Phoenix Five has been accused of 'cheaply going where Star Trek had boldly gone before', a not entirely valid criticism. Phoenix Five was certainly cheap, but it was definitely not a copy of Star Trek, as its predecessor The Interpretaris dates back to 1966 before Star Trek had gone to air in the United States. There were some similarities in concept between Star Trek and The Interpretaris; both series were set in an enlightened future with a peaceful Earth as the centre of a federation of planets, and both featured a 'state of the art' spaceship, with a multinational crew and a resourceful captain at the helm, exploring unknown areas of the galaxies. However, that is where any direct comparison must end, as the two shows were vastly different. For example, the 'Enterprise' had a crew of 400, whereas the 'Interpretaris' had a crew of only three; the 'Interpretaris' had no teleport facility; and the writing and production standards of Star Trek are light years ahead of The Interpretaris. It is worth noting though, that The Interpretaris featured a Russian crew member long before Chekov was introduced to Star Trek.

The Interpretaris was produced by Artransa Park at their Sydney studios, in association with the ABC. It first went to air on the ABC in October 1966, with subsequent repeat screenings on the Seven Network. This unique arrangement was a result of the relationship between ATN-7 Sydney and Artransa Park, so that even though the programme was commissioned by the public broadcaster and utilised some ABC personnel, repeat rights were slated for the Seven Network from the outset.

Six half-hour episodes were made in black and white, almost entirely filmed within the confines of the Artransa Park studios. Scriptwriter for the serial was Barbara Vernon, who went on to create the very successful ABC soap opera Bellbird. Producer and Director was Kay Roberts.

The Interpretaris was set over 500 years in the future, with the Earth at the centre of a peaceful federation of planets under the jurisdiction of the World Council. The title refers to a spacecraft, 'The Interpretaris', the flagship of the World Council fleet. The serial opens with an evil scientist, Parta Beno, who has been found guilty of imprisoning and reducing in size inhabitants of various planets. As punishment he is exiled to a remote asteroid, with the only amenities being a crude laboratory. All the specimens that Parta Beno collected were sent back to their home worlds by the World Council, except those that the Council had no knowledge of, let alone any idea about the planets from whence they came. The hand-picked crew of 'The Interpretaris' were given the mission of returning these aliens to their home planets.

The three-person multinational crew selected for the mission was headed by Commander Alan De Breck, a European played by Stanley Walsh. The pilot was David Charmichael, an Australian played by Kit Taylor (who appeared over ten years earlier as a young boy in The Adventures Of Long John Silver, the first television series made in Australia). The third crew member was female, Vera Balovna, a Russian played by Lorraine Bayly (who was perhaps best remembered for her role as Grace Sullivan in the late 70's / early 80's war-time serial The Sullivans). Issues of female equality were raised early on in the programme - Vera was hoping to be in charge of the mission!

The crew were assisted by a computeroid named Henry - a clumsy-looking robotic computer with artificial intelligence and almost human emotions, operated by Gordon Mutch. There was a second 'living' computer on board named Alys, a 'female' that looked like a mantelpiece clock, her voice being provided by Judi Farr (who later played Rita Stiller in My Name's McGooley - What's Yours? and Rita And Wally, and Thelma in Kingswood Country). Alys was one of Parta Beno's specimens awaiting return to her home world, but doubled as a spy under his orders. Parta Beno, played by Ben Gabriel, controlled Alys from his asteroid exile, and used her to try and sabotage the mission of 'The Interpretaris'.

The six episodes concerned the mission of returning the strange life forms to their strange planets, and contending with Parta Beno's attempts to thwart their mission and gain his freedom. During the course of events, Henry and Alys 'fall in love', which eventually results in Alys breaking free of Parta Beno's control, although at the expense of her own existence. Parta Beno is subsequently captured by 'The Interpretaris' crew and returned to exile in the final episode.

Even allowing for the fact that the programme was made for children, The Interpretaris is not a very sophisticated production. It looks cheap - limited cheap sets, cheap models and cheap effects, all indicative of a small budget. There are good performances from the cast, and the crew seem to be doing the best they can with what they have, but the overall effect is disappointing.

In spite of the deficiencies of The Interpretaris, it was decided to make a sequel the following year. Vega 4 was a serial of seven half-hour episodes, this time filmed in colour. Also produced by Artransa Park at their Sydney studios, in association with the ABC, the same screening arrangements applied. Made in 1967, it was first screened by the ABC in Melbourne on May 19, 1968, and in Sydney on June 2. Repeat screenings were on the Seven Network. Producer of the show was Alan Burke, the scripts were written by John Warwick and music was composed and conducted by Tommy Tycho.

Vega 4 opens with a new threat to Earth detected by Earth Space Control emanating from Galaxy Five. To deal with the situation, the President orders the commissioning of the yet untested new spaceship, 'Vega 4'. When it is suggested that 'The Interpretaris' should be sent on the mission, it is revealed that it is not equipped for travel to Galaxy Five and therefore the 'Vega 4' is the only hope for Earth to survive.

As in The Interpretaris, a three-person crew (two males, one female) is selected for the mission: Captain Phillip Wallace, played by John Faasen; Lieutenant James Adam, played by Evan Dunstan; and Ensign Eve Poitier, played by Juliana Allan. They are also assisted by a computeroid named Henry, which looks exactly the same as the Henry from the earlier serial. When the Captain says that he thought Henry was on 'The Interpretaris', he is told that his older cousin was and still is. This Henry is a new and improved model.

It is soon revealed that the threat to Earth from Galaxy Five is the handiwork of another evil scientist named Zodian, played by Eddie Hepple (who previously had the title role in Barley Charlie and would later appear in The Rovers). Zodian, assisted by his computer, is seeking revenge on Earth for exiling him to an asteroid, and believes he will succeed where Parta Beno failed. Hepple capably portrayed Zodian's eccentricity and added a comedic touch which softened the character's evil persona.

A support role in the serial was played by Ken Fraser as the President of Earth Space Control. The seven episodes are concerned with the 'Vega 4' crew dealing with the threat from Galaxy Five, and in the final episode Zodian is captured and their mission is completed.

Although Vega 4 was an improvement on The Interpretaris, not least because of colour filming, it still suffered from a low budget resulting in some dodgy sets, models and special effects. Vega 4 featured more location filming, but a large percentage of each episode was still confined to a small number of studio sets. Producer Alan Burke said, Many special effects were used to give added atmosphere to the programme. That was true, but the effectiveness of the effects was severely limited by the low budget.

The third series in the trilogy was Phoenix Five. The same formula applied: the title referred to the flagship spacecraft of Earth Space Control, with a crew of three (two male, one female) plus a computeroid who spent most of their time outwitting an evil scientist. The same production arrangements also applied: Phoenix Five was produced by Artransa Park at their Sydney studios in association with the ABC. And the same screening arrangements applied: first run episodes were shown by 'Aunty' ABC, with repeat screenings on the Seven Network.

The major difference was in the structure. Phoenix Five was not a serial, but consisted of self-contained episodes, and consequently had a longer production run - 26 colour episodes were made, each a half-hour in length. Production commenced on December 3rd, 1968, and continued to mid-1969.

The episodes were introduced by a narrative, accompanied by appropriate images, which stated: The year: 2500 AD. The 'Phoenix Five'. The crew: Captain Roke, Ensign Adam Hargreaves, Cadet Tina Kulbrick, and their computeroid Karl. Their mission: to patrol the outer galaxies for Earth Space Control, to maintain peace, and to capture Zodian the humanoid, who with the aid of his computers Alpha and Zeta endeavours to become dictator of outer space.

Mike Dorsey was cast in the lead role of Captain Mike Roke, with Patsy Trench (who later appeared in the second series of Delta) as Cadet Tina Kulbrick, and Damien Parker as second-in-command Ensign Adam Hargreaves. Peter Collingwood had a support role as the Earth Space Controller, who directs the 'Phoenix Five' missions. As in the previous two serials, the crew were assisted by a computeroid named Karl, whose appearance was improved on, but no less clumsy than, the earlier serials Henry's. Karl was operated by Stuart Leslie.

Vega 4 scriptwriter John Warwick was Script Editor for Phoenix Five, and he also wrote a number of episodes. Producer for the first ten episodes was Peter Summerton, and episodes 11 - 26 were produced by John Walters following Summerton's untimely death. Director of the series was David Cahill.

The villain of the piece was again Zodian, played by Redmond Philips (best remembered for his later role of Colonel Cato in Spyforce). Philips played the part in the same eccentric-with-comedic-touch vein established by Eddie Hepple in Vega 4. His appearance was altered significantly, however - Zodian now had aqua-blue skin with a blue mouth and eyebrows, and was always described as a 'humanoid'. In the first episode, Zodian escapes from custody on Earth and flees to his hideout on the planet Zebula 9, where his twin computers 'Alpha' and 'Zeta' aid and abet him in his nefarious deeds.

Redmond Philips made his final appearance in episode 13, 'The Baiter Is Bitten', in which the 'Phoenix Five' crew finally manage to capture Zodian and bring him to justice. From the next episode there was a new villain to deal with: Platonus, another (you guessed it!) warped evil scientist, played by Owen Weingott. Platonus had pointy ears (obviously inspired by Star Trek's Mr. Spock) and a computer named Tommy who spoke with a Cockney accent. The opening narrative was altered to read: The year: 2500 AD. The crew: Captain Roke, Ensign Adam Hargreaves, Cadet Tina Kulbrick, and their computeroid Karl. Their mission: to maintain peace, and to patrol the outer galaxies of Earth Space Control. Their constant threat: Platonus, who dreams of ruling the galaxies and, by using his computer through an innocent victim, plans to capture or destroy the 'Phoenix Five' and her crew.

The last episode, No. 26 'General Alarm', saw the capture of Platonus by the 'Phoenix Five' crew. Captain Roke was promoted to head of Earth Defence, and Adam was promoted to Captain of the 'Phoenix Five'. The episode closes with Adam and Roke in a friendly argument over who was going to have Tina as their assistant.

As Phoenix Five consisted of self-contained episodes, the villain Zodian and later Platonus did not appear in every episode. Not being constrained by one plot-line as the previous serials were, Phoenix Five gained measurably from being able to wander around the cosmos dealing with whatever situation the crew would find themselves in.

Phoenix Five went to air in May 1970, almost one year after production was completed, and the episodes were shown out of order. It was screened in a Sunday afternoon timeslot nationally, which in Melbourne put it in direct competition with repeats of U.S. sci-fi series Star Trek and Land Of The Giants. TV critic Veritas, writing in the Melbourne Truth, lamented this position: When you put Phoenix Five up against The Land of The Giants the production looks smaller than the 'little people' themselves; and up against Star Trek, Aunty Two's spaceship looks like a toy you can find in any department store for a few cents. Phoenix Five, in my opinion, would have been a much better proposition had it been given a weekday children's timeslot.

An area that Phoenix Five did excel in was the costumes. Zodian was dressed in a blue floor-length robe, and Platonus featured an elaborate purple costume. There were more guest artists in Phoenix Five than the earlier serials, and they were adorned accordingly: Arna-Maria Winchester, in episode 3 'To End Is To Begin', was covered from head to foot in pink tights as a life-form from the planet Leonicus; Pat Sullivan appeared in episode 16, 'Slave Queen', in regal robes as a mini-skirted monarch; Tony Ingersent was adorned in an aquatic costume for his role of Neptunus in episode 13, 'The Baiter Is Bitten'; Christopher Johnson wore weird headgear as an emissary from the planet Tylantia in episode 2, 'Two Heads Are Better Than None'; to mention but a few. A production spokesman was quoted in TV Week: The series is certainly not intended to terrify children, but we have given full rein to our imaginations in designing the space outfits.

There was more location filming in Phoenix Five, usually in rock quarries to simulate alien landscapes. Interior scenes were filmed in the Artransa Park studios, and exterior scenes of the spacecraft utilised three models (two inches, eight inches and ten feet long respectively), filmed against a black velvet background with torch bulbs used to simulate a starry effect.

Special Effects man Peter Hicks was hampered by the show's low budget, but he still did the best he could with what was available. Our biggest problem, he said, was stopping a ton of ice melting when 'Phoenix Five' was trapped in a planet of solid ice and had to blast its way out using rocket motors. It was done in the studio and took two to three hours of filming.

Patsy Trench said that her part in Phoenix Five did not appeal to her as an actress. We seemed to spend most of our time reading dials and talking space jargon. I did that for six months and it became very monotonous. Patsy later pointed out other shortcomings: The script writers weren't even aware of the capabilities of the space ship, and nobody seemed to know what was going on.

Phoenix Five was an improvement on both The Interpretaris and Vega 4, but it still suffered from the effects of a low budget. The scripts varied considerably - some were very clever and well-written, others were just plain silly. And the sets, special effects and model work still looked as dodgy as ever. The episodes usually had a moral message which was delivered in a subtle manner, minus the syrupy 'hearts and flowers' that pervade most U.S. shows. As they stand, the trilogy of The Interpretaris, Vega 4 and Phoenix Five are not in the same league as overseas contemporaries such as Star Trek or Doctor Who, and they pale in comparison to later Aussie sci-fi shows such as The Girl From Tomorrow and Cybergirl. Phoenix Five and its predecessors fall well short of their potential, in spite of having basic concepts that were at least as visionary as some successful overseas sci-fi programmes. It would have been interesting to see what could have been achieved if there was a larger budget to play with.

WR. John Warwick, Fred C. Folkard and Ted Ager.

DIR. David Cahill.

EPISODES: 26 YEAR MADE: 1969 COUNTRY: AUS SEASONS: 1

AN ARTANSA PARK PRODUCTION IN ASSOCIATION WITH AUSTRALIAN BROADCASTING COMPANY.

CREATOR: JOHN WARWICK (writer)

TYPE OF SHOW: SPACE

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 25 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 26

DATE OF PREMIER: 01/10/1970

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE: 07/03/1970

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Captain Roke MIKE DORSEY, Ensign Adam Hargreaves DAMIEN PARKER, Cadet Tina Culbrick PATSY TRENCH, Carl STUART LESLIE, Earth Space Controller PETER COLLINGWOOD, Zodian REDMOND PHILIPS, Platonous OWEN WEINCOTT.

RELATED SHOWS:

STAR TREK

1 - 1 ZONE OF DANGER

Zodian is imprisoned by Earth Space Control after having been found guilty of destroying several planets in an attempt to control outer space. Zodian escapes, boards the Phoenix Five and forces Tina to blast off for his stronghold on planet Zebula 9.

1 - 2 TWO HEADS ARE BETTER THAN ONE

An emissary from Tylantia asks for an audience with the Earth Space Controller. A large force field is closing in and threatens to destroy his planet - it is found to originate from Zodian on Zebula 9, and Captain Roke and his crew are sent to investigate.

Wr John Warwick

Dir Andree Hemingway, Kay Roberts

1 - 3 HUMAN RELICS

On a routine patrol, Roke's crew witness the planet Leonicus explode. They also sight a cargo ship off-course, and upon investigation they find the crew missing and an alien presence on board - intelligent microbes from Leonicus intent on migrating to Earth.

1 - 4 THE STOWAWAY

On rest leave, the Phoenix Five crew are indulging in a twentieth-century game of baseball when Adam is overcome by a strange chameleon mutant, which threatens the safety of the Phoenix Five.

1 - 5 THE END IS TO BEGIN

The Phoenix Five crew receive a strange signal from the asteroid Arcturus. Responding, they find a twentieth-century Earth space capsule and an astronaut, Major York, in a coma. He is taken to the Phoenix Five sick bay, but Zodian has York under his control, and it is revealed that York is actually from the planet Marcolosa.

1 - 6 SIX GUNS OF SPACE

On a routine patrol, the Phoenix Five runs into an old-fashioned naval-style bombardment coming from one of the moons of Corallus.

1 - 7 THE PIRATE QUEEN

The Phoenix Five is escorting a cargo ship carrying vital medical supplies to an Earth space colony. The vessels are attacked by an old space frigate, forcing the Phoenix Five scoutship to crash-land on Zebula 9. The space frigate is piloted by Karelia, an Aquasian Queen - but Zodian captures both Karelia and the Phoenix Five crew.

1 - 8 TWO INTO ONE WON'T GO

Adam 'materialises' a copy of the ancient Pipes of Pan. He and Tina are hit by an unseen force when he blows a 'dead' note on the pipes. Karl absorbs the ultrasonic sound and sets out to discover the source.

1 - 9 BACK TO CHILDHOOD

Tina finds a rare 'Cannibalis' plant which Roke decides to take back to Earth for examination. An alien, a hybridoid, is somehow linked to the plant, and the crew take him back to the Phoenix Five sick bay. Tina and Adam are sprayed by pollen from the plant and revert to a childish state.

1 - 10 A SOUND IN SPACE

Zodian bribes the pompous governor of Planetoid 93 into injecting a micro-transistor into Captain Roke's bloodstream, which will put Roke under Zodian's command. Zodian plans to cause Roke to use the Phoenix Five to destroy Earth Space Control.

1 - 11 A GESTURE FROM KRONUS

Captain Roke is 'reversed' when he falls victim to Zodian's time warp - he talks backward, and his uniform colours are reversed. His reaction powers are severely tested as he flies the Astro Scoutship to the one person who can help him - Kronos, the guardian of time in space.

1 - 12 THE CAT

Investigating the mysterious disappearance of the colonists of the planet Lynxonia, the Phoenix Five crew find just one clue - a tiny black kitten. It seems odd that it could be responsible for strange growling noises heard in the planet's dark rocky areas.

1 - 13 THE BAITER IS BITTEN

The Phoenix Five flies into a strange phenomenon - a fog in space, which then turns to deep water, trapping the crew. The water is a planetoid under the control of Neptunus, who plans to force Roke to assist with his revenge on Zodian. Roke outwits Neptunus, and in breaking free of the planetoid succeeds in capturing Zodian when his hideout is flooded.

1 - 14 THE BIGGER THEY ARE

Platonus, a warped evil scientist, programmes Colosseo, a young gentle giant of the Placid Planet, with a super power to destroy the Phoenix Five and her crew.

1 - 15 THE HUNTER

Platonus bribes Jenka, the hunter king of a planet now devoid of wildlife, to track down and kill the crew of the Phoenix Five. Platonus' plan is foiled when Roke strikes up a rapport with Jenka.

1 - 16 SLAVE QUEEN

Captain Roke is ordered to find the missing successor to the throne of Celex - a girl called Estella who was captured as a child by a warlike and backward race from another world and held as a slave.

1 - 17 SOMETHING FISHY

The Phoenix Five is sent to find out why contact has been lost with a prison colony on the planet Zedden.

1 - 18 TOY SOLDIER

Tina brings a tiny antique toy soldier she bought while on leave onto the Phoenix Five. Investigating a strange metal on the planet Wonderos, the Phoenix Five crew find themselves battling the toy soldier, which has now grown to life size and is under the control of Platonus.

1 - 19 SHADOW SHIP

Returning to Earth for a routine check, Tina is struck down by an agonising virus. Captain Roke takes the Phoenix Five to Earth at maximum speed in order to obtain a cure for her.

1 - 20 THE PLANET OF FEAR

Exploring a strange planet, Roke and Adam meet an astronaut, Ben Armstrong, who was lost ten years earlier. He has gained strange powers from Platonus, turning him into a human booby trap. However, Armstrong has developed a few powers of his own and is able to repel Platonus and turn his force back on him.

1 - 21 SPACE QUAKE

The planet Deldum is drifting out of orbit into the path of another planet, and the Phoenix Five is assigned to destroy it. A criminal doctor on Deldum injects Adam with an ageing serum and will only supply the antidote in return for safe passage to another planet.

1 - 22 EFFICIENCY MINUS

The Phoenix Five crew are shocked when told they have failed their annual check-ups and will have to be separated.

1 - 23 SPARK FROM A DYING FIRE

Adam and Tina fall victim to the hypnotic powers of the strange sparks erupting from a fiercely destructive asteroid, once a part of the planet Janus 7, and are set to fight a duel.

1 - 24 DREAM ON

Computeroid Karl picks a flower for Tina, unaware that Platonus has cracked his access code and programmed him to pick a very special flower. When Captain Roke decides to use a routine training exercise as a cover for hunting Platonus, it involves some tricky navigation through planetoids and some solar gas. Platonus activates the flower, which emits dream pulses, and puts the Phoenix Five crew into a dreamlike state in the middle of the crucial navigation manoeuvres.

1 - 25 A LITTLE DIFFICULTY

The Phoenix Five, pride of the Earth Space Control Fleet, disappears.

1 - 26 GENERAL ALARM

Roke and his crew are assigned to collect a supposedly reformed tyrant from a prison planet and return him to the Federanians. Platonus plans to use the General to settle with Roke and his crew once and for all, but the General is in possession of a Federanian rod which has hypnotic powers, and he uses it on the Phoenix Five crew. The General attacks Platonus, mistaking him for the Earth Space Controller, which results in his capture. With the General subdued and Platonus captured, Captain Roke is promoted to Head of Earth Defence and Ensign Adam Hargreaves is promoted to Captain of the Phoenix Five. Both want Tina as their assistant.

PHOENIX, THE

The Phoenix centred around: Bennu, an alien visitor to the Earth. Bennu had been discovered in a pre-Incan sarcophagus buried in: Peru. The sarcophagus was transported back to America, where Bennu came back to life. His swiss cheese memory told him that he was an alien sent to Earth from his own dying world to perform some very vital mission, although he could not recall what it was. The scientists decided that he was an ancient astronaut who needed to be studied, while the Peruvian government had him declared a national treasure who had to be returned to Peru. Realising that his mission was not to be studied he managed to escape and find some way to discover what his mission was and then complete it. Bennu had an amulet which gave him an assortment of alien powers.

When The Phoenix returned as a regular series in the spring of 1982, Bennu had learned more about his mission. He had originally had a partner named Mira and it was she whom had the details of their mission - a mission which would somehow save the Earth. Mira, it seems, was buried in some other ancient Indian burial ground, but Bennu had no idea which one. He thus set out on a quest to find her. each week: befriending someone and helping them solve some crisis in their life. Bennu also had to avoid Preminger, a government agent assigned to bring him back for studying.

The character of Noel died in the pilot episode (as love interests often do!). Senor DeVarga was never heard from again, but another regular cast member was added: the evil government agent who was instructed to capture Bennu as any cost. Four more episodes were written in script form, but were never filmed nor aired. The titles for those four episodes were Trail by Fire, Deadly Cargo, Dark Hunter and The Star Needle.

They have not been included in the count of the number of episodes. Born as a 26 Apr 1981 movie special, this was reprised as a short-run series. Bennu was a, emissary from an alien planet with a dying race, who came to earth in the 4th Century A.D. and was preserved in an Andean tomb, being somehow revived by modern Inca-hunting archaeologists. His motivation: to find his partner Mira, buried half-alive somewhere else in the Americas, while protecting the environment with his necklace-worn amulet. Preminger was the government agent tasked with capturing Bennu and putting his powers to work for covert intelligence purposes. The Phoenix was a very short-lived series that was little more than The Fugitive with science fiction elements thrown in. First premiering in 1981 as a made for TV movie. The series was first seen on ABC in the US.

Two of the most difficult things to do in television series production (things that become even more difficult in a science fiction series) are (1) present original ideas and concepts and win network acceptance for them, and (2) broadcast anything that hints of a religious nature that may potentially offend viewers. The Phoenix, at least initially, took on both of these challenges, and it is a tribute to its creators, the husband-and-wife screenwriting team of Anthony and Nancy Lawrence, that the series got off the ground at all. The show did not evolve as they intended, but the genesis of the idea for The Phoenix was "done on a spec basis," says Nancy Lawrence. Lawrence says that she and her husband had read a number of books that discussed the theories of ancient astronauts visiting Earth in the distant past. Most notable were Von Daniken's theories.

Armed with this research, they drew up a treatment for a series idea. "We thought it was a fascinating concept," says Nancy Lawrence. "We thought it might be interesting. Tony told Mark Carliner about it, and Mark said, 'Well, if it's not right for now, it'll be right for later.' So, Mark told Jonathan Axelrod, the head of ABC at the time, and Jonathan read it, and it happened very quickly! It was 24 hours. My husband and I went in, stayed at ABC until 9:00 in the evening, and we went with this. Everybody got behind it. We wrote a script [from the treatment] in six and a half days, and turned it in. They didn't change a line. All they said was, 'We need an antagonist.' That was the network mentality-everything has to be like The Fugitive. We turned the script in, and they liked it, and it went into production."

The pilot was close to what the Lawrences had hoped for. From there, as usual, the network tried to include elements derived from various hit series in an effort to capitalize on their success. In this case, The Fugitive was the template. The Phoenix also bore resemblance to The Incredible Hulk, Starman, The Immortal, and to a certain extent Logan's Run-but then, all these were derivative of The Fugitive as well. "The network was so concerned that there would only be a cult audience," says Lawrence. "They wanted to appeal to everybody, and as it turned out, the pilot received a good rating. The network was very respectful, but they didn't understand the show's nature. It was a big disappointment. What they said they wanted, ultimately, they did not want-they were too scared. When we screened the pilot [with ABC head Tony Tomopoulos], at the end of it, Tomopoulos stood up and applauded. 'We've never had a pilot like this!' But there were too many cooks stirring the broth at ABC. We got many concessions because the network was under the gun, they needed the show immediately. Tony and I wrote five scripts. We let a lot of people in the science fiction business read it [the prospectus], and they said they liked it, but the network began to have second thoughts."

That's when the tide turned between the production of the pilot and the series. When ABC "had more time to think about the series," says Lawrence, "what they wanted was more comic book." Carliner took over as executive producer of the series and introduced the couple to potential staff writers and editors. In the end, because the Lawrences had access to such good literature on ancient astronauts, "we felt we'd be safer going with what had been documented," says Lawrence. The man who took over as story editor, Earl Booth, recalls his brief tenure with this show as "a sorry experience. None of the original material the Lawrences wrote was ever accepted by ABC. The four scripts filmed were completely new scripts. While I was working on The Phoenix, everyone was trying to decide what they wanted to do with the pilot. It was an unsettling period of constant change. There was never a definite direction. I suspect the network was groping for another version of The Fugitive."

"It was one of the most horrible experiences of my career!" declares Larry Alexander, a writer who tried pitching stories to The Phoenix. "Not because of the show itself. It was a horrible experience for almost everybody. My boss, Mike Sullivan, when he first started, was an ABC executive, that's how I met him. One of the shows he was shepherding was The Phoenix, which he considered to be the single worst show he had seen in his entire life. He thought it was so terrible that he has parodied it in about three episodes of the sitcoms Growing Pains and Just the 10 of Us [both of which Sullivan produced]. Earl Booth was a terrific guy. He was one of the few story editors who didn't write. He literally was a story editor. He called me in and gave me an assignment. I turned in the story, and he called me up and said, 'It's wonderful-go to script.' And ten minutes later he called me back and said, 'Cancel that!' I said, 'You just gave me a script commitment.' He said, 'I'll deny it.' I said, 'What? What's going on?'

He said, 'I can't tell you.' I said, 'Excuse me?' He said, 'Larry, please ... don't make an issue of it. I can't tell you. I'm in a very bad position. The powers that be don't like the story and I was unauthorized to give you a go ahead. Blame me if you want. I can't help it.' And I said, 'OK.' And I didn't talk to him for ten years, needless to say. And I was working on another ABC show at the time, Breaking Away [1980-1981]. I also got cut off on a story with Breaking Away, and both of these stories were very good. It took me ten years to find out that an executive at ABC, who, when we were kids, I had punched in the face, had taken vengeance. He was able to cut me out of both assignments, which I found fascinating."

When it comes to the Lawrences' goals in creating the show, Nancy says, "We tried to be provocative to the extent that it opened minds to look at things that happened long ago. We wanted people to at least think. We took that point of view. We weren't peddling our philosophy. We were saying, 'This is a possibility. This is the evidence discovered that we have no answers to.'" The protagonist, Bennu, as played by actor Judson Scott, was meant to be a reversal of many characters presented in Twilight Zone, who tended to be ordinary people in extraordinary circumstances. Bennu was an expression of the reverse: an extraordinary being transplanted into the ordinary life of modern-day Earth. Bennu was a compassionate, charismatic and benevolent man in search of his wife, Mira, ("our one-armed man," says Nancy Lawrence), who he believed was buried somewhere in North America at an Indian burial site. His only lead to her location was a small Indian stone symbol.

This ancient astronaut had powers beyond those of mortal men, aided by a golden medallion on his neck. This medallion was the centerpiece quite literally-of the character and of the show. With it, Bennu's body soaked in solar rays, which could be released as energy from his fingertips. In times of danger, when earthlings would aim guns or swing chains at him, he would grasp the medallion with one hand and aim the other against his enemy. Bennu could also read other people's minds, communicate with animals and levitate. "He simply went to sleep many years ago, woke up and [found] things much worse than they were when he went to sleep," points out Lawrence. "In other words, we have not progressed or improved. It was a tough thing because we didn't want him preachy."

We talked to Judson about the character a lot. Judson was passed by the network. They wanted someone to look all-American, which I don't think he did. Judson had a very interesting oddness about him. He did certain things during his screen test that the network didn't like, and they said, 'He can never do this again.' The taboos began to mount up. For example, Judson would wave his hands or move them as he tried to explain something. He was trying to get beyond the words. The network said, 'Tell him to keep his hands to his side.' They were frightened of the messianic imagery in the gestures. Also, there was a scene [in the pilot] where he's at the ocean and he runs into the water and disappears.

Bennu, being from a different time, has no hangups. Judson was wearing these green surgical rags, the clothes the doctors were using when he got out of the hospital. At the beach, he became ill, so he goes into the water to re-oxygenate. We showed clips of him taking off his shirt, dropping his pants. He was stark naked, and from a long shot from the cliffs we photographed him running toward the water. We got it at a perfect time of day. The sun was going down and it made him a backlit silhouette, and the network, which had initially approved of it, nearly had a stroke. Mark Carliner told us, 'Cut it!'"

Lawrence wanted the scene to emphasize that this was a person "just joining the Earth. He was childlike and wanted to keep that quality." Lawrence confesses that the series eventually bore little resemblance to original intent. "In the pilot, we took a lot of time to keep anything from being pretentious, a disaster in science fiction. We told the network, 'You have a series here, but it has little to do with an ancient astronaut.' There are certain political things that are always in place. And you can't fight them. It's not the network's fault, because they don't understand science fiction or didn't at the time."

The idealized vision of The Phoenix was quite different from what appeared on television, according to Nancy Lawrence. She says, "This was a man who was looking to contact his people. He was very homesick. The network had already decided it had to be a road show, i.e., The Fugitive, so he roamed from town to town. That brought a different flavor. The network wanted someone chasing Bennu, and we said, 'Not the police, not the CIA,' and we came up with a character that Tony and I liked very much who was somebody who had been sent to terminate Bennu [Justin Preminger, played by veteran villain actor Richard Lynch]. He was like the dark side of this planet, but the network [softened him]. Tony and I wrote five scripts, we were paid for them [but they were never used]. The network felt they were too risky, or maybe they just hated them."

One of the original scripts "had to do with the South. There was one with Bennu breaking the law in the South and being in a chain gang. That's what the network wanted, but we added something to it which brought out his whole difference in philosophy. We wanted him always to make that difference."

Synopses of the unfilmed scripts bear out the Lawrences' original version. One of them, "Trial by Fire," is credited to Richard Christian Matheson and Thomas Szollosi. According to the synopsis, Bennu, "nearly disabled by solar flares, and in extreme pain ... stows away on a small plane, hiding in the cargo bay. When it then crashes in the desert he and the five passengers (and crew) must work together to stay alive. Bennu helps them all survive while at the same time helping to heal the emotional breach between a father and son."

Another one, titled "The Face of an Angel," which bears no author credit, had Bennu "receiving a psychic message from his home planet (Eldobran). Bennu sickens. With scientist Frazier's help he learns of Mira and also about 'people' from his own planet who mean them harm. Bennu goes to Tullner, Texas, to find Mira only to discover she's been kidnapped by the evil people. While he tries to find her he becomes involved in drugs and murder."

But two scripts credited to Anthony and Nancy Lawrence brought other shades of Bennu to the surface. In "Deadly Cargo," "Bennu covertly climbs on board a truck hauling toxic waste in Georgia. Thrown from the truck, he hits his head and wakes with amnesia. Taken prisoner as a hijacker, he ends up on a work farm where he comes to the aid of the Warden's too-young and questionably-retarded young wife-Willow. Freeing himself from the prison, he and Willow attempt to dispose of the toxic waste that is killing people ... and causing Bennu's continuing amnesia and health problems."

In "The Star Needle," Bennu is found "wandering near a Kansas City zoo, and becomes involved with a young mother-to-be, Regan, and her special baby. When her drunken husband is murdered, Bennu must protect both of them from the killer. Preminger sweeps upon Bennu and captures him. He escapes their trap, though, to again rescue Regan from her would-be-murderers."

When the swift ax of cancellation fell down, "Judson was in a lot of pain," recalls Lawrence. "Once I got a call from him at 2 a.m. from New York. He was knocked out by its cancellation." Describing Bennu's goals on Earth, Lawrence notes that "Bennu was a man who came from a different culture. We didn't want a talky thing where he imparted his culture and was a Jesus figure. We did episodes where he was mistaken about our culture. We can only speculate on why these people came to Earth, and maybe they're still here, and that scared the hell out of everybody." Perhaps that fear inspired ABC network's second thoughts about this series.

Lawrence goes so far as to say that Bennu's mission changed from its original goal. "Tony and I wrote a whole prospectus on it, but I don't think the network even read it. They wanted more of a simplistic children's show, and then The Fugitive thing came in. We felt it had to be more of an anthology, to have the latitude to bring in other characters from this planet and from his. But the network put it within stricter bounds and it didn't work."

The aftermath of The Phoenix's debut on television didn't end the interest in the show, Lawrence recalls. "We had people writing to us saying they were from certain planets, and they said Judson was from that planet also. They truly believed they were from another planet." Sometimes, people forget the enormous power of television.

CAST NOTES

Judson Scott (Bennu): After a notable part in Star Trek 11: The Wrath of Khan (1982), Scott kept busy with guest roles, many in science fiction television shows like Powers of Matthew Star, Greatest American Hero, Star Trek: The Next Generation and Babylon 5.

Richard Lynch (Preminger): Lynch has almost always appeared as a villain. He's known for many TV and feature roles. He was the main baddy in Invasion USA (1985) with Chuck Norris. TV appearances include Serpico, Streets of San Francisco, Buck Rogers, The A Team, Hunter, and Starsky and Hutch. He also played Xavier in Galactica 1980's premiere episodes.

WR. Anthony Lawrence, Leigh Vance, Mark Caliner, David Guthrie Douglas.

DIR. Douglas Hickox, Reza Badiyi.

EPISODES: 5 YEAR MADE: 1982 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

ABC/MARK CARLINER PRODUCTIONS, INC.

CREATOR: ANTHONY AND NANCY LAWRENCE

TYPE OF SHOW: ALIENS ON EARTH FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 60 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 5

DATE OF PREMIER: AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Bennu JUDSON SCOTT, Dr. Ward Frazier E.G. MARSHALL, Senor Diego DeVarga FERNANDO ALLENDE, Noel SHELLEY SMITH (Pilot Episode Only), Justin Perminger RICHARD LYNCH (except pilot episodes).

1 - 1 THE PHOENIX (90 MIN PILOT)

1 - 2 IN SEARCH OF MIRA

Bennu befriends a farming family after he witnesses a drug-related murder and must seek refuge.

Wr Leigh Vance

Dir Douglas Hickox

1 - 3 ONE OF THEM

Preminger is close on the heels of Bennu. The ancient astronaut believes Mira is his long-lost wife is still in suspended animation in an Indian Burial Site.

Wr Mark Carliner

Dir Reza Badiyi

1 - 4 A PRESENCE OF EVIL

Terrorists that are plotting to transport stolen uranium threaten Bennu and a family who runs the horse stables where Bennu is working.

Wr David Guthrie

Dir Douglas Hickox

1 - 5 THE FIRE WITHIN

Seeking Mira's burial site at a state park, Bennu gets a job at a construction site. He learns that the boss may be a victim of a swindle.

Wr David Guthrie

Dir Reza Badiyi

PHOTON

PHOTON is what happens when you turn paintball into an indoor infrared laser sporting event, base a science fiction TV show around said sporting event, license every chart-topping pop single from 1980 to 1986 to accompany said show, realize by licensing said music you've blown your entire production budget, and resolve the matter by transforming every proposed set into a low-budget miniature and superimposing your actors over it using 1980s "green screen" technology. In other words, PHOTON was the greatest show ever. Even better than the Thanksgiving episode of CHEERS with the food fight and better than every episode of GARFIELD AND FRIENDS except maybe the one where the foley guy quits and Odie gets hired to do all the sound effects. Did I mention that when the PHOTON production staff wasn't choreographing high-octane action sequences to Michael Jackson and The Rolling Stones, the guys who would eventually executive produce the POWER RANGERS series were jamming away on the synthesizers?

It could only happen in the 80's. Take one of America's fastest rising animation studios. Add the notion of doing a scifi kids show entirely in Japan just to capture the campiness of Japanese directing. Use mostly bluescreen sets to shoot on. And finally, base the entire show on the fad phenomenon of the 80's Photon Laser Gaming and this is what you get. In typical 80's fashion you get 30 minute stories with some decent action and attempt at entertainment (they really did try folks.) which also in typical 80s fashion bodyslam you with a moral message come the end. What wasn't so typical was the fact that it was probably the only kids show to feature knock offs of popular 80's hits, okay this show and that blasted Kidd Video, but anyway what could be better than watching a cool teen space warrior blasting at bad guys with Photon guns and doing cool gymnastics with other colorful space warriors to "Danger Zone". Well its gone now, or maybe not, perhaps when DIC gets its "Entertainment Network" going (whenever that is) they will revive this little gem for the new generation to gawk at.

Most 80's kid-vid had a moral tacked onto the end. Not so with Photon. Photon beat you senseless with a moral lesson each week and then used the moral as a blunt object to nail your coffin shut at the very end. Someone call CSI! Topics varied from being responsible to not doing drugs. Of course there was plenty of violence along the way. In the show there are the forces of light (represented by MOM, Bhodi Li, and the rest of the Photon Warriors) and the forces of dark (represented by the Warlord of Arr and his minions whose names all ended in arr... Mandarr, Buggarr (who had a british accent), etc. Shown to the right is Bohdi Li (aka Christopher Jarvis). The show was actually very much like.. well it was like nothing else. Gratuitous Chroma-Key-Fu all over the place! Strangely enough if a Arrian was killed he just returned to the Warrlord of Arr as he was not there, but rather a projection of him. The good guys had no such advantage. if they got killed they stayed dead. However none of them ever did ;)

It seems that each solar system has a photon crystal. This crystal shines light on the solar system for 100 years, then it needs to be re-charged. (They should have gone with Duracell!) The Photon warriors race there to charge it with light. The Warlord sends out his minions out to charge the crystal with darkness. It is almost always a race or obstacle course to see who can find and charge the crystal first. It seems the the warlord only sends out holographic representations of his henchmen so when you shoot them they simply go back home. however MOM sends real people into battles so should they get shot they go home in a body bag. Of course no one good ever dies in this series. I have about 1/3 of the series on videotape. Most in the 2hr speed in hi-fi stereo. I would love to trade for more. When I get the time I will do some frame grabs. Shown to the left is probably the best of the moster suits. Bugarr. A play on a very naughty british word. Hey he was a bug.. what else could he have been called? Bet this never made it to England! The worst of the monsters was the green space pirate! Arrrrr Arrrrr!

Produced by Jean Chalopin executive producer, Andy Heyward executive producer, Tetsuo Katayama executive producer

Original Music by Shuki Levy & Haim Saban

Film Editing by Susan Jenkins

Art Direction by Akihiko Takahashi

Sound Department - Osamu Matsumoto first assistant sound recordist

Special Effects by Shinji Aramaki miniatures

Other crew - George Carter based on the game PHOTON created by, Satoru Kobayashi technical director, Osamu Nakamura story editor
Akira Tsugi assistant lighting engineer

Other Companies - Aoi Studio editing facilities, Eizo Tsuushin editing facilities, Glovision editing facilities, Nikkatsu Studio video studio.

The show was originally expected to have another season when filming was completed.

WR. Ray Dryden, Tsunehisa Itô , Satoshi Namiki , Sukehiro Tomita.

DIR. Yasuhiro Horiuchi , Koichi Nakajima

EPISODES: 26 YEAR MADE: 1984 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

DIC ENTERPRISES, EUREKA PRODUCTIONS INC.

CREATOR: SATURO KOBYAHSHI

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 0 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 26

DATE OF PREMIER: AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Bhodi LI CHRISTOPHER LOCKWOOD, Tivia, Princess of Nivia LORETTA HAYWOOD, Lord Beatham GRAHAM RAVEY, Parcival EROS RIVERS, Leon AKIYOSHI ONO, Uncle Pike KAZUHISA KANAMURA, Kathy Jarvis CLARISSA REID, Barbara Johnson TAMARA JOHNSON, Richard Jarvis PAUL LAROQUE, Pirarr SAM TAYLOR, Mandarr DAVID ANTHONY, . Warriarr SATOSHI ISHIHARA, Dogarr TEIICHI IGARASHI, Bugarr YOSHIO SHIRAISHI, . Destructarr YOSHITO NAGATSUKA, Photon Earth (voice) JUNKO TAKEUCHI.

Books Based on this series.

EXILE	DAVID PETERS	1987
FOR THE GLORY	DAVID PETERS
HIGH STAKES	DAVID PETERS
IN SEARCH OF MOM	DAVID PETERS	1987
PHOTON: THE OFFICIAL HANDBOOK
SKIN DEEP	DAVID PETERS	1988
THEIVES OF LIGHT	MICHAEL HUDSON	1987
THIS IS YOUR LIFE, BHODI LI	DAVID PETERS	1987

- 1 - 1 RECRUIT
- 1 - 2 A GRAVE MATTER
- 1 - 2 FRIENDS & ENEMIES
- 1 - 3 IF AT FIRST YOU DON'T SUCCEED
- 1 - 4 JUST FOR FUN
- 1 - 5 THE LIGHT FLICKERS
- 1 - 6 LOST TIME
- 1 - 7 MAZE OF FEAR
- 1 - 8 MINDZAPPER

- 1 - 9 NECESSITY & INVENTION (PART 1 OF 2)
- 1 - 10 NECESSITY & INVENTION (PART 2 OF 2)
- 1 - 11 NIVIAN CHALLENGE
- 1 - 12 NO LAUGHING MATTER
- 1 - 13 ONE OF KIND
- 1 - 14 REBEL OF CYBORGS
- 1 - 16 THE RIGHT TIME
- 1 - 17 THE ROAD NOT TAKEN
- 1 - 18 SKIN DEEP
- 1 - 19 SPACE TERROR
- 1 - 20 THINK QUICK
- 1 - 21 UNITED WE STAND
- 1 - 22 "UNTITLED" 1
- 1 - 23 "UNTITLED" 2
- 1 - 24 "UNTITLED" 3
- 1 - 25 "UNTITLED" 4
- 1 - 26 STALEMATE

PIG HEART BOY

Furutistic drama about 13 year old Cameron Kelsey who is unable to have a human heart transplant, so his father proposes an alternative solution, a pigs heart.

The series was produced by Diane Kyle. This is a slightly unusual Science Fiction show because although not set in the future, the series discusses scientific matter which are on the fringe of medical science, in this case the use of a pigs heart for a boy waiting for a transplant, almost nearly science fact, not science fiction. The series covers mostly the traumatizing effect of this deceision, whether our young hero will or won't take the heart.

An unusual SF show for the BBC which is more drama than Science Fiction, the show is well made, with some good acting by all of the cast leaves this as a top quality SF drama from the BBC, even if it lacks the science.

At a time when the rural/fantasy axis of children's drama is ever more dependent on co-productions (enjoyable though they may often be) and the urban/contemporary/realist axis has largely been brought down to a soapified Grange Hill and Byker Grove, with no identifiable beginnings or endings, the arrival of this adaptation of Malorie Blackman's novel, a runner-up for the 1998 Carnegie Medal, was welcome. The fact that all the central characters are black shouldn't matter, but with the pressure to represent an outmoded vision of Britain that co-productions tend to bring on, unfortunately it does.

If there's a problem with PHB, it's the music (too soft and not dramatic enough) and the fact that it can sometimes seem a little too worthy, the dialogue occasionally resembling "dramatised position-papers", as Mark Lawson said in The Guardian. Sometimes you want the greater viscerality we had in the '80s from the likes of Running Scared or Break in the Sun. But ...

Pig Heart Boy - basically about a 13-year-old who has to have a pig's heart transplant to live - was a very well-acted and well-written piece. It may have had quite a few contemporary references (Chelsea FC, the Vengaboys playing in the first episode) but it didn't suffer anything like as much as it might have done from the '90s' most abiding trend in children's TV, the imbuing of it with "hipness" at the expense of more enduring dramatic values. Although the overall look of Pig Heart Boy was still glossier than I'd have preferred, it managed to get across Cameron's feelings of betrayal towards Marlon when the story was sold to the tabloids, and his feelings that he had to achieve certain targets in football and swimming, even if he endangered his life, much better than some of us feared. The attack on Cameron by an animal-rights extremist at the end of episode five was a very effective cliffhanger, as well.

After reaching a low point of depression in the final episode, Cameron's awareness of his grandmother's mortality convinced him to carry on (a genuine learning curve for him, as opposed to the ongoing soaps, with their fast-moving, unreflective quality). The final scene, with the birth of Cameron's baby brother, was, admittedly, weak and rather sappy in its execution. But I anticipated the last episode with something close to the anticipation I had as a child, which must say something positive.

WR.

DIR. Kate Cheeseman

EPISODES: 6 YEAR MADE: 1999 COUNTRY: GB SEASONS: 1

A BBC PRODUCTION

CREATOR: MALORIE BLACKMAN (Based on Novel)

TYPE OF SHOW: MEDICAL

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 25 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 6

DATE OF PREMIER: 02/12/1999

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 23/12/1999

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Cameron Kelsey MARLON YEARWOOD, Tyler Kelsey PATRICK ROBINSON, Cathy Kelsey CLARE PERKINS, Nan Preston MONA HAMMOND, Professor Rae SIMON WILLIAMS, Marlon Bainbridge JONATHAN DE HERIT, Dr. Elstien KATE LYNN-EVANS, John Bainbridge MICHAEL LUMSDEN, Erica Bainbridge GEORGIA MITCHELL.

Books Based on this series.

PIG HEART BOY

MALORIE BLACKMAN

When 13 year-old Cameron Kelsey is unable to have a human heart transplant, his father proposes an alternative solution.

Wr Malorie Blackman

1 - 2

Cameron visits the medical research centre and makes a new friend, but it is a phone call that eventually helps him decide about their transplant.

Wr Malorie Blackman

1 - 3

Cameron has last-minute nerves about his operation, but with everyone's support it goes ahead.

Wr Malorie Blackman

1 - 4

Cameron's life is not as good as it should be. First, he has to face the press, then his friends turn against him. How will he ever forgive Marion?

Wr Malorie Blackman

1 - 5

Cameron discovers the dangers of swimming.

Wr Carolyn Sally Jones

1 - 6

Is another pig heart transplant the only way that Cameron's life can be saved?

Wr Carolyn Sally Jones

PIGS BREAKFAST

Crash landing their space ship, aliens from outer space become actors on a small time television show when the audience thinks that it is all staged.

A side splitting childrens tv show, it is along the story of aliens that have crashed into earth and two kids, Rodney and Lucy have found them, but have told no-one! Something went bad though. The UFO actually crashes at a tv studio. Everything goes great, except one of the TV's producers finds them (think the aliens are costumes) and puts them on a tv show with her son, Rodney, Lucy and the aliens -meeba and grob. The tv-series, goes on with different stories each time. Rodney Green -played by Nick Russell, does an absolute fantastic job of acting.

Produced by Susie Campbell .. Producer

Cinematography by Michael Bowker & Roger Dowling

Casting by Nick Hamon (1999-2000)

Art Department - Simon McCutcheon .. Assistant art director

Sound Department - Emma Bortignon .. Dialogue editor , Emma Bortignon .. Sound editor , Colin Swan .. Boom operator

Other crew - Rowena Crowe .. Assistant editor, Bruce Phillips .. Director of photography: second unit, Warren Tiedgen .. Camera operator

2000 Won Awgie Award Children's - Children's Screen Adaption - Kym Goldsworthy - For episode "Grob's Clan Club".

WR. Clare Madsen

DIR. Ralph Strasser

EPISODES: 78 YEAR MADE: 1999 COUNTRY: AUS SEASONS: 2

9 NETWORK

CREATOR: CLARE MADSEN

TYPE OF SHOW: ALIENS ON EARTH FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 25 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 52, (2) 26

DATE OF PREMIER: 05/07/1999 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 22/10/2000

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN: Season 1 : 05/07/1999 - 01/11/1999

Season 2 : 05/09/2000 - 22/10/2000

FILMS:

Rodney Green NICK RUSSELL, Lucy Green EVE MOREY, Grob HEATH MCIVOR, Meeba JENNIFER PRIEST, Queegle GEORGE KAPINIARIS, Queegle PHILIP MILLOR, . Phillip Bailey JEREMY HOPKINS, Di Bailey LYNDA GIBSON, Sue Green ANNIE JONES, Martin Green FRANCIS GREENSLADE, Nancy PETA BRADY, Mr. Howard GARY FILES, Mr. Pratt ERNIE GRAY, Malcolm Wilson GEOFF PAINE, MERRIDY EASTMAN, JAN FRIEDL, KATE GORMAN, SOPHIE HEATHCOTE, HAMISH HUGHES, JACKIE KELLEHER, JEREMY KEWLEY, MATTHEW KING, CAMERON MACDONALD, MONICA MAUGHAN, MARK NEAL, TERRY NORRIS, REBECCA RITTERS, SULLIVAN STAPLETON, WILLIAM TEN EYCK.

1 - 1 THE ALIENS HAVE LANDED

Crash landing their space ship, aliens from outer space become actors on a small time television show when the audience thinks that it is all staged.

Dir Esben Storm

1 - 2 DOWN TO EARTH

1 - 3 HAPPY FAMILIES

1 - 4 ALIEN HOST

1 - 5 GREED

-
- 1 - 6 SICK
 - 1 - 7 SECURITY
 - 1 - 8 ACTING ADULT
 - 1 - 9 THE HORROR
 - 1 - 10 LOVE SMELLS
 - 1 - 11 TIT FOR TAT
 - 1 - 12 HAPPY VAT DAY
 - 1 - 13 BULLY FOR YOU
 - 1 - 14 THE MONSTER PIMPLE
 - 1 - 15 TRUTH & LIES
 - 1 - 16 ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE
 - 1 - 17 NO MORE MR NICE GUY
 - 1 - 18 THE AGE OF RODNEY
 - 1 - 19 ZOMBIE MIND SLAVE FROM PLANET EARTH
 - 1 - 20 QUEEGLE'S BIG DAY OUT
 - 1 - 21 I'M THE BOSS
 - 1 - 22 NOW YOU SEE IT, NOW YOU DON'T
 - 1 - 23 FACE OFF
 - 1 - 24 TO CATCH A THIEF
 - 1 - 25 QUEEGLE'S MUTINY
 - 1 - 26 SHOCK HORROR
 - 1 - 27 ONLY ACTING
 - 1 - 28 BROG
 - 1 - 29 COUSIN JANE
 - 1 - 30 HEY, HEY WE'RE THE ALIENS
 - 1 - 31 TO DI FOR
 - 1 - 32 TROUBLE WITH TIME
 - 1 - 33 RACE AROUND KID'S BREAKFAST
 - 1 - 34 LOST
 - 1 - 35 ALIEN HOME ALONE
 - 1 - 36 GROB'S CLAN CLUB
 - 1 - 37 PLAAG ATTACKS
 - 1 - 38 THE SWITCHEROO
 - 1 - 39 THE COMPETITION

As a promotion the Kids Breakfast show decides to run a competition with a difference. The prize being a date with Marguerite! Rodney is determined that he is going to win the date and will stop at nothing - including rigging the competition.

- 1 - 40 LOVESICK

There is a new boy at the school and Lucy falls head over heels in love with him at first sight. Meeba and Rodney though are not too sure that he is such a great guy - but Lucy won't listen to them. Lucy though learns the hard way about him when she is helping him with his homework.

1 - 41 THE NAKED TRUTH

The Kid's Breakfast is known for being a fun and exciting show - so why would someone want to change it? It is up to Queegle and his powerful truth ray to prove who is out to destroy the show.

1 - 42 FOOD

When an off-handed comment sends Grob on a diet he gets fixated on loosing weight. Everyone around him though thinks he is taking it too far and have to help him out.

1 - 43 PSYCHIC MEDIA

Phillip finds himself caught in the middle after Rodney and Lucy accidentally make it appear that he has psychic powers.

How will Phillip and the gang explain this one when it is Meeba who has the real power?

1 - 44 CLEAN UP YOUR ACT

The show's format is once again under attack when the producer Di calls in sick. A new producer is bought in to oversee the show and she has a lot of new ideas.

1 - 45 DIVIDE AND CONQUER

Kid's Breakfast is getting more and more popular and the show gets the thumbs up when Grob and Meeba are voted the most popular aliens. This however sends mixed feelings with their friends as Phillip feels that it isn't fair they get all the credit.

1 - 46 SLEEP

Grob is frightened out of his life when he is trapped inside the Space Bus and it is going to explode. At the last minute Rodney appears but will he reach Grob in time? Does Rodney really need to?

1 - 47 THE BOGIES

Friendships are put to the test when only two of them can be nominated for a TV award.

1 - 48 SCRAMBLED BRAIN

A scientist has found out that the aliens are well - aliens. He has a plan to use them in his laboratory in order to conduct experiments on them.

1 - 49 THE PROBLEM WITH PHILIP

No longer the star of the show, Philip has walked out because he feels that the others aren't thinking of his feelings. He gets a plan together in order for the others to be nicer to him so the show can go on.

1 - 50 WHO'S WHO

An interesting and hilarious problem occurs when Queegle tries out one of his new inventions - which sees everyone switch personalities!

1 - 51 THE ETEES

Rodney and Lucy feel left out when Grob, Queegle and Meeba decide to head to Hollywood in order to gain fortune and even more fame.

1 - 52 SUSPENDED ANIMATION IS EASY

Meeba is homesick at the possibility that the space bus may never be repaired. Seeing how she feels, the others decide to make believe that they will be going home and Meeba (for a short time at least) believes them.

2 - 1 RESCUE

2 - 2 THE GRUB WITH FOUR BRAINS

2 - 3 SECRET LIFE OF FAMILIES

2 - 4 SPACE PIRATE TV

2 - 5 THE WALLS HAVE EARS

2 - 6 FLY, RODNEY, FLY

2 - 7 GREAT BIG ADVENTURE

- 2 - 8 THE DREAM MACHINE
- 2 - 9 MEEBARELLA
- 2 - 10 GO FOR BROKE
- 2 - 11 TRUE ROMANCE
- 2 - 12 MEEBA'S LIFE ON EARTH
- 2 - 13 LOSS & REJECTION
- 2 - 14 TELL SOMEONE WHO CARES
- 2 - 15 THE GRIM GRAM
- 2 - 16 WHO AM I?
- 2 - 17 THE PLAY OFF
- 2 - 18 THE OPPOSITE OF MEEBA
- 2 - 19 IT'S THE THOUGHT THAT
- 2 - 20 SHOW ME THE MONEY
- 2 - 21 WITH FRIENDS LIKE THESE
- 2 - 22 QUEEN FOR A DAY
- 2 - 23 LOSE A SISTER GAIN A FRIEND
- 2 - 24 MONKEY BUSINESS
- 2 - 25 TRAPPED
- 2 - 26 ANYTHING'S POSSIBLE

PIRX KALANDJAIAKA: THE ADVENTURES OF PIRX

Sci-Fi TV series based on Stanislaw Lem's novels. A good series with superb main title music. In Lem's books always the human is in perspective: this series was created keeping that in mind. Pilot Pirx is a bit clumsy - so he is a lovable character, as he just like us - and he always manages to get around the obstacles here and there with luck or logics somehow.

The visual appearance is primitive and from this distance almost pathetic (flying bread boxes, flowerpots appearing as buildings), but keep in mind that trick shots of other sci-fi series at that time (1972) wasn't better either. Of course we watch it differently in this CGI era, although all we need is just a bit of power of conception. The acting is a little theatrical sometimes, but one can cope with it.

Someone, who watches Space: 1999 and older Star Treks could enjoy this too. And go for reading Lem's books. What Clarke or Asimov is in the western regions, Lem is the same on the east side.

Series Original Music by Pink Floyd.

Series Film Editing by György Somogyi.

Series Production Design by Sándor Nagy.

Series Set Decoration by Zsuzsa Schartner.

Series Costume Design by Éva Witz.

Series Makeup Department - János Németh .. Makeup artist.

Series Production Management - István Sike .. Production manager.

Series Art Department - Pál Wind .. Construction manager.

Series Sound Department - György Jáger .. Sound engineer.

Series Special Effects by Béla Bognár .. Spaceship designer and constructor.

Series Camera and Electrical Department - Zoltán Becsy .. Camera operator , Lajos Békési .. Chief lighting technician, János Bucsi .. Camera operator , Endre Pintér .. Camera operator , László Zentai .. Camera operator.

Series Costume and Wardrobe Department - Anna Indig .. Wardrobe.

Series Editorial Department - Tamás Tanos .. Color timer.

Series Other crew - József Békés .. Script editor, János Dinnyei .. Technical supervisor , István Farkas .. Assistant to director , László Farkas .. Associate, Gábor Kertész .. Associate, Ferenc Lovass .. Assistant to director, Ernő Mihályi .. Associate , László Nagy .. Recording leader , Lajos Oláh .. Location manager , Ferenc Ormos .. Associate , Imre Rajnógel .. Associate, Erzsébet Zsedényi .. Associate.

WR. Stanislaw Lem , András Rajnai , László Varga.

DIR. István Kazán, András Rajnai.

EPISODES: 5 YEAR MADE: 1973 COUNTRY: HUN SEASONS: 1

*MAGYAR TELEVIZIO MUVELODESI FOSZERKESZTOSEG (MTV)CREATOR: STANISLAW LEMTYPE OF SHOW: EXPLORATIONFORMAT: SERIASLENGTH (MINS): 55 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: HungarianSEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 5DATE OF PREMIER:*AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE*SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:*FILMS:

Pirx JANOS PAPP, Glória SZILVIA SUNYOVSKY, ANDRAS BALINT, ISTVAN FARADY, ISTVAN HORVATH, ILDIKO SOLYOM, NANDOR TOMANEK.

- 1 - 1 DIPLOMAVIZSGA
- 1 - 2 A GALILEI-ÁLLOMÁS REJTÉLYE
- 1 - 3 VÍKEND A MARSON
- 1 - 4 TERMINUSZ A KORONATANU
- 1 - 5 AKCIÓ 127 ÓRA 25-KOR

PLANET MIRTH

A Comedy series which focus on four individuals who travel across space, in their clapped out spaceship. The four individuals were just supposed to be going on holiday, when they get into all sorts of problems in space.

Perhaps one of the worst shows, that Britain has ever produced in terms of comedy SF, the series is mostly a group of sketches put together in a poorly conceived plot thread. The sketches are not in the least bit humorous, and most or very poorly acted, easily a forgettable show. ITV is inviting early morning audiences to blast off to Planet Mirth. The sketch show stars four spaced out comedians as astronauts, aliens and dubious forms of human life.

Among them is Ben Moor, a veteran of Saturday Night Armistice and Fist of Fun who came recommended after performing several science fiction comedy routines at the Edinburgh festival. Much of the writing had been done before the performers landed on Planet Mirth, but they were given some freedom to come up with their own characters.

A lot of the show is more realistic than fantastical, thanks to a tight budget and a resolve not to alienate (!) a wider audience. Perhaps the most science fictional of the recurring sketches is set in the familiar surroundings of a space ship. But Planet Mirth being slightly unusual, the characters are on a caravan holiday. In order to complete the 20 episode run for the series the crew were given just 10 weeks of shooting time, leading to the series' director to be increasingly frustrated by the lack of time and money for the production.

Insane, surreal, Pythonesque spoof show consisting of a series of sketches, all with a science-fiction theme. Ongoing threads include: the radioactive Venusian girl adopted by Earth parents; an enthusiastic science teacher who can't get a word out of his class; Every Single Morning daytime TV show with phone-ins from around the Solar System.

WR.

DIR. Ken Webb

EPISODES: 20 YEAR MADE: 1997 COUNTRY: GB SEASONS: 1

CARLTON/SCI-FI CHANNEL

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: COMEDY

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 25 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 20

DATE OF PREMIER:

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

EMMA KENNEDY, RUDY LICKWOOD, BEN MOOR, MILTON JONES.

PLANET OF THE APES

Like the film series, Planet of the Apes deals with Earth in the distant future where apes have become the rulers of the planet and men are inferior to them. Man's scientific knowledge has all but been lost and both apes and men live in a world not unlike mediaeval times. Like the first two films in the theatrical series, a pair of American astronauts pass through a time warp and land on the future version of the Earth where they become hunted by the apes who rule it.

In the TV series the two astronauts are Alan Virdon and Pete Burke. Their spaceship had been launched in the year 1980 and ended up returning to Earth in the year 3085, with the pair having only aged less than a day. Their spaceship crash-lands and they are able to salvage the ship's flight records. But, they have no means of playing them back. The pair immediately become hunted by the apes in charge-Dr. Zaius, head of the apes governing council and General Urko- the leader of the apes military, who makes capturing the astronauts a personal obsession.

Virdon and Burke are befriended by a chimpanzee named Galen (played by Roddy McDowell, who had appeared as a different ape in the feature films). The trio embark on a quest to try and find some means of playing back the astronauts' flight records- which may give them some clue how to return to their own time- and avoid being captured by Urko and his soldiers. In other words a variation of The Fugitive.

A less-successful spin-off of the films, which were adapted from a novel of the same name by Pierre Boulle. An animated spin-off of the TV spin-off of the film adaptation of the novel was "Beyond the Planet of the Apes", on NBC from September 1975 to September 1976. Roddy McDowell has starred in numerous science fiction shows including BATMAN and THE FANTASTIC JOURNEY. Mark Lenard is more famous for playing Mr. Spock's father Sarek, in STAR TREK and STAR TREK: THE NEXT GENERATION. Roddy McDowell actually reprised his role as Galen from the Planet of the Apes films.

1974 adventure series based on the hugely successful film of the same name, with Ape star Roddy McDowell recreating his sympathetic role as the young chimp Galen. But though essentially aimed at providing action entertainment for a family audience, the series did retain some of the flavour of Pierre Boulle's original allegorical novel, making a few trenchant observations on man's morality, prejudices and fears through the creation of the ape society in which orang-utans were the ruling class, gorillas the muscle-headed enforcers and chimpanzees the intellectuals. This aspect of the series was not lost on the British critics who gave it their blessing.

It is the thoughtful chimp Galen who befriends the astronauts and becomes their ally in the flight from the gorilla leader Urko. The other leading ape is the orang-utan councillor Zaius who spends much of his time trying to moderate the excesses of Urko. Roddy McDowell and the other 'ape' actors endured gruelling three-and-a-half hour make-up sessions to achieve the distinctive simian look.

Planet of the Apes premiered in Britain in October 1974 for a run that included most of the ITV network, and the series was a great success, regularly pulling in audiences of up to 12 million. But in America it achieved a modest 27 per cent rating - three below the required minimum - and paymasters CBS abruptly halted production after just 14 of the scheduled 24 episodes, leaving the story hanging (literally) in mid-air. Repeat runs on Channel Four in 1993 and Bravo in 1996.

Loosely based on the series of successful films that began with Planet of the Apes, the TV series that bears the same name is not a continuation of the theatrical series (remember the world was destroyed in the second film) but rather a series based on the novel of the same name by Pierre Boulle.

CBS had ordered the series due to the rating success of the theatrical films when they had aired them. The TV series was not the ratings success that the films were and was cancelled after half a season. The following year NBC produced an animated TV series entitled Return to the Planet of the Apes that lasted one season. The animated version featured three astronauts. Bill, Jeff and Judy, becoming stranded on the planet of the apes. Their apes were a bit more technologically advanced than they were in the films or live action TV series. The five films in the Planet of the Apes theatrical series are also included in this guide, as are the animated adventures. Both the theatrical movies and the five episode compilations are often run on independent TV stations one each weeknight as part of a Planet of the Apes theme week.

The series producer was Stan Hough, executive producer was Herbert Hirschman and the make up was created by Dan Striepeke. The series was run in the UK from the 13th October 1974 - 19th January 1975, on London Weekend Television.

Planet of the Ape's death at the hands of CBS after only 14 episodes of the proposed 24 is another of those regrettable commercial decisions that have so often blighted US and, to a lesser extent, British television. However, it seems unlikely that the proposed full season would have had a resolution, in the hope that a second batch of stories would be commissioned, so perhaps the hang-glider launch was no more disappointing an ending than what might have followed. We shall probably never know what this would have been, but what is clear from the 14 completed episodes is that Planet of the Ape's format was not being overtaxed by its producers. While the themes of pursuit, capture and escape are central to the show, these could have been better broken up. Instead, every other episode saw the humans helping someone - human or apes - and make new friends. Hardly the stuff of great imaginings given the show's potential.

Planet of the Apes was, and still is, an interesting show. At its best it was a well-paced, mildly thought-provoking drama - at its worst, it put its foot firmly in its mouth and then ran for the wire. However, even at its most graceless, the series still managed to maintain high production values, especially the always-excellent ape make-up by Dan Striepeke, and no little charm.

The TV series maintained the overall feel of the original movie, which undoubtedly helped create a strong sense of visual identity. Not only are the costumes faithful to their big-screen counter-parts but so is much of the ape architecture. Perhaps the one area in which there is a divergence from the films is in the over simplification of ape culture: its three-way fragmentation between chimps (the intellectuals), gorillas (the bruisers) and orang-utans (the lawgivers) offers far too many chances for an internecine conflict of a type that would surely have fatally weekend ape culture before it could ever have really got started. However, without these rifts much of the television shows' tension would have dissipated into just another version of the hunter and the hunted.

An entire planet of the apes was wiped off the TV screen after a scant fourteen episodes. Before the series was launched into network orbit, CBS executives believed the Planet of the Apes TV series couldn't miss. There had already been five successful Apes motion pictures made between 1968 and 1973. When the first movie aired on CBS in 1973, the film grabbed an astronomical 60 share in the ratings. That's when CBS decided to spin off a weekly series based on the popular films. Industry analysts predicted Planet of the Apes would be one of the biggest hits of the season. TV Guide said Planet of the Apes "won't monkey around."

The optimistic word-of-mouth was reassuring to star Ron Harper. He had already had several TV series shot out from under him (including 87th Precinct and Garrison's Gorillas). "Planet of the Apes was my fifth TV series," says Harper. "Just before the series aired, I did an interview and they said, 'Well, you've finally got one that's gonna go. It can't miss.' The motion pictures made something like 160 million dollars, and everybody expected the series to be a shoo-in. I thought we were going to be for at least a couple of years. It didn't work out that way. It was very disappointing."

The cinematic history of Planet of the Apes began in 1968. The first film, scripted by Michael Wilson and Rod Serling, starred Charlton Heston as an astronaut who crash-lands on a futuristic world where apes rule and men are mute, primitive animals. The film's surprise ending revealed that the planet was Earth, two thousand years in the future. Mankind had destroyed itself in a nuclear holocaust, and apes had risen to power.

Beneath the Planet of the Apes (1970) continued the saga with James Franciscus as an astronaut who encounters underground human mutants and their doomsday bomb. The film ends with the H-bomb destroying the world. However, box office receipts demanded another sequel, and Escape from the planet of the Apes (1971) had three superintelligent chimpanzees use Heston's spaceship to travel back to Earth, 1973. The chimps are eventually killed by paranoid humans, but they leave behind an offspring, Caesar. Caesar begins The Conquest of the Planet of the Apes (1972), inciting his fellow apes to rebel against mankind. The last and least successful sequel, Battle for the Planet of the Apes (1973), dealt with the apes fighting more mutants just after the ape takeover.

Actor Roddy McDowall, who had played the ape Cornelius in Planet and Escape, and Caesar in Conquest and Battle, eagerly signed up to play a new chimpanzee character, Galen, for the series. One important person missing from the TV series was Arthur P Jacobs, producer of the Apes motion pictures. He was preparing an outline for the series when he died of a heart attack in 1973. Writers Anthony Wilson and Art Wallace were brought in to lay down the series concept. While the films had taken a misanthropic view and laced their cynicism with a satiric edge, the TV series was played softer. Instead of a weekly condemnation of mankind, the storyline gave humans the benefit of the doubt. If man were to ever regain control of his planet, perhaps he would be of a better, more tolerant breed.

"I had to be careful not to repeat what the movies had done," says Art Wallace as he shaped the series. "I wanted an entirely different approach. I wrote the first script and laid out the characters for the other writers." Wallace developed a respect for the format as it took shape. "At first I thought the idea was kind of silly. But then Herb Hirschman [executive producer] and I felt this would be an interesting way to make comments on contemporary society. We were particularly concerned with commenting on racial violence. The apes were dealt with as if they were another race, separate but equal. The idea was that it was the white man getting stepped on. There was very little science fiction, although we added the gimmick of the astronaut trying to decipher the spaceship's computer disk and find a way back home."

Although he felt the series got off to a good start, "it gradually developed into hoke. The apes had to be realistic to be taken seriously, but they started to look silly. In terms of acting, what can you do with that ape makeup on? They also had the astronauts beating up the apes on a regular basis. In addition, the series had to be done relatively cheaply. It was too expensive for television." Wallace also felt the series was hurt by the casting. "Roddy McDowall was okay, but he was playing an ape. How much could he do? I felt that [Ron Harper and James Naughton] didn't have the charisma that the show needed. The whole show turned out to be a jinx for the network."

"Some people felt, and maybe they were right, that the series was a one-joke show," admits Ron Harper. "The first movie was a big hit because everyone was surprised by the concept. Once you're over the shock of, 'Man, those are talking apes!' it becomes progressively downhill. Unless you have really good stories, you lose the suspense and the humor. You can't keep toasting on that one situation."

Harper's character of Alan Virdon had several goals: As a humanitarian, the astronaut was determined to reignite the self-esteem of the humans he encountered. His more personal quest was to find a civilization that could provide a way back home. Unlike Burke, who was a bachelor and resigned to his fate, Virdon had a wife and son back home in 1988. "Virdon was a confirmed optimist," notes Harper. "He felt that as long as he's alive, there's a chance he could build a spaceship. Or maybe a rescue expedition would find them. As long as he had that computer disk from the spaceship, he felt he could get home. So he kept plugging away. "There are a lot of people like that, particularly actors!" he laughs. "And I think that he did get home. It might have taken him ten years, but I think he made it."

One segment that stood out for Harper was "The Legacy." Virdon is held captive with a young mother and her son who remind him of his family. "That was an interesting idea. I had just been married [to actress Sally Stark], and there was a photograph Virdon carried around of his wife and son. The photo was actually of my wife, Sally and the producer's son. But when we filmed "The Legacy," they had cast a blonde actress, Zina Bethune, as the mother. Sally had dark hair, and to reinforce the story's point, they had to reshoot the photograph with a blonde actress."

Although many fans of the Planet of the Apes movies were disappointed that the weekly series set its sights so low, on its own undemanding level, the series was a reasonably entertaining mixture of adventure and humor. Harper admits to having mixed feelings about the show's content. "Personally, I liked the more humanistic stories. In "The Good Seeds," we taught a farming family of apes about human values. They were saving all of the good corn and planting the bad corn. Virdon explains, 'No, you plant the good seeds. This way the generations improve themselves.' It didn't take us long to realize that our young audience wasn't terribly interested in this. They wanted to see more action. They liked the fights with the sharks and the bulldogging off horses. While we weren't geared primarily as a children's show, we did have a mostly young audience. They were disappointed that there wasn't more action/adventure. We may have got too caught up in the humanistic-morality stories. It's a cliché to say 'Well, it was the writing,' but the truth is, if you analyze some of the stories, we had one basic plot: One of us gets captured by the apes; the other two have to rescue him. We took turns getting captured. They needed to break out of that. In that regard, the stories weren't that interesting."

Harper draws a parallel with his later series, Land of the Lost. The Saturday morning series featured a family trapped in a prehistoric world. Harper played Uncle Jack during the 1976-77 season. "Even though it was a Saturday morning show, the stories were more interesting than on Planet of the Apes. Our producer loved writing for it. He would spend weekends writing scripts. He experimented with ancient myths and fables, like the Flying Dutchman and Medusa. The stories were much more than getting captured every week." However, Harper found the working atmosphere on Apes more satisfying. "We had a lot of good actors on the show. The producer [Stan Hough] said he thought he'd cast the show perfectly. I wish we had run a little longer run to bear that out. Roddy McDowall was wonderful.

He gave Jim Naughton and me our own directors' chairs. When mine arrived, my name was misspelled as Rin. Roddy had done it as a gag." Despite the rigorous makeup ritual McDowall had endured for the feature films, he was anxious to reprise his ape role for television. "I was surprised that he agreed to do the series," comments Harper. "It took him three and a half hours in that makeup chair. He couldn't sleep while they applied it because he had to keep his face set in a certain way. So he listened to classical music. After four or five episodes, though, his face looked like raw hamburger because of the rubber appliance. He had to take a week off to heal his skin."

Harper's relationship with James Naughton was more casual. "Jim and I worked very hard together on the show, but we weren't as close as we could have been. There was a funny moment when we had to sneak into a gorilla guard house. Jim was supposed to whisper, 'No noise.' So Jim knocks out a gorilla with a judo chop and yells at the top of his lungs, 'No noise!' I cracked up and fell to the floor. I said, 'Jim, I think you've just defeated the purpose of your line!'"

Visually, Planet of the Apes rarely inspired a sense of the fantastic. One notable exception was in the first episode, "Escape from Tomorrow." A hunted villager is caught in a fierce gust of wind as the sounds of a roaring engine bear down on him. The unseen spaceship makes a splintering crash nearby. The first glimpse of the smoking spaceship, sprawled in the middle of a mountain valley, is stunning. "To the young people in the audience, it was probably fascinating," admits Harper, "but in reality, the spaceship wasn't much of anything. It was a wooden, hollow shell. The scenes with us at the controls were shot on a soundstage. What looked impressive was the way they dug that burning burrow behind the spaceship to make it look like it took it about half a mile to land."

Booth Colman had the recurring role of the great ape sage, Dr. Zaius, the orangutan who presided over Ape City. His duty was to make certain that his ape culture didn't discover that mankind had once ruled the planet. Colman recalls, "When they asked me if I would feel claustrophobic in the makeup, I said that Lon Chaney's spirit would look down and protect me. I got the laugh-and the part!" Colman found a startling coincidence as he prepared for the role. "Maurice Evans had played Dr. Zaius in the motion pictures. I had been in his Broadway company in Hamlet during 1944-45. He was a wonderful actor and coincidentally, I wore the same ape costume he had worn in the features. It had been carefully preserved at the studio. I found an old British lotto ticket in an inner pocket and returned it to Maurice by mail. He was living in England and wrote back, wishing me luck with the series and hoping that they had washed and ironed everything for me!"

To prepare for the role, Colman first went to the nearby zoo to study ape behavior. "I tried to develop a personality for Zaius that would be believable. I saw him as an extraordinary elder, high in the council. He was all-knowing and decided what was best for everyone. He had an arrogance of authority and a one-track mind of determination." Like Roddy McDowall and Mark Lenard (Urko the gorilla), Colman had to undergo the rigors of makeup. "I left home at 4 a.m. to be in makeup man Frank Westmore's chair by 5:30 a.m. I had to be ready for shooting by 8:30. At the end of the day, my solidified mask was carefully removed and used on an atmosphere extra the next day."

Colman enjoyed working on Planet of the Apes, but he was not impressed with the way the series evolved. "The first feature had an originality and eeriness. They also had the advantage of shock. A TV series couldn't maintain that without highly ingenious stories. I would have gone after a writer like Ray Bradbury, who has a creative ability for the weird and unworldly. I preferred stories that said something and had a point of view rather than the usual claptrap. The props, costumes and actors were superior; the material was decidedly inferior. It was rushed into production before stories could be properly prepared. It was just as quickly and mistakenly canceled. It could have built a solid audience under other circumstances." Director Ralph Senensky, who directed the segment "The Tyrant," says, "Originally, the series was about the relationship between the two cultures. The tyranny of the apes over the humans. That's what played best on the series. The minute you had the apes wrangling with each other or talking, it got dreadfully boring. It's also hard to do anything like Planet of the Apes on a seven-day schedule."

Although Planet had the ideal opportunity for drawing social parallels with twentieth century Earth, Senensky feels that "it kind of copped out. It became more of an adventure series. Their options seemed to have gotten a little screwed up. They set up a premise that didn't leave them much room to maneuver. In hindsight, wouldn't it have been more interesting if they had looked at the Civil War in the 1800s for story material? They could have used those parallels about slavery in the series. The white population are the slaves and the gentry are the apes. That's what the first movie was about. That's what got lost in the series." Nevertheless, the director enjoyed his stint. "Roddy was marvelous. He was very dedicated to the show. Because of the glue and rubber used in the masks, there was no way he could work a 14 to 18 hour day. Twelve hours was his maximum." Senensky also had respect for the producers, including the late Stan Hough. "Stan was a marvelous producer. The main thing with Stan was to get the job done. When you work in TV, a lot of it is getting it committed to film. It's something of an artistic assembly line. You don't wait around until you get the inspiration. Looking back on Planet of the Apes, it was a terribly ambitious project for the economics and scheduling of series television."

"The makeup factor killed the show," notes writer Arthur Brown, Jr. "It was a doomed series. Anytime you translate from the motion picture screen to television, you lose a certain punch." Browne recalls the plight of the actors who played gorillas on the show. "Most of the exteriors were shot at the Fox ranch at Malibu. The temperatures were hitting over 100 degrees. Apes were falling down and passing out from the heat." Tom McDonough, a gorilla stand-in and extra, admits, "The makeup was miserable. We carried umbrellas for shade. It was especially hard for me because I have blue eyes, requiring me to wear contact lenses to make my eyes brown. With the dust kicked up by the horses, it was terrible. The makeup took three and a half hours to apply. Your head was completely enclosed in hair, rubber and glue. We had to drink through straws."

Assistant director Bill Derwin adds, "Planet was physically the toughest TV series ever made. How the actors and extras playing the apes handled it, I'll never know. Imagine what it would be like to be even slightly claustrophobic and to wear heavy, hot, scratchy uniforms. And to work at the Fox ranch where it always seemed to be 110 degrees. You're on a horse you can't ride, and you have to hit your marks and remember your dialogue. Most of them could manage, but for those who couldn't, it was impossible to fake it. A couple of actors literally fell apart. They ripped off their makeup and tore off their uniforms."

Veteran stuntman George Robotham pleads guilty. Robotham had tackled everything from dangerous explosions to underwater stunts, but he could not face the demands of being a gorilla. "In a mishmash of 5,000 fights and 5,000 falls in my career, Planet of the Apes is one show I don't want to remember," he says. "I spent two hours with that makeup on my face. Paul Stader was the stunt coordinator, and I went to Paul and said, 'Paul, I don't need this crap. Let somebody else do it. See you later!' The makeup was miserable." Art Wallace got a kick out of watching apes milling around the studio, and recalls, "Right across the street Mel Brooks was making the film Young Frankenstein. One guy in an ape costume was standing by the building when Mel walked outside. The ape went up to Mel and said, 'Hey, Mel! Remember me? We worked on such and such a show.' Mel just looked at him and said, 'Are you working now?' I thought that was funny."

What wasn't funny was how quickly Planet of the Apes got skewered by the network after months of hype. Originally scheduled to play Tuesday evenings, the series was shifted to Friday nights. The premiere episode grabbed a 34 share. It was a decent showing, but hardly comparable to the 46 share scored by its competitor on NBC, Sanford and Son. From then on, the ratings dipped. Although the series ranked as the second most popular show with the 2-11 age group, it was not getting a wide enough audience. A month after its premiere, CBS began making noises about scuttling the show.

TV Guide reported that Planet's biggest disappointment was its inability to attract older viewers. According to Art Wallace, CBS programming wizard Fred Silverman hailed the first episode of Planet as "the best first episode of a TV series I've ever seen." He was considerably less enthusiastic when he was quoted by TV Guide that fall. "Of people 50 and over, apparently only four are watching," Silverman noted sarcastically. "Two old ladies in Iowa and a couple who own a zoo."

In addition, the president of CBS, William Paley, didn't want the series on his network to begin with. The decision to end the series was swift, and after four months on the air, Planet of the Apes silently vanished. Bill Derwin felt that the series may have stepped on some toes. "Some people thought the series was racist. The power and cruelty of the apes was toned down. The series soon became Planet of the Benevolent Apes."

"I wasn't surprised by the cancellation, though naturally I was disappointed," says Booth Colman. "I had hopes of a long run. I got no formal notice from the studio that we were over, but their long faces told me the tale. With the right stories and time slot, it could have lasted. Universal studios, after all, got a lot of mileage from a couple of monsters in a cape and neck screws!"

"Two episodes before the end, we were waiting for word from CBS to pick us up," recalls Ron Harper. "It didn't happen. I asked Stan Hough 'What are we going to do?' He said, 'I'm going to make several more episodes. Maybe they'll change their minds.' We shot two more episodes. On a Monday morning, Stan called Jim and me in and said, 'This is going to be the last episode.' So Jim and I took our stunt friends out to a fourhour lunch!"

Although a dud by American ratings standards, all 14 episodes were run in England the following year. The series was a smash. It also proved popular in other foreign countries. In 1980, Fox studios released ten episodes in the form of TV movies for syndication. Although the series' cancellation was a disappointment to Harper, he can chuckle over the series' afterlife. Occasionally, he's invited to return to the Planet of the Apes, but in a more leisurely form. "I was invited to a telethon in Australia with Mickey Dolenz of The Monkees a few years ago. Planet of the Apes had just started running down there. When I got off the plane in Sydney, I was greeted by a guy dressed up like an ape! It's very nice that people still remember the show."

CAST NOTES

Roddy McDowall (Galen): Born 1928. The English-born McDowall was already a child actor when his family moved to America in 1940. He made the transition to adult star, including appearances in the films Cleopatra (1963), The Poseidon Adventure (1972) and the Fright Night Films in the 1980s. He's also a noted photographer.

Ron Harper (Viridon): Born 1935. One of Harper's most memorable TV series was the World War II action show Garrison's Gorillas (1967-68). He went into daytime TV (Love of Life, Capital) in the 1970s and continues making guest appearances on prime-time TV

James Naughton (Burke): Born 1945. A successful Broadway actor, Naughton was one of the stars of the acclaimed 1992 Brooklyn Bridge series.

Mark Lenard (Urko): Born 1927. Well known as Mr. Spock's father on Star Trek and as a regular on TV's Here Come the Brides (1968-70). Lenard is active on stage and does TV commercial voice work.

Booth Colman (Dr. Zaius): Born 1923. This Oregon-born actor received his education at the University of Washington. A veteran actor with hundreds of TV credits, every winter he appears in Michigan to do the play A Christmas Carol.

WR. Art Wallace, Robert Hamner, Robert W. Lenski, Anthony Lawrence, Barry Oringer, Edward J. Lasko, David P. Lewis, L. Booker Bradshaw, Richard Collins and Walter Black.

DIR. Arnold Leven, John Meredyth Lucas, Bernard McEveety, Ralph Senensky, Don McDougall, Alf Kjellin, Jack Starrett and Don Weiss.

EPISODES: 14 YEAR MADE: 1974 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

A 20TH CENTURY FOX TELEVISION PRODUCTION FOR CBS

CREATOR: PIERRE BOULLE

TYPE OF SHOW: EARTH FUTURE

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 60 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 14

DATE OF PREMIER: 13/09/1974 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 20/12/1974

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS: PLANET OF THE APES (1968), BENEATH THE PLANET OF THE APES (1970), ESCAPE FROM THE PLANET OF THE APES (1971), CONQUEST OF THE PLANET OF THE APES (1972), BATTLE FOR THE PLANET OF THE APES (1973).

Galen RODDY MCDOWALL, Alan Viridon RON HARPER, Peter Burke JAMES NAUGHTON, General Urko MARK LENARD, Dr. Zaius BOOTH COLMAN.

Books Based on this series.

Planet Of The Apes - Escape To Tomorrow	George Alec Effinger	1975
Planet Of The Apes - Journey Into Terror	George Alec Effinger	1975
Planet Of The Apes - Lord Of The Apes	George Alec Effinger	1976
Planet Of The Apes - Man The Fugitive	George Alec Effinger	1974

RELATED SHOWS:

BATMAN (1966)

FANTASTIC JOURNEY, THE

1 - 1 ESCAPE FROM TOMORROW

Astronauts Alan Viridon and Peter Burke crash land on a strange planet. After being rescued by a friendly human, Viridon and Burke discover this planet is ruled by intelligent apes. To their horror, they discover that they are back on Earth in the year 3085. Meanwhile ape leader Dr. Zaius learns of the presence of the spacemen and wants them captured and questioned, much to the chagrin of General Urko, who wishes them dead. To protect his interests, Zaius sends his young assistant Galen with Urko to retrieve the humans. The apes capture the humans and they are taken before the council. Zaius orders them confined for questioning, but Urko conspires to free the humans, and then kill them as escaping prisoners. However, Galen learns of this and foils Urko's plan, allowing the humans to escape. Galen is arrested and accused of murdering one of the guards. The humans must rescue Galen before retrieving a magnetic disc, which could hold the key to returning to their time, from their ship before the apes destroy it.

Wr Art Wallace

Dir Don Weis

1 - 2 THE GLADIATORS

Burke, Virdon and Galen come across two humans fighting and get involved, but lose the magnetic disc. To recover it, they must approach the nearby village, where the ape prefect pits humans in a series of gladiatorial games.

Wr Art Wallace

Dir Don McDougall

1 - 3 THE TRAP

In a ruined city, Burke and Urko are trapped underground and must reluctantly work together to escape, while Alan and Galen must deal with Urko's gorilla patrol in the streets above.

Wr Edward J. Lakso

Dir Arnold Laven

1 - 4 THE GOOD SEEDS

Burke and Virdon have to seek the help of a gorilla farmer and his family when Galen breaks his leg.

Wr Robert W. Lenski

Dir Don Weis

1 - 5 THE LEGACY

Burke and Virdon search for an underground computer in the ruined city of Oakland, but their plans go awry when Alan is captured and Urko uses a young boy and a woman to get information from the astronaut.

Wr Robert Hamner

Dir Bernard McEveety

1 - 6 TOMORROW'S TIDE

An ape who runs a fishing business plans to use Virdon and Burke as slaves after he captures them.

Wr Robert W. Lenski

Dir Don McDougall

1 - 7 THE SURGEON

Galen must use all his charm to try and persuade his ex-girlfriend, a female ape surgeon named Kira, to operate on Virdon using a forbidden human anatomy book, after the astronaut is shot.

Wr Barry Oringer

Dir Arnold Laven

1 - 8 THE DECEPTION

When the guys try to track down the apes who are framing humans for crimes in a small community, Fauna, a blind female ape, falls in love with Burke while believing him to be a chimpanzee.

Wr Anthony Lawrence (II), Ken Spears, Joe Ruby

Dir Don McDougall

1 - 9 THE HORSE RACE

Virdon decides to take part in a dangerous horse race even though he runs the risk of being captured by Urko.

Wr David P. Lewis, Booker Bradshaw

Dir Jack Starrett

1 - 10 THE INTERROGATION

Burke undergoes a horrific interrogation after being captured whilst Virdon and Galen mount a rescue attempt.

Wr Richard Collins

Dir Alf Kjellin

1 - 11 THE TYRANT

Aboro, a despot, is making community life a misery; Burke, Virdon, and Galen decide to rob him of his powers.

Wr Walter Black

Dir Ralph Senensky

1 - 12 THE CURE

Thanks to their advanced medical knowledge, Burke and Virdon are able to help a village struck with malaria, but risk discovery.

Wr Edward J. Lakso

Dir Bernard McEveety

1 - 13 THE LIBERATOR

Burke and Virdon are captured by a bunch of humans determined to hand them over to the Apes.

Wr Howard Dimsdale

Dir Arnold Laven

1 - 14 UP ABOVE THE WORLD SO HIGH

Burke and Virdon join forces with Leuric, a human attempting to fly by building himself a hang glider.

Wr Shimon Wincelberg, Arthur Browne Jr.

Dir John Meredyth Lucas

PLANET PRINCE

AKA: YUSEI OJI

Planet Prince (Umemiya) disguised as a bootblack, arrives in a flying saucer to defend liberty and justice. He defeats Phantom Mission, a character seeking world domination and master of magic tricks. In chapter 1, Phantom Mission steals the secret of a new rocket fuel and sets off into space where the good guy catches up with him and wins the ensuing contest. However the baddie returns in chapter 2, assisted by giants who kidnap a physicist and send him into orbit. Planet Price rescues the marooned inventor and once more defeats the bad guy.

Compared to Kobayashi's Gekko Kamen (MOONLIGHT MASK), the comic effects are singularly unimaginative.

Planet Prince is a 1958 tokusatsu superhero television series. Created by veteran writer Masaru Igami and produced by Nippon Gendai and Senkoshu, the series aired on NTV from November 4, 1958 to October 6, 1959, with a total of 49 episodes (divided into several segments). It was created to capitalize on the success of the Super Giant serials. In fact, the title hero (whose alter-ego was Waku-san, played by Toshio Mimura) bore a strong resemblance to Super Giant.

Toei produced two movies that featured the character, but in a completely different, more streamlined costume (and goggled helmet). The hero was this time played by Tatsuo Umemiya. The films were titled:

Planet Prince - Released: May 19, 1959

Planet Prince - The Terrifying Spaceship - Released: May 25, 1959

For release in America, these two movies were compiled into a TV movie titled Prince of Space.

Television and movie differences

As mentioned before, the TV version looks very similar to Super Giant, in that both wear cowled costumes and capes. Each character also has super powers and flies. The movie version (produced by Toei) is different, as Prince of Space wears a streamlined costume, cape and helmet. He has no superpowers other than the invulnerability of his costume. He uses weapons (a wand-like laser gun) and flies a small spaceship.

In the TV version, just like Moonlight Mask, the Planet Prince persona was credited as being played by "?" (even though he never wore a mask).

In the film, Prince's enemy is Ambassador Dictator Phantom (who also appeared in one of the series' story arcs), from the planet Krankor who (like his henchmen) wears a prosthetic nose and cowl that gives him a decidedly chicken-like appearance, something that is constantly mocked in the Mystery Science Theater 3000 version. Phantom and his henchmen also appear to eschew undergarments, as is made painfully obvious in several shots.

Phantom claims that Planet Krankor is "half a million Earth miles" from Earth. This seems highly unlikely, given that the Moon is less than 240,000 miles from Earth, which would make Krankor quite visible from Earth. Phantom races back and forth between Earth and Krankor in his spaceships (one of which resembles the Nautilus, the other resembling a metallic roast chicken). He kidnaps scientists, blows up a rocket and continually threatens Earth and Prince, despite the fact that his weapons, even at close range, have no effect whatsoever on Prince (who continually reminds him of the fact). Phantom also keeps a grotesque giant humanoid creature as a guard for his palace on Krankor who is about as successful at stopping Prince as Phantom is himself.

Trivia

This was Japan's second superhero show, the first being Moonlight Mask, produced the same year by the same company, Nippon Gendai & Senkoshu. As is the case with Moonlight Mask, Toei produced the corresponding feature movies (although their first original involvement in the TV superhero genre was 7-Color Mask (1959), which was also the debut of Sonny Chiba).

Prince of Space was featured in an episode of movie-mocking television series Mystery Science Theater 3000. Throughout their "riffing," Mike and the Bots referred to Phantom as "Krankor," confusing the name of the leader and the name of the planet. Later, in the similar Invasion of the Neptune Men episode, he was referred to at first as "the Phantom Dictator Of Krankor," and then again as "Krankor."

WR.

DIR.

EPISODES: 48 YEAR MADE: 1958 COUNTRY: JAP SEASONS: 1

TOEI

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 20 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: Yes COLOUR: No LANG: Japanese

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 48

DATE OF PREMIER:

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS: YUOSEI OJI (aka THE PRINCE OF SPACE, aka INVADERS FROM THE SPACESHIP aka THE STAR PRINCE aka INVADERS FROM SPACE). (1959)

TATSUO UMEMIYA, JOJI ODA, HIROKO MINE, TAKASHI KANDA, USHUI SKASHI, NOBU YATSUNA.

PLATEAU OF FEAR

Gerald Flood again played a reporter this time science journalist Mark Bannerman, while Stewart Guidotti was cast as his young sidekick Peter Blake. Investigating a series of mysterious attacks at the Potencia One power plant in the Andean state of Santa Montana, they find victims telling tales of a 'night devil' and hear reports that a strange giant beast is responsible. Digging deeper, they uncover a campaign by villainous general Villagran to sabotage the work of power station chief Dr Miguel Aranda so that he can convert the reactor for military purposes.

Encouraged by the success of the PATHFINDERS trilogy in 1960-61, ABC's drama supervisor Sydney Newman came up with a new children's adventure set in a nuclear power station high in the Andes - and back came two of the Pathfinders to star in it.

A strong cast also included Ferdy Mayne, John Barron and Jan Miller as doctor heroine Susan Fraser, head of the plateau's research hospital which relies on Potencia One for a regular supply of isotopes. PATHFINDERS director Guy Verney produced, with directing duties handled by 'newcomer' Kim Mills. The designers for the series were Roger King and James Douglass, the programme advisor was Mary Field and the music was by Clive Rogers.

WR. Malcolm Stewart Fellows, Sutherland Ross.

DIR. Kim Mills

EPISODES: 6 YEAR MADE: 1961 COUNTRY: GB SEASONS: 1

AN ABC NETWORK PRODUCTION

CREATOR: SYDNEY NEWMAN

TYPE OF SHOW: CRIME

FORMAT: SERIAL

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: Yes COLOUR: No LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 6

DATE OF PREMIER: 24/09/1961 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 29/10/1961

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Dr. Miguel Aranda JOHN BARRON, Dr. Susan Fraser JAN MILLER, Mark Bannerman GERALD FLOOD, Peter Blake STUART GUIDOTTI, Lorca PETER ALLENBY, Julietta Aranda MAUREEN LINDHOLM, General Villagran FREDY MAYNE, Ralph Morton RICHARD COLEMAN, General Perera ROGER DELGADO (episode 6 only), COGNAC THE DOG.

RELATED SHOWS:

PATHFINDERS. . . (inc PATHFINDERS IN SPACE, PATHFINDERS TO MARS, PATHFINDERS TO VE

- 1 - 1 TERROR AT POTENCIA ONE
- 1 - 2 MENACE IN THE NIGHT
- 1 - 3 CAVERN OF DEATH
- 1 - 4 THE GROWING PERIL
- 1 - 5 THE INVISIBLE SHIELD
- 1 - 6 SLAM-DOWN

It is 1999, and Britain is at war. This is the story of a father-daughter relationship and their involvement in political intrigue in a war-torn Europe.

Wr Peter Prince

Dir Peter Duffell

1 - 3 CRICKET

It is 1997, and two village communities take unusual measures to win a computerized cricket match.

Wr Michael Wilcox

Dir Michael Darlow

1 - 4 THE NUCLEAR FAMILY

In 1999, a family takes a working holiday in an underwater missile base.

Wr Tom McGrath

Dir John Glenister

1 - 5 SHADES

By 1999, there is mass unemployment. The government is paying unemployed youths to live in converted office blocks and amuse themselves in a virtual reality environment.

Wr Stephen Lowe

Dir Bill Hays

1 - 6 EASTER 2016

Students at a college in Northern Ireland stage an uprising to commemorate the centenary of the Easter Rising of 1916.

Wr Graham Reid

Dir Ben Bolt

POITRINEAKA: THE BEAUTIFUL MASKED POITRINEAKA: BISHOUJOU KAMEN POITRINE

Yuko Murakami (Kajima) meets a God at a shrine and is given the power to be the legendary Beauty Mask Poitrine in order to protect both the cosmos and her local community. Later in the series, Yuko's sister Momoko (Maeda) is given the power to transform into Poitrine Petite. Poitrine can transform herself into anyone she chooses to be, from a police women to Toyama No Kin-san (!).

Plot #2

Pretty Junior High School student Murakami Yuuko is praying at a local shrine when she is surprised by the appearance of Kami Sama (AKA God) who tells her that she is destined to become the legendary Superheroine 'Poitrine', protector of the Cosmos and her quaint town. Using her powers she battles an assortment of quirky villains, the most persistent being the Lord of Darkness, Diablo.

Seeking some assistance, Yuuko's little sister is also granted the 'Poitrine Potato' artifact by Kami Sama which empowers her with the same magical abilities as her older sister. Calling herself Poitrine Petite, she joins the fight against Diablo and his assortment of comical thugs.

Based on Shotaro Ishinomori's manga. Music by Yusuke Honma. Series was produced by Jun Higasa and Masayuki Nishimura.

WR. Yoshio Urasawa.

DIR. Shinji Murayama, Taro Sakomoto.

EPISODES: 51 YEAR MADE: 1990 COUNTRY: JAP SEASONS: 1

FUJI / TOEI

CREATOR: SHOTARO ISHINOMORI

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 25 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: Japanese

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 51

DATE OF PREMIER: 07/01/1990 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 30/12/1990

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Yuko Murakami YUKO KAJIMA, Momoko TOSHIE MAEDA, SHIGERU SAIKI, MAKIKO OTONASHI, RYUTA KOBAYASHI, YUJI SHIMOSHIMA, TAKEHISA YAMAZAWA, NOBUHIRO TENMA, KIYONOBU SUZUKI, JIRO HOTARUYUKI.

POR EL NOMBRE DE DIOSAKA: BY THE NAME OF GOD

History is the following one: a prophecy predicts that the true name of God will be revealed with the birth of a boy in the last year of the second millenium. That baby will be the virgin son of one doncella, Ariana (Carina Zampini), and a man at the height of his forces. Pablo Rivers (Suar) was the chosen one to generate it, and the one in charge to give them to protection to the creature and the mother. But the task will not be simple. Because who knows the Name will rise over the human condition, and that is what Julian Of the Serna seeks the Spanish inquisidor (Alcón), that in century XIV seized of prohibited books that gave magical powers him. Thus, it survived the passage of time and arrived until 1999 to fulfill his plans. Rivers also obtained powers, and then the miniseriess abounds in special effects, with people who fly and throw fire by the hands, for example.

The show was in Spanish.

WR.DIR.*EPISODES: 13 YEAR MADE: 1999 COUNTRY: ARG SEASONS: 1CREATOR:*TYPE OF SHOW:*FORMAT: SERIESLENGTH (MINS): 0 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: SpanishSEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 13DATE OF PREMIER: 10/01/1999AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE*SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:*FILMS:

Pablo Ríos ADRIAN SUAR, De La Serna ALFREDO ALCON, Ariadna CARINA SAMPINI, Manuel ALDO BRAGA, Lisandro POMPEYO AUDIVERT, Laura CELINA FONT, Hermes TONY VILAS, EDGARDO MOREIRA, Barranchina CARLOS PORTALUPPI, MONICA SANTIBANEZ, ROLLY SERRANO.

POUPEE SANGLANTE, LAAKA: BLOODY PUPPET, THE

The brian of Benedict Masson , a man unjustly guillotined, is transplanted into an anriod body. He later helps expose and defeat a vampiric cult led by the depraved (Wod).

Original Music by Betty Willemetz, Cinematography by Albert Schimel.

WR. Robert Scipion.DIR. Marcel CravenneEPISODES: 6 YEAR MADE: 1976 COUNTRY: FRA SEASONS: 1*ANTENNA 2 (A2) \ PANTHE CINEMACREATOR: GASTON LEROUXTYPE OF SHOW: ANDROIDSFORMAT: SERIESLENGTH (MINS): 60 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: FrenchSEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 6DATE OF PREMIER: 17/09/1976AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 22/10/1976SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:*FILMS:

Benedict Masson JEAN-PAUL ZEHNACKER, Christine Gaillard YOLANDE FOLLIOT, Gabriel LUDWIG GUAM, Marquis de Coulteray GEORGES WOD, Marquise de Coulteray EDITH SCOB, Jacques Quentin DOMINIQUE LEVERD, M. Gaillard, le père de Christine JULIEN VERDIER, Sahib Khan SACHA PITOEFF, La Dorga CATHY ROSIER, Sangor GEORGES LYCAN, M. Drouine GABRIEL GOBIN, Mme Drouine GERMAINE DELBAT, Mme Langlois FLORENCE BRIERE, Mlle Barescat JACQUILINE ROUILLARD, M. Moulinier, l'herboriste ROLAND ARMONTEL, Inspecteur Ledoux JEAN RUPERT, Père Macchabée MAX DESRAU, Père Violette JEAN LAUGIER, Sing-Sing JIM ADHI LIMAS, Bistrotière MARTHE VILLALONGA, Récitant/Narrator (uncredited) DOMINIQUE PATUREL.

POWER GOD,THE

The plot of The Power God was set in motion by the invention developed by Professor Sturgess (Bahaglia): an atomically powered engine. After the professor is eliminated by the villains, his daughter is the only one to know the secret, but she (Gerber) suffers from amnesia. Together with her lover (Wilson), she escapes numerous attempts on their lives and somewhere along the line she bumps her head which restores her memory. The happy end is achieved when they manage to patent the engine, irrevocably marking it as their private property.

After four popular serials between 1918 and 1921, including THE SCREAMING SHADOW and THE BRANDED FOUR (both 1920), the successful Wilson and Gerber duo stopped performing for a few years. This serial marked their comeback and was followed by two more, THE MYSTERY BOX (1925) and Officer 444 (1926), all directed by Ben Wilson, the latter in co-operation with John Ford's brother Francis, who also co-directed their first serial, THE MYSTERY SHIP (1917).

Wilson had tried his hand at producing (NAN OF THE NORTH, 1921) and now embarked on a directing career, presumably because, aged 51, he was getting a bit old for such physically demanding roles as stars of action serials. This first effort was relatively successful but not because of the routine direction of the low-budget picture: the Wilson and Gerber names still proved a considerable box-office draw on the strength of their earlier movies.

WR. Rex Taylor, Harry Haven.

DIR. Ben Wilson

EPISODES: 10 YEAR MADE: 1925 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

DAVID DISTRIBUTING CO

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: CRIME

FORMAT: CINEMA SERIAL

LENGTH (MINS): STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: Yes COLOUR: No LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 10

DATE OF PREMIER:

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

BEN WILSON, NEVA GERBER, MARY BROOKLYN, MARY CRANE, JOHN BAHAGLIA.

RELATED SHOWS:

MYSTERY SHIP,THE

SCREAMING SHADOW,THE

BRANDED FOUR,THE

NAN OF THE NORTH

POWER RANGERS DINOTHUNDER

When Dr. Anton Mercer turns into an evil Mutant creature called Mesagog, an attack on Earth is begun using three fierce machines called Dino Zords - creatures of incredible strength and intelligence - on the world, Dr. Tommy Oliver, a mild-mannered high school teacher must stop him. Reigniting his secret past, as the Green, White, Red Zeo and Red Turbo Power Rangers, Oliver recruits three students as Rangers. But can a rebellious soccer star, a beautiful loner musician and a laid-back champion video gamer become superheroes in time to vanquish Mercer and his mutant warriors and an upcoming Evil White Ranger?

The commemorating 500th Power Rangers episode titled "Legacy of Power" is when the DinoThunder Rangers find Tommy's video diary of his Power Ranger past as the (Green Ranger, White Ranger, Red Zeo Ranger, Red Turbo Ranger) and revealing other Power Ranger teams.

In the episode "Lost & Found in Translation", the rangers were watching an episode of "Bakuryuu sentai Abaranger", which is the sentai show it was adapted from. Here, it was just a Japanese TV show dubbed in English.

The dinogems give the Rangers a superpower (other than morphing):

Red-superspeed

Yellow-a sonic "ptera scream"

Blue-invulnerable "dino skin"

Black-invisibility

It was never made clear if White had powers outside of "Ranger mode"

The Film: Veteran Power Ranger Tommy Oliver (the original Green Ranger; he was also the White Tiger Ranger, and the Red Zeo and Turbo Rangers) is now a doctor of paleontology. He takes a job as a high school science teacher. Three of his students, soccer player Connor, computer geek Ethan, and rocker Kira, come to possess Dino Gems. With the power of the gems, and the guidance of Dr. Oliver, they become the next generation of Power Rangers!

The Dino Rangers begin their battle with Mesogog, a dinosaur-like creature that wants to return the Earth to a prehistoric state. He is assisted by a scheming woman called Elsa, the cybernetic warrior Zeltrax, and a legion of reptilian foot soldiers called Tyrannodrones. This DVD contains the first three episodes of the series.

"Day Of The Dino Part 1" After being assigned to detention supervision, Dr. Oliver takes Connor, Ethan, and Kira on an impromptu field trip. There, they stumble upon Tommy's underground lab, and the Dino Gems. Mesogog is also searching for the gems, and he sends the Tyrannodrones to abduct Kira.

"Day Of The Dino Part 2": After Kira escapes, Zeltrax attacks the city of Reefside with three robotic dinosaurs, the Dino Zords. The new Ranger team has to learn to morph, and tame the Dino Zords. They'll need them to fend off Zeltrax's flying warship.

"Wave Goodbye": When his Ranger duties cost him a shot at playing for a pro team, Connor has doubts about his new role as Red Ranger. Meanwhile, Dr. O hatches some help for his team: The Raptor Riders! The Rangers have their first battle with one of Mesogog's genetically engineered monsters.

As a special bonus, this disk also includes the two-part series finale of the previous PR series, Power Rangers Ninja Storm.

"The Storm Before The Calm Part 1": While the Rangers attend the U.S. Action Games, a major extreme sports event, Lothor hatches his master plan. He wants to open the Abyss of Evil, a resting place for defeated evil warriors. While the traitorous General Vexacus battles the Rangers, Lothor and his nieces trash Ninja Ops and take Cam prisoner!

"The Storm Before The Calm Part 2": Using the power of Cam's Samurai Amulet, Lothor opens the Abyss. All of his defeated warriors are resurrected! To stand a chance against this army of evil, the Rangers must free the ninja students held captive on Lothor's spaceship. They'll be on their own, though, in their final battle against Lothor himself!

Power Rangers Dino Thunder is shaping up to be one of the better PR series. Humor has always been a big part of PR. PRDT strikes a good balance between humor and action. It doesn't have as much self-referential parody as Ninja Storm. Instead, it brings back some of the campiness of the original Mighty Morphin' Power Rangers. This is appropriate, considering the return of Jason David Frank as Tommy. It's good to have him back as mentor to a new team of Rangers. PRDT also has some inside jokes for long-time PR watchers.

Another plus for the series is a good lead villain. Mesogog is one of the better bad guys in recent PR history. In contrast, Ninja Storm's Lothor is less imposing than some of his generals, such as Zurgane and Vexacus. (In all fairness, PR villainy peaked with Lord Zedd way back in Season 2. He was a scary-looking dude, regardless of becoming more comedic as the series progressed.) PRDT also has good special effects, and some catchy rock music. If you haven't watched Power Rangers in a while, tune in to Dino Thunder. You might like it.

Produced by Janine Dickens producer , Ann Knapp executive producer, Koichi Sakamoto co-executive producer , Douglas Sloan executive producer. Original Music by Bruce Lynch, Cinematography by Simon Riera & Gavin Stroud

Casting by Diana Rowan

Art Direction by Miro Harre

Costume Design by Gavin McLean

Makeup Department - Gabrielle Jones makeup supervisor

Production Management - Charles Knight post-production supervisor

Second Unit Director or Assistant Director - Richard Barr first assistant director , Luke Robertson first assistant director (even episodes) , Michelle Sowman second assistant director , Amand Weaver third assistant director.

Art Department - Mark Knight creature supervisor

Sound Department - Dave Hurley sound recordist , Adam Mogg boom operator

Visual Effects by - Brandon Durey mechanical effects supervisor , Allannah Milne visual effects editor , George Port visual effects supervisor
Miquel Ubeda online editor.

Stunts - Justin B. Carter stunt performer , Ben Cooke stunts , Mark Harris stunt coordinator , Glen Levy stunt double , Allan Poppleton stunt performer.

Other crew - Phil Aitken location manager , Hope Diamond senior publicist , Riwia Fox casting assistant , Rob Marsh camera operator

Dale McCready steadicam operator , Cameron McLean camera operator , Kevin Riley additional camera operator , Ben Rowsell clapper loader: second unit , Geoffrey Short still photographer.

At the end of the 38 episode run there was two final special episode made, these have not been recorded in the episode list since they do not form part of the actual series, but were later part of the DVD release:

DVD-1: Return of the Ranger (12/07/04)

Tommy talks about his past as a Power Ranger, and discusses some of the highlights of his Ranger years.

DVD-2: Before it Began (12/07/04)

Kira and Ethan find the link to the Morphing Grid, which supplies them with visions of the next team of Power Rangers - Space Patrol Delta; as they take on a renegade group of space aliens - the Troobians, who are set on taking over the planet.

WR. Mark Hoffmeier, Steve Slavkin, Douglas Sloan

DIR. Paul Grinder, Charlie Haskell, Britta Johnstone, Andrew Merrifield, Koichi Sakamoto, Douglas Sloan

EPISODES: 38 YEAR MADE: 2004 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

ABC Family Worldwide Inc., BVS Entertainment Inc., BVS International N.V., Renaissance-Atlantic Films, Toei Co. Ltd., Village Roadshow KP Productions.

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 38

DATE OF PREMIER: 14/02/2004 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 07/12/2004

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Conner Mcknight, Red / Triassic Ranger JAMES NAPIER, Ethan James, Blue Ranger KEVIN DUHANEY, Kira Ford, Yellow Ranger EMMA LAHANA, Tommy Oliver, Black Ranger JASON DAVID FRANK, Trent Fernandez, White Ranger JEFFREY PARAZOO, Hayley Viktor ISMAY JOHNSTON, Cassidy Cornell KATRINA DEVINE, Devin Del Valle TOM HERN, Edward Cormier STEPHEN HALL, Elsa / Principal Randall MIRIAM SMITH, Mesogog / Anton Mercer LATHAM GAINES.

RELATED SHOWS:

MIGHTY MORPHIN' POWER RANGERS, THE (inc. THE MIGHTY MORPHIN' ALIEN RANGERS)

POWER RANGERS IN SPACE

POWER RANGERS S.P.D

1 - 0 THE HIDDEN EPISODE

Kira and Ethan, now powerless, discover a hidden stone in Hayley's Cyberspace which allows them to download a glimpse at the next team of Power Rangers: Space Patrol Delta.

1 - 1 DAY OF THE DINO PART 1 OF 2

While on a detention-related field trip with their new science teacher, Dr. Tommy Oliver, three students from Reefsides High School, Conner, Kira, and Ethan, stumble upon mystical Dino Gems and are given special powers. This makes them a target for a group of evil creatures known as Tyrannodrones, who manage to kidnap Kira and bring them to their master, the dinosauric humanoid known as Mesogog.

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 2 DAY OF THE DINO PART 2 OF 2

Kira escapes from the Tyrannodrones and Mesogog's henchmen Elsa & Zeltrax, and rejoins her two teammates and teacher. Tommy gives them three Dino Morphers, which can harness the Dino Gems, that are now bonded to their DNA, allowing them to become DinoThunder Power Rangers. When Mesogog releases the three brainwashed-dinosaur Bio Zords to wreak havoc on the city, they must take on the forces of evil and find a way to give the Zords a change of heart.

Wr Ann Knapp Austen

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 3 WAVE GOODBYE

Conner's given a shot at playing professional soccer, but his Ranger duties impede upon it. Ethan introduces Conner and Kira to "Hayley's Cyberspace", a cyber-cafe run by a very knowledgeable woman. Mesogog unleashes his first monster. And if that weren't bad enough, Tommy gets captured by Zeltrax and the Tyrannodrones on the way to hearing Kira perform at the cafe!

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 4 LEGACY OF POWER (PART 1 OF 2)

Tommy, captive of Mesogog, is forced to aid him in unlocking the newest Dino Gem, or be destroyed.

Meanwhile, the three Rangers stumble onto a video diary at their underground lair, created by their mentor in case of such an emergency as this, which has a recorded history of not only his life and adventures as a Power Ranger, but a summary of every team since.

Wr Ann Knapp Austen

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 5 BACK IN BLACK (PART 2 OF 2)

Utilizing Hayley's help, and their new Raptor Cycles, the DinoThunder Rangers rescue Tommy from Mesogog's clutches. He gains the next Dino Gem, and with the help of a pre-prepared Brachio Morpher, comes back to action as a Power Ranger!

Wr Ann Knapp Austen

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 6 DIVA IN DISTRESS

An old friend of Kira's has returned to town, with a reputation as a succesful pop singer under her belt, but interference from the Donkeyvac Monster brings a whole new meaning to the phrase "Age before Beauty" when he transforms her into an old woman

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 7 GAME ON

Ethan is sucked into a video game when Mesogog targets the world of Cyber-space, and creates the De-magnetron monster. Kira, Devin, and Cassidy are also sucked into the game, but the episode's focus is on Ethan, who, with the help of wizard character in the game, learns a thing or two about not looking for shortcuts in life.

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 8 GOLDEN BOY

Dr. Anton Mercer buys Hayley's Cyberspace Café for his son, Trent, but he's perfectly happy just working there and rejects the gift. Meanwhile, Zeltrax uses his own DNA to create a fierce warrior, Golden Rod.

Wr Ann Knapp Austen

Dir Paul Grinder

1 - 9 BENEATH THE SURFACE

The Rangers uncover the Dimetrozord Egg, but Elsa, thanks to her disguise as Principal Randall, manages to sabotage it and use the Zord against them.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Paul Grinder

1 - 10 OCEAN ALERT

Nikki Valentina, star of the most popular TV show in the country, "Ocean Alert", visits Reefside during filming of an episode of her show. Her prima donna attitude, and "believable" portrayal of a heroic lifeguard, lead to her capture by Mesogog for usage in a monster.

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Paul Grinder

1 - 11 WHITE THUNDER (PART 1 OF 3)

Having allowed it to gestate for a year, Elsa retrieves the White Dino Gem, with the intent of having it bond with Mesogog. But Trent, following the Invisiportal from his father's office, winds up accidentally, and painfully, bonded with the Gem instead. He becomes the White DinoThunder Ranger, and pure evil, thanks to the genetic tampering done to the gem.

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 12 WHITE THUNDER (PART 2 OF 3)

The evil White Ranger finds his own Dinozord Egg, and begins feeding it energy from his Morpher, so as to develop a bond with it when it hatches. The DinoThunder Rangers attempt to stop him, but Mesogog's Angor monster keeps the main three busy in a fight with the Megazord, and Zeltrax once again scuffles with Tommy. When all is said and done, Trent unleashes his Drago Zord, and prepares to take on our heroes with it. Meanwhile, Cassidy runs afoul of a gang of young kids in her search for the White Ranger's secret ID.

Wr Douglas Sloan, Jackie Marchand

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 13 WHITE THUNDER (PART 3 OF 3)

The Evil White Ranger steals the DinoThunder gang's Stegazord, and combines it with his Dragozord, into his own Megazord, the Dino Stegazord. While Mesogog sends out a souped-up version of Angor to complicate matters, White Ranger faces Red Ranger one-on-one, leading to the unlocking of a new Dino Power source in Conner. White Ranger rejects both the other Rangers, and Mesogog's side, destroying Angor to prove this point. Eventually, Tommy discovers Trent turning into the White Ranger. Having modified the DT team's Fossil Finder, he encases Black Ranger in amber before he can alert the others to the discovery of the evil Ranger's identity. Meanwhile, Cassidy & Devin are still recovering from their last scheme to discover White Ranger's ID, and literally stumble into getting Trent demorphing on videotape.

Wr Douglas Sloan, Jackie Marchand

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 14 TRUTH AND CONSEQUENCES

With Tommy currently incapacitated, and Hayley unable to free him just yet, the DinoThunder Rangers desire know just who the evil White Ranger is. Mesogog and his gang are of the same idea, scanning for the White Dino Gem's energies. White Ranger faces Elsa & Zeltrax, taking them down with ease, and when facing the other Rangers, the demorphing of Yellow Ranger to Kira shakes his spellbound mind enough to spare her harm. Later, Trent confides in Kira his own secret identity, though concerned about his bipolar tendencies leads to his shunning her help. Mesogog captures Trent, now aware of his status as White Ranger, though he refuses to assist him in reverting the world back to the age of dinosaurs. Dino Stegazord is bested in battle by the Thundersaurus Megazord's newest auxiliary Zord. And Cassidy's boasts of having proof of White Ranger's ID are proven false again, when Devin's footage of the Ranger demorphing is recorded over by his sister giving birth.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 15 LEADER OF THE WHACK

A meteorite lands in the forest, gaining the attention of Cassidy & Devin (who were searching for the White Ranger again), Trent (who was on his way out of town), the three DinoThunder Rangers, and Mesogog's newest monster, a weak-willed creature called Rojobot. Exposure to the "space rock" effects each of them: Trent's Gem-induced schizophrenia is brought under control, Cassidy becomes an acne-faced geek, Devin becomes a Travolta-Fonzie type Disco ladies man, Conner becomes a brainy nerd, Ethan becomes a competitive jock, Kira becomes a fashion and vanity obsessed carbon copy Cassidy, and Rojobot becomes considerably evil. This causes much friction among the Rangers, until Hayley explains the meteorite merely brought out the repressed sides of their personalities. They manage to work together, destroy Rojobot (with the currently-good White Ranger's help), and shatter the meteorite. All personalities are restored to normal (with Devin & Cassidy nearly kissing each other before it's done). A fragment of the "space rock" is used by Hayley to attempt to free Tommy from his fossilization in amber. It's a success, but the machine and fragment are toasted, and Tommy's now permanently morphed as the Black DT Ranger!

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 16 BURNING AT BOTH ENDS

After capturing two of the rangers' auxiliary zords, Trent is attacked by Zeltrax and Insectolite, who seemingly turns him back to the side of good.

Wr Ann Knapp Austen

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 17 THE MISSING BONE

Trent is called to see Principal Randall, who quizzes him on his current behavior and state of mind, trying to gauge his status without revealing her identity as Elsa. The results are not what she had hoped. With Dr. Oliver "on sick leave" (due to his demorphing troubles), Dr. Anton Mercer, Trent's adoptive father and alter ego of Mesogog, is brought in by Randall as the substitute science teacher. He immediately stages a field trip to the Reefside Museum he owns (as seen in "Day of the Dino"). There Kira spots a Tyrannodrone, which leads her to storage room where she is forced to submit to the will of a hypnotic dinosaur skull. The creature gives her a sour attitude towards her friends, and ultimately leads her to Tommy's lab to steal a bone she had recently noticed while helping him take inventory. The bone is revealed to be the final component of Fossilador, a hypnotic dinosaur monster created by Tommy and Mercer years ago. The missing bone fully reanimates Fossilador, and Kira is freed from her brainwashing. Fossilador attacks the city, Black Ranger faces Zeltrax and the Triptoids, and the Rangers destroy Fossilador by destroying the very bone which reanimated him. Back on the island fortress, Mercer desperately searches for a cure for his saurian affliction, but before he can test a new serum on himself, he transforms back to a scolding Mesogog before our eyes.

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Paul Grinder

1 - 18 BULLY FOR ETHAN

A bully named Derrick picks on Ethan at school repeatedly, eventually setting up a fight with him. But instead of using physical force to repel his attacks, Ethan uses his computer-based talents to benefit the soccer-playing meanie. Meanwhile, Trent sets up a deal with Zeltrax, where he'll help the cyborg get revenge on Tommy, if he helps him take down Mesogog. The tables end up turned, with Mesogog gaining control over Trent. Also, Zeltrax finally informs Tommy of the reasoning for his loyalty to Mesogog, and his intense hatred of him.

Wr Ann Knapp Austen

Dir Paul Grinder

1 - 19 LOST & FOUND IN TRANSLATION

Hayley's Cyberspace gets a new satellite system, which sucks Ethan into watching its endless abundance of programming. Kira & Conner are soon roped in, when they discover a channel from Japan, showing a television show based upon the Power Rangers, though dubbed in English. Conner is, at first, furious over the differences in TV culture between the US and Japan, but eventually gets into it. The episode shown involves the Dino Rangers facing the Ka-Ching monster, while the chiropractic Blue Ranger assists a money-hungry American baseball player in learning to love the game more than the paycheck.

Wr Steve Slavkin

Dir Paul Grinder

1 - 20 IT'S A MAD MAD MACKEREL

Kira gets an internship on Channel 3's hit children's cartoon calvacade, "The Funky Fisherman Show." She discovers not only the harsh realities of show business behind the joyous program's facade, but that by sticking with something through the rough spots, things can indeed get better. Elsa turns the show's happy fish mascot, Marty The Mackerel, into the Mad Mackerel monster, creating a fishy situation for the Power Rangers. Meanwhile, Trent challenges Zeltrax to a duel. Winner becomes second-in-command to Mesogog. It's a close battle, but winner, and new #2, is the White Ranger.

Wr Mark Hoffmeier

Dir Paul Grinder

1 - 21 COPY THAT

Anton Mercer relays the story of how Mesogog was born, out of testing an advancement in dinosaur DNA on himself, to his son, Trent. Zeltrax, desiring to atone for his loss to the White Ranger, creates a bellpepper-based monster, Copyotter. As his name implies, he has the ability to copy items and people. He copies the Rangers' weapons and uses them on the heroes. He creates three clones of Cassidy, sending poor Devin into near insanity. And most importantly, he creates a duplicate White Drago Sword, with which Zeltrax frames White Ranger in trashing Mesogog's lab. Mesogog uses the Lifeforce Extractor (from "Legacy of Power" and "Back In Black") on Trent for his betrayal. But appealing to his father within, he's able to urge Anton out of Mesogog just in time. When freeing his son from the machine, a stray beam strikes the White Dino Gem, negating the evil code implanted within, thus freeing Trent from its control. Trent, now in control as the White Ranger, saves Dr. Oliver from an attack by Zeltrax, choosing to fight for the side of good. He joins the DinoThunder team, hoping to make up for the bad deeds he took part in. Copyotter is destroyed, but Zeltrax, retaining its copying device-arm, creates a Trent-less, entirely evil clone of the White Ranger, loyal only to Mesogog and his wicked forces.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Douglas Sloan

1 - 22 TRIASSIC TRIUMPH

Zeltrax samples a portion of the new Evil White Ranger clone's energy, and creates the White Terrorsaurus monster. With it, and the clone, he helps confuse the Power Rangers about the validity of their newest team member's loyalty. Even when Trent shows up to help fight his doppelganger, trust waivers in the White Ranger. Terrorsaurus eventually captures the Tyranno, Tricera, and Ptera Dino Zords, and gives the main three Rangers quite a beating. Black Ranger helps Trent reassure his allegiance, by guiding him in uncovering the Shield of Triumph, an ancient artifact of incredible power. For it to work, each of the DinoThunder Rangers will have to give a piece of themselves to the Red Ranger (In all but Tommy's case, their Ranger powers temporarily). Conner proves trustworthy in gaining control of the Shield's power, becoming the Triassic Ranger. He destroys the White Terrorsaurus via some interdimensional antics. And on a lighter note, Conner has a misunderstanding with a Russian exchange student/fellow soccer player.

Wr Ann Knapp Austen

Dir Douglas Sloan

1 - 23 A STAR IS TORN

Between Trent's duties of helping run the Cyber Space cafe, Conner's hair-raising simulations on helping to develop the new Assault Vehicle, and Ethan's net-search for his soul mate, nobody has time to listen to Kira's good news. She's gotten the interest of a big time music manager for Tones Records, who wants to shoot a music video for her. Unfortunately, she finds herself having to compromise her own style for that of what the manager wants, a techno-pop freak. She eventually chooses to be true to herself instead, and Trent helps shoot a video that reflects who she is. To get the new Assault Vehicle working, Conner & Ethan seek out a Titanium Servo Mechanism from Anton Mercer Industries. Tyranodrones are sent to stop them, but they're defeated quickly. Zeltrax unleashes the new & improved Aerial Assault Craft (from "Day of the Dino 2"), attempting to draw out the Rangers. While Conner, as the Triassic Ranger, uses the new Triassic Mega-Rover (a Zord chariot of sorts), Tommy hops up into the craft and takes on Zeltrax, one last time. He finally finishes off "Smitty", and narrowly escapes the craft's destruction. And as for Ethan? His "cyber-hottie" turns out to be Cassidy!

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Douglas Sloan

1 - 24 A RANGER EXCLUSIVE

Elsa's got a new plan to bring her master Mesogog's vision of a barren, dinosaur-ruled Earth to fruition: Transmit an implosion-generating signal to Jupiter's Great Red Spot, causing the planet to explode, and set off a chain reaction that'll lay waste to humanity in the process. Her initial broadcast is disrupted by the DinoThunder Rangers, and her second attempt, using the Jupiter monster to transmute into a virus and overtake the satellite of Channel 3, is also thwarted, thanks again to said heroes. Speaking of Channel 3... Ethan's become real chummy with Cassidy since they discovered their commonalities last episode. He appeals to Kira's altruistic side, and manages to get her to use her position as a lowly intern at Channel 3 as an "in" to reach and convince manager Edward Cormier into giving the aspiring reporter a job. Cassidy gets one, covering a sheep farm. But when the story of the Rangers fighting Jupiter presents itself, she, and her cameraman Devin, manage to pull together, getting exclusive footage. Cassidy gains a spot as a reporter on Reefside Nightly News, and vindicates Ethan's faith in her to Kira.

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 25 TUTENHAWKEN'S CURSE

Ethan takes an interest in deciphering the hieroglyphics of Egyptian ruler Tutenhawken. In doing so, he not only jinxes himself, causing chaos at his every step, but frees the ancient evil from his multi-millennia-long slumber. Mesogog ceases from intervening, sending Elsa out to help the third-party-evil only at the last minute. Hayley's newest invention, the Hovercraft Cycle, is just what Ethan needs to make Tutenhawken history again, in his own territory of the air, and the Triassic Mega-Rover finishes the job. During his brief re-reign, Tutenhawken took an interest in Cassidy (or Cassipatra as she called herself), which conflicted with the progress she and Ethan had been making in showing people her better side. The monster's treatment of Devin, though, led her to resume the right track, and bridges are mended between her and Ethan.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 26 DISAPPEARING ACT

To help her mutant flower grow into the Thornox monster, Elsa uses a sample of mysterious green slime. Tommy seeks the same ooze from the source, and after a run in with some Tyranodrones, brings back some of it for Hayley to run a test on. She discovers that with it, she can demorph Tommy. The experiment is a success, but though he's no longer the Black Ranger, he's now invisible! Seems the slime kicked his Dino Gem power into overdrive, and until it wears off, he's clearly... well, clear. As for Thornox, he and the Evil White Ranger Clone team-up, and take on the Rangers' Thundersaurus & Mezodon Megazords. In personal life developments, Ethan's got his first date with Cassidy coming up, a picnic by the sea. He seeks assistance from his friends in making it go right: Kira helps with his fashion, Conner with his dancing skills, Trent with proper dining manners, and when things turn sour, the invisible Doctor O fixes the situation personally. T-Drones help to cut it all short. Ethan realizes he has nothing in common with Cassidy, and his duties as a Ranger would cut into a relationship with her. Similarly, Cassidy realizes her softening by knowing him is dulling the edge she needs to be a reporter, and her duties as a reporter preclude a relationship. They decide to remain friends.

Wr Ann Knapp Austen

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 27 FIGHTING SPIRIT

Elsa and her T-Drones dig up a powerful energy crystal, which has the same mineral properties of the Dino Gems. She feeds it to the newly revised and revamped Terrorsaurus II (from "Triassic Triumph"). He fights the four DinoThunder Rangers, and thanks to the crystal, is able to fry their Morphing Energies, leaving them powerless. Things aren't so well for Tommy, either. Hayley uses his Dino Gem in an experiment to reverse his invisibility, where it overloads, and though he's back to being visible, he's left in a coma. In the hospital, he has a major battle of wills within his fevered mind, facing first his Red Zeo Ranger self, then the White Mighty Morphin' Ranger, followed by the toughest of them all, his old Green Ranger self. Upon resisting defeat, he learns of the true nature of the dream, fighting for his life to prove he's still got a drive to live. He passes the test, and all three of his old selves not only restore him to life, but repair his Black Dino Gem. Tommy joins the battle against Terrorsaurus II, and with his Super Dino Mode, takes the monster out, restoring his students' powers. The main three Rangers use the Thundersaurus Megazord against the giant Terrorsaurus, and are able to beat him with some Super Dino Mode inspiration. Oh, and Cassidy & Devin have a bit of a clash when she's eager to go on the air with the story of the Rangers abandoning Reefsides.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Paul Grinder

1 - 28 THE PASSION OF CONNER

Conner's got his sights set on a girl named Krista at school. But she's a passionate, activist type, totally the opposite of himself. He tries (and eventually fails) to impress her by acting interested in her latest environmentalist campaign, to save an over 100 year old tree behind Reefsides High that Principal Randall wants to tear down to put in a parking lot. Truth is, Mesogog wants the serum from the tree before anyone else can become aware of its secret: it's growing over a Life Force Spring. Unbeknownst to him, Zeltrax, having laid low and injured since his apparent death, is already aware and wants the serum from this Tree Of Life to become stronger, and seek revenge on his enemies, which now includes his former master Mesogog and his former love-interest Elsa. He drains the sap, using it to gain a slightly upgraded form, and turns the tree into the Deadwood Monster. The Rangers use the Thundersaurus Megazord, and the new Triceramax Megazord, to destroy Deadwood and give the Evil White Ranger Clone and his Dino Stegazord another beating. Conner doubts himself as a Ranger again, thanks to seeing how passionate Krista is about saving the tree, and he doesn't have the same kind of confidence in himself. He has a talk with Doctor Oliver, who hammers home the difference between cockiness and confidence, assuring him that if he believes in his deserving an inner power, he'll even surprise himself. This comes into play later, when Conner, faced with having to save Krista from Zeltrax, summons from within himself the ability to not only go Triassic without the need of his teammates, but gains a Battlized form on top of it, with which he's able to save Krista. Zeltrax is defeated, reverting back to normal and vowing revenge. Conner helps plant a new tree where the Tree Of Life once stood, proving to Krista that he can indeed change, by displaying a newfound confidence in himself and what he's doing in life.

Wr Ann Knapp Austen

Dir Paul Grinder

1 - 29 ISN'T IT LAVY-LY

Zeltrax is still being sought by Mesogog's forces, as well as his old friend Tommy. He's a loose cannon in this war between good and evil, and despite besting the Evil White Ranger clone in battle, his lack of lifeforce from the recent Battlizer battle is making it harder for him to refuse re-enslavement by his former master. The lesson plan of substitute science teacher at the high school, volcanologist Dr Morton, inspires Elsa to turn him into a monster, with the power to reactivate a volcano which once existed where Reefsides currently is. It'll take some teamwork, the Battlized Triassic, and a rarely used Megazord combo to put a stop to the molten-revolting and restore Morton. Ethan's extremely cocky about his skills at playing the "Detonation Man" computer game. That is, until his unchallenged reign as king of the tournament for it at Hayley's Cyberspace is tested (and brought down) by none other than Devin, who breaks off from Cassidy to display this hidden talent of his own. And speaking of breaking, Cassidy finds herself quite broken without Devin around.

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir Paul Grinder

1 - 30 STRANGE RELATIONS

The Evil White Ranger clone learns of his rapidly decreasing power. It seems that when Zeltrax created him, it caused a glitch in the Morphing Grid. Two White DinoThunder Rangers can't exist at once, so EWR decides to go out in a blaze of glory, Megazord style, only to lose control of the Dragozord and Stegazord in the process. He goes for one last attempt to change his fate by dueling with Trent. Despite the clone's use of Super Dino Mode, Trent prevails, and the clone is eliminated for good. Meanwhile, Dr Mercer receives the Greenleaf Award for developments in the field of Botanical Research, using genetics on plants to benefit mankind. His reluctant alter ego, Mesogog, utilizes Mercer's research for his own goals, creating the Jade Gladiator out of one of those altered plants. The monster repeatedly defeats the Rangers, and sprouts two extra monsters (Deadwood from "The Passion of the Conner" and the new Skortch monster) to assist him. It takes a combination of every DinoThunder Zord to reap what Mesogog sowed.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 31 THUNDER STORM (PART 1 OF 2)

Lothor finally climbs his way out of the Abyss of Evil. Disguising himself as his now-captive twin brother (Sensei Watanabe), Lothor tricks Shane, Dustin, and Tori into donning the Wind Morphers, sabotaged to make them his slaves, his own evil Rangers! With them, and a pair of monsters he picked up in the Abyss, Lothor sieges the Wind Academy, and captures the students once more. Marah & Kapri, always looking out for themselves, reluctantly resume their status in their uncle's army. Meanwhile, Blake comes to Reefsides for a Motocross tournament, and begins a flirtation with Kira. It isn't long before Cam contacts him and his brother Hunter, about the current situation regarding their old teammates. The evil Wind Rangers, with Kelzaks and the two Monster Generals by their side, head on a march of destruction. Hayley & Tommy, noticing a blanket of evil spreading over the state of California from the re-opened Abyss, become aware of this rampage. The three main DinoThunder Rangers are sent to stop them, and holding back so as to not destroy the fellow Rangers, are beaten by the evil Winds. And Mesogog dispatches Elsa to offer Lothor their aid in the assistance of the destruction of the world.

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 32 THUNDER STORM (PART 2 OF 2)

Cam, Blake, and Hunter head into the Abyss of Evil to retrieve their stolen powers, and run into some resistance, in the form of Zurgane, Kelzaks, and a few previously destroyed monsters. They nearly plunge into the depths, but their Sensei arrives in time to save them. Mesogog and Lothor form an alliance, with Mesogog providing the plan and Lothor providing the Evilized Wind Rangers. The three Winds Ninjas face off against the main three DinoThunder teens, in an unmorphed showdown, leading up to Dino Gem powers vs Ninja powers, Conner vs Shane, Ethan vs Dustin, Kira vs Tori. It's fairly enough matched a battle, and right when it's about to move up to morphed, Cam, Blake & Hunter show up. They trick their three spellbound teammates into giving up their evilly-enchanted Power Discs for their original ones, thus breaking the spell! The combined forces of Mesogog and Lothor's troops are assembled, so the combined forces of the Ninja Storm and DinoThunder Rangers all come together to stop them. The 11 Rangers pair off: the two Reds take on Lothor's newest Abyss-spawn Generals, utilizing their Cycles, weapons, and eventually, a double-dose of Battlizer power; Blue Wind and Yellow DT double team on Elsa; Yellow Wind and Blue DT, on their Cycles (including the Hover), take on a few previously-destroyed monsters; Black DT, and Navy & Crimson Thunders team-up against Zurgane; and Green Samurai & White DT face the Wolfblades and the three teams of footsoldiers, using a boost of Super Dino and Super Samurai powers. But it's Marah & Kapri who save the day, by showing their true colors in swiping their uncle's bottle, and freeing the captured ninjas. Seems they were also behind rescuing Sensei! Lothor hasn't time to let this loss sink in, as Mesogog challenges him to a duel. The fight rages in his lab, leading to Mesogog reverting Lothor into his basic genetic material, kept harmlessly preserved forever in one of his chemical jars. Seems Lothor's extraction of their powers have brought an end to the Ninja Storm Rangers' powers for good, but their new friends, the DinoThunders, are continuing on the good fight for them. Blake wins his motocross race, as the combined teams cheer him on, and Marah & Cassidy see each other in passing, finding the other stunning, but themselves prettier.

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 33 IN YOUR DREAMS

Dr Mercer's night terrors lead to Mesogog's latest scheme. He has Elsa connect the Geno Randomizer to a machine, which taps into and exacerbates the DinoThunder Rangers' dreams, with the hope of destroying them in their sleep. Tommy dreams of fighting the Squidrose monster, based out of his calamari dinner that night. Kira's reptile homework leads to her facing the lovesick Croco D'Vile monster in her dreams. Ethan's research on primates creates the Rumba Monkey monster, who monkeys around with his dreams. Conner, his nightmare inspired by recent Christmas shopping with his mom, faces the festive Rude Elf monster. Each REM-based baddie is defeated, though dreams of teamwork, weapons, and Megazords. The only one to get a good night's sleep is Trent!

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Britta Johnstone

1 - 34 DRAWN INTO DANGER

Trent's artistic inspiration, comic book artist & creator Carson Brady, does a signing at Hayley's Cyberspace. Elsa uses the opportunity to slip him a magical pen, which possesses him into drawing a comic book where the Power Rangers are destroyed by a monster named Fridgia. Once the issue is finished, every one of the DinoThunders are sucked into a comic dimension and forced to live out the storyline! Trent manages to draw himself into the story, and helps change the ending, though in doing so, frees Fridgia, leading to Conner's Battlized showdown with the cold-hearted female creature. In other events, Cassidy becomes Fantasa-Girl in order to get a story on comic fandom, Trent & Ethan both best Conner at soccer, Dr Anton Mercer helps fund a collaboration comic between Trent & Carson Brady, and Mesogog once again scolds Elsa for her failure.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Britta Johnstone

1 - 35 HOUSE OF CARDS (PART 1 OF 2)

Ethan plays against Devin with their favorite card game, "Dragon Wars." He wins using the ultra-rare Ruby Dragon card, but in doing so attracts the attention of Principal Randall, who confiscates their cards. Dr. Oliver is persuaded to talk to Randall about giving the cards back, and when going to visit her office, he witnesses her changing into Elsa! Tommy and Elsa do battle in the schoolyard, blowing her disguise as Randall in front of the whole student body, leaving a vacancy for Principal of Reefside High. Trent goes to Mesogog's lab by himself, and tries to get the card back, but in fighting Elsa, accidentally ensures it gets turned into the Ruby Dragon monster. While fighting the Rangers, both the Ruby Dragon and Elsa make it known that Trent is hiding something from his teammates. He tries to play it off as his going after the card solo was the big secret. Ruby Dragon is destroyed by the three main Megazords. Elsa, again threatened by Mesogog for her failure, slips the Ruby Dragon card into Dr Anton Mercer's pocket, setting it up to fall out when he reaches for his cellphone while talking to the Rangers in the hallway of the high school. The stress of explaining how it got there leads to his transforming into Mesogog in front of the team! Mesogog thinks Trent set him up, the team realizes this was his big secret, and trust is lost from both sides on the White Ranger.

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Britta Johnstone

1 - 36 A TEST OF TRUST (PART 2 OF 2)

The recent attempted exploitation by Elsa of his human side leads Mesogog to finally ridding himself of Dr Anton Mercer. The stunned body of Mercer is carted off by Tyrannodrones, and Mesogog immediately begins acting a lot more insane... The discovery of Trent's long-kept secret about Mesogog leads the main three DinoThunder teens to realize just how important being a Ranger has been to them, and how much they've grown because of it. Trent reminds them of his own struggles, and explains his reasoning for keeping his word to his father. All but Conner is willing to give him a second chance, and even he is persuaded when, while facing Mesogog's latest monster, Trent saves Conner's life. The team's bond is mended, with Trent fully prepared to face Mesogog to free his father.

Wr Ann Knapp Austen

Dir Britta Johnstone

1 - 37 THUNDER STRUCK (PART 1 OF 2)

Mesogog, now split from Mercer, readies his transmogrification beam, which will turn all of humanity into dinosaurs. To power it, he'll need the Dino Gems. But to start with, he siphons off Elsa's life force. Instead of being destroyed by it, she's somehow teleported to Zeltrax, and reverted to a near-amnesiac civilian form. The Rangers face Zeltrax again, and free his captive, stunned to learn who she is, just as much as she is to learn it as well! Trent makes a deal with Mesogog to trade the Dino Gems for his father. In doing so, he allows his teammates to sneak onto the island fortress and with the help of Hayley's latest invention, blast the dinosaur-izer beam before it can be fired! Trent barely makes it out in time as Mesogog's lab explodes around him, rescuing not only the Gems, but Anton Mercer as well. Little do they know, that while they were gone, Zeltrax infiltrated Tommy's secret lab, recaptured Elsa, and destroyed the place! Also, Devin works up the courage to ask Cassidy to the prom. But the matter of finding the Rangers' secret identities or face being fired from their News Reporting job gets in the way. Luckily, he happens to stumble upon the DT team morphing, and actually succeeds in filming it!

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 38 THUNDER STRUCK (PART 2 OF 2)

What's Zeltrax been up to while he's been absent from the show? Seems he and his Triptoids spent time building the Zelzord, the so-called "Ultimate Fighting Machine." Zeltrax, with the de-evilized Elsa as his captive, pilots the Zelzord into Reefside. Conner and Ethan pilot the Thundersaurus and Mezodon Megazords against the Zelzord, while Trent takes care of Triptoids, and Tommy & Kira rescue Elsa and face Zeltrax. The duo manages to save her, and destroy the cyborg once known as Smitty, once and for all. But the Zelzord takes a massive sacrifice of every Dinozord to stop it. Mesogog, having absorbed some power from the Dino Gems, transmogrifies to his ultimate dinosauric form, that of the Mesomonster. The five DinoThunder Rangers battle him fiercely, but even the Battlized Triassic power is unable to defeat him. To make things worse, Mesomonster is replicating! Only by pooling their Dino Gem energies into a giant flaming tyrannosaurus, can Mesogog be made extinct permanently.

Unfortunately, that last trick taps out the powers of the Dino Gems for good. Devin and Cassidy, having recorded this final battle, confront the team, and hand over the tape, admitting they couldn't exploit their friendship for personal gain after all they've done. At the Reefside 2004 senior prom, the couples include Devin & Cassidy, Conner & Krista (from "The Passion Of Conner"), and Ethan & Angela, the girl he met last episode. Kira and her band perform the music. As for Trent, he's going to art school in the fall, The humanized Elsa seems to be the new principal of the school, and she & Anton Mercer seem to be a blossoming item. As for Tommy? He's going to try to live the quiet life for once, by settling down and continuing teaching.

Wr Ann Knapp Austen

Dir Andrew Merrifield

POWER RANGERS IN SPACE

The Power Rangers Turbo had fought courageously against the forces of Divatox but in the end they lost their fight to protect the Earth. Divatox's armies finally located the Power Chamber and succeeded in destroying it completely along with the Power Rangers' powers. The remaining 4 Power Rangers along with Alpha 6 blasted off into outer space, in a commandeered Space Shuttle from N.A.S.A.D.A. to try and save Zordon from the clutches of the evil Dark Specter.

On their way to the planet Eltar, the space shuttle was mysteriously tractorbeamed into the massive Astro Megaship. There they met Andros, the Red Space Ranger whom at first mistook the Rangers for hostile intruders. After convincing him that they were on the same side and had the same mission, Andros was still reluctant to work with them. Alpha 6 convinced Andros that if he was going to stand a chance to rescue Zordon he'd need all the help he could get. Thus Andros gave the other Rangers their Astro Morphers marking the beginning of the Power Rangers In Space. The five Rangers include:

Andros leads the Power Rangers In Space as the Red Lightstar Ranger, T.J. the Blue Lightstar Ranger, Cassie the Pink Lightstar Ranger, Ashley the Yellow Lightstar Ranger and Carlos the Black Lightstar Ranger.

Now with the aid of the robot Alpha 6 and the artificially intelligent computer D.E.C.A., the Power Rangers travel the universe in their Megaship. To aid them in their battle against the evil forces of Dark Specter and Astronema the Power Rangers can combine their spacecraft to form the Astro MegaZord.

Follows POWER RANGERS TURBO. This marks the fourth entry in the continuing American Power Rangers franchise. After the disappointment of Power Rangers Turbo many of the original evil characters from The Mighty Morphin' Power Rangers have returned including Lord Zedd and Rita Repulsa. The cast of Power Ranger Turbo have been mostly transferred to this show. The latest batch of Power Rangers are perhaps the most likeable since the original power rangers. Power Rangers in Space's sequel in POWER RANGERS LOST GALAXY.

Power Rangers in Space (often abbreviated as PRiS or referred to as simply In Space) is a television show that aired in 1998 as the sixth season of the Power Rangers franchise. It was the first full series to be handled by showrunners Judd Lynn and Jonathan Tzachor.

It was loosely based on, and involved footage from, the Japanese television show Denji Sentai Megaranger, the twenty-first Super Sentai series. The show was a turning point in the history of the Power Rangers franchise, as the season brought about the end of six seasons worth of storylines and was the ending of the practice of having the Power Rangers be a continuous serial-style show with a regular cast that carried over from one season to the next. It is also one of the most popular seasons in the franchise's history and is credited for saving it from cancellation after the dismal "Power Rangers: Turbo" season. Due to Turbo's low ratings, this season was also meant to be the last as the crew had a lower budget than the last few seasons. The ratings for this season proved strong enough to move the show on.

With a reduced budget and rumors that the show would be cancelled if the ratings did not improve, the writers provided an interstellar finale which would draw the various storylines from the previous seasons to a close. The decision to make the series space-centric, came after seeing preliminary character designs for the Megarangers and their respective mecha/Zords. The preliminary sketches showed the Megarangers riding surfboards in outer space and mecha/Zords that went from spaceship to giant robot. But there was one small problem due to the fact that Saban and Toei failed to communicate with each other regarding the plot for "Megaranger". [citation needed] Saban assumed it would be an outer space-themed Super Sentai series; in truth, Toei had created a video game/electronic gadget-themed Super Sentai series that never left Earth.

It was decided by Judd Lynn to go ahead with the "space war" storyline in spite of the problems with the Megaranger footage. [citation needed] A great deal of the budget would be spent creating green screen space footage for the Zords travelling in space as well as shooting new fight scenes with the Space Rangers which were tinted a different color for broadcast so as to create the appearance of the battles taking place on alien worlds.

Two team-up episodes were made along the way bringing Blake Foster (Justin from Power Rangers: Turbo) and Johnny Yong Bosch (Adam, the second Black Power Ranger, Black Ninja Ranger, Zeo Ranger IV Green, and the original Green Turbo Ranger) to the show to try and tie up loose ends. The Phantom Ranger, whose identity was never revealed in Turbo, was also brought back for a multi-episode arc, but plans to reveal his identity fell through due to budget problems that forced Lynn to cut the episode where his identity was to be revealed.

Also, the show would be the first Power Rangers series to be completely serialized, in that the entire season would be one whole story with plots continuing from each episode. This series also featured plot devices and storylines never before seen in a Power Rangers series. It is also notable in that it is the first to feature a power-up for the Red Ranger (the Battlizer), which was also an original creation and not originally from Super Sentai (though the Battlizer "Tool" was originally an attack-enhancer in Megaranger, known as the "Battle Riser"). This would become standard practice in the following seasons, as every Red Ranger after Andros would get his own enhancement (in Power Rangers: Ninja Storm and beyond, the name 'Battlizer' would be used again until Power Rangers: Mystic Force). However, in Power Rangers: Lightspeed Rescue, the Blue and Green Lightspeed Rangers would receive enhancements as well, and in Power Rangers: Time Force, the Quantum Ranger, also considered to be a Red Ranger, would receive a power-up himself. The series is also highly regarded for being the first Power Rangers series to feature sympathetic and multi-dimensional villains in the form of Astronema and Ecliptor. Astronema was revealed to be Andros' sister, Karone, who was kidnapped by the cruel Darkonda as a child and raised by the cyborg Ecliptor to be the evil Dark Spectre's harbinger of evil. When Astronema learned the truth about her identity, she was tortured and brainwashed into staying evil by Dark Spectre and Darkonda. Ecliptor, who saw himself as Astronema's father due to him raising her, gained a level of depth not seen by many villains on the show when he tries to defend his adopted daughter, only to be cruelly tortured by the sadistic Darkonda, who forces a merger of the two into a singular entity that leaves Ecliptor broken both physically and mentally.

Rangers - Characters

Andros

The Red Space Ranger; a native of the planet KO-35, he used his Ranger powers to defeat Astronema and try to recover his sister. He was portrayed by Christopher Khayman Lee.

Carlos Vallertes

The Black Space Ranger and the former Green Turbo Ranger. He was portrayed by Roger Velasco.

T.J. Johnson

The Blue Space Ranger and the former Red Turbo Ranger. He was portrayed by Selwyn Ward.

Ashley Hammond

The Yellow Space Ranger and former Yellow Turbo Ranger. She was portrayed by Tracy Lynn Cruz.

Cassie Chan

The Pink Space Ranger and former Pink Turbo Ranger. She was portrayed by Patricia Ja Lee.

Zhane

The Silver Space Ranger; he was kept in stasis for several years because he was injured in his last battle saving Andros. When he was unfrozen, he helped the Rangers out, but was affected by a time limit, which he was later able to remove. He was portrayed by Justin Nimmo.

Arsenal

Astro Morphers: Wrist mounted gadgets worn by the five core Space Rangers, developed on KO-35; utilized for morphing and communication. With a cry of "Let's Rocket!", the Rangers open up their Morphers to reveal a keypad, and punch in "335" then "Enter" to morph.

Digimorpher: Cell-phone-based morpher used by Silver Ranger. He enters the digits "2580", which spell out "Mega", to morph.

Battlizer Gauntlet: The Red Ranger's special morpher-like gauntlet possesses 3 functions.

1. Energy Punches/Chops - Covers Andros's fist in bright red energy, increasing the impact of his punches.
2. Lazer Blast - A small lazer that is capable of cutting through nets or stunning opponents.
3. Battlizer Armor - This function, first activated by Carlos's friend Silvy, grants the Red Ranger an armored battlesuit equipped with a rocket launcher and flight capabilities.

In order to control the Delta Megazord, the wearer simply speaks commands to the Battlizer Gauntlet. E.g. "Delta Megazord, transform, now."

Astro Blaster: Standard Ranger sidearm which can be broken into two separate blasters.

Spiral Saber: Red Ranger's personal weapon. It featured a distinct drill-like blade, and could be combined with an Astro Blaster and equipped with a "Booster" attachment at the blade's tip to increase its firepower.

Quadro Blaster: Combined form of the Black, Blue, Pink and Yellow Rangers' signature weapons.

Astro Axe: Blue Ranger's personal weapon.
 Lunar Lance: Black Ranger's personal weapon.
 Star Slinger: Yellow Ranger's personal weapon.
 Satellite Stunner: Pink Ranger's personal weapon.
 Super Silverizer: The Silver Ranger's personal weapon doubles as a blaster and a sword.
 Galaxy Gliders: Surfboard-based transports used for both atmospheric and interstellar travel.
 Silver Cycle: The Silver Ranger's personal vehicle, armed with laser blasters, can also become a Galaxy Gilder.
 Megatank: A small, armored transport used for interplanetary missions.
 Galactic Rover: A sleek dune buggy piloted by the Silver Ranger developed by refugees on KO-35.

Zords

Main article: Zords in Power Rangers in Space

The Zords in Power Rangers in Space were based off of various Space vehicles. The Astro Megashuttle was used by four of the Turbo Rangers to leave the Earth to try and help Zordon. The Astro Megaship was Andros' personal spacecraft that could combine with the Megashuttle to form a Megazord. The Delta Megaship was given to the Space Rangers by the Phantom Ranger. Andros won Zordon's keycards and the Space Rangers learned the location to the Mega Voyager, five new space vehicles. Zhane was given the Mega Winger by the KO-35 Rebels.

Astro Delta Megazord

Astro Megazord

Astro Megaship

Astro Megashuttle

Delta Megaship/Megazord

Winged Mega Voyager

Mega Voyager

Mega V1 (Robo Voyager), piloted by Andros as the Red Space Ranger

Mega V2 (Shuttle Voyager), piloted by Carlos as the Black Space Ranger

Mega V3 (Rocket Voyager), piloted by T.J. As the Blue Space Ranger

Mega V4 (Saucer Voyager), piloted by Ashley as the Yellow Space Ranger

Mega V5 (Tank Voyager), piloted by Cassie as the Pink Space Ranger

Mega Winger, piloted by Zhane as the Silver Space Ranger

Original music by Kenneth Burgomaster, Jim Cushinery, Paul Christian Gordon, Jeremy Sweet, Ron Wasserman, Inon Zur.

Film Editing by Billy DiCicco, Ronald LaVine.

Produced by Sanford Hampton (line), Shuki Levy (executive) , Judd Lynn (co-producer), Scott Page-Pagter (co-producer), Paul F. Rosenthal (co-producer), Haim Saban (executive), Jonathan Tzachor.

Other crew

Barron Abramovitch	..	Music engineer
Aldo Antonelli	..	Camera operator
Julie Ashton (I)	..	Original casting
Chris Auer	..	First assistant director: second unit
Sean B. Backus	..	Post-production co-ordinator
Charlene Banta	..	Sound effects editor/ dialogue editor
Dennis Bishop (III)	..	Gaffer/key grip
Jody Blose	..	Script supervisor: second unit
Juliana Bolden	..	Music assistant
John Bordeaux	..	Special effects
Brett Born	..	Production accountant
Chuck Buch	..	Sound mixer
Jennifer Cadenhead	..	Assistant to the producers
Tiffany Christun	..	Music assistant
Eric V. Clemons	..	Art director
Drew DeAscentis	..	Music editor
Jim DiJulio	..	Second music engineer
Mike Eaton	..	First assistant camera
Susan Foster (II)	..	Production accountant
Tim Gosselin	..	Second music engineer
Iris Hampton	..	Casting
Dennis Hansen (I)	..	Extras casting

Damon Harman	..	Assistant editor
Stephen Harrison (II)	..	First assistant director
Tim Harsh	..	Re-recording mixer
Janee Hull	..	Script supervisor
Nancy Kennedy	..	Assistant to the producers
Michael Kocurek	..	Assistant art director
Phillip A. Kovats	..	Sound effects editor/ dialogue editor
Paul Kristan	..	Music editor
John Lant	..	Monster creator/ animatronics
Doug Latislaw	..	Sound supervisor
David Leon (II)	..	Music supervisor
Larry Kent Litton	..	First assistant director
Scott MacLachlan	..	Property maker
Jackie Marchand	..	Assistant story editor
Lee Mashall	..	Assistant to the producers
Paul McCallum (II)	..	Still photographer
Sean McLin	..	Director of photography: second unit
Anne Britt Mixebakken	..	Adr recordist
Clive H. Mizumoto	..	Senior vice-president of sound operations
Rosanna Montes	..	Hair styles supervisor/ make-up supervisor
Zach Alwin Pagter	..	Adr writer
Doug Price (II)	..	Production assistant
Michael Pulizatch	..	Visual effects director
Eric Rainey	..	visual effects co-ordinator
Andy Reilly	..	Post-production associate
Mark Richardson	..	Property master
Eric S. Rollman	..	Executive in charge of post-production
Cy Roscoe	..	Second assistant director
Koichi Sakamoto	..	Action choreographer/ action director
Suzi Shimoyama	..	Adr co-ordinator
Leslie Silvey	..	Production co-ordinator
John Sperger	..	Music assistant
Jason C. Spratt	..	Visual effects co-ordinator
Ivory Stanton	..	Monster creator/ animatronics
Lisa Stuckey	..	Second assistant director: second unit
Edward F. Suski	..	Re-recording mixer
Shaun Tarkington	..	Assistant production co-ordinator
David Walsh (I)	..	Adr director
Jeff West	..	Lead visual effects artist
Junichi Yajima	..	Original visual effects

Power Rangers in Space used footage from the Japanese SF show MEGARANGER. A film based on the series made in 1998 was simply a compilation of the episodes from the show.

WR. Judd Lynn

DIR. Jonathan Tzachor

EPISODES: 43 YEAR MADE: 1998 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

SABAN ENTERTAINMENT, TOEI COMPANY LTD, RENAISSANCE-ATLANTIC FILMS.

CREATOR: HAIM SABAN, SHUKI LEVY

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 16 (2) 27

DATE OF PREMIER: 06/02/1998 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 21/11/1998

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS: POWER RANGERS IN SPACE: THE MOVIE (1998).

Carlos/Green Lightstar Ranger ROGER VELASCO, T.J./Red Lightstar Ranger SELWYN WARD, Ashley/Yellow Lightstar Ranger TRACY LYNN CRUZ, Black Ranger (uncredited) TAKAHIRO HOMMA, Cassie/Pink Lightstar Ranger PATRICIA JA LEE, Red Ranger (uncredited) HIROSHI MAETA, Blue Ranger (uncredited) TAKAHARU MIYAZAKI, Yellow Ranger (uncredited) NOBUYUKI OBIKANE, Pink Ranger (uncredited) KAZUHIRO YOKOYAMA, Andros/Red Lightstar Ranger CHRISTOPHER KHAYMAN LEE, Astronema MELODY PERKINS, Farkus "Bulk" Bulkmeir PAUL SCHRIER, Eugene "Skull" Skulloovich JASON NARVY, Professor Phenomenus JACK BANNING, Divatox HILARY SHEPARD, Rita Repulsa

BARBARA GOODSON (voice) (uncredited) , Lord Zedd ROBERT AXELORD (voice) , Adelle ALOMA WRIGHT, Dark Specter CHRISTOPHER CHO (voice), Elgar KENNY GRACESON, Rita Repulsa CARLA PEREZ, Lord Zedd ED NEIL, Ecliptor WALTER LANG (voice), Alpha 6 DONENE KISTLER, Alpha 6 KATERINA LUCIANI (voice), Alpha 6 WENDEE LEE (voice), Elgar DAVID UHANSKY (voice), Deca JULIE KLIEWER (voice), Phantom Ranger (voice) ALEX DODD, Lord Zedd ED NEIL, Commander Kinwon JACK DONNER.

RELATED SHOWS:

MIGHTY MORPHIN' POWER RANGERS, THE (inc. THE MIGHTY MORPHIN' ALIEN RANGERS)

HIMITSU SENTAI GORANGER

DENGEKITAI SENTAI J.A.K.Q.

