle (The Devil in the nineteenth century), in which he presented a new female figure, Diana Vaughan, a supposed descendant of Rosicrucian alchemist Thomas Vaughan. Thus bringing in a female element, and the Rosicrucians to his stories of pseudo

taxil mystification

Freemasonry and improbable Satanic scenarios. The book told fantastic implausible stories of meetings between Vaughan and incarnated demons. I'm not talking about extradimensional entities, but of demons in the flesh. One of these demons was said to have written prophecies on the back of Diana Vaughan, while another shaped as a crocodile played a piano. Things out of this world, to say the least, that remind us in more recent times of the "reptilian delusions" popularized in contemporary culture by the eccentric Englishman David Icke. Something very modest compared to the wild stories pushed at the time by Leo Taxil, and with no television or the Internet in those days, Taxil's books became bestsellers all over the world, shaping the wildest ideas in people's heads about the occult side of Freemasonry. Leo Taxil presented Diana Vaughan, as a person with a past in the Satanic practices of the Masonic elite, who was suddenly taken by repentance (in a very theatrical way). Creating a huge story like this, and later debunking it, only helped the Catholic Church and Freemasonry. It was a well-crafted plan that functioned perfectly.

This supposed transformation of Diana Vaughan, happened after she openly showed admiration for Joan of Arc, and upon hearing this name she said the demons would scatter ... Today, Leo Taxil, would probably still have great success in certain extreme conspiracy circles that treat his disinformation as real.

The Leo Taxil hoax, intended to mock not only Freemasonry, but also the Roman Catholic Church, is a complex issue. Strangely enough, Taxil was expelled from Freemasonry without ever advancing beyond the 1st degree of Entered Apprentice. This means that Taxil could not have been able, in his modest position, to reveal the identities of influential Freemasons in various foreign jurisdictions, or the high level members of the various mystery schools of the Illuminati network, like the S.R.I.A. for example. He must have had some insider support, or otherwise the help of the Jesuits. The list of the members of each order, sect or fraternity, is in fact regarded as very sensitive information, and such lists have always been top secret, especially in those days. One wonders who gave him access to this information, as Taxil, by placing those names in his books, not only embarrassed them, but at times caused real trouble, especially when he lied about their moral integrity. René Guenon explains his own thoughts on the Leo Taxil hoax:

To be honest it's easy to say "mystification," but the issue is much more complex and not easy to solve; it seems that, at least, the issue should be treated as something else as Taxil was lying once again when he stated he invented everything on his own initiative. You are faced with a clever mixture of true and false ... but what exactly is the "grain of truth" contained in this story? ⁶

Leo Taxil published a book under the name of Diana Vaughan, entitled, The Novena Mass, a collection of prayers that received the praise from none other than the Pope, who gave it "a very special blessing," as reported by a Masonic publication on the 31st of May, 1897. Taxil managed to tease more than once, not only priests, and Catholics in general, but even the Pope!

A clerical correspondent wrote about the International Anti-Masonic congress of Trent organized in the fall of 1896 by leaders of the Church to fight Freemasonry: Our Holy Father, Leo XIII, has given his blessing to the Anti-Masonic Congress to be held at Trent from the 26th to the 30th of September.

The Grand Master of the Freemasons of Italy, "noting the fact with a profound calm" in a Circular Letter dated from Rome on September 13, pours forth his de against it. ⁷

The Congress saw the participation of Leo Taxil, but of course there was no sign of Diana Vaughan, and many asked for her pres ence. La Civiltà Cattolica, the most important of all the journals of the clerical world, still to this day the official organ of the General of the Jesuits, said this in September, 1896:

We want to give the pleasure of blessing publicly the names of the valorous champions who entered first the glorious arena, such as the noble Miss Vaughan. ⁸

Diana Vaughan, as is reproduced in the book “Memories of a 33:.” by Domenico Margiotta.

Some Freemasons fell into the trap of the deceptive Taxil. Those Masons that now use Leo Taxil as a scapegoat, gave a 33rd honorary degree to the non-existent Diana Vaughan, with an official document issued by an institution linked to the Masonic Italia Federation and the Supreme Council of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, based in Palermo. They sent her a diploma / patent of 33° of the Rite dated April 8, 1894, without ever having seen or met the elusive Mrs. Vaughan, and the Masonic document in question was later reproduced in the book “Memories of a 33° ” by Domenico Margiotta. (FIG. 57)

A passage from the two documents, directed to Miss Diana Vaughan from the Supreme Council of Palermo, gives us a clear the idea of this unlikely appointment: “Wanting to reward an act of affection ... our enlightened Sister .’. Diana Vaughan for the exalted services rendered to High Masonry.

And that’s not all, the Supreme Council of Palermo went even further to say: We have, in solemn assembly today decreed the title of Honorary Member of the Supreme Council and protectress of our Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite. ⁹

This unprecedented action made at the top of the Masonic institutions to nominate a non-existent person like Diana Vaughan, as honorary 33° and protectress of their Supreme Council, is also reported in the famous essay, “I riti massonici di Misraim e Memphis” (The Masonic Rites of Memphis and Mizraim) of Count Gastone Ventura. ¹⁰

In the end, however, on April 19, 1897, Leo Taxil, after selling a huge amount of books, and mocking the highest authorities and institutions in the world, held a public meeting in which he said he will present the mysterious figure of Diana Vaughan to the world. It was a long awaited move on Taxil's side that many hoped would end further speculations about his unreliability. Instead Taxil shocked everyone once again and declared that many of the revelations he had made on Freemasonry were a hoax (though not all). He thanked the clergy for having advertised his heated statements, and announced to the public that he would withdraw permanently from the scene. In departing, he required a police escort for fear of being lynched after such an announcement. Yes, Leo Taxil, a Jewish agent of the Jesuits, made fun of everything and everyone, but the material of his mystification is still used by the current Anti-Masonic Movement. His lies, the most vulgar and ignorant, certainly don't help to battle the occult and corrupt side of Freemasonry for sure, but still have many people that believe him to this day. One example is in the book by James and titled, Cult and Ritual Abuse, where the Taxil mystification is considered 100% genuine.¹¹ Unfortunately, Leo Taxil does not only serve the "Anti-Masons," but also the Masons themselves, intent in defending their institution, constantly using and abusing the example of the Taxil mystification.

The short essay that I mentioned in the first volume entitled, THE TRIALS AND TRIBULATIONS OF A MASONIC APOLOGIST, written by Robert A. Gilbert, (FIG. 58) former Worshipful Master of Quatuor Coronati n. 2076, the most popular lodge of research in the world,¹² makes the same mistake in one of his works on the subject. Gilbert who guided for years the prestigious Masonic publication Ars Quatuor Coronatorum, demonstrates with his own words the constant use and abuse of the Taxil mystification for the defense of the Masonic purity of intents.

Gilbert, however, like many before him, failed to mention the fact that the Jesuits were Leo Taxil's allies in creating this colossal scam:

They accept as absolute truth the nonsensical stories of the Palladian Rite propagated by 'Leo Taxil' as part of his elaborate hoax at the expense of both the Roman Catholic Church and the Grand Orient of France. Any well-informed Freemason with access to a basic library of standard Masonic reference books can easily refute the anti-Masonic rubbish put out by Christian (and, of recent years, Islamic) fundamentalists. But again we manage to shoot ourselves carefully in the foot. ¹³

Luigi Pruneti mentions the Taxil Hoax as the origin for certain Anti-Masonic tendencies that originated with Abbé Augustin Barruel (October 2, 1741 – October 5, 1820), and was a Jesuit most known for instigating the conspiracy theory involving the Bavarian Illuminati. Pruneti never mentions the Jesuit involvement that began with Jesuit Augustin Barruel, and continued with the Jesuit agent Leo Taxil. On top of this Pruneti on the contrary of Gilbert, does not even mention the controversial figure of Satanist Aleister Crowley, nor the wicked practices and evil of Ordo Templi Orientis, nor those other affiliates of Freemasonry linked to Satanism, which I assure you there is no shortage of. It seems that the majority of historians of Freemasonry, like Luigi Pruneti, chose to ignore certain concerns that could discredit Freemasonry, rather than clarifying the situation for non-Masons .

Grand Master at the time. He graciously received me and Princess Kaoru Nakamaru, and personally said that I was correct about the Leo Taxil affair, and that he soon would devote an essay to the fact Taxil was an agent of the Jesuits, and that such hypothesis deserved a closer investigation. The Taxil mystification is at this point not only a wellcrafted joke in my view, but part of a specific conspiracy of the Jesuits to promote Relativism. In the present day we even see a Jesuit Pope accused by some to be a relativist himself. ¹⁶ Here's a brief and concise explanation of the meaning of relativism according to Wikipedia: "Relativism is the concept that points of view have no absolute truth or validity within themselves, but they only have relative, subjective value according to differences in perception and consideration." ¹⁷

During a passage of the long conversation that Pope Benedict XVI had with Peter Oswald, that later became the subject of a book, Oswald made the following remarks to the Pope, mentioning Aldous Huxley as one of the gurus of the New World Order:

In his futuristic novel Brave New World, the British author Aldous Huxley predicted in 1932 that falsification would be the decisive element of modernity. In a false reality with its false truth—or the absence of truth altogether—nothing, in the final analysis, is important anymore. There is no truth, there is no standpoint. Today, in fact, truth is regarded as far too subjective a concept for us to find therein a universally valid standard. The distinction between genuine and fake seems to have been abolished. Everything is to some extent negotiable.

At this point Oswald asked Benedict, Is that the relativism against which you were warning so urgently? The answer of the Pope was the following:

It is obvious that the concept of truth has become suspect. Of course it is correct that it has been much abused. Intolerance and cruelty have occurred in the name of truth. To that extent people are afraid when someone says, "This is the truth," or even "I have the truth." We never have it; at best it has us. No one will dispute that one must be careful and cautious in claiming the truth. But simply to dismiss it as unattainable is really destructive. A large proportion of contemporary philosophies, in fact, consist of saying that man is not capable of truth. But viewed in that way, man would not be capable of ethical values, either. Then he would have no standards. Then he would only have to consider how he arranged things reasonably for himself, and then at any rate the opinion of the majority would be the only criterion that counted. History, however, has sufficiently demonstrated how destructive majorities can be, for instance, in systems such as Nazism and Marxism, all of which also stood against truth in particular. ¹⁸

However it was because of the danger of relativism that in the year 2000, Pope Ratzinger in defense of the more traditional and conservative Catholic faction, railed against the Jesuit theologian Jacques Dupuis.

The red alert came for the first time from Ratzinger in a speech made in October, 1996 to the Bishops of the Americas where he states:

The fundamental problem of faith in our time has become relativism. And so the fundamental question for the Church becomes the so-called pluralist theology of religions. On the one hand it is a typical product of the Western world, but on the other is placed in contact with the philosophical and religious intuitions of Asia, especially India, and it is the link between these two worlds that determines its particular influence on the historical moment we are living. ¹⁹

But with Pope Francis, the first Jesuit Pope, things have obviously changed in the Catholic Church, and as the well-known Italian journalist (and CIA asset) Giuliano Ferrara ²⁰ wrote in January 2014, in the Italian newspaper Il Foglio, in an article very appropriately entitled, Relativismo ad maiorem gloriam Dei, miming the motto of the Jesuits with a touch of humor, the Pope is promotes relativism:

The Jesuits have always played a prestigious role in the apostolic religious and civil power of the Church and in the nation-states of which they became tutors, confessors and sometimes governors. Not for kindness, but for doctrine, Francis rejects the position of Inquisitor and preaches dialogue with the historical world, contingent as it is and not as we would like it to be. His rejection of the doctrinal rigor so unpopular with the sinful world is an essential Machiavellian complement of the Jesuit way of conceiving the imitation of Christ and the evangelization. ²¹

Behind the Jesuit takeover of the Vatican is the late Cardinal Carlo Maria Martini (1927-2012), a known Jesuit and Freemason, who was already pushing the name of Mario Bergoglio, the future Pope Francis, in the papal election in 2005. Martini, also a Freemason as I mentioned in the book, Pope Francis: The Last Pope? ²² was the main conspirator who forced the resignation of Joseph Ratzinger orchestrated by the Society of Jesus.

This was officially confirmed by the Jesuit, Father Silvano Fausti, who died June 24, 2015 at the age 75. A name unknown to most people, Fausti was actually a very influential personality in the ecclesiastical sphere, and one of the people closest to Cardinal Carlo Maria Martini.

The archbishop of Milan, who died in 2012, confided many secrets of the Church establishment to him, including factual background on the real motive for the resignation of Joseph Ratzinger.²³ The revelations of the Jesuit Silvano Giusti appeared in "Il Corriere della Sera":

Father Silvano Fausti said that the moment Benedict XVI and Carlo Maria Martini were seen for the last time in Milan during the World Meeting of Families, on June 2, 2012, the Cardinal who was ill for some time, came out of the Aloisium of Gallarate to reach the Pope. It was then that he looked into my eyes and Martini's, who would have died on the 31st of August, said to Ratzinger: "the Curia does not reform, you just have to leave."²⁴

Remember, even if the author of this book is called Leo, I am no Leo Taxil, so dear proponents of the New World Order and the various slaves of prevailing relativism, read and surrender to the truth from these pages, not the usual disinformation fed by modern society corrupt by relativism and matter. Relativism is the antechamber of the new world religion ruling Satanism. Enrico Galoppini makes a very clever analysis in the magazine "Eurasia":

The Western world satisfied to be "modern" considers "relativism" as the cornerstone of any social and cultural development. Each "absolute" is openly considered a legacy of a mentality "barbaric and retrograde." "Relativism," in turn, is combined with individualism and utilitarianism: the human being, which is conceived as a mere "individual" capable of all sizes regardless of national and Community, opt for what most suits at one time. Since everyone is encouraged (by the "average" and the "intellectuals") to think and behave in this way, here it is the West that postulates a world without "boundaries," which are physical or mental. The very notion of "limit" gives tremendously bothersome. Modern man is considered accordingly as the most "open" among all his fellows who preceded him and who still “linger” on world views “of the past.” But although everything seems to herald a radiant “new era” of humanity, of which the West with its “values” would be the vanguard, it must consider the fact that there is a Great Absent. The Great God is absent. However, it must be understood. Even in the West as such there are people for whom God has a place in their lives. But most of the time “the idea of God” that you make is extremely far away from what traditionally has been made all the peoples and civilizations past. The “god West”— i.e. the way in which they imagine the modern principle, the Source of all things—is a projection of their predilections and their desires more or less frustrated and unacknowledged. A “god” such is the antechamber of the “world without God,” because for all religious traditions that have gone before God “spoke,” indicating clearly what is right and what is wrong for His creatures. Intended to bliss or damnation.

For the “ modern thinking,” known as “secular,” this is inconceivable. For it is the man to have to decide, first, what it is “good” and what is “bad” for him. Religion, in this context, end up playing a role “comforting,” as well as the agency for the support of certain categories of “needy.” The devastating consequences of atheism in the Western world have not yet fully Been Considered, nor have all manifested themselves in their fatal tragedy. The result, however, is beginning to emerge clearly, and goes by the lowest common denominator of the “chaos.”

A lack of an Order, that suffered from “Western societies,” which cannot be extended to the basic framework of the sexes and the relationships between them.

In the above human aggregations are regulated according to the contractualized diagram (the simulated societies), as opposed to the “natural-Community” (the innate societies), each is educated to the maximum of “do as you wish,” which, just to further clarify things, was the same promoted by Aleister Crowley, considered one of the founders of modern Satanism. We started with “freedom” and “tolerance” and we are now in Satanism. It is not at all a joke, nor an exaggeration.

Satanism, reduced to its essence, is—rather than the worship of some strange creature depicted in the guise of a goat—the deification of self, of that ego illusion that every religious tradition indicates regular as the “main enemy” (and basically the only). This enemy of man, that is closer than his own jugular vein, which never leaves him and, in fact, raises the bar depending on the degree of realization of all, is the basis of every modern deviation, from the theological to the political from economic to the cultural and so on. It does not go far from the truth by saying that the “modern world” is an environment in which the lower forces that draw men into the innermost recesses of his consciousness obscure and confusing they had, now more than ever, a full freedom of expression.

However, in the face of such forces, providentially, stands always a “katechon,” meaning “that which restrains or one who holds,” which with its very presence deferral the coming of the kingdom of the Antichrist parody. It is not easy to identify in practice who or what performs this function in our time. However, there are many clues that allow a view into the leadership of the Russian Federation, and, specifically, of Vladimir Putin, as a factor that hampers the unleashing of these forces, avoiding the final collapse of the “wall.”

This role is not the exclusive preserve of anyone, therefore can be ascribed to this providential function also the action of other organizations or other personalities. It is universally known, in fact, the role of the saints and their prayers. But here we are talking about politics, and because each one does its part, it must be said that Putin has greatly contributed, with its initiatives, not to precipitate the part of the world that he manages in the same “egotistic” spiral that has been seen unfolding elsewhere, one time after another, a hedonistic mass or elitist phenomena, all equally destructive. This is the role the Russian leadership shares with the “not aligned leaderships.”²⁵

“Relativism” is not only an important asset for the majority of Speculative Freemasonry in the hands of the various congregations of the Illuminati network that promote so-called enlightenment, and the Jesuits that have always promoted it for centuries; but “relativism” is now the creed of the majority of the Masonic influenced Catholic hierarchy after the Second Vatican Council, increasingly atheist and materialistic.

Returning The Taxil, In 1948, Achille Pontevia wrote a credible account of the hoax in his introduction to a book dedicated to the Taxil mystification, where we also find a faithful reproduction of the pages of a supplement called MASONIC MAGAZINE from the year 1897, and the translation of the last controversial speech given by Leo Taxil in public published originally by the newspaper Le Frondeur.

These are words written in the late ‘40s by Pontevia on the “Taxil affair”:

Yet when the hoaxer took off his mask, unmasking the truth even for those who had supported him, the Church could not really say much, except that Leo Taxil was nothing more than a creature of the Masons ... and this was said although reason, morality, and justice denied it. In front of such a masterpiece of bad faith, how did the Masons react? Which speculation did they mount a response? There was nothing, they only said: We had warned you about Taxil for a long time, but you didn’t want to believe us?! Nor did this change the ways of the perpetrators after such a meaningless act, nor did they have the loyalty to recognize and repair the moral damage of which they were voluntary participants. They did not talk about Taxil again, but they did not let Taxil's work fall into oblivion either, in fact, they used this seed he had thrown and wisely safeguarded it and cultivated it in order to perpetuate its fruits. Who listens today to the anti-clerical propaganda against Freemasonry feels in it a constant echo of the literature of Taxil and realizes that the Church never truly disavowed this cheater storyteller. Though Taxil disavowed himself, the Church limited itself only to officially grant him the status of a hoaxer, but in reality they continued, and still continue to use and provide the largest credit to his work. Achille Pontevia adds further on: "The priests know perfectly well that they are continuing to endorse the work of a hoaxer, but think that its effectiveness and its relevance is not yet warned off." ²⁶

Devil Worship in France , ²⁷ is a book published in 1896, a year before the end of the Taxil mystification, by the Masonic author Arthur Edward Waite. Masonic historian Robert A. Gilbert describes Waite this way:

Arthur Edward Waite, the child of Anglo-American parents, was born at a time of religious upheaval and left this world as it was busily engaged in tearing apart its social fabric. He was a prolific author, but one whose books are, for the most part, unknown and unread; he was not recognized as a scholar by the academic world, but he remains the only comprehensive analyst of the history of occultism in all its many branches. Not that he approved of the term or the looseness of its connotations; to himself he was a mystic and an exponent of mysticism. He saw, what others before him had not seen, that there can be no final understanding of mystical experience without an appreciation of the traditions, outside the confines of the Church, that preserved those practices that bring mystical experience within the reach of every man and woman. He is not easy to understand. His writing is diffuse, often verbose, and peppered with archaisms; but it has its own power and leaves the reader with the feeling that buried within the densely packed prose is a message of immense significance. This has been perceived by the more acute of his critics: Dean Inge—a scourge of sentimental pseudo-mysticism—believed that Waite had “penetrated very near to the heart of this subject” (review of Studies in Mysticism, in The Saturday Review, 2 March 1907). But Waite refused to jettison all that was included under the heading of occultism. He saw within it, as Spurgeon said of the Talmud, jewels which the world could not afford to miss; and seeing them, drew them out and displayed them for all to see—all, that is, with eyes to see. Many readers of Waite, and most self confessed students of “rejected knowledge,” persist in seeing him as an occultist. ²⁸

This is partly true as Waite, at the time of his aforementioned book Devil Worship in France, was already member of the Martinist and the occultistic Golden Dawn, two of the leading Illuminati occult organizations in the world at that time, becoming a member of “Regular” Freemasonry in 1901.

Waite demonstrated, on the contrary of most Masonic experts of the time, serious doubts about the figure of Diana Vaughan and the rest of the rubbish promoted by Leo Taxil, confronting many of the characters mentioned by Taxil in his books in an attempt to discover the truth and compare versions of the events. The Leo Taxil case brings us to my final analysis of the “Taxil Hoax,” to discuss the so-called “Palladian Rite” or “Palladism,” an alleged anti-Christian esoteric cult founded in the late nineteenth century by members of the Masons, and the “famous” correspondence between Giuseppe Mazzini and Albert Pike.

In 1891, Taxil and Adolphe Ricoux claimed to have discovered a Palladian Society. A 1892 French book called Le Diable au XIXe siècle (The Devil in the 19th Century, 1892), written by “Dr. Bataille” (actually Jogand-Pagès himself), alleged that Palladists were Satanists based in Charleston, South Carolina, headed by the American Freemason Albert Pike, and created by the Italian liberal patriot and author Giuseppe Mazzini. ²⁹

Another fabrication—often repeated by anti-masons and conspiracy theorists—is the claim that because of their occult link, Albert Pike was in constant correspondence with Giuseppe Mazzini. This accusation was first claimed by Edith Starr Miller,³⁰ and later repeated by William Guy Carr, who cited Cardinal Caro y Rodriguez of Santiago, Chile, the author of The Mystery of Freemasonry Unveiled.³¹ In his own Pawns in the Game, Carr claims that this correspondence was on display in the British Museum but didn't provide the actual source of this information. Later, in "Satan, Prince of this World," Carr included the following footnote:

The Keeper of Manuscripts recently informed the author that this letter is NOT catalogued in the British Museum Library. It seems strange that a man of Cardinal Rodriguez's knowledge should have said that it WAS in 1925.³²

The British Museum has recently confirmed in writing to researcher Michael Haupt that such a document has never been in their possession. The following quotes, taken from conspiracy theorists Edith Starr Miller and William Guy Carr, have been demonstrated to be a continuation of a lengthy hoax perpetrated by Leo Taxil between 1885 and 1897. Edith Starr Miller writes:

Mazzini, who was very practical, said that it would be inadvisable to favor one rite only to the exclusion of all the others. In a letter to Albert Pike, dated Jan. 22, 1870, he writes. "We must allow all the federations to continue just as they are, with their systems, their central authorities and their diverse modes of correspondence between high grades of the same rite, organized as they are at the present, but we must create a super rite, which will remain unknown, to which we will call those Masons of high degree whom we shall select. With regard to our brothers in Masonry, these men must be pledges to the strictest secrecy. Through this supreme rite, we will govern all Freemasonry which will become the one international center, the more powerful because its direction will be unknown.”³³

Carr claimed the following was excerpted from a letter to Giuseppe Mazzini from Albert Pike, dated August 15, 1871:

The First World War must be brought about in order to permit the Illuminati to overthrow the power of the Czars in Russia and of making that country a fortress of atheistic Communism. The divergences caused by the “agentur” (agents) of the Illuminati between the British and Germanic Empires will be used to foment this war. At the end of the war, Communism will be built and used in order to destroy the other governments, and in order to weaken the religions.

The Second World War must be fomented by taking advantage of the differences between the Fascists and the political Zionists. This war must be brought about so that Nazism is destroyed and that the political Zionism be strong enough to institute a sovereign state of Israel in Palestine. During the Second World War, International Communism must become strong enough in order to balance Christendom, which would be then restrained and held in check until the time when we would need it for the final social cataclysm.

The Third World War must be fomented by taking advantage of the differences caused by the agentur of the Illuminati between the political Zionists and the leaders of Islamic World. The war must be conducted in such a way that Islam (the Muslim Arabic World) and political Zionism (the State of Israel) mutually destroy each other.

Meanwhile, the other nations, once more divided on this issue will be constrained to fight to the point of complete physical, moral, spiritual and economical exhaustion ... We shall unleash the Nihilists and the atheists, and we shall provoke a formidable social cataclysm which in all its horror will show clearly to the nations the effect of absolute atheism, origin of savagery and of the most bloody turmoil. Then everywhere, the citizens, obliged to defend themselves against the world minority of revolutionaries, will exterminate those destroyers of civilization, and the multitude, disillusioned with Christianity, whose deistic spirits will from that moment be without compass or direction, anxious for an ideal, but without knowing where to render its adoration, will receive the true light through the universal manifestation of the pure doctrine of Lucifer, brought finally out in the public view. This manifestation will result from the general reactionary movement which will follow the destruction of Christianity and atheism, both conquered and exterminated at the same time.

As the Grand Lodge of British Columbia and Yukon states on their website:

It cannot be stressed too strongly that these claimed excerpts from a non-existent correspondence are not supported by any documentation. Internal evidence, the language and subject matter, clearly suggest a much later creation date. ³⁴

Leo Taxil reported the Palladist's (or Palladian) were Masons belonging to at least the 30th degree, and run in a hidden manner, all the Lodges. Of course it was a joke as stated in his incredible admission on April 19, 1897: "My whole Palladism was so solidly built, with regard to the strict Masonic sense it gave, since Masons, of the 33rd degree, did believe in its foundations. They even asked to enter it (laughter of the crowd present). The impossibility of Palladism does not reveal itself if not for the supernatural of which we filled it."

Of course today, for those who have not studied the matter carefully, Taxil's hoax might seem like the usual "sham," like so many others, but it is far from it. In fact this "hoax" lasted 12 years, and looks rather like a big psychological operation, where Taxil appears to have been the most representative figure. The Church wanted to use the confessions of a repentant Mason like Taxil, as an effective support to their doctrinal positions (the ex-communications against Freemasonry). For this reason, they were careless and stood by this dubious figure and writer, even though there was more than suspicion and a few doubts about him from the start. Taxil did not simply publish magazines and books, but he also created a series of initiatives that represent a real "desecration," as a Catholic newspaper launched a "union of prayer dedicated to Joan of Arc" to counter the malignant Masonic forces. In 1895 they founded in Paris, "The anti-Masonic Order of Labaro" (Ordre du Labarum anti-maçonnique), a real parody of a knightly order, divided into three grades (Legionary of Constantine, Soldier of Christ, Knight of the Sacred Heart), which was strongly desired by the fictitious Diana Vaughan, author of the imaginary anti-Masonic "Memoirs."

The Order of Labaro, which would be interesting to study carefully to better understand its back story, stated in its statutes it was to defend the Holy Church and the Pope against its main enemy, Freemasonry. The Banner also announced they wished to give life to an anti-Masonic International Congress, which would have as the honorary president Cardinal Parocchi, vicar of His Holiness. Taxil naturally figured among the founders of the Order. In those same years, another accomplice of Taxil was the aforementioned Domenico Margiotta, who was elevated to the rank of Knight of the Holy Sepulchre by Pope Leo XIII, showing imprudent papal authority in the matter. However, I believe that without the Jesuits to support the entire project from the beginning, the Pope would never have fallen into this trap. This would also explain why Leo Taxil was so warmly received at the Vatican by Cardinal Rampolla, who was disappointed by the fact that Taxil was just an apprentice. ³⁶ Cardinal Rampolla, years later, was accused not only of being a Freemason, (which had prevented him from being elected pope in the conclave of 1903), but also a member of Ordo Templi Orientis. Aleister Crowley himself cites him among the distinguished members of the past and one of the “saints” of his Gnostic Catholic Church.³⁷

I urge contemporary Masonic researchers to continue their research on the responsibility of Jesuits in the “Taxil hoax,” confirmed by Italian Masonic historian Luigi Pruneti and even myself, as I was accused of being the new “Leo Taxil” more than once.³⁸ I am not interested in delivering fictional stories, when the real ones are already enough to discredit and bring into disrepute Freemasonry, as you will see in the upcoming pages.

Satanist, journalist and author, Gavin Baddeley for his book, Lucifer Rising: A Book of Sin, Devil Worship And Rock ‘n’ Roll. This is the answer by LaVey to the question: “What other Satanic group do you come across these days, and what do you think of them— are any of these dangerous?”

There’s a character named Joe Penner leading something called the Synagogue of Satan. He claims to have done so since the ‘50s and wanted to inherit the mantle of the Process. Another guy named Mordecai Levi claims that Satan is directing his holy cause. These people are jokes. There's always some hard-core nut claiming to be part of some ancient cabal. They are just dillies. The only really dangerous characters are the ones who think they are generational Satanists and their grandfather told them with his last breath what to do, or whatever.

The Satanic scene is really too nebulous to pin down. The loquacious ones are like the drunk at the end of the bar who will try to smite to fill you of nonsense—we get stacks of that type of material each week. There are many armies made by one man out there, a lot of coffee bar revolutionaries. New information technology has bred a lot of desktop Satanists and bulletin boards, meaning that cyberspace seems full of Satanists. The Christian heretics rarely go much further than designing letterheads. But many Satanists are quietly applying Church of Satan philosophy in their lives, in their own fashion, in a very real way. The best thing we could ask from those people is a passing nod of respect. We are joiners. We don't expect fanatical devotion. We're not cudgel-pummeling evangelists. I do my own thing and I don't give a shit if people want to go along with me or not. I have no problems with a guilty conscience—this isn't some kind of scam. Left to my own devices this is what I'd be doing on my own anyway. In the beginning it was a largely solitary search. It's like a story that I was told about a new doctor who comes to work at a sanatorium. “He comes across this dressing?” the inmate replies. “Then why the hat?” asks the doctor. “Well, you never know, someone might come along.” That's why I keep doing what I do—because somebody might come along. ³⁹

In his brilliant exposition LaVey, ahead of his time, identified the growing phenomenon of the so-called laptop activists and cyber-Satanists, well before the birth of social networks, stating that: “The only really dangerous characters, were actually generational Satanists.” It is in this context that the hypocrisy of the Illuminati seems to mix devil worship and holy water, often protected by Freemasonry. An institution increasingly complacent and silent respect to the activities of certain Satanists, within their lodges; and not only the “generational type” (see the O.T.O. for example). We see over and over again in these environments, the constant presence of Neo-gnosticism with a strong libertine overtone, that is often used to hide generational Satanism and Illuminati sectarian activities. Anton LaVey, who was one of the most influential and the most important modern Satanists—rightly warns there are indeed people who are born into families that belong to the Satanic elite active in the New World Order, that have devoted hundreds of years to the occult arts and black magic. This obviously happens a lot in European aristocracy, but also in the USA, as I demonstrate with a thorough investigation into the activities of Grand Master David Daniel De Paul.

David Daniel De Paul, who is in reality the “Grand Magister” of the Brotherhood of Satan known amongst its initiates with the name of Druwydion Pendragon, and follow a generational tradition in the United States of America, as they claim on one of their websites: “Before the public formation of the Church of Satan in San Francisco,

FIG. 60 – The American author and Freemason Arthur Temple aka Benjamin Mollica, Master Mason of the Grand Lodge of New York, who helped me in investigating the Brotherhood of Satan.

CA by Dr. Anton LaVey, there existed in both Europe and the USA secretive Satanism whose members did not advertise their membership. This form of Satanism still exists and even now is undergoing reorganization.”⁴⁰

The author of these words is David Daniel De Paul, who is a Master Mason and a 33° of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, at least according to what I was told by the Freemason and ex-policemen from the NYPD, Benjamin T. Mollica (FIG. 60), who at the time informed me of this influential Satanic cult operating from the state of Georgia. Benjamin T. Mollica informed me of his own past Satanic involvement in this dangerous sect, who initially provided me with the evidence I needed to start my own investigation in the activities of this supposed Satanic generational cult, helping me to prove that David Daniel De Paul known as Druid Druwydion Pendragon, (FIG. 61) is not a real Freemason, but actually one of the most dangerous generational Satanists in the USA.

Both are Freemasons, great manipulators, and dangerous to society, but they still seem untouchable because of their connections in high places, and their alleged role in the Black Witches Pyramid and the Illuminati Pyramid Structure.⁴¹ They are in fact linked to the Council of Nine of Dr. Michael Aquino, a former lieutenant Colonel, Intelligence expert and psychological operations expert, involved for years in research programs of mind control within the U.S. Intelligence community. It is said that Aquino and his sect in Italy, a few years ago, secretly celebrated a Black Mass near Naples. In private he preaches Neo-Theosophy in line with most of the “Puppet Masters” of the New World Order, who are awaiting the coming of the Antichrist.

I begin this analysis of David Daniel de Paul by first demonstrating his more moderate Neo-Templar side, of which he is apparently a Grand Master, to take you later on a journey into the depths of hell, which actually goes far beyond the mystification of Frenchmen Leo Taxil. So why do U.S. Freemasons close their eyes to this growing Satanic infiltration of the Craft? The answer is that unfortunately they turn a blind eye to enjoy a quiet life, which facilitates the increasing take over of Freemasonry by the dark side. Everything becomes gradually tolerated in the local lodges, the result of relativism which basically desires Satanism to be accepted just as any other form of religion. Relativism is increasingly expanding in modern times, and it will be devastating in the long run for the morals and ethics of our society, and that's why the whole world is going to hell if we don't stop them.

FIG. 61 – Freemason David Daniel de Paul, generational Satanist and Grand Master of the Brotherhood of Satan during his Satanic ceremonies.

So let me begin with Grand Master De Paul's "Gnostic" address, where he describes his enlightenment and his role as an illuminator to his aspiring disciples, showing a great dose of hypocrisy and falsehood in the process:

I was pleased to see the great interest that we have seen concerning the Ancient Gnostic Order of Knights of the Temple of Solomon. As we see a revival of things Esoteric we are an Order that grows with the times and the very framework of our historical aspects. That the Gnostic Templar Orders are now networking together for our common cause of Spiritual and Occult Unity is a fact of great interest. Before accepting the honor bestowed upon me by many of the membership of the secret Brotherhood I undertook a great deal of soul searching within before I felt that this honor was deserving. My personal background in the Occult and Spiritual Sciences is extensive and from a young child raised in a Masonic family I both studied and practiced the Occult Arts for transformation of my soul and self-realization and self-empowerment. To that end, I was willing to spend countless hours, days, and years, deeply active in the study and practice of both the Eastern and Western Mysteries. While a great many children my age were doing other things in life's learning experiences, I was immersed in the research, study, and practice of the Esoteric and Occult. ⁴²

De Paul's words seem to describe someone clearly born within the Illuminati network . Interestingly enough, not only did De Paul boast of his long-standing family tradition with Freemasonry and Templarism, but he also brings into the equation his link with the Theosophical Society, so dear to the New World Order and Satanic legend Dr. Michael Aquino:

I was very fortunate that I grew up as a child in the town next to where the Theosophical Society was headquartered here in the United States and I did a great deal of study there as well as other Occult Research centers. My practice and study of the Occult has lasted a lifetime and throughout my background as a Freemason which I became when of age, thanks to the nurturing of my family. My bloodline comes from Masonic French Ancestry just as many of the French Knight Templar Grand Masters throughout history. The other of these Grand Masters have up to this point in history resided in European countries but the need for a American residing Gnostic

Templar Grand Master is very apparent to American seekers of the Gnosis. I was Knighted a Masonic Knights Templar at the end of 1983 and was given a standing ovation after presenting a discourse on the Ancient Knights Templar before the dinner in the Lodge Hall directly after my being the Inspection Candidate for Knighthood during the visit of the Grand Commander of the state. I was knighted with my Grandfather's Masonic Knights Templar Sword which is something that has been forever instilled in my mind. Besides the many Masonic Offices that I have held and still do hold, I entered even further into the esoteric background of the Ancient Order. During this time I was granted the vision of second sight and became greatly enlightened about the many esoteric beliefs of the Ancient Order. The deeper I delved into Gnosticism and related areas of Occult Philosophy the more enlightened I became. Today, I am a Way shower and a Knight Templar that has over 40 years of Occult and Spiritual teaching and counseling under my belt and am accepted by the Secret Brotherhood as a Initiate of the Ancient Mysteries that "Knows Something." I owe my entire being to the Divine Sophia who has lead me throughout my personal Quest for Illumination. The Ancient Gnostic Order of Knights of the Temple of Solomon holds the Key to that great door through which after knocking upon it and accepted to enter, has given me the esoteric answer to the Occult maxim of "Know Thyself."

Fraternal Salutations to All, David Daniel de Paul , Grand Master

Have you noticed how David Daniel de Paul never mentions Satanism when he presents himself as a “Gnostic Templar?” However, things change when he writes without revealing his true identity on the website of the Brotherhood of Satan:

Satanic Truth from the Brotherhood of Satan by David Daniel de Paul

Hail Satan the only true Master of the Brotherhood! Throughout the Ages the Brotherhood has existed as the only real Secret Society from which all others sprang from that are of the Dark Occult Nature. No, we do not claim our lineage from any of the so-called existing Satanic Organizations but rather from SATAN whom we owe our only allegiance to. This is NOT an article that has been written because we seek the acceptance of others that have appointed themselves as the only spokesmen of Satanism, but rather because we are fed up with those that falsely represent themselves as such. This article is written because we will dispel a lot of the fabrications and libel going around with Satanic Truth. The truth being stated is greatly important to the Brotherhood of Satan because we do NOT want to look, or even seem, to be like all of the rest of the present Satanic Organizations out there that think that being a Satanic organization means that you must endeavor to libel, slander, and falsely claim untruths, that are simply LIES to say the very least. Instead, the Brotherhood of Satan wants to actually teach Satanism from the Generational and Old Traditional roots that it has really come from in the first place. When you see that the other Satanic Orgs out there are doing NOTHING besides libeling others to make themselves look good, it is very easy to see that they are part of the PROBLEM and certainly are NOT part of the solution. Satanism IS a highly individualistic philosophy and that has great truth in it but that does not mean we can not seek out others of a like mind to both practice and live Satanism with. Since Satanists are freethinkers, I think we can think for ourselves and we do not need other Satanists telling us “How to be a Satanist or What Satanism is or is not.” That is our own personal choice. When we think and act for ourselves, we are really then practicing REAL Satanism. As the Brotherhood of Satan moves forward (and we are not going to stop) we want to shed some light on the truth about us. Why not read the TRUTH as it is stated from the "Horses Mouth." As a organization, we are found in the very roots of antiquity and we are known to be a Ancient Satanic Organization tracing its origins to the early Demon Worshipping Cultures on our planet. We style ourselves as a Satanic Family that answers only to SATAN and no other Master. Do not be fooled by those that we are a direct threat because we do not seek their blessing upon anything we do for Satan. We are "The BROTHERHOOD," a Satanic Collective that can stand together as individual Satanists of Knowledge which is Power and can stand ORGANIZED and in UNITY.

The Brotherhood of Satan believes in Satan as a very real Entity and Deity, the very Oldest in Nature. The use of the Principles of Brotherhood between all Brotherhood of Satan members is the very cement of our foundation. Is the Brotherhood hiding something by its usage of secrecy in much of what we do in the Shadows? No, we are NOT. We do believe that Ancient Satanic Witchcraft has existed as a true but hidden tradition and therefore we do adhere to our traditions in a manner that is known to us as members of the Craft of Satanism. While the Brotherhood of Satan new Brotherhood generation has its own Satanic Craft secrets like all legitimate Dark Orders and Lodges have done, we still invite any Satanist or others of the Dark Arts organizations or solitary Dark Witches to our offline Sabbat festivals. If you want to see what we are all about then you should attend one. Just be ready to actually experience Brotherhood Satanism first hand. Recently there was a question raised because we had a Goat at the last Samhain Grand Sabbat Festival we sponsored. If we are Traditional Satanists it means we use tradition. It has always been traditional in the Dark Satanic Covens of the Brotherhood to have the SABBATIC GOAT present at the Sabbat ... DUH to whoever could have tried to insinuate that we would sacrifice our special representation of Baphomet and symbol of Satan LOL! The Brotherhood of Satan like any org out there has people out there that have had their membership removed (by violating our laws) or they so choose to remove themselves from the Organization. These same individuals then go out and like to lie about a Organization that they never really progressed into. These people then set themselves up to being more than they were even as just Disciples in the Brotherhood Organization. You can believe me when I say that Disciples in our Organization are only still Probationers of the Brotherhood so they would never qualify as experts on the Organization. The Brotherhood of Satan Organization does have its own REPRESENTATIVES and only they are even authorized to speak for the Organization as well as our Infernal High Clergy of Satanists. If you want to know about the Brotherhood of Satan, ask one of our Reps, or myself and I will be pleased to give you a “Infernal Introduction” to the Brotherhood of Satan USA. We at the Brotherhood of Satan Offices Nationwide thank you for your time. We offer our left hand in the Satanic Spirit of Cooperation regardless of our differences of opinion at times. Can we have UNITY in our DIVERSITY? YES WE CAN! With Satanic respect between one another. Far too much of Satan’s time has been wasted on the who knows the most gossip to spread about what individual Satanist leader or Satanist Org. Time to get over the stupidity there and let’s do something constructive for Satan and Satanism. If you can not even do that then the Brotherhood does not have the time for you to decide what needed changes there are and we will go on to continue the Infernal work of Satan as we have always done.

Druwydion Pendragon Magister Magnus
Brotherhood of Satan Director-Brotherhood National Office ⁴⁴

On a website that is no longer active, ⁴⁵ I found an official statement of David Daniel de Paul as Druwydion Pendragon, which fully confirmed the words of Benjamin T. Mollica about the dangers of the Brotherhood of Satan, and its privileged links with law enforcement, the judiciary world and American Freemasonry:

The Brotherhood has many contacts and links with the institutions, the police and the U.S. legal system, and they have a great respect for us both as individuals and as a Satanic organization. Many of our high priests are Freemasons or are part of secret societies linked to Freemasonry.

Is Freemasonry in the U.S. compromised by Aquino and his Council of Nine?

he executive power of the dangerous sect created in the mid-70s by Dr. Michael Aquino, is held by the Council of Nine, which appoints both the High Priest of Set, and its Executive Director.

The Temple of Set is highly-organized, and has members around the world, but since it avoids publicity and keeps names of the members secret, no one knows for sure how many there are. On their website, The Official Temple of Set World Wide Web Site, ⁴⁶ the disciples of Aquino openly declare themselves devotee's of black magic. However having said that, there has never been a case of violence reported by the media, or a criminal episode directly connected to the Temple of Set under investigation by U.S. police authorities. This might happen not only for their known discretion and secrecy, but especially for their vast influence. The Temple of Set, as well as its founder, Dr. Michael Aquino, have been plagued by lawsuits over the years, but in the end, no charges against Aquino were ever formalized.

In 1994, Aquino sued Linda Blood, a former member of the Temple of Set, for libel in her book The New Satanist. The book, Aquino's lawyers said, depicted him and his fellow Setians as "pedophiles, child abusers, murderers and the masterminds behind a nationwide Satanic conspiracy." This was settled out of court, with the details of the settlement kept confidential. Another lawsuit, in 1997, was brought against an Internet provider for failing to block defamatory posts from an anonymous user. A person using the name "Curio" had posted over 500 messages that accused Aquino of "having participated in heinous crimes, sexual perversions and acts of moral turpitude," according to Aquino's lawyers. The case against the Internet company ElectriCiti was thrown out of court. ⁴⁷

Jeffrey Steinberg wrote a couple of years later in EIR (Executive Intelligence Review) in 1999:

On Feb. 5, 1999, in U.S. District Court in Lincoln, Nebraska, an extraordinary hearing occurred in Paul A. Bonacci v. Lawrence E. King, a civil action in which the plaintiff charged that he had been ritualistically abused by the defendant, as part of a nationwide pedophile ring linked to powerful political figures in Washington and to elements of the U.S. military and Intelligence establishment. Three weeks later, on Feb. 27, Judge Warren K. Urbom ordered King, who is currently in Federal prison, to pay $1 million in damages to Bonacci, in what Bonacci's attorney John DeCamp said was a clear signal that "the evidence presented was credible."

During the Feb. 5 hearing, Noreen Gosch stunned the court with sworn testimony linking U.S. Army Lt. Col. Michael Aquino (ret.) to the nationwide pedophile ring. Her son, Johnny, then 12 years old, was kidnapped off the streets of West Des Moines, Iowa, on Sept. 5, 1982, while he was doing his early-morning newspaper deliveries. Since his kidnapping, she has devoted all of her time and resources to finding her son, and to exposing the dangers that millions of children in America face from this hideous, literally Satanic underground of ritualistic deviants. "We have investigated, we have talked to so far 35 victims of this said organization that took my son and is responsible for what happened to Paul, and they can verify everything that has happened," she told the court. "What this story involves is an elaborate function, I will say, that was an offshoot of a government program. The MK-Ultra program was developed in the 1950s by the CIA. It was used to help spy on other countries during the Cold War because they felt that the other countries were spying on us. It was very successful. They could do it very well."

Then, the Aquino bombshell: "Well, then there was a man by the name of Michael Aquino. He was in the military. He had top Pentagon clearances. He was a pedophile. He was a Satanist. He's founded the Temple of Set. And he was a close friend of Anton LaVey. The two of them were very active in ritualistic sexual abuse. And they deferred funding from this government program to use [in] this experimentation on children." 48

As you can see, the Temple of Set is definitely molded by a highly organized, sophisticated and intellectually prepared Satanist. It is certainly not a sect improvised for metalheads or your average Wiccan. On the contrary, it seems to exert some influence in the military circles, given its thriving membership and privileged contacts with the elite of the Illuminati in the United States and abroad. Jeffrey Steiberg also added in the article entitled, "Satanic Subversion of the U.S. Military" that:

Aquino was deeply involved in what has been called the "revolution in military affairs" ("RMA"), the introduction of the most kooky "Third Wave," or "New Age" ideas into military long-range planning, which introduced such notions as "information warfare" and "cyber-warfare" into the Pentagon's lexicon. In the early 1980s, at the same time that Heidi and Alvin Toffler were spinning their Tavistock "Third Wave" utopian claptrap to some top Air Force brass, Aquino and another U.S. Army colonel, Paul Vallely, were co-authoring an article for Military Review. Although the article was never published in the journal, the piece was widely circulated among military planners, and was distributed by Aquino's Temple of Set. The article, titled "From PSYOP to Mindwar: The Psychology of Victory," endorsed some of the ideas published in a 1980 Military Review article by Lt. Col. John Alexander, an affiliate of the Stanford Research Institute, a hotbed of Tavistock Institute and Frankfurt School "New Age" social engineering. 49

Set or Seth, also spelled Setesh, Sutekh, Setekh or Suty, is a god of the desert, storms, disorder, and violence in the ancient Egyptian religion.⁵⁰ Concerning the hieroglyphic image of Set, Te Velde states that it does not show the characteristics of an actual, living animal, and expresses doubt whether the hieroglyph can be traced to any animal that ever existed in the area of Egypt. Dr. Michael Aquino writes in his magnum opus, From Fetish to God in Ancient Egypt, Sir E. A. Wallis Budge “attempts to associate the Set-animal with the Saluki dog of Arabia. By way of evidence he cites the dog’s characteristically aggressive nature, ignoring the fact that it displays none of the aforementioned physical features. Hence Budge’s identification must be rejected.”⁵¹

This is how David Austen, a British representative of the Temple of Set, described Set while answering in 1993 the question: “What does Set represent?”

Basically, the individual’s psychic or mental energy—what they would call in Ancient Egypt the “nether.” The “me” that is talking to you is doing so through a series of meat cantilever systems and so forth. When that perishes or passes, instead of going into the cosmic whole—becoming one with the goddess or whatever— by sheer force of will the existence of that magician’s mind can be sustained. This is the whole idea of the Temple of Set, and we use the word “Xeper,” meaning to “become,” to define this. Set, whom we define as the Prince of Darkness, is a force about which you could say, “As we are now, he once was.” When you die your force can survive.⁵²

Austen replies later in the same interview, to an even more important question: “ Why do you become part of the Temple of Set?”

For many years I have been interested in the aspect of Set as the appearance as a being or entity. Before I joined the Temple I had my own magical group with a couple of other people. We looked at the Prince of Darkness as something that occurs in every society or religious faction—there is always an opposite to the deity they say is “Good.”

We came to the conclusion that we would refer to this entity as the “Dark Lord,” and he would be anthropoid but faceless. Looking at this concept as a diamond, Satan or Lucifer were just other facets of that diamond, purely ways of achieving workings which encompassed the whole. So, if any are particularly drawn to the gothic Satanist current, fine, use rituals based around that. In our Temple of Darkness you could equally find Satanists, followers of Set, or followers of other paths, according to the principle that the whole is a psychodrama anyway. Magic is basically the Western version of yoga. Everything that happens in magic happens first in your head.⁵³

The Temple of Set was created in the mid-seventies by a schism within the Church of Satan. This event took place partly because of the “generational Satanism” controversy that was opposed by Anton LaVey and supported instead by Dr. Michael Aquino, who has been linked in the past to Psychological Operations (PSYOP) and the infamous trauma-based Monarch Project of the CIA’s MK-Ultra. By analyzing the work of the aforementioned “Setians,” John and Lillie Allee, who belong to Aquino’s innercircle, we understand that these people are not playing with Satanism, but are the real deal, operating for the New World Order.

To give you an idea of Aquino’s philosophy of life, here is a key passage taken from his book Black Magic dedicated to “The Two Paths”:

Reportedly the terms originated in Tantrism, a school of Mahayana Buddhism in northern India which taught that Buddhahood can be realized through various theurgic practices. For mantra and mudra ceremonies the female was positioned to the right of the male; for erotic rites she was positioned to the left. (#13C) Theosophy's H.P. Blavatsky felt sex-magic to be immoral and perverse, so she subsequently employed the term LHP to characterize the magical systems she didn't like, and the term RHP to characterize the ones she did, i.e. Theosophy. Post-Blavatsky the terms have been expanded through popular usage to refer generally to what the Temple of Set defines as white magic (RHP) and Black Magic (LHP). Most popular-occult organizations, to be sure, use the two terms simply to identify their moral biases. What they consider "good" is RHP, and what they consider "evil" is LHP. After Aleister Crowley left the Golden Dawn, he portrayed it as a "Black Lodge" and his own A.'.A.'. as the "Great White Brotherhood"; while on the other side of the fence W.B. Yeats and other G.'.D.'. leaders considered Crowley to be the Black Magician. To further complicate the matter, there have been some deliberately criminal "Satanic" organizations which have avowedly followed the LHP as defined by those who consider it synonymous with degenerate and destructive practices. Such episodes have of course served to reinforce the conventional religious image of Satanism and Black Magic as nefarious practices. So enduring was this stereotype that the Church of Satan found it very difficult to break free from it during the entire decade of its existence. All sorts of creeps, crackpots, criminals, and cranks pounded on the door of the Church, assuming that it would excuse and encourage whatever social shortcomings they embraced. The Temple of Set has avoided this problem, presumably because "Satan" is popularly associated with "evil" while "Set" is largely unknown outside of Egyptological circles. The Temple of Set's LHP orientation is, as noted above, a function of its definition of Black Magic. No moral or ethical stances are implied by the terms LHP and RHP per se, since they refer to techniques and systems rather than to the ends to which they are applied. ⁵⁴

In general “There are No moral or ethical stances” taken by the Temple of Set, just “soulless robots” loyal to their “Prince of Darkness” who is only a benign character. Of course don’t be fooled by his lies, let’s not forget Aquino was investigated by the San Francisco police for child molestation allegations in 1987 while he was stationed at the Presidio Army Base in San Francisco, but once again, no charges.

Some say this scandal erupted to punish Aquino for staging a Satanic “working” at Himmler’s SS Wewelsburg Castle in 1984, a once pseudo-religious sanctum for the SS, shrouded in mystery since 1945. A Newsweek article dated November 16, 1987 entitled, The Second Beast of Revelation Claims of Satanism and Child Molesting, is typical of just one of the dozens of news articles describing the case, as it made the national and international news at the time. Interestingly enough, Aquino’s mother, who is deceased, was noted to be a Temple of Set high priestess, and the owner of a building rented to an organization that helped families find daycare, proving Aquino’s generational link to Satanism, and suggesting also the possibility that Aquino’s mother’s daycare was actually used to find human material for their Satanic ceremonies and perverse rituals. However as described in appellate documents, SFPD dropped their investigation in August, 1988, and that was the end of the story. Having said all this, if the American Freemasons were really interested in keeping their lodges psychically and spiritually clean, they should immediately throw out dangerous and deviant figures like Aquino’s disciples from their lodges. Ignoring this problem in the name of relativism is not the solution. True Freemason’s, loyal to the Anderson’s Constitutions, should challenge lodges where Satanists are active and challenge them on the level.

A sordid tale that shows us yet another side of the Masonic reality of today, that increasingly embraces black magic and Satanism as a way of life, even publicly with no shame, no matter how obvious the contrast is with the principles of Masonry. I showed you in Volume I of my Confessions that this is happening in the Ordo Templi Orientis, and now in Volume II, I am digging deeper into the Occult and Satanic realities of today, so you can comprehend better the global network of the dark side of the Illuminati, and their evil ideology. Here is David Daniel de Paul addressing his fellow Satanists as a Satanic Grand Commander:

Always honor yourself first because you as a member of the Brotherhood are so honored as such. What this means from the Brotherhood perspective is this: As known, the Brotherhood has always stood for the Individual Satanist first. We seek to take great Satantas and to help them become even greater and this is one of our most important of goals. By becoming a member of the Brotherhood you stand as a Individual Satanist of Power which to us has always been knowledge. Honor always the Master Satanists first, your SELF second, and the Brotherhood third. The true Brotherhood Satanist knows with conviction that by serving the Master we are truly then serving ourselves. Brotherhood Satanists will ALWAYS stand out as those Satanists that command and recieve respect from others and are indeed so honored as such for their lifetime and through Eternity.

Note: The Brotherhood would not exist without the exceptional abilities of its membership and the practical application of the Brotherhood Satanic Principles by them.

11) Be a Active part of the Brotherhood, for we have always been those that know and those that do. What this means from the Brotherhood perspective is this: The Brotherhood has been around for thousands of years because we as its members have always been Active and are Practioners of Satanism and the Black Arts. Our very deeds and the deeds of our Brotherhood Dark Ancestors are WHAT has made the name The Brotherhood Immortal to this day as it shall always remain in legend and history itself.

Note: The Brotherhood takes its Traditions very serious and we only want the truely dedicated of Satanists as members. Remember Wisely that the Satanist that takes NO ACTION will be known by their inaction while those that honor themselves by their deeds as well as their words by action, will also be known for their own Personal Power and Satanic Wisdom.

Practical experience is always the very best of teachers and this is the Brotherhood Way. Practical Experience is only gained by being one of those that KNOW and Do. There is NO OTHER WAY to BECOME A SATANIC MASTER that can create their own Destiny.

12) Do not keep wisdom from others in the Brotherhood, but instead always strive to share your Wisdom and Knowledge. What this means from the Brotherhood perspective is this: Those that have proven their worth as a Brotherhood member BY THEIR ACTIONS should be able to learn the Mysteries of the Brotherhood as is their Satanic given rightful inheritance and as Brotherhood members we are instructed to share our Satanic Knowledge always to those that deserve to learn and understand Brotherhood Satanism. As true members of the Brotherhood we have ALWAYS been known as the Custodians and the KEEPERS OF THE MYSTERIES. To do this we must after all, KNOW the Mysteries and to whom they should rightfully be entrusted to.

13) Remember always that Knowledge is Power and Knowledge used with Wisdom is what makes us all great. For we are the BROTHERHOOD, and our names and words are written in the Book of Satan and we are Immortal. What this means from the Brotherhood perspective is this: If we continue as we have done throughout the Ages, in the use of our Satanic Knowledge tempered with Wisdom, all of us here in the present Brotherhood incarnation will only CONTINUE to make ourselves both individually and as a organization, Immortal. The rest is up to us. Eat from the very old Brotherhood Tree of Knowledge to really UNDERSTAND. The Deepest Understanding is the TRUTH of all things—Satan

Thanks to the Freemason Benjamin T. Mollica's initial tip, (FIG. 62) we have a clear insight into the Satanic activities of this dangerous sect. I hope you have learned something from these unsavory characters from the Satanic realm.

My friend and Brother, the late Enrico Simoni, a 33° Grand Cross of the Court of Honour and a member of the Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis, in a paper on Anti-Masonry prepared for the Brothers of the Grand Orient of Italy called, Anti-Masonry Yesterday and Today, presented in a joint session to various Italian Lodges meeting on the 11th of June 2011, (two years before his premature death due to brain cancer) asked the Masons who were present, if Anti-Masonry "Is a psychosis," or if on the contrary this old problem is sometimes due to the non-regular behavior and bad conduct of some Masons. Adding at the end of his brilliant introduction: "On our side we definitely need the words conveyed through publications and events but, more importantly, is the example we give with our behavior. Behavior that must be in line with the Ancient Charges." 55

The “Ancient Charges” published in the current Book of Constitutions of the United Grand Lodge of England altered little from those originally published by Anderson. “Ancient Charges, Regulations and Landmarks” are familiar words to Freemasons. What is called “Anderson’s Constitution of 1723” contains both the “Charges of a Freemason” and the “General Regulations.” It is noteworthy that the 39th regulation declares, “Every Annual Grand Lodge has an inherent Power and Authority to make new Regulations or to alter these, for the real benefit of this ancient Fraternity; Provided that the old Landmarks be carefully preserved, etc.” Anyone who does not respect the “The CHARGES of a FREE-MASON, ” that clearly state on point Concerning GOD and RELIGION, the following:

A Mason is oblig’d by his Tenure, to obey the moral Law; and if he rightly understands the Art, he will never be a stupid Atheist nor an irreligious Libertine. But though in ancient time,s Masons were charg’d in every Country to be of the Religion of that Country or Nation, whatever it was, yet ‘tis now thought more expedient only to oblige them to that Religion in which all Men agree, leaving their particular Opinions to themselves; that is, to be good Men and true, or Men of Honour and Honesty, by whatever Denominations or Persuasions they may be distinguish’d; whereby Masonry becomes the Center of Union, and the Means of conciliating true Friendship among Persons that must have remain’d at a perpetual Distance.

In the original text of The 13 Laws of the Brotherhood of Satan Explained, we find at point 6 the following added note that clears the role of the Satanic Illuminati Council:

The Satanic Illuminati Council is NOT established for the purpose of control over the Brotherhood membership. It has been in existence for many thousands of years behind the scenes of many world events and we merely continue to be those with many long years in Satanism, Luciferianism, Magick, and the Left-Hand Path practical use and knowledge. We are the Brotherhood Elders and Scions and we are the Councilors and Organizers. We are the representatives of Moriah the Conquering Wind. ⁵⁶

And now a further investigation in the nature of brainwashing, a speciality of the former Lieutenant Colonel Michael Aquino (FIG. 63).
Brainwashing ...

T

his subchapter contains revelatory material on the subject of “brainwashing” extracted from an almost unknown essay entitled “Occult History,” the result of 14 years of research by author William H. Kennedy, also known as “Teddy,” who passed away suddenly and suspiciously at his home in the month of August, 2013, at the age of 48. His death was never really investigated, and when approached about it, his family seemed quite scared to stir things up, and no attention was given whatsoever to his passing by the media. Teddy was a controversial life-long Catholic writer and radio host, and he was the author of the now out-of-print and highly collectable books: Satanic Crime—A Threat in the New Millennium, and the even more controversial title Lucifer’s Lodge: Satanic Ritual Abuse in the Catholic Church. He was also a regular guest on the late Dr. Stan Monteith’s nationally syndicated radio show. ⁵⁷

Is Brainwashing Possible? by William H. Kennedy

In 2003, when the Utah police confronted a missing kidnapped fifteen year old girl who was walking with her abductors she gave a strange reply. When the officer told the girl “you are Elizabeth Smart” she replied “Thou Sayest” and seemed to want to remain with her captors before she burst into tears and admitted that she was the missing teenager after about 1/2 hour of police questioning. Elizabeth was in fact quoting a Biblical passage where Jesus rebuffs Pilate when the Roman Governor asked Him if He was the King of the Jews.

On the way to the police station Elizabeth did something quite unexpected. She began to defend her abductors and claimed that she did not want them to get into trouble or go to jail. Elizabeth was kidnapped by an ex-communicated Mormon named Brian David Mitchell and his wife Wanda Barzee who lived a cult-like existence. Mitchell sees himself as a Prophetic and at times Messianic figure. In his deranged worldview he came to the conclusion that Elizabeth Smart was his God ordained second wife after he completed some minor repair work at the Smart home. After he captured Elizabeth at knife point by cutting a window screen and entering her bedroom he took her on a seven month Odyssey through a strange world of homelessness, preaching and begging, the details of which are only slowly emerging in the popular media.

The fact that Ms. Smart defended her captors comes as no surprise to the psychiatrists, criminologists and military psychologists who reviewed the case. It became apparent that Elizabeth had been “brainwashed” by Mitchell to function in certain ways if she were ever taken by the police .

This strange control that Mitchell exerted over the teenager came via various techniques used by captors to manipulate the behavior of their prisoner.

No one in the popular media ever asks what “brainwashing” really is or how this process operates. It seems to be a “given” and accepted explanation for a wide variety of unusual human actions. Everything from the 9-11 attacks to the murderous crimes of teenager John Malvo the co-D.C. sniper, is explained by the phenomenon of ‘brainwashing.’”

For a better understanding of this phenomenon it would be best to divide our subject into two subgroups for examination; Brainwashing (which will focus on the process used by individuals and certain groups) and Mind Control (a method used by government security services to control the actions of agents and captives). Of course the two definitions are provisional and they certainly intersect in many areas.

Brainwashing has been defined as “Intensive, forcible indoctrination, usually political or religious, aimed at destroying a person’s basic convictions and attitudes and replacing them with an alternative set of fixed beliefs ... The application of a concentrated means of persuasion, such as an advertising campaign or repeated suggestion, in order to develop a specific belief or motivation.” –American Heritage Dictionary

The term “brainwashing” itself comes not from psychology, psychiatry or any of the social sciences but rather from the world of journalism. During the Korean War Edward Hunter, a British journalist coined the word “brainwashing” (roughly based on a Chinese term) to characterize the process by which American POWs became communists in a book entitled Brainwashing in Red China (1951). In Hunter’s reckoning U.S. servicemen who became communists and refused to come home were in reality being manipulated by a series of psychological techniques directed toward making the POWs take destructive action against themselves and their country against their wills. This process is catalyzed by a variety of procedures which involve torture, sleep deprivation, hypnosis, drugs and threats as well as rewards for compliance.

Two primary elements for brainwashing come into play here. Isolation from normal contacts like family and friends combined with intimidation will eventually cause some subjects—like the U.S. servicemen—to comply with the thought processes proscribed by the captor. Oddly, this state of affairs can emerge when the subjugator does not intend or expect a brainwashing process to occur as in the following example.

In 1973, four Swedish bank tellers were held in a large cash vault for six days during a foiled bank robbery attempt. Strangely, the hostages became attached to their captors; a phenomenon dubbed the “Stockholm Syndrome” after this event. As bizarre as it seems the women began to resist being rescued.

After the police ended the siege and arrested the robbers the women defended them and refused to testify against the criminals. The former hostages hired a defense lawyer to defend the jailed robbers and began to raise money for a defense fund. The four women regularly visited their former captors in prison and it is reported that one of these former hostages became engaged to one of the imprisoned criminals.

She was adamant about marrying a vicious bank robber who came extremely close to executing her in the bungled burglary attempt. How can such an irrational and destructive behavior on the part of these women be explained?

According to psychologists, the abused bond to their abusers as a means to endure violence. The most notorious instance of this phenomenon came in 1974 when newspaper heiress Patty Hearst who was kidnapped by the Symbionese Liberation Army, and after some months, renamed herself “Tanya” and joined their ranks to rob banks. The Stockholm Syndrome is an emotional accessory, a sick union of co-dependence between the confined and the subjugator that develops when the aggressor threatens the life of the victim, deliberates, and chooses not to kill the captive. The relief which emerges from the removal of impending death generates intense feelings of gratitude and awe that combine to make the captive reluctant to display negative attitudes toward the captor.

It is this psychological dynamic centering on gratitude, which causes former hostages to play down the damage done to them and decline to cooperate in prosecuting their former oppressors. The victim’s need to survive outweighs his/her impulse to hate the person who has created the predicament. The victim comes to see the captor as a “good guy,” even as a “savior.” At this juncture the victim is certainly “brainwashed” in the sense that he/she is exhibiting behaviors and expressing opinions which are contrary to their beliefs before their capture. Patty Hearst was a young college student from an aristocratic background—robbing banks to fund Marxist revolutionaries was definitely not a behavior she endorsed before her capture.

According to authorities this condition occurs in response to the four specific conditions listed below:

- A person threatens to kill another and is perceived as having the capability to do so.
- The other cannot escape, so her or his life depends on the threatening person.

- The threatened person is isolated from outsiders so that the only other perspective

taxil mystifiCation

available to her or him is that of the threatening person.

- The threatening person is perceived as showing some degree of kindness to the one being threatened.

It takes only 3-4 days for the characteristic bond of the Stockholm Syndrome to emerge when captor and captive are strangers. After that, research shows, the duration of captivity is no longer relevant.

It is no wonder than that Ms. Smart defended her abductors and seemed more concerned with their well-being than her own or that of her biological family. A new form of brainwashing has been observed with the recent priest sex scandal in the Roman Catholic Church. It seems that subjects need not be completely isolated from normal contacts to be brainwashed.

I venture to coin the term “subtle brainwashing” to signify this phenomenon. Many of the children who were molested for years lived with their parents who had no idea that the abuse was occurring.

The priests used a variety of low level threats and bribes to keep the children from revealing the sexual activity to anyone. This subtle process builds up over years and is eventually combined with the false suggestion that the victim is at fault for the molestation. This sense of induced shame is what caused most of the victims to remain silent for decades. For any skeptics who may challenge this assertion consider the dramatic “impact statement” (confrontation) at the Ronald Paquin sex abuse trial in Salem, Massachusetts. A 26 year old victim stated the following under oath in a court of law:

You brainwashed me ... as your sex slave ... you created a world for me where I believed that “it’s normal for sons to shower with their fathers” ... a world where “ fathers and sons” are supposed to share these sexual acts ... Ronald Paquin, you are a sexual predator of exploitable innocents ... you abused your title of “Father” ... I am ashamed that your brainwashing lasted as long as it did with me. ⁵⁸

It is a phenomenon which is only beginning to be studied by social scientists and law enforcement officials. Robert Anton Wilson explored the phenomenon of Mind Control when he researched the CIA's shocking experiment in mental indoctrination and behavioral manipulation called the MK-ULTRA program in his book Everything is Under Control (1998):

The origins of MK-ULTRA go back to WWII, when the U.S. Army began researching barbiturates and marijuana as aids to interrogation. George Eastbrooks was a leading proponent of hypnosis as the key to interrogation and general mind manipulation of all sorts, and in 1971 he said he used hypnosis to create multiple personalities for military Intelligence purposes.

After the Korean War, the CIA began MK-ULTRA as a top secret effort to discover the best techniques, or combinations of techniques, to alter minds in any way desired. Hypnosis, drugs, newer and more complex than barbs and pot, psycho surgery, and various attempts at a "truth serum" were all extensively investigated.

One aim was to extract information from captured enemies; another, equally important, was to create agents with so many levels of mental control that they could not have information tortured out of them or even, in some cases, be aware that they were carrying secret information.

58 Boston Globe 1/3/03 "Molester Priest Paquin Cuts Deal to Testify in Abuse Civil Lawsuits" by Tom Mashberg.

Research moved on to include LSD, ketamine, psilocybin, and the implanting of electrodes in the brain. Lobotomy was tested, along with electroconvulsive shock. One researcher believed that total mind control could be achieved by combining electroshock, LSD, and having the subject's own voice played back through headphones. That sure sounds like it would fry your brain, doesn't it?

Wilson's basic analysis touches upon several important issues concerning mind control. The central issue concerns manipulating a subject in such a way as to make him/her behave against their will and even to sacrifice their life in the process. This is really the heart and soul of mind control programs. The ability to program a subject to undertake actions that are contrary to their beliefs is incredible and would be a huge boon to government security services. The complex methods to achieve this end are relatively inexpensive. The chronicling of the Stockholm Syndrome, combined with the recent proof of brainwashing techniques being employed by Catholic priests to control the behavior of children, demonstrates how susceptible humans are to programmed conditioning by authoritative figures. Highly funded mind control experiments—like the MK-ULTRA program—would have achieved great success considering how vulnerable the human psyche is to various forms of environmental management. Rumors that various techniques of ideological mind control go back to the Persian Assassin, leader Hassan-I-Sabah, who used drugs to manipulate the behavior of his fanatical soldiers. There is more detailed information on Hassan-I-Sabah and the subject of Mind Control in Volume I of my Confessions. ⁵⁹

Aquino's Neo-Theosophy and other diableries

U

Understanding the danger represented by Dr. Michael Aquino's activities, some of the members of the Monte Carlo Lodge headed by Ezio Giunchiglia back in 2005, invited Dr. Michael Aquino to Monaco, to confront him on their doubts about his work. Certainly the "pidduisti" (members of the P2) were not afraid of a controversial figure like Michael Aquino. Some of them spoke openly in the past of being part of the mysterious secret department known as the "K Office," allegedly part of SISMI (the Italian Military Intelligence and Security Service) that ceased operations in 2007. It is said that this Office was dedicated to those Italian 007, with a license to kill, and that the letter K stood for "Killer." (64) Aquino, however, has been a member of the U.S. Armed Forces, and because of this, never believed of Monte Carlo's link to NATO, as Ezio Giunchiglia and his associates, were serious in wanting to confront him. Aquino did not show up in Monte Carlo, but a written record of this episode from the lodge archives gives us a novel view of Aquino's current ideology, confirming not only his "Orwellian" nature, but also the unconditional support of Theosophy that appeals to globalists, and well-known Satanists like himself:

From Dr. Michael A. Aquino < xeper@sbcglobal.net> 07/30/05 at 8:21 PM: Dear Mr. Zagami and Mr. Giunchiglia,

Thank you for your kind invitation to meet with you in Monte Carlo. Please accept my apologies that current responsibilities will probably keep me stuck in California for the foreseeable future, though I can't think of a more pleasant escape than Monaco.

I took a look through your Statute and found its "Aims" admirable, though my impression was also that you may discourage readers with the extensive sections on organization/control. The Temple of Set has its philosophy in one area of documents, and its organizational design in another (California Articles of Incorporation and By-Laws). We have found this works well for us.

I always admire utopian visions and efforts to better this poor planet, even as I confess I have little hope for their success. Applied-politically I am at best a Stoic and at worst an Orwellian. Upon considering your "Aims" I think that you might find the works of Raghavan Iyer interesting:

<http://theosophy.org/>

Raghavan was a good friend of mine for many years, as well as one of my most valued teachers. (He was Professor of Political Science at the University of California where I got my own doctorate in that field.) He was by no means an "ordinary Theosophist," but a brilliant theorist beyond any labels. In my own university teaching later, I regularly used his book Parapolitics, which contained a superb application of Plato to modern social problems.

Thank you for offering to send me a copy of your book.

Dr. Michael Aquino was not the only Satanist that attracted the Monte Carlo lodge in that period. The Committee was made up of Grand Masters of various bodies operating in Italy in that period, including those related to some fringe groups dedicated to Satanism and Crowleyanity, such as Roberto Negrini, (FIG. 64) the O.H.O. of the Franco-Haitian and Italian Filiation of the Ordo Templi Orientis known as O.T.O.-F.H.L. (Fraternitas Hermetica Luciferiana or Luciferian Hermetic Brotherhood), not to be confused in any way with the more legitimate Caliphate O.T.O. In their own words:

This structure was virtually international and eclectic, in which the various Traditions and heritages of the Neo-Gnostic, Thelemic and Draconian knowledge banks were assembled, practiced and oriented towards an ideal harmonisation. In some of its specific characteristics, the O.T.O.-F.H.L. is closely linked to the Egyptian Masonic Communion of A:P:R:O:I:M:M: (Antico e Primevo Rito Osiriaco degli Illuminati di Memphis e Mitzraïm), translated as the Ancient and Primitive Osirian Rite of the Illuminati of Memphis-Misraïm. In its high ranks and in connection with key formulae such as "Arcana Arcanorum," this Order maintains and reifies the theurgic techniques of Martinism and Willermozism of the 18th Century. It also deals with the syncretic Martinist Tradition as developed by Saint Martin and Papus, in the form of pure experimentation from a mystical-Shamanic and theurgic-operational points of view, thus devoid of any Judeo-Christian religious or devotional connotation.

A few members of the O.T.O.-F.H.L. and the A :P:R:O:I:M:M: are currently also engaged in the cultural and para-academic fronts through their involvement in the A.Ps.A.D. (Akkademia Pan-Sophica Alpha Draconis).

The A.Ps.A.D. is a cultural organisation founded in 1979 that has no initiatic obedience to any particular order but is under the patronage of the Italian O.T.O. and its Tradition. The organisation is heavily involved in the various sectors of art, science, philosophy, anthropology and sociology, with the purpose of performing an interdisciplinary study and horizontal diffusion on the Magical Draconian Renaissance.

Also in Italy,
aside from a myriad of Thelemic and neo-Pagan groups that are more or less operative but not part of any historical and structured organisation, there are at least two other Thelemic branches that should be mentioned. One of them is of Californian origin and connected to the “Caliphate-O.T.O.” and the other is of Swiss origin and called the S:O:T:V:L: or Sovrano Ordine del Tempio della Via della Luceliv, translated as the Sovereign Order of the Temple of the Path of Light. Both of them have a certain historical or egregorical validity in the succession of the O.T.O. or the A:A:. They are also dedicated to the study and practice of the Thelemic Works in close connection with Crowley’s work, although not exclusively.⁶⁰

focused as a group on the evocation of the same evil entities that were evoked originally by Aleister Crowley during his period of stay in the infamous Abbey of Thelema in Cefalu in Sicily. A kind of antechamber of hell on one side, and a mind control camp on the other, that generated a powerful and destructive Egregore that still resides there and that Negrini wanted to use.

For this reason O.T.O.-F.H.L., despite their modest size and their seemingly marginal influence in the outside world, are still considered a dangerous sect, and a very influential especially in "magical terms." It is no coincidence that someone involved with pedophilia and Crowleyanity, like Roberto Negrini, called his "magickal" current Mysteria Mystica Zothyriana 666, emanating from what he called his Mother Lodge, the Ra-Harmachis Lodge, where they practiced an irregular and deviant form of the Ancient and Primitive Rite of Memphis and Mitzraim. (FIG. 65) A Masonic rite reformed according to their particular anti-Christian and anti-Semitic visions, linked to what Negrini calls "scientific Illuminism," a term originally coined by Aleister Crowley. A circular letter sent to O.T.O.-F.H.L. members in the first half of the ‘90s by their former Chancellor, summarizes the basic aspects of this Illuminati sect headed by the dangerous black magician Roberto

Negrini. In the text in question they refer openly to the practice of magic and sexual magick, plus specific lycanthropic rituals reserved to the highest degrees of the order. This document was originally published by the Italian University Professor Cecilia Gatto Trocchi (1939-2005) in her book Affare Magia, (“Magic Affair”) and it discusses “Power zones” specifically created in the cities of Trieste, Bergamo and Reggio Calabria and evocations of States of Consciousness and Star Contact with the Ancient Extra Human Powers and extraterrestrials, whose real execution is reserved to the most High Degrees of the Order. Negrini is called in the document Frater TAU MOLOCH, yes you have read correctly; Moloch! On October 10, 1989 at 10 PM, Roberto Negrini appeared on the Italian TV network “Canale 5” in the second episode of the show “ARCANA.” After an elaborate interview, Negrini went on to simulate live on TV for the first time in history, the realization of a sexual magickal ritual. Yes I know, it is pretty sick and perverse, but Italian TV in those years was the home of soft porn after a certain hour at night, and such a monstrosity was regarded as acceptable for the audience in those days. He avoided for obvious reasons, the use of real adepts, so to protect their privacy, using instead actors to complete the celebration of the Rituals before the cameras, stating officially to the press, that the reason was the tremendous dangers for television operators and technicians involved in the filming of it. ⁶²

The many books and the important research done in the 1980s and ‘90s by Professor Cecilia Gatto Trocchi might have eventually brought her to a downfall that became final with her tragic end by suicide on July 11th of 2005, officially caused by the loss of her son, who had just died of leukemia. Cecilia’s work at the time in Italy did upset for sure certain occult groups, and she was not able to defend herself, both physically and psychically. The theme of “psychic defense” in particular is of great importance for the Illuminati, and I will introduce to you in great detail in the final chapter of this book. Many in Italy think that Trocchi became a victim of the evil spirits operated by the dark and perverse forces piloted against her by the dark side of the Illuminati dedicated to black magic and psychic attacks. This was

“UNIVERSAL-UNITY” è un’Associazione di Uomini Liberi, senza scopo di lucro, costituita tra i sottoscritti con intendimenti di altissimo valore spirituale e morale, la quale adotta il seguente

STATUTO

Art. 1 - Denominazione, sede sociale e durata dell’associazione.

La Libera Associazione assume la denominazione “UNIVERSAL-UNITY” (breve U.U.), ha una durata illimitata, e stabilisce la propria sede legale in MONTECARLO - Principato di Monaco - 38, Av. Dell’Annonciade sede amministrativa in Italia - SANREMO (18038) Str. sen. E. MARSAGLIA

Art. 2 - Oggetto Sociale.

L’Associazione è antidogmatica e si propone la ricerca di un equilibrio interiore fra gli esseri umani, e l’attuazione di qualsiasi iniziativa intesa a promuovere il Bene dell’Uomo e dell’Umanità, considerando il Mondo senza Frontiere, come una Patria Unica, senza arsenali atomici ed armi batteriologiche, e possibilmente anche con una moneta unica.

Per il conseguimento dei suoi scopi intende chiamare a se tutti gli esseri umani che condividono i suddetti principi che l’Associazione intende praticare con indipendenza sovrana, con particolare attenzione ai fratelli Massoni, attivi od in sonno, onde diffondere, con i principi sopra enunciati, anche gli ideali della pura Massoneria Universale, ma senza dipendere da alcuna delle Grandi Logge legittimamente costituite che operano in qualsiasi parte del Mondo.

Per la pratica attuazione dei propri scopi, intende diffondersi in tutto il Mondo e compiere ogni e qualsiasi operazione, anche finanziaria, compreso, ove occorra, l’investimento in attività immobiliari e la relativa gestione, qualora sia utile ai propri scopi, purché sempre senza fine di lucro.

Intende curare la gestione di una Casa Editrice denominata “Universal Unity”, nonché valersi di ogni altro mezzo di comunicazione secondo la più moderna tecnologia, per la pubblicazione e la diffusione del pensiero che sarà elaborato dai propri associati.

Intende promuovere riunioni periodiche fra gli associati, per un attivo scambio di opinioni e d’informazioni, attraverso il quale il libero pensiero possa svilupparsi e diffondersi, sempre sotto l’impero della legge morale e comunque per la realizzazione dei principi fondamentali sopra enunciati.

FIG. 67 – This document published in 2005 by the Universal Unity shows without a doubt the link between the Universal Unity and the Monte Carlo Lodge based in the Principality of Monaco at number 38 of av. de l'Annonciade in those days Ezio Giunchiglia's residence in the principality. The administrative headquarters instead, were in nearby Italy in Sanremo at the office of the late Francesco Murgia.

chi had increasingly fallen victim to many acts of intimidation, like the time she found a dead bird in her garden, killed in a black magic ritual. The animal's neck was tied with a red ribbon with the emblem of Satan and a skull. Attached to the emblem there was a sheet with a message that ended with an indication of the infamous Satanic number 666. Five years earlier, Trocchi found in her garden a dead pig with its heart pierced by a pin. In the occult world, there are many rumors on how Trocchi's suicide was murder. Among the reasons that could have led to her death, was her last television appearance made on February 27th, 2004 on the program Riddles on Rai Tre.⁶³ During the show the announcer even begged her to "not to name names and to not reveal the identity of politicians and people in power who are part of such sects," she nodded her head in disgust and unwillingly accepted. Roberto Negrini for example, and sociologist and Jesuit agent Massimo Introvigne, were both becoming increasingly upset by Trocchi's work.

Introvigne in particular began to criticize and throw mud at Trocchi, writing an article published in The Sociological Criticism ⁶⁴ in the first half of the 1990s. Interestingly enough, Massimo Introvigne and Roberto Negrini, for a brief period were also linked with the prestigious Monte Carlo Lodge research group. Introvigne joined as honorary member because of his friendship with the known English right wing intellectual, Freemason and occultist, Jonothon Boulter, connected with Jean Pierre Giudicelli, also linked to Massimo Introvigne back in the days of the Group of Thebes and now currently involved in running the Oriente Osirideo Egizio in Nice. Negrini in Monte Carlo? An occult oddity to say the least, that lasted only a few seasons, as he was ostracized for being openly Satanic and in league with evil entities.

In the words of the same Negrini, he works for the “ creation of Power-Zones for contact with extradimensional entities defined symbolically as extraterrestrials. ⁶⁵ Ezio Giunchiglia, interested in activating contact with such entities, even thought that working with Negrini could be useful for this purpose. That was until he was arrested for the possession of a large amount of child pornography. Negrini had in his possession 4,800 images and 130 videos. ⁶⁶ Only a few prior Negrini held a conference in Bologna at Villa Leona, (FIG. 66) a place usually used by the Opus Dei and owned by Monte Carlo Lodge member Carlo Maria Baserga. This private event was arranged by members of the Masonic Universal Unity of Ezio Giunchiglia (FIG. 67) in 2005. However the various Clubs of the Universal Unity compromised by my Internet revelations and the books I later published in Italy, plus Marco Paret’s incompetency in Masonic and Illuminati matters, eventually terminated their activities. Massimo Introvigne, wrote in his memorable research on “New Religious Movements” that the creation of “Power-zones” was one of Negrini’s specialities which he attempted with magical operations in Cefalu, Ife, Nigeria, Cairo, Mount Sinai, Montsegur, and Monte Carlo; where Giunchiglia authorized him to perform a black magic ritual, and other secret locations. I think this insane act was partly to blame for the end of the once prestigious Monte Carlo Lodge of the P2. Another occultist connected to the P2 milieu is Grand Master Frank G. Ripel (aka Gianfranco Perilli), one of Italy’s leading experts on Aleister Crowley, who appointed himself in 2010, 100° of the Ancient and Primitive Rite of Memphis and Mitzraim, using the bombastic title of Sovereign Maker of the Worlds. A controversial position that appears only once in a book of the late Count Gastone Ventura, dedicated to the Masonic Rites of Memphis and Misraim of which he was a Grand Master: “It seems they wanted to assign the 100° degree of Sovereign Maker of the Worlds. Fortunately for the seriousness of these two Eastern Rites, the Grand Hierophant Troilo Guarino didn’t agree on having upon him the Sublime Master Unknown and everything went to hell.”⁶⁷ In short, Gastone Ventura was not convinced the 100° could help Freemasonry in any way, but Frank G. Ripel, which according to CESNUR, also claims to be the reincarnation of Aleister Crowley, and even the Antichrist, seems convinced of his eccentric choice. After Frank G. Ripel became a 100° degree (obviously irregular and not recognized by any “regular” Masonic body), he donated the 99th honorary degree, to the late Count Licio Gelli,⁶⁸ who apparently accepted. Frank G. Ripel, just like the aforementioned Roberto Negrini, are both linked to Crowleyanity and the dark side of the Illuminati.

In a letter dated 28th of June 1989, Licio Gelli who was not at all impressed by Crowley’s disciples and despised black magic, expressed his positive judgment on Frank G. Ripel’s previous books, attracted by Ripel’s project for an Illuminati Knighthood that will be later be called O.C.I. (Ordine Cavalieri Illuminati) and will eventually come to light twelve years later, in 2001.⁶⁹

The Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis (Order of the Illuminati of the Universe) (FIG. 69) was founded by Ezio Giunchiglia and myself in Monte Carlo in 1999 later joined by Jean-Pierre Giudicelli de Cressac Bachelerie.

The Ordine Cavalieri Illuminati (Order of Illuminati Knights) was founded by Frank G. Ripel in Trieste in 2001.

The Accademia Internazionale degli Illuminati (International Academy of the Illuminati) was founded by Giuliano di Bernardo in Rome in 2002.

Today my Order, has now collected and officially become the heir of this controversial legacy after the death of Licio Gelli. The Count surprising left the whole Masonic and Illuminati Community astonished by nominating before his death General Bartolomeu Constantin Săvoiu a member of the Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis ⁷⁰ as his successor (membership card number 91), showing to the world with this surprising and shocking finale, his disgust for the current state of affairs of the New World Order. I will never associate with Freemasons and occultists who want to dominate the world with their occult powers, (FIG. 70) only good people and good Freemasons like General Bartolomeu Constantin Săvoiu (FIGS. 71-72), born 18 February, 1945 in Bucharest, and current head of the Romanian National Grand Lodge – 1880, a man I admire and respect who came into Gelli's life seven years before his death.

Masonic decadence

n my experience, both the New Age movement and Satanism often go hand in hand. The courageous Cecilia Gatto Trocchi said this during a University lecture a few months before she died, on February 26, 2004:

New Age is an arbitrary synthesis where everything is the opposite of everything, where everything looks like everything and everything is indifferent; a hellish thing in my opinion. And I don't say hellish by chance, but because in 1968, when Kenneth Anger, one of the instigators of the Church of Satan in California, presented his project for a short film called Lucifer Rising he said: "Today we held a baptism for the age of Aquarius." Satan is the real big energy that permeates the entire universe for these people and man must turn to him to be made of this energy, so the snake from the garden of eden in their vision actually made the welfare of man causing him to eat from the tree. We know what we know thanks to Lucifer, or Satan, or the serpent, if you prefer, so actually we owe him the possibility to become like God. That's another fixation of the New Age: every human being must become like God. There is no difference between creator and creature, but all share in the same light energy. The only difference is that we're not aware, while God is aware of his own divinity. So we just have to find out all this to become like God, then we can do wonders, walking on water, turning water into wine and much more, because we want to earn, become wealthy directors of large companies ... All these things have nothing to do neither with our Christian tradition nor with the greek-Roman one, who started from a level of reality: who we are, where we are, what we know and what we can do? All this is annihilated by the New Age.

Gatto Trocchi added at the end of the report a heavy complaint about the responsibility of the New World Order in all this:

The main purpose of this philosophy is to prepare the world to receive a new guide called Maitreya, and to introduce the world to a New World Order. And globalism and the New World Order start from a point that is particularly close to my heart. Experts say that in the future only 20% of the world will be productive. What does this mean? It means that the labor force that will produce all the goods and services from here to 50 years will be only of 20%. The other 80% will devote themselves to this nonsense pseudo-spiritual rubbish. Better to meditate in order to avoid mental stress. So the idea of resorting to the East and its old religions, as the hidden aim of accustoming the losers of the future transforming them into happy beggars. We must wake up, because the gimmick lies beneath the strategy to create an atomized world, where there are no more political factions, but only individuals increasingly isolated. Even now there are very private initiations taking place on the Internet. I can start myself to the mysteries of the cosmos. All this is in preparation of a new world system like the Aristotelian system of polis of memory, that is, the polis seen as a living organism, from which the idea of high political sense, has to disappear. There must be a strong cohesion. ⁷¹

Professor Cecilia Gatto Trocchi's vision partly coincides with mine, the only difference is that Professor Cecilia Gatto Trocchi was a devout Catholic and could never speak out of the immense responsibility of the Jesuits in all this. Even when Gatto Trocchi was personally attacked by one of the biggest Jesuit disinfo agents and New Age manipulators, the aforementioned Massimo Introvigne, she never exposed him as a Jesuit shill. I wonder if at the time she could have been saved by better magical protection and psychic self-defense against such evil. Satan permeates the entire universe, including the once glorious institution of Freemasonry, as the Freemasons have distanced themselves more and more from their Christian origins since 1813. The Italian Masonic publication La

Rivista della Massoneria Italiana (Vol. X, p. 265) stated in that period: “My brothers, Freemasons ... Satan is great!” And even Manly P. Hall, a 33rd degree Freemason declared in his book The Lost Keys of Freemasonry or the Secret of Hiram Abiff: that “Freemasons always have access to ‘the bubbling energy of Lucifer.’”⁷² This Luciferian energy originally emerged from “Occult Freemasonry” and Theosophy, and was later filtered to the public through the New Age movement. However, all this happened once Christian Freemasonry became gradually minoritarian after the establishment on the 27th of December 1813, of the United Grand Lodge of England constituted at Freemasons Hall, London with Prince Augustus as Grand Master.⁷³ The Swiss psychologist Carl G. Jung stated: “The larger the organizations, the more inevitable are their immorality and blind stupidity.” (Carl G. Jung, Die Beziehungen zwischen dem Ich und dem Unbewussten, Darmstadt, 1928) We also have clues about what will happen within the European Union—the Freemason’s latest creation. Jung stated in the same book:

The larger a society or confederacy, the greater the amalgamation of collective factors—which is typical of every large organization—will rest upon conservative prejudices to the detriment of the individual, the more aggravated the moral and spiritual degeneration of the individual.” Apparently different ideologies have been forced upon us. In actual fact, we have all the time been dealing with different aspects of one and the same ideology—illuminism, propagated by the liberal side of international Freemasonry, the Jesuits and later the Zionist. Only insecure individuals and weak ideologies and religions need to resort to violence in order to assert themselves—Judaism, Islam, communism, national socialism, and others. The hylozoists, who follow the teachings of Pythagoras, have never resorted to violence, nor have the Buddhists. This fact alone shows the value of their philosophical teachings, which can help those souls who seek the truth. ⁷⁴

Another milestone in the transformation of Freemasonry towards a more relativist approach was the Congress of Wihemsbad in 1782. Throughout the history of Freemasonry there have been gatherings and events that have had a large impact on the fraternity in general, specific Orders within the Fraternity, but due to the lack of documentation it has lead to theories abound. The history of Freemasonry is a complex topic, not always because of one's ability or inability to comprehend the subject, but often due to the lack of recorded evidence to support or reject a hypothesis. When faced with incomplete information one's imagination can wander, which can sometimes lead to far-fetched and exaggerated speculations. One such event that many Masons and anti-Masons have theorized about is the 1782 Congress of Wilhelmsbad—Albert Mackey refers to this Congress as “the most important Masonic Congress of the eighteenth century.” To the Masons, this meeting marks the impending doom of Rite of Strict Observance and the rise of the Rectified Scottish Rite. To the anti-Mason and conspiracy theorists, this is the meeting where the Bavarian Illuminati is said to have infiltrated and taken over Freemasonry to enhance their nefarious agenda for global domination. To discuss this matter we must stop for a moment and first discuss the early history of the Rite of Strict Observance. According to Stephen Dafoe, Past Grand Historian of the Sovereign Great Priory of Canada, the legend of Pierre d'Audmont, a Templar continuation myth, is said to be the brainchild of the Rite of Strict Observance, which was largely promoted by Baron Karl Gotthelf von Hund, or more commonly referred to as Baron von Hund. The legend states that Pierre d'Aumont, the Preceptor of Auvergne, with a number of Knights Templar, fled to Scotland disguised as an Operative Mason. On arrival they created a new order to preserve the traditions of the soon to be disbanded Knights Templar. This new order they named Franc Maçons, and would later be known as Free Masons when they traveled to England. The truth is that the Preceptor of Auvergne was not Pierre d'Audmont, but rather Imbert Blanke, who fled to England after dodging the arrests of the 13th of October, 1307. He later played a role in defending his Brethren in the courts. Many Masonic scholars such as Stephen Dafoe point out the absurdity of this legend, particularly the etymology of the name Freemason.

74 Jüri Lina, Ibid., p. 11

Albert Mackey believes that it was through Ramsey's Oration that this legend of Templar continuation was able to take hold, but dismisses it as rubbish having no "particle of historical evidence." Although he does admit that this legend had a large influence on the modern Masonic organization particularly with the incorporation of the Templar Orders, and this is what counts in the end, as all of the Masonic teachings are based on a composite of myth or morality tales, so why close down the Rite of Strict Observance? I am personally involved in the revival of this particular Masonic Rite, bringing those beautiful degrees from the 18th century back to life with its great Christian teachings copied later by almost every rite.

Going back in time ... In the 1740s a few German Lodges began giving their Entered Apprentices and Fellow Crafts the names of French Knights. Most of these Lodges were in Dresden, but Baron von Hund founded one of these Lodges on his estate East of Dresden, around 1751. It was from the close ties of these Lodges that the Rite of Strict Observance was created. It was said that the Rite originated with C. G. Marschall von Bieberstein, who had founded two of the Lodges in Germany; one in Dresden and one in Na umber called Lodge of the Three Hammers. Von Hund is said to have taken over after von Bieberstein died in 1750. Under Von Hund's watch, the Rite degrees consisted of: Entered Apprentice, Fellowcraft, Master Mason, Scottish Master, Novice, and Knights Templar. The Scottish Master degree concerned itself with the preservation of the lost word of Freemasonry which had been cut on a plate of pure metal, placed in a secure location, and centuries later discovered. This was not an exclusive belief as the Ecossais degrees used this, which sprung up after Ramsey's Oration. One of the strangest aspects of the Rite of Strict Observance was that the adherent had to swear an oath to blindly follow the directives of "Unknown Superiors" who ruled the order. This invisible leader was said to have possibly been Charles Edward Stuart, the Young Pretender. This was the same man who Ramsey had tried to tutor some years prior. For some, there is a lack of evidence that supports this idea, but nonetheless the Invisible Rulers or Masters, are said to have communicated through Baron von Hund. The Templar Degrees center on the legend that Freemasonry derived from the medieval Knights Templar. The Order of the Knights Templar, founded in the first decade of the twelfth century, was disbanded by Philip IV "The Fair" of Bourbon (1268–1314) and Pope Clement V (1264–1314) in the first decade of the fourteenth century, but according to Masonic legend, the Templars survived in the highlands of Scotland and later reappeared to the public as the Order of Freemasons. The first person to present this theory of continuation was the Scotsman Chevalier Andrew Michael Ramsey (1686–1743), who lived as an expatriate in Paris.

taxil mystifiCation

Ramsay was the orator of the Lodge Le Louis d'Argent, whose Worshipful Master was Charles Radclyffe (1693–1746). In a famous oration given at the lodge in 1737, Ramsay stated that medieval crusaders in the Holy Land, or Outremer, founded Freemasonry. He did not explicitly identify the crusaders who allegedly founded Freemasonry as being Knights Templar, but as Pierre Mollier has pointed out, the identification of the Crusaders with the Templars was not far away. Ramsey's oration proved to be a milestone in the development of Masonic rituals of initiation including what later became the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, and soon rituals began to appear that incorporated Ramsey's thesis. It was in the milieu of the Jacobite Parisian Lodges that the Masonic Templar Degrees first developed, perhaps as early as 1737. The best-known propagator of Templar Degrees in Germany was Baron Karl Gotthelf von Hund (1722–1776), and it is often claimed that he was initiated into the Templar Degree in France in 1743. Some say the aforementioned Count Licio Gelli was von Hund's reincarnation.

Going back to the 1782 Congress of Wilhelmsbad, although it was one of the more notable of meetings, the meeting held in

Wilhelmsbad came as a result of several meetings held over the years in Jena, Altenburg, Kohlo, and Brunswick. The Grand Master, Duke Ferdinand, would call for another meeting that convened on July 15th, 1778, in Wolfenbuttel. Like some of the meetings, did not succeed in clarifying much in the end. Since they could not come to any definitive conclusion as to the mysterious origins of Freemasonry, the assemblage appealed to all Masonic bodies and called for a future meeting in Wilhelmsbad. The Congress of Wilhelmsbad took place near the city of Hanau in Hesse-Cassel. It was presided over by Ferdinand, Duke of Brunswick, who was head of the Rite of Strict Observance, and opened the meeting on July 16th, 1782. It was attended by Masons from several European countries and there were 30 Sessions held. The goals of this convention were to discuss the general reformation of Freemasonry, the origin of the different systems, rites, and doctrines that had formed, and to solve the question as to whether or not Freemasonry is a modern society or derived from something far more ancient. All these questions, submitted to the assembly during its thirty meetings, went unanswered. What it did succeed in was exposing a number of fraudulent systems that had formed and reformed, some say “de-Templarized,” the Rite of Strict Observance which would later fade and a new system known as the Rectified Scottish Rite would emerge, a system still in existence today. ⁷⁵ So in the Congress of Wilhelmsbad the fate of the declining Rite of Strict Observance, as well as the disappearance of the Order of the Illuminati of Adam Weishaupt, was decided. This meant that they would both have to change their names and hide in other orders to survive. Part of the Rite of Strict Observance reemerged in fact, as the Rite of Strict Observance, and the Swedish Rite. The Order of the Illuminati moved to the other side of the ocean creating various offshoots, as I described in Volume I. One thing is for sure, the Christian Templar side became less influential and was later infiltrated by Satanic and liberal elements like the ones that gave birth to the Ordo Templi Orientis. In this scenario of unprecedented decadence, the elite indulged more and more in “ritual orgies,” and became modern New Agers who deify Lucifer and the worship of devils. ⁷⁶

Two words about the so-called “ritual orgy”

he great initiate Mircea Eliade once wrote about the phenomenon of ritual orgies:

75 See. <http://www.travelingtemplar.com/2013/07/the-1782-congress-of-wilhelmsbad.html> ‡ Archived 8th August, 2015.

76 See. Constance Cumbey, op.cit.

Of ritual orgies there is evidence in many different populations. Their purposes is different: generally, however, with the orgies you are trying to avoid cosmic or social crisis—drought, epidemics, unusual weather events (such as the aurora australis)—or you want to give a religious-magic support (sparking and increasing sexual potency) to favorable events (marriages, births). Both facing a threatening crisis or a happy event, thanks to indiscriminate and excessive sex society is immersed in the era of the fabulous origins. This is particularly evident in the practice of periodic orgies at the end of the year or at intervals considered specifically sacred. In fact it is this kind of ritual orgy, undoubtedly the most archaic, to reveal is the original function of the collective promiscuous relationships. The orgy ritualizes the precise moment of creation, the stage of blissful beginnings when there was still no sexual taboos and moral or social norms. Perhaps the most striking illustration can be found among the Dayak Ngadju and some Australian tribes. ⁷⁷

Alberto Moscato, at the time head of the O.T.O. in Italy, described the practice in this way:

The very first concept needed to introduce a speech on this subject both complex and controversial as this, is that, as usual, legends inadvertently activated for over a hundred years by the pounding (which further intensified in recent decades) made by the various writers in tabloid papers more or less informative and periodicals of the “industry” and not, have created a true “culture” on the parallel phenomenon of Royal Art and Ritual of the orgy, often, intentionally or not, by mixing it with the phenomenon of the growth of the para / pseudo-religious sects on the one hand and the spread of popular superstitions and magical practices active or passive on the other. This parallel “culture,” also meant that scholars of the occult serious and sensitive, form an opinion of the O.T.O. as a kind of brothel organized and that “Do what thou wilt” but especially “Love is the Law,” means nothing more than “Fuck whoever you want as you please” and “Fuck only.” Moscato admits also between the lines of his writings that there is actually a dark side to all this: “It’s really easy, even when it has to do with esteemed Brothers and Sisters of “legitimite,” and karmic candor, while the intensity of the orgy hysterical grows, even unconsciously, to slip in black magic or at least in the simple violation of the others will and / or your Oaths and Magic Obligations, over time and sessions. ⁷⁸

What is a ritual orgy? In August 1990, the famous Italian newspaper La Repubblica, wrote an article entitled “ROME CAPITAL OF THE OCCULT”:

Behind the scenes of the Eternal City a creepy Satanic phenomena was stirring. A bunch of weird sects were gathering forces at the dawn of the new millennium, so who was behind all this? As I was about to finish my compulsory military service in the Italian Airforce, I read this interesting mixture of information, amazed to say the least of this interesting scenario of Satanism practiced around the corner from the Vatican. Many of these occult brotherhoods are family-run, where the smell of incense mixes often with that of the frying pan or an Italian pasta sauce. In other cases, the scenario is more disturbing. The Ordo Templi Orientis takes the theories of Aleister Crowley (1875). The rites are top secret but are based on the sexual magical practices or the lycanthropy Kabbalistical ones. Another group that refers to Crowley is the one of Jorg Sabellicus: black masses with a stuffed boar’s head and a naked girl who ends up as an altar, regularly, ending up as a ritual orgy (there is to assume that the fear of AIDS has recently thinned down the numbers of the faithful). For the celebrations, as always, these kind of priests prefer the desecrated churches, abandoned villas (preferably those that have been the scene of really nasty crimes) but also cemeteries. Where, especially after the night of St. John (when, according to the esoteric theory, you open the doors of the hereafter) you find more frequently the remains of the celebrations and animal sacrifices. ⁷⁹

Sebastiano Fusco (1944) better known as Jorg Sabellicus, one of the aforementioned Satanists by La Repubblica, is one of the most important Italian authors on magick and the esoteric, as well as a professional journalist and an expert in publishing matters. Fusco has in fact organized many book releases for several Italian publishers, and is considered an expert. He remains out of the public eye, but in Italy amongst the Illuminati imbued in occultism and Satanism closely tied to the Vatican, he has always been an authority; although invisible to most. Some say Sebastiano Fusco is amongst the few High Priests of the dark side of the Illuminati authorized to perform "Black Masses" in the Church of San Lorenzo in Piscibus, a small church based in the Borgorione of Rome, located near Saint Peter's Square and Vatican City. The Church is not visible from the main street, Via della Conciliazione, and is used by the Vatican Satanist to celebrate their dark rites.

In the first of his four volumes of books, Sebastiano Fusco uses the introduction dedicated to Practical Magic, and offers several insights on what drives the Illuminati to do what they do ritualistically and magically speaking:

To induce occult forces to act in a certain way, the magician must operate respecting certain fixed set of rules which include the exact timing, methods, his acts. In this way you develop a real ceremony, a ritual intended to bring out the best power that is collected inside of him and out of him, to direct it according to his will and his lead. The most terrible of these ceremonies are those described in the Magic Ritual, where the Magic Forces are directly evoked, in the form of spirits or demons, to give them orders or impose duties.

And to this kind of ancient magic, believed to be extremely dangerous, which is dedicated this volume. The magical ceremonies are not, as is generally thought, the desecration of Jewish or Christian religious rites, made in an attempt to curry favor with the devil and make sure of his services. Conversely, ceremonies are held to implore from God the universal power to control personifications (usually evil) of the occult forces. Their meaning is essentially symbolic, beyond the religious reason, their function is to maximize the “mystical fury” of the magician, working through solemn and complex rituals, recite incantations in dark and uplifting tones, surrounding yourself with sacred and mysterious objects, inhaling scents that intoxicate and stun, to the point that the gathering strengthens him, like a stream swollen and increasingly agitated, not breaking its banks coming to appear in front of the operator in a form sensitive and often terrifying. These rituals are ancient. We know it was practiced in Egypt, Chaldea, Mesopotamia, as evidenced by archaeological fragments in which one reads spells and descriptions of ceremonies. By Greek and Latin writers have learned that such practices were widespread even in classical civilizations.⁸⁰

These cults in the Greek-Roman era, were intended only to special initiates, and even then they were kept secret from the rest of the other pagans. The elite always use magic rituals as a weapon, which is the true way to obtain material power. Black magic is the direct connection with demonic, or rarely, angelic entities that hide behind these cults. A power in all its forms that is increasingly corrupt and is the main bait that is stretched to humans from these dark entities. These rituals are also carried out in secret by sects by common people, usually with the direct involvement, or at least the support, of the elite. At the center of man’s spiritual control we always find the Jesuits, spiritual controllers of the New World Order along with the Zionist Jews.

The goal of the ritual orgy, and rituals in a broader sense, is to access contacts with entities of various kinds, a topic I visit in my upcoming book Invisible Masters. It must be clear to those who are reading this that for the elite, there is no law, no codes and no rights that apply to regular people. The masses simply go along, indoctrinated to believe that they are participating democratically, or at least with the illusion that there is some kind of justice guaranteed by law. There is no justice I am afraid, and there is no law on top, only a demonic force that has power over all the nations, who hides in the shadows. When a courageous denunciation of these facts is made, it is quickly obscured, censored and the person is dubbed crazy, as it happened to me more than once. Recently, one of the Grand Masters of Ordo Templi Orientis, who I do not want to name, intervened with one of my publishers to ask him to question the publication of my books, retelling the old story of my alleged instability and hospitalizations for mental illness in Norway. Well, as you know I do not make a mystery or a secret of what happened and I wrote about it in the first volume.

I would like to write a few words about the Tavistock Institute as they also have had responsibility in my persecution. They are the “guardians” of the Matrix built on purpose to keep people tight-lipped about their treacherous games. Until now, few knew what the Tavistock Institute—based in London—was really about and the fact it has influenced and continues to influence, directly or indirectly, many sections of our lives. It was founded to study mental disorders, derived from exposure to the terror that is generated in battle, experiments with British soldiers who survived the First World War. Its purpose was to establish, under the control of the Office of Psychological Warfare in the British Army, the “breaking point” for a man under stress. Later, Tavistock developed techniques of brainwashing that were used for the first time as I mentioned earlier, for American POWs in Korea. In 1947, the Tavistock Institute assumed its current role and has since developed great power in Europe, the United States and around the world. No one can receive a prominent place in any key structure in society if not trained in behavioral science by Tavistock, or at least screened and scrutinized by one of its subsidiaries centers. There is virtually no form of industry, from education to health, which is not under the influence of Tavistock, in some form or another, and the occult elite that controls it, including the music business. From music to counter-insurgency, drugs to television, we are exposed every day to the dark mechanisms created by a group of psychologists, psychiatrists and anthropologists serving the New World Order. I myself was a victim of Tavistock when they locked me up unjustly for a few days in the Department of Mental Health of Subiaco for my part in Italy's pitchfork protests,⁸¹ that began at the end of 2013.

The director of the center where I was kept for two weeks is named Dr. Giuseppe Nicolò⁸² confessed, almost bragging, before my release (and in front of my lawyer), to be tied to the notorious Tavistock Institute in which he has operated for years.⁸³

Psychic Defense, Satanism and the Adepts of Atlantis

On psychic defense

ion Fortune—whose real name was Violet Mary Firth—was born in 1891, and died in 1946. She was an accomplished occultist, psychoanalyst and writer. At a very early age she demonstrated signs of extreme sensitivity to people and places, and it soon became clear that she possessed highly developed psychic faculties and mediumistic abilities, reputedly having had visions and dreams of Atlantis as early as four years old. She grew up in a family that belonged to Christian Science, and her marked independent spirit and inclination for prolonged states of lucid dreaming initially caused her a lot of anxiety. The power of imagination plays a big role in the occult, and in later years she learned to make use of her abilities, when she was able to control and direct her powers through occultism, which produced extraordinary results for this woman of the esoteric milieu. Early in her life, Violet Mary Firth, was the victim of a vicious psychic attack by an employer, which she didn't fully recover from for three years. This psychic attack led to her interest in psychology, which then led to the study of occultism. She was trained by an Irish Freemason, Dr. Theodore Moriarty, who expressed his metaphysical and theosophical beliefs in a series of lectures on the esoteric subject of astro-etheric psychological conditions. Moriarty's topic of interest included the lost continent of Atlantis, Gnostic Christianity, reincarnation, and psychic disturbances that can result in illness. Perhaps more influential for her occult interests, however, was Fortune's childhood friend, Maiya Curtis-Webb, who introduced her to the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn. Beginning in 1919, Curtis-Webb instructed Fortune in trance mediumship at the Golden Dawn Temple of the Alpha and Omega Lodge of the Stella Matutina, that was headed by J. W. Brodie-Innes. She became disillusioned with the group, however, when she saw that its ranks after World War 1, had been reduced to widows and elderly men. She joined the London-based Golden Dawn group led by Moina Mathers, widow of the group's original founder, MacGregor Mathers, who was the mentor, and later enemy of Aleister Crowley. It was during this period that the former Violet Firth adopted the phrase Deo Non Fortuna, which translates to "by God and not by luck," as her Golden Dawn magical name, that was also the Latin motto that appeared on the Firth family crest. She subsequently shortened her new appellation to Dion Fortune. ¹

Fortune thought she had finally found her “path” with this offshoot branch of the Golden Dawn, and began to write articles under her new name, Dion Fortune. These articles were later published in book form as The Esoteric Philosophy of Love and Marriage, Sane Occultism, and Psychic Self-Defence. Her books and articles enraged Moina Mathers, who felt that Dion Fortune had betrayed the secrets of the Order, and a magical war erupted between the two, a similar event happened earlier between Aleister Crowley and Moina’s husband. This new episode of psychic attack pushed her to delve deeper into the study of the subject of psychology, as she had become increasingly disillusioned with the Golden Dawn initiatic structure. After Dr. Moriarty’s death in 1921, she founded her own esoteric order with a few of Moriarty’s students and a few members of the Theosophical Society in London.

In 1924, her little group bought an old officer’s hut from the army, and erected it at the foot of Glastonbury Tor in Somerset. This site, which they named, Chalice Orchard, was the first headquarters of the Fraternity of the Inner Light (later re-named the Society of the Inner Light). Soon afterwards she also acquired a large old house at —3 Queensborough Terrace, in London—which was big enough for certain members to live in as well as it being an established magical lodge. Among those living at the house were Dion Fortune and her husband Dr. Penry Evans, although they divided their time between London and Glastonbury, and eventually divorced. The society soon became a high caliber initiatory school. Working in trance mediumship, Dion Fortune made contacts with certain inner plane adepts, or Masters, whose influence on the Western Esoteric Tradition is still vital to this day. ² The brilliant writings of Dion Fortune can help us to better understand certain dynamics of the occult world, and the various Illuminati sects in relation to psychic attacks.

Many people, for example, email me asking for possible solutions for their own psychological defense. Others who have had direct involvement in secret societies ask me if participating in rituals, or the work in a specific lodge or fraternity is in itself a bad thing. Dion Fortune wrote with great awareness and courage in her book, Self-Defense, about these subjects, denouncing this problem openly: "On the other hand, the instinctive reactions of a pure and sensitive soul are not to be ignored. There are such things as Black Lodges and evil entities. We must not allow the cry of 'Wolf ! Wolf !' to make us either callous or careless. In any case, the victim is suffering remediable discomfort." ³

"Black Lodges and evil entities" do indeed exist, and are not speculations, as the elite would like for you to believe, which makes it easier to cover their occult links and human sacrifices. Fortune writes:

A Black Lodge leads by a straight and narrow way into the land of apaches and demimondaines, quite apart from its other drawbacks. Secondly, a knowledge of these facts is essential for differential diagnosis. Thirdly, occult powers are not infrequently used to obtain purely mundane ends, therefore when the question of ordinary criminality occurs in connection with an occult organisation, the issue may be complicated by an admixture of methods that belong to another plane. We must always remember that a lodge may not necessarily have been formed for the express purpose of evading the law; it may have started with a perfectly legitimate end in view, and have been exploited by evil-doers for their own purposes, for, owing to the secretive nature of its proceedings, the fraternity form of organisation lends itself to various forms of law-breaking. One occult organisation is well-known to have been involved in the drug traffic trade, another is riddled with unnatural vice. A third degenerated into what was little better than a house of ill-fame, and its head was an expert abortionist. Others have been involved in subversive politics. Those who join fraternities without properly investigating them and the credentials of those who are running them may find themselves involved in any or all of these things. Behind the veil of secrecy, guarded by impressive oaths, many things may happen, and it is therefore essential to inform oneself most carefully concerning the character, credentials and record of the leaders of an organisation.⁴ When joining an Order you need to be very aware of what you are exactly joining, as there are not only dangers on the physical plane, but also the more insidious ones present on the astral plane, where the risks are much greater than most people can imagine. Dione Fortune teaches us how to identify a “Black Lodge,” in the following words:

A lodge of dubious whiteness can be readily recognised by the type of people who belong to it, who may best be described as the seedy adventurer type with a sprinkling of smart society folk who often have a taste for crude flavours in the way of sensation. The really Black Lodges are as carefully guarded as the high-grade White Lodges, and no outsider can gain entrance to them. The serious student of Black Occultism is out for knowledge and magical experiment and he is not going to waste his time on a tyro. Those who choose to graduate into a Black Lodge after serving their apprenticeship in the Outer Court of a White Lodge do so with their eyes open, and experience must be their teacher. One cannot feel that they deserve much sympathy if the experience is a painful one. The person I am out to help is the person who is a victim, not the one who is hoist with his own petard. The man or woman who, rejecting the steady grade of the Way of Initiation, chooses to go up with rocket had better come down with the stick. Any request for a large sum of money should always be regarded as a danger signal. It is one of the strictest conditions of initiation that occult knowledge may never be sold or used for gain.⁵

Dear Freemasons, if one day you feel suddenly unwell after attending a lodge meeting, there is a big chance this may be related to black magic and the presence of witch doctors or black magicians in your lodge. This is a growing phenomena in Masonic circles, especially with the increase in popularity of orders like Order Templi Orientis or the Golden Dawn, which recruit growing numbers of Masons on the Internet, especially in the USA. Mysterious deaths and illnesses can occur in these lodges if a malignant presence has psychically polluted the temple. In this case, a method of defense should be taken against these occult forces, and should follow in general with these three main points:

1. Spend a few hours in the light of the Sun, in order to reinforce your aura, avoid those places where the forces of the elemental spirits are more powerful, such as the sea, the mountains, the countryside.

2. Avoid spending time alone, do activities that relax your body and isolate the psychic centers, eat every two hours and reduce the flow of blood to the head through a warm bath or with your feet in warm water (and salt).

3. Place on your solar plexus a hot water bottle, keep clean the intestines (the pu4 Dionne Fortune, Psychic Self-Defense, Ibid., p. 126.
5 Ibid., pp. 132-133.

trid material attracts lower energies), eat a balanced diet, don't get distracted by mundane activities, keep the mind busy, stop all psychic meditations and activity, remaining on the physical plane.

The Exorcist that operates on a person who has been psychically attacked should obtain three clear results:

- Restore the aura of the patient;
- Clean the atmosphere;
- Stop any contact that the patient has with the negative forces. ⁶

You must take physical action to purify the etheric conditions. If negative magnetism permeates the atmosphere of your Masonic lodge, or your home, it is advisable to purify the atmosphere and also the garments used by you or your group, including the Masonic Regalia or any other ritual garment you may have used in the presence of black magicians. The person, or persons, attacked by these evil forces, should also change residence for a while, and if the problem persists in his own lodge with such energies, he must immediately stop attending and ask his Grand Lodge to move him elsewhere as soon as possible.

Remember that it only takes a couple of Satanists, or even one skilled black magician, to pollute the magnetism of an entire lodge with tragic results. In such situations, running water possesses features that can ease tension and aid against with the “harassment” from evil spirits that can often take place after these attacks. The relief will be immediate and should be followed by a purification with salt water, which I highly recommend since my days as Worshipful Master (D.:D.:A.:) of the Cagliostro Lodge of the F.R.A. in London. Water, a symbol of the psychic sphere, has particular power, and has always been used in purification rituals (think of baptism). Salt, as a crystalline substance, receives and holds etheric magnetism. Consequently, soaking in a bath of water and salt consecrated for this purpose, and wearing freshly washed clothes, can be an initial remedy from psychic attack.

If you are a particularly sensitive person, you may have noticed that occasionally you are hit by waves of negative events / negative energy. You don't have to attend a lodge to experience this, as any human grouping can conceal pitfalls if not protected. Not all parties, however, are equally sensitive. That's why some people are naturally predisposed to these influences or contacts by entities, and others are not.

The psychic attack is basically a form of aggression that can be implemented in various ways. It's a threat perpetrated by one who considers himself superior, against another. The persecutor easily handles a controlled environment, from which the victim can not escape. The mind of the victim can be completely controlled and manipulated by the psychic attacker. The currents of negative thinking are not easy to manage, because they are attracted to the weaknesses of the human psyche. It is important to remember this. Without a good deal of protection, and the confidence in the ability to cope with the attack, we can all become easy targets. The solution lies in the mind of the victim, because as long as there is a weak point which attracts the negative currents in your body, you will not be rebalanced and the problem will always persist. Before speaking of psychic attacks, we must consider the possibility that we can be personally unbalanced, and can become victims of our own negativity. I often meet people who accuse the “Illuminati” or the “New World Order” for their problems, when they should instead realize their mind and their own wrong doings could be causing the problems in their lives. Remember the NWO or the Illuminati sects are interested in you only if you are an influential person, an extremely rich one, or you are part of certain families and relative bloodlines. If not there is no interest on their side to bother you or your family. Besides, we are already controlled in so many other ways.

Tips to rebalance and get back on track:

- Cut all ties that bind you with the alleged perpetrator or perpetrators, lodge or sect. Distance yourself, asserting your power without being subject to theirs. Sever any magical or occult ties you previously had with an exorcism ritual.
- Keep your diet healthy, get at least eight hours of sleep per night, and enjoy sunshine and fresh air while walking or doing physical exercise.
- Participate in constructive social activities that are positive.
- Avoid negative thoughts and fear after the attack.
- Receive a general medical evaluation to verify good health. ⁷

The Rosicrucian Illuminati from the Golden Dawn to the F.R.A.

ione Fortune was a member of the Golden Dawn. The initial impetus of the Golden Dawn’s Inner Order, the Rosae Rubea et Aurea Cruces (the Red Rose and the Cross of Gold), stemmed from Rosicrucian sources, and the cornerstone of their teachings were the first two Rosicrucian manifestoes published in the 17th century by an anonymous authorship. Within the Golden Dawn's Inner Order, elaborate rituals were, and still are, utilized to describe the discovery of the vault of Christian Rosenkruetz, and the teachings he had to offer humanity. The basis for these teachings were contained in both the "Fama Fraternitatis" and "Confessio" manifestoes. In the Adeptus Minor Ritual of the 5-6 Grade the following summation of these two documents is read to the Postulant:

In 1378 the Chief and Originator of our Fraternity was born in Europe. He was the son of noble but poor parents, and was placed in a doister at the age of five where he learned some Greek and Latin. While yet a youth, he accompanied a certain Brother P.A.L. on a pilgrimage to the Holy Land; but the latter, dying at Cyprus, he himself went to Damascus. There was then in Arabia a Temple of the Order which was called in the Hebrew tongue "Damkar": that is, "The Blood of the Lamb." There he was duely initiated, and took the Mystic title Christian Rosenkreutz, or Christian of the Rose Cross. He then so improved his knowledge of the Arabian tongue, that in the following year he translated the book "M" into Latin, which he afterwards brought back with him to Europe. After three years he went into Egypt, where there was another Temple of the Order. There he remained for a time still studying the mysteries of Nature. After this, he travelled by sea to the city of Fessa, where he was welcomed at the Temple established there. While at the Temple, he obtained the knowledge and acquaintance of the habitants of the Elements, who revealed unto him many of their secrets. Of the Fraternity, he confessed that they had not retained their Wisdom in its Primal purity, and that their Kabala was to a certain extent altered to their religion. Nevertheless, he learned much there.

After a stay of two years he came to Spain, where he endeavoured to reform the errors of the learned according to the pure knowledge he had received. But this was to them a laughing matter, and they reviled and rejected him, even as the prophets of old were rejected. Thus also was he treated by those of his own and other nations when he showed them the errors that had crept into their religions. So, after five years residence in Germany, he initiated three of his former monastic brethren, Fraters G.W., LA., and I.O., who had more knowledge than many others at the time. And by these four was made the foundation of the Fraternity in Europe.

7 See. <http://artesapienza.blogspot.it/2012/07/della-difesa-psichica.html> ‡ Archived 10th August, 2015.

These three worked and studied at the writings and other knowledge which C.R.C. had brought with him, and by them was some of the Magical Language transcribed (which was that of the Elemental Tablets) and a dictionary thereof made; and the Rituals and part of the Book “M” were transcribed. For the True Order of the Rose Cross descendeth into the heights—even unto the Throne of God Himself, and indudeth even Archangels, Angels and Spirits. These four Fraters also erected a building to serve as a Temple and Headquarters of their Order, and called it Collegium and Spiritum Sanctum, or the College of the Holy Spirit. This now being finished, and the work of establishing the Order being extremely heavy; and because they devoted much time to the healing of those sick and possessed who resorted to them, they initiated four others, viz: Fraters R.C. (the son of the deceased father’s brother of C.R.C.), C.B. a skillful artist, and P.D., who was to be Cancellarius; all being Germans except LA., and now eight in number. Their agreement was:

1. That none of them should profess any other thing, but cure the sick, and do so freely.
2. That they should not be constrained to wear any distinctive dress, but therein follow the custom of the country.
3. That every year on the day of Corpus Christi, they should meet at the Collegium and Spiritum Sanctum, or give the cause for absence.
4. Everyone should look for some worthy person of either sex, who after his decease might succeed him.
5. The word R.C. was to be their mark, seal, and character. The Fraternity was to remain secret for one hundred years. Five of the Fraters were to travel in different countries, and two were to remain with Christian Rosenkreutz.

The discovery of the tomb where the highly illuminated Man of God, C.R.C. was buried occurred as follows:

After Frater A. died in Gallia Narbonensi, there succeeded in his place Frater N.N. He, while repairing a part of the building of the College of the Holy Spirit, endeavoured to remove a brass memorial tablet which bore the names of certain brethren, and some other things. In this tablet was the head of a strong nail or bolt, such that when the tablet was forcibly wrenched away, it pulled with it a large stone which partially uncovered a secret door, upon which was inscribed in large letters Post Oa Annos Patebo—After an hundred and twenty years I shall open, with the year of our Lord under, 1484.

The climax of the story centers on the rediscovery of C.R.C.'s tomb, buried in a concealed, underground vault with seven sides.⁸

Engraved upon a circular altar over the tomb were the words translated from Latin: "Unto the Glory of the Rose Cross I have constructed this Tomb for myself as a Compendium of the Universal Unity." There are many hinted spiritual implications of the Rosicrucian Vault in the Fama fraternitatis Roseae Crucis oder Die Bruderschaft des Ordens der Rosenkreuzer, usually listed as Fama Fraternitatis Rosae Crucis, and explored in the later teachings of the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn and the R.R. et A.C. The implications of this Vault are many—it represents the emblematic tomb of death and spiritual resurrection, as well as an initiation chamber and place of meditation. However, its primary significance is that of the "mystical center" or "inner temple" of man. This is an internal God-centered reality, which is inherent in the symbolism of C.R.C.'s "Compendium of the Universal Unity." Publication of the Fama caused commotion, and traditionalists condemned the shadowy Rosicrucian brotherhood. Skeptics doubted its existence, while Hermeticists embraced it.⁹ Myth or reality, the Rosicrucian legend persists to this day, both inside and outside of Freemasonry, where it is preserved in New Age Illuminati cults like A.M.O.R.C., in the high degrees of certain Masonic Rites like the 18°A.A.S.R.; in elite Rosicrucian fraternities for Master Masons, like the Societas Rosicruciana in Anglia (that for the past ten years, has covertly embraced Crowley's pseudo-religion of Thelema), or the truly Christian, Societas Rosicruciana in America. My own personal experience with the Rosicrucians was with the Fraternitas Rosicruciana Antiqua (F.R.A.), originally established by German occultist and Illuminati Dr. Arnold Krumm-Heller in 1927, and still very popular in South America. This was the first Rosicrucian Fraternity that openly embraced Thelema and Crowleyanity when “The Great Beast 666” was still alive. Krumm-Heller’s motto “Huiracocha” was the name a God once worshipped by the Incas—and the god’s legend recites that he vanished westwards, and would one day return—those who refused to worship him received gruesome punishment. The term “Viracocha” (another variation of “Huiracocha”) is also found in Reuss’s O.T.O. ritual-texts. Having obtained Crowley’s address from Martha Küntzel, Krumm-Heller wrote to him for the first time on 2/17/1928 as “Summum Supremum Sanctuarium O.T.O., F.R.A., Frat. Herm. Lucis, Societas Pansophia” where he wrote: “received your address by M. Küntzel... remember myself by Reuss?”

8 See. Pat Zalewski, The Secret Inner Order Rituals of the Golden Dawn, (Phoenix, Arizona: Falcon Press 1988).

Krumm-Heller offered his services to promote Crowley’s ideals in the USA and Spanish-speaking countries with Martha Küntzel’s help, and held public readings from Crowley’s Confessions. Because of these public readings, it was a very short time before he came face-to-face with Aleister Crowley himself, and his representative Karl Germer.

Master Huiracocha and a short history of the F.R.A.

Crowley’s encounter with Krumm-Heller occurred at Henri Birven’s house in Berlin on April 23, 1930. “Huiracocha” immediately irritated “Baphomet” Crowley during the meeting, because of a large spot of grease on his suit. Krumm-Heller felt a desperate need to communicate to Crowley how many Orders and secret societies he had been initiated. This is something that happens unfortunately, still today in the Ordo Templi Orientis, and the dark side of the Illuminati, where they are obsessed with control and recognition from the outside world. Crowley considered Arnold Krumm-Heller a Mason of equal rank, as they were both “Puppet Masters” of the elite. Crowley was 96° in the O.T.O. for England, and Reuss a confirmed 97°. Arnold Krumm-Heller told him that he was 96° for Germany, but that Reuss had cheated him by selling him this degree, along with two other Germans. Krumm-Heller at one point even made himself into a 98°, a bit like the aforementioned Frank G. Ripel who made himself a 100° not so long ago. The O.T.O./Illuminati researcher and initiate, Peter-R. Koenig, writes:

9 <http://www.scribd.com/doc/237730465/ROSA-MYSTICA-The-Rosicrucian-Vault-A-Compendium-of-the-Universal-Unity-pdf#scribd> Archived 10th August, 2015, [emphasis added].

Crowley had high hopes for Krumm-Heller and unsuccessfully suggested in 1936 that he should “take over the work in California.” Crowley had been so disappointed by the 2nd Agape Lodge that he also suggested to McMurtry he should take it over, 10 years later. (McMurtry was just one among many and certainly NOT Crowley’s first choice.) In 1936, the Nazi-pamphlet “Der Judenkenner” appeared which caused the neighbours of Krumm-Heller’s family in Berlin to get upset. Recently I was to discover some documents that show that Arnoldo Krumm-Heller was eagerly interested to give his children an education according Nazi-ideology. So, Cuauthemoc Krumm-Heller was sent in 1937 to the famous Nazi elite school NAPOLA (which Hitler wrote: “A youth will rise in my order castles who will scare the whole world. I want a violent, dictatorial, intrepid, cruel youth”). Krumm-Heller participated in organizing the Red Cross in Spain but left the country for South America after General Franco’s ascent to power. He continued to travel (Palestine, Egypt, Turkey and Rhodesia) but spent the Second World War in Germany, where he happened to be at the outbreak of war. And with the Mexican flag alongside the Hakenkreuz in front of his house, they survived WW II seemingly safe.

In 1942, Krumm-Heller was staying at a sanatorium in Pyrmont, from where he wrote to the 2nd Agapé Lodge in California, amongst other letters. This lodge was whence the “Church of Thelema” stemmed, which is still being led by Helen P. Smith as a highly exclusive group. Krumm-Heller signed his letters to Bolivia as “Huiracocha R+C+,” and stamped them with a seal bearing the title “Ecclesia Gnostica” (which was later also used by his son Parsival).¹⁰

In 1956, Parsival Krumm-Heller distanced himself from the international leadership of the Fraternitas Rosicruciana Antiqua after his father’s death, thus following his father’s directions where the national branches of the FRA would continue independently. From 1995, Parsival began a complex operation to reconstitute the branches of the Fraternity into a federation. When I was still a member in the F.R.A. in 2002, Dr. Emanuele Coltro Guidi of the Antiqua-Ecclesia Gnostica Latin (who is a dangerous Satanist), had continued this unification project on behalf of Parsival Krumm-Heller. Guidi surprisingly admitted one day in open lodge, that the real leader of this Rosicrucian Fraternity was not Parsival, but an ex-officer of Himmler’s SS (the infamous Totenkopfverbände), who lived in London.

Who was Arnold Krumm-Heller? Born in Salchendorf, Germany on April 15, 1876, he was a distinguished scholar and writer, and his family emigrated to Mexico in 1823. He studied medicine in Germany, Switzerland and Mexico and became a German naval Intelligence agent during the Mexican Revolution and World War I. He was a Colonel of the Mexican Army Military Health and Director General of Schools Troop. As a diplomat he was Minister of Mexico in Switzerland and Germany, until the end of the First World War. But most of his attention was devoted to the study of esotericism, Rosicrucianism, Theosophy, Occult, Martinism and Spiritual Enlightenment, as he himself described in his autobiography. He was a friend of Rudolf Steiner, whom he considered to be a true Rosicrucian, and was acquainted with Franz Hartmann (1838- 1912) and Theodor Reuss,¹¹ who initiated him into the O.T.O./Illuminati where he reached the last Degree of this system (Ordo Templi Orientis). After meeting Crowley he acquired a growing obsession for sexual magick, writing at one point: “through the awakening of sexual secretions, lies the only way to reach the goal of the Great Work and everything else that is not through the use of this, is unfortunately only a waste of time.” KrummHeller’s view is now unfortunately, the view of most contemporary Rosicrucians corrupted by the dark side of the Illuminati and the Left-Hand Path.

“Psychic” vampirism in the Illuminati and more ...

uring my time in the F.R.A. I began to study the phenomena of psychic vampires or energy vampires. They don’t have sharp teeth, suck blood, or live in Transylvania, but are very dangerous, especially if they are occultists. They are predators that use an endless repertoire of tricks to steal energy. Emotional vampires are not always aware of their role in society, but in a sectarian environment, as in the Fraternitas Saturni, an order openly dedicated in the degree system of feeding an astral vampire, this situation of course, changes completely, as they are the worst kind of black magicians. These people invade freedom without limitations and are convinced that humanity has been created to meet their needs.

The psychic vampire may seem like anyone else at first, but, slowly, having won your sympathy, they begin to suck your emotional energy. Even if not a secret society member, the energy vampire is dedicated to consciously perpetuating these actions. Even if your just meeting casually for a coffee, this person could use the opportunity to drain your vital energy and deplete your aura. The result could visibly be felt as weakness, and loss of energy. If the psychic draining is allowed to continue, emotional and physical results can occur, such as disease...and even death. Psychic vampirism is often utilized by Grand Masters and sorcerers of secret societies of the New World Order, that draw energy for their work in this way.

How can we turn this heavy negative energy into a beautiful, peaceful and serene one? How can we help ourselves to enjoy a happier and more peaceful life? “Energy vampires” or “psychic vampires,” are everywhere, and we are often unprepared and caught off guard when attacked. ¹² Dott. Nicholaj de Mattos Frisvold, a Norwegian psychiatrist and known Satanist, and a figure you have been introduced to Volume I, ¹³ is a typical psychic vampire, who even boasted of his “vampire” status shamelessly among his close followers, believing it gave added value to his evil persona.

Frisvold presented me to the “Brothers” of the aforementioned Fraternitas Saturni in Norway, a German order linked to Crowley’s Thelema, founded in Germany in 1928 by an expert psychic vampire named Eugen Grosche. According to Frisvold, this sect was a hotbed of psychic vampires, and that I should join their ranks as a high level Illuminati, to grasp certain techniques that could benefit me and the Order. In that period of my life in the late 1990s and early 2000s, I felt so much negativity around me that it was truly difficult to remain intact and positive. I was constantly frequenting bars and clubs, due to my job as a DJ, and these of places, where the use of alcohol, drugs, can expose you to negative energy, thus facilitating the task of the psychic vampire to suck your energy. Also fear, anger, resentment, jealousy—all the self-destructive emotions that pollute the mind—can open passages to energy vampires that feed on these thoughts that are present at the lowest levels of your being. That’s why you have to make choices in life, to change bad habits and protect yourself. If you have fallen victim to an energy vampire like Frisvold, you may immediately find that his presence will put you in a bad mood. But if the bond that is created between you and your Master is an addictive one, as in the case of a sectarian bond, it could be the opposite, causing discontent, but with an almost morbid and unhealthy need to continue the relationship. I believe that this symptom is frequent within the Illuminati network, but no one talks about it.

When distancing yourself from a psychic vampire, you should set limits, and never allow him to cross them. Every time he or she attempts to cross the line, you should always re-established boundaries. Heal your self-esteem, because the psychic vampire will try in every way to lower it. One trick in the defense of psychic attack, which may seem odd, is to praise the psychic vampire with compliments because if you satiate them, they may not feel the need to feed off your energy, it is a bit like throwing a dog a bone. If they try to offer to help you should refuse, as he may make you feel indebted later. Always remember that for a psychic vampire, lying is normal for them, therefore never listen to their promises, but instead base everything on factual evidence. In addition you must heal and protect your aura, which can become weakened, and for this reason it is important, when you are dealing with a psychic vampire, to visualize an oval shell of light that surrounds your body and protects you during meetings with this person. ¹⁴

I know this method I just mentioned might seem a bit “New Age” to some, but I can assure you that it works, having used it myself in the presence of very dangerous psychic vampires many times. In late medieval demonology—particularly in the inquisitorial trials of witchcraft—the demon called a “succubus” often appears in the form of a woman, where they lure men with sex, and steal his semen. Operating in the opposite direction is the “incubus,” the classic “nightmare” demon, which appears instead in the form of a man. The vampire literature often quotes an old particularly detailed text regarding the succubi, written by Father Luigi Maria Sinistrari of Ameno.

The “psychic vampire” in this case of a succubus, is not a human person but an entity. The psychic vampire can be found in literature: one classic example is The Parasite by Arthur Conan Doyle (1859-1930), the creator of Sherlock Holmes. Conan Doyle attended environments like the Theosophical Society and knew the esoteric theories on “astral vampirism.” ¹⁵ One of the main supporters of this theory, was the German theosophist Franz Hartmann, (someone that Theodor Reuss claimed was one of the founding members of the O.T.O.), ¹⁶ who stated that this thesis was brought forward centuries earlier by Paracelsus (1439-1541). It is, however, more likely that the origins of psychic vampirism generated in an internal debate in the world of French spiritualism, which took place in the late 1850s.

Z.J. Piérart (1810-1878) was a French Researcher and a Professor at the College of Maubeuge, who emerged as a prominent figure in spiritist circles in the 1850s. He opposed the theory of reincarnation, but maintained instead, what became a classic in French spiritism, “the belief in the existence of an “astral body.” It was precisely this “astral body,” that according to Piérart, that could explain the phenomena of psychic energetic-vampirism. He felt that different types of “astral bodies” could attack in a “vampiric” way and empty the energy of one who had done them wrong in life. The German theosophist was convinced that the activity of a psychic vampire could be developed by “forces,” or psychic residues.

The theories of Hartmann represented innovation compared to the explanations on vampirism given at that time, especially in Theosophical Society circles. Madame Blavatsky exposed in Isis Unveiled (1877) the thesis of Piérart, but she did not exclude the existence of real vampires in the classic sense of the term, and it was believed by many that “astral bodies” could actually feed on blood, which is only partially true, because they feed on sperm and other bodily fluids, and especially the energy of the soul. The theory of psychic vampirism was developed in the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn, where both Aleister Crowley and Dion Fortune, before joining or creating rival organizations, believed in the existence of “psychic vampires” as malevolent people, capable of absorbing energy from others. The theories of Dion Fortune in particular, exercised considerable influence in esoteric circles, and influenced all subsequent literature on the subject of psychic vampirism.

A variant of the psychic vampire is the “psychic sponge,” mentioned by Hartmann. He spoke of a kind of vampire who uses “animal magnetism,” a concept made famous by Freemason and Illuminati Franz Anton Mesmer (1734-1815). In this situation, just being in the presence of this kind of person will make you feel weak and lose energy.

In the esoteric tradition, the “magnetic” form of psychic vampirism—and the means to resist it—have been described in detail by the Confraternita Terapeutica e Magica di Myriam (Therapeutic and Magic Brotherhood of Myriam), an Illuminati sect founded in Italy by Giuliano Kremmerz (pseudonym of Ciro Formisano, 1861-1930).¹⁷ The practice of psychic vampirism in recent years is not only linked to the Fraternitas Saturni, but also to the new Neo-Luciferian Church,¹⁸ an Illuminati organization founded in 2005 by Danish occultist Bjarne Pedersen, along with Michael Paul Bertiaux (b. 1935), author of The Voudon Gnostic Workbook, and formerly involved in Scandinavia with the activities of Dr. Nicholaj de Mattos Frisvold. Bertiaux, who claims to practice homosexual magick, is the proponent of a famous and successful convergence between Gnosticism, Haitian voodoo, and the O.T.O., called Ordo Templi Orientis Antiqua, of which Frisvold was, at one time, the leading Northern European representative. This was before Bertiaux argued with Frisvold about the Choronzon Club, as Frisvold apparently didn’t want to have a homosexual encounter with him (at least, that’s what he said), but he still claimed that he was part of what is basically, a homosexual club.¹⁹

To better understand who Michael Paul Bertiaux really is, a former member of his mystery school known as Frater Barrabas writes:

Michael often performed his Voudoun ceremonies completely nude, or sometimes he would wear a mask. This was quite a departure from Michael the wandering bishop, who would wear beautiful handmade silk and satin vestments and perform private masses using the Greek Orthodox rite (of St. Basil). In his mundane habits, Michael would wear rather drab and even ill-fitting clothes—he looked a bit like a slob. He was much more comfortable wearing exotic outfits than fitting in with the urban masses. Since he worked for the State of Illinois in the capacity of a bureaucrat in the government aid services, he probably wore a nice suit and easily fit in with the grey masses of fellow bureau workers. I never saw him wear a suit, since the few times I visited were during weekends. My initiation consisted of first being completely naked, presented to the various spirits and Iwa of the dead, then being forced to drink a third of a bottle of Wild Turkey, and finally, being sexually accosted by this man. I remember distinctly lying naked on the floor of his temple, with this rather flabby fury man laying on top of me, pinning me down while attempting to french kiss me (as I gritted my teeth) and thereby arouse me. Yet all it did was bring out in me a sense of complete revulsion and a stubborn will power to keep myself from being violated in any manner. I succeeded in that, but then probably didn't receive the full blessing of being magickally affected or transformed by Michael's operation. I was given a title and an accolade later, but I actually felt little changed, and I was just relieved that I had avoided any spiritual contamination. My teacher just accepted all of this without a single complaint, and didn't intercede for me when it was obvious that I was resisting Bertiaux with all my efforts. I was also restrained out of courtesy and some degree of openness to Michael, since otherwise, I would have become violent towards him. I now know why Christopher didn't interfere with Michael when he was assaulting me, and that is, he had hopes to receive the many blessings of Bertiaux's initiations. Indeed, he underwent many initiations, got his bishop's consecration and other titles, and much of this is actually documented in his books. Christopher, or Bill Schnoebelen, which was his real name, completely cooperated with Michael Bertiaux for a couple of years. He probably had to endure quite a bit of sexual abuse at his hands. I have heard that others who have sought out initiations from Michael Bertiaux received far more than they bargained for, having to forbear him with the favor of anal sex as a certification of the transmission of legitimate occult initiations. Although I had been offered such enticements myself, after just one episode, I tactfully demurred any further accolades.²⁰

As you have read, Bertiaux tends to use initiations to sexually harass his followers, and present among them was the controversial author and occultist Bill Schnoebelen, who at the time called himself Christopher Syn, is now a “born again Christian,” but states publicly he was a former vampire.²¹ Schnoebelen paints a picture of vampires in his picturesque interviews, that fall into the field of disinformation.

The Neo-Luciferian Church, (FIG. 73) is a relatively new organization with the motto “Ipsa Scientia Potestas Est,” where we find a blend of modern Western occult teachings, especially the teachings of Thelema, with witchcraft; voodoo, ancient and modern Gnosticism. The “neo-Luciferian Church” is considered strongly inspired by the Luciferian Gnosticism that was inspired in turn, in the early twentieth century, by Danish Illuminati Carl Wiliam Hansen, a member of the O.T.O, Martinist movement and other secret societies in the Illuminati network. In 1906, Hansen published (under the pseudonym Ben Kadosh), a book entitled Den Ny Morgens Gry, Lucifer-Hiram, Verdensbygmesterens Genkomst (Dawn of a New Morning, Lucifer-Hiram, The Return of the Master Builder of the World). It is proof that the occult side of Freemasonry has been preparing for the coming of Lucifer for quite a long time.

https://www.reife.com/07/Bill_William_Schnoebelen.html ‡ Archived 11th August, 2015.

In 1923, C.W. Hansen as Delegate of the Order of the Martinists from a charter he had received from Joanny Bricaud, founded the “Grand Orient de la vraie et haute Maçonnerie esoterique et gnostique du Danmark.” He also founded the lodge “Sphinxen” which only operated for one year, and it was here that he met his future successor, Grunddal Sjallung (1895-1976). Hansen dissolved the lodge, and in the summer of 1924 he received a 33° charter from the

“Grande Oriente Italiano degli Antichi ed Accetati Muratori, Zenith di Roma,” via Eduardo Frosini, who had been a member of Theodor Reuss’ Rite of Memphis-Misraïm in Italy. Frosini was a collaborator of Arturo Reghini, who exchanged charters of a “Ritus Philosophicus Italicus” with Aleister Crowley in 1913. It was Frosini who sent the Reuss-rituals to Hansen. Frosini also sent the Rite of Memphis-Misraïm and the “Order of Illuminati” charter to Hansen as well. ²²

As you can see, Lucifer is the ultimate vampiric energy that the New Age offers to the dark side, with people like Carl William Hansen, and his heir Bjarne Pedersen. And of course there is the involvement of Theosophy in all this. In fact, the work of Hansen was presented to Michael Paul Bertiaux by the theosophist and Illuminati Marc Lully, vice president of a Chicago Theosophical lodge, where he originally met Bertiaux back in January, 1966. ²³ Lully in turn was in direct contact with Johansen (who died in 1977), who was the Grand Master of Carl William Hansen mystery school. In September of 1978, Marc Lully disappeared, but according to Bertiaux, he lived the rest of his life in a Catholic monastery. ²⁴ Did Lully become a Jesuit? There exists an Illuminati devoted to ecclesiastical activities, also born from the Egyptian rites and Theosophy through the Liberal Catholic Church, which has given rise to one of the most known Gnostic schools. This specific branch is headed today by author and expert on Gnostic and Jungian studies Stephan A. Hoeller (Baron von Hoeller-Bertram b. 1931), a Jesuit agent I personally met on more than one occasion, having attended for a long time the congregation of his Gnostic Church in Oslo, led by my friend the well-known painter Jan Valentin Saether.

Although Baron Hoeller is an old-fashioned aristocratic from the Austro-Hungarian Empire, he is very knowledgeable and prepared individual on the subject, and he is also a 33° of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite. He inherits his position as a senior representative of the milder side of the Illuminati, the Brotherhood of the Illuminati, (FIG. 74) from Richard Duc de Palatine (1916-1977), who emphasizes to its students that many of the so-called esoteric orders were in fact mythical remains of Catholic Theology. ²⁵ As you can see in the end, all roads lead to Rome, and on the topic of Gnostic Churches in relation to the Illuminati and Jesuit manipulation, I will return in greater detail in Volume III.

An Invitation to attend his series of Lectures which will be given throughout the United States of America from the 16th September to 10th December, 1959

You will receive a very warm welcome. Will you please pass this invitation around to your friends.

THE PURPOSE OF THE LECTURE TOUR

In every age and cycle when man enters into the darkness of material existence, one of the MESSENGERS from the Trans-Himalayan White Brotherhood enters the earth region and tries to lead mankind out of the darkness into the Divine Light of Love, Peace and Happiness. Such a VISIT is ever heralded by Their Forerunner who will seek to stop man from rushing headlong to disaster and attempt to restore to man the knowledge of his Divine Nature and the method of attaining Illumination and Interior Communion with the Divine within.

From their secret places and retreats, the Brothers of the Rosy Cross, Brothers of Light, Brothers of the Temple and finally the Brothers of Luxor in the United States have sent forth the clarion call; orders have been given that a FORERUNNER of these Centres of Light was to prepare the way for the Messenger to come in A.D. 1975, who will give the final proof of the Divine Nature of Man. The founders of the Secret Brotherhoods were themselves "ILLUMINATAE," this means that every Brother of Light must be in the position to demonstrate the Divine Science of Illumination, which is the "LOST KEY" to all spiritual endeavour.

This task of demonstrating the Divine Science has been entrusted to His Serene Highness, Richard, Duc de Palatine, who himself is a proven "Illuminati" and an initiate of the secret schools mentioned above.

recently passed away, a pawn of the occult elite, who loved to infuse secret mystery in his bestsellers. Eco attacked Labruyère publicly, from the pages of the famous Italian weekly L'Espresso, on the theory of a Jesuit plot behind world affairs. ²⁶ By doing so, Umberto Eco was basically demonstrating his loyalty to the Jesuits.

After this episode, C.R.O.M. which for years had done an excellent job in France denouncing the Vatican-led New World Order, began an internal crisis that would eventually cease all activities in the organization, from May 3rd, 2014. This coincided with the inauguration of a new project, way from the public speculation, that was created by Labruyère, called Nova Polis. In the end, one of the various reasons for Labruyère's decision was the betrayal of two of his employees in Paris, who were initiated into the Memphis Rite of Freemasonry, a Rite belonging to fringe Masonry which, as I explained in Volume I, is linked to the Zionist lobby. This unusual gesture for his loyalists is said to have created the final conflict of interests in C.R.O.M.—which was consequently closed down. In 2005, Labruyère answered the following question about the relationship between Judaism and the Society of Jesus:

The relationship between Judaism and the Society of Jesus is full of ambiguity. It's a sort of unnatural union between Israel and the Vatican, with anti-Semitism as a sword of Damocles over the heads of the Jews. What is this great political secret?

JL: If we use our insight we know that politics is a game of three occult powers the cosmic plan: the propertied classes (the political elite), the priestly hierarchy (religion) and the passive power of the masses, which is a considerable force moved by inertia. The two upper caste have the temporal power and spiritual power through which they control the masses. Humanity, as a third force, serves as a reservoir of energy to the two dominant caste. Humanity is the battery that powers the Egregor of the priestly afterlife, while providing the material wealth of that class system that owns this world. The caste of the invisible high priests organizes the religious and magical side, while the political class energizes the industrial and economic activity. For several centuries the international bank imposes its law on religion or political elites. Power is the hostage of finance. Money has become the stakes of politics. International finance controls the game, but it seems that a higher kind of power manipulates it. The order of the Jesuits acts in an occult way on the high Masonic degrees, and thus influence the rest of civil society.

So there is a balance to preserve the interests of the three titans of the world. They fight against each other but must respect the status quo to maintain the cohesion of a world empire. How to reconcile the voracious appetites of the demons of materialism to the best interests of the priestly hierarchies that reign on the astral dimension? It is the great question of world politics. The world order is then based on a contract between the three titans. The masses of people will be given a socialist society, covered by an elite committed to defend its material privileges, and everything will be dominated by a theocratic regime represented by a world religion, which was responsible for transferring energy to the formation of the invisible astral. If the Titans are unable to agree to a lasting peace, since everyone wants a bigger slice of the cake, there will be total war, symbolized by the fall of Babylon the Great. We are not yet at this point, and we must therefore hope that the processes of the crisis will accelerate rather than slow, who want them with lamentations idealistic and pacifist to get a so-called “better world.” In this game, the powerful political-occult side of the Jesuit Order—of which the Company of Jesus is nothing but a mask—has the mission to corner the world power for the benefit of the priesthood in order to prolong the reign of the great priests of the invisible, yet is in danger since it spread atheism on Earth. However, while defending the ancient priestly order, the Jesuit Order has to oppose a spiritual renewal just entering the Age of Aquarius. That's why the Jesuitical works with materialistic science to maintain the dogma of a material universe created by God.

And the Roman Catholic dogma?

JL : The Jesuits are especially jealous of their monopoly on the areas of astronomy, underwater cartography, paleontology, archeology, etc. They oppose any spiritual revelation that could destroy the materialistic view of the universe. Do you know why? Because they intend to organize the solar system in a rational and technocratic way, to better implement bureaucratic control. In this we recognize the powerful will of the warrior genius of Mars that inspired Ignatius: to reduce the solar system in a theocratic form of socialism. ²⁷

Among the various investigations conducted over the years by the C.R.O.M. for their publications, what I consider the most interesting is the topic of the Damanhur community of northwestern Italy. This mysterious New Age community / Illuminati sect is officially presented as: "a federation of spiritual Communities that created a reality based on solidarity, sharing, mutual love and respect for the environment."

Damanhur, which in recent years has attracted the attention of mainstream media, including the American network ABC, ²⁹ is actually something very different from what the New Age propaganda would like you to believe. Damanhur means City of Light because it is dedicated to the god Horus, one of the central figures of Egyptian mythology, as well as Crowley's Thelema. From here you can easily understand the connection with Aleister Crowley, who announced himself as the prophet of the New Aeon of Horus. Damanhur is a community located in Valchiusella, north of Turin. The founder was the late Oberto Airaudi (1950-2013), who was known by the nickname "Falco" meaning falcon, because he wished to be connected to Horus, who was usually depicted as a falcon-headed man. In 1975, he began as a "spiritual" leader of a small esoteric circle in Turin called the Horus center for parapsychological research.

In what eventually became his own center, he gave lectures and courses on telepathy, spiritualism, pranic breathing exercises, natural science, past lives, and hypnosis. In Airaudi's syncretism, there co-exists different elements picked up from different traditions, just like Aleister Crowley and other Illuminati New Age Guru's have practiced before him. He borrowed from the usual Theosophy, Eastern spirituality, and had a deep reverence to Aleister Crowley's "New Religion" of Thelema. The first center was joined by others in other cities, which were regarded as "embassies" of Damanhur. The 1970s were the ideal time for this project, which developed quickly into something much bigger. In 1977, Oberto Airaudi decided to found a community made up initially of a small group of people, but over the years the community exceeded 400 permanent members, to which thousands of visitors worked for free on this top secret project. In 1992, Airaudi began a new phase in the life of his community because of the problems created when a former member revealed to the Italian police authorities the existence of the "Temples of Humankind" near Vidracco, Italy. It's a series of Temples dug underground (with no building permit), deep within a mountainside. Its construction lasted more than a decade in complete secrecy, and no one except the people of Damanhur suspected its existence. The mountain community of Valchiusella requested its immediate destruction after the discovery, but the residents of Damanhur managed to collect over one hundred thousand signatures in a short time (including those of many illustrious personalities and scholars), and were able to save their temples. It was declared a "collective work of art" by the Fine Arts section of the Piedmont region. ³⁰

The following is the now a rare report conducted by the now defunct French organization C.R.O.M. on Damanhur, now available in the English language, that reveals for the first time the possible links of Oberto Airaudi with the Jesuits, as well as his strange upbringing and occult links to Aleister Crowley. C.R.O.M. on DAMANHUR:

Among the New Age communities that are incorporated in Europe, that of Damanhur, based in Piedmont, is undoubtedly the most spectacular. First, because the members of this community do not occupy one and the same building, or even a single ecovillage, but an entire valley, Valchiusella, in the province of Turin, which is gradually being populated by “Damanhurians.” Second, because they have dug numerous underground rooms that serve as both temples of unparalleled splendor, and workshops in which they seem to have developed, among other things, machines for time travel. The so-called “Temple of Humanity” was placed on the list of UNESCO World Heritage Sites. Within the C.R.O.M. we feed a certain distrust of the fables of the New Age, but we wanted to know more about the community of Damanhur so one of us went to the scene to conduct an investigation. His research eventually led him to Holland where our suspicions were later confirmed. But let’s see what he discovered.

C.R.O.M.: What was the starting point of your research?

Before I went to Damanhur, I wanted to learn more about its founder Oberto Airaudi, alias Falco, especially if he was a leader able to drag his entourage of intelligent people or one of those pale figures—as there are many in New Age environments—that do not have the courage to impose a certain direction for fear of seeming “patriarchal.” In this case I would not even have to move, because I knew from that kind of outset that I would find the usual New Age ideology and the same more or less anarchist organization that characterizes ecovillages worldwide.

C.R.O.M.: So was this the case?

Absolutely not. Damanhur has proved a highly structured community, which after all is normal when you consider its size and its role in the New Age circles. In fact, it took a bit of time to find information about Falco’s background. It is mysterious, and inaccessible, as is closest associates do nothing but repeat the usual litany, and not to not annoy visitors that have anarchists tendencies who might be tempted to follow in his footsteps, they act as he never existed. Finally it is thanks to a report published in an American magazine ³¹ that I found relevant information, and even more than what I expected. I learned in fact that Oberto Airaudi was not an ordinary person. Already as a baby he was able to move objects with the power of thought. Later, he recalls having invoked the ghosts to “frighten his opponents in a game of football!” Finally, we know that at age 14 he organized experiments out of the body while giving courses in physics, mathematics and esoteric philosophy to an audience of a hundred people.

31 “Atlantis in the Mountains of Italy,” published in the journal “What is Enlightenment?” (April to June 2007). C.R.O.M.: A child really out of the ordinary?

I quickly realized that I was dealing with a great occultist, probably surrounded by entities, after seen all the miracles he has authored. It is possible that a baby is able to move objects with the power of thought, when not yet have the ability to think? We in the C.R.O.M. know that such an exploit can only be achieved with the help of disembodied entities, i.e. ghosts. ³² On the other hand, these entities are manifested only in case of necessity, since this requires them a great expenditure of energy. The young Oberto had to therefore be very useful to those entities, unless he has been sufficiently linked to them in the course of past lives in order to control the higher spheres of his being. In any case, these kind of feats can be accomplished only if the previous life had been devoted to an intense occult development. Not to mention the intellectual faculties that allowed a teenage Oberto Airaudi to impart courses on any subject: are also the result of an abnormal development. A life like many people only dream about; though this is not my case, I would say it rather arouses a certain revulsion in me. Only a super-ego can be capable of such miracles: an ego so “heavy” that is likely to remain anchored to the Earth during eons! But the Great Liberation does not fit the agenda of Oberto. Since his childhood he had visions— probably inspired by its occult controllers—which consisted of underground temples that he should build later in life. This idea had become an obsession and soon after he opened a center in Turin—his hometown, known for its heavy occult past, where he directed, so the story goes, 36 esoteric research groups, each pursuing a different project. One of his greatest victories, as he states in the aforementioned magazine, was that two of his Jesuit teachers left their place to study at his side. ³³

C.R.O.M.: So he studied at a Jesuit school?

It seems likely. But that does not mean much, because in the world there are a lot of schools runs by the Jesuits. What is extraordinary is the fact that two Jesuits teachers have followed him. In fact, the Jesuits are certainly not ordinary individuals: they are powerful beings who are interested only in projects that can advance their cause. However, the “spiritual exercises” of Ignatius of Loyola developed occult powers to the extreme, activating a close monitoring on those who indulge in them. There can therefore be no misunderstandings between these super ego’s of the Jesuits or the one of the regimented Oberto, who has concluded a contract with the Jesuit egregore to help him do his work. In any case, there was convergence of interests between the two, this is evident.

C.R.O.M.: Because the Jesuits should support a project such as Damanhur?

It’s true that some of our readers might be surprised that members of a religious order, whose initial vocation was to defend the Catholic Church, can support a New Age project—and therefore “pagan”—like that of Damanhur. These readers have a narrow view of what is really Catholicism, a view which is not that of the great occultists who are at the head of the Roman Church. The pope and his cardinals have a single goal: the survival and expansion of their egregore. To them, it matters little that the icon of choice to federate is that of Jesus or the Great Architect! ³⁴ Shortly before going to Damanhur, I made a brief visit to the Vatican. I had available a full day. First of all I was impressed with the power that emanates from those few hectares built. Anyone entering the Vatican acquires the certainty that the Catholic religion is still strong. But what surprised me most are the huge halls full of statues: Egyptian, Etruscan, Babylonian etc. I'm talking about the originals—not copies! There are so many that the visitor can not help but not see them, it makes you almost queasy. The ordinary visitor does not ask himself why in this place there are gathered so many art objects from religions that the official Catholic dogma considers idolatrous. Why, for example, within it's walls there are two museums on the Etruscans, when the Vatican already has so little space itself ?

32 La corte dei miracoli: spiegazione dell'occulto, (The court of miracles: the occult explanation), article published in the journal "VITRIOL" No. 19 (only available in French and Italian).

33 Original sentence written in the cited article is: "He knew he was on to something when he was able to convince two of his Jesuit teachers at school to quit in order to come study with him."

34 More and more prelates of the Catholic Church are becoming Masons. But we know that most of Freemasonry is itself under the control of the Jesuits, at least in the last 150 years .

C.R.O.M.: Maybe because they are not museums?

Exactly! The term "museum" conceals the true purpose for the presence of all these statues, which really serve as a liaison with the hidden powers related to the ancient cults. Let me explain it to our readers. If Rome has acquired so much power in ancient times, it did it not only for its military strength, but also because it was able to absorb the magic power of its opponents. C.R.O.M. has already published an article about the Etruscans, and how Rome has somehow stolen their religion. ³⁵

When Rome conquered a population, they brought into the "Eternal City" statues and representations of the gods to which the vanquished people in question had worshipped. Rome told them: "You see, your gods have taken a place in our pantheon. Now they are our gods and we have assimilated them; you are therefore citizens of the Empire." It was a very strong magical act.