BATTLEFEVER J

DENSHI SENTAI DENJIMAN

TAIYO SENTAI VULCAN

DAI SENTAI GOGGLE V

KAGAKU SENTAI DYNAMAN

HIKARI SENTAI MASKMAN

CHO JIN SENTAI JETMAN

KYORYUU SENTAI ZYURANGER

GO SEI SENTAI DAIRANGER

DEN KO CHO JIN GRIDMAN

POWER RANGERS ZEO

POWER RANGERS TURBO

POWER RANGERS LOST GALAXY

1 - 1 FROM OUT OF NOWHERE (1-2)

Divatox, Rita, Lord Zedd, Queen Machina, and their bad guys were all at a celebration when Divatox told them all she had destroyed the Power Rangers. No one believed it, but when they finally did they were happy. Dark Specter showed up and told them he had captured Zordon and was draining his power. They all drank lava juice to celebrate, except one person. That person was wearing a cape. Queen Astronema decided the mystery person was a spy who had just heard their plans. The mystery person started fighting them and they pulled off his cape. It was a Red Power Ranger! He fought them and then took off on a spaceboard. At the same time the other Power Rangers who had escaped Earth in a shuttle, Ashley, TJ, Carlos, and Cassie, were flying through space. They couldn't understand Alpha because his speech board got messed up when the Power Chamber exploded. They saw a big ship coming right at them and they thought it was going to hit them. Instead it opened up and took their ship inside. They started walking around the big ship, but no one was there. Then the Red Ranger was trying to get away from the bad guys on his spaceboard. He got inside his big ship and found the Power Rangers in it. He thought they were bad and started fighting them. Then Astronema and her Quantrons attacked the ship and damaged the engine. The Power Rangers fixed it and the Red Ranger knew they were good. The ship fell into a planet's atmosphere and crashed on its surface. The Red Ranger got out to fight the Quantrons and the other Power Rangers went with him. The Power Rangers got to the new Astro Megaship and helped the new Red Ranger, Andros, battle the Quantrons. The Power Rangers were losing the fight and Queen Astronema appeared. Meanwhile Alpha was on the Astro Megaship that Andros had taken off in, leaving the Power Rangers behind. He told Andros that he was meant to join together with the other Power Rangers. It was all Zordon's master plan. Andros turned the Astro Megaship around and went back to help the Power Rangers, who were being held by Astronema's forces on the planet. The Astro Megaship blasted the Quantrons and landed. The Red Ranger gave new morphing wrist bands to the other Power Rangers and they all morphed. The Quantrons left. The Astro Megaship took off. Astronema's ship came to fight them. The Astro Megaship and the shuttle formed into the Space MegaZord and blew up Astronema's ship.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Jonathan Tzachor

1 - 2 SAVE OUR SHIP (PART 1 OF 2)

The Power Rangers were looking at a simudeck on the Astro Megaship and they could see the Earth. Then they landed on Earth. At the same time, Bulk and Skull found the black fortress and they fainted. Later Bulk and Skull were eating french fries and so were the Power Rangers, but at another table. While they were eating, Bulk and Skull were reading a newspaper. They found a scientist in the paper. They contacted the scientist and he told them there was a lot of work to do. They started looking for aliens. The Quantrons showed up on Earth and the Power Rangers had to fight them. They morphed and got into the Astro Megaship and blasted off. Astronema sent a space monster named Cliptor after the Power Rangers. The Power Rangers turned into the Space MegaZord. Astronema made Cliptor grow to the same size as the Space MegaZord and they had to fight each other. The Power Rangers defeated Cliptor. Then Astronema sent a purple beam down into the New York sewers that got the Ninja Turtles and popped them out of the sewer.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Isaac Florentine

1 - 3 SHELL SHOCKED (PART 2 OF 2)

Astronema sent a beam down to the sewers and the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles came up. Astronema used her staff to hypnotize the Turtles and to make them evil. Astronema sent a monster down to Earth. She sent the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles to pretend to help the Power Rangers, and the Power Rangers trusted them. The Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles took over the MegaShip and gave it to Astronema. She was taking the ship to Dark Spector. The Power Rangers broke loose and took off in the shuttle. They landed on the MegaShip. Astronema told DECA to use the self-destruct sequence. The Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles went back to being good and turned off the self-destruct sequence. The Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles helped the Power Rangers defeat the Quantrons. The Power Rangers gave the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles a lift back to New York.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Blair Treu

1 - 4 NEVER STOP SEARCHING

Andros was searching for his sister while Carlos watched from a safe distance. Andros went down to KO35 to look. Ecliptor was there. Andros used the spiral saber on Ecliptor, but Ecliptor still defeated Andros. Carlos came down and took Andros back to the ship. Andros healed and went back to KO35. He found Ecliptor again, but this time he was gigantic. All the Power Rangers came and tried to destroy Ecliptor with their laser pistols. They used their MegaShip lasers to destroy Ecliptor. Back at the MegaShip Carlos told Andros the Power Rangers would help him find his sister.

Wr Steven Roth

Dir Blair Treu

1 - 5 SATELLITE SEARCH

Elgar was in a varien fighter and he shot down a satellite from the planet Cron. Nasada called the Power Rangers and told them what happened and the Rangers set a course for Cron. When they got to Cron they started looking for the satellite and they bumped into Elgar. The Power Rangers defeated the Quantrons. Then Astronema came and knocked the Power Rangers out. She found the satellite and then chained up the Power Rangers. Andros took the memory disks from the satellite while Astronema had them and flew off on his Galaxy Glider. Alpha used the disks with the MegaZord. Astronema sends a monster down and the Power Rangers destroyed it. Elgar got into trouble with Astronema for losing the disks.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Blair Treu

1 - 6 A RANGER AMOUNG THIEVES

The Power Rangers were practicing fighting in the holodeck of the spaceship. Alpha told them they had a test to take and they went to school. They told Andros to go hang out at the Surf Spot while they were in school. Meanwhile, Queen Astronema sent a new monster named Voltagehog to Angel Grove. At the Surf Spot Adelle reported that her van was stolen. Then some kids stole money from people's purses right in front of the police. Andros still doesn't understand Earth and its ways. He was trying to eat a banana with the peel on and some other kids told him he was supposed to peel it first. Andros gave them some advice on pool. One of the kids bet him a milkshake he couldn't make a shot. He did make it. The kids let him join them. Andros didn't know they were crooks and helped them break into a car. They taught him how to blow bubbles with bubblegum. Then they went to pick up another one of their friends. Andros got out of the car to stop the kid because he stole an old lady's purse. Andros gave it back to her. Professor Phenomenus, Bulk, and Skull are chasing after a bunny. The Professor saw it. Then Voltagehog got to Angel Grove. Andros got out of the car and saw it. He transformed into the Red Ranger and fought it. Afterward he goes looking for his new friends and he finds the car they were in and Adelle's van. His friends tried to tell him that Adelle had loaned it to them permanently, but Andros realizes they are the thieves. He says that he thought they were becoming friends and demands they take all the cars back to the owners. The leader of the thieves told Andros he was crazy and starts to follow him to beat hi up. The other kids try to stop the leader, but he jerks away and they follow him. Voltagehog appears in front of the leader of the thieves and scares him. Then it attacks him. The other kids find them and Voltagehog gets ready to attack them all. Andros jumps between the monster and the kids. He attacks Voltagehog. The leader of the thieves leaves, but the other two stay to help. Andros gets hurt. He stayed unmorphed and attacked Voltagehog. Ecliptor came and broke the Spiral Saber. The other Power rangers came and the battle turns in favor of the Power Rangers. Voltagehog grows and the Power Rangers call their MegaZord and defeat it with the sword. Later, the two kids who were thieves turn the keys back to the Surf Spot and Adelle lets them help her with deliveries to repay her.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Worth Keeter

1 - 7 WHEN PUSH COMES TO SHOVE

Cassie put a picture of the Pink Ranger and herself in her diary. She left it at the Surf Spot. She bumped into two guys who introduced themselves as George and Freddy and told her they had her diary. George said the only way she could get her diary back was to date his friend Freddy. Cassie went on the date and they ditched George and went to a building with a restaurant at the top. There was also a plutonium reactor at the top of the building. Queen Astronema sent Ramhead, an elephant, to knock down the building with the reactor on it. If they building fell it would blow up Angel Grove! The Power Rangers diffused the reactor and morphed into the MegaZord. They fought Ramhead and then Queen Astronema used the satellite lasers to make Ramhead grow and the Power Rangers beat him. Later at the Surf Spot George and Freddy gave Cassie back her diary. Freddy asked Cassie out on a date and she said yes and offered to make is a double date with George and Ashley. The only problem was, Ashley doesn't like George.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Worth Keeter

1 - 8 THE CRATERITE INVASION

The Power Rangers were in a storm. Two of them were in a simulation and lightning struck the ship some craterites escaped. A boy saw the craterites and then went back to sleep. The next day the boy's mom told him the next door neighbor would take him to school, but when he looked through the window he saw they were really craterites. Meanwhile Bulk and skull saw some craterites too. The Power Rangers had to fight the craterites and had to fight them again and again. There were too many. They ran until a black craterite came and joined the other craterites. They joined together and became a giant craterite. the Power Rangers destroyed the giant craterite. Later at the Surf Spot Bulk and Skull embarrassed themselves by sucking off their clothes.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Worth Keeter

1 - 9 THE WASP WITH A HEART

A wasp monster was picking flowers and another wasp monster named Sting King came. Sting King told him it was bad to pick flowers and turned him bad. He tried to kill the Pink Ranger, but he didn't have the heart to do it. He was behind a bush and Ecliptor and some quantrons came and destroyed a birthday party. Ecliptor made the monster go back and fight the Power Rangers again. The monster took a hit in his stomach from the other wasp. Astronema sent the SateLasers and made the other wasp big. The Power Rangers destroyed the other wasp with he Delta AstroMegaShip. The good wasp turned into pure energy and left.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 10 THE DELTA DISCOVERY

Divatox has captured Zordon. The Phantom Ranger gave the Power Rangers a disk that controls the MegaDeltaAstro MegaShip. The Power Rangers take the MegaShip and defeat the monster on Earth. Andros took his Galaxy Glider in search of the ship and finds it in the Delta Quadrant. He sticks the disk in the slot in the control room and it goes to Earth and trnsforms into a MegaZord. Andros has a gadget on his arm that commands the robot. The Phantom Ranger left a message saying he had left and was following Divatox and searching for Zordon. The Phantom Ranger left a message for Cassie telling her not to forget him because they have a thing for each other. At the end Dark Spectopr said he would crush the Dark Fortress while Astronema was sleeping if she failed again.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 11 THE GREAT EVILYZER

Bulk and Skull and the professor made the Evilyzer, a little gun that makes things evil or good. They tested it on a little robot and it came alive and chased them. Ecliptor got the Evilyzer and used it on Ashley's Galaxy Glider. It went out of control and she had to ride with Andros back to the ship. The Power Rangers went to Earth and fought Crabatron, the monster that Astronema made. Crabatron turned the Astro MegaShip bad, so the Power Rangers had to regain control of it. The Power Rangers used the Astro MegaShip to form the MegaDeltaAstro MegaShip and destroyed Crabatron. Ashley got her Galaxy Glider back. At the end the experiment was chasing Bulk and Skull.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Worth Keeter

1 - 12 GRANDMA MATCHMAKER

Ashley was reading at the park and her grandmother came and took her to the Surf Spot. Her grandmother started showing her some pictures of boys she thinks Ashley should marry. Ashley tells her grandmother she is dating Carlos. Astronema calls for a monster and the Power Rangers have to destroy it. Ashley tells her grandmother that she and Carlos aren't actually dating. Her grandmother asked her if she liked Carlos and told her she could go on her first date. She gave them identical shirts. Their Power Ranger watches went off and the ground shook. Little creatures came out. Ashley took her grandmother to a safe place and left her there. She morphed and fought and destroyed the monster.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Worth Keeter

1 - 13 THE BARILLIAN STING

The Power Rangers were being ambushed and Darkonda came. Darkonda unleashed a Cardason insect and it bit Carols. Carlos started turning into a monster and stung Cassie. The rest of the Power Rangers tied Cassie to the bed in the infirmary. Andros and TJ went to KO35 and got the antidote for the sting. They cured Cassie and Carlos. The Power Rangers had to use the AstroMegaZord to destroy a big Cardason insect on KO35. After the insect was destroyed, Andros went to the top of the medicine building and looked at the park where his sister was kidnapped.

Wr John Fletcher

Dir Judd Lynn

1 - 14 T.J.S IDENTITY CRISIS

The Power Rangers were setting up a special satellite that can search galaxies. Ecliptor and Cordinal came and destroyed the satellite. The Power Rangers came and fought them. Three of the Power Rangers got turned into ice cubes. Ecliptor and Cordinal joined together to make Eliptor. The Power Rangers fought Eliptor, but TJ got amnesia and forgot who he was. Andros was almost dead, but TJ remembered who he was and cut Eliptor. Astronema shot the SateLasers and made Eliptor grow. The Power Rangers called the MegaDeltaAstroMegaShip into action and destroyed Eliptor. They made Ecliptor go back to the Dark Fortress. The Power Rangers go back to playing basketball again.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Worth Keeter

1 - 15 FLASHES OF DARKONDA (PART 1 OF 2)

Andros was sleeping. While he was asleep he was remembering when Darkonda kidnapped his sister he was playing with her. Andros woke up and went to the bridge. When everyone had left he went into a sector that has no law enforcement. He almost got killed getting some data chips that had been stolen from Zordon. He gave the data chips to Alpha and told him they were genuine. Darkonda came onto the screen and said "If you want to see your sister, meet me and give me the data chips". Andros and the other Power Rangers went to meet Darkonda. Darkonda took a strength potion that was tampered with and he grew. The Power Rangers called the AstroDeltaMegaZord. They were fighting Darkonda and got knocked down and were sliding on the street.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Jonathan Tzachor

2 - 1 THE RANGER'S MEGA VOYAGE (PART 2 OF 2)

The Quantrons kidnapped the pink car and were trying to capture the blue one. The Power Rangers all got captured. Meanwhile, Justin was outside wondering where the Power Rangers were and if they were ok. He couldn't find them and then he had to go to bed. While he was in bed he heard a noise. He looked out his window and found the blue car. The car practically kidnapped Justin. It brought Justin to where the Power Rangers were being held. Justin saw the Power Rangers and found his morpher. He morphed into the Blue Ranger and started attacking the Quantrons. He got the Power Rangers free and they beat the Quantrons. A monster came and the Power Rangers had to fight him. The monster was winning and the blue car came and fired at the monster. Then the Power Rangers used their weapons on the monster. Astronema made the monster grow, so the Power Rangers had to use their MegaZord to defeat the monster. The Power Rangers went to save the pink car. They fought the Quantrons and won. The Power Rangers said goodbye to Justin because he had to go home. Justin said he would always help them when they were in trouble. The next morning when Justin really busy, but he decided Justin was more important and they went fishing.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Judd Lynn

2 - 2 TRUE BLUE TO THE RESCUE

It was Ashley birthday and Andros gave her a rare gem necklace from KO35. Ashley always had a crush on him since the day she first saw him. Later she was walking with Cassie and Astronema kidnapped Ashley. Astronema switched places with Ashley and, disguised as her, she went the MegaShip. The disguised Astronema tied up Cassie, then Carlos, then TJ. The real Ashley and Andros went down to earth and were looking for disturbances, but there were none. Andros found Astronema and Ashley fighting, because Ashley turned into Astronema and it was over. Astronema left and Ashley unmorphed.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Judd Lynn

2 - 3 INVASION OF THE BODY SWITCHER

Astronema attacked Zhane and accidentally hit one of her own monsters and it turned on her. Zhane picked up Astronema and got out of there. Later Astronema found herself in the jungle with the White Ranger. The White Ranger was cooking a marshmallow and he gave it to Astronema and, although she was not grateful, she still ate it and liked it. Then she left. Meanwhile, Astronema was drooling over a picture of Zhane and Zhane was drooling over a picture of Astronema. Astronema instantly fell in love with Zhane and Zhane instantly fell in love with Astronema. During all this the Power Rangers were watching a movie. Astronema told Zhane to meet her at the campfire and he went to the station and changed and got some roses for Astronema. He tried to sneak past Alpha and Alpha saw him and made him go and help the Power Rangers. Zhane asked, "Do I have to?" And Alpha said, "Yes" and he went to go to help. Meanwhile, Astronema was wondering where Zhane was. Zhane destroyed the monster and he got to the campfire really late. Astronema got really mad and was wondering why she was really mad. She left and he left, but now he's sad. The other Power Rangers were trying to comfort him, but he said no and he went into his quarters and went to bed.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Judd Lynn

2 - 4 SURVIVAL OF THE SILVER

Ambushed by restless natives while collecting lifeform samples on the planet Kadix, the Astro Megaship crash lands, causing a secret room to open up. Inside it, the Rangers find the frozen body of Zhane, Andros' best friend and former teammate, the Silver Ranger, left in a coma for many years after falling in battle on KO-35. As the Megaship comes under attack by both the Kadix natives and the recently hatched monster called Lunatick, power fails, leading to Zhane's life support chamber shutting down. The Rangers find themselves overwhelmed, but are rescued by a surprising source...

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 5 RED WITH ENVY

Now that he's defrosted, Zhane quickly warms up with his new teammates. However, Andros gets jealous when he suspects that Zhane is becoming a little too friendly with Ashley, whom he's secretly attracted to. Meanwhile, Darkonda returns, with a pair of monsters known as the Crocotoxes. The Rangers will need all the help they can get against them, though, unbeknownst to them, the Silver Ranger discovers he's having trouble remaining morphed!

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 6 THE SILVER SECRET

When the Rangers spot Alpha scanning Zhane and overhear the robot telling him that he hasn't much time left, the Rangers jump to the wrong conclusion and assume Zhane is dying! Zhane, who's really just unable to Morph for more than 2 minutes at a time, decides to play up this misunderstanding, and exploits their sympathy. Astronema, though, knows his true secret, and sends the Praying Mantis monster out to use the knowledge to destroy the Silver Ranger once and for all.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 7 A DATE WITH DANGER

When Astronema is attacked by one of her monsters, she's rescued by her nemesis, Zhane. She discovers a growing attraction to the Silver Ranger, even arranging a date with him. But Ecliptor's Horrorbull monster proves to be a distraction, keeping the Rangers busy, delaying Zhane's arrival to the site of their date. Beware the wrath of a queen of evil scorned!

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 8 ZHANE'S DESTINY

The Rangers pick up a signal which leads them to a planet under a constant sandstorm. They're unaware it's also current home to the former inhabitants of the colony of KO-35, Andros & Zhane's homeworld, who're staging a rebellion against Dark Specter's forces in secret. The four Earthen Rangers are captured by the rebels, and thanks to a traitor in their midst, are led to believe they're spies for Dark Specter, and the source of an infectious attack by the Coralizer monster.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 9 ALWAYS A CHANCE

Thanks to the Lizwizard monster's ability to switch places with anyone he's got his tongue wrapped around, Carlos accidentally injures Cassie. Though she's not hurt badly, this incident strikes a major blow to the Black Ranger's self-confidence. He soon bumps into his predecessor, Adam Park, who offers both guidance and extra training. But with Carlos fast deciding to quit the Rangers, will Adam take the ultimate risk with a burnt out Morpher to teach him the lesson that just as there's always a chance bad things can happen in battle, there's still always a chance they'll work out right?

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 10 THE SECRET OF THE LOCKET

Resuming his attempted interrogation of the monster responsible for his sister's abduction, Andros once again confronts Darkonda about the whereabouts of Karone. Will the equal enemy of Darkonda, Ecliptor, be a help or hinderance in this duel? Soon, during a battle between the Rangers and the monster Batterax, Astronema joins the combat. As the Red Ranger strikes back at Astronema, the locket and necklace she always wears is broken off. Andros finds it, and much to his surprise, learns that what's inside ties to his decade-long search, and to a secret about his evil nemesis.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 11 ASTRONEMA THINKS TWICE (PART 1 OF 2)

With the revelation that she was once Karone, Andros' long lost sister, Astronema struggles between the life of a Queen of Evil that she's been tailored to live, and the life as a normal child she had stolen from her. She meets with Andros on KO-35 to talk about it, but has trouble believing his claims, unleashing the Spike monster upon him. Meanwhile, the rivalry between Ecliptor and Darkonda heats up!

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 12 THE RANGER'S LEAP OF FAITH

Astronema leads the Rangers to where Zordon is being held, as proof that she has chosen to give up her life of evil. But the Rangers, aside from Andros, have serious doubts about her honesty. Their suspicions seem to be vindicated when it all turns out to be a trap by Dark Specter. But is all not what it seems to be concerning Astronema?

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Jonathan Tzachor

2 - 13 THE REVENGE OF DARK SPECTRE (1-2) (AKA DARK SPECTRE'S REVENGE)

Though the Rangers are quickly accepting the reformed Karone as part of the Megaship crew, Dark Specter aims to make their happy bonding short lived. He sends a giant asteroid towards Earth, and will let it crash into the planet unless the former Astronema is returned to his evil side! The Rangers journey to the asteroid surface in an effort to destroy it through explosives, but encounter Quantron resistance. Karone takes a gamble of her own by returning to the Dark Fortress, but will this maneuver backfire, when she finds her once loyal guardian Ecliptor has been reprogrammed by Darkonda? Meanwhile, Professor Phenomenus, Bulk & Skull spot the approaching space rock, but will anyone at NASADA believe them about it?

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Tony Randel

2 - 14 RANGERS GONE PYSCHO

The Space Rangers are stunned when they encounter the Psycho Rangers, recently created by the newly-brainwashed Astronema and secretly drawing tremendous energy off of Dark Specter. These five evil Rangers scour Angel Grove, listening for the telltale sound of our heroes' communicators to alert them of the unmorphed teens' location. When Zhane ends up captured by them, the Space Rangers are forced to come out of hiding to face the Psychos, who prove to be more than their equals in both skill and ruthlessness.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Judd Lynn

2 - 15 CARLOS ON CALL

Carlos is playing a video game and a girl named Cynthia comes to the video game. Then her mom comes up and tells the girl that Carlos is one of her best students at the high school and she leaves. Carlos' watch went off and he went into a photo booth and changed into a Power Ranger. Cynthia walked by and a picture came out of the picture booth. She picked it up and saw Carlos morphing into a Power Ranger. She e-mailed Carlos saying she knew that he was a Power Ranger. Cynthia took advantage of it and gave him a beeper and said, "If you don't come when I beep you, I'll tell the whole world that you are a Power Ranger". Then the bad psycho Power Rangers tried to kill Cynthia. Carlos and the Power Rangers beat them because two of the bad psycho Power Rangers attacked each other over who gets the victory now. Then Carlos gave Cynthia a moon rock because her brother died and she promised her brother that she would be an astronaut. Then he took her for a ride on the Galaxy Glider and she gave him the picture. Then he showed her the moons of Jupiter. This was the first time they didn't use the AstroMegaZord.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Judd Lynn

2 - 16 A RIFT IN THE RANGERS

Cabin fever sets in for the space-bound Rangers, as Ashley and Cassie erupt in constant bickering over their respective personal faults. Similarly, the Pink & Yellow Psycho are feuding as well, each trying to one-up the other in attacking the Rangers. When Psycho Yellow takes Ashley prisoner during a battle, Psycho Pink is furious over being upstaged in the fight she was in charge of, and Cassie is guilt-ridden, determinedly searching for her teammate. Even if the Yellow Ranger can break free from her captors, one of the Psycho Ranger women is going to become a giant problem for our heroes!

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 17 FIVE OF A KIND

The four Psycho Rangers attacked the Power Rangers and beat them. The Psycho Rangers ran away because Dark Spectre called them back to Astronema's ship. The Psycho Rangers got mad at Astronema and said they were going to go after the Power Rangers by themselves. Meanwhile, the Power Rangers came up with a plan and TJ thought of a plan. He thought they should all look like the Blue Ranger. The Power Rangers attacked the Psycho Rangers and they hurt the Blue Psycho Ranger. Astronema's ship shot the SateLasers and the Blue Psycho Ranger grew. The Power Rangers used the MegaVoyager and destroyed the Blue Psycho Ranger. The other Psycho Rangers got away.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 18 SILENCE IS GOLDEN (PART 1 OF 2)

The remaining three Psycho Rangers track the Space Rangers by listening out for their voice patterns, which forces the Rangers into hiding on board the Astro Megaship. Except for Cassie, who is out shopping, unaware of the current threat until her teammates contact her and warn her not to make a sound! The tension mounts as Cassie is forced to keep quiet, knowing one slip of the lip will alert the Psychos, who are patrolling the mall area in human form! But when Cassie notices something horrific about to happen, can she maintain her silence? And will this whole ordeal cost the Rangers one of their Megazords?

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 19 THE ENEMY WITHIN (PART 2 OF 2)

Astronema was talking to Dark Spector about the Psycho Power Rangers trying to drain his power. Then Astronema talked to Ecliptor, and he said, "The Psycho Power Rangers are attacking the Power Rangers." Then Ecliptor said, "I will do everything in my power to stop them." The Psycho Power Rangers attack the real Power Rangers. The Yellow Psycho Ranger took over the new MegaZord. The other Psycho Power Rangers attacked the White Power Ranger's MegaZord. The other Psycho Power Rangers attacked the Yellow Psycho Ranger because they all want the victory. The Psycho Power Rangers killed each other over who would defeat the Power Rangers. Up on the MegaShip, the Power Rangers crossed out the Psycho Power Rangers on a blackboard.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 20 ANDROS AND THE STOAWAY

An alien servant of the Jakarak monster escapes, and stows away on the Astro Megaship. The Rangers seek to protect him, naming him Seymour. He grows quickly from incessive eating, and despite their attempts to keep him free, he becomes forced to merge with the monster. Will the Rangers be able to destroy Jakarak without sacrificing the innocent Seymour?

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 21 MISSION TO SECRET CITY (PART 1 OF 2)

The Vacsacker monster sweeps through Angel Grove, sucking up citizens (including Bulk, Skull, Professor Phenomenus, Carlos, Andros, and Carlos' pal Silvy) and ejecting them in the domed Secret City, all part of a plan by Astronema to turn them into own evil soldiers. It's up to Ashley, TJ, and Cassie to infiltrate the city in an attempt to break the dome, to allow themselves and their captive teammates to be able to Morph to save the prisoners. When Andros confronts Vacsacker with only his Battlizer to power up his bare fists, will Silvy's incessive curiosity unleash a a previously unknown secret weapon of the Red Ranger, or will it spell the end for everyone?

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 22 GHOSTS IN THE MACHINE (PART 2 OF 2)

Astronema turned some people from Angel Grove into data chips. The Power Rangers took action and found a city underwater. The city had a force field around it. The Power Rangers tried to enter the city, but they could not, so they teleported in. The Rangers wandered around in the biggest building there and they got turned into data chips. Then the Psycho Rangers attacked Ecliptor and he attacked the Psycho Rangers. Then Zhane turned the Power Rangers back into their normal selves. Zane turned the Psycho Rangers into data chips and returned the people from Angel Grove back to normal. Astronema attacked the Power Rangers. The Rangers escaped. The city under the water sank beneath the ocean floor. Astronema was furious, but she said "tomorrow is another day."

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 23 THE IMPENETRABLE WEB

The Power Rangers received a message saying that an Earth spaceship crashed on a desert planet. They went there and the Dark Fortress popped up. The Power Rangers' DeltaMegaShip got captured in a web. Astronema sent Darkonda to attack the Power Rangers and also sent Ecliptor to attack the DeltaMegaShip. When Ecliptor went the DeltaMegaShip, DECA and Alpha kicked his butt, but he got the location of the Delta Voyager. Ecliptor went there and found Zhane guarding it. He fought him and he got badly wounded, so he went back to Astronema. At the same time the Power Rangers fought Darkonda and won. Then the Red Ranger used a jet and went into outer space and got the web off the ship. They go back to the Delta Voyager and found them alright.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Judd Lynn

2 - 24 A LINE IN THE SAND

A dark humvee stalks each of the Space Rangers while they're on Earth in their civilian lives. It fails to capture Andros & Ashley while they're out on a date, but succeeds in taking out each of the others. With each it runs down, they're teleported to a barren desert, with no way to contact the Megaship! Even if our heroes can put the brakes on this living vehicle, known as Tankenstein, they'll have even bigger problems with its monster form.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Judd Lynn

2 - 24 THE INVASION OF THE BODY SWITCHER

2 - 25 COUNTDOWN TO DESTRUCTION (1-2)

Astronema was talking to Dark Spector and he said it was time to conquer the galaxy. Astronema told every body who ever fought the Power Rangers what Dark Spectpr had said. The attack began and the Power Rangers noticed that about a million or more fighters started to head towards Earth. The Power Rangers started toward Earth too. When they got there, the fighters were everywhere, attacking and blowing up everything. The Power Rangers left Zhane in charge of the MegaShip and went to the surface of the Earth and attacked the fighters. Zhane took the MegaWinger and the MegaWinger went down. Then the Power Rangers morphed out of being a Power Ranger and went and hid. The Power Rangers were planing a counterattack while Astronema built a gun that could blow up a planet. Then when nobody was looking, Darkonda took the gun attached to the fighter by taking the fighter. He blew up Dark Spector, but also blew up himself. Andros went to the Dark Fortress and found Zordon. Meanwhile the Power Rangers revealed themselves to the planet, then attack everybody who was evil. Andros and Astronema were fighting with each other. Andros blocked a laser blast from Asrtonema and it bounced onto her. Then Ecliptor walked in and saw Astronema on the ground and fell down. Andros destroyed

Zordon's Power Chamber. Zedd, Rita, Divatox, and Astronema turned back into their original selves again. The Power Rangers rested for the rest of the day.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Jonathan Tzachor

POWER RANGERS JUNGLE FURY

Power Rangers: Jungle Fury is the title of the sixteenth season in the American children's television series Power Rangers. It premiered on February 18, 2008, with toy merchandising in the US beginning in November 2007, and it will use footage from the thirty-first Japanese Super Sentai series, Juken Sentai Gekiranger.

WR.

DIR.

EPISODES: 1 YEAR MADE: 2008 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

BVS ENTERTAINMENT INC. , BVS INTERNATIONAL N.V., RANGER PRODUCTIONS LTD, RENAISSANCE-ATLANTIC FILMS, TOEI COMPANY.

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO

FORMAT: SERIAS

LENGTH (MINS): 25 STILL IN PRODUCTION: Yes B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1)

DATE OF PREMIER: 18/02/2008

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Theo - Blue Jaguar Ranger ALIN ABELLA, RJ - Violet Wolf Ranger DAVID DE LAUTOUR, Lily - Yellow Cheetah Ranger ANNA HUTCHISON, Master Mao NATHANIEL LESS, Camille HOLLY SHANAHAN, Jared BEDE SKINNER, Casey - Red Tiger Ranger JASON SMITH.

RELATED SHOWS:

POWER RANGERS OPERATION OVERDRIVE

1 - 1 WELCOME TO THE JUNGLE (PART 1 OF 2)

1 - 2 WELCOME TO THE JUNGLE (PART 2 OF 2)

POWER RANGERS LIGHTSPEED RESCUE

Set in the futuristic city of Mariner Bay built on a forgotten demonic burial ground. Passing nomads unwittingly release the four demons, forcing the defense organization Lightspeed to immediately recruit five teenagers to defend the city from its new enemies. Their efforts are concentrated on defeating the minions of the Saima Clan before the long awaited Grand Cross celestial conjunctions (a vestige of the original Japanese plot), at which Queen Bansheera (Diane Salinger) will return from exile to wreak havoc. On occasion, the team also rescues people with a giant robot whose arms contain extending ladders.

Power Rangers Lightspeed Rescue began on February 12, 2000 on Fox Kids television. Five new Power Rangers carry on the team tradition as the Power Rangers Lightspeed Rescue team, dedicated to fighting evil and protecting good. Evil demons are threatening to make Mariner Bay their stronghold on Earth and the Power Rangers must battle the evil Diabolico and his monsters to protect the world. The Power Rangers Lightspeed Rescue use all new Lightspeed Rescue Zords and weapons to battle Diabolico and keep the world safe.

This is a definite must see show if you're a fan of the Power Rangers (and even if you're not)! The whole show has a different 'feel' to it than all of the past incarnations of Power Rangers. Join the Lightspeed Rangers (Kelsey, Dana, Joel, Chad, and Carter) as they fight to defend the city of Mariner Bay from the evil villain Diabolico.

Power Rangers Lightspeed Rescue is the sixth series to be based on the Power Rangers shows of Japan, to be made by Saban in the US, the series directly follows POWER RANGERS LOST GALAXY.

Power Rangers Lightspeed Rescue is a real cool shows it beats the original Power Rangers straight on. Using a Train is a cool way to get the Zords to them not that great writing. It's really better than the old Sub Zero one witch last for three show I only saw. Then move on. I did rent old Power Ranger Movie to find out that it was old it was the next level. Waste of Mone. But Power Rangers Lightspeed. I remember the one thing that captain of the Power Rangers Lightspeed, Told Carter that he fail the one of the test. He doubt his boss. But his boss was right.

The young that people young Carter during the fire scence flashback and the young Dana and Ryan doing the car wreck fashback they are good actors. I was think that it was going to be along the same story line. But the writers are doing real great because this show was never boring even to the last episode. I real enjoyed watching this show but too bad it's over and out exact for one guest showing.

Produced by Shuki Levy (executive producer), Judd Lynn (co-producer), Scott Page-Pagter (co-producer), Paul F. Rosenthal (co-producer), Haim Saban (executive producer), Koichi Sakamoto (co-producer), Jonathan Tzachor (producer).

Original music by Shuki Levy, Kussa Mahchi, Lior Rosner, Jeremy Sweet, Inon Zur. Cinematography by Ilan Rosenberg, Film Editing by Richard Bracken, Ronald LaVine and Eric Rainey (episode 37). Casting by Iris Hampton, Production Design by Julie Bolder, Art Direction by Rob Howeth (episodes 1-5), Scott MacLachlan, Costume Design by Danielle Baker.

Makeup Department - Rosanna Montes (hair stylist make-up artist), Production Management - Sean B. Backus (post production supervisor), Shaun Tarkington (unit production manager), Second Unit Director or Assistant Director - Chris Auer (first assistant director: second unit), Mark Avery (second assistant director), Stephen Harrison (first assistant director), Larry Litton (first assistant director), Lisa Stuckey (second assistant director: second unit).

Art Department - Kristen Catena (monster wrangler), Andy Reins (lead man), Mark Richardson (property master), Ivory Stanton (monster wrangler), Sound Department - Barron Abramovitch (music engineer),

Charlene Banta (sound effects editor), Chuck Buch (production sound mixer), Drew DeAscentis (supervising music editor), James Dijulio (second music engineer), Laura Drozco (adr co-ordinator), Tim Gosselin (second music engineer), Tim Harsh (sound re-recording mixer (episodes 1-16)), Doug Latislaw (supervising sound editor), Al Lay (second music engineer), Ian Mayo (sound effects editor), Dusty Rabbin (music assistant), John Sperger (music assistant), Edward F. Suski (sound re-recording mixer), David Walsh (adr director).

Special Effects by John Bordeaux, Rod Ripley (special effects coordinator: Saban Entertainment), Visual Effects by Daryl Bartley (CGI lead animator: Saban (uncredited), Michael Carter (modern videofilm artist), Jonathan Cummins (modern videofilm artist), Susanna Dileo (modern videofilm artist), Rick Kerrigan (visual effects supervisor), Omar McClinton (CGI production manager: Saban/Fox Kids), Revis Meeks (visual effects coordinator), Jason C. Spratt (visual effects supervisor: Modern VideoFilm), Jeff West (lead artist: Modern VideoFilm).

Stunts - Hiro Koda, Rey-Phillip Santos (assistant stunt co-ordinator), Toru Yamaguchi (diving double: episodes "Ocean Blue" & "Neptune's Daughter"), Jason Ybarra (stunts).

Other crew - Aldo Antonelli (camera operator (episodes 1-7, 22, 25-28 and 31-40)), Dwayne Barr (dolly grip), Richard Bernagozzi (script supervisor), Dennis Bishop (lighting director), Jody Blose (script supervisor: second unit (episodes 1-16 and 20-40)), Brett Born (production accountant), Jennifer Cadenhead (assistant to producers), Deven Chierighino (location manager), Graham Cove (underwater crew (episodes "Ocean Blue" & "Neptune's Daughter")), David Eads (underwater crew (episodes "Ocean Blue" & "Neptune's Daughter")), Susan Foster (production accountant), J.P. Genasi (underwater crew (episodes "Ocean Blue" & "Neptune's Daughter")), Chris Goss (camera operator (episodes 08-10, 29 and 30)), Tyler M. Hall (production coordinator (uncredited)), Travis Hills (set production assistant), Ron Kenan (executive in charge of music), Nancy Kennedy (assistant to producers), David Leon (music supervisor), Judd Lynn (story editor (uncredited)), Anne Britt Makebakken (adr writer), Jackie Marchand (assistant story editor).

Lee Marshall (assistant to producers), Sean McLin (director of photography: second unit), Clive H. Mizumoto (executive in charge of post-production), Jeffrey Oberste (post-production associate), Zach Alwin Pagter (adr writer), Ray Quiroz (script supervisor: second unit (episodes 17-19)), Eric Rainey (additional editor), Ben Rittenhouse (mermaid costume maintenance (episodes "Ocean Blue" and "Neptune's Daughter")), David Robman (camera operator (episodes 11-16)), Eric S. Rollman (executive in charge of production), Pete Romano (underwater photographer (episodes "Ocean Blue" and "Neptune's Daughter")), Suzi Shimoyama (adr writer), Christienne Silverio (assistant accountant), Eric Treml (underwater assistant camera (episodes "Ocean Blue" and "Neptune's Daughter")), Ronald Vidor (camera operator (episodes 17-21, 23 and 24)), David Walsh (adr writer), Jeff Weiss (assistant production coordinator), J. Zachary Woodford (assistant editor).

Distributors - Fox Kids Network [us], Fox Television [us] (2000), Saban Entertainment Inc.

Special Effects - Modern Videofilm Inc. [us]

Extras casting - Central/Cennex Casting [us]

Local arrangements: Bahamas - Stuart Cove's Underwater Productions [bs]

Camera equipment provided by Keslow Cameras [us]

Stunt choreography - Alpha Stunts [jp]

Grip and lighting equipment - Cinemobile System Inc. [us]

Nature footage provided by Busch Entertainment Corporation [us]

Lightspeed Aquabase constructed and photographed by Stargate Films Inc. [us]

Special thanks to Channel Islands National Park, Ventura (CA) [us], The U.S. Geological Survey [us]

The University of California, Santa Barbara [us],

Scuba equipment provided by Sport Chalet [us]

WR. John Fletcher, Judd Lynn, Jack Marchand, Denise Skinner

DIR. Issac Florentine, Worth Keeter, Judd Lynn, Koichi Sakamoto, Ryuta Tazaki, Johnathan Tzachor, Makoto Yokoyama.

EPISODES: 40 YEAR MADE: 2000 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 2

MMPR PRODUCTIONS, RENAISSANCE-ATLANTIC FILMS, SABAN ENTERTAINMENT INC., TOEI COMPANY LTD.

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 16, (2) 24

DATE OF PREMIER: 12/02/2000 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 18/11/2000

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:FILMS:

Chad Lee/Blue Lightspeed Ranger MICHAEL CHATURANTABUT, Dana Mitchell/Pink Lightspeed Ranger ALISON MACLNNIS, Carter Grayson/Red Lightspeed Ranger SEAN JOHNSON, Kelsey Winslow/Yellow Lightspeed Ranger SASHA WILLIAMS, Joel Rawlings/Green Lightspeed Ranger KEITH ROBINSON Captain Mitchell RON ROGGE, Ms. Fairweather MONICA LOUWERENS, Diabolico NEIL KAPLAN (1), Queen Bansheera DIANE SALINGER (1), Vypra JENNIFER L, YEN, Jinxer KIM STRAUSS (2), Impus BRIANNE SIDDALL (2).

RELATED SHOWS:

MIGHTY MORPHIN' POWER RANGERS, THE (inc. THE MIGHTY MORPHIN' ALIEN RANGERS)

POWER RANGERS ZEO

POWER RANGERS IN SPACE

POWER RANGERS LOST GALAXY

1 - 1 OPERATION LIGHTSPEED (PART 1 OF 2)

Nomad travelers found a crypt that had been sealed for thousands of years and opened the sarcophagus. Monster spirits came out of the sarcophagus and began to attack where their former home was, Mariner Bay. Just then Captain Mitchell found out about it and went to find the special people picked for the Lightspeed Rescue team. First he got Joel Rawlings, then he got Chad Lee, third he got Kelsey Winslow, next he got Dana Mitchell, and last but not least Carter Grayson. They all headed for a submarine and got on it. The whole group went to the Lightspeed base, where they got their morphers and their jackets. They headed out after the monsters, led by Diabolico, that were terrorizing Mariner Bay. They found the monster, and attacked the Batlings and defeated them. Then they destroyed the monster and they saved the day. Once they were back at the Lightspeed Base everybody was congratulating them.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

1 - 2 LIGHTSPEED TEAMWORK (PART 2 OF 2)

Joel was walking down the hall when he saw some ladies. He turned around and bumped into Ms. Fairweather, making her drop everything she was carrying onto the ground. When he looked up he fell instantly in love. Later the Power Rangers were having a tour and they learned about the rescue trains. Joel wasn't there because he was at a flower shop when an alarm sounded because a monster attacked. Joel showed up and they all left in the trains. The Power Rangers went into a building and rescued the people inside and then they left. They turned into the MegaZord and destroyed the monster. They all went home. Joel gave the flowers to Ms. Fairweather, who rejected him and got pissed off.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

1 - 3 TRIAL BY FIRE

The Power Rangers were packing up to do something when they were called to go to training. At the training area Joel and Chad finished the training in one and a half minutes, then Dana and Kelsey finished in two minutes. Carter finished the training in 52 seconds, but he didn't think about what he was shooting so he got the lowest score. When they got back to base there was a minor earthquake, but it wasn't really an earthquake at all. It was Vypra trying to destroy Mariner Bay. The Power Rangers showed up and destroyed all of the Batlings. Carter went after Vypra and he pulled out his blaster. She made a fire wall and he had to put out the fire. Carter failed to save a kid who got hit by the pavement ceiling and then the he got angry with the commander. Carter went to the training area and saw there was a flammable container and realized something. He went to the site of the accident and there was gasoline. He apologized to the commander and went and destroyed the monster terrorizing the town.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

1 - 4 RIDING THE EDGE

Kelsey was riding on her roller blades. An astronaut named Nancy was there with her dog, which ran out into the road. Kelsey jumped over a car and when she landed on the road she grabbed the dog. Kelsey and the dog slide under a truck and stopped safely on the other side. Later, when she arrived at the Lightspeed Rescue Base, she watched the space shuttle blast off. A monster, which starts a tornado by spinning, was there. The Power Rangers fired their Rescue Blasters and destroyed the monster. The shuttle was going to crash on re-entry because of the tornado the monster made, so the Power Rangers took action and landed the shuttle on Kelsey's Zord. The monster came back to life and then the Power Rangers destroyed it for good this time. In the end Kelsey saved Nancy and they become friends.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 5 A MATTER OF TRUST

The Power Rangers were in Commander Mitchell's briefing room when he gave them a mission of utmost importance. The Power Rangers had to escort a scientist to the Aqua Base. The scientist was carrying a fuel cell that could blow up when it got too hot. The Power Rangers started to leave when Commander Mitchell told his daughter Donna to bring his friend back to the Aqua Base. She went to where she was supposed to go to and started driving him to the Aqua Base. Meanwhile, the Power Rangers were escorting the scientist with the fuel cell. A group of monsters showed up and they got the box, but it was empty. At the same time, Donna was escorting Commander Mitchell's friend. A beam of heat came out of nowhere and Donna crashed the truck. She found out her father's friend had the fuel cell, so she got him to the Aqua Base. The Power Rangers went and destroyed the monsters with their MegaZord. When they got back Donna apologized to her father.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 6 WHEELS OF DESTRUCTION

Joel keeps trying to ask Ms. Fairweather to go out on a date with him, but always gets interrupted. One of the times he tries, a code red keeps him from doing it and he joins the other Power Rangers to find that Diabolico has sent a wind monster to attack. They use their Rescue Blasters to defeat the monster and then Vypra shows up with her new battle vehicle, the Vyprari, and that is making the Power Rangers nervous. They shoot at the vehicle, but it doesn't do a thing. She leaves and they follow her in the Rescue Rover, but nothing they do can stop her. She destroys the Rescue Rover and takes off again. The Power Rangers go back to the Aquabase and try to figure out what to do. Ms. Fairweather has built the Power Rangers some new Lightspeed Cycles. Diabolico sends an earthquake monster down, but the Power Rangers defeat him easily. When they finally catchup with Vypra, the Power Rangers beat her Vyprari with their new Lightspeed Cycles. She rides off on her barely working Vyprari and the Power Rangers go back to the Aquabase. Joel finally has a chance to ask out Ms. Fairweather, but she tells him there is a rule against it and he leaves.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Isaac Florentine

1 - 7 CYBORG RANGERS

A monster shot three lightning spikes into a wall and invoked lightning to strike them. The wall exploded from the lightning, so the Power Rangers came. They fought the monster and lost to it. The monster was about to destroy the Power Rangers when someone with a rescue blaster shot him. The Power Rangers looked up and saw that there was another set of Power Rangers. The second set of Power Rangers kicked the monster's butt and then stood in one place. The Power Rangers went to where the second set of Power Rangers stood and said hello. The other Power Rangers just ignored the real Power Rangers. A black jeep pulled up and scientists got out carrying a remote control. They told the Cyborgs to return to base, then got into the jeep and left. The Power Rangers just stood there watching. The Power Rangers returned to the base to see General McNight standing there and then the Power Rangers got relieved of their duties. Then the Cyborg Rangers went berserk and the Power Rangers had to fight them. The Power Rangers defeated the Cyborg Rangers and then they defeated the monster. The Power Rangers were reinstated as Power Rangers.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Isaac Florentine

1 - 8 UP TO THE CHALLENGE

Chad was out in the water making friends with a giant pike fish, then he came back in and woke up Kelsey. They went to a construction site where Chad was teaching Kelsey Tai Bo because she's too hyper sometimes when she fights. A guy named Brian showed up and challenged Chad to a match, but he didn't want to fight Brian. Chad just walked away and started packing up his stuff. He left because a monster was attacking the city. The Power Rangers appeared and saved the people in a burning building. They found the monster and they started to fight, but then he ran off leaving the Power Rangers there with some batwings. The yellow and blue Rangers followed the monster and then got caught in a back draft, so they left. The blue Ranger fought Brian because he was taken over by the evil Vypra, but then he broke the spell. Vypra disappeared and the Power Rangers destroyed the monster.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 9 GO VOLCANIC (PART 1 OF 2)

Dana was looking at a seismograph, then she said she was heading up the mountain to get better readings and she took the bus. Meanwhile, Queen Bansheera and her henchmen created a Trifire monster to make the volcano erupt. The Trifire monster that was created breathed fire into the volcano and then lava started to come out of the volcano. The bus slid and almost fell off the bridge. A man who was holding the passengers hostage said he was sorry and drove them to safety. Dana got off the bus to help the Power Rangers to destroy the Trifire monster, but just then the Trifire monster grew. The Power Rangers pulled out the MegaZord and destroyed the Trifire monster. Queen Bansheera was furious. In the end the man who took the bus passengers hostage and then saved them was arrested.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 10 RISING FROM ASHES (PART 2 OF 2)

Ms. Fairweather was inside a cave in the volcano with two other people to study it because it was heating up. She found readings on something coming from the ground, but then the cave started to collapse. The three of them started to run out, but one guy got stuck in the cave. Ms. Fairweather went back inside and got him out of the cave. The cave entrance was collapsing and she got trapped inside. The Power Rangers showed up and a monster that came up from the ground attacked. The monster also resurrected another monster. The two monsters came and fought the Power Rangers. Their Lightspeed MegaZord lost power, so the Power Rangers abandoned it. The Power Rangers found Ms. Fairweather's party and Joel went into the cave to get Ms. Fairweather. They got out and the Power Rangers went to their Zord while Ms. Fairweather went back to Aqua Base. The Power Rangers got into their Rail Rescues and transformed into the Supertrain MegaZord. They destroyed both monsters just as the volcano started to erupt. The Power Rangers froze the volcano.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 11 FROM DEEP IN THE SHADOWS (PART 1 OF 2)

Carter is trying out the Titanium Morpher, Ms. Fairweather's invention that lets the Power Rangers get stronger powers. He can't keep the power that strong very long and it fades away. Captain Mitchell locks the Titanium Morpher up to keep it safe. Then Dana brings a birthday cake and they have a birthday remembrance for Captain Mitchell's son Ryan, who would have turned 20 that day if he were still alive. Later, someone comes into the Aquabase and steals the Titanium Morpher. The next day Vypra starts causing trouble to distract the Power Rangers and it works. When they go to fight her, a new evil Ranger appears - the Titanium Ranger. The Power Rangers fight him, but the Titanium Ranger wins, even after they try using Rescubird. Ms. Fairweather gives them some new battle lances to try against their new enemy, called V-Lancers. The next time the Power Rangers find the Titanium Ranger they use their V-Lancers. After using them as lances, they change them over to blasters and knock out the Titanium Ranger. When he wakes up he grabs his Titanium Laser to shoot the Power Rangers. They were going to blast him, but Captain Mitchell radioed them to stop. When the Power Rangers get back to Aquabase, they want to know why they could not finish off the evil Titanium Ranger. Captain Mitchell tells them the Titanium Ranger is his son Ryan.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Jonathan Tzachor

1 - 12 TRUTH DISCOVERED (PART 2 OF 2)

The Power Rangers were talking to Captain Mitchell when they found out that Dana's brother didn't die in a car crash as everyone had thought. He had fallen off a cliff with all of them, but the others were saved and he was not. He fell and Diabolico saved him and kept him with him. Diabolico told the Captain that he'd see his son on his 20 birthday. Ryan, the captain's son and Dana's brother, came forth on his twentieth birthday and became the titanium ranger. He attacked Mariner Bay, but then the Pink Ranger came and stopped him. He ran off to the cliff where he fell. The Captain was there and tried to tell him the truth, but Ryan wouldn't listen and knocked him off the cliff. The Captain caught Ryan, who said hold on, but then he fell. Ryan morphed and caught him and then landed on the ground. He headed off to see Diabolico. Meanwhile, the Power Rangers were fighting a monster and it grew, so the Power Rangers pulled out the rescue rails and destroyed the monster. Later at the palace of Diabolico, Ryan told him that he wouldn't fight for him anymore.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Jonathan Tzachor

1 - 13 RYAN'S DESTINY (PART 1 OF 3)

Ryan walked into the Lightspeed Center and went to his father. He said that he was leaving because he didn't now how much good was left in him. As he starts to leave his father hands him a silver box. He tells him it is for when he thinks he has good in him. Ryan leaves with the box. Meanwhile, Diabolico sent his three best monsters to destroy the Power Rangers. The monsters sent explosive feathers all around Mariner Bay. Ryan picked up a feather and gave it to a boy to give to his sister. The Power Rangers showed up to fight the monsters, but after fighting for a while they lost. The people of Mariner Bay found out about the feathers. The kids grabbed a feather and threw it in the air, but Ryan told them to get down after it exploded. Ryan opened the box and found a morpher in it to morph into the Silver Ranger. The Power Rangers were about to be destroyed when Ryan morphed and defeated the monsters.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

1 - 14 CURSE OF THE COBRA (PART 2 OF 3)

Ryan was walking with his dad and went inside his room and took off his shirt. When looked at his back in a mirror, there was a cobra on his back. Carter walked up and saw it, but then Ryan slid back on his shirt. Diabolico gave Demonite, one of his three best monsters, a card with a mirror on it. Carter was showing Ryan around the training center when the monster alert went off, so they went to where the monsters were. They morphed and attacked the monsters, but they were losing. Ryan blasted Demonite and the cobra on his back started to glow. He fell off the pillar on which he was standing so the Power Rangers attacked Demonite. Demonite threw the card and then there were two Demonites. Ryan was fighting the clone while the rest ran off fighting both of the monsters. The real Demonite was destroyed, so the fake blew up. Diabolico brought him back to life and made him bigger than usual, so the Power Rangers brought out both MegaZords and destroyed him. Ryan's dad, Captain Mitchell, told him he could not morph anymore because of the cobra on his back.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

1 - 15 THE STRENGTH OF THE SUN (PART 3 OF 3)

Ms. Fairweather designed a Solar Space Zord for the Titanium Ranger. She said it was ready but the only problem was Ryan. Ryan just happened to hear them. The Power Rangers were talking and then they were called to duty. They went to the bay where they saw Ryan, but his father said no so he left. The Power Rangers went to where the monsters were and started to fight them. The Power Rangers were losing when they got an idea. They decided to split up and the girls took a monster and buried him in the roof. They went and helped blow apart the other monster and it grew back. The first monster attacked because he too was big now. The Power Rangers called on their MegaZord, but they were still losing. Ryan went and attacked the monsters with the new Zord and destroyed them.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

1 - 16 THE COBRA STRIKES (PART 1 OF 2)

Ms. Fairweather was analyzing Ryan by looking at the cobra on his back. When she was finished she told him to go rest. Just then the siren rang and he ran out and asked what was happening. His sister said that it was Diabolico. Ms. Fairweather walked out and told Ryan he can't even think about it because he needs rest. So, he went back to his quarters and started to fidget. Then he went to a screen and started to watch what was happening. The Power Rangers found Diabolico, who sent out the same monsters the Power Rangers already twice in the past, combined into one. The Power Rangers got thoroughly beaten, so they retreated. Ryan went to the cobra's lair to destroy its curse. The Power Rangers defeated the combined monsters by using special morphers which enhance their muscles and weapons. Diabolico himself showed up and the Power Rangers lost the MegaTrainZord, so they switched to the regular MegaZord. Ryan defeated the cobra, so he was free of his curse. He showed up and everyone told him he couldn't fight, so he told them that the curse was gone. They melded Zords and then destroyed Diabolico. Later, the Power Rangers saw Queen Bansheera and her son Impus in a cocoon.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Judd Lynn

2 - 1 OLYMPUS ASCENDS (PART 2 OF 2)

Impus uses a cocoon to wreak havoc on the city. The Power Rangers fight the cocoon, but they are defeated by it. With Diabolico gone, Impus gets the Star Power which turns him into Prince Olympius and he hatches from the Olympus. Carter and Ryan have been separated from the other Power Rangers and Carter has to fight Prince Olympius, who knocks him out. The other Power Rangers are caught by Prince Olympius, who is weakened by the effort and goes to rest in the Skull Cavern. When Carter wakes up he goes to the Aquabase to get help from Captain Mitchell. Prince Olympius gets inside the city by pretending he is Chad. Carter goes to help Chad and brings him back to the Aquabase. Prince Olympius then turns into Kelsey and stops the search for the other Power Rangers. He steals Captain Mitchell's entry card by pretending to be Dana, then turns into Joel to use Ms. Fairweather's computer. Vypra and Jinjer make a monster to attack the Aquabase, but Carter and Ryan see them coming. They tell Ms. Fairweather, who has to fight off the pretend Joel and get the entry card. Carter and Ryan save Ms. Fairweather, then Ryan uses water on Prince Olympius to make him weaker. With his power lessened, the other Power Rangers are able to escape. Vypra, her minions, and the monster show up at the Aquabase and save Prince Olympius, then leave again with the monster staying. The Power Rangers use the V-

Lancer to fight it and then it grows. The Power Rangers then use the Lightspeed SolarZord to destroy it.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 2 A FACE FROM THE PAST

The Commander called a meeting and told the Power Rangers that they had the day off to do whatever they wanted. They all went to the beach to play and relax. Carter found the Commander and they started training. First Carter got his butt kicked, and then they started to go up a hill. They had just started talking when a monster appeared at the power plant, so they ran there. The monster destroyed the plant and some kids, who were on a field trip, got stuck in the power plant. The Power Rangers got there, then learned they had to go to the other power plant and destroy the monster. When they got back the Commander went back to save a girl who was still in the plant. Carter went in after them and he saw the Commander holding a broken pipe. Carter got the girl out but the Commander stayed behind holding a broken pipe together and the building blew up. The Power Rangers saw the Commander climbing down the side of the plant. Suddenly the monster grew back, then the Power Rangers fought and defeated the monster. Later Carter went and asked the Commander if he was his hero and he said yes.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 3 THE QUEENS RETURN

Carter was driving with Joel when they saw a black cloudmass appear. They returned to the base and found out the planets were in a very rare alignment. That meant Queen Bansheera would be brought back and a ceremony was necessary to do so. The black cloud started blowing up buildings in a definite pattern and the Power Rangers had to go in and save them. Ryan went to stop the ceremony so Queen Bansheera couldn't be brought back, but he was captured by monsters. The rest of the Power Rangers went to save Ryan and they were winning, but then the monsters grew big. The Power Rangers used their Zords and defeated the monsters. They also defeated Queen Bansheera by stopping the ceremony. Ryan figured out that Queen Bansheera was there, but only half her body was there. He decided to go in search of a way to stop Queen Bansheera from totally getting there.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 4 THE OMEGA PROJECT

Joel's friend was looking through a telescope and he asked Joel to look through it. After he looked through it, Joel left. That night just before Joel's friend went to bed, he saw an asteroid heading towards Earth. He wrote down the velocity and trajectory of the asteroid. He called Joel, but Joel got into trouble so he came and got him. He sneaked into the computer room and wrote down everything. The Power Rangers went out in the MegaSolarZord to see what they could do. Olympus blocked out the sun, so the Power Rangers got a new Zord. They flew into space and planted some bombs which blew up the asteroid. They returned to Earth and celebrated. Joel's friend asked Ms. Fairweather on a date.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 5 THE 5TH CRYSTAL (AKA THE FIFTH CRYSTAL)

Vypra was trying to steal the Starlight Crystals and she managed to steal four of them. Kelsey went to get the fifth one from her grandmother. After she got it, it was stolen from her by one of Vypra's monsters. Her grandmother was disappointed and told her to go away. Kelsey ran off by herself and found Vypra's base. She tried to take the crystals back but got captured instead. Suddenly her grandmother burst into the base with a fork lift and crashed the party. She fought everyone and got Kelsey free. Later Kelsey asked her grandmother what she was doing there and she told her she was saving the most important thing in her life, her granddaughter. Kelsey had to rush off to go save her friends and she did. Later Kelsey and her grandmother went rollerblading.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 6 THE CHOSEN PATH

The Blue Ranger was defending the dojo against a monster with his sensei and they defeated the monster. The Blue Ranger went and trained. While he was training he heard fighting. When he looked to see what was going on, he saw a sensei teaching the monster how to fight. Afterward, the two of them walk off together and are really rude to the Blue Ranger. The sensei has been training the monster and teaching him everything he knows. The monster's sensei betrays the Blue Ranger's sensei and runs off and attacks the people. The Power Rangers arrive, but lose the battle. The Blue Ranger goes and finds his sensei and they hurry off to the place where the monster is. They manage to destroy it, but it comes back. They use their Zords and destroy it for good this time.

Wr John Fletcher, Jackie Marchand

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 7 YESTERDAY AGAIN

While testing the Red Mobile Armored Vehicle, Carter is slowed down on the way to join his teammates in a battle against Olympius and Mantevil. Just as they're destroyed, he's thrust back in time a day, reliving events with knowledge of what's to come.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Isaac Florentine

2 - 8 AS TIME RUNS OUT (PART 1 OF 2)

The Vilevine monster attaches pods to the Lightspeed Rangers, which will bloom at noon, releasing poisonous spores that'll wipe out the city. It'll take a risky trip into space to face the vacuum to save not only the planet, but the five teens as well. Meanwhile, Olympius stages a coup on Vypra & Loki, getting Vilevine to bury them deep underground. But when they pop out in Egypt, Vypra ventures the Ancient Tomb she and the demons were sealed in for 5000 years, and summons Diabolico from the Shadow World! Ryan, in the area looking for a way to re-seal the demons, spies on the events.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Isaac Florentine

2 - 9 IN THE FREEZE ZONE (PART 2 OF 2)

Olympius' Freezard monster chills out the Rangers, leading to a needed meltdown by Ms. Fairweather's newest weapon, the Thermo Blaster. But Olympius has bigger problems, namely, Diabolico is back, and he wants his Star Power returned to him!

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 10 THE MIGHTY MEGA BATTLES

Joel's still pining for Ms. Fairweather. His vying for her affection gains a complication, when a hunky new scientist shows up, aiding her on a new creation. His jealousy leads to embarrassment, when he discovers the guy is actually her brother, Clark Fairweather. Their invention, the Mega Battle armor, allows Joel & Chad a powerful new upgrade!

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 11 THE GREAT EGG CAPER

The demons plan to hatch an egg, which will destroy the city entirely. But a desperate thief, Artie, swipes it from them. He tries ransoming it, and gains the ire of both the demons, and Lightspeed, namely Kelsey, whom he keeps running into. But is Artie really such a bad guy?

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 12 OCEAN BLUE

While doing some repairs to the Aquabase, scuba-diver Chad is nearly killed. Lucky for him, he's gained the eye of a beautiful mermaid, Marina, who rescues him and the two start a cross-species romance. But Vypra is manipulating the naive fish-woman, turning her into bait for the Blue Ranger.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Jonathan Tzachor

2 - 13 TRAKEENA'S REVENGE PART 1

Leo follows Triskull and the Ghouls from Mirinoi (through a wormhole between planets), to Mariner Bay on Earth. Seems Triskull is working for Olympius, collecting humans to drain them of their life force. But little does the demon prince know, that Triskull is ALSO working for Trakeena, who plans to use the life force to return herself to her mutated form. Leo runs into the Lightspeed Rangers, and soon, his teammates Kai & Maya follow, all teaming up. A young girl, Heather, alerts Carter to her mother's kidnapping, which leads the teams to Triskull's human-snatching cover at a bank.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 14 TRAKEENA'S REVENGE PART 2

Kendrix & Damon are the last Lost Galaxy Rangers to make it to Earth. Triskull is defeated by the two Red Rangers, his prisoners are released by the heroes, but Trakeena's got just enough life energy to make her mutation attempt. That is, until Olympius, aware of the double-cross, taints the energy, turning Trakeena into a giant, raging beast! The Omega Megazord, powered up by the LG's Lights of Orion, is able to take her down, once and for all. The LG Rangers return to Mirinoi on their Jet Jammers, and Heather is made an official Junior Ranger by Lightspeed for her deeds of assistance.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 15 THE LAST RANGER

The Memorase monster wipes out the memories of all the Lightspeed Rangers, save for Dana. While Ms. Fairweather and her technicians attempt to stimulate their minds with a machine filled with clips from previous episodes, Dana is left fighting the monster alone.

Wr John Fletcher, Jackie Marchand

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 16 THE SORCERER OF THE SANDS (PART 1 OF 2)

Ryan passes out in the desert, is rescued by the assistant of a being known as the Sorcerer of the Sands, an ancient wizard with the knowledge to re-sealing Bansheera and her demons. Such knowledge is needed now more than ever, as Olympius has ventured into the Shadow World, a realm where dead demons go, in an attempt to destroy the Rangers by dragging them into it to face hundreds of zombies! Diabolico seals both his demonic rival and the Rangers within the Shadow World, and it takes intervention by the Sorcerer to help them get freed. Ryan learns of the importance of the golden key, which opened the portal to the Shadow World. But Diabolico turns the Sorcerer to dust for his meddling in the demons' affairs, and Ryan is back to square one in his search for a resolution.

Wr John Fletcher, Jackie Marchand

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 17 OLYMPIUS UNBOUND (PART 2 OF 2)

Jinxer hypnotizes Captain Mitchell, and uses this control to get him to overload the Lightspeed Aquabase's power source, in an attempt to fuel Olympius' attempt to break out of the Shadow World. Mitchell is stopped before he can do as commanded, but Olympius, by way of absorbing every zombie demon in the place, is still able to escape, though comes out as a gigantic red dragon beast! The Rangers are narrowly able to destroy him, which thrills Diabolico and the other demons. Though, little do they know, Olympius survived, is back to normal, and Jinxer is nursing him back to health.

Wr John Fletcher, Jackie Marchand

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 18 NEPTUNE'S DAUGHTER

Aquafiend, the only demon capable of surviving exposure to free-running water, swipes the trident of King Neptune, ruler of the seas. His daughter, Marina the Mermaid, is granted human legs for a temporary period, and seeks out her love interest, Chad, to gain the Rangers' help in recovering the trident from the demons, who seek to destroy the Aquabase with it. After the trident is returned to King Neptune, Marina is allowed to alternate her time between the surface world and the seas, allowing her to continue her relationship with Chad.

Wr John Fletcher, Jackie Marchand

Dir Jonathan Tzachor

2 - 19 WEB WAR

The latest weapon being worked on by Lightspeed is the Trans-Armor Cycle, a combination motorcycle and armor for Carter. But he's having trouble mastering its tricky prototype. Arachnor, a spider demon, sneaks into the Aquabase, and begins webbing up everyone. Carter is left all alone, with his new Cycle, the lives and life-forces of his teammates riding on his ability to use the tricky machine.

Wr John Fletcher, Jackie Marchand

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 20 IN THE LIMELIGHT

Dana, struggling to make ends meet for medical school, is discovered by a fashion maven. She quickly becomes a top model, the fame going to her head and causing her to neglect her Ranger duties.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Judd Lynn

2 - 21 THE WRATH OF THE QUEEN (PART 1 OF 2)

Queen Bansheera regains her bodily form at last, at the price of Vypra's life. She schemes to destroy Mariner Bay by trapping the Rangers in the Skull Cavern dimension and having her Demons destroy them. But when Diabolico refuses to follow orders, will her plan backfire? Meanwhile, Carter discovers the true fate of Olympius on the outskirts of the city.

Wr John Fletcher, Jackie Marchand, Denise Skinner

Dir Judd Lynn

2 - 22 THE RISE OF THE SUPER DEMONS (PART 2 OF 2)

The final confrontation of Diabolico with Olympius, and no matter who wins, the Rangers are in trouble! When the Megazords fall in battle, can the dangerous new Lifeforce Megazord be mastered in time to spare the city the wrath of two mindless Super Demons?

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Judd Lynn

2 - 23 THE FATE OF LIGHTSPEED PART 1

Ryan discovers Queen Bansheera's ultimate plan to conquer Mariner Bay, and is captured as a result. As Carter mounts a rescue mission solo into Skull Cavern, his teammates remain in the Aquabase, unaware of the danger within. Jinxer's hidden card becomes activated, spewing hundreds upon hundreds of Batlings right into the Rangers' laps!

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Ryuta Tasaki, Makoto Yokoyama

2 - 24 THE FATE OF LIGHTSPEED PART 2

As Carter and Ryan attempt to flee the Skull Cavern, with the knowledge that Queen Bansheera is attempting to reclaim her homeland by unleashing an endless army of zombie demons from the Shadow World, the other Rangers are trapped inside of the Batling-infested Lightspeed Aquabase. While the Batling-piloted Lifeforce Megazord systematically destroys the Aquabase, and the Jinxer-piloted Omega Megazord levels parts of the city in preparation for the Queen's ceremony, can the Lightspeed Rescue Rangers rescue Mariner Bay one final time?

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Ryuta Tasaki, Makoto Yokoyama

POWER RANGERS LOST GALAXY

AKA: POWER RANGERS: LOST GALAXY

While Accompanying a massive space colony from Earth on its journey into Space, the Power Rangers are blasted further into unexplored territory, into the Lost Galaxy. This forgotten Galaxy is home to more powerful and sinister evil space aliens than they have ever encountered before. In order to battle these evil creatures and protect the colony from invasion, the Power Rangers utilise Transmorphers to summon their Zords. The Zord of each Power Ranger takes the form of an armoured beast. This galactic army of Power Rangers and Zords are on a mission to protect earth.

On a planet far away, in the near future, a girl and her people were looking at, and learning about, the Quasar swords. The girl was attacked by a group of villains and the main bad guy tried to take the swords. Meanwhile, on a space station three soldiers prepared for their departure away from this galaxy. Meanwhile on Earth, Bulk and the scientist are going to the space station. Bulk thinks that they forgot something. A teenager got kicked out of the airport for the space station and got really mad. The teenager went into the alley and saw some gang members trying to take an old lady's passport. He kicked their butts and gave them a fake passport.

They left. The lady said to him, "People like you should come and make a new colony." So he snuck onto the next flight to the space station. He was getting chased through the space station and he bumped into two of the three soldiers. He left and put on a soldier outfit and got in a shuttle to the moon for a training mission. One of the three soldiers stayed with the teenager and the teenager got the soldier out of there because there was an explosive right by them. A portal opened right between the planet and the moon.

The series follows on from POWER RANGERS IN SPACE. Produced by Shuki Levy & Haim Saban, Art Direction by Scott MacLachlan. This series marked the fifth show based on the Sentai shows of Japan to be produced in the US. All of the power rangers cast from POWER RANGERS IN SPACE, have been replaced for this fifth series, and the character of Skull had also been written out, one of only two characters to survive upto POWER RANGERS IN SPACE, the only original cast member of THE MIGHTY MORPHIN' POWER RANGERS left is Paul Schrier who plays Bulk. Power Rangers Lost Galaxy is based on STAR BEAST TASK FORCE (aka SEIJUU SENTAI GINGAMAN aka STAR-BEAST TASK FORCE MILKY WAY-MAN), its Japanese original.

Trivia

Power Rangers: Lost Galaxy is known for the highest death toll of main characters thus far seen in Power Rangers: Magna Defender, Zika, Scorpius, Furio, Treacheron, Villamax, The Guardian, Loyax, Trakeena (though she would return in Power Rangers: Lightspeed Rescue), Deviot, Captain Mutiny, Barbarax, Stratoforce Megazord, Centaurus Megazord, Kegler (presumably speaking), DECA, Mike, and Kendrix (the latter two came back later).

It stands as the only Power Ranger series not to take place on Earth (after the first episode) at all. (Note: The majority of the series took place on the space colony Terra Venture and on other planets such as Mirinói).

Lost Galaxy was the first series to not involve the storyline that took place in the past first 6 seasons, which would be the case for all the series following. However, midway through the series Kendrix, the Pink Galaxy Ranger, would die and Karone, formerly Astromena from the previous season (Power Rangers in Space), would replace her, thus providing a permanent link to the previous season. Other connections were made with Bulk, half of the Bulk and Skull duo, the Astro Megaship and the Space Power Rangers from In Space, and references to Zordon having created the Quasar Sabers.

Kai Chen is the second male Asian-American Power Ranger after Adam Park. The third was Blue Lightspeed Ranger Chad Lee played by Thai American actor Michael Chaturantabut on Power Rangers: Lightspeed Rescue. The fourth and fifth were Power Rangers: Ninja Storm's Cameron Watanabe and Blake Bradley. Kai was also the first Asian-American Blue Ranger.

Power Rangers: Lost Galaxy was the first series not to take place in the fictional city of Angel Grove, California.

Kendrix was the first Power Ranger to die. Valerie Vernon, who played the character, collapsed on set and was diagnosed with leukemia, forcing her to leave the show. Kendrix appeared periodically to assist her replacement Karone, and was returned to life in the season finale of Lost Galaxy.

The original ending of the episode "The Power Of Pink" of Power Rangers: Lost Galaxy had Patricia Ja Lee's character Cassie remaining on Terra Venture to take the role of the Pink Lost Galaxy Ranger. Footage was even shot for another episode with her in the role, but due to a contract dispute between her and Saban Entertainment, the footage was scrapped, the episodes rewritten and reshot. The part went to Melody Perkins. If this had gone through, Lost Galaxy would have been the first season with 2 Asian-American Power Rangers.

There was an idea was to have a storyline involving Ancient Rangers and using the Gosei Sentai Dairanger costumes as their powers, but Valerie Vernon having to leave the show forced them to scrap that idea.

Power Rangers: Lost Galaxy was the first series to abandon the teleportation ability that had been seen in all previous seasons.

It was the last series to feature an Alpha robot. However, there's a slight cameo of an Alpha Robot in the Power Rangers: Wild Force episode Forever Red, during the scene inside the Astro Megaship where Tommy briefs the rest of the Red Rangers in the conference room. This Alpha is credited as Alpha 7.

It was the first series to feature a Megazord where all five Rangers were not seated in the same cockpit. This would repeated for Power Rangers: Ninja Storm and Power Rangers: S.P.D..

The position of Magna Defender as a Ranger is very controversial among fans. Many state that he was able to morph and controlled a Zord, but others argue that his suit is not spandex and his name doesn't include the word "Ranger." (Note: Since Power Rangers: S.P.D. featured several creatures morphing into a Power Ranger including Doggie. The Magna Defender and the Shadow Ranger are considered Rangers, though Shadow Ranger could be an alien or in Ranger form, permanently.)

This was the second series where the entire team (instead of only the Red Ranger) received a powerful upgrade with the addition of the Lights of Orion, although the Red Ranger later received a separate armored upgrade which activated the lights along with other weapons and gear, but only he could use it.

It was the last series to replace a Ranger mid-season.

It is the first Power Ranger season to have a series finale that was three parts; generally, Power Ranger finales are two-parters. This format would be seen again in Power Rangers: Time Force.

The Magna Defender Morpher was actually a repainted version of the previously unused Gosei Sentai Dairanger's changer device, the Aura Changer, and was never in Seijuu Sentai Gingaman.

Lost Galaxy is the second Power Rangers series to replace the original Super Sentai series' mode of transportation with color-coded motorcycles. In this case, the Lost Galaxy ranger's motorcycles (and also the Jet Jammers) replaced the Gingamen's live "Ginga Horses" animals.

First season/series to feature a character (not a sentient zord) enlarging and combining with a zord. In this case, the Magna Defender. This would idea would be used again in Power Rangers Mystic Force with the character Koragg the Knight Wolf and the zord Catastros, as well as the entire Mystic Force Power Rangers team.

This is the second series to have action on a planet and in space.

The second series to feature Rangers not living on a planet. The first was Power Rangers in Space.

The second series to have all Rangers have identical weapons in the Quasar Sabers. The first time this happen was Mighty Morphin Alien Rangers. The difference is those Rangers didn't have a choice of other weapons.

This is the second time in a Power Ranger series to have a wolf, a primate and a lion as Zords.

The premiere of Power Rangers: Lost Galaxy showed the entire planet of Mirinoi being turned to stone, although in the finale, only the people have been turned to stone.

This is the second season that the Astro Megaship was used as a headquarters by the Rangers.

Castmates Amy Miller (Trakeena) and Reggie Rolle (Damon/Green Ranger) met while filming and were later married in real life.

Allies

Power Rangers in Space

Alpha 6 (in Astro Megaship, same from Power Rangers in Space)

Captain Stanton

Lightspeed Rescue Power Rangers

The first Magna Defender

Villains

Main article: Villains in Power Rangers: Lost Galaxy

Scorpius (2-21) (voiced by Kim Strauss)

Trakeena (3-45) (portrayed by Amy Miller)

Furio (1-9) (voiced by Tom Wyner)

Treacheron (9-14) (voiced by Derek Stephen Prince)

Deviot (19-43) (voiced by Bob Papenbrook)

Villamax (21-44) (voiced by David Lodge)

Kegler (21-44) (voiced by Richard Cansino)

Captain Mutiny (36-42) (voiced by Mike Reynolds)

Barbarax (36-42) (voiced by Richard Epcar)

Hexuba (39-40) (voiced by Rajia Baroudi)

Psycho Rangers

List of Power Rangers: Lost Galaxy monsters

Enemy Foot Soldiers:

Sting Wingers

Swabbies

Arsenal

Transmorphers: Wrist-mounted devices that each feature a dial set to one of the five Ranger colors. Once the Transmorphers were activated with a cry of "Go Galactic!", the wearers would become the Galaxy Rangers.

Magna Defender Morpher: Upon calling out "Magna Power!", Leo Corbett's older brother Mike uses these interlocking devices to don his Magna Defender armor.

Quasar Sabers: A quintet of legendary swords that rested on the Planet Mirinoi for over 3,000 years awaiting the chosen ones of legend. Once released from the stone, the Sabers granted each of their wielders Ranger powers.

Transdaggers: Unique weapons that the Rangers took from an arms dealer who tried to steal the Quasar Sabers. When held together in a star-like pattern, the Transdaggers can project an intense blast. Each Transdagger can change into one of the five following modes:

Magna Talon: Red Ranger's weapon of choice.

Trans Blaster: Green Ranger's weapon of choice.

Cosma Claw: Blue Ranger's weapon of choice.

Delta Daggers: Yellow Ranger's weapons of choice.

Beta Bow: Pink Ranger's weapon of choice.

Quasar Launchers: Weapons carried by each Ranger that can serve as a staff for close combat, or a bazooka for a finishing blast. Their firepower can be increased when used with the Lights Of Orion.

Magna Blaster: The Magna Defender's signature rifle can also transform into a sword when the gun's handle is bent back and pulled out.

Lights of Orion: A mystical source of energy sought by both the Rangers and the villains, although the Rangers eventually claimed them. Summoned with the call "Lights of Orion, activate!", the Lights would give the team special golden armor that encased not only the Rangers, but upgraded their Quasar Sabers as well as the Galaxy Megazord on occasion. While wearing the Orion Armor, the Rangers could destroy monsters by metamorphing into a pulse of light and blasting through them. However, the Lights of Orion couldn't be summoned unless all five Rangers were present.

Red Armored Ranger: The result of the Red Ranger donning high-tech armor that was granted to him once he regained his powers after being led on a mission to retrieve a pair of enchanted keys. The armor features retractable claws and an in-built targeting system.

Jet Jammers: Each Ranger pilots these one-man cruisers for interstellar travel.

Astro Cycles: Motorcycles used by the Red, Blue, and Green Rangers, with each cycle themed after their respective Galactabeast.

Red Capsular Cycle: Enhanced version of the Red Astro Cycle, capable of completely covering the Red Ranger before being launched forth while engulfed in flame to finish opponents.

Zords

Main article: Zords in Power Rangers: Lost Galaxy

The Zords in Power Rangers: Lost Galaxy were actually Galactabeasts, ancient creatures that have their powers imbued within the Galaxy Sabers. They could transform into the Galactazords, and form a Megazord. The Magna Defender had his own Zord that could make him grow to Zord size, and then combine with him. The other zords were once Galactabeasts that were transformed into robots.

Galaxy Megazord

Lion Galactabeast/zord (Leo/Red)

Gorilla Galactabeast/zord (Kai/Blue)

Condor Galactabeast/zord (Damon/Green)

Wolf Galactabeast/zord (Maya/Yellow)

Wildcat Galactabeast/zord (Kendrix, Karone/Pink)

Torozord/Defender Torozord (Mike/Magna Defender)

Centaurus Megazord

C1 Zord

C2 Zord

C3 Zord

C4 Zord

C5 Zord

Stratoforce Megazord

S1 Zord

S2 Zord

S3 Zord

S4 Zord

S5 Zord

Zenith Carrierzord

WR. Worth Keeter, James Mathers, Koichi Sakamoto, Ryuta Tazaki, Blair Treu, Jonathan Tzachor.

DIR. Worth Keeter, Judd Lynn, Koichi Sakamoto, Ryuta Tazaki, Blair Treu, Jonathan Tzachor

EPISODES: 45 YEAR MADE: 1999 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 2

MMPR PRODUCTIONS INC. , RENAISSANCE-ATLANTIC FILMS, SABAN ENTERTAINMENT INC., TOEI CO. LTD.

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 15, (2) 30

DATE OF PREMIER: 06/02/1999 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 18/12/1999

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS: POWER RANGERS LOST GALAXY, POWER RANGERS LOST GALAXY: MAGNA DEFENDER

Kai Chen/Blue Galaxy Ranger ARCHIE KAO , Mike Corbett RUSSELL LAWRENCE, Damon Henderson/Green Galaxy Ranger REGGIE ROLLE , Leo Corbett/Red Galaxy Ranger DANNY SLAVIN, Kendrix Morgan/Pink Galaxy Ranger/Carolyn Pickets VALERIE VERNON, Maya/Yellow Galaxy Ranger CERINA VINCENT, Trakeena AMY MILLER, Farkus "Bulk" Bulkmeier PAUL SCHRIER, Professor Phenomenus JACK BANNING, Commander Stanton TOM WHYTE, Alpha 6 DONENE KISTLER, Alpha 6 (voice) WENDEE LEE, D.E.C.A. (voice) JULIE KLIOWER, Scorpius (voice) KIM STRAUSS, Furio (voice) TOM WYNER, Mutantrum Monster (voice) ROBERT AXELROD, Fish Face Monster (voice) RICHARD EPCAR, Green Shark Monster (voice) TOM FAHN, Zika (voice) RYAN JAMES, Alpha 6 HEIDE KARP, Magna Defender (voice) KERRIGAN MAHAN, Radster Monster (voice) BOB PAPPENBROOK, Karone/Pink Ranger MELODY PERKINS, Treacheron (voice) DEREK STEPHEN PRINCE, Freaky Tiki Monster (voice) BLAKE TORNEY, Impostra Monster (voice) NANCY VAN IDERSTINE.

RELATED SHOWS:

MIGHTY MORPHIN' POWER RANGERS, THE (inc. THE MIGHTY MORPHIN' ALIEN RANGERS)

POWER RANGERS ZEO

POWER RANGERS IN SPACE

POWER RANGERS TURBO

1 - 1 QUASAR QUEST PART 1

On a planet far away, in the near future, a girl and her people were looking at, and learning about, the Quasar Swords. The girl was attacked by a group of villains and the main bad guy tried to take the swords. Meanwhile, on a space station three soldiers prepared for their departure away from this galaxy. Meanwhile on Earth, Bulk and the scientist are going to the space station. Bulk thinks that they forgot something. A teenager got kicked out of the airport for the space station and got really mad. The teenager went into the alley and saw some gang members trying to take an old lady's passport. He kicked their butts and gave them a fake passport. They left. The lady said to him, "People like you should come and make a new colony." So he snuck onto the next flight to the space station. He was getting chased through the space station and he bumped into two of the three soldiers. He left and put on a soldier outfit and got in a shuttle to the moon for a training mission. One of the three soldiers stayed with the teenager and the teenager got the soldier out of there because there was an explosive right by them. A portal opened right between the planet and the moon.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Jonathan Tzachor

1 - 2 QUASAR QUEST PART 2

Kendrix, Mike, and Maya were traveling on Maradoy looking for Maya's people and found Leo wandering around. Leo followed them. Meanwhile, Kai went to the AstroMegaShip museum and he said to Alpha, "It was re-commissioned." Damon came and said, "Are you kidding, you can't fly this thing. It's too old. Where are your mission papers?" Kai answered, "I don't have any mission papers, but if I don't fly this thing to Maradoy my friends will be lost forever." Damon thought, "I must be out of my mind" and he grabbed the controls and took off. He went through the portal and landed on Maradoy and found the rest of the people. Kai, Maya, Kendrix, Mike, and Damon grabbed the Quasar Swords because Scorpius was attacking them. Scorpius killed Mike. Leo grabbed the Quasar Sword and morphed into the Red Power Ranger. Leo went to the MegaShip and took it back to the space station, which for a new world.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Jonathan Tzachor

1 - 3 RACE TO THE RESCUE

Leo and Maya were on the Space Colony, Terraventure. They were watering the plants, when suddenly Maya heard a wolf howling. She immediately went to the MegaShip with Leo and Damon. They took off without Kendrix and Kai to an unknown planet a galaxy. When they landed, they found gigantic crates full of Galactabeasts. They morphed into the Power Rangers and let the Galactabeasts go. Meanwhile, Scorpius and an Elvis Presley monster went to the space colony and start destroying buildings. The Power Rangers used the hyper-engines to get back to the space colony to rescue the people there from the Elvis monster. They attacked him and he drank a liquid that made him grow into a giant. The Galactabeasts they rescued earlier helped them get rid of the Elvis monster by joining their power.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Worth Keeter

1 - 4 ROOKIE IN RED

Leo joined the G.S.H. and Kai was training him. Leo was not following the rules. Little did they know that Scorpius was planning to take the Quasar Saber. Scorpius talked to the monster and told him that he could get the Quasar Sabers. He sent the monster to the space station and he stole all the weapons from the weapons' shed. The monster tried to melt the Quade Knives he got from a galaxy far away, but the Power Rangers took back the knives. The monster and some Galactabeasts attacked them after they got the knives and they fought. The Power Rangers defeated the monster and Galactabeasts. Leo resigned from the G.S.H. because he wasn't good at following rules.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Worth Keeter

1 - 5 HOMESICK

Terraventure suddenly stopped. Once he found out who it was, Kai went looking for the one who stopped the ship. It was a boy. The Power Rangers took him to a room and asked for his ID card. Damon wondered if he even had one. The kid said his name was Matthew and that he didn't have one. He had sneaked onto Terraventure. Meanwhile, Scorpius sent someone named Gas to put the colonies asleep with his sleep gas. Matthew was with Damon wearing a suit on that was gas proof. Damon left and turned into the Green Ranger. Matthew ripped his suit as he headed toward the main tower. He was at the top and Scorpius tried to get up there, but Matthew stopped the elevator. Meanwhile, the Power Rangers were fighting Gas. The Galactabeasts sucked up all the gas. The Power Rangers used the MegaZord and destroyed Gas. The Power Rangers took Matthew home with a medal.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Blair Treu

1 - 6 LIGHTS OF ORION

Maya and Kendrix went to a place where the computers told them some disturbance was happening and Scorpius ambushed them. Princess Takeena came and told Scorpius that her father was looking for him. She told him if he let her help him get the infamous lights of Orion, she'd put in a good word for him. He said yes and walked back over to where he caught the Power Rangers. They were gone and the only thing left was the scorpion stingers lying on the ground. They were beat up and fried and sleeping the eternal sleep, never to wake up again. The Power Rangers reappeared and saw Takeena and Scorpius holding a coffin. They opened it and found Mike was in it sleeping. Leo chased Scorpius with rage, telling him to let him go. They get in a truck while the Power Rangers fight some scorpion stingers. Leo follows the truck tracks until he finds the truck. He rescues Mike and finds the cave with the box of lights. Mike attacks Leo from behind and takes the box and gives it to Scorpius. He opens it and finds nothing and Mike turns into a monster and grows. The Power Rangers call the GalacticZords and defeat the monster. They celebrate and Kai bakes cookies. Damon ate one uncooked and got in trouble from Kai, who told him he was supposed to bake it first.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Blair Treu

1 - 7 DOUBLE DUTY

Kendrix discovers she's identical to a movie star on Terra Venture, Carolyn Picketts. They switch places for the filming of a movie, when Carolyn, snobbish and lazy, pretends to be injured. But the actress/model learns a lesson in humility and perseverance by observing Kendrix, who fights through her own injuries to save her from the Wisewizard monster, who's seeking the Lights Of Orion within cameras all over the space station.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Blair Treu

1 - 8 THE BLUE CRUSH

Commander Stanton gave Kai a special assignment. He told him to take his daughter Jody to the skating park and to videotape her. When Kai got there, he saw a girl with whom he instantly fell in love. Just then Scorpius and a monster sent some living sticks into the ground. They got chased away by the Power Rangers. Kai returned to the skating park and brought Jody home. Commander Stanton came and brought his daughter to his quarters. Scorpius and the monster shot more living sticks into the ground and made some earthquakes. Then the Power Rangers destroyed the monster with their GalactaBeasts.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Blair Treu

1 - 9 THE MAGNA DEFENDER

Leo was at a cave on Terraventure and found Scorpius there. They fought and Scorpius blew himself up. All of a sudden the Power Rangers showed up. The Magna Defender was carrying Leo and he left. Leo went to sick bay and fell asleep thinking the Magna Defender was his brother. He woke up and went to the cave. There he found a rock that someone was trying to get to a creature sent from the boss scorpion guy. The Magna Defender showed up and killed all of scorpion stingers and left. Meanwhile, the Power Rangers fought and killed the creature that stole the rock. The Magna Defender acted like a jerk and left.

Wr Carlton Holder

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 10 SUNFLOWER SEARCH

The Magna Defender was fighting a fish creature, because he was one of the creatures who killed his son. The creature looked like a fish and was looking in all the sunflower statues for the Lights of Orion. He was blowing them all up and each time he found nothing. The Magna Defender was not thinking of everyone's safety, just blasting away with his sword/blaster. Finally the Red Ranger came and made him stop blasting. The fish looked in the second to last sunflower statue and found nothing. When he got to the next statue, the fish creature was there. The Magna Defender was there too, fighting the fish creature. The fish creature managed to break open the statue and nothing was inside. He used a growth potion and the Magna Defender used his Zord, destroyed the fish creature, and left.

Wr Jill Donnellan

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

1 - 11 SILENT SLEEP

A jellyfish creature appeared out of nowhere, looking for the lights of Orion for Scorpius. He froze ever one except for Mike, the Magna Defender, and all animals. The jellyfish creature thought he was the only one unfrozen, but then he found the Magna Defender unfrozen along with the lights of Orion in a chest. Mike asked for the lights and he said no. He pulled out his laser/sword and attacked him in his Swordblaster mode. Mike pulled out his Transdagger and started firing it at the Magna Defender, who released the lights of Orion. Just then Mike remembered all the animals were unfrozen and rode one of Maya's horses. He turned the horse into the Red Ranger's jousting horse. He had a mask on and the jellyfish creature got on a horse too. They started fighting, but suddenly the Magna Defender stabbed the jellyfish creature in the back. The creature grew and the Magna Defender used his Zord power to blow up the creature. Once he was gone, all the people of Terreventure unfroze.

Wr Jill Donnellan

Dir Blair Treu

1 - 12 ORION RISING PART 1

The four Psycho Rangers attacked the Power Rangers and beat them. The Psycho Rangers ran away because Dark Spectre called them back to Astronema's ship. The Psycho Rangers got mad at Astronema and said they were going to go after the Power Rangers by themselves. Meanwhile, the Power Rangers came up with a plan and TJ thought of a plan. He thought they should all look like the Blue Ranger. The Power Rangers attacked the Psycho Rangers and they hurt the Blue Psycho Ranger. Astronema's ship shot the SateLasers and the Blue Psycho Ranger grew. The Power Rangers used the MegaVoyager and destroyed the Blue Psycho Ranger. The other Psycho Rangers got away.

Wr Denise Skinner

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

1 - 13 ORION RISING PART 2

The Lights of Orion finally return to Terra Venture, sending both the Rangers and Scorpius' forces scrambling to be the ones to attain them first. Destruxo manages to get ahold of them, and powers up into an armored mode! Even if our heroes can defeat this monster, they'll have the Magna Defender to contend with! Meanwhile, Trakeena uses Imposra in a scheme to undermine and set up Treacheron for a fall from grace.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

1 - 14 SHARK ATTACK

Kendrix made a birthday cake, which she put it up and left. Maya came and ate the birthday cake because she was hungry. Kendrix came in and started yelling at Maya. She threw the rest of the cake at Maya, who ducked. Leo and Damon walked in the door at that moment and the cake hit Leo. Meanwhile, a monster came and put a force field around an area of Terraventure. Maya and Kendrix were stuck inside the force field and nobody could breathe. Kendrix and Maya destroyed the force field. The lights of Orion left Terraventure, so the monster left. Maya said she was sorry for eating Damon's birthday cake and then made another one. They all celebrated Damon's birthday.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

1 - 15 REDEMPTION DAY (PART 1 OF 2)

Leo and Maya were in the mountain dome and were heading toward the city dome on Terraventure. All of a sudden Maya told Leo to stop the car, because she felt a weird presence. The Scorpion Stinger shot at the tunnel Leo and Maya were in. They jumped under the air lock door as it closed. Then Leo, Damon, Maya, Kendrix, Kai all met in front of the control center of Terraventure and went to the AstroMega ship. Meanwhile, the Scorpion Stinger connected to the mountain dome and was taking Terraventure's power. It was keeping it as fuel, like Terraventure was a gas station and the Scorpion Stinger was a car. Just then the Magna Defender used all his power to create a meltdown that would destroy the Scorpion Stinger and Terraventure, but the Power Rangers stopped him. The Power Rangers tried to stop the meltdown, but the Magna Defender put a forcefield around them. He said he would stop using his anger for revenge and that he was Leo's brother. He said Leo would see his brother again. The Magna Defender stopped the meltdown and turned back into Mike and Leo was happy again.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 1 DESTINED FOR GREATNESS (PART 2 OF 2)

Leo was waiting for Mike, when Kendrix dropped by. She told him that he should be happy that Mike was back, but Leo was feeling guilty. Kendrix left and then Mike arrived. Leo was going to give Mike the Quasar Saber, but just then Alpha called and said there was a disturbance at Plaza. Mike and Leo ran there and started fighting the Sting Wingers. Skeletron showed up and Kendrix, Damian, Maya, and Kai were put into mirrors and their powers put into Skeletron's dolls. Meanwhile, Mike and Leo found them and fought one of the dolls and beat it. They left and fought another one and beat it too. They decided to get the Quasar Saber and Mike gave it back. They fought the last two dolls and broke Skeletron's mirrors. The other Power Rangers came out of the mirrors. Mike became the Magna Defender and destroyed Skeletron.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 2 STOLEN BEAUTY

Trakeena was talking to a monster inside a mirror and told him to go steal all of the beauty in Terraventure, so he went there. He had stolen two people's beauty already by the time he got to a pair of girls. He tried to steal their beauty, but he was stopped by the Power Rangers. He left and reported to Trakeena that he had gotten all the beauty there was, but he hadn't. Trakeena went down to Terraventure and turned into a beautiful woman named Tracy and every man followed her. She found Mike and told him that she'd come with him and she did. The other Power Rangers and Tracy were attacked by the mirror mummy. He sucked Kendrix and Maya's beauty, but he didn't attack Tracy. Then the mirror mummy left. Mike took Tracy home and stopped to get a drink, so she dumped some poison into his drink. He switched the drinks and acted like he died, then he let the beauty go and destroyed the mirror monster. Trakeena's dad wanted to make her like him.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 3 THE RESCUE MISSION

The high council found an S.O.S. message from a ship. A creature that looked like Scorpius' daughter had attacked the ship. A team of Terraventure's people went on a rescue mission to the ship that had sent the S.O.S., and when they got there the whole place was covered by some kind of webbing. As they made their way to the bridge, they found some of the crew members cocooned in the webbing. When they reached the bridge they found a book, as well as the creature that killed the crew. The creature attacked and cocooned one of the rescue team, then took the rest of the people and a book as well. Mike and Leo opened all of the cocoons and found the crew and the book. They all left and the ship blew up.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Steve Wang

2 - 4 THE LAST GALACTABEASTS PART 1

Destron offered Scorpius the most powerful Zords in the universe, the lost Galactabeasts. The terms were that Destron had to become Scorpius' second in command and that he had to be cocooned. He would become all-powerful like Scorpius and rule with him side by side. He captured Kai and Damon and took them to a planet that was deserted. He put devices on Kai and Damon to make them fight. He powered up his remote control for the Galactabeasts. The two Power Rangers escaped from Destron and the other Power Rangers came. The remote control was all the way powered up and the Galactabeasts attacked the Power Rangers. The Power Rangers used their own Zords, but they would not attack the Galactabeasts. The Power Rangers managed to escape. Scorpius told Destron that he'd better destroy the Power Rangers next time. To be continued. .

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 5 THE LAST GALACTABEASTS PART 2

Deviot brings forth the Hardtchoke monster, who has the remote control that controls the evil Zords. He sends the Zords to Terra Venture to destroy it, then goes there himself. When he gets there he brings calls on the Stratoforce and Centaurus MegaZords to destroy all the buildings. Maya goes and talks to the Galactabeasts to try and get them to help fight the evil Zords to protect themselves. Mike sends out the armed forces on Terra Venture to try and stop the evil Zords, while Kendrix tries to figure out what the Galaxy book means in case it can help them. When the Galactabeasts show up they try to fight the evil Zords, but they can't and get beaten. Leo, Damon, and Kai use their Astro Cycles to go after the evil Zords, but the Sting Wingers get them. Kai and Damon distract them long enough for Leo to get away and go to help fight the evil Zords. Leo gets trapped too by the Sting Wingers, but Mike and Maya get him free. He goes on to help with the evil Zords. When he goes to attack the evil Zords, Kendrix stops him to tell him she has figured out part of the Galaxy book. She tells him that the evil Zords are actually the three lost Galactabeasts. The Power Rangers find Deviot and Hardtchoke while they are controlling the evil Zords. Deviot tells them how he got the Zords. The Power Rangers battle with Hardtchoke. During the fight Leo gets the remote control, but Hardtchoke gets it back and breaks it. Then the Power Rangers use the Lights Of Orion to shoot Hardtchoke, which makes him grow. The Power Rangers

Rangers use their Zords. Torozord is knocked down by Hardtchoke, while Stratoforce and Centaurus beat the Galaxy MegaZord. The Power Rangers try to tell the evil Zords that they are not evil, but instead are Galactabeasts. They listen to them and become their old selves again, then attack Hardtchoke. They weaken him and then Galaxy MegaZord finishes him off. Although they managed to take care of things, the Commander explains to everyone that they will not be able to go back to Terra Venture because it is so far away.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 6 HEIR TO THE THRONE

Trakeena walked into a bar on a desert planet and took a man's drink. She got her butt kicked for it. Another man came to her aid and said that he'd teach her how to fight. She agreed, so she started training. Meanwhile, Scorpius was looking for Trakeena and Destron told Scorpius that he couldn't find her. Scorpius told him to keep looking for her, so he did. Meanwhile, Trakeena was training hard by dragging rocks and other heavy things around. She was also learning how to use a sword the proper way. Destron told Scorpius that the Power Rangers were holding Trakeena hostage. Destron stole an energy cell and deliberately said, "Quick take this energy cell to dome 5 w-a-r-e-h-o-u-s-e!" So, the Power Rangers went to the warehouse and the Red Ranger destroyed Scorpius. Trakeena became the ruler of the universe.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Jonathan Tzachor

2 - 7 AN EVIL GAME

Trakeena, now controlling her departed father's army and ship, targets the Rangers for murdering Scorpius, specifically Leo, capturing him. She and Leo end up dueling, though two monsters released by Deviot intervene in an attempt to destroy her.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 8 MEMORIES OF MIRINOI

Maya was walking on Terra Venture when she saw one of her friends from Mirinoi. She ran up to her. They started asking each other how they escaped when Scorpius turned the planet to stone. Maya took her to see Kendrix. Kendrix put the Galaxy Book back up and they left. Later Kendrix and Kai made a special dinner so they wouldn't forget the night. They waited and waited, but Maya and her friend didn't show up so everyone left. A long time later they came back and went to sleep, but Maya's friend got up and left. Kendrix saw her leave. Meanwhile, Maya's friend was walking on the street when Trakeena came and talked to Maya's friend. Maya's friend tried to steal the Galaxy Book. The guard shot a monster in the foot. Later Maya's friend came in limping and Kendrix saw that. The next day Maya found out, so the Power Rangers called their Zords and destroyed the monster posing as Maya's friend. Later Kendrix and Maya became close friends again.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir James Mathers

2 - 9 GREEN COURAGE

The Scorpion Stinger is heavily damaged in an asteroid shower, desperate for a good mechanic; Trakeena deploys Cannonbrawl to capture a member of the Terra Council high command to use in hostage negotiations. Cannonbrawl targets High Commander Renier, and takes her back to the Scorpion Stinger, after Trakeena issues her demands, Damon agrees to repair the Scorpion Stinger

Wr Jill Donnellan

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 10 BLUE TO THE TEST

Terra Venture nears a giant red star. Icyangel is sent down to place Commander Stanton under a spell, forcing him to sabotage the space colony so that the intense gravity of the star will suck it in! Kai, big on rules and regulations, struggles with going along with the Commander's crazy commands, versus his usual way of following orders. He manages to break his routine and go against the grain, aiding in breaking the spell on Stanton and saving Terra Venture again.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 11 MEAN WHEEL MANTIS

Astronema sent a monster down to Earth to destroy the Power Rangers. Meanwhile, on Earth Leo and Maya were trying to talk to their Galactabeasts. Leo couldn't understand what the Galactabeasts were saying because he wasn't listening with his heart, he was listening with his ears. Astronema's monster attacked Terraventure and turned the Yellow and Pink Ranger into trophies. He said that he would turn them back into humans if the rest of the Power Rangers beat the biker monster at a race. They lost, but then Damon and Kai fixed Leo's Astro Cycle. The red Galactabeast was trying to tell Leo something, so Leo listened with his heart. The Galactabeast told him that his Astro Cycle had more power, so Leo decided to race him again. They raced and Leo turned his Astro Cycle into the red Capsular Cycle and won. Then they destroyed them with their Megazord.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 12 LOYAX' LAST BATTLE

Loyax, once a hero, has turned to the side of evil, finding the struggle against it to be futile. He wants one last, glorious battle before his end, and desires to go up against the Power Rangers. He ends up facing Maya, who learns of his past, and convinces him the errors of his ways. But Deviot gets involved, and ensures it's Loyax's last battle, much to the Yellow Ranger's dismay.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 13 A RED ROMANCE

Ginger was riding her bike when she crashed into a picnic table and went flying over it. Leo caught her, but then her brother came up and asked him what he was doing. He threw Leo into the picnic table. Ginger told him to stop and explained how he had saved her. He apologized to Leo and they went back to his workshop, where he fixed the bike. Ginger's brother let Leo ride his motor bike. Leo enjoyed himself and wanted Ginger to see him at the park tomorrow. Her brother was going to take her there. Ginger and Leo had fun in the park. When he left her to go home a monster attacked and put her into an amulet, and then left. Leo went to Ginger's brother and told him. The brother said, "I trusted you Leo!" and then ran off. Ginger's brother rode his bike to the warehouse area and started to fight the monster. Leo appeared and saved Ginger's brother's life by tackling the monster, but then the monster ran off. Leo went in pursuit of the monster and when he found her she grew to abnormal size. The rest of the Power Rangers came and they used their MegaZord on the monster, and it blew up. Later Ginger's brother apologized to Leo again.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 14 THE CHAMELIAC WARRIOR

Chameliac, a monster with a computerized memory, learns all of the Lost Galaxy Rangers' (and Magna Defender's) battle skills and moves, and uses it against them. He's even got the Megazord attacks copied! Thanks to Mike's bright idea of having the Rangers (and Megazords) switch attacks mid-battle, Chameliac is confused and defeated.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 15 POWER TO THE TENTH (AKA TO THE TENTH POWER) (PART 1 OF 3)

An alien landed on a deserted planet and handed a box to Trakeena's minion, who tried to kill her. Her minion opened the box and grabbed some digital cards. He killed the alien and then took the cards to the base and undigitized them into the Psycho Rangers. Meanwhile, a mysterious figure found the empty box and said "I'm too late." Then Trakeena sent the Psycho Rangers to take over for the Power Rangers, each by themselves with red for red, blue for blue, etc. They first got Maya and then Damien. Third they got Kai and then Kendrix. When they tried to get Leo, the red ranger, Andros (the old red ranger) saved him. They went to the MegaShip and Andros grabbed his morpher. They went together to find the Power Rangers along with Mike, the Red Ranger's brother. They freed the other Rangers by distracting the Psycho Rangers with Leo and Andros. All the old Power Rangers showed up and it was 11 against 5. The Power Rangers attacked, black and green against bad black, red and yellow against bad red, you get the idea... The power rangers grouped up and destroyed the Psycho Rangers and the old and new power rangers rejoiced together.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 16 THE POWER OF PINK (PART 2 OF 3)

Kendrix was studying a book (that the Power Rangers had found in an earlier episode) and found a sword more that was more powerful than all of the Quasar Sabers combined. It was located on a planet that was right next to Terra Venture. The Pink Psycho Ranger went into a communication outlet and read Kendrix's mind and found out the sword was on a planet near Terra Venture. She decided to go and get the sword, so Kendrix and Cassie, both of the Pink Rangers, went to the planet. It was too late because the Pink Psycho Ranger already had the sword. Every time the Psycho Ranger attacked the sword got bigger. Cassie got hit so many times that she unmorphed and her morpher got flung in the dirt. The Psycho Ranger stabbed the morpher with the sword and it started sending a lot of power out. The other Power Rangers got there and they fought using the Astro Megazord and Galactabeast Megazord. They destroyed the Pink Psycho Ranger and Kendrix destroyed the sword. After she destroyed the sword, Kendrix became a higher being and left. The other Power Rangers left for Earth.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 17 PROTECT THE QUASAR SABER (PART 3 OF 3)

A man found the pink Quasar Saber and gave it to an auction. Meanwhile, the Power Rangers left Terraventure and ended up at the man's place. They forced the information about where the saber was from him, but it turned out to be false information. They had really been talking to Destructotron. A mysterious figure who found out the real location of the saber. At the auction, the auctioneer brought out the Quasar saber and started the bid at 1,000 kilogemotrans and Astronema said that she'd give 1,000,000 kilogemotrans. Then she said for him to give it to her for free and she'd spare their lives. Trakeena walked in and said that Astronema was really Karone and then she ran off, taking the sword. Trakeena hit Destructotron with the sword as she saved the Power Rangers. Karone became the Pink Ranger and together with the other Power Rangers they destroyed two monsters.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Jonathan Tzachor

2 - 18 FACING THE PAST

The Red Ranger started to fight a magnet monster and it stole his ranger power so he couldn't morph. Karone came and got Leo and they escaped, but he couldn't get his power back. Karone then remembered that when she was Astronema she once fought a warrior that had an armored chi on his arms. When they get put together it formed a super armor. The monster started to attack again and Karone and Leo went to find the frozen warrior. When they got there she had to face her past by fighting Astronema. They were fighting when Astronema put a sword at Leo's throat and said, "You would really sacrifice yourself to save him?" and Karone said yes. They were let into the cave because she passed the test. Meanwhile, the magnet monster was fighting the Power Rangers and he sucked out all of their ranger power. Back at the cave, Leo and Karone found the warrior and freed him. He gave Leo the chi, so Leo came back to Terraventure and defeated the magnet monster.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 19 TURN UP THE VOLUME

Damon competes with a ruthless techie named Baxter for the role of new Chief Mechanic on Terra Venture. When his rival cheats and wins, he soon puts the whole colony in danger due to his inexperience and egotism when the Decibat monster shrieks havoc upon the City Dome. Can Damon fix the situation and shut the monster up?

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 20 ENTER THE LOST GALAXY (PART 1 OF 3)

Some scientists were reading words that were inscribed on the galaxy book and it electrocuted the space station. The words also sent out a message to the guardian of the book and he came to Terra Venture to get it. Meanwhile, at the control dome (in the center down to the bottom) of Terra Venture they locked up the book so no one could get it and to make sure it didn't zap the ship again. Just then, the guardian (disguised as a construction worker) tried to get the book and he knocked out the guards. Just before he got the book, Kai arrested him and took him to the brig. Kai talked to him and he said he knew he was the blue ranger. They got the book, but Deviot stole it and chanted something. They defeated him with their Zords and found themselves in the lost galaxy.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Jonathan Tzachor

2 - 21 BEWARE THE MUTINY (PART 2 OF 3)

Terra Venture passes through a portal into a strange and dangerous dimension, known as the Lost Galaxy. Within, the colony is soon encountered by a dragon-sailing alien known as Captain Mutiny, who offers to assist Commander Stanton and his crew in returning to their own universe. But when the Power Rangers investigate Mutiny's homeworld, they discover he's far less than friendly to visitors.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 22 CRUNCHOR ON THE LOOSE (PART 3 OF 3)

Deviot was using a tracker to find Crunchor. Crunchor was coming to Deviot, but the Power Rangers showed up and attacked them. They got the tracker from Deviot, who told them how to defeat Crunchor and then ran away like a coward. Just then Alpha detected Crunchor in a nearby tunnel, so the Power Rangers used their Quasar Blasters on him, but it didn't work. Crunchor went back underground and the Power Rangers decided to split up to cover more ground. Corona, Kai, Maya, and Damon went one way, and Leo and Mike went the other way. Leo and Mike found Crunchor and called the other Power Rangers to come and help them. When they got there, they used their Ranger Power to try and destroy him, but they failed. They called their MegaZords to help them destroy Crunchor after he turned into a MegaCrunchor. The Power Rangers used the power from all four Zords and destroyed Crunchor. Later the Power Rangers were talking and said they needed to leave the lost galaxy.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 23 UNTIL SUNSET

Leo and Damon were running from the swabys, then the swabys surrounded Leo and Damon. Deviot captured them and chained them up. Deviot wanted to kill them, but one of Captain Mutiny's henchmen said that Captain Mutiny would be there at sunset. The henchman left. Leo and Damon started to talk about how they meet and about their adventures. They talked about how Mike fell in a crevice and the Magna Defender saved him by taking over his body. Then the Magna Defender escaped from the crevice and let go of Mike's body and spirit. At sunset, Captain Mutiny came to kill them but the other Power Rangers showed up and they destroyed the monster that was with them. Captain Mutiny ran away.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 24 DREAM BATTLE

Captain Mutiny told a monster named Hexuba to put the Power Rangers to sleep, so that while they were sleeping he could kill them. Hexuba cast a sleeping spell onto a bunch of flowers that would give you nightmares. She first gave the flower to Damon and he fell asleep. Next to get flowers and fall asleep were Kai, then Karone, then Maya. Just then Leo walked in and sniffed the flowers, but it didn't work at first. Then he called Mike and they went to the girls' chamber and found them knocked out cold on the floor. Mike sniffed the flower and he and Leo decided they had to keep moving. Leo passed out in the hallway, but Mike kept on going. Meanwhile, in the nightmare Leo, Karone, Maya, Damon, and Kai were fighting swabys. Then they fought a big monster who they couldn't defeat. Back in the real world, Mike found Hexuba and she tried to kill him with her power. Mike used a mirror to reflect it onto a lot of other mirrors. The beam destroyed Hexuba's fortune-teller globe and the dreams became reality. The Power Rangers destroyed the monster and woke up.

Wr Jill Donnellan

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 25 HEXUBA'S GRAVEYARD

Hexuba was at a monster graveyard trying to bring past monsters back to life. The first to rise, and head for Terra Venture, was freaky teaky who all of the Power Rangers destroyed. Then Teaka came to life and they beat him. Next the Magna Defender came. Kai left and found the graveyard. Kai destroyed the crystal that was bringing the monsters back to life and got out of there just as it exploded. The Power Rangers beat the rest of the monsters, then Hexuba attacked the Power Rangers. Then destroyed her with all 4 MegaZords, then they find out that Terra Venture would freeze once the engine failed, because they'd lose life support.

Wr Judd Lynn, Denise Skinner

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 26 RAISE THE TITANISAUR

Damon was at one of the five engines of Terra Venture when the exhaust pressure went high. Everyone had to get out of there because one of the engines was going to blow up. Damon went up to the captain and he asked him if anyone could keep the other engines up. He sent him back down, but just then Deviot and one of Captain Mutiny's henchmen arrived. Then the Power Rangers came and fought them. They lost for the moment and then they ran to the castle, which was on top of the head of a monster raising out of the water. The Power Rangers called their Zords and fought the monster in the middle of town. The monster defeated the Power Rangers, then ran off into the ocean dome. The monster went into the water and cooled off because they started to overheat. The castle detached and from the monster and then the monster attacked the city dome. The Power Rangers fought back with the help of the Magna Defender and they destroyed him. Damon rushed to the engine room and stopped another engine from blowing up.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Judd Lynn

2 - 27 ESCAPE THE LOST GALAXY

Barbarax captures some of the people from TerraVenture and puts them to work in slave camps. According to a plan the Power Rangers come up with, one of the people captured is Mike. He plans to find out where the slave camp is and try to free the slaves. Kai and Leo try to figure out a way to open the portal back to their own universe and read backwards to Keonta, which works. However TerraVenture is too slow to be able to get through the portal. Mike manages to free the slaves and takes them to the MegaShip. He is left for dead by Deviot and Mutiny, but the Magna Defender talks to him in his mind and tells him he has to use all his strength. He then uses his ToroZord to open the portal again and hold it open. This makes him lose his powers. Barbarax goes on a rampage on TerraVenture and starts capturing people to turn into slaves for Mutiny. The MegaShip makes it back to the Power Rangers' home universe.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Judd Lynn

2 - 28 JOURNEY'S END PART 1

Trakeena was talking to Destron when Deviot came in. Deviot made an excuse for being with Captain Mutiny, but she didn't believe him. She told Destron to kill him, so Deviot grabbed Trakeena and tossed her into the cocoon with him. They melded into one person and popped out. She decided to attack Terra Venture. She went and tried to destroy the Power Rangers. Meanwhile, the people at Terra Venture found the new world and were going to land on it. Terra Venture was attacked by Trakeena, so the Power Rangers crash landed on the moon. The dome started to crack, so they evacuated Terra Venture and the Power Rangers' Zords were destroyed. The Power Rangers put the MegaShip on self-destruct and Trakeena crashed on the moon, as did Leo.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 29 JOURNEY'S END PART 2

Leo and the other Power Rangers were helping to evacuate the main dome, because it was cracking. The dome was cracking because it crashed into the moon of the new world. Meanwhile, Trakeena had put bombs onto the sting wingers and she made them cover the MegaZords and activate the bombs. The MegaZords blew up and she sent the rest of her army into the city. They started blowing up buildings and the Power Rangers had to start fighting the sting wingers. Then they left and had to self-destruct the MegaShip because Trakeena was crushing it. They left on their jet jammer with Alpha, but Alpha fell off and landed on the new world. Leo crashed into the moon and the rest of the Power Rangers landed on the new world.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

2 - 30 JOURNEY'S END PART 3

Leo found Trakeena, who had turned into an ant-human. She started up Terra Venture and put it on a collision course with the colony. Leo started fighting her and was losing badly, but just then the other Power Rangers came and helped him. Trakeena kicked all their butts. They tried their Quasar Blasters, but they didn't work. Trakeena was going to kill Maya and Karone, so Leo used the red capsular cycle. Leo pulled out his red ranger armor. They destroyed Trakeena and then were guided by the last remaining MegaZord. They were able to survive and find out that they were on Maranoy, where they put their sabers back in the stone. Everyone on Maranoy turned back into humans.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Ryuta Tasaki

POWER RANGERS MYSTRIC FORCE

Twenty years ago, in a dimension filled with magic parallel to our own, the forces of darkness came into power and a war called the Great Battle began. An army of the undead led by a powerful warrior swarmed into the land with their sights set on the taking over the magical realm, the human realm, and beyond, but they would have to combat a legion of brave and powerful wizards. The Mystic Wizards battled valiantly against insurmountable odds, until they drove the evil back from the edge of the human world. The strongest wizard of all, Leanbow, cast a spell and sent the evil warriors into the Underworld, having the Gatekeeper seal the gates for all eternity. The forces of truth successfully thwarted the forces of darkness' attempt to take the surface world, but they lost Leanbow, as he made sure the evil forces did not escape by sealing himself on their side of the Gate. The human world would never know of the Great Battle, nor of the sacrifices made to spare their lives from destruction. Even to this day they live in peace and tranquility, totally unaware of what is about to awaken.

The city of Briarwood was struck by an earthquake, and this earthquake was enough to break the seal just enough for evil to begin its attempt to invade the human world, again. The sorceress Udonna, realizing that the forces of evil had returned, sought out the warriors of legend, five teens living in Briarwood, to become the Power Rangers alongside her. While one of the teens was reluctant at first, he realized his destiny and joined the others in the fight against the Master of the Underworld Octomus and his numerous minions. When Udonna loses her Ranger powers to the mysterious Koragg, it is up to Nick, Chip, Madison, Vida, and Xander to save the Earth on their own. They are assisted by Udonna's bumbling apprentice Clare, and eventually Jenji the Genie and his master Daggeron, the Solaris Knight.

Using their powerful magic and incredible martial arts skills, the Mystic Force Power Rangers must rely on teamwork to save the day.

Power Rangers: Mystic Force (often abbreviated as PRMF and simply called Mystic Force) is the fourteenth incarnation of the Power Rangers television series. It officially premiered February 20, 2006 on Toon Disney, February 25, 2006 on ABC Family, March 11, 2006 on ABC Kids, and June 4, 2006 on The Family Network in Canada. The show is based on the Super Sentai series, Mahō Sentai Magiranger (Magical Squadron Magic Ranger).

In Fall 2006, Power Rangers will go to 1 hour on ABC Kids due to ABC Family's announcement that it will be dropping the Jetix programming block.

This show, like all Power Rangers shows, is an adaptation of a Sentai show in Japan. This show will be adapted from, and use footage from "Mahou Sentai Magiranger".

This show didn't end! The company that originally made it started showing signs of bankruptcy so to make more money, they decided to sell a large sum of Saban blocks and corporations to Disney and move the show overseas.

There they are now able to make more episodes for a cheaper price.

Also they wanted more scenery that would be closer to original counterpart-Super Sentai. I think the location plays a key part.

So far it went from MMPR Productions to Buena Vista Entertainment (Roadshow Village) KP Productions and now Ranger Productions, LTD.

Theme song:

Alright, let's go, it's time to turn it on, To set the record straight, we come down here --not 100 % sure about the last part--(yeah) Fight evil, Rangers powers standing strong, We got it going on (Mystic Force go!)

Stop, breath, Rangers here, there's no need to fret, We're the ones that will make a way, here to make a change, When there's trouble we don't play, we come together to save the day, Let's go, let's go, let's go, let's go

(yeah) Here come the Power Rangers, (yeah) Here come the Power Rangers, (yeah) Here come the Power Rangers, (Mystic Force go, yeah) Here come the Power Rangers, (yeah) Here come the Power Rangers, (yeah) Here come the Power Rangers, (go, go, go, go, yeah) Here come the Power Rangers, (yeah) Here come the Power Rangers, (yeah) Here come the Power Rangers, Mystic Force let's go, yeah!

PRMF premiered on JETIX on Feb. 20 2006, and 9:00 pm EIt wasn't that I didn't like the pilot, I thought the producers would of had more luck making a PRSPD season 2. I talk to a lot of PR fans and none have seen the PRMF pilot yet. Just to summarize, the cast basically are all Aussies. The pilot was one hour but it didn't tell you more than a 30 minute episode. IMDb do-sen't even have the cast on here yet. Some good things about it are the morphing sequences. They are a lot longer than taking a back flip and colors fly onto your chest.(PRDT, PRSPD, PRWF. The morphs are more similar to Ninja Storm an Lightspeed. As always the red ranger is defiant to becoming a ranger, and once he agrees the show is over. It has wonderful acting, and so far the show is basically going to make 4 more episodes. Perhaps something came up and caused it to end. If not then enjoy the rest of the season. But I will be waiting next spring for the new Power Rangers.

Produced by Sally Campbell producer , Bruce Kalish executive producer , Koichi Sakamoto executive producer

Cinematography by Simon Riera

Film Editing by Eric De Beus

Casting by Diana Rowan

Production Design by Shayne Radford

Art Direction by Miro Harre

Costume Design by Gavin McLean

Makeup Department - Gabrielle Jones makeup supervisor

Production Management - Charles Knight post-production producer

Second Unit Director or Assistant Director - Richard Barr first assistant director , Paul Grinder first assistant director , Sarah Miln first assistant director , Quentin Whitwell first assistant director: second unit

Art Department - Mark Knight creature supervisor

Sound Department - Dave Hurley sound recordist

Visual Effects by Brandon Durey mechanical effects supervisor , Allannah Milne visual effects editor , George Port visual effects supervisor

Stunts - Daniel Arrias stunts , Ben Cooke stunts , Shane Dawson stunt rigger , Mark Harris stunt coordinator , Glen Levy stunt double Allan Poppleton stunt performer.

Other crew - Phil Aitken location manager , Gregory Apps casting: Australia , Hope Diamond senior publicist , Riwia Fox casting assistant
Rob Marsh camera operator , Dale McCready steadicam operator , Cameron McLean camera operator , Diana Rowan casting: New Zealand , Paul Samuels director of photography: second unit.

Trivia

This is the first season since Zeo where at least one main villain is not on the opening credits.

Kelson Henderson (Boom in S.P.D.) has a role as Phineas in this series (this time in costume), making Mystic Force the third consecutive Power Ranger series he has appeared in (he had minor appearances in Dino Thunder).

Antonia Prebble (Krista in Dino Thunder, and the voice of S.P.D. Nova Ranger in S.P.D.) has a role in Mystic Force as Clare, which makes this her third consecutive appearance in some form in a Power Rangers series.

John Tui has a role in Mystic Force as Daggeron, the Solaris Knight. He portrayed Commander Anubis "Doggie" Cruger and Sergeant Silverback in the previous series, S.P.D., which will make him the first actor to portray two different characters who are Rangers.

Barnie Duncan returns for a second consecutive season, this time free of make-up, as Toby, the Rangers' boss at the Rock Porium. He recently reprised his role as Piggy, from S.P.D. for a cameo appearance in the episode Ranger Down. It also reveals that Piggy was on Earth way before S.P.D. arrived.

Josephine Davison also returns as the voice of Itassis. She played the role of Morgana in S.P.D..

This is the first Power Rangers team to feature capes as part of all of their suits. The Magna Defender from Lost Galaxy had a cape, but his status as a Ranger is disputed.

This will be the first full "down under" cast since the move to New Zealand (composed of 4 Australians and 2 New Zealanders for the Ranger team).

This will be the second Power Rangers team not to feature an African-American Ranger; the first was Ninja Storm.

Madison and Vida are sisters, making Mystic Force the first season with two sisters as Power Rangers, and the fourth in terms of siblings. First being Leo & Mike Corbett (Lost Galaxy), followed by Dana & Ryan Mitchell (Power Rangers: Lightspeed Rescue), and Hunter & Blake Bradley (Ninja Storm, although they were adopted brothers, not blood-related). Andros and Karone were also siblings, but they did not serve on the same Ranger teams.

The Mystic Force Power Rangers will be the second Ranger team to have more than six Rangers, the first being S.P.D. which ended with 14 overall (the five main B-Squad Rangers, Shadow Ranger, Omega Ranger, Kat Ranger for only one appearance, the five evil A-Squad Rangers, and Nova Ranger in the finale). It is disputed whether the Aquitian Rangers from Mighty Morphin Alien Rangers (a mini-series bridging the gap between Mighty Morphin Power Rangers and Power Rangers: Zeo) should be counted towards the team's number, considering they only had a few cameo appearances and were their own team, and did not fight for Zordon.

Mystic Force currently holds the record for the shortest full season made with only 32 episodes scheduled to air. Previous seasons had 38 episodes.

This will be the first time since Turbo that a Ranger with a non-American accent has been a member of the core team. During the first half of that series, Katherine Hillard (played by Catherine Sutherland who had previously been the second Pink Power Ranger, the second Pink Ninja Ranger, Zeo Ranger, Pink, and the first Pink Turbo Ranger) was from Australia and had an Australian accent, just like Sutherland. Xander Bly, the Green Mystic Ranger, is the only member of the Mystic Force cast to use his natural accent, as his character is written so that he has only recently moved from Australia to Briarwood (the other Ranger actors, despite hailing from Australia and New Zealand, put on American accents for the series). The actor who plays Xander, Richard Brancatisano, is from New South Wales, Australia. John Tui has also decided to use his accent as well (however slight it may be).

This will be the final series to air on ABC Family, which will drop the Jetix block in fall 2006. Power Rangers will continue to air on ABC Kids and Toon Disney in the United States, as well as the various Jetix stations in other nations

This will be the first time the five core Rangers actually become their Zords (through use of magic) as opposed to just piloting them. Alien Rangers had a similar situation, with the Aquitian Rangers telepathically controlling the Battle Borgs.

This is the first Power Rangers series to start with the White Ranger being the first Power Ranger established. This is also the first Power Rangers series to premiere six Rangers at the beginning, although after the first episode the White Ranger has lost her powers, and assists the Power Rangers from the sidelines, until she goes off on a quest.

This is the first series to have three female Power Rangers at the beginning of the season.

Peta Rutter, who portrays Udonna, is the oldest person, so far, to play the role of a Power Ranger, which are normally played by teens or adults no older than 25, with the exception of Jim Gray, who was 38 when he played Tidesus in Alien Rangers, Jason David Frank, who was 30 when he reprised his role as Tommy Oliver for a fourth time in Power Rangers: Dino Thunder, and Jason Chan, who was 31 when he first took on the role of Cameron Watanabe in Ninja Storm.

Firass Dirani, portraying Nick Russell the Red Mystic Ranger, makes it the first time a Ranger was played by an actor of Middle Eastern descent (Dirani is a Lebanese-Australian).

Due to the fact that in Japanese children's programming, guidelines are much more lenient than those of the United States, Necrolai's counterpart in Magiranger, Vancuria, was able to have a rather revealing costume with realistic breasts. Disney never shows close-up, full body images of Necrolai, and instead zooms in on her face and avoids showing her chest area as many times as possible. In scenes with Necrolai filmed for the American audience, the revealing costume is replaced with a full bodysuit.

This is the second season to have a train as a Megazord, the first being Lightspeed Rescue.
This is the first series to employ the use of cards with a morpher: Daggeron's Solar Cell Morpher.

Mystic Force features one of the largest villains/monsters in Power Rangers history. In the episode Scaredy Cat, Imperious grows to become more than one hundred times larger than the Titan Megazord. The other villain who rivals Imperious in this size is Dark Specter from In Space.

The Solaris Knight is the second character whose status as a Power Ranger is questioned. He, along with Mike Corbett as the Magna Defender do not have "Ranger" as part of their title, but Morph and fight alongside the Rangers. However, the Solaris Knight's status as a Ranger is closer than the Magna Defender's due to his origins in Magiranger. The Phantom Ranger's status is also questioned because while he had "Ranger" as part of his title, he has no alternate un-Morphed form.

With Nick having been revealed as Bowen and as the son of Udonna and Leanbow, this is the first Power Rangers series to feature a mother and son on the same Ranger team. This would also be the second time that a Ranger's father is on the evil side, following Power Rangers: Dino Thunder, where Trent's adopted father Anton Mercer was Mesogog. These occurrences are comparable to Luke Skywalker and Darth Vader in the Star Wars saga (however this isn't the first time a Ranger was blood related to a villain).

There has been no confirmation as of this writing that shows that Mystic Force will have a team-up episode with S.P.D.. There has been an email from Matt Austin's publicist, however it has been stated that she would not answer any emails. If there will be no team-up, then Mystic Force will mark the second time this has happened since the inception of the practice of having team-up episodes in Lost Galaxy (Zeo had the first team-up with the Aquitian Rangers, but the season by season practice began in PRLG). The first instance when there was no team-up between Wild Force and Ninja Storm, due to the switch in production companies and filming locations. A possible reason for the lack of a team-up between S.P.D. and Mystic Force comes from the number of episodes planned for Mystic Force (32) when previous seasons had more episodes (38).

WR. Bruce Kalish, Jackie Marchand

DIR. Mark Beesley , Paul Grinder , Charlie Haskell , Britta Johnstone , John Laing , Andrew Merrifield , Koichi Sakamoto

EPISODES: 32 YEAR MADE: 2006 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

BVS ENTERTAINMENT INC., BVS INTERNATIONAL N.V., RANGER PRODUCTIONS LTD, RENAISSANCE-ATLANTIC FILMS, TOEI CO. LTD

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 32

DATE OF PREMIER: 20/02/2006 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 04/11/2006

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Troll Kelson HENDERSON, Claire - Sorceresses' Apprentice ANTONIA PREBBLE, Daggeron/Solaris Knight JOHN TUI, Nick Russell/Bowen/Red Mystic Ranger FIRASS DIRANI, Charlie "Chip" Thorn/Yellow Mystic Ranger NIC SAMPSON, Madison Rocca/Blue Mystic Ranger MELANIE VALLEJO, Vida Rocca/Pink Mystric Ranger ANGIE DIAZ, Xander Bly/Green Mystic Ranger RICHARD BRANCATISANO, Udonna/White Mystic Ranger PETE RUTTER.

RELATED SHOWS:

MIGHTY MORPHIN' POWER RANGERS, THE (inc. THE MIGHTY MORPHIN' ALIEN RANGERS)

1 - 1 BROKEN SPELL (PART 1 OF 2)

Following an Earthquake, the undead forces of darkness, sealed deep beneath the magical dimension hidden within the woods just outside of a city called Briarwood, are freed from their years-long imprisonment. A sorceress named Udonna seeks out five brave teenagers to combat them, and finds those foretold working at a record/comic shop four of them work at, called Rock Porium. The fifth, a reluctant loner and new guy in town named Nick, fails to believe in magic as easily as the rest. Can the team come together before evil conquers both worlds?

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir John Laing

1 - 2 BROKEN SPELL (PART 2 OF 2)

The Knight Wolf Koragg defeats Udonna in a giant battle, and removes her ability to morph. This means the four teens will not have the luxury of time to train, and must become Mystic Force Rangers immediately to take on him and his Hidiacs. But with the easily disillusioned but brave Nick still not feeling the magic within him, the team lacks a Red Ranger!

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir John Laing

1 - 3 CODE BUSTERS

Vida and Chip try to unlock more items for their Ranger arsenal by performing "heroic deeds for hire", but learn that true heroism comes only in the face of danger. The Hydra Worm that created the underworld pit Morticon and company are trapped in, poses a growing menace to the surface world. To make things worse, the Mucor monster is sent, with an appetite for our heroes! Also, a mysterious figure saves Clare. Is he friend or foe, troll or goblin? Or neither and both? Nick finds out!

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir John Laing

1 - 4 ROCK SOLID

Nick pushes Madison to be more assertive, and in doing so puts her smack in the middle of Necrolai's latest scheme to turn the people of Briarwood into stone! After this experience, Nick will not only earn a new bike, but the Rangers will learn to work together as never before, unlocking their Megazord.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 5 WHISPERING VOICES

In an effort to isolate the Red Ranger from the others, Koragg uses Udonna's Snow Staff to get inside Nick's head and force him to hear words of doubt at inopportune moments. When $1000 turns up missing from the Rock Porium, thanks to a scorned Leelee, blame turns to the secretive Nick. The team is broken up, and a showdown between the Knight Wolf and Red Ranger occurs at the beach. Can our heroes learn the error of their ways, or is it too late to keep Koragg from stealing their Megazord power to bring Morticon to surface world?

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 6 LEGENDARY CATASTROS

Interrupting a spell by Koragg, Nick is accidentally thrust into another dimension by a warping of the Dark Seal. He's not alone, as the Knight Wolf's powerful steed, the Legendary Catastros, is with him, but injured by the backstabbing actions of Necrolai. Can the Red Ranger soothe the savage beast stallion, and with it, reclaim the Megazord power from Koragg's monster?

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 7 FIRE HEART

With the aid of her Taxi Cab Monster, Necrolai steals an ancient map, which lists the location of the powerful Fire Heart. The Rangers manage to copy it, and trek into the dangerous Cimmerian Forest to attain the item first. Will the team come together to overcome the quicksand and giant spiders, or will Xander's newfound "leadership" abilities lead them only to disaster? It may be up to Phineas to save the day! Plus, thanks to a magic accident, a cutout of a Heavy Metal legend comes to life in the Rock Porium!

Wr David Garber

Dir Mark Beesley

1 - 8 STRANGER WITHIN (PART 1 OF 2)

While her teammates continue to search for the Fire Heart, Vida attends a rave at the behest of Leelee, and finds herself strangely hypnotized by DJ Fly's strange music. She learns too late that he's actually the monster called Flytrap, and is turning the teens of Briarwood into vampires for Necrolai! Only Chip suspects the truth about Vida's strange change, but can the amateur vampire hunter save his friend and teammate from an eventual at sunrise?

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir Mark Beesley

1 - 9 STRANGER WITHIN (PART 2 OF 2)

Despite how the Flytrap monster's been destroyed and all his vampires are back to normal, Vida remains a bloodsucker! The Rangers remain perplexed as to why, but they soon learn from Koragg that Necrolai is to blame. Can Chip free his best friend from the spell of the undefeatable Queen of Vampires? If he can, the team will still have to deal with Koragg, and remain in the dark about one of their friends' connection to the Undead!

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir Mark Beesley

1 - 10 PETREIFIED XANDER

Xander has a zit! Worried about his vanity, he uses a perfection spell Clare devised for making the perfect plant, with one little side effect: it's slowly turning him into a tree! Can the Green Ranger be saved and learn a lesson while he's at it? Meanwhile, the scroll of the Fire Heart is finally deciphered by the Rangers, discovering a chest with a timer on it. To unlock it in time, it's up to the puzzle-solving genius of... Toby?!

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 11 THE GATEKEEPER (PART 1 OF 2)

To free Morticon from the Pit permanently, the gate that sealed them must be unlocked. The forces of the Underworld need to find the current possessor of the powers of the Gatekeeper, and that happens to be none other than the often inept sorceress' apprentice, Clare! With Udonna captured by Koragg and the Rangers facing defeat by Necrolai, can Clare claim her mother's legacy? Both the forces of good AND evil hope so!

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 12 THE GATEKEEPER (PART 2 OF 2)

With the gate raised in the middle of Briarwood, Morticon is giantly set free once again to ravage the city. While his teammates fend off both the villain and an evil Gargoyle, Nick has to rescue Clare, before Koragg can drain the power of the Gatekeeper from her, along with her life force, to fully open the gate and free the Master! Can the Red Ranger regain control of Catastros, and Udonna the Snow Staff, to help save the city?

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 13 SCAREDY CAT

Necrolai and Leelee trick the Rangers into breaking the seal on a cave containing an evil mummy, who becomes the new baddie in charge of the Underworld Pit! But the Rangers also discover a new and powerful ally, when they find a lamp containing the white cat-man known as Jenji the Genie. Can he help against the might of Imperious? Meanwhile, Phineas is suffering from a toothache, and enters the human realm to seek a dentist. He winds up escorted by Toby, and hilarity ensues!

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 14 LONG AGO

Imperious releases Jester to wreck havoc on the city. A strange frog pesters the Rangers, but is the amphibian more than he appears to be? Similarly, an old Mystic Warrior named Calindor returns with a mysterious agenda, and he too may not be all he appears to be. Only Phineas knows the truth!

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 15 INNER STRENGTH

Xander is having trouble following Daggeron's training techniques. Solaris Knight sends the five teens to the dangerous dimension of Shalifar on a Morpher-less training mission to find a ticket to get back home. When his teammates are captured by a giant, can Xander harness his own inner magic, instead of his Ranger ones, to save them? Plus, Koragg returns!

Wr Matt Hawkins

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 16 SOUL SPECTRE

Gnatu, a female villain attempting to become Imperious' new second in command, uses her power to steal

the life-force from civilians of Briarwood. The Rangers fail to stop her and her Spydex monster, the consequences weigh heavily upon Chip. Soon enough, Necrolai tricks the Yellow Ranger into unleashing a "soul specter" upon himself. Chip must join Daggeron on a trip to the dreaded Mount Isis to be freed from the spell. Unfortunately, Koragg awaits! But which Knight will prove the victor?

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 17 RANGER DOWN

Jenji grows increasingly jealous of the attention the Rangers give the baby dragon Fire Heart. The genie leaves him in the forest, but when his action is discovered, Jenji finds the dragon is missing! Even if they manage to find him, things will never be the same. And what connection is there between this baby-napping and the vanishing of Udonna's baby almost two decades prior? Meanwhile, Koragg gives up his magic to Imperious, who in turn gives it over to Necrolai! Now armed with her own Wand, she aids her Screamer monster in turning people, and the Rangers, into feathers.

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Jonathan Brough

1 - 18 DARK WISH (PART 1 OF 3)

The Rangers grow increasingly dependent on using magic for every problem they run into in their lives, much to the dismay of both Udonna and Daggeron. Imperious unleashes the Barbarian Beasts, creatures so vicious and dishonorable, that even Koragg doesn't like them. Facing one Beast after another wears our heroes down, causing them to repeatedly request Solaris Knight use Jenji to wish them away. But will this ultimate act of laziness backfire, giving the forces of the underworld what they want most?

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Mark Beesley

1 - 19 DARK WISH (PART 2 OF 3)

With Imperious having wished via his captive Jenji that the Mystic Force Rangers never gained their powers, a new reality is created! Briarwood lacks color, music, and its populace is enslaved by Styxoids and Hidiacs. The former-Rangers are left with their memories of how things were just to further torture them, for now they have no magic at their disposal! But Koragg may hold the answer, and sends them on a perilous journey to visit the Tribunal of Magic, in an attempt to reverse the wish... IF they can survive just getting to them!

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir Mark Beesley

1 - 20 DARK WISH (PART 3 OF 3)

Despite the Tribunal of Magic refusing to reverse the wish, the former-Rangers fight on in an attempt to continue the battle against evil even against all odds. Will this be enough to get the Tribunal to change their minds? Even if they do, once things are back to normal, our heroes still will have to defeat the remaining two Barbarian Beasts! They'll need far more help from the Tribunal to do this Legendary deed.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Mark Beesley

1 - 21 KORAGG'S TRIAL

The rivalry between Imperious and Koragg heats up, when the Knight Wolf's latest attempt to destroy the Rangers is intruded by the evil wizard. To settle the score, and decide if Koragg is worthy enough to regain his Dark Magic, Imperious places Koragg on trial for treason! Will his repeated failures, all in the name of honor, work against him in the eyes of the Master? Meanwhile, the Rangers work together on painting a mural for Rock Porium (if they can stop playing in the paint first) and Xander has a cold.

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Jonathan Brough

1 - 22 HEIR APPARANT (PART 1 OF 2)

Chip's big mouth lets slip the secret Daggeron asked him to keep. This leaves Daggeron and Udonna no choice but to finally tell the Rangers, in detail, the full story of the Great War... including revealing to them the stories of the sorceress' husband, Leanbow, and long-lost son, Bowen. Meanwhile, Imperious realizes the best way to usurp the Master is get rid of Koragg. Thus, he sets in motion a plan to rid the Rangers of their Legendary Warrior powers, by bringing them down to the Underworld. Will this also spell the downfall of both the Solaris and Wolf Knights?

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Jonathan Brough

1 - 23 HEIR APPARENT (PART 2 OF 2)

The Rangers must come to terms with the revelation that their most ardent foe, Koragg, is actually Udonna's noble warrior husband, Leanbow. They won't have long to do so, as the Master of the Underworld is finally rising, and in doing so, reverts Leanbow to the Knight Wolf. Without their Legendary Warrior powers, hope seems lost for our heroes. But will the truth about Nick's past help provide the key to victory? Plus, the final showdown between friends turned enemies, Imperious and Daggeron!

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Jonathan Brough

1 - 24 THE LIGHT

Now the sole creature in the Pit, Necrolai quickly uncovers the Ten Terrors of the Underworld, giant creatures with even more immense powers who live to serve the Supreme Master! The Rangers will have a hard enough time fighting them, as Udonna departs to search for her husband, Madison is doubting her abilities as hero, and Toby is considering taking action against his often-absent employees! The first of the Terrors, the lava-based Magma, prepares to burn down Briarwood while seeking the being known as "The Light". Just who or what is it? Only Phineas has the answers!

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 25 THE HUNTER

The second of the 10 Terrors, Oculous the Hunter, is chosen to destroy the Light. One by one, the sharp-eyed monster snipes off each of the Rangers, leaving Nick alone and outnumbered. Can he connect with his destiny, and that of the last dragon, Fire Heart's, in time to save himself and his friends? Meanwhile, 10 Terror member Megahorn breaks the sacred rules and sets out on his own to battle the Solaris Knight! Also, Udonna finds a familiar face is following her, and Leelee settles into her new job, whether the Rangers like it or not.

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 26 HARD HEADS

Thanks to Necrolai's Book of Prophecy, Serpentina becomes aware of her status as the next of the Ten Terrors to be chosen. She breaks the Rules of Darkness and sends Hekatoid out ahead to attack the Rangers. He just happens to encounter Nick & Vida, who are currently at odds in a severe spat of bickering! Hekatoid slimes the pair, preventing them from morphing. Will they be able to set aside their differences long enough to save the rest of the team from Serpentina's stomach? And just what will the other Terrors think when they discover her breaking of the rules? Also, Sculpin makes contact with Koragg, and Leelee learns her destiny!

Wr Matt Hawkins

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 27 SNOW PRINCE

The Snow Prince, the mentor to the original Mystic Warriors returns, and decrees that Daggeron should spend a day learning from Nick on the fine art of gut instincts. Meanwhile, Megahorn is chosen to be the next Ten Terror to attack the Rangers, but Sculpin sends in Black Lance to back him up. Will Koragg come out of hiding to help our heroes?

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 28 LIGHT SOURCE (PART 1 OF 2)

Hekatoid is the next Terror chosen to take on the Rangers, and they're more than eager to face him, for he also has Udonna as his captive! While a cloud of poisonous tadpoles waits to rain down on the city, our heroes must take on Hekatoid's evil doubles of themselves. Meanwhile, Leelee's quest to find her role in life leads her to Phineas. Also, Toby becomes a fitness freak.

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 29 LIGHT SOURCE (PART 2 OF 2)

With their powers stolen by Hekatoid, the Ranger teens find reassurance in the most unlikely of places. Meanwhile, Leelee, Clare, and Phineas attempt to rescue Udonna! And to top things off, the rest of the Terrors take turns trying to pry the Master's essence from an exposed Koragg.

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 30 THE RETURN

Matoombo, the kind and gentle Terror, is chosen to become the body of the restored Master, which he refuses. He encounters Vida, who aids him in trying to escape from his fate. Will they succeed in evading Gekkor, or is the Master's return inevitable? Also, the rest of the Rangers are confronted by Itassis. Can they convince her to switch sides? Meanwhile, Udonna finds what's left of Leanbow. Will she be able to save him, and in doing so, put the power of Koragg to good use? And, Toby copes with his knowledge of his employees' secret identities, while also gaining a new employee in the form of Phineas!

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 32 MYSTIC FATE (PART 1 OF 2)

Following Itassis' betrayal, the Master decides to take matters into his own tentacled hands. A village in the Mystic Realm is attacked, and when the Rangers come to investigate, they are stunned to learn Nick is behind the destruction! Taken over by the Master, Nick becomes Koragg, forcing Leanbow to use his Wolf Warrior power against his own son. Can the Light prevail? If things weren't bad enough, Black Lance targets the city, while Sculpin waits in the wings! Also, Rock Porium's business is down thanks to its newest employee, Phineas.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Mark Beesley

1 - 33 MYSTIC FATE (PART 2 OF 2)

With Daggeron, Leanbow, Mystic Mother, and Jenji destroyed, Good Magic running low, and a damaged Briarwood as the battleground, the Rangers have no one else to turn to when dealing with Black Lance, followed by the supreme Master himself. Will the Light flicker in this final battle against the darkness, or will the power of belief in magic win the day? Meanwhile, Sculpin has Udonna captive, and only Necrolai can save her!

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir Mark Beesley

POWER RANGERS NINJA STORM

"Three good. Two bad. One ultimate evil. To save the world, they'll have to unite the team."

Three rebellious students are the last ones remaining at their ninja academy after evil aliens attack the Earth. With mankind at the brink of destruction, the fate of the world lies in the hands of these unlikely heroes. Their ninja master teaches them to harness ancient mystical energies that transform them into Power Rangers.

For the ninth PR series Ninja Storm (based the Super Sentai counterpart Hurricanger). The PR crew more/less made to move from the U.S. to New Zealand to shoot the PR. This is also the very first PR series to be produced entirely by Walt Disney which acquired the Family Channel and PR was part of the deal.

In this series Shane Clark, Tori Hanson, and Dustin Brooks are students at the Wind Ninja Academy. However they tend to be slackers and their Sensei Kanoi Watanabe chastise them for their lack of commitment. However when an old student named Lothor return to enact his vengeance on Earth he kidnaps the students of the Wind Academy as well as other ninja schools. In process he turns Kanoi into a guinea pig

Shane, Tori, and Dustin miss the action are the only ones left, and because of that they have given Power Morphers to become the Wind Power Rangers. They are assisted by Kanoi's son Cameron who is not happy but the arrangement but still does his job well at Ninja Operations. However Lothor recruits two students from the Thunder Academy when he sees they were given to ability to become Power Rangers themselves. He tells them that Kanoi murdered their parents but so learn it's was a lie and eventually the Thunder Rangers side with the Wind Rangers in the fight against Lothor.

Cam wanting a piece of the action and to not just sitting on the sidelines goes back in time to retrieve a pendent that vanished years ago. He sees his parents in their younger years as well Kanoi's brother Kya. Cam eventually discovers that Kya would become Lothor. He also understands why his father held him back from learning the ways of the Ninja. Cam was to become the Green Samurai Ranger and does get a chance to fight with the rest of the rangers as well provide any weapons as need be.

The first weeks of Ninja Storm are good as the team was being put together. Lots of cliffhangers which make you come back to see what happens. Sadly when the team finally is completed their is a lack of story arc for a few weeks until the Lothor's Generals come into play. If their were more story arc's like their were in Wild Force then Ninja Storm could have done better than the previous PR series.

Lothor meanwhile has been made into a Dr. Evil type while some of the Generals that serve him have a darker bend. Lothor's nieces Kapri and Marah also provide the comic relief but have their moments of darkness and redemption at the very end. The heroes were great but they had to make Dustin the clown of Rangers. However he does shine with the rest at the end. Kanoi unlike Zordon is quick to discipline when the Rangers (and even Cam) get out of line, and it was seen several times during the show. That does not make Zordon bad, but Kanoi is not afraid to put his foot (or his GP body form) down. Also the creation of holographic Hip-Hop personality of Cam was a waste of time since he was not used as many hoped we would have been.

Ninja Storm was good but could have been better.

I grew up watching Power Rangers and no matter how hard I tried, I just couldn't stay away. I'm 20 years old and this is the type of show that grabs you and won't let go and that is what happen to me. "Power Rangers: Ninja Storm" is much more entertaining to watch than the other ones were. The show may be cheezy at times, but it's not fake like the others were. Dustin, Shane, and Tori do things that we would do like motocross, work at a bike shop, and fix bikes. I never saw that on the other shows. I don't know if I'll keep watching this show forever and have it among my favorites, but for right now I give it 9 stars out of 10.

I'm not sure if it's the new production company, or the new owners, but this show is vastly improved, in fact this season could stand alone and all others except "Lost Galaxy" and "PR:In Space" could be forgotten. Humorous villains, tongue in cheek dialogue, in previous years "Time Force" and "Wild Force" weighed heavily with plots much too dark and gritty for its target audience, I realize they saw they were onto something with "Lost Galaxy" and the Terre Ventura storyline could've been a jr. Babylon Five/Deep Space nine sort of thing, if fleshed out properly, but Wild Force was much too depressing, and much too bland. The powers that be, I salute you for choosing beautiful New Zealand and the actors, especially Sally Martin as Tori, (the cutest girl, ever, on this show) they all mesh perfectly. My favorite line? Lothor: "No wonder I have acid reflux."

An incredible series was launched early this year, Power Rangers Ninja Storm, a fresh and bold new taste to the 11 year old Power Rangers multi-billion dollar franchise. This show is one of the best Ranger shows yet, I've been a fan of the Ranger series as a whole since 93 and this series doesn't change my opinion...it strengthens it. Power Rangers has had two styles of story telling, the fun and action style and the exciting adventure style. While series like MMPR and Power Rangers Turbo were of the fun and action, much of the fandom has said they prefer the exciting adventure style of Power Rangers In Space, Lost Galaxy and Time Force.

Ninja Storm is a mix of all the above, chunking out great action and story telling all at once, with the fun of the original MMPR and the excitement of the newer incarnations.

It's not without it's faults though, PRNS early on suffered from puns and quips that a lot of people did not care for. But the one thing PRNS has is that any thing bad out weighs the good in this series, theres acting of the likes other Saturday morning shows could only WISH they could have. These actors are by far some of the most gifted actors to dawn the ranger mantle. Glenn McMillian is a ten year acting vet and he's not even 20 yet, goodness. The villains in this series are funny and devious. Some of the cast in this Ranger series are alumni of Xena Warrior Princess[Katrina Browne and Grant McFarland]

Produced by Janine Dickens Producer, Ann Knapp executive producer, Koichi Sakamoto co-executive producer, Douglas Sloan executive producer.

Original Music by Bruce Lynch, Ian Christian Nickus (title song) , Frank Strangio (episodes 1-6) , Jeremy Sweet (title song)

Cinematography by Simon Riera

Film Editing by Eric De Beus & Chris Plummer

Casting by Diana Rowan

Production Design by Shayne Radford

Art Direction by Miro Harre

Costume Design by Gavin McLean

Makeup Department - Gabrielle Jones .. Makeup supervisor , Production Management - Janet McIver ..

Production manager , Second Unit Director or Assistant Director - Simon Ambridge .. First assistant director , Richard Barr .. First assistant director , Paul Grinder .. First assistant director , Sarah Miln .. First assistant director , Quentin Whitwell .. First assistant director: second unit , Makoto Yokoyama .. Second unit director.

Art Department - Mark Knight .. Creature supervisor

Sound Department - Chris Burt .. Sound designer , Dave Hurley .. Sound recordist , Carl Smith .. Sound effects editor

Visual Effects by Brandon Durey .. Mechanical effects supervisor , Allanah Milne .. Visual effects editor , George Port .. Visual effects supervisor

Stunts - Ben Cooke .. Stunts , Mark Harris .. Stunt coordinator , Glen Levy .. Stunt double

Other crew - Phil Aitken .. Location manager , Gregory Apps .. Casting: Australia , Hope Diamond ..

Senior publicist , Riwia Fox .. Casting assistant

Charles Knight .. Post-production supervisor , Rob Marsh .. Camera operator , Cameron McLean .. Camera operator , Diana Rowan .. Casting: New Zealand , Paul Samuels .. Director of photography: second unit.

WR. Art Edler Brown , Mark Hoffmeier , M.L. Kessler , Ann Knapp , Jackie Marchand , Steve Slavkin , Douglas Sloan

DIR. Charlie Haskell, Andrew Merrifield , Wayne Rose , Koichi Sakamoto

EPISODES: 36 YEAR MADE: 2003 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 2

BVS INTERNATIONAL N.V, BUENE VISTA TELEVISION, RENAISSANCE-ATLANTIC FILMS, TOEI CO.LTD, VILLAGE ROADSHOW PICTURES

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 28, (2) 8

DATE OF PREMIER: 15/02/2003 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 15/11/2003

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:FILMS:

Shane Clarke/Red Wind Ranger PUA MAGASIVA, Tori Hanson/Blue Wind Ranger SALLY MARTIN, Waldo 'Dustin' Brooks/Yellow Wind Ranger GLENN MCMILLAN, Hunter Bradley/Crimson Thunder Ranger ADAM TUOMINEN, Blake Bradley/Navy Thunder Ranger (as Jorgito Vargas Jr.) JORGE VARGAS, Cameron 'Cam' Watanabe/Green Samurai Ranger, Cyber Cam JASON CHAN, Kapri KATRINA BROWNE, Marah KATRINA DEVINE, Kiya 'Lothor' Watanabe, Sensei Kanoi Watanabe GRANT MCFARLAND, Kelly Halloway MEGAN NICOL, Zurgane (voice) PETER ROWLEY, Choobo (voice) BRUCE HOPKINS, Motodrone (voice) CRAIG PARKER, Shimazu (voice) JEREMY BIRCHALL, Vexacus (voice) MICHALE HURST.

RELATED SHOWS:

MIGHTY MORPHIN' POWER RANGERS, THE (inc. THE MIGHTY MORPHIN' ALIEN RANGERS)

POWER RANGERS ZEO

POWER RANGERS IN SPACE

POWER RANGERS TURBO

1 - 1 PRELUDE TO A STORM

Three young extreme sports fans, surfer Tori, skateboarder Shane, and motocrosser Dustin, spend their afternoons together at the Wind Ninja Academy, where the future stealth protectors of the Earth are trained in secret. Though, they're considered to be the three least dedicated students, the trio's potential and good nature comes to an advantage, when they run late for class one afternoon. It just so happens, that day, Lothor, a banished evil ninja, comes back to the planet, and conquers every Ninja Academy with his hoard of Evil Alien Ninjas! With their Sensei trapped in the form of a Guinea Pig, and his grumpy and embittered tech-wizard son Cam designing the weaponry to combat the villains, the three become the Wind Ninja Rangers. Can they manage to defeat the Blue Face monster in their first battle?

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 2 THERE'S NO 'I' IN TEAM

Virtual training missions between the three Rangers highlights a major fault in their teamwork, focused directly upon team leader Shane. Despite Sensei's reminding that he must learn to trust in his teammates, the Red Ranger strikes out on his own against the Mad Magnet monster. Will he learn his lesson the hard way? Meanwhile, Lothor's evil nieces, Kapri and Marah, are also suffering from a lack of teamwork, and are forced to work out their problems by being stuck together, literally, by the monster's magnetic ray!

Wr Ann Knapp Austen

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 3 BEAETH AND THE BEACH

Her tomboyish attitude ruining her image as a feminine female, Tori agrees to be in a photo shoot for Girl Sport magazine. But it turns out to be a trap, where Marah & Kapri capture the Blue Ranger, and replace her with a clone! Can she use her water-ninja skills to get out of this mess, and be able to convince her teammates she's the true blue? Or will the Copybot monster destroy them all?

Wr Mark Hoffmeier

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 4 LOOMING THUNDER

Dustin makes two new friends, Blake and Hunter, at the motocross track. His continued spending of time with them causes him to be late to join his Ranger teammates in battle once too often. How long can the new team last if their Yellow Ranger isn't responsible enough? The Terramole monster may be just the one to put this to the test. Meanwhile, are Dustin's new friends are all they appear to be?

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 5 THUNDER STRANGERS PART 1

Cam is in need of the data disc for the Tsunami Cycles, which Dustin had last, all unaware that it's not only landed in the hands of the evil Thunder Rangers, but has been used to give them their own Cycles! This leads to the first confrontation between the Wind and Thunder Rangers, and as if our heroes didn't have it bad enough, they also face Zurgane! When the Thunder Rangers unveil their own Zords, can our heroes' own Zords withstand their awesome power?

Wr Ann Knapp Austen

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 6 THUNDER STRANGERS PART 2

The Wind Rangers recover from their defeat by the Thunder Rangers, though Tori lacks the ability to morph when the Amphibidor monster attacks, draining the city's water supply. Blake helps to save her, in doing so, he's injured. He's taken to the location of Ninja Ops, which will come back to haunt our heroes quite quickly! The Thunder Rangers appear again as the Wind Rangers face the monster, but when they instead assist our heroes, just whose side are they on anyway?

Wr Ann Knapp Austen

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 7 THUNDER STRANGERS PART 3

As the Evil Space Ninjas celebrate the capture of Sensei Guinea Pig by the Thunder Rangers, the Wind Rangers pinpoint just where Blake and Hunter are taking their mentor. Tracking the evil Rangers to the Mountain of Lost Ninjas, our heroes struggle not only to retrieve Sensei, but to fight off the zombie guards around the location of the powerful Gem of Souls! Will both sets of Rangers work together, and will the Thunders learn the truth of the fate of their parents at last? All of this, plus Zurgane unveils his very own Zord!

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 8 NOWHERE TO GROW

The Rangers discover the Kelzaks planting strange seeds, along with a monster called Florabundacus. Cam is refused being allowed to bring the seeds to botanist Dr Belrab by his father, who has long kept a promise to his deceased wife to keep their son out of harm's way by not letting him become a ninja. Going anyway, Cam ends up smack dab in the middle of a plot by Lothor's minions to wrap the city in Florabundacus' roots and vines.

Wr Steve Slavkin

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 9 RETURN OF THUNDER, PART 1

The Thunder Rangers' journey to self discovery is interrupted by Choobo, who approaches them in the desert, claiming to have defected, and willing to give them Lothor's ship's access codes as proof. But when they trust the villain, they walk right into a trap, and are brainwashed into becoming evil again! Can the Wind Rangers withstand battling both the Thunder Rangers, and the new Toxipod monster?

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Wayne Rose

1 - 10 RETURN OF THUNDER, PART 2

Trapped on a mysterious island together, the Wind Rangers are hunted by the brainwashed Thunder Rangers. An unnatural cold front sweeps the planet, emanating from the island. Thanks to the evil spell wearing off, Blake & Hunter appear to be prepared to switch sides again, but when the revived Super Toxipod monster appears and turns one of them bad again, it'll be brother against brother!

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Wayne Rose

1 - 11 RETURN OF THUNDER, PART 3

Portico Island is not only in the process of freezing the entire planet, but returning to its 200-year-long dip into the ocean, taking the Rangers with it! Quickly, our heroes, with their new ally Blake, must overcome Supertoxipod and the evilly deranged Hunter before they end up sleeping with the fishes.

Wr Ann Knapp Austen

Dir Wayne Rose

1 - 12 RETURN OF THUNDER, PART 4

Banished from Lothor's army, Choobo strikes out on his own, and strikes back against the Thunder Rangers by capturing them in his deadly backpack dimension. Can they escape, and deal with Choobo once and for all? Will Blake & Hunter finally become part of the Ninja Storm team? What ultimate weapon does Cam have in store if they can come together at last?

Wr Ann Knapp Austen, Douglas Sloan

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 13 BOXING BOPP-A-ROO

The rivalry of the team's two red-shaded Rangers, Shane and Hunter, grows heated, when they both compete against one another in a multi-sport Total Trek event. The Bopp-a-Roo monster utilizes their alpha-male clashing to beat the team. Will this defeat punch some sense into the pair?

Wr Mark Hoffmeier

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 14 PORK CHOPPED

Tori tries to balance conflicting promises, when she makes a date with Blake to see a movie with him and Hunter at the same time she's expected to watch Shane's skateboarding meet. Lothor exploits this stretching thin of the Blue Ranger by having General Treyf capture the Thunders in a tub of popcorn, and attacks the Wind Rangers with Kelzaks. Can their new teammates be freed from a buttery doom, or will the nonkosher villain wallow in the Rangers' defeat?

Wr Steve Slavkin

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 15 THE SAMURAI'S JOURNEY, PART 1

Cam laments not being a Ranger, and he won't be alone for long, as the illusionary Madropolis monster drains the Rangers of their powers! Though they're given a brief boost, and manage to give the monster a good beating, he grows large! Can our heroes take the strain of running the Megazords with what little power they have? Or will Cam have to go against his father's wishes and use the mysterious Scroll of Time to seek out a long lost source of energy?