C.R.O.M.: But one day they destroyed all these statues, right?

Yes, when it came time to impose the Catholic “one God.” To better control the consciousness of the masses, the leaders of Rome had to orient in one and the same direction all their prayers. By contrast, the elite continued to use these pagan statues to practice their magic, that’s why we find these statues in the “museums” of the Vatican. In my opinion, the existence of all those Egyptian statues in the Vatican — as the Sphinx that stands in the middle of an ornamental garden— is proof that the Roman egregore groups occultists who were already dedicated to magic in ancient times. Why keep such objects inside the Vatican, except to maintain a link with the old cores? What we call “Rome” is nothing but a federation of retrograde Egregores that have joined forces to gain more strength.

C.R.O.M.: This makes us think of Aleister Crowley (1875-1947), the famous English occultist who, in England, had a political role much more important than people realize. Why he went to be initiated in Egypt, if not to bind to an egregore who he had already belonged to in previous incarnations? We know that England is the new Rome of the modern era.

Yes, exactly, and to return to Damanhur, the founder believed himself to be the reincarnation of the Egyptian god Horus, and the reason why he called himself Falco. Its first center in Turin was called the Horus Center, and Damanhur is the name of a legendary Egyptian city. Everything is so clearly linked at an occult level to Egypt, Rome, England and Damanhur. The same force currents pass through these centers, from which emanates an unbreathable air. In any case, I was right to visit the Vatican before going to Damanhur. In fact, when I finally got to the Temples of Humankind (open to the public), I was not surprised to find countless statues and representations of Egyptian gods, Etruscan gods, Babylonian ones, and others! Certainly these statues were less ornate than those at the Vatican, but their magical function is more apparent because, in the New Age universe that they operate, it is fashionable to initiate with any sort of “current.” Actually, the Temples of Humankind are a kind of tomb, where Falco tried to lock up as many magical forces, whatever they are. Some underground rooms tell us of the evolution of humanity, others are a representation of the sky with the constellations, and some are chapels dedicated to time. Time here is the true deity of these forces trying to last as long as possible on Earth!

35 Roma, città edificata sulla paura, (Rome, a city built on fear), published in the journal "VITRIOL" No. 20 (only available in French and Italian).

C.R.O.M.: Damanhur is however much more than just an underground temple. What is, in your opinion, the purpose of the community that lives around there? Well, as its founder said, the purpose of Damanhur is to prepare for the future civilization of Aquarius. For Falco, it is clear that the present civilization will be destroyed, and considered that he was here to ensure the transition to the New Era.

In short, we can say that the forces representing Falco—because we understood, he does not act alone—are aware that, through the era of Aquarius, they risk losing everything they have gained so far. Especially since the Age of Aquarius is a time when the astral plane of the planet is cleared—those dimensions on which you have accumulated all the wrongly-oriented thoughts and emotions of humanity.

It is on the invisible planes surrounding Earth that disembodied occultists have established their kingdoms. But there are forces far superior to those magicians who are trying to dislodge them to purify the atmosphere of the planet. What are the forces for whom Falco was acting? At first they bury under the mountains, which is a very revealing sign. Then, in this bath of closed energy, they give birth to a new religion gradually, presented as the "religion of Aquarius," which however will be nothing but a synthesis of all the reactionary forces.

Catholicism was already a degenerated synthesis of all these more or less retrograde forces of the ancient era: the Etruscan religion, the mystery cults, Judaism. Originally Catholicism did not have much in common with Christianity! Today, with the New Age, things are moving at a higher speed by incorporating all the cultures in the interim findings from Rome: the Mayan, Aztec, Hindu and their marching retrograde entities. We find all this in the Temples of Humankind in Damanhur, which synthesized all that humanity has known. But a religion can not be born in an artificial way. Its development requires enlightened beings who participate and that, little by little, integrate the different energies. It is for this purpose, in my opinion, that they founded the community of Damanhur: we see a testing ground in which to test the future religion of the Age of Aquarius were sincere people act as unwitting guinea pigs for its development. Jesuits, in the sixteenth century, took control of several populations in South America to later transform them into "good Christians." To make a success of their experiments, they isolated some Indian villages from each other, then they forced the inhabitants to get up at six in the morning to the sound of bells and to work for them as they sang "Praise the Lord" from morning 'till night. This colossal enterprise of energy use, which lasted until 1768 and involving up to 140,000 guinea pigs, was conducted in what historians call "reductions," places where the Jesuits have managed to get the sedentary Indians in an urban area and in submission to their Church. So it was in this way that the Indians were subjected to civilian life and the Church.

C.R.O.M.: Damanhur would then be a new form of Jesuit "reduction"?

Absolutely. You might believe that Damanhurians are more aware and freer than they Indians were, but they are completely dominated. Falco himself received its directives from a sort of "energy ball" that indicated to him what to do. And all his followers followed its directives with a passion, convinced that they came from higher evolved beings. Mysticism mixed with the fear that characterized the old reductions disappeared, but there is one thing: the deification of the afterlife.

In Damanhur, we look at the reality of what we at C.R.O.M. call the "cult of the occult." Everyone has an interest in the occult and the only way to move up the hierarchy of the organization is to perfect yourself in astral travel. Those who are not able to leave one's body do not stay long in the community. But no problem: the "university" of Damanhur offers numerous courses in which everyone can learn this practice, which is clearly perceived as an immense spiritual progress. In fact, this practice opens students to invisible forces that we talked about, which may well keep them under control and use them better. Already today, some agents trained in the Damanhur ecovillage pass from one to another bringing the good word of “World Unity,” of “Universal Love” and of “Astral Travel.” The leaders of Damanhur are heading the Global Ecovillage Network (G.E.N.), a sort of world federation of alternative communities, spiritual or not. Those who know the history of Rome and the network of alliances it has forged to have influence over the nations, can not see anything but their imperialist aims to ensure that all communities in the world follow the same line and that they make no attempt to get in dissent with the prevailing ideology of the New Age. Only a few hundred people reside permanently in Damanhur, but this community has thousands of followers worldwide. It’s hard to imagine the scale, but this should not be overlooked when considering the ideological weakness of most ecovillages, compared the incrollabile certainty that inhabits the followers of Falco. We met them at New Age meetings in France: the public is almost completely conquered and sees in them models to follow.

C.R.O.M.: What do you think of their magical technology, in particular the supposed machines to travel in time they promote so much? Is it a scam?

Actually, they do not travel in time, they explore just what esotericists call the Akashic records, which contain all the memory of the planet. In fact, their names for their wacky technologies are intended primarily to focus astral energy. In various underground temples there are, for example, machines whose function is to recover the energy generated by the feeling of admiration of the visitors. As these technologies have been designed by occultists, I believe that actually they produce results. When a person uses the machine to travel in time (for the few initiates that are allowed to participate), around them are musicians that procure energy, allowing them to make a longer and more intense astral journey. The experience of Damanhur remains interesting because, their vision of scientific magic, foreshadows what will be the Age of Aquarius. This we can not deplore. Instead, what we deplore is the energy used: it is always and even astral energy correlated with old retrograde Egregores. The machines and the temples of Damanhur only serve to put the person in connection with these Egregores, participating in a vampirization process. Remember, the astral energy is limited, so it needs to be taken away from other beings. The same criticism applies to the thesis of the “synchronic lines” developed by Falco. Let me explain: thanks to his clairvoyance, Falco knew where the astral currents passed, and was able to establish a kind of occult map of the Earth. He knew that Tibet is the place where the most amount of Synchronic Lines pass, and this is not surprising at all for those who know already about the intense activity of the Himalayan leading magicians. Falco also found that the Synchronic Lines converging in Valchiusella where he based his project, were powerful, which is why he established its Temples there that he said “communicate with the whole world.” In fact, his occult map shows only the places where they are located and circulating the “waste of the astral plane” of the Earth. This map looks pretty on the ground of a sewage system, but is of no interest to people who wish to benefit from the new radiation of Aquarius.

C.R.O.M.: What should these people do?

First, you should make a clean break with all these retrograde forces. Why, for ex ample, refer to the Mayan calendar? The Maya civilization belongs to the past, as well as all the practices that put the person in connection with the old Egregores, no matter how venerable. As I said earlier, with Falco’s scientific worldview of the astral plane, Damanhur indicates nevertheless a certain way. Mysticism is much more commonplace. But, instead of using this astral energy in such a full way, we should rather try to better understand the nature of what the ancients called “ether,” the pure energy that is abundant in the universe. However, being foreign to the system of the self-centered human, this energy can be collected and concentrated only by those who have a real inner-transformation. This is what’s at stake in our time.

C.R.O.M.: Thank you, we agree. But before concluding, it seems that you still have not told us what you found in the Netherlands.

Oh yeah, it's as simple as it is spectacular. On the train that brought me back to France, next to me was a group of Belgians who spoke of a wonderful underground gallery that they had visited near Maastricht, with statues of Buddha, Shiva, of Ramses II and of the Christ, a winged bull, Javanese idols, etc.—a total of over 500 statues and paintings. There was even a room that completely reproduced the Alhambra, with fountains, basins and Koranic verses.

My interest was at its peak at this point: was there another Damanhur? Imagine my surprise when I heard that this place is called “Mount of the Jesuits” (Jezuitenberg in Dutch): ³⁶ it was built by students of a seminary located in the immediate vicinity, and is therefore the future work of the Jesuits! It seems that this gallery, which is a veritable temple (several chapels with Arab, Egyptian rooms, etc.) Was built gradually from these Jesuit students during their free time, on Wednesday afternoons? Pupils add to it frequently, because this work—which I later went to visit—extends over almost a century (from 1860 to 1960, approximately), and this in a cave where the temperature never exceeds 10° C! This story, you will agree, is highly improbable. We can certainly brand the Jesuits who tried to hide the site, as unacceptable.

For my part I am convinced that this place—now abandoned—has been a laboratory for reduction, as is today Damanhur. One final observation: the last Jezuitenberg statue was carved in 1968, while the construction of Damanhur started in 1977. There was therefore a continuity between the two projects, the first of which was only a preliminary experiment (and less successful) operated in a safe environment? Or are there other similar underground “temples” built by the Jesuits that remained secret? The mystery remains, but the Jesuit trail is confirmed. ³⁷

To know more about Jezuitenbergh, (FIG. 75) here is a quick article I did for Infowars.com:

It is called, “One of the world’s best-preserved marlstone quarries.” The Jezuitenbergh (Jesuit Caves) is located on the outskirts of the city of Maastricht, close to the Belgian border.

The Jesuits constructed this astonishing place between 1860 and 1960, and it has nothing to do with Christianity, and all to do with paganism and the Babylonian mystery schools. Apparently Jesuit scholars and theological students spent a great deal of their leisure time every Wednesday afternoon working on this project. So the question arises, for what purpose?

Their website describes, “many interesting studies and publications which were produced. There is a full scale floor plan of the quarry’s gallery network, and moreover, they created numerous charcoal and colored drawings on the cave’s walls.” Such drawing strongly remind us of Islamic, and not Catholic art.

It is also stated on their website, “a large number of reliefs and statues were carved on and from the marlstone walls. Winged bulls, the Alhambra (including a fountain and a pond), Christ, Buddha, and the head of Ramses II.” There are many other fascinating objects found in the interior of the subterranean galleries that expose once and for all the Jesuit Order and their link to neopaganism and the New Age. When in 1968 the Jesuit Order left Maastricht, supervision and maintenance of these caves became the responsibility of the Jezüitenberg Foundation. ³⁸

A revelatory video on Jezuitenberg was filmed at the beginning of 2015, by Harrie Kerckhoffs. ³⁹

The investigation on Damanhur, made by French C.R.O.M. reveals Jezuitenberg, another Jesuit secret. where secret ancient rituals known as The arcana arcanorum rite of Atlantis are said to take place. The Latin motto of the Society of Jesus, the classic: Ad maiorem Dei gloriam (For the greater glory of God), takes on a new meaning as the Jesuits and the Illuminati network are in reality pagan, not Christian, and this includes Pope Francis, the first Jesuit Pope.

The Pope Grimoire I mentioned on Project Camelot

once mentioned the existence of a mysterious “Papal Grimoire” in an interview over ten years ago.⁴⁰ The aforementioned Illuminati, Sebastiano Fusco, known by his initiatic name Jorg Sabellicus, in his capacity of initiate of the highest mysteries of the dark side of the Illuminati, explained that among the various books and Grimoires on the subject, the Grimorium, attributed to a “pope” (in some editions listed as “the Great”), has over time acquired the reputation as the most “evil” of all Grimoires. This is not only for describing a ritual, which is particularly gruesome, with reference to the blood sacrifices required, but especially because, unlike similar texts, it does not refer only to the cabalistic magic of Jewish extraction. It has strong Christian influences, which ecclesiastical authorities regard as particularly blasphemous. According to the heading, the book is merely a Papal Bull, issued by Pope Honorius III, to extend to all the “Servants of the Church,” the power to summon and command demons. The Successor of Innocent III, Pope Honorius III, reigned from 1216 to 1227. Among the many, he was consumed with demons.⁴¹ Will Durant states that: “He was too good to continue with the energy struggle between Empire and Papacy.” Most likely, as some authors believe, those who actually wrote the Grimoire in question meant the Antipope Honorius II, instead.⁴² This is the opinion of Eliphas Levi in his The History of Magic.⁴³ Confirming this kind of power given to the Petrine Ministry, we find a specific passage in the New Testament: “And I tell you that you are Peter, and on this rock I will build my church, and the gates of Hades will not overcome it. 19 I will give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven; whatever you bind on earth will be bound in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth will be loosed in heaven.” 20 Then he ordered his disciples not to tell anyone that he was the Messiah.”

This quote tells of the authority entrusted to the Petrine Ministry on paradise as well as hell, and it lends itself to a heretical interpretation, as it seems to echo gnostic heterodoxy, according to which, while God reigns in heaven, the Devil, his opponent, rules this world. Therefore having the authority to “bind and let loose,” meaning being able to summon and dismiss demons on earth, which is a practice that often takes place in “irregular” lodges of occult Freemasonry, and the sectarian network of the Illuminati. Keep in mind the question: “Whether it is permissible to ward off demons,” a practice that was addressed by Saint Thomas Aquinas in “Summa Theologica,” and deemed negative.

Aquinas, considered the supreme doctor of the Catholic Church (who quotes from St. Paul, Origen, St. Augustine, St. James and St. John Chrysostom), condemns the evocation of demons according to the powers given by the Savior, as is found in Jewish tradition, and Christians are not permitted to imitate the rites of the Jews, “but rather use the powers granted to Christ.” Aquinas states that it is lawful to chase away the demonic enemies, threatening them by virtue of the name of God so we are not harmed, both spiritually and physically; but casting them out or invoking is not lawful, because that would involve communication with them. Reaffirming the condemnation of the “sorcerers who practice incantations and invocations of demons.” St. Thomas Aquinas concludes by quoting a saying of Chrysostom, “a healthy norm not to believe in demons, even as they proclaim the truth.” Much more serious is therefore using blasphemous text, which not only describes in detail the procedures required to activate the forbidden trade with evil entities, but attributes these teachings even to a pope, moved from “pastoral care!” The character that originated this Grimoire like previous ones, especially those attributed to Solomon, stressed a particular conception of the Devil that reflected in its text. In high level traditional magic such as in the Old Testament, the Devil is not considered in the Christian sense, the rebel angel who proudly defied God’s power being cast out of heaven, and now, leads man to sin and perdition. Spirits that the magician conjures in his magical circle are in fact personifications of magical forces, consubstantial to the Universe, which are not divided into several kingdoms, but are conceived of as one. For Lewis Spence, their evil connotation comes from subsequent Christian interpretations of magical operations, and he saw this, erroneously, as “evil.”

Sebastiano Fusco “Sabellicus,” states that: “Magical Forces, are neither good nor bad: like all forces, and possess opposite polarities, and any ethical judgment which may affect them depends solely on the will of the magician and the purposes for which they are evoked.” Conversely, entities evoked through the steps of “Pope Honorius”(especially the “demons of the days of the week”), seem to reproduce the characteristics of the rebel angels of “Christian dogma”; which lends the makes the Grimoire even more dark and disturbing. In its structure, the ritual and the grimoire attributed to Pope Honorius, does not differ to more traditional Grimoires. In part, the difference lies in the Christian character of the invocations, and other features, such as the celebration of the Mass. That’s why Sabellicus states that the author could be a priest, which takes up back to the Vatican. Sabellicus believes that the author of this mysterious Grimoire, was an ordained priest, and that the book was written specifically for other religious ministers with the aim of transforming Christian ceremonies to strict Jewish Kabbalistic black magic rituals. ⁴⁴

It is not a coincidence that the arrival of this book coincides with the first period of expansion of the Society of Jesus, an order founded almost 500 years ago in 1534. Some researchers believe that the author of the alleged Pope’s Grimoire might also be a magician who lived in the second half of the sixteenth century. ⁴⁵ I would like to remind you that the previously mentioned thesis of its author being a priest fits the Jesuit profile, as the Company of Jesus were considered among the most powerful magis of the period. Ribadeau Franois Dumas writes about the founder of the Jesuits:

As the exalted Alumbrados (translated: Illuminati), Loyola went in the Benedictine monastery of Montserrat in March 1522, dedicating himself to penance, flagellation, fasting, deprivation for ten months, while constantly hallucinating. Here, there was the appearance of an evil snake that darted on his fiery eyes. Withdrawing into his cave of Manresa, he carved the way for the rise of the great initiates, and tells them about the diabolical apparitions. His “Big Picture” of August, 1522 transformed him, made him know about the invisible powers of hell. So educate yourself, he went to the University of Alcala de Henares, founded by Cardinal Ximenes. He lived in a ruined house, where no one wanted to live, in Antezena. He was invincibly attracted by the occult. ⁴⁶

The Grimoire of Pope Honorius was published in Latin for the first time in Rome in 1629, with the title of Grimorium Honorii Magni. (FIG. 76) There are several copies located in various European libraries, and yet if you were caught with a copy you would certainly wind up in the hands of the infamous Inquisition. My opinion on the possibilities at the end of my research on its authorship are in fact two. This truly diabolical Grimoire might really have been written by a Pope or one of his close assistants, as the Vatican regularly celebrates Satanic rituals to this day, or by a Jesuit. Of course I am also open to other possibilities, and invite historians and researchers to investigate this matter further. However one thing is for sure, the Jesuits are undermining the Church since its founding, and in view of this, we find the constant expansion of relativism/Satanism, which have been supreme proponents for centuries. For this reason I think the Jesuits may very well be the authors of this mysterious Grimoire. Today, a great silence mysteriously envelopes Satan in the Catholic Church, as the Church seems scared to use this concept any longer.⁴⁷ They want us to believe that the devil doesn't exist, and evil is only a product of mankind.

So what is the message of the "New Era?" French writer, J.K. Huysmans states: "Magic is no longer a crime, and sacrilege is casted out of the Church codes." A Dominican Theologian Father Boismard recently stated that the "reality of the Devil, must be questioned."

Father Boismard, states the new idea that: "It is inside the errors of man, that Satan has his origin."⁴⁸ A phrase that seems very far from the original precepts of the Dominican order, linked to views of St. Thomas Aquinas, but closer to the usual relativism promoted by the Jesuits. Another Dominican, Father Christian Duquoc, commented on what he called "incredible news"—the death of Satan—when he writes:

Evil is not outside the human society, it comes entirely from man. Satan would be the means to escape the guilt. It takes on all responsibility that humanity refuses to take collectively. It is the image that reassures me on the non-perversity of my freedom.⁴⁹

This statement, published at the end of the 1960s in a Dominican publication, demonstrates that the Dominican order may have been irremediably compromised by the Jesuits and relativism. Satanism and the Jesuits always go hand in hand, and now they have maximum influence with their own Pope. The mysterious Grimoire of Pope Honorius, teaches how to evoke with a magic ritual. How to evoke dangerous entities, that according to Henry Cornelius Agrippa, author of Occult Philosophy, are: "dark demons, which offend and practice voluntarily evil." The dark side of the Illuminati asks for only material advantages, that being hidden knowledge, wealth, and POWER. This is what the devotees of black magic inside such sects wish to obtain in the end.

They would like us to believe that Satan and his legions no longer exist, so obviously they can continue to act undisturbed conducting Satanic rituals and promoting Satanic causes. Abortion, for example, is allowed so that we can utilize commercially, or otherwise, the aborted fetuses. Also promoted is gay marriage, which marks the end of the traditional family. Or out of control immigration, which is used to destroy the ethnicity of an entire population. On top of all this, they feed us eat genetically modified food to destroy our health, and thus facilitate the pharmaceutical companies. They promote wars without end, to sell weapons, and unfortunately, the list could go on for many pages. The Jesuit Andre Lefevre, SJ, stated that: "It's hard to believe Christ the Redeemer, without at the same time believing in his opponent the Devil." ⁵⁰

The Grimoire attributed to a heretic pope, and most presumably produced by the Jesuits, remains an interesting subject, also because of its current use by many of the leading Satanic sects, even inside the Vatican. All this goes well beyond the imagination of the aforementioned disinformation artist Leo Taxil. Gabriele Amorth, considered in recent years the number one exorcist of the Vatican, in one of his latest books, in which he was interviewed by Marco Tosatti, called Memoirs of an Exorcist, dedicated an entire chapter to "Satanists in the Vatican," where I found this key revelatory passage that confirms in my opinion, Satanic practices in the Vatican:

Tosatti : Previously, Don Gabriel, you told me that some sects are less serious, while others are a lot more terrible.

Amorth: Certainly, some are terribly serious. And unfortunately they are everywhere, even in the Vatican. Yes, even in the Vatican there are members of Satanic sects.

T.: Who is involved? Is it simple priests or laity?

A.: There are priests, monsignors and also cardinals!

T.: Forgive me, Father Gabriele, but how do you know?

A.: I know from people that have been able to report it because they had a way of knowing it directly. And it's "confessed" several times by the devil himself, under obedience during the exorcisms. ⁵¹

The secrets of Satanism in the Vatican will be a major theme of my upcoming third volume in the Confessions series.

Benjamin Fulford – between reality and misinformation

In recent years, many readers have asked me to clarify my role in the bonds affair, associated with the well-known Canadian journalist, Benjamin Fulford. He is a controversial figure with whom I co-wrote and published two books in Japan, in 2009 and 2010. He is a strange eccentric character, who has fascinated many around the world with his particular brand of disinfo. Benjamin Fulford is one of the few Westerners in the world, initiated in the elusive and mysterious world of so-called “Chinese Freemasonry,” known also as Hong Men. In addition to this, he has ties to Japanese secret societies, and he is linked to members of the U.S. Intelligence community, and even managing to interview, due to his contacts, the unreachable and untouchable David Rockefeller Sr. ⁵² Yet if you read his blog, or if you listen to his many interviews on YouTube, he presents himself to the world as an enemy of the powerful, a hero of the underdog, full of fantastic tales of imminent arrest and great changes, that regularly never happen—as it’s all part of a big disinfo game. So let’s understand more about Benjamin Fulford and who is really behind him. This was something I came to realize, as initially he seemed like an honest person.

In the 1970s, George H.W. Bush was a member of the Illuminati with dual membership (Skull & Bones / Bohemian Club), and a high-ranking Freemason in the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite. George H.W. Bush is known in the Skull and Bones as “Magog,” and he would become a leading player in a diplomatic mission to China that would further prepare the world for the New World Order. Some Bonesmen receive traditional names, denoting function or existential status; others are the chosen beneficiaries of names that their Bones predecessors wish to pass on. The leftover initiates choose their own names. The name Long Devil is assigned to the tallest member, and the name Boaz (short for Beelzebub), goes to any member who is a varsity football captain. Many of the chosen names are drawn from literature (Hamlet, Uncle Remus), from religion, and from myth. The banker Lewis Lapham passed on his name, Sancho Panza, to the political adviser Tex McCrary. Averell Harriman was Thor, Henry Luce was Baal, McGeorge Bundy was Odin. The name Magog is traditionally assigned to the incoming Bonesman deemed to have had the most sexual experience, and Gog goes to the new member with the least sexual experience.

William Howard Taft and Robert Taft were Magogs. So, interestingly, was George Bush.⁵³ This particular mission to China was inspired by the U.S. Illuminati, to establish a firm and definitive covenant between the main parties involved in the New World Order. The Jesuits, however, have had a central role in China's evolution for a long time, having being the first to go there, planting the seeds of future globalism at the time of their earliest Jesuit missions to Asia in the sixteenth and seventeenth century. In the nineteenth century the drug trade arrived, and the opium trade in particular made the ruling elite even more wealthy. English Freemason Henry John Temple, Prime Minister and Foreign Minister of Queen Victoria, also known as Lord Palmerston, sanctioned the first strategic alliances between the West and Chinese Freemasonry, functional for the opium trade. The U.S. joined, and years later Freemason and U.S. President Franklin Delano Roosevelt declared that opium was like liquor, to be considered a family business, because his grandfather used to work for Russell & Company of Samuel Russell, whose cousin was William Huntington Russell, founder of the Skull & Bones, a branch of the Illuminati network that as we know, formed the core of the American Intelligence establishment since its foundation.

The association between Skull & Bones and the American Intelligence agencies, from the OSS to the CIA, is well-established, with a litany of agents, directors, and of course Director of Central Intelligence, George “Poppy” Bush himself, having been a Bonesmen before being recruited for the agency. But the connection between the CIA and the international drug trade is not simply a historical one that has to do with 19th century opium traders. Just as the British empire was in part financed by the control of the opium trade through the British East India Company, so too has the CIA been found time after time to be at the heart of the modern international drug trade. From its very inception, the CIA has been embroiled in the murky underworld of drug trafficking.⁵⁴ All of this made initially possible by the secret ties to English Freemasonry and “the Order,” as they call the Skull & Bones, with Chinese Freemasonry and organized crime called “Triads.” Since 1856, “the Order” as members call the Skull & Bones, is chaired by the Russell Trust Association.

In 1974, Gerald Ford could only nominate Bush as chief diplomat to the People’s Republic of China (back then the United States didn’t have an embassy in Beijing). In just fourteen months, Bush closed many great deals for the expansion of the New World Order and their new partnership with China.

The results were considered so positive from a strategic perspective for the Sino-American relations, that in early 1976, Gerald Ford, recalled Bush to Washington DC as a reward, nominating him director of the CIA, and making the Bush family more influential than ever. No wonder then that we see the direct involvement of Benjamin Fulford with a CIA agent like Neil Keenan, in the transaction of the infamous bonds linked to the mysterious Dragon Family. These bonds reached the public eye after an operation conducted by the Financial Guard in Italy saw two Japanese arrested in Chiasso, on the border with Switzerland, in the first days of June 2009,⁵⁵ in a story now well-known in “Intelligence” circles worldwide. This event related to the first confiscation of billions of dollars in bonds of dubious origin, that some said involved the aforementioned Neil Keenan. In my investigation I discovered, this was never a real family, as some may have believed from Fulford's usual tales, but actually a financial emanation of Chinese Freemasonry (the Hongmen Society) and the "Triads," that writer Martin Booth describes in his book The Dragon Syndicates.⁵⁶ The Hongmen, only a decade ago, began what is now slowly becoming a new trend, which is recruiting "non-Chinese" elements like Benjamin Fulford, someone they could use in the information warfare of the New World Order. Benjamin was a well-known journalist of international reputation, linked to the prestigious "Forbes" magazine, where he played an important role in the Asian bureau, but suddenly changed his career and became a conspiracy theory author, where he sincerely had little or no experience in the field of secret societies, and for this reason became totally manipulated by them. Fulford irresponsibly accepted this occult manipulation, to be enable him to enter The Chinese Freemasons (the Hongmen Society), ignoring the implications and danger that would stop any other Western journalist. Benjamin Fulford was initiated with a ritual which appears in a very rare book from 1866 written by Gustav Schlegel,⁵⁷ that actually shows a close relationship between traditional Western Speculative Freemasonry and the Chinese Freemasons of the Hongmen Society. (FIG. 77) When I asked Benjamin what he remembered most about his initiation he said, "Leo, the character that struck me most during the ceremony was the Master of Ceremonies, known as the Incense Master." (FIG. 78) Then he said that he had also noticed the altar of the Temple. (FIGS. 79a-79b)

Of course, the similarities between the initiation in this Masonic Chinese secret society and other forms of Speculative Freemasonry in use here in the West are many, and in the nineteenth century one of the best-known researchers in the Masonic field at that time, Dr. Jos Schauberg (1808) from Zurich, after discovering in a newspaper in 1857 called the "Munchener gelehrten Anzeigen,"⁵⁸ the existence of this Chinese Masonic re ality, dedicated his remaining years to researching it. ⁵⁹ The last decent work produced that cited the subject of Chinese Freemasonry in relation to Western Freemasonry, was The Great Triad of René Guenon, that was published in 1946. Are researchers scared to talk about the secrets of “Chinese Illuminati?”

In the West, there are few people who know that members of the Triads and Chinese Freemasonry worship a deity in particular, named Kwan Ti or Kuan Ti, who is said to reside in the Man Mo Temple in Hong Kong. (FIG. 80) A darkskinned deity, similar to the classic Black Madonna, but more menacing in appearance—almost Kali style. It is a male deity that originates from a real character who with time has taken on divine connotations, becoming one of the most revered Gods in China. Kuan Yu, is his original surname, and became then Kuan Ti (Ti, in Chinese, is the equivalent of God or Emperor) who was called “the patron of Buddhism,” but for Taoists and others he is the god of war (just like Mars, one of the gods worshipped by the Western Illuminati), therefore this obscure deity has a double aspect and a double value.

Returning to the well-known agent of disinformation at the service of Chinese Freemasonry, Benjamin Fulford, after his initiation he transformed himself into the gatekeeper of Chinese Freemasonry. He worked at spreading disinformation through psychological operations via the Internet, to cover up real operations related to financial assets of dubious origin and other illegal activities that include racketeering, gambling, drugs, weapon smuggling and more. Benjamin Fulford announces weekly the most unlikely apocalyptic flavor combinations, including the end of the Federal Reserve, the imminent arrest of Bankers, and he fights against what he calls “The Cabal” of the Nazis who leads the New World Order in a never ending virtual battle.

Wake up, my friends, not everything that glitters is gold on the web that is for sure, and the insane show set up by Fulford and his partners in the media, which included at one point a series of interviews with the renowned American researcher David Wilcock, was just a pathetic display of pure disinformation. I still remember when poor Wilcock got carried away with Fulford’s rubbish and he even began to cry live on the radio like a little girl. This happened when they were both spoke of confiscated bonds in Chiasso and supposed threats to their lives. This was a complete farce manipulated by the CIA, the N.S.A. and influential figures such as General Keith B. Alexander, one of the supreme guides

Neil Keenan is a key figure in this story who approached me with the following email after my return from Japan in 2009:

Dear Mr. Zagami,

I received a message from Mr. Fulford relating to the incident with the Dragon Family and the Italian Customs in Chiasso in which he has advised me to contact you. I represent the DF sir and have heard different things relating to the incident including the bonds are no longer in Italy, but in other hands. ported without verification and or signature have no value, therefore, why were they detained? Why has there been a fine imposed for 39 Billion? I can figure most out easily enough but my main question is do you know how to make this go away? The 39 Billion is not important at this time.

It is my understanding (this morning) that Mr. Yamaguchi (Controller/Signature of the DF) and Mr. Watanabee will be returning to Italy shortly to deal with this. Is there anyway to make this easy without the world getting knowledge of the U.S., Italian, Japanese, English debt to said DF group. It is not in anyone’s best interest to have such information released as you know, and if we can handle it discreetly then it is in our best interests to move on to other more important things with a brand new friendship.

I await your response not knowing what to expect, but most of all if anything it is my pleasure to make you acquaintance even over the internet. Take care and have a great day.

Neil Keenan

However, after I introduced my close friend and financial adviser Daniele Dal Bosco to Neil Keenan, things turned out in a very different way from what was originally planned, as Dal Bosco soon noticed many flaws in the supposed ownership of these bonds by the so-called “Dragon Family.” Dal Bosco was entrusted with the remainder of these bonds by Neil Keenan, and was at that point asked for the immediate intervention of Interpol and the U.N. financial authorities in Switzerland to clear up the matter. The events that took place in those turbulent days in 2009, became the source of much disinformation and unfounded speculations and accusations by Keenan and Fulford against, among others, my friend Dal Bosco and even myself.

On Keenan's website, his collaborator Michael Henry Dunn wrote on June 8, 2013:

The emergence of Neil Keenan at the cutting edge of these events can be traced to the theft in 2009 by Vatican financial insider Daniele Dal Bosco of $144.5 billion in Federal Reserve notes which were entrusted to Mr. Keenan by the Dragon Family, the group of ancient wealthy clans in Asia who are the legitimate owners of vast amounts of gold in the off-ledger Global Accounts. The Dragon Family has been attempting for decades to utilize the Accounts for their originally intended purpose, and sought out Keenan's help because of his reputation as a well-connected, toughminded international businessman. The story of this theft, and of Mr. Keenan's filing of a trillion-dollar lawsuit against elite figures and institutions (including the United Nations, the World Economic Forum, The World Bank, the Italian government, the Italian Financial Police, Silvio Berlusconi, and others) was first revealed by Benjamin Fulford, former Forbes Magazine financial editor for Asia, who traveled to Italy to conduct initial investigations, where an attempt was made on his life. The story was then taken up by best-selling author David Wilcock (who then also received death threats), confirming the story in an investigative article on his influential blog. The 110-page lawsuit, first filed in New York federal court, can be viewed at this link.

In addition to his lawsuit (which he subsequently withdrew in order to re-file in a more effective jurisdiction), Keenan also filed a Cease and Desist order on behalf of the Dragon Family against a Who's Who of the cabal power structure, putting them on notice that they were defrauding the Global Accounts, and would be prosecuted for any further fraud. This Cease and Desist names George Herbert Walker Bush, George W Bush, Queen Elizabeth II, the United Nations, Ban Ki Moon, David Rockefeller, Hillary Clinton, and a host of other world figures and organizations who are in the inner circle of the cabal. The bonds which were stolen from Mr. Keenan were Federal Reserve notes given to the Dragon Family in payment for the gold deposited in the Accounts—notes which the Federal Reserve continually blocked from utilization. Mr. Keenan's lawsuit represents the first formidable attempt to defeat this theft. ⁶¹

In reality, Neil Keenan is a loose cannon of both the NSA and Chinese Freemasonry, simply a professional disinfo artist. Just like his colleague Benjamin Fulford and people like David Wilcock, who introduced Keenan with the aid of Fulford, to a large audience until The Event Chronicle finally exposed them all. ⁶² However, at the time a series of actions were indeed taken by Dal Bosco to prevent any fraudulent use of such bonds in the future, but Keenan became immediately upset, and sent me this email:

Dear Mr. Zagami,

I have forwarded this to you for one reason and one reason only, you told Mr. Fulford that he is being fed misinformation. Please read and you will see Daniele is feeding you lies and you like me refuse to believe it is happening. It is a shame but true. If you do not wish to read the correspondence to the NSA then I suggest you read just Daniele's statement to Benjamin. In it he substantiates I do not have authorization for the bonds any longer (he looked through an old package of documents and found an old authorization). Why would he even mention this if he did not have plans for the bonds entrusted to me. He probably had the OITC send that crazy C & D to me, which he over-reacted to which was the ruse which allowed him to take the bonds to his attorney who he has never named (a crime in itself).

This is getting out of hand and soon it will take on another shape one that can not be taken back. Daniele is playing a game that can come back and bite him. Me, I have absolutely nothing to hide. My conversations and documents are on the table and I will send them all to Washington.

Please read and see what I now see, which to me is horrible seeing I thought the world of Daniele. To fight with him seems senseless but he has stolen bonds that do not belong to him and OITC says he sent the document to start this whole thing. You figure it out. I just want the bonds and not Daniele going to jail. This again serves no purpose.

I am going to request arrest warrants soon through the NSA. I have no choice but to protect the bonds seeing they are legally entrusted to me. At this point and time you cannot trust Daniele and what he says. I have overheard his conversations and he is outright lying, which can be proven by his correspondence with me. I am ready to put Daniele's picture all over the newspapers in this world if he does not do the right thing. I do not have time to waste with him over this.

All the best,
Neil Keenan

It would appear in this email that Neil Keenan extends a veiled threat to my collaborator and financial expert Daniele Dal Bosco, who fortunately realized immediately the nature of this person and the fact the bonds in question were really unmanageable, because they do not fall within the Canons of International Law and were completely illegal to manage in any way possible, let alone to use to save the planet as Fulford and Wilcock claimed at the time.

In the same email sent to me by Neil Keenan, is his email to General Alexander of the N.S.A., of which I include an excerpt where you can find highlighted by me in bold, certain relevant parts and the names of two agents of the New World Order mentioned by Keenan. These are the late CIA agent by Keenan. These are the late CIA agent 2013), a Central Intelligence Agency covert operations officer who was a prominent figure in the Iran-Contra Affair, ⁶³ and a certain General Jack Myers, who has also mysteriously passed away since then as reported on Neil Keenan's website in 2013. ⁶⁴ Meyers, who appeared to be operating much more discreetly and covertly than Keenan, was apparently a former officer of the American armed forces who worked for Intelligence through a commercial roofing company. Little is known about him, only that he died, just as the aforementioned Tom Clines, after the scandal of the mysterious bonds erupted at an international level.

situation that never should be that threatens to undermine American Security at this very minute. I have not been able to reach my dear friend Tom Clines, since he has been sick, or even General Jack Myers, who seems to be on the go more than ever (God Bless Him) for advice, but the best way to go is always with our own and this I am sure of as advised by Secretary of State.

This relates to one Daniele Dal Bosco, alleged Treasurer of the Masons P2 Lodge in Italy, but in fact not truth but his direct lie; financial advisor to the Vatican and again a direct lie. Four months ago Daniele just seemed to take off with his girlfriend Alessia and his family into the mountains and returning to his home in Italy. I guess when he felt it was time to return to work he returned to Geneva. It was different then. Rather than speak with him everyday, it was once every two weeks. He was hiding something and it concerned me seeing he was the Custodian for 868 Billion USD in Federal Reserve Notes which I was authorized to maintain and place into a suitable private program should I find one that the Federal Reserve would find acceptable. Face Value was 125 Billion for the 250 notes.

Daniele up to this time was fine, but as stated he became distant and I could feel it. Then I received a letter along with others including Daniele from an OITC Group from Thailand demanding the return of the bonds, claiming that they controlled the bonds not the Dragon Family. "Our ownership of the Dragon Funds, being part of the Combined International Collateral Accounts of the Global Debt Facility, and our International status combined with our International Authority as granted, attested to, and formally issued by the Nations of the World."

Daniele up to this time was distant and when he received a copy of the Cease and Desist he allegedly panicked and ran to his attorney with the FRN's and the Japanese Bond 57th series and 1 Kennedy Bond. He returned asking me what I had done and how they had gotten his email. I had no idea how they had acquired either his or mine. He told me he was not returning the bonds and his attorney was dealing with it now, and he probably would send the bonds to the OITC.

[09/06/2010 11:37:50] Daniele Dal Bosco: Neil, I just checked my email and I saw that last night I received a C&D from OITC addressed to Yama, Watanabe and you and all associates. How did they get my email? How do they know about me???? I contacted already my Lawyer on same. I am 100% legal, buddy, and I do not want to be involved in frauds. Please don't mention to anyone about myself anymore and I advise you not to pursue this matter anymore. You knew that you were being checked, and I don't know who you're dealing with now. But that's a dangerous game, for yours and my own good, please stop this game. (Daniele is creating the fraud, no one else, if you read on you will see). "Dear Neil, my Lawyer is attending to it and I have no intention of asking him to stop and return everything." (he mentions lawyer but never gives us his name despite asking).

I responded to the Cease and Desist and found a very foul man by the name of Sale representing who was to be his Excellency, Ray C. Dam. In the meanwhile, we investigated stateside. What we learned was that the OITC is a Fraudulent Group with no authority anywhere. Our Attorneys can confirm their findings as well as ex-Chairman of the Democratic Party RI, Guy Dufault who really worked hard finding the information on the OITC. Upon finding that the OITC was a non-entity, I requested from Daniele to return the bonds back to me. He did not reply but when he did he told me his attorney was handling it and he would get to me when his attorney finished his investigation. I later heard that his attorney was investigating the bonds and finally I heard that he and his attorney were working with the UN and Interpol. Now this heightened my senses, seeing that I refused the very same group that said purchasd the bonds in the past.

The Italian delegation to the UN offered me through Daniele 100 M for the bonds, no questions asked, and I said absolutely not. They were not for sale to the UN who would undermine the USA in one second by placing them in a program and then attempting to redeem them. This was not a consideration. Besides this, it was very suspicious seeing that they did not want us to return one cent to the Dragon Family. Anyways, I said no.

I was working on other deals with the notes and had been for a long while. The deal had to be right for all parties, including my country. I had plans to help finance the Agency, Defense Department, and Homeland Security once the bonds got into a program. They could not be redeemed, seeing we did not have the money in our coffers to pay for them. They are gold backed, so this also is a concern. They are Morgenthau Notes. As said, I was working on a deal with a U.S. Pension fund that had no intention to redeem the bonds but they would cash back them and place them into a program. This seemed to be acceptable and the returns would be for our land and our people. I was to meet them actually tomorrow to discuss the terms and how we were to do this. It all would be done at home in the U.S., surrounded by Attorneys and businessmen to make sure nothing went astray. I would get permission to enter the U.S. with them, so everything would be legal and declare them to Customs. This never happened. Furthermore he will not give anyone the name of the attorney if one does in fact exist.

Upon learning that Mr. Dal Bosco's Lawyer, a lawyer whose name I never received from Mr. Dal Bosco, nor would he give either myself, or to a Japanese journalist. This is part of my conversation with the journalist: [05:29:15] Benjamin Fulford: Yes, I got the feeling he was going to try to sell them to the UN for $100 million.

In the past Dal Bosco made it clear to me that the deal with the Italian Delegation to the UN offered us this deal NO QUESTIONS ASKED. Just cash and carry. A quick exchange. As I said I refused it much to Dal Bosco's dismay. When this deal was offered to me he kept telling me we would never get another offer like this. That we should take it. I just shook my head seeing Daniele's desperation at doing a very corrupt deal. Mr. Dal Bosco then advised me that the Italian Government was making an offer to me for the Dragon Family whereas they were offering all notes and bonds back that they had confiscated in Chiasso from Yamaguchi and Watanabee for 10% of their face value. I asked Daniele how they could do this, seeing they were prosecuting Alessandro Santi for maintaining false notes. Throughout this ordeal Daniele had contact (he claimed) with the financial police and they told him that the bonds were real. If this is in case fact, then they are fraudulently prosecuting Mr. Santi. Either way, if the Italian government is selling the bonds then Mr. Santi should be released from this case. Mr. Dal Bosco should be called in by Santi's Lawyers and grilled to get the information.

While in Rome with Dal Bosco he telephoned a woman very close to Belusconi and asked her to get him an audience with Belusconi to speak about the Santi deal. He went to said meeting and told me Belusconi would be looking at it and if there was no chance of a scandal it would go away. At the time PM Belusconi had some problems from what Daniele told me.

Yesterday Mr. Dal Bosco advised Japanese Journalist, Benjamin Fulford, that I no longer had authorization for the bonds. He went looking through my package and found an old authorization so I guess he felt this gave him the right to steal them with his so-called attorney. Little did he know that I have a new authorization with no backside. So it appears that he is looking to sell the bonds using the fact that my authorization has expired so he has the right to do what he wants with them. He forgot his fiduciary trust to me as I made him custodian. He is nothing but a THIEF and should be treated as such. One must remember that Mr. Dal Bosco often would tell me that he is the Treasurer to the Masons and is Leo Zagami's closest friend. I learned that Leo Zagami might not want any information coming out of Japan reaching Dal Bosco's ears and yesterday I learned that Dal Bosco might not even be a Mason, which is one of the reasons I gave him the bonds. I felt he could be trusted with the bonds if he was the Treasurer of the Masons. No other reason. He used Zagami's name regularly and even told me that Leo would safe keep the bonds until needed if I desired. I did not desire, although I have heard that Mr. Zagami is a trusted person. Also, Mr. Dal Bosco would discuss his Vatican connections with me claiming he is the financial advisor to the Vatican, which I also learned is not in fact true. What is unfortunate and has made me very angry in the past was that Mr. Dal Bosco would place the attaché carrying the notes in the trunk of his girlfriend's car and she would drive them from country to country, crossing lines without a care in the world. I had responsibility for those notes and I wanted them in safe keeping but this is surely not safe keeping. This is reckless and stupid and I told him as much.

Now Mr. Dal Bosco is attempting to sell the bonds to the UN as he requested me to do in the beginning. If the bonds had no value he would otherwise give them back to me. So he is selling them or trying to and before he succeeds we must stop him. He can only hurt the U.S. by doing so and it seems that his concerns for the U.S. are little.

FURTHERMORE, please read all I said and upon analyzing it, one must come to the understanding that Mr. Dal Bosco CREATED this whole scenario himself so he could steal the bonds. This is Mr. Dal Bosco's doing, not anyone else's.

I have brought this to your attention so that you have the time to stop him. Mr. Dal Bosco's telephone numbers are: Italian ----39-349-xxxxxxx and Swiss is +41 789 xxxxxx....

[15/06/2010 17:54:52] Benjamin Fulford: From Daniele: [23:24:59 | 23:25:01 を編集しました] Daniele Dal Bosco: he has no authority on the Notes and the Bonds, he had a POA who expired in November, 2009.

[23:25:42] Daniele Dal Bosco: but Neil is stubborn and he wants to make money even if it's through illegal ways

[23:26:04] Daniele Dal Bosco: the famous dollar sign in his eyes ... you know the saying ...

This clearly explains the fact that Dal Bosco feels he can do what he wishes with the bonds entrusted to him seeing he believes I no longer have authorization. Well, I have authorization updated and have had for a long while. He is a custodian nothing more and does not need to know everything I am doing. As for the dollar signs in my eyes, boy does he not know me. I worked 20 hours a day putting this together and am exhausted and did not need this now. I wanted to relax and complete and then feel great about issuing the funds to the proper causes. For humanitarian causes etc., and Dal Bosco got in the way of all this now and he was included as he knows. I am tired but I have a little left in the gas tank. At this time, I believe it is only appropriate to call for help seeing there seems to be little I can do in Europe to stop them from hurting my country when in fact I was trying to help it.

Kindest Regards,
Neil Keenan

After the futile attempt by Keenan to involve me further, I passed it on to others in the Intelligence Community, understanding the complexity and especially the possible dangers that this whole operation might be hiding. It looked like a financial terrorism-related plot ready to explode in the hands of the interested parties, and personally I wanted nothing more to do with it. In the meantime, Neil Keenan, is now hiding in the jungles of Jakarta after an apparent murder plot against him. Regarding the U.S. bonds, confiscated in Chiasso in June 2009, and those subsequently confiscated at the Malpensa airport in the same year, they were all declared officially false by the Italian authorities. Professor Aldo Giannuli, considered one of Italy's leading Intelligence experts, and a researcher in contemporary history at the political-science faculty of the University of Milan, wrote:

“The thesis of the falsification on the part of organized crime is not convincing at all: the cuts are too big, the amount is too concentrated.” Giannulli also points out that: “after the first two were caught, it makes no sense to try again on the same border to get caught again. And again, why are the titles only American?”⁶⁵

The mystery of these mysterious bonds of the U.S. Federal Reserve that are being circulated has caught the attention of Intelligence experts worldwide, who harbor strong doubts on whether they are really false, and a few have stated publicly that the CIA is covering up the truth. It's all part of a targeted psychological warfare operation applied to high finance, and piloted secretly by Chinese Freemasonry and other major players of the New World Order, like the NSA. Giannulli states: “It is not yet a full on currency war, but we are at the pre-tactical stages.”⁶⁶

Neil Keenan, as official representative of the so-called “Dragon Family” was initiated at the time of the legal proceedings, which were later abandoned, in the Southern District court of New York in November of 2011, (FIG. 81) and are available on the Internet in PDF format, with outrageous claims that touched even the former prime minister Silvio Berlusconi, Daniele Dal Bosco, and of course I also get a mention in it. Obviously, it was all a bluff. In the same document the delusional Neil Keenan denounced Ban KiMoon, the Secretary General of the United Nations. I would like to add that Daniele Dal Bosco, contrary to what Neil Keenan stated in his email, is a Freemason, as he was initiated in the Lodge Solidarietà e Lavoro in Livorno belonging at the time to Grand Master Luigi Piazza (a P2 member now deceased). Even if he was never technically a member of a "Regular" lodge or the P2 itself, Dal Bosco was at one time a member of a Grand Lodge operating under the supervision of the Monte Carlo Executive Committee of the P2 and Ezio Giunchiglia.

Regarding my own personal involvement in this affair, it took place only because of Fulford's request, (FIGS. 82-83-84) as it was Fulford who invited me to Japan in June,

FIG. 81 – Lawsuit (later dropped) filed by Neil Keenan on behalf of the so-called “Dragon Family” in the Southern District of NY, United States, in November, 2011.

2009 to discuss the matter, (FIG. 85) and find a possible solution for all parties involved. What role are the Chinese Free masons playing in this affair? The confiscation of the bonds on various occasions, was functional as a psychological warfare plot in the financial sector as suggested also by Professor Giannulli. A strong message for sure, for their competitors, and even their allies, sitting in the control room at the top of the system that drives the infamous New World Order. The Chinese can bring down the entire system at any time, through their mighty “financial instruments.”

Fulford, who proposed to the conspiracy world a most unlikely challenge, which was announced via the Internet back in the early part of 2007, that a Chinese Secret Society with six million members (Chinese Freemasonry) was now challenging the Illuminati. This was just a great farse, nothing more, but people all over the world fell for it. Fulford’s sudden arrival in conspiracy circles as the new Internet hero, seemed for many a real opportunity to fight the NWO bullies. It was, however, marked his new entry into the field of high-level disinformation, Chinese Freemasonry, via Japan. It’s a complex charade in preparation for these bonds confiscated in Chiasso, that dated back to 1998, and are the fruit of Executive Order No. 11110, signed on June 4, 1963, by none other than President John F. Kennedy. I recommend you read John Perkins’s book Confessions of an Economic Hit Man, a brilliant essay on the new role of an economic hit man on developing nations.

Economic hit men are highly paid professionals who steal billions of dollars in different countries around the world by pouring the money of the World Bank, U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) and other “humanitarian” organizations into the coffers of big corporations and into the pockets of the usual handful of wealthy families who control the planet’s natural resources, the elite of the New World Order. Their methods include false accounting, rigged elections, bribery, extortion, sex and murder. It’s a game as old as power itself, that in the age of globalization, has taken on a new and terrifying dimension.⁶⁷ Aldo Giannuli, speaking about John Perkins, confirms the infamous role of the NSA: “The story of Perkins is particularly interesting because, as he says, his first job for the National Security Agency was directed towards an employment for a financial consulting firm (the Main Inc. of Boston) facilitated by a senior official of the NSA with whom Perkins had a personal relationship.”⁶⁸ This remains a long and complex story, with sensational implications. On February 17, 2012 CBS News reported on a further confiscation of “false bonds” in Switzerland on behalf of the Italian authorities,⁶⁹ and guess where the origin of these bonds are from? Surprisingly enough, this time CBS states it is Hong Kong and not Japan, the city where Chinese Freemasonry has one of their more important spiritual centers at Man Mo Temple.⁷⁰

For a more clear concept of Chinese Freemasonry of the “Hongmen” here is the entry for “Tiandihui” in WIKIPEDIA:

The Tiandihui (Chinese: 天地會; pinyin: Tiān Dì Huì), literally the Society of the Heaven and the Earth, also called Hongmen 洪門, is a Chinese fraternal organization and secretive folk religious sect. As the Tiandihui spread through different counties and provinces, it branched off into many groups and became known by many names, including the Sanhehui. The Hongmen grouping is today more or less synonymous with the whole Tiandihui concept, although the title “Hongmen” is also claimed by some criminal groups.

When the British ruled Hong Kong, all Chinese secret societies were seen as criminal threats and were together defined as Triads, although the Hongmen might be said to have differed in its nature from others. The name of the “Three Harmonies Society” (the “Sanhehui” grouping of the Tiandihui) is in fact the source of the term “Triad” that has become synonymous with Chinese organized crime. Because of that heritage, the Tiandihui is sometimes controversial and is illegal in Hong Kong.⁷¹

From the Bohemian Grove to the Vatican

he Bohemian Club and its infamous redwood Grove, are subjects I have written about in detail in Volume I of Confessions, and were also described in detail by William H. Kennedy, also known as “Teddy,” who unfortunately passed away suddenly in August, 2013 at the age of 48. His death was never really investigated, and when approached about it, his family seemed quite scared to stir things up, and therefore no attention whatsoever was given to his passing by the media. Kennedy, who was a controversial life-long Catholic writer and radio host, was the author of the now out-of-print and highly collectable books: Satanic Crime – A Threat in the New Millennium, and the even more controversial title Lucifer's Lodge: Satanic Ritual Abuse in the Catholic Church. He was also a regular guest on Dr. Stan Monteith's nationally syndicated radio show, and he was a relative of the powerful, yet cursed, Kennedy family.⁷² In Satanic Crime, Kennedy writes about the Bohemian Grove:

During the opening night of the camp, there is a ceremony in which members dress in robes and hoods (not unlike Ku Klux Klan regalia) and perform either real or mock human ritual sacrifice to the Owl of Bohemia. By Christian standards, by which the majority of members claim affiliation, all such sacrifices are forbidden, be they mock or for real. The sacrificial victim is named Care, suggesting that all the members must destroy all vestiges of caring for any human beings except for members of the Grove. Much like the Skull and Bones (as one can see Bonesman make up large portion of ranking Bohemians), members are expected to work solely for the good of fellow members only.⁷³

Kennedy then suggests a quick look at the text of the actual ritual, that we receive thanks to the groundbreaking work of Alex Jones and his cameramen Mike Hanson, who managed to enter the forbidden ground of the Grove on the 15th of July, 2000:

Filmmaker Alex Jones contends that members of the Bohemian Grove actually purchase small owl figures sold by the organization for home devotional use. In this regard, Bohemian Club members sacrifice and destroy Care year round. It is bloodcurtling when one realizes how many high-ranking political leaders have attended this strange occult ceremony. If these people don't care, then God help us all. ⁷⁴

I never imagined to find myself, at night, in the Vatican, with Alex Jones, 15 years after his famous sortie at the Bohemian Grove on the 7th of August, 2015. We could not catch them as planned, during the celebration of a Satanic Mass in the Vatican, however we definitely managed to film an epic interview around Rome that night. The interview was based in part on the topics covered in my book Pope Francis: The Last Pope? and during the whole process, we were heavily monitored by Vatican authorities, who ultimately lead us out of St. Peter's Square after an open intimation from the Italian police that was caught on camera. We then continued to film all night, with a tour of the various sites mentioned in my book, ending up later that evening in the location where the gay pedophile priests pick up young Romanian children to bring inside the Leonine wall, and also in front of the huge gay sauna owned by the Vatican. But let's begin at St. Peter's Square, where our interview/documentary later named Demonic Possession Of The Vatican Exposed: Leo Zagami Interview, first took place. ⁷⁵

FIG. 85 – The author and Benjamin Fulford in Tokyo in June 2009, together for a series of meetings after the strange episode in Chiasso.

The evening began under the mythical obelisk, which I saw as a good omen, because my name in the phrase: Leo Vicit de Tribu Juda. Our wild night of Vatican exposure for Infowars, in and around the Vatican, began here at 9 PM. I arrived 15 minutes earlier after parking nearby, and having friends in the Italian police serving there, I decided to call them, to see what we could do and not do to get on their nerves. Of course I knew it would be difficult to go unnoticed as the rules are quite strict throughout the area. I scouted the area, hoping that after seeing my face there for a little while the police would let their guard down, at least for the amount of time needed to film. This is a technique that usually works when you want to do this kind of operation in a forbidden area. However, the good Lord helped us do the almost impossible during the first part of the evening, when we were able to film an epic scene inside St. Peter's Square, with the weather suddenly turned the whole episode into an almost apocalyptic scenario after we began the interview. An unusual storm erupted in an otherwise hot summer night in Rome. Even Alex looked truly astonished about this sudden change of weather, a scenario very similar to what happened on the evening of the 11th of February 2013, when a storm hit the Vatican after Ratzinger's resignation, which was immortalized by the now famous photograph of lightning on the Vatican made by Alessandro di Meo, a photographer from the news agency ANSA. The storm projected us directly to the cover of my book, Pope Francis: The Last Pope? as we featured part of that pic for the cover.

This sudden summer storm enabled us, somehow, to continue filming under the huge columns of St. Peter's Square, even if prohibited by the stringent security measures in place, especially at night. But after 30 minutes, we were noticed by the police forces patrolling the Square. Unfortunately that evening in August, most of my contacts in the local police force were on holiday, so I knew we could get in serious trouble in the absence of their presence. Alex continued to interview me about Satanism in the Vatican under the columns, but in the meantime, security measures around us were building.

Alex Jones, who was initially relaxed, realized the danger when a police car arrived two meters behind him and his camera man Rob Dew, and another approached us from the right. At that point I explained to Alex that it was better to get out of there before running the risk of spending the night in a cell in the Vatican Inspectorate, courtesy of Pope Francis and his Jesuits. So after a little clarification with a sympathetic police inspector, we are able to leave the square without any problems. After all, the Italian police are honest people and most of them, great professionals who are simply doing their jobs. They were obviously feeling uncomfortable with us being there that night, because technically speaking, we were on the border between two states. I heard later that the Vatican side put a lot of pressure on them to throw us out, when they saw and possibly heard what we were saying. In the meantime it was getting late, but the goal was now to travel discreetly and unobtrusively down the Borgo Santo Spirito leading to the very center of Vatican occult power, and to the headquarters of the Curia Generalizia of the Jesuits, home to the so-called “black Pope.”

We later we moved on to the headquarters of the Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem, where we managed to film for a few minutes in their courtyard during a V.I.P. party for their Knights, obviously without any invitation and openly denouncing the elite during the filming, a truly daring act conducted with Alex clearly becoming intimidated by the situation that was indeed getting dangerous, as we were technically in a foreign land, where Italian law has no jurisdiction and where they get away with murder. For the rest of our adventure I invite you to watch the video in question, which I hope will be the beginning of a fruitful collaboration, as I wrote many articles and did a couple interviews with Alex after this, including a very detailed coverage of Pope Francis’ U.S. visit in September, 2015.

An inside source came out in fact in that period of intense collaboration, stating that the White House had an F.B.I. task force investigating this growing media project.⁷⁶ However, both Alex Jones and myself are not Vatican-bashers, this is what Catholics need to realize, but simply professionals trying to expose something that no one wants to cover in ordinary news. In my case, I am still considered a good Catholic by the Vatican that treats me very well, even after my books and my open criticism in the media. There is a conservative force that exists in the Vatican that embraces and encourages my work, by feeding me from time to time, top secret inside information for my books. Alex Jones realized the problems of the “lunatic fringe” that has now taken over the Vatican and lies at the heart of the New World Order, and dedicated many hours of his shows to in-depth investigations about this problem. As the late William H. Kennedy wrote:

The real “lunatic fringe” in the Roman Catholic Church consists of Cardinals who give safe harbor to child molesters posing as priests (Law, Egan et al), the predatory homosexuals who run and enroll in Roman Catholic seminaries and form bizarre sex cults, and the power brokers who have allied the Vatican’s vast financial resources with organized crime. It is the skullduggery of these sorts of Catholics that causes the most harm. The devotional practices and beliefs of Traditional Catholics harm no one. ⁷⁷

I don't think I could ever summarize better than the late Kennedy, the current situation in the Vatican, and Alex understood this, and courageously decided to publicly denounce this activity, on his media outlet Infowars.com. ⁷⁸

When I explained and showed Alex Jones the super luxurious penthouse of the “pink pope” Cardinal Tarcisio Bertone, or the gay sauna used by the Vatican priests placed in a building belonging to the Church, or where the priests lure the kids near Termini train station to take them later to the Vatican, and many other secrets of what Kennedy called the “lunatic fringe” of the Catholic Church, Alex and I were in complete agreement that (FIG. 90) Pope Francis is no Saint, as he is openly promoting relativism every day, refusing to take a stand even on the gays that are now controlling parts of the Church, stating to journalists “who am I to judge the gay?” (FIG. 86)

Pope Francis has been accentuating his dialogue with the B'nai B'rith, as well as Islam, and insists on promoting a fake crusade for the environment, and unconditional support to illegal immigration. It is basically a disaster for true Catholics who reject Bergoglio's relativist views.

Universal unity? No thanks ...

F

unnilly enough, Alex Jones' documentary on the Bohemian Grove was one of the main reasons for my difficult but necessary choice to leave the Masonic Executive Committee and their Lodge in Monte Carlo on the 3rd of June 2006, after the Annual Convent of the Illuminati of the Universal Unity at Massa Pisana, in the House of Spirituality of San Cerbone of the Daughters of St. Francis de Sales. (FIG. 87) This took place with the arrival of Giorgio Hugo Balestrieri, the controversial “Commander” I have already discussed in a previous chapter, in relation to the internal corruption in the United Nations. Personally, in that period around June 2006, I had everything to lose and nothing to gain by making an important figure like Balestrieri my enemy. Before my encounter with him that day, the Brothers of Monte Carlo and I had made an important decision. The Board of Directors of the Universal Unity, wanted the whole structure to be taken over by the Triumvirate represented by me, Ezio Giunchiglia and Jean Pierre Giudicelli with whom I had originally created the Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis. I intended to go ahead and accept my new position. This meant of course a new leading role in my Illuminati order, founded in 1999, however I wanted to continue investigating the possible misdeeds committed in the various Illuminati sects in the USA. From the Bohemian Club exposed by Alex Jones with his video, to the Skull & Bones at Yale University, from the Temple of Set, to the Ordo Templi Orientis. To do this I required Intelligence clearance issued by the U.S. State Department through Giorgio Hugo Balestrieri, but Bales trieri in front of all the members present at Massa Pisana refused to let me proceed with my plan. He got up and stated that the CIA and the F.B.I. will not grant me the necessary permits to do so, and that’s why I walked out of the Masonic Executive Committee and the Monte Carlo Lodge.

Giorgio Balestrieri, in business with Ezio Giunchiglia of the P2 and U.S. Intelligence since the mid-seventies, was a Captain of the Italian Navy, but after the explosion of the P2 scandal Balestrieri disappeared from Italy, and resurfaced years later with an American passport, as director of the International Service Division of the New York Rotary Club. Some say Balestrieri was involved in the staged events of September 11th, 2001, which had been predicted in the expiry date of the passport of Neo in the Matrix movie that came out in 1999, an important film in my spiritual evolution. Going back to his arrival at the meeting in San Cerbone, I realized in the following days that I could no longer trust him, as he was a professional in the Intelligence field without scruples. He is a double agent often working for Israeli's Mossad, and linked to the Calabrian 'Ndrangheta and the Sicilian Mafia. I remember that in 2006, three years before they issued the first arrest warrant against him for collusion with the Calabrese Mafia issued by the DDA in Reggio Calabria, Balestrieri had prominent figures behind him protecting him in Italy, as the former President Francesco Cossiga as I mentioned earlier.

Freemason Giorgio H. Balestrieri, a key figure of the P2 for years, worked with both Zionists and Jesuits through the powerful transnational Masonic institutions of the small, but influential Republic of San Marino, and is still a key player in this game even today. Balestrieri later become one of the leaders of the Giacomo Maria Ugolini Foundation. Ugolini used to be very close to Silvio Berlusconi, and was an important Grand Master and Sovereign Grand Commander of the minuscule Republic. Massimo Teodori, author of the book P2: la contro storia, and one of the biggest experts on the P2, mentions both Giorgio Balestrieri and Ezio Giunchiglia as important players and leading figures of the P2. Teodori, is a well-known Italian politician described by Wikipedia as a member of the Commission of Enquiry that in the eighties investigated the "P2." He is therefore an authoritative source. In Chapter II he writes clear and explicit words on the context in which the P2 operated in those years during the Cold War:

Another strategic direction was the sector concerned with the production and trade of weapons with admirals Vittorio Forgione and Achille Alfano, Ezio Giuchiglia, the carrier Alessandro Del Bene from Florence, and Captain Giorgio

Balestrieri of Livorno. ⁷⁹

While Licio Gelli was busy working on the “Propaganda,” with the Propaganda 2 Lodge, in those difficult years the various weapon deals ended up in the hands of his “Tirrenia division” headed by Dr. Ezio Giunchiglia (P2, Tirrenia division, head group 11, No. 639, later defined by the newspaper “La Repubblica” in 1984 as “the head of the P2 in Tuscany.” (FIG. 88) Recently, “Il Fatto Quotidiano” wrote about Giunchiglia in March, 2011: “an important piece of the P2 affiliated to the Emulation Lodge in Tirrenia.” ⁸⁰

Ezio Giunchiglia ended up in jail at one point in the 1980s, accused of plotting the massacre of Bologna in 1982, but served only a few months of his sentence. He was accused of having masterminded the whole thing with the Far-Right, but they never managed to bring forward any evidence against him in the end. Giunchiglia, who was later released as completely innocent, once told me the real reason for his arrest was to cover someone else. People that included the usual Giorgio Balestrieri, who was also mentioned in relation to the bombing in Bologna, but of course, never tried by authorities. The accusations were later dropped, also for Ezio, according to Jean Pierre Giudicelli (himself an Intelligence officer for the French) because of Ezio's role in the Italian Military Intelligence where he was, said Giudicelli, a Colonel. Although I have no way to prove it, other sources have later confirmed this hypothesis as both Balestrieri and Giuchiglia were all too familiar faces in Forte Braschi (Military Intelligence) and Via Lanza (Civilian Intelligence), where the Italian Intelligence services have their headquarters. Giorgio Hugo Balestrieri, as well as Giunchiglia, were also members of GLADIO and worked on several occasions for the CIA, and for the F.B.I. Giuchiglia himself once told me in his villa near Tirrenia, that Balestrieri had managed to receive his U.S. passport with Licio Gelli's help during the Cold War, when Gelli received from the CIA a salary of 10 million dollars a month, for the P2. He was judged by the United States as an important anti-Communist asset during the Cold War. However, Licio Gelli, at the time Worshipful Master of the Propaganda 2 Lodge, argued with Giunchiglia in regards to weapon deals that ruined the image of the Lodge, and suggested they only operate such deals from Monte Carlo, where the Masonic Committee had been set up to avoid the growing scrutiny of Italian authorities.

Later, Gelli left his Masonic creation in the Principality of Monaco to Ezio Giuchiglia, who was unable to ignite its true Masonic Light, as originally planned. Failing miserably in the end to fulfill their mission because of bad judgements and dishonesty. I would like to again state, that in the end, Brother Licio Gelli, who passed away on the 16th of December 2015, made a great decision in the last seven years of his life, to distance himself once and for all, from the criminals that used to be his Brothers in Propaganda 2 Lodge, and to embrace Freemasonry in a different and honest way, with the help of General Bartolomeu Constantin Săvoiu. (FIGS. 89- 90) Bravo Licio, who in the end followed the only way possible to save his soul after all his mistakes in the Masonic world, by becoming one with the Holy Spirit and a member of the Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis, the only possible way for the real “Illuminati,” which I stated earlier means illumination in Greek, and was the name given to those who submitted to Christian baptism. Those who were baptized were called “Illuminati” or the “illuminated ones”—let’s never forget this Brothers. Amen.

Regarding my past and present statements on the Masonic Executive Committee of the P2 in Monte Carlo, and my past and present involvement in the P2 milieu, the site of www.masonicinfo.com of Freemason Edward L. King—in service of the worst disinformation a Freemason can give—went so far as to write that I basically made the whole thing up by writing that I was too young, and other lies:

A true insider and member of the Freemasonic P2 Lodge?

Now here’s the real problem. The P2 Lodge was closed in 1976—at a time when he was SIX YEARS OLD. Why young Mr. Young probably wasn’t even Zagami at that point. Oh, and then, when he was about age 11, Italy banned all secret societies so it’s bye-bye P2—except in the fantasy world of this individual. Again, for the completely clueless, his story will leave you breathless. For most others, it’s probably the stench of lies rather than the story that will take your breath away. ⁸¹

FIG. 89 – The late Licio Gelli (1919- 2015) and his spiritual and Masonic heir General Bartolomeu Constantin Săvoiu, a member of the Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis.

Maybe Edward L. King, creator of the site “Masonic Info” and illustrious Freemason of the Grand Lodge of Maine, where he had occupied a place in the committee of this prestigious Masonic Obedience for the years 2014-2015, ⁸² should, in my humble opinion, rename the site “Masonic Disinfo” and be more honest with his alleged research in this field, where things sometimes look different than they seem because Freemasonry is full of mysteries, even for the most educated and skilled minds.

Read for yourself, what he writes about the Comitato Esecutivo Massonico in Monte Carlo:

Would it surprise you to know too that the “Comitato Esecutivo Massonico” stuff only appears in search engines with Mr. Zagami's name attached to it? If you're completely conspiracy-addicted, you'll already have the answer: it's a CONSPIRACY and only Zagami has the courage to talk about it. If, on the other hand, you have a modicum of common sense, you'll know that it's only because this individual has gotten a bunch of like-minded paranoids to repeat his fairy tale. ⁸³

I invite all Masonic researchers worldwide to publicly denounce the disinformation activities of Edward L. King by simply downloading an official document on the subject issued by the Senate of the Italian Republic. This document was created after in-depth investigation on the P2, and demonstrates that there are credible documents in the hands of the Italian authorities that prove the unambiguous existence of the Monte Carlo Lodge and its Executive Committee Masonic at this website: <http://www.senato.it/service/PDF/PDFServer/BGT/910003.pdf>

Are the authoritative statements of the Italian Senate just lies, like the ones obviously put together by "Brother" Edward L. King? King should be expelled from the Craft immediately for his dishonest stand, or he should at least be suspended and apologize for his ignorance and false accusations against me.

The P2 was officially dismantled with a specific law (No. 17) issued by the Italian Parliament on the 25th of January, 1982. So why does King say: "The P-2 Lodge was closed in 1976." This is a completely false, as the P2 was simply "suspended" officially by the Grand Master of the Grand Orient of Italy Lino Salvini on the 26th of July, 1976 to continue in secret with the blessings of the Grand Master, as this is even written on Wikipedia. ⁸⁴ Even after the P2 was dismantled in 1982, other branches of the same group continued, to this day as P3, P4 and other names in the complex Italian Masonic scene that often pop up in Italian chronicles. The testimony of Elio Ciolini defined in the newspaper "La Repubblica" on April 20, 2001, as a character in the middle of dark stories, went on to state to Aldo Gentile, the judge in charge of the Bologna bombing investigation, that: “the massacre had been commissioned to Right-wing extremist Stefano Delle Chiaie by the mysterious Masonic Lodge in ‘Monte Carlo,’ a branch of the P2.”

Ciolini also said that the “Monte Carlo” Lodge was inserted in the “Trilateral,” which he described as a terrorist organization.⁸⁵ The Trilateral Commission⁸⁶ is indeed a controversial organization with a key role in the New World Order, but to describe it as a terrorist organization is a pretty strong statement by Ciolini.

However, the mysterious Monte Carlo Committee (FIG. 91-92) also appeared in a 1994 article in the “Corriere della Sera,” where we an arms dealer linked to coletti, the former managing director of Sisd (Italy’s civilian Intelligence until the reform of 2007 changed its name to AISI).

Broccoletti was involved in the scandal (later archived), that erupted in 1993 regarding the “black” funds of the Sisd, used to finance covert Intelligence operations. Federico Federici, according to prosecutors in Bologna, was also one of the closest collaborators of Count Licio Gelli, with interests in the arms trade especially with Argentina, a country central to the Sisde operations in those years, (no wonder we now have an Argentinian Pope). The Monte Carlo lodge was also chosen by Maurizio Broccoletti, a key figure of Sisdegate, for his escape.⁸⁷

My questions to “Brother” Edward L. King will eventually be:
Why was Giorgio Hugo Balestrieri from the Propaganda 2 Lodge allowed to become a member of the Grand Lodge of New York?
Why was Balestrieri, until recently, a key figure of the Rotary Club in New York?

U.S. Freemasons should accept the information of people like Brother Josef Wages, who is an honest and prepared individual, a Christian and a great Masonic historian and author, not a disinformation agent like Edward L. King and many other people in the Craft, including my ex-Masonic mentor Julian Reese. He is another big shot of International Freemasonry and a pawn of the O.T.O., that after my revelations began 10 years ago, was only capable of criticizing me, unfortunately, not understanding my work, or the project I began with my order, the Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis, founded inside the Masonic Executive Committee in 1999.

After reading the research of William H. Kennedy, I discovered that there was a link Comunicazione di deferimento al Collegio dei Provirvi.

Caro Leo,

Il Consiglio Direttivo di Universal Unity è stato informato della corrispondenza E-mail che hai intrattenuto col sig. Giorgio Balestrieri ed ha rilevato in essa espressioni criminose ed altamente eversive che integrano gli estremi di una gravissima colpa per la violazione dei principi morali della nostra Associazione.

Inoltre il Consiglio è stato informato che qualche tempo fa hai pubblicato una comunicazione sul sito Internet di Universal Unity, firmandoti col titolo di "Vice Console" che non hai e non ti è stato mai attribuito.

Pertanto è nostro intendimento di deferire il Tuo comportamento al Collegio dei Provirvi, affinché si proceda contro di Te per i fatti anzidetti che integrano le incolpazioni previste dal nostro Statuto, e frattanto, in attesa di quel che verrà giudicato a Tuo carico e pertanto sei sospeso dalla nostra Associazione a tempo indeterminato.

Questo Consiglio, inoltre, ha ritenuto che non sia più gradita la Tua presenza alle nostre Riunioni, e pertanto ha annullato definitivamente quella prevista per il 2 Settembre a Subiaco.

Se invitato inoltre ad astenermi dall'usare il nome di Universal Unity per qualsiasi scopo ed in qualsiasi forma, sotto pena di esser costretti a denunciare una Tua illecita attività all'autorità giudiziaria ordinaria in Italia ed altrove.

La presente dovrà esser comunicata anche al Presidente del Collegio dei Provirvi.

Signor Presidente,

nell'approssimarsi delle ricorrenze natalizie mi sono preso la libertà di offrirLe una copia della Sacra Bibbia, in lingua latina, illustrata da Salvator Dall, facente parte della pregiatissima ed unica edizione stampata nel 1950 in soli 950 esemplari divenuti, oggi, introvabili.

L'immediatezza di due grandi eventi, - il Santo Natale ed il Suo insediamento alla suprema guida degli Stati Uniti d'America -, mi ha fatto ritenere che questa Opera sia il mezzo più idoneo per presentarLe la sincera espressione della mia profonda stima e del mio più fervido augurio per le massime responsabilità che Ella è stata chiamata ad assolvere.

Mi permetto, con la circostanza, di consegnarLe anche una raccolta di servizi Stampa pubblicati, - per la maggior parte dietro mia indicazione -, in Italia, volti ad informare l'opinione pubblica italiana sulle Sue elevate doti di statista e sulla Sue indubbie capacità intellettuali e morali per ricondurre gli Stati Uniti d'America al livello della passata grandezza sulla scena mondiale.

La prego di accogliere, con i migliori auguri di Buon Natale e di Felice Anno Nuovo, l'espressione del mio vivo e sincero saluto between the aforementioned pedophilia victim Paul Bonacci involved with Dr. Michael Aquino, and the Bohemian Grove as indicated also in Kennedy’s book Satanic Crime:

One of the Boys Town victims was one Paul Bonacci, who testified in court proceedings that he helped kidnap Johnny Gosch into this ring in 1982. This is where it gets really interesting. Bonacci also testified that he was forced in July, 1984 to participate in a homosexual/pedophilic/necrophilic orgy at (what has since been identified as) the Bohemian Grove; all of which was filmed. And according to Bonacci, the man in charge of the filming was someone who was picked up in Las Vegas on the plane headed to the Grove, a man who Bonacci was told was one Hunter S. Thompson. No doubt most people who came across this information in the past and were familiar with Thompson's work dismissed the idea that the man behind the camera could have been the famous writer. After all, this was a man who has been fighting the likes of Nixon and Bush his entire career.

But could Hunter S. Thompson have been brought to the Grove by someone who presented it as an opportunity to investigate what the power elite was up to behind closed doors? Could Thompson have quickly found himself in over his head, compromised, by virtue of his very presence at this horrific crime, by the men he thought he was investigating undercover?

Thompson actually wrote about a cabal of pedophiles in his final book Hey Rube (2004):

The autumn months are never a calm time in America. ... There is always a rash of kidnapping and abductions of schoolchildren in the football months. Preteens of both sexes are traditionally seized and grabbed off the streets by gangs of organized perverts who traditionally give them as Christmas gifts to each other to be personal sex slaves and playthings. [p. 3]

In any case, Hunter S. Thompson was found dead of an apparent "suicide" just a few hours after the news broke about a possible Gannon connection to Johnny Gosch. The only way to ascertain beyond a reasonable doubt whether Gannon is Johnny Gosch would be to conduct a DNA test on both Noreen Gosch and Jeff Gannon. This will not likely ever occur, however, as Gannon claims in a March 20, 2005 New York Times interview that his mother was threatened since the story broke. He does not name who his mother is, nor has he ever mentioned the Johnny Gosch case on his website.⁸⁸

It seems evil always has the same protagonists.

Final considerations

As written by Joël Labruyère:

The materialist and the average consumer of the New Age, who still wants to believe in something supernatural, has no respect for the higher powers. Faith is dead. They maybe admit the recitation of a formula in Sanskrit or a prayer that can conduct to a particular mental state, but also in this case is it only performed to obtain a benefit, nothing more. It lacks the sincere religious sentiment, it is useless to practice a so-called spiritual technique, or do all kinds of yoga contortions on a mat or meditating in front of a blank wall. If anything, these are ascetic disciplines diverted into therapeutic methods that have not conserved the aura of sacredness, due to their roots in a traditional doctrine, whose profound meaning escapes those who practice them now. To find the meaning of the sacred we must first of all realize you lost it, without believing that the farces of the New Age can ever replace it. ⁸⁹

This thought of Labruyère explains why Alex Jones and his colleagues returned to 88 See. William H. Kennedy, Satanic Crime, Ibid., p.162.

89 Joël Labruyère, Kali Yuga, Ibid., pp. 282-283.

FIG. 95 – The Honorary Most Worshipful Grand Director of Ceremonies Domenico Macrì of the Grand Orient of Italy close friend and collaborator of Licio Gelli, at the Consecration of the new Licio Gelli Lodge in February 2016.

the scene of the controversial scoop at the Bohemian Grove, five years later, where they found while filming nearby, a large group of people who were celebrating a “Magical” ritual with a distinctive New Age flair. A really pathetic situation with the usual mantra in Sanskrit, for fighting the evil influences manifested in the Grove. All this, however, without knowing they are helping to further charge the energy of the Egregore of the Bohemian Club and their meeting place: the Bohemian Grove. The “New Age” feel-good rubbish produced by relativist Neo-Theosophy and Jesuitism has created an illusory world, where people obviously accept and believe they are realizing all their wishes. They do not understand that it’s just another cage, perhaps a little more beautiful from the others.

I still recall that discreet image of a passport belonging to Mr. Thomas A. Anderson, aka “Neo,” that as I wrote a little earlier, shows as expiration date of September 11, 2001, appearing at 18 minutes and 11 seconds into the movie The Matrix, which translates into $8 + 1 = 9$, followed by 11. ⁹⁰

Surely the Wachowski brothers, which have preferential contacts with the U.S. Intelligence Community, received this information and filtered it willingly through their film, with the usual “Predictive Programing” used to program the masses unconsciously. In the 1999 film The Matrix, the female character Trinity says to Neo, the protagonist:

I know why you’re here, Neo. I know what you’ve been doing... why you hardly sleep, why you live alone, and why night after night, you sit by your computer. You’re looking for him. I know because I was once looking for the same thing. And when he found me, he told me I wasn’t really looking for him. I was looking for an answer. It’s the question that drives us, Neo. It’s the question that brought you here. You know the question, just as I did.

Neo replies: "What is the Matrix?"

Trinity says: "The answer is out there, Neo, and it's looking for you, and it will find you if you want it to."

To all the good people out there I will now close this Volume of my Confessions. 90 http://www.naturalnews.com/033019_contagion_movie.html ‡ Archived 16th August, 2015. 376 Confessions of an illuminati ‡ Volume ii

THE ILLUMINATI NETWORK EXPOSED

Leo Lyon Zagami continues his masterful thesis of his former life within the Illuminati, "confessing" both his own role, and by digging deeper to expose the players and their control grid. He outlines the Satanic infiltration of Freemasonry, pointing out the generational aspect of the bloodline families. This book also outlines the many ways of defending yourself psychically against black magicians, but also against the many sects operating within the Illuminati Network.

"Leo Zagami is one of a kind. As charismatic as he is enigmatic, Zagami is a blessing to the research community in his eccentric knowledge of occult history. His revelations are a must-read for anyone willing to challenge their conception of the Catholic Church ... and the Illuminati control structure beyond it."

—Sean Stone, Buzzsaw

"Buy this book. There is no other book showing you the inner, highest, most secret and shocking working of the global network of Secret Societies. Leo's books are way, way deeper and better than anything else ever written on the subject of the Occult. Leo has lived it. He has first-hand knowledge and experience. This is a fascinating book. Highly recommended"

he agenda for a New World Order is real and it includes a plan to implement a World War III scenario by 2020, according to former Illuminati member Leo Lyon Zagami in volume two of his Confessions series. Zagami has a pedigree with roots in Italian/Sicilian nobility with Freemasonic heritage as well as in Scottish nobility, again with Freemasonic links (Lyon is his middle name). His bloodline and high-level Freemasonic initiation created unusual connections, but his “seeing the light” and “spilling the beans” landed him in prison. Undeterred, he continues to expose undercurrents at play in many countries.

Zagami delves deeply into the occult machinations and control mechanisms behind the NWO power play, exposing how Freemasonry and secret societies everywhere are being infiltrated by Satanists. He reveals that the major forces working towards a world government are Jesuits in cahoots with Zionists. But the other key hand, he says, is China with its own brand of Freemasonry operating behind the scenes. Zagami tells the ongoing story of the Dragon Family and some mysterious, confiscated bonds, among many extraordinary tales and historical details that are not for the faint-hearted.

For anyone caught up in this shady network, Zagami has tips on psychic defense. His book names names and uncovers a disturbing world that's far removed from the masses.

As a former 33rd degree member of the Freemasons, ranking member of the P2 lodge and born from a lineage of aristocratic Illuminati blood, Illuminati defector Leo Zagami has an acute knowledge of the powerful network consisting nefarious new world order elite and exactly what their future plans entail.

After years of grooming by the powers that be, in 2006 Leo dissolved many of his alliances and started exposing freemason beliefs, members of the elite societies and their agendas. Leo Zagami offers authentic insights into the 2016 new world order agenda and what we can expect in years to come. We know that only a privileged, nefarious few truly make the big decisions of the world. Referred to as the Illuminati or the New World Order, they are a powerful network made up of royal bloodlines, secret societies, occult orders, shady banksters, and corporate oligarchs.

Confessions of an Illuminati (Vol. I):
The Whole Truth About the Illuminati and the New World Order

A

Author Leo Lyon Zagami uses the Illuminati's internal documents and reveals confidential and top-secret events. His book contends that the presence of numerous Illuminati brotherhoods and secret societies - just as those inside the most prestigious U.S. universities such as Yale or Harvard - have always been guides to the occult. From the Ordo Templi Orientis (OTO)'s infiltration of Freemasonry to the real Priory of Sion, this book exposes the hidden structure of the New World Order and the occult practices of the various groups involved with it, including their connections to the intelligence community and the infamous Ur-Lodges.

Critique: A scattering of black-and-white photographs illustrates this aston ishing glimpse into the power structures and occult practices of notorious secret societies, including their connections to metaphysical pioneer Aleister Crowley, hostile extraterrestrial lifeforms, the intelligence community, and more. But how can ordinary people take a stand against vested interests of money and power? Knowledge is the first step, and even the most skeptical browser will find Confessions of an Illuminati modus operandi expose enlightening!

L

Leo Lyon Zagami is an ex-member of the Comitato Esecutivo Massonico – Masonic Executive Committee (MEC) of Monte Carlo. He was, until recently, a high level member of the Italian Illuminati, a 33rd degree freemason, a true insider and a high-member of the infamous Freemasonic P2 Lodge. He was the “prince,” prepared to take over after the older Illuminati “king,” Licio Gelli. He is of Illuminati aristocrat bloodline and therefore involved in the Illuminati Order since childhood.

However, Leo decided he’d had enough of all the evil he was exposed to, and a part of, and the horrifying Satanic, black magic rituals, mind control and torture that was going on inside the lodges, behind closed doors. So he left everything and fled to Norway. Since he left, he’s been harassed and tortured and had his life threatened. He realized that the only way to hopefully stay alive is to expose to the world what he knows and make himself known. History shows that this is one of the best ways to survive, although nothing is for certain. Leo started a website, Illuminati Confessions, where he reveals the secrets to the world, one by one.

About the Author

Supported by a creative environment from an early age, Leo Lyon Zagami's devotion to the study and research of esoteric, historical, and philosophical subjects has yielded his unique perspective. This ran parallel to his passion for music, which led him to collaborate with radio and television stations around the world. Since 2006, Leo began circulating, first-hand, information regarding his direct involvement with the New World Order and various secret societies connected to it; often referred to as the Illuminati. From 2009 to 2013 he authored six books published in Japan, all of which were bestsellers in their genre; and together selling over seventy thousand books. From 2012 to 2015, Leo published seven books in Italy with great results— results that have made him a household name in his native country.

Dedicated to the members of the Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis and the Brothers of my Lodge. We are sowing the seeds for a harvest that will be enjoyed by future generations.

Introduction by the Author

I

In this project called Confessions of an Illuminati, I have carried out a complex and in-depth study, based on my direct experiences, creating in this way a sort of hybrid project. It can serve as a curious reading, but also as a manual and an inspiration, for even deeper future studies for those willing to go further in search of the truth. Moreover, this is an innovative way of showing the true history of the hidden controllers of the NWO. I not only speak about their origins and their past, but demonstrate the direct influence of certain past events, to the present, and what they plan in the future. I call this format “Conspiracy reality.” It offers readers a much broader knowledge without boring them to death, because it’s projected in the here and now, Hic et Nunc as stated in Latin. We are now living in a crepuscular time in history, where the publication of the third volume of my Confessions, will finally unveil the hidden truth about the Templars and their modern imitators. Over time they have been divided into two factions, a truly enlightened and benevolent one, and an infernal, malevolent, and obscurantist side, that seems to be prevailing today. When we speak of the Templars, the original ones born in the lap of the Catholic Church, we must be careful not to confuse the Order with individual knights. These knights were real monks, who made the three vows of chastity, poverty and obedience. In fact, the much celebrated wealth, power and ambition must be exclusively attributed to the Order, and understood as a super individual body, their motto: Non nobis Domine, non nobis sed Nomine tuo da Gloriam. As far as we know, historians have searched the archives of the past, and have not been able to find a single piece of evidence that the Order acted in their own self-interest, rather than for the universal and Catholic defense of Christianity; the safety of roads and traffic to the Holy Land, and the protection of the needy.

It can be said that the Templars were advanced for their time, and as it usually happens in such cases, they became misunderstood, and envied for their work and their perceived mission. This is obviously what we know from the official and “profane” side of history, but of course there is also another side to the story, the occult path of these problematic Knights. I will explain deeper the mysterious teachings and traditions in this volume of the trilogy, and in The Invisible Master, that helped the Templars understand the laws that govern the historical cycles of humankind. They understood fully the beginning of the downward slide of the current phase of civilization, what the Hindu tradition defines as the Kali-Yuga, and they dared to challenge and oppose it, or at least attempt to delay the fatal conclusion of this cycle. The occult and underground struggle was titanic, and these monks failed to triumph. But something happened that we can not yet fully understand, that stopped this wonderful project that the Templars had in part begun to realize. Perhaps a most dazzling revelation informed them that certain laws, although cruel and absurd, are present for the final Well of Cosmic manifestation, of which man is part of the same symbol. Yet, at the same time, when they were invited to submit to the Church, and obey the Pope, they refused.

Many centuries later, a similar episode would take place with the Jesuits, after the Dominus ac Redemptor, the apostolic Letter of Pope Clement XIV, that suppressed the Society (or Company) of Jesus, until the papal bull Sollicitudo omnium ecclesiarum on August 7, 1814. They were admitted back into the Vatican by Pius VII, and in 2013, they were even able to place one of them on the papal throne for the first time in history with Pope Francis. This situation makes me think of the Götterdämmerung, which concludes the Tetralogy of Wagner. The subject of the opera (i.e.: the Götterdämmerung), is the Armageddon of the world in Norse mythology, and that is where we are today, mainly because of our parents and of the generations that preceded, since the end of World War II, who lived in the spirit of compromise with this illusory lie. Social tension is increasing more and more each day, and you can clearly notice this since the tragic events of 9/11. These are the signs of a new “strategy of tension,” manipulated by the usual architects of control, which for the occasion, create a new “Cold War” with the usual enemy: Russia, the only possible ally in the conflict with so-called Islamic “fundamentalism.” That is another big farce, packaged by the New World Order, in which Russia is also obviously seeking their role without underselling in any way, their sovereignty or their Christian tradition, something the rest of the world seems to be submitting to, in order to embrace a One World Religion.

Let us remember what the late Count Licio Gelli, former Worshipful Master of the famous Lodge Propaganda 2 said in relation to the “Muslim lands,” and their relation to the Knights Templar:

“ The great strength of the Templars, however, was the ability to dominate the Muslim territories with very few men. Their diplomacy enabled them to rely more on this, or the other Muslim factions, taking advantage of the hatred between the various Islamic sects and the various cities. Promising their protection to a powerful city or a Muslim faction, they had allies at all times and played skillfully on the division of Islam. If Muslims were united, and it is also the history of today, the Templars and the other crusaders would not have resisted for so long in the Holy Land.”

This is what happens in fact even today, where the same technique is applied each day in the Middle East. They lean from one faction to the other, dividing Islam, and manipulating them for the interests of the New World Order. On top of all this, those in the U.S. risk a new confrontation with the Russian Federation, and a possible clash with Christian Orthodoxy, that although fragmented, is attempting to stop this vulgar globalist ideology that is promoted by George Soros & Co. After the end of the monstrosity called Communism, Russia seems to be the only true conservative faction that is willing to fight terrorism and Islamic extremism, and defend the values of true Christianity. Liberal atheists have helped to create and promote Communism, and are now sitting at the top of a pyramid that seems more like a “New World Disorder” than a “New World Order.” This Communist ideology was secretly promoted by the Jesuits in the 60’s and 70’s, and they are now the true Masters. To fight such an abomination we would like a “total Revolution,” if not by us, at least by those who govern us, but this is still a difficult and dangerous utopian vision to be realized. The great Italian Sardinian initiate Vincenzo Soro, in a curious commentary on the French work of the eighteenth century, entitled The Great Book of Nature, spoke of the hidden operators that lie behind the most important revolution, discussed brilliantly by Gérard Encausse (1865 – 1916) (FIG. 2), known also as Papus:

They were faced with the need of the revolutions in the same spirit of physicians to address the need for a surgical operation. They do not think about the operation itself but of the consequences of the same, of the pain that the patient would suffer, of the weakness that occurs and that we must fight, and so on; and they previously study the consequences and the painfulness, to minimize the loss of blood, and especially to comfort the patient in the most serious hours of the disease, and in the most dangerous stages of the operation. But it happens very often that revolutions do not take place as the initiates would have wanted: and sometimes its precursors and trainers are also the first victims.¹

In the course of my Confessions series, it has been of fundamental importance to me, to study the genesis and development of the secret societies commonly referred to as the “Illuminati,” a term of course not restricted to the Order of the Illuminati of Adam Weishaupt, but in my view, a description of a much wider “New Age” network ranging from Wicca to Thelemic sects, all the way to the knighthoods of the Vatican, and Occult Freemasonry. In my research I have found important and influential groups created by the elite of the Royal Houses, other times I have encountered irrelevant groups playing a very dangerous geopolitical game. Even worse, I have found sects manipulated by the big shots of Occult Freemasonry, and the Intelligence services operating in the magical arena, often affecting the world negatively without the knowledge of their practitioners. These are groups such as the Ordo Templi Orientis or The Golden Dawn, who often live on the edge of a parallel magical world, which interferes (not always successfully) with our reality through their growing contribution in the countries where they operate. For this reason a further analysis of their structure is not only interesting, but necessary, for those who want to fully comprehend the true ideologies of the Illuminati that form the astral body of our society that has been called Unicuique suum, a definition by Gérard Encausse. (FIG. 3)

Papus was, as I mentioned earlier, his magical name, chosen to obtain contact with the gods. He took this name from the Nuctéméron of Apollonius from Tiana, a figure appreciated by various luminaries of the occult world, like Franz Bardon. It was therefore a name of a genius. Genies, or jinn as the Romanized Arabic word, comes from a long line of mythological creatures dating back to 2400 BC. According to the Qur’an, God created jinn out of the “fire of a scorching wind.” Papus is the genius of the first hour, an entity dedicated to medicine and healing. Papus was also a worldly man, taking part in Le Chat Noir (French for “The Black Cat”) a nineteenth-century entertainment establishment on the hill of Montmartre (a club in vogue between the late 1800’s and early 1900’s), but spent a lot of his time in libraries to research ancient texts, just as I have done at times.

FIG. 3 – Above: a Kadosh Knight (30th degree A.A.S.R.) wields the dagger, and vows revenge against the papacy and monarchy for the death of Jacques de Molay, the last Grand Master of the Templars.

This knowledge allowed him to oppose the Eastern tradition being promoted at the time by the Theosophical Society, with an equally strong Western tradition.

In Paris, he surrounded himself with the main esotericists of the time; among those closest to him we find the French magician, the Marquis Stanislas de Guaita (1861 – 1897), a noble of Lombard origin considered by Papus himself to be one of the greatest initiates and Illuminati of his time, who wrote some very interesting things which I will return to shortly. Sedir (who worked for the Bibliothèque Nationale de France) and Joséphin Péladan (1858-1918), who would leave the group shortly after to create his own group (without success). In 1888, Papus met Pierre-Augustin Chaboseas, who he hoped would transmit to him an initiatic lineage dating back to L. C. de Saint-Martin. This was a “strange” coincidence, or at least a synchronicity, that will give him the power and authority to form a new order (the Martinist Order), and the structure that will be permanently established in 1891, based on that of the already existing Kabbalistic Order of the Rosicrucians. He wrote more than 160 books with the name Papus or Gérard Encausse. Papus affirmed the following thought on Secret Societies describing them: “as a real social astral body”,² a kind of invisible aggregate formed by various egregore that operate through them.

Egregore is an obscure term that I have used a lot in my trilogy, which seems to have originated and developed as a word describing a group thoughtform in the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn, and the early works of the Rosicrucians. The first author to adapt such a term in modern language was the French poet Victor Hugo, in his La Légende des Siècles (“The Legend of the Ages”), a collection of poems published back in 1859, where he uses the word “égrégoré” first as an adjective, then as a noun, while leaving the meaning obscure to his readers. It was Eliphas Levi, pseudonym of Abbé Constant, a remarkable character of the esoteric and political scene of his era, who promoted this term a decade later, in his book Le Grand Arcane, where he identifies “egregore” with the tradition concerning the “Watchers,” the fathers of the Nephilim, describing them as “terrible beings” that “will crush us without pity because they are unaware of our existence.”³ The word “Egregore” derives in fact, from the Greek word egrégoroi, meaning “watchers,” present in the Book of Enoch, a biblical apocrypha where it designates the fallen angels who, for love of the daughters of man, lived on earth, teaching humanity art and science. But in contemporary esoteric phraseology, reminiscent of the work done in the highly influential Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn, this term indicates a collective psychic entity that is produced both from a ritual or naturally, by any human congress of at least three people together. The Egregore characteristic therefore consists not purely of its mathematical sum, but on the sum of its geometrical energies, which is why it manifests itself more strongly through Sacred Geometry, so dear to the Templars.

There are those who are skeptical of this “weird” reality that I am proposing to you through my trilogy, and despite all the evidence and truth which I have brought to you in the first two volumes, there will always be the skeptical person who refuses to accept such truths, because it’s easier for the majority of the population to live in illusion and ignorance. I quote in this case a classic episode of the New Testament that involves St. Thomas contained in John 20, 24-29, known as “the disbelief of Thomas.” Thomas, who doubted the resurrection of Jesus, then came to meet the risen Lord. Addressing him, Jesus says: “Put your finger here, and see my hands; and put out your hand, and place it in my side; do not be faithless, but believing.” Thomas replied: “My Lord and my God!” Jesus said to him: “Have you believed because you have seen me? Blessed are those who have not seen and yet believe.” To my dear readers, you have learned uncomfortable truths thus far, about the various sects of the New World Order and their intelligence networks, and information denied to you by the powerful elite of this Earth. I present to you this trilogy of truth, through much sacrifice, after years of injustice and oppression, suffered precisely because of my opposition to these injustices, that are part of the system. It’s been over 10 years since June of 2006, when I began my open confrontation with the Monte Carlo Lodge of the P2, which pushed me later that year to publish my Confessions online, with a small but successful blog. It has been over 15 years since the beginning of my war against the Satanists of the Ordo Templi Orientis, and other Crowleyan Illuminati sects. They were important choices in my life, as was joining Freemasonry in 1993, with Prince Gianfranco Alliata di Monreale, aware of what could happen if I went down the “rabbit hole,” the popular phrase used in Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland, that defines a sort of catabasis, which literally means “descent into Hades.” Freemason and author of several books Gianmichele Galassi writes the following:

The theme of the descent into the underworld, or more exactly the catabasis, is certainly not new, there are many examples in various cultures since ancient times. It’s sufficient to recall Hercules, Pollux, Orpheus for the Greeks, the Babylonian Inanna, the hero Hittite Kessi, Xolotl in Mexico, the Aeneas of the Latins or Dante in Italian literature. Jesus himself would die and then rise again, so it is clear how the ability to go down to the underworld before returning to that of the living is an expression of an ancestral need of human beings. Of course, the various myths and stories likely to give rise to different interpretations, but at the same time they are always related to an ego-soul transformative cathartic process or the idea of eternal life with the consequent defeat of death.

3 See. Eliphas Lévi, Le Grand Arcane (“The Great Mystery,” 1868) pp.127-130, 133, 136.

But as the same Galassi writes in his excellent essay on the subject: “ The concept of death can take on various meanings: the end of it all, as the last act of existence without any possibility of extension, a simple transmutation, through the migration of the soul, until the rebirth to a new life, a spiritual life that lasts for eternity.”⁴

I open the last volume of my trilogy with Plato's Allegory of the Cave and its two interlocutors, Socrates and Glaucon. I would like to present to you the correct interpretation of the most beautiful and famous metaphor in Western philosophy, thanks to my father Dr. Elio Zagami (1939 – 2010).

Elio wrote about it in his unpublished essay entitled The Experience, where he states:

Socrates, after comparing our nature, in regards to education or lack of education, described the following picture of mankind, in Book VII of The Republic,⁵ where we find the famous description of Plato's experience, perhaps among the most beautiful pages ever written, undoubtedly among the most cited, although not equally understood. It is a "catabasis" and later a mental "rise," with specific reference to various degrees of initiation.

On the myth of Plato's Cave contained in the work The Republic, I will attempt, with my father's help, a cautious analysis and description in connection with the initiation rites of the time, which have always been the basis of the Western Initiatic Tradition, and in this way I hope to help you, my reader, understand its importance in the eyes of the Illuminati Masters. My father used to tell me that Plato was blamed (by the Sicilian Pythagoreans), for having created such an important allegory and putting it into writing. They were a sort of forerunner to the "mafia" of today, where they obviously wished to control such secret knowledge and monopolize it in order to facilitate their personal goals. They did not agree with Plato showing such truths outside certain initiatic circles in the hands of the elite, blaming him for revealing to the masses the secrets related to the control of the Matrix, a bit like Jesus did. Elio writes: "Recall how Socrates, his teacher, was punished and accused by his opponents of having aroused the youth protest, which his disciple Plato still denied—here we go again, we want to always stay prisoners of the system. The truth scared to the mafia back then as it does today, and Socrates was condemned to die by taking hemlock, do not forget, thus becoming a 'guided suicide.'" My father Dr. Elio Zagami also wrote:

It is a descent into hell, which was already made by Ulysses, Aeneas, Jesus, and Dante, made to meet with a thousand possible faces of ourselves. It is the heart of the Platonic esoteric transmission, the place of ideas, the mental point of constant reference of our civilization. It is time then to reinterpret the “Myth” or “Allegory of the Cave” in a modern way for it to be made accessible to all. With an underground dwelling in the shape of the cave, thinking to see men who have been trapped in there since they were children, with chained legs and necks, so as to have them standing only able to see forward, unable, because of the chain, to turn around their neck. Unable to see other levels of existence beyond their own. The man, enslaved, only looking ahead. But in front of him there is usually nothing (only shadows). There will never be a sun shining in the depths of the cave! We have become specialists of the dark. And now we want to go to other planets, systems, galaxies like we are able to move when we cannot truly move ourselves mentally from our present position, we want to travel the universe to defeat nature, confusing such things with reality. We are all wannabe Icarus. High and far behind us shines the light of a fire, and between the fire and the prisoners raises a road. Along this road you think you see a low wall built, like the screen that the puppeteers put in front of people to show above them the puppets. And who are the puppet masters of this reality?

4 Gianmichele Galassi, V.I.T.R.I.O.L. ed il tema della discesa negli inferi, brief essay from the site: <http://www.riflessioni.it/riflessioni-iniziatiche/VITRIOL.htm> Archived 27th of September 2016.
5 Plato, The Republic, Book VII, translated by Franco Sartori (Bari-Rome: Laterza, 1973) pp. 237-241.

If we look at the Platonic metaphor “we must not overlook anything,” Dr. Elio Zagami urges us, and he continues his analysis by writing:

Man enslaved, tied, prisoner in the bottom of the cave, is actually us, or at least most of us. So the question arises, ‘Who are these puppeteers?’ Glaucon replies to the Allegory of the Cave, “I see.” At that time this meant hear and see. Imagine seeing men carrying along the low wall objects, all sorts protruding from the edge, statues and other figures of stone and wood, crafted in all sorts of ways; and, as is natural, that some carriers talk, others are silent in the process.

So Plato described to us in his Allegory of the Cave, the power, and men of power, who continually stun us with their ideology. Some of these men speak during their work, while others are silent. My father wrote that the silent ones are those who rule the system:

Those are the ones who lead or command humanity (linked at the bottom of the cave) which provide to us a glimpse or “projection” of false things built for us, proposing this as the only possible reality. Even the sun (= fire) in their eyes is constructed for them. Perhaps cousins of Prometheus, they think they are so close to God as to believe to know that God does not exist. The world, maneuvered out of their hands, gives them vertigo and therefore they believe from their glorious heights to be the gods of this world. But this is not the case: they are only a visible manifestation of the infinite loop chain of this prison planet. “Some people talk” and write and bombard us in so many ways, in their own words (political, religious, prophets, psychologists, critics.) Others prefer to manage the power in silence, never saying anything (business magnate, esoterist, Masons, courtesans, friends and friends of all these).⁶

An excellent description of the Allegory of the Cave made by my father Elio, in his unpublished essay written in the mid 70’s, just as good, if not superior to what we find in more recent times.

In the movie The Matrix, a 1999 American-Australian science fiction action film written and directed by The Wachowski brothers, a film that as some of you already know, I consider of great importance in the initiatic process of the masses at this crucial time for humanity. The film in question revolves around the opposition between real and fictional worlds, between truth and falsehood, between truth and appearance, a central duality in all of Western philosophy. The truth is not as it appears to us, a nice game of empty phantasmagoria, to deceive us and keep us subjugated in chains. This is what the dark side wants. The film in question may partly be relied upon as a representation of Plato’s thought. The Matrix seems to rewrite the myth of Plato’s Cave with a new interpretation, with of course a technological upgrade, which is compelling when you refer to the sleeping masses of today, lost in the virtual world of the internet. If a slave could escape, says Plato, initially he would be blinded by the sunlight, but he would then be able to see the truth clearly, which the shadows concealed, and finally he would understand the prison planet that surrounds him. If he wanted to go back into the cave to reveal such truths to the other slaves, he would not be believed, and indeed he might even be killed. Neo, the protagonist of the film, somehow represents the ultimate man-philosopher of this age, who manages to escape the cave (The Matrix), and finally realizes the true nature of reality that surrounds him. At first he is dazzled by the light outside, but once he gets used to it and recognizes the truth that it hides, he returns to the cave (the Matrix), and tries to free other men. In this context, after you take the red pill described in the film, you reach the enlightenment experience, however some, after reading my words, will ask in the way Glaucon did in the Allegory of the Cave: “But, what is this experience?” It does not really simplify life, if anything, it makes it more difficult, and often controversial at a social level, and sometimes it can even cause you to die if you are not cautious in the way you proceed after your “illumination.”

Some may not want to dissolve the chains of human existence that lead to the truth. They are the poor prisoners of Plato’s ideal cave, with the realization that this is still a “Prison Planet,” and knowing that one could be opposed and persecuted by the controllers of the famous “Matrix” for one’s choice, or even be killed by the “slave gods.” This term was defined by the discarnate entity named Aiwass, that dictated the Book of the Law to English magician Aleister Crowley, and his wife Rose Edith Crowley, in Cairo in 1904. If the elite could have it their way, they would try to stop any future mutiny of “cavemen,” as they did with me over and over again in the past, hoping I would eventually give up. The truth is so scary that most ordinary people prefer to refuse it, and not all men have the courage to face the risk involved in fighting such a battle that involves a radical choice in one’s life, and in the life of one’s family. This has happened to me when I suffered the betrayal of people close to me after my dramatic choice over a decade ago. I suddenly found myself in isolation in a prison in Norway. In the end, there will always be an infamous character like Cypher “the traitor,” the Judas of The Matrix movie, the companion of Neo and Morpheus, who reveals secret plans to artificial intelligences. The gist of the speech made by Cypher is that humanity is lazy, fearful, tied to its false security, and they feel it’s better to remain ignorant than to know the truth that could radically disrupt their lives.⁷

I saw this reflected particularly in contemporary Scandinavian society, which I consider the most subdued and conditioned in the world, although it is considered by many to be an example to follow. It is actually the first society to sell out to the globalists with various initiatives. Norway and Sweden, for example, are eliminating cash in favor of electronic currency, thus promoting the latest trend of the New World Order, and to global slavery, where we are treated more and more like a number or bar code. In every era of humanity that dares to go against the system, to bring men to rebel consciously against this age old slavery, as Socrates did, there are those that are unfortunately betrayed and usually murdered. This happened not only to Socrates, who Plato of course was referring to in his Allegory of the Cave, but we also have Jesus and many others in the same position: Joan of Arc, Giordano Bruno, and before them Boethius, imprisoned in Pavia in September 524 for allegedly practicing witchcraft. There is Ramon Llull, who is said to have been stoned to death by the crowd, Cagliostro the “Magician” of the Masonic tradition, who died in solitary confinement in the Castle of San Leo, to limit ourselves to only some of “the real Illuminati,” as my father used to call them. Characters who were persecuted, ridiculed, insulted and eventually brutally murdered by the “smart” pseudo “Illuminati” elite, simply for revealing the truth about the system that governs our physical and spiritual world. And remember it is not the crowd that decided the death of Jesus, but it was the notorious demagogues; who were obviously instructed by “someone” behind the scenes. They are the hidden manipulators from the dark side of the Illuminati, the slaves of the occult elite that still dominate this world, just like in Jesus’ time, those who manage to brainwash and control the sheeple with their lies: “Away with this man, and release unto us Barabbas. Crucify him! Crucify him!” (Luke 23:18). Socrates, in turn, the inventor of logic, was condemned by a totally illogical verdict, issued by men who acted in the name of a supposed justice that keeps defending the system and its controllers regardless of the outcome: “At this point the judges vote a second time. They had to choose between the sentence proposed by Meleto and the fine proposed by Socrates. Says Diogenes Laertius: (II, 42) Socrates was sentenced to death with 80 votes more than those who had him pleaded guilty; and so he had been found guilty by 280 votes to 220 but was sentenced (to death) with 360 votes against 140!”⁸ In all this, it is hard to see the good in man. You see, the idea of good in the physical world is in fact, extremely rare.

For this reason, the experience of enlightenment depends on several impalpable factors, and hopefully at some point in our lives we understand the true master we have been searching for resides within us. Once activated, you will quickly develop the feeling for the reality that surrounds you that is invisible to the majority of people. This is described in the movie The Matrix, when the protagonist chooses the “Red Pill” after Morpheus tells Neo: “You take the blue pill, the story ends. You wake up in your bed and believe whatever you want to believe. You take the red pill, you stay in Wonderland, and I show you how deep the rabbit hole goes.” So with the closing introduction chapter of this trilogy I hope I will lead some of you to become true masters of your life in this crepuscular moment in history. This is the ultimate purpose of this trilogy, where you are resurrected in a new life made of awareness, just as it happens in the initiation to a Master Mason: which some say was originally inspired by the cult of Osiris, and the third degree of the Egyptian initiation, that was called the “Gate of Death.” This practice was later introduced into the Pythagorean school, founded by Pythagoras in Crotona (in today’s south of Italy), around 530 BC. In this ancient form of initiation into the Egyptian mysteries, we find the coffin of Osiris, who is like Hiram Abiff, the central character of the allegory presented to all the candidates of Freemasonry during the third degree. This allegorical figure is led to a truly dramatic experience for the initiate, where he is asked if he took part in the murder of Osiris. After showing evidence to him, and despite his denials, they impose on him the feeling of being hit with a blow to the head.

The initiate is then wrapped with bandages like a mummy; he hears moaning around him; lightning is flashed in front of his eyes covered by the bandage, sounds and noises are created around him, to alienate and scare him even further. Then the candidate is wrapped in fire (and not just symbolically), and suddenly after the ordeal has terminated, they bring him symbolically back to life, obtaining in this way mastery, and with it, the full awareness of the cave/Matrix that surrounds us. In today’s world such knowledge and understanding should be promoted well beyond the sectarian realities of the Illuminati mystery schools or speculative Freemasonry. Living free, or at least aspiring to live outside “Plato’s Cave,” should be an essential part of the realization of every human being on earth, not the privilege of a few brilliant minds. This evolution could and should happen if a new humanity is capable of rejecting materialism, and idolatry, so prevalent in our present society. We need to help the elite of today lose their vice and perversion, to embrace instead “spiritual alchemy,” and the noble practices of a true initiate.

8 Elio Zagami, Ibid.

Francesco Brunelli, a leading figure of the Italian and European Illuminati in the 1970s, known in Martinism as Nebo (1927 – 1982), who in 1973 was named by the famous French initiate Robert Ambelain his representative to Italy, wrote the following:

Once his true nature is known, man will aspire to leave such prison, and after inquiring about the means at his disposal, will begin the job of deconditioning, decanters and purification that will lead him, after realizing the well-known fourfold motto: dare, to be silent, to know, to will, ready to operate the transmutation of spiritual alchemy whose finality is the structuring of a different kind of man from average humanity, surely he will be hunger for evolution and possibilities, "he will reconcile and reinstate his primitive" quality and power. Regardless of the "techniques" used by the initiate, he will also act "operationally." This work, which involves putting into action such operations, following the traditional patterns (purifications, diet, prayer magically understood, installation of an operating place, etc.) and rituals (in my case Martinezist rituals) that brings all operators who have a pure heart and a sincere faith to start living sensitive effects, consisting generally in a direct vision of flashes and glyphs (steps) that represent the signals on the path of reintegration and which confirm the validity of the work and its progression.⁹

Returning to Speculative Freemasonry, it is generally divided into what is standardly agreed upon as the "Blue lodge"—linked to the Order and its first three degrees, whose symbolic color reminds us of the infamous blue pill offered by Morpheus to Neo in The Matrix, to stay in "blessed ignorance"—and the red pill to find out "how deep the rabbit hole goes," as in the "Red lodge" that can be defined in Masonic terminology as either the Scottish Rite or the York Rite of Freemasonry, depending on where you are in the world, seeking improvement beyond the degree of Master Mason (3rd degree). (see FIG. 1, in front matter, page 5) In reality, the only true initiation in Freemasonry is the one obtained in the Apprentice degree, as all the others are just stages of Masonic improvement. After Mastery, you can remain in the administration of a "Blue Lodge," and have little more than a social club experience, or if persistent, you can push forward for further knowledge, and ultimately to the "Invisible Masters" ... I will discuss this mysterious topic in the follow up to the Confessions trilogy, in a book known as The Invisible Master. In the "rabbit hole" of Freemasonry, we find the Martinist Order, an expression of the teachings of Martinez de Pasqually (1727?–1774), the father of the Martinist lodges, and his student Louis Claude de Saint Martin. A hundred years after the death of Saint Martin, various prominent figures of the occult establishment of the Illuminati network, including the aforementioned Papus, with the help of Stanislas de Guaita, and other French esoterists who had their roots in the Egyptian-Atlantean tradition of the Illuminati, with wide esoteric wisdom deriving from different channels, from Gnostic-Christian to Kabbalistic, to Neo-Templar Freemasonry, of which the above were dignitaries and reformers.

The Martinist Illuminati, who were born mystic and still remain mystic, are in contrast to the majority of the Masonic orders, which are to this day rather rationalist, often succumbing for this reason to black magicians, simply because they are not able to prepare the necessary psychic protection, forgetting their esoteric roots in favor of a social approach to the Craft. The essence of all the teachings of the Martinist Illuminati are found in the works written by various Grand Masters, but their initiations and their knowledge is transmitted through a rather simple ritual initiation ceremony. There are many Illuminati sects open to both men and women, but women do not seem to have access to the highest levels in Europe. Martinism is an initiatory group that owns a philosophical and mystical doctrine, a method of individual work and group work, where members must operate according to their individual possibilities. The main aim of the Martinist Order are essentially two:

9 Collection of Articles from 1927 to 1982 of the Grand Master Francesco Brunelli Alias “Nebo”

1. Reconciliation and personal reintegration,
2. The universal reintegration.

The Martinists will later deepen these purposes not stopping at the letter, but penetrating behind the hidden anthropomorphism used by the Masters.

The means that they provide for the attainment of these goals are individual and collective, that is, the Martinists were placed in a position to make both individually and in communion with the other members of the Order, the work of reintegration. Scholastically—and therefore not initiatically—we can describe it on this assumption, constructed on the following scheme:

1. Individual work.
 - a) Discovery of the true nature and the true being of man.
 - b) Liberation work to free man here “at the bottom,” of the “cave” with inside and “operational” work.
 - c) Contribution to the universal personal reintegration through participation in the spiritual workings of the order.

2. Collective Labor through active participation in the magical chain having as effects:

d) Energy exchange between the members of the chain.

e) The use of individual energies for the expansion of the initiatic chain and for healing and cleansing the earth's aura. For this reason daily, monthly, and equinoctial rites are practiced.

This scheme, regardless of being “Martinist,” has a central role in the Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis (also known with the acronym O.I.U.) which I founded in 1999 within the Monte Carlo Lodge of the P2. Summarily, I can say that the inner depth of the teachings of the past masters and those still living “at the bottom” are essential for a true evolution of man, especially in this day and age. Louis Claude de Saint Martin wrote: “It is in fact the sum of all the problems, being himself a problem, the enigma of enigmas. One can not understand man by means of nature, but nature through man.” With these words, Louis Claude de Saint Martin invites you to analyze for yourself the reality that surrounds you. So that man finally discovers his true rank and position in the universe and perceives the harmony of the world according to the famous motto of Delphi: “Know Thyself and Know the Universe and the Gods!”¹⁰ Remember that mankind, in spite of its “degradation,” will always carry the signs of our divine origin from the stars. Chained to this planet like Prometheus, exiled from his original kingdom, the conscious beings of mankind hope one day to overcome this stage and possibly rejoin one day the “Creators.” For the good side of the Illuminati, it's important at this point to contribute to the cleansing of the Earth's aura, to fight the work of the Satanic enemy. The Martinist chain for example, when it is genuine, and it is not infiltrated by evil elements, as is unfortunately more and more often the case nowadays, can establish a positive energy exchange between Freemasons and other Illuminati, as I try to do in my own Order. One must understand that currently the astral atmosphere is haunted by negative thoughts emitted by man, by the negative forces of non-corporeal beings, and these forces generate the evils of humanity, and hinder rapid evolutionary ascent with racial hatred, religious, social, caste, selfish desires, etc.

Only true theurgic operations, and real exorcisms, are able to successfully fight such negativity. Collectively performed theurgic operations have a force that increases in a geometrical sense in relation to the number of operators that perform it. Believe it or not, moving the polarity in the astral environment even slightly, contributes to the great work of universal reintegration. Following the Martinist teachings, the initiatory chain I created within the Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis, can naturally devote its positive energy to fight the negativity on all levels, and particular attention is also paid to the healing operations that are not only addressed to the members of the Order, but also to their families, and to the society around us that often requires our intervention on the astral plane. That's why we, as well as Martinism and certain Masonic Rites, are constantly infiltrated by the dark side of the Illuminati, and it is for this reason, that Martinism as a mystery school was incorporated in the O.I.U. activities and teachings, to ensure transmission and to adjust its Egregore outside the harmful influences of the dark side of the Illuminati. The initiate who embarks on this positive initiatic path, does it initially through the understanding of the esoteric teachings present in my books, and later through the practice of them, essential for a proper understanding of the ultimate truth and the practice of transmutation, which in a more current and understandable term is referred to as Spiritual Alchemy.

Francesco Brunelli wrote that:

The transmutation is reached through the practice (and never through pure theory) also fideistic, which through the intervention of the Egregore chain allows that the small arcane, even the inexpressible, is sensed by the adept or revealed to him. The possession of small natural arcane allows the beginner to move to a further stage of the work. Without this there is no possibility of intuition or revelation or progress because no living being, no instructor can simply explain the secret, of course.¹¹ You must live certain realities to understand them. But remember how Brunelli had to point out several times in his writings that only an initiatic Order can guarantee the application of the rule, and only constant practice can open these possibilities gradually. It is laughable that many modern orders or fraternities define certain rites of acceptance as "initiations," without the actual possession of any major or minor teaching, stating they will raise you to new heights of understanding, or even promise to reveal to you the ultimate truth of the universe with a simple initiation, when this is far from possible. In this context I recall the words of a true initiate, De Guaita, who said to his masters to meditate profoundly: “we will ‘start’ them out: but the role of initiators must stop here.” The initiate receives input, but not the ultimate truth, which must be reached on his own. Only in this way will he be able to reach the intelligence of the Major Arcana, and the title of Adept. But know well that it is in vain that you will attain the supreme formulas of science and knowledge from the wisest of the Masters in a book or speech; each person must summon it, create it and develop it as an experience. Once you are initiatically “opened,” you are one with the others, and have been put on the path to become a true adept; i.e. one who has conquered the science of self, or, in other words, the son of his works.

I am in fact transmitting to you not only the necessary information, but also the oldest of initiations with this work. It is then up to you to deepen the knowledge, unknown to most. At the end of this introduction, and returning to the teachings of a Master Mason, the historical figures or symbols over the centuries might change, but I assure you that in the end there is a common truth to all the mystery schools and traditions, and not just Western ones. The Judeo-Christian power axis, which as we know dominates this historical moment and currently dominates Freemasonry worldwide, simply wants to be identified at this juncture of Space-Time, in the biblical Hiram Habif, or in the case of Christian-Masonic Rites in Jesus. But remember that beyond appearances and names that change (as we also saw in the previous volume, where I explored the subject of Chinese Freemasonry), the initiatic valences that these above figures represent, since ancient times, is the initiatory path of rebirth “of the One” that is in all of us, and the mysteries they represent, are the same. Plato explains in Phaedrus, that for those who want to reach such beautiful ideals it is also acceptable to suffer to obtain them.¹³ The philosophic truths of such distinguished figures such as Plato or Pythagoras, and their teachings, play a central role in understanding the Matrix around us, especially after the final meltdown of the transcendent metaphysical world in our society with the work of materialists and Satanists. The Allegory of the Cave has become a helpful tool in our analysis of reality. A world where nothing is as it appears, where everything is studied, watched, controlled and manipulated by the usual Jesuits in cahoots with their Zionist allies.

In this third volume of my Confessions, I do an in depth study of the elite bloodlines, showing you secrets known until now, only to a select few.

Finally there is a topic that is close to my heart present in this book, the Holy Grail and the Knights Templar, and their famous curse and supposed revenge. Many do not know that Count Licio Gelli, former Worshipful Master of the controversial lodge Propaganda 2, dedicated a small booklet (FIG. 4) to the Knights Templar and their revenge: “A conspiracy born in the dawn of 1314, when the last Grand Master of the Temple, Jacques de Molay, was sent to the stake launching the famous curse, a revenge that was extinguished, according to some with the beheading of Louis XVI. While for others it is still in place. On this episode there has been a lot of literary, pseudo-esoteric and even historical speculation.” To the supposed “Revenge” of the Templars, the 30th degree of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite is dedicated. It is judged as being controversial by some Freemasons, who have applied for a review of it in some jurisdictions, perhaps without having understood its true essence. For this reason I would like to open this book mentioning my first “experience” with the Templar legacy, when I was still a child in the family library, (FIG. 5) and found an old book published in 1891 entitled Le Temple du Satan, whose author was the famous French occultist Stanislas De Guaita. I began to read this book, and I discovered many initiatic teachings and hidden historical facts under the bright veil of Pythagorean philosophy, but it was only a few years later, during a very heartfelt initiation into a lodge with a strong Templar tradition, that I understood in fullness its importance, and its secret teachings, thanks to an old member of the Priory of Sion that pointed out to me a particular passage.

Let’s read together this passage and you will understand why:

Still we stand in shock for the quick summary of the trial of the Templars, for their relentless description of their infamous persecution. They were sorcerers? Listen. Rich and powerful, for the more ambitious, the trustees of surprising and frightening powers which were conferred to some of them by a partial initiation of an arcane science often questioned, at times ridiculed, but always forbidden by priesthoods and absolute governments, the Templars could clearly determine in the political and social, sudden and unexpected upheavals, such as to change the face of Europe and even the world. ... that’s what was vaguely sensed by the Pope and the King of France. Following the superficial logic of the facts understood in their apparent meaning, Clement V should have seen in the Knights of the Temple at the time those valiant defenders of Catholicism and zealous supporters of the papal throne; Philip the Fair, only the loyal subjects and fervent supporters of the monarchy. But a singular intuition in the heart of the two powerful, protested against this apparent situation. Frightened, the monarch and the Pope (the latter even before his election), decided the total destruction of the Order and pursued this objective with licit and illicit means, despite rumors of conscience and humanity. The persecutors were from time to time, evil and violent, hypocritical and merciless.

In this particular passage it seems we are dealing with a new perspective of the Templar legacy:

Idolatry and witchcraft! What did it matter? What did they bury under the ashes of the fires of 1311-1313, it was the possibility of a policy and revolution, and a plan still vague of a social and religious reform. But they had reckoned without the laws of impact and balance. The persecutors were ignorant of the fact that you do not suffocate an idea, even in germ, in the blood of those they are made apostles and legatees of such idea, that ferocious prudence was illusory and the infamous trap they prepared will condemn them both very soon, and more importantly, in the future they aroused almost five centuries later, a return shock of which the earth still trembles; a belated

FIG. 5 – The author at work during the writing of his Confessions trilogy in the family study that was his father's, Dr. Elio Zagami, using the same desk that belonged to his grandfather, Senator Leopoldo Zagami.

shock that caused suddenly the most complete and colossal collapse in recorded human history: 1793 was the shocking reply to Inquisition judgment of 1312! Clement V and Philip the Fair were undoubtedly clairvoyant when they sensed the living threat urging in front of them in the person of the Templars, and this in spite of all imaginable protests of fidelity and love, but they were blinded in their absurd barbarism if they could flatter themselves with the hope that an act of faith, for rapid and complete that it had been, would eliminate the Templars, their power and the Word of which they were carriers. Both will be invited to appear before God—the Pope within forty days and the King within the same year—history shows how ominous was such appointment with death. Two apostate knights, traitors of the Order, the first, in an obscure process, were hanged by a Court, the other was found bathed in his own blood. Fellow prisoners of the Grand Master that had betrayed the Templars after his death persisted in their confessions, no less died miserably later on. An immense secret society was formed from the ruins of the Templar Order. Now the revenge prepared in the shadows whose explosion will terrorize Four Hundred Fifty years later: waiting for this terrible and late response, it decimated one after another, all the murderers of Jacques de Molay.

Stanislas De Guaita then explains the genesis of something that is born from “the ashes of the Knights of the Temple” and is spread over four centuries following their secret “orders,” to manifest themselves fully only in the second half of the seventeenth century, when:

Secret societies are multiplying in a surprising manner; they swarm everywhere like a multitude of swarms that you saw out of the land, vibrating in the sun in the effervescence of an unusual job. The time left is played. Noon of punishment; and the industrious bees revenge prepare the golden sting for the great battle. ... Already the century tasted the intoxicating honey whose aroma rise to the brain, subtle poison that blinds and makes us delirious ... stay still a moment, listening, and what is felt is a buzz of insects and the noise of the hurricane always getting closer; a confused and growing noise of millions of human voices crying vengeance and Freedom! Especially Germany seems the nursery of the Illuminati, the meeting place of these sects. Powerful lords, greedy beyond the grave revelations, dripping favors in good faith from some mystics that call them “my son,” but especially the many charlatans who mock them and exploit them.

De Guaita clearly explains to his readers who the infamous Illuminati really were, and such info came from what he experienced first hand. Given their central role in the secret societies of the time, he does not limit the “Illuminati” term to the Ordo Illuminatorum of Adam Weishaupt, which he is highly critical. Instead, he has a much broader view of the Illuminati in line with what I have taught you in the first two volumes of my Confessions. De Guaita says that among these “many societies” that make up the network of Illuminati, “there are a few good ones,” but let’s read his words:

Adam Weishaupt, a professor at the University of Ingolstadt, founds its Areopagites. Arousing the curiosity of the public and become fashionable for some time. Emanuel Swendeborg preaches in Sweden; Georg Schröpfer evokes in Leipzig, Johann Heinrich Jung known as Heinrich Stilling foretold elsewhere. Karl Von Eckartshausen teaches in München the highest speculations of Pythagoras magic numbers, Lavater, the Zurich theosopher, goes to Copenhagen to participate in the mysteries of the Northern school. It is nothing less than the physical manifestations of the active Intelligence cause (The Word!) In intervals to keep fit Danes theurgists evoke St. John, Moses, Elijah, not counting the minor characters of one and the Old Testament. In short, the followers abound and it would be folly to pretend to list them all. Of all these Illuminati there are a few good ones (except Von Eckartshausen), many mediocre as Jung-Stilling, Swendeborg and Lavater and even more detestable as Schröpfer, Weishaupt and all the others.

As you can see I am not the first Freemason to criticize the “Illuminati” sects, although I am definitely the first to come forward to publicly denounce the corruption of this millennial sectarian system, as explained in part by De Guaita, who showed the Templars as the main protagonists, especially after their tragic ending. In spite of my enemies who have tried to stop me several times, I present to you the third episode of my Confessions, where you will finally take the red pill, and thus becoming a Master.

In Search of the Perfect Knighthood

II

Awaiting a Holy Empire

Maurizio Blondet writes:

he Western civilization has reached its terminus momentous—or its dead end—it is common sense (hopefully for them) also for the atheists to feel the terminal crisis of capitalism that does not know how to escape this mess having consumed their whole bag of tricks and moral degradation, social dissociation, consumption of individual hedonism, nihilism and a wish of death permeates it. The new “achievements” and “rights” that are being pushed by the progressives in their latest battles do not have the force of optimism of their old “magnificent and progressive” ideologies that seem now mortuary and funeral conquests like abortion, euthanasia ... Maybe the atomized masses get it too (perhaps), and now confused about their desires, and insatiable consumers of standard-products while their “leaders” act as psycho-cops of progressivism. What they reject with fury and mad rage (seem therefore suspicious and hides their fear) is the diagnosis that Buchanan stated sometime ago with such frank simplicity: our civilization is the last stop because it refuses Faith. Christianity, specifically. The irrational hate, drooling, that radical progressivism has towards Vladimir Putin is the feeling that the salvation of civilization requires a “correction,” a daily moral code demanding dogmas founded in people’s history, the renunciation to that microscopic and swarming hedonism of today; the end of this vacation and those standards to which the atomized masses believe (and they are made to believe) they have been “liberated,” emancipated from the “dogmas and taboos.”

And symptomatic comically, by contrast, the adoration of such intellectual managers of terminal and their whole body of left wing journalists—who bestow upon Pope Francis the high clerical hierarchy—committed to frantically pull down the building that created civilization, civil morality, culture, noble costumes (Chilvary) now torn and trampled, to dismantle the Church destroying its sacrality, to turn it into an auxiliary of the generic religion that adapts to the One World Government— these lost unbelievers, adoring him, and expect “Francis” to bring them out of the dead end they ended in. The left wingers have become clerical, at every opportunity they cite the phrases of Pope Francis obviously the most anti-Christian, such as “who am I to judge?” They drink from him their new catechism, confirming their secular approach. What a funny and sad sight.

But this does not exempt us—the few true Catholics left behind—to focus on the last word of Buchanan. “Unrecoverable.” We, too, who “believe” to have faith, are hurt by the present climate, by the collective Satan raging on the Western world as a roaring lion. Not enough to recognize that it takes the Christian faith to maintain and rebuild civilization; faith, you have to have and live. Do we truly have such faith we who go to Mass? Supernatural protections ruined by the treacherous hierarchy that conducts the liturgy leaves us exposed to the roaring lion. Our faith is really more than a crumb? Recently a “traditionalist,” a militant Catholic character, which is not worth to mention by name, a co-founder of the Catholic Alliance, announced the organization to renounce to all charges because—he left his wife and four children—and at 61 years old he goes and lives in the USA with his mistress. In New York, the capital of the sunset, a very symbolic move.

Maurizio Blondet is referring above to Massimo Introvigne, the co-founder of the Alleanza Cattolica (Catholic Alliance), and infamous Jesuit agent I talk about in Volume 1. Blondet continues:

After the inevitable evil grin (he was my opponent, Israeli supporter, and known figure of the Interdisciplinary Center Herzliya, i.e. a Mossad recruiting center). I asked myself, can this happen to me? He stripped himself of his “Catholic faith” like you take off a dress ... why I say, a dress? More like a carnival mask, a fake nose made of paper applied to the face with a rubber band, of which he has been freed without any difficulty so he can chase a little sex and pleasure of which he should know—from his doctrine—deceives and does not last, and will bring him to repent soon. His true face was therefore this, cheesy and standard hedonism; and the faith in Christ was only his carnival costume, his mask.

This is a pretty strong criticism by Maurizio Blondet against Massimo Introvigne, one of the most influential contemporary figures within the sectarian world of the Illuminati, controlled by the Jesuits and Pope Francis, with the support of the CIA and the Mossad. However I always considered him, as you know from my previous writings, a Satanist and not a true Christian. People like Blondet should have realized this earlier:

I can attest to one thing. Very true. In these times, with this Church in dissolution, with a Catholicism that has given up their mission and priests who teach the “ecumenical pastoral” way—There are young people who are called. Are chosen one by one, they receive calls through meetings and messages that it is impossible to describe—because they are unmistakably supernatural. I met, last year, at least three. They were young, lost, mixed up in standard pleasures; young people to whom no one has ever even spoken of faith (unless an old grandmother) specifically Catholic. Yet, after answering the call, they rediscovered everything I meant everything Catholic. Traditional, Thomistic, liturgical and Gregorian, the ones abandoned by the hierarchical Church, are traditional Catholics. One of them called to me to visit him a few weeks ago, now married and with children, teaching (teaching!) Thomas Aquinas, the perennial philosophy in a Spanish university with holy audacity and true doctrine. The doctrine that the person who called him in, must have taught him. I have a bit of faith that will not endure the persecution. But I see that Christ is calling one by one those who will rebuild, in the very near future that I will probably not see; He is enlisting his commandos, his martyrs, his virile heroes—and sometimes ferocious amazons—for the last battle. So, I am serene. There will be a civilization tomorrow, after the catastrophe. Christians will be strong then. There will be a Christian Empire, as some prophecies say—not a republic. A holy empire. Not a democracy. ¹

And from these words written by the famous Italian journalist Maurizio Blondet, once linked to Opus Dei, we understand that we are living in what is commonly called the end times. The apostasy of the Church itself, and the will to destroy the Catholic Church, which is now apparent to everyone. With this third volume of my Confessions we arrive to the complete removal of the veil of Isis, that was presented to the initiate in ancient Egypt, by the revelation of the light of ultimate truths.

Imagine the Egyptian burial place of Isis, in a place close to Memphis, where there was a statue covered by a black veil. On the base of the statue is engraved: “I am everything that was, [QUID FUIT], everything that is [QUID EST], that will be [QUID ERIT] and no mortal has yet dared to lift my veil.” In the journey of initiation in ancient Egypt, what followed was voluntary, and concerned only the development of the individual, the Egyptian religion was never promoted with a missionary spirit. They were tolerant and benevolent towards the world, but Egypt never wanted to impose their religious practice elsewhere, the exact opposite of the subsequent Abrahamic religions, invasive and too often oppressive. Rightly so, Egypt did not wish to impose on others their religion with the force seen later on with Christianity and Islam; but the cult of Isis and Osiris, were gradually absorbed by the nascent Christian faith, only to be rediscovered and used in secret, centuries later, by the Jesuits. It is the Jesuits who became the new priests of Heliopolis in the Vatican, with the most powerful network of secret agents in the world, to help their faith expand and develop. Remember, there is a huge obelisk in St. Peter's Square in the Vatican, in the center of Christianity, that is dedicated to the "sun god," from Heliopolis. The Jesuit Order is therefore the new secret Brotherhood of Heliopolis (the Sun City) within the Church, the High Priests of the God On (which is another name for the sun god Osiris communicated in secret to the Minervals of the O.T.O. at their initiation). The Jesuits are the sons of the sun, who for 500 years have been structured as a sect, and military operation, with unconditional support of the papacy. Obedience to their immediate supervisor is total, and closed occult deals are made among their adepts. The commander is defined as Superior General, but there is also a "Black Pope," given the black robes he wears and his position in the shadow of the "White Pope," although now we have an anomaly with Pope Francis, as he is a Jesuit, and everything about him becomes much more complex and precarious. The "Society of Jesus" was originally used by the Vatican to counter the various movements of the Protestant Reformation, but of course with time they became something much more powerful, as we shall read in this book, but I want to focus now on Heliopolis.

The area of the ancient Egyptian city of Heliopolis is located today in the northeastern part of the Egyptian capital Cairo, which constitutes the district of Mataria, a place I once visited, in November of 2004, for an exorcism by a holy lady of the Coptic Church. The ancient magical practices of Egypt are still alive today thanks to Christianity, the Coptic faith is the closest to its original source. Egyptian Magic in its more dark connotations, scared the Roman aristocracy when they arrived in the town of Cleopatra. At the time, Cleopatra was able to dominate many men and make them her slaves by using the magical art of seduction and also red magic, often sex magic. However after Cleopatra arrived in Rome, Egyptian magic spread throughout the empire. Pliny the Elder, a wellknown Roman author, naturalist, and natural philosopher in the first century AD, never missed an opportunity to thunder against the impiety of such magicians, but meanwhile advised people to wear a dried beetle, as an amulet for the health of their children, in imitation of Egyptian scarabs. In short, even Pliny was not exempt from these practicing forms of magic. In the beginning of the third millennium, Knowledge and Light seem to be covered by darkness; myths and gods disappeared, giving way to a growing obsession with movie stars, sports figures and entertainers.

Homer, best known as the author of the Iliad and the Odyssey, would no longer be able to write today, about the appearance and many adventures of the gods with mankind, and a pharaoh doesn't welcome the sun officially among large crowds, like it was in ancient times. However, the elite of today and our government officials still practice (or try to practice) certain rituals in the secrecy of their lodges, and in the narrow circles of a select few, in temples inaccessible to ordinary people. Therefore, when night falls on our consciousness, we return to ancient Egypt for answers. As stated by Guillaume Apollinaire: "now is the time to rekindle the stars." The Illuminati of the various sects of today and "Occult Freemasonry," hide their true knowledge, in various mystery schools and secret societies, the mysteries of ancient Egypt, as I have shown you in the previous volumes of the Confessions series. When I was myself initiated into the mysteries of the invisible world linked to the ancient Egyptian Illuminati and joined the A.°.A.°. of Aleister Crowley, who some call Argentium Astrum, back in 1993, I was told by my initiator some of the secrets of Heliopolis. I was told that it was no coincidence that my now deceased father was named Elio, and I am named Leo. Basically our names put together in Latin describe the period known in English as the Dog Days, the hottest, most stifling days of summer. They are 40 days, beginning on July the 3rd, and ending on August 11th, that coincide with the heliacal rising of the Dog Star, Sirius. For the ancient Egyptians, Sirius appeared just before the Nile's flood season, so they used the star as an indicator of the flood. Since its rising also coincided with a time of extreme heat, the connection with hot, sultry weather was made. This period also coincides with the Sun in Leo among other things. Four years after this important event in my life in 1997, the same character, the initiator who had introduced me to the secrets of this brotherhood of the A.°.A.°. (of which I spoke of in depth in Volume I), gave me a mysterious text to read written by someone who he said would help me figure out a few things on the true situation of the world. Here is the content and the words written by, who I discovered later on, was none other than the

Grand Master of the Order of the Illuminati Knights Frank G. Rippel:

I remember the particular state of political tension that had been created in Italy in December 1988, something was happening. The evening of Monday 12th of December we witnessed, the Scarlet Woman and I, the manifestation of a divine sign. We were in an area of Veneto and saw darting in the sky a green energy sphere. The heavenly Ark of the Covenant (not to be confused with the terrestrial one) had projected a force field around the earth. This was the signal announcing the fall of communist ideology. In July of 1989, we visited Licio Gelli (the former head of the disbanded Masonic lodge P2). In a previous letter he wrote: "The time of our meeting was brief and could not offer us the opportunity to know each other better, though, if you believe you can, in the near future, and if you have the opportunity to pass through Tuscany, it would be of my satisfaction to have a meeting with you." In his villa, a manor house in the green of nature, we were welcomed with great courtesy. Gelli led us into a huge hall and made us sit on two of the twelve chairs arranged in an arc, six on each side. We began to talk, and at one point in the conversation he said: "We have two enemies: the Communists and the Catholic Church. ... And especially the Jesuits," Then I made a ritual question: "When will be the end of these two ideologies?" "You have to have patience," he replied. "Maybe because I'm young I have a lot of patience," I replied. And a few months after that the Synarchy overthrew communism in the world. The Cold War was over. It seems that no one had realized the rapidity with which it had crumbled, the Soviet Union and its satellite countries. Even the most pessimistic political scientists believed that communism would last even for a hundred years and yet in a few months everything was shattered, weird right? Since December 12, 1988 there have been almost ten years, and a new world disorder reigns in the world, for a new world order can be born. A New Dawn will rise soon and the world will change. The evening of Monday the 6th of January 1997, there has been another Divine sign. In the sky of Rome a green energy ball darted from east to west. The heavenly Ark of the Covenant produced another force field. This is the signal that announces the fall of this fideist religious ideology, the signal of the beginning of the Great Return. The beginning of the Great Return is marked by the Knight of Space announcing the end of the old days and the start of new ones. The Knight of Space is a comet, discovered on July 23rd, 1995 by amateur astronomers Alan Hale and Thomas Bopp. The minimum distance from Earth occurred on the 22nd of March, 1997. In late 1996, astronomers around the world have found a body, defined Companion, who was following the Hale-Bopp comet. Later, with their primitive tools, they have been no more able to detect the Companion. The Companion is a force field that came into collision with the Aura of the Earth, to the transmutation of the same Energy collision occurring on March 19, 1997, and the transmutation of the Aura was completed on 29 April, 1997. The Return of the Gods is marked in time, but few are those who know how to interpret the Divine Signs.

After handing me this revealing text, my initiator recited these words he told me were written by the Antichrist.
Well my dear readers, I am not to sure the “Antichrist” he was referring to was Frank G. Ripel, but here they are:
In all these years I have not done more than revealing the Absolute Science of Magic.
But now, My children, Sons of Vengeance, listen to what I’m about to tell you.
For some time now there as has been constituted a New Order, a New Line of Magicians. We are the Psionics.

We can use the power of our mind to change the surrounding reality, but always in deep respect of the Laws of Nature.

We operate in Justice, above the law of man.
We abhor all forms of brutal violence carried out by the wild human.

We are the antibodies of the Earth, opposing the madness devastating the wild men.

We can kill with just a mental effort and there is no human law that can hit us,

FIG. 6 – Cover of The New Age Magazine that was “the official organ” of the Supreme Council 33°, Ancient & Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry Southern Jurisdiction (not the Northern jurisdiction as erroneously written by the author in Volume I). The magazine was inaugurated in 1904 and still continues today, but in 1990, the title of the publication was changed to the Scottish Rite Journal.

since there is no law that recognizes our faculties.
And this in our favor and it is our strength.
We are beyond good and evil.

The term Psionics is the study of paranormal phenomena in relation to the application of electronics. This modern term derives from psi (‘psyche’) and the -onics from electronics (machine). It is closely related to the field of radionics. Of course there is no scientific evidence that psionic abilities exist, however from that day on I wondered what I had to do, and although I felt to be part of “a New Line of Magicians,” as the supposed “Antichrist” revealed in his message to his adepts, I certainly did not want to serve him in any way, because as you know the devil and his acolytes are sons of lies and deception. It took however, many years for me to understand fully that the only answer was in Jesus Christ, and that the promises of “justice” and not “violence” of the supposed Antichrist in his message, were part of that great deception perpetrated on mankind called the New Age, that I described to you in Volume I. New Age is a term coined in the Masonic field, (FIG. 6) that is now a global movement that has been amplified in recent years, with an obsession for the mysteries of the ancient Egyptian civilization. This growing interest was originally promoted by certain Illuminati sects within Freemasonry in much narrower circuits, but is now alive with the expansion of the New Age creed, a kind of planetary revival, not always positive, as most New Age practitioners are in the hands of the perverse ideology and beliefs of the aforementioned Aleister Crowley and his cult of Thelema. Crowley, who was a violator of the true teachings of alchemy and its sacred notions, in recent years was able to influence more people thanks to his disciple Paulo Coelho, a character who despite presenting himself to the world as an innocent intellectual figure and writer, is someone we should not trust. Coelho, as I will show you in detail later in this book, was also for a time a devout disciple of Crowleyanity, and was tied to Marcelo Ramos Motta (1931 – 1987) of the S.O.T.O., and the mysterious brotherhood of the A.: A.: In addition to all this, he received his education from the usual Jesuits, which makes us understand a lot about his perverse psychology. Today, the mystifying philosophy of the Jesuits reigns supreme, and man is living in a growing realization that he actually lives on a prison planet, where freedom does not exist.

From Ancient Egypt to the Strict Observance

Let us now revisit ancient Egypt, and the ancient initiatic tradition that was partly transmitted to the mysterious Rosicrucians, at the center of Western initiatic tradition in the last four centuries. In the pseudo-autobiography of Christian Rosenkreutz (ie The Chemical Wedding, attributed to Valentin Andreae), we find in this initiatic tale, a description of a king and queen crossing the sea and reaching a sacred island. This story is reminiscent of the journey of the sarcophagus of Osiris, in Plutarch’s version of the events. Egyptian influences became even more evident in the Golden and Rosy Cross, which appears in 1757, as a faction of the Illuminati sectarian network secretly piloted by Jesuits. Egyptian secret doctrines are simply Christianized, according to their legend, credited by a supposed Alexandrian priest named Ormus (in Persian Ormuzd), who I have already spoken of in detail in the first volume of my Confessions, a key figure of the ancient Illuminati, who is worth mentioning again because of his importance, to this day, in the mysterious Brotherhood of the Rosicrucians. Ormus was baptized a Christian by the Evangelist Mark, and his secret teachings were passed down through the centuries, so says the legend, by a secret school of sages and Illuminati, which finally manifest themselves to the world as Rosicrucians through the Rosicrucian Manifestos: Fama Fraternitatis and Confessio Fraternitatis. These two masterpieces of propaganda were published anonymously in 1615 and 1616. Soon after we find the Golden and Rosy Cross, a secret fraternity linked to the Jesuits, whose maximum representative of the time, according to Erik Hornung, was a Venetian magician who lived in Egypt.² Indeed, legend or myth, all this simply leads us back to Egypt, the land of Hermes Trismegistus. I should also mention that the brief, but intense success of Count Cagliostro, and his Egyptian Rite of Freemasonry, was not only tied to the Jesuits, but also to the elite of the Freemasons of the time, involved in the Strict Templar Observance, a Templar Masonic order later infiltrated and sabotaged by the Jesuits, that was eliminated and absorbed partly, by other Masonic rites in 1782 in the famous “Convent of Wilhelmsbad,” of great importance for the future of Freemasonry and all Masonic rites. The rite of the Strict Observance Templar was reactivated by the author of this book in 2016, along with other truly enlightened Freemasons, to establish a new initiatic base that can facilitate the future reconstitution of a true aristocracy, based on merit and enlightened by noble souls ready to help forge the future empire of God. Madness or reality, we oppose this drift towards the humanist, liberal and communist New World Order. We propose something different than the elite, just as Cagliostro did in his day. Let’s not forget to mention in this context, the great fear that the legendary Count Cagliostro instilled with his magical and esoteric practices in the Roman Catholic Church, thanks to his Masonic / magical rite, the aforementioned Egyptian Rite, clearly inspired in part by the work of the Jesuit Athanasius Kircher, who promoted a very thorough research of Egyptian themes. He was the only one to conduct a serious and profound study of ancient Egypt before the famous discovery of the Rosetta Stone hieroglyphics, deciphered by Jean-Francois Champollion in 1822. This changed the whole approach to the subject, and a few years later Champollion met Napoleon Bonaparte (his brother Jacques was a supporter), while he was passing in his ascent from Grenoble to Paris, and had the opportunity to talk to him of his own studies, captivating the enlightened emperor.

We recall that Napoleon was a disciple of Cagliostro and the Illuminati of Adam Weishaupt, and therefore everything is connected perfectly to the esoteric and occult current that expanded from the Egyptian Rite and Cagliostro the “Great Copt,” a title used by him, instead of Grand Master, that some say was inspired by Rabbi Falk, another key figure of the “Invisible Masters” in those days. During the infamous Inquisition trial of Giuseppe Balsamo aka Count of Cagliostro, he had even proposed to the Vatican and the Pope (who assisted behind the scenes at his trial), that his Egyptian Masonic Rite could become a new Order of the Catholic Church just like the Knights of Malta. This offer was rejected because it obviously would have risked showing to the world the most occult and secret side of the Catholic Church which obviously must remain secret. The Jesuits, heirs of Kircherian thought, and in part, the role of the Templars, are the only ones that are still in charge, to this day, of such secret knowledge within the Vatican. That is why the Jesuits are also important for their influence on what is called Neo-Templarism, although of course the Jesuits, who are the secret service of the Church, are distant in their actions and in their ideology, from the true spirit of chivalry, and of the aristocracy that originally moved the real Templars, and are increasingly inclined to communism and devilish compromise instead. This is the current context in which I reawakened the rite in Italy, as other luminaries of Freemasonry are doing in other countries around the world. The Strict Templar Observance, is a Christian, chivalric Masonic Rite of great importance for the history of Freemasonry. This long lost rite was described this way by two of the biggest experts in contemporary Freemasonry, namely Arturo de Hoyos and Alain Bernheim, who dedicated a thorough study in Heredom Magazine, or “Heredom,” the annual of the Scottish Rite Research Society (Volume 14, 2006):

2 See. Erik Hornung, Egitto Esoterico, (Turin, IT: Edizioni Lindau, 2006), pp. 157-163.

Of the many rites, systems and orders that have appeared in the arena of Freemasonry, few have attained the level of notoriety or controversy of the Rite of Strict Observance. Its history is a tapestry of mystery, knighthood, glory, intrigue, deception, and fragmentation. Its influence upon the development of High Grade Masonry is undeniable, and it has left an imprint upon many of the important Masonic orders of the present day, foremost the Rectified Scottish Rite, but also the Swedish Rite, the York Rite, and the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite. Its mystique continues to beckon investigation and speculation, and writers seem unable to leave it alone, whether they recycle earlier notions, or offer genuine contributions to the subject. Few would argue that the Rite of Strict Observance has a rightful place in the pantheon of Freemasonry. Yet for all this, it remains something of a phantom to the English-reading Freemason, as its rituals somehow escaped translation and publication. Thus, like a phantom, it is something often talked about, but seldom seen. One reads about the Rite, but one does not read the Rite itself. With a view of bringing our phantom into the light, this paper presents, for the first time, the first three degrees of the German Rite of Strict Observance translated into English, with a history of its origins.

Arturo de Hoyos is the Grand Archivist and Grand Historian of Scottish Rite Freemasonry; Director, Department of Education and Heritage The Supreme Council, 33°, Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry, S.J., USA, while Alain Bernheim was awarded two times the Norman Spencer Award by the English premier Lodge of Research Quatuor Coronati Lodge N° 2076. He is a Freemason since 1963, and not only belongs to the Regular Grand Lodge of Belgium and to the Swiss Grand Lodge Alpina, but was awarded the 33° by the Supreme Council of the United States (Southern Jurisdiction), and is a member of the prestigious Royal Order of Scotland. Certainly de Hoyos and Bernheim are two heavyweights of Freemasonry, and ten years after this historic publication of their invaluable research on the Strict Templar Observance, that was published for the first time in 2006, the official reawakening of this lost Masonic Rite in Italy took place, in the Orient of Tivoli on March 5th, 2016 at the Castle of Rocca Pia in the year 898 Anno Ordinis. To give you a quick general idea of the beliefs of this lesser known Christian Masonic Rite, I will show you part of the teachings reserved to the Inner Order of the Rite of Strict Observance, that gives you the true superior meaning of the Entered Apprentice tracing-board of the S.O.T.: “The Order which is concealed within Masonry is the Order of Knights Templar, and therein lays its source and origin. Below there are seven steps which lead to the closed door of the so called hall of the Temple ...

The two pillars refer to the last Grand Master of the Order, namely Jacobus de Molay, native of Burgundy, and the letter J signifies the name Jacobus.”

And here is an illuminating passage that explains the meaning of the Master’s degree tracing-board in the Strict Observance secret tradition of the inner order usually given in the secular chapter of the Order:

The Masters’ tracing-board has two different, although closely connected, parts of the Order’s history in its different emblems as topic, The coffin located in the middle is not that of de Molay who was burned and could not be buried, but is rather that of Carolus a Monte Carmel Commander of the Province on the Po and Tiber, who was slain by Noffodei and Squin de Florian as taught in the history of the Order. He is the real Hiram of whom Masonry speaks. This story was contrived to approximate the true history of the Order that only the names are lacking. The blackjacks located below signify the murder weapons of the ruffians, and the hill with the Cassia upon the rubbish signifies that the corpse of Carolus de Monte Carmel, who was buried in the garden. The flames which are located on the floor, and which must be 61 in number. signify the tragic death of our Brethren whom Philip caused to be burned in particular, 59 who were burned in one day in the field of 51. Anthony. and also de Molay and Guy, who languished slowly over a fire on the Isle of St. Louis. The two letters M. B. do not signify May Beinac, as in Mabeignac, the adopted name of Aumont but they are once again, as in the first two Degrees, the name of the last Grand Master, MOLAY BURGUNDUS.

Let’s remember that Adam Weishaupt, as well as Baron Adolph von Knigge, respectively the founder, and the person who structured the main rituals of the Illuminati Order, were both initiated in the Rite of Strict Observance. In the introduction of the book The Secret School of Wisdom – The Authentic Rituals and Doctrines of the Illuminati, we find information that confirms the importance of this rite in the Masonic life of Baron Adolph Knigge:

Following the example of his father, he had joined the Kassel lodge ‘Zum gekrönten Löwen’ (Crowned Lion) in February 1773, at the age of twenty. Having witnessed its 1778 convention in Wolfenbüttel, he became a member of the Strict Observance, where he was given the name ‘Eques a Cygno.’ ... After moving to Frankfurt, he frequented the two lodges operating there, ‘Zu den drei Disteln’ (Three Thistles) and ‘Zur Einigkeit’ (Unity). Knigge was disenchanted with the Strict Observance with its spurious pretensions of unknown superiors and even sceptical as to whether the basic degrees of Freemasonry were worthy of reform at all, but he nevertheless lobbied for a full transformation of the Illuminati Order into a Masonic system. With Weishaupt's consent, he added some unmistakably Masonic elements to the Minerval degree, such as the layout of the assembly room, the use of a tracing board, and the practice of knocking with the gavel to gain the members' attention. In April 1781, he asked for specific instructions concerning the development of a fully fledged Masonic system. The degrees used by the Frankfurt lodge, he said, were too garbled to be of much help, but he had other sources at his disposal. He also recommended not to worry about supposedly authentic constitutions. At the time, the Strict Observance was the dominant Masonic system in much of Germany, its sphere of influence even extending into Switzerland, France, northern Italy, and Hungary. However, there were grave doubts concerning the central tenet of its high degrees, namely the supposed historical link between Freemasonry and the Knights Templar. The much-anticipated forthcoming convention of the Strict Observance was expected to deal with this and other crucial questions, and Knigge, who was pursuing the plan of a merger of this expansive yet ailing system with the Illuminati, initially wanted to wait for the results of the congress before working on an entirely new body of Masonic degrees. The convention was due to be held in October 1781, in Frankfurt. When the news reached him that the date was postponed, Knigge immediately set out to write his own version of the three basic Masonic degrees. He also suggested that Weishaupt should finish both the Illuminatus major and dirigens degrees which he could then cloak in the manner of 'Scottish' degrees. Some three months later, in late August 1781, Knigge had finished work on the Masonic degrees and an accompanying book of constitutions. The result was deliberately eclectic, and since Knigge did not divulge any of his sources, a meticulous comparison of all the degrees he may have had at his disposal, in printed or manuscript form, would be necessary to fully appreciate it. Suffice it to say that some elements are typically German, such as the three lamps and rapier lying on the altar, some are taken from the Strict Observance rituals, such as the Master of Ceremonies carrying a sword rather than a baton, some are of English origin, such as the office of the Stewards.³

So Knigge seemed fed up with the "spurious pretensions of unknown superiors." But how could the "unknown superiors" of the time, that included many powerful royals, and even certain Jesuits, reveal themselves to the world, in this whole Masonic affair? The Jesuit abbate Giuseppe Marotti, who was later to become the secretary of Pope Pius VI, was for example, directly involved in the layout of the Masonic teachings of the Order of the Illuminati. So the Stuart family, and many other royal figures, at one point simply opted out of this Templar system of Freemasonry, using the Unknown Superiors' controversy as an excuse, as they hide the secret teachings and rituals of the Strict Observance in other Rites. Let's remember that even Weishaupt's "Illuminati" degrees devised by Knigge had their own "Secret Superiors" and they are mentioned in the Illuminatus Dirigens, the "Directing Illuminatus," or Scottish Knight degree in ADDENDUM A. FORM FOR THE LODGE CONSTITUTION:

We, Delegates authorized by the Illustrious Worthy Secret Superiors of ancient true Freemasonry, under the invisible protection of the Secret Grand National Lodge in the Orient of Germany and its subordinate Provincial Lodge of this District, have decided, after the urgent request of several Brethren in. ... and after consulting with the Higher Superiors, to establish a true Lodge of secret Freemasonry there.

Of course, if you read superficial books like The Templar Code For Dummies By Christopher Hodapp, and Alice Von Kannon, you might think Baron Karl Gotthelf Hund made the whole "Unknown Superiors" thing up, like the majority of today's Freemasons, but of course that's not the case, and in my next book Invisible Master, I will prove this point further. However, the Strict Observance members who were initiated into Weishaupt's Order apparently believed that they were being initiated into the highest echelons of the real Illuminati, or Brotherhood existing from time immemorial. Once initiated under strict vows of secrecy, a great deal of political and anti-monarchical philosophy were revealed to members. Weishaupt's "Illuminati" was soon attacked.

3 Joseph Wages, Reinhard Markner, Jeva Singh-Anand, The Secret School of Wisdom (Surrey, England, GB: Lewis Masonic, 2015), p. 26.

Its headquarters in German Bavaria was raided by the Elector of Bavaria in 1786, and many radical political aims of the Illuminati were discovered in documents that were seized during the raid. The Duke of Brunswick, acting as Grand Master of German Freemasonry, finally issued a manifesto eight years later, in 1794, to counteract Weishaupt's "Illuminati," after the public scandal could no longer be contained. Joining in the suppression of Weishaupt's Bavarian "Illuminati," were many Rosicrucians. Despite the repression, Weishaupt's teachings survived, and still exist today in many off shoots of his order, that use his unique techniques of mind control and manipulation, but also his more reasonable and intelligent teachings.