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Paul Grinder

1 - 16 THE SAMURAI'S JOURNEY, PART 2

Sent more than 20 years into the past, Cam encounters his mother and father during their teenaged years when they first met. He also learns of Lothor's true identity, which hits closer to his family tree than he ever realized! Cam seeks the Samurai Amulet, an artifact of great power that his mother once possessed. Can he befriend his parents in time, and stop the man who will be Lothor from getting it first? Meanwhile, in the present, the Evil Space Ninjas hold a talent search to find new monsters to assault the Earth.

Wr Mark Hoffmeier

Dir Paul Grinder

1 - 17 THE SAMURAI'S JOURNEY, PART 3

Though now a Ranger, Cam returns to his Ninja Ops duties. But when Lothor unleashes five monsters at once, the team is split up, forcing the Green Samurai Ranger to return to the battlefield already. When stung by the Sucker monster, and slowly turning into a bug, will Cam's second outing as a Ranger be his last?

Wr Mark Hoffmeier

Dir Paul Grinder

1 - 18 THE SCENT OF A RANGER

Stressed out from overwork, Cam is told to take in some recreational activities. He appears to go overboard, as he has a sudden personality change, to an overly easy-going, slang-talking, thrill-seeker! What's wrong with Cam? And can he straighten back up in time to help against the Fragra monster, who turns Dustin & Tori into bottles of perfume?

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 19 I LOVE LOTHOR

Marah & Kapri desire to assist their uncle Lothor in taking over the Earth by changing his image, and consult the television producer monster, Mister Ratwell! The idea is to broadcast a sappy sitcom starring Lothor, with a hypnotizing spell alongside, to force all of humanity to adore the Evil Space Ninja. Ratwell's love spell is also used on Cam & Blake, causing both of them to compete to the death for the affections of Tori!

Wr Steve Slavkin

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 20 GOOD WILL HUNTER

Marah & Kapri, addicted to selling items on the internet, accidentally sell the Personal Alien Manager to a boy named Charlie, who just so happens to be the child Hunter is attempting to mentor in a Big Brother type program. The kid, unaware of just how powerful a device he has, unleashes an increasing number of Kelzaks upon the city! Meanwhile, the other Rangers all get Cam to film them in a video showing off their extreme sports moves.

Wr Steve Slavkin

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 21 ALL ABOUT BEEVIL

Dustin's overly trusting nature causes him to lose his motorcycle to a shady man who promises to upgrade it, only to turn out his business card's address is a fake. Marah, displaced in her role among the Evil Space Ninjas by her robotic pal Beevil, sees a kindred spirit in the equally dim-witted Dustin, and approaches him about switching over to the side of good. Is this another trick at the Yellow Ranger's expense?

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Wayne Rose

1 - 22 SENSEI SWITCHEROO

An attempt to get Sensei Guinea Pig back to normal causes the mentor to switch bodies with Shane! The Red Ranger has a skating competition coming up, but can Sensei do it for him successfully? When the gravity-alerting monster Footzilla attacks, can the body switch be to the advantage of our heroes? And can the two be switched back, or is the game of musical bodies not yet through?

Wr Mark Hoffmeier

Dir Wayne Rose

1 - 23 TONGUE AND CHEEK

Stopping a band of crooks from vandalizing Storm Chargers while in his Yellow Ranger form, Dustin gains popularity. This goes to his head to the point his ego rubs his teammates the wrong way. Are the Wind Rangers through? Meanwhile, the living mailbox with a big tongue, Slob Goblin, aids Marah & Kapri in their efforts to make Blake & Hunter's trip to see their grandmother anything but comfortable!

Wr Art Brown

Dir Wayne Rose

1 - 24 BROTHERS IN ARMS

A brainy bike mechanic named Perry accidentally becomes the evil Motodrone. He captures Hunter, and attempts to implant his mind into a new vehicle, the Ninja Glider Cycle.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 25 SHANE'S KARMA PART 1

Repeated dreams, reminding him of an incident during his young, lead Shane into the woods, where he encounters an alien female being pursued by a deadly bounty hunter called Vexacus. What secret does this woman named Skyla have to the Red Ranger's destiny? Meanwhile, Tori has a birthday party, which is soon crashed by the Kelzaks, and Zurgane's latest Zord, now with Lightning Mode!

Wr Mark Hoffmeier, John Tellegen

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 26 SHANE'S KARMA PART 2

Shane learns of Skyla's intentions with reuniting with him after all these years, and protests this destiny, despite how it will give him added power, capable of defeating the now Lothor-aligned Vexacus. Elsewhere, Marah & Kapri hold a class reunion party on their uncle's ship. Meanwhile, the other Rangers must deal with Lothor's Lightning-Moded second Zord, that keeps stealing their Power Spheres!

Wr John Tellegen, Mark Hoffmeier

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 27 SHIMAZU RETURNS, PART 1

As the Rangers prepared to compete on the "search for a star" program, Cam ventures to a museum in search of an important artifact, and is not only attacked by Marah & Kapri, but the revived Motodrone! If that wasn't bad enough, an ancient statue is brought to life during the battle, reviving the long-dormant alien warlord Shimazu. He brings with him a trio of vicious beasts called Wolfblades. Can our heroes tame these three bad dogs?

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 28 SHIMAZU REUTNRS, PART 2

Facing the combined trio of Wolfblades into one giant monster, the Rangers' Zords are helpless against it. Can Cam retrieve the component necessary to winning this battle? And what does it have to do with his hidden talent for the "Search for a Star" program? Speaking of which, will the pop-singing Marah & Kapri be the surprise underdogs at the contest?

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Andrew Merrifield

2 - 1 THE WILD WIPEOUT

After suffering a wipeout on her surfboard, Tori is sent by the evil Butterfly-like monster called Goldwinger to a pocket dimension where everything seems to be opposite of her own reality. Her Ranger teammates are evil, the aliens are good, Kapri & Marah are hippies, Zurgane & Choobo are punk-Kelly's stockboys, and Lothor is the do-good Mayor of Blue Bay Harbor! Whose side should she be rooting for now? Can she get back to her own dimension safely, if at all?

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Andrew Merrifield

2 - 2 EYE OF THE STORM

Shane's highly-successful and highly-critical older brother Porter comes to town, and reminds him of how he's wasting his life by spending it skateboarding. When facing the Eyezak monster, who causes each of the Rangers to face their worse fears, Shane's secret identity as the Red Ranger is exposed to his brother. Will this change his opinion of him?

Wr Ann Knapp Austen

Dir Charlie Haskell

2 - 3 GENERAL DECEPTION, PART 1

As Shane, Dustin, Blake, and Hunter prepare to go on a camping trip (taking along highly unessential items), the team is embroiled in a power struggle between the various Generals of Lothor's army. They face Zurgane's latest Zord, which just so happens to be copying their technology in the process!

Wr Ann Knapp Austen

Dir Wayne Rose

2 - 4 GENERAL DECEPTION, PART 2

Zurgane's Zord is obliterated by the Rangers, but the General manages to get the data from the Rangers' attacks, and uses it when creating a new Zord, the HyperZurgane Zord! It cripples the Hurricane Megazord, so can the Rangers stall Zurgane long enough for the Zords to be repaired? Even if Zurgane survives the battle, one of his fellow Generals has his own plans about his fate...

Wr Ann Knapp Austen, Douglas Sloan

Dir Wayne Rose

2 - 5 A GEM OF A DAY

Hunter's secret, that he's kept a few of the Gem of Souls fragments, comes out when Vexacus ambushes him for them. Though his teammates are upset over his hiding this from them, the artifact instead aids Cam in his plans to sneak aboard Lothor's spaceship to free the trapped ninjas! Speaking of which, Lothor has Motodrone spy on the suspicious Vexacus, leading to a showdown between the two Generals. All of this, plus the Condortron monster!

Wr Ann Knapp Austen

Dir Charlie Haskell

2 - 6 DOWN AND DIRTY

Marah & Kapri, having revealed to Shimazu that they've been faking being idiots all along, use his aid in piloting a trio of Evil Zords, all part of their grand scheme to overthrow Lothor by destroying the Rangers themselves! Meanwhile, Blake & Hunter's motocrossing rivalry signals a change in field of expertise for Dustin.

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Charlie Haskell

2 - 7 SNIP IT, SNIP IT GOOD

Having proven herself worthy after a training test, Tori goes on a quest to retrieve the Turtle Mace Power Sphere solo (and soon she faces both Marah & Kapri!). Shane & Dustin hide out, guarding a local Environmental Conference, which becomes Lothor's latest target when he sends down the Snipster monster to ensure nobody agrees on anything.

Wr Mark Hoffmeier

Dir Andrew Merrifield

2 - 8 DOUBLE EDGED BLAKE

Blake is spending his afternoons alone, and is keeping what he's up to a secret. Tori decides to follow him, and discovers he's hanging out with another girl! What connection does this woman have to the Thunder Academy, and what use will Navy Ranger's new Thunder Blade against the balloontick Inflatron monster?

Wr M.L. Kessler

Dir Wayne Rose

2 - 9 STORM BEFORE THE CALM, PART 1

Lothor's true plan is revealed, as he elaborates upon his decision to let Vexacus wipe out his army in an effort to overflow and burst open the Abyss of Evil in a final attempt to destroy the Earth. It's all been foretold on the Scroll of Destiny, that he'll succeed in this. The Rangers gather at the Action Games to compete in special events, which just happens to be held on the exact area where the Abyss's entrance is at! Will our heroes destroy Vexacus, and thus, put the city one step closer to being overrun with the revived defeated monsters?

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Paul Grinder

2 - 10 STORM BEFORE THE CALM, PART 2

The Wind Rangers return to the destroyed Ninja Ops, and find a familiar face awaiting them! Hunter & Blake, having barely survived their Zords' destruction, make a stealth infiltration of Lothor's ship to save Cam, and get a pair of most unlikely allies. When Lothor attacks in his own Zord, will the Rangers destroy him, knowing that in doing so, the Abyss of Evil will be broken open?

Wr Ann Knapp Austen

Dir Paul Grinder

POWER RANGERS OPERATION OVERDRIVE

Five brave, skilled, and adventurous young people are chosen to search for several magical jewels that were long ago taken from the Corona Aurora ("Crown of the Gods"), so as to prevent them from coming into the possession of the demons Moltor and Flurious. These demons are brothers, banished long ago by the Corona's guardian for having attempted to steal it. When the millionaire explorer Andrew Hartford discovered Corona Aurora, the demons escaped their exiles and rallied their allies. In response, Andrew Hartford selected the talented youths and modified their DNA so as to grant them exceptional physical powers by which to combat the evil.

Although Moltor and Flurious initially attempted to work together, they soon became rivals. The Corona Aurora fell into their hands; yet without its jewels, it could not grant the owner universal power. Now both the Rangers have to beat multiple villainous groups to the jewels, and voyage across the world in search for the jewels.

Power Rangers: Operation Overdrive (abbreviated as PROO and Operation Overdrive, and formerly known as Power Rangers: Relic Hunters and Power Rangers: Drive Force) is an American children's television program, the fifteenth season of the Power Rangers franchise. It premiered on February 26, 2007. Operation Overdrive is broadcast on Toon Disney's Jetix programming block and ABC Kids in the United States, and on stand-alone Jetix networks in other countries. The program is a co-production between Disney and Toei. Toei produced the series which Operation Overdrive is adapted from, GoGo Sentai Boukenger, which is the thirtieth series in the long running Japanese Super Sentai franchise of tokusatsu programs.

Characters

Rangers

Main article: Operation Overdrive Power Rangers

Mackenzie "Mack" Hartford

The Red Ranger; his interests are sports, building models, and collecting anime. His physical power is supernormal strength. He is the son of Andrew Hartford, who acts as the team's Dispatcher.[7] He is portrayed by James MacLurcan.

Will Aton

The Black Ranger; a spy-for-hire with the physical powers of supernormal hearing and supernormal sight. He is portrayed by Samuel Benta.

Dax Lo

The Blue Ranger; he is an underappreciated stuntman and practical joker with the power to leap immense distances. He is portrayed by Gareth Yuen.

Veronica "Ronny" Robinson

The Yellow Ranger; she is a confident and competitive stock car racer. Her physical power is supernormal speed. She is portrayed by Caitlin Murphy.

Rose Ortiz

The Pink Ranger; she is a Mensa level genius archaeologist who enjoys poetry and myth. Her power is invisibility. She is portrayed by Rhoda Montemayor.

Tyzonne

The Mercury Ranger. Information concerning this character is unknown, as all that is known comes from Japanese magazine scans.

Allies

Main article: Allies in Power Rangers: Operation Overdrive

Andrew Hartford: Mack's father; an adventurer and billionaire who created the Operation Overdrive Power Rangers to find the gems of the Corona Aurora. He originally planned to be the Red Ranger, but decided that his son was better suited for the job despite his own fears of losing Mack. (Portrayed by Rod Lousich).

Spencer: The Hartfords' butler. (Portrayed by David Weatherley).

Sentinel Knight: He is the original guardian of the Corona Aurora. When he felt the crown was in danger, he hid the five stones and the crown on the planet Earth. His spirit returns to demand that Andrew and his team of Rangers to protect the crown. (Voiced by Nic Sampson).

Brownbeard: Once a notorious pirate, Brownbeard is long dead and now lives as a ghost on Saint Lucia, continuing to search for the Eye of the Sea. He temporarily possessed Rose's body to help her have fun for a change, turning her into an extroverted pirate. (Portrayed by John Leigh)

Villains

Main article: Villains in Power Rangers: Operation Overdrive

In Power Rangers: Operation Overdrive, there are three competing factions of villains that the Rangers must combat to prevent from acquiring the Corona Aurora's five gems.

Flurious: This master villain thrives in a sub-zero climate, on a glacier. He was originally human, until his attempt to capture the Corona Aurora. He was then transformed to a monstrous form affiliated with ice. (Portrayed by Gerald Urquhart)

Norg: An abominable snowman who lives in the cave Flurious claimed as his base. Quite good-natured and resilient. (Portrayed by Kelson Henderson)

Moltor: Moltor, brother of Flurious, must live under conditions of extreme heat, and thus dwells in a volcano. He was originally human, until his attempt to steal the Corona Aurora. He was changed into a demon affiliated with fire. (Voiced by Mark Ferguson)

Miratrix: An evil part-human who leads the third faction of villains. (Portrayed by Ria Vandervis)

Kamdor: An armored ninja, working with Miratrix, who lives inside her necklace. She refers to him as "master". (Voiced by Adam Gardiner)

Enemy Foot Soldiers:

Chillers

Lava Lizards

List of Power Rangers: Operation Overdrive monsters

Arsenal

Overdrive Tracker: The Overdrive Tracker is the Morpher for Operation Overdrive. It is equipped with a black light that can decode hidden messages, the Turbo Wheel which allows the Rangers to execute commands, and a keypad to be used for summoning their various Zords, as well as a zipline/grappling hook to reach faraway places. The morphing call is "Overdrive Accelerate!"

S.H.A.R.C.: Stands for Special Hydro Aero Recon Craft. The SHARC, which was built by Andrew Hartford, is a type of sleek-looking jet-like vehicle. It is capable of great speed in the air as well as on the water, and is the Rangers' primary mode of transportation. The SHARC is driven primarily by Ronny, the Yellow Ranger.

Drive Defender: The personal sidearm for the rangers, the Drive Defender features both a gun mode and a sword mode.

Each Ranger will possess his/her own weapon:

The Red Ranger wields the Drive Lance, a spear with a giant blade.

The Black Ranger wields the Drive Slammer, a giant hammer.

The Blue Ranger wields the Drive Vortex, a handheld fan that can create strong winds.

The Yellow Ranger wields the Drive Claws, two handheld bulldozer buckets that can be used to slash.

The Pink Ranger wields the Drive Geyser, a powerful water-based gun.

Civilian Vehicles: The rangers use these vehicles in pre-battle before they are morphed. Dax (Blue Ranger), Ronny (Yellow Ranger), and Will (Black Ranger) pilot their own personal ATV's or motorcycles, while Rose (Pink Ranger), Mack (Red Ranger), and any other allies traveling with them (such as Spencer or Andrew) travel in a Humvee.

HoverTek Cycle: The HoverTek cycle is used by Will for air and land battle.

Artifacts

Corona Aurora: The Corona Aurora is a crown, resembling that worn in medieval Europe but claimed to be of divine origin. To prevent its capture by those of negative interest, a Sentinel Knight scattered the crown's jewels across Earth. Now Moltor has the crown, to which he desires to add the jewels. If all five jewels are put on the crown and evil wears it, all hope is lost.

Neptune's Cocoon: This was found sealed within an altar in an Atlantian Temple deep in the ocean. The rangers opened the cocoon, believing it to contain one of the gems belonging to the Corona Aurora, finding instead one of the "Neptune Scrolls".

Scrolls of Neptune: The first of these three scrolls was inside the cocoon of Neptune. Rose solved the puzzle when they opened the scroll by making a picture of the sword of Neptune. The sword was actually made up of three scrolls. When the rangers got all three scrolls, they formed the sword of Neptune.

Sword of Neptune: When the three Neptune Scrolls, including the one mentioned above, were laid end to end, they formed a blade called the Sword of Neptune. It is currently missing its jewel. Upon its formation, it flew out of Rose's hands and pierced the island of Saint Lucia on a map, pointing the Rangers to the location of the pearl that fit its hilt.

FILMS:

Will SAMUELL BENTA, Rose Ortiz, Pink Overdrive Ranger RHONDA MONTEMAYOR, Ronny CAITLIN MURPHY, Dax Lo - Blue Overdrive Ranger GARETH YUEN, Andrew Hartford ROD LOUSICH, Mack JAMES MACLURAN, Spencer DAVID WEATHERLEY.

RELATED SHOWS:*POWER RANGERS MYSTRIC FORCE*1 - 1 KICK INTO OVERDRIVE (PART 1 OF 2)

Billionaire treasure hunter Andrew Hartford finds the ancient Corona Aurora, known as the powerful Crown of the Gods. But in the process, he unknowingly awakens two warring alien brothers, Moltor and Flurious. Enlisting stuntman Dax, championship racecar driver Ronny, master safecracker Will, and brilliant college student Rose to join him in keeping the world safe from the aliens as a new team of Power Rangers, Hartford refuses to allow his teenaged son, Mack, to risk his life by being part of the team. When given the chance to become the Red Ranger, can Mack prove himself to his father, and help protect the Crown from falling into the wrong hands?

Wr Bruce KalishDir Mark Beesley1 - 2 KICK INTO OVERDRIVE (PART 2 OF 2)

Hartford is kidnapped by Moltor, who also steals the Corona Aurora. Mack must prove himself as the Red Ranger and aid the team in saving his father, before they must use their DriveMax Zords to save an island from destruction by a giant sea creature.

Wr Jackie MarchandDir Mark Beesley1 - 3 THE UNDERWATER WORLD

Will's self-reliance causes friction within the team. The Rangers seek one of the Corona Aurora gems in the underwater ruins of Atlantis.

Wr John TellegenDir Mark Beesley1 - 4 HEART OF BLUE

Dax rescues a girl named Mira from a monster attack, and quickly they become a couple. Can their romance survive the strain it's putting on the Blue Ranger's place on the team, or will a mysterious third villain mastermind put an end to their relationship? Meanwhile, the Rangers must make use of Will's theiving skills to track down two more scrolls.

Wr David GarberDir Britta Johnstone1 - 5 WHEATHER OR NOT

After putting a bystander in jeopardy, Mack doesn't feel he's cut out to be a Ranger. But the team'll need him to pilot the Drill Driver, when Moltor's weather device creates an avalanche of snow on top of their Zords! Also, the team prepares to seek the jewel in St. Lucia, but Dax believes the island to be haunted.

Wr John TellegenDir Britta Johnstone1 - 6 PIRATE IN PINK

Searching the island of St. Lucia for the first jewel of the Aurora Corona, the Rangers stumble upon the ghost of Brownbeard, the pirate. They believe the Eye of the Sea he has sought all his life is the same gem they seek. Brownbeard possesses the uptight Rose, helping her to loosen up and have fun as Rosie The Bold. Can the team find the jewel before Miratrix and her cannon monster do?

Wr Jackie MarchandDir Britta Johnstone1 - 7 AT ALL COSTS

Ronny's competitive nature and drive to always win begins to grate upon her teammates. Will things get worse when she butts heads with Mack over first usage of the latest weapon? Meanwhile, Moltor has his Lava Lizards compete against each other to prove superiority. The winner then becomes his newest monster, Valcon. But to truly become a super dragon, he'll need the powerful scale of an actual dragon. Can the Rangers stop them from obtaining it?

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir Bruce Kalish

1 - 8 BOTH SIDES NOW

Will is fired by Hartford for selling Zord tech on the side! Taking his Tracker with him, the Black Ranger joins up with Miratrix, who's already beat the Overdrive Rangers to the next piece on their jewel-chase. After helping to free her master, Kamdor, from his locket prison, is Will's betrayal all it appears to be?

Wr David Garber

Dir Jonathan Brough

1 - 9 FOLLOW THE RANGER

Flurious & Moltor put aside their sibling rivalry and combine forces against the Rangers. With Moltor's Giant Robot and Dragonizer, they manage to capture the DriveMax Megazord! Mack ends up remaining within, and is taken prisoner on a hidden island. Will he be able to turn the polar opposite brothers against one another and get free, or will Andrew Hartford have even more of a reason to worry about his son?

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Jonathan Brough

1 - 10 LIGHTS, CAMERA, DAX

Dax eyes a film called "Ninja Rumba" as his big break as an actor. But Mr. Hartford refuses to allow him to take the role, since it may conflict with his Rangerly duties. Thanks to encouraging by Rose, Dax goes for it and gets the part. Can he film the movie and still help his teammates, or will he have to make a choice? Meanwhile, Moltor has his Scaletex monster and Lava Lizards track down Kamdor & Miratrix. Will the Rangers be able to use the conflicting villains to their advantage and gain the parchment from the Hou-ou bird for themselves?

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Mike Smith

1 - 11 FACE TO FACE (PART 1 OF 2)

The Rangers visit Rose's college in London to try to get the parchment deciphered, only to lose it to Tyzonn, Moltor's latest alien lizard henchman. But Mack, who manages to tear an important piece of the parchment off, notices his new enemy might not be as bad as he appears. Can the Red Ranger convince Tyzonn to give back what he stole, at the risk of the wrath of Moltor and his latest monster, Bullox? Or will he honor the deal that shamed him in the eyes of the people of his planet and give him the key to the second jewel in the Corona Aurora?

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Mike Smith

1 - 12 FACE TO FACE (PART 2 OF 2)

Mack joins forces with Tyzonn, learning that the reptilian creature is actually a human from the planet Mercury, cursed by Moltor. If the Red Ranger can then convince his Overdrive teammates to trust in him as well, they may have the means to recover the second jewel to the Corona Aurora from its lava crater hiding place. That is, if they can get past Moltor's Bullox monster first! And, will the new Sonic Streaker be enough to take on the flying menace of Moltor's Lavadactyls?

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Mike Smith

1 - 13 MAN OF MERCURY (PART 1 OF 2)

The search for the next jewel leads the Rangers to Portugal, then to Brazil, with a new group of villains, the Fearcats, always one step ahead of them! These intergalactic feline fiends are trying to free their fearsome friends from a mirror prison, and need the Corona Aurora's power to do it. As it turns out, hunting the Fearcats happens to be the mission Tyzonn came to Earth for. He reunites with the Rangers in an effort to stop them. But Ronny ends up captured and her Overdrive Tracker used to breach the prison! It's up to Tyzonn to save her, but what secret shame is holding him back?

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 14 MAN OF MERCURY (PART 2 OF 2)

It's up to Mr Hartford to restore the liquidized Tyzonn to his human form. But even then, will the man from Mercury join the team, or will his past with an ill-fated Intergalactic Emergency Response crew keep him from it? Meanwhile, though the Fearcats are seemingly destroyed, a Gyro boost from Flurious brings Benglo & Mig back, armored up and tougher than ever! And just what is behind the strange jewel readings in the Brazilian jungle?

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 15 BEHIND THE SCENES

Jessica Jeffries, an old college pal of Mr Hartford's turned big time news reporter, snags an exclusive interview with the Rangers for her show, "Good Morning, San Angeles." But thanks to some subterfuge by Miratrix, the big event leads to Tyzonn getting trapped between his human and mercury forms! Can he be saved in time to use his new Zords to aid the Rangers against the Giant Robot-piloting Fearcats, with the jewel-related Cannon of Ki Amuk at their disposal?

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 16 JUST LIKE ME

Will attempts to teach Tyzonn how to blend in on Earth, but when the Mercurian starts to copy Will a little too closely, the pair clash. Meanwhile, fed up with Flurious yelling at him, Norg runs away from home, taking refuge in Moltor's lair. And on top of all of this, the Rangers must stop Moltor from obtaining the key to the next jewel: Mjolnir, the enchanted hammer of Norse God of Thunder, Thor.

Wr David Garber

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 17 IT'S HAMMER TIME

With the Cannon of Ki Amuk and Mjolnir in their possession, the Rangers track the next clue to Mexico. There, the team has to contend with Kamdor & Miratrix, Flurious with his Chillers, and even Moltor and his Lava Lizards! Luckily, the owner of the hammer, Norse God Thor, arrives to help out. But with his petty behavior and greedy desire for the Corona Aurora, is this God of Thunder the real deal? It's up to Ronny to use her resemblance to the Goddess Freya to get the hammer back from him! Oh, and not to be left out of all the action, the Fearcats unleash their very own Giant Robot!

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Vanessa Alexander

1 - 18 OUT OF LUCK

Having swiped the Paedra Aztec Del Compass, the next clue to a jewel of the Corona Aurora, from the Rangers, Moltor puts it in the possession of his old friend, Blothgaar. During battle with the Rangers, Blothgaar uses the Compass' ability to alter chi & li to give Mack a serious case of bad luck! Despite disbelieving in it, the Red Ranger finds trouble at every single turn. Will use of his friends' lucky gifts (Dax's Grandfather's lucky shark-swimming shirt, Ronny's lucky stinky socks, Will's lucky scarf, Rose's Dad's lucky Sombrero, and Tyzonn's lucky potted plant) be able to change his luck, or just make him worse off?

Wr David Garber

Dir Vanessa Alexander

1 - 19 ONE GETS AWAY

Using the compass, the Rangers finally find the 3rd Jewel of the Corona Aurora. Will is entrusted to get it back to the base, but is ambushed by Kamdor & Miratrix, and loses it to the villainous pair. With Andrew angered at him, he resigns, only to have Spencer offer him another chance. Meanwhile, Moltor offers the Fearcats some invincible Super Armor. With their latest Giant Robot already giving the Rangers a tough time, can Will get to the Armor before the Fearcats, and make up for his prior failure?

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir Vanessa Alexander

1 - 20 ONCE A RANGER (PART 1 OF 2)

The son of Lord Zedd and Rita Repulsa, Thrax, unites all four Corona Aurora-seeking factions of villains into a new Evil Alliance. When they manage to overwhelm the Overdrive Rangers, their connection to the Morphing Grid is severed, and their powers destroyed! With the gems still needing protecting, Sentinel Knight assembles a team of replacement Rangers, made up of members of previous (or future) teams of Power Rangers. Will they be enough to stop the Evil Alliance? And will the former Overdrive Rangers be able to assist with just their genetically enhanced abilities?

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Britta Johnstone

1 - 21 ONCE A RANGER (PART 2 OF 2)

No longer having Ranger powers, the former Overdrive Rangers return to their civilian lives. All but Mack, who learns of Thrax's plans to destroy Sentinel Knight, and seeks out the only item capable of doing so, the legendary sword Excelsior. Will he be doing this alone, or can the call of action prove the adage of "Once a Ranger, always a Ranger" to his former teammates? Meanwhile, their replacements, the team of Returning Rangers, head to Angel Grove to seek out the only being capable of repairing the Morphing Grid: Alpha 6! Even if they succeed, can two combined teams of Power Rangers stop Thrax for good, and permanently break up the Evil Alliance?

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Britta Johnstone

1 - 22 ONE FINE DAY

The Rangers get a day off, and plan a relaxing picnic in the forest. Unfortunately for Rose, Tyzonn is obsessed with getting to know her better, which goes from flattery to annoyance very quickly. The Fearcats just happen to be in the same forest, and while searching for the powerful Centurion Torch to use in their latest Giant Robot, they put up a Lamporean force field. Our heroes bump into it, and despite Tyzonn claiming that forming a human chain with his Mercurian powers will allow them passage, they end up separated... with Rose stuck inside the force field with Tyzonn! Meanwhile, Norg spends his own day off in the same forest.

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir Britta Johnstone

1 - 23 RONNY ON EMPTY (PART 1 OF 2)

Ronny throws a Halloween party and everyone helps out, all that is, except for Will. When Moltor and the Fearcats work together at powering a new robot, they capture Ronny and Will. Now the two of them must escape, while a clue from the centurion torch leads the others go to Egypt in order to find the next jewel.

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Mike Smith

1 - 24 RONNY ON EMPTY (PART 2 OF 2)

Will saves Ronny from having her energy drained.

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Mike Smith

1 - 25 THINGS NOT SAID

While battling one of Kamdor's monsters, the Rangers get their system infected with a computer virus. This soon leads to a revelation about Mack's true nature. Depressed after learning everything he thought was a lie, it'll take Spencer to snap the Red Ranger out of it to help the others get the fourth jewel before Kamdor and Miratrix. At the same time, Mack gains new powers.

Wr David Garber

Dir Mike Smith

1 - 26 RED RANGER UNPLUGGED

After learning about his true robotic nature, Mack starts to go through an identity crisis. When the Rangers battle Crazar, a Fearcat from Tyzonn's past, the Mercurian reveals more about the day of the cave-in. Meanwhile, Mig and Benglo use the battle as a distraction to get their claws on a powerful relic.

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Jonathan Brough

1 - 27 HOME AND AWAY (PART 1 OF 2)

Mig and Benglo access the power of the Octavian Chalice; Tyzonn is knocked unconscious and awakes on his home planet.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Jonathan Brough

1 - 28 HOME AND AWAY (PART 1 OF 2)

While the other Rangers fight the Fearcats and Agrios, Tyzonn is with his girlfriend Vella, who tells him that he was never a Power Ranger. It all leads up to a final showdown with the Fearcats and a startling revelation about the day Tyzonn lost his team.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Jonathan Brough

1 - 29 WAY BACK WHEN

The Rangers plug Mack into a computer to determine the status of each relic and jewel, and to figure out who has them.

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Jonathan Brough

1 - 30 TWO FALLEN FOES

Will seeks revenge after Kamdor embarrasses him; Norg stumbles upon a powerful jewel that was hidden from the Rangers.

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Mark Beesley

1 - 31 NOTHING TO LOSE

The Rangers travel to Japan to battle for a key to unlock the last hidden jewel; Flurious tricks Moltor into entering his ice den so he can destroy him.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Mark Beesley

1 - 32 CROWN AND PUNISHMENT

With the power of the ultimate power of the Corona Aurora at his disposal, Flurious freezes all of San Angeles. The Rangers make their final stand against Flurious to save the world from his evil power, but in their darkest hour, will a sacrifice from Mack be enough to stop Flurious?

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir Mark Beesley

POWER RANGERS S.P.D

Fifteen years into the future, Earth has welcomed alien beings to live with humans. But peace is short lived, as a planet conquering alien force turns its destructive attention to Earth! Evil and smart, they seem unstoppable. Only the Power Rangers - elite warriors trained at a newly established Ranger Academy and led by chief Anubis - can stop them. When the Red Power Ranger joins the team, tensions threaten to tear them apart. With the alien threat growing stronger every moment, the Rangers must forget their differences and go into action as one! Using teamwork, intergalactic weaponry and light-speed Zord vehicles to battle evil, they unite to become the ultimate force for good. Power Rangers SPD!

As far as PR seasons go, the best would have to be Time Force or DinoThunder. SPD is something we aren't used to, but at times it's pretty cool. There are countless alien cameos which hardcore fans will recognize as monsters from previous seasons. There are episodes that shine like Recognition and Idol, and comedic characters like Bridge and Boom. I also realize that a lot of changes were made from the Dekaranger footage to make this. (Bullets are replaced with lasers.) It's not the best, but it's not the worst either *cough*Turbo*cough*. This, like Ninja Storm, is a stretch for Power Rangers. It's pretty good and I'm sure it'll get better as the series goes on.

S.P.D. stands for Space Patrol Delta.

Power Rangers SPD is based from Japanese series called Tokusou Sentai Dekaranger.

Takes place 20 years after Dino Thunder.

The helmets used for the A-Squad Rangers (the ones admired by the starring Power Rangers around Jack and co.) are the helmets used in Power Rangers in Space. Only the black PRiS-helmet was repainted to green.

Bullets and missiles are no longer allowed to be shown in Power Rangers under new guidelines from Disney/ABC. In the original Japanese footage the Red Rangers guns and the Blue Rangers Zord both fire bullets at the villains. However in the US version these are edited to look like lasers instead. If you look closely you can sometimes see smoke coming out of the Red Rangers Delta Blasters, even though he's only supposed to be firing lasers.

Some of the customers at Piggy's restaurants are re-used monsters from past Power Rangers shows, some of which have either part of them or both (they are seen in "Shadow" Pt. 1 and 2, "Wired" Pt. 2, and "Boom"). Among the identified patrons of "Piggy's" are "Power Rangers Time Force" mutants Conwing and Chameliacon, "Power Rangers in Space's" Crocotox Blue, a guardian statue from "Mighty Morphin Power Rangers: The Movie," a Tenga (from "Mighty Morphin Power Rangers" season 3), Izout and an alien with the head of Dash from "Power Rangers Time Force," an alien with the head and arms of "Power Rangers Lost Galaxy's" Rocketron, "Power Rangers Lightspeed Rescue's" Cyclopter, a hybrid of GoGoV #45's monster (unused in the American versions of Power Rangers) with "Power Rangers Lost Galaxy's" Chameliac, an alien with the head of "Power Rangers Time Force's" Ironspike, and an alien with the head of "Mighty Morphin Power Rangers: The Movie's" Gatekeeper and the body of "Power Rangers Time Force's" Dragontron.

The Omega Rangers SPD badge number is 11C-41B

Produced by - Greg Aronowitz executive producer , Sally Campbell producer , Bruce Kalish executive producer , Koichi Sakamoto executive producer

Original Music by Bruce Lynch

Production Management - Charles Knight post-production producer

Sound Department - Dave Hurley sound recordist

Stunts - Daniel Arrias stunts , Shane Dawson stunt rigger

WR. Greg Aronowitz, Bruce Kalish , Jackie Marchand, David Garber

DIR. Greg Aronowitz, Mark Beesley, Paul Grinder, Charlie Haskell, Britta Johnstone, John Laing, Andrew Merrifield

EPISODES: 38 YEAR MADE: 2005 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

BVS ENTERTAINMENT INC, BVS INTERNATIONAL N.V, RANGER PRODUCTIONS LTD, RENAISSANCE-ATLANTIS FILMS, TOEI CO.LTD

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1)

DATE OF PREMIER: 05/02/2005 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 14/11/2005

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Jack Landors/Red SPD Ranger BRANDON JAY MCLAREN, Schuyler 'Sky' Tate/Blue SPD Ranger CHRIS VIOLETTE, Bridge Carson/Green SPD Ranger MATT AUSTIN, Elizabeth 'Z' Delgado/Yellow SPD Ranger MONICA MAY, Sydney 'Syd' Drew/Pink SPD Ranger ALYCIA PURROTT, Emperor Gruumm RENE NAUFAHU, Commander Anubis 'Doggie' Cruger/Shadow Ranger (voice) JOHN TUI, Dr. Katherine 'Kat' Manx MICHELLE LANGSTONE, Boom KELSON HENDERSON, Mora (2005) OLIVIA JAMES-BAIRD, Piggy BARNIE DUNCAN, Broodwing (voice) JIM MCLARTY

RELATED SHOWS:

MIGHTY MORPHIN' POWER RANGERS,THE (inc. THE MIGHTY MORPHIN' ALIEN RANGERS)
POWER RANGERS DINOTHUNDER

1 - 1 BEGINNINGS (PART 1 OF 2)

In the not-too-distant future, Earth is home to various alien races. Thus, to keep the peace, an interstellar law enforcement agency known as Space Patrol Delta, or SPD, has established an academy on the planet. Three young members of its B-Squad cadets, Sky, Syd, and Bridge, each with genetic abilities and a desire to become a Power Ranger like those on the A-Squad, are assigned the task of arresting a pair of "Robin Hood"-like teens, Jack and Z, who turn out to also have genetic powers! As Troobian Emperor Gruumm, SPD Commander Anubis "Doggie" Cruger's old enemy, plots to bring his armies to Earth, the struggle between the B-Squad and the pair of thieves ends up interrupted by the intervention of Troobian cyborg soldiers, called Krybots!

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir Greg Aronowitz

1 - 2 BEGINNINGS (PART 2 OF 2)

Though given the chance to escape imprisonment, Jack and Z instead return to the ambush of Krybots, and aid the newly morphed B-Squad in their first fight as SPD Power Rangers. The pair of thieves are soon arrested despite this, but given a second chance, allowed by Commander Doggie Cruger to join the B-Squad. Z eagerly agrees, though Jack refuses and remains jailed. When Z realizes what she and Jack had had that the Troobians wanted, can the B-Squad recover the device in time, against an assault by a Bluehead and Krybots? Or will they need a Red Ranger to make their team complete?

Wr Greg Aronowitz

Dir Greg Aronowitz

1 - 3 CONFRONTED

Emperor Gruumm's Troobian forces attack the Helix Nebula, prompting Doggie to send the A-Squad in response. With the resident Ranger team off Earth, the B-Squad cadets are given greater responsibility. Jack, already uncomfortable with being part of the team, soon discovers the perks of being Red Ranger, and abuses his status to an arrogant degree, putting him on the outs with the other Rangers. Can his ego be deflated and the team restored before they have to take part in their first Megazord fight?

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Greg Aronowitz

1 - 4 WALLS

Sky, falling back into the role of loner more now that he's been overlooked at being chosen as the Red

Ranger, refuses to join in any of the teams' activities, and repeatedly argues with Jack during battle. His temper is only made worse when Jack and Bridge are given new super charged bikes, while he's not! Meanwhile, Gruumm and his minions scheme to steal a truckload of diamonds in hopes of converting them into a new source of energy. Will Sky's confliction with Jack end giving the Troobians what they want?

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 5 DOGGED

Syd becomes annoyed by the antics of the S.P.D's malfunctioning and obsolete robotic dog, R.I.C. But while investigating a series of missing person reports (all humans converted into gooey energy-fuel by Gruumm's newest alien lackey Rhinix), RIC saves the Pink Ranger from a Krybot attack. She talks computer experts Bridge and Boom into attempting an upgrade to the robot, but when it appears he's still working improperly, will Syd's persistence in believing in the robo-pooch pan out?

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 6 ABRIDGED

The team is on the lookout for an intergalactic bank robber. They see a suspicious-looking alien, T-Top, near the vicinity of the crime. Assuming that they have their man, they try to arrest him, but T-Top puts up a fight and evades them. Although the evidence points to T-Top as the bank robber, Bridge is not convinced of his guilt and asks to conduct his own investigation. The others are dubious of Bridge's methods as he tries to look beyond the obvious facts and uses his intuition.

Wr Mark Hoffmeier

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 7 SAM (PART 1 OF 2)

Sam, a shy young boy, exhibits special teleportation powers, the use of which causes him ridicule among other children. Seeing that Sam has no friends, Mora lures him into helping her in her latest folly: using her Bugglesworth monster to turn humans into dolls, perfect for her collection. Sam aids the alien in teleporting an entire office building worth of doll-ized humans away, but in doing so, is spotted by the Rangers. Z sees a kindred spirit in the homeless child, and follows him, learning what she suspects about him is true, he's not evil, just looking for a place to fit in. He's wary when she tries to befriend him, and a jealous Mora intervenes by unleashing Broodwing's most powerful Troobian soldier, an Orangehead Krybot!

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 8 SAM (PART 2 OF 2)

Time's running out for the humans turned into dolls, in a short while they'll be toys permanently! Z relates to her teammates the trauma of her childhood, in how it relates to her sympathy for Sam. Doggie adds his own trip down memory lane, and reveals the shared heritage between the B-Squad Rangers and the boy called Sam. Can Z convince Sam to embrace his uniqueness and use his special powers for good, or will he aid Mora and Bugglesworth in further crimes?

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 9 IDOL

An SPD ship crashlands on Earth, carrying with it Dru, Sky's best friend, who has been missing for over a year. The two quickly reconnect their relationship, and Dru's perfect, top class cadet ways clash with Jack's ego. When an assassination attempt is made on Commander Cruger, Dru is blamed. Can Sky put aside his emotions to bring him in to face justice?

Wr David Garber

Dir Charlie Haskell

1 - 10 STAKEOUT

Jack & Syd go on a stakeout, watching over the former partner of a recently escaped alien criminal, Sinuku, who needs a device from her in order to activate his demagnitron weapons for Broodwing. But Jack's disregard for Syd's birthday, and his infatuation with the scientist they're supposed to be spying on, causes tensions to flare between the Red and Pink Rangers. To make things worse, Piggy joins their stakeout!

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Mark Beesley

1 - 11 SHADOW (PART 1 OF 2)

Commander Cruger's mood swings are exacerbated, when Troobian General Benaag, who led the forces which destroyed Doggie's homeworld of Sirius, comes to Earth with a vendetta against him. But Doggie's previously vowed to never again take up arms against an enemy! Will his entire team of SPD Rangers be placed in danger, or will he go back on his word? Also, Piggy wins the lottery, but will he trade in a life of garbage for a life of luxury?

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir Mark Beesley

1 - 12 SHADOW (PART 2 OF 2)

General Benaag holds Dr. Manx captive, using her as bait to call out his old enemy Doggie to battle. Commander Cruger comes clean to the B-Squad with the major detail he left out about the fall of Sirius, and how it relates to the current situation. With the Rangers busy dealing with an Evil Giant Robot planting Proton Spikes around in the city in an attempt to create an ultra violent earthquake, Doggie has to deal with not just Benaag, but a hundred Krybots, alone at the rendezvous site! Will he use Kat's gift to him to save her, even if it breaks his vow of peace?

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir Mark Beesley

1 - 13 ABANDONED

"The Evil", a stone of immense power said to have come from the depths of the abyss itself, is up for its centennial awakening. Gruumm wants its for himself, and sends an alien to seek it out from its warrior guardian. The Rangers will have their hands full, especially when their taking their newest teammate for granted to the point Shadow Ranger refuses to aid them in battle!

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Britta Johnstone

1 - 14 WIRED (PART 1 OF 2)

Mora recruits an alien named Valko to be Gruumm's second-in-command, whose first plan is to revive and control a dreaded cyborg beast known as Goradon. The key to taming it lies at the SPD Academy, with Bridge's new friend Sophie, who isn't what she appears to be.

Wr Jackie Marchand, John Tellegen

Dir Britta Johnstone

1 - 15 WIRED (PART 2 OF 2)

The Rangers realize their mistake in expelling Sophie from the academy, and seek her out, only to have Valko find her first. He uses the female cyborg's supercomputer processor to harness Goradon, who proves to be too tough for the Delta Squad Megazord. The only hope lies with the Delta Base Security Defense system's Phase Two, which will take a not-quite-human to get it online in time!

Wr Jackie Marchand, John Tellegen

Dir Britta Johnstone

1 - 16 BOOM

Boom's lies to his parents about having not dropped out of SPD training, and leading them to believe he's the one and only Orange Ranger, comes back to haunt him when they come for a visit! When Morgana's schemes to impress Gruumm enough for him to restore her to her youth, leads to Jack & Sky going on a forced multi-dimensional escapade, Boom's masquerade puts the Rangers in danger. It'll take owning up to his mistakes, not to mention being true to what he does best, to rescue them.

Wr Greg Aronowitz

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 17 RECOGNITION

While taking him in for questioning, Sky and the alien criminal named Wootox switch minds. As the Wootox-minded Sky makes like a trojan Ranger in infiltrating the Delta Command Megazord, the Sky-minded Wootox is hunted down by his former teammates.

Wr David Garber

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 18 SAMURAI

Gruumm brings the legendary alien Samurai warrior named Katana from the year 1865 to present day Japan. The confused protector of Kyoto is tricked into believing the Rangers are his enemy by Broodwing. As the Rangers are dispatched to investigate this potential menace, Jack learns valuable lesson about fair swordplay.

Wr Matt Hawkins

Dir Andrew Merrifield

1 - 19 DISMISSED

The grouchy, bird-based Supreme Commander of SPD, Fowler Birdy, arrives at the Earth academy. His own ideas for how to run it better clash with those of current Commander Doggie Cruger. When Birdy orders Doggie to split the Rangers up when investigating Troobian attacks, he refuses, and ends up being relieved of his command! With Birdy now running the place, and dividing the Rangers up, it leaves them vulnerable when Gruumm comes to Earth on a souped-up motorcycle, prepared to destroy anyone who gets in the way of his desired rematch with Doggie! Can Cruger be called out of forced retirement in time, and what new gift of Kat's will aid against the newly mobilized Emperor?

Wr Jesse Horsting

Dir Paul Grinder

1 - 20 PERSPECTIVE

Each one of the SPD Rangers has their own version of their latest battle, and each one tells it to Doggie, with expected exaggerations and differences.

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir Paul Grinder

1 - 21 MESSENGER (PART 1 OF 2)

Boom picks up a distress message from the future, claiming to be marking the 15th anniversary of the Troobain takeover of Earth, and today being the day it's supposed to happen! As Morgana takes up battle armor, and joins with a pair of the most dangerous alien criminals around in attacking the Rangers, it looks as though the warning is coming true.

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir Paul Grinder

1 - 22 MESSENGER (PART 2 OF 2)

Down to one Megazord, unable to receive assistance from SPD High Command, and facing unstoppable foes, the Rangers, and the planet Earth, appear to be at the brink of defeat. The sudden arrival of the Omega Ranger might very well change that, but where does he come from, and what does he have to do with that time traveling orb of living light?

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Paul Grinder

1 - 23 ZAPPED

Morgana recruits a washed-up alien magician named Mysticon, giving him a magic wand, the abilities of which make him, and his dinosauric pal Al, capable of committing numerous thefts. In exchange for this power, Mysticon puts on a magic show, in an effort to attempt to capture a leading microbiologist to aid Gruumm in his ultimate scheme, and ends up also putting would-be assistant Syd under a spell! Meanwhile, Doggie's favoritism of Omega Ranger over the others begins to get on the nerves of the B-Squad.

Wr Stan Berkowitz

Dir John Laing

1 - 24 REFLECTION (PART 1 OF 2)

The Rangers run up against several alien criminals they've faced before, and all of whom are still captured! Sky, upset about not being given the new Battlizer Kat and Boom have developed for Jack, is sent to interrogate an imprisoned alien named Mirloc. He learns the source of the copycat criminals is a creature called Slate, able to change into others at will. But the information comes at a high cost for Sky, who has to relieve the sad fate of his father.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir John Laing

1 - 25 REFLECTION (PART 2 OF 2)

Sky learns that Mirloc, who manipulated him into helping his escape prison, is responsible for the death of his father! The alien criminal uses his abilities to teleport through any reflective surface to taunt and capture each of the Rangers, one by one, until only Omega Ranger stands! Even if he can be freed from Mirloc's mirror cell, can Sky finally obtain justice for his father and put to rest his own desire to become Red Ranger like he was? Meanwhile, Piggy finally chooses a side.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir John Laing

1 - 26 S.W.A.T. (PART 1 OF 2)

Gruumm pressures Piggy into making good on his promise to be evil. When Z & Kat come to him for a part needed to aid in the creation of a new armor upgrade, he enlists the aid of his two evil alien pals, Stench and Thresher, to plant a virus in it, allowing them access to SPD's computers! The criminals use the armor tech to give themselves a power boost, which spells trouble for the B-Squad. But the Rangers have bigger problems, namely their in-team bickering has increased to an all time high. Before they can get the SWAT mode needed to defeat the pair, they'll have to earn it by going through boot camp on another planet!

Wr John Tellegen

Dir Britta Johnstone

1 - 27 S.W.A.T. (PART 2 OF 2)

Pushed to their physical and emotional limits by Sgt. Silverback's intense training course, the Rangers, demoted and relieved of their Morphers, are forced to overcome their differences and faults to fully view themselves as a team. If they can pull their team back together, they'll finally wield the power of SWAT. Meanwhile, Shadow and Omega Rangers find the armored foes of Stench & Thresher to be more than powerful adversaries. Also, Piggy finds his allegiances pulled in various directions.

Wr Greg Aronowitz

Dir Britta Johnstone

1 - 28 ROBOTPALOOZA

Bridge has a nocturnal premonition, where the Rangers' Megazord falls prey to three giant robots at once. Gruumm orders Morgana to draw up some new monsters, and though each of the three are defeated, the toll is taken on the B-Squad in the form of exhaustion. Unbeknownst to them, Broodwing is waiting for this opportunity, and has three of his criminal associates prepared to strike the tired and weary Rangers! Can Bridge follow his dreams and foil the evil plan before he relives his nightmare? And what special gift does Dr Manx have in store for them to aid in this venture?

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir John Laing

1 - 29 KASTASTROPHE

Given a promotion by Commander Birdy to chief technical advisor to the main SPD HQ, Dr. Kat Manx is torn between her role with the Rangers and that of a higher purpose. The B-Squad aid Boom in making it seem as though they can function without her, and she soon chooses to depart Earth. But with the inept Boom now in charge of the Rangers' technology, Broodwing recruiting the robot-making skills of her evil former classmate, Professor Mooney, and the promotion effectively ending her ability to do physical work herself, Kat will have to take on yet another role, as Power Ranger, to bring everything back to normal.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Britta Johnstone

1 - 30 MISSING

The karate-master alien criminal called Bork comes to Earth, aligned with the Gruumm-usurping Broodwing. He captures Bridge in a rapidly constraining cell, with a broken Morpher.

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir John Laing

1 - 31 HISTORY

Summoned from the year 2005 into the future via an evil plot, Conner, Kira, and Ethan, the original three DinoThunder Rangers, quickly encounter 2025's resident team, the SPD Rangers. But with between Broodwing's giant monster Dragoul, and rival Emperor Gruumm's own Troobian assault on Earth occurring at the same time, SPD will need a little help in the form of their historical guests.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Paul Grinder

1 - 32 IMPACT

Broodwing's associate known as Professor Cerebros alters the trajectory of a meteor, aiming it right for Newtech City. Between this, Jack & Sky's competitiveness over who gets to risk their life to save the world, and another Dragoul, the SPD Rangers are kept endangered and busy.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Paul Grinder

1 - 33 BADGE (PART 1 OF 2)

Icthior, Doggie's rival from his days at the SPD Academy, comes to Earth, working for Broodwing. He attacks the Rangers, taking an SPD badge from each one as a souvenir. Meanwhile, Morgana may get her ultimate wish if she can help Emperor Gruumm get the last component for his mysterious "Magnificence".

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir John Laing

1 - 34 INSOMNIA (PART 2 OF 2)

After a misunderstanding from hearing Doggie lamenting about the loss of A-Squad, the Rangers are upset to the point they're unable to get any sleep. They recall past adventures in an effort to boost their morale, and in the process make a startling observation. Meanwhile, Mora faces down the secret being inside Gruumm's Chamber of Magnificence.

Wr John Tellegen

Dir John Laing

1 - 35 WORMHOLE

Emperor Gruumm utilizes a wormhole to pass into the past by 20 years, to 2004, in an attempt to conquer Earth without SPD interference. The Rangers must follow after him, and team-up with the year's resident team, the DinoThunder Rangers, to put a stop to him and his reluctant ally Zeltrax.

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir Paul Grinder

1 - 36 RESURRECTION

Jack slacks off on duty when he begins a romance, which quickly gets him in hot water with Commander Cruger. Soon, the Rangers are sent to Gamma Orion, following a distress signal that'll lead them to the missing A-Squad Rangers, if they can survive the experience. Meanwhile, Broodwing continues his scheme to take over the Earth with the human-lifeforce-battery operated criminal Delex, and the Magnificently brainwashed Mora bids goodbye to Cindy Sunshine.

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir John Laing

1 - 37 ENDINGS (PART 1 OF 2)

The B-Squad SPD Rangers face the evil and far more experienced A-Squad SPD Rangers. To make things even worse, Broodwing, his three Generals, and an army of Krybots swarm the Delta Base, taking over! Meanwhile, now captive of Emperor Gruumm, Doggie Cruger encounters a familiar face from his past.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Greg Aronowitz

1 - 38 ENDINGS (PART 2 OF 2)

Captured by Emperor Gruumm, the Rangers get unexpected help from the person responsible for their imprisonment. Doggie faces Gruumm in a final showdown for the life of Isinia. Omni's Magnificence is finally created, and attacks Newtech City. Kat, Boom, Omega Ranger and the rest of the non-Ranger SPD cadets are all that stands in the way against a Krybot invasion of the Delta Base.

Wr Bruce Kalish

Dir Greg Aronowitz

POWER RANGERS TIME FORCE

When a crimelord from the year 3000 finds that times are too tough, he goes back in time to 2001. And the Power Rangers of year 3000 come back to battle him. Things only get crazier when the bad guy masters time travel, allowing him to pop up wherever he wants in the timestream.

It is the year 3001 and the Power Rangers have become the Time Force, a peace-keeping team. The Time Force appears at the scene where Ransik is trying to go back in time. Alex, the Red Time Force Ranger, attacks Ransik and catches him. Alex returns the time core to the Time Captain and turns Ransik over to the authorities. At the courtroom, Alex proposes to Jen and Ransik is sentenced to prison to be cryogenically frozen forever. Jen, Trip, Lucas, and Katie are assigned to take Ransik to the cryogenic station, but Ransik's daughter Nadira and Frax, his loyal monster, ambush the transport vehicle and Ransik escapes. The Time Force are fired for failing in their mission. Ransik goes to the prison and takes it over. Alex comes in and starts to attack Ransik. The rest of the Time Force appears and Ransik kills Alex, or does he...? The Time Force steal five morphers and a ship and go back in time to chase after Ransik, who also went back in time.

Time Force has chased Ransik back in time to the year 2001, where he is trying to take over the city of Silver Hills. Nadira and her Cyclobots are robbing the city, but the Time Force's morphers won't work. Jen chases after Nadira, who runs off, and she is being beaten badly by the Cyclobots. Someone shows up on a bike and saves Jen. When she sees who he is, he looks a lot like Alex, which totally shocks Jen. The rest of the Time Force shows up and they are amazed too. The Alex look-alike runs off. Circuit tells the Time Force that until the Red Chrono Morpher is activated, none of the other morphers will work. Only Alex, or someone with his DNA, can use it. The Time Force wonders if the person who looked like Alex could use it, since they believe he is an ancestor of Alex's. Jen finds the person, Wes, and he laughs when she asks him to help. When the Time Force goes to battle Ransik without their powers they are being beaten. Wes shows up to help and puts on the morpher. The Time Force now has a new red ranger named Wes, who just happens to be a relative of Alex - one of his ancestors. The Time Force morph into Power Rangers using their new Chrono Morphers and defend Silver Hills. After the battle Jen tells Wes they don't need his help anymore, even though the rest of the Time Force isn't so sure of that.

Criminals from the year 3000 has come to take over 2001. Four Officers from the Time Force Police has tracked down the Time Criminals to stop them in their tracks. But, first need to recruit a new red ranger. Wes, the individual they recruit looks much like their friend, Alex, the leader of the team in the future. With the help of Wes, the Time Force Ranger will now have to fight Ransik and his gang of futuristic criminals. Many of the fights in the show parallaxes with the movie, The Matrix (you know that slow motion camera turning thingy where they dodge bullets and all that junk, which is kind of creepy). Power Rangers Time Force is based on the Japanese Sentai (Task Force) Series, "Merai Sentai Timerangers," which ended its season run late last year. In Japan, they already have a new Ranger-like show called 100 Beast Gaoranger (don't know the Japanese title, which I will guess that Saban has plans on redoing in 2002).

*Take note after the corniness of the first four seasons of the Power Ranger series, Saban has finally decided to base some (but not much) of the American Power Ranger plotline on its Japanese Sentai counterparts (in which, Japan shows somewhat more corniness in their Sentai series more than their American counterparts).

Produced by Shuki Levy (executive producer), Judd Lynn (co-producer), Scott Page-Pagter (co-producer), Paul F. Rosenthal (co-producer), Haim Saban (executive producer), Koichi Sakamoto (co-producer), Jonathan Tzachor (producer), Original music by Glenn Scott Lacey (episodes 1-16), Shuki Levy, Kussa Mahchi, Lior Rosner, Jeremy Sweet. Cinematography by Ilan Rosenberg, Film Editing by Richard Bracken and Ronald LaVine. Casting by Iris Hampton, Production Design by Julie Bolder, Art Direction by Robert Howeth, Set Decoration by Scott Owen, Costume Design by Danielle Baker.

Makeup Department - Rosanna Montes (hair stylist), make-up artist - Sharon Simon. Production Management - Shaun Tarkington (unit production manager), Second Unit Director or Assistant Director -

Chris Auer (first assistant director: second unit), Mark Avery (second assistant director (episodes 1-18)), Bert Christman (second assistant director (episodes 19-24)), Rachel Dickson (second assistant director (episode 25-)), Stephen Harrison (first assistant director), Larry Litton (first assistant director), Lisa Stuckey (second assistant director: second unit),

Art Department - Banner Agundez ((uncredited)), Kristen Catena (monster wrangler), Andy Reins (lead man), Mark Richardson (property master), Ivory Stanton (monster wrangler), Sound Department - Barron Abramovitch (music engineer), Charlene Banta (sound effects editor), Chuck Buch (production sound mixer), Drew DeAscentis (supervising music editor), James Dijulio (second music engineer), Laura Drozco (adr coordinator), Tim Gosselin (second music engineer), Doug Latislaw (supervising sound editor), Al Lay (second music engineer), Ian Mayo (sound effects editor), Darryl Patterson (sound mixer: second unit), John Sperger (second music engineer), Edward F. Suski (sound re-recording mixer), David Walsh (adr director), Special Effects by John Bordeaux (special effects).

Visual Effects by Daryl Bartley (CGI lead animator: Saban (uncredited)), Michael Carter (modern videofilm artist), Jonathan Cummins (modern videofilm artist), Susanna Dileo (modern videofilm artist), Rick Kerrigan (visual effects supervisor), Jason C. Spratt (visual effects supervisor: Modern VideoFilm), Jeff West (lead artist: Modern VideoFilm), Stunts - Rey-Phillip Santos (stunts), Jason Ybarra (stunts).

Other crew - Aldo Antonelli (camera operator), Sean B. Backus (post-production supervisor), Dwayne Barr (dolly grip), Richard Bernagozzi (script supervisor (episodes 1-3)), Dennis Bishop (lighting director), Jody Blose (script supervisor: second unit), Brett Born (production accountant), Jennifer Cadenhead (assistant to producers (episodes 1-18)), Deven Chierighino (location manager), Susan Ciari (production accountant (episodes 19-)), Susan Foster (production accountant (episodes 1-18)), Marilyn Giardino (script supervisor), Audra Gorman (location manager), Ron Kenan (executive in charge of music), Nancy Kennedy (assistant to producers), Lissa Kereta (assistant to producers (episodes 19-)), David Leon (music supervisor), Brett Lood (best boy grip: second unit), Judd Lynn story editor (uncredited), Anne Britt Makebakken (adr writer), Jackie Marchand (assistant story editor), Lee Marshall (assistant to producers), Sean McLin (director of photography: second unit), Lisa McNeil (script supervisor), Revis Meeks (apprentice editor), Clive H. Mizumoto (executive in charge of post-production), David Mun (assistant camera), Akihiro Noguchi (action choreographer), Jeffrey Oberste (post-production associate), Zach Alwin Pagter (adr writer), Dusty Rabbin (music coordinator)

Eric Rainey (additional editor), Eric S. Rollman (executive in charge of production), Suzi Shimoyama (adr writer), Randy Shropshire (unit photographer), Christienne Silverio (assistant accountant), Jaimie Trueblood (unit photographer), Christian Walsh (adr writer), David Walsh (adr writer), J. Zachary Woodford (assistant editor), Michele Zaday (assistant accountant).

Distributors - Fox Kids Network [us], Fox Television [us] (2001), Saban Entertainment Inc. (worldwide)
 Special Effects - Modern Videofilm Inc. [us]
 Extras casting - Central/Cennex Casting [us]
 Camera equipment provided by Keslow Cameras [us]
 Stunt choreography - Alpha Stunts [jp]
 Grip and lighting equipment - Cinemobile System Inc. [us], Santa Clarita Studios.

Power Rangers: Time Force (often abbreviated as "PRTF") was the ninth incarnation of the Power Rangers series, based on the Super Sentai series Mirai Sentai Timeranger (Future Squadron Time Ranger), running for 40 half-hour episodes from February to November of 2001.

It is unique in the fact that the overall story is considerably darker than many of the other incarnations because the storyline was almost similar to its Japanese counterpart (itself critically acclaimed as one of the best of the genre) with very minimal alterations. Like Power Rangers: Lightspeed Rescue before it and Power Rangers: Wild Force after it, the Power Rangers are adults and not teenagers. Because of this, many fans felt that this incarnation of Power Rangers, in particular, would have made a successful primetime series for adults had it not been for the traditional elements that made up a Power Rangers series. The producers behind Power Rangers claim that the reason for that not happening is that they do not want to alienate their target audience, namely, kids.

Rangers

Jen, the Pink Time Force Ranger, prepares for battle
 Time Force Power Rangers
 Alex - Original Red Time Force Ranger from the year 3000. After "dying" he becomes an ally who secretly helps the rangers. Later he officially allows Wes to keep the Red Ranger powers. (portrayed by Jason Faunt).

Jen Scotts - the Pink Time Force Ranger and leader of the team (portrayed by Erin Cahill) (Note: "Scotts", whilst generally accepted by the fanbase as Jen's last name, was not officially stated in the show's continuity.)

Wesley Collins - the Red Time Force Ranger and second-in-command. (portrayed by Jason Faunt)

Lucas Kendall - the Blue Time Force Ranger (portrayed by Michael Copon)

Trip - the Green Time Force Ranger (portrayed by Kevin Kleinberg)

Katie Walker - the Yellow Time Force Ranger (portrayed by Deborah Estelle Phillips)

Eric Myers - the Quantum Ranger and leader of the Silver Guardians (portrayed by Daniel Southworth)

Allies

Circuit (Brianna Siddall)- a mechanical owl which acts as an information source (like Alpha 5) and calls Captain Logan to send the Zords when needed.

Captain Logan (Roy Werner)- Time Force commanding officer.

Mr. A. Collins - Wes' father and millionaire businessman. (portrayed by Edward Lawrence Albert) (Note: Whilst Mr. Collins' first initial was established as 'A', his first name was never officially stated in the show's continuity.)

Philips (Douglas Fisher)- the Collins family butler, always ready to give Wes helpful advice.

Zaskin (Ken Merckx)- A Biolab scientist that works for Collins.

Lightspeed Rescue Power Rangers - the previous Ranger team, they join forces with the Time Force Rangers to stop a Super Demon.

Wild Force Power Rangers-Ranger team that the Time Force Rangers meet and team up with in 2002 (a year after the events of Time Force takes place) to stop a trio of Mutant-Org hybrids.

Villains

Main article: Villains in Power Rangers: Time Force

Ransik (portrayed by Vernon Wells)

Nadira (portrayed by Kate Sheldon)

Frax (Eddie Frierson)

Gluto (Neil Kaplan)

Arsenal

Chrono Morphers: Created by Time Force and usually used by select officers such as Alex and the Time Force Rangers. The Chrono Morphers can display holographic images and imprint the DNA of the wearer so that only the person in question, or someone with similar DNA, can use them to morph by calling "Time for Time Force!".

Quantum Morpher: Eric Meyers uses this device to morph into the Quantum Ranger by crying out "Quantum Power!", and it also controls his Quantasaurus Rex Zord. The Quantum Morpher's distinct Voice Activation feature allows Eric, or someone that sounds like him, to operate it.

Time Force Badge: Each Ranger wears his or her own badge, thus identifying them as law enforcers to criminals. The badge can also seal an apprehended criminal in a cryo-containment unit.

Chrono Sabers: Each Ranger carries two Chrono Sabers, which can also double as a lance. In battle, the Chrono Sabers can fire energy projectiles and are used to deliver a Time Strike.

Electro Booster: Trip created this unique blaster to help the team overpower an energy-absorbing mutant. It is formed through adding a series of attachments onto a Chrono Saber.

Chrono Blaster: The standard Time Force firearm.

Quantum Defender: The Quantum Ranger's personal firearm can change into a sword.

Vortex Blaster: This powerful cannon, forged from the five V Weapons, delivers a powerful blast capable of either freezing or knocking out targets.

V Weapons: Giant cannons used by the five core Rangers, each branded V1 to V5. They can easily destroy a target but are usually set to stun.

Battle Warrior Armor: A black knight once bested a white knight and claimed for himself a box that could be opened only by those with a pure heart. The black knight eventually appeared in Silver Hills and left the box in a cave, to be guarded by a dragon. Wes found the cave and defeated the dragon before opening the box to receive the magical Battle Fire, which gave him access to the Battle Warrior Armor. In addition to body, helmet and boot armour, Wes is armed with a giant sword which ignites its target in a blaze.

Mega Battle Armor: The Quantum Ranger's own Battlizer Armor, granted to him by Alex from the year 3000. The Mega Battle Armor places a visor over Eric's helmet and gives him torso shielding, rollerblades, detachable wings that serve as blasters and blades, and a large energy blade that is capable of "freezing" giant criminals.

Vector Cycles: Motorcycles from the future, assigned to each of the five core Rangers for ground pursuit.

Strata Cycle: A sleek vehicle sent by Alex to aid Wes. It has flight capabilities and awesome firepower.

TF Eagle: Quantum Ranger's personal transport, capable of travelling through time.

Time Jet: A glider-like aircraft that carries the Rangers to their Time Fliers. It can fire from front-mounted blasters and transform into an oversized handgun. In its handgun mode it is often used by the Time Force Megazord Mode Blue.

Zords

Main article: Zords in Power Rangers: Time Force

Transwarp Megazord

Shadow Force Megazord Mode Blue or Mode Red (combination of Time Force Megazord & Time Shadow Megazord)

Time Force Megazord Jet mode, Mode Blue, or Mode Red (combination of the Time Flyers)

Time Flyer 1 (Wes/Red)

Time Flyer 2 (Lucas/Blue)

Time Flyer 3 (Trip/Green)

Time Flyer 4 (Katie/Yellow)

Time Flyer 5 (Jen/Pink)

Shadow Winger or Time Shadow Megazord

Quantasaurus Rex a.k.a. the Q-Rex (Eric/Quantum)

Trivia

An oddity with Time Force is that it is the first series since the trend started in Power Rangers: Turbo that did not have most of or all of the Rangers' arsenal end up being destroyed in the final battle.

Originally, Eric was supposed to die before the finale, like his Mirai Sentai Timeranger counterpart Naoto/Timefire. The scene of Eric's death was actually filmed before higher-ups refused to allow it to air.

Power Rangers Time Force is the second Power Rangers season to feature a female Ranger as the leader of the team, and is also the first (and only) Power Rangers season to feature a Pink Ranger as the leader.

Power Rangers Time Force were the first team of rangers in an official season to not feature white boots or white gloves as part of their suits, they were the same color of their respective ranger color designation. The Alien Rangers share this same trait, but are not considered to be full season rangers.

Jen makes a PR first, by using the word 'death', in this line, "I WON'T let his DEATH be in vain!"

Power Rangers Time Force is the only series thus far to feature a sixth ranger that wore the same color as another team member (Wes and Eric both wore red as their color scheme, it should be noted that in Power Rangers: Ninja Storm technically Tori and Blake were "Blue Rangers" albeit different shades of blue (Aqua and Navy) and Shane and Hunter being both "Red Rangers" being a different shade of red (Red and Crimson) Wes would be known as the Red Ranger and Eric would be called the Quantum Ranger).

Power Rangers Time Force is notable for being the first series not to "destroy" it's monsters, but rather "capture" them in containers. This method would be repeated in Power Rangers: SPD, where monsters are "contained" rather than destroyed.

Time Force is also noted for being the first series to employ the "Red Rookie" concept, where-in the Red Ranger (in this case, Wes) was the last Power Ranger to be recruited into the team. It should be noted that while Alex was the original Red Time Force Ranger, he was a solo Ranger as Jen, Trip, Katie and Lucas did not have Chrono Morphers at the time before Alex seemingly died by Ransik's hand.

It was the first series to employ Power Rangers from the future, this would be done again in Power Rangers: SPD with the addition of the Omega Ranger and Nova Ranger.

It was the first series to feature a family member accidentally finding out their relative was a Power Ranger (Mr. Collins found out Wes was the Red Ranger when his visor was damaged in a battle). This would be repeated in Power Rangers: Wild Force when Alyssa's father mistakenly found she was the White Ranger and in Power Rangers: Ninja Storm when Shane's older brother accidentally found out he was the Red Ranger. In Power Rangers: Zeo, Tommy Oliver's brother finds out that Tommy was the Red Zeo Ranger, but was not accidental. Rather he insisted the Red Zeo Ranger to show him where his brother was kept safe. Tommy then opens his helmet, as his brother insistence and forced himself to reveal himself to his brother that he was the Red Zeo. His brother agrees to keep his identity secret.

It was the first series to feature villains who truly reformed (Ransik and Nadira) and turned to the side of good.

It was the final series to open each episode with the teaser scene before the opening credits.

One episode of Power Rangers: Time Force ("Circuit Unsure") was dedicated in memory of Thuy Trang, a member of the original Mighty Morphin Power Rangers cast. On that very sad note, on September 3, 2001, Thuy Trang died on impact in an automobile accident on Interstate Highway 5 when the automobile she was riding lost control. Her passenger was Angela Rockwood-Nguyen, a former actress/model and the wife of fellow Vietnamese-American actor Dustin Nguyen. Thuy Trang died on impact, but Rockwood-Nguyen survived despite not wearing a seatbelt, but became quadriplegic. Her fellow MMPR co-stars Amy Jo Johnson, and David Yost attended her funeral.

In one episode of Time Force, you can -almost- completely see the face of Eric's Super Sentai counterpart, Naoto. This occurs in the episode which first introduced the Quantum Ranger. Due to the two actors looking highly similar, a lot of Timeranger footage was kept showing Naoto from a distance, and in one scene his face is covered briefly, but he begins to pull his hands away, giving a brief glimpse of Naoto's face.

Eric Myers, the Quantum Ranger, made history when he defeated a giant monster without a Zord, however, he was equipped with the Quantum Mega Battle (his Battlizer), unlike Tommy Oliver in Power Rangers: Dino Thunder, who defeated a monster by using his Brachio Staff's elemental powers.

The teamup episode "Time for Lightspeed" saw 5 Battlizers being activated at the same time. Such instance hasn't been repeated (even in Forever Red, due to early Red Rangers lacking those, the use of Battlizers was avoided), although power-up team-ups were later seen frequently (most notably the Power Rangers: SPD episode "History", where the SWAT Mode was shown together with the Super Dino Mode).

This was the only series in which their sidearm weapons (Chrono Blasters) were not viewable when morphed.

This is only the second series to have two Rangers attracted to each other involved in a kissing scene (namely Wes and Jen. The first were Kim and Tommy from MMPR).

It is the second, and so far, last Power Ranger season to have a series finale that was three parts, generally ranger finales are two-parters. The only other Power Rangers series to have a three parter finale was Power Rangers: Lost Galaxy.

Time Force was also the final Power Rangers series to air exclusively on Fox Kids, and the last series to be produced by Saban Entertainment. During the post production of Time Force, Disney bought the series even though Fox Kids had broadcasting rights for the first half of Wild Force before it moved to ABC.

Oakley, Inc. sunglasses were used as the Visual Scanners the Rangers wore.

This was the first series to include colored visors, this would be repeated in Power Rangers Dino Thunder with the addition of the White Dino Ranger's red visor.

First series to feature an animal-like mentor, Circuit. This would be repeated in Power Rangers Ninja Storm and Power Rangers SPD.

Time Force was the last Power Ranger series (to date) to not only feature an African American Yellow Ranger but a female African American Ranger as well.

WR. Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand.

DIR. Issac Florentine, Kaizo Hayashi, Yoshi Hosoya, Worth Keeter, Judd Lynn, Koichi Sakamoto, Jonathan Tzachor, Makoto Yokoyama.

EPISODES: 40 YEAR MADE: 2001 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 2

MMPR PRODUCTIONS, RENAISSANCE-ATLANTIC FILMS, SABAN ENTERTAINMENT INC., TOEI COMPANY LTD.

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 20 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 29, (2) 11

DATE OF PREMIER: 03/02/2001 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 17/11/2001

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Wesley 'Wes' Collins/Red Time Force Ranger #2; Alex/Red Time Force Ranger #1 JASON FAUNT , Jen/Pink Time Force Ranger ERIN CAHILL, Trip/Green Time Force Ranger KEVIN KLEINBERG, Katie/Yellow Time Force Ranger DEBORAH ESTELLE PHILIPS, Lucas Kendell/Blue Time Force Ranger MICHAEL COPON, Eric Myers/Quantum Ranger (as Daniel Southworth) DAN SOUTHWORTH, Ransik VERNON WELLS, Nadira KATE SHELDON, Mr. Collins (as Edward Laurence Albert) EDWARD ALBERT, Circuit (voice) BRIANNE SIDDALL, Frax (voice) EDDIE FREIRSON, Gluto (voice) NEIL KAPLAN.

RELATED SHOWS:

MIGHTY MORPHIN' POWER RANGERS, THE (inc. THE MIGHTY MORPHIN' ALIEN RANGERS)

POWER RANGERS ZEO

POWER RANGERS TURBO

POWER RANGERS LIGHTSPEED RESCUE

POWER RANGERS WILD FORCE

1 - 1 FORCE FROM THE FUTURE PART 1

In the year 3000, the last remaining criminal, a mutant mastermind called Ransik, is finally captured by the hard work of the Time Force police, particularly thanks to their own Red Ranger, named Alex. His fellow TF Officers, Jen, Trip, Lucas, and Katie are given the task of transporting Ransik to prison, but are ambushed by the mutant's daughter, Nadira, and robotic servant, Frax. Taking command of the prison, filled with cryogenically stored mutants, Ransik plots to escape through time. But first, he'll have a fatal final showdown with the Red Time Force Ranger.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 2 FORCE FROM THE FUTURE PART 2

Having tracked Ransik and his mob to the city of Silver Hills in the year 2001, Jen and the three Time Force officers find themselves stranded when their Time Ship explodes. Nadira and the Cyclobots take advantage of their new time period by looting and terrorizing, but when the TF officers attempt to use their Chrono-Morphers to stop them, they discover that without the Red one to activate them, they're useless. Yet, the only person who can use the Red Chrono-Morpher is Alex, who's not with them! Can a familiar, yet decidedly different, face be the salvation the team needs?

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 3 SOMETHING TO FIGHT FOR

Though he lacks the Chrono-Morpher, Wes sets about taking on Nadira and the Cyclobots in an effort to avoid having to take part in his father's business dealings. Jen scolds him for his carefree attitude, pointing out he's playing and has nothing to fight for, while they're fighting for their future. When Wes learns of Alex, will he take the role of Red Ranger more seriously? Meanwhile, Ransik and Frax unfreeze the first of the mutants from the prison, a rocket-powered criminal known as Jetara. When his DNA is exposed, he grows to a giant size. What can the Time Force Rangers use to stop him?

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 4 RANSIK LIVES

Wes gives the four Time Force officers from the future a place to stay, at a Clock Tower owned by his father. It turns out to also be part of an old business, which they revive, taking on various odd jobs for money. Their first job is painting a TV studio, which ends up being hijacked by Ransik to broadcast a terror threat to the city of Silver Hills! Wes is captured by the mutant mastermind, and learns his tragic origin, involving the dark side effects of the future utopia. Will this change his feelings about the criminal, or will the mutant Fearog finish him off?

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 5 A BLUE STREAK

Though he's a championship racecar driver in the year 3000, Lucas gets a speeding ticket in the present day. He's ordered to obtain a driver's license, and is stuck with a very antsy instructor, who's in for a wild ride when Lucas spots the mutant car thief Mantamobile zooming by! What secret weapon from the future can aid the Rangers in catching up to the criminal? And will Lucas ever pass his driving test?

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 6 A PARTING OF WAYS

In another scheme for money, Nadira unfreezes Tentaclaw, who captures a busload of children and ransoms them for ten million dollars. Wes, increasing frustrated with his multi-millionaire father's attempts to decide his future for him, attempts to convince him to foot the bill for the ransom. When he refuses, will Wes and the other Rangers be able to save the kids, or will this spell the end of the father and son's relationship?

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Worth Keeter

1 - 7 SHORT CIRCUITED

It appears as though Nadira has had a change of heart, and wants to give up the life of crime! She pleads with Trip, the most sensitive and friendly of the Time Force officers, to believe her. Is she telling the truth, or is this all a ruse to allow her to kidnap Circuit, in an effort to have the Medicon mutant operate on the robotic owl to prevent him from being able to summon the Zords from the future? Doesn't take Xybrian psychic powers to know the answer to that one!

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Worth Keeter

1 - 8 JEN'S REVENGE

Jen's demeanor with the other Rangers continues to sour, as her appetite for vengeance against Ransik continues to grow. When the Fatcatfish mutant is released on the city, it brings back memories of her days as Alex's partner, and pushes her to the edge of reason. She sets out to not only kill both this mutant criminal, but the one responsible for her fiance's death, Ransik himself, by any means necessary. Can Wes and the others finally get through to her before she crosses the line?

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 9 THE TIME SHADOW

Frax schemes behind Ransik's back to create a powerful fuel source common in the future, but not yet invented. To do so, he has a mutant loot Bio-Lab, Mr. Collins' multi-faceted company. But Wes' father doesn't take the criminals' constant attack of the city lying down, and has a former research vehicle turned into a massive drill-tank known as Raimei! Meanwhile, the Rangers' Megazord is heavily damaged in battle, and they'll have to wait while they're repaired in the future. But when Frax's Tri-Zirium-powered Tronicon robot attacks the city, can they just stand by and let Silver Hills be destroyed? Or will the Raimei tank save the day? And just what is that Mystery Man in the year 3000 testing, and how will it help our heroes?

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 10 FUTURE UNKNOWN

The recent Raimei incident appears to be a sign of history changing, which worries Katie most of all, since she left her family behind in the year 3000. Her concerns about their being erased by the Rangers' actions in the present distract the team, just as Frax unleashes a highly powerful mutant from a secret X-Vault, where the most dangerous criminals are kept.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Judd Lynn

1 - 11 UNIQUELY TRIP

Trip's awkwardness in battle, shyness around girls, and inability to impress anyone with his inventions makes the alien teen considerably depressed. He tries to rectify this situation, but fumbles each time. When he sees a group of four children playing Rangers, and no one wants to be Green, he's especially hurt. But soon, those same kids are put in harm's way by the Electropede monster's attack on the power plant. Can Trip muster the confidence to be the hero they don't know him to be? And will he find his true role in life that sets him apart from his teammates?

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Judd Lynn

1 - 12 WORLDS APART

Wes gets a terse reunion with his father, when he discovers he's funding a for-hire protection force known as the Silver Guardians. One of them happens to be Wes' prep schoolmate, Eric, who's had a grudge against him for years, believing Wes' gotten everything handed to him while he's had to work hard for it. When the X-Vault mutant Univolt strikes, endangering the Guardians, will Wes put his life, and his secret identity, on the line to save his father's latest money-making scheme?

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Isaac Florentine

1 - 13 QUANTUM QUEST

The race is on to recover the Quantum Control Box, a device lost in time by Time Force and found amid an archeological site in Silver Hills. The Rangers and the mutants both vie to recover it, but instead Silver Guardian Eric ends up with the device. With the powers of the Quantum Ranger at his fingertips, will the bitter teen use them against the forces of evil, or for his own benefit?

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Isaac Florentine

1 - 14 CLASH FOR CONTROL PART 1

Ransik sends Commandocon back through time to recover the companion piece to the Quantum Ranger powers, the Quantasaurus Rex Zord. Wes, while trying to convince his former school chum to turn over the Quantum Morpher to the Time Force team, hitches a ride with Eric when he follows the mutant back to prehistory. Their rivalry has to be put aside in order for them to survive against an angry T-Rex, and an impending volcanic eruption!

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 15 CLASH FOR CONTROL PART 2

Now rampaging through present day Silver Hills, the Quantasaurus Rex is controlled by the Commandocon mutant to do damage to the city. Wes duels with Eric once more, in an effort to take back the Quantum Morpher by force. But if he fails, can Eric manage to take control of the Q-Rex himself successfully? Meanwhile, Mr. Collins offers the four Time Force officers from the future a job opportunity working for the Silver Guardians!

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Isaac Florentine

1 - 16 BODYGUARD IN BLUE

Dr. Zaskin, the lead scientist working for Bio-Lab to try and unlock the secrets of the Quantum Morpher, is kidnapped by Nadira and the Cyclobots. His daughter barely escapes, and soon hires Lucas to be her bodyguard! Can he keep the girl safe with the Klawlox mutant stalking her through the city?

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 17 THE LEGEND OF THE CLOCK TOWER

Katie learns from Wes of a dark secret concerning their current home, that the ghost of former owner Walter Brown lurks in the attic, longing for the girl he never got the courage to tell he loved. Stumbling upon his spirit, and soon tripping into a Time Hole, Katie ends up back in the early 18th century, where she encounters Walter Brown! Can she aid him in his quest to win the heart of the girl he desires, or is history doomed to repeat?

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Yoshi Hosoya

1 - 18 TRUST AND TRIUMPH

Trust is in question, after Wes fails to follow through on a plan to capture Nadira during a bank robbery. Later, Turtlecon traps the Time Force Rangers in a yellow-atmosphere beach dimension, where they face their evil morphed doubles! Wes & Jen manage to escape, but leave their three teammates behind. In order to free them, the two have to learn mutual trust in one another. Thus, Jen opens up to Wes on how she came to know Alex, and how she became such a confident leader. Wes & Jen work together to shatter Turtlecon's dimension, and later, the whole team works together to recapture him

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 19 TRIP TAKES A STAND

Ransik sends out a mutant named Notacon, who doesn't want to be evil. Frax's device forces him to do bad, but Trip discovers his true nature and sets out to protect him from not only the fugitives, but from the Silver Guardian Eric!

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Isaac Florentine

1 - 20 QUANTUM SECRETS

Eric's Quantum Morpher is swiped by Conwing, who uses a mouthpiece to mimic Eric's vocal pattern and take control of the Quantasaurus Rex. It takes some mysterious help from the future to do what Bio-Lab in the present can't, namely unlock some more of the Quantum Ranger's arsenal.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Makoto Yokoyama

1 - 21 LOVESTRUCK RANGERS

Wes, Trip, and Lucas fall for a mysterious girl named Angelique unaware that she is a mutant in disguise who makes her victims fall in love with her.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Worth Keeter

1 - 22 THE LAST RACE

Nadira's newest mutant partner-in-crime turns out to be Dash, once Lucas' best friend.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Isaac Florentine

1 - 23 FULL EXPOSURE

An ambitious photographer named Mitch discovers the true identities of the Rangers. Katie begs him not to hand in the pictures for publishing, but it takes a near death experience during a mutant attack for Mitch to have a change of heart and give Katie the pictures.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Worth Keeter

1 - 24 MOVIE MADNESS PART 1

The Rangers are ambushed by a mutant director named Cinecon, and sent into different "movie" dimensions: Wes & Trip in a western, Lucas in a samurai flick, Katie in a musical, Jen in a kung-fu film, and Eric in a jungle picture.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 25 MOVIE MADNESS PART 2

The Rangers' literally take Cinecon's script into their own hands-and escape from his torment.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 26 TIME FORCE TRAITOR

Steelix, Jen's old Time Force partner, seeks revenge on Jen for getting him locked up. He steals her morpher, fights her on her own, then turns her evil. Wes breaks Jen out of the spell, and all of the Rangers defeat Steelix.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 27 FRAX'S FURY

Frax releases Venomark, who infects the city and four Rangers with the same poisonous bite he gave Ransik many years ago. By snagging one of Ransik's vials, Wes is able to get the serum reproduced by Bio-Lab, saving his friends and the city.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 28 DAWN OF DESTINY (PART 1 OF 3)

Without any Anti-Venomark serum left to quell his attacks, Ransik storms Bio-Lab in search of their supply. Wes also goes there, trying to convince his father to give up the serum before their research into the substance alters future history. A very deadly encounter occurs, when Ransik comes face to face with Mr. Collins!

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Worth Keeter

1 - 29 FIGHT AGAINST FATE (PART 2 OF 3)

Alex arrives to reclaim his place as the Red Ranger, in an effort to ensure history is put back on its correct course. He warns Wes that his father, recently injured by Ransik, will die within the day, and that he must take his place as head of Bio-Lab. The four Time Force officers from the future are shocked by Alex's new, far crueler and colder attitude towards them, especially his fiancée Jen. The target of his return is Frax, who has created a giant robot known as Dragontron!

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 1 DESTINY DEFEATED (PART 3 OF 3)

Wes struggles with the role of businessman, a fate he's rebelled against for many years, but is now forced to accept. Alex orders the other Rangers around like pawns, in his ruthless attempt to ensure history is corrected by destroying Dragontron. Meanwhile, Eric, angered over Wes' promotion, decides to leave Silver Hills once and for all. A most unexpected source will have the last word when it comes to the life of Mr. Collins!

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 2 UNDERCOVER RANGERS

The Rangers go undercover at a gym to discover that Frax is using it as a front to turn its customers into robots. With help from Eric, the team defeats the mutant running the gym, and rescues the customers.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 3 BEWARE THE NIGHT

A mysterious midevel Black Knight stalks the streets of Silver Hills, searching for someone pure of heart he can capture to force to open an ancient box containing a power source called the Battle Fire. Not a mutant, nor a robot, this villain perplexes the Rangers, and repeatedly bests them in battle. Can Wes recover the Battle Fire to use against him, or will the Knight's guard Dragon burn him to a crisp?

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 4 TIME FOR LIGHTSPEED

When Vypra returns from the grave, and joins forces with Ransik in an attempt to summon a Super Demon to destroy the Power Rangers, the Lightspeed Rescue Rangers are called out of retirement by their leader Carter, to team-up with the Time Force Rangers.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 5 RELFECTIONS OF EVIL

The Miracon mutant traps the Rangers in a series of mirror dimensions, which each include a mutant guardian, most of which they've already captured! Can our heroes break out without getting seven years bad luck?

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Jonathan Tzachor

2 - 6 NADIRA'S DREAM DATE

Confusion over a love letter written by Lucas about a car leads Nadira to believe he's got a thing for her! She's flattered, and aggressively pursues a relationship with the Blue Ranger. Ransik disapproves, but threatens Lucas in an effort to ensure his daughter doesn't get her heart broken. Can Lucas end this fatal attraction without getting fatally ended himself? If it wasn't bad enough, the Rangers have the Chameliacon mutant to deal with!

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 7 CIRCUIT UNSURE

When questioned about an upcoming event, Circuit discovers his memory has been altered by a mysterious source. No longer feeling he can trust his own memory, the robotic owl loses confidence in his ability to assist the Rangers. Meanwhile, running low on mutant criminals, Ransik sends out Serpicon to destroy the local Space Center. Can Circuit overcome his faults and aid Trip in shutting down the self-destruction system? Also, who's behind Circuit's memorybank hacking?

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 8 A CALM BEFORE THE STORM

Though Ransik is concerned about his running out of mutants, it's cause for celebration, at first, for the Rangers. But realizing the four from the future will soon be returning home brings down the mood. The team reflects on the events leading them to where they are now. Wes goes to Bio-Lab, hoping to convince his father to cease production on the Trizirium Crystals. Has his near-death experience changed him enough to listen to reason? And meanwhile, as Frax prepares his ultimate creation, he unleashes an appetizer in the form of Maxax.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 9 THE END OF TIME PART 1

Having been told that they will not survive the battles that will save the future, the Rangers steel themselves for what awaits them, but Wes has other ideas. Meanwhile, Gluto tracks down Frax and notifies Ransik, who captures the cyborg, strips him of what little humanity he has left, and orders him to pilot the Trizirium Crystal-powered Doomtron into Silver Hills

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 10 THE END OF TIME PART 2

Wes takes on the army of Cyclobots by himself, and enlists Eric's help, the battle eventually spreads across a full day, destroying the Clock Tower, and severely injuring Eric. Wes takes his Quantum Defender and takes the battle to the next stage, not fearing the outcome. Back in the future and facing memory acclimation, Jen and the others decide to take a page from Wes' book and take control of destiny, they refuse to forget their experiences with Wes and Jen dumps Alex for good. He responds by allowing them to depart and assist their friend.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 11 THE END OF TIME PART 3

When the four TF Officers return from the future to assist Wes, Doomtron is defeated, destroying the brainwashed Frax along with it. Ransik ignores Nadira's pleas, and takes on the Time Force Rangers personally. During his rage against them, he accidentally strikes out against his daughter, and a baby she saved. This snaps Ransik out of his vengeance-filled state of mind, and he willingly gives up to Time Force. With all the mutants now captured, Jen and the gang return to the year 3000. She and Wes reluctantly part ways, their relationship coming to a premature end. In the end, Wes agrees to his father's wishes of his becoming co-commander of the Silver Guardians (alongside Eric, of course), though for nonprofit work only.

Wr Judd Lynn, Jackie Marchand

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

POWER RANGERS TURBO

Because of her defeat by the Power Rangers, Divatox rallies her troops and plans an attack on Earth. Meanwhile, the rangers prepare for their graduation ceremony. Tommy, who isn't going to be in the graduation ceremony, received his diploma early, is working at a motor race way, and is driving a race stock car. Meanwhile, Lt. Stone, Bulk, and Skull have been given their jobs back at Angel Grove Police Department. Divatox picks her crew and heads for Earth. Justin takes a placement test to determine what grade he'll be in when he starts school. Justin finishes his test an hour early and rushes to meet the rangers, who are setting up for the ceremony. Rocky, who has been injured in a Martial Arts tournament is helping the rangers set up and the others fill him in on what happened with their first battle with Divatox and receiving the Turbo Powers (this battle is what happens in the movie). Divatox arrives on Earth and lands the sub in Angel Grove lake. Meanwhile, Bulk and Skull are receiving orders from Lt. Stone to guard the power plant. Bulk and Skull try to tell Lt. Stone about Divatox's sub, but Lt. Stone won't listen to them. In order to keep their job, Bulk and Skull decide to keep quiet about the sub and head for the power plant. Divatox plans to ruin the rangers graduation ceremony because the rangers ruined hers (I assume her ceremony was the marriage ceremony in the movie) and sends Elgar to plant an implosion bomb in the power plant to destroy Angel Grove.

Porto gives Elgar a weapon to use if he runs into trouble. Meanwhile, the rangers are summoned to the Power Chamber where Alpha has baked a cake for them. After a brief chat with Alpha and Zordon, the rangers return to get ready for their graduation while Justin stays in the Power Chamber with Alpha. Elgar runs into Bulk and Skull at the power plant and tries to scare them away, but when they try to stop him, Elgar uses the device on them turning them into monkeys. Elgar plants the bomb. The Power Chamber gets a signal of a disturbance at the power plant and Justin goes to investigate. Justin finds the monkeys (not knowing it is Bulk and Skull).....and Elgar. Bulk and Skull get a sudden craving for bananas and head for the Youth Center, but when Justin tries to stop them Elgar sees him. Justin and Elgar go into battle. To Be Continued..... Will Justin be able to stop Elgar? Will the rangers find out about the bomb and stop it before it destroys Angel Grove. Will Divatox's plan to ruin the ranger's graduation work?

While the rangers are going through their graduation ceremony, Justin was attacked by Elgar at the Power Plant. Elgar called for the Pirantrons and Justin Shifted into Turbo. In the middle of the ceremony, Adam, Tonya, and Kat can't find Justin anywhere and go off to look for him. Adam contacts Zordon and learns of the situation at the Power Plant. The other rangers shift into turbo and Divatox sends the Pirantrons to stop them from getting to Justin... and her detonator. Justin is outnumbered at the plant and calls for help. Tanya and Kat join Justin at the plant while Adam holds off the Pirantrons at Angel Grove High, but is quickly outnumbered. Zordon sends Tommy to help Adam and they quickly beat off the Pirantrons and go help the others at the plant. They finish off the Pirantrons and start searching the plant but are unable to find anything. Justin returns to the Power Chamber to get the Turbo Navigator to help in there search. Zordon and Alpha are working on something when Justin arrives and act mysteriously when he asks questions. Justin returns to the plant and the rangers locate the bomb, but are attacked by Pirantrons. Tommy grabs the bomb and runs off in an attempt to get rid of the bomb. With time running out, Tommy gets out of the plant and calls on the Turbo RAM to dispose of the bomb. The Turbo RAM races off the with the bomb just as it detonates and the plant is saved. The rangers return to the graduation ceremony just in time for Kat to give her speech and the rangers finally graduate from High School. Meanwhile, Zordon and Alpha use a wormhole to transport Lerigot to the Power Chamber and when the ceremony is over Zordon tells Alpha to teleport the rangers to the Power Chamber. To Be Continued.... What is Zordon and Alpha's plans and what do they have to do with the wormhole? Why does Divatox want to collapse the wormhole?

The rangers teleport to the Power Chamber. They learn that Lerigot has ability to free Zordon from the Dimensional Time-Warp thing (or whatever it is) and Zordon and Alpha 5 plan to return to Eltar. Divatox has other plans and sends down a monster to collapse the wormhole before Zordon and Alpha can leave arrive. The rangers shift into turbo and go to stop the monster. Divatox makes the monster grow and the rangers call on their Turbo Zords and defeat Divatox's monster. Lerigot sends Zordon and Alpha through the wormhole and returns home. The rangers meet Zordon and Alpha's replacements....Dimitria and Alpha 6.

This is a follow up to Power Rangers Zeo and marks the third outing for the rangers on American television. This show is followed by Power Rangers in Space. The only two actors who remain with this franchise since the beginning are Jason Narvy and Paul Schrier, who are now reduced just to their voices. Throughout the lifetime of this third power rangers show, the cast went through many changes, including bringing Bulk and Skull back, and changing more of the power ranger cast half way through. Cassie replaced Kat, Ashley replaced Tanya, Carlos replaced Adam, T.J. replaced Tommy, but the Blue Ranger Justin was kept.

Former Ranger Rocky from THE MIGHTY MORPHIN' POWER RANGERS also returned to the series, but not as a ranger. With the new replacements the show tried to recapture the time when the original Power Rangers were so successful, by following a similar formula, by allowing the non costumed rangers to use their skills of martial arts, which had previously been taken away due to the majority of the actors and actresses playing the rangers being unable to do martial arts. Power Rangers Turbo used footage from the Japanese SF show CARRANGER.

The production of "Power Rangers: Turbo" was controversial on numerous levels and is generally considered to be the jump the shark moment for the series. The series was launched with a theatrical movie "Turbo: A Power Ranger Movie", which was given a limited theatrical release and failed miserably to transition the Power Rangers from the "Zeo" season to "Turbo" as the film offered no explanation for the sudden change in costumes or powers. The film also saw the departure of Steve Cardenas from the Power Rangers franchise. Cardenas was injured while performing a stunt towards the end of Power Rangers Zeo and as a result, had to leave the series.

The departure of Cardenas led to what is considered the most controversial moment of the history of the Power Rangers franchise; as Fox executives forced Saban to add a child actor to the cast as Cardenas's replacement. Blake Foster was cast as Justin Stewart, the new Blue Turbo Power Ranger as a ploy to bring new young viewers to the show, since the core of the show's young viewership were now in their teens. The move backfired horribly, as the character failed to bring in new viewers and alienated a large portion of the existing older audience of the show.

Also there were the problems with the cast: two of the main actors on the show, Jason David Frank and Catherine Sutherland allegedly wanted to leave the show and pursue other projects (Sutherland claims this is untrue on her part). Both agreed to short-term contracts for 18 episodes, which would give the show's producers enough time to cast and introduce replacements for their characters. Another problem was the pregnancy of Hilary Shepard Turner, who played head "Power Ranger: Turbo" villain Divatox in "Turbo: A Power Ranger Movie". For the bulk of the season, Carol Hoyt, who also played Dimitria would play Divatox until Turner could resume the role towards the end of the series. As she resumed the role of Divatox, Hoyt continued on with her role as Dimitria.

Finally there was the problem of how to handle the source material for the show's fight and Zord footage. The 20th incarnation of the Super Sentai series, Carranger spoofed the long-running sentai formula and featured a lot of physical comedy and slapstick humor as the series progressed. This created problems for the writing team at Saban, who were divided between those who wanted to gut Carranger down to the bare essentials so they could go with a more serious apocalypse storyline and those who felt that they should embrace the over-the-top campiness of the source material. This chaos was increased when longtime Power Ranger writer, Doug Sloan, left the series early in the show's run. The series progressed for 18 episodes before longtime Power Rangers writer, Judd Lynn (who was the main supporter of going the direction of making "Turbo" a comedy-centric series), was given the job as head writer.

When it came time to phase out Jason David Frank and Catherine Sutherland, it was decided to phase the entire original cast out sans Blake Foster, resulting in Johnny Yong Bosch and Nakia Burrise leaving the series as well. Zordon and Alpha-5 were also phased out and replaced with Dimitria (played by Carol Hoyt, upon the return of Hilary Shepard Turner) and the jive-talking robot Alpha-6 (both characters were also unpopular with viewers). New cast members were hired to take over the now open Ranger slots and a one-shot character from Carranger was made into a reoccurring sixth Ranger called the Phantom Ranger.

Ultimately by the end of the series' run, the ratings were down as the series began to prepare for yet another relaunching since the Carranger footage had run out. Blake Foster was let go (which explains his character's Justin's choosing to stay on Earth with his dad while the other Rangers went into space) and the series ended with the four rookie Power Rangers, now powerless, zordless, and with only Alpha-6 to guide them, borrowing a NASADA space shuttle and heading off into space to continue their fight against Divatox.

The series would have likely been cancelled had it not been for the following season, Power Rangers: In Space, which proved very popular with fans and introduced several plot devices and storylines never before seen in a Power Rangers series, including what could be the greatest ending to a PR season of all time.

Trivia

In the Power Rangers: Turbo episode "Fire in Your Tank", some of the other monsters seen at Divatox's boot camp were either repainted or hybrid costumes. Among those are a de-petaled Bloom of Doom (from season 2's "Bloom of Doom"), a black painted, hornless, and fur-added Robogoat (from season 2's "The Green Dream"), a blue painted Pirantishead (from season 2's "The Mutiny" trilogy) with the hair of the Hate Master (from season 3's "Stop the Hate Master" two parter), Hate Master's body with the head of a Kakuranger monster Karakasa, an orange and blue repainted body of Cruel Chrome (from PRZ's "Where In The World Is Zeo Ranger 5?") with the head of Main Drain (from PRZ's "Inner Spirit"), Cruel Chrome's head on a silver painted body of Mean Screen (from PRZ's "Mean Screen"), an odd repainted colored Fighting Flea (from season 1's "To Flea or Not to Flee"), a caped, repainted and de-shelled Turbanshell (from season 2's "Green No More" two parter), a repainted Kakuranger monster Keukegen (the furry one from the background in "Alien Rangers of Aquitar" two parter) with parts of Cruel Chrome, and the unnamed black and white leathered, octopus-headed female Kakuranger monster (from the crowd in PRZ's "King for a Day" two parter) now with antlers.

Back when Turbo: A Power Rangers Movie was being conceived, the original idea was to have Billy Cranston create the Turbo Powers, but that changed once David Yost left the series on bad terms. To this day, Turbo stands as the only Power Rangers series with no official origin of its powers, though rumors exist that a scene was filmed where Billy is revealed to be the creator of the Turbo powers that was cut from the film following Yost's departure from the franchise.

It was the only Power Ranger series (so far) to feature a child who could morph into a Ranger, though the concept of a "Kid Ranger" was the basis for Sentai version of the second and third season White Ranger character and the fourth season's Gold Ranger character.

Kat is the only Ranger to retain their color for three different Power Rangers series. (Mighty Morphin Power Rangers through Power Rangers Turbo).

Power Rangers Turbo was the first series to feature villains from a movie that had no previous ties to the show.

It was the second series to switch rangers midway through the season.

It was the first series to feature a ranger (the Phantom Ranger) who did not have their own morph sequence.

It was the last series to feature a ranger shouting a particular phrase during a morphing sequence until Power Rangers: Ninja Storm.

It was the only series to feature a villain's base located underwater.

It was the first series to feature an African American as the Red Ranger. This would be repeated in Power Rangers: SPD with the addition of Jack Landors.

It was the first series to feature an Asian-American as the Pink Ranger. This would also be repeated in S.P.D with the A-Squad Pink Ranger.

It was the first series to have a female Caucasian Yellow Ranger.

It was the first series to feature a Latino as a Power Ranger. This would be repeated in Power Rangers: Wild Force.

the Turbo Rangers stand as being one of the more diversified Power Rangers teams. The same can be said for Mighty Morphin Power Rangers Power Rangers: In Space, Power Rangers: Time Force, Power Rangers: Wild Force, and Power Rangers: Ninja Storm and Power Rangers: SPD. In all of these series, at least two or more members were minorities.

It stands as the only series that did not have a female warrior general (i.e. Scorpina, Archerina, Astronema, Trakeena, Vypra, Nadira, Toxica, Marah and Kapri, Elsa, Mor(gan)a and Necrolai) that battled with the rangers on a constant basis.

It should be noted that the Phantom Ranger was not considered a ranger in Turbo's Sentai counterpart, Carranger (in which his equivalent, the VRV Master, showed up in only one or two episodes), but IS considered a Power Ranger in Turbo. This is the only time such a change has occurred.

It was the last season since Mighty Morphin where each core Ranger got a humanoid Zord (the Rescuezords), previously being the Shogunzords (MMPR), the Battle Borgs (MMAR) and the Super Zeo Zords (PRZ). However, the trend picked up again with Power Rangers Mystic Force and the Mystic Titans.

Power Rangers Turbo was the first series that featured a teaser before the opening credits. It would be seen until Power Rangers Time Force.

First Power Ranger series to have a character in the side of good not referred to as a "Ranger" (the Blue Senturion) pilot a Zord (the Robo Racer). This would happen again with Magna Defender and his Torozord in Power Rangers: Lost Galaxy.

Prior to Power Rangers Time Force, Turbo was the last series and third straight series (unless you count the Alien Rangers) to feature an African American Yellow Ranger. Turbo was also the last series (again, this was prior to Time Force) to have an African American Yellow Ranger.

This series marks Tracy Lynn Cruz's return to the Power Rangers Universe. She had previously appeared in the MMPR episode "I'm Dreaming Of A White Ranger", portraying a minor character.

WR.

DIR.

EPISODES: 44 YEAR MADE: 1997 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 2

SABAN ENTERTAINMENT, INC./TOEI COMPANY LTD.

CREATOR: HAIM SABAN, SHUKI LEVY

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 16, (2) 29

DATE OF PREMIER: 19/04/1997

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 24/11/1997

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS: TURBO: A POWER RANGERS ADVENTURE (1997)

Adam Park/Green Ranger JOHNNY YONG BOSCH, Tanya Sloan/Yellow Ranger NAKIA BURRISE, Justin Stewart/Blue Ranger BLAKE FOSTER, Tommy Oliver/Red Ranger JASON DAVID FRANK, Katherine Hillard/Pink Ranger CATHERINE SUTHERLAND, Divatox/Dimitria CAROL HOYT, Skull (Voice) JASON NARVY, Bulk (Voice) PAUL SCHRIER, Jerome Stone GREGG BULLOCK, Ashley/Yellow Ranger TRACY LYNN CRUZ, Cassie/Pink Ranger PATRICIA JA LEE, Carlos/Green Ranger ROGER VELASCO, T.J./Red Ranger SELWYN WARD, Divatox (as of "The Darkest Day") HILARY SHEPARD, Rocky DeSantos STEVE CARDENAS, Elgar KENNY GRACKSON, Alpha 6 DONENE KISTLER, Rygog (voice) ALEXIS LANG , Alpha 6 (voice) KATERINA LUCIANI, Rygog ED NEIL, Purto (voice) SCOTT PAGE-PAGTER, Elgar (voice) DAVID UHANSKY.

RELATED SHOWS:

MIGHTY MORPHIN' POWER RANGERS, THE (inc. THE MIGHTY MORPHIN' ALIEN RANGERS)

HIMITSU SENTAI GORANGER

DENGEKITAI SENTAI J.A.K.Q.

BATTLEFEVER J

DENSHI SENTAI DENJIMAN

TAIYO SENTAI VULCAN

DAI SENTAI GOGGLE V

KAGAKU SENTAI DYNAMAN

HIKARI SENTAI MASKMAN

CHIKYUU SENTAI FIVEMAN

CHO JIN SENTAI JETMAN

KYORYUU SENTAI ZYURANGER

GO SEI SENTAI DAIRANGER

POWER RANGERS ZEO

POWER RANGERS IN SPACE

POWER RANGERS LOST GALAXY

1 - 1 SHIFT INTO TURBO (1-3)

The evil Divatox is talking to her Piranhatrons and monsters about her plans for revenge on the Power Rangers for spoiling her plot to take over the universe. At the same time, the Power Rangers are getting ready for graduation. They are talking about how Tommy has picked up his diploma early and is now working in stock car racing with his uncle. Tommy gets to do a test drive in the stock car and he is impressing people with his driving talent, even though he has only been driving for a month now. The evil Divatox gives her orders to Rygog, Elgar, and Porto for the invasion on Angel Grove and she prepares her sub to go to Earth. The Power Rangers see Rocky and he asks what has been going on since he last saw them (which is when he was hurt and Justin got his powers). They tell him that Justin is at school taking a placement test because they want him to wait for Justin to tell him what all has happened. Bulk and Skull's boss tells them they only have one more chance and they'd better not mess up again. While he is yelling at them, Bulk and Skull see Divatox's sub land in the waters of Angel Grove, but when they try to tell him he won't listen. Zordon calls the Power Rangers to the Power Chamber. Divatox is planning to ruin the Power Rangers graduation. Elgar and Porto go to the power station and Porto gives Elgar a changer ray and tells him to go plant a bomb. Porto leaves and Elgar runs into Bulk and Skull. Bulk and Skull are scared, but they suddenly remember their training and try to use it, but they get zapped by the changer ray. The changer ray changes them into chimpanzees. Then Elgar plants the bomb and Bulk and Skull try to get help on the radio. Alpha 5 hears the signal and Zordon lets Justin go check it out. Justin finds the chimps and doesn't know they are Bulk and Skull. He tries to protect them, but they run off to find bananas. Justin meets up with Elgar and remembers him and they fight. What will happen next? Taking up where we last left off - Justin is fighting Elgar at the power plant and Tommy is still off racing cars. The rest of the Power Rangers are at their graduation when they notice Justin isn't there. They are worried about him. Kat is supposed to be the speaker at the graduation, but she has to leave with the Power Rangers to find Justin. Divatox let some Piranhatrons loose to fight the Power Rangers and the four of them have to take care of them before they can go find Justin. Adam tells Tanya and Kat that he can handle the Piranhatrons by himself and sends them off to the power plant to find Justin. Adam fights the Piranhatrons but he could use a little help. Zordon calls Tommy and he morphs and goes to help Adam. Tommy uses his lightning power and speeds around getting the bad guys. The Power Rangers make it to their graduation and Kat gives her speech. Alpha and Zordon have a big secret they aren't telling the Power Rangers, but it has something to do with the worm hole. What will the secret be? Justin finds out how he did on his placement tests and that he gets to go to Angel Grove High. Then the Power Rangers are called to the Power Chamber and Alpha tells them it is time for Zordon to go home to his family. Alpha is going with him. That is why the worm hole has shown up. Zordon tells the Power Rangers he will miss them and he has gotten someone else to do his job. Divatox has figured out why the wormhole is there and sends someone with a device to close the worm hole. Lerigot starts to send Zordon and Alpha on their way but before he can the worm hole starts to close. Zordon sends the Power Rangers to find the device and destroy it. Divatox sends Elgar and the frog guy to stop the Power Rangers, but the Power Rangers beat them and destroy the device. The Power Rangers go back to the Power Chamber and Lerigot sends Zordon and Alpha back to their homes. Lerigot leaves and the Power Rangers stand around wondering who Zordon got to replace himself. Then Alpha 6 shows up and introduces Demetria, who will be replacing Zordon. Divatox realizes she was right about Demetria being the one who was coming. She says that Demetria is totally good and that she is totally evil and that she is not HAPPY!

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Douglas Sloan

1 - 2 SHADOW RANGERS

Justin is helping Tommy work on a car. His foot gets stuck on the gas pedal and he makes the car overload. Tommy and Justin notice that a lot of things have been stolen from the garage lately. Divatox has the Chromite make a Refracto Detonator. The detonator is hidden inside some paint cans that they send down to Angel Grove. The paint is spilling from the cans and when it makes a rainbow it will explode. Adam, Kat, and Tanya meet up with the Chromite and they try to shift into turbo. When they do the Chromite steals their morphing energy and gives it to the Shadow Rangers. This gives the Shadow Rangers their Power Rangers Turbo powers. Adam, Kat, and Tanya have to fight the Shadow Rangers as themselves without their powers. The Shadow Rangers win and take them to the chromite cave. Justin makes a homing device to catch the thief that has been stealing things from the garage. Justin and Tommy go to where the Chromite is and Justin tries to shift into turbo, but the Chromite gives his powers to a Shadow Ranger. The Shadow Rangers take Justin to the cave. Tommy goes to the Power Chamber and figures out what the Shadow Rangers aren't real and are made out of light. Justin has turned on the homing device he has in his pocket so Tommy can find them. Tommy runs into the Shadow Rangers and he gets them into the dark and they disappear. He shifts into turbo and goes to the cave. He destroys the light in the cave and the last Shadow Ranger disappears. The Power Rangers Turbo realize that the Chromite leaves foot prints that they can see with the lights from their helmets. They follow the foot prints and find the Chromite. they use their Turbo Megazord to block the sun and the Chromite and detonator dissolve. Justin and Tommy find out that the chimps, Bulk and Skull, have been taking their stuff and that Ernie is gone and the Lieutenant is going to be running the Juice Bar from now on.

Wr Mark Hoffmeier

Dir Judd Lynn

1 - 3 TRANSMISSION IMPOSSIBLE

Tanya works at radio station KAGV-FM. She hears an mysterious message on the radio. The person sending the message says he wants to talk to Demetria. Divatox also hears the message and sends Elgar to blow up the radio station. Tanya tells Kat to go to the Power Chamber to check out the mysterious radio transmission and tell Demetria about it. Elgar gets to the radio station and leaves a bomb there to blow it up. Kat and Adam are at the Power Chamber trying to get the transmission. They find out the person sending the message is Visarol and he tells them that there might be other ears listening to the message. Divatox sends a capture ray to bring Visarol back. Tanya looks at her Turbo navigator and finds out there is a bomb in the vicinity. When Visarol is brought back by the capture ray, Divatox flips him and then sends him to the sea caves. Tanya tries to send a message to the Power Chamber, but she can't. So she uses the radio to broadcast a coded message to the Power Rangers. The Power Rangers understand her message and go to find the bomb at the radio station. Divatox sees that the Power Rangers are going there and sends her Piranhatrons to stop them. The Power Rangers have to fight them and win. The Power Rangers head for the tower to disarm the bomb. Visarol tries to stop them and the bomb blows up in his hands. This makes him change back to normal and he feels bad for fighting the Power Rangers. They take him back to the Power Chamber and Demetria repairs him and he tells her his message. Demetria finds out she has a twin sister she never knew about. Who can it be??

Wr Tony Oliver, Barbara A. Oliver

Dir Al Winchell

1 - 4 RALLY RANGER

There is a soapbox car race and Justin is in it. Another kid in the race pushes Justin into a hay stack and his car gets messed up. Justin says he will never be able to fix his car, True Blue, before tomorrow's race. Divatox asks Porto for a detonator to destroy the race track and Porto complains and then he runs away. Justin wishes he wasn't so smart, but Tommy tells him something that makes him feel better about it and then he goes to fix his car. Justin falls asleep while working on his car, but it is fixed the next day. Divatox is trying to figure out where Porto is, but no one knows. Elgar wants to do Porto's job and fix the detonator to destroy the race track. When he goes to the race track to put the detonator there, he puts it in the back of a car, called the Mean Machine. Mean Machine happens to belong to the kid who pushed Justin's car the day before and who thinks he's going to win. Porto decides to destroy Angel Grove to get the respect he thinks he deserves. Divatox says Porto is ruining her plan and tells Elgar to get him. Just before the race Justin is called away to help the Power Rangers. The Power Rangers shift into turbo and go to stop Porto. They fight him and use their weapons to beat him, but Divatox takes him back before the fight is over. Back at the race the Mean Machine car has an explosion and the kid driving it is out of control. Justin gets to the race and saves the kid, who thanks him and apologizes for pushing him. They decide run the race again.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Al Winchell

1 - 5 BUILT FOR SPEED

The radio station is doing a play called "Bringing Back The 50s". After the practice is over, two of the main actors in the play decided to drag race. Adam told them that it was illegal and they told him thank you for nothing and were going to do it anyway. Divatox had Porto create a detonator and gave it to Speed Demon. Speed Demon failed and his detonator didn't work. The Power Rangers Turbo destroyed Speed Demon. Porto made another Speed Demon and gave him another detonator and sent him to Angel Grove. He put the detonator in a drag racer at Devil's Bluff where the two actors are going to race. Divatox sends down some missiles to Speed Demon 2 to make him grow. The Power Rangers Turbo had to come and use their Turbo MegaZord to defeat Speed Demon 2. While the drag race was going on the monkeys, Bulk and Skull, covered the two actors' eyes and they went over a cliff. The Turbo Megazord caught them. The Green Ranger teleported to a car and found the detonator and threw it out in the air and it exploded. Then the Green Ranger told the two actors they were lucky this time, but they shouldn't ever race again because next time there might not be anyone there to catch them.

Wr Ralph Soll

Dir Judd Lynn

1 - 6 BICYCLE BUILT FOR THE BLUES

It is Justin's birthday and he thinks the rest of the Power Rangers have forgotten it. He finds a bicycle in an alley with a card on it. On the outside of the card it said "To Justin". Divatox had sent the Burpatron monster down to Angel Grove with the bicycle because she knew it was Justin's birthday. But she had the monster put a detonator on Justin's new bike. While Justin was riding the bike he ran into Burpatron and she put a spell on the bike. Justin could not get off the bicycle. Alpha showed the other Power Rangers Justin's problem in the viewing globe and they went to help. They found Burpatron on another bike, following Justin who still couldn't get off the bike. The Power Rangers chased after Burpatron, but she got away. They decided they would catch her later and went looking for Justin. They found him and then Tommy used the Turbo Megazord while it was still small and pulled Justin off the bike. The detonator on the bicycle blew up but no one got hurt. Burpatron came back and tried to fight the Power Rangers, but she couldn't win. So Divatox sent two growing missiles to make Burpatron grow. The Power Rangers Turbo had to use their Turbo Megazord to fight her and they blow her up. When they all get back to the Motor Club, Justin finds a surprise birthday party for him and his dad was even there. Justin ended up having a happy birthday after all.

Wr Shell Danielson

Dir Judd Lynn

1 - 7 THE WHOLE LIE

Tommy is at the race track as usual. At the Angel Grove Youth Center, the community is doing a car wash to raise money for the Angel Grove baseball team. Porto is watching and he puts a detonator in an empty bucket. Justin sees Porto so he follows him. Porto sees Justin following him and calls a monster named Mouth Piece, who uses his lie gun to make Justin lie. Each time Justin lies a Piranhatron will appear. Kat is looking for Justin so she asks Tanya, who says she thinks Justin went around the corner. At the car wash the monkeys (Bulk and Skull) get an idea about Lieutenant Stone. Bulk grabs the hose that the Lieutenant had and bent it. When the Lieutenant looked at the hose Bulk let it go and it sprayed him. Justin lied a bunch because of the lie gun and a lot of Piranhatrons came. Kat, Adam, Justin, and Tanya have to fight them all. Kat, Adam, and Tanya have to fight Mouth Piece. Divatox sent the growing missile to Mouth Piece. The Power Rangers Turbo called their zords and destroyed him. Then the Power Rangers looked for the detonator and found it in time.

Wr Mark Litton

Dir Al Winchell

1 - 8 GLYPH HANGER

Adam is doing the Egyptian stunt show at the amusement park. Divatox's periscope pops up on the stage in a pot of water and she sees the show. It gives her the idea to send her ex-boyfriend, Pharoah, to the show. Pharoah goes backstage, but Adam and the professor come in and Pharoah freezes like a statue. Adam asks the professor if he can take home the staff he uses during his fight in the show. He accidentally takes Pharoah's staff instead. Once he has Pharoah's staff all the writing on the stage turns into hieroglyphics. Divatox sends the Piranhatrons to get the staff back for Pharoah and Adam, Kat, and Tanya get attacked by them. Even though the Power Rangers Turbo are winning the fight, one of the Piranhatrons takes the staff and gets away. Adam can't figure out why they want his staff, which is just a prop. They find out it isn't Adam's staff because the professor shows up at the ice cream shop with the prop staff and asks Adam why he didn't take it. The Power Rangers figure out that the other staff is Pharoah's after they go back to the stage and find Pharoah. Then the Power Rangers find a pyramid, but when they try to pick it up it zaps them. Then Pharoah shows up and they have to fight him. In the left of the fight Divatox sends a growing missile to make Pharoah grow. The Power Rangers have to use their zord to fight him and cut Pharoah in half with their sword and shatter his staff, and he blows up. Then all the writing changes back to normal.

Wr Steven J. Weller

Dir Paul Schrier

1 - 9 WEIGHT AND SEE

Kat got the main part in the Nutcracker ballet. One of the other girls who wanted that part was mean to Kat and told her she was too big. Justin and Adam were on the beach setting up tide markers for Justin's science project. Divatox's submarine was by Angel Grove and Elgar saw Justin and Adam through the periscope. Divatox sends Numbor, a monster who could change anything to do with measurements, and he calls the Piranhatrons. Adam and Justin fight the Piranhatrons and they are winning when the Piranhatrons disappear. Adam and Justin see that the tide is a lot higher than it is supposed to be and they go check it out. Tommy, Kat, and Tanya are having lunch and Kat decides she doesn't want to eat. She is worried about how she looks for the ballet. A Divatox periscope pops up in her drink and hears her say that. Divatox sends Numbor to Angel Grove with a detonator to keep the Power Rangers busy while she sinks Angel Grove into the ocean. Numbor finds Kat and zaps her with a ray that makes her so light that she floats away. Tommy and Tanya go to the Power Chamber and call Adam and Justin to show them Kat's problem. Alpha shows them Numbor planting the detonator and Tommy, Tanya, Justin, and Adam shift into turbo and go to fight him. Numbor makes Tommy, Adam, and Tanya each weigh 1000 pounds. Then he makes Justin so light he almost flies away too. Demetria tells Kat that she is the only one who can deal with her problems. Kat realizes it's not how she looks, but what's inside that matters, and she goes back to normal. She shifts into turbo and transports to the beach. Numbor's spells won't work on her anymore and she beats him. Divatox sends a growing missile to Numbor. The Power Rangers use their Zords to make the Turbo MegaZord to fight Numbor. They beat him and then destroy the detonator. Later, Kat does a great job at her ballet and everyone likes it.

Wr Peter Elwell

Dir Paul Schrier

1 - 10 ALARMED AND DANGEROUS

Justin is at school taking a test and Reggie and Junior want him to cheat and give them the answers. Justin says no, but the teacher hears him and thinks he is cheating too. Reggie threatens Justin. Then the fire alarm goes off, but is a false alarm. Justin saw Reggie and Junior pull the fire alarm and Kat has him tell what he saw. Divatox is watching through her periscope and sees that false alarms can cause trouble. She sends Piranhatrons to set off every alarm they can find to make lots of confusion. Reggie and Junior are mad at Justin for telling on them and making them get detention. Alarms are going off everywhere and school is let out early because of it. Divatox sends Elgar and Rygog down to Angel Grove with a detonator, but no one will find it because of all the false alarms going off. Kat and Justin see some Piranhatrons setting off an alarm and they have to fight them. They go to the Power Chamber and let the others know what is going on. Elgar and Rygog put the detonator on a fire truck. The Power Rangers split up to look for the detonator. While Justin is looking for the detonator Reggie and Junior find him and start a fight. Justin decides he doesn't want to fight and runs off. Kat figures out where the detonator is and tells the other. They shift into turbo and meet at the fire truck, but it is too late and the detonator goes off. It turns the fire truck into a Hot Monster. The Power Rangers Turbo have to fight the monster and when they combine their fire power they win. Later, Reggie tells Justin he is going to beat him up, but after Reggie and Justin talk they work it out and become friends.

Wr Brett D. Born

Dir Paul Schrier

1 - 11 THE MILLENNIUM MESSAGE

Skull stole Adam's magic wand and was playing with it. He waved it and said abracadabra. At that exact second an earthquake happened, caused by a space ship entering the Earth's atmosphere. The space ship shattered into a lot of pieces. One of the pieces landed on the Angel Grove beach. Divatox found one of the pieces and it had the Blue Centurion in it. Divatox took the Blue Centurion to her submarine and turned him on. He told her he wanted to talk to Demetria. Divatox imitated Demetria's voice for the Blue Centurion. Then she re-programmed him and told him the Power Rangers Turbo were bad. Divatox sent an eating monster to Angel Grove. Tommy has to fight the monster. The other Power Rangers show up and help him fight. Divatox sends two missiles to make the monster grow. The Power Rangers get their Turbo Zords and make the Mega TurboZord. They do a Turbo spinout and cut the monster in half and it explodes. The Power Rangers went to the Power Chamber and saw the Blue Centurion on their viewing globe. He had short-circuited. They went and got him and found out that his memory circuits had burned out. They only got to see half the message he was bringing to Demetria. At the end, Adam does a magic show and he pulls the monkeys Bulk and Skull out of a big hat.

Wr Mark Litton

Dir Larry Kent Litton

1 - 12 A DRIVE TO WIN

Adam is the coach of the Angel Grove soccer team. While the team is practicing, Divatox's periscope pops up in the team's water cooler and sees the team. She gets the idea to set a detonator at the big soccer game tomorrow. Tommy is teaching Tanya and Kat karate. Bulk and Skull (who are still monkeys) decide to act like the cheerleaders. Divatox sends a school of Piranhatrons to the soccer team practice and Adam has to fight them all. Adam then calls Alpha and tells him to call the other Power Rangers Turbo. Adam tells the Power Rangers about the practice and the Piranhatrons. The next day, it is Adam and the team's big game day. Divatox has sent a Piranhatron to set a detonator that will go off when Angel Grove scores four goals. Justin was at the game and had a Turbo Navigator with him. He found the detonator behind the scoreboard and he picked it up. Justin turned off the detonator right when Angel Grove scored its fourth goal. Angel Grove won the game and no detonators went off.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Larry Kent Litton

1 - 13 CARS ATTACKS

Kat is trying out to become part of a big dance group. This is really important to her and she really wants to get into the dance company. While she is doing her tryout things start to go wrong in Angel Grove. All the cars in the town start to come alive because of a spell on them. The cars find the Power Rangers Turbo and attack them. The Power Rangers have to fight them. After a big fight they win and save themselves and Angel Grove.

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Judd Lynn

1 - 14 HONEY, I SHRUNK THE RANGERS (PART 1)

It is Clean Angel Grove day and there is a prize for cleaning up the trash. The Mayor is talking to Angel Grove about cleaning up the city and a lot of people are going to help. Adam and Tommy are supposed to be working on the same cleaning crew, but they get separated. Bulk and Skull, who are still monkeys, have an idea. They are going to clean up and win the prize. They steal the keys to the Lieutenant's car. Divatox looks through her periscope and sees the Power Rangers Turbo. She sends Elgar with a school of Piranhatrons to Angel Grove. Adam has to fight the Piranhatrons. The Blue Centurion comes and Elgar leaves. Divatox asks Porto if the Shrink-A-Set monster is ready to go down to Angel Grove. When Porto says yes she gives Shrink-A-Set a detonator. Shrink-A-Set tries to get into the youth center. The monkeys open the door to the center and knock Shrink-A-Set down. He drops the detonator and the monkeys pick it up as their first piece of trash. They put it into the back of the car and go to find more trash. Shrink-A-Set shrinks down and gets into the Blue Centurion's helmet and short circuits him. The Power Rangers Turbo come to fight Shrink-A-Set They open the Blue Centurion's helmet and Shrink-A-Set flies out. He shrinks the Blue Centurion and then the Power Rangers Turbo shift into turbo. Shrink-A-Set shrinks them too and takes them away. When Justin shows up the Blue Centurion tells him that the Power Rangers got shrunk and were taken away. Elgar tells Divatox that he knows that she always wanted the Power Rangers on a silver platter, but how about a silver box instead? The Power Rangers now have wings.

Wr Shell Danielson

Dir Judd Lynn

2 - 1 HONEY, I SHRUNK THE RANGERS (PART 2)

The shrunken Power Rangers escape from the box that Elgar gave them to Divatox in. They go running around Divatox's submarine, and Divatox and everyone chase them around, trying to catch them. The Power Rangers launch two missiles from the submarrine and ride them to get back to Angel Grove. The missiles blow up and the explosion turns the Power Rangers back to normal. Bulk and Skull grow back to their normal size too, but now no one can see them.

Wr Shell Danielson

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 2 PASSING THE TORCH (1-2)

The Power Rangers are going camping. Three of them go ahead to set up everything and the other two are coming later. A Flamite monster comes down to Angel Grove and attacks the Power Rangers who are already at the camp. He keeps making things hot and the Power Rangers are having a hard time with him. Meanwhile, Tommy and Kat are on their way to the camp in Tommy's truck. Some Piranhatrons attack the truck and kidnap him. Two people, named Cassie and TJ, see Kat and help her defeat the Piranhatrons. They go and save Tommy. The Power Rangers defeat Flamite and finish camping. Kat leaves TJ and Cassie and goes to join the other Power Rangers. They defeat Flamite. TJ and Cassie find out where Tommy is and go save him. When the Power Rangers get back to the Power Chamber they find there is another part of the chamber they didn't know about. There is a big rock in the middle of it. On one side of the rock is Alpha 5 and Zordon and on the other side is Alpha 6 and Demetria. They explain to the Power Rangers that they have to stop being Power Rangers and they have to pick someone to take over for them. Justin will still be the Blue Ranger. Cassie, Ashley, TJ, and Carlos are in the center of the room. Cassie is the new Pink Ranger and Ashley will be the Yellow Ranger. TJ becomes the Red Ranger and Carlos is the new Green Ranger.

Wr Shuki Levy, Shell Danielson

Dir Shuki Levy

2 - 3 STITCH WITCHERY

Ashley was at a fashion show when someone came and said "nice jacket." She said thank you and told them she thought it was cool too. The person said "not that one, the one you're wearing" and she left. Ashley left with Casey and suddenly a black limousine came out of nowhere. A woman got out and told Ashley she liked her jacket and gave Ashley her card. The card said 123 Cha Cha Fashion. Then she got back into the limousine and Divatox was in the limousine. The woman turned into a monster. Then Divatox was making jackets that made the people who wore them angry. Four of the Power Rangers put on some of Divatox's jackets. The jackets made them fight with RoboRacer and Turbo MegaZord. TJ jumped into RoboRacer and took off the jacket. Divatox sent two growing missiles and made the monster grow and the Power Rangers destroyed it.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Blair Treu

2 - 4 THE WHEELS OF FATE

Divatox found a map that showed where the Lightning Cruiser and the Storm Blaster were. She made a monster to go and find them. They flew to Earth to look for them. Elgar tried to take them with him, but the Power Rangers Turbo got there. They used the Lightning Cruiser and got the Storm Blaster. Then Elgar took it away from them. The Power Rangers Turbo had to defeat the monster and Elgar. They got the Lightning Cruiser and Storm Blaster back.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Blair Treu

2 - 5 TROUBLE BY THE SLICE

Divatox tries out her new transporter and it backfires on her. It zaps her and she gets amnesia. Divatox finds a pizza parlor and starts to work there. Bulk and Skull are pizza delivery guys at the pizza parlor and they get lost. Divatox gets hit by her eye beams and remembers everything. She releases a pizza monster and he terrorizes Angel Grove. The Power Rangers Turbo come to save the town and he throws pizza bombs at them. The pizza bombs make them fly into an oven. More ingredients are added and the Power Rangers get baked into a pizza. RoboRanger sees the pizza monster and fights him. The Power

Rangers get loose and they defeat the pizza monster and save Angel Grove.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Yuri Alexander

2 - 6 THE PHANTOM PHENOMENOM

Justin is playing soccer when he and his friend see a weird blue beam. His friend goes searching for a ball that was kicked over the fence and see something. Divatox is counting gold and she says it is not enough. She sees the Angel Grove bank and that gives her an idea to get more money. Justin's friend drags him off to see the spaceships he found. Bulk and Skull are guarding the Angel Grove bank. Bulk thinks a lady is hiding money from the bank in her grocery bag, but when he looks inside she has only ice cream. Divatox sends some PiranhaTrons to the bank. They untied Bulk's shoes and snuck in while he was retying them. Alpha tells Demetria that Divatox is robbing the bank. An invisible force is fighting the PiranhaTrons. The Power Rangers Turbo show up and think it might be a trap and the the PiranhaTrons disappear. The witnesses at the bank tell the Power Rangers they thought the invisible force was some sort of phantom. The Rangers go to the Power Chamber and discuss the phantom with Demetria. They look for it in a surveillance camera and find that the PiranhaTrons are causing trouble at the gold mine. The Rangers go to stop them, but the phantom gets there first. The pink ranger sees the phantom and ask him who he is. He says he is a friend. When she describes him to the others back at the Power Chamber, Demetria says he is from the planet Alton. Justin remembers the spaceship from the soccer game and goes to check it out again. The PiranhaTrons follow him. The other Power Rangers are looking for him too. Justin and his friend get captured by the PiranhaTrons. The PiranhaTrons set a detonator on the spaceship. Justin's friend runs away and he starts fighting the PiranhaTrons. The detonator is counting down and the phantom has to go save his ship. He comes back and helps Justin fight and then the rest of the Rangers show up. Divatox send 2 torpedoes to destroy the spaceship and it blows up. Then the phantom brings the ship back, gets in it, and goes back to space.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Blair Treu

2 - 7 VANISHING ACT

Three of the Power Rangers Turbo were playing basketball when their ball suddenly disappeared. Meanwhile at the Youth Center a monster named Translucent made the whole center go to his dimension. Uh-Oh! Now all of Angel Grove is gone. The Power Rangers teleported to the Power Chamber, but it wasn't there. They were really in the Power Chamber but they couldn't tell it was there. They thought it was missing so they went to Angel Grove Lake. Some invisible PiranhaTrons attacked them. Luckily, the Phantom Ranger showed up and helped them out. The Power Rangers called their vehicles, but they still kept getting hit. They called their Turbo MegaZord and used it to fight Translucent. They managed to defeat Translucent. Back at the Youth Center the Pink Ranger was talking to the yellow Ranger about the Phantom Ranger and trying to figure out who he was.

Wr John Fletcher

Dir Yuri Alexander

2 - 8 WHEN TIME FREEZES OVER

Divatox planned to freeze the sun with a missile that had a freeze key in it. The Power Rangers Turbo and the Shadow Ranger stopped her from doing it. Divatox made a time monster called the Clockster so she could go back in time to get the freeze key again. Justin and Carlos were looking for the freeze key and the Clockster touched the freeze key and froze them in time. The Phantom Ranger showed up and got the freeze key and unfroze the Rangers. The Power Rangers Turbo were fighting Clockster and Elgar. They hit Clockster and time went backwards. Divatox fired two growing missiles at the Clockster and he got very large. Then the Power Rangers Turbo used their Megazord and destroyed Clockster. The Power Rangers gave the freeze key to Lieutenant Stone and he turned it into a popsicle making machine. Divatox planned to freeze the sun with a missile that had a freeze key in it. The Power Rangers Turbo and the Shadow Ranger stopped her from doing it. Divatox made a time monster called the Clockster so she could go back in time to get the freeze key again. Justin and Carlos were looking for the freeze key and the Clockster touched the freeze key and froze them in time. The Phantom Ranger showed up and got the freeze key and unfroze the Rangers. The Power Rangers Turbo were fighting Clockster and Elgar. They hit Clockster and time went backwards. Divatox fired two growing missiles at the Clockster and he got very large. Then the Power Rangers Turbo used their Megazord and destroyed Clockster. The Power Rangers gave the freeze key to Lieutenant Stone and he turned it into a popsicle making machine. Divatox planned to freeze the sun with a missile that had a freeze key in it. The Power Rangers Turbo and the Shadow Ranger stopped her from doing it. Divatox made a time monster called the Clockster so she could go back in time to get the freeze key again. Justin and Carlos were looking for the freeze key and the Clockster touched the freeze key and froze them in time. The Phantom Ranger showed up and got the freeze key and unfroze the Rangers. The Power Rangers Turbo were fighting Clockster and Elgar. They hit Clockster and time went backwards. Divatox fired two growing missiles at the Clockster and he got vary large. Then the Power Rangers Turbo used their Megazord and destroyed Clockster. The Power Rangers gave the freeze key to Lieutenant Stone and he turned it into a popsicle making machine.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Yuri Alexander

2 - 9 THE DARKEST DAY (PART 1 OF 2)

Divatox sent Elgar to kill the Red and Pink Rangers and Elgar messed up again. The Power Rangers saw Elgar and fought him with the Thunder Cruiser and Star Blaster and they defeated him. Divatox got a call from her brother and she took off out of the lake. She went to the space base. Then she sent her brother down to the ground with Metalosaurus. At the same time Bulk and Skull were doing a monster tour. The Power Rangers Turbo were fighting with the Metalosaurus. Bulk and Skull saw it and ran and then other people saw it and ran too. The Power Rangers still keep fighting Metalosaurus using their Turbo MegaZord. When the Power Rangers use their Turbo Spin Out, Metalosaurus grabs the sword and breaks it and then he sends his robot troops they break into the MegaZord through its eyes. The Power Rangers get thrown out of the MegaZord. Then Metalosaurus takes the MegaZord up to the Space Base. This made the Power Rangers sad. The Phantom Ranger came and told them there was another hope. To Be Continued.

Wr John Fletcher

Dir Steve Markowitz

2 - 10 ONE LAST HOPE (PART 2 OF 2)

The Power Rangers shift into Turbo. Bulk and Skull tour Angel Grove and they see a monster. The Power Rangers fight the monster and do all they can. Divatox sends a Power beam and the Lightning Cruiser goes down. The Power Rangers call the Turbine Laser. The PiranhaTrons attack and then the Phantom Ranger appears. The Power Rangers follow the Phantom Ranger. The Power Rangers and the Phantom Ranger were in the Phantom Ranger's secret tunnel. There was a cave in. To get to the Rescue Zords that the Phantom Ranger wanted to show them they had to laser a hole in the boulders. The Power Rangers saw the Rescue Zords and used them to destroy the monster. Meanwhile Bulk and Skull are putting on pads to protect them from the monsters. The Lieutenant told them they weren't manning a battle tank, just doing a tour of Angel Grove on a yellow bus.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Steve Markowitz

2 - 11 PARTS AND PARCEL

Bulk and Skull were bringing a package to Lieutenant Stone and it was empty. It was the Daytime Thief who had stolen the stuff inside. He had struck again. Bulk and Skull's boss thought they had stolen the stuff. TJ helped them do a stakeout, but Bulk and Skull didn't see the thief or the stolen stuff. They did another stakeout, this time with the Power Rangers. They saw some PiranhaTrons stealing parts to make a remote control for three Zords. They attacked them using the Tree Zord and defeated them using the auxiliary power. They get the remote control and bring it to the police. Bulk and Skull didn't get arrested and got their jobs back. They asked for a big new truck and an AM/FM radio. Bulk hugged TJ because he saved his life. TJ said it was ok.

Wr John Fletcher

Dir Liberty Goldman

2 - 12 THE FALL OF THE PHANTOM (PART 1 OF 2)

Casey was daydreaming about the Phantom Ranger because she has a crush on him. Divatox is planning to get the Phantom Ranger's ruby. She kidnaps Casey because she wants the ruby and the Phantom Ranger likes Casey. She plans to turn Casey into stone. The Phantom Ranger shows up and uses his ruby. Casey escaped and a Metalosaurus monster attacked the Power Rangers. They called their Rescue High-Stance Mode and fought the monster to free the Phantom Ranger. That didn't work so they switched to their Rescue MegaZord. They used their artillery power and destroyed the Metalosaurus. The Phantom Ranger is hiding in his secret tunnel. Casey and the other Power Rangers say they will find the ruby and put it back in the Phantom Ranger's chest because it is his power source. They are also trying to find the Phantom Ranger because he was in a cage the last time they saw him. The Phantom Ranger said his job was done. To be continued in the Clash Of the Megazords.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Steve Markowitz

2 - 13 CLASH OF THE MEGAZORDS (PART 2 OF 2)

Divatox took the Phantom Ranger's ruby. Without the ruby he has no power and he is dead now. The Power Rangers Turbo are looking for the Phantom Ranger. They find him and take him to the Power Chamber, where they put him on life support. The Rangers make a magnet to pull Divatox's space base down to Angel Grove. Divatox puts the Phantom Ranger's ruby into the Turbo Megazord charged it up.

The Power Rangers Turbo use their magnet and it works. Divatox sends a monster to destroy the magnet and he succeeds. Then Divatox sends the Turbo Megazord down to Angel Grove to destroy the Power Rangers. The Power Rangers use their new Zord, the Rescue Megazord to fight the Turbo Megazord. The Rangers get the Phantom Ranger's ruby back. Divatox sends two growing missiles and her monster grows, but the Power Rangers manage to defeat him. They go put the ruby back into the Phantom Ranger, just in time, and he thanks them.

Wr Brett D. Born

Dir Steve Markowitz

2 - 14 THE ROBOT RANGER

Justin thinks Ashley is a robot. Bulk and Skull are giving tennis lessons when a monster comes to Angel Grove. The Power Rangers have to get their Zords and destroy the monster. Divatox got real mad and Porto to get a monster that would give the Power Rangers a charge. Porto gave Divatox a Chargeatron monster. When the Power Rangers were having lunch Justin broke TJ's walkman. He fixed it and was giving it back when he saw a weird machine in TJ's locker. Chargeatron was attacking Angel Grove, so there was no time for Justin to worry about the machine now. The Power Rangers destroyed the chargeatron. Then Justin found out he was a robot and the real Justin was in the Power Chamber. The robot Justin got sent to another planet, along with the other robot Power Rangers, and the real Power Rangers stayed on Earth to defend it.

Wr John Fletcher

Dir Larry Kent Litton

2 - 15 BEWARE THE THIRD WISH (PART 1 OF 2)

Justin wished his dad would come back. Divatox sent a Wishatron monster to get a wishing coin. The monster got it and two more coins and made three wishing coins. Elgar wished for hair. Divatox wished the Blue Centurion would turn bad and fight the Power Rangers. Elgar kidnapped the Blue Centurion and took him to the Space Base. The Power Rangers had to fight Wishatron and Divatox sent two growing missiles to make him grow. The Power Rangers called their Rescue Zord. They fought Wishatron with their artillery power and they destroyed him. Divatox calls another monster. The Power Rangers took Turbo Navigators and looked for the wishing coins. Divatox dropped her last coin and Bulk and Skull use it in an arcade game.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Larry Kent Litton

2 - 16 THE GARDENER OF EVIL (PART 2 OF 2)

Divatox calls a monster called the Wild Weeder to find her third wishing coin. Meanwhile Bulk and Skull have it and use it in an arcade pinball machine. It blows up the machine. The Lieutenant gets angry with Bulk and Skull as usual. He tells them he's found a job for them at a nursery. Bulk and Skull say "cool we like babys" but the Lieutenant tells them it's a plant nursery. When they get there they find out they have to shovel cow manure on the plants. Meanwhile, Wild Weeder uses seeds on the people of Angel Grove. They become Diva-drones and are ordered to search for the third wishing coin. The Blue Centurion is working for Divatox because she wished for it with the second wishing coin. So he and the Wild Weeder team up to search for the third coin. The Power Rangers fight the Centurion and lose both the Storm Blaster and the Lightning Cruiser. Then the Wild Weeder calls the robot bees to totally take over the vehicles. But the Power Rangers stop them. Next the Blue Centurion calls the Robot Racer into action and the Rangers call out the Rescue Zords and use the High Stance Mode. But they are still having a tough time with the Blue Centurion's Robot Racer. Meanwhile Bulk and Skull are being chased by the Diva-drones and almost use the wishing coin to wish for them to be rich. But they decide to give the coin to the Power Rangers, proving once again that they can be heroes in their own way. When Justin gets the coin he says he would like to use the coin to wish for his father's return. But decides against it and uses it to make the Blue Centurion good again. Divatox sees that she has lost control of the Blue Centurion and launches a growth missile unto the Wild Weeder. The Power Rangers use the Rescue Zords to form Rescue Megazord and kick the Wild Weeder's butt. At the end Justin's father comes home, this time for good. He now has a job in Angel Grove.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Larry Kent Litton

2 - 17 FIRE IN YOUR TANK

TJ was riding in the Lightning Cruiser to test a new booster fuel. Divatox saw the Lightning Cruiser and decided she wanted it. Elgar went to the test site to get the Lightning Cruiser. The Power Rangers fought with Elgar to stop him from taking the Lightning Cruiser and they won. Elgar stole the booster fuel they were using in the Lightning Cruiser. He took it back and they used it in the Divamobile. The fuel made the Divamobile fly but it set the forest on fire. Bulk and Skull were working as forest rangers and they saw the fire and panicked. The Lightning Cruiser has to go in and save them. Divatox sends a monster out to fight the Power Rangers. Then she sends two growing missiles to make him grow real large. The Power Rangers called the Rescue MegaZord to help them and they won and they put out the fire.

Wr John Fletcher

Dir Steve Markowitz

2 - 18 TURN OF THE WRETCHED WRENCH

Ashley and Carlos are fixing a car but they mess it up. Meanwhile Divatox is mad because Elgar screwed up the telescope. They called the Mr. Fix-It monster and he came and fixed the telescope. She told the monster she had another use for him. She asked him to make a mobile. He told her just needed some parts. He decided to go the Angel Grove work shop to find the parts he needed. While he was there two Power Rangers found him. he escaped in the Divamobile. Divatox sent two growing missiles and Mr. Fix-It grew. The Power Rangers Turbo use the Rescue MegaZord and they destroy him. Bulk and Skull are tow truck drivers and their tow truck breaks down. Ashley has to fix the truck for them.

Wr John Fletcher

Dir Steve Markowitz

2 - 19 SPIRIT OF THE WOODS

Three teenagers drive up and park in the woods and begin to throw trash out of their jeep onto the ground. A kid watches from behind a tree and becomes upset. He waves his hand and the wind begins to blow. The message "go away" is written in leaves on their windshield, and this frightens them away. Then the kid disappears, reappears, and disappears again. TJ gets a shake drink from Lieutenant Stone at the youth center and then goes on his daily jog. While jogging TJ stops to pick up some litter and turns around and the same kid from before is there. He say "hello, who are you? My name is TJ." The kid says his name is Erutan. Then TJ hears a noise and he looks around and when he turns back, Erutan has disappeared. TJ turns to leave and a piece of trash begins following him and turns into a monster. TJ shifts into Turbo and challenges the monster while Erutan watches everything from behind a tree. TJ is losing his fight and Erutan jumps out and causes a hurricane to blow away Littertron. Then he disappears again. Littertron tells Divatox about the boy and she sends Elgar and Littertron after the kid. TJ is in the library when he figures out that Erutan is Nature spelled backwards. TJ spots Erutan watching him and takes off after him. The kid thanked TJ and TJ thanked him for helping him out. TJ goes to Demetria and tells her about Erutan. Meanwhile Bulk and Skull are delivering newspapers. TJ is jogging through the woods again and meets up with Erutan. He tries to tell him he is in danger, and then he is captured by the mutants. TJ shifts into Turbo and calls the rest of the Rangers. They fight the mutants and get Erutan loose, but the rest of the Rangers can't see who TJ is talking to. Erutan draws lightning from the sky and it strikes Littertron. Somehow the Rangers are stuck in trash cans, but they get loose and call for the Turbine Laser. The laser knocks down Littertron, but Divatox sends some growth torpedoes. TJ tells the Rangers that he has to help Erutan who they still can't see, but that they have to fight Littertron without him. The Rangers call out the Rescue Megazords and they defeat Littertron. TJ says goodbye to Erutan and the rangers show up and they can finally see Erutan.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Steve Markowitz

2 - 20 SONG OF CONFUSION

Cassie and a friend were auditioning people to be in their band. Cassie asked who was first and Bulk said it was him and Skull. Cassie told Bulk she was sorry but they couldn't use him. The next people to audition were called Crash and The Creeps. They sang their song of confusion. Cassie told them it was perfect and they could use them. Cassie's friend told everyone else it was too bad they couldn't use them all and then had to step out for a minute. Cassie said it was her first concert. What they didn't know was that Divatox had sent Crash and The Creeps to destroy the Power Rangers and they were really monsters. They turned into monsters in front of the Power Rangers and they fought. They left and got a Ranger Scrambler and used it on the Power Rangers. The Power Rangers had to get their Turbo Racer Cannon. Then Divatox sent two growing missiles to the monsters and the Power Rangers had to use the Turbo MegaZord. The Power Rangers used the Turbo Spinout and defeated the monsters.

Wr John Fletcher

Dir Blair Treu

2 - 21 THE ACCIDENT

The coach called Owen and Carlos and told them they were team captain contestants. Carlos and Justin were talking and the team asked Carlos if he wanted to play or work on his sportsmanship. Justin said for Carlos to go on. Carlos went to play and he slide tackled Owen and got the ball and scored. When he looked to find Owen he was on the ground holding his leg. The coach came and took Owen to the emergency room. later at practice Carlos was worrying about Owen and not paying attention to the practice. Divatox sent a squad of PiranhaTrons disguised as Owen and other teammates. The other Power Rangers showed up and Carlos asked them what was wrong. The Power Rangers tell him those guys are Piranahtrons. He fights them and gets slammed on a fence. The Blue Centurion came and talked to Carlos and he left. Divatox sent Elgar in a Zord. The Blue Centurion got RoboRacer, but he got defeated. Porto was trying to tell Divatox something, but she told him to shut up. The Power Rangers came. Divatox asked Porto what he wanted and he told her the Zord wasn't finished. It was missing the pin that held it together. Then the Zord's arm fell off. Elgar picked it up and went back. Later Owen told Carlos he stumbled over his own feet and it wasn't his fault, he just wanted to blame it on someone other than himself.

Wr John Fletcher

Dir Blair Treu

2 - 22 CASSIE'S BEST FRIEND

Cassie was playing Frisbee with Jetson, her dog. Meanwhile Divatox sent Mr. Goo to turn the Power Rangers into turtles, rats and bugs. Mr. Goo turned Jetson into a human named Jefro. Jefro tried to help Cassie find Jetson. He played with Cassie and then ate cheeseburgers with extra cheese and then they went back to the Angel Grove center Jefro left because he was turning back into a dog. Elgar started fighting the Power Rangers with the Zord he created at Divatox's submarine. The Power Rangers destroyed Mr. Goo and Elgar's Zord. After that they found Jetson, who was a dog once again.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Blair Treu

2 - 22 THE CURVE BALL

TJ is stumped by a new kid, Heath, who has a curve ball no one on the baseball team can hit. Divatox's Strikeout monster, similarly, has such an unhittable toss. When Heath's egotistical showboating leads to his hanging on for dear life on the side of a cliff, will TJ take the effort to save the jerk? And will the jerk offer information on how to counter Strikeout's ultimate trick? Meanwhile, Bulk & Skull are hired to draw chalk outlines on the baseball field.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Lawrence L. Simeone

2 - 23 CARLOS AND THE COUNT

Bulk and Skull were having a monster movie marathon. It was a vampire movie marathon. Divatox turned a lunar bat into a monster. Carlos was walking home the next day and the lunar bat bit Carlos. On the next day Carlos was wearing sunglasses. When he took them off his eyes were all red and he had started growing fangs. Later at the blood drive Carlos tried to get the blood instead of give it, but he got scared. Justin saw Carlos' eyes and told the rest of the Power Rangers about it. The lunar bat showed up and tried to bite Justin, but the Power Rangers saved him. They went and found Carlos and teleported him to the Power Chamber. They gave him an antedote. Then they went and found the bat and destroyed it. Later, Bulk and Skull decided to switch to a werewolf movie. The movie delivery man looked like a werewolf and they got scared.

Wr John Fletcher

Dir Lawrence L. Simeone

2 - 24 LITTLE STRONG MAN

Justin has trouble trying out for sports, as he's too small and young to compete with the other teens. When an ant, mutated by Bulk & Skull's strange exterminator spray, bites him, he discovers he now has super strength! This makes him a hit with athletics, but the side effect is he's unable to morph. He's forced to choose between a life as a Ranger or a life as a dumb jock. Meanwhile, Divatox prepares to bring to Earth the first of her three Evil Zords, the first being her very own bird-like Divazord.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Liberty Goldman

2 - 25 STRENGTH IN NUMBERS

2 - 26 THE RIVAL RANGERS

Ashley was teaching dance lessons. Bobby was Ashley's dream date and he came to where she was teaching. She asked him if he wanted dance lessons and he said yes. He wanted to start the next day. Casey came and she and Bobby left together. Ashley got mad and said she would get even with Casey. The next day Casey and Bobby went to the park. Ashley asked TJ if he would play catch with her. He told her she hated to play catch, but she told him she had changed her mind. They went and played catch. The ball accidentally hit Casey. Then they all joined together and tried to leave. But the car wouldn't start. Ashley told them they had flooded the car. They had to go. When Casey went back to get Bobby, he was gone. It was time for dance lessons and Ashley had to leave too. Divatox sent a Sharkatron monster down to Angel Grove. The Sharkatron was draining the power out of the Rescue MegaZord, so when the Power Rangers wanted to try to defeat it they had to use the Turbo MegaZord. They defeated it. Then Bobby asked out another girl, so Justin took out both Ashley and Casey.

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Judd Lynn

2 - 27 CHASE INTO SPACE (1-2)

Justin's dad got a job interview for a nice job. Meanwhile, Divatox is meeting Goldgoyle and announcing the end of the Power Rangers. The Rangers are watching the shuttle mission make a landing at NASA mission control. Justin's dad shows up and tells Justin he got the job, but it will mean having to move away from Angel Grove. He hadn't accepted the job yet because he wanted to talk to Justin about it. The Rangers are called to the Power Chamber because they are receiving a message from Altar, where Zordon and their power comes from. Divatox sends Goldgoyle to attack the Rangers. The Rangers defend themselves from Goldgoyle and summon the Rescue MegaZord, but Goldgoyle destroys it. They summon the Turbo MegaZord and it is being beaten too. TJ comes up with an idea to use Turbo Ram against Goldgoyle, but to get it up close with the Lightning Cruiser. After it gets close enough TJ destroys Goldgoyle. The Rangers teleport back to the power chamber, but they are seen by Elgar and Rygog, who follow them to the power chamber. Divatox decides to send all her piranhatrons to attack the power chamber. The Rangers learn that the planet Altar is being taken over by evil forces. Demetria tells the Rangers that she and the Blue Centurion are leaving Earth to help Altar and the Rangers have to stay and protect Earth. When they are getting ready to go the Blue Centurion says goodbye to Justin, who gives him his lucky coin. Demetria and the Blue Centurion leave and Divatox sees them go. She starts to attack the power chamber with her piranhatrons. TJ and the Power Rangers decide to go fight them and try to defend the Power Chamber. Divatox attacked the Power Chamber while the Power Rangers were inside. She destroyed the Power Chamber, but the Power Rangers were luckily still alive. A messenger came and told Divatox that Zordon had been captured and that she needed to go with him. She laughed and said she had to stay and conquer the Earth. Then he mentioned that Dark Spector wanted her to go and she decided to go right away. The Power Rangers came out of their hiding places. They had lost their powers when the Power Chamber was destroyed. They found Alpha, who got a black box out of the ground. He said it was a decoder. The Power Rangers couldn't figure how they were going to get to Altar. The messenger mentioned that Zordon had been captured and his power was being drained. Justin snuck into NASA mission control and told the commander what was going on. The Power Rangers took off into space without Justin, never to see him again. To be continued in Power Rangers In Space!

Wr Judd Lynn

Dir Judd Lynn

POWER RANGERS WILD FORCE

Power Rangers Wild Force premiered on Fox Kids on February 9, 2002. When evil villains rise up to pollute and destroy the Earth, only five young heroes can stand in their way. With amazing super powers and a virtual zoo of Zords, these five young heroes transform to become the Power Rangers Wild Force. Faced by villains who stop at nothing to destroy the planet, the Rangers will need all the help they can get. Luckily, gigantic mechanical beasts that are just as determined as the Rangers to save the planet from the forces of evil are there to aid the Power Rangers. Only the Wild Force Rangers can protect Turtle Lake City from evil Orgs, monsters from the Earth's ancient past that have come back to life. The Rangers must do battle with the Master Org and his evil minions in order to save mankind and animals. With the help of their Power Animals and Crystal Sabers, the Wild Force Rangers must defeat the Orgs and save the city! When humans and animals come together to save the planet, it's time to take a walk on the wild side!

This marks the eighth series based on the Japanese Sentai series, and these shows continue in parallel with it's Japanese counterpart. The series following directly on from POWER RANGERS: TIME FORCE. At the end of TIME FORCE the series had nothched up an amazing 418 episodes, with no sign of cancellation. Which is remarkable for a show that was original marked as "it wouldn't last a week" when it was first produced.

Cinematography by Ilan Rosenberg, Other crew - Gary Jackson (transportation captain), Distributors - Fox Kids Network [us].

As being a Power Rangers fan, I watched the two-parter on Fox. As understanding the importance of Saban switching to a PR show to keep it fresh and exciting every year, I was pleased at this beginning for a new show

An orphan named Cole (newcomer Richardo Medina Jr.) is chosen by his tribe to go and venture out into the undiscovered world, as he is the "Chosen One." Upon arriving in an unchartered land, which looks like the New York or California shoreline, he goes in search of the two people in a mysterious black and white photograph. Saving a lovable golden retriever from being destroyed, Cole has a nasty encounter with the two animal control officers, which turn out to be two villains, Jindrax and Toxina.

After a restless night, Cole is abducted by four young adults--Taylor, Matt, Alyssa, and Danny (Alyson Kiderman, Philip Jeanmarie, Jessica Rey and Jack Guzman)--and taken to a mysterious floating island. There, he meets a beautiful woman, Princess Shayla (Ann Marie Crouch), who turns out to be the mentor of the four people he was abducted by, who are the Wild Force Rangers. He learns that he is had been chosen to be the Red Lion Wild Force Ranger, leader of the Wild Force team.

I will step in to avoid any spoilers of the episodes, but as it goes, it seems to be a nicely constructed beginning to yet another Power Ranger saga. Keep your eyes on this one, as this seems to be a promising PR show. But you like the old episodes (Morphin, Zeo, Turbo, Space, Galaxy, Lightspeed and Time Force), ABC Family will start airing repeats this March.

But for all Power Rangers fans, this recent incarnation is worth a peek.

Power Rangers: Wild Force (often abbreviated as "PRWF") was the tenth incarnation of the Power Rangers series, based on the Super Sentai series Hyakujuu Sentai GaoRanger (100 Beasts Squadron Gowl Ranger)

Power Rangers: Wild Force takes place in 2002, continuing the tradition of having the incarnation taking place the year it was released. The first part of the series was originally broadcast on the Fox Kids children's television block, but was later moved to the ABC Kids children's television block in mid-season following the buyout of the Power Rangers franchise by Disney.

Despite the presence of various references to the Power Rangers fandom, and episodes that were considered to be the best-written at the time, the series is unpopular with some fans, with many believing it stuck too closely to the storyline from Gaoranger (the only completely U.S. character being Master Org). Other fans believe that there were too many Zords on the show when compared to previous incarnations of the Power Rangers. In addition, many hated the Cole Evans character because his overall personality is best described as being a "blockhead". Additionally, the writers committed the mistake of focusing all the character development in the Red and Lunar Rangers, pulling the others back to make them "team fillers".

Rangers

Cole Evans, the Blazing Lion (Red Wild Force Ranger) and leader of the team (portrayed by Ricardo Medina, Jr.)

Taylor Earhardt, the Soaring Eagle (Yellow Wild Force Ranger) and second-in-command (portrayed by Alyson Kiperman)

Max Cooper, the Surging Shark (Blue Wild Force Ranger) (portrayed by Phillip Jeanmarie)

Danny Delgado, the Iron Bison (Black Wild Force Ranger) (portrayed by Jack Guzman)

Alyssa Enrilé, the Noble Tiger (White Wild Force Ranger) (portrayed by Jessica Rey)

Merrick Baliton, the Howling Wolf (Lunar Wolf Ranger) (portrayed by Phillip Andrew)

Allies

Princess Shayla: guardian of the Animarium (portrayed by Ann Marie Crouch).

Animus: the ancient ruler of Animaria, appears to aid the Rangers several times.

Time Force Power Rangers

Red Rangers: nine other Red Rangers from the past team up with Cole to battle the Machine Empire.

Kite: the human incarnation of Animus (portrayed by Ryan Goldstein).