Having said this, people have mistakenly believed that Weishaupt's order was the only true Illuminati, and that it took over all of Freemasonry, when in fact it was only one of its manifestations. I already explained this in Volume I, that the real Illuminati mystery schools are many, and they form a network that has existed, in one way or another, since the times of Atlantis. One can still find books today, which theorize that Weishaupt's order was, and still is, the source of nearly all of mankind's social ills. A careful study of the evidence, indicates that Spartacus, a.k.a. Adam Weishaupt, and his order of "Illuminati," did contribute with their new ideas and their secret structure, to inspire some of the most important revolutionary organizations, and the agitations manifesting later in the world. Its direct impact on history does not appear to have been as great as some people believe, as the Illuminati Order was not the only Illuminati sect in existence, even in Weishaupt's time. There were, for example, the Illuminati of Avignon. The dark, Satanic side of the elite has existed since the beginning of human history, and Weishaupt's Illuminati order took a clear turn to the dark side only decades later, with people like Theodor Reuss, who later co-founded the Ordo Templi Orientis, and his one-time representative Aleister Crowley, known as "The Great beast 666." In fact, the social ills which have often been blamed on Weishaupt's Illuminati order, existed long before the birth of Adam Weishaupt, and others were still being formulated and took place long after the end of Weishaupt's original order, that lasted not very long. What did take over nearly all of Freemasonry in the eighteenth century, was the obsession with the Templar degrees, which were not the same as Weishaupt's "Illuminati," who were actually opposed to them and proponents of an Age of Reason, whose purpose was to expand man's knowledge by questioning the church's teachings, their surroundings, and the society. They disliked all Templar and Rosicrucian traditions, as being the fruit of bigotry and superstition, and eventually such a position lead them to atheism.

But atheists, my dear readers, have been promulgating their wish to establish an atheist One World Religion for, at the very least, three centuries, so Weishaupt's Ordo Illuminatorum was simply picking up on a popular trend of that period, supported by the usual Jesuits. The true significance and purpose of the Bavarian Illuminati was an anti-monarchy faction, allowed to operate right out of Strict Observance lodges, becoming a sort of virus. Meanwhile, the Strict Observance was, and still is, generally considered pro-monarchy and it supports pro-monarchy causes. All this made the Strict Observance a source of secret agitation on both sides of the monarchy, versus anti-monarchy conflicts for a number of years, until the death of their founder Karl Gotthelf von Hund in 1776, and the defeat of the Stuart/Catholic mission, plus the upcoming French Revolution and the rise of the new middle class in Europe, that made it necessary for the Strict Obedience to seek refuge in other Masonic bodies or transform their entire aristocratic Christian Chilvaric Masonic tradition into something different, at least on the surface, or risk complete extinction. This was done with the adoption of much of the Strict Observance tradition by the Swedish Rite, later present in the whole of Scandinavia and Germany, and the creation of the Rectified Scottish Rite founded by Jean Baptiste de Willermoz, present in France and Switzerland.

FIG. 7 – Rare image of the 5th page of the charter issued by the Grand Priory of Helvetia C.B.C.S. for the French reactivation of The Knights Beneficent of the Holy City and the reawakening of the Rectified Scottish Rite in March, 1935 that officially gave birth to the Grand Priory of the Gauls (GPDG), that is said to have hosted from the beginning of their activities in France, the first manifestation of the modern Priory of Sion.

The transformation of the Strict Observance into something else, obviously omitting the open use of the word “Templar” in their new public denominations, was said to be a strategic and deliberate choice worked out in the various Masonic Convents of those turbulent years, to hide their Neo-Templar origins. That’s why the French Templars of the Strict Observance, that gave birth to the Rectified Scottish Rite, took the name of “Chevaliers Bienfaisants de la Cité Sainte” or “Knights Beneficent of the Holy City,” commonly referred to as “C.B.C.S.,” instead of calling themselves Knights Templar. After this reformation, Willermoz decided that it would be right to expand this revision into the bosom of the Mother branch of the German Strict Observance. It was with this initiative in mind, that he went to the Convent of Wilhemsbad in 1782. He found supporters of his plan in the Princes Ferdinand of Brunswick and Charles of Hesse, but found stiff opposition on the part of the Illuminati of Bavaria of Adam Weishaupt, and met hostility in the character of Francois de Chefdebien de Saint-Amand, representative of the Order of the Pilaethes, as well as resistance from Savalette de Lange. After heated arguments, Willermoz and his supporters won the day, and succeeded in having the title of C.B.C.S. adopted by all members of the Inner Order. A committee was formed under Willermoz to prepare the high degree rituals and those of the secret degrees of the Profession. This work was well advanced when the French Revolution interrupted Willermoz’s task.

The “Rectified” temples of the C.B.C.S. which were still active, had to suspend their works, the brethren being dispersed by the events of the period. After the Revolution, in 1806, the C.B.C.S. became active again in France, but the many problems and the death of Jean-Baptist Willermoz in May 1824, forced them to move in 1828, part of their archives and their most important founding documents from the Directoire of Burgandy in Besançon, known as the 5th province, to Geneva, the second most populous city in Switzerland; where the Grand Priory of Switzerland still resides and became the driving force of this new Masonic body “Rectified” with occult elements planted there by the occult elite, that later expanded in various countries including the United States of America. So the Rite of Knights Beneficent passed into Switzerland when the Directoire of Burgandy transmitted its occult powers to the Directoire of Helvetia, commonly referred to as the Grand Priory of Helvetia, and it is from this Swiss Jurisdiction, that has remained active ever since, that the C.B.C.S. would later be re-activated in France in March 1935, (FIG. 7) with the Grand Priory of the Gauls (GPDG), and became the headquarters of The Alpha Galates, that later became the Priory of Sion. During World War II, as a result of the anti-Masonic legislation of the so-called Etat français (French State) of Marshall Pétain, Masons were declared outlaws and Masonic temples and archives were confiscated. After the Liberation of France, Masonic workings began again and, in 1958, the GPDG and the Grande Loge Nationale Française (GLNF) signed a Treaty (Convention) of mutual recognition and cooperation: the GPDG entrusted the GLNF, by formal delegation of powers, with the management of the first three Masonic degrees—the 4th Masonic degree and the Chivalric Order remained under its own jurisdiction. An official statement by the GPDG on their website says:

In June 2000, the GLNF broke off suddenly, and with no regard to its legal obligations, the Treaty. For that behavior it was condemned twice by the civil Courts of Paris (the judge on first hearing had even formally forbidden it to practice the Rectified degrees!) The GPDG therefore retrieved the direct management of its Masonic lodges and in this way brought together again all the elements and both classes of the Regime, restoring it as it was originally during its first years 1778-1782. In the interim, the GPDG had received:

- the degrees of the Order of Malta from the Great Priory of England and Wales
- those of the Order of Knights Templar from the Great Priory of Scotland, and
- those of the Rose-Croix from the Dutch Order of High Degrees.

So the GPDG decided to practice those Systems in full from the Masonic degrees upwards, thus creating, besides the Scottish Rectified Regime (Rite Ecossais Rectifié), two other bodies: the Scottish Rite of Scotland (Rite Ecossais d’Ecosse) and the French Rite (Rite Français), using the purest original rituals of each. Today, the GPDG is recognised by all the Masonic Obediences and Great Priories in France (except of course that of the GLNF) as a Masonic Obedience and Chivalric Great Priory. Many other Masonic Obediences and Great Priories outside France are in amity with the GPDG—the latter entertaining the very best relations possible with all of them.

For the famous occultist Arthur Edward Waite (1857 – 1942), the Rectified Scottish Rite was the one Rite he craved the most. He “had come to see the Régime Ecossais et Rectifié as maintaining, more than any other rite, the essence in ritual form of that secret tradition that tells us that the Soul ‘cometh from afar’ and that the Soul returns whence it came, but it delineates the Path of Ascent.” It was, for him, the true secret tradition in practice.

The Rite of Strict Observance vs. the rest of Freemasonry in the hands of Islam

o this day, these two Christian Masonic rites (Rectified Scottish Rite and Swedish Rite), are proud of their Christian Masonic heritage, and only accept Christians amongst their brethren, but they are also more discreet and secretive about their practices, and their beliefs in the original Rite of Strict Templar Observance. This was done so they could comply with the rules of the newly expanding English Masonic network, and their all inclusive religious version of the Craft promoted by the English “Moderns.” Such vision will open Freemasonry to non-Christians after the unification between “Ancients” and “Moderns” in 1813, that took place after the installation of Prince Augustus Frederick, Duke of Sussex as Grand Master. The term “Moderns” defined the non-Christian Masons, more close to the thought of Adam Weishaupt’s “Illuminati,” and the Age of Reason, during the period of time before this historic unification. The “Moderns” never claimed a Christian heritage, but instead had set up lodges that promoted values other than those espoused in Christianity, even in the predominantly Christian USA, creating a feud between the anti-Christian Freemasons and their Christian counterparts, that involved some of the Founding Fathers. Obviously the new “United” Grand Lodge of England in 1813, did not recognize any Masonic links with a supposed Templar tradition, and generally covered up, dismissed, or minimized, the Christian origins of the Craft altogether, to not offend their non-Christian members. In the meantime, the Rectified Scottish Rite (known also with the acronym R.E.R.), and later the Swedish Rite, included in their reform from the Strict Observance, a lot more occultist and gnostic elements into their teachings and high degrees (from the teaching of the Order of Elect Cohens in the R.E.R. to the teachings of Emmanuel Swedenborg in the Swedish Rite), at times jeopardizing in my view, their traditional Christian values and beliefs, or at least creating in the average Freemason, the possibility of an alternative interpretation of Christianity, facilitating the expansion of Crowleyanity, especially in the Swedish Rite. In any case, I want to include in this book some rare images from an almost impossible to find publication by the Masonic historian Klaus C. Feddersen, entitled Rituale des hohen Ordens vom heiligen Tempel zu Jerusalem, auch Strikte Observanz genannt, weltlicher Zweig nebst Ordensregeln und vielen Abbildungen aus dem Jahre 1764. I. bsi VII. Grad. Published in 1999 by the German Masonic Research Group Forschungsvereinigung Frederik, it digs deep into the Strict Observance roots, showing the way it shaped the Swedish Rite and its symbols. (FIG. 8) Even after the collapse of the Stuart cause, the Templar degrees originally promoted by the Strict Observance remained popular and spread rapidly, inspiring the birth of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite and the York Rite. The proStuart slant vanished in favor of an antimonarchical philosophy in some Templar organizations, and a pro-monarchical sentiment in others. Without a doubt, Freemasons practicing the Templar degrees played important political roles on both sides of the monarchy vs. antimonarchy battles going on in the 18th century, thereby helping to keep that issue alive in such a way that people would find it something to continuously fight over.

For example, King Gustavus III of Sweden and his brother, Karl, the Duke of Sodermanland, were initiated into the Strict Observance in 1770. In the following year, one of Gustavus's first acts upon assuming the Swedish throne, was to mount a coup d'etat against the Swedish Riksdag [parliament] and reestablish greater powers for the Crown. According to Samuel Harrison Baynard, writing in his book, History of the Supreme Council, Gustavus was assisted largely by fellow Freemasons. The Knight degrees also found a home in Ireland when they attached themselves to The Loyal Orange Institution, more commonly known as the Orange Order. The Orange Order is a Protestant fraternal organization based primarily in Northern Ireland, patterned after Freemasonry. It was founded to ensure the Protestant Ascendancy of Northern Ireland, but it has a significant presence in the Scottish Lowlands and lodges throughout the Commonwealth and the United States. Members of the Orange Order vowed to support the Hanoverians (now called the Windsor), as long as they continued their support of Protestantism. The Knight degrees were grafted onto the Order of Orange in the early 1790s, by which time the Stuart cause was nearly dead. The Orange Order's Templar degrees were, and still are today, called the "Black Preceptory."

Although the Orange Order and the "Black Preceptory" are supposed to be equal in status and link, entry into the Black Preceptory is accomplished only after a person has first passed through the degrees of the Order. According to Tony Gray, writing in his fascinating book, The Orange Order: the Black Preceptory today has eleven degrees and “a great deal of secrecy still shrouding the inner workings of this curious institution.” Approximately 50% to 60% of all Orange members become members of the Preceptory. The Orange Order itself continues to be strongly Protestant and anti-Catholic, and in this way it contributes to some of the conflicts between Catholics and Protestants in Ireland to this day. In the meantime the worldwide transformation of human society was announced by the Fama Fraternitatis. This anonymous Rosicrucian “Illuminati” manifesto published in 1614 gained momentum as Freemasons and other mystical network members led numerous revolutions around the world.

The uprisings were not confined to Europe, and not always with positive results; but they spilled across the Atlantic Ocean and took root in the European colonies in North America, where they gave birth in 1776 (the year of Baron von Hund's death), to the single most influential nation on Earth today, the United States of America, the guiding force of this New World Order. Unfortunately, such well "Crafted" revolutions were not always as positive as the American and the French revolutions, and they sadly destroyed the Russian Empire, that is now being reconstituted by Vladimir Putin, and they also brought us that disgrace of Communist China.

Don't worry, the last "Revolution" to end them all will bring us the most Holy and the most powerful Empire of all time, that is already on the horizon, and that's the Empire of our Lord Jesus Christ and His followers during the Second Coming. This is said to be something that will defeat ultimately the rise of the Antichrist, and the present New World Order, that is indeed of a Satanic nature, as you can notice by simply turning on your TV. Let's remember that the first recorded Freemasonry under the Grand Lodge of England (now United Grand Lodge of England), was the formation of four Lodges within one square mile within the City of London on the 24th of June, 1717. Therefore Freemasons around the world celebrate the Tercentenary i.e. 300 years of Masonry in England in 2017, a very important event indeed for the New World Order. We should use this historic moment to lay the cornerstone (or foundation stone) of our new Christian Empire, when everything in this New World Order seems to be leading instead towards a soulless One World Religion, with no hope for the Christian faith or the future of this civilization. This can be done with the help of the reawakened Rite of Strict Observance, the oldest of all Masonic Christian Rites, that we should use to shape the new aristocracy of the future Empire, the one announced by the journalist Maurizio Blondet, who I cited earlier, that will finally defeat the seemingly unstoppable Islamic take over of the West. The Strict Templar Observance never really ceased its activities and was only waiting for the right moment to come back in the open on the international Masonic stage for a new important mission, this time saving Christianity and laying the foundations of a new aristocracy for The Kingdom of God.

In the Instruction Manual of the Strict Templar Observance published in France by Editions Opéra in 1997, after the restoration of the 3rd province of the Order in 1995 headed by our illustrious Brother, Reverend, and

Knight, Jean-Marie Auzanneau, in the Order Eques Professus a Stella per Ensem we find written:

But the Templar Strict Observance will never cease to exist under its particular form but far more occult in many Germanic countries and Northern Europe; its survival explains its influence on the most used Masonic “Templar” system, using individual transmission for the qualification of “Knight of the Temple” it has allowed an original authentic affiliation always ensuring the integrity of the message with the fidelity to the Holy Christian religion.

The historic reawakening of the Rite of Strict Observance that took place in France on the 3rd of September, 1995 was an event supported by many ex-Brothers of the Grande Loge Nationale Française (GLNF), fed up with the invasive policies of the United Grand Lodge of England that eventually forced their French minions of the GLNF, in the year 2000, to establish their own Priories of the Rectified Scottish Rite C.B.C.S. after the GLNF, in an unprecedented move that derecognized the home of the Rectified Scottish Rite in France, the Grand Prieuré de Gaules. This is a Masonic body that has been recognized since 1958, and is a not-so-clever move, accomplished to form their own Rectified Scottish Rite controlled by the Brits and the British Royals. The excuse was the birth of the supposedly competing Grand Priory of the Scottish Reformed and Rectified Rite of Occitania, chartered in 1995 by the Grand Prieuré de Gaules (which was, in turn, chartered by the Great Priory of Helvetia in 1935, and is said to be the birthplace of the Priory of Sion). I know it’s all very complicated, even for Masonic experts, but don’t worry, just let me say one thing, Masonic politics are the biggest waste of time in the history of mankind, and often many intelligent individuals leave the Craft, as Masons call it, for this reason. However the main reason to join the Strict Observance for many high level Freemasons and dignitaries in that turbulent time, above all the Masonic conflict and policies, was the real possibility to finally return to the original source of their teachings beyond the “Rectified version,” and being able to work the Templar degree in its true format; not corrupted by mainstream Freemasonry and its “Modern” style non-Christian Masonic elite policies, that are influenced by the darkness and ignorance of this modern age we live in. Since 2013, the Rite of Strict Templar Observance brought back to life by Jean-Marie Auzanneau, whom remains the regent and co-restorer of this Order, is lead by the illustrious Brother Didier Pestel, known in the Order as Eques Professus a Tempora Modernis.

Didier Pestel made an important statement on the 3rd of June 2013, during a ceremony at the Templar Church of Beaussiet in Mazerolles, a commune where Didier Pestel resides, based in southwestern France.

Pestel said to all his dignitaries present from the various provinces for this solemn occasion, that he Didier Pestel, was now the sérénissime Grand Maître général de l'Ordre de Stricte Observance et de toutes ses provinces templières répandues sur la surface de la terre. This means Pestel declared himself to be the General Grand Master of the Strict Observance for all the provinces of the world. Of course such claim might be regarded as pompous by some and will not be recognized by everyone for sure, especially as his unique brand of the Stricte Observance Templière accepts also women, a problem for many "Regular" Freemasons working in male only lodges, who would like to join this unique Masonic tradition. Having said all this, in one way or another, it proves once again that the Strict Observance never really ceased to exist, and their message of fidelity towards the Christian faith is considered today stronger than ever in Masonic circles all over the world. That's why Christian Freemasons are trying to bring back to life in recent years, the most pure and original form of the Rite of Strict Templar Observance. Like I am doing in Italy for example, and even Freemasons of so-called "Regular Freemasonry," are constituting in secret in the last decade their own Strict Observance, disenchanted with the Rectified Scottish Rite. They are doing this with the secret backing of key figures of the Supreme Council of the U.S. Southern Jurisdiction of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite. This is done to oppose the expansion of the Strict Observance in "Irregular" circles, but also to offer an alternative to the expanding Rectified Scottish Rite linked in the USA, and other countries to the York Rite. Back in 1934, with the secret support of the elite of the York Rite in the USA, a charter had been given to the Grand Priory of America C.B.C.S., which was originally granted by the Grand Prieuré Indépendant d'Helvetie (Great Priory of Switzerland) C.B.C.S.

The problem is that the Grand Priory of America, established in Raleigh, North Carolina by Dr. William Moseley Brown and J. Raymond Shute II, is to this day an invitation only group, and its constitution limits the membership to just 81 Freemasons at any one time in the U.S., and since its chartering it seems there have never been any more than 45 or 50 members following this tradition in the U.S. at the same time. Limiting the structure to a very elitist group recruited in the top positions of the U.S.

York Rite, however creating discontent in the long run amongst the brethren left out, that finally decided to change things. So it's no wonder U.S. Freemasons interested in the teachings and traditions of this Christian Masonic Rite went initially abroad to seek initiation in the Rectified Scottish Rite, but by doing so they created an internal schism in the U.S., and chaos within the U.S. Grand Encampment of Knights Templar supporting such a move. The known Masonic author and blogger Christopher Hodapp wrote in 2010 on his popular website Freemasons For Dummies:

In 2009, the Great Priory of America objected officially to a group of American Masons being initiated into the English CBCS by the Great Priory of Anglia (England) as infringing on "their" territory. If they were nothing but a supper club for Masons in need of more fancy dues cards in their wallets, why would they object to the English priory actually conferring degrees on Americans?... After meetings, letters, and not a few heated emails, Grand Master William H. Koon II of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the USA issued the following statement on May 5, 2010: "The Great Priory of America is an unrecognized Templar Order operating within the United States of America, in direct conflict with Section 3 of the Constitution of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States of America. Accordingly, membership in the Great Priory of America is incompatible with membership in the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States of America and any Grand, Subordinate, or Constituent Commandery under its jurisdiction or owing allegiance to the same." Now, all of this would just be so much stuff and nonsense over nothing, except that some of the most respected Masons in the U.S. are members of the CBCS. Brothers Reese Harrison and Thomas W. Jackson serve as officers in the GPA, and both men are highly regarded in the Masonic community.

The truth is that the York Rite wants to stay in control of the U.S. "Christian" Masonic scene, and does not want the Masonic advancement of Brothers initiated abroad if not fully controlled by them, that's because the York Rite only wants a watered down version of the Masonic Christian ideal, but also because the Grand Priory of America C.B.C.S. wished to establish themselves more openly as Knights Templar, becoming a sovereign and independent Templar order in the U.S. That meant the sovereignty of the Grand Encampment of the York Rite was being challenged, and this motivated the actions of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the U.S. York Rite.

So the York Rite went as far as announcing on its website in 2011, that the Grand Priory of the Scottish Reformed and Rectified Rite of Occitania had issued a charter to form a new “Grand Priory of the Scottish Reformed and Rectified Rite of the United States of America,” without taking into account the position of the previous existing Great Priory of America (GPA) established in the 1930’s by the Swiss Priory. Now the problem is that Rectified Rite of Occitania is considered by many longstanding, recognizing Templar organizations in Europe, and the rest of the world to be spurious and irregular, since its foundation in the middle of the 1990s. This means the whole thing is a scam from the start, mostly driven by the Masonic policies and interest of the New World Order, that can now give to the interested Freemasons in the U.S. and abroad, the genuine teaching of Christian Freemasonry if they stay in the firm hands of the York Rite Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States of America, a Masonic Christian body that works now more than ever before, with the secret Blessing of the Catholic Church. In April 2011, they happily announced Grand Encampment Adopts an Ancient Order of Templary. A few months later, Christopher Hodapp, who is a member of the Grand Priory of the Reformed and Rectified Rite of the United States of America wrote:

A tiny group of men who want to see that the only CBCS body in America remains nothing but a supper club for a handful of self-appointed elite Masons, while holding the 230 year degree system of the Rectified Rite hostage in the U.S. The Great Priory of Helvetia (Switzerland) was desirous of having the Rectified Rite practiced, with full conferral of the degrees, in the United States, and they were and remain well aware of the “supper club” dead end of the GPA. The Swiss desire to have their Order’s degrees worked properly as it is all over the world except in the United States. Unfortunately, the GPA changed its mind after the agreement in place since 1932 and became desirous of becoming a sovereign and independent Templar order in the U.S. That meant the sovereignty of the Grand Encampment was being challenged by them. That is what motivated the actions of the Grand Encampment to seek a charter.

The York Rite’s decision to relaunch a new Rectified Scottish Rite, obviously under their control would like to appear legitimate in the eyes of Freemasons worldwide, but the truth is that their actions are only driven by power and interest in territorial control, and the will of international Freemasonry to destroy or closely control its Christian heritage and hide certain secrets. favoring the growing interest of young Freemasons for Thelema and dangerous Illuminati sects with nothing to offer except black magic and lies. Going back to the Rite of Strict Observance, and the various attempts to restore it around the world; other people in the Masonic community linked this time to the U.S. Southern Jurisdiction of the Supreme Council of the Scottish Rite, obviously in competition with the York Rite, appear to be interested in restoring the oldest Chilvaric Christian Masonic tradition. This is happening particularly in South America, in places, like Costa Rica, where Freemasons like Emmanuel Mora Iglesias of the Lodge San Juan de la Perseverancia # 20, practicing the Rectified Scottish Rite under the Gran Logia de Costa Rica (GLCR), have created a parallel Strict Observance Lodge called Amadeus der drei Saulen, recognized by Thanos Christopoulos, and his Grand Lodge, a close friend of our illustrious Brother Arturo de Hoyos, who is doing the same thing in Greece on a slightly larger scale, with the reawakening of what used to be the 9th province of the Order (Greece and Arcipelago). Unfortunately for Brother Arturo that I respect very much, his friend Brother Thanos Christopoulos is a truly controversial figure, and somebody who openly admitted on his Facebook that he is a member of the Ku Klux Klan. Yes my dear readers, Brother Christopoulos who used to be once upon a time a member of the Greek Supreme Council of the A.A.S.R. is a member of the infamous KKK.

On top of all this, Brother Thanos Christopoulos' supposed Masonic lineage for his Rite of Strict Observance is coming from a dubious source in Italy called Gran Loggia d'Italia UMSOI, an acronym that stands for Unione Massonica di Stretta Osservanza Iniziatica (Masonic Union of Strict Initiation Observance), a spurious Masonic body with no legitimacy, headed by the self-styled Grand Master and Sovereign Grand Commander Gianfranco Piloni, a dangerous agent of the New World Order, who was actually kicked out of the original UMSOI in 2011, to establish his own version of this Obedience, trying, with no luck, to get accepted in the inner circle of the late Count Licio Gelli, who never really liked him. There is also another important detail regarding "Grand Master" Gianfranco Piloni, and that is he never even worked the Rite of Strict Templar Observance in his small Obedience, he only practices and knows the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, so what kind of S.O.T. lineage can he have? None of course, but Piloni is also known in the Illuminati world for nominating in his

Supreme Council many VIPs, that later on function as Satan's little helpers, like for example the well-known Turkish ex Anti-Masonic figure, and Islamic leader, called Adnan Oktar, also known as Harun Yahya, someone who has radically changed his tune in regards to Freemasonry since 2010. This was the year Mr. Oktar, a very popular person in Turkey, started a sort of "dialogue project" with various high level figures of the Masonic and Neo-Templar world like Timothy Hogan, the Grand Master of the Neo-Templar order called Ordre Souverain du Temple Initiatique (OSTI), who runs CIRCES (Cercle International de Recherches Culturelles et Spirituelles), the organization built to convey the message of its founder, the late U.S. Illuminati initiate and Knights Templar Grand Master Raymond Bernard (1923 – 2006), who basically created CIRCES International as an outward Templar vehicle to eventually prepare people for initiation into the inner Order of the OSTI, where they are said to have a Johannite belief system in place. CIRCES International also continues to protect and perpetuate L'Ordre Martiniste of Pappus, now headed by Grand Master Emilio Lorenzo. Timothy Hogan, who is a Democrat and a member of the Grand Lodge of A.F. & A.M. of Colorado, is a Past Master of East Denver #160 Masonic Lodge (AF&AM) and an active member of Enlightenment Lodge #198, two lodges he used to actively promote his new Islamic friends from Harun Yahya's organization in the U.S. as he candidly admitted himself with no shame on page 152 of his book, Entering the Chain of Union, published back in 2012. Hogan is also a member of Pythagoras Lodge #1841, in Lebanon, founded in June 2014, and one of the newest Lodges in Lebanon, working under the Grand Lodge of Scotland, where there is to my knowledge, a predominantly Muslim Shia brethren, showing in this way the typical "Templar" manipulation on all sides of Islam indicated earlier by Count Licio Gelli. Hogan who is also listed as a speaker at the Colorado Masonic Speakers Bureau (CMSB) for the Grand Lodge of Colorado AF&AM, and both a Knight Templar in the York Rite, and a 32nd degree Knight Commander of the Court of Honor (KCCH) in the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite (SJ), has also been knighted into the Royal Order of Scotland as a Rosicrucian Knight of Kilwinning, and is an active officer in the Societas Rosicruciana In Civitibus Foederatis, and much more initiatic rubbish from the sectarian world of the Illuminati, even if he is in secret a full-on Muslim believer.

The threat of a pro-Islamist New World Order

Timothy Hogan, who likes to be presented as the worldwide Grand Master of the “original Knights Templar,” met Harun Yahya in 2010, and the two seemingly got on like a “house on fire.” In the following years, Hogan occasionally appeared on Harun Yahya’s TV channel promoting and supporting enthusiastically Harun Yahya’s vision of Islam, and how Freemasonry was deeply connected with the values and traditions of Islam. Really? I don’t think so, or at least not in the overly enthusiastic way portrayed by “Grand Master” Timothy Hogan, who appears to be after close analysis, a closet Muslim more than a Christian Templar, as he should be by tradition. Of course, the topic of Islam and Freemasonry is a very sensitive topic, for both Freemasons and Muslims, because of the Shriners, who are often called the “playground of Freemasonry,” employ Islamic symbolism, philosophy and the entire general theme of Islam for their Shrindom, which was perhaps the first step of the elite of Freemasonry, in promoting a more general acceptance of Islam in the U.S., before today’s full on support in proximity of a possible Muslim take over. This however, did not work out as planned, and the Muslim author and researcher Mustafa EI-Amin, a pioneer in the field of Islam in relation to Freemasonry, who wrote such books as AI-Islam: Christianity and Freemasonry (1985), Freemasonry: Ancient Egypt and the Islamic Destiny (1988), and African-American Freemasons: Why They Should Accept AI-Islam (1990), was most critical of Shrine Masonry. EI-Amin accused Freemasonry of using the religion of Islam in a profane manner. He considered the Shriners to be totally heretical and described how they were eventually banned from Makkah, which in my opinion is fully understandable, as the description of the Shrine rituals and their initiations in detail by EI-Amin in his books, points out on the obvious incompatibility of Shrine Masonry with true Islam. Many passages of their rituals might even be considered blasphemous by Muslims, so why continue to offend them, why not join them instead, like Hogan and his “Templars” seem to have done in recent years.

I know it’s crazy, but Timothy Hogan has done that, and was once again seen with the Islamic leader Adnan Oktar/Harun Yahya, on his satellite TV station A9, as recently as July, 2015. This time Hogan was not the only Freemason on air with Mr Harun Yahya, as he brought two other senior members of the Grand Lodge of A.F. & A.M. of Colorado, Scott Ammerman Chemistry Teacher at West High School (WLA) and Paster Master of Union Lodge #7, who is also the General Secretary of the Knights Templars, OSTI (Ordre Soverain du Temple Initiatique) and of the CIRCES, a member of the Research Lodge of Colorado, and a speaker of the CMSB, plus Brother Paul Dickerson, who is a more mysterious figure, another 32nd degree Freemason from the Scottish Rite, and a Past Master of the East Denver Lodge #160. A Knight Templar in OSTI, Dickerson lectures on symbolism and esotericism for the CMSB, and works with Timothy Hogan for the Denver-based Elite Sterling Security LLC. This company, where both Hogan and Dickerson work, is the only U.S. authorized seller for the Miguel Caballero line of exclusive ready-to-wear bullet resistant clothing solutions for Corporate and Governmental Executive Leadership, as well as military, security, rescue, and law enforcement, obviously with many connections to the United States intelligence, and security community. Their public discussion with Harun Yahya that took place on the 20th of July 2015, touched on some very interesting points, amongst them the arrival of the “Grand Grand Master,” meaning the Messiah that Freemasonry has been waiting for 5,000 years. This is a written extract of the TV show conversation published by Mr. Adnan Oktar’s organization with the relative video on YouTube: ⁴

Bülent Sezgin: Yes, we are continuing with our broadcast. In our studio we have Mr. Timothy Hogan, current Grand Master of the Knights Templar and Freemason and Templar guests from Colorado, America. Welcome.

Adnan Oktar: Someone needs to introduce them by name, though.

Oktar Babuna: Mr. Timothy Hogan has visited us before. He is currently the Great Commander, the Grand Master, of the Knights Templar. He is the current leader of the original Knights Templar who go back to the 12th century under the name of the Sovereign Order of the Initiatory Temple [Ordre Soverain du Temple Initiatique]. He is a senior Mason from the Honorary Board of the Scottish Rite. He is the author of several books on Freemasonry and regularly holds conferences in lodges. He is also affiliated to many Masonic groupings, such as the Rosicrucians.

Welcome, Timothy Hogan. We also have here Freemason and Templar guests from the USA, Colorado. Welcome, Mr. Paul Dickerson and Mr. Scott Ammerman. Adnan Oktar: You do us an honor. We are delighted. It is a great pleasure to have you here among us.

Timothy Hogan: We are very happy to be here.

Adnan Oktar: We are delighted to have our friends here with us. But let us not give such long breaks and let us meet up with shorter intervals.

Timothy Hogan: Yes, it has been too long.

Adnan Oktar: Yes. What have you been doing? Could you give us some information about the activities of our friends?

Timothy Hogan: Well, we have been doing a lot of travelling around the world and actually we have had the opportunity to share our great experiences in Istanbul and with you to a lot of people. We have a whole bunch of people out here in Istanbul right now. They were all here because of the things we've shared about how wonderful it is.

Adnan Oktar: Yes, Istanbul is a city full of mysteries. You have done exactly the right thing. What a great idea!

Timothy Hogan: Yes.

Adnan Oktar: Is there something that you would like to tell us?

Sadun Engin: If you like I can give some information about our other guests here, Mr. Paul Dickerson and Mr. Scott Ammerson.

Adnan Oktar: You go on, I am listening.

Sadun Engin: I would like to introduce Paul Dickerson. He is a 32nd degree Freemason from the Scottish Rite. He is a past Master of the East Denver Lodge. He is a Knight Templar in OSTI (Ordre Soverain du Temple Initiatique) and Masonic Order. He is also a member of the Masonic Rosicrucian Society. Mr. Scott Ammerman is a past Master of the Union Lodge and Research Lodge of Colorado. He is the General Secretary of the Knights Templars, OSTI (Ordre Soverain du Temple Initiatique), General Secretary of the CIRCES (Cercle International de Recherches Culturelles et Spirituelles) and District Lecturer of the Grand Lodge of Colorado.

Adnan Oktar: How nice, how beautiful posts these are. What a nice honor it is to assume them. Insha'Allah, we will make the world a more beautiful place together. We will lead the whole world to peace, brotherhood and love. Wars and bloodshed will end and arms will be eradicated. Only love will remain in the world.

The problem with all this is that Adnan Oktar aka Harun Yahya, who seems a nice guy, was originally a Sunni zealot influenced by the books of the Kurdish Mullah, Said Nursi, the same evil Mullah who influenced Fethullah Gülen, who I wrote about in Volume I. Gülen, who presents himself to the world as a humble, self-denying cleric, in private is an entirely different kind of person, just like Adnan Oktar, vain, megalomaniacal and demanding total obedience from his followers. Gülen's sect is divided into seven levels, with Gülen of course at the top. Adnan Oktar, who is in reality a minor player compared to Gülen, but still a key figure of the New World Order in Turkey, and an active collaborator with the Turkish and U.S. Intelligence, who also has a very large Islamic organization at hand, full of wealthy individuals who totally believe in media censorship. The Adnan Oktar organization holds a lot of influence over what Turks can and can not watch on the internet today, frequently talking about the immorality of the West on his satellite TV channel A9 TV, while at the same time secretly controlling an Islamist sex cult positioned at the inner circle of his mens only Illuminati sect.

Does Brother Timothy Hogan, or his organization know about all this? Does his Order of "Knights Templar" know about all this? Or do they simply blindly support this move to corrupt the soul of true Islam? I hope not, because this is disgraceful to say the least. Just watch Hogan's quasi religious farce during the last public meeting with Harun Yahya in the summer of 2015 (FIG. 9), and check out his dedication towards this typical NWO project in the YouTube video entitled Mr. Adnan Oktar's Live Conversation with Grand Master of Knights Templar.⁵ Of course, the other two guys with Timothy Hogan on this TV debate looked quite frankly like they were two U.S. Intelligence operatives, especially one of them, but of course that's just speculation on my side, so please forgive me if I am wrong.

In his book Entering the Chain of Union, Timothy Hogan talks in detail about his experience with Harun Yahya, from the time they first met, and exposes his esoteric thought, that shows him not only as very close to Islam, but as a full-on closet Muslim: "In the years of 2010 and 2011, I had the good fortune to organize initiates from Templar, Masonic, Martinist, and Rosacrucian backgrounds, to go on a series of historic trips to Istanbul, Turkey, to meet with Islami leaders and initiates, and to help clear up misconceptions about Templarism and Freemasonry, in particular for the Islamic world, while at the same time gain new light on Islam. In attendance were brothers of many different religious faiths from around the world.”⁶

Timothy Hogan talks about his mentor, the French philosopher Raymond Bernard, a Grand Master of the Knights Templar, who after his earlier initiatic encounters in Rome in 1955—where Bernard was initiated in the Sovereign Order of the Initiatory Temple (OSTI)—an experience that inspired his esoteric masterpiece: A Secret Meeting in Rome, originally published in the early 1960s, he then went on to meet certain “High Adepts” in Istanbul back in 1966. These “High Adepts” instructed Bernard specifically on certain secrets, and told him to wait for a “SIGNAL” to happen—and 40 years later in early 2006, just before his passing, Bernard wrote about it: “Important historical connections which would unfold between initiates from around the world and certain initiates within Istanbul, (which is a sacred center in the future as it has been in the past), and as Templars we were responsible for helping to guide these associations which will bring about the start of important connections for the Aquarian Age we are going into.”⁷

Either “Aquarian Age” or the “New Age”—one thing is for sure, the OSTI–CIRCES Freemasons (FIGS. 10, 11, 12, 13) presented themselves as pious Knights Templars to their Muslim counterparts and their TV audience, not knowing the infinite hypocrisy of the person they had in front of them (FIGS. 14 and 15), their new “Brother” Adnan Oktar, known in Turkey as Adnan Hodja (Preacher Adnan), and to his followers as Adnan Agabey (Big Brother Adnan), who is the leader of an Islamist sex cult, whose headquarters are in Oktar's residence. A lavish building built in the image of King Solomon's Temple, fueled with young ladies eager to work for him and appear on his TV stations (FIGS. 16 and 17), and always ready to please the various influential men at the core of his organization with some "extra services," and for this reason he has been involved in many public scandals. Indeed, Adnan is a very smart individual. After being arrested in the 1980s, and to save himself from any future legal issues, since 1986 he has managed to get a report from the state mental hospital in Turkey saying that he has a severe mental disorder..

The False Prophets of "the Noble Sanctuary" and Ataturk

dip Yuksel, a Kurdish American intellectual considered one of the prime figures in the modern Islamic reform and Quranism (Quraniyoon) movements and author of many books on the Qur'an and Islam, was someone who knew Adnan Oktar very well back when he wrote about him in a controversial article entitled Harun Yahya or Adnan Oktar: The Promised Mahdi?:

I met Adnan in the prison clinic. I was taken there by the doctor who happened to recognize me from my books and conferences; he wanted to save me from the crowded ward which was filled with convicted murderers and burglars. Adnan was there for a different reason, a much different one. He was acting like a paranoid schizophrenic in order to get a medical report to dodge the draft. It was ironic, since he was indeed mentally sick; he was a delusional megalomaniac, yet he was cunningly acting for another mental illness. He was successful; he dodged the draft and since then he has been found lacking mental capability to be the subject of criminal law. So, he is getting away with sexual abuses, fraud, libel, blackmailing schemes, and other criminal activities. If Adnan has demonstrated a miracle as a Mahdi, this must be his miracle: he is officially insane and criminally teflon! ... Knowing him before the 1990s, I could not believe that he would be indulging in promiscuous sexual activities, since at that time he was a devout Sunni who was very scrupulous about interacting with women. He would not even shake hands with women. However, according to the media reports and published confessions of his former followers, Adnan has evolved and transformed since. His sexual abuse of girls around him has been the frequent topic of Turkish media and acknowledged by the defectors. He reportedly claims the right to have sexual intercourse with every female member of his cult. He has even invented a name for those females: MOTOR (engine). Reportedly, his male followers are feeling lucky in letting him taste their girl friends first.

Edip Yuksel makes this strong statement in a comment to his own article: “ Adnan Oktar is a cult leader who has enslaved many children of rich and elite. His sexual and mental abuse of his subjects is a well-known fact to Turkish people. His confession in police alone, which is corroborated by his former followers to details, is sufficient to put him behind bars.

But so far, money, connections, blackmail and all the tricks available to his wellconnected and super rich followers have kept him out of trouble.” So for recruiting new members and promoting his brand name, Harun Yahya uses sex, money, popular symbols, and famous people. But the main tool he uses is deception, Yet he thinks he is doing this deception “righteously,” justifying his deceptive ways with the abused Quranic word TAQIYYA, a sort of holy hypocrisy permitted by the belief system of a Shiite sect, but Harun Yahya is supposedly a Sunni. He recruits young and rich boys, possibly good looking, arranges for them beautiful models (whom he calls Motors), and leads them into a sex trap, filming them from a secret camera, or at least this is what he used to do. Harun Yahya has been charged and was even prosecuted for these unlawful practices and other crimes related to his sect, but of course nothing happens these days due to his “insane” status obtained in the 1980s, by his powerful friends in the present Turkish government who will always rescue him from the occasional scandal or crime or impeachment. He is now considered a sort of “untouchable” of the Turkish scene, and has been working on developing a sort of Islamic Scientology in line with the coming “One World Religion” concept promoted by the New World Order, where he presents himself as the Mahdi, the prophesied redeemer of Islam, who is preparing the second coming of Jesus. With his powerful charisma, a pool of unlimited and gullible rich people, a market of more than a billion Muslims, and the support of high level Freemasons and Illuminati, he looks like the ideal Antichrist candidate. In an interview in 2008, Oktar said, “I want to resemble the Prophet Solomon.” He added, “His palace was beautiful; there were beautiful people around him. [The] aim of a Muslim should be beauty.”

FIG. 12 – Timothy Hogan in Jerusalem indicates Warren’s Gate as one of the four western Wall entrance gates to the Temple Mount from the Second Temple period, discovered by Freemason Charles Warren.

“According to their interpretation ‘vaginal’ intercourse was ‘haram’ but ‘anal and oral intercourse’ was ‘halal’ when not married.” For those not familiar with Islamic religious terms, the only rule for everybody in Harun Yahya’s sex sect is simply no vaginal penetration, only oral and anal sex are permitted by the Grand Master Adnan Oktar, who is also said to be an expert in sexual magick (maybe Crowley style?) I guess the 33rd degree Grand Inspector General patent given to Oktar from a small irregular Scottish Rite Masonic body from Italy, assumes in this Illuminati context, a whole new meaning. I am sure Aleister Crowley, who even called his only son Randal Giair Doherty with the nickname Aleister Ataturk, (FIG. 18) and certainly would have loved being on Adnan Oktar's satellite TV A9. Poor Aleister Ataturk however, who later self-styled himself Count Charles Edward D'Arquires (1937-2002), who I was able to meet once personally in London in front of the Atlantis bookshop, a year or so before his death, lived a terrible life, victim of his father's daunting legacy, who died tragically in a car accident in Chalfont St. Peter, UK, on November 20, 2002. Aleister Ataturk spent some of his teen years in California, with O.T.O. members from Agape Lodge. He was deported from the USA for failure to pay a medical debt (his handler Germer refused to pay it, actually). Up to that time Aleister Ataturk had made some effort to attract a following in the O.T.O. as Crowley's successor, but without success. He later attempted to help convince Germer to allow resumption of O.T.O. initiations and temple work, also without success and possibly contributing to Germer's refusal to pay his medical bills. After that, in Paris and London, he occasionally attempted to argue for a role as successor to The Beast, but that petered out in the 1980s, especially after he founded in the middle of the 1970s a "Supreme Council of Great Britain" with himself as the "Adjudicator," wishing to take over the governance of the UK by persuasion. Harold Wilson was Prime Minister at the time.

In 1976, Aleister Ataturk hired a posh limousine, complete with Supreme Council pennants and, with his Private Secretary, Peter Bishop, was chauffeur-driven to London. They arrived in all their finery; Aleister in his dress uniform jacket with gold trimmings, epaulettes and velvet cape. They tried to get into Downing Street for an audience with Wilson, in order to persuade him to join the Supreme Council. The message was delivered to Wilson who, unsupportingly, declined the offer. I wonder who gave them the money to do all this? Perhaps the Illuminati? The O.T.O.? The C.I.A.? We will never know but it makes an interesting story, nevertheless. Harun Yahya admired Aleister Crowley and Freemason Mustafa Kemal Atatürk, the founder of modern Turkey; who had connections with the British intelligence services whom Crowley served for a time. Well, as you can see, we always find a few skeletons in the closet of these elitists and their fake interfaith dialogue, that's why I have long held that ecumenism and dialogue are just tools of the New World Order. People like Harun Yahya should preach Aleister Crowley's Thelema, not Islam, as their version of Islam is to expert eyes, a total joke and mockery of this faith, as well as his claims of being the Mahdi, and his lies about being recognized as "his spiritual son" by the late Sultan al-Awliya Maulana Sheikh Nazim (1922 – 2014), commonly known as Shaykh Nazim, who was the spiritual leader of one of the most respected Sufi Orders: the Naqshbandi tariqa. This incorrect information was reported by Timothy Hogan in his book (Op.cit., p.137), but is not supported by the Naqshbandi Order, who made a clear statement coming from an authorized Naqshbandi source on the matter called Shaykh Abdul Kerim Kibrisi, known as the Lion of Haqq, Ottoman

Khaliphah and the U.S. representative of Sheikh Nazim, spoke clearly about this impostor named Adnan Oktar, saying in a YouTube video that Harun Yahya’s Shaykh is Shaitan. Check out for yourself the video present on YouTube, as it is in the English language.⁸

This means Mr. Oktar, as Edip Yuksel likes to call him, could truly be the Antichrist, and Timothy Hogan has either been fooled by Adnan, or is a willing accomplice to all this, as a Neotemplar-Masonic tool of the pro Islamist New World Order used to destroy Christianity. If this is the case, we should all start getting worried, especially because, in a revealing TV show broadcasted on A9TV, Hogan’s Turkish guru made some unprecedented statements about his meeting with “Knights Templar” and “Masonic Grand Masters” on a video you can still find on YouTube entitled Freemasonry and the Knights Templar will support Hazrat Mahdi! (Adnan Oktar)

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=GaAuI6oUrow>

We find Adnan in front of his trashy Turkish bombshells wearing things like false rainbow eyelashes, wigs, and diamond-studded Versace bondage gear, often referred to as “the girls,” or “angels” or “kittens of Adnan Oktar” by the Turkish media. He explains to his viewers and followers, that Freemasonry has only been created to support the Mahdi in the end times. This means that the Freemasons or the Knights Templar exist since time immemorable only to support him, the Turkish sex guru.

Are you insane dear Brother Timothy Hogan and friends from the GL of Colorado? How can you believe in such a charlatan? Ok, I am ready to stand in front of your Grand Lodge and prove every point I am writing in this book. Dear Freemasons of Colorado, you are serving another “false prophet” remember what Jesus said, “Beware of false prophets, who come to you in sheep’s clothing, but inwardly they are ravenous wolves. You will know them by their fruits” (Matt. 7:15-16b). “Beware” means to be on alert—to discern what is being said, and Adnan Oktar replies in the above mentioned TV show to a viewer’s letter, who asks him: “Dear Adnan Oktar, you said the Mahdi will be a Freemason?” He replied: “Freemasonry will support the Mahdi. They say that is why they are here. The Knights Templar say that is why they are here.” Masonic grandmasters came and said, “We exist so the Mahdi can rule the Islamic world.” They explicitly said that Freemasonry had been established for that end. They said they exist to give the sacred relics to the Mahdi. They said many of the sacred relics were with them. The Knights Templar have been around since the time of the Prophet Solomon. They say that many sacred relics are preserved in special places where they concealed them. They say they have concealed them for thousands of years for the Mahdi, and that they will give them to him when he appears. They have some original copies of the Torah. I asked whom they will give them to in our time. They said they will only give them to the Mahdi. Adnan Oktar clarifies his view with the following passage:

And they said there is something special in Istanbul. They said that is why they founded the first Knights Templar in Istanbul hundreds of years ago. They said the Knights Templar were first founded here, in Istanbul. They said that Istanbul is a very important city, and that the one who will save the world will appear from here. They said that this information was in their books dating back a thousand years. It is really there. They say they have relics from people you can never imagine. They say they have original and special information dating back to past civilizations and that they will give this to the Mahdi. This is part of what I am free to say. They say that the first purpose of the foundation of Freemasonry was the system of the Mahdi. They also say they exist for the global reign of Islam. And the time has come. They say the Masonic calendar has expired. They say they have come to the end of their calendar. They say they will serve the Mahdi. As clearly as that. I never said the Mahdi is a Mason. The Mahdi is a power over and above Freemasonry. Freemasonry will serve the Mahdi. The Mahdi will not serve Freemasonry. Our brothers fail to grasp that. There are other details I shall give when the time is right.

What should we do now to fight all this decadence in the Western initiatic system? The answer is simple, let's bring back to life the original Rite of Strict Observance, with its true Templar degrees, and let's get the real Knights Templar's Revenge going, the one that will eliminate once and for all the hypocrites of their faith like Harun Yahya, and his false Islamic ideals, promoted and supported by the New World Order. Back in 2014 I tried to get in contact with Brother Timothy Hogan, both through a common friend and member in both hour organizations (CIRCES and OIU), and through Brother Sean Stone (son of film director Oliver Stone), so I could warn Hogan of the dangerous mistakes he was making with this high level Turkish crook and irregular Freemason, (FIG. 19) but he never replied. Maybe he was too busy with Mr. Adnan Oktar? Or he thought I was not respectable enough to talk to as Grand Master like him, serving the Great Work of the New World Order.

I can only say the truth is now here in this book for you and everyone else to read, prove me wrong if you can dear Brother, if not accept the fact that my Order, the Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis, is now here in the USA to bring truth and clarity upon the initiatic world, as we are not only real Illuminati, but we are also true hereditary Knights Templar of the Rite of Strict Observance (FIGS. 20 and 21) and we are Christian, not Muslim. Get it? Believe me, I know what true Islam is made of Brother, and I think that as Templars, even if we have a superior understanding of things, and can, and should, dialogue with them, we have to ultimately protect Christianity now more than ever, from complete extinction, because “dialogue” does not mean “submission.” In the meantime, interest for the Rite of Strict Observance is growing everywhere, (FIG. 22) even in the atheist and more liberal version of Masonry represented by the Grand Orient de France (with the acronym GODF). Between the 12th of April and the 23rd of October 2016, at their prestigious Museum of Freemasonry in Paris, at number 16 of Rue Cadet, the GODF offered a glimpse into the unseen world of the Rite of Strict Templar Observance of Baron von Hund, with a unique exhibition called Templiers & Francs-maçons, De la légende à l'histoire “Templars and Freemasons, from legend to history,” (FIG. 23) in which they show not only the Masonic regalia or jewelry of the Order, and other esoteric writings, but also a rare illuminated manuscript on the Strict Observance from 1775, (FIG. 24) recently purchased by the GODF for a huge amount of money (some say 60 thousand euros). Let's hope all this will eventually bring something positive, that will help save what's left of the Christian civilization, because without Christianity the West is doomed to end in disgrace, conquered by false Islamists and Communist mercenaries of the NWO, that are in reality just agents of the Antichrist with no real God, but money and control in their heart.

The Goddess

he birth of the so-called “Egyptian Rites of Freemasonry” within NeoTemplar Freemasonry was based on the myth of an underground and secret transmission of true ancient wisdom, through channels that date back to Roman times, passed on to the Middle Ages and through the Renaissance, in an unbroken chain of Illuminati sects and mystery schools to this very day. Adherents are held to the strictest secrecy, which only occasionally would manifest outwardly, and these secret traditions were always practiced in very small groups, except in the case of the legendary Knights Templar. As the Association for Studies and Research on Traditions writes about the word myth, in the initiatic context we use the word “myth” in its true meaning, according to the definition of Attilio Mordini: “The term mythos (ie myth) means, at least in the original sense, ‘word,’ a word that is manifested from the silence in the secret act of initiation into the Mysteries; and hides, but at the same time holds out discreetly and reveals the truth that the great primordial silence is enclosed.”⁹ We lift the veil to try to understand the true meaning of what the myth really means, and initiation into the Illuminati, especially the ones devoted to the mysteries of the Goddess Isis. For this reason, I want to begin this third and final chapter of my Confessions trilogy, uncovering more sides of this invisible prison that surrounds us, this more or less divine “Matrix” that oppresses us.

I would like to speak first about the Shrine of Loreto in Italy, and a story that involves once again our old Japanese friend Princess Kaoru Nakamaru, who I have mentioned in the first two books. Loreto is a city located in central Italy on the Adriatic Sea, and one building called Santuario della Santa Casa is a local sanctuary, supposedly the original home of the Virgin Mary. Her house is said to have been miraculously transported there by a group of angels, at least this is the official version given by the Church of Rome, but there is also a very different and more credible story behind these “angels,” involving the mysterious Knights Templar, which have been at times gatekeepers to much older belief systems. In the meantime, the supposed modern heirs of the original Templars, these days divided as you may know into various warring factions, invited my friend Kaoru Nakamaru to visit the sanctuary in question. The Neo-Templar faction that invited her is probably the only one operating officially inside the Vatican, as the basilica and the alleged “Holy House” of Mary is also within Vatican territory.

This house was the place where Catholics say the Virgin Mary heard the words of the Annunciation, and where she uttered the fiat, and they say the Word became flesh, where the purity and virginity were fused with motherhood for the Christian tradition. However Mary, the Mother of Jesus for the Illuminati, received the “divine seed” for the creation of the Messiah from a High Priest of the Illuminati, a sort of divine inseminator. This happened during a specific ritual, used to capture the divine Spirit, containing what Christians call the Holy Spirit. The “Holy House,” is where this sexual magical ritual took place, which then produced Jesus, the greatest initiate of all time. According to an archaeological study conducted by the architect Nanni Monelli, and Father Giuseppe Santarelli, director of the “Universal Congregation of the Holy House” of Loreto, the stones that are in the grotto of the Annunciation in Nazareth, have surely the same origin of the stones on the altar of the Holy Apostles of the Holy House of Loreto. This discovery confirms the genuinity of the Holy House of the Virgin Mary and has reopened the discussion on the historical validity of the transfer of the Holy House of Nazareth to Loreto in Italy, and the mystery of how this relocation had taken place. ¹⁰

¹⁰ The Holy House of Loreto: Mary’s “real House of Nazareth” article published by www.zenit.org on March 28th, 2006.

FIG. 19 – 33rd degree patent of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Turkish Anti-Masonic figure and Islamic sex cult leader Adnan Oktar, also known as Harun Yahya.

This location is definitely a destination for pilgrimages, but what is behind this from an esoteric point of view? Through an enlightened perspective, we lift the veil of mystery and secrecy where the mystery of the Holy House and the Order of the Templars is hidden. The miraculous angelic-thesis of the translation of the Holy House has taken shape in the folkloric tradition only after 1625, more than three centuries after the mythical deposition of the stones in the Piceno area in Italy, and especially after the publication of the book by Father Andrea Gelsomini, The Celestial Treasure of the Virgin Mary's devotion. The legend of the intervention of the angels has also tapped into the existing narrative of the local town of Recanati's mysterious Antici Brothers, as well as the fact that the Templars in Recanati were called angels because they are allocated in the city's district of St. Archangel. So in light of these findings, the structure

be simply a symbolic account of an event that happened in real life, where the Knights Templar transported from the Holy Land, the home of their beloved Virgin Mary, who the Templars are particularly devoted. If we search for a magical connection with the supposed angels in the legend of the mysterious knights, we find that the Templar leaders would evoke angels. Some of their modern heirs still evoke them today within certain Neo-Templar branches, with an esoteric inclination, which increasingly often degenerates in the use of black magic and demonic figures, instead of angels.

There are now rare cases where modern Templars have had a real angelic connection through the Holy Spirit, and through the spiritual purity of its members. In the late-medieval grimoires you can trace clear kabbalistic influences and Muslim mysticism, which obviously reached our culture thanks to the Templars, who long lived in the Middle East in direct contact with Jews and Muslims. To make concrete contact with these mysterious entities, evocation must be made respecting the parameters of sacred geometry, in sacred places related to such entities, such as Loreto has been since ancient times.

An Illuminati prayer reported by the key figure in occultism Eliphas Levi, pseudonym of Alphonse Louis Constant (1810 –1875), in his small booklet Sactum Regnum, opens with the following words:

O caput mortuum empire tibi for vivum Serpentem Kerub empire tibi for Adam Aquila tibi empire alas Tauri. Serpens empire tibi for Angelum et Leonem.

These opening words in Latin are followed by the invocation of certain angels and kabbalistic spirits that are made in relation to various demons. This passage gives us a clear idea of how the occultists of the Illuminati networks dominate, or at least try to dominate, the forces of evil using their angelic allies:

In the name of Michael, whom Jehovah decrees to command Satan!

In the name of Gabriel, whom Adonai decrees to command Beelzebub!

In the name of Raphael obey Elohim, thou Sachabiel.

By Samael Tzabaoth, and by the name of Elohim Gibur, lay down thy weapons, thou Adramelek.

By Zachariel and Sachiël Melek, submit to the power of Eloah, thou Samgabel.

In the divine and human name of Shadai, and by the power of Anael, of Adam and of Chavah, thou Lilith retire, leave us in peace, thou Nahemah. By the holy Elohim, and by the power of Orifiel, in the names of the spirits Cassiel, Schaltiel, Aphiel, and Zarahiel, turn back, thou Moloch, there are no children here for thee to devour.

These practices are unknown to most, but not to the Templars, or their modern imitators. They were passed down after the dismantling of the Templars, and especially within the teachings of Occult Masonry, a term coined by the same Eliphas Levi. Unfortunately, such rituals in the wrong hands end up becoming obscure and perverse practices, linked, as revealed in the first volume of my Confessions, to the dark side of the force, and the evil of black magic. In one way or another, the origin of these seemingly Christian practices, are polytheistic in their essence, because the secrets are, and remain always, for the privileged few who may pose as devout Christians. Many of those who recite these dark conjurations, are often sitting at the heart of the Vatican hierarchy. Even the roots of the “Santa Casa,” the supposed “Holy House” of Mary, are nothing more than pagan, not monotheistic or “Christian.” The historian Hans Vogel, a writer from the eighteenth century, faithful to the miraculous theory of the translation of the place by the “angels,” originating from a deeprooted popular tradition, that the angels laid the “Holy House” right above the ruins of the temple of the Goddess Cupra. (FIG. 25) She was a local goddess with impressive vestiges at the time of the so-called translation, actually operated by the Templars. The epithet “Cupra” dates back to antiquity, in the paleo-Umbrian context, and serves to designate royal divinity.

The reports show us that the local population of the Piceni, were people of the sea, and the etymology of the name derives from the greek Kupria or Cypria used to describe the goddess Aphrodite, who to the Egyptians was Isis, and to the Phoenicians Astarte, a deity linked to, and associated with, the planet Venus and copper, a metal that is abundant in Cyprus, the native island of Aphrodite. The Goddess Cupra is shown with a copper-colored leather, like the Madonna of Loreto, and often with a baby in her arms, true to the Hellenistic style of Isis. This is an ante litteram depiction of the Mary, linked to the cult of the Mother Goddess, that the Templars revered as the principle of wisdom, the female Sophia, Shekinah, but not necessarily to the worship of a true woman, but rather an idealized Goddess, as European society has always been patriarchal in nature. However, the allegory of the Mother Goddess, so important for the Templars, was later represented in the sublime esotericism depicted in the writings of Dante Alighieri. This vision has been gradually distorted by the Society of Jesus, that wants to establish in today's world, a twisted matriarchal vision in line with the precepts of counterinitiation promoted by the New Age, that wishes to castrate masculinity and destroy traditional family values and identity.

This distorted concept reminds me of a certain Lady Caithness, referred to as “the Duchess” by her many followers. She was a woman that was believed to be the reincarnation of Mary Stuart, and later presented herself as a sort of “inspired” guide in the very early days of the Theosophical Society. She promoted the advent of the era of the “divine feminine” with the leaders of this important new Illuminati group, which I have written about in Volume II. Rene Guenon, one of the highest authorities in the field of esotericism of the past century, also revered by Catholic scholars, wrote about Lady Caithness and this supposed “divine revelation” in his Theosophy: History of a Pseudo-Religion:

Charged to announce and prepare the coming; It was a new revelation, an era that was meant to succeed Christianity that succeeded the old law; she was in a word the “coming of the Holy Spirit” agnostically known as the “divine feminine.” It was still, “the manifestation of the sons and daughters of God,” not so much as a unique being but as a plural one: this most perfect race will humanize the earth, of which we know had already passed through the periods of mineral, plant and animal development ... the Duchess adds this point: “We can probably say that the old world is finished in 1881, and that the Lord has created a new heaven and a new earth, and that we are entering the year of our Lady, 1882.”¹¹

FIG. 22 – Jean-Marie Auzanneau, regent and co-restorer of the Rite of Strict Observance reawakened in France in 1995.

Guenon seems to be focused on the problems concerning the growing distortion of the “sacred feminine” concept in the modern world. Italian Freemason, author, and wellrespected member of the scientific community Professor Mariano Bizzarri, in his book on the mysteries of Rennes le Chateau, explores this subject, commenting on the passage above by Guenon stating that: “Undoubtedly, one can not be but struck by the extraordinary coincidence that this ‘message’ shows with the one that was trumpeted by Lincoln, Baigent and, especially in fictional form by Dan Brown. It is clear that you are talking about the advent of an era characterized by a goddess figure, giver of wisdom and nurse to that mysterious ‘perfect race’ of which Nerval or Bulwer-Litton spoke of, intending to supplant the human race (concepts later taken up again by National Socialism, author's note).”¹²

Guenon illuminates us further, when he notes the “singularity” inherent in the idea of a “collective messiah,” by stating: “whose conception, however, is not completely new ... it is precisely the messianism that, under one or the other form, seems to offer the key to this ‘identity purposes’ mentioned by the Duchess of Pomar towards the ‘Theosophical Society’ which has long prepared for the appearance of a ‘the future messiah’ and indeed works to form ‘a body,’ comprising a large number of members joined together and ready to welcome the new bearer of the Torch of Truth. ... Here, however, the ‘common goal of the Duchess of Pomar and Madame Blavatsky that ... had assigned to their society a secret mission, not only to prepare the way to the One who is to come’ but also to provide for his appearance in the same time it would be considered more favorable.”¹³ Professor Bizzari adds this conclusion: “this allusion to ‘the One who is to come’ could not be more disturbing, especially if one remembers that the ‘Torch Bearer’ or ‘Bringer of Light’ is a euphemism that stands for Lucifer.”¹⁴ Meaning the Messiah of the Illuminati is Lucifer.

We are living in the kingdom of evil and “Counter-initiation,” but let me explain to you briefly what “Counter-initiation” is. “Counter-initiation” is a term invented by the aforementioned Rene Guenon. He spent a long time in the occult underworld of France between the two world wars, and came out understanding that a lot of dark stuff was going on in the Illuminati network. Basically our civilization is distorting the mother goddess con cept, to use it in the New World Order project, and this happens because of certain liberal forms of Freemasonry, the same ones that gradually, in the last hundred years, led to the atrocities of contemporary feminism. This modern abomination, that on February 21, 2012, pushed five members of the musical group Pussy Riot to stage a highly indecent performance in Moscow’s Orthodox Cathedral of Christ the Savior. It is no coincidence that the first international congress on women’s rights was organized by Maria Deraismes, who later became one of the founders of co-Masonry, in Paris in 1878. This event apparently took place in the hall of the Grand Orient of France, and for sure the Masonic-esoteric theories, propagated by the leadership of the Theosophical Society of Helena Petrovna Blavatsky, that I wrote about in Volume II, were already present. Both Madame Blavatsky, who founded the Theosophical Society on November 17, 1875, and Alice Bailey, her heir, were both key figures in the development of the future of feminism, a movement that in the long run proved nefarious and unnatural, especially after it progressed well beyond the simple discourse of equal rights between men and women. I know my words will not be well-received by the usual leftist-thinking idiots who appreciate and love feminism, but know for a fact my dear feminists, that Condoleezza Rice and Hillary Clinton, are actually two of the worst expressions of what feminism and being a woman is, and they are the result of this evil work crafted for over a century by the Illuminati and liberal Freemasonry, to bring the human race to its self-destruction.

And what about the appointment in August, 2012 of the first U.S. General to be openly gay, the lesbian Tammy S. Smith.

Rene Guenon wrote prophetically about deviation and subversion in his The Reign of Quantity and the Signs of the Times:
We treated anti-traditional action, THE ANTI-TRADITIONAL ACTION by which the modern world has in a sense been “manufactured” and hitherto been considered as an operation designed primarily to bring about a deviation from the normal state, that is, from the state normal to all traditional civilizations whatever may be their particular forms, something easy to understand and requiring no further comment.
On the other hand, there is a distinction to be made between deviation and subversion: deviation can be regarded as comprising an indefinite multiplicity of degrees, so that it can go to work gradually and imperceptibly; this is exemplified by the gradual passage of the modern mentality from “humanism” and rationalism to mechanism, and thence to materialism, and again in the process whereby profane science has elaborated successive theories, each more purely quantitative in character than the last. This makes it possible to say that all such deviation, from its earliest beginnings, has steadily and progressively tended toward the establishment of the “reign of quantity” But when deviation reaches its limit, it ends by being a real “contradiction,” that is to say a state diametrically opposed to the normal order, and only then can “subversion” in the etymological sense of the word properly be spoken of;

needless to say, “subversion” in this sense must in no way be confused with the “reversal” referred to in connection with the final instant of the cycle, it being indeed the exact opposite since the “reversal” actually happens after the “subversion” and at the moment when subversion seems complete, and is really a rectification whereby the normal order is re-established, and whereby the “primordial state,” representing perfection in the human domain, is restored.

As against this, it could be said that subversion, thus understood, is but the last stage of deviation and is its goal, or, in other words, that deviation as a whole has no tendency other than to bring about subversion, and that is true enough; in the present state of affairs, though it cannot yet be said that subversion is complete, the signs of it are very evident in everything in which the special characteristic of “counterfeit” or “parody” is conspicuous. This characteristic has already been mentioned more than once, and is to be dealt with more fully later. For the moment no more need be said than that this particular characteristic affords by itself a very significant indication of the origin of anything that shows it, and consequently of the origin of the modern deviation itself, the “satanic” nature of which is thus brought out very clearly. The word “satanic” can indeed be properly applied to all negation and reversal of order, such as is so incontestably in evidence in everything we now see around us: is the modern world really anything whatever but a direct denial of all traditional truth? At the same time, and more or less of necessity, the spirit of negation is the spirit of lying; it wears every disguise, often the most unexpected, in order to avoid being recognized for what it is, and even in order to pass itself off as the very opposite of what it is; this is where counterfeit comes in; and this is the moment to recall that it is said that “Satan is the ape of God,” and also that he “transfigures himself into an angel of light.” In the end, this amounts to saying that he imitates in his own way, by altering and falsifying it so as always to make it serve his own ends, the very thing he sets out to oppose: thus, he will so manage matters that disorder takes on the appearance of a false order, he will hide the negation of all principle under the affirmation of false principles, and so on. ¹⁵

When Guenon wrote these words in the mid-forties, of course the “subversion” of our society and its civilization was not yet complete. We can now say with certainty, and in light of recent events, the “reversal” mode of the system is accelerating, as we are in the grip of a hellish society. In this context of increasing disintegration and loathing encouraged by the so-called New Age, in 2011, Princess Kaoru Nakamaru, which as some of you may know I co-wrote books with, published in Japan, officially paid a visit to the Holy House of Mary. It was the early days of September, and the gesture took on a very important meaning, beyond the mere diplomatic gesture given by the fact that Loreto, the place where the sanctuary of the House of Mary is located, is on Papal territory. Karou was officially invited by the Pontifical Delegation of what is considered the home of the mother of God by Christians. Mary means “loved by God” and Loreto is actually in a very important Sacred Alignment linked to the Marian cult in Europe, inspired originally by the Mother Goddess, especially in the context of the famous Black Madonnas. Many of these Madonnas are famous, such as the one in Loreto (near Ancona), the one in Tindari, a fraction of Patti near Messina, the one in Czestochowa, Poland, the Spanish one at Montserrat in Catalonia, and the Virgin of Candelaria in Tenerife, the patron saint of the Canary Islands. Many sanctuaries of Black Madonnas, however, are replicas of the most famous ancient cults. In particular, there is a clear reference that Isis is the Black Madonna, as she is not only Mary the mother of Jesus, but Isis (or rather, to be exact her embodiment, Hathor), is represented with the solar child in her arms.

The expanding Marian cult has been steadily growing in the Far East for sometime now, and has considerable importance in the distant land of the rising sun, even though the Catholic Church, as we shall see later, is widely disliked in this country. That is because Japan has been an important asset of Jesuitry for centuries, and has always embraced the fundamental role of a women’s Divinity, as does the New Age. In Shintoism in particular, we find the goddess Izanami, that in Japanese means “She who invites,” as well as another important deity in the mythology of Japan, the creator goddess Amaterasu-ō-mikami, that means literally “Great Goddess shining in the heavens,” whose name is usually shortened to Amaterasu, the Sun goddess, a deity from which all the things descend in the Shinto religion. Amaterasu is therefore considered to be the direct ancestor of the legendary Japanese imperial family, from which the alleged granddaughter of the Emperor Meiji, (FIG. 26) who Kaoru Nakamaru derives from. She has even declared herself to be the reincarnation of Amaterasu, as well as the legendary Cleopatra.

I know sometimes the eccentricities of some characters makes them less credible, but this kind of externalization is typical of the elite immersed in the most delusional New Age philosophy, of which the princess is part of, although she loves to say otherwise. And even if the statements of Kaoru Nakamaru must be rightly taken with skepticism, the strange experience of Nakamaru and the Vatican may be of some interest to my readers. The Vatican “templars” headed by Dr. Antonio Leonardo Montuoro, and the former Prefect Enrico Marinelli, former head of security for Saint John Paul II, together with Bishop Domenico Sigalini Palestrina, even named Kaoru as an ambassador for the Work of the Holy Spirit Divine Power of Love. An unusual gesture for the Church, that could have risked ridicule because of Kaoru Nakamaru’s unusual statements as the mother goddess, and her apocalyptic vision on December 2012, where of course nothing happened, despite the Princess announcing three days and three nights of darkness, but as you know in the New Age landscape the demonic forces often interfere with even the best people.

However, despite the initial acceptance by Princess Kaoru of her new role as “Ambassador of the Holy Spirit” she quickly resigned shocking almost everyone, for what proved to be not only a personal choice due to the growing scandals of the Vatican, but as an act performed under the growing pressure of the Japanese security apparatus, who acted to discourage her initiative with direct suggestion by the CIA in late February of 2012, convincing her to give up her new role as “Ambassador of the Holy Spirit” for the Vatican. All this happened in an interesting sequence of events that related mainly to her connections to North Korea, and her links to the mysterious Knights Templar residing in the Vatican, who claim to be in possession of the Holy Grail and the ashes of Jacob de Molay.

The Templars, the Holy House, and the Japanese Princess

Behind the Neo-Templar mysteries that revolve within the Vatican, we find the ashes of the last Templar, Grand Master Jacques de Molay, and a lot more, including a possible new truth about the Holy Grail, and a broad discussion by the so-called Gnostic churches created by the Brotherhood of the Illuminati, the supposed spiritual side of the Illuminati. A journey that will lead us in the following pages, to discover the most intimate secrets and untold stories of my adventure with the Holy See, and as usual, the involvement of the Jesuits, the secret agents of the Vatican, obsessed in controlling every Neo-Templar revival in and out of Freemasonry. Who is promoting Neo-Templarism? According to Rene Guenon, the suppression of the Order of the Temple was implemented by Pope Clement V in 1313, with the killing of the last Grand Master, Jacques de Molay on 19 March, 1314, by order of King Philip the Fair of France. Europe broke their last initiatic chain, that for the Illuminati goes back to Atlantis, and with it the possibility of a real transmission of true esoteric knowledge, which encouraged the spread of black magic and Satanism. After that date, according to Guenon, in Europe you can no longer speak properly of initiation, but only of pseudo-initiation, or worse, counter-initiation, as Guenon calls it. For this reason, those who appear today as “the real Templars,” even if there are of course genuine formations, there is no real transmission of the mysteries, just a fragmented version. In a comment made in relation to the initiatic reality of our day, Guenon, who later in his life became involved with Sufi Islam wrote: “In Islamic esotericism ... it is said that he who shows up at a certain door, without being received through a normal and legitimate preparation, sees this door close in front of him and is forced to go back, however, no longer as a simple layman, which is now impossible, but as a saher (sorcerer or magician); we would not know to express more clearly what it is.”¹⁶

I would say it is certainly true that nowadays there are many magicians and sorcerers who received the worst type of initiation, and are used as agents of destruction by the New World Order.

As Luca Gallesi wrote recently in the Italian newspaper “Il Giornale” in 2016, to clarify who Guenon was to the uninitiated, and those who do not know who he is: “Think of a French intellectual converted to Islam and immediately these days you imagine that it may be a potential terrorist, as well as knowing that the same character is also a high rank Master Mason immediately evokes his participation in dark conspiracies or casual banking speculations. Curiously enough Rene Guenon, despite having embraced the Muslim faith, climbed the summits of Masonic esotericism, and did not become neither a terrorist nor a banker, but was instead a sleek and appreciated thinker, leader of the so-called traditional thinking, which counts among its ranks Julius Evola, Schuon, Titus Burckhardt, SH Nasr and other masters of the 1900s.”¹⁷

For some traditionalists this description of Guenon is a bit too simplistic, especially for people like me, who have studied him in depth, and who appreciate his traditional thought and his almost prophetic criticism towards modernity that was made decades ago, when the West was still in good shape, but it is however a good synthesis concerning this controversial figure, who I invite you to study further. Gallesi also notes:

The thought of Guenon is the most anti-modern imaginable: for him, as for other “traditional” thinkers, the decline began about ten thousand years ago, and this entire historical period is but the last phase of something much bigger. The fall, or expulsion from the metaphysical world, has become even faster since the Renaissance, and the Enlightenment, and the twentieth century has only further accelerated the decay.¹⁸

Who were the Templars, and how are they tied to this place called Loreto? Pope Clement V, with a minor bull dated July 18, 1310, indirectly confirmed the authenticity of the Holy House, and the popes in the centuries that followed confirmed again and again their devotion to the Virgin of Loreto. This is especially since the dramatic circumstances we are experiencing now for humanity, in proximity to the real turbulence of 2020-2025, which is the turning point according to many, for the fate of humanity, as I have exposed in part in the previous volumes of my Confessions. We are going through many years of “Tribulations”—even according to the loyalists of the Loreto Shrine, which are also very attached to the messages given during the famous alleged apparitions in Medjugorje, an important place for the Marian cult, which I will dwell on later in the course of this chapter. For hundreds of years, worshippers journeyed to the grand sanctuary of Loreto, which contains according to tradition, the Holy House, becoming what Pope John Paul II defined as: “The Marian heart of Christendom.” Just think, since the beginning of the fourteenth century, this was an important place of pilgrimage, even for those taking the coastal road, who were actually heading toward the Holy Land, and, even in the aftermath of the crusades in the XV and XVI centuries, Pope Leo X, equated the Sanctuary of Loreto, to that of Jerusalem, because it was much safer and had virtually replaced the great penitential pilgrimages, that saw until then Rome, Santiago de Compostela, and Jerusalem, as the only crucial places for Christianity.

The so-called striking prodigy of the supposed translation of the Holy House, hides one of the most heroic gestures of the mysterious Knights Templar, and caught the attention and relative pilgrimage of kings and queens, princes, cardinals and popes, who left lavish gifts for the spiritual favors they received from the Virgin Mary of Loreto. In later times, they have been joined by political leaders, poets, writers, inventors, founders of religious orders, philosophers, artists, and saints. In this V.I.P. context, you can understand the importance the symbolic gesture represented with the official visit of the alleged Japanese Princess Kaoru Nakamaru. An absolute novelty definitely out of the norm for the rigid Vatican tradition, as Kaoru speaks openly of UFOs, and apocalyptic events, the New World Order, and other topics. At the time of her visit in 2011, the producer of a well-known Italian television show that aired on Berlusconi’s TV Channel Italia Uno, was quite shocked by the fact that “the Japanese Princess” would actually be received officially by the Vatican in Loreto. She was genuinely surprised by the unusual gesture by the Holy See, and wanted to send a television crew, but unfortunately, budget and resources increasingly scarce for Italian television, prevented it. The producer would be even more shocked and surprised if she had known the truth about the connection between the invitation to the Princess, the Neo-Templars and the Holy House, followed by a sudden wave of strange events that lead the Japanese Princess to ultimately reject her appointment as ambassador for the Vatican, commissioned by Dr. Montuoro and Bishop Sigalini. A story was revealed, that at first glance might seem downright fantasy-politics, but I have all the evidence and related documents to prove otherwise. (FIG. 27 A & B)

It was the summer of 2011, as reported by Vatican expert Gianluigi Nuzzi, Archbishop Alberto Bottari de Castello, Apostolic Nuncio in Tokyo, wrote to his superiors a note entitled “Reflections on my mission in Japan” dated 15 August, 2011. It is a confidential document to the Vatican, which reflected deeply on the relationship of the Japanese with Christianity and the Catholic Church, that stated: “Japan has a high culture, and a glorious history, a strong national identity tied to certain symbols (the Emperor) and religious expressions (Shintoism, Buddhism). Japan has become one of the most powerful countries in the world with their might, with the values they received through the centuries. They are proud of their identity, and do not feel the need for teachings coming from outside.”

FIG. 27 (A) – The official Vatican document attesting to the appointment of New Age guru and staunch alien believer Kaoru Nakamaru as Ambassador of the Holy Spirit Divine Power of Love on the 25 day of December 2011, with an official approval by the bishopric of Palestrina and the signature and stamp of his Bishop Monsignor Domenico Sigalini.

But there is one point in particular that I consider interesting in the words written in the reflections of Archbishop Alberto Bottari reported by Nuzzi: “Certain images and ways of the Western world, constantly disseminated by the media: violence, materialism, corruption, are perceived as part of the Christian world, and are so very difficult to accept.”¹⁹

It seems obvious that the Japanese want to preserve their way of life, and they can't be bought by the Holy Father and his futile theater. The note criticizes with some irony, the Catholic tools to find new believers, judged incompatible with the Japanese population and their values. However in the summer of 2011, Bishop Domenico Sigalini at the time the General Chaplain of the influential Catholic organization Azione Cattolica (“Catholic Action”), and Dr. Montuoro, Grand Officialis of the Knights Templar in the Vatican, decided to invite Kaoru Nakamaru to Italy, to possibly shake things up, in hopes of gaining more interest for the Catholic Faith.

Princess Kaoru Nakamaru is a figure very close to the present Imperial family, as well as the founder of the International Affairs Institute for World Peace in New York in 1985. Kaoru has also been an exceptional diplomatic mediator in the past for the New World Order due to her long-standing friendship with the leaders of controversial countries such as North-Korea and Iran. Nakamaru exerts a kind of “personal diplomacy” lending herself sometimes as VIP mediator between warring countries, often financing her own missions. A gesture certainly commendable, which the princess wished to repeat for her new mission with the Vatican, arriving at her own expense from Japan at the end of August of 2011, for a series of important meetings with senior representatives of the Holy See, both in Palestrina near Rome, and in Loreto, for the above mentioned official meeting. The arrival of the Princess was described in this way by the Vatican:

Princess Kaoru Nakamaru, granddaughter of the Japanese Emperor Meiji, paid a visit to the Holy Spirit Center. She arrived on the evening of August 31, accompanied by two Japanese television operators, remaining our guest until the 2nd of September. The Diocese of Palestrina and the Pontifical Delegation of Loreto have issued two press releases to announce the important visit that has had so much echo in all the newspapers and

ing in possession of a booklet in English “Divine Power of Love.” She was struck by the message on the Holy Spirit which mentions that with the worship due to him, you will make peace and concord among peoples, and its action of love will radiate in the world especially through the building of the Temple of the Holy Spirit. The princess came to visit Palestrina to make a television report on the Work of the Holy Spirit “Divine Power of Love.” On September 1, she interviewed the bishop Mons. Domenico Sigalini and the President of the Opera, Antonio Leonardo in Montuoro in an atmosphere of cordial friendship on the issues that affect humanity in the search for a meaning in life that is not power, or pleasure, but the peace and harmony with ourselves and with others. The princess has been very satisfied by sharing some similarities with her Shinto faith and our Christian spirituality. At the end of her experience at the Opera, the princess said she found the spirituality she was looking for for at least a decade, wanting to learn even more about our reality in the world. Then the princess visited Loreto and the nursing home “Oasi Ave Maria,” and then traveled to the Pontifical Delegation, where she met the Archbishop Mons. Giovanni Tonucci. At the end of the interview with him she has been welcomed by the Franciscan Friars of the Basilica of the Holy House where she could admire our artistic beauty. The Mayor of Loreto Paul Niccoletti and councilor for culture Mariateresa Schiavoni, greeted the princess donating her the “Book of Princes” an exclusive publication that next year will include also Princess Nakamaru’s visit to Loreto. The princess (married to actor Tadao Nakamaru with two children) specialized in international politics at Columbia University, and from 1970 began her many activities as a journalist, interviewing kings and presidents, prime ministers and businessmen from all over the world. In addition to writing several books, she worked in television as an international commentator for Political Affairs. In 1973, she has been hailed by the U.S. magazine “Newsweek” as the best interviewer in the world, while the “Washington Post” described her as a woman with “a strong international sensitivity.” She later became a producer and director of a talk show and she began to travel to war zones around the world by opening positive discussions with the heads of state of those countries. The primary objective of Princess Nakamaru is to promote world peace through human renaissance. Wealth, fame, power, Nakamaru says, do not make man happy, true happiness is sustained rather, by a heart full of love, harmony and peace.²⁰ Dr. Antonio L. Montuoro, and Bishop Sigalini immediately wanted to recruit Kaoru

Nakamaru for their projects. Suddenly, however, a mysterious accident took place in a mountain near Subiaco. The Bishop of Palestrina, Monsignor Sigalini, wound up in the hospital in a coma, that some say was not really an accident at all, but an attempted murder linked to the present battles of the Vatican's inner power structure with Sigalini's intentions of bringing Kaoru into the equation. A few days earlier, during the visit of Princess Kaoru to Palestrina, Bishop Sigalini revealed to a few of those present, including myself, that we would see him with a cardinal ring soon. After recovering from his coma, and returning to the scene after a long hospital stay, Sigalini communicated to his loyalists, and his parishioners of Palestrina, that he had a mystical- revelation, and that he was no longer ready to become a cardinal, and wanted to simply remain the Bishop of Palestrina, as he wanted to focus on his diocese. That was of course a lie, as many knew he had been threatened by somebody in the Vatican, who was nearly able to kill him, and for this reason Bishop Sigalini gave up the possibility of ever becoming a cardinal. I also want to specify, that the request to visit the Vatican organization, Work of the Holy Spirit Divine Power of Love in Loreto and Palestrina, contrary to what was stated by the Vatican in their propaganda lies, was an idea of Dr. Montuoro, after reading the previously mentioned note of Archbishop Alberto Bottari, and not Princess Kaoru's idea. She never heard of the Work of the Holy Spirit, nor had she ever appreciated this little booklet in English entitled: Divine Power of Love, of which they are boasting in their article above. This booklet was actually donated to Kaoru during her visit to Loreto.

We even have evidence of this in the various images that were taken that day by the Japanese photographer accompanying the princess, Taro Nakamura. Kaoru was also not impressed by the "Book of Princes" that was given to her in Loreto, and she actually gave it to me before leaving Italy. This is just the usual disinfo typical of these strange characters that revolve around the Vatican. For those interested in knowing more, and having ulterior confirmation about the "accident" that involved Bishop Sigalini, there are a few articles present online.²¹ The following is an email from Montuoro to Kaoru that announces his intention of organizing a conference in the Vatican for Kaoru on the 11th May of 2012, (FIG. 28) where they would also host the infamous North Korean dictator Kim Jong-un, (FIG. 29) and other personalities invited by Kaoru:

Kindest Princess Kaoru Nakamaru,

Remember, of course, that behind Montuoro and the Opera of the Holy Spirit Divine Power of Love, is the powerful Neo-Templar faction of the deceased Rocco Zingaro (1941 – 2011) and the Italian organization Azione Cattolica. Princess Kaoru, however, despite being Japanese, and an outsider to the Italian scene, understood pretty clearly that behind this supposed Marian devotion, and the many beautiful words of these zealots from the Vatican, in reality, were only partly genuine, made with great economic interest and many compromises. This of course, had very little to do with spirituality, and a lot to do with the present decline of the Catholic Church, and their sordid affairs. Kaoru Nakamaru's exclusive relation with Kim Jong-un and her intention to bring him to visit the Pope in the Vatican eventually caused her big trouble with the agents of New World Order. A situation of high international tension and intrigue suddenly erupted around the princess, who was eventually forced to give up her collaboration with the Vatican, and I have documents signed by the princess to prove it. All this happened in order to maintain a constant strategy of tension in South-East Asia, favorable to the USA. Jennifer Lind of Dartmouth College once wrote in Foreign Affairs magazine that Westerners always overestimate their ability to penetrate the mystery of North Korea. Kaoru's direct relation with North Korea's dictator could have changed all this. So in this tense geopolitical scenario, the Neo-Templars of Montuoro and former Prefect Enrico Marinelli, realized a great opportunity in the possible arrival of the young Korean dictator with which Princess Kaoru has had a long-standing relationship, due to her close friendship in the past with both his dictator father, and his dictator grandfather, the one who first invited Kaoru to visit North

Carissimo Dott. Montuoro,

Arrivo qui ad anni se lo scrivo con notevole ritardo rispetto alla sua precedente iniziativa, ho avuto alcuni problemi legati da un periodo di riposo che mi hanno impedito purtroppo di contattarlo prima di allora, spero comprenda e mi perdoni. Ho comunque apprezzato così come tutto il mio staff il suo costante impegno negli ultimi mesi e quello del suo Vescovo nel volermi introdurre alla vostra iniziativa e invitarmi a una tale carica e volermi anche dare la possibilità di partecipare a un progetto di notevole importanza per l'umanità così come ritengo essere l'Opera dello Spirito Santo e la Confessione che volevate organizzare per me in Vaticano. Un'organizzazione la vostra che ringrazio moltissimo per tutto questo e anche per l'ospitalità e quello che mi avete mostrato con tanta cortesia e gentilezza sia nella visita ufficiale presso Loreto che a Palombara. Un'esperienza che non dimenticherò mai in cui ho capito il mio stesso lavoro per un momento migliore che possa avere una speranza anche allora di questo futuro 2012. Rimango però perplessa su alcuni punti riguardo alla presente situazione interna del Vaticano, intagli, guere intestine, scandali all'ordine del giorno che anche in Giappone fanno ormai parlare e discutere i media, e altrettanto non sono cose a cui voglio in alcun modo legarmi al momento anche se so che lei si vuole opporre a tutto questo in linea con i messaggi della Madonna di Medjugorje. Ma se non fa ho ricevuto una visita ufficiale dalla polizia segreta giapponese che mi ha fatto cambiare definitivamente idea sulla vostra possibile collaborazione stessa, non che deve purtroppo annunciarmi con questa lettera le mie dimissioni immediate dalla carica di Ambasciatrice dell'Opera dello Spirito Santo, cosa che mi rattrista moltissimo fare, ma che non posso e' necessario per la pace e il futuro futuro dei miei collaboratori e la serenità delle loro famiglie qui in Giappone. Cosa che le stesso modo voglio mettere a disposizione lei mi capisca, Vorrei dire che sono addirittura arrivate quasi a minacciarmi per via del Nerd Kaoru e di quello che stavano organizzando con il suo leader Kim Jong-un, cose cui mi hanno detto momentaneamente le fini anche che il Giappone per il momento preferisce non avere relazioni diplomatiche di alcun tipo e con cui non sarò più autorizzata a collaborare. Inoltre mi è stato riferito che se continuavo questa collaborazione con lei Dott. Montuoro, il Vescovo Sigalini e la Santa Sede, anche con altri ospiti per questo evento e altri, avrei potuto avere dei seri problemi in futuro per il mio lavoro e per la mia organizzazione in Giappone visto la mia posizione e le mie origini. Sono quindi rimasta a meditare per alcuni giorni su questo punto, la confesso impaurita della situazione ma arrivando poi dopo alcuni giorni, a metterla a tacere, ad essere sicura che per

FIG. 31 – Page 2 of the LETTER OF RESIGNATION sent to Dr. Montuoro, where Princess Kaoru Nakamaru also mentions the New World Order, and the possible influence of the U.S. in the act of intimidation exercised against her by the Japanese Security forces, who forced her to stop her collaboration with the Vatican. Korea, after hearing her inspirational speech at the United Nations. Certainly Kaoru was a great opportunity to relaunch the Vatican diplomacy for Montuoro, and his Templars in the Vatican, however her sudden choice to give up her position came after a visit to her house and at her office, by the Japanese security services, and what became a clear threat to her life, and the life of her Japanese co-workers.

Antonio Leonardo Montuoro has also promoted for years, the idea of a Temple Work of the Holy Spirit, another of his projects I spoke about in detail in my book Pope Francis: The Last Pope? This strange place, which has been long under construction, was said to become a sort of emergency Vatican, a “Vatican 2” of the Holy See, if its territory in the center of Rome were somehow destroyed or irreparably affected by the terrible events of the period that we are experiencing, in which various catastrophic prophecies of the Catholic world, seem, according to Montuoro, to converge towards a grand Apocalyptic finale, which will see a devastating terrorist attack against the Vatican (perhaps ISIS?) There are a couple of videos based on Montuoro’s project that are still present on YouTube for you to

After my revelations on their supposed “Temple of the Holy Spirit” were made public in various books I published in Italy and abroad, in 2014, the City of Palestrina confirmed the abandonment of this project by the diocese of Palestrina and Bishop Sigalini. Even their chilvaric order of the Knights of the Temple of the Holy Spirit seem to have lost momentum and slowed down their operations, having no longer a temple on which to base their Neo-Templar project.

Princess Kaoru instead moved towards an absolute condemnation of the Vatican activities in a book we co-wrote together, as the Holy See seems increasingly distant from God. However in her resignation letter sent to Dr. Montuoro, (FIGS. 30 and 31) she even mentions the remarkable pressure she suffered in early February of 2012, by the Japanese secret police, that came close to threatening her life, if she did not immediately interrupt her dangerous relationship with North Korea and the Vatican representatives and the Holy See. (FIG. 32) So do not be manipulated by the media lies and the propaganda that is regularly brought to us by the U.S. Department of State in regards to North Korea, because it is all crap. Regarding American interests and the tension between the two Koreas, the U.S. does not want any kind of real peace deals, especially one made by an independent figure like Kaoru Nakamaru. They, along with the “Architects of the New World Order,” just want to use the situation to their advantage in any way possible. This is a classic example of the U.S. Military Complex applied strategy in the geopolitical / military field moved by unscrupulous characters who obviously want to maintain their power at all costs. They wish to maintain influence in the area, to justify their presence and military bases, using the North Korean “danger card” as a propaganda tool to spin their own rubbish. The New World Order prepared a bad joke for the young Korean dictator, who had stated he wanted to come to Rome as a guest of the Vatican and the Opera of the Holy Spirit Divine Power of Love, along with his then powerful uncle Jang SongThaek, aged sixty-five, who was later executed by his nephew, by what some say was an attempted coup in December, 2013. Sacha Noam Baron Cohen (born in London in 1971), known for having created the exhilarating character of “Borat,” who is in reality a British actor of Jewish origin, and a renowned international comedian, launched one of his more demented acts to date, towards the North Korean leader during Oscar night of 2012, pouring on the famous Hollywood red carpet the fake ashes of the father of the North Korean dictator, Kim Jong-il, who had just died recently. Sacha will later be removed by the security services in place for the event, but he will continue until he was brought away to recite his unworthy and offensive show that evening against North Korea, stating with his provocative jokes, that the old dictator had always dreamed of coming to the Oscars and to appear on the red carpet. Imagine what this gesture of bad taste, to say the least, did to his troubled son, the new dictator of North Korea, Kim Jong-un. This is the unjust and criminal world promoted by the Zionist Masterminds of the New World Order propaganda, where there is no respect, even for the dead.

Is Oblast the “New Israel?”

he Israelis are planning a strategic exodus that will position them rather close to North Korea. In fact, the Zionist lobby is buying large slices of territory in the northeast of China to create an autonomous province in accordance with the Chinese authorities. This has been the case for some years, and the details about it come directly from agents within Mossad, and the lesser known ShinBet,²⁴ the Intelligence agency for the state of Israel Internal Affairs. It seems that secretly for years, the Israelis have been preparing internally for mass evacuations, if the situation with Iran or other Muslim countries or terrorist groups like ISIS degenerates, perhaps by being nuked, which would thus compromise the entire area for thousands of years. The Iranian Supreme Leader Khamenei made it clear in the past what the level of conflict would be if tensions escalate. Is this a piloted strategy of tension? Maybe, but in Tehran in the past, they have shown to not fear the risk of a military escalation on a large scale.²⁵ If this “Armageddon” scenario was to happen, such as an Israeli war with the use of nuclear weapons, who are always ready for anything from the days of Moses, would be ready for the next exodus of the Jewish people, with a pretty good back up emergency plan. Among other things, the location for such a colossal move wasn’t chosen at random by the Jewish elite.

It’s a Chinese territory bordering with The Jewish Autonomous Oblast, also referred to as “Yevrey” or “Birobidzhan,”²⁶ an Autonomous Province created for the Jews in Russia by Stalin in 1934, according to his political vision of giving a territory to every ethnic group in the USSR; called Birobidzhan. It is obvious that Israel would like to create a new state in this area, which would be, “incidentally” bordering with the fastest emerging economy in the world, that of the Far East, with whom they already do a lot business.

FIG. 33 – The main square of the city of Birobidzhan, the capital of the Jewish Autonomous Oblast in Russia, located on the Trans-Siberian Railway, close to the border with China. According to inside sources close to the Israeli intelligence services, this region would be annexed as a future homeland based in the northeast of China, created by Israeli Jews, a backup state in case of a nuclear emergency in the Middle East. The Jewish Autonomous “Oblast,” a term that is analogous to “state” or “province” in the USA, has important deposits of gold and silver, and has developed a good local craft for jewelery. Also, Birobidzhan has important mechanical industries, textiles, footwear, clothing and wood; and in spite of the Stalinist persecution of the Jews, today things have changed.

Yiddish and modern Hebrew is again taught in the schools of this Oblast, and business with the international Jewish community is now possible and frequent, and bring in many people from abroad. (FIG. 33) Since 2003, the Birobidzhan synagogue has taken on an important role in the worldwide Jewish community, and seems ready for Plan B if Iran and the Arab world in general, move towards a more aggressive position towards Israel and their “Holy Land.” Meanwhile, the Bank of China in 2008, entered the capital of Compagnie Financière of Edmond de Rothschild, with a stake of 20%, becoming the largest China-Jewish alliance in the history of high finance, where for some time things have been moving in this direction, thanks to influential figures such as Henry Kissinger. The New World Order is preparing to leave the American “democratic” model in favor of Chinese dictatorship for their global government. The transaction, which has asked the Chinese group for an investment of 2.2 billion yuan, or about 236 million euros, is accompanied by a partnership which provides for the creation and promotion by the historic French bank, of French products for distribution in the Chinese market. Thus the bank of Edmond de Rothschild, will have access to the 130 million potential Chinese customers. Bank of China, one of the top four banks in this country, will become an important partner in this deal, but the Compagnie Financière Saint-Honoré—parent company of Compagnie Financière—will stay with the majority of capital. The internationalization of the historic French brand also sees an Italian figure involved. In fact in the supervisory board of the Rothschild bank we find the Italian Carlo De Benedetti, another key shadow figure of the present New World Order. Meanwhile another historical alliance has been created between the Rothschilds, and the other major funder and supporter of the New World Order, Rockefeller.²⁷ So two of the world’s largest industrial dynasties, the first in America, the second in Europe, decided in 2012, to merge at least part of their economic forces, to form a “strategic partnership,” as defined by the Financial Times. The “strategy” in question, of course, is to make even more money, although they already have quite a lot: 34 billion dollars in goods and investments in the case of the Rockefeller group, and a more modest 1 billion and 900 million pounds for the Rothschild group, operating under Edmond de Rothschild.

This “marriage” between billionaires of the NWO elite that sees also the involvement of the infamous George Soros lurking behind the scenes, was mainly born out of the the personal relationship between the two elderly patriarchs, the late David Rockefeller, traditionally closer to the “Republicans,” who used to be a member of the San Francisco-based Bohemian Club, and Lord Jacob Rothschild IV, traditionally closer to the “Democrats.” Seemingly distant politically speaking, this historic alliance is of course part of a plan to destroy the sovereignty of most nations in favor of their demented New World Order.

An email dated January 9, 2012, from Hillary Clinton, published by Julian Assange’s Wikileaks, discusses a meeting that would take place at Jacob Rothschild’s historic estate, Waddesdon.²⁸ In 2016, Hillary Clinton attended a $100,000-a-head fundraiser hosted by another member of this powerful family, Lynn Forester de Rothschild, a prominent New York businesswoman, and supporter of Mrs. Clinton. She was introduced to her third husband Sir Evelyn de Rothschild (b.1931) by Henry Kissinger, at the 1998 Bilderberg Group conference in Scotland. Lady Rothschild wrote an email on April 18, 2010, in which she tells her friend Hillary she would “love to catch up”—and “I remain your loyal adoring p al .” Clinton responds “let’s make that happen,” and signs her response, “Much love, H.” Later, on the 23rd of September 2010, Clinton emailed Lynn Forester de Rothschild saying, “I was trying to reach you to tell you and Teddy that I asked Tony Blair to go to Israel as part of our full court press on keeping the Middle East negotiations going ...”

The wealthy family of today descends from Mayer Amschel Rothschild, a court Jew to the German Landgraves of Hesse-Kassel, whose rulers played a key role in the development of Freemasonry. Prince Karl, Landgrave of Hessen-Kassel 1744-1836, was the chief organizer of the most important Masonic Congress of all time in Wilhelmsbad in 1782. Since then, the Rothschild family has, in the last two centuries, developed as one of the most important banking families in the world, and have always retained a key role in the policies of the newly born State of Israel, which they helped fund and ideologically craft. After the death of James Jacob de Rothschild in 1868, his eldest son Alphonse Rothschild, took over the management of the family bank, and was the most active in support for Eretz Israel. The Rothschild family archives show that during the 1870s, the family contributed nearly 500,000 francs per year on behalf of Eastern Jewry to the Alliance Israélite Universelle. In 1917, Walter Rothschild, was the addressee of the Balfour Declaration to the Zionist Federation, which committed the British government to the es tablishment in Palestine, for a national home for the Jewish people, and what would later become the state of Israel. Baron Edmond James de Rothschild, youngest son of James Jacob de Rothschild, was a patron of the first settlement in Palestine at Rishon-LeZion, and bought from Ottoman landlords, part of the land which now makes up present-day Israel. In 1924, he established the Palestine Jewish Colonisation Association (PICA), which acquired more than 125,000 acres of land and set up business ventures.

Today history repeats itself, and Lord Jacob Rothschild IV, who is the Honorary President of the Institute for Research of the Jewish Policy, is possibly one of the masterminds behind this new planned exodus of Jews towards a new land. Baron Rothschild is a key figure in Israel who controls the Hanadiv foundation, which was founded by Edmond de Rothschild, and has built up, for example, the Supreme Court of the State of Israel, the building of the Knesset, which is Israel's parliament, and he is building the national library. Jacob Rothschild, and the aforementioned Henry Kissinger, are perhaps two of the most influential Jews in the world today. Their friend David Rockefeller, although he did not have to my knowledge proven Jewish heritage, as a young man has worked to cultivate both public relations for the family business (oil), and U.S. Military Intelligence, working in close contact with Israel, its main ally. Henry Kissinger, Lord Rothschild and David Rockefeller, who died in March 2017 have been a legendary trio. Their influence, however, and their past work, undoubtedly constitutes the central framework of the New World Order, and have a central role in the global economy for centuries to come. In the meantime, the 80-year-old member of the Rothschild dynasty, Jacob Rothschild, must build a stronger case for his secret project in the northeast of China, that involves annexing what is at the moment an autonomous region of the Russian Federation, confident that the United States, in this new Cold War scenario with Russia, will find support in some of the Russian elites. Rothschild said on an American political TV show in 2016 later reported on October 6, 2016 by Cenznet.com²⁹ and later translated from Russian by Kristina Kharlova for Fort-russ.com: "The current crisis may last much less time than the cold war. At the moment the U.S. has allies among the Russian elites, who are ready to take over the initiative. In this scenario, ordinary people will not notice anything. The course of Russia's foreign policy will change—this will be presented as some kind of achievement of Russian diplomacy.”

Meanwhile, before Trump's arrival in the White House, Rothschild was pretty sure that the so-called conflict within the Russian elite was in its final stage, forgetting however what will happen if his protégé Hillary Clinton would have lost her bid for the White House like she fortunately did. “A part of the Russian elite insists that the Russian leadership pushes for the lifting of sanctions. Part are against concessions to the West. Next year we'll know who won,” said Rothschild.

It is worth noting that since September 30, 2016, a video of the famous Donbass defender Igor Girkin (Strelkov) lashing out at Putin has been circulating online. Strelkov makes it clear that his followers are ready to protest, and did not shy from personal insults towards Putin. Earlier those Russian experts who favor Putin, dubbed Strelkov “the fifth column.” Who Strelkov's sponsor remains a mystery, but the person is probably the usual George Soros. Kristina Kharlova adds an interesting comment to all this:

Every country has its patriots and traitors, and it's no doubt that Rothschild is not exaggerating. He seems very well informed for a government outsider. Strelkov is the least of Putin's worries. The tentacles of the sprout reach far and wide and there is no doubt America has its “allies” deeply planted in every strategic sector of the Russian society. But so they did in the 90's but it did not prevent an emergence of a new strong and defiant leader seemingly out of nowhere. Undoubtedly America succeeded in enslaving much of the world, but Russia is no stranger to such attempts. Whenever Russia was plunged into dark times it has found its way out.

Apparently for America a victory means complete defeat and surrender of the opponent, which is consistent with its adherence to the law of the jungle in international politics. It has worked so far as long as 95% of the global population are content with the status quo. However, everyone understands that sharing a pie is better than giving it all to one, and global leaders and their constituents are watching Putin's moves with envy and anticipation. In that regard we can safely conclude that Putin himself has many more silent allies among global elites than he is even aware of. ³⁰

Well, I am sure Russia is ready for its future, whatever the outcome. In the meantime, I am also pretty sure that they have been informed about Israel's intention to prepare for a back-up state in the northeast of China, that may merge with one of their autonomous regions. In October 2016, Russia and Israel celebrated 25 years since they officially restored diplomatic relations after the Soviet Union severed them in 1967, following the Six Day War. In the meantime things are changing for Israel in 2017, a great nation often misinterpreted, that deserves to exist in defence of the basic values of our Judeo-Christian civilization under threat from the daily expansion of Islam secretly promoted by the Jesuits. Israel is a nation I regard as one of the most important and influential on Earth, since Benjamin "Bibi" Netanyahu, the current Prime Minister of Israel, is finally fronting his internal enemies, including the Rothschild family. Of course, they will try to sabotage and investigate him for bribery, fraud and God knows what, but thanks to his new ally, U.S. President Donald J. Trump, and his team, I think Netanyahu can initially look forward to a great new alliance to oppose Iran's nuclear threat, without having to move again from the Holy Land to some distant place in Asia.

'll return now to speak of Loreto, this magical place said by Antonio Leonardo Montuoro to also be an extra-dimensional portal, central to the pagan tradition, which was later transformed into a place of Catholic devotion and Marian worship, linked to the mysterious Templars, and even to the modern versions of the Templar tradition we define as Neo-Templars. These turn out to be the true leaders of the Western initiatic system in all their various emanations, from their pure Christian form, to the ones we find in the various Masonic rites originally by the Rite of Strict Templar Observance, to the blatantly Satanic and anti-Christian ones, like the Ordo Templi Orientis (O.T.O.) for example. Although the degenerate factions of Neo-Templarism dedicated to the black magical arts are not always regarded as genuine by the most traditional Neo-Templars. They are to be considered as influential in multiple environments prone to esotericism, but are definitely the scum of the international Neo-Templar scene, reflecting even today, if you will, the black soul and perverse practices of certain degenerate aristocrats, that often devote themselves to witchcraft and evil practices, since ancient times, as part of the dark side of the Illuminati, as I have already explained in Volume I of my Confessions. This situation originally facilitated even Philip the Fair, in his destructive mission against the Knights Templar, which thanks to a minority of sorcerers present in its ranks, would be banned forever after they courageously defended Christendom, receiving honors and glory since their foundation. The Order of the Temple was thus a monastic order, whose history is intertwined with that of the Crusades, which was officially dissolved by Pope Clement V (1260 – 1314)—after the cruel persecution of the King of France, Philip the Fair (1268 – 1314)—in 1307.

CESNUR led by Massimo Introvigne writes the following explanation:

After the suppression, the Order survived for a few decades out of France, but at the latest at the beginning of the fifteenth century the Templars have completely disappeared. The thesis of their secret continuation has been denounced by the medieval history specialists such as Régine Pernoud (1909 – 1998) as “completely insane” and linked to claims and legends “uniformly silly” (The Templars, trad. It. Effedieffe, Milan, 1993, p. 11). The idea that the Templars, officially abolished, had clandestinely continued their activity until the eighteenth century first spreads in French and German Freemasonry.

What Introvigne’s Jesuit controlled CESNUR, and his friends forget to tell us, is that this Neo-Templar revival in France and Germany was inspired by the Society of Jesus, who influenced the Freemasons of the eighteenth century like no other. Of course there was also the Jesuits, as well as the Stuardist Masonic factor at the base of so-called “Scottish” Freemasonry, bound to the Templar roots of the Craft.

Thus, in 1804 the Jesuits and their brothers were formally banned by the Catholic Church, and appointed Bernard Raymond Fabré-Palaprat (1773 – 1838), Grand Master of the Order of the Temple, that was established for the first time clearly outside the boundaries of Freemasonry. Fabré-Palaprat, who merged later with the Johannite Church in 1812, was born in 1773, in France, the son of a surgeon with a priest for an uncle. He was a former seminarian (as Adam Weishaupt before him), then an ordained priest, who went on to become an adventurer and a doctor. The idea of an autonomous and independent branch of the Knights Templar coming out of the rigid control of the Templar degrees of Freemasonry, was supported by the Jesuits, and at the same time Napoleon Bonaparte (1769 – 1821), an agent of the Jesuits and the Illuminati, who authorized a solemn ceremony to restart the order publicly in France in 1808. Fabré-Palaprat, had more in mind than just a knightly order, and intended to return rapidly to the Catholic Church. His idea was ambitious, and began to fully manifest in 1812, by tying the Neo-Templars into a new religion shaped to support a possible new Messiah. The importance of this sequence is clearly at odds with the Jesuits we know of today, but probably instrumental to the last period of their diaspora from the Catholic Church, because as Grand Master of the Order of the reconstituted Temple, Fabré-Palaprat even proclaimed himself to be the true successor St. John, and of Jesus Christ, which protected him with all the powers of the priesthood. The dress rehearsal for the coming of the “Messiah” of the Templars could now proceed with the foundation of a church of the Neo-Templars, which is called the Johannite Church, declaring itself the only real legitimate Christian Church (as would be unlawful for them to follow the “ecclesiastical” line of the Catholic Church, which comes not from Saint John but from Saint Peter). The Johannite Church, however, lasted only a few years but will have, as I will show you later, a link with what will become the Gnostic Church, or the “Secret Church” of the Illuminati, where the dangerous “Thelemic” heresy of Aleister Crowley was born, and other devilish diversions which often assume a gnostic Satanic twist. At the time of Fabré-Palaprat, all members of the Order of the Temple would take his heresy seriously, and some who did not intend to break with the Catholic Church, probably sensing the imminent return of the Jesuits in the Vatican, departed from his project.

This seemingly crazy gesture by Fabré-Palaprat to found a new religion, created a series of schisms, and the emergence of a “Catholic faction.” They were dissidents since the first attempts, which also determined the separation of the Italian branch of Palaprat’s order, which became independent in 1815, which I will return to later, because it is important for its subsequent connection with the Catholic Church and the Patriarchate of Antioch. The eventual end of the Johannite Church did not eliminate the growing disagreements between Neo-Templar factions. The “Catholics” wished the Order to explicitly profess the Roman Catholic religion, while the “Palapratians” (or “lay” Brothers), offered an interfaith Order open to all Christian denominations, and even gnostics. Both branches, however, declined, and more or less disappeared. In 1871, the few “Palapatian” French survivors left the Order, taking note of the lack of success and, using a Masonic expression went into “sleeping” mode. The same applies to the “Catholic” branch in Belgium in 1890. Later, the “regent” of the Order in France is given to Joséphin Péladan, who was nevertheless, more interested in another order of its creation, the Catholic Order of the Rosy Cross. It seeks even greater convergence with the Jesuits, returning to Catholicism and renouncing the Johannite heresy, that still proliferates, despite being officially “dormant” by the figures who originally represented it.

In fact, most occult orders and churches born in the Neo-gnostic and the Theosophical milieu of the New Age, pick up from the Johannite tradition, and often we find in this initiatic context supposed lineages related to a direct succession of the Johannite Church of Bernard Raymond Fabré-Palaprat, which is said to be by some, the Mother Church of the various lineages of the Gnostic Church in existence today. One of these is the lineage transmitted by the Liberal Catholic Church headed by the gay bishop of the Ordo Templi Orientis Antiqua, Michael Paul Bertiaux from Chicago, known also as Tau Ogdoade-Orfeo IV, leader of the infamous Choronzon Club, the first “Thelemic” secret society that openly recruits only gay men. Bertiaux writes that his supposed lineage from Palaprat was transmitted to him by his mentor and initiator Hector François Jean Maine, Tau Orfeo Ogdoade-III (1924 – 1984). The Liberal Catholic rite was founded in 1916 by Arnold Harris Mathew (1852 – 1919), bishop of the Old Catholic Church. Following disagreements with Mathew, the church in question was re-founded on the basis of a wider freedom of thought, and of a particular mysticism by James Ingall Wedgwood (1883 – 1951), member of the Theosophical movement. In 1918, the Old Catholic Church in Britain assumed the name Liberal Catholic Church.

The most important and genuine lineage of the Order of the Temple founded by Fabré-Palaprat to date, remains in Belgium, and the only one still active to this day. In 1894, they promoted the establishment in Brussels of an International Secretariat of the Templars, which was not recognized by all the foreign priorities, but was a rather large coalition. In 1930, the “secular” branch in Belgium (called “de la Trinité de la Tour”) ends as such, but in 1932, is reconstituted as Grand Priory of Belgium, which makes the formal establishment of an association called “Belgian Association of the Knights of Sovereign and Military order of the Temple of Jerusalem” (OSMTJ). It is from the latter that all subsequent Neo-

Templar affiliations emanate, including that of Antonio Campello Pinto de Sousa Fontes (1887 – 1960) father of Regent Fernando Sousa Pinto Fontes, and Gabriel Inellas (1913 – 1987), who was born in Venezuela and resided in Brazil, where he introduced himself as “Prince Gabriel Inellas Palaeologus,” a disputed title of pure fantasy said his opponents.³¹

Loreto’s Holy House

he Knights Templar and their Grand Master William of Beaujeu are said to have defended with their lives the Holy House of the Virgin Mary, in the city of Acre in 1291, against the advancing Islamic enemy, the same one that Pope Francis is now welcoming in the West. The Templars acted with great skill in the subsequent removal of the stones, which they quickly transferred to Loreto, after a very difficult and risky journey from the Holy Land. It was the last great operation and act of courage of the Knights Templar in the Holy Land, and indeed it deserves some kind of recognition now that the truth is slowly being revealed.

It was these real indomitable Knights Templar, and their exploits, that inspired the former Grand Preceptor Rocco Zingaro, who is recently deceased. He had worked for years behind the scenes with the Vatican in bringing back the Templars to the Church, despite past accusations of heresy sanctioned by the infamous papal bul Vox in excelso issued on March 22, 1312. There is also a key document for understanding the recent developments in the previously difficult relations between the growing Neo-Templar movements and the Church of Rome, a document that was strangely “lost” in the archives of the Vatican secret archives for hundreds of years, and some say may even be a fake, conveniently presented at the appropriate times to please the present Neo-Templars at the top of the Vatican hierarchy. This document is called the Chinon Parchment.

True or false, this document is meant to show the acquittal by Pope Clement V, of the leading members of the Knights Templar. This supposedly long lost document was drafted in Chinon, Diocese of Tours, between the 17th and the 20th of August 1308, the original of which is formed from a single large piece of paper (70 x 58 cm²), initially provided with the hanging seals of the three papal legates who formed the special apostolic Commission ad inquirendum appointed by Clement V. The original was accompanied by a certified copy, still preserved in the

The parchment was discovered in 2002 by Dr. Barbara Frale, a historian and expert in ancient documents, who is said to have conducted this important discovery with the approval of the Vatican, that was then published in 2007 by the Vatican itself, with all documents related to the process. One thing is certain, 2007 for a number of reasons, relating also to Rocco Zingaro's work within the Vatican wall, became a very special year for Neo-Templarism. The "Chinon Parchment" if true, undoubtedly puts into question whether the past position that wrongly judged the Knights Templar, debunks the previously "official" version of the events that condemned the Templars without appeal, as heretics of the worst kind.

The Chinon Parchment shows that Pope Clement V, in secret, absolved all the leaders of the Order, and that the convictions to have them burned on the stake and arrested were actually the responsibility of King Philip IV of France, not of the Pope or the Church. A widespread misunderstanding sometimes used strategically to justify opposition to the Church of Rome by certain Neo-Templar Masonic currents, that include the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, which in the 30° as I have already mentioned earlier, have members swear revenge against the "injustice done to the Templars."

The document in question discovered by Barbare Frale, contains a supposed absolution that Pope Clement V gave to the Grand Master of the Temple, Friar Jacques de Molay, and other leaders of the Order. This was after DeMolay had repented and asked for forgiveness to the church; and after formal abjuration, that was mandatory for everyone who was even suspected of heretical crimes. Members of the Templar commanderies would then be reintegrated in the Catholic Communion and re-admitted to receive the sacraments. This gesture was supposed to be the first phase of the trial of the Templars, when Clement V was still convinced he could ensure the survival of this important military-religious order. The apostolic document had to restore their image, and lift the infamy of excommunication for the warrior-monks, who had previously embroiled themselves, admitting they denied Jesus Christ by the testimonies given to the French Inquisitor, sometimes under severe torture. The Chinon Parchment was a prerequisite for a future reform of the order, but it remained a dead letter, or maybe it was conveniently set aside to prove one day the innocence of the Vatican, that even back then feared for the future “revenge” of the Templars. The French monarchy reacted by triggering a blackmail mechanism, which will force Clement V, who will not be able to oppose the will of Philip IV the Fair, King of France, who wished for the complete elimination of the Knights Templar. He heard the opinion of the Council Fathers, arriving to suppress the order “with unalterable and perpetual rule” (the papal bull Vox in excelso). Clement V stated that this decision does not constitute an act of condemnation for heresy, which they were not able to reach on the basis of the various inquiries carried out in the years before the Council.

To issue a final ruling, it was necessary to have a fair trial, which also foresaw the exposure of the defensive position of the Order. But the scandal spun by the King’s propaganda brought shameful accusations against the Templars, which included heresy, idolatry, homosexuality and obscene practices. Such charges would have dissuaded anyone, according to the pope, from wearing again the Templar habit. On the other hand, a delay in the decision on such issues would have produced the squandering of great riches offered by many Christians to the Order, instructed to come to the aid of the Holy Land to fight the enemies of the faith. Careful consideration of these dangers, together with pressure on the French side, convinced the Pope to eventually abolish the Order of Knights of the Temple, which since then went into hiding, searching cover throughout history in other orders, and other forms of Christianity, including the Orthodox and Protestant, and finally seeking, at least for some, a unification with the Church of Rome.

In October 2007, the Vatican managed to acquire what for some think is the real Holy Grail, an object that was donated to the Church by Rocco Zingaro, who was a leading figure in Neo-Templarism. The Vatican also decides to include in their collection for public display, Exemplaria Praetiosa, a fine reproduction of some of the major documents of the process to the Knights Templars, including the Chinon Parchment. Barbara Frale, who had discovered this precious document, conveniently wrote a historical introduction to the documents chosen for this new Vatican itinerant project, which was presented to the media with a great press conference by Monsignor Sergio Pagano, Titular Bishop of Celene and prefect of the Vatican Secret Archives. A year later, the entire corpus of extraordinary works for the Secret Archives, the Vatican Library and the Vatican Museums, was presented at the Italian Cultural Institute of New York in 2008. The Processus contra Templarios, was exhibited in New York, which is the unpublished and exclusive edition of the complete acts of the ancient trial of the Templars, containing the original parchments conserved in the Vatican Secret Archives, including the Chinon Parchment, inserted inside the Exemplaria Praetiosa project. Every Freemason and Neo-Templar of relevance was there for the event. Imagine that the project that brought the famous parchment to New York in December, 2008, was actually compiled years earlier by Saint John Paul II, who wanted to “let the world know of the wisdom and beautiful treasures” of the Vatican Apostolic Library. The historical introduction to the documents of the process against the Templars received great attention both in academic and cultural circles, and also in the more obscure chivalric and Masonic ones. This led to several articles both in various national and foreign newspapers, as well as on websites of various Neo-Templar orders, and Freemasonry. The move was made so as to facilitate a total rehabilitation of the Templar figure, so much so that in conjunction with the discovery made by Dr. Barbara Frale, a rumor spread that the Supreme Council of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of 33^o in Lexington, Massachusetts, which governs the rite in the jurisdiction of the northern United States, removed part of the teachings of the 30th grade, and eliminated the Sublime Areopagus of the Knights Kadosh that usually accompanies it.

The lesson of this degree teaches revenge against the Rulers and the Vatican for having eliminated the Order of the Templars. Not having direct contact with the jurisdiction in question, I can not tell you how this changed in the A.A.S.R., even though I know for a fact that this jurisdiction has reformed the 32nd degree Sublime Prince of the Royal Secret, omitting it in their Consistory, or at least over simplifying it. A simplification that distorts perhaps one of the lessons perhaps most revealing of this rite, a bit like the British have done a few years ago with the reformation of the Royal Arch, which I spoke about in the previous volume. The 32nd degree is:

The third and last of the Kadosh degrees, and consummates the Templarism of Masonry. The degree was originally a Christian degree of knighthood; its object was, for a long time, to reconquer the Holy Land and plant the Banner of the Cross once more on the ruined walls of Jerusalem. Many of the Knights of the Crusades were Masons, and thus became acquainted with the legend which Masonry had preserved.

The Knights Kadosh are the legitimate successors of the Templars.

None but earnest and sincere men, unselfish, and whose philanthropy is not a mere name, but a practical reality, should enter here—such as will do Masonry good service in the war which she is waging against the ancient enemies of the human race— a lover of wisdom and an apostle of Liberty, Equality, and Fraternity.

No virtue is acquired in an instant, but step by step. ³²

The Templar symbolism of the 32nd degree is linked to the military organization of the Order (FIG. 34), and the inspection of forces that could also be interpreted like those of the New World Order, and conceived of as collections to the various “camps” that will conquer “Jerusalem,” and build the “Third Temple.” The Temple identifies with the “Holy Empire,” with the “Empire of the World” and therefore is the ultimate aim of World Unity.

From the Text book of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite for Vermont:

This degree is the military organization of the order. The candidate is supposed to enter a camp, which is a nonagon enclosing a heptagon, which incloses a pentagon, and that an equilateral triangle, and that again a circle, the external lines of which form a figure in Geometry, and on each side of this figure is a tent with a flag and pennon, each of a different color from the others; and each tent is designated by a letter. Each represents an entire camp, and the several sides of the nonagon are assigned by our rituals to the Masons of the different degrees from the 1st to the 18th. ³³ Also from what I understand they have built-in the 32° degree, a reduced version of the 30th, which thus becomes an appendant degree conferred only in a nominal form in the Consistory of the Prince of the Royal Secret, to he who receives it, without the ability to participate in any Areopagus of Kadosh Knights, and often given in a hasty manner, without a true ritual. This often happens to ensure that modern man does not lose too much time with the complexity of this degree. It is actually describing the vengeance of the Templars, something that Barbara Frale’s supposed discovery seems to have put into question, shocking both the Masonic and Neo-Templar worlds. The institutional and academical credentials of Dr. Frale, who is often invited to preside at official events with various Neo-Templar groups, leaves me to question the genuinity of her intentions.

On April 22 of 2012, the scholar Barbara Frale, headed for example, a very special visit of Neo-Templar Knights to the City Council in Rome, based in the city hall on the Capitoline Hill, where she was received by the mayor, Gianni Alemanno, a controversial figure of the Italian right wing, closely linked to Israel. The meeting in question was organized by the Unsi and the Academy of European Artists, cover names for a modern emanation of the Knights Templar known as the Cofraternity of Hugo de Pagani. The event saw the presence of many military relating to this Neo-Templar Brotherhood, whose Grand Prior is a guy called Francesco Russo.

As you can see in Rome, as in the USA, the Neo-Templars move at the top of the political and military establishment of the New World Order, and Barbare Frale seems to be working with them every step of the way. (FIG. 35) So let's keep that in mind when we talk about the Chinon Parchment (FIG. 36) that she supposedly discovered. Remember, there are no coincidences.

A mong contemporary Neo-Templars claiming the legacy of the true Knights Templar (too many to mention here), there is always someone who uses the latest historical, or pseudo-historical findings to their advantage. There was an Order that went even further, suing the Pope himself. The Asociación Soberana Orden del Temple de Cristo, in the hands of the Regent Fernando Pinto Sousa Fontes, which is certainly a prominent figure of the Neo-Templar scene and the various emanations of the O.S.M.T.H. (Ordo Supremus Militaris Templi Hierosolymitani). The most influential and serious one being the Commandery Charlemagne, an autonomous branch of O.S.M.T.H. presided in Nice (France) by the Grand Prior Jean Pierre Giudicelli, an old friend of mine, who I have talked about extensively in Volume I.

As was explained by the Spanish newspaper El País, the case in question was brought against Pope Benedict XVI, because he was the holder of the papal throne and successor of Clement V. With the revision of the process, and the new revelations made in the document found by Barbara Frale, the Neo-Templars do not want the return of their immense wealth, now estimated at around 100 billion euros, but they simply demanded “That the Court can give an idea to the size of the operation hatched against our Order.” The assets of the Knights Templar had approximately nine thousand properties, plus rights to lands, mills, harbors and boats, however the supposed heirs of the legendary order added: “We do not want to cause the economic collapse of the Roman Church.” The Asociación of Sousa Fontes went on and waited for the verdict of the appeal, which produced nothing. Meanwhile, in August 2008 the Italian newspaper La Repubblica, devoted an entire page of their newspaper to the case, with sensational headlines like: “The Knights Templar are rising” and phrases like “the Pope must rehabilitate our order.”³⁴ But these attention seekers are not the only ones: in 2011 the Grand Master Walter Grandis from Trieste, was expelled in 2002 from OSMTJ, and is now head of the Italian Grand Priory of the Knights Templar, a very influential group with extensive support in the Italian institutions, who asked the Pope for an official apology for putting Jacques de Molay, the last Grand Master of the Templars, to death at the stake. This improbable move was not given any importance by the Italian newspapers, but was instead reported by the wellknown British newspaper The Telegraph.³⁵

Let me remind you that these Neo-Templar realities come from the same stock that was later divided due to constant schisms, and problems often linked to wars happening in the high degrees of Freemasonry, even if the vertices are all united by a common strategy: a deep devotion towards the New World Order. Surely the majority of them (but not all) are not to be taken seriously from a historical point of view, if placed in direct relation to the original Order of the Knights Templar, as was explained to me by my friend and expert Cavalier Luciano Fortunato Sciandra, one of the main living historians of this phenomenon he calls “Templarism,” and others “Neo-Templarism.”

The Italian edition of Wikipedia describes Neo-Templarism in this way: “Neo-Templar groups are modern associations that go back to the tradition of the ancient Knights Templar.”

Neo-Templar groups officially recognized by the Vatican do not exist today, but there are some who have secret recognition by the Holy See. In this scenario there also plays an important role in the O.S.M.T.J.—Sovereign and Military Order of the Temple of Jerusalem, that today with the O.S.M.T.H., is testing in some countries with a possible reunification to O.S.M.T.J. In others a further division in adverse fringes, to better serve the divide and conquer geopolitical strategies of the hidden governments of the NWO. I must emphasize, however, that these orders, even if they do not have any historical continuity, with the Order of the original Templars, are linked with certain bloodlines and dynastic powers of the Illuminati. This gives them influence in certain political military and Masonic circles, and we find them often collaborating with more official knighthoods like the Knights of Columbus, guided by the Supreme Knight (Grand Master) Carl A. Anderson, deeply involved with the Vatican Bank, known as IOR, the reckless banking entity of the Holy See.

The Knights of Columbus, according to Jean-Pierre Giudicelli de Cressac Bachelier, who is also the supreme guide of the more legitimate affiliation of the Priory of Sion, used a commandery of the Priory, formed years ago in New York, to keep a regular connection with the Knights of Columbus. The Priory of Sion that appeared in the 1950s in France, is the result of geopolitical games and ancient affiliations of which I have already spoken of in Volume I. Today the Priory of Sion is partially active. Periodically some who claim to be its representatives attempt to influence writers and researchers, and many people have been deceived by these lies that have been devised only to create confusion. But despite the disillusionment that many will now feel with the Priory of Sion, it is important to note, that in the world there are genuine spiritual groups and individuals who are highly developed, who operate for the benefit of humanity, and Jean-Pierre Giudicelli de Cressac Bachelerie is certainly one of them. Domizio Cipriani, Grand Prior of the Ordre des Templiers de Jerusalem, in the Principality of Monaco, author and leader of an important chivalrous reality based in the Principality of Monaco, also linked to the Priory of Sion, describes the mythical Priory in the following way:

The “Priory of Sion,” the Fellowship of the Rosy Cross, the Supérieurs Inconnu. Basically are schools of thought, a living energy, a primitive core from the primordial vibration, of operational alchemy. They are places where the wise men of the Ormus society find themselves in meditation to understand the arcane, identifiable as an initiatic society formed by a discreet circle, are to be considered the true Temple. They are present in different parts of the world, they do not talk to each other, the date for receptions is January 17 feast of St. Roseline, the popular places are reused existing shrines, which were previously underground temples dedicated to gnostic deities such as Isis, Mithra, Dragon, where water is present as a matriarchal principle, and often we have black Madonnas that are hidden portals to Agharta. Some examples are Mont Saint Michel, Lourdes, Chartres. ... The Holy Sacrament is one of the top American organs, the emblem is a red cross with a white rose, a symbol of the Rosicrucis, members are like the signs of the zodiac, 13, divided into nine crusaders of Saint Jean, three Noachites Principles, a Grand Chevalier Natonnier named Jean. In parallel there are 72 Unknown Superiors. Other mysterious emblems are the Southern Cross of God’s children on the island of Atlantis, the cosmic symbol of the octopus, that is both representing the solar movement, the matriarchal essence, the eight arms of the octagon, the cross, the wheel, the swastika; The other peculiarity is the multipersonality of some characters that have inspired films like Arsene Lupin, The Saint, 007. or anagrams according to the theory: if you want to hide the truth make it obvious! The Essenes mirrors on which the symbols have to be interpreted backwards. The rituals evoke primitive energies fueling inhalation and exhalation of cosmic energy, cosmic principle of positive and negative vibration, vibrational duality of red and green; the man who shares the manna with the invisible when, at certain moments of equinox and solstice, the grids of the hermetic traditions open. These rituals are performed in the three rooms where you work the seven alchemical degrees. ³⁶

You may wonder who Domizio Cipriani is, especially after reading his words. Well

Domizio hopes to become a disciple of Jean-Pierre Giudicelli de Cressac Bachelerie, key figure of the French esoteric scene, who works today in the inner circles on the good side of the Illuminati, and holds the real secrets of international Neo-Templarism. But Domizio is also connected to Giorgio Hugo Balestrieri and Ezio Giunchiglia of the Montecarlo Lodge, who is his real mentor, and describes him in an introduction note to a recent booklet published by the same Cipriani, entitled Templar Order, in the following way: “Domizio Cipriani is truly an enlightened sage, eclectic and vibrant, authentic and new protagonist with other Freemasons to the construction of a new path, traced for the evolution of humanity to be freed from all evil. Therefore, the Priory of Monte Carlo in the Principality of Monaco, is the spearhead for a wise evolving international group of Knights Templar that is the continuation of the new and renovated Masonry of The United Grand Lodge of England who works to help those most in need. Let us always remember that life is a moment ... and that’s why when we get up every morning, we have to thank the Lord for giving us a new moment.”³⁷

36 Domizio Cipriani , Templar Order, (Foggia, IT: Bastogi Editrice, 2016), p. 61.

The Knights of the Temple are therefore present everywhere in the Western initiatic system, even in Montecarlo, and although there are plenty of scoundrels who love an easy cloak, the way of true initiation into the mysteries of the Knights Templar is still open for a privileged few.

Domizio Cipriani’s view on the true Templar tradition, which he links to the Rosicrucians is the following:

From the dawn of time ancient civilizations in the vicinity of these statues would gather in a circle and were celebrated with rituals. Druids and bishops practiced these rituals around a statue, a tree, a spring, a fire. .. and the circle of Saint Jean. In Hindu Egyptian and Greek representations, the snake is placed in a circle which means the universal way, in which the magical agent, the engine and the driving force is the light; it is as the snake that is coiled around the circumference of a hermetic cross, as it represents to the alchemists the unity of matter and at the same time the universal fluid or perpetual renewal of nature. It is not the circle itself which has in it a profound sacred significance, it is the moving circle, the wheel, in fact, and for the initiated the lotus flower in the Far East. In rotation means supreme knowledge, the rose window of the cathedrals in Europe is the rose of the initiates, the “rota” the wheel.³⁸

Then Cipriani adds about the “Merovingians” in a cryptic manner with a clear Apocalyptic flare:

I was on the sand of the sea, and saw a beast out of the sea, having seven heads and ten horns, and on his horns ten crowns, and on his heads the name of blasphemy. And the beast which I saw was like a leopard, and his feet were as the feet of a bear, and his mouth as the mouth of a lion: and the dragon gave him his power, his throne and great authority. The emblem of bear rampant ... depicts just that—the constellation of the Bear linked to Earth’s Pole, and dance around it. The two bears, eleven bees, and the Fleur de Lys; the motto reads et in Arcadia ego. Arcadia = 127, which is the number of the Egyptian Goddess Heqt. The tradition Typhonian or Draconian refers to the secret doctrine of the Ordo Draconis, the Order of the Dragon that is associated with the Rosicrucians: “In 1408 ... the Dragon Court was formally reconstituted as a sovereign body at a time of wars and general political unrest. The re-emergence of the Court has been wanted by Sigismund von Luxemburg, king of Hungary, a descendant of Lusignan Dragon King of Jerusalem. After he inherited in 1397, drew up a pact with twenty-three nobles who swore to observe ‘true and pure brotherhood within the Societas Draconis (then called Ordo Draconis)—In Hungary: Sarkany Rend in the founding document ... and stated that members of the Court could wear the insignia of a dragon bent in a circle, with a red cross—the symbol of the original Rosicrucis. Godfrey of Bouillon, was the first Grand Master of the Priory of Sion. The ancient pedigree of the Dragon succession, which began with Cain.”³⁹

Domizio Cipriani says, as others before him, that the Priory of Sion was founded by Godfrey of Bouillon, and actually the “Abbey of Our Lady of Mount Sion,” was founded in 1099 in Jerusalem, by Godfrey of Bouillon. They obviously had nothing to do with the modern day “Priory” founded by Pierre Plantard, because this religious community apparently died out in the fourteenth century. They survived until 1617, when the few remaining monks entered the Society of Jesus, with the usual Jesuits. An established fact, is that Godfrey of Bouillon founded the Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem, which is considered by historians, together with the Order of Malta, the oldest Chivalric Order of the Catholic Church still in existence. Godfrey of Bouillon is also recognized by the Masonic Rite of Strict Observance, as the protector of the Order. The Templars are therefore critical to understand not only Neo-

Templarism, the Rosicrucians or the High degrees of Freemasonry, and the Illuminati, but also the notion of chivalry in the broad sense, and the aristocracy itself in the Western world, thus leading us to the greatest mysteries of mankind and the elite bond of the royal families with the Gods, who in Sumerian tradition were called the Annunaki. The Templars are therefore not only the result of Christianity, but of something much older, that leads as Cipriani states, in the handing down of the esoteric teachings known by Jesus Himself, who was, according to this tradition, a Great Initiate to the Ancient Mysteries. This for the initiated, is the true Holy Grail, which was one of the strongest myths of Christianity in the late Middle Ages. However the Templars have always been considered the “Guardians” of an ancient holy relic with that name, but the question is are they still in possession of this legendary relic? From my research it seems they are indeed, even though it might have wound up in the wrong hands after all, because many of these modern Neo-Templar emanations are corrupted by Satanism and the occult. However many esoteric traditions have understood “the Grail” as a symbol and a vehicle for the metaphysical knowledge over the centuries, and as Massimo Scaligero, a great Italian initiate and disciple of Rudolph Steiner, once wrote, and is conceived by many initiates: “an imaginative and narrative form of meditation. They take as basis a well described ‘spiritual object,’ they focus upon it according to a thin line of esoteric criticism, and they believe is so well fixed into their memory, they think they will be able to grasp it a second time, without realizing that for an effective communion with the upper level the object of meditation is secondary to the action committed in the lower level. The object is only the pretext it can be a tree, the sun, a tradition, a concept, a simple thing among things.”⁴⁰

A concept for real initiates, but in addition to such a genuine form of spirituality that revolves around the Holy Grail in various schools and mystery traditions, there is also a physical reality of the object in question. A physical object, also known as the “The Holy Grail,” that is supposedly in the hands of someone. That someone is for many, the previously cited Dr. Antonio Leonardo Montuoro, the Neo-Templar exceptionally linked to the Vatican, and in particular to the Jesuits, who aside from being Grand Officialis of Rocco Zingaro’s Neo-Templars (FIG. 37) started not so long ago that The Order of the Knights of the Temple of the Holy Spirit was recognized by the Vatican (although in a rather reserved manner), together with his friend, the previously mentioned Enrico Marinelli, former Prefect and Coordinator of Security Services for the Vatican at the time of Pope John Paul II. ⁴¹

Grail. Montuoro, that the deceased Polish Pope named “Man of the Holy Spirit,” is a renowned and highly rated personality within the Church, and tied to the powerful Propaganda Fide, now the Congregation for the Evangelization of Peoples. The latter owns, according to the latest estimates, real estate and assets around nine billion euros, scattered in Rome and around the world among the thousands of apartments and residential luxury buildings often occupied, at least in Italy, by VIP’s subservient to the Vatican. It was June 22, 1622, when Pope Gregory XV, with the bull Inscrutabili Divinae Providentiae founded the famous Congregation of Propaganda Fide, with the specific task of spreading the Catholic faith throughout the world. To this end, this Vatican institution “coordinates and exercises jurisdiction over the Holy See’s missions and promotes the formation of the clergy and the local hierarchies.”⁴²

Montuoro’s work with the Order of the Knights of the Temple of the Holy Spirit, whose official seat is in Via XX Settembre 98 / G in Rome (a few steps from the Italian Ministry of Defence) also revolves around the highly secret Vatican Secret Services, of which Montuoro is a liaison officer with the Italian Government, hence the convenient location of his headquarters. Montuoro also has a strong link with Rome’s Black Nobility, heirs of ancient bloodlines related to Roman emperors and gods, that are still secretly at the apex of the globalist elite. Nicola La Marca, Professor of History at the Sapienza University in Rome, entitled an excellent book published a few years ago The Roman Nobility and the Perpetuation of its Power Tools.⁴³ The journalist Raffaele Gambari commented on La Marca’s work in 2012, stating the following about the Black Nobility: “It is still very obsequious to clergy, I do not know if on the basis of faith or tradition, or for duty. Pope Montini officially abolished aristocracy in the Vatican City. However in the current political situation a part of this social group sympathizes with left wing politics.”

Surprised by the fact the aristocrats are leftists these days? Unfortunately, it is very chic for the elite to be leftist, even among the families of the black nobility traditionally linked to the extreme right in the past. A communism façade for the elite that fits in the New World Order of Obama, Hillary Clinton, Pope Francis and of course their “Masters” the Jesuits, in an attempt to make themselves more acceptable to the people-sheep who seem to appreciate such a demented move made increasingly more obvious in the last few years. These people are the power tools of the “Invisible Masters,” and represent the ultimate expression of their millennial hypocrisy, that of George Soros, who has now taken up the cause of a soulless technocracy—the Bilderberg Club—but uses at the same time the Church to legitimize such a terrible scenario. Jesuit Pope Francis, a communist that appeals to Democrats, and the leftists around the world, is deceived by this Satanic farce. In reality these supposed “Democrats” are nothing more than “fascists” of the New World Order. They want to impose their vision to others as the only possible way, even if made of absurd and unnatural compromises. You can see clearly watching the presidential campaign in the US., that Russia and Wikileaks were able to publish reserved and top secret material, and how they possibly work behind the scenes, with alien forces, to manipulate our reality, a subject I explore in my next book Invisible Master. Aliens want to help mankind but fear our violent tendencies, at least this is what Jean-Pierre Giudicelli de Cressac Bachelerie said in Volume I of my Confessions.⁴⁴ According to an email exchange revealed by Wikileaks, during the heated presidential campaign in October 2016, mails sent by astronaut Edgar Mitchell to John Podesta made public by the popular site, showed an impending space war, and confirmed once more the Vatican’s knowledge of alien life. “Remember, our nonviolent ETI from the contiguous universe are helping us bring zero point energy to Earth. They will not tolerate any forms of military violence on Earth or in space.”⁴⁵ Podesta was serving as counselor to President Barack Obama during this exchange, before he left the position to become chairman of Hillary Clinton’s presidential campaign. At a 2002 news conference organized by Coalition for Freedom of Information, Podesta stated that “It is time for the government to declassify records that are more than 25 years old and to provide scientists with data that will assist in determining the real nature of this phenomenon.” Why are they not doing that? Well that will show the real nature of the elite, and the great lie of democracy, which has never really existed on this planet. However, also keep in mind the gradual alien invasion from their “contiguous universe” as I mentioned in Volume II of my Confessions.

The Holy Grail

The Seborga Files

orshipful Brother Donald Falconer, a member of the Craft for many years, and a known Masonic author, wrote in 1999: “Freemasonry’s association with the Holy Grail began with the building of the temple at Jerusalem.

The fundamental tenets of Freemasonry reflect the Grail Code, which is a desire to serve and in serving to achieve.” So how did this connection start, and why are the Knights Templar involved? Falconer describes the Holy Grail in his masterpiece entitled, The Square and Compasses: In Search of Freemasonry, a collection of papers on the many aspects of Freemasonry presented to various Masonic bodies over a 40-year period.

The Holy Grail is traditionally the cup or chalice Christ used at the last supper. Grail is an Anglicised form of the Old French graal or greal, meaning a dish, which derived from the Latin gradalis from the Greek krater meaning a cup or bowl. In a spiritual sense, the Holy Grail is the Sangréal, which in common usage is said to mean the real blood of Christ. However Sang Réal is French for Blood Royal, which in its accepted usage designates the royal bloodline of David descending through Jesus to the present day. At first sight, there may seem to be little, if any, connection between the Holy Grail and Freemasonry, because the popular conceptions of the Holy Grail have largely been fashioned by the search for the Holy Grail, that is a key element in the romances of King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table. In fact, the first inkling we have of an association between Freemasonry and the Holy Grail is a statement in I Chronicles 17:1, when King David said: “I dwell in a house of cedar, but the Ark of God dwelleth within curtains.” Later, when King David had subdued the Philistines, the Moabites and the Syrians, he purchased the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite as the site for the temple on Mount Moriah, collected building materials and gathered treasure to finance the work. In I Chronicles 22:6-8 however, we are told of King David: “Then he called for Solomon his son and charged him to build a house for the Lord God of Israel. And David said to Solomon, my son, as for me it was in my mind to build a house unto the name of the Lord my God: But the word of the Lord came to me, saying, ‘Thou hast shed blood abundantly and hast made great wars: thou shalt not build a house unto my name, because thou hast shed much blood upon the earth in my sight.’”

The link between Freemasonry and the Holy Grail became a reality in the fourth year of King Solomon’s reign, when he commenced construction of the temple at Jerusalem, about 480 years after the Exodus when Moses led the Israelites out of Egypt. The temple was in the area that is now called Haram esh-Sherif, which is on the east side of the Old City of Jerusalem, where the mosque known as the Dome of the Rock now stands.

In I Kings 5:17-18 we read of King Solomon: “And the king commanded and they brought great stones, costly stones and hewed stones, to lay the foundation of the house. And Solomon’s builders and Hiram’s builders did hew them, and the stonesquarers: so they prepared timber and stones to build the house.”

This Authurian tale is actually not all fiction, and has direct relevance to the establishment of the Celtic Church and early Freemasonry in Britain, as well as to the formation of the crusaders, Soldiers of Christ who became the Knights Templar, and the guardians of the Holy Grail.¹ At the time of the daring research into the mysteries of the Holy Grail that was conducted in the book, The Holy Blood and The Holy Grail, written by the late researchers Michael Baigent, Richard Leigh and Henry Lincoln, as well as their controversial statements on a supposed bloodline of Jesus. A connection with ancient traditions allegedly transmitted to the mysterious Priory of Sion, a story with no real evidence, that inspired Dan Brown. The authors demonstrated to the world that the Holy Grail was linked to the Cathars and the Knights Templar. This discovery is still considered credible by most historians. A few years later, an interesting “Open Letter to John Paul II” surfaced, written in Toulouse, on January 26, 1998, in which the original signatories were none other than the French politician Dominique Baudis (1947 – 2014), at the time mayor of Toulouse, (repeatedly elected also to the EU parliament), and Farge Bertran, engineer, author and Cathar historian, president of the organization Flame Cathar, also mayor of Toulouse between 2001 and 2008. In this letter, both these politicians emphasized how the latest discoveries in science had helped to demonstrate that the Cathar religion was actually truly and deeply Christian in nature, in an attempt to change the view that contemporary historians have on the matter.

Strangely enough, Dominique Baudis was implicated in a case that seems artfully assembled relative to the serial killer Patrice Alegre, from which he was exonerated completely only three years later, perhaps to punish him for his “Open letter to John Paul II,” and his inconvenient revelations about the Cathars. There is also, a direct link between the Cathars, the Priory of Sion, and a mysterious place called Seborga, in Italy, near the border with France, that I need to tell you more about.

Since the 1950s some members of the community of Seborga related to international Freemasonry, and the world of Neo-Templarism, claimed independence from the Italian Republic, by virtue of an alleged ancient principality status of this location, deeming the earlier annexation to the kingdom of Sardinia invalid. The citizens of Seborga elected a prince with purely symbolic function, with no way of being recognized for their independent status. From the 14th of May 1963, until the 25th of November 2009, the date of his death, the role was played by Giorgio Carbone (George I), and from 25 April, 2010 to the present, by Menegatto Marcello. But why is a prince with no real power, assisted by a council of nine ministers, and a principality whose coins are just ridiculous currency, called the Luigino? The name was inspired by the coins principality, where they were originally minted in the seventeenth century, but I repeat such currency has no legal value (supposed value of the so-called Luigino is set to a fixed rate of 6 U.S. dollars). Why is this a place of importance to an influential organization such as the Knights Templar? Well, there are many legends and stories that bind this particular place to the Templar world, and lead us to understand that since ancient times, it has not only been a location of strategic importance for the Knights Templar, but it is linked to its origins and perhaps at one point, to the Holy Grail, that was hidden here, amongst other holy relics. The Principality of Seborga is located in the Ligurian hinterland, on the famous and beautiful Riviera dei Fiori. In the surrounding mountains, a Celtic tribe used it to bury their dead, and it seems that the Cathar heretics deem the area so sacred to choose it, in turn, as a burial place for their priests. That would explain the origin of the ancient name of Seborga, coming from Castrum sepulchres, the sepulcher. Land of the Counts of Ventimiglia up until the year 954, the castle was later traded to the Benedictine monks of the abbey of Lérins, and in the year one thousand became principality of the Holy Roman Empire led by a Prince-Abbot, invested by the pope of temporal and spiritual authority.

In 1117, the Bernard of Clairvaux, a known French theologian and founder of the Abbey of Clairvaux, who wrote down the rule of the Knights Templar, reached Seborga with two of his brothers, the monks and future abbots Gondemar and Rossal. It is said that this was done with the task of safeguarding a “Big Secret,” the same one that in 1127, during a solemn ceremony that saw the participation of the Cathar priest, Giovanni de Usson. Bernard himself was sworn to protect the secret with a vow of silence. It seems that Gondemar and Rossal transmitted to posterity, the necessary information regarding this secret, and an allusion to Jerusalem by the means of an engraved stone still present in Séborga. (FIG. 38)

From Seborga, Bernard of Clairvaux expanded the Order of Cistercian monks, turning the small principality to the only Cistercian Sovereign State in the world. And, in September 1118, the prince-abbot Edward, who was the reigning prince of the time, consecrated the first nine Knights Templars who formed the famous Poor Army of Christ, that later constituted the original nucleus of the Knights Templar. It included the Abbots Gondemar and Rossal, André de Montbar, the Count Hugues 1st of Champagne, Hugues de Payens, Payen de MontDidier, Geoffroy de Saint-Omer, Archambaud de Saint Amand and Geoffroy Bisol.

In November 1118, eight knights left for Jerusalem, and were placed by Baudouin of Boulogne, brother of Godefroy de Bouillon, in the stables of King Solomon. Hugues de Champagne joined them six years later. The nine Knights Templar returned to Seborga in 1127. The Archives of King Solomon was repatriated, as well as certain relics linked to the temple of King Solomon, but also relics linked to the crucifixion of Jesus-Christ, and some say to the Holy Grail. At that point, Hugues de Payens was designated by Saint Bernard de Clairvaux, to be the first Grand Master of the Knights of Saint-Bernard, and was consecrated by the sword by the Prince-Abbot Edward. It is said that an oath of silence was then pronounced between the Knights of Saint-Bernard, and the High Priest of Cathar, to maintain and defend the Great Secret. ²The legend says that Seborga's "Great Secret" miraculously defended the town from destruction, looting and even natural disasters, for centuries, and it may be linked to the sensational discoveries that have been attributed precisely to the first nine Poor Knights of Christ, who went to the Holy Land to protect pilgrims visiting the holy sites of Christianity. They were allowed by Baldwin II, King of Jerusalem, to set up camp on the ruins of the Temple of King Solomon, (hence the name of the Templars), and once there, based their headquarters. According to unofficial sources, they would make many excavations in the labyrinthine foundations, in search of the sacred relics that were said to have been hidden by the priests, before the looting and destruction of the Temple of King Solomon by the Romans. Among other hypotheses that have been formulated to explain the nature of Seborga's secret, there is the possibility they even hold the bandages that wrapped the body of Jesus Christ, the authentic Shroud, the nails of the Cross, and the legendary Holy Grail. Among other things, it seems that in 1611, the last secret General Chapter of a legitimate affiliation of the Templar Order under the auspices of the Prince-Abbot of Seborga, Father Cesario from Sao Paulo, was held in Seborga. To sanction this occasion, they placed on every roof of the Principality, 13 tiles engraved with the date 1611, the number 13, the acronym c.s. and the Templar cross. In 1729, the Principality was sold to Vittorio Amedeo II, Prince of Savoy, Piedmont and King of Sardinia, although the transaction proves that it was never recorded or paid for. In fact in 1815, during the Congress of Vienna, it was not mentioned as being part of the Kingdom of Sardinia. Its independence was in fact not recognized until 1946, by the Italian Kingdom, but with the establishment of the Republic, the ancient Principality was automatically considered an integral part of the Italian state in 1962. But the Seborgans rebelled against Rome, proclaiming their independence—never officially recognized—electing a year later, for their prince, George I. But to understand more about Seborga and the Holy Grail, there's an interesting report on the subject by the aforementioned Domizio Cipriani:

In the middle of the twelfth century the Knights Templar (consecrated by St. Bernard and invested by the Prince Abbot of Seborga, Prince Edward) which then assumed the title of Sanctus Sepulchrum, erected in Seborga the "Mansion of the Temple;" the building, which I can not say more, houses the Holy Relic, the Great Secret of Seborga, which they found in Jerusalem and brought here secretly. A story, picked up two centuries ago, reports the presence in Seborga of the Cathar (Bishop?) Johann de Usson, which would ensure that St. Bernard and His Knights with the later contribution of the Cathars acted in defense and custody of the Holy Relic. Registries from the Abbey of St. Honore Lerino say that at the end of the fifteenth century, by order of an Abbot Prince, the Cathar community had to move to another location, which still has the peculiar name of "The Peverei," not to be confused with another building, not far away from that one, perfectly preserved, called "The Cristiai," also built and inhabited by the Seborgan Cathars.

More than a word deserves the influence they have had in Seborga's religion, the Judeo-Christianity and Celtic Christianity of the origins. Here, however, the situation is different, for the existence, well-known by Saint Bernard, of the Holy Relic hidden in Seborga and that, according to him, could be jeopardized by the Cathars; this must have been the motivation of his meeting with the Cathar Johann de Usson.³

FIG. 39 – The Grand Preceptor for Italy of S.M.T.H.O. Rocco Zingaro (1941 – 2011).

After realizing the importance of the town Seborga, in the long saga of the Knights Templar and its possible connection to a variety of holy relics that may have been kept there, including the Holy Grail, let's move forward now in search of the present owner and location of this legendary object that is of great importance for all the Illuminati sects operating today.

The Holy Grail revealed

o understand better where the Holy Grail is hidden, I must first trace back in history how the Templar Order has survived to this day, in the many, perhaps too many, emanations more or less fictional or legendary, which derive from both Masonry and Jesuit inspired Neo-Templarism. From the latter, the affiliation was led for many years by the Italian Count Rocco Zingaro (1941 – 2011), a very mysterious character, and in some ways controversial, not affiliated to the aforementioned succession of Sousa Fontes, who as I have already shown above, is perhaps one of the most influential in modern NeoTemplarism linked to the New World Order and the Masonic / Zionist matrix, and its American Catholic lobby led ultimately by the Knights of Columbus, which within their initiations, relate to the Templar history and its symbols. The affiliation of Rocco Zingaro came from the “Brazilian” Neo-Templar branch of the Inellas succession, considered close to the Catholic Church. In 1981, Gabriel Inellas, of the famous Palaiologos dynasty, who in some documents signed as “Inellas” (1913 – 1987), will appoint Rocco Zingaro, who he ordered to become a Knight, and soon after, Grand Preceptor of S.M.T.H.O., as head of the Italian Knights Templar, for a program of rapprochement with the Catholic

3 Domizio Cipriani, Ibid., pp. 39-40-41.

Church after their historic break of 1307.

The S.M.T.H.O.—Internationally led by Gabriel César Inellas Zaccaria, born in 1947, who succeeded his father the aforementioned Gabriel Inellas, began a variety of cultural activities associated to the Neo-Templars, including the establishment, in 1990, of a University of the Knights Templar, making repeated requests to the Holy See to “rehabilitate” the Templars. But perhaps the greatest awareness at a public level of the Grand Preceptor Rocco Zingaro (FIG. 39), and his Order, will come after his controversial statement made on the 17th of August 1995, echoed later by the international press. Zingaro shocked the world by saying he was in possession of the Holy Grail, which would be presented on the occasion of his wedding, by Professor Antonio Ambrosini, a professor at the University of Rome who claimed to have retrieved it in an Egyptian Coptic monastery. Five years later, there was an attempt to legitimize this important discovery by Don Luigi Maria Verzè (1920-2011), a key figure of the Vatican, responsible for leading the Hospital San Raffaele in Milan, which in June 2000, did a thorough series of scientific examinations on the object in question, and used it for a ritual, as Don Verzè himself states, in a formal letter of request written to Rocco Zingaro. However, according to Zingaro, the positive results of these tests had to remain secret (both documents can be viewed in FIG. 40). The late Don Verzè spoke in the same letter of a “divine test,” and Zingaro said that after these examinations they wished to give the Holy Grail to the American people for their great sacrifice during WWII. So I wonder why things have changed? Why did such an important discovery disappear in the maze of the Vatican, instead of being brought to the USA? This relic was held in secret for years, by Rocco and his Neo-Templars, headed by Montuoro and Marinelli, and even the scientists par excellence of the Church, the infamous Jesuits. The former General of the Order, Father Peter Hans Kolvenbach, member of “Entity,” the Papal intelligence service, was also impressed. It was the former black pope, who at the time said to Montuoro, that it may be authentic, but in the absence of further testing they had to accept this item, at least for now, in the form of a testimony of faith, and for this reason, it must be kept safeguarded, which Montuoro surely has done. After the examinations made in Milan by Don Verzé, Father Kolvenbach advised them to not show this relic in public, as its nature frightened the leaders of the Church.

● Da secoli la sacra coppa è stata al centro di ricerche ● Persino un'opera wagneriana, il "Parsifal", ne ha narrato le ricerche ● Adesso sembra che da anni fosse custodita a Forni

E' DI OPALINA AZZURRA Roma. Ecco un ingrandimento della coppa che Rocco Zingaro di San Fedele vuole dire essere il Sacro Graal. Si tratta di un vaso di opalina azzurra, alta nove centimetri e larga alla base sette, fregiato da due maniglie. Nel corso dei secoli, la leggenda del Sacro Graal ha interessato studiosi e archeologi di tutto il mondo. In particolare due studiosi inglesi, Graham Hancock e Graham Phillips, si sono occupati della coppa. Secondo Hancock, il Sacro Graal non è un calice ma l'Arca dell'Alleanza dove Mosè custodiva le Tavole della Legge ricevute da Dio, e si troverebbe in una cappella di Anson, in Virginia. Phillips sostiene, invece, che il Sacro Graal si trova nella casa di un'aristocrazia pubblicitaria di Coventry, in Inghilterra. Ma, al di là delle parole, nessuno ha mai fornito una prova attendibile del ritrovamento.

va sono la stessa cosa. Graham Phillips, l'italiano eccitante divulgatore di queste storie di cose vicine, recentemente individuò la coppa, "quella" coppa, in casa di una dispendiosa pubblicitaria di Coventry, in Inghilterra. Ma l'ultimo anno era insospettabile come dall'Italia da Roma: «Il congegno non è etrusco, e alla persona di cui nella serie dei Cavalieri Templari, a Roma, mi rammento il nome non lo so. Che il Derrida è etrusco, e successivamente è l'altro notizia. Feci per il primo volta di un'analisi a un'analisi, non, questo è l'autentico Sacro Graal. Fanciulli di Rocco Zingaro come di San Fedele vuole che nell'Ordine cavalleresco dei Cavalieri Templari ricopre la carica di Gran Maestro. Insomma Rocco Zingaro è il "re" in Italia dei Templari (non con circa un migliaio, come Sebastian James de Lima, che risiede in Brasile, è il Gran Maestro "capo" dell'Ordine dei Cavalieri sparsi nel mondo).

«Non posso vedere prove o documenti, eccetto una di Gran Maestro: «E' forse altri testimoni a tacere, se quella notizia inglese, il professor Phillips, non avesse detto di aver ritrovato la Sacra coppa». Rocco Zingaro esibisce quindi il reperto, che è un vaso di opalina dal colore azzurrognolo, alto nove centimetri e largo sette alla base, fregiato da due maniglie. Sul fondo si notano incrostazioni di colore bruno. Poi Zingaro spiega le mode, non affatto turche, attraverso le quali se viene in possesso vennero così fa.

«La storia del ritrovamento del calice è simile a quella del ritrovamento della Sindone. Questo fu detto di notte a Margherita di Savoia, la cui famiglia possiede dei Cavalieri Templari. Il Sacro Graal stomando la società in un volgare agglomerato edonistico collettivo senza più anime distinte. L'estasi infatti è prerogativa del singolo nella individuale ricerca che lo pone al di sopra della massa amorfa come eroe di se stesso per un accostamento alla divinità assoluta.

Il vero assunto del templarismo, rigenerato dai miti arturiani che la scrittrice Norma Goodrich ha con rigorose ricerche storiche tolto dalla pura leggenda, rimane pertanto quello di una fusione tra la spada magica Excalibur e la coppa misterica del Graal elemento coagulante delle aspirazioni regali dell'essere umano, nonché simbolo di unione di un Ordine mondiale, politico (saraceno ed ebraico) il cui precursore lo si può ritrovare nella figura ormai non più leggendaria, ma storica, del mago Merlino, ove l'Uno è legato alla Terra e la Terra all'Uno.

Sicché la difesa della Terra Santa e con essa del Tempio di Salomone, oggi i Templari la in-tendono come difesa del Tempio che è nella profondità di ogni essere quale Ego sovrano, puro, eroico, difensore delle leggi dettate da un assoluto cosmico fattosi croce per un riscatto ancora da venire, ma fortemente da ricercare per la salvezza del mondo, oggi in una crisi profonda.

Tutto questo è l'Opera Regia che l'attuale Gran Precettore, ultimo discendente degli innumerevoli capi dell'Ordine dei Templari, il conte Rocco Zingaro di San Ferdinando, porta avanti con sacrifici, profonda fede, eccelsa purezza, unitamente a tutti i Cavalieri sotto i suoi ordini ancora oggi operanti.

Come allora, gli attuali monaci guerrieri potranno ritirarsi intorno ad una mitica Tavola Rotonda ove il Sacro Graal appare agli stupefatti antichi cavalieri tra cui Lancillotto, Parsifal, Gaal, accanto al Re Artù e alla regina Ginevra.

La leggendaria Coppa del Sacro Graal, di cui i Templari sono stati ritenuti i depositari e che oggi ne sono i custodi, finalmente sarà possibile ammirarla.