Villains

Jindrax: Jester/Clown-like Duke Org, self-proclaimed 'Master of Blades', uses knives and swords in battle. Had an unofficial rivalry with Taylor and good friend of Toxica. Seems to have had a crush on Princess Shayla, but a deep love for Toxica. He resurrects Toxica from Spirit World using her reenergized severed horn. Retires from serving Org leaders and travels the world with Toxica to 'find themselves'.

(portrayed/voiced by Danny Wayne Stallcup)

Toxica: Sorceress Duke Org who is armed with a staff that releases beans that make Orgs grow. Suspected Master Org's identity when she smells the scent of 'human' around him and sees him 'move' his horn. Uses Nayzor's crown to temporarily transform into a General Org, Necrononica, and is brainwashed by Master Org, along with Jindrax, in mutated form when they find out his true identity. Once returned to normal by Cole, they seek out Mandilok and serve under him until Mandilok uses Toxica as a shield against the Rangers' Jungle Blaster. Is brought back to life again by Jindrax who pulls her out of the Spirit World by reenergising her severed horn. Assists the Rangers by rescuing the captured Princess Shayla from the Nexus. Retire from serving org leaders and travels the world with Jindrax to 'find themselves'. (portrayed by Sin Wong)

Master Org: Commander of the Org forces on Earth; the reincarnation of the ancient Master Org from 3,000 years ago. Was once Dr. Victor Adler, but consumed the remains of the original Master Org to become an Org himself. Disguises himself with similar clothing and a helmet with a fake horn. His identity was found out by Toxica when she saw him move his headress. Destroyed Retinax first time to preserve identity and brainwashed Toxica and Jindrax when they discovered the truth. Is defeated and stripped of Org powers by Cole and is thrown off a cliff by Mandilok and presumed dead, but in truth becomes a true Org and returns for revenge against the Duke Orgs and Rangers. In the finale he consumed an ancient org heart and gained a true Org form and every time he was destroyed by Rangers in Org form, his Org heart would revive him. Destroys all Wild Zords, but is destroyed once and for all when all Wild Zords are returned/resurrected and destroy his body while Rangers destroy the Org heart with the Jungle Sword. Used a staff in human form and used the Nexus Blade in Org form.(played by Ilia Volok)

Retinax: Eye-Themed General Org & bodyguard to Master Org. Resurrected in the finale to guard Nexus with the two other generals. Wields an axe that can combine with the other generals' weapons to form Nexus Blade. (voiced by Michael Sorich)

Nayzor: Nose-Themed General Org, freed the Duke Org, Zen-Aku. Resurrected twice in series, first to battle Rangers in 'Super' form, then again in normal form to guard Nexus with the two other generals. Uses a paper fan in normal form that can combine with the other generals' weapons to form the Nexus Blade and uses a clawed staff in Super form. (voiced by Ken Merckx)

Mandilok: A Hermaphroditic Mouth-Themed General Org, takes Master Org's place in the middle of the series. Upper mouth speaks with a female's voice while lower mouth speaks with a male's voice. Resurrected in the near-finale to guard Nexus along with the two other Generals. Uses a large fork and knife as weapons that can combine with the two other generals' weapons to form Nexus Blade.

Zen-Aku: Wolf Duke Org sealed in a mask; possessed Merrick until the spell was broken. Comes back to life to battle Merrick and is destroyed by the combined strengths of the Wild Force Megazord [Striker Mode] and Predazord. Mysteriously comes back to life in the finale and now travels the world with Merrick, seeking redemption for his past deeds. (voiced by Lex Lang)

Arsenal

Growl Phone: Phone-based Morpher of the five core Wild Force Rangers, activated with the cry of "Wild Access!". It also works as a communicator and features miniature robot and animal modes. The Growl Phones are gold with Ranger-colored trim on the phones' animal figureheads.

Lunar Caller: Another phone-based Morpher granted to Merrick by his purified Wild Zords and stored on a wrist-mounted brace. It is blue with silver trim and shaped like a wolf's head. Like the other Rangers with Growl Phones, Merrick also cries "Wild Access" to morph.

Crystal Sabers: Standard Wild Force weapon used to summon the five core Wild Zords, or an auxiliary Wild Zord when an Animal Crystal is placed inside the hilt.

Jungle Sword: A large sword made by combining the Rangers' primary weapons, capable of performing the Savage Slash attack to finish off Orgs.

Red Lion Fang: Red Ranger's primary weapon

Golden Eagle Sword: Yellow Ranger's primary weapon

Blue Shark Fighting Fins: Blue Ranger's primary weapon

Black Bison Axe: Black Ranger's primary weapon.

White Tiger Baton: White Ranger's primary weapon.

Jungle Blaster: A cannon made by combining the Rangers' secondary weapons.

Falconator: Red Ranger's secondary weapon.

Armadillo Puck: Yellow Ranger's secondary weapon.

Sword of Pardolis: Blue Ranger's secondary weapon.

Rhino Shooter: Black Ranger's secondary weapon.

Deer Clutcher: White Ranger's secondary weapon.

Lunar Cue: Lunar Wolf Ranger's personal weapon, capable of switching between Saber Mode, Sniper Mode and Break Mode. With it, Merrick can perform the Full Moon Slash to devastate opponents. Merrick can also perform the Laser Pool technique to summon his Wild Zords or finish off opponents by launching his Animal Crystals like billiard balls.

Lion Blaster: When the Rangers were ensnared by an Org, the Red Lion Wild Zord gave Cole the Lion Blaster, which he used to blast himself and his team-mates to freedom. The Blaster materializes from Cole's Lion Fang and can switch between Cannon and Gattling Mode.

Falcon Summoner: Weapon that can serve as a blaster or bow, and is also used to summon the Red Falcon Zord. Cole obtained it while he and Merrick battled a resurrected Nayzor once four of the Rangers, who had been knocked out by Nayzor, solved a complex puzzle while on a spiritual quest.

Animarium Armor: Cole can use the Falcon Zord's power to activate his Battlized form, donning the Animarium Armor and becoming the Red Savage Warrior. Adorned with golden chest armour and gauntlets and large wings, Cole can fly, form a shield with his wings, as well as fire energy blasts.

Savage Cycles: High-speed motorcycles for each of the six Rangers, given life by their respective Wild Zords.

Wild Force Rider: When Cole's Savage Cycle was damaged beyond repair by an enemy attack, he was given the Wild Force Rider. This new motorcycle is themed after the Falcon Zord and has flight capabilities.

Megazords

Information about the zords used in Power Rangers: Wild Force can be found in the article Wild zord. For completeness, the list of Megazords formed in the series is as follows:

Wild Force Megazord (combination of Lion, Eagle, Shark, Bison & Tiger, sometimes w/t Elephant)

Red Lion (Red)

Eagle Zord (Yellow)

Shark Zord (Blue)

Bison Zord (Black)

White Tiger Zord (White)

Elephant Zord (White)
 Kongazord (combination of Gorilla, Black & Polar Bear, Bison & Eagle)
 Gorilla Zord (Red)
 Black & Polar Bear Zords (Yellow)
 Soul Bird
 Predazord (combination of Wolf, Hammerhead & Alligator)
 Wolf Zord (Lunar)
 Hammerhead Shark Zord (Lunar)
 Alligator Zord (Lunar)
 Isis Megazord (combination of Falcon, Armadillo, Giraffe, Rhino & Deer)
 Falcon Zord (Red)
 Giraffe Zord (Blue)
 Rhino & Armadillo Zords (Black)
 Deer Zords (White)
 Animus (combination of Wild Zords similar to the primary Wild Zords)
 Pegasus Megazord (combination of Falcon, Lion, Elephant, Shark & Tiger)

Trivia

In the first Wild Force promo (the one that aired after Time Force ended), the full faces of the Japanese actors from Gaoranger as they begin to transform can be seen.

It was the first series since Power Rangers: Zeo to start the episodes with the opening credits.

First time Power Rangers actually copied a sentai transformation sequence in every detail. Incarnations like Zeo and In Space, were similar, but not quite the same because it made modifications to the transformations to the original Sentai footage; such as Zeo placing actors within the "Grid-frames" from Ohranger's footage, as well as adding a bright background image of part of the Zeonizer/Power Brace being activated (In Ohranger, when the Rangers changed the background within the "Henshin Sequence" was completely black" and In Space having "Morphing Complete." pasted over "MEGA[Insert Color] READY!").

It should be noted that Alyssa Enrilé (the White Wild Force Ranger) was the first Power Ranger known to attend college and serve as a Ranger simultaneously. (Not to be confused with Rangers attending school).

It was the first Power Rangers team to start off with an even number of individuals as rangers (four). In Power Rangers: In Space technically there were two rangers, however Zhane was incapacitated at the time so only one ranger (Andros) remained. Likewise, in Power Rangers: Time Force, only one individual, Alex the original Red Time Force Ranger was shown to have the ability to morph at the start of the season. All other seasons have begun with an odd number with either three Power Rangers: Ninja Storm, Power Rangers: Dino Thunder and Power Rangers: SPD or five individuals receiving their powers simultaneously. (Note: You cannot count Power Rangers: Turbo as starting off with four because of the fact if Rocky would not have hurt himself, he would have received the Blue Turbo powers, and also the fact when the Turbo Rangers morphed for the very first time, Justin had already officially joined the team to become the Blue Turbo Ranger.

It was the second season after Time Force to utilize the "Red Rookie" plot device. The third was in Power Rangers: SPD and the fourth in Power Rangers: Mystic Force

It should also be noted that before the arrival of Cole (the Red Wild Force Ranger), Taylor was the leader, thus making her the first known Yellow Ranger ever to lead a Power Ranger team.

This was the first regular Power Ranger series not to feature a Pink Ranger. Mighty Morphin Alien Rangers did so first, although this one is not considered to be a complete season. This would be continue for Power Rangers: Ninja Storm, and Power Rangers: Dino Thunder.

It was the second series to feature a female White Ranger, the first was Mighty Morphin Alien Rangers.

The series was unique in the fact that the villains are called 'Orgs', much like in Gaoranger. Even the monsters the Power Rangers had to defeat mostly had no name changes in the transition.

Power Rangers Wild Force has the distinction of featuring the oldest known Power Ranger (Merrick the Howling Wolf Wild Force Ranger was at least 3,000 years old at the time of his release).

Merrick also has the distinction of being the first Power Ranger to sport facial hair (a goatee), (Dr. Thomas Oliver of Power Rangers: Dino Thunder who also had a goatee was the second), generally male Power Rangers are clean shaven.

Cole, an orphan raised for at least 18 years in an Amazon jungle tribe, is given two items found with him as a baby: a wrinkled & torn photograph of his mother & father, and a strange red small ball-like crystal. He then leaves the jungle, and comes to America, to the city of Turtle Cove. Cole searches for his family to no avail. His ability to understand animals leads him to freeing the test subjects from an illegal animal laboratory. The man & woman who run said lab are revealed to be evil creatures called Orgs. Duke Orgs, at that, named Jindrax & Toxica. Lesser, two-horned Orgs, called the Turbine Org & Plug Org, encounter a group of four Power Rangers. These Wild Force Rangers, lacking a Red Ranger, fail to defeat them. Luckily, Princess Shayla, their mentor, learns of Cole, and long story short, he's the Red Wild Force Ranger.

Wr William Winkler

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 2 DARKNESS AWAKENING (PART 2 OF 2)

Jindrax and Toxica meet with Master Org for the first time in 5000 years, but suspect something's different about him. Cole tries to reason with the Barbed Wire Org, and learns the hard way that they lack a heart.

Wr Derek Rydall

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 3 CLICK, CLICK, ZOOM

When Cole rejects Taylor's strictly defined Ranger Rulebook, insisting the only rule the team needs is teamwork, the Yellow Ranger strikes out on her own, and soon encounters the Camera Org. When she's zapped by him, her physical form becomes invisible! Can the new leader of Wild Force save the former one, and win her respect in the process? Also, learn the stunning history of the Kingdom of Animaria!

Wr Jill Donnellan

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 4 NEVER GIVE UP

The tight friendship between the Blue and Black Rangers is strained, when Danny's former flower shop love interest, Kendall, comes back into his life. Max is forced to investigate a possible Org spirit solo, and ends up captured by the Bell Org. Will Danny admit his true feelings to the girl, or will he go against his and Max's credo in life, and finally give up?

Wr Katie Torpey

Dir Terry Withrow

1 - 5 ANCIENT AWAKENING

Alyssa and the Rangers discover clues that lead them to powers used by the forces of good, 3000 years ago. Namely, the Elephantzord. And they'll need it, since Princess Shayla is kidnapped by the Tire Org!

Wr Suzi Shimoyama

Dir Terry Withrow

1 - 6 WISHES ON THE WATER

The youngest of the team, Max's belief of a local legend of the "Turtle Lake Monster", rumored to grant wishes, gets him called a "kid" by his teammates. The Blue Ranger sets out to rectify this, but strange dreams of the Megazord being in danger lead him instead to find another Wildzord. Will it be helpful in defeating the real monster of the lake, the Ship Org?

Wr William Winkler

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 7 THE BEAR NECESSITES

While out jogging near her old Air Force Base, Taylor is reminded of why and how she became the Yellow Ranger in the first place. She also encounters two mysterious twins dressed in white and black, and aids the mute boys in their search for a powerful flower. Are the twins more than they appear, and how will they be of help against the Grawl Phone-jamming Cell Phone Org?

Wr Derek Rydall

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 8 SOUL SEARCHING (PART 1 OF 2)

With the Red Lion Zord injured by the recent use of the Bear Brothers, Cole and the rest of the Rangers go on a quest to find the mythical Soul Bird, capable of healing him. Their forest search is interrupted by both the Bulldozer Org, and Master Org himself, who makes a surprising discovery about the new Red Ranger. Is there more in the woods than our heroes expect, such as a new Wildzord?

Wr Jill Donnellan

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 9 SOUL BIRD SALVATION (PART 2 OF 2)

Jindrax and Toxica join forces with Rentinax, the former bodyguard of Master Org 5000 years ago. Meanwhile, the Freezer Org attacks, and though he's defeated, in doing so he reduces the Kongazord and Growl Phones to frigid states! The Rangers must depend on no powers and their determination to protect the Earth, only the power of what lies within the soon-to-be-hatched Soul Bird egg can provide deliverance.

Wr Suzi Shimoyama

Dir Worth Keeter

1 - 10 CURSE OF THE WOLF (PART 1 OF 3)

Master Org releases Org General Nayzor, who in turn releases Wolf Duke Org Zen-Aku, from the tomb he's been imprisoned in for 3000 years. The Rangers, first having to deal with the Vacuum Cleaner Org, find this wicked warrior tougher than any prior Org, even losing a few Animal Crystals to him! Can they at least get out of this battle with their lives intact?

Wr Katie Torpey

Dir Taro Sakamoto

1 - 11 BATTLE OF THE ZORDS (PART 2 OF 3)

The recent arrival and successful first battle of Zen-Aku creates tension among the Rangers, and between fellow Duke Orgs, Jindrax & Toxica. Alyssa heads into the woods alone, in an effort to reclaim her Elephanzord, and though she runs into Org trouble, she gets bandaged up by a most unexpected source. Soon, Zen-Aku unveils his very own Dark Wildzords, and pits the vicious beasts against those of the Wild Force Rangers.

Wr Derek Rydall

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 12 PREDAZORD, AWAKEN (PART 3 OF 3)

Jindrax & Toxica attempt to one-up Zen-Aku by capturing some Wildzords of their own, by stalking Alyssa & Max. This leads to the creation of the Bus Org, and a quite extensive game of hot potato with the GiraffeZord crystal. Will our heroes lose another Power Animal to the Orgs? Or will worse occur when Zen-Aku connects his Dark Wildzords into their Predazord formation?

Wr Bergen Williams

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 13 REVENGE OF ZEN-AKU (PART 1 OF 2)

Zen-Aku frees Motorcycle Org, the first monster Taylor ever faced when she first became the Yellow Ranger. This keeps the Rangers busy while he kidnaps Princess Shayla, and discovers a strange sense of deja-vu about her, especially her necklace.

Wr Jill Donnellan

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 14 INDENTITY CRISIS (PART 2 OF 2)

Zen-Aku battles his inner demons concerning strange memories about his past, when he encounters a stray half-dog half wolf pup. The spirit of Animus, ancestor of the Wildzords, appears and attempts to get the Duke Org to remember his past. Cole makes a surprising discovery about Zen-Aku, though will it aid them when they have to not only fight him, but the Lawnmower Org as well?

Wr Suzi Shimoyama

Dir Taro Sakamoto

1 - 15 THE ANCIENT WARRIOR, PART 1

Thanks to Animus creating a brief lunar eclipse, Zen-Aku reverts to his true human form, an Ancient Warrior of Animaria known as Merrick! He relates his tragic tale to the Rangers, and admits to his intimate connection to Princess Shayla. Can the Rangers aid in breaking the curse of the Wolf Mask, or is he doomed to being Zen-Aku for another 3000 years?

Wr Katie Torpey

Dir Taro Sakamoto

1 - 16 THE LONE WOLF, PART 2

Merrick, now freed from the mask of Zen-Aku, struggles with guilt over the evil deeds he performed while under its spell. Meanwhile, Master Org turns the captured Animal Crystals into an Org monster.

Wr Derek Rydall

Dir Taro Sakamoto

1 - 17 POWER PLAY

Merrick aids a bar owner against a group of punks, and ends up finding a place to begin his path of redemption. As Jindrax unleashes the tone-deaf Karaoke Org upon the Rangers, a mysterious new Org General appears, known as Necronomica! What strange connection does she have to the defeated Nayzor and the missing Toxica?

Wr Jill Donnellan

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 18 SECRETS AND LIES

As he and Alyssa grow closer in discovering the identity of his parents, Cole is struck in the head while fighting the Signal Org, and develops amnesia. He winds up living on a farm, using his ability to understand animals to their benefit, and finally gets to be part of a family. Will he even want to remember who he was when the Rangers arrive with the sad fate of his parents? Meanwhile, Jindrax & Toxica confront Master Org about their suspicions of his being a human, and learn the truth is far more dangerous!

Wr Bergen Williams

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 19 THE TORNADO SPIN

Thanks to the Bowling Org's unbeatable attacks, Max has no choice but to revive his secret past as a championship bowler in training. Will his former mentor, now a washed-up janitor, aid him with the ultimate bowling trick?

Wr Derek Rydall

Dir Worth Keeter

1 - 20 THREE'S A CROWD

While tracking down the bride-swiping Wedding Dress Org, Danny bumps into his old love interest, Kendall. Old feelings resurface, as well as jealousy when he discovers she's dating a snobbish yuppie named Colin. While fighting the Org and trying to save Kendall's life, Danny is faced with the decision which will lead to his secret identity being exposed. Will he choose true love over saving the world, and will Kendall choose true love over being filthy rich?

Wr Katie Torpey, Bergen Williams

Dir Taro Sakamoto

1 - 21 A FATHER'S FOOTSTEPS

Alyssa successfully juggles being a Ranger with being a top-notch college student... though not without a few problems along the way. Nothing less than perfection is expected of her father, who comes to Turtle Cove to check up on her, still upset she chose school over eventually running his dojo. But when he notices the White Ranger using his family's very own Tiger Style in battle against the Samurai Org, he just may change his tune about his approval of her life choices.

Wr Katie Torpey, Bergen Williams

Dir Taro Sakamoto

1 - 22 SING SONG

The Tombstone Org, powered by Dr Adler's headstone and the spirits of a few fallen Orgs, proves to be too powerful for the Rangers, and severely injures the Wildzords! The long absent Deezord is the only thing capable of healing them, but he's still holding a grudge over the fact Princess Shayla and Merrick no longer sing for him every morning. Can the strained couple put aside their conflicts to help save the world?

Wr Jill Donnellan

Dir Taro Sakamoto

1 - 23 THE WINGS OF ANIMARIA

While facing the revived and upgraded Super Nayzor, all of the Rangers are fatally wounded, except for Cole and Merrick. Their spirits, in a dark dimension, are guided by a shrouded boy in a mission to free the Falcon Wildzord, which will not only aid their teammate in his battle, but will restore them to life. Can our heroes get a second chance at life?

Wr Suzi Shimoyama

Dir Worth Keeter

1 - 24 REINFORCEMENTS FROM THE FUTURE, PART 1

The arrival of three Mutant/Org hybrids from the year 3001 crosses the paths of the Wild Force Rangers with Wes & Eric, who must contact their Time Force Ranger teammates for assistance.

Wr Amit Bhaumik

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 25 REINFORCEMENTS FROM THE FUTURE, PART 2

The five Time Force Rangers are finally reunited in the year 2002, and gain a most unexpected ally in the form of their former enemies, Ransik & Nadira. What dark secret of his past concerning the Mut-Orgs is the key to stopping the monsters? It'll take all twelve Rangers to stop the Orgs from spreading pollution by destroying a power plant!

Wr Amit Bhaumik

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

1 - 26 THE MASTER'S LAST STAND

Cole finds the mysterious man from the picture he's carried all his life, only to discover he's actually Master Org. A final showdown is arranged between the Wild Force Rangers and the man who was once Dr. Viktor Adler.

Wr Derek Rydall

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 1 UNFINISHED BUSINESS

Finally freed from the imprisonment of the Wolf Mask, Zen-Aku is given new life, and immediately targets his former human host, Merrick. The self-proclaimed "lone wolf" is prepared to give the Duke Org what it wants by fighting the far more powerful villain alone, refusing assistance from the Rangers. Can Alyssa convince him otherwise, or will his former dark side get the better of him at last?

Wr Suzi Shimoyama

Dir Taro Sakamoto

2 - 2 HOMECOMING

Newly released Org General Mandilok unleashes Duke Orgs Artilla and Hellicos on the city. Meanwhile, Cole befriends an amnesiac boy who calls himself Kite, not far from the location of the memorial of the fallen Ancient Warriors.

Wr Katie Torpey

Dir Taro Sakamoto

2 - 3 THE FLUTE

Flute Org forces citizens, and Rangers, to dance against their will. Shayla and Merrick must overcome the tension between them and summon the Deorzord to break the spell. Also, Animus shows up, in person, and in action!

Wr Katie Torpey

Dir Worth Keeter

2 - 4 TEAM CARNIVAL

Feeling dejected, Jindrax strikes out on his own with his brother Juggelo. They follow Taylor, Max, and Kite to a carnival, and attempt to disrupt their day out.

Wr Katie Torpey

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 5 TAMING OF THE ZORDS

Jindrax & Toxica recruit Lion Tamer Org to their new Team Carnival. He turns the Rangers' Wildzords against one another, creating one big Megazord battle royale.

Wr Katie Torpey

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 6 MONITORING EARTH, PART 1

Mandilok, realizing Kite has incredible power, tricks the boy into believing that Orgs aren't bad, that it's the humans that've destroyed the planet with pollution and carelessness to nature. The Rangers are blindsided when it's discovered that Kite is actually the revived spirit of Animus.

Wr Katie Torpey

Dir Taro Sakamoto

2 - 7 THE SOUL OF HUMANITY PART 2

With Princess Shayla in a coma from the loss of the Wildzords, Merrick pleads with Animus to reconsider his position on humanity. Instead, he's offered a place off-world with them. As the Toy Org attacks a factory nearby, will the efforts of the Rangers change the former Kite's mind, or will it be the solidarity of the regular humans that does it?

Wr Katie Torpey

Dir Taro Sakamoto

2 - 8 FOREVER RED

When the surviving forces of the Machine Empire gather on the moon in an effort to excavate Serpentera, veteran Ranger Tommy assembles the Red Rangers of every previous team, and the current, to assist in stopping them.

Wr Amit Bhaumik

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 9 THE MASTER'S HERALD, PART 1

The latest Duke Org, a ninja known as Onikage, convinces Toxica to cut off her own horn, so as to sneak on the Animarium and kidnap Princess Shayla. Despite the Rangers' mentor putting up a fight, Toxica succeeds, but when she learns that Org horns don't grow back, is this the end for the Mistress of Magic?

Wr Jill Donnellan

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 10 THE MASTER'S HERALD, PART 2

Mandilok is destroyed, when it's revealed that Onikage has been working for Master Org all along. Master Org, now fully in control of Dr. Adler's corpse, manages to get Princess Shayla back from Jindrax, who had taken her away in revenge for Toxica's death. Also, the Wild Force Rangers are sent into the Spirit World, where they face previously destroyed Orgs!

Wr Jill Donnellan

Dir Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 11 FISHING FOR A FRIEND

Toxica informs Jindrax through Nayzor's old mirror, that she can be revived. Following her instructions, he aids the Rangers against Locomotive Org, gains the power from the Jungle Blaster attack (same as destroyed her), and literally uses her cut-off horn to fish her out of the mirror, returning her to life!

Wr Suzi Shimoyama

Dir Taro Sakamoto

2 - 12 SEALING THE NEXUS

Master Org uses Princess Shayla's enchanted necklace in his ceremony to revive the Org Heart. While doing this, he brings back his three Org Generals to guard the Nexus. Jindrax & Toxica help the Rangers rescue the Princess and, they believe, seal the Nexus for good. Little do they realize, that Master Org has consumed the Org Heart, and merely shed the human body of Dr. Adler for something far more powerful.

Wr Derek Rydall

Dir Taro Sakamoto

2 - 13 THE END OF THE POWER RANGERS, PART 1

The Wild Force Rangers, thinking Master Org defeated and the Nexus sealed, begin to face the harsh reality of their lives as Rangers being over. The somber mood of parting is broken, by Master Org's surprise return. Now in a fully Org body, he beats our heroes back, grows, destroys Animus once again, and proceeds to not only slaughter every one of the Rangers' Wildzords, but send the Animarium plummeting down from the sky!

Wr Jill Donnellan, Katie Torpey

Dir Jonathan Tzachor

2 - 14 THE END OF THE POWER RANGERS, PART 2

The Animarium reconnects to where it came from, fitting right into Turtle Lake. The Rangers, powerless, face an army of Putrids, and face down the giant Master Org. With only their intense fighting spirit, and team declaration of never giving up, the six are able to, not only summon all of their Wildzords back to life, but reveal dozens and dozens more! All together, the Rangers and Wildzords unleash a power wave against Master Org, destroying him once again. With the Org threat gone for the time being, Princess Shayla takes back the Grownl Phones, Animal Crystals, and vests, and bids goodbye to the six humans. She returns to sleep, and returns the Animarium to the sky. Cole forgives Adler for what he did, hoping he'll find peace, as he himself goes cross country helping animals. Max & Danny go on a worldwide trip. Taylor returns to the Air Force with a promotion, and a daily aerial rendezvous with the Eaglezord. Merrick wanders the globe in search of his place in the present, accompanied by Zen-Aku, also seeking redemption. And Alyssa becomes a kindergarten teacher, telling the legend of the Wild Force Rangers to future generations.

Wr Derek Rydall, Suzi Shimoyama

Dir Jonathan Tzachor

POWER RANGERS ZEO

One fateful day, Master Vile used the Orb of Doom to reverse the rotation of Earth and turn back time, reverting the Rangers into powerless children. While the Alien Rangers and a restored Billy defended the Earth, the children went to different points in time to retrieve a piece of the Zeo Crystal, which was shattered and scattered throughout time by the Rangers themselves. Upon their return, the Zeo Crystal was reassembled, and its power was used to restore the planet back to normal.

Their victory did not last long. Rito and Goldar infiltrated the Command Center and stole the Crystal, just before the explosive device they had planted earlier went off, leaving the Command Center in ruins, and the Rangers without a headquarters. While searching through the wreckage, the Rangers found the Zeo Crystal, apparently dropped by the two villains, and then fell into the underground Power Chamber, their new base of operations, where Zordon and Alpha-5 retreated to during the explosion. While celebrating the defeat of the Power Rangers, Zedd's palace is attacked by the Machine Empire, who wants to take over the Earth as well, causing Zedd, Rita, and the rest to evacuate and head for the M-51 galaxy to live with Master Vile. Using the power of the Zeo Crystal, Tommy, Kat, Rocky, Tanya and Adam became the Zeo Rangers, Earth's last hope against the Machine Empire.

Mondo's plan to divide and conquer was working, and for the Rangers to succeed, they needed help from the Gold Ranger, Trey, who travels to planets where evil needs to be defeated. With the Golden Power in danger of being lost, they were given to former Red Ranger Jason, who joined the team as the sixth Zeo Ranger until it was time to return the powers to Trey.

To travel to Muranthias and go up against Divatox and Maligore, the Rangers had to shift into high gear by accepting new Turbo Powers, leaving behind their days as Zeo Rangers.

Full Name: Tommy Oliver
 Ranger Designation: Zeo Ranger V - Red
 Weapons: Zeo Pistol, Zeo Blade, Sword
 Gear: Wrist Communicator, Zeonizer with Zeo Crystal, Red Zeo Jet Cycle
 Zords: Zeo Zord Five, Red Battlezord, Super Zeo Zord Five

To retrieve the Red Zeo sub-crystal, Tommy had to travel to America's past, where a wise old shaman tested Tommy's ability to follow his instincts, and rewarded him with the crystal. Tommy had to choose the right pouch out of three which contained the crystal. Before Tommy returned home, the shaman gave him half of an arrowhead, the other half belonging to his long lost brother, David. The combined arrow was capable of controlling an ancient spirit known as an Autocthon. Tommy eventually upgraded his powers to become the Red Turbo Ranger.

Tommy later passed his Turbo Powers on to a successor, T.J. Tommy returned years later as the Red Zeo Ranger to lead 9 other Red Rangers on a mission to prevent the Machine Empire from using Serpentera to destroy Earth.

Full Name: Rocky DeSantos
 Ranger Designation: Zeo Ranger III - Blue
 Weapons: Zeo Pistol, Zeo Blade, Axes
 Gear: Wrist Communicator, Zeonizer with Zeo Crystal, Blue Zeo Jet Cycle
 Zords: Zeo Zord Three, Super Zeo Zord Three

The Blue Zeo sub-crystal found its way into a volcano in Mexico, endangering the people who lived nearby by making it unstable. Upon his arrival in Mexico, Rocky asked a boy named Pablo DeSantos to lead him to the volcano. Once there, Rocky climbed in and retrieved the Blue crystal, saving the village, and bringing the Zeo Crystal one step closer to completion. After sustaining a back injury, Rocky gave his place on the team to young martial artist Justin, who became the Blue Turbo Ranger.

Full Name: Adam Park
 Ranger Designation: Zeo Ranger IV - Green
 Weapons: Zeo Pistol, Zeo Blade, Hatchets
 Gear: Wrist Communicator, Zeonizer with Zeo Crystal, Green Zeo Jet Cycle
 Zords: Zeo Zord Four, Super Zeo Zord Four

Adam travelled to Korea to search for the Green Zeo sub-crystal, but all he thought he would find was trouble when he encountered a strange old man who noticed within him the spirit of the frog. Adam eventually realized that this odd man was in fact Kiyogi, the one said to have magical powers, and keeper of the Green Crystal. Adam pulled the crystal out of Kiyogi's waterfall, and teleported back home. Adam eventually upgraded his powers to become the Green Turbo Ranger. He would then pass the powers on to a successor, Carlos. When Carlos began doubting himself as a Ranger, Adam gave him some additional training to boost his confidence. When a monster attacked the two, Adam risked his life by using a damaged Power Coin to morph into the Black Ranger to help his friend out.

Full Name: Katherine Hillard
 Ranger Designation: Zeo Ranger I - Pink
 Weapons: Zeo Pistol, Zeo Blade, Disc
 Gear: Wrist Communicator, Zeonizer with Zeo Crystal, Pink Zeo Jet Cycle
 Zords: Zeo Zord One, Super Zeo Zord One

Kat's Zeo Quest took her to Australia, presumably the future, where she was tested for goodness of heart by her descendent and heir to the Pink Power - Agatha. Katherine obtained her crystal by helping out an old lady in distress (Agatha in disguise) and being rewarded with the Pink Zeo sub-crystal. Kat later underwent a power upgrade to become the Pink Turbo Ranger.

Full Name: Tanya Sloan
 Ranger Designation: Zeo Ranger II - Yellow
 Weapons: Zeo Pistol, Zeo Blade, Double-Clubs
 Gear: Wrist Communicator, Zeonizer with Zeo Crystal, Yellow Zeo Jet Cycle
 Zords: Zeo Zord Two, Super Zeo Zord Two

When former Yellow Power Ranger Aisha Campbell began her quest for the Yellow Zeo sub-crystal, little did she know that she would not return to her life as Power Ranger. Her quest took her to present day Africa, where she decided to remain to help cure the dying animals of the land. She gave the Yellow crystal to Tanya, a girl who rescued her from a lion, and led her back to the village. Tanya returned to the Command Center with the crystal, and assumed her role as Zeo Ranger II. Tanya's power levels were boosted when she later became the Yellow Turbo Ranger.

Full Name: Jason Lee Scott
 Ranger Designation: Gold Zeo Ranger
 Weapons: Golden Power Staff
 Gear: Wrist Communicator, Golden Shield
 Zords: Pyramidas, Warrior Wheel

An alien named Trey came to Earth to assist the Rangers in their fight against the Machine Empire. The danger arose of the Golden powers being lost forever, unless Trey transferred them to someone else. That someone else was Jason, the original Red Ranger, back with the team, and back to action. His return as the Gold Ranger was a short lived one however, since his body couldn't handle the alien nature of the Golden powers. With the Rangers' help, Trey was reunified and he reclaimed the Golden powers. Jason returned to action years later as the Red Ranger, joining forces with 9 other Red Rangers on a mission to the moon, to prevent the Machine Empire from using Serpentera to destroy Earth.

Power Rangers Zeo follows on from the Mighty Morphin' Power Rangers and has almost the same cast apart from Nakta Burrise who was never in it. In the three part story There's no Business Like Snow Business actress Sarah Brown plays Tommy's love interest, she is better known as Kaitlin Star in the show VR TROOPERS. The second Power Rangers film mentioned above has a very similar cast to this one except for a few additions including a new Ranger as well as the return of the original pink ranger Amy Jo Johnson who this time doesn't have any powers. The film set up the new incarnation of the Power Rangers. Power Rangers Zeo used footage from the Japanese SF show OHRANGER.

The Zeo Rangers

Kat Hillard

Zeo Ranger I - Pink; formerly the second Pink Power Ranger. She found her Zeo Crystal in the past in Australia. She was portrayed by Catherine Sutherland

Tanya Sloan

Zeo Ranger II - Yellow. When Aisha went for her Zeo Crystal in the past in Africa, she decided that she wanted to help the animals who were sick, and sent Tanya back with the Zeo Crystal in her place. She was portrayed by Nakia Burrise.

Rocky DeSantos

Zeo Ranger III - Blue; formerly the second Red Power Ranger. He found his Zeo Crystal in the past in Mexico. He was portrayed by Steve Cardenas.

Adam Park

Zeo Ranger IV - Green; formerly the second Black Power Ranger. He found his Zeo Crystal in the past in Korea. He was portrayed by Johnny Yong Bosch.

Tommy Oliver

Zeo Ranger V - Red; formerly the Green and White Power Rangers. He found his Zeo Crystal in the past in the American Southwest. He was portrayed by Jason David Frank.

Trey of Triforia

The original Gold Zeo Ranger. The prince of the planet of Triforia, a planet where everyone has identical triplets. He gave the Zeo Rangers their Super Zeozords when he had to leave to his planet, again. He was portrayed by Ted, Tim, and Tom DiFillippo and voiced by Brad Hawkins in his first appearances.

Jason Lee Scott

The second Gold Zeo Ranger; formerly the original Red Power Ranger. When Trey of Triforia had to return to his home planet, Tommy went and found Jason to take the place of the Gold Zeo Ranger while he was gone. He was portrayed by Austin St. John.

Arsenal

Zeonizers: Interlocking, wrist-mounted devices that harness the energy of the Zeo Crystal, and empower the Zeo Zords. These devices allowed the Rangers to morph once the leader proclaimed "It's Morphin' Time!" (reused from the previous three seasons), followed by the team connecting the devices and calling out the phrases listed below.

"Zeo Ranger I - Pink!"

"Zeo Ranger II - Yellow!"

"Zeo Ranger III -Blue!"

"Zeo Ranger IV - Green!"

"Zeo Ranger V - Red!"

Zeo Blaster: The amalgamation of the five core Rangers' weapons, a Zeo Pistol and a Zeo Blade. It could fire powerful blasts of energy to destroy opponents.

Zeo Blade/Laser Pistol: Standard Zeo Ranger side-arms that can be combined for extra power.

Zeo Sword: Red Zeo Ranger's personal weapon.

Zeo Hatchets: Green Zeo Ranger's personal weapons.

Zeo Axes: Blue Zeo Ranger's personal weapons.

Zeo Double Clubs: Yellow Zeo Ranger's personal weapons.

Zeo Shield: Pink Zeo Ranger's personal weapon.

Golden Power Staff: Gold Zeo Ranger's personal weapon, capable of firing laser blasts. The Staff allowed the Gold Zeo Ranger to morph once he called out "Gold Ranger Power!"

Zeo Cannon: A powerful cannon that draws its power from all the Zeo Rangers.

Defender Wheel: Any of the Rangers can enter this giant wheel and launch themselves at an opponent, destroying them in a spinning mass of energy.

Zeo Jet Cycles: Five vehicles used for offroad transportation that come in handy when the teleportation system is offline.

Zords

Main article: Zords in Power Rangers: Zeo

Billy and Alpha 5 built the Zeozords after the Ninjazords and Shogunzords were disabled. The Red Battlezord was created with the Battle Borg technology, and was controlled by Tommy as Zeo Ranger V – Red, through telepathic link. Pyramidas was the Gold Zeo Ranger's sole Zord, and acted as a Carrier Zord. Trey of Triforia also supplied the Zeo Rangers with the Super Zeozords and the Warrior Wheel.

Zeo Ultrazord 1

Pyramidas, controlled by Trey and then Jason as the Gold Zeo Ranger

Zeo Megabattlezord

Red Battlezord, controlled by Tommy as Zeo Ranger V - Red

Zeo Megazord

Zeozord I, controlled by Kat as Zeo Ranger I - Pink

Zeozord II, controlled by Tanya as Zeo Ranger II - Yellow

Zeozord III, controlled by Rocky as Zeo Ranger III - Blue

Zeozord IV, controlled by Adam as Zeo Ranger IV - Green

Zeozord V, controlled by Tommy as Zeo Ranger V - Red

Super Zeo Megazord 2

Super Zeozord I, controlled by Kat as Zeo Ranger I - Pink

Super Zeozord II, controlled by Tanya as Zeo Ranger II - Yellow

Super Zeozord III, controlled by Rocky as Zeo Ranger III - Blue

Super Zeozord IV, controlled by Adam as Zeo Ranger IV - Green

Super Zeozord V, controlled by Tommy as Zeo Ranger V - Red

Warrior Wheel, controlled by Jason as the Gold Zeo Ranger

1 There was an alternate configuration of the Zeo Ultrazord known as Carrier Mode. It featured Pyramidas transformed into his standing mode, but not upright. The five Zeo Zords and the Red Battlezord were placed on top with Pyramidas serving as a sort of wagon.

2 The Super Zeo Megazord and the Red Battlezord could be housed within Pyramidas instead of the Zeozords to become the Super Zeo Ultrazord, as well.

WR. Douglas Sloan, Jackie Marchand, Al Winchell, Breet D. Born, Mark Hoffmeier, Stewart St. John, Gilles Wheeler, Mark Litton, Richard Goodman, Buzz Alden & Charlotte, Ron Milbauer, Terri Hughes, Douglas Sloan.

DIR. Issac Florentine, Vickie Bronaugh, Robert Radler, Douglas Sloan.

EPISODES: 50 YEAR MADE: 1996 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 2

SABAN INTERNATIONAL, RENNAISSANCE ATLANTIC ENTERTAINMENT, TOEI COMPANY,LTD, MMPR PRODUCTIONS,INC.

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 20 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 18, (2) 28

DATE OF PREMIER: 20/04/1996

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 27/11/1996

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS: TURBO POWER RANGERS: THE MOVIE (1997)

Kat/Zeo Ranger 1 Pink CATHERINE SUTHERLAND, Tanya/Zeo Ranger 2 Yellow NAKTA BURRISE, Rocky/Zeo Ranger 3 Blue STEVE CARDENAS, Adam/Zeo Ranger 4 Black JOHNNY YOUNG BOSCH, Tommy/Zeo Ranger 5 Red JASON DAVID FRANK, Billy DAVID YOST(Eps 1-46), Jason/Gold Ranger AUSTIN ST.JOHN(Episode 32 onwards),Bulk PAUL SCHRIER, Skull JASON NARVY, Alpha 5 DONESE KISELER, Alpha 5 RICHARD WOOD, Zordon BOB MANAHAN, Lt. Stone GREGG BULLOCK, Rita Repulsa BARBARA GOODSON, King Mondo DAVID STEVENSTROM, Queen Machina ALEX BORSTEIN, Klunk OLIVER PAGE, Cogs ED NEIL, JACQUE HILL, NOBUYUKI OBIKARE, SHUN, ASTRA MADDEN, NASHHIE KOSHIGE, HIGASHIGAWA NYODM, DANNE WAYNE STALLUP, AKINIKO NOEGCHI.

Books Based on this series.

Power Rangers Zeo Play Pack

Power Rangers Zeo: Invasion of the Mean Screen

Power Rangers Zeo: Mini Book

RELATED SHOWS:

MIGHTY MORPHIN' POWER RANGERS,THE (inc. THE MIGHTY MORPHIN' ALIEN RANGERS)

VR TROOPERS

HIMITSU SENTAI GORANGER

DENGEKITAI SENTAI J.A.K.Q.

BATTLEFEVER J

TAIYO SENTAI VULCAN

DAI SENTAI GOGGLE V

KAGAKU SENTAI DYNAMAN

HIKARI SENTAI MASKMAN

CHIKYUU SENTAI FIVEMAN

CHO JIN SENTAI JETMAN

CHO JIN SENTAI JETMAN
 KYORYUU SENTAI ZYURANGER
 GO SEI SENTAI DAIRANGER
 DEN KO CHO JIN GRIDMAN
 BIG BAD BEETLEBORGS
 POWER RANGERS TURBO
 POWER RANGERS LOST GALAXY

1 - 1 A ZEO BEGINNING (1-2)

This is the show that began it all for the Zeo Power Rangers! The command center was blown up when Rita's bad guys were trying to steal the Zeo Crystal. The Power Rangers were sad because they thought Zordon was dead and that there would be no more Power Rangers. Rita and Lord Zedd were being attacked by the Machine King, a new bad guy from space. Rita and Lord Zedd left to be safe at Rita's father's place. When the Power Rangers found the Zeo Crystal and they set it on the ground it took them to a lower level of the command center. The Zeo Crystal made the command center become whole again to become the power chamber. The Power Rangers found Alpha again. Ay-yi-yi. The Machine Empire has arrived to take over the world and the Power Rangers have no powers! Lord Zedd and Rita are gone now because they were scared and ran away. The Power Rangers find out that Zordon is still alive. There are only five Zeo Crystals and that is not enough for all the Power Rangers, so Billy decides to stay in the Power Chamber to help Alpha run things. Now there are five Power Rangers again. The new Zeo Power Rangers morph with their new power and fight the cogs the Machine Empire sent down. This is an excellent episode. I am glad Zordon was still alive!

Wr Stewart St. John

Dir Isaac Florentine

1 - 2 THE SHOOTING STAR

Alpha and Billy are working on making new Zeo Zords and getting them all ready. King Mondo sends some Cogs down to where the Zords are hidden so they can make the Zords not work right. Tonya's boyfriend is on the Angel Grove High School baseball team, but he's having problems in school. He has to get a passing grade on his test or he can't play baseball. Tonya is going to help him study but he is going to cheat. Then Skull and Bulk get attacked by some Cogs. The Power Rangers Zeo fight the Cogs and get rid of them. then King Mondo sends down the Staroid monster to attack the Rangers. They have to fight him and win and save Angel Grove again. Tonya's boyfriend finds out that cheating isn't a good thing.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Vickie Bronaugh

1 - 3 TARGET RANGERS

Rocky has a crush on his partner in science class, but she's all about work. When their computer game project gets stolen to be used to program King Mondo's Silo monster, he'll have to deal with both his wrath AND her's! Meanwhile, the Zeo Megazord uses its various Battle Helmets in battle, and it'll need them, when Silo drags the Megazord, with the Zeo Rangers inside, into the outer space, planning to toss them into the sun! Also, Bulk & Skull are assigned to guard the junkyard where Silo is being built.

Wr Stewart St. John

Dir Vickie Bronaugh

1 - 4 FOR CRYIN' OUT LOUD

Bulk and Skull got detoured around Angel Grove on their motorcycle and had problems with their brakes. They crashed and made a big mess. Then Tommy and Katherine had to pretend they were married for a class. The other Power Rangers thought it was funny. To make it seem more real Katherine brought along a baby named Joey who she babysat for sometimes. The other Power Rangers thought that was really funny. The Machine King decided to send Boo Hoo the clown to Angel Grove. Boo Hoo made it so everytime Joey cried it got louder and made people's heads hurt. The Power Rangers had to fight and stop Boo Hoo so Joey could get back to normal. Tommy and Katherine got an A on their marriage assignment. I liked this episode ok, but it was sort of silly.

Wr Al Winchell

Dir Robert Radler

1 - 5 RANGERS IN THE OUTFIELD

Tanya's boyfriend Shawn, as previously revealed, is the star player of Angel Grove High's baseball team. His ego takes a tumble when Tanya discovers she's a natural at pitching, so good that all of the attention he normally gets turns on her! King Mondo, inspired by this episode's baseball theme, unleashes the People Pitcher monster. Meanwhile, Bulk & Skull are put on trash pick-up duty.

Wr Brett D. Born

Dir Robert Radler

1 - 6 EVERY DOG HAS HIS DAY

Kat trains a police dog, Smokey, to be a search and rescue dog for her civics class. Her training ends up saving her own life when she gets trapped by the Machine Empire. Smokey aids the ankle-sprained & Morpher-less Kat in escaping from the Digster monster's lava-releasing ramapage. Meanwhile, Bulk & Skull are put in charge of watching over Smokey, but the pooch manages to loose them at every turn.

Wr Mark Hoffmeier

Dir Robert Radler

1 - 7 THE PUPPET BLASTER

There is a new show at the youth center for kids with Captain Pete and Puppetman. The Power Rangers watch it and so do Bulk and Skull, who are babysitting. King Mondo sends cogs down to Angel Grove and makes the Puppetman evil by making him able hypnotize the kids watching the show. King Mondo has the Puppetman put a spell on the kids. The kids keep the Power Rangers from stopping the Puppetman. King Mondo sends the Puppetman out to put all the children in Angel Grove under a spell. While they are in the Power Chamber the Power Rangers get a new tool that keeps people from being hypnotized. The Power Rangers are able to beat the Puppetman with their Zords and the kids go back to normal.

Wr Stewart St. John

Dir Isaac Florentine

1 - 8 INVASION OF THE RANGER SNATCHERS

Tanya, Rocky, and Kat get to be extras in a science fiction movie. Prince Sprocket decides he wants to make his own movie using the Power Rangers, but he needs them to do it. He sends the cogs down to get monster costumes and makes them into monsters to fight the Power Rangers. Prince Sprocket kidnaps the Power Rangers. They have to fight the monsters for the movie, but they are fighting for real so they can stop the monsters. The Power Rangers win and ruin Prince Sprocket's movie. This was a pretty good episode. I thought Rocky had a cool part when he was a movie extra and the whole thing was fun.

Wr Gilles Wheeler

Dir Isaac Florentine

1 - 9 GRADUATION BLUES

Billy, by way of having too many credits, graduates a year early. He's stunned by this, but plans for his future are put on hold when Cestro (the Blue Alien Ranger) returns from Aquitar, in need of Billy's expertise in devising a way to stop the Hydro Contaminators from polluting his watery homeworld. One of the Hydro Contaminators comes to Earth, joins forces with the Machine Empire, and just might prevent Billy & Cestro from returning to Aquitar to fulfill this mission. Also, Bulk & Skull are put in charge of guardian Cestro's ship while he's away, so the pair gives the task to Goldar & Rito, sending the amnesiac monsters fleeing from their assignment when Lt. Stone spots them!

Wr Mark Litton

Dir Isaac Florentine

1 - 10 A FEW BAD SEEDS

Rocky's strange botany experiment, a plant that eats metal, and Skull's own one made from swiping part of his, get turned into a pair of Plant Monsters by the Machine Empire. One of which, the Pollenator, sprays its creator with a pollen that causes Rocky to turn into a living vegetable!

Wr Richard Goodman

Dir Vickie Bronaugh

1 - 11 INSTRUMENT OF DESTRUCTION

At Angel Grove High School the school counselor decided Skull and Adam need different kinds of classes. He makes them take a music class. Skull doesn't want to take the music class and he isn't very good at it. When Adam goes into the music room after school he sees someone playing the piano, but he can't tell who it is because he is wearing something that covers him up. Prince Sprocket wants to kidnap him and the Power Rangers have to stop him. This episode was ok, but it wasn't very exciting.

Wr Steven Melching, Charlotte Fullerton

Dir Vickie Bronaugh

1 - 12 MEAN SCREEN

Adam and Tanya are part of Angel Grove High School's computer club. They spend time after school on the internet and one day while they are online Tanya lets a computer virus free in the school's computer system. A person who knows a lot about computers is in the computer lab when the virus gets free, tries to help Tanya. He tries to make an anti-virus to get rid of the virus. King Mondo makes the Mean Screen monster. The Mean Screen monster can put a computer virus into anything, including Angel Grove's entire computer system. The Power Rangers Zeo try to stop Mean Screen from putting a virus into Angel Grove's computers but they can't. The virus even gets into the Power Ranger Zeo's computers. Adam goes and gets the anti-virus from the person at school and has him make one that can stop Mean Screen. He uses the anti-virus on the Zeo equipment and the Power Rangers Zeo beat Mean Screen. Everything is fine in Angel Grove once again.

Wr Ron Milbauer, Terri Hughes

Dir Vickie Bronaugh

1 - 13 MR. BILLY'S WILD RIDE

Billy's on his way back to Earth from Aquitar. But the Machine Empire wants to make sure he doesn't survive the trip through space. The Zeo Rangers will have to pull out all the stops to get him safely home, and take on the Mechanizer monster. Meanwhile, Bulk & Skull take a course in orienteering, but find themselves quickly lost in the wilderness.

Wr Al Winchell

Dir Douglas Sloan

1 - 14 THERE'S NO BUSSINESS LIKE SNOW BUSSINESS (1-3)

Billy, Tommy, and Kat go snowboarding for the weekend. King Mondo sends a cog to get rid of them while they are there and Kat sees it. At the same time King Mondo makes a new monster called Robocupid that makes people fall in love with their electronics. He sends Robocupid down to Angel Grove. Back on the ski slopes Kat follows the cog and ends up on the super hard ski slope. The cogs take down all the markers from the ski slope and no one can tell where to go. Tommy and Billy ski it fine, but Kat goes off the edge of a cliff. While Kat, Billy, and Tommy are off snowboarding the rest of the Zeo Power Rangers go to the Power Chamber and find out what has been happening. Tanya, Rocky, and Adam have to fight Robocupid and beat him. Tommy and Kat transport to help in the battle and the Power Rangers win. Tommy and Kat go back to snowboarding. King Mondo makes a new monster called the Defoliator. He makes the greenhouse effect worse and everything gets really hot in Angel Grove and it's still getting hotter. The Defoliator is really attacking Angel Grove now and everything is super hot. The Zeo Power Rangers use the Zeo Megazord to fight the defoliator and they think they have won. They think it is gone for good, but it comes back. Tthe Zeo Power Rangers have to fight it again and this time they are losing because Tommy is on a date. They call Zordon for help and he gets Tommy to help them. The Zeo Power Rangers finally defeat the Defoliator and Angel Grove is once again safe.

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Douglas Sloan

1 - 15 INNER SPIRIT

Tommy has the same nightmare over and over. It is about a Native American he has met when he is searching for his piece of the Zeo Crystal Shard. He transports to the command Center because the Power Rangers are losing a fight. He wants to aks Zordon what the Power Rangers can do. Then the next day when he is awake Tommy meets a Native American man whose name is Sam Truehart. Sam is a Native American artist. And he just happen to look like the Native American who was in his dream. At the same time King Mondo sends down a power monster to steal Angel Grove's power. During the fight when the Power Rangers are using their zords the Zeo Megazord is ruined. Tommy uses his mind to control the new Zeo Red Battle Zord he is given.

Wr Mark Litton, Mark Hoffmeier

Dir Robert Radler

1 - 16 CHALLENGES

Tommy meets a strange man. He learns he has to meet a new challenge and then he will find out who the man is. Prince Sprocket wants to have a boxing match with Punchabunch and the Zeo Power Rangers. Punchabunch starts destroying Angel Grove. Tommy uses the Red Battlezord to beat him, but Ounchabunch gets transported back home and is repaired with new weapons. Punchabunch comes back to Angel Grove and the Zeo Power Rangers have to fight him again. Once they finally win, Tommy finds out that the strange man is really his long lost brother.

Wr Mark Litton

Dir Robert Radler

1 - 17 FOUND AND LOST

David Trueheart, Tommy's long lost brother, immediately hits it off with his similar-looking sibling, though seems to be overly sensitive when they compare martial arts skills. The Machine Empire becomes aware of the power within Tommy & David's merged arrowhead-halves, and kidnaps David as ransom to gain the artifact. If that wasn't bad enough, the Mace Face monster attacks, proving to be too powerful for the Rangers' Zords. Meanwhile, Goldar & Rito get loose, causing Bulk & Skull to go out searching for them.

Wr Mark Litton, Stewart St. John

Dir Robert Radler

2 - 1 BROTHER, CAN YOU SPARE AN ARROWHEAD?

Tommy decides his brother David is more important than the arrowhead and gives it to King Mondo. He goes back to the Power Chamber and finds out the rest of the Zeo Power Rangers are losing a fight to Mace Face. Tommy goes to help the others and they beat Mace Face. When they get back to the Power Chamber they find out David is in the cave where the paintings on the walls are coming alive. Tommy goes to save David. Tommy tells David that he is a Zeo Power Ranger. The Zeo Power Rangers get the arrowhead back and Tommy and David decide to keep it apart so it will be safe.

Wr Mark Litton

Dir Terrence H. Winkless

2 - 2 TRUST IN ME

After watching a martial arts demonstration Rocky decides to make friends with a blind martial artist. She doesn't like being treated differently and he has to learn to treat her the same. When he has to morph into a Zeo Power Ranger she can tell it is Rocky by his voice and he has to pretend that he is only talking to the Power Rangers. King Mondo sends down a new monster called the Defector. It pretends it escaped from the Machine Empire and it wants their help. But it is only tricking them. The Power Rangers have to take care of it and save the day once again.

Wr Al Winchell

Dir Terrence H. Winkless

2 - 3 IT CAME FROM ANGEL GROVE

Bulk and Skull walk Tanya home after she has worked all night at the center. Adam is still there and he turns on the television and watches a scary old movie. He falls asleep and then is woken up by a black cat jumping on the table and spilling a drink. Adam chases after the cat and finds Lord Zedd and Rita. They make Adam think that King Mondo has turned the other rangers into monsters. They tell him that he has to get a lot of different things and take them to a wizard to save the other Rangers. Adam goes off to find them. He runs into the other Rangers. The Rangers are now characters from the scary film he was watching earlier. He gets all the things he needs and finds out that Zordon is the wizard he needs to help him. Zordon the wizard tells him he has to pick one of the Rangers to fight one of King Mondo's monsters. Adam picks Tommy and Tommy is suddenly at the battle already as a Zeo Power Ranger. Tommy wins and Adam wakes up to find out it was all just a dream.

Wr Joseph Kuhr

Dir Robert Radler

2 - 4 BULK FICTION

Billy got a new present and it was a remote controlled car. He was seeing how it worked in the park and Bulk and Skull were chasing it. Some cogs showed up and attacked Billy while he is trying out his new car. The cogs make Billy's communicator fall off so he can't call Zordon for help. Billy puts the communicator on the remote controlled car and it makes the cogs lose. Prince Sprocket makes a new toy monster and it attacks Angel Grove. The Zeo Power Rangers beat the monster, but then it is brought back. The Zeo Power Rangers use their Zeo Zords and win.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Terrence H. Winkless

2 - 5 SONG SUNG YELLOW

The Power Rangers were watching Tanya sing. Some record producers saw Tanya and said she had a great talent. They asked her if she wanted to be a singer, but she said no. The producers asked Bulk and Skull if they wanted to be stars but Bulk and Skull thought they weren't real producers. When they found out they were real producers, Bulk and Skull chased after them to try and get their chance to become stars. The Zeo Power Rangers had to fight Roboball and they defeated him. This made King Mondo mad. He was so mad he sent two more monsters to Earth and the Zeo Power Rangers had to defeat them too.

Wr Steven Melching, Charlotte Fullerton

Dir Robert Radler

2 - 6 GAME OF HONOR

Adam is going to be in a martial arts tournament and he needs to practice. He goes into the woods to practice with the other Zeo Power Rangers. He accidentally finds a medal in the woods. Billy runs tests on the medal and he finds out that is an invisibility shield. King Mondo has a whole bunch of ships hidden in the woods using other invisibility medals, ready to attack Angel Grove. Bulk and Skull are kidnapped from the woods by King Mondo's monster. Zordon calls the Zeo Power Rangers, making Adam and Tanya leave their martial arts tournament. Billy knocks out the invisibility medals from the Power Chamber, letting the Zeo Power Rangers see the monster and beat him. Adam goes back to the martial arts tournament and wins.

Wr Brett D. Born

Dir Robert Radler

2 - 7 THE POWER OF GOLD

King Mondo figured out a way to split the Zeo Power Rangers into two teams at the same time. Then he sent down monsters to defeat them all. A new Ranger, the Gold Ranger, showed up to help them at the last minute. They all teamed up to fight, but they were still not winning. So the Zeo Power Rangers used their Zeo Zords. The Gold Ranger had a Zord too. It was called Pyramidas. It could link up with the other Rangers and make a new super huge Zord. When they Rangers were done with the monsters the Gold Ranger disappeared and Billy was missing at the same time. Could Billy be the new Gold Ranger???

Wr Al Winchell

Dir Robert Radler

2 - 8 A SMALL PROBLEM

Prince Sprocket is making a new gadget to make things grow really big, but it makes them really small instead. Tommy and Kat and some others go to the desert to get some spiders and stuff for a school project. King Mondo tells Prince Sprocket to use his new gadget on Tommy and Kat while they are in the desert. When Prince Sprocket shoots his gadget he misses and shrinks their car instead. Tommy and Kat turn into the Zeo Power Rangers and fight the cogs, but they can't win so they get shrunk. Prince Sprocket puts them into their spider container for their project and then puts a spider in there to stop them from escaping. Just as the spider was going to get them the Gold Ranger shows up and saves them. King Mondo makes a spider monster to get the Rangers, but they get together with Pyramidas to make the Ultrazord and win!

Wr Mark Hoffmeier

Dir Vickie Bronaugh

2 - 9 OILY TO BED, OILY TO RISE

Tommy, Adam, and Tommy's brother David were at the beach watching Kat in a surfing contest. King Mondo sent the Leaky Faucet monster and a bunch of cogs to Earth to pollute the water. They were going to turn all the water into machine cog oil. When Zordon found out about it he sent the rest of the Rangers to stop the cogs, but they couldn't. The toxic oil got into the ocean and was heading toward Kat. Tommy and Adam went to save Kat. Then they all went to save the world from the Leaky Faucet monster, because Billy figured out that if he was gone the spell would be broken. The Gold Ranger showed up again and they formed with Pyramidas and the Zeo Zords to make the super Zord again. They beat the Leaky Faucet monster. They noticed David wasn't around while they were fighting. Could David be the new Gold Ranger???

Wr Gilles Wheeler

Dir Robert Radler

2 - 10 ROCK-A-BYE POWER RANGERS

King Mondo has decided to try and wear out the Zeo Power Rangers. He sends down a cogs all over the place and as soon as they finish withsome he sends down more. Then he sends down a sleeping monster, to make the people of Angel Grove go to sleep. The Zeo Power Rangers go fight the monster, but then he starts making them fall asleep too. Then the Gold Ranger shows up and beats the monster and saves the Zeo Power Rangers. King Mondo has to think of something new to stop them next time.

Wr Tony Oliver, Barbara A. Oliver

Dir Vickie Bronaugh

2 - 11 DO I KNOW YOU

King Mondo wants to stop the Zeo Power Rangers and steal the Gold Ranger's power too. The Rangers are fighting a battle and the Gold Ranger comes to help them, only this time it is not easy for him. He gets hit and even hurt a little. The Power rangers help him out. Then he talks with the Zeo Power Rangers for a little bit and they ask him who he is. He tells them that he can't tell them who he is or he will lose his powers. Just who is the new Gold Ranger? And how will he lose his powers if he tells???

Wr Al Winchell

Dir Vickie Bronaugh

2 - 12 REVELATIONS OF GOLD (PART 1 OF 2)

The Zeo Power Rangers learn that the Gold Ranger is actually Trey from Triforia and he is actually three different parts of the same person. Trey is losing his Gold Ranger powers and he has to give them to someone else. He decides to give them to Billy, but Billy can't have them because he was in the Command Center explosion and it messed up his body. The Zeo Power Rangers have to find someone fast who can take the Gold Ranger powers!

Wr Shuki Levy, Shell Danielson

Dir Vickie Bronaugh

2 - 13 A GOLDEN HOMECOMING (PART 2 OF 2)

Tommy goes to get someone to take the Gold Ranger powers. He goes and gets Jason, who used to be the original Red Ranger. The rest of the Zeo Power Rangers have to fight some monsters while Jason is getting the Gold Ranger powers. When the Rangers call the Power Chamber to ask for help they are teleported back there. Trey gives them 6 power coins to use with their Super Zeo Zords. With these new coins the Rangers are able to go out and beat the monsters.

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Vickie Bronaugh

2 - 14 KING MONDO'S LAST STAND

King Mondo, Queen Machina, and Prince Sprocket come down to Earth to get a sword that King Mondo left buried here from a long time ago. Zordon calls the Zeo Power Rangers to stop him, but they can't get to him because he has put up an invisible force field. Jason is stopped by Bulk and Skull because they think he is someone else. The rest of the Zeo Power Rangers morph and ride off to stop King Mondo. The cogs attack them and Tommy gets away. He rides off to find King Mondo, but he is gone because he is on his way to Angel Grove. Billy gets a part to make the Super Zeo Megazord totally powerful and the Zeo Power Rangers use it to beat King Mondo for good!

Wr Mark Litton

Dir Robert Radler

2 - 15 BOMBER IN THE SUMMER

Now that King Mondo is gone Rita and Zedd want to take over the Machine Empire. They get Goldar and Rito to go to Earth and start a battle with the Machine Empire. Rito turns on the bomb monster Louey Kabloom to make trouble for the Machine Empire, but Louey makes friends with Queen Machina and decides to become part of the Machine Empire. The Rangers have to fight the Machine Empire and Louey and they win.....for now.

Wr Stewart St. John

Dir Robert Radler

2 - 16 SCENT OF THE WEASEL

The Power Rangers Zeo are helping with a charity fashion show. Skull gets to be the bodyguard for the top model in the show. He makes a mistake and accidentally pours a stinky skunk perfume on the model. The director is mad at him and the model is upset. Then Queen Machina gets the idea to make a skunk monster and send it down to Angel Grove. The Power Rangers have to battle the monster and save Angel Grove once again.

Wr Brett D. Born

Dir Douglas Sloan

2 - 17 THE RANGER WHO CAME IN FROM THE GOLD

Kat & Tanya are putting together a ballet play about King Midas, but are a little short on props. So they hire Bulk & Skull to hunt some down, which leads to their finding Louie Kaboom's Midas Hound, a device which can turn anything into solid gold. They're overcome with greed, until the hound starts turning literally everything into gold, including Jason! Meanwhile, Lord Zedd & Rita Repulsa's lunar winnebago runs into a few bumps on the road to taking control of the Machine Empire.

Wr Mark Hoffmeier

Dir Douglas Sloan

2 - 17 THE LORE OF AURIC

The bomb monster is chasing the Power Rangers and they find the lost Tiki of Auric, but the bomb monster steals it. The Power Rangers have to get it back. Tanya gets a surprise package, but she doesn't know who it is from or what it could be. Inside the package she finds clues to who her parents are and maybe a way to find them. Klank tells the Power Rangers there is a key to the lost Tiki Of Auric, that has some sort of strange properties. Prince Sprocket decides he wants to get the Tiki and use it for evil, but first he has to get it from the Zeo Power Rangers.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Douglas Sloan

2 - 18 THE JOKES ON BLUE

There is a person playing jokes on everyone running around Angel Grove High School. Bulk and Skull are trying to find out who the person playing the jokes is. Prince Gasket and Princess Archerina show up and Prince Gasket is trying to become in charge of the Machine Empire. Prince Gasket and Princess Archerina are going to get the Power Rangers Zeo in the left of all this and it's not going to be easy to get out of it. What can they do to stop Prince Gasket and the practical joker too?

Wr Jim Suave, Colleen White

Dir Isaac Florentine

2 - 19 WHERE IN THE WORLD IS ZEO RANGER 5?

The owner of a new jet ski is having Tommy try it out for him. While Tommy is trying it out Kat and Jason sit and watch him. Tommy suddenly disappears. The Power Rangers look everywhere but they can't find him anywhere. Prince Gasket and Princess Archerina show up send the Chrome Monster to fight with the Power Rangers. The Power Rangers have a hard time fighting the monster without Tommy. But they can't find him and they have to beat the monster without him.

Wr Stewart St. John

Dir Isaac Florentine

2 - 20 KING FOR A DAY (1-2)

The Power Rangers find a way to go to another dimension and get a message from Prince Gasket that he wants them to go there. He wants them to meet the new king of the Machine Empire. They find out the new Machine Empire King is supposed to be Tommy. Jason goes to find out what is going on and get Tommy to come back, but Prince Gasket wants him to fight Tommy. But he wants them to fight as Power Rangers -- Gold Ranger against Red Ranger. And Tommy doesn't know he's Tommy or even who Jason is. No good can come from this! Bulk and Skull are trying to figure out how to get through the shield around Prince Gasket's arena. Jason is still trying to save Tommy, who still doesn't remember who he is. The Power Rangers get to the arena and confront Tommy, but he doesn't remember them either. Kat unmorphs to try and get through to him. The rest of the Power Rangers unmorph too. Finally Tommy remembers who he is and who the Power Rangers are and once again the Power Rangers are back together again.

Wr Al Winchell

Dir Isaac Florentine, Koichi Sakamoto

2 - 21 A BRIEF MYSTERY OF TIME

Tommy keeps feeling like he's done things before or he's been in a certain place before. It's deja-vu. He tries to tell the other Power Rangers Zeo about this feeling, but they think he's just imagining it. But he keeps having the feeling that he has done all this before. Then Tommy knows the Machine Empire's plans for Angel Grove and the Power Rangers, but no one will believe him. He has to convince them that what he knows is real and then once again they stop the machine Empire's attack.

Wr Steven Melching, Charlotte Fullerton

Dir Robert Radler

2 - 22 A MYSTERY TO ME

Lieutenant Stone is holding a party to benefit a charity. he is having a mystery party where everyone has to try and solve a mystery during the party. The Power Rangers Zeo, as themselves, are all at the party. Everyone is having a good time, but then one by one the Power Rangers start to vanish from the party. Kat is trying to figure out why they are disappearing and where they are going. She follows the clues and she gets an idea who is behind it. But she has to stop them before she vanishes too.

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Robert Radler

2 - 23 ANOTHER SONG AND DANCE

Tommy has to do an opera song for his class be he doesn't sound very good. He asks Tanya to help him and he starts to get a little better. But then Prince Gasket puts a spell on both Tommy and Tanya and they can't talk anymore. They sing everything all the time. They even sing when they go see Zordon. How can they stop singing and go back to talking???

Wr Brett D. Born

Dir Robert Radler

2 - 24 RANGERS OF TWO WORLDS (1-2)

Billy becomes really old when he uses the machine he made to get older. The Power Rangers Zeo come to the Power Chamber and see him like that. King Mondo sends a Cog Changer monster down to change one of the cogs inside the Super Zeo MegaZord into an evil cog so that the zord won't do what it should. Rita wants to turn Kat into a bad monster, but she accidentally turns her purse into one instead. Rita and Lord Zedd make the Impurseinator monster grow really big to stop the Power Rangers Zeo, so the Cog

Changer can change the cog. King Mondo zaps him inside the zord and Cog Changer replaces the cog. Now the zord won't obey any Power Rangers Zeo's orders. The Aline Rangers know about Billy's aging problem and two of them come from Aquatar to try and help him, but they can't. They are taking him back to Aquatar with them to see if they can do anything there. King Mondo tells the Cog Changer monster to take over the Super Zeo MegaZord and also the Red BattleZord. The Power Rangers Zeo have to use their Zeo Zords to fight the Cog Changer monster. At the same time Lord Zedd and Rita have managed to get the Impurseinator monster back and have sent her to get the Power Rangers too. They have to fight both monsters and they only have their regular Zords. Just then the Alien Rangers show up and help the Power Rangers. King Mondo makes the Cog Changer grow and Rita and Lord Zedd make the Impurseinator monster grow, so the Power Rangers and Alien Rangers have to fight two giant monsters. Then King Mondo turns both monsters into one big monster and the Power Rangers and Alien Rangers finally beat it. Later, Billy tells them he is planning on staying on Aquatar.

Wr Mark Litton

Dir Larry Kent Litton

2 - 25 HAWAII ZEO

Ernie decides he is going to have a Hawaiian luau and everyone can come. Tommy asks Kat to go with him to the luau and she says she will. Prince Sprocket tells Gasket to make Orbus make him and Princess Archerina grow big. While the Power Rangers are at the luau Gasket and some cogs show up. The Power Rangers have to morph and fight the cogs. Then they let Jason fight the cogs and they use their Zords to fight the big Prince and Princess. The Power Rangers win and so does Jason and everything is fine again for a while.

Wr Al Winchell

Dir Vickie Bronaugh

2 - 26 GOOD AS GOLD

Jason has disappeared when he is supposed to be teaching a class. No one can find him anywhere and all of the Power Rangers are starting to get upset. It's not like Jason to just disappear. What they don't know is that the reason Jason is missing is because he was attacked by the cogs. Now Rita and Lord Zedd are coming too. King Mondo is not happy about that and he has the cogs go and fight Rita and Lord Zedd. They decide to have their guys fight with the cogs and when it is all over Jason escapes without them knowing it. Jason gets back to the Power Chamber and finds out he can't be the Gold Ranger anymore. The Power Rangers send for Trey to find out what to do and he tells them what they can do.

Wr Douglas Sloan

Dir Vickie Bronaugh

2 - 27 A SEASON TO REMEMBER

It is years from now in the future. Tommy is telling a little kid a story. The story is about the Power Rangers. he tells the boy a story about the Power Rangers helping Ernie have a special holiday party. King Mondo sees that this is happening and doesn't like it. So he puts a spell on the Power Rangers to make them selfish and not care about other people and their ideas. the Power Rangers have to get over the spell in time for Christmas and Ernie's party. Of course, there is a good ending to this story Tommy was telling....or was it just a story?

Wr Jackie Marchand

Dir Robert Radler

POWERS

Opening sequence.

Shot of a hotel, and then Song Li and her parents walking up some stairs. She is arguing with them because she doesn't want to be in the hotel. Her parents leave her by her own room door, and as she goes in, lights outside suddenly blow their bulbs.

Opening credits.

At Mary Holland's house, Mark bounds down the stairs. He settles down to have some breakfast, and begins to move a jellybean sweet with the power of his mind. It transpires that Mark is staying with Mary for 6 weeks over the summer, while his parents are away, although where they are right now, he didn't know.

They then arrive at the Professor's laboratory, and Mark receives an e-mail from his parents, who are in Ethiopia working on an irrigation system. The Professor meanwhile is trying to tell them about a phone call he had received from someone called David Gillett, the owner of a hotel, where strange events have been occurring, and he wants the Powers team to investigate. They are to report to the hotel manager, Mr Edger. Mary and Mark go off to the hotel, where they introduce themselves to the manager.

Song Li's Mother and Father walk back towards her room, and her Father is questioning what is wrong with her. He thought a 6 week holiday in Europe would be good for her. As they stand outside her room door, they suddenly hear a loud crash, and opening the door quickly, are greeted by Song Li, crouched down on the floor hugging her knees, with objects in a mess all around her.

The hotel manager is making it known to Mary and Mark that he is very skeptical about the cause of all the disturbances in the hotel. Mary assures him that it might well be an electrical problem or some other reasonable explanation, but while he was checking that out, they would be checking out whether it might be something paranormal. At one point, Mark reads the managers mind, just to make the point that he, Mary and the Powers projects isn't a crackpot scheme. Mary explains to the manager that some teenagers have special abilities, and that the Powers Project help them with those abilities.

Song Li is being told off by her father in her room about the mess it was in when they entered it. He said it was bad enough when she had done this kind of thing at home. He then asks Song Li, that if she didn't trash her room, who did. Song Li looked at him before saying that it was a ghost. Her father didn't believe her, and lost his temper again, before he and her mother left the room.

As Song Li's parents walk down the stairs, they pass Mary and Mark who had begun looking around the hotel to try and find out if they could pick up on any abnormal thoughts or occurrences. Mark picks up that Song Li's mother was thinking about a ghost, and tells Mary. They then turn around and follow Song Li's parents outside.

Mary and Mark then approach Song Li's mother, who is sitting on her own outside. Mary asks if she knew of any unusual things happening, because they had been asked by the hotel to investigate some strange happenings in the hotel. Before Song Li's mother has chance to say anything, her father arrives, loses his temper at Mark and Mary and accuses them of harassment.

As Song Li stays in her room we finally get to see the ghostly image that she said she had been seeing.

In the meantime, her father has told the hotel manager he wants to leave the hotel.

Images of the ghost appear again to Song Li in her room. It is a woman, who appears to be holding a letter in her right hand. Song Li is so scared by what she sees she runs off out of the room. As she runs away, pictures fall off the walls, items crash against them and objects move all around. In her need to get away, Song Li ends up running into the hotel basement.

Song Li's parents go back to her room with the manager, only to find her missing and the room in a terrible mess, with items everywhere.

As the manager walks back towards his office with Song Li's parents, her mother explains she wants some fresh air, and manages to break away from them. She immediately goes off to find Mary, Mark and the newly arrived Professor, who had been phoned by Mary to explain the situation.

Song Li's mother then stands there with them and explains that Song Li, her daughter, had said there was a ghost in her room. The Professor asks her whether Song Li was still in her room, and she told him that she had run away.

The Professor and Mark go off to look for Song Li, while Mary and her mother go to talk to staff of the hotel to see if they might have seen her.

Mark realises the direction that Song Li has taken, and leads the Professor down into the basement area. He calls out to Song Li, and she then response telepathically, telling them to go away. Items of crockery begin to fly against the wall as they approach where Song Li is. Mark pled's with Song Li to calm down, recognising that it her that it causing the objects to move, and the more scared or upset she becomes, the more it happens. Slowly but surely, despite one or two false starts, Mark - using his own telepathic ability - manages to get Song Li calmed down, and she opens the door to the room where she had been hiding to them.

The Professor and Mark talk to Song Li, and quickly realises she thinks the ghost is moving the objects. The professor reassures her, and tells Mark to take her back to her room, and he would go and let her parents know where she is. Mark and Song Li go back to her room, and try to work out why the ghost is appearing for her. Song Li is scared to enter the room, explaining to Mark that she couldn't see her, but she could feel her presence.

Mark asks Song Li what the ghost had done when it had appeared before her, and what age it was, whether it was young or old? Song Li explained it was a woman, young, her was trying to give her a letter.

Mark and Song Li go further into the room. Song Li is drawn towards a vase, which shakes slightly as she begins to approach it. Mark persuades her to out her hand out to the vase to see if it would give them any clue. Song Li puts her hand out carefully, and a vision of a woman, sitting writing a letter, with a single red rose next to her appears for a fleeting second. Just as she pulls her hand away, the Professor, Mary and her parents arrive in the room. The vase crashes down onto the floor and smashes, and a letter, old photograph and a wilted rose all appear amongst the debris. Song Li picks up the letter, and reads it out loud.

Suddenly the presence of the ghost is no longer felt, as the letter has been 'delivered' at last. The Professor explains to Song Li's parents that he believes she could see the ghost, but she was also moving objects with her mind. He then explained that these powers were at their height during adolescence, but diminished as you got older, disappearing altogether once you became an adult. He said he could help Song Li with these powers, so she could understand them more.

Her father refused to believe such a thing could happen, but Mark said he was proof, and then so did Mary, explaining she had been the professors first subject.

Song Li's father refused to let her go with him.

Back at the laboratory, Mark is practicing his telekinetic ability, while the Professor and Mary discuss the loss of Song Li to the project because of her ability to see visions. Just then Song Li and her parents are seen on the screen of the CCTV at the front door of the Laboratory. The Professor buzzes them in, and Song Li's father then explains she and her mother had persuaded him that this was the best place for her to be.

Episode closed.

Powers is an excellent kids drama that appeals to kids and grown-ups alike. The story revolves around the four leads but mostly around the two teenager: Mark(Who can read minds and make objects move) and Song Li(Who reads feelings and have visions when she touches objects that contain an emotion. In proper frame of feelings, she can also move things with her mind.) To help them are Professor Henry Powers who's a straight, no non-sense (!) paranormal researcher! And Dr. Mary Holland, who was the professor first subject and is now precious help in his investigation.

Using the kids abilities, they research unexplained phenomenons that ranges as wide as spirits, dreams, aliens, time loops, etc. The stories are well crafted and the special effects are well done without being over the top and drowning the story. The characters are also well defined and real. The actors were extremely well chosen for they can act the drama as well as the comical without any tress at all. They always make it believable even if sometimes the story might seems not quite as good as it could be.

The only point that would be bad about it is the 25 minutes running time. It's way too short to explore the potential of the story. On some stories, the characters have to make some incredible leap of logic to solve the problem. But considering it's a kids show, I do realize that a longer running time would allow their mind to wander and channel search: NOT what we want!

All in all Powers is a very good show and I can't wait for series two. (There as to be one!) Special mention to Mandana Jones, who portrays Mary Holland with the talent we know she has and she is fantastic in her mother hen role! And beautiful as always! great to see her back regularly on tv!

Produced by - Jess Cleverly executive producer , Chris Le Grys producer
 Cinematography by Shelley Hirst
 Film Editing by Nigel Parkes
 Casting by Angela Grosvenor
 Production Design by Rob Hinds
 Costume Design by Jane Langdale
 Second Unit Director or Assistant Director - Martin O'Malley first assistant director

WR. Jim Eldridge.

DIR. Emma Bodger, Brian Farnham

EPISODES: 13 YEAR MADE: 2004 COUNTRY: GB SEASONS: 1

BBC WORLDWIDE

CREATOR: JIM ELDRIDGE

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPER POWERS FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 25 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 13

DATE OF PREMIER: 07/01/2004 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 31/03/2004

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Professor Powers RUPERT HOLLIDAY-EVANS, Mark ADAM JESSOP, Dr. Mary Holland MANDANA JONES, Song-Li AMY YAMAZAKI

1 - 1 NEW KID IN TOWN

The Powers Project is asked to look into the strange events taking place at a country hotel. A teenage girl named Song Li Harris is claiming that a ghost has been damaging her room, while her parents and the manager are rather more sceptical.

Notes : New Kid in Town takes its cue from The Tomorrow People by having Song Li's new powers emerge in the opening episode. She's actually responsible for the poltergeist activity herself - many documented cases of such activity are connected with teenage girls of a similar age.

Mary was Professor Powers first subject - her powers disappeared as she got older.

Wr Jim Eldridge

Dir Emma Bodger

1 - 2 MISSING

Twenty-five years after his father was seriously injured in a quarrying accident, David Watkins drives into a quarry and disappears. His son, Brian, contacts the Powers Project via the police after reading about their work online. After Mark's attempt to use his psychic dowsing skills on David's favourite pen fail, he suggests that Song Li may have more success. Her powers finally lead them to the quarry where she finds the detonating box that David had fallen on twenty-five years earlier. She has a vision of the accident and sees that David's father was actually pushed out of the way of the explosion by another man, and from her description it seems to be David himself.

Wr Jim Eldridge

Dir Emma Bodger

1 - 3 SHADE IN THE STONE

Evan Foster has been helping Harry Ford to lay pipes at his farm, and as they work they stumble across a silver chalice. Unknown to Harry, Evan also finds an inscribed amulet. The Powers Project are called in when Evan starts visiting the local museum at every available opportunity after the chalice goes on display. From viewing CCTV footage taken one night, Evan can clearly be seen standing outside the museum along with the shadow of someone else. According to the curator of the museum, Mr Stannard, the chalice is almost certainly a 10th century Anglo Saxon burial chalice, although no remains were found with it. When Harry disappears the team finally realise that someone, or something, is trying to bring the objects back together. But as Song Li points out, there weren't any bones found.

Wr Jim Eldridge

Dir Emma Bodger

1 - 4 WE ARE NOT ALONE

The Powers team are called in to try and communicate with a girl who has been caught outside a secret research establishment. The other people with her at the time managed to get away. Neither Mark or Song Li manage to get anything from the girl, but Mark does pick up from Dr Felton that there is a possibility she may be an alien. Strange signals were picked up on the night she was captured and they can't be identified. Mark and Song Li try to communicate with her again with no one else in the room and finally find out that her name is Lex. She was on a research trip with her father and a small crew when their ship developed a fault. They landed to re-fuel it with water. Felton, meanwhile, is listening to their conversation via a bug planted in her cell. Unknown to him, Mark and Song Li are intending to break Lex out.

Wr Jim Eldridge

Dir Brain Farnham

1 - 5 LAND OF NOD

The Powers project investigate the causes of Erin's recurring dream in which she repeatedly sees an old couple named William and Angie. Song Li uses her powers to share Erin's dream and with the information Mark and Professor Powers are able to locate the house where William and Angie live.

Wr Stephen Hallett

Dir Emma Bodger

1 - 6 THINGS THAT GO BUMP

The Powers team are asked to look into what initially appears to be a simple case of vandalism at the Hawthorne House children's home. When Mark and Professor Powers visit the home things initially seem normal until the balls from the pool table start flying around the room. Powers suspects it may just be Mark's reaction to missing his parents. While the Professor tries to track down the aunt of a former resident of the home called Kelly Driscoll, who it is thought may be behind the incidents, Mary and Song Li go along to the home where they are intending to spend the night. Soon after their arrival they witness a number of saucepan lids flying off saucepans. Later that night the home comes under attack once more.

Wr Christopher Wicking

Dir Emma Bodger

1 - 7 IS THERE ANYBODY OUT THERE?

The Powers team investigate the strange disappearance of Ned Thomson who has been captured on video apparently being abducted by aliens.

Wr Stephen Hallett

Dir Brain Farnham

1 - 8 I'LL BE WATCHING YOU

Mark is taken along by Professor Powers to talk to a boy called Ian, who his aunt believes may be being bullied. Ian suffers from vertigo and is dared by Dean to walk along a wall. Initially he stumbles, but a light appears at the end of the wall and he calmly walks along it. Later, Mark picks up a stray thought from Ian: he believes someone is looking after him. He also picks up a strange photo that Ian has dropped. Back at the lab Mary identifies the photo as being an aura photo. When Song Li takes the photo she gets an image of Mel and Ian being involved in a car accident and also senses another presence was there with them. Talking to Mel they find out that that they had been to the local fair where Ian had had the photo taken. On the way home a lorry pulled out from a junction, but before Mel had even seen the lorry she heard a voice telling her to pull over. Ian believes he has a guardian angel and when Mary does some looking into the subject she finds that the phenomenon usually vanishes after about three days. It's now three days since the accident and Dean has dared Ian to walk along the scaffolding in an old church.

Wr Carolyn Sally Jones

Dir Brain Farnham

1 - 9 THE UNINVITED

Mary gets a call from the husband of one of her friends who died the previous year. His son, Ben, has been looking for their dog which has run away, and he is now telling stories about returning home and finding his father missing and an unknown woman and girl living in their house. After Mark and Song Li become involved, Professor Powers comes up with the theory that they may be dealing with a parallel universe linked to ours via a wormhole. The only problem being that the other universe is becoming unstable and may be starting to affect our own.

Wr Carolyn Sally Jones

Dir Emma Bodger

1 - 10 FACE VALUE

A car crashes and a teenage girl climbs out of the back completely injured and walks away leaving a man and woman unconscious in the car. She walks down the local high street and into an electrical shop. As she looks at the televisions the pictures all change to show the crashed car. Later, at the local police station, she manages to turn the alarm on and off and open a locked police car which has the keys inside. The police contact the Powers Project to see if they can help. Meanwhile, the woman who was in the crashed car is being interviewed by Dr Nolan who needs to know if Toni caused the crash - they don't know what she might be capable of. Back at the Powers Project and the professor is seeing how Toni does on a reaction test where the user has to use their powers to predict which areas in a computer game will become active. Rather surprisingly she blows it out of the water and has a 100% record. Song Li is unable to pick up any emotion from her at all. Meanwhile, Dr Nolan has received a report that Toni was with the police. She's unstable and could be dangerous if any more pressure is put on her.

Wr Jim Eldridge

Dir Emma Bodger

1 - 11 IN THE LOOP

Mark and Dr Holland go to investigate an area where aircraft have reported instrumentation problems. Initially suspecting it to be caused by ley lines, they soon find themselves with a strange sense of déjà vu.

Wr Carolyn Sally Jones

Dir Brain Farnham

1 - 12 FUTURE BOX

Professor Dixon brings along a device called a Future Box which should enable the user to get a glimpse of his or her future. Mark is eager to find out if he will be rich and famous and is the first to try the machine. Ignoring Dixon's warning, he interacts with his future self who is quite definitely rich, but whose means of acquiring his wealth are somewhat less than ethical.

Wr Jim Eldridge

Dir Brain Farnham

1 - 13 THE FUTURE IS YOURS

As a birthday surprise Mark is taken to see the FA Cup, which is currently on display at Stanford Rovers FC. While there he takes a penalty on the pitch, which is saved by a young player called Tyrone Lewis who simply turned around and caught the ball as if he knew where it was going to be. It soon emerges that Tyrone didn't just see where the ball was going to be. He's also had a vision of the FA Cup being stolen from its display case while Mark and Song Li are present.

Wr John Jackson

Dir Brain Farnham

POWERS OF MATTHEW STARR, THE

The Powers of Matthew Starr was a series about Matthew Starr, a high school student who appeared to be quite normal. Matthew Starr however was anything but normal. he was a crown prince, but not just any crown prince but a crown prince from another planet. His home world was named Quadris, where he was known as Ehawk. Matthew was forced to leave Quadris when his father's peaceful government was overthrown by tyrants. When he fled Quadris he was accompanied by his guardian Dehay, who adopted the name Walt Shepherd on Earth.

Walt's job was to protect Matthew and to train him in the use of his budding mental powers, which he would need if he were ever to return home. Walt himself did not have any powers since they were unique to the royal family on Quadris. These powers included such things as telekinesis, ESP and astral projection. As the series progressed Matthew's mental powers increased in strength and he also gained new powers.

When they first arrived on Earth. Matthew and Walt decided to fit in as best they could. Matthew enrolled in Crestwood High School. Walt was able to obtain a job at Crestwood High School as a science teacher. The early episodes centred around life at the high school with Matthew using his powers to help out his friends. His best friend was Bob Alexander. Pam Elliott was his blonde girlfriend. Halfway through the series' first (and only) season life changed for Matthew and Walt. The government had learned of Matthew's powers and decided to put them to use on special missions. Both Matthew and Walt were forced to leave Crestwood High School, and their friends there, in order to go on missions given to them by their government contact Major Wymore.

Lou Gossett Jr. almost made plausible as combination Science Teacher/Football Coach, otherwise the least likely plot element. And I speak as a graduate of Caltech, where the football team had higher IQs than weights (in pounds). The series was supposed to premiere in September 1981, but was delayed a year due to Peter Barton's being seriously burned during filming. The show lost its focus about halfway through, when Matt developed transmutation and astral projection, while fighting spies for Major Wymore, and still somehow having time to hang out with buddy Bob and try getting past first base with Pam.

NBC apparently had lots of faith in The Powers of Matthew Starr, since it survived far longer then it should have given its production problems and low ratings. The series was originally to have been called: The Powers of David Starr and the pilot was made using this as the character's name in 1981. NBC liked the pilot and sent word to begin the series. Peter Brandon however was seriously burned by a magnesium flare during the shooting (an accident which also injured Louis Gossett Jr.) and production was halted for a year. When production resumed the character's name got changed. The series also was given the chance to completely overhaul its format mid way through the season, when most other programmes would have simply been cancelled.

And that was where the problem began for U.S. critics. They couldn't take seriously a show where the lead looked way to old to be in school. As a comedy it might have worked, but as an adventure it misfired and ran for just one season from September 1982. The producer for the series was Harve Bennett, who also created TIME TRAX and GEMINI MAN. The series was shown on NBC in the states.

Created by: Steven deSouza; Developed by: Daniel Wilson, Harve Bennett, Robert Earll, Allan Balter; Supervising Producer: Bruce Johnson, Robert Earll, Allan Balter; Producer: Carl Pingitore, Martin Goldstein, Fran Sears, Steven E. DeSouza; Executive Producer: Daniel Wilson, Harve Bennett, Bruce Lansbury; Co-Producer: Gil Grant; Associate Producer: Christopher Chulack and Mervin B. Dayan, Jay Scherberth, Scott Winant, Karl Epstein, Linda Feitelson; Executive Story Consultant/Editor: Judy Burns, Richard Christian Matheson and Thomas Szollosi, Gregory S. Dinallo; NBC/Paramount; 60 minutes. The basic idea behind Powers of Matthew Star was to tell the story of a super-powered teenager, growing up on Earth but not a ceJebrity. Creator and producer Steven deSouza remembers the NBC television network asking for a teenage Superman.

"The Superman movie had (just) come out. I came up with this concept, and [the network] liked the element of Superman as a high school student and he had problems with football teams and couldn't join because he was too good." The inspiration comes largely from a segment of the Superman film when young Clark Kent laments his problems in high school, with girls and with the difficulty of hiding his powers while playing football. "That's what they were looking for," says deSouza.

"When we went to cast the show, the network insisted on an actor [Gerald O'Loughlin] to play the mentor character which is completely miscast. He used a heavy accent, he talked in 'dis' 'dem' and 'dose'. We ended up making him the janitor because you couldn't believe he was anything else. There was just no sophistication to the character. He's a very common-cut type of guy. There's no way this character could be Obi-Wan Kenobi."

But "Starr Knight" was the premise pilot of the show. DeSouza explains that in television filmmaking, there are actually two kinds of pilots. A premise pilot sets up for the viewer the premise of the show and the characters he will be seeing in the episodes to follow. The episode pilot is simply the first episode; it is typical of the series and could just as easily air in the seventh week as in the first.

In "Starr Knight," written by deSouza, then named David Starr does not know his heritage or his powers. His mentor, Max, played by O'Loughlin keeps the knowledge from him so he can grow up "normal" on Earth. In the course of the story, his powers are needed, and David has to activate them in order to save some lives. "I thought it was a great idea," remembers star Peter Barton fondly. "Matthew was the kind of character that basically I've played a lot in life characters who are trying to do what's right in life, and fight the forces of evil- and I felt very strongly about Matthew being that type of individual. So it was a very good role for me at that time of my life.

"I thought the first pilot was what the character was all about. I thought it was a very good episode, but then [the network] wanted to finetune things. But I thought it was a very nice, sensitive story. It goes deeper than just a prince from another planet who's going to go back some day and save his people. It's the story of a young man growing into manhood and accepting responsibility for himself and other people." DeSouza says that while he was writing the premise pilot, the network said to him, "We don't want a science fiction show. We don't want a show where the spaceship lands the little boy on Earth. Let's find another clever way of doing a premise pilot." So I said 'Ok, let's do the one where he discovers for the first time he's not human.' Again, we borrowed from Superman, because in the original Superman comic he's not told when he's a young man that he's from another planet."

NBC liked the pilot, but before going to series, a few changes were needed. Louis Gossett, Jr., replaced O'Loughlin as the mentor, now named Walt Shepherd, and the lead was renamed Matthew Star. Now well aware of his own powers, with Walt's guidance Matthew would shape his strengths and weaknesses so that when called to return to his home planet, he would be ready to reclaim the throne. Meanwhile, Matthew had high school and a girlfriend to keep him busy.

"The second pilot was really not a new pilot at all. It was exactly the same rules as the first one," says deSouza. "It was a reconceptualization of the premise of the show. And he was the rightful leader of the government of his planet. He was brought here to be safe. He was living in hiding because there might be assassins coming after him some day. That was my original premise!" Unfortunately, Powers of Matthew Star had some bad luck in its evolution on television. During the filming of "Jackal," the second pilot, Barton had a fire-related accident. Ron Satlof, a director of two Powers episodes, recalls the incident vividly. "Peter was a young actor who was always trying to do something extra," he remembers. "That's why he got burned. He was trying to do more than he was asked to do, and that cost him."

The scene was this: Louis Gossett was tied up in a chair, surrounded by lit magnesium flares in a junkyard set. Barton was supposed to come into the scene and drag Gossett out of the circle of flares while avoiding some falling debris. Stuntmen had already done the important bits of action for the actors. But, for close-up purposes, Barton and Gossett did portions of the scene to match with the stunt segments. "What Peter was instructed to do was come in and get to the chair, and say dialogue," explains Satlof. "It was just a close-up. He didn't have to repeat any of the moves because the stunt had already been done. Basically, he just steps into the shot, says a few words to Lou and starts making motions of moving the chair back, from which we'd cut to the stuntman doing all that. Instead of that, he leaned the chair back and he actually dragged it past the circle of flares. He tripped. He fell on one of the flares."

"Lou was very smart," says Barton, remembering the incident. "They were talking about tying his hands, and he said, 'You're not tying my hands.' If he was tied in the chair he wouldn't have been able to ... I mean, he rolled off me very quickly. He fell on top of me, and I fell on top of the flare. Because he wasn't tied, he was able to maneuver out of there very fast, which allowed me to roll off the flare just as fast."

"It's horrible that it did happen, and thank god he's okay" remarks Satlof.

With Barton out of commission for several months, the production was shut down. Because the network had faith in the series, filming restarted as soon as Barton was able. "I was very happy when we came back to start filming the series [after the pilot], and I felt we were on the right track," continues Barton. "But after the accident-and I think there were four months of recuperating-I had to come back and wear all of the burn garments ... It's kind of sad. I was still enthusiastic, but something had shifted in me. It wore on me to have gone through that trauma. We still had some pretty good episodes after that, but I felt there was a whole spontaneity and enthusiasm before the accident, and after the accident, something changed."

When Hollywood shoots episodic television, often the filming order is different from the airing order. "The dolphin ["Experiments"] and football ["Winning"] episodes-those were done before I was burned," notes Barton. "We were maybe a quarter of the way into the filming of "Jackal" [when the accident occurred]. You can even see the difference. If you look at the footage of where ... I get into the junkyard, and I hop the fence, and I'm running around, and my hair's longer, that's before I was burned. And as soon as poles are about to fall over and the flares are lit, that's where I got burned, and then they picked up the footage of me rescuing Lou five months later. And the scenes where I'm meeting people on the bus, that was filmed after I was burned."

Two other factors may have also contributed to the show's difficult startup. A writer's strike occurred during the period, and one of the early producers, Allan Balter, died from a heart attack-during a board meeting while excitedly pitching the premise of the show to network executives. The show ran the first completed episodes, but someone on the decision-making level still wanted to fine-tune the show. Matthew Star changed from a young boy growing up and learning about life to a young boy becoming a secret agent for the U.S. government. Harve Bennett, the second producer, went out, and in came Bruce Lansbury, well known for Mission Impossible, Wild, Wild, West and many other fan favorites.

"And what was Bruce's claim to fame?" says Barton. "I, Spy. He was brought in to sort of fix it again. It was too much. There was too much tension. I loved Danny Wilson, the first producer; I loved Harve Bennett, the second producer. There was one episode with Jeff Corey and Julie Newmar, where they come from my planet, and that was one of the better episodes that I enjoyed. It had a nice direction there. It was more Star Trekky, and we were getting into that. Now, all of a sudden, it's I, Spy and here we are. I'm supposed to be Robert Culp and Lou's supposed to be Bill Cosby. It went too far. It became I, Spy with science fiction. In the beginning it was like family science fiction, and now we're doing I, Spy, which is not what it's supposed to be, and it got too confusing."

DeSouza wasn't around to follow through on his pet project. After Barton's accident, he jumped studio to Universal, even though the network tried to get him back. "They went off track in the last nine episodes of the season," complains deSouza. "They brought in a government character and created missions for our government. I think that was the mistake for the series because they severed all their ties to what made the series unique."

DeSouza believes that Powers would have had better success "if the show had dealt with the problems of a superhuman kid fitting in, his normal life, with periodic danger, excitement, and mystery due to his special nature. The show would have worked. They showed the lighter approach with My Secret Identity, a Universal studios show that lasted four or five years in syndication. It was comedic, not quite a sitcom, it had a lighter touch but it was exactly that idea."

On a happier note, Barton remembers working with Amy Steel and Lou Gossett as a highlight of his experience with the show. "I still am so fond of Amy," he says. "She'll always be a real special person in my mind. The same way that Pam, her character, had that tremendous strength for Matthew Amy had that strength for Peter. I really just loved Amy Steel. She was the greatest. And Lou was a fantastic person. He made me look so good. Working with the man, all you had to do was be around the guy and he was so charismatic, he gave so much positive energy. I can't say enough about either of them. I wish that they kept us all together rather than splitting us up and taking Amy out of there and making us I, Spy."

Two actors had the opportunity to direct episodes: Leonard Nimoy and, for the final episode, Lou Gossett. Barton says, "It's always nice to work with an actor who's directing because they come from more of an actor's point of view. It doesn't mean that the project is going to come out any better than if it's a regular director, but they're a lot more understanding and sensitive to an actor's processes. There are directors who are sensitive too, but an actor who is a director is just logically going to have more of that. It was nice working with Leonard and Lou."

Some TV critics complained that Barton looked too old to be playing a high school teenager. Barton disagrees. "I was 24, and I think I looked pretty much 16 or 17 years old," he insists. "I mean, it's the same thing with Ralph Macchio [in the Karate Kid feature films]. He was 25 playing 16. Same difference. If the illusion is bought, who cares? It's like Beverly Hills 90210. Those kids are old. I thought in Matthew Star I was more like a teenager as they really are-confused, don't know where they are going, don't know who the hell they are-and Beverly Hills 90210, these guys are really together. Even though I was 24, I thought the portrayal of a confused teenager was more believable than what they're portraying on Beverly Hills 90210 ... but it's an illusion. Acting's an illusion."

In summary, Barton looks back at Powers of Matthew Star's strengths and shortcomings and what would have been if the show had continued. "What worked for me," he says, "was when they were dealing with the science fiction and I was the prince from another planet and I got involved in the lives of my classmates. I liked that. That's the way 13 of our episodes were. And when they changed stream and made us CIA agents and we were going to tackle these big I, Spy sort of things, that didn't work for me."

Barton also discounts a revival TV movie to resolve the premise. "I wouldn't think so. The whole premise was that he was here for training. I was here to grow into a man and someday go and take back the planet. It was like Luke Skywalker, having the Force training and going back to deal with one's self. All in all, it was a well-intentioned show and a wholesome thing, and I'm happy I was able to be a part of it."

CAST NOTES

Peter Barton (Matthew Star): Born 1958. Barton graduated to daytime television with a popular role on the Young and the Restless in the early 1990s. During spring 1994, he co-starred with Gene Barry in the prime-time CBS show Burke's Law.

Louis Gossett Jr. (Walter Shepherd): Born 1936 in Brooklyn. Gossett won an Emmy for his role as Fiddler in Roots (1977) and an Oscar as a drill instructor in Officer and a Gentleman (1982). Gossett has kept busy in films with Iron Eagle (1986), the science fiction actioner Enemy Mine (1985), and Diggstown (1992).

Amy Steel (Pam Elliott): After this show, Steel continued acting in roles on Matlock, a Perry Mason TV movie, Quantum Leap and Space Rangers. She's also a fashion designer.

WR. Steven E. deSouza (Pilot), Gregory S. Dinallo and Richard Matheson (THE TWILIGHT ZONE).

DIR. Ivan Nagy (pilot), Ron Satlof, Leonard Nimoy, Corey Allen and Lou Gossett Jr.

EPISODES: 22 YEAR MADE: 1982 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

NBC

CREATOR: HARVE BENNETT, DANIEL WILSON, ROBERT EARLL, ALAN BALTER

TYPE OF SHOW: ALIENS ON EARTH FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 60 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 22

DATE OF PREMIER: 17/09/1982 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 08/04/1983

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Matter Starr PETER BARTON, Walt Shepard LOU GOSSET JR., Pam Elliot (Matthew's girlfriend) AMY STEEL, Chip Frye (his best friend) BOB ALEXANDRA, Major Wymore (his government contact) JAMES KAREN.

RELATED SHOWS:

TIME TRAX

GEMINI MAN

1 - 1 STAR KNIGHT

David Starr realizes he may not be of Earth when he starts developing amazing powers.

Wr Steven E. De Souza

Dir Ivan Nagy

1 - 2 JACKAL

A prince from an overthrown planet comes to Earth and, with his guardian, tries to fit in at an school while trying to avoid assassins who have come to Earth to kill him.

Wr Robert Earll, Allan Balter

Dir Ron Satlof

1 - 3 THE ACCUSED

Following an undercover cop's murder, Walt is placed under arrest as the prime suspect.

Wr Gregory S. Dinallo

Dir Ron Satlof

1 - 4 DAREDEVIL

Matthew uses his telepathic powers to supercharge a friend's stuntwork without their knowledge.

Wr Jeffrey Scott

Dir Bruce Bilson

1 - 5 GENIUS

One of Matthew's classmates creates a paint called Solar Prime that is highly temperature-resistant, but also robs Matthew of his powers.

Wr Tom Greene

Dir Bob Claver

1 - 6 PREDICTIONS

One of Matthew's classmates gains the ability of precognition, but is scared by the dangers she sees the future holds in store for her.

Wr Richard Christian Matheson, Thomas Szollosi

Dir Guy Magar

1 - 7 THE ITALIAN CAPER

After terrorists attack a military convoy in Italy, General Tucker needs Matthew and Walt to recover a secret Anti-Gravity Device.

Wr James M. Miller

Dir Guy Magar

1 - 8 WINNING

Jealous over the star quarterback catching Pam's attention, Matthew has a try-out to join the football team.

Wr Gregory S. Dinallo

Dir Ron Satlof

1 - 9 ENDURANCE (AKA SURVIVAL)

A field trip for an outdoors survival course turns dangerous when Matthew and Walt encounter escapees from an asylum.

Wr Ruel Fischmann

Dir Paul Krasny

1 - 10 TRIANGLE

When Pam's uncle goes missing while searching for treasure in the Bermuda Triangle, Matthew searches an island where he's believed to have crash-landed.

Wr Richard Christian Matheson, Thomas Szollosi

Dir Leonard Nimoy

1 - 11 MOTHER

Walt realizes that a ring given to Matthew by a mysterious fortuneteller belonged to Matthew's mother.

Wr Walter Koenig

Dir Ron Satlof

1 - 12 EXPERIMENTS

A water show dolphin telepathically communicates a plea for help to Matthew.

Wr Thomas Szollosi, Richard Christian Matheson

Dir Gunnar Hellstrom

1 - 13 THE FUGITIVE

Walt has a severe reaction to Earthly bacteria that his Quadrian immune system is not used to.

Wr Judy Burns

Dir Jeffrey Hayden

1 - 14 D.O.A. (AKA MATTHEW STAR : D.O.A.)

Matthew and Walt investigate the murder of crime bosses for the government.

Wr Bruce Shelly

Dir Leslie H. Martinson

1 - 15 THE RACER'S EDGE

Matthew has a new power, which helps him protect the daughter of a diplomat from a kidnapping plot.

Wr Luciano Comici

Dir Corey Allen

1 - 16 DEAD MAN'S HAND

Matthew and Walt go to Las Vegas to investigate the Golden Harvest casino for rigging games.

Wr David Bennett Carren

Dir Vincent McEveety

1 - 17 36 HOURS

Shuttle astronauts will burn upon re-entry unless Matthew and Walt can find a stolen landing device.

Wr David Bennett Carren

Dir Barry Crane

1 - 18 QUADRIAN CAPER

Matthew and Walt stumble on a robbery when secretly returning a necklace Wymore's nephew took from a safe-deposit box.

Wr Bruce Shelly

Dir Guy Magar

1 - 19 BRAIN DRAIN

When geniuses go missing, Matthew and Walt investigate a dating service that may be behind it all.

Wr George McIdowie

Dir Leslie H. Martinson

1 - 20 THE GREAT WALDO SHEPHERD

Stolen NATO plans send Matthew and Walt undercover at an air show to find a plane that contains them.

Wr Bill Taub

Dir Barry Crane

1 - 21 ROAD REBELS

Matthew goes undercover, joining a gang that steals valuable crystals in order to purchase sports cars.

Wr Mark Jones

Dir Barbara Peeters

1 - 22 SWORDS AND QUESTS

Walt looks for Matthew, who's busy playing a fantasy game that could kill him.

Wr Lee Sheldon

Dir Louis Gossett, Jr.

PRESENT TIME

In the year 2074 an old man designs a powerfull invention, a time machine. From this world a package containing a gold disc inside a laptop computer is sent into our time for safe keeping. It all links into the destruction of a church in our time.

This unusual time travel series was made exculsively created for a relegious audience consequently the production values for the series are very low, however some of the acting is good from a strong young cast. The series was first seen in the UK on ITV in a Sunday morning slot of 9.45 a.m.

Production designer was Dave Boller, director of photography was Roger Boller, casting - Beverly Holloway, production co-ordinators were Tom Kazoyan and Rick Garside. Editing by Ronald Allchin, music by James Covell, associate producer was David Anderson, executive producer was Dave Ross, co-executive producer was Scott Bolinder, co-producers were Dave Avanzino and Beverly Holloway. The show was produced by Mark Hunt and John Schmidt.

WR. Mark Hunt, John Schmidt, David Anderson, Coley Fisher, John Schmidt.

DIR. John Schmidt.

EPISODES: 4 YEAR MADE: 1998 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

ZONDERVAN/ JOHN SCHMIDT PRODUCTIONS INC.

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: TIME TRAVEL

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 4

DATE OF PREMIER:

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Josh Walker STEVEN HARRIS, Caleh McCoy PHILIP BRYCE JACOBS, Don Walker KEVEN DIEHL, Anthony Johnson ANTHONY JOHNSON, MARGO LEIDIGH, RYAN DOMIS, STEVE NELSON, KARI PICKLER, LANCE NICHOLS, ANGELO ODDO, APRIL HOLLIDAY, GREG MARTIN.

1 - TRIED BY FIRE

The Police discover that the church was destroyed, and they think one of the young children has something to do with it.

Wr Mark Hunt, John Schmidt, David Anderson, Coley Fisher (s), John Schmidt (w)

Dir John Schmidt.

1 - LION HUNT

Danielle is almost arrested by the police, but saved by caring citizens! They try to send him back in time to discover they can't send him back without a lion which came in the present with him.

Wr Rob McFarlane

Dir John Schmidt

1 -

Josh, Caleb and family vouch for Daniel's character.

1 - THE PROPHET

Josh brings back a prophet from the past into the present, but he also brings a Lion which causes havoc around town.

Wr Rob McFarlane

Dir John Schmidt.

PRETENDER, THE

"The Pretender" is a one-hour suspense series starring Michael T. Weiss as Jarod Russell, a genius whose exceptional intelligence allows him to master virtually any profession. He uses his skill to become a one-man, non-violent vigilante force for justice -- despite being stalked by agents of a clandestine research complex.

Taken from his parents as a child prodigy in the early 1960s, Jarod spent decades isolated under the caring instruction of Sydney (Patrick Bauchau , "Clear and Present Danger"), a psychiatrist at the Centre, a think-tank that sold the services of Jarod's computer-like mind to the highest bidder. As an adult, Jarod flees the Centre, and uses his unique ability to master any subject, thus enabling him to assume various identities -- to become, for example, a doctor, an airline pilot, a sea captain.

Meanwhile, he must elude the alluring, single-minded Miss Parker (Andrea Parker , "ER") and her posse of Centre operatives, who desperately want him back. Always one step ahead of the Centre, Jarod seeks emotional retribution for disenfranchised or powerless individuals by turning the tables against those who abuse their privileges and seem beyond the reach of the law. Along the way, an ingenuous Jarod makes his own simple discoveries about life in the real world beyond the Centre -- all while searching for the truth about his own parents, whose identities remain a mystery to him.

"I see our series as a humanistic thriller," says executive producer/creator Steven Long Mitchell. "Into our current world, where justice almost doesn't exist, comes this man with an honest, childlike sense of wonderment and a strong moral compass. The result is an O'Henry sense of justice, where Jarod cuts through the letter of the law right to the spirit of what's right and wrong."

"He can literally say, as a Pretender, 'I know how you feel as a victim,'" says fellow executive producer/creator Craig Van Sickle. "Being a Pretender empowers him to step in and supply the solution -- often putting the bad guys in the same kind of situation experienced by their victims. "The Pretender" is a production of MTM Entertainment in association with NBC Studios. The executive producer for the series was Steven Long Mitchell and Craig Van Sickle, co-executive producer was Tommy Thompson and supervising producer was Kimberly Costello, the producer was Tim Lacofero. The series had its first showing in the UK on satellite channel Sky One. Directors for the series included Rick Wallace who directed the pilot episode.

In many ways, The Pretender is cut from the same cloth as both The Fugitive and Nowhere Man: a brilliant man-on-the-run uses his superior intellect to elude capture. Here, Jarod is pursued by agents of The Center where he has been held prisoner since childhood. The interesting twist is that Jarod has the ability to learn and perfectly emulate any job almost instantly. In effect, he can pretend to be almost anyone, from a surgeon to a lawyer, from an FBI agent to a U.S. marshal. The shadowy Center remains an enigma. Who runs it? What is its real purpose? As Jarod stays one step ahead of the dogged Miss Parker and her henchmen he uses his talent to help people in trouble. Kind of like Bill Bixby's character in The INCREDIBLE HULK, or Logan and Jessica in LOGAN'S RUN, or-well, you get the idea: the man-on-the-run-doing-good is a familiar plot device in any genre.

Michael T Weiss, who plays Jarod, isn't too forthcoming with personal details. He was born in Chicago on 2nd February 1962 and has two sisters, one is a make-up artist, the other works in advertising. He began acting as a child and appeared in several local television commercials. He studied his craft at the Second City workshop in high school before moving to Los Angeles in 1980 where he took on a variety of jobs to earn money, including working in an electronics store, a zipper factory and becoming a personal fitness trainer. There, he also enrolled in the University of Southern California's school of drama, from which he graduated with a BFA in 1984.

Shortly after-wards he was cast in the daytime Soap Opera Days of Our Lives as Dr Mike Horton. His other notable TV credits are 2000 Malibu Road in which he played Roger Taylor and the 1991 revival of vampire Soap Dark Shadows in which he played Joe Haskell/Peter Bradford. His main big screen appearances are Freeway, Jeffrey, Angel 4: Undercover, Howling IV: The Original Nightmare and his notable TV movies are Remember Me, The Big One: The Big Los Angeles Earthquake and Take My Daughters, Please. Michael T Weiss is also a keen writer and has written a play, Stream of Consciousness, which he hopes to direct. He is a keen environmentalist and is on the board of directors for the Earth Communications Office.

Andrea Parker originally wanted to be a ballerina. She began classes at the age of six and spent several summers studying with youth ballet programmes in New York, San Francisco and Cleveland. When she was 15, she left home and joined the San Francisco Ballet with whom she stayed for three years, performing at the Metropolitan Opera House and on tour. She then went back to her native Southern California to work as a contemporary dancer, appearing in videos, commercials and fashion shows. At the same time, she studied acting and took part-time work in a bar to pay the bills. She got herself a manager after appearing in the Los Angeles play Fine Line which led to her first television acting role, as a nurse in an Emmy Award-winning episode of Seinfeld called The Contest.

Since then her regular tv roles have been in JAG as Lieutenant Kate Pike and in the 94/95 season of ER as Linda Farrell. She has had guest appearances in Can't Hurry Love, Coach, Herman's Head, THE ADVENTURES OF BRISCO COUNTY JR (as Rita Avnet in Deep In the Heart of Dixie), Married... with Children, Ellen and Dream On. She has appeared in the tv movies Ed McBain's 87th Precinct: Ice, XXX's & 000's and Victim of Love: The Shannon Mohr Story. She has two films to her credit, Body Shot and The Naked Truth. She was born on 8th March 1969 and came to play a character with her own name purely by coincidence - the character was called Miss Parker before she was even considered for the role.

He was born in Chicago on 2nd February 1962 and has two sisters, one is a make-up artist, the other works in advertising. He began acting as a child and appeared in several local television commercials. He studied his craft at the Second City workshop in high school before moving to Los Angeles in 1980 where he took on a variety of jobs to earn money, including working in an electronics store, a zipper factory and becoming a personal fitness trainer.

There, he also enrolled in the University of Southern California's school of drama, from which he graduated with a BFA in 1984. Shortly after-wards he was cast in the daytime Soap Opera Days of Our Lives as Dr Mike Horton. His other notable tv credits are 2000 Malibu Road in which he played Roger Taylor and the 1991 revival of vampire Soap Dark Shadows in which he played Joe Haskel/Peter Bradford. His main big screen appearances are Freeway, Jeffrey, Angel 4: Undercover, Howling IV: The Original Nightmare and his notable tv movies are Remember Me, The Big One: The Big Los Angeles Earthquake and Take My Daughters, Please. Michael T Weiss is also a keen writer and has written a play, Stream of Consciousness, which he hopes to direct. He is a keen environmentalist and is on the board of directors for the Earth Communications Office.

Season Four - The Fourth season was to see some personality changes to Michael T. Weiss' Jarod, who was captured by the Centre during Season Three's conclusion and will be subjected to a series of tests. According to executive producer Craig Van Sickle: "every character will change slightly in personality this season" but he says overall it will not be so dark as the third because "we'll be exploring the adolescent side of Jarod as he gets out into the world." STAR TREK: THE NEXT GENERATION and STAR TREK: DEEP SPACE NINE's Michael Dorn also guest starred in the second episode of the season "Survival".

TV Movie. The Pretender 2001

First aired: 1/22/2001 Production Code: 1AER99

The First Pretender TV Movie: Jarod and Miss Parker learn more about their pasts, as Jarod attempts to stop another Pretender from seeking revenge against the powers that be at The Centre.

Writer: Steven Long Mitchell, Craig Van Sickle

Director: Fred Keller

Guest star: Jonathan Osher (Younger Jarod), Jon Gries (Broots), Harve Presnell (Mr. Parker), Richard Marcus (Mr. Raines), James Denton (Mr. Lyle), Alex Wexo (Young Sydney), Cynthia Dale (NSA Agent Andrea Zane), Tyler Christopher (Ethan), Peter Outerbridge (Alex), Yannick Bisson (NSA Agent Edward Ballinger), Mike Massa (Forest Ranger)

TV Movie. The Pretender: Island of the Haunted

First aired: 12/10/2001 Production Code: 2AER01

This is the second of two Pretender TV Movies: Through a series of bizarre circumstances, Jarod and Miss Parker find themselves trapped together on a strange island in a life and death situation, out of which come some of the most important revelations about their pasts.

Writer: Steven Long Mitchell, Craig Van Sickle

Director: Fred Keller

Guest star: Jon Gries (Broots), Ryan Merriman (Young Jarod) , Dean McKenzie (Triumvirate Sweeper), John Bourgeois (Brother Menenicus), Conrad Coates (Adama), Jack Langedijk (Brother Rinaldus), Julian Richings (Brother Clote), Chloe Randle Reis (Cryptkeeper's Daughter), Kim Myers (Jarod's Mom), Diana Leblanc (Ocee)

Emmy Award

Outstanding Sound Editing for a Series - Nominated - "Pretender, The" (1996) - Thomas DeGorter (supervising editor), David Melhase (adr editor), James A. Williams (adr editor), Warren Smith (dialogue editor), Griffith, Tiffany S. (dialogue editor), Christopher Briles (sound effects editor), Andrew Ellerd (sound effects editor), Katona, Bradley C. (sound effects editor), Gary Krause (sound effects editor), Mark Kamps (sound effects editor), Patricia Nedd (foley artist), Dominique (IV) (foley artist) - For episode "At The Hour Of Our Death". (1999)

WR. Steven Long Mitchell, Craig Van Sickle, Juan Carlos Coto, Kimberly Costello, Javier Grillo-Marxuach, Tommy Thompson, Lawrence Meyers.

DIR. Rick Wallace, Michael Zinberg, James Whitmore Jr., Jesus Salvador Tervino, Gabrielle Beaumont, Fred Keller, Thomas J Wright, Ian Toynton, Anson Williams, Terrence O'Hara.

EPISODES: 86 YEAR MADE: 1996 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 4

MTM PRODUCTIONS, MITCHELL CON SICKEL PRODUCTIONS, MTM ENTERPRISES INC/ NBC STUDIOS

CREATOR: STEVEN LONG MITCHELL & CRAIG VAN SICKLE

TYPE OF SHOW: CRIME

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 60 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 22, (2) 22, (3) 22, (4) 20

DATE OF PREMIER: 19/09/1996 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 13/05/2000

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS: THE PRETENDER 2001, THE ISLAND OF THE HAUNTED

Jarod Russell MICHAEL T WEISS, Miss Fay Parker ANDREA PARKER, Dr. Sydney Green PATRICK BAUCHAU, Broots JOHN GRIES, Young Jarod RYAN MERRIMAN, Young Miss Fay Parker ASHLEY PELDON, Mr. Lyle JAMIE DENTON (2), Brigitte PAMELA GIDLEY (2), Mr. Raines RICHARD MARCUS, Mr. Parker HARVE PRESNELL, Young Sydney ALEX WEXO.

RELATED SHOWS:

INCREDIBLE HULK, THE

NOWHERE MAN

1 - 1 PILOT

QUEENS, NEW YORK - Miss Parker and Sydney find they had just missed Jarod helping a tanker ship in Alaska. Jarod is now posing as a doctor to uncover the truth behind an operation that resulted in a boy becoming a paraplegic. Jarod also befriends a Greek woman who has trouble with (ahem) bowel movements.

Wr Steven Long Mitchell, Craig Van Sickle

Dir Rick Wallace

1 - 2 EVERY PICTURE TELLS A STORY

SAN DIEGO, CALIFORNIA - Miss Parker and Sydney once again miss Jarod at the Y.M.C.A. He's now posing as a member of the Coast Guard trying to figure out the truth behind the death of a man who was lost at sea waiting for rescue. Jarod also befriends a hermit who lives out at sea and refuses to come back to land.

Wr Steven Long Mitchell, Craig Van Sickle

Dir Michael Zinberg

1 - 3 FLYER

ARIZONA - Sydney and Miss Parker travel a wind farm in Baja, CA where Jarod was last seen testing aerodynamics. Jarod is now flying jets for Skyvionics, which is testing a defense contractor's new computer system. He's really trying to figure out why a test pilot died during one of the tests. Jarod also befriends Mr. Hollis, a conspirator who was involved in the Manhattan Project.

Wr Juan Carlos Coto

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

1 - 4 CURIOUS JAROD

LAS VEGAS, NEVADA - After spending some time studying probabilities and game theory, Jarod becomes head of security at the Marquee Casino in Las Vegas. While there, he attempts to solve the mystery behind the death of a showgirl. Jarod also befriends a down-on-his-luck Elvis impersonator. Meanwhile, Sydney and Miss Parker resort to finding Jarod through the mob.

Wr Kimberly Costello

Dir Jesús Salvador Treviño

1 - 5 THE PAPER CLOCK

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA - Aiming to help a man wrongly sentenced for murder, Jarod becomes a lawyer and goes after the arrogant attorney protecting the real killer. Meanwhile, Sydney is trying to reach an agreement with The Centre to make a trade with Jarod: A piece of Jarod's past for some of the simulations.

Wr Javier Grillo-Marxuach

Dir Gabrielle Beaumont

1 - 6 TO SERVE AND PROTECT

MIAMI BEACH, FLORIDA - Jarod, suspecting corruption in the police department, becomes an officer himself to solve the death of an adoptee who had recently been reunited with his birth father. He also befriends an aging lady who's young at heart, but is afraid of losing her wild side due to her fading eyesight. Meanwhile, Miss Parker is spending time in jail for violating criminal code 369.7 - Unlawful Carrying and Possession of Concealed Weapon, thanks to a tip from Jarod. With her in jail, Jarod uses that window of opportunity to hire a private investigator to aid in finding information about his mother.

Wr Tommy Thompson

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

1 - 7 A VIRUS AMONG US

SKOKIE, ILLINOIS - Miss Parker finds that she just missed Jarod posing as a high school biology teacher, and is then subjected to the flu virus. Jarod now poses as a virologist at an infectious disease laboratory trying to figure out the story behind the disappearance of another virologist. He also befriends Ben, a musician who is trying to perfect his musical talent on various instruments, although his neighbors don't care for it.

Wr Lawrence Meyers

Dir Fred Keller

1 - 8 NOT EVEN A MOUSE

BALTIMORE, MARYLAND - Jarod investigates the mystery behind a hit-and-run death of a homeless man known as 'Christmas George' while simultaneously trying to identify a Jane Doe before Christmas. Meanwhile, Sydney anxiously awaits word from Jarod and Miss Parker gets her hopes up spending Christmas with her father.

Wr Juan Carlos Coto

Dir Thomas J. Wright

1 - 9 MIRAGE

HUDSPETH COUNTY, TEXAS - Jarod pretends to be a skydiving instructor looking into the death of a survivalist who died on his annual trip into the desert. Jarod is also visited by Ernie Two Feathers, a man who may (or may not) be a spirit guide. Meanwhile, Miss Parker is given a birthday present from Jarod that leads her to information about her mother.

Wr Tommy Thompson

Dir Ian Toynton

1 - 10 THE BETTER PART OF VALOR

PITTSBURGH, PA - Jarod works as a firefighter while investigating the murder of another smoke-eater; Miss Parker seduces a married salesman with more than a few secrets of his own.

Wr Javier Grillo-Marxuach

Dir Anson Williams

1 - 11 POTATO HEAD BLUES (A.K.A. BOMB SQUAD)

DETROIT, MICHIGAN - Jarod poses as a member of the Detroit police bomb squad, searching for a serial bomber who left a woman photographer blind from one of his attacks. Meanwhile, the Centre puts Mr. Raines in charge of finding the person who's leaking information to Jarod. By utilizing Angelo, he puts Miss Parker, Sydney, and Broots to the test.

Wr Javier Grillo-Marxuach

Dir Terrence O'Hara

1 - 12 PRISON STORY

MARYLAND, OAKFIELD PENITENTIARY - Jarod pretends to be a prison guard who is trying to prove a man on death row didn't commit the crime he's sentenced to death for. Meanwhile, Miss Parker, Sydney, and Broots get a puzzling clue that makes them believe they're now one space ahead in the game of catching Jarod. Or are they?

Wr Craig Van Sickle, Steven Long Mitchell

Dir Oscar Costo

1 - 13 BAZOOKA JAROD

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA - Jarod joins the Navy to investigate the drowning of a ship's engineer, but he must outwit a security officer who doubts his credentials. Meanwhile, the latest lead on Jarod pushes Miss Parker to follow clues regarding the children her mother saved.

Wr Juan Carlos Coto

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

1 - 14 RANGER JAROD

TOLUCA NATIONAL FOREST, OREGON - Jarod falls in love with his hiking partner while on a search-and-rescue for an ornithology student who disappeared in the mountains. Jarod also befriends a man named Big Bob who has many stooge-ish qualities. Back at the Centre, Miss Parker reminisces about her relationship with Jarod when they were children.

Wr Craig Van Sickle, Steven Long Mitchell

Dir Ian Toynton

1 - 15 JERALDO!

SEATTLE, WASHINGTON - Jarod becomes a TV news cameraman to investigate a gang shoot-out that badly injured another cameraman. Jarod also befriends a man who lost his job and his family. Meanwhile, Sydney and Miss Parker get trapped in a condemned building.

Wr Lawrence Meyers

Dir Terrence O'Hara

1 - 16 UNDER THE REDS

ATLANTA, GEORGIA - Jarod checks into a fellow paramedic whom he believes is responsible for a graduate student's coma. But he first has to outsmart a pushy human resources officer who won't stop digging up everything on Jarod. After their follow-up to a lead on Jarod, Sydney disappears from the Centre. He holes himself up with his twin brother Jacob using a technique Jarod discovered in an attempt to bring him out of his coma. Miss Parker is put in charge of finding Syd and, to make matters worse, Mr. Raines commands her to eliminate Jacob when she finds them.

Wr Lawrence Meyers, Javier Grillo-Marxuach

Dir Charles Siebert

1 - 17 KEYS

MIAMI, FLORIDA - During a hurricane, Jarod gets revenge on a corrupt Marine Patrol officer for the deaths of a young refugee's parents. He figures no one will pursue him since, after all, he's in the middle of a hurricane. But he's caught off guard when Miss Parker suddenly shows up. Even further caught off guard when his revenge backfires and his quarry escapes his net. Meanwhile, Miss Parker recalls the Thanksgiving before her mother's death. But she's blocked out certain painful details and Jarod makes her confront them.

Wr Juan Carlos Coto

Dir Terrence O'Hara

1 - 18 UNHAPPY LANDINGS

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLAHOMA - Jarod takes the role of a U.S. marshal trying to find and protect a vital witness with information about drug bosses connected to crooked marshals. Meanwhile, Miss Parker puts Broots in charge of digging up any information on the children her mother rescued. And Sydney seeks counseling for his rage against Mr. Raines.

Wr Lawrence Meyers, Javier Grillo-Marxuach, Juan Carlos Coto

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

1 - 19 JAROD'S HONOR

NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA - After completing a pretend, Jarod receives an email offering answers to his past. While investigating the lead, Jarod unexpectedly stumbles upon a dying hitman. When the hitman's last job comes calling, Jarod takes it. Meanwhile, Sydney and Miss Parker, following a lead from Jarod, attend a Twins Convention. And Broots covers for them from Mr. Raines.

Wr Tommy Thompson, Chris Ruppenthal

Dir Terrence O'Hara

1 - 20 BABY LOVE

WYOMING(?) - After a close call with getting caught by Miss Parker, Jarod stumbles upon a baby who was thrown into a dumpster. Jarod takes the child and cares for it until he can find his parents, while avoiding sinister authorities. At the same time, Miss Parker, Sydney, and Broots follow clues that Jarod has dug up in reference to the meaning of SL-27.

Wr Debra Pratt

Dir Joe Napolitano

1 - 21 THE DRAGON HOUSE (1-2)

FORT REXFORD, NEW YORK - Jarod becomes aware that Kyle, another pretender from The Centre, is on the run from the law. Eager to find him, he becomes an F.B.I. agent to aid the investigation. But he discovers that Kyle may have something to do with his mother. Meanwhile, Miss Parker and Sydney recruit Angelo to go through all of Jarod's red notebooks. They figure he can become Jarod and thus aiding in his capture.

Wr Steven Long Mitchell, Craig Van Sickle

Dir Fred Keller

2 - 1 BACK FROM THE DEAD AGAIN

PHILADELPHIA, PENNSYLVANIA - Jarod mourns the death of his brother. He then takes on the identity of a anatomy professor trying to find a boy who has been missing since Halloween of the previous year. Meanwhile, Miss Parker is startled to find that her father has disappeared and has been replaced by a Mr. Lyle. With him comes Brigitte, a mysterious woman who is more thorough in finding Jarod than Miss Parker. Sydney, at Jarod's request, researches why there's no DSA for the last three weeks of October prior to his escape.

Wr Steven Long Mitchell, Craig Van Sickle

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

2 - 2 SCOTT FREE

MIDDLETOWN, DELAWARE - Jarod intercepts the role of a real safecracker to help a man who's being forced to participate in one more heist. Jarod also starts to feel the need of a father figure and turns to Sydney. Meanwhile, Brigitte tries to take control over Miss Parker's role in the capture of Jarod.

Wr Tommy Thompson

Dir Joe Napolitano

2 - 3 OVER THE EDGE

SPOKANE, WASHINGTON - Jarod becomes a member of the emergency search and rescue team, trying to figure out the true cause of another member's supposed suicide-attempt. Jarod also tries to reunite him with his estranged mother. Meanwhile, at The Centre, a criminal behaviorist is brought in to interrogate and find the person who shot Mr. Raines' oxygen tank. Finally, Jarod utilizes a sensory deprivation tank to simulate closeness to his mother.

Wr Tony Blake, Paul Jackson

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

2 - 4 EXPOSED

MIAMI, FLORIDA - Jarod takes on the role of a fashion photographer in order to stop a stalker who's already destroyed the life of one of his victims. Meanwhile, Miss Parker follows more of Jarod's clues which lead her to Rock Cove, Maine and she uncovers more information about her mother.

Wr Tyler Bensinger

Dir Jim Charleston

2 - 5 NIP AND TUCK

BEVERLY HILLS, CALIFORNIA - Jarod becomes a plastic surgeon to find out who deliberately ruined the face of a bright young student. Meanwhile, at The Centre, Broots is paranoid that someone is following him where ever he goes. Brigitte offers help, but at a price.

Wr Eric Morris

Dir Michael Lange

2 - 6 PAST SIM

BALTIMORE, MARYLAND - While watching the news, Jarod finds that one of his old simulations he performed has just been utilized in kidnapping a witness in a murder trial against the Yakuza clan. Outraged, Jarod sets out to reverse the outcome of the situation he's created. Meanwhile, Miss Parker suspects the sale of the simulation came from Mr. Lyle, and begins to apply pressure in hopes of finding any other connections to Jarod.

Wr Tommy Thompson

Dir Fred Keller

2 - 7 COLLATERAL DAMAGE

LOST HILLS, VIRGINIA - Jarod becomes a Special Forces soldier to help the daughter of a Vietnam veteran get her father's name added to the War Memorial. Back at The Centre, Miss Parker reluctantly babysits Debbie while Broots is in Florida on an assignment.

Wr Harry Dunn

Dir Vern Gillum

2 - 8 HAZARDS

OAKLAND, CALIFORNIA - After witnessing a man attempting suicide before his eyes, Jarod becomes a chemical waste expert to discover the facts to absolve the man's guilt. Meanwhile, Sydney seeks long-awaited vengeance for the death of his family when a man shows up at The Centre.

Wr Juan Carlos Coto

Dir Chuck Bowman

2 - 9 F/X

HOLLYWOOD, CALIFORNIA - Jarod becomes a special effects coordinator to find out why a stuntman was seriously injured during the filming of a beer commercial. Back at the Centre, following clues left by Jarod, Miss Parker begins her search for a Dr. Fenigor and a boy named 'Timmy'.

Wr Harry Dunn

Dir Vern Gillum

2 - 10 INDY SHOW

FONTANA, CALIFORNIA - Jarod takes to the wheel of an Indy race car to figure out what happened to a driver involved in a crippling accident. After a bizarre dream, Sydney runs to his ailing brother's side and holes both himself and Jacob up in a cabin with a consoling Miss Parker.

Wr Tommy Thompson

Dir Chuck Bowman

2 - 11 GIGOLO JAROD

DETROIT, MICHIGAN - Jarod takes on the role of paid escort to get close to a housing developer who has plans to displace a low-income neighborhood for a high-rise. Jarod also is hired by another woman, in a separation period, who thinks her husband doesn't love her anymore. Meanwhile, Miss Parker, Sydney and Broots are following Jarod's latest trail, which leads them to a book (The Saddest Little Valentine) that Jarod has published.

Wr Tyler Bensinger

Dir Rodney Charters

2 - 12 TOY SURPRISE

TURNERS RIDGE, IDAHO - Jarod helps a troubled teenager by becoming an outdoor counselor. But back at The Centre, Miss Parker is grieving the anniversary of her mother's death. The day just gets worst when she's tipped off by Jarod that there's going to be an assassination attempt on her father. With only 2 hours to stop it and trapped in the Sub-levels, Miss Parker has to get to the tower before her father arrives by helicopter.

Wr Juan Carlos Coto

Dir Fred Keller

2 - 13 A STAND UP GUY

STATEN ISLAND, NEW YORK - Jarod poses as a counterfeiter and undercover FBI agent trying crack a crime syndicate. Jarod also tries to clear the name of another agent who was framed after his cover was blown. Meanwhile, Mr. Lyle has resurfaced and The Centre is on edge. Miss Parker is temporarily taken off Jarod's case and called upon to use her old sweeper skills to dispose of Mr. Lyle.

Wr Tony Blake, Paul Jackson

Dir Michael Lange

2 - 14 AMNESIA (A.K.A. UNFORGOTTEN)

LOCATION UNKNOWN - During the intervention of his current pretend, Jarod is caught off guard and beaten, resulting in the loss of his memory. Jarod is then rescued by Argyle, a smooth-talking con-artist. But his savior soon starts to wonder how this situation could benefit him. Meanwhile, back at The Centre; Miss Parker, Sydney, & Broots are put before a T-Board. There, they are interrogated to see just how dedicated they are in their search for Jarod.

Wr Steven Long Mitchell, Craig Van Sickle

Dir Steven Long Mitchell

2 - 15 BULLETPROOF

CINCINNATI, OHIO - Jarod becomes a member of SWAT to find out the truth behind why another member died in the line of duty. Meanwhile, Sydney has Broots do some searching for him after finding a clue Jarod left. But Miss Parker interprets his secrecy as an aid in protecting Jarod and intervenes.

Wr Mark M. Dodson

Dir Fred Keller

2 - 16 SILENCE

EL PASO, TEXAS - Jarod becomes a child psychologist to help a little boy, who witnessed the murder of a DEA agent, break out of his wall of silence. Back at the Centre, Mr. Raines is under tower review, thanks to Miss Parker. Things get worst for him when an old patient / project comes back to haunt him.

Wr Denise Dobbs

Dir Joe Napolitano

2 - 17 CRASH

SAN DIEGO, CALIFORNIA - While waiting for his plane, Jarod meets a young man who is bumped to a later flight. Jarod offers an exchange of tickets to the boy, who thanks him for helping. But Jarod is horrified when he hears later that day that the plane has crashed. Guilt ridden, Jarod sets out to find the cause of the accident. Meanwhile, Miss Parker is put in charge of find out everything on Mr. Lyle. And with aid from Jarod; Sydney, Broots, and Miss Parker are going to get all the information they need.

Wr Tony Blake, Paul Jackson

Dir Scott Lautanen

2 - 18 STOLEN

SUNNYVALE, CALIFORNIA - After taking down a corrupt doctor, Jarod unexpectedly gets involved in a kidnapping when the father of the kidnapped ends up in the hospital. Back at The Centre, Miss Parker sides with Mr. Raines on the fact that Sydney is becoming too attached to Jarod. To the point, even, that it's complicating the search for him.

Wr Juan Carlos Coto

Dir Scott Lautanen

2 - 19 RED ROCK JAROD

DRY RIVER, ARIZONA - Responding to an email he believes was sent to him by Sydney, Jarod finds himself in the hands of someone he once thought dead. Jarod also meets a boy who is in need of a heart transplant. Meanwhile, Miss Parker closes in on Jarod. But she's in for a surprise when she meets his captor.

Wr Tommy Thompson

Dir Fred Keller

2 - 20 BANK

DOVER, DELAWARE - Jarod tricks Miss Parker to meet him at a bank, where they come face to face with the mysterious Mr. Fenigor. But this arrangement gets complicated when there's a robbery the same day. When The Centre gets news that Jarod is trapped in this hostage situation, they close in and make sure he'll not slip through their fingers this time.

Wr Harry Dunn

Dir Michael Lange

2 - 21 BLOODLINES (1-2)

ATLANTA, GEORGIA - Jarod receives a letter from an anonymous source and believes The Centre is going to kidnap another boy-genius. Sydney creates a serum that allows Angelo to become a normal person again, provided he takes all the doses at the right time.

3 - 1 CRAZY

PLEASANTWOOD INSTITUTE, MARYLAND - Jarod becomes a mental patient to undercover the truth behind the mysterious murder of another patient. Miss Parker researches the identity of her twin.

Wr Steven Long Mitchell, Craig Van Sickle

Dir Fred Keller

3 - 2 HOPE AND PREY

Jarod experiences the world of the bounty hunter as he seeks an American Indian activist who has a price on his head. In the meanwhile, Miss Parker learns more about her mother's death.

Wr Juan Carlos Coto

Dir David Jackson

3 - 3 ONCE IN A BLUE MOON

To save a teen-age victim, Jarod learns the skills of criminal behaviorists and comes face-to-face with the Blue Moon Killer.

Wr Daniel Truly, Andrew Dettmann

Dir Chuck Bowman

3 - 4 SOMEONE TO TRUST

Jarod poses as an arsonist to expose a corrupt attorney, but faces unexpected accusations when the man who hires him is found dead.

Wr Tommy Thompson

Dir Fred Keller

3 - 5 BETRAYL

Jarod teams up with Broots to find the culprit in a shootout at the Centre's Data Annex, a former operative named Damon.

Wr Mark M. Dodson

Dir Terrence O'Hara

3 - 6 PAROLE

Jarod portrays a paroled convict to aid a widow; Sydney learns startling news while consoling an old lover whose husband is dying.

Wr Tommy Thompson

Dir Fred Keller

3 - 7 HOMEFRONT

Jarod steals millions from the Centre, then poses as an arms dealer selling missile launchers to a black-market weapons merchant in Venezuela, all to help a mother regain custody of her children from the shady broker.

Wr Guy Zimmerman

Dir Michael Zinberg

3 - 8 FLESH AND BLOOD

Jarod takes on the role of a tracking expert to help find four teachers, including Sydney's son, Nicholas, who are taken hostage in the Appalachian hills.

Wr Harry Dunn

Dir Rodney Charters

3 - 9 MURDER 101

Jarod takes over a criminal psychology class and teaches a lesson in committing a flawless murder before tracking down three suspected killers.

Wr Daniel Truly, Andrew Dettmann

Dir Scott Lautanen

3 - 10 MR. LEE

A blind investigator and his assistant piece together Jarod's personality and motivations by interviewing his past Pretend subjects, in order to catch and sell him to the highest bidder.

Wr Mark M. Dodson

Dir Steven Long Mitchell

3 - 11 THE ASSASIN

Jarod helps a former CIA computer analyst who must assassinate a U.S. senator to free her children from a kidnapper; Miss Parker meets her new neighbor.

Wr Tommy Thompson

Dir Michael Lange

3 - 12 UNSINKABLE

Jarod once again encounters Argyle, who is in need of help. Caught in the middle of a turf war, they work together to pay off Argyle's debt to some loan sharks.

Wr Juan Carlos Coto

Dir Chuck Bowman

3 - 13 POOL

Jarod challenges a pool hustler to get evidence linking the man to the murder of a young woman's father; Miss Parker tries to prevent Brigitte's marriage.

Wr Harry Dunn

Dir Fred Keller

3 - 14 AT THE HOUR OF OUR DEATH

Jarod and Miss Parker recall a childhood incident where they and Angelo met a dying girl at the Centre.

Wr Mark M. Dodson

Dir Steven Long Mitchell

3 - 15 COUNTDOWN

Jarod races against time to locate the father of an injured boy with a rare blood disorder.

Wr Daniel Truly, Andrew Dettmann

Dir Chuck Bowman

3 - 16 PTB

Jarod fills in for a radio talk show host who disappeared after a violent confrontation with a threatening caller; Thomas asks Miss Parker to relocate.

Wr Juan Carlos Coto

Dir Krishna Rao

3 - 17 TIES THAT BIND

Jarod goes under cover to investigate a law firm that has a suspicious history of silencing witnesses; Miss Parker declares she is leaving the Centre.

Wr Dave Alan Johnson

Dir Fred Keller

3 - 18 WAKE UP

Thomas is brutally murdered in Miss Parker's home by an unknown assailant; Jarod finds clues leading to a drug addict who later dies of an overdose.

Wr Tommy Thompson

Dir Michael J. Klick

3 - 19 END GAME

The kidnapping of a young chess prodigy brings Jarod a little too close to his own demons -- and to the attention of an FBI criminal profiler ('Profiler' crossover). Meanwhile, Miss Parker gets unsettling news from Brigitte, and about Brigitte.

Wr Juan Carlos Coto

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

3 - 20 QALLUPILLUIT

Jarod heads for Ellesmere Island to find his father, only to find himself trapped with a research team whose numbers are dropping rapidly -- and bloodily.

Wr Mark M. Dodson

Dir Rodney Charters

3 - 21 DONOTERASE (A 2 PART STORY)

Jarod's reunion with his father is marred by news of the Centre's latest project -- a teenaged clone of Jarod himself. However, assassins from the Centre are hot on their trail.

Wr Craig Van Sickle, Steven Long Mitchell

Dir Fred Keller

4 - 1 THE WORLD'S CHANGING

Once again a prisoner of the Centre, Jarod discovers a plot to murder a team of nuclear researchers, giving him even more motivation to escape. Meanwhile, Sydney and Broots try to find Miss Parker and Miss Parker tries to find her father -- and figure out who to trust.

Wr Craig Van Sickle, Steven Long Mitchell

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

4 - 2 SURVIVAL

Jarod joins the Army CID to investigate the suicide of a soldier in POW survival training. Meanwhile, he gives Mr. Lyle and Miss Parker a taste of that training by trapping them together in a shipping container.

Wr Mark M. Dodson

Dir Terrence O'Hara

4 - 3 ANGEL'S FLIGHT

Jarod infiltrates a Goth con game to locate a missing girl. Meanwhile, a faceless wax head sent by Jarod leaves Miss Parker and company trying to fill in the pieces.

Wr Tommy Thompson

Dir Chuck Bowman

4 - 4 RISQUE BUSSINESS

Jarod pretends to be a sex therapist to investigate a brutal assault on a doctor. Meanwhile, Broots tries to summon up the courage to reveal his feelings to Miss Parker.

Wr Daniel Truly, Andrew Dettmann

Dir Terrence O'Hara

4 - 5 ROAD TRIP

Jarod finds himself on a road trip to help a mysterious young woman, whom he falls for. Meanwhile, he tells Miss Parker, Sydney and Broots to 'follow the yellow brick road'.

Wr Daniel Truly, Andrew Dettmann

Dir Fred Keller

4 - 6 EXTREME

Jarod Pretends to be an extreme sports enthusiast in order to learn what happened to a comatose young man. Meanwhile, Miss Parker, Sydney, and Broots follow Jarod's "game show" clues, and find themselves investigating Mr. Lyle.

Wr Craig Van Sickle, Steven Long Mitchell

Dir Scott Lautanen

4 - 7 WILD CHILD

Jarod Pretends to be a psychologist to help a young girl found living alone in the wilderness. Meanwhile, Miss Parker finds out a Centre contract has been taken out on her father's life, leading her to look more closely at Mr. Cox.

Wr Joel Metzger

Dir Michael J. Klick

4 - 8 RULES OF ENGAGEMENT

Jarod tries to stop a hostage situation in a hospital. Miss Parker is confused by an encounter with her father.

Wr Ethan Lawrence

Dir Rodney Charters

4 - 9 'TIL DEATH DO US PART

On the anniversary of Thomas' death, Jarod challenges a haunted Miss Parker to resume her hunt for his killer. But the search leads back to her father and Brigitte, who is close to giving birth.

Wr Craig Van Sickle, Steven Long Mitchell

Dir Craig Van Sickle

4 - 10 SPIN DOCTOR

Jarod tries to track down the killer of a man who helped him escape from The Centre. Meanwhile, Miss Parker tries to help Sydney deal with his past. (Profiler Crossover)

Wr Juan Carlos Coto

Dir Fred Keller

4 - 11 COLD DICK

LAS VEGAS, NEVADA - After being contacted by Argyle, Jarod becomes a Las Vegas private investigator to save a showgirl in trouble with with the mob. Meanwhile, Broots and Miss Parker try to outwit Jarod by posing as a newlywed couple and checking into the honeymoon suite. But come sunrise, they find they've gotten more involved with each other than they ever have chasing Jarod.

Wr Juan Carlos Coto

Dir Steven Long Mitchell

4 - 12 LIFELINE

Jarod becomes a bodyguard to reunite an undercover ATF agent and her daughter. Meanwhile, Miss Parker sets out to prove Raines' religious 'conversion' is nothing of the kind.

Wr Juan Carlos Coto

Dir Jon Koslowsky

4 - 13 GHOSTS FROM THE PAST

Jarod infiltrates a white supremacist group to stop the bombing of a Unity event. Meanwhile, Angelo fights his way through Jarod's past to find the old enemy currently threatening Jarod's life.

Wr Mark M. Dodson

Dir Michael T. Weiss

4 - 14 THE AGENT OF YEAR ZERO

Jarod tries to help a Cambodian woman avenge the death of her family at the hands of a war criminal -- who is also an ally of Mr. Lyle. Meanwhile, Miss Parker tracks that connection from the Centre.

Wr Tommy Thompson, Drew Hammond

Dir Rodney Charters

4 - 15 JUNK

Jarod goes undercover as a junkie in a rehab clinic to help a woman regain custody of her son. Meanwhile, Miss Parker and company find Jarod's connection to the woman through her father and the Centre.

Wr Harry Dunn

Dir Michael Zinberg

4 - 16 SCHOOL DAZE

Jarod poses as an elementary school teacher to protect a young witness in a murder trial. Meanwhile, Miss Parker encounters a ghost from the past.

Wr Daniel Truly, Andrew Dettmann

Dir Jon Gries

4 - 17 MELTDOWN

Jarod infiltrates a gang of burglars to discover which of them killed a little girl. Meanwhile, an email that isn't there leads Miss Parker to someone who might have answers about her mother's death.

Wr Ethan Lawrence

Dir Krishna Rao

4 - 18 CORN MAN

Jarod follows the trail of a kidnapping, documented by a camcorder he finds in a pawn shop. Meanwhile, Miss Parker continues her search for Edna Raines, with Jarod's help.

Wr Mark M. Dodson

Dir Steven Long Mitchell

4 - 19 THE INNER SENSE (2 HOURS)

Jarod finally locates his sister Emily, just in time to see her nearly assassinated by The Centre. Meanwhile, Miss Parker's search of the secrets behind her mother's death lead her and Jarod to the same place -- and a mysterious young man named Ethan.

Wr Steven Long Mitchell, Craig Van Sickle

Dir Fred Keller

PRETTY GUARDIAN SAILOR MOON

Middle school student Usagi Tsukino is having her typical late run for school when a plush cat doll named Luna falls out of the sky and lands on her face. That night, she is revisited by Luna, who tells her that she is one of the Sailor Guardians. Using her special makeup, Usagi transforms herself into Sailor Moon, champion of love and justice. With the aid of her new friends Ami Mizuno (Sailor Mercury), Rei Hino (Sailor Mars) and Makoto Kino (Sailor Jupiter), along with idol singer/vigilante-at-night Minako Aino (Sailor Venus, a.k.a. Sailor V) and the mysterious masked man known as Tuxedo Kamen, Sailor Moon strives to find the Moon Princess and the Mystical Silver Crystal, and protect them from Queen Beryl and the Dark Kingdom.

The highly popular Sailor Moon anime/manga series, finally made it's live action debut with Pretty Guardian Sailer Moon, a series meant for older children in japan.

Pretty Guardian Sailor Moon (often abbreviated to PGSM) was a tokusatsu TV series in the Bishōjo Senshi Sailor Moon metaseries originally created by Naoko Takeuchi. It is created by Toei, the same company that produces the Super Sentai series. Toei have also done much to create the sentai genre to which the original story arguably also belongs.[citation needed]

PGSM came out in exclusively in Japan. It ran from 2003 - 2004, and was a retelling of the first major Bishōjo Senshi Sailor Moon arc (sometimes referred to as the 'Dark Kingdom' arc or just 'Classic') but with considerable plot divergences.

The theme song is called "Kirari*Sailor Dream!" and was performed by J-Pop singer Sae. The lyrics were written by Naoko Takeuchi herself.

The series lasted 49 episodes (called "Acts"), and also included two separate made for DVD specials.

Production

Ratings Snapshot from the Newtype USA magazine Act 14 January 10, 2004 - 4.0%*

(*Near death of a main character)

Act 15 January 17, 2004 - 3.2%

Act 16 January 24, 2004 - 3.2%

Act 17 January 31, 2004 - 4.7%*

(*Introduction of a new character)

Act 18 February 07, 2004 - 3.8%

The broadcast originated from the Tokyo Broadcasting System. Another 28 television stations in Japan retransmitted the series [citation needed], though some of them were weeks behind the TBS schedule because they started airing the series late.

There are several radio programs called "DJ Moon" based on the show that originated from Chubu-Nippon Broadcasting radio and were broadcast on other radio networks in Japan. The shows were a combination of a radio drama and promotional tool for the TV series, often foreshadowing upcoming events. These shows were later sold on CD.

The live action broadcast's ratings were not as high as those of the original show. The show had a high start, but then the ratings slid. They picked up in January of 2004 and then again at the end of the series.

In addition to the broadcast television show, there was also a stage musical performance by characters on the show. Some footage from the filming of the stage show was used in the television broadcast. There was also an instructional video released.

Changes to story

Although Pretty Guardian Sailor Moon is a retelling of the first manga story arc, there are many differences that set it apart from the manga and anime. The story lines are more character-based and driven, focusing on the girls' civilian lives and their connection to the past more than on action sequences. While the first few episodes seemed directly based on anime and manga story lines, by the time Sailor Jupiter had arrived the show was starting to spin off in its own direction. Additionally, Usagi and Rei's relationship is closer in spirit to the manga; while they have their disagreements, it never gets to the heated level that it does in the anime.

One of the largest changes was to the character of Minako Aino, who, rather than being an ordinary girl among the other Senshi, is a famous pop idol. When introduced, she is fighting crime under the alias "Sailor V" (as in the other versions), and makes subtle reference to this double life in her music. Her most popular song, "C'est La Vie" (French for "That's Life!"), is a Japanese pun. In Japanese, the pronunciation of "Sailor V" is nearly identical to "C'est La Vie." The song has an insouciant and uplifting tone, while the real phrase is a reminder that life can be harsh. For more information, see Minako Aino - Variations.

In addition to plotline changes, some updating has been done to minor elements of the series, making them more in line with modern culture. For example, in the original anime and manga, there were scenes involving Ami and a cassette tape. In the new version, the tape is replaced by a MiniDisc. Instead of a transformation pen and communicators, each Senshi is given a magical camera phone and bracelets.

New & altered characters

With the new adaptation of the show, several new characters were added to give it freshness and originality.

Sailor Luna

Sailor Luna with her paper fan. Many secondary characters were modified, most notably Luna. In Pretty Guardian Sailor Moon, Luna is portrayed as a stuffed toy, but is also occasionally rendered using CGI effects. The same woman who performed Luna in the original Japanese anime, Keiko Han, also does Luna's voice as a cat in PGSM. The human-version of Luna first appears in Act 27, as a young girl (played by Rina Koike) who uses her own cell-phone-like transformation device to transform into Sailor Luna. She initiates this by pressing the numbers 6-7-2 and reciting "Luna Prism Power, Make Up!".

Since gaining the ability to hold human-form, Luna has remained for the majority of her time as human, but often reverts back to the toy cat-form when she loses control by either sneezing, taking a direct attack from an enemy or falling unconscious (e.g. falling asleep). The human Luna may occasionally be drawn towards distractions that a normal cat would be (e.g. chasing balls and running from dogs).

Luna's personality as a human girl is essentially identical to her canon-established personality, except that she gives voice to her mild obsession with sweet foods more often.

The character of Luna does have a human form in the original manga story of Bishoujo Senshi Sailor Moon (and the Sailor Moon S movie), although she is portrayed as a young adult. For the live action, however, Naoko Takeuchi designed Sailor Luna herself, perhaps using Sailor Chibi Moon as a model.

As Sailor Luna, she is the "Guardian of Small and Cute Things" and uses candy in her powers. Her only named attack is Luna Sucre Candy in which she makes a barrage of candy and cookies and small explosions attack the enemy (similar to Sailor Chibi Moon's "Pink Sugar Heart Attack"). She also has her own Moon Stick that she can turn into a paper fan used to beat enemies (in particular, Kunzite). In one episode she was able to turn the stick into a butterfly net, and in another she turned it into a golden fan. The transformation power of the item altogether is similar to Chibiusa's Luna-P item. She is also able to move very swiftly and once used a super hearing ability through her candy powers.

Dark Sailor Mercury

Dark Sailor Mercury Also referred to as Dark Mercury or Darkury by fans. When Ami was kidnapped by Kunzite in Act 20, he immersed her in the power of Metallia to turn her evil and she became Dark Mercury. As Dark Mercury she was granted a new henshin device that was connected to a black leather strap. Her suit also changed giving her black, tribal designs on her collar and boots and a dark butterfly design on her bow. She also had black tooling on her back bow, under her skirt and under her collar. Her tiara also changed into a tribal design. Her transformation phrase was "Dark Power, Make up!".

Ami's attitude changed drastically as Dark Mercury, especially in her civilian form, becoming self-confident to the point of egotism. Her over all appearance in her civilian form changed as well, as she began dressing primarily in black and other dark colors and her hair became jet black. As Dark Mercury, she seems to have no intention of being a follower to anyone, and is always trying to pursue her own agenda, which is to kill her friends and become as strong as possible. She shows blatant disrespect to Kunzite and the other Shitennou, even to Queen Beryl. This may be due to the fact that, unlike even the Shitennou, she is shown directly exposed to Metallia's power during her conversion, as opposed to having Queen Beryl or another intermediary filtering it.

However, certain aspects of the real Ami still remained. She still wanted to do well in school, and wanted friends, but instead of confronting Usagi during classes, she brainwashed her classmates. She also seemed to have at least some sympathy for people, which was evident when she sewed Nephrite's cape for him, stating that she didn't like to see him alone.[2] This sympathy may have been a result of being exposed to Sailor Moon's power, which very gradually healed Ami, but this is not certain.

As Dark Mercury, Ami's powers were the same, but infused with dark energy and slightly stronger. She never had a proper attack phrase, but often used a sword fashioned from an icicle. In promotional pictures prior to her premiere, she was shown with a different sword, which seemed to have strings on it like a harp or violin; the latter seems more likely, as she is also seen holding a bow.

She eventually reverted to her former self, due to being exposed to the true power of the Mystical Silver Crystal, and also because her last battle ended with her injuring Usagi - causing her to remember who she really was and to turn back.

This story arc "replaces" the "Dark Endymion" arc from the manga and anime, where Mamoru, not Ami, is kidnapped.

Princess Sailor Moon

Princess Sailor Moon prepares to strike. Usually referred to as simply "The Princess" (and twice referred to as Princess Serenity by Sailor Venus in Act 25 and Act 36), Princess Sailor Moon was Sailor Moon's powered-up form for the series. However, in contrast to previous versions of the story, Princess Sailor Moon was actually introduced when she was "possessed" by the spirit of her former self, ending up being a bit more sinister (this is indicated by her lower-pitched, serious voice). She originally appeared after Queen Beryl took the Shitennou hostage in exchange for Mamoru. Sailor Moon transformed into Princess Sailor Moon and halted Queen Beryl using her sword.

It was obvious, however, that Princess Sailor Moon was not the same as Usagi when she showed no remorse for the fate of the Shitennou (at least Nephrite's fate), and she referred to Mamoru as "Endymion" instead of "Mamoru". Later in the series, she states to Usagi during inner dialogue that she has no qualms about destroying Earth if Mamoru was ever taken from her, and later on even summons her own special demons to fight her friends, all bearing moon-shaped signs similar to hers.

Princess Sailor Moon is constantly angry. She tends to leave flaming carnage in her wake; in one act, Usagi's friend Naru accidentally got too close and wound up in the hospital for a while. The only time she ever had another mood was in Act 49, when she was remorseful. Though smiling in most promotional material for the series, Princess Sailor Moon does not smile in the series itself.

Princess Sailor Moon later went on to be a major plot point, often showing Usagi trying to suppress her power in fear that she would eventually destroy the world, something that came to light in the series' finale in an Ideon-like fashion. Her internal conflict would be the major conflict for the rest of the series.

Princess Sailor Moon had a sword, which also doubled as a harp with invisible strings. It was shown that she could heal people and the land as she played the harp. Otherwise, the exact effects of playing the harp is unclear, however, much of the time Princess Sailor Moon did so, the power of her Silver Crystal would feed the power of Queen Metallia, accelerating the devastation of the planet. Using the sword, she could deflect enemy attacks and unleash an unnamed devastating attack. She also had the ability to levitate, and possibly to teleport.

Mio Kuroki

Mio Kuroki (Kuroki Mio), played by Alisa Yuriko Durbrow, is a strange and manipulative girl who joins Usagi's class at school. She pretended to be her friend while doing all in her power to cause Usagi sadness. Because of her forgiving nature, however, Usagi still considered Mio a friend. Mio soon became very envious of Usagi's closeness to Mamoru and faked fainting in front of his motorcycle in order to kidnap him and take him to Queen Beryl. There, Mio taunted Mamoru Chiba, telling him that Beryl would kill him if he didn't join the Dark Kingdom and become Beryl's lover.

Mio is revealed as a being created from a part of Queen Beryl herself, apparently to do harm to Usagi. Toward the end of the series, Mio is apparently killed by Endymion/Metallia; she is somehow resurrected, however, and appears in the "Special Act" as the main villain. Once again, she kidnaps Mamoru, this time wanting to marry him so they could rule a new Dark Kingdom as King and Queen. She is confronted and attacked by the Shitennou, forcing her to transform into a plant-like monster that makes quick work of her former allies.

Ultimately, her final form is destroyed by the Senshi's combined powers, channeled through the Moon Sword in the Sailor Planet attack.