La sua autenticità è documentata da varie verifiche di teologi e professori universitari i quali ne hanno potuto constatare l'appartenenza ad una giusta epoca storica.

Uno straordinario sacro oggetto che unitamente alla famosa Sindone completa il quadro misterioso relativo alle reliquie di un primigenio cristianesimo, che tanto hanno fatto discutere gli studiosi di tutto il mondo.

Ormai tanti fatti biblici hanno trovato conferma tramite le ricerche archeologiche nei luoghi santi e quello che spesso si credeva soltanto leggenda ha il più delle volte avuto riscontri con una realtà storica accertata. Il terzo millennio si aprirà con queste nuove verità.

Dopo le rivalutazioni storiche di avvenimenti fino a poco tempo fa ritenuti soltanto leggende, oggi i Templari godono della protezione e benedizione del Patriarca di Antiochia e di tutto l'Oriente, del Patriarca di Gerusalemme e di vari Vescovi ed Arcivescovi. Sono riconosciuti da diversi governi ed intrattengono relazioni diplomatiche con moltissimi Stati. Nel 1987 hanno firmato un documento di pace e fratellanza con alti responsabili dell'Islam.

Il loro riconoscimento internazionale è accettato perché la Bolla di Clemente V è considerata dagli storici, illegittima e capita con il ricatto. Infatti, il papa precedente, Clemente IV nel 1265 emanò la Dignum Esse Cospicuum, una Bolla che contemplava il divieto assoluto per chiunque a processare i Templari per qualsiasi ragione, pena la scomunica e interdizione.

Ne risulterebbe il paradosso di un Papa scomunicato da un altro Papa e quindi non legittimo nel momento stesso che firmava lo scioglimento dell'Ordine guerriero!

Un bel grattacapo per un tribunale se oggi volesse riguardare tutta la questione.

FIG. 42 – The discovery of the mythical Holy Grail and the ashes of Jacques de Molay, the last Grand Master of the Templars, by the Grand Preceptor Rocco Zingaro, reported in the early 1990s in Italian newspapers.

Dr. Montuoro confided that in 2011, after the death of Count Rocco Zingaro, they were ready to relocate the object to their future Temple of the Holy Spirit in Palestrina, once the construction of the ambitious project was ultimated. However, the construction of this Temple was abandoned in 2014 for lack of funds, so now who has Rocco Zingaro's Holy Grail? The sudden bad state of health of the Grand Preceptor Rocco Zingaro, who died in mid-August of 2011, certainly helped the characters around him in their mission to finally obtain the supposed Holy Grail, and other relics of importance, including the ashes of Jacob De Molay (FIGS. 41, 42, 43), that wound up in the possession of Antonio Leonardo Montuoro. According to Montuoro this happened in a legitimate manner, according to ancient Templar tradition, as Montuoro was for years the Grand Officialis of Zingaro's Order. Montuoro then stashed everything in a safe in Loreto and later brought them to his villa in Calabria, claiming they were now property of his Order, which was founded in 2009, with former Prefect Enrico Marinelli. (FIG. 44) Montuoro started this chilvaric project at the Casa Bonus Pastor of Via Aurelia, 208 in Rome, on Vatican soil, to lay the foundations of his new Neo-Templar Order in Vatican territory, where he would benefit from such status. Montuoro went on to formally merge the two orders in 2011, when the late Rocco Zingaro was now out of the picture, Montuoro and Marinelli could proceed with the creation of their order from the ashes of Zingaro's Neo-Templar lineage. ⁴ Marinelli, who is a key figure in the Vatican, wrote a book about his experience as top security adviser for Pope John Paul II, called Pope Wojtyla and the General. ⁵

with his being a Catholic.

Zingaro's Order at the time of its foundation, has the tacit approval and support of Pope John Paul II, and his successor Joseph Ratzinger, who by no accident called himself Benedict XVI, due to the fact that he would be reunited in spirit, body and soul to the Benedictine Order, and therefore to the Cistercians that emanated from it, and of course the Templars whose rule was written by a Cistercian. The Rule of the Templars, was in fact prepared in Troyes, in 1129, by St. Bernard of Clairvaux. The Templars were said to be the continuation of a secret order created by Saint Benedict, to defend true Christian values, but also to defend the origins of their knowledge that pre-dates the advent of Christianity, as reported by the Vatican scholar and historian of the Knights Templar, Luciano Fortunato Sciandra, legitimate successor of Rocco Zingaro, as I have already written in Pope Francis: The Last Pope?:

Cav. Rocco Zingaro died in 2011 under circumstances that some of his friends and closest collaborators, including a character who I have spoken of previously, Luciano Sciandra of the Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulcher, consider unclear, if not downright suspicious. Sciandra, who was also involved in running Zingaro's Templar order before the Marinelli-Montuoro takeover, speaks in particular of a phone call that he received from Zingaro a week before his death in which the Grand Preceptor of the Order of the Temple told him that he was in a life threatening situation and terrorized. A conversation in which he said: "they want to kill me just like they did Jacob De Molay." ⁶

In memory of Rocco Zingaro: A Templar in possession of the Holy Grail
O

On Sunday, January 29, 2012, in the Basilica of Santa Maria, a strange mysterious Mass was celebrated, in honor of the deceased Knight and Grand Preceptor of the Templars, Rocco Zingaro. Celebrating the Mass was a friend and collaborator of Dr. Montuoro, known Military Chaplain Monsignor Gino of Ciocco, who besides being one of the Most Rev. Honorary Canons of that Basilica, is also known for being the Military Chaplain of the Italian Contingent "Italfor Kabul 10" that operated in Afghanistan. It was definitely a Mass full of famous people from the Opus Dei, various Chilvaric Orders and the Masonic world including the author of this book, (FIG. 45) and even my mother Jessica Lyon Young, plus the presence of numerous dignitaries of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite including Danilo Tiberi, in the past involved with the Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis. Among the many representatives of military and religious institutions, stood the fig ure of Enrico Marinelli. In 2005, when the health of Wjojtyla became worse, the prefect went to the Vatican and shortly before losing consciousness, the Holy Father called a few friends, and among them was his “General,” as John Paul II always called Marinelli, who is now the head of the Neo-Templar movement within the Vatican. This shows without a doubt that the NeoTemplar Jesuit matrix is definitely at the top of Vatican power, and that they inherited the tradition of Rocco Zingaro. He lived the last years of his life in a protected residence, “Oasi Ave Maria” in Loreto, and that “Protected Residence” basically was Zingaro’s prison, where Montuoro could control him in the last years of his earthly life.

Dr. Antonio Leonardo Montuoro, born in Calabria in 1955, with a degree in Political Science, is the director of the rest home and Protected Residence “Oasi Ave Maria” based in Loreto (AN) in Via Leonessa 3, but Montuoro is also a Provincial President of the European Association of Police operators. Montuoro is therefore also a policeman, so is the rest just a cover? He also holds Institutional and Honorary professional positions such as Minister and President of the SFO—Delegation Pontifical Secular Franciscan Order of Loreto (AN). But in the official curriculum of Antonio Leonardo Montuoro available on the web, there is no reference to his past activities with the Order of Neo-Templar of Rocco Zingaro—of which I have photographic documentation. Zingaro died in his “Oasis” in Loreto in August, 2011 leaving Montuoro the supposed Holy Grail and the supposed ashes of the last Grand Master of the Templars, Jacob de Molay, now hidden from the public by Montuoro.

Rocco Zingaro, born in Puglia in 1941, to an ancient family of Templar tradition, grew up in an austere and religious climate, according to the dictates inherent in his family through the social culture and education of the Salesians, where he attended, and where he graduated from in 1959. He later was immersed in the world of the knighthood, and came into contact with Prof. Don Gabriel Jnellas Palaeologus, who as I wrote earlier, made him a Knights Templar. From 1970, he devoted himself to the reconstruction of the Order of the Temple, and in 1972, dedicated his life to the Italian branch of the Brazilian S.M.T.H.O, and the prestigious Res Gestae Magazine, which analyzes all fiction attributed to the noble Knights of Christ. In 1981, he was appointed Grand Preceptor, and was committed to the Knights Templar, and their new mission, in the most beautiful basilicas. In 1987, he was appointed a full member of the Supreme World Council for Inter-religious Relations, a group built to obtain and achieve the wishes of the Second Vatican Council.

In the month of July, 1994, Rocco Zingaro made the first rehabilitation request of his Templars to the Vatican, and from that point onwards he began the gradual rapproche ment of Neo-Templarism towards the Church of Rome. A rapprochement, however, often thwarted by other Neo-Templars affiliations, which will lead Rocco Zingaro to be attacked publicly in the following years by other NeoTemplar branches that refused to rejoin officially with the Catholic Church, but preferred a more loose ecumenical approach, open to other Christian denominations and even Muslims. With the help of Antonio Leonardo Montuoro, Zingaro enjoyed in those years excellent relations with both the York

Rite of Freemasonry, in Italy and in the U.S. with the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite. However, after a period of great success for Zingaro's Order, which lasted in a steady crescendo until 2005, he was suddenly isolated from that year onwards, especially after the public complaints of the powerful Cardinal Ruini towards Neo-Templarism, which he deemed too invasive and out of control. Ruini, who was at the time president of the Italian Episcopal Conference (CEI), and the Cardinal Vicar of the Pope for the diocese of Rome, communicated officially for the first time in history, to all the churches of his diocese, to not accept the so-called Neo-Templar groups and ceremonies in their basilicas and churches.

⁷ Behind this sudden gesture of Cardinal Ruini against Zingaro, there is actually the involvement of a group of Neo-Templars, who had suddenly split from Count Rocco Zingaro, and were led by Francesco Dario Labate and Gilberto Di Benedetto, respectively Grand Master and spokesman of this new Neo-Templar affiliation, that already counted over 200 Templars. They began their operation in early May 2005, in the beautiful and important church of Santa Prisca, on the Aventine Hill in Rome, which was used in a more reserved manner by Rocco Zingaro in the previous years. Among these new Templars, the Italian newspaper Il Tempo mentioned the presence of academics, like Bruno Brandimarte, professor of biophysics applied to the Fatebenefratelli Foundation, the Sapienza University, and the University of Tor Vergata. Prof. Benito Passangrilli, professor of dentistry at the Sapienza University and psychiatrist Antonio Vento, president of the National Observatory of Mobbing alongside many entrepreneurs and tycoons of American finance. Also present were aristocrats such as Jephine Borthwick, Princess Borghese, mother of Michele Borghese, and many actors,⁸ as well as Al Festa, who I will talk more about soon, in connection to the Holy Grail.

At the time, seeing the unexpected success of this new order, the website of one of the leading Neo-Templar groups, O.S.M.T.J. commented with concern, emphasiz ing their ties with American Freemasonry and their membership in the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite (A.A.S.R.), which according to the O.S.M.T.J. they later renamed Ancient Scottish Rite Reunified (A.S.R.R.) referring to a Masonic meeting that was held in Cape Verde, 12 years before as the starting point of this new project: “The U.S. Masonic Lobby, with much emphasis on the National Press, looking for a Templar legitimacy, is investing their followers in Santa Prisca on the Aventine Hill in Rome. Dario Labbate and others, are reneges of Rocco Zingaro’s group who are using the same cloaks and emblems. The reaction of the Vatican, in the person of Cardinal Ruini, is immediate. Prohibition of the use of the Churches of the Roman Diocese by organizations called Templars.”⁹

Strangely the O.S.M.T.J. that distances itself officially from Freemasonry, is actually full of Freemasons among its ranks, with a particular inclination to recruit from the York Rite. These are the mysteries of the Neo-Templar groups, where sometimes lack of coherence and clarity seems to only push water to their mill; although in this case to tell the you truth, the condemnation of these new Neo-Templar groups by the Church is in my opinion fully justified, since the O.S.MT.J. is certainly from the perspective of traditional initiatic groups, a more serious and legitimate body on Italian soil than the misguided attempt of Labate that went nowhere, while O.S.MT.J. is still one of the most influential orders, although increasingly split into various factions. Subsequently, the most important of the Italian newspapers, Corriere della Sera, explained in this way the project of Francesco Dario Labate:

The Order of the Poor Knights of Christ (re) created a few years ago by Francesco Dario Labate, self-appointed Sovereign Grand Master seems, to want to unite the vast (only in Italy the groups are over 40), world of modern Templars thanks to a rich American foundation, suspended between the charm and mystery of the “sol dier monks” and the easy conquest of some cheap honor. “I do not understand the action by the diocese of Rome preventing us to meet in Churches—confirmed Luigi Zanella, spokesman for the Order. But we can also gather in the street, that’s okay.”¹⁰

At this point, the Knights that remained with Rocco Zingaro, who were involved for years in this difficult task of rapprochement with the Catholic Church, tired of the confusing situation created by the split with Francesco Dario Labate. They entrusted their fate in the hands of Antonio Leonardo Montuoro, thanks to the intermediation of lawyer and Freemason Riccardo Scarpa, who was also close to the late Rocco Zingaro, and according to some, a sinister character tied to dark plots that would convince Zingaro to accept the offer of retirement made by Montuoro on behalf of the Jesuits. Here the slow but inexorable decline of the facade of the the S.M.E.T.H. begins, that will result in absolute secrecy in the Vatican creation in 2009 of the new Neo-Templar order. It is called the Knights of the Temple of the Holy Spirit, which is not officially connected to Rocco Zingaro, and is presided over by Dr. Antonio Leonardo Montuoro, (FIG. 46) and the aforementioned Prefect Enrico Marinelli, who became the Honorary President, with the further support of Bishop Domenico Sigalini, (FIGS.

47 and 48) General Ecclesiastical Assistant of the Italian Catholic organization Azione Cattolica. It is in the national headquarters of this organization in the Vatican, where the blessing ceremony of the cloaks of the new Order of the Knights of the Temple of the Holy Spirit was held in the early months of 2011. The Order officially kicked off its operations, while an increasingly weak Rocco Zingaro was near death. The official announcement was made in the monthly publication, Divine Power of Love published in March, 2011 (XXI – No. 3). Zingaro, meanwhile, lived in almost total isolation since 2007. After the Cardinal Ruini intervened in 2005, the Grand Preceptor Rocco Zingato was in fact asked to leave the Neo-Templar scene, to retire in silence among the old men of the old folks home controlled by Dr. Montuoro. According to Montuoro, Zingaro was no longer reliable as Grand Preceptor, and Montuoro became the new Grand Preceptor of S.M.T.H.O. A title he still holds in great secrecy in parallel with that of the head of the Knights of the Holy Spirit. According to Montuoro, who told me the story several times, Count Rocco Zingaro of San Fernando (this was his title), was saved thanks to an act of compassion and charity towards him made by his fellow Catholics, that's why he was in Loreto in Montuoro's "Oasis," where he spent the last years of life.

This was because, after the death of his wife, Zingaro was having serious financial problems, and placed himself entirely in the hands of Montuoro, (FIG. 49) obviously after officially giving him and the Church the Grail in exchange for his new residence. As evidence of this, there a press release made by Count Rocco Zingaro back in May, 2007:

Epochal event —An exceptionally important event is taking place in the Holy House of Nazareth in Loreto. The Holy Grail kept by the Templars is finally back in its house. In a wonderful night of the Holy Week, before Easter, the Holy Virgin appeared in a dream to our Grand Preceptor, Rocco Zingaro St. Ferdinand, addressing him with the words: "Deliver to the house of Nazareth the Holy Grail with the same generosity with which you have treasured it for over thirty years. My house is empty and with this gesture the light of truth will return to shine. The world will be surprised: a divine sign for a new path. For the greater glory of God." Obedient to the request made in the dream by the Holy Virgin Mother of God, our Grand Preceptor, Sunday, May 13, 2007 at 12.00, 889 th year since the founding of the Templars, gave such official comunication in Loreto in the Nursing Home of St. Joseph in Via san Francesco, 44 tel. 071.7501132 stating that the Holy Grail will be delivered to the house of Nazareth when legal paperwork is completed relating to the change of ownership. It is worthwhile to point out the great generosity of our Grand Preceptor, Rocco Zingaro of St. Ferdinand, who could have obtained a fortune from the sale to third parties of the Holy Grail, firmly wanting to follow his motto, setting an example for all of us. Vaucent! ¹¹

why there are many who have doubts on the last period of Zingaro’s life.

Before Zingaro died, in the last few months of his life, I asked Montuoro several times if I could meet him, but my requests were always turned down, something I thought from the start was very strange. I also asked Montuoro to meet with the late exorcist, Father Gabriele Amorth (who died in 2016), but this request was also denied. This made me immediately understand I was dealing with mercenaries of the Church, not real Templars or true followers of Jesus Christ. So the abrupt appearance of the “Parchment of Chinon” with a new version of the events surrounding the last days of the Knights Templar favorable to the Church, seems also very suspicious at a time in which the Neo-Templarism phenomena is on the rise after the great success of The Da Vinci Code book, and movie, and the Church wants to obviously capitalize on it.

In the middle of the 1990s, the Italian magazine called Il Giornale dei Misteri (The Journal of Mysteries), published an interesting interview with Rocco Zingaro, Count of San Ferdinando, about his “Holy Grail.”

Here is the interview translated in full for the first time in English for this book. QUESTION: We asked Rocco Zingaro, one of the heirs of the Templar tradi tion, some details about the Holy Relic in his possession. How he came in possession of the Holy Grail? What is the evidence in favor of its authenticity? Will it be subjected to laboratory examination?

ANSWER: I was given the Holy relic by Professor Antonio Ambrosini, emeritus 11 <http://web.cheapnet.it/smitho/comunicato.htm> ‡ Archived 16th October, 2016.

professor of the University of Rome, twenty years ago on my wedding day. He unearthed this object in Egypt, in a Coptic monastery, and was sure it was the real Grail. Ambrosini was a great scholar, and produced evidence and documents to support this, but I’m sure that this is the chalice used by Jesus at the Last Supper. However, it was already appraised by a Jesuit historian who confirmed the authenticity of the finding going back to a period between the first and the second century B.C. It’s completely available for any test, analysis or research.

Q: Why have you decided to disclose the existence of it only now? You could have keep the secret without news of a similar discovery coming from England?

A: Without the pretentious information given by Phillips lately we will have kept it secret a little longer, instead we had to rely on the credibility of the Templars from the historical point of view to give out such news. We have also broken the reserve for three reasons: 1) I could not bear the disproportionate resonance given by the media to other similar false discoveries in various parts of the world; 2) the Pope’s open attitude in most fields, especially towards the female element, and his indulgence toward sinners; 3) Finally, a few years before the millennium, it seems only right to go public with this sacred object in the hope that it will reaffirm the universal values of peace and fraternity.

Q: What exactly is the Holy Grail and what does it represent for the Templars?

A: According to tradition, this was the chalice used by Jesus at the Last Supper. Later, the disciple Joseph of Arimathea laid it at the foot of the cross to collect the divine drops of the blood of Christ. This belief is interwoven with historical and legendary elements, Celtic and Christian traditions. At the time of the Crusades, His custody was given precisely to the Knights of the Temple. The Grail is an opportunity for people to reflect on its journey towards the third millennium, which brings the opportunity to get closer to God. It is the force of Good, and is a goal to meditate that it will bring peace to the world.

Q: Who were the Knights of the Order of the Templars? What are their ideals and projects?

A: The Templars were the Church's sword, the defense of the pilgrims, those that under one flag brought European unity, because they fought for the same ideals. The project of the Templars if they managed to implement it, was European unity that would have been implemented since 1200. The disappearance of the Templars, which resulted in the end of this unifying design, was due precisely to the envy and jealousy of these powerful forces that fought against each other, and they feared the extinction of their kingdoms. Today the Templars are those who intend to pursue, especially in the life of every day, the ideals of chivalry, behaving as accurately as possible with a bit of extra ethics and morals. There are fundamental values in life that can not be erased; this is what in fact is required of a perfect knight. It is important on the threshold of the year 2000 to renew the pact of alliance with God and man, because the law is only one and it was written in fire, then the human being must respect the Universal Law of God which must be equal for all without distinction of creed or race.

Q: Because it is very important to be recognized by the Church in spite of the unjust persecution perpetrated against you?

A: Pope Clement V brought about a suspension of the Order pro-tempore and not definitive, but temporary. Not being able to condemn the Templars because of the process itself that was revealed was a farce at this point (the Pope knew this very well), then he proceeded with this temporary measure. Since the cardinals of that time refused to sign the papal bull, Clement V had to make its own motion; that's why we are interested in reconnecting with the Church: another pope can remove the Papal bull of Clement V.

FIG. 50 – Rocco Zingaro in the Cistercian Abbey of Casamari, in the province of Frosinone, on the throne of St. Bernard as Grand Preceptor for the Italy in the early nineties.

As the Church is reconsidering its past history, by removing their mistakes, the facts regarding the Templars becomes a matter of justice. It would therefore be very important and appropriate that the Church ruled something about it, especially to make a clean sweep of those who have speculated for a long time on the good name of the Templars, whose real order must be re-evaluated by the Church itself. However, since 1991, we have obtained the protection and blessing of the Latin Patriarch of Jerusalem. The Patriarchs power is equal to the Pope, it is the imprimatur who is different, so if the future imprimatur comes from the Church of Rome, it would be better, for us. At the same time I personally would like to confirm, regardless of who will assume the position, the will to eventually donate the Chalice of the Grail to the Holy Father, as a tribute of filial devotion, because I come from a Catholic, apostolic Roman family with a strong Faith. Strangely, in proximity of the Year 2000, this sacred object has come into my hands, and as I have been given it, so I want to give it to the Pope, because I think he must have it.

Well it seems that Rocco Zingaro (FIGS. 50, 51, 52, 53) had the initial idea of giving the Holy Grail to the Vatican, however ten years later he changed his mind. Zingaro felt that he would like to donate the Grail to the American people instead, but in the end the Vatican managed, with Montuoro and Marinelli, to get their hands on it, and make it disappear from public scrutiny.

Padre Pio and the Holy Grail

I

In the preceding pages I mentioned the name Al Festa in my research on the Holy Grail, or rather Alberto Festa (b. 1958), director and Italian composer, Freemason and NeoTemplar. He is connected with Saint Padre Pio, because of his blood tie to the doctor of Padre Pio, Giorgio Festa, who was his great-uncle. Festa became involved with the mysterious Holy Grail, which was given to the Saint of Pietrelcina. I will now explain why this mysterious object is still in the hands of Alberto Festa. Among the various “Holy Grails” I studied during the years, it is probably the most credible, because the Vatican, and the Pope Emeritus Joseph Ratzinger, when he was still pope, tried in every way possible to obtain it. Indeed, their deeds are sometimes extreme, and it suggests that we could be dealing with an authentic Holy Grail, and not just the usual myth.

Let’s begin with an article which appeared in 2008, in the popular Italian weekly “Panorama,” that commented on an exhibition on Padre Pio relics arranged by Alberto Festa, who owns hundreds of relics, left to him by his great-uncle:

It showcases nineteenth century style glass alternating with bronze busts of the saint, portrayed in all ages. Inside, relics, that include his gauzes, a lens that magnifies four hairs of his beard. On the red damask walls large photographs in gilt frames of the Saint. Above, famous phrases of San Giovanni Rotondo’s celebrated monk, like: “The smile does not come on itself you have to want it.” Magically propelled towards the bottom of the exhibit room by a music theme, you arrive ultimately in front of the precious reliquary. Inside, leaning over a blood red pillow, there is a black glove of the Saint, what we have all seen on the hand of actors Michele Placido and Sergio Castellitto, depending on the TV network, in the role of St. Padre Pio of Pietrelcina. But this is the real one, which was used to cover his scars. An exhibition which presents more than 100 objects never seen, a real paradise of the devotee, for the first time on display in Rome.

Alberto Festa the great-grandson of the brother of Dr Giorgio Festa, the doctor sent in 1919 by the Holy Office to verify the true nature of the friar's wounds, decided to reprint the only copy that was found in 1999, of the rare book by his great uncle called Mysteries of science and lights of faith, the stigmata of Padre Pio of Pietrelcina. Rich in annotations and curiosities on the figure of the mysterious Saint from Pietrelcina, like the episodes that saw him reach in moments of pure ecstasy and rapture the incredible body temperature of 48.5 degrees celsius, while the wound on his side, which was maintained "fresh and vermilion" over the years, could be seen "short but noticeable light radiation." After the examination conducted on the body of Padre Pio, Giorgio Festa was convinced of the genuineness of the stigmata: the wounds on his hands "are certainly not the result of a local disease”— wrote Festa—nor can they be regarded as the “expression of constitutional infirmity.” The stigmata maintained “always the same size over the years,” after several successive examinations. Alberto Festa said he was from the beginning: “ready to make available to the scientific community the relics for any exam that will be considered appropriate, including the collection of DNA from traces of blood remaining on the cloth inside the black glove. ... I decided to make public the existence of the glove”—he said after he recovered it with the rest of the relics, “only to rehabilitate the image of my great-uncle, a doctor that was always forgotten and overshadowed by the Church.”¹³

The objects in question were analyzed and considered genuine by the Vatican, and still belong to Alberto Festa, which in recent years the existence of another object deemed much more controversial belonging to Saint Padre Pio has been made known, however this one never received the approval of the Holy See like the other relics of the Saint. I am talking precisely of the supposed Holy Grail that belonged to Padre Pio. A well-kept secret that surfaced only for a brief time several years ago in the Italian media, starting with the Southern Italian newspaper, the Gazzetta del Mezzogiorno, dated Wednesday November 26, 2003, that coincides with the announcement made by Alberto Festa, that day, in a press conference in Rome.

Here is the full story as reported by the newspaper:

ROMA— Padre Pio was in possession of the Holy Grail, the cup of the Last Supper of Jesus with his disciples, where after the crucifixion would have collected the blood of Jesus. In an unpublished letter by Padre Pio, made public today by the grandson of the physician Giorgio Festa, in 1919, who was sent by the Holy See to investigate the stigmata of the Saint of Pietrelcina, the friar with the stigmata writes that the Greek vase, recovered from Festa, belonged to Padre Pio, it went from the hands of Peter, to those of Saint Francis. A decisive step, which introduces Festa, not to exclude that it may be the real Holy Grail. But Father Tessari urges caution and denies the object “real meaning.” The “secret” of Padre Pio, presented this morning at Palazzo Cherubini, is contained in a letter, written by the Saint shortly before his death, to a Brother Christopher from Vico Gargano. In it, the authenticity of which was confirmed by the expert graphologist Antonio Bravo, it reads: “A Father Christopher from Vico del Gargano entrust the remains of humble secrets given to me by faithful Christians. ... I leave the little Greek vase to Apostle Peter because it is a Secret Gift of God, the father, and witnessed the immense light. Guard it for the poor of faith.” In the letter, which is a kind of testament, there is also references to two other objects, a bowl and a lamp, that Padre Pio entrusted to other loved ones and now there should be one in America and the other in Japan. According to Father Tessari “there is no doubt about the authenticity of the objects, which have been appraised, but do not have a real and material significance. They are a symbol of spirituality.” In particular, he explains, “the vase dates from the time that Jesus and Peter could have touched it. It was probably taken from some excavations in the Holy Land and brought as a gift to Father Pio from the Christian faithful. But it is always a small jar that should not become a fetish.”

The postulator warns of an “inopportune return to the Middle Ages,” stating that: “there may be a special relationship with the Last Supper,” he added that “the objects are, however, to be interpreted as a reference to the Gospel scenes experienced in the heart of Padre Pio.” In summary, it would be better to consider them “spiritual symbols” without any “material value,” or rather “fragments of humanity and spirituality” of Padre Pio. Less uncertain is Alberto Festa, who for years engaged in the reconstruction of work done by his great-uncle, who became a friend and confidant of the saint. “I know only one object that can be called a witness of the immense light, as written in the letter, and it is the Holy Grail,” he concludes.¹⁴

Five years after this announcement on May 23, 2008, in the national newspaper Il Giornale where the story again appears, giving us new details related to the acquisition of the Holy Grail by Al Festa:

A mysterious cup, that belonged to St. Peter and represented a “gift from God” to St. Francis, was then transmitted to Padre Pio. A handwritten letter with cryptic passages, laid in a clear and youthful calligraphy, by the stigmata saint when he actually was at the end of his life, attesting to the authenticity of the pot, calling it “Secret in me” and “a witness to immense light.” Al Festa, a film director with interests in the world of spiritualism, great-grandson of the brother of the doctor who took care of Padre Pio, declares he is persecuted and fears being silenced after trying in every way to tell the story of the Grail. No, you are not reading the plot of a new fantareligious thriller, but a story on “Striscia la Notizia” the satirical News of Channel 5. The protagonist is called Al (short for Alberto) Festa, filmmaker, 50, a relative of Giorgio Festa, the doctor who operated on Padre Pio and examined his stigmata, then writing a detailed report. On Tuesday, based on some photos of the friar’s burial, Festa raised questions about a possible tampering of the body, noting how the original seals did not feature on the glass at the time of the exhumation, and even giving info on an alleged transfer of the real remains in the Vatican. On this subject, the friars of San Giovanni Rotondo had no problems to clarify, deny and point out: in the days of exposure of the body before the funeral, various inspections were carried out, and a coffin change. So, immediately before the burial, the seals were not affixed on the glass lid, but the metal casing, where they stayed until 2 March. No mystery, no theft, no secret hidden in basements of the Vatican. Speaking to the Italian Satirical News Alberto Festa, however, has also re-launched the story of the letter, and of the possible “Holy Grail” of Padre Pio, which he announced with a press conference November 26, 2003, when he called it a “pot of incredible importance.” All these years he has believed that his great uncle Festa had found the Grail, and the letter written by Padre Pio, were among the objects belonging to his great-uncle, doctor of the friar. In reality, things did not go exactly like that. It was a purchase, for a value of approximately 75 thousand euros. A writ of summons filed at the court in Rome on January 12, 2006, that show that Festa bought the grail, at a certain point, from Emanuele Cervone, who acted as an intermediary between the relatives of the friar, Father Cristoforo of Vico of the Gargano, guardian of the object, who in turn received it in March, 1968, from the Saint of Pietrelcina. Alberto Festa, in 2005, in the face of the many and authoritative objections received on the document of the findings, stopped paying Cervone and received by these payment injunctions. The writ wrote Festa’s lawyer, Antonella Rustico, states that the “authenticity and provenance” of the two objects was “never proven” by the seller. Today the case has been abandoned due to a transaction that Cervone and the Festa later agreed upon. The letter and the Grail now fully belong to the great-grandson of the holy doctor. But are they authentic? There is a handwriting experts opinion on the letter, written by Professor Alberto Bravo, dated 2003 (thus at an earlier date to the dispute between Festa and Cervone), which concludes: “The comparison analyzes confirm that the writing comes from the hand of the Saint Father Pio.”

Just as there is an expert report according to which the age of the jar, dates back to the first century. The same General Postulator of the Capuchin Order, Father Florio Tessari, pleaded in favor of the authenticity of the letter. Those who never believed its authenticity are: the late vice-postulator of the cause of beatification, Father Gerardo Di Flumeri, which branded all as a fake, noting that in March 1968 Padre Pio almost didn’t write, if not just his signature, and the handwriting looks too youthful. On the Holy Grail there are libraries full of books. All legends—notes of Antonio Belpiede, spokesman of the Order of Friars Minor Capuchin s of the province of San Giovanni Rotondo say—if what Festa is presenting to the world was so important and decisive, he would find every door wide open.”¹⁵ Really? Not so sure about this last statement.

However here is the text of the letter/testament that Padre Pio supposedly wrote in March, 1968, to Father Cristofoto from Vico of the Gargano, on giving him these mysterious relics, that seem to include also a bowl used to “wet the lips of our Lord on the Calvary”:

To Father Christopher of Vico of the Gargano.

Brother, God calls me, and I entrust to you the remains of humble secrets given to me by faithful Christians, to deliver to Father Fortunato Serracapriola the bowl that with this water wet the lips of our Lord on the Calvary; to Mr. Emmanuelino, who approached the Holy Table, the Lucerne that illuminated the way of the Christians at the Colosseum; for you I'll leave the little Greek vase of the Apostle Peter a Secret Gift of God to my father and witness of the immense light. Guard it for the poor ... of faith.¹⁶

My experience with the Holy Grail

M

My personal experience with the Holy Grail of St. Padre Pio, and the meeting with Alberto Festa, dates a few years after the events I just described, when in September of 2013, by chance, Mr. Festa is introduced to me during the funeral of Marco Trani, an old DJ friend also closely tied to Al, who took care of his music videos. Al Festa had just curated an exhibition in the Basilica of San Lorenzo, in Lucina, Rome, dedicated to Padre Pio, entitled: The great light: Padre Pio between science and faith, designed and built by Al. (FIG. 54) The Pope was invited, "in the spirit of Christian brotherhood and renewed humility," for the inauguration, but he did not attend. The exhibition represented a cultural and spiritual path, as seen by a layman doctor (Giorgio Festa, Al's great uncle), who was sent to give a diagnosis on Padre Pio's stigmata, and was close to this special person, treating all his complex physical ordeals. At that point I decided to stay in touch with him, so that I could also better study the history of this supposed Holy Grail, and the privileged relationship of his family with the controversial figure of Saint Padre Pio. This was during a particularly difficult period, when I was very active on the political front in Italy with the movement of the "Pitchforks" (I Forconi). One evening in January, 2014 I was invited, with a dozen members of my Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis, to visit Alberto Festa in his mansion, an hour from Rome. He wanted to bring us there in secret so we could check out his mysterious relic.

The night began at the Vatican, where we met with the various Brothers of my Order, that came from all over Italy, to the courtyard of the headquarters of the Knights of the Holy Sepulchre around 11 at night. We went almost immediately to the province of Viterbo, Sutri, to Alberto Festa's residence, where for the occasion, he took the Holy Grail from its safe, but he said it is usually kept in a nearby police station. It was indeed a very powerful experience for me, and the other brothers of the Order, that could fill up a separate book, and I definitely will focus on it again in the future. In a nutshell, the evening ended with a prayer by the members of the Ordo illuminatorum Universalis, as I kissed this sacred object around 2 a.m., which unleashed something at a subtle and magical level that would eventually emerge a little later in a series of important events in my life. First of all, I was arrested in the early hours of the following morning by the Italian authorities, who suddenly broke into my house forcing me into a mental institution at the hands of the notorious Tavistock Institute, as later confirmed in front of my lawyer, Dr. Giuseppe Nicolò, director of the facility based in the town of Subiaco, near Rome. This wasn't a good experience, but in the months that followed, these unexpected events led myself and my soon-to-be wife Christy, to California, meeting with those fantastic people who finally believed in me and my literary projects, and gave me the opportunity to publish my books in English. The same books that are increasingly censored and sabotaged in Italy, because of my anti-government and anti-Vatican position. During the two weeks of my forced hospitalization, I experienced from the future Italian Prime Minister Matteo Renzi and his occult manipulators of the Tavistock Institute, one of the most interesting moments with the arrival of Alberto Festa on January 28, 2014, to the place where I was forced to stay. He brought the black glove used to cover the first stigmata of Padre Pio. Imagine such a scenario, in a hospital/mental institution based in the Italian province located in the small ultra-Catholic town of Subiaco, called "the cradle of Western Monasticism," because of its important monasteries where both St. Benedict and St. Francis lived.

At the entrance of the hospital where I was locked up for two weeks, there is even a statue of Padre Pio, and here arrives suddenly out of nowhere such a holy object related to the famous Italian saint, and it is brought to a "patient" restricted in a mental healthcare facility. Well, this was a truly unusual situation indeed, don't you think? I know this story is incredible and I cannot deny that I have a smile on my face while I write this, but you should have seen the faces of the doctors at the arrival of Alberto Festa with Padre Pio's Holy relict. It was then that Al Festa left me a card with a tiny relict of Padre Pio, with the fragment of a bandage used on his stigma, attached to it, an object that would, among other things, be used within a few days on the demand of the doctors to perform an exorcism on a patient. A so-called "refugee," a black boy from Africa, was in a state of demonic possession one night during my stay. I was asked to intervene with a short exorcism, since the monks of the nearby St. Scholastica Monastery were not able to come. I began the prayer of exorcism without success. Indeed, it seemed to have worsened the situation, but the moment I exposed the relict of St. Padre Pio, a minuscule fragment of his gauze he used to cover the stigmata wounds, attached to a card with his photo, that I was given by Alberto Festa, right then and there, the poor guy suddenly stopped having issues. The incredible power that the relics of St. Padre Pio have against demons is truly incredible, I was positively perplexed. Power of suggestion or miracle, God's ways are endless. When I left for California a couple of months later I brought with me another relic of the saint that definitely brought me luck, it was another fragment of Padre Pio bandages Alberto Festa gave to me on March 5, 2014, as a birthday gift, with a certificate of authenticity signed by the Postulator General of the Order of Friars Minor of St. Francis. (FIG. 55)

This was my brief experience with the Holy Grail of St. Padre Pio, which is still in the hands of Neo-Templar and Freemason Alberto Festa, who apparently refused a 300,000 Euro offer by Pope Joseph Ratzinger because he thought Ratzinger would eventually make it disappear. True? We don't know, however, there is also another interesting fact Alberto Festa spoke about when we participated in that mysterious night gathering with the supposed Holy Grail, which was located by the way, in a beautiful medieval golden casket with the symbol of a Lion on its base, which as you know is one of the symbols of Jesus Christ and possibly his descendants. Festa said that the mysterious cup, typical of the period in which Jesus lived, and similar to that unveiled to the world by Rocco Zingaro—but slightly smaller—had some blood, on the bottom of it, which according to Alberto Festa, belongs to Jesus Christ. Behind this blood Festa says is concealed the mystery of the stigmata received by St. Padre Pio, and before him of those of St. Francis who also received the stigmata. On these claims made by Alberto Festa, we have no certainty, although I saw with my own eyes in the bottom part of the small cup what appeared to be traces of human blood, that's for sure, but was it the blood of Jesus? Surely the saint of Pietrelcina, Padre Pio, could not lie about the origin of this object, whose public ostentation would change the face of the history of religion and humanity itself.

The Spiritual Alchemy of the Knights Templar

An important statement in relation to the famous story of the supposed descendants of the "Holy Grail" and the Priory of Sion, was made years ago by Pierre Plantard and his associates, who learned it from the previously mentioned Robert Ambelain (1907 – 1997), who Massimo Introvigne (also Martinist and agent of the Jesuits), said was the real inspiration behind the legend of the supposed Merovingian descendants of Jesus and Mary. He points out Introvigne was not present in the first publications of the Priory and the various falsified documents of this mysterious Order that appeared in the years 1965-1967:

The part of the story about Jesus Christ and Mary Magdalene was born between 1969 and 1970, when the story of the Priory of Sion attracts Henry Lincoln an English actor, who became later a director of documentaries on esoteric topics. This actor and documentary filmmaker comes into contact with the trio de Chérissey—Plantard—de Sede and decides to rewrite the history of L'Or de Rennes in a way more suitable to the English language form, presenting it in the first three documentaries broadcast by the BBC between 1972 and 1979 and then in a book published in 1982 with the help of Michael Baigent and Richard Leigh called the Holy Blood and Holy Grail. ... Lincoln, realizes that who is responsible for the title of pretender to the throne of France, is of little interest to the British public. At the same time he met Robert Ambelain (1907 – 1997), who in 1970 published Jésus ou Le secret des templiers mortel (Robert Laffont, Paris), where he argues that Jesus Christ had a girlfriend, and identifies this “concubine” in the dancer Salome. Lincoln puts together the story of the marriage of Jesus, which derives from Ambelain, with that of the Merovingian Plantard and “reveals” that the Merovingian protected by the Priory of Sion are important, far beyond the claim of the throne of France, because they are descended from Jesus Christ and Mary Magdalene.¹⁷

Nowhere in the New Testament or surviving literature from the time of Christ does ¹⁷ http://www.cesnur.org/2005/mi_02_03.htm † Archived 16th October, 2016.

it mention Jesus having wed. So are the Royal Houses descended from Jesus? This odd notion can be traced to the political machinations of Pope Paul I (757 – 767). During his pontificate the Vatican was besieged from all sides by roving Lombard hords, a hostile Eastern Emperor and the emerging threat of the Islamic Empire. His only allies were the Franks (Merovingian and Carolingian cousins) whose military prowess could save the Holy See from these encroaching enemies. The Byzantine Emperors claimed succession from Julius Caesar. In 476 AD, the Western Empire fell to the Germans and the royal symbols (standards) were sent to Byzantium where the Eastern Emperor assumed all titles of the Western Holy Roman Emperor. The Muslim princes claimed noble descent from Muhammad. As a means to upstage these hostile elements, Paul I declared that the Frankish Kingdom was now the “New Israel” and addressed Frankish rulers as “David” and “Solomon.” This was not a matter of blood—no surviving documents state that the Franks were of Jewish blood. The Pope used a right called translatio imperii—the right of the pontiff to transfer the titles of a royal house to anyone he chooses. (Pope Sylvester transferred the titles of Julius Caesar to Constantine even though he was not a blood descendant of any of the Roman Emperors).

This was long established when Paul I bestowed the titles of the House of David unto the Franks. Dan Brown attempts to claim that the Franks were descended from the Despoysni, but the odds of this would be astronomical, and there are no surviving documents which mention this as a fact. It is merely a misunderstanding of the right evoked by Paul I, who never claimed that the Merovingians were Jewish or from the family of David and Jesus. If Paul I suspected that the Franks were descended in any way from Jesus, he would have bestowed upon them the title of “House of Christ” as opposed to the “House of David.” It would have given him an even stronger form of propaganda to use against the Eastern Empire and potential Muslim invaders. Nor would it hinder belief in Catholic theology, if it were made clear that they were descended from Jesus’ cousins. However, this was not the case. It was the real political and Vatican propaganda (Romanita) of Paul I’s reign, which generated this weird notion of Europe’s nobility being of Davidic origin. Furthermore, in a 2006 episode of the History Channel program Digging for the Truth, host Josh Bernstein performed a DNA test on the remains of a Merovingian princess, and discovered that this bloodline possessed no Semitic genes—her racial profile was purely European.¹⁸ As the late writer and researcher William H.Kennedy wrote: “It is clear then that The Da Vinci Code is based on a flawed understanding of Petrine history and, consequently, is debunked, and can be heaped onto the junk pile of bogus ideas.” However there is another claimant to the Jesus/ David bloodline, and that is Queen Elizabeth II, as the Royal College of Heralds in Britain officially accepts this direct line of descendant, at least from King David to Queen Elizabeth II as factual. The Queen is the 122nd lineal descendant of King David, who is of the tribe of Judah, and for some, the royal line of the Messiah comes through the tribe of Judah, and will continue until His second coming. Now this might only be a well-crafted myth, but Robert Ambelain was not your average researcher.

Ambelain was one of the leaders of the Illuminati of his time in the Martinist field, as well as supreme leader of the so-called Egyptian Rites of Freemasonry in the world, and was considered one of the greats of Spiritual Alchemy. The majority of contemporary Egyptian Rites derive their initiatic transmission from Ambelain.

This is what Ambelain wrote about his “alchemical doctrine,” the true inner teachings of his work in the introduction to the book “SPIRITUAL ALCHEMY”—which does not lack a strong critical sense with respect to the inventories of the Rosicrucian—Masonic tradition that represent a unique testimony of the spiritual alchemical doctrine as one of the leaders of Neo-Templarism in the past century. No coincidence Ambelain was also the author of the book, Martinez Pasqualis and he truly knew the turning points of the Illuminati tradition:

Between the year 1625 and the year 1675, the energy of the Devotional Aspect and that of the Ritual and Ceremonial Aspect met in certain quarters. This meeting had the effect of bringing into manifestation, through a ritual and a visible ceremony, what in Mystics Orders was a State Within inaccessible to non-initiates. The objective of this Work of popularization was to reach and emotionally engage the mind first, consciousness then, and more wide swath of the profane outside world, always regarded by the Initiates as “brothers in sleep.” The goal was to increasingly lead man through the recognition of a visible ritual, being able to play inside the Ceremonial conditions that would imply the establishment of the inner state and bring inner awakening to the consciousness of Being Aware of one for All, latent in us. The statement in the external world of certain principles, produced the same effect as that of the stone thrown into a river: the first will be the clearly visible effects of the stronger mass penetration in a weaker state, in the event of concentric circles, they soon lose their concentricity and geometric similarity, while continuing to expand, with the result then of a domino effect on the space that contains it. But in the end, despite having marked a moment of perfection in a world that does not belong to him, the geometric circles, which effect the meeting of two worlds impenetrable to each other, will first be made unrecognizable by the current and then cease to exist. I hope you understand that every work of externalization includes the sacrifice of the raw material used. Do not fret the loss, through time, the Spiritual Principles that each order possesses in origin, nor the consequent loss of the power of initiation. The first loss occurs with the effect that I have tried to explain in the above example, while the second loss must be to safeguard the principles initiatory from access of the profane hands of those who, later, will sit at the top of the now too vulgarized Initiatic teaching, of which nothing remains but a memory in the memory of his rituals. This, and much more, is part of the price paid to the profane world (the river), as always, from the Initiatic Orders to periodically awaken Brothers in sleep that are wallowing in it: exchanging a part of himself with a portion of humanity awakened. This is the real work of sowing the wheel of alchemy for humanity, of which I want you to become aware, before you start reading these words. The decision to present the alchemical doctrine of the Elect Cohen, has been determined by a number of reasons, and with one goal. I would define the first and state the second. The first reason is that it is the Western Order of never voiced direct offshoot of the Brotherhood of the Rosy Cross, which, however, in the Initiation actually not existed for almost a century. Not that we will discover the secrets of those who “elected” is no longer, and this also applies to the imaginative circles the Rosicrucian Masonic Rites.¹⁹ Strong words, by Robert Ambelain, that help us understand the degeneration of the Western Initiatic System , and here we must go back to Rene Guenon, to explain the distinction between the supposed existing elite of today and the truly illuminated ones of the past:

There is a word, we quite frequently use on occasions, of which it is necessary to clarify at least explicitly the meaning, especially by placing a proper initiatory point of view: this word is elite, we use to designate something that no longer exists at the present state in the Western world, and whose constitution, or rather reconstitution, appeared the first and essential condition for the intellectual reconstruction of a traditional restoration.

This word is one of those that is strangely abused in our time, to the point of using it currently in meanings that have nothing in common with what it would normally mean; these deformations, such as other purpose we did detect often as a true aspect of caricature and parody, that take place in such a way that deforms words that, prior to all profane deviation, were in some way consecrated by a traditional use, and it is really the case, as we shall see, in regard to the word elite. Similar words hang in a certain way, like “technical,” terms in the same symbolism of initiation, and it was not for the simple fact that laymen sometimes seized a symbol, that they are incapable of understanding, they miss the meaning and make of it an unlawful application, the symbol shall cease to be what it really is; there is therefore no valid reason why the abuse of a word should oblige us to avoid using it, and, on the other hand, if we were to do so we would not see, with all the existing disorder in the current language, which terms may be available to us. When we used the word elite, as we said earlier, the false conceptions to which it is applied were not yet as widespread as we later found, and maybe they were not true because everything is visibly getting worse faster and faster; In fact, the elite is never been spoken of, at any time and from all sides, as when it no longer exists, and, of course, what you want to designate with this word. Is never the elite in its true meaning. But there's more: they talk about the elite nowadays using the term for all individuals who have even slightly exceeded the "average" level in any order of business, even if much less and far from any intellectuality.

We note first that the plural concept is not a true sense: not even out of the simple profane point of view, you could already tell that this word is for those who are fettered plural, because their meaning is somewhat that of a "superb" person, and also because they imply the idea of what, by its very nature, is not susceptible to fragment or divide; but it is appropriate to make this appeal to other considerations of a deeper order. Sometimes, for greater accuracy and to avoid any misunderstanding, we used the expression "intellectual elite," but in truth this expression is almost a pleonasm, as it is inconceivable that the elite is not intellectual, or, if you prefer, spiritual, these two words being short equivalent for us, since we absolutely refuse to confuse true intellectuality with "rationality." the reason is that the distinction determining the elite can not, by definition itself, take place if not "from above," that is to say in the ratio of the highest possibility of being; it is easy to realize by reflecting on the meaning of the word, as deduced from its etymology. In fact, from the strictly traditional point of view, what gives this word elite all its worth, is that it comes from "elected;" and is such a reason that has led us to use it as we have done in preference to any other; but it is also necessary to specify the manner in which this has to be understood. Do not believe that we stop here to the religious and exoteric meaning is undoubtedly the sense in which you habitually speak of "elected," although it is certainly already something that could result in a fairly easy to appropriate analog transposition about in what is in effect; but there is nothing to add, that you may indeed find an indication even in evangelical judgment, well-known and often quoted, but perhaps insufficiently understood: After all, we could say that the elite, as we understand, representing all of those who possess the qualifications required for the initiation and who are naturally still a minority among men; in a sense, they are all "called," because of the situation "central" which occupies the human being in this state of existence, among all the other beings who are still there, but there are a few "chosen ones" and, in the current conditions of the time, there are certainly less than ever.²⁰

19 See. Robert Ambelain, Alchimia Spirituale, (Genova, IT: Amenotes, 1982), [emphasis added].

The words of Guenon capture exactly the conditions of the present situation where humanity has lost the very notion of sacredness, and reminds us of a time when the elite that ruled mankind was more aware of its divine role as an intermediary between the entities of the invisible world and humanity.

The Threicia

I

In 1799, a violent social, political and cultural upheaval occurred in France, what I characterize as the First French Revolution (to distinguish it from the July Revolution and the French Revolution of 1848). There was a lawyer from the Illuminati called Gabriel André Aucler, nicknamed Quintus Nautius, who wrote a book called Threicia, which is the Latin adjective that refers to the Thrace, Hellas, region with a large diffusion of magical and shamanic values toward the underlying world of classical Greece. The Italian historian of esotericism, Vittorio Fincati, writes that Aucler however played on a game of words with threskeia, that in Greek means “worship of the gods,” as he explained himself in the book in question. As Gerard de Nerval wrote in a now rare work of that time entitled not surprisingly The Illuminati, Quintus Nautius was in charge of a mysterious task reserved only to a few genuine and chosen “Illuminati.” Such special education is necessary for this kind of Illuminati and is transmitted to them only “from mouth to ear.” It states: “He places between man and God a chain of immortal spirits called Optimates and with which every Illuminati can arise in communication. It’s always the doctrine of the gods, the Aeons and the Elohim of antiquity. Man, animals and plants possess an immortal monad, that animate from time to time the soul of more or less perfect bodies, according to an ascending and descending scale that materializes or deifies beings according to their merits.”

That said, Aucler is not a real pagan, but he seems to be nothing more than a follower of the teachings of the aforementioned “Philosophe Inconnu, Unknown Philosopher” and inspirer of Martinism, Louis-Claude de Saint-Martin. This conclusion is based on what Aucler himself states in his Book: “Saint-Martin published his first book, Des Erreurs et de la Vérité, par un Philosophe Inconnu which I found with pleasure a large part of the doctrine that I present.” This is one of the main texts for reference of the followers of Saint-Martin. Aucler also speaks of his reconnection with an ancient pagan tradition tied to Orphism. “I believe that the work of Aucler was only an attempt to revive the old religion of Rome and of the elite of the Illuminati in the author’s personal perspective, a view with strong post-pagan veins.” This is how the Italian historian Vittorio Fincati describes his work, emphatically adding: “but what an effort! After about 1,500 years since Christianity was supplanted in the heart of the state of the ancestral cults, that of Quintus Aucler was the first official position of a private citizen in favor of the re-establishment of those same cults.”

20 René Guénon, Considerazioni sull’Iniziazione, (Milan, Luni Editrice, 2014), pp. 213-214.

Unimaginable audacity against the Catholic Church that only the French Revolution could have allowed, since the revolutionary government wanted to erase its own motion of Constantine’s edict proposing instead of Christianity, a secular religion, the foundation of which was influenced by the strong personalities of the time involved in the world of Masonry, and of course of the Illuminati. This revolutionary proposal was the only attempt to this day, since only the National Socialism of Adolf Hitler, that wanted to suppress the Christian denominations in favor of new pagan cults. An attempt that never came into fruition, however implemented with an official act, as it happened back in the time of Aucler. And we know that Italian Fascism and Benito Mussolini could not impose paganism in Italy, as their initiates of the Group of Ur would have liked, something I also mentioned in Volume II, because of the Vatican. Gerard de Nerval synthesizes in his book The Illuminati, the ideas of lawyer Gabriel André Aucler, who wanted to promote in that historical twilight period of great importance for the history of the West, the typical ideology we find in most Illuminati sects: “We must not believe that the rest of Quintus Aucler doctrine was the isolated event of an exalted spirit who was trying his faith through the darkness. Those who at the time were called Theosophists were not far from a similar line of thought. The Martinists, the Philaletheans, the Illuminati, and many members of the Masonic society professed a similar philosophy, whose definitions and practices varied only for the name you gave. You can therefore consider Aucler’s neo-paganism as an expression of the ideal pantheist who was spreading thanks to the progress of the natural sciences. The old chemistry lovers, astrology and other occult sciences of the Middle Ages had left in that time many adepts, with the stunning news that what Mesmer, Lavater, Saint-Germain and Cagliostro, were announcing to the world, was with more or less sincerity. Paracelsus, Cardano, Bacon and Agrippa, old masters of cabalistic and spagyric sciences, were still studied fervently.”

Gabriel André Aucler, recognized himself in the philosophy of Adam Weishaupt’s Illuminati operating in that period, and views them as a kind of new salvation through a return to pantheism, but also as a way to reconnect with those original Christians of the origins known in fact as “Illuminati.” As I mentioned earlier, the paganism of Aucler is not so convincing as De Nerval also seems to think, but hides a Jesuit vision of things. The ideological position of Aucler represents a well-defined type of paganism, that of a classic Roman religion, which often stands in stark contrast to other forms of pagan religion. The “religion of Rome,” not surprisingly, has continued, somehow, in Catholicism, that has borrowed from the previous worship of many deities absorbed by the Roman Empire.

Is not a coincidence that a little over a century after the arrival of Aucler, Aleister Crowley, proclaimed himself “The Great Beast 666” and founded his Gnostic Ecclesia Catholica (E.G.C.), or Gnostic Catholic Church, the religious branch of his Ordo Templi Orientis. Always note the presence of “Catholic” in the religious aspect of its anti-Christian projects. I know it may seem a contradiction but it is not a mistake. Arturo Reghini, whose name was transcribed in the “Golden Book” of the O.T.O. in 1913,²¹ the year when Aleister Crowley formulated the Liber XV, which is the central ritual of his religion, was himself a staunch opponent of Christianity. Reghini was a central figure of the Illuminati in Italy, and particularly close to Crowley, who made this anti-Christian statement that shows us the vision is clearly more disrespectful and Satanic towards Jesus, than earlier paganism, stirred up by figures such as Aleister Crowley. Definitely not the vision of Aucler, but the first Illuminati or Martinists were basically always reverent and respectful of Jesus, who is considered the Master of Masters. Aucler was in fact more moderate in his pagan vision of Crowley, and his associates for sure, as you will read in his underlying words, still lays claim to a generational bond of his family to paganism, and the ancient cults, which is often the case with the elite of the Illuminati, even today:

We are the successors, the Keepers, of the ancient Mysteries of Samothrace, the very ones that were continued by the Romans through a special college of priests and only ones to have perpetuated, unlike all the others because they lost their values in high society and mundanity. In a passage of the book by the author of The Thrécie, Aucler, claims within his own family, to follow the Roman religion through the anniversaries of his schedule, stating that the origin of this family goes back “to lineages of hierophants,” and he calls himself “hierophant of Ceres” adding that his descendants have crossed the centuries without mingling with secular families thanks to the gods, who preserved them in order to perpetuate a cult overwhelmed by so much time.

Eventually Aucler’s message is made even more clear by the words with which he concludes THE THREICIA, bringing us back to the theme of the link of the Illuminati with the Gods, and then with the Invisible Masters and Secret Chiefs which I will discuss in more depth in my next book called The Invisible Master:

Then you will see well that these rites were given by the gods to men, who are the expression of the universe, you can not neglect them without committing a crime, which the same mistake it bears the mark, and you can understand them only in the context of a universal doctrine. Then gathered in the expression of all that is, in the world analogies, not that we will form an admirable concert in the assembly itself of gods and men, the bond that unites the earth to the sky, waiting for a world of happiness, in which evil will no longer exist, in which nothing can separate us and when we can say: “O evil, where’s your poison? O crime and sin, where is your ugliness? O death six deprives your scythe.” Earn the name of philosophers, do not miss the most in your useless disciplines; they are nothing more than stuttering, bodies without consistency and solidity that do not cast even their own shadow, indeed they generate monsters against nature. Only one thing is useful, the regeneration of man. Anything that does not go in this direction is vain and useless. All the sciences that do not do this are not true sciences. But rest assured, you will not be idle, the real sciences that revive your genius. They contain the universe analogies and reasons of all worlds. Time flies, it flies away. You do not have more time to take care of frivolity. Those who will want to have this knowledge by an even deeper source, must know that there is strength only in unity. Men, rejuvenated! You have the chance through the Mysteries that the gods have bestowed upon you. Only through their rites and sacraments you can achieve. You have been placed on this Earth to bear fruit. If you do not give such result you will be uprooted from the land you render sterile, and you will wait in the places intended for that purpose the destruction of this world, so to go and form the world of the prince of evil.²²

This last step is particularly in line with those who think that the human being has been put on Earth to serve the “gods,” or rather the alien races. According to Professor Corrado Malanga: “For these beings, the human soul as an energy resource is exceptional. A resource that can provide them the elixir of immortality. Beyond Good and Evil, the aliens—angels and demons of ancient times—do not have any integrated consciousness, i.e. osmosis between soul, mind and spirit. Because of this lack they carry out alien abductions.” This is only the summary of a chilling interview with Corrado Malanga esteemed researcher and professor of organic chemistry at the University of Pisa in Italy.²³

Loreto and Medjugorje ... awaiting the Antichrist

would like to close this chapter speaking again about the choice of Loreto by the Knights Templar, where it can be deduced that the deposition of the stones of the house in which the Virgin Mary lived was not coincidental, but rather made to precise indications, related to both the pagan past of those places and the peculiar esoteric connotations related to Sacred Geometry and what we call ley lines, a phenomenon connected to the power that emanates from these places. The current definition of a ley line according to <http://Wikipedia.en.org/> is as follows: “Ley lines are hypothetical alignments of a number of places of geographical interest, such as ancient monuments and megaliths. Their existence was suggested in 1921 by the amateur archaeologist Alfred Watkins, whose book ‘The Old Straight Track’ brought the alignments to the attention of the wider public.” The following natural and manmade features were suggested by Alfred Watkins, who coined the term ley line: “Mounds, Long-barrows, Cairns, Cursus, Dolmens, Standing stones, markstones, Stone circles, Henges, Water-markers (moats, ponds, springs, fords, wells), Castle, Beacon-hills, Churches, Cross-roads, Notches in hills, Camps (Hill-forts).”

Loreto, therefore is a truly magical place, chosen not by chance: as pointed out by the well-trained Jesuit agent Antonio Leonardo Montuoro. Loreto is a city that fits perfectly into a kind of Ley-line map of the Roman Catholic Marian devotion, with its miracles, appearances and its most important Churches, that include such places as Lourdes, Fatima, Medjugorje, and other strategically important locations for the Catholic faith. Locations such as San Giovanni Rotondo, Palestrina or Pompeii, another sacred place since ancient times because of the temple of the Goddess Isis, with very ancient ties to the lunar and feminine cults. Places that seem to form a veritable pyramid of Marian faith (FIG. 56), like Montuoro pointed out which show a link between Heaven and Earth, and therefore a sort of preferential route used to tap into very precise cosmic forces. Would these mysterious forces propelled by “Faith” manage to save the world?

Right now in the pre- and post-2020 turning point for humanity, things are gradually getting worse in the technocratic and soulless implementation of the New World Order. Of course, the faithful of the various religions are getting closer than ever before to a One World Religion headed by the Vatican, but are living in the false illusion of a positive change. Let’s also remember that in 2016 a Jesuit Pope like Pope Francis ends up celebrating the 500th anniversary of the Protestant Reformation in Sweden praising Martin Luther, so the countdown for unity amongst different Faiths seems to be accelerating. In the meantime, the growing interest for the Marian cult, as well as the material interests of its alleged representatives on Earth, are simply offering spiritual pilgrimages tailored to our pockets, blessing and miracles included; something that unfortunately happens even for the followers of St. Padre Pio, who come to San Giovanni Rotondo in Italy every day from around the world to find themselves in a tourist trap with no sanctity or sacredness whatsoever. In the midst of all this there are some scholars of ufology who did complex studies in relation to the Blessed Virgin Mary, and have even created an acronym for it, B.V.M. affirming that behind the Marian apparitions, there is an alien trap laid by manipulative and highly dangerous entities to manipulate mankind and vampirize him of his own soul. The subject has been dealt in the past by two famous Italian ufologists, Roberto Pinotti, and the aforementioned Corrado Malanga, two characters of whom I also spoke in Volume I, that have well described the phenomenology of the B.V.M. apparition in their book from 1990 entitled: The B.V.M. phenomena: Marian manifestations in a new light,²⁴ and before them there was a complex study on the phenomena conducted by Freixedo Salvador in Spain, who wrote the book Defendàmonos de los dioses, published in Spain in 1984 where we read:

The B.V.M. phenomena, or the apparitions of the Blessed Virgin Mary, as stated in the acronym, are closely linked to what we consider extraterrestrial phenomena for various reasons. The first aspect of the matter is related to the fact that if an entity religiously motivated actually appeared to human beings, this is something coming from outside the planet and then, according to some it should be classified as a terrestrial phenomenon. Some atheist authors consider instead the Marian apparitions that are not caused by schizophrenia or mental illness something far more complex than just the appearance of a god, a demigod, a saint or other. For these authors the Marian apparitions hide a purely extraterrestrial phenomena. In other words, the Blessed Virgin Mary does not appear at all, but is instead a series of illusions driven by a race of aliens, with the use of highly sophisticated technologies, who mask themselves as Madonna to fool some humans particularly susceptible and gullible.²⁵

Roberto Pinotti, who was until recently a Freemason of the Grand Lodge of Italy of the A.F.& A.M. (Antient Free and Accepted Masons) based at Palazzo Vitelleschi, via San Nicola de' Cesarini, 3 in Rome and also the co-founder of the CUN (National UFO Center of Italy) is a former NATO officer, currently very close to the Italian military Intelligence, and is very well-regarded by the Vatican despite his unorthodox theories on the Marian apparitions.

Roberto Pinotti has in fact confirmed in my presence, his view on the Marian phenomenon, in late September of 2010, during one of the conferences I organized at the Brancaccio Castle in Roviano in the Province of Rome in Italy. He explains in his book with Corrado Malanga, that some photos taken by occasional witnesses on the sites of supposed Marian apparitions show the presence, during the apparition, of strange flying objects moving in the sky, similar to genuine unidentified flying objects. This happened in Fatima in Portugal, and more recently in Crosia in the province of Cosenza in Italy. In these events, several unidentified objects can be seen moving with erratic motion, and some ufologists obviously conclude that these objects are actually real UFOs. We must question, “are they?”

Jacques Vallee describes what happened at Fatima in this way:

The crowd that stood in a field in Fatima, a small village in the district of Leiria, some sixty-two miles north of Lisbon, on October 13, 1917, were awaiting a miracle, because three children had been assured such an event would take place after a number of meetings with an “entity” that came from the sky in a globe of light.

According to the very words of the Reverend General Vicar of Leiria, who was one of the witnesses, the lady came in an “airplane of light,” an “immense globe, flying westwards, at moderate speed. It irradiated a very bright light.” Some other witnesses saw a white being coming out of the globe, which several minutes later took off, “disappearing in the direction of the sun.” The last episode was the miracle itself. It was seen by seventy thousand persons, among who were pious individuals and atheists, clergymen and reporters from a socialist newspaper. As promised, it happened on October 13, at noon. Among the crowd was Professor Almeida Garrett, of Coimbra University, a scientist, who described the phenomena in the following terms: “It was raining hard, and the rain trickled down everyone’s clothes. Suddenly, the sun shone through the dense cloud that covered it: everybody looked in its direction. IT LOOKED LIKE A DISC, OF A VERY DEFINITE CONTOUR. It was not dazzling. I don’t think that it could be compared to a dull silver disk, as someone said later in Fatima. No. It rather possessed a clear, changing brightness, which one could compare to a pearl. It looked like a polished wheel. This is not poetry. My eyes have seen it. This clear-shaped disk suddenly began turning. It rotated with increasing speed. Suddenly, the crowd began crying with anguish. The sun, (disk?) revolving all the time, began falling toward the Earth, reddish and bloody, threatening to crush everyone under its fiery weight.” Fatima was a modern event, yet it is already clouded with the distortions of “belief.” The photographs of the object had “disappeared.” The key prophecy has been suppressed. Lucia shut herself away from the world. As the years passed, the object was turned into a “dancing sun,” the angel hair became “rose petals,” and the entire phenomena was removed from the field of science and entrusted to the religionists. This should make us take a second look at all religious apparitions, visions and miracles. I do believe in the occurrence of true spiritual visions and miracles. Perhaps a real Mary or the spirit of Isis does appear to people, but paranormal entities (i.e. jinn) are also adept at performing such “miracles.” Islamic teachings about jinn say that some of them have always endeavored to make people worship them instead of God. This is called committing “shirk,” and history provides ample evidence of such practices. Humans have always made various sacrifices to the “gods” and spirits. In many parts of the world they still do. On the other hand, perhaps some good jinn are trying to advance human awareness or motivate people to be more religious. Islamic history records accounts of jinn relationships with saints. And what about that Hindu pantheon? They certainly look like jinn! Four arms, blue skin, and elephant heads to boot! Messages from Mary often contain warnings about coming calamities which usually never occur. Doomsday threats are a common and well-documented type of jinn communication. Many BVM (Blessed Virgin Mary) events contain psychokinetic elements which resemble poltergeist activity. Usually it is only little children who can see the Lady. The BVM event at Garabandal involved little girls. The little seers went into trances which sometimes lasted hours. They sometimes ran BACKWARDS in a trance at incredible speeds with heads back and eyes directed upwards towards the heavens. They didn’t ever trip or bump into trees or anything. How creepy, seems like something out of The Exorcist! Doing things backwards is characteristic of demonic possession for sure, just remember the protagonist Linda Blair in some of the key scenes from that Jesuit-inspired film from 1973. Currently, the group of beings referred to as “aliens” are portraying themselves as disparate elements of the paranormal and religious spectrum. Aliens, walk-ins, ascended masters, the hidden hierarchy, spirit guides, channelled beings and natural forces like Gaia, are all imparting a similar message of impending disaster and a need for all of humanity to unite just like the messages delivered in the B.V.M. apparitions. The “aliens” claim to be preparing the Earth for a massive evolutionary shift of consciousness, a paradigm shift, while also continuing the education that they maintain is crucial if the human race is to be spared destruction. The non-human intelligences are feigning good intentions by warning humans of their potential fate, and the offer to assist humans is all but altruistic in that it is designed to unite mankind under a global authority, with their candidate on the Throne of the World,²⁶ and on that throne will be of course the Antichrist, the ultimate one-man show of this increasingly Satanic New World Order that is becoming more and more evident each passing day.

As an example in this disturbing context, Detroit’s Satanic Temple chapter gathered at the Michigan capitol in Lansing, on December 19, 2015, to perform what they called the “nation’s first state-sanctioned Satanic Ceremony in history.” The event came one week after Republican presidential candidate Ted Cruz supporters held a “Live Nativity” display on the capital grounds. As with the group’s previous public demonstrations, the Satanic Temple says their ceremony was not an anti-Christian protest, but rather as a demonstration of religious plurality, as well as a stance against the breach of the separation of church and state in the government.²⁷ In his speech Blackmore Jex, director of this organization known as The Satanic Temple, of which I have already examined the origins and purposes in Volume II, said it has commenced a new American era. His speech began with the words: “Hail Comrades. Hail sisters and brothers. Hail Satan. We are gathered here to celebrate the spirit of humanity and the dawn of a New American Era. In a season when many commemorate the birth of Christ, we commemorate our own genesis—the enlightenment of all humanity, a revelation of our nature as written in the annals of history, a gift from Lucifer, the light bringer, the morning star, and the rebel.”

Blackmore has also called for the total moral freedom, spiritual and sexual, personal independence and freedom of choice in all things Satanic, and lashed out at those who want to prevent the marriage between homosexuals, abortion, euthanasia, women’s liberation and liberalization of drugs by informing us to have the patriotic duty to disseminate such theories in the State, in the courts, in schools, in homes and businesses of America. They call it “Satanic Emancipation.” That’s why Satan has certainly found a comfortable home within the Democratic Party. If we look into the agenda of the Democratic Party today as formulated by its current leadership, we must admit that evil is certainly running the show in that side of the political fence, and many of these battles for the so-called “Satanic Emancipation” are carried out regularly by the UN, that as I have shown you in Volume II, is a Satanic organization dedicated to a Neo-Theosophical agenda manipulated by the Jesuits.

“For too many,” —say Blackmore—“religion has become an excuse to rule, to divide, to hate and destroy each other. The time has come for us to put aside our differences and realize that we have a common problem.”

Have you heard this recently? The same phrase is also found in a book that Pope Francis appoints and recommends often with great care, The Master of the World, by Robert Hugh Benson (1867 – 1914). The novel narrates the rise of a dark character, Felsenburgh (the antichrist), who comes to the world with political power through democratic elections, preaching humanitarianism, pacifism, tolerance, overcoming of nation states in order to impose a total control of the project through a new humanitarianism which completely dilutes the differences between religions—so to destroy them—and preaches of course universal tolerance, in the name of love. Faith, in short, should be abolished because it threatens to divide people, and calls instead for a mandatory brotherly love that can do without God. Sigh! A Catholic Church reduced to a pile of rubble, just as I have shown in my book Pope Francis: The Last Pope?

Robert Hugh Benson writes: “‘Oh! Once again we have a Savior!’ Exclaimed Francis, a former priest who converted to the religion of the Antichrist—a Savior that you can see, praying face to face! It ‘s like a dream, too good to be believed.”²⁸ I ask myself, why does Bergoglio support this novel, and perhaps approve its contents? This is outrageous! “Gender differences: whether religious, social, cultural rights are perceived as negative and the attempt is to achieve the unification, standardization, one might say, of the entire planet,” admitted the Italian Bishop Luigi Negri in the Italian preface to The Master of the World, adding that this is: “a massive system that brings people, social groups, nations, peoples, based on a fundamentally atheistic form of humanism, with references to common values that are deeply secularized Christian values.”

Returning to the Satanic ceremony, this is the announcement of a “New Era,” the official announcement that the darkest period for humanity has already begun and it is just waiting to reveal its director. The fact that the exhibition took place in front of a public building, the temple of politics (and so with the consent of the authorities or at least a partial one), says a lot. But I am comforted by one certainty, they will not prevail!

Footage made on the 20th of January, 2017 during the national Women’s March in Washington D.C, which spawned several demonstrations across the country financed by the infamous George Soros, showing a group of women wearing all black and holding the Satanic Temple sign. As they walked down the street, one member introduced herself to a reporter and briefly explained why she, along with the rest of the Satanic Temple members, are opposed to Trump.²⁹ “He’s going to take most of our rights away. Not happy about that. We want to protect you,” she said.³⁰ Well, we don’t need their protection for sure, and now it seems clear as the light of the day that President Trump’s enemies are also our enemies.

Blood Lineages and Gnosticism

The DNA of the Illuminati

sotericism,” —wrote René Schwaller de Lubicz—“is not a particular sense concealed in a text, but a state of fusion between the vital status of the player and the vital status of the author, in the sense of spiritual vision, spatial, synthetic, that disappears properly with the concretization of thought.” The esoteric teaching is therefore a sort of “evocation” and can be only this. Initiation does not reside in the text we are studying, whatever it may be, but the “intelligence of the heart” by interpreting it. Nothing remains more “hidden” or “secret,” even compared to the seemingly complex world of the Illuminati network. I am progressively introducing this information in this trilogy, which includes a fundamental role in the DNA of aristocracy, and is also the DNA that guides the leaders of the most influential Illuminati sects in history, and the chivalrous and Masonic institutions controlled by them. My old friend and film director, the researcher Varo Venturi, himself an aristocrat from the Piccolomini family, includes in the preface of the book of Riccardo Tristano Tuis dedicated to the Black Aristocracy, and writes: “By using the filter of scientific biochemistry and genetic engineering, if we put ourselves in the shoes of those who want to, or must colonize an entire planet and its humanity, one of the main steps would interconnect with the ruling aristocracy, implying primarily in the DNA. So in the history of the complex genealogy of the nobility, which highlights the well-known inbreeding of royal families, you can see how from a certain point, the infiltration of another DNA takes place. The modern conspiracy theorists would remind us immediately that this was done under the requisite financial capacity by the Ashkenazi Jews, giving the opportunity to the most wealthy tribes from this strain, to lend substance to the aristocracy for some reason in ruins, (often orchestrated in a certain way, as demonstrated by the French revolution and the Russian one), and through the negotiation of huge debts with the union of one of its own members, and a scion of the various families of the nobility. Sure not a noble way to conduct things, but most likely there is another intention that goes beyond the mere interests of political economic power. This process would have led to the current genetic condition of House of Windsor, which brought together all ruling aristocracies from the Eurasian region (from Egyptian Pharaohs to Genghis Khan so to speak starting from deities and mythologi cal characters), where both William and Kate’s families have in their recent family lineage, the Red Shield of the Rothschilds, the most powerful family of the Ashkenazi Jews, in this case represented by the Roche family.” (Author’s Note: An authoritative source noted how Diana’s mother Frances Ruth Burke Roche, was possibly part of the Rothschild family.) “Jewish presence is strong both in the maternal line of Lady Diana—she was perhaps 100% Jewish, if the rumors of her father being the banker Goldsmith are real—and the mother of Kate. (A/N: Also a Goldsmith related to the Rothschild.) While playing stupid about the Jewish law the woman transmits and imposes 100% the 'Jewish' gene, this leads to the evidence that George Philip Alexander, the result of two parents from 50% by the same family, carries a overwhelming increase of that DNA. Now it will be enough for the future King of England to marry another representative of the Jewish family and 'bingo!' ... One wonders if the reflection of this genetic strategy could better explain why recently the U.S. has imposed that the white race is termed 'Caucasian.' Anyway, back to the real spouses, when the family trees in question will be of public domain, the world could officially welcome the 'Rothschild Royal Family.'"¹

The elitarian Varo Venturi says that the aristocracy DNA is "a more informed DNA" and describes it this way: "DNA is more informed when transported by individuals who have had access to different and 'high-level' information, political, cultural, military, scientific, etc.; a 'database' that is handed down and enriched after falling downwards. And for representatives of the nobility, it was possible to write in the genes the largest and specific amounts of information. Because if we see the integral family tree of certain aristocratic families, they even claim to descend from the gods, those are the 'first' destined to rule the world, to influence humanity. Developing within an environment of power, which will always be overwhelming on any other human circle, because it is nourished generation after generation, because it has always more 'glory' than anyone else can claim, because it descends from the Kings, from the princes, because from the very begin ning they had territories, that can only be taken by individuals, or families of the same power, so they can be handed to their offspring. Basically they had sense of what Aristotle theorized, a government of aristocrats, is a government of beings with more information, so more suitable, ready to face any high-level situation, because in the genes they may have even data from medieval leaders, who not only commanded armies because of rank, but they fought bravely on the battlefield, ready to die, drawn into the glory of immortalizing their name for posterity. In the DNA of the nobles there is also this: the blood, the dust, swords, terror, violent death, oppression, hardness and the fragility of the matter."²

Alexandre de Danann, who is the “pen name” of a duo of Italian researchers working in the field of esoteric societies called Alessandro Boella and Antonella Galli, are authors and editors of numerous works in both the French and Italian languages, who have dedicated their lives to the study of esotericism as a “spiritual aspect of the world” and the authors of the excellent book Mémoire du Sang “Contre-initiation,” culte des ancêtres, He sang, os, cendres, palingénésie,³ (FIG. 57) where they show the biblical origins of counter-initiation, and the dark side of what I call the Illuminati sectarian network, originally born from the union of humanity, with the fallen angels. So on the one hand the emergence of lineages whose “special” bloodline preserves the memory of the elite via the ancient cults like the one of the ancestors; on the other, the dispatch made by the rebel angels, of certain knowledge regarding blood, in the broadest sense of the term. These lineages who refused and still refuse the traditional interpretation of the redemption and the doctrine of Christ, use the operational tools of evil, and counter-initiation on the dark side, to promote their agenda during the course of human history. However, the fading away of “blood memory” with the passage of the centuries, these lineages emerged from their traditional field, to offer to other individuals judged worthy, knowledge that aims to “deify” luciferically, mankind. It was important then, to integrate them with methods such as the blood pact, certain “palingenesis” made of bones and ashes, the use of human seed, the “marriage” with the elementary spirits, etc. I want to point out that the text of “Alexandre de Danann” is based on documentation from sources most rare or unpublished, and is a text studied in the context of the studies carried out by members of the Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis, so it is an important book, although little known, followed by various schools of contemporary Illuminati. In the book, Mémoire du Sang, whose underlying theology is Christian, and Christian esoteric (or even pseudo-gnostic) there is a revealed truth, that the reader can trace, and in the same Bible, in particular chapter VI of Genesis. This truth, in essence, says that in ancient times, the angels who sided with Lucifer, after being defeated by the Angels of the Lord, came down to Earth and joined sexually, in the form of incubus, with women. From this psychic union, but no less effective, were born races of Heroes and Giants—the martyr Giustino did not hesitate to identify them as demons—of which we have a memory in pagan mythologies.

Although it is not explicitly told, the authors seem to understand that the chosen people are the only ones that were created by God, while other breeds descend directly from these semi-human beings, children of the fallen angels, here is the point I don't totally agree on, but I will focus on it in my next book The Invisible Master.

To put an end, later, to the disproportion between the two lineages, de Danann writes that the Savior, through Baptism, was allowed to heal the imbalance that had arisen. This is the last and final goal, Christian evangelization, according to a vision in vogue in certain Christian circles. However, it seems that by mating with Earth women, these angels transmitted all their magical knowledge, but also “every kind of turpitude.” What's more, apparently because of women, mankind is haunted by demons and the spread and exercise of magical arts. Because, according to the mentioned literary sources, these fallen angels were sentenced to remain on Earth (including its astral sphere) until the end of time. They also have visible dwelling in seven key points, partially identified, with the specific purpose to damn humanity. Do not forget that the reason for the rebellion of Lucifer was because he refused to bow down in front of Adam, made in the image and likeness of God. From these seven key points, Rene Guenon imagines a semicircle around Europe, and it is no accident that from here, all the religions and magical currents would spread, according to some traditionalist speculations, that aim to stop the correct understanding of spiritual realities, including the correct part of the teaching taught by the Catholic Church. However, the tip of the Luciferian offensive diamond is embodied by those human beings more or less indirect descendants of those ancient semi-divine and semihuman beings, who were the Giants and Heroes, and the children of women.

This offensive by the dark side of the Illuminati is produced through knowledge of the magical arts, and in particular, Blood Magic—bone and semen⁴ which as you know from “Spirit Cooking” is in vogue with the dark Illuminati sects.⁵ By the above biblical passages, we can draw palpable certainty to consider the fall of the angels on Earth as the explanation for the origin of evil in the world. After making broad dissertations of the most diverse Jewish and Christian sources, to the comfort of this “historic” event, the authors of Mémoire du Sang come to clarify that these angels incarnate, these demons aim, from those remote times up to today, to combat and disrupt everything that represents the correct way of life, and the true conception of spiritual realities, with the sad epilogue to destroy man in his own psycho-physical harmony. Until not long ago, this infernal program would be carried out by the so-called “bloodlines,” that is, the elite families who have over the centuries maintained close communion of intents and purposes, through the celebration of certain rites, originally transmitted down to them, by the founder of the demon dynasty.

The author identifies these families with the ruling elite of the ancient world, those who I have spoken about since the first volume of my Confessions, and to which I am also personally connected. The ones that have preserved their crypto-demonic origin through royal and aristocratic bloodlines, connected among themselves, and later mixing with the modern lineages of the industrial and financial elite, the ones that people often generalize without distinction and call them “the Illuminati,” basically the proponents of this New World Order, that is in fact an “Old World Order.” However, because of the difficulty in celebrating exactly, the rituals that connect the first male offspring with the parent, difficulties led over time, to the depletion of the same lineage, as the rite poorly executed would have the affect of severing the “link,” these fallen angels, who rush for cover to find a solution, making sure that among the surviving lineages a few individual personalities were able to incarnate and/or evoke them (types as Cagliostro, Saint Germain or Aleister Crowley), who spread throughout the world, all sorts of magical practices (especially the ideas of “free thinking”), in order to annihilate, as their purpose, the human lineage. Indeed Alessandro Boella, and Antonella Galli, remind us in their book, that according to ancient Jewish tradition the angels in question rebelled against God when he wanted them to serve and revere Adam, who he made in his exclusive image. All the action of harmful sub-standard angels condense into envy, which is the root of many evils.

These lineages, holders of a particular bloodline inherited from an ancient pact with such angels, recreated or awakened secret societies, mystery schools, and sects, through the intermediary of certain individuals specially equipped. We could consider these individuals as a particular kind of “possessed” persons, who are loaded with the necessary powers, as were figures like Martines Pasqualis (1727 – 1774) advocate of Martinism (the Elus Cohens), or Giuseppe Balsamo, aka Count Cagliostro who founded the Egyptian Rite of Freemasonry, who with their powers, resulted in phenomena ranging to form the catalyst element around which such groups were formed. But today, we don’t have the well-defined groups or charismatic occult individuals of the past, instead we have a whole myriad of schools of thought and action (indeed, almost all of them with impersonal impulses), that are numerous in number and dangerous in their path, forming what is the current network of the Illuminati, that now after my trilogy I hope will be more identifiable because of my publications devoted to this unusual subject. Throughout the book Memoire du Sang, they describe for the first time with historical proof and references, the DNA of the Illuminati from an esoteric point of view. The authors are relying on a Judeo-Christian point of view, but show the most controversial side of “counter-initiation” and / or “pseudo-initiation.” These realities related to the dark side, are said to exist in parallel with the destructive forces of the truly divine and spiritual forces, that are opposing these lineages of evil since ancient times, and it is from these subjects that I continue recruiting new members every day for the Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis. They are working with genuine initiatic forces, that all over the world, under different names and secret organizations, are opposed to the evil takeover of this Satanic age, and driving human beings towards a true spiritual ascension. We are still far from the mystic asceticism of certain characters of the Middle Ages, or a certain “Brethren of the Free Spirit,” always misinterpreted and persecuted by the official Apostolic Succession of the Catholic Church. However, in chivalry by the most “Sacred” sense of the term: “We find on the contrary”—writes Boella Alessandro and Antonella Galli, a.k.a. Alexandre de Dánann—“an example of traditional lineage, especially in certain medieval chivalry in particular that of the Grail tradition. For the intermediation of the chivalric initiation rite, then, of a divine covenant, the quality of a lineage is transformed, transfigured: the rider was given the means to sublimate and make ethereal his own blood, thus highlighting the highest quality and spiritual ancestry.” They then add: “The knight who embarks on a heroic way of purification and is ready to shed his blood, for a liter of blood from a knight equals a thousand liters of blood from poor people, so to eliminate the original sin, with the content of his blood which is common to all men.”⁶

In practice, there is still linked to the Bible, a description of the serpent of Genesis that could not be other than a downgraded angel, if not Lucifer himself, which for “Alexandre de Dánann” passed on to humans through the turmoil of original sin, his legacy, because he would be psychically present in the blood of all of us. This ferment or gluten, is what the “counter-initiates”—that is, all those who deal with black magic without believing in countless warnings from my books—try in every way to revive, as the blood would be one of the ways through which they can implement contact with demons or entities, or better yet “alien beings,” to use a more current term. Eric Gajewski a well-known traditional Catholic blogger writes:

Pope John 23rd was supposedly aware of the “aliens” (they are demons) during his time and was the first to lay down the hammer on Catholics resisting any potential new changes in the Church. Catholics forever would be seen as “prophets of doom” or fundamentalists or Pharisees (take your choice). Even the verbiage had to change from Rome in relation to that, which was once believed because they themselves have been changing.⁷

In order for the masses to ultimately embrace this new tower of babel, that is everything in the Catholic Church that runs the New World Order under a Jesuit Pope, had to be gutted and changed, by the Vatican 2 Council, including the philosophy, the theology, the Orwellian new verbiage and of course the liturgy. Fr. Malachi Martin warned we are entering a New Age. They have existed since biblical times, and would have been also related to Jesus’ bloodline that for some, wound up in France, and spread throughout Europe, in various aristocratic dynasties antagonizing, those of pagan derivation. It goes without saying that this thesis, as great as it sounds, is absolutely not accepted by the Church, but in the end has a strange variation of the official verison of the event, considered almost Sacred by nobility, which is why this is an issue of primary importance to the real Illuminati, which I will introduce in this book, as I’d like now to stress its importance. The operating mode with which the members of the “deviant lineages,” and all evocative magic lovers in the various sects of the Illuminati, is the maintained contact with their arch-demonic entities since prehistoric times, with the use of the ritual human blood sacrifices, the bones of the ancestors or their ashes, and finally, the magic techniques of the palingenetic and avataric sphere, that use sperm and menstrual blood in their practices, even using urine and feces, as you can read in the secret documents of Aleister Crowley, and his disciples from the O.T.O.; or in the Illuminati group headed by the Italian Giuliano Kremmerz, pseudonym of Ciro Formisano (1861 – 1930), as well as Georges Le Clément de Saint-Marcq in his Eucharist, and in some tantric texts of witchcraft. Polytheistic religions, the magical doctrines, and esoteric cults, have done nothing but “nurture” the human psyche and the planet; more for ill than for good, as the psychic art of magic was revealed by downgraded angels, or rather substandard aliens. The incarnation of Christ and his earthly life have allowed man, only from that moment, to escape the evil aura of the Earth, and look towards more transcendental dimensions. All those who do not recognize the cosmic and salvific role played by Christ—and the truth contained in the traditional Judeo-Christian texts—automatically side with evil and often flounder in low level psychic activities, believing they are rising in authentic spiritual dimensions, but instead, often end up supporting the downgraded angels and their “New Age.” However, there is also angelic possession, not only demonic, which occurs when an initiate is attracted into the sphere of influence of an archangel, or a holy person, or a saint, that brings select people to serve at great sacrifice, sometimes with their martyrdom to the forces of good, in this eternal struggle with evil. On the one hand, man and the true initiates of light are working for other planes of existence (naturally pure and spiritual), and on the other hand there are those who follow the dark side, that binds man to his earthly existence.

For the Illuminati and the different initiatic schools, at the moment of death, the human component breaks down and dissolves into the vortex of the elements, unless man is able to maintain their conscience and memory (perhaps most importantly the latter), above the body, and able to maintain, a ligament dei vincula, as Giordano Bruno would have called it, with the world of tangible forms. According to Dr. Henri Favre, the Roman tradition guaranteed this with the cult of the Manes, Lares, and Penates, that are obviously all demonic deities. When a being dies, this “dries” and does not disintegrate if his relics are well-preserved, and he can be revitalized with appropriate libations (blood, semen etc.). Ancient Romans were accused of wallowing in this kind of practice, that, in reality, reconnected them to their demons and entities, which have always been linked to the elite. After the Christianization of the Roman Empire, these “pagan” practices survived in the patrician families and, secretly, in secret traditions of many European noble lineages, up to this current day.

That's why this is one of the secrets never revealed, and the object so jealously guarded by the elite. So, to this day, the worship of demons, indeed, their livelihood, still happily survive among us, thanks to the Millennial network consisting of the multiple sects of the Illuminati network. These practices have actually occurred and have continued to exist in their purest form, only in several noble strains because, at the social and popular level, the Christian religion prevented the masses that performed them almost every day. If not, even the common man would have continued practicing them. The passing practice, down the family tree, was once a common tradition, and not a dark and forbidden one. In fact, in ancient times, the whole thing took place in broad daylight, and these age-old practices were common, even among the elite, much more conscious of how the world really worked. Of course, times have changed, and now the common man believes that all this is a fairytale, and such traditions are simply superstition, now that he is immersed more than ever, in ignorance and materialism. This is increasingly present amongst the slaves of the system, the sheeple, while the elite of the Illuminati secretly continue to maintain such traditions, granting them the superiority of their psychic energy, and control over the ignorant masses. Well wake up and smell the coffee my dear readers, as time is running out. The manipulation of psychic energies, of whatever nature they may be, is in fact considered essential by the elite in power, for they conduct them not only for their daily lives, but also for the creation of conditions of survival, and for a possible immortality card, that some of them try to play even as they are still alive in this life.

Transmigrating their soul in another body in the last period of their existence, is a complex concept known and practiced in India for thousands of years. It was later embraced and expanded by the western Illuminati, in particular, the already mentioned Kremmerz. Technically, the condensation and manipulation of psychic energies by the Illuminati is done through the scent of blood and other materials, which attracts these energies mixing them with thicker psychic emanations from the operator or the bystanders. The result is a regenerating aerial energy called pneuma dear to the Gnostics, which we could compare, with the necessary distinctions, to what they called in the east avatars.

A key characteristic of theological thought is in the Gnostic tradition, the dualism between the God of Light and the God of Darkness, between God, that in itself is inaccessible and unknowable, and man. Creation is an event created by the God of Darkness, or lower powers somehow emanated from God, called Archons or Aeons, whose seat is in the heavens. For the Gnostics, man is composed of three elements, a divine spark that is mostly pneuma or spirit, subtracted in some way to God by the Archons, and locked in earthly prison, while the other two components are the psyche and the body. We were created by the Archons to prevent the pneuma to recognize themselves as belonging to this world; the psyche in particular is an aggregate of passions arising from each one of the archonics skies. The pneuma, in the world is obscured by the veil of the psyche and the body, so men are ignorant of their true origin, and to free themselves from the chains of matter require the knowledge of its true origin, and this knowledge is gnosis. Based on this division of the human being, the Gnostics distinguished man into three categories: the hylic, the psychic and the pneumatic, i.e. the Gnostics themselves as keepers of the fullness of the pneuma. The first ones are the individual materials, in which the divine spark is perhaps part of. They make up the vast majority of humanity: they are narrowminded, indolent, incompetent, lazy, indifferent, treacherous, envious, greedy, slaves, always devoted to materialistic pleasures.

The psychic man are those who are torn between the lure of the world, and need to attain knowledge to raise their spirit—often these people need to be stimulated so that the spark which glimmers in them becomes a flame that illuminates the darkness of ignorance. The psychic man, while not forgetting pleasures, relish in it. They fail to discern the invisible side in corporeality, and vice versa. Finally, the pneumatics are the masters and the initiates. In traditional Christianity, pneuma translates to the Hebrew word רוּחַ spirit (“ruah”), the name of the female gender that means wind and breath. Christian theology then will use the term pneuma to indicate the “Holy Spirit” which in Hebrew is named רוּחַ הַקֹּדֶשׁ, “the Ruach HaKodesh.” When we wonder why the world, despite the flamboyant proclamations of “scientists” and “politicians,” is now close to self-destruction, we need to reflect on who has almost always decided on the fate of the people, the vulgar foolish and ignorant slaves unconsciously subservient to the elites, who never really wanted, or could rebel. We return to the theme of “the Platonic cave” that I mentioned in the Introduction. From my point of view, the elite of today, and the so-called “illuminati,” even if this term is only partially correct, are more than ever, slave to counter initiation, black magicians, and real inductors to what is literally a collective mass suicide—as they instill in the minds of the people living on this planet the idea, that their false “spirituality” is the true way, which is nothing more than a bunch of ruminations, without support to reality. The origin of all this is unfortunately to be found in organized religion, that has always been misguided for geopolitical and military purposes, and has nothing to do with real spirituality, or the genuine teachings of the mystery schools of the truly enlightened, infiltrated and corrupted from within by the Satanic forces.

How does the dark side of the “Illuminati” keep in touch with the fallen angels and their demonic powers?

Mainly through an altered state of consciousness, which allows them to establish contact between their astral body and that of the world. It is clear that in this way, the conscience, freed from the bonds of their opaque embodiment, acquires those psychic powers which are the only means to establish the ligamen. Mind you, that great Master and teacher called Rene Guenon, distinguished the psychic powers and the world of the spirits. Such psychic powers often derived by the possession of demons, on the human personality, that with such practices, have opened their inner doors, so not an angelic force, but a demonic one, is helping them. It’s the same explanation that the Church has always made, about miracles made by the Saints, and the already discussed Blessed Virgin Mary, where the miracles of God are performed through an intercession. This explains exoterically an esoteric truth. To achieve these powers, in addition, we must undergo a placement that is analogous to the schemes of traditional purifiers and religious initiations—with the important difference, that this purification, capable of separating the fine from the coarse consciousness, is purely instrumental. That is, there is a true Ascended Evil working for Evil. When you read, here and there, of practices that allow the development of supposed “astral travel,” that is precisely the separation of the subtle consciousness from the body, we must keep in mind that this is the best way to end up possessed by these damn demons, that will never leave us in peace. These are practices used by some Orders of the Illuminati network, and mystery schools linked to the teachings of Aleister Crowley, or the aforementioned Kremmerz.

Marco Massai, a black magician and leading figure of the dark side of the Illuminati operating in Florence, in recent decades, in a mysterious booklet distributed amongst his followers, describes what is actually the exact repetition of the ancient pagan sexual practices writing: “But if the individual could largely find in this world the way for perpetual happiness, wouldn’t he try to endure the abandonment to the delights of the flesh for a continuation of this status for as long as possible? You would prefer to have at that point an evolution of MATTER instead of the one of the SPIRIT, giving to each his new and desired incarnation, choosing the circumstances in which to be born? This is possible and has been done by many people, who like to REIGN on the delights of this land rather than face a new spiritual dimension or the unknown.”

These godless ideals are already typical of the Babylonians (hence the famous saying Babylon the great harlot) and the Assyrians, whose religions centered on the interest for life and its continuation. At the moment of death, with all the memories and all the baggage of experiences made in the world, he focuses on the pneuma, the breath that survives bodily death. Various sects of pseudo Illuminati, improperly defined Gnostic as the Ordo Templi Orientis, teach their members at the higher levels, the practice of eating the menstrual blood and semen during dark magic practices, when, at the height of some of these rituals they blasphemously recite the phrase: “We know the Truth and his God.” They are fools who do not realize they are owned by the fallen angels, the Nephilim! This possession is evident even today in what is undoubtedly the most bizarre Wikileaks revelation that surfaced during the 2016 U.S. elections, where the Hillary Clinton campaign chairman John Podesta was invited to a “spirit cooking dinner” featuring menstrual blood, semen, urine and breast milk, by Satanic performance artist Marina Abramovic. Podesta was invited to basically take part in an occult ritual the media said was inspired by Aleister Crowley. During their sex cult practice, “Spirit Cooking” includes chanting the following: “With a sharp knife cut deeply into the middle finger of your left hand, eat the pain.”

So Clinton’s inner circle includes child traffickers, pedophiles, and of course members of the usual elitist “sex cult,” and the Podesta emails revealed from Wikileaks are pretty clear on the matter. Marina Abramovic says to Podesta’s brother Tony: “I am so looking forward to the Spirit Cooking dinner at my place. Do you think you will be able to let me know if your brother is joining? All my love, Marina -- ABRAMOVIC LLC.”⁸

It is no wonder Marina Abramovic was mentioned as a top contemporary artist in HBO’s anti-Christian TV series The Young Pope. In hard core

Crowleyan, and other types of deviant Illuminati organizations where such practices are encouraged, you can see practitioners change their human name with that of a demonic entity. I wonder what Hillary's demonic name is? However, the Italian Illuminati Ciro Formisano, became Giuliano Kremmerz, on the basis of a complex astrological calculation of Chaldean origin, that sees the origin of the incarnation of the soul, not in the time of delivery, but in that of conception. Of course the entity in question sucks all the life force, advising him to devote himself to unnerving sexual practices, including masturbation sacred to the Ordo Templi Orientis, an obligatory practice for members of the eighth degree. Once the person has been used and worn out, the entity changes lodging and finds another of these unfortunates, perpetuating its own existence over the centuries. And to think that it is man himself who welcomes voluntarily this scourge, is truly unbelievable. For God has not given Lucifer the power to enter freely in people—but these occult practitioners like the ones from the Clinton entourage, often offer their cum to these demons, jerking off and viewing their demonic seals as I also mentioned in Volume I. But what I have not told you earlier is that depending on the “purity” reached by these Illuminati seekers in refining their sperm, with a complex alchemical process, they are later able to attract more and more powerful entities. In fact, in their own ungodly doctrines, sperm maintains the imprint produced by the brain; so if while masturbating they meditate on the seal of Lilith or Astaroth, this sperm will be the catalyst and then draw these entities—where somehow there will be a kind of astral conception—which must then be fed until it is developing with his own blood or with the menstrual one of a partner. So man—for these particular Illuminati beliefs—is a kind of astral androgyn, able even without a woman, to create the shapes that then will return to act in the bodily sphere. They argue that there is a close connection, as we just said, between consciousness and semen.

Where are the historical and geographical origins of these strange doctrines and practices of witchcraft used by the Illuminati?

One part of such tradition comes from Kurdistan, where there are influences of Egyptian-Atlantean origin. From Kurdistan these doctrines descended into the Chaldean world, influencing Iran, and spreading into Syria and later returning to Egypt, and then Alexandria, where the various mystery schools related to the Illuminati had their most important base in ancient times. Orphism, which created the hermetic ferment that went on to influence the whole of Europe in the following centuries, and it is here that the demonic intercourse with Platonism took place. I'm not going to delve deeper into this, but even in Asia such doctrines were already widely attested, just think of Tantra and Taoism. A prevalent idea amongst contemporary Illuminati including the O.T.O. is that the development of the origins of shamanism and Tantra come precisely from the area of the Gobi Desert. In some documents of the dangerous AMOOKOS sect (FIG. 58) of which I wrote of in detail in Volume II⁹, speak of satellite photos which prove the existence of a civilization in the Gobi desert whose epicenter was in the Ananda Valley, but since it would be too expensive to make the excavations in the desert to receive confirmation of this, the mystery remains. Instead, what I would like to point out is the prevailing opinion in the various schools of the Illuminati, the divine light is in the sperm (actually just a spark is contained), and man can manipulate this light as he likes, to create one form or another. This is obviously a heresy, as unclean man should never touch the work of God. Man has no right to manipulate life, nor the means to employ the knowledge of demons, like some of the latest scientific discoveries, including the progress of the deviant side of the Illuminati elite in the dangerous realm of nuclear power and nuclear weapons that could unfortunately end our civilization. Now we even have an advanced Russian nuclear missile called "Satan 2" and an English tabloid, The Sun reported in the Fall of 2016, that: "RUSSIA'S 'Satan 2' warhead is the world's most advanced nuclear missile and is reportedly capable of destroying the UK in one swoop. The 40-megaton nuke will replace Vladimir Putin’s Soviet-era Satan missiles which can already carry payloads 1,000 times more powerful than those used on Japan at the end of WWII. It has been reported the weapon could even wipe out the vast state of Texas in the U.S. – an area twice the size of Britain. But what would actually happen if tensions with Moscow spilled over into atomic armageddon?”

9 Leo Lyon Zagami, Confessions of an Illuminati, Vol. II, (San Francisco: CCC Publishing, 2016), pp. 159-161.

There is a strong relationship between semen and the astral world, underlined in numerous references ranging from Aristotle to Gurdjieff, but we must reiterate that the astral is a perishable part of the human being, and therefore is too controversial to make any theurgical work and attempt to achieve immortality with a human body. Yet this is the firm conviction of initiatory and traditional schools working on the dark side of the Illuminati. In the higher degrees the disciple must assume the sperm of the teacher, since this substance also conveys the power that will act in the neophyte fermenting the corruption of his moral and spiritual ways. Just think of the so-called “Cake of Light,” the eucharistic host found within Thelema, the religion founded by author and occultist Aleister Crowley in 1904.¹⁰ This is also attested in the Tantric Lamaist and initiations, however sperm manipulated alchemically, as I mentioned earlier, and as is done in some sects of these Illuminati sects, like the one headed by Hillary Clinton’s supporter Marina Abramović (even if she likes to disguise her work into the convenient realm of “performance art”), plays a central role into these dark practices. The mysterious author Senciner writes the following critical to such practice:

The occult practitioners purify the sperm through a series of ingestions in order to eliminate from it the so-called “spirit of the forms” and make it “essential,” that is, devoid of specifications and ready to undergo the astral coverings operated by the tinctura solis, the power creator of the mind. Then this sperm, or mercury in alchemical terms, is made dynamic uniting the red egg of a pigeon and nourished with menstrual blood. These are the same theories of some pseudo-Gnostics and their aberrant practices with menstrual blood and semen that they say contain the soul of man, so that if they are harvested and eaten at the source, such substances can grow and regenerate man. This was done in the usual ways I have already mentioned in conjunction with special breathing techniques. Of course, for all of them, their evil seeds must be first expelled from their bodies, since it is only following the altered state (called Mag) produced by an orgasm where the mind can engrave its will in this substance and what they call Logos spermatikos. Also they claim to have within themselves a potential androgenic state, that would be in place during their unseemly practices, when, copulating with themselves and with their own hands, separate their perception of the erotic act, in a sentient part and an embossing and debossing part . This is false because by the time of the creation of Eve, this possibility was no longer granted to man—even if there are those who argue that she was literally created with such practice as was the very substance of Adam. These deviant masturbation and sperm eating practices have been symbolized by the ancient idolaters with myths of Cronus swallowing their children (i.e. their ejaculation) and of the Egyptian god Set.

The abomination of these doctrines is evident, and above all, this Luciferian willingness to go against the will of God is clear. What kind of impulses drive them to want to postpone the terms granted by God to human life? They want to recall from their sleep, the astral bodies of the dead, or artificially bring back the astral body of their masters with unclean sexual practices, using a specific kind of priestess devoted to demons and orgies, burning their semen and blood in the process. I dare to point out to the readers, these are not the mere practices of some pseudo-initiates, but I am indicating to you the very essence of the counter tradition and perversion that in Europe is embodied by the Osiridean Egyptian Orient of Giuliano Kremmerz, that I described in Volume I, and in the U.S. by the Ordo Templi Orientis, founded in the same period by Theodor Reuss and Carl Kerner, later hijacked by Aleister Crowley, representing the diabolic gathering of those who are controlled and work for the fallen angels.

Initiates on the dark side of the force

he black magicians of the various sects of the Illuminati are the true and only descendants of the servants of the fallen angels, those who have entered into a diabolic pact since the dawn of time. The purpose of the Illuminati sects that I have introduced in this trilogy since Volume I, is to return to this dimension simply to serve the fallen angels. For the purpose of re-establishing the kingdom of darkness, of which all sacred texts speak of extensively, to coincide with the full institutional arrangements of the

New World Order. As I told you in the first pages of Volume I, the Agape-Prometheus Group ¹¹ finally unmasked the existence of the mysterious Illuminati inner circle called Osiridean Egyptian Orient, making known to the world the real covert purposes of the Kremmerzian tradition, based on the secret teachings of the Illuminati Ciro Formisano aka Kremmerz. This gesture is certainly important, given the worsening of the international situation that has occurred in recent years, that saw thanks to the spread of the internet, further accelerating in the occult field among Crowleyan orders, obviously much more popular, and the more elitarian Kremmerzian schools. Paolo Fogagnolo, ex Red Brigade terrorist turned occultist, began in his introduction to the first three books of the Corpus of Giuliano Kremmerz, stating that “some of these realities, have brought their wealth of occult knowledge to the various O.T.O. groups, scattered around the world, particularly in France and America.”

This is important to clarify and help the many who naively, superficially and erroneously practice esotericism and magic, often believing to reach illumination, when in reality they only enslave themselves to dark uncontrollable forces. I advise my readers to never practice such rituals involving magical seals and obscure teachings that sometimes, if not fully understood, could be dangerous in the wrong hands. For this type of occult teaching there is already an extensive occult publishing reality, that is usually controlled by the most influential secret societies and the so-called “Occult side” of Freemasonry. But what is worse, is that these secret practices, so far only known by a restricted circle of persons, are now being spread by the internet, to the four corners of the globe, and anyone can abuse such practices. The truth is, that with the dissolution of the Order of the Templars, the Western world actually broke ties with the last remains of a genuine initiatic system. This point was also reiterated by Rene Guenon, as I mentioned to you at the beginning of this book. Since that time they have made their appearance on the scene to be a myriad of counter-initiatic organizations, pseudo-Rosicrucians, wannabe Knights Templar, pseudo-Freemasons, deflected orders, etc., With them, we receive a corollary of new arguments into the equation, that have nothing to do with pure metaphysics or true illumination, but only with the manipulation of power and dishonesty, a world with no ethics and culture that we see in their present representatives, that lead astray their followers. These villains manipulated by the occult elite, have had in reality the task of overthrowing the social field, destroying real initiation in favor of groups of pseudo Illuminati that have nothing to do with the true tradition, rather the reverse, like for example, the Ordo Templi Orientis. To do so they were forced to conceal these eminently political projects that have become more evident in recent years, behind the veil of the preservation of a fictional and incommunicable secret. The political project of the dark side, continues to this day, as we all saw during the Wikileaks revelations on Hillary Clinton, made before the U.S. elections of 2016, with ninety percent of the work for the establishment of the New World Order is in place. What is next, if not a global market collapse, of this surreal and dramatic farse we call the New World Order?

Looking back we can see how many so-called martyrs of free thought roasted at the stake or persecuted by the Church, were actually exponents of certain initiatic societies such as Giordano Bruno, who was tied to the Rosicrucians, a group that was infiltrated, and deflected later from its original purpose, in which politicians and black magicians and various Jesuit intriguers, work to control the revelations made in those famous Rosicrucian Manifestos: Fama Fraternitatis and Confessio Fraternitatis, a product of the antiCatholic Protestant world, that ended up succumbing and serving the usual Company of Jesus and the infamous Jesuits. They became secret authors of pseudo-initiatic literature, where it is claimed that man should be able to initiate himself with his own strength, a Promethean way of seeing things initially promoted by figures like Baron Munchausen. The most striking example we have perhaps, is with Abbot Montfaucon de Villars, who wrote the famous Count of Gabali. In this book (which I will return to in The Invisible Master), there is the theoretical justification for the demonic and anti-traditional practices which deal with the famous “marriage” between the entities of the psychic sphere, or if we want to use a more current term, the alien and extradimensional sphere with man.

Now, the requirement (covenant) of this crypto-demonic marriage to the alien entity consists of the waiver, by man, of sexual intercourse with women, because these secret practices require to nourish the entity in question with your own orgasmic vitality and the erotic activity of your brain—taking often the form (also tangibly) of a beautiful woman. Those who betray this secret pact with the entity are put to death, and amongst both Kremmerzians or Crowleyian practitioners in their secret teachings, there are warnings concerning the threat of dying from “exhaustion” if they are in violation of this secret union. A similar relationship with the entities is also created within the animist culture, especially in Africa, where if one marries to such entities they should dedicate at least one day a week, or suffer the immediate penalty of death, if you miss your appointment.

Abbot de Villars was later assassinated it is believed, for precisely disclosing this secret, even in its most intimate meanings. Returning to the mode of union with the elemental entities, it also cites the possibility that he might, however, have a regular sexual relationship with another human being as long as the practitioner pictures or displays in his brain the symbolic form (such as a seal) of the entity with which they are uniting. The latter can also intervene directly in their mental sphere when it has already established a close relationship. It remains to specify that for the sorcerers of the Illuminati, what in hermetism is defined as the Androgynous state, is obtained by absorbing in oneself the qualities of the opposite sex. This is a typical Luciferian deviation, not the real tradition. In fact, androgynous archetype comes from the need to combine the ability to generate (feminine principle) and to fertilize (male principle); and despite the Bible, affirms that God's creation was made exclusively using his word, and after the eighth pronouncement made with the creative word (and "God said," in the first chapter of Genesis), can not but reveal its double nature—of which man was created "in the image and likeness"—masculine and feminine at the same time. Numerous other mythological traditions take on an identical conception of the dualism in the divinity, as the Egyptian tradition, and most of Eastern tradition, that are all born from a gesture of the primordial god. Hapi, the god of the Nile, in whose waters lie the fertilizing of fire, is portrayed as a fat man with breasts; Mut, the great mother, has a set of male and female sexual organs, in representation of nature and is connected to what, in Greek mythology, is known as Cybele. The two deities, however, were generated by a primordial sun god who, motu proprio, creates the Ennead, which owns, among others, Geb and Nut (heaven and earth) and Osiris and Isis (sun and moon). The issue of coexistence of opposites in the divine dimension is not insignificant.

Luciferian power of the fallen angels is in fact engraved in women, such as in the character of Lilith, which is one of its most important aspects, suggesting woman is equal to man. Not by chance, that great initiate and illuminati called Gustav Meyrink, would speak of a type of chthonic-Pelasgian initiation of which there's still a trace in the Anatolian peninsula. These twisted polytheistic initiations see in the relationship between a man and woman a sort of fight, which is won only by the one that can absorb the other's sexual astrality. Furthermore, the existence of female magical-priestly colleges has the principal task of cultivating entities (fallen angels) for purposes that we can all imagine also included the induction of will in subjects rendered passive by highly refined sexual techniques. These forces are destined to incarnate in a material woman, however, so that together with the male element, they can finally accomplish the Great Work. The latter, on the one hand, entails the total insensitivity of the woman, and on the other, her ability to bring to the height of orgasmic climax, her male partner several times, so as to induce him into a hypno-erotic state suitable to receive external will. It also explains the sacred prostitution of ancient times that was intended to direct the people's collective orgasmic energies, embracing the male population with sacred prostitutes. More technically, this secret was exposed by Kremmerz in private manuscripts, when he says that in the moment of female exaltation, the lunar body of the male is shaped in the form of the person coveted. In occult practice, it is the same thing that happens with wax statues, when they are magically imprinted with the will of the operator, so that the priestess can impress her will in the human psyche, without them being aware of it.

In the Bruce Codex which is a papyrus manuscript codex present in the British Museum, and containing Gnostic texts in Coptic, which are named "Bruce," from the name of its discoverer James Bruce, who acquired it in 1796 in Thebes, in upper Egypt, and is written not to reveal the mysteries to those who serve the eighth power of the great archon namely: "Those who eat the impure menstrual blood and the male sperm." So John Podesta and possibly his boss Hillary Clinton are serving the eighth power.

I have established that the confidential Crowleyan teachings of the high degree of the Ordo Templi Orientis or the internal ones of the Brotherhood of Miriam written by Giuliano Kremmerz, are mainly to make contact with extradimensional entities, or produce an artificial hyperphysical body, relating to these practices rightly considered impure in the Bruce Codex. Practices that concern the sexual manipulation of energy in order to reach that state of active trance called by Aleister Crowley Eroto-comatose lucidity, and Kremmerz defined as the state of Mag, which is the particular state of consciousness that allows you to make this extra-dimensional contact. A state which is maintained by a variety of practices and regulations seemingly pious and ascetic, with sexual continence for a certain period, before copulation. One of these entities dear to the dark side

—however subject to even more powerful ones—in the case of the followers of Ciro Formisano alias Kremmerz is called Myriam, hence the name of this secret society. So here below are some details about the secret ritual that is made to establish contact with this entity in The Magical and Therapeutic Brotherhood of Myriam, or, more bluntly, Myriam Brotherhood or Miriam Brotherhood often referenced with the acronym SPHCI FR+ TM + of Miriam:

By the power of the sacred word, which changes the Earth to fire and water in the air: for the virtue of the power in place that allows the Supreme brother and teacher to reveal the secret in our work: to the strength of a love ineffable that binds us in a current of good for the health of the people of Myriam, I [name of the celebrant] summon the invisible world of living ideas, of living spirits, creatures of love, of unknown peoples to the human senses, that all obey the power of good, adraan coropazin zealous, love generators, saliel adriar Hormuz, archangels of light, kons-sindar, unique spirit of regeneration of the flesh and spirit health, will evoke in me, on me, around me; I will evoke the earth, the water, the spirit of fire, air, aspiration, breathing in the visible and invisible world; will summon because the shadow of the Supreme myriam, eternal queen and eternal rose, descend upon me, you confuse my shadow, they protect the force, it centuplichi the power of good, it intensifies the miracle of a single thing, it determines the combative character of all evil, it numbs uncleanness of every pain. esefi uri gnomes in the east, besufi caturbi roberis and let the waters of the West, micris, salamanders and buri dell'orsa, abenibusi sylphs jellyfish scorching Empire of the South, come! Come! Come!, which the prodigy's great that Myriam appear, that the fate of the triumph is quick as lightning a thousand times, like a hundred and thousand more times the light.

According to the authors of Mémoire du Sang, the visions and the same powers that come from the mastery of these occult practices, which I might add are typical of many sects of the Illuminati, are not of the initiate, but they are induced by the entity with which they are connected or re-connected to, in some cases. Proof of this is in the fact that these occult initiates assume an occult name, which would correspond to the sphere of influence of an entity, if not to an entity itself, becoming in this way a conscious medium for extradimensional entities. All this takes place for the Illuminati members not without a complex calculation of the astrological doctrines which originally belong to the Trutina Hermetis, which is of Assyrian-Babylonian inspiration. Since ancient times the dark side of the Illuminati attempted to crystallize and revitalize the astral remains of the dead and their pneuma in order to allow the mundane consciousness to remain tied into the material world in which they lived, and eventually they will return, through the practice of avataric-vampiric magic. This is the medium of choice that allows the entity to remain tied to the earthly sphere—while the initiate would almost never be aware of what actually happens to him, the entities nourishment comes from his life force, the sperm of the initiated is transformed through its etherification (burning) on the coals. Among other things, the combustion of the blood or semen allows you to create a real entity. And curiously enough there is also another possibility, burning the sperm of a deceased initiate, collected and stored when they were still alive, in order to be able to keep them “connected” with the material world. In the highest levels of these perverse organizations, the dark initiation is transmitted—just as is the case of certain Hindu sects, with an alchemical process. Through the absorption of the Master’s sperm generally with anal or oral sex, the transmission to man of magical knowledge occurs. When man gives his “substance” to such entities, it permits them to materialize and thus makes them able to dialogue with the state of Mag mentioned by Kremmerz. I repeat, this is a particular state of consciousness achieved by the initiate during the sexual act. Here we are not dealing with pseudo-initiatic sects recently established, but with the very essence of counterinitiation, and the evil side of the New World Order. These obscure practices may also be glimpsed in the myths of the Egyptian earth god Seb who masturbates or in the more obscure—but no less evident—Greek god Kronos devouring his children. Incidentally, in the latter context, we can point out that there is an explicit assimilation to the philosopher stone, and seed. Going into operational details, the extraction of this alchemical “mercury” would take place according to certain parameters which, in ancient times, were connected to Sacred prostitution and certain priestesses.

These priestesses had a duty, during the copulation with those initiated into the mysteries, to impose on them, by means of very sophisticated techniques of sexual magic, and with an energetic act of will, the orders that came from the power of the priesthood. ... these women were taken to a very intense degree of hypersensitivity and blunting at the same time, by means of drugs or other means, reaching this, through contacts with initiates, not for desire nor love, but rather a state of separation that allowed to condition the other deeply. ¹²

These procedures and others, which allow you to reach what has been called by magicians the “marriage with the faeries,” was “advertised” since the early years of the Rosicrucian era, with the already cited book of Montfaucon de Villars entitled, The Count of Gabali. It seems that from time immemorial man has had some kind of relationship with these faeries. We can find stories going back to the dawn of time, where the relationship of man and faery have excited the phantasy of many men. The faeries expect a particular behavior from humans, they expect humans to honor the faery ways and beliefs, they set standards of orderliness for human homes, which they visit often, however they forbid us to see them or watch them work. They like cheerful, generous humans. They enjoy all kinds of human food and wine but I will talk more in detail about this in my next book The Invisible Master. We must recognize, however, that these ancient teachings, apart from helping us understand the true occult beliefs of the most twisted and perverse side of the Illuminati, also provide a further explanation to this erotic trade with alien entities, often happening for reasons connected to the sentimental realm, and not the intellectual one. While wanting to accept the idea of being able to have an exchange of fluids with such beings, we remain perplexed about the total lack of doctrinal justifications given by de Villars, who attempts to hide the true nature of the game, so as to give rise in the actual reader a shrewd suspicion that the book was actually written by the Jesuits to expose and / or denigrate the initiatic operation of Rosicrucian groups, showing their most secret practices that bound them to entities of which the Jesuits have always wanted exclusivity. Senciner writes in The Count of Gabali: “The ideals of the book seem always just blatantly sentimental (i.e.: it is this way not because it is right and proper, but because is nice to be so.) Now, it’s possible that there’s never been anyone who has noted this? Even nowadays, in which reigns the sentimental superficiality of the New Age, there are many who refuse to be blurred by this vision. So why is it so? Is it not a proof of our suspicion? So it’s easier to think that the infamous Abbot of Villars was assassinated in the street not by the initiates of his time because he had betrayed them, but by the initiates who wanted to punish him for having done a service (perhaps historically, completely useless or even counter productive) to the Jesuits!” ¹³

But was it really “counter-productive” for the Jesuits in the work of Montfaucon de Villars? As I will show in my next book, the notorious Jesuits have actively helped the propagation of this book long after the death of the supposed author, because it was considered valid and important for their occult work. Whatever the case, the book—that I propose to examine even more closely in The Invisible Master—tells us of events that have a true doctrinal foundation. It clearly states that it is the virile member that attracts and coerces the hyperphysical beings; that through intercourse with them you can generate other hyperphysical beings, but generated in human form, as the Italian initiate Count Umberto Amedeo Alberti Catenaia (1879 – 1938), the last Grand Master of the Brotherhood of Erim (a Christian esoteric brotherhood) known as Erim of Catenaia: “occult schools to be avoided include those formed by intellectuals bandits, the most dangerous ones that have magic pacts with more demons.”

Erim Catenaia once wrote under the name of Lorenzo De Guberti to Papus and other occultists, exposing the wrongdoing and low magical operations made by Giuliano Kremmerz, inviting them to be wary of him. The letter of which I speak is at the Papus archive in the Library of Lyon, cataloged with the number 5486. Also Erim Catenaia explained why they do it, and what the dark side wants to accomplish: “Extraphysical accomplishments profit on keeping alive the ghost at the expense of the credulous and naive mass of affiliates attracting them with the purest and attractive names such as the Osiridean Egyptian Orient, the goddess Isis, Shiva, the goddess Diana and similar. Nor turn from bestial promiscuity, artificially fertilizing an egg from hatching the desired demon with an evil and vile practice known as ‘in interiora mulieris’ or the ‘homunculus.’”¹⁴

That is why Crowley entitled De Homunculus Epistola the secret instruction to the 9th degree of his version of the Ordo Templi Orientis dedicated to this shameful practice. In Mémoire du Sang the authors hinted at what the correct doctrine is, the traditional sense of the “marriage with the fairy” or the marriage to a benevolent entity in opposition to the evil associations I just mentioned, making it clear that this is the way followed by a certain nobility which militate the true initiates who fight the forces of evil and counter-initiation:

It should be specified that the fairy protector of a lineage is not only this, but also a complement not made of flesh of another being incarnated on earth belonging to the same lineage. ... When the first is ready to incarnate, and this generally occurs within lineages which can be considered as the counterpart to those of Luciferic origin, then, it is the true marriage of two complementary beings, transformed by divine grace that allows these beings alone to reconstitute their primordial androgynous status. Within these lineages, the fairy of the house is the same force, that protects the family and his descendants, until it reaches a certain degree of maturity that will allow her to be embodied in the form of an earthly woman.¹⁵

Here is the text of the letter of Erim (Umberto Amedeo Alberti Catenaia) sent to Papus (Gérard Encausse), a testimony of a struggle between good and evil in the occult side of the Illuminati.

Read and form your own opinion on the matter:
Naples September 13, 1910
To Mr. Dr. Gérard Encousse (sic)—Paris

14 This quote, in the book Mémoire du Sang (p.25) has been just shot, as it comes from the “reserved” Attainment of The Celestial Erim, that still is not available in its entirety outside a very limited circle of people.

Master Papus,

It's with the commotion of all my spirit that I address these lines. You are the beloved teacher who gave to my spirit light and the right distrust towards those writings, when I fell into the abyss of a terrible bad association. I understood then the terrible way in which I was pushing, after three years of a terrible battle with the elements of evil, my manuscript will come under your eyes as a thank you gesture, and feedback of your good work.

Read, teacher and benefactor, the summary of three years of continuous struggle, standing alone against the evil, evil sect of “Miriam.” Your spirit will be moved and will answer me giving peace to my poor tormented spirit.

I ask you: I do not have to publish this manuscript because I could not quite conceal the terrible mysteries to the uninitiated? If I do it in good faith, will you give me the backing or your protection word or at least a prefatory letter? I expect an answer that puts on the right path the poor disciples in good faith, that a perverse will can detract from the right path. I expect from lovely France and by you, the light and the freedom that your ancestors have given us through the sacrifices of the “Terror.” I hope in the help of those good men that propose to combat evil in all forms in which it presents itself.

I greet you with all my soul

Dr. Lorenzo De Guberti (sic)

At the Sign. Puzziello via Flavio Gioia, 23 NAPLES

Dr. Lorenzo De Guberti, the false name chosen by the Count Catenaia, obviously living in Naples where also Ciro Formisano known as Kremmerz was from, and of course Catenaia was probably reluctant to reveal his real name to the famous Papus for fear of retaliation. Turning to the subject of sexual continence, it is clear that most of the time this state is extremely conducive to the manifestation of the astral entities, which, appearing under the guise of the opposite sex, who involve the psyche of the subject they want to link to them. However in the magic of the Illuminati there also exists the “opportunity to take the place of the entity”—so to speak—and even to nourish the vitality of another human being. Of course the same entity opening such a possibility to the magical operator “plays” with people who undergo the rituals in question, so there is always a downside for certain choices. It is what is called, in a word of Eastern import, Avataric magic. It consists precisely in the detachment of the soul from a living person and the introduction of the intelligent body in place of the conscious principle of the magician. An assumption, whose simple statement seems to go beyond the capabilities of all the magic in the world, but that can be documented from different sources, being able to trace it, in its imperfect forms, in the same clinical cases of psychiatry and of exorcisms.

It’s clear that Avataric magic can also be made to encourage the incorporation of an entity—also for a magician who survives in the lower astral realms—with the aim of perpetuating his survival. A kind of immortality conditioned by the possibility of renewing the ritual. It seems that this magic is derived from Chaldeism and especially Egyptian esoteric knowledge, where they had become experts in setting the vampire vitality of the ancient priests to their own mummies. The latter was used as “astral anchor” for the pneuma of the priest, so he was able to continue to “live.” One means of avataric transmigration could also consist in acting upon a pregnant woman, ousting the soul of a child, which is precisely documented in Kremmerz writings in the Corpus Philosophorum totius magiae, as one of the features of this magical practice, and is precisely to define “he’s not born of woman,” but in the sense of what was said just above. In a passage of the Dialogues on Hermetism by Giuliano Kremmerz, citing the words of a “friend,” with any approximation appears to have been the Grand Master Prince Don Leone Caetani, the driving force of the Osiridean Egyptian Orient, the following, significant words that finally reveal the truth about immortality and certain Illuminati practices:

My original sin, because I saw the light many centuries ago, when times were not these but the truth was the same. From that time, I did not die definitively, and I can say, like Hermes, that I am as I was, and I am now, not by being born of a woman’s uterus, but changing the body, reborn by mutating the body, hiding jealously my old person, my identity, and, even in saving the same, changing approximately the external shape and never saying to the layman what was, what I thought, what I think, what I did, if they are between the names of the history of humanity. You see that my experience is longer than yours, not because you are a new soul, you are all old souls to my knowledge, but at each rebirth you first descended into the hell of a very dark womb and then formally drawn to light through the oblivious water of Lethe, you were left no memory of your past, without the awareness of what you were, being instinctively tending to an ancient facticity that is perpetuated in you alone for sympathy or an already experienced attitude to life. And I listen to it suspended between belief and unbelief. And I thought anxiously: poor and dear friend, an almanac wheel does not turn smoothly, perhaps? Is he suffering schizophrenia from dreaming while talking? Is he deceiving me? Then am I left questioning myself: what if Thomas Aquinas, and if Pico della Mirandola, and if the Borri, the Philalethes, the Rupescissa, the Trevisano, the author of the Turba philosophorum, were alchemists, did they not find a secret unthought, a Great Arcanum that enables man to eternally live as an Avatar, as the Indians say, changing only the physical body, with the youngest, entering the body of a teenager?

On the techniques of this operation mode, which is, as we have seen, the real big arcane of magic, the authors of Mémoire du Sang relate to the manner in which this is accomplished, and you will be surprised to learn that the best opportunity was supplied by: “therapeutic way, understood as claiming to effectively treat disease by magical means; something that is always well accepted, the patient not being able to evaluate the nature and mode of administration of the drug since it has the result to the heart, that is, its possible cure. But it is just so that the pseudo-initiation has the opportunity to act on a large number of people who are ... particularly subject to the action of the forces to which these organizations constitute the vehicle.”

In fact, for the fulfillment of this magic it is necessary that the person act upon both the presence of the magician and in a state of clouding of consciousness: “In such a state of passivity, it happens that the vital spirit withdraws from the head in the region of the heart: when it is completely withdrawn, then the other’s soul can project and penetrate the body.”¹⁶

So what better way to implement Avataric Magic if not by founding yet another sect of Illuminati engaged in such occult practices, this is basically what Kremmerz and Aleister Crowley did at the beginning of the last century with a certain degree of success.

The Neo-Templars and the Gnostic Church with a Jesuit flavor
W

When speaking of the legendary Knights Templar, and the links between NeoTemplarism, the so-called Gnostic Church and the Vatican, a prominent figure in the Italian Illuminati comes to mind. Grand Master Gastone Ventura (1906 – 1981), a high level Italian Illuminati born into a noble family, in the city of Parma, in the Veneto region, who lived in Venice, and was a high dignitary of Freemasonry and Martinism, as well as a key figure in Neo-Templarism. Count Gastone Ventura, who was in life a vice admiral of the Italian Navy, died on July 28, 1981, but his studies are fortunately still with us to help us understand more. His books unfortunately never were translated in the English language, include amongst the most important ones, The Masonic Rites of Memphis and Misraim, published by Atanòr of Rome in 1975, and Templars and Templarism, originally published by Gasparoni Venice in 1963 (now reissued by Atanòr with an introduction by my friend Fortunato Luciano Sciandra). Ventura decided in 1964 to “reawaken” as they say in Masonic language, the Italian Grand Priory of the Sovereign Order of the Knights of the Temple, called in short “Italian Temple” in which to train its future Neo-Templars, mainly enrolled in the European Masonic Martinist milieu of that time. Being a member of the Black Nobility in Venice, and respectful of the Catholic belief prevalent in Italy, despite his Masonic ties, may have you believe otherwise. Gastone Ventura found himself heir to an important branch of the pro-Catholic Neo-Templars, thanks to a foundation charter he received by the Marquis Alessandro Vettori, nephew of the former Marquis Vettori, who was Grand Master of this Catholic Neo-Templar Order from 1860 to 1880. Vettori was an old fascist killed in 1945 by the communist partisans in the last hours of the Second World War. He was in charge of the Italian Grand Priory, that more than a century before, dissociated from the Johannite of the previously cited French Grand Master, Bernard Raymond Fabré-Palaprat. On the 14th of September 1940, when the war took over Europe, the regent Vettori, unable to summon a regular Great Convent of the Knights and Squires of his Order, as would have been his original intention, met in Venice those who were closest to him, a total of six knights including himself, who I quote below:

Eques Justitiae ex Val Illiria Count Vincenzo Cavalli della Torre; Eques Justitiae ex Val Pezzola Count Gastone Ventura; Eques Justitiae ex Val Sile Lieutenant commander Giuseppe Manfroi; Eques Gratiae Luigi Valfredi; Armiger Gino Vianello Moro.

On that occasion, the Regent reminded the five Knights to enlist more volunteers for the war declared one year earlier, as the oaths provided by the Order when joining stated such mission for the country in case of war. Each one of those present in the meeting was handed a copy of the statute with an attached statement from the Regent, where it was stated that after the war the survivors of the meeting would elect the new regent, and if lacking the possibility for a new election due to the death of all five Knights, the only survivor would inherit the succession, with the obligation to attend to the duties relating to his position. Here is an excerpt of the declaration of the Marquis Vettori made on September 14, 1940 (the day dedicated to the Holy Cross): “We Alessandro Vettori of St. Mark and Val Dorica, have entrusted copies of this letter to the members of the Order indicated below, we convened in Venice before doing our duty as volunteers in the war for the defense of the Fatherland. So we do this in order to ensure the continuity of the Order itself in the event of our demise. ... if none of us survives abide by the Divine Providence, we have done this in the hope that we have done everything in our power to ensure the continuation of the Order, as well as it was our obligation and right as a result of the solemn promise which we have done about assuming the Regency.”

Alessandro Vettori, like the ancient Grand Masters of the Temple, was killed in Bologna in May 1945, by the Italian partisans (communists!) After the war, of the five Knights, two died, another one disappeared, and a fourth was reported missing in Russia. The only survivor was in the end the aforementioned Conte Gastone Ventura, who now had the right to the Regency. On the 1st of December 1964, he convened the General Chapter, which marked the “re-awakening” of the Order (after the Second World War), from which Ventura received the confirmation of his dignity, and inherited the broadest powers to carry on this Neo-Templar tradition. A few decades later two figures connected to the Vatican, took on Ventura’s Templar legacy, creating two separate entities.

The first affiliation is the current Magister Mauro Giorgio Ferretti, born in Reggio Emilia in 1954, who graduated in law at the University of Parma, and who is now the leader of a Neo-Templar branch completely controlled by the Jesuits. Of course, the Jesuits have been trying to accomplish this since the year 2000, a form of Catholic NeoTemplarism, less esoteric and more acceptable to the Vatican with its Order of the Catholic Knights Templar of Italy. Until 2006, this Order was known as the Grand priory of Italy of the Supernus Ordo equester Temples (SOET) abbreviations used by Gastone Ventura in 1981.

Ferretti, of course, hides the Masonic origins of his Order, and any past association with Freemasonry and the previous Grand Master, Count Gastone Ventura. It is why they have also changed their name in 2006, preferring nowadays a more popular approach in line with Pope Benedict XVI, who initially blessed Grand Master Mauro Giorgio Ferretti during a Mass at the Vatican, where Pope Francis blessed the Order publicly during a parade. (FIG. 59) Something truly unusual for a Neo-Templar Order that was born originally in a Masonic lodge, called Chevaliers de la Croix (in English Knights of the Cross) belonging to the Grand Lodge of France, a lodge that openly disagreed with the prevalent Masonic thought of the time. Thus was born in France the Old and the Sovereign Military Order of the Temple of Jerusalem, on November 4, 1804, from an idea of Bernard Raymond Fabré-Palaprat, appointed Grand Master of the Order, by several influential figures of the Lodge Chevaliers de la Croix, including: Dr. Philippe Ledru (personal doctor of the Duke of Cossé-Brissac), the notary de Courchamp, Prosper de Charpentier Saintot, and a mysterious character named Claude-Mathieu Radix de Chevillon, Grand Master of a pre-existing Templar Order and regent of it during the French Revolution. He inherited this position from the previous Grand Master Louis Hercule Timoléon de Cossé-Brissac, Duke of Brissac (1734 – 1792), who was Commander in Chief of the constitutional guard of the French King from 1791, and was brutally killed in Versailles during the French Revolution. It was actually Claude-Mathieu Radix de Chevillon that gathered key members of the Lodge Chevaliers de la Croix, with the intention of transmitting this genuine Templar lineage transmitted to him by the Duke of Cossé-Brissac shortly before his death, in order to make it possible in the post-revolutionary era to have a “regular” Templar succession. True or false, this version of the events given by Palaprat, kickstarted the very first non-Masonic Neo-Templar Order, independent of both the Church and Freemasonry, and it is from here that the future branches of Neo-Templarism are born, even those who openly embrace the Church, like the one of Magister Mauro Giorgio Ferretti.

FIG. 59 – Order of the Catholic Knights Templar and Pope Francis during a parade, an event that has not happened in the field of Neo-Templarism since Pope John Paul II, and his loyal knight Rocco Zingaro.

In 1804, Palaprat came into possession of a Gnostic manuscript, written in Greek, called Levitikon and another text, called Evangelicon, with a version of the Gospel of St. John—probably false, from the fifteenth, or, according to others, the eleventh century— heavily modified (without miracles and resurrection: in fact missing, chapters 20 and 21), showing that Jesus was initiated in Egypt to the great mysteries of Osiris, who had given to his favorite disciple (John) divine knowledge, or gnosis. In addition to this, Jesus was painted certainly not as the son of God, but as a simple man, moreover the illegitimate son of Mary! For Palaprat, the Christian Church founded by Peter and Paul and the other apostles did not understand the secret teachings of Jesus, and was of course twisting the real story about the Great Master of all Masters.

However, the truth for Palaprat was retained by the Patriarchs of Jerusalem, at least until the arrival of the Templars in the Holy Land, which, later, would have assumed the role of gate keepers of these secrets. It was the Templars in fact, after learning the true doctrines attributed to St. John the Apostle in the Holy Land, who gave up the religion of St. Peter and St. Paul, to become Johannites. On this basis, is this legend and the doctrines set forth in Levitikon and Evangelicon: a few decades later Fabré Palaprat formally founded in 1828, the Église des Johannites Crétiens Primitif (in English Johannite Church of Primitive Christians). In this context, to give a valid apostolic succession to the first consecrations of his Church he cleverly involved a Catholic bishop who had sworn allegiance to the French Republic, Mgr Guillaume Mauviel (1757 – 1814), Bishop of Cayes (in Haiti), who was consecrated bishop on July 29, 1810. In turn, FabréPalaprat consecrated Primate of the Church Monsignor Jean Machaut (1770 – 1845) on the same day of his investiture. Machaut was to finally consecrate on February 20, 1831, the most famous member (at the time) adhering to the Fabré-Palaprat church, namely

Châtel did not last long in the Fabr e-Palaprat Johannite Church, from which he was expelled, after a trial for “heresy.” The church itself did not survive, in fact, the death of its founder took place on the 18th in February 1838, although former members of the Johannite clergy emigrated to other formations to form what will be later called the Gnostic Church. Already in 1815, the “Catholics” escapees of Palaprat’s Order, who at the time started fomenting the Johannite heresy with a removal of the Church of Rome by the postrevolutionary France, declared the only faith for a true Templar was the Apostolic Roman Catholic Church. However, since 1815 when the Company of Jesus returned to the Vatican Palaprat’s Templar Order, they broke into a series of irregular Regencies with the decision of the Grand Priory of Italy to constitute an independent association.

Proponent of this decision was Count Giovanbattista Ventura, who was the last Grand Master appointed to organize the Italian Grand Priory of the Order, and felt a duty to stand firm on the ancient traditional principles increasingly misrepresented in the French Templars. So the Italian branch of the Neo-Templar Order that representative Count Gastone Ventura was officially born on March 1st 1815.

The second Neo-Templar affiliation currently linked to Gastone Ventura, is instead much more covert and secret than the one presided by Magister Mauro Giorgio Ferretti, and is linked to the mysterious Italian Count, Salvatore de la Moneda Olivari, born in Camogli (Genoa), on January 21, 1940. He was the Chancellor of the Order of Patriarch Ignatius of Antioch, and advisor to the Public Prosecutor of the Patriarchal Church of Antioch of the Syrians to the Holy See. Graduating from the School of Genealogy, Heraldry and Documentary Sciences, de la Moneda was a member of the Italian Institute of Heraldry, and a member of the College of Arms. The count was a leading figure of the Real Academia de Estudios Mallorquina Genealogicos, of the Academia Melitense Hispanica and the Academia de Letras de Lisboa and Arts, and a member of the Societe d'histoire et de genealogies of Moscow; and an expert on the history of the Orders of Chivalry, and also associate member of the Académie Internationale de Généalogie. And if all of this was not enough academic pomposity, Olivari Salvatore de la Moneda is also a prominent figure of the hidden network of the Martinist Illuminati, with the initiatory name of "Ignis." This is certainly a controversial and influential character linked to Italian naval Intelligence, and is considered up to now a prominent figure of the Italian Illuminati in the last 50 years. Salvatore La Olivari is still very active, and is currently an adviser of the Holy See to the Catholic Patriarchate of Antioch of the Syrians, and the Patriarch Grand Master SBR Ignatius Youssif III Younan, Patriarch of Antioch of the Syrians, a role that would show a real and concrete link between the Vatican and high degree Freemasons which are after the 66 degree of the Masonic Rites of Memphis and Misraïm, admitted in Grand Consistory of Great Consacrator Patriarchs, with a Episcopal Consecration. The teaching in this Section finds its study and research in classical gnosis and its Christian derivation that are linked with the Church of Antioch, intimately connected with the early history of the gospel. It was the great central point from where missionaries to the Gentiles were sent (presumably following the Great Commission). It was the birthplace of the famous Christian father Chrysostom, who died A.D.

407. This link was confirmed to me by Professor Giancarlo Seri, Sovereign Grand General Hierophant of the Italian Sovereign Sanctuary of the Egyptian Rite, that regularly works under the auspices of the Grand Orient of Italy, and the only one in the world working such Rites within the strict boundaries of a “Regular” Masonic Obedience. However, there are a bunch of “Irregular” Egyptian rites working under the auspices of various Illuminati sects, full of black magicians and theurgy, and homosexuality, in a reality that is as far as possible from “Masonic sanity” let alone “Regularity.” For example, Fabio Sebastián Cruz who signs himself with 33 degrees 66 ° -90 ° 95 ° 97 °, Grand Master of the Sovereign Sanctuary of the Rite for Uruguay Antiguo y Primitivo Memphis-Misraïm consecrated in Santiago de Chile, in November, 2011 by the Frenchman Michel Gaudart de Soulages, and tied to the Federation project by Frank G.Rippel. (FIGS. 60 and 61) Cruz is the founder of the first Masonic gay lodge in the world.

Fabio Sebastián Cruz founded the first gay Masonic lodge in the world in 2008, ¹⁸ and at the same time he devoted himself actively to black magic and Satanism, which he often uses against his enemies. I have a photo that was sent to me by a friend, in which we see objects from a black magic ritual (FIG. 62) allegedly operated by Cruz against Freemason Hector Lascurain 33 ° 97 ° 99 ° tied to a unrecognized branch of the Fraternitas Rosicruciana Antiqua.

Let’s return to the hidden link between the Patriarchate of Antioch and the Egyptian Masonic Rites, a very interesting connection unknown to most, that leads the members of such rites not only to the highest mysteries of Gnosticism, but in some cases to a secret recognition by the Vatican, linked to a supposed apostolic succession deemed valid by the Holy See, which then allows these Freemasons not only to celebrate Mass in their lodges (as I did even myself once), but recognizes them secretly as bishops by the Church of Rome. Certain Masonic Rites and the Martinists have in fact an Episcopate Gnostic transmission that often interfaces with other small religious groups, like the Old Catholic Church, or those of the various branches of the Patriarchate of Antioch. All this is a reality that sprang originally from the Gnostic Church, the Ecclesia Gnostica Catholica, launched at the time by a former Jesuit and Freemason named Jules Doinel-Benoît, a dubious character born in Moulins (France) on December 8, 1842 to a deeply Catholic family who entered the Jesuit order in 1859 (a bit like Weishaupt a century earlier), and after a growing obsession for women and frequent mystical visions of the “Eternal Feminine,” eventually Doinel was dismissed by the Jesuits in 1861. In 1874 Jules-Benoît Doinel, a widower since 1873, remarried, and through the family of his second wife, joined Freemasonry. He was initiated in 1884 by the Grand Orient of France, and subsequently oversaw the archive and library of the Masonic Museum, a prestigious position. Meanwhile, his skills as a valiant archivist brought him a promotion in 1875 to the Archives of Orléans, and as a researcher he discovered in the library of the city in 1888, a medieval manuscript written by Stephen, a canon of the Church of the Holy Cross of Orléans, burned at the stake in 1022 for his pre-Cathar Gnostic doctrines.

The discovery kindled the interest of Doinel for various Gnostic movements of the Middle Ages, like the Manichean, the Paulicians, the Bogomils and of course the Cathars (he believed, in fact, that the Gnostic religion was at the base of Freemasonry), and such interest made him resume his mystical visions. One night, he recalled later, he had been visited by the Aeon of Christ. Aeon, in the Gnostic tradition, bear a number of similarities to Judaeo-Christian angels, including roles as servants and emanations of God, and exist as beings of light—basically benevolent aliens. In fact, certain Gnostic Angels, such as Armozel, are also Aeons. The Gnostic Gospel of Judas, recently found, purchased, held, promoted and translated by the National Geographic Society, also mentions the concept of Aeons, and speaks of Jesus’ teachings about them. So the Aeon of Christ consecrated him spiritually as Bishop of Montségur (the place where we find the famous fortress, and the last bastion of the Cathar resistance in 1244), and Primate of the Albigenses, ordering him to establish a new church. Following this vision, Doinel came into contact with high level esoteric circles, theosophists and spiritualists in Paris. In particular, he was introduced in the living room of the Countess Maria de Mariategui (1832 – 1895), later Duchess of Medina Pomar and Lady Caithness, a follower of Anna Bonus Kingsford (1846 – 1888), founder of the Hermetic Society, as well as a theosophist and passionate spiritist involved in séances: she considered herself the reincarnation of Mary Stuart Queen of Scots (1542 – 1587).

The communication sessions (séances) were attended by key figures in the esoteric circles of that time, like Stanislas de Guaita, Gérard Encausse (which ushered in the Martinist Order with Doinel in 1890), and Joséphin Péladan founder of the Kabbalistic Order of the Rose-Cross in 1887. In these spiritualist séances, they evoked various characters of the past, such as the previously mentioned Canon Stephen and the Cathar bishop of Toulouse, Guilhabert de Castres. The sitting that was most memorable was on September, 1889 (another source cites June, 1890), when 40 Cathar bishops manifested and consecrated Bishop Doinel, as part of the Assembly of the Paraclete, later called the Gnostic Church. Doinel is then consecrated through a medium, which is unusual, but crucial to understand the nature of this reality, transmitted by what Illuminati call their “Invisible Masters” or “Secret Chiefs.”

For the management of this new religious movement, Doinel was supported by a female figure, a “Sophia” (the Aeon, whose name means wisdom) on Earth, but, after the rejection of some candidates (including the same Countess), they had to settle for a spiritual Sophia. Perhaps Doinel hoped for a sexual encounter with the Countess, the Gnostic Church was already linked to an idea of sexual magic since its origins. A 33rd degree Freemason, Dr. Stephan A. Hoeller, who I knew when I lived in Oslo, is one of the most important contemporary representatives of the gnostic tradition in the world, and will deny such thing, wishing to distance himself publicly to any controversial “gnostic” figures of the past, like Aleister Crowley, who definitely tarnished the image of the Gnostic Church with his sexual magick and his libertine manners. Although in truth, Crowley was not the only one in this environment to deflect towards the dark side. But let me explain who Stephan A. Hoeller is—the leading figure of contemporary Gnosticism.

Born in 1931 in Budapest, Hungary to a family of Austrian-Hungarian nobility, Hoeller ran away in 1945 from Hungary, which, unfortunately, became a communist country, until the collapse of the Berlin Wall. In 1952 he ended up in beautiful and sunny California, which as we all know was the favorite laboratory for mind control experiments in the growing New Age movement, run by Intelligence operatives secretly controlled by the Jesuits, and the various Illuminati factions of New World Order. Hoeller and his church, known as Ecclesia Gnostica, have certainly left a mark in the New Age movement. Secretly promoted by Lucis Fratres, it is a mysterious sect allegedly founded in Florence in 1498, also known as the Brotherhood of the Illuminati, that some say are the milder and good side of the Illuminati. I managed to obtain top secret documents, originally hidden on microfilm, later digitally converted, that seem to validate this hypothesis. Such documents prove the direct involvement of the Order of the Illuminati, the one created by Weishaupt, and not just the Brotherhood of the Illuminati. It is present in the United States and in the affairs of the Gnostic Church that Stephan A. Hoeller has inherited from Richard Duc de Palatine (1916 – 1977), in internal documents called “the Hidden Church of the Illuminati.”

But let’s see how the Ecclesia Gnostica and Hoeller’s connection are described on Wikipedia:

The organization now called the Ecclesia Gnostica was originally organized in England under the name the Pre-Nicene Gnostic Catholic Church in 1953, by the Most Rev. Richard Jean Chretien Duc de Palatine with the object of “restoring the Gnosis—Divine Wisdom to the Christian Church, and to teach the Path of Holiness which leads to God and the Inner Illumination and Interior Communion with the Soul through the mortal body of man.” Born Ronald Powell, Richard Duc de Palatine had served in the Liberal Catholic Church in Australia, before moving to England. Bishop Duc de Palatine was consecrated by the Most Rev. Msg. Hugh George de Willmott Newman (Mar Georgius I), patriarch of the Catholic Apostolic Church (Catholicate of the West) who consolidated many lines of apostolic succession. Bishop Duc de Palatine also received a charter in 1953 to head an organization first called “the Brotherhood of the Illuminati,” renamed “the Order of the Pleroma” in 1960. He received other esoteric lines and charters such as: the Templar Order, Brotherhood of the Rosy Cross, Memphis and Mizarim Rites of Freemasonry, and the Martiniste Order, and termed the combination with the Ecumenical Apostolic Succession “the Wisdom Religion-Gnostic Mystic Tradition.” In 1959 the organization became active in the United States through the work of Stephan A. Hoeller, who served as a priest of the church in Los Angeles, and was subsequently consecrated as regionary bishop for the Americas in 1967. He became presiding bishop on the death of Bishop Duc de Palatine in 1977, although there was a falling out prior to that.

Stephan A. Hoeller has also been for years a representative of the Theosophical Society of America, which the Theosophists traditionalists say is colluding with the Jesuits, and not respectful of true Theosophy, as I explained in the previous Volume II of my Confessions. So Hoeller is basically an agent of the Jesuits in disguise.

This is how Hoeller is personally described by Wikipedia:

An author and scholar of Gnosticism and Jungian psychology, Hoeller is Regionary Bishop of Ecclesia Gnostica, and the senior holder of the English Gnostic transmission in America. Hoeller was ordained to the priesthood of the American Catholic Church by Bishop Lowell P. Wadle in 1958. He was consecrated to the Gnostic episcopate by Richard Duc de Palatine on April 9, 1967. Ronald Powell (who took the ecclesiastical name Richard Jean Chretien Duc de Palatine) had established a modern-day Gnostic church, the Pre-Nicene Gnostic Catholic Church, in England during the 1950s—de Palatine received his successions from British independent prelate Hugh de Wilmott-Newman in 1953. After the death of Duc de Palatine in the 1970s, Hoeller abbreviated the church’s name, in Latin form, to Ecclesia Gnostica. He has continued to serve as bishop of the Ecclesia Gnostica for over four decades.

Something strange happened in 2004 on the centenary of the famous “gnostic revelation” received by Aleister Crowley in Cairo, when Stephan A. Hoeller, called by many “the bishop of Hollywood Boulevard” because of the location of his Church, at 4516 Hollywood Boulevard, saw suddenly its prestigious center used for 27 years, on fire.

Strange? Of course some say that the perpetrators of this act have been precisely the Crowleyans, who apparently did not appreciate at all, the harsh criticism moved over the years by Hoeller against the Thelemic orders and their Ecclesia Gnostic Catholica, especially those made in a Official document of his Church that was to remain secret, entitled, Ecclesia Gnostica Position Paper Concerning the Thelemite or Crowleyan Gnostic Churches By Rt. Rev, Stephen A. Hoeller Regionary Bishop of the Ecclesia Gnostica, released years earlier among members of his Church with the following Premise: “This position paper is issued privately for the information of the clergy and selected laity of the Ecclesia Gnostica. It is not for general distribution or publication. Recipients of this paper are requested to exercise the utmost discretion and caution in making the same available to others, which should be done only in cases when the position of the Ecclesia Gnostica versus the Thelemite or Crowleyan groups must be clarified as a matter of practical necessity.”

Obviously the disclosure document came into the hands of the perverse and dangerous followers of Aleister Crowley, who most certainly did not appreciate it. And here are some excerpts taken from the document in question, written by Stephen A. Hoeller, and later published by the site of the controversial Illuminati Swiss researcher P.R. Koenig that will help you better understand the situation:

A quotation from the pen of Francis King, a contemporary authority on Crowley may be useful here: “When Crowley visited Reuss in Berlin and had conferred upon himself the chieftainship of the British section of the O.T.O., he was also consecrated as a Gnostic Catholic bishop—or so Reuss claimed.” Crowley, however, does not appear to have been aware of his new status; certainly he never made any attempt to exercise his ecclesiastical functions [wrong: see W.B. Crow], “although, it is true, he did write a special Mass for the Gnostic Church.” (Italics by Stephan Hoeller. Francis King: Man, Myth & Magick, ed. Cavendish). “Indeed, as far as one can discern, Crowley's only act that related to anything even remotely ecclesiastical is his writing of the Liber XV O.T.O. Ecclesiae Gnosticae Canon Missae, of which more shall be said later. When perusing Crowley's voluminous Opus of many volumes, nowhere does one find any indication of his interest in or knowledge of the sacraments, the mythos and ethos of the historic Christian church. He frequently uses (some would say misuses and abuses) the technical terms of the sacraments, associating them with sexual matters, but that is about all. In the following we shall undertake a systematic, point by point examination of the features of the claims of the Crowleyan succession which seem doubtful to us:"

(1) Crowley seems never to have used the Papus successions at all if he ever received them in the first place. Crowley only operated two orders: the O.T.O. which he received from Germany, and the A.·. A.·. which he took from the Golden Dawn. At the time Crowley received his authorities from Reuss, the Gnostic Catholic Church had merged or was about to merge with the Martinist Order, in such a manner that they no longer functioned separately. There is no reason to suppose that Reuss or Crowley would have gone contrary to the rules established by Papus and separated this church from the Martinist context.

(2) Neither Papus nor Crowley had a valid apostolic succession to pass on because they had none in the first place. Reuss is said to have received the succession from Papus in 1909. ... Papus only received the unquestionably valid succession from Bricaud after July 1913, this being the date of Bricaud's own consecration. Thus in 1909 Papus may or may not have been a valid bishop depending on whether he did or did not receive the Doinel succession by this time and (b) whether one is justified in accepting the Doinel succession is valid. ... The only succession possessed by Papus which one must accept as valid, however, he simply did not have to confer on Reuss in 1909. (3) Assuming that Papus had a valid succession to hand on in 1909, which is assuming too much—the succession may not have passed on to Reuss owing lack of proper intention. Proper intention in the ecclesiastical sense implies that in consecrating an other bishop the consecrator intends to do as the church has always done under such circumstances. The passing on of the Martinist and associated grades and initiations was a pro-forma honorary gesture on the part of Papus, given in exchange for a similar honorary conferring of O.T.O. degrees on himself by Reuss. This sort of thing is customary among heads of initiatory orders who recognize each other in a fraternal manner, but it is a little more than a friendly formality. (A famous and controversial analogous event being the exchange of honorary grades in a like manner by Aleister Crowley and H. Spencer Lewis of the A.M.O.R.C.) While there may be honorary degrees of Masonic orders conferred at a distance or “on sight,” this cannot be done in an ecclesiastical succession. Thus even if Papus may have wished to pass on some kind of an ecclesiastical succession to Reuss, the manner of conferring it would have been enough to render it very suspect indeed.

(4) There is nor proof that either Reuss or Crowley were technically capable of receiving a valid catholic episcopate. In order to be consecrated a bishop, a person must be validly baptized, confirmed, and ordained a priest and deacon. Were these prerequisites fulfilled in the case of Reuss? Were they in the case of Crowley? If not, they were not capable of receiving a valid episcopate even if the consecrator possessed a valid succession and held the proper intention.

(5) Reuss probably, and Crowley almost certainly, could not pass on any valid succession they received because they lacked proper intention. Reuss was a Mason with little or no knowledge of catholic practice, and Crowley was a passionate neo-pagan without any shred of sympathy for the catholic sacramental mythos even in its most esoteric aspect.

(6) Provided that claims should be raised to a succession descending from Papus through Reuss and through Crowley to various O.T.O. bishops, such bishops themselves could probably not pass on an apostolic succession in a valid manner for lack of proper intention. The leading members of O.T.O. organizations as a rule are so out of touch with even the rudiments of the catholic tradition that it is highly unlikely that their actions could be accepted as conforming to the doctrine of intention even in its most liberal and esoteric sense. Present-day representatives of the O.T.O. tradition at least in the United States are woefully uneducated in all matters including those ecclesiastical, and emotionally unstable to boot—at least in the majority of instances. It would be too much to expect from most of these ragtag subculture-magicians to know anything of proper intention, not to speak of holding such an intention.

(7) Whatever valid stream and current of magic, ecclesiastical or otherwise may have existed in the O.T.O. in Crowley’s time is now probably absent in the present O.T.O. offshoots, owing to their lack of proper succession authority. ... Here a little insight into more recent O.T.O. history may prove helpful. According to the late Louis T. Culling (Frater Aquila), a high-ranking member of the O.T.O. as well as of its short-lived offshoot, the G.B.G., and a long-time personal friend of this writer, the only person lawfully entitled to head the O.T.O. was Karl Johannes Germer (1885 – 1962). This man—of whom even the most rabid critics cannot say much ill—became the Outer Head of the O.T.O. upon Crowley’s death as he was already somewhat the acting head during Crowley’s last years. According to reliable informants Karl Germer named a man named Metzger (Fratr Paragranus) as his successor. Metzger resided in Switzerland and re-established the O.T.O. in the German speaking countries in a most sensible and respectable way. It would appear on the basis of this information that all other existing O.T.O. groups (exclusive of that of Mr. Metzger, Frater Paragranus) are without proper succession authority. The English writer on Crowleyana, Kenneth Grant, who claims to be Outer Head was expelled by Karl Germer from the order on July 20, 1955. An other alleged chief, Grady McMurtry of California was indeed appointed by Crowley as his personal representative in the United States and as the reformer of the order, but only subject to the approval of Germer. Germer never approved, thus McMurtry’s position also evaporated in spite of his claims. Neither the expelled member Grant, nor the unapproved representative McMurtry were mentioned in Karl Germer’s will. A Brazilian claimant named Motta has similarly failed to establish any valid authority for his high sounding titles in yet another revival movement of the O.T.O. Unlike in churches, where schisms do not invalidate successorship, in the O.T.O. the magical current is said to go with the lawful successorship—at least so this writer was informed by the late Luis T. Culling and other informed O.T.O. members. Perhaps this factor may be held accountable for the stability and common sense of Metzger’s O.T.O. and for the lamentable ways of the other, less legitimate bodies?

Then Stephan A. Hoeller makes further accusations:

The only document available that pertains to the sacramental practice of the Ecclesia Gnostica Catholica of the O.T.O. is the aforementioned Mass written by Crowley himself. It is a curious text, poetic and magical in nature, but having virtually nothing in common with a Mass as understood by Catholic tradition both orthodox and heretical. While it cannot be thus said to be either a Mass or catholic, one may also say that it has hearty little in it that could be called Gnostic either, unless the frequent use of the mystic word IAO unaccompanied by any other Gnostic feature should be accepted as atoning for the omission of everything else. The Ecclesiae

Gnosticae Catholicae Canon Missae is not what its title declares. It is a complicated magical ceremony of considerable dramatic effect written in the typical bombastic style of Crowley, and dilated with his poetry, and containing quasi-Egyptian, Kabbalistic and other elements, with the Christian sacramental mythos notably absent. It does not contain many of the essential features which make up a Mass in any and all branches of the church catholic whether in East or West. Although it does contain the necessary formula of consecration in Greek (“this is my body ‘and’ this is the chalice of my blood”) the formula of consecration is taken out of the traditional context wherein it is identified as spoken by Jesus the Christ. Also in other portions of the Mass the consecrated host is referred to as sperm, and indeed there exists a probably well-founded rumour to the effect that the bread-like substance used in the Mass contains sperm. It is also telling that although many personages of various spiritual stature from Lao-Tze and Krishna to Rabelais, Swinburne and (naturally) Sir Aleister Crowley are mentioned by name in the Mass, the name of Jesus or Christ is never mentioned once. This ritual is clearly not a Mass in any sense of the Christian and Catholic mythos. We are not informed whether Crowley recognized or had any use for the other six sacraments, or whether he felt that one, i.e. his Mass was enough. ¹⁹

So what better time to punish Stephan A. Hoeller for his frontal attack on the O.T.O. Church, with the centenary of the Book of Law, channeled and transmitted in April, 1904 to the Wizard of the Illuminati, Crowley himself. A. W. Hill wrote by no coincidence, that after the event, as reported by L.A. Weekly: “On May 7, 2004, as dusk was falling, a plume of black smoke as big and ornery as a Texas twister rose above Los Angeles. And though no one later raved on local talk radio that he’d seen the face of the devil in the ominous cloud, a knowing onlooker in a sufficiently altered state might well have glimpsed the Whore of Babylon, the face of the eternal Rome to which Philip K. Dick referred when he famously wrote: ‘The Empire never ended.’ The rundown, two-story building at 4516 Hollywood Boulevard, which for 27 years had been the peculiar home of Bishop Stephan A. Hoeller’s Ecclesia Gnostica, was in flames. No one was injured, and the vessels of communion were salvaged, but unbeknownst to most, a landmark of hidden Hollywood had been lost. In this tiny hole-in-the-wall of a chapel, to the streetside accompaniment of bleating horns, sirens and the occasional gunshot, the gnomish and erudite Dr. Hoeller had held forth most every Friday night on subjects ranging from Kabbalah and Sufism to the psychedelic sacraments of Eleusis. And on each Sunday, he'd lighted the incense, donned his vestments and conducted a mass that was Catholic in all but its subtly subversive liturgy, for Hoeller is a Gnostic, and the sole American bishop consecrated by the Duc de Palatine, mysterious bearer of the English Gnostic Transmission.