Special items

A number of magical items, unique to the live action series, were introduced over the course of the story. These include:

Jewelry Star Bracelet - A transformation item; each of the Inner Senshi (except Sailor Moon) has her own. These bracelets allow them to transform into Sailor Senshi. When Sailor Mercury was turned into Dark Sailor Mercury, her bracelet also changed in appearance and was known as the Dark Jewelry Star Bracelet.

Heart Moon Necklace - Sailor Moon's transformation device which she uses in conjunction with a tube of lipstick to transform. This turns into a brooch when she is Sailor Moon.

Sailor Star Tambo - An attack item; each of the Inner Senshi has her own. Together with Sailor Moon, these items enable the Senshi to use the "Moonlight Attractive Attack" and the "Sailor Planet Attack." Not all of them need be present to use these combined attacks. Sailor Jupiter and Sailor Mercury are shown using theirs for named attacks--"Jupiter Thunderbolt" and "Mercury Aqua Storm"--which are unique to the live-action series. In the final episode and the Special Act, the Tambos are turned into weapons--a Mercury Sword, Jupiter Spear, and Mars and Venus daggers.

Princess Sword/Princess Harp - Princess Sailor Moon conjures this sword to fend off attacks and perform a powerful blow in the form of a star. It also turns into a harp, that she uses to play for her sorrow, and sometimes to heal people.

Princess Tiara - A decoy Mystical Silver Crystal which Sailor Venus wore in her hair during the early part of the series. She had many, in fact, and could cause them to self-destruct.

Teletia-S - A magical cellphone given to each of the Senshi. They can be used to contact more than one person at once, and are the PGSM version of Sailor Moon's transforming pen. Each Senshi can use her phone to take a picture of a person (or even a mannequin) and, later, turn her own clothes into the selected outfit.

Human Luna also carries one, which she uses to turn into Sailor Luna. Luna's cellphone is called Lunatia-L.

Crown Passport - The girls use karaoke passes, conjured by Luna, to enter their secret base (also conjured by Luna) in Crown Karaoke. The cards purport to be year-long passes to use the karaoke booths so that the Sailor Senshi can get into the base for free. When he first sees them, however, Motoki asks "We give one-year passes?" but then shrugs it off.

Luna's Candy Wand - Sailor Luna's standard weapon; she uses it to perform an attack called "Luna Sucre Candy" and sometimes turns it into a fan (or a net) to attack people.

DVD Specials

Pretty Guardian Sailor Moon: Special Act

A sequel to the series that portrayed the wedding of Mamoru and Usagi (which, in the anime, is first shown in the Dark Moon arc of Sailor Moon R). Before their nuptials they must do battle with Mio Kuroki who has been resurrected and claims to be the new queen of the Dark Kingdom. She kidnaps Mamoru and Usagi and forces Mamoru to marry her. However, the Shitennou are revived and help their master to defeat Mio's youma, Sword and Shield. Meanwhile, the Sailor Senshi, minus Sailor Mars who is bedridden with injuries from battle, use the Moon Sword provided by Queen Serenity to defeat Mio.

Pretty Guardian Sailor Moon: Act Zero

The last special made for the series, ironically, is a prequel of sorts that leads directly to the first episode. In it we see how Minako Aino met Artemis and became Sailor V. She must use her newfound powers to foil a jewel thief called Cutie Kenko. Meanwhile Usagi and her friends decide to dress in their own homemade sailor fuku in order to scare the thieves away from the jewelry store owned by Naru Osaka's mother. The actors who portray the Shitennou are featured as inexperienced police officers for comic relief. The story ends with Luna coming to Earth in order to give Usagi her powers.

Mini-episodes

Act Zero also came with two mini-episodes. Each one was approximately five minutes long and told quick short stories. Hina Afterward showed what happened to the character of Hina after breaking off her engagement with Mamoru Chiba. Tuxedo Mask's Secret Birth showed the origin of the Tuxedo Mask persona. It includes a joke-henshin sequence in which, rather than transforming magically, he pulls his clothes on with dramatic flair.

Super Dance Lesson

A quick video hosted by Luna, Sailor Jupiter and Sailor Moon, that instructed the viewer how to perform the dances from different songs from PGSM. The dances included were for the songs "Romance" and "Here We Go! -Shinjiru Chikara-" Also demonstrated were "C'est La Vie~ The Loving Part Inside me" and "Kirari*Sailor Dream!" although no formal instructions were given on how to dance to them.

Kirari Super Live!

This is DVD footage of the live-stage show of the same name. Kirari Super Live featured the actors and actresses from the show singing and dancing to the various songs from the show. The cast of the Seramyu musical of 2004 was purportedly part of the audience.[citation needed]

Series director: Ryuta Tazaki

Director: Kenzo Maihara (Eps. 5-6,13-14, 21-22, 27-28), Masataka Takamaru (Eps 3-4,11-12,19-20,25-26,31), Nobuhiro Suzumura (Eps. 9-10, 15-16)
Ryuta Tazaki (Eps. 1-2,7-8), Takemitsu Sato (Eps 17, 18, 23, 24, 29, 30)

Screenplay: Seiko Kobayashi

Music: Michiru Oshima

Original creator: Naoko Takeuchi

Costume Design: Dango Takeda

Lyrics: Naoko Takeuchi (OP)

Planning: Naoji Katou, Tetsuya Watanabe

Planning Assistance: Kenichi Yoshino

Producer: Kouichi Yada, Shinichiro Shirakura, Shinya Maruyama, Yuba Sakata

Stunt Coordination: Yoko Komaki

Tape Producer: Toshiyuki Takezawa, Yoshiyuki Okazaki

Theme Song Performance: Alisa (as Mio Kuroki), Ayaka Komatsu (as Minako Aino), Chisaki Hama (as Ami Mizuno), Freddie Mercury ("I Was Born to Love You"), Keiko Kitagawa (as Rei Hino a.k.a. Mars Reiko), Miyuu Sawai (as Usagi Tsukino), Myuu Azama (as Makoto Kino), Sae (OP)

WR.

DIR.

EPISODES: 49 YEAR MADE: 2003 COUNTRY: JAP SEASONS: 1

CAZBE, DENTSU INC., TOEI PRODUCTIONS

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: Japanese

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 49

DATE OF PREMIER: 04/10/2003

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 25/09/2004

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Minako Aino / Sailor Venus / Sailor V AYAKA KOMATSU, Ami Mizuno / Sailor Mercury CHISAKI HAMA, Mamoru Chiba / Tuxedo Kamen/ Prince Endymion JOUJI SHIBUE, Rei Hino / Sailor Mars KEIKO KITAGAWA, Princess Sailor Moon, Princess Serenity MIYUU SAWAI, Sailor Moon USAGI TSUKINO, Makoto Kino / Sailor Jupiter MYUU AZAMA

1 - 1 ACT I

Rather normal 2nd year middle school student Usagi Tsukino, as always, wakes up late. In what has become a normal routine, the television was blaring about another stolen jewel incident, but the news said that the ally of justice, Sailor V, managed to resolve the incident. Usagi begins longing to be like Sailor V and finds herself late again, leaving the house at the very last second. As she's running truant to school, she finds an old, beaten up stuffed cat doll, with a curious crescent moon shape on its brow. When Usagi passes to the next street, the cat's crescent mark begins to glow. That night, next to her pillow, Usagi finds the doll again! The cat announces her name to be Luna and tells Usagi that she is none other than the Pretty Guardian warrior of the moon, Sailor Moon, whose mission is to fight against the dark organization which has recently been causing trouble on earth. Usagi doesn't really believe this though... The next day, as Usagi is happily shopping, she finds an ad page announcing that her best friend Naru's mother is holding a Jewelry exhibition at a meeting hall-- and this will turn into a crisis for our young hero. This 'exhibition' was actually a trap! Just as Luna had said, the cause was the 'dark organization,' whose 'youma' had possessed Naru's mother. Being able to sense danger (because she is the "Pretty Guardian" of the Moon), Usagi goes to face the challenge. Now Sailor Moon's battle truly begins!

Wr Kobayashi Yasuko

Dir Tasaki Ryuuta

1 - 2 ACT 2

Having met an unusual stuffed cat named Luna, Tsukino Usagi has taken on the mantle of Sailor Moon and begun her fight against the dark organization. However, Usagi still remains a rather clumsy and stress free- that is to say- normal, middle school student. Yet since Usagi is so unreliable, Luna has decided she has no choice but to find other senshi to assist her. Even though the earth is drawing near a crisis of unmatched proportion, due to the activities of Sailor Moon's evil enemies, the hot topic around town are the subject tests being performed at Usagi's school. The overall grades for the entire school are being pulled up by a single person... Mizuno Ami (who also happens to be in the same class as Usagi.) Unfortunately, even though Ami gets the highest grades at the school, her strict personality causes the other students to stay away from her. Even at lunch, Ami sits completely alone. Usagi begins to be a little interested in her... While walking home one day, Usagi meets Ami by pure coincidence. But... why is Luna in her hands? How did Ami end up with Luna? And strangest of all... Ami's change in attitude. Seeing Ami wipe the dust off Luna, and Ami talking to Luna gently, Usagi decides in her heart that she should be friends with her. "You may be able to make friends yet!" This is a new experience for Ami, and her heart becomes aflutter. Just this once, Usagi decides to loan out her beloved Idol's MD; in exchange for Ami agreeing to eat lunch with her. As she gets referred to as "Ami-chan" for the first time by Usagi, hope

Dir Tasaki Ryuuta, Kobayashi Yasuko

1 - 3 ACT 3

Usagi and Luna have at last found a fellow senshi to join in the battle. It turned out to be the genius girl Mizuno Ami, who also happens to be Usagi's classmate. As Sailor Mercury and Sailor Moon, they must find more senshi to participate in war they have waged against the Dark Kingdom. The ultimate mission of the Sailor senshi is to find their Princess and to stop the Dark Kingdom from obtaining a jewel of unknown power, the legendary Silver Crystal. Luna wants to find the remaining senshi as quickly as possible, and continues to try to learn more of the mysterious senshi, Sailor V. Since Sailor V has been active as a senshi before Sailor Moon had even awoken to her powers, Luna has a hunch that she may be the princess they are searching for. At the same time, there has been an increase in the amount of missing-girl cases across the world. Believing that youma may be the cause of these incidents, Usagi and Luna begin investigating them. They become interested in a particular rumour swirling about their school. Apparently girls have been disappearing one by one and its said that the cause of their disappearance was a curse by a strong shrine maiden. Just as Usagi and Ami are grasping to come up with a plan, the two of them by chance meet the person they are search for- the Hikawa shrine's maiden, Hino Rei!

Wr Kobayashi Yasuko

Dir Takamaru Masataka

1 - 4 ACT 4

Having discovered Hino Rei, there are now 3 senshi in Usagi's group. But while she says she will remain a comrade, Rei admits she does not have any intention of joining in their war. Usagi, Ami, and Luna, in an attempt to persuade Rei, consider their options. Meanwhile, Luna already has a curiosity she'd like to find out more about. As you already know, one of the Sailor Senshi's goals is to obtain and protect a mysterious jewel known as the Ginzuishou, which the Dark Kingdom is also trying to get. Its said that a valuable jewel, going by another name, actually exists near by. The party is in full swing but due to circumstances it becomes difficult to tell one person from another. Yet a single attendee is able to feel a malicious presence right away-- Hino Rei! For some reason she too was drawn to the Aiozuishou, and has come to the party. And at last, whether as friend or foe, Tuxedo Kamen shows himself as well. All searching for the Ginzuishou, all off the characters have met at this one party. What will happen?!

Wr Kobayashi Yasuko

Dir Takamaru Masataka

1 - 5 ACT 5

Ami has true friends in Usagi and Rei- the first friends she's had in her entire life- and this in turn has made her fateful encounter with them one of great joy. At the same time, the possibility of losing the two of them scares her. Trying to follow what her "How to make real friends" book instructs, Ami attempts to loosen up. She calls "Usagi-san" "Usagi" and sings Karaoke even though she's bad at it. Ami begins to overstrain herself to the point where she starts losing her grasp. And finally, under severe mental pressure, she collapses. At that same time, the senshi get information from Luna on a possible lead. Its said that a jewel which may very well be the legendary Ginzuishou has been found. Usagi and the others rush to a class called the "Student Flower Arrangement Class." Resting on the chest of the lecturer of this class is said to be a suspicious, glowing pendant. As would be expected, lying in wait for a fight at the courses' location is a Dark Kingdom youma, also aiming for the Ginzuishou. Ami's heart has been deeply touched by her friendship with Usagi. Will she be able to wield her powers as Sailor Mercury and join her friends against this strong enemy?

Wr Kobayashi Yasuko

Dir Maihara Kenzou

1 - 6 ACT 6

At Usagi's school a basketball champion, "Two Tall Takeru" has become quite popular with the girls. Usagi's best friend Naru is in a daze over him as well. One day, just like any other, she goes to watch him play. Around that same time, a new exchange student is arriving. Her name: Kino Makoto. The students around the school are gossiping that she fought a lot in her previous school and was kicked out of it, so she had to come to theirs. She joins the same class as Usagi, but while the other girls are afraid of her boyish manner, Usagi (and only Usagi) comes close to her and tries to become her friend. Usagi manages to open the door to her heart and learns that the girl has been alone all her life, having lost her parents when she was very young, and she has supported herself by this attitude. While being with Makoto, Usagi notices something odd... could Makoto like Takeru as well? In the meantime Luna has not suspected that Makoto could be the fourth senshi. But the crescent moon on her forehead begins to glow partially. What on earth could this mean? And at that very moment, Makoto receives a letter from Takeru...

Wr Kobayashi Yasuko

Dir Maihara Kenzou

1 - 7 ACT 7

As exchange student Kino Makoto transformed into Sailor Jupiter, the four Sailor Senshi at last became assembled. All that's supposed to be left is combining their powers to find the princess and legendary silver crystal. After doing so their mission will be complete. But there's still the curiosity of who the mysterious senshi, Sailor V, really is. Could she be the princess? Meanwhile, Usagi is absent minded as always. Before doing anything else, she wants to find out the identity of Tuxedo Mask. But these words of Sailor V, "You must stay away from him" cast a dark shadow over the budding love that Usagi has toward him. Is it really as she suggests, that he's a possible enemy of theirs...? While lost in thought over these matters, Usagi heads to the "Karaoke Crown" where the store's manager, Furuhashi Motoki, is examining Tuxedo Mask's sweater which has a rip in the shoulder like tuxedo's did. Is it possible that he is Tuxedo Mask?! Usagi becomes conscious of the possibility of Motoki being him. To that end, Usagi goes with Rei and Makoto on a group date with Motoki and his friends. But when Usagi, Raye and Makoto arrive at the destined location, they find that among Motoki's friends there is Chiba Mamoru. Who is also a rival of

Wr Kobayashi Yasuko

Dir Tasaki Ryuuta

1 - 8 ACT 8

There's going to be a "Become an Aino Minako Mascot Character" contest! The winner receives a trophy, and gets to dress up as a character that Aino Minako designed herself, "Nakonako." As is to be expected, Minako's huge fan, Usagi, is really looking forward to it. Ami, Rei, and Makoto are meanwhile lamenting the mountain-sized amount of work they have to do for the contest's preparations. Trouble begins brewing between Rei and Makoto. Rei demands that each do their own work, while Makoto rebukes that the senshi should help each other out in tandem. An ominous, threatening mood develops between the two of them. Finally the day of the contest arrives. When Makoto goes to the Hikawa jinja to deliver the work that Usagi had asked for, she witnesses Rei argue with a man and enter his car. "Could she have been kidnapped?!" Makoto chases after Rei, hoping she will be able to help. Meanwhile, Usagi has arrived at the contest hall, but inside she notices a bizarre atmosphere and indications of a youma presence.

Wr Kobayashi Yasuko

Dir Tasaki Ryuuta

1 - 9 ACT 9

Tuxedo Mask has issued a statement to the masses! The existence of the legendary Silver Crystal is now known by the public... and the price the gem'll fetch? 1 billion yen! The world is in an uproar of over it. Everyone is trying to figure out whether jewels they own are possibly the real Ginzuishou. Meanwhile Tuxedo Mask attacks a fake jewelry store to catch the faker who had impersonated him. While most of the Sailor Soldiers now say with confidence, "See its true, Tuxedo Mask really was an enemy of ours" only Usagi, being in love with him, remains an ally of his in her heart. She believes that he has to have had some reason behind doing it. Around this time they get word of a distress message from a top class Japanese corporation. The President of the company believes that at his house he may have a stone that is the legendary Silver Crystal, and he wants it to be protected from Tuxedo Mask. Usagi must finally accept the notion that Tuxedo Mask is the enemy, but will she be able to repress her feelings and deal with the situation calmly...?

Wr Kobayashi Yasuko

Dir Suzumura Nobuhiro

1 - 10 ACT 10

Having fought with her mom, Usagi runs away from home, and ends up taking shelter at Rei's Hikawa Shrine. There a girl name Erika is working on an animated picture show for the children. The story of the picture show is "Kaguya Hime." Erika believes the mother she had lost has returned to the moon. Rei, who just like Erika lost her mother, feels as though she is meeting a version of her child self. Usagi, learning this fact for the first time, reflects upon her own complaints about her mother. As these events are occurring, accidents involving people and places which have to do with the word "Princess" are beginning to happen. The princess of a certain country suddenly collapses, somewhere else a picture book of Snow White catches on fire. And so finally Erica, who thinks that she is like Kaguya hime, gets in trouble as well!

Wr Kobayashi Yasuko

Dir Suzumura Nobuhiro

1 - 11 ACT 11

Minako is being cared for at the Juban Hospital. Usagi and Makoto go check it out while Ami, Rei and Luna are still looking for Sailor V. Minako and her guardian confront each other about the Princess and that Minako is really the Princess along with being Sailor V. While Makoto and Usagi are at the Hospital with Minako, Rei, Ami and Luna go check out a hint on the internet about Sailor V and the Innere. Zoicite turns Mars, Mercury and Jupiter evil sending them out to seek and destroy Sailor V, as he thinks she is the Princess but, its not that easy as Tuxedo is also after the Princess and will protect her.

Wr Kobayashi Yasuko

Dir Takamaru Masataka

1 - 12 ACT 12

Aino Minako, aka Sailor V, is disappointed in Sailor Moon's carefree alter-ego Tsukino Usagi. She makes Minako feel as though all her fighting, up to now, has been in vain. On the other hand, her huge fan Usagi wants to go back and get her long-awaited autograph and so Usagi returns to the hospital to sneak in again. And running around over there as though she's being chased is none other than Aino Minako! Thinking she wants to get out to get away from work, Usagi covers up for Aino Minako and together they escape. But in reality, Minako was running away from a youma. Although she's a senshi Usagi hadn't sensed the youma at all, and Minako is more and more in disbelief. Although the two of them are senshi from the moon, will they be able to fuse their hearts as one?

Wr Kobayashi Yasuko

Dir Takamaru Masataka

1 - 13 ACT 13

The Sailor Senshi ponder Sailor Venus's words, "As the Princess, I have something I must do no matter what." Around this time, in front of Usagi and Mamoru a guy named "Shin" introduces himself. For some reason Shin doesn't know who he really is. Although Mamoru and Usagi don't like being around each other, they cooperate to try to bring back Shin's memories. The next morning, Mamoru witnesses Shin acting quite suspicious. As a completely changed Shin shouts "Don't come near me!" Mamoru is... "Master Endymion.."

Wr Kobayashi Yasuko

Dir Maihara Kenzou

1 - 14 ACT 14

At last the final Dark Kingdom Shitennou, Kunzite, has appeared, and consequently, he has summoned a youma to go after Sailor Moon. Sailor Moon uses the senshi power within her to trap and seal the youma. When she gets back to normal the other senshi are briefly relieved, but the youma within Usagi is gradually beginning to wear her powers, and finally Usagi collapses. Ami frantically tries to nurse Usagi, saying, "I can protect Usagi as well!" But as Usagi's body temperature begins to lower one can see her body starting to reflect the visage of the youma...

Wr Kobayashi Yasuko

Dir Maihara Kenzou

1 - 15 ACT 15

A thief crept into Aino Minako's house and stole a box of jewels. The stolen goods are said to already be on their way for sale. At the same time, Usagi is invited to a must-attend jewelry auction by Naru's mother who is a jewelry designer. Appearing at the location where she is to meet them is none other than Chiba

Mamoru! Thinking that Usagi is in love with Mamoru, Naru has secretly created this set up. An air of unpleasantness surrounds the two of them. Usagi tries to leave but in running away she bumps into a man, and in the impact Usagi recognizes- and he confesses- that inside his bag is Aino Minako's accessories!

Wr Kobayashi Yasuko

Dir Suzumura Nobuhiro

1 - 16 ACT 16

One of the Dark Kingdom's Shitennou, Kunzite, and his youma, are beginning to scheme again. Recent 'disappearance' incidents were caused by his powers. And Rei and Makoto have made sure of this. Yet, that while the two of them were fighting youma, Usagi was spending time with Mamoru, is something she can't talk to them about... Meanwhile, at school, Ami and Naru fall ill at ease with each other over their relationship with Usagi. Sharp language from Naru wounds Ami deeply. Afterwards, by chance, Ami sees Naru on the same street. Just as Ami is thinking to slip away, a hole suddenly appears in the earth under Naru, who slides in!

Wr Kobayashi Yasuko

Dir Suzumura Nobuhiro

1 - 17 ACT 17

The Dark Kingdom has been able to amass large amounts of the life power of humans- that is, "Energy." The enemy is indeed becoming strong. But the only thing in Usagi's head is Mamoru as she bumped into Mamoru when he was with another girl... Aware that Usagi's behavior has become strange, Ami and Makoto are cautious and concerned; they refuse to take their eyes off her. At the same time, having come for the anniversary of her mother's death, Rei saves a weakened dog in a church. And who should she happen to see in there but Aino Minako!

Wr Kobayashi Yasuko

Dir Sato Takemitsu

1 - 18 ACT 18

Sailor Venus rebuked Sailor Mars for allowing the Youma to escape. Mars can't conceal her shock at both her forceful tone, or Venus' real identity. And as they compete with each other while taking care of the dog, the relationship between Rei and Minako grows delicate. Meanwhile, Makoto, thinking to help out Usagi's love life, begins collecting intelligence. Deftly she goes to Mamoru's friend to hear about the girl he's been with. It comes to light that she's his fiance! This isn't the kind of thing that Makoto could bear to say to Usagi. Yet at this moment, in the church, there are indications of the youma...

Dir Sato Takemitsu

1 - 19 ACT 19

Valentine's Day will be here soon. Usagi desperately wants to give Mamoru her hand-made muffler but she's been moping about, concerned over the existence of [Mamoru's] girlfriend. Given Usagi's appearance, Makoto can't bear to tell her that the girl is actual Mamoru's fiancé. Soon after Usagi meets a first grade student- a girl named Hikari- who asks her for some love advice. Seeing her seriously go after the boy she likes, Usagi gains a little courage. Pushing each other on, the two of them go to select chocolates [for Valentines day], yet at that time they unexpectedly run into Mamoru and his girlfriend Hina. Hikari, surprised at seeing Hina, changes from her normal appearance. What could the unexpected relationship between Hikari and Hina be?

Dir Takamaru Masataka

1 - 20 ACT 20

Recently Rei has been acting secretive, as though she's got something to hide. This is because she happens to know Sailor Venus' true identity, and has been lost in thought over how to decipher Venus' mysterious actions on her own. Makoto hasn't taken a liking to Rei's recent behavior. But moreover, she's anxious about the direction in which Usagi and Mamoru's love is heading. Finally, Makoto resolves herself to tell Usagi about Mamoru and his girlfriend's engagement. At that time, however, Usagi happens to bump into Mamoru while walking and ends up going on a double-date with him. Usagi embraces this glimmer of hope, but fate has something different in mind for her...

Dir Takamaru Masataka

1 - 21 ACT 21

Learning of Mamoru and Hina's engagement, Usagi, in shock, secludes herself at home. Makoto, in hopes of coming up of a way to cheer Usagi up, heads to Ami's place. But Ami's acting strange. But Ami's acting strange. It's like out of no where she says she wants to go to an amusement park or has a lot of fun leaving perplexed Makoto behind. She seems to have become a completely different person. And ultimately, from complete exhaustion, Ami collapses!

Dir Maihara Kenzou

1 - 22 ACT 22

Sailor Mercury is in the embrace of the enemy. Declaring herself to be "Dark Mercury," she announces that she intends to bring down the sailor senshi. The senshi have lost their bearings, and as they review recent events they find that while everyone was acting on their own whim, Ami, knitting gloves one-at-a-time, patiently waited for all of them to be together. Now that Ami has become evil, the senshi must fight Mercury in the name of justice. What kind of decision will the girls have to make?

Wr Kobayashi Yasuko

Dir Maihara Kenzou

1 - 23 ACT 23

Sailor Mercury has been captured by the Dark Kingdom, and is now an enemy of the Sailor Senshi. For the senshi to turn her back to normal they must each awaken the power they have within themselves. Rei, being the leader, must awaken that power quickly and is impatient; she frantically searches to find what it is she's lacking. As it turns out, due to a little trick by Sailor Venus (Aino Minako), Rei is forced into singing for hospital children. Singing's one of the things she's worst at. The course that Rei, in a pinch, will take is...

Dir Sato Takemitsu

1 - 24 ACT 24

Mamoru's departure date for England draws near. Zoisite has been trying to approach Mamoru frequently. "Don't call me by that name!" Upon a refusing Mamoru, Kunzite's dark influence is... Given what has been happening with Ami, Usagi has sworn in her heart, "I must forget about Chiba Mamoru," but the waves of fate are tying the two of them together again. The romantic overtones of the series will finally, finally, be reaching a climax in Act 24. We've come so far, haven't we. Those days of the phrase, "Approach seven centimeters," are nostalgic...

Dir Sato Takemitsu

1 - 25 ACT 25

Usagi now knows Tuxedo Kamen is Mamoru. Can Mamoru accept Usagi, who confessed her feeling to him unexpectedly? Meanwhile, Hina becomes aware of the relation of the two and dares to... With Usagi having found out his identity, Mamoru must make another decision soon. So, what will you do Mr. Chiba Mamoru? Their affections have begun to swirl. And it seems like Kunzite has begun to realize the truth.

Dir Takamaru Masataka

1 - 26 ACT 26

Due to Usagi's tears, Mamoru, who had been lost to the Dark Kingdom, opens his eyes. Simultaneously Luna, Mars, and Jupiter finally learn who the real Princess is. Indeed the Princess of the Moon was Sailor Moon, Tsukino Usagi!! A long, long time ago, in a previous life, Usagi was the princess of the Moon (Serenity) and Mamoru was the prince of the Earth (Endymion) and they were deeply in love. Yet theirs was a forbidden romance. The tragic destruction of both the Moon Kingdom and the Earth came about because of their relationship. But the two of them, deeply tied by fate from their previous lives, have surpassed the boundaries of time and once again met! Soon Mamoru will be leaving to London with Hina, his fiancé. What will become of his future with Usagi from now on?

Dir Takamaru Masataka

1 - 27 ACT 27

Usagi and Mamoru had previously lived their lives deeply in love, as the Princess of the Moon and Prince of the Earth. Although in the present they have once again managed to meet due to their strong attraction, the love between the two of them cannot be allowed. Looking to find his true self, Mamoru has journeyed to London. Having given up on Mamoru, Usagi now decides to focus all her strength on regaining the dark-hearted Ami. Meanwhile, a single senshi appears in front of Ami. (Sailor Mercury.) Stating, "I will surely restore you," who could this senshi be? And a mysterious girl also happens to appear in front of Usagi, Rei, and Makoto at the same time.

Dir Maihara Kenzou

1 - 28 ACT 28

The spell cast upon Ami started to break by the light of the ginzuishou. But Ami's heart was still troubled, and as though casting off doubts, she hit Sailor Moon with her sword. When she came to, Ami found herself and Usagi in the middle of a forest. No longer cursed, Ami can still remember everything that had happened between her and Usagi through to now. Yet it is too late. Carrying the motionless Usagi, Ami bursts into tears.

Dir Maihara Kenzou

1 - 29 ACT 29

Ami is back to normal, and tranquility has returned to them all. Arriving at their school is a new, mysterious exchange student, Kuroki Mio. But she is a rival of Aino Minako, and also...?! Having transferred to Juuban Middle school is a new idol, Kuroki Mio. Usagi burns with hostility as the girl is "Like Aino Minako's rival!" And finally the two of them enter a volleyball match!

1 - 30 ACT 30

The idol Kuroki Mio, who had transferred to Usagi's class, has skillfully become acquainted with Usagi. Yet there is a rumor spreading about Usagi's classmates that "Usagi abandoned Mio and fled" due to what happened that time that Usagi had to go fight the youma and left Mio on her own in a safe place. Thus, Usagi becomes a lone wolf, because she is not able to tell them that she was actually fighting. [Whoever gets the Kodocha reference wins.] Making the appearance that she is Usagi's ally- but in actually attempting to ensnare her- Mio is even going to drag Aino Minako into her trap.

1 - 31 ACT 31

1 - 32 ACT 32

Has Mamoru disappeared in London? Usagi can't take it anymore. And with that, Mio provides her with a heaven-sent opportunity "You can go to London." The question is, can Usagi dash to Mamoru's side? In that regard, wanting to go to London, Usagi finds it unbearable. In order to get to England she becomes the attendant of the popular actor Yuuto. But having played the mediator, enabling Usagi to do this, hmm... that Mio must be up to something! As it were, Mamoru flew to London like he was running away from something. But, even if he's in London, fate's not going to leave him alone. As Kunzite noted of the circumstances, "What kind of meeting is this..." How will Mamoru respond?

1 - 33 ACT 33

Finally, Usagi and Mamoru's affections have united. Although their love has been said to be cursed since their previous existence, seeing Usagi's delighted appearance, her friends cannot separate them, despite their personal unease. As opposed to Usagi, who's reached the summit of happiness, Ami has been always lonely due to being emotionally isolated from her mother, and Rei, with her father being a politician, has always been resentful of him. Yet the situation has presented itself in such a way that both will have to face off against their parents.

1 - 34 ACT 34

Since Ami was a child she has always suppressed herself and followed what her mother requested of her to make her mother happy. But even though her mother said it would be best to change schools, Ami is unable to suppress herself, as in the past, this one time. Meanwhile Rei remains unable to forgive her father the politician for not coming to the hospital when her mother was dying. What actions will these two, who hold such complex feelings toward their parents, take...?

1 - 35 ACT 35

Usagi and Mamoru's relationship has been prohibited since their previous existence, but the two of them- vowing that things "won't be like last time"- begin their love anew. Given Usagi's excessive zeal, the other senshi cannot bring themselves to strongly oppose them. Yet Sailor Venus, knowing full well the horrors of their relationship, refuses to forgive it. Whilst she considers methods of stopping them, in front of her materializes Zoisite. With the same desire to pull the two of them apart, Zoisite makes Venus a proposition.

1 - 36 ACT 36

Aino Minako (Sailor Venus) lets Rei in on an important secret. While Rei, having been told such a secret so suddenly, is unable to hide her shock, she doesn't have time to lose her bearings. Their enemies are growing stronger by the minute. As Rei and the rest are staying vigilant, the Dark Kingdom's ruler, Queen Beryl, having desired Endymion since their previous existence, has finally appeared in front of him.

1 - 37 ACT 37

Usagi, having lost Chiba Mamoru to Queen Beryl, must suppress her feelings of concern for him and believe in his return. And while Luna wasn't looking, Usagi disappeared! Since the last thing Luna had heard was a harp's note, Usagi must be in her Princess form. Relying on this note, the senshi begin their search for the Princess. Meanwhile Mamoru, taken to the Dark Kingdom, faces his retainers from his previous existence, the Shitenou.

1 - 38 ACT 38

Exactly what happened in her previous existence was finally revealed by Princess Sailor Moon's very own lips. Luna and the senshi cannot easily get over something like this. Meanwhile, having heard from Queen Beryl the truth, Mamoru strengthens his resolve. "I destroyed the planet..." With these words, Princess Sailor Moon disappears once again. Inside her heart, she is facing off against "Usagi" but... "The Princess' existence is surely call for calamity to this planet!"

1 - 39 ACT 39

Facing Sailor Moon, Mamoru- as his previous-existence alter-ego Endymion- drew his sword! With the intention of not repeating the tragedy of their previous life, Endymion declared war upon Usagi. But Usagi's feelings will not change. She will gallantly continue to believe in Mamoru. Also, in a completely unexpected twist, Aino Minako's office president requests Usagi's mother to become a television reporter!

1 - 40 ACT 40

Having been taught by Mamoru that the only way to protect the planet is to do it oneself, Usagi seeks to harness the power of the legendary Silver Crystal. Meanwhile Minako decides that, given how little remaining life she has left, she will quit singing and focus only on the completion of her previous existence's mission. Just as she is about to do this, she is informed by the office president that Minako's work will be taken over by a new face. Having suddenly snapped away her work, the identity of this new idol who appears before a surprised Minako is...

1 - 41 ACT 41

As they enter summer vacation, some volunteer work pops up at Usagi's school. With her classmate Naru, Usagi, Ami, and Makoto help watching over kids at a children's home. While she doesn't know how to handle the kids, Usagi's got a particular scheme in mind. Without telling Makoto, she calls up Motoki and leaves the two alone. Not knowing anything, Makoto carries the children's dirty clothes to the backyard. ...where Motoki has just arrived.

1 - 42 *ACT 42*1 - 43 ACT 43

A life-taking stone has been implanted into Mamoru's body by virtue of Queen Beryl's trap. The more he loves Usagi, the closer he creeps to death. Knowing this, Usagi's anger rises. And with that Usagi changes... Having realized this change, Mamoru is determined to meet Usagi, regardless of the stone's existence within himself. His grace period is until sunset, and if he doesn't return Queen Beryl will take his life.

1 - 44 ACT 44

Rei and Minako antagonize over their reactions of their previous life. Rei asserts that Minako- having never awakened her senshi powers- has no qualifications to fight, but that's because she has something in her mind. Meanwhile, coming to the conclusion that no matter how much she hopes it would happen, she'll never have Endymion's heart, Queen Beryl at last comes to the decision to take the Princess's life.

1 - 45 ACT 45

Sailor Venus has collapsed at last. Makoto and Ami begin to notice that her condition isn't exactly normal. While Artemis is desperately recommending surgery, Minako- who's been living only to see her previous life's mission completed- doesn't want to listen to him at all. And of course at this time a youma appears. Makoto's heart is struck by Venus' attitude of putting her life on the line to see her mission to its end, and goes off her rocker.

1 - 46 ACT 46

Having seen Makoto become willing to throw her life away to complete her mission, Minako reflects on her own captivity to her past. Meanwhile, Rei, arriving at the Dark Kingdom thanks to Mio, meets with Mamoru! "Even if it costs me my life, I'll see my mission to the end!"

1 - 47 ACT 47

Venus finally finds success in awakening her senshi powers and defeating the youma. And she decides to be operated on. Her friends the senshi, believing the operation will work out fine, plan a party. With a smiling face Minako heads toward the operation's inspection... Even though the odds are slim, Minako decides she's going to do the operation. And so that day comes a calling. The five of them beat the strongest youma; Naru, Motoki, and the other victims have re-turned to normal and the town's peace has been restored.

1 - 48 ACT 48

After school Usagi is walking home to find Mamoru standing on the other side of the bridge, they walk up to each other and he hugs her, then she starts crying out of happiness. later Mamoru kills Kunzite and turns into Dark Endymion meanwhile the other Senshi are fighting an Younma and some how they end up get attacked by Endymion. whilst the other Senshi are fighting the Younma Mio gets killed by Endymion and after the other Senshi were attacked he aims at Usagi and hits but Usagi turns into sailor moon. After sailor moon henshins (not exactly) she has a sword and Mamoru tells her to attack sailor moon looks at him and decides she will do so. in the end Usagi kills Endymion and whilst shes get her run up Makoto, Ami and Rei yell at Usagi not to do it but Usagi doesn't listen because she knows what she must do.

1 - 49 ACT 49

After finally destroying the evil Queen Metalia, the girls face Queen Beryl underground. Usagi realizes the magnitude of what she has done and is overcome by Princess Sailor Moon who is set on ending everything on the planet for if she does not have love, why should everybody else? Understanding Usagi is serious, Ami decides to take a stand and the others reluctantly follow. Gaining stronger power the remaining Soldiers try to stop Princess Sailor Moon; will they succeed?

PREY

In "natural selection," if two species occupy the same space, and resources are limited, the species with the better ability to adapt forces the other out. --Dr. Sloan Parker

Is evolution always positive? Should only the strong survive? What if it means the end of the human race? In the year 2012, a new species of the Homo genus has evolved to compete with Homo sapiens. Intelligent, bold, and vastly similar to humans, they manifest themselves, most notably, as vicious serial killers, while also infiltrating all aspects of society. In a life and death race, young anthro-biologist, Sloan Parker battles a sceptical public and other less noble scientists to uncover the truth about this new group who is hungry for survival.

A compelling one-hour science-fiction drama, "Prey" stars Debra Messing, Adam Storke, Vincent Ventresca, Larry Drake and Frankie R. Faison. The series is produced by Warner Bros. Television for the ABC Television Network. Motivated by intellectual curiosity and the need to solve the murder of her mentor, Sloan Parker, 30, an ambitious research assistant confirms her dead boss's findings that a new life-form has arisen. Even as Parker's quest for answers endangers her, she still finds her emotions for the new creatures vacillating between fear and love.

Parker's amorous feelings spring from a mutual attraction between she and handsome FBI Agent Tom Daniels. A key contributor to the original research project, Agent Daniels' identity as one of the new beings soon becomes apparent to Parker. Afraid for his life and loyal to his breed, he flees the region with an emotional good-bye.

In close pursuit of this lethal bunch, street-wise police detective, Ray Peterson, 40, enjoys an affable working relationship with Parker. However, unbeknownst to him, he is tracking the most formidable foe he has ever encountered. Dr. Walter Attwood, 40, serves as second in command at Parker's lab and imposes his authority over her. Cynical and deceitful, he seeks to further his own selfish agenda as he strives to revive his diminishing career.

However, Parker is not alone at work. Her friend and colleague, Dr. Ed Tate, 31, a shy, dedicated researcher, wants to support her efforts despite Dr. Attwood's attempts to manipulate him. With this new species hungry for survival, "only the strong survive" never meant so much. Now, man has to contend with a mutation of himself and the final outcome could be grim.

The working title for this show was Hungry For Survival before it was changed to Prey. The series was cancelled before episode 10-13 could be aired. "Prey" will originally be shown in the United States and then move on to international release later in the year. It was originally titled "Hungry For Survival," and starred Sherilyn Fenn in the lead role and Michael Stuhlbarg as the original Ed Tate, but for unknown reasons the pilot was scrapped, recast, reshot, and renamed.

Slick production values, storylines that continue from episode to episode, and bad guys as villainous as they come made Prey a strong new contender in the US SF TV stakes, it however failed to live up to its initial promise. The producers for the series could not keep up the quality of the show and its attempts at being the next X-FILES failed. Or even turn into another BURNING ZONE. The shows executive producers were Charlie Craig and William Schmidt, producers were Donald Marcus and Phil Parslow and the supervising producer was Jeremy R. Littman.

The series ended with a cliff-hanger episodes 1.13 - Deliverance Part 1, there was no part 2 made, since the first season ended with 13 episodes. "Prey" will originally be shown in the United States and then move on to international release later in the year. It was originally titled "Hungry For Survival," and starred Sherilyn Fenn in the lead role and Michael Stuhlbarg as the original Ed Tate, but for unknown reasons the pilot was scrapped, recast, reshot, and renamed. NOTE: The WB press release incorrectly says the show takes place in the year 2012. That was the case in the original pilot, but the timeframe was moved to 1998 when it was retooled. The series was shown on the ABC network.

Bad science fiction is easy to do. Create your own physics and throw in a couple of space ships or rubber monsters and there you have it. Another kind of bad science fiction requires a bad script with a big budget. Witness, Men In Black. ABC however, has filled their Thursday night 8:00 PM time slot with what will most likely become very good science fiction and at the very least a cult hit. The series title is Prey.

The series was created by William Schmidt and stars Debra Messing as Sloan Parker, Vincent Ventresca as Dr. Ed Tate and Adam Storke as Tom Daniels. The concept that powers Prey, is a speculation event that has given rise to a new species of hominid or human. This new species of human looks just like we do which makes them impossible to detect. The real difference is in the way that the new species brain is hardwired. Their brain functions at a higher level than our own and has given them the ability to sense emotions, have an extra sensory ability and an increase in physical strength.

What makes this show good science fiction is that it has a solid base of truth to it. Evolution is a fact. Charles Darwin identified in his book Descent of Man, certain characteristics that make all humans special; walking upright, manual dexterity, technology and intelligence. Darwin felt that if an ape had just a small amount of each of these qualities then that ape would have an advantage over other apes.

Evolution is powered by mutation and natural selection. There are all kinds of genetic mutations in humans and most of them are harmless, like curling ones tongue or wiggling ones ears. However, if a mutation occurs at a time when that mutation becomes an advantage to survival, then obviously those people with that genetic difference or that physical advantage have a better chance of living over others without the advantage.

In PREY, Natural Selection has worked slowly over time to create this new species that is clearly focused on destroying the unevolved species of humans, you. The scripting in Prey is tight and well developed. Each show folds into the next and progresses the story. Each new show does not start as if the previous weeks work never existed or not remembered as it was. The writers and the producers have given the series a memory and that memory has made the shows work like chapters in an unfolding nightmare.

The female star of the series is Debra Messing. She plays Dr. Sloan Parker, who pieces together the puzzle left by her mentor and makes discoveries of her own that uncovers the new species. Messing plays the part with vulnerability and scientific determination that are blending well to create a character with appeal, depth and a "one of us" quality.

Vincent Ventresca plays Dr. Ed Tate, Tate is Parker's co-worker who helps Parker fill in the blanks in the genetic code that leads to the deeper understanding of what they are up against. Ventresca plays the part well but as of yet has not had enough screen time to develop his character. Adam Storke is Tom Daniels, a member of the new species who has become riddled with the angst of his own being. Storke gives his character emotional tension that can make the viewer empathise but not necessarily trust his motives. Daniel's is struggling with his own demons and this may make him a very volatile character in future episodes.

It is hoped that the powers in charge of Prey pledge to keep its dark and real edge and not de-generate into comic book plasticity. The viewer of this kind of series does not like to be cheated out of a good story and it is the story with-in Prey that is its most compelling attribute. The series producers were Charles Grant Craig (executive), Don Marcus, Peter O'Fallon (co-executive), Philip L. Parslow, William Schmidt (executive). Original music was by Mark Morgan, cinematography was Ron Schmidt, film editing was by M. Edward Salier and Sidney Wolinsky. Casting was by Irene Mariano and Barbara Miller, the sound department consisted of Walter Anderson (sound mixer) and the stunts were by Mark Lonsdale. The uncredited script supervisors were Petra Jorgensen and Sharon 'Mae' West.

Cast details :

Debra Messing

On Prey, she's the serious and determined Dr. Sloan Parker, but her recent credits show a different side of this beautiful actress. Recent movie roles include Lt. Penelope Carpenter in "Michael's Navy" and Betty Sutton in "A Walk In The Clouds," but Debra is best known as Stacey from the 1995 FOX sitcom, "Ned & Stacey." Debra has also made numerous television guest appearances, including playing Beth Lookner in two episodes of "Seinfeld," ("The Wait Out" & "The Yada Yada"). She also did a guest stint on the short-lived sitcom "Partners," and in 1995, she portrayed Dana Abandando in 3 episodes of ABC's "NYPD Blue": "Double Abandando," "A Murder With Teeth In It" and "Bombs Away."

Before graduating from the celebrated New York University Graduate Acting Program from which Messing received her MFA, she received her BA degree and summa cum laude from Brandeis University. She spent half of her junior year studying in London's prestigious British European Studies Group. Upon returning to New York and graduating, Messing worked off-Broadway in productions of "The Naked Truth" and "Four Dogs and A Bone." She also worked regionally at Seattle's Intiman Theater in "The Importance of Being Earnest." Debra most recently appeared with Maria Tucci in the New York premiere of Donald Margulies' "Collected Stories" at the Manhattan Theater Club.

Adam Storke

Bringing his brooding presence to Prey in the character of Tom Daniels, Adam first received widespread notice as Larry Underwood, the reluctant would-be rock star, in "STEPHEN KING'S THE STAND". Adam most recently appeared as Stephen Crane in TNT's "Rough Riders." His feature film credits include "Death Becomes Her," "Highway to Hell" and "Mystic Pizza." He portrayed Justin in the 1987 mini-series "I'll Take Manhattan." Other TV credits include the Made-For-Television movies "A Mother's Gift," "Escape from Terror: The Teresa Stamper Story," "Lifepod," "Perry Mason: The Case of the Heartbroken Bride," "In My Daughter's Name," "The Phantom of the Opera," "A Gathering of Old Men," "A Special Friendship" and "Too Far to Go." He also turned a hilarious performance as Juan Wayne Babbitt in Julie Brown's Special, "Attack of the 5'2" Women" on Showtime. Like every other young actor in Hollywood, his guest work includes a stint on "Tales from the Crypt," in the episode, "Surprise Party."

Larry Drake

On "Prey," Larry lends his versatile skills to the ambiguous Dr. Walter Attwood, but this Tulsa native is best known as the mentally challenged Benny Stulwicz on "L.A. Law" (which earned him the Emmy for Best Supporting Actor in 1988 & 1989). Larry has appeared in many feature films over the years, including "Bean," "The Time of Her Time," "Overnight Delivery," "Paranoia," "The Journey of August King," "Darkman," "Darkman 2: The Return of Durant," "Dr. Giggles," "Good Neighbours," "The Karate Kid," "For Keeps," "The Big Brawl," "The Ladies Club," and "The White Lions." While "Prey" is only his second regular television series, after the legendary "L.A. Law," Larry has guest acted on several shows, including "The Naked Truth," "Spy Game," "Dead Man's Gun" and "Tales From The Crypt."

His guest appearance on "THE OUTER LIMITS (90s)" episode, "The Message," earned him a CableAce Nomination. He has also worked in the following made-for-TV movies: NBC's "Beast" and "Too Good To Be True," CBS's "Murder In New Hampshire: The Pamela Wojas Smart Story" and "Dark Night of the Scarecrow," and ABC's "One More Mountain." He was also the voice of Captain Zachary Storm on the animated WB series, "Road Rovers." In his impressive stage career, he has twice received the Dramalogue Award, for his performances in "Greater Tuna" at San Diego's Old Globe Theatre and "St. Joan" at the South Coast Repertory Theatre.

Vincent Ventresca

After earning his B.A. Degree in Theatre and Psychology from Indiana University, Vincent headed to Hollywood and quickly landed roles in the motion pictures "Romy & Michelle's High School Reunion," "Six Days/Seven Nights," "Chasing Rabbits," and "Teen Fathers." While playing the brilliant researcher Dr. Ed Tate on "Prey," he is best known for his sitcom roles of 'Fun Bobby' and 'Jack' on NBC's "Friends" and "Boston Common," respectively. He was also a series regular on FOX's "Medicine Ball," and has made numerous television guest appearances, including "Life Goes On," "Blossom," "The Torkelsons," "Reasonable Doubts," "Monty," "Fresh Prince Of Bel Air," and the television movies "The Surrogate," "Degree Of Guilt" and "Menendez: A Killing in Beverly Hills." He has also appeared in numerous stage productions.

Frankie R. Faison

A native of Newport News, Virginia, and a great character actor, I'll never forget his role as the crazy landlord in "Coming to America." I'll have a complete bio up soon, but for now, I'll list his movie credits: "The Tears of Julian Po," "Mother Night," "The Rich Man's Wife," "The Stupids," "Albino Alligator," "Roommates," "I Love Trouble," "Sommersby," "Money For Nothing," "Freejack," "The Silence of the Lambs," "City of Hope," "Betsy's Wedding," "Do the Right Thing," "Coming to America," "Mississippi Burning," "Maximum Overdrive," "The Money Pit," "Manhunter," "C.H.U.D.," "Exterminator 2," "Hanky Panky," "Cat People," "Permanent Vacation," and "Ragtime." His TV credits include "Common Ground," "Sessions," and "STEPHEN KING'S THE LANGOLIERS" Frankie also has an impressive stage career, having appeared on Broadway in "Fences." On "Prey," he plays police detective Ray Peterson.

It's A simple premise: aliens have infiltrated our society, and they want the Earth for themselves. The idea has had good mileage in countless Science Fiction series, from The Invaders to Earth: Final Conflict to First Wave. But what if the threat came not from a planet billions of light years away, but from within? What if Mother Nature had a nasty trick up her sleeve that could spell the end of humanity?

That's the premise of Prey, the 13-part thriller that charts the rise of a new species on our planet. It begins when bio-anthropologist Dr Sloan Parker (Debra Messing) investigates the death of her mentor, Dr Ann Coulter, who is researching the case of highly intelligent serial killer Randall Lynch (Roger Howarth). What she discovers shakes her beliefs to the core: there is a genetic anomaly in Lynch's blood. Global warming had triggered an evolutionary event a new species of Man that demands the extermination of the human race.

As Sloan herself notes, "In natural selection, if two species occupy the same space, and resources are limited, the species with the better ability to adapt forces the other out." Faster, sharper and a darn sight more clever than us, the 'aliens' are able to carry out their agenda without detection, and they are supported by a very powerful secret organisation. Sloan and her allies - Dr Ed Tate (Vincent Ventresca), Dr Walter Attwood (Larry Drake) and detective Ray Peterson (Frankie Faison) - attempt to act before it is too late, before the new species grow to significant numbers. And as Sloan enters into a relationship with FBI Agent Tom Daniels (Adam Storke), she discovers that the creatures are closer to home than she thought...

Prey originally began life as a pilot, starring Twin Peaks's Sherilyn Fenn as Sloan. For whatever reason, the first attempt did not sit well with the ABC net-work, and executive producer Charlie Craig was brought in to re-work the show with a partially new cast. "ABC was looking for, I guess, what they were calling science 'faction' shows," recalls Craig. "Shows that could actually happen. They made the pilot, and when that didn't work, I was on a deal at Warner Bros, and they brought me in."

One of Craig's first decisions was to make the series contemporary: the pilot was set in the year 2012, which he felt presented a distance between the story and the viewers. "The fact that it's taking place now, the fact that it could conceivably take place, makes it much more gripping," he insists. "It enables us to tap into the whole Invasion of the Body Snatchers theme. I think this show can make you frightened. If you can get scared in a believable way, then people are interested in coming back to that. I like making people feel like that could happen, because then that helps them feel the characters of these guys.

"As you go through these episodes, you begin to realise it's not just that you have to be wary of strangers, but you actually have to be wary of people you have known your whole life. They could have been altered to the extent that they are a member of the species now. People who were your best friends, could become one of them." The first episode, Existence, sets the scene and introduces Randall Lynch as a powerful nemesis for Sloan. Roger Howarth guest stars in the first three episodes, and proved so successful that the producer chose to bring him back later in the series.

"Roger Howarth is kind of the prototype bad guy," explains Craig, "who comes in for an arc of two or three episodes, and we learn certain things about him and the species, and then he moves on. Then we move on to another person who is completely different. It's like different bad guys representing different aspects of the new species' society or mental capabilities. We felt like we were sort of re-inventing the show every episode until we got about halfway through and had certain things well-established." Many critics were quick to dismiss Prey as the latest in a long line of doomed series which have attempted to ride the X-Files bandwagon, and indeed Craig has actually contributed to Chris Carter's brain-child - specifically the episode Oubliette. While both shows share dark themes, and Sloan is very much a product of the Dana Scully age, Prey soon establishes its own identity, and has scientific credibility on its side.

"The germ of this idea does derive from anthropological study," insists Craig, "as do a great many of the details that are laid out during the course of the episodes. It's all based on parallels to earlier parts of history. The Neanderthals and Homo Sapiens existed at the same time, and then Neanderthals disappeared. There are a lot of theories about why that happened, maybe climatic change, maybe Homo Sapiens were really pissed off and decided to take matters into their own hands. "It's an environmental message these guys are the result of bad things happening to our environment. In talking to anthropologists, they do say that the climatic change will bring about genetic changes within people.

"Like we say in the pilot, it would stem from 'a single genetic anomaly' that would bring about this next species. It would bring about a species more adaptable to rising temperatures, and that species would be the superior species. It's survival of the fittest, and they would be set up to survive better than we are." Carefully reared and nurtured by Craig and his team, Prey was let loose on the ABC network on January 15th 1998. Sadly, its timeslot was its downfall: Thursday nights, directly opposite Friends. The show made its debut to reasonably respectable figures, which gradually spiralled downwards, until ABC pulled it unceremoniously off the air and cancelled production. The remaining episodes were given another graveyard slot during the summer months, leaving fans to organise protest letters, and hope for a reprieve. Survival of the fittest, indeed.

WR. William Schmidt, Chris Levinson, Charlie Craig, Jeremy R. Littman, Laurence Andries, Donald Marcus, DIR. Jim Charleston, Winrich Kolbe, Peter O'Fallon, Dan Lerner, Stephen Cragg, Bill Corcoran, Jim Contner, Martha Mitchell, Ian Toynton, Vern Gillum, Terrence O'Hara.

EPISODES: 13 YEAR MADE: 1998 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

LARS THORWALD INC. / EDELSON PRODUCTIONS IN ASSOCIATION WITH WARNER BROTHERS

CREATOR: WILLIAM SCHMIDT

TYPE OF SHOW: MANKIND

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 60 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 13

DATE OF PREMIER: 15/01/1998 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 09/07/1998

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Dr. Walter Attwood LARRY DRAKE, Detective Ray Peterson FRANKIE FAISON, Dr. Sloan Parker DEBRA MESSING, Tom Daniels ADAM STORKE, Dr. Ed Tate VINCENT VENTRESCA, Randall Lynch ROGER HOWARTH, Lewis JAMES MORRISON.

RELATED SHOWS:

X FILES, THE

MILLENNIUM

1 - 1 EXISTENCE

A new species, resembling humans, is intent in dominating the Earth.

Wr William Schmidt

Dir Peter O'Fallon

1 - 2 DISCOVERY

Sloan searches for more of the new species but only finds more things to puzzle her.

Wr Chris Levinson

Dir Dan Lerner

1 - 3 PURSUIT

While learning more about the new species, Sloan gains Tom's trust, but endangers his life.

Wr Laurence Andries

Dir Stephen Cragg

1 - 4 ORIGINS

Ed and Tom learn the origins of the dominant species.

Wr Donald Marcus

Dir Bill Corcoran

1 - 5 REVELATIONS

A mysterious artefact is discovered which conceals information on the Dominants' past and future.

Wr Laurence Andries, Chris Levinson

Dir Jim Charleston

1 - 6 INFILTRATIONS

A reporter who knows too much about the Dominators is in danger.

Wr Charlie Craig, Jeremy R. Littman

Dir Winrich Kolbe

1 - 7 TRANSFORMATIONS

Sloan and Tom hold Lisa captive, while Attwood's government contact take over the world.

Wr Donald Marcus

Dir James A. Contner

1 - 8 VEIL

After Tom's mind is reprogrammed he is ordered to kill Sloan and the others.

Wr Charlie Craig, Jeremy R. Littman

Dir Martha Mitchell

1 - 9 COLLABORATION

A lethal experiment is performed on a school full of children.

Wr Laurence Andries, Chris Levinson

Dir Ian Toynton

1 - 10 SLEEPER

Sloan and Ed are compelled to work with the Dominants.

Wr Donald Marcus

Dir Vern Gillum

1 - 11 VENGEANCE

A dangerous rouge dominant, believed by Sloan to be dead, returns seeking revenge.

Wr Laurence Andries

Dir Bill Corcoran

1 - 12 PROGENY

Tom and Sloan set out to investigate an extremely violent youth.

Wr Donald Marcus

Dir Terrence O'Hara

1 - 13 DELIVERANCE PART 1

Ed tries to convert Tom's DNA to human.

Wr Charlie Craig, Jeremy R. Littman

Dir Bill Corcoran

PRIKLYUCHENIYA ELEKTRONIKAAKA: ADVENTURES OF THE ELECTRONIC, THE

Professor Gromov constructs a robot called Electronic, which looks exactly like Sergey Syroezhkibn, a 6-grader from one of Moscows schools. The robot also acts a lot like a human, and its dream is to become a real man. Electronic escapes from the professor's lab and accidentally meets Sergey, his prototype. Meanwhile, a gang lead by Stump is trying to kidnap Electronic to make him steal pictures from museums. For this purpose they send their hitman Urrie.

I think this is one of the best KIDS movies that were ever made in Russia. I am not a kid anymore but still like to watch it time to time. As far as the quality goes it was pretty advanced for that time. The plot is well prepared and the actors are perfect. The Idea of the movie is great and it very petty that there is no sequel to the movie. Some time ago I was able to get a brand new set of DVD with remastered Video and sound. I was very pleased to see that. My kid who is 5 years old and was raised mostly on American cartoons and movies was watching it with me and liked it a lot. He said it was funny enough for him to enjoy it.

WR.DIR.*EPISODES: 0 YEAR MADE: 1979 COUNTRY: SVU SEASONS: 1*CROSTELERADIO, ODESSA FILM STUDIOS.CREATOR: YEVGENI VELTISTOV (NOVEL)TYPE OF SHOW: CRIMEFORMAT: MINI-SERIESLENGTH (MINS): 215 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG:*SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1)DATE OF PREMIER:*AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE*SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:*FILMS:

YURI TORSUYEV , VLADIMIR TORSUYEV , VASILI SKROMNY , OXANA ALEXEYEVA , MAXIM KALININ , DMITRI MAXIMOV , YEVGENI LIVSHITS , VALERIYA SOLUYAN , VLADIMIR BASOV , NIKOLAI KARACHENTSOV , NIKOLAI GRINKO , YELIZAVETA NIKISCHIKHINA , YEVGENI VESNIK (I) , MAYA BULGAKOVA , NIKOLAI BOYARSKY , ROZA MAKAGONOVA , OXANA FANDERA , YURI CHERNOV , LEV PERFILOV.

PRIMEVAL

Strange creatures are appearing in the Forest of Dean, creatures that by right should not exist in our time. Professor Nick Cutter together with a team of misfit scientists go into the forest and discover dinosaurs, some friendly and some not so friendly. They eventually come across a strange time portal sitting in the forest, after a young boy peers into it and discovers that it is a portal to prehistoric Earth. Nick believes that his wife must have past through a similar portal years previously after she disappeared without a trace.

Primeval is a British science fiction drama television programme produced by Impossible Pictures for ITV. First broadcast in early 2007. Also Karl Theobald who starred in Green Wing and Naomi Bentley who is best known for her role as Shelley in The Mark of Cain will be joining the current cast for Series 2.

The series follows a team of scientists who investigate anomalies in time and deal with the ancient creatures that come through, although they are not always prehistoric. The team of five is led by Professor Nick Cutter, a palaeontologist determined to find his wife who disappeared while investigating an anomaly in the Forest of Dean, England eight years previously.

The series was created by Adrian Hodges, who wrote the majority of the scripts, and Tim Haines of Impossible Pictures. It was produced by Haines and Cameron McAllister. Primeval features film-quality 2D & 3D special effects by London effects house Framstore CFC. It previously had the working title Primaeval.

Episode one was first broadcast in UK on ITV on 10 February, 2007 at 7:45pm. The episode was shown on Hong Kong TV channel TVB Pearl on 14 February 2007, only four days after the UK premiere. The series also began to air on April 4, 2007, in Canada where it has been licensed by the channel SPACE. It has also been licensed by the Australian network and premiered on 28 April 2007 on Channel Nine, the New Zealand network TV2 on 11 July 2007, and by the Spanish network Cuatro;^[7] it will air on these some time in 2007. Dutch TV channel Tien started to broadcast the series on March 22, 2007. It was announced that HBO Latin America acquired the show. German TV channel Pro7 started to broadcast the series on June 4, 2007.

ITV previously produced Prehistoric Park, a programme with the similar premise of the main characters travelling back to the time of the dinosaurs (or even earlier).

The opening theme song was made expressly for the show, whilst the closing theme song is All Sparks by Editors although on the DVD it is changed back to the show's opening theme.

Filming locations

The series was filmed partly at Pinewood Studios and these locations:

London Underground

Whipsnade Zoo

Canary Islands

Black Park, Buckinghamshire

Outside the Nurse's Home at the now-closed Queen Elizabeth Hospital (on Hackney Road, London E2, UK).

Outside the Toyota head office in Epsom

Inside Victoria House, 37-63 Southampton Row, London WC1B 4DA

Around the college CEME (Centre for Engineering and Mechanical Excellence), Marsh Way, Rainham, Essex, RM13 8EU .

At the New Den Stadium, home of Millwall FC (although apparently the Matchroom Stadium, home of Leyton Orient FC, according to the official website

Thorpe Park, will be included in the second series.

[edit] Reception

"Episode One" was viewed by 6.7 million people, a 29% share of the available audience. "Episode Two" was viewed by 5.9 million people, a 27.5% share of the available audience. When shown in Germany it gained a total audience of 2.78 million viewers.

The show's creators deny that Primeval is a clone of Doctor Who, which is famous for its use of time travel. In an interview, Douglas Henshall stated it was different as Primeval is an ensemble piece which deals with what problems come to them. In another interview, Andrew-Lee Potts stated similarly. While this is different from the time travelling pair in Doctor Who its spin off, Torchwood, has a similar premise to Primeval. Torchwood is set in modern day Cardiff and the team cope with threats that come to the city through a rift in space-time. Both teams also have pet prehistoric reptiles, a Pterodactyl in Torchwood, and Rex the Coelurosauravus in Primeval.

Produced by Danielle Brandon .. Line producer & Cameron McAllister .. Producer , Original Music by Dominik Scherrer , Cinematography by Jake Polonsky & Adam Suschitzky

Film Editing by Nick Arthurs & Adam Recht

Casting by Jill Trevellick

Costume Design by Joey Attawia

Makeup Department - Jan Sewell .. Makeup designer

Production Management - Beewan Athwal .. Post-production supervisor

Second Unit Director or Assistant Director - Marios Hamboulides .. First assistant director: second unit , Jon Older .. First assistant director (episodes 4, 5 and 6)

Art Department - Vince Ball .. Stand-by carpenter , Tony Chance .. Storyboard artist , Andy Grogan .. Production buyer , Ian Murray .. Stand-by rigger.

Sound Department - Joanne Dunphy .. Boom operator , Peter Eusebe .. Boom operator , Richard Finney .. Boom operator , Stuart Hilliker .. Sound mixer , Steve Parr .. Music mixer , Steve Parr .. Music recordist , John Rodda .. Sound mixer , Alexandros Sidiropoulos .. Foley recordist and editor
Lee Walpole .. Supervising sound editor .

Special Effects by Steve Scotton .. Special effects technician & Colin Shulver .. Sculptor

Visual Effects by Mark Stuart Bailey .. Lead technical director , Helen Bunker .. Composer , Ronan Carr Fanning .. Digital modeller , Scott Chambers .. Digital compositor , Arantxa Claudio .. Digital modeller , Luke Drummond .. Digital compositor , James Farrington .. Lead animator (2006) , Piers Hampton .. Visual effects producer , Carl Jackson .. Matchmove artist: Framestore CFC , Marc Jones .. Matchmove artist , Christian Manz .. Visual effects supervisor , Dan McRae .. Paint and rotoscope artist , Bruce Nelson .. Composer: Framestore CFC , Sam Osborne .. Paint and roto artist
Donald Pan .. Digital modeller , Steve Parsons .. Composer , Cristina Puente .. Composer: Framestore CFC , Nigel Rafter .. Animator , Nicholas David Reed .. 3D roto and matchmover (2006) , Romain Bivar Segurado .. Lead modeller , Giuliano Dionisio Vigano' .. Digital compositor , Kate Windibank .. Lead compositor , Tim Young .. Digital compositor: Framestore CFC

Camera and Electrical Department - Philip Coleman . Grip: second unit , Ran Geffen . Assistant camera , Tristan Haley . Clapper loader , Rupert Hornstein . Focus puller: "a" camera , Tobias Marshall . Camera trainee , Xandy Sahla . Camera operator: "a" camera , Xandy Sahla . Steadicam operator , Sally Wright . Camera trainee

Other crew - Simon Giblin . On-line editor , Richard Hammarton . Orchestrator: score (2006) , Ian Johnson . Assistant editor , Angela King . Animator (2006-2007) , Sarah McBryde . Production coordinator , Angus Moncrieff . Orchestrator , Sophie Moss . Assistant coordinator , Hanh Nguyen . Editor trainee , Ann Ormesher . Accounts trainee , Patrick Schweitzer . Location manager , Henry Woolley . Location manager.

WR. Bev Doyle , Adrian Hodges , Richard Kurti , Chris Lang

DIR. Jamie Payne, Cilla Ware

EPISODES: 13 YEAR MADE: 2007 COUNTRY: GB SEASONS: 2

IMPOSSIBLE PRODUCTIONS/ITV

CREATOR: ADRIAN HODGES, TIM HAINES

TYPE OF SHOW: TIME TRAVELFORMAT: SERIESLENGTH (MINS): 60 STILL IN PRODUCTION: Yes B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: EnglishSEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 6, (2) 7DATE OF PREMIER: 10/02/2007AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE*SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:*FILMS:

Professor Nick Cutter DOUGLAS HENSHALL, Claudia Brown LUCY BROWN, Connor Temple ANDREW LEE POTTS, Abby Maitland HANNAH SPEARRITT, James Lester BEN MILLER, Stephen Hardy JAMES MURRAY, JULIE AUDREY, Special Forces ROGAN GRANT.

1 - 1 EPISODE 1

Professor Nick Cutter is investigating the sighting of a dinosaur, apparently. A species which has been extinct for 200 million years. With his team, they travel to the region where it was sighted to explain how it appeared. However, as they investigate the dinosaur, a weird creature seemed to be killing anything on its path.

Wr Adrian HodgesDir Cilla Ware1 - 2 EPISODE 2

In the London Underground, a cleaner is fatally bitten by a gigantic spider, and Nick Cutter's team investigate. In their search, they come across a maze of unused tunnels, leading to an even scarier event.

Wr Adrian HodgesDir Cilla Ware1 - 3 EPISODE 3

Swimming pools, inner-city reservoirs, and flooded cellars in suburban homes are being overtaken with prehistoric reptiles, which have all come through the space-time anomalies. The gang go to investigate, but Nick is more concerned with finding his wife.

Wr Adrian HodgesDir Cilla Ware1 - 4 EPISODE 4

Nick discovers that a group of dodos are carrying a deadly ancient parasite that could have devastating consequences for the human population. Meanwhile, Helen is back in the 21st century, and being interviewed by the Home Office, although she isn't being as cooperative as they hoped.

Wr Bev Doyle, Richard KurtiDir Jamie Payne1 - 5 EPISODE 5

A prehistoric winged reptile arrives through an aerial time rift on a golf course. Nick goes to investigate, but he ends up trapped in a house with Claudia. Elsewhere, Connor loses Rex, much to Abby's anger.

Wr Chris LangDir Jamie Payne1 - 6 EPISODE 6

Helen returns and claims that a predator from the future is behind a number of disappearances, so Helen and her estranged husband join together on a desperate race through time to prevent further attacks.

Wr Adrian HodgesDir Adrian Hodges2 - 1 EPISODE 7

While Cutter tries to make sense of Claudia's disappearance, another anomaly appears. Raptors are running wild through a shopping centre, and the team are called in to sort out the problem.

Wr Adrian HodgesDir Jamie Payne2 - 2 EPISODE 8

Bizarre shaped giant worms, some of which are large enough to consume a human are moving around in a strange fog.

Wr Adrian Hodges

Dir Andrew Gunn

2 - 3 EPISODE 9

The team investigates an anomaly that has opened in a theme park, and are on the chase of a vicious sabre-toothed tiger.

Wr Richard Kurti, Bev Doyle

Dir Jamie Payne

2 - 4 EPISODE 10

A group of creatures called the mer slip into the city's canal system after floodwaters pour through an anomaly to the future.

Wr Bev Doyle, Richard Kurti

Dir Jamie Payne

2 - 5 EPISODE 11

Giant scorpions are terrorising the team, and they find themselves in serious trouble.

Wr Richard Kurti, Bev Doyle

Dir Jamie Payne

2 - 6 EPISODE 12

A woolly mammoth rampages across the M25 motorway.

2 - 7 EPISODE 13

The team have to deal with the return of the future predator along with other creatures.

PRIN PRINAKA: PRIN PRIN MONOGATARI

As a baby, Prin Prin (Ishikawa) was found floating in the sea in a box that also contained a monkey and a crown. Rescued by a fisherman from Arutoko City (i.e. "Somewhere City"), she spends her childhood there. After 15 years, she realizes that she is really a princess from a distant land and set out in search of it. Her companions include BonBon (Kamiya), Osage (Hase), Kaseijin (Hori) and a monkey called Monkey.

So begins a puppet show that mixed the fairy tale odyssey of Sun Wukong with the sci-fi antics of AERIAL CITY 008, infamous for its fearless inclusion of numerous satirical twists. In one notorious episode, the arms dealer Langer offers a free holiday to a high-level official if he agrees to buy a consignment of Gucci missiles - a parody of the Lockheed scandal in which politicians including former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka took kickbacks for promoting Lockheed aircraft.

Another episode satirized the Middle East, in particular the ongoing Iran-Iraq war, by depicting three countries that were eternally at war with each other. One of the serial's best-loved characters was General Ruchi of Atata, a man with a giant head and an IQ of 1300. He dominated the show for six months, before revealing that he is an alien (as if you couldn't guess!) and "escaping on a meteorite".

Compare to HAKKENDEN and STAR FLEET. Note the presence of Akira Kamiya as one of the voices, better known in the anime world as City Hunter.

WR. Toru Ishiyama

DIR.

EPISODES: 656 YEAR MADE: 1979 COUNTRY: JAP SEASONS: 1

NHK

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: FANTASY

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 15 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: Japanese

SEASON BREAKDOWN:

DATE OF PREMIER: 02/04/1979

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 19/03/1982

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

 Prin Prin HITOMI ISHIKAWA, Bonbon AKIRA KAMIYA, Kaseijin AYAKO HORI, Osage SANJI HASE.

RELATED SHOWS:

STARFLEET

AERIAL CITY 008

PRISONER, THE

It began innocently enough. A government employee abruptly resigns from his top-secret job. He goes home and is seen packing, apparently for a holiday. Suddenly gas hisses through the keyhole and he loses consciousness. He awakes apparently in the same room, but when he looks out of the window he sees the strange, beautiful landscape of The Village. Abducted by persons unknown, he has become The Prisoner.

Immediately the questions are thrown up. Where is this Village? Who runs it and why? It's a self-contained community with its own shops, a cafe, a labour exchange, and an old folks' home. It has its own radio and television service and its own newspaper, The Tally Ho. But its telephones only allow local calls and its taxis won't leave the village limits.

The village is full of people who used to work for various governments and who had access to classified information. Some help run the place, others are prisoners like himself. But everyone has a number. The Prisoner is told he is Number Six. At the head of the visible hierarchy is Number Two, served by an ever-present mute dwarf butler. But Number Two is answerable to the unseen authority of Number One.

As to why he is there, that becomes chillingly clear from the outset. The authorities want 'information', in particular, they want to know why he resigned. Successive Number Twos try every technique available, from drugs, brainwashing, torture, psychological warfare, even dream manipulation, to find out. Meanwhile, The Prisoner is seeking answers of his own -including the identity of Number One. Above all, though, he wants to escape - a task made hard by constant electronic surveillance, and harder still by 'Rover', a bizarre large white balloon that hunts down and retrieves errant inmates.

The series becomes a cat-and-mouse battle with The Prisoner initially thwarted at each turn but refusing to submit and gradually gaining the upper hand until, in a riot of surreal chaos, he finally escapes . . . from his physical prison, at least.

'The series was posing the question, "Has one the right to tell a man what to think, how to behave, to coerce others? Has one the right to be an individual?"'
(Patrick McGoohan)

One of the most enigmatic and talked-about series ever, The Prisoner overturned the conventions of television drama by challenging its unsuspecting audience to think on more than one simple level.

It was devised by Patrick McGoohan who was its star and its executive producer. He also shared in the writing and direction. It was his series. Before it began he said: 'If people don't like it, there's only one person to blame - me!' Faced with something that was part spy thriller, part fantasy, part allegory, many people found the effort too much and remained angry, frustrated and confused by the absence of quick, easy answers. But for daring to be different, The Prisoner won a passionate cult status that has remained unshakeable for more than 20 years.

What did it all mean? Certainly, the series could be viewed, on a limited level, as a story of an imprisoned secret agent, but it's the deeper issues raised and the wider meanings sought that have given it its enduring appeal. The series was a persuasive defence of a man's right to assert his individuality in the face of an increasingly conformist society, and the declaration 'I am not a number, I am a free man!' its most passionate slogan.

The series also explored themes of education, democracy, misuse of power, psychiatry, drugs and violence. And ultimately it posed the premise that everyone is a prisoner of his or her self, hemmed in by our own weaknesses. In the final episode, The Prisoner 'unmasks' Number One who stands, fleetingly, revealed as himself, the enemy within.

The Prisoner was McGoohan's follow up to the long-running Danger Man, and much speculation centred on whether Number Six was the same character, John Drake. Prisoner script editor George Markstein said it was,

McGoohan said it wasn't. Others have suggested that The Prisoner was McGoohan's way of `resigning' from his previous job . . .

The main location, "the village", was Portmeirion, a North Wales resort on Cardigan Bay, where Bertrand Russell, George Bernard Shaw, and Noel Coward used to relax. This is most appropriate, as the intelligent scripts combined the twisted mathematical logic of Bertrand "Principia Mathematica" Russell (once jailed for antiwar activism), the vegetarian iconoclast playwright Shaw, and the zany musical ironies of Noel Coward -- Disch's choreography of "Dem Bones" had to be seen to be believed.

The brainchild of its star Patrick McGoohan, The Prisoner is one of the most enigmatic TV series ever produced.

The central character in the series, played by McGoohan, is known only as Number 6. Number 6 was a former secret agent who, after resigning from an unnamed British intelligence agency, finds himself kidnapped and taken to a place known only as the Village. The Village is a nice small village that is totally isolated from the rest of the world (actually the resort of Portmeirion in Wales) and which he can not leave. There are phones which make only local calls and taxis which will not leave the Village's boundaries. Almost everyone there is known simply by a number, and those that do not have numbers known by titles such as The General. Some of the people there are also prisoners like Number 6, others help run the place. Number 6 has no way of knowing who is who. It is explained to Number 6 that he knows too much to be allowed to stay in the outside world, also the reasons for his resignation need to be known.

The Village's chief administrator is known as Number 2. Number 1 is the person who is ultimately in charge but he is not seen. Through the course of the series a plethora of Number 2s (they were replaced on a fairly regular basis) attempt to find out why Number 6 resigned, their methods ranged from elaborate con games to dream manipulation. Number 6, meanwhile spent all of his time either attempting to escape from the Village or undermining the authority there. His escape attempts always prove fruitless due to the Village's advanced security system which includes: constant surveillance of all the citizens and huge plastic balls known as rovers which can kill any potential escapee. While Number 6 is never able to escape, he does manage to have some victories since he never does reveal the reasons for his resignation.

The series' final two episodes, Once Upon a Time and Fall Out, attempt to answer many of the questions raised by the series. Both however are a bit confusing, leaving more new questions unanswered. McGoohan made The Prisoner after completing work on the highly popular Danger Man (aka: Secret Agent) series in which he played British secret agent John Drake. Although it is never stated, it is often assumed that Number 6 is John Drake.

A fleeting reference to Drake in one episode tends to support this theory, however in another episode Number 6 refers to himself as Peter Smith. NOTES: The episodes are listed in original UK broadcast order, which is not the order in which they were 'meant' to be seen. The order they are meant to be seen is in brackets. This is the one in which the episodes have been numbered for release on pre-recorded video tape and also the order in which CBS first ran the episodes in the summer of 1968 (with the exception of Living in Harmony which CBS chose not to run). When the episodes were rerun on CBS in 1990 it was with the addition of a synthesised stereo soundtrack.

The series executive producer was Patrick McGoohan (except for Eps. 14,15, 17), the producer was David Tomblin and script editor was George Markstein (Eps. 1-12, 16). The director of photography was Brendan J. Stafford and the theme was created by Ron Grainer. The series was filmed at MGM studios, Borehamwood and on location at Portmeirion, North Wales. The air dates given are for the ATV Midlands region. The first US premiere for the series was on the 1st June 1968. The production managers were Bernard Williams (1-12 & 16) and Ronald Liles (13-15, 17). The camera operators were Jack Lowin (1-12, 16) and Len Harris (13-15, 17), the assistant directors were Gino Marotta (1-6, 8-17), Ernie Morris (7) and Ernie Lewis (13).

The art director was Jack Shampon, the set dressers were Kenneth Bridgeman (1-12, 16), John Lageu (14, 15, 17) and Colin Southcott (13). The wardrobe was Dora Lloyd (13-15, 17) and Masada Wilmot (1-12, 16). The music was by Albert Elms (3,4,6, 16) and Library Music. The casting director was Rose Tobias Shaw.

The Prisoner demonstrated that an on going series could tell unusual stories that were entertaining and captivating. Number Six demonstrated that the only prisoners were those in the audience who had been held captive by the narrow possibilities presented in typical prime-time fare. Born in New York on March 19, 1928 (also the birth date given by Number Six!), and raised in Ireland, Patrick McGoohan was already a star in Great Britain and known in America by the time The Prisoner made its television debut. McGoohan had achieved this prominence as the star of Danger Man (known in the United States as Secret Agent), which had premiered in Britain in September 1960, thus actually predating the screen appearance of James Bond! In the fifty-four episodes of Secret Agent, McGoohan had played John Drake, an operative in the employ of NATO. Unlike Bond, Drake (largely at McGoohan's insistence) was not cavalier in his attitude toward women, violence, or his job. A real gentleman, Drake did not do in his foes in the thrill of victory. He was a real professional, and one who believed in fair play. Drake also had his share of high-tech gadgetry and pretty women. However, Drake kept his professional cool and, unlike Bond, did not take advantage of any woman who took a fancy to him, perhaps breaking as many hearts as Bond but doing it like a real gentleman, and for truly gentlemanly reasons.

After a run as a half-hour show in 1960 and 1961, Secret Agent went off the air only to return as an hour-long series in 1965 and 1966. (It was the hour version that achieved a good bit of success across the pond in the USA.) But McGoochan soon became tired of the limited creative possibilities of doing a spy series, which was, by this time, only one among countless post-Bond espionage tales in practically every medium. Fortunately, he had enough star power that he was given free rein by Lew Grade, and he developed The Prisoner, which premiered in Britain in 1967 (and which made obscure ripples in a late summertime replacement slot on CBS in 1968).

The Prisoner series began, appropriately enough, with "Arrival." In a brief montage, the world (and public image) of a man who seems to be John Drake is turned quickly upside down. For unknown reasons, an angry McGoochan storms into the secret headquarters of some London-based organisation, resigns, and drives, grim-faced, back to his home and begins to pack for a journey. His travel plans are interrupted when a gas is pumped into his apartment, rendering him unconscious, and when he awakes it is to find himself in the Village. A strange place, with oddly cheerful people, it is located, on a map the as-yet-unnamed McGoochan character obtains, simply between the mountains and the sea—which are called just that, "The Mountains" and "The Sea," on the utterly useless map!

Given an apartment, he receives a call on his phone (numbered "six") and is invited out to breakfast, where he meets first The Butler and then Number Two (Guy Doleman). He learns that someone wants to know all the things he knows, beginning with the reason for his resignation. He resists Number Two's interrogation and also defies the number he has been assigned—although, oddly, Number Six never attempts to counter his numbering by ever using his real name!

Number Six discovers the eerie quality of the Village, with its seemingly happy inhabitants, all of whom are prisoners like himself. (Most insidiously, canned Muzak is played throughout the Village all day!) He witnesses Rover, the balloonlike watchdog device of the Village, fatally foil an attempted escape. Number Six begins to seek a way out himself, but encounters surveillance everywhere, and is hospitalised after a run-in with Rover. Here he meets another prisoner, named Cobb, who involves him in an elaborate escape plan—which ultimately proves to be a set-up intended to demonstrate to Number Six the futility of trying to get away.

In "The Chimes of Big Ben" we encounter a different Number Two, portrayed this time around by Leo McKern (later known for his role as Rumpole of the Bailey). Apparently there is a high turnover in the job. This Number Two, like his predecessor, tries to discover Number Six's reason for resigning. This Number Two is a cheery, philosophical fellow; the plot involves yet another escape attempt by Number Six which takes him all the way back to his London flat—or does it? Even his former superiors seem to be in on the deception, which just under-scores the supposition that it was they who engineered his kidnapping.

In "A, B and C," Number Six is subjected to a dream control experiment. Yet another Number Two (Colin Gordon) has a pet theory that Number Six resigned because he was about to sell secrets, and has Number Fourteen use a drug of her own design, along with other techniques, to re-create in Number Six's mind a party he attended in Paris shortly before his resignation. Who-suspects A, B, or C—was he going to sell his important papers to? But even under sedation, Number Six's will subtly warps the course of these experiments—and by the time of his third session, he is onto what's happening and manages to stay conscious and really throw a wrench into the scenario. The "papers" turn out to have been travel pamphlets—whatever Number Six's reason for quitting, he was not selling out or defecting, but he did plan to take a decent vacation after his resignation. "Free for All," written and directed by McGoochan, involves Number Six in a "democratic" election for the post of Number Two (Eric Portman, this time around). Of course this is all a sham; the skeptical Number Six reluctantly takes part. True, he actually "wins" the office of Number Two, only to discover, when he tells all the Villagers that they are free, that they don't even realise that they are prisoners; the Village, to them, is an illusion of freedom.

"The Schizoid Man" faces Number Six with a truly diabolical scheme to break him. Number Twelve (twelve being the double of six) is altered to look exactly like Number Six. Then, Number Six is subjected to various reconditioning so that such aspects as his right-handedness and other habits are changed. He is then treated as if he is Number Twelve, a trusted Villager, and he is enlisted by Number Two (Anton Rodgers) to aid in the effort to break a most troublesome newcomer—Number Six!

The real Number Six's efforts to prove that he is the real Number Six are subverted by becoming part of the process by which the Village is pretending to attempt to break the false Number Six—the real item can't even assert his own identity without col-laborating, on another level, with his enemies! Ultimately, he manages to turn the tables so that, once Rover kills the real Number Twelve (in other words, the false Number Six-confusing, isn't it?), Number Two thinks he's the other Six. A simple slip clues Number Two in, but he lets Number Six go, only to return him immediately, revealing to Number Six and the audience that there is still no escape. In "The General,' Number Six tries to stop an insidious speed-learning process which is actually a mind control technique. Even the professor who invented it has had second thoughts and tried to escape. Ultimately, the general of the title turns out to be the computer behind the whole thing, which Number Six manages to destroy through largely philosophical means.

In "Many Happy Returns,' Number Six awakes to find the Village deserted and all its functions- water, power, et cetera-terminated. Unobserved (except by a cat), he fashions a boat and sails away, finally hitching a ride with some contentious gun-runners, and makes his way back to London, arriv-ing the day before his birthday. Here, his former superiors (different from the ones portrayed in "The Chimes of Big Ben") agree, after much consideration of his story, to help him try to find the Village. He also finds his apartment occupied by a Mrs. Butterworth, who lends him the use of his own car and promises to bake him a cake for his birthday. Ultimately, Six is betrayed again, and he winds up back in the Village-but Mrs. Butterworth does keep her promise to him, and waltzes into his Village apartment with the cake.

"Dance of the Dead,' originally second in the series but aired later in the run, finds the newly arrived Number Six on trial for violating the rules of the Village-rules he and no one else in the Village have ever been informed of. "Do Not Forsake Me Oh My Darling" takes Number Six back out of the Village. In London, former superiors (again differ-ent!) are wondering what happened to him when he vanished a year earlier; before he resigned he'd been on the trail of a Professor Seltzman, leaving only some seemingly innocuous holiday photos. Seltzman had been working on a mind-transfer machine . . . and back in the Village, Number Six has his mind switched into a colonel's body with one of these devices and is sent to resume the quest for the professor. Back in London again, he must convince his for-mer associates, and his fiancée, that he is who he says he is, as well as finding his quarry. He and Seltzman are ultimately taken back to the Village, where Seltzman sets matters aright, but actually pulls a three-way switch: Number Six gets his own body back, but the colonel has his mind switched into Seltzman's body, a fact Number Two (Clifford realises only after he's sent the "colonel" Evans) away after a job well done!

As if to make up for the lack of a Number Two in "Many Happy Returns," the episode "It's Your Funeral" features two of them, a retiring Number Two, and his stand-in/heir apparent. Number Six, meanwhile, gets involved with the Jammers, rebellious Villagers who annoy their watchers by openly planning escapes and other radical acts but never actually committing them; the plots of known Jammers are thus ignored by the powers--that-be. Number Six discovers that some of them are actually planning to assassinate the old Number Two, and that the incoming Number Two is behind it; the scheme is yet another Village device, which will provide an excuse to punish the Villagers, something Number Six swears to stop. In "Checkmate' Number Six engineers a mass escape but fails when his co-conspirators come to believe that he is one of their jailers and that the plot is a test of their loyalty.

"Living in Harmony" dispenses with the usual episode opening; instead, it's told as a Western, with Number Six as a resigning sheriff who is abducted and taken to a town called Harmony. Number Two (David Bauer) appears as the town's judge, with the kid (Alexis Kanner), later revealed to be Number Eight, as his crazed enforcer. The usual efforts are given a twist: the sheriff has for-sworn his guns, and the efforts to break him take the form of trying to force him to kill. Ultimately, Number Six overcomes this drug-induced situa-tion, finds himself in a deserted Western set with cardboard cut out characters, and returns to the Village, where the failed drama spills over into reality.

When The Prisoner was first shown in the United States in 1968, this episode was left out-although one was able to see it on a Canadian TV station at the time. It's unknown whether this was left out because there was one episode too many to run in the summer season, or because the network feared viewers would be confused by the fact that the episode lacked the familiar opening title sequence. "A Change of Mind" finds Number Six ostracized by the Village for "unmutual" behavior. He is then tricked into thinking that he has undergone a behavior altering brain operation, when he is actually only being drugged, a fact he eventually works out. Ultimately he turns the tables on this episode's Number Two (John Sharpe), who is himself declared "unmutual" and hounded out of the Village back into the control bunker.

"Hammer into Anvil" features the nastiest Number Two on record (Patrick Cargill) as well as Number Six's most personal vendetta against anyone to hold that post. The catalyst is Number Seventy-Three, a woman who has attempted suicide to escape the Village. Having failed, she is interrogated by the cruel Number Two; the Village wants to know where her husband is, but she refuses, and jumps out of a hospital window to her death. Number Six witnesses this and sets out to destroy this Number Two; he begins to act as if he's involved in some sort of conspiracy.

His meaningless gestures are interpreted as such by Number Two, and the inability of Number Two's underlings to get to the bottom of this non-existent plot leads him first to suspect them all of complicity, and ultimately into utter paranoia. Finally, he comes to believe that Number Six is a Village plant sent to test him; having failed, he begs Six to turn him in, but Six forces one final humiliation on him and forces Number Two to call Number One himself. Revenge for Number Seventy Three is thus complete.

"The Girl 4Who Was Death" was Patrick McGoohan's slap at British viewers who com-plained about the complexity and obscurity of The Prisoner and complained about wanting shows more reminiscent of the old John Drake days. It is a wild, funny, and rather silly parody of spy action plots (with a nod, perhaps, to the sly attitude of The Avengers) which does not turn out to be another drug-induced or dream scenario designed to break Number Six but is merely a story that he had been reading to a group of Village children (with Number Two and his assistant as the heavies). The tip-off comes at the end, when Number Six looks into a surveillance camera and says "Good-night, children . . . everywhere." Although he's talking to Number Two, who hoped he'd drop his guard among children, he's also addressing those viewers whom he's just coddled by giving them a sly taste of the kind of show they were able to understand better than the usual symbol-laden Prisoner episode.

"Once Upon a Time" began the end of the series. Number Two (Leo McKern) is back and determined to break Number Six, and gets Number One to decree "absolute degree." The Village focuses all its powers on Number Six; everyone else is cleared out except Two, Six, and The Butler. A detailed synopsis would take many pages but it all boils down to Two taking Six back through his life but finding him a tough nut to crack from childhood on up. Their one-on-one battle of wits grows truly intense; this Number Two, a genial fellow in his first appearance, becomes more and more frenzied. The dead-line arrives with Number Six unbroken, and Number Two drops dead. Rather than "power to the people," a popular slogan of the time, The Prisoner advocated the power of the individual.

Confounded enough by the previous episode, viewers found "Fall Out" hard to take. The dead Number Two is revived; Number Six is declared an individual but is obviously expected to co-operate on some other higher level, and he actually escapes-but to what? If you haven't seen this episode it would be unfair to detail all its riches in a synopsis, but if it baffled you when you saw it, per-haps Patrick McGoohan himself could shed some light on this episode and on The Prisoner series as a whole.

In 1977, Patrick McGoohan was interviewed on Canadian television and he spoke freely and can-didly about the origins of The Prisoner, what it all meant, what he intended, and if sometimes more is read into a scene or idea than was initially intended. Never seen on American television, this was quite possibly the only lengthy and detailed interview ever done with him on this subject. Whereas he had been questioned about it in previous interviews, he had seemed reluctant to give away the show's "secrets," perhaps because it was much more recent then. At the time of the Canadian interview, nearly ten years had passed since the series aired and even public television stations were airing episodes and afterward pontificating on what it all meant.

The Prisoner has become the most controversial series to appear on television just by the very virtue of the fact that it took advantage of the medium to stretch itself into corners and concepts never before explored on the living room screen. Using the time- honoured literary staples of allusion, symbolism, and allegory, it sought to comment on our structured and ordered society by creating an artificial setting that was even more structured and ordered. When it was first run in the U.S. in the summer of 1968, and then repeated a year later, it was greeted with amazement, and not a little disbelief. Some people honestly couldn't tell if it was fish or fowl. Even a simple comment on the obvious social commentary of the phrase "I am not a number, I am a free man" could be greeted by the opinion that such a view was reading too much into what was really only a television show. Time has shown it to be much more than that. Many myths have been built up around the show, including references to un-produced scripts and a series longer than merely seventeen episodes. But as Patrick McGoohan tells it, quite the opposite was true.

He had made fifty-four episodes of Secret Agent (which has also been run under the title Danger Man), and was tired of that and looking for some-thing else to go on to. The financial backer of the series, Sir Lew Grade, was unhappy with McGoohan's wish to quit but finally asked him what he wanted to do instead. "I had a whole format prepared," McGoohan explained, "which initially came from one of the places on Secret Agent. It was a place called Portmeirion, where a great deal of it was shot, and I thought it was an extraordinary place architec-turally and atmosphere wise. I thought it should be used for something. That was two years before the concept came to me. So I prepared it and I went to see Lew Grade. I had photographs of the village, whatever, and a format, and he said, I don't want to read the format because he doesn't read formats."

"He said he doesn't read apart from accounts. And he sort of said, 'What's it about? Tell me.' So I talked for ten minutes and he stopped me and said, 'I don't understand one word you're talking about, but how much is it going to be?' So I had a budget with me, oddly enough, and I told him how much and he said, 'When can you start?' I said Monday on the script, and he said, 'The money will be in your com-pany's account on Monday morning; and that's how we started.' Initially, McGoohan only wanted to do The Prisoner as a miniseries of seven episodes. "I thought that the concept of the thing would sustain for only seven. But then Lew Grade wanted to make his sale to CBS, I believe, and he said he couldn't make a sale unless he had more, and he wanted twenty-six. I couldn't conceive of twenty-six stories because it would be spreading it very thin, but we did manage, over the weekend with my writers, to cook up ten more outlines. Eventually we did sev-enteen, but it should have been seven."

When McGoohan assembled the writers for the series, they were people who were accustomed to writing for The Saint and Secret Agent. They found this unusual new series somewhat difficult to adjust to. "We lost a few by the wayside," McGoohan said. "I sat down and I wrote a forty -page sort of history of the village, from the tele-phones they used, what they ate, the sewage systems, the transport, the boundary, the description of the village, every aspect of it. They were all given copies of this and then, naturally, we talked to them about it and sent them away and hoped" they'd come up with an idea that was feasible. He explained to them that the Village was a place that wanted to destroy the individual, to break his spirit so that Number Six would accept his situation and live happily in the Village forever. But Number Six was the one rebel that they couldn't break. Into this was added McGoohan's own impatience with numerology in society, "and the way we're being made into ciphers, so there was something else beside it."

McGoohan revealed that besides the final two episodes that appeared with his name as screen-writer, that he also wrote others, those appearing under pseudonyms, such as "Free for All" by Paddy Fitz. He's gratified by the mystique that has built up around the series because it received a rather mixed reception when it first appeared on the British air-waves. "There were a lot of haters of it. A love/hate relationship, whichever way you looked at it. Already there was a small cult, and now there is a much bigger one over there. In fact, when the last episode came out in England, it had one of the largest viewing audiences because everyone wanted to know who was Number One. When they finally saw it there was a near riot and I was going to be lynched. I had to go into hiding in the mountains for two weeks until things calmed down. It's true. They were angry because they hadn't found out who Number One was.

"It went by quickly and they refused to acknowledge it. That was deliberate. I forget how many frames. I think there were fifty-two frames of the shot when they pulled off the monkey mask and then Number One's a monkey and then Number One's himself. It was deliberate. I mean, I could have held it there for a good two minutes and put a subtitle on. it saying 'It's Him!' but I thought that I wasn't going to pander to a mentality so low that it couldn't perceive what I was trying to say. So you had to be a little quick to pick it up, that's all." Regarding that initial response, McGoohan expressed delight. "I wanted to have controversy, arguments, fights, discussion, and anger; waving of fists in my face saying, 'How dare you! Why don't you do more Secret Agents so we can understand?' I was delighted with that reaction. I think it was a very good one. That was the intention of the exercise."

When questioned about the response from politicians, bureaucrats, and the like, he said, "Not enough. They stood clear, but of course they'd be the very ones who wouldn't understand it." He explained that "Living in Harmony" came about for a surprising reason, especially since it's one of the most interesting episodes. "I wanted to do a Western. I had never done one, and they'd never made a Western in England and they were short a story so we cooked that one up. We wrote it in four days and shot it and it was fun. So whatever concept you put into it, that's the reason for it. Then we sort of stepped the figures up a bit and put some other concepts which have other levels, sociological levels, which you can make what you want out of them."

On the subject of circumstances resulting in the creation of something that later appeared to be deep inspiration, he talked about Rover. "Rover, yes. Now, the reason that happened . . . again, it's like the Western. We had this marvellous piece of machinery built which was going to be Rover, and this thing was like a Hovercraft and it would go underwater, come up onto the beach, climb walls . . . it could do anything. This was our original robot. Unfortunately, the engineers, mechanics, and scientific geniuses hadn't quite completed it to perfection and the first day of shooting Rover was supposed to go down off the keys into the water, do a couple of signals, a couple of wheel spins, and come back up.

"It went down in the water and it stayed down permanently. We had Rover in every scene that day and so we had no Rover and Rover didn't look as though he was going to be resurrected at all so we're standing there . . . My production manager, Bernard Williams, wonderful fellow, standing beside me says, 'What are we going to do?' And he looked up and there was this balloon in the sky and he says, 'What's this?' And I said, 'I don't know, what is it?' He said, 'I think that's a meteorological balloon; and he looked at me and I said, 'How many can you get within two hours?' And he went off and called the meteorological station nearby and I did some other shots to cover while he was away and he came back with a hundred of them.

"He took an ambulance so he could get there and back fast 'cause it was quite a ways to the nearest town and he came back with them and there were these funny balloons all sizes and that's how Rover came to be. Sometimes we filled it with a little water, sometimes with oxygen, sometimes with helium depending on what we wanted him to do. We could make him do anything: lie down, beg, anything. We used about six thousand of them. They're very, very fragile." He hastens to point out that even though happenstance contributed to some of the memorable elements of the series, that these were just little touches along the way on top of the basic concept which was well worked out in advance, and that such little touches along the way like Rover or the Western episode really came about as a result of the creative people already involved in a creative project.

"I was fortunate to have two or three creative people working with me, like my friend who saw the ecological balloon. Wherever one could find these little touches one put them in. But the design of it, The Prisoner concept, that was all clearly laid out. And the style was clearly laid out, and the designs of the set; those were all clearly laid out from the conception of it. There was no accident in that area. You know, the places, the numbers, all that stuff. And the stupid little bicycles. All that stuff." Regarding the episode "Fall Out," McGoohan was asked if there was conscious religious symbolism in regard to the use of the crucifixion position of the two rebels with their arms drawn apart as well as of the use of the song "Dry Bones."

"No, I never had any religious inspiration for that whatsoever. I was just trying to make it dramatically feasible. Certainly the temptation with the guy putting on the thorns and all that stuff; that's Lucifer time, but I never thought of it at that moment. Maybe somewhere in the back of my mind it was there. The hipbone's connected to the thigh bone thing I just thought of as a very good song for the situation and also, it was applicable for the young man because, as you know, it is easy for us to go astray in youth and he was astray and was trying to get everything together again." Regarding "Once upon a Time," McGoohan related a curious incident that took place. "That was very interesting because earlier you asked which is my favourite episode and that was probably it. That was one which was written in a thirty-six hour period. Leo McKern, who is a good friend of mine and a fine actor, I think only had short notice to do it, and it really was a two-hander, and brainwashing thing. He was trying to brainwash me and in the end Number Six turns the tables, and the dialogue was so peculiar because all it was 'six, six, six,' and five pages of that at one time.

"One lunchtime, Leo went up to his dressing room and I went to see the rushes and I went back to his dressing room to tell him how good I thought he had been and he was curled up in this fetus position on his couch there and he says, 'Go away! Go away! I don't want to see you again.' I said, 'What are you talking about?' He said, 'I've just ordered two doctors and they're coming over to this place,' and he said, 'Go away!' And he had, he'd ordered two doctors and they came over and he didn't work for three days. He was gone. He'd cracked, which was very interesting, but thoroughly depressing, and I had to double back on the shots and eventually he did come back and also was in the final episode." But like Number Two in that episode, Leo McKern had a breakdown. In fact, even McGoohan described it as being "exactly the same."

When questioned about what he would have done with The Prisoner if it had been made in contemporary times, McGoohan stated: "I think progress is the biggest enemy on Earth apart from oneself and that goes with oneself; a two-handed pair. With oneself and progress I think we're going to take good care of this planet shortly. They're making bigger and better bombs, faster planes, and all this stuff one day. I hate to see it. There's never been a weapon created yet on the face of the earth that hasn't been used. And that thing's going to get used. I don't know how we're going to stop it. It's too late, I think."

When asked if he believed there might be a strong popular reaction against this kind of progress he replied, "No. Because we're run by the Pentagon. We're run by Madison Avenue, we're run by television. As long as we accept those things and don't revolt we'll have to go along with the stream, and the eventual avalanche."

On the subject of how responsible we all are for this and where we became involved, McGoohan explained it this way: "Buying their product, to excess. As long as we go out and buy stuff we're at their mercy. We're at the mercy of advertisers. Of course there are certain things that we need, but a lot of the stuff that is bought is not needed." As to whether the Village was meant to symbolize something external or internal, within us, McGoohan explained, "It was meant to be both. The external was the symbol, but it is within us all, I think. The surrealistic aspect of it. We all live in a little Village. Your Village may be different from other people's, but we've all got them."

Regarding who Number One was supposed to represent, it was posed to him that this was intended to be the evil side of man's nature, was it not? "The greatest enemy that we have. Number One was depicted as an evil governing force in this Village. Who is Number One? We just see Number Two. The sidekicks. Now this overriding evil force is at its most powerful within ourselves and we have to constantly fight against it. That is why I made Number One an image of Number Six-as sort of 'Ha!' on our ego."

Surprisingly, McGoohan admitted to not knowing who or what Number One would be when he conceived the series. "It had got very close to the last episode and I hadn't written it yet and I had to sit down this terrible day and write the last episode. I knew that it wasn't going to be something out of James Bond, and in the back of my mind there was some parallel with the character Six and Number One and I didn't really know exactly until I was about a third of the way through the script, the last script." It turned out that even the monkey face that Number Six sees when he first unmasks Number One has a point. "Because we're all supposed to come from these things; it's just the same as progress. But the monkey thing, we're all supposed to, according to the theories these days, supposed to come from that original ape, so I just used that as a symbol. The bestial thing and then the other bestial thing behind it which was laughing, jeering, and jabbering like a monkey."

Regarding the scene of the grim-faced Number Six driving off in a scene identical with the opening of the series, McGoohan explained that this "free-dom" is what the series is all about. "He hasn't got it," he explained, "which is the whole point. When that door opens on its own and there's no one behind it, exactly the same as all the doors in the Village open, you know that somebody's waiting in there to start it all over again. He's got no freedom. Freedom is a myth. There's my final conclusion to it and I was very fortunate to be able to do something as audacious as that with no final conclusion to it because people do want the words The End put up there. Now the final two words for that should have been the beginning." When asked what sentence or phrase he would like to leave with everyone who watched The Prisoner, one thing to carry around with them when it was over, McGoohan said that it would be just three words: "Be seeing you."

A modern movement in the arts -trying to depict the workings of the unconscious mind. -Webster's New World Dictionary of the American Language "What the series is about is creative people for once running the asylum. We were doing what we wanted and showing what the medium was capable of ... showing what a marvelous tool television is for surrealistic expression. Surrealism is always the counterpoint of two totally disparate and surprising images and television is superbly equipped to do this." Speaking is screenwriter Terence Feely, who wrote two of The Prisoner's scripts, "The Schizoid Man" and "The Girl Who Was Death."

"That last episode ["Fall Out"] is, I think, one of the best examples of total surrealism. No prisoners taken. "This was a series built to last. It is only just beginning to be properly appreciated, and I wouldn't be surprised if it is still going strong as a cult thing in another 20 years. I can't think of any other series you would put against it, really, and say, 'Well, that's a match for The Prisoner in that genre.' I mean, what would you put against The Prisoner, with that kind of mesmeric, time warp, out-of-this-world atmosphere, at the same time filled with tension and questions and problems, with a totally contemporary theme of freedom of the personality against control by the State? That's utterly twentieth, twenty-first century theme, and it is going to be even more appropriate after the year 2000 than it is now. You can see the seeds being sown at this moment. It is the seminal series which turns an intelligent and moral problem into pure entertainment, and the fact that it has been such a success does not surprise me."

The Prisoner is like a Rorschach ink blot: It is what the viewer makes of it. The Prisoner has been called one of the most enigmatic series ever created. A dramatic, allegorical treatment of how society imprisons its inhabitants. The show was about how one man, forever nameless, resigned from an important intelligence position and was secretly whisked to the mysterious Village. "I will not be pushed, filed, stamped, indexed, briefed, debriefed or numbered! My life is my own! I resigned!" said Number 6.

Patrick McGoohan launched his idea for The Prisoner while he was in the heat of his hit TV series SecretAgent. (This is the American title of the show, which aired in the U.S. 1965-1966. In England, it was known as Danger Man and aired in 1959-1960 and 1964-1966.) McGoohan was restless and showed up one day at the office of Lew Grade, president of the television production company ITC. Under his arms were detailed plans and descriptions of The Prisoner. Grade paced through his large, plush office, listening to McGoohan's series pitch. He thought it was such a crazy idea that, "It just might work!" and asked, "How soon can you start?" With a handshake, McGoohan went on his way.

Producer David Tomblin recalls Patrick McGoohan speaking with him just after meeting with Grade and saying, "We've got the money for the series," so I said, "Oh, great! I wasn't sure what he was about, you know so he said, 'Sit down and write the first episode.' So I said, 'I haven't written anything before!' I mean, I had scratched out ideas occasionally. So I locked myself in a room with George Markstein for one month, and we came out with the first episode, which Patrick took and embellished. The style of the series was really his baby. I can't take too much credit for that, because I was used to action-adventure things, which I liked very much, and with his more imaginative ideas, it came into The Prisoner. It was a combination of thoughts, really."

Tomblin, after Prisoner, went on to Space: 1999 and UFO; much later, he worked for George Lucas on virtually all of his major films. Tomblin says McGoohan "is a very secretive man, in a way, so he would come up with these weird and wonderful ideas and never explain them-so you just had to work them into the context of the stories. "He is a very talented man." recalls Tomblin. "Haven't seen him for some years. ... I think he was a bit disappointed with the reaction to The Prisoner, so he went to Geneva, and from there to America. I hoped great things for him then, but he hasn't seemed to have done very much. I don't know why."

"He was an amazing man-he is an amazing man," recalls Peter Howell, who played the Professor in "The General." "I think one of the most interesting things about how the series develops is clearly the personality of Pat McGoohan, because you were interested in knowing, I think, what sort of effect he had on the other actors and what they felt about him. He was extraordinary to work with. From the moment you went into that makeup room early in the morning for the day's filming, there was something about this man's amazing electricity, this kind of burning dedication, which is pretty unique, I think."

Asked if he felt remote from McGoohan, Howell responds, "Yes, of course you felt remote from him because he had so many things he was involved with. In fact, if ever you could see a man burning himself up, it was Patrick McGoohan, because the speed and the pressure of the work of this series was such that there he was ... he was writing, he was directing, he was acting. He was the star. And it wasn't so much that he was not easy to get to know-there was no time to get to know him. You were astonishingly aware of this immense dedication and precision and energy, and there are few actors who have that. And if I can just expand on that for a moment, one of the reasons for the success of the series, the way it has become a cult, must be to do with the ability and panache and the flair of this extraordinary man."

Camera operator Jack Lowin reinforces Tomblin and Howell's views on Patrick McGoohan, and he says, "Patrick was very heavily involved with everything. It was, in a sense, a oneman band. The idea was Pat's, and only Pat really had this particular concept of the thing. He found it very, very difficult to get everybody else to have the concept. "They started off with directors who had worked on Danger Man, but Pat had laid down very strict rules as to what he wanted done, and later on he had even more say in what happened. Later on, to some extent, the directors became simply figureheads and Pat was doing it all himself."

"It was enormous strain to act in a series like that-a show where most of the stuff, after all, includes him-and to direct it, and to be concerned with everything else ... it was an enormous strain." Filmed in the MGM British Studios in Borehamwood, England, The Prisoner also took advantage of exteriors at a North Wales resort known as the Hotel Portmeirion, which proved an integral aspect of the show's popularity. It gave a unique, physical location to the Village. The show's filming at Portmeirion was actually kept a secret during the show's production as the producers did not want Prisoner fans trampling the grounds and interfering with their production schedules. It was not until the very last episode, "Fall Out," that the main titles revealed the use of the hotel.

The resort first came to the attention of McGoohan while there for an episode of Danger Man. "Portmeirion impressed Pat very much", says Jack Lowin, "and I think he was looking for an opportunity to use it for something in the future. It is an unusual place, an outstanding place-not a place you could go to and not comment about. It was a weird and fantastic series of pieces of architecture ... it was ideal because you had little corners which were Italy, corners which were Austria ... you could use it for almost any country in Europe, so it was an ideal location."

Peter Howell concurs, noting that "one of the achievements of the series is the location ... because of the bizarreness of it ... you've got everything there, haven't you? It's slightly strange and other-worldly, and also these great masses of beach you can use. It's a very good idea to use that." Jack Lowin reveals that the genesis of The Prisoner came during the last days of Danger Man. "Pat got the idea for The Prisoner because he read a book published in America. ... It was about what happens to agents when they eventually retired, and it actually proposed the theory that an agent who obviously had a vast amount of information was not a safe person to allow to roam about, because he could be kidnapped by enemy agents to extract the information. It mentioned the idea that somewhere in North America was a 'village' or 'town' or an area where these people were sent for security reasons."

"And I think this impressed Pat very much, and it put the idea in his head as to what would have to happen when agents [like John Drake, his character] in Danger Man finally left the service. They would have to be incarcerated for their own protection and to ensure that no sensitive material could ever be extracted from them," says Lowin.

"And that was his original idea-just a pure follow-up to Danger Man about the same character and what would happen to him after he left the service. And I think he started writing scripts, or having scripts written, on that basis. Then, the idea obviously evolved. Quite where it changed from being a straightforward piece to this much more way-out, extraordinary thing, I don't know. When we started to do The Prisoner, I think it was an enormous surprise to everybody, the way it was being done ... this way-out, weird way of doing it was a complete surprise to everybody."

McGoohan originally intended the show to run for only seven episodes, but the CBS network wanted 26. Grade also asked for more, but McGoohan felt the premise could not sustain such lengths, so they compromised at the 17 episodes produced. "Originally we were going to do quite a few" says Tomblin. "But it came to a point where [episodes] were so complex, and we tried to make them so well-trying to make them like feature films-that the schedule suffered somewhat for various reasons. So the number was eventually 17. "The Prisoner was such an involved, complex subject that you couldn't really take the short cuts-you had to see the story through. So that's why there were 17."

Allegedly, in McGoohan's eyes the definitive seven episodes for the show are as follows in the preferred order: "Arrival," "Free for All," "Dance of the Dead," "Checkmate," "The Chimes of Big Ben," "Once Upon a Time" and "Fall Out." "Checkmate" was written by Gerald Kelsey. Having watched the episode again recently after so many years, he says that "it is virtually timeless and has stood up like a surrealist painting. The filmic quality is outstanding. Few watching for the first time would imagine this was now over 20 years old. ... Does 'Checkmate' fit well with the series as a whole? I think it fits very well. ... The chess game with human pieces was an idea that I introduced in my script. It captured the imagination of the aficionados, who seem to regard it as a significant element in the series. I am always questioned about it when viewers talk of the series."

"Number 2" for this episode was actor Peter Wyngarde. His recollection of his time with McGoohan was that "he was a perfectionist and, like all professionals, didn't suffer fools gladly. On the contrary, he behaved impeccably, and I had nothing but admiration for the originality, artistic economy and command of his material. The continuing success of the series is proof of this. Any series succeeds through the personality and ability of the main protagonist, and he brought a style which made it the best series around at the time." Wyngarde confesses that upon arriving on the set, he had no idea what the show was about. "I was excited by its ambiguity," he says. "The standard was comparable to most feature films made at the time, at a quarter of their budgets." Wyngarde is one of two Number 2's who claim that in the show's burgeoning days, a permanent Number 2 was contemplated and he was to fill the role. The other actor making this claim is Derren Nesbitt, who played "New Number 2" in "It's Your Funeral."

Wyngarde says, "Pat particularly wanted me to do it—he asked me himself. He was very hazy about the whole thing in the beginning, but he had considered a permanent Number 2. ... He really didn't know which direction the program was going to go in, but finally decided that a change of Village administration added to the air of mystery." Producer Tomblin confirms such speculations. "Originally, we were going to have one Number 2. I thought it would be a good idea if we had a different one each week—not so that you have a guest appearance of a good actor, but because the idea of the Village would be that you could never form a relationship, you never had security, you could never hatch plots, you can never escape, because you could never trust anybody. So, therefore, if you had a different Number 2 each week, you could keep people apart from each other."

The enigmatic nature of The Prisoner comes out when one considers that the tantalizing questions raised by the series have remained unanswered to this day. A catchphrase used on the show was "Questions are a burden to others; answers, a prison for oneself." Why did Number 6 resign from his intelligence post? Was Number 6 supposed to be Danger Man's John Drake? Who runs the Village? Where is the Village? And just who is Number 1? Did Number 6 truly escape in the final episode?

The first question has never been adequately answered, although there has been a suggestion that "vacation" was on Number 6's mind (revealed in "A, B, and C"). Story editor George Markstein states emphatically that Number 6 is John Drake from Danger Man, but McGoohan says he is not. Perhaps one reason McGoohan cannot acknowledge Number 6's true identity is that Danger Man is owned by a man named Ralph Smart and McGoohan does not own rights to the character. The Village is allegedly run by "both sides" of the world's intelligence corps, but no one really knows who is in charge. The Village's location is mentioned two times during the series, but each time the purported location is different. Finally, in "Fall Out," it's established that the Village is within driving distance of London via a tunnel that leads to the A20 highway (or "motorway", the English term) in Kent.

Number 1, some viewers joked, was probably the mute butler (played by Angelo Muscat) who appeared in every episode but three. But it is revealed in "FaJI Out" that Number 1 was Number 6. In the opening titles, when Number 6 asks, "Who is Number 1?" the reply is, "You are Number 6." But if a comma is added, the reply changes meaning. That is, "You are, Number 6." And finally, did the Prisoner ever escape? As McGoohan has stated for the record: "No! That was the point of the whole thing. We are all prisoners of something." The cycle repeated itself, and Number 6 never truly escaped the Villagers.

Adding to the surrealism was Rover, a white, bouncing balloon ball that guarded against escape attempts. It was never explained just what Rover was. Many viewers over the years wondered if Rover was a sentient being, but certainly he was not a mechanical construction. Rover was always nameless except for a reference in "The Schizoid Man." Originally a mechanical contraption was created to be Rover in "Arrival." However, the contraption failed miserably. The story goes that a gigantic weather balloon had passed by the beach set, and McGoohan—his passion for surreal images surfacing once again—wondered, "Can we get one of those?"

The final two episodes are unusual entries into the show. "Once Upon a Time" was a tour de force in which Patrick McGoohan and Leo McKern (appearing for the second time as Number 2) lock themselves in a simple black set for a battle of wits in the procedure called Degree Absolute. Number 2 psychologically pummels Number 6 for the information he wants. To survive, Number 6 must win. The filming was an intense time between McGoohan and McKern, so much that McKern experienced a nervous breakdown. Propsman Mickey O'Toole confirms McKern disappeared from the set at one point and needed three weeks' rest on completing his work.

David Tomblin remembers filming "Once Upon a Time" as "very tough. But Leo was a professional actor, and ... a tough old guy, and he does what he thinks is good. He is a wonderful man. ... He's not a commercial actor, he doesn't do it for the money, he does it for the things that he thinks are interesting."

Jack Lowin also remembers the shoot. "The scripts would appear minute by minute, almost," he says. "Fresh pages would appear during the day, and that was very traumatic because it was a terrific interplay of dialogue between the two of them and it created a tense atmosphere. The whole thing was a weird ... sort of thing-and this actually got through to Leo McKern.

He practically had a nervous breakdown over it. The taut repartee was really very wearing, particularly on Pat and Leo but also on the whole crew, really. It was like watching a private argument, in a sense. That was one of the most difficult episodes to work on." "Once Upon a Time" is inextricably linked with the subsequent episode, "Fall Out," yet the two episodes were filmed almost a year apart. Part of the original 13 episodes, "Once Upon a Time" was not initially intended as the first of a two-parter that would conclude the show. However, when the time came to film four more segments ("Do Not Forsake Me Oh My Darling," "Living in Harmony," "The Girl Who Was Death," and "Fall Out") McGoohan increased the episode's importance by moving its air date and adding a new ending. Presumably, that ending is when the Supervisor walks in and asks, "What do you desire?" and Number 6, in disgust with the proceedings, throws down the glass of wine and mutters, "Number 1!"

It is interesting to note that although the four episodes just named were created principally to complete a package for CBS, the network declined to air one of the four, "Living in Harmony." In this episode, Number 6 turned down the job of Sheriff and refused to carry a gun. Vietnam was raging at the time, so Number 6's refusal to take up a gun was seen as sympathetic to those who were protesting the war. Between the filming of "Once Upon a Time" and "Fall Out," so much time had passed that when McKern was invited back, he refused to regrow his beard and his hair to match his appearance in "Once Upon a Time." McGoohan had to devise a solution in the script so McKern could appear again, but look different.

McGoohan wrote "Fall Out" over a weekend by locking himself into a room until he was finished. It was the script everyone was waiting for, and no one, not even David Tomblin, knew what McGoohan had in mind to resolve the story. "It was sort of a fragmented idea-things that we had discussed over a long period of time that obviously stuck in Pat's head," says Tomblin. "And there was a lot of sense in it-there was a reason, there was a theme, in his own sort of thinking. It may have escaped some people. I understood it. It was completely his episode, but I understood it better than most because I knew Patrick and the way he thinks. But I'm not surprised that other people found it oblique."

Might McGoohan have had the entire adventure plotted out from the beginning? Tomblin responds, "For my part, I never get into an adventure unless I have plotted it out in my mind. I know the beginning, the middle and the end. And I used to discuss with Patrick possible endings as to how we would finish it. But we never sat down and had a detailed conversation, so we never agreed or resolved things at that stage. And so ... we just had to have faith that when we got to the end, the ideas that we had talked about to conclude it, plus the experience that we had in making it, would become an ending. But, as I say, this was Patrick's own thing at the end. Normally, I suppose, you would sit down and discuss it-plot it and polish it and round it and change it. And eventually, the final episode may have been-would have been-very different, and it may have made more obvious sense at the end. But it was oblique, because Patrick is an oblique person. But I thought it was extremely interesting."

Kenneth Griffith, who played the President in "Fall Out," remembers the part fondly and says that "all serious artists are very particular that everyone gives his utmost. If Patrick trusted anyone's ability, he would freely delegate. He was monstrously overworked. Patrick strives for perfection." On the final script, which would give him the opportunity to write a major speech because McGoohan was pressed for time during shooting, Griffith says, "I understood Patrick's mind. The meaning of life and death is essentially-for us humans-ambiguous. No, I wouldn't have ended it differently; it was Patrick's mind."

Reaction to "Fall Out" from the British television audience was fierce, to say the least. Angry viewers tied up the broadcaster's ATV switchboard because the episode did not resolve all the questions that were posed throughout the series, particularly Number 1's identity. Legend has it that McGoohan had to leave town until emotions got cooler. Not many television series have "lost scripts" but The Prisoner is an exception. Writer Moris Farhi claims he wrote a script titled "The Outsider." The plot featured a plane crash-landing near the Village and Number 6's efforts to repair it and fly to freedom. The script would also have Number 6 studying the migration of birds to determine the location of the Village. But McGoohan stepped in and quashed the idea by saying, "Heroes don't birdwatch!"

Since the show went off the air in the late 1960s, fans have raised it to cult status. They are in awe of McGooohan's use of surrealism, social commentary and symbols in an unexpected juxtaposition. These symbols, although often baffling to the casual viewer, are nevertheless heavily laden with meaning to the artist himself, and can become clearer as one gets to know more about the mind of its creator, Patrick McGooohan. This show is one of the few completely available on home video and aired occasionally on PBS stations uncut.

The Prisoner has an appreciation society of fans, The Six of One Club, based in England with several thousand members worldwide. Warner Books has published The Official Prisoner Companion. Looking closer, we can see a number of elements predicted in the late 1960s that have already come to pass. Today, any time we go to the bank or a department store, we are under silent surveillance by remote cameras "for our safety." When we make a commercial transaction, we tender a plastic card whose unique string of numbers personally identifies us. Our drivers' licenses and our vehicles likewise have letters and numbers on them. The age of cordless telephones has also come upon us.

The Prisoner also spawned a four-part "graphic novel" in 1988 by D.C. Comics. The story takes place 20 years after the events of "Fall Out" and concerns a female agent winding up in the destroyed and barren Village that has only one inhabitant: Number 6. So rabid was the cult factor that in 1986 media columnists from the Chicago Sun-Times to Electronic Media magazine announced CBS and ITC were working together to bring back the show in some form. Of course, it never happened, but there was an attempt to "pick up the show where it left off" as a continuation or a remake.

There was even a report of an Americanized rendition of the show. From other quarters, the new series would be about Number 6's son. Writing in Electronic Media, Carl H. Weiner of New York said, "The Prisoner was a literate, complex, multifaceted series which appealed to viewers on different levels. There had never been a series like it. ... The Prisoner was the quirkiest series to hit the airwaves. Had not Michael Dann (then vice-president of programming at CBS) been able to purchase it at a bargain-basement price, it might never have been seen by American viewers." Patrick McGooohan had no involvement in any of these revival attempts. Whether a new incarnation of The Prisoner will ever ride the airwaves depends solely on McGooohan.

CAST NOTES

Patrick McGooohan (Number 6): Born 1928 in New York. Raised in England, McGooohan first made his mark as John Drake in Secret Agent in the 1960s and acted in feature films, including Ice Station Zebra, Kings and Desperate Men, and Baby. He's also received two Emmys for his work acting and directing on Columbo.

WR. George Markstein, David Tomblin, Vincent Tisley, Anthony Skene, Patrick McGooohan (using the alias Paddy Fitz), Terence Feely, Michael Cramoy.

DIR. Patrick McGooohan, David Tomblin, Pat Jackson, Robert Asher, Don Chaffey and Peter Graham Scott.

EPISODES: 17 YEAR MADE: 1967 COUNTRY: GB SEASONS: 1

AN EVERYMAN FILMS PRODUCTION FOR ATV

CREATOR: PATRICK MCGOOHAN

TYPE OF SHOW: WEIRD FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 60 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 17

DATE OF PREMIER: 29/09/1967 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 02/02/1968

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

The Prisoner/Number 6 PATRICK MCGOOHAN, The Butler ANGELO MUSCAT, The Supervisor (8 out of 17 episodes) PETER SWANWICK, Voice of village announcer FENELLA FIELDING, Number 2 LEO MCKERN.

Books Based on this series.

The Official Prisoner Companion	Matthew White and Jaffer Ali	1988
The Prisoner	Thomas M. Disch	1969
The Prisoner (translation of french book)		1991
The Prisoner 1 - I Am Not a Number
The Prisoner 2 - Who is Number 2?	David McDaniel	1969
The Prisoner 3 - A Day In The Life	Hank Stine	1970
The Prisoner And Danger Man	Dave Rogers	1989

The Prisoner Book

Alain Carraze & Helen
Oswald

The Prisoner in Portmeirion

Roger Langley

1999

RELATED SHOWS:*NOWHERE MAN*1 - 1 ARRIVAL

After handing in his resignation, the Prisoner heads off to his London home to pack for a holiday. He begins to feel faint and ends up unconscious. He awakens not in his house but in a strange village. He starts to explore but soon realises that in "The Village" all things such as phone calls, maps and taxis are "only local". He is shown around the Village by Number Two, who explains that the information in his head is priceless, and that he wants to know why he resigned. Welcome to your new home, Number Six.

Wr George Markstein, David TomblinDir Don Chaffey1 - 2 THE CHIMES OF BIG BEN

Number Six has a new next-door neighbour, Nadia. She befriends Number Six, and tells him that the Village is situated on the Baltic. They decide to escape from the Village. To cover their plans of escape Number Six enters the Village arts and crafts exhibition competition. His entry entitled "Escape" is the inspiration for their plan to get back to London.

Wr Vincent TilsleyDir Don Chaffey1 - 3 A, B AND C

The new Number Two uses a new wonder drug to tap into Number Six's subconscious to try to discover why he resigned from the Service. Over a period of three nights he encounters A, B and C in separate circumstances, at Madame Engadine's party. Unknown to Number Two, Number Six has realised what has happened, and uses his dreams to prove that he was not selling out.

Wr Anthony SkeneDir Pat Jackson1 - 4 FREE FOR ALL

It's election time in the Village and a new Number Two needs to be elected. Number Six is persuaded to stand. While attending a meeting of the outgoing council meeting, Number Six angers Number Two who decides that Number Six must undergo "The Test". Number Six sets out on his election campaign with many promises to his voters, but his aim is to discover who Number One is.

Wr Patrick McGoohanDir Patrick McGoohan1 - 5 THE SCHIZOID MAN

Number Six awakes one morning in a different Village apartment and discovers that things have changed. He has a new appearance, has become left-handed, and has a different taste in foods. He is no longer Number Six but is now Number Twelve. A double of Number Six has been brought to the Village in an attempt to crack him. A bruised fingernail is the only clue that can help the real Number Six.

Wr Terence FeelyDir Pat Jackson1 - 6 THE GENERAL

'Speedlearn' is a subliminal process for educating the population of the Village, developed by a Professor with the aid of an unseen 'General'. In due course, the Professor realises that his creation has the ability to be abused by Number Two, and with the help of Number Six intends to destroy the 'General'. After their attempt fails Number Two takes Number Six to meet the 'General'.

Wr Joshua AdamDir Peter Graham Scott1 - 7 MANY HAPPY RETURNS

Number Six awakens to a deserted Village. He realises that now is the perfect opportunity to escape his captors. He builds a raft and sets sail away from the Village. During his voyage he comes across some gunrunners who steal his remaining supplies and leave him to drown. He is eventually washed up on the south coast of England. He manages to get back to London only to find a 'Mrs Butterworth' living in his house. The next day is Number Six's birthday, and Mrs Butterworth has a surprise planned for him.

Wr Anthony SkeneDir Patrick McGoohan

1 - 8 DANCE OF THE DEAD

Number Six discovers a dead man washed up on the Village beach. He finds a wallet and a radio set in the dead man's jacket. He hides the body in a cave and later tries the radio. Number Six later returns to the body with a life-belt, and sets it afloat with a rescue note, although he is watched by a former colleague, Dutton. Number Two has been using Dutton to obtain information about Number Six but soon thinks Dutton is expendable. Number Six receives an invitation to the Village carnival where he meets Peter Pan and Little Bo-Peep.

Wr Anthony Skene

Dir Don Chaffey

1 - 9 CHECKMATE

Number Six takes the position of Queen's Pawn in a human game of chess. An illegal move by the Rook leads to his withdrawal, and he is taken to the Village hospital. Number Two brainwashes the Queen to fall in love with Number Six who discovers the locket the Queen wears around her neck is in fact a radio transmitter which is being used to track him. The transmitter is useful to Number Six, and he manages to borrow the locket which he intends to use with the Rook in his latest escape bid.

Wr Gerald Kelsey

Dir Don Chaffey

1 - 10 HAMMER INTO ANVIL

When a young woman is driven to her death by Number Two, Number Six swears his revenge. Number Two tells Number Six that he is going to hammer him, (using a quote from Goethe about hammers and anvils) so Number Six decides to turn the tables on him. He plans to make Number Two think that he is an agent called D6 and that he reports to a superior X.O.4. Number Six sets out on a campaign to break Number Two.

Wr Roger Woddis

Dir Pat Jackson

1 - 11 IT'S YOUR FUNERAL

The Prisoner is tricked into discovering an assassination plot - but who is going to be killed? Number Two knows that Number Six is the only man in the Village capable of stopping a murder so he decides to discredit him. After Number Six finds out about the plot, he goes to warn Number Two who records the warning and doctors the tape. When a new Number Two arrives in the Village, Number Six realises that the intended target is not who he first thought.

Wr Michael Cramoy

Dir Robert Asher

1 - 12 A CHANGE OF MIND

After becoming involved in a fight with two thugs, Number Six is declared 'unmutual' by the Village committee who recommend that he undergo 'instant social treatment'. However, due to Number Six's importance he is not actually administered the treatment, but is only tricked into thinking he has had it. Number Six later realises this, and manages to get the Village doctor on his side. With her help he has plans for Number Two.

Wr Roger Parkes

Dir Patrick McGoohan

1 - 13 DO NOT FORSAKE ME OH MY DARLING

Number Six is not himself. The Prisoner's mind is transformed into another man's body by the Village authorities in an attempt to track down a scientist, Professor Seltzman. When he awakens in his London home, he has a tough task convincing people of his true identity, so he sets off for Austria to find Professor Seltzman - the only man who can help him.

Wr Vincent Tilsley

Dir Pat Jackson

1 - 14 LIVING IN HARMONY

Number Six finds himself a stranger in a Western town called 'Harmony'. He reluctantly takes on the job of the Sheriff in order to release a young saloon woman. As the Sheriff, he refuses to carry a gun until a killing spree forces him to take one up. After a gun fight with the Kid, Number Six wants to resign from his post but the Judge refuses to let him.

Wr David Tomblin

Dir David Tomblin

1 - 15 THE GIRL WHO WAS DEAF

Number Six is back in his old job as an agent as he tries to track down the murderer of Colonel Hawke-Englishe, who was looking for a crazy scientist called Schnipps. The scientist's daughter Sonia, who calls herself Death, protects her father and sets many deadly traps for Number Six. Sonia eventually leads him to her father who has plans to destroy London with his super-rocket.

Wr Terence Feely

Dir David Tomblin

1 - 16 ONCE UPON A TIME

After all previous attempts to break Number Six have failed, Number Two decides the only way to obtain the information wanted is by using a system known as 'Degree Absolute', which is a battle that will leave one of them dead. If Number Six wins, he will have survived the ultimate test and finally meet Number One.

Wr Patrick McGoohan

Dir Patrick McGoohan

1 - 17 FALL OUT

Number Six is presented to the President of the Assembly. He watches the trials of Number Forty Eight and the resuscitated Number Two. Finally his chance has arrived to meet Number One. As chaos breaks out, Number Six leaves the Village and heads for London.

Wr Patrick McGoohan

Dir Patrick McGoohan

PRISONERS OF GRAVITY

This is a talk show which has numerous guests from the world of science fiction.

Prisoners Of Gravity is a highly acclaimed Canadian TV show created by Mark Askwith, Daniel Richler, and Rick Green that ran on TV Ontario from 1989 to 1994. It was hosted by actor Rick Green and featured discussions on science fiction, fantasy, horror, and comics. In its 139 episode run, Rick interviewed over 600 authors, filmmakers, animators, comic book legends, and futurists. Many of these interviews ended up in John Clute and Peter Nicholls's CD-Rom version of the The Encyclopedia of Science Fiction.

Prisoners of Gravity was the most thoughtful and creative television program ever produced anywhere in the world about the literature of science fiction, and it was a substantial Canadian success story. In first-run, it was one of the most popular series on its originating network, TVOntario, lasting for five seasons and 139 installments; it also ran on several PBS stations.

Among the program's many honors were: the Broadcast Media Award from the International Reading Association (for the Ray Bradbury installment, which featured Robert J. Sawyer); a Silver Medal from the New York Festivals of Television (for the installment on Zero Population Growth); an Honorable Mention from the Columbus International Film and Video Festival (for the installment on Sexism and Feminism); two Canadian Science Fiction and Fantasy Awards ("Auroras") (with Robert J. Sawyer accepting on PoG's behalf during the ceremony at the 1994 World Science Fiction Convention); and two nominations for the Gemini Award (the Canadian counterpart of the Emmy) in the Best Lifestyle-Information Series Category (for the program's third and fourth seasons). All of the author videos included on Grolier's CD-ROM version of John Clute and Peter Nicholls's Encyclopedia of Science Fiction are actually clips from Prisoners of Gravity.

"In 139 episodes of Prisoners of Gravity, the one guest we would tape for 30 minutes and have all 30 minutes end up on the air was Rob Sawyer. When we needed a quote on a subject, we'd phone him up, he'd come boogying down to our studio, give us twelve pithy quotes, and go home again."

Robert J. Sawyer was the most frequent guest on Prisoners of Gravity, making a total of sixteen appearances more than anyone else in the program's history (and, indeed, he was the final guest interviewed on the final installment of the series, an episode on "Evolution"). Rob was the only interview subject to be invited to the series' wrap party at TVOntario. He appeared on the following installments:

WR.

DIR.

EPISODES: 139 YEAR MADE: 1990 COUNTRY: CAN SEASONS: 5

TV ONTRAI O

CREATOR: MARK ASKWITH, DANIEL RICHLER, RICK GREEN

TYPE OF SHOW: TALK SHOW FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 25, (2) 29, (3) 30, (4) 27, (5) 25

DATE OF PREMIER: 11/12/1989 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 27/04/1994

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Host RICK GREEN.

PROBE

Austin James was a brilliant young scientist who was somewhat lacking in social skills. He operated out of a warehouse known as the batcave and refused to kill any of the animal life that shared his space. Mickey was assigned to him by his company, Serendip. He tried to fire her the first time she reported to him, but by the end of the pilot episode he had decided to keep her around. Whenever she got angry, she was able to help him solve the seemingly unsolvable cases he worked on for the police.

A series too literate for television, thanks to co-creator Isaac Asimov (who was active in both Science Fiction Writers of America, Mystery Writers of America, and Mensa). Austin James, from a base of operations called "the batcave", was a scientific genius -- a cross between Isaac Asimov himself, Science Officer Spock, and Sherlock Holmes. Each episode's plot was based on an actual scientific fact or theory. Austin and secretary/sidekick Mickey (the Dr. Watson to Austin's Sherlock Holmes) would solve each crime by analysis of clues in the laboratory part of the warehouse/batcave.

Police arrested the perpetrator every time, invariably surprising the criminal who thought that he was too clever for the cops to nab. If you enjoyed this show, I strongly recommend that you buy any of the mystery novels of Isaac Asimov. He told me, in the blueroom at NBC before we did the NBC-TV Today Show together, that "Murder at the A.B.A." was his personal favourite -- it deals with a murder at a convention, and has wicked insights into science fiction fandom, literary agents, book deals, and the like. The series was first shown on ABC in the US and has been seen in the UK of The Sci-Fi channel.

"Austin James was not the kind of character that you saw very often on television," says actor Parker Stevenson. "He was intelligent but eccentric. He was much more comfortable being alone in his warehouse, creating and thinking. I saw him as kind of a Howard Hughes recluse." Only real-life mysteries could lure Austin away from his warehouse: Why did a TV host die after a supposed witch put a curse on him? Did an orangutan really commit murder? Did an antismoking cure turn everyone in a neighborhood block into zombies?

While Austin James was not intended to be Tom Swift, the teenage inventor created in a book series by Edward Stratemeyer, the resemblance is close enough to say that Tom Swift is James's literary ancestor. Both create inventions, solve mysteries and embark on fantastic adventures-and both have a corporation working for them.

Probe's respect for science was no surprise to those familiar with the writings of science writer Isaac Asimov. The late novelist created Probe's basic concept. His original treatment was for a series to be called Isaac Asimov's Probe. As it The pilot of Probe was filmed in South Carolina to take advantage of a facility needed for a set backdrop. The subsequent series was filmed in Phoenix, Arizona. "When we shot in South Carolina, we shot at an abandoned nuclear power plant. It made me think twice about whether or not I'd go home glowing. A series like Probe puts you in those kinds of situations."

Stevenson was impressed by the myriad of hardware that filled Austin's warehouse. "We had some incredible props. We even had an airplane hanging from the roof, a big yellow crop duster. We also had generators, electron microscopes, everything. The set was brilliant, and just being there was an adventure!" The series gave Stevenson the opportunity to act with an unusual guest star: a female orangutan. "Rob Bowman was the director of a show called 'Metamorphic, Anthropoidic, Prototype Over You.' I don't know what that means. We just called it the MAPE show. The story was about interspecies intelligence and communications. Rob had a show that was, logistically, impossible to shoot. He also had to work with the orangutan. Her name was Sunshine, and her trainer had taught her to do several things in sequence. In one scene, she was in a big cage where she was supposed to go under a couch, retrieve a wallet, pull out a credit card, go to the cage door, jimmy the lock open with the card, put the card back in the wallet, put the wallet away and leave the cage. This was done without giving her independent cues. But from a filming perspective, it was a very complicated shot.

Wr Lee Sheldon

Dir Kevin Hooks

1 - 3 BLACK CATS DON'T WALK UNDER LADDERS

By appealing to his scientific vanity, Micky manages to lure Austin to a talk show/expose to act as a scientific consultant as host Marty Corrigan tries to discredit a self-proclaimed witch, Sabrina. However, the witch's curse apparently comes true after Marty drinks one of her "potions". Analysis of the potion reveals nothing, and it has no effect on anyone else. Corrigan appears to have died of an intense case of influenza. Then the witch turns up dead. Austin's investigation eventually turns up that an old colleague, Dr. Drakovich, killed Corrigan using the witch's potion as a ruse to deliver a genetically tailored "designer virus," to protect his son from exposure.

Wr Lee Sheldon

Dir Alan J. Levi

1 - 4 METAMORPHIC ANTROPOIDIC PROTOTYPE OVER YOU

Austin is called in to help with investigating a claim that a "mape" (a Metamorphic Anthropoidic Prototype - i.e., an intelligent monkey) is as intelligent as its sponsor, Dr. Hardwork, claims. Josephine, the mape, is indeed incredibly smart, at nearly human levels. However, an animal activist breaks into Austin's warehouse where Josephine is being kept, and is found dead, shot to death. There seem no obvious culprits, and Austin discovers that Josephine was enhanced through illegal brain surgery. However, he also deduces that Josephine herself is the murderer: having learned such behavior from watching television shows. Austin manages to rescue Micky just before a jealous Josephine can kill her too, and regretfully, the mape is put to sleep.

Wr Tim Burns

Dir Rob Bowman

1 - 5 NOW YOU SEE IT...

Two businessmen die in elevators created by Serendip, putting Austin's future with the company in danger.

Wr James Novack

Dir Robert Iscove

1 - 6 PLAN 10 FROM OUTER SPACE

Micky manages to lure Austin into visiting the desert home of science fiction author Truman Smith the Third. He is being plagued with strange electrical apparitions. He claims that the electrical creature is an alien being whose life Truman has been using as the basis for his "fiction", and now the alien wants a share. Smith is killed by a huge electrical discharge, but Austin determines that the phenomena is ball lightning caused by the house's location atop a lodestone. As for Smith's murder, Austin uses a ploy to reveal that Smith's wife killed him using electrical cables.

Wr Michael Wagner

Dir Virgil Vogel

1 - 7 SPARE THE ROD (AKA QUIT-IT)

Austin and Micki come to the aid of a young girl who claims everyone in her neighborhood has been replaced by imposters.

Wr Philip Reed

Dir Vincent McEveety

PROFILER

A team of Atlanta police officers led by detective John Grant, puzzled by the murders of six wealthy woman, all of which were committed on consecutive Saturdays, frustrated with his lack of progress in the investigation he seeks the help of FBI agent Bailey Malone who, in turn, coaxes his old friend and former student Doctor Sam Waters out of retirement. Grant is understandably wary of this mysterious woman and her seemingly wild claims of being able to "see things in her mind".

However, as he is no closer to solving the case, Grant reluctantly Malone's proposal. Waters agrees to help Malone and welcomes his offer to be her protective liaison. Together with Grant they create the Violent Criminals Task Force, an elite team of talented professionals who investigate high profile crimes throughout the country.

A dark, moody program, part of NBC's Saturday Thrilllogy lineup, Profiler had garnered a cult following and went well into its second season. The Thrilllogy consisted of Profiler as well as a less successful SF show called SLEEPWALKERS.

In the NBC Series Profiler, forensic psychologist Doctor Samantha Waters has the ability to 'picture' crimes through the eyes of both victim and killer. She uses these talents to help Bailey Malone and the members of the Violent Crimes Task Force (VCTF) apprehend the cleverest of opponents. The one person who eluded her for some time was Jack-of-All-Trades, a serial killer who began stalking Samantha and slaying those close to her after he murdered her husband.

Co-executive producers Kim Moses and Ian Sander were with Profiler since it began production in 1996. "My husband Ian Sander and I, we're both producers and writers and he's also a director, were working on a made-for-television movie in Atlanta, Georgia, called Chasing the Dragon," recalls Moses. "We got a call from NBC Studios saying that they had a pilot that they wanted to have produced in Atlanta and wanted to know if we would do it. "Ian and I had worked on a number of television programmes and several television movies, so they flew down and met with us. We read the script and liked it very much. The studio was very supportive and we were fortunate to be able to get new directors to pick up working on Chasing the Dragon. Ian continued with them on that and that left me free to get things rolling on Profiler."

In the show's pilot, FBI agent Bailey Malone (Robert Davi) is called in by the Atlanta Police to help solve the murders of six wealthy women. Bailey manages to coax his old friend and former student Sam Waters (Ally Walker) out of hiding to assist in the investigation and together they form the VCTF. With the characters of Waters, Malone, Sam's daughter Chloe and close friend Angel Brown already written into the story, the rest of the VCTF team had to be developed.

"Sam and Bailey originally worked for the FBI and that was established in the pilot," explains Moses. "They were the ones responsible for hand-picking the specialists who would make up the VCTF ' and that's where we stepped in to create the rest of the main characters. Detective John Grant (Julian McMahon) was working for the Atlanta Police Department in the first story, as was forensic specialist Grace Alvarez [Roma Maffia]. As for actor Peter Frechette, who plays computer hacker George Fraley, he originally only had a small part in the pilot. We knew, however, that in this day and age we'd need a computer whiz to help us solve our mysteries, so we made him a regular. Jack-of-All-Trades isn't even in the pilot; all you see are his hands. There wasn't anything like him on television and so we decided to showcase him in all the episodes. Ian and I worked with the show's writers to develop these characters and their distinctive personalities."

Once the characters had been established, Moses and Sander cast the roles. "Usually the star is very difficult to cast, but as soon as we met Ally Walker we knew we had found Doctor Sam Waters," she continues. "That was a given and the network totally supported that and we were thrilled. Casting Bailey Malone was a little bit harder because Robert Davi does feature films, so nobody ever thought of him as being a television leading man. His name was finally brought up by the casting directors and we took him into the network to read.

"Robert tends to be cast as the bad guy and after he auditioned, Warren Littlefield, the president of NBC, said, 'OK, now we have our villain. Who are we going to get to play Bailey Malone?' Ian went out of the room and, putting on his director's hat, worked with Robert. They came back in and when Robert read the second time Warren turned to every-one in the room and said, 'We've got our Bailey Malone'.

"We were pleased to get Roma Maffia, who had worked on Chicago Hope. Peter Frechette was in Chasing the Dragon so we already had decided to cast him as George. As for John Grant, it's very difficult to find a leading man who's fresh. Julian McMahon is Australian and so hadn't been seen in too many things here in the United States. We searched long and hard for some-one to play John Grant and we were extremely fortunate to find Julian." Profiler opened to mixed reviews. It was compared with Millennium, which debuted around the same time and also featured an ex-FBI agent with unusual crime-solving abilities. Moses and Sander worked hard to make Profiler that little bit different. "The odds are always against you when you launch a new series," explains Moses. "There are so many pilots produced, but the network only has a limited number of slots to fill. You face the additional challenge of trying to make your pilot stand out.

"When we got the pilot script for Profiler it was much more of a cop show. It took place in the Atlanta Police Department as opposed to the high-tech VCTF centre. When Ian and I finished filming the pilot we realised that it was basically another police drama. There was already Law & Order and other similar shows on the air so the network really didn't have a need for more of this kind of programming. We decided to shift the direction of the show and make it more of a trip through Doctor Sam Waters' head. This allowed her to profile the killer through her mind's eye as opposed to just solving the mystery. It seemed to go over well with test audiences and that distinction helped to get us noticed." At the start of Profiler's second season Sheik Mahmud-Bey was hired to play Marcus Payton, a street-savvy VCTF opera-live whose conventional work ethic some-times puts him at odds with John Grant. Another new addition to the line-up was Traci Lords, cast as Sharon Leshner, a parolee who falls under Jack's influence and be-comes his protege.

"Traci's a wonderful actress," enthuses Moses, "We had a meeting with Warren Littlefield towards the end of the first sea-son and discussed giving Jack an accomplice. We had in mind someone who had committed serious crimes but had never gone so far as to kill anyone. Jack finds her when she is released from prison. It's almost like Alice in Wonderland but she gets pulled into something far deadlier than a rabbit hole. Jack wants to make her into his Sam but he soon realises that nobody can be Sam, so she ends up helping him." Does Moses have any particular favourite episodes? "One episode which I thought was very well done is Second Best, in which Sam's boyfriend Nick ["Coop"] Cooper is killed by this crazed bomber. I think it is a very important show as far as his relation-ship with Sam.

We got a lot of phone calls and letters from people saying that they were really moved emotionally by it. With a series like Profiler it's not only important that your audience is scared but that you write in things that also show some heart. "I really like Primal Scream, the first episode we made for the second season. It's very spooky. Another episode I enjoyed was Ties That Bind. It's about cults but it also reverberates back to Bailey's strained relationship with his daughter Frances [Heather McComb] and Sam's relationship with her little girl. The show really focuses on family and its importance.

"My favourite shows are the ones that have themes," notes Moses. "For instance, in the first year we did a show called Learning from the Masters, which is about a man who kills people and then poses them as pieces of famous art. It was a very provocative episode and one that raised several Questions including is life more important than art? If we get our viewers to think about what they're watching then we've really done things right."

Born and raised in the coal-mining community of Denora, Pennsylvania, Moses entered the working world as part of the sports information department at the University of Notre Dame in Indiana. In Washington she served in the House of Representatives for the Committee on Science and Technology, and earned a paralegal diploma as well as her Bachelor of Arts in Liberal Arts. "It was very exciting working on projects for the Space programme as well as on various environmental issues but in the back of my mind I still missed the action of live sports," she muses.

During Congressional recesses Moses spent her time working in production on six Super Bowls and was eventually given an assignment on the news desk at ABC Sports during the 1984 Summer and Winter Olympics. After seven years in Washington, Mosses went on to join Ohlmeyer Productions, in New York City and later in Los Angeles. She spent six years developing and producing several projects and later she became an independent producer. Her producing credits include How'd They Do That?, Power Boat Racing with Don Johnson, Comic Strip Live and My World on Video. On television, Moses and husband Ian Sander developed and executive produced the Emmy Award-winning tv movie Stolen Babies. In 1996 they served in the same capacity on the short-lived New York News. "That was a big disappointment," recalls the producer. "CBS was very good and extremely supportive but it just so happened that the only timeslot they had available was opposite Seinfeld. We knew that was going to be a no-win situation but we went on air anyway. We had a great cast and it was very difficult emotionally for them as well as us when our timeslot killed our chances."

Prior to the start of filming on Profiler's third season Moses and her husband stepped down as the show's executive producers to devote more time to developing several of their own projects. Moses is proud of what she, Sander and the rest of the Profiler cast and crew achieved. "I think we've created a series that's not only entertaining but one that has a lot of style, which Ian and I are very pleased about having developed. We've also given the show some heart and that's really important to us as well. There are programmes out there that are very edgy but they lack that human element and I think this is what made our viewers come back every week," she says with confidence.

Season Four: Ally Walker's Samantha Waters departed after the first two episodes in a storyline involving her long-time stalker Jack (Dennis Christopher), introduced in this story is new lead Rachel Burke (Jamie Luner), who, according to executive producer Steven Kronish, is "Not burdened by tragedy they way Samantha was, so we can have some fun with her." Luner is also a very sexy on screen presence so expect the whole tone of the piece to change. It is worth noting that when this show kicked off, at the same time as MILLENNIUM, it was the latter which was tipped to succeed due to the seeming Chris Carter Midas touch. I wonder who's laughing now?

WR.

DIR.

EPISODES: 83 YEAR MADE: 1996 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 4

NBC PRODUCTIONS/SANDER/MOSES PRODUCTION.

CREATOR: CYNTHIA SAUNDERS

TYPE OF SHOW: PARANORMAL/SCIENTIFIC FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 60 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 22, (2) 20, (3) 21, (4) 20

DATE OF PREMIER: 21/09/1996 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 01/07/2000

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Angel Brown ERICA GIMPEL, John Grant JULIAN MCMAHON, Nathan Brubaker MICHAEL WHALEY (1), Bailey Malone ROBERT DAVI, George Findley PETER FRECHETTE, Dr. Sam Waters ALLY WALKER (1-3 + eps 4.1, 4.2), Grace Alvarez ROMA MAFFIA, Nick Cooper A. MARTINEZ Sharon Leshar TRACI LORDS (2), Frances Malone HEATHER MCCOMB (2), Marcus Payton SHEIK MAHMUD-BEY, Sam/Chole CAITLIN WACHS, Rachel Burke JAMIE LUNER (4).

RELATED SHOWS:

SLEEPWALKERS

1 - 1 INSIGHT

Dr. Sam Waters, a brilliant female forensic psychologist with a unique gift for understanding the criminal mind, was a forensic psychologist with a special skill which enabled her to "think" in pictures and visualize a crime through the eyes of both the victim and the killer, until "Jack," an admiring serial slayer, murdered her husband three years ago, leaving her devastated. Guilt-ridden, Sam retired and retreated with her young daughter, Chloe, to live an anonymous life at a friend's in the country. She is coaxed out of self-imposed isolation by her old friend Bailey Malone, head of the FBI Investigative Support Unit, to assist in solving a baffling spate of weekend serial killings that have claimed the lives of several single women in Atlanta, GA.

Wr Cynthia Saunders

Dir John Patterson

1 - 2 RING OF FIRE

Violent Crimes Task Force probes a string of well-publicized arson fires in the South.

Wr Nancy Miller

Dir Peter O'Fallon

1 - 3 UNHOLY ALLIANCE

Sam investigates a series of murders which bear striking similarities to the methods of a killer whom Bailey put in prison 10 years earlier.

Wr Ken Solarz

Dir P. J. Pesce

1 - 4 I'LL BE WATCHING YOU

Sam and the Task Force must find an assassin before he kills a celebrated political candidate.

Wr Lawrence Hertzog

Dir John Harrison

1 - 5 UNSOILED SOVEREIGNTY

A series of bomb blasts at power plants draw Sam and the task force to Pittsburgh.

Wr Jean Gennis, Phyllis Murphy

Dir Sarah Pia Anderson

1 - 6 MODUS OPERANDI

When the twisted serial killer known as Jack-of-all-trades murders a kindly neighborhood fix-it man, Sam discovers a pattern of leaving messages to her through his victims.

Wr Bob Lowry

Dir Andy Wolk

1 - 7 NIGHT DREAMS

Sam and Bailey race the clock to track a serial kidnapper who curiously abducts a wide range of women.

Wr Cynthia Saunders

Dir Ian Toynton

1 - 8 CRUEL AND UNUSUAL

Sam and the team investigate a series of bizarre slayings whose victims were connected to a murderer sentenced to die within days.

Wr Sibyl Gardner

Dir Ian Sander

1 - 9 SORCERER'S APPRENTICE

When Native American chiefs are ritually murdered on the reservation, Sam consults a tribal wise man to narrow the list of suspects.

Wr Ken Solarz

Dir Lewis Teague

1 - 10 SHATTERED SILENCE

The separate kidnappings of two high-profile doctors and the evidence leads to believe that the prime suspect is a patient with an incurable medical condition.

Wr George Geiger

Dir Sarah Pia Anderson

1 - 11 DOPPELGANGER

Sam confronts inmate Arthur deRhodes, a former adversary and serial slayer, over a recent murder that bears similarities.

Wr Bob Lowry

Dir John Patterson

1 - 12 LEARNING FROM THE MASTERS

When a series of murder victims are found arranged in elaborately staged tableaux, Sam deduces that the cold-blooded killer is replicating famous artworks with their lifeless forms.

Wr Jean Gennis, Phyllis Murphy

Dir Kevin Hooks

1 - 13 THE HOUSE THAT JACK BUILT

When Jack of All Trades, the inventive but frighteningly elusive serial murderer stalking Sam continues to toy with members of the VCTF team and their families, Bailey orders everyone into the task force's command center.

Wr Lawrence Hertzog

Dir Carl Schenkel

1 - 14 SHADOWS OF ANGELS (A.K.A. NOBLESSE OBLIGE) - (A TWO PART STORY)

Sam and the team investigate a series of bizarre murders where the victims are either crushed or strangled with silver coins.

Wr Sibyl Gardner

Dir John Patterson

1 - 15 FILM AT ELEVEN

Sam and the task force probe a series of ghastly murders which are carefully videotaped and sent to TV newsrooms by the vigilante slayer who announces that the crimes are righteous retribution against guilty people.

Wr Steve Feke

Dir Jack Bender

1 - 16 CRISIS

Sam is taken hostage by a zealous anti-nuclear scientist and his commandos after they capture a banquet room.

Wr Bob Lowry

Dir Matt Penn

1 - 17 BLUE HIGHWAYS

Sam and the VCTF investigate a series of fatal hit-and-run auto accidents on remote highways where the only clues are abandoned car hulks.

Wr Jean Gennis, Phyllis Murphy

Dir Michael Pattinson

1 - 18 FTX: FIELD TRAINING EXERCISE

The task force comes under intense scrutiny when the FBI suspects that an insider is selling covert information.

Wr Charles. D. Holland, George Geiger

Dir Michael Lange

1 - 19 INTO THE ABYSS

A burned-out Sam takes somber note of a psychic-turned-author whose cooperation with police in solving serial murders has taken a heavy toll on his emotional stability -- and worst of all, he's targeted by a serial slayer intent on putting him out of his misery. Back at the command center, John chafes under Bailey's strict policy and hard-nosed code of secrecy. Bailey has more problems at home when he attempts to rein in his trouble-prone teenaged daughter.

Wr David A. Simons

Dir Dan Lerner

1 - 20 VENOM (1-2)

Sam and the VCTF team are taunted by a diabolical serial killer who prefers to use a variety of exotic poisonous spiders and animals to kill her victims, while providing her pursuers with cryptic clues to her next murder. A frustrated Bailey is further irritated by a sexy private investigator who tries to aid the VCTF, but it's the unit's chief nemesis--a jealous Jack of All Trades--who ironically can help the most. Elsewhere, Bailey asks Cooper to replace John on the team, and later takes drastic measures to curb his carousing daughter.

Wr Steve Feke, Bob Lowry

Dir James Whitmore Jr., Dan Lerner

2 - 1 AMBITION IN THE BLOOD

AKA The Protean Man As Bailey (Robert Davi) clings to life in an Atlanta hospital, Sam and the team are forced to take on a high profile case involving an international serial killer. The murderer, named Ashok Dupree, has escaped from an Indian prison and come to the U.S. for the purpose of killing a celebrity, so that he too can become world renown. While working to bring the killer to justice, Sam (Ally Walker) must convince herself and the Atlanta PD that she is innocent of the murder that Jack actually committed in the finale of last season. Also, John (Julian McMahon) decides to return to the VCTF, and Bailey's daughter, Frances (Heather McComb), now on the run, contacts John to check on her father's condition.

Wr George Geiger

Dir Dan Lerner

2 - 2 PRIMAL SCREAM

Four people have been brutally beaten to death in Atlanta. The VCTF is called in to investigate the seemingly random murders. Though there are no eyewitnesses, people near the crime scenes recall hearing an eerie wailing sound right around the time of the murder. Sam (Ally Walker) soon discovers another connection, all the murders happened in the rain. The team consults with a psychologist who specializes in seasonal disorders. He informs them of a syndrome where people become extremely violent in response to certain types of weather. Meanwhile, Jack waits at a prison gate for Sharon Leshar (Traci Lords), a violent felon, who is being released on parole. Later, he takes her back to his lair and it becomes clear this is the beginning of an "unholy alliance." Back in Atlanta, Bailey (Robert Davi) laments the fact that the police plan to charge his daughter Frances (Heather McComb) with attempted murder once they determine her whereabouts. Sam and the team interrogate suspects prone to fits of rage and stumble upon a lead to the killer. Eventually, clues lead to a construction worker afflicted with the seasonal disorder described earlier. In a chilling final sequence, Jack takes Sharon to a beauty shop where he asks the beautician to make her hair look exactly like the woman pictured in a photograph he carries...who's the woman? Dr. Samantha Waters.

Wr Steve Feke

Dir Ian Sander

2 - 3 IT CUTS BOTH WAYS

Jack's back and he's wreaking havoc with his new lethal protégé, Sharon Leshar (Traci Lords). The VCTF is summoned to New Orleans when the murder of a research librarian has the earmarkings of a Jack kill. Once on the scene, Sam (Ally Walker) is perplexed by what appears to be inconsistencies with Jack's prior modus operandi. Though certain Jack is responsible for the murder, she considers rethinking her profile of him. To that end, she consults one of her old professors to get a fresh perspective on the case. Sam and the professor agree that Jack is beginning a new chapter in his obsession with Sam. Two more murders occur in rapid succession and it becomes clear Jack is sending clues as to what this new chapter will entail. Bailey (Robert Davi) receives a call from his fugitive daughter, Francis (Heather McComb), who refuses to heed her father's pleas to return to Atlanta. George (Peter Frechette) is confronted by his past misdeeds when a corrupt attorney asks him to use his computer hacking skills to embezzle funds from a local bank. The episode concludes with the team following Jack's bread crumb trail to two potential victims on opposite coasts of the country. the team splits up, sending Bailey to Maine, and Sam and John (Julian McMahon) to San Francisco. In an exciting climax, we see the team utilizing video feeds to communicate with one another as they enter what could be traps left by Jack. What they discover instead, are the bodies of two almost simultaneously murdered women. This leads Sam to make the chilling realization that Jack is no longer working alone.

Wr George Geiger

Dir Jack Bender

2 - 4 SECOND BEST

When a hospital is the target of a bombing attack, the VCTF is called in to investigate. It's clear once the team arrives that this is no random attack. They are dealing with a highly skilled explosives expert who obviously has an agenda in mind. Bailey (Robert Davi) summons Coop (A Martinez) to Atlanta to assist with the case. His return is awkward for he and Sam (Ally Walker) as they have previously ended their romantic relationship. The bomber continues his lethal campaign by killing seemingly unrelated individuals. Sam and the team race to establish a relationship between the victims. Meanwhile, Bailey must deal with Frances's (Heather McComb) legal problems. The DA sees her case as a stepping stone for political office and is bound and determined to see her do time for shooting her father and fleeing prosecution. George (Peter Frechette) also faces difficulties as he continues to be pressured by an old acquaintance to embezzle funds from a local bank. This "pressure" becomes threats of violence when the guy's muscle, the mysterious Marcus Peyton (Shiek Mahmud-Bey), enters the picture. The stakes in the bombing case intensify once the bomber begins a dangerous game of Russian roulette with Coop, trying to outsmart him with increasingly intricate explosive devices. Eventually, the team lands upon a paranoid schizophrenic with links to all of the previous victims. As the episode draws to a close, the bomber plants his most sophisticated device, only to be thwarted and subsequently apprehended by Coop and Sam. In a shocking twist ending, Coop overcomes the challenge posed by the bomber, only to be abducted by Jack and later murdered by his lethal companion, "Jill" (Traci Lords).

Wr Charles Holland

Dir Felix Enriquez Alcala

2 - 5 POWER CORRUPTS

The VCTF team is on the trail of a serial killer who seems to be taking aim at people he deems corrupt. Three Chicago murders happen in quick succession: a former President of the Federal Reserve Board, a high class call-girl, and a Chicago policeman. Jim Henegar, the Chicago detective who is investigating the murders, is reluctant to relinquish control of the case, and becomes a hindrance to Sam and the team. The evidence leads to a Judge, whose son was corrupted in one way or another by the three victims. Their influence eventually led the son to be arrested and subsequently results in his murder while serving a year sentence in jail. After Henegar kills MacGruder in 'self-defense' Sam and Bailey testify before a panel of judges to try and prove that the Detective had committed murder in order to cover up his own history of corruption. However, they fail; it seems that corruption runs deep. Meanwhile Bailey, who is still healing from the shotgun wound inflicted by his daughter, Francis, receives an unexpected phone call from Francis who is on the run. Bailey emotionally tries to persuade her to return home, but she hangs up, disappearing once again. Also Jack rips down his wanted posters from post offices and sends the VCTF a package that includes his own artistic self portrait made from the hair and teeth of his past victims.

Wr Jeremy R. Littman

Dir Tucker Gates

2 - 6 OLD ACQUAINTANCE

Coop's death takes its toll on Sam and the rest of the VCTF team. Hoping it will help Sam to regroup emotionally, Bailey and Angel persuade her to join some of her old friends at a college reunion. There, she and Angel reunite with friends Colleen, Drew, Greg, Monica, Tracy, and Roy. An enjoyable holiday gathering quickly becomes a nightmare when Colleen is murdered. Angel and Monica urge Sam to investigate the case and bring their friend's killer to justice. All the evidence points to Colleen's husband Drew, whom Sam never liked. Soon another friend, Roy, who may have been a witness to the crime, is murdered. Sam sets out to prove Drew guilty of both crimes. Just when she finds the evidence she needs, Drew is found dead - the victim of an apparent suicide. Back in Atlanta, Sharon strikes out on her own and murders a shop clerk. The team investigates and starts to make headway in their search for Jack and his lethal accomplice. At Jack's lair, Sharon learns of Jack's obsession with Sam. In a jealous rage, she sets out to kill Sam. In an exciting climatic scene, she ambushes Sam in a mall parking lot. When an angry Jack shows up to stop Jill, Sam is able to get a shot off at her two assailants. When the dust settles, Sam wounds Jack just before he and Jill escape into the night.

Wr Dee Johnson

Dir Jack Bender

2 - 7 JACK BE NIMBLE, JACK BE QUICK

Once the prime suspect in the 'Old Acquaintance' murder mystery is found dead, Sam (Ally Walker) determines that one of her friends, Greg or Monica, is the likely killer. With the VCTF hot on his trail, a mortally wounded Jack escapes to his lair to recuperate from being shot by Sam. In attempting to pursue Jack, as well as the killer of her friends, Sam begins to wonder if it's all becoming a bit too overwhelming. Frances (Heather McComb) attempts to give herself a birthday 'present' by seducing John (Julian McMahon). The plan fails and John calls Sam to take the ever rebellious teen home to her father. This leads to Sam and Frances having a heart to heart in which the young woman shares a painful memory from her early upbringing. Bailey (Robert Davi) asks Marcus Peyton (Shiek Mahmud-Bey) to join the VCTF team and he accepts, to John's dismay. Sam uncovers evidence that points to Greg as the 'old Acquaintance' killer and she and Bailey apprehend him just as he tries to leave town. Back in Atlanta, the team corners Jack at a convalescent home, where he has gone to get painkilling drugs for his wound. The ever elusive Jack, however, hides in the body bag of one of the home's deceased residents and makes a clever escape. In an eerie final scene, Jack returns home to mother to nurse his now badly infected gunshot injury.

Wr George Geiger, Charles. D. Holland

Dir Jefery Levy

2 - 8 VICTIMS OF VICTIMS

AKA Sense of Completion When a murder occurs that bears all the markings of an unsolved serial case from the 1950's, Sam and the VCTF team are called in to investigate. Analysis of the case's forty year old evidence yields a fingerprint not previously detected. This enables the team to finally I.D. the killer, who turns out to have committed suicide prior to the most recent murder. Sam talks to a writer who researched the original case and learns of a young boy who claimed to have witnessed one of the crimes. That boy, whose story was not believed at the time, is later revealed to be the copycat killer. Jack recuperates from his gun shot wound at the home of his extremely wealthy, extremely deranged mother, Miriam. Meanwhile, Sharon (aka Jill) decides to redecorate Jack's lair by eliminating all traces of Sam. When a now healthy Jack returns to the lair, he is enraged by the changes Sharon has made. Sam's in-laws come to town to see Chloe perform in a school play and are angered when Sam is unable to attend at the last minute. Her absence results from Grace going in to labor while the team investigates a crime scene. Sam helps Grace deliver her baby boy and the team later celebrates the newest 'member' of the VCTF.

Wr Elaine Loeser

Dir John Patterson

2 - 9 BIRTHRIGHT

A killer's belief he was switched at birth leads him to kill those he feels stole his identity. Two men, born at the same time and in the same hospital as the killer, are brutally murdered. The VCTF is called in once the link between the two victims is established. Evidence leads the team to an insane woman who believes her baby was switched at birth. The woman swears the badly deformed baby she was given in the hospital, was actually the child of someone else. She was never able to prove that charge, and unfortunately for the baby given to her, she was a cruel and abusive parent. Sam quickly determines the killer is the product of this abuse. When the team and, accidentally, the killer learn that the mother's claim was proven invalid, Sam profiles the murderer will go after the one living health worker responsible for giving him over to a life of cruelty. Meanwhile, Jack kills his mother's butler once he learns the man has been following him at his mother's behest. Sam is concerned about Chloe when she feigns being sick in order to miss school. The problem is revealed to be that Chloe has to write an essay on her parent's occupation and she's afraid to talk about her mom's secret job. Mother and daughter have a heart to heart which eventually leads to Sam being the guest speaker in Chloe's class.

Wr Natalie Chaidez

Dir Bobby Roth

2 - 10 DYING TO LIVE

Two men are killed, and in both instances, their organs are mysteriously delivered to hospitals minutes before they are needed for transplant surgery. Sam and the team profile the murders and determine their suspect is someone who was probably an organ recipient in the past. Now he is returning the favor by providing organs for people with his same rare blood type. Eventually, the team sets up a sting that draws out the killer and culminates in the man committing suicide so that one last time, he can pass on the gift of life. Art Behar, Bailey's boss, sets him up to take a fall in a witness tampering scandal. John, Marcus, and George find the evidence that clears Bailey and nails Behar once and for all. Jack is displeased when he learns Sharon has struck up a friendship with the proprietor of a local newsstand. He ultimately kills the man to assert to Sharon that he is her one and ONLY friend. Chloe is followed by a man who continues to take her photograph. By episode end, it is learned that the man is a private investigator who has been hired by Sam's in-laws. The photographs will be used by the in-laws when they ultimately challenge Sam for Chloe's custody.

Wr Bob Lowry

Dir Jefery Levy

2 - 11 TIES THAT BIND

Ritualized murders are occurring in Atlanta and in neighboring states. The victims are stabbed and their homes are vandalized with gang-like graffiti. The VCTF is called in and their investigation soon focuses on the son of two of the victims. His calm, dispassionate demeanor suggests to Sam that the man may be a suspect in his own parents' murder. Further investigation reveals that the son is under the influence of a "Heaven's Gate"-like cult. Sam goes undercover to infiltrate the cult, but is deemed her unworthy for their collective. Sam theorizes that the cult's leader is making his disciples kill their families in order to prove their loyalty to him. The team sets up a sting to capture the leader, but are foiled when the cult's member, aware the VCTF is closing in, commit mass suicide by blowing up their compound. Frances causes discord between John and Bailey.

Wr Kim Moses, Ian Sander

Dir Ian Sander

2 - 12 SHOOT TO KILL

AKA Textbook Ohio's cities are being terrorized by a seemingly random sniper. Everyday citizens as well as police officers are being attacked. The state's governor summons the VCTF. Once on the scene, Sam, Bailey and the rest of the team are perplexed by the sniper's ability to shoot from increasingly longer distances. This ability reminds Bailey of an elite task force he encountered while serving in Vietnam. Bailey obtains from Casper, his intelligence source, the names of the task force members. Meanwhile, Sam uses clues left at the crime scenes to put together a profile that suggests the sniper is trying to create his own mythology, much like the Archer in Greek literature. George comes up with a suspect once he merges Casper's list and Sam's profile. Bailey, haunted by memories of the atrocities committed by the sniper task force, sets out to take down the killer and does so in the episode's exciting climax. John, George and Bailey look into Lou Handleman who has tried to discredit John by using Frances.

Wr George Geiger

Dir Jefery Levy

2 - 13 BLOOD LUST

The bodies of badly beaten men are being found in the Boston metropolitan area. Sam and the team quickly surmise these men were involved in some sort of deadly ultimate fighting match. Searching local hospitals, they find a participant in one of the fights. Though he reveals little, Sam is able to put together from talking to him and researching the backgrounds of the victims, that all were desperate men in need of money. All the men have a bookie in common and the team eventually gets this man to confess his role in the murders. It turns out he supplies the names of these desperate men to a man who then manipulates them to fight for money. He then coerces them with drugs to fight to the death so that he can satisfy his own demented bloodlust. To catch the fight's mastermind in the act, John goes undercover as one of the fighters. The episode concludes with Sam and the team racing to find John before he too becomes a victim of this lethal bloodsport.

Wr Sibyl Gardner

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

2 - 14 EVERY FIVE MINUTES

A serial rapist is terrorizing women in the Florida Panhandle. Sam and the VCTF are called in to investigate. The victims are able to provide the team with a number of clues which Sam uses to form her profile of the assailant. In the midst of the investigation, Sam butts heads with a local female sheriff. The woman continuously criticizes the VCTF's handling of the case and more importantly, their handling of the victims. In an emotional scene, Sam confronts the deputy and eventually learns the woman was once a rape victim herself. The two bond when they realize they both know what it is like to be the object of a deranged man's obsession. Meanwhile back in Atlanta, John and Marcus get a hot tip on the fugitive, Sharon Leshar. Desperate for cash, she has made it known on the street that she is looking for one of her old partners in crime. The episode concludes with the team springing a trap for Jack's "Jill." Sam corners Sharon as she tries to escape and momentarily wrestles with the idea of killing Jack's evil creation. She resists the temptation, and arrests Sharon instead. Once Sharon is in custody, the team celebrates their victory and makes the vow--Jack is next.

Wr Steve Feke

Dir Kim Moses

2 - 15 BREAKING POINT

A desperate father kidnaps Sam's roommate Angel in a last ditch effort to save his son from the electric chair. The man's son has recently been convicted of murder committed during a robbery. The father believes his son to be an innocent bystander and wants Sam and the VCTF to prove it. To save Angel, Sam and the VCTF investigate the case and find little, at first, to prove the man correct. The father gives them the names of two potential suspects and Sam interrogates both. She also talks with the incarcerated son. Her discussions, along with forensic evidence, lead Sam to determine the son is in fact innocent of the murder, but is unfortunately an accomplice in the robbery. Once she knows the truth, Sam is faced with the difficult task of telling the father what he least wants to hear, that his son is indeed guilty of a crime.

Wr Sibyl Gardner, Dee Johnson

Dir Ian Toynton

2 - 16 LETHAL OBSESSION

Sam and the VCTF investigate the "prime time kidnapper," a madman who has a pathological need for media attention and projects his mania onto an attractive but terrified local TV anchorwoman (guest star Anna Galvin) whom he wants to exclusively cover the prisoner exchanges. Elsewhere, Sam worries about what's really behind her daughter Chloe's reluctance to perform in the children's ballet, and the murderous Jack of All Trades makes plans for his imprisoned Jill.

Wr Charles. D. Holland

Dir Kees Van Oostrum

2 - 17 CYCLE OF VIOLENCE

A vigilante's series of murders leads the team to an eccentric cartoonist, whose work has influenced the killer. Sam receives an award from the American Association of Women in Law Enforcement.

Wr Stacy Codikow, Deidre Strohm

Dir Jack Bender

2 - 18 DIE BEAUTIFUL

VCTF is invited to an on-going investigation on the murder of a teen beauty. She was killed a year ago, and no arrests have been made so far. They find a killer on death row with matching breaking and entering technique, but Sam thinks the convict didn't kill his victims.

Wr Bob Lowry

Dir Ian Toynton

2 - 19 THE ROOT OF ALL EVIL (A 2 PART STORY)

The team tries to catch a diabolical killer determined to take revenge on people who are so blinded by their love of money that they can't see the repercussions their actions have on the other side of the world, starting with the setting off of incendiary car bombs outside a wealthy business office. The game between Jack and VCTF begins with Sharon as bait to lure Jack to the prison so they can catch him. But Jack has other plans. Meanwhile, Sam pays a visit to her long estranged father for the first time in 10 years. As she struggles to both deal with her father and the elusive avenging killer still committing bombings across the country, she soon makes the final connection to the killer in order to catch him.

Wr Ian Sander, Steve Feke, George Geiger

Dir Ian Sander

3 - 1 CORONATION

The day after Jack's clever escape from the prison after Samantha unsuccessfully tried to bait him and she killed Sharon instead, Samantha must look into herself in order to find him. Everything seems to point to her childhood which reveals that Jack has apparently stalked her all his life. Then, Jack abducts an infant, and tries to lure Sam into finding him in which the VCTF learns Jack's real identity (so it seems).

Wr Stephen Kronish

Dir Ian Toynton

3 - 2 CRAVINGS

The team investigates a serial rapist-turned-murderer in Illinois, whose sporadic timing of the attacks puzzles Sam as well as the connection between his victims whom are left in the woods. Sam figures out that the killer is an angry and frustrated married man taking out his rage and frustration on about-to-be-wed women. Meanwhile, with Jack-of-All-Trades (Donald Lucas) finally captured and imprisoned, Sam begins searching for a new house for her and Chloe.

Wr Clifton Campbell

Dir Jefery Levy

3 - 3 DO THE RIGHT THING

A killer who castrates the victims seems to be driven by feelings of public duty and legal responsibility. John gets into trouble through no fault of his own for something that appears in the press about the case.

Wr Linda McGibney

Dir Ian Toynton

3 - 4 DOUBLE VISION

Twelve residents of a small Alabama town have mysteriously disappeared. When one of the missing is found dead, the VCTF begins an investigation. Once on scene, Sam is confounded by the evidence retrieved. Whereas some evidence points to a domineering, controlling pathology, other evidence points to a more passive, sub-servient one. When Bailey pressures her to narrow her profile, Sam's anxiety builds and she begins to question her own abilities. Later, it is determined that there are two killers working together as a team- thus the reason for the conflicting profiles. One driven by the need for power and the other driven by his hero worship of his companion, the two have set out on a killing spree. Once the realization is made that there are two killers, Sam is greatly relieved to find out that her intuitive skills are still intact.

Wr Doris Egan

Dir Lee Bonner

3 - 5 THE SUM OF HER PARTS

Years of verbal and physical abuse take a deadly toll when its victim lashes out against his abuser. Unable to kill the actual perpetrator, his mother, the deranged man strikes those who remind him of the wretched woman. The team investigates and Sam accurately assesses the killer's pathology, but mistakenly assumes the man is actin out against his wife, not his mother. When the ages of the victims begins to rise, Sam realizes her error and theorizes that the killer is slowly working up the courage to murder his tormentor. The team then races to find the ill-fated woman before her son can exact his final revenge. B-Story- Sam realizes she and Chloe must begin a new life, and to that end, decides to move into a new home.

Wr Jason Cahill

Dir Cliff Bole

3 - 6 THE MONSTER WITHIN

The VCTF is called in to assist in a stalled investigation. Sam is leery to intercede, for her friend and former lover, Michael Westmore, is leading the investigation. The case revolves around a series of killings in which the victims have been burned alive. Once they begin their investigation, Sam and Bailey disagree about Michael's handling of the case. Whereas Sam feels her friend should be given some slack, Bailey feels the man's performance sub-par and should not be excused. Forensic evidence shows that the victims' eyes were the specific target to the killer. Sam uses her intuition and the evidence gathered to theorize the killer did not want to be seen by his victims. She later determines the man feels a great sense of shame, thus the reason he cannot bear to look someone eye to eye. Another victim is killed and Sam doubts whether the same killer is at work. It is later revealed that the copy cat killer is really Michael, using the same m.o. to cover up the murder of his mistress. Sam clues into the deception and is faced with the unenviable task of bringing a friend to justice.

Wr Jeff Pinkner

Dir Kristoffer Tabori

3 - 7 PERFECT HELEN

Someone in George's hometown is stealing the corpses of young, recently deceased Jewish women. George fears it is some form of Anti-Semitic vandalism. As for to George, Bailey allows he and Sam to investigate the rather atypical crime further. Once on scene, George and Sam learn that a Neo-Nazi group is alive and well in the town. Though evidence points to a member of the hate group, Sam feels the crimes are motivated by something other than Anti-Semitism. This theory takes shape once two of the stolen bodies are found undamaged, with minor cosmetic changes made to their person. Sam puts together a profile that characterizes the perpetrator as someone looking to create or re-create his vision of the perfect woman. Eventually, evidence points to a man who is insanely infatuated with a woman who works in his office. When the man kidnaps the object of his affection, Sam fears he will attempt to 'immortalize' his vision of perfect beauty for all eternity.

Wr Melinda Snodgrass

Dir James Quinn

3 - 8 HOME FOR THE HOMICIDE

It's 'Party of Five' run amok when the youngest member of an orphaned clan kills to keep his dysfunctional family together. The first murder occurs when the young man kills the boyfriend his sister is considering marrying. Her marriage would result in her leaving the family and that would be unacceptable. Throughout the episode, other people who pose such threats are quickly dispatched. Sam profiles the killer as someone who has felt loss and who is desperately trying to hold on to something he values. The VCTF eventually discovers this decidedly unconventional family and at first, mistakenly believe the physically abusive eldest brother is the killer. Sam soon realizes, however, that there is another, more emotionally immature force at work. Bailey realizes his ex-wife is seriously involved and considering remarriage. Chloe is upset when Sam invites her new boyfriend, Paul, over for Christmas.

Wr Jennifer Furlong

Dir Jeffrey Levy

3 - 9 ALL IN THE FAMILY

Fueled by the abuse they suffered as children, a brother and sister decide to save another child from the same unfortunate fate. To do this, however, the warped siblings kill the boy's parents as well as two of their employees. The VCTF investigate the mass murder and Sam immediately bonds with the abused boy. The parent has mob ties, so it is immediately assumed that their murder resulted from their illegal activities. Though skeptical of this scenario, Sam does not dispute it for that would result in the boy being held by the system until the murder is solved. Instead, the boy is immediately released to his uncle's custody. As the team investigates the crime further, they realize the boy's social worker, as well as his supposed 'uncle', are actually the brother-sister duo. Sam profiles the two who want to become surrogate parent for the boy and provide him with the idealized 'home' they never had. She further theorizes the boy must be found fast, before the disturbed couple realize parenting is much harder than they imagined. B-Story- Sam's estranged father returns and the two try to heal their strained relationship.

Wr Jason Cahill

Dir Chuck Bowman

3 - 10 CEREMONY OF INNOCENCE

One of Sam's first profiles resulted in a man being sentenced to death. Ten years later when the man is about to be executed, murders begin happening that match the m.o. of the prior killings. Ballistics evidence proves the same gun was used for all the crimes. Sam, feeling culpable for what might have been a deadly mistake, reopens the investigation. Evidence leads to a lowly bicycle courier who is mortally wounded when he resists arrest. Once the dying man is in custody, the death row inmate is released from prison. Though a wrong seems to have been righted, Sam still feels something is amiss. A chess set is found in the prisoner's cell helps her to realize that the whole thing was an elaborate ruse. The man originally convicted was indeed the first killer. The second killer was only a pawn doing his bidding. Sam, Bailey, and the team re-arrest the now pardoned killer at the hospital bed of his wounded puppet, just as he attempts to kill the only loose end in his elaborate plan.

Wr Doris Egan

Dir Vern Gillum

3 - 11 WHERE OR WHEN

A serial killer who kills with his bare hands leaves the bodies of his male victims at the Brown Derby, the Trocadero, and other Hollywood landmarks. Sam profiles the killer as someone trying to rectify some trauma he experienced in his past. The team follows a trail of clues that eventually leads them to a rather ordinary cab driver who does not seem to have the strength necessary to commit the crimes. A search of the man's apartment yields evidence however, that matches Sam's profile to the letter. The cab driver easily passes a lie detector test. The conflicting findings lead to the release of the man. It is later learned that all the victims were abusers of women. Sam soon realizes the man suffers from multiple personality disorder. His alter ego is a gangster-like tough guy who is bent on avenging the murder of the cab driver's abused mother forty years earlier. B-Story- Sam learns her scientist father participated in experiments that had deadly consequences.

Wr Linda McGibney

Dir Arthur W. Forney

3 - 12 INHERITENCE

People who seem to have nothing in common are being killed in the Southeast U.S. Grace's autopsy yields that all the victims has the same rare blood type. It then becomes clear all the victims were related. The team uncovers evidence that confirms all the victims were the children of a Charles Manson-like cult leader currently incarcerated in a Georgia psychiatric facility. Sam interviews the adoptive parent of one of the remaining children and quickly surmises their son is the killer. She theorizes that he is killing his siblings to 'cleans' himself of his deadly lineage. Once he kills his last target, the young man practically surrenders to police. Sam wonders why the murderer gives up so easily, and soon realizes it's just a piece of the plan that leads back to the cult leader father. The team races to the psychiatric facility where the father is being held. The son has had himself transferred there so that he might kill his father and finally make his cleansing complete. B-Story- Sam confronts her father about his unethical experiments.

Wr Jason Cahill, Doris Egan

Dir Jon Cassar

3 - 13 HEADS, YOU LOSE

Someone is killing the young and beautiful in Florida's trendy South Beach. The killer compounds his grizzly crimes by decapitating his victims and leaving their heads on public display for all to see. Sam profiles that the killer is striking against the beautiful people as a result of his low self-esteem. She further theorizes the man may have once been part of the glamorous elite, but has for some reason fallen from grace. His banishment now fuels his rage. Evidence eventually points to a young shipping magnate who has unwisely squandered his multi-million dollar inheritance on South Beach's cosmopolitan lifestyle. Instead of blaming himself, he is now striking out at those who helped him spend his fortune. B-Story- Grace attempts to reconcile the strained relationship she has with her mother. Also, the local detective on the case falls for Sam and tries everything he can to land a date.

3 - 14 OTIS, CALIFORNIA

When Donald Lucas, the imprisoned Jack-of-All Trades killer, managed to hack onto the Internet, Bailey fears that he is communicating with a disciple. The investigation leads the VCTF to a small northern California town, named Otis, which is plagued by supersition and a series of Jack-of-All-Trade murders. With the assistance of the friendly but eccentric Sheriff Ed Post, Sam, Bailey and the team try to find the suspect. But George gets abducted by the suspect, whom is connected to a reclusive, wheelchair-bound professor, named Philip Mendez, whom is later found murdered. The search leads to an underground lab where Sam discovers her father once worked there for his government-sponsored mind-control experiments that Lucas had also worked on.

Wr Josh Appelbaum, André Nemec

Dir Richard Compton

3 - 15 SPREE OF LOVE

A series of murders across the Southwest USA leads Sam and the VCTF team to an unlikely couple: a 32-year-old woman, Josie Wells, and a 16-year-old boy, Alex Lopez, who apparently abducted her from her child's soccer field in Boulder, Colorado. Sam figures out that the woman was apparently the victim of physical abuse as a child and has abandoned her unhappy and lonely married life and reliving her glory days with the boy she met on a counseling phone line. Meanwhile, Bailey tries to reason with his ex-wife, Janet, not to remarry for he feels she's throwing her own life away.

Wr Clifton Campbell

Dir Jefery Levy

3 - 16 BURNT OFFERINGS

Sam and the team try to catch a mystic arsonist on the loose in Atlanta. Sam profiles that he apparently risks his own life by setting the fires himself on the spot. After a red herring lead involving a photographer always on the scene of the fires, Sam and the team find graffiti messages on walls of the burned out buildings in Farsi meaning 'fire god.' The man is apparently seeking a 'chosen one' immune to fire in order take him to the afterlife to meet his deceased wife. Meanwhile, Sam is worried about Chloe when she becomes emotionally withdrawn when one of her classmates becomes a victim in one of the fires.

Wr Melinda Snodgrass

Dir Kristoffer Tabori

3 - 17 THREE CARAT CRISIS

Sam and Bailey get caught up in a jewel heist by a trio of mentally unbalanced crooks, named Randy, Kate and Stevie, that quickly turns into a hostage situation within the jewelry store. They struggle to profile the perpetrators and their relationships with one another before any lives are lost. While Sam tries to reason with the ringleader, Randy, to give up, John quarrels with the overzealous police commander outside who wants to catch or kill all the perpetrators even if it means that all hostages will be killed.

3 - 18 SEDUCTION

George and Sam go undercover as IRS agents at Borden & Associates, a management office in Palm Beach, Florida, because five of the clientele have been murdered with one finger from their left hand missing. As Sam profiles the most likely suspect, Bobby O'Hara, whom shows a strong interest in her, the firm's shadowy security chief, Leo Cantrell, becomes suspicious of Sam's true identity. Meanwhile, Kevin Miller, an arrogant FBI agent working the case, complicates the investigation much to Bailey's worry for Sam's safety and Miller's indifference to otherwise, while John works with the local police detective, Lt. Cynthia Ford, in discovering the bodies.

Wr Steve Feke

Dir Ian Toynton

3 - 19 GRAND MASTER

Sam continues to study the case of Bryce Banks, a 13-year-old chess prodigy, whose life might still be in danger and deals with 'Pretender' Jarod (impersonating a police detective named Doyle) whom is looking after Bryce. Her fears are proven right when Bryce disappears. Sam and Jarod suspect the enigmatic Father (aka: Ronald Dain) is using the boy in his revenge plans by killing all the members of a top-secret project 20 years before involving brainwashing. Meanwhile, Sam grows more suspicious of Jarod's true origins and finally discovers his fugitive life status.

Wr Jason Cahill

Dir Vern Gillum

3 - 20 LA BRISAS (90 MINS)

Donald Lucas' trial begins as the team heads out to Mexico where in the small town of Las Brisas, women have been vanishing without a trace for the past year, and some corpses have been discovered. But their investigation is hampered on both sides of the border by the corrupt police chief, Miguel Villalobos, whom is under the thumb of a U.S. sheriff, J.D. Tollman, whom try to derail the VCTF's investigation when the murders lead to a powerful U.S. businessman, named James Lofton, running a textile factory in Las Brisas and has been in the company of local prostitutes, some of whom ended up as victims. While assisting Marta Fernandez, a loyal policewoman with the investigation, Sam and the group commute back and forth to Atlanta for Lucas' trial with testimony from her, Bailey, George, against Lucas. Also testifying on Sam's behalf is Sheriff Ed Post from Otis, California whom, unknown to everyone, is actually the real Jack-of-All-Trades whom has been in hiding all this time and is using Lucas, his disciple, to get closer to Sam.

Wr Stephen Kronish, Clifton Campbell

Dir Lee Bonner

3 - 21 WHAT'S LOVE GOT TO DO WITH IT?

Sam and Bailey work with FBI field agent Susan Marsh whom is tracking Robert Lee Gregg, a conservative civic leader in Atlanta whom is suspected in the killing of six gay men. But their investigation is happened by Susan's former boyfriend, Richard Russell, whom is stalking her. Susan insists she's in control of the situation, but Bailey thinks otherwise when her boyfriend is found murdered and Russell is a suspect. Things get worse when Russell targets Bailey and his ex-wife Janet whom are now back together. Meanwhile, Sam leaves the investigation and travels to Miami to investigate the disappearance of a local man who may be connected to the Gregg killings, and she finds herself being perused by Mario Monagno (from the 'Heads, You Lose' episode) whom still wants to date her.

Wr Barry M. Schkolnick

Dir Richard Compton

4 - 1 REUNION

The day after getting shot by the real Jack-of-All-Trades, a wounded Bailey calls upon FBI profiler Rachel Burke to find Sam after Jack kidnaps her and subjects her to tortuous mind games by confining her within an abandoned warehouse and trying to get her to be like him in killing to achieve a sense of superiority. In the meantime, Rachel quickly weeds out the self-serving confessions of Donald Lucas whom she correctly assumes was a pawn in Jack's game and by questioning Samantha's father about her history, finally learns Jack's real identity as Albert Newquay and of his methods.

Wr Stephen Kronish

Dir Lee Bonner

4 - 2 REUNION, CONCLUSION

A kidnapped Sam (Ally Walker) stalls for time as the murderous Jack of All Trades (Dennis Christopher) twists the facts hoping to convince her that she too will kill -- when the subject and timing are right -- while a recovering Bailey (Robert Davi) and new profiler Rachel Burke (Jamie Luner) grope for clues about Jack's hideout. But Jack shows a new card when he lures Sam's young daughter, Chloe (Evan Rachel Wood), into his web of deceit by convincing her that her mother was responsible for her father's slaying.

Wr Hans Beimler

4 - 3 OLD GHOSTS

An obsessed Malone is haunted by an unsolved case in Georgia concerning several teenaged girls who were slain with a knife 15 years ago, and when more older victims are suddenly found - marked with slashes on their bodies -- his focus zeroes in on their original prime suspect who has resurfaced in the area. Once he has the VCTF team on board, he enlists Rachel's help to connect the two crime sprees but his decision to exhume the earlier victims understandably draws the wrath of their ever-grieving parents.

4 - 4 INFIDELITY

When Rachel and Bailey investigate a series of Ohio murders in which the mutilated victims are cheating husbands, they suspect that the killer is the vengeful boyfriend (guest star L.L. Ginter) of a woman (guest star Amanda Wyss) common to all of the dead men -- until she offers an unconvincing confession. Meanwhile, the VCTF team must contend with a local sheriff who wants to join their force, Grace must deal with her crumbling marriage and new pregnancy, and George is left limping after a painful car accident

4 - 5 TO SERVE AND PROTECT

When a series of random murder victims are found on the streets of St. Louis, Rachel and the VCTF team believe the slayer is a military veteran who uses weapons of opportunity, and their focus shifts to an incoherent, ranting homeless person (guest star Jeremy Roberts) who fits the profile. However, Rachel wonders if she should widen her field of suspects to include any ex-serviceman -- and trained killer -- who is susceptible to an altered state psychosis. Back at headquarters, computer whiz George ignores his increasing reliance on prescription pain pills while recovering from a car accident.

4 - 6 ORIGINAL SIN

As Christmas nears, Rachel and the VCTF work into the night in search of a twisted serial killer (guest star Ben Bode) who goes online to select his victims, all of whom are carefully screened, seeking a candidate he can make over into his ideal woman. At the same time, Rachel is surprised when her troubled brother, Danny (guest star Rafael Sbarge), drops in from out of town and displays telltale signs of substance abuse. Also, Rachel confronts George about his own addiction to pain pills and other drugs.

4 - 7 TRAIN MAN

Rachel and Bailey respond to the growing list of isolated elderly men and women who are strangled while riding the rails in the Southwest, and Rachel notes cigarette burns that indicate the young killer (guest star Samuel Bliss Cooper) must have been a victim of abuse as well. While the slayer eyes his next targets, the VCTF theorizes that the dead must be surrogates for an angry drifter who feels rejected by society

4 - 8 QUID PRO QUO

Rachel and the VCTF team search for a serial killer (guest star Greg Kean) who strangles women with knots of their own hair, but when the latest victim proves to be the daughter of powerful mob boss James Perrone (guest star Ray Wise), the FBI profiler must gain the grieving father's confidence to learn more about her habits. Meanwhile, Rachel is under pressure from the Bureau's Organized Crime Division to take advantage of her access to Perrone and wear a wire to trick him into confessing to a fellow mobster's murder, thereby ending a lengthy investigation.

4 - 9 CLEAN SWEEP

The action continues in Part 2 when "The Pretender's" Jarod (Michael T. Weiss) and the FBI's Rachel Burke discover that the two dirty Secret Service agents, who are their most direct link to the killers of a fellow agent, are found slain, forcing them to begin their investigation all over again. However, while romantic sparks fly between the pair, Jarod suddenly disappears and is tortured by the murderer (as Baxter, guest star TBA), who is on a crazed mission to eliminate everyone he thinks is involved in the agency's corruption.

4 - 10 RANDOM ACT

While shopping in a convenience store with his girlfriend Kate (guest star Samantha Smith), Agent John

Grant intercedes during a robbery, but when Kate is wounded and fights for her life, Rachel and Bailey are concerned that he will mete out his own justice outside the law. Even John's shooting of a suspect comes under review, prompting him to angrily resign and grapple with his overwhelming emotions of guilt for Kate's grave condition

4 - 11 BESIEGED

When Rachel visits her old college to appear on a radio call-in show to discuss a series of ongoing sexual assaults on campus, the case takes a peculiar personal turn when the rapist repeatedly dials up to mock her on-air, prompting an ongoing mind game of cat-and-mouse between them. On other fronts, Rachel finds herself drawn again to an old flame (guest star Mark Dobies) who is now married to her good friend and later meets the therapist (guest star Joe Flanigan) assigned to her brother's drug rehabilitation. Likewise, George slips in his shaky bid to end his own addiction to painkillers.

4 - 12 PROTEUS

After a police officer and other authority figures are found stabbed in the backs, Rachel centers her investigation on a young woman, Pamela (guest star Marcia Cross), who is reported to have assumed multiple identities which probably spring from memories of early child abuse. But Rachel faces an even greater personal threat from an FBI honcho (guest star Gregory Itzin) who has falsely accused her of forcing a sexual relationship of a subordinate -- a charge that could ruin her career. Elsewhere, Bailey confronts George over his reliance on prescription drugs and orders him to get help.

4 - 13 PARADISE LOST

Rachel, Bailey and the team head to Yosemite National Park where a maniac brutally killed a mother and her two daughters, and while circumstantial evidence points to a local outlaw biker (guest star Douglas Bennett), Rachel constructs a different suspect profile -- one who feels remorse and might have sibling issues. Meanwhile, George's lingering substance abuse problem causes a dangerous embarrassment for Bailey and the VCTF just as an attractive Congresswoman (guest star Erin Gray, "Silver Spoons") begins an investigation of the unit, and she is most impressed by Bailey. Back at home, Rachel's budding romance with her brother's (guest star Raphael Sbarge, "Message In A Bottle") drug counselor (guest star Joe Flanigan, "Providence") hits a snag.

4 - 14 THE LONG WAY HOME

A tormented Rachel must push aside her personal nightmares when she realizes that a disturbed child slayer (guest star Harry Groener, "Buffy The Vampire Slayer"), whom she could not convict as a prosecutor years before, has resumed kidnapping young girls and putting them in gilded cages where he worships them as virginal "princesses." At the same time, Rachel is troubled by the sudden disappearance of her drug-addicted brother (guest star Raphael Sbarge) from a halfway house and her romantic relationship with therapist Tom (guest star Joe Flanigan, NBC's "Providence") enters a new stage. Also, George frets about the hot shot computer whiz (guest star Judith Moreland) who's temporarily replaced him while he's on leave due to his own struggle with narcotics.

4 - 15 HOUSE OF CARDS

A desperate Rachel and the VCTF team cast about wildly to quickly form a profile of an anonymous sniper who's perched atop the pump house of a dam with a commanding view of his victims in an adjoining park, but their options are limited out of fear that the shooter may have wired explosives that could inundate downtown Atlanta. While the body count rises, John risks his life to save some trapped patrons and Rachel suspects the murderer might be an enraged husband whose philandering wife (guest star Saxon Trainor) is pinned down with her lover.

4 - 16 ME CULPA

Rachel and the team search for a serial killer who does not seem to follow a pattern following the abduction of a 10-year-old boy from a local diner. Meanwhile, Bailey must testify before a congressional subcommittee to save VCTF funding which is threatened to be cut off by Congresswoman Archer. Also, Rachel find that her apartment was broken into and the audiotape she made of Joel Marks confessing to planting a wire on her (in the Proteus episode) has reappeared in the court dockets where Marks is dismissed from the FBI and vows revenge against Rachel.

4 - 17 PIANISSIMO

When a talented concert pianist is found slain, Rachel suspects the victim's prodding parents until she discovers the young woman was pregnant and that her baby was forcibly delivered and kidnapped. But her biggest surprise comes when Jarod re-surfaces at her door. While the two indulge their mutual romantic passion, Jarod's mission is to help her deal with the threat posed by Marks, a fugitive FBI agent who delights in tormenting her.

4 - 18 ON YOUR MARKS

In the season finale, Rachel is emotionally distraught after her brother's death and she's further rattled by the mind games played by wanted ex-Agent Marks, who she believes is responsible for a series of murders, but Marks needs her to accomplish his own agenda. Malone has even more concerns when he is ordered to conduct a performance review of his VCTF members as rumors fly in Congress that the elite unit will be disbanded.

4 - 19 TSURIS

As Rachel continues to be spooked by Marks, she and the team investigate a series of murders of businessmen who were all involved with the same woman.

Wr Marg Rubel

Dir P. J. Pesce

PROJECT UFO

This series, described by US critics as 'National Enquirer television' and allegedly based on real events, followed the investigations of the American Air Force's Project Blue Book. Major Jake Gatlin and his sidekick Sgt Harry Fitz were assigned to look into reported UFO sightings of 'high strangeness' and 'high credibility' across America.

Each episode was listed as an 'incident' and ranged from a rancher and his family being assaulted by alien creatures (The Howard Crossing incident), an airliner chased by a boomerang-shaped craft (The Medicine Bow Incident) and a whole rash of high-flying careers jeopardised because sightings aroused disbelief. In one episode (The Rock and Hard Place Incident) Gatlin and Fitz even have a sighting of their own. In Season Two, a new investigator, Capt. Ben Ryan joined the team, but the formula was the same, with the subjects telling their tales to the Blue Book boys.

An early forerunner of pseudo-documentary series such as Sightings, and modern cult dramas such as The X Files. Executive producer for the series was Jack Webb, laconic star of the vintage crime series Dragnet. The series first played in Britain in May 1979 in the Southern region. London, Anglia and TSW were the other areas to see both seasons. Yorkshire, Tyne Tees, Scottish and Ulster opted out altogether.

Jack Webb, master of realistic police drama (Dragnet, Adam 12) absorbed himself in the Air Force's "Project Blue Book" analysis of unidentified flying objects, and dramatised the reports that just couldn't be covered up or dismissed. Kind of a "X Files" ahead of its time, this show also had a gritty authenticity that some viewers took to be straight documentary. Hard-core UFO believers point out that the series was produced by Colonel William T. Coleman, who was the genuine Project Blue-Book head, and was therefore a cover-up disguised as fiction but all too true.

Project U.F.O. was a series devised by Jack Webb (of Dragnet fame) to give a docu-drama account of the Air Force's investigation into U.F.O.s (Unidentified Flying Objects). To attain a degree of authenticity, Webb hired former Air Force Colonel William T. Coleman to produce the series. Col. Coleman had been in charge of the Air Force's Project Blue Book, the Air Force's U.F.O. investigation. Viewers of the programme were advised that if they should sight a U.F.O. not to call the Air Force since Project Blue Book had been abandoned in 1969 after determining U.F.O.s posed no threat to our national security.

The episodes all followed the same basic formula. At the beginning one or more U.F.O.s would be sighted. These encounters would be played out with an extensive use of detailed models and elaborate special effects. The Air Force would then be called in and Major Gatlin (later Captain Ryan) and his aid Sgt. Fitz would be sent to investigate the sighting. They would arrive on the scene and interview the people who saw the U.F.O and check out the site of the sighting for physical evidence. By the end of the episode they would reveal their conclusions of the sighting.

Since the episodes were all based on actual cases from Project Blue Book. it was not at all surprising that they never turned out to be men from Mars The U.F.O.s themselves got explained away as atmospheric phenomena, weather balloons, swamp gas. airplanes or hoaxes either perpetrated on or by the person reporting the incident. On only one occasion were our investigators unable to come up with the explanation for the sighting During the 1977-78 TV season Project U.F.O. became the only science fiction programme to break into the top 20 rated shows in America, placing in at #19.

The series producer was Col. William T. Coleman and the music was created by Nelson Riddle. For the UK the first series was seen on Southern television, from the 17th May - 9th August 1979, with the second series appearing on the 3rd January - 10th April 1980. The series was seen on NBC in the US.

Hollywood likes trends. When Star Wars blasted across film screens in 1977, Battlestar Galactica was television's answer. When Superman flew through the theaters of America in 1978, the three TV networks answered with their own superhero programs in Greatest American Hero, Powers of Matthew Star, Spiderman, Wonder Woman and The Incredible Hulk. But when Close Encounters of the Third Kind made us look to the skies in 1977, Jack Webb, a producer most famous for Dragnet, was clever to recognize that Project Blue Book's declassification by an act of Congress was an opportunity to dramatize the cases in a one-hour television format.

Actor William Jordan, who played Maj. Jake Gatlin on the show's first season, recalls that Project UFO was not the show he hoped it would be. "What was unfortunate was Jack was a very bright, innovative mind, but he was unable to go in any other direction other than his success with Dragnet," explains Jordan. "Most of his storytelling cramped in terms of his dimensions. My character, Maj. Jake Gatlin, had no other life other than just being with his sergeant and traveling around and interviewing people. He had no family life, he had no dimension. I think that was the fault of the show. There was never any further dimension. It made them out to be cardboard characters.

"We were the number-one rated show for a season. This was about the same time that Close Encounters of the Third Kind came out. It was very timely, and people were very curious. The first several shows were very promising of what might be revealed that the Air Force perhaps covered up for years. [But] Jack, even though he was a very talented man ... didn't want input into his ideas."

Jordan candidly reveals that "Jack and I parted in that series after about a year, because he was intolerant, not wanting suggestions. What about showing that we have a life of some kind other than just Air Force staff? Don't I have a wife? Don't I have a family? Don't I have friends? If you give people the same thing every week, in that same tone of voice like Dragnet, for two, three or four years, that's pretty boring stuff." Jordan is kinder to his co-star on the show, Caskey Swaim. "Caskey was a very pleasant, Co-operative actor ... He did a very nice character that he developed, and he had a very nice quality."

To properly adapt casefiles for a prime-time TV series, it was necessary to "dramatize" the events and structure them to be entertaining and accessible. As Jordan explains, "It's not so much fictionalized as Jack chose to put them together in a fashion that fit his purposes at the time. There were some liberties taken. The way they compiled, so to speak, the story construction. It's part of television to be aware of the constraints of time and the needs for the hour to fill. I never got to be a contributor in the sense of seeing the original Project Blue Book stories. I was never given that opportunity."

Jordan laments that if the producers had been more creative and allowed the show wider parameters, "we would have been a much more profound experience for everyone." Jordan also wanted stories that were more pointed about the phenomenon of UFOs. "I felt there was more to be learned had we sought the direction of trying to be bold in storytelling. In the outcome of the episodes, a lot of the resolutions were very matter-of-fact and there were no abstractions. In my way of thinking, it would have been better had there been more mysterious stories rather than the indirect reference to balloons and gases. In many cases, we had open-and-shut cases."

As to his own thoughts about UFOs, Jordan wonders if Air Force personnel know more than they are revealing, "and don't quite know how to disseminate to people. I think they don't know how to make them palatable." Lots of viewers thought Jordan did know all about the Project Blue Book. He reports that fans assumed he knew much more than he ever revealed on the show, and they would write to him asking for more information.

"If I wrote back and told them I didn't know a lot of them would be disappointed or be angry that I would not be forthcoming with information. There was a resentment sometimes that I would not be able to answer their questions about the phenomena. Because I'm on television playing an Air Force officer doing this, I must have knowledge of a lot more than I would be able to tell them."

If Jordan looked official and well cast in the role of Maj. Gatlin, it was because he did serve in the Air Force and served time in the Korean War in 1959. "It was not like I needed training to be an Air Force officer," he says. "I spent three years and nine months as an officer." As a result of Jordan's background, he rightly could call himself an authority in the portrayal of such military men. "I used to have a lot of differences [with Webb] about military bearing and behavior I would have as an Air Force officer, as opposed to nuts-and-bolts, stilted kind of Dragnet qualities that were sometimes imposed on me. I felt I had a beam on the character and what this character might think as opposed to military bearing imposed on certain projects like this. After all, these characters are people first."

When Jordan left the show at the end of its first year, actor Edward Winter took over as Capt. Ben Ryan, while Caskey Swaim carried on. The show was canceled after 13 episodes. In the end, Jordan remarks that "Every time I run into someone who was at NBC and knew the show, they would say, 'We're sorry we didn't listen to you more closely, and that we let Mr. Webb influence us so drastically.'"

CAST NOTES

William Jordan (Maj. Jake Gatlin): Born in Milan, Indiana, Jordan has acted in many TV movies and series. He's well known for The Disappearance of Aimee (1976), The Trial of Lee Harvey Oswald (1977), King (1978) and Friendly Fire (1979). Series appearances include Lou Grant, The Rockford Files, The Magician and Mannix. Today, Jordan continues to be active with books-on-cassette narrations and TV movies.

Ed Winter (Capt. Ben Ryan): This Ventura, California-born actor is most memorable as the crazed CIA agent Col. Flagg in *M*A*S*H*. His guest roles on television have been varied. TV movie appearances include Eleanor and Franklin, Perry Mason: The Case of the Notorious Nun, Stranded and The Christmas Gift.

Caskey Swaim (Sgt. Harry Fitz): Born in Lexington, North Carolina. Only six months prior to landing Project UFO, Swaim was a starstruck bellhop at Hyatt House on the Sunset Strip. His first motion picture was a role in Henry Winkler and Harrison Ford's vehicle, Heroes. Acting was his dream since childhood; he saw his first play when he was seven years old, and by nine he was imitating Elvis Presley. After an 18-month tour of duty in the Army, including service in Okinawa, Swaim moved to Los Angeles to pursue an acting career.

WR. Harold Jack Bloom, Donald L. Gold, Sean Baine, Robert Blee, Michael Donovan, James E. Moser, T.S. Cook, Andrew Burke and Buck Houghton.

DIR. Rich Greer, Robert Leeds, Richard Moder, Dennis Donnelly and Richard Quine.

EPISODES: 26 YEAR MADE: 1978 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 2

A MARK VIII LTD PRODUCTION IN ASSOCIATION WITH NBC TELEVISION

CREATOR: HAROLD JACK BLOOM

TYPE OF SHOW: UFO

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 60 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 13, (2) 13

DATE OF PREMIER: 19/02/1978 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 19/07/1979

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Major Jake Gatlin WILLIAM JORDON (1), Staff Sergeant Harry Fitz CASKEY SWAIN, Libby Viridon
ALDINE KING, Captain Ben Ryan EDWARD WINTER (2).

1 - 1 THE WASHINGTON DC INCIDENT

A US Air Force pilot sites a UFO and gives chase until over Washington D.C. he plummets to his death.

Wr Harold Jack Bloom

Dir Richard Quine

1 - 2 THE JOSHUA FLATS INCIDENT

Several prominent citizens see a UFO and the airforce is called in.

Wr Harold Jack Bloom

Dir Robert M. Leeds

1 - 3 THE FREMONT INCIDENT

A police officer is ridiculed after claiming to see a strange alien craft and two astronaut-type figures. Gatlin and Fitz investigate sightings by Robert Lee Armstrong and Henry Marsden. Marsden reports that the air force tried to shoot down a UFO and he has evidence that fell through the roof of his barn.

Wr Donald L. Gold, Lester William Berke

Dir Sigmund Neufeld Jr.

1 - 4 THE HOWARD CROSSING INCIDENT

Strange, extraterrestrial creatures attack a rancher and his family and Jake Gatlin recalls the time he chased a UFO and nearly caught it.

Wr Donald L. Gold, Lester William Berke

Dir Robert M. Leeds

1 - 5 THE MEDICINE BOW INCIDENT

A boomerang-shaped craft chases Mid-America Flight 54 piloted by Captain Ed Mason and co-pilot Brad Everett. Meanwhile, in Medicine Bow, Wyoming, Gus Shaftner lets it be know that he thinks the U.S. Air Force is covering up his story about being attacked by aliens after being taken aboard a UFO.

Wr Sean Baine

Dir Dennis Donnelly

1 - 6 THE NEVADA DESERT INCIDENT

A U.S. Air Force lieutenant risks his career and marriage after he reports seeing four metallic objects and a mother ship.

Wr Robert Blees

Dir Robert M. Leeds

1 - 7 THE FOREST CITY INCIDENT

Two high school seniors, parked in the woods with their dates see a UFO and a duck hunter claims to have a photograph of a flying saucer.

Wr Donald L. Gold

Dir Dennis Donnelly

1 - 8 THE DESERT SPRINGS INCIDENT

An enormous UFO pursues an agent and a writer as they ride to a California resort in Desert Springs. Also, an old woman claims she was visited by aliens who offered to take her to the planet Venus.

Wr Donald L. Gold

Dir Robert M. Leeds

1 - 9 THE FRENCH INCIDENT

When the son of a presidential envoy is abducted by a flying saucer, Gatlin and Fitz are ordered by the White House to investigate the incident.

Wr Donald L. Gold

Dir Sigmund Neufeld Jr.

1 - 10 THE WATERFORD INCIDENT

Boys at a military school become involved with a strange substance from a UFO. Also, a hunter is attacked by a robot.

Dir Dennis Donnelly

1 - 11 THE DOLL HOUSE INCIDENT

Strange alien beings offer a strange loaf of bread to Carl Youngstrom in exchange for a jug of water. The aliens want him to eat the lotus-shaped bread but he manages to save some as evidence.

Wr Robert Blees

Dir Robert M. Leeds

1 - 12 THE ROCKET AND A HARD PLACE INCIDENT

Gatlin and Fitz find themselves under investigation after they witness a flying saucer leaving a trail of exploding colors over a restaurant.

Wr Robert Blees

Dir Dennis Donnelly

1 - 13 THE ST. HILLARY INCIDENT

Two nuns in New Mexico, Sister Lucy Ryker and Sister Anne, report seeing a UFO and a cryptic message about its return. The Archbishop pressures them to change their story.

Wr James E. Moser

Dir Robert M. Leeds

2 - 1 THE UNDERWATER INCIDENT

New partners Captain Ben Ryan and Harry Fitz investigate the report of a UFO ramming a charter boat. During their investigation they must try to rescue marine biologist Eve Summers who becomes trapped underwater.

Wr Steve Downing, Margaret Armen, Alf Harris, Robert Blees

Dir John Patterson

2 - 2 THE DEVILISH DAVIDSON LIGHTS INCIDENT

After three college professors report a pair of V-shaped UFO's, the crafts are witnessed again.

Wr Robert Blees

Dir John Patterson

2 - 3 THE PIPELINE INCIDENT

Tim Jenkins, a cargo plane navigator, mysteriously changes his story about a UFO sighting.

Wr Andrew Burke

Dir Robert M. Leeds

2 - 4 THE INCIDENT ON THE CLIFFS

A young mentally ill woman films blue and white UFOs as evidence for Project UFO.

Wr Greg Heffernan

Dir Robert M. Leeds

2 - 5 THE WILD BLUE YONDER INCIDENT

A student pilot is threatened with expulsion after seeing a UFO and recklessly diving to earth trying to chase it. Her boyfriend, however, is keeping information from her and the school's officials.

Wr Robert Blees

Dir Rich Greer

2 - 6 THE BELIEVE IT OR NOT INCIDENT

A student says aliens have warned him via lasers and music that the Earth will be taken over unless pollution is cleaned up.

Wr Donald L. Gold, George F. Slavin

Dir John Patterson

2 - 7 THE CAMOUFLAGE INCIDENT

A businessman films a UFO after it attacks him and two other men but he does not want to part with the evidence. Also, a man claims to have UFO debris in his garage.

Wr Robert C. Dennis

Dir Robert M. Leeds

2 - 8 THE ISLAND INCIDENT

A Brilliant doctor and three natives of a South Pacific Island see a small UFO fly out of a huge mothership - but the Islanders later deny the sighting.

Wr Donald L. Gold, Andrew Burke, Ben Masselink

Dir Robert M. Leeds

2 - 9 THE SUPERSTITION MOUNTAIN INCIDENT

A young student finds two small artifacts of pure magnesium left in a mine by a UFO. A gypsy warns the boy not to tell anyone.

Wr Larry Alexander, George F. Slavin

Dir Lawrence Dobkin

2 - 10 THE I-MAN INCIDENT

A large UFO hovers over a 10-year-old on a beach who says it played her a message sent from Earth into space 15-years ago.

Wr Buck Houghton

Dir Richard Moder

2 - 11 THE SCOUTMASTER INCIDENT

A Vietnam vet sees a UFO. Scouting with children in the hills, the scoutmaster receives burns from the UFO encounter.

Wr Albert Aley, George F. Slavin

Dir Robert M. Leeds

2 - 12 THE ATLANTIC QUEEN INCIDENT

An officer onboard the luxury liner Atlantic Queen sees a UFO while crossing the Atlantic. The captain of the ship accuses him of making it all up to further his career. There is, however, another witness.

Wr Donald L. Gold

Dir Robert M. Leeds

2 - 13 THE WHITMAN TOWER INCIDENT

An L.A. Air Traffic Controller spots a UFO on his scanner. Later, residents of an apartment are startled by the appearance of a UFO outside their window.

Wr T.S. Cook

Dir Rich Greer

PSI FACTOR: CHRONICLES OF THE PARANORMAL

Mostly an anthology series which presents stories that range from fantasy to science fiction. Typical stories include 'UFO Encounter' in which OSIR investigate the disappearance of two boys. 'Man out of Time' in which a man claims to have travelled from the 17th Century into the present. 'The Infestation' in which the OSIR have to investigate the mysterious deaths of NASA scientists.

Mirror Dimensions, Human Teleportation, mind control, material transfer, strange creatures, reincarnation. UFOs. Time Loops. All of these are the regular stomping ground of X-Files wannabe, Psi Factor. We've seen a whole slew of shows over the years which have endeavoured to cash in on the success of the X FILES, including THE BURNING ZONE, Poltergeist : The Legacy and DARK SKIES. Doubtless the motivation for creating Psi Factor was no less cynical. However, as a rather more blatant attempt to put a different spin on the concept, Psi Factor is a rather good substitute for the 'real thing' and will almost certainly satisfy the voracious appetite of X Files fans who are hungry for more of the same. All but one of the twenty two episodes of the show's first season consisted of two half hour long episodes. The final episode of the first season and subsequent second episodes are in the more familiar one hour format, bringing the show even more in line with the style of THE X FILES. Unlike the X FILES though, Psi Factor has a host in the unlikely form of Ghostbusters start Dan Ackroyd who tops and tails story with a few words of wisdom.

Ackroyd, who is mainly known for his comedy roles, may seem a strange choice to host a show that has quite a series tone. It is claimed thought that Ackroyd has been a life long student of the paranormal and it was he who was instrumental in persuading the Office of Scientific Investigation and Research (OSIR) to release its files on which the shows episodes are allegedly based. As is purports to present dramatisations or real-life OSIR cases, Psi Factor is made in a pacy documentary style. Much of the camerawork is hand-held and the initial episodes punctuated with sepia toned interviews with characters involved in the case who relate their experiences for the OSIR records. Hand-held camera work may in fact be a clever device to disguise the fact that Psi Factor is not a high budget show. Nevertheless, it is quite effective and sets the series apart from The X FILES in style if not in subject matter.

The show has a regular cast not all of whom appear in every episodes. Professor Connor Doyle, played by Paul Miller, a specialist in psychology and geophysics, leads this team of OSIR agents for the first series. Other team members include Colin Fox as Dr. Anton Hendricks, the OSIR chief of medicine.

"WE'RE GOING TO BRING IN an OSIR operative with AI abilities."

"Pardon me?" "A psychic."

This uncomfortable fusion of pseudo science and the paranormal is the hallmark of a Canadian series, PSI FACTOR, CHRONICLES OF THE PARANORMAL, whose first season begins on the Sci-Fi Channel this month. The fact that the 'psi' of the title refers to a letter of the Greek alphabet (somewhere near the end of it, in fact) may help in identifying the inspiration for the series.

Since the incredible success world-wide of THE X-FILES, there have been numerous attempts to emulate it. The "aliens amongst us" aspect was picked up by the short-lived DARK SKIES in America, while Britain's THE UNINVITED also bears similarities. However, PSI FACTOR takes this one stage further - it is initially as close a copy as can comfortably (or not, as the case may be) be borne.

The pilot opens with a legend over an official looking seal that the episodes are based on real cases from the files of the Office of Scientific Investigation and Research (OSIR, for short - and no relation to the OSI beloved Of THE SIX MILLION DOLLAR MAN).

Then comes the teaser: a bolshie teenager comes along to see Dad's dream house that he has always wanted. It's still in the process of construction, and when the power won't work, he goes down to the basement, telling her to stay where she is. Generations of horror-film goers know exactly what's going to happen next - and it does.

Someone or something attacks her. Okay, it's not corporeal: no hockey-masked knife wielding nutcase, but the house starts to come alive around her. Electric planers switch themselves on, bits of wood start flying around, and then she sort of sees a figure coming down the rickety stairs towards her. All we see at this stage is a dark shadow that seems to be fleeing in panic. She turns, and there are three other shadows on the floor, resembling crumpled bodies. The desperate shadow runs past her, and then she sees its pursuer. She runs for her life, her father, alerted by her screams, by her side. The door won't open...

You get the picture. Cut to the title sequence. The logo comes up over an odd medical looking effect. Then we intercut between scenes of the main cast. They are going around with industrial strength flashlights through creepy buildings and woods. One, a female, is carrying out an autopsy. Then we see them being pursued by weird lights in the sky. The series proper begins with an introduction by host Dan Aykroyd. Although in early episodes it seems that he has been superimposed on the set representing the OSIR's mobile headquarters, towards the end of the season, he is actually there. In a sub-Rod Serling/Alfred Hitchcock way he leads into the next twenty minutes of "investigation". Aykroyd was one of the creative forces behind the two Ghostbuster movies, and there are times that one wishes for Ghostbuster Bill Murray to pop up with an appropriate sarcastic remark, showing that the creators of PSI FACTOR realise quite how ridiculous this all seems.

The investigation is led by a case manager, in the pilot Connor Doyle (and any nominal resemblance to Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who was a renowned psychic investigator as well as creator of Sherlock Holmes, is probably purely coincidental). Played by Paul Miller, he comes across as humourless and dedicated, muttering notes into the headset that he constantly wears (which also act as an aide-memoire for the audience). He's assisted by various team members, including Lindsay Donner (Nancy Anne Sakovich, who facially bears a strong resemblance to Gillian Anderson) and Anton Hendricks, played by Colin Fox.

These intrepid questions after truth are involved in each of the half hour segments, with occasional one-hour specials. Unfortunately, they do not have the chemistry that exists between David Duchovny and Gillian Anderson, and the sections where the script concentrates on their "characters" tend to slow things down, if not bring them to a crashing halt.

IT WOULD BE WRONG TO SAY THAT THERE is nothing good about PSI FACTOR. The effects work is extremely well done, with the on camera work being created by Laird McMurray FX- including, in the episode Infestation, the effect of alien fleas moving across the ground in a forest. The post production effects are handled by CORE Digital Pictures, responsible for JOHNNY MNEMONIC and LEXX: THE DARK ZONE. Both effects houses state that their major challenge comes from the fact that "the PSI FACTOR stories are inspired by the actual case files of the OSIR, so every effect must believably portray physical reality".

Atlantis Films, producers of the series, have previously been responsible for THE NEW TWILIGHT ZONE and WILLIAM SHATNER'S TEXWAR, Dan Akroyd said " I wanted to host the show because of my interest in matters beyond the four perceptible dimensions. PSI FACTOR will offer viewers a look at thought-provoking stories capable of altering the way they perceive reality." The OSIR is a privately funded research organisation, not an official government body as you might pardonably have thought seeing their impressive seal, which is even superimposed over the videotape images which they make of their investigations! It comprises more than three hundred scientists and researchers looking into all forms of paranormal and unusual phenomena around the world - which allows PSI FACTOR to travel all over the planet to such exotic places as the Bermuda Triangle, New Mexico (where they try to explain 'the enduring mystery of the lost Anasazi tribe!') and Russia, where they battle a prehistoric monster in the first season finale. However, in reality, just as the first five seasons of THE X-FILES plundered the locales around Vancouver, so PSI FACTOR has done the same around Toronto, on the eastern side of Canada.

"The information found in the OSIR's files makes for astonishingly entertaining TV," executive producer Seaton McLean claims. "Combine this with fast-paced, driving narratives and some of the latest in special effects, and you have the formula for an extremely exciting television series." While this may be true, Psi Factor, now filming its third season in Canada, certainly takes its time to find its feet and move away from what it starts out resembling: an X-FILES clone with a jigger of GHOSTBUSTER And POLTERGEIST (the movies).

IRRROR dimensions. Human teleportation. Mind control. Material transfers. Strange creatures. Reincarnation. UFOs. Time loops. All of these are the regular stomping ground of X Files wannabe, PSI Factor. We've seen a whole slew of shows over the last few years that have endeavoured to cash in on the success of the big X, including The Burning Zone, Poltergeist: The Legacy and Dark Skies. Doubtless the motivation for creating PSI Factor was no less cynical. However, as a rather more blatant X-Files imitation with no real attempt to put a different spin on the concept, PSI Factor is a rather good substitute for the 'real thing' and will almost certainly satisfy the voracious appetite of X-Philes who are hungry for more of the same.

PSI Factor has actually been around for a couple of seasons in the States already and, such is its success, a third series is currently in production. All but one of the twenty-two episodes of the show's first season consists of two, half-hour long stories. The final episode of the first season and all subsequent episodes are in the more familiar one hour format, bringing the show even more in line with the style of The X-Files.

Unlike The X-Files though, PSI Factor has a host in the unlikely form of Ghostbusters star Dan Ackroyd who tops and tails each story with a few words of wisdom. Ackroyd, who is mainly known for his comedy roles, may seem a strange choice to host a show that has a quite serious tone. It is claimed though that Ackroyd has been a life-long student of the paranormal and it was he who was instrumental in persuading the Office of Scientific Investigation and Research (OSIR) to release its files on which the show's episodes are allegedly based. "I wanted to host the show because of my interest in matters beyond the four perceptible dimensions," claims Ackroyd. However, a more believable explanation for his presence can be gleaned from the show's credits which include one Peter Ackroyd, brother of Dan and Executive Producer on the series.

As it purports to present dramatisations of real-life OSIR cases, PSI Factor is made in a pacy documentary style. Much of the camerawork is hand-held and the initial episodes punctuated with sepia toned interviews with characters involved in the case who relate their experiences for the OSIR records. Hand-held camerawork may in fact be a clever device to disguise the fact that PSI Factor is not a high-budget show. Nevertheless, it is quite effective and sets the series apart from The X-Files in style if not in subject matter.

The show has a large regular cast not all of whom appear in every episode. Professor Connor Doyle, played by Paul Miller, a specialist in psychology and geophysics, leads this team of OSIR agents for the first series. Other team members include Colin Fox as Doctor Anton Hendricks, the OSIR chief of medicine. "Hendricks is a very modern kind of doctor, who isn't afraid to look at alternative medicine, and to have a tremendous interest in psychic phenomena," says Fox. "Part of that interest comes from battling a serious disease himself, and also from the terrible secret he carries about the mysterious disappearance of his wife and child. He doesn't know if they're dead or alive, but he desperately wants to be reunited with them."

Barclay Hope plays Chief Science Analyst, Peter Axon. "Axon is a highly ambitious person, and was devastated when he was passed over as Case Manager," says Hope. "He's come to realise that his former MIT attitude towards his work has to change, and he's more willing to walk a dangerous line to prove himself" Unfortunately, in the first season, with such a large cast and stories that only last for half an hour, it may prove a little difficult to grasp who is who for the first-time viewer and there isn't a great deal of room for characterisation. Having said this, the writers seem to work well within the constraints and manage to slip a few brief exchanges and humorous remarks between the regulars that aren't entirely rooted in the plot. Happily, with the show's switch to the hour format, the characters are given a little more space to breathe and two new characters are injected into the mix: Matt Frewer, best known for his role as virtual TV host Max Headroom and Michael Moriarty who received critical acclaim in Law and Order.

"Matt Praeger, played by Matt Frewer, who is a brilliant criminologist who brings his expertise on crime solving to the OSIR team," says PSI Factor executive producer James Nadler. "Because he's new to the OSIR, he can stand in for the audience, and can ask the questions the audience wants to know about the organisation and the world we're creating - how the investigators do their jobs, why they're into searching for answers about the paranormal. He becomes the guide into these worlds. And it gives us a chance to shake up the relationships within the team."

Michael Moriarty joins the team as Michael Kelly. "Kelly is the consummate outsider, the man who knew too much, a whistleblower," explains Moriarty. "He wants to use top secret information to help the OSIR team and the people involved in their cases, because at heart he's a humanist who rages against the machine, in whatever form." Of the second season James Nadler said, "We've expanded our story lines by doing only one story per hour rather than two, so that we can delve even deeper into the development of the characters, injecting more humanity and more humour in our main heroes to enable the audience to grow with them."

The stories themselves explore a wide variety of supernatural and extraterrestrial themes and for the most part affirm that such phenomena do exist for which there are no 'rational' explanations. However, a few of the shows do conclude with a Scooby-Doo style revelation that things were not what they seemed. For instance, in the second story of the first episode, UFO Encounter, the nocturnal visitations of alleged UFO's are revealed to be low-flying helicopters on an illegal crop-dusting mission. Dana Scully would be delighted to know that some mysteries do still have down-to-earth explanations! Perhaps she should consider a transfer to the OSIR. 'Psi' is the letter in the Greek alphabet that represents the unknown. Dan Ackroyd's great-grandfather was allegedly a principal member of the British Society of Psychic Research. Many of the regular cast members of PSI Factor have guest-starred in a wide variety of telefantasy shows. Curiously, though, almost all of them have made appearances in Kung Fu: The Legend Continues. The 'real' OSIR has apparently been in existence for 20 years and comprises of more than 300 scientists and researchers who investigate all manner of paranormal and unusual phenomena.

The show was syndicated across the U.S. In the Los Angeles market during the first season, the initial airing occurred at 11:35p.m., on Saturday nights on the CBS affiliate, KCBS; for the second season, the air dates changed to noon on Sundays. It later changed to 12:45 a.m. on Monday mornings. For season three, it moved to 1:35 a.m on Sundays. The shows were aired a few times during the week. The series was aired in the UK on Sci-Fi Digital/Satellite channel, times have varied but the 8pm time on a Thursday would be quite common for the show.

Matt Frewer (who plays Matt Praeger in the series), has been known in science fiction circles for a long time, he has starred in many low budget science fiction films, and is perhaps most famous for playing MAX HEADROOM in the series with the same name.

Season Four: The fourth season opens with Matt Frewer's Praeger, having survived his near-death experience, struggling to comprehend what might exist beyond life.

WR. James Nadler, Larry Raskin, David Preston, Gerald Wexler, Damien Kindler, Ian Weir

DIR. John Bell, Alan Kroeker, Giles Walker,

EPISODES: 88 YEAR MADE: 1996 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 4

ATLANTIS FILMS (aka ATLANTIS ALLIANCE) , ENDELMON ENTERTAINMENT

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: ANTHOLOGY

FORMAT: ANTHOLOGY

LENGTH (MINS): 60 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 22, (2) 22, (3) 22, (4) 22

DATE OF PREMIER: 28/09/1996 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 20/05/2000

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Professor Connor Doyle PAUL MILLER, Dr. Curtis Rollins MAURICE DEAN WINT, Host DAN AYKROYD, Lindsay Donner NANCY ANN SAKOVICH, Professor Anton Hendricks COLIN FOX, Peter Axon BARCLAY HOPE, Ray Donahue PETER MACNEILL, Natasha Constantine LISA LACROIX, Matt Praeger MATT FREWER (2), Michael Kelly MICHAEL MORIARTY(2), Frank Elsinger NIGEL BENNETT, L.Q. Cooper PETER BLAIS (1), Smithwick ELIZABETH SHEPHERD (1), Corliss TAMARA GORSKI (1), Miles LINDSAY COLLINS (1), Narrator DAN ACKROYD, Dr. Claire Davison SOO GARAY.

RELATED SHOWS:

X FILES, THE

MAX HEADROOM

1 - 1 DREAM HOUSE/UFO ENCOUNTER

Case File #34112: "Dream House"

Blaine and Debbie McCallister summon the Office of Scientific Investigation and Research to investigate the cause of numerous strange occurrences at the site of their new home, after their teenage daughter is hospitalized as a result of a poltergeist encounter.

Case File #52111: "UFO Encounter"

The O.S.I.R. is summoned to a small town to investigate a double alien abduction of two boys and UFO sightings witnessed by many townspeople.

Wr Will Dixon, James Nadler

Dir Allan Kroeker

1 - 2 POSSESSION/MAN OUT OF TIME

Case File #67102: "Possession"

A software designer tells of demons attacking.

Case File #10103: "Man Out of Time"

A disoriented man tells of being from the 17th century.

Wr James Nadler, Larry Raskin

Dir Allan Kroeker, John Bell

1 - 3 REPTILLIAN REVENGE/GHOSTLY VOICES

Case File #99101: "Reptilian Revenge"

After an elderly man dies, his pet snakes escape.

Case File #44114: "Ghostly Voices"

A voice calls a woman home.

Wr Will Dixon, Richard Oleksiak

Dir Giles Walker, Allan Kroeker

1 - 4 CREEPING DARKNESS/THE POWER

Case File #77110: "Creeping Darkness"

Impenetrable darkness threatens to engulf an Argentine town.

Case File # unknown: "The Power"

Stress boosts a woman's psychokinesis.

Wr Gerald Wexler, David Preston

Dir Allan Kroeker, John Bell

1 - 5 FREE FALL/ THE PRESCENCE

Case File #47129: "Free Fall"

A sky diver tells of defying gravity.

Case File #92109: "The Presence"

A child fears a destructive force.

Wr Larry Raskin, Ian Weir

Dir Milan Cheylov, John Bell

1 - 6 THE INFESTATION/ HUMAN APPORTATION

Case File #33130: "The Infestation"

NASA scientists die searching for a meteorite.

Case File #87105: "Human Apportation"

A Californian and her daughter inexplicably find themselves in Toronto.

Wr Damian Kindler, Denise Fordham

Dir Giles Walker, John Bell

1 - 7 THE UNDERNEATH/ PHANTOM LIMB

Case File #28120: "The Underneath"

A deadly creature lives in the sewers.

Case File #52113: "Phantom Limb"

Strange events follow an accident that claimed a farmer's arm.

Wr Robert C. Cooper, Sherman Snukal

Dir Milan Cheylov, Allan Kroeker

1 - 8 THE TRANSIENT/ TWO LOST OLD MEN

Case File #64131: "The Transient"

A dybbuk invades the souls of innocents.

Case File #86126: "Two Lost Old Men"

Young people pass through a forest's barren zone and instantly age 50 years.

Wr Damian Kindler, Ian Weir

Dir Giles Walker

1 - 9 UFO DUPLICATION/ CLARA'S FRIEND

Case File #623119: "UFO Duplication"

Extraterrestrials clone farm inhabitants.

Case File #847117: "Clara's Friend"

An apparition communicates with a girl.

Wr Robert C. Cooper, Will Dixon

Dir Marc Voizard

1 - 10 THE HUNTER/ THE HEALER

Case File #702134: "The Hunter"

A werewolf is suspected in cattle mutilations.

Case File #969121: "The Healer"

Teen is credited with healing powers.

Wr Damian Kindler, Larry Raskin

Dir John Bell

1 - 11 THE CURSE/ ANGEL ON A PLANE

Case File #631136: "The Curse"

Death strikes archaeologists who uncovered an Egyptian burial chamber.

Case File #260122: "Angel on a Plane"

A mysterious woman safely lands a plane hit by lightning.

Wr Will Dixon, Ian Weir

Dir Marc Voizard, Ken Girotti

1 - 12 DEVILS TRIANGLE/ ANASAZI CAVE

Case File #288128: "Anasazi Cave"

Deaths at an archaeological dig may explain the mystery of the lost Anasazi.

Case File #199137: "Devil's Triangle"

A man claims he was adrift in the Devil's Triangle.

Wr Sherman Snukal, Damian Kindler

Dir Marc Voizard, Ken Girotti

1 - 13 THE UNDEAD/ STALKER MOON

Case File #763139: "The Undead"

A homeless man revives during his autopsy and escapes.

Case File #569135: "Stalker Moon"

A fan stalks an actress from the grave.

Wr Will Dixon, Alex Pugsley

Dir Clay Borris

1 - 14 FORBIDDEN NORTH/ REINCARNATION

Case File #26014: "Forbidden North"

A humanoid beast approaches a leg-trapped logger.

Case File #610115: "Reincarnation"

A man undergoing past-life regression predicts the future.

Wr Damian Kindler, Peter Aykroyd

Dir Ken Girotti

1 - 15 THE GREENHOUSE EFFECT/ THE BUZZ

Case File #213127: "The Greenhouse Effect"

Plants attack a family.

Case File #213127: "The Buzz"

Mysterious buzzing coincides with unexplained deaths.

Wr Damian Kindler, Sherman Snukal

Dir Clay Borris

1 - 16 THE LIGHT

OSIR case manager Curtis Rollin's near-death experience releases a dangerous doppelganger into the community.

Wr Will Dixon

Dir Milan Cheylov

1 - 17 THE 13TH FLOOR/ THE BELIEVER

Case File #957176: "The 13th Floor"

A possessed woman takes a horrible vengeance on her philandering husband.

Case File #284145: "The Believer"

A kidnapper transmits his extortion demands psychically.

Wr Jean Hurtubise, Damian Kindler

Dir Clay Borris, Craig Pryce

1 - 18 THE FOG/ HOUSE ON GARDEN STREET

Case File #559146: "The Fog"

A dense fog, mass hallucinations and a serial killer arrive simultaneously on death row.

Case File #810126: "House on Garden Street"

An apparition appears to a couple under stress.

Wr Robert C. Cooper, Chris Dickie

Dir Clay Borris

1 - 19 SECOND SIGHT/ CHOCOLATE SOLDIER

Case File #295143: "Second Sight"

A kidney-transplant recipient has frightening visions.

Case File #734138: "Chocolate Soldier"

A cult leader has power over women.

Wr Sherman Snukal, Will Dixon

Dir Milan Cheylov

1 - 20 THE FIRE WITHIN/ FATE

Case File #994124: "The Fire Within"

Spontaneous human combustion.

Case File #232148: "Fate"

A teen with psychic powers struggles to understand events leading to his best friend's death.

Wr Richard Oleksiak, Damian Kindler

Dir Aaron Schuster

1 - 21 DEATH AT SUNSET/ COLLISION

Case File #693142: "Death at Sunset"

A mysterious illness claims its victims at sunset.

Case File #793144: "Collision"

The soul of an accident victim possesses the driver who killed her.

Wr Jeremy Hole, Sherman Snukal

Dir Ross Clyde

1 - 22 PERESTROIKA

The OSIR investigators battle with a prehistoric monster in the waste's of Russia and discover more than they bargained for.

Wr Ross Clyde

Dir Giles Walker

2 - 1 THREADS

The OSIR investigates a mysteriously disintegrating building, with a sinister conglomerate may be using to test a revolutionary new lethal weapon.

Wr James Nadler

Dir Milan Cheylov

2 - 2 THE DONOR

In a small farming community, the Office of Scientific Investigation and Research investigates the strange mutilation and seemingly ritualistic slaughter of livestock animals.

Wr Rick Drew

Dir Milan Cheylov

2 - 3 WISH I MAY

In swamp country, county doctor calls in the Office of Scientific Investigation and Research to help her find out why a teenager seems to be clinically dead but somehow alive.

Wr Will Dixon

Dir John Bell

2 - 4 COMMUNION

Case File #245-208

The Office of Scientific Investigation and Research investigates several UFO reports in the industry area of Montex Bioengineering.

Wr Peter Mohan

Dir John Bell

2 - 5 FORZEN IN TIME

Case File #417-205

Deep in the interior of a national park, a strange epidemic strikes a Native American reserve, turning the residents into living statues.

Wr Tracey Forbes

Dir Giles Walker

2 - 6 DEVOULTION

Case File #567-212

After a blinding light explodes in a hospital room, a blood-covered entity throws the guard out into the hall and the body of a sixty-year-old woman, sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of a police officer, disappears.

Wr John Dolin

Dir Clay Borris

2 - 7 THE WARRIOR

Case File #371-211

When a curator of a museum decapitated by an unknown assailant, the Office of Scientific Investigation and Research starts to investigate.

Wr Rick Drew

Dir Clay Borris

2 - 8 THE GRAY MEN

Case File #669-207

The Office of Scientific Investigation and Research is called to an abandoned industrial park to investigate a UFO sighting. Case Manager Matt Praeger hears a buzzing noise and disappears without a trace.

Wr James Nadler

Dir Giles Walker

2 - 9 MAN OF WAR

Case File #267-210

When a corporal investigates an onslaught of light and noise, disappearing with a scream of pain and horror, the Office of Scientific Investigation and Research starts to investigate.

Wr Deborah Nathan

Dir Stephen Williams

2 - 10 DAMNED

Case File # 905-209

When the pool water mysteriously starts to churn and boil, a man drowns and sinks to the bottom. The Office of Scientific Investigation and Research starts to investigate.

Wr Toni Di Franco

Dir Clay Borris

2 - 11 HELL WEEK

Case File # 416-209

The Dean at Braddock University brings the Office of Scientific Investigation and Research in to investigate an incident involving psychokinetic power.

Wr Alex Pugsley

Dir Craig Pryce

2 - 12 BAD DREAMS

Case File #340-212

After a woman, recovering in her hospital bed from knee surgery, suddenly cries out from a terrifying dream and bleeds spontaneously from deep wounds, the Office of Scientific Investigation and Research arrives to secure the building following the inexplicable occurrence.

Wr Will Dixon

Dir Stephen Williams

2 - 13 THE EDGE

Case File #350-213

The Office of Scientific Investigation and Research is called in to help locate a missing police officer.

Wr Tracey Forbes

Dir Craig Pryce

2 - 14 KISS OF THE TIGER

Case File #936-214

Case Manager Matt Praeger brings in the Office of Scientific Investigation and Research team to help his old friend David Vancha save the life of his wife Zoe.

Wr Damian Kindler

Dir Carl Goldstein

2 - 15 THE HAUNTING

Case File #604-215

Hotel-owner Clifford Ashe calls in the Office of Scientific Investigation and Research to investigate the haunting of the Ashe Plaza Hotel.

Wr Rick Drew

Dir John Bell

2 - 16 THE NIGHT OF THE SETTING SUN

Case File #938-216

A dealer of rare animals breaks into an abandoned factory with an accomplice, who afterwards is pulled back into the complex by some unseen presence.

Wr James Nadler

Dir E. Jane Thompson

2 - 17 THE LABYRINTH

Case File #309-217

When a city worker is killed by a wave of light and sound, the Office of Scientific Investigation and Research is called in to investigate.

Wr Christiane Schull

Dir Ron Oliver

2 - 18 PENTIMENTO

Case File #721-219

When a horrific murder takes place, the Office of Scientific Investigation and Research gets a call to come to a gallery where they find a body strung from the ceiling in the back room, his clothing shredded and his eyes ground into their sockets.

Wr Sarah Dodd

Dir Vincenzo Natali

2 - 19 FROZEN FAITH

Case File #721-219

The Office of Scientific Investigation and Research investigates a suburban home in which the living room has become an icy chamber.

Wr Matt Frewer

Dir Ron Oliver

2 - 20 MAP TO THE STARS

Case File #420-202

Case Manager Matt Praeger flies to Halifax to bail out Michael Kelly, who has been arrested for being drunk and disorderly.

Wr Will Dixon

Dir John Bell

2 - 21 THE ENDANGERED

Case File #104-723

When a huge beast charges out of the woods and rips man's limb, a local police calls in the Office of Scientific Investigation and Research to identify the attacker.

Wr Will Dixon

Dir Rick Drew

2 - 22 THE EGRESS (PART 1 OF 3)

Case File #102-964

Ray Donahue and Peter Axon fan out through a secret research facility searching for Axon's friend Dr. Leon Schraft, a colleague from Axon's MIT days.

Wr James Nadler

Dir John Bell

3 - 1 JAUNT (PART 2 OF 3)

As the third season begins, physicist Peter Axon is the only remaining member of the Office of Scientific Investigation and Research team. Dr. Anton Hendricks is apparently dead, having disappeared into a mysterious apportionment device known as the Arch, case manager Matt Praeger has tendered his resignation after differences with the O.S.I.R.'s Director of Operations Frank Elsinger and senior data analyst Lindsay Donner has left the team after running afoul of Praeger and revealing confidential information.

Axon and Curtis Rollins, the case manager assigned to the Arch case, take their investigation to a remote area of northern Quebec after an RCMP officer finds a woman wandering alone in the sub-tundra. It turns out the woman had vanished into the Arch and then re-appeared 2,000 miles away.

Lindsay Donner and Matt Praeger rejoin the team to recover Hendricks from the Arch.

Wr James Nadler

Dir John Bell

3 - 2 COMINGS AND GOINGS (PART 3 OF 3)

Case File #751718

Following a memorial service for Dr. Anton Hendricks the Office of Scientific Investigation and Research team members receive an anonymous phone call informing them that Hendricks is at a nearby hospital unconscious and on a ventilator.

Wr Tracey Forbes

Dir John Bell

3 - 3 HEARTLAND

Case File #898777

When a forest area turns into a bone-dry wasteland virtually overnight, a government agriculture official turns to the Office of Scientific Investigation and Research for help.

Wr John Dolin

Dir Stephen Williams

3 - 4 THE KISS

Case File #145345 The Office of Scientific Investigation and Research is called into action when the mutilated corpse of a police detective who gunned down an escaped convict is found in a dumpster.

Wr C.D. Frewer, F.J. Kennedy

Dir Doug Jackson

3 - 5 ABSOLUTION

Case File #569-977

The Office of Scientific Investigation and Research case manager Matt Praeger is institutionalized after a case goes tragically wrong. Working undercover as an arms dealer in order to gain access to a teenager with ESP Praeger gets caught in the middle of a double cross and apparently fires the bullet that kills the youth.

Wr Damian Kindler

Dir Clay Borris

3 - 6 ALL HALLOWS EVE

Case File #659-311

The Office of Scientific Investigation and Research case manager Matt Praeger, security co-ordinator Ray Donahue, chief science analyst Peter Axon and senior data analyst Lindsay Donner visit the scene of a grisly, pre-Halloween murder of two college students who died after having their faces torn off.

Wr Donald Martin

Dir Luc Chalifour

3 - 7 PALIMPSEST

Case File #600-001

The Office of Scientific Investigation and Research investigates after the body of an elderly woman is found in the basement of a soon-to-be demolished apartment building.

Wr Paul Smith

Dir Craig Pryce

3 - 8 RETURN

Case File #965-789

Dr. Anton Hendricks' wife has recently returned from a mysterious apportionment device called the Arch, into which she vanished 12 years ago. Hendricks has become increasingly suspicious that she is not the Catherine he knew.

Wr James Nadler

Dir Bruce Pittman

3 - 9 HARLEQUIN

Case File #828-456

The Office of Scientific Investigation and Research investigates the unusual death of a large South American rodent called a capybara at the Windsor Animal Hospice.

Wr Larry Raskin

Dir Ron Oliver

3 - 10 LITTLE PEOPLE

Case File #790-002

Matt Praeger's daughter, Dana, is sleeping over at the country home of her friend, Vanessa, when the girls hear a strange noise coming from the bedroom of Vanessa's adopted brother. The Office of Scientific Investigation and Research team arrives at the house to conduct an "unofficial" investigation.

Wr Rick Drew

Dir Craig Pryce

3 - 11 THE WINDING CLOTH

Case File #340-872

Archaeologist and former lover of Lindsay Donner finds a 13th century burial shroud inside an ancient Druid coffin. At his request, Donner and the Office of Scientific Investigation and Research team join him in London to verify the authenticity of the "winding cloth" and identify the man buried in it.

Wr Rick Drew

Dir Clay Borris

3 - 12 CHANGO

Case File #500-208

A senior data analyst of the Office of Scientific Investigation and Research dies of an apparent heart attack at a Cuban-style neighborhood party. The rabbi who's conducting the funeral suddenly hears scratching sounds coming from coffin, opens the lid and finds out the man is alive.

Wr Sarah Dodd

Dir Bruce Pittman

3 - 13 SOLITARY CONFINEMENT

Case File #226-051

The Office of Scientific Investigation and Research senior data analyst Lindsay Donner and pathologist Claire Davison are called to the Newgate Correctional Facility after an inmate dies mysteriously while in solitary confinement.

Wr John Dolin

Dir Ron Oliver

3 - 14 VALENTINE

Case File #443-987

Alone on Valentine's Day, Lindsay Donner visits a neighborhood after-hours club, where she catches the attention of the bartender. Despite the attraction Donner leaves and is called back to the vicinity the following morning when a body is found in the alley.

Wr Sheila Prescott-Vessey

Dir Ross Clyde

3 - 15 OLD WOUNDS

Case File #392-101

Tessler Industries, a video-game giant, is testing one of its new virtual-reality war games at the Office of Scientific Investigation and Research Central Lab. When a woman is knocked to the floor with a very real head wound, Elsinger calls for the O.S.I.R. team to investigate.

Wr Jim Purdy, Paula Smith

Dir Luc Chalifour

3 - 16 THE OBSERVER EFFECT

Case File #222-989

The Office of Scientific Investigation and Research investigates after a UFO is sighted in the woods near the private community of Poplar Glen.

Wr Damian Kindler

Dir Giles Walker

3 - 17 SCHOOL OF THOUGHT

Case File #333-016

The Office of Scientific Investigation and Research team investigates after an auto shop teacher at Royalton Custodial School is crushed against a wall by a car. The "accident" could be the work of a student with telekinetic ability.

Wr Rick Drew

Dir John Bell

3 - 18 Y2K

Case File #009-873

Two computer programmers trying to develop a solution to the Y2K problem enter a sealed lab and begin work. Later, they go into convulsions and, with blood pouring from their eyes and ears, fall to the ground dead. The Office of Scientific Investigation and Research team arrives at the lab to investigate.

Wr C.D. Frewer, F.J. Kennedy

Dir Ron Oliver

3 - 19 JOHN DOE

Case File #098-509

Peter Axon and Frank Elsinger run tests on an electromagnetic field (EMF) laser cannon in the lab at Tessler Industries to destroy a missile guidance system. After the experiment fails when the laser device overheats, a janitor resets the cannon and destroys the missile guidance system.

Wr Damian Kindler

Dir Giles Walker

3 - 20 THE TRIBUNAL

Case File #899-997

The Office of Scientific Investigation and Research is transporting a young woman who's had an alien encounter, when their van is engulfed in a bright light from a UFO, temporarily blinding the investigator, and the woman disappears.

Wr Jean Hurtubise

Dir John Bell

3 - 21 FOREVER AND A DAY (1-2)

Case File #298-321

Psychic healer has just successfully restored the sight of a blind woman when he is interrupted by the Office of Scientific Investigation and Research agents and taken to the central lab to test the man's healing powers.

Wr James Nadler

Dir Ron Oliver , Stephen Williams

4 - 1 SHOCKING

Struck by lightning, a woman must release the electricity through sex in order to survive.

Wr Larry Raskin

Dir Stephen Williams

4 - 2 SACRIFICES

The O.S.I.R. investigates satanic cult activity on a college campus.

Wr Will Dixon

Dir Stephen Williams

4 - 3 HAPPY BIRTHDAY, MATT PRAEGER

Matt inadvertently enters an alternate dimension as a contestant on a game show where he must re-examine his life.

Wr Larry Raskin

Dir Luc Chalifour

4 - 4 SOUL SURVIVOR

The O.S.I.R. investigates a plane crash and its survivors, who have been in a sort of limbo since their disappearance 10 years ago.

Wr Rick Drew

Dir Ross Clyde

4 - 5 883

A doctor's mission to colonize a new world forces Matt to make a decision about his future.

Wr Damian Kindler

Dir Ron Oliver

4 - 6 ONCE UPON A TIME IN THE WEST

An old man following three Old West outlaws is actually Axon 30 years in the future, warning his younger self against inventing time-travel.

Wr Damian Kindler

Dir John Bell

4 - 7 BODY AND SOUL

The team's investigation of a woman's precognition of her own death leads to a shocking discovery.

Wr Andrea Moodie

Dir John Bell

4 - 8 TEMPLE OF LIGHT

A spiritual entity is blamed for an outbreak of murders at a Hollywood retreat.

Wr Andrea Moodie

Dir Ron Oliver

4 - 9 INERTIA

Axon must race against time to save the life of an alien grounded in a meteor crash.

Wr Will Dixon

Dir Randy Bradshaw

4 - 10 NOCTURNAL CABAL

Donner and Stone are caught in a sinister plot when they investigate a rave club overrun by zombies.

Wr Damian Kindler

Dir Steve DiMarco

4 - 11 'TIL DEATH DO US PART

A journalist's relationship with a Death Row inmate causes a rare haunting.

Wr Sarah Dodd

Dir Luc Chalifour

4 - 12 TYLER/TIM

An autistic boy develops psychokinetic abilities while mourning the death of his twin brother.

Wr Rick Drew

Dir Randy Bradshaw

4 - 13 SUPER SARGASSO SEA

Mysterious sky-falls may be the result of the Super Sargasso Sea theory.

Wr Andrea Moodie

Dir Larry McLean

4 - 14 PERSISTENCE OF VISION

A ghost-like image in a photograph might be the link between a serial killer and a real-life angel.

Wr Will Dixon

Dir Ron Oliver

4 - 15 GEOCORE

Oil drilling in an ancient tribal burial ground unleashes a demon killer.

Wr Martin M Boricky

Dir Jon Cassar

4 - 16 GONE FISHING

Peter's old friend lures him into the wilderness seeking retribution for past deeds.

Wr Larry Raskin, Aaron Woodley

Dir Ron Oliver

4 - 17 CHIAROSCURO

An angry spirit torments a group of artists in an old church.

Wr Andrea Moodie

Dir Alan Gough

4 - 18 REGENERATION

The O.S.I.R. team must suppress the violent alien traits of a genetically-altered woman.

Wr Damian Kindler

Dir Will Dixon

4 - 19 WENDIGO

The O.S.I.R. discovers cannibalism when they search for three missing operatives.

Wr Mark Leiren-Young

Dir John Bell

4 - 20 ELEVATOR

During an investigation, Donner, Stone and Davison are trapped in an elevator.

Wr Larry Raskin

Dir Ron Oliver

4 - 21 FORCE MAJEURE

Lindsay and Peter are under cover as a married couple to investigate aberrant behavior among community residents.

Wr Will Dixon, Damian Kindler

Dir John Bell

4 - 22 STONE DREAMS

Mia Stone experiences precognitive dreams and hallucinations during an investigation.

Wr Andrea Moodie, Larry Raskin

Dir Ron Oliver

PURPLE EYES IN THE DARKAKA: YAMI NO PURPLE EYE

Teenager Tomoko (Hinagata) is kissing her boyfriend Shinya (Kato), when she suddenly feels the leopard-shaped birthmark on her chest throbbing with heat. She is confused by the experience but thinks nothing more of it until she is attacked by school bullies and inadvertently transforms into a leopard. Her new biology teacher Miss Sonehara (Nakamura) takes an interest in her case and realizes that the girl carries feline DNA. She suspects that it may have something to do with Tomoko's later father, a zoologist hounded out of the scientific establishment for his controversial research into animal transformation.

Purple Eyes in the Dark began as a 1984 manga in Margaret magazine by Chie Shinohara, an author who excels at dramatizing the life-changing transformations of puberty, in works such as Sea's Darkness and Moon's Shadow and Anatolia Story. Though sounding like a rip-off of the U.S. series MANIMAL (1983) with bonus Japanese schoolgirls, it is actually much more cerebral than that, magnifying teenage obsessions to earth-shattering importance in the style of Mask of Glass. It also embraces Shinohara's own Freudian obsession with blood and bleeding, such as a scene in the opening episode when Tomoko savors a cut finger - this is also probably one of the kinkier drama series on Japanese TV.

Like her U.S. relative THE INCREDIBLE HULK (1978), Tomoko requires anger or rage as a catalyst for her transformation, leading Miss Sonehara to kidnap Shinya, drug him, and seduce him in front of Tomoko in order to study her reaction. There is also an anime "image video" based on the story, in which scenes from the manga are recreated during seven musical interludes. Compare to Daughter of Iguna. Theme: Iceman "Dark Half".

Series was produced by Osamu Tezuka.

WR. Michiru Tanabe, Junji Takegami

DIR. Takeshi Nakagawa

EPISODES: 11 YEAR MADE: 1996 COUNTRY: JAP SEASONS: 1

ASAHI

CREATOR: CHIE SHINOHARA

TYPE OF SHOW: MEDICAL

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 45 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: Japanese

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 11

DATE OF PREMIER: 01/07/1996

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 09/09/1996

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Tomoko AKIKO HINAGATA, Shinya HARUHIKO KATO, KANAKO ENOMOTO, SAYAKA YAMAGUCHI, AYUMI ENOMOTO, Miss Sonehara AZUSA NAKAMURA.

PURPLE MONSTER STRIKES,THE

'This is the proudest day in my life' says astronomer-inventor Craven, showing the construction plans of his rocketship to Barcroft's supposedly friendly Martian. 'Unfortunately,' replies Barcroft, 'it is also your last.' And so begins one of serialdom's most charming efforts. Barcroft kills the scientist, takes over his body and sets about laying the groundwork for an invasion from Mars with the help of assorted criminals. Moore puts paid to such ideas while rescuing the ever threatened Stirling.

The serial was the first to deal with an invasion from outer space, previous serials having devoted themselves to Earthbound mad scientists, and one of the first films to treat the theme of alien possession which became one of the most important themes in the genre in the fifties. The serial was produced by Ronald Davidson, the cinematographer was Bud Thakery, and the special effects were created by Howard Lydecker and Theodore Lydecker.

WR. Royal Cole, Albert DeMond, Basil Dickey, Barney Sarecky, Lynn Perkins, Joseph Poland.

DIR. Spencer Gordon Bennet, Fred Bannon.

EPISODES: 15 YEAR MADE: 1945 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

REPUBLIC

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: INVASION

FORMAT: CINEMA SERIAL

LENGTH (MINS): STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: Yes COLOUR: No LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 15

DATE OF PREMIER:

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

ROY BARCROFT, DENNIS MOORE, LINDA STIRLING, JAMES CRAVEN, ROY BARCROFT, BUD GEARY, MARY MOORE.

PURSUIT OF TOMORROW

AKA: ASU E NO TSUISEKI

When Motoi (Sawamura) and Fuyuko (Saito) are visiting their classmate Reiko (Morita), they see a boy trying to break into her house. Motoi tries to catch him, but the boy escapes, using telepathy to broadcast his pleas that he is not a thief. The next day, the boy arrives as a new student in Motoi's class and is introduced as Kiyoharu (Hasegawa). Before long, Motoi's classmates begin losing their memories and Motoi and Fuyuko begin investigating. They are warned off by Kiyoharu, but eventually piece together some evidence from abandoned diaries - it appears that Reiko has concealed the fact that she and Kiyoharu know each other from another school.

Journey to the town near Kamakura, where Kiyoharu and Reiko used to live, Motoi discovers that they only began behaving strangely after their visit to a forbidden cave. Fuyuko is kidnapped by Kiyoharu and Reiko, who demand Motoi's pendant as a ransom. The children reveal that they have been possessed by aliens who have fled the destruction of their own planet and who now plan on migrating to Earth. Motoi's pendant contains a secret report on the planet, written by Kiyoharu's father long ago. Motoi returns the pendant to Kiyoharu, and the alien boy leaves for his own planet, in a shameless rehash of MYSTERIOUS NEW STUDENT and INFRARED MUSIC.

The series was produced by Tomoyoshi Hagiwara.

WR. Yuichiro Yamane.

DIR. Minoru Hanabusa, Masami Uehara.

EPISODES: 12 YEAR MADE: 1976 COUNTRY: JAP SEASONS: 1

NHK

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: ALIENS ON EARTH

FORMAT: SERIAL

LENGTH (MINS): 20 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: Japanese

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 12

DATE OF PREMIER: 10/05/1976

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 27/05/1976

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Motoi SHOICHI SAWAMURA, YUSUKE TAKITA, MIYAKO OSANAI, MASAKO KIZAKI, Kiyoharu SATOSHI HASEGAWA, TAKEO NISHIZAWA, Fuyuko YUKO SAITO, Reiko AKEMI MORITA.

RELATED SHOWS:

INFRARED MUSIC

MYSTERIOUS NEW STUDENT

1 - 3 INFERNAL DEVICE

Anarchists discover that Professor Deverill has invented a new remote control device, and blackmail him into helping them use it to detonate a bomb at an international conference.

Wr Wallace Ware

Dir Roy Ward Baker

1 - 4 THE 4:10 TO ZURICH

When he discovers that another professor has invented a nerve gas, Deverill tries to prevent him from selling the formula to agents on a train to Zurich.

Wr Jeremy Paul

Dir Henry Herbert

1 - 5 TO CATCH A GHOST

When a ghost at Jenny's ancestral home appears to be threatening her life, Professor Deverill thinks that his newly-invented camera may be of use in solving the mystery.

Wr Julia Jones

Dir Don Sharp

1 - 6 THE LIMEHOUSE CONNECTION

The Professor and Charlie try to track down the source of a dangerous new drug that is already decimating London's opium users.

Wr William Froug

Dir Don Sharp

QUANTUM LEAP

Quantum Leap was one of television's most unusual time travel shows, dealing with the subject matter quite differently than prior efforts have. The series' time traveller was Dr. Sam Beckett a research scientist who led an elite team of scientists into the desert to build a time travel device. Sam decided to test the process before all the bugs had been worked out of it and found himself the victim of partial amnesia bouncing back and forth in time.

Although this may sound a bit like The Time Tunnel, it isn't. Instead of popping in on each new time period as they did on The Time Tunnel. Sam leaps into the body of a different person each week and has to solve some crisis in their personal life before he can leap out again. Aiding him in discovering what he has to do is A1, the project observer, who is able to remain in contact with Sam as a hologram that only Sam can see and hear. A1 will, with the aid of the computer Ziggy, tell Sam what needs to be done for Sam to leap out. He also gives Sam help in learning about the career that Sam suddenly finds himself having taken on. His expert knowledge in this area often comes from one of his many ex-wives- he has had one who was an expert on almost everything.

Other things that set Quantum Leap apart from other time travel series were: Sam was limited in his travels to his own lifetime (he was born sometime in the early fifties). Events of historical significance were avoided during the first four seasons of the programme. This changed in the fifth and final season in which many of the episodes had some type of gimmick. Sam wound up either meeting or leaping into the lives of several famous people such as Lee Harvey Oswald, Dr. Ruth, Marilyn Monroe and Elvis Presley. Alia, a female time traveller, was also introduced. Instead of helping people, Alia's missions were to destroy people's lives. A three part episode was made in which Sam leaped into different people in a woman's life at three different points in her life and wound up falling in love with her while defending her on charges that she was a murderer. The final episode had Sam leaping into an adult version of himself on the day he was born and had him learning a bit about what was controlling his destiny. He never did return home.

"People take that attitude that if it's science fiction it cannot be serious, or it cannot touch you or move you, or can't be good drama," says Donald P Bellisario. With his successful and very popular dramatic program Quantum Leap, Bellisario proved that attitude wrong. As proof, he says, "I have enough nominations. But more than that, I have enough letters from people who have been touched by episodes of this show. Lives have been changed by it."

Bellisario points out that, "throughout the country, schools-grade schools especially-are using episodes of Quantum Leap to teach kids about racial violence, about things in our society. We deal with a show about blacks, or animal rights, or we deal with bigotry in any form.... Schools pick them up and use them! We get calls all the time for episodes from schools."

Bellisario also pointed to an encounter with a female journalist. "She was very upset with the 'Oswald' episode," he says. "And I said, 'Why?' and she said, 'Well, it's such a serious subject, the killing of President Kennedy, on a show like Quantum Leap, a science fiction show, to treat that.' And I said, 'Well, what does that have to do with it? You thought JFK was right on the nose,' and she said, 'Yes. Obviously.' I said, 'There's more fiction in JFK than in this episode of Quantum Leap.'" In JFK, director Oliver Stone postulated that the assassination was the result of a conspiracy, but Bellisario's treatment gave an interesting counterpoint to the assumption that Lee Harvey Oswald was the sole assassin.

When Bellisario created Quantum Leap, he was working on Magnum P.I. with Tom Selleck. He was also looking for a way to do an anthology show. "Shows of that structure do not sell to networks," says Bellisario. "Studios wouldn't allow me to do that. I thought, if I can come up with a time-travel show with a star, that leaped each week, I could get viewers interested in the star and the era we visited each week. We could keep changing the stories and I could do whatever I wanted every week. We wouldn't be locked into that action-adventure, cop format."

Amazingly, in his pitch to the networks, Bellisario had not yet invented Al. "It's hard for me to look beyond the two of them now," admits Bellisario. "It's difficult for me to see any other two characters playing the part. It's a give-and-take partnership. It works very well for the show. Al's being able to give him information but not being able to physically help him at any time is a big asset. It allows me to get out any kind of information I need to get out of the show. Ziggy comes up with information, and Al relates it, and what Ziggy comes up with and doesn't come up with is purely at our whim. It allows us to tell the kinds of stories we need to do."

So complicated was Quantum Leap that Bellisario calls it the only show that needs an instruction manual before you watch it. NBC president Brandon Tartikoff was a fan, but in meetings he would beg Bellisario to "tell me that again in less than 20 seconds and so my mother understands it." And Bellisario says, "I believe his mother understands it, but I'm still trying to explain it to Brandon."

To avoid any pitfalls that may have befallen other time-travel shows, Bellisario set out to entrench the show with certain crucial rules that establish the show's unique identity. As a result, the Quantum Leap "bible" allegedly is two or three inches thick and has been dubbed "Don's Rules of Quantum Leaping."

"One [rule] was a decision to make the show only within his lifetime," notes Bellisario. "That was done so the show had some sense of reality to it. I felt that if I did a time-travel show and he would be leaping anywhere in time, the temptation is to have him zipping back to feudal times, or forward into the future, all of those things. The show would not have had quite the appeal. I didn't want the show to be a time-travel show, to be honest with you. I wanted a show that told warm, humanistic stories ... and if I was suddenly leaping back to Julius Caesar or Napoleon, it just wasn't what I wanted to make. So I limited it to his lifetime."

Even within Sam's lifetime, the opportunities for diverse stories were practically unlimited. Sam leapt into a NASA chimp about to be sent into space, a soldier in the heat of the Vietnam war, a baseball player, a homeless man, a Klan member, a rape victim, a paraplegic, a co-pilot of a doomed flight and many others. So broad were the parameters of the show that Bellisario even considered, at one point, allowing Sam to leap into an animated character.

"The next thing I limited it to was stories about little people, not famous people," says Bellisario. "[During] our fifth season, we broke that." The first rule-breaking episode was the two-hour "Lee Harvey Oswald," in which Quantum Leap dealt with the assassination of president John F. Kennedy. Sam leaped into Lee Harvey Oswald himself. Another episode had Sam leap into Marilyn Monroe's chauffeur to examine the true nature of Marilyn's death. Later, Sam explored the origins of Elvis Presley. The rule was broken primarily for ratings, plus the creative challenges it offered. Nevertheless, "we went four seasons maintaining this rule," points out Bellisario. "And I did it for a reason. I wanted to tell stories of the average guy."

But brushes with history or historical figures were cleverly incorporated into the show via tiny vignettes. Co-executive producer Deborah Pratt calls this "kisses with history." For example, Sam implores a young Buddy Holly to change "Piggy Sue, Piggy Sue" to "Peggy Sue." "Kisses with history have to be immediately recognizable, they have to be funny, they have to come out of left field and kiss the story, and then you move on. They're very tough to do," says Pratt. The show's producers approached a number of celebrities for permission to have Sam encounter them in moments before fame and fortune. Madonna declined, but Stephen King agreed to an actor portraying him in such a small moment. A young Woody Allen also appears on the show, and in an early episode, a young Michael Jackson.

The third parameter set for the show was directed at writers. "People [were complaining], especially writers I was hiring for the show, 'He can't change this and he can't change that ... because of the ripple effect that'll change time'", explains Bellisario. "'God knows what'll happen?' I [told the writers], 'Forget it. You can change anything you want to change! Throw the time travel out! What difference does it make? As long as [Sam] doesn't change history that we know.'" Bellisario does not see Quantum Leap as a science fiction show. For him, the show uses science fiction as a device to tell a dramatic story. "I see it as a drama, I see it sometimes as a comedy, sometimes as a fantasy drama, sometimes as an action-adventure, and yet sometimes as a romantic story."

This view is reinforced in the show's press kit, which states that "[Quantum Leap] is erroneously described as a science fiction series. In reality, it uses the conventions of the genre to its own ends, and goes beyond them. Quantum Leap uses the concept of time travel, but the show is not about time travel. It's a show about the amazing changes in our society and our world over the past three decades, and how they affected the ordinary people of our time. It's history given flesh, sociology blended into drama, a look at who we were and how we became what we are."

The series' clever premise and complex machinations inspired many questions among viewers. During a series of question-and-answer sessions with fans at U.C.L.A., Universal studios and the Museum of Broadcasting, the staff and stars of Quantum Leap answered some of those queries.

One fan wanted to know what happens to the people whom Sam leaps into. What do they do when they, in turn, leap into Sam's body and must wait to return where they belong? "They're under observation," replied Bellisario. "They have the same Swiss-cheesed brain that Sam had when he leaped. They're observed probed, looked at by people in masks, and they come back and write books about their UFO experiences."

Another person wanted to know how the imaging chamber works and who A1 sees when he visits Sam in the imaging chamber. Does A1 see the person leaped into, or Sam? "It sounds complex," replied Bellisario. "It's very simple. Where Dean [Stockwell] is standing in an imaging chamber.-it's a vast chamber miles across, empty, nothing there. And when he tunes in, or the computer tunes him in to Sam, everything, Sam and everything around Sam appears as a hologram in that chamber. And to Sam, A1 appears as a hologram. There's nothing else in the chamber." When A1 joins Sam, he sees the leaped character, but knows it's Sam.

"That's another rule of time travel according to Don Bellisario," added Dean Stockwell. "That certain individuals-kids under five, because they're on an alpha wave and are very pure, they can sense or spot the hologram. And animals. And I think it should be blondes with low IQs!" Discussing his character, Stockwell said that "the definition of A1's character is this, he interacts solely with Sam. And that's a challenge in itself. I found that I got very fortunate when I got into this show in being blended with Scott, because we get along beautifully and he's wonderful to work with. He's great. He really is. Plus, he has to work 12, 14 hours a day, every scene, five days a week, every show. "A1 seems to have a hell of a past, a very widely varied experience in his life. A lot of that comes up in the show, and those are interesting things to deal with and to act. So I'm very happy. I like the concept."

The initial premise of the show was that in every episode, Sam's memory would be "Swisscheesed." He knew he was leaping around time, but the entire contents of his memory just wouldn't be available. (Hence the need for A1 as a guide.) But as the show progressed, this wasn't dealt with so closely, making some viewers wonder just how much Sam knew. Scott Bakula explained: "We don't deal with this very often any more because so many of the viewers know the rules now that we don't go back into the Swisscheese thing. But we mention it periodically. I think there's a little Swiss-cheesing that happens all the time. I think [Sam] remembers certain things. We've never leapt from one show and brought him into another and had him dealing with that last memory exactly." Continuity between episodes is dangerous to consider because often episodes are not aired in the same order, said Bakula.

One of the panelists at the Q and A sessions was technical advisor and sometime actor Rich Whiteside. For the episode "The Leap Home, Part II," in which Sam joined his brother during the Vietnam War, Bellisario went to Whiteside for technical advice to make the episode as authentic as possible. "When Don was preparing to do the Vietnam episode, he had about four months before they were actually going in to shoot, which is unusual," recounts Whiteside, who also made an appearance in the episode as a doctor. "He had contacted me, given me the thumbnail sketch of what the show was going to be about and asked me to provide him background information.

Unfortunately, he didn't know what he was asking for, 'cause I flooded him with stuff for about four months. I gave him pictures from guys on the teams in Vietnam." Because Whiteside himself never toured Vietnam, it was necessary for him to fly to Virginia and expand on the research by talking with veterans. "I interviewed guys that were commanders in Vietnam, that did POW repatriation missions, and brought that information back to him," says Whiteside. "There was a SEAL Team Two 20-year picture album that came out, so I sent that back to him. I got hold of books that were written by members who served there that detailed missions, highlighted what it was like to be in a firefight on the recipients' standpoint. What was it like to be on a POW repatriation mission. What were the different basic character types that exist in the teams.

"Coming from an acting standpoint, I kinda knew what he was looking for, and I tried to feed him things he could digest and put into the story. And so ... on top of that, he layered the story. And I have to give Don and everybody on the staff a lot of credit, because they took the time under an incredibly busy schedule to sit back and listen to what I had to say, and then they incorporated it. And that was from costumes, to props, to makeup, all the way down the line. And when we were shooting it, Michael Zinberg, who was directing it, would call me up and he would say, this is the way I see the scene developing. I would tell him where there were inconsistencies, just from a military standpoint. If he could make a correction and use it, then he did. ... When it came down to artistic license, he made the decision."

Looking back at the work accomplished, Bellisario says, "I think it was a wonderful show. I'm not as happy with some of the [stories] we made fifth season." Some of those later episodes-the ones Bellisario liked least-were affected by the circumstances of the series' last days. Those circumstances, Bellisario says, included budgets that were "reduced and reduced and reduced," making the show more difficult to produce, and the unwelcome change to an 8:00 time slot. "That was not the right slot for us. With an attempt to attract new viewers, we did some things that came out just fine, but they weren't the old show." Despite support from a loyal audience, Bellisario says, "when we got to our 8 p.m. Tuesday time slot, we crawled down to an 11 share, which is not enough to get picked up. ... It's really a show that plays best at 10 p.m." In fact, Quantum Leap had its own "leaping" crisis.

The network bounced the show around various days and times, making it difficult for viewers to find it. When the show was moved, in the middle of the fourth season, from a successful 10 p.m. Wednesday viewing period to the "death slot" period of Friday at 8 p.m., NBC was inundated with letters and FAX bombs. Advocacy groups such as Viewers for Quality Television (2500 strong) and fan clubs who subscribe to the fanzine newsletter Quantum Quarterly joined the fray and sent some 50,000 letters protesting the move. The campaign was successful, and Warren Littlefield, then NBC president, recanted. In a show of support in the summer of 1991, NBC aired one episode a night for five nights running, repeating a similar stunt from 1990. Only twice before in the history of television has a science fiction show been so broadly accepted as a quality program. Before Quantum Leap, The Twilight Zone and Star Trek were the only two science fiction shows ever nominated for Emmys by the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences in the category of best dramatic series. Quantum Leap joined that august company.

Furthermore, for three consecutive years, between 1990 and 1992, Quantum Leap received Emmy nominations for acting (Scott Bakula and Dean Stockwell), as well as cinematography, costume and art direction nominations and awards. "It's very satisfying that the show was produced and written, directed, and acted well enough to garner the nominations and awards that it has," says Bellisario, but he also is incredulous that scripts have never been nominated. "I'm always amazed how shows get nominated for best drama series on TV and none of the writers get nominated!" he laughs. "You gotta make a quality show to get those things. You gotta make a show that's hot. Quantum Leap was never that. Quantum Leap was always a quality show that was well made and garnered nominations, but it was a show that never was the darling of the [industry]." Only Rod Serling, with his work on The Twilight Zone, has won Emmys for writing science fiction on television.

Working with Scott Bakula and Dean Stockwell was always a treat for Bellisario. "Those two guys are the best," he attests, noting that after five years on the series they remained "as professional, as helpful, as excited, as dedicated to the show as they were when they did the pilot. Usually when you make shows like this, by the time you get to the fifth season, your stars get tired and grumpy and don't want to do what they did in the first season. They don't want to go through the physical strain. Making a show is very difficult. Everybody works long hours. And these two guys [stayed] just the same as the first show." Bellisario speculates that the nature of the show may have kept the actors fresh. Bakula, he says, often called his role "the best acting job in television. Because every week, he becomes a different person. You know, he's not the same guy who has a detective job every week!"

The storylines presented on the show were often controversial, dealing with such topical and sensitive issues as homosexuality, race, or rape. Did Bellisario have a difficult time with the NBC network as a result? No, he says, "they've been extremely supportive. We've had times where we've [clashed] over shows because of subject matter, where advertisers had to pull out of the show. That's purely business. They've been very supportive. They've never interfered with the show. We've had the usual discussions and the conflicts you have with standards and practices, but they were minimal on this show. They never said to me, 'You can't make that show,' or, 'We don't like this script.' They did say, on a show about homosexuals, that advertisers were upset about that. And they went [with the show]. And they lost a lot of advertising." Viewer response to the stories was often emotional.

The ones that particularly hit a nerve, says Bellisario, were those that dealt with injustice, such as one episode where Sam leapt into a black man in the South of the 1950s. "We did episodes where Sam leaps into a chimp. We had Sam leaping into a woman dealing with aggressive sexual harassment on the job. He leapt into an older person, an American Indian battling with dignity to die ... [We did] one about the Watts riots.... We did one on a gay man in a military school-or was he gay? We never really did say if he was or not. He was presumed to be.... Those episodes all touch people.

"And it doesn't have to be things like that. I can recall writing episodes in which the theme of the episode might have been, no matter how dark or black your life becomes, there's always hope. You just gotta keep fighting and you will come through it. You will come through the worst of times. I had people write me after episodes like that and say, 'I was down, I was on the verge of committing suicide, or I was depressed, or I have a cancer child, and we were giving up and after we had seen that episode, we picked ourselves up, and we went on.' I get letters like that all the time."

Actor James Whitmore, Jr., star of Baa Baa Black Sheep, guest star of many episodes of Magnum, P.I., and The Rockford Files, directed 13 episodes of Quantum Leap, including the controversial fifth season opener, "Lee Harvey Oswald." "Quantum Leap's premise is a rather esoteric one," notes Whitmore. "We sat down many times, Don Bellisario and I, and I asked him to explain to me how the show works. And quite frankly, all

I [got was] a vague, general description every time! The great thing about the premise is Don [could] really do almost anything ... within the limits of what the audience [had] come to expect."

Asked whether the show is science fiction with dramatic elements or a drama show only using science fiction as a device to tell stories, Whitmore responded, "It's both. I think the science fiction elements are a device to explore the sociology of the mid-twentieth century, the various things that are going on at different times. It's a device. Don has been very specific about creating this device, and there are very specific elements to it. But I think it's a device to tell stories-to take a character anywhere he wants to take him.

Whitmore calls Quantum Leap "the most exciting, pleasurable show I've ever worked on because of the creativity involved. Each episode is a completely different movie." Even when plots were similar, says Whitmore, the ideas behind them were "always new and fresh and kind of interesting." The structure was very exciting for "an actor and a person who likes ideas. And I think that's how Donald Bellisario feels about it."

Whitmore has worked very closely with Bellisario over the years on many other TV shows. When asked to describe the man, Whitmore initially demurs, but then says, "He's an absolute unique individual in television. He has a strong commitment to his own intuition. It's very hard to get Don to compromise. It's very hard to get Don to do something for the sake of demographics or for an audience segment. He wants to tell his stories and hopes other people respond to it. What the networks want and what they need, he'll deal with that to get a show on the air. But Don mostly wants to express his feelings, ideas and world view. That's what he's all about. A lot of things in television are part of the pecking order. They're trying to find a way in and stay in and keep the networks happy."

Whitmore echoes Bellisario's sentiment that Dean Stockwell and Scott Bakula are two very hard-working and committed actors who relish their craft. "They're extraordinary. I've worked with a lot of folks as an actor and as a director, but their commitment to the work ... [goes] above and beyond the craft. Sometimes there's some ego-twisting and that stuff with actors in a series [that] has to do with how they as people are versus how important the product is," says Whitmore. "That gets in the way often, but in the case of Scott and Dean, that never gets in the way. ... I can't say enough nice things about Scott and Dean. They're always professional. Impeccable."

Whitmore admired how diligently Bakula researched his role for each segment, even while working on a current show. For an actor, says Whitmore, the show had to be "a never-ending battle. You have to go home to bed at the end of the show that he finishes now; get up in the next morning and be in a totally different world. A totally different setup."

As for Dean Stockwell, one of the few actors alive who has literally grown up with the film industry, Whitmore makes it clear that he was no second banana to Bakula. On the set, the actors were equals. Whitmore adds that "Dean Stockwell is a natural phenomenon. Dean Stockwell is an actor who's done more acting and films than you and I have seen! He's an extraordinary man to have on set. His work is forever inventive, new and fresh and real, and quite magical. His awareness of what works and what doesn't in terms of a scene is a wonderful gift. [He's] a bonus to have when you're shooting these pictures. He can figure a way to help you if you need something in the scene that's not working. I'll give Dean a line, and [ask], 'Give me this or give me that, or how about this or that?' and he'll do it better. An awful lot of actors," Whitmore confides, "are not trained actors."

[Many] are just guys who are walking down Venice Beach or somebody sitting at Schwab's and somebody says, 'You look great!' A lot of actors get a big film role before they get a chance to explore the craft!" Stockwell is emphatically not in this category. When it comes to specific episodes of the show that he's directed, the segment closest to Whitmore's heart may be the three-part episode "Trilogy." In fact, he calls the episode "one of my favorite shows I've ever done in my life ... a really spooky, crazy gothic show about a woman in Louisiana. It goes three different generations in Louisiana. It's all about a curse on a lady's family. Every other generation, a woman in the family kills her children, and ... it's a really kind of a spooky, gothic thing. And a very beautiful love story right in the middle of it. In the end, Sam leaps into a sheriff of this Louisiana town. The sheriff's daughter is being charged with murder. It's a very neat story. Sam winds up saving the daughter's life in the first episode in a fire. In the second half, it's twelve years later, he leaps into the arms of the daughter's lover. Sam falls desperately in love. Unbeknownst to himself, he gets this woman pregnant. And then in the third hour, which is thirteen years later, he meets his young daughter."

Whitmore emphasizes that while the characters believe it's the lover who sired the daughter, Sam's own genes are transmitted to the woman he loves. It's actually Sam's own daughter.

Of "Oswald," Whitmore says, "(Don) wanted to tell who Oswald was, and when I started working on the damn thing, I realized it hadn't really been done much. Who is this guy? We don't really know much about Oswald. What kind of a guy he was and what his life was all about. I think it's very important to know whether or not he acted alone. I'm not sure he acted alone." Candidly, Whitmore evaluates his work and admits, "I'm not sure that picture worked. I don't think we ever really plotted this out together. There are some very interesting sequences that weren't really going anywhere. We knew we were going to Dallas eventually. We knew that somehow we would see what happened in the depository. Don's position is that Oswald acted alone and he fired the shot that killed Kennedy.

"I thought it was too diffuse and didn't work together as a whole. I thought the element was fascinating, and I had a lot of fun doing it! It's just that I didn't know if it was Sam or Oswald or who the hell it was. I think it was very confusing, and the response I got from the show was no one knew what the hell was going on. If you are a conspiracy buff, [the show] pissed you off. If you are not a conspiracy buff, or just a general viewer, I think you'd be interested in it." An almost incredible coincidence is that Bellisario and Lee Harvey Oswald served together as Marines in the mid-1950s, stationed at Santa Ana, California. Indeed, Don worked a character named "Sgt. Bellisario" into the show.

For Whitmore, the directing stamp he leaves on the show does not involve the science fiction elements at all. "The thing that matters to me are the people, the stories, the emotional situations and how people react to the given situations." That's the core, he says. "It's about how we survive, how we live, how we deal with each other. That's what I think is exciting about Quantum Leap. I don't mind cop shows, bizarre shows, all kinds of garbage; it's pat, it's formula." In Quantum Leap, however, each week presented "a very different situation. And a very different human quandary to deal with. And that's the beauty of making films for me."

Whitmore recognizes, however, that the science fiction elements are important. "I know people are drawn to them. There are a whole bunch of them out there, 'Leapers,' who love it. Dean popping in and out, walking through walls, that kind of stuff. It's kind of fun to do, neat to watch, but it's not what the story is about for me.

Describing the last episode of Quantum Leap ("Mirror Image, August 5, 1953"), Bellisario says, "Sam leaps into a small tavern bar in a coal mining town of Pennsylvania in 1953. He comes face to face with himself in the mirror. Back in Project Quantum Leap, there's no one in the Waiting Room. Al doesn't know where or how to find him. Sam's deciding that this bartender behind the bar is really God, or time or fate. Sam comes face to face with what's really leaping him around. He thinks he does. It has a very surprising, tender ending. But I will say that Sam does not go home at the end of it. And where he goes, nobody knows. Until the next Quantum Leap...."

Many viewers have noticed that Sam's leaping and doing good deeds in different time periods suggests religious overtones and that Sam just might be doing God's work. "Well, it could be God's work, or he's doing someone else's work," quips Bellisario. "We never say it quite. We say God, time or fate. In this episode, Sam even says, 'Or maybe something we never knew about.' Well, the implication is it's obviously a higher being. God or some sort." Whitmore has fond memories of directing "Mirror Image." "It was great, it was mysterious, one of the best-looking and most fun shows we ever made. It created a very interesting final episode. It was very emotional. We all knew it was the last show we were going to do. The way it was finally cut, it was pretty much the end. We weren't sure it was going to be the end when we were shooting it. But we all felt it was."

Can he provide a definitive answer to what Bellisario was trying to say in "Mirror Image"? Can he reveal the identity of the bartender? Whitmore just chuckles. "There's a lot of ideas. The fact of the matter is, we all shot up with ideas. I have my ideas, Scott has his ideas, and Don has his ideas. Don was very specific-that God, time or fate did not exist. It was Sam choosing his own fate. The kind of person that he was, he kept going from place to place to help people. Scott and I decided that's what it was." But beyond that explanation, Whitmore refuses to say anything more, feeling that to do so would defeat the purposely enigmatic nature of the script. "I have my own beliefs, but I don't even want to tell you. It simplifies it too much. It takes all the ramifications out of it and all the interest out of it. Useful art is good because it makes you think. In a way, I hate to tell you what's really going on in there because the fact of the matter is, it's a metaphor for anything you want it to be."

As for the man behind the counter in Al's Tavern, Whitmore says, "The bartender was a pretty powerful guy. He had a lot to do with what's going on everywhere. He was actually patterned after Don's father. Bruce McGill, the actor was almost a spitting image of Don's father." Will Sam Beckett ever leap again? Don Bellisario insists that Quantum Leap "won't end. It's a kind of a show that's much like Star Trek in that it's got great viewer appeal. It's running on USA cable and they're finding that it's doing very well, getting stronger and stronger. They're delighted with it. So, Quantum Leap will go on in some form. I'm sure what will happen is we can make a movie of some kind, theatrical release, for television, whatever. There will be some form of the show coming back. It does have too loyal a following. Too many people love it. It's too interesting a show to disappear."

Co-executive producer, writer and actress Deborah Pratt agrees. According to Pratt, Sidney Sheinberg, the president of Universal TV thinks Quantum Leap's potential as a feature film is very high. He believes so strongly in the property that he wants to develop the show as a series of feature films similar to the Star Trek features treatment. So, don't be surprised if one day the person standing next to you, in a moment of emotional or physical strain, stops momentarily, looks around confusedly and mutters under his breath, "Oh, boy!"

CAST NOTES

Scott Bakula (Dr. Sam Beckett): Born 1955. For his role in Quantum Leap, Bakula received four Emmy nominations and a Viewers for Quality Television award for best actor in a drama series. He's appeared in the Paramount comedy Necessary Roughness (1991), Carl Reiner's Sibling Rivalry (1990) with Kirstie Alley, and an NBC Movie of the Week, An Eye for an Eye. Before making his mark on Quantum Leap, Bakula was already a well-known actor in the theater circuit, acknowledged by a Tony nomination for Romance, Romance

Born in St. Louis, Bakula originally planned on following his father's footsteps by becoming a lawyer. Moving to New York in 1976, he made his Broadway debut as Joe DiMaggio in Marilyn: An American Fable. An accomplished singer, dancer, pianist and composer, Bakula currently resides in Los Angeles with his wife and children. After Quantum Leap, he joined the cast of Murphy Brown in the fall of 1993 and completed several TV movies, such as Mercy Mission (1993) and State of Terror (1994).

Dean Stockwell (Adm. Al Calaviccini): Born 1936. A former child star, Stockwell is still one of the busiest actors in Hollywood. He gained raves for his performances in the hit feature films Married to the Mob (Academy Award nomination) and Tucker: The Man and His Dream (NY/LA Film Critics Award). His career is being called the major comeback of the decade. For Quantum Leap, he's received a Golden Globe award as best supporting actor.

Stockwell's film appearances as a child actor include Anchors Aweigh (1945), The Boy with Green Hair (1948), Kim (1950) and, as a young man, Compulsion (1959). He's rendered memorable performances in Dune (1984), Paris, Texas (1984), To Live and Die in L.A. (1985), Blue Velvet (1986), Gardens of Stone (1987) and Beverly Hills Cop II (1987).

Stockwell was six years old when his father, Harry-the voice of Prince Charming in the film Snow White-took him to an audition. The next thing he knew, he was playing the lead onstage in Innocent Voyage. But no one asked him if he wanted to be an actor. "I quit the business when I was sixteen, I cut my hair off, changed my name and disappeared into the countryside," he says. "I did odd jobs for five years, then when I ran out of things to do, I went back into the business to try again." It wasn't until 1984, after marrying his wife, Joy, starting a family (son Austin, daughter Sophia) and moving to New Mexico, that he found himself in demand again. Stockwell lives in Los Angeles, where he spends his free time educating the public about saving the environment and preventing the depletion of the ozone layer.

Scott Bakula also starred in the TV mini series THE INVADERS, Dean Stockwell also guest starred in an episode of the original TWILIGHT ZONE. The protagonist is thrown from one historic period to another by a malfunctioning time machine. In each episode, he must find, with the help of his sex obsessed friend in the future and a supercomputer in that same future, the purpose for his leap, that is: what good deed he must do to change the past into the actual past that led to his future. Once he does his good deed, he vanishes from that era and leaps to another. The deeper paradoxes of Time Travel are not dealt with.

There has been a number of books published about Quantum Leap, most are original novels, they are as follows, #1 - The Beginning (novelisation) , #2 - The Ghost and the Gumshoe (novelisation), #3 - Too Close For Comfort by Ashley McConnell, #4 - Carny Knowledge by Ashley McConnell, #5 - The Wall by Ashley McConnell, #6 - Random Measures by Ashley McConnell, #7 - Prelude by Ashley McConnell, #8 - Knights of the Morning Star by Melanie Rawn, #9 - Pulitzer by L. Elizabeth Storm, #10 - Search and Rescue by Melissa Crandall, #11 - Double or Nothing by C.J. Henderson, #12 - Odyssey by Barbara E. Walton, #13 - Obsessions by Carol David (not UK), #14 - Independence by John Peel (not UK, first male author), #15 - Angels Unaware by L. Elizabeth Storm (not UK), #16 - Loch Ness Leap by Sandy Schofield (not UK), #17 - Heat Wave by Melanie Kent (not UK), #18 - Foreknowledge (not UK) by Christopher DeFilippis, #19 - Song and Dance by Mindy Peterman (not UK).

This show is considered to be the best Time Travel SF show ever made, with good acting and expensive sets. The SF is kept to a minimum as the show tends to concentrate mainly on characters within it. The show latched onto the nostalgia of the late 1990s, with good accurate depiction's of the past. The acting quality was also top notch with Dean Stockwell, who had starred in the original TWILIGHT ZONE (1959-64) and the film Blue Velvet. Many of the episodes were considered good one which stand out include The Leap Home, in which Sam returns to his own body when he was a child, Dreams, in which Sam plays a psychic detective. Not forgetting the very last episode Mirror Image, where Sam arrives in small mining town, to discover that he must save Al's marriage.

The producers of the show new that they would get cancelled, so the finally episode was one just for the fans. It also had a controversial ending in that Sam never returned home. The show was cancelled mainly due to bad ratings because of moving the show through the various time slots. Also the format was stretched in the last season allowing Sam to travel further back in time than his life time, which was not treated well by fans of the show. The creator of the show Donald P. Bellisario also created the helicopter SF show AIRWOLF (1984-1987).

'It all started when a time travel experiment I was conducting went a little ca-ca' (Dr Sara Beckett) While Sam put it bluntly, Quantum Leap's opening narration was a little more elegant: 'Theorising that one could time travel within his own lifetime, Dr Sam Beckett stepped into the Quantum Leap accelerator and vanished. He woke to find himself trapped in the past, facing mirror images that were not his own and driven by an unknown force to change history for the better.'

Quantum Leap not only flouted the usual time-travel conventions of not changing history, it made a virtue out of it. 'Every time-travel show worries about the ramifications of changing history,' said creator Don Bellisario-the man behind Magnum and Airwolf- 'But we don't.'

If ever a series out-performed its format, this was it. Here was a show tailor-made for the nostalgic Nineties, playing down the sci-fi to play up the feel-good factor, as quantum physicist Sam leapt around in time, playing cosmic Lone Ranger 'to put right what once went wrong'.

With his leaps (mostly) confined to his own lifetime - 8 August 1953 onwards - it was the perfect way for viewers to revisit their own lives and relive the highs and lows of the past four decades. Nearly every episode ended the same way. Wreathed in blue light, Sam would dematerialise from one life to rematerialise in another body at a crisis point in their life. Taking it all in, he would sum up his predicament in the same two words: 'Oh boy!' It was an endearing catchphrase, perfectly pitched so fans would share in Sam's anticipation of another troublesome adventure next week.

His only companion on his leaps was Al Calavicci, an observer from the Quantum Leap project who appeared as a hologram, invisible to everyone except Sam, animals and children. A rumpled, cigar-smoking womaniser, forever rambling on about his ex-wives, Al acted as Sam's 'Tonto', dispensing world weary wisdom and statistical probabilities about the latest leap, coughed up by the project computer Ziggy, via a dodgy hand-set that played up like a torch with fading batteries.

Viewers only ever saw Sam as himself (otherwise star Scott Bakula's role would have been a small one!). It was only when Sam saw himself in the mirror that we all got a chance to see what kind of face and body everyone around him was seeing. Initially, those faces were white and male, but with the format established, the writers grew bolder and Sam wound up playing women, blacks, children, a Down's Syndrome man, and even a chimp!

The show's theory of time travel was explained in the pilot episode by Sam who compared life to a piece of string. 'One end is birth, the other is death. Tie the ends together to make a loop. Ball the loop and all the days touch. Thus you can leap from one to another.'

The initially sketchy details about project Quantum Leap were gradually filled in, as was Sam's memory which had been 'Swiss-cheesed' by his leaping. When Sam leapt into a new body, that bemused person materialised in the project's 'waiting room'. Normally they were heard of but never seen, though a couple of exceptions were sex psychologist Dr Ruth, and a desperate killer who escaped on to the streets of the future.

Sam's adventures were often light and comic, sometimes creepy, sometimes thrilling. They especially confronted prejudice of all shapes, sizes, colours and creeds. And there were some very poignant scenes, such as Sam trying to warn his own family of impending tragedy in their lives and playing John Lennon's Imagine to his sister two years before Lennon would write it. And a shameless homage to Ghost had hologram AI 'dancing' with the wife who believed him dead - a wrong that was neatly righted in the series' final episode.

The series also had semi-religious undercurrents. Sam became convinced his leaps were being controlled by God, and the series even introduced an evil leaper, Alia, with her own hologram companion, Zoey (played by Carolyn Seymour, who starred as Abby Grant in Terry Nation's Survivors). Quantum Leap rejuvenated the careers of both its stars. Bakula had appeared in a couple of TV flops Eisenhower and Lutz and Gung Ho, and former child star Dean Cain had dropped out of acting before a string of comeback appearances in films such as Blue Velvet, Married to the Mob and Paris, Texas.

The series had a rough baptism in America when it was first shown in 1989, languishing at number 88 in the ratings. A switch to a late-night graveyard slot could have killed it off but half a million howls of protest from 'Leapers', the show's loyal fans, saved it from the axe. In Britain, it never left BBC2's top ten and has undoubtedly been one of the hit shows of the Nineties.

In the end, though, Sam never made it home - to be reunited with his wife, Donna, introduced in an earlier episode, and the daughter he fathered on another leap. An often baffling last episode (which reverted to using Mike Post's much-loved earlier version of the theme music) saw him materialise in a bar on the day of his birth, as himself, and discuss his destiny with an enigmatic bartender he thought was God! Sam didn't get easy answers and some ends were left loose, all of us having to make do with: 'sometimes, "that's the way it is" is the best explanation.'

Ignoring the science fiction aspect of the show, which often does little except provide the set up for the story. Quantum Leap became the type of show that producers seem to love an anthology series with regular continuing characters. Over the course of the series Sam became: a Jewish rabbi, an air force test pilot and a blind piano player. Although most of the lives he leapt into belonged to white American males, on several occasions he became a woman, a few other times a black man and once an American Indian. Despite having once become an American soldier in Vietnam and on another becoming a British rock star (on tour in America) Sam almost always leapt into the lives of Americans in America. NOTE: Each episode ends with a brief preview of the next episode. Since episodes have not been rerun in original order many have been broadcast with more than one ending.

The executive producer for the show was Donald P. Bellisario, co-executive producers were Deborah Pratt (Season Two-Five), Michael Zinberg (Seasons Two-Four), Charles Johnson (Season Five). Producers for the series included Deborah Pratt, John Hill, Harker Wade, Paul M. Belous, Robert Wolterstorff, Michael Zinberg, Paul Brown, Jeff Gourson, Chris Ruppenthal, Tommy Thompson and Robin Jill Bernheim, theme was created by Mike Post.

The UK premiered Quantum Leap on the 13th February 1990, the very last episode of the series "Mirror Image", which resulted in Sam not returning to home, was broadcast on the 21st June 1994 on BBC2, this episode was showed first in the UK before the episode was broadcast in the US.

Quantum Leap premiered as a midseason replacement series on March 26, 1989. The two-hour premiere opens with Al stopping on a lonely stretch of road to give a lift to a woman whose car has broken down. But no sooner does he do this than he sees a distant glow lighting up the night sky, and as his state-of-the-art 1999 sports car blasts off down the road, he phones the complex and discovers that Dr. Sam Beckett has activated the Quantum Leap accelerator that will pitch him back in time. Although not established in the pilot, Sam activated the project prematurely owing to impending plans by the government to pull the plug on the project because it hadn't produced any results yet. This was the same scenario that powered events in the pilot for The Time Tunnel back in 1966. Beyond that, the shows have little in common.

Quantum Leap is just as likely to present a comedy as it is a drama, and sometimes does a little of both. In the opening episode, Sam wakes up in 1956 and barely remembers his own name. What he does know for certain is that he's not a test pilot for the X-2 in spite of what his pregnant wife tells him. Sam is further confounded when he goes into the bathroom to shave and the face looking back at him in the mirror is not his own. This is where things get confusing. Although everyone sees the person Sam has become in the past, it's actually Sam who is there. We see Sam and so does Al (Dean Stockwell), an associate on project Quantum Leap who is projected into the past with Sam, but only as a hologram. Al's real body remains in the future, in 1999, where the Quantum Leap Project is located. The physical bodies of the people Sam is replacing are also in the future but they have little memory of what happened to them when they return to their own time.

As Donald Bellisario explained it, regarding where the people go when Sam is living their lives, "They're in the waiting room, which is a medical looking room. Very antiseptic, with people in white garments or robes, all enclosed and examining them and probing them and checking them; a lot of strange lights, futuristic. And when they leap back, they immediately think that they have been kidnapped by aliens. And if you check, that's when it all started, y'know, right about the time Sam started leaping. All these encounters of the third kind began to happen. They were all quantum leaps."

The confusing part, and where science seems to stretch into sorcery, is the offhand explanation that people don't see Sam in the past, they see the person Sam has replaced because that's who they expect to see! There's some double-talk about auras and other such things, but it was a long time before I understood that Sam's body was in the past, not just his mind. Sam invariably appears in the life of someone who is either in danger or is in the position to save the life of someone he knows.

'This next aspect is even more of a stretch. An unknown force, sometimes referred to as fate or destiny or a higher power, is guiding Sam from one leap to the next. Each time Sam must set things right, usually by preventing a death or some other grave injustice and thereby changing someone's life for the better. In the pilot he's just guessing that this is what he has to do. It was a theory that he and Al had discussed.

When Al appears, he has a handlink device that puts him into direct contact with a computer nick-named Ziggy. Ziggy provides the background information on the people Sam is involved with in that time period, which gives him the deadline he's working against. In the pilot he's in 1956 in the form of a test pilot who is destined to die in a plane crash. His pregnant wife will deliver a premature baby that will be stillborn. As luck would have it, Al is a former pilot (in a later episode we learn that he was shot down over Vietnam and was a prisoner of war for several years). Al directs Sam how to fly the X-2 and enables Sam to break Mach three (three times the speed of sound) and eject safely even though the plane crashes. Since Sam has several academic degrees, he uses his medical knowledge to prevent his "wife" from delivering the baby prematurely, thereby saving the baby's life.

The balance of the pilot has Sam appear in 1968 in the form of a baseball player who scores a winning run and saves his and his coach's careers. The most dramatic part of the episode, though, is when Sam remembers his father's name and phones him, pretending to be the son of his father's brother. Sam's father died in 1972 and so he is able to say things to his father he never had the chance to do in life. When the call ends Sam is weeping. Too often television shows portray the hero as being a macho lout to whom a display of tender emotion would be unheard of. But Sam is portrayed as a realistic human being whose own feelings and emotions become very much a part of the events he lives through. It's this aspect that tends to save stories which otherwise seem to stretch credibility rather thin.

Quantum Leap was created by Donald Bellisario. Bellisario had worked in television for several years prior to creating this series, and had written scripts for such shows as Airwolf, Magnum P.I., Quincy, and Tales of the Gold Monkey. He was tired of that and wanted to do something completely different from the typical action shows that populated prime time. Having just completed work on the feature film Last Rites, he wanted to turn his attention to something lighter in tone. "I was trying to look for a format that would give me an opportunity to do a completely different kind of show," Bellisario explained. "I wanted to be able to do an anthology. Television networks and studios don't want to do anthologies because people really don't watch them and they're very hard to syndicate so that they can recover their money. I just wanted to do something that would have a different story to tell every week."

The writer/producer had been toying with the idea of doing something mystical that would be set in the Southwest. And while he was working out these ideas in his head he read a book called Coming of Age in the Milky Way by Timothy Ferris, which deals with scientific concepts in a way that laymen can understand. One of the things the book dealt with was the concept of time. These ideas came together and out of them was born Quantum Leap.

Even though he didn't think he could get a network to go for a time travel show, he was determined to try just the same. The hook he determined would make it easier to sell was that the main character would only be able to travel within his own lifetime. Sam was born in 1953 and so that would be the farthest back he could go, but since the last half of the twentieth century has been a very volatile period in history, this still left open a wide array of story possibilities. Although at the time the series first aired, Bellisario promised, "It will never be November, 1963 in Dallas, Texas with Kennedy coming to town. I don't want to do that kind of show. I'm more interested in doing a show about people and relationships." Bellisario pitched the idea to Brandon Tartikoff, who was then the head of NBC programming.

Tartikoff agreed that the idea was a different one, but he liked it. It was original and yet it was easy to understand. Tartikoff's measure for a successful show was that he had to be able to explain it to his mother in less than twenty seconds. If it was more complicated than that, then he felt that viewers might find it too complicated to follow as well. While on one level this seems amusing to hear, on another it's sad as it explains the state of much of the programming on television today. It has to be dumbed down for the viewers, or so the networks feel. This is why the new science fiction series Space Rangers is just cop show scripts dressed up with aliens and spaceships.

Quantum Leap is the first television series to stipulate that time can be altered—that it is not immutable. On the other hand, it also seems to be saying that there are not any drastic consequences of these alterations. Once Sam has altered the past successfully, Al is able to tie into Ziggy and discover the outcome always positive. It's when Sam cannot change the past that bad things result, including the recent episode in which Sam's actions almost result in Al being executed for murder in the fifties, thereby altering Sam's own future. The people Sam helps, the lives he alters, are always the little people. He brings rewards to lives where before there had been tragedy.

What ensures that Sam's actions will only have positive results is the character Scott Bakula portrays. Dr. Sam Beckett isn't just a brilliant scientist, he's also a man of morals and convictions. He has vowed not to use the past for personal gain, such as investing in a small company in the fifties which will become a billion-dollar corporation in the sixties and seventies. He helps people better their lives through their actions, not their investments. Scott Bakula became interested in acting in 1974 while attending the University of Kansas. While he had started out intending to get a law degree, he switched to the theatre department. He left college in 1975 and briefly appeared in a touring company of Godspell. He then worked for a while painting houses and as a loan officer for the Household Finance Company before working on Broadway. He appeared in such productions as Marilyn: An American Fable, and appeared off-Broadway in Three Guys Naked from the Waist Down. He also acted in the Boston and Los Angeles productions of Nite Club Confidential.

The actor began getting work on television in such programs as My Sister Sam, Matlock, and On Our Own. He also had a recurring role in the early episodes of Designing Women as Mary Jo's ex-husband, the obnoxious gynecologist. Bakula also appeared on the short-lived series Gung Ho and Eisenhower and Lutz. On the big screen he had a supporting role in Sibling Rivalry as the husband of Kirstie Alley. He had the starring role in Necessary Roughness as a former star high-school quarterback who goes to college twenty years later and joins the football team. Bakula credits the wide range of performances he's been called on to give as the reason he was offered his film roles. On Quantum Leap, besides playing ordinary people, he's also played a hit man, a rabbi, a schoolteacher, a pregnant woman, a chimpanzee, and a Klansman.

Bakula was cast in the role after Donald Bellisario contacted the actor's agent and sent two sample scenes from the script. The actor describes the show as sort of a cross between Back to the Future and Peggy Sue Got Married, and as being a people show as opposed to a hardware kind of science fiction show. The paradoxes and intellectual games inherent in time travel form an underlying element of Quantum Leap. "It's easy to get distracted with what you might perceive to be the technicalities of the show-the computers and all," he told Starlog. "If you really want to get into discussing the time travel and quantum physics and all those theories, you could get lost. To me, it's a show about relationships- somebody who finds himself in a strange place and gets involved with the people that are there in his life. And this guy becomes kind of like a classic American hero and he cares about the people and he does good things because he wants to do them."

Dean Stockwell, who plays Albert, is a former child star who made good. He began acting at the age of six, and in the forties he appeared in such films as Anchors Aweigh and The Boy with Green Hair. In Kim he acted opposite Errol Flynn in one of that actor's last major films. By the time he was sixteen, he was fed up with Hollywood. He felt that he didn't have a life of his own and was working all the time, so he quit the business. For five years he worked at odd jobs and just worked at being him-self, without having to answer to anyone.

By the time he was twenty-one he was ready to return to Hollywood. In the late fifties he re-established his career in Compulsion on Broadway. In the sixties he dropped out again, becoming involved in the hippie movement and the Haight-Ashbury scene. The second time he tried a comeback it was much tougher. Not until landing a role in the 1982 film Paris, Texas did his fourteen-year exile from Hollywood truly come to an end. That was thanks to a recommendation by an old friend, actor Harry Dean Stanton. He then appeared in the low-budget film To Kill a Stranger, followed by a prestigious role in the big-budget David Lynch film Dune.

Stockwell heard that a film version of Dune was in the works, and, being a fan of the book, he managed to secure a meeting with David Lynch. Initially all the roles had already been cast, but when the actor slated to play Dr. Yueh left the project, the director offered the role to Stockwell. Lynch liked working with Dean Stockwell so much that he cast him in a small but pivotal role in the controversial film Blue Velvet. Other film roles followed sporadically, including Beverly Hills Cop II, Gardens of Stone, To Live and Die in L.A., Tucker, and Married to the Mob. Initially Stockwell's role in Married to the Mob was supposed to be spun off into its own series, but it never came together. It was Stockwell's humorous character in Married to the Mob that brought him to the attention of Donald Bellisario. In describing Quantum Leap, Stockwell states that, "It's a fantastic concoction, really. Albert, my character, which is embellished as the series goes along, has lots of facets. He's obviously a brilliant guy. He was a physicist, an astronaut, and is a colorful person who obviously still enjoys life. He's also interested in other people's problems and does everything to help them."

Regarding the casting of these two actors, Bellisario stated, "When Scott came in and read, I didn't want to say right on the spot, 'Oh, boy, you're the guy,' and get all excited and he'd go wild and ask for eight million dollars. But he came in, he read, he walked out, and . . . it was the first time I'd met Scott. And I said, 'He's perfect. This is the guy.' And then when I heard Dean would be interested in doing it, I was really excited. Dean came in and read and he was the character. He was just there. And it was wonderful. And it's been that way ever since. These guys are just great to work with. Nonstar stars. By that, I mean no attitude on either one of them. They're just there to work and have fun. And the whole set reflects it. It's just a lot of fun."

The earliest episodes were pretty routine-Sam leaps into someone's life and helps change it for the better, but they're pretty interchangeable, even when Sam finds himself in the role of a Mafia hit man. But in episode six, "The Colour of Truth," Sam finds himself a black man in the pre-civil rights South of 1955. It deals with the obvious questions of civil rights as his character tries to convince people that things cannot continue the way they are. It plays things pretty safe even if its heart is in the right place.

The best episodes of Quantum Leap dealt with human issues which were determined to truly get to the heart of the matter. None was better at this than episode thirty-one, "The Leap Home." When Sam appears on November 25, 1969, he finds himself not in another stranger, but in his own body at age six-teen. Sam is overwhelmed at being able to see his family again as his father died of a heart attack in 1972, and his brother, Tom, was killed in Vietnam. Sam decides on his own that he's there to save his father and brother. But when Al tells him that he's actually there to win a basketball game he'd previously lost, because of all the people this will positively benefit, Sam rejects that as being too simplistic. A basketball game? Sam is determined to help his family. He tries to convince his sister, Katy, that he knows what will happen in the future by singing her a John Lennon song that won't be written for several years. She becomes frightened and Sam tries to tell her it was just a joke.

When he tries to help his father by getting him to change his diet, his father becomes angry because Sam is telling him that the food he raises on the farm is bad for him to eat. His father is just too set in his ways to start eating healthy now. Sam tries to convince his brother that when he's in 'Nam' on April 8, 1970 he'll agree not to go out in the field on any missions. Sam goes out and wins the game, but just before he leaps, Al tells him that Tom still dies in Vietnam. When Sam leaps he finds himself in Vietnam, in the body of one of Tom's fellow soldiers on April 7, 1970.

The following episode, titled "The Leap Home II, Vietnam," has Sam succeed in saving his brother's life. In this story line we see Sam get angry over his situation for the only time, feeling that after all the good he's done for others, the higher power or whatever is controlling his time-travelling destiny owes him something in return. In Part One it seems that all he's granted is the chance to spend a few days with his family before it is ripped apart by tragedy.

In Part Two, Sam succeeds in saving Tom's life, although seemingly not only at the cost of the life of a journalist who didn't die before, but also by losing a chance Sam might have had to rescue Al right after he'd been made a POW in Vietnam. Al says it's okay because he was released five years later, and he was always free in his mind. This episode is more complicated than many of the others and deals with more delicate moral and philosophical issues.

Episode thirty-five, "The Boogieman," is a strange episode. It's a dream story, except at the end when Sam wakes up in time to save the life of a handy-man. In a brush with history, as Sam occasionally has in his travels, a nerdy kid named Stevie King is inspired by some things Sam says to try his hand at writing horror stories. This originally aired October 26, 1990, and was a Halloween episode. It is effective, though, as we wonder what's going to happen next when Al turns out to be an impostor who's really a demon angry at Sam for setting right what the demon had originally caused to go wrong. Dream stories are usually annoying but this one is much more clever than most.

While some shows start to wind down by the time they hit fifty episodes, Quantum Leap has only started to wind up, trying new ideas rather than staying with the tried and true. In the fourth-season opener, something goes wrong and Sam and Al switch places. Al winds up as the leaper, with gaps in his memory as to who he is and what he's doing, and Sam is back in project Quantum Leap, inside the imaging chamber, where he is now the holo-gram guiding Al. It's June 15, 1945, and Al is in the body of a soldier who's just returned from World War II. By episode's end, Sam has to save the lives of two people (including Al) and try to get their situation straightened out. In the same season, Sam plays a rape victim (a woman) in 1980 and a research chimp in 1961. The latter episode deals with the animal rights issue-by taking both sides in the story-although the scientist portrayed decides to end his cruel animal head-trauma research at tale's end.

The fourth season also produced an even more controversial episode. When word got out that an episode would have Sam leap into the body of a gay high-school student, everyone started jumping up and down, including NBC, who threatened not to pay for the episode. It seems that other shows that had featured gay characters had suffered pullouts by sponsors fearful of product boycotts by fundamentalist and right-wing groups. Although Bellisario claimed he wouldn't back down, the teenage characters were advanced into military cadets and the story line dealt less with discrimination than with someone being falsely accused of murdering the gay cadet. It turned out that the cadet had actually committed suicide and framed an inner circle of gay bashers in the academy. Sam succeeds in preventing the cadet from killing himself. Whether the character Sam plays, who is the gay cadet's roommate, is gay is left up in the air as Sam ultimately decides that it doesn't make any difference whether he is or not.

The one place where the episode doesn't pull back is when Al reveals that he's very upset with the concept of a gay military cadet and he and Sam debate the subject. So even though the story line was watered down somewhat, it still confronts the issue of homophobia by making it a personal issue between Sam and Al. The fact that Al has an extensive military background makes his reactions believable rather than contrived. With recent real-life headlines, their debate is even more timely.

The fourth-season finale is easily one of the best episodes in the entire series. While the show generally tries not to get too complicated for fear of alienating the non-science fiction enthusiasts, the finale pulled out all the stops and made the audience either pay close attention, listen, or leave the room confused. When Sam leaps into Al's body in the fifties, they at first are uncertain what Sam has to do. Al was wrongly accused of murder at that time but was cleared. But when Al isn't cleared, Ziggy reveals that Al is in danger of being tried, convicted, and executed.

When Sam fails to come up with a solution before a certain moment, the odds against Al being freed become overwhelming and suddenly Al is gone-replaced by a different hologram assistant played by Roddy McDowall. It's a brilliant scene. The show becomes even more complicated as multiple time leaping is done not only to save Al, but to save a woman who was Al's alibi and who later died in an accident. This time she doesn't die and Al is not only freed, but the real killer is caught. It's a complex web of storytelling, which must be seen to be believed. It deals with the dangers of paradox in time travelling, which until then the series had shied away from just because of how complicated and confusing it can be to confront. Bellisario confronts it head-on in a complex yet logical manner. It's a story filled with surprises that just pile one on top of the other and make it impossible to guess the outcome. A real class act.

Just when we're sighing in relief and applauding the imagination of the series, they pull another rabbit out of a hat by having Sam leap into the season ending cliffhanger as Sam appears in the body of Lee Harvey Oswald just weeks before the JFK assassination. The biggest surprise in this was that up until then, the series had deliberately steered clear of having Sam Beckett appear in the form of any historical figures. This time, Donald Bellisario had a personal axe to grind. "Everyone seems to be on the conspiracy band wagon, but I've never been on it," Bellisario stated in the September 22, 1992, Los Angeles Times. "But I guess what really struck me the strongest was when my twelve-year-old son went to see [Oliver Stone's] JFK and came home totally brainwashed by the film and started telling me all of these half truths, falsehoods, and speculation as if they were fact. I decided if I could figure out a way to bring the tale closer to the truth-no one knows the truth and no one will probably ever know it precisely but put forth another argument, another theory, another side to the story, that would be a good thing to do."

In this episode, Sam turns up in Oswald at different points in his adult life during the two-hour episode. But for the first time, things begin going wrong. Oswald's residual personality begins to gain sway over Sam, especially on the morning of November 22, 1963. In 1999, Al tries talking to Oswald where he's being held, but Oswald won't budge from his position, or even believe what Al is telling him. He smirks a lot. The episode ends with Sam leaping into the body of one of the Secret Service men riding in the motorcade. While Kennedy is still assassinated, Al reveals that they did change history, because originally Jackie was killed as well.

Adding to the background of this episode is the fact that in 1959, Bellisario actually had an encounter with Oswald, which is included in the script. Bellisario had recently gotten out of the Marines and had returned to the base at Tustin to visit some of his Marine buddies. There he encountered another Marine who was reading a radical newspaper. He recalled, "Here's this Marine telling me something that I would expect to hear coming out of Radio Moscow, a whole load of communist doctrine. I got incensed, and if you brought up something he didn't like, he just kind of sneered at you. Originally I just walked away and I asked another Marine there, 'What the hell is with this jerk?' and he said, 'Oh, he does that to every one. He's harmless.'" Originally Bellisario had stated that aside from not wanting to deal with major historical events, because of the ripple effect they would have in time were they dramatically altered, he also wished to avoid the obvious, such as tackling something like the Kennedy assassination.

"I was a little surprised about his breaking the rules," Dean Stockwell admitted, "but I sensed why he was doing it. We're going into our fifth season and instead of continuing on with the same old pattern, I think it's the right time to give the audience something different. To add a new colour. I think it was a wise idea." Bellisario also admitted to toying with the idea of doing episodes involving Elvis Presley, Richard Nixon, or Marilyn Monroe.

The season continued to try different things. A three-part episode had Sam leaping through a per-son's life three times to solve a murder. An evil leaper has been introduced, someone from farther in the future than Sam, who doesn't have the benevolent ideals exemplified by Beckett. Even though the going for Quantum Leap has been rocky at times, it has managed to persevere and is presently syndicated on the USA network five nights a week. In some respects the series is a surprise success. Whether it will help to spawn additional science fiction series is doubtful because whenever something unusual is a success, programmers deem it a "non-repeatable phenomenon;" which is a fancy way of saying that they don't understand the show and haven't a clue how to imitate it. In the meantime fans will just keep time-tripping with Dr. Samuel Beckett and exploring our recent past from ground level.

Emmy Award

Outstanding Costume Design for a Series - Nominees: "Quantum Leap" (1989) - Jean-Pierre Dorléac - For episode "Sea Bride". (1990)

Outstanding Costume Design for a Series - Nominees: "Quantum Leap" (1989) - Jean-Pierre Dorléac - For episode "Glitter Rock". (1991)

Outstanding Individual Achievement in Costume Design for a Series - Nominees: "Quantum Leap" (1989) - Jean-Pierre Dorléac For episode "A Single Drop of Rain". (1992)

Outstanding Individual Achievement in Costume Design for a Series - Nominees: "Quantum Leap" (1989) - Jean-Pierre Dorléac - For episode "Lee Harvey Oswald". (1993)

Golden Globe

Best Performance by an Actor in a Supporting Role in a Series, Mini-Series or Motion Picture Made for TV - Winner: "Quantum Leap" (1989) - Dean Stockwell (1990)

Best Performance by an Actor in a TV-Series - Drama - Nominated - "Quantum Leap" (1989) - Scott Bakula (1991)

Best Performance by an Actor in a Supporting Role in a Series, Mini-Series or Motion Picture Made for TV - Nominated - "Quantum Leap" (1989) - Dean Stockwell (1991)

Best Performance by an Actor in a TV-Series - Drama - Winner: "Quantum Leap" (1989) - Scott Bakula (1992)

Best Performance by an Actor in a TV-Series - Drama - Nominated - "Quantum Leap" (1989) - Scott Bakula (1993)

WR. Donald P. Bellisario, Deborah Pratt, Paul Brown and Chris Ruppenthal, John Hill, Paul Brown, Scott Shepherd, Julie Brown, Tommy Thompson, Sandy Fries, Robert A. Wolterstorff, Beverly Bridges, Sam Rolfe, Richard C. Okie, Robin Jill Bernheim, Chris Abbott, John D'Aquino, Gus Trikonis, David Hemmings, James Whitmore Jr.

DIR. Joe Napolitano, James Whitmore Jr, Donald P. Bellisario, Virgel W. Vogel, Mark Sobel, Michael Vejar, Alan J. Levi, Aaron Lipstadt, Gilbert Shilton, James Whitmore Jr., Michael Zinberg, Christopher T. Welch, Joe Napolitano, Debbie Allen, Andy Cadiff, Rob Bowman and Scott Bakula.

EPISODES: 95 YEAR MADE: 1989 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 5

BELLISARIUS PRODUCTIONS IN ASSOCIATION WITH UNIVERSAL TELEVISION AND MCA

CREATOR: DONALD P. BELLISARIO

TYPE OF SHOW: TIME TRAVEL

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 60 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 8, (2) 22, (3) 22, (4) 22, (5) 21.

DATE OF PREMIER: 26/03/1989 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 05/05/1993

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Dr. Sam Becket SCOTT BAKULA, Admiral Albert Calavichi DEAN STOCKWELL, Gosshie DENNIS WOLFBERG.

Books Based on this series.