Now let's talk a bit more about the mysterious Duc de Palatine.

Richard, Duc de Palatine and the Pansophic Rite

he "Ancient Universal Pansophic Masonic Rite" was a rite established at the end of the 19th century by John Yarker, to "synthesize" all esoteric European lineages of the various Illuminati sects. It is generally known that Yarker was a "collector" of Charters, and like Theodor Reuss, founder of the O.T.O., and Papus after him, it was his dream to unite all the orders, rites etc. of the Western Mystery Tradition of the Illuminati with each other. The Ill. Bro. Yarker, Jn.: 33°, 90°, 96° Grand Hierophant of A.P.R.M.M., initiated and installed James Heard as the first Vicarius Salomonis, Conservator of the Rite of the Ancient Universal Pan-Sophic Rite of Masonry, (which synthesized all esoteric European lineages in the late 19th century), who transmitted to Ill. Bro. Hugh G. de Willmott, who transmitted to H.S.H. Duc de Palatine. Pansophic Freemasonry can operate any and all of Yarker's rites, but only by individual warrant and charter of the Vicarius Salomonis.

Richard, Duc de Palatine, was a seminal figure in the development, transformation, and perpetuation of the Gnostic tradition. Palatine was born Ronald Powell of French and British noble parents in 1916. His mother descended from Captain John Hancock, first signer of the Declaration of Independence. He was ennobled by H.I.H. Prince Alexander Licastro de la Chastre Grimaldi Lascaris of Deols, France, under the Seal of the Prefect of Rome, Italy in 1954, and took the name Richard Jean Chretien Duc de Palatine. This was to confirm his attainment of Spiritual Nobility as a Prince of Light. Richard came to England and was eventually consecrated as a Gnostic Bishop, and claimed an unbroken line of succession from the College of Antioch, that linked twelve lines of succession. In 1953, he received a Charter from The Ancient Mystic Order of the Fratrisc Lucis, commonly called The Brotherhood of the Illuminati (FIG. 63), to institute an "Outer Section to be called The Brotherhood of the Illuminati, to be dedicated to the object of restoring the mystic teaching of our, Lord Jesus Christ.”

In 1960, the name of the Brotherhood of the Illuminati was changed to the Brotherhood of the Pleroma and The Order of the Pleroma, and a council of three was appointed. Richard held high office in many orders and was Sovereign Grand Master of the United

STEP -SYNOPSIS:

We wish to advise that associated with the Brotherhood of the Illuminati are a number of Orders and Churches dealing with the apocryphal and occultic lore, whose final accession is vested in the person of His Serene Highness Richard, Duc de Palatine, and are as follows:

ORDERS: The Neo-Nicene Catholic Church.
MEMBER: The Brotherhood of the Illuminati.
Allegiance: The Neo-Sophic Rite of Freemasonry, embracing the following Orders:

- The Order of the Knights of the Holy Ghost.
- The Order of the Illuminati.
- The Order of the Temple (Templars in the Apostolic Dimension)
- The Order of the Knights of St. John.
- The Order of the Knights of Malta.
- The Order of the Knights of the Holy Sepulchre.
- The Holy Church of the Holy Grail.
- The Rosicrucian Brotherhood of the Light.
- The Order of the Holy Grail of Hierosolym.
- The Order of the Holy Royal Arch of Egypt.
- The Ancient and Mystical Rite (33 Degrees)
- The Rite of Memphis (33 Degrees)
- The Rite of Mizraim (33 Degrees)
- The Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite (33 Degrees)
- The Esoteric Order of Enoch.
- The Order of the Merkabah.

The Ill. Bro. John Barker, Jr. 31st, 32nd, 33rd Initiator and Install Agent under the Great Hierophant, Conservator of the Rite of the Ancient Universal Neo-Sophic Rite of Freemasonry, who transmitted this power and authority to Ill. Bro. Hugh G. de Willmott, Baron and who in turn transmitted this authority to His Ser. Duc de Palatine. Although the same authority was granted to the S.T.C. in 1870, this line of succession has no connection with the former S.T.C. in any way. According to the promise made by John Barker to the Rosicrucian Grand Lodge of England, that he would not confer any of these degrees upon individuals other than those who have been only those who are 3rd Degree Masons was such adherence with us.

CHIEF GRAND OFFICE: The Order of the True Holy Cross.
President: The Abbey of Pythia Solima.
Secretary: The United Fraternity of the St. Michael and Sophia.
Grand Hierophant: The Sovereign Department of the Mysteries.

All work authorizations and Opinions or Initiations can be passed by competent persons in the archives of the Brotherhood of the Illuminati.

FIG. 64 – Top secret documents originally hidden on microfilm —as explained in the note written by hand on this page to your right—that would seem to show evidence, at least on paper, of the fact that Richard, Duc de Palatine, Archon of the Brotherhood of the Illuminati, was initiatic heir of a supposed lineage of the Order of the Illuminati Masonic Rite called Ancient Universal Pan-Sophic Rite, originally bestowed upon his Master Hugh G. de Willmott, by noted English Freemason John Yarker (1883 – 1913), a prominent figure of “fringe” Freemasonry, and an important member also in so-called “Regular” Freemasonry, who started several Neo-Templar rites and was tied, in turn, to Aleister Crowley.

Rites of Memphis and Mizraim, Grand Hierophant of the Sovereign Imperium of the Mysteries, Sovereign Grand Master of the Ancient and Universal Pansophic Rites of Freemasonry, Senior Prelate and Great Prior of the Order of the True Rosy Cross, and Grand Master of the United Templar Rite.

In July, 1964, he incorporated these bodies into the Disciplina Arcani (Arcanum Arcanorum), an integral part of the Order of the Pleroma, in order to withdraw the Masonic influence, and to cleanse the Order from all taint of being a political tool. Palatine had plumbed the depths of Freemasonry through the Scottish Rite, and attained the 33° degree, then went into the esoteric Ultra-Masonic and Egyptian Rites, searching for spiritual enlightenment. Palatine preserved and perpetuated the Pansophic or Ancient Rites of Freemasonry, where John Yarker had spent his career painstakingly collecting valid charters and warrants to preserve. (FIG. 64) Palatine deleted the Masonic requirement, synthesized authorities, warrants, and charters, used spiritual discernment as a basic canon for ordination and consecration rather than seminary training, and was willing to quickly advance people to higher degrees when appropriate. These and other such Rites are mere external group exercises or liturgies through which invisible Cabalistic and Hermetic forces are contacted to potentiate the interior unfoldment of lodge members. These rites are not the essential Gnosis of any school or tradition. They are merely ritual instruments that were appropriate in a medieval setting, and are secondary to the essential transmission. The intent was not to revive those complex medieval European rites, but to make them available for study by Pansophic Freemasons. (FIGS. 65 and 66)

Also, one must ask, how many of those who work the Rites of Memphis and Mizraim still have the entire 99° degrees, and of those, how many actually do the “Internal Alchemy” work related to the material in the Quarantines of Cagliostro? Duc de Palatine transmitted to Bishop and Count George Boyer, Grand Archon, Brotherhood and Order of the Pleroma, Hermetic Brotherhood of Light, Sanctuary of the Gnosis (which have authority to transmit the following extant lineages), warranted the Grailmaster, on behalf of the Temple of the Holy Grail, to carry forth the authorities embodied in the Pansophic Rite, including:

- ILLUMINIST (ULTRA-MASONIC):
 1. Fratres Lucis (Brotherhood of the Illuminati)
 2. Order of the Illuminati (Ordo Illuminatorum)

3. Order of the Martiniste
4. Brotherhood of Luxor
- TEMPLAR:
 1. Knights of the Holy Ghost
 2. Knights of St. John
 3. Knights of Malta
 4. Knights of the Holy Sepulchre
 5. Knights of the Temple
- ROSICRUCIAN:
 1. Order of the True Rosy Cross
 2. Golden and Rosy Cross
 3. Order of the Rose Croix of Hiredom
- GNOSTIC ECCLESIAE:
 1. Order of the Ecclesiae Rosicrucianae Catholicae (Catholic)
 2. Hidden Church of the Holy Grail (Protestant, Edgar Waite)
 3. Ecclesia Gnostica Ortodoxa
- ULTRA-MASONIC and MASONIC:
 1. Ancient and Primitive Rite
 2. Rite of Memphis
 3. Rite of Mizraim
 4. Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite
 5. Swedenborgian Rite

himself Valentin, in honor of the famous Gnostic founder of the second century named Valentin, something that was done also by my old friend the Norwegian Jan Valentin Sæther (b. 1944), a very talented painter who paints all the Grand Masters of the Order Freemasons of Norway (Swedish Rite), and is primarily responsible for the Bruchion Center that used to operate in Oslo on behalf of the Ecclesia Gnostica of Dr. Stephan A. Hoeller. (FIGS. 68 and 69) I followed this Gnostic reality for a few years when I lived in Norway, but at one point it was completely infiltrated by members of the various O.T.O factions, bringing in their perverse Gnostic liberal beliefs that were far more dangerous than those of the Ecclesia Gnostica. Present were Illuminati Satanists like Nicholaj Frisvold de Mattos, who calls himself Tau Orphee Luchifero, or his disciple Runar Karlsen (Bishop Tau To Logos), an XI ° of the Ordo Templi Orientis (degree dedicated to homosexual magic), who celebrated an unlikely Gnostic Mass in the Bruchion Center of Jan Valentin Sæther, where under the valuable sacral vestment, he was actually naked. Definitely an unusual celebration that would have pleased the Vatican gay lobby, but later Sæther became upset by the practices, and forbid the use of his Gnostic Church to Thelemites.

Returning to Doinel, when he was appointed Patriarch of the Gnostic Church, he declared his direct descent from the Apostle John (the beloved), whose gospel was considered their main holy book. And it is precisely this reference to John, that suggests a certain continuity of the Gnostic Church with the Johannite Church of Raymond Bernard Fabrè-Palapat, that far from disappearing, was partially absorbed by the French esoteric milieu, since the Order of Palapat and his church were transmitted down to Joséphin Péladan, which in turn transmitted them inside what was the first Martinist Order organized under the aegis of Papus or Gérard Encausse. Just see the names of the first people involved in the Gnostis Church, and you will understand right away the protagonists of the Martinist Order founded by Papus. However, Doinel was convinced that the Church should be run by couples, formed by a male and a female bishop, as was done fifty years earlier by the controversial Illuminati mystic and prophet of Lyon the French, Eugene Vintras, with his infamous Church of Carmel. In 1842, under pressure from the Catholic Church, Vintras was arrested by the French authorities and imprisoned for five years on the trumped-up charge of soliciting donations from people that he claimed to reveal the name of their guardian angel. While he was in prison, the Abbe Marechal, known as Ruthmael, took over the community. He apparently began publicly teaching certain rituals that had a sexual content. According to some reports, he confided to his congregation, “Those who feel love for one another should share it often. Every time they do, they are sure to create a spirit in heaven.” Well, this was yet again another connection to sexual magic, however the ancient Gnostics included both men and women in the priesthood, a tradition revived by Vintras in the Church of Carmel, and later by Doinel who chose its members, among the adepts of Papus, were the first form of organized Martinism open to both men and women (although men are still to this day the only ones that can achieve the degree of S :: I : : I :: / Supèrieur Inconnu Initiateur), this made possible to recruit the future male and female bishops of his church.

As the historian Richard Griffiths explains:

These rites were sacrificial in nature, and they enabled those who performed them to receive the merits of “redemption,” and to participate in the preparation for the coming of the Paraclete. The belief in the efficacy of a specific rite in freeing man from the fetters of matter and bringing him nearer to the spiritual redemption which would announce the Third Reign is very near to that of most gnostic sects, for whom the method of redemption consisted not so much in the profession of certain opinions or virtues as in the practice of certain rites. The ancient Gnostics included both men and women in the priesthood, a tradition revived by Vintras in the Church of Carmel. Women were permitted into the priesthood of the rite, in fact they held a very important place, for it was through Woman that salvation was to come. And in the attitude towards the Virgin Mary we find a conception of her as “created Wisdom,”

the invariable reflection of “uncreated Wisdom.” This can be seen to be very close to one form of Valentinianism, a gnostic belief in which Sophia, or Wisdom (a divine principle which had fallen from the realm of light into the realm of matter) was conceived as being a double figure. The higher Sophia remained in the sphere of light, the lower Sophia had sunk into darkness. Through this duality Sophia became the fallen divinity through whom the mingling of light and dark, of spirit and matter, in the world, had been achieved; she was also seen as the intermediary between the lower and higher worlds and an instrument of redemption.

I know it can become complex at times to follow all these names that shaped the history of the priesthood of the Illuminati in the last couple of centuries, however it's important to underline their importance. Among the various characters recruited from Doinel for his project, there was Papus himself who became Tau Vincent, Bishop of Toulouse, and Paul Sedir [pseudonym of Yvon Le Loup (1871 – 1926)], who became Tau Paulas, coadjutor bishop of Toulouse and Concorrezzo or Lucien Chamuel [pseudonym of Lucien Mauchel (deceased in 1936)], Tau Bardesanes, bishop of La Rochelle and Saintes. These three formed the Holy Synod of Ecclesia Gnostica, that as you can see was firmly in the hands of the Martinist branch of the Illuminati. The theology of the Church included elements of the Gnostic doctrines of Simon Magus, Valentin and Marcus, the Cathars (of which were recovered two sacraments: consolamentum, a form of complex ritual with laying on of hands, and Aparentement, a public confession of their sins), of the Catholic Church (a form of Mass with the splitting of the bread) and of Masonic initiation.²¹ And then through a séance, Doinel obtained the main line of consecration of contemporary Gnosticism, that became the Ecclesia Gnostic Catholica (EGC), whose branches, as I told you in the first volume of myConfessions, are particularly interested in sexual magic along the lines dictated by occultists like Theodor Reuss, Aleister Crowley, ending in the O.T.O. and its derivatives.

The “Gnostic Mass” unfortunately, in this environment, gradually becomes an orgiastic ritual, of which the expert Massimo Introvigne, in his book The Return of Gnosticism, reconstructs sources, largely unknown, highlighting in particular the figure—almost ignored today—of the Belgian knight Georges Le Clément de Saint-Marcq. A high level dignitary of Freemasonry in his country that was fanatically anti-Catholic, whose influence has been decisive, and a figure that I have already described to you in detail in Volume I of my Confessions, because of the importance in the teachings of the Ordo Templi Orientis, with his controversial Eucharist brochure. Crowley enclosed in the highest degrees of his paramasonic system, the secrets of the E.G.C, and transmitted them to a worthy successor, creating the mysterious 12th degree that was to remain a total secret even for the majority of O.T.O. members. Before his death in August, 1944, Crowley left the legacy of his Church in the hands of William Bernard Crow, who in 1948 declares himself Patriarch Great General Director and Grand Master of the Order, (FIGS. 70 and 71) which, however, will take place outside the traditional transmission of the O.T.O. degrees, and it seems to be rather linked to the Rite of Memphis and Mizraim, and the various denominations of the colorful Gnostic-Catholic “Fringe” Masonic milieu that involves high level Illuminati.

Understanding the sectarian world of the Illuminati and their philosophy will lead to the weird world of the head of slaves of the elite, and Satanic parasites like Marina Abramović or Marilyn Manson, just to name two servants of evil. Our world seems to be heading towards a final clash with such forces, so we need to prepare, understand and comprehend the level of manipulation at all levels, especially when this ends in the classical worship of the Sabbatic Goat.

Elphias Levi re-imagined Baphomet into a figure he named the Sabbatic Goat. Representing the universe in the form of binary opposites, the Sabbatic Goat incorporates elements of the hermaphroditic stone Baphomet and the symbolic ideals of the Templar Baphomet myth. He mingled these elements with Occult, Kabbalistic and Catholic imagery. ²²

The Gnostic legacy and the various Churches is confusing to the untrained and disinterested believer, which is orchestrated and manipulated by different factions of the Illuminati, sometimes fighting each other, that is made up of Bishops who become Masons (a quite well-known fact), but also by high dignitaries of Freemasonry recognized as bishops by the Vatican because of their apostolic succession from Antioch deemed legitimate. This was confirmed to me by Professor Giancarlo Seri, who is one of the highest authorities worldwide of the so-called “Egyptian” rites of Freemasonry. Currently there are at least five bishops and several churches that bear the title of Patriarch of Antioch, without counting the various derivatives and sub-products of the Church of Antioch, which was derived by a splinter group present in irregular and spurious forms of Freemasonry. One of these is represented by Archbishop Roberto C. Toca, is tied since the second half of the seventies to the Fraternitas Rosicruciana Antiqua (F.R.A.), and the Ordo Templi Orientis and its EGC. That is where he obtained, thanks to the Illuminati Johannes Rider, X° degree and OHO (Outer Head of the Orde,) of a branch of the O.T.O. In 1976, Toca then came into contact with a particular branch of the Patriarchate of Antioch close to Freemasonry, headed by Archbishop Herman Adrian Spruit. This happened when Toca, a rather colorful character of the international occult scene, was still a resident in Cuba, where, contrary to what you might initially think, Freemasonry and the Jesuits are the masters, not the so-called communists, and this has been proven to the world once again with the arrival of Pope Francis, a South American Jesuit. He has often used Cuba in recent years as an outpost for his geopolitical business for the New World Order. All those idiotic Hollywood stars that criticized President Donald J. Trump before his election in 2016, should go there, since they seem to love communism, a creation of the evil side of the Illuminati, and for this reason an ideological abomination.

Roberto C. Toca, was not that attracted to communism, and thanks to his Illuminati connections moved to the U.S., where he would form his own independent jurisdiction of the Patriarchate of Antioch in 1980. A couple of years later he joined the Archbishop Herman Adrian Spruit, founder of the Catholic Apostolic Church of Antioch-Malabar Rite, which claims valid lines of apostolic succession in the historical episcopate, which is not however, in union with the Catholic Pope in Rome or any Orthodox Patriarch,²³ and consecrated Toca archbishop in 1982. In the United States as resident since 1987, he becomes first Archbishop and later Archbishop Primate, but also a stable landmark of the Cuban community in the city of Tampa, Florida, where Toca still resides and launched a successful television career. This led him to be one of the most viewed Latin American men in Florida,

SOVEREIGN SANCTUARY of the Ancient and Primitive Rite
of
MEMPHIS AND MIZRAIM

In the name of the great Architect of the Universe.

Salutation upon all points of the Triangle.

WHEREAS it is universally accepted by responsible students of Masonic History that the whole authority of the Scottish, Memphis and Mizraim Rites was concentrated in the late John Yarker, and from him finally passed to Aleister Crowley, in whom it is now vested.

NOW, THEREFORE, we the said ALEISTER CROWLEY, by virtue of such authority, do HEREBY APPOINT Our Brother WILLIAM BERNARD CROW as Patriarch Grand Administrator General of the Rite, with full authority to administer all such funds as come within his control.

In witness whereof we have hereunto set our Hand and Seal,

August 1944 e.v.

FIG. 70 – Document certifying the transfer of the Patriarchate of the Ecclesia Gnostica Catholica by Aleister Crowley to the Freemason William Bernard Crow in August 1944, present on page 484 of the book O.T.O. Rituals and Sex Magick by Theodor Reuss and Aleister Crowley, published by the Pentacle Enterprises (September, 1999) and subsequently withdrawn from circulation because of a court case and pressures received by the O.T.O. U.S. caliphate.

created in August, 1948 by William Bernard Crow, named by Aleister Crowley in 1944, Patriarch Grand Ancient General Director and Universal Cosmic Ritual Architecture, which included the XII ° of the O.T.O., the 33 ° 90 ° 97 ° of the Rite of Memphis and Mizraim and the title of Sovereign Patriarch of the Gnostic Catholic Church. This document is taken from p. 485 of the rare out-of-print book O.T.O. Rituals and Sex Magick by Theodor Reuss and Aleister Crowley, published September, 1999 by Pentacle Enterprises in London.

and the most delirious and improbable televangelist that you have ever seen, even in the United States. Archbishop Roberto C. Toca is one of a kind. However he seems to be globally recognized by the Ecumenical College of Metropolitans of the Gnostic Church. The Catholic Church of the Antiochean Rite of Roberto C. Toca has even an official address, P.O. Box P.O. Box 8473.

The seat of the patriarchate was formerly Antioch, in what is now Turkey. However, in the 15th century, it was moved to Syria in response to the Ottoman invasion.

Going back to what is modern Gnosticism, Massimo Introvigne writes that it is an attempt: “of synthesis between the setting of Jules-Benoît Doinel and that of the Gnostic Ecclesia Catholica: almost all of which include secret teachings of sexual magic, though compared to Aleister Crowley—the liturgical and ritual aspects retain greater importance and the magical use of sexuality is proposed, trying to stay away from the orgiastic tone of the extreme English occultist.”²⁴

So for Introvigne, there are no branches of the Gnostic Church without sexual element, they are all involved in some way in sexual magic (or magick as Crowley used to write), and there are only less obvious manifestations of the “orgiastic tone.” And now before closing with the subject of Gnostic tradition within the Illuminati, I could not do so without mentioning Joel Duez Vichery, a contemporary author of 25 books on various elements of the esoteric tradition, and a controversial figure of the Illuminati. Duez goes from membership in the infamous gay Choronzon Club of Michael Paul Bertiaux, (FIG. 72) to a key position in almost every Illuminati sect in the world (including the mysterious and highly secretive Order of the Dragon), to his leading position in the Église gnostique apostolique, founded in 1953 by Robert Ambelain. (FIG. 73) Duez incredibly received an official blessing as Monsignor, from the now Saint, Pope John Paul II, after joining the infamous Choronzon Club, (FIG. 74) and even celebrated Gnostic Mass in a Masonic lodge in Haiti, home of Voodoo. Monsignor is an honorific form of address for those members of the clergy of the Catholic Church including bishops, honorary prelates and canons. I have included documents that will cast an even darker shadow on the nefarious John Paul II activities, and his familiarity with key figures of the occult world.

The Jesuits, the Rosicrucians and the Catholic Origins of “Scottish Freemasonry”

thanasius Kircher plays a dual role of paramount importance, both in the growth of Marian devotion, and in the development of the Jesuit “Golden” infiltration of the Rosy Cross, that inspired later the birth of the Order of the Golden and Rosy Cross, a German Rosicrucian organization founded in the 1750s by Freemason and alchemist Hermann Fichtuld. Some say this emanated part of the Bavarian Illuminati, which then became their sworn enemies according to the law of divide and rule, dear to the Jesuits, agents of the Catholic Church to this day, as well as heads of Vatican Intelligence services, that had a major role in the development of the Brotherhood of the Rosicrucians after their infiltration gradually moved to control the “Invisible College.” Kircher in his works, attempted to establish an affinity between Pythagoras, the Greek mysteries, the kabbalah esotericism both Hebrew and Arabic, and will remain even after his death, a constant source of inspiration for many researchers of the occult sciences, and of course a key figure for his fellow Jesuits.²⁵

About the strange link between the Jesuits and the Rosicrucians, Freemason and historian Furio Bacchini writes:

25 See. Frances A. Yates, The Rosicrucian Enlightenment, (London and Boston: Rutledge & Kegan Paul, 1972), p. 230.

FIG. 73 – Document of Église Gnostique Apostolique that indicates in Joel Duez the successor of Robert Ambelain (1907-1997).

This juxtaposition of the Rosicrucians and the Societas Jesu (author’s note: the Jesuits), characterized by a sort of “love and hate relationship” that had roots dating back to the seventeenth century, during the Thirty Years War, may appear strange because at that time the Rosenkreutz followers were figured in, especially among Protestants, but it was since then that the Jesuits began a real strategy to bring them back “to the true faith.” This aspect will certainly help Kircher in his mission, which is described in this way in the last century by the Jesuit Pierre Theillard de Chardin (1881 – 1955), who had tried to reconcile Darwin’s theory of evolution with religion, and is a rising hero of the New Age: a potentially predisposed world (author’s note: that of Protestants) to transpose the influence of the Jesuits, who are holding a real affinity with the Rosicrucians, the values from them expressed in the same period, the seventeenth century, with the search for the Cosmic Christ, the aggregation point between the universe and all humanity, an evolution not deterministic but theological¹.”

Freemason Bacchini shows us the affinities that bind them:

Yet of all the religious orders of the Catholic Church, the Jesuits were the ones that looked more to the Rosicrucians. Renaissance esoteric influences acted on the formation of the Society of Jesus have never yet been examined completely. The order made use of the hermetic tradition to appeal to Protestants and to the many religious denominations with whom he came in contact during his missionary work. The hermetic and occult philosophy of the Jesuits had an extraordinary formulation in the work of Athanasius Kircher ... who always mentions with deep respect the alleged ancient Egyptian priest Hermes Trismegistus. The work of Kircher was much used in their missionary work.

Here's another gem extrapolated from Brother Bacchini's work, showing instead, the secret structure of the Golden Rosicrucians, linking them to the Jesuits: “The structure of the Golden Rosicrucians was a pyramid, similar to that of the Jesuits, however, they were dependent on a single general and not twelve members (like the Areopagus of the Illuminati, and the twelve Apostles). The purpose of the Rosicrucians was clear and coincided with Freemasonry, and the research and the training of men to revive a fallen Christianity.”²⁶

The first mention of the mysterious Golden Rosicrucians was made by Samuel Richter in 1710, who wrote an important work on alchemy under the name Sincerus Renatus, where the perfect description of the philosopher's stone of the Aurea Rosicrucian of the Fama Fraternitatis. Only their symbolism and mysticism remain present, the rest was Jesus it made. Jesuits were the experts of the occult, arising precisely from their Kircherian tradition, to influence the Christian symbolism of the Rosicrucians in the first years of the famous Rosicrucian Manifestos, and this is another of the interesting points of which Bacchini speaks in his essay. A conflict between the Illuminati Order of Weishaupt and the mysterious Golden Rosycross linked to the Jesuit leaders of the time, initially helped the creation of the Order of Weishaupt, for their occult purposes of control and manipulation. Let's not forget that the same Franz Adolph Freiherr von Knigge (1752 – 1796), who I spoke about in Volume II (because he is key figure of the original Illuminati Order), before being hired by a certain Di Costanzo for the Bavarian Illuminati, is suspected to have already been initiated into the mysteries of Rosicrucian in 1772. Certainly in 1773 he was initiated into the Masonic Rite of Strict Templar Observance, the Freemason Neo-Templar hideout of the aristocracy, infiltrated over time by the Jesuits through the mysterious Unknown Superiors, whose initials were indeed, the same initials of the Societas Jesu, or Society of Jesus.

This rite of the Strict Observance that I currently preside as one of the leading representatives, as I mentioned in the preface, was purified of Jesuit infiltration, and it has now been reawakened in March of 2016, under my direction. Vincenzo Soro in his commentary of the French pamphlet, The Great Book of Nature, shows that the Strict Observance was at one time “the instrument more or less aware by Loyola.” Baron Heinrich von Gleichen (1733 or '35 – 1807), Minister of Denmark, in a letter dated 3 June 1781, fully supports the hypothesis that the initials S.I. were those of the notorious Society of Jesus, and that the Rosicrucians and Neo-Templar were “like puppets of which the Jesuits pulled the strings.” The Jesuits have always been prone to double and triple play to accomplish supreme manipulation, that even back then saw their expulsion from the Vatican. They were intent on orchestrating dramatic revolutions, like the French one, that brought epochal social changes, in order to regain possession of their position in the Vatican. I would like to recall that a few decades before the French Revolution, there was Jesuit and Vatican support to the dynasty of the Stuarts, in their misguided attempt to re-install a Catholic monarch in England, another fundamental step to understand the origins of a certain kind of Freemasonry found in the “Scottish Degrees.”

Certainly it is a difficult task to outline the distinctive terms of such a form of Freemasonry, because it is difficult to understand its essence, not only because of the complexity of the varied, and sometimes contradictory aspects that distinguish it, but by its very nature that makes it comparable, rather than a “historical” phenomenon, to a category of human thought. “Scottish Degree” implies, however, a distinction between this and the other, thereby leading to a dramatic rift that is antithetical to the unity of the phenomenon that is canonically defined a “Universal Freemasonry.” It is however, an inevitable simplification and schematization of the problem in order to make possible the approach. With this background it can be said that the connotations that characterize “Scottish Degrees” and “Scottish Freemasonry” and distinguish it from the “English,” may, in a very simplistic way, be summarized as follows to give you a clearer idea of the matter:

- With a Catholic character;
- Linked to the dynasty of the Stuarts (hence the title “Scottish,” the place of origin of the Stuarts, and the title “Jacobite” of the Lodges with reference to James II Stuart, dethroned in 1688);
- Aristocratic (in fact found fertile ground among the aristocracy and the high clergy);
- Articulated in the High Degrees, next to those of Apprentice, Fellow and Master (High degrees called “Scottish” because they would be derived from the ancient Heredom Kilwinning Lodge of Edinburgh);
- Of knightly origin, linked to the Crusades and the Knights Templar;
- Romantic or pre-Romantic;
- Spiritualist, devoted to philosophical research, to spiritual perfection, to a “Christian form of Esotericism.”

Conversely, you can write a parallel list with the characteristics of “English” Freemasonry: Protestant Hanoverian, bourgeois, are limited to three degrees called “blue,” of Corporate origin, Enlightenment, and rationalism. In fact, in the earliest Statutes, prior to the establishment of the Grand Lodge of London in 1717, “fidelity to God and the Holy Church” [the Roman Catholic], is imposed, and it should be remembered that the Grand Master of the Lodge of “St. Paul” in London, from 1685 to 1702, was the famous architect Sir Christopher Wren, Catholic and follower of James Stuart. The Lodges became the place of a lacerating struggle between Hanoverians and the supporters of the The House of Stuart, (originally Stewart), that took place in the seventeenth century, the place where the defeated continued to organize themselves in their political struggle. Hence the opposition of Hanoverian Masonry, inside which would be built, in June 24, 1717, the Grand Lodge of London.

The fifth Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of London was Philipp, Duke of Wharton (1698 – 1731), a colorful character, of vivid intelligence, elected in 1722 in order to lend prestige to the institution. But when, in the solemn Masonic banquet of the feast of St. John the Baptist, the hymn of Stuart was played, he was expelled and his name symbolically “burned between the columns.” In 1724, Wharton went to Rome with James Stuart, pretender to the throne of England, and took refuge there from 1718, under the name of James III. (FIG. 75) He converted to Catholicism, and founded a lodge in Rome, probably belonging to The Antient Noble Order of the Gormogons that was set up in opposition to Grand Lodge of London. The Gormogons are first heard of in a notice published in the London Daily Post on September 3, 1724:

Whereas the truly ANTIENT NOBLE ORDER of the Gormogons, instituted by ChinQua Ky-Po, the first Emperor of China (according to their account), many thousand years before Adam, and of which the great philosopher Confucious was Oecumenicae Volgee, has lately been brought into England by a Mandarin, and he having admitted several Gentlemen of Honour into the mystery of that most illustrious order, they have determined to hold a Chapter at the Castle Tavern in Fleet Street, at the particular request of several persons of quality. This is to inform the public, that there will be no drawn sword at the Door, nor Ladder in a dark Room, nor will any Mason be reciev'd as a member till he has renounced his Novel Order and been properly degraded. N.B.— The Grand Mogul, the Czar of Muscovy, and Prince Tochmas are entr'd into this Hon. Society; but it has been refused to the Rebel Meriweys, to his great Mortification. The Mandarin will shortly set out for Rome, having a particular Commis sion to make a Present of the Antient Order to his Holiness, and it is believ'd the whole Sacred College of Cardinals will commence Gormogons. Notice will be given in the Gazette the Day the Chapter will be held.

Letters appeared in the Plain Dealer for Monday, September 14, 1724 (No. 51) attacking Freemasonry and referring to the Gormogons; and then in the British Journal for December 12, 1724: “We hear that a Peer of the first Rank, a noted Member of the Society of Free-Masons, hath suffered himself to be degraded as a member of that Society, and his Leather Apron and Gloves to be burnt, and thereupon enter’d himself as a Member of the Society of Gormogons, at the Castle-Tavern in Fleet Street.” This is presumed to be a reference to Philip, Duke of Wharton.

Little is heard again of the Gormogons until the edition of the Daily Journal for October 26 and 28, 1728:

By command of the Vol-Gi. A General Chapter of the Most August and Ancient Order, GOR-MO-GON, will be held at the Castle Tavern in Fleet Street, on Saturday, the 31st Inst., to commence at 12 o’clock ; of which the several Graduates and Licentiates are to take Notice, and give their Attendance.

The same year a letter by Wharton appeared in Mr. Mist’s Journal, lampooning the British royal court in a similar Persian style as the Gormogon literature of 1724. Nichols and Stevens, editors of Hogarth’s Works (1810) claim that the order was frequently advertised between October 1728 and 1730, but no records exist. The Weekly Journal or British Gazetteer for April 18, 1730, stated that John Dennis, poet, political writer and critic, had renounced the Gormogons and joined the Freemasons. Wharton died on May 31, 1731, and the Gormogons were not heard from again.²⁷ However the first known Grandmaster (or Oecumenical Volgi) was Andrew Michael Ramsay of Ayr, Scotland, a Jacobite of strong convictions that as I already outlined in Volume II was responsible for the birth of the Masonic Templar Degrees that influenced not only the birth of the Strict Templar Observance but also the much younger Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite the most practiced Rite of Freemasonry today in the USA.

Note that the presence of “Jacobites” is also found several times in the symbolism of the first three degrees, for example in the expression “widow’s sons,” which are used by Freemasons, which would seem to refer to the fact that they were children of a widow both the “Old” and the “Young” Pretender. Other references can be found in the Hiram legend of the 3rd Degree of Freemasonry, where the architect’s death of Solomon’s Temple depicts symbolically the execution of Charles I, while attempting to lift the body of the Master Hiram, and alludes instead to the attempt to raise the young Prince Charles Edward from the tomb of exile to the throne of England. Other references about the meaning of the word in Gaelic, are even in the branch of acacia. But the Jacobite and the monarchical period leading to the Jacobin and revolutionary one, are a development of a much older initiatic reality known inside of Freemasonry and Martinezism, linked to the mysterious figure Martinez de Pasqually (1727?–1774) a theurgist and theosophist of uncertain origin, that would create the Élus Cohen de L’Univers “Order of Knight Masons, Elect Priests of the Universe.” He had knowledge that went far beyond just the physical and spiritual world, that placed him in direct contact with those we now call “aliens.” Martinez held a Masonic Patent, inherited by his father, that received directly from Charles Edward Stuart, in 1738, which allowed him to immediately kick start Masonic operations “on demand,” and found Freemason Lodges and Chapters with no limitations of Masonic jurisdiction. I have already written of him and his possible link with the 18th of R.S.A.A. in the last chapter of Volume I. We will now delve deeper into this mysterious Illuminati figure in contact with “Aliens” and the “Invisible Masters” that guide us from behind the curtains of history.

Despite the painstaking research of many historians on the mysterious figure of Martinez or Martinès de Pasqually, as he was called in France, there are still gaps in knowledge about his origins and his personality. Though his surname is in itself significant, and despite the French predicament de la Tour, it is reasonable to think that the family of origin name Martinez is stated to be by many historians of Jewish and Portuguese origin. His family was definitely converted to Christianity, as they received a “Certification of Catholicity,” and was linked to the Stuart family in some mysterious way. Only Robert Amadou, specialist on the history of Martinezism and Martinism, supports the non-Jewish origin of Martinez, who is indicated as a direct descendant of the family of Bartolomé de las Casas, the famous historian of Spanish-Portuguese colonialism. Martinez Pasqualis was born in Grenoble in 1727, and died in Santo Domingo in 1774, but his lack of knowledge of the French language makes it doubtful that he was born on French soil. Lacking iconography (the picture reported by some is pure fantasy), while some report he was a black man, or at least of mixed race. However, his life and his personality are poured out in his work, and it is from this that you can deduce, above the legend and myth, his characteristics and features. Martinez alludes vaguely to his teachers, however, they remained always unknown, this trait is common to many founders of other Illuminati Orders, and esoteric sects, who do not speak as symbolic abstractions, but as real people, although with considerable power, that position them in the elite of the Illuminati close to the invisible masters. Martinez was in possession of a legitimate Masonic Patent inherited by his father, who had received it from Charles Edward Stuart, in 1738, and this Masonic Patent was recognized as valid by the Grand Orient of France, when it was presented for the ratification of the Order he founded, L'Ordre des Chevaliers Maçons Élus Coëns de l'Univers.

Even if the vehicle was Masonic, in fact the tradition that Martinez wanted to convey was derived from the Ancient Illuminati Priesthoods. Cohen (from the Hebrew word Cohanim, the priests) were a priestly class founded by Aaron, who kept the oral and esoteric tradition of the Torah, that later merged into the Kabbalah. As often happens in the esoteric orders, the terms and nomenclature of various degrees had already been used a century earlier, as recalled also by the late Grand Master Gastone Ventura:

(Swedenborg) would be able to coordinate the degrees of reborn Freemasonry operating with pre-existing levels of some so-called lodges of perfection ... (reserved degrees to be accepted) and those derived from alchemical and hermetic companies belonging to the Venerable Order of Golden Rosicrucians, thereby constituting a Masonic-Illuminati system consists of ten degrees divided in three sections, the last of which would have constituted an inner temple.

The system was made up as follows:

1st section (Masonic) with grades:

1st Apprentice

2nd Mate

3rd Master

4th Master Elected

Section 2a (Enlightenment or Cohens) with grades:

5th Apprentice Cohen

6th Comrade Cohen

The Order Cohen was shaped in the form of a high-degree Masonic system. Masonry in the St. John's degrees are the classic Blue Lodge degrees without which, of course, it was impossible to access to higher ones. He agreed to receive sisters, but only in exceptional circumstances. In the "Blue" degrees (the first three) he explained in the Masonic legend, its symbolism, followed its esotericism. The degree of Grand Elect—2nd series—was a degree of synthesis of the "Scottish degrees," and his philosophy of fidelity to the Order. Portico of the class is beginning to explain the first elements of the Cohen doctrine, translated in Masonic terms and revealed in Martinezist terms in its entirety. In the Temple class there were more initiations, linked to transmission of priestly powers. Only in this class was the operational aspect of this Illuminati sect explained and implemented. Alien connections in various aspects, the time and place of the evocations, and the final mission of the Order: Contact. The practice is evocative, individual or collective, sometimes carried out with the aid of a "pupil" or a medium. With considerable complexity, it brings adepts to a daily commitment with all sorts of depravations including food, and even prolonged sexual abstentions to fit into the "Cosmic scheme." The "events" and the "Contacts" are rare and obtained with difficulty, but directly testifies the existence of an "otherness" that could not be forgotten. This is truly a sophisticated form of alien "Contact," which I will talk about extensively in my next book The Invisible Master. The Reaux Croix is constituted in the Order's elite, and it held all of the theoretical and operational doctrines of the Order. According to oral tradition, however difficult to verify, they routinely identify themselves with one or the other of the entities from the Shemhamphorasch of the Kabbalistic tradition, which involves a blood oath. In the first Kabbalah, the term was sometimes used to describe the name of God consisting of 72 letters. Kabbalists proposed certain correspondences between the 72 names of Shemhamphorasch, and a variety of other things, including Psalms, tarot cards, and so on. It is because of the flexibility (and the numerical coefficient) of the Shemhamphorasch, that many ceremonial magicians consider the key to the creation of all things and of all the Arts.

The Seventy-Two Names of God , with a Christian diagram and the IHS, (a monogram for “Jesus”), are featured in the Oedipus Aegyptiacus of the Jesuits. Athanasius Kircher, who as you know, was a key figure in the Jesuit infiltration of the Rosicrucian movement. The names used in the Shemhamphorasch have long been associated with 72 angels, as well as to 72 demons, (as set forth in Lemegeton or Lesser Key of Solomon). According to tradition they can make or break the organization or disorganization of the elements in the creation of material reality. The Order had great power in regards to the personality and the initiatory powers of its Master. From 1754, (according to some authors from 1758), they traveled across France, founding lodges of this system. In 1758, the Order gathered admirers and followers in southern France, in Marseille, Avignon, Montpellier, Narbonne, Toulouse and Foix, where the first chapter of “The Cohen Temple,” founded in the “Josue” Lodge. In Bordeaux, the first Mother Lodge of the Cohen tradition was founded, with the distinctive title “La Française Elue Ecosseuse” (1764), which in 1765 was recognized by the Grand Orient of France, as regular. On March 21, of 1765, the Sovereign Court (supreme governing body of the Order) is created in Paris, granting to Bacon de la Chevalerie the power of its universal substitute. The Court was formed by the Reaux Croix (Bacon de La Chevalerie, J. B. Willermoz, Duroy d’Hauterive, De Serre), called Sovereign Judges, with the last degree of the Order. Sovereign Judges are also referred to as S.I. (Unknown Superiors) and are a crucial link with the Society of Jesus.

Rene Allau, in his preface to Les Aventures du philosophe inconnu, cites the alchemist Petrus de Arlensis Scudalupis (1580 – 1637) called “Hierosolymitanus presbyter,” who in his work Sympathia metallorum ac septem septem planetas lapidum, rejects the previous Chaldean and Persian magic, recognizing only the Judeo-Christian traditions. Petrus states that real magic is based only on the power of the Hebrew letters that make up the heavenly figures, and the sign of the cross for which “the holy magic is demonstrated and accomplished.” The volume cited the work of Dom Belin, a sixteenth-century alchemist who uses Christian terminology to describe the hermetic process, and in this title is mentioned, for the first time, the “Philosophes Inconnus,” setting them in an airtight Christian context manipulated by the Jesuits. It also seems that Martinez Pasqualis knew as I will show shortly, the famous Book of the Sacred Magic of Abramelin the Mage.

In 1772, there was a complex inheritance issue so Martinez left everything to St. Domingo, a place rich in Voodoo tradition, where for the next two years he would try to complete the instructions for the Order, and where he died in 1774. Caignet de Lestere succeeded him as the new Universal Sovereign of the Order, dying in turn on the 19th of December, 1779. He was succeeded, by Sebastian de Las Casas, who in 1780, noticing the easing of the “Contact events” following the death of the physical plan of their Master, advises the Cohen Lodges to close their works and Temples, handing the archives to the Philalethes Order, not to be confused with the Philalethes Society, a Masonic research society, based in North America, founded on October 1, 1928. At the height of their past fortune, this powerful Illuminati Order flourished with 12 Temples, one in Port au Prince, an island in St. Domingo, now known as Haiti and the Dominican Republic. Since the death of the Master, the order began its dissolution, and since 1776 the Temple of La Rochelle, soon followed by those of Libourne and Marseille, left the system and so joined, or rejoined, the Grand Lodge of France. This Masonic tradition merged into the Rectified Scottish Rite, that was also heir to the Strict Templar Observance. The so-called “theurgic” part of Martinezes work is at the heart of the Martinist Order, that never really ceased to exist, and is still secretly present in contemporary Martinism.

seal of Martinez de Pasqually that brings us back to his animistic roots.

This seal is a light representation of the reintegration of beings. A large circle is largely opened on the infinite, as a sort of stopping point. A similar rise is explained by widening of the circumference in the form of arrow and from indicating a lower circle of the very nature of the largest, but also anticipation, after a previous action or before a next. Likely an alternate function of doors. The large circle involves another series of openings, but of different natures. Other functions, perhaps different other beings that pass through it. The circle represents the created world, the universal world. An arrow out of the universal world, and shows a particular world. This world is not indicated as the send from inside the large circle, but it is a manifestation, an emanation branch, feminine, lunar, then represented as a rising moon, yes crossed by two arrows, but not split. It is animated by a twelve-rayed star, which in the center shows a triangle formed by three points, the top of which is directed downwards. Sign of involution towards matter and also the symbol of earthly spirits in the domain of the forms. One of the two arrows coming out of this particular world and heads towards the infinite, towards the divine absolute immensity, the fourfold essence in action. The other arrow heads towards the opening of the large circle, and pointing to a star with five rays. It is the Blazing Star, the regenerated man coming out of the particular world towards Reintegration divine immensity. The interior of the large circle is the uncreated. There are, in this, multiple emanated beings, very different, that are confused together but not fused. Then they retain their individuality. They are what they are and represent the will of their creator. You would not give it a name, if not secret. This secret is their destination towards emancipation or their persistence in the bosom divine immensity founding lodges of his system.

Papus and the Orders & Societies of the Theosophical Society

A

At the age of 23, Papus became a member of the “THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY.” On October 25, 1887, Colonel Olcott personally announced the election of Papus to the newly formed General Council of the Theosophical Society at Adyar, India and as a propagator of Kiato Buddhism for the “T.S.” Papus became a member of the Lodge-Isis, founded in July, 1887 by Dramard and Gaboriau. In 1888, Papus would leave the T.S. when he helped co-found the Lodge-Hermes in October, 1888. Papus “officially” resigned on May 19, 1890. According to many sources, his reason for leaving the T.S. was his dislike of the Society’s emphasis on Eastern Occultism. Some sources even state that Blavatsky and Papus disrespected each other! (Christopher McIntosh). According to Papus’ son Dr. Philippe Encausse, his father had always held Blavatsky in high esteem. Papus considered Blavatsky’s Mahatma to not be the sole depository of “Sacred Science.” Papus believed in a tradition conserved in the ancient temples of ancient Egypt.

Events began to turn in Papus’ favor in 1887, when he was elected President of the GROUPE INDEPENDANTE DES d’ETUDES ESOTERIQUES (“Independent Group of Esoteric Studies”), known by the acronym G.I.D.E.E. This association attracted many popular mystics living in France at the time. Its aim was to create “Initiates;” men and women who chose to undertake the study of esoteric wisdom and occult science. “The role of the Initiatic society,” as Papus conceived it, was to “encourage the student to create a personal doctrine of his own.” Many of the French occultists who were collectively known as “LES COMPAGNONS DE LA HEIROPHONIE” were part of the G.I.D.E.E. Included were men like Victor Michelet, Josephin Péladan, Paul Sedir, Lucien Chamuel, Stanislas De Guaita, Albert Poisson, Ch.F. Bartlet (Alfred Foucheaux), Gary de Lacroze, Augustin Chaboseau, Phaneg (Descormiers, + 1946), Silva, Marc Haven, Dr. Rozier, Jollivet-Castelot, and many others. Many of them were Theosophists, as well as initiated Martinists of one or another chain. Papus was editor-in-chief at the time of a journal called

“The Veil of Isis.” The Veil of Isis was published under the banner of the G.I.D.E.E., published once a month, between 1890 and 1898. In 1905, the review reappeared. The review then continued its publications until 1936 (Chief-editor Charnorac; Charnorac became chief-editor in 1912, the review disappeared during 1914-1918, and reappeared again in 1920. In 1936, the “Veil of Isis” changed its name to “études traditionnelles.” Papus would describe the G.I.D.E.E. as “the Outer court for a greater and higher Initiatic Order, comprising their recruits from this outer and predominantly theosophically oriented association (The Balzac of the Occult).” This statement of Papus shows the obvious reason why his days in the Theosophical Society would be short-lived. He left to give way to his full-time concentration on the order that would unite all Martinists. In an article by Papus, published in the “Veil of Isis” of February, 1891, he stated that the G.I.D.E.E. was already “active” for a year, with more than 350 members, a headquarters, library, and conference-room included. Other contemporary members were men such as Polti, Colonel Rochas, Lemerle, Abel Haatan, Serge Basset, etc. The G.I.D.E.E. had various branches in France and Belgium: For instance, in Lyon, at 17 Rue de Sully, there was established the “Fraternité Lyonnaise et Catalane” (contact: Ely Steel). At Brussels, Belgium, lodge KVMRIS represented i.a. the G.I.D.E.E. in Belgium.

There are sources who state that the G.I.D.E.E. was established by Papus with the help of key Illuminati player Saint-Yves d’Alveydre, who according to some sources, also claimed to be the Grand Master of the original Martinist Order. Whatever the truth is, the collaboration of a man like Saint-Yves d’Alveydre would certainly have attracted many “mystics” to the ranks of a new organization like the “Groupe Independent des Etudes Esoterique.” But the fact is that Saint-Yves has never held any membership to any occult organization, despite claims to the contrary. He was never a member of the Martinist Order. It is claimed that Saint-Yves d’Alveydre even rejected an honorary membership into the Martinist Order, which Papus had sent to him. According to various sources (e.g. Koenig) the G.I.D.E.E. also carried a succession of Fabre-Palaprat’s “Order of the Temple” that was supported by the Illuminati Napoleon Bonaparte. The G.I.D.E.E. was founded to develop research-centers of occult sciences. One of such branches was, for instance, the G.·.M.·.E.·.I.·., Groupe Maconnique d’Etudes Initiatiques, which was headed by Oswald Wirth. According to some, the G.I.D.E.E. was later renamed “Ecole Hermetique,” the Hermetic School, others state that the “Ecole Hermetique” was established next (and afterwards) to the G.I.D.E.E. The “Ecole Hermetique” later allegedly developed into the “Université libre des hautes Etudes” (Faculté des Sciences Hermétiques). The university was meant for the “aces” of the Martinist Order. Some of the professors and lecturers who were appointed at the “faculty of Hermetic Sciences,” that being Paul Sédir, Serge Basset, Siséra Rosabis, Dr. Rozier, and Jollivet Castelot. The Hermetic School was led by a “council of improvement” which consisted of: Charles Barlet, Papus, Marc Haven, Victor Emile Michelet, Serge Basset, and Paul Sédir.

The Hermetic students would continue their studies in several Martinist Lodges in Paris.

- 1) LE SPHINX. The Grand Lodge for general studies.
- 2) HERMANUBIS, led by Paul Sédir, studies of the Mystic and Eastern tradition.
- 3) VELLÉDA, led by V-E Michelet, studies of French Masonry and its Symbolism
- 4) SPHYNGE, reserved mainly for Artistic adaptations.

The following text is a translation of the article “L’Ordre Martiniste a la belle époque” taken from the French website of the Traitional Martinist Order. The article confirms the assumptions made earlier that the “Ecole Hermetique,” and the “Faculté des Sciences Hermétiques” were indeed continuations of the G.I.D.E.E. Papus wished to renew occidental esoterism: “As there are existing faculties where the materialistic sciences can be studied, why would it not be possible to create such a faculty where the esoteric sciences can be studied?” Thus he creates ‘l’École Supérieure Libre des Sciences Hermétiques, a group which gives courses and organizes lectures to promote the values of occidental esoterism to the seeker. This “exterior” circle of the Martinist Order will be first known under the name le Groupe Indépendant d’Etudes Esotériques (G.I.D.E.E.), then as ‘l’Ecole Hermétique and la Faculté des Sciences Hermétiques. Many courses were presented (12 per month), with subjects ranging from the kabbala, alchemy and the tarot, to the history of hermetic philosophy. The teachers were Papus, Sédir, Victor-Emile Michelet, Barlet, Augustijnse Chaboseau, Sisera and others. A special section was devoted to the oriental sciences under the direction of Augustin Chaboseau. Another section, presided by François Jollivet-Castelot, was devoted to alchemy—this is la Société Alchimique de France (source: Ordre Martiniste Traditionnel—Grande Heptade de la Juridiction Française).

It is common knowledge that Augustin Chaboseau was very interested in Buddhism, an interest he shared with i.a. Harvey Spencer Lewis of A.M.O.R.C / O.M.T. and which he maintained all his life. In 1888, Papus and his friend Lucien Chamuel founded the “Librarie du Merveilleux” and its monthly journal “L’Initiation.” Many Occultists contributed articles to the review, some of the lesser-known occultists were men such as Villier de l’Isle-Adam, Catulle Mendés, Julien Lejay, Emile Goudeau, Jules Lermina, Eugéne Nus Rodolphe Darzens, George Montiere, Aleph, with F. Bertrand, Bouvery, René Caillié George Delanne, Ely Star, Fabre des Essarts, G.Poirel, A. Robert, Rouxel, H. Sausse, G. Vitoux, Vurgey, and many others. The review was “banned” by the Vatican in Rome in 1891, and was put on Index. Another review of the G.I.D.E.E. was called “l’Union Occulte de France,” and was published in Lyon.

The journal remained in publication until 1914, when World War I broke out. Papus’ son, Dr.Philippe Encausse, reconstituted the “ORDRE MARTINISTE DE PAPUS” in 1952, and revived the original journal again. There exists today even an English version of “L’Initiation,” obtainable at the following address: GERME (USA)—4287-A Beltline Road, # 330; Addison, TX 75001—USA; their first edition, published in 2000, was for the most part a translation of the first edition of the revived “L’Initiation” of Phillipe Encausse published in January, 1953.²⁸

The Magical World of the Illuminati: from Abramelin to Wicca

The magic of Abramelin

he influence of the famous ancient grimoire The Sacred Magic of Abramelin the Mage over the Illuminati world became increasingly evident in the last 100 years, and is one of the key texts to understand better the very evolution of certain branches of the Illuminati network in their “Contact” with alien extradimensional beings. The first important translation into the French language in the eighteenth century was known to Martinez Pasqualis, Louis-Claude de Saint Martin and JeanBaptiste Willermoz, three of the key figures in the whole philosophy of Martinism. The second translation in the English language, of the French manuscript, was extensively annotated and commented on by none other than MacGregor Mathers (1854 – 1918), co-founder of the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn, and the occult mentor of Aleister Crowley. There is a vast significance of this book for the occult elite, and we will now examine why. The book in question explains that there are evil spirits all around, although invisible, and examines whether the one who evokes them using the grimoire is brave or timid, and if he has prudence or faith in God. I attempted this ritual in 1993, and fortunately I am alive to speak about it.

The Sacred Magic of Abramelin the Mage tells the story of an Egyptian magus named Abramelin (or Abra-melin), who transmitted the knowledge of his magic system to a certain Abraham of Worms, a German Jew who presumably lived between 1362 and 1458. It is structured as an autobiography, in which Abraham of Worms describes his journey from Germany to Egypt, and reveals his magical and kabbalistic secrets to his son Lamech. The text inside is dated 1458. Abraham recounts how he found Abramelin the magician, who lived in the desert, outside an Egyptian city, Arachi or Araki, which borders the Nile. He was an Egyptian magician who taught a powerful form of Kabbalistic magic to Abraham. He was a “venerable old man” who was courteous and polite. He did not discuss anything except his “fear of God,” leading a regular life, and was careful about material acquisitions of goods, and not inclined to wealth. Abramelin extrapolated a promise to Abraham that they would give up the “false dogmas” and would live “in the path and in the Law of the Lord.” Then he gave Abraham two manuscripts that he was supposed to copy himself, demanding 10 gold florins with the intention of distributing them to 72 poor people of Arachi. Upon his return 15 days later, after arranging for the payment of money, Abramelin made an oath to Abraham, to serve the Lord, and to “live and die in His most Sacred Law.” After this, Abramelin gave Abraham the “Divine Science,” and transmitted to him his “True Magic,” embedded in the two manuscripts, that he would have to follow and give only to those he knew well. The book exists in the form of six manuscripts, and an early printed edition. The origin of the text has not yet been identified with certainty. The earliest manuscripts are two versions dated around 1689, written in German, and now are in Wolfenbüttel. Two other manuscripts are in Dresden, and are dated respectively in 1700 and 1750. The first printed version, also in German, is dated 1725, and was printed in Cologne by Peter Hammer. A part copied in Hebrew is in the Bodleian Library in Oxford, and is dated around the year 1740. A manuscript copy was still in France in the Bibliothèque de l’Arsenal in Paris known as Library of the Arsenal today, an institution founded in 1797, but it seems that their copy is sadly missing,¹ and some say it ended up in the hands of a powerful sect of the Illuminati, but fortunately it is still available on microfilm.

to WiCCa

Analysis of the language used in the French manuscript indicate that it dates back to the eighteenth century, and was also likely to be copied from a German original. Although the author quoted is a Jew, the version is not Hebrew, but rather from a translation of the Bible, used by the Roman Catholics of the time. All German copies of the text consist of four books: an autobiographical account of a trip by Abraham of Worms to Egypt, a book of assorted materials from the corpus of practical Kabbalah, and two books of magic that Abramelin gave Abraham. The well-known English translation of S. L. MacGregor Mathers from the French Manuscript in Paris, contains only three of the four books. The Hebrew version in Oxford is limited to Book One, without reference to the missing books. Of all existing sources, the German manuscripts in Wolfenbüttel, and Dresden, are accepted by scholars as the official texts. According to the student of Kabbalah, Gershom Scholem, the Hebrew version in Oxford was translated into Hebrew from German.

The German esoteric scholar Georg Dehn assumed that the author of the Book of Magic of Abramelin was Rabbi Yaakov Moelin, a German Jew Talmudist, and an authority in Jewish law. The text describes a ritual whose purpose is to attain the knowledge and conversation of your Holy Guardian Angel. The preparations are elaborate, difficult to read, and long for this “alien contact” of an extradimensional nature. All German texts describe a duration for the operation of eighteen months before receiving divine, or alien contact, if we want to be more contemporary. The version translated by Mathers is a little different, and the initial period before the coveted “contact” only lasts six months, perhaps one of the reasons for the problems experienced by those who used Mathers version like myself, or even Crowley “The Great Beast 666.”

During the period of work, the magician must pray every day before dawn and again at dusk. During the preliminary stage, there are some restrictions: Chastity duty is to be observed, no alcohol, and the magicians had to lead their own work with scrupulous obedience. After the preliminary phase was completed successfully, the Holy Guardian Angel of the magician appeared and revealed himself to the magician, and revealed his magical secrets. Once this point is reached, the magician must evoke the twelve Kings and Dukes of Hell (Lucifer, Satan, Leviathan, etc.) and order them to serve him. With this operation the magician is seemingly in command of these entities in his mental universe, and removes their negative influences from his life.

Since such magical work includes the evocation of demons, the Abramelin operations are juxtaposed to Goetic magic, and are to be regarded as dangerous. However the Illuminati of the various sects, and in particular the O.T.O, tend to focus on the benevolent aspects acceptable to their New Age public. Of course, one can try to take possession of these forces, and attempt to master these dangerous demons to achieve a higher form of communication with the angelic realm. But how many words badly pronounced by a bad-intentioned person will return against that same person, who uttered them with ignorance? He who has such a character should never undertake this magical operation, because you will end up hurt, make no mistake. Many occultists of the Illuminati sectarian network even put their lives at risk to raise their psychic powers, thanks to this ritual. Of course there is the occasional person who has obtained a positive experience from the Sacred Magic of Abramelin, but they are few and far between.

Ramsey Dukes (Lionel Snell) has described his experiences with the Sacred Magic of Abramelin the Mage in the 1970s as a journey of self-discovery, that led him to a deep and subtle inner transformative process, where the effects continued well beyond the end of the magical operation.

Lionell Snell, who is still a member of the highest level of the Ordo Templi Orientis (Caliphate) in Britain, and one of the guides of the Thanateros Illuminati, performed the ritual of Abramelin in Hertfordshire cottage during the summer of 1977. I can say that I agree with his description, and impression of the “Sacred Magic of Abramelin the Mage,” which I wanted to experience for myself over twenty years ago. I believe it led to all the positive adventures around the world in the years that followed my experience with the Magic of Abramelin. By chance I obtained the first Italian edition of the Sacred Magic of Abramelin published by Atanor, only 13 years earlier, in December, 1980. What attracted me initially was actually the cover of the book, which was a portrait of an old man in some ways similar to Saint Padre Pio, a figure who I feel I have always been linked.

This book had a profound affect on me, just as it did nearly a century earlier, on Crowley, who derived from it part of the system for developing his mystical system of Thelema, and the so-called “Knowledge and Conversation of his Holy Guardian Angel,” which becomes essential magic for any follower of Crowleyanity, even if there are few who have actually implemented it in its entirety, especially in the O.T.O., where the concept of True Desire (or True Will), is of course the basis of Thelemic religion. When you are seriously studying Magic, the first thing you want to obtain is a guide; a basic text for your own personal development. I found myself looking through the Sacred Magic of the Wizard Abramelin, during my stay in a small room in a puppet theatre in the area of Campo dei Fiori in Rome, owned by the Mazzetti sisters, Paola and Lorenza Mazzetti, ² friends of my father, known for being adopted by the family of Albert Einstein during the war. This unusual set up was used as a Puppet Theatre for the Sunday Punch and Judy Show in the English language, a truly magical place, where when you turn the corner, and you are facing the statue of that great initiate of all time, Giordano Bruno.

In the Catholic tradition there has always been much talk of guardian angels. They even teach about them in catechism, but in the gospel there is no mention of a guardian angel. The Guardian Angel is a spiritual entity, a deity who protects us and guides us. In the magical tradition they speak of the Holy Guardian Angel (or even Augeoides or Daemon) and search for Knowledge and Conversation with the Holy Guardian Angel, as a key step for the magical journey towards contact with extradimensional beings, and mastery of your own reality. What is the guardian angel for these New Age

Illuminati? The angel for them is the “Higher Self,” that lives beyond the space time continuum re ality. What is a space-time continuum? In 1906, soon after Albert Einstein announced his theory of relativity, his former college teacher in mathematics, Hermann Minkowski, developed a new scheme for thinking about space and time that emphasized its geometric qualities. In his famous quotation delivered at a public lecture on relativity, he announced that: “The views of space and time which I wish to lay before you have sprung from the soil of experimental physics, and therein lies their strength. They are radical. henceforth, space by itself, and time by itself, are doomed to fade away into mere shadows, and only a kind of union of the two will preserve an independent reality.” This new reality was that space and time, as physical constructs, could be combined into a new mathematical/physical entity called “space-time,” because the equations of relativity show that both space and time coordinates of any event must be combined together by mathematics, in order to accurately describe what we see. Because space consists of 3 dimensions, and time is 1-dimensional, space-time must, therefore, be a 4-dimensional object. It is believed to be a “continuum” because so far as we know, there are no missing points in space or instants in time, and both can be subdivided without any apparent limit in size or duration. So, physicists now routinely consider our world to be embedded in this 4-dimensional Space-Time continuum, and all events, places, moments in history, actions, are described in terms of their location in Space-Time. ³

The Holy Guardian Angel operates beyond the limits of Space and Time, and the most famous methods published on the subject are Crowley’s Liber Samekh, and the Abramelin system. Both involve spending long periods of time in isolation. This sort of approach probably doesn’t suit a great many people, but the use of a magical retreat or sabbatical can be extremely valuable and aid in working above the restrictions and physical constructs of the Space-Time continuum. Our Higher Self knows no death, it has always lived and always will live. Knowledge of the Higher Self is the shortcut to actually developing the magic side of the Self, which is one of the great secrets of the Illuminati. The traditional magical approach, which follows the pattern of the Tree of Life (Kabbalah), combines the knowledge of the Angel to the Fifth Sphere (Tiphereth), after mastering skills in the Astral plane, and communications with other entities, psychic abilities and various other things. So even in the words of one of the greatest initiates of the Illuminati named Franz Bardon (1909 – 1958), whose recommended approach to the Higher Self is only reached at the Fifth Sphere. But the “New Age” ideal that the Guardian Angel is “Myself Completely Developed,” encourages the connection to acquire the necessary knowledge, and magical abilities, without worrying about the consequences.

Drunvalo Melchizedek, a new age spiritual authority, and author of several books on the “Flower of Life,” recommends starting early with the connection to your inner guidance, your Higher Self. The magical tradition of the Illuminati of the dark side says that once the Angel is contacted, it will accompany you throughout your training, that is, until the Abyss. Here the magician must abandon himself, standing alone for the biggest test. There are many different methods to contact and communicate with the Higher Self. Bardon recommends, for example, the use of the pendulum, the planchette (Ouija board) or automatic writing, while others advise the use of seals, deep meditation, prayer and dreams. Clearly some practices can lead to obvious possession. What counts, in any case, is intention, and obviously, will. Although Crowley used The Sacred Magic of Abramelin, he stated that an adept could more or less achieve this mystical state in various ways, also with other fundamental concepts that coincide with the Abramelin system. In 1906, Crowley was not able to complete the education of the “Sacred Magic,” and decided to change the Abramelin operation so he could perform the ritual during a trip with his wife Rose Kelly, to China.

The manifestation described by Aleister Crowley of a bright spirit, the Order of the Silver Star (A.∴A.∴), was something he considered as the Knowledge and Conversation with his Holy Guardian Angel. However Crowley showed ambivalence about his use of hashish during this experience, so in October 1908, he repeated the operation again in Paris, without its use, to rework the whole process in a new light. In subsequent years, it became established in Crowley’s mind that he actually completed the Abramelin operation successfully with the revelation of his Book of the Law (the sacred text at the basis of his religion of Thelema), and the proclamation of the incoming “Age of Horus” (Aeon of Horus), that he received while he and his wife Rose Edith Kelly were visiting Egypt in 1904.

Who knows what would have happened if Crowley, or myself, would have used a different version, than the one translated by Samuel Liddell MacGregor Mather. The more recent version by Georg Dehn with Steven Guth published in Germany in 2001, and then in English in 2006, ⁴ is based on earlier, and much more erudite sources. Maybe that's why Georg Dehn, one of the two curators of this new version, felt that the translation was a mystical experience. His friend, Lon Milo Duquette, contributed to the introduction to this new version. He stated that the translation of S. L. MacGregor Mathers, given the missing parts of the French edition, "was practically useless, but still dangerous from an operational point of view, if not carried out with the utmost caution." ⁵ Grady McMurthy (1918 – 1985), founder of the modern offshoot of the Ordo Templi Orientis, commonly referred to as Caliphate, and a close friend of Aleister Crowley wrote: "one day while Crowley was preparing his usual cup of English tea in London, I picked up Crowley's copy of the Sacred Magic of Abramelin opening it to those pages where they describe the famous magical squares to use in the occult operations, but when Crowley returned to the room where McMurthy was, his teacher became furious and terrorized him as only Crowley could do, and told him: 'Do not touch that book because you do not know what forces might be unleashed.'"

In fact, in the first Italian edition we find the following warning:

The Abramelin instructions as they are exhibited by Abraham to his son Lamech involve a profound vocation to the sacred and to the good, dictate the need for technical preparation-purification that lasts six months, explain the rules to prepare the furnishings and holy places and provide all the details for the apparition of the Guardian, or Custodian Angel, who alone can help in the long work necessary to summon the Good Angels and dominate Familiar Spirits without any "tricks" by the various devils always ready to enslave the unwary operator. Concept also given by the author of the Magic of Abramelin who says in this passage: Please, therefore each be on guard, not to despise the Way and the Wisdom of the Lord, not to be seduced by devils since the devil is a liar and always will be. We must hold on to the Truth by following and obeying faithfully what I write in these three books. Not only will you obtain the Science, but you will considerably know the grace of the Lord and you will enjoy the assistance of the Angels, who feel an incredible pleasure at being obeyed and observed to see God's Commandments. ⁶

Who is the author of this dangerous grimoire? According to Georg Dehn who, besides being editor of this new version in 2001, is the founder of the German publishing house Araki of Leipzig, and a member of various Illuminati sects, says it is a rabbi. They seem to have no doubt that the author of The Book of the Sacred Magic of Abramelin the Mage, is Rabbi Yaakov Moelin—a German Jew, and a noted Talmudist known as MaHaRIL, or Abraham von Worms (city in Germany in Rhineland-Palatinate where he resided). But the Jewish authorities don't accept the discovery by Georg Dehn, which according to them would undermine a charismatic figure not only of their faith, but also of their communities. Because the great rabbi helped the Jewish survivors of the terrible genocide of 1420 in Austria, and the subsequent Hussite Wars, especially in 1421, a situation which brought considerable suffering to the Jews in Bavaria, and the Rhine, in the southern part of the border between Germany and France.

That's why we find a disclaimer in Wikipedia on (Yaakov ben Moshe Levi Moelin): “Recently, the German esoteric scholar Georg Dehn has argued that the MaHaRIL was also the author of The Book of Abramelin which he wrote under the pseudonym of Abraham von Worms. However, this is disputed.”⁷

Perhaps there will always be some dispute about who the author of this work is, but certainly there is no doubt to the Jewish origin of the work, and its profound Kabbalistic matrix. It is even written: “This takes from the Most High Wisdom foundation and the Holy Kabbalah, which is only given to the first-born.”⁸ Luciano Pirrotta writes a footnote on the same page about the relationship between Kabbalah and Sacred Magic: “The subordination of theurgic magic is here reaffirmed than the body of doctrine of the Kabbalah that integrates and surpasses it. The same opinion, argues that the entire Western esotericism and particularly the ceremonial magic, find their theoretical foundation and practice base in that immense sum which is the Kabbalistic system.”⁹

Another significant testimony on the use and abuse by certain occultists of this grimoire is present in the letters of H. Campell, published in December 1929, in the monthly magazine “The Occult Review” by Ralph Shirley (1905 – 1951). (FIG. 77) Among other things, Francis X. King was the known British occult student who courageously published the secret rituals of the Ordo Templi Orientis in 1973, included this precious testimony in his Ritual Magic in England: 1887 to the Present Day (1970), with some minor variations:

Desiring some information which I could not get in any ordinary way, I resorted to the System of Abramelin, and to this end prepared a copy of the necessary Talisman, perfecting it to the best of my ability with my little stock of knowledge. The ritual performed, I proceeded to clear my “place of working.” A little knowledge is a dangerous thing; my ritual was imperfect and I only rendered the Talisman useless without in any way impairing the activities of the entity invoked. This looks like nothing else than gross carelessness on my part; and to a certain extent this is true—but the point I wish to make is this, that my knowledge of this particular system, and therefore my ritual, were imperfect; and in any case, I had been shown no method of combating this particular entity when once aroused. Now note the results. ... Unfortunately I have no account of the date when these occurrences began, but the first hint of trouble must have come on or about March 3, 1927. I can guess the date with fair accuracy because, as I was to learn, the manifestations were always strongest about the new moon, and after I had gone to sleep. Upon this occasion I can remember waking up suddenly with a vague feeling of terror oppressing me; yet it was no ordinary nightmare terror, but an imposed emotion that could be thrown off by an effort of the will. This passed almost as soon as I stood up, and I thought no more about it. ... Again on April 2, or thereabouts, I was troubled by the same feeling, but regarded it as nothing more than a severe nightmare, though the fact that my sleep was distorted towards the time of the new moon had occurred to me; while as full moon drew on, the nights were peaceful again. The new moon of May brought a recurrence of the trouble. This time very much more powerful, and necessitating an almost intolerable effort of will to cast it off. Also it was about this time that I first saw the entity which was rapidly obsessing me. It was not altogether unlovely to look at. Its eyes were closed and it was bearded, with long flowing hair. It seemed a blind force slowly waking to activity.

9 See. Dion Fortune, The Mystical Qabalah, Fraternity of the Inner Light, London 1957; trad. it. La Cabala Mistica, (Rome, IT: Astrolabio, 1973).

Now there are three points which I must make quite clear before I proceed. In the first place, I was never attacked twice in the same night. Secondly, when I speak of physical happenings, the smashing of glass and voices, they were never, with one absolutely inexplicable exception, actual, but pure obsessions; and this leads to the third point. Not one of these incidents happened while I was asleep. Always I found myself awake with the terror upon me and struggling violently to cast off the spell. I have had nightmares before, but no nightmare that I have ever had could hold my mind in its grip for minutes at a time as this thing did, or send me plunging through a ten-foot-high window to the ground below. ... The first indication I had that these visitations were absolutely out of the ordinary course of events came on May 30. About midnight I was suddenly awakened by a voice calling loudly, "Look out," and at once I became aware of a red serpent coiling and uncoiling itself under my bed, and reaching out onto the floor with its head. Just as it was about to attack me I jumped through my window, and came to earth among the rose bushes below, fortunately with no more damage done than a badly bruised arm. After this there was absolute peace until June 30, when the real climax came. I had seen the thing again on the night of the new moon, and had noticed considerable changes in its appearance. Especially it seemed far more active, while its long hair had changed into serpent heads. The night after I was awakened by a violent noise and jumped out of bed. I then saw the noise was caused by a great red obelisk which crashed through the west wall of my room and leaned against the wall at the east end, smashing both that and the window to pieces but missing my bed, which was in an alcove to the left of its path. In its transit it had smashed all the mirrors, and the floor and top of my bed were strewn with broken glass and fragments of wood. This time the obsession must have lasted some minutes, I dared not move for fear of cutting myself, and to reach the matches—wherein, I knew, lay safety—I had to lean across the bed and again risk the glass. Yet in my heart I knew that all this was false, but had no power to move. I could only stand there, incapable, looking at the shattered room in a state of hopeless terror. ... And now comes the most extraordinary part of the whole business. When I had finally mastered the obsession, I went to bed again dead tired, and I know that the only sound I made that night was jumping to the floor, also my room is at least a hundred yards from the rest of my family, yet next morning at breakfast I was asked what was the terrible noise in my room during the night.

After that I realised that the game was up. I had not taken these occurrences lying down, but I knew that it was impossible for me to try and control the force which I had set in motion. In desperation I turned to a good friend, who, I was aware, knew much of these things. She did not hesitate, but came at once to my assistance, and from that day to the present the trouble has absolutely gone from me. Such is the case; and I only hope it may warn those who are contemplating my folly to treat with the greatest of care any printed systems of magic, and not to use them at all unless they have the fullest control over the entities invoked. This testimony, published by The Occult Review in December 1929, was considered very important by various authors of esotericism and began the last century linked to the world of the seven of the Illuminati, so much so that he was picked up by Dion Fortune, who takes her back fully in his excellent guide Psychic Self-Defense commenting in this way: Among the general public, who do not dabble in occultism, the results of a magical mishap are never seen, and the only doctors who ever see them are fellow-initiates who happen to be medical men, and they, naturally, keep silent. The catastrophes are of varying degrees of severity, ranging from a bad fright to a fatality. I cannot say much upon these subjects, for they are among the most secret paths of occult lore. Enough must be hinted, however, to reveal what, under certain circumstances, may be experienced. I do not think it in the least likely, however, that the Qlipptic demons will be encountered save through the use of ceremonial magic. They are as rare as anthrax in England, but it is as well to know the manner of their manifestation so that, when encountered, they may be recognised. The great majority of dabblers in occultism are protected by their own ineptitude. They fail to get results, and consequently come to no harm; but if they should succeed in getting results they would find that they had their hands full. The serious student, unless he is working under skilled guidance, may also find himself in difficulties, and for various reasons. He may be insufficiently experienced in the operation he has undertaken, for in magic theory is one thing and practice is another. A student of occult science will often take a formula out of a book and try to use it. He might just as well study the instructions in a book on surgery and try to operate. Most formula are incomplete, there is always unwritten work. Some of the “barbarous names of evocation” which the uninitiated use as Words of Power, are really the initial letters of a mantric sentence or formula. I came across an invocation once in which the Word of Power was Tegatoo. On investigation this turned out to be the battered remains of The Great Architect Of The Universe. Even an experienced occultist may get into difficulties if he attempts magical work when he is in bad health, over-tired, or has had even a moderate amount of alcohol, for very little is too much when the Invisible Forces are being handled. Equally does this apply to each of his assistants. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, and if one of the team cannot handle the forces, everybody is going to suffer. A ritual lodge is no place for the well-meaning ineffectual. There is an immense amount of dabbling in occultism going on today. Most of it is innocuous because it is totally ineffective; but there is never any knowing when one is going to strike a live wire. Take, for instance, the advertisers in various occult papers who offer to supply “charms that work.” One of two things is certain. Either they do not work at all, in which case one is wasting one’s money on them; or they work by means of some power with which they have been charged. What is the nature of that power, and did the persons who made the charm or talisman really know what they were about? Did they take the precaution to bind the baser aspect before magnetising with the higher aspect? These are the elementary precautions of the practical occultist who has been properly trained. Did the maker of the talisman know them? Again, one buys second-hand books on magic. Who was the previous owner and for what purposes were these books used? Or one buys a new book which has been brought out by some occult school for propaganda purposes. These books are often magnetised before they are sent out, and so form a magnetic link between the purchaser and the Order which caused them to be issued. Or someone may join a group who has previously been associated with another occult group whose contacts were debased. Unless the proper precautions are taken, that person will bring the psychic contagion in with him, and his fellow-members may have unpleasant experiences. I well remember it being said to me by an occultist of great experience that two things are necessary for safety in occultism, right motives and right associates. We lull ourselves into a false security if we believe that good intentions are sufficient protection. My advice to the would-be student is to invoke the Master to send him an initiator, and to refuse to attempt any practical work until he is fully satisfied that the initiator has been found. I cannot here enter into either the precautions to be taken against untoward happenings in practical occult work, nor the remedies to apply if they take place; I will merely indicate the signs by which such an eventuality may be recognised. This is all that can be done, and all that is necessary in a book of this type; the initiate knows what to do without need of guidance from me; the non-initiate cannot do anything, and must seek assistance. It is enough for him if he knows when such assistance is needed. ... If things go wrong in the course of a magical ceremonial, the power “shorts,” and someone, it may be the operator, or it may be the weakest person in the team, gets “knocked out” as if he had received a punch from an invisible pugilist. When picked up, he will be very dazed and badly shaken, and will certainly be some days, possibly weeks, before he gets over it. He will be in a state of complete prostration and considerable mental confusion, which will gradually wear off. Unless there is some organic defect, such as hereditary mental instability, a bad heart, or hardened arteries, there will be a complete recovery, given time; but naturally it is a bad outlook should one of these conditions be present, and those who have them should not take part in occult experiments. Personally, I do not believe that the invisible forces alone will ever actually cause the loss of life or permanent disability in the absence of any physical lesion. The person who goes out of his mind as the result of a psychic shock would have gone out of his mind if he had been in a railway disaster or any other drastic emotional experience. Unless the psychic atmosphere indicates otherwise, it is not necessary to do any banishings, or take precautions against obsession, because the power has dispersed itself in the very act of inflicting the shock. During my early days of occultism I developed my powers very rapidly because I recovered the memories of previous incarnations en bloc, and with them the capacities acquired in previous lives, and I shook myself up severely on numerous occasions before I learnt the technique of handling the invisible forces. I never experienced any permanent ill-effects from my mishaps, though I admit that upon occasion I have been extricated by my friends from a considerable amount of debris. During the early days of my occult career a girl was brought to me by a mutual friend, who told me that the mother of this girl, an ardent student of occultism, seemed to have a terrible effect upon her daughter. The mother was a widow, and mother and daughter lived together under very comfortable material circumstances; but whenever the girl made a friend, or showed any desire to leave home, the mother performed extraordinary antics, coming to the daughter's room at night and drawing signs in the air about her bed. The effect of all this upon the girl was most peculiar. She felt unable to free herself from the mental domination the mother had obtained over her, and she was wasting away in a most curious fashion. When I saw her, although able to get about, she looked like nothing I have ever seen, save a famine victim. I made a psychic investigation, and formed the opinion that the mother was working by means of an entity of which she had obtained possession. How this had been accomplished in the present instance, I do not know, but such things are common in occultism. I determined to take on the case, and to chase and, if possible, break up this artificial elemental. I was away from the group I was accustomed to work with, but among people keenly interested in occultism of every sort, size and description, and I had no difficulty in picking up a team to help me with the undertaking. I had no qualms about the undertaking. A second-hand elemental, directed by a woman with only a rule-of-thumb knowledge of magic, did not appear to me to be a formidable opponent. I had seen a good deal of practical occultism, had lent a hand at similar operations, and possessed the necessary formulae. So I went round the town, asked certain friends to lend a hand, and others to come and see the fun. To be frank, our attitude was that of a party of small boys going ratting. We met at the appointed time and place. Formed our circle, and went to work. The method I meant to use made it necessary for me to leave my body, and the group were really there to look after it while I was out of it, and see it came to no harm. I got out on to the astral readily enough, did my job, and returned, feeling very pleased with myself, for it was the first time I had operated entirely on my own, without the supervision by my teacher. ... As I began to recover physical consciousness, which is just like coming round from an anaesthetic, I had a sensation as of machinery running, and felt as if I were lying on something very lumpy. I opened my eyes, and saw something brown towering above me to an enormous height. As I gathered my senses together, I discovered that I was lying on the floor, close to the skirting, across the feet of an unfortunate man, who was thus securely pinned against the wall, and it was he, shaking in his shoes, that had felt to me like the vibration of machinery. Various other members of the circle slowly and reluctantly reappeared from behind the piano and sofa and other heavy articles of furniture. They had seen some practical occultism for once in their lives, but they did not appear to like it. It appears that, after I had gone out and left them with my unconscious body, they got a good deal of phenomena in the way of bells and voices outside the circle. If they had kept quiet, it would have been quite all right, but they lost their heads and scattered. Then, the circle being broken, I began to perform antics, arching up on my head and my heels and, in some way that has never been explained, arriving at the far side of the room at the feet of one of the circle, which, of course, did not improve matters. Then an extraordinary thing happened. We were just gathering ourselves together, thinking that everything was over, when a force of what nature I have never known suddenly rushed round the circle, and one member seemed to take the brunt of it. He went flying across the room and landed, fortunately for him, face downwards in an arm-chair, and was ill in bed for three weeks. While all this was going on, the father of one of the people taking part became uneasy about her, and walked across from where he lived at the far side of the little town, to see what was happening. Like most little country towns, this one usually went to bed early, but he told us that as he came along he saw that innumerable windows were lit up, and he heard the sounds of children crying all down the street. When I think of the risks I took and the conditions under which I worked in those early days, I wonder that I or any of my friends are alive to tell the tale. It is said that there is a special Providence to look after fools, drunkards and little children. I think there must be another that looks after inexperienced occultists and their friends. It may be interesting to note that as a result of this operation which I so rashly undertook, the girl was entirely freed from the domination of her mother, and began forth with to put on flesh and rapidly became normal. That end of it, at least, was entirely successful. ¹⁰

is a very interesting manual that I explained in depth in Volume Psychic Self-Defense

II. Returning to the new edition in English of The Sacred Magic of Abramelin promoted by the Ordo Templi Orientis, that dates back to 2006, there is a very clear and explicit warning on the dangers in a note to readers at the beginning of the book:

Readers should contact a medical professional whenever they have health concerns and before attempting any procedure that may affect his or her health. The publisher and the author assume no responsibility for the results that can be obtained by improper use of the described methods.

These warnings issued in this new edition may seem a bit ridiculous, but they have good reason to be there, as it is much worse to pretend this is simply a harmless “New Age” book, like some of the more recent editions out there. At this point I prefer the first edition I obtained in Italy, introduced by Luciano Pirrotta. (FIG. 78) At least it explains the importance of this text in certain circles, where he warned the reader at the end of his introduction clearly and effectively about the dangers of what he was about to study. Here it is the warning of Pirrotta at the time:

Against this background, we can not by ourselves strongly advise the reader to practice the Magic of Abramelin, before having complied with skill and conscientiousness all the preparations. The road leading to the Holy Guardian Angel or Higher Self, has ramifications that reach up to the dark regions of the Demons, or as modern scholars say of deep psychology, the atavistic unconscious tanks. We hope that anyone who wants to embark on a journey of inner knowledge, of which the Magic of Abramelin is one of many methods of approach, they consider fully the potential and implications, so as it was for others who walked this path, the exhilarating thrill of a misleading and fictitious contact with the “divine,” not concealing a tragic and irreversible ego descent into chaos domains and darkness.¹¹

It is said that Carl Gustav Jung was involved, even if only partially, in the occult practice of the Magic of Abramelin. He was interested in the experience of those who had preceded him in it, in this case Aleister Crowley, who practiced it to receive “Contact” with his Secret Chiefs in Cairo, in 1904. In various occult movements, Secret Chiefs are said to be transcendent cosmic authorities, a Spiritual Hierarchy responsible for the operation and moral calibre of the cosmos. They oversee the operations of an esoteric organization, which manifests outwardly in the form of a magical order or lodge system. Their names and descriptions have varied throughout time, dependent upon those who experience contact with them. They exist on higher planes of being, or to be incarnate; if incarnate, they may be described as being gathered at some special location, such as Shambhala, or scattered through the world working anonymously. One early and influential source on these entities is Karl von Eckartshausen, whose The Cloud Upon The Sanctuary, published in 1795, explained in some detail their character and motivations. Several 19th and 20th century occultists claimed to belong to, or to have contacted these Secret Chiefs, and made these communications known to others, including H.P. Blavatsky (who called them the “Tibetan Masters” or Mahatmas), C.W. Leadbeater and Alice A. Bailey (who called them Masters of the Ancient Wisdom), Guy Ballard and Elizabeth Clare Prophet (who called them Ascended Masters), Aleister Crowley (who used the term to refer to members of the upper three grades of his order, A.'.A.'.), Dion Fortune (who called them the “esoteric order”), and Max Heindel (who called them the “Elder Brothers”).¹²

Jung and Sacred Magic

npublished and little-known truths about Carl Gustav Jung, the occult, and Abramelin, are definitely hard to find, but they are present in the excellent essay from 1995 written by the Swiss researcher Peter-Robert König, entitled Abramelin & Co. (FIG. 79) in which we find interesting data on the contact points Jung had with this hidden reality, if not directly, then indirectly through one of his dearest friend, Traugott Egloff. This research is of great importance for those who want to study and further deepen the many realities and occult experiences that lurk behind the Sacred Magic of Abramelin the Mage, the primary text of importance to the Illuminati.

FIG. 79 –Cover of Abramelin & Co. by Peter-R. Koenig (Hiram-Edition, 1995).

We find the unpublished extracts from the diary of Aleister Crowley, with references to the Choronzon Club, and the worship of the image of LAM, his famous alien looking painting that Crowley created in 1917, 10 years after he completed the Abramelin ritual. König speaks of the work of occultists, Franz Bardon Koenig, Emil Stejnar, Dr. Michael Aquino (which we know is tied to the CIA and the MKUltra project), Walter Jantschik, Claas Hoffmann, describing in the process the O.T.O.A., demonstrating its degrees and rituals of this lesser known branch of the Franco-Haitian Illuminati, dedicated to conversation with these entities, following the precepts dictated precisely by the Sacred Magic of Abramelin. There is also a description by Krumm-Heller, founder of the Fraternitas Rosicruciana Antiqua (FRA), which I mentioned in my past books. König's work also contains the faithful reproduction of a rare copy from 1725 of the Sacred Magic of Abramelin, (FIG. 80) and two unpublished manuscripts of the Golden Dawn, adding the strange practices related to the sexual magical circle of "vampires" from the Fraternitas Saturni. It reproduces even the gods of ancient Egypt in connection with the Enochian Tablets, in an interesting piece of research conducted by Frater A.P.S. of the Illuminati, and another unpublished document of the Golden Dawn by Dr. Pullen-Burry dating back to 1895. Finally he mimics Israel Regardie related Addendum of the Book of the Concourse of the Forces. In short, an excellent text, it's a shame that it states on the official website of König that it is now "Sold Out Sold Out Sold Out Sold Out." ¹³

Jung was connected to the mysterious work of the Rosicrucians, which was tied to his passion for alchemy and the occult, and the origins of his family. In fact it would seem that he had an ancestor who was part of the mysterious Rosicrucian Brotherhood, with the same name, and he too was a doctor, Dr. Carl Jung from Mainz who died in 1645. We learn in the biography dedicated to him by Frank McLynn, that suggests his descent from this character that he portrays as a follower of none other than the Count Michael Maier, one of the greatest authors and Masters of Rosicrucian thought. But it was probably Carl Gustav Jung, born in 1784, and his grandfather, who was an important representative of Switzerland Freemasonry, that influenced him to become himself a Freemason and Illuminati one day. This happened within a lodge linked to Monte Verità (literally "Hill of Truth"), a mount (350 meters or 1,150 feet high) in Ascona (Swiss canton of Ticino), a place that seems to be an important portal for extradimensional forces from the invisible plane. It is no coincidence that in June of 2016, at the opening of the Gotthard base tunnel that connects the cantons of Uri and Ticino, the prime ministers Matteo Renzi, François Hollande, and Angela Merkel, the puppets of George Soros, were strangely all present at the event. They attended the representation of a dance-drama that seemed to be a sabbatical ritual of hellish nature, where among the witches, a goat devil appears. There is also an image that resembles the main figure in the Lucifer Rising, a movie by Kenneth Anger, which was projected on a giant screen for full effect. Switzerland, is the seat of the most important Grand Priory of the Rectified Scottish Rite, which has a central role in the world of occult Freemasonry. Let's not forget there is also CERN, where occult rituals take place, but let's return to Monte Verità, whose original name was Mount Monascia, which is just over the hill above Ascona in Ticino, who assumed the Monte Verità name in the early decades of the twentieth century. It is here where the foundation of a diverse community of Illuminati / utopian / vegetarian / theosophers was formed, where Anarchists, aristocrats, intellectuals and artists, began arriving in large numbers to the place, attending the Mount assiduously. There was Prince

Peter Kropotkin, the “Cosmic” Countess Grafín Franziska zu Reventlow, the famous choreographer and dance theorist Rudolf von Laban aka Rudolf von Laban and Laban Váralja (1879 – 1858), and his “art school” built in an individualistic cooperative which provided for the initiation to all modes of expression and human genius, to the important member of the Illuminati Theodor Reuss, the theosophist co-founder of the O.T.O. who summoned a major event for his Illuminati known as “The Anational Congress for Organising the Reconstruction of Society on Practical Cooperative Lines” that took place from the 15 to 25th of August, 1917 at Mount Verita.¹⁴ The event outlined by the communistic and liberal-minded Reuss were the following: “Forms off non national companies and cooperatives, conforming to the modern age education, emancipation of women in the future society, mystical Freemasonry, new forms of sociability, art, dance and cultural ritual.”

It would appear this important event for the Illuminati of the nascent New Age, culminated in a celebration known as the Festival of the Sun, a kind of dance drama from dusk to dawn staged by one of the founders of European Modern Dance, Rudolf von Laban and his school. In short, Monte Verità was probably the most important laboratory that the New Age movement had, before officially landing in California, there is no doubt about this. The colony was regularly visited by numerous internationally renowned personalities, and some also resided for a time in this magical place including, Karoly Kerényi, Erich Maria Remarque, Hermann Hesse, Filippo Franzoni, Marianne Werefkin, Alexej Jawlensky and obviously Carl Gustav Jung, who seems to have joined the irregular lodge opened by Theodor Reuss and von Laban in Zurich in 1917, called Lodge Libertas et Fraternitas (which later became a regular Masonic lodge). It seems that Jung initially obtained the Rosicrucian degree that was apparently the Cernau schismatic version of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish rite. There are those who say that Jung obtained the Rosicrucian degree in the Ordo Templi Orientis system, where this degree is present as the 5th degree, and others who are very critical of this possibility, or the fact that Jung was ever a Freemason at all. Jung’s Masonic membership was never officially confirmed by the Grand Lodge Alpina of Switzerland (SGLA), but the information probably spread by a key figure of the Italian Illuminati, Francesco Brunelli, who apparently learned it from Robert Ambelain, his teacher, who indicated

Carl Gustav Jung as a member of the Freimaurerloge Modestia cum Libertate of the Rectified Scottish Rite. Jung is present on the list of famous Freemasons published on the website of various lodges operating today in Italy.¹⁵ Jung is also identified as a Freemason by the Italian Symbolic Rite (RSI),¹⁶ confirming his Rosicrucian rank and his willingness to go “beyond” the physical realm of appearance. Freemasonry aside, in 1916, the paranormal entered into Jung’s life with automatic writing, which produces a very strange work: The Seven Sermons to the Dead, written officially by Basilides in Alexandria, the City where the East toucheth the West. We are in the postwar period, and Jung is 41 years old. The book is written rapidly in three nights, in a trance state, a bit like Crowley a few years earlier in 1904, in Cairo, with his Book of the Law, which was received mediumistically through the entity Aiwass. From an early age, Jung had entered into communication with invisible presences. After the age of 40, however, the entities literally seem to have invaded his life. In his house Jung experienced paranormal phenomena, where there was a worrying presence that involved not only Jung, but also his daughter. His child had unusual nightmares, the doorbell rang by itself, and Jung felt surrounded by many spirits in attendance, where he asked them what they wanted.

The answer was: “We return to Jerusalem, where we did not find what we were looking for.” The book The Seven Sermons to the Dead begins with these words explaining that “Jerusalem is the center of Christianity, the spirit you are looking searches for something that he does not find, because Christianity has changed, it has become something else. Jerusalem is the spiritual city that must be liberated, is the soul, but there is a heavenly Jerusalem made by God and an earthly Jerusalem made by men; the first is the sacred, the second the historical religion. Through time the symbols of earthly Jerusalem have moved away from their original purpose, which is why one of the first Christians philosophers writes bringing back the basics.”

When Jung began writing in a trance, the energies cease to manifest themselves in his house, because they have found their channel. Jung privately publishes this automated dictation in a booklet form and gives it only to friends. It illustrates phrases and concepts typical of Basilides, a gnostic philosopher who lived in the second century, where the script has the same hermetic style. Gnosticism through the sacred knowledge and the object of the dictation is the Supreme Being and its manifestations. The Seven Sermons of the Dead is a mediumistic writing that conveys the invisible energies of the alien world around us, giving them a voice. Jung called this phenomenon, which is external and internal together, “an unconscious constellation, whose atmosphere is the numen, of an archetype that runs around here, in the air.” The archetype is not just a psychic matrix, it can be an energy living in another time and another space, or a historical memory reactivated and channeled through another subject that brings it back to light, even two thousand years later. The Christian era seemed for Jung and the Illuminati that gathered in Monte Verità, was born out of a mistake, that mistake became evil, slowly spreading and leading to dissolution. Everything was contained in its origins; the sin of the origins of Christianity was not the original sin of Eden. He wanted to separate the totality of universal energy, male-female, that privileged the male. Gnostics in the first centuries of Christianity respected the whole being, the two sides of the cosmic energy, but the established Church that followed broke the covenant of balance, denying Christ and his saving wholeness, and breaking the world in an unresolvable antinomy between male and female. The glyph of Pisces with his two contrary motions indicated in reality an opposition never really resolved, which would lead eventually to the final collapse, the Apocalypse, the end of the world, or of an era. The forgotten values of the Mother, the exile of the Goddess, the denial of nature, the love oblivion had unbalanced the world in denial and in the war; rationality, malfeasance, and greed were risking an end to the planet.

Whenever Jung was restless, he questioned his soul, the soul sent an image, and that sense of oppression vanished. The soul is the unconscious messenger, and communicates with an even larger reality, extra-temporal and universal. For years Jung converses with his soul when he was upset or worried, and this is something that was also practiced by my father Elio, also a disciple of Jung’s thought, using this strange modality. It was something I tried to understand since childhood, when for hours and hours I could hear my father talking to himself in his study, in an unusual dialogue with his soul, to ask what was happening, what was new, what disturbed him. The soul produces an image in this process, and, as soon as it appears, the sense of oppression vanishes. Jung analyzes the image and the soul and acted at times like a kind of shaman who questions his spirits. It is no wonder my father's friend, the late Lorenzo Ostuni (died in 2013), also well-versed in analytical psychology, and a leading figure in the Italian esoteric scene, who called my father a sort of "Witchdoctor."

The emotion for Jung acts as an intermediary for conscious communication with the unconscious. As this happens the emotions subside, the order returns and energy finds its rhythm. Jung writes down his path of consciousness in the Black Book, six small volumes bound in black leather, which then assume a more artistic tone in the Red Book. Jung will work on the Red Book for 6 years, taking care and great attention to the designs, colors, mandalas, and the Gothic features, penned thoroughly with Indian ink so to render it a masterpiece. Towards the end of his life, Jung wrote to his friend and Masonic Brother, Traugott Egloff, "If the meeting with the shadow" (the inner aspects of life by a person not recognized) is the "apprentice work" in the development of the individual, then the encounter with the soul is the "masterpiece" (9 Feb., 1959). Jung was definitely part of the Illuminati establishment and the correspondence with Traugott Egloff, a cultured and erudite Mason, and a Swiss member of the Order of the Illuminati, proves it. No wonder Egloff was especially fond of the Sacred Magic of Abramelin.

Jung's secret work with the Sacred Magic allowed him to meet his muse Anna Antonia "Toni" Wolff (September 18, 1888 – March 21, 1953). Traugott Egloff later disappeared in the jungles of Brazil, where he had gone ostensibly to seek the ideal place for contacting his Holy Guardian Angel in the final stage of the Sacred Magic of Abramelin. Unfortunately, it seems that Egloff died on this occasion, as with other unwary O.T.O. members before, and after him, who dedicated themselves to the dangerous practices of the Sacred Magic of Abramelin. This includes Dr. C. H. Petersen, known to the initiates of the O.T.O. as Frater Fines Transcendam, high dignitary of the Order in Germany. After the war he wanted to embrace the ritual, but violated the strict rules of the grimoire by bringing in his cousin Frau Pingwill called "Kama-rupa" who practiced sexual magic with him. The Sacred Magic is clear on this point: "we must not admit a woman in this operation." Kama-rupa committed suicide in 1956 and Dr. C. H. Petersen died in the hospital in Hamburg on April 4, 1957. Although, to be fair in the case of Traugott Egloff, Jung's friend, the certainty of his death was never proven, despite extensive research, the body was in fact never found. It's almost like he vanished or was abducted to another dimension. And although he was in the end given up for dead, there is always the possibility (however remote) that he may still be alive, or absorbed by an interdimensional door. A door that perhaps Egloff the Illuminati, was trying to open to get in touch with certain extradimensional entities, and maybe having witnessed his insistence, totally absorbed him in their own reality with a permanent abduction. In the Sacred Magic of Abramelin it is written: "I dare say, in truth, dear son Lamech, that I have done for you what no one has done in our time, especially by telling you the two signs without which (I swear on the True God) out of a hundred who embark upon this operation, there would not be that two or three that we would succeed."

Another important source of information on Jung's connection to the occult was definitely Oskar Rudolf Schlag, an important figure of the Swiss Illuminati, who I wrote a lot about in the first volume of my Confessions. He was used as a medium by Jung for a series of experiments, and was tied to the Hermetic Society of Zurich. Jung was secretly fond of occultism and saw in ceremonial magic the means to open contact with certain unknown forces, those same entities that dictated the mysterious Gnostic text Septem Sermones ad Mortuos, or The Seven Sermons to the Dead I mentioned earlier. This brief booklet, which as we know was never published officially by Jung, will become part of those mysterious writings never published during his lifetime, like the mysterious Red Book. The Sermons are 14 pages of philosophy dictated by the spirit and life of the Gnostic philosopher Basilides; summarizing themes that Jung will analyze over the following years. Gnosticism came to Carl Gustav Jung in 1916 through mediumship, and if knowledge of the Gnostics had arrived to him with the beginning of this study of automatic writing, his knowledge of alchemy was dictated by an act synchronism, in 1929. When he was ready, Jung received by mail a Chinese book, a Taoist alchemy text called The Golden Flower. From that moment on he stopped writing the Red Book and began to deal with alchemy in a vast study that was to last 30 years. However, the Red Book is not a monument to psychology, although Jung began writing it almost immediately after the break with Freud in 1914. But it's not even a simple document as academics claimed it to be. Jung called it a "confrontation with the unconscious" in the period between 1912 and 1918. In the following years he worked on the principles of his psychological theories, the archetypes, the collective unconscious and the identification process, transforming psychotherapy from a simple treatment of a possible mental disease, to a medium for the development of the higher personality. Analytical psychology became a theoretical discipline and a form of psychotherapy. At the center of this was the Liber Novus, or the Red Book. Here Jung tried to derive the psychological principles with fantasies. He also tried to understand the symbolic form of events and how they would present themselves in future developments in the world. The material was revised several times, only to be copied in an ornate Gothic script in a large volume bound in red leather, to which he added not only all sorts of ornaments but also many interesting figures and designs made by him. Even if the work in question was inspired by the Illuminated manuscripts of the Middle Ages, the texts and images used by Jung is strongly reminiscent of the work of the Illuminati master William Blake (1757 – 1827). William Breeze, born on August 12th, 1955, and current Patriarch of the E.G.C (Gnostic Ecclesia Catholica), the Gnostic Church linked to Aleister Crowley and the Illuminati of the Ordo Templi Orientis, also known by the initiatic name of Hymenaeus Beta, was basing his judgement on an essay in 1997, that Crowley himself had dedicated to Blake as a sort of saint, and officialized William Blake's position as a "Saint" of his so-called "Gnostic Church." He achieved the dual objective of including Blake in the list of saints and at the same time being able to celebrate his own onomastic in memory of this extravagant and ingenious character beloved by Freemasonry and the Illuminati. Furthermore, the O.T.O followers (a bunch of communists and satanists of the worst kind) on February 17 of 2000, also inserted Giordano Bruno in the list of the Saints of their infamous Church. I say poor Giordano Bruno, whose memory should not be in any way linked to this dangerous Illuminati sect. William Blake according to some well-informed British researchers is present in an alleged official list of Grandmasters of the Druid Order (from 1799 to 1827).

Blake was certainly prone to certain esoteric disciplines, and was inspired by magic and the occult, from which he drew profusely his visionary works and his deep research on the soul of man, which inevitably will bring him into contact with the subtle reality, which also influenced and inspired Carl Gustav Jung. The dangerous Satanist of Jewish origin Marilyn Manson, who made a disgraceful music video in 2016 where a figure resembling the Republican president-elect Donald Trump was decapitated, together with other left wingers of the occults, including the Grand Master of the Ordo Templi Orientis William Breeze, enthusiastically participated a few years ago (in June, 2010) in an exhibition titled The Alchemy of Things Unknown (and Visual Meditation on Transformation) that took place at the prestigious Khastoo Gallery of Sunset Boulevard in Los Angeles, contributing in various ways to this event created by the political and cultural milieu of the Ordo Templi Orientis and the dark and perverse side of the Illuminati, to promote the release of the Red Book by C.G. Jung. Maybe someone should tell these communist freaks that Carl Gustav Jung was not one of them, and for this reason at one point he was even accused of being a “Nazi sympathizer”—accusations which, in some respects, seems justified for some researchers.

However the Hollywood exhibition I just mentioned promoting C. G. Jung’s Red Book, was described as a sort of art exhibition, a modality many satanists often use to promote their occult events (i.e. Marina Abramović, Zeena Schreck, just to name a couple). This “exhibition” was said to explore and expose individual works of art in relation to theosophy, the sacred tradition, and devotional practice. I guess one thing is to be illuminated by the works of divine imagination created by the genius of William Blake, or the designs of Carl Gustav Jung’s collective unconscious, as visual art is undoubtedly a great creative tool to achieve illumination; but this context was built instead to submit to dark forces and promote their occult liberal agenda amongst the elite. Analyzing deeper the relationship between Jung and Blake, in 1948 Carl G. Jung began to study the works of William Blake, where his studies of some Gnostic texts and his vision of reality turned out to be very similar in some respects to those of Jung. Even the imaginative art of Blake seems to come close to Jung. In fact, there are so many similarities, that Jung according to various experts, included Blake among his favorite figures of all time, along with Dante, Goethe, Wagner and Nietzsche. There is a particular episode in C. G. Jung’s life, found in a acclaimed documentary from a few years ago produced by Werner Weick for the Italian Swiss public television channel, where we find mentioned a certain Atmavictu: “In the great images that filled his soul. He had erected a monument to the creative demon that had driven him all his life to pursue their own visions and to give the world some brilliant psychological insights perhaps not yet fully understood and accepted; he called him ‘Atmavictu’ that is, ‘breath of life.’ On the pediment of his home in Küsnacht, Carl Gustav Jung, had engraved an inscription in Latin:—‘The first man is of the earth and is earthly, the second man is from heaven and it is spiritual. Whether you call him or not, God will be present.’ His daughter Gret told us: ‘He remained motionless for 24 hours before he died and did not respond to any stress. ... It was very far away now. His last breaths were so wonderful and free that there was no room in my heart for sorrow. Fifteen minutes after his death with a frightening roar a bolt of lightning tore along its length of the garden poplars.’”

It seems that a similar event took place after the death of Aleister Crowley. Patricia “Deirdre” MacAlpine mother of Aleister Ataturk, present the moment the “Great Beast” passed away, told an interviewer from British television that a sudden gust of wind, and crash of thunder came at the exact moment of Crowley’s death. Adding that it seemed to her that the gods wanted to pay homage to him in the moment of his passing away, to what Crowley used to call the greater feast.

In Jung’s The Red Book: Liber Novus (Philemon), the Master and founder of Analytical psychology (sometimes called analytic psychology), also known as Jungian psychology, allows us to all participant in a fundamental aspect of his spiritual and intellectual growth linked to the occult: “When, in October 1913, I had the vision of the flood, I was in a period of importance for me personally. Then, at the age of forty years, I got everything I had hoped. I had achieved fame, power, wealth, knowledge and all human happiness. Thus ceased in me the desire to further gains by those assets, I was lacking the desire, and I was filled with horror. The vision of the flood overtook me and I felt the spirit of the deep, without understanding it. But it forced me making me feel unbearably intimate longing, and I said, ‘My soul, where are you? Can you hear me? I speak, I’ll call you. ... Are you there? I’m back, I’m back again.’” And of one thing we are sure, Jung is still here, and today his thinking is more relevant than ever despite the compromises that he might have been forced to make within the academic world and with those “Architects of control” and manipulation involved in “mind control.”

Jung and Mind Control

y father, Elio Zagami, was for a time, one of the leaders of the Jungian school worldwide. In fact, he studied and worked in Switzerland with Carl Alfred Meier (April 19, 1905 – 1995), the successor of Carl Gustav Jung, who had great esteem for my father, and offered him the post as his successor at the Zürichberg Clinic (Clinic and Research Centre for Jungian Psychology)—an offer that my father refused. He returned to Italy, where he founded, as some of you may know, the Independent Group of Analytical Psychology (GAPA). Years later he also refused to take over the patients of another great teacher of Jungian thought, the Italian Aldo Carotenuto, who contacted him by telephone shortly before he passed away. Difficult and unusual choices, that only years later I fully understood, given the rebellious and independent nature of my father, and his work. His research went well beyond the boundaries of psychoanalysis, where in a single year in Zurich, only five years after Jung's death in the period 1966-67, he shocked the local academic world. Meier remained in contact with my father in the following years, and up until the mid-seventies, regularly visited him in Rome during his time in the Italian capital; a bond made of true friendship between researchers of deep thought. My father declined the offer of becoming the successor of Jung and Meier because he found the Jungian world corrupt and manipulative.

I would like to explore a few lesser known aspects of Jung's work in relation to mind control, and its hidden manipulators, including those of Freemasonry. In 1948, the National Association for Mental Health of Montagu Norman announced the great International Congress on Mental Health, in London. Under the patronage of the Duchess of Kent, widow of the Grand Master of the United Grand Lodge of England, (a position he held from 1939 to 1942) and mother of the future Grand Master (since 1967), the Congress saw the participation of C. G. Jung and key figures of the growing New World Order. Julian Huxley, the American anthropologist Margaret Mead, Winfred Overholser, head of the American delegation, that some sources indicate as senior member of the U.S. Scottish Rite, and the director of the St. Elizabeths Hospital in Washington, D.C., that usually provides mental health care services to members of the U.S. armed forces and presided over the Office for Strategic Services (OSS, that after the war became the CIA) began a project in search of the ultimate "truth serum," i.e. psychotropic substances to use in the interrogation of prisoners. The clinic was used in the 1950s to experiment various drugs on U.S. Army recruits, to identify subversive subjects. Among the famous doctors were Thomas J. Lord Horder, personal doctor of Edward VIII, and president of the Eugenics Society and the Anglo-Soviet Public Relations Association; Dr. Alfred E. Tredgold, member of the Committee for Sterilization at the Ministry of Health; and psychiatrists Cyril Burt and Hugh Crichton-Miller, an expert in paranormal research and first vice president of the C. G. Jung Institute, Zürich, both founders of the infamous Tavistock Institute in London. ¹⁸

Let's not forget who engineered this, the aforementioned Montagu Norman, an English banker, best-known for his role as the Governor of the Bank of England from 1920 to 1944, as there is always a connection between the banking system and Psychological operations (PSYOP).

In 1921, The Tavistock Institute, formally a psychiatric research clinic, became the perfect place to study mental disorders derived from continuous exposure to terror generated in battle by British soldiers, especially those who survived World War I. It became a laboratory of psychological warfare for the British army during World War II, and later settled as a world center of mass brain washing and social engineering for the New World Order. Working closely with experiments to create methods to control the masses, widely-used on American citizens, a sneaky and outrageous attack on freedom by means of applied psychology, imposed with no authorization on circumscribed areas of the brain. The object of the fiercest studies of the Tavistock in recent years is, for example, the creation of "paradigm shifts," or the means to induce "new" values in society through collective traumatic events (turbulent environments). For example, a cycle of lectures at the Tavistock Institute in 1989 had as its central theme the following: "The role of NGOs in weakening national states."

In 1948, a key role was played by John Rawlings Rees (1890 –1969) in the International Congress for Mental Health, when he was nominated President of the World Federation for Mental Health. He was a British civilian and military psychiatrist, and one of the key figures at the original Tavistock Clinic, where he became the medical director from 1933: "After leaving Tavistock, Rees' first role was as the chief organizer of the 1948 International Congress for Mental Health, held in London. At this congress, the World Federation for Mental Health was founded, and Rees was elected as the first president." ¹⁹

Rees' part in the colossal CIA program called MK-Ultra is unclear. In 1943, the Rockefeller Foundation created in Canada (i.e. in British territory) a clinic, called the "Allen Memorial Institute," linked to the McGill University in Montreal. Donald E. Cameron, a Scottish psychiatrist who was head of psychiatric services, became known when chilling details about the experiments of MK-Ultra began to leak out, causing a revolt by the American public in the 1970s. Cameron was a specialist in inducing sleep in his patients

(or victims) using drugs, and then woke them with electric shocks. Cameron's research pinpointed topics that interested the CIA, and The Army Chemical Center financed, always under MK-Ultra, including research with LSD. Paul Hoch, a psychiatrist and Freemason who collaborated with German pro-Nazi eugenicist Franz Kallmann, in studies on schizophrenia sponsored by some members of the Masonic elite. Kallmann wrote The Genetics of Schizophrenia: A Study of Heredity and Reproduction in the Families of 1, 087 Schizophrenics, (New York, 1938). Kallmann began his research in Germany under the eugenicist of the Third Reich Ernst Ruedin, but in 1935, he was identified as a "half Jew" and had to emigrate to the USA to avoid persecution. Here he found employment at the New York Psychiatric Institute, whose director Nolan D. C. Lewis, was a Freemason. Robert Hanna Felix, a 33 ° Scottish Rite, and the founder of the National Institute of Mental Health, was involved in some of the scandalous experiments into "brainwashing" conducted by MK-Ultra, along with his student Harris Isbell. The CIA made extensive experiments with a variety of illegal drugs given to drug addicts in its Addiction Research Center in Lexington (Kentucky). Finally, after the press revelations on MK-Ultra, the program was officially halted in 1973. An investigation, which went nowhere, was conducted for the media. It's no coincidence that the head of the relevant Senatorial Committee appointed to the case was none other than Nelson Rockefeller. The Rockefeller Commission closed its work on the subject in 1975. However, since 1961, Robert H. Felix assembled the leading researchers of MK-Ultra under the umbrella of a new institution with the more respectable name: The American College of NeuroPsychopharmacology.

In 1967, the College held a conference called "Effects of psychotropic drugs on a normal human," whose introduction fell on two former actors of the MK-Ultra: Wayne O. Evans, military psychiatrist from the U.S. Army Stress Laboratory in Natick (Massachusetts); and Nathan S. Kline (1916 – 1983), a eugenicist of Columbia University, and a scholar of Haitian Voodoo,²⁰ whose best-known work was with psychopharmacologic drugs,²¹ to which a well-known clinic in the industry, the Nathan S. Kline Institute for Psychiatric Research found in Orangeburg in the State of New York is dedicated to him.²² The beginning of their relationship reveals, with dazzling clarity, the very reason why the financial oligarchies have for so long funded psychiatric research:

The current range of psychotropic drugs seems almost trivial when we compare it to the possible number of chemicals that will be available for the control of selective aspects of human life in the millennium. American culture moves towards a “sane society.” The emphasis regains more and more on the experience sensory and less and less on rationalist philosophies. This philosophical vision, together with the means to separate sexual behavior from reproduction, will step up without question, sexual freedom. It seems obvious that the youth of today are no longer afraid of drugs or sex. Still, philosophers and avant-garde commentators advocate the personal sensory experience as the raison d’être of the next generation. We are going towards an era in which a significant work will be possible only for a minority: in that era, chemical aphrodisiacs will be accepted as a common means to occupy your time. If we accept the position that man’s mood, his motivations and emotions, are reflections of the state of the neurochemical brain, then medications may provide the simplest, quickest and most practical way to produce any state neurochemical you wish. As soon we cease to confuse the scientific and the moral claims on the use of drugs, the sooner we can rationally consider the types of neurochemical states that we want to be able to provide to the people.²³ These characters are skillful and cunning at the apex of the New World Order, with the intention to maintain control over the system of so-called mental health. This was one of the main reasons why my father, in the end rejected psychiatry and Jung's legacy. He could not tolerate the fact that this science that should have helped man in the next evolutionary step, was subject to control and manipulation from a central power as that of Tavistock. This was often repeated to me in our long talks.

Jung and the wife of Tutankhamun

F

For further study, we find the book by Frank McLynn called Carl Gustav Jung,²⁴ where many interesting facts about Jung surface, that also include his privileged relationship with the Rockefeller family, which also had a direct involvement with his studies in psychiatry. Jung even met the famous Standard Oil founder John D. Rockefeller, after treating his elder sister Edith Rockefeller McCormick (1872 – 1932), who visited Jung in 1913, after suffering terrible depression, and from that point onward became a fan of C. G. Jung, donating a substantial sum of money for the psychological Society of Zurich. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, who was the daughter of John D. Rockefeller and his wife, Laura Spelman, found herself making headlines in February, 1923, when she claimed to be the reincarnation of the wife of Tutankhamun. She was quoted as saying: "I married King Tutankhamun when I was only sixteen years old. I was his first wife. Only the other day, while glancing through an illustrated paper, I saw a picture of a chair removed from the King's Chamber. Like a flash I recognized that chair. I had sat in it many times."²⁵ The Rockefeller family must have reacted to stories like this with a collective cringe. She followed up by stating "My interest in reincarnation is of many years standing." It can be seen the Rockefeller's have a pretty obvious occult side, and the Rockefell er Archaeological Museum is even hiding alien artifacts. A coincidence or something more sinister, in the aftermath of the opening of the tomb of Tutankhamun, the discovery ended with a bizarre set of murders with mysterious circumstances. But while in the intellectual salons of the twenties and thirties in London, there was talk of supernatural powers of the ancient Egyptians at work behind the sudden deaths. The historian Mark Beynon argues that contemporary researchers should actually focus on Aleister Crowley, the infamous black magician and driving force behind the dark side of the Illuminati.

Incredible parallels between Crowley, and Jack the Ripper, have been discovered during research by historian Mark Beynon. Throughout the 1920s and 1930s, London was gripped by the mythical curse of Tutankhamun, the Egyptian boy-king, whose tomb was uncovered by British archaeologist Howard Carter. More than 20 people linked to the opening of the pharaoh’s burial chamber near Luxor in 1923, all died bizzare deaths over the following years—six of them in the capital. Victims include Carter’s personal secretary, Captain Richard Bethell, who was found dead in his bed from a suspected smothering at an exclusive Mayfair club. Bethell’s father, Lord Westbury, plunged seven floors to his death from his St James’s apartment, where he reportedly kept tomb artifacts, as gifts from his son. And Aubrey Herbert, half-brother of Carter’s financial backer Lord Carnarvon, also died suspiciously in a Park Lane hospital, shortly after visiting Luxor. At the time, a frenzied press blamed the “Curse of Tutankhamun” for the deaths, and specu lated on the supernatural powers of the ancient Egyptians. But Mr Beynon examined unpublished evidence to conclude the deaths were all ritualistic killings masterminded by Crowley, an occultist dubbed “the wickedest man in the world.” After a unique analysis of Crowley’s diaries, essays, books and inquest reports, the armchair detective argues that he was a Jack the Ripper-obsessed copycat killer. Crowley, who called himself “The Great Beast 666,” apparently had his own motives in tarnishing the legacy of Carter’s legendary discovery. The gods and goddesses of Crowley’s own religious philosophy, Thelema, were derived from ancient Egyptian religion, and he believed himself to be a prophet of a new age of personal liberty, controlled by the ancient Egyptian god, Horus. It is likely that he would have found Carter’s excavation sacrilegious, and wanted revenge, according to Mr Beynon, in his book London’s Curse: Murder, Black Magic and Tutankhamun in the 1920s West End.²⁶ For many occultists and pseudo-Illuminati, the secret bond between the supposed “Curse of Tutankhamun” and Aleister Crowley could be judged false and without foundation, especially as your average follower of “The Great Beast 666” never likes to accept unpleasant truths about Crowley. He is considered a prophet and the guru of sexual freedom, and of course “The Magician of all Magicians.” But in November 2011, with his new thesis, Beynon disrupts the magickal-esoteric scene of the Illuminati linked to the “Beast 666,” especially after he received an excellent review by the English newspaper The Telegraph. (FIG. 81) However, Alessandro De Angelis writer, researcher of the history of religion and early Christianity states that these deaths, served to cover up the discovery of secret documents that would change the course of history.

In 1924, there is testimony by Lee Keedick, who witnessed a harsh argument between Carter and another British official, in the British Embassy in Cairo, during which Carter threatened to publicly reveal the burning of documents found in the tomb. (FIG. 82) He later justified the disappearance of the documents by saying that he had misclassified some bandages of the pharaoh as papyrus because there was “little light in the grave.” An implausible explanation as his team would have become immediately aware of such an error given the interest that these documents had aroused. But this concealment is also evident from a letter sent by Lord Carnarvon in 1922, to his friend Egyptologist Alan H. Gardiner. The Count spoke of the presence of “a box with some papyrus,” an assertion later confirmed by a further letter by Carnarvon to Sir Edgar A. Wallis Budge, who worked for the British Museum Department of Egyptian and Assyrian Antiquities, and was responsible for displaying the artifacts from Luxor. Mr Beynon states there is evidence that Budge and Crowley were associates on the London occult scene. Further confirmation was found in a telegram sent by Arthur Merton November 30, 1922 which read: “one of the boxes found in the tomb contained the papyrus rolls from which it is expected to find a large amount of historical information.”

FIG. 82 – The famous British archaeologist and Egyptologist Howard Carter (Swaffham, May 9, 1874 – London, 2 March 1939) pictured with his Egyptian worker in the period following the opening of the Tutankhamun sarcophagus, dating from the 16th of February, 1924. Inside contained the mummy of the pharaoh child in a solid gold sarcophagus weighing 110 kg, with the face covered by a solid gold mask reproducing the likeness of the deceased.

Howard Carter did not deny the statements of Lord Carnarvon about its existence. Only after the death of Lord Carnarvon was the first modified version of the facts presented, which led the Egyptologist, Alan Gardiner, to claim that those documents could shed light on the change of religion of Pharaoh Akhenaten and “The real hidden story of Israel.” The conspiracy involving suppressed papyri (relating to the Jewish Exodus) from the tomb. Aleister Crowley’s involvement in this supposed series of assassinations could be quite plausible, seeing his important position and role in occult hierarchy, and his links to various Jewish Freemasons. Carter was threatening truly explosive disclosures on ancient documents that would do nothing less than re-write the history of Judaism and Christianity. This was at the same time as tensions were rising over plans to establish a Jewish homeland in the Middle East. What Carter was suggesting would throw the Middle East into turmoil. The secrets he may have stumbled upon would have completely overturned key elements in the Bible.

The implications are enormous—forcing us to ask whether the person we call Moses was in fact a renegade Egyptian priest. I will explore this topic in The Invisible Master, and whether Christianity has its roots in a religious revolution initiated by a heretical pharaoh. The contents of these papyrus documents are so contentious that if they had been made public, they may well have changed the course of the 20th Century completely. The missing papyri have been the subject of speculation from the time the tomb was opened. Lord Caernarvon mentioned the discovery in two letters to friends. A report in The Times also mentioned their existence. It is odd that later the official story changed, and everyone began insisting that these documents never existed! Carter alleged that the find was in fact “loin cloths” —the boy king’s “underwear!” And that poor light made for the misunderstanding. Too many people saw these documents before they “disappeared,” perhaps in a secret Masonic vault, an astounding “blunder” for someone of Carter’s standing. Lord Caernarvon himself states that, on their first entry into the room, it was fully illuminated by electric light. Looking a little closer at this discovery, the official version has Carter uncovering a secret sunken staircase in the Valley of the Kings. Then penetrating a doorway sealed with the jackal emblem of Egyptian royalty, and clearing a rubble strewn corridor leading to another doorway. Making a small hole, he peers through this doorway to reveal strange animals, statues of gold, everywhere the glint of gold.²⁷

The public revelation made by Edith Rockefeller McCormick the following year, in 1923, about being the wife of Tutankhamun, seems a bit strange in regards to Howard Carter, and his discovery. The number 23 is also a very important number for the Illuminati. There is an obsession for many occultists with Egypt, that will lead us to discuss the links between ancient Egypt and Satanism. Obscure practices and perverse rituals are part of this, and because of their infatuation with ancient ritual, that include human sacrifice, the more perverse sects of Illuminati are often fixated with Egypt, as with other ancient cultures. Rituals dedicated to Isis described by Dion Fortune, including those of the Sumerian culture and the Mesopotamian culture, as well as those practiced by a large part of the European and Asian societies (at least up to the Bronze Age), all practiced human sacrifice with the objective to appease the gods. The Royal Cemetery of Ur, discovered in the 1920s, with its 16 majestic filled tombs rich in gold and jewels, is not only a tangible document of the apex of the civilization of Ur, it's also evidence that human sacrifice was practiced on a large scale to please their alien gods. And if you think about it, even today, in areas of Iraq, death and brutality dominates with human sacrifice being practiced on a daily basis with ISIS, the evil Islamic thugs and mercenaries of the New World Order.

Crowley was an eccentric, bisexual, heroin addict, who gained notoriety as a supporter of sexual promiscuity and prostitution. Beynon describes him in his book as a dangerous schizophrenic, known for murdering his servants in India. In his diaries, Crowley never speaks of deaths relating to him, but as I have mentioned earlier he describes how he felt "relieved" in the days after they occurred. Beynon describes a Crowley haunted by the figure of Jack the Ripper, who not only wrote many poems and essays about him, but even came into contact with Walter Sickert, who was suspected of being Jack the Ripper. Beynon states that he based Jack the Ripper's crimes as a source of inspiration, for his own crimes years later. In Crowley's diaries we find that he was convinced that the places of the five murders committed by Jack the Ripper in Whitechapel in 1888 (the year of the founding of the Golden Dawn), formed a pentagram, a symbol of great importance in the mystery schools since antiquity, but also connected to the practice of Satanism, as well as Freemasonry. Crowley also believed that the murders of Jack the Ripper would provide him the special powers he needed, including invisibility, and in that period he practiced experiments in public.

For Crowleyan followers, these truths are considered uncomfortable and therefore are strongly denied, even today, they often promote the erroneous interpretations of Crowleyan thinking and his “eccentric” ways, but remember that these sacrifices are performed to meet an evil Egregore, which aids the Ordo Templi Orientis, and other Crowleyan sects in a demonic mission to promote the Kingdom of the Antichrist. Aleister in fact died in the grips of his addiction to heroin on December 1st, 1947, while the O.T.O. will be gradually absorbed in all its emanations by American military intelligence for a much larger project, piloted by the elite, and certain branches of Freemasonry, and the Illuminati, connected to mind control and mass manipulation. (FIGS. 83, 84, 85)

For this reason, at the end of the 1960s and the first half of the 70s, several particularly diabolical films came out that shocked a whole generation and were introduced by the dark side into the collective consciousness. Three of them have been described in America as “Satanic blockbusters:” Rosemary’s Baby, 1968; The Exorcist, 1973; and The Omen, 1976; as well as dozens of smaller films of the same style. Surely the three I just mentioned were the more successful, and terrorized the masses starting with The Exorcist, which is clearly inspired by the infamous Jesuits. The influence of the Society of Jesus in the art of propaganda is massive and not understood by the average person. However, many New Age and satanic sects that originated from the Theosophical milieu are under Jesuit influence. A key element in the movie The Exorcist is definitely the figure of the exorcist/archeologist Father Lankester Merrin SJ, a distinguished Jesuit played by Max von Sydow, who in the first scene of the film finds himself in the desert in the North of Iraq, where he discovers a strange amulet. Let us dwell on this very scene because beyond the fictional film, these ancient relics can have a supernatural power and a specific demonic quality highly regarded by the Illuminati. ²⁸

In the movie The Exorcist, power is derived from a relic linked to the ancient Assyrian Babylonian demon called Pazuzu, the king of air, and in some religious sects is interpreted as Satan. Pazuzu is represented as a man with a monstrous face in the shape of a jackal with wings. Pazuzu was invoked to protect pregnant women from evil spirits—as, for example Lamashtu, his eternal rival who is the origin for the biblical Lilith, kidnapper of children. But it is also the wind demon, which brings death by hypothermia and wind destruction. In the follow-up film Exorcist II: The Heretic 1977, Pazuzu is represented as the lord of the locusts, which brings destruction on crops. Eric Marple, in his book The Dominion of Demons, believes that Pazuzu spreads diseases with his breath. And William Woods in The History of the Demon says: “In Mesopotamia the horned demon, Pazuzu, rode the winds carrying malaria. ... By emphasizing its destructive role of Lord of fever and the plague.”

In 2008, Her Majesty the Queen of England gave permission for one of her Crown Estate buildings in The Mall, the main road to Buckingham Palace, to be home for a statue of Pazuzu, which portrays what is the premiere effigy of evil from ancient Iraq.

FIG. 86 – The statue of Pazuzu by Italian artist Roberto Cuoghi during and after installation on the “Nash House” in the road leading to Buckingham Palace, within the legendary area called The Mall.

Italian artist Roberto Cuoghi’s sculpture of the god Pazuzu was hoisted on to the roof of London’s Institute of Contemporary Arts (ICA). (FIG. 86)

The statue was craned into place on the roof of the “Nash House,” a building that is part of Carlton House Terrace, built by John Nash, who was also responsible for Buckingham Palace, Trafalgar Square and Marble Arch to name a few, and is home to the aforementioned Institute of Contemporary Arts. The entire building is of course personal property of the Monarchy, so this monstrosity obviously had to have Royal backing. The face of Pazuzu is scary, the Chinese dragons also have the same snarling face, but that does not necessarily mean that they are cruel. The role of Pazuzu however is negative. It was thought the air, with the wind, often brought diseases, which were once believed to be the work of evil spirits, and consequently even death.

Many deities associated with storms are also associated with fertility and change, and not only with destruction. An interesting figure associated to air is the Genius, in Arab-Persian mythology called the ǧinnī (Jinn). The best-known of these Jinn is the genie in Aladdin’s fairy tale, and the magic lamp.²⁹ The presence of air creatures is not lacking even in classical Greek culture. In this context, this element does not intervene actively in the creation of man, but, like all the other elemental forces is represented by a god, that personifies and dominates. In this case it is Aeolus, the legendary son of Poseidon and Arne (or Melanippa) that was commissioned by Zeus to keep control of the winds, which were released in the past causing the detachment of Sicily from the mainland. Aeolus kept safe in a bottle hidden in a cave in Lipari, an island that is part of a volcanic archipelago, made up of seven islands placed in front of the upper part of Sicily. The same Lipari, Vulcano, Stromboli, Panarea, Salina, Alicudi and Filicudi. A cluster of islands denominated Aeolian, from which the god Aeolus took his name, and is where part of my family comes from.

The Zagami’s from Lipari, like other inhabitants of these magical islands, are said to have descended from the same god Aeolus, who gave to his descendants the gift of manipulating the winds by using prayers secretly transmitted from father to son. Aeolus, like Pazuzu, is a god from a divine race, a breed that originates in the extraterrestrial and extradimensional realm, with special powers over the elements. Last but not least, Pazuzu is a member of the Annunaki, a revered race not only by the Sumerians, but by the elite of the Illuminati, who are related by blood affinity with these gods, which over the centuries and millennia have become a kind of karmic and spiritual affinity. It is possible they helped me rise in ranks within the world of the Illuminati and Freemasonry.

Domizio, Monte Carlo, and the Grand Lodge

I

In 2006, I exposed the existence of the Monte Carlo Lodge of the P2, which closed down a couple of years later due to my revelations. This led to the consecration of a new Grand Lodge. It’s fair to say that Freemasonry in Monaco had been lowkey for a number of years following its conditional acceptance by the Monégasque authorities in the first half of the twentieth century. However the Port of Hercules Lodge was formed in 1924 under the English Constitution. Many Monégasques wished to become Freemasons and sought membership outside the principality. In more recent years, three lodges were formed under the German Constitution, but it became apparent that the Monégasques, who had joined lodges in France, would like one of their own. At that point the first steps were taken to establish a Grand Lodge in Monaco, and this meticulous planning came to fruition in 2011, on the 19th of February in Monte Carlo, when the Grande Loge Nationale Régulière de la Principauté de Monaco was formed by seven lodges, one formerly meeting under the English Constitution and three each under the German and French.

The consecrating officer was Pro Grand Master, Peter Lowndes, assisted by the Grand Master of the United Grand Lodge of Germany, Rüdiger Templin, as Senior Warden; and the Past Grand Master of the National Grand Lodge of France, Jean-Charles Foellner, as Junior Warden. The ceremony was directed by Oliver Lodge (Grand Director of Ceremonies) with the help of Nick Bosanquet and Sebastian Madden (Deputy Grand Directors of Ceremonies) and Malcolm Brooks (Grand Tyler). The team from UGLE also included Nigel Brown (Grand Secretary), Alan Englefield (Grand Chancellor), Reverend Dr John Railton (Grand Chaplain) and Ron Cayless (Grand Organist). The consecration ceremony proceeded without a hitch, and included the unveiling of the lodge boards, the familiar scriptural readings from the Bible, the symbolic use of corn, wine and oil, and the censing of the lodge and its officers. It was conducted almost entirely in English, but the Rulers-designate took their obligations in their own languages. Jean-Pierre Pastor was installed as the first Grand Master, and he then appointed and installed Claude Boisson as Deputy Grand Master, and Rex Thorne, Knut Schwieger, Renato Boeri and John Lonczynski as Assistant Grand Masters. Other Grand Lodges were represented by more than a hundred delegates and many presented gifts to the newly installed Grand Master, including a magnificent ceremonial sword from the United Grand Lodge of England. The new Grand Master appointed and installed his officers, before the UGLE team withdrew, leaving the Grand Master and his new team to complete essential business. Monaco's Grand Lodge had been launched in splendid style but soon after it was infiltrated by the now exBrothers of the P2 lead by Ezio Giunchiglia and his protégée Domizio Cipriani, the prior of MONACO of the Ordo Supremus Militari Templi Hierosolimitani O. S. M. T. H. (FIG. 87) Cipriani is a strange character, and he makes some interesting revelations in the book Templar Order in line with what we all know about the Illuminati and their "alien" connections. Cipriani mentions Tutankhamun in his research: "The Dog Star, Sirius, was the location of intelligent beings who visited the Earth in ages past and taught humanity the sacred alchemical traditions preserved in the Egyptian mysteries. It is said that Tut ankhamun's sister named 'Scotland,' in order to escape the conspiracy against them, bringing to Scotland their knowledge hidden in her DNA."

An interesting revelation for the author of this book, a descendant of the Lyon family (now BowesLyon) Earls of Strathmore and descendants of the King of Scotland which traditionally hid a terrible secret that was revealed only to the male descendants on their twentyfirst birthday. Nobody knows what the secret is or how old it is, because the tradition eventually died out, but when a former gardener of the 14th Earl of Strathmore and Kinghorne was questioned about it by the granddaughter of the Earl, he simply replied: “you are lucky not to know it, and you’ll never know it, because otherwise you’d be the unhappiest of women.” For the first time in 1904, the XIII Count Claude Bowes-Lyon, at twenty-one, publicly admitted the existence of a terrible secret to his friend stating: “If you only knew the nature of our secret it would throw you on your knees and you would thank God to be immune.” So what was this secret? Perhaps the fact that they descended from the Annunaki, and Tutankhamun’s sister named Meritaten whose nickname was “Scotland” could be the answer. Lorraine Evans from CarlaNaylan Website writes: “A medieval manuscript called the Scotichronicon, or Chronicles of the Scots, written in AD 1435 by a monk named Walter Bower, gives the following legend about the origin of the Scots: In ancient times Scota, the daughter of a pharaoh, left Egypt with her husband Gaythelos and a large following. For they had heard of the disasters that were going to come upon Egypt, and so through the instructions of the gods they fled from certain plagues that were to come. They took to the sea, entrusting themselves to the guidance of the gods. After sailing in this way for many days over the sea with troubled minds, they were finally glad to put their boats at a certain shore because of bad weather. ’The manuscript goes on to say that the Egyptians settled in what is now Scotland, and were later chased out by the local population and moved to Ireland, where they merged with an Irish tribe and became known as the Scotti. They became High Kings of Ireland, and eventually re-invaded and re-conquered Scotland, which gains its name from their founding princess, Scota.’”

Franz Bardon, the 99 lodges, and Adolf Hitler

n this chapter devoted to the “magical world of the Illuminati” I would like to introduce to you Franz Bardon, (FIG. 88) a lesser-known figure of the vastly dis cussed esoteric side of Nazism . Some time ago I had a discussion about Franz Bardon with my friend Sean Stone from RT (also a Freemason). I later decided to dedicate a few lines in my book about his work, to clear up a few points on this mysterious member of the occult world. He was born in Sudetenland, now Czech Republic, near Troppau in 1909, and died in 1958, while he was in police custody in the then Soviet Czechoslovakia. His mother said that Bardon had always been a strange figure from the time of inception. He was born dead and after numerous attempts to resuscitate him the midwife was eventually able to return him to life. He was the son of a mystic named Viktor, a disciple of theosophist Karl Weinfurter, founder in 1891 with Gustav Meyrink of the Lodge of the Blue Star in Prague. The Theosophist influence never abandoned Bardon, and this is present as a constant reminder, in his writings. Between the 1920s and '30s he became known in Germany as a magician and illusionist in popular shows, perhaps in the wake of the success achieved by the renowned illusionist Erik Jan Hanussen. He traveled frequently between Prague, Austria and Germany, where he gained most of his knowledge in the esoteric field, mainly in the Illuminati groups of Friedrich W. Quintscher and Franz Sattler, the first was influenced by the teachings of Pascal Beverly Randolph and by the Ordo Templi Orientis.

Ms. Otta Votavova, former disciple of Weinfurter, and faithful secretary to Bardon, had the task of transcribing his books that were dictated to her by tape recorder, which seems to be partly responsible for the spread of improbable, legendary news on Bardon. This info is still promoted by the Theosophical group that holds the commercial rights of his books, and is firmly in the hands of the elite. For reasons that escape me, Votavova created a legend using supposed links between Adolf Hitler, and the esoteric group of Friedrich W. Quintscher and Franz Bardon. Mr. Bardon was promoted as the most important of the two by Votavova, who reported that the Führer himself gave important positions in the Third Reich in exchange for Bardon's magical collaboration during the war. Bardon apparently refused, despite being horribly tortured. True or false, Bardon wound up in a concentration camp, and was able to escape, thanks to an allied bombing. Votavova wrote a galloping fantasy about Quintscher that is not totally correct. Her biggest counterfeit was to identify the Quintscher group (which for some researchers was actually a branch of the O.T.O.), with the supposed Der Freimaurer Orden des Goldenen Centuriums (F.O.G.C.), a mysterious and secret illuminati sect linked to Bardon, that she reported was a brotherhood of 99 Lodges with 99 members each, devoted to black magical practices. Its existence would be historically proven between 1840 and 1933, and had Adolf Hitler himself as a member. I have not been able to ascertain the validity of such allegations. Some people, even students who have tested and verified the efficiency of Bardon's system, hold the view that this detail of Bardon's life was likely a fabrication created by the over-zealous Oti Votavova. In some ways, it does not really matter whether the story is true or not. But, if we deny this story as fanciful, then we are also closing ourselves off to one of the few pieces of information that we have about Bardon's magical career. Likewise, if we deny this story, then we no longer have a viable explanation for how the hell Franz Bardon became such an accomplished magus. The task had been given to provide an alternative means to Bardon's meteoric and youthful rise to a mastery of magic. Bardon, for some, appears to have been a normal initiate, but for others he certainly was not. The most sure and direct approach is to try and identify who Bardon's "superiors" could have been, therefore who he learned from. I have heard some of the most fantastic stories, many of them less believable than even those legends of Bardon's magical powers. According to these people, without verification, Bardon was a member of virtually every occult Order which was operating in Germany at that time. Some of them care little for the factual dates of Bardon's development, attributing his membership to Orders which are part of the Illuminati network, and are difficult to research in a serious way.

So conspiracy theories suggest he was even a member of the F.O.G.C. Lodge, that was of course villanized in his attempted biography, Frabatto the Magician. He was a Mason, he was an Anti-Mason, he was a Rosicrucian, he was a Satanist, a Pagan, a Sex-Magic addict. Without direct references to Quintscher, Votavova wrote, pretending to be Bardon, that this brotherhood possessed an extraordinary electronic machine called The Tepaphon, that was able to kill at a distance, using electro-magical currents. The son of Quintscher declared to Tegtmeier that this machine, whose real name was simply Tapa, in fact existed and had been invented precisely by his father, and was simply "an electrical device for remote magical manipulations having as target the photograph of a person." This exaggeration by Votavova has some basis in reality. The son of Quintscher always declared to Tegtmeier to have a reliable witness that told him that when Franz Bardon, viewed the manuscript of Frabatto the Magician he became so unwell that he definitely forbade the future publication. Did he get upset because of too many revelations? Or too much rubbish?

The alleged link between Hitler and Bardon, however, cannot be denied after a photographic comparison, recently proposed by a French scholar known as Evisul, which showed that Bardon could have even belonged to the Nazi Party, considering the similarity of the symbols on the lapels of the jackets of both Bardon and Hitler. When Bardon returned to his country of origin after the war, he became known as a healer and practitioner of alternative medicine, while officially he played the role of handwriting expert. He also had relationships with people behind the Iron Curtain, like Mrs. Maria Pravica of Graz, who had also been a disciple of Weinfurter, and it was she who first spread in the West, the writings of Franz Bardon. She often traveled to Prague, where Bardon met members of the mystical group who followed Weinfurter known as Master Arion. Here Bardon, in the kitchen of his apartment, evoked the entities mentioned later in one of his books. He used to draw in the air with his hand the seals of the entities, which gave rise to a series of more spiritualistic phenomena for this transcendent character. During an evocation, Bardon rolled up his eyes and entered into a semiconscious state. The exercises were practiced alone, which seems less esoteric and ascetic, and closer to the practices of a faker. These magical practices eventually brought the secret police of the Communist regime to imprison him in 1958. During his months in prison, his health condition worsened (he suffered from pancreatitis), and died in the hospital. His death gave rise to another legend, where he committed suicide in prison to avoid being sent to Russia, where the KGB was very interested in the paranormal phenomena he was able to manifest, and where he would have undergone innumerable and exhausting experiments. The seals of the Entities and description were derived in part by the teaching of his friend, the previously mentioned Quintscher Friedrich Wilhelm (1893 – 1945), who was an enthusiast and Crowley supporter, and a member of the O.T.O. who obtained them in 1931 with the help of Joseph Schuster, a medium known as Silius. The well-known German occultist Adolf Hemberger, known as Klingsor, had indeed found among the papers Quintscher left, a manuscript with the “František Bardon” header, proof that Bardon received loan notes from Quintscher, who was obviously in contact with Bardon. Quintscher was among the most influential personalities of an Illuminati group called the “Order of Mental Builders,” the core of which was magic-psychic-evocation and sexual practices that demonstrate the infatuation of Quintscher with this O.T.O. style.

According to a report by the usual Swiss scholar Peter König (Das O.T.O. Phänomen, 100 Jahre und ihre Magische Geheimbünde Protagonisten vom 1895-1994), in the 1930s Bardon wrote to Aleister Crowley to ask his permission to translate into the Czech language, the book Magick Theory and Practice. Bardon’s unpublished correspondence attempting to connect with one of the most legendary and controversial figures of the Illuminati, is currently held by an Austrian scholar, writes König. All the important objects and documents seized at the time of his final arrest by the Communists, including the 960 books that he had—was never returned to the family, said his wife.

His unpublished works could be in the secret archives of the KGB. Finally, his body was exhumed for a second autopsy, and the police forced the family to give notice of his death. His tomb can be seen in the cemetery of Opava, a city in the northern Czech Republic on the river Opava. Here is the original list of his works, including the last, controversial one partly produced by his secretary Otti Votavova:

Der Weg zum Wahren Adepten . 1^a ed. 1956, Herman Bauer.

Die Praxis der Magischen Evokation 1^a ed. 1956, Herman Bauer. Der Schluessel zur Wahren Qabalah 1^a ed. 1957, Herman Bauer.

Frabato: Ein Okkulter Roman 1^a ed. 1979, Herman Bauer.

The works of Franz Bardon have not been published in their entirety, and there are many obscure points, such as his likely membership in a sect called H'abrat zerech or boh'er (Descendants of the Primordial Light), present in Prague. They did not practice Judaism, but used Jewish as their sacred language, for the invocations and ceremonies, to remedy the alleged initiatic deficiencies present in the Western languages. A fact that would explain much of Bardon statements about the Kabbala. Examining the comparative characteristics of the entities he used, their names, and their seals, makes you seriously think that these entities don't come from a different planetary sphere but only from the astral plane of Earth. We find them in a kind of jigsaw puzzle of entities present both in the Upper and in the Lower realm, ready to be dominated and evoked, by the magician, as an intermediary for certain elemental spirits, gnomes, Ondine, Salamanders and other seemingly alien beings, close to us, and proof of his trust in black magic. Important demonic entities: Aschmunadai (Asmodeus), Lilitha (Lilith), and Asamarc (Asamarac) are present in his work.

It's obvious that Bardon is card shuffling and playing with dark forces. Bardon's inconsistencies aside, he is yet another figure of the dark side of the Illuminati, who operated in the shadow of Crowley. The influence of Aleister Crowley in contemporary magic movements clearly began a long time ago, even before the start of what we now call "neo-paganism," that in recent times is experiencing a colossal acceleration. Even in my personal experience over the past eleven years, I have noticed a growth of interest in the esoteric, new religious cults, Freemasonry, and everything that revolves around the Illu

minati and the neo-paganism, in general. I not only noticed an increase in the programs on TV, magazines, specialty stores, but also the variety of types of people who approach me in relation to these topics. Until a few years ago, if you entered an esoteric shop, the average customer that you met would have strictly respected the cliché Tarot reading girls with a Wiccan look, or the long-haired guy dressed in black from the O.T.O. Today we find either your next door neighbor who is interested in naturopathy, or the student who practices martial arts and loves yoga and meditation, plus all kinds of people that have a normal life, but are getting sucked in, little by little, in one way or another, into the New Age trap that opens up the world of occultism and magick with a K, the one Crowley promoted. In this context, Edward Alexander Crowley better known as Aleister Crowley was one of the figures, if not the key figure, conducting this change, that the Illuminati crafted in the last decades, to better control humanity. All this of course, before the dramatic turning point in 2020, and what might be the ultimate war and for many the possible rise of His Imperial Majesty Jesus Christ the Messiah.

Crowley lived and practiced his magic in a period when the Illuminati had already begun the process of transformation of society and spirituality towards the New Age, that coincided with a rebirth of the occult on a massive scale, that also saw the involvement of Franz Bardon. Long before him, there was Éliphas Lévi, born Alphonse Louis Constant (1810 –1875), a French occult author and ceremonial magician who Crowley is said to be the reincarnation. Levi was a character that had to some extent, reshaped magic and the occult, although it was on a very limited scope based only on medieval traditions. It was Levi who coined the term “occult,” because he already felt the need to start talking about the occult sciences in a more modern and specific way. Another important figure was a contemporary of Crowley named James Frazer, the author of the well-known book The Golden Bough: A Study in Magic and Religion (1915). He was not an occultist, but in his monumental work, he is now recognized as the first true anthropologist. With this book, all religions and cults of the present and the past are no longer of interest, except to the individual who practices them. You can study and compare, draw your own conclusions, and so on. This method will be a fundamental part of Crowley’s work, proving himself to be superior to all those who had preceded him. In this climate of a more analytical approach to the spiritual life of man, we find the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn, the first Illuminati group Crowley joined. This order, which we know was founded at the end of the year 800, was based on occult aspects which included the Kabbalah, alchemy, tarot, and all the major currents of the Hermetic thought. It was a comprehensive doctrine that pleased Crowley, and was the pillar of his studies. In turn he created an even broader and more analytical approach for his own work, and the future work of the O.T.O. branches he took over from Theodor Reuss. The approach to magic, Science and Psychology in Crowley's Scientific Illuminism, was both simple and brilliant for those who appreciate the dark side of the Illuminati and Freemasonry, so it was ideal for Crowley's O.T.O. system. He took the goal of all religions and mystery schools of the world, which were to spiritually elevate man, and combined the widest variety of possible schools of thought, alchemy, medieval magic, Christian mysticism, yoga, and more. He brought everything together in twentieth century Europe, doing the only thing that made sense to do in a society that lived in the middle of the Industrial Revolution, applying the scientific method of Weishaupt's pragmatic Illuminati, in a simple and thus effective way for his own evil goals. He realized, studying virtually all the cults on the face of the earth, that beyond the differences in form, they had much in common, all deriving from a common source, that of the Secret Chiefs or Invisible Masters. The use of symbols to direct the thinking towards an idea, meditation (or prayer, depending on the cult), are used to connect with the divine. In short, all the spiritual exercises of all religions, including those of the Jesuit Ignatius of Loyola, so important for the Illuminati for his meditative practices, have a lot of common points. He put together the best of each practice, and created a new system.

Crowley practiced on himself various spiritual exercises, experiencing firsthand, and constantly throughout his life. He put into writing all the magical or spiritual proceedings, without the use of symbolism, but with a language that was clear to everyone, allowing others to implement those same practices. He made all this public with his books, inviting everyone not to simply repeat its practices, but to follow his methods, and apply them to their own practices. Crowley was one of the first in Europe to import Yoga, and to use discipline applied to simple experimental methodology within the occult realm. The scheme was simple—train your mind to focus on a single thought for a long period of time, and focus your will until you obtain it. In the process, taking note of the physical and environmental conditions that surround you, trying different positions, recording the difficulties encountered, and the results achieved. You must re-read everything, to deduce what are the best conditions for the best results. The next time you change the position, time of day or any other factor, until the technique used is perfected. The basis of his work was how he mixed medieval magic and hidden grimoires with tantra, and the most diverse techniques from a variety of places and traditions brought to Europe in the twentieth century. Crowley practiced “Magick” for a lifetime, acquiring every year new techniques, writing new books, but the real turning point in his life was in 1904, when he became the “Prophet” of his new religion based on Will. It was that same Will that helped Adolf Hitler in his nefarious mission born in the occult world. So Ottilie von Guericke may perhaps have exaggerated with her speculations on F.O.G.C. and the Franz Bardon connection, especially in regards to the alleged membership of Hitler, but no doubt both Bardon and Hitler were influenced by Aleister Crowley, and Thelema. And now let’s talk about Wicca, founded in the milieu of Aleister Crowley and the O.T.O., whose rituals are in fact often indicated by occultists as a creation by the same Crowley, and not his disciple Gerald Gardner, who would have paid Crowley to obtain certain rituals from him, in a time of deep crisis for “The Great Beast 666.” The rituals put together by Crowley suited this new neopagan movement, rituals that will end up in Gardner’s Book of Shadows, the main book of Wicca rituals.

Wicca Witchcraft: another creation of the Illuminati
W

Wicca witchcraft was not originally connected to medieval witchcraft, nor to profane acts and the typical sacrifices of Satanic sects, as it is not linked to the worship of the devil, but to neo-paganism. It has been promoted with increasing insistence from the first decades of the last century, by the various sects of the Illuminati in the nascent New Age. The term “New Age” has been used since the 1920s, first coined by the theosophist Alice Bailey, when she stayed in Ascona (Switzerland) at the Monte Verità. A place of fundamental importance for the Illuminati, as I wrote previously in relation to Carl Gustav Jung and Theodor Reuss, and defined by Massimo Introvigne of CESNUR and Pierluigi Zoccatelli as a “Sanctuary of a new religiosity that represents the prehistory of the New Age.” The New Age scene was born on Monte Verità nearly in parallel with the birth of Wicca witchcraft, both exponents of a synchronistic cocktail of diabolical proportions. Remember, those who practice low level spiritual practices such as magic and witchcraft, will always be easy prey of sorcerers and the pseudo-Illuminati. I think of the orgiastic gatherings of Wicca witches and wizards of the Ordo Templi Orientis, as I have often witnessed in Norway myself. This is because both the New Age movement and Wicca were born in the theosophical milieu that gave birth to the Ordo Templi Orientis to destroy Christianity—their ultimate goal. Authors Massimo Introvigne and to ^{WiCCa} Pierluigi Zoccatelli give this brief but significant summary about the world of New Age, that I want to show you before unveling the truth about Wicca:

Bailey began in the 1920s to use the “New Age” expression in the present sense. A few years after the death of Alice Bailey, some of her most brilliant English students— Sheena Govan (1912 – 1967), daughter of John George Govan (1861 – 1927), founder of the fundamentalist group Faith Mission, and under the guidance of an independent group of “Christian esoteric” students; Dorothy Maclean, who belonged to the Order founded by Western Sufi Pir Hazrat Inayat Khan; Peter Caddy (1917 – 1994), husband of Govan; and Eileen Combe (1917 – 2006), who became the second wife of Caddy—began an adventure that leads the most representative figures of this original group into a pilgrimage that takes them from Glastonbury, linked to the legends of the Arthurian and Celtic past of Great Britain, to Forres, in Scotland—where they manage to get hired as promoters of the tourist center at Cluny Hill Hotel, which they will transform into a theosophical center—and eventually went to North Scotland, in Findhorn, where in 1962 they founded a garden community. A “Global Village” and an ecological community according to the typical models of the New Age, Findhorn is also the place of meetings and messages that spouses Caddy and Maclean, along with numerous followers that flow in numerous and force to build permanent structures— thanks to the generous support of two British patrons of alternative forms of spirituality: Sir George Trevelyan (1906 – 1996) and Sir Anthony Brooke (1912 – 2011), heir to the dynasty of the “White rajah” of Sarawak and great-grandson of James Brooke (1803 – 1868)—a real-life historical figure and well-known to Italians as implacable opponent of the Salgarian fictional pirate figure Sandokan— they receive various types of “entities:” God, devas—nature spirits associated with the plants—angels, fairies and create even a “center of light” that consists of a group of Soviet political prisoners, dying or already dead, able however to communicate from the bottom of a Siberian salt mine. The fame of Findhorn grows up to spread quickly overseas and in 1962—the foundation of the same Findhor inspired the more convincing date of birth of the New Age phenomenon as we know it today—when they founded Esalen, in California, a center of meetings and seminars inspired by similar principles; and always from the United States arrives in Findhorn David Spangler, who contributes greatly to making this new reality in the Americas through the publication of the most influential manifestos of the New Age during the 1970s, thus promoting the spread and success on a global scale of a reality originally born in Europe.

This is the official history of the New Age, which was the creation of a certain branch of Occult Freemasonry and Theosophy, as I outlined in Volume I and II, which flows later into something even more open and public, that goes from neo-pagan druids to the so-called “kitchen witch.” This movement is now so widespread and was originally inspired by the dark side of the Illuminati and guys like Gerald Gardner, and the works of Aleister Crowley and Theosophy. Remember that Aleister Crowley boasted of being born in the year when Theosophy was founded, and he used the vast network of theosophy to impose its unhealthy ideas on the Ordo Templi Orientis. One can therefore safely say that Wicca generated by Gardner is certainly a byproduct of Theosophy and Crowleyanity, although its practitioners admit it only in part. Other authors who have contributed significantly to the advancement of Wicca were; Patricia Monaghan, Silver Ravenwolf and Doreen Valiente. Wicca calling themselves Wiccan, believe in deities and natural entities—primarily, a “Mother Goddess” in its various emanations just like most New Agers. Devoted to the “Mother Goddess” its neo-pagan author, a witch known as Starhawk in San Francisco, alias Miriam Simos (b. 1951) is a typical exponent of “Spiritualism Feminist” linked to that evil witch Hillary Clinton that fortunately failed in her confrontation with Donald Trump, even after a massive use of black magical rituals against him during her presidential campaign.

So fortunately black magic is not always winning lately, however Starhawk was actually listed in 2012 by the magazine Watkins’ Mind Body Spirit as one of the 100 most influential people living in the spiritual field. She writes that “the Goddess has infinite aspects and thousands of names ... she is the world and all things in it.” But in some cases Wiccans are also devoted to a “Horned God,” her husband who some say is Osiris. This thesis focused on the syncretic worship of a horned god considered central to a cult of witches whose forerunner was initially Margaret Alice Murray (1863 – 1963), an Egyptologist and British anthropologist. The Goddess and God are generally seen as personifications of the divine source of all things, that in itself can not be known or understood, but it is imminent in all creation: rocks, trees, living beings, etc. Some Wiccans have abandoned the personification in recent decades, preferring to understand the gods as mere metaphysical concepts driven by the increasing atheism also promoted by the New Age movement. Most Wiccans still accept them as personifications or emanations—the Mother Goddess is associated with the moon and called by different names (e.g. Astarte, Diana, Artemis, etc.), and at times linking her to the Holy Mary. God is instead associated with the sun, and unlike the Goddess, dies and is reborn every year. Christian author (Larson) writes:

In many ways, the Wiccans are a protest movement against those religions which accept only comprise and male leadership. The movement attracts especially those women who are looking for a form of spirituality that honors the female desire to breed, celebrate and be in a community. These groups attract the romantic that is in all people, the reverential awe that one feels in the presence of nature. They also attract those who consider the ritual an important part of worship. Wicca is a religion whose adherents usually embark on a journey with a strong desire to assert the individual and the natural world. They wish to embrace the community and creativity. The pagan system, however, strangely ends in a world apart from any understanding that links together these needs and give it value.

Having an imminent vision of the deity (i.e. the lies coincide with nature and with man), Wiccans mistakenly conclude that the Christian God is not accessible to man. The scriptures teach instead that he is not part of His creation, and it is not an impersonal force, but He is a living God who can and wants to be known personally by each. McCann, a former warlock turned Christian today, explains: “The pagans of each extraction revere nature. In fact, many individuals are attracted to Paganism as a direct result of the connection that they have with the world around them and the beauty of the world they see. This feeling of reverence towards nature leads many pagans to the conclusion that the world itself is divine. It saddens me to see how the pagans and Wiccans look at the world around them, they see in it the power of God, but rather go further and seek the Creator, look to creation itself. It’s like admiring a sculpture instead of praising he who carved it.”

Most Wiccans, given their anti-Christian origins, have an obvious and distorted idea of Christianity, which they are often at odds with, and of course tend to be the leftists of the Antichrist. They believe, for example, that the Roman Catholic Church is the Christian Church. In fact, superstitions and persecutions of the church hierarchy have nothing to do with Christianity, which for centuries have indeed persecuted themselves with ferocity. Jesus Christ is Christianity—He is the center and the whole, nothing else. This is when a true Christian belief is not the result of an obsession with the dogmas and rites of different institutions and religious denominations, but is the tangible reality of a personal encounter with the living God; a new life accessible to any person, big or small, ignorant or educated, who wants to once again look to the One who gave Himself for our sake. The fires and inquisitions are the highlight of many books and pagan websites and neo-pagan groups. Starhawk the author speaks of nine million persecuted witches in an arc of four centuries. This idea was widespread in the 18th century by a German historian, feminist Matilda Gage. Today, historians are in agreement that the number is much lower (about 40 thousand). Robin Briggs, historian at the University of Oxford, recently highlighted that most of the persecution of witches took place between 1550 and 1630, for the most part restricted to France, Switzerland and Germany. Perhaps it would be appropriate here to recall again the hidden role of Switzerland in occult history, as they always have been dedicated to witchcraft, well before Mount Verità and the arrival of the Illuminati and the O.T.O. An examination of the documents of Briggs illustrates that typically the accusers were common citizens (often women), and that none of the people accused of witchcraft were ever associated with the practice of a pagan religion. McCann writes:

Many Wiccans do not know that they were not persecuted witches. Even another group was persecuted. Who were these people? True Christians. Over the centuries, many wicked men burst into the professing church and have been led to apostasy. True Christians have been separated from it, and are seen savagely persecuting. Those who have persecuted pagans and Christians were not Christians, but corrupt men who took advantage of every opportunity for their selfish gain. The true Christianity does not seek the evil of his neighbor, but rather to obey Christ who said: 'Love your neighbor as yourself.' ... True Christians, whose lives have been transformed from a personal experience with Jesus Christ, leave any form of violence, hatred or persecution of others. The fact that someone you define as 'Christian' or frequents a church does not automatically mean that he is a disciple of Jesus Christ, no matter how famous or in view of both. Indeed, even the Bible repeatedly warns us that many false Christians will do so to shift the shame on the Gospel of Jesus (See. 2 Pet. 2: 1-3, 2 Cor. 11:13, Gal. 2: 4, 1 John. 3:15, Phil. 3: 18,19, etc.). Meanwhile, many pagans and Wiccans tend to look to the "professing Church" for mistakes and use them as an excuse to reject what they believe to be Christianity. On this basis, unfortunately, they lack to know Jesus himself.