Quantum Leap - Angels Unaware	L. Elizabeth Storm	1997
Quantum Leap - Carny Knowledge	Ashley McConnell	1993
Quantum Leap - Double Or Nothing	C.J. Henderson	1995
Quantum Leap - Foreknowledge	Christopher DeFilippis	1998
Quantum Leap - Heat Wave	Melanie Kent	1997
Quantum Leap - Independence	John Peel	1996
Quantum Leap - Knights Of The Morning Star	Melanie Rawn	1994
Quantum Leap - Loch Ness Leap	Sandy Schofield	1997
Quantum Leap - Obsession	Carol Davies	1997
Quantum Leap - Odyssey	Barbara E. Walton	1995
Quantum Leap - Prelude	Ashley McConnell	1994
Quantum Leap - Pulitzer	L. Elizabeth Storm	1995
Quantum Leap - Random Measures	Ashley McConnell	1994
Quantum Leap - Search And Rescule	Mellisa Crandall	1994
Quantum Leap - Song And Dance	Mindy Peterman	1998
Quantum Leap - The Wall	Ashley McConnell	1993

Quantum Leap - Too Close For Comfort	Ashley McConnell	1993
The A-Z Of Quantum Leap	Julie Barrett	1995
The Beginning	Julie Robitaille	1990
The Ghost And The Gum Shoe	Julie Robitaille	1990
The Making Of Quantum Leap
The Quantum Leap Book	Louis Chunovic	1993

RELATED SHOWS:*SURVIVORSBATTLESTAR GALATICAGALACTICA 1980BATTLESTAR GALATICA (MINI)BATTLESTAR GALACTICA (2004)*1 - 1 GENESIS

Although the project isn't ready yet, Sam hops into the Accelerator and leaps. As Tom Stratton, an Air Force test pilot, Sam finds his memory Swiss cheesed, with only enough left to know that he is not where or when he belongs. Al explains that the project has gone awry and that the only way Sam can leap out is by flying the X-2 to Mach 3. Instead, Sam leaps after saving his wife and child, only to find that rather than leaping home, he's leapt into Ken Fox, a minor league baseball player in Texas, at the end of the 1968 season, where he must make the winning play in order to leap.

Wr Donald P. BellisarioDir David Hemmings1 - 2 STAR-CROSSED

Having leaped into Kid Cody, a boxer on the take, Sam has to win the championship to fund a new church for his trainers, a group of nuns. Sam must face the bookie who counts on him to take a dive in the final bout, and, with the help of several trainers, streaking, and Al's appearance in the ring to guide his punches, Sam wins the bout and finances the chapel.

Wr John HillDir Gilbert Shilton1 - 3 THE RIGHT HAND OF GOD

As a veterinarian in rural Texas, Sam's mission appears to be winning the love of an heiress to a large ranch. Sabotaged by another suitor, Sam fails and finds that his true goal was to save the life of a sick piglet, and to help an unnamed cohort with a task he's performing.

Wr Deborah ArakelianDir Ivan Dixon1 - 4 HOW THE TESS WAS WON

Though his goal as a mafia hitman named Frankie is unclear, Sam follows a list of instructions, supplied by Ziggy in an effort to bring Sam back to the Project. These instructions result in the Great East Coast Blackout and, rather than leaping home, Sam finds himself in the life of the mafia don who's been jealously preventing a romance between Frankie and the don's girlfriend. Sam believes he knows his mission, and publicly announces Frankie's marriage to the girlfriend, putting himself in a position to call a winning Bingo number.

Wr Donald P. BellisarioDir Aaron Lipstadt1 - 5 DOUBLE IDENTITY

November 8, 1965: Though his goal as a Mafia hitman named Frankie is unclear, Sam follows a list of instructions, supplied by Ziggy in an effort to bring Sam back to the Project. These instructions result in the Great East Coast Blackout and, rather than leaping home, Sam finds himself in the life of the Mafia don who's been jealously preventing a romance between Frankie and the don's girlfriend. Sam believes he knows his mission, and publicly announces Frankie's marriage to the girlfriend, putting himself in a position to call a winning Bingo number.

Wr Donald P. BellisarioDir Aaron Lipstadt1 - 6 THE COLOR OF TRUTH

August 8, 1955: In the life of Jesse Tyler, an aging black chauffeur, Sam must face discrimination in the South while trying to prevent the death of an elderly white woman. Actions motivated by his own belief in equality cause violent reactions, as Sam tries to convince one of the pillars of the community to change her views on racism and the futility of trying to change a society for the better.

Wr Deborah Pratt

Dir Mike Vejar

1 - 7 CAMIKAZI KID

June 6, 1961: As a high school nerd, Sam must prevent his sweet sister from marrying an abusive drinker, with the wedding only three days away. This hits a little close to home, as Sam's own sister married into the exact same situation at a young age. By drag racing the prospective husband, and beating him with a car that couldn't have won without nitrous oxide, Sam is able to bring the groom's true tendencies to the surface, affecting more than just his sister.

Wr Paul Brown

Dir Alan J. Levi

1 - 8 PLAY IT AGAIN, SEYMOUR

April 14, 1953: With looks that could double for Humphrey Bogart, Sam is Nick Allen, a private investigator looking for the murderer of his partner and, if he doesn't find the answer in time, himself. The case is solved with a number of Casablanca references as Sam launches a new pulp novelist along the way.

Wr Donald P. Bellisario, Scott Shepherd

Dir Aaron Lipstadt

2 - 1 HONEYMOON EXPRESS

April 27, 1960: As Tom McBride, a New York City cop on his honeymoon, Sam must save himself from his new bride's jealous, and sociopathic, ex-husband. To make matters worse, the Project's funding will be cut off, stranding Sam alone in the past, unless he can prevent the U2 flight from being shot down over Russia.

Wr Donald P. Bellisario

Dir Aaron Lipstadt

2 - 2 DISCO INFERNO

April 1, 1976: As a stuntman, Sam is to save the life of his younger brother, while trying to convince the pair's obsessive father to let the younger son go his own way, even if it means going into country-western music, rather than following the family tradition of stunt work.

Wr Paul Brown

Dir Gilbert M. Shilton

2 - 3 THE AMERICANIZATION OF MACHIKO MCKENZIE

August 4, 1953: As a sailor returning from Japan, Sam brings a foreign wife to a small town. He then has to fight against the prejudice of both a scheming ex-girlfriend, as well as his mother, in order to gain acceptance of his new bride.

Wr Charlie Coffey

Dir Gilbert M. Shilton

2 - 4 WHAT PRICE GLORIA?

October 16, 1961: Sam is shocked when he learns he's leaped into a woman, Samantha Stormer. As a gorgeous secretary for an automobile company, Sam has to cope with sexual harassment by the boss, a suicide attempt by a roommate, and the effect his looks have on Al's lecherous tendencies.

Wr Deborah Pratt

Dir Alan J. Levi

2 - 5 BLIND FAITH

February 6, 1964: Although the concert pianist he leaps into is blind, a fact, which bothers his girlfriend's disapproving mother, Sam can still see. At least until an exploding flashbulb blinds him at the crucial moment: when he must rescue his girlfriend from a serial killer.

Wr Scott Shepherd

Dir David G. Phinney

2 - 6 GOOD MORNING, PEORIA

September 9, 1959: Rock 'n' roll is about to become big, but not in Peoria. That is, unless Sam, as DJ Howlin' Chick Howell, can manage to keep the radio station where he's employed from being shut down by overly conservative town elders.

Wr Chris Ruppenthal

Dir Michael Zinberg

2 - 7 THOU SHALT NOT

February 2, 1974: Sam's task as a rabbi is to keep his sister-in-law from falling for a sleazy author and ruining her life. In the process he also helps the family recover from the year-old death of their son.

Wr Tammy Ader

Dir Randy Roberts

2 - 8 JIMMY

October 14, 1964: Since mainstreaming the mentally retarded is not yet a popular concept, Sam must help Jimmy LaMotta, the "slow" young man he's leaped into, get a job and gain his coworkers' acceptance, in order to prevent his brother from returning Jimmy to the institution where he previously lived.

Wr Paul M. Belous, Robert Wolterstorff

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

2 - 9 SO HELP ME GOD

July 29, 1957: Though he can't remember much more than habeas corpus, Sam finds himself the defense attorney for a young black woman accused of murdering the son of the most powerful man in a small Louisiana town.

Wr Deborah Pratt

Dir Andy Cadiff

2 - 10 CATCH A FALLING STAR

May 21, 1979: Sam leaps into Ray Hutton, the understudy for the role of Don Quixote just seconds before curtain time. His mission: prevent the drunken star from falling and seriously injuring himself during a benefit performance of "Man of La Mancha". Sam isn't helped by the presence of his former piano teacher, on whom he once had a crush, and who now appears to have caught the star's eye as well.

Wr Paul Brown

Dir Donald P. Bellisario

2 - 11 A PORTRAIT OF TROIAN

February 7, 1971: Sam leaps into a renowned parapsychologist where he must prevent a young widow from joining her husband at the bottom of a lake, while proving that she's not crazy, despite her claims of hearing her dead husband's voice calling to her.

Wr Scott Shepherd, Donald P. Bellisario

Dir Michael Zinberg

2 - 12 ANIMAL FRAT

October 19, 1967: Trapped in the body of Knut Wileton, better known as "Wild Thing", the typical frat jock, Sam must win the confidence of an attractive campus radical before she bombs the college's chemistry building as a protest against the war in Vietnam.

Wr Chris Ruppenthal

Dir Gilbert M. Shilton

2 - 13 ANOTHER MOTHER

September 30, 1981: As a divorced mother of three, Sam's job of preventing his teenage son from running away, never to be seen again, is made more interesting by the fact that his youngest daughter can see both him as himself as well as Al.

Wr Deborah Pratt

Dir Joseph Scanlan

2 - 14 ALL-AMERICANS

November 6, 1962: Keeping his best friend from throwing the high school championship football game, costing both of them their scholarship offers, Sam must also get their families to consolidate.

Wr Donald P. Bellisario, Paul Brown

Dir John Cullum

2 - 15 HER CHARM

September 26, 1973: Protecting a female member of the witness protection program from a mafia hitman proves difficult for Sam, since the FBI appears to have an informant confounding his attempts to hide her.

Wr Deborah Pratt, Donald P. Bellisario

Dir Christopher T. Welch

2 - 16 FREEDOM

November 22, 1970: Rather than saving his grandfather's life, Sam has to escape from jail and elude the police long enough to get them both to the reservation, where the old man can die at home and in peace.

Wr Chris Ruppenthal

Dir Alan J. Levi

2 - 17 GOOD NIGHT, DEAR HEART

November 9, 1957: Rather than saving the damsel of the episode, who supposedly committed suicide, Sam is the coroner who must prove that she was murdered, and then find out by whom.

Wr Paul Brown

Dir Christopher T. Welch

2 - 18 POOL HALL BLUES

September 4, 1954: In order to help his granddaughter save a small bar from the slimy loan shark holding a note on the place, Sam has to play pool like a pro...with a little help from Al and Ziggy.

Wr Randy Holland

Dir Joe Napolitano

2 - 19 LEAPING IN WITHOUT A NET

November 18, 1958: Sam remembers he's afraid of heights when he leaps into a trapeze artist, whose sister wants him to catch her as she does a triple without a net. Dad is less than pleased, since his wife died a few years earlier while attempting the same stunt.

Wr Tommy Thompson

Dir Christopher T. Welch

2 - 20 MAYBE BABY

March 11, 1963: Babysitting a kidnapped tot and a flaky, compulsively lying stripper keeps Sam busy as they cross Texas, on the run from the legal father and a squad of cops.

Wr Julie Brown, Paul Brown

Dir Michael Zinberg

2 - 21 SEA BRIDE

June 3, 1954: Aboard an ocean liner, Sam must stop the marriage of a young man's ex-wife to a mobster. In the process, he finds himself in one heck of a mess in the ship's garbage compartment.

Wr Deborah Pratt

Dir Joe Napolitano

2 - 22 M.I.A.

April 1, 1969: When Sam leaps into the life of an undercover cop, Al explains that his mission is to convince a navy nurse that her MIA husband is still alive, and to prevent her from marrying a lawyer she meets on the day Sam leaps in. But a series of coincidences causes Sam to wonder about the true nature of his mission.

Wr Donald P. Bellisario

Dir Michael Zinberg

3 - 1 THE LEAP HOME (PART 1)

November 25, 1969: As himself at the age of 16, Sam experiences an emotional leap when has the opportunity to both win the high school basketball championship and save his family from their sad fates.

Wr Donald P. Bellisario

Dir Joe Napolitano

3 - 2 THE LEAP HOME (PART 2) - VIETNAM

April 7, 1970: As a Navy SEAL in his own brother's squad, Sam must determine whether he is there to save Tom's life or ensure the success of the mission on which his brother was killed. Sam also finds that he could have changed another life closer to home, if only he'd known.

Wr Donald P. Bellisario

Dir Michael Zinberg

3 - 3 LEAP OF FAITH

August 19, 1963: Sam finds himself in one holy mess as a priest in Philadelphia, trying to help an alcoholic priest deal with his own demons while searching for the murderer of a young parishioner.

Wr Tommy Thompson

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

3 - 4 ONE STROBE OVER THE LINE

June 15, 1965: Sam is a photographer who must save a fashion model from a growing dependency on amphetamines and a predatory manager's own ambitions.

Wr Chris Ruppenthal

Dir Michael Zinberg

3 - 5 THE BOOGIEMAN

October 31, 1964: Things do more than go bump in the night when Sam leaps into Joshua Raye, a horror novelist, on Halloween. Although Ziggy claims he's there to prevent the death of a church deacon, things go awry when a string of people connected to Joshua suddenly begin to die under very strange circumstances.

Wr Chris Ruppenthal

Dir Joe Napolitano

3 - 6 MISS DEEP SOUTH

June 7, 1958: As Darlene Monte, a contestant in the "Miss Deep South" beauty pageant, Sam must come to the aid of an innocent contender who faces disgrace when she allows a sleazy pageant photographer to take nude photos of her with the promise of a huge future. He must also save Darlene's future by ensuring that she finishes third in the pageant, which provides the scholarship she'll use to become a doctor.

Wr Tommy Thompson

Dir Christopher T. Welch

3 - 7 BLACK ON WHITE ON FIRE

August 11, 1965: Sam leaps into a black medical student engaged to a white woman, where he must ensure that he and his fiancée survive the Watts Riot together.

Wr Deborah Pratt

Dir Joe Napolitano

3 - 8 THE GREAT SPONTINI

May 9, 1974: Leaping into magician Harry Spontini, Sam has to prevent his estranged wife from taking their daughter away from him as she files for divorce, so she can marry her sleazy divorce attorney. He also learns that he must save his beloved daughter from a grisly fate.

Wr Beverly Bridges, Cristy Dawson

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

3 - 9 REBEL WITHOUT A CLUE

September 1, 1958: As "Bones," a member of a motorcycle gang, Sam is an uneasy rider who has to prevent a Jack Kerouac-inspired young woman from meeting her death on the road.

Wr Paul Brown , Randy Holland

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

3 - 10 A LITTLE MIRACLE

December 24, 1962: On Christmas Eve, Sam leap into Reginald Pierson, valet to a wealthy, heartless contractor, who is in danger of losing his soul in an attempt to demolish a Salvation Army mission, so he can build his "Blake's Plaza." Seeing a similarity to the Dickens's character, Sam and Al decide to use Al and some holographic tricks to "Scrooge" the greed out of the man.

Wr Sandy Fries, Robert Wolterstorff

Dir Michael W. Watkins

3 - 11 RUNAWAY

July 4, 1964: On a cross-country car trip, Sam, as 13-year-old Butchie, must contend with a sadistic older sister and a mother on the verge of running away from an unfulfilling marriage, in search of what "could have been".

Wr Paul Brown

Dir Michael Katelman

3 - 12 8 1/2 MONTHS

November 15, 1955: Billie Jean Crockett is a pregnant teenager who will make the second biggest mistake of her life - giving her baby up for adoption - unless Sam, as Billie Jean, can convince someone to help her raise her child...before he goes into labor.

Wr Deborah Pratt

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

3 - 13 FUTURE BOY

October 6, 1957: Sam leaps Kenny Sharp, better known as "Future Boy", sidekick to Moe Stein's "Captain Galaxy", host of the kid's show, "Time Patrol," who also happens to be building a time machine in his basement. Unless Sam can prevent Moe's daughter from attempting to have her father committed, Moe is destined to be killed as he tries to hop a freight train.

Wr Tommy Thompson

Dir Michael Switzer

3 - 14 PRIVATE DANCER

October 6, 1979: An aspiring dancer working as a waitress in a strip club is in danger of being led into a life of prostitution unless Sam, as "Rod the Bod," can convince her to audition for a spot in a professional dance group. But, because she's deaf, the choreographer doesn't believe she has the time to give the talented young lady the attention she'll need.

Wr Paul Brown

Dir Debbie Allen

3 - 15 PIANO MAN

November 10, 1985: Joey Dinardo is a lounge lizard on the run from mob hitmen. When Sam leaps in, his ex-girlfriend and former musical partner has found him, and now both are on a run for their lives from a killer who seems to know their every move.

Wr Ed Scharlach

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

3 - 16 SOUTHERN COMFORTS

August 4, 1961: It's the best little cathouse in New Orleans. No, it's the Gilbert Labonte Sewin' & Quiltin' Academy. As the proprietor of this worthy establishment, Sam must prevent the mysterious death of a resident who doesn't belong there.

Wr Tommy Thompson

Dir Chris Ruppenthal

3 - 17 GLITTER ROCK

April 12, 1974: Sam is a glitter rock star in danger of being stabbed to death after a performance, unless Sam can determine who, from a growing list of people, the real killer is.

Wr April 12, 1974: Sam is a glitter rock star in danger of being stabbed to death after a performance, unless Sam can determine who, from a growing list of people, the real killer is.

Dir Andy Cadiff

3 - 18 A HUNTING WE WILL GO

June 18, 1976: It's the leap from hell as Sam, a bounty hunter handcuffed to a wily embezzler who will stop at nothing to get away from him, has to deal with his captive, as well as his attraction towards her, despite her countless attacks on him.

Wr Beverly Bridges

Dir Andy Cadiff

3 - 19 LAST DANCE BEFORE AN EXECUTION

May 12, 1971: "Just think of someplace far away" is the advice Sam hears as he leaps into Jesus Ortega, a Cuban-American being strapped into an electric chair. A last second stay of execution gives Sam just forty-eight hours to either prove himself innocent or fulfill his mission so that he can leap before the Big Switch is pulled, but the hardest part of this mission will be figuring out the real reason for his leap.

Wr Deborah Pratt

Dir Michael W. Watkins

3 - 20 HEART OF A CHAMPION

July 23, 1955: The heart of a champion belongs to Ronnie, a professional wrestler, who will die if he competes in the title match. Sam, as his brother and new partner Terry, must convince him of his hidden health problem, while avoiding his own health problem - the jealous wrestler-husband of a woman who has taken an amorous interest in Sam.

Wr Tommy Thompson

Dir Joe Napolitano

3 - 21 NUCLEAR FAMILY

October 26, 1962: Sam finds himself the brother of a fallout shelter salesman during the Cuban Missile Crisis, where he must defuse a potentially explosive situation as panic sets in on the night of John F.

Kennedy's speech to the nation.

Wr Paul Brown

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

3 - 22 SHOCK THEATER

October 3, 1954: Leaping into Sam Bederman, a mental patient who is suffering from acute depression, Sam receives an overloaded electroshock treatment, which causes his Swiss-cheesed memory to be replaced by personas from previous leaps, all of which occurred on future dates. Al, finding himself visible to the mentally absent, must try to complete Sam's mission, and convince him to take another shock treatment, in order to leap Sam out before contact is lost forever.

Wr Deborah Pratt

Dir Joe Napolitano

4 - 1 THE LEAP BACK

June 15, 1945: Struck by lightning, Sam and Al find their roles reversed, as Sam returns to the future, and to a long-lost love, while Al leaps back to 1945 to prevent the death of a returning World War II hero and his former girlfriend.

Wr Donald P. Bellisario

Dir Michael Zinberg

4 - 2 PLAY BALL

August 6, 1961: A pitcher on a minor league baseball team, Sam must decide if he's there to help a fellow team member, get his host back into the major leagues, or baby-sit the porcine team mascot, all while resisting the amorous advances of the women in his life.

Wr Tommy Thompson

Dir Joe Napolitano

4 - 3 HURRICANE

August 17, 1969: Sam meets Cissy, and an unknown killer, when he leaps into a deputy sheriff in a small Mississippi town, lying in the path of a deadly Hurricane Camille.

Wr Chris Ruppenthal

Dir Michael W. Watkins

4 - 4 JUSTICE

May 11, 1965: Sam must don the robe of a Ku Klux Klansman in order to save the life of an ambitious young civil rights leader, who is trying to register black voters.

Wr Toni Graphia

Dir Rob Bowman

4 - 5 PERMANENT WAVE

June 2, 1983: Sam leaps into Frank Bianca, a hairstylist in leather pants, to prevent the death of a young murder witness and his mother.

Wr Beverly Bridges

Dir Scott Bakula

4 - 6 RAPED

June 20, 1980: It's up to Sam to try to bring a rapist to justice when he leaps into the perp's victim, a young woman who may have been unwilling to press charges against the young man - the son of the pillar of the community.

Wr Beverly Bridges

Dir Michael Zinberg

4 - 7 THE WRONG STUFF

January 24, 1961: The fates make a monkey out of Sam when he leaps into Bobo, an astro-chimp who must avoid succumbing to the experiments of an Air Force neurologist.

Wr Paul Brown

Dir Joe Napolitano

4 - 8 DREAMS

February 28, 1979: It's more like a nightmare when Sam leaps into a detective, investigating a gruesome murder. He may be next if he doesn't find out who eviscerated the victim and his only hope is the victim's catatonic son and her husband's psychiatrist. The horrific flashbacks he's experiencing don't help matters much either.

Wr Deborah Pratt

Dir Anita Addison

4 - 9 A SINGLE DROP OF RAIN

September 7, 1953: A devastating drought will be the ruin of a small town unless Sam, as Billy Beaumont, "purveyor of precipitation and maker of rain," can find a way to make it rain, while keeping his family together in the process.

Wr Richard C. Okie

Dir Virgil Vogel

4 - 10 UNCHAINED

November 2, 1956: Sam and a fellow convict named Boone are the defiant ones when Sam has to rescue his companion from a fifteen-year sentence on a chain gang.

Wr Paris Qualles

Dir Michael W. Watkins

4 - 11 THE PLAY'S THE THING

September 9, 1969: May meets December when Sam leaps into a young actor in love with an older woman, who is also an aspiring singer. If he can't boost her confidence and help her get her career on track, she will face a "fate worse than death," returning with her son to Cleveland.

Wr Beverly Bridges

Dir Eric Laneuville

4 - 12 RUNNING FOR HONOR

June 11, 1964: As a track star in a Navy college, Sam must prevent the death of his ex- roommate, who was expelled because he was gay, and who is slated to die at the hands of a group of bigoted cadets.

Wr Robert Harris Duncan

Dir Bob Hulme

4 - 13 TEMPTATION EYES

February 1, 1985: A serial killer stalks San Francisco while Sam as Dillion Powell, a TV reporter, protects a beautiful psychic who's working on the case, from becoming the next victim. The young lady is very clear of sight, as Sam and Al soon discover.

Wr Paul Brown

Dir Christopher Hibler

4 - 14 THE LAST GUNFIGHTER

November 28, 1957: Sam finds himself in the life of Tyler Meanes, a teller of tall tales who faces death at the hand of an old friend in a shootout at high noon.

Wr Chris Ruppenthal, Sam Rolfe

Dir Joe Napolitano

4 - 15 A SONG FOR THE SOUL

April 7, 1963: As a backup singer in a black, amateur girl group Sam finds between the fifteen year-old lead singer and her father as he attempts to rescue the girl from a sleazy night club owner's clutches.

Wr Deborah Pratt

Dir Michael W. Watkins

4 - 16 GHOST SHIP

August 13, 1956: Flying over the Bermuda Triangle, Sam, as the co-pilot, must prevent the flight from returning to Virginia, to get a seriously ill passenger to a doctor before she dies. Flying through the triangle is riskier than it seems, and Sam, deprived of Al's help when the hologram fades out, must get them through alive.

Wr Donald P. Bellisario, Paris Qualles

Dir Anita Addison

4 - 17 ROBERTO!

January 27, 1982: Sam, as "Roberto!" is a tabloid talk show host a la Geraldo who, with an asthmatic rival and co-worker, tries to uncover a mystery at a local chemical plant, a mystery, which may prove to be deadly for his co-worker.

Wr Chris Ruppenthal

Dir Scott Bakula

4 - 18 IT'S A WONDERFUL LEAP

May 10, 1958: Sam finds himself behind the wheel of a New York taxicab, in the life of Max Greenman, a driver striving to win his own tag, a license to drive his own cab. His mission is aided with the help of a woman who claims to be a guardian angel.

Wr Danielle Alexandra, Paul Brown

Dir Paul Brown

4 - 19 MOMENTS TO LIVE

May 4, 1985: Sam is a soap opera heart surgeon and the obsession of a love-struck, if somewhat deranged fan. He must escape from the woman and her husband who kidnap him for reproductive purposes

Wr Tommy Thompson

Dir Joe Napolitano

4 - 20 THE CURSE OF PTAH-HOTEP

March 2, 1957: It's almost as though Sam were on vacation when, as Egyptologist Dale Conway, he gets to read hieroglyphics, search lost tombs, and, of course, visit Egypt. But between an encroaching sandstorm, computer glitches back at the Project, the suspicious deaths of the guides, and a 3000-year-old curse to round things off, Sam has very little time to play in the sand.

Wr Chris Ruppenthal

Dir Joe Napolitano

4 - 21 STAND UP

April 30, 1959: Sam, as the singing half of a comedy team, soon finds that trying to convince two people that they're truly in love is no laughing matter, especially when one of them is the object of a sleazy casino owner's desire.

Wr Deborah Pratt

Dir Michael Zinberg

4 - 22 A LEAP FOR LISA

June 25, 1957: Sam leaps into Al Calavicci to prevent the death of his married lover. But when Sam accidentally alters history, and finds out too late about her untimely demise, it could mean the gas chamber for Al and disturbingly a whole new situation at Project Quantum Leap.

Wr Donald P. Bellisario

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

5 - 1 LEE HARVEY OSWALD (A TWO PART STORY)

October 5, 1957 - November 22, 1963: As a result of leaping again before he had a chance to complete his original mission, Sam finds himself leaping back and forth through the life of Lee Harvey Oswald. Following the sole assassin theory, Sam and Al attempt to prevent Oswald's attack on John F. Kennedy. But, with each leap giving Oswald more control over Sam's body, history seems doomed to repeat itself.

Wr Donald P. Bellisario

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

5 - 2 LEAPING OF THE SHREW

September 27, 1956: It's Robinson Crusoe with a twist when Sam leaps into a Greek sailor stranded on a deserted island with a beautiful young rich woman who appears to be less than fond of both him and their stranded situation.

Wr Robin Jill Bernheim, Richard C. Okie

Dir Alan J. Levi

5 - 3 NOWHERE TO RUN

August 10, 1968: As a Marine captain whose legs were amputated due to a war injury in Vietnam, Sam finds himself in a veteran's hospital, where he must prevent the suicide of a fellow patient who would rather be dead than face life paralyzed from the neck down. Making matters worse, his wife seems incapable of accepting the fact that she and Sam's host can still lead a normal life, in spite of his condition

Wr Tommy Thompson

Dir Alan J. Levi

5 - 4 KILLIN' TIME

June 18, 1958: Sam leaps into a tricky situation as an escaped killer holed up in a house with a mother and daughter as hostages. Escape isn't going to be easy for either Sam or his hostages, when the real killer breaks out of the waiting room, stranding Sam in the past, destined to die at the hands of a vengeful sheriff.

Wr Tommy Thompson

Dir Michael W. Watkins

5 - 5 STAR LIGHT, STAR BRIGHT

May 21, 1966: Sam leaps into a 79-year-old man whose son wants to have him committed when he claims to have seen UFO's. Sam is kept busy as he tries to keep the family together, prevent the future drug overdose of "his" grandson, and avoid the sinister plans of the military, all before the next anticipated UFO sighting.

Wr Tammy Ader, Richard C. Okie

Dir Christopher Hibler

5 - 6 DELIVER US FROM EVIL (aka EVIL LEAPER I)

March 19, 1966: Things are already on there way downhill when Sam leaps back into Jimmy LaMotta. Despite Sam's inaction, history continues to change for the worst. The cause is unknown until Sam discovers another time traveler on the scene, one who's determined to destroy Jimmy's family, as well as Sam.

Wr Deborah Pratt, Tommy Thompson, Robin Jill Bernheim

Dir Bob Hulme

5 - 7 TRILOGY (PART 1) (aka ONE LITTLE HEART)

August 8, 1955: A pair of unsolved murders marks just the tip of the iceberg when Sam leaps into a sheriff in a small Louisiana town. Rumors of a history of family insanity, the suspicions surrounding his daughter Abigail's involvement in the murders, and ghostly visions of his institutionalized wife just make matters worse.

Wr Deborah Pratt

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

5 - 8 TRILOGY (PART 2) (aka FOR YOUR LOVE)

June 14, 1966: Finding himself back in the same small Louisiana town, in the arms of Abigail, now twenty-one, Sam must prevent an angry crowd of townspeople from lynching his fiancée, following the disappearance of a young boy whom she had been babysitting.

Wr Deborah Pratt

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

5 - 9 TRILOGY (PART 3) (aka THE LAST DOOR)

July 28, 1978: Sam is an aging lawyer, recruited by Abigail, now thirty-three, to defend her when she is put on trial for the murder of Leta Aider, the woman whose daughter Abigail was accused of killing almost twenty-five years earlier.

Wr Deborah Pratt

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

5 - 10 PROMISED LAND

December 22, 1971: Sam leaps back to Elk Ridge, Indiana to help save the lives of the Walters boys as they try to save their farm from a banker with designs on getting rich from foreclosure.

Wr Tommy Thompson, Gillian Horvath

Dir Scott Bakula

5 - 11 A TALE OF TWO SWEETIES

February 25, 1958: As a horse-playing, traveling brush salesman, Sam finds himself with two wives and two families. Although Ziggy predicts that Sam's mission is to choose between the two lives, the choice is made more difficult by the fact that there's only a 50/50 chance that he'll choose the right one. As if things weren't bad enough, Sam finds that his penniless host owes a pair of bookies some big bucks.

Wr Robin Jill Bernheim

Dir Christopher Hibler

5 - 12 LIBERATION

October 16, 1968: Leaping into a housewife and mother of two on the verge of women's lib, Sam must prevent the death of his daughter during a sit in, while convincing the girl's father that his marriage can survive a liberated wife and daughter.

Wr Deborah Pratt, Chris Abbott

Dir Bob Hulme

5 - 13 DR RUTH

April 25, 1985: While Sam is in 1985, running her radio talk show, playing matchmaker to her producers, and trying to help a young secretary who's being sexually harassed by her boss, Dr. Ruth Westheimer spends her time in the Waiting Room, counseling Al on his feelings towards his five wives, as well as his relationship with Tina.

Wr Robin Jill Bernheim

Dir Stuart Margolin

5 - 14 BLOOD MOON

March 10, 1975: As an eccentric, possibly vampiric, artist just outside of London, Sam must bear with Al's superstitions, while trying to prevent the death of his host's young wife, at the hands of a couple who are taking a sacrificial ceremony in honor of the "blood moon."

Wr Tommy Thompson

Dir Alan J. Levi

5 - 15 RETURN OF THE EVIL LEAPER (aka EVIL LEAPER II)

October 8, 1956: As Arnold Watkins, better known as The Midnight Marauder, Sam has to persuade a fraternity to stop using chicken races as a part of their hazing ceremonies, while Al tries to convince Arnold to stop trying to get himself killed in retaliation for his parents' deaths twelve years earlier. When Alia, the evil leaper, appears on the scene, Sam becomes determined to take her with him when he leaps.

Wr Richard C. Okie

Dir Harvey Laidman

5 - 16 REVENGE OF THE EVIL LEAPER

September 16, 1987: Having simu-leaped, both Sam and Alia find themselves trapped in a women's prison, accused of murdering a fellow inmate. Their efforts to unmask the real killer are not their top priority as the two attempt to keep Alia's location hidden from her observer, Zoey, who leaps into the same place and time, determined to make Alia pay for her betrayal.

Wr Deborah Pratt

Dir Debbie Allen

5 - 17 GOODBYE NORMA JEAN

April 4, 1960: As chauffeur to Marilyn Monroe, Sam must try to prevent Marilyn's tragic death. But when a well-meaning plan backfires, it could mean the end of Marilyn's career, even if her life is saved.

Wr Richard C. Okie

Dir Christopher Hibler

5 - 18 THE BEAST WITHIN

November 6, 1972: Sam leaps into Henry Adams, one of a trio of friends who fought in Vietnam and came home each with their own personal scars and the memory of a lost buddy. He has to save the life of a friend, Roy, as well as of a young boy, Daniel, who ventures into the woods of Washington looking for proof of Bigfoot.

Wr John D'Aquino

Dir Gus Trikonis

5 - 19 THE LEAP BETWEEN THE STATES

September 20, 1862: In a bizarre twist of a genetic coil, Sam leaps into his great-grandfather, Captain John Beckett, during the Civil War. He must not interfere with his ancestor's romance with a riled southern belle named Olivia. He must also avoid being hanged as a Yankee dog by some home guard Confederate soldiers.

Wr Richard C. Okie

Dir David Hemmings

5 - 20 MEMPHIS MELODY

July 3, 1954: Sam swivels his hips into Elvis Presley, mere days before he is discovered. Along with making sure that Elvis does become the King, Sam must help Sue Anne, a local songbird, from being trapped in a not-so-gilded cage of marriage.

Wr Robin Jill Bernheim

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

5 - 21 MIRROR IMAGE

August 8, 1953: Sam lands in a not-so-ordinary bar in a coal-mining town, where strange things are happening and familiar people don't know him. With the help of another Al, he still has something to set right ... or is there more than one thing he needs to change?

Wr Donald P. Bellisario

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

QUARK

Quark took his name from the commander of an intergalactic garbage ship who dreamed of bigger and better things. This however was highly unlikely due to the fact that he had a very unusual crew who did not make life easy for him. His crew consisted of: Gene-Jean, a member of a race of transmutes - race who had a full set of male and female chromosomes. Gene-Jean while usually a macho type of guy with a quest for danger, would at the most inopportune moments have his feminine side take over.

Ficus was his science officer who was a Vegaton, a member of a plant race. Ficus, clearly a parody of STAR TREK's Mr. Spock, had no emotions and had a tendency to spout off endless facts and figures while giving overly long and detailed explanations. The Bettys were a pair of cute girls, one being the clone of the other. Rounding out Quark's crew was Andy, the cowardly robot that Quark built out of spare parts.

Not that having a good crew would have helped Quark much. His immediate superior, Otto Palindrome, was a man who grovelled under the authority of his boss the Head and was quick to put the blame on all the universe's problems on Quark. The Head was in charge of United Galaxies and was an huge disembodied head who would appear on Palindrome's viewscreen at the start of each episode to give Quark and two other space commanders their assignments. While the two other commanders would get challenging assignments that would further their careers. Quark was most often told where to pick up garbage or when luck ran against him was told that he was to become the subject for the head's latest experiment.

Despite his routine assignments of picking up garbage. Quark often found some way to get involved in an exciting adventure battling the evil forces that threatened the Galaxies peace.

This was the parody of space opera -- especially "Star Wars" -- for TV, as Mel Brooks waited too long to try the same notion for film in "Space Balls." The mixture of sex, Woody Allen type brainy jokes, and slapstick/physical comedy never quite gelled, but many fans swore that it would have if the network had only been patient. Buck Henry was also the creator of another SF comedy show GET SMART. Conrad Janis also starred as Fred (Mindy's Dad) in MORK AND MINDY.

Had it not been for the popularity of Star Wars. Quark would have remained just one more TV pilot that was aired once and then forgotten. However, due to the popularity of Star Wars someone at NBC decided that Science Fiction was popular, and asked himself "Don't we have an option on a science fiction pilot that we can turn into a series for next spring?" Thus Quark was saved from oblivion and turned into a minor cult classic.

All of the regular episodes of the show are parodies of other science fiction ranging from Star Wars to 2001: A Space Odyssey to the old Flash Gordon serials, to episodes of STAR TREK. The parodies all work and the show is quite enjoyable. However in order for a parody to become successful the subject of the show was doomed to fail from the start. The pilot episode, which was rerun at the end of the series, lacked the elements of parody and is the least enjoyable of the episodes.

The plots were spoofs of specific sci-fi films and series - the opening episode was a Star Wars parody featuring a sappy cosmic power called the Source. Other targets included STAR TREK, 2001: A Space Odyssey and Flash Gordon. This strange mix of sex, intellectual gags and slapstick comedy was created by Buck Henry, the man behind the hugely successful spy spoof GET SMART. It has now entered that twilight zone of archive TV, held in the memories of those who saw it but doomed to remain a mystery to everyone else.

Adam Quark (Richard Benjamin) is a Commander who longs for a glamorous, important assignment and ends up collecting trash instead. Nonetheless he is skilled and competent, albeit extraordinarily unlucky.

The Bettys (Cyb and Patricia Barnstable) are the navigators and pilots of the ship. They are completely identical, complete with identical red-hot passion for Quark. One of them is a clone of the other, but neither has a clue which is which. They have a tendency to speak in perfect unison and have the exact same thought at exactly the same time.

Gene Jean (Tim Thomerson) is a "transmete", a humanoid being with a complete set of both male and female chromosomes. He/she serves as the ship's engineer. The gender confusion manifests in a split personality -- when Gene's male side is in control, he is gung-ho, angry and violent, while the Jean personality is pacifistic and a bit of a coward. He/she will frequently switch personalities with no warning.

Ficus (Richard Kelton) is a Vegeton, a member of a race of sentient plant life. He is of human appearance. While he is extremely intelligent and observant, he is incapable of any sort of human emotion, including tact. He frequently finds the behavior of the rest of the crew difficult to understand, and thus somewhat annoying.

Andy (Bobby Porter) is a not-at-all-human-looking robot. Despite the image of a hard-working robot, he is actually lazy and more than a little cowardly.

Otto Palindrome (Conrad Janis) is in charge of Perma 1, and gives Commander Quark his assignments. He is the quintessential bureaucrat -- a nightmare tyrant to his underlings and a quivering toady towards his superiors. He seems to take a special delight in making Quark's life miserable.

The Head (Alan Calliou) is the being to whom Palindrome answers. He is usually seen as a disembodied head with an enormous cranium. He is detached from day-to-day events, has a low tolerance for failure, and a tendency to come up with bizarre tasks for Quark to accomplish - usually at the worst possible time.

Interface A four-armed alien woman who functioned as an operator for all interstellar calls. Amazingly irritating, she tended to involve herself in the private conversations going on around her.

WR. Buck Henry, Steven Zacharias, Bruce Kane, Stuart Gillard, Jonathan Kaufer and Robert A. Keats.

DIR. Peter Hunt, Hy Averback and Bruce Bilson.

EPISODES: 8 YEAR MADE: 1978 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

NBC

CREATOR: BUCK HENRY

TYPE OF SHOW: COMEDY

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 8

DATE OF PREMIER: 24/02/1978 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 07/04/1978

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Commander Adam Quark RICHARD BENJAMAN, Gene/Jean TIM THOMERSON, Ficus RICHARD KELTON, Betty I/Betty II TRICIA AND CYB BARNSTABLE, Andy the Robot BOBBY PORTER, Otto Palindrome CONRAD JANIS, The Head ALAN CALLIOU.

RELATED SHOWS:

MORK AND MINDY

STAR TREK

1 - 1 QUARK (PILOT)

An expanding enzyme cloud threatens to destroy the galaxy.

Wr Buck Henry

Dir Peter Hunt

1 - 2 MAY THE SOURCE BE WITH YOU (1-2)

Perma One is in a state of emergency as Gorgon has created the ultimate weapon to defeat the United Galaxy. Quark is given the secret weapon (The Source) by Palindrome. Quark must believe completely in The Source in order to defeat Gorgon.

Wr Steve Zacharias

Dir Hy Averback

1 - 3 THE OLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL

Expecting his usual garbage assignment, Quark is excited to hear that The Head has given an "extended romantic interlude" with Princess Carna of Kamamor. Troubles ensue when the crew encounters a stray space baggy carrying a virus which ages Quark 2 years for every hour.

Wr Bruce Kane

Dir Hy Averback

1 - 4 THE GOOD, THE BAD AND THE FICUS

While on a routine mission, the ship is accidentally pulled into a black hole, which splits the crew into "good" and "evil" counterparts, with the exception of Ficus, who remains the same because "there are no good or evil plants, there are just plants". After Quark confronts his evil self on a nearby asteroid, he defeats him and sends the evil crew back through the black hole. As the evil crew is being sent back we hear evil Adam Quark say "Keep your deflectors up do-gooder! You haven't seen the last of this face!"

Wr Stuart Gillard

Dir Hy Averback

1 - 5 GOODBYE POLUMBUS

Quark and his crew are sent on a suicidal mission to Polumbus to discover why no one has returned alive. Quark and his crew fall prey to their fantasies as part of a feindish plot by the dreaded Gorgons to drain the minds of the United Galaxy's most brilliant scientists. In this episode, Quark encounters a beautiful dream girl, Ficus encounters a teacher, the Bettys encounter clones of Quark, and Gene/Jean encounters Zoltar the Magnificent. In order to save his crew Quark must destroy the obilisk and free the "clay people".

Wr Bruce Kane

Dir Hy Averback

1 - 6 ALL THE EMPEROR'S QUASI-NORMS (1-2)

On a typical mission Quark is captured by Zorgon the Malevolent, who tries to learn from Quark what "it" is and where to find "it". Meanwhile, the Zorgon's daughter, Princess Libido, has fallen in love with Ficus. Ficus agrees to a meeting with Princess Libido and teaches her to "pollinate", which is how plants love. Meanwhile, Andy and Gene/Jean escape and disguise themselves as Gorgon scientists and Gene/Jean is asked to give a lecture on "it".

Wr Jonathan Kaufer

Dir Bruce Bilson

1 - 7 VANESSA 38-24-36

For Holiday Number 11 Quark is given a new ship computer (Vanessa) by Palindrome, which will have complete control over the ship. Vanessa tries to destroy Quark and his crew to prove her superior to Quark. Quark is able to disable Vanessa and throw her down the garbage hatch. In the last scene we see Vanessa drifting through space and singing "Born Free".

Wr Robert A. Keats

Dir Robert A. Keats

QUATERMASS (1979)

Professor Quatermass comes out of retirement to search for his missing grand daughter and finds a world on the verge of anarchy, and an American-Russian space station destroyed by unknown forces. He is befriended by astronomer Joe Kapp and they witness the obliteration of thousands of Planet people by a beam of light at the stone circle, Ringstone Round.

Following the devastation at Ringstone Round, Quatermass hears of similar incidents world-wide and returns to London with district commissioner Annie Morgan and a Ringstone "survivor" Isabel. En route they become separated in a shootout between rival gangs. Meanwhile, the beam of light descends again - near Joe Kapp's home.

Joe Kapp returns home to find no signs of life. Hiding out below the London steets, Quatermass meets an elderly scientist, Chisholm, who he believes could help solve the growing mystery. Then the beam strikes again - on a vast gathering of 70,000 young people at Wembley Stadium.

The sky has turned green from the "undigested particles" in the atmosphere. Quatermass, joined by the Russian, Gurov, recruits a team of old people to lay a trap for the alien force, using an artificial composite of the sound, smell and heat of a huge human crowd to bait a poison - a nuclear bomb. As the light descends, there is a final clash with the Planet People and Kapp is shot dead. But Quatermass's granddaughter suddenly appears and together they detonate the device.

Twenty years on, Quatermass' last case is as much rooted in the anxieties of its age as the previous three had been. Kneale this time creates a fearful vision of a near future, in which civilisation is tottering on its last legs. Petrol is running out, law and order has surrounded to lawlessness, with violent street gangs, the Badders, battling it out behind the barricades, while the superpowers squander resources on a useless space project. An older, world weary Quatermass has been living as a recluse in Scotland, now as he comes south to search for his missing granddaughter, Hettie, he teams up with a young Jewish astronomer, Joe Kapp, to defeat an alien force which is 'harvesting' the young of the planet, sweeping them up in beams of light at ancient ritual sites, such as stone circles.

Like its predecessors the series was designed to be 'Science Fiction with a human face, but its vastly increase budget of £1,250,000 and the greater expectations of its audience in terms of effects and locations, meant a more lavish production, lacking the intimacy of the old live serials, Its makers, Euston Films took the show on the road, using Wembley Stadium for one key scene where the planet people, young antiseptic hippies - mass to await the beam they believe will take them to another galaxy. Highly respected actor Sir John Mills, whose only previous TV series has been the Zoo Gang. , five years earlier, was a credible Quatermass, but after a promising start the series was a comparative disappointment.

Expectations were perhaps inflated, as the first episode was the main offering of ITVs first night back on the air after a 75 day strike. The final chapter in this Quatermass saga was produced in two versions - the four-part, four hour series for home TV (repeated in May 1984 as two hour instalments), and a shorter 105 minute TV movie, The Quatermass Conclusion, for the foreign market. Kneale also turned the tale into a novel which included different material. The script executive was Linda Agran, executive in charge of production was Johnny Goodman, the executive producer was Verity Lambert, the producer was Ted Childs, the designer was Arnold Chapkin and the music was created by Marc Wilkinson and Nic Rowley.

It was once suggested to me that the attraction of science fiction lay in its demonstration of man's ability to survive catastrophe and to exist many centuries from now. Whilst once a plausible proposition, it now seems to me utterly fallacious in that the image of man popularized by so much science fiction is one of a race torn apart by schism and dissension. The further man ventures beyond his earthly environment, the clearer we seem to see that, despite technological advances, man is singularly incapable of procuring the happiness he has long sought. It is for our future selves as it is for us: we carry our imperfections within us and merely transfer our hostility to some other environment.

It is the plight of science fiction that it can only reflect the bleak scenario which confronts us today. Ours is a world where little acts of kindness go un-heeded amid the general collapse, where tyranny and oppression dominate the headlines, and man's inhumanity to man goes unchecked. It is precisely this dire spectacle of global entropy that makes "QUATERMASS" the gripping televisual experience it is. As it stands, it is one of the bleakest pictures of the collapse of civilisation ever witnessed in the medium.

Nigel Kneale has gone to great lengths to present a world barely a step away from our own. Indeed, the features of his landscape are uncomfortably recognizable: city streets defaced by violence; open windows prey to looters; anarchic graffiti, indelible as the hatred that spawned it; street-corner cults soliciting new recruits. This is merely a backdrop to a false front which promises organisation and advancement, while poised above the world's head, two super-powers join hands in space, nuclear arms full of death for the people beneath their feet. It is a world that has the means to communicate without the skill to use them: a world where individuals are lost beneath a tide of desperation and confusion.

That "QUATERMASS" is set in the last quarter of the twentieth century should be cause enough to make us stop and consider the tomorrow that awaits us. The irony of it is, of course, that man today already has the mentality the frustrated viewer seen portrayed in "QUATERMASS". There is no hope, it seems, of reversing the apocalyptic events that are in motion in our own world and which come to fruition in the burst of white judgemental light that we see in "QUATERMASS". To my mind, Kneale is presenting the viewer with a latter-day 'Book of Revelation', the only big difference being that in his cosmology, it is not man's original sin that brought about these cataclysmic events, but rather an alien machine which is visiting the Earth after a five thousand year absence and stirring up the glandular secretions of the young which it then harnesses and utilises. Other than this substitution of an alien machine for God, Kneale seems to cull a great deal of his material from the 'last days' prophesies of the 'Bible'. Indeed, it is interesting to compare the following examples from both the apparent source and televised serial:

He that soweth the good seed is the son of man: the field is the world; the good seed are the children of the kingdom; but the tares are the children of the wicked one; The enemy that sowed them is the devil; the harvest is the end of the world; and the reapers are the angels. As therefore the tares are gathered and burned in the fire; so shall it be in the end of this world. the son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity; And shall cast them into a furnace of fire there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth. Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. Who hath ears to hear, let him hear.

(Matthew, 13: 37-43 King James Version)

QUATERMASS: "My evaluation, Chuck - here it is. Forget about trying to get through to it.. The ripe crop can't appeal to the reaper. I think this is the gathering time. The human race is being harvested."

Quatermass' words are clearly a conclusion of Biblical significance. Were it not for Kneale's substitution of an alien machine for God, the parallel would be complete.

I must admit that watching "QUATERMASS" for a second time, I was momentarily less convinced than I had been back in '79 when the serial was first broadcast. I can always remember the strong atmosphere of depression that was generated within me on those consecutive Wednesday evenings, but this time I couldn't help feeling there was something a little pussy-footed about those first scenes of violence. Quatermass hastily deposited from a taxi ("No cash carried" reminded me very strongly of wary shop owners' signs) falls foul of a handful of muggers whoes fearful 'public school' accents, full of expressions like "Right-ho", "I say old chap!" etc., sound ill-placed in that kind of environment. It took only a quick succession of infinitely more violent gangs for me to realise that the accent was meant to jar, and that the street-barricade was meant to look contrived. These 'muggers' were only the most recent people to be forced onto the streets. Only hard experience separates them from the infinitely more violent tactics of the Badders and the Blue Brigade.

This sort of 'social calculation' is characteristic of Kneale's attention to verisimilitude. "QUATERMASS" relies for its effect on establishing a very conceivable near- future: Prince Charles is now King of England, his sphere of influence relegated to a community of old dotards clinging to patriotism long since effaced by civil war, "Kill HM the King" shouts the graffiti; cars have registration plates 'v' and 'x' and all television networks have centralised to British Television (BTV) which broadcasts to an audience more eager for nefarious excitement (the family "Tittupity Bumpity" show) than hard news; the nation's youth have been unified under the banner "Planet People"; the "good old British Bobby" is now a part of the Metropolitan Contract police, and what remains of the army is under the command of a government whose operations and rhetorical gestures are confined to back rooms. None of this is beyond the scope of our present imagination. As far as I can see, the only act of imagination Kneale requires is accepting the existence of this "insensible, insentient" alien

In a bleak near-future of gangs ruling the streets, Professor Quatermass is accosted by thugs while on the way to a television studio to offer commentary and analysis for Britain's part in an international satellite broadcast covering a US-Soviet space link-up. He is rescued by Joe Kapp, a young radio-astronomer who is on his way to appear in the same programme. During the transmission, Quatermass is harshly critical of the space mission, and predicts that missions like it are wasteful and probably doomed in some way because they don't produce anything useful. Not long afterwards, malfunctions begin to show up, and the mission fails, with all lives lost, due to unknown causes. Quatermass and Kapp are forced to flee to the latter's remote lab, which is near a stone circle called the Ringstone. A group of young religious zealots marches to the circle, apparently to take it over for some reason of their own.

Wr Nigel Kneale

Dir Piers Haggard

1 - 2 LOVELY LIGHTNING

Quatermass, Kapp and Kapp's wife Clare have witnessed the obliteration of the Planet People at Ringstone Round by a beam of light from the skies. They rescue a poor girl called Isabel who is now deaf and blind, and whom Quatermass and district commissioner Annie Morgan plan to take to London for investigation. Chuck Marshall calls Kapp from the U.S.A. and reveals that Ringstone Round was not the only such incident on Earth.

Wr Nigel Kneale

Dir Piers Haggard

1 - 3 WHAT LIES BENEATH

After being caught up in a gang fight between Badders and Blue Brigade in London, Quatermass is given shelter by a group of old people who live in an old car scrapyard. Kapp returns home to find that the stone circle in the next field has been hit, and that his wife and children are dead. The girl Isabel is destroyed in hospital, and the gangs join the Planet People as thousands head towards Wembley Stadium. Quatermass tries to warn the authorities that the human race is being harvested.

Wr Nigel Kneale

Dir Piers Haggard

1 - 4 AN ENDANGERED SPECIES

Quatermass is in the underground car park and survives the energy blast at Wembley. Joined by Russian Academician Gurov, Quatermass forms a group of aged experts to recreate the presence of many human beings at the stone circle near Kapp's wrecked observatory. A massive bomb is brought in, and Kapp and Quatermass wait alone to detonate it during a blast and so deliver the final blow...

Wr Nigel Kneale

Dir Piers Haggard

QUATERMASS EXPERIMENT,THE/QUATERMASS II/ QUATERMASS AND THE PIT/ QUATERMASS EXPERIMENT, THE (2005)

The Quatermass Experiment :-

An experimental spaceship with its three-man crew is knocked hundreds of thousands of miles off-course before finally returning to Earth. The sole survivor has been contaminated with an alien life-form that causes him to metamorphose into a hundred-foot-tall vegetable monster capable of infinite reproduction, that wreaks havoc on London before it is finally destroyed in time to save the world. The scientist who tracks him down is the scientist who sent him up - British rocket group chief, Bernard Quatermass (a name plucked at random from a telephone book).

Quatermass II :-

Set some years after the first fateful mission, this second story was not a sequel, the central character of Quatermass himself was carried over from the first serial. In the two years since The Quatermass Experiment space exploration had become an imminent fact, though the way ahead was dogged by frustration and failure. Such technical 'doldrums' provided the background for Kneale's second tale, with Quatermass's own work on his ambitious new Mark II Moon rocket at a standstill.

Quatermass and the Pit :-

The Pit of the title sets the story firmly in its time, when the last of London's blitzed areas were being rebuilt. Real excavations had unearthed Roman or medieval remains. but Nigel Kneale's teasing premise had something far stranger being stirred up in the mud - evidence that Earth had been visited aeons ago by Martians who had imbued man's simian ancestors with their own faculties. Drawing on elements of demonology and the occult, Kneale's idea thus explained all manner of unexplained superstitions and phenomena, from poltergeists to second sight and race memories. Everything is drawn together in a chilling climax as the dormant Martian influence reasserts itself.

The Quatermass Experiment (2005) :-

As part of TV On Trial, BBC Four recreated a cult classic, first transmitted live in 1953 and since lost in the archives. In the BBC Four version, which was performed live, Jason Flemyng stars as Professor Bernard Quatermass, whose attempts to push back the frontiers of space lead to terrifying consequences. When a rocket returns from its mission with only one of the crew still alive it soon becomes clear that something is terribly wrong...

The grand-daddy of TV science fiction, the Quatermass sagas still stand as landmarks of British television drama. Few creations have been as evocative or influential, and few characters as enduring as Professor Bernard Quatermass - a dedicated and well-intentioned rocket scientist, but a humanistic and fallible man.

There have been four Quatermass serials, all of them self-contained - three for the BBC in the 1950s and a belated fourth for Thames Television in 1979. The BBC trio were also memorably filmed by Hammer but, more significantly, the third - and best - story, Quatermass and the Pit (1959), was released on video in 1988, setting its eerie tale before a new generation to whom the early serials were only legendary heirlooms. The only logical order in which to take the Quatermass legacy is the chronological one, and the story begins in 1953 . . .

In Great Britain, this was seen in 1953 on television as a six-part serial, but in the United States it was only seen after Hammer Films adapted the episodes and two sequel series into feature films, which were released in the US (and broadcast at obscure times) as "The Creeping Unknown", "Enemy from Space", and "Five Million Years to Earth." A brilliant cross-over between science fiction and horror, it was aimed at adults but was even more effective on children who got to see it despite the BBC warning "thought to be unsuitable for children and persons of a nervous disposition." In a 1977 interview by Paul Madden ("Future Tense", p.294) Nigel Kneale said "In the Quatermass serials, I always used what was going on at the time as a basis for the stories... in the late 1950s London was being rebuilt after the war and so a number of huge cavities were being dug... unexploded bombs were always being found and sometimes old Roman ruins would be exposed. And I thought -- what if they found something else far beyond that? What if they uncovered a spaceship? And this led to Quatermass and the Pit."

The Quatermass Experiment :-

In the summer of 1953, the BBC's new head of drama Michael Barry spent his entire first year's budget for commissioning new scripts - some £250 - on one author, youthful staff writer Nigel Kneale. Kneale responded with an adventurous six-part thriller far removed from the theatrically oriented productions that were the staple of television drama. The Quatermass Experiment was the first of several collaborations between Kneale and producer/director Rudolph Cartier, and it took great faith and ingenuity to bring script to screen.

TV drama at that time was played live and special effects were virtually unknown. Such horrific elements as were required had to be created within a series budget of just over £3500 and created on the night. Kneale himself `played' the monster in the climax, using his gloved hands covered with bits of vegetation and leather, stuck through a blown-up still of Westminster Abbey.

Aware of the technical limitations, Kneale relied on timeless dramatic strengths - a coherent plot and well-drawn characters - to tell his story. Its impact was tremendous, particularly as it was the first serial of its kind. Moreover, it was aimed at an adult audience and it was adults who climbed the walls in horrified excitement. Hammer released a film version in 1956 which starred Brian Donlevy as Quatermass and was known in America as The Creeping Unknown. The producer was Rudolph Cartier, and the settings were by Richard C. Greenhough and Stewart Marshall.

Quatermass II :-

With a track record behind them, a bigger budget (some £7500) before them and the BBC's new `Visual Effects Department' (run by Bernard Wilkie and John Kine) beside them, Kneale and Cartier were able to create a very different story, reversing the man into monster idea, in favour of a covert Martian invasion by infiltrating human minds and bodies.

The role of Quatermass was taken by a new actor John Robinson, following the death of Reginald Tate just a few weeks earlier. Among now-familiar names lower down the cast were Rupert Davies, Roger Delgado and Wilfred Brambell, the latter already cornering the market in low-life roles following his `old drunk' in the first Quatermass serial and `old man' in Nineteen Eighty-Four.

The six 30-minute episodes (which inevitably overran slightly) were transmitted live on Saturday nights, and telerecorded for a repeat the following Monday. The serial polarised its audience - viewers either loved its `thrilling story and effects', or loathed its 'horror comics' plot. A film version (aka Enemy From Space) was released by Hammer in 1957, with Brian Donlevy in the star role. The producer was Rudolph Cartier, the designer was Stephen Taylor, the film cameraman was Charles de Jaeger and the special effects were created by Bernard Wilkie and Jack Kine.

"Now listen - I've got a story here. Get it. Every word! Don't ask questions - just get it. For the past year, this country, and probably others, has been under the influence of... look Frank, you'll have to sub this to make it sound right... under the influence of something from outside the Earth. The things came in what appear to be meteorites... Contact with them produces violent infection... Ten minutes ago, I became infected... Quatermass... Get Professor Quatermass..."

1955: The year both the BBC and the world faced a crisis, The BBC was to lose its monopoly of television on Friday 22 September with the launch of the commercial television network. ITV was luring away experienced personnel to the new American-styled programming of cash-prize game shows and filmed adventure series. In the dimension of fiction, a government-backed project to develop synthetic food at the coastal venue of Winnerden Flats was actually cook-ing up an alien threat to Humanity. There was only one man capable of solving both prob-blems... Professor Bernard Quatermass, the man who had defeated a previous threat to the world in the 1953 BBC television serial The Quatermass Experiment.

The Quatermass Experiment had been a memorable SF thriller with its tale of mutated astronauts' return to Earth. Kneale had now been with the BBC for some years, and was issued with a new two-year contract as a member of the Corporation's expanding Television Script Unit at the start of February 1955 - Auntie clearly did not wish to have another defector. The writer's association with Viennese producer Rudolph Cartier that had attained notoriety with The Quatermass Experiment had been firmly cemented by the landmark Nineteen Eighty-Four, a monumental drama that shocked a nation in December 1954. This was rapidly followed up by another atmospheric excursion into Fantasy for Kneale and Cartier: The Creature, a play shown in January 1955 in which an explorer in the Himalayas comes into contact with an unknown species and forms some disturbing theories about their relationship with Mankind.

In March, the deal was struck in which Kneale would write a serial (Sequel to The Quatermass Experiment) which would have two performances: With better resources, far more filming was available for the new serial over and above the very brief inserts and minimal outdoor material from he Quatermass Experiment. Indeed, the location sequences would be central to Kneale's crafting of the new narrative. He and Cartier were soon given the go-ahead to film at the impressive location of a petro-chemical refinery owned by Shell; the Shell Haven plant at Stanford-Le-Hope in Essex. This was the archetypal sinister establishment which combined the paranoid feeling of new technology and secret scientific advances that was prevalent in the mid-Fifties.

Pipes and ducts snaked into labyrinthine networks across expanses of concrete and towers of iron and steel. This grey metallic web was where the new alien threat to Earth would ensnare Humanity. Kneale's original series had seen a single, identifiable alien organism arriving on Earth. The only true victims of the alien were the astronauts who had ventured into Space. This time, Kneale would draw potentially on more widespread paranoia. What if the threat was not identifiable - because it inhabits the human form itself? What if the aliens had already been on Earth for some time and had established a bridgehead? What if the police, army, government and other official bodies had been infiltrated and were no longer trustworthy? What if the victims could be anyone...?

Michael Barry, the Head of Television Drama, accepted the sextet of scripts under the title Quatermass Two at the start of August. The title was, Kneale admitted two decades later, born from desperation and a lack of inspiration, but years ahead of the numerical sequels spawned by successful cinema entertainments. In the plot, Quatermass's second atomic rocket seems as ill fated at his first; a horrific blast from the prototype motor has ripped through the Australian research station and suspended work on the vessel itself at the rocket base in England. However, Quatermass's attention is diverted when his daughter's current beau, Captain John Dillon, brings him fragments of a hollow meteorite.

When Quatermass investigates with Dillon, he finds that an Experimental Plant has been erected on the site of the village winnerden Flats - a plant of vast metal pressure domes which mimics his own design for a structure that will let Man inhabit the alien environment of the Moon. Dillon is affected by ammoniac gas from a 'meteorite' and is taken away by almost zombified security guards. It transpires that the authorities have no jurisdiction over the plant, which is developing "much needed synthetic food". Others Quatermass encounter bear the same sinister scars as the strange guards. A first visit to the plant confirms that the black slime in the domes is deadly to all Earth life, and on a second visit, Quatermass gazes upon the colony of alien creatures writhing in the dense poison of the chambers.

The ageing rocket expert's only chance to save the world again is to embark upon a Kamikaze mission with the lethal vessel he has created... and destroy the artificial asteroid from which the infiltrating extra-terrestrial organisms are launching their attack. Production planning for second adventure for Professor Bernard Quatermass - then under the title 'Quatermass Experiment 2' - got underway in early August, and by Friday the serial was scheduled to start transmission on Saturday 22 October. Furthermore, each episode would now be captured on 35mm film from the camera outputs during the live broadcast to be repeated on the following Monday evening. The production venue this time would be the BBC's Lime Grove studios as opposed to the antiquated arena of Alexandra Palace.

Sadly, a few weeks before filming could get underway, Reginald Tate collapsed outside his home and died at the age of 58. Quatermass was rapidly recast in the form of John Robinson, who seemed ill at ease with his hasty introduction to the role, something clear in the film recordings. Welsh actor Hugh Griffith also deviated from Kneale's script to some extent as Quatermass's chief scientist, Dr Leo Pugh, while Monica Grey enunciated each of her lines as Paula Quatermass with typical BBC Fifties clarity. There were a number of strong supporting roles for other actors: John Stone, who had a small role in The Quatermass Experiment because Johnny Dillon, Rupert Davies was bluff modern MP Vincent Broadhead, Roger Delgado featured as top journalist Hugh Conrad and Wilfred Brambell showed up as tramp.

Michael Ripper, who would become linked with Hammer Films and feature in Quatermass and the The production venue this time would be the BBC's Lime Grove studios as opposed to the antiquated arena of Alexandra Palace. Sadly, a few weeks before filming could get underway, Reginald Tate collapsed outside his home and died at the age of 58. Quatermass was rapidly recast in the form of John Robinson, who seemed ill at ease with his hasty introduction to the role, something clear in the film recordings. Welsh actor Hugh Griffith also deviated from Kneale's script to some extent as Quatermass's chief scientist, Dr Leo Pugh, while Monica Grey enunciated each of her lines as Paula Quatermass with typical BBC Fifties clarity.

There were a number of strong supporting roles for other actors: John Stone, who had a small role in The Quatermass Experiment because Johnny Dillon, Rupert Davies was bluff modern MP Vincent Broadhead, Roger Delgado featured as top journalist Hugh Conrad and Wilfred Brambell showed up as tramp. Michael Ripper, who would become linked with Hammer Films and feature in Quatermass and the then saw some more work on the family picnic scenes, concluding the first batch of pre filming. Two days later commercial television started... On the afternoon of Tuesday 4 October, various models and set elements for the serial were set up for a special Radio Times photocall in which a radiation-suited Robinson posed with the Quatermass II rocket.

Filming resumed on Monday 10, this time in Studio D at Lime Grove with instrumentation inserts for the first episode. That evening, the crew returned to Television Centre to shoot more night time Plant sequences outside the North East door of the Main Scene Dock. There was also a dog's leg over to the wire gates of White City Stadium for shots of the Plant workers forcing their way in. The following evening, there were more scenes filmed at Lime Grove, generally using back projection for sequences set inside moving vehicles. This work carried on into Wednesday 12 for scenes with radar and Quatermass looking in disbelief as his realized Moon Project. The title sequence for Quatermass II was now filmed, again using heated dry-ice to create the smoke effect as with The Quatermass Experiment.

From Thursday 13 to Monday 17 October, the BBC Visual Effects department, consisting of Jack Kine and Bernard Wilkie, holed up in the north end of Television Centre's boiler house to shoot all the model footage for the serial. "By then the BBC special effects team had developed and they were very good indeed, very inventive. Excellent people," recalls Kneale. "The dome explosion in Quatermass II was a nice one. Actually it was done inside a tank of water with a plaster dome full of milk. When a detonator split it, you got a very slow drift of what appeared to be smoke, but was actually milk coming out into the water. The very best special effects were extremely simple, and quite adequate really for the definition of 405 lines of those days."

Rehearsals took place on Monday to Fridays at the Mansergh Woodall Boys Club on Hill Road in the St John's Wood area of London. Live transmission then came on Saturday evenings after a day of camera rehearsals in Lime Grove's Studio G. At 8pm on Saturday 22 October, the strains of Gustav Holst's Mars: Bringer of War again heralded six episodes of a top-notch thriller for the modern Fifties television audience. Episode One, The Bolts, elicited a complaint from Captain BC Barnham of the School of AA Artillery on Wednesday 26 October; the officer had been appalled by the depiction of the army radar unit in the opening minutes of the serial and felt it to be highly misleading.

The second episode fared little better within the BBC when on Monday 31 the Controller of Programmes informed Cartier that the new series (was 'not as good' as The Quatermass Experiment because the dialogue was too complicated and the events too improbable! Perhaps the most charming comment of all though was mailed to Cartier on Tuesday 8 November by a Miss George of Haverfordwest. Miss George had been thoroughly enraptured with Quatermass II but had realized that she would not be able to see either of the transmissions of the final episode later that month. The reason? Between Episodes 5 and 6 she was to enter a convent in Dublin where she was planning to remain for the rest of her days.

'The thought of spending the rest of my life wondering what really happened annoys me so much that I could not help writing', she explained, pleading with the producer to convey the conclusion to her by mail and promising not to tell a soul. Touched by this devotion to his show, Cartier re-sponded with a full synopsis of Kneale's final script on Tuesday 15 November as his cast rehearsed the penultimate instalment. On Wednesday 2 November, it was decided that the remaining episodes of the serial should be preceded by a warning read by the continuity announcer, a caution that secured it a place in the television history books: "We'd like to say that in our opinion it is not suitable for children or those of you who may have a nervous disposition."

This was an astute move, as shown by comments from the BBC Audience Research report on Episode One, compiled the following week. 'This was strong meat for one or two viewers supplying evidence who objected strongly to this serial on the grounds that it was too horrific, especially for Saturday night viewing when children would probably be watching.' As with the Controller of Programmes though, a small number dismissed it as 'quite absurd and altogether too stupidly far-fetched'. Others indicated that while they had enjoyed it, they had encountered problems understanding the opening stages. Sample statements included 'This was packed with excitement from beginning to end.

I'm so glad it has a repeat too. Couldn't bear to miss it,' enthused the wife of a police constable while the spouse of an office man-ager condemned it as 'An absurd story and too terrifying for older people and children. It should not be televised at this time on a Saturday night.' The Saturday transmissions captured almost a quarter of the television audience, with an impressive nine million tuning in for the final episode. Four million either opted for or re-viewed the episodes on the Monday nights, and according to the audience appreciation figures, the late night screening was more popular than the primetime one. At a cost of £7552

3482 QUATERMASS EXPERIMENT, THE/QUATERMASS II/ QUATERMASS AND THE PIT/ QUATERMASS EXPERIMENT, (plus £2493 fees for the re-peats), Cartier and Kneale had saved the world once again, and maintained a strong BBC presence in the face of the alien threat of commercialism. The serial concluded with Quatermass heading back to Earth alone, and a three year sojourn during which he would recharge his energies for what was perhaps to be his greatest and most memorable battle.

Quatermass and the Pit :-

By the time Quatermass and the Pit came along, the world had embraced a real space age, and audience expectations had undoubtedly moved on from the pioneering rocket project of the first 'experiment'. But the character of Professor Quatermass, with his pangs of conscience and loathing of bureaucracy, was far from obsolete and the timing of the first episode just before Christmas 1958 - was clear evidence that the BBC knew it had a ratings winner on its hands.

Though much of the drama is again told - live - through the characters and actions, Quatermass and the Pit made the greatest use yet of filmed inserts and refined special effects: the workman, Sladden, attempting to flee the demonic forces that have gripped him, the ground rippling beneath his hand; the animated 'wild hunt' sequence; and the climactic appearance of the energy force rising up over London. This was also the first major contribution by the BBC's newly formed Radiophonic Workshop producing an array of bizarre sound effects. The 'Pit' was produced by Rudolph Cartier, the film cameraman was A. A. Englander, the film editor was Ian Callaway, the designer was Clifford Hatts, the special effects were created by Jack Kine and Bernard Wilkie and the music was by Trevor Duncan.

Andre Morell, who had been a chilling O'Brien in the Kneale/Cartier adaptation of Nineteen Eighty-Four, became the third (and definitive) TV incarnation of Quatermass, and Canadian Cec Linder played the palaeontologist Matthew Roney. Hammer filmed this story in 1967, in terrifying technicolour, with Andrew Keir as the good professor, though in America it laboured under the title Five Million Years to Earth.

"...That is the full account. Matthew Roney was a brave man and a friend. Much more for it is with his kind that hope lies. For they have outgrown the Martian in us. If another of these things should ever be found, we are armed with knowledge. But we also have knowledge of ourselves... of the ancient, destructive urges in us, that grow more deadly as our population approaches in size and complexity those of ancient Mars. Every war crisis, witch hunt, race riot, purge... is a reminder and a warning. We are the Martians. If we cannot control the inheritance within us... this will be their second dead planet!"

In these words, the first major chapter of British Television Science Fiction, the Quatermass serials written by Nigel Kneale and produced by Rudolph Cartier, drew to a close in February 1959, five and a half years after it had begun. In 1958, true life science had almost caught up with Kneale's imaginary rockets. Russia had launched two Sput-niks in 1957 and the USA was catching up. Space travel was old hat, and Kneale sought something deeper for Professor Bernard Quatermass's third journey to the Unknown. Archaeology was prominent, with new theories about the ascent of man. Nottingham and Notting Hill had seen race riots, and London was still being rebuilt after the Blitz. Kneale proposed that a building contractor should find a spaceship buried deep in the ground. On this occasion, Quatermass was to fight an alien force ingrained in the human psyche for five million years by a long dead race. The invasion had already taken place.

Construction workers working on a new building in Hobbs Lane, London, find a skull, which suggests that intelligent man walked the planet five million years ago, long in advance of existing theories. Further excavation by archaeologists, led by Doctor Matthew Roney, reveals a buried object which could be an unexploded Nazi V-weapon. A mystified Bomb Disposal Unit summons Colonel Breen, the narrow minded official who has just been appointed to develop Quatermass' Rocket Group in a military direction. Quatermass realizes that the object is also five million years old, yet its substance is designed for Space travel.

A sealed compartment reveals three long-dead insect-like creatures, dubbed 'Martians', and the psychic possession of a drill operator leads Quatermass to realize that an alien race memory was implanted in Humanity at its beginning. The alien instinct for racial purification is unleashed when the craft is reactivated. With a working title of 'The Pit', the serial started pre-production in early September with a planned three weeks of pre-filming on 35mm film to capture some of the most complex and evocative scenes of Science and the Supernatural shown on television. There was to be night and day filming on location in London, on the sound stages of Ealing Television Film Studios (now owned by the BBC) and the Ealing back-lot.

As with Quatermass II, it was intended that the live performances should be pre-served as 35mm film recordings with a separate magnetic tape soundtrack for future broadcasts, although unlike previously, a repeat was not scheduled for later the same week. The show was provisionally scheduled to begin at 8.30pm on Monday 22nd December. The press was also showing an interest by late October, but it was agreed that Kneale would keep details of the new serial under wraps...

Early casting suggestions for Quatermass III: The Pit indicated that the role of Quatermass himself was 'On offer to Alec Clunes' (Shakespearean actor, Father of Martin Clunes). Liam Rudden, Cyril Luckham, Miles Malleon and Roger Livsey were prime candidates for Roney, while Maureen Pryor, Jessica Dunning, Pamela Allen and Naomi Chance were all in the run-ning for Roney's assistant Barbara Judd. Breen had four candidates including Anthony Bushell and Douglas Wilmer (who was also nominated as journalist James Fullalove, alongside Brian Oulton). Michael Gough, Alan MacNaughton and Terence Longdon were the proposals for Captain Archer (re-named Potter during production), with Richard Caldicoct and Anthony Sharp appearing in the list against Minister of War. Noel Howlett was also put forward - in this instance as Fullalove's news editor, although he would ultimately play the Rev-erend Gilpin.

Andre Morell, who had been O'Brien in the Cartier/Kneale Nineteen Eighty-Four, was ultimately cast as a debonair Quatermass, mediating between the extremes of Breen and Roney. Actor/director Bushell won the role of Breen, with Christine Finn cast as Barbara, John Stratton as Potter and Brian Worth as Fullalove when Paul Whitsun-Jones proved unavailable to reprise his role from The Quatermass Experiment. Miles Malleon was cast as Roney, only to be replaced late in day by Canadian Cec Linder.

Cartier was doing his utmost to get more time and facilities. Claiming that Kneale's complex story merited a longer than usual reprise, the producer asked to expand his slot by five minutes to 35 minutes - suggesting that the show could begin at 8.25pm, taking up a five minute buffer normally allowed with the preceding programme, The Phil Silvers Show). Cartier was given the green light for this just over a week later on Tuesday 25. By Monday 8 December, most of the episodes were rescheduled to 8.00pm, with BBC Television's line-up re-arranged around the star serial. Shooting began on the morning of Monday 24 November outside the entrance of the Natural History Museum for establishing shots, and moving on to the construction area of Terson's Site at Cheap side for the scenes establishing the site that opened the serial.

The following day, Cartier's crew set up at Ealing, starting work on the back-lot that would represent Hobbs Lane. For this day, Lieutenant-Colonel PJ Hands was present to provide military hardware, such as a truck and Land Rover - with drivers - from the Second Battalion of the Coldstream Guards, and also a Bomb Disposal Unit truck and lift-ing gear from the army camp at Horsham. Various scenes on Hobbs Lane were filmed for the first four episodes, along with the possessed drill operator, Sladden, fleeing through the streets in the climax to the fourth episode. The real Colonel was also present the following day for Hobbs Lane scenes relating to the Minister's fateful tv broadcast and its aftermath in the concluding two episodes.

This was followed by an extra, un-scheduled, day of shooting on the back-lot to pick up on a two shots, before the crew moved inside to Studio 2 on Friday 28. Most of the material shot inside Ealing Studio 2 was for the excavation itself, largely to show scenes which included water or special effects, and generally those for the end of the episode to show that progress had been made during an episode in uncovering the capsule- the basic set in the live studio remaining un-changed. Before the weekend, numerous scenes for the first three episodes were filmed, with Cartier's team working 14-hour days. Clifford Hatts designed the excavation so that the walls and fireman's hut around the capsule could be raised upwards, giving the illusion that the pit had become deeper.

Filming continued the following week on more scenes in the excavation, notably for the ill-fated BBC television broadcast. The chaotic scenes as the capsule became active took a couple of days to film and required many extras - including members of the cast, with one wardrobe assistant appearing as a policeman simply because he fitted the costume better than the contracted artist. By Thursday 4 December, the crew was working on the scenes of the pit coming alive around Sladden in the fourth episode, with more general scenes for the middle episodes rounding off the second week.

The third and final week saw the excavation set reduced to its minimum height for the early scenes of the skull being unearthed in the first episode on Monday 8 and scenes for Episode Two the next day. Wednesday 10 then saw the first major use of the hull interior set for the cleaning operations in Episode Two; this was also used for scenes in Episode Four the following day. The final day of shooting at Ealing was Friday 12 when the sequence of the American pilot (originally to be played by Patrick MacNee) describing the destruction of London to radio listeners in the USA was filmed. along with the church yard scene in which Sladden was found by the Reverend.

The filmed material was edited together into a trailer for broadcast on Monday 15. As with Quatermass II, the higher echelons of the Corporation deemed that viewers should be warned, and so the announcement "By now the nature of the Quatermass stories is of course well known to viewers, and therefore we leave it for you to decide whether the serial is suitable for people of nervous disposition" was to be read out on BBC Television half an hour before transmission. Rehearsals started the following week on Monday 15 December; the first episode had five days preparation for the live broadcast.

On the day, cast and crew perpered camera rehearsals for the 8.00pm transmission, with photocall

3484 QUATERMASS EXPERIMENT, THE/QUATERMASS II/ QUATERMASS AND THE PIT/ QUATERMASS EXPERIMENT, opportunities for journalists scheduled at 6.00pm. The venue was the newly constructed Studio 1 at the BBC Riverside Studios. Quatermass and the Pit opened its episodes by showing mud being washed off a stone wall, revealing the words of the title carved into it. The recordings of Holst's Mars: Bringer of War had also given way to the more contemporary Mutations No.1 by Trevor Duncan from a Conroy library music album. Duncan's work was used extensively throughout the serial.

While the Special Effect team under Jack Kine and Bernard Wilkie were now embarking upon their second Quatermass (complete with melting space capsules and Martian riots), another major contribution came from Dick Mills of the fledgling BBC Radiophonic Workshop. Bizarre oscillations come forth which heralded the onset of the alien force. Narration for the episode reprises came from a voice of authority, BBC Radio Announcer Alexander Moyes.

The Foundations of what look like being a first class thriller have been neatly laid, said a 'clerk' in the positive BBC's audience research report on the first episode. While many liked the topical touches, other felt that the instalment had not lived up to the 'bloodcurdling events' shown in the trailer (although it was clear that those who had not enjoyed it had totally failed to understand the implication of the 'unexploded bomb' being discovered amongst the fossils). Most of those who could remember previous Quatermass serials were hooked however All Monday social engagements for the next few weeks have been cancelled concluded, a housewife.

At a cost of £17,578, Quatermass and the Pit set new standards for television drama. The destruction of London in the shadow of the Martian energy form was powerfully presented by use of footage showing the city devastated by the Blitz, courtesy of the Imperial War Museum. Despite ITV's usual strangle hold on the audience, word about the new Quatermass spread and the audience rose from seven million until 11 million people (almost 30% of the potential audience) tuned in for the final episode. The serial was a major success. Repeats, in the form of two 90 minute omnibuses, were scheduled for the 1959/60 New Year period, and as the post-war decade faded.

Kneale's work had made enough impact on the first television generation for him to contribute on Cavalcade of the Fifties, for January 1960 transmission on the BBC home service. When asked if he had always intended that Quatermass and the Pit would conclude the series, Kneale concluded Not exactly it just happened. I didn't want to go on repeating because Professor Quatermass had already saved the world from ultimate destruction three times, and that seemed to me to be quite enough. With Quatermass and the Pit, the fifties were over and in about 10 hours, Rudolph Cartier and Nigel Kneale had changed British television forever, paving the way for many other outbursts of imagination.

Quatermass was not a series per se but rather four serials with the same main character. The first three were produced by the BBC in the 1950's while the final installment came some 20 years after the third on ITV in 1979. The BBC serials were the first serious adult science fiction to be produced in Britain. All were written by Nigel Kneale and the series has become his best known creation. Kneale attempted to revolutionize the traditional conceptions of visual horror using intelligent creatures. instead of the thoughtless beasts often used in the past. The BBC serials were all low budget affairs broadcast live and some parts tended to run over their allotted 30 minutes. The final installment was a big budget affair shot on 35 mm film.

Professor Bernard Quatermass himself when first introduced was the head of the British space programme, however as time would tell he had more than one area of expertise. The supporting characters changed in each serial as did the actor portraying Quatermass, giving little besides a strong central character to give continuity. All of the BBC serials were later remade as theatrical films by Hammer Films. The American titles of these (in Britain they had the same names as the serials they were based) as well as the actor portraying Quatermass are listed after each serial. The ITV serial was also released theatrically in an edited form.

The producer for the series was Rudolph Cartier, the designer for the series was Stephen Taylor (Quatermass II), Clifford Hatts (Quatermass and the Pitt). The special effects were created by Bernard Wilkie and Jack Kine. The music was created by Trevor Duncan. Quatermass II was filmed on location at the Shellhaven refinery in Essex, UK. There was one further serial featuring Quatermass made in 1979, on which see separate entry in this database. All of the episodes were written by Nigel Kneale and all of the episodes directed by Rudolph Cartier.

Also made in 1995 was the radio play The Quatermass Memoirs, which was a five part drama-documentary in which Nigel Kneale, creator of Quatermass talks about his memories of the show, and Quatermass is due for retirement, he is however forced to come out of retirement after discovering a horrible secret about a fenced off village. The play starred Andrew Keir as Quatermass, Emma Gregory as Mandy and Zulema Dene as Maire, and the play was produced by Paul Quinn.

In 2005, BBC Four commissioned a live remake. This was directed by Sam Miller and adapted by Richard Fell 3485 QUATERMASS EXPERIMENT, THE/QUATERMASS II/ QUATERMASS AND THE PIT/ QUATERMASS EXPERIMENT, (who also adapted A For Andromeda in 2006). It was broadcast live on the 2nd April 2005.

I thought that the whole production, considering it was a live presentation, was very well scripted. The acting was great and there were no "Fluffs" of note. The only thing out of the ordinary to happen was one of the actors falling over a prop off camera. The actor could be heard hurting himself.

The special effects were not great and practically non-existent, but considering the fact that it was done in real time this is not surprising. Also this was more of a modern story with a lot of characterisation, which makes one forget the absence of the more special effects which one would have if it was not a staged show.

Interview: Producer Alison Willett and director Sam Miller talk about the live re-make (The Quatermass Experiment (2005))

BBC Four: Of all the classic shows from the early days of television you could have remade, why choose The Quatermass Experiment?

Alison: Quatermass was the first ever sci-fi on British TV and Professor Quatermass was our first TV hero. It has a huge cult following and that provided an interesting challenge for us. It was going to be really dynamic visually and provided an opportunity to put together a fantastic ensemble cast.

Sam: I'm a closet science fiction fan and Quatermass was seminal television. The subject matter was so exciting for people who had just got their TV boxes in the corners of their rooms back then. And what was interesting from reading the scripts was how the themes of the piece - space and the unknown and biological weapons - still feel relevant today.

BBC Four: How close to the original 1953 series are you aiming to get?

Alison: When it went out it was six half-hour episodes. What we've done is abridge those into one two-hour drama, stripped out a couple of extraneous sub plots and removed allusions to the Cold War. We've used the original scripts and dialogue as much as possible, but in places brought the science up to date. For example, in 1953 the idea of a manned rocket ship going into space was quite inconceivable so we've made it a privately-financed rocket ship, which is far more contemporary.

Sam: The script we're using is unchanged really. What's interesting is seeing how actors today take it. So far we've been really pleased because it feels quite modern and at the same time classic. Instead of looking at it as a modern version of or a nostalgic remake, we want to liberate the piece.

BBC Four: How involved has the original writer Nigel Kneale been in the production?

Alison: Nigel has come on board as a consultant. We have talked to him every step of the way and he has been incredibly informative. It's fascinating to hear how some of the characters first came about and how he conceived the monster and made it work without getting into rubber toy territory.

BBC Four: This will be the first live television drama on the BBC in 20 years. What challenges does this create for you?

Sam: My background is single-camera drama so I was interested in bringing a film mentality to what is a live, multi-camera event. It's been our aim to embrace the live aspect and use it to give the piece a drive and a pulse. I hope that if someone is channel hopping, that would draw them in.

Alison: Quatermass was originally shot live because the technology wasn't there to pre-record. We thought it being live could become a virtue for a project in 2005. Certainly in rehearsals we're finding it's really upping the energy in terms of the dynamics of performance and that ties in with the thriller aspect.

BBC Four: Have developments in audio-visual technology given you any advantages over the original when it comes to pulling off a live event?

Alison: Well, we're using more sophisticated lighting and camera techniques and we're going to have a couple of pre-recorded inserts but because the vast majority is live, you can't rely on special effects. There will be no delay, no nothing!

BBC Four: Tell us about the cast.

Sam: Nigel has written a balanced script, which makes it tricky to cast as each character is integral to the story. We just set out to find aggressive-minded actors who wanted to take it on and are very much of today.

Alison: I am incredibly proud of our principal players. We've been careful to choose actors who have a real body of theatre work behind them as well as film and television so they will be approaching Saturday 2 April as if it was an opening night. Mark Gatiss and David Tennant are also huge fans of the original and we wanted to give Professor Quatermass a modern feel and Jason Flemyng provides that perfectly.

BBC Four: In the context of TV On Trial, what light will the new version throw on whether TV was better in the 1950s or now?

Alison: All I can say is that Quatermass is just as resonant today as it was 50 years ago. The idea of people going up in a space rocket and bringing back a virus from outer space isn't far removed from what could really 3486 QUATERMASS EXPERIMENT,THE/QUATERMASS II/ QUATERMASS AND THE PIT/ QUATERMASS EXPERIMENT, happen. There is an entrepreneur in Arizona struggling to build the first hotel in space for example, so the drama element still holds strong. It's a very well-constructed piece of work.

BBC Four: And finally, would you be interested in repeating the live experiment? Either by making more Quatermass episodes or taking on other lost classics such as Dixon of Dock Green?

Alison: There hasn't been talk of a series but I'd certainly love to make one if the opportunity arose. We have reinvented the wheel during this so it would be a real shame if we couldn't do it again.

Sam: Ask me again the day after the show!

WR. Nigel Kneale

DIR. Rudolph Cartier.

EPISODES: 18 YEAR MADE: 1953 COUNTRY: GB SEASONS: 3

A BBC PRODUCTION

CREATOR: NIGEL KNEALE

TYPE OF SHOW: INVASION

FORMAT: SERIAL

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: Yes COLOUR: No LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 6, (2) 6, (3) 6

DATE OF PREMIER: 18/07/1953

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 26/01/1959

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS: THE QUATERMASS X-PERIMENT, QUATERMASS II, QUATERMASS AND THE PIT.

Professor Bernard Quatermass REGINALD TATE, Judith Carron (chief assistant) ISABEL DEAN, John Patterson HUGH KELLY, James Fullalove PAUL WHITSUN-JONES, Victor Carroon DUNCON LAMONT, Dr. Gordon Briscoe JOHN GLEN (From Ep. 2), Chief Insp. Lomax IAN COLIN (From Ep. 2), Det. Sgt. Best FRANK HAWKINS (From Ep. 2) / Quatermass II - Professor Bernard Quatermass JOHN ROBINSON, Paul Quatermass (his daughter) MONICA GREY, Dr. Leo Pugh (his assistant) HUGH GRIFFITHS, Captain John Dillion JOHN STONE (eps 1-2,5-6), Vincent Broadhead RUPERT DAVIES (eps 2-3 only), / Quatermass and the Pit Professor Quatermass ANDRE MORELL, Dr. Matthew Roney CEC LINDER, Barbara Judd CHRISTINE FINN, Col. Breen ANTHONY BUSHELL, Capt. Potter JOHN STRATTON, Sergeant MICHAEL RIPPER, Cpl. Gibson HAROLD GOODWIN, Pte West JOHN WALKER, Soldiers CLIFFORD COX, BRIAN GILMAR, Sladden RICHARD SHAW, Minister ROBERT PERCEVAL, Private Secretary RICHARD DARE.

2005 Cast

Professor Bernard Quatermass JASON FLEMYNG, Detective Lomax ADRIAN DUNBAR, John Paterson MARK GATISS, Doctor Gordon Briscoe DAVID TENNANT, Judith Carroon INDIRA VARMA, Victor Carroon (as Andy Tiernan) ANDREW TIERNAN, James Fullalove ADRIAN BOWER, Blaker ISLA BLAIR, News Editor PAUL BROUGHTON, Colonel STEPHEN BOXER, Charles Greene MATTHEW FLYNN, Ludwig Reichenheim CARSTEN HAYES, Newsreader JANE HILL, Louisa Greene TRACY O'FLAHERTY, Boy GREG SHEFFIELD. Chemist ANDY DE LA TOUR, Mrs. Matthews KERRY GODLIMAN, Len Matthews ROBERY HORWELL, Journalist SUZAN SYLVESTER, Janet LUCY EVANS, Ted ALEX ROBERTSON, Park Keeper RICHARD HUW, Vernon ANDREW SCOTT, Inspector JOHN KIRK, Understudy RUFUS WRIGHT, Understudy GARY SHELFORD.

RELATED SHOWS:

QUATERMASS (1979)

1 - 1 CONTACT HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED

An experimental rocket, the BR7, is sent thousands of miles over the Earth on a mission of observation. It has a fault in its controls, and its crew loses contact with the scientist who designed it, Professor Bernard Quatermass, who leads the mission control operations on the ground. After contact is restored, the rocket crash-lands in Wimbledon, and Quatermass and his British Experimental Rocket Group quickly go there to recover the crew, then must wait for the space vehicle to cool.

Wr Nigel Kneale

Dir Rudolph Cartier

1 - 2 PERSONS REPORTED MISSING

When the capsule opens, only one of the three crewmembers, Victor Carroon, emerges, then collapses. When he recovers, it is clear he cannot remember what happened to the others. It is also clear, however, that something of the missing crew lives on in another form,

Wr Nigel Kneale

Dir Rudolph Cartier

1 - 3 VERY SPECIAL KNOWLEDGE

Victor appears to have developed multiple personalities and can now speak German. Quatermass takes him to a safe house. Merging with a cactus, Victor attacks and kills a reporter and runs off.

Wr Nigel Kneale

Dir Rudolph Cartier

1 - 4 BELIEVED TO BE SUFFERING

Quatermass believes that something in space absorbed two crew members and took over Victor's body. Victor escapes from a car crash and goes to a pharmacy, seeking relief for his mutated arm.

Wr Nigel Kneale

Dir Rudolph Cartier

1 - 5 AN UNIDENTIFIED SPEICES

The pharmacist tells Quatermass that the chemicals drunk by Victor would be extremely poisonous. A half-naked Victor, with an arm now a mass of vegetation, crawls through the hedges of St. James' Park. A few hours later, Lomax and Quatermass investigate the presence of dead, mutated birds in a lake. They examine samples of a moss-like substance at the scene and conclude that Victor is no longer human, and has spored.

Wr Nigel Kneale

Dir Rudolph Cartier

1 - 6 STATE OF EMERGENCY

The creature that was Victor Caroon is now at Westminster. Quatermass broadcasts to the nation, informing them of all the past events, the rocket return, the creature inside the rocket and the danger the country finds itself in. Initially planning to destroy the creature with flame throwers, Quatermass talks to it, appealing to the individual astronauts inside. The astronauts' minds turn against the creature and kill it, leaving behind a mass of dead tentacles and vegetation.

Wr Nigel Kneale

Dir Rudolph Cartier

2 - 1 THE BOLTS

An object from space crashes on Earth. Captain John Dillon takes the remains to the British Rocket Group. Professor Quatermass accompanies Dillon to the Winnerden Flats area, where they find a huge synthetic food plant.

Wr Nigel Kneale

Dir Rudolph Cartier

2 - 2 THE MARK

Captain Dillon is infected by gas from one of the space objects and is taken to the synthetic food away to the plant by zombie-like guards. The Captain and the guards have similar facial scarring. Quatermass is obstructed by local officials.

Wr Nigel Kneale

Dir Rudolph Cartier

2 - 3 THE FLOOD

Quatermass attends an official inquiry into the recycling plant, and finds that all of the commission members are scarred, indicating infection by the mysterious gas. Quatermass, Ward and Fowler break into the plant. Ward is killed by a burning material in one of the food domes.

Wr Nigel Kneale

Dir Rudolph Cartier

2 - 4 THE COMING

Dr. Pugh finds that the mysterious objects are coming from an asteroid. Quatermass accompanies a journalist to talk to workers at the food plant. Guards at the plant collect more objects that have fallen in the area.

Wr Nigel Kneale

Dir Rudolph Cartier

2 - 5 THE FRENZY

Quatermass enters the food recycling plant and sees an alien creature in one of the food domes. The workers revolt and, occupying the pumping room, stop the flow of the gas flow to the domes. The guards use human bodies to block the pipeline.

Wr Nigel KnealeDir Rudolph Cartier2 - 6 THE DESTROYERS

Quatermass escapes from the recycling plant as it explodes. He and Pugh return to the Rocket Group to find that a group of zombie guards, led by Captain Dillon, have taken over. Pugh and Quatermass decide take the Quatermass II rocket to the asteroid and destroy the alien invasion force.

Wr Nigel KnealeDir Rudolph Cartier3 - 1 THE HALFMEN

A building site at Hobbs Lane in London unearths a human skull, which is estimated by Dr Matthew Roney to be five million years old. Roney sets up a dig at the site. Quatermass, to his fury, is told that his Rocket Group will be merged with the military under Colonel Breen. Breen is called in by Captain Potter when a strange projectile, possibly a bomb, is found at the dig. Quatermass gets involved, and realises whatever it is, it is five million years old.

Wr Nigel KnealeDir Rudolph Cartier3 - 2 THE GHOSTS

The strange capsule is unearthed, and Breen claims it is a German V-weapon. It is made of an unknown substance, mildly radioactive and cold to touch. Roney's aide, Barbara Judd, finds a history of supernatural events at Hobbs Lane which Quatermass is interested by. Private West, working inside the capsule, is terrified by an imp-like ghost he claims to have seen.

Wr Nigel KnealeDir Rudolph Cartier3 - 3 IMPS AND DEMONS

Quatermass and the journalist James Fullalove examine the history of Hobbs Lane, and finding that Hob, the original spelling, was a name for the Devil. A special drill operated by Sladden is used to open a sealed compartment in the capsule, revealing three long-dead alien insectoids.

Wr Nigel KnealeDir Rudolph Cartier3 - 4 THE ENCHANTED

Roney and Quatermass theorise that the aliens were Martians who took humans to Mars and experimented on them, and then crashed on returning them to Earth. Sladden works alone in the pit that night and strange forces are conjured up, forcing him to flee in terror.

Wr Nigel KnealeDir Rudolph Cartier3 - 5 THE WILD HUNT

A brain scanner devised by Roney reveals pictures of aliens in Barbara's mind as she works at the capsule. Breen dismisses the images as a hoax and plans to expose the charade in a television broadcast from the pit. An electrician is killed there, and the capsule starts to glow.

Wr Nigel KnealeDir Rudolph Cartier3 - 6 HOB

The opening of the ship unleashes the ancient Martian inheritance that has lain dormant in humanity for millennia. The pit is plunged into chaos as many humans in the area succumb, including Quatermass. The capsule splits open and a Martian energy form towers over London. Roney finds he is immune, and struggles to help Quatermass.

Wr Nigel KnealeDir Rudolph Cartier4 - 1 THE QUATERMASS EXPERIMENT (2005)

An astronaut is infected by an alien pathogen during a space mission, of which he is the only survivor. Gradually he mutates into an hideous creature that absorbs the life force of humans, and must be stopped by the space scientist who designed his spacecraft, and sent him to his doom, Professor Bernard Quatermass.

Wr Richard FellDir Sam Miller

QUEEN'S NOSE, THE

Harmony is given a magic coin which she can use for ten wishes. At the start of the third season, Harmony, the girl with the magic 50p coin, known as the Queen's nose, is living with her Aunt Glenda and sister Melody on a canal barge. Harmony's parents were explained as being on a trekking trip across Australia. Dino, a cheeky tearabout hiding in the hold, finds the coin, and decides to use it for her own selfish ends.

Stephen Moore also starred in THE HITCH HIKERS GUIDE TO THE GALAXY as Marven, the paranoid android. The third series of the show was written by Steve Attridge. The series was shown in late 1998 on BBC1, as well as enjoying a repeat screening on BBC2 at the weekends.

Produced by Clive Parsons producer

Film Editing by Paul Griffiths-Davies , Kristina Hamilton (2001 season)

Second Unit Director or Assistant Director - John Duthie first assistant director , Matthew Wehrle third assistant director (series 5, 6 and 7)

Art Department - Paul Booth assistant art director , Mark Hedges chargehand standby prop

Other crew - Quay Chu assistant to producer , Toby Hosking floor runner , Pu San Wong script supervisor (season 4) , Ulrike Munch assistant editor (uncredited)

1996

British Academy of Film and Television Arts, UK

Best Children's Drama [Clive Parsons, Davina Belling, Carol Wiseman] - nopminated

WR. Steve Attridge

DIR. Carol Wiseman

EPISODES: 36 YEAR MADE: 1995 COUNTRY: GB SEASONS: 7

A BBC PRODUCTION

CREATOR: DICK KING-SMITH

TYPE OF SHOW: FANTASY

FORMAT: SERIAL

LENGTH (MINS): 25 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 6, (2) 6, (3) 6, (4) 6, (5) 6, (6) 6, (7)

DATE OF PREMIER: 01/05/1995 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Mrs Audrey Parker PAULA WILCOX (1,2,4,5), Mr Arthur Parker STEPHEN MOORE (1,2,4,5), Melody HEATHER-JAY JONES (1-6), THORA HIRD (1), SARAH LONDON, Uncle Ginger DONALD SUMPTER (1), Harmony VICTORIA SHALET (1-4), Tom ANTHONY HAMBLIN(1,2), Granny LIZ SMITH (2), ANTON ROGERS (2), TONY AITKEN (2), MAX DIGBY (2), JAMES MCCARTHY (2), RACHEL IZEN (2), Aunt Glenda NERYYS HUGHES (3), Dino VICKY LEE TAYLOR (3), Grobber IAN REDDINGTON (3), Gus GARY MORELINE (3), Himself - Gary Mabbutt GARY BABBUTT (1), Gregory CALLUM DIXON (1,2,3,6), Sam ELLA JONES (4,5,6) , Mrs Dooley ANNETTE BADLAND (4,5) , Dino VICKI LEE TAYLOR (3) , Melody's Agent PAUL DANAN (6) , Jake JORDON METCALF (7), Chief DAVID STERNE (7), Wesley SONNY MUSLIM (7), Duncan NICHOLAS GLEAVES (7), Nick BROCK EVERITT-ELWICK (7), Carla JULIET COWAN (7), Mr Marsh BILL BINGHAM (7), Darren ANGELO ANDREOU (7), Frank MARTIN JARVIS (7).

Books Based on this series.

THE QUEEN'S NOSE : HARMONY'S HOLIDAY	STEVE ATTRIDGE	1998
THE QUEEN'S NOSE : HARMONY'S RETURN	STEVE ATTRIDGE	1996

RELATED SHOWS:HITCHHIKER'S GUIDE TO THE GALAXY, THE

R3

R3 stood for Ministry of Research Centre No. 3. It was a laboratory facility, which was the home base for a group of scientists who set out to solve scientific problems. The Centre was part of Britain's Ministry of Research and was headed by Sir Michael Gerrard. Sir Michael Gerrard had the dual role of a diplomat trying to get more government funds and a sympathetic overlord in charge of the various scientists working at R3.

During the first series, Sir Michael Gerrard oversaw a large group of scientists who worked in the labs at R3. The second series was almost totally recast, with Sir Michael Gerrard and his secretary Miss Brooks being the only two characters to be in both series. The second series focused more on the Consultancy Service R3's trouble-shooting department. The Consultancy Service had a somewhat smaller staff, consisting of its head Philip Boulton and his right hand man Dr. Richard Franklin.

R3 was about scientists and it was fiction ergo... In fact, R3 can be considered to be science fiction more by association than by design. A BBC drama series of the 1960s, its stated intent was to 'go beyond the laboratory door and into the daily background of a scientists life'. Series creator N.J Crisp wanted to 'humanise' scientists, to show them both as professionals at work and people with home lives and problems like anyone else.

As a format, it could probably just as easily been applied to doctors, airline pilots or civil servants. As a series it inevitably covered a range of scientific ideas and issues, even if these were less for their own sake than as plot devices to show the characters reacting in themselves and with each other. Topics included drug safety, scientific secrecy, human guinea-pigs, space research, post-holocaust survival and even a possible space virus, making it something of a forgotten forerunner to the 1970s DOOMWATCH.

The episodes of R3 as a whole tended not to stretch the bounds of known scientific fact, they instead concentrated on the personal lives of the scientists at R3. None of the episodes which were made currently exist in the BBC archives, only stills from the show are currently in existence.

The series was set in research centre number 3 (R3), part of the ministry of research, and the first 13 part season established a scientific community headed by a director, Sir Michael Gerrard (familiar territory for former Professor Quatermass, John Robinson), and his deputy Dr. George Fratton. Season Two, also 13 episodes, switched attention to R3's trouble-shooting department, Consultancy service, which solved problems beyond ordinary expertise. This was run by Philip Boulton and his good nature right-hand man Dr. Richard Franklin (a rare 'happy' role for hellraiser Oliver Reed).

R3 may have been an inspiration to the later BBC series DOOMWATCH. Both series dealt with a group of scientists working on unusual problems. R3 however was a bit more reality based than Doomwatch. The episodes of R3 as a whole tended not to stretch the bounds of known scientific fact, they instead concentrated on the personal lives of the scientists at R3. The script editor and story consultant was N.J. Crisp for season one. The story editor for season two was Ken Levinson. The producers were Andrew Osborn (Season One) and John Robins (Season Two). The theme was created by Ken Thorne. The various designers were John Cooper, Peter Sedden, Donald Brewer, Keith Norman, Barry Newbery, Moira Tait, Ridley Scott, Jean Peyre, Tim Gleeson and Roy Stannard.

WR. N.J. Crisp, Bill Strutton, E.Y. Bannard, Elaine Morgan, Bill MacIlwraith, Donald Bull, David Chantler, John Maynard, William Emms, Arden Winch, Diane Deacon, Julian Bond, Neil Shand, Kenneth Cavender.

DIR. Moira Armstrong, Bill Hays, Terence Williams, Eric Tayler, Peter Dews, Douglas Hurn, Paul Bernard, Michael Leeston-Smith, John Robins.

EPISODES: 26 YEAR MADE: 1964 COUNTRY: GB SEASONS: 2

A BBC PRODUCTION

CREATOR: N.J. CRISP

TYPE OF SHOW: CRIMEFORMAT: SERIESLENGTH (MINS): 50 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: Yes COLOUR: No LANG: EnglishSEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 13, (2) 13DATE OF PREMIER: 20/11/1964 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 28/09/1965SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:*FILMS:

Sir Michael Gerrard JOHN ROBINSON, Miss Brooks BRENDA SAUNDERS, Dr. May Howard ELIZABETH SELLERS (1), Dr. Peter Travers RICHARD WORDSWORTH (1), Dr. Jack Morton SIMON LACK (1), Pomeroy EDWIN RICHFIELD (1), Betty Mason JANET KELLEY (1), Tom Collins DEREK BENFIELD (1), Porter MAXWELL FOSTER, Philip Boulton MICHAEL HOWKINS (2), Dr. Richard Franklin OLIVER REED (2),

RELATED SHOWS:*DOOMWATCH*1 - 1 STATE OF ANXIETY

Dr. Peter Travers plans an experiment to measure the effects of stress and must find a test subject.

Wr N. J. CrispDir Moira Armstrong1 - 2 AGAINST THE STREAM

Dr. Cox falls foul of big business interests when he attempts to publish research that casts doubt on the effectiveness of a popular drug.

Wr Bill StruttonDir Bill Hays1 - 3 ON THE SPIKE

Dr. George Fratton regrets being hostile to a journalist when a strange series of events unfolds at Research Centre No. 3.

Wr Bill StruttonDir Terence Williams1 - 4 THE PATRIOT

Dr. Frank Hillman, a respected researcher, announces his intention to resign and join the team at R3, but his motives are unclear.

Wr E. Y. BannardDir Eric Tayler1 - 5 *THUNDERBOLTWr Elaine MorganDir Terence Williams1 - 6 THE SHORT CUT

Newly-discovered Noralin may be related to mental illness. An impatient young doctor decides to circumvent the research process and injects himself with a dose.

Wr Bill MacIlwraithDir Moira Armstrong1 - 7 THE FORUM

Members of the R3 team go to an international scientific conference.

Wr Bill MacIlwraithDir Bill Hays1 - 8 PATTERNS OF BEHAVIOUR

Drs. May Howard, Jack Morton and Peter Travers make some interesting discoveries about themselves during a birthday celebration.

Wr N. J. CrispDir Eric Tayler1 - 9 THE FRATTON EXPERIMENT

Dr. George Fratton faces a crisis.

Wr N. J. Crisp

Dir Peter Dews

1 - 10 THE CRITICAL MOMENT

The team investigates a series of mysterious helicopter crashes to find out whether the cause is equipment malfunction or pilot error.

Wr Bill MacIlwraith

Dir Bill Hays

1 - 11 THE ANGEL

Wr Bill MacIlwraith, Donald Bull

Dir Moira Armstrong

1 - 12 THE ASTRONAUT

An astronaut returns from outer space, but is there something wrong with him?

Wr N. J. Crisp

Dir Terence Williams

1 - 13 A WHOLE LOT OF REASONS

Dr. Travers, excited by developments in the field of brain physiology, decides to set up an experiment to establish the nature of life and consciousness.

Wr Donald Bull

Dir Peter Dews

2 - 1 THE BIG BALLOON

The R3 team are assigned to a project to launch a balloon into outer space, but Commander Murray, the project leader, repeatedly abandons the mission.

Wr David Chantler

Dir Douglas Hurn

2 - 2 UNWELCOME VISITOR

A young boy gets his hands on a rare and extremely dangerous radioactive isotope.

Wr John Maynard

Dir Paul Bernard

2 - 3 ONE FREE MAN

Wr William Emms

Dir Bill Hays

2 - 4 EXPERIMENT IN DEPTH

Wr N. J. Crisp

Dir Paul Bernard

2 - 5 BLACK WARNING

The R3 team take part in an experiment to establish likely survival rates after a nuclear war.

Wr Arden Winch

Dir Bill Hays

2 - 6 IN YOUR OWN BACK YARD

A village shopkeeper, unhappy with R3's activities, takes direct action.

Wr Diana Deacon

Dir Michael Leeston-Smith

2 - 7 WITCH DOCTOR

Wr Julian Bond

Dir Douglas Hurn

2 - 8 AND NO BIRDS SING

Wr Douglas Young

Dir Bill Hays

2 - 9 A SUDDEN CHANGE OF PROGRAMME

Wr Neil Shand

Dir Paul Bernard

2 - 10 IT'S BETTER TO KNOW

Philip Boulton is interrogated by Major Green from military intelligence.

Wr Kenneth Cavender

Dir Michael Leeston-Smith

2 - 11 A SOURCE OF CONTAMINATION

Wr Donald Bull

Dir Douglas Hurn

2 - 12 GOOD CLEAN FUN

Wr William Emms

Dir Paul Bernard

2 - 13 PERSONAL APPEARANCE

Richard Franklin reveals an unexpected aspect to his personality when he gets involved in a television programme.

Wr Edwin Ranch

Dir John Robins

RADAR MEN FROM THE MOON

Captain Cody has to stop a moon monarch from taking over the world.

Wallace, wearing the rocket suit from Republic's earlier King of the Rocket Men (1949), is Captain Cody, 'Sky Marshal of the Universe' in this cheap, very cheap, and cheerful chapterplay who puts paid to Moon monarch Barcroft's plans of invading Earth. The storyline was made even more complicated than it might have been by the studio's insistence on using stock footage and, wherever possible, props from previous outings. More charming was screenwriter Davidson's total disregard for scientific truth. Thus, on the Moon, where most of the action takes place, Wallace needs no spacesuit and is unaffected by the reduced gravity - and this two years after Destination Moon (1950). In 1966, the serial was condensed into a feature, Retik, the Moon Menace. The serial was produced by Franklyn Adreon, the cinematographer was John MacBurnie and the special effects were created by Howard Lydecker and Theodore Lydecker.

Republic's RADER MEN FROM THE MOON (1952) introduced Commando Cody - Sky Marshal Of The Universe (George Wallace), Earth scientist and all-round hero. For 15 episodes, Commando and his assistants battled to foil a planned invasion of Earth by Retik, ruler of the Moon. While Retik's human henchmen (one of them The Lone Ranger himself, Clayton Moore) blast various Earth installations with a ray gun, Commando and his assistants take off in Cody's personal rocket ship to the Moon, eventually ending the planned invasion and eliminating the conquest-happy Retik (played by Republic's favourite B-picture heavy Roy Barcroft in both robes and later his old outfit from THE PURPLE MONSTER STRIKES (1945) to match stock footage involving his destruction).

WR. Ronald Davidson.

DIR. Fred C. Brannon.

EPISODES: 12 YEAR MADE: 1952 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

REPUBLIC

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: INVASION

FORMAT: CINEMA SERIAL

LENGTH (MINS): 20 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: Yes COLOUR: No LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 12

DATE OF PREMIER:

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS: RETIK : THE MOON MENACE (1966)

GEORGE WALLACE, ALINE TOWNE, ROY BARCROFT, WILLIAM BAKEWELL, CLAYTON MOORE, PETER BROCCO.

- 1 - 1 MOON ROCKET
- 1 - 2 MOLTON TERROR
- 1 - 3 BRIDGE OF DEATH
- 1 - 4 FLIGHT OF DESTRUCTION
- 1 - 5 MURDER CAR
- 1 - 6 HILLS OF DEATH
- 1 - 8 THE ENEMY PLANET

- 1 - 9 BATTLE IN THE STRATOSPHERE
- 1 - 10 MASS EXECUTION
- 1 - 11 PLANNED PURSUIT
- 1 - 12 DEATH OF THE MOON MAN

RADIO KING,THE

Released barely two months after the first long-distance wireless tests in the use, this short serial posits the possibility of instant world-wide communication via wireless/radio. As so often in these films revolving around a wonderful invention, it is the military aspect of its uses which is offered as the reason why we, the audience, should care what happens to the device and who controls it.

The inventors of the super-radio, Brad and John (Stewart and Smith) present the device as a way for us military bases throughout the world to communicate with each other instantaneously, while the villain, Marnee (Bracey) wants the device to overthrow the us government. The conflict is fought out with the aid of numerous other electronic gadgets including remote-controlled doors which eventually trap the villain and his gang. Brad and a woman reporter (Lorraine) provide the happy ending as military domination of the world has been secured for the us establishment.

Stewart, the central character in The Devil to Pay (1920), was better known for his parts as a western hero and his healthy but somewhat dumb appearance didn't make for a convincing incarnation of a scientist and electronics' wizard. Hill had directed Lorraine before in the far more exciting serial-thriller THE FLAMING DISK (1920), but his best work was his direction of BLAKE OF SCOTLAND YARD (1927).

WR. Robert Dillion.

DIR. Robert F. Hill

EPISODES: 10 YEAR MADE: 1922 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

UNIVERSAL

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: CRIME

FORMAT: CINEMA SERIAL

LENGTH (MINS): STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: Yes COLOUR: No LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 10

DATE OF PREMIER:

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

ROY STEWART, LOUISE LORRAINE, AL SMITH, SIDNEY BRACEY, CLARK COMSTOCK, ERNEST BUTTERWORTH JNR.

RELATED SHOWS:

FLAMING DISK,THE

BLAKE OF SCOTLAND YARD

RAINBOW MAN

AKA: WARRIOR OF LOVE

AKA: REINBOMAN

AKA: AI NO SENSHI RAINBOWMAN

AKA: WARRIOR OF LOVE RAINBOWMAN

Thrown off his team for being too violent, champion wrestler Takeshi (Mizutani) goes in search of one-time master of the martial art Divadatta (Inoue, presumably his character is intended to offer to Devadatta, Buddha's cousin). Now living the life of a hermit in India, Divadatta becomes Takeshi's new mentor, and the sage teaches him discipline and the mastery of seven special transformations in the style of Seven Coloured Mask, each based on a Japanese names of the days of the week, Moonman (Monday) can shrink to a small size, Fireman (Tuesday) can spray fire from his fingers, Waterman (Wednesday) can breath underwater and also spray water and/or ice at his enemies, Treeman (Thursday) has chameleon like powers and can throw pine needles, Goldman (Friday) can throw thunderbolts and also fly short distances, and Earthman (Saturday) can cause Earthquakes and also burrow underground.

The prime incarnation is Sunman (Sunday) has numerous rainbow powers, including a heat ray. In later episodes, Takeshi develops the ability to combine separate attributes, allowing him to use three day powers at once. His enemy Mister K (Hirata) is an evil mastermind whose foreign allies are chiefly Chinese nationals determined to avenge themselves on Japan for humiliations suffered during World War II. Their activities include Kidnapping Takeshi's friends and family and even finding his long lost father in an African prison so that they can hold him for ransom. His later enemies include God Iguana (Shiozawa) and her mother (Soga), whose schemes are occasionally at odds with Mister K's, resulting in a three way battle at the end of each episode.

Based on an idea by MOONLIGHT MASK creator Yasunori Kawauchi and reputedly broadcast with English subtitles on local television in Hawaii. The show was resurrected on its tenth anniversary as an anime series. Theme : Kenji Yasunaga - "Ike Rainbowman" (Go Rainbowman).

The series was produced by Masayoshi Kataoka and Koichi Noguchi.

All 7 of Rainbowman's seven "Dashes" are seen during the opening credits, as they are matted against the elements they are based on (Dash 1 is moon, Dash 2 is fire, Dash 3 is water, Dash 4 is wood, Dash 5 is gold, Dash 6 is earth, and the main Dash, 7, is the sun; These are also the days of the week in Japan, from Monday to Sunday, respectively). Original music by Jun Kitahara, Special Effects by Teisho Arikawa (special effects supervisor).

In episode 44 Rainbowman gains the ability to split himself into three forms, dash 7 and any two others then combine the three together. Called "Rainbow Cross" this ability gives him different powers with each combination. Combining dash 2, 5, 7 allows Rainbowman to use lighting bolts or fire. Combining dash 4, 6 and 7 allows Rainbowman to merge with trees and rocks. Combining dash 3, 5 and 7 allows him to cause a windstorm inside a building and fire lightning bolts. When this power is used the sun on Rainbowman's forehead changes to reflect the combination. Example, combining 2, 6 and 7 would make one third of the sun red, one third gold and one third brown striped. The combination of forms lasts until Rainbowman transforms directly into any single form.

When Rainbowman is wounded or drained of energy from over use of his powers, he becomes Yamato, Takeshi and goes into a trance to heal himself. In this trance his body freezes. In this state he is not aware of what is happening around him and is vulnerable to his enemies, if they can find a way to penetrate his frozen skin. When he thaws out he will be totally healed and rested.

Starting with episode 40 Rainbowman has to battle both the Shine Shine Dan and Iquana's mother God Iquana who needs his blood to bring Iquana back to life. This sorceress is not working for the Shine Shine Dan, and she doesn't care if her attacks on Rainbowman interfere with Mr. K's plans. God Iguana is weakened by bright light or seeing her own reflection. She creates two monsters from her own blood, Bad Sister [episodes 46 and 47] (height: 170cm weight: 41kg) and Miira Sister [episode 48] (height: 178 cm weight: 70kg). When the monsters are killed she is weakened. [It was originally planned that the first Iguana would return but when it came time to film the last 13 episodes Shiozawa, Toki was no longer available, so Soga, Machiko (voice of Dr Kate in Kamen Rider Stronger episodes 27, 29, 30) was hired to play her mother instead. In my opinion Shiozawa, Toki was better.]

Ai no Senshi Rainbowman starts slow. It isn't until the end of the second episode that Yamato, Takeshi becomes Rainbowman and he doesn't meet Mr. K until the fourth episode. The magical monsters don't appear until episode fourteen. Many episodes end in a cliffhanger. Starting with episode 27 the Shine Shine Dan becomes more powerful, harder for Rainbowman to defeat.

Soundtrack Listings

"Yuke! Reinbôman" ("Go, Rainbowman!")

Main Title Theme

Composed and Arranged by Jun Kitahara

Lyrics by Yasunori Kawauchi

Sung by Kenji Yasunaga and Young Flesh

"Shine-Shine Dan no Uta" ("The Song of the Die-Die Group")

Composed and Arranged by Jun Kitahara

Lyrics by Yasunori Kawauchi

Sung by The Cats' Eyes and Young Flesh

"Yamato Takeshi no Uta" ("The Song of Takeshi Yamato")

Ending Theme (Episodes 1-13)

Composed and Arranged by Jun Kitahara

Lyrics by Yasunori Kawauchi

Sung by Kenji Yasunaga and Young Flesh

"Aitsu no Na wa Reinbôman" ("That Guy's Name is Rainbowman")

Ending Theme (Episodes 14-52)

Composed and Arranged by Jun Kitahara

Lyrics by Yasunori Kawauchi

Sung by The Royal Knights and Young Flesh

WR. Tsunehisa Ito, Yasunori Kawauchi, Tatsuo Tamura, Takayuki Kase.

DIR. Ken Yamada, Suguru Nagano, Hiroyasu Sunahara.

EPISODES: 52 YEAR MADE: 1972 COUNTRY: JAP SEASONS: 1

TOHO

CREATOR: YASUNORI KAWAUCHI

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 25 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: Japanese

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 52

DATE OF PREMIER: 06/09/1972

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 28/09/1973

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Takeshi Yamato/Rainbowman (Dash 7) KUNIHISA MIZUTANI, Mother Tami KAKUKO MOTOYAMA, Younger Sister Miyuki ERIKO ISHIKAWA, Toshie MEGUMI ITO, Rescue Team Member Shouzou MASAO MURATA, Yoshioka HAJIME KURATE, Ma Priest HIROAKI KOZUE, Hotta SUSUMU KUROKI, Ichirô Yamato (Takeshi's father) HIROSHI KOIZUMI, Iron of Yappa JUNJI YAMAZAKI, Genkichi MICHIO KITA, Daibadatta AKIFUMI INOUE, Diana MAYUMI YAMABUKI, Mitchy MIEKO SAEGUSA, Cathy YOKO TAKAHASHI, Lolita MYOKO MINAGAWA, Olga RITSUKO FUJIYAMA, Iguana TOKI SHIOZAWA, God-Iguana MACHIKO SOGA, Mister K AKIHIKO HIRATA, Narrator (voice) GORO NAYA.

RELATED SHOWS:

MOONLIGHT MASK

1 - 1 THE MIRACULOUS SAINT

-
- 1 - 2 THE BIRTH OF RAINBOW MAN
 - 1 - 3 RAINBOW DASH 7
 - 1 - 4 MACAO'S MURDER SHOW
 - 1 - 5 THE SHINE SHINE DAN CONSPIRACY
 - 1 - 6 THE SINISTER 5 O'CLOCK HOUR HAS COME!
 - 1 - 7 THE CAT'S EYE STRATAGEM COMMENCES
 - 1 - 8 LONELY WAR
 - 1 - 9 LET'S DRIVE TAKESHI MAD
 - 1 - 10 KILL THE BASTARDS!
 - 1 - 11 SPRING THE TRAP!
 - 1 - 12 DANGER ZONE!!
 - 1 - 13 OPERATION: RAINBOW
 - 1 - 14 THE DEADLY OPERATION 'M'
 - 1 - 15 THE PROFESSIONAL KILLER
 - 1 - 16 THE PROFESSIONAL KILLER GARUMA'S REVENGE
 - 1 - 17 BLACK MAGIC-HUMAN PETRIFACTION!!
 - 1 - 18 HOSHIKO'S GRAND CHANGE
 - 1 - 19 FLYING SUMMERSAULT! FLYING SQUIRREL KILLING TECHNIQUE
 - 1 - 20 ('M' STRATAGEM FOILED!!
 - 1 - 21 ATTACK THE 'SPARK MAN'!!
 - 1 - 22 RESCUE ONE HUNDRED MILLION PEOPLE!!
 - 1 - 23 THEIR BASE IS THERE!!
 - 1 - 24 A GENTLEMAN'S PROMISE
 - 1 - 25 IN THE MORNING, THE WITCH DISAPPEARED
 - 1 - 26 THE SECRET BASE'S BIG EXPLOSION
 - 1 - 27 THE RESURRECTED SHINE SHINE DAN
 - 1 - 28 HOLD BACK THE UNDERGROUND TANK MOGURARD!
 - 1 - 29 THE SINISTER ARMY 'DAC'
 - 1 - 30 THE MOGURAT'S GRAND DESTRUCTION PLAN
 - 1 - 31 THE TERRIFYING MULTIPLE EXPLOSIONS
 - 1 - 32 THE CYBORG PAGORA
 - 1 - 33 LAUNCH THE DACCA AIR CORPS
 - 1 - 34 THE TORNADO VACUUM SKILL
 - 1 - 35 THE INVISIBLE BLACK HAND
 - 1 - 36 MY LOVER THE ASSASSIN
 - 1 - 37 THE 'X' ZONE DESTRUCTION ORDER!!
 - 1 - 38 BIG EXPLOSION ON THE ABCD LINE

- 1 - 39 TOKYO'S LAST DAY
- 1 - 40 THE DIAMOND PLUNDER PLAN
- 1 - 41 BATTLE WITH CYBORG MARK ONE
- 1 - 42 PURSUIT AT 1000 KPH <621 MPH>!!
- 1 - 43 I SWEAR BY THE SUN AND GREEN <EARTH>!
- 1 - 44 THE RAINBOW COMBINATION SKILL
- 1 - 45 DR. BORG'S TENACITY
- 1 - 46 THE CYBORG SLAVE DRONES
- 1 - 47 A BLACK STAR IS THE ACCURSED MARK
- 1 - 48 THE DEMON MASKED SHOWDOWN
- 1 - 49 RAGE ON! THE GREAT SHOWDOWN
- 1 - 50 SHATTER SHOT
- 1 - 51 MISSION OF THE CROSS
- 1 - 52 WARRIOR OF LOVE TOWARDS TO THE RAINBOW

RAINBOW MASK

AKA: SEVEN-COLORED MASK

AKA: NANAIRO KAMEN

AKA: MULTICOLOR MASK

Private detective Kotaro Ran (initially played by Susumu Namijima) has several secret identities - he is the Seven Colored Mask, who is able to don different powers with different masks. Created by MOONLIGHT MASK'S creator Yasunori Kawauchi after the success of his earlier superhero, the Seven Colored Mask also had seven super-powered opponents in the course of his year onscreen. The first was Cobra Mask, whose fortune was stolen by a group of kids during the war and who had used their ill-gotten cash to become wealthy. Cobra Mask, with his power over snakes, abducts the grown-up former thieves to exact his revenge.

After the Cobra Mask arc, which was more of an adult detective mystery than the expected superhero combat, the Seven-Colored Mask had to track down King Rose, a master robber, forger, and jewellery thief. In the third, his adversaries were the international Red Jaguar crime syndicate, and in the fourth, he brought the masks thieves known as the Three Aces to justice. With an emphasis on crime capers in the spirit of Harimao and The Samurai, the fifth season pitted Seven-Colored Mask against Holden Kin and Phantom Butankan, thieves intent on finding a map that can lead them to buried treasure.

The final two story arcs became somewhat more sinister with the Poisonous Spider arc in which serial killer Don Noh attempted to amass a collection of grisly antiques and the climactic Dark Empire chapter, in which Seven Colored Mask fought against evil foreign investors who were trying to seize control of Japan.

Compare to SPACE GOVERNMENT MAN. Part way through the series, the lead role was taken over by Shinichi "Sonny" Chiba, leading to a rise in ratings as the star introduced more action sequences. A manga spin-off was drawn by Daiji Kaumine. The series was produced by Masahiro Sato.

WR. Yasunori Kawauchi, Saburo Yuki, Yoshinari Matsubara.

DIR. Koichi Shimazu, Atsuo Wada, Maskazu Ilzuka, Satoru Ainoda, Toshiro Suzuki.

EPISODES: 57 YEAR MADE: 1959 COUNTRY: JAP SEASONS: 1

ASAHI

CREATOR: YASUNORI KAWAUCHI

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: Yes COLOUR: No LANG: Japanese

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 57

DATE OF PREMIER: 03/06/1959 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 30/06/1960

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Kotaru Ran/Seven Colored Mask SUSUMU NAMIJIMA, MITSUO ANDO, KENJI TSUSHIO, RIKI IAWAKI, MITSUKO KAYAMA, KEN HASEBE, Kotaru Ran/Seven Colored Mask SHINICHI "SONNY" CHIBA.

RELATED SHOWS:

MOONLIGHT MASK

RAY BRADBURY THEATRE, THE

Anthology series which is based on stories written by Ray Bradbury, some of which are science fiction.

'I never know where the next story will take me. The trip - exactly one half exhilaration, exactly one half terror.'

(Ray Bradbury)

Respected cosmopolitan anthology series which has yet to find a proper welcome here.

In a medium devoted to hooking the 'mass audience', series of this nature have generally been considered too downbeat to pull enough votes in the ratings campaign. ITV picked up the first trio listed here in 1985, as a package called The Bradbury Trilogy, but only one region, Grampian, played them the same year. The Playground got a peak-time network screening in January 1986, but it took until 1989 for Marionettes Inc and The Crowd to filter round other regions. The second trio have played here in disguise - as Mystery Theatre, with Thames screening them in May/June 1989 at the ridiculous time of 4.00 am on a Friday morning!

Filmed in Canada and New Zealand to save money, immortal writer Ray Bradbury showed a strong hand as producer of sometimes stunning, sometimes poignant, sometimes nostalgic, occasionally surprising dramatisations of some of the finest short stories to ever be screened.

The Ray Bradbury Theatre was a low-budget anthology series. Unlike many other similar anthology series The Ray Bradbury Theatre had superior scripts, all of them having been written by renowned science fiction author Ray Bradbury. Bradbury is best known as the author of The Martian Chronicles and The Illustrated Man, both collections of short stories. Many of the stories from these collections have been adapted into episodes of The Ray Bradbury Theatre. Bradbury also serves as the series' host.

The series is an international production. Many of the episodes of The Ray Bradbury Theatre were produced in Canada. During the first two seasons several episodes were made in both France and the United Kingdom. During the final three seasons production was split between Canada and New Zealand. The series originally premiered on HBO where the first six episodes were broadcast- the first two as short films and the next four under the series title.

The series then moved to the USA network in October 1987 with reruns of the HBO produced episodes. After several months of reruns on USA, new episodes began to appear. In Canada, all episodes of the series have been run on the First Choice pay TV service, later appearing on Global TV in Ontario. In Great Britain, several episodes of the series were broadcast in 1988 under the title Twist in Tale. NOTE: All of the episodes were written by Ray Bradbury based on one of his published stories except for The Town Where No One Got Off, which was an original story written for the TV series.

The first showing in Britain of any episodes of this series began on the 6th - 20th October 1985 (Grampian) where three episodes were first broadcast known collectively as The Bradbury Trilogy. All the stories for the series were written by Ray Bradbury.

A mini-series based on Ray Bradbury's The Martian Chronicles was also created, see separate entry for details of that show. When the series first started it seemed to have attracted a great deal of big star actors such as Jeff Goldblum, who had become famous at the time for starring in the remake of the film The Fly, and off course Drew Barrymore who starred in E.T. - The Extraterrestrial. Later season would soon the quality of the actors and the scripts drop considerably, with the show scraping the bottle of the barrel for some of Ray Bradbury's stories.

Some of the 65 episodes made, were produced in the UK by Granada Television, these were The Coffin, Punishment Without a Crime, Small Assassin and There Was An Old Woman. These episodes were aired in Britain in August 1988 (2 Episodes - 7th August & 28th August 1988) and 2 Episodes in August 1989 (13 August & 20 August 1989) under the heading Twist In The Tale (no relation to the 1978 American anthology series). Of the 12 shows which were part of Twist In The Tale Granada produced four, with the others being made in France and Canada. But though they played successfully there, and in America, the macabre mood of the tales didn't sit comfortably with ITV's light entertainment schedules. The producer for some of the British stories was Tom Cotter, and some of the designers included Margaret Coombes and Alan Price.

An anthology adapting the many short stories written during the lifetime of this grandmaster of science fiction and fantasy. Half hour flights of "magic realism," dreams of life on Mars, and childhood memories.

Developed for television for Wilcox Productions Inc: Mark Massari; Executive Producer for Atlantis Films: Michael MacMillan; Executive Producers for Wilcox Productions: Larry Wilcox, Ray Bradbury; Executive Producers: Ray Bradbury (#1-65); Michael Macmillan (#1-6); John Ross (#4-6); Peter Sussman (#7-65); Larry Wilcox (#1-65); Co-Executive Producers: Bill Allan (#7-18); Pierre Bertrand Jaume (#7-18); Stephane Sperry (#7-18); Supervising Producers: Tom Cotter (#19-65); Jonathan Goodwill (#37, 39-41); Mary Kahn (#43-50); Seaton McLean (#11-36, 38, 42); Don Reynolds (#51-65); Producers: Chris Bailey (#51-65); Randy Bradshaw (#43-50); Tom Cotter (#12, 13, 15, 17); Tom DentCox (#37, 39-41, 43-50); Jonathan Goodwill (#1936, 38, 42); Arvi Liimatainen (#27-30); Mary Kahn (#51-65); Doug MacLeod (#37, 39-41, 43-50); Grahame McLean (#19-26); Seaton McLean (#110); Pamela Meekings-Stewart (#31-42); Hubert Niogret (#11, 14, 16, 18); Don Reynolds (#43-50); Line Producers: Narelle Barsby (#19-26); Janine Dickins (#51-65); Jonathan Goodwill (#7-10); Gillian Richardson (#1-3); Produced in association with the following participants: HBO (#1-6); Avalon Television Centre (#1-65); Bradshaw, MacLeod, and Associates Ltd. (#30-42); Ellipse Programme (#37, 39-41, 43-50); Grahame McLean Associates Limited (#7, 8, 10-18); Granada Television International (#19-30); South Pacific Pictures Limited (#7, 8, 10-18); In Association with Allarcom (#43-65); Kicking Horse Productions Limited (#19-42); WIC Western International Communications Ltd. (#2730); Wilcox Productions, Inc. (#43-65) Produced in Co-operation with Dune (#1-65); USA Network (#19-30); Produced with Participation of The Alberta Motion Picture Development Corp. (#765); The Global Television Network (#19-65); Telefilm Canada (#1-6); Produced in Association with First Choice Canadian Communications Corp. (#1-3); The Global Television Network (#7-65); Superchannel (#7-65); Super Ecran (#19-65); Developed for Television for Wilcox Productions, Inc. by Mark Massari (#19-65); Executive in Charge of production for WIC Western International Communications Ltd. Nicolas Wry (#1-6); Production Executive for USA Network Rick Weaver (#43-65); Co-Produced by T.F.1 (#43-65); Host/Opening Narrator: Ray Bradbury; 30 minutes.

For author Ray Bradbury, having a television show of his very own, a show that cinematically adapted his favorite short stories, was an idea so repellent that it took producers Larry Wilcox and Mark Massari two solid years to convince him to do it. Why would Bradbury—an author whose lifetime of writing short stories had produced a large bank of material from which to draw for adaptations—be so reluctant to see his stories televised? A little history may offer some explanation.

When Twilight Zone was in production in the early 1960s, Rod Serling had adapted Bradbury's short story "I Sing the Body Electric" for the series. When the episode aired, a crucial scene had been removed. Bradbury was so shocked that he refused to do any further work for Serling. In 1969, The Illustrated Man was produced, starring Rod Steiger. The script was done without Bradbury's participation, which upset him. While he liked the music and photography, he was not happy with the fact that the script began the story midway through the novel.

At one time filmmaker François Truffaut was going to do The Illustrated Man, but he couldn't get financing. So he turned to another Bradbury work, Fahrenheit 451, in 1967. Writing the script himself, Truffaut created a film that Bradbury found very touching. Truffaut even improved on his ending when it started snowing on the set and he continued filming when he should have stopped. However, Bradbury admitted that the film is full of flaws—even he hasn't counted them all—and that technical shortcomings and various acting qualities make this film not the masterpiece he had hoped for.

In 1980, NBC proposed a six-hour miniseries of Bradbury's collection of short stories about life on the planet Mars. Starring such acting vets as Darren McGavin, Rock Hudson, Roddy McDowall and Nicholas Hammond, The Martian Chronicles was adapted by Twilight Zone scripter Richard Matheson and directed by Michael Anderson, who helmed the feature Logan's Run. While Bradbury liked certain stories or certain acting performances, he largely blames the director for an overall "disappointing and boring" result.

Yet another brush with filmmaking came with Something Wicked This Way Comes (1982), starring Jonathan Pryce and directed by Jack Clayton, Bradbury's old friend from the days of working with director John Huston. While very pleased with the final outcome of the film (for which he wrote the screenplay) Bradbury disagreed with Clayton on the way the ending was executed and argued with him about the fact that Clayton was cutting story elements without consulting him. Consequently, the experience soured him on filmmaking.

So, as Bradbury describes it, when Wilcox and Massari approached him about doing a project together, promising him control over casting and editing and, for quite probably the first time in the history of television, the opportunity to be the sole screenwriter, he remained skeptical. "They'd take me to lunch and dinner. They'd say, 'Come on, Ray! Don't be afraid!' I said, 'I don't want to be hurt any more. I'd rather not do it than be disappointed.' 'Look, we'll protect you, we're quality people, we want to put on a Ray Bradbury Theater, not the Larry Wilcox Theater or Mark Massari Theater.' Over a period of two years they convinced me, and I got started. I said, 'OK, I trust you, let's do it!' And it turned out, they were right, they were good.

It manifested itself as an excellent series. So, the first couple of years there were four [producers], and then later, other people took over. Massari and Wilcox had other things to do. But they got me started. And I'm deeply grateful." Describing the show, Bradbury calls The Ray Bradbury Theater "a fantasy anthology show, which combines science fiction, fantasy, magic realism-whatever that is. The story of 'Colonel Stonesteel [and the Desperate Empties]', that's fantasy-magic realism. [He's] a man, an ordinary everyday magician who had the ability to make a young boy fall in love with life.

That little boy is me. [It's the kind of] imagination that changed my life. So, in a way, Colonel Stonesteel was like Mr. Electrico"-the carnival showman impresario Bradbury met when he was a child, who provided the inspiration for the stories told in "The Black Ferris" (which served as the basis for the novel Something Wicked This Way Comes).

Proposing a television series is one thing, but to actually produce, edit and broadcast it and hope fervently of finding an audience is another. Wilcox and Massari "shopped" the show around to various networks, but amazingly, no one was interested! It wasn't until 1986 that Wilcox landed at Home Box Office and produced an initial three episodes: "The Crowd" (with Nick Mancuso), "Marionettes, Inc.," (with Leslie Nielsen), and "The Playground" (with William Shatner). Suddenly the Bradbury name became an interesting property to contend with. The next year, a further three episodes were produced and filmed in Toronto, Canada. "The Screaming Woman" featured Drew Barrymore; "The Town Where No One Got Off," Jeff Goldblum; and "Banshee," the legendary Peter O'Toole. But then, abruptly, HBO canceled The Ray Bradbury Theater.

The show was provoking good critical and audience reaction. It was seen in 42 countries, and producers felt the show was too good to expire. But money was needed. Producers opened negotiations with a number of international production companies, and ultimately, a French and English company joined forces with USA Cable, a national open cable company who needed a companion with their revival of Alfred Hitchcock Presents. Off and running once again with the same production crew, Ray Bradbury Theater expanded to a more ambitious 12 episodes, this time filming in Canada, the United Kingdom and France, which embellished the show with a lavish international flavor that's rare for television.

To Bradbury, HBO's cancellation after six episodes was ironic. "We got 17 nominations by the ACE Cable Awards. And we won seven or eight that year. Can you believe that? Seven awards out of 17 nominations-at which point HBO canceled the series! Now, if you can figure that. I was so glad that USA bought the show. It's been a fascinating history." Bradbury recalls predicting Harold Gould's ACE Cable award in 1991 for his performance in "Into the Chicago Abyss." "I'm very proud of my relationship with an actor like Harold Gould," said Bradbury. Previous to this win, Gould had received an Emmy nomination for the same role in 1990.

Ultimately, Ray Bradbury Theater completed 65 individual segments, using the talents of many directors, actors and production personnel from four different countries (Canada, New Zealand, England, France) in three different continents. Ray Bradbury Theater's reputation as a quality show attracted high-powered talent recognizable all over the world. Some of them have been attracted to the show simply because they were fans of the Master's stories. Canadian playwright, producer and actor Gordon Pinsent was one of them. In 1958, as a young actor starting out in the business, Pinsent was recruited by a fellow actor to perform in a local radio play in Winnipeg, Manitoba. The production? A classic collection of short stories portraying man's conquest of and life on the planet Mars, titled The Martian Chronicles.

"I would do different characters each week for each show," recalls Pinsent fondly. "I loved the Bradbury stuff. That was the first and last time I was in touch with his writing and so on until this particular situation. When I was asked to take part in ["The Earthmen" episode of Ray Bradbury Theater], I recognized immediately that this was probably one of those shows I had done on radio. I recognized immediately the textures and the type of people involved." Coming full circle with Bradbury because of that long-ago radio series, Pinsent was tapped as the lead Martian in "The Earthmen," opposite David Birney as the arriving astronaut. "I liked it," says Pinsent. However, "When I arrived [to film the episode] I was looking mainly For story. I wondered how faithful it would be to Bradbury. It was fine. From a standpoint of story, where it was coming from and all that, I thought, 'Well, .can you really go wrong with Ray Bradbury?' And certainly, he scripted it. And all that was reason enough to do it. But certain production qualities were not where they should have been. Whatever production values missed or whatever other things that might be missed, there was not that much concern of mine afterwards because I was such a fan of Bradbury.

"I don't know what I expected. When they say 'Martian,' you never know which way they're going to go with that. But knowing Bradbury, it's probably not going to be too extreme. Through his writing, he suggests something fairly normal. Of course there would be things to separate the Martians from the Earthmen, but at the same time, there was nothing too extreme in facial changes and so on. It had this terrific audacity to be dry and satiric. I just found it to be highly interesting."

In the end, the episode was completed to everyone's satisfaction. "You come away with some joy out of it, because it was Ray Bradbury and he was going to give you something before you left," says Pinsent. "It wasn't going to be a cheap experience. Again, my interest in Ray Bradbury himself kept me aware and alert." Admirers of Bradbury for the series alone (not even counting his many books) are worldwide, because at this writing, the show is seen in 40 countries—Spain, France, England and Italy are among a few—and episodes will probably continue running for many years to come.

For Canadian directors Randy Bradshaw and Brad Turner, working on Ray Bradbury Theater was a creatively enriching and productive experience. Bradshaw recalls that one segment he directed, "And the Moon Be Still as Bright" (a Martian Chronicles story starring David Carradine and Kenneth Welsh), was "almost like a Western. It had very little action. Ray's dialogue is so unique. It's like a stream-of-consciousness poetry sometimes. I found it quite enchanting. I'm so glad things like that get broadcast, so people who might not ordinarily be exposed to writing of that kind do get a chance to look at it."

Brad Turner's first episode was "Gotcha." "Basically it was about a couple that were falling in love," he explains. "The woman [played by Kate Lynch, starring opposite Saul Rubinek] mentions a game called 'Gotcha,' and he doesn't know what she's talking about. They go to a sleazy hotel, they check in, and she starts playing the game, it's very odd. But really, [she's] playing on his personal paranoia and psyche ... and what Ray Bradbury was going for was the fact that you're your own personal paranoia and your own personal strengths and weaknesses.... The game has nothing to do with the player who initiates it. It's all got to do with your own inner self, playing games upon itself, and what ends up happening is he's just completely wiped out by this game because of his own personal fears. It takes him to the brink. It sends him over the edge. And he imagines things that aren't happening. And she basically turns into someone that scares him, and he never recovers.

"It's an interesting piece because it really has no ending. And although we tried to give it an ending, Ray Bradbury wasn't all that interested in us making an ending. He wanted it to be dot, dot, dot. And most audience members, after they watch it, go, 'What was that?' Which is good filmmaking in my opinion. Really, there should be a message or there should be something at the end that makes you go back and reflect upon the entire story rather than dwell on what's ... ambiguous. It's a very good show. It was also good because it helped my career a lot. I did three Bradbury's, and you couldn't have three [more] different shows if you tried. They are so unique and so different in every way."

The other two were "Exorcism" and "The Veldt," the latter a story from The Illustrated Man. When Turner completed "Exorcism," Bradbury wrote to Turner expressing how pleased he was with the show. "Finally!" says Turner. "We had a film he felt really worked. [It was] what he imagined the story was. It's very different than anything else I would have imagined he would've liked. It's totally opposite. It was fascinating." "The Veldt" tells the story of a family of the future living in a magical house where the nursery is a holographic projection room. In this nursery, the family's two children have conjured up an African veldt containing lions—with which they will wreak a terrible revenge on the parents who have showered them with material goods instead of love.

Malcolm Stewart, who played the father of the family opposite Lou Grant's Linda Kelsey, remembers being on set of the segment. "I really liked the idea of a futuristic abode that we're all put in. As far as actually doing it, it was technically very difficult for both Linda and myself, as you can well imagine; the lions and all those things weren't really there, and they had to superimpose that on a blue screen. So we had to imagine in our performances all of that happening. I thought it was a terrific treatment of his short story. "Bradbury always writes that imagination is a very, very powerful thing," adds Stewart. "Anything is possible with the imagination. I think Bradbury is a great believer that you can get there in the mind if you can't get there physically!"

One interesting thing about this segment is that we never see the outside of the Hadley's home. All the drama takes place inside the house. "That's true," laughs Stewart. "It was probably written that way for a reason. It has ... a lot to do with how we did the shooting. We got everything we needed. Everything electronic was taken care of, and everything was computerized." "The Veldt" was filmed previously as part of the 1969 feature The Illustrated Man with Rod Steiger. It's known that Bradbury was unhappy with that incarnation, suggesting a reason why this segment was filmed again.

Evaluating Brad Turner's direction of "The Veldt," Stewart says, "Brad is good at visually imagining what he wants, as most good directors do. Before the camera ever starts filming, he has a really solid idea of what he wants the finished product to look like. In that respect he's a very good director for getting it done on time and getting a good quality product. ... He hires actors that he knows will give him a performance in the right role. He's not going to spend a lot of time giving direction to the actor. If there's a problem, he certainly knows how to give a performer direction. Some directors don't know how to do that. I call them traffic cops. They just tell you where to move, where to go, and if there's a problem with a particular interpretation, they don't know how to push the right button to make you change that interpretation or get what they want. Brad makes you think about what you're doing."

Another one of The Ray Bradbury Theater's many directors is a familiar name to television audiences who remember The Rockford Files: Stuart Margolin. Not only did Margolin act in one of the New Zealand-filmed segments titled "Sun and Shadow," he directed the earlier "Utterly Perfect Murder," starring the actor veteran Richard Kiley, who was nominated for an Emmy in 1992 for his role in this episode.

"[Ray Bradbury] was extremely fond of the segment I directed," recalls Margolin. "I'm aware of his plays and a great many of his short stories, and I had a good time directing the segment in Edmonton. It was funny. A lot of the crew, when they read the script, thought this one was going to be a weak one. [But when we finished filming] they thought the show turned out to be one of the better ones. So, I'm very proud of it."

"Utterly Perfect Murder" is about Doug Spalding, a man reaching his forty-eighth birthday, who remains haunted by childhood memories of fighting with a bully. He becomes determined to lay the images to rest by returning to his hometown. As Spalding reaches the bully's home ideas of committing the perfect murder come to mind. I thought it was simple and to the point," says Margolin of "Murder's" script. "This man was blaming a lot of his own personal spiritual failure on a relationship he had when he was a child, a bully that had broken his heart in not letting him run around with the gang and also pushing him around. Then, at the moment when it becomes time for revenge, he realizes this man has grown up much more pathetic than he has. So he becomes thankful that he has the position he's in.

"Richard Kiley is a good actor and a very underrated one. People who saw Man of La Mancha will tell you that was one of the great theatrical experiences they ever had." Giving final thoughts on "Murder," Margolin says, "We accomplished dramatizing a story that, on paper, didn't seem to be as fulfilling as it turned out to be. It's one of the things I directed that I did a lot with." Richard Flower is an assistant director who had the unique opportunity, on the episode "Banshee," to work with the famed Lawrence of Arabia actor, Peter O'Toole. Flower paints O'Toole as something of an arrogant, over-the-top fellow not unlike the character he was portraying, a character loosely based on director John Huston.

"Peter O'Toole is quite an incredible actor. He really impressed me," says Flower. "He used to do this warm-up routine. And the first time he did it he scared half of the crew to death! He would come in and just before we were about to roll, he would make this incredible roaring sound, sort of like a lion's roar. He did it to warm up and get his throat ready."

Flower also describes what he calls a "power play" that O'Toole put on the crew. "The first scene we did, involved him walking straight toward the camera, and the camera was supposed to pull back and pan to the left as he walked into another room," explains Flower. "We rehearsed it, and and it went fine. Then, when it came time to shoot it, all of a sudden, when he was coming toward the camera, he came at an incredible pace, much faster than he did in rehearsal. He zoomed right by us, and we missed the shot. When the cameraman told him he walked past too quickly, Peter O'Toole said to him, 'I'm the actor in the scene, you have to follow me!' He said it very directly, and we got the idea that we'd better be on our guard."

One of the Ray Bradbury Theater producers was Jonathan Goodwill. Attached to Atlantis Films, one of the series' financial partners Goodwill assisted the show by developing the scripts to the point where pre-production could start.

"I supervise the production, the editing, listen to the music; I look at everything from the inception of a particular episode through to its delivery," says Goodwill. "The interesting thing about [this job] is it's never the same thing twice. There's always fresh challenges. There's always something interesting to do. What we do on various levels is that we're storytellers. Bradbury is a storyteller, and when you produce, direct, or act in a show, you're a storyteller. And everything is subserving to tell that story."

Goodwill admits that sometimes a lot of juggling is required to satisfy both an audience and an author looking over his shoulder. However, he says, "to a certain degree the author is more important than the audience and the needs of the network. This is an unusual case because it's a famous living author and he requires certain approvals to the content of the series, and to satisfy him, contractually, to keep him onboard, to keep the series going perfect. [But] he also satisfies the audience in telling stories. There's always ... a balancing act."

Goodwill says that sometimes everyone will agree on an approach, but in other efforts, they may not. "It requires some diplomacy on this particular kind of adaptation," he notes. Before any stories are drawn from Bradbury's large storehouse of fantasy and science fiction shorts, all parties have to agree which ones qualify for a filmed, half-hour adaptation. "We make lists at the start of each season," explains Bradbury. "I make a list of 12 stories. My wife makes one. My best friend makes one. My agent makes one. Atlantis Films makes one. And USA makes one. We put together these six or seven lists and we all agree. We don't just list 12, we do 18 as well. We all agree on most of the stories. Automatically, good stories are bound to come up. "Toynbee Convector" was one. There have been no fights."

Goodwill points out another unusual aspect of being involved in an anthology series with a literary giant: "We come from different point of views. I may find a compelling story, but that may not be the most interesting thing for Bradbury. When you don't have a famous living author involved, the director's point of view might be different from the producer's, or the writer's, or the actors might have a different take on a role in the way you envisioned it. It [goes] to another level when you have a famous living author. That's another one of the challenges."

Goodwill confesses to having been intimidated in the beginning because of this "other level," and admits, "It gets complicated. On the other hand, you have this great author, and his fabulous stories are source material. That comes with the territory. You have to make it work. "The interesting thing about Bradbury is that his stories are so visual. It's not like Twilight Zone or Alfred Hitchcock Presents where stories are always linear. Bradbury's stuff is always very evocative. It has to do with emotions, memories. Television at large is driven more by linear status, rather than character. All good drama is character driven. You get into something like "The Day It Rained Forever," which is absolutely, truly character driven. That's the Bradbury world: provocative, moody, childhood memories, fears, and the subconscious. The challenge is to make that compelling."

Adapting from the printed page to the screen has its own unique problems, but the transition can be easier than usual when the source material is strong. "And some of it is our skill at selecting the stories and adapting them," notes Goodwill. "Finding the right characters to play them, finding the right directors to shoot them, it's all part of making a television show; [finding] art directors, cinematographers, editors, composers, all these people. It could also be pure luck, being at the right place at the right time. [The series] has really grown with the cable evolution in the United States. Suddenly there is a demand for more product. And product that's different from conventional cable. And this kind of fit the bill it was literary and it has a certain element of highbrow; at the same time it was tremendously popular literature."

Success of this show, explains Goodwill, is not defined by ratings. "It's very respected. It gets its share of critical acclaim and nomination of awards. It's an attraction for the broadcasters. Ray Bradbury found the experience of working on his very own show to be an interesting one; it was an opportunity to take advantage of certain things technology had to offer. Never before had filmmaking been so easy."

"I worked alone and I worked away from everybody, and they were all in Canada, and the productions were done—four in Paris and four in London and a number in Alberta and New Zealand," says Bradbury. "The whole enterprise is science fiction. ... We communicated across the world with my scripts, and we could make changes in a few minutes because of the FAX machine. Just a few years ago, you would have to wait three or four days from the other side to go back and forth. They send me video cassettes of every show so that I go to the nearest studio and run the pictures and call them and criticize them. And I say, 'This needs changing or that needs some work,' etc. But this is one of the few times in history where someone has produced a film across the world."

Explaining why the show had to end after 65 episodes, Randy Bradshaw says that producing a television series requires financing and that it is "a question of how far out [do you want to finance]? It's their bank account that determines whether they stop or go." Producer Jonathan Goodwill blames it on burnout: "After 65 shows we're all exhausted. There's a limited number that works as television dramas of which rights are available to." But Bradbury responds more to the point: "Well, how long do you want the series to go? I've got other things to do. I've got a screenplay for an animated film to finish, I have a novel to complete, short stories, two articles to write."

In the end, does Ray Bradbury feel vindicated after all these years of having his work maligned by other artists and by critics who say his works are not adaptable to film? Perturbed, Bradbury responds: "They've always been wrong! Because I'm the most cinematic of writers living today! I love film! I love cinema! A lot of these people don't understand motion pictures! ... My mother was in love with motion pictures, so she took me to the movies two or three times a week. When I was three years old, five years old, then when I was older, then I went at least twice a week. And I saw anywhere from six to 15 films a week. I swam in them, I drowned in them. So, it shows in my writing."

My short stories, my novels, if you take a single page of one of my novels and look at it, each paragraph is a shot, an angle. When I had a meeting with Sam Peckinpah 20 years ago when I first met him, he wanted to do Something Wicked This Way Comes and I said, 'Sam, how are you going to do it?' And he said, 'Tear a few pages of your book and stuff it in the camera.' And he was exactly right. If you do that, you can adapt my stories. These people who think I can't be adapted, just haven't read me. Because I deal in metaphors. It's part of my life and style. But if you shift the metaphors, they say you can't do this way because it's too subliminal. Well, this is not true.

"When I give you an action, beautiful and metaphorically, as you might say, you're writing haiku for the screen. And that's what we have with my series, and the series really works. It's out of a page and right to the screen." Having received so little satisfaction from film adaptations of his works in the past, Bradbury particularly relishes the success of The Ray Bradbury Theatre. "Wherever I go," he says, "people tell me how much they like them. There's plenty of room out there; there's Hitchcock Serling and myself. The average is very high, out of 65 shows, only four were outright clinkers. But that's got to be expected. No series that I know has ever been perfect. Sometimes it's the casting, sometimes it's the directing. But you say, 'Well, there it is! Let's look at all the good stuff.'"

Emmy Awards

Outstanding Guest Actor in a Drama Series - Nominees: "Ray Bradbury Theatre, The" (1985) - Harold Gould For playing "The Old Man". For episode "To The Chicago Abyss". (1990)

WR. Ray Bradbury.

DIR. Ralph L. Thomas, Paul Lynch, Tom Cotter, Bruce McDonald, David Copeland, John Laing, Randy Bradshaw, Bruce Pittman, Wayne Tourell, Peter Sharp and Grame Campbell.

EPISODES: 65 YEAR MADE: 1985 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 6

ATLANTIS FILMS LTD/ JOHN WILCOCK PRODUCTIONS INC/ GRANADA TELEVISION PRODUCTION.

CREATOR: RAY BRADBURY

TYPE OF SHOW: ANTHOLOGY

FORMAT: ANTHOLOGY

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 3, (2) 3, (3) 12, (4) 11, (5) 12, (6) 23

DATE OF PREMIER: 21/05/1985 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 31/10/1992

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Host RAY BRADBURY, Including JEFF GOLDBLUM, DREW BARRYMORE, PETER O'TOOLE, MICHAEL IRONSIDE, ROBERT VAUGHN, DONALD PLESENCE, DENHOLM ELLIOT AND BARRY MORSE.

RELATED SHOWS:

MARTIAN CHRONICLES, THE

1 - 1 MARIONETTES. INC.

Charles Braling is a computer salesman who receives a cryptic message on his computer screen. Later he receives the same message in a newspaper and on a lunch bill. He tracks down source of the messages and meets a man who offers to sell him a robot replica of himself.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Paul Lynch

1 - 2 THE PLAYGROUND

When Charles Underhill was a boy, he was tormented by neighborhood bullies. When his son begins playing in a local playground, he becomes deeply disturbed when he sees a bully from his youth.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir William Fruet

1 - 3 THE CROWD

A neon sign artist named Joe Spelliner is injured in a car crash and sees a crowd of onlookers quickly gather. Days later he sees another car crash and notices that again the same crowd quickly gathers. He begins to investigate a series of accidents and news footage reveals that the same crowd arrives at every scene. What's more, Joe notices that the faces in the crowd match photographs of people at the city morgue.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Ralph L. Thomas

2 - 1 THE TOWN WHERE NO ONE GOT OFF

A city resident's idealistic view of rural life is shattered when a train drops him off at an unscheduled stop.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Don McBrearty

2 - 2 THE SCREAMING WOMAN

A girl can't convince anyone that she hears a screaming woman.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Bruce Pittman

2 - 3 BANSHEE

An offbeat film director terrifies a writer with larger-than-life ghost stories.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Douglas Jackson

3 - 1 THE FRUIT AT THE BOTTOM OF THE BOWL

A careless murderer contemplates his crime.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Gilbert M. Shilton

3 - 2 SKELETON

A hypochondriac goes to a bone specialist for a cure to his latest ailment.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Steve DiMarco

3 - 3 THE EMISSARY

A lonely, bedridden boy sends his dog on a quest to locate a companion for him.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Sturla Gunnarsson

3 - 4 GOTCHA!

A playful couple plan a romantic getaway.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Brad Turner

3 - 5 THE MAN UPSTAIRS

A lodger with unusual hobbies keeps little Douglas awake at night.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Alain Bonnot

3 - 6 THE SMALL ASSASSIN

A woman is terrorized by her new born infant.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Tom Cotter

3 - 7 PUNISHMENT WITHOUT CRIME

A man contracts to have an android made to look exactly like the wife he hates.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Bruce Macdonald

3 - 8 ON THE ORIENT, NORTH

A nurse gives aid to a ghost on a transcontinental train trip and escorts him to his final destination.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Frank Cassenti

3 - 9 THE COFFIN

An aging inventor builds a custom designed casket as his final creation.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Tom Cotter

3 - 10 TYRANNOSAURUS REX

A film animator sculpts a monster for a tyrannical movie director's latest film.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Gilles Behat

3 - 11 THERE WAS AN OLD WOMAN

Elderly Matilda isn't ready to die when Death arrives to carry her off in a wicker basket.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Bruce Macdonald

3 - 12 AND SO DIED RIABOUCHSKA

A murder has been committed in a famous theater. A detective questions ventriloquist John Fabian, his wife, his agent, and Riabouchinska, Fabian's dummy. Riabouchinska's comments on the case lead the detective to another line of questioning. He discovers a story concerning a vanishing assistant, long-concealed love, blackmail and murder.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Denys Granier-Deferre

4 - 1 THE DWARF

The dreams of a dwarf turn into a showman's nightmare.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Costa Botes

4 - 2 A MIRACLE OF RARE DEVICE

A cruel man tries to ruin a desert mirage.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Roger Tompkins

4 - 3 THE LAKE

A man returns to the lake where years before he had a childhood sweetheart.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Pat Robins

4 - 4 THE WIND

After he learns their secret, a man is followed by violent winds.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Grahame McLean

4 - 5 THE PEDESTRIAN

A man's night-time walks are considered subversive in a world of the future.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Alin Bollinger

4 - 6 A SOUND OF THUNDER

A man travels into the past to hunt a dinosaur.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Costa Botes

4 - 7 THE WONDERFUL DEATH OF DUDLEY STONE

A famous fiction writer fakes his own death.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir David Copeland

4 - 8 THE HAUNTING OF THE NEW

A man is offered a mansion over the phone. The one condition is whether the mansion wants him.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Roger Tompkins

4 - 9 TO THE CHICAGO ABYSS

In the future, a man tells stories of the "good old days" of the past.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Randy Bradshaw

4 - 10 HAIL AND FAREWELL

Willie, a young boy who cannot grow up, has been spending his life going from family to family, staying for a few years, then leaving before anyone finds out. As he is ready to leave his latest home, he tells his "parents" the story of his life, and of all the people he met in the way.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Alan Kroeker

4 - 11 THE VELDT

Two children revolt against their parents by using the power of their magical nursery.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Brad Turner

4 - 12 BOYS! RIASE GIANT MUSHROOMS IN YOUR CELLAR!

A worried father starts to believe that his son's mushroom garden is taking over the neighborhood.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir David Brandes

5 - 1 MARS IS HEAVEN

As the first successful mission to Mars touches ground, the men stare through the mists of the Martian dawn and finds something strange. They find a small town straight out of the American Midwest. Long lost loved ones of the crew greet the space travelers. The question is simple: "Is this heaven or a Martian built hell?"