A little knowledge of Christianity is often the instrument practitioners as Silver Ravenwolf use to define their reality. L.P. Harvey professor emeritus of Spanish at the University of London and a fellow of King's College, London, adds that for them: "Christ was just a wise teacher, God is a human invention, and of course Satan is only a myth (remember well the many years that I myself have spent with these beliefs). it remains nothing of Christianity when it comes down to your personal beliefs that rejects the biblical message, it becomes hypocrisy even to talk about 'Christ,' since at that point is only a name as any other."

And let's talk now about what the Wiccans call "the myth of the devil" used by the occult elite to cover up their satanic roots and their evil intentions. McCann writes: "The majority of Wiccans do not believe in an entity called Satan, or the devil. Many of them argue that it is just a myth that the Christian Church has invented to frighten people. In fact, many hundreds of centuries before the Christian church, the Jews already believed in its existence. He speaks right from Genesis (the year 4004 BC), and also in the book of Job it is clearly described as an entity intelligent and malignant. Some pagans admit that there is such an entity in the world, but believe that this is just an impersonal force. Yet we know that he speaks (Job. 1: 6-2: 1-5; Matt. 4: 1-11); has a will (1 Chron. 21: 1; Luke 22:31; 1 Thess. 2:18; 2 Tim. 2:26); He knows groped (Matt. 4: 1-11; 1 Cor. 7: 5); and oppresses human beings (e.g. Acts 10:38); all of which they are certainly not attributable to a symbol or an abstract force. Throughout history, millions of people to this day have witnessed or have met the spiritual powers of evil; many of these people did not come from a Christian background, and therefore they had not been previously inculcated the concept of the devil and the spirits at his command. The truth is that the devil was not invented by the church, but it is a reality in the world today. One of his most successful deceptions is just convince people that he does not exist. This should not surprise us, since Jesus called Satan ‘the father of lies.’”

The testimony of the former black witch De Souza offers considerable food for thought on the subject. Several Wiccans are brainwashed by the idea implanted by the Illuminati sects that Wicca is itself an ancient form of pre-Christian spirituality; i.e., the direct continuation of ancient pagan fertility cults—especially in northern Europe and the British Isles—preserved over the centuries by the same witches (for this is called Wiccan “traditions”). Numerous other Wiccans recognize that Wicca refers to paganism and has modern origins. The theories on witchcraft as a continuation of the ancient pagan religions, were spread between 1921 and 1933 precisely by the said Margaret Murray, who introduced them as a historically established fact. Numerous scholars have shown, however, that the theories of Murray have no real historical basis, and that there are no connections between the Bronze Age cults and witchcraft described by Murray. Greer, Cooper, Ginzburg, and other scholars have denied that Wicca is the continuation of those cults. In 1998, professor Davis, from the department of religious studies at the University of Prince Edward Island, published a detailed critical assessment of the theological statements, anthropological and historical of the neo-pagan movement, proving that the idea of an ancient pre-Christian worship of a Mother Goddess is a myth. The same conclusion is reached in 1999, by the historian R. Hutton, renowned scholar of British pagan religions. So the whole thing is the result of a plot tailor made by occultists like Crowley and Gardner, to promote the nascent New Age that needed a witch department for their New World Order Magic. Speaking at a conference on the history of Wicca in England, the Wiccan J. Phillips commented: “In 1954, Murray’s work was still taken seriously, and she remained for several years the reference point on the subject of witchcraft for the Encyclopedia Britannica. Today of course her statements (of Murray) have been widely discredited, and she remains for us, if not a source of historical accuracy, at least a source of inspiration. ... Murray may have a faked historical veracity so that her work was published in her day.”

Nevertheless, the theories of Murray influenced many of his contemporaries, including Gerald Brosseau Gardner (1884 – 1964), who later created modern Wicca, which he called “Wica,” and was disseminating it as a form of ancient paganism as suggested by Murray. For this purpose Gardner claimed to have made contact with a coven of witches, and in particular, with the old Dorothy Clutterbuck, who he said initiated him to Wiccan rituals in 1939. Several scholars, even pagans, believe that the “old Dorothy” (which, according to the birth certificate, was just little older than Gardner) was not a witch, and probably was only used to support this fake myth of the ancient witchcraft lineage crafted by the Illuminati. The late Stewart Farrar, and another well-known Wiccan author called Gavin Bone stated that: “We believe that Aidan [Kelly] conclusions were correct; Gardnerian Wicca was created by Gardner and his high priestess; and even more, a creation of Doreen Valiente, who converted much literary material in poetry for Rites. A good example of this is, of course, ‘Charge of the Goddess,’ which in its original form is in Aradia, of Charles Godfrey Leland. Most of the Gardnerian material derived to Wicca from literature—also ‘the Triple Goddess’ was a synthesis made by Robert Graves of the traditional nine Greek and Roman goddesses.”

The Wiccan T. Paajanen, curator of an internet portal on Wicca, said: “Many Wiccans—usually novices—often talk about the ancient origins of Wicca, or as Wicca has been practiced for thousands of years. In 1954, Gerald Gardner published the first book on Wicca, Witchcraft Today. Many today are not convinced of Gardner’s claims, and believe that his writings were more his invention than the true and ancient practices handed down for generations. Gardner’s interests in occultism and ceremonial magic gave him a lot of basic material to work with. Although Wicca may contain ideas and concepts based on the ancient cults, modern wicca was born not before the 1950s.” the Wiccans Farrar and Bone point out that: “It is important to remember that the traces of a ‘fake story’ abound. For example, for many years Alex Sanders claimed it to have been started by his grandmother. A bit as in the case of the New Forest coven of Gardner.” Lady Sheba published in her own Book of Shadows: “(a typically Gardnerian term) in the 1980s, it was almost entirely a Gardnerian Book, but—as often happens—she said that she had been handed it down from her grandmother.” New Age permits such scams unfortunately.

Gardner drew from the most diverse forms of occultism, from the mysteries of Freemasonry and the Rosicrucians (he was a member of both groups), from Theosophy, ritual and sexual magic, from various esoteric texts (like the Key of Solomon), and doctrines of both Eastern and Asian religious occult practices. Relying on them, Gardner introduced in Wicca concepts such as reincarnation and ceremonial nudism (Gardner had become a convinced nudist after a trip to Ceylon). It was based particularly on the doctrines of his occultist friend Aleister Crowley, who called himself “The Great Beast,” or “The Antichrist,” and of course “The most evil man in the world.” In a book he wrote in 1910 entitled The World’s Tragedy, he made a statement that reflected his life’s goal: “That religion they call Christianity; the devil they honour they call God. I accept these definitions, as a poet must do, if he is to be at all intelligible to his age, and it is their God and their religion that I hate and will destroy.”³¹

Aleister Crowley went on to write dozens of books that would help him achieve his stated goal—the destruction of the Christian faith. Already at the time of his first book on witchcraft, Gerald Gardner was affiliated to Crowley’s Ordo Templi Orientis. In his book High Magic’s Aid (1949), published by London’s Atlantis Bookshop based at 49 Museum Street in London, founded in 1922 by Michael Houghton, a Jewish immigrant and occultist with a passion for the mysteries and poetry, Gardner placed in the opening page next to the pseudonym “Scire” the degree held by himself in Crowley’s Order. (FIG. 89) No wonder this address on Museum Street is still the secret base of the O.T.O. in London. As Geraldine Beskin, an old acquaintance of mine and longtime owner of Atlantis Bookshop once said, “it was founded by magicians for magicians.” Geraldine’s daughter was, at least during my time in London, engaged to one of the driving forces of the O.T.O. in the UK, Stephen Schofield, at one time a member of my lodge of the Fraternitas Rosicruciana Antiqua in London, and a Freemason present at my initiation in the United Grand Lodge of England. Some of the most well-known occultists and witches from the Illuminati have passed through the doors of Atlantis Bookshop; including Aleister Crowley, Gerald Gardner, Dion Fortune, W.B. Yeats and so many more.

The researcher and journalist Federica Serra writes: “Different personalities from the Wiccan scene such as Farrar and Valiente recognize the close link between Crowley and Gardnerian rituals, but I want to emphasize that ‘Crowley was not a Satanist.’ It would be more correct to say that Crowley was not definable ‘technically’ as a Satanist; in fact, he was deeply attached to the satanic symbolism. Crowley did not just practice ceremonial magic. The ceremonial magic of the Golden Dawn included not only the kabbalah and the medieval grimoires, but also Egyptian gods, Greek gods, and yoga. Crowley emphasized the Egyptians elements, belittled as ‘Christian,’ and there he added a number of others—for example, the invocations to Satan in L. Samekh, in addition to the constant references to himself as the ‘Beast 666’ and other similar statements.”³²

31 Aleister Crowley, The World’s Tragedy, pp. xxviii-xxxii (preface).

“Not a Satanist” is a remark Serra made as part of the occult establishment and she will never admit her Master was a full-on Satanist as others did. Crowley’s literary executor and biographer, John Symonds, wrote: “Crowley’s philosophy takes a bit from here and a bit from there ... but ... he was more a Satanist than anything else. ‘I serve my great Master Satan,’ he wrote in one of his franker confessions, ‘and that august Council composed of Beelzebub, Lucifuge Asmodeus, Belphegor, Baal, Adrammelech, Lilith and Nahema.’”

No matter if Crowley asserted that Satan was an invention of the Blacks Brothers and represented essentially the “independent man” and “God himself,” Crowley was a denier of God and voted himself to a sophisticated use of lies, worthy of Satan, to whom Crowley had devoted his life, like all those who follow the dark side of the Illuminati. Crowley’s attitude was in line with the literary tradition of the Satanic 19th century, where we find the most sophisticated form of Satanism. The name Satan is understood also as “ironic,” and Crowley was always very ironic. Still others argue that Crowley’s Satanic symbolism can be reinterpreted and read in pagan terms, but this is all too true for many forms of Satanism found in the elite of the New World Order. Gardner met Crowley in 1946 through Arnold Crowther. Becoming a member of both the O.T.O. and the A.∴A.∴, Gardner commissioned rituals for his Book of Shadows (the book of Wicca rituals) to Crowley who was in desperate need of money after his well-known legal troubles. Before the beginning of the last century there is no historical evidence of this book. Alex Sanders, founder of the Alexandrian tradition of Wicca, and a tool of the Illuminati said: “The Book of Shadows is one of the most controversial books in modern witchcraft. Many modern witches believe that parts of it have been adapted from the rituals of the Golden Dawn, which was formed in 1888 by MacGregor Mathers, Westcott, and Woodman. Others believe that there are parts added by Aleister Crowley and Dion Furtune and Francis King, author

32 Aa.Vv., La stregoneria Wicca origini della wicca e del neopaganesimo to WiCCa of Ritual Magic in England, who claims to have read the letters of Gerald Gardner, in which he commissioned Aleister Crowley to produce parts of the Book of Shadows.”

So Bingo! And the case solved once and for all—Wiccan is a creation of Aleister Crowley—full stop! In order to confirm this, it is also interesting to note that in the Wiccan Rede, there is a statement that provides the key moral system in the Neopagan religion of Wicca, and in their only rule of life. They believe that there is no absolute moral rule binding, it is basically “do what you want, without doing harm to anyone.” And the phrase “Do what thou wilt” was Crowley’s only law (note the sharp contrast with the words of Jesus, which teaches that the whole of the law is “Love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, with all your strength, with all your mind, and your neighbor as yourself ”). Priestess Doreen Valiente recognized that “The Crowley influence was very evident in rituals” (the words of the Wiccan third degree for example are practically equal to the relevant passage from the Gnostic Mass of Mr. Crowley. Gardner explained that this was due to the fact that the rituals “handed down” were so fragmented as to be unusable, and so he was forced to supplement them with other materials. Later, Valiente claimed to have persuaded Gardner to replace part of Crowley’s texts with other mainly drawn from Aradia, or the Gospel of the Witches a book composed by the American folklorist Charles Godfrey Leland (1824 – 1903) that was published in 1899. Sadly, from the first paragraph a glimpse of this book shows its affiliations of its doctrine to Lucifer: “Diana greatly loved her brother, the god. ... Lucifer who was very proud of her beauty, and who for his pride was driven from Paradise” (the biblical references, albeit distorted, are undeniable here). The remaining elements of the Thelemic doctrine are in any case sufficient to give Crowley a decisive role in the creation of Wiccan rituals.³³ We must also say that influential authors such as Murray, Leland and Frazer, were based on the work La Sorciere, by Jules Michelet. Among the neo-pagans and the Illuminati of today, Michelet’s influence is almost always unspoken, probably due to the fact that La Sorciere is a work of literary Satanism, in which Satan and medieval witches are enhanced passionately, and provided the basis for the current Satanic ideology promoted by the Illuminati sects of the occult elite; basically a parody of the Catholic mass secretly practiced to this day in the heart of the Vatican.

In many Wiccan traditions there is the concept of “Guardians,” taken from the Golden Dawn. Although the concept varies from tradition to tradition, Raven Grimassi (born in 1951), stage name of a famous Italian-American Wiccan author, who has published a number of books on witchcraft and neo-paganism has described them as a “an ancient race beyond the physical form,” that assist and watch over Wiccans during their magical practices. Grimassi linked them directly to the “power of the air” mentioned in the Bible. The New English Bible calls him “commander of the spiritual powers of the air now at work among God’s rebel subjects.” The “prince of the air” is Satan working on what he wants in those who do not submit to God and do not stand up to the devil, causing them to commit all sorts of sins. That’s why he is called “the prince of the power of the air, of the spirit that is now working in the sons of disobedience”

(Ephesians 2: 2). The reason why men are slaves of all sorts of vices and sins is that there is a spirit or rather as I see it an evil alien called Satan, which stops their evolution. Grimassi also cites The Book of Enoch, where they are referred to as “the rebellious angels that followed the adversary in its war.”

Well Gardnerian tradition is just another form of devotion to Fallen Angels and their forces. These extra-biblical writings explained evil in terms of revolt, and Wiccans are in their own minds rebelling to the restraints of Christianity . Gardner’s work influenced Alex Sanders, Sybil Leek, Raymond and Rosemary Buckland, in addition to Farrar, Cunningham, etc. —Who made themselves spokesmen and further modified the teachings to satisfy the growing Wicca frenzy. Sybil Leek, for example, modified Gardnerian rituals and teachings, and popularized her own version of neo-pagan witchcraft, making converts in the United States in the 1960s (the Bucklands however remain the main architects of the spread of Gardnerian Witchcraft in the U.S.) In the same period, Alex Sanders gave birth to the Alexandrian tradition, combining the ideas Gardnerian, and many occult pagan elements from the Kabbalah, from the Golden Dawn, and other occult Illuminati doctrines cleverly filtered for the average New Age foolish player. Between the 1960s and 1980s, behind the input of the nascent New Age, dozens of new Wicca traditions were created. Generally they were built from folkloric elements, or the Celtic paganism (such as the Celtic tradition or faerie), kabbalah, Druidism, and naturalism, all added to medieval witchcraft. Today, there are many congregations inspired by different traditions, but their origins can ultimately be traced to the writings of the Gardnerians. Politically Wiccans have encountered opposition from some politicians and Christian organizations in the USA, including former president of the United States George W. Bush, who stated once that he did not believe Wicca to be a religion. If you thought only Hillary supporters were witches, you were wrong, as Bernie Sanders has even more supporters amongst Wicca witches. A Wiccan ceremony was even advertised on a “Sanders volunteer website, calling on Wiccans, pagans, goddess worshipers, atheists or anyone who is spiritually open-minded to engage with a community of like-minded individuals.”³⁴

However it’s important to revisit information relayed by Clinton insider Larry Nichols in 2015, where he claimed Hillary regularly attended witch gatherings during Bill’s presidency. In a mini-documentary shot exclusively by my friends at InfoWars dubbed “The New Clinton Chronicles,” Nichols commented on Hillary’s fascination and participation with the Satanic occult. Nichols recounted to InfoWars a conversation he had with Bill Clinton, who told him Hillary was part of a witch’s coven that met in California. “I know nothing about the Bohemian Grove with Bill,” Nichols told InfoWars. “I know about once a month Hillary would go out to Los Angeles. And she did it so regular that it became a bit of an issue ... ‘Why’s she always going?’ Bill told me that she was going out there, she and a group of women, and she would be a part of a witch’s church. Man, when Bill told me that, you could have hit me with a baseball bat. I tried to point out to him, ‘Do you realize what would happen if that got out?’ Of course my job was to make sure it didn’t get out.”³⁵

Hillary could have been the first Wiccan in the White House but fortunately Donald J. Trump stopped her, that why our new president needs all our prayers to protect him constantly from these evil doers and their witchcraft.

Chapter V

Espionage, Freemasonry and Satanism in the Vatican

II

Father Malachi Martin, a Jesuit who served the Mossad would like to open this chapter with a rather well-known person in the United States, the late Malachi Brendan Martin (1921 – 1999). Father

I

Martin, who I mentioned, albeit too briefly, in my book Pope Francis: The Last Pope?, became a Jesuit in 1939, and a close collaborator of Cardinal Bea under the papacy of John XXIII, and for the first phase of the papacy of Pope Paul VI. What is even more interesting and known only in intelligence circles, is that Malachi Martin was working as a liaison officer with the Israeli Mossad for the Jesuits, since his days of attending the University of Jerusalem. Gradually between 1961 and 1962, he entered into the good graces of Rabbi Abraham Heschel, particularly in light of his work as a translator for the Jesuit Cardinal Bea. He became from 1958 to 1964, the private secretary of Cardinal Augustin Bea, SJ, a key figure of the Second Vatican Council, and Jesuit agent of Zionist Freemasonry in the Vatican. In 1964, Father Malachi Martin accompanied the pope Mason Paul VI to the Holy Land, and soon afterward he left the Jesuits, (at least officially, asking to be released from the votes he had contracted with the Society of Jesus), before he launched his career as a writer and Vatican expert, full of disputes.

As for Freemason Pope Paul VI, he was a friend of Freemason Roberto Caldirola 33° ASSR, which years ago introduced me to the secrets of Montini's Masonic papacy, revealing certain truths about his old friend Pope Montini, a.k.a. Paul VI, who was to be the second homosexual pope in history (after Pope Roncalli), something that later became almost of public domain, and that apparently has made him a vulnerable subject to blackmail by liberal Freemasonry. However, guided and defended (I always hope) by the Holy Spirit, which should protect those searching for the truth, I became devoted to this mystery, after I saw with my own eyes an important document attesting the membership of Masonic Pope Montini in Caldirola's home in Zagarolo near Rome. (FIG. 90) In this brief research of mine, I stumbled several times on the works of Father Malachi Martin, and also a certain Don Luigi Villa (1918 – 2012). Perhaps he is not known in the U.S., but I can as

FIG. 90 – Pope Paul VI, born Giovanni Battista Enrico Antonio Maria Montana, makes a special dedication to 33rd degree Mason Roberto Caldirola addressing him in a typical Masonic style using the three dots. that are often found in Masonic language.

sure you he is a leading figure in the fight against evil, before, during, and after the infamous Second Vatican Ecumenical Council. Villa managed to stop the beatification of Pope Paul VI, aka Giambattista Montini. Father Malachi Martin and Don Luigi Villa are for me, two heroic and unusual priests who described, each in their own way, an uncomfortable reality, when most of the media ignored it. The truth was concealed by the fiction of his novels, in the case of Father Malachi Martin, but both of these priests, even if on different positions, were ready to question the decadence of the Church of today. Villa and his book trilogy dedicated to Pope Montini, unfortunately hard to find these days, is a truly unique work. The three volumes Paul VI: Blessed?; Paul VI: Trial of a Pope; and

The “New Church” of Paul VI; all published by the Italian independent publishing house Casa Editrice Civiltà made him a dangerous priest for the postconciliar Vatican. Despite the many difficulties and risks to his life, over the years he conducted his research with serious arguments, and exemplary documents, made public to combat the Masonic infiltration in the Vatican on behalf of Padre Pio, who commissioned his mission against Ecclesiastical Freemasonry. As Villa, and Father Malachi Martin his contemporary, made us realize quite often with their books, and specifically in this passage, one of his last works published in 1996 entitled Windswept House—A Vatican Novel, Father Malachi Martin offers a truly unprecedented insight into the Vatican for that period, and words which back them seemed like bombs for the Vatican of future Saint John Paul II:

In and of themselves, the grim fact Glacstone and Slattery had documented in their reports did not surprise the Slavic Pope. Homosexuality and Satanism were among the oldest viruses lurking in the body politic of the Church. The difference now was that homosexual and Satanist activity had attained a new status within that body politic. In certain sectors of the Church, its members had come up from the underground and claimed the right to be represented in the public forum of Church life. Their apparent acceptability to their colleagues and associates was a signal that all involved had ceased to believe in Catholic teachings. Some had beliefs so alien that effectively they could no longer be reckoned as Catholics. And yet, none wanted to quit the Church as Martin Luther had done. Nor did they intend to live somehow within the Church according to its laws and doctrine, as Erasmus had done. Suddenly it became unarguable that now, during this papacy, the Roman Catholic organization carried a permanent presence of clerics who worshipped Satan and liked it; of bishops and priests who sodomized boys and each other; of nuns who performed the “Black Rites” of Wicca and who lived in lesbian relationship within as well as outside of convent life. ... Suddenly it became clear that during this papacy the Roman Catholic Church organization had become a place where every day, including Sundays and Holy Days, acts of heresy and blasphemy and outrage and indifference were committed and permitted at holy Altars by men who had been called to be priests. Sacrilegious actions and rites were not only performed at Christ’s Altars, but had the connivance or at least the tacit permission of certain Cardinals, archbishops and bishops. Suddenly shock set in at the actual lists of prelates and priests who were involved. In total number, they were a minority— anything from one to ten percent of Church personnel. But of that minority, many occupied astoundingly high positions of rank and authority in chanceries, seminaries and universities. Appalling though it was, however, even this picture wasn't the whole cause of His Holiness' crisis. The facts that brought the Pope to a new condition of suffering were mainly two: The systematic organizational links—the network, in other words—that had been established between certain clerical homosexual groups and Satanist covens. And the inordinate power and influence of that network. ¹

And despite these controversial publications followed by many other controversial admissions discussed live on radio programs such as Coast to Coast with Art Bell, Father Malachi Martin was still received in the last years of life in a private audience by Pope John Paul II. A fact which testifies to the credibility of his allegations made by a character so close to the most hidden secrets of the Vatican.

When John F. McManus, for The New American, June 9, 1997, asked Father Martin if the Black Mass in South Carolina had actually happened, it led to an enlightening Q and A:

McManus: Your book begins with a vivid description of a sacrilegious “Black Mass” held in 1963 in Charleston, South Carolina. Did this really happen?

Martin: Yes it did. And the participation by telephone of some high officials of the church in the Vatican is also a fact. The young female who was forced to be a part of this satanic ritual is very much alive and, happily, has been able to marry and lead a normal life. She supplied details about the event.

McManus: In addition ... you depict numerous other cardinals and bishops in a very bad light. Are these characterizations based on fact?

Martin: Yes, among the cardinals and the hierarchy there are satanists, homosexuals, anti-papists, and cooperators in the drive for world rule. ²

Surely, it is no coincidence that in Charleston, South Carolina on the 31st of May, 1801, the first Supreme Council of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite (A.A.S.R.) was founded, but I insist that not all Freemasons are in league with evil and darkness. However many, especially in the A.A.S.R., are linked with the Jesuits. Apart from the speculations of Father

Malachi Martin that could help him pass for a new “Leo Taxil,” he added in the same interview, another important statement that in recent years has proved to be more and more real:

“Among the cardinals and the hierarchy there are satanists, homosexuals, anti-papists, and cooperators in the drive for world rule.” With these words he cleared the link between the New World Order and Satanism. Yes, the shadow of Satanism lingers for years on the Vatican, and in an interview by Stefano Maria Paci to the late Father Gabriele Amorth (1925-2016), who was the Vatican’s leading exorcist who stated: “Gradually, as requested by the Second Vatican Council, the various parts of the Roman Ritual were edited, we exorcists were waiting for it to be treated on Title XII, that is, the old Ritual. But evidently it was not considered a relevant topic, as the years passed and nothing happened. Then, suddenly, on June 4, 1990, the Ritual arrived and it was a real surprise for all of us, as we had not been consulted before. Yet by that time we had prepared many questions in view of a revision of the Ritual. We asked, among other things, to touch up the prayers and add invocations to the Holy Mary that were completely missing, and to increase the specific exorcism prayers. But we were completely cut off from the possibility of giving any contribution.”

1 Malachi Martin, Windswept House, (New York: Broadway Books, 2001), p. 493. 2 <https://www.newswithviews.com/Horn/thomas130.htm> / † Archived 28th November, 2016.

The interviewer then adds another interesting question that helps us understand how the Catholic Church is truly in the hands of the devil these days: “Does it mean that the new Ritual is useless in the fight against the devil?”

Amorth replied: “Yes. They wanted to deliver a blunt weapon. effective prayers have been deleted, prayers that had twelve centuries of history were substituted by new, ineffective ones.”

The complaints of Father Amorth are not a trivial matter, especially when calculating what is happening now in the new church of Pope Francis, increasingly secular, and a continuation of what Don Villa called the “new Masonic Church of Paul VI.” For the action exerted by the Vatican II against the Church of Christ, one can say that the real goal of the occult elite, who directed Vatican II and oversaw the post-conciliar period, is to complete the work of destruction of the Church of Christ, and everything can be expressed by the formula: replacement of “the Catholic priesthood” with a “Liberal Masonic priesthood.” Yes, the worst form of Freemasonry, for the worst kind of Church. In the early days of Speculative Freemasonry, it is said that the only form of Freemasonry accepted by the Church was Christian Freemasonry, but now things are quite different. We find ourselves in front of a Post-Vatican II Church ready for the “End Times,” and Don Luigi Villa and Father Malachi Martin understood all this a long time ago.

In Defense of Father Malachi Martin by William H. Kennedy

he primary objective of this examination is to respond to recent attacks made against the late Father Malachi Martin. Fordham University social scientist Michael Cuneo and veteran Vatican journalist Robert Blair Kaiser, among others, have recently published information which makes some harsh and unfounded claims concerning Father Martin and, for the sake of historical accuracy, it is necessary to offer rejoinders to these allegations.

In American Exorcism: Expelling Demons in the Land of Plenty (2001) Cuneo reviews Martin’s career and offers some astounding accusations concerning the validity of Malachi’s scholarship. Cuneo was correct in his initial review of Martin’s life and work, but missed some important details. In his formation as a Jesuit, Martin received three earned doctorates in Semitic languages, archaeology and Oriental history and was subsequently made Professor of Semitic Languages at the Pontifical Biblical Institute in Rome. Ordained in 1954, Martin was a top-level advisor to Popes John XXIII, and Paul VI, as well as working closely with the Jesuit Cardinal Bea. Martin worked in the Vatican’s intelligence division and conducted secret missions into Eastern Europe to fund the oppressed Church which suffered under Communism. During the Second Vatican Council, Martin drafted the document which exonerated the Jews from culpability in the execution of Jesus Christ for which he received universal approval from the council and international accolades. Martin left the organizational Church in 1964, and resigned from the Society of Jesus, but he in no way shape or form ever stopped being a priest of the Roman Catholic Church. Pope Paul VI released Martin from all his vows, except for chastity, and agreed to allow him to act as a Roman Catholic priest in other ways. The Pope gave Martin permission to say Mass privately, and he continued to conduct the Tridentine Mass, which was formalized at the Council of Trent, for the rest of his life.

The same permission was granted to Saint Padre Pio who distrusted the New Mass. Under canon law the Pope has the right to limit or alter the faculties of any priest. Martin falls into the category of a fully functioning (i.e., allowed to administer all the sacraments) Roman Catholic Priest whose faculties (rights) excluded him from working full time in a parish or in a religious order. ... Martin was required to wear normal clothing as opposed to a Roman Collar so that he would not be mistaken for a local parish priest. Apart from this minor restriction in dress, Martin was in every respect a Roman Catholic priest. As those who knew him can tell you, Martin never slowed from his priestly duties—saying Masses at his apartment chapel, hearing confessions, conducting marriage ceremonies, administering last rites etc. on a daily basis. ... Father Charles Fiore, who knew Martin for years, states that when Martin came to New York his written faculties—which Fiore saw—were accepted by then Cardinal Cooke. Consequently, Martin's status as a bone fide Roman Catholic Priest with legitimate faculties is beyond reproach.

Martin's stated reason for leaving the Jesuits and the institutional Church was that he felt that Roman Catholicism was changing too fast and the institution he had grown up with was becoming an alien form of religion for him. People today do not realize how many drastic changes erupted in the Church in the wake of the Second Vatican Council. This seemingly solid monolithic institution crumbled into an unrecognizable heap by 1970. Even the Mass was radically altered into vernacular hybrids which were unrecognizable to even the most devout of Catholics. Despite what critics may contend, these radical changes were the only reason Martin left the Jesuits as will be evinced below. In this regard, Martin never really left the legitimate Church of Rome or the Jesuits, but rather the institutions over from orthodoxy that, inasense, they left Martin. Martin remained true to the original intent of Saint Loyola and his earliest followers while other Jesuits—like J.C. Murray, SJ—sought to alter the very foundations of the Christian Faith. With some Jesuits of Martin's era even claiming to be atheists, Martin was loyal to the True Faith. Having been left without an income after leaving the Jesuits, Father Martin worked a variety of odd jobs while conducting academic research. He published his reflections on Paul VI called The Pilgrim (1964) (under the pseudonym Michael Serafian). Martin first moved to Paris and worked as a translator for various Jewish groups—a job he got because he was such a master of languages and as a reward for his pioneering work on Catholic/Jewish relations. Martin then moved to New York and won a Guggenheim Fellowship to support himself while he wrote The Encounter (1969) which explores the relationship between Judaism, Christianity and Islam and which predicted the crisis into which the world's three great religions have fallen. During this period, Martin became the priest for a Greek family in the shipping field at the suggestion of Cardinal Cooke. Americans are for the most part unfamiliar with the European practice of wealthy and aristocratic families adopting a priest as a personal spiritual advisor. Such priests become part of the family. A case in point is that of the Von Trapp Family Singers who adopted Msgr. Franz Wasner as their family priest in Austria. Msgr. Wasner became so much a part of their family that he fled with the Von Trapps to the USA after the Nazis sought to conscript Baron Von Trapp as a U-Boat commander. Msgr. Wasner was written out of the Hollywood version of the Von Trapp family's life entitled The Sound of Music, but was buried in their family plot in Vermont. Rumors continue to fly that Father Martin was having a romantic affair with Kikia Livanos, the lady of this Greek family and Cuneo repeats this falsehood. From all reliable accounts this is clearly a blatant lie. Father Martin's relationship with this woman was purely Platonic in nature. Again, Americans cannot relate to this practice of having an adopted family priest as very few well-to-do Catholic families in the USA ever have such a spiritual advisor. In this instance the lady in question emphatically and categorically denied having any romantic involvement with Father Martin. It is horrible that anyone should promote such lies. Perhaps there is far more to this untruth than is commonly realized. After settling in the USA, Martin began to produce bestsellers that included both factual scholarship and fact-based fiction—a concept Martin borrowed from Norman Mailer et al. who called this genre “faction.” Martin's books were extremely well-received and influential. Although the institutional church either ignored or dismissed Martin's work, his books found a huge audience. William Buckley hired Martin to write for the National Review. Even the renowned author Saul Bellow quoted Martin in his 1976 Nobel Prize acceptance speech. In his many tomes, Martin pointed out that the Vatican was allying itself with Global Elites in various schemes to control international politics and the World economy. Cuneo denies that Father Martin had the proper sources within the Vatican to back up his then seemingly absurd assertion. However, Martin's own brother was a priest who remained in the Holy See many years after his departure and Martin himself remained in contact with a variety of other high level Vatican sources. As will be demonstrated, Martin had accurate information from some top Vatican officials concerning a banking cabal and the current priest pedophilia crisis rocking the Catholic Church. There is absolutely no way Martin could have known of the details of these conspiracies within the Church without high level informants. Cuneo never realizes this hard fact and, consequently, his attacks against Martin's "insider" status are moot. It must be recalled that Martin was making these assertions about the Holy See both in print and in public talks years before the famous Vatican Bank scandal which erupted in the 1980s. Martin definitively described the major players in various corrupt Vatican banking plots in his 1978 best-seller The Final Conclave (pages 24-31). In 1982, the Italian government uncovered a money laundering scheme wherein the Vatican Bank, the P-2 Freemasonic Lodge, and factions of the Mafia united in a criminal cabal to launder ill-gotten money derived from illicit drug running, gambling and extortion.

This resulted in the removal of gangster/Archbishop Paul "The Gorilla" Marcinkus as President of the Vatican Bank and prompted his deportation back to Chicago where he reunited with the equally vile Cardinal Cody who operated as an international bagman for the Accardo Crime Family. All of this culminated in the dramatic Masonic ritual murder of gangster/banker Roberto Calvi from a London bridge in 1982.

Martin mentioned Marcinkus and Cody in relation to corrupt banking practices in The Final Conclave on page 27—some four years before the fall of these two Vatican wheeler-dealers. Factions of this cabal may even have a hand in the untimely death of Pope John Paul I in 1978.

This Masonic/Mafia/Vatican conspiracy has been conclusively documented. Martin believed that the Freemasonic Lodge was Satanic in nature and that those various factions all took blood oaths to support each other in their various banking scams. For a complete record of this cabal, see David Yallop's In God's Name: An Investigation into the Murder of Pope John Paul I (1997). Martin also contended that this cabal was involved in even more heinous acts against children. In 1996, Father Malachi Martin reported that the Vatican was involved in an elaborate cover-up to protect child molesting priests and that predatory homosexuals had covertly gained control of the major seminaries in Europe and the USA. Martin further claimed that "secret gay sex cults" were being formed within these seminaries, which involved both child sex acts and homosexual relations between gay adult priests and seminarians. One of the worst culprits, in Martin's estimation, was Cardinal Bernard Law of Boston. This fact was reported to the author of this piece in January of 1996, at a meeting with Father Martin. Martin also claimed that these secret sex cults employed mind control techniques and various forms of brainwashing to keep victims in line. ... Martin's reason for not publishing this revelation was that he feared for his life having received repeated death threats from a variety of anonymous channels. Martin's anxiety was not unfounded as his associate Fr. Alfred Kunz who was investigating reports of Satanic child abuse by priests was murdered in a occult ritual fashion in 1998, after repeatedly being warned to halt his research. Fr. Kunz's murder has never been solved. Now that the child sex cult ring in the Archdiocese of Boston and the rest of the U.S. Church has come to light, much of Malachi's claims in this area are confirmed. Most alarming is the case of Paul Shanley—a Bostonbased diocesan priest who for 30 years molested pre-teens, as well as adolescent boys, and was even a founding member of the perverted North American Man/Boy Love Association (NAMBLA). Even though a variety of individuals reported Shanley to Bernard Cardinal Law, Shanley was allowed to continue his sick lifestyle. When reports surfaced in one parish of Shanley's activities, the Chancery merely transferred him to another, and paid off the victim's families and once more transferred Shanley to another parish where he resumed his pedophile lifestyle. The Archdiocese of Boston never sent Shanley for cogent psychiatric help in the course of what Shanley called his 30-year "youth ministry." Martin alluded to this child-molesting cult several times in his writing and they are worth reviewing at length considering that much of what he claimed has recently come to light in the popular press.

Most frighteningly for John Paul, he had come up against the irremovable presence of a malign strength in his own Vatican and in certain bishops' chanceries. It was what knowledgeable Churchmen called the "superforce," the incidence of Satanic pedophilia—rites and practices—was already documented among certain bishops and priests as widely dispersed as Turin, in Italy, and South Carolina, in the United States. The cultic acts of Satanic pedophilia are considered by professionals to be the culmination of the Fallen Archangel's rites. (Keys of this Blood: 632) ... every day, including Sundays and Holy Days, acts of heresy and blasphemy and outrage and indifference were committed and permitted at holy Altars by men who had been called to be priests. Sacrilegious actions and rites were not only performed on Christ's Altars, but had the connivance or at least the tacit permission of certain Cardinals, archbishops, and bishops. In total number they were a minority—anything from one to ten percent of Church personnel. But of that minority, many occupied astoundingly high positions or rank. The facts that brought the Pope to a new level of suffering were mainly two: The systematic organizational links—the network, in other words—that had been established between certain clerical homosexual groups and Satanist covens, and the inordinate power and influence of that network, (Martin quoted from the site www.theharrowing.com/martin.html no longer available). In at least three major cities, members of the clergy have at their disposal at least one pedophilic coven peopled and maintained exclusively by and for the clergy. Religious women can find a lesbian coven maintained in a similar way. (Hostage to the Devil: XII) ³

The secret mission entrusted by Padre Pio to the heroic Don Villa

n 1952, close to the Second Vatican Council, the aforementioned Don Luigi Villa, (FIG. 91) received from the future saint, Padre Pio of Pietrelcina, the commission to dedicate his life to fighting ecclesiastical Freemasonry. He received the order to visit the Archbishop of Chieti Mons. Before accepting this position, however, Msgr. Bosio warned Don Villa to have nothing to do with Giovanni Battista Montini, the future Pope. Shortly afterward Pope Pius XII approved the assignment of Don Luigi Villa to this important mission, appointing the powerful Cardinal Alfredo Ottaviani as his supervisor. Remember to be a Freemason is not a crime, as many Freemasons help the community and are decent people, but for a priest, being a Freemason is a big problem of incompatibility, and behind this dual membership often lies a corrupt reality; to some extent anti-Masonic, if seen through the eyes of a true Mason. How can you officially condemn Freemasonry like the Church does, and then practice it behind closed doors? Well in the kingdom of hypocrisy, and the Vatican, everything is possible, but this is clearly another manifestation of irregular Freemasonry. That is why I fully support, although I'm also a Freemason, the difficult mission of the late Don Villa. A unique figure, as a man and as a priest, who for decades was like a secret agent for St. Padre Pio, fighting against the growing infiltration of Freemasonry within the Vatican. However it was a Freemason and journalist named Carmine Pecorelli (1928 –1979), known as Mino, that made the most incredible inquiry into what is referred today as Lodge Ekklesia. The Masonic membership of hundreds of senior officials of the Catholic Church and high-level Vatican officials practicing Freemasonry in the Vatican was all documented and published. When, in September 1978, the so-called “Pecorelli List” appeared in the periodical Osservatore Politico (OP), a newsletter that specialized in political scandals, that would publish many first-hand stories that Pecorelli was able to obtain through his numerous contacts. Pecorelli was brutally murdered by the mercenaries of the New World Order.

Carmine Pecorelli died a year after former prime minister Aldo Moro’s 1978 kidnapping and subsequent killing. He was described as a “maverick journalist with excellent secret service contacts.” According to Pecorelli, Aldo Moro’s kidnapping was organized by a “lucid superpower” (ie. Henry Kissinger), and was inspired by the “logic of Yalta.” Pecorelli’s name was on Licio Gelli’s partial list of Propaganda Due Masonic members, discovered in 1980 by the Italian police. In 2002, former prime minister Giulio Andreotti was sentenced, along with Mafia boss Gaetano Badalamenti, to 24 years imprisonment for Pecorelli’s murder. The sentence was thrown out by the Italian Supreme Court in 2003,

FIG. 91 – Don Luigi Villa (1918 – 2012), priest, doctor of theology, author, and above all secret agent on a mission for Saint Padre Pio, who said: “Courage, courage, courage! because the Church is already overrun by Freemasonry,” adding: “Freemasonry has already arrived at the Pope’s slippers.”

and no one was imprisoned for it. So shortly after publishing a comprehensive list of Freemasons in the Vatican, Pecorelli was murdered. It was certainly not a surprise to Don Luigi Villa, since many names of those senior officials had already been investigated by him. Villa gave his list of suspected Masons to the Holy Office, together with his allegations, documents, and therefore the evidence of their membership in Freemasonry, attempting to prove their membership against any reasonable doubt. Don Villa worked in his mission with factual data on hand, not mere conjecture or speculation, and this is clear to most. Don Villa cited the following people in his books: Monsignor Pasquale Macchi (the pope's personal secretary at the time), Cardinal Jean Villot, Secretary of State under Paul VI, John Paul I and John Paul II; and even Cardinal Agostino Casaroli, whose membership of Freemasonry was apparently known by Pope John Paul II, who did nothing to stop him. Don Villa was also convinced like many others, that Pope Luciani, the Pope that lasted only 33 days (33 as we know is the central symbolic number of the AA.S.R.). He wanted to clean up the Vatican from its strong Masonic presence, and this would have been in part the cause of his sudden death. The list published by the late Mino Pecorelli was in fact issued by its periodic OP, coinciding with the election of Pope Luciani, and included a list of 131 clergy with membership in Freemasonry. Among these names we find Jesuit Roberto Tucci, who was the director of Vatican Radio in the best Jesuit tradition, as even today the Company of Jesus still controls Vatican media. Returning to Don Villa, for his mission, he needed a magazine, and so in 1971 Chiesa Viva was born.

In memory of Don Luigi Villa, I would like to include a brief biography written by his close friend Franco Adessa, his esteemed collaborator for many years:

For many years, Don Villa, worked as a secret agent for cardinal Ottaviani, with the specialty of documenting possible Masonic memberships of senior officials of the Catholic Church, and to deal with certain sensitive issues of the Church. This role made Father Villa a very well-known figure by police and other security agencies. When, in September 1978, during the brief pontificate of Pope John Paul I, the "Pecorelli list" appeared on OP, Mino Pecorelli's Magazine, it was not a great surprise for Father Villa to read many names of those senior officials that he had in some cases already exposed and in some cases even sent back home, after supplying to the Holy Office the documents of their membership in Freemasonry. One of the most famous cases was that of Cardinal Joseph Suenens, driven from its headquarters in Brussels not, a Mason, married and with a son named Paul. ... Another "painful," case was that of the cardinal Lienart Achilles. In Paris, as Villa waited, near a Masonic Lodge, the man who was to confirm the existence of documents attesting to the cardinal membership in Freemasonry, Don Villa, suddenly, saw a young man running towards him, who attacked him and punched him in the face, shouting: "A devil exists on earth!" Badly injured Don Villa was brought unconscious to a nearby pharmacy, with a mouth full of blood, his jaw broken, and without a tooth left in his mouth. Even in Haiti, one day, he risked his life. He went to that country for a mission, he was taken away by the military who were preparing to shoot him. But Don Villa had an inspiration and asked the officer in charge to speak with one of his dearest friends, the local Seminary Superior. The officer, disturbed by that request, went to his superiors and soon returned, saying: "We were wrong," and released him. Among the sensitive issues delegated to him by Cardinal Ottaviani, there was the meeting with Lucia of Fatima. One day Cardinal Ottaviani told Don Villa: "I thought I would send you to speak directly to Sister Lucia of Fatima." He gladly accepted. He was accompanied by a businessmen, Mr. Pagnossin, a convert to Padre Pio, who offered him the journey and stay in Portugal. Cardinal Ottaviani had equipped Villa with a personal letter signed by him, at the time Prefect of the Holy Office, to be delivered to the Bishop of Coimbra, so they should grant him a meeting with Sister Lucia. But the Bishop of Coimbra, before granting a meeting with the Sister Lucia, picked up the phone and called the Vatican. Replied Msgr. Giovanni Benelli, who, before giving a definite approval, wanted to hear Pope Paul VI, because Rome had given strict orders about the possibility of interviewing Sister Lucia that was allowed only to Royals and Cardinals. Msgr. Benelli transmitted to the Bishop of Coimbra the prohibition of Paul VI to the interview request with Sister Lucia. It was useless, then the insistence of Father Villa, in highlighting its role as envoy of the Prefect of the Holy Office. He remained in Portugal, trying to overcome the resistance of the Bishop. After about ten days, however, he had to give up. He only obtained by the Bishop to celebrate Mass in the Chapel of the cloistered convent where Sister Lucia was residing. Back in Italy, Don Luigi went immediately to report the incident to Cardinal Ottaviani. The Cardinal was offended by the behavior of Paul VI, and immediately wrote a letter of protest. He returned later in Rome. Cardinal Ottaviani said that Paul VI had made excuses, saying, however, that the decision had been taken by Msgr. Benelli. But the Cardinal pointed out that this was the usual excuse method used by Paul VI. However when Pius XII was alive, the Vatican, for Don Villa, was more than a welcoming environment. In addition to meetings related to his activities as a secret agent, Don Villa lunched and dined at least fifty times with Cardinals and Bishops. But when Paul VI rose to power, Villa lost every hospitality and precluded any possibility of launching initiatives for the defense of the Catholic Faith. ⁴

but he never received any complaint for the accuracy of his accusations. But as we have seen from the testimony of his colleague Franco Adessa, it seems that Villa was the subject of several attacks and even bombings during his mission. But he went on his way, continuing to fight Freemasonry in the Vatican as indicated by Padre Pio, and made no discounts even to the dangerous Opus Dei sect, which he called “White Freemasonry,” as did the late Count Licio Gelli. To the Opus Dei, Father Villa devoted an entire section of one of his publications, where the priest declared that: “Professor Vittadini of the Lateran University and president of the beatification office had made a terrible relationship against Escriva as saint. And when the Cardinal of the Congregation of Saints said it would be necessary to talk to the Pope. And he did. When Wojtyla received him, he looked at him and said: ‘The pope is me, I want him to become Sanctified!’”

An unusual attitude for John Paul II, who seems more in line with a “mafiosi” than a supposed “Holy Man,” but the Opus Dei is a force that is difficult to challenge in any way. I remember reading an article that Frank Morales wrote a few years ago, during the presidency of George W. Bush, where he highlighted the ties of the Opus Dei, with the U.S. Government. And let me tell you that even today, there are still many links to the Vatican, links of a personal nature as well as institutional ones, that might push Trump to eventually rediscuss, unfortunately, some of his brilliant proposals made during the electoral campaign, probably viewing them in a new light now. Keep in mind that his own son, Eric Trump, is a Jesuit-trained from Georgetown University, who serves as board member of Georgetown’s Business, Society, and Public Policy Initiative, and even Ivanka Trump, attended Jesuit Georgetown for two years. And without putting into question the clever Mike Pence, he is however a self-described “evangelical Catholic.” Remember that all this is not necessarily evil, as even in the Catholic Church today, there are two different schools of thought fighting for supremacy, and Trump belongs to the more traditional one, secretly driven by Raymond Leo Burke (born June 30, 1948), an American Cardinal prelate of the Catholic Church, who is an archbishop and also serves as the patron of the Sovereign Military Order of Malta.

Burke is often perceived among prelates of the Catholic Church, as a voice of traditionalism, with an “unwavering passion for the integrity of Catholic doctrine.” It is useful to highlight these links, which in part also shape the policies of the U.S. Government, trying to understand what is the origin of this fervor to war and conquer, that has nothing to do with the people of the United States, but rather with their hidden controllers, some of whom are located in the Vatican, as well as in Israel, along with those in the U.S. Military Industrial Complex, to go along with their decisions. I hope that President Trump will be able to overcome this challenge, probably the most difficult.

Let's try to understand more about the Church and Freemasonry. Few outside of Freemasonry know of a historic speech delivered over ten years ago by Grand Master Fabio Venzi, of the Regular Grand Lodge of Italy, held in Rome on the 25th of June 2005, at the Grand Hotel St. Regis. A speech, carried out by Anglo-Saxon Masonry in Italy, a group traditionally very close to the Opus Dei, that of the Regular Grand Lodge of Italy, marking a memorable day for Freemasonry, once again servant of the Vatican lead New World Order.

In short, a Catholic priest officially becomes the first Grand Chaplain in the history of the Free World of Freemasonry with the approval of Pope Ratzinger (now Pope Emeritus,) officially hostile to any form of Freemasonry. Hypocrisy? It is the usual two weights and two measures, which is two ways to judge and treat Freemasonry. There is the outward image, crafted for Catholic believers tending to slander Freemasonry, to condemn it without appeal, and to treat it bad publicly. This is while on the inside, the Church tends to justify it and to minimize it. Freemasonry that is not anti-Catholic or hostile to the Church, and maybe with hands and feet tied to Opus Dei or its rivals, the Knights of Columbus; related to Neo-Templar groups like the OSMTH and OSMTJ, and powerful Illuminati lodges like Skull & Bones. Complicated? Well yes, but in all this mess of orders and names, that often fuels the New World Order and its scenario, it seems that gradually in the last few years, since I started my Confessions, people are starting to wake up. These troubled times are inspiring a growing movement of traditionalists, especially in matters of religion and faith—a whole new population of people are rising from the ashes finally bringing Neo-liberalism to its epic fail. We are here to claim back a society that is unfortunately in the hands of a great evil, but with divine revelation and traditional instruction, we hope to preserve our values and tradition. In these unprecedented times, we are building the base for a future Christian Empire that will possibly include U.S. and Europe, and reshape what is left after George Soros and Pope Francis finish ruining the planet. In the meantime, let's hope Cardinal Raymond Leo Burke and President Donald Trump manage to bring back a bit of Christianity to the Church of Rome, and possibly with the guidance of his Military Intelligence, finally bring to justice Jesuit/Islamic agent Fethullah Gulen, who deserves the maximum penalty as a key Islamist of the rising "Caliphate."

The Vatican and Masonry: a ballad of hypocrisy

I

In 2016, the present Grand Master of the Grand Orient of Italy, Stefano Bisi, who was involved in a massive scandal involving one of the main banks in Italy Monte dei Paschi di Siena, and has publicly given his support to the Democratic Party and their mondialist agent Matteo Renzi (ex Prime minister), wrote an open letter to the newspaper Il Sole 24 Ore in relation to the article "Dear brothers Masons" written by Cardinal Gianfranco Ravasi, a senior Vatican representative, that appeared as a cultural insert on the 14th of February, 2016. There is something sick and twisted in this new love relation between the Grand Orient of Italy, in the hands of Club Bildeberg mafia, and Cardinal Ravasi, mentioned in the past as a papal candidate. On the site of the Grand Orient of Italy the Grand Master states that: "The letter expressing interest and appreciation for what is written by the President of the Pontifical Council for Culture on some common values, beyond the positions and official documents of the Church on Freemasonry, do not prevent a peaceful future dialogue between the two institutions." Stefano Bisi never mentions in his long letter that in the Vatican there are various Ma sonic lodges present from the end of World War II. Cardinal Ravasi writes: "These various declarations of incompatibility between the two memberships to the Church and the Masons do not prevent, however, the dialogue, as is explicitly stated in the German bishops' document that already had listed specific areas of confrontation as the Community dimension, the charity, the struggle against materialism, human dignity, and mutual understanding."

Both are blatantly lying as there were at least two popes whose Masonic memberships were proven against any reasonable doubt. Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli, who became Pope John XXIII in 1958, and Pope Paul VI in 1963, born Giovanni Battista Enrico Antonio Maria Montini, two Popes who left a clear Masonic imprint during the important Vatican II. Lodge

Ekklesia works with at least four lodges, appears to have received a regular Masonic patent to work the “Emulation” rite released by an American Masonic Authority, a little-known Masonic reality, still operating today in the Vatican, under the patronage of the Grand Master of the United Grand Lodge of England. Obviously Cardinal Ravasi can not admit such a truth, and even the current Grand Master of the Grand Orient, Stefano Bisi, knows very well this is all a charade. The reality is that clergy and Freemasons all meet together in places like the local building of the Grand Orient of Italy in Perugia, or in some Churches in Assisi, and even conduct occult rituals together on top of Mount Subasio. This is fact, not fiction-as a Catholic priest in 2005 became the first Grand Chaplain of the Regular Grand Lodge of Italy, this is something Catholics and Freemasons should investigate further. However the tone of the message sent to Ravasi, by Grand Master Bisi, suggests that the Grand Master knows things, but wants to keep the hidden deals between Freemasonry and the Church secret, and probably also speaks on behalf of some prelates of the Roman Curia, the ones that obviously pushed Cardinal Ravasi to open up with the rest of Italian Freemasonry, and the Grand Orient of Italy, at the dawn of what could be a pivotal year in 2017, when the United Grand Lodge of England celebrates 300 years after the founding of the first Grand Lodge. It will probably recognize the Grand Orient of Italy (Palazzo Giustiniani), after the P2 scandal took away their UGLE recognition, that now is in the hands of the Regular Grand Lodge of Italy, that in 2005, stated, after installing the first Catholic priest to the office of Grand Chaplain:

Today, in confirmation of this, I would like to end this my discourse, with the appointment of a Grand Officer who will likely remain in the history of Italian and possibly worldwide Freemasonry. The Officer I install in the office of Grand Chaplain is a priest of the Catholic Church. With this act, the Grand Lodge of Italy and its Grand Master, perform the most significant gesture ever, opening a Masonic Obedience to the Roman Catholic Church, distancing itself from other irregular Masonic Lodges, that with their anticlericalism did so much damage and harm caused to the image of the entire World of Freemasonry. This, in my opinion will be good for the Catholic Church, which probably ignores the vastness of the Masonic phenomenon in the world (million members, the largest form of secular association), and especially their imposing presence in the Grand Lodges of Central America and Latin America (Grand Lodge of Cuba, the Grand Orient of Brazil, etc.) We have done our part and expect in the future that the Catholic Church can find the motivation and the patience to know the peculiarities and differences within the diverse world of Freemasonry, which, in its traditional and regular expression is not hostile. I think the Jesuits should stop intruding in Masonic matters, focusing instead on their Church. However in Italy, they have continued to mess up things for Freemasonry with their support of the CIA, even during the first years of the Obama administration, thanks to the well-known Masonic leader of the P4, Luigi Bisignani, who is now supporting President Trump.

The “Post-Conciliar Church” and Rock Music in the Illuminati

would now like to open a short discussion on why after Vatican II, the Church seems increasingly indifferent to Satanistic tendencies, especially in the world of music and entertainment. This delicate and unusual theme of the relationship between rock music and the Catholic clergy, is written by the head of the Cultural Center of San Giorgio, Pietro Bruno in an article entitled Men and the Church of Satanic Rock, posted in 2012. Here is one particularly enlightening excerpt:

The lackadaisical attitude of so many consecrated people—bishops, priests and reli gious people in general—in the face of such a violent and macroscopic attack on the figure of Jesus Christ and the Catholic religion launched by a big slice of modern music is without a doubt one of the most difficult to deal with, especially for people like me who are believers and practitioners. Before moving to the treatment of the subject in its various aspects, I say that as a child of the Holy Roman Church, although a poor sinner, I feel a certain uneasiness in dealing with a phenomenon in some ways incomprehensible. I would also point out that while not wishing to judge anyone (task that belongs to God alone), I can not in good conscience turn a blind eye to certain behaviors and pretend that deep down it does not concern me, or is not of much relevance. When in 1986 I met in Rome Father Jean-Paul Regimbal o.ss.t. (1931 – 1988), the first author in Catholic circles to address the issue of satanic rock I exposed to him my intention to dig deeper into it, following his example, to bring this topic to the next level, he blessed me and spurred me to continue resolutely in this direction. Only a few years later, when I began to propose conferences or meetings in the parishes or ecclesial circles, I understood the reasons of his encouragement. The reality that I began to experience with my own eyes was not very rosy. Except in some commendable cases, most of the priests or leaders of religious communities were not interested at all in exploring the issues, and in many cases they slammed the door in my face without much to say. Some priests have hidden behind their refusal with futile excuses: “If we talk to the young people of these arguments we will end up advertising evil!” Others have told me that if they had spoken negatively of modern music they were in danger of demonizing it and pushing away from their oratory, many young people who listened to it (or that even played this music in the sacristy, turned at times into a rehearsal room), and so on. Although sometimes it can be painful or unpleasant, as Saint Paul teaches, when there is at stake the salvation of souls and the honor of God’s truth, the time is always right.

So the question that arises is “How did the clergy react to this terrible tragedy?” Pietro Bruno explains:

Indeed, the magnitude of this disaster and its dire consequences have been felt by many pastors of souls. Unfortunately, many of them for fear of being viewed as disobedient, retrograde, and possibly being isolated or ridiculed by the brothers of their own own parish pastoral council, who don’t share these views with the profane world, and most of the time they end up closing themselves in an impenetrable silence. My personal experience has shown me that only a small part of consecrated persons had the courage to openly go against this.

In over twenty years of activity a few zealous pastors or religious community leaders have generously opened the doors of their churches and allowed their flock to discuss such issues, and eventually entrusted them to know more on the danger of occultism conveyed by some music. In any case, it was always the individual initiatives, and— except for a few cases—never encouraged by their superiors in the Catholic Church. But there is another factor that has contributed greatly to facilitate the acceptability of Rock to many priests. With a gesture that has no precedent in the history of the church, Paul VI, in order to promote a more active participation of the faithful in the Eucharistic celebration abolished at one point the sacred language (Latin) and the traditional Gregorian chant, with serious damage to the sacredness of the religious rite itself. The void left by the great artistic heritage of centuries-old songs and hymns (some of which are even in the vernacular language) has been filled by a increasingly silly musical production and the daily consumption of songs of little theological content, with banal melodies and always predictably monotonous and boring lyrics, which are imposed in today's liturgy as a musical seasoning with no real sacredness. Predictably, following the horizontal spirit inherent in the liturgical reform, the majestic sound of the organ and polyphonic choral was replaced by the guitar of some boys of the parish. Within a short time, thanks to the introduction of the "liturgical experimentation," inspired in many cases by the "creativity" of the celebrant, we have basically seen everything in Churches, from jazz Masses, to Masses with drum beat, to Masses with clowns, or even DJ's in churches turned into nightclubs, etc. in some cases, the offertory was accompanied by the music of the film Jesus Christ Superstar or other horrors of the same kind.⁵

In too many cases, the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass has been transformed into a festive meeting with music and dance, in a climate of total anarchy favorable to the destruction of certain values. Many faithful offended by these disgraceful performances have denounced this abuse to the competent authorities, which have intervened (belatedly) to curb this phenomena with poor results. One can say that the stable doors were shut after the horse had bolted long ago. Perhaps the only one who tried to fight this now rampant degeneration, even within the Catholic Church, or at least monitor it, was the now deceased Monsignor Corrado Balducci (1923 – 2008), who was a very ambiguous figure with perhaps one too many friends in Satanism. A well-known demonologist, (later turned ufologist), Balducci thought differently than the rest of the clergy, when in 1994 he declared bluntly to the Italian newspaper, Il Corriere della Sera that: "Rock is the son of Satan" and after heavy criticism moved against the famous Beatles, and made some very interesting and shocking revelations on various artists of the time: "Many Rockstars are members of Satanic sects; guys like Alice Cooper, Mick Jagger of the Rolling Stones, and Ozzy Osbourne of Black Sabbath, who also wrote Satanic songs."

Balducci noticed many of the musical groups that dominated the scene, including the Eagles, Led Zeppelin and Queen, had launched subliminal messages in their songs. I think he would be even more shocked by today's attitude in the music business. The majority of artists from Jay Z to Rihanna, to the infamous Madonna, practice occultism in the open, without trying to mask this trend. As for the Rolling Stones, they even performed a concert in Cuba, a few days after a visit from former president Obama, who some referred to as the Antichrist, and for sure he is a Jesuit stooge. Monsignor Corrado Balducci in the early 1990s declared: “I think that cults and Satanic rock fall in a plan of enormous proportion existing but unknown to people to destabilize the Western world.” Indeed, some deep thinking and ahead of his time by this high-level Vatican official. Balducci had until then dedicated his life to fight evil with exorcisms. Balducci was known in the last years of his life, as a sympathizer of ufology and friend of Zecharia Sitchin (1920-2010). Before embracing the UFO phenomenon, Balducci was the author of a book entitled Adoratori del diavolo e rock satanico, that forced the Catholic newspaper (and official organ of the Italian Episcopal Conference), “Avvenire,” and its spokesman, Father Claudio Sorgi (1933 – 1999), to react, by expressing in no uncertain terms his disapproval of this editorial initiative by stating: “It is false and silly the equation that rock equals the devil. ... Modern music is part of that first famous ‘Areopagus’ of evangelization to which the Pope has drawn the attention of the Church. There’s a whole world that receives messages from Rock. I do not understand the importance and desirability of this offering, it means closing the Church again in an ivory tower.”

5 http://www.centrosangiorgio.com/rock_satanico/articoli/pagine_articoli/uomini_di_chiesa_e_rock_satanico.htm † Archived 28th November, 2016.

So the Catholic hierarchy moved the most improbable attacks against Balducci’s work, demonstrating unequivocally that they were, and are to this day, on the side of evil. This does not mean ordinary Catholics or the clergy are necessarily evil, as there are still good priests who want to fight Satanism, but the situation has become truly decadent and corrupt in the Vatican. On the 29th of August 1986, Vatican Radio publicly manifested its appreciation for the positive influence of The Beatles, and the behavior of young people, stating that: “With their long hair and unconventional language which highlight themes such as love, peace and even religion.” I still remember in the 1980s, when things were changing in the Church, when I met with the well-known Catholic media personality, Don Mario Pieracci (now Monsignore), at the end of Vatican censorship on certain books and songs, including The Beatles, who as many of you know, featured the image of Aleister Crowley on one of their covers. This private celebration took place at a local restaurant with the rest of the staff of Radio Valle Aniene, directed by Don Mario, who launched my career in the media and music world.⁶

The Vatican has too many weaknesses, to avoid the siege of evil fomented by Satan and his infamous “Legion” today, which is why the Jesuits were able to place one of them on the Papal throne for the first time in history, with Pope Francis. However this move has not helped the steady decline of the Catholic Church, and the constant support of the Vatican to anti-Christian music remains too antithetical to faith to ignore, as Pope Francis is trying to do. And let’s not forget the XXIII National Eucharistic Congress held in Bologna in 1997, (FIGS. 92 and 93) when Bob Dylan, who was announced as the recipient of a Nobel Prize for Literature in 2016, created some controversy for his snobbish attitude. He performed for the now Saint John Paul II, smoking a great big joint on stage next to the Pope. Dylan received the prompt reaction of a Swiss guard, who advised him to move a safe distance from the old Pope.

Dylan shocked the world in an interview to the television program Sixty Minutes, where he stated that he basically sold his soul to the devil. When Bob Dylan was asked in the interview why he keeps touring at his old age, he replied: “It goes back to the destiny thing, I made a bargain with it a long time ago, and I’m holding up my end.”
Question: “What was your bargain?”

6 Leo Lyon Zagami, Illuminati and Music in Hollywood, Harmakis Editions, Montevarchi Arezzo-2014, p. 257.

Answer: “To get where I am now.” Question: “Should I ask who you made the bargain with?”

Answer: “With the chief commander.”

Question: “On this earth?”

Answer: “On this earth and in the world we can’t see.”

Many fans have argued that Dylan was talking about God. But who makes a pact with God to get ahead in this world?⁷ For sure playing in front of a controversial pope like John Paul II, who endorsed and helped the implementation of the New World Order and turned a blind eye to its pedophilia rings, does not play in his favor regarding the accusations against him, and in the end receiving a Nobel prize is just a final confirmation of this.

Satanism in the Vatican: not a hypothesis but a certainty!

T

The Last Exorcist is a book by the late Father Gabriele Amorth, (regarded by many as the number one exorcist in the Vatican), that was co-written with Paolo Rodari, and published in Italy in 2012. Amorth raised a considerable fuss in the media in the following months, with his note on the inside of the book, on the case of Emanuela Orlandi, the Vatican, and a thesis that according to him, related her disappearance to an alleged Satanic cult operating in the Vatican. For those who have never heard of Emanuela Orlandi's disappearance, she was the young daughter of a Vatican citizen working for the Prefecture of the Papal Household, who disappeared at the age of 15 in 1983, under mysterious circumstances. This is a case that shocked the entire world at the time, has never been resolved, steeped in a thousand mysteries, and they say is linked to turbulent events in the geopolitical arena.

The disappearance of Emanuela Orlandi, born in Rome on January 14, 1968, is an unresolved cold case. The incident dates back to June 22, 1983. The young victim was a Vatican citizen, not an Italian one, who definitely disappeared under mysterious circumstances. At first it seemed like the “usual” death of a teenager, but soon became one of the darkest cases in Italian history. It involved the Italian State spanning to the Vatican, even the Institute for the Works of Religion (IOR), the Banda della Magliana, Banco Ambrosiano, and of course the secret services of several different countries. The disappearance of Emanuela Orlandi was linked to the disappearance of another teenager, named Mirella Gregori, who disappeared on May 7, 1983, never to be seen again. Emanuela attended a Roman school of music in Sant’ Apollinare square, and on the day of her disappearance, on the street that connected the Vatican institute, she came upon a stranger, driving a green car. He attracted her with an offer of employment in the cosmetic marketing industry, to be carried out during a fashion parade, with an outrageous paycheck (375,000 liras, about the equivalent to a salary of the time). The 15 year old, before accepting, said she would have to get permission from her parents. Later, at 7 PM that evening, she exited the flute lesson she was taking, and phoned home to report the proposal to her dad. Her sister told her to be wary of an unprovoked and tempting project, and to return home as soon as possible to discuss it in detail with her mother. This was the last contact Emanuela had with her family. The late Father Gabriele Amorth, although having no direct knowledge of the facts, connected the disappearance of Emanuela to a Satanic cult operating in Vatican. Amorth then recalls in the aforementioned book, another priest who launched a similar crusade against evil infiltrating the Vatican, the deceased and mistreated Monsignor Luigi Marinelli, (FIG. 94) who published a book in 1999, that had a great international resonance entitled Gone with the Wind in the Vatican, in which he revealed the perverse life of the clergy within the Vatican. His charges included the integration of Freemasonry, sex, money, careerism, cowardice (small and large), and even Satanism, in what seemed like a true scoop at the time.

Marinelli was discovered by the Vatican's Holy See, who initially decided to convene Marinelli to the Sacred Rota to clarify the reason for writing his book. Monsignor Marinelli, however, decided not to appear at the trial, because he rightly believed that the Holy See had no rights under canon law to sentence, or pursue him in any way. So the Vatican changed their strategy and brought general attention to the case to push Father Marinelli into oblivion. His book, however, went on to be a huge success—but there were those who said that the Holy See bought all the copies, and then burned them to avoid circulation—Marinelli's name was included on a black list of “unwanted” people in the Vatican. Monsignor Marinelli never returned to the Vatican, and died not long after that, alone in his house under mysterious circumstances. As with the controversial figure of Monsignor Marinelli, Father Amorth, seems to agree on a Satanic haunting presence within the Holy See itself. Here are some shocking revelations about Satan in the Vatican, delivered by the late Father Gabriele Amorth:

It is the number one enemy, the tempter par excellence. We know this being to be dark and disturbing, and actually still acts with treacherous cunning: he is the hidden enemy who sows errors and misfortunes in human history. Finally, February 3, 1977, again at a general audience, It's no wonder if the Pope was bitterly writing warning us that "the whole world lies under the power of the Evil One." Paul VI often spoke of the devil, and often linked its figure to the Church. Why? Perhaps because he simply wanted to warn the Church, ask her to be prudent, to escape the temptations of Satan. But, in my opinion, there's more. Paul VI somehow realizes that Satan is in the Church, perhaps even within the Vatican. It sounds the alarm. The second thing I want to say concerns a book. In 1999, a book was published called Gone with the Wind in the Vatican. The, anonymous, author was a monsignor in the Roman curia. Soon everyone knew his name, Luigi Marinelli. Before the publication of the book Marinelli came several times to confide in me. He was undecided whether to publish the book or not. Why this indecision? Because the book is a collection of spicy anecdotes. Stories of careers, social climbing, amorous adventures. It also shows unclear rites and practices that were close to Satanism. Of course, not everything that is written in that book is true, but mostly it is. ... This is my opinion. Now, this book, soon after being published, disappeared from the shelves of the book stores. The Vatican bought all the copies. And then, even more curious, the output of all this made very little appearance in the papers. Why? How was it possible that such revelations would not trigger the explosive media? Difficult to answer. Certainly there is a fact: this book confirms that when Paul VI spoke in some way of the presence of the devil in the Church he had a point. It was to be a warning for the Church, but it was not. I would like, in this regard, to show you an example. Talk about a relatively recent affair in which, in my opinion, we see that within the sacred walls there is an evil, not for good, and a minority that may have taken over. It is the story that takes the name of Emanuela Orlandi. Emanuela Orlandi is a fifteen year old girl, daughter of an employee of the Vatican and of an employee working in the prefecture of the pontifical household, that for short, in his work often had occasion to see closely the Pope. Emanuela is a lively sunny girl. Suddenly on June 22 of 1983, she disappears. She has still not been found. Disappears after going to a music lesson. Emanuela, in fact, playing the flute at the church of Sant' Apollinare in Classe, where there is a sort of conservatory. According to the lat est information gathered before her disappearance, Emanuela jumped in a black car. But it is not certain. It is sure that at 19.15 she was seen for the last time by two school friends, going to Corso Rinasci. After that Emanuela disappears.

“Through some crack” Pope Paul VI (Giovanni Battista Enrico Antonio

Maria Montini, 1897-1978) announced “the smoke of Satan has entered the Church.” These words and this historical statement, were also mentioned by Father Amorth, (FIG. 95) who before his death in September 2016, entered the history of the Church with his unusual, but important mission as the Vatican’s chief exorcist. However no one seems to understand, including the late Amorth, that the Pope of Jewish origin, Pope Paul VI, who spoke these heavy words of condemnation against the Devil, could have facilitated this decline. Some say Paul VI was also the victim of blackmail of unspeakable proportions by the agents of the New World Order, that gathered evidence on his homosexual encounters. In any case, the book by Father Amorth Memoirs of an Exorcist. My life fighting against Satan, claims to have evidence on the presence of Satanism in the Vatican by people close to him, saying: “ Yes, also in the Vatican there are members of Satanic cults.”

This is a brief part of an interview with Father Amorth about this shocking topic present in his book:

Q: Who is involved? It is simple priests or laity?

A: There are priests, monsignors and also cardinals!

Q:Forgive me, Father Gabriel, how do you know all this?

A: I know from people that have been able to report it to me because they knew directly. And it is something “confessed” several times by the devil himself during exorcisms.

Q: The Pope is informed?

A: Of course he has been informed! But he does what he can. It’s a chilling thing.⁸

And this presence of Satanic clergy in the Vatican—which should be really frightening for us, after the statement of Amorth is part of this growing Satanic Mafia worldwide—“There are priests, monsignors and also cardinals!”—something that was also confirmed by Pietro Orlandi, Emanuela’s brother, who I know well, and I interviewed many times. ⁹ Pietro told me that Father Amorth reported to him in private conversation that the infamous Black Masses in the Vatican are usually held in the Church of San Lorenzo in Piscibus in the Borgo rione of Rome, just a few meters from St. Peter’s Square, and also from the headquarters of the General of the Jesuits in Borgo Santo Spirito. One must ask, how does Pope Francis tolerate something so sick happening so close to him, unless he is in some way a participant?

Pope Francis was not even in his office for twenty-four hours when he warned about the devil to his brother cardinals at Mass celebrated in the Sistine Chapel in the aftermath of his election to the Papal Throne. “When you do not confess Jesus Christ you confess the worldliness of the devil.” Francis quoted Leon Bloy, a writer who, ironically, a Jesuit magazine years earlier excommunicated as “impatient, sometimes exalted and increasingly extremist,” and who said, “Those who do not pray to God, pray to the Devil” These words were more or less repeated and reinforced ten days later, on Palm Sunday, in St. Peter’s square, in front of the Vatican basilica, when Pope Francis said “With Jesus we are never alone, even when the way of life collides with problems and obstacles that seem insurmountable. And at this time arrives the enemy, who is the Devil.” This mysterious entity is “the root cause of every persecution,” something he reiterated once again in one of the usual homilies held shortly after dawn in a small chapel of Santa Marta where he lives. (9) The late Father Amorth’s assumptions on the possible murder of Emanuela Orlandi, whose body was never found, was partly confirmed by Pope Francis, when he told Pietro that his sister “was in the sky.” An emblematic answer from the Pope himself, that must know she is dead to make this assertion. For this reason a film was made recently in Italy entitled La verità sta in cielo.¹⁰

However Monsignor Simeone Duca in an essay by Mary A. Turi, made some pretty interesting revelations on the Orlandi case and the people behind her disappearance: “As a rule they organized the feasts, which happened also in the headquarters of foreign embassy to the Holy See. In the matter was involved a Vatican gendarme. The idea of the girls was to have fun and earn some money. As for Orlandi, after being exploited, she was made to disappear, and then killed.”¹¹

Going back to Amorth, he kept saying privately to Pietro Orlandi (FIG. 96) that he knew nothing directly on the Orlandi case, and that these were his own intuitions, but were they? Amorth was an idealist, but he remained loyal to the Church, so he couldn't tell everything I'm afraid, as they were constantly monitoring him.

Pope Francis did not clarify the case further, after his words to the brother, Pietro. “Emanuela is in the sky.” The remains of Emanuela were never found, so how does Pope Francis know with certainty that “Emanuela is in the sky” and not in some cloistered convent? Who told Pope Francis that Emanuela is dead, because only in that way she will “go to the sky” that means basically “to heaven.” Bergoglio obviously does not want to talk about it because of the involvement of the Illuminati's Satanic sect within the Vatican. It says a lot about the Satanic spirit that lingers today more than ever in the Vatican, where everywhere you look, you can see disturbing scenarios.

On June 4th of 2012, the Italian newspaper Corriere della Sera, published an article by famous Italian journalist Fabrizio Peronaci, author of one of the most recent books on the case of Emanuela Orlandi, written with her brother Pietro, who reported on a new link with the infamous pedophile priests in Boston. A link which binds the case in some way to Amorth's speech and Satanism, although Peronaci initially does not investigate the Satanic link through Boston, not knowing, as he told me himself, the occult background of the Boston pedophile priests and their passion for Crowleyanity, that I reported in my book Pope Francis: the Last Pope. Dangerous anti-Christian beliefs, which I write about on several occasions in my trilogy, have infiltrated the Church at the highest level, and are linked to the infamous Freemason, occultist and Satanist Aleister Crowley, accused of obscene practices and sexual perversion when he lived in Sicily, in his so-called Abbey of Thelema, before being kicked out by Benito Mussolini. Fabrizio Peronacci, in his investigation, links the Orlandi case to the scandal of pedophile priests in Boston, now a well-known reality around the world, thanks to the movie Spotlight.¹² (FIG. 97) years later), for allegedly having covered up, in the early eighties, sexual abuse by dozens of prelates. A rumor in ecclesiastical circles that many knew. The first point of contact, discovered by Peronacci, was the fact that one of the four letters that the kidnappers of Emanuela sent to Rome was from Boston, where they announced the hostage’s killing, and had the stamp of Kenmore Station, the same post office where this coven of pedophiles in cassocks had opened their own mailbox to contact victims. Perhaps they were sending encrypted messages to their opponents in the Vatican, letting them know that they were aware of the ongoing scandals, and therefore they should have accepted their demands. One was put on the official police report, the other was not. The first letter dates back to the first days of Emanuela’s disappearance, Pietro Orlandi claims, while the second one was used by the pedophile NAMBLA (North American Man Boy Lover Association) and emerged 19 years later.

Peronacci and Orlandi exposed this with the help of a Neapolitan scholar who specialized in the sixteenth century secret brotherhood, a guy named Anthony Goglia, who at the time was 43 years old, a graduate of Political Science and public servant to the City of Naples. He noted that the date of the 20th of July 1983, (the ultimatum given to Orlandi from Boston) adding the number 158 (direct dial telephone to the Holy See) gave some extra clues to solve this case connected to the mysteries of a “strange ancient brotherhood.” Satanism in the Vatican have ancient origins and maybe this was the infamous “Black Lodge” mentioned several times by Aleister Crowley in his studies. However in the late afternoon of September 4th, 1983, a person nicknamed the Amerikano, an anonymous character, called the Italian news agency claiming to hold Emanuela Orlandi hostage. He had a strong Anglo-Saxon accent in his not-so-perfect Italian. The date of the 20th of July was not a coincidence, but a sort of

Memorial Day. Goglia explains why: “In the second half of the sixteenth century at the church of San Giovanni in Porta Latina, with the complicity of some friars, was constituted a secret circle of men who experienced bonds of affection with each other and consecrated themselves to homosexual marriage. The brotherhood was dissolved on July 20th, 1578, after the arrest of 11 males of the sect. The process of the criminal court formed by the governor ended with eight convictions for offenses of sodomy, and for the desecration of the institution of marriage and the sentence imposed was hanging, executed on August 13th at Sant’Angelo bridge, with subsequent burning of the bodies. Is this possible? The kidnappers of Emanuela Orlandi possibly alluded to that 20th of July?”¹³

Pietro, who dedicated years of his life to this case, emphasized during our first of many meetings that the different thesis carried out over the years by various investigative journalists and experts, even if valid, are increasingly focused on a one-sided version of the event, without ever finding links between the various versions. In this way you never have an image of the whole case which can unite the different elements of the truth of this complicated puzzle, to finally find a possible concrete answer about the disappearance of Emanuela Orlandi. Jealous accusations by the different super experts, where everyone wanted to be right, caused everything to be discarded as disinformation. This created disappointment and anger in Pietro Orlandi. We hope that soon things will change and clarity can be brought to this mystery. There needs to be synergy between experts and those who are interested in the case of Emanuela Orlandi, who could lead us straight to the heart of the problem, i.e. Satanism in the Vatican.

And here’s the final indication I received on the Illuminati/Satanic link to this case. Pietro Orlandi in our first face-to-face meeting told me that in the early days after the disappearance of Emanuela, the family received an anonymous message from a person linked to the still operating spiritualist group called “Navona 2000,” created in the 1970s by the famous Italian medium and occultist Fulvio Rendhell (Marilyn Manson’s teacher), who pointed out the involvement of a Satanic cult in the disappearance of Emanuela, mentioning the name of the famous Italian Satanist Efrem del Gatto (pseudonym of Sergio Gatti, 1945 – 1996). This is what Pietro Orlandi told me, confirming another Satanic element in the case. Among the members of “Navona 2000,” were the well-known Satanists Efrem del Gatto, and Evaldo Cavallaro, hypnosis expert and master of subliminal communication, who indicates on his website to this day, Sergio Gatti a.k.a. Efrem del Gatto among his “Life Masters.”

It seems that some members of the group “Navona 2000” had very strong ties with the nascent Italian offshoot of the Ordo Templi Orientis Caliphate, that will develop officially in Rome in 1987, but has its origins in 1982, when the Freemason and Illuminati agent Alberto Moscato receives initiation into the Minerval (0 °) degree in Germany. Then there is a very rare Spanish pamphlet from a few years ago, linked to a traveling exhibition called Viaje al mundo de lo oculto of Pius Freddo. (FIG. 98) In it are many interesting illustrations involving Efrem del Gatto with Satanic ceremonies, witchcraft, evil spells, Satanic artifacts, old prints, and there is a picture where you see clearly the self-proclaimed Satanic leader Efrem del Gatto, and Monsignor Corrado Balducci, while practicing an exorcism together. (FIG. 99) Why this odd partnership for an exorcism? And who is the hooded girl being exorcized in the picture? Perhaps we’ll never know, but Balducci, in 1996, declared that there was a growing number of sects who worshipped the devil and even do human sacrifices. Balducci knew personally, prominent personalities of the Satanic milieu, like Alberto Moscato of the O.T.O., and Efrem Del Gatto, who even supervises an exorcism conducted by Monsignor Balducci. Another interesting element in this case is that Efrem Del Gatto, mentioned in the mysterious message sent to the Orlandi family only a couple of days after Emanuela’s disappearance, had been appointed Commander of the spurious Sovereign Military Order of Saint George in Carinthia through its Grand Master, Luciano Pelliccioni, a Freemason linked to the New World Order, along with subversive plots of NATO’s secret services in Italy. This pseudo-chivalric order linked to the Vatican was investigated by magistrate Giovanni Tamburino, who was investigating the subversive organization “Rosa dei Venti,” an organization similar to Gladio, a sort of local branch of a NATO intelligence service operating in parallel—and on a higher plane—than the officially recognized Italian Intelligence services. The matter will fall into silence after the now deceased prosecutor invoked the “State secret” option to walk out of it untouched. Recently, continuing to investigate the matter, I came to know a mysterious place where Efrem Del Gatto apparently conducted his perverse Black Masses, in the lost city of Antuni in the ruins of Castel di Tora, based at the artificially created Lake Turano, in the province of Rieti. This isolated place, was used for a long time as a Satanic temple by Del Gatto. Another interesting link in this case was also between Efrem and the Magliana Gang, who regularly supplied him with drugs—mainly cocaine, according to people who attended these events and knew him very well. Efrem was working as a drug dealer, to guarantee the constant supply of drugs for his perverse Satanic ceremonies, that may have killed Emanuela Orlandi. However, we concluded that the disappearance of Emanuela might be one of the biggest contemporary mysteries involving the Vatican. (FIG. 100) One, that unfortunately, has no answer to this day, mostly because of the high level people involved. All these years later the Italian authorities seem to have lost interest in the Orlandi case, pushed in this direction as Pietro told me, by the Vatican. I hope my dear readers will keep Emanuela's memory alive, without giving up on wanting to know the truth about this victim of the Satanic side of the Church of Rome.

L'Osservatore Romano, in an article in 2011, act to diminish the world of espionage in relation to the Vatican, however they acknowledge the books related to Father Robert Graham and David Alvarez, who are considered one of the world's leading experts and historians on Intelligence matters. The late Father Robert Graham, after his collaboration with Alvarez, retired to California, and it is here, however, that something strange happened after his death, an event that Alvarez meticulously recounts in the book Spies in the Vatican. After the death of Father Robert Graham in California, his personal library was first transferred to the local archives of the Society of Jesus in Los Gatos, where the various documents and files were indexed in classic Jesuit style, and later boxed and sent to Rome. The Vatican had in fact ordered the California Jesuits to send the immense amount of documents gathered by Graham during his years of work, instantly to the Sacred Palaces of the Holy See in the Vatican. And that's where they are now, according to Alvarez, still under the careful custody of the Vatican Secretariat, without any possibility of access granted to potential external researchers.

Per quanto riguarda la menzione del caso Orlandi, dopo aver sentito Padre Lombardi, e nuovamente Mons. Ballestrero, si è giunti alla conclusione che non è opportuno un cenno al caso. Il fratello della Orlandi sostiene fortemente che ai vari livelli vaticani ci sia omertà sulla questione e si nasconda qualcosa. Il fatto che il Papa anche solo nomini il caso può dare un appoggio all'ipotesi, quasi mostrando che il Papa "non ci vede chiaro" su come è stata gestita la questione. Semmai, si vedrà come andranno le cose e poi si potrà scrivere al Sig. Orlandi una Lettera a firma del Sostituto in cui si esprima la vicinanza del Papa, ma si precisi anche che non vi sono nuovi elementi a conoscenza delle nostre Autorità (sarà eventualmente da studiare molto bene). Il Cardinale è stato informato ed era d'accordo.

Alvarez even says in his book: “Now that the Vatican has decided to confiscate the whole documentation produced by Robert Graham, all that remains are small pieces of information that I managed to salvage.”¹⁴ In short, the Vatican, as usual, does not like external eyes on their own internal affairs, and in what it considers its “State Secrets,” especially those concerning a possible aid to former Nazi’s given at the end of World War II. Alleged Top Secret documents are even said to prove that the Sovereign Military Order of Malta participated actively in the Holocaust. Returning to the Jesuit Father Robert Graham, who obviously worked for the infamous Company of Jesus, an Order which has as its main purpose, the defense of the Holy Father and his interests, which do not always include the truth, even when there are serious shortcomings, or even criminal acts involved. Graham for me is certainly not a new name. In May of 1993, I noticed by chance, in the Italian newspaper Corriere della Sera, an article explaining the true role of the Jesuits in the field of espionage and Intelligence. In their actions, the Jesuits are at times completely opposite with the content of the Gospels, and are often attracted by Satanism, demonstrating a kind of bipolarity, which for me goes far beyond the Machiavellian quote “the end justifies the means.” This inconsistent aspect, is at the heart of the Intelligence world, made even more perverse by their priestly status. Now it’s time to learn more about the network of spies in the ecclesiastical cassock.

Graham was called to duty in the 1990s as a 007 from the Vatican, to go on the hunt for Communist spies in the aftermath of the collapse of the Soviet Union, and was also working with various literary projects with David Alvarez. In an article by Bruno Bartoloni in Corriere della Sera, dating from the summer of 1993, Father Graham speaks, giving us important specifics on the Intelligence services in the Vatican:

Hitler controlled Pius XII, but there were also 007’s in recent conclaves. The Jesuit Robert Graham tells in a still unpublished volume, Vatican Secrets. The masterpiece by Robert Graham, the hunter of the Vatican spies, will probably never be read because it will never be published. “It’s boring, no doubt, is just boring. Blame my style,” explains the now octogenarian American Jesuit. But perhaps it is not necessary to read his spy story. There are six hundred pages that tell the adventures of the Nazi agents who were spying on Pope Pacelli. What he was supposed to reveal has been already revealed on the pages of Catholic Civilization, America and other magazines of the Society of St. Ignatius. For half a century it goes on hunting down spies behind the Bronze Door. Rome has always been and continues to be a city full of spies. The Vatican is certainly guarded and the last conclaves have been, in a particular way. We know that the technicians were called in 1978 to sniff around every corner of the Apostolic Palace with sophisticated equipment. “Nothing can stop a laser or modern technologies listening at a distance,” Father Graham assures with great serenity. It is very likely that not many people know what really happened in the Sistine Chapel, when the electors chose a pope from the East. A 007 Jesuit, who does not love the novels of espionage Le Carre or Ken Follett, is one of four researchers privileged to which Paul VI opened the Vatican secret archives. They were all Jesuits: Angelo Martini, Pierre Blet and the now disappeared Burkhart Schneider. Pope Montini called them to rewrite the eleven white papers designed to respond to attacks launched by the German playwright Rolf Hochhuth against Pius XII for his silence on the Jewish genocide. Would Pope Pacelli have to speak up rather than act on welfare and on a local level? A historical question that will never find definitive answers. For Father Graham there are no doubts whatsoever. A small moral power as the Vatican would immediately pay the expenses of a more energetic action, losing its independence. "The Holy See was not the pontifical of Bonifacio VIII was. They could not launch crusades and large-scale convictions without being immediately put to rest. It would not be difficult or impossible for Hitler to militarily occupy Vatican Hill. The danger for a few months was real." It had to be, it seems, there was SS general Karl Wolff to deal with. At the Nuremberg trial some witnesses have referred to a physical elimination project of Pius XII. But many Jews think that a word more might have forced the managers of the final solution to reflect, as the world "knew." Historians such as Arno Mayer, however, are convinced to unleash "Judeocide," was not only the Semitic ideology, but also an almost casual reason: the turning point of the war and the dimming of the Hitler star deep in the steppes of Russia. Father Graham is from San Francisco. He is considered an heir of Piedmont Jesuits expelled by Cavour in 1848, who ended up on the coasts of California, to be an apostolic space for Alaska among the Indians. He entered the Society and finished his studies, the 007 of the future is to write for an America magazine. Between '48 and '63, he is commuting between Geneva and New York. With a scholarship he goes around the world to find all former diplomats who during the war had played roles.

14 See. David Alvarez, Spies in the Vatican, (Rome: Newton & Compton Publishers, 2003).

... For almost ten years, the three Jesuits spend their lives locked in the Borgia Tower in the Vatican listening to sound files. In addition to the documents for the official volumes, there remains sufficient material to identify tracks and traces of the agents of the five Nazi services: the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Gestapo, the SS, the military intelligence, the Registry of the party employed Martin Bormann and the personal office of Goering interception They are almost exclusively cross-checks. "Some journalists are liars" The temptation to lie for them is very strong.

But they were poorly paid. The most reliable were the agents of the SS, who were badly paid. Now father Graham knows almost all about what he calls the “hard job.” He discovers fake students in Roman ecclesiastical colleges, employee infidels, men like Scattolini, fake journalists, as Domenico Russo, a journalist and classmate of Cardinal Secretary of State Maglione, who found himself, against his will, to be an unexpected and unsuspected agent of the Gestapo. “The best network of agents had been put up to Himmler’s service, Colonel Herbert Kappler, the executor of the Fosse Ardeatine, Von Ribbentrop, jealous of its effectiveness, says father Graham, asked the systematic duplicate reports for the Foreign Ministry.” The control around Pope Pacelli was so tight that she had to use the white telephone to speak with confidence with a partner in the consulting room, as revealed to him by the daughter of general Simon, murdered at the Ardeatine. ... The stories of the California Jesuit have become legends. Every now and then back on the pages of newspapers like the Soviet agent in the Vatican “don” Alexander Kurtna, the prototype of the KGB agents as Catholic seminarians and priests, denounced by Graham in 1981 and came back in the news a few weeks ago. “The department is my hobby,” he says before leaving for Lourdes. “It is time that you think a little more for my soul.”¹⁵

Graham the Vatican Jesuit Spymaster

we now turn to the content of some excerpts from an article by the same Father Robert Graham SJ, on the subject of espionage originally published in 1991 for the journal La Civiltà Cattolica, which is among the oldest existing in the Italian cultural scene belonging to the Society of Jesus. This article was republished in the now defunct intelligence and professional culture SISDE magazine called Per Aspera ad Veritatem in January-April, 1996. It demonstrates the more serious side of the now defunct and professional spymaster of counterintelligence for the Vatican: Robert Graham SJ. Remember, while reading the article, that he is not only a priest, but writes as a Jesuit. Confirming the Jesuit professionalism in the field of intelligence, Graham in the premise of this article shows complete familiarity with the world of international espionage and intelligence, and the fact that he describes in this premise an International Symposium on “The Power and the Secret Service,” which took place in Spain, where the Jesuits have always had the world’s largest archive in the intelligence field, located at the Basilica of St. Ignatius of Loyola in Azpeitia. The news originates from the Encyclopedia of Espionage by G. Muratori, and should help us to contemplate the central role of the Jesuits in the scenario of an international 007. “Introduction on Espionage” by Father Robert Graham SJ:

For some time now the experts prefer to use the term intelligence instead of “espionage.” Not only that, the main agents of this clandestine industry are ready to come out, to the point of appearing in public without hiding their true identity. In fact, last summer, in Spain, an international symposium on “power and the secret services,” was held, which was attended by a large group of former heads of intelligence of different countries, in order to expose, according to their point of view, the meaning and the correct function of what is called “the second oldest profession in the world,” even referring to biblical roots. It was a three-day round table organized at the end of August at the Escorial in Madrid by the Universidad Complutense de Madrid Cursos de Verano. The rank and level of the guests from various secret services was a guarantee of seriousness and reliability. Among those who took the floor were the former head of the French DST (Direction de la Surveillance du Territoire); the former vice president of the Bundesamt für Verfassungsschutz (Bf V), the domestic intelligence service of the Federal Republic of Germany; the former head of the Belgian State Security Services and the former head of the Mossad of Israel. ... They had accepted the invitation from a Soviet KGB general and a former head of the U.S. CIA (Central Intelligence Agency), but both eventually gave up (it was the time of the coup in Moscow). The former head of the Defense Intelligence Agency (U.S. military) took the floor. Last but not least the former head of the Italian intelligence services (SISMI), Admiral Fulvio Martini, also intervened in the debate. At the end of the Symposium, the current general director of Spanish military intelligence (CESID), Emilio Alonso gave his analysis on the mission of Intelligence. The presence of a surprisingly large part of the Intelligence community means certainly that, in the intelligence environment, they agreed on the need to offer the public an authoritative presentation on the work of intelligence agencies.

15 Bruno Bartoloni, Nazi spies behind the door of St. Peter, 19 July 1993, Corriere della Sera.

Of course this was in the early 1990s, and the internet was around the corner, as well as a total reformation of the Intelligence system, but let’s continue with the article:

This does not mean that participants have made indiscreet revelations.

Typically, they seemed to agree in saying that the Mata Hari style, the legacy of the First World War, was outdated, unproductive, counterproductive and even dangerous. This, despite at the Escorial there had been set up a special session dedicated to the role of women in espionage and though the chairman was a woman, a former agent of the OSS (Office of Strategic Services) in Spain during the U.S. war. No one mentioned James Bond or Smiley, perhaps because at the symposium British intelligence experts did not attend, unless you want to consider Christine Keeler (involved in the Bouquet case), who in statements to the press, however, was said to be a prostitute and not a spy. All present were unanimous in saying that the challenge posed by international terrorism required close cooperation between the secret services, including the Soviet one. For once, organisms normally in competition with each other have identified a common goal under which to unite their efforts.

Father Graham then speaks of espionage within the Vatican by declaring:

The attempt on the life of John Paul II, made by international terrorism, has attracted the greatest interest on the Vatican secret services around the world. ... But it is an interest that precedes the rise of terrorism. In recent months, the long supervision exercised by the secret service of the Vatican has become a matter of public knowledge. Last summer we read that Robin Robinson, until recently one of the British intelligence chiefs, said in front of a large British television that “many times” British intelligence intercepted communications of the Holy See. A similar statement has probably surprised no one at the Vatican. The phone, in fact, is notoriously the Achilles heel of privacy. Thanks to technological progress, the wiretaps have become increasingly easy and the telephone communications are more prone to interference, especially through laser beam. Two recent publications are worth quoting to try to understand the interest rationale that nourished intelligence against the Vatican. In the last months of World War II, the American OSS, the head of which was General William J. Donovan, sent an agent to the Vatican with orders to investigate the possibility of a contribution from the Holy See to the process of peace they were trying to accomplish in the Pacific. The agent was almost about to successfully complete the mission, with the help of an official of the Secretariat of the Papal State. The events of this dramatic period are narrated in a book by the agent himself, entitled Peace without Hiroshima. The author is Martin S. Quigley. ¹⁶

Father Graham wonders what there is to know in the Vatican:

The organizers of the Symposium on “Power and the secret services” have also invited observers, historians, journalists and others. One of the contributions (delivered by the writer) was entitled: “The foreign intelligence and the Vatican. As nations have spied on the Vatican and why. For that purpose we propose to draw in broad outline some of their points in the script. What is really to spying in the Vatican?” It is pos sible that this question can be asked by the profane observer. One way to answer and explain this apparent anomaly is to remember that most of the governments have a diplomatic mission accredited to the Holy See. Their ordinary task consists essentially in intelligence work in a “normal,” i.e. to provide to their respective Governments, on an informed basis, reliable and secure relations, related to issues affecting their countries. That is sometimes, especially in time of war, the critical situation and the need for information beyond the legitimate ambassador possibilities. Then enter the scene secret services with their illegal methods. The famous dictum of Clausewitz on war could be read as follows: “Intelligence is the continuation of diplomacy by other means.” An ambassador, at the dawn of diplomacy, was considered nothing more than a “spy.” This profession has since become a respected and recognized instrument of international society. It is possible that Intelligence is heading towards the same process of legitimation? Global intelligence within the Vatican, and then the Holy See, occupies today a much more reliable place. This however is not a consolation for the Pope, who sees his confidential business exposed to the eyes of strangers.¹⁷

Finally here is the conclusion by Graham, where we return once again to reflect on the role of espionage and its link with the world of diplomacy:

We suggested earlier that there is an analogy between intelligence and traditional diplomacy. The history of espionage at the Vatican tends to confirm this view. There is only a difference of means and methods. But intelligence is not limited to passively collect more or less reliable information, it also has the role of facilitating the difficult negotiations. In 1939 and the following years, the German intelligence service, the Abwehr, headed by Admiral Canaris, tried to negotiate peace through contact with Pius XII, without informing Hitler. In 1945, the Second World War came to an end thanks to the work of Allen Dulles of the OSS in Switzerland. It is not surprising that would automatically extend their “tentacles,” even the Holy See, especially in wartime. The neutral countries were at the crossroads of this traffic. We should therefore remain puzzled or surprised by the fact that the headquarters of a world religion, with deep roots and traditions in every corner of the known world, also attracts the attention of the intelligence organizations? ¹⁸

A strange encyclopedia of spies

introduce below, another valuable article that appeared in the early 1990s in the Italian newspaper, Il Corriere della Sera, (FIG. 101) that reviewed the extraordinary essay of the late Spymaster Giuseppe Muratori, which is entitled Encyclopedia of Espionage, Intelligence, spies, terrorists and surroundings, released in 1993 by Edizioni Attualità del Parlamento Ore 12 Il Globo. (FIG. 102) At the time, this book was very useful to me, and thanks to it I could deepen my studies on the reality that surrounded me after my initiation into the Craft in April 1993, when I was catapulted by Prince Alliata, as I wrote in Volume II, into the heart of the international world of spies and intelligence, as well as “irregular” Freemasonry, and the Illuminati, that is to be found at the heart of the New World Order. And even in this article, Giuseppe Muratori speaks of the Society of Jesus. However Muratori, who became one of my mentors, was always very close to the Vatican secret service, which occasionally used him as an external consultant. This is the article, full of incredible information, translated for the first time in English:

SECRET SERVICES: A MONUMENTAL GUIDE TO THE “007’S IN THE WORLD” 4 THOUSAND VOICES AND 650 PAGES FULL OF SURPRISES

The Jesuits? They have a unique archive. Giordano Bruno was an agent of the Queen of England, while Reagan informed the CIA. And the first “James Bond?” That is Sargon, king of Akkad, who lived in 2600 BC. The Cold War collapses and legions of spies remain jobless. Secret agents in layoffs are said to be 150 thousand after the “closure” of the various KGB, STASI, Securitate and Sigurigmi Intelligenc agencies. Like wolves, they may lose their hair but not the habit of intercepting phone calls, stealing codes, creeping into the intricacies of international banks. On behalf of who will they work for now, if the old “Owners” are gone? A question that arises these days amongst (active) services all over the world. This drove Giuseppe Muratori to print a ponderous Encyclopedia of espionage, intelligence, spies, terrorists and the likes, with around 645 pages and 4000 items (Edizioni Attualità del Parlamento, Ore12 Il Globo, 1993-Out of print).

Giuseppe Muratori qualifies himself as an engineer and a journalist, as well as director of a “Research Institute of Social Communications in Turin,” an organization that deserves three pages in his essay. Still Muratori must have learned a lot because, in the route that goes from “A” to “Z,” he offers a historical overview and policy that covers all ages and all continents. It turns out, for example, that James Bond can boast a legendary ancestor: Sargon, king of Akkad. In 2637 BC, some merchants were hired from the Semitic tribes to discover the weak points of Aleppo before delivering the decisive attack on this city. He won, of course. After all, as Flaminio Piccoli admits in the introduction “the secret services and the world of espionage are a necessary evil.” There really is everything in this book. On page 373 stands Mata Hari and after her there is Kim Philby. So far we are in the field of the obvious. Much more fun is “Fire” on page 217, that states: the theft of the “system” to start a fire, can be considered the first case of industrial espionage. This operation was carried out, according to Greek mythology, by Prometheus against Jupiter. The friar Giordano Bruno, aka “Henry Fagot” who lived in London, between 1583 and 1585, was closely following the French ambassador at the court of St. James on behalf of Elizabeth I. And it is no longer a novelty, that Walt Disney in 1954 would receive from Edgard Hoover “the title of Sac, special agent for the contacts.” Robert BadenPowell, founder of the Boy Scouts, is referred to as “Official intelligence Service.” T 10 was the code name used by Ronald Reagan, dismissed with one line in the archives of the Intelligence: “actor, informer of the secret service, president of the United States.” A disturbing chapter covers the Company of Jesus, whose purpose, “is to serve the poor and work in politics in the company of revolutionaries.” I wonder what Cardinal Carlo Maria Martini, Archbishop of Milan and Jesuit would say about this? We also know that the current General Father Kolvenbach “is at home in Cuba because Fidel Castro has been his pupil.”¹⁹ Conclusion: “The Jesuits for the good of humanity, are all informers and their Headquarters in Azpeitia have equal Intelligence archives, if not superior, to that of the CIA.” Not a word, and who knows why, on the activities of Opus Dei. But a great deal of material regards the war with the Communists and the fall of the Eastern Bloc, Latin America, the Middle and Far East, the former USSR and the USA. Diagrams, organizational charts, histories of the leaders, maps of the offices. And flashes of spy-fi, as in the case of “Madness:” in 1985, when the USSR wanted to conquer the world with madness. This is the thesis of William Sargant, a London psychiatrist in Saint Thomas.

He says that Russian policy follows a psychologically determined direction inspired by the experiences of Pavlov on the conditioned reflexes made by dogs. ... there are even practical instructions. Do you want to buy a good professional bulletproof vest? The right address is on page 374, just call them. You want to run away and do not want trouble with the “Missing Persons Unit”? Get in touch with the British and French offices listed on page 288 “offering their services—other literal quotation—to secret agents on the run, freelance spies in trouble. ... addresses and hiding secrets even for common criminals, bankrupt individuals and adventurers.” Italy occupies hundreds of pages of the book, by the heroic Cesare Battisti down. Quite a few years of leads are present in this unusual publication: dozens and dozens of names followed by the description “Terrorist; Marxist” and in some cases even their address and phone numbers. With the exception of Adriano Sofri, a “Marxist from Lotta Continua,” present at page 568.

If the Mafia does not exceed twenty lines of text in Muratori’s book, a deluge of data is given, however, about the Golpe Borghese, Gladio (complete list of all the names that appeared in the various lists) and of course the Red Gladio, the official Freemasonry, P2 (no list given), the famous “Protection account.” A long chapter deals with the “interpreters of Italian mysteries”: De Lorenzo, Miceli, Maletti, Moro, Rumor, Gelli, et cetera. Finally, Dia, SISMI, the Sisd, the Cesis and other acronyms that have recently troubled the sleep of Carlo Azeglio Ciampi. Particularly meticulous reconstruction of the claims of the mysterious Falange Armata. Bettino Craxi: “General Secretary of the Socialist Party, spied on by someone.” Vatican Secret Service: “They are among the most active in the world” (with the corollary of the Vatican Museums: “Always been a good place for meetings of secret agents”). But for what ideals, all these spies will damn their body and soul? “Money: it is the backbone of the secret war.”²⁰ I believe that analyzing this side will reveal a lot more about who the Jesuits really are, the “Secret Chiefs” of international espionage: “The Jesuits are all informers and their Azpeitia Central has an equal intelligence archive, if not superior, to that of the CIA.” (FIG. 103) Maybe this will come as a total surprise to most people, but the Jesuits are in the end not only the New World Order’s Backbone, but the inspiration for Nazism. Adolf

19 Fidel Castro (1926- 2016) was also a 33rd degree Freemason 33° Mason in the A.A.S.R. working under the auspices of the Gran Logia de Cuba.

Hitler's word on his close ties to the Jesuits were recorded in 1939 by Hermann Rauschning, former national-socialist chief of the Danzig government: "I learned much from the Order of the Jesuits," said Hitler, "Until now, there has never been anything more grandiose, on the earth, than the hierarchical organization of the Catholic Church. I transferred much of this organization into my own party. ... I am going to let you in on a secret. ... I am founding an Order. ... In my 'Burgs' of the Order, we will raise up a youth which will make the world tremble." According to Rauschning, Hitler then stopped his speech, abruptly saying: "I can't say anymore."

However, after the war, Walter Schellenberg, former chief of German counter-espionage, finished Hitler's speech, confirming Hitler's strong behind-the-scenes ties to the Vatican and the Jesuit Order: "The S.S. organization has been constituted by Himmler according to the principles of the Jesuit Order. Their regulations and the spiritual exercises prescribed by Ignatius of Loyola were the model Himmler tried to copy exactly. Himmler's title as supreme chief of the S.S. was to be the equivalent to the Jesuit General and the whole structure and direction was a close imitation of the Catholic Church's hierarchical order." ²¹

In 1948, French writer Frederic Hoffet wrote: "Hitler, Goebbels, Himmler and most of the members of the party's old guard were Catholics. It was not by accident that because of its chief's religion, the Nationalist-Socialist government was the most Catholic Germany ever had. This kinship between socialism and Catholicism is most striking if we study closely the propaganda methods and the interior organization of the party." ²²

Quote by Hitler about Himmler: "I can see Himmler as our Ignatius of Loyola." ²³

Aldo Conchione, Gabriella Carlizzi, and Satanism of the NWO in the Vatican turned one day to my old friend, the Marquis Roberto Caldirola, a 33rd degree Freemason, and exGladio operative, to ask him more about Satanism in the Vatican. He replied by talking about the late Aldo

I

Conchione (who died under mysterious circumstances), and who was the central figure of a special tribute/exhibition that took place in Rome entitled One week with James Bond. It was dedicated to the aforementioned Spymaster, Giuseppe Muratori, after his death. Caldirola revealed to me that Conchione was also a former priest, defrocked in order to arrive at the top of the Italian intelligence services, a very unusual story that attracted my attention because of his apparent ties with the Vatican, and some Masonic groups linked to Satanism. So to finally understand a bit more about Satanism in the Vatican beyond mere speculation, I started investigating Aldo Conchione, who as I mentioned, died under unclear circumstances in 2006. Caldirola told me the reason was an alleged blackmail operation involving the Vatican. Such a stunning affirmation by the Marquis was recorded by me on a small camera to guarantee the genuity of my research in the future. Conchione knew too much, and stupidly tried to blackmail the Vatican, asking them for 500 million euros to stay silent about a certain secret affair of unprecedented gravity related to the secret Satanic practices that some priests held both within the Vatican leonine walls, and near Castel Gandolfo. Shocking but true, this actually happened and still happens to this day, unfortunately.

I wondered what could have required his physical elimination, and Caldirola told me clearly that he “was bumped off ” without receiving the 500 million euros he requested, and was found dead with foam coming out of his mouth (typical sign of poisoning), and his pants rolled up only above the right knee. This practice looked typically Masonic, and is usually implemented on an apprentice candidate during the more traditional and classic Masonic rituals, that symbolically signify the sense of compassion that will always be there to oversee his pursuit of knowledge. In this case it seems to me that there was no compassion for Conchione from his alleged Vatican killers, employed by Vatican Freemasonry. This detail and other characteristics far more gruesome, prove some sort of outside signal sent by the people who had eliminated him, to ensure that there would be no subsequent investigation by the judicial authorities and Italian police, who ignored Conchione’s murder.

Gabriella Pasquali Carlizzi published an article that talked about Aldo Conchione on Sunday, March 14th, 2010. She died two months later. Carlizzi was a good investigative journalist and researcher of the many unsolved mysteries of Italy, including the brutal murder of a certain Simonetta Cesaroni, a young girl from Rome found in Via Poma on Tuesday, August 7, 1999. An unsolved case to this day which the 007, Aldo Conchione, proved in some way linked. A case which eventually will lead us directly into the maze of Vatican Satanism, and its Illuminati sects devoted to perverse practices and Devil worship. The late Gabriella Carlizzi died of an incurable disease, like a fast-moving cancer. She wrote this article about Conchione knowing she had nothing to lose, and without fear of reprisals looming in the future. I must admit that Carlizzi, however eccentric in her ways, and at times too fundamentalist in her chaotic views of Freemasonry, was always ready to denounce the enemies of humanity, which she did until the last minute of her life with great courage, beyond the disease that unfortunately led to her premature death. I only spoke to her once, so I knew her only superficially, but some of her close collaborators have speculated about her death. The hospital where she died showed a friend of mine 12 different medical findings soon after her death, a very unusual thing indeed.

Carlizzi revealed that: “In 2004 I was contacted by Aldo Conchione, publisher of the book written by Salvatore Volponi, Simonetta Cesaroni's boss. He told me many things, and we saw each other for a couple of years. One day he came to my house and when he was about to leave, expressed the following: 'If they have followed me, this is the last time we meet. They will kill even me.' It was the month of July, 2006. Conchione was found dead in August of that year. Many people ask me what idea I may have of this crime, and many will judge my idea as fanciful, or far-fetched. However, because I'm dying of cancer, I answer equally without fear of judgments from other people. I think Simonetta Cesaroni of Via Poma was working for the Intelligence services of the time on a 'private affair,' and that the documentation involved interested the dark sides of the Intel community, for deviant purposes."

Simonetta's murder seems to have a strong link to the Emanuela Orlandi disappearance. Simonetta Cesaroni had discovered, almost by accident, in the archives of the same A.I.A.G. (The Italian Association of Youth Hotels), some confidential documents that bore witness to the alleged favors done by the association to the infamous Magliana Gang (Banda della Magliana) linked to the Vatican, the P2 Lodge, and of course Emanuela Orlandi's case.

In an interview with Conchione's old colleague, Alessandro De Vanni, (FIG. 104) a former Italian secret agent of the Italian Military Intelligence and a collaborator of the Central Intelligence Agency, that took place on August 23, 1996, where in addition to the interviewer, journalist Paolo Cantarelli, Ornella Mariani, and the same Gabriella Pasquali Carlizzi were present. Alessandro De Vanni described the true nature of Aldo Conchione and his job in this way:

Aldo Conchione is a senior officer of the Services. They are all characters that approach the person they need to involve, doing often the same game, to the subjects they care to involve in their operations, they promise them media contacts, implementing a fake press conference for them, organizing lunches, dinners. I can guarantee that instead they are all Freemasons connected to international Freemasonry. They have offices abroad, they are part of a homicidal group, that ultimately provide physical elimination of their victims. Aldo Conchione told me one night, that Fabrizio De Iorio was so ruthless as to rape his victims, after which he slowly tortured and killed them, dismembering the bodies, cutting them to pieces and throwing them into the Tiber. He told me that they were brought to the north of

Rome, over the barrier, the dam, and there made to disappear forever. ²⁴

In short, the 007 Aldo Conchione operating for Italian Intelligence, was certainly somebody who knew a lot about the macabre ritual of his colleagues, relating to a mysterious international group of killers and their untold secrets operating in the shadow of the Vatican. In the end Conchione dared the impossible, blackmailing the Vatican and its intelligence services known as The Entity. As a result, Conchione the ex-priest and secret agent/assassin was poisoned. One can not blackmail the Vatican. You end up dead, that's for sure. Anyway, thanks to Conchione we also realized that unspeakable blood pacts and secret deals possibly connect the Vatican with professional groups of assassins, that of course belong to deviant Masonic lodges operating even inside the Vatican. Ties that go far beyond legality, and demonstrate, how sadism and perversion is present in the occult groups operating for the New World Order, dedicated to the physical elimination of their victims, implemented in the most terrible ways.

And here is an Open Letter to President Donald J. Trump (20 January, 2017) written by his Catholic supporters that I regard of great importance to understand the many doubts of traditional Catholics towards the Jesuits Pope and the Intelligence game being played now in the Vatican.

Dear President Trump:

The campaign slogan "Make America Great Again" resonated with millions of common Americans, and your tenacity in pushing back against many of the most harmful recent trends has been most inspiring. We all look forward to seeing a continued reversal of the collectivist trends of recent decades.

Reversing recent collectivist trends will, by necessity, require a reversal of many of the actions taken by the previous administration. Among those actions we believe that there is one that remains cloaked in secrecy. Specifically, we have reason to believe that a Vatican "regime change" was engineered by the Obama administration.

We were alarmed to discover that, during the third year of the first term of the Obama administration your previous opponent, Secretary of State Hillary Clinton, and other government officials with whom she associated proposed a Catholic "revolution" in which the final demise of what was left of the Catholic Church in America would be realized.

Francis has subsequently called into question its own legitimacy on a multitude of occasions.²⁷

25 <https://wikileaks.org/podesta-emails/emailid/6293> † Archived 11th December, 2016.

During the 2016 presidential campaign we were astonished to witness Pope Francis actively campaigning against your proposed policies concerning the securing of our borders, and even going so far as to suggest that you are not a Christian.²⁸ We appreciated your prompt and pointed response to this disgraceful accusation.²⁹

We remain puzzled by the behavior of this ideologically charged Pope, whose mission seems to be one of advancing secular agendas of the left rather than guiding the Catholic Church in Her sacred mission. It is simply not the proper role of a Pope to be involved in politics to the point that he is considered to be the leader of the international left.

While we share your stated goal for America, we believe that the path to “greatness” is for America to be “good” again, to paraphrase de Tocqueville. We understand that good character cannot be forced on people, but the opportunity to live our lives as good Catholics has been made increasingly difficult by what appears to be a collusion between a hostile United States government and a pope who seems to hold as much ill will towards followers of perennial Catholic teachings as he seems to hold toward yourself.

With all of this in mind, and wishing the best for our country as well as for Catholics worldwide, we believe it to be the responsibility of loyal and informed United States Catholics to petition you to authorize an investigation into the following questions:

- To what end was the National Security Agency monitoring the conclave that elected Pope Francis?³⁰
- What other covert operations were carried out by U.S. government operatives concerning the resignation of Pope Benedict or the conclave that elected Pope Francis?
- Did U.S. government operatives have contact with the “Cardinal Danneels Mafia”?³¹

– International monetary transactions with the Vatican were suspended during the last few days prior to the resignation of Pope Benedict. Were any U.S. Government agencies involved in this? ³²

– Why were international monetary transactions resumed on February 12, 2013, the day after Benedict XVI announced his resignation? Was this pure coincidence? ³³

– What actions, if any, were actually taken by John Podesta, Hillary Clinton, and others tied to the Obama administration who were involved in the discussion proposing the fomenting of a “Catholic Spring”?

– What was the purpose and nature of the secret meeting between Vice President Joseph Biden and Pope Benedict XVI at the Vatican on or about June 3, 2011?

– What roles were played by George Soros and other international financiers who may be currently residing in United States territory? ³⁴

We believe that the very existence of these unanswered questions provides sufficient evidence to warrant this request for an investigation.

Should such an investigation reveal that the U.S. government interfered inappropriately into the affairs of the Catholic Church, we further request the release of the results so that Catholics may request appropriate action from those elements of our hierarchy who remain loyal to the teachings of the Catholic Church.

Please understand that we are not requesting an investigation into the Catholic Church; we are simply asking for an investigation into recent activities of the U.S. Government, of which you are now the chief executive.

Thank you again, and be assured of our most sincere prayers.

Chapter VI

II

Beneath the Vatican the Darkest Secrets are Hidden

II

Pope Montini the Freemason

ope Montini, the Pope of the infamous Second Vatican Ecumenical Council, played a key role in the Masonic transformation of the Church even if he was a Freemason. There are still voices of dissent in Italian Freemasonry on Montini's actual Masonic membership. However Bishop Annibale Bugnini, who Paul VI entrusted with the "Liturgical revolution" of the council, (despite the earlier removal of the Bugnini by Roncalli, John XXIII), was a proven Freemason, as well as his bodyguard, Bishop Paul Marcinkus, later linked to the Lodge P2 and the Monte Carlo Lodge of Ezio Giunchiglia. Montini has left many traces of his Masonic links, as I will show you shortly, especially in art works dedicated to him. It is unfortunate that few have noticed such things except a few Catholic traditionalists. I would like to begin with the direct experience of Don Luigi Villa, who denounced them to the competent authorities in the Vatican. An episode of particular interest in his discovery is the five-pointed star on the hand of Paul VI, that was originally inserted in the "bronze door," made for the Second Vatican Council, present in the 12th section of the door, with its Council Fathers. However, while John XXIII and the other 5 Council Fathers were carved with the face looking forward, Paul VI's (on the far right) was carved in profile, so as to present, clearly visible, his left hand up, incidentally having on it a clear symbol of his belonging to Freemasonry: the "Five-pointed Star," or "Masonic Pentalfa." (FIGS. 105, 106, 107)

 Don Luigi Villa describes in his Trilogy the images in question in the following way:

Shortly after the inauguration of the "new bronze door" of St. Peter's Basilica, the undersigned (Don Luigi Villa) went to see it. Watching it closely, I immediately noticed that Masonic sign on the back of the left hand of Paul VI. Then, immediately, I went to a Cardinal to report the matter. He assured me that he would proceed in inspecting it. In fact, when I went back, a short time later, returning to Rome, just to see the "bronze door," I noticed that the Masonic insignia on the back of the left hand of Paul VI had been scraped off. You could see only the red copper now instead. It was clear to me they realized they had been discovered, and those responsible for the fact scraped off the Masonic symbol of the hand, then,—as I saw later myself in another of my trips to Rome—they had replaced the N° 12 panel altogether with another completely new one—the current—on which, however, they will not appear to have the same six figures of before, but only five, as everyone now can see.

FIG. 105 – Original image of the 12th section of the bronze door dedicated to the Second Vatican Council taken by Don Luigi Villa from <http://www.chiesaviva.org/don-luigiil-vittorioso.html>

At this point, Don Luigi decided to expose this in his literary work against Montini, and managed to highlight some very interesting data indeed. And I would like to say that he does this with a great sense of duty, despite the cover-up implemented by the Vatican in relation to Montini's close relation and fascination with Freemasonry. A secret they still want to cover up, even today. I do not always agree with Don Villa's totally Satanic vision of Freemasonry, I found it a bit too generalistic and confused, when this institution has a large presence of true Christians operating for the good of the world. The majority of members are victims of a system that at the top, is at times, ambiguous and false, just like the Vatican hierarchy itself. There is a good and bad side to Freemasonry, also the Jesuit influence on certain types of Freemasonry and their link with the Rosicrucians, or at least certain Rosicrucians is undeniable, and the link between Freemasonry and Western Monasticism is historically proven. Remember my dear readers, Freemasonry was born Christian, but unfortunately the elite transformed it into something of a hybrid, ready to create with its huge and influential network, a support to their growing One World Religion project. Don Villa was basically a good disciple of Padre Pio, a sort of secret agent of the future Saint, who as we know was a simple person, but for many of the faithful, someone on the frontline of the battle against evil and Satan. No wonder Saint Padre Pio was identified as the most dangerous enemy in the den of hypocrites that is Freemasonry in the Vatican, which has nothing to do with true Freemasonry.

Don Villa illustrates the heart of the problem when he writes: “Now, the Church never had any uncertainty or doubt in its fight against Freemasonry; it was only with the advent of Vatican II, and especially with Paul VI, that this ‘new attitude’ reversed the previous position of the Magisterium of the Church, by adopting a more ‘ecumenical’ and ‘liberal’ position with Masonry arriving to the point of saying ‘hope for peace between the two’ A Masonic magazine reads: ‘the Grand Master Gamberini, on the day of Montini’s election to Pope, said: ‘This is the man who does it for us!’”

And after the death of Pope Montini the “obituary,” or better stated the eulogy, of the former Grand Master of Palazzo Giustiniani, Giordano Gamberini, on the Masonic Magazine was unequivocal: “For us it is the death of the one who dropped the condemnation of Clement XII and his successors on us. It is the first time—in the history of modern Freemasonry—that the dying Head of the greatest Western religion was not in a state of hostility with the Freemasons.”

He concluded by making a shocking statement : “For the first time, in history, the Freemasons can pay homage to the tomb of a pope, without ambiguity or contradiction.” Villa added:

There was a private letter, written by a Freemason, a friend of the famous French writer, Count Léon de Poncins, who was an expert on Masonic matters, and co-author of the famous book The Occult War, where we read this sentence: “With Pius X and Pius XII, we Freemasons were able to do very little, but with Paul VI, we have won.”... And what about the unusual gesture of November 13, 1964, when Paul VI laid the triregnum, the high triple crown that symbolically laid claim to papal supremacy over all the kings of the earth, on the altar, definitively renouncing to it? ... A gesture, that was a supposed goal of the “French Revolution” and that binds in part with the findings of the Freemason Albert Pike, known reformer and Supreme Commander of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite when he wrote: “The inspirers, the philosophers and historical leaders of the French Revolution had sworn to overthrow the ‘CROWN’ and ‘TIARA’ on the tomb of Jacques de Molay.” Then Montini during his trip to the Holy Land in 1954, the Mount of Olives, in Jerusalem, embraced the Patriarch Orthodox Athenagoras I, who is said to be a Mason of the 33rd degree. In fact, on the eve of the close of Vatican II, they both took off their respective “Excommunications,” launched in

1054, so as to make a “gesture of Brotherly Love.”

The views that Montini had with the “Liberal Masonic plan” was not a coincidence for the late Don Villa, but can this be proven? Well the latest developments in Church policies implemented by Pope Francis seem to indicate Villa’s worst fears might have actually materialized. However, let’s go back to Montini and his connection with Freemasonry through art, exploring a “masterpiece” of occult mold based on him entitled “The Papacy,” painted by Ernst Günter Hansing (1929 – 2011). (FIGS. 108 and 109) A great documentary still available online, was produced by Ulrich Schmitz.¹ Ernst Günter Hansing was a well-known painter of VIPs, and was also a member of the Pontifical Equestrian Order of St. Gregory the Great, an important order of chivalry of the Papal States and still one of the five pontifical orders of the Catholic Church, that precedes the Order of St. Sylvester. I know that this painting will leave you more perplexed with the presence of its occult symbolism. It is an unconventional portrait of Pope Paul VI, to which Ernst Günter Hansing, in the late 1960s and early ‘70s, dedicated several portraits, but on the contrary of other portraits dedicated to the pontiff, it was in fact the least known to the public, just because it was deemed inconvenient.

The Smithsonian Magazine, in their April, 1977 issue (pp. 60-61), wrote the following about this controversial work of art:

Great patrons of the arts, the Renaissance popes, usually commissioned the artist in their employ—Raphael, Titian, Velazquez—to paint their portraits. The result was some of the greatest paintings ever produced. Since then the practice has fallen off (along with the art of portraiture). So it was with some surprise that the world learned last fall that a portrait had been painted of Pope Paul VI, even though he did not commission it, for that matter, sit for it. Moreover, it was in a semiabstract style unlike that of any previous papal portrait. The artist was a 42-year-old German named

Ernst Gunter Hansing. Pope Paul did not at first respond to having his picture painted with any enthusiasm, but he later relented. Hansing was given a small studio in the building that houses the Vatican gas station, and for the next two and a half years, during 13 separate his visits to Rome, he observed

 FIG. 109 – Ernst Gunter Hansing—“The subject from the front row at Papacy,” painting on canvas from the early 1970s. The finished portrait has been accepted by the Pope. His Holiness described the painting as “a mirror of the situation in the Church today.” Earlier, on seeing a working sketch, he made what was probably his closest approach to art criticism. It was gracefully oblique: “One almost needs a new philosophy to grasp the meaning of this in its context.”

From the Nov. 8, 1971 issue of TIME magazine:

Behind a locked door in Vatican City waits a present for Pope Paul VI that may conceivably please its recipient but has already shocked many who have seen photographs of it. The gift is a large (about 71 ft. by 12 ft.) portrait of His Holiness, painted in a semi-abstract mode, in which the Pope’s emaciated, suffering face and folded hands are the focus of splintering shafts of light. German Painter Ernst Guenter Hansing, 42, sketched his subject during twelve protracted stays at the Vatican over a period of 21 years. Though he never had a private sitting, he was given a front-row seat at papal ceremonies in which to work. “I wanted more than just a picture of a person,” says Hansing, a Lutheran. “I wanted to show the tension-fraught situation of the church, caught in a multiplicity of issues, as reflected in the countenance of the Pope.”

The following is an interesting analysis of the Masonic and Demonic Symbolism in the 1977 “Portrait” of Giovanni Montini/Paul VI made by occult researcher and author Craig Heimbichner. I don’t agree with all of it of course, as I don’t like generalizations in the case of Freemasonry, indicated as only evil, however I find that some points made below by Craig seem to confirm the occult nature of the painting.

1. Three pillars
2. Two columns
3. Crescent moon
4. Various Pentagrams
5. Sphinx at the top of the pillar
6. The columns and angles combine to form a square and compass
7. The point within the circle at the top is an old Illuminati symbol
8. Above Paul VI’s head appears an abstract “eye in the triangle” I.E. the Eye of Horus or Set
9. A dagger is thrust in the papal tiara in the 30th Knight Kadosh Degree; here the pope clutches a dagger with a malevolent look.
10. Inverted crosses are Satanic, but so is Freemasonry

In the cemetery of Verolavecchia in northern Italy, some members of the maternal line of Pope Montini’s family (who are by the way of Jewish descent), are buried. On the grave of the mother of Paul VI, Judith Alghisi, there is clear evidence of Masonic symbols. (FIG. 110) It seems that the Second Vatican Council, between Pope Paul and the influential Jesuit Cardinal Bea, who was also of Jewish origin, was firmly in the hands of the influential Jewish Masonic world, and their new secret deal with the Jesuits. A deal made to implement the New World Order since the end of the Second World War. Going back to the fatal attraction of Paul VI to Freemasonry, which was confirmed to me more than once by different sources within Italian Freemasonry, that also mentioned a Masonic monument dedicated to Paul VI in northern Italy.

The Elixir Vitae

I

In 1962, Maurice Pinay wrote a mysterious book about the Vatican II. Here's an excerpt: "What was accomplished was the most perverse conspiracy against the Holy Church. ... It will seem incredible to those who are ignorant of this conspiracy, which the anti-Christian forces continue to have. Within the Church hierarchy, we find a real 'fifth column' of agents controlled by Freemasonry, by Communism and the hidden power that governs them. These agents are found among those cardinals and bishops who form a kind of progressive wing within the Council."² Under a pseudonym, Maurice Pinay wrote to a large group of clergy of various nationalities (mainly Italian but also South American), led by the well-known conservative Jesuit Father Joaquin Saenz y Arriaga SJ, who strangely enough opposed the council in contrast with the liberal agenda of fellow Jesuit Cardinal Bea. In 14 months, the group of Father Joaquin, compiled a detailed and huge dossier called Conspiracy against the Church, and then sent it to all the Council Fathers of the Second Vatican Council. This was done with the intention to initiate a discussion in the Church about what was happening. Unfortunately, they did not succeed in their mission to stop Cardinal Bea, his Masonic allies were intent on shaping the Second Vatican Council in the shadow of the New World Order. The text begins with these chapters:

- Communism
- Freemasonry
- The synagogue of Satan
- The fifth column in the Church

In 1962, the first edition was given to the press in Rome, in the Italian language. It was followed by editions in Austria (January 1963), Venezuela (late 1963) and Mexico. Archbishop Marcel François Lefebvre (1905-1991), who had even participated in the Second Vatican Council, was not however part of this trend of degeneration. His refusal to obey the Holy See arrived soon after the reformed Roman Missal published by Paul VI in 1969, with the apostolic constitution Missale Romanum of April 3, 1969, when Lefebvre became dissatisfied with the end result, and announced to his seminarians in 1971, the decision to refuse to accept the post-conciliar liturgical reform for reasons of conscience. From that point on his loyalists gathered around the Society of St. Pius X.

Archbishop Lefebvre was somehow linked to the Priory of Sion, as suggested by Michael Baigent, Richard Leigh and Henry Lincoln in their book Holy Blood, Holy Grail, that raised various hypotheses, like the one that Pope John XXIII would have been a Grand Master of the Priory before he was elected Pope, and Archbishop Lefebvre would have been one of its members. On the Internet one finds also another author—anonymous as far as I could verify—who defends that Archbishop Lefebvre would have been the Great Master of the Priory of Sion, instead of Fr. Ducaud-Bourget. The whole history of the Priory of Sion is open to discussion, but various sources suggest it was either Ducaud-Bourget, Catholic rightist Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre, or some sort of triumvirate involving Plantard, an Italian (Merzagora), and an American banker (Gaylord Freeman, from Chicago First National). The “prieure documents” suggest there was a “schism” within the PoS in 1956, between some sort of “Anglo-American contingent” (apparently rightists connected to the Shickshinny Knights of Malta) and the main group. Whatever this “schism” was, it led the schismatics to register the group and its statutes with the French bureau of organizations, giving people their first traceable existence of the group in this year. Plantard claims he healed the “schism” and reunited the group. However to this day two separate lineages exist of the Priory worth mentioning, that seem to represent the two minds of the Order.

Philippe Chérissey’s lineage, whose legitimate affiliation is now in the hands of Jean-Pierre Giudicelli de Cressac Bachelerie.

Gino Sandri ‘s wellknown lineage spread in different orders, and heir to the most controversial Pierre Plantard.

Lefebvre was connected to Chérissey’s lineage, and although the Priory is a fairly recent creation, in some cases it is the repository of much older traditions, especially in the branch directed by my old friend Jean Pierre Giudicelli, (FIG. 111) who works with alchemy,

FIG. 111 – The author and his old friend Jean Pierre Giudicelli de Bressac de la Bachellerie in the headquarters of the Grande Loge Nationale Française in Nice (France) in May, 2016.

and is adamant that the true Priory resides in Andorra. As the Brotherhood of Light teaches “The Truth Shall Set You Free,” and this is for the true Master, is the touchstone of alchemy. But as an intellectual process it has no freeing power. True knowledge reveals its spiritual significance in the life of man. Such truth is freeing, and becomes a transmuting power, when the spirit is completely realized, and there is more than an intellectual perception or opportunity that needs to advance. When correct knowledge is passed on, it inevitably conditions reality for a higher and better method of living. This truth is the Philosopher’s Stone—the Elixir Vitae. It is the fountain of eternal youth that has been sought in many lands. The alchemists, instead of exploring the earth in the hope of finding it already prepared by nature, undertook its manufacture. They diligently worked to prepare a fluid which they styled the elixir of life, in which to bathe would indefinitely prolong both youth and existence. With the philosopher’s stone they would change other metals into gold. But to be able to enjoy this gold they must have life. To reap its advantages in fullness, old age must be defeated and death defied. Therefore, to perpetually rejuvenate themselves, they must prepare this most precious elixir. It was the policy of these alchemists, whatever they sought, to follow closely, though striving to accelerate the processes of nature. One of the biggest contemporary experts on the Elixir Vitae is my old friend, the aforementioned Grand Master and Grand Prior, Jean Pierre Giudicelli, a true Master of life, who I have the honor and the privilege to have known for many years.

Cardinal Siri

I

It is worth mentioning the strange events surrounding the alleged papal election of a dear friend to Marcel Lefebvre, Cardinal Giuseppe Siri, who renounced his papacy in 1958 in favor of another Cardinal, the Freemason, Giuseppe Angelo Roncalli. This unusual event was kept secret, but confirmed in 2003 by the investigative journalist and FBI consultant Paul L. Williams, in his now extremely rare book The Vatican Exposed: Money, Murder, and the Mafia. Williams wrote that he has reviewed a secret FBI report dated April 10th, 1961 that clearly states that the U.S. intelligence services were aware of the fact that Cardinal Siri had been duly elected Pope on the 26 of October, 1958. The secret dossier called “Cardinal Siri” was compiled by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in 1961 for the U.S. State Department, and seems to have been briefly declassified on 28 February, 1994, right at the deadline of the classification, thanks to the law Freedom of Information Act. Paul L. Williams was able to access the document that later seems to have disappeared permanently.³ Williams, considered by some an unreliable source, is the only journalist to capture three first-place Keystone

Press Awards in three different categories in the same year. He has penned articles for major news outlets, including USA Today, The Wall Street Journal, and National Review. A regular guest on such news outlets as Fox News, NPR, and MSNBC, Williams wrote celebrated articles concerning Islamic paramilitary compounds, such as Islamberg, that have been established throughout the country and remains an overall a popular speaker on the Christian circuit. In 2010, he was quoted as saying he had become “a pariah in the publishing world.”⁴ Prior to this, he served for seven years as a consultant to the FBI about terrorist and mafia criminal organizations.⁵ Williams has even been known internationally in the field of security for avoiding an attack on the Canadian parliament and the Canadian Prime Minister, however it seems that the alleged FBI report that documented the papal election of Cardinal Siri is completely untraceable, and, therefore, is not verifiable, and Paul Williams when urged to show this document always refused to do so. On another occasion, the same Williams was sued by McMaster University in Hamilton, Canada, for defamation and for spreading false news. The publishing house that had published his books had to apologize in the end to the university, admitting that Williams' claims had, indeed, no verifiable sources. In any case, this report on the supposed papal election of Siri, which still remains a mystery, being perhaps reclassified as top secret, is something that can unfortunately happen sometimes. In this alleged FBI version of the events, Siri would have been legitimately elected Pope and would have even accepted the election initially, and even chose the name Gregory XVII, but was ultimately forced to renounce to the papacy because of his traditional position often in line with Lefebvre. True or not true, the Second Vatican Council which arose from Pope Roncalli election in 1958, and Pope Montini in 1963, was truly disastrous for the Church. The enemy was literally able to change the Church to favor its nascent ecumenism, like with Pope Francis, who is clearly a globalist and pro-Islamic Pope, which he promotes seemingly every day.

FIG. 113 – Cardinal Siri, as the well-informed Pope Gregory XVII at the conclave of 1958.

There is also a diabolical synchronicity linked to the name chosen by Siri, Gregory XVII, perhaps a coincidence, but surely a very strange one, and liable to create confusion about the identity of the true Pope elected in 1958. The fact that twice in the period immediately following the Second Vatican Council, due to some revelatory visions of a “Divine nature,” two eccentric characters abused, without any real authority, the name of Gregory XVII, appointing themselves as anti-popes through a medium. It is pretty weird, and as many of you know from my writings, such practices are often the gateway to demonic possession. The first claimant was the Canadian Jean-Gaston Tremblay (1928 – 2011), from the schismatic Catholic community, leader of the Apostles of Infinite Love, developed in collaboration with a former French priest, Michel Collin, ex-communicated by Pope Pius XII in 1951, for having once appointed himself as Pope with the name of Clement XV, after receiving a message from the Virgin Mary. It was his deputy JeanGaston Tremblay, to self-appoint with the name in question. This happened after having a mystical revelation in 1967, claiming to be the legitimate successor despite Pope Paul VI, when Pope Montini was still alive and well at the time. A few years later, the strange phenomenon was repeated by Clemente Dominguez y Gómez (1946 – 2005). In May 1976, Domínguez lost his vision in a car accident. He claimed further visions, including visions from Jesus, who he claimed told him: “You shall be the Peter to come, the Pope who will consolidate the Faith and the Church in her integrity, who shall battle against heresy with great power, for legions of Angels shall assist you ... Great Pope Gregory, Glory of the Olives ...” He also claimed that Christ had named him His sub-Vicar, with the automatic right of succession to the papacy after Pope Paul VI. On 6 August 1978, Pope Paul VI died and Domínguez claimed the papacy, proclaiming himself Pope Gregory XVII.

All this sounds crazy, but it is part of a devilish synchronicity. As the duly elected Pope, Cardinal Giuseppe Siri could never carry out his mission, and his name was instead put into disrepute. In fact, even Wikipedia has the courage to include in the list of anti-popes naming Cardinal Siri as Pope Gregory XVII, you can check for yourself at: Other claimants to the name ‘Pope Gregory XVII.’⁶

The ultimate confirmation that Cardinal Giuseppe Siri was actually made Pope were given to me by his last seminarian Monsignor Walter Trovato, (FIG. 112) a chaplain of the State Police and Honorary Canon of the Sovereign Order of Malta. A singular figure who in 2010, created a movement for the defense of the crucifix inspired by the late Licio Gelli, who described the project in this way: “This is my new battle and the color chosen for the symbol refers to the sea, the sky and the apron of the Madonna, the rest is inspired by Saint Francis and the arrows represent the cardinal points.”

I have met several times with Walter Trovato, ending inevitably with a mention of Cardinal Siri, (FIG. 113) who Father Walter Trovato got to know very well as his last seminarian. And I guarantee you that the first thing I asked him about when we got to talking was the election history of Cardinal Siri becoming Pope on October 26, 1958, (FIG. 114) and if it was true or false what Dr. Paul L. Williams (FIG. 115) asserted. To my astonishment, father Walter without hesitation and with his classic smile, not only confirmed the story was true, but also added that almost the same thing happened in the following election in 1963, the one that brought to the papal throne Cardinal Montini as Paul VI. Siri had in fact achieved once again the majority of votes said Father Walter, confirming the fact that Cardinal Siri did take the name of Gregory XVII. So it would appear that Siri was actually elected Pope twice, and twice he was forced to give up his post by Vatican Freemasonry. The French Masonic magazine Humanism, No. 186 of 1989, reports a meeting between the future Pope, Msgr. Roncalli, and Alexandre Chevalier (who became Grand Master of the atheist Grand Orient of France in 1965), in which they reveal the hypothesis that the liberal Lodge L'Etoile Polaire (called the Atelier), was possibly at the origin of the Second Vatican Council. Let me remind you that the Grand Orient of France, is the enemy of "Regular" Freemasonry, especially because of its dangerous diversion from the principles of True Masonry.

The Vatican Mafia 666: obey or die!

I

n 1958, before the conclave, Cardinal Siri was the designated successor of Pope Pius XII, but shortly before the conclave, in September 1958, the journalist and author of the book Nichitaroncalli, Franco Bellegrandi, received confidential information showing the sudden change of course in the Vatican: “I was in a car with a person who I knew was a high-ranking Mason who had contacts with the Holy See.” He told me: “The next pope will not be Cardinal Siri, contrary to what you whisper in some Roman circles, because he is considered too authoritarian. A Pontiff prone to a conciliatory attitude will be elected; and has already been chosen, it is the Patriarch of Venice, Cardinal Angelo Roncalli.” Bellegrandi replied by asking: “Are there elements of Freemasonry in the conclave?” The Mason interlocutor promptly told him “Certainly, the Church is in our hands.” After a short silence he said again, “No one can say with certainty where the head of Freemasonry is. He lives hidden.”⁷

The mysterious events at the conclave of 1958, had as its aim the achievement of the objective that the para- Masonic organization B’nai-B’rith was established for members of the Jewish faith alone. It seems that before the King of the Jews could establish His kingdom in the world, it would be necessary that the Pope is deposed from his seat. See in this regard the book entitled The Talmud Unmasked,⁸ by Reverend I. B. Pranaitis, who was a great scholar of all Talmudic texts. Do not forget that if we are to believe the many testimonials on the election of Siri to Pope, this would lead to a sad observation, namely that the popes from John XXIII, are in fact anti-popes decided by the New World Order, including the current Pope Bergoglio. Although on the list, I don't consider the poor Pope John Paul I, born Albino Luciani (1912 – 1978), who I think is legitimate and a victim of his position, was killed by Masonic mercenaries. Pope Luciani was killed on the 33rd day of his pontificate, a thesis shown in part by the author David Yallop Anthony, in his bestseller In the name of God, concerning the possible death of Pope John Paul I. The interesting thing is that the same Cardinal Siri, while believing the natural cause of the death of Pope Luciani as he explained in a private seminar in Genoa during a dialogue with a group of seminarians in 1987, saw him as a person too weak to deal with that environment. In 1987, during the television show called Yellow, there was an interview with one of the private secretaries of John Paul I, Don Diego Lorenzi, who asserted that the night before his death, around 6:30 PM, the Pope had received in a private audience the Vatican State Secretary, Cardinal JeanMarie Villot also a Freemason, dismissing him an hour later, at 7:30 PM. At the end of the hearing, however, a strange thing happened, and Luciani would complain to Lorenzi of symptoms of a sickness in terms of aches and pains in the middle of the chest, with a strong sense of weight and oppression. Secretary of State Cardinal Villot, Masonic name Jeanni, Lodge number 041/3, initiated in a Zürich Lodge on August 6th, 1966, seems to be in tune with the 666 current, that of the Antichrist, which led him inexorably to act as the evil hitman in the murder of the poor Pope, and not anti-pope, John Paul I. Maybe if Pope Luciani had been alive today today we would not be in this situation both inside the Vatican, with the recent scandals linked to Vatileaks 1 and 2, and outside the Vatican, with the so-called economic crisis created by the unethical and truly satanic system implemented by the international banks. In Europe, each coin of one and two Euro has in fact 6 stars, 6 lines and 6 stars, which is precisely 666, the mark of the Beast. Another victory of the devil and evil in this ignorant civilization full of diabolic hypocrisy and materialism, although gradually the powerful of the ground floor will show their Satanic nature in the coming years more and more, and eventually you will meet the first of the fallen angels.

o further understand the role and the power of Freemasonry in the Vatican, I will speak now of Carmine Pecorelli, better known as Mino Pecorelli (1928 – 1979), (FIG. 116) a member of the mysterious lodge Propaganda 2, who courageously released the only detailed list of Vatican Freemasons ever published. (FIG. 117) Mino was a journalist in charge of political and social inquiry, with his own very unique way. For this purpose Mino Pecorelli created the Osservatore Politico, better known by his initials OP, a controversial monthly newsletter in which he published, up to a few hours until his terrible murder, which occurred on March 20, 1979. Certainly his last article was a strong denunciation towards a certain type of Freemasonry, and is still precious testimony of the true causes which undoubtedly brought him to his tragic death. In his last article he wrote referencing Freemasonry:

Gentlemen and clergymen increase their membership, bloodline princes did not disdain to become its Grand Masters. ... In the premise of The Constitution of the Freemasons (London, 1723) Reverend James Anderson wanted to prove the ideal descent of Masonry from Pythagoreans, the Essenes, the followers of Zoroaster, by the Chaldeans or even by the ancient Egyptians and Chinese. But these connections with theories and institutions go so far back in time, beyond a common trend in the mystery and symbolism, do not help to explain the Masonic origins. As well as it does not help the filiation established by the Templars, the connections with the medieval heretics, with the Renaissance academies, with the so-called Charter of Cologne, with the Rosicrucians of the seventeenth century. More reliable research on the descent from previous guilds, especially builders, from which names and rites would then be passed to a speculative association.

So you can notice from his writing that Mino Pecorelli's position towards Masonry was a very pragmatic and traditional one, indeed. He also wrote in the same article that "Freemasonry was called The Society of Jesus of the Enlightenment." However, Pecorelli was dealing with irregular Freemasonry and untold rules and compromises at the heart of the Vatican, not your average lodge problems. I wonder if he knew this when he wrote: "English Freemasonry wanted to establish itself outside and above political and religious fanaticism struggles, and with such commitment, wanted to enlighten tolerance." But Pecorelli found out there was little tolerance for him in Freemasonry, especially after he exposed the infamous Freemasons operating in the Vatican. Strangely enough at the end of this otherwise Masonic article, that at times seems more of an essay, (FIG. 118 and 119) Pecorelli mentioned the name of somebody who probably wanted to stay secret. I am talking about Antonio Viezzer, colonel from the Italian Military Intelligence, and a big player of the Intelligence game of those days. Some sources have indicated it was Viezzer himself, who actually arranged with the infamous Magliana Gang (Banda della Magliana), Pecorelli's murder. As Wikipedia writes in regards to the Magliana Gang:

The Banda della Magliana was involved in criminal activities during the Italian years of lead (anni di piombo). The Italian justice tied it to other criminal organizations such as the Cosa Nostra, Camorra or 'Ndrangheta, but most importantly also to neofascist activists such as the Nuclei Armati Rivoluzionari (NAR), responsible for the 1980 Bologna massacre, the secret services (SISMI) and political figures such as Licio Gelli, grand-master of the freemasonic lodge Propaganda Due (P2). Along with Gladio, the NATO clandestine anti-communist organization, P2 was involved in a strategy of tension during the years of lead which included false flag terrorist attacks. These ties, underground compared to their standard (i.e. “run-of-the-mill”) activities (drug dealing, horserace betting, money laundering, etc.), have led the Banda to be related to the political events of the conflict which divided Italy into two during the Cold War, and in particular to events such as the 1979 assassination of journalist Carmine Pecorelli.⁹

This was an assassination commissioned by Italian politician and Opus Dei agent, Giulio Andreotti, Grand Master of a secret Illuminati sect called “The Ring.” The only person who tried to stop Pecorelli from being assassinated by “The Ring,” was Pecorelli’s Worshipful Master, Licio Gelli, (FIG. 120) who tried several times to convince Andreotti to not proceed with his murderous plan against Mino Pecorelli, warning him about the danger of killing one of his own Freemasons. This is something that went against the unwritten rules and codes of the New World Order. However, even in the years following his brutal murder, Pecorelli’s memory was persecuted with terrible accusations and infamies, whose family never received any true justice for his death. In fact Giulio Andreotti, and Mafiosi Gaetano Badalamenti, initially charged with his murder in 2003, were completely acquitted. In 1999, gangster Massimo Carminati of the infamous Magliana Gang (the assassin who actually shot him), was proclaimed innocent, becoming later on one of the key figures of the so-called Mafia Capitale scandal in Rome, that involved in recent years, a network of corrupt relationships between politicians and criminals in the Italian capital, that misappropriated money destined for city services. I know this all sounds very Italian, but unfortunately this is why the administration of the city of Rome is so impossibly inept today, and tourists from all over the world can see rubbish and crime at every corner. The Vatican gangsters are to blame for this situation, that’s for sure.

homas D. Williams, PH.D. wrote in an article for Breitbart.com in November, 2016:

Cardinal Raymond Burke insisted that Pope Francis must clarify serious doctrinal doubts arising from his teaching letter, Amoris Laetitia, or the Cardinal will be forced to initiate “a formal act of correction of a serious error.” ... In September, four top Catholic cardinals including Burke wrote a private letter to Pope Francis asking him to clarify five serious doctrinal doubts proceeding from his 2016 apostolic exhortation Amoris Laetitia (The Joy of Love) concerning Holy Communion for the divorced and remarried, the indissolubility of marriage, and the proper role of conscience. When the Pope failed to reply to the Cardinals’ letter, they proceeded to publish it online on Nov. 14, hoping to solicit a response. In an interview with Edward Pentin of the National Catholic Register, Burke said that although it is “quite rare,” Catholic tradition allows for the practice of correction of the Roman Pontiff, something that may become necessary.

In recent years in the Vatican, there has been a titanic clash between Opus Dei, the Knights of Columbus (commonly referred to as K of C), and their boys in the Sovereign Military Order of Malta (commonly referred to as SMOM), competing for influence over the Vatican’s spiritual and financial assets. Carl Anderson, 13th supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus, was appointed in 2009 by Pope Ratzinger to a five-year term on the board of supervisors for the Institute for Works of Religion (IOR), also known as the Vatican Bank. This was a period that saw various scandals and ultimately the resignation of Pope Benedict XVI, after the Vatican bank’s board had Gotti Tedeschi, from the Opus Dei, removed from his role as president of the IOR in 2012, with a communiqué signed by the same Carl Anderson which was generally seen as an unprecedentedly harsh document in the history of the Holy See. The Knights of Columbus, though only founded in 1882, with their headquarters in Connecticut in some remote abbey or church, boasts a wealth of $17 billion, and 1.8 million members. In an article by the Italian Journalist Marco Lillo, posted in the Italian newspaper, Il Fatto Quotidiano (07/06/2012), entitled The Cold War between Opus Dei and U.S. Lobby, we find this description for the Knights of Columbus referred to as: “A sort of brotherhood similar to the institution of Freemasonry, which nevertheless has its own task to cope with the increased weight of Masons in the Church.” This statement is only partly true, but let’s focus on the origins of the Knights of Columbus, to understand who they are and who is behind them, and behind their Supreme Leader Carl Anderson.

The Knights of Columbus was founded by Father Michael J. McGivney (1852 – 1890), (FIG. 121) the American son of Irish emigrants, and trained by the Jesuits at Saint Mary College in Montreal, Canada. In an excellent biography by Douglas Brinkley and Julie M. Fenster entitled Father

Michael McGivney and American Catholicism (HarperCollins, 2006), it stressed the fact that he wanted to become a Jesuit at all costs. So Father Michael wanted to become a Jesuit, but then for some “strange reason” he became instead the classic priest of a small church in some remote town that somehow creates one of the most powerful organizations in the Catholic Church. There must be a specific project that made this man and his creation, the Knights of Columbus, so influential in less than a hundred years, giving them in recent years the possibility to control the much older order of the Knights of Malta. The Jesuit connection is, of course, crucial to our history, as Michael J. McGivney had been trained to become a future Jesuit priest, and it can't be found, in any publication, that he actually didn't become one.

Perhaps his mission for the Company of Jesus was different, how it often happens for the Jesuits. Discretion and camouflage presented him to the world as a “simple” secular priest, but he certainly was more of a Jesuit in his mindset and spirituality. The Knights of Columbus is one of the Orders in charge of the New World Order, and it is good to immerse ourselves in a deeper study, even if Jeb Bush, one of its better known members, fortunately didn't make it to the White House. The symbolism used by the Knights of Columbus seems to me to be pretty obvious, and overtly fascist. They are known by the initials K which stands for Knights—and C, that is Columbus, (FIG. 122) who inspired them, and was led, as we know from recent studies, in his voyage to the Americas, by secret maps put together centuries earlier by the Knights Templar. They are considered the long arm of the Catholic Church, and the true head of the Knighthood is not Anderson, still an influential figure, but behind him, according to some American researchers, the General of the Jesuits is concealed. Therefore, the Knights of Columbus would only be mere executors of the Jesuit agenda for America and the rest of the world, where they act using as their henchmen the Sovereign Military Order of Malta. Of this I have had confirmations both in my research and in my personal experience with them, and the Jesuits. The skull and crossbones that appears in ritual clothing of the Knights of Columbus in their Chapters (their lodges) is very eloquent indeed, (FIG. 123) and the Bush family, which as you know is involved with the management of the Order of Skull and Bones, one of the most infamous and discussed U.S. secret societies (which has its headquarters at Yale University), is directly involved, although they are Protestants, with the Knights of Columbus. Jeb “the low energy guy” who has unsuccessfully tried to achieve the presidential nomination, was named Knight of the third degree Knights of Columbus in 2004, and his brother George W. Bush, maintains close ties with the former Supreme Knight of the Knights Virgil Dechant the twelfth Supreme Knight of the Knights of Columbus from January 21, 1977 to September 30, 2000 (George W. Bush admitted this at the 132nd annual Convention of the order.) So are the Knights of Columbus and Freemasonry compatible? Paul F. Boller, Jr. and John George write in They Never Said It: A Book of Fake Quotes and Misquotes, & Misleading Attributions:

Sometimes, those seeking to encourage hatred and dissent try to ferment trouble between groups whom they think are, or should be, “natural enemies.” This tactic can garner interest but in the end, it is always revealed as a hate tactic. Such have been the attempts at pitting the honorable Catholic religious fraternity, the Knights of Columbus, against Freemasonry. A bogus Knights of Columbus oath was circulated in the early 1900s as an anti-Catholic tactic designed to inflame Protestants and others. Although branded by a U.S. Congressional Committee in 1913 as a fake used by American bigots, the bogus oath was used against Democratic candidate Alfred E. Smith in the 1928 presidential campaign and again against John F. Kennedy, in 1960, in the West Virginia Democratic primary. This oath resurfaces from time to time to be used by—strangely enough—individuals whose hatred for the Catholic Church seems exceeded only by their hatred for Freemasonry. The fake oath reads: “I do promise and declare that I will, when opportunity presents, make and wage relentless war, secretly and openly, against all heretics, Protestants and Masons, as I am directed to do, to exterminate them from the face of the whole earth; and that I will spare neither age, sex, nor condition, and that I will hang, burn, waste, boil, flay, strangle, and bury alive those infamous heretics; rip up the stomachs and wombs of their women, and crush their infants’ heads against the walls in order to annihilate their execrable race.” The Knights of Columbus organization has a proud history. There are a number of Masons who are also involved members of the K of C and it is not unusual for K of C Councils and Masonic Lodges to share an annual ‘Fellowship Breakfast’ or other activities in the interests of fraternalism.¹⁰

Both the SMOM and the K of C were crucial in their support to Republican politics in recent decades. George W. Bush would never have become President without rigging the elections, thanks to his brother Jeb, who as I mentioned earlier, is a member of the Knights of Columbus. Donald J. Trump has the full support of part of the K of C, and the SMOM, for his presidential project, but with Donald J. Trump, the New World Order will have their biggest challenge to date. The Vatican seems to be reacting, waging a war against the SMOM, suddenly trying to limit their power and sovereignty. This means that when the Masonic Brothers are not in line with the Jesuit agenda, like in the case of their support of Trump, they are immediately restricted with some excuse. So let's see what has happened in recent months to the Order of Malta, always keeping in mind that the Knights of Columbus are the real controllers of the Order, and that many of them are Freemasons, as leading experts Paul F. Boller, Jr. and John George have stated in their work also cited by Masonic Info.

Has a war against President Trump reached the Knighthoods and Freemasonry? In January, 2017 the Catholic Herald writes shocking news that involves the Knights of Malta:

The Knights of Malta, the ancient Catholic lay order, is refusing to cooperate with a Vatican investigation into the sacking of a top official over a condom scandal—and is warning its members to toe the line if they choose to speak with investigators. In a statement released on Tuesday, the Knights called the investigation legally “irrelevant” and aimed at limiting its sovereignty. It insisted that the ousting of its grand chancellor, Albrecht von Boeselager, was an act of internal governance that in no way involves religious superiors. The order told its members that if they speak with Vatican-appointed investigators, they cannot contradict the decision of the order's leadership to replace Boeselager. Boeselager was suspended on December 8 after he refused a demand by the top Knight, Fra' Matthew Festing, to resign over revelations that the order's charity branch distributed tens of thousands of condoms in Burma under his watch. Church teaching forbids the use of artificial contraception; Boeselager has said he didn't know about the condom distribution program and eventually stopped it when he learned of it. ¹²

Knights of Malta as a result of this new confrontation between the different factions of the elite? It has emerged that during a meeting between Pope Francis and Cardinal Burke in November 2016, about the scandal of the Knights of Malta distributing condoms and oral contraceptives in Africa, the Holy Father instructed Cardinal Burke to “clean out” Freemasonry from the order. The Holy Father gave this order to Cardinal Burke in his role as patron of the Knights of Malta, by papal appointment. The Vatican journalist Edward Pentin revealed details of Pope Francis’ concerns about the influence of Freemasons on the Knights of Malta:

FIG. 122 – The symbol of the Knights of Columbus also known as the K of C.

Hope that the contraceptive scandal would be addressed came on Nov. 10, when Cardinal Burke was received in private audience by Pope Francis. During that meeting, the Register has learned, the Pope was “deeply disturbed” by what the cardinal told him about the contraceptive distribution. The Pope also made it clear to Cardinal Burke that he wanted Freemasonry “cleaned out” from the order, and he demanded appropriate action. The concern was followed up by a Dec. 1 letter to Cardinal Burke, in which the Register has learned that the Holy Father underlined the cardinal’s constitutional duty to promote the spiritual interests of the order and remove any affiliation with groups or practices that run contrary to the moral law.

Edward Pentin also reported that:

The ongoing wrangle, which Vatican Secretary of State Cardinal Pietro Parolin has described as an “unprecedented crisis,” first became public after the grand master of the Knights of Malta, Fra’ Matthew Festing, dismissed Albrecht Freiherr von Boeselager as grand chancellor (the order’s third-ranking official) on Dec. 6, accusing him of being ultimately responsible for the distribution of contraceptives through the order’s humanitarian agency, Malteser International.¹³

So Boeselager was dismissed as grand chancellor following an internal investigation by the Knights of Malta, but the situation is still chaotic in the Order of Malta and it is the reason why the head of the Knights of Malta, Fra’ Matthew Festing agreed with Pope Francis’ request to resign from his post at the end of January, 2017. For some experts it is not clear why Pope Francis specifically identified Freemasonry as a problem in his response to the evidence presented by Cardinal Burke during the November, 2016 meeting, but the truth is that the Jesuits and Pope Francis know very well who is pulling the strings behind the Knights of Malta. That is, of course, their own creation, the Knights of Columbus, who are full of influential people in the Church, and the Jesuits in particular, recluded amongst Freemasonry, and now want to prevent them from staying within both worlds. With the election of Donald J. Trump, Pope Francis and his Jesuits are basically in front of a growing Masonic rebellion within the New World Order. Already during his in-flight press interview back in July, 2013 Pope Francis expressed his first concerns about the influence of Freemasons on the Church: “The problem is not having this [homosexual] orientation. No, we must be brothers and sisters. The problem is lobbying for this orientation, or lobbies of greed, political lobbies, Masonic lobbies, so many lobbies. This is the most serious problem for me.”¹⁴

In all this mess made up of secret societies and knighthoods there is also The International Order of Alhambra. (FIG. 124) This pseudo-Muslim Order is what the Shriners are to Freemasonry. They even wear fez hats like the Shriners, but they are white instead of red. We are now in full swing with the era of the Antichrist, that will soon be fully revealed to the world in the shape of a man.¹⁵ An era where nothing is as it appears, because Satan for the Illuminati is actually what you define today as an alien entity. Remember the words of UFO expert Dr. Jacques Vallee: “What the public learns about the [UFO] phenomena comes from that small portion of the facts that has been preselected by believers to promote enthusiastic support for the extraterrestrial theory.” However despite efforts to control what you know about UFOs, the occasional warning does leak out. A few years ago, a former head of the Armed Forces helped to form a pressure group, warning of the Satanic nature of many unidentified flying objects. Admiral of the Fleet Lord Hill-Norton, Chief of Defence Staff, 1971-73, was involved with UFO Concern, worried that some UFO encounters are “definitely antithetical to orthodox Christian belief.” The Rev. Paul Inglesby, a sub-deacon of the Orthodox church, who was the secretary of UFO Concern, said the truth about UFOs had been suppressed for many years. He had never seen a UFO himself but knew many who had. “It is what they do and the messages that come from them are anti-Christian, or demonic.”

Gordon Creighton, a Buddhist who edits Flying Saucer Review, said the group’s founders were right to be concerned: “I do believe that the great bulk of these phenomena are what is called Satanic.”¹⁶ Satan has devised the delusion that mankind is entering into an important evolutionary phase—a New Age. The push for “global enlightenment” has now extended to the vast reaches of the universe, into what could be deemed as a “space” religion. However, once this nebulous veil is lifted, a definite correlation emerges between the UFO/

Alien phenomenon and occultic/satanic activity. The ancient civilizations of the Egyptians, Babylonians, Aztecs, Mayans, and Incas share several intriguing characteristics: 1 They were extremely advanced scientifically and technologically. 2 Animal and human sacrifices were performed at an alarming rate, preceding their demise.

3 They believed they had acquired metaphysical knowledge from the “gods,” whom they perceived as coming from the stars and also the subterranean level of the earth.

4 These cultures disintegrated or became abruptly extinct while at the pinnacle of their existence. Many of these revered and feared entities were described as winged-reptilians or dragons. Similarly, Satan and his minions were depicted in an identical manner, as seen in artwork throughout the centuries.

A monograph entitled , Reality of the Serpent Race, by Commander X and Branton, reveals, “In Genesis 3 we read about the ‘Nachash;’ Hebrew word for ‘Serpent.’ The original Nachash was not actually a snake as most people believe, but an extremely intelligent, cunning creature, possessed with the ability to speak and reason.”

Another significant parallel from the Holy Bible is shown in Jeremiah 8:17, “Behold, I will send serpents, cockatrices among you, which will bite you, saith the Lord.” The definition of a cockatrice is a reptilian bird-like creature or winged-serpent. This could very well represent the Phoenix, described in Egyptian mythology. A theory proposed by Bible scholar I.D.E. Thomas, who asserts that the race of the “Nephilim” (meaning Giants and/or fallen ones), mentioned in Genesis 6:4 and Numbers 13:33, closely resemble the alien race of the blond Pleiadian Nordics, reported to be eight to nine feet tall. The Nazis attempted to revive this mystical Aryan race in the 1930’s and 1940’s. Mr. Thomas believes that a hybrid offspring culminated from relations between the Nephilim and the “daughters of man” resulted in increased wickedness upon the earth; and thus evoked God’s wrath in the form of the “Great Flood.” Interviews taken of ex-Wiccans and Satanists (now Christians), indicate a high level of personal contact with various alien types, especially during coven meetings and holiday rituals. Those coming from the highest echelon of Satanism known as the Illuminati, believe the original people who inhabited the earth descended from Mars via the Moon. They believe the first established civilization was Atlantis.¹⁷

Author Davy Russell wrote:

For over 200 years in England, thousands of men and women were found with strange marks on their bodies, mysterious illnesses, or what appeared to be supernatural abilities. They were sentenced to death by the church for being witches and making covenants with the devil. In December of 1997, a 17-year-old boy was brought before a Romanian priest after coming down with a mysterious illness. The priest performed an exorcism on the youth believing that his unexplainable condition was caused by a demon. In January 1998, a New York mother and her older daughter were indicted after suffocating a younger member of the family during an attempt to exorcise a demon from the teenage girl. There are thousands of stories throughout history similar to the affore mentioned ones, all of which are negative or unexplainable phenomena blamed on evil figures of every religion in the world. Christians attribute addictions, bad habits, temptations, and illness to Satan. Pagan cultures have their own evil spirits or angry gods who take the blame. However, others who deem the belief in God or Satan as unscientific will readily ignore the fundamental laws of physics, biology, psychology, logic, etc. and blame negative paranormal phenomena on extraterrestrial beings from other worlds. Many UFO believers blame cattle mutilations, crop circles, abduction experiences, some nightmares, electronic disturbances, strange creatures such as Mothman and the Chupacabra, even some human disappearances and deaths on sinister gray aliens. If they don't blame the otherworldly, governments often take the blame. Is this the roll of the extraterrestrial in today's society—the evil devil tormenting mankind? There is often a direct link from the UFO phenomena to the occult. They appear to coincide and are similar in many aspects. Some believe that alien beings are actually demons, while the Skeptic's Dictionary makes a great observation suggesting that aliens have taken over the Devil's role. What do you think? Please read the following statements from Ufologists and paranormal researchers:

JOHN A. KEEL —Author of Mothman Prophecies and other books on UFO phenomena said, "The UFO manifestations seem to be, by and large, merely minor variations of the age-old demonological phenomena.”

RAYMOND FOWLER—Author of five books on UFOs wrote: “I (have) watched in dismay as a number of respected UFO researchers moved from a physical to a parapsychological interpretation of the bizarre UFO phenomena. ... Now, I am being forced to reexamine the UFO phenomena in light of its apparent parapsychical nature.”

DR. JACQUES VALLEE —Prominent UFO researcher who made several statements on the subject: “We are dealing with a yet unrecognized level of consciousness, independent of man but closely linked to the earth. ... I do not believe anymore that UFOs are simply the spacecraft of some race of extraterrestrial visitors. This notion is too simplistic to explain their appearance, the frequency of their manifestations throughout recorded history, and the structure of the information exchanged with them during contact. ... an impressive parallel can be made between UFO occupants and the popular conception of demons. ... The ‘medical examination’ to which abductees are said to be subject, often accompanied by sadistic sexual manipulation, is reminiscent of the medieval tales of encounters with demons. It makes no sense in a sophisticated or technical or biological framework: any intelligent being equipped with the scientific marvels that UFOs possess would be in a position to achieve any of these alleged scientific objectives in a shorter time and with fewer risks.” LYNN E. CATOE—Senior bibliographer for a publication listing over 400 pages of UFO literature in 1969 claimed that, “A large part of the available UFO literature is closely linked with mysticism and the metaphysical. It deals with subjects like mental telepathy, automatic writing and invisible entities, as well as phenomena like poltergeist manifestations and ‘possession.’ Many of the UFO reports now being published in the popular press recount alleged incidents that are strikingly similar to demonic possession and psychic phenomena.”

DR. PIERRE GUERIN —Scientist with the French National Council for Scientific Research stated that “(UFO) behavior is more akin to magic than to physics as we know it. Adding also that, “the modern UFOonauts and demons of past days are probably identical.”

TREVOR JAMES —UFO researcher said “A working knowledge of occult science ... is indispensable to UFO investigations.”¹⁸
The New Age, according to the objective of neo-theosophist Alice Bailey, would have to “transform” and influence the mass consciousness as I demonstrated in Volume II. For the Illuminati network behind the New World Order, this is the advent of the New Age, in which the old world dominated by Christianity would give way gradually to a polymorphic spirituality without dogma, thanks to a “leap in consciousness” where everyone will be illuminated and will have no further need for mediations or hierarchies; but it is also, perhaps, the advent of the Aeon of Horus envisioned by occultist Aleister Crowley, (whose libertarian views, deeply inspired the “counterculture” of the 1960s), preparing for the arrival of ‘ the Antichrist, who would merely be the “liberator,” the bearer of the new law, as quoted by Crowley himself in the Book of the Law.

The so-called “counterculture” of the 1960s was in fact dominated by this “Messianic” thought, and the advent of a new spirituality destined to omit old religious traditions. The same guru of the psychedelic movement, Timothy Francis Leary (1920 – 1996), founded a kind of brotherhood where LSD became the acronym for League of Spiritual Research, and in which this controversial drug was proposed as “the new sacrament” which would open the doors of consciousness for the men and women of the Age of Aquarius. To celebrate the entrance in the Age of Aquarius, on the 14th of January 1967, the various hippie “tribes” and their leaders gathered in San Francisco to celebrate the famous Hindu Kumbh Mela, a mass Hindu pilgrimage of faith in which Hindus gather to bathe in a sacred or holy river. This event that would go down in history as the Human Be-In, that saw thousands of people hypnotized by LSD and dressed to resemble the Indian sadhu celebrating the birth of a “new religion without churches or cults.” Proposing and organizing all this was one of the most prominent leaders of the counterculture of the time, including John Starr Cooke, tied to high finance circles and of course the CIA, as well as an early proponent of Crowleyanity. In Acid Dreams, Martin Lee and Bruce Schlain, wrote that Cooke had a deck of tarot cards that belonged to Aleister Crowley, with notes written on them by Crowley himself. Cooke was born in 1920 to a wealthy Hawaiian family, and traveled the world in search of mystics and magicians. Today we can finally understand that back then, globalist powers, intelligence agencies and occult orders, were intertwined in the psychedelic movement, and at the same time creating a new paradigm of man, functional to the development of the New World Order. The New Age produced a “State of mind” —a way of understanding the relationship with the “Sacred” dominated by absolute individualism, and in which elements taken from ancient traditions are reassembled in ever new forms, possibly compatible with the “tastes” of post-modern man.

The heart of New Age thinking is neither recent nor original. It is, essentially, a very “vulgarized” form of Theosophy in which elements borrowed from Eastern traditions are immersed in a melting pot where we find many different elements. We have the Mayan tradition, the Sufi one, the Celtic, the Egyptian, and even a touch of Gnostic and Chinese. We may find in this New Age mess traces of supposed “revelations” received by extraterrestrial beings, often through “self-initiations” of various kinds. However the term New Age long preceded the era of so-called “flower children” in the Summer of Love, in fact it is even found in the “spiritualistic revelations” received by the Fox sisters in 1848, (the creators of the modern Spiritualism), and as I mentioned earlier, it was also the name of an official journal of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite published in the USA.

Kate Fox (1837 – 1892), Leah Fox (1814 – 1890), and Margaret (Maggie) Fox (1833 – 1893) were three American sisters who played a key role in the birth and the spread in Anglo-Saxon countries of the Spiritualist movement. And one of the first “revelations” received from them explicitly announced the coming of a New Age. In the 1930s, the term New Age was adopted by Alice Bailey, who more directly inspired the gurus of the 1960s counterculture. Whatever its essence, the spirit of the New Age has become, in recent years, a widely present reality in public opinion, that points to absorbing those poor souls disillusioned by certain forms of Christianity like Catholicism, reduced to mere moralizing systems full of hypocrisy and double standards in the hands of the usual “Jesuit Mafia.” According to Michel Lacroix, philosophy professor and researcher at the University of Evry, and the author of a controversial essay entitled The ideology of the New Age, the New Age phenomenon, apparently libertarian and individualist, hides in fact a “totalitarian” trend that pushes to “annihilate” and destroy people’s spiritual identity, drowning its followers in a relativistic amalgam that, according to the scholar, is the ideal spiritual form “for those who want to impose a single world power.” Another interesting element in the New Age saga is that towards the end of his career as “psychedelic guru,” Timothy Leary suddenly became interested in contact with “alien intelligences.”¹⁹ Leary and other psychedelic gurus manipulated by the Illuminati Network will be neither the first nor the last to move from “alternative spirituality” to “alien” belief, a fate indeed shared by much of the New Age galaxy of today, that seems to have found, in the extraterrestrial “Faith,” a real substitute for God.

Terence McKenna and his brother Dennis, both New Age gurus of DMT, and proponents of parapsysics, John Keel (1930 – 2009) and Jacques Vallee (b. 1939) , have brought the issue of extraterrestrial contact to its primitive scope, that being the altered state of consciousness. Jacques Vallee, who worked for NASA in the early 1960s, and had taken part in the NSF computer networking project which was to give birth to the first conferencing system, ARPANET, long before the advent of the internet, published Passport to Magoni : From Folklore to Flying Saucers (Henry Regnery & Co., Chicago, 1969). Bringing together elements of medieval European folklore and contemporary “extra-terrestrial” phenomena, he attempts to prove a structural continuity between them. Vallee was chosen by Steven Spielberg as his model for the character of the French scientist Lacombe in Close Encounters of the Third Kind, a propaganda movie showing the “good side” of the “aliens.” However, Vallee disapproved of the Jewish filmmaker’s presentation of extraterrestrials as harmless “brothers.” “What is the purpose of the appearance of the UFO’s?,” asked Italian Illuminati Julius Evola. For Jean Robin, there is absolutely no doubt this phenomena is meant to prepare public opinion worldwide for the coming of the Antichrist, which, according to Christian tradition, will pretend to be the “Second Coming’ of Christ.” McKenna was especially keen to rail against the limited and “materialist” vision of the ufologists, sarcastically inviting them to experience a trip with DMT, to understand the true “nature” of the aliens: “The feeling of doing DMT is as though one had been struck by noetic lightning. The ordinary world is almost instantaneously replaced, not only with a hallucination, but a hallucination whose alien character is its utter alienness. Nothing in this world can prepare one for the impressions that fill your mind when you enter the DMT sensorium.”

19 See. Leo Lyon Zagami, Enrica Perucchiotti, I Maestri Invisibili del Nuovo Ordine Mondiale, (Rome, IT: Terre Sommerse, 2013), pp. 119, 120, 121.

Terence McKenna proposed that the transpersonal dimension of the Wholly Other that one can experience on psilocybin or DMT/ayahuasca, is in fact, the true Alien, and that Humanity was approaching an event-horizon where we were increasingly making contact with this “alien intelligence” in the psychedelic realm of pure information.²⁰ For Terence McKenna, the UFO—the shiny disc in the sky—is actually an object from the Human Unconscious, from “this murky region, beyond the end of history, beyond the end of life” that is a premonition of the arrival of this singularity, the Eschaton, and the realization that the Alien was Us all along. When McKenna questioned shamans about the creatures who he met each time he was under DMT influence, they said to him: “You have just met the spirit allies. They can help you heal and to find missing objects,” confirming the “reality” of these entities. Shamans even came to speculate that they might be their “ancestors,” moving away from the extraterrestrial hypothesis that has crept into our collective imagination, as we have seen, only since the last century, born from the influence of the Theosophical Society and the nascent New Age. It was from these occult circles that the extent of the intermediate floors deliberately acquired an alien “mask” for the outside world. McKenna concluded: “We will never get away from a spider hole in stories like those of UFO abductions and similar episodes, unless we acknowledge the obvious psychedelic evidence. If we recognize that, the evidence would look very differently.”

Professor Gianluca Marletta, former student of the Jesuits states that the “UFO cult,” is a real “post-modern religion,” explaining:

That the alien is a “faith” that in recent years seems to have rubbed a bit all, even some of those “hard-core materialists” who, although skeptical of other aspects of the New Age culture, seem possibilists on the more “practical” perspective that beings from other planets are visiting us. If we used the expression “post-modern religion,” however, because it really is the “myth of the aliens,” it seems to take on the characteristics of an all-embracing faith that purports to explain everything. According to its practitioners, in fact, the alien’s existence would make reason of all or most of the aporias of modern science and would explain our origins as a species (through genetic modification, as claimed by authors such as Zecharia Sitchin and the Italian Mauro Biglino); the origin of ancient civilizations and their knowledge; the angelic and divine phenomena described in all religions (which would be merely misinterpretation on the part of our ancestors of those we now call “UFO phenomena”), etc. But do not think that such suggestions can be confined only to the level of a certain popular culture, as there are more and more scientists and even religions who tend to marry those assumptions. A myth for all seasons, therefore, that of the extra-terrestrial. Perhaps the only modern myth able to get people of different ideological and cultural backgrounds to “reach an agreement.”

The “alien myth” was born and developed in the occult circles of the Illuminati at the turn of the nineteenth and twentieth century, and these environments end up winning the imagination of masses. See the late Terence McKenna conference in Esalen, in February 1992, or the conference he made in New York, in June 1993. Francis Crick, co-discoverer of the structure and function of DNA, in an article published in 1973 (F. Crick, L. Orgel, Directed Panspermia, in Icarus No. 19, London 1973), assumed a radical version of the Panspermia hypothesis, which he characterized as Directed Panspermia.

Crick, in essence, argued the possibility that life was “seeded” from planet to planet from extraterrestrial intelligence in a sort of “Program setting”—a hypothesis that would allow him to do without (or at least to postpone indefinitely) the unpleasant questions regarding the existence of a creator God. However there is another aspect of extraterrestrial cults that Professor Gianluca Marletta highlights, which belongs to the globalist doctrine advocated by the dark side of the Illuminati. The second aspect of “extraterrestrial myth” that interests us seems in fact to have been “cleverly spread” through the mass media, in order to instill voluntarily fear in the collective imagination. Some particularly sensitive ufologists seem to have married this intuition; Jacques Vallée, for example, after years of study of the UFO phenomenon, even said: “I believe that behind the UFO phenomenon exists a plan to manipulate the masses, to achieve political and social goals, and create a new form of faith.” The plan referred by Vallée, was confirmed at a distance by J.Allen Hynek (U.S. astronomer and ufologist used often as a consultant for large cinematic creations on the theme of aliens), who, in an interview shortly before his death, to the researcher Italian Roberto Pinotti, as recalled by Marletta, revealed his belief that certain techniques of persuasion could have been used over the years to “familiarize” the general public with the theme of the aliens.²¹ To do that, Hollywood could be used to promote certain ideas promoted by the Illuminati: “Hollywood, expertly piloted, is beautifully serving and serves the purpose of the aliens. So here is the production-oriented or O.P. (Oriented Productions) in the field of cinema and television. With them the establishment informs and ‘shapes’ public opinion as in the times of those films made with blatant propaganda purposes during the war. Films like ‘Close Encounters of the Third Kind’ in which Spielberg has used me as a consultant and ‘ET the Extraterrestrial’ were not made by chance.”²² It was a “road to Damascus” experience for the Mad Men era:

In 1966, the respected astronomer J. Allen Hynek had gone—seemingly overnight—from a determined debunker to an ardent apostle of the UFO gospel. A longtime consultant to Project Blue Book noted for his skeptical stance toward UFOs, Hynek suddenly began telling anyone who would listen that the UFO phenomenon merited serious scientific scrutiny. The great film director Stanley Kubrick was among the many who listened. In a 1968 Playboy interview promoting his science-fiction epic 2001: A Space Odyssey, Kubrick spoke approvingly of what he termed Hynek’s “belated but exemplary conversion” (Phillips 2001, 58). In fact, the professor’s apparent transformation from skeptic to UFO proponent was not quite the conversion event that it appeared on the surface. Since his teens Hynek had been an enthusiast, though closeted student of the occult. The French-born Jacques Vallee, a computer scientist and UFO author, was one of the few persons who knew Hynek’s secret. Hynek once told Vallee that he had become an astronomer in order to discover “the very limitations of science, the places where it broke down, the phenomena it didn’t explain” (Vallee 1996, 232). Nonetheless, the scientist’s public U-turn gave a big boost to the UFO movement, lending it a measure of credibility, and made Hynek into a celebrity as the nation’s “foremost expert on flying saucers” (O’Toole, 1966). For two decades people could point to Hynek and say, “He’s a trained scientist, an astronomer no less: if even he believes in this UFO stuff then there must be something to it.”

21 I Maestri Invisibili del Nuovo Ordine Mondiale, Ibid., p. 122. 22 Roberto Pinotti, UFO: il fattore contatto, (Milan, IT: Mondadori, 2007), p. 100.

Who was Josef Allen Hynek? He was born on Chicago’s West Side on May 1, 1910, only a little over a week after Halley’s Comet had swung around the sun. Hynek’s Czech-born father made cigars for a living while his mother, Bertha, taught at a local grammar school. Josef credited his mother for his early interest in astronomy. “When I was seven, I had scarlet fever and was quarantined with my mother in our apartment at 15th and Ayers,” Hynek explained. “There was nothing to do except read, and since I was so young, my mother read to me. Pretty soon we ran out of children’s books and she started reading textbooks. Among them was a high school astronomy book. I guess it interested me the most” (Berland 1962). Maybe astronomy textbooks didn't give him the answers he wanted, and so, as a bookish teenager, Hynek began to study what he called "esoteric subjects." After reading widely in the occult, he developed a particular fondness for the writings of the Rosicrucian secret societies, with their tantalizing promises of hidden ancient knowledge, and those of the so-called hermetic philosophers, especially Rudolf Steiner. The high schooler spent over $100—roughly $1,300 in today's dollars—to purchase the Canadian mystic Manly Hall's massive, richly illustrated tome, An Encyclopedic Outline of Masonic, Hermetic, Qabbalistic and Rosicrucian Symbolical Philosophy: Being an Interpretation of the Secret Teachings Concealed within the Rituals, Allegories and Mysteries of All Ages, better known simply as The Secret Teachings of All Ages. "All my student friends thought I was crazy: why didn't I buy a motorcycle instead, as they all did," Hynek later told Jacques Vallee (Vallee 2010, 64–65).²³

In my previous works, I have explained my ideas on the dangers of practices such as channeling, spiritism, automatic writing, hypnosis, etc. Without going into these issues already largely developed elsewhere, and anticipating the research of John Keel and Vallée on the "psychic" and psychotronic component of the UFO phenomenon, it is good to remember the conclusions drawn by Keel after repeated Moth Man sightings in Point Pleasant between 1966 and 1967. Keel had the intuition to investigate the psychic component of the UFO phenomenon (including ORBS and creatures from the unknown). Keel studied closely many "contactees," coming to the conclusion that the set of symptoms experienced during a sighting or a real abduction (known as the Oz Effect) can actually be the effect of a form of hypnosis. In particular, the paralysis and the missing time reported by all observers and abductees would be a form of trance due to the flashing light that emanates from the UFO (and glowing balls). For this Keel speaks of "contactee syndrome," defining it as a form of reprogramming that undergoes the subject through the blinking light, sound or buzz that cause a form of trance accompanied by "elaborated hallucinations."²⁴ This form of hypnosis would explain, according to John Keel, all the symptoms of the so-called "Oz effect":

When a contactee comes out of the trance, he is often found to suffer from headaches and muscle aches, which are spread over several days. Another common symptom is a strong lethargy: the subject, exhausted, over-indulges in sleep. These symptoms are comparable with those of epileptics who suffer from muscle spasms. The excessive thirst is another symptom, probably caused by exposure to intense electromagnetic radiation at low frequency (VLF), which penetrate into the tissues and dehydrates them.²⁵

23 http://www.csicop.org/si/show/the_secret_life_of_j_allen_hynek ‡ Archived 11th January, 2017. 24 John Keel, The Mothman Prophecies, (Milan, IT: Sonzogno Editori, 2002), p. 174.

The flashing light can be subjective or objective and be spotted by most observers, thus giving rise to multiple sightings. Keel says:

Investigating multiple UFO sightings, I am not interested in the random witnesses of an objective light. Rather I look for people who have been directly effected by the light. Rarely they report their sightings, or because the hallucinations that have accompanied them have been too weird or too scary, or because they simply have no memory of the entire event. They are suffering from partial amnesia. When I can find people like that, I'll tell the whole story of their lives and remain in contact with them for a long time, in order to observe any changes in personality or in perception. In some cases there is a rapid deterioration, just as it does to those who have taken LSD and have unexpectedly another trip, weeks after. The individual may suffer mental imbalances, abandoning the family and work, become fanatical and, in some unfortunate events, have a nervous breakdown and commit suicide. The other side of the coin is that some people have a profound expansion of consciousness, a large increase in IQ and a complete change in lifestyle ... for the better.²⁶

John Keel examines the similar “mystical light” phenomenon, comparing it to the experience of “alien contact.” Both, in fact, can lead, in the best cases, to an expansion of consciousness, to a change for a better way of life, a greater awareness of nature and society, or, conversely, to degenerate, into fanaticism, violence, isolation or suicide. Keel indirectly separates the planes of the psychic / astral and spiritual, returning to the first context, the phenomenon of enlightenment. John Keel explains: “In its purest form, the enlightenment is not a religious experience. For a few moments the subject fully understands the operation of the entire universe. He perceives all history, past, present and future. He feels part of, and is one with the cosmos. Unfortunately, in the short-term experience, he does not remember everything: most of the information has been deposited in the subconscious. And what he remembers is too fragmented to be articulated. But in the meantime the individual has been reprogrammed, or even prepared for a new role in life.”²⁷ The dynamic of the “real” enlightenment, Keel bridges with the UFO phenomenon, assuming there is mental reprogramming (or possession) of the observer by infernal forces,

In this case would be a “false” illumination, that is, driven by the lower degree of forces. He writes:

Every cosmic force has its imitators. The UFO contacts victims often suffer from false illuminations, because their mind has misinterpreted the experience, or because they are in a reprogrammed state, by forces who have used this mechanism. In a sense, they are “possessed.” Suffering from hallucinosis, i.e. repeated hallucinations, and their life is manipulated in a disastrous way. When a person has been subjected to a false light, he becomes vulnerable to repeat the experience. Just like a person who has been hypnotized once can be easily hypnotized again.²⁸

This happens in many occult movements and Illuminati sects in their use of mental manipulation, but also in the induction of shamanic trance or spiritualist evocation. In addition to the deliberate pursuit of the possession of the victim whose mind must be deconstructed, fragmented and then reprogrammed, the trance induced by psychotropic substances or meditation, as well as hypnosis, allows the operator to induce hallucinations in the victim thus easing the reprogramming. But Keel does not stop there, clarifying what might be the causes and especially the effect of the spread of the UFO phenomenon. The phenomenon has a strong ability “to manipulate humans and to generate propaganda,” i.e. to spread their beliefs in public opinion. In this sense the UFO phenomena should be understood as a form of counter-initiation that, led by forces of the underworld, seems determined to spread their faith in the world’s population in this specific moment in history dominated by the Satanic elite and the forces of darkness. Jean Robin wrote this: “The phenomenon is related to beliefs. As many people believe in flying saucers from other planets, especially the lower force is subject to be manipulated through false illuminations. I have observed with great consternation the worldwide spread of the faith in UFOs and the consequences thereof. If this phenomenon continues unchecked, we might one day have to deal with the universal acceptance of these ‘aliens’ as a modern religion that will allow them to interfere openly with our business. Just like the ancient gods, from the heights of mountains, ruled large segments of the population in the East, in Greece, in Rome, Africa and South America.”²⁹

UFOs and SciFi: instruments of Illuminati propaganda

R

René Guénon explains how the counter-initiatory forces use the traditional vestiges and other components (like inferior psychical elements) to their advantage. In many cases, the activity of the counter-initiatory forces are well hidden, and normal people don't notice it in plain view. This activity develops in the subtle domain, being an activity of suggestion aiming at modifying the mentality of human society. There are circumstances when the effects of the counter-initiatory activity are very visible, and a notorious example is the "SciFi phenomenon." This phenomenon, which is in fashion even today, has many faces, all of them having as an objective to influence people's mentality and manipulate the crowd. Reading SciFi "literature" or watching SciFi movies, the modern individuals receive anti-traditional suggestions regarding what to eat, how to behave, etc. Yet this was just a trivial facet, even though not negligible. The main attack is directed towards the religious domain. The counter-initiatory forces have no access to the spiritual domain, but they can corrupt "beliefs" and "views" in many ways. The SciFi phenomenon contained an aggressive component—a theory that explained all religious "myths" of gods would be considered as extraterrestrial visitors. There was a double purpose for that. First, the religious tradition became a collection of legends; second, the legends were an illustration of some very materialistic facts. The reason why such a theory could be accepted by some was that the intellectual level of the majority of modern individuals is low, and for decades the public at large accepted all the scientific hypotheses and theories as realities and proven facts. Another SciFi component, the so-called "literature," tried to replace the traditional vestiges represented by myths and fairy tales (those that remained uncorrupted by the Christian religion), supplying a mockery of pseudotaes and pseudo-initiatory voyages; all the SciFi tales are profoundly materialistic—the initiatory and postmortem voyages being substituted with corporeal interplanetary trips. Also, especially present in SciFi movies, with a large young audience that promoted a type of hostile alien having as objective of the domination of the terrestrial world, to manipulate people so they are under constant fear.

In the past, there was "the yellow danger," then the "Communist danger," and, with the SciFi phenomenon, "the extraterrestrial danger" was born. There is no difficulty in seeing that the same scenario was used against Masonry and the Templars, in connection to conspiracy theory. And to enhance the credibility of this SciFi phenomenon, a materialistic component was strongly advertised—the UFOs. This last element was in concert with the mechanistic and corporeal views of the modern world, and helped in influencing the acceptance of the new technologies as beneficial, and indispensable for a decent life. Finally, the SciFi phenomenon has another hidden reason to exist. Being open to the public at large and having a materialistic character, it was used to help the “solidification” of the modern mentality, yet, as Guénon said, after this phase there is another one, more dangerous. Due to its superficial and materialistic characteristics, the SciFi phenomenon was expendable and it was used to create the illusion of credibility for its critics.³⁰

The best example is Carl Jung, who wrote the book A Modern Myth, in which he reinterpreted the UFO problem from a psychoanalytical perspective. We can see here two anti-traditional currents opposing each other, yet the subtle idea was to make one of the theories more trustworthy (and its author, in this case, Jung). In 1979, Jean Robin published a book about UFOs.³¹ Robin wrote a year earlier, in 1978, René Guénon, Témoin de la Tradition, a work that consecrated him as a “guénonian.” In fact, for some, Jean Robin is a suspicious author who cannot be trusted, and some people considered him even as anti-traditional and an instrument of the counter-initiatory forces of the New World Order. However, Robin tries to prove that UFOs represent a pseudo-religion and are part of the last phase, the pseudo-spiritual, a point of view I support, but Robin thinks the majority of the world’s population are UFO “believers,” which, of course, is not the case. The UFO phenomenon in the eyes of the majority of the world population is however a materialistic one, and is part of this age of superficiality and confusion. For this reason we need to analyze more deeply the phenomena, using the esoteric point of view typical of the Illuminati network in order to have a real understanding of it.

Confessions of a Pilgrim: Paulo Coelho

ikipedia describes Paulo Coelho (FIG. 125) in this way : “Paulo Coelho de Souza (born August 24, 1947) is a Brazilian lyricist and novelist. He is the recipient of numerous international awards, amongst them the Crystal Award by the World Economic Forum. His novel The Alchemist has been translated into 81 languages. According to The Washington Post, Paulo Coelho has sold an estimated 350 million books and is the all-time bestselling Portuguese-language author.”³² In a 1999 interview with the journalist Juan Arias, the famous writer Paulo Coelho stated : “For me, the greatest danger in the spiritual quest are the gurus, the masters, fundamentalism ... the globalization of the spiritual quest.”³³ Except that Coelho himself has created in recent years a sort of virtual pseudo-religion based on his books. Just check out his booklet Manual of the Warrior of Light, and the many inconsistencies of the Brazilian writer become evident to the initiated eye. Yet, as the same Arias points out in the introduction to his long interview, Coelho is not only a novelist, but he is an eclectic and emblematic character, who lived with passion the opposite extremes that life offers us. So almost all of his novels have an autobiographical core: the psychiatric hospital, prison, kidnapping, initiation, conversion to Catholicism. The transition from his early Jesuit education to atheism, then to magic, and the return to Catholicism rests on his unusual spiritual quest. However, the occult seems to pull the strings of his journey. From his experience in a “Satanic” cult (the O.T.O.) to his “rebirth” within Christianity, Coelho admits that he has never sought balance, a real harmony in his life, but he has been living in an “extreme” modality.

This is the exact opposite of the traditional path of an initiate: “In my life I have never tried harmony. I believe that life ends when you stop struggling and you say, ‘Now I got it.’ So that would be happiness, which I do not like nor do I try.” The extreme negative led him on the path of magic, first by joining the O.T.O. Here he hit bottom, he sunk into the abyss of evil, but as Dostoevsky’s hero, he rose up again. However something remains of his Jesuit formation of those teachings and practices. Coelho talks about his experience as follows, starting from his education in a Jesuit boarding school: “My training was Jesuit, a formation that gives me a certain concept of God. For me—I do not know for others—has been a rather negative experience: it was at a Jesuit college that I lost the faith of my childhood. Trying to import a faith is the best way to bring rebellion and make you move to the other side.” Coelho for this is far from the “innocent figure”—a manipulator of consciences and his education by the Jesuits makes us understand a lot about his perverse psychology and contradictions of his being. Religion imposed by the Jesuits led him as a young man to seek shelter in Marxist literature, but Coelho ends in a clear Theosophical matrix hippie movement that for many unfortunately became the antechamber of occultism and Satanism: “I was attracted to the world of spirituality and was looking for the distant experiences, because I had not found any belief in religious training sets. I turned to Indian cosmology, in which I forcefully entered. I began to recite the mantra, doing yoga and meditation, to take care of everything related to Eastern spirituality.” The thirst for spirituality led him to attend, “many masters, many sects, many philosophies, until it came a time which my extreme value has led me to seek something stronger, that is to the left of the left in the spiritual quest.”³⁴

From here, the road to black magic is short. Paulo Coelho comes into contact with a sect (which is not explicitly named) whose teacher offers him “three or four books” by ³⁴ I Maestri Invisibili del Nuovo Ordine Mondiale, Ibid., p. 126-127.

Aleister Crowley. The thought of the magician fascinates him —the same Coelho admits that one of the reasons why he had approached the Left Hand (and to red tantric magic,) was sex, and his desire to “seduce women.” Indeed, about this inspiration on the Thelemic sect he says: “Everyone could join. I remember that there was a total sexual freedom, of thought, of everything, even of oppression. It was to bring the experience of power to its fullest extent.” The sect in question is said to be more dangerous than any other magical movement or Satanic sect, including the Church of Satan, as they “had a more philosophical sect, more structured, more dangerous in its roots. In it they celebrated conventional rites of magic, but that was the realm of pure power. Sometimes we call evil with very concrete results, but nothing has ever been like that black that has invaded my home.”³⁵

Aside from the obvious clues that may lead to speculation that the sect in question is the O.T.O., the same Paolo Coelho confirmed it in the summer of 2012 in an interview with the German newspaper Sueddeutsche Zeitung Magazine, where he admitted that he entered in 1972, the Brazilian section of the O.T.O. with the initiatory name Luz Eterna:³⁶

SZ : The most bizarre phase in your life began in 1969. You became engaged in occultism, sorcery and satanism and devoured huge tomes on UFOs, vampires, pentagrams and astrological systems. You wrote in your diary: “Immersing myself into black magic is the only way out from desperation and depression for me.”

PC: I remember writing this but I am not the same person that wrote it. The reasons that led me to black magic are encapsulated in my past.

SZ: In 1972, you became the member named Luz Eterna of the Satanic sect of the O.T.O., the order of the Oriental Templars, of which British Aleister Crowley was the chief theorist. One of the followers of the “Great Beast,” as Crowley called himself, was Charles Manson, who ordered the killing by gunfire, knifing and clubbing of four people in movie director Roman Polanski’s house.

PC: The dictums of this organization are bordering on spiritual fascism. It’s all about the experience of power to the most extreme. When you are a member of the chosen few, you are freed of all ethical codes and can do whatever you want—even if you want to be a monster. When I realized that the O.T.O. will lead me into the abyss, I quit and severed every contact. I was nearly dead spiritually, but I had understood that one needs to have an ethical code to live.

SZ: You say that the O.T.O. is “worse than Satanism.” Can you attest any specific practices?

PC: I do not like the word Satanism. It sounds like a cheap Hollywood horror movie to me. In the O.T.O. there were no babies sacrificed, but we practiced black magic and worked with powers that I will not disclose. I have no interest to excite curiosity for this organization because this could be mistaken for promotion. That's why I declined to speak of the O.T.O. by its official name publicly for so many years, and have always referred to it as "the Society for the advent of the Apocalypse."

SZ: You told your biographer Fernando Morais that four days after you joined the O.T.O. you encountered Satan. Morais writes: "Coelho noticed the smell of death in his apartment and dark fog, as if the sun had suddenly gone."

PC: Stop it! I do not wanna talk about this any longer.

35 Ibid., p. 127.

SZ : Is it true that you have written a 600-page manuscript about your experiences? PC: This is true, but my present wife advised me to destroy it, and I have done so.

Here Coelho refuses to repeat to the German newspaper what he had confessed to Arias, about the most tragic moment within the Illuminati sect, where he lived among the real presence of evil. It was after two years of membership that one day in 1974, while he was home alone, Coelho began to see only darkness around him: "It was very early, and as I told you, I began to see all black; I had the feeling that I would be dead. It was a very real black, physical, visible. It was not my imagination, it was something tangible. Like I said, my first impression is that I was going to die. ... It was as if suddenly this candle began to make smoke, and the smoke began to invade the house, it was like a very black smoke densification that prevented me to see for a moment, but above all I sank into a panic ... Perhaps the worst part was a series of noises that I can not describe accompanying the formation of the black smoke." The reaction was devastating. darkness enveloped Coelho who believed he was about to die: "I collapsed in panic, because that phenomenon testified to the presence of evil." Coelho understood that any technique or subterfuge to escape the darkness did not work, Coelho decided to go to a church but "some sort of force prevented me from leaving the house and I felt very powerful feelings of impending doom. At that moment came the woman I knew then, who belonged to the sect. She had just lived through the black experience. And, little by little, we learned that all the followers were experiencing the same thing ... The presence of evil was something visible and tangible. It was as if the evil said, you called me, here I am.”³⁷

Later, Coelho relived those two years in the O.T.O in a manuscript of six hundred pages, however, his wife Cristina advised him not to publish it and to destroy it. The autobiography also reported of musical activities with the late Raul Seixas Brazilian rock composer, singer, and songwriter who, like Coelho, was introduced to the O.T.O. He writes, “The two friends decided to put their music ‘to the service of the secret society’ ... The verses of the songs contained in principle the sect statements, perceptible in a very subliminal way. There were totally technical mantras, precise, perfect. Because evil is really something true.”³⁸ Later, in the Netherlands, Paulo Coelho came into contact with a person, the “J” character in the books The Pilgrimage, The Valkyries and Aleph, mentioned in the dedication of The Alchemist. “A. J. the alchemist, who knows and uses the secrets of the Great Work” mentioned in the online version of Warrior of Light that has changed his life and brought him back to Christianity. In The Pilgrimage he says he became a member of a Catholic Masonic group called RAM (Regnus Agnus Mundi),³⁹ with J. as his Master. The problem is that this Latin acronym (i.e. RAM) makes no sense literally as “Regnus” for example does not exist as a word, it should be “Regnum” and no groups or spiritual movements seem to have ever used this denomination. In addition to this anomaly, which does not necessarily imply the non-existence of the group (the author could have made use of a pseudonym to maintain secrecy about the real Order), the characteristics described by the same Coelho are a hodgepodge of New Age and pseudoMasonic beliefs, that confuse rather than clarify the ideas on the origin of RAM and its possible actions. It was further proposed in an interpretation of RAM that R stands for “Rigor,” A for “Amor” (that means love), and M for “Mercy.” In the Catholic Church, however, there is no order or movement like that. The popular Catholic site www.cattoliciromani.com specified that: “During the trip [to Santiago] Paulo Coelho faces several trials, and to overcome them, a certain Petrus presents him with exercises that are part of the rituals of the Tradition. Some rituals are shocking, because it is pure spiritualism. In the book we find some dangerous and absurd teachings on the devil and evil spirits.”⁴⁰

³⁷ Sueddeutsche Zeitung Magazin, 17th of August, 2012. ³⁸ Arias Juan, Ibid., p. 130.

Coelho's "Rituals of the Tradition" are presented in the wake of counter-initiation and spiritism. In the interview with Arias, Coelho said that "after having completed the Camino de Santiago starting in France (the most powerful experience of my life), I decided to follow the RAM tradition—a very ancient spiritual tradition, born five hundred years ago within the Catholic Church that I belong to with another four disciples—it is known as the 'feminine way.' Some call this the 'path of Rome' its purpose is to reveal the feminine side of our personality. ... The book contains numerous references to NeoSpiritualism and occultism and is therefore more close to the New Age genre than traditional Christian literature."⁴¹ The novel begins with the ceremony where the Master of the Order of RAM is crowned, resulting in the delivery of a new sword, replacing the old woman who had accompanied him to overcome all the trials that had brought him here. The ceremony is interrupted abruptly when Coelho holds his hands out to receive the sword from the Master. The Master makes it clear to him that his experience should have taught him that during the ceremony he should have actually refused the sword. That gesture, in fact, indicates the presence of "impurities" in the heart and mind of the apprentice. To achieve the sword he is ordered to resume the path of tradition, following the Camino de Santiago, also known by the English name Way of St. James. Along that path, among the simple and overcoming of obstacles difficult for people (which correspond to the sins of greed, pride and fascination, found in the wonders with which Coelho has sinned during the ceremony), he should have found the Sword waiting for him at a certain point, at a certain date and time, which has been in the meantime handed over to his wife, that he could not touch without the Master's order. During the trip Coelho is joined by a guide, Petrus, a character who has already completed the walk with the same mission. During the trip Paulo Coelho will face The Dog, that is, the incarnation of the devil, and will have to defeat it. To help him in this quest there will be some exercises taught by the guide, which is part of the rituals of the Tradition. Among these teachings given to him by Petrus we find, as we advance, some occult practices: among them the evocation of the Messenger, or Daimon or "personal demon" that everyone has by his side, opposite to the Guardian Angel. We will see later how the Daimon has nothing in common with the Socratic/Platonic expressed in the myth of Er. Finally, you can not even compare it to the Daimon widely described by Jungian analyst James Hillman or the fictional one and esoteric one presented by Philip Pullman, that we find in the trilogy His Dark Materials.

Although the description of the Messenger appears to refer to the philosophical concept of Daimon, the Camino de Santiago description should cause us to compare it, if anything, to the angel Uriel evoked by the Elizabethan Era alchemist and Illuminati John Dee (1527 – 1608), a key figure in the occult world of the Illuminati that I have widely described in Volume 1 of my Confessions. Even the summoning system that Petrus teaches Coelho fits into typical practice of ceremonial magic of the Golden Dawn, which resumed the Enochian magical system developed by Edward Dee and Kelley. Before teaching the traveling companion the practice of evocation, Petrus explains the need for an initiate to come to terms with this “demon” that paves the way for an interpretation far from Christian teachings contained in the novel. It seems Coelho has never abandoned magical practices and the occult, despite the fact he left the O.T.O. So Petrus says: “To fight the good fight we need help. We need friends and, when they are not close, we must transform the loneliness to our revised main weapon. Everything around us has to help us take those steps which bring us closer to our goal. Everything has to be a personal manifestation of our will to win the Good Fight. Without this—without understanding that we need everyone and everything we will be only arrogant warriors. And, finally, our arrogance will lead us to defeat, because being so confident with ourselves we do not see the traps on the battlefield path.” He introduced the need to ally with “everything that surrounds us.” Petrus continued: “In addition to the physical forces that surround us and help us, next to us exist in spiritual form two main spiritual forces, an angel and a devil. The angel always protects us—and it is a divine gift and is not necessary to invoke it. ... Even the devil is an angel: but it is a free force, rebellious. I prefer to call it ‘Messenger,’ since it is the main connecting link between you and the world. In ancient times it was represented by Mercury, as Hermes, the messenger of the gods. Its implementation is limited to the material plane. It is present in the gold of the Church, because gold comes from the earth, and this is His domain. It is present in our work and in our relationship with money. When we let him free, it tends to disperse. When we exorcise, we lose all its profitable teachings, since he knows a lot of the world and of men. When we are fascinated by its power, he possesses us, away from the Good Fight.”⁴² These words are part of his first book, O diário de um mago (1987), which was published in English as The Diary of a Magus in 1992 and was reissued as The Pilgrimage in 1995. I translated it myself from the Italian version so I hope Coelho will be satisfied, but of course I invite the interested parties to check the official English translation for a more in-depth look at his work.

Petrus then explains to Coelho, the apprentice, that “the only way to cope with the Messenger is to accept him as a friend. Listening to his advice, asking for his help when needed, but never allowing him to dictate the rules.”⁴³

Petrus distinguishes five fundamental points:

- 1) The Guardian Angel should not be evoked because there is no need. From here the evidence that the author has awareness that whatever evoked entity is not angelic but rather “demonic.”
- 2) It is accredited by the fact that the Messenger is actually a “personal demon” whose jurisdiction is limited to the material plane. No coincidence that Satan is called the “prince of this world,” i.e. the material sphere.
- 3) It follows that Petrus Coelho teaches how to evoke the devil to ask some practical help or advice and teachings that can help him realize the material plane. To transpose this is the typical “pact with the devil:” the initiate must in fact compromise with his personal demon king to receive tips and benefits on the material plane. The demon / dragon / shadow, in fact, is not “tamed” but is evoked to become a “permanent presence” alongside the initiate in order to advise him in practical life choices.
- 4) Petrus compares the messenger to Hermes. As we have seen, however, Hermes also embodies the characteristics of the Divine Trickster, and as such is a trickster, a Deceiver. As such mind manipulates and systematically deceived men. Coelho definitely knows the characteristics of the trickster as he quotes from his initial note on the book from the works of Castaneda.

FIG. 126 – Reproduction of Sigillum Emeth, the legendary “Hand of Glory” made by the alchemist John Dee, which would be lost immediately after his death. An object with the same name belonged to Edward Kelley, and is now preserved in the British Museum. Kelley claimed to have received it from the hands of the angel Uriel in person and thanks to it, found it was possible to communicate with the spirits.

5) The vision and “philosophical” teachings of Petrus partly correspond to the arcane figure of the Chariot in the Tarot, a charioteer inspired by the myth of Plato’s Phaedrus content. The tarot blade represents a definite stage of apprenticeship: the initiate has come to know and to distinguish the Good (white horse) from Male (black horse) and to drive his chariot he does not even need to hold the reins. The mystery in question, however, refers to an explicitly ethical level. The initiate in the Camino de Santiago, however, distinguishes between good and evil, angel and devil, decides for practical interest, economic and social, to come to terms with the second, conscious of the dangers that can arise from this relationship. ⁴⁴

The question, however, refers to an explicitly ethical level. The initiate in the Camino de Santiago distinguishes between good and evil, angel and devil, and eventually decides for practical, economic and social interest, to come to terms with the second—conscious of the dangers that can arise from this dangerous relationship. Independent of the “moral” teaching that can be attributed to Coelho, it is clear that you are not within the Christian tradition, but, on the contrary, in a magical-occult arena that draws from the Enochian magical system devised and practiced by Illuminati sects like the O.T.O. Finally, in the Camino de Santiago we also find a profound contradiction, because Petrus claims that all these occult teachings may simply be learned by any ordinary person, in their every day life: “The extraordinary lies in the Way of the common people.” However in the book the members of RAM need these occult rituals for their “illuminations” just like in any other Illuminati sect, and these indications are supplied indirectly to the readers so they can practice them with no proper initiation. It definitely seems like a dead end road dictated by the usual sect of Illuminati or pseudo ones manipulating every side of contemporary culture.

People became interested in Enochian Magic in 1912, when Aleister Crowley published the highly successful book called The Equinox. The Enochian system was codified in the Renaissance by John Dee and his aide and medium Edward Kelley, (FIG. 126) reworked in a systematic way by Samuel Liddell MacGregor Mathers, and then used and abused by Crowley, who wanted so desperately to contact the Secret Chiefs of the Illuminati. 1582 was the year that saw the key event in the life of John Dee: the meeting with Edward Kelley, a seer with a dark past, who Aleister Crowley claimed to be the reincarnation. It was said that Kelley was accustomed to black magic, and thus began a long collaboration that was the cause of the misfortunes of Dee, who then progressively fell into the hell of necromancy. Dee took on Kelley as a full-time psychic, and charged a fee of 50 pounds a year, an enormous amount for its time. These two key figures in the history of occultism are detailed in various aspects in Chapter 6 of Volume I of my Confessions.

From Zecharia Sitchin to Satanism in the Vatican

he task of Kelley was to gaze into the stone that he said the angel Uriel had given to Dee, describing what he saw inside. Sometimes a spirit came out of the stone, speaking or issuing prophecies. The angels had taught him their alphabet, Kelley said was called Enochian (corresponding to the language that was spoken by Adam in the Garden of Eden, before the Fall, a language with its own grammar and syntax of “alien” origin, or at least extradimensional). There are a total of nineteen “Call” or “keys”—the “calls” were also dictated upside down. The reason for this complicated procedure is that a direct communication with the entities in question would be too powerful and would evoke forces that the two magicians would not have been able to command. The Enochian magic used by the two, derives its name from the biblical patriarch Enoch. This character derived from two important apocryphal books: the Book of Enoch and The Book of the Secrets of Enoch. The Jewish Kabbalah is also associated with the superimposed complex figure of the Archangel Metatron. Taken up into heaven by God’s will, Enoch became an extraordinary angel called Metatron, inaugurating his ascent to the sky. The figure of Enoch undoubtedly hides many mysteries, and like every mystery has been variously studied and interpreted not only by religious historians, philologists, hermeneutics, but also by kabbalists, occultists, and in recent decades by lovers of ufology. Erich Von Daniken is seen as the first man “astronaut” led by the angels/extraterrestrials in the universe, and in the fall of vigilant angels told in the Book of Enoch. In this version “God” would then lead Enoch to heaven aboard a chariot of fire which, as in the case of Ezekiel’s vision, would be nothing but an alien spacecraft.

As shown by Jean-Bruno Renard, sociologist at the University of Montpellier, this thesis, later reworked by Zecharia Sitchin (1920 – 2010), and in Italy to a lesser extent by the translator Mauro Biglino, belongs to a UFO trend that intends to unveil the supposed “true” meaning of the ancient religious scriptures, whether Egyptian, Sumerian, Indian, or, more often, biblical, showing for example that the great civilizations have come from space, or that men were not created by God, but by extraterrestrials (in Hebrew elohim, the gods)—a view that, apart from its sci-fi charm, does often flatten the religious scope, supporting at times relativism and growing individualism.

I think these theories unfold on television thanks to what has become a kind of important sector of the media industry promoted by the elite, to install new elements in the collective conscious. They are used to somehow break down barriers of superstition and ignorance, in a manner certainly more immediate and direct than a book. You can also find sometimes in addition to the usual unfounded theories, the great truths of our Age, otherwise ignored by the official version of events perpetrated by academics. We now need to understand what these beings really are, these extra-dimensional entities, with a serious and more rigorous approach, involving as much as possible the different elements from the religious, scientific, Masonic, and occult sector. Unfortunately, today the prevailing approach in the media, appears to be the result of New Age brainwashing, in which there is not a very specific form of religion, nor a concept or objective of the transcendental deity, but a divine abstract, interior to the individual who lives it and experiences it, in different ways than other people. The individual is encouraged to implement especially the “temple” of the self, the crucial process of transformation of one’s consciousness, one’s self, corresponding with the ability to “create your own reality,” while the saving process is a necessarily psychological process, an inner journey into the psyche. One of the constituent elements of the New Age of the Illuminati is a pantheism which results in the rejection of a creator God, personal, transcendental cosmos, in favor of an ultimate reality, called various things, that appears as Mind, Energy, Life.

New Age seemingly presents all religions as equally effective in the pursuit of happiness, but then, in practice, denies all judgments outdated, compared to its message and the advent of the so-called “New Age.” Everyone thinks that thanks to their eventual “Gnosis” (the highest and perfect form of enlightened knowledge), that leads to the discovery of the Self, you can regain possession of your true nature, tuning in with your own kind, living in harmony with the cosmos, loving, etc., etc. This is the mantra of the New Agers, but at the same time they are willing slaves to the New World Order and a “religion,” without God and the Church, a “religion” with no afterlife and without judgment. No one can be held responsible for the harm done to others, because evil, in fact, does not exist for them, but it coincides with the ignorance that surrounds the human mind as to its true nature of divine origin. It is the illusion of being able to make man god of himself, an idea that I also demonstrated in previous volumes, is one of the foundations of the high degrees of one of the darker para-Masonic Illuminati cults of today, the Ordo Templi Orientis. They gradually deleted the philosophical, religious and esoteric sense of Jewish mysticism and the moral teaching of some biblical passages, and what remains in the end is a cosmos without God, but inhabited by extraterrestrial creatures where these “gentlemen of the New Age ” create the future of man in a test tube. But in reality a series of question arises, if the aliens have created man to serve and adore them, then who created these aliens? Other even more powerful aliens? This reasoning makes us understand that this theme is exploited beyond measure by the New Age, to thus give rise to an atheistic society without God.

Zecharia Sitchin was a brilliant author and researcher, but his The Lost Book of Enki; Memories of an Extra-Terrestrial God, unfortunately is quoted today as a source of inspiration by numerous Satanic sects, when in fact Sitchin, in the last period of his life, was in an intense relationship with Christianity and the Vatican through Father Corrado Balducci, (FIG. 127) a privileged relationship that also saw the direct involvement of his dear friend Gianmario Ferramonti, and people close to Count Licio Gelli and the famous P2 lodge. Years ago, I spoke publicly of the relationship between Sitchin and the Vatican, and the possibility something more deep or sinister was hidden. I also said in my famous interview to Project Camelot, I could not bring at that time any evidence to the public of my assertion and did not speak further. I have finally managed to materialize the evidence of what I said years ago, with an exceptional direct witness of those events. On the 2nd of December, 2015, I brought to the attention of documentary makers of GenSix Productions, Gianmario Ferramonti, which in turn has presented numerous photos to support his claims. Photos which I partly publish in this book (FIGS. 128, 129, 130) to show that he actually met with Sitchin on several occasions, giving a crucial and credible testimony to understand the link between Sitchin, Balducci and the Vatican. In December 2015, I was therefore able to convince Ferramonti to release this historic interview to documentary producer Steve Quayle, released later in June of 2016, under the appropriate title The Unholy See, conducted by Timothy Alberino. (FIG. 131) A journalistic scoop whose importance has perhaps been underestimated by GenSix Productions. Gianmario Ferramonti is a wellknown Italian politician close to the Donald Trump staff, (FIG. 132) tied for years to the international world of Intelligence, and was in this case the messenger chosen by his old friend Zecharia Sitchin. And even if Sitchin remains for most academics a charlatan or at least a dubious source, the Vatican thought otherwise. Speculation on Sitchin, based on his own interpretation of the Sumerian texts, are in fact considered pseudo-science and pseudo-history by the scientific community, rejected by ordinary scientists, historians and academics. I wonder, why was the Vatican so interested in the work of Sitchin? And why did they want to involve him in a secret project with Monsignor Corrado Balducci, even giving him, as admitted by Gianmario Ferramonti in front of the cameras of GenSix Productions, boxes fuelled with top secret material probably of an alien nature, hidden in the infamous underground vaults of the Vatican. These revelations and also the visit I made with the American TV crew and Alberino right into the heart of the Vatican, which included the headquarters of the Jesuits in Borgo Santo Spirito, but also the Piazza Vittorio Magical Door—known as an extradimensional portal, have contributed to a great documentary, but certainly have created a few problems to the documentarist in question on their return to the States. Let me begin at the beginning of this story.

One day the staff of InfoWars contacted me because of the interests of Christian documentary filmmakers GenSix Productions to my story and my books, which had just been released in the States. Strangely enough, I had never been invited to appear in this information network which portrays alternative flavor “Christian” gospel, so I was amazed by the fact they wanted to see me in Rome, with their team that had already been filming for a couple of weeks around Europe. This filming in various locations was part of a larger project that also included Malta and Sardinia, as well as Rome, where they wanted to meet me and some of my close contacts. The True Legends Documentary series is actually a series of documentaries created in the USA by Steve Quayle and conducted in the field, around the world by Timothy Alberino. However, the brief adventure in Rome with GenSix Productions and Timothy Alberino, originally part of a project focusing on certain mysteries hidden by the Vatican as part of a supposed research on the giant bones, turned instead to something more ambitious entitled “Unholy See.” In this documentary they for the first time, filmed the place where the Vatican holds their Black Masses, which is the church of San Lorenzo in Piscibus, a mysterious place located in the Borgo area near St. Peter’s Square. It’s inconspicuous as to not attract attention, between two buildings of the twentieth century, on the southern side of Via della Conciliazione, and Piazza Pio XII, with the apse seen from Borgo Santo Spirito and of course a stone’s throw from the General of the Jesuits, the infamous “Black Pope,” where the occult power of the Vatican resides. Even Pietro Orlandi, brother of Emanuela Orlandi whom I mentioned earlier, during his own research on his missing sister, heard from various representatives of the Vatican hierarchy that this was the place where the Vatican conducts secret Black Masses under the cover of the night.

FIG. 128 – The well-known researcher and author Zecharia Sitchin and the Italian politician and entrepreneur Gianmario Ferramonti.

Where is the link between the Black Masses and the supposed alien power? Well, this topic I will cover in more detail in my next book Invisible Master, but in the meantime we return to my strange adventure with GenSix Productions around Rome. Definitely being able to film inside the headquarters of the Jesuits was a great example of how, with a little strategy, you can safely bypass the tight security of the most powerful Intelligence service in the world —The Jesuits! However, another place that surprised the crew of True Legends was the The Alchemical Door, also known as the Alchemy Gate or Magic Portal of Piazza Vittorio, which is in effect a kind of “Alchemical Stargate,” an extradimensional portal created by the Illuminati of the Golden Rosicrucian tradition and their secret controllers, the Jesuits. The erudite Jesuit Athanasius Kircher, the creator of the first imaginary map of Atlantis published in his Mundus Subterraneus in Amsterdam in 1665, was active in the creation of this extradimensional portal with Italian sculptor and architect Gian Lorenzo Bernini, also known as Gianlorenzo or Giovanni Lorenzo (1598 – 1680). Strangely enough, Kircher designed the map where he oriented North down, an interesting fact, even in relation to a possible polar shift as a further reason for the disappearance of Atlantis. Kircher created this map of the mythical Atlantis after a visit to Mentorella, a place near Rome where years ago I went with a camera crew for a documentary transmitted by English web television Enigma TV.

All this brings us to speak again of Plato, the great philosopher who I have already spoken in the introduction of this book in relation to the myth of the Cave. Plato was actually the first to speak of the lost civilization of Atlantis in one of his works. Plato writes, “Before that narrow passage called the Pillars of Hercules, there was an island. And this island was larger than Libya and Asia together, and from it you could move on to other islands, and from these to the mainland opposite. ... In later times, ... earthquakes and extraordinary cataclysms followed, in the space of one day and a bad night ... all in mass sank beneath the earth, and the island of Atlantis similarly swallowed by the sea disappeared.”

We hope we do not end up the same way, disappearing from the face of the earth, swallowed by the seas for tampering with the mood of our creators. Recall that the Atlantean civilization had become a rich and powerful monarchy, it was an island divided into ten zones, each was governed by the son of Poseidon and his descendants. Basically a civilization once again dominated in all respects by the usual demigod aliens, who were however not hiding in disguise as they do today, amongst the earth's aristocratic bloodlines, but ruled this planet openly and at times ruthlessly. This still happened at the time of the pharaohs in Ancient Egypt, until the arrival of the Roman Empire, with the Caesar-Cleopatra alliance and the result of this union called Caesarion that ended this tradition. This almost forgotten figure (i.e. Cesarion) was the last Pharaoh of Egypt, and the final member of the Ptolemaic dynasty of Egypt. He reigned jointly with his mother Cleopatra VII of Egypt, and he held the position of sole ruler between the death of Cleopatra and the time when his death was ordered by Octavian, who then became the Roman emperor Augustus.

Going back to Atlantis, initially, the demigods of Atlantis set up a wise and just government, but unfortunately living with mortals corrupted them to the point that Zeus was forced to intervene, sinking the island, and at that point a handful of survivors found themselves having to rebuild past civilizations hoping it will work out better. It never happened and every time terrestrial empires reach the pinnacle of their success, somehow they inevitably plunge, even if only metaphorically, as our present society is on the brink of the end. Since its supposed elite, while descending from the gods (as the tradition of the Illuminati mystery schools teach) has become corrupted to the point of not respecting the criteria and laws of the cosmos, which will lead inevitably to self-destruction over and over again. Let us remember that what Plato describes in Timaeus as the island of Atlantis, which was a little larger than Libya (North Africa) and Asia (Anatolia) put together. It's like the possible disappearance one day of the entire state of California, or the entire eastern coast of the United States. Remember that if, for example, the super volcano Yellowstone, a subject of numerous and extensive studies in recent years pointing in this direction, ever erupted, it would implement the same massive change and destruction that happened in Atlantis. According to scientists, volcanoes of this power are real time bombs ready to explode at any time, with all the dramatic consequences that they leave behind. However when I speak of "gods" some "Christian" readers will be turning up their nose for sure, but remember that the gods are nothing more than the angels and demons of Judeo-Christian Tradition seen from a different viewpoint, maybe at times a more human one, which is good, as we are bound to them. Or by an invisible link, and unknown to most people, but still present as an imprint in the DNA of the ruling elite that descend from them. We are basically talking about higher or lower beings who were created before us, good and evil manifestations of the one God of which we ourselves are living images in this dimensional space, which is why, for example, according to the Zohar: The Book of Splendor, one of the most cryptic texts of Jewish mysticism, the Kabbalists have identified as many as 72 names of God, reflected constantly in their secret tradition in the 72 Elders of the synagogue, which thus reflect the many aspects of God as they are also 72 chosen Illuminati in the Rosicrucian tradition. For Muslims, however, and their mystical brotherhoods names and emanations of God are ninety-nine and 99 Names of Allah, whose mystery of all mysteries rotates around emanation number 100. The particularly sacred values of most religions are hidden to the majority of people, known only to the highest level initiates particularly aware of their long and arduous journey of learning. In the Quran it says: “The most beautiful names belong to Allah. so call on him by them; but shun such men that use profanity in his names: for what they do, they will soon be requited.” (Quran, 7: 180).

This is the End

he Papacy is at the center of a prophecy that mysteriously stops at the dawn of the third millennium of our era. The best-known of the prophecies concerns the Irish Bishop Malachi, who prophecied all the Roman pontiffs who would have succeeded on the throne by his time (twelfth century) to the last. Well after John Paul II (marked by the motto de Labore Solis), only two popes remain, that is what is referred to as Gloria Olivae (possibly Ratzinger) and Petrus Romanus (possibly Pope Francis). For many, including the author of this book, Pope Francis is the last Pope. It would be the end of the world as we have known it, and a new era will be born from the ashes of the old Civilization. I tend to emphasize that with Peter II, that there will not be the end of Christianity, but rather the papal monarchy, and that at the summit of the Church, there will no longer be just a man but a meeting of Illuminati, not necessarily all Christian, as the coming “One World Religion” will change all this.

The Messiah, or Savior of the nations, is the One expected to overcome all this. “Therefore, stay awake, for you do not know on what day your Lord is coming. But know this, that if the master of the house had known in what part of the night the thief was coming, he would have stayed awake and would not have let his house be broken into. Therefore you also must be ready, for the Son of Man is coming at an hour you do not expect.” (Matthew 24:42-44 English Standard Version). But who will recognize this “Lord,” this authentic “Messiah?” I doubt that the current members of world religions, led by a Jesuit and relativistic Pope, truly want the return of a character like that, an uncomfortable enemy of the great evil that prevails and dominates in today’s society, a spiritual desert without end. However the same people, including the Jesuit Pope, are always quite ready to support the Antichrist on duty, and his minions including the United Nations and so on. The Messiah could risk His immediate end and obviously the persecution of His followers, as well as his family if detected before His time.

Jesus will then come like a thief in the night? Yes, probably, but not for saints but for sinners; not for the children of God but for the children of the devil; not for those in the light, but for those who are in darkness still in search of him. For this it is what the apostle Paul explains when he said to the Saints in Thessalonica: “Now, brothers and sisters, about times and dates we do not need to write to you, for you know very well that the day of the Lord will come like a thief in the night.” (1 Thessalonians 5:1-2 New International Version).

And although I am convinced that the return of the ultimate messianic figure will happen in our lifetime, the terms and manner of His return will be known only to God and to a limited circle of his initiates, who are the same ones who were with him 2,000 years ago, and as a matter of affinity prodigiously manifest themselves in this incarnation with Him, but that’s another story that I hope one day to be able to tell. Remember, also that even if we all belong to different Christian denominations, American Christianity needs to be united in their understanding of these unprecedented times.

A few months ago, in February of 2016, I received a strange email by the aforementioned Timothy Alberino which frankly left me puzzled when I initially read it:

Leo,

It looks like someone may have attempted to murder my family and I last week by poisoning us while we were sleeping. I suspect it was related to the work we are doing on the Vatican. Have you heard my name or Steve Quayle's name brought up in the Vatican circles in Rome? I believe they are concerned about the content of our upcoming film ... especially the Jesuits. Let me know if you hear anything. Thanks.

Tim Alberino

So what happened to Alberino? Was it revenge by the Vatican mafia for revealing too much to the outside world? The Jesuits certainly did not appreciate my revelations to GenSix Productions, but threatening Alberino's life, and that of his family, is certainly something very serious. The day after receiving the mail above, on February 29, 2016, Timothy Alberino and his boss, Steve Quayle, were guests of a program called The Haggmann & Haggmann Report where they made some shocking revelations that confirm the contents of the email sent to me one day earlier. This is the description of the interview to Steve Quayle & Timothy Alberino—Perilous Times are Here on The Haggmann Report 02.29.16 Posted on Youtube by The Official Haggmann & Haggmann Report:

In the darkness of last Monday night into early Tuesday morning, Timothy Alberino, his wife and children nearly lost their lives as a result of an incident that remains under investigation. The specific details of this incident, until now, have been kept under wraps as the investigation by law enforcement continued. What occurred in the cold darkness of that night would not only have taken the life of a leading researcher of matters of vital importance to current happenings, but the lives of his wife and children. For a time, their lives hung perilously in the balance, except for the saving intervention of God. Anyone daring to be at the tip of the investigative spear that exposes an agenda of evil and darkness is aware of the perils of such activities, and accepts those perils. Many have come before and met their fates as casualties in a battle between good and evil, light and darkness. It is becoming more obvious today than ever before that the enemies of truth care nothing about the collateral damage of the physical and spiritual war in which we fight. It is no longer the soldiers of truth who are at risk, but their families as well. When evil is about to be exposed, the purveyors of darkness will stop at nothing to keep their evil deeds hidden. A child, a wife, a mother, or anyone in the way are considered expendable. The only recourse for the safety of the truth warrior is to expose the evil deeds with as much detail as permissible, but not so much as to compromise the official investigation as well as a concurrent independent investigation. It is through this narrow valley that Timothy Alberino and Steve Quayle will walk, providing details of the incident that nearly took the life of Mr. Alberino and his family. Steve Quayle and Timothy Alberino will discuss not just the incident of last week, but the key investigations that could well be considered as motives behind such nefarious acts—including other events that appeared to culminate early last week. Following the coverage of that incident (from the remainder of the first hour through the third hour), Timothy Alberino will provide new information about his findings from his various trips to South America that includes evidence of a race of giants consistent with Biblical accounts. ... Steve Quayle will also discuss in greater depth the rise of Nazi influence that is serving as a major part of the infrastructure for the globalists in the formation of the new World Order. Both will discuss how each topic intersects to form an ideological foundation for current events. Join Steve Quayle and Tim Alberino as they explain the strange occurrences over the last few weeks that culminated in the near death of Mr. Alberino and his entire family last week— tonight on The Hagmann & Hagmann Report, 7:00-10:00 PM ET. ⁴⁵

Something present in what became the documentary called The Unholy See must have truly bothered the Vatican elite, to attempt to murder poor Timothy Alberino and his family. Certainly having shown the supposed place where the Vatican has their Black Masses, which is the church of San Lorenzo in Piscibus, a little-known place a stone's throw away from Piazza San Pietro, provoked strong retaliation by the Satanic lobby in the Vatican. We should try to figure out if there are other elements in the documentary that could have led to such a bad reaction by the controllers of the New World Order. We focused also on the previously mentioned “Alchemical Door” or “Magical Door” present in Rome in the gardens of Piazza Vittorio. This little-known place where I went with Alberino and his film crew in December, 2016, is considered of great importance by the Rosicrucians and the Jesuits, and appears to be one of the leading extradimensional portals in the city of Rome. Imagine that even today, often in the middle of the night, hidden from prying eyes, prominent politicians and Church representatives gather at this place where the access is usually restricted by a gate (whose keys are always in the hands of a controller from the municipality of Rome), to perform occult rituals, at times drawing pentagrams on the grassy ground and then re moving them in the early hours of the following morning. One night, a dear friend and brother of the Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis, found himself reluctantly brought there by a well-known Italian politician for a ritual devised for his re-election, attended by several personalities in the political and military world. Strangely enough, on the same day I went to the “Magical Door” to film with Timothy Alberino, I was actually featured in the Italian newspapers in connection to the Vatileaks 2 scandal. ⁴⁶ (FIG. 133)

Finally I hope that for those people who still believe that I am a “fake” or a charlatan, that the first three volumes of my Confessions, and all the work done in recent years with documentarists like Alberino or Alex Jones have been able to prove the genuinity of my persona with the evidence that I have brought forth since the start of my online Confessions in 2006.

Before leaving my dear readers, I want to dig a little deeper into one of the biggest secrets of the Illuminati called the Arcana Arcanorum. For this reason I have found a clear and essential explanation of its mysteries and secrets, in a brief essay written by a high level French initiate named Denis LABOURE.

From Cagliostro to the ARCANA ARCANORUM

By Denis LABOURE

For years, several authors have referred to the existence of the Arcana Arcanorum. Some have done so with full reason of personal acquaintance, such as Jean Mallinger, Jean Pierre Giudicelli de Cressac-Bachelerie and Michel Monereau. Others speak without having the least idea of what it was about. In order that the apprentice mason separate the wheat from the chaff, so that he understands that the Order to which he belongs, that is really a Path, I wish to write the following overview.

In 1614, the doctor and alchemist Michael Maier (1568-1622) titled his first book Arcana Arcanissima. This work was dedicated to the English doctor William Paddy, friend of Robert Fludd. Up to the 18th century, the expression “Arcana Arcanorum” is found in Rosicrucian literature, for example in “The Secret Symbols of Altona,” published in 1785 and 1788. ‘Til the end of 18th century, the expression

Arcana Arcanorum designates materials (teachings and rituals) from which Cagliostro would draw in the course of his numerous journeys amongst the initiatic Orders of Europe. His teaching do not evoke the Arcana Arcanorum, but the Secreto Secretorum (the Secret of Secrets), to which it is similar. Taking into account the secrecy which surrounds these practices, examination of the teachings of Cagliostro constitutes the best possible approach to the study of the contents of the Arcana Arcanorum such as they were in this era. teachings and rituals descended from the materials are revealed at the summit of several Orders, under diverse forms, more or less complete. Remitted on October 8, 1816 to the Grand Orient of France, an abridgement of the last four degrees of the rite of Misraim are presented November 20 1816 to the five members of an examination committee. Written in Italian, it is entitled “Arcana Arcanorum.” These Arcana Arcanorum returned to Italy, about 1816, by the Joly brothers, Gabboria and Garcia who had received them in 1813. They were introduced in the Rite of Misraim, in parallel to the last four degrees, of 87e to the 90e, which didn’t until then present any operative aspect.

More recently, practices descended from the Arcana Arcanorum were integrated in the fourth and last degree of the Order of Hermes Tres-Megistus (O.H.T.M.), founded in 1927 by Emile Dantinne (1884-1969), Jean Mallinger (1904-1982) and Francois Soetewey.

Up to the 18th century, the adepts meet and worked on similar concluding paths. Let us cite two circles of this type:

* the German Order of the Golden Rosy Cross of the Ancient System and above all the Order of the Initiated Brothers of Asia, on distinctly kabbalistic foundations. Cagliostro crossed Germany in 1779 where he participated in various alchemical and theurgical works in the Masonic milieu.

* the School of Naples —a city where Cagliostro stayed in 1783—heiress to Chaldean, Egyptian and Pythagorean currents. Its materials appear to have been Hebraic << Kabbalistics >> ‘til the 18th century.

These circles of adepts involved themselves in the study of three distinct domains, but in permanent interrelation, for each contributes to the realization of the other two:

A theurgic system of invocation of the Holy Guardian Angel or of a plurality of angels. The invocations of the eon guide and those of four, seven, nine angels come down to us from this time.

Practice of metallic alchemy in the laboratory. The texts that were given to me to consult, work with antimony.

Practice of internal alchemies, using the processes and substantial qualities of the physical body considered as an athanor, this “oven of constant temperature of the alchemists.” Every element, every stage of metallic alchemy finds its correspondences in the body of the adept. This affects a permanent way of Return between the exterior Work and the interior Work.

The Arcana Arcanorum insists on theurgy, considered as a key opening for the initiate in the way to the practice of metallic and internal alchemies to which they are only an introduction. They suggest a technique of making contact with the eon guides who relay to him the unveiled secrets of internal alchemy.

And now let's talk about THE EVOCATION OF ANGELS:

The seventy two returned all happy, saying: "Lord, as the demons we are submitted in your name!" He said to them: "Now that I have given you the power of trampling underfoot snakes, scorpions, and all the power of the Enemy, nothing will harm you. However don't rejoice at this, that the spirits are submitted to you; but rejoice that your names are written in the heavens." Luke 9, 20.

That which is named the "first quarantine" is described in the catechism of Master of the the Egyptian Rite. There, Cagliostro reveals the means which culminates in the retirement of forty days "in order to succeed in regenerating the degenerate man." At the end of this confinement, "I Am Who I Am," words which, according to the Bible, are those of God to Moses, from the burning bush. Retiring in a three-storied pavilion called Sion, constructed according to architecturally precise prescriptions, he will deliver himself to long hours of meditation, to works having for their goal preparation of the sacred pentagon, and from the thirty third to the fortieth day will communicate with the Angels. He will have at this time acquired infinite knowledge embracing the past, the present and the future and "his power will be immense." After thirty three days, he begins to receive the favor of visible communications with the seven primordial angels and to know the seals and the numbers of these immortal Entities. "After the fortieth day, he receives the first pentagon, which is the virgin paper on which the primordial angels placed their numbers and their seals" thus that seven "secondary pentagons" on whom "only seven angels have placed its seal." By the pentagons, he "orders the immortals in the name of God" with the "effect of obliging or ordering the aerial spirits, and of doing many marvels and of miracles." This constitutes the theurgic ritual. According to Cagliostro, its goal is "obtaining the Pentagon and becoming morally perfect."

We again find the origin of such a path in the Masonic system of the Flaming Star of Tschoudi and in the rituals of the Golden Rosy Cross. The Golden Rosy Cross itself received the evocation of seven primordial angels or Holy Guardian Angel, from more ancient sources. For the evocation of the Holy Guardian Angel, the sacred magic, better known under the name of the Book of Abramelin the Mage, is an important antecedent. The books which compose the "forbidden work of Cornelius Agrippa”—explicitly cited by Cagliostro in the first quarantine—is also of the 15th century. However, the origins of the theurgy and the evocations of the angels are more ancient. They go back also to the XV century, with the works of Pelagius, the hermit of Majorca whose Anacrise was republished by Robert Amadou; to the XIVE century with Pierre of Abano; to the first centuries of the Christian era with the Chaldean Oracles, assigned to a certain Julien called “the chaldean” and to his son Julien named “the theurgist.” A text such as the Anacrise contains many similar rites to those of Cagliostro. This remark is equally true for a grand number of rituals of the Renaissance. The expression “do many marvels and miracles” is deceptive. It appears useful that the theurgy (as the title of the first quarantine of Cagliostro specifies) serves over all to “become morally perfect.” This path rests on the classic pattern of death and of rebirth. It implies a process by which the initiate dies to the darkness in which humanity fell in order to be born again to a superior life. This “perfection” could be obtained by the performance of rites where the symbolism is present from the beginning, but is not explained and illustrated other than progressively and in sections as the candidate progresses. It is the model for the ceremonies of the Egyptian Masonry of Cagliostro which caused the birth of many so-called “Egyptian” Masonic rites. All these rites owe a good share of their rituals and doctrines to Cagliostro. For Cagliostro, a continuity existed between “Egyptian Masonry” and the theurgic rites. The first was only a preparation and a symbolic representation second. The initiate of the Egyptian rite, prepared by his Masonic work, could pass to the theurgic techniques with the feeling of natural continuity.

The relationship between the Arcana Arcanorum and the the Egyptian Rites are ambiguous. A rite such as Misraim was born under the form of a purely kabbalistic system, without the Arcana Arcanorum which were grafted in parallel to its last degrees years later, after their arrival from Italy. So, the 89th degree of the Rite of Misraim suggests the following program: In this degree that one could call the last of the Masonic Rite of Misraim, one is given a developed explanation of the relationships of man with divinity, by the mediation of the celestial spirits. This degree, the most astonishing of all, requires the greatest strength of mind, the greatest purity of morals and the most absolute faith. The password is Uriel, the name of one of the chiefs of the celestial legions, who communicates “more easily with man.” Later, they were newly lost. Some parties reinstated the Egyptian Rites through other orders. In the first meaning of the term, the Arcana Arcanorum is therefore the theurgical evocation of one or several angels by talismen, seals, pentagons or other techniques. The Arcana Arcanorum revealed in the highest degrees of the initiatic Orders quoted at the beginning of this exposition call attention to this definition, if the same elements of the second quarantine of Cagliostro show through at times. Far from being an end in itself, this evocation marks the beginning of a path. Benefiting from the aid of the Guardian Angel or evoked angels, the initiate undertakes the process of transmutation. This evocation permits the initiate to enter into possession of the key. It remains for him to penetrate the part of being able to use it in the proper way. “And it came to pass, as he prayed, that the aspect of his face became changed, and his garment, a shining and glistening white.” (Luke 9, 29).

“My little children, of whom I travail in birth again until Christ be formed in you.” (galatians 4, 19).

In descending Sinai, Moses had a rejuvenated face, vivid with light. Cagliostro suggests that after moral (that is to say psychic) regeneration, during which he would have increased his faculties, an initiate is ready to regenerate physically. The final objective of the two quarantines are evoked subtly in the catechism of Companion in the Egyptian Rite that he dictated to Saint Saint-Costard; “D. What is the use of and why do I always wear a talare? R. Man being regenerate morally and physically, he regains the great power that the deprivation of his innocence had made him lose. This power procures for him spiritual visions and at first, he recognizes that the physical garment of all mortal consecrated to the Eternal must be the clothes [talare]. A similar one was worn, in all the religions and in all the times, by the those who sacrificed, priests or men devoted to God. It is in the catechism of Mistress of the Egyptian Rite of Adoption that this program of forty days retirement figures, inspired by the one that Moses made on the Sinai on leaving Egypt, for regeneration and physical immortality. During this second quarantine which had to be repeated every fifty years, the adept attempts to become physically and no longer only morally perfect. Accompanied by a friend, the candidate will shut himself up in a house in the countryside having a room whose windows are to the south. The operation must begin in the full moon of May; during the first sixteen days the food will consist only of light soups and tender plants and the patient will always leave the table a little hungry. The initiate will drink the May dew, collected from sprouting wheat on pure and white linen. He will begin the meal with a large glass of dew and will finish it with a biscuit or a simple crust of bread. The seventeenth day, at sunrise, the candidate for regeneration must extract a palette of blood, that is to say a light blood-letting. Starting from this day, he will take some white drops of balm of azoth, six in the morning and six in the evening, and increasing the dose two drops by day until the thirty second. The thirty-third day, after the same regime, he will remain in bed until the end of the quarantine. He will take a grain of Materia Prima. On first wakening, after bleeding himself, he will absorb a first grain of universal medicine, he will repeat this the following days. After an unconsciousness of three hours, then convulsions, perspirations and considerable evacuations, he will change the bed linen. He will then eat some beef consomme which has had the fat removed, seasoned with refreshing and laxative plants. The following day he takes the second grain of universal medicine. The day after, he will take a tepid bath. The thirty sixth day, the third and last grain of universal medicine. A deep sleep will follow. The hair, teeth, the nails and skin will blacken and be renewed. The thirty-eighth day, bath with the above mentioned aromatic herbs. The thirty ninth day, he will swallow, in two spoonfuls of red wine, ten drops of the elixir of Acharat. The fortieth day, he will return home rejuvenated and perfectly recreated. Thanks to the strengths thus acquired, the regenerated man will be able to propagate the truth, annihilate vice, destroy idolatry and spread the glory of the Eternal.”

What does this apparent dark text teach us? In springtime, during the full moon of May, the initiate isolates himself physically and psychologically for the purpose of undertaking its operation, the first arcana of internal alchemies. He submits to a regime whose object is the purification of his organism by the means then known: a particular food diet; bleeding; pure water; pure baths; and sweatings. Then he begins the absorption of the Materia Prima which is here, neither cinnabar nor potash! It is perhaps the Materia Prima about which Cyliani speaks centuries later, in Hermes Unveiled. The absorbed substance is dissolved by this oven, this source of continuous fire that is the body. Just as the body of Hiram was in an advanced state of putrefaction when he was revived, the materials of the Great Work must be dissolved (solve), decomposed in order to liberate their power. So that the substance delivers its essence, beginning from the seventeenth day when the initiate ingests drops of balm of azoth, a mixture of sulfur and of mercury (neither common sulfur or mercury), intimately and inseparably united, which comprise philosophical mercury. Thus rid of its coarse envelope, the obtained essence is assimilated by the blood. From that moment, it weaves and nourishes the construction (Coagula) of a particular incorruptible body, the soma psychikon, the golden wedding garment which replaces the tunic of slavery that Adam was clothed since the fall. This type of path will appear completely incongruous to the contemporary Freemason cut off from the hermetic sources of his Order. He knows that his lodge is a society in miniature, a picture of the outside society. But who has told him that it was also the reproduction of human microcosm? Like in a manner to Egyptian or Hindu temples, or cathedrals, it reproduces the head, arms, legs and all the organs of body. The entrance and the departure of the initiates, the position and the movements of the officers teach us the procedures of internal alchemy.

A method of rejuvenation which preceded Cagliostro is contained in the Thesaurorum thesaurus, a complex manual used by the Golden Rosy Cross, dated 1580, but certainly created more recently. Under the title How one uses Magic in order to change their nature and become young again, one reads very similar prescriptions to those of Cagliostro, often almost identical. The two rituals describe a magic retirement of forty days in very similar terms. The German text requires taking the Lapis Medicilanis Macrocosmi, obtained by laboratory alchemy which formulated the use of earth and drops of rain, but suggests that one uses rainwater more easily. According to the German Thesaurus, it is necessary to add a “stone of the philosophers” obtained at the start by the distillation of his own blood—we found a similar reference to blood with Cagliostro. Cagliostro and Thesaurus refer to “grains of Materia Prima.” These formulas are used in order to recover lost youth, but appear very perilous. They testify that the medical aspect is inalienable of this action, to the benefit of oneself and of others. The ancient Rose Cross practiced hermetic medicine. The people defended Cagliostro by recognizing his devotion towards the sick. The objective of the Hermetic and Magic Fraternity of Myriam was the application of powers that the pupil could acquire for the recovery of others. The evocation of angels glimpsed in the first chapter raises an “external way” and the conquest of immortality in the second chapter suggests an “internal way.” The evocation of angels is a procedure of calling on and making contact with outside Intelligences when the conquest of the immortality opens to the interior of the operator. The calling of angels without internal prolongation will satisfy the curiosity of the apprentice mage, but it will lead to an embittered agnosticism. To convince oneself it is sufficient to keep intimately close to those occultists at the end of their career who thought that Magic was sufficient in itself.

Inversely, too many scholarly alchemists have collected the most sophisticated procedures without arriving at how to make them work, then the light emanates from more ignorant apprentices whose heart is opened. The Spirit blows where it will, and it is neither secular magic nor alchemy. The natural exercises of the arcanas are practiced in a religious setting, within an operating myth—in the most noble sense of term. By this myth, the candidate is focused toward his ideal and quiets his mind, which H. P. Blavatsky called “the great murderer of the Real.” Take the example of Christianity, where prayer and liturgy teach the neophyte to control his capricious and lunatic mood. “The faithful is sad, throttled by worries of money, a sick person: he comes to Easter and it is necessary for him to sing the Resurrection. He is happy to be alive, the heart full of joy: it is Good Friday and it is necessary for him to sing hymns before God crucified by men. Entering in the liturgical rhythm, he is to get used to no longer living one’s own small myth evolving according to its impressions, but to live as the Unique Man—the Second Adam—to rejoice and to cry with humanity. When the mind is quiet, the heart opens. The myth, in the midst of which the alchemist operates, has for its object the encouragement of this opening, this breathing of the heart. The alchemists knew how to be Christian, Muslims or Hindu while not identifying with the myth amidst which they operated. The adept knows how to recognize that a myth functions, but he is not conceited enough to imagine that only his myth functions. The distinctions such as the “internal way,” or the “external way” are convenient, but are too rigid. On one hand, no result in the evocation of the angels can be obtained without the acquisition of a particular interior attitude. On the other hand, the conquest of immortality will conduct the neophyte to disaster if the angel neither remains nor guides. Let us simply say that, in this work, and at the core of those of the same character, one comes and goes unceasingly operating between Mage—or priest—and alchemist.⁴⁷

ture. Queen Christina was a person of great charisma and intelligence, that was more influential than any other female figure in the history of the occult. It is worth dwelling for a moment on her figure, given her importance for subsequent periods. Christina was also a generous spendthrift, and lived apparently in debt, but managed nevertheless to leave a legacy to the Church with her priceless art collections. But in secret the Queen was linked to a hidden chain of Illuminati and alchemists that united the greatest figures of the time devoted to the Great Work. Among those Illuminati close to the Queen was Massimiliano Palombara, Marquis of Pietraforte (1614 – 1685), esteemed creator of the famous Magical Door of Rome, now present in Piazza Vittorio. Some say the aforementioned Athanasius Kircher secretly worked on it with artist Gian Lorenzo Bernini, with whom Kircher also worked in the construction and design of the much wider known Fountain of the Four Rivers in Piazza Navona. Bernini was, therefore, beyond the romance and fictional ties to the Illuminati told in Dan Brown's novel Angels and Demons (where we find him mentioned several times), a character with a real link to the Illuminati, i.e. Kircher and the Golden Rosicrucians of the nobility and their philosophy imbued in ancient Egyptian and Chaldean wisdom.

This story becomes incredibly dark and mysterious on November 28, 1680, nine years before the death of Queen Christina of Sweden, when one night in Rome, on the same day, Massimiliano Palombara, Athanasius Kircher and Bernini died, all three are said to have become the victims of an alchemical experiment that went badly wrong. But some say that in reality all three of them were punished for having shown too much of their secrets in the inscription we find still today on the mysterious door. According to legend, the same Alchemical/Magical Door was built in 1680 as a celebration of a successful transmutation that occurred in the alchemical laboratory of Riario palace. (FIG. 135) It's a shame that the experiment in question seems to have necessitated a triple human sacrifice from its creators, that brings us to the importance of the number three carved into the Magical door:

The center (is) in the center of the trine.

The experiments were supposedly divided into three operations, each of which generated a particular entity, but the first result was then poured out in the second and the product of this outpouring was then poured out into the third. So the sentence inscribed on the door seems to have a deep initiatory value, tied to the astral plane, and the secrets of this operation that might have eventually opened this extradimensional door to the willing trio. In one of his writings, the Illuminati Ciro Fomisano aka Kremmerz, illustrates the Major Arcana of the Tarot, mentioning the initiatic paths that correspond to the Kabbalistic forms, which he relates to the Magical Door and what he defines as “Piromagia,” namely that state of fire (in greek Pira means fire) as a pyramid, which is exalted to the pure love that opens the perception of a super-sensible world described so well by the Marquis of Palombara who commissioned the Alchemical/Magical Door, and was a member of the Rosicrucians, which in the Western tradition perhaps reflect the pure intentions of privileged contact with the Invisible Masters. Timothy Alberino ended his documentary filming my speech at the Magical Door in Piazza Vittorio, the “Stargate” of my beloved city Rome. The city where I was born in 1970, and where back in 1993, I started my fantastic adventure of discovery and awareness of the Kingdom of God, that brought me for fifteen years around the world before my return to Rome in the middle of 2008, conscious of my new mission, to write this trilogy. In fact, it took me three years to put together the basis of this work, and three more years to translate them into English, with the help of my wife Christy. I feel fully satisfied and ready to introduce to you my next work, The Invisible Master, where I will face the theme of the relationship between alien entities, secret societies, and the Vatican-led New World Order.

In this scenario a prime figure has always been Aleister Crowley, who I first encountered on the physical plane at the age of 11, in the form of an edition of The Book of Thoth, a volume he wrote on the Tarot, that my grandmother Felicity Mason gave to me at this young age, knowing my early interest for magic and the occult. It included pictures of a 78-card set inspired by his designs and strikingly painted by Lady Frieda Harris. I have included her version of the Masonic Tracing Boards at the start of each volume of my Confessions. (FIG. 136) Whilst her work on Aleister Crowley’s Thoth tarot deck is well-known, it is not generally realized that Frieda Lady Harris was an active co-mason. This is the branch of masonry which was founded by Madame Blavatsky, Leadbeater and others associated with the Theosophical Society, that as I have shown you in my Trilogy, was instrumental for the spreading of the New Age virus that deeply permeates our age.

FIG. 136 – Posters of the Masonic Tracing Boards by Lady Frieda Harris. These posters have their own history. The original paintings were acquired by British Occultists in the 1970's. Around 1976 a few hundred sets of these now very rare posters were printed but unfortunately only a few survive today as posters and are not collected by libraries, and their existence is not recorded in catalogues and bibliographies.

From Straw Man to the New Cornerstone

oday in 2017, three hundred years after the official foundation of Speculative Freemasonry, we are living in a period of absolute distress, due to demonic pacts, and the terrible compromises made by our leaders and their institutions, whether political, military or religious, but we will pray and we will defend ourselves mentally as I taught you earlier. Those of you who are not ready, who tend to remain in the vestibule, who are unable to look beyond the veil of Isis, will perhaps find fun and excitement from my trilogy, but nothing more. Those instead who are lucky enough to interpret it in an initiatic way, will discover in it during the course of time, a true and solid foundation to be passed on to the next generations. My brothers and sisters, at this critical time in the future of the human species, remember that all of you are the Salt of the Earth, the Light of the World and the Fire of the Universe, but you need to understand this and act upon it before it is too late. There are only two realms upon this world, one of God in a Natural State of spiritual Life and Self-Existence, and one of the legal state of fiction in a spiritual death, also called a civil life. What is civil is always artificial. What is artificial must be recreated and renamed into what is legal. And what is legal is that which is opposed to Reality, to Nature, to God, and to Life. This legal state of the pretended death of the spirit in false persona is also called legally citizenship, which is why United States citizenships are called “natural persons” in law, and not spiritual persons. When the word nature or natural is recreated and renamed into its legal equivalent, as that which is opposed to the real thing, then that which is legally called “natural” can only ever be that which is an artificial representation thereof. This is the way of fictional things, of a civil, legal, artificial existence, the evidence of which being more than conclusively shown herein to satisfy even the most ardent skeptic, if he or she should dare to challenge the power of the ego so as to finish this work and discover the nature of this false, devilish identity, also known as the strawman.

The spirit is of life, not death. It is not an after-life, except to say that every human may rise from the dead persona (artificial status) of a legal existence. It may surprise the reader to discover that the word “after-life” or any variation thereof, is not written anywhere in the Bible. It may also be a surprise that the only actual concept of a “life after death” comes not from the notion of a physical death of the human body at all, but as the end of Natural Life itself, and that such an attainment of a Natural, spiritual Life after Death is only accomplished by those that wake up from the big lie that is legal fiction. A citizen or member of any fictional thing is a dead form of existence. It is the state and status (personification) of a Godless and spiritually-void life. Belief in lies, in artificial persons, places, and things (nouns) and the artificial (legal) laws that control them, is a state of being (entity) that exists only in spiritual death, while a spiritual life lives eternally (at all times) and is the only cure for such a legal disease as this. Life only exists in Nature, and can be found nowhere in fiction. Fiction is always temporary, never eternal, for that which is eternal is Self-evident and Self-Existent. Reality needs no proof of man for its ambiguity of eternal (unchangeable) existence. That which is legal is that which is opposed to the essence, force, and Soul of Life. Thus a legal existence can only be lived in the realm of “hell;” in the realm of the spiritually dead.

Only through the overcoming of any perceived validity and authority of the many artfully “created” marks and signs of fictional person-hood, of Being thus figuratively “born again” from a civil, artificial life (false existence) into the innocence of our Natural and Original state of Conscious Being (as we are Originally born into God’s Nature). May we break free of the bonds and surety of this legal matrix code which controls every fictional strawman id-entity. The loss of all fiction, in other words, is the gaining of eternal Life. There is no life after death in this regard, for the death spoken of in the Bible is exclusively referential to the legal fiction, and eternal Life can only be found through the abandonment of all legal marks that cause us to live in the spiritual death of legal fiction. The Word of God is simply the Purest and most harmonious Life possible in Nature (Jehovah) that any human may lead without obstruction, as the Law of Nature personified into the story of Christ in scripture. It is nothing more and nothing less than this—an instruction manual for the untainted (eternal) spiritual Life of every human. ⁴⁸

And now, aware of this, some of you may become the living Cornerstones of a New Civilization that is being born out of the ashes of this old one, no longer built on the evil and the lies of this age. I recommend to everyone The Kingdom of God Is Within You, by Leo Tolstoy published for the first time in 1893, where he explains all this, and surely it is no coincidence that the Russian side of my family, which was acquired by the second husband of my great-grandmother, was linked by a deep friendship to this great author. He wrote: “No honest and serious-minded man of our day can help seeing the incompatibility of true Christianity—the doctrine of meekness, forgiveness of injuries, and love— with government, with its pomp, acts of violence, executions, and wars.” His “love as law of life” and principles of non-violence, that is based on love for humankind, were deeply embedded in the writings of Tolstoy and influenced people like Ghandi, another great friend of my family, who was even guested in London on one occasion. I know some of these assertions might create wonder, and even disbelief in my story, but if you are serious about knowing the vast history of my family, no problem, I have all the evidence in my family archives, and serious historians will be able to find such evidence if they wish to do so. However I hope in my small way to contribute to the greatness of my family history with my work, and this trilogy in particular, It was written to help humanity change for the better. Because as Jesus unmasked the false religious leaders of his time waging war against hypocrisy and evil, today the mission does not change, and what He said is still our main source of inspiration: Then you will know the truth, and the truth will set you free. So what is the secret of Freemasonry? Knowing it, will actually set you free? Well, this is what Aleister Crowley wrote in The Secret of Freemasonry. In the instructions he wrote directly to the high degree members of his Order:

48 See. Clint Richardson, STRAWMAN The real Story of Your Artificial Person, available at <http://www.strawmanstory.info/>

Now of Him is our Lord the Sun Father, Creator, Preserver and Destroyer, One, Exalted, Perfect, Giver of Life and Death, Vicegerent and Viceregent of Heaven; and upon Earth is His representative the Sacred Eidolon within the Ark of the Covenant of whom even in this place we speak not but in hidden terms, for that He is sacred and secret beyond all that are or may be, the Rod wherein Prometheus brought down Fire from heaven. And either Image and Son of the All-Father undergoeth Death and Resurrection; and the symbols are cognate; and the Feasts of one and the other have been celebrated throughout all recorded time by the initiates of all faiths. And the vulgar, ignorant of this, have mingled the two worships, appointing the times of one and the seasons of the other, the observances of the second and the ordinances of the first in the same ritual; wherefore have minds been darkened and understandings confounded. Thus at Easter is the Crucifixion or Copulation, and nine months later is the Birth of the Child, which liveth 33 years, being a generation of mankind, and is crucified. Yet is this coming led with the descent of the Sun below the Equator and His resurrection, and again with the daily agony of the Sun. Now then our Brethren, having the true Keys of all religion; namely that all cults typify either the Mysteries of Lingam and Yoni or of Sol, Luna, and Terra, can for themselves interpret all rites, create new faiths and new feasts, ruling the world in justice and righteousness under the Supreme and Most Holy King X^o that is to them Father and God. For this is the arcanum of the Hierophants of old, that in this cult of the Sun in Heaven and of the Phallus on Earth all men can unite, for that these mysteries are reasonable and true, and no man can deny them. This is that which is written “Peace on Earth, Goodwill toward men!” And this is the true and final secret of Freemasonry; this Sun, is it not the Great Architect of the Universe, the Father of the System, the Eidolon of the Macrocosm? And this Phallus, is it not the Great Architect of this other Universe of Man, the Father of the Race, the Eidolon of the Microcosm? Is not this that Truth which is established in the mouth of two witnesses? Wherefore be ye vigilant, preserving that Kingdom of God which is within you from defilement, chaste unto your Lord that is Light, Life, Love and Liberty indeed. Also, remember well that in all this instruction no word is wasted; and that by deep and continuous study of the text may ye enlighten your souls. Now then at last are ye indeed initiates of Freemasonry; now at last are ye worthy to rule and govern the Rite in the law of Righteousness and Truth, giving Light, Life, Liberty and Love to all men of full age, free and of good report, that solicit admission to the Lodge.

The truth is there, and there is no great mystery in the Masonic symbols. They are simple working tools endued with moral teaching, but Crowley's interpretation of the mysteries of the Craft are different, and involve the teachings of the various mystery schools of the Illuminati in the various ages. For this reason, I suggest you study with care the words above, as some of you will learn a lot from them. For three centuries, maybe longer, men have been "exposing" the secrets and mysteries of the Freemasons, and they continue to do so today, but the truth is that the true secret of Freemasonry can not be described in the interpretation of the Masonic teachings, but ultimately in your heart. I hope those "Conspiracy Theorists" out there will finally accept this and move on to a more constructive and intelligent form of criticism towards Freemasonry and the Illuminati, as I tried to do for over a decade now with my work over the internet, and now with my books. Often, unfortunately, I have become the subject of ridicule and even smear campaigns against my person, but that's part of the game, as only time will tell if I was right in doing all this, as the fundamental truth is that we are all slaves of this system, not only because of our ignorance or incompetence but because of our lack of true will in wanting to turn things around. We should now meditate on the words given as instructions in the first chamber of the Mysteries Class of the Illuminati: If everyone, right from the outset, were what sensible men should be, if one could disclose and explain to them the holiness of the cause and the greatness of the plan during their initiation, then many things would be possible. But since everyone hopes, everyone wants to receive, and no one wants to give, since the allure of the hidden is almost the only means of attracting men who would otherwise turn their backs on us after having satisfied their curiosity, or who might even use their knowledge for evil, since we are primarily concerned with the moral education of these often still raw men, and yet everyone hurries, keeps complaining, and becomes impatient about any delays, it is easy to see that effort, patience, persistence, and an overwhelming love of the cause are required here; that the Superiors must be convinced that the cause is a noble one, since otherwise they would not apply their wealth, all their powers, their whole existence, for which they are neither reimbursed nor recognised, but for which they are often repaid with ingratitude. ... I say an overwhelming love of the cause is required so that one does not give up in the middle of the work and turns one's back forever on the endeavour to make people better. To prevent all this, to help where aid is often difficult to give, to accomplish all of this, is what we call the secret art of governing. ⁴⁹

I hope within my books you have begun to grasp “the secret art of governing,” which is not only the perverse way of today's rulers, but also something very different based on the true concern of the good side of the Illuminati. Originally even Adam Weishaupt's order was born on good intentions for his Brothers and for the world. Weishaupt advised:

To observe others day and night, to educate them, to come to their aid, to care for them, to instill courage in the fearful, and to incite zeal and activity in the luke warm and the listless, to preach to the unknowing, and to teach them, to raise up the fallen, to strengthen the wavering and the weak, to restrain heated tempers, to forestall disputes or to settle them, to conceal flaws and weaknesses, to be on your guard against the intrusion of the curious and of meddlers, to prevent carelessness, to foster in your men respect towards the Superiors, love and sympathy towards one another, and tolerance towards outsiders—these and more tasks and duties are awaiting you! If you still have the courage to overcome all this, then listen on! Do you know at all what secret alliances are, what their place is in the great chain of events in the world? Do you think they are just an inconsequential, transitory phenomenon? O, my Brother! God and nature, who have arranged all things in the world, great and small, in their proper time and place, use these as means to cause tremendous effects which could otherwise not be achieved. Listen and marvel! All morality is oriented according to this perspective, and the very notions of right and wrong receive their necessary correction from it alone. Here you stand, at the juncture of the past and the future world. One glance into times gone by, and immediately ten thousand locks fall away, opening the gates to the future—prepare yourself to make a fleeting yet bold glance inside. You will behold the unspeakable wealth of God and nature, the humiliation and dignity of man, and the human race in its adolescence if not its childhood, where you believed you would find it in its grey, decrepit age, close to its downfall and disparagement. ⁵⁰

The problem is that today's Illuminati elite are completely out of touch with the problems of ordinary people or the proper understanding of God and nature, and their duties towards humankind. Just think of Meryl Streep, one of Hollywood's most decorated and revered actresses with three Oscar awards, that while she was accepting the Cecile B DeMille award for lifetime achievement in January 2017, started a nonsense attack against President Donald J. Trump, demonstrating once again the loyalty of Hollywood's elite towards mondialism and the depopulation campaign sponsored by the inbred Illuminati bankers. The Club of Rome, the Bilderberg and even the New York Times are all advocating for extreme depopulation. The only remaining question is how far are the global elite willing to go to carry out their depopulation goals? Will they go as far as to kill Donald J. Trump? Prominent Russian TV host and journalist Dmitry Kisiliov warned that the elite "may kill" Donald Trump because of his desire to build better relations with Moscow.⁵¹ Let's remember that George Soros and other rich liberals who spent tens of millions of dollars trying to elect Hillary Clinton, gathered in Washington for a three-day, closed door meeting to retool the big-money left to fight back against Donald Trump in November, 2016. These evil doers from the elite of the New World Order will stop at nothing to get back in power. So We the People, have to be very careful of their sabotage projects during Trump's presidency, that as we all know will bring us all the way to 2020. The year when a full on war will probably erupt worldwide between the two factions of the New World Order for world domination. The one close to God, with Christian and Jewish values at the core represented by Trump, the other instead, the progressive and liberal one, slaves of Satan and secretly in bed with their supposed Islamic enemies, who are their sponsors. In all this, former President Barack Obama will not disappear, unfortunately, and will actually gather even more influence in liberal circles in the upcoming years, before eventually reappearing on the world stage thanks to that dangerous club of criminals from the elite called the United Nations. I have described for you in Volume II of my Confessions the corruption of the UN, which is linked since its origins to the Rockefeller family.

In this context, one of the most dangerous figures of today is Dave Spencer, fifth-generation Rockefeller, who was raised on the practical standards of what used to be known as Rockefeller Republicanism, founded in recent years. Practically Republican is a forum where George Soros can promote his evil agenda in the Republican field. Spencer promotes what he defined as "a national college program that brings together diverse groups of socially minded Republicans, Democrats and Independents, to converse, brainstorm and resolve problems based on issues, rather than affiliations.”⁵² However, beware of this seemingly innocent bipartisan project that is born to sabotage and manipulate the democratic structure of the USA, and undermine once again the will of the American people, who have decided to vote for President Trump. This person, who some of you for a number of reasons may dislike, is actually, believe it or not, the last opportunity we have to fight the current mafia heading the New World Order, so please give him a chance.

Trilogy Conclusion

began this volume with the allegory of Plato's Cave, and I return to it in closing. In this ancient myth we learn the faults of the human story, and the limits of humankind. In it, Plato wishes to represent the history of man that is freed from the bondage of darkness and ignorance. The human mind develops a speculative process that is strongly influenced by the shadows, which are in reality our human experience. Only in the next step, by going beyond this stage, can we contemplate the highest and most sublime reality outside the cave; the sun, which represents the "Truth." Well, there are many ways to interpret the concept of "TRUTH," But at the close of this book I propose only two interpretations of what I mean by " Truth" as follows: 1) Before interpretation truth is regarded as the property of Being, for example God is eternal; and this truth is eternal and immutable for us. And it is a truth that continues to be interpreted this way, though no one knows for sure. It is an objective truth that remains so beyond what we can perceive with our senses, so we simply accept it as dogma. This knowledge of the truth, we'll call it, hereinafter, in our discourse, knowledge of the Absolute. And this kind of interpretation, by going back to my faded high school memories, was called ONTOLOGICAL INTERPRETATION. For those who don't know what ontology is, it's the philosophical study of the nature of being, becoming, existence or reality, as well as the understanding of the basic categories of being and their relations.

2) A second aspect of truth allows us to know things as they are, with an adjustment of our mind to it. It is a subjective sense that expresses OUR TRUTH as we see it through our senses and our experience. And this is a fact always relative, because it is linked to our particular interpretation. This interpretation we call EPISTEMOLOGICAL INTERPRETATION.

Today, we live in a world of shadows, and often we are inclined to take "Truth" from the shadows, so we can make judgments and determine behavior. However, the Masonic initiation opens a road, but not the only one, to exit our cave and leave the shadows, that are our false dogmas, to achieve what man since his inception has always sought, and that is the truth. That said, what kind of truth do we seek? It's not something what we can acquire from most modern religions like Scientology or any New Age crap promoted by the New World Order. As we seek ultimately an answer to the great questions that have always haunted man: "Who am I, where do I come from, where am I going, why life, death, and suffering?" We seek an answer to the questions that we ask ourselves on the knowledge of the Absolute. The term Absolute denotes unconditioned and/or independence in the strongest sense. It can include or overlap with meanings implied by other concepts such as the infinite, totality, and perfection. In Christian theology, the Absolute is conceived as being synonymous with or an essential attribute of God, and it characterizes other natures of God such as His love, truth, wisdom, existence (omnipresence), knowledge (omniscience), power (omnipotence), and others. Absolute love, for example, denotes an unconditional love as opposed to conditional, limited love. Likewise, the absolute can also be understood as the Ultimate Being, or a characteristic of it, in other religious traditions. ⁵³

To attain knowledge of the Absolute, man must finally understand the essence of life, the essence of man, the essence of God. However, for us, this knowledge is mostly unattainable during our human existence. Knowledge of the Absolute is, perhaps, the ultimate goal of humanity, however we still live in Plato's Cave. It is today, a technological cave, just watch your average human playing with their smartphone. We live in a civilization that bombards us with images, and sounds. Our life in the average modern city, in reality, is life in a technological cave.

However, in this complex, and at times apocalyptic scenario, the esoteric principles are regaining their value, as, for example, the principles of freedom, equality, brotherhood, tolerance. These concepts are in fact, HUMAN CONCEPTS, i.e. concepts that help us create a physical world and a more just human society, but at the same time, they are concepts whose exercise helps us on our way towards perfection. To us, the Masonic initiation has given us the ability to undertake and make this journey, like a man who, suddenly out of the darkness, acquires the ability to see the light. Remember the words: Visit the interior of the earth, and purifying it, you will find the hidden stone, represented by the acronym V.I.T.R.I.O.L., usually found in the Chamber of Reflection; this a small darkened room adjoining the Lodge room, traditionally present in the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, the French Rite, and related jurisdictions, including CoMasonry. Before the ceremony of initiation, the candidate is placed for a time in the Chamber of Reflection, in order to meditate and consider how Freemasonry is about to change his life. He is given a series of questions to answer. Typically, he is asked his duties to God, his fellow men, and himself. In some lodges he is also asked to make a Will. At the end of this time, he is led to the Temple for initiation.⁵⁴

This is the basic first step for many Freemasons in order to leave the CAVE WORLD, a beautiful cave, but still a cave, although now it's a seemingly comfortable technological cave for most people. Brothers and Sisters (Masons and nonMasons), as I consider you as such after reading and understanding my trilogy of truth, be happy and rejoice because after this period of tribulation, the final liberation will be reached after the critical turning point of 2020, and a full on World War. Following all this, for the survivors, we will have the re-birth of a new civilization and a period of prosperity, and awareness for humanity, a period that will last for a thousand years. The thousand years concept appears nowhere in the sixty-six books, 1,189 chapters, 31,173 verses of the Bible, except in one particular passage of great importance where it occurs six times in six consecutive verses. This is the crucial passage to be found in Revelation 20:1-6 (New International Version):

And I saw an angel coming down out of heaven, having the key to the Abyss and holding in his hand a great chain. He seized the dragon, that ancient serpent, who is the devil, or Satan, and bound him for a thousand years. He threw him into the Abyss, and locked and sealed it over him, to keep him from deceiving the nations anymore until the thousand years were ended. After that, he must be set free for a short time. I saw thrones on which were seated those who had been given authority to judge. And I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded because of their testimony about Jesus and because of the word of God. They[a] had not worshiped the beast or its image and had not received its mark on their foreheads or their hands. They came to life and reigned with Christ a thousand years. (The rest of the dead did not come to life until the thousand years were ended.) This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy are those who share in the first res our introspective journey to rectify ourselves in these critical times. Outside of our personal achievements with our own soul, are we really ready for the sea of change that will take place around us in the coming years? I invite you to prepare, and to inform yourself with this book, and other publications. Knowledge is the greatest weapon we can use against the elite of the New World Order. Is this human “reality” intrinsic to the physical form of the universe, or just a perception, a socially reinforced mass delusion? Ultimately it comes down to what you choose to believe, and your awareness that it is a choice.⁵⁵ In the film Matrix Revolutions (2003) there is a brilliant conversation between Agent Smith and Neo:

Agent Smith: Why, Mr. Anderson? Why do you do it? Why get up? Why keep fighting? Do you believe you're fighting for something? For more than your survival? Can you tell me what it is? Do you even know? Is it freedom? Or truth? Perhaps peace? Yes? No? Could it be for love? Illusions, Mr. Anderson. Vagaries of perception. The temporary constructs of a feeble human intellect trying desperately to justify an existence that is without meaning or purpose. And all of them as artificial as the Matrix itself, although only a human mind could invent something as insipid as love. You must be able to see it, Mr. Anderson. You must know it by now. You can't win. It's pointless to keep fighting. Why, Mr. Anderson? Why? Why do you persist?

Neo: Because I choose to. ⁵⁶

Sovereign Grand Master The Rite of Strict Observance intervening at the Convent (Annual General Meeting) of the Romanian National Grand Lodge – 1880 on the 17th of December 2016.

At the entrance of St. Benedict's Cave (Sacro Speco) in Subiaco, (FIG. 137) where I am writing these last pages, we find the image of Lucifer, the head of the rebel angels, the eternal prisoner of the cave for his sin of pride towards God. Lucifer has another function in Gnostic vision, which is a vision embraced by most Illuminati sects and occult Freemasonry. This is a view of Lucifer as a sort of Prometheus, a hero, who gives us the divine light at the cost of being punished himself. In the end, the gnostics or others, decide to embrace the lost cause of Lucifer for convenience, because he is the dispenser of divine light in an increasingly dark cave. The reliance on Lucifer, unfortunately, facilitates a fall into the clutches of Satan, the enemy and the oppressor overlooking the Satanists and pseudoGnostics of today's elite. A group of individuals basically made up of willing puppets of the alien world that manipulate them consciously or unconsciously. This is the big mistake of the caveman of today, believing that Lucifer can be an ally that can facilitate escape from the cave, made impossible by the alien watchers, our Guardians since the beginning of time. Having said that, some Illuminati Grandmasters like Remi Boyer, actively work with these alien forces, opening doors in our dimension still to this day. (FIG. 138) This is a subject of great interest that I will write about in detail in my next book, entitled The Invisible Master. However, this trilogy concludes with a firm condemnation of Satanism and occultism in general, as in the best tradition of the Strict Templar Observance, the Christian Masonic Rite I have the honor and responsibility to preside over since 2016, (FIG. 139) and the only one to have risked extinction for this unique position in the Masonic world. The Strict Observance was in fact particularly devoted to the reform of Masonry in the 18th century, with special reference to the elimination of the occult sciences which at the time were widely practiced in many lodges, and the establishment of cohesion and homogeneity in Masonry through the enforcement of strict discipline, the regulation of functions, etc.⁵⁷

Keep in mind, that the only real guide to find the exit of this prison planet/cave for true Freemasons and real initiates (who are obviously not on the dark side), remains always the Messiah Jesus Christ, our only true

Masonic cornerstone. (FIG. 140) That's why Christian Freemasonry should be in control of this idiotic and dangerous Masonic Network running the New World Order. Today's Craft is in the hands of brainwashed Illuminati sects like the O.T.O., or Scientology, Satanists, New Agers, and Jesuits. For this reason we need to return to our Christian roots, ridding ourselves of this liberal and malig nant Communist cancer that is present at the core of Freemasonry, both in the Grand Orient of France Network, as in the United Grand Lodge of England Network. Especially now that we are celebrating 300 years from the first meeting of the Grand Lodge of London and Westminster, the first Grand lodge in the world. To celebrate this momentous occasion the United Grand Lodge of England is coordinating a series of special events. Instead the World Masonic Christian Alliance will meet in Bucarest, Romania, in June 2017, with another two thousand Masons under the direction of Grand Master General Bartolomeu Constantin Săvoiu, (FIGS. 141 and 142) who is not part of a group of “abusive Masons” like Dan TROFIN 33 (Grand Chancellor on Foreign Affairs of the main Romanian Masonic Obbedience working under the patronage of the UGLE).⁵⁸ These are Masonic “Brothers” who are losing control of True Freemasonry, in favor of a mild and faded version of the once great Masonic Institution, so let me tell these pompeous idiots that both General Bartolomeu Constantin Săvoiu, and Giancarlo Seri (FIG. 143) cited by Trofin, even if apparently divided in the Masonic world, are both members of the Ordo Illuminatorum Universalis. An Opinion by R.W. Bro. Michael A. Delgado, Sr., FPSH Grand CCFC, MWPHGL of Georgia states:

Masonic recognition is as complex a study as one can imagine when looking at the overall structure of freemasonry. Even the most ardent student of the Craft will find it difficult at times to fathom the many intricate workings of the recognition process. One would be amazed and probably overwhelmed by the numerous facets of recognition which must be observed by sovereign grand obediences as they relate to treaties of recognition between each other. Recognition may range in scope from full, to partial, to limited in its application; it may include inter-visitation, and even dual membership. The ground rules may differ somewhat from jurisdiction to jurisdiction, but basic to most is: an unfaltering belief in God; the Volume of the Sacred Law (VSL) as an essential part of the furniture of the lodge; prohibition of the discussion of religion and politics in lodge; initiation of only men; and an adherence to the Twenty-five Landmarks of Freemasonry. The list is somewhat more extensive, but it is evident that all of these elements must be satisfied before the recognition process is to take place. I am informed that in many instances the protocol is that the younger of the two grand bodies must initiate the recognition request.⁵⁹

In regards to my own mission and my work, I have been at war with the “Regular” Masonic Network headed by the United Grand Lodge of England, for over a decade now, but fraternally, I hope my criticism towards these troubled Brothers has helped them in some way to move from their old dinosaur positions. Pushing them to support a new traditional approach, that is Masonically speaking, in line with the times, and more realistic. Their way of misleading and manipulating history and tradition must end after 300 years of what is basically a colonial British imposition, because it’s full of lies, and the UGLE can’t pretend they are the Vatican of Freemasonry forcing the U.S. obediences to neglect their recognition to otherwise “Regular” Obediences like the current Grande Loge de France. The Grande Loge de France, although never recognized by the United Grand Lodge of England (UGLE), was (briefly) recognized by a few of the Grand Lodges in the United States around the time of the First World War (UGLE and most of the American Grand Lodges currently recognize the Grande Loge Nationale Française instead). How can this be possible if this old Masonic body gave birth to The Sovereign Council of Emperors of the East and of the West, Sublime Scottish Mother Lodge of the world, (FIG. 144) of what became later the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite? Basically U.S. Freemasons, who as we know have a preference for this Masonic Rite, are forced to neglect part of their history and their links in order to continue the pathetic show directed by the Hannoverians (renamed in 1917 the House of Windsor). Maybe the God and my right motto of the Thirty-third Degree of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, and hence adopted as that also by the Supreme Council of the Rite described in detail in Volume I, should give us a clue.

What more can I say at this point, if not that I am still happy to be part of this Masonic World, even if in a different Family or Network from the majority of mainstream Freemasons, unfortunately compromised by ignorance and Masonic politics. A question however arises, now that Pope Francis will begin his war against Freemasonry because of

Messaggio del Santo Padre

*The Honorable Donald Trump President of the United States of America
The White House
Washington, DC*

Upon your inauguration as the forty-fifth President of the United States of America, I offer you my cordial good wishes and the assurance of my prayers that Almighty God will grant you wisdom and strength in the exercise of your high office. At a time when our human family is beset by grave humanitarian crises demanding far-sighted and united political responses, I pray that your decisions will be guided by the rich spiritual and ethical values that have shaped the history of the American people and your nation's commitment to the advancement of human dignity and freedom worldwide. Under your leadership, may America's stature continue to be measured above all by its concern for the poor, the outcast and those in need who, like Lazarus, stand before our door. With these sentiments, I ask the Lord to grant you and your family, and all the beloved American people, his blessings of peace, concord and every material and spiritual prosperity.

FRANCISCUS PP.

FIG. 145 – Pope Francis' message on the day of his inauguration as the 45th President of the United States of America to President Donald J. Trump: "I pray that your decisions will be guided by the rich spiritual and ethical values that have shaped the history of the American people."

President Trump, a war directed to the rebel Freemasons of the Knights of Malta and the Knights of Columbus: Will the Knights in question respect their Masonic oath or will their Catholic Faith be hijacked by a Jesuit mondialist Pope? U.S. Freemasons are on the verge of an unprecedented crisis that requires another War of Independence, this time against the Vatican, possibly headed by Brother Donald J. Trump. Let's remember what Pope Francis stated to the press as Donald Trump was being sworn in as the 45th President of the United States on the 20th of January 2017, warning against populist leaders, saying to the Spanish newspaper El Pais, that Germany came to elect one in 1933, and ended up with Adolf Hitler as its dictator. Pope Francis, who later wrote a friendlier message to President Trump, (FIG. 145) should explain why Himmler used the Jesuits as the model for the SS, since the latter found they had the core elements of absolute obedience.⁶⁰

I would like to thank two figures, even if they are long dead, for their constant inspiration in my literary journey: Rene Guenon (1886 – 1951) and Julius Evola (1898

– 1974). And this final quote from Nikola Tesla:

Of all the frictional resistances, the one that most retards human movement is ignorance, what Buddha called “The greatest evil in the world.” The friction which results from ignorance can reduced only by the spread of knowledge and the unification of the heterogeneous elements of humanity. No effort could be better spent.

BENEATH THE VATICAN THE DARKEST SECRETS ARE HIDDEN

Just when you thought you learned all there was to know in the first two volumes of Leo Lyon Zagami's Confessions, the revelations are deeper and even more macabre in Volume III. Once again, Zagami pushes the boundaries with this unique and personal journey into the mysteries of the secretive world of the Illuminati. In this, the third book in his Confessions series, a variety of topics of interest are explored. Topics that are always verified with documentation. Zagami gives an account of humankind's function within the grand celestial battle between the internal controllers of Earth, and the external knowledge of a new generation of conspiracy researchers.

The Illuminati exist. They have created religions and influenced humanity with spiritual ideology and religious practices since the dawn of time. They have supported such individuals as Aleister Crowley and Gerald Gardner who crafted the modern Witchcraft revival that hides behind a pagan image, a Satanic reality in tune with today's New Age movement. Zagami also continues what he calls "conspiracy reality," a way to fight back the system of lies and deceit responsible for the rise of Satanism in the Vatican, and in the process showing the magical practices of the Illuminati.

Introduction by the Author

Not many are aware that there is an unseen world that surrounds each of us, a world that we cannot see with our eyes or feel with our senses. It is a world that is at play in everything that we do in our daily lives. Some people call it the spiritual, elemental, the astral plane, or simply the supernatural, but I call it the invisible link. This unseen world influences destiny and even politics to the point that some adepts such as the late Manly P. Hall even claimed that there is no such thing as free will and others that say that President Trump is the product of occult forces. The notion that the world is governed by an invisible realm was a central feature of natural magic.

This dimension has been rigged because the Illuminati, the Sabbatean Frankists, and their Jesuit supervisors have brainwashed the masses to keep everyone enslaved in the material world. That's why the Company of Jesus, aka the Jesuits, has a dominant role in this book. However, Jesus gave us the right spiritual weapons to fight these supernatural entities fueled with demons, angels, elementals, jinn, and extra-dimensional parasites that ultimately can't compete with the power of our Lord Jesus. Sure, we can make simple day-to-day choices, but our future may already be predetermined if manipulated by such entities. We should always remember that faith in Jesus will decide in which direction we ultimately go in our lives, and the angels of God can always help us in this delicate process.

The problem is that humans create and attract bad entities through evil thoughts and actions. Angels are often left out of our lives even when we claim the contrary, especially in the New Age circles. These evil extra-dimensional creatures feed on our flesh, blood, semen, and vampirize our energy due to ignorance. Of course, we also have the dark side and the Satanists who invite these forces to establish a link, but they are in league with Satan and his Legion. There is also a hereditary problem if the parents were sinners, immoral, or unethical because they will pass on these creatures to the child in the womb and this happens often in the Illuminati bloodlines. As it is said, "God's punishment as owing to both the sins of the fathers and the sins of the children," or "the apple doesn't fall too far from the tree." Does God punish children for their parents' sins? The answer is yes and these are the relevant passages to read regarding this: Exodus 20:5-6 (also Dt 5:9)

I, the LORD your God, am a jealous God, punishing the children for the sin of the fathers to the third and fourth generation of those who hate me, but showing love to a thousand generations of those who love me and keep my commandments.

Deuteronomy 24:16

Fathers shall not be put to death for their children, nor children put to death for their fathers; each is to die for his sin.

Ezekiel 18:20

The soul who sins is the one who will die. The son will not share the guilt of the father, nor will the father share the guilt of the son. The righteousness of the righteous man will be credited to him, and the wickedness of the wicked will be charged against him.

Matthew 23:35 (also Lk 11:50-51)

And so upon you will come all the righteous blood that has been shed on earth, from the blood of righteous Abel to the blood of Zechariah son of Berekiah, whom you murdered between the temple and the altar.

Two things inspired me to write this book. The first inspiration was a chat I had with fellow-patriot Owen Shroyer when he suggested during my visit to the Infowars Command Center in Austin in the summer of 2019, that I should write a new book, and the other was when I read Gary Lachman's recent work published in 2018, entitled, Dark Star Rising: Magick and Power in the Age of Trump, where the former bass guitarist for the punk rock/new wave band Blondie, who is now a member of the Ordo Templi Orientis (O.T.O.), and a celebrated libtard author who specializes in mysticism and occultism, explored what Pepe the frog has to do with "hyper sigils," and how magical traditions were co-opted, adapted, and electronically remixed in the 2016 U.S. election to facilitate, in Lachman's view, the election of President Donald J. Trump.

Lachman describes Trump in his book as an evil figure, a sort of Adolf Hitler, using New Thought and “Chaos Magic” to take over the world. Harvey Bishop, a New Thought blogger, remarked that “making dreams a reality” is the essence of New Thought. New Thought is a generic name for different philosophies of the mind that share the belief that “thoughts are causative,” made through sheer mental intention. The mind can affect reality and in the past, I have pointed out the importance of the egregore concept representing a thoughtform or collective group mind, an autonomous psychic entity made up of and influencing the thoughts of a group of people.

The reality Lachman said the alt-right wanted to affect was the 2016 U.S. presidential election. Lachman states that racism, sexism, nativism, and social-dominance were key factors in Trump's support among white voters. This brings Steve Bannon into the picture and his connection to the occult politics of Julius Evola, and more importantly, Lachman suggests ways the leftists can move forward through this new, occult battleground to defeat the president.

Keep in mind, Gary Lachman has also written the forward for another book published last year, Occulture: The Unseen Forces That Drive Culture Forward, written by none other than known Satanist Carl Abrahamsson, a close friend, and collaborator of the late Anton LaVey who is one of the leading figures of the O.T.O. in Scandinavia. I found the work of Gary Lachman unjust and bias towards President Trump's supporters and Christians in general, who believe in the president as a man sent by God in this time of extreme need. Most of all, I find it full of hypocrisy and lies, which is in line with Democrats and their infinite propaganda to push the president out of office and criticize and label all opposition as Nazis. Lachman is not alone, of course, as most libtards in the occult milieu feel like he does, aside from a few rare exceptions.

However, in Volume 5 of my Confessions, I have mentioned how self-described “Chaos magician” Michael M. Hughes, who published a ritual book entitled Magic for the Resistance: Rituals and Spells for Change, uses the same kind of “Chaos magic” against President Trump that Lachman claimed Trump had been using to win the elections. So let's fight the lies and propaganda of these evil-doers with some proper information and facts. We are the resistance and the only answer to 1984 is still thanks to Donald J. Trump and 1776!

Witches and other occultists and Satanists across the United States have been planning spells against President Donald J. Trump since his election. The first one took place during Trump's first year in the White House in 2017. Referring to themselves as the Magic Resistance, Wiccans and other occult practitioners claim they are trying to stop the president from hurting the country. Michael Hughes recently told the Washington Examiner, “I'm willing to go on record and say it's working.” We could dismiss all of this as pure fantasy built up by a lunatic, but there is enough evidence suggesting Hughes is being used as a tool by Satan himself and the dark side of the Illuminati working for the Jesuits.

Karen Tibbits-Williams, a New Zealand-based witch and paranormal investigator, said the point of the ritual is to prevent Trump and his supporters from causing harm. The ritual reminiscent of certain Vodou practices calls for the use of an unflattering photo of Trump, a tarot card, a stub of an orange candle, a pin, and a feather. These people are evil and even the Catholic Church seems concerned about the outcome. Indianapolis exorcist Fr. Vincent Lampert commented to the Examiner that, “Some of them may be doing it thinking it's just fun, but they are gambling with evil, and just because their motive is one way doesn't mean they're not opening up an entry point for evil in their life.” The priest, who might be himself a “Never Trumper” like most members of today's Catholic clergy in the U.S. added: “I think evil will present itself as something good, maybe initially to attract people's attention, to draw people in, but then ultimately people are going to discover it's all about fracturing their lives.”

We are indeed living in extraordinary times, and I became convinced of the importance of writing this book after my last visit to Austin, Texas, that took place in July 2019 when I visited my dear friend Alex Jones to spend the 4th of July with the Infowars crew.

During my appearance on Alex's show on the 5th of July when we were commenting on Trump's extraordinary 4th Of July Parade that was marked not only by fireworks and American flags in Washington, DC but by a full military parade at the behest of President Donald Trump, we used a term that I want to include in the title of this book that I particularly like: American Renaissance 2.0. Let's hope that the Jesuits and the Never Trump Movement with their lack of consciousness don't trigger a Civil War.

Man has not always had the same consciousness that we now possess and if we go back to the time of our earliest ancestors we find they had a very different kind of consciousness in place than ours. This is the first time in history that the state of our evolution and our consciousness as human beings is going backward because of technological innovation and the obsession for material goods like smartphones, that might diminish and destroy our brains causing us to devolve, creating in the process generations of soulless libtards.

Our society is divided more than ever before because of the improper use of modern technology that the Jesuits and their Illuminati agents are forcing on us to further enslave mankind. We can avoid this and transform this planet and society into a beautiful experience for future generations, but the lies and hypocrisy of the Illuminati elite and their Jesuit supervisors promoting Communism and Socialism are stopping us.

The Renaissance was a cultural movement that began in Italy and profoundly affected European intellectual life that spread to the rest of Europe, but now the Old Continent is dead and in the hands of evil Socialist technocrats and Jesuits, and Italy is a nightmare. The only hope that we have for the start of a new Renaissance 2.0 comes from the United States of America, which in turn could have a positive influence on the rest of the world. So let us pray and let us rise to fight against the expanding operation of the Satanists, and let's envision a positive future even in adversity, using this fourth volume as a manual in information warfare.

Let's not forget, four is a powerful number and almost all of the people of antiquity gave a name to their deities that consisting of four letters and many of them considered four a divine number, plus the "fourth vow" is one of special allegiance made by the Jesuits to the Pope promising to go forward in obedience to him for "missionary purposes." The Pythagoreans called the number four "the greatest miracle," "a God after another manner," "a manifold divinity," the "Fountain of Nature," and its "key bearer." For the ancient mystery schools of the Illuminati and the late W. Wynn Westcott, four is the "introducer and cause of the permanency of the Mathematical discipline." Even harmony in the universe is said to be shaped by a quadruple ratio, the symphony dis-diapason. They called it Justice, as the first evenly even number, so it is the perfect number for a book that delivers justice and aims to expose those who are bringing instability and chaos.

Chapter One

Esoterism Archons and other Alien entities in the End Times scenario

The Truth about TZVARNOHARNO

To finally understand the origins of our daily confusion and who is sabotaging our lives, I would like to insert a series of subjects that will make some sheeple say “Zagami is the usual nut job” and others “he is brilliant.” However, the knowledge of anti-awakening forces has been protected by a certain degree of secrecy within the Western Initiatic System established for thousands of years by the Invisible Masters and their Illuminati network of secret societies and fraternities. We need to wake up to the truth and learn how things work beyond the matrix of superficiality and lies constructed every day around us by the mainstream media and the ruling elite.

These demonic forces are well-described in the book, The Herald of Coming Good written by the well-known mystic Georges Ivanovič Gurdjieff (1872-1949). In this book, Gurdjieff describes that there are certain forces in life called Tzvarnoharno, a word originally coined by King Solomon of Judea particularly dear to the Freemasons. Tzvarnoharno arises among people which leads to the destruction of anyone who tries to help humanity, and it results in the destruction of all their efforts to bring truth and understanding to the world. Essentially, Gurdjieff, who was inspired by the Theosophical milieu and was reputed to be close to both the Jesuits and Joseph Stalin, was describing what many initiates have encountered on their path many times when struggling towards the truth of illumination and also the cage of our present reality. In psychological terms, we could say that Tzvarnoharno is a “collective unconscious force” whose first instinct is to oppose any counterforce that is attempting to wake people up and make them aware of the prison planet we are living on. Gnostics, a mystical branch of Christianity, considered one of the main inspirations of most of the modern Illuminati mystery schools, have known about such anti-awakening forces for centuries. They warned about them in their writings, describing them as “Archons.”

But who are the “Archons?” Well, they are a bit like the evil agents in the “Matrix” film series, or the infamous “Men in Black” mentioned by most ufologists, who actively work to prevent us from breaking out of the illusions of this material universe. They are demons that stop us from escaping the cave prison so well-described in Plato’s famous allegory of the Cave. Gnostics believe that such Archons are demonic entities, but on the contrary of traditional Christians, the Gnostics view them as servants of God that rule the lower realm known as the “Kingdom of Darkness” and together form the infamous “Prince of Darkness” and what the Christians commonly refer to as Satan and his infamous Legion.

As we all know, in the beginning, there was a rebellion in heaven. The Book of Revelation clearly describes a war between angels led by the Archangel Michael against those led by “the dragon”, identified as the devil or Satan, who would be defeated and thrown down to the earth. 1/3 of the angels fell to the material world and for the Gnostics, our incarnated soul is a splinter of an angelic oversoul. The term, Archon, refers to servants of the Demiurge, that the Gnostics consider the evil “creator god” that stands between the human race and a transcendent God that can only be reached through their alleged Gnosis.

The Archons are characterized as terrible forces of negativity and illusion. They are cosmic prison warders seeking to keep their human charges bound to earth. For the Illuminati, to reach any form of divinity, you have to go through a complex mystical training that can eventually bypass the Archons and their control over us to reach this stage of divinity. Unfortunately, most, if not all of these Illuminati get lost in the diableries of the demonic realm before this ever happens, becoming either New Age freaks, Satanists, or both. I have encountered many of them since my arrival in California in certain New Age circles. Although Archons are often depicted as a hermaphrodite and alien-looking creatures with an insatiable appetite for rape and violence, like most demons, ultimately it’s not fear that the Archons use to prevent transcendence towards obtaining real enlightenment and awareness, but rather ignorance and superstition. According to the Gnostic Gospel of Philip, the Archonic force’s main objective is to keep humans ignorant of their divine origins beyond the physical, so they can keep us enslaved in this dimension for as long as they want. If we take a close look through history, we’ll usually see that the work of truth seekers, mystics, and sages has often been suddenly aborted or sabotaged in different ways by evil alien forces constantly working with the dark side of the Illuminati and organized religion to keep humanity enslaved.

The most known example of Tzvarnoharno in action is the crucifixion of Jesus, where we can see the “collective unconscious force” at work, destroying whoever seeks to flood it with light and in return flush it with darkness. Easter weekend is the culmination of the Christian faith, every other aspect of the religion being merely a footnote. Yet the death and resurrection of Jesus also holds relevance in Christian Gnosticism, which may come as a surprise for most Christians since Gnosis is assumed to be the central tenet of the Gnostic heretics quest for self-perfection in which a person develops the will to be the master of his/her world, even though many other persons may lose theirs in the process. To become a selfish “superman” is the Gnostic goal, but remember that Gnostics held varying attitudes on the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ, some of which I find unrealistic, or even offensive towards our Lord Jesus Christ. These fell between the basic literal, to the extreme metaphorical and heretical, but it is with the trial of Jesus before the Sanhedrin, following his arrest in Jerusalem and before his dispensation by Pontius Pilate, that we see the evil forces described by the Gnostics and Gurdjieff in action against the first coming of the Messiah.

This shroud explains to every traditional Christian what the demonic force of Tzvarnoharno truly is. Other examples of spiritual teachers that have experienced Archonic forces in full swing against them (even if at a far inferior level than Jesus) are Socrates, who was poisoned, Dante Alighieri, poet and author of The Divine Comedy, who was exiled from Florence, Galileo Galilei the “father of modern science,” who was persecuted by religious authorities for affirming that the Earth was a sphere, as well as Giordano Bruno considered by many to be the forerunner of the Gaian environmental movement, and by others a forerunner of ufology.

These notable luminaries plus numerous other truth seekers who were silenced were rejected or persecuted throughout the ages for their messages. They were all considered far too dangerous by the Archonic creatures that control our reality, often aided by the darkest side of the religious institutions that gave birth to the Inquisition. However, soon after the death of the British occultist and Illuminati Aleister Crowley in December 1947, a very important discovery was made in Egypt a couple of years earlier that was publicly announced by the religious historian Jean Doresse. It was the discovery of a secret bank of primary sources relating to Gnosticism, and intriguingly enough, these ancient texts may hold some crucial information about the true nature of the Archons in connection to the UFO/alien phenomenon.

The Archons were whispered about in texts after the burning of the library at Alexandria with some mention of mysterious beings called Archons, but the powers that be that we commonly refer to as the Illuminati had spent 1,300 years cleaning up all the records to wipe out the Archons from our history willingly, keeping the only known sources hidden in the Vatican archives to this day. That’s one of the ultimate secrets present under the Vatican in one of the most forbidden places in the world that is also considered to be one of the most mysterious.

In 1945, texts were found in clay jars in Nag Hammadi, Egypt and, on these texts was a detailed report of what the Nag Hammadi initiates thought about the world 2,000 years ago. The ancient Gnostic text seems to suggest that adherents to this religion used various methods to commune with the universe including psychoactive plants, yoga, and sexual rituals just like their modern emulators. The Gnostics had placed a huge emphasis on altering their psychological state to reach wholeness and connection with the entire cosmos. They acted a bit like the modern New Agers in love with the early works of Castaneda, or the followers of Thelema of Aleister Crowley, who viewed himself as the supreme leader of the modern Gnostics. In communion with the universe, the ancient Gnostic seers came to develop a theological belief system centered on the goddess Sophia, the origin of divine wisdom that is central to Theosophy, an occult movement founded by the Illuminati originating in the 19th century, with roots that can be traced to ancient Gnosticism and Neoplatonism that was also central in developing the O.T.O. and the New Age heresy that gave birth to modern Satanism.

In addition to that, the original Gnostics also believed that inorganic alien beings were present in the solar system and had a pivotal role in determining the course of human civilization. The Archons are interdimensional aliens according to the ancient Gnostic texts, and these aliens are considerably more ancient than the human race. They pre-date the existence of the solar system itself. However, these aliens, which the Gnostics referred to as the Archons, were said to inhabit this solar system but were not capable of penetrating Earth on this dimension for a prolonged period if not briefly as Body Archons. That’s why sometimes, those who encounter supernatural beings or acquire powerful magic, are visited shortly afterward by strange people in dark clothing. The odd visitors will usually use threatening language to dissuade people from telling stories about the spiritual world or to intimidate them into handing over any enchanted items they have obtained during their magical operations.

Some tales speak of people who encountered “Men in Black,” and were able to reveal the content of their visit, but soon afterward they were never seen again. Even though they cannot physically manifest on this planet if not invited in our realm by skilled Illuminati or by the most high-level Jesuits, these creatures are still capable of having an impact on the day to day behavior of human beings. The Archons are said to be an incredibly powerful alien race who can affect human beings en masse with subliminal messages which can alter human consciousness. According to the Gnostics, it was this subliminal conditioning that led to the creation of all the major ideologies on Earth including all of the religious doctrines, but even the Gnostics, as I wrote earlier, recognize to some extent the importance of Jesus in this whole Archontic scenario. However, even if the Gnostic texts mainly focus on the Archons when referring to extraterrestrial beings, they also make it clear that they were aware of other alien and extra-dimensional beings throughout the universe. Most of these alien beings were considered to be either benevolent, or indifferent to humanity, but the Archons, in particular, were considered to be particularly hostile to mankind.

Perhaps most intriguingly of all, the obscure Gnostic texts identify for some contemporary Gnostic students interested in the UFO/alien subject, two types of hostile alien beings. Incredible and shocking as it seems, one of these types matches almost perfectly with the Tall Grey race of alien beings, and there is also another reference in the texts that seem to match perfectly a more draconian, or reptilian form of alien. The most common type of Archon, tasked with tending to the destinies of relatively unimportant things, is the infamous Men in Black incarnated in the Body Archons who are said to perform the bulk of preparatory work for the plans of the higher Planetary Archons. All of this is done to maintain the overall secrecy over the Archons’ work in this system to control “The Matrix” on this planet and the spread of information about the spirit world. How do they manifest in our dimension, and how will they interact in the End Times will be the topic of the following pages as the missing link to understanding better the second coming of Christ and the present grip of the Beast and the Antichrist on humankind.

Returning to Gurdjieff, who introduced us to the concept of Tzvarnoharno, we must also remember that he was responsible for the introduction of the Enneagram to the West in 1916, considered to be a symbol of the harmonic structure and inner dynamic of the cosmos, but also a symbol of the connection between the New Age world and the Jesuits. Gurdjieff never explicitly divulged the sources of his teachings, and the origin of the Enneagram has been a source of speculation. According to Gurdjieff, the Enneagram is “the fundamental hieroglyph of a universal language.” Gurdjieff’s use of the word hieroglyph, points, of course, to Egypt as the main source for his inspiration.

However, the frontispiece of the Arithmologia by the Jesuit super star Athanasius Kircher(1601–1680), published in 1665, shows a figure not identical but somewhat similar to the Enneagram, confirming the Jesuits are not some mysterious mystical order in Central Asia that might have inspired Gurdjieff’s research. According to one source, Kircher regarded the ancient Egyptian religion as the main source not only of the Greek and Roman religion but of the beliefs of the Hebrews, Chaldaeans and even the inhabitants of India, China, Japan, and the Americas, was colonized in turn by Ham’s progeny.

Therefore, he believed that by studying these later and better- recorded beliefs one could extrapolate the earliest religion of mankind, that of ancient Egypt, linked to the Lost Continent of Atlantis that Kircher also studied in great detail. “The knowledge of the enneagram” Gurdjieff once said, “has for a very long time been preserved in secret and if it now is, so to speak, made available to all, it is only in an incomplete and theoretical form of which nobody could make any practical use without instruction from a man who knows.” This has not deterred some New Agers who have sought to market the Enneagram, divesting it of its deeper meaning and application, using it instead as a psychological tool for their demented pseudo-spiritual mind games.

The Enneagram is exploding on the Christian scene, and few corners of the Christian landscape have not been impacted by it lately. Jesuit supporters of the Enneagram teach that your identity is found in your Enneagram number, but the Bible doesn’t back this up. The Bible says that our identity is found in Jesus and that He, not the Enneagram, began a work in which He will complete. Once again, the Enneagram becomes another Jesuit distraction on behalf of the Archons.

The language of the Apocalypse

To prepare for the gradual manifestation of unseen alien forces that have been unfolding in preparation for the Apocalypse in the past five centuries with the help of the Jesuits, a new language was devised and elaborated during the Renaissance. Contemporary Illuminati Allen H. Greenfield describes in, Secret Rituals of the Men in Black, its origins and he explains how to obtain an Illuminati method that can help you to not succumb to these entities. He explains how certain alien ciphers have been decoded to obtain stress-free alien contact with such entities:

*They have not changed for at least a thousand years, possibly much longer. The rules are contained in a venerable body of knowledge loosely defined as Qabalism from the Hebrew word Qabala which means hidden or secret. A whole new, English- language-based cipher was dictated by an Ultraterrestrial source to Queen Elizabeth's Royal Astrologer, Dr. John Dee through the trance channeling of Sir Edward Kelly several hundred years ago. It was called the language of the angels. ^[1]

*It's written in a script directly translatable into English. Dee and Kelly served their government as espionage agents, and they may well have used this Ultraterrestrial Cipher, termed Enochian- for espionage purposes, but, primarily, it was utilized to receive and use an Alien technology, so advanced as to be indistinguishable from magic, to learn such techniques as teleportation between planets and remote communication. Wow! That sounds indeed far more interesting and effective than attempting a useless storming of Area 51 in Nevada, that transformed into a rave party made for financial purposes. The only thing that came out of the much talked about event in 2019 was probably the resurgence in popularity of Bob Lazar, but that's about it if you ask me.

So let us analyze further this interesting subject by ex-O.T.O. member Allen H. Greenfield: The Enochian cipher led directly to a more simple cipher communicated to the York Rite Royal Arch of Enoch Masons, as a series of glyphs corresponding to the 26 letters of the standard English Alphabet. Around the middle of the 19th Century, the Royal Arch of Enoch cipher was exposed to the public by a writer named Malcolm Duncan.

The aliens began the slow process of communicating the new cipher to various deep agents and human allies. Madame Blavatsky of the Theosophical Society and before her the Hermetic Brotherhood of Light, seem to have known the code, taught by their Masters, Paolos Metamon and Max Theon, probably themselves Ultraterrestrial Agents. ^[2]

So, from Greenfield we learn about alien technology, the Enochian cipher, but what is the hidden agenda behind this? They are hostile entities of the demonic realm who delight in destruction and chaos, using dark spiritual forces to oppose Divine Will and the manifestation of the Divine Kingdom. Yet, whether they intend to or not, they still serve the Divine Kingdom, for they are forces that put every evolutionary development in the universe to the test to ensure it is strong, good, and true; they are the forces of stress, tension, pressure, and resistance necessary for creative evolution. Of course, they are the cause of great suffering but they also inspire us to look and see the cause and bring it to cessation. If you think about it, they bring us closer to God if you don't fall for their evil tricks. From this point of view, even the serpent that appears in Genesis 3:1 in the Garden of Eden has its purpose.

There is something sinister that has been increasingly unfolding lately in the universe, and it is in the final stages of the Apocalypse that an ongoing alien invasion will take place on an almost unfathomable scale that will coincide with the Second Coming; when Jesus will return to destroy evil and defeat his ultimate enemy, the Antichrist. In Christian eschatology, the Antichrist, or anti-Christ, is someone recognized as fulfilling the Biblical prophecies, and for some Gnostics, he is also a necessary evil in establishing the Kingdom of God on Earth. The following research that was based largely on Donald Tyson's short essay Enochian Apocalypse seems to prove that. If the author of this study would have been practically anyone else than Tyson, it would be nothing more than an amusing curiosity not worth mentioning, but Tyson has a certain degree of credibility in contemporary Illuminati circles and the magickal milieu.

He is both the published author and the editor of Llewellyn's prestigious edition of Agrippa's Three Books of Occult Philosophy, that is still regarded as one of the key texts in occultism written by Heinrich Cornelius Agrippa (1486-1535) the most influential writer of Renaissance esoterica, and all of Western occultism. Even if in the third book of De occulta Philosophia, Agrippa became very critical of his early fascination with magic, that in his later years he considered demonic and destructive:

But of magic I wrote whilst I was very young three large books, which I called Of Occult Philosophy, in which what was then through the curiosity of my youth erroneous, I now being more advised, am willing to have retracted, by this recantation; I formerly spent much time and costs in these vanities. At last, I grew so wise as to be able to dissuade others from this destruction. For whosoever do not in the truth, nor the power of God, but the deceits of devils, according to the operation of wicked spirits presume to divine and prophesy, and practicing through magical vanities, exorcisms, incantations and other demoniacal works and deceits of idolatry, boasting of delusions, and phantasms, presently ceasing, brag that they can do miracles, I say all these shall with Jannes and Jambres, and

Simon Magus be destined to the torments of eternal fire. ^[3]

Heinrich Cornelius Agrippa, who is a contemporary of Ignatius of Loyola (1491-1556) was an exasperating theologian within the Catholic Church, a military entrepreneur in Spain and Italy, acknowledged expert on occultism, philosopher, and possibly a spy. He went on to study in Paris after becoming a master of the arts at age 20, where he took part in a mysterious secret society headed by an Italian called Landolfo involved in the study and practice of the occult and the study of hermeticism, and he then traveled with Landolfo to Spain. After his brief Spanish experience where he was awarded by King Ferdinand of Spain the title of knight, Agrippa wrote: After these terrible trials, we are only left with searching our friends to renovate the sacraments of our conspiracy and restore the dignity of our association.”

What conspiracy is he talking about? And what was the real mission of his association? One thing is for sure, Ignatius of Loyola founded the Jesuits in Paris only a few years later in 1534, using in secret, many of the occult teachings formulated and laid out by Agrippa. I intend to explore, thanks to Donald Tyson’s work Enochian Apocalypse, the possibility that another powerful player of the original Renaissance, Dr. John Dee was in communication with the same demonic hyper-dimensional aliens the Jesuits worked with. Entities from another plane of existence that, thanks to the dark side of the Illuminati and corrupt terrestrial agents, like Aleister Crowley, have been working for a long time to invade and completely dominate our reality, aided by the Jesuits to prepare the unfolding of the Apocalypse. Of course, Dr. John Dee, who was an advisor to Queen Elizabeth I, and an advanced occult adept, was not a friend of the Jesuits, that’s for sure, but he was still serving nevertheless the same entities. The Jesuit threats to Elizabeth’s life were very real and a sanitary cordon of British Royalists shaped around her by Francis Walsingham formed her pioneering secret service.

They created an intelligence network to oppose the Jesuit infiltration and ferret out the Papists plotting against the Queen, and Dr. John Dee was part of this secret network of spies using occult means that I have described in Volume 1 of my Confessions. Donald Tyson writes that: Between the years 1582 and 1589, the English scholar John Dee (1527-1608) conducted a series of ritual communications with a set of disincarnate entities who eventually came to be known as the Enochian angels. Dee planned to use the complex system of magic communicated by the angels to advance the expansionist policies of his sovereign, Queen Elizabeth I. At the time, England lay under the looming shadow of an invasion from Spain.

Dee hoped to control the hostile potentates of Europe by commanding the tutelary spirits of their various nations. Dee was a thoroughly remarkable man. Not only was he a skilled mathematician, astronomer, and cartographer, but he was also the private astrologer, counselor, and confidential espionage agent of Queen Elizabeth.

His father had been a gentleman sewer (a kind of steward) at the table of Henry VIII. When Elizabeth ascended to the throne in 1558, Dee was asked to set an auspicious date for her coronation. Always intensely loyal to the Protestant Elizabeth, he had earlier been falsely accused of trying to kill her predecessor, the Catholic Queen Mary, with sorcery. His intellectual brilliance and skill as a magician were famous and infamous, throughout Europe.

In his occult work, he was aided by an equally extraordinary person, Edward Kelley (also spelled Kelly; 1555-1597), the son of a Worcester apothecary, who dreamed of discovering the secret of the philosopher's stone and dabbled in the black art of necromancy. Fleeing Lancaster in 1580 on charges of forging title deeds, Kelley found it prudent to set out on a walking tour of Wales. Somewhere near Glastonbury (so the story goes) he purchased a portion of the fabled red powder that could turn base metals into gold; the source of the powder was an innkeeper who had received it from tomb robbers. [4] For the remainder of his colorful life, Kelley labored to unlock the secret of the red powder so that he could manufacture more of it himself. It was on this quest for alchemical knowledge that he sought out the library of John Dee in 1582 and it was primarily for this reason that he agreed to serve as Dee's seer. Dee was a saint, Kelley a rogue, but they were bound together by their common fascination with ceremonial magic and the wonders it promised. Dee possessed little talent for mediumship. He tried to overcome this limitation by hiring a mountebank named Barnabas Saul as his professional scryer but had poor results. When Dee learned of Kelley's considerable psychic abilities, he eagerly employed Kelley as his seer for the sum of 50 pounds per annum. Dee invoked the Enochian angels to visible appearance within a scrying crystal or a black mirror of obsidian by using prayers and certain magical seals. After Kelley had alerted Dee to the presence of the spirits, Dee questioned them. Kelley reported their sayings and doings back to Dee, who recorded them in his magical diaries. The most important portion of Dee's transcription of the Enochian communications, covering the years 1582-1587, was published in London in 1659 by Meric Casaubon under the title A True and Faithful Relation of What Passed for Many Years Between Dr. John Dee and Some Spirits. This fascinating work has been reprinted several times in recent decades and is readily available. The Enochian spirits got their name from the nature of the magical system they described. It was, they claimed, the very magic that the biblical patriarch Enoch had learned from the angels of heaven. The angel Ave told Dee, Now hath it pleased God to deliver this Doctrine again out of darkness: and to fulfill his promise with thee, for the books of Enoch." [5]

For Tyson, compared to Enochian: All other forms of magic were mere playthings. Although Dee faithfully recorded all the details of Enochian magic in his diaries, he never tried to work this system in any serious way. We cannot know the reason with certainty. In 1589 he broke with Kelley, who stayed on in Bohemia to manufacture gold for the Holy Roman Emperor Rudolph II while Dee returned to England at the request of Elizabeth, a circumstance that may have inconvenienced his plans. Dee was awaiting permission from the angels to employ their magic and this permission was not given in his lifetime. It is necessary to state unequivocally for those unfamiliar with Enochian magic that neither Dee nor Kelley fabricated the spirit communications. Both believed completely in the reality of the angels, although they differed about the motives of these beings. Dee believed them to be obedient agents of God who submitted to the authority of Christ. Kelley mistrusted them and suspected them of deliberate deception. The dislike was mutual.

You have to remember that Crowley, the infamous Beast 666, said he was the reincarnation of Kelley: The angels always treated Kelley with amused contempt. Kelley hoped the angels would communicate the secret of the red powder, which was the only reason he endured their insults for so many years. There is no space here to enter into the question of the nature and objective reality of spirits, nor is it likely that any conclusions could be reached on this difficult subject. Whatever their essential nature, the Enochian angels acted as independent, intelligent beings with their distinct personalities and purposes. This is how Dee and Kelley regarded them and this is how I shall regard them in this essay. Using this assumption, I will present what I believe to be the angels' secret agenda, which they concealed from Dee: to plant among mankind the ritual working that would initiate the period of violent transformation between the present aeon and the next, commonly known as the apocalypse. [6]

Occultist Anthony Testa adds that: It is not surprising that the man behind the Enochian workings, John Dee was remarkable for his time, though in modern terms his credulity would seem untoward. It does, however, give us pause to consider how much the supposed rationality of the present day is merely a veneer over the primitive instincts we have inherited from our ancestors. Nevertheless, it is interesting to observe that Dee's goals were not, as it were, spiritual rapport with the angels he sought to contact, but were of a much more mundane – on a grand scale certainly – purpose. [7] The system of Enochian magick – if indeed it can be called such - is complex and uneven. The body of the work is developed over time and grows more complex as it develops. It also becomes more “original” as the early work recorded by Dee was influenced by a derivative of the work of occult writers before, most notably Agrippa and Trithemius. [8]

Tyson describes this system of magick: As an initiatory formula designed to open the locked gates of the four great Watchtowers that stand guard against chaos at the extremities of our universe. The Watchtowers are described by the angel Ave. This looks like the locked gates of the four great Watchtowers are multi-dimensional gates able to contain or facilitate the invasion of these “alien” hyperdimensional beings. Tyson quotes some key exchanges between Dee and the alleged angels to his thesis and they are worth reproducing: The 4 houses, are the 4 Angels of the Earth, which are the 4 Overseers, and Watchtowers, that the eternal God in his providence hath placed, against the usurping blasphemy, misuse, and stealth of the wicked and great enemy, the Devil. With the intent that being put out to the Earth, his envious will might be bridled, the determinations of God fulfilled and his creatures kept and preserved, within the compass and measure of order. [9] Now you might want to ask what are these Watchtowers, and what is their function for planet Earth? Tyson explains that: “These Watchtowers... bar the chaotic legions of Coronzon from sweeping across the face of the world. Coronzon, the angels reveal, is the true heavenly name for Satan. [10]

He is also known by the Enochian title of Death-Dragon or Him-That-Is-Fallen(Telocvovim).” [11] Choronzon 333 is Crowley's ruler of the Abyss. It is interesting to note that the Demon Crowley popularized, is equivalent to the Gnostic Demiurge Ialdaboath and the Kabbalistic Demon Samael, and as Anthony Testa writes, he is also identified in the Enochian system as the “Death Dragon”. [12]

Aleister Crowley's spelling of the name, Choronzon, seems to have three alternatives. The esoteric student Meric Casaubon once stated that the name is Coronzon (spelled without an 'h') but this is in variance with the different spelling that appears in John Dee's journals. Laycock's Enochian Dictionary gives in the latter spelling, as Coronzom, citing an original manuscript (Cotton XLVI Pt. I, fol. 91a) as the source for the variant.

It seems that even citing this demonic name brings us immediately into the realm of confusion and chaos. A.D. Mercer's Liber Coronzom discusses the question of spelling in some detail (like anyone cares about the correct spelling of a demon) and includes images taken from Dee's original diaries and Casaubon's True and Faithful Relation, showing the differences. Also, the description of the tablets and interdimensional gates used by Dee and Kelley demonstrate that, regardless of the issues of unity and consistency, they are remarkably complex and interdependent. Dee and Kelly's experiments are the cornerstone of our Western understanding of how magic works and what the Illuminati operate on every day.

The original set of calls given to Dee and Kelley were described as opening 49 gates and connected tablets. These tablets would seem to be those given in Liber Loagaeth, though the details are not clear yet. The calls open gates through which energy is transmitted and invoke the things mentioned in the calls including the I Ged spirits. The beings invoked do not seem to be intrinsically connected with the gates, as the connected tablets are. Rather, they seem to represent one way of employing energy. The calls have a 7-fold pattern that seems to derive from the gates. This does not fit neatly with the structures found through the calls, in particular, that of the aethers. It can be described roughly as follows: 0: These calls (0,7,14,etc.) seem to have a sense of reaching a sense of unity to complete the preceding calls and then returning to form to begin the next set. 1-3: These relate to some barrier to be reached through, with the first being outside projecting in, the second inside obeying the first, and the third giving passage through connecting these two. 4: These have a quality of brightness and peace that make receptivity possible. They connect to the Worldsoul who lives at the center of the Earth. 5: These have an extraterrestrial connection admitted using the preceding. 6: These have a quality of earthly manifestation of higher plans. The calls involve a structure referred to in the 4th-6th calls as angles and the 8th call as heavens. etc. [13]

According to Tyson, while citing Dee, the angel Raphael declares the expressed purpose of the Keys to Dee: In 49 voices or callings: which are the Natural Keyes, to open those, not 49, but 48. (for One is not to be opened) Gates of understanding, whereby you shall know to move every Gate and to call out as many as you please, or shall be thought necessary, which can very well, righteously, and wisely, open unto you the secrets of their Cities, and make you understand perfectly the [mysteries] contained in the Tables. [14]

With this (admittedly sketchy) outline of the system, Tyson now returns to his main point: Dee's blindness to the true function of the Keys is curious because clues about their nature are everywhere for those with eyes to see them. The Enochian communications are filled with apocalyptic pronouncements and imagery. Again and again, the angels warn of the coming destruction of the world by the wrath of God and the advent of the Antichrist. This apocalyptic imagery is also found throughout the Keys themselves. [15]

Tyson is on solid ground to this point, insofar as he is supported by Dee's diaries and notes.

As mentioned above, the Watchtowers are described as barriers by which the Death Dragon himself, Choronzon and his host, are restricted from invading from their dimension and, one would assume, destroying the universe or at least this one. Tyson questions Dee's incomprehension of the obvious, that if the Watchtowers are the fortress walls that keep out the hyperdimensional or interdimensional Demons praying on our reality, then the keys, which are explicitly for opening these very gates, are also how these entities can allow the ingress of alien interdimensional beings, to herald the End of all things; something Aleister Crowley facilitated with his rituals that were followed in great detail here in the U.S. by his disciple, and at one time O.T.O. leader, Jack Parsons that I will write about later.

Tyson states: Perhaps Dee believed, as the angels deceitfully encouraged him to believe, that the gates could be opened a crack for specific human purposes and then slammed shut before anything too horrible slipped through to our dimension of awareness.

Dee would have assumed that the harrowing of the goddess Earth and her children by the demons of Coronzon would not occur until the preordained time of the Apocalypse, an event initiated by God and presumably beyond Dee's control. What he failed to understand is that the date of the initiation of the Apocalypse is (in the intention of the angels) the same as the successful completion of the full ritual working of the 48 Keys. This date is not predetermined but will be determined by the free will and actions of a single human being.. [16]

Tyson identifies this human being with the Antichrist announced in the New Testament. This is certainly plausible and more of a reality every day as we approach a possible Apocalypse.

Tyson writes: Dee, after all, was a Christian, no matter how heterodox his ideas may seem (and how much more so they would have in his day, which was a time when trials, religious wars and the burning alive of heretics was, if not an everyday occurrence, certainly a reality) and he would have been comfortable with the apocalyptic imagery that the Calls, as translated into English, were simply saturated with." [17]

So after a little more than four hundred years since Dee's death, does this mean we are finally heading for the Apocalypse? Let's remember that for Tyson the Enochian Calls are also portions of a single giant ritual which, when completed, will usher in the destruction of the world. The Christian ideal of the End Days has always rested on the understanding that the actual events are preordained by God. This is a logical conclusion that can be drawn from the Scriptures, as in Matthew, 24: 36 - But of that day and hour knoweth no one, not even the angels of heaven, neither the Son, but the Father only.

This implies that God alone knows the exact day and hour of these events because God is the one who will decide when they will take place. And, of course, this is the orthodox interpretation held today, as it was in Dee's time that I fully endorse as a Christian believer. Nevertheless, Tyson demonstrates again from Dees's own words, that the angels have a different idea of when the Apocalypse will be initiated: It has always been generally assumed that the Apocalypse is in the hands of the angels of wrath, to be visited upon the world at the pleasure of God, at a moment preordained from the beginning of creation. In the veiled teachings of the Enochian angels, this is not true. The gates of the Watchtowers can only be unlocked from the inside.

The angels of wrath cannot initiate the Apocalypse even if they wish to do so. This is suggested by an exchange between Dee and the angel Ave, but in the end, we go back to the fact that only God can take such a terrible and catastrophic decision for the universe. In a Apocalypse scenario, 333 is connected to the number 33. For this reason, Pope Francis dispatched a close aide to the Greek island of Lesbos to return 33 asylum-seekers to Rome in early December 2019, but why 33? Because the mocking of the number 33 represents the mocking of Christ consciousness as Jesus was crucified at Golgotha (place of the skull) at age 33 in the year 33 A.D. and, of course, 33 is the highest degree of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry practiced in secret and in a rather irregular manner by several cardinals in lodges placed in the Vatican territory. Cardinal Konrad Krajewski,^[18] who is one of the cardinals in those lodges and the papal almsgiver, headed to the island of Lesbos, returning with the 33 migrants to increase the chaos in today's world.

After all, the word lesbian is derived from the name of the Greek island of Lesbos. The Jesuits infiltrated and manipulated certain rites of Freemasonry from the start, and now they can use them in their diabolical plan to bring in a false Messiah that as I will show you later in the book, might even be Greta Thunberg! When the Pope returned to Italy after visiting the same island of Lesbos in 2016, he took three Syrian families of asylum-seekers with him aboard his flight as a propaganda stunt. Italians are resisting the huge influx of immigrants arriving on their shores, who most of the time end up working for the Nigerian mafia because they are fed up with mass immigration ruining Italy, which was once one of the most beautiful countries in the world. Politicians from the opposition are calling on supporters to say no, with every means, to every new arrival, but Pope Francis asked Krajewski to go this time to Greece to “renew solidarity to the Greek people and the refugees.”

The Pope continues to support this insanity by sending a coded message using the number 33 because it is also connected to his anti-Christian allies at the United Nations, and not only to Jesus Christ. Take a look at the U.N. flag and you can see a world globe divided into 33 sections, encircled by olive branches. According to the Vatican, the Pope wants to make “a further gesture of solidarity” in hosting young refugees and families from Afghanistan, Cameroon, and Togo. Incredibly enough, the U.N. officials commented on the papal gesture by saying that minors risk exploitation at overcrowded migrant camps on Greek islands, but we all know they risk even more by being brought inside the Vatican which is full of pedophiles who act like Crowley's infamous Choronzon Club. No wonder a report found that the U.N. employs 3,300 Pedophiles, and is responsible for 60,000 Rapes in the last 11 years. The elite pedo mafia might need new victims for their Vatican orgies now that the St. Pius X Pre-Seminar has been exposed as I will show you later in detail, but the evil energies dedicated to Choronzon are of great importance for the Vatican Satanists that are working like the Sabbatite Frankists on “Redemption Through Sin,” as Rabbi Scholem writes in his classic essay.

In the end, Tyson's summary in his essay, shows his allegiance to the dark side of the Illuminati, as another willing ultraterrestrial agent but we have to focus now on the substance, not the messenger: Spiritual beings must be evoked into our reality by human beings. We must open the gates and admit the servants of Coronzon ourselves. Evocation and invocation are not a part of the business of angels, but humans. That is why the angels needed to go through the elaborate ruse of conveying the system of Enochian magic, with the Keys and the Great Table of the Watchtowers, to Dee.

If the Apocalypse is to take place, and if human beings must open the gates of the Watchtowers before it can take place, the angels first had to instruct man in the correct method for opening the gates.

This is certainly a bold statement from Illuminati Donald Tyson and one that is not without its issues, as we shouldn't be opening the gates of the Watchtowers to dangerous interdimensional demonic beings. If God doesn't permit it he can, of course, dream on. Tyson, who is a Thelemite and a Satanist, also believes in Crowley's leading role in the so-called Apocalypse Working:

Dee never received the signal to conduct the Apocalypse Working in his lifetime. It was to be reserved for another century and another man. That man was Aleister Crowley...

I do agree with Tyson on this point. Crowley was the most prepared agent of the Illuminati for this unusual job, and he was considered suitable by the gods even before his latest “reincarnation,” This, however, does not make the “Beast 666” my hero, or a positive figure, but it proves he was Satan's choice.

Choronzon and the Four Elements

Choronzon is a demon or spirit identified in the 16th century by John Dee and Edward Kelly, summoned in a dramatic ritual by Aleister Crowley in 1909 that is considered of great importance by modern Illuminati, but Choronzon himself is a much older being that was behind the fall of Adam responsible for the very origins of evil. For Donald Tyson: Choronzon is mentioned only once in John Dee's diaries, during a communication from the angels concerning the expulsion of Adam from the garden of Eden: But Coronzon (for so is the name of that mighty devil), envying man's felicity, and perceiving that the substance of man's lesser part was frail and unperfect in respect to his purer essence, began to assail man and so prevailed. By offending so, man became accursed in the sight of God, and so lost both the garden of Felicity and the judgment of his understanding, but not utterly the favor of God. But he was driven forth (as your scriptures record) unto the earth which was covered with brambles. ... But in the same instant when Adam was expelled, the Lord gave unto the world her time, and placed over her Angelic Keepers, Watchmen and Princes. ^[19]

For Colin Low: In this context C(h)oronzon is identical with the Serpent of Genesis, and with the rebellious angel Samael in Jewish Midrashic and Kabbalistic legend. We can equate Choronzon with the Devil, but I must emphasize this is not the Devil of Christian myth; this is the Devil from myths that predate Christianity. Colin Low, adds later on in his brilliant essay on the subject: "It can be seen that one slight reference to Chronozon in Dee's transcript of his conversations with angels hides a rich and somewhat muddled lore. That Choronzon is identical to Samael is evident. The lore concerning Samael is somewhat confusing, however. He tempted Adam and was cast out of heaven to earth. He was assigned to watch over the earth, but fell (with his angels) and begat monsters, culminating in the first destruction of mankind. He is chief of the evil seven (seven imprisoned stars in Enoch, seven Assyrio-Babylonian demons, seven deadly angels) that God keeps at hand for running the more unpleasant parts of the eschatological process. He will be judged at the end of time. He will be unleashed at the end of time. This apocalyptic theme is strongly pronounced in the work of both H.P. Lovecraft and the 20th. century magician Aleister Crowley. Crowley had a fundamentalist Christian upbringing incorporated many elements from The Book of Revelations into his myth. He reinterpreted the symbols to suit himself, but there is no question that like Dee, he had a deep and scholarly knowledge of the book. It is often forgotten just how thorough Crowley's knowledge of the Bible: "he could quote Biblical passages with the best." ^[20]

Anthony Testa underlines, that it would be difficult to assert, as Tyson does, that the only way demons, including the Arch-Demon, may enter the universe is by invocation. In other words, by the willing opening of the hyper-dimensional gates by man, because God is behind every decision in this universe and all the others. So are we also to believe that Choronzon was responsible for the temptation of Eve who, in turn, caused Adam to eat of the fruit and thus be cast forth from Eden? This thought is in no way supported in Genesis (or for that matter, in the esoteric doctrines of the Kabbalah ^[21] As Tyson himself says: It is evident that Dee was to be restrained from opening the gates of the Watchtowers until it pleased the angels. The angel Gabriel, who purports to be speaking with the authority of God, tells him: I have chosen you, to enter into my barns: And have commanded you to open the Corn, that the scattered may appear, and that which remaineth in the sheaf may stand. And have entered into the first, and so into the seventh. And have delivered unto you the Testimony of my spirit to come. For, my Barn hath been long without Threshers. And I have kept my flayles for a long time hidden in unknown places: Which flayle is the Doctrine that I deliver unto you: Which is the Instrument of thrashing, wherewith you shall beat the shears, that the Corn which is scattered, and the rest may be all one. (But a word in the mean season.) If I be Master of the Barn, owner of the Corn, and deliverer of my flayle: If all be mine (And unto you, there is nothing: for you are hirelings, whose reward is in heaven.) Then see, that you neither thresh, nor unbind, until I bid you, let it be sufficient unto you: that you know my house, that you know the labor I will put you to: That I favor you so much as to entertain you the laborers within my Barn: For within it thresheth none without my consent. ^[22]

Presuming the being that spoke through Kelley was an Archangel, we are left with a puzzle. Even allowing that the words here spoken are from (or by the authority) of God, it is not clear that the "harvest" here described, is the Apocalypse, though the interpretation is not without merit, and Tyson seems convinced this is the case: Surely nothing could be clearer. Throughout the Enochian communications, the angels euphemistically refer to the apocalypse as the Harvest. Here Enochian magic is specifically described as the Instrument of thrashing. Yet Dee did not comprehend the awesome significance of the burden that had been laid upon his shoulders. ^[23]

It seems odd that the Angel would say: For, my Barn hath been long without Threshers. And I have kept my flayles for a long time hid in unknown places: Which flayle is the Doctrine that I deliver unto you, meaning that the mechanism by which the plan of salvation is to be completed is waiting on the arrival of a man, in this case, Dee., and, once the Calls are delivered, Gabriel finds it necessary to instruct Dee, as a parent to a child who has just received his first hunting rifle, not to use it until they (the angels) tell him it is safe to do so. In other words, the Angel gave Dee a loaded weapon, one that will destroy the entire world! Tyson states: Elsewhere in the record the angel Mapsama is just as explicit about the need for Dee to await permission before attempting to use the Keys:

Mapsama - These Calls are the keys to the Gates and Cities of wisdom. Which [Gates] are not able to be opened, but with a visible apparition.

Dee - And how shall that become unto?

Mapsama - Which is according to the former instructions: and to be had, by calling of every Table. You called for wisdom, God hath opened unto you, his judgment: He hath delivered unto you the keys, that you may enter; But be humble. Enter not of presumption, but permission. Go not in rashly; But be brought in willingly: For, many have ascended, but few have entered. By Sunday you shall have all things that are necessary to be taught, then (as occasion serveth) you may practice at all times. But you being called by God, and to a good purpose.

Dee - How shall we understand this Calling by God?

Mapsama - God stoppeth my mouth, I will answer thee no more.

At this point, Tyson makes it clear that: Despite these hints and many others, the angels never came out and told Dee that he was to be the instrument whereby the ritual formula for initiating the apocalypse would be planted amid humanity. Here it would sit like a ticking occult time bomb, waiting for some clever magician, perhaps guided by the angels, to work it... [24]

Tyson then discusses the later use of the Enochian system, primarily by Aleister Crowley and further investigates his role in the Apocalypse. It ought to be clear, however, that if Tyson's interpretation of Dee's diaries is correct – and aside from his controversial statement concerning the Grand Ritual – it is fully supported by Dee's work and it confirms that Dee was not in contact with angelic forces at all, but the contrary, Dee was another ultraterrestrial agent willing to serve demonic forces at the heart of today's New World Order. Edward Kelley warned John Dee that the "angels" they were talking to were demons and that their goal was to destroy humanity. This ominous warning that went unheard by Dee might have been truly prophetic, and now let's investigate further the four elements that are foundational to almost all Western occult practices. For this reason, an accurate understanding of them in this context is essential.

Henry Cornelius Agrippa explained the four elements not so much as substances but as qualities, like hard or soft, explaining they are the most basic vocabulary of western occult discussion. He said: And this is the root and foundation of all bodies, natures, virtues, and wonderful works; and he which shall know these qualities of the elements, and their mixtions, shall easily bring to pass such things as are wonderful, and astonishing, and shall be perfect in magic.

Let's start with a complex but important topic for a full understanding of the invisible forces at work in this occult scenario unfolding in the End Times.

According to the ancients, the First Matter has a fourfold structure which they attributed to the existence of four archetypal forces or elements of creation which they named Earth, Water, Air, and Fire. The Four Elements of the illuminated alchemists are not our everyday ideas of earth, water, air, and fire, which are only the physical expressions of their respective archetypes. "There are four common elements," wrote Polish alchemist and Philosophe inconnu of the Illuminati Michael Sendivogius (1566-1636), "and each has at its center another deeper element [the Archetype] which makes it what it is. These are the four pillars of the world. They were in the beginning evolved and molded out of chaos [First Matter] by the hand of the Creator and it is their contrary action which keeps up the harmony and equilibrium of the mundane machinery of the universe; it is they, which through the virtue of celestial influences, produce all things above and beneath the earth."

Thus, the Four Elements are named for those fundamental archetypes within matter and are symbolic of their metaphysical qualities. As archetypes, the elements are beyond any rational explanation and must be experienced to be understood. French philosopher Gaston Bachelard (1884-1962) concluded that the Four Elements resulted from "material image-making" or "the materialization of imagery" within the One Mind of the universe. He looked at the interaction of the elements from what each sought. "Earthly joy is riches and impediment," he said. "Aquatic joy is softness and repose; fiery pleasure is desire and love; the airy delight is liberty and movement."

In Answers from the Elements, Sufi alchemist Rumi describes the elements as expressions of the love of the universal soul for the divine spirit. [25] The work of Eliphas Levi focused on the alchemist Paracelsus, who named the four elements and their invisible inhabitants that have been used in recent times even by the Military-Occult Complex. The Paracelsian concept of elementals draws originally from several much older traditions in mythology and religion known by the mystery schools of old of the Illuminati network. Common threads can be found in folklore, animism, and anthropomorphism.

Examples of creatures such as the Pygmy were taken directly from Greek mythology. The elements of earth, water, air, and fire were classed as the fundamental building blocks of nature. In the 16th-century alchemical work, Liber de Nymphis, sylphis, pygmaeis et salamandris et de caeteris spiritibus, Paracelsus identified mythological beings as belonging to one of the four elements. In more recent times, the U.S. Department of Defense and the C.I.A. has spent decades researching extrasensory perception and psychokinesis, but they also involved themselves closely with interdimensional beings often from the demonic realm in their wild experiments, and they also worked with the elemental types, and even on the homunculus. In a sub-project of MKSearch called MKOFTEN, sometimes referred to as MKCHIKWIT, they allegedly sought to test not only the behavioral effects of different drugs on animals for the mere research on mind control, but they branched out directly into the world of black magic, witchcraft, and the occult, often working with what Paracelsus defined in De Meteoris, as Sagani, about all the elementals.

The accusation was first put forth by British investigative journalist and author Gordon Thomas, who wrote the 2007 book Secrets and Lies, and claims that a Dr. Sidney Gottlieb, chief of the C.I.A.'s Technical Services Branch, also known as the "Black Sorcerer" due to his expertise with poisons, used the program to "explore the world of black magic and harness the forces of darkness and challenge the concept that the inner reaches of the mind are beyond reach." ^[26] Many Illuminati in their sacred chambers including the Martinists, and other orders linked to the intelligence community, perform a ritual, in particular, called Conjuration of the Four Elements, so I decided to extract a couple of passages from it to include in my exposé on this subject.

Eliphas Levi writes: The four elementary forms separate and specify by a kind of rough outline, the created spirits whom the universal movement disengages from the central fire. Everywhere spirit works and fecundates matter by life; all matter is animated; thought and soul are everywhere. In seizing upon the thought that produces the diverse forms, we become the master of forms and make them serve for our use. The astral light is filled with souls that it disengages in the incessant generation of being; souls have imperfect wills that can be dominated and used by more powerful wills. They then form great invisible chains and can occasion or determine grand elementary commotions. Phenomena ascertained in the processes of magic and all those recently verified by M. Eudes de Merville have no other causes. Elementary spirits are like young children. They torment those more who busy themselves with them unless one has control of them by using superior rationality and great severity. These are the spirits that we designate under the name of occult elements.

FIG. 6 – Sidney Gottlieb, the CIA's "Black Sorcerer."

Levi explains that: These spirits are those who often prepare disquieting or fantastic dreams. They are those who produce the movements of the divining rod, and the raps on walls and furniture. But they can never manifest any other thought than our own, and if we are not thinking, they talk to us with all the incoherence of dreams. They reproduce good and evil indifferently because they are without free will and consequently have no responsibility. They show themselves to ecstasies and somnambulists under incomplete and fugitive forms. This occasioned the nightmares of Saint Antony, and, very probably, the visions of Swedenborg. They are neither souls in hell nor spirits guilty of mortal sin; they are simply inquisitive and inoffensive. We can employ or abuse them like animals or children. Therefore, the magus who employs their help assumes a terrible responsibility, for he will expiate all the evil which he makes them do, and the greatness of his torments will be proportionate to the extent of the power which he will have exercised through their agency. To control elementary spirits and thus become the king of the occult elements, we must have previously undergone the four trials of the ancient initiations. As these no longer exist, it is necessary to supply their place by analogous actions, such as exposing oneself without fear in a conflagration, of crossing a gulf upon the trunk of a tree or upon a plank, or scaling a steep mountain during a storm, or getting away from a cascade, or from a dangerous whirlpool by swimming.

Levi adds that: The man who fears water will never reign over the undines; he who is afraid of fire cannot command the salamanders; as long as we are subject to dizziness we must leave the sylphs in peace, and not irritate the gnomes; for inferior spirits only obey a power that is proved to them by showing itself their master even in their element. When we have acquired by boldness and practice this incontestable power, we may impose upon the elements the mandate (verb) of our will, by special consecration of air, fire, water, and earth. This is the indispensable beginning of all magic operations.

Then Levi invites the magician to exorcise the air by blowing from the direction of the four cardinal points while saying: “Spiritus Dei ferebatur super aquas, et inspiravit in faciam hominis spiraculum vitae. Sit Michael dux meus, et Sabtabiel servus meus, in luce et per lucem. Fiat verbum halitus meus; et imperabo spiritibus aeris hujus, et refrænabo equos solis voluntate cordis nei, et cogitatione mentis meae et nutu oculi dextri. Erorciso igitur te, creatura aeris, per Pentagrammaton et in nomine Tetragrammaton, in quibus sunt voluntas firma et fides recta. Amen. Sela, fiat. Qu'il en soit ainsi.”

Next Levi invites his students to recite the prayer of the Sylphs, after tracing in the air their sign with the plume of an eagle, but what I find more interesting is Levi's thoughts on the elementary spirits and how to control them:

To control and subject elementary spirits, we must never yield to the defects which characterize them. Thus a light and capricious mind can never govern the sylphs. An effeminate, cold, and changeable nature will never control the undines. Anger irritates the salamanders, and covetous rudeness renders those whom it enslaves the sport of the gnomes. But it is necessary to be as prompt and active as the sylphs; as flexible and attentive to images as the undines. As energetic and strong as the Salamanders; as laborious and patient as the gnomes; in a word, we must conquer them in their strength, without ever allowing ourselves to be enthralled by their weaknesses. When we shall be well fixed in this disposition, the entire world will be at the service of the wise operator. He will go out during the storm and the rain will not touch his head; the wind will not derange even a single fold of his garments; he will go through fire without being burned; he will walk on the water, and will behold the diamonds through the crust of the earth. These promises which may seem hyperbolic are only so in the minds of the vulgar; for though the sage does not do materially and precisely the things which these words express, he will do much greater and more wonderful. In the meantime, it is not to be doubted that individuals can direct the elements by the will to a certain extent, and change or stop their effects. Why, for example, if it is ascertained that certain individuals in a state of ecstasy lose their weight for the moment, could we not walk or glide upon the water? Saint Medard's convulsionaries felt neither fire nor sword and begged as a relief the most violent blows and the most incredible tortures. Are not the strange ascensions and wonderful equilibrium of certain somnambulists a revelation of these hidden forces of nature. But we live in an age in which men have not the courage to confess the miracles they witness, and if anyone says, I have seen or have done myself the things which I relate, he will be told, either you are making sport of us or you are sick. It is better to keep silence and act. The metals that correspond to the four elementary forms are gold and silver for air; mercury for water; iron and copper for fire, and lead for the earth. Talismans are prepared from them, having relation to the forces which they represent, and to the effects proposed to be obtained. Divination by the four elementary forms named Aeromancy, hydromancy, pyromancy, and geomancy, is made in diverse ways, which all depend upon the will and transparency or imagination of the operator. In truth, the four elements are only instruments to aid second-sight. Second-sight is the faculty of seeing in the astral light.

This second-sight is as natural as the first sight or the sensible and ordinary sight but it can only act through the abstraction of the senses. Somnambulists and ecstasies enjoy second-sight naturally, but this sight is more lucid as the abstraction becomes more complete. The abstraction is produced by astral intoxication; that is, by a superabundance of light, which saturates the nervous system, and consequently renders it inactive. Sanguine temperaments are more disposed to Aeromancy; bilious to pyromancy, phlegmatic to geomancy, and melancholic to hydromancy. Aeromancy is confirmed by oneiromancy or divination by dreams; pyromancy is supplemented by magnetism; hydromancy by divination with crystals; geomancy by fortune-telling with cards. These are transposition and perfecting methods. But divination, in whatever manner we may operate, is dangerous, or at least useless, for it disheartens the will; consequently, it restricts freedom, and fatigues the nervous system.”

Working and eventually mastering the four elements has always attracted the most skilled Illuminati magicians who united elemental magic as a school, or generally a group of schools of magic that deals with the traditional elements -or sometimes the less traditional ones. These elements may be believed to be the irreducible basis of all matter (as in early Alchemy), the cornerstones of all magic, or perhaps merely associated with mystical outside forces like the Elementals.^[27]

Paracelsus always said the Elementals lacked an immortal soul.

Elementals are summoned to assist in Magic related to nature so no wonder the legendary MKUltra focused (or focuses?) heavily on trying to alter and manipulate human mental states and consciousness, and has resorted to contacting such occult forces. However, I hope this introduction gave you a general idea of what the Illuminati intend with the Conjunction of the Four Elements.

In his influential De Occulta Philosophia, published in 1531-33, several decades before the publication of Paracelsus' Philosophia Magna published posthumously, the previously cited Heinrich Cornelius Agrippa wrote of four classes of spirits corresponding to the four elements. However, he did not give special names for the classes: In like manner, they distribute these into more orders, so as some are fiery, some watery, some aerial, some terrestrial.” Agrippa did give an extensive list of various mythological beings of this type, although without clarifying which belongs to which elemental class. Like Paracelsus, he did not use the term “elemental spirit” per se.

Aleister Crowley Apocalypse Superstar

Even as a child, Aleister Crowley was convinced that he was the Great Beast mentioned in the biblical Book of Revelation. He studied magic with the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn, and after attempting to sabotage it, he went on to construct his occult system using an amalgamation of the ritual working of Abramelin the Mage, the Goetia, and the Tantric sexual techniques of the Austro/German Ordo Templi Orientis, among other sources. He firmly believed that he was the herald for a New Age of strife and destruction that would sweep across the world and he was sadly right, Crowley called it the Aeon of Horus, after the Egyptian God of War, after all. As we saw earlier in Cairo in 1904, he received the bible of this apocalyptic period, Liber AL vel Legis (The Book of the Law), in the form of a psychic dictation from his guardian angel, Aiwass. The book explains some of the conditions that will prevail in the Aeon of Horus. It also contains Crowley's famous dictum "Do what thou wilt shall be the whole of the Law." For Illuminati researcher Donald Tyson, it is highly significant that Crowley never considered himself to be the Antichrist. He is not the central character in the drama of the Apocalypse, but the herald who ushers in the Age of Chaos was the evil Illuminati gatekeeper of the Apocalypse. The text of The Book of the Law states: This book shall be translated into all tongues: but always with the original in the writing of the Beast; for in the chance shape of the letters and their position to one another: in these are mysteries that no Beast shall divine. Let him not seek to try: but one cometh after him, whence I say not, who shall discover the Key to it all. Then this line drawn is a key: then this circle squared in its failure is a key also. And Abrahadabra. It shall be his child & that strangely. Let him not seek after this; for thereby alone can he fall from it. (Liber AL III:47)

Crowley studied and practiced Enochian magic more often and deeply than any other magician of the Golden Dawn, indeed probably more deeply than any other human being who has ever lived. About the angelic communications of Dee and Kelley, he writes: Much of their work still defies explanation, though I and Frater Semper Pararus [Thomas Windram], an Adeptus Major of the A[rgenteum] A[strum] have spent much time and research upon it and cleared up many obscure points. The record of Crowley's working of the Enochian Aethers in 1909 in the desert of North Africa is preserved in the document entitled, The Vision and the Voice. Tyson: It possessed a profound and broad understanding of ritual magic, an understanding that was not merely theoretical but practical. No other man of the twentieth century was better suited to initiate the Apocalypse Working, even as there had been no man in the sixteenth century better suited than Dee to receive it from the Enochian angels. [\[28\]](#)

Tyson writes that: Crowley never succeeded in completing the entire Enochian Apocalypse Working, which is, the primal occult Key that has never been recorded, are the eighteen manifest Keys, and the Key of the 30 Aethers in their correct correspondence with the parts of the Great Table of the Watchtowers. But he may have succeeded in partially opening the gates of the Watchtowers. I am pretty sure he opened the gates of Hell with Victor Neuberg. Significantly, he states concerning the African working conducted with Neuberg: As a rule, we did one Aethyr every day." On the method for invoking the spirits of the Watchtowers, the angel Ave Dee states:

Four days ...must you only call upon those names of God [on the Great Table of the Watchtowers], or on the God of Hosts, in those names:

And 14 days after you shall (in this, or some convenient place) Call the Angels by Petition and by the name of God, unto the which they are obedient.

The 15th day you shall dress yourselves, in vestures made of linen, white: and so have the apparition, use, and practice of the Creatures. For, it is not a labor of years, nor many days.

It seems clear to Tyson, that the complete Apocalypse Working must be conducted on consecutive days, one Key per day. I would guess that the unexpressed primordial Key of the Great Mother is the missing ingredient that will complete the Working, but this is a matter of practical magic.

Crowley remained firmly convinced until his death in 1947, that the Aeon of Horus began in 1904, precisely at the time he received The Book of the Law. Fundamentalist Christians commonly believe that the end of the world will be a physical event, and will be sparked by some horrifying wars and plagues, and we have indeed had the worst ones in the history of mankind after Crowley's channeled work started circulating among the various Illuminati sects. Only in the limited period from 1945 to 1969, there were ninety-seven wars around the globe. The total duration of these conflicts exceeded 250 years. There was not a single day in which one or several wars were not fought somewhere in the world. Imagine that the death toll already surmounted to tens of millions. At the present moment, it is difficult to remember the exact number of wars in progress or the exact number of places where war seems likely. Nor does the frequency of these wars show the slightest sign of diminishing. Even Pope Francis, in 2014, at a ceremony honoring WWI victims stated that: “A World War III fought with crimes, massacres, destruction” may have started.

As soon as one war ends, another begins. Henry Kissinger, who has always been one of the key players in the New World Order once said: The Western world seems to be floating without power or rudder on a sea filled with destructive events. This supposition is natural given the concrete imagery of The Book of Revelation.

The gates of the Watchtowers that stand guard at the four corners of our dimension of reality have already been opened, by occultists and dark figures in the Western Initiatic System, to admit demons like Choronzon into the physical world to corrupt our subconscious minds. Spirits are mental, not material. They dwell in the depths of the mind and communicate through our dreams, unconscious impulses, and more rarely in waking visions. They affect feelings and thoughts beneath the level of our conscious awareness. Sometimes they can control our actions, either partially, as in the case of irrational and obsessive behavior patterns, or completely, as in the case of full possession. Through us, and only through us, are they able to influence physical things.

The Enochian communications teach us that the Illuminati and the Invisible Masters behind them, have been wanting the Apocalypse to manifest through the magical formula delivered to Dee and Kelly, for a very long time now, but they also need humans as physical agents to manifest their plagues, wars, and famines described with such chilling eloquence in the vision of St. John. As Donald Tyson, who is an Illuminati-controlled occultist says:

“It is we who will let the demons of Coronzon into our minds by using a specific ritual working. They will not find a welcome place there all at once but will worm their way into our subconscious and make their homes there slowly over time. In the minds of individuals that resist this invasion, they will find it difficult to gain a foothold, but in the more pliable minds of those who welcome their influence they will establish themselves readily.” [\[29\]](#)

This is no joke my dear readers we need to resist! Tyson writes without shame: Once the demons have taken up residence, we will be powerless to prevent them from turning our thoughts and actions toward chaotic and destructive ends. These apocalyptic spirits will set person against person and nation against nation, gradually increasing the madness and chaos in human society until at last the full horror of Revelation has been realized upon the stage of the world. The corruption of human thoughts and feelings may require generations to bring to full fruition. Only after the wasting and burning of souls are well advanced will the full horror of the apocalypse achieve its final fulfillment in the material realm. Let us suppose for the sake of argument that the signal for the initiation of this psychic invasion occurred in 1904 when Crowley received the Book of the Law, as he believed. Crowley’s Enochian evocations of 1909 then pried the doors of the Watchtowers open a crack enough to allow a foul wind to blow through the common mind of the human race. This would explain the senseless slaughter of the First World War and the unspeakable horror of the Nazi Holocaust during the Second World War.

It would explain the decline of organized religions and why the soulless cult of science has gained supremacy. It would explain the moral and ethical bankruptcy of modern times and the increase in senseless violence. [\[30\]](#)

The Antichrist “foretold in Crowley’s Book of the Law to follow after the Beast, will succeed in completing the Apocalypse Working. Then the gates of the Watchtowers will truly gape wide, and the children of Coronzon will sweep into our minds as crowned conquerors. If this chilling scenario ever comes to pass, the wars of the twentieth century will seem bucolic to those who survive the slaughter.” [\[31\]](#)

I would like to further unveil the secret instruction prepared for the future Antichrist to be found in the work of another one of Aleister Crowley’s alleged reincarnations, French occult author and ceremonial magician Eliphas Levi, born Alphonse Louis Constant (1810 –1875) known as Eliphas Levi, considered of great importance in the pseudo-religion of Thelema, and most modern mystery schools of the Illuminati network of today. There is no doubt that Levi had a profound influence on Crowley, who translated Levi’s The Key of the Mysteries as his Adeptus Minor thesis, and Crowley went as far as to claim in Magick in Theory and Practice, that he was the reincarnation of Levi. Therefore, it is not unreasonable to suggest that Levi influenced Crowley in the Apocalypse Workings. Eliphas Levi’s Baphomet was also adopted by Aleister Crowley, most famously in his Gnostic Mass and has become a key symbol of modern Satanism used in recent years by the Satanic Temple, that has become the political branch of Satanism established in 2013 by a former follower of Anton Lavey, known as Lucien Greaves.

Chapter Two

Descending into the abyss of the Jesuit World

Secret instructions for the making of the Sabbatean Frankist Illuminati Antichrist

In the book by celebrated French occult author and Jesuit agent Eliphas Levi originally published in French as Dogme et Rituel de la Haute Magie (1854–1856), and later translated into English with the title Transcendental Magic, there is specific passage linked to the belief and doctrine of Messianism that has always been present in the Sabbatean Frankist Illuminati but has never before been explained in such detail. This passage contains the instructions for the making of a “Messiah” by the elite of the New World Order. These are the instructions for the making of the Antichrist plain and simple, given by a Jesuit agent of the cabal.

As we know, the prevalent ideology behind the New World Order supports the idea of a God-chosen “King of the Jews” to rule over the world. This Messiah, or Antichrist, could be selected from the ranks of the Rothschild or another rich Sabbatean Frankist family. Heretical Jews will administer this world empire with the help of the liberal side of Freemasonry and, of course, the Jesuits. What a nightmare! Part of this argument is espoused in a rare, and now suppressed book entitled Elijah, Rothschilds and the Ark of the Covenant written by Tom Crotser & Jeremiah Patrick (Restoration Press, 1984). This book details the Rothschild's alleged discovery of the Ark of the Covenant, a gold-covered box supposedly built by Moses to hold Aaron's Rod and the original Ten Commandment tablets. The authors also claim to have shown pictures of who they view as “King of the Jews,” to the Rothschilds to fulfill the Messianic prophesy of world dictatorship from the yet to be built future Third Temple in Jerusalem. The Rothschild's intend to place the object in Solomon's Temple in Jerusalem to legitimize their Messiah claim.

Tom Crotser's claim that he has found the original Ark of the Covenant in all its gilded glory must exercise caution in light of Crotser's additional claims to having previously located the Tower of Babel, Noah's Ark, the City of Adam, and the great stone of Abel, where the son of Adam was killed.^[32]

I know it sounds far-fetched, and with no real evidence to support such outlandish claims, but as crazy as all this may seem, there are certain words written by Eliphas Levi over a century and a half ago, that sounds in line with this vision, and there is even a mention of the possible role of the Rothschilds. Eliphas Levi was educated at the Church of St. Sulpice linked to the Priory of Sion. An article by Andrew Gough entitled “Saint Sulpice and The Symbolism of The Priory of Sion” (The Heretic Magazine, Number 8, March 2016) proposed that the drawing of the octopus/spider on Philippe de Chèrisey's artistic impression of Marie de Negri d'Ables' non-existent tombstone was based upon a sculpted octopus on a Holy Water Stoup in the Church of St Sulpice, Paris (by the artist Jean-Baptiste Pigalle, 1714-1785).

However, it is more likely that the octopus/spider on de Chèrisey's fake tombstone is partially based on a drawing found in the work of French esotericist Paul Le Cour (1871-1954). Pierre Plantard modeled certain elements of his Priory of Sion mythology on Le Cour's writings and had also quoted Le Cour in his 1940s journal, Vaincre. But, why Le Cour? I will explain in detail later in this book, that Le Cour was also a Jesuit agent like Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor Eliphas Levi, who became a priest at one point in his life but was “thrown out” for not keeping his “vow of chastity” and became more valuable as a “Jesuit of the Short Robe,” as this kind of Jesuit asset is called.

Reality or simply speculation, here is the crucial passage extracted from the Chapter, The Magical Chain by Eliphas Levi. Please study it in detail to fully understand the evil plan devised by the Jesuits and Sabbatean-Frankists to install their false Messiah:

The great man is he who comes seasonably and knows how to innovate opportunely. In the days of the apostles, Voltaire would have found no echo for his utterances and might have been merely an ingenious parasite at the banquets of Trimalcyon. Now, at the epoch wherein we live, everything is ripe for a fresh outburst of evangelical zeal and Christian self-devotion, precisely because of the prevailing general disillusion egoistic positivism, and public cynicism of the coarsest interests.

The success of certain books and the mystical tendencies of minds are unequivocal symptoms of this widespread disposition. We restore and we build churches only to realize more keenly that we are void of belief, only to long the more for it; once more does the whole world await its Messiah, and he cannot tarry in his coming.

Let a man, for example, come forward, who by rank or by fortune is placed in an exalted position a pope, a king, even a Jewish millionaire and let this man publicly and solemnly sacrifice all his material interests for the weal of humanity; let him make himself the savior of the poor, the disseminator, and even the victim, of doctrines of renunciation and charity, and he will draw round him an immense following; he will accomplish a complete moral revolution in the world. But the high rank of such a character is more than anything necessary since, in our times of misery and charlatanism, any word issuing from the lower ranks is suspected of interested ambition and imposture. Ye, then, who are nothing, ye who possess nothing, aspire not to be apostles or messiahs.

If you have faith and would act in accordance therewith, get possession, in the first place, of the means of action, which are the influence of rank and the prestige of fortune. In olden times gold was manufactured by science; nowadays science must be remade by gold. We have fixed the volatile, and we must now volatilize the fixed in other words, we have materialized spirit, and we must now spiritualize matter. The most sublime utterance now passes unheeded if it goes forth without the guarantee of a name that is to say, of a success which represents a material value. What is the worth of a manuscript? That of the author's signature among the booksellers? That established reputation is known as Alexander Dumas who represents one of the literary guarantees of our time, but the house of Dumas is in repute only for the romances which are its exclusive productions. Let Dumas devise a magnificent Utopia, or discover a splendid solution of the religious problem, and no one will take them seriously, despite the European celebrity of the Panurge of modern literature. We are in the age of acquired positions, where everyone is appraised according to his social and commercial standing. Unlimited freedom of speech has produced such strife of words that no one inquires what is said, but who has said it. If it is Rothschild, his Holiness Pius the Ninth, or even Monseigneur Dupanloup, it is something; but if it is Tartempion, it is nothing, were he even which is possible, after all, an unrecognized prodigy of genius, knowledge, and good sense.

Hence to those who would say to me: If you possess the secret of great successes, and of a force which can transform the world why do you not make use of them? I would answer: This knowledge has come to me too late for myself, and I have spent over its acquisition the time and the resources which might have enabled me to apply it; I offer it to those who are in a position to avail themselves of it. Illustrious men, rich men, great ones of this world who are dissatisfied with that which you have, who are conscious of a nobler and larger ambition, will you be fathers of a new world, kings of a rejuvenated civilization? A poor and obscure scholar has found the lever of Archimedes, and he offers it to you for the good of humanity alone, asking nothing whatsoever in exchange.

The phenomena which have quite recently perturbed America and Europe, as regards table-turning and fluidic manifestations, are simply magnetic currents at the beginning of their formation, appeals on the part of nature inviting us, for the good of humanity, to re-establish the great sympathetic and religious chains. As a fact, stagnation in the astral light would mean death to the human race, and torpor in this secret agent has already been manifested by alarming symptoms of decomposition and death. For example, cholera-morbus, the potato disease, and the blight of the grape are traceable solely to this cause, as the two young shepherds of la Salette saw darkly and symbolically in their dream. ^[33]

On September 19, 1846, two children, shepherds of La Salette in the French Alps had a vision of the Virgin. Shortly afterward, on the 19th of September 1851, Pope Pius IX formally approved the public devotion and prayers to Our Lady of La Salette, referring to messages from the apparition as secrets.

The original secrets of Our Lady of La Salette, given to Melanie Calvat and Maximin Giraud in 1846, and first transcribed in 1851, were buried in the Vatican Secret Archives for almost 150 years before they were discovered by Fr. Michel Corteville in 1999. They were then published by Fr. Corteville along with Fr. Rene Laurentin in the 2002 book, Du Secret de La Salette. In this version, Melanie's secret differed somewhat from the later versions of her secret, published in 1858, 1873, and 1879 respectively.

Before the publication of the 1851 originals in 2002, the vast majority of the content of Maximin's secret was unknown to the general public. As Emmett O'Regan argues in his book Unveiling the Apocalypse, it seems that the main reason that the secrets of La Salette were suppressed for so long, was due to their reference to a specific point in the future as to when the prophecies would begin to take place - the year 2000. The secrets, revealed to the two shepherds by the Virgin Mary must have reached in some way, in their entirety, Eliphaz Levi, which as you just read mentions the “two young shepherds of La Salette”, and seems to be heavily inspired by their Apocalyptic “secrets” in the final part of a prophecy written only a few years later, in 1860, for his new friend and patron, the Tuscan Baron, Nicola Spedalieri:

That is why the return of Enoch and Elijah will precede the second advent of Jesus. In his first coming, Jesus turned out to be a pontiff. In his second coming, he will be revealed as King. He is Christ. He must be the Messiah the Jews are right to wait. It was Enoch, on Mount Sinai, to give the Divine law to Moses. They were Moses and Elijah, on the Tabor, teaching Jesus the great mysteries of Christian revelation. Jesus transmitted his initiation to St. John the Evangelist and this apostle detached from the rest must remain until the Second Coming of the Master. At the moment of decomposition, inferior spirits will manifest themselves as worms on corpses. They are evoked by corruption and are being devoured by it. They are vampires of unhealthy souls. This decomposition always precedes and announces the coming on the Earth of a Spirit of regenerating in the person of the Solar Metatron. Talking boards and flying spirits announced the return of Enoch. He will return when the Papacy has lost his authority in the world and the cabalistic visions will shine.

The advent of Elijah will follow immediately after Enoch, then Jesus Savior of the world will come back a second time. It will be preceded by the Antichrist whose mission will be to prepare the great temporal Empire of the Gospel Revelator. The astral light flushed with elemental spirits: is a sign of a new creation that is being prepared. Already the keys of Solomon are found and the mysteries of High Freemasonry are explained. A school, whose beginnings are still dark and almost invisible, is being formed in the Slavic Empire, Germany, and France. In a century this school will have seven thousand adepts and its last Grand Master will be Enoch. Enoch will appear in the year two thousand of the Christian world. Then Messianism, which will be the forerunner, will flourish on Earth for a thousand years. These predictions are the summary of all prophecies and all the cabalistic calculations ... they have to be kept a secret so as not to expose the most respectable labors of human genius and divining science to the profanations of ignorance. Eliphaz Lévi, Paris 1860. [\[34\]](#)

This is a specific passage from the secrets of Our Lady of La Salette that seem to match the above in certain predictions:

Rome will lose the Faith and become the seat of the Antichrist. The demons of the air, together with the Antichrist, will work great wonders on the earth and in the air, and men will become ever more perverted. God will take care of His faithful servants and men of goodwill; the Gospel will be preached everywhere, all peoples and all nations will know of the Truth. I address a pressing appeal to the earth: I call upon the true disciples of the God living and reigning in the heavens; I call upon the true imitators of Christ made man, the one true Savior of men; I call upon my children, my true devotees, those who have given themselves to me so that I may lead them to my Divine Son, those whom I bear as it were in my arms, those who have lived in my spirit; finally, I call upon the Apostles of the Latter Times, the faithful disciples of Jesus Christ who have lived in contempt of the world and themselves, in poverty and humility, in contempt and silence, in prayer and mortification, in chastity and union with God, in suffering, and unknown to the world. It is time for them to emerge and come enlighten the earth. Go, show yourselves to be my dear children; I am with you and in you, provided your faith is the light enlightening you in these evil times. May your zeal make your famished for the glory and honor of Jesus Christ. Do battle, children of light, you, the few who see thereby; for the time of times, the end of ends is at hand. The Church will be eclipsed, the world will be in consternation. But there are Enoch and Elias, they will preach with the power of God, and men of good-will, will believe in God, and many souls will be comforted; they will make great progress by the Holy Ghost and will condemn the diabolical errors of the Antichrist.” [\[35\]](#)

There is a thin thread that unites, Ignatius Loyola’s cave visions, Marian Prophecies like this one, Allan Kardec’s Spiritism, Rosicrucianism, Ufology, and, of course, Theosophy, that are linked to a variety of alleged Messianic revelations. Some of them genuine, some not, but all gradually revealed, courtesy of the Jesuits and a myriad of secret societies of the Illuminati Sabbatean-Frankist network who are aware of their role in the End times.

After Eliphaz Levi’s death in Paris on May 31, 1875, at the age of 65, a few months later on the November 17, 1875, Helena Petrovna Blavatsky the disciple of a suspected Sabbatean Frankist (Max Theon...), Colonel Henry Steel Olcott, William Quan Judge, and others, founded the Theosophical Society, as the result of Blavatsky’s visions and supernatural claims. The roots of Ufology are in some way also the same roots of Theosophy and Spiritism often based on fraudulent visions and manipulation games played by Satan's Legion. In the years following the meeting with the aforementioned Baron Spedalieri, Levi published texts which were later considered milestones in the field of contemporary theoretical magic used by the Illuminati, such as Fables et symboles ("Stories and Images"), in 1862 and La science des esprits ("The Science of Spirits") in 1865, and both are inspired by the writings of Allan Kardec (1804- 1869), a pseudonym of the French pedagogue Hippolyte Léon Denizard Rivail, considered to be the father of Spiritism, a philosophical doctrine that appeared in France in the mid-nineteenth century, whose practice was rampant in Europe in Levi's time and is considered by occult experts as the first sign of an increased manifestation of diabolic spirits in the End Times.

Levi was attracted to many visions, and he knew very well that the Bible teaches that involvement with any manifestation of the occult is forbidden. Keeping this in mind, we should protect ourselves from everything connected with Spiritism, but as a "Jesuit of the Short Robe," Eliphas Levi never cared about that. Interestingly enough, before he died in 2008, the well-known Demonologist and Ufologist from the Vatican, the late Monsignor Corrado Balducci (1923-2008) who operated a large number of exorcisms for the Vatican wrote:

In the last hundred and forty years they have appeared in succession and at a growing pace two types of manifestations. ^[36] The two kinds of manifestations cited by Balducci, are Ufology, and Spiritism, both demonic and described in the following way by Father Balducci: With regards to Spiritism, this is a practice which has been witnessed for millennia but in 1847 with the Fox sisters in Hydesville (New York) it took on a very special impetus and spread rapidly in various countries. The phenomena of this nature were soon given, even by scientists, an explanation: the souls of the disembodied, that is, the dead, are the cause, and here is the spiritual hypothesis to which theologians soon opposed the demonic one. Scientists had resorted to the beyond, and one could not expect the theorists to think of a natural hypothesis. Only towards the end of the nineteenth century, there were the first attempts at a natural explanation, which increased and became more and more plausible and consistent in their scientificity through the emergence of various societies: the first, the Psychic Research Society, was born in England in 1882; two years later, in 1884, the American Society for Psychical Research was founded in the United States. In 1888 Richet and Marillier gave birth to the Société de Psychologie Physiologique and in 1901 Marzorati founded the Society of Psychic Studies in Italy. ^[37]

For Balducci: "We begin to talk about UFOs exactly one hundred years after the Fox sisters, always in the United States, on June 24, 1947, when, thanks to Kenneth Arnold, the first reported related accident went into print." ^[38] Always remember, Spiritism is linked to Satanism. According to biblical Christianity, God created supernatural angelic beings as helpers for humanity.

Satan, the original leader of the angels, rebelled against God and convinced one-third of the angels (now referred to as demons) to join him in his rebellion. These demons now spend their time trying to convince human beings that God does not exist, and to follow them in their demented rebellion against God. This inspired the creation of the New Age movement secretly controlled by the Jesuits. For this reason, Ufology is often used as a demonic tool to destabilize Christianity and needs to be approached with extreme caution by all interested parties.

Gianmario Ferramonti has presented numerous photos to support his claims that he met with Sitchin on several occasions, giving a crucial and credible testimony to better understand the link between Sitchin, Balducci, and the Vatican. I published some of these photos in Volume 2 of my Confessions. In December 2015, I was able to convince Ferramonti to release a historic interview to documentary producer Steve Quayle, released later in June of 2016, under the appropriate title The Unholy See, conducted by Timothy Alberino, who claims his life was in danger when he returned to the U.S. This was a big journalistic scoop, and has perhaps been underestimated by the UFO community.

Gianmario Ferramonti is a well-known Italian politician who helped found the organization Italians4Trump, that I, and others created. Ferramonti, who is connected to the international world of intelligence and espionage, was a special messenger chosen by his trusted old friend Zecharia Sitchin, and even if Sitchin remains for most academics a charlatan or at least a dubious source, the Vatican must have thought otherwise. Speculation on Sitchin based on his interpretation of Sumerian texts is considered pseudo-science and pseudo-history by the Scientific Community, rejected by ordinary scientists, historians, and academics. Why was the Vatican so interested in the work of Sitchin? And why did they want to involve him in a secret project with Monsignor Corrado Balducci, even giving him, as admitted by Gianmario Ferramonti in front of the cameras of GenSix Productions, boxes fuelled with top-secret material, probably of an alien nature?

The Vatican is working on a language to communicate with Extraterrestrials

In 1600, an Italian monk, philosopher, mathematician, and astronomer named Giordano Bruno was killed by the Catholic Church inquisition for believing that the universe was infinite and that it would have many solar systems and many inhabited globes. A troubled period for humanity close to what St. John the Evangelist called the Apocalypse, seems to be gradually unfolding in front of our eyes, possibly leading to an imminent End-times scenario.

Many scientists, experts, and theologians have concluded that the UFO phenomena is demonic in origin. The Vatican is linked to a mysterious international organization whose headquarters are located in Moscow, known as the Center for information, analysis, and strategies of situations, that operates under the direct control of the President of the Russian Federation whose main allies are the Jesuits and the Vatican. For this reason, the greatest UFO experts have met in the most unlikely and unusual location to date in recent years.

The Vatican officially opened their doors to guest experts on Ufology at least five times in recent years with official meetings that took place at the Church of Saint Anne in the Vatican, and we are told unofficially many other times, to talk about this delicate subject, which is also related to the so-called Marian apparitions, seen by some Ufologists as a product of alien deception, and for others as a sign of the End-times. Officially, there is no End Times and no Second Coming for the Vatican and Pope Ratzinger made sure we all knew that during his pontificate, but the reality is very different, and behind closed doors, semi-official meetings regarding the UFO/alien subject concerning the End of Times, took place in 2002, 2010, 2013, 2017, and 2018. ^[39]

These meetings have the support of a little-known organization called CIFAS, the Council of International Federation of Advanced Studies, headed by Alfredo Magenta, member of the Scientific Committee of the Italian National Ufology Center, better known with the acronym C.U.N., who is also the Western European representative of the Radio Regulations Board (RRB) of the International Telecommunication Union (ITU) of the United Nations, a leading communications technology agency, and a major technological resource of the New World Order connected to the U.N. The First Conference of C.I.F.A.S in the Vatican, is dated Wednesday, February 20, 2002, and was entitled. “UFOs Believe or not Believe”, and was held in the meeting room known as La Sala del Buon Consiglio ^[40] of the Church of Saint Anne in the Vatican (Italian: Sant'Anna in Vaticano), known as Sant'Anna de' Parafrenieri (English: Saint Anne of the Grooms), a Roman Catholic parish church dedicated to Saint Anne in Vatican City, a place used for elite initiations by the most powerful Mafia organization in Italy the 'Ndrangheta based in Calabria.

The church is the parish church of the Vatican City State, and is placed under the jurisdiction of the Vicariate of Vatican City and is located beside the Porta Sant'Anna (Saint Anne's Gate), an international border crossing between Vatican City State and Italy. A very strategic place where CIFAS has been organizing meetings in 2017 and 2018.

Alfredo Magenta gave the initial report in the prestigious Sala del Buon Consiglio in Via del Pellegrino, in Vatican City territory, to a very restricted and selected audience. Particularly interesting, has been the event organized in 2017 based on the language created to communicate with these alien beings. Such events have regularly been attended by a growing audience, passionate about this topic, that included military personnel, agents of various intelligence agencies, Freemasons, influential Jesuits, and various members of the clergy, that belong to the Vatican hierarchy.

“Our presence in the Vatican—explained back in 2010, engineer Alfredo Magenta —is because the Holy See is open to all voices.” Magenta is at the heart of this strange movement of Italian Ufologist's tied to the Vatican and the New World Order. During the conference in 2002, Magenta made a statement that left everyone astonished. According to him: “All these facts and logical deductions make it possible to assert, without a shadow of a doubt, that UFOs exist”. Declaring that: “If what has been handed down to us in past chronicles is worthy of faith, they have been existing for at least five or six thousand years, since there has been written and painted testimonies of it”, then the Conference audience insisted, asking him if extraterrestrials were real or figments of their imagination? “We are not alone in the universe,” replied Magenta, “but we have to wait.” ^[41]

In April 2013, the C.I.F.A.S. returned to the Vatican, headed by Alfredo Magenta and Vladimiro Bibolotti,

Secretary-General of C.I.F.A.S., and now President of C.U.N., the Italian National Center for the study of UFOs, created in the middle of the 60s by the late Freemason Giancarlo Barattini, and the current secretary Roberto Pinotti (also a Freemason), who has a long-standing collaboration with the superstar of Ufology, Dr. Steven Greer. Vladimiro Bibolotti told a newspaper: “We should look for them because of a higher civilization. We can get useful answers. The fact is that time is not yet ripe to do so.” It seems obvious that C.I.F.A.S., and the more mainstream, C.U.N., also recognized at a ministerial level in Italy, are both willing agents of the Jesuit clergy and Catholic Freemasonry, secretly presiding over Ufology for the New World Order. In a way, Bibbotti himself confirmed this in a brief interview given to the local Italian newspaper Gazzetta di Parma on July 4, 2010, when he declared: “The subject matter is studied by the Secret and Military Services of the Great Powers of World and the greatest scientific minds have been interested. Numerous UFO sightings are well documented. From 1947 to today there have been 150,000 documented phenomena in the world that cannot be explained otherwise. UFOs are a serious thing. Who laughs about UFOs is like he laughed about microbes because he could not see them.”

Interestingly enough, at an international conference organized by C.U.N. I attended in Rome, back 2013, I met Professor Erling P. Strand, a former Rosicrucian Grand Master of A.M.O.R.C. in Norway, now involved in Ufology and Norwegian Freemasonry, who has recently reached the highest degree in the Swedish Rite.

As Eliphas Levi wrote: Many important circles of Illuminati in certain northern countries have powerful chains... and these chains are linked to the Invisible Alien Masters, as the presence of Professor Erling P. Strand in Rome confirms this once again. At the same conference, I met an old acquaintance of mine, Admiral Falco Accame, known for his in-depth research on the secret structure of the Gladio-Stay Behind operation. Accame, while chairman of the Italian Parliamentary Defense Committee, in February 1979, launched an unprecedented parliamentary investigation on unidentified objects.

Returning to the Vatican’s relationship with UFOs, among the various emails concerning the UFO subject released by Wikileaks, one appeared three years ago that suggests that the Vatican has been hiding knowledge of extraterrestrial intelligence. This revelation is based on an email dated January 18, 2015, from none other than former astronaut Edgar Mitchell to John Podesta, a Visiting Professor of Law at the Jesuit Georgetown University, who trained for a time to become a Jesuit himself, and is best known as top Democratic Party adviser, and former chairman, of the failed 2016 Hillary Clinton presidential campaign. Yes, the guy who loves Aleister Crowley’s inspired Spirit Cooking by Marina Abramovic, and tweeted in December 2017 “Lift the Veil” after the Pentagon UFO exposé by the New York Times [\[42\]](#)

In the email, Mitchell requests a meeting with John Podesta along with a colleague, to discuss the Catholic Church’s knowledge of alien intelligence and the perfect energy source aliens wish to give us: We must agree that we agree on a date and time to meet to discuss Disclosure and Zero Point Energy, at your earliest available time after your departure. My Catholic colleague Terri Mansfield will be there too, to bring us up to date on the Vatican’s awareness of ETI.

The colleague Mitchell refers to, is Terri Mansfield, a lobbyist, and advocate for what she describes as non-violent alien beings in our universe. Mansfield runs the “ETI (Extraterrestrial Intelligence) Peace Task Force,” a special interest group that seeks to educate lawmakers and world leaders about the promises offered to us from peaceful alien beings.

Former astronaut Edgar Mitchel was the sixth man on the moon. After retiring from NASA, Mitchell became outspoken in his belief that ETs exist and have visited Earth. According to Mansfield’s website, there is extraterrestrial intelligence (ETIs) that are aware of humankind and wish to give us a sustainable, clean energy source capable of revolutionizing space travel: We educate humans about our work with our nonviolent obedient-to-God ETI, Extraterrestrial Intelligence, from the contiguous universe whose mission is to work with our scientists to bring zero point energy to extend life on our fragile Earth. [\[43\]](#)

The internet is abuzz with speculation and theories that this email shows the Catholic Church has been colluding with world leaders to hide knowledge of extraterrestrial intelligence, and there is a lot of truth in this hypothesis. After all, Pope Francis has been known to make unexplained remarks about the American government’s knowledge of alien life, as well as several other high-ranking Vatican officials and Jesuits like the director of The Vatican Observatory (in Latin: Specola Vaticana), Brother Guy Consolmagno, an American Jesuit who grew up in Detroit, Michigan, who once said he would baptize an alien but “only if they asked.” At a science festival in Birmingham, he added to the controversial statement: “Any entity – no matter how many tentacles it has – has a soul.” This reminds me of the friendly approach with the tentacle aliens present in the film “Arrival” that came out in 2016, and seems rather distant from H.P. Lovecraft’s idea of the apocalyptic threat of Cthulhu, with its horrifying tentacles, that will collapse civilization into an endless dark horror.

Consolmagno also said he would be delighted if intelligent life was found among the stars but admitted it was unlikely. Nevertheless, in February 2017, Claire Giangravè wrote in Crux, an independent Catholic media outlet, operated in partnership with the Knights of Columbus: So, just as a thought exercise, suppose a flying saucer landed in St. Peter’s Square during the pope’s weekly general audience. What would that mean for the Catholic faith? As it happens, Pope Francis is three years ahead of us: “If an expedition of Martians arrives and some of them come to us and if one of them says: ‘Me, I want to be baptized’, what would happen?” The pope said in May of 2014.

It’s simple. For the Jesuit pope, no matter how distant they may be, the church does not turn people away because they are in with the “Legion” of Satan. Even if Pope Francis were able to keep his cool, anyone who has ever seen a sci-fi movie where aliens visit Earth knows that the general expectation is widespread panic, with religions being the first to crumble but that’s not the case, as the Vatican knows exactly the reality of the UFO phenomenon. Outside Hollywood, real believers seem more composed. According to a 2011 study for the Royal Society, about 90 percent of believers felt that if intelligent life were to be discovered on other planets, they would not have a crisis of faith. The truth is that religions, being in the business of understanding the place of human beings in the world, are naturally drawn to wonder at the immensity of the sky and the vastness of space. For Catholics, enriched by Greco-Roman philosophy, the question of whether there are other worlds has had a pretty early onset. In the 13th century, Thomas Aquinas was already arguing for the existence of other worlds and beginning to wrap his mind around its theological implications in the Third Book of Sentences. For Crux: “Many Catholics have embraced the possibility of life beyond our “pale blue dot.” According to a 2015 study by Joshua Ambrosius, a professor at the University of Dayton, Catholics and ‘no ones’ are the two groups most optimistic about the possibility of discovering extraterrestrial life in the next 40 years.” [\[44\]](#)

Mr. Podesta, who is Hillary Clinton’s favorite Satanist and Democrat added on Tweeter after the explosive news about the secretive Pentagon program on UFO research began circulating: “#TheTruthIsOutThere.” Well, it was out there when Wikileaks leaked John Podesta’s e-mails, that revealed in 2016 conversations he had with a former NASA astronaut about the existence of aliens, alien technology, and space warfare, but also according to the documents published by WikiLeaks, Satanic artist Marina Abramovic sent John Podesta’s brother Tony an e-mail on June 28, 2015, stating that she was “looking forward” to the “Spirit Cooking” dinner and asked if John was going to join them. There always seems to be a link between Satanism/Occultism and the UFO/Alien world.

Vatican Illuminati and UFOs approaching in the End Times

Over ten years ago, I exposed in an article published by the site Illuminati News, the involvement of the Vatican and a bunch of Jesuit priests with a telescope called LUCIFER, a Large Binocular Telescope, or LBT, based at the Mount Graham International Observatory in southeastern Arizona. When WND contacted German astronomers at the Center for Astronomy at Heidelberg University, the ones who named LUCIFER, to ask them about it, professor and astronomer Andreas Quirrenbach, who also identified himself as a Catholic, told WND there's a common misconception about the term "Lucifer." Quirrenbach said: "The origin of the name is Latin, meaning "bearer of light," Adding, "Whereas today most people may associate the name with a mythical fallen angel, who is also frequently identified with the devil, this is by no means the only and also not the original use of the name."

The whole project seemed very suspicious, and when I asked about it in 2010, Vatican intelligence operative Dr. Antonio Leonardo Montuoro, the inventor of Teo-Intelligence, a new method that mixes theology with intelligence, Montuoro told me that the researchers at Mount Graham were searching for prophetic signs in the skies, as in one of the first scenes of Omen III: The Final Conflict.

On November 6, 1954, around the same period as George Adamski's first experiences with contact, Consul and Knight of the Vatican Carlo Alberto Perego (1903-1981), witnessed a UFO formation in the shape of a Greek cross in the skies over the Vatican, an event that laid the foundation of Vatican Ufology and its Exopolitical thinking. Exopolitics, as the name suggests, is, of course, the study of extraterrestrial politics. Perego, who became a close friend of the late George Adamski, who he brought to Italy in 1959, found himself in an unprecedented position. Thanks to his consular mandate, which led him to carry out many missions in different parts of the world, even after his activity officially ceased after the war for political reasons, Perego had the unique opportunity to be in contact with many political and military personalities to discuss in detail this phenomenon.

In Italy, Perego befriended the influential Italian politician Giulio Andreotti (1919-2013), who is said to be the illegitimate son of a Pope, and one of the key figures in the Vatican Illuminati during his lifetime, heading a mysterious secret society called The Ring. Thanks to Andreotti, who would become one of the most powerful figures in NATO alliance in the Aftermath of World War II, Perego began extensive research on the UFO phenomenon. Even today, because of his privileged position, Perego's research in this field remains far superior to many other researchers even if he is ignored by most ufologists.

But in 2010, a group of Italian admirers published a biography entitled, The console who revealed the mystery of the Flying Discs, compiled by Ivan Ceci, based on extensive research made by Ceci in the Italian State Archives, and also in the many documents still in the hands of the Perego family. It is a book that is not only defined as an essay on UFOs, but also a daring tribute to the memory of what can be considered not only a pioneer of ufology, but a free, courageous, idealist, and extraordinarily modern man, who regardless of his privileged social status within the pyramid of power of the Vatican Illuminati, decided not to remain silent and secretive about certain topics but to bring them to light regardless of the consequences. For this reason, his life ended in isolation, betrayed by the system he served for a lifetime. The Vatican Illuminati operating in this field today seem more interested in manipulating information to fit their economic interest and their agenda, offering only half-truths to the masses.

Senior Illuminati, Piergiorgio Bassi, who is the Vice-President of the Academy of the Illuminati and Professor Giuliano Bernardo, a figure I have written about in my trilogy, have been working in recent years on a very big project that has joined Jesuits and agents of the Russian Federation and the former Soviet Union. I described the project extensively in Vol.6.66 of my Confessions series, and Piergiorgio Bassi, who is a staunch UFO believer, has also invested a large amount of money in recent years in creating a website for Steven Greer's collaborator Roberto Pinotti, positioning him as a gatekeeper; even if Roberto, who is also a Freemason, is very sincere and open about his quest for aliens and I still consider him a friend. Contrary to Perego, these characters who live in a very different historical context, are merely blind servants of the Antichrist and the New World Order in the Kali Yuga, and certainly, do not have a genuine and direct relationship with the most benevolent entities.

According to Italian ufologist Maurizio Baiata, C.U.N. has been infiltrated in the last few decades by the Opus Dei (yes, that infamous organization made famous by Dan Brown in the Da Vinci Code), that surprise, surprise, collaborates with the Illuminati Academy of Grand Master Giuliano Di Bernardo, a Satanist. Baiata seems to have fallen victim to these manipulators out of necessity but, of course, we wish him well. Life is not easy when you don't have the full picture of the events taking place behind the scenes and you can always make mistakes or errors of judgment on the path, especially when dealing with “alien” forces and entities. For me, Perego stands as one of the heroes of this age for his uncompromising decisions and some of his stories need further investigation. Thanks to Cenci’s research that I have revealed in the book, Invisible Master, we can explore the life of Alberto Perego in detail.

Ferrara was born in 1903, to a bourgeoisie family belonging to a rich Italian prominent regional aristocracy. Perego received the attention of many important personalities in political, scientific, and even in the religious world. Among them were the Minister of Armed Forces Giulio Andreotti, Senator Angelo Cerica, Air Chief Marshal Hugh Caswall Tremeneere Dowding, 1st Baron Dowding, and Nato Supreme Allied Commander Alfred Gruenther, a United States General, with a key role in the geopolitical games of the day. Even the office of the American President John Fitzgerald Kennedy showed interest in his research. For this reason, Perego dedicated his third book entitled, The aviation of other planets operates among us. Report to the Italians, to Kennedy. Perego was a friend and an admirer of George Adamski, with whom Perego had an intense exchange of letters, and later organized in 1959, with the help of friends Mario Maioli and Eufemio Del Buono, the visit of the famous Polish contactee to Italy, where he held numerous conferences and had an alleged meeting with Pope John XXIII.

In 1958, Perego founded the Italian Center for Electromagnetic Aviation Studies, in Rome, wherein a few year’s time he united thousands of sympathizers of the UFO phenomenon and enrolled new ones from all over the world, as testified by the newspapers at the time. Every day, Perego received dozens of UFO sighting witnesses, many who turned to him hoping they would be heard and believed. In a short time, he became the reference point for Italian Ufology, and in 1958 he published his second book entitled, They are extraterrestrial. In this second book, Perego insists on the socio-political aspect of the UFO phenomenon and highlights how UFOs: “intervened systematically to try to prevent an atomic conflict between superpowers, back then and for many years to come.”

In the harsh scenario of the Cold War, this seemed like good news. He also mentioned places, names, and dates of the most important UFO sightings around the world, reconstructing and analyzing each cause and effect, time and detail. He was the first to understand not only the reality of the UFO phenomenon but also his new role in Exopolitics. Perego came to such conclusions not only because of his political sensibility and his ability to analyze. It was undoubtedly stimulated, as I said before, from some direct experience that deeply influenced his life to the point of dedicating it exclusively and almost obsessively to the study and divulgation of the truth about an extraterrestrial presence. Perego was a modern man who could grasp the extraordinary importance and, above all, the consequences of such a phenomenon. For this reason, he was a very misunderstood man, mortified by a society that perhaps was and still is, not ready to deal with such a complex and “revolutionary” reality. But what makes Perego a figure of extraordinary importance in the history of ufology, was his ability to project the problem into a political dimension, or better yet, a socio-political one, allowing a rapid evolution in understanding.

Perego, was the precursor of exopolitics at a time when they had just begun to use the terms flying disks and UFOs, and he was the vanguard of an entire school of thought that today is evolving, especially in the U.S., towards a wider understanding of the UFO phenomenon.

He was the first in Italy to use the expression “Conspiracy of silence” in one of his books, as well as being one of the few, if not the only one, to be a part of ufology research marked by a clear ethical, moral, and civil imprint. And it is no coincidence that Perego expressed harsh words regarding Professor Hellen Hynek (considered by many the father of modern Ufology), defined in a chapter of his book The Extraterrestrials came back as the most celebrated among the heathens in history due to his ambiguous proximity to the U.S. military environment.

Sometimes I wonder what Perego would have thought about the latest UFO craze to hit the U.S. in 2019. Tucker Carlson from Fox News said in November 2019 that a top government source (Colonel David Hunt?) told him investigators have secretly gathered material that could finally explain the many sightings of a mysterious aircraft reported by American airmen and civilians. His show, Tucker Carlson Tonight, is one of the most popular primetime news programs on American TV, and Tucker Carlson, is, after all, one of the most prominent public figures to seriously engage with this controversial topic that is avoided by most reporters.

During the filming of an episode of Ancient Aliens the Fox News presenter spoke to Nick Pope, a former UFO investigator with the British Ministry of Defence now working for Ancient Aliens. Carlson made this incredible statement during the interview: “I’ve heard this from someone who I think is knowledgeable in the subject. There is physical evidence that the U.S. government is holding which would tell us a lot more about what these objects are. The person who told me is someone who worked on this within the government for many years who would know. I asked point-blank: "Is there physical evidence of these objects, these aircraft?" 'And he said: "Yes there is".'

At this point, Nick Pope asked Carlson if this evidence was the wreckage of UFOs, to which he replied: "That is correct." Of course, Tucker didn't reveal the source of this unprecedented statement and was later derided by libtards that said he was simply using the UFO topic to divert from Trump's latest problems. However, a trusted insider told me that the possible source of this historic statement was almost certainly an old-time Fox contributor called Colonel David Hunt who has over 29 years of military experience including extensive special operations, counter-terrorism, and intelligence operations. Over the past two years, the topic of UFOs has moved into the mainstream following a series of revelations about a secret government-backed project called the Advanced Aerospace Threat Identification Program (AATIP). Carlson has covered the story on his show and interviewed the head of AATIP. Nick Pope told the British newspaper Metro: "Getting an interview with Tucker Carlson was an extraordinary coup for the Ancient Aliens producers, not only because he's an influential mainstream media figure, but also because of his close ties to President Trump."

I wanted to know more about this alleged wreckage of UFOs so I recently called Donald Raymond Schmitt, the former co-director of the J. Allen Hynek Center for UFO Studies, who is now a contributing writer for UFO Magazine, and on the Board of Directors for the International UFO Research Museum located in Roswell, New Mexico. Donald told me he also thought Tucker Carlson's top government source could be Colonel David Hunt, adding that he might be talking about the remains recovered from the now legendary Roswell UFO incident. The Government Accounting Office (GAO), which is the investigative arm of Congress at the request of the late New Mexico Congressman Steven Schiff, undertook a search of all relevant government agencies (the Department of Defense, the CIA, the Air Force, and so on) for documents relating to the 1947 Roswell Incident, for the purpose of establishing a paper trail of events from the appropriate time period. The results of the search were published by the GAO in 1995, and, instead of clarifying things, served only to muddy the waters even more. [\[45\]](#)

I went to visit Donald in Roswell for World UFO Day on the 2nd of July 2019, because for many, this particular date represents the anniversary of the famed and all-but-confirmed 1947 incident in Roswell. Very strange things happened, and if you would like to read more about Roswell and my experiences traveling across the country this summer, you can read my wife's book, Confessions of an Illuminati Princess Volume 2, that is now available for sale on amazon.

The New UFO Craze that hit California in 2019

The incredible story began in 2015, when Tom DeLonge, founding Blink-182 member and the band's former co-frontman (who also masterminded the pop/rock group Angels & Airwaves), founds an organization, To The Stars Academy of Arts and Science (TTSA), established to pursue research into UFOs and extraterrestrial existence. To most people, it seemed that Mr. DeLonge was just diving headfirst into tin foil conspiracy theories and perhaps indulging a bit too much in his longtime UFO obsession. However, recent events have proven that DeLonge might be a prime tool of the UFO disclosure planned behind closed doors by the Military-Industrial Complex and the Deep State. This means the rocker could become one of the world's preeminent voices on unidentified flying objects and alien technology.

That's pretty wild for a guy like Tom DeLonge, who once sang the lyrics "s-t, piss, f-k, cunt, c-ksucker, motherf-ker, t-ts, fart, turd, and twat." In the meantime, his TTSA website is now stating that: Thanks to the support of the investors from our first offering, we have built a solid foundation for To The Stars Academy of Arts & Science and look forward to accepting new investors on our journey to propel the company's three divisions forward.

On October 17, 2019, DeLonge and the TTSA announced an official partnership with none other than the U.S. Army Combat Capabilities Development Command (CCDC) to research and "Advance TTSA's material and technology innovations to develop enhanced capabilities for Army ground vehicles."

Why Is Tom DeLonge's UFO Group suddenly partnering with the U.S. Army? The newly-signed agreement wrote what is described as a "Cooperative Research and Development Agreement (CRADA)" and states that the U.S. Army researchers will now work alongside DeLonge's TTSA's crew for five years to further study and research the organization's materials ("alien alloys," etc.) and otherworldly technology they've already conducted tests on. You can even find the official agreement published in full by TheBlackVault.com and it is viewable online.

The new collaboration bound by compliance with the strict National Industrial Security Program and the relative security clearances allows the Army's Ground Vehicle System Center (GVSC) and Ground Vehicle Survivability and Protection (GVSP) access to TTSA research on "material science, space-time metric engineering, quantum physics, beam energy propulsion," and other jargon-filled, science-y things, which may "enhance survivability and effectiveness of multiple Army systems," according to a press release given by the TTSA in San Diego on October 17, 2019. In the press release Dr. Joseph Cannon of U.S. Army Futures Command confirms the interest of the Military-Industrial Complex in this matter: "At the Army's Ground Vehicle System Center, we look forward to this partnership and the potential technical innovations forthcoming."

Now the possibilities are only two here. Did some UFO material in possession of the TTSA push the Military-Industrial complex to take action and make an official deal with Tom DeLonge, or was Tom DeLonge in it from the start as a willing puppet in the disclosure game? We might never know the truth, but in both cases, this is a very interesting subject that deserves further investigation. In the meantime, a small group of venture military veterans capitalists, and technologists from Silicon Valley who believe that humans can capture and reverse-engineer UFOs, are beginning their Startup. Individuals on the team include Luis Elizondo, former Pentagon staffer who quit his job to hunt UFOs with Tom DeLonge; Sean Cahill, the former Chief Master-at-Arms who served aboard the USS Princeton during the 2004 Nimitz Incident; and optical physicist and UFO researcher Bruce Macabee. Without any doubt, the summer 2019 revelation that the US Navy considers UFOs and "Unidentified Aerial Phenomena" (UAPs) to be authentic and got everyone excited and they are now launching a project to track UFOs off the coast of California with a large boat loaded with various cameras and sensors to detect and record anomalous aerial activity.

The team has already begun negotiations to charter the MV Horizon, a small research vessel. Renting a research vessel and acquiring the high-tech gear needed to search for UFOs is not cheap. While they are working on grant proposals they know that the vast majority of funding will have to be private and that's why they started a Silicon Valley Startup for this project.

The California UFO craze is taking on an incredible new dimension and we should all focus on it. However, the U.S. Army has made it clear that they are primarily interested in three possible developments in which TTSA may be able to play a pivotal role.

They are as follows:

Active Camouflage

Inertial Mass Reduction

Quantum Communication

Keep in mind that the Project is built around the properties of the metamaterials TTSA currently has in their possession. If those metamaterials turn out to be a bust, the entire project is a bust. Many experts cannot help but think TTSA — and all those involved — have an immense amount of confidence in the metamaterials. The jury is still out and will be, for perhaps five more years, so let's see what happens.

Active Camouflage has been a topic of military discourse for a while now. It seems obvious that the country that is able to develop an ability to turn their ground troops invisible will have the upper hand in any military-based action. It would fundamentally change the rules of warfare.

Inertial Mass Reduction. For someone not privy to this kind of thing, IMR might seem like pure science fiction.

"Inertia is the tendency of an object to resist any change in a state of motion or, simply put, the tendency of an object to continue whatever it's doing, whether that's staying stationary or continuing to move in a straight line forward. Inertial mass is the measure of an object's resistance to acceleration. So, if you could reduce an object's inertial mass, it would require less force to produce the same acceleration." -Tom Hale of IFL Science!

The ability to manipulate an aircraft's mass, thus allowing it to move at insane speeds, is the ultimate payoff for this kind of technology.

Not only that, but the US Navy, as of 2016, already has a patent on this development.

Quantum Communication. Quantum Communication is all about the idea of putting more protective measures on the data that is communicated — not only militarily, but also privately.

"Quantum communication takes advantage of the laws of quantum physics to protect data." -Martin Giles at TechnologyReview.com

I cannot help but think Edward Snowden might have something to say about this additional (protective) measure on communication, but I also remember this was an area of expertise for the late spymaster Giuseppe Muratori, that I have talked extensively about in Volume 1 of my Confessions (pp.217-218). Muratori died under mysterious circumstances after creating a system known as Ermes, capable of neutralizing the ECHELON networks. No matter what your opinion is on privacy and mass surveillance, the ability to crown information with more protective measures via quantum communication would no doubt make it substantially more difficult for hackers to release millions of people's information in one swoop. One big issue with quantum communication is that, like anything else, it has a strong likelihood of falling into the wrong hands. As easy as it may be to protect information with quantum communication, it will be just as easy for hackers to exploit it just the same. These technologies are all obvious upgrades when looked at through a military lens, but they bring with them very dangerous possibilities too. It is worth keeping an eye on in the coming years in hopes that the TTSA doesn't end up like the Turin Institute for Social Research and Communication (IRCS), which was eventually closed down. However, the part of TTSA's Science Division with the most positive potential for those in the UFO/UAP community is the VAULT.

The VAULT is an acronym for Virtual Analytics UAP Learning Tool.

The VAULT's functionality will include the collection, storage, search, and analysis of information regarding all events, eyewitness accounts, and data recordings that could shed light on anomalous advanced technology and capabilities worldwide. The database will be able to ingest various formats, languages, and data sources ranging from civilian, industry, academia, law enforcement, the United States Government, and other sovereign entities. This also includes data sets from aviation authorities, climatic data, sonar, and other like-sources.

The VAULT is a public-facing program that will allow the general public to submit the anomalous activity.

The VAULT will allow anyone interested in UAPs to investigate the documents, videos, and photos for themselves. They will no longer have to rely on second- and third-hand accounts of activity.

The VAULT will operate as a sort of peer-reviewed entity. Individuals from many different fields will be able to come together to discuss the evidence on a case-by-case basis. (Ex. Engineers will be able to debate with Astrophysicists on the validity, probability, and possibility of the information presented.) [\[46\]](#)

Does “STRANGE ANGEL” function as demonic propaganda?

“Strange Angel” is an American historical period drama web television series that premiered in 2018 on CBS All Access. The series is based on the biography Strange Angel: The Otherworldly Life of Rocket Scientist John Whiteside Parsons by George Pendle and was created by Mark Heyman, who is also the executive producer and writer for the show in question. Like others have pointed out, rather than discrediting the occult, recent scientific discoveries in quantum physics seem to reaffirm a place for Parson’s mystical ideas, but when the second season of “Strange Angel” started in June 2019, I knew something strange was in the air. Especially due to certain synchronicity that manifested after I visited Pahrump, home to the late Art Bell, on my way to California from Rachel near Area 51.

When the protagonist John Whiteside “Jack” Parsons (1914 –1952), the American rocket engineer and rocket propulsion researcher, chemist, and Thelemite occultist, first visited the Agape Lodge of the O.T.O., he stated that as a scientist he found that Crowley's magick teachings seemed to correlate with the work of the quantum field folks. The illogical nature of quantum physics is a subject, that I gradually discovered myself while dealing with certain interdimensional beings as part of my occult training in the Illuminati groups I joined early in my life. Orders and fraternities, where through ceremonial magic and rituals, I was involved in a reality entrenched with quantum physics, where I eventually reached what some call illumination, or at least what most Illuminati groups such as the O.T.O. regard as a higher level of consciousness, that I later understood is still very far from real illumination. The second season of “Strange Angel” openly promotes occultism and the O.T.O., and it has been reported that it has received $10.6 million in tax credits from the libtard occult friendly state of California.

It’s all about synchronicity, as the great Swiss psychiatrist, and psychoanalysis Carl Gustav Jung (1875-1961) called it. At the base of Jung's work on synchronicity is the so-called quantum entanglement, that also attracted the attention of Nobel Prize winner Wolfgang Pauli and gave rise to a close correspondence between the two, known as The Pauli/Jung Letters 1932-58. They were later published by Jung's successor Carl Alfred Meier (1905-1995), of which my father Elio was the leading Italian collaborator at the end of the sixties and early seventies. To Jung, synchronicity was a meaningful coincidence in time, a psychic factor which is independent of space and time, but truly relevant. This revolutionary concept of synchronicity both challenges and complements the physicist's classical view of casualty that the Illuminati and the Freemasons never believed. It also forces us to a basic reconsideration of the meaning of chance, probability, coincidence, and the singular events in our lives.

When I traveled for 14 hours non-stop from Boise, the capital and most populous city of the U.S. state of Idaho to visit my friend David Griffin, the Emperor of one of the two main branches of the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn at the end of May 2019, I certainly felt strong Archontic alien forces around me.

First I traveled from Oregon down to the town of Rachel in the proximity of the legendary Area 51, and then I went down to Pahrump, 99 miles away from where David lives. So during this epic trip, I ended up passing through Rachel in the middle of the night in a scenario worthy of an X-files episode, before my arrival to Pahrump where we eventually slept a few hours before getting back in the car to reach Southern California and my new life in Palm Springs after fleeing Italy.

We followed David's advice and went through Death Valley, a desert valley located in Eastern California, in the northern Mojave Desert and one of the hottest places on earth, where Jack Parsons and his buddy L. Ron Hubbard, the founder of Scientology, had allegedly opened an interdimensional gate. Parsons and Hubbard drove out there to perform the Babalon Working, a ritual Parsons hoped would be his greatest achievement on earth. The site of the Babalon Working ritual is disputed. Parsons' biographers place it in the Mojave Desert, yet some occultist forums, desirous of synchronicities, suggest it happened on what is now Area 51 in Nevada, near Rachel.

In his mission, Parsons thought he was the Antichrist, and he would undertake actions consistent with whatever it was the Antichrist was supposed to do. So I was very curious about the scenarios encountered around me during this unusual trip, especially after entering Nevada from Oregon, and during my dinner I was curious when there was mention of the TV series "Strange Angel" that I had not yet seen.

Years earlier, when I was living in Rome during the early 90s, I had another case of "Hollywood synchronicity" with the film Stargate, always dealing with the theme of interdimensional passages in a new way, though still linked to a much more commercial and simplistic vision of things typical of Hollywood movies of the time. However, it can be said that from that moment onwards the Alchemical Door, also known as the Alchemy Gate or Magic Portal in Piazza Vittorio, built between 1678 and 1680, now found in the heart of the Esquilino district in Rome became my first "Stargate" investigation. This strange and unusual monument built by Rosicrucian Illuminati Massimiliano Palombara belongs to an original set of doors of Villa Palombara, destroyed over time. Once Rome became the capital of the new kingdom of Italy, it was completely removed, for the construction of the new Esquilino district. The only small part spared was the very doorway of the detached outbuilding, what today is known as the Magic Door of Piazza Vittorio, although probably Alchemic Door would have been a more appropriate name for it.

FIG. 13 – The Alchemical Door, also known as the Alchemy Gate or Magic Portal located on the Esquilino hill, near Piazza Vittorio, in Rome.

FIG. 14 – Book by the mysterious Jesuit agent Hermann Fichtuld, entitled Der Längst gewünschte und versprochene chymisch-philosophische Probier-Stein, (1753) in which Fictuld distinguishes between those he considered true adepts and those he considered only sophists or charlatans. A distinction that was instrumental for the Jesuits trying to control the Rosicrucian movement.

The most secretive and influential all-male secret society founded at the beginning of the 20th century by the Jesuits in Georgetown University, called the Society of Stewards, uses as their motto one of the Latin phrases inscribed on the Alchemical Door. Why? Well in this Villa, Palombara held meetings, attended by the most important Illuminati figures of his time, who shared his interests for alchemy and the Invisible Masters, people like the Swedish Queen Christina (1626-1689), who lived in Rome after having abdicated, the distinguished astronomer Domenico Cassini, the renowned Jesuit scholar Father Athanasius Kircher SJ who is said to be the guy who designed the Alchemical Door with Baroque sculptor Gian Lorenzo Bernini, and others linked to the mysterious Rosicrucians operating in Italy under Jesuit supervision. The Italian Rosicrucian milieu of Kircher and Queen Christina had a key role in the Jesuit infiltration of the Rosicrucian movement, that would lead to the eighteenth century alchemical Gold- und Rosencreutz Orden, The Order of the Golden and Rosy Cross announced by Rosicrucian Magus Sincerus Renatus (Salomon Richter) in 1710, that will fully manifest itself in the 1750s in Germany thanks to Freemason and alchemist Hermann Fichtuld a pseudonym used by a Jesuit agent and early Freemason, whose identity has not been determined, who was also the co-founder of the Sabbatean Frankist Order of the Asiatic Brethren. Some researchers believe that Hermann Fictuld's real identity was Baron Johann Friedrich von Meinstorff, based on a substitution cipher at the end of one of his books.

Queen Christina's practice of alchemy preoccupied her for most of her adult life. Her interest in alchemy also had some intriguing Rosicrucian connections that could be exploited by the Jesuits. The original Rosicrucians pamphlets of 1614 spread high expectations for a new age, and a universal reformation of the arts that circulated among radical Paracelsians in Northern Europe. The Rosicrucian elements that were to surface in Italy, however, appear to have grown out of a Jesuit background ready to exploit the growing alchemical interest, where the transmutational operations promised a future restoration of the Golden Age. [\[47\]](#)

The ancient wisdom of transmutation, the secrets of the cosmos and longevity- this is what they were searching for- but (also) a link with the invisible world. Throughout the Middle Ages and the Renaissance, many scholars claimed that they had received late-night visits from mysterious members of a secret society that had accomplished the transmutation of metals, the means of prolonging life, the knowledge to see and to hear what was occurring in distant places, and the ability to travel across the heavens in heavier-than-air vehicles (UFOs?). Some students of the history of alchemy have stated that crumbling, yellowed records of the alchemists remain in dusty libraries - more than 100,000 ancient volumes written in a code that has never been sufficiently deciphered.

Numerous occult groups and mystery schools within the Illuminati network like the Rosicrucians have been created around the belief that centuries ago a secret society achieved a high level of scientific knowledge that they carefully guarded against the rest of humanity. This is almost common knowledge in the Illuminati.

According to these occultists, certain men of genius in ancient Egypt and Persia were given access to the records of the advanced technologies of the antediluvian world of Atlantis. Many hundreds of years ago, these ancient masters learned to duplicate many of the feats of the Titans of the lost continent. There are persistent legends in nearly every culture that tell of an Elder Race that populated the Earth millions of years ago. The Old Ones, who may originally have been of extraterrestrial origin, was an immensely intelligent and scientifically advanced species, who eventually chose to structure their environment under the surface of the planet's soil and seas. The Old Ones are said to usually remain aloof from surface dwellers, but from time to time throughout history, they have been known to visit certain of Earth's more intelligent members in the guise of alchemists or mysterious scientists to offer constructive criticism and, in some cases, to give valuable advice in the material sciences. The Old Ones seem to be, after close analysis, another emanation of the Invisible Masters at the center of the Western Initiatic System.

In 1871, occultist and Rosicrucian Edward Bulwer-Lytton wrote, The Coming Race, a novel about a small group of German mystics who discovered a race of supermen living within the Earth's interior. The super race built a paradise based on The Vril Force, a form of energy so powerful that the older beings had outlawed its use as a potential weapon. The Vril was derived from the Black Sun, a large ball of Prima Materia that provided light and radiation to the inhabitants of inner Earth. ^[48] After all, the magicians of the Illuminati, as Aleister Crowley taught, expressed the importance of communion with such beings, and Crowley was also a Rosicrucian, and included their secret teachings in the 5th degree of the O.T.O., in the Sovereign Prince Rose-Croix section. Crowley, in one of the last statements he made in 1944 said: "My observation of the Universe convinces me that there are beings of intelligence and power of a far higher quality than anything we can conceive of as human; that they are not necessarily based on the cerebral and nervous structures that we know, and that the one chance for mankind to advance as a whole is for individuals to make contact with such beings."

Crowley's erstwhile secretary Kenneth Grant (who claims to have formed a link to his alien "angel" Aossic, and calls himself Aossic, Ossik, or A'ashik) has — together with his followers — developed a more or less comprehensible outline of a new cosmos, based occult alliance with the alien world. Interested readers are referred to Grant's books, many of which remain in print. We shall now concentrate on Grant's resulting theoretical alien expansion of Crowley's demonology. The latter never seems to have regarded angels or demons as very definite beings; for him, they ruled the material world and were used for things like obtaining money.

Under Grant's influence, they were elaborated into complex transcendental schemes of alternate dimensions outside the circles of space and time: "The terrestrial vehicle is an outcropping in three dimensions of the Angel: the Angel is the fountain of living waters which empowers the terrestrial vehicle."

"Who says we always have to obey," says the trailer for the first series of "Strange Angel," which was first aired in 2018 for the Beltane Gaelic May Day festival commonly held on the 1st of May, that coincides with the foundation date of the Order of the Illuminati.

Jack Parsons, certainly didn't obey. He believed that man could become a god and denied any god who taught different, just like the Illuminati operating today. The scientific Parsons, who worked with the Great Beast himself, Aleister Crowley, understood he could find wisdom in irrational and unknown directions outside of the circles of space and time adopting as his motto Crowley's motto for the high degrees of the O.T.O. "Deus est Homo."

FIG. 15 – Crowley's disciple Jack Parsons a key innovator in the field of rocket science during the 1940s.

Why SIRIUS?

Through contact with the Holy Guardian Angel (HGA), the gate of remembrance of our supernatural reality opens for the Illuminati, what Grant calls “the continuum often glyphed as the Goddess of which we are terrestrial facets.” Grant and his adherents have constructed a remarkably complicated collection of metaphors drawn from sources such as the Kabbalah, H.P. Lovecraft, Salvador Dalí, Michael P. Bertiaux, Austin Osman Spare, Lemuria, Atlantis, extraterrestrial visitors from Sirius, the promotion of at least one New Aeon, and a whole slew of revelations from their E.T. friends.

The late Grant placed great emphasis on the development of an IX° degree dream-control technique, borrowed from Thomas Lake Harris, introduced into the Crowleyan O.T.O. by Ida Nellydorf under the name of eroto-comatose lucidity. Before going to sleep the sexual energies were first raised by constant sexual stimulation without orgasm and then concentrated onto a talisman bearing a requisite symbol so that in the dream-state, the aroused libido would copulate with a dream-partner. The talisman would thus become magically charged and would make a particular wish — be it for gold or Gnosis — come true. But the greatest interest has been shown in the supposed alien entity called Lam, which Crowley “beheld” in 1918 that as we all know resembles the typical grey alien. In October 1979, Grant (under his alias of “Aossic Aiwass 718”), described Crowley's Amalantrah Working of 1918 as an “active reflex and extension of Lam” and released “An Official Statement of the O.T.O concerning the Cult of Lam, the Dikpala of the Way of Silence.”

Grant drew up a ritual meditation for making contact with Lam. The entity was imagined as an egg, and the practitioner would enter its eyes with the aid of the mantra Lam so that once united tantrically with Lam, one could “see” the world from beyond. Grant judged the sex-magic versions of this meditation to be extremely dangerous, and most emphatically rejected all homosexual variations of it (in some O.T.O. groups like the Caliphate, the XI° it is the homosexual degree). To gain the most objective results from all contacts with Lam, Grant stated that none of its practitioners should inform each other of their results for several years. [\[49\]](#)

After “tripping” with Grant, I would like to now discuss the alleged link between interdimensional entities, the Crowleyan O.T.O. , and NASA, before going deeper into the relationship between the Illuminati and the interdimensional alien beings linked to them. In 1997, the late syndicated talk show host Art Bell received a frantic call from a man claiming to have worked in Area 51. The entire radio station was zapped off the air as soon as the caller began to reveal detailed plans concerning extra-dimensional aliens, the government, and population control.

Here is a transcript of the disturbing talk:

“Hello, Art? Art? Hi...I don't have a whole lot of time..um...I was a former employee of Area 51...I was let go on a medical discharge about a week ago...and...and...(starts to cry)...I kinda been running across the country...um...um...man...I don't know WHERE to star...they'll triangulate on this position soon... (starting to break up and get more frantic--Art tells him to give us something quick>)...OK...um...um...What we're thinking of as Aliens ...they're EXTRA-DIMENSIONAL BEINGS...that an earlier precursor of the SPACE PROGRAM MADE CONTACT WITH...uh...they are NOT what they claim to be...uh...they have INFILTRATED a lot of aspects of the MILITARY ESTABLISHMENT particularly Area 51...uh...the DISASTERS that are coming...the GOVERNMENT knows about them...and there's a lot of SAFE AREAS in this WORLD THAT THEY COULD BEGIN MOVING THE POPULATION TO...N O W - Art...but they are NOT doing anything about it... THEY WANT THE MAJOR POPULATION CENTERS - WIPED OUT SO THAT THE FEW THAT ARE LEFT WILL BE MORE EASILY CONTROLLABLE...(breaking up more, starting to cry...)...I started getting...”

Silence - Art went off the air at that point. Well, the comment on the “precursor of the space program” is very interesting. As “Jack” Parsons could be almost certainly that “precursor of the space program,” as he is still regarded as being among the most important figures in the history of the U.S. space program.

Let's remember he was one of the principal founders of JPL currently owned by NASA, and he conducted a series of occult rituals for the Illuminati, that allegedly aided interdimensional demonic beings in their “alien invasion” of our reality in preparation for the End times. The method of contact was not his, but developed by certain Illuminati groups that have dealt for a long time with the alien overlords of UFOs, understating their nature and their secrets and of course making secret deals with them.

Everywhere, in the mineral, vegetable, and animal kingdom, we see innumerable gradations of existence, without any hard line of separation between them, or, if such lines are seen, it is because the “missing links” have been lost. Moreover, there are amphibious beings that are equally adapted to live in the air and in water, the earth and air, or in the earth and the water, and the same may be said about the Elementals, or Spirits of Nature, interdimensional beings living in a parallel reality. As there are innumerable gradations of visible forms, likewise, there are innumerable, gradations of invisible ones in the interdimensional realm, and there are amphibious existences in the realm of the Universal Soul which may exist in two different states,—which may appear sometimes in visible forms, while at other times they are invisible to us. There are beings on the Astral Plane that are only seen by those who have developed their inner senses to an extent sufficient to enable them to perceive such forms from another dimension; but certain conditions may exist which may cause such ethereal forms to become more dense and material, to become perceptible even to the physical senses of man, [\[50\]](#) leading in some cases to mind-blowing revelations and true “Contact”, but most of the time forcing us into unpleasant experiences where we are vampirized by these entities.

Chapter Three

Today's Jesuit World is beyond demonic

Manchurian candidates of the Past, Present, and Future

Hollywood is exploding with scandals, just like the Vatican, and at the same time the world is descending, towards chaos and the Abyss, a region that Aleister Crowley described as being guarded by the infamous demon Choronzon. People who join the secret societies of the Illuminati Network and Thelema that are dedicated to sexual and black magic are slowly being outed worldwide as social delinquents and perverts, just as the Catholic priests that are exposed almost daily for their abuse of children. This is an insane world we are living in, in which the use of the word “abyss” has grown in the occult community, with many different meanings attached to it. It has been used to represent everything from Christian hell to the lack of meaning in life for those who follow the forces of darkness.

The day after the New Zealand massacre that took place in March 2019, I remember writing in the new edition of Confessions of an Illuminati Volume I, originally published in the English language in 2016:

Very soon, a tragic Apocalyptic nuclear scenario could be set into motion by these pseudo “religious” fanatics manipulated by the Nazi Illuminati of the New World Order using Christians or Muslims alike.

Adding later, on the same page: “In 2016, as I demonstrated through analysis of Breivik’s ideology, they are planting the future seeds of an upcoming “Christian” terrorist opposition. It is a form of terrorism that will rise once the situation disintegrates as the result of the current Islamist invasion of Europe planned by the Illuminati and following a growing number of terrorist attacks made by various Islamic mercenaries of the New World Order...”

Unfortunately, my forecast turned out to be true in New Zealand, and my analysis of the Ander Breivik legacy should be taken more seriously by Intelligence and Security experts who are not colluding with the Deep State and the NWO:

“In the coming years, what lies ahead for us is a period of great instability that can only be described as the third and final World War, which would eventually unveil the battle of battles: Armageddon, which would eventually be fought at Megiddo. Could this be the cycle of events Breivik claims will take place in 2020?”

They are planting the future seeds of an upcoming Christian terrorist opposition that can be controlled just like the Islamic one. The manifesto that the New Zealand shooter published was shorter and “more sloppy” than the one written by the Norwegian right-wing Freemason extremist who killed 77 people in 2011, but expressed similar sentiments. Swedish terror expert Magnus Ranstorp of the Swedish National Defense College confirmed the attack used “to some extent the same themes as (Anders Behring) Breivik,” who posted his 1,500-page manifesto online before carrying out his deadly attacks. Ranstorp also told Swedish radio that the New Zealand shooter who killed at least 49 people in two mosques in Christchurch, claimed to “have been in contact with Breivik’s sympathizers.”

On July 22, 2011, Breivik killed eight people with a car bomb in Oslo and then opened fire at an island summer camp run by the left-wing Labor Party’s youth wing, killing 69. He is currently serving a 21-year prison sentence in Norway, a socialist-infested country with no death penalty, unfortunately.

Breivik’s lawyer, Oeystein Storrvik, once told Norway’s VG newspaper that his client had “very limited contacts with the surrounding world so it seems very unlikely that he has had contact.” The Norwegian Prime Minister Erna Solberg immediately told Norwegian broadcaster NRK that the NZ shooter’s manifesto “unfortunately gives associations to a situation in Norway” that she described as “one of the worst in our time.”

On Twitter, Ranstorp noted that the New Zealand shooter claimed he would leave prison after 27 years and likened himself to the late South African President Nelson Mandela, saying he would get the Nobel Peace Prize. “Yet another narcissistic right-wing extremist terrorist who has a distorted fantasy world,” Ranstorp wrote, but there seems to be more than narcissism in his gesture. Analytic practices and processes within the intelligence community that have undergone a far more fundamental reform than the public or scholarly communities recognize, and not always for the better.

They think this “Analytic Transformation” is a reason for optimism about the future, while the reality of the tragedy in New Zealand shows it’s a clear failure. This was a terrorist attack that was two years in the making and went undetected. How is this possible? And why are there so many discrepancies in the now forbidden video streamed live by the terrorist? I would now like to outline a few oddities that I have noticed in connection to the New Zealand terror attack and the presence in the area 24 hours earlier, of none other than John Podesta, a Jesuit agent and a member of the Academy of the Illuminati.

Only seven days earlier, Hillary Clinton’s former presidential campaign manager was in New Zealand where he appeared in a T.V. interview conducted by Newshub, claiming to be the victim of “The world’s most notorious political hack.” At the end of the interview, John Podesta was said to remain in New Zealand to preside over what was described as “A Global Progressives Event.” The event was called “The Path to Progress.” [\[51\]](#)

However, during the same interview, John Podesta also said that New Zealand is a “big juicy target.” Can this be a coincidence or is there macabre synchronicity connected with this tragic event? Only days after Podesta called New Zealand a “big juicy target” we have the Christchurch shooting. During the same interview, he also said that hacked information could be weaponized as fake news, and stated that, “Vladimir Putin must be sitting in the Kremlin saying this is the best return on investment I ever got – I’ve got a pliant President of the United States.”

Clinton’s manipulative campaign manager, John Podesta, working with the Vatican Illuminati and Russia, that has been outlined with evidence in my previous book, Confessions of an Illuminati Vol.6.66, said in the same interview that aired on the 7th of March 2019, that we should all be “very worried” by Russia and China.

Strangely enough, they are two countries that John, and his brother and business partner, love very much. Tony Podesta even made $500K lobbying for a Chinese firm convicted of illegal sales to Iran, and Podesta’s business dealings in gas, aluminum, uranium, and his banking in Russia, have often been pointed out.

John Podesta, who left for Australia the day before the “terrorist attack” occurred, praised the “superstar” Prime Minister Jacinda Ardern saying to the press that: “She’s made an impression on the world. She’s somebody that people are paying attention to.” Wow! You have our attention, as the cowardly acts of the New Zealand Mosque Massacre demonstrated to the world the biggest failure in the intelligence and security apparatus of that country, or a deliberate attempt to start a clash of civilizations.

Something is fishy about Podesta’s presence in New Zealand, remember he is an agent of the Illuminati and an asset of Jesuit and Vatican intelligence who are working with Vladimir Putin and the powerful secret organization called International Organization for the Destinies of the World that has been plotting in favor of a Russian-centered New World Order from Moscow headquarters and are said to be in contact with aliens capable of predicting future events. This means that they could theoretically know exactly what is happening and can trigger the high-tech Manchurian candidates at their disposal at any time.

In March 2016, DARPA, that some call the U.S. military’s “mad scientist,” announced the unveiling of the Targeted Neuroplasticity Training (TNT) program. In October 2017, Dr. Tristan McClure-Begley, from the University of Colorado, Boulder, joined DARPA as a Program Manager for this important project. Officially, his scientific pursuits at the agency involve novel chemical biology approaches to treating disease and injury and developing methods to accelerate and protect learning and executive functions.

The TNT program aims to explore various safe neurostimulation methods for activating synaptic plasticity, which is the brain’s ability to alter the connecting points between neurons which is a requirement for learning. DARPA hopes that building that ability by subjecting the nervous system to a work out regimen will enable the brain to learn faster, but there is a sinister side to this new technology.

One of the aims of using “Targeted Neuroplasticity Training” for DARPA, is to effectively work out the knowledge receptors of the brain thus allowing information to be uploaded to the brain many times quicker than traditional methods. Much like in the film, The Matrix, where Keanu Reeves’ character instantly uploads martial art and weapons skills, DARPA envisions using neurostimulation methods to activate something called “synaptic plasticity,” which is, “the brain’s ability to alter the connecting points between neurons — a requirement for learning.” Of course, they plan to use this for military purposes to “further enhance the most effective existing training methods” for military personnel, but like many scientific breakthroughs, there are wonderful, as well as dark and sinister applications that may be used for nefarious purposes once the genie is out of the bottle, like for example, hacking and terrorism-related skills, or preparing and triggering your next Walmart shooter.

In the meantime, some researchers are talking about the possibility of implementing new human rights in this new sector that would protect people from having their thoughts and other brain information stolen, abused, or hacked. The move is an initial response to the rapid advances being made by technologies that read or alter brain activity where many enormous benefits to people’s lives in the coming years are expected to be made but also trigger some very dangerous situations that could harm many innocent people. On the bright side, much of this technology is developed for civilian use. This includes the use in hospitals to diagnose or treat medical conditions, or tools for the entertainment business such as brainwave monitoring devices that allow people to play video games with their minds, or brain stimulators that claim to boost mental performance. However, we also have a dark side working on how to use this new technology for their advantage. Facebook, for example, has 60 people working on how to read your mind.

So picture this, you’re minding your own business, playing a game, or scrolling through social media, and all the while they’re gathering your most private information directly from your brain signals to influence your next political choice. The idea of securing our thoughts is a real concern with the introduction of brain-computer interfaces like those being experimented by Elon Musk.

In July 2019, Elon Musk made a highly anticipated announcement about his secretive brain-computer interface company, Neuralink. Which is in essence, a “sewing machine for the brain” designed to implant electrodes through small holes in the skull. Musk is preparing the perfect cage for our future virtual world and it’s only the start of this nightmare that will eventually split mankind into believers and nonbelievers in the A.I. It’s pretty scary, but these and other advances in neurotechnology raise fresh threats to privacy and personal freedom, according to Marcello Ienca, who studied neuroethics at the University of Basel, and Roberto Andorno, a human rights lawyer at the University of Zurich.

Let’s not forget the security threat to our lives once the hackers can activate their potential assassins thanks to the electronic signals that we produce biologically that can be used to steal or manipulate data and be used against us. Writing in the journal, Life Sciences, Society, and Policy in 2017, the pair put forward four new human rights that are intended to preserve the brain as the last refuge for human privacy but no one has spoken specifically about the security threat of this whole new scientific reality. Having reviewed the rights in place today, the pair concluded that more must be done to protect people. What about illegal use that in the future could be used by governments, terrorists, or agents of the Deep State? We have already been subject to 60 years of subliminal research and experiments that have violated our will and manipulated our reality, but this will be the next stage of manipulation. Like computers, human brains may be vulnerable to hackers, and technology is already allowing scientists to read people’s thoughts and even plant new ones in the brain without a brain-computer interface. At the 2017 Enigma Security Conference connected to the National Security Agency, Tamara Bonaci a researcher and lecturer from the University of Washington finally revealed the existence of technology that could be used to essentially “hack” into people’s brains.

Bonaci said she created her approach to this technology with a game called Flappy Whale. While people played the game, the technology was able to covertly extract neural responses to subliminal imagery in the game, like logos, restaurants, cars, etc. Perhaps hacking into people’s underlying feelings and thoughts about seeing a simple fast food restaurant doesn’t seem like it could cause much harm, but this subliminal technology that has been in the works for years within the Military-Industrial Complex has been perfected and has the potential to gather much more intimate information about a person, like their religion, fears, prejudices, health, etc. that can be used to recruit the perfect Manchurian candidates before activating them in no time with a bit of subliminal manipulation. So could this technology be already in use by the dark side of the Illuminati and their minions? The answer is, unfortunately, yes, and that’s why a serious discussion about this topic should be made that could essentially affect all of our lives.

A Course in Miracles (also referred to as ACIM or the Course) is a book published in 1975 by the late Helen Schucman and co-written by Professor William Thetford one of the great manipulators of the infamous MK-Ultra project.

From 1971 to 1978 Thetford, along with David Saunders, headed within the CIA mind control Project MKULTRA, the important Subproject 130 denominated "Personality Theory." From 1965 through 1972 Thetford directly assisted Schucman with the transcription of the first three sections of the work, which was a great bulk of the material. In 1972, one year into Thetford's involvement with the CIA, Thetford, and Schucman was introduced by a mutual friend, Father Groeshel, to Dr. Kenneth Wapnick, who they invited to assist with the editing that was required to render the rough draft of the ACIM manuscript into a publishable format. Subjects were allegedly deleted from the original version, but somehow appeared on the internet in the late 1990s, and there were remarks concerning "the CIA."

Interestingly enough, the late Father Benedict Groeschel, who was a Catholic priest who studied under William Thetford and knew Schucman both as a teacher and friend, described Thetford as "a mysterious character", and "probably the most sinister person I ever met," strongly criticizing ACIM and related organizations. Father Benedict Groeschel, who was an American Franciscan friar, found some elements of ACIM to be "severe and potentially dangerous distortions of Christian theology" adding it was, "a good example of a false revelation." According to Dr. Helen Schucman and the Foundation for Inner Peace (FIP), she and Dr. William Thetford "scribed" the book from a divine source through a form of channeling, which Schucman referred to as "inner dictation." However, due to Schucman's divided feelings about the work of the transcription that was demonic, she would at times require a great deal of reassurance from Thetford to complete the channeling process that eventually resulted in the first typewritten copy of ACIM, (which later became known as the Urtext.)

According to Thetford, Schucman was sitting at home on the night of October 21, 1965, when she heard an internal "voice" say to her, "This is a course in miracles. Please take notes." When she first heard this internal voice, she thought she recognized it as the same voice of the character that in her recent dream sequences had represented the person of Jesus to her. Schucman then wrote down about a page of notes before she realized that this request was going to be of much greater significance, and would require a far greater commitment of her time that has ever been asked of her before. In a panic, she phoned Thetford to ask for his advice. Thetford encouraged Schucman to do what the voice asked, and to take the notes. He offered to meet with her the next morning before work, to review her notes, to discuss them further with her, and then determine what she should do with this "voice."

During the process, that interestingly enough kicked off in the year zero of the Satanic take-over in 1966, Schucman claimed to have the mental equivalent of a tape recorder in her thoughts, which she described as being able to turn on and off at her convenience so that she might be able to transcribe into shorthand notes what she was internally hearing. This voice identified itself as none other than the historical Jesus, but we always should keep in mind Matthew 24-5: "For many will come in My name, saying, 'I am the Christ,' and will mislead many." The book in question contains a curriculum aiming to assist its readers in achieving a supposed spiritual transformation. More than two million copies of the book have been sold worldwide in 19 languages, with thousands of study groups devoted to it all over the planet.

It has been called "The New Age Bible" but Christians have rightly referred to it as "a Satanic seduction" as it brings us right to the heart of New Age evil promoted by the Jesuits and the New World Order agents like Oprah Winfrey and now, Marianne Williamson. Throughout the 1980s annual sales of the book steadily increased each year, however, the biggest growth in sales occurred after 1992, when MKUltra agent Marianne Williamson, who is now seeking the Democratic nomination for the 2020 United States presidential election, appeared on the scene and began discussing the book on The Oprah Winfrey Show.

The results in sales were great, with more than two million volumes sold, but how did an absolute nobody like Williamson suddenly become the main promoter of a book published by others in the 1970s? Marianne Williamson dropped out of college in her junior year in 1973 and moved to New York City, where she originally intended to pursue a career as a cabaret singer (something Democrat clowns must appreciate), but in 1979, after delving into A Course in Miracles, she was "enlightened" and after a brief time in Houston where she ran a typical New Age combination of metaphysical bookstore/ coffee shop, she moved to Los Angeles in 1983.

In the meantime, after the 1977 Freedom of Information Act requests uncovered a cache of 20,000 documents relating to the project MKUltra, Professor Thetford resigned from his position at both Columbia University and at Columbia Presbyterian hospital and moved to Tiburon, California in 1980. Thetford took on two part-time professional positions, one as a psychology consultant at Travis Air Force Base probably working on a follow-up to his MKUltra Subproject 130 and the other as one of the directors of the ACIM related Center for Attitudinal Healing where he met his new disciple Marianne Williamson, although some say they first met in 1985, at the “Ten Year Celebration” of the publication of A Course in Miracles that was held in Honolulu.

Bill Thetford, who remained active in study groups using the published course, spoke at that celebration. The 2020 presidential campaign of Marianne Williamson, who is described as a New Age author, was announced on January 28, 2019, after the initial formation of an exploratory committee in November 2018, but it was during the second Democratic presidential debate that she finally unleashed her full Demoncrat potential. “This is part of the dark underbelly of American society,” she said during a round of applause that was followed by this truly disturbing statement: “The racism, the bigotry and the entire conversation that we’re having here tonight, if you think any of this wonkiness is going to deal with this dark psychic force of the collectivized hatred that this President is bringing up in this country, then I’m afraid that the Democrats are going to see some very dark days.”

Immediately afterward, the phrase “dark psychic force” that has never been used in a political environment, generated some increased search interest on Google Trends, and now Marianne Williamson the new MKUltra puppet is ready to conquer the Democratic Party in the upcoming years. However, regarding Trump having some “dark psychic force” maybe Marianne Williamson should have said that about her friend “John of God” Oprah Winfrey’s favorite faith healer who kept teenagers as sex slaves and sold their babies for up to £40,000 before shipping them from Brazil to Europe. No wonder Williamson is connected to John Bryan Crusius 63, the father of El Paso, Texas shooter Patrick Crusius who, published a memoir in 2014 about his battle with drug and alcohol abuse entitled, Life Enthusiasm: A Path to Purpose Beyond Recovery, that details not only how Crusius’ relationship with Patrick’s mother fell apart but also talks about his alleged visions of Jesus Christ and his dead grandmother. A Path to Purpose Beyond Recovery details how a life force energy propelled John Bryan Crusius, who described himself as a desperate addict down a path to freedom and meaning.

Bryan, as he prefers to be called, said he achieved this through the application of Universal Energy, something that helped him transcend a four-decade entrenchment in addictive behavior in just eighteen months. Bryan Crusius worked in the restaurant management business until 2001 when he answered an inner calling to help others. He attended Amberton University from 2004 to 2006, where he obtained a Masters degree in Professional Counseling, according to his LinkedIn profile. After years of individual and group counseling, that inner calling to broaden his approach eventually led him to contact the organization of the infamous John of God.

Renowned spiritual teacher, Wayne Dyer, sang John of God’s praises, and Bryan’s idol Oprah Winfrey interviewed him in 2012 saying she felt humbled and filled with a sense of peace in front of a person who has now been exposed as one of the biggest sexual predators of all time. Bryan felt he found the right teachers when he was visited by a group of healers working for John of God. In this video, Bryan Crusius talks in detail about renting his space to the organization of the famous faith healer John of God and becoming interested in crystal balls as a result. John of God has been charged with the largest sexual abuse scandal in the history of Brazil. The late activist, Sabrina Bittencourt, whose investigations lead to John of God’s arrest and was probably killed for exposing him, claimed before she died that the Brazilian “healer” operated a sick “farming” operation which exported babies on the black market.

Bryan began his New Age career by integrating the use of crystals learned by John of God’s organization, as he admits openly on camera, and what he describes in his writings as the Emotional Freedom Technique (EFT) method linked with traditional cognitive-behavioral interventions. His new commitment to help those in need as a being of light seems to clash with his past work in the mental health business as Dual Diagnosis Program Manager at Timberlawn Mental Health Systems and Facility Director of DAPA Psychiatric Programs in Dallas, Texas.

Timberlawn Psychiatric Hospital has been described as a terrible place and was closed last year for repeated safety violations. Some reports say that during Bryan’s time at this institute, many patients came forward with terrible stories of abuse. Bryan’s son, Patrick, is now in jail for killing 20 innocent people and injuring 40. This proves once again a link to mental health professionals, something I have experienced personally as my late father was one of them. However, in America, this is instrumental to establish more gun control and soon, house-to-house searches to confiscate guns and enslave us like cattle for the New World Order.

The fact is the U.S. Democratic Party and their Jesuit controllers could never obtain their goals or even win the next presidential election with their present set of clowns. That's why they like to activate from time to time their Manchurian candidate's sleeping cells to shock the nation and force the idea on us that weapons are bad. They know that this is the only way they can eventually convince people to join their gun control crusade on behalf of the U.N. and defeat President Donald J. Trump that we hope will keep things together at least until 2024 avoiding what seems to be an imminent civil war.

In the U.S. we are living in an increasingly bipolar reality where on one side you have the lies and hypocrisy of the left, courtesy of the Democrats aka the Democrats, while on the other side we have a growing group of concerned citizens that still believe in the American Dream and hope Trump will save the day. Franklin Graham, the evangelist, whose father was the late Billy Graham, was asked recently by apologist Eric Metaxas what he thought was going on in the U.S. during a YouTube interview. Posing his question, Metaxas gave a hint at his personal views on the situation. "I mean it is a very bizarre situation, to be living in a country where some people seem to exist to undermine the president of the United States," Metaxas said.

Responding in agreement, Graham said there was "almost a demonic power" at work against Trump. "It is a spiritual battle," Graham said and I agree it is indeed a spiritual battle that we as Christians need to win, but the enemy is always ready to use diabolical methods like mind control and manipulation to trigger chaos and destruction when required.

The term Manchurian Candidate derives from a 1959 novel by Richard Condon entitled, The Manchurian Candidate. Condon portrays a platoon of American soldiers during the Korean War who are sent to Manchuria (Northeast China), where they are captured, brainwashed, and given alter-personalities, programmed to assassinate key individuals, and overthrow the U.S. government. As a result, the term Manchurian Candidate now signifies a person who has had their personality split into "alters" who commit murder or other acts without conscious knowledge of what they have done. An old declassified CIA document [CIA MORI ID 190691, p. 1.] entitled, "Hypnotic Experimentation and Research," dated February 1954, describes a simulation of relevance to the creation of unsuspecting assassins like the ones we have seen in the last 24 hours. Keep in mind, these techniques were invented and experimented as reported by the document in question, 65 years ago, and later more sophisticated technological means of mind control were developed in the infamous Project MKUltra. This is the document in question:

Miss [deleted] was instructed (having previously expressed a fear of firearms in any fashion) that she would use every method at her disposal to awaken Miss [deleted] (now in a deep hypnotic sleep) and failing this, she would pick up a pistol nearby and fire it at Miss [deleted]. She was instructed that her rage would be so great that she would not hesitate to "kill"[deleted] for failing to awaken. Miss [deleted] carried out these suggestions to the letter including firing the (unloaded) gun at [deleted] and then proceeding to fall into a deep sleep. Both were awakened and expressed complete amnesia for the entire sequence. Miss [deleted] was again handed the gun, which she refused (in an awakened state) to pick up or accept from the operator. She expressed absolute denial that the foregoing sequence had happened." BB 36, 37.

In recent years, the CIA has gradually declassified a large number of documents on extensive mind control programs carried out since the early 1950s, even if many of them were destroyed to cover-up a large number of illegal activities. However, the documents I have been able to obtain proves that the government developed a Manchurian Candidate program which was quite real and not just the work of fiction by some novelist. Through the Freedom of Information Act, you can order these documents yourself for $30. You can find extensive quotes on the creation of Manchurian Candidates from the most revealing of these documents. In the second half of the 20th century, mind control projects resulted in extensive political abuse by the psychiatric field in North America and various other NATO countries. Many thousands of prisoners and mental patients were subjected to unethical mind control experiments by leading psychiatrists and medical schools all over the world with the direct supervision of either the United States or the Soviet Union(USSR).

Organized academic psychiatry has never acknowledged this history that eventually brought my late father, a well-known Italian psychiatrist Elio Zagami, to reject psychiatry altogether. For decades, psychiatrists and psychologists have claimed a monopoly over the field of mental health. Governments and private health insurance companies have provided billions of dollars every year to treat "mental illness," only to face industry demands for even more money and funds to improve the supposed, ever-worsening state of mental health that has been crafted in secret by the demonic elite, who spread drugs and false values to destroy society and enrich the big pharmaceutical companies.

No other industry can afford to fail consistently and still expect to receive more funding, but that's not the case for psychiatry or pharmaceutical companies, because there is a dark side to mental health connected to the Military-Industrial Complex and the social engineering of the masses, something known only by insiders and discussed rarely in the outside world.

One of the most infamous practitioners of such evil manipulative practices was the Scottish-American psychiatrist, Ewen Cameron, another pedophile from the elite who carried out terrible experiments on unwitting patients in the 1950s and 60s, that became well-known only decades later when his involvement in the Project MKULTRA of the United States Central Intelligence Agency was exposed.

Cameron was President of the Canadian, U.S., and World Psychiatric Associations, the American Psychopathological Association, and the Society of Biological Psychiatry. There was no one in his profession more highly decorated than Dr. Cameron, but he was also funded by the CIA to establish new methods and techniques for mind control and torture. He created what is known as "psychic driving" still in use for the torture of prisoners around the world, and his work led to the publication of the controversial KUBARK Counterintelligence Interrogation manual. A 2012 lawsuit filed by a veterans' group against the CIA and the DOD, refers to Cameron's methods. Cameron erased existing memories and reprogrammed the psyche creating the perfect model for a Manchurian candidate.

Let's now discuss how a certain chain of events can trigger your London Bridge "terrorist" or your Walmart shooter. First of all, such an operation is set in motion through a clandestine cell system of sleeper agents, or Manchurian candidates ready to move when required by their handlers. In the case of a cell member who is apprehended and interrogated, he will usually not know the identities of the higher-ranking individuals in the organization who programmed him, but in the case of a well-programmed Manchurian candidate who is apprehended, he may not even be able to realize he has been used, believing that his twisted ideology led him to such evil decisions. Undercover operations and unconventional warfare units used for such operations are usually led by ex-Special Forces operating in a clandestine cell system, and interestingly enough, such a system was originally devised by none other than the Order of the Illuminati established in 1776 by Adam Weishaupt. The Illuminati was never contemplating merely changing Bavaria, their plan was far more idealistic. They wanted to renovate the entire world with their subversive methods.

The Secret connection between the Jesuits and Sabbatean Frankists

Weishaupt initially battled the Jesuits and struggled for the direction of the university, but his confrontation ended when he joined the Eclectic Masonic Lodge Theodore of Good Counsel in Munich in 1777, and towards the end of 1778, he came up with the idea of merging the Illuminati and the Masons of the Strict Observance already infiltrated by the Jesuits. At that point, a Jesuit known as Abbe' Marotti, offered his services and participated in the creation of the Masonic degrees of the original Illuminati Order, sanctioning in the process, a new diabolical alliance. Together they created a single family of men to serve and protect the liberty and natural rights of man as they understood in that era. But this was obtained with evil methods, following the usual Jesuit pursuit for power and control at all costs. The Jesuits eventually turned against Weishaupt when he tried to recruit several former Jesuits into his order without the approval of the Black Pope. The Illuminati along with Freemasonry and other secret societies were eventually outlawed by the Bavarian ruler Charles Theodore in the 1790s with the encouragement of the Catholic Church, who was also at war with the Jesuits, and Weishaupt's Illuminati was officially dismantled, but they didn't disappear.

The following curious piece of information on them given at the time by Le Grand Dictionnaire Universel du XIX Siecle, written by Pierre Larousse in the article on "Illuminisme" confirms this thesis:

The Illuminati did not disappear after the last century. They are still to be found in Germany, England, and Russia where they have formed a queer sect in which castration is one of the features of initiation. The taste for the supernatural, the passion of the marvelous constantly urges these mentally unbalanced men in whom the imagination is fanaticized, to throw themselves into the fantastic visions which constitute Illuminism.

Wow! It seems Larousse didn't like them, but his opinion, aside from the improbable castration, might have some basis in reality. There is no doubt that at the time a "Faustian element" took over the remains of Weishaupt's Illuminati Order that will manifest in successive secret societies of the Illuminati network.

This happened thanks to people like the legendary Jesuit agent Giuseppe Balsamo, known as Count Alessandro di Cagliostro (1743-1795), and his teacher Rabbi Hayyim Samuel Jacob Falk (1708-1782), who was linked to the Sabbateans. Gradually, the Illuminati and the Jesuits became united with blasphemous forms of Jewish heresy in its inevitable descent into the abyss of hell that we have been witnessing since the birth of Illuminism. When I write of a "Faustian element" I am talking, of course, about what was described so well by Illuminati and Freemason Johann Wolfgang von Goethe (1749-1832) in his masterpiece Faust.

Interestingly enough, Goethe wrote after meeting with Cagliostro's mother and sister in Palermo, that he thought Giuseppe Balsamo was of Jewish origin, and some sources have pointed out that the name "Balsamo" may derive from the Hebrew Baal Shem that in the Hebrew language means "Master of the Name", referring to the occupation of certain kabbalistic rabbis specializing in using the names of God for practical kabbalah healing, miracles, exorcism, and blessings, and Falk was not the only Kabbalist of this type in London at that time.

He had a homonym, Samuel the Baal Shem, who outlived him by thirteen years and another mystic, Moses ben Nathan, designated the Baal Shem of Fürth also died in London in 1775, so confusion might arise. Giuseppe Balsamo, the Count of Cagliostro, was one of the most influential members of Adam Weishaupt's Illuminati and had publicly ascertained he was the disciple of Rabbi Haïm Falk, often referred too as Dr. Falk, who was known around the world as the Baal Shem of London, who after escaping authorities in Westphalia, Germany, who wanted to send him to the stake for sorcery, settled in England.

Dr. Falk's rituals and manuscripts became the basis of the Egyptian Rite of Freemasonry, which Count Cagliostro was attempted to spread all over Europe, and would try to introduce into the London's Swedenborg Society in 1786 when he was banished from France by order of Louis XVI. In a letter addressed to Baron Grimm and written by none other than Catherine the Great Empress of Russia, on July 9, 1781, after Cagliostro's arrival in Russia in 1780, we find not only a warning regarding Cagliostro and Swedenborg's practices with spirits connected to Dr. Falk, but that they were attracting several Masonic lodges in Russia, but we also discover that Dr. Falk was an intimate friend of the powerful Duc de Richelieu:

M. Cagliostro...has arrived at a moment very favorable for him, a moment when several lodges of Free-Masons, infatuated with the principles of Swedenborg, want desperately to see spirits; they have therefore run to Cagliostro, whom they say owns of all the secrets of Dr. Falk, an intimate friend of the Duc de Richelieu.

The Duc de Richelieu was another important Jesuit agent from what was regarded at the time as one of the most influential Catholic families in France, that included the infamous Cardinal Richelieu, the main antagonist in the 2011 film, The Three Musketeers, based on the novel written in 1844 by French author and Freemason Alexandre Dumas.

Another powerful friend of Dr. Falk was the Duc d'Orléans, Grandmaster of the Grand Orient de France, the governing body of French freemasonry, who received a magical ring from him. Many stories exist regarding Falk's extraordinary powers and influence. Falk was said to be able to keep candles burning and to transport objects from one place to another using telekinesis. Dr. Falk was also a neighbor of Emanuel Swedenborg in London, and there is some evidence that he had a significant influence on him, as well as Count Cagliostro, who was considered by Catherine the Great as an emissary of Dr. Falk.

Interestingly enough, both Count Cagliostro and Swedenborg were Jesuits agents, and the fiercely anti-Sabbatian rabbi, Yaakov Emden is known as Ya'avetz, accused Dr. Falk of being a Sabbatean, meaning a supporter of the heretic Jewish rabbi Sabbatai Zevi (1626-1676), who had been active throughout the Ottoman Empire, and in secret contact with the Society of Jesus and the Vatican to undermine it. Dr. Falk had many links to the Sabbateans starting from Tobias Boas, whose residence was known as the "Temple of Solomon," and was the main patron of Dr. Falk. Boas was considered a discrete sympathizer of Sabbatianism, but Rabbi Emden asserted that Dr. Falk was a Sabbatean, on the assumption he based on Falk's close friendship with another man, by the name of Moshe David of Podhajce, also a known Sabbatean, who had been expelled from several communities.

Now, this is a very important link because Sabbatai Zevi, who claimed to be the long-awaited Jewish Messiah, was the founder of the highly influential Sabbatean movement/Jewish heresy that subsequently gave birth to the Dönme crypto-Jews, once Sabbatai Zevi was forced by Sultan Mehmed IV in 1666 to convert publicly to Islam to avoid being executed. Incredibly enough, a vast number of Jews in the Jewish diaspora accepted his claims, even after he became a Jewish apostate. This happened mostly because his brand of Judaism was, in reality, another form of Satanism, fueled with progressive heresies reminiscent of today's New Age that broke with the traditional Jewish faith attracting many gullible minds. The basic philosophy of Sabbatai's doctrine of redemption through sin was based on the teachings of Isaac Luria from a century earlier.

According to the late Rabbi Marvin Antelman, they believed sin is holy and should be practiced for its own sake. The Messiah will come when people either become righteous or corrupt and the Sabbateans, of course, opted for debauchery: "Since we cannot all be saints, let us all be sinners." It almost sounds like something Aleister Crowley could have said. For this reason after Zevi's conversion, a huge number of his Jewish followers falsely converted to Islam and became the infamous Dönme. We don't know how many exactly, but we are talking about hundreds of thousands all over Europe.

The Dönme became a group of Sabbatean crypto-Jews very active in the Ottoman Empire, that will eventually bring an end to this once glorious empire. For this purpose, they used Freemason Mustafa Kemal Atatürk, the chief revolutionary and former member of the Committee for Union and Progress (CUP), a leading Dönme who became the founder of the Republic of Turkey. Despite their conversion to Islam, the Sabbatean crypto-Jews remained close to their deviant form of Judaism and continued to practice Jewish rituals covertly, but their unorthodox ways eventually led to various schisms. One of their main sources of controversy was their firm belief in reincarnation mixed with their deranged messianic views, which made a few of their leaders claim they were the reincarnations of Sabbatai Zevi.

One of them in particular, Berechiah Russo (1695–1740), inherited a soul known in Turkish as Otman Baba, who was for some the most credible reincarnation of Zevi's soul. These allegations gained a following and gave rise to the Karakashi/Konioso who were active in Poland in the first part of the 18th century and eventually found and taught Jacob Frank (1726–1791), who later claimed to have inherited Russo's soul in a story that reminds us a bit of those Tibetan lamas. At this point, with Jacob Frank claiming to be the reincarnation of the self-proclaimed Messiah Sabbatai Zevi, we have the birth of Frankism, that became the more successful emanation of the Sabbatean Jewish religious movement originating in the 18th and 19th centuries, centered on the leadership of the new Jewish Messiah, Jacob Frank.

The mystical cult of the Sabbateans is believed to have included both asceticism and sensuality, but some did penance for their sins and subjected themselves to self-inflicted pain in the style reminiscent of certain Catholic practices, while others disregarded the strict rules of modesty required by Judaism and at times were accused of being licentious, but the Frankists were much more extreme in their beliefs and practices. Unique to the Frankists was a doctrine of salvation through sexual ecstasy that had not characterized the previous emanations of the Sabbatean heresy. Indeed, the Frankists anticipated “Sexual magick” that emerged a century or more later under the influence of Paschal Beverly Randolph, Max Theon, and, ultimately, Aleister Crowley.

At its height, it claimed 500,000 followers. Allen H. Greenfield wrote in an essay published by the O.T.O. in 1998, that the Frankists, also known as, “The Zoharists, may have influenced these later exponents of sexual spirituality.” Greenfield also writes that “The Frankists enjoyed some protection in Roman Catholic circles, ever hopeful of making conversions among the Jews.” [52]

Jacob Frank led twenty-six thousand Jews to the biggest conversion to Catholicism in Polish history, which included himself. So, from this heretical messianic revolution within the Jewish Faith, we have the birth of the infamous Sabbatean-Frankists.

FIG. 19 – Sabbatai Zevi and Jacob Frank.

Rabbi Marvin Antelman (193?-2014) deserves credit for exposing the origin of part of the modern Illuminati emanating from the Sabbatean-Frankists heresy in his two-volume book, To Eliminate the Opiate, an exposé of the Secret Societies who control the world and have scapegoated the Jewish people in the process, but it is another Jewish authority he often refers to, Gershom Scholem (1897-1982), a German-born Israeli philosopher and historian, that describes them in the most detailed way, stating that the Sabbatean-Frankists are “demonically possessed.” For many contemporary researchers who still ignore the links between the Jesuits and the Sabbatean-Frankists, the latter is still considered the main leading Satanic force behind Communism, Nazism, Labour Zionism, and the whole New World Order.

Of course, they have been influential and have played a big part in the upcoming Kingdom of the Antichrist, but researchers like David Icke should understand that Sabbatean-Frankists did not act alone to reach their evil goals as he claims erroneously in his recently published book, The Trigger (2019), that is aside from that an excellent source of critical information regarding a variety of topics, like the war on terror, the transhumanist agenda, microchipping, the Cashless Society and more. But the truth is, that the Jesuits have been in bed with the Sabbatean-Frankists from the very beginning as proven by the direct links they had with Jesuit/Illuminati agents like Emanuel Swedenborg and Giuseppe Balsamo, aka Count Cagliostro.

Marsha Keith Schuchard, who received a P.h.D. in British Literature from the University of Texas in Austin and is considered a distinguished member of the contemporary academic world, writes about it in great detail in her book, Emanuel , Secret Agent on Earth and in Heaven published in 2012 and edited by a long list of illustrious academics from the U.S. and Scandinavia.

The book in question and her extraordinary findings on the Sabbatian-Frankist movement have been recommended by one of the most prominent scholars of Western esotericism of our time, Antoine Faivre, Professor Emeritus at the Sorbonne, who read portions of the manuscript and strongly recommended its publication. Marsha Keith Schuchard writes that:

Obscure, clandestine connections between Sabbatian Jews and Swedish Hats would later ramify into Swedenborg's return visits to Holland and England. [53] She also adds that: During Swedenborg's last six months in Holland, his journal revealed a deepening plunge into Sabbatian-style mythology and magic—which often puzzled and frightened him. [54]

However, at one point Schuchard seems to notice that Swedenborg might have realized that he had been played all along by the Sabbateans Jews:

Swedenborg became increasingly suspicious that he was being deceived and manipulated by the Jews, who seemed to be plotting an actual Zionist movement: "Concerning a Certain Discourse with the Jews. When they departed some distance o, towards the city of Jerusalem, some of the men (primores) of the Jews, lamenting that they departed, for they desire that they should be present and speak and make plots (machinery), at last, as is customary with that nation, plotted that they would say something to me which yet was a fiction..." By 21 August Swedenborg was concerned that there were "infidel Jews" who believed that "evil is cured by evil. Not even the traditional patriarch Abraham could call together those in the filthy Jerusalem, who "labor under phantasies and pass the time in filthiness." Swedenborg was possibly aware of the diatribes of many orthodox rabbis against suspected Sabbatians. On the very next day, he described more sympathetically a "sensible" Jew. [55]

Swedenborg was one of the greatest minds of his time and a loyal agent to the Jesuit cause who served as a secret agent for the French king, Louis XV and the pro-French, pro-Jacobite party of "Hats" in Sweden, but he might have felt uneasy about certain things he witnessed in the Jewish world in connection with the Sabbatian-Frankists, even if he continued to believe for the rest of his life that he had messianic mission to accomplish with the Jews.

This may have brought them the unwanted scrutiny of some powerful individuals. Professor Gershon Scholem said that the Frankists went underground around 1820, as their emissaries went from town to town and from family to family to collect their secret writings. As the years passed, the economic and intellectual position of the Frankists strengthened. They built factories and became active in Masonic organizations. They were known to have secret gatherings on the Ninth of Av [August] which they celebrated as a holiday, which is the Jewish fast day commemorating the destruction of both Temples. The center of Frankist activity changed from Frankfurt-Offenbach to Prague and then to Warsaw. The Frankists in Warsaw who were now concentrated among seemingly Catholic families maintained contact before World War II with the Turkish Donmeh Sabbatians, who were centered in Turkey and Salonika, Greece. The Donmeh was active in the Committee for the Progress and Unity of the Young Turk Movement. The Frankists today [1971] no longer call themselves by that name. The Organization has grown into an international group labeled by outsiders as the Cult of the All-Seeing Eye. [56]

Scholem mentions another central tenet of the Frankists belief system that was already in use in the Jesuit Order since its foundation. The Frankist believer "must not appear to be as he really is" and so does the Jesuit priest, especially when he moves about by stealth means, as an undercover Jesuit agent amongst other Christian denominations or other religions. This has been a modality of the Society of Jesus since their foundation that precedes the Sabbatean-Frankist who have imitated these Jesuit techniques. Rabbi Antelman also said this belief "justified its follower's pursuit of the double type of life that they led. One could appear to be a religious Jew on the outside and in reality, be a Frankist." But the same thing can be said of the Jesuits, that are unmatched for intrigue and subtlety, as I witnessed with my own eyes. Father Thomas Michel, SJ, former Secretary for Interreligious Dialogue at the Jesuit Curia in Rome, who now lives in İzmir in Turkey, (where the first Dönme group was found and followers of Sabbatai Zevi are still active), was acting, dressing, and praying as a Muslim in my presence.

When I met Father Michel, SJ, in 2007 in Oslo thanks to the Gülen movement, he seemed proud of his Islamic ways and gave me an extensive report on his activities, especially in convening other Jesuits involved in relations with Jews, Muslims and his ecumenical relations with various Christian and Islamic groups, encouraging assistance in developing programs for interreligious dialogue and relations. Father Michel SJ spoke in detail of his plans to convene a group of Jesuits involved in Jewish relations in New York at Fordham University in July 2007 and talked about a group of Jesuits involved with a “special” group of Jews involved in relations with Muslims, that they were organizing by invitation only at Georgetown University, a month later in August 2007. Could Father Michel SJ be talking about members of the Sabbatean-Frankist sect when he was talking of a “special” group of Jews involved in relations with Muslims? The words of the late Rabbi Marvin Antelman seems to confirm this:

The Frankist elite consisted of a circle of very gifted intellectuals, theologians and men of letters, as well as a group of men of great financial means who were, for the most part, great merchant bankers and exerted tremendous influence in their day in the highest financial circles of Europe... the same pattern continuously emerges. Brilliant, wealthy people addicted to power, anxious to assimilate (if they were born Jewish), to destroy religions, to indulge in radicalism, to live cryptic two-faced lives sometimes posing as religious Jews, Catholics, or Protestants but indulging their revolutionary radicalism in secret...^[57]

By the way, this was the same Rabbi Marvin Antelman, who as the Chief Justice of the Jewish Supreme Court in the United States, ex-communicated Henry Kissinger from Judaism in the 1974 Rabbinic Council for his ties with the Council on Foreign Relationship, as the United States Secretary of State sought to destroy Israel during the Yom Kippur War of 1976. To this day, Rabbi Antelman continues to expose the criminal activities of the Jewish Sabbateans and I hope that I have proven once and for all that the Frankist elite is simply another tool in the hands of the Jesuits, but most of all, they are both a tool of Satan’s Legion.

The Satanic-Sabbatean-Frankist Rothschilds are linked to the Vatican Bank and they work together for the establishment of a One World Religion. For this reason, Baron David René James de Rothschild, a French banker and a member of the French branch of the Rothschild family, who is the chairman of Rothschild Continuation Holdings, visited Pope Francis at the beginning of November 2019. Since May 2013, Baron de Rothschild is also the chairman of the Governing Board of the World Jewish Congress. There is evidence that Mayer Amschel Rothschild (1744-1812), the founder of the Rothschild banking dynasty may have been a Frankist, the symbol of the Frankists was said to be a Red Shield. Maybe that’s why in recent years there has been some effort made among Jewish revisionist historians to more-or-less rehabilitate Shabbetai Tzvi as a kind of protoZionist leader. Mayor Amschel Rothschild was born in Frankfurt to a very religious family where several members were rabbis. His father, Amschel Moses Rothschild, who died a year after Mayor Amschel had his Bar Mitzvah, had hoped that his son would become a rabbi. Instead, he went on to become one of the world’s greatest financiers and the founder of the Rothschild dynasty, yet he remained strictly religious and humble, and Jews everywhere could speak with great pride of him, but some say he might have had a dark side.

Biographer Frederic Morton tells us that Mayer Amschel Rothschild and his five sons were “wizards of finance” and were “diabolical calculators”, motivated by a “demonic drive” in their secret undertakings. Mayer Amschel wrote his Will a few days before his death. It included stringent regulations for the family and its businesses:

All key positions should be filled with family members.

Only male family members may participate in business transactions.

The eldest son of the eldest son should be head of the family, as long as the majority of the family does not decide otherwise.

The family should marry each other with their cousins of the first and second degrees.

There should be no legal inventory and no publication of the assets.

Some say Mayer Amschel Rothschild was not only in contact with Dr. Falk, the Baal Shem of London, who used to live not far from him in Germany, but I heard from a credible source that he also received a magical ring from him that helped him in his endeavors. At this point, we go back to the infamous deal with the devil exemplified by the legend of Faust, and of course, the figure of Mephistopheles.

Faust, who is the protagonist of a classic German legend, based on the historical Johann Georg Faust (c. 1480–1540) is described by Goethe as a highly successful yet dissatisfied figure who decides to make the infamous pact with the devil, exchanging his soul for unlimited knowledge and worldly pleasures. During the last five centuries the Faust legend has been the basis for many literary, artistic, cinematic, and musical works that have reinterpreted it through the ages, but Goethe, who was also a follower of Count Cagliostro, who was, in turn, a disciple of Dr. Falk, was fascinated like most Freemasons back then, by the possibility of making deals with certain entities. Goethe reworked the legend in the most accurate and dramatic way possible. Faust becomes what most Illuminati became in their quest for “illumination”, dissatisfied intellectuals who yearn for “more than earthly meat and drink” in their boring lives and at one point want to dominate the world by sealing a deal with the devil. At the same time, the devil has twisted the concept of blood as part of his scheme to kill, steal, and destroy via murderous and heinous Satanic rituals, deviant practices and even some legally accepted procedures like abortion.

As Rudolph Steiner once pointed out in a public speech he gave in Berlin in 1906 dedicated to the Occult Significance of Blood: we all know that in this poem we are shown how Faust, the representative of the highest human effort, enters into a pact with the evil powers, who on their side are represented in the poem by Mephistopheles, the emissary of hell. You will know, too, that Faust is to strike a bargain with Mephistopheles, the deed of which must be signed with his blood. Faust, in the first instance, looks upon it as a jest. Mephistopheles, however, at this juncture utters the sentence which Goethe without doubt intended should be taken seriously: “Blood is a very special fluid.”

Concerning a line in Goethe's Faust, we come to a curious trait in the so-called Goethe commentators. Steiner in the same speech talks about a certain Professor Minor who remarked that the devil is a foe to the blood, pointing out that as the blood is that which sustains and preserves life, the devil, who is the enemy of the human race, must therefore also be the enemy of the blood.

Steiner, who was also a member at one point of the Illuminati says: “Faust is to inscribe his name in his blood, not because the devil is inimical to it, but rather because he desires to gain power over it.” That’s why all modern emanations of the Illuminati are obsessed with blood and human sacrifice. After all, blood represents human pain and death. Satan uses it as a symbol for his rituals, his followers must use it as well to honor him and reach a higher position in his eyes. Now the Rothschilds have been running wineries for years, and some of their wines have labels with occult symbols and they are rumored to taint their wine with human blood.

The late Baroness Philippine de Rothschild, who passed away in 2014, and was regarded as a legend of the wine business, went around all of her life wearing various Baphomet pendants from the most literal to the more abstract representations. One of the biggest names in the wine-making business today, called Opus One started as a collaborative venture between the late Baroness Philippine de Rothschild and Robert Mondavi, was known to put just a touch of blood in his red wine during dinner. Opus One fronts as a vineyard, but some researchers say it is a Satanic, devil-worshipping hideaway similar to Bohemian Grove, located just to the east and north of San Francisco.

My old friend and colleague Greg Szymanski wrote back in 2006 that: According to an inquisitive California researcher, the land for Opus One, meaning First Work, was secretly purchased in the late 1960s, its construction shrouded in secrecy. The secret, satanic winery, according to wine tasters, is known for its light but refreshing chardonnay but its specialty is said to be a very dry and heavy “blood red.”

In December 2019, Prince Charles paid tribute to the present leader of the prominent banking family Baron Jacob Rothschild, as he handed him the Council of Christians and Jews 2019 Bridge Award. Rothschild’s family helped establish the Council in 1942, as the world began learning about the Holocaust. Jacob Rothschild maintains personal and business links with Henry Kissinger another key player of the New World Order.

Human Sacrifice in the Illuminati and the Vatican

The use of human sacrifice in different rituals has featured largely in many cultures for thousands of years. To better understand this, one must first consider and define what is meant by the term ritual. According to The Oxford English Dictionary, a ritual is described as “the series of actions used in a religious or another rite.” The term “sacrifice” as defined by The Oxford Concise Dictionary of Archaeology (Darvill, 2003, p371), is the slaughter of an animal or person or the surrendering of possessions to a deity. It goes on to say, Although seen as ceremonial in context, sacrifice may have functional ends institutionalized in the practice itself, for example, the regulation of a population and the creation of an instrument of political terror. Humans have indeed always had a dark side and the Illuminati network of secret societies that practice human sacrifice live and prosper in the shadow of evil.

When you think of human sacrifice, you could picture the grand and graphic Aztec or Mayan ceremonies from the distant past. While civilizations such as these certainly did their share of brutal sacrificing in their time, they were by no means the only ancient civilizations that participated in death rituals that go on to this day. From ancient China to Ireland and Egypt, civilizations throughout history developed quite a few human sacrifice methods that have been picked up and transmitted to us through the ages by certain sects and mystery schools connected to most religions; including the Catholic one.

So we are prevalently talking of religious human sacrifices, though sometimes they have been carried out as punishment, especially against formal members or enemies. Those who sacrifice humans use many brutal techniques to do so, including decapitation, strangulation, whipping, burning, cannibalism, and burying victims alive. If anything, this very long list demonstrates the disturbing creativity of human bloodlust when driven by Satan’s Legion in the absence of God. In our modern society that officially condemns human sacrifice, the term has been substituted by “ritual murder,” and more modern secret societies like the Bohemian Club seem to practice mock human sacrifice instead, just like the one we saw in front of CERN in 2016.

Human sacrifice, once abolished, is typically replaced by either animal sacrifice, or by the mock-sacrifice of effigies, such as the Argei in ancient Rome. In the desert libtard hippie festival called “Burning Man” the attendees build and ignite a large humanoid wicker frame just like in the old days, but with no humans in it. This practice was taken from the movie “Wicker Man” which itself drew inspiration from ancient druidic practices of the British isles. It was Julius Caesar who first exposed this barbaric practice when he wrote that Druids built massive wicker men, loaded them with human and animal sacrifices, and lit them on fire. It also seems that there may even have been cannibalism involved in Druidism, but we will touch on the subject of cannibalism later in this book. Ancient Rome was well aware of the Druids and their practices as they formed its chief adversaries in the lands held by the Celtic tribes. At the head of their organization was the Arch Druid. He was supported by Arch Flamens and Flamens. They had three orders, the Vates or Bards, the Prophets, and the Druids. Before a candidate was accepted into the first degree he had to undergo careful preparation which could in some cases last for up to twenty years.

In the first degree or order, he was taught fortitude, which was considered, at the time, one of the leading traits of perfection. In the second-order, the candidate underwent lustration, after which he was instructed in the morality of the order that was, of course, very different from our morality, as it often included presiding and later officiating over human sacrifice. Today, even though Wiccans make up the majority of the so-called “Neopagan movement,” there are also groups known as “Neodruids” who are attempting to resurrect the practices and religion of the ancient Druids in contemporary occult circles. This happens because, in reality, they were never abandoned, and they were kept alive in secret within the Freemasons and certain branches of the Illuminati network.

Gerald Massey (1828-1907), for example, who has been enormously influential in the work of both Aleister Crowley and even more in the writings of his disciple Kenneth Grant, was a member of the Most Ancient Order of Druids to which he was elected Chosen Chief. Another known Freemason and Druid was Winston Churchill, even if there is some confusion over Churchill’s Druidic initiation, more specifically, which of the several Druidic orders did he join? A photograph in Stuart Piggot’s book The Druids shows a young Churchill flanked by many men, some wearing druid robes and others in ordinary suits. According to the inscription, this photograph shows Churchill’s initiation into the Albion Lodge of the Ancient Order of Druids in August 1908 at Blenheim, at his family home.

Elsewhere in The Druid Tradition, Phillip Carr-Gomm describes the same photograph while stating it was Churchill’s initiation into the Ancient and Archaeological Order of Druids. Given the tendency for Druid groups to have overlapping memberships and joint ceremonies, Churchill was a member of both of these Druid orders that have connections to Freemasonry. It is said that the first Chosen Chief of the Universal Druid Bond was John Toland, a member of a Masonic organization called the Knights Of Jubilation. Toland was chief from 1717 to 1722, when he was succeeded by William Stuckley (1722 - 1765). However, Toland's role in the Druid revival is questioned but considered relevant. In 1726, he wrote History of the Druids, a critical account of ancient Druidry which sits uncomfortably with the notion that Toland was a Druid himself. Connections between Freemasonry and Druidry crossed the Atlantic.

In the United States, in the eighteenth century, one Masonic Lodge in Newburgh, New York transformed itself into The Druid Society using the former Masonic lodge for its meetings and adopting much of the Masonic ceremony. Churchill's association with both Freemasonry and Druidry was short-lived and his interest in Druidry appears to have been wholly towards its fraternal and social character with little or no sympathy for its spirituality, or their secret practices that might have included human sacrifice. Churchill's political career took over at this point and Churchill made his name in a succession of ministerial posts, first as Britain's youngest Home Secretary, and later as Chancellor of the Exchequer and ultimately Prime Minister during most of World War II and again in the early 1950s. There was something of a second wind to Churchill's esoteric career courtesy of his knighthood and admission to the coveted elite Order of the Garter.

Churchill was installed as a Knight Companion of the Most Noble Order of the Garter in June 1954. There are many competing theories about the origins of this Order, several which seek to link it to the occult and one in particular to Paganism, often a gateway to Satanism. That a British prime minister should have once been a Druid may at first seem surprising, but on reflection, Churchill seemed to have followed an unlikely tradition of religious pluralism among prime ministers. Famously, there was Benjamin Disraeli, a Jew. And infamously there was John Stuart, the third Earl of Bute and one of Britain's most unpopular prime ministers who was also a Satanist. The group in question was the Order of St. Francis, the most notorious of the so-called Hell-Fire Clubs of eighteenth-century Britain that I described extensively in previous publications.

Going back to the infamous custom of human sacrifice, it is present in a multitude of cultures and regions around the world. Past physical evidence of this evil practice came prevalently from Mesopotamia, the Shang dynasty-era China, and the Aztec world of Mesoamerica. Ancient Jews did not forbid human sacrifice, but they banned unnecessary blood effusions, such as inflicted by Mesopotamian worshippers of Baal (who, for example, sacrificed themselves to please their alien-like divinity). Patriarch Abraham was stopped from carrying out the sacrificial throat-cutting of his beloved young son, Isaac, by the "Word of God." God solely intended to test Abraham's obedience and trust, and a surrogate sacrifice was made with an immaculate white ram instead, caught in the nearby bushes.

The purpose and reasoning for human sacrifice remain a great mystery for the majority of researchers. It becomes difficult for scholars to pinpoint the origins and rationale for such rituals because they have not been initiated into the secret sects and mystery schools, that control the established cults and religions that perpetrated them. Due to the emotional and moral dilemma of studying human sacrifice, much of the data and interpretations can be tainted by the personal feelings of the researcher. The majority of people often broadly label human sacrifice as evil and barbaric, having no interest in why such ceremonies occurred and ignore the existence of such ceremonies in today's society. Aztec people of Mesoamerica constituted the most well-known civilization for the practice of human sacrifice.

Although perhaps the most infamous method of human sacrifice in the Aztec civilization is the excision of the heart, many other methods existed like decapitation, cutting of the throat, being thrown into a fire, being shot with arrows, drowned, being buried alive, or hurled down from the top of a pole or pyramid. Human sacrifice is still practiced to this day around the world and not only by the elite but by the common man in search of power and wealth desperate to strike a deal with Satan and his Legion.

On January 7, 2016, a teenage boy's headless body was found near a cremation ground on the road to Bhagwanpur village in the Raigarh district of Chhattisgarh. Next to the headless corpse, earthen lamps, incense sticks, sindoor (vermillion), flowers, and a bhoj-patra (plate) were strewn about. The father later admitted beheading his son after reading a black magic manual. "After reading the book, I was convinced that this special puja was the only way to end my miseries. So I beheaded my son," Bharti admitted to the startled police. A few months later, in October 2016, again in India, an 18-month-old baby girl was allegedly sacrificed for a black magic ritual in the southern province of Karnataka. So why are such rituals still practiced in India?

Black magic rituals are regularly practiced by the Hindu community in various parts of the country for personal gain, property dispute, treasure hunting, and male childbirth. Many Hindus believe in the use of black magic in curing diseases, taking revenge, acquiring wealth, or attracting an unwilling companion. This doesn't happen only in India, as the practice of ritual killing and human sacrifice continues to take place in several African countries in contravention of the African Charter on Human and People's Rights and other human rights instruments. As barbaric as it may seem, in the 21st-century human beings are still being hunted down, mutilated, murdered, or sacrificed for ritual purposes across the region to help the corrupt African elite maintain their positions or to give the poor the illusion that they can become rich and famous by acting this way. However, several cases of kidnapping and disappearance of persons are traced to the vicious schemes and activities of ritualists often working with the dark side of the Illuminati. In most cases, those targeted for ritual sacrifice are vulnerable members of the population — the poor, women, children, the elderly, and people with disabilities are always the first victims of this insane practice.

Ritualists and magicians from certain secret societies constantly hunt for and harvest human body parts to prepare charms and magical concoctions. In some cases, desperate ritualists invade cemeteries and exhume dead bodies to extract body parts. Ritual killing and related human rights abuse take place because many people still believe that the use of charms and the performance of ritual sacrifice can fortify them spiritually, enhance their fortune in business and during elections, or protect them from harm, disease, poverty, accident, death, and destruction. Africa and India have a dark side that is present in contemporary Western civilization even if mostly hidden.

The only Satanic sect that appears to condone human sacrifice and “human culling” out in the open these days is the Lilin Society, founded in 2013, in the United States. The Lilin Society presents itself as targeting the “serious practitioners” in search of “Luciferian Gnosis.” The society's founder, Massachusetts native Asha'Shedim, describes the Church of Satan as “plastic” and says Lilins does not recognize them or the Temple of Set.

“Human sacrifice in the Lilin Society has many methods. There is the physical act through occult ritual, assassinations or staged accidents,” according to Asha'Shedim's writings, “human sacrifice should only be practiced on those who are adversaries of Satan, and their death should be of benefit to Satan.” According to Asha'Shedim's blog, Lilins do not see Satan as the one god, but one of many “dark gods.” They do not worship Satan because “no Satanist shall bow to any god or man.” Instead, Lilins has “a profound appreciation of the acausal entities known as gods or demons. They are something we aspire to become one day.”

Besides human sacrifice, Satan and his power can also be experienced through “sorcery” and “living sinister lives,” according to Asha'Shedim (aka Reverend Elijah Lawless, aka Aka Paimon, aka John Putignano) who seems to have well-established links with the dark side of the Illuminati dedicated to Vodou, the Quimbanda, The Cult of Santa Muerte and to Qliphothic magic...

According to Pliny the Elder, human sacrifice in Ancient Rome was abolished by a senatorial decree in 97 BCE, although by this time the practice had already become so rare that the decree was mostly a symbolic act, but it simply went underground and has been practiced ever since in secret by the Roman elite that later became the black nobility, often practiced behind the walls of the mysterious and secretive Vatican city. What I am about to tell you is vaguely reminiscent of Dan Brown's Angels & Demons, where it leads to an ancient tomb in the Teutonic cemetery inside Vatican walls linked to the possible death of Emanuela Orlandi, the Vatican citizen who mysteriously disappeared on the 22nd of June, 1983, never to be seen again that I have written about in detail in Volume 3 of my Confessions.

Finally, after the unsuccessful findings of last year, when human remains (still not identified) surfaced at the Apostolic Nunciature to Italy, some credible reports were received months ago by the lawyer of Emanuela's family, that indicated that she could be in the Teutonic Cemetery, a burial site adjacent to St. Peter's Basilica in Vatican City. This place is located where the Circus of Nero once stood during the period of the Roman Empire and was the site of martyrdom for many early Christians of the city. Martyrdom in the early Christian era, represents to some extent, a direct extension of Roman death and purification rituals. Dying for a specific - and usually honorable - purpose, in the honor-shame society of the Roman Empire led to a new culture, religion, and, of course, Imperial dynamic that the Vatican seems to still want to reflect in some way by possibly placing the body of Emanuela there, hidden away to guarantee the very survival of the Catholic Church, remember, the Vatican inherited all the traditions of ancient Rome.

The term Vatican was used in ancient times to simply identify the marshy area of Rome located on the right bank of the Tiber River, between the Milvio Bridge and the present Sixtus Bridge. In the Imperial Age, from the 2nd century A.D., the toponym Vaticanum was applied to an area corresponding roughly to the present Vatican City State. The late Father Gabriele Amorth, who was the Vatican's chief exorcist and one of the protagonists of my previous book Confessions of an Illuminati Vol.6.66, said that he heard that Emanuela Orlandi may have been murdered and her body disposed of after she was forced to take part in sex parties in the Vatican. The late Amorth told La Stampa newspaper:

"This was a crime with a sexual motive. Parties were organized, with a Vatican gendarme acting as the 'recruiter' of the girls." Adding, "The network involved diplomatic personnel from a foreign embassy to the Holy See. I believe Emanuela ended up a victim of this circle."

The cemetery in question is the oldest German establishment in Rome, so the foreign embassy mentioned by the late Amorth could well be the German Embassy in Rome. However, the debate over who kidnapped Emanuela and what became of her has enraged many in Italy for a very long time. The family presented a formal request to the Secretary of State of His Holiness The Pope, Cardinal Pietro Parolin, to assert the history of this mysterious locus where Emanuela was said to be placed, behind the statue of an angel to obtain the reopening of it. The location looks as follows: leaning against a wall of the cemetery is a rather modern-looking statue of an angel holding a sheet with the Latin writing Requiescat in pace, meaning, "Rest in peace." On the floor, a slab with a funeral inscription dedicated to Gustav Adolf, Cardinal Prince of Hohenlohe-Schillingfürst, (1823–1896) a member of the Hohenlohe family of Germany, claiming descent from Eberhard, one of the early dukes of Franconia who became a cardinal of the Catholic Church and one of the famous people of ecclesiastical, artistic, political, or diplomatic backgrounds, is buried in this very exclusive cemetery. In the summer of 2018, a letter with the photo of the tomb in question attached was sent to Laura Sgrò, the lawyer who assists the Orlandi family: "Look for where the angel indicates."

At that point, defensive investigations were carried out by checking the state of the places, and it was discovered that the tomb was opened previously at least once and that the dating of the statue is different from that of the slab. But it was above all, "verified that some people had been informed of the possibility that the remains of Emanuela Orlandi had been hidden in the Teutonic cemetery", as the lawyer herself explained.

For almost a decade I have been investigating the disappearance of Emanuela Orlandi, so when the mainstream media began talking about a search of Emanuela's bones in the summer of 2019, I wasn't surprised that some of my predictions made earlier this year on my blog had finally manifested. However, after Vatican officials stated they found no evidence that Emanuela Orlandi had been buried in the Teutonic cemetery inside Vatican City, a new foray made during the investigation unearthed two ossuaries that contained unidentified human bones. This episode made headlines worldwide. Without quantifying the number of skeletal remains that had been found, Vatican officials immediately said in a statement that it was not possible "...at the moment to predict how long it will take to complete a morphological analysis of the remains found in the ossuaries."

Usually, an ossuary is a site made to serve as the final resting place of human skeletal remains when burial space is scarce or when it was required to get rid of certain remains in a more secretive manner due to their nature. Many examples of ossuaries found within Europe are often connected to a particular religious order, like the Santa Maria Della Concezione dei Cappuccini in Rome, that in 1631 ordered the remains of thousands of their Capuchin friars exhumed and transferred from the friary in Via dei Lucchesi to a nearby crypt. There are other cases like the Cistercian monastery in Sedlec, a suburb of Kutná Hora, now in the Czech Republic, where most of the bodies came from a more dark background as a result of the Black Death in the 14th century and the Hussite Wars in the early 15th century, but there are even more macabre ossuaries being unearthed from time to time around the world. "The Affair of the Poisons" (L'affaire des poisons) was a major murder scandal in France during the reign of King Louis XIV. Between 1677 and 1682, prominent members of the aristocracy were implicated and sentenced on charges of poisoning and witchcraft. Authorities rounded up many fortune tellers and alchemists who, aside from selling divinations, séances, and aphrodisiacs, confessed to having sold poison to their clients who allegedly wished to get rid of their spouses or rivals in the royal court. The most famous case was that of the midwife Catherine Deshayes Monvoisin or La Voisin, who was arrested in 1679 after she was incriminated by the poisoner, Marie Bosse. La Voisin implicated several important individuals in the French court that performed Black Mass rituals with her and many Catholic priests, and upon her arrest, as I pointed out already in Vol.6.66, investigators discovered the corpses of 2,500 infants buried in the ossuary in her yard. It was said that La Voisin had paid prostitutes for their infants for use in the rituals.