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir John Laing

5 - 2 THE MURDERER

Arthur Brock loathes noise. He prefers perfect silence. He goes around destroying the instruments of sound: radios, wrist watches, faxes, etc. His destruction of sound-infected environments at work and home lands him in a psychiatric institution.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Roger Tompkins

5 - 3 TOUCHED WITH FIRE

Two men who theorize that murder only happen in hot weather, try to stop one.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Roger Tompkins

5 - 4 THE BLACK FERRIS

Two friends think that there is something strange with an old man and a young boy who show up when the carnival comes to town.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Roger Tompkins

5 - 5 USHER II

When his government bans imagination, a man rebels.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Lee Tamahori

5 - 6 TOUCH OF PETULANCE

A man encounters another claiming to be his future self.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir John Laing

5 - 7 AND THE MOON BE STILL AS BRIGHT

Space explorers on a Martian expedition are faced with problems when one of their members becomes obsessed with the planets former residents.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Randy Bradshaw

5 - 8 THE TOYNBEE CONVERTER

A man tim travels to the future and returns to show the people what they have to look forward to.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir John Laing

5 - 9 EXORCISM

A woman takes a strange potion in order to get rid of a witch.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Brad Turner

5 - 10 THE DAY IS RAINED FOREVER

The music of a free spirited woman brings rain to a town suffering from drought.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Randy Bradshaw

5 - 11 THE LONG YEARS

A crew of a spaceship return to Mars after a 20 year absence to discover a scientist and his family unaffected by their stay.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Paul Lynch

5 - 12 HERE THERE BE TYGERS

Unbeknown to an explorer, the Utopia like world he has discovered has yet to unleash its deadly forces.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir John Laing

6 - 1 THE EARTHMEN

Members of an expedition to Mars find their intelligence questioned by the local inhabitants.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Graeme Campbell

6 - 2 ZERO HOUR

A group of 8 year olds rally around an invisible person who promises them the world.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Don McBrearty

6 - 3 THE JAR

A backwoods man impresses the townfolk with a mysterious jar.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Randy Bradshaw

6 - 4 COLONEL STONESTEEL AND THE 'DESPERATE EMPTIES'

A boy discovers Egyptian remains on an Illinois farm.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Randy Bradshaw

6 - 5 THE CONCRETE MIKER

A Martian's reluctance to attack Earth stems from what he read in his alien comic books.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Eleanore Lindo

6 - 6 THE UTTERLY PERFECT MURDER

A man seeks revenge on a bully from his childhood.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Stuart Margolin

6 - 7 LET'S PLAY POISON

A teacher worries that his students are trying to kill him.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Bruce Pittman

6 - 8 THE MARTIAN

New life welcomes greiving parents who move to Mars.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Anne Wheeler

6 - 9 THE LONELY ONE

Several women try to decide whether to walk to a movie since there is a serial killer on the loose. Although her companions disagree, one of the women insists.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Ian Mune

6 - 10 THE HAPPINESS MACHINE

One day a man wakes up and decides to build a happiness machine. Much to his wife's dismay it becomes an obsession.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir John Laing

6 - 11 TOMORROW'S CHILD

A malfunctioning birth machine delivers a strange child.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Costa Botes

6 - 12 THE HANDLER

A mortician sends people to the grave with a little extra.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Peter Sharp

6 - 13 GREAT WIDE WORLD OVER THERE

An illiterate woman is taught to read by her nephew.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Ian Mune

6 - 14 FEE FIE FOE FUM

A mother becomes worried when her son-in-law installs a new garbage disposal in the house.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir John Reid

6 - 15 THE ANTHEM SPRINTERS

An American tourist is involved in an Irish sporting event.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Wayne Tourell

6 - 16 BY THE NUMBERS

On a train a man learns the truth about a boy and a drill sergeant father he met years ago at a Hotel Pool.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Wayne Tourell

6 - 17 THE LONG RAIN

When a spaceship crash lands on a world where it never stops raining, the survivors try to reach the Sundome that has been erected on the planet.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Lee Tamahori

6 - 18 THE DEAD MAN

A lonely manicurist befriends a man who claims to be dead.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Costa Botes

6 - 19 SUN AND SHADOWS

A photographer uses a run-down neighborhood for atmosphere.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Larry Parr

6 - 20 SILENT TOWNS

The last man on Mars after an evacuation seeks the last woman on Mars.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Lee Tamahori

6 - 21 DOWNWIND FORM GETTYSBURG

A robot Abraham Lincoln is assassinated.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Chris Bailey

6 - 22 SOME LIVE LIKE LAZARUS

A fiance promises marriage upon his mother's death.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Peter Sharp

6 - 23 THE TOMBSTONE

A woman thinks her apartment building is haunted.

Wr Ray Bradbury

Dir Warrick Attewell

READ ALL ABOUT IT! (inc. READ ALL ABOUT IT! PART 2)

When three kids explore a coach house held by a missing Uncle of one of the kids, they discover far more than they bargained. They discover two robots, Otto and Theta, who tell them about a dire threat of a conspiracy against the town. By accident, they also discover a teleport machine that can take them to planet Trialveron controlled by the alien tyrant, Duneedon. Against this threat, the kids decide to use the coach-house as the base for a community newspaper both to keep the building and investigate the conspiracy. Along the way, they learn about writing and its various practical uses as they fight the alien forces that oppose them.

Season One Credits

Writer - Clive Endersby, Music - Eric Robertson, Set Design - Chris Adeney, Graphics - Keillor Film Industries, Joyce Cosby, Susan Tsang, Animation - Trickett Productions Limited , Special Effects - Keillor Film Industries , Props - M. Yano-Shuttleworth, Ann Beeton, Bill Ives, Wardrobe - Ethel Clinert, Juul Haalmeyer, Jan Humphrey, Technical Director - Jim Anderson, Lighing Director - Alf Hunter , Audio Record & Mix - Paul Simpson, George Claridge
 Videotape Editor - Bob Baker, Film Camera/Lighting - Ken Post, Film Sound - Stuart French, Ian Blackford , Educational Supervisors - Ruth Vernon, Jennifer Harvey , Production Manager - Wally Teska, Production Assistants - Ellie Joliat, Diane Darlington, Producer - Director - Jeremy Pollock.

Season Two Credits

Music: Eric Robertson, Recorded & Mixed at: Manta Sound by Hayward Parrott, Set Design: Chris Adeney, Graphics: Tom Pilsworth, Joyce Cosby, Maxine Cowan, Pat Cupples, Susan Tsang Special Effects: Keillor Film Industries, "Otto" Programmer - Stella Etherington, Props: Nadia Salnick, M. Yano-Shuttleworth, Wardrobe: Ethel Glinert, Janine Mather-Dean, Lorraine Cramp, Make-up: Diane Rowe, Technical Director: Jim Anderson, Lighting Director: Alf Hunter, Lighting Assistant: Ken Luxmore, Studio Director: Peter Newman, Cameras: Roger Lauzon, Ted Hart, Vic Newman, John Dynes, Ian Wahn
 Video: Denis Paul, Mario Resnik, Film Editor: Kevin Townshend, Stagehands: Brian Potts, Peter Roy, David Beswick, Talent Co-ordinator: George Bourne
 Writer: Clive Endersby, Maintenance: Bernt Neuffer, Sound Recording: David Joliat, Audio Record: Gunars Snikvalds, Sound Mix: Tom Hidderley, Audio: David Joliat, Maarten Heilbron, VTR Recording: Bob Gilchrist, Joe Diffa, Videotape Editor: Hank Mol, Film Camera/Lighting: Bob Brooks, Lighting Assistant: Ken Luxmore, Studio Director: Peter Newman, Education Supervisor: Ruth Vernon, Jennifer Harvey, Production Manager: Wally Teska, Michelle Maurice Production Assistant: Ellie Joliat, Producer/Director: Jeremy Pollock.

WR.DIR.*EPISODES: 40 YEAR MADE: 1981 COUNTRY: CAN SEASONS: 2*TV ONTARIOCREATOR: CLIVE ENDERSBYTYPE OF SHOW: TELEPORTATIONFORMAT: SERIESLENGTH (MINS): 0 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: EnglishSEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 20, (2) 20DATE OF PREMIER:*AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE*SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:*FILMS:

Duneedon/Mayor Don Eden SEAN HEWITT, Uncle Derek JAMES IRVING, Ann Blake BARBARA WHEELDON, Black Gloves PETER PARKER, Black Gloves DAN ROSS, Duncan O'Reagan ARCH MCDONNELL, Queen of Hearts LUBA GOY, Mr. Walker CHRIS PALMER, Merlin JOHN DEE, Crystal Couplet KAY HAWTREY
 Barry GEORGE GUTA, Jim ROBERT YACKNIN, Captain Hook GORDON MASTEN, Genie GRANT COWAN, Narrator WILLIAM OSLER, Mistress Maze Voice ANGELA FUSCO, Mistress Maze JUDY SHAPIRO, Agent Nine KEN CAMROUX, Theta's Voice ANGELA FUSCO.

Season Two

The Soldier ROD CLOSS, Sir Isaac Brock DAVID SCHURMANN, Jenkins DAVE MACKENZIE, Fort Personnel DAN GLENNEY, Fort Personnel CHRIS LOFF, Fort Personnel MARK MASCARI, Fort Personnel SYLVIA SCOTT, Susan Alderman - Fort Personnel SUSAN ALDERMAN, John Norton GRAHAM GREENE, Laura Secord SAMANTHA LANGEVIN, The Soldier GEORGE HOWSE, Book Destroyer's Voice EDWINA FOLLOWS, Cinderella's Voice ANGELA FUSCO, The Mirror MICHAEL JAMES, Evil Queen JOYCE GORDON, The Wolf DON MCQUARRIE, Dracula A. FRANK RUFFO, Rip Van Winkles ROBERT WINDSOR, Rita Zakowski SUSAN MITCHELL, Mr. Ernest Wetherby DESMOND SCOTT, Librarian MALIKA MENDEZ, Crystal Couplet KAY HAWTREY, Emperor Tritan JACK ARMSTRONG, Narrator WILLIAM OSLER.

Books Based on this series.

READ ALL ABOUT IT!

CLIVE ENDERSBY

1 - 1 COACH HOUSE

Chris visits a house he will eventually inherit and meets two mysterious robots. Together they discover an outrageous intergalactic conspiracy.

1 - 2 THE STRANGER

The three friends say they are using the house to publish a newspaper; The Hebertville Chronicle. Suddenly Samantha and Lynne find themselves wheeling through space.

1 - 3 PROBLEM PIT

Samantha and Lynne meet Duneedon and become trapped in the Problem Pit

1 - 4 ACCIDENTAL VISITOR

The Queen of Hearts tumbles out of the transporter by mistake and Chris discovers her identity in the library.

1 - 5 THE FIRST EDITION

An unknown intruder tries to prevent publication of the Chronicle.

1 - 6 THE STOLEN MESSAGE

Chris and Samantha intercept a message from Duneedon ordering the Chronicle stopped.

1 - 7 STRANGE DISCOVERIES

Lynne discovers that the Mayor of Hebertville is none other than Duneedon himself.

1 - 8 'TIS MAGIC

Merlin the Magician uses his magic powers to send Chris and Lynne to Trialviron.

1 - 9 RHYMETIME

In Trialviron, Chris and Lynne meet the poet, Doctor Crystal Couplet, who helps them reach the Place of Change.

1 - 10 THE PLACE OF CHANGE

After Lynne and Chris escape from Trialviron, they help Sam with the second edition of the Chronicle.

1 - 11 VOICES IN THE PARK

Lynne interviews a company of actors. An oldtimer, Mr. Walker, tells her about a mysterious house five decades ago. (Lynne spends much time NOT delivering papers in this episode)

1 - 12 AN EVL PIRATE

The transporter suddenly produces an irate Captain Hook, who creates a few tense moments for the kids.

1 - 13 SEEK AND SPEAK

Lynne writes a speech to help preserve King's Park. Sam and Chris are trapped in an old factory by Duneedon and his agents.

1 - 14 CLOSER TO THE TRUTH

Lynne finds out about the mysterious Manor House fire. Sam and Chris find a document the evil Duneedon forged to grab control of the city park.

1 - 15 TIME FOR ACTION

The three friends put together a new edition of the paper and Lynne gives her speech to save the park.

1 - 16 TO THE RESCUE

Chris sends a message that he's trapped on Trialviron. The genie from Aladdin's lamp transports Sam and Lynne to the Shifting Sands

1 - 17 PICTURE IN YOUR MIND

Doctor Couplet helps send Sam and Lynne to the Planet of Maze.

1 - 18 THE PLANET OF MAZE

Lynne and Sam help Chris and his uncle escape from the Planet of Maze by answering riddling questions.

1 - 19 SPECIAL EDITION

The police round up Duneedon's agents. A special edition of the Chronicle exposes the conspiracy.

1 - 20 THE SHOWDOWN

When Duneedon tries to destroy Otto and Theta and trap Lynne and Sam, he is outfoxed and sent on a one-way trip to Trialviron.

2 - 1 ANNIVERSARY

The Herbertville Chronicle celebrates its first anniversary and the group is introduced to the "two-way" communication device (Team gets a crossword, note they never finish it)

2 - 2 BACK IN TIME

Chris and Sam find an old chart at the spot where the mysterious boy dematerialized and send a picture of it back to Lynne, who begins researching clues.

2 - 3 GENERAL BROCK

When General Brock finds Sam and Chris in his room, he has a hard time believing they are from the future and are not American spies. Once convinced, he offers to help them.

2 - 4 JOURNEY TO QUEENSTON

Sam and Chris meet an Indian named John Norton, who leads them towards Queenston and then leaves them in the care of his compatriot, Laura Secord.

2 - 5 DEATH AT DAWN

Sam and Chris finally manage to save the young stranger, and the three time-travellers narrowly escape being caught in the War of 1812.

2 - 6 A PLEA FOR HELP

After learning what their names mean from Otto and Theta, they hear a voice calling for help from the pages of Cinderella. They magically disappear into Book World to attempt a rescue.

2 - 7 WHERE VILLAINS ROAM

In their search for the Book Destroyer, Lynne and Alex must deal with both the "Mirror on the Wall" and the wicked queen from Snow White.

2 - 8 ?

2 - 9 THE BOOK DESTROYER

The Book Destroyer traps Lynne and Alex in her mine and says they must help her erase all villains from books.

2 - 10 PROBLEMS

Chris and Samantha work on an advertisement to rent her house. Samantha is distressed and touchy at having to leave Herbertville.

2 - 11 THE FINAL DAY

Sam and Rita become fast friends and Sam promises to write from Victoria about her new experiences.

2 - 12 A NEW BEGINNING

Rita surprises Sam with the news that she is writing a book based on Sam's move to Victoria.

2 - 13 MANY DIFFERENT STORIES

Chris comes back from the library with a copy of "The Shooting of Dan McGrew". Lynne and Alex help him devise a fantastic story for Rita.

2 - 14 THE REMARKABLE MR. WETHERBY

Just when Chris and Lynne think they are having a dull summer, an unusual visitor turns up at the Coach House. It is the ghost of Mr. Wetherby.

2 - 15 ONE GHOST TOO MANY

Chris and Lynne are having a hard time coping with Mr. Wetherby's strict supervision. They research the former principal's likes and dislikes and embark on a scheme to get rid of him.

2 - 16 THE FORCE

Chris, Alex and Lynne are reading a letter from Sam when they receive an urgent message from Trialviron.

2 - 17 CHOICES

After realizing they are the only ones who can save the people of Trialviron, Lynne, Alex, and Chris set two conditions before agreeing to help.

2 - 18 THE AMBASSADORS

Alex and Chris arrive on the planer Trivia and discover a strange tunnel (some great pyro in this episode)

2 - 19 TRAPPED

Alex and Chris work hard to get everyone off Trialviron, then discover that Duneedon has tricked them(more great pyro).

2 - 20 FINAL MOMENTS

It looks as if Chris, Alex, and Lynne will vanish with the rest of Trialviron unless someone shows up to help them. An unexpected visitor arrives at the Coach House, and Otto and Theta print out instructions to save their friends.(Fire and explosions galore!)

REALLY WEIRD TALES

Anthology series which covers science fiction. In "I'll Die Loving", a woman believes she is an orphan until she discovers that she has awesome powers of destruction. "Cursed and Charisma", the people of Fitchville are all depressed about life and the sad state of the town, that is until a huge albino turns up in town, with the power of positive thinking. Finally in "All's Well That Ends Strange", a girlie magazine published discovers that his girls are really robots programming to act like humans.

Trio of fantasy stories from Canada unimaginatively screened in the UK as Mystery Theatre. Really Weird Tales is a stablemate of Atlantis Films' The Ray Bradbury Theatre - which has also been buried in the ITV schedules - and the three stories so far seen in Britain present an amiable balance of humour and fantasy with comic actors John Candy (Planes, Trains and Automobiles) and Martin Short (The Three Amigos) among the stars. They certainly deserve better than 4.00 on a Friday morning which is where Thames Television played them in the London area.

Although it was produced by and starred the people responsible for SCTV. Really Weird Tales falls a bit short from its goals. All three episodes were first broadcast on First Choice as a 90 minute TV movie. For reruns and subsequent broadcasts on HBO in the United States the episodes have been shown separately.

The executive producers for the show were Michael MacMillian and Joe Flaherty. Producers for the show were Seaton McLean and Pat Whitley, the theme was composed by Fred Mollin. All the episodes were written by Joe & David Flaherty, with Catherine O'Hara in "I'll Die Loving", she also starred in the episode and John McAndrew who helped write "Cursed with Charisma". Joe Flaherty was also one of the writers for MANIC MANSION, a Canadian SF comedy show.

WR. Joe and David Flaherty.

DIR. John Blenhard, Don McBrearty and Paul Lynch

EPISODES: 3 YEAR MADE: 1987 COUNTRY: CAN SEASONS: 1

AN ATLANTIS FILMS LTD PRODUCTION FOR HOME BOX OFFICE

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: ANTHOLOGY

FORMAT: ANTHOLOGY

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 3

DATE OF PREMIER: 02/02/1987

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 02/02/1987

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS: REALLY WEIRD TALES

Host JOE FLAHERTY including OLIVIA D'ABO, JOHN CANDY.

RELATED SHOWS:

RAY BRADBURY THEATRE, THE

1 - 1 I'LL DIE LOVING

1 - 2 CURSED WITH CHARISMA

1 - 3 ALL'S WELL THAT ENDS STRANGE

RED BARON

AKA: SUPER ROBOT

AKA: SUPER ROBOT RED BARON

The latest robots are gathered from all over the world for the Robot International Exhibition, which is then disrupted by the Iron Mask Party (IMP) led by the evil Deviller. The IMP intend to steal the robots and use them to enslave mankind. Kidnapped by the IMP, robot genius Dr. Kenichiro Kurenai leaves behind the superrobot Red Baron in the care of his brother Ken. IMP demands that he hand over Red Baron but he refuses and is killed. Ken and other members of Secret Science Institute (SSI), who are said to be modern ninja, fight IMP with the aid of Red Baron.

Plot #2

The world is in a technological boom. An exhibition opens in Japan celebrating the robotic achievements of the world. Massive Robots from around the world are showcased and displayed for all to see. Suddenly and without a warning, a mysterious army appears and steals all the robots. This army is under the command of President Devilar and mysterious despot who leads an evil faction called the Tetsumen Tou (Steel Mask Party). Their mission is the total conquest of earth through use of robots.

To this end President Devilar has also kidnapped various scientists to assist him in the 'modifications' of these robots. One of those scientists being targeted is the brilliant Kurenai Kenichiro.

Kenichiro has been working on a secret project to build the most power robot the world has ever seen, here to named Red Baron. He entrusts this secret to only one person, his younger brother Ken, who just so happens to be a member of the elite special forces unit known as SSI (Super Science Institute).

Kenichiro is kidnapped by Tetsumen Tou and has a bomb implanted into his chest. They force him into revealing the location of Red Baron. Before Tetsumen Tou is able to steal Red Baron, Ken activates the robot and uses it to battle the Tetsumen Tou agents and their monster mecha Troy Horse.

For his betrayal, President Devilar detonates the bomb impeded in Kenichiro and kills him before the horrified eyes of Ken.

Often regarded as a live-action version of Mazinger Z, this robot show entered production at roughly the same time. Combining the action of KAMEN RIDER and the stomping battles of ULTRAMAN, the first 26 episodes concern the battle against the IMP, while the final 13 of the first season concentrated on the defeat of the real enemy - The Space Iron Mask Party who has been pulling strings from orbit.

During the "retro boom" of the 1990s, in which old series were brought back in an attempt to sell to children and their nostalgic parents, the franchise made another appearance in the 49- episode anime series Red Baron.

This series was produced by Harutoshi Kawaguchi, Hiroshi Uemura and Seizo Tamura.

Red Baron was followed by MACH BARON then GANBARON.

If any show has ever come close to emulating classic super robot anime like Mazinger-Z or Grandizer in the real world, Super Robot Red Baron is it. The dramatic robot launch sequence and the different enemy robots that appear in each week's episode are in many ways similar to those featured in several of the more popular animated super robot shows of the times in which this program was filmed. It's interesting to note that despite many similarities to some of Go Nagai's robot programs (like the robot launch from an underground bunker, rocket punch weapons and scander-like wings), Red Baron started its television run almost a year before Mazinger-Z revolutionized Japanese animation.

After watching Red Baron I ended up liking it a lot more than its successor, Super Robot Mach Baron, despite my being a long time fan of that program. Red Baron is a more interesting show, with a darker tone than Mach Baron and a better storyline that builds up all the way towards the end in which our hero travels to Mars and discovers a plot by Simp to have the Martian moon Phobos hurled at the Earth, which would result in the destruction of the planet.

The enemy robots that our heroes face every week are also another highlight of this program. Like many of its animated counterparts the robots of the week featured in this series, each have some kind of gimmick or special attack that make them unique from the rest. This makes for some interesting battles between the giant robots as the SSI must figure out a way to dispose of each new enemy machine that appears. The designs for each mecha is also noteworthy and stand as some of the best live action robot designs to be seen in a tokusatsu program, including those used in more modern works like Mikazuki or Gridman.

The other two aspects of this show that make it one of the best in the genre for me are the special effects and the action sequences. For the most part Super Robot Red Baron features amazing special effects and some of the best miniatures work to appear in a giant hero program. The only effects I had any sort of issue with were the scenes in which wire work was used to lift motorcycles and other vehicles in mid-air to make it seem as they were flying. These tend to end up just being silly looking and detract from an otherwise flawless special effects/action presentation.

The action scenes in the program are of particular interest because when combined with the giant robot action, they hint at what would eventually be the most popular Japanese hero genre, Super Sentai. These parts of the each episode feature the SSI aiding Ken (who's usually fighting some giant mechanized monster) by taking on the minions of the Testumen Tou with their land vehicles and using their fighting skills. These scenes are very well done and most of the fighting is done with punches and kicks, no lasers or special effects based weapons. When they vehicles are used many explosions ensue as they traverse enemy territory.

The biggest gripe I have with the Super Robot Red Baron show is the weak soundtrack. It never comes close to being as good as its follow-up (which had one of the greatest tokusatsu openings of all time) or any of the other programs of its day. Despite this, the show still stands out and has made a great impression on me.

Conclusion

Super Robot Red Baron is an older program with some dated special effects, so newer/younger fans might not care for it, but if you like old school tokusatsu or just enjoy a well done science fiction program, Red Baron will not disappoint. Great special effects, good action scenes and fun giant robot battles will make for a fun time with any fan.

Characters

Red Baron

Statistics:

Size/Weight (Metric): 45 Meters/150 Metric Tons Size/Weight (American/British): 147 Ft./165 Tons

Constructed from the metal 'Baron-ium', Red Baron is able to withstand heat with an intensity of 100,000 degrees.

Red Baron Is powered by one million horse-power engines that uses Nuclear Energy for fuel. A special lubrication oil (B.R. 70) is needed for Red Baron to perform properly.

As a method of security, Kurenai Kenichiro designed the cockpit controls to record the fingerprints and 'voice print' of the very first person who takes control of Red Baron. Once recorded that person alone becomes the pilot of Red Baron and no one else.

Red Baron is controlled mainly by voice activation from its pilot. With a voice command of 'Red Baron Shutsudou!' (Red Baron Go!) the robot is activated. With a cry of 'Fight Lever On!' and one simple gear shift, Red Baron can be put into 'Fight Mode'.

Various other voice commands control the armaments and attachments of the robot:

'Baron Punch' - Activates Red Baron's 'Fist Launchers' (i.e. Mazinger Z's Rocket Punch)

'Baron Missiles' - Activates Red Baron's Chest 'Missile Launchers'.

'Baron Beam' - Activates Red Baron's Chest 'Laser Beams'.

'Electro Trigger' - Activates Red Baron's most power weapons, twin canons which shot out over 100 Million Bolts of High Voltage Electricity.

Later in the series Red Baron was equipped with a Jet Harness, which would attach to his back called 'Space Wings'.

Red Baron was also modified with 'Arm Missile' attachments, which he could fire while in-flight.

The 'Drill Missile' was yet another missile attachment Red Baron could be equipped with in space.

SSI

The SSI (Secret Science Institute) is an elite squad of soldiers who are trained in the ancient arts of ninjitsu but utilize hi-tech weaponry and gadgets in their battles (ummm sounds like another team, GatchMan). Taking on unassuming normal disguises and occupations they stand ready to fight the forces of Tetsumen Tou at a moment's notice, donning colorful 'cowboy' inspired uniforms and armed with heavy weapons like bazookas and rocket launchers.

Their 'special' fighting skills enable them to battle the metallic 'Mecha Robos' with ease.

Tetsumen Tou

Lead by the mysterious President Devilar, this 'Steel Mask Party' is devoted to enslaving mankind and having robots rule the world.

Using the stolen robots from other countries, Tetsumen Tou is able to launch a series of attacks again Japan and the World.

President Devilar is attended by an army of artificial men called 'Mecha Robos' whom he has created. The Mecha Robos are human sized robots designed to be the footmen of the Tetsumen Tou Army. They have wicked sickles in the place of hands and have no human features.

The Tetsumen Tou headquarters are located deep below the ocean's surface.

Another faction of the Tetsumen Tou organization is the 'Space Tetsumen Tou'. Lead by the robot Giras Q, they are headquartered on Mars from which they launch their vicious space-based attacks.

Trivia/Factoids

Creator/Producer Nobohiro Yashiro was also responsible for the Tokusatsu Projects, 'Gekko Kamen' (1958), 'Silver Kamen' (1971), 'Silver Kamen Giant' (1972), and 'Iron King' (1973).

Mistakenly perceived as a direct rip-off of Go Nagai's Mazinger Z Anime, the fact is Red Baron was produced almost half a year before the Mazinger Z Anime debuted. None-the-less, Red Baron was able to take advantage of the popularity of Mazinger Z and the robot boom.

Former child star and character actor Hozure Pei Pei (Tobidase! Seishun [Escape! My Youth]) was also in the obscure but seminal Tokusatsu Hero Show 'Megalo Man.'

Tokusatsu Fan Favorite, Maki Rei played Iriei Nami in the 'Outer Limits' like 'Kenkyu Shirei 10-4-10-10' and also high kicking female cop Nagatani Rie in the 'Playgirl' sequel 'Super Gals'.

The beautiful Maki Rei also appeared in episodes of 'InazuMan Flash', 'G-Men '75', 'The Gorilla 7', 'Ninja Captor', 'Taiyo Ni Hoero [Howl at the Sun]', and 'Hatori Hanzo ' Kage No Gundan [Shadow Army]'.

Ushio Tetsuya was also Shishi Maru in the series 'Kaiketsu! Lion Maru' (Resolved! Lion Maru)

THE ROBOTS of TETSUMEN TOU:

The following is a list of the robots that appeared in Red Baron and their national origin. When possible the origins and/or significance of their names are also noted. Most of the robots seem to be named after atypical objects, people or place names associated with the country that they represent:

Robot Name/Origin Country/Name Influence:

Troy Horse (Original) - Possibly based on the Greek Legend.

Big Bison (America)

Black Masai (Kenya) - The Masai are a famous Warrior Tribe in Kenya.

AguGaruda (Indonesia) - Garuda is a place name in Indonesia.

Tobi Ryu (Japan)

Gou Ryu (China)

Viking III (Sweden)

Blizzard 7 (Iceland)

Bedouin G (Arabia) - The Bedouin are a tribe of Sinai Desert.

Vesbios (Italy) - Napoli-Vesbios is a region in Italy.
 Mau Mau (Tanzania) - The Mau Mau are a tribe of the Tanzania/Kenya territory.
 Gu Nizon Ace (Canada) - Nizon may be a place in Canada.
 Elec Amazon (Brazil) - Amazon River
 McKinley V6 (America) - Mt. McKinley (Denali) is a slope in Alaska.
 King Joe Bull (U.K.) - John Bull is the old British caricature equivalent to America's Uncle Sam.
 Proto Andes (Peru) - The Andes are a Mountain Range in Peru.
 Iron Cross G (Germany) - The Iron Cross was a medal of honor in Germany.
 Grand Matador (Spain)
 Rajasthan (India) - Place in India
 Magma Wolf (Japan)
 Sphinx (Egypt) - Taken from the Sphinx
 Escargos (France) - Taken from Escargot (Snails)
 Mongo Star (Mongolia)
 Sky Jack
 King Devilar
 Mars Satan
 Gold Finger
 Bem Panther Nos. 1-3 -
 Donkey One (Japan) -
 Spider Robo
 Dracu Bat
 Deimos Z
 Unnamed Robot

RED BARON spawned a inferior direct sequel called MACH BARON.

During the Retro Anime boom of the 90's, RED BARON was remade into an anime along the lines of GIANT ROBO. Taking its queue from shows such as DRAGON BALL, G - GUNDAM and STREET FIGHTER 2, RED BARON the Animation dealt with the exploits of a hotheaded youth who pilots the 'Metal Fighter' combat robot RED BARON. While the Animated Series was in no way connected in story to the Tokusatsu Series, many familiar names and characters from the series appeared in the anime, albeit with different origins (Kurenai Ken, Tetsumen Tou).

WR. Shozo Uehara, Keisuke Fujikawa.

DIR. Kiyoshi Suzuki, Hirokazu Takano, Toru Sotoyama.

EPISODES: 39 YEAR MADE: 1973 COUNTRY: JAP SEASONS: 1

NIPPON GENDAI/NTV

CREATOR: NOBOHIRO YASHIRO

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 25 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: Japanese

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 39

DATE OF PREMIER: 04/07/1973 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 27/03/1974

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

YOSUKE OKADA, TETSUO KINOSHITA, TOSHI KATO, PEPE HOZUMI, REI MAKI, TETSUYA USHIO, ISAO TAMAGAWA, HIROSHI IKAIIDA, NOBUYUKI ISHIDA, SADAKO AMEMIYA, YOICHI MIYAGAMA, AKIHIKO NAGANO, TOKIO YAJIMA, KUNIHIDE KURUMA.

RELATED SHOWS:

MACH BARON

GANBARON

- 1 - 1 THE ROBOT EMPIRE CONSPIRACY
- 1 - 2 CRASH! BARON BREAK
- 1 - 3 ANDROID X, THE TRUMP CARD
- 1 - 4 DEADLY! THE PHOENIX BATTLE PLAN
- 1 - 5 DEFEATED! THE MYSTERIOUS ROCKET PLAN

-
- 1 - 6 RED BARON OUT OF ACTION
 - 1 - 7 THE SECRET WEAPON IS A RED BALLOON
 - 1 - 8 INVINCIBLE! DEMON LORD OF THE DESERT
 - 1 - 9 STRUGGLE IN THE URANIUM FOG
 - 1 - 10 COUNTER ATTACK! THE DESTRUCTIVE LASER
 - 1 - 11 THE BEAUTIFUL ASSASSIN
 - 1 - 12 PUTTING MY FAITH INTO THIS LAST ATTACK
 - 1 - 13 10 MINUTES TILL THE FIVE CITY EXPLOSION
 - 1 - 14 THE MYSTERY OF THE INVINCIBLE ROBOT
 - 1 - 15 ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE TRAP
 - 1 - 16 TETSUMEN TOU'S ESCAPE CRIME NO. 16 "E"
 - 1 - 17 THE DEVIL'S STORY
 - 1 - 18 WATCH! THE END OF RED BARON
 - 1 - 19 THE BEAUTIFUL ENEMY PILOT
 - 1 - 20 MODIFY THE RED BARON
 - 1 - 21 BEWARE! SSI
 - 1 - 22 RED BARON IN THE NICK OF TIME
 - 1 - 23 THE CHALLENGE FROM SPACE
 - 1 - 24 DESTROYED! THE SECRET SPACE SHIP
 - 1 - 25 THE SEVEN SECRETS OF RED BARON
 - 1 - 26 THE END OF TETSUMEN TOU'S DEVILAR
 - 1 - 27 INVASION OF THE SPACE ROBOTS
 - 1 - 28 GOLD FINGER
 - 1 - 29 THE THREE TETSUMEN TOU ROBOT BROTHERS
 - 1 - 30 THE YOUTH WHO CONTROLS RED BARON
 - 1 - 31 THE DEADLY APPLE BOMBS
 - 1 - 32 ATTACK OF THE REMOTE CONTROLLED BATTLE VEHICLE
 - 1 - 33 WEB OF THE SPACE ROBOT
 - 1 - 34 THE TREACHEROUS SPACE EXPRESS
 - 1 - 35 THE TERROR OF THE VAMPIRE VIRUS
 - 1 - 36 THE MAN FROM INTERNATIONAL HEADQUARTERS
 - 1 - 37 FATHER'S LETTER FROM SPACE
 - 1 - 38 RED BARON'S DISASTER ON MARS
 - 1 - 39 TOMORROW'S MACHINE DESTINY

RED DWARF

In the first episode all but one of the 169-strong crew are killed off in a radiation leak. Sole survivor is Dave Lister, technician third class, the lowest of lowly crewmen, who had been placed in suspended animation for keeping a pet cat. Revived after three million years, Lister's only companions are a humanoid life-form that has evolved from his cat, and a hologram of his obnoxious, pompous supervisor, Arnold Rimmer.

The other regular character is Holly, the ship's lugubrious computer. Megaslob Lister and zealous under-achiever Rimmer are as compatible as Steptoe and Son, and the sparks that fly from their bickering during the first two seasons give the humour a sharp, cutting edge. Cat, though, was a real one-off creation. Played as a hopelessly narcissistic black dude in sharp suits, he got some of the best lines, plus terrific sight gags, including spraying cologne to mark his territory and 'licking' his laundry clean.

Season Three saw a couple of personnel changes. Holly became a she and the crew were augmented by an android, the admirable Kryten, as their odyssey continued, with them eventually losing the mother ship and continuing in a claustrophobic shuttle called Starbug. By season seven more changes were afoot, with the crew having lost Red Dwarf and with it Holly, only to return with a different Holly at the end of the season. Arnold Rimmer also left the show, to join other holograms like himself.

All change for season eight as The crew of Starbug find Red Dwarf only to discover that the nanoites have recreated it to big, they finally rectify the problem, but the nanaites have also recreated the entire crew including the still alive Rimmer. Captain Hollister puts Lister on a charge of endangering the ship by crashing Starbug without an authorised pilots licence and is put on trial, meanwhile The Cat and Kryten must cope with strange circumstances as well as Rimmer trying to get promotion.

Second Description.

The pilot episode, the suitably named The End, begins some 100 years into the future aboard a huge (the lift has Gone With the Wind as an in-flight movie) mining ship Red Dwarf, which is run by a super' computer named Holly who has a 6000 IQ. Everything aboard is labelled bilingually in English and Esperanto. From the introduction of our two main characters, Rimmer and Lister, we immediately know they are losers.

Lister is the lowest ranking crew member on the ship and is a total slob who fancies an attractive female crew member (Kochanski) who fails to recognise he exists. He is a fairly likeable guy who gets along with the rest of the crew. Rimmer, on the other hand, is only one rung above Lister and can best be described as a totally incompetent brown noser. His ambition in life is to become an officer, but he constantly fails the officer's exam. Rimmer also is unable to learn Esperanto, although Lister has unintentionally mastered it. Rimmer's attempts at following the rules to the letter are not appreciated by his superiors.

Lister, the only person who Rimmer outranks, does not respect his authority causing Rimmer to constantly put Lister on report. Rimmer is best described by Lister as a smeg head. As the story develops, Lister brings his pregnant cat aboard the ship and when the Captain discovers it he offers Lister the choice of turning the cat over or going into stasis for the remainder of the trip. Three million years later Holly takes Lister out of stasis where he discovers that everyone is dead, killed by radiation which got into the ship when Rimmer forgot to replace the reactor shielding. To keep him company, Holly is able to reproduce a hologram image of one of the dead crew members and chooses Rimmer, since the two had the most conversations together.

The End also introduces a fourth regular character, a very vain. James Brown-like 'person' who we learn is a lifeform that evolved from Lister's cat. Frankenstein, and is simply called: the Cat. The show has been criticised by some as demeaning towards blacks for this reason- I would tend to argue with this point since none of the characters are good role models, and the Cat can be excused for his behaviour since he is a cat- and we later learn one considered an idiot by his peers. The Cat at first would only appear sporadically and did not socialise much with the apes (as the Cat regards Lister and Rimmer), the Cat does however become one of the guys in the second and third series. Additional 'characters' are the scutters. The scutters are the ship's service robots which do not have cute personalities as do most robots these days, they do however like John Wayne movies and fear being left alone with Rimmer.

Spaced-out British SF comedy that boldly went where precious few sitcoms had gone before - and then kept on going. This saga of a ragtag band of space travellers began modestly enough, as a novel variation on a time-honoured 'comedy-in-a-bottle' routine. But by season three it had gained a bigger budget, beefed up the sci-fi, and displayed vastly improved special effects - with ratings to match. The early comedy, though, was rooted in tradition, but instead of a bed-sit in East Cheam or a junkyard in West London, we got a mining ship in outer space - the Red Dwarf, a five-mile long, three-mile wide hybrid of Dark Star and the Nostromo.

BBC2's longest-running comedy, Red Dwarf was created by Rob Grant and Doug Naylor, one-time head writers for the satirical puppet show Spitting Image. For executive producer Paul Jackson it represented continued success after such innovative comedy series as The Young Ones and Happy Families.

For the final episode of season 7 the original Holly returns played by Norman Lovett who left the show at the end of season 2. Actor Chris Barrie who plays Arnold Rimmer was in only 4 episodes of season 7 due to not wanting to do any more episodes. Other changes were afoot for season 7, the standard live audience that the show had used for the previous six seasons was done away with, to be replaced by a laughter track, which was added in post production. Interestingly for the 8th Season, the live audience was brought back into the series.

Craig Charles also hosted the BBC SF game show CYBERZONE and Danny John-Jules has guest starred in the 90s versions of THE TOMMORROW PEOPLE.

Red Dwarf is a British science fiction comedy created by Rob Grant and Doug Naylor, two regular writers from Spitting Image. Unlike Quark, the only good American attempt at mixing the two genres, Red Dwarf does not get its laughs by parodying science fiction. Humour in Red Dwarf is more akin to that in M*A*S*H. by having (borderline) normal characters responding to an abnormal situation over which they have no control

Many of the episodes centre around Lister and Rimmer's efforts to escape total boredom. Red Dwarf is a bit like the film Dark Star both centre around a small crew far away from Earth slowly losing touch with reality - only in the case of Red Dwarf they were a bit out of it to begin with. As the series progresses it becomes obvious that Rimmer and Lister do really like each other, although neither would ever admit it.

The third series of the show brought about several changes. The second series ended in a cliff-hanger in which Lister learned that he was pregnant. This is all explained away in a very fast Star Wars- type scroll. Norman Lovett left the show. Hattie Hayridge took over his role as Holly, the ship's computer. Hattie had played the parallel universe version of Holly in the second series finale Parallel Universe. Kryten, a subservient android introduced at the beginning of the second series, was made a permanent member of the cast.

The sixth series of the programme brought on even more changes. The biggest being that the Red Dwarf itself was no longer featured. It began 200 years after the fifth series with Lister and the Cat coming out of deep sleep on the Star Bug, one of Red Dwarf's small scout ships. The series was spent attempting to track down Red Dwarf which had been stolen. Rimmer was given a device allowing him to become a hard light hologram which allowed him to have a solid form and touch things. Holly was no longer present. Her role had diminished beginning in the third series when Kryten appeared and began to explain things which needed explaining, one of her main functions in the stories.

The Red Dwarf concept was brought to the United States in 1992. A half hour long pilot was produced, but never broadcast for FOX. Robert Llewelyn reprised his role as Kryten for this pilot but all the other roles were recast. The new cast consisted of: Craig Bierko, Chris Eigeman, Jane Leeves and Hinton Battle. The American pilot was directed by Jeff Melman, with a script was credited to Linwood Boomer, although the story was basically a reworking of the pilot episode The End. Quite a few of the better lines from other episodes were also used in this venture. In the American version, Lister was a likable person whose personal hygiene was nowhere near as bad as the original Lister.

When this pilot did not sell, the concept was reworked and a new 15 minute presentation reel was produced. This featured scenes from the original UK version of the series, some from the first pilot and new material. The new material featured a new female cat. This new cat loved to face danger, unlike the original. She was played by Terry Farrell, who later went on to Star as Dax in Star Trek Deep Space 9. This presentation reel failed to impress the people it needed to and Red Dwarf is dead as far as an American version of the series is concerned.

What makes Red Dwarf special is that the series is not just a SF spoof. It has fun with the genre, but however contrived the situations, it is, at its heart, a character-based comedy.

The main writers for the series were Rob Grant and Doug Naylor, who together wrote the first six seasons. However Rob Grant did not want to write the seventh season of the show, so Doug Naylor, wrote a few of them and brought in other writers such as Paul Alexander, Kim Fuller, Robert Llewellyn (Kryten himself) and James Hendry. The pilot for the US market was written by Linwood Boomer.

The designers for the series were Paul Montague and Mel Bibby, visual effects were created by Peter Wragg, the music was created by Howard Goodall. The executive producers for the series were Paul Jackson, Rob Grant and Doug Naylor (Season Five, Six). The producer and director for the series was Ed Bye. Other producers for the show included Hilary Bevan Jones (Season Five) and Justin Jodd (Season Six).

Season Seven Overview

At its best Red Dwarf can be inventive, knowing, clever, a visual treat to watch and, above all, belly-laugh funny. Sadly Series VIII was none of these things, and was arguably the most serious version of the show ever screened. Outwardly there were signs that lessons had been learnt from the mixed bag of stories that formed Series VII. The dropping of the awful 'filmic' look (which made everything look as though you were watching a third generation video copy) has meant that the visuals have been crisper, and the painfully inept computer graphics shows have improved considerably. Recording the show in front of a studio audience again after the disastrous experiment of Series VII, where edited versions of the show were screened to audiences so that a 'laugh track' could be recorded, has helped the show regain some of its old feel, but just about everything else has gone badly wrong, in particular a lack of many moments worthy of a titter, let alone a belly laugh.

It was clear that something was amiss from the very beginning of episode one as, without explanation, we were presented with a Rimmer/Lister 'bunk' scene that resolved nothing of the previous cliff-hanger, and has to be one of the most longwinded and laugh free sequences ever to have darkened the show. As the scene progressed it became obvious that the show that used to keep gags coming thick and fast was nowhere to be seen. Perseverance was rewarded with an explanation of last year's ending, but viewers were then presented with the first part of a long, lumbering and continuity-laden story arc that required knowledge of plot points and characters stretching back as far as the pilot series over ten years ago! It was with a groan of disbelief that I realised that Back in the Red was being dragged out to three episodes, as it had more than set up the new series format by the end of the first half hour.

By far the biggest crime committed this year has been the inclusion of other members of the main Red Dwarf crew - last seen over ten years ago - resulting in the splitting up of the major characters, and destroying a dynamic that has been the main source of all the comedy from the series' inception. Getting the crew back on board Red Dwarf has been long overdue - the stories set within Starbug, whilst entertaining, were beginning to show signs of strain - but to involve so many new cast members has changed the show beyond all recognition. Red Dwarf at its best has always been 'four men behaving badly in space', and whereas the inclusion of Kochanski last year seriously affected the character interplay, splitting them up entirely has ruined it. Of the regulars it is Lister and Rimmer who come out best, though their relationship has nothing of its former acidity.

Of the two actors it is Chris Barrie who must be particularly pleased, as he benefitted from the bulk of both screen time and comedy - the series now effectively being a vehicle for this new, non-hologramatic Rimmer. The Cat, Kochanski and Kryten have sadly been relegated to the roles of supporting characters, sometimes with less lines than the guest stars. Poor old Danny John-Jules used to have little to do at the best of times but his role this year has been pitiful. Sure, there was a dance sequence that vainly tried to emulate the 'Tongue Tied' musical insert from Series II, but this seemed to be more for the purposes of padding the opening story out to three episodes than to give Danny anything meaningful to do. Similarly Kryten had his own themed episode - Kryten TV but this was little more than an episode of schoolboy humour: a shame, since Kryten was always the character who used to dominate the series, and have the funniest lines. One great disappointment is that Chloe Annett has had so, little to do this year.

Despite having been an uncomfortable addition to the mix in, this year she really seemed to have settled into the role. Devoid of the 'cut price Barbarella' costumes that she had been forced into in Series VII she seemed far more comfortable, and her seduction by Rimmer in Cassandra was one of the few genuinely comedic moments in the whole of the series. Indeed, Cassandra is the only story this year that felt like an episode of the old Red Dwarf at all, albeit with the feeling that you'd seen it all somewhere before. Here at least the major characters were allowed to spend the bulk of the story together, the other Canaries presumably wandering around the rest of the ship.

The other episode that came close to capturing that elusive Red Dwarf feel was the final episode, Only the Good. Although another vehicle for Barrie, it did at least contain well thought out scenes for the other regulars and I nearly cheered at the sight of Lister back in his leathers again. Sadly this euphoria was not to last as the show lumbered towards yet another pointless cliff-hanger series ending and with prospects of either Series IX or a movie looming it would appear that Red Dwarf is about to get as hidebound by its own continuity as DOCTOR WHO did in the mid-Eighties.

At the end of the day it is the decision by the production to reshape the series into something different that has resulted in a over-long and unfunny serial as opposed to a comedy series. Both Back in the Red and Pete were one episode shows dragged long past their natural run time, and the series as a whole lacked the quick fire humour that used to make it such a joy to watch.

With two 'solo' series both failing to come up to the standards set by the previous six it would appear that the loss of Rob Grant from the creative team has seriously damaged the previously award winning formula, and no matter how hard the show tries to revitalise the format (destroying Starbug, introducing a wealth of new characters, etc) it will never stand comparison with the early years. If you felt that the show went downhill after the first ten minutes of episode one of Series I then this was probably the series for you. If, like me, you thought that the show came into its own in its third year then I suggest you dig out your videos of Series III - VI (Un-Remastered) and remind yourself of how funny it used to be.

WR. Rob Grant, Doug Naylor, Paul Alexander, Kim Fuller, Robert Llewellyn, James Hendry.

DIR. Juliet May, Rob Grant & Doug Naylor (Season Five), and Anthony De Emmony (Season Six), Ed Bye.

EPISODES: 52 YEAR MADE: 1988 COUNTRY: GB SEASONS: 8

A PAUL JACKSON PRODUCTION FOR BBC NORTHWEST (seasons 1-3), A GRANT NAYLOR PRODUCTION FOR BBC NORTH (seasons 4-7)

CREATOR: ROB GRANT & DOUG NAYLOR

TYPE OF SHOW: COMEDY

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 6, (2) 6, (3) 6, (4) 6, (5) 6, (6) 6, (7) 8, (8) 8

DATE OF PREMIER: 15/02/1988 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 05/04/1999

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Arnold Rimmer, Bsc, Ssc. CHRIS BARRIE, Dave Lister CRAIG CHARLES, The Cat DANNY JOHN-JULES, Holly NORMAN LOVETT (1,2,7-8), Kryten ROBERT LLEWELLYN (3-8), Holly HATTIE HAYRIDGE (3-5), Christine Kachanski CHLOE ANNETT (7-8), Captain Hollister MAT MCDONALD (8), PAUL BRADLEY.

Books Based on this series.

A Question of Smeg: The 2nd Red Dwarf Quiz Book		1998
Red Dwarf - Backwards
Red Dwarf - Better Than Life	Rob Grant & Doug Naylor	1990
Red Dwarf - Infinity Welcomes Careful Drivers	Rob Grant & Doug Naylor	1989
Red Dwarf - Omnibus
Red Dwarf - Son of Soup
Red Dwarf - Survival
Red Dwarf - The Last Human	Doug Naylor	1995
Red Dwarf : Promordial Soup - Least Worst Scripts	Rob Grant & Doug Naylor	1993
Red Dwarf VIII: The Illustrated Scripts	Doug Naylor	1999
The Making Of Red Dwarf	Joe Nazzaro	1994
The Man In The Rubber Mask	Robert Llewellyn	1994
The Official Red Dwarf Companion	Bruce Dessau	1992
The Red Dwarf Programme Guide
The Red Dwarf Quiz Book	Nicky Hooks & Sharon Burnett	1994

RELATED SHOWS:

TOMORROW PEOPLE, THE (1992)

CYBERZONE

1 - 1 THE END

Aboard the Jupiter Mining Corporation vessel Red Dwarf, Dave Lister, a lowly 3rd Technician, smuggles aboard a cat and is consequently confined to suspended animation for the crime. During his time in stasis his bunkmate Arnold Rimmer, an equally if not more lowly 2nd Technician, is forced to perform the maintenance duties alone and inefficiently repairs the drive plate, causing it to blow and subjecting the entire crew to deadly radiation. 3 million years pass until Holly (the ship's computer) releases Lister from stasis and tells him of the accident and also resurrects Rimmer as a hologram to be a companion for Lister. After the initial shock, Lister realises that he has the run of the ship, allowing him to be, basically, himself: a no-good layabout slob. Rimmer and Lister discover that the cat had been sealed in the ships hold during the accident and has bred there for the last 3 million years and have evolved into man, one of whom is still on the ship. When he discovers his new friend, Lister decides to complete his dream of owning a farm on Fiji and orders Holly to set a course for Earth. THE BEGINNING!

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

1 - 2 FUTURE ECHOES

Lister and Cat prepare to go into stasis while Red Dwarf goes to light speed until they get back to Earth. Rimmer does not want to be turned off, so he demands to be left on for the journey, even though he will be by himself. Unfortunately they reach light speed 22 hours before they expected and don't get to go into stasis after all. While shaving, Lister watches himself accidentally cutting himself in the mirror and Rimmer rushing up behind him, then a few seconds later he does cut himself and yells for Rimmer, but dismisses what he saw in the mirror. Lister goes to the drive room and talks to Rimmer, only Rimmer is enjoying a conversation with an invisible person. Rimmer leaves through one door and immediately returns through another where he has the same conversation with Lister that he had before. Lister tries to tell him about what is happening and Rimmer is convinced when he sees Cat rush past them in the hall but then sees him in the sleeping quarters immediately after. Holly calls them Future Echoes, pieces of the future that they are catching up with as a result of light speed, backed up when Rimmer spots a picture showing Lister holding two babies in his arms. Rimmer sees Lister getting killed by an exploding panel in the drive room and doesn't seem to be too concerned about it in front of Lister. Lister goes to face his death, but doesn't get killed. They return to their quarters and see a very old Lister lying in the bunk. The Old Lister tells them that it was Lister's son that Rimmer saw in the drive room and tells Lister to grab his camera and run to the medical bay. Rimmer wonders how Lister fathers two children without a woman on board and Lister responds with "I dunno, but it'll be a lot of fun finding out!" The two go to the medical bay and are greeted by Lister, the same age he is now, introducing them to his twin boys, Jim and Bexley.....

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

1 - 3 BALANCE OF POWER

Lister finally gets a reprieve from Rimmer's boring inventory checks and goes for a drink. Sitting in the empty bar, he flashes back to a disco that he attended with his mates, Petersen, Chen and Selby; and finally realises that he is alone. After he wallows in self-pity for being alone in deep space, Lister pleads with Rimmer to allow him to create a hologram of Kristine Kochanski, an upper-class love interest. When Rimmer invokes his standing as a superior crew member (2nd Technician as opposed to 3rd Technician) and flatly refuses, Lister plans revenge and threatens to take the exams to become an officer and outrank him. Rimmer scoffs at the idea but wakes up in the morning to discover that Lister is off studying for the chef's exam, a fairly basic one but an officer's position nonetheless. Rimmer tries to discourage Lister from taking the exam and even orders him not to but Lister doesn't give in saying that the only way he wont take the exam is if Rimmer lets him see Kochanski. On the day of the exam, Kochanski walks in and Lister is stunned beyond belief. However, Kochanski tells him that she isn't interested in him and wants a real man. Lister is hurt but is puzzled at the way she speaks. He tricks her by commenting on the night that they had sex, and she replies in disbelief, proving to him that it is actually Rimmer. Lister tells Rimmer to go away and he finishes the exam. Lister comes from the exam room to receive his results and Rimmer asks how he did. Lister's face is expressionless until he leaps in the air and shouts "How'd I Do Mr Lister, Sir!"

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

1 - 4 WAITING FOR GOD

Holly notices a pod floating in space and Rimmer orders that it be salvaged, convinced that it contains alien life forms, even though Lister realises that it is a Red Dwarf Garbage Pod, jettisoned from the waste disposal unit. Meanwhile Lister is researching the Cat's religion and discovers that their race which evolved from his pet, Frankenstein, now have his image as their God. He follows the Cat deep into the hold of the ship and finds a Cat Priest who is dying with the belief that he hasn't lived up to the expectations of the almighty Cloister (God). Lister convinces him that he has lived admirably as a priest so that he can die in peace and Lister comes to the conclusion that having religion is not as good as people believe as the cat race all perished trying to honour theirs.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

1 - 5 CONFIDENCE & PARANOIA

After visiting the officer's living quarters aboard the ship before it has been decontaminated, Lister wakes up with a case of pneumonia and begins to hallucinate in his sleep. His dreams become real however, when it begins to rain fish in their room, and the Mayor of Warsaw appears and then spontaneously combusts in front of Rimmer. Lister wakes feeling better but then finds that two men have appeared on the ship, one is a living manifestation of his inner confidence and the other of his paranoia. While Lister's Confidence gives him the strength to face Rimmer to get Kochanski's hologram disk, he is unaware that Confidence would do anything to be with him, including destroying the Medicomp and killing Paranoia. Lister discovers this but cannot stop Confidence from foolishly trying to convince him that he can breathe in space and ends up exploding into a billion pieces. Lister retrieves the hologram disk and loads it, but what follows is far worse than being alone in space.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

1 - 6 ME2

Lister gets more than he bargained for when the disk supposedly containing Kochanski's hologram is actually a copy of Rimmer's. The two Rimmers decide to move in together leaving Lister who is all too happy to be rid of them. However, the two Rimmers are so alike that they cannot get along and continually insult and berate each other. Lister discovers a tape of Rimmer's death on which he utters the words "Gazpacho Soup" before his demise. When the childish behavior between the two Rimmers forces Lister to put his foot down and demand that one of them be erased, he tricks the original Rimmer into believing that he will be the one in order to make him explain what 'Gazpacho Soup' meant. It was the day that Rimmer's desire for public respect finally came true, as he was invited to the captain's table for dinner, after working for 14 years. Unfortunately, he did not know that Gazpacho Soup is meant to be served cold, and he publicly embarrassed himself in front of the Captain and other guests by demanding it be served hot.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

2 - 1 KRYTEN

Captain Rimmer, Space Adventurer, and his crew set out to rescue the gair maidens aboard the crashed Nova 5, but come back with a servile android Lister teaches to rebel.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

2 - 2 BETTER THAN LIFE

A mail pod arrives at the Red Dwarf and Rimmer receives the belated news that his father has passed away. Rimmer is devastated, even though he hated him. To alleviate his depression regarding the news (not to mention the fact that he has a $8,500 tax bill), the crew try out a new Virtual Reality game where all the players' desires and fantasies can come true, but even Rimmer's mind has its own way of stabbing him in the back.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

2 - 3 THANKS FOR THE MEMORY

After partying away to the anniversary of Rimmer's death, Lister and Cat wake up with broken legs, Lister's jigsaw has been completed, four pages have been torn from his diary, the clock is four days ahead and the black box is missing. The crew go after the black box and discover it in a shallow grave with a gravestone that reads 'To the memory, of the memory of Lisa Yates'. Lister comments that he once dated a girl named Lisa Yates. They view the black box recording and watch as Lister, after hearing Rimmer cry and wail because he has never been loved, implants a memory of his into Rimmer's; the eight months that he dated Lisa Yates. Rimmer wakes with this new memory and believes it to be his. He ponders why he and Lisa broke up and Lister realises that he was stupid to ever let her go. Rimmer finds out that Lister also dated Lisa and Lister is forced to tell him what he did. Rimmer asks that the last four days be erased from everyone's memory and that they bury the black box. Lister and Cat receive the broken legs when they drop the headstone on themselves. When they get back to the ship, Lister tears the pages from his diary and puts the last piece of the jigsaw into place.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

2 - 4 STASIS LEAK

While going through Kochanski's personal things, Lister finds a photograph of the two of them getting married. Remembering something from the past, he reads Rimmer's diary and finds an entry where Rimmer thought he saw his own head pop up through the table and say that he came from the future to save his (Rimmer's) life which Rimmer himself (in the diary entry) took to be an hallucination. Following directions from the diary, the gang head down to floor 16 and find a hidden stasis leak which transports them back to the past, a little while before the crew all died. Because they can't bring anybody back to their time, Lister and Rimmer fight over who they should convince to go into the other stasis booth (Lister himself being sent into the other). Lister wants to save Kochanski and Rimmer obviously wants himself. While Rimmer goes back to convince himself, Lister and Cat find Kochanski at a hotel, but she is already married. Kochanski invites them in and Lister discovers.....Himself! A future version from 5 years in the future who has found another way to go back in time. After the meeting they all return to the past Rimmer and Lister's quarters where the past Rimmer promptly tells them all to go away.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

2 - 5 QUEEG

Holly shows the first signs of computer senility and endangers Lister's life, which activates the back up computer. After an exposure to how much more effective the new computer, Queeg, is, the team rally around the new computer Queeg, but soon realise that he is aptly named. Like the original Queeg, he is a maniacal beast who demands order and demands that the ship's regulations be followed to the letter. After forcing Lister and Cat to work for their food and taking control of Rimmer's body for a regimen of exercises, the gang begin to appreciate Holly once more and set about devising a way to rid the ship of Queeg.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

2 - 6 PARALLEL UNIVERSE

Holly claims to have invented a faster than light device called the "Holly Hop Drive" which appears to be nothing more than a red box with a stop and start button on it. The crew try and use it, but it doesn't bring them to Earth, it brings them to a strange parallel universe where women are the dominant sex and each of them has a female analogue. While Rimmer is trying to avoid his opposite's voracious sexual demands, Lister seems to be getting on very well with his. Cat's opposite (unfortunately for him) is a dog, and even Holly has an opposite, Hilly. After partying all night long while Holly and Hilly fix the Hop Drive they wake up to find Lister has accidentally slept with his opposite, who tells him that in their universe, the men give birth to the babies. After returning to their own universe, Lister uses a pregnancy test, and much to Rimmer's delight, they learn that Lister is, in fact, pregnant!

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

3 - 1 BACKWARDS

The episode opens with 'Star Wars' style text explaining how Lister gave birth to twin boys that were returned to the other dimension, Holly has endured a breakdown which has caused him to become like his female counterpart from that universe, and that Kryten has returned and become part of the crew. While Lister and Cat discuss the sexiness of Wilma Flintstone, Rimmer gives Kryten a space piloting exam in order for them to become more independent. They accidentally pass through a time hole and appear on Earth in modern times, but where everything is running in reverse order. While waiting for Lister and Cat to find them, they get work as a novelty act in a pub, showing off their 'forwards' acting capabilities. Lister and Cat finally track them down but by then Rimmer and Kryten don't want to leave, observing that the world makes more sense backwards, and list off several things like death and war. They are soon unfired for causing a pub brawl and then proceed to undo the results of the fight. At the ship, before leaving, Cat discovers one more unfortunate aspect of doing things backwards.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

3 - 2 MAROONED

The crew evacuate the ship after Holly spots five black holes in the distance. Rimmer and Lister leave together in Starbug but hit a meteor and crash on a snow planet with no way to escape. With little food and heat, Lister begins to open up to Rimmer to try and take his mind off the situation, including talking about Rimmer's fascination with war and when they both lost their virginities. Soon the fire dies down and the only thing left to burn is Lister's guitar and Rimmer's priceless camphorwood chest. Lister makes him think that he will burn the guitar but instead cuts a guitar-shaped hole in the back of the chest and burns that. However, his smugness turns to guilt when Rimmer says that the chest belonged to his father and is worth more to him than life. When Kryten and Cat finally find them, Lister grabs his guitar and hightails it before Rimmer can realise what he did.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

3 - 3 POLYMORPH

A pod arrives aboard Red Dwarf containing a genetic mutant which can change itself into any shape whatsoever. It appears to Lister in it's true form, bringing him to the height of his terror, and then sucking his fear right out of him. While they are searching for it, Cat is chased by his own heat-seeking bazookoid balls, and eventually manages evade them and lock them in a room. The Polymorph gets the Cat and takes away his vanity by appearing as a beautiful woman and flattering him. It then appears as Rimmer and blames Kryten for the Cat being attacked, thereby taking away Kryten's guilt. Later, when the three get back it appears as Rimmer's mother, pretending to have slept with Lister, angering Rimmer so much that it feeds off him also..

The gang now have very different personalities: we have Rimmer, a "wannabe" hippy, (T-shirt saying "Give quiche a chance"), Lister with nerves of steel and willing to sacrifice his life to kill it, Kryten with no sense of loyalty or guilt, and the Cat, a bum. They continue their search for the Polymorph and suddenly it comes up and attacks from behind. Luckily, an automatic door opens, releasing the bazookoid balls that were chasing the cat. The crew duck and the polymorph is destroyed. All the crew get their emotions back and they are free from the polymorph. Or so it may seem.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

3 - 4 TIMESLIDES

Lister declares he is sick of life on Red Dwarf and wishes that he never joined the JMC in the first place. Kryten is developing photos in the photo lab when he discovers that they can move, to which Holly suggests that the developing fluid must have mutated. Kryten shows some moving slides to the crew and Lister finds that he can walk into the projection and really be there, only he cannot move outside the frame of the picture. Lister uses this as his ticket off Red Dwarf by making himself unbelievably rich. He takes a tension sheet (just bubble-wrap packing paper painted red) and goes into a photo of himself at 17 and tells himself to patent the invention. When they return, Lister, Cat and Kryten disappear. (Kryten wasn't rescued and the Cat race never existed) Rimmer cannot bear being on his own and goes to convince Lister to come back. Upon failing that, he goes further back in time to give the invention to himself at boarding school. Lister, Cat and Kryten are returned, although he only succeeded in putting things back the way they were. As a consequence of his actions, Rimmer discovers that he is not a hologram anymore, but is alive. This doesn't last long though, as in his excitement he hits two crates of dynamite and blows himself up.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

3 - 5 BODYSWAP

A scutter has gone mad and rerouted the entire ships circuitry and Rimmer and Kryten can't find the self-destruct mechanism but Lister accidentally activates it when he orders a milkshake and chocolate bar from a vending machine. Needing one of the senior officers to deactivate it, Kryten introduces them to a mind-swap, which involves implanting another crew-members brain (via a disc on which all of their brain patterns were kept) into Lister's body. Even though the technique works it does not fool the computer into deactivating the auto-destruct. The count-down finishes, and Lister receives his milkshake and choc bar from the vending machine as there is no bomb on board the ship. Rimmer decides that the brain-switching idea is a good one and he persuades Lister to loan him his body, promising to get him fit. Lister finally agrees and they swap, but Rimmer is too busy being able to eat and drink to care about what he does to Lister's body. Lister forces him to swap back, but with Kryten's unwilling help, Rimmer steals Lister's body during the night and does a runner with Starbug. Lister, Cat and Kryten give chase in Blue Midget, but as they catch up, Rimmer crashes. Back in his own body Lister gives Kryten the third degree, whose guilt chip is in overload. Rimmer walks in with a stunned look and speaks in the Cat's voice. Cat walks in and in Rimmer's voice, promises to give his body back in a few days and starts to gorge himself on a pile of food.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

3 - 6 THE LAST DAY

A mail pod arrives containing a message indicating that the "out-dated" Kryten must be dismantled and his replacement will arrive within 24 hours; a new, and improved "Hudzen 10". Kryten is not upset though, because now he goes to Silicon Heaven. Lister is shocked at this idea, and explains that there's no such thing as silicon heaven, but Kryten isn't convinced. The crew throw a "going away" party for Kryten, in which we find out that Lister was an orphan and Rimmer got his first french kiss from his uncle Frank, who thought he was his mother. The next morning, the crew wake up with hangovers and Kryten decides that he wants to stay. A ship requests docking, and the crew meet the replacement in the docking bay. They try and fight off the Hudzen 10 so Kryten will not have to leave, but he is too strong. Eventually Kryten informs him of the absence of silicon heaven, which causes Hudzen 10's circuits to overload.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

4 - 1 CAMILLE

Lister tries in vain to teach Kryten how to lie, insult, cheat and disobey orders. Lister gives up when Rimmer calls Kryten on a trip "moon-hopping". On the trip they receive a distress call and Kryten goes to investigate against Rimmer's orders (The planet is about to explode). Kryten rescues a "female" droid called Camille who he falls in love with, even though droids aren't supposed to have feelings like that. Kryten takes Camille back to Starbug, but when Rimmer sees her, she's a hologram who is interested in him. They bring her back to Red Dwarf and then Lister sees a human female with tastes similar to him. Lister notices how everyone reacts to Camille and she confesses to Lister that she is a Pleasure GELF (Genetically Engineered Life Form) programmed to be everyone's perfect companion. The Cat goes to see, and it is not surprising that he sees himself! The GELF turns into her true form at Kryten's request which is a huge green blob. Despite her appalling appearance, Kryten still decides to ask her to dinner, then the movies (Casablanca). A pod arrives containing Hector (Camille's "Husband") who wants to find a cure for their condition. Kryten (at his own disappointment) convinces her to go.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

4 - 2 DNA

The crew stumble upon a deserted space ship of non-human origin and Rimmer believes it is an alien ship. They go inside to search the ship and Kryten and Rimmer discover the remains of a three-headed creature. They find a wallet on him with human artifacts such as credit cards, license etc. and Kryten suggests that something has changed his physical form. Meanwhile, Cat and Lister find a machine with a Star Trek style computer panel. Cat begins playing with it and accidentally traps Lister in a pink beam. A deep voice announces that a transfiguration is about to take place. When Cat tries to get him free, Lister turns into a chicken. Rimmer and Kryten come along and while Cat is showing what he did to Lister, he traps Kryten in the beam. He manages to change Lister back to a human, but when he does the same for Kryten, it actually transforms him into a human, rather than just setting him free. Back on Red Dwarf, Kryten is delighted with his new-found humanity. However he soon starts to tire of it after talking to his spare heads and realising that he has betrayed his kind, and wants to be changed back. They go back aboard the ship and Holly says she thinks she has the computer all figured out. Rimmer decides it best if she tries it on something else first. She tries Lister's curry and turns it into a monster by mistake. After being chased all over the ship, Lister decides the only way to defeat it is to turn him into a superhuman. Holly turns him into something like Robocop, but tiny. (about 1 1/2' tall) Lister eventually defeats the Curry Monster with a can of lager (the only thing that can kill a vindaloo).

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

4 - 3 JUSTICE

Lister is in bed with the space mumps when he hears the news that the gang has brought aboard a cryo-pod from a prison ship which possibly contains a guard named Barbara Bellini. Lister inspects the pod and begins the thawing process which Rimmer objects to saying that there were two survivors aboard the ship: Ms Bellini and a Simulant prisoner (droids who are noted to be murderous and insane). Since they cannot stop the thaw process they decide to travel to the prison colony that the ship was heading for. They arrive on the space station and walk through a white light which Kryten says is a mind probe to seek out any unpunished criminal activity. Lister gets very edgy and confesses that he had committed some minor crimes as a teenager. The justice computer passes his verdict on them: Kryten and Cat get off, Lister does barely and Rimmer is sentenced to 9000 years in prison for the second degree murder of the Red Dwarf's complement of 1167 personnel (not counting himself or Lister). Kryten believes that he can defend Rimmer on the verdict and he fronts up to the justice computer telling it about Rimmer's inadequacy and hopelessness. The computer eventually concedes that Rimmer could not have been held accountable for the deaths and releases him. Meanwhile the pod has thawed and the occupant has escaped. Naturally it is the simulant who was inside and he chases them through the colony. Lister finally beats him by using the justice field's power (whatever crime you commit against someone else, the consequences happen to you). When the simulant fires at Lister, the bullets hit him instead of Lister, when he throws a knife, it comes back and hits him and so forth. The gang head back to Red Dwarf with Lister droning on about justice and freedom until he falls down a manhole. "Thank God for that" remarks Cat.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

4 - 4 WHITE HOLE

Kryten attempts to use a technique called 'Intelligence Compression' on Holly by reducing her life span to restore her I.Q. of 6000. Unfortunately he botches it and Holly gets an I.Q. of 12000 but she only has 3 minutes of life remaining. She powers down the ship to preserve her lifespan and the crew have to fend for themselves without heat or power. On their way back from collecting supplies, Kryten and Rimmer experience a strange time phenomena in the hallway where time slows down in one part and quickens up in another. Kryten believes that there is a White Hole out in space which has the opposite affect of a Black Hole by throwing time back into the universe. During their conversation they switch places and repeat things they have already said. Rimmer consults Holly about the white hole and she suggests firing a rocket into a nearby sun a causing a solar flare to knock a planet into the hole, rather like playing pool with the planets. Lister scoffs at her coordinates saying that he can play better pool than Holly. Rimmer argues with Lister and suggests a vote which Lister wins 3 to 1. Lister prepares for his pool shot by getting drunk but concentrates hard enough to play a trick shot, bouncing 3 planets off each other to throw the last one into the hole. As the effects of the white hole wears off and gang begin to vanish from that part of space, Kryten takes the opportunity to deliver an extremely good insult to Rimmer.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

4 - 5 DIMENSION JUMP

A young Rimmer is told by his mother that he is in danger of being held back a year in school and it could change his life forever.

30 years later, Arnold 'Ace' Rimmer, Test Pilot for the Space Corps Special Service, lands his jet safely and greets his friends: Spanners, a Lister who is a Space corps engineer; Padre, a priest who looks like Cat; Bongo, Kryten without his mechanoid suit; and Mellie, bearing a striking likeness to a full-bodied Holly.

Bongo informs Ace of a special space craft that can cross dimensions which Ace immediately volunteers to test fly, even though he cannot come back to his reality.

Aboard the Red Dwarf Lister, Kryten and Cat try to sneak off to go fishing but accidentally wake up Rimmer and are forced to bring him. They head off in Starbug where they crash into Ace's spaceship and crash land on the ocean planet. Ace heads down to Starbug and offers his assistance to repair the engine and Rimmer takes an instant dislike to him. Ace and Lister repair the engine and they return to Red Dwarf where Ace again shows off his superiority by operating on Cat's broken leg and then fixing his own broken arm. Rimmer continues to wail on about how much he hates Ace until Ace decides to leave saying that he too cannot stand this other side of himself. He tells Lister of the decision that was made in their childhood and reveals which one of them was left behind in school

Ace leaves aboard his ship while Rimmer plays his Hammond Organ Owners Society CD's to the skutters

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

4 - 6 MELTDOWN

The Red Dwarf team end up on a planet where wax droids of famous Earth historical figures are engaged in an ultimate battle of good versus evil.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

5 - 1 HOLO-SHIP

The gang watch a sappy love story aboard Starbug and Rimmer is disgusted at how the hero sacrificed his own happiness for his lover. They come across a computer-generated ship, and Rimmer is captured and taken aboard. The Holoship (named 'The Enlightenment') will not answer Starbug's communication attempts on account of them being notoriously arrogant and self-centered. Meanwhile Rimmer is having quite a good time aboard the Holoship: he can touch, feel and taste. Not only that, but it's a ship regulation to have sexual relations at least twice a day with any other crew member. He meets a crew member, Commander Nirvanah Crane who gives him a tour of the ship. Upon having sex with her, He falls in love with her and she, even though they have disposed of the concept of 'love' aboard the ship, feels something for him also. Rimmer decides he wants to stay aboard the ship, and challenges a randomly-selected crew-member. The crew member turns out to be Nirvanah who lets him win on purpose when he tells her of how he always fails at everything and has never really achieved anything in his life. Rimmer leaves Red Dwarf to join the Enlightenment's crew but when he finds out that Nirvanah gave up her place for him, he decides to give it back to her and return to Red Dwarf, similarly to the hero in the movie (much to his own disgust).

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Juliet May

5 - 2 THE INQUISITOR

Thomas Allman is in his room when a man dressed in black with a white skull-like mask comes along, charges him of being a waste of skin and erases him, replacing him with a more well-built version of himself... The crew are flying along in Starbug when they lose control of the ship. Using Lister's body, something announces itself as The Inquisitor and that they will return to Red Dwarf to face judgement. Kryten later describes the Inquisitor as a self-repairing simulacrum who survived to the end of time to find no heaven or afterlife. So he built a time machine and went back and forth through time, judging everyone on whether they have led a worthwhile life, deleting the ones who didn't and replacing them with "the sperms that never got a chance". Back aboard Red Dwarf, the inquisition begins. Rimmer and Cat survive the trial because of their shallowness and low standards, but Lister and Kryten could have made more of their lives and are removed from history. Just as their physical forms are about to be erased, another Kryten appears behind The Inquisitor with one of his own time gauntlets and takes him by surprise. Kryten throws them the gauntlet before getting killed by The Inquisitor. They escape, but when they meet Rimmer and Cat, they don't recognise them. A different Lister and Kryten arrive and convince Rimmer and Cat not to harm them. Suddenly the Inquisitor attacks, killing the new Lister and Kryten. The rest escape, but split up, Kryten and Lister together, Rimmer and Cat together. Kryten finally decodes the gauntlet and frees them from their chains. Rimmer and Cat come in for help against The Inquisitor. They go to face him and Lister finally destroys him with the old "backfiring time-gauntlet trick" which erases The Inquisitor from history. Everything soon returns to normal.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Juliet May

5 - 3 TERRORFORM

Kryten wakes up on a moon surrounded by the remains of a crashed Starbug. He detaches his hand and tells it to return to Red Dwarf and bring back Lister and Cat. Lister comes, collects and "fixes" Kryten. Kryten tells them that Rimmer was captured while on a psy-moon (a terraforming moon that reshapes itself to mimic a person's psyche). The crew reluctantly go out on the surface to search for him. Rimmer is hung up in a dungeon and prepared to be tortured by The Unspeakable One. The crew make their way across the Swamp of Despair with frogs that say 'Useless' and through a graveyard with headstones that describe a positive part of Rimmer's personality that has died: self-confidence, honour, generosity, charm etc. Lister notices a freshly-dug grave with the headstone 'Hope' and Kryten tells the others to hurry, realising that they could be in serious danger if Rimmer loses all hope for himself. The crew finds the dungeon and drive back the unspeakable one, saving Rimmer. They try to escape in Starbug, but the ship gets caught in a swamp and begins to sink. Kryten realises that the unspeakable one only fled when he told Rimmer that they wouldn't desert him. Rimmer's personality created the terrain and they are forced to make Rimmer feel good about himself to weaken the Unspeakable One's power so they can escape. They try it and eventually Rimmer's positive emotions come back to life and fight off the hoards of negative emotions (self-doubt, mis-trust, loneliness etc.), allowing the gang to escape unharmed; except for Rimmer when they tell him that they only pretended to like him to escape!

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Juliet May

5 - 4 QUARANTINE

The crew are on a snowy planet, when they come across an abandoned research centre. Rimmer objects to Kryten being in charge but is ignored by the others and goes to sulk. They send a scouter which reports that there is a scientist named Dr. Lanstrom inside the facility. Unfortunately she is a hologram and Kryten asks Rimmer to go back to Red Dwarf so they can rescue her, using another Space Corp Directive against him. Rimmer questions the validity of the Directives that Kryten uses so Holly gives Rimmer a hologrammatical copy of the directives manual, whereupon Rimmer again goes off to sulk. Going into the research center, they find the Doctor in stasis only to discover that she has contracted a holovirus that has made her insane but has given her extraordinary powers like hex vision and telekinesis at the price of her sanity. They escape when her life force is drained and she disappears, but the disease is transferred to Rimmer. When the rest of the crew get back on Red Dwarf, Rimmer forces them to stay in quarantine (to avoid catching the disease off them) and unbeknownst to him, he goes insane, locking them in without oxygen. The crew escape thanks to a luck virus which Kryten got from the facility. Rimmer chases them down the corridor with his hex vision and thanks to the luck virus injected into Lister, Kryten manages to turn him off and restore him to his previous self.... Rimmer wakes up in quarantine only to discover that the other three have now contracted the virus and gone insane!

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Juliet May

5 - 5 DEMONS AND ANGELS

Lister and Kryten have invented a triplicator: a device which can make triples of objects. They demonstrate it on the last strawberry in the universe and receive two exact copies. Lister samples one and reels from the taste, saying that it is brilliant, so succulent and divine. He tries the other and scrunches his face in disgust as we see that there are maggots crawling around in it. Kryten notes that the triplicator has put all the best qualities in one copy and the worst in the other. Lister attempts to reverse the process but causes an overload and Red Dwarf blows up. After the blast, they realise that they accidentally triplicated Red Dwarf and there are two copies left behind. The crew board the "High" ship to find their counterparts are monks and are all into the better side of things: spiritual happiness etc. Kryten finds half of the triplicator he needs to merge the ships to get the original back. They board the "Low" ship and it is horrible, the crew are monsters and have let the ship go into decay. The "High" crew are killed by various things (mostly by their own stupidity when they walk toward someone firing at them) and eventually they find the other half of the triplicator. The "Lows" capture Lister and implant him with a controlling device and program him to kill the others. Lister tries to kill the rest of the gang but Kryten successfully removes the implant, only to stick it into Cat who gets revenge on Lister for trying to kill him. Kryten throws the implant away and they leave the "Low" ship and regenerate the original Red Dwarf. Before they return, Lister accidentally sits on the implant but the crew cannot figure out who is controlling him until Cat shoots at a cupboard which emits a faint giggle and Lister's "Low" counterpart tumbles out. The Cat then decides to have a little fun with Lister and the implant.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Juliet May

5 - 6 BACK TO REALITY

The crew are on an ocean planet investigating a seeding vessel called the SSS Esperanto which was studying the life forms that had been introduced by humans. They find 3 people aboard who committed suicide, and a haddock who did the same. Lister notices an oil covering everything and Kryten suggests that it is a hallucinogenic venom much like the oil from an octopus or squid. He does a chemical analysis and rushes the others back to Starbug saying that the oil contains a hallucinogen which induces despair, enough to drive the crew of the Esperanto to kill themselves. They try to escape in Starbug to avoid it happening to them, but the despair squid chases them and they crash into a rock. Starbug is destroyed. The gang wake up to find they were playing a computer game called Red Dwarf for the last four years (and they only scored 4%). Lister is the rich and successful Sebastian Doyle, Rimmer (his brother, Billy) is a bum, the Cat is the saddest geek you will ever see named Dwayne Dibley (Teeth stick out a mile, terrible taste in clothes, etc.) and Kryten is a half-human, half-machine cop named Jake Bullet. While leaving the video game building and adjusting to all that has happened, Sebastian finds out that he is the chief of an organisation called the Ministry of Alteration which organises mass murders to purify democracy. Bullet kills a cop while defending a young girl and they make a run for it and are chased by the fascist police. We then hear Holly trying to tell them that they're hallucinating, but they can't hear her. In their heads they manage to escape the police and run down an alleyway. Bullet, so appalled by his actions decides to kill himself. So do Billy and Dwayne. Sebastian, despising his mass murdering lifestyle, decides the same. Holly communicates to Kryten on a higher frequency and gets him to open a canister of Lithium Carbonate (a mood stabiliser), which he thinks is a fire extinguisher. The gas saves them just in time and they reflect on why they decided to kill themselves, before leaving behind the Esperanto to head back to Red Dwarf.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Juliet May

6 - 1 PSIRENS

Red Dwarf is stolen from the crew and they are forced to survive on Starbug. They go into deep sleep and are revived 200 years later when there is a chance to recapture the ship. In order to gain more ground on Red Dwarf they try to go through an asteroid belt but find that it is inhabited by alien beings called Psirens who use mind control to lure their victims and then suck out their brains.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Andy De Emmony

6 - 2 LEGION

The crew stumble on an abandoned space station and board it hoping to get some supplies. A man named Legion appears and offers each of them everything they ever wanted in the world but only if they remain on the space station forever, making the Dwarfers suspect that Legion is not at all what he seems.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Andy De Emmony

6 - 3 GUNMAN OF THE APOCALYPSE

The gang is attacked by a simulant ship who upgrade Starbug with laser cannons and defensive shields and then force them to play a game of 'cat and mouse'. The crew decide not to flee but to stay and fight which stuns the simulants. Before their ship is crippled by Starbugs new offensive weapons, the simulants upload a killer virus into the navicomp. Kryten then transfers the virus to his CPU in an attempt to eradicate it. The gang watch on a virtual reality screen as Kryten's search for an antidote is manifested as a western setting where Kryten is a sheriff who has to fight the four horsemen of the Apocalypse - Death, War, Pestilence and Famine.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Andy De Emmony

6 - 4 EMOHAWK - POLYMORPH II

A Space Corps Law Enforcement Vessel chases Starbug and the crew make a crash landing on a GELF planet. They go in search of a vital ship part and come across a village who have the part but the price is for Lister to marry the chief's daughter. Lister reluctantly does so but on his wedding night, does a runner back to Starbug. The chief takes this as an insult and releases his pet Emohawk, a smaller polymorph (see Polymorph) on them. The Emohawk hides on Starbug and attacks Rimmer and Cat, taking Rimmer's bitterness and the Cat's cool; turning them into Ace Rimmer (see Dimension Jump) and Dwayne Dibbley (see Back to Reality). Ace, with his new personality, decides to save the day and locks Kryten and Lister in the hold so they will be safe while he and Dwayne go after the Emohawk. They eventually track it down and freeze it, forcing it to release their emotions and turning them back to normal.

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Andy De Emmony

6 - 5 RIMMERWORLD

The gang come across the simulant ship they nearly destroyed in Gunmen of the Apocalypse and decide to board the ship and loot it for supplies despite the fact that a loud noise would cause it to disintegrate. They find a time and matter transporter on board and take it with them. One of the simulants is still alive and attacks them. Rimmer, always the brave, jumps in an escape pod but when it releases the ship begins to fall apart. The rest of the crew use the transporter to get back to Starbug and track the pod which is heading down to a planet. Unfortunately, the pod goes through a worm hole on its way causing Rimmer to be on a completely different time stream than Starbug. When he reaches the planet, Rimmer uses technology from the pod to create a woman in his image, but no matter how many times he tries all he can do is clone himself. When Starbug reaches the planet on the normal time stream, 600 years have passed on the planet and the Rimmer clones have taken over, banishing the original Rimmer to a dungeon. The others are captured and also thrown in the dungeon because they are 'different'. They find their Rimmer and use the teleporter to escape but end up on Starbug 2 weeks in the future where they learn that something terrible has happened to Lister.....

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Andy De Emmony

6 - 6 OUT OF TIME

After Rimmer conducts a "morale-meeting", the crew find a cloud of fog from an imploded supernova and have no choice but to go through it. They get some bad turbulence, and Lister is injured revealing that he is an android! Kryten is angry that Lister is a lesser model than he and orders him to do all the work and even gives it to him for not having used a setsquare to cut the sandwiches. They find out they were in an unreality pocket, and Lister is indeed human. More of these unreality pockets pass until they decide to go into stasis until they get through the fog. In the centre of the fog they find a Space Corps derelict which is capable of time travel. They take the time drive and hook it up to Starbug's engines. After testing the time drive they are disappointed to find that although they can travel to any time in history, they are still in deep space, no closer to Earth than they were before. They return to their own time to find a future version of themselves. They invite them on board, but everyone except Kryten is sealed in the hold. Lister rigs a camera to see what's going on and he sees that Kryten is wearing a toupee, Rimmer is getting fat and the Cat is bald; but worst of all, Lister himself is just a brain in a jar! He continues to watch the meeting and finds out that their future selves are not only fat, bald and bodiless, but are souped up snobs, who can never compliment anything, who've socialised all the most evil figures of history (Hitler, Louis XIV, Goering, the Hapsburgs, etc.), and lived in the height of luxury. Now they need help recalibrating the time drive so they can continue with their lifestyles. Lister is horribly dismayed to find out this, so the three blast open the hold, and head down to kick them out of the ship, refusing to fix the time drive. The future crew, deciding they are better off dead than to live without the time drive, stranded in space, attack the present crew. Lister, Cat and Kryten are killed, so Rimmer decides to save the ship by destroying the time drive. However at the same time, One of the Starbugs shoot at the other and it is destroyed....

Wr Rob Grant & Doug Naylor

Dir Andy De Emmony

7 - 1 TIKKA TO RIDE

After Starbug was destroyed, the future crew no longer existed - therefore were unable to go back in time and kill the present crew, hence they survived. But unfortunately disaster has struck. Starbug is completely devoid of curries. Lister proposes that they go back in time to order a couple of hundred curries from an Indian Restaurant. The rest of the crew will not go back in time because they are afraid of becoming the future selves they saw. However, Lister removes a guilt chip from one of Kryten's spare heads and swaps them over, telling the new guilt-less Kryten to reassure them it will be OK. They go back and appear in the Texas School Book Depository in Dallas on November 22nd 1963 just as Lee Harvey Oswald is taking his shot at President Kennedy. They knock him out the window where he dies hitting the ground, preventing Kennedy's assassination. To avoid being captured they go ahead a couple of years, however Kennedy's survival causes an alternate reality where he has been impeached out of office and the new president is controlled by the Mafia, allowing the Soviet Union to build several Nuclear Silos in Cuba. Fearing the Soviets will start a nuclear war, all the major US cities are deserted. Lister goes to the airport which would have been renamed JFK Airport where Kennedy is being transported to prison. He persuades Kennedy to go back in time with them, and be the gunman on the grassy knoll, and shoot himself for the ultimate conspiracy theory. After restoring Earth's normal timeline, The gang return to Starbug. Of course they still haven't got any curries.

Wr Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

7 - 2 STOKE ME A CLIPPER

After travelling through countless realities, Commander 'Ace' Rimmer returns to the Red Dwarf crew to ask a favor of his alternate self. It seems that the real Ace Rimmer died years ago and has been replaced many times over by his counterpart from each reality. This Ace Rimmer will soon die and asks our Rimmer to be his successor as an inter-galactic hero. After a little push from Lister, which seems to bring the two closer together, Rimmer decides to accept the offer and begins his training. When Ace dies, Rimmer dons his outfit and says his goodbye to the crew before leaving Starbug.

Wr Doug Naylor & Paul Alexander

Dir Ed Bye

7 - 3 OUROBOROS

Over 3,000,000 years ago in the Aigbuth Arms pub, a box with a baby inside was placed under a pool table with just the word Ouroboros written on the side.... Returning to the present day, the crew come across a wormhole between dimensions. They go through the wormhole, and meet an alternate version of themselves. Rimmer isn't there, Lister is a Hologram, Kochanski is alive, and Kryten is wearing a gold suit. They decide to exchange information and Kochanski requests that Lister fills a canister up with his sperm, so that she may have a child as her Lister cannot bear children. Unfortunately, Lister's in-law's - the GELFs attack (see Emohawk), and cause a break in the wormhole and Kochanski becomes caught on this side. They eventually manage to escape the GELFs, thanks to Kochanski's navigation. Kryten is jealous because Lister likes Kochanski more than him and is glad when they return to the wormhole to get her back to her own dimension. On a box they found some supplies in, Lister notices has a label "Ouroboros", with a symbol on it: a snake biting his own tail, meaning infinity - a neverending circle. Lister recognises this as what was on his own box and realises that he is his own father and Kochanski is his mother. He rushes after Kochanski to get the in-vetro tube back before she returns to her reality. Disaster strikes, as the GELFs return and make the break in the wormhole even bigger. Kochanski tries to jump across and misses the other side, falling into a deep black void. While she's falling, Lister rushes back and gets a crossbow and a rope which Kryten happened to have handy, and harpoons Kochanski and pulls her back to his side. 18 months later, Lister takes he and Kochanski's child, and puts him in a box, writing "Ouroboros" on it, so it would remind himself of the sign when the child got to be him, and he would bring back his child, etc.

Wr Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

7 - 4 DUCK SOUP

Kochanski is not adjusting very well to being on Starbug and Lister tries to make her feel better by building her a makeshift bathtub and finding some extra clothing for her. Kryten thinks that this means they are growing closer and soon will not need him so he 'accidentally' causes an engine failure, forcing the crew to crawl around in the air ducts to get to the engine room.

Wr Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

7 - 5 BLUE

While Kochanski is still trying to get back to her dimension and Kryten is still jealous of the relationship that she could have with Lister; Lister begins to miss Rimmer and reflects on some of the fun times that he and Rimmer spent together in the early days after the accident. When he has a dream that Rimmer returns and he and Rimmer kiss, Kryten tries some psychology to get to the bottom of Lister's problem. However Kochanski has a little talk with Lister and makes him realise why he misses Rimmer, much to Kryten's disgust. Kryten, having to be one step better than Kochanski, creates "The Rimmer Experience" a virtual reality rollercoaster created from Rimmer's memories, depicting him thinking of himself as a 'Hero' and a 'Remarkable Person', giving Cat fashion tips and believing that Lister has called for Rimmer to save him before he wets himself. As the ride finishes Lister is so angry at Rimmer that Kryten sticks it to Kochanski because his method worked better than hers.

Wr Kim Fuller

Dir Ed Bye

7 - 6 BEYOND A JOKE

Kryten finds a lobster scuttling around the cargo hold and cooks an elaborate feast for the crew as it is the anniversary of when he was rescued from the Nova 5. The rest of the crew however have prepared to enter a virtual reality world of Jane Austen, where Kochanski hopes to teach them a little culture. Kryten is extremely upset that they left without touching his feast and enters the VR world, blowing up the characters of the game with a tank and ordering the crew to supper. Kryten seems to calm down as they tuck into the lobster but Lister asks for a little ketchup to 'pep it up' and Kryten blows his top. Literally. They replace his head but the rage still flows through him and they eventually run out of spare heads. They go aboard a derelict ship and find some heads but they don't have their primers installed. The crew realize that it is a simulant ship and hijack it, but they cannot leave without the heads so they dress up as GELFs and make a deal with the simulant captain. They get the heads but when they return to Starbug it has been looted and Kryten is gone. The simulant brings Kryten's body aboard his ship and tells another series 4000 mechanoid, Able, to repair him. Kochanski devises a plan to make the simulants think that they planted a bomb on the ship, which works. The simulant, along with his GELF partner, Able, and Kryten, beams aboard Starbug and demands to know where the bomb is. They refuse and the simulant tells Kryten the code to a sealed file in his memory about his creator. Able helps the crew escape and they enter an asteroid belt for cover. Kryten tells Lister that his creator was supposed to be married to another scientist but he left her at the altar. She then created a mechanoid in his image, an ugly, annoying, pompous android: the 4000 series. Lister consoles him by saying that he is different now than when he was first created. The simulant ship finds them because of Able's stupidity and Kryten scolds him. Able heads out in a pod and destroys the simulant ship, sacrificing himself in the process.

Wr Doug Naylor & Robert Llewelyn

Dir Ed Bye

7 - 7 EPIDEME (PART 1)

The crew come across another Jupiter Mining Corporation vessel. Everyone on it is dead except for one person who is preserved in a block of ice. They take her aboard Starbug but the ice doesn't melt, even in very warm temperatures. They decide to leave it till morning to decide what to do. During the night, the woman inside breaks out, covered in rotting skin and dead flesh and climbs into bed with Lister, who believes it's Kochanski. One thing leads to another, but when she kisses Lister, she falls dead, and Lister realises he's just taken about half her face with that kiss. It turns out it was a virus inside the woman, known as Epideme, who infects its victims, takes their knowledge, kills them and then preserves the body and waits for another victim. Epideme has now entered Lister. After hours of trying to reason with it, they try to get rid of it by forcing it into Lister's arm and then cutting the arm off. Unfortunately, it doesn't work and Epideme begins to regenerate itself. Lister gets up and decides to sacrifice his life, because otherwise when it finishes with him, it'll move on to Kochanski and the Cat. Seconds before detonation, Epideme reveals a clue to a possible cure and they head to a planet. Unfortunately the planet was destroyed, and the cure did not lie there. Kochanski gets an idea from Epideme and temporarily kills Lister, allowing the virus to enter her, but she uses a fake arm, thus killing Epideme. They revive Lister and all is well... except that Lister only has one arm, that is.

Wr Doug Naylor & Paul Alexander

Dir Ed Bye

7 - 8 NANARCHY (PART 2)

Lister is quite annoyed that his right arm has been cut off, but seems to enjoy Kryten nursing him 24 hours a day; and Kryten is absolutely loving it. Kochanski becomes fed up with seeing Kryten doing things for him that he could easily do with one arm and comes up with a solution - use nanobots from Kryten's self-repair system to rebuild Lister's arm. Unfortunately, Kryten hasn't last seen the nanobots since they had met the Despair Squid (see Back To Reality) They all go into the deep sleep booths and make their way back to the ocean planet. The computer brings them out of deep sleep and they discover a planet which the Navicomps says is Red Dwarf. They are able to retrieve the original Holly and he explains that the nanobots had deconstructed Red Dwarf, created their own miniscule version of the ship and turned the rest into a planet for safekeeping. They realise that it was the nano version of RD that they were chasing and the nanobots evaded them by coming aboard Starbug and travelling around their own galaxy inside Lister's clothes hamper. After much persuasion, Kryten convinces the nanobots to fix Lister and Red Dwarf. The nanobots follow Kryten's orders and reconstruct Lister's body, going one step further and turning him into Mr Universe! Cat takes control and guides Starbug into Red Dwarf's landing bay. It seems awfully big and Starbug's engines make the sound of a buzzing fly as it passes under another, massive Starbug! "Uh, Guys; I think we've got a problem here!"

Wr Doug Naylor, Paul Alexander & James Hendry

Dir Ed Bye

8 - 1 BACK IN THE RED (1-3)

Season 8 begins with Lister and Rimmer (who is now alive) in their new sleeping quarters on Red Dwarf. Lister tries in vain to get Rimmer to talk to him and we then flash back to three days earlier: From where we finished the previous season, Cat pilots Starbug into the Dwarf's landing bay which is now huge. As they fly through an air vent the ship begins to shrink back to its proper size. When they finally land (or crash) Starbug we learn that the nanobots have resurrected the crew along with the ship. Lister thinks this is a godsend but Captain Hollister promptly arrests him and the others for stealing and then destroying a Starbug. While confined to his old quarters Lister is met by Rimmer and, after being disgusted that Rimmer has returned to his original smeghead self, pleads with him to help him and the others escape before they are sentenced. The Captain and the other officers are trying to figure out why they are now in deep space and how the ship has changed shape to its original design. Lister offers to help Rimmer get promoted by giving him the crews confidential files which are aboard Starbug. Rimmer gets the files and also finds the Luck Virus and Sexual Magnetism Virus (from Quarantine s5/ep3). Rimmer tries the sexual magnetism and women suddenly begin noticing him. As he saunters down the corridors amidst several women giving him the eye, he declares: "The World Loves a Bastard!" To Be Continued.....

Wr Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

8 - 2 CASANDRA

Lister mistakenly signs the gang up for the 'Canaries', prisoners that go into dangerous situations first, to ensure it is safe for VIPs. Their first mission is to investigate a derelict spaceship, and the crew comes across a computer called 'Cassandra' who can predict the future. When she predicts that Rimmer will die when the ship disintegrates, he goes to excessive lengths to prevent it from happening.

Wr Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

8 - 3 KRYTIE TV

Kryten complains to Lister about being placed in the women's wing of the prison and makes the fatal mistake of revealing he showers with them too. The male inmates want him to sneak in a camera and film them but he refuses. Kill Crazy and some other inmates reprogram him, turning him into a ruthless entrepreneur and he creates "Krytie TV", a pay-per-view service offering "Women's Shower Night" and other events. Lister tries to get Kryten to stop, as he and Rimmer are in the middle of an appeal against their sentences, but Kryten plays a trick on them, getting them to mistakenly trash Ackerman's quarters live on Krytie TV.

Wr Doug Naylor & Paul Alexander.

Dir Ed Bye

8 - 4 PETE (1-2)

Lister and Rimmer are constantly getting into trouble. After playing a practical joke on Ackerman they are forced to play in an inmates vs guards basketball game and win by putting erectile solution in the guards drinks. Punishment for that is to peel potatoes for the next three weeks and to make that go faster they steal a programmable virus to peel them but it ends up eating their clothes and hair. Punishment for that is to spend three weeks in the Hole where they meet Birdman, who has been in there for nine years and has only one friend, a sparrow named Pete. Meanwhile Kryten, Cat and Kochanski are sent aboard a derelict ship where they find a device which can change the time stream surrounding an object or person to make it move extremely slow or fast and decide to use it to make their prison sentences go by in a flash. On Red Dwarf they freeze the crew and break Lister, Rimmer and Birdman out of the hold. Unfortunately Pete dies and Kryten tries to use the device to bring him back but accidentally reverses his evolution by several million years, turning Pete into a T-Rex.....

Wr Doug Naylor , Paul Alexander

Dir Ed Bye

8 - 5 ONLY THE GOOD

An escape pod docks with the Dwarf and is carrying the only survivor of a ship which was attacked by a genetically-engineered corrosive lifeform. Unfortunately, the corrosive material is also on board and begins to eat away at Red Dwarf. Meanwhile Lister tricks Kryten into believing that Kochanski's 'time-of-the-month' is an event to be celebrated and he embarrasses himself in front of her. Plotting revenge, Kryten steals four flagons of illegal alcohol from an inmate and leaves it in Lister and Rimmer's cell just before an inspection. Lister discovers the alcohol and he and Rimmer are forced to drink it before their inspection. They only take one mouthful out of the bottle and are immediately drunk. Meanwhile, the crew learn of the lifeform destroying Red Dwarf and plan to abandon ship, leaving the prisoners aboard to die. The gang figure out a way to combat the lifeform by creating a doorway into an opposite universe and finding the opposite to the corrosive material. Rimmer goes through the doorway first but the machine malfunctions and he is stuck there until the others can fix it. Rimmer finds the formula for the opposite substance and goes back to his reality, but he learns that the ship is rapidly breaking apart and the others are nowhere to be found. He goes to make the formula but realises that it has reverted to the corrosive substance and is useless. He is knocked out and lies on the floor awaiting the inevitable when the Grim Reaper appears and tells him that his time has come. Rimmer gets up and unceremoniously knees Death in the groin, and quips: "Remember, Only The Good Die Young!"

THE END.....

THE SMEG IT IS!!!

Wr Doug Naylor

Dir Ed Bye

RED SHADOW - THE MASKED NINJA

AKA: AKAKAGE

AKA: RED SHADOW

AKA: KAMEN NO NINJA AKAKAGE

AKA: MASKED NINJA RED SHADOW

Red Shadow (Sakaguchi) is the son of the Shadow ninja clan. Working for Tokichiro Kinoshita, later known as Hideyoshi, he fights alongside gadget man Blue Shadow (Kaneko) and master of disguise White Shadow (Maki). The Red Shadow series divides into four story arcs - the first comprises a battle to stop the Order of the Golden Eye, a conspiracy led by Yogensai Kaga, who is plotting to take over Japan. Kaga's men include Oboro Ikkan, a giant who can make his body as thin as paper and float into the air, he is just one of many super-powered adversaries faced by the ninja in the style of Phantom Agents.

The villains of the second story arc are the Swastika Party, a Christian group attempting to obtain the Bells of Zeus, Satan and Maria, sacred objects brought from Portugal as gifts for Nobunga. As with The Samurai, the new adversary is in fact an offshoot of the original - the Swastika Party has been formed by Yogensai Kaga after the failure of his previous conspiracy. The time, Kaga's ultimate weapon is a flying saucer armed with missiles. For the third and fourth seasons, the enemies are rival clans of ninja - the Thirteen Activists of Nerai and the Silent Army of Fuma.

Thought redolent of superhero shows like ULTRAMAN, RS was still classified as a period drama. This is supposedly because it has a historical basis! By the tortuous process of para-logic, the historical Nogunaga was reputedly interested in Dark Arts, which makes it possible that his subordinate Tokichiro Kinoshita had contacts with ninja, who are (we are assured) genuine historical characters, and not at all the concoctions of TV writers and pulp novelists RS was actually based on a wholly fictional manga by Mitsuteru Yokoyama, creator of Johnny Sokko and His Giant Robot.

One of the earliest products of the thaw in relations between the traditionally antagonistic TV companies and film companies, RS was made as a co-production between Toei and Kansai TV. It was the first all colour period drama on Japanese TV, luxuriating in its rainbow of hues so much of it often appears virtually psychedelic - compare to INFRARED MUSIC. The story was resurrected in 1987 as a 23 - episode anime series and again in 2001 as Hiroyuki Nakano's live-action movie, to mark the 50th anniversary of Toei.

Kamen no Ninja Akakage Ninja & Monsters

Note: some episodes have ninja (1 or more) and a giant monster or monsters, some have just ninja no giant monsters and some have just giant monsters no ninja.

Dai Ichi Bu [Chapter 1]

1. Ninja: Gama Houshi and Kinenbû
Monster: Sennengama (Millenary Toad)
2. Ninja: Kugutsu Jinnai, Akudôji, Yami Hime
3. Ninja: Kugutsu Jinnai and Gama Houshi
Monster: Sennengama
4. Ninja: Kugutsu Jinnai and Gama Houshi
Monster: Dai Doku Kumo (Big Poisonous Spider)
5. Ninja: Oboro Ikkan

6. Ninja: Oboro Ikkan
Monster: Kin Me Zô (Golden Eye Figure)
7. Ninja: Oboro Ikkan and Mu Dô Hitotsume
Monster: Hitotsume
8. Ninja: Mu Dô Hitotsume
Monsters: Hitotsume and Kyô Me Zô (Mighty Me Zô)
9. Ninja: Oboro Ikkan and Yami Hime
Monster: kyô Me Zô
10. Ninja: Oboro Ikkan, Yami Hime, Kinenbû, Gama Houshi , Kuro Kômorî
Monsters: Kyô Me Zô, Dai Kômorî (Big Bat)
11. Ninja: Oboro Ikkan, Yami Hime, Kinenbû
Monster: Kyô Me Zô
12. Ninja: Yami Hime
Monster: Kyô Me Zô
13. Monster: Kyô Me Zô

Dai Ni Bu [Chapter 2]

14. Ninja: Shiranui Tenma and Gyorin Ryu Haku
15. Ninja: Shiranui Tenma and Haku Kûki
16. Ninja: Syûjû Sakon, Marûjyo, Musa Sabi Douken
17. Ninja: Syûjû Sakon, Marûjyo, Haku Kûki, Gyorin Ryu Haku, Shiranui Tenma
18. Ninja: Syûjû Sakon, Marûjyo, Haku Kûki, Gyorin Ryu Haku, Shiranui Tenma,
Musa Sabi Douken
Monster: Dai Musasabi
19. Ninja: Syûjû Sakon, Marûjyo, Haku Kûki, Gyorin Ryu Haku, Shiranui Tenma,
Musa Sabi Douken, Kuro Dûshi
20. Ninja: Gyorin Ryu Haku and Shiranui Tenma
21. Ninja: Gyorin Ryu Haku, Syûjû Sakon, Marûjyo
22. Ninja: Kuro Dûshi, Syûjû Sakon, Marûjyo
23. Ninja: Kuro Dûsh and Marûjyo
24. Ninja: Kuro Dûshi, Haku Kûki, Musa Sabi Douken
25. Ninja: Kuro Dûshi, Haku Kûki, Musa Sabi Douken
26. Ninja: Kuro Dûshi and Haku Kûki

Dai San Bu [Chapter 3]

27. Ninja: Mizumasi Ryuma
Monster: Ganda
28. Ninja: Uzumaki Ikkansei
Monster: Ganda

29. Ninja: Yamabiko Ta Mon Maru
Monster: Gabari
30. Ninja: Arinomi Ganbei
Monster: Gabari
31. Ninja: Hyaku Menk and Yaka, Tsumuji
Monster: Agon
32. Ninja: Hyaku Menki, Yaka, Tsumuji, Mushiyase Kazaha
Monster: Agon
33. Ninja: Mushiyase Kazaha and Hitomukade no yajiri
Monsters: Agon & Doguma
34. Ninja: Mushiyase Kazaha and Hitomukade no yajiri
Monster: Doguma
35. Ninja: Nagareboshi Sajyû
Monster: Gappo
36. Ninja: Mafû Gyûbu
Monster: Jyako
37. Ninja: Izayoi Genshin
Monster: Jyako
38. Monsters: Ganda, Gabari, Agon, Doguma, Gappo, Jyako
39. Monsters: Ganda, Gabari, Agon, Doguma, Gappo, Jyako

Dai Yon Bu [Chapter 4]

40. Ninja: Yome Cyusai and Komô Jijhyû
Monster: Guron
41. Ninja: Yome Cyusai and Komô Jijhyû
Monster: Guron
42. Ninja: Kuroma Saruhiko and Kuroma Inuhiko
Monster: Gizzorun
43. Ninja: Kuroma Saruhiko, Kuroma Inuhiko, Chishio Syûgen
Monster: Gizzorun
44. Ninja: Kuroma Saruhiko, Kuroma Inuhiko, Yami no Kurozo
Monster: Gagara
45. Ninja: Kuroma Saruhiko, Kuroma Inuhiko, Kuchyashi Mizuno
Monster: Gagara
46. Ninja: Kuroma Saruhiko, Kuroma Inuhiko, Ashikiri Mondo
Monsters: Gagara and Zabami
47. Ninja: Kuroma Saruhiko, Kuroma Inuhiko, Ashikiri Mondo
Monster: Zabami
48. Ninja: Indûbû Onimaru
Monster: Babiran
49. Ninja: Hananoko Douhaku
Monster: Babiran

50. Ninja: Fudû Kongûmaru
51. Monsters: Guron, Gizorun, Gagara, Zabami, Babiran, Jijigora
52. Ninja: Dekka Dekka Tôma
Monsters: Guron, Gizorun, Gagara, Zabami, Babiran, Jijigora

WR. Masaru Igami

DIR. Junji Kurata

EPISODES: 52 YEAR MADE: 1967 COUNTRY: JAP SEASONS: 1

TOEI

CREATOR: MITSUTERU YOKOYAMA

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: Japanese

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 52

DATE OF PREMIER: 05/04/1967 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 27/03/1968

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Red Shadow YUZABURO SAKAGUCHI, Blue Shadow YOSHINOBU KANEKO, White Shadow
FUYKICHI MAKI, SHIRO OTSUJI.

RELATED SHOWS:

ULTRAMAN

INFRARED MUSIC

- 1 - 1 TOAD PRIEST APPAIRITION (CHAPTER 1 START)
- 1 - 2 THE KOUGA'S EVIL CHILD
- 1 - 3 GAMA HOUSHI'S COUNTERATTACK
- 1 - 4 THE MYSTERIOUS SPY'S MANSION
- 1 - 5 RIDDLE OF THE NINJA TOP
- 1 - 6 FRIGHTNING BIG EVIL FIGURE
- 1 - 7 ONE-EYED WITCH GOBLIN
- 1 - 8 SECRET OF SOUTHERN BARBARIAN TUBE
- 1 - 9 IMMORTAL EVIL FIGURE
- 1 - 10 MYSTERIOUS NINJA KURO KOMORI
- 1 - 11 KINENBU'S IRON VEHICLE
- 1 - 12 YAMI HIME'S HAIR STORM
- 1 - 13 DESTRUCTION STRATEGY OF BIG EVIL FIGURE
- 1 - 14 RIDDLE OF THE MANJI CLAN (CHAPTER 2 START)
- 1 - 15 LITTLE PRISET HAKU KUKI
- 1 - 16 THE NEEDLECREST DEMON MONSTER
- 1 - 17 IMMORTAL MARUJYO
- 1 - 18 MONSTER CROW
- 1 - 19 THE TWIRLING UMBRELLA NINJA TECHNIQUE
- 1 - 20 MONSTER GREAT MANJI
- 1 - 21 SKELETONS SWALLOWED BY WHIRLING TIDES

- 1 - 22 THE FORM-CHANING MONSTER
- 1 - 23 MARUJYO FROM HELL
- 1 - 24 THE GROSBEAK SIBLINGS
- 1 - 25 DEMON BELLS
- 1 - 26 BIG EXPLOSION
- 1 - 27 13 KON NINJAS ARRIVAL (CHAPTER 3 START)
- 1 - 28 BIG MONSTER FISH NINJA SKILL
- 1 - 29 YAMABIKO TRANSFORM NINJA SKILL
- 1 - 30 ANT MONSTER GABARI
- 1 - 31 STRANGE NINJA HYAKU MENKI
- 1 - 32 AGON IRON ARMOR
- 1 - 33 BIG CENTIPEDE DOGUMA
- 1 - 34 MONSTER BIG COUNTERATTACK
- 1 - 35 OWL MONSTER GAPPO
- 1 - 36 STONE BUDDHA NINJA SKILL
- 1 - 37 NINJA MONSTER JYAKO
- 1 - 38 MONSTERS NINJAS FULL FORCES
- 1 - 39 6 BIG MONSTERS COUNTERATTACK
- 1 - 40 FUMA CLAN NINJAS INVASION (CHAPTER 4 START)
- 1 - 41 ARMORED MONSTER GURON
- 1 - 42 THE STEEL WHIP NINJA TECHNIQUE
- 1 - 43 VAMPIRE MONSTER GIZORUN
- 1 - 44 THE NINJA WITHOUT A FACE
- 1 - 45 ROCK MONSTER GAGARA
- 1 - 46 MONSTER GAGARA VERSUS ZAMAMI
- 1 - 47 MONSTER FROM FUMA TEMPLE
- 1 - 48 CHILDREN'S NINJA TECHNIQUE CONTEST
- 1 - 49 CANNIBAL FLOWER BABIRAN
- 1 - 50 LIZARD NINJA-BEAST JIJIGORA
- 1 - 51 FUMA NINJA FORCES DECISIVE BATTLE
- 1 - 52 SIX BIG MONSTER ENCIRCLEMENT

RED TIGER

AKA: UFO GREAT WAR - FIGHT!

AKA: UFO WAR : FIGHT! RED TIGER

AKA: UFO DAISENSOU - TATTAKAE! RED TIGER

800 Light Years Away in another galaxy, the evil empire of Black Danger Maoh has conquered much of galactic space. They now set their sights on Earth's Solar System. As part of their plan, they seek out Prof. Azuma, who has created the massive Robot Fortress "Rumble Giant".

Fearing that they could use the power of "Rumble Giant" against Earth, Prof. Azuma hides the secrets of the fortress within the body of his wife. The process wipes out her memories and she soon goes missing.

Prof. Azuma's faithful companion robot Robo Q is sent out to find her along with his three children Taiyo, Tsukiko and Seibu. Together they fend off the invading armies of Black Danger Maoh.

They are aided in their fight by a mysterious costumed hero calling himself "Red Tiger". Unbeknownst to the siblings, Red Tiger is actually their long-lost older brother Ginga, who years before (at the age of 5) been abducted by a UFO.

While normally his costume is white, when angered Red Tiger can power up his abilities by shouting "Red Henshin Spark" (similar to Robot Keiji).

The original music was by Shunsuke Kikuchi.

Furuya Toru is best known as the voice behind brooding hero Amuro Ray in the series "Kidou Senshi Gundam" He also portrayed the voice of Yamucha in "Dragon Ball", Tokugawa Daisuke in "Uchu Senkan Yamato" and Gotenban Shingo in "Urusei Yatsura".

Nojima Akio also provided voice work in such Anime as "Aku Daisakusen Shrunge"(Captain Chance); "Muteki Chojin Zambot 3"(Shinichi Taro); and "Muteki Robo Strider G-7" (Kawamura).

Godzilla fans will instantly recognize Jerry Ito as the villainous Clark Nelson in "Mothra". Born in New York City, Ito has also starred in other films including "Sekai Daisensou" (AKA Last War) and "Golgo 13: Kyuryu No Kubi" (AKA Assignment Kowloon).

Air Times

Saturdays; 6:00 - 6:30 PM (Episodes 1-13)

Tuesdays; 6:00 - 6:30 PM (Episodes 14-25)

Wednesdays; 7:30-8:00 PM (Episodes 26-39)

Filming - Kourakuen Stadium; Yamamoto Masatsuru (Eniran)

Producers - Yanagisawa Takayuki (Tokyo 12); Nakano Shoji (Ohiro); Suzuki Shou

Music - Kikuchi Shunsuke

Miniatures Designer - Takahashi Teruhiko

Cinematography - Wata Hideo

Lighting - Matsumaru Yoshiaki

Art Design - Yasuda Hiyoshi

Sound - Ozuka Harutoshi

Stunt Coordinators - Okada Shou; Asami Hideyuki

SFX - Shoei Sha Tokugi Han (The Shoei Special Effects Group)

WR. Oono Koutaro

DIR. Hashimoto Yutaka

EPISODES: 39 YEAR MADE: 1978 COUNTRY: JAP SEASONS:

TOKYO 12 CHANNEL, SHOEI SHA

CREATOR: OONO KOUTARO

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: Japanese

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 39

DATE OF PREMIER: 08/04/1978 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 28/12/1978

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

TETSUYA NAKAYASHIKI, Prof. Amano JERRY ITO, Voice of Red Tiger FURUYA TORU, Amano Taiyo HOSHI KATSUMI, Amano Tsukiko ANNETTE ORELL, Amano Seibu FURUTA GORO, Voice of Robo Q NOJIMA AKIO, Voice of Chibi Q AZUMA MIE, Black Danger Maoh ITSUKA SHOUZOU, Queen Gilba OKADA RIKAKO.

- 1 - 1 KINGA IS KIDNAPPED
- 1 - 2 EXPLOSIVE! KILL THE RED TIGER
- 1 - 3 MOTHER'S MASK
- 1 - 4 SOS! THEY KNOW THEY SECRET
- 1 - 5 THE SECRET OF RUMBLE GIANT
- 1 - 6 MOTHER RETURNS
- 1 - 7 THE HOWLING SKYSCRAPPER
- 1 - 8 FROM THE GALAXY COMES "GINGA"
- 1 - 9 SIBILING UNITED AFTER 15 YEARS
- 1 - 10 AN EXPLOSION! COULD IT BE MOTHER!
- 1 - 11 THE SPACE CIRCUIT IS COMPLETE
- 1 - 12 MOTHER'S MEMORIES RETURN
- 1 - 13 THE MYSTERIOUS DOOR OPENS
- 1 - 14 30 SECONDS TILL THE TOWER LAUNCHES
- 1 - 15 AMUSEMENT PARK MYSTERY RESOLVED
- 1 - 16 THE SECRET OF THE ANCIENT STATUE
- 1 - 17 BEHIND THE SECRET DOOR
- 1 - 18 THE TALKING BIRD TELLS THE SECRET
- 1 - 19 ROBO Q EXPLODES! TO SHED A TEAR
- 1 - 20 CHIBI Q REVELS ITS SECRET
- 1 - 21 THE TAKING OF THE KING OF THE MOON
- 1 - 22 ATTACK ON THE SOUTH BASE
- 1 - 23 CHILDREN OF THE FLAMINGO
- 1 - 24 THE BEAUTIFUL EARTH ESCAPEE
- 1 - 25 THE TREE CLIMBING KID IS IN DANGER
- 1 - 26 MOON + STAR + SUN = ?
- 1 - 27 THE FRIENDSHIP OF CHIBI Q AND WARU Q

- 1 - 28 CHAKO TAKES TO THE SKIES
- 1 - 29 THE PLAYER #3 AND THE HARMONICA
- 1 - 30 HELLO KID DEMON
- 1 - 31 I BELIVE THAT EVEN RAIN WON'T STOP YOU
- 1 - 32 MOTHER WAS AN ALIEN
- 1 - 33 JUMBO KING - TEARS OF AN ANGEL
- 1 - 34 VILLAGE OF THE DEMON
- 1 - 35 I WAS KILLED BY MY FRIEND, MIYOKO TAAHURA
- 1 - 36 THE KID FROM SPACE
- 1 - 37 GO FOURTH RUMBLE GIANT
- 1 - 38 A DANGEROUS FOE RETURNS
- 1 - 39 THE LAST OF EARTH'S DEATH GODS

REDMAN

Broadcast as a part of the Good Morning! Children's show, Redman features a superhero from the planet Red, who fights with a monster each day to keep the Earth safe. Guest foes included costumes previously seen in ULTRAMAN and MIRRORMAN.

Who is Redman?

Powers/Abilities

Red-Man's body is powered by red-hot magma. This energy imbues Red-Man with extraordinary powers and abilities. Using this power Red-Man is able to run, swim and fly at incredible speeds. He has incredible strength and stamina.

While his size has never been clearly defined, it is presumed that he can change his size at will (similar to Godman and Spectraman).

Red-Man is shielded by a personal force field (Red Barrier) which gives him some limited protection.

Red-Man has super hearing through his 'Red Ear' antenna pieces. These ear pieces can also serve to translate and interpret every vocal language he encounters. With his enhanced intelligence he is able to keep a record of every known monster and alien life form he encounters.

With his 'Red Mouth' he is able to speak every alien and foreign language perfectly.

Since Red-Man draws power from fire and the solar energies of the sun, he is dependent on constant sources of heat and sunlight to give him power. Thus on cloudy/rainy days and nights Red-Man's powers are cut into half. If Red-Man is exposed to extreme cold and/or snow, he is severely weakened.

Red-Man's personal weapons include:

'Red Beam Lens'

From the yellow jewel on his helmet he is able to project an intense laser beam that can cut down his opponents.

'Red Fire'

From his right hand's index finger Fire-Man is able to generate and expel intense jets of fire which can incinerate and burn everything in its path.

'Slice Cutter'

From Red-Man's helmet he is able to generate and launch a beam of light that can slice and cut through several layers of solid steel.

'Red Arrow'

Red-Man's hand-held weapon. A long javelin like weapon which Red-Man can hurl and impale his enemies. He can also use it in close battles to jab and stab his enemies. The Red Arrow can also generate an electrical charge that can shock his enemies. Normally miniaturized to fit in his gloves.

'Red Knife'

Red-Man's hand-held weapon. A short knife which Red-Man can use to cut and stab his enemies. Made from a super dense alien metal that can cut through most Earth substances. Normally miniaturized to fit in his gloves.

'Red Kick'

Red-Man's super strong kick attack. Can dent steel and iron with one hit.

'Red Chop'

Red-Man's karate chop attack. Can crumble several feet of concrete and steel.

'Red Punch'

Red-Man's deadly punch attack. This attack can punch a hole through several inches of steel and concrete.

Trivia

The 'Red-Man' series closely resembled the 'Ultra Fight' (1970-1971) series which basically revolved around a series of monster battles between Ultra Seven and various enemies from earlier Ultra series. In 'Red-Man' the title character battles against a string of enemies and monsters from 'Ultra Q', 'Ultraman', 'Ultra Seven', 'Mighty Jack' and 'Kaette Kita Ultraman AKA Ultraman Jack'. It is not clear what Red-Man's relationship (if any) is with the Ultra Family.

Other Tokusatsu installments of the 'Ohayo! Kodomo Show' include 'Yuke! Godman (Go Forth! Godman (1972) and Yuke! Green Man (Go Forth! Green Man; 1973).

Broadcast : Nihon TV

Music : Yamashita Takeo

Theme Songs

Red-Man

Sung by: Shimon Masatou

Lyrics by: Fuji Konosuke

Music by: Yamashita Takeo

Arrangement by: Hirose Masakazu

Sekiyou Red-Man

Sung by: Shimon Masatou

Lyrics by: Fuji Konosuke

Music by: Yamashita Takeo

Arrangement by: Hirose Masakazu

- Astoron (from Ultraman Jack) 3, 4, 52, 55, 56
- Balton Seijin (from Ultraman) 13, 16
- Batou Seijin (from Ultraman Jack) 121, 123, 126, 127
- Bekon (from Ultraman Jack) 36, 38, 39, 40, 41, 122, 124, 126, 127, 136
- Bem-Star (from Ultraman Jack) 35, 39
- Big Riger (Original Character) - Various
- Black King (from Ultraman Jack) 2, 5
- Dakuro (from Mirrorman) 1
- Danga (from Ultraman Jack) 26, 54
- Doracco (from Ultraman) 8, 11, 63, 73, 77, 78, 128, 132, 134, 135
- Dorakurasu (from Ultraman Jack) 97, 98, 120, 123, 125
- Ele-King (from Ultra Seven) 31, 32, 33, 60, 68, 70, 74, 138
- Garamon (from Ultra Q) 6, 10, 23, 67, 69, 73, 76, 77, 79
- Gedon (Original Character) 94, 95, 97, 98, 101, 103, 105, 106, 107, 108, 110, 111, 112, 113, 115, 117, 136, 137
- Gokinezura (from Ultraman Jack) 29, 30, 102, 105
- Gomora (from Ultraman) 18, 20, 21, 95, 96, 98, 99
- Goron Seijin (from Ultra Seven) 14, 17
- Gostoron (from Ultraman Jack) 27, 28, 57, 80, 84, 88, 90, 92, 93
- Greygas (Original Character) Various
- Guranadasu (from Ultraman Jack) 66
- Guronken (from Ultraman Jack) 43, 46, 47, 49, 82, 83
- Icarus Seijin (from Ultra Seven) 7, 9, 65, 66, 71, 75, 114, 118, 119, 121, 124, 125
- Jirasu (from Ultraman) 13, 15, 16, 61, 70, 75, 100, 103, 107, 109, 110
- Kanegon (from Ultra Q) 19
- Kentaurusu Seijin (from Ultraman Jack) 87
- King Mai Mai (from Ultraman Jack) 33
- King Stron (from Ultraman Jack) 45, 50
- Kodaigon (from Ultraman Jack) 62, 69, 96, 97, 130, 133, 134, 135
- Melpherus Seijin (from Ultraman) 22, 23, 25

- Mistera Seijin (from Ultraman Jack) 51, 54, 55, 56
- Nokogirin (from Ultraman Jack) 32, 35, 38
- Ou (from Ultraman) 19, 20, 21, 22, 24, 64, 72, 76
- Pegira (from Ultra Q) 12, 14, 57, 81, 85, 89, 91, 92, 93, 101, 104, 106, 107
- Puruma (from Ultraman Jack) 82,
- Red Killer (from Ultraman Jack) 94, 98, 99, 100, 102, 104, 107
- Saatan (from Ultraman Jack) 35, 36, 37, 40, 41, 42, 53, 56
- Sadora (from Ultraman Jack) 26, 28, 112, 116, 117, 118, 119, 120, 122, 125, 126, 127, 131, 133, 134
- Sasahira (from Ultraman Jack) 86, 90, 91, 93
- Shugaron (from Ultraman Jack) 109, 111, 112, 116, 119, 137
- Sphinga (Original Character) Various
- Sutegon (from Ultraman Jack) 47, 49, 50
- Teresudon (from Ultraman) 31, 34, 59, 67, 74, 78
- Zagorasu (from Ultraman Jack) 58, 68, 108, 113, 117, 118, 119
- Zarusu (from Mighty Jack) 44, 45, 47, 48
- Zetton II (from Ultraman Jack) 129, 132, 134

WR.DIR. Kanji Otsuka, Tatsuki Adachi.EPISODES: 138 YEAR MADE: 1972 COUNTRY: JAP SEASONS: 1*TSUBURAYA / NTVCREATOR:*TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHEROFORMAT: SERIESLENGTH (MINS): 5 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: JapaneseSEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 138DATE OF PREMIER: 24/04/1972AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 03/10/1972SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:*FILMS:

RELATED SHOWS:ULTRAMANMIRRORMAN

REDOUTABLES, LES

Produced by Christian Charret (co-executive producer), Gabriel Mamruth (co-executive producer), aurent Tolleron (executive producer).

This "film" is actually a made for TV mini-series. Its theme is death, and each segment is handled by a different French director. Some of these directors are well-known artists (Claude Chabrol, Georges Lautner), many are new men on the scene (most of them have already made a long-length movie, though). The segments are very uneven as could be expected. Personally, I'll only remember the "Confession" segment, which is why I've rented the whole thing. The main attraction here is Christopher Lee playing... death, a fitting role if there ever was one. The British actor plays the reaper with his usual charm and witty humour has been added to the character. He is opposed to a priest played by the late French character actor Ticky Holgado, which accounts for a pretty funny mixture. Lee speaks in a perfectly enunciated French, in those dark murmuring tones that suits his characters so well. The segment is directed by René Manzor, who has an interest in horror cinema, which is a rare case among French directors. This segment is worth a watch, while even Chabrol and Lautner disappoint

WR. Stephane Bourcier, Stephane Gateau, Mathieu Guillermo, Philippe Nessler.

DIR. Thierry Barthes, Thierry Biniti, Yves Boisset, Bernie Bonvoisin, Laurent Bouhnik, Claude Chabrol, George Launter.

EPISODES: 13 YEAR MADE: 2001 COUNTRY: FRA SEASONS: 1

13E RUE, ATHANOR, GETEVE

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: COMEDY

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 10 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: French

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 13

DATE OF PREMIER: 18/01/2001 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Death CHRISTOPHER LEE, BERENICE BEJO, JEAN BEANGUIGUI, MANUEL BLANC, The salesman DIDIER BENUREAU, CHRISTIAN CHARMETANT, PATRICK CHESNAIS, MARION COTILLARD, BERNARD-PIERRE DONNADIEU, ZOE FELIX, HIPPOLYTE GIRARDOT, SYLVIE GRANOTIER, STEPHAN GUERIN-TILLIE, TICKY HOLGADO, ROGER IBANEZ, NICOLAS KORETZKY, GERALD LAROCHE, JEAN LUISI, Military woman MATHILDA MAY, BERNARD MONTIEL, EDOUARD MONTOUTE, ALEXANDRA VANDERNOOT, ASTRID VEILLON, MARIANNE VIARD, HELENE VINCENT.

- YVEETA

REGENESIS

Tagline: Have we gone too far?

The future is here. Bioterrorism. Designer babies. Frankenfoods. Suddenly Humanity possesses the ability to play god. But is it progress or madness? Will cutting-edge science be our salvation? Or our demise?

The Pandora's box of biotech is wide open. It's a modern gold rush, where billions will be made and geo-power will be staked. And everyone's involved: governments, multinational drug companies, rogue states, and terrorist. But ideas can't be put back in once they're out, they're out.

ReGenesis is a Canadian television program produced by The Movie Network and Movie Central. The series revolves around the scientists of NorBAC (The North American Biotechnology Advisory Commission), a fictional organisation with a lab based in Toronto. The organisation deals with problems throughout Canada, the United States, and Mexico.

The series is primarily about NorBAC's director, David Sandström (played by Peter Outerbridge), and his work with the other scientists.

ReGenesis has been an international pioneer in integrating interactive media elements into the series. The first successfully deployed Alternate Reality Game paired with a major television broadcast is called the ReGenesis Extended Reality. It has already won the Canadian New Media Award for Best Cross-Platform project of 2004 and an FITC Design & Technology Award for Excellence in Convergence. An exploratory game, the ReGenesis Extended Reality draws viewers into a conspiracy and mystery that weaves in and out of the TV series, using the internet, email and other media to immerse the viewer, blurring the line between fiction and reality. ReGenesis Extended Reality harnesses the power of enthusiastic fans that seed the site with discussion content and collaborative investigations.

As well, the first season of ReGenesis has introduced podcasts called ReGenesis:ReMixed.

ReGenesis:ReMixed is an audio journey into the musical world of the TV series ReGenesis. Hosted by co-music supervisor Andrea Higgins, ReGenesis:ReMixed focuses on the musical artists, the songs and the underscore heard in the series.

The series is broadcast on Global, Sci-fi (UK), The Movie Network, and Movie Central. The first Season of the series was also available on The Movie Network's on demand service, available on Cogeco Cable and Rogers Cable.

Produced by - Tom Chehak executive producer , Scott Garvie producer , Laura Harbin co-producer , Christina Jennings executive producer
Shane Kinnear co-producer , Virginia Rankin producer

Original Music by Michael A. McCann (main theme) & Tom Third

Cinematography by Nikos Evdemon , Michael Storey

Film Editing by Tom Joerin , Vesna Svilanovic

Casting by Deirdre Bowen

Production Design by Sandra Kybartas

Second Unit Director or Assistant Director - Emanuel 'Manny' Danelon second unit director , Francesca

Palozzi trainee assistant director

Kristie Sills second assistant director , Joshua Stratton third assistant director , Kevin Walker first assistant director

Art Department - Garry Honcharuk property master

Sound Department - Stephen Cheung adr mixer , John Dykstra foley recordist

Special Effects by - Brock Jolliffe special effects supervisor

Visual Effects by Naomi Anderlini main title designer , Paul C. George visual effects , Mark Goldberg digital compositor , Phil Jones visual effects supervisor: Technicolor

Stunts - Darren Marsman stunt coordinator

Other crew - Mark Alleyne location production assistant , Judy Chui location manager , Tracey Forbes executive story editor (2005-2006)

Elmer Jones location manager , Sandy Lewis second assistant accountant , Chris Mayo video conform editor , Jeremy Pinard location production assistant , Susan Rosset first assistant accountant , Dave Sansford generator operator , Chris Sheasgreen production assistant Drew Taylor assistant location manager.

WR. Tom Chehak, Tracey Forbes ,Avrum Jacobson ,Christina Jennings, Jason Sherman

DIR. Jerry Ciccoritti, John L'Ecuyer, Don McBrearty

EPISODES: 39 YEAR MADE: 2004 COUNTRY: CAN SEASONS: 3

CORUS ENTERTAINMENT, MOVIE CENTRAL NETWORK, SHAFTESBURY FILMS, THE MOVIE NETWORK

CREATOR: CHRISTINA JENNINGS

TYPE OF SHOW: SCIENCE

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 60 STILL IN PRODUCTION: Yes B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 13, (2) 13, (3) 13

DATE OF PREMIER: 24/10/2004 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN: Season 1 : 24/10/2004 - 23/01/2005

Season 2 : 19/03/2006 - 11/06/2006

FILMS:

David Sandström PETER OUTERBRIDGE, Caroline Morrison MAXIM ROY, Carlos Serrano CONRAD PLA, Mayko Tran MAYKO NGUYEN, Bob Melnikov DMITRY CHEPOVETSKY, Hira Kahn MISHU VELLANI, Weston Field GREG BRYK, Lilith Sandström ELLEN PAGE, Jill Langston SARAH STRANGE, Daisy Markovic KRISTIN BOOTH, Mick Sloane MARK RENDALL, Twyla TARA SPENCER-NARIN.

1 - 1 BABY BOMB

It's a race against time to identify the cause of a deadly virus, spreading rapidly and headed straight for the city. It's up to NorBAC to identify patient zero and contain the outbreak. As if a deadly virus wasn't enough, NorBAC's Chief Scientist, David Sandström must deal with the unexpected arrival of his belligerent teenage daughter, Lilith, and arguments with NorBAC's Executive Director Caroline Morrison over the security clearance of the one member of his team he'll need the most, his top virologist.

Wr Avrum Jacobson, Jason Sherman

Dir John L'Ecuyer

1 - 2 SPACE PARTS

Lilith befriends Mick, who is dying and desperate for David to help him discover if he really is a clone and possibly save his life. Meanwhile, NorBAC has managed to locate patient zero and must proceed with the interrogations at "Hazmat City". Was this an act of bioterrorism? Caroline is determined to find out who's responsible as more die and one more is exposed. David must now face his fate.

Wr Jason Sherman

Dir Don McBrearty

1 - 3 THE FACE OF GOD

Mick turns to Lilith, who helps him steal evidence from the scientist who cloned him, his own father.

Meanwhile, Caroline suggests that Hira has possible terrorist links and shuts her out of NorBAC. David must bring Hira back. But when he does he's confronted with a rally outside NorBAC, lead by a fanatical reverend who claims that Christ can be genetically resurrected with a nail from the True Cross. The reverend wants him to prove it, but David isn't interested in playing God. In the frenzy, shots are fired and someone is hit.

Wr Tom Chehak

Dir John L'Ecuyer

1 - 4 PRIONS

NorBAC investigates an outbreak of prion disease (mad cow) in humans. The victims are spread out across North America. How are the cases connected? In the aftermath of Hiras's death, David is determined to expose the fraudulent reverend from episode 3. David suspects his old friend Danny, a hockey player, is using a dangerous performance-enhancing steroid.

Wr Tom Chehak

Dir Don McBrearty

1 - 5 THE OLDEST VIRUS

As the search continues for the source of the deadly prions, NorBAC zeros in on a large agribusiness they suspect of selling infected chickens. David tries to convince Danny to stop gene therapy. Caroline insists that David interview Jill Langston for the vacated virologist position at NorBAC. His reluctance turns to lust when he meets her.

Wr Avrum Jacobson

Dir John L'Ecuyer

1 - 6 THE TRIALS

NorBAC reviews an experimental treatment being used on children with leukemia. Just as they are about to declare the cancer therapy safe, another child dies. David disregards the proper channels and goes to Nunavut to get a sample of what he believes is the Spanish flu virus from a frozen corpse. Mick and Lilith go whale-watching in Quebec, but Lilith begins to realize just how sick he is.

Wr Chris Philpott

Dir Don McBrearty

1 - 7 FAINT HOPE

Carlos Serrano, the Senior Researcher at NorBAC wants to help a friend dying of AIDS participate in cutting edge research. He convinces David to help supply a Houston lab with contraband stem cells in order for his friend to be the first guinea pig for this radical gene therapy. When another child dies, David is determined to find out why the cancer treatment isn't working.

Wr Lara McKinnon

Dir Don McBrearty

1 - 8 BLACKOUT

A major power blackout on the Eastern Seaboard leads to fears of terrorist activity. NorBAC determines that a plastic eating bacterium caused the blackout and they must stop it before more blackouts occur. David and Lilith's mother (Julie Stewart), rekindle old animosities when she comes to town to help Lilith deal with Mick's death. Caroline is worried about the possibility of having breast cancer. Bob tells David he has been approached with another job offer.

Wr Jason Sherman

Dir John L'Ecuyer

1 - 9 THE SECRET WAR

Mayko Tran, NorBAC's bioinformatics researcher, notifies the team at NorBAC about a case of privately contracted civilians who have all returned from Iraq exhibiting a wide range of mysterious illnesses. Meanwhile, Carlos asks NorBAC to investigate multiple cases of hemophilia in a small community in Mexico, where a large multi-national laboratory is working on GMOs. Jill must defend her reputation as a top virologist when a research paper she published is refuted.

Wr Avrum Jacobson

Dir John L'Ecuyer

1 - 10 THE SOURCE

In the continued investigation of the "Iraq War Syndrome", David checks out a theory that the water purification system has malfunctioned. In Mexico, Jill and Carlos make a connection between a hybrid plant designed to detect land mines and the hemophilia epidemic. When that theory fails, David joins them in Mexico and explores the possibility that mosquitoes bred to eliminate malaria might be responsible. Bob quits NorBAC to pursue his love of perfume creation. Caroline receives the diagnosis she's been waiting for.

Wr Avrum Jacobson

Dir Jerry Ciccoritti

1 - 11 THE PROMISE

NorBAC has been taken over by a joint command to deal with a catastrophic smallpox scenario. Bob tries to find a cure for his dog that is suffering from histiocytosis. Jill comes clean with David about taking medication for her panic attacks. David discovers that the earlier "Miranda Virus" outbreak might be linked to the U.S. government's secret bio-chemical lab and that whoever manufactured the "Miranda Virus" may possess another, even more lethal, biological weapon.

Wr Tom Chehak

Dir Jerry Ciccoritti

1 - 12 RESURRECTION

David and Jill make a trip to Colorado where a rampant SARS-like outbreak is occurring. David is in shock when he discovers that the outbreak is Spanish flu, the virus he dug up in Nunavut. Racked with guilt, he walks into the path of a car and is sent to hospital in a coma before he tells anybody his fears. Mayko heads to Colorado to try to find Patient Zero.

Wr Tom Chehak

Dir John L'Ecuyer

1 - 13 THE LONGEST NIGHT

Jill goes to Canada to see if the Spanish flu body is still in the ground. David recovers from his coma and limps back to the office. Daisy recognises the person who created the Miranda virus and infected her baby. David identifies the vector for the Spanish flu epidemic and tracks it with GPS.

Wr Jason Sherman

Dir John L'Ecuyer

2 - 1 CHINA

After a self-imposed exile to China, David Sandström is kidnapped by the People's Liberation Army and ordered to secretly investigate a deadly outbreak that has killed 19 people in a small village. With the help of three Chinese scientists, David discovers the outbreak has been caused by an ancient bacterium that has seeped into the village's water system. David is horrified when he learns that one of the scientists has decided to test the antidote on her self in order to expedite a cure. While David makes his way back to Canada, Caroline and Carlos are witness to a horrific attack at the site of the International AIDS Conference.

Wr Avrum Jacobson

Dir John L'Ecuyer

2 - 2 ESCAPE MUTANT

David Sandström searches for a drug cocktail to save Audrey Graves, a pregnant woman who has been infected with a new strain of HIV from Africa. In an effort to save her baby, Audrey is induced at just 26 weeks; but it is too late, she has progressed to full blown AIDS and her baby has been exposed to the virus. Carlos attempts to trace the new strain of HIV back to Patient Zero and he encounters many painful memories of his own time in Africa. Meanwhile, Mayko recruits Simon Jessup (Darren Boyd), a British neuroscientist, to help her investigate a possible link between IQ spikes and Mad Cow disease. Mayko and Simon begin to develop a personal relationship.

Wr Tracey Forbes

Dir Bruce McDonald

2 - 3 THE COCKTAIL

David has less than two days to discover a drug cocktail that will prevent a premature baby from becoming HIV positive. After he discovers a mixture that will save the baby, he encounters a number of bureaucratic roadblocks because the drug has not been approved. Carlos continues to research the new super strain of HIV with former colleagues in Africa, and realizes that his place is at NorBAC. Mayko and Simon's investigation of dramatic IQ spikes in children who have been exposed to prion-laced chicken takes them to the United States. They make a brilliant finding but the results are devastating. Meanwhile, Mayko is troubled by some news she discovers about Simon.

Wr Kelly Senecal, Tracey Forbes

Dir John L'Ecuyer

2 - 4 DIM & DIMMER

While attending a conference in New York, David chases a petty thief named Owen (Michael Seater) into the city's abandoned subway tunnels where he finds an underground community of homeless people. David discovers that some of the inhabitants share symptoms of a mysterious illness and he begins to investigate. Back at NorBAC, Jill believes that she has discovered a cure for juvenile diabetes from an unsanctioned line of Korean stem cells. Caroline's nephew Glenn who has been lying in a coma is beginning to show some signs of response

Wr Jason Sherman

Dir Bruce McDonald

2 - 5 MASSIVE CHANGES

Jill's potential cure for juvenile diabetes is compromised, causing protesters to demonstrate outside NorBAC. To further complicate matters, Jill discovers that the stem cells she used may be infected with a retrovirus; the implications of which would be felt the world over. Carlos and Mayko continue to test two critically-ill, homeless people David found living in New York 's subway tunnels. Their symptoms can't be linked to any known disorder; however, they may be connected to a marijuana-growing operation run by the homeless community. Meanwhile, NorBAC is briefed on a strike by the U.S. Government on Cuban labs that may be responsible for the devastation of 1500 acres of orange groves in Florida and David gets devastating news from his father in Vancouver.

Wr David Young

Dir Clément Virgo

2 - 6 OUR MEN IN HAVANA

While dealing with his mother's recent death in British Columbia , David is asked to travel to Florida and Cuba with Carlos. NorBAC has been asked to investigate the claim of exiled Cuban millionaire Salvador Charringa, that his Florida orange groves have been destroyed by a biologically engineered bacterium known as x fastidiosa. When it starts to look like every major institute in Cuba is clean, David speculates that Charringa and the White House are trying to start a conspiracy to justify the invasion of Cuba . Just as tensions between the U.S. and Cuba are about to come to a head, David and Carlos, with the help of Cuban scientist Eva Ramone, discover exactly what the White House and Charringa have been looking for. Believing that Glenn is beginning to emerge from his coma, Bob enlists the help of neuroscientist Simon Jessup to determine a prognosis.

Wr Tom Chehak

Dir John L'Ecuyer

2 - 7 TALK TO HIM

While in Cuba investigating the cause of decimated orange groves in Florida , David and Carlos uncover information that points to a possible bio-terrorist plot on the part of the Cubans. The American President jumps the gun and immediately blames Cuba for the damaged crops. In her search for a cure for Juvenile Diabetes, Jill confirms that the Korean stem cell line is contaminated with a virus. Before her ground-breaking results can move forward, she must prove that the virus is harmless. Back in Toronto , Caroline's nephew Glenn fails to respond to his surgery, but does manage to utter one last devastating, message.

Wr David Young

Dir John L'Ecuyer

2 - 8 HAZE

Bob's attention turns to the escalating danger in the skies over Mexico City where a massive brown cloud has begun to combine with toxic emissions from a nearby volcano. The new mixture could rain sulfuric acid down on the city and Bob must try to convince the Mexican officials of the gravity of the situation before all of Mexico City is destroyed. Homeland Security is monitoring two scientists in Chicago who they believe are a threat to the U.S. president. After testing samples taken from their lab, David feels the investigation is unwarranted. Caroline, however, can't shake the feeling that something is wrong. Ultimately, there's not enough evidence to detain the brothers and they are set free - but at what cost? Owen shows up at David's office looking for a place to stay.

Wr Tom Chehak

Dir John L'Ecuyer

2 - 9 GENE IN A BOTTLE

NorBAC's investigation into a cluster of suicides occurring in the southern United States uncovers an unnatural enzyme in the brains of the victims. They are receiving something from their environment, and it's causing sudden and severe depression, but where is the enzyme coming from? Meanwhile, the wife of a longtime scientist-friend of David who was killed in a car accident asks David to decipher the secret project her husband had been working on. With the help of Bob and Carlos, David discovers that his friend was genetically engineering mice. They soon deduce that he had discovered the gene that causes homosexuality and had initiated a patent for a drug that would suppress the gene! Bob scrambles to neutralize the Asian Brown Cloud before it dumps a deadly shower of sulfuric acid on Mexico City; and Owen shows up at David's apartment stoned on crystal meth but David decides to give him one more chance to clean up his act.

Wr Tracey Forbes

Dir Ron Murphy

2 - 10 THE WIL AND INNOCENT

Autopsies on two dead deer lead NorBAC to suspect that worms from parasitic eggs are responsible for a recent spike in depression-related suicides in the Southern U.S. What they can't figure out is if the parasites are coming from the deer, humans or a third source. While working on a retrovirus, Jill becomes contaminated and is forced into quarantine. Owen is charged with criminal negligence when a young girl dies after overdosing on crystal meth. David comes to his defense, arguing that Owen is predisposed to being an addict. The defense sparks a fascinating legal, scientific, and ethical argument.

Wr Avrum Jacobson

Dir John L'Ecuyer

2 - 11 FISHY

NorBAC must unravel a genetic mystery when fish bred in an East Coast fish farm start exhibiting unexpected and dangerous mutations. Furthermore, a number of kids in an East Coast village are becoming ill; could deadly radiation be leaking into the Ocean? The team continues to work on a promising anti-parasitic drug after a spike in Arkansas' suicide rates is traced to worms brought into the state on the winds of hurricane Katrina. Caroline is in Washington being briefed about a new looming crisis - an entire National Guard unit has fallen unconscious and can't be woken up. The illness resembles encephalitis lethargica, but the patients aren't responding to usual treatments. The U.S. Military suspects the illness is the work of a radical Muslim group. Meanwhile, Jill is released from quarantine and quickly sent home to rest.

Wr Jason Sherman

Dir Ken Girotti

2 - 12 LETHARGICA

NorBAC uses innovative scientific methods to track the source of mutating radiation that is affecting fish on the East Coast of Canada to radioactive fuel rods that were dumped into the Ocean in the 1950's. The environmental fall out could be catastrophic. Jill is rushed to the hospital, where doctors struggle to save her life. Meanwhile, National Guardsmen in the U.S. continue to deteriorate. To David's surprise, Jill's symptoms match those of the soldiers. How could the retrovirus Jill found in her stem cells have also infected the soldiers? The U.S. military may have the answer in an untested antidote, but refuse to release it in time to save Jill's life. Once again David is forced to ignore protocol by administering Jill with the untested antidote. David contemplates a radical experiment on his father who is in the early stages of Alzheimer's.

Wr Avrum Jacobson

Dir John L'Ecuyer

2 - 13 THE END

Jill and the U.S. National Guardsmen begin to recover after receiving the lethargica antidote; but shortly thereafter, the Guardsmen begin to fall ill again with a secondary more deadly infection. Some Guardsmen begin to die and everyone fears for Jill's life. Caroline believes that her superiors aren't telling her everything about the lethargica outbreak and suspects that Wes, her executive assistant might also be in on it. Out of nowhere, the Manford brothers show up at David's apartment and shed some light onto the recent epidemic. As Caroline continues to dig, she gets dangerously close to unearthing a conspiracy that could go deep into the White House.

Wr Avrum Jacobson

Dir Ken Girotti

3 - 1 A SPONTANEOUS MOMENT

David and Bob investigate simultaneous explosions that incinerated a high tech lab and several of its employees; new virologist Rachel Woods studies the DNA of a gay-basher suspected of killing a fellow student.

Wr Tom Chehak

Dir Ken Girotti

3 - 2 DUST IN THE WIND

David and Bob become ticking time bombs after ingesting the same deadly bacteria combination that incinerated the Greenway scientists; an anomaly in the genetic makeup of gay-basher Julie Henshaw temporarily puts Rachel off track.

Wr Tom Chehak

Dir Ken Girotti

3 - 3 STRANGERS IN THE NIGHT

The US government wants to cut over $3 billion out of the science budget, and NORBAC has to prove they deserve to stay in operation. Meanwhile, a West Nile like virus is breaking out in San Francisco, but it's showing some abnormal traits. A scientist at the University of Toronto claims to be able to help Owen with his addiction.

Wr Avrum Jacobson

Dir John L'Ecuyer

3 - 4 I DREAM OF GENOMES

Mayko finds the missing link to the Sinatra syndrome; Owen tries to commit suicide.

Wr Avrum Jacobson

Dir John L'Ecuyer

3 - 5 THE GOD OF COMMERCE

The team traces the Sinatra virus to an organ donor in the Philippines; David blames himself for allowing Owen to try experimental gene therapy to cure his drug addiction.

Wr Kate Miles Melville

Dir Ron Murphy

3 - 6 PHANTOMS

Mayko tries to get rid of the pain she's feeling in her phantom limb; the team investigates the high level of mercury contamination found in Lake McGraw.

Wr Tanya Grout

Dir Ron Murphy

3 - 7 ONE HAND WASHES THE OTHER

NorBac searches for the source of a resistant strain of c. difficile; despite his limited vision, Bob proves to be an asset to the team.

Wr Cal Coons

Dir Clément Virgo

3 - 8 SLEEPERS

Several fires in British Columbia start. One of the action organizers calls NorBac in as several firefighters present strange symptoms. Craig, Rachel's son, come visit her mother at NorBac. Both Mayko and Carlos are attracted to him.

Wr Cal Coons

Dir Clément Virgo

3 - 9 LET IT BURN

A weaponized biological agent was released during fires on the west coast, NorBac must find the creator of the agent. However, Rachel is more worried about her son who was attacked by a bear.

Wr David S. Young

Dir Shawn Alex Thompson

3 - 10 UNBEARABLE

David discovers that NorBac has been tapped by Riddlemeyer. The team must find what caused the bear to attack Craig with no reason as a human being is presenting the same symptom. To save Bob's eyesight, David decide on a peculiar procedure.

Wr Jason Sherman

Dir Gail Harvey

3 - 11 ADRIFT

Bob undergoes his eye surgery in the hope he won't go totally blind in the process. Carlos and David are called in in a port in Nova Scotia where a ship's crew is missing except the captain who doesn't remember the past two weeks.

Wr Avrum Jacobson

Dir John L'Ecuyer

3 - 12 JACOBSON'S ORGAN

Fears arise that Carlos may have been infected with Crimean Congo Hemorrhagic Fever; after experimental surgery that improves his vision, Bob becomes hypersensitive to the emotions of others; Carlton comes under scrutiny when a magnetobacteria threatens the country's electronic infrastructure.

Wr David S. Young

Dir Ron Murphy

3 - 13 BACK TO THE FUTURE

NorBAC discovers a link between the tantalum contamination and the recent smallpox scam; a viral activation of dormant genes evolves Bob into a higher consciousness.

RETURN OF CAPTAIN NEMO,THE

Two US Navy divers discover Captain Nemo and his strange craft, Nautilus, wedged deep in the Pacific. They free him from a state of suspended animation and enlist his help in overcoming Prof. Waldo Cunningham, an evil genius who is threatening to destroy Washington unless he is paid one billion dollars in gold. The Captain also has to repair a leak of radioactive waste buried 36,000 ft down in the Mindinao Trench, before finally confronting his adversary in the fabled lost city of Atlantis.

Three-part American mini-series updating the adventures of Jules Verne's classic character to the 1980s. Two Hollywood stalwarts, Jose Ferrer and Burgess Meredith, starred as the undersea rivals, and the whole affair was produced with his customary gusto by Irwin Allen, veteran of many a voyage to the bottom of the sea. This was the last of Irwin Allen foray into science fiction television, and the least remember of his shows. The producer for the serial was Irwin Allen.

WR. Norman Katkov, Preston Wood, Robert Dennis, William Keys, Mann Rubin, Robert Bloch, Larry Alexander.

DIR. Alex March.

EPISODES: 3 YEAR MADE: 1981 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

AN IRWIN ALLEN PRODUCTION

CREATOR: JULES VERNE

TYPE OF SHOW: UNDERWATER

FORMAT: MINI-SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 45 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 3

DATE OF PREMIER: 13/04/1981

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 15/04/1981

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Captain Nemo JOSE FERRER, Cmdr. Tom Franklin TOM HALLICK, Lt. Jim Porter BURR DEBENNING, Prof. Cunningham BURGESS MEREDITH, Kate LYNDA DAY GEORGE, Dr. Cook MEL FERRER, Mr. Miller WARREN STEVENS, King Tibor HORST BUCHHOLZ, Tor MED FLORY, Helmsman RANDOLPH ROBERTS, Lloyd STEPHEN POWERS, Sirak YALE SUMMERS, Bork ANTHONY GEARY.

RELATED SHOWS:

VOYAGE TO THE BOTTOM OF THE SEA

LOST IN SPACE

LAND OF THE GIANTS

TIME TUNNEL, THE

RETURN OF ULTRAMAN

AKA: ULTRAMAN RETURNS

AKA: KAETEKITA URTORAMAN

AKA: ULTRAMAN JACK

After a 2 1/2 year hiatus, Ultraman returned. Well, not actually Ultraman, but another Ultra-hero who looked so much like him, he was given the name "New Ultraman," although he was usually called just "Ultraman." (Tsuburaya Productions decided to give him a different name, and arbitrarily chose "Jack." He was never called that in his series, Return of Ultraman.) New Ultraman arrives on Earth as auto engineer and racer Hideki Goh is killed during a battle between two monsters. Like Hayata before him, Hideki merges with this new Ultraman. After what appears to be a miraculous recover, Goh is asked to join the latest Terrestrial Defense Force team, MAT (Monster Attack Team). Unlike his predecessors Hayata and Dan Moroboshe, Goh actually has a life outside of battling monsters; he spends time with his employer and mentor Sakata, his sister (and Goh's girlfriend) Aki, and younger brother Jiro.

Goh is the first human form (and to date the only one) to not require an external mechanism to change. Early in the series, Ultraman actually initiates the change from "within" Goh (or wherever he goes when this happens). As the series progresses, Goh is finally able to initiate the transformation himself. (Early in the series, Goh tries to transform on his own, and is nearly killed when he finds he cannot do so.)

Ultraman Jack's powers are, for the most part, identical to those of the original Ultraman. Part-way through the series, however, Ultraseven "cameos" and gives Jack the Ultra Bracelet. This weapon can be thrown, much like Ultraseven's Eye Slugger, creating a slicing energy/matter weapon that few can stand against. The weapon can also be transformed into the "Ultra Defender" (a shield), the Ultra Lance, or the Ultra Cross.

Episode #38, "When the Star of Ultra Shines," signalled a change in the series, as the alien Nakul and the monster Black King manage to kill off Sakata and Aki, and bring MAT and Ultraman Jack to near-defeat. Ultraman (the original) and Ultraseven arrive to help defeat this threat. Ultraman Jack eventually leaves Earth. (Unfortunately, none of my reference material states exactly what happens here.)

The Tsuburaya studio attempted to jump-start other franchises such as MIGHTY JACK and OPERATION MYSTERY in the years that followed, only to resurrect Ultraman with a third season Ultraman Returns, competing with the new KAMEN RIDER series for children's affection and pocket money. Although, as the title implies, the studio initially planned to bring back the original, it was decided that it would be more profitable to create an all-new character - eventually named Jack after years of being known simply as "the one from the third season". Consequently although the monster-of-the-week plotting remained essentially unchanged, Ultraman Jack bonded with mechanic and would-be racing driver Hideki Go (Dan), who "dies" in an automobile accident in episode one.

The monsters were not aliens like the majority of Seven's enemies, but homegrown dangers, the first in the franchise to appear in "families", with parents or children of earlier creatures avenging the wronged relatives. Original Music by Toru Fuyuki, Special Effects by Koichi Kawakita special effects supervisor.

WR.

DIR. Noboru Kaji, Tei Mafune, Jun Oki, Osamu Saeki, Shohei Tôjô, Ishirô Honda.

EPISODES: 51 YEAR MADE: 1971 COUNTRY: JAP SEASONS: 1

TSUBURAYA PRODUCTIONS

CREATOR: EIJI TSUBURAYA

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: Japanese

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 51

DATE OF PREMIER: 02/04/1971

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 30/03/1973

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Hideki Goh/Ultraman JIRO DAN, Takeshi Minami SHUNSUKE IKEDA, Captain Katsuichiro Kato NOBOU TSUKAMOTO, umeo Kishida KEN NISHIDA, Yuriko Oka MIKA KATSURAGI, Jiro Sakata HIDEKI KAWAGUCHI, Ken Sakata SHIN KISHIDA, Ippei Ueno WATARU MITSUI, Captain Ryu Ibuki JUN NEGAMI, Akiko 'Aki' Sakata LUMI SEKIKABARA.

RELATED SHOWS:

ULTRAMAN

ULTRAMAN ACE

ULTRAMAN LEO

ULTRAMAN 80

ULTRAMAN: TOWARDS THE FUTURE

ULTRAMAN GAIA

ULTRA FIGHT

- 1 - 1 ALL MONSTERS ATTACK
- 1 - 2 TAKKONG'S BIG COUNTERATTACK
- 1 - 3 EVIL MONSTER REALM OF TERROR
- 1 - 4 CERTAIN KILL! COMET KICK
- 1 - 5 TWO BIG MONSTERS ATTACK
- 1 - 6 BATTLE! MONSTERS VS. MAT
- 1 - 7 OPERATION RAINBOW MONSTER
- 1 - 8 MONSTER TIME BOMB
- 1 - 9 MONSTER ISLAND S.O.S.
- 1 - 10 DINOSAUR EXPLOSION DIRECTIVE
- 1 - 11 POISON GAS MONSTER APPEARS
- 1 - 12 REVENGE OF MONSTER SHUGARON
- 1 - 13 TERROR OF THE TSUNAMI MONSTERS - TOKYO'S BIG PINCH!
- 1 - 14 TERROR OF TWO MONSTERS - TOKYO'S GIANT TORNADO
- 1 - 15 REVENGE OF THE MONSTER LAD
- 1 - 16 MYSETERY OF THE BIG BIRD MONSTER TEROCHILUS
- 1 - 17 MONSTER BIRD TEROCHILUS - TOKYO BIG AERIAL BOMBING
- 1 - 18 ULTRASEVEN ARRIVES!
- 1 - 19 THE GIANT INVISIBLE MONSTER THAT CAME FROM SPACE
- 1 - 20 THE MONSTER IS A GIANT SHOOTING STAR IN SPACE
- 1 - 21 MONSTER CHANNEL
- 1 - 22 I'LL KILL THIS MONSTER
- 1 - 23 MONSTER OF DARKNESS, SPIT OUT THE STARS!
- 1 - 24 BIRTH OF THE CONDO MONSTER
- 1 - 25 LEAVING MY HOME PLANET EARTH
- 1 - 26 HOMICIDE BEETLE INCIDENT
- 1 - 27 GO TO HELL WITH THIS ONE BLOW!

- 1 - 28 BIG OPERATION - ULTRA SPECIAL ATTACK
- 1 - 29 RIDES A MONSTER
- 1 - 30 THE ACCURSED SKELETON GOD OXTER
- 1 - 31 INBETWEEN A DEVIL AND AN ANGEL
- 1 - 32 DECISIVE BATTLE UNDER THE SETTING SUN
- 1 - 33 THE MONSTER USER AND THE BOY
- 1 - 34 THE LIFE THAT CAN'T BE FORGIVEN
- 1 - 35 LIGHT MONSTER PRIZ-MA
- 1 - 36 THE NIGHT
- 1 - 37 ULTRAMAN DIES AT TWILIGHT
- 1 - 38 WHEN THE ULTRA STAR SHINES
- 1 - 39 THE TWENTIETH CENTURY
- 1 - 40 THE PHANTOM SNOW WOMAN
- 1 - 41 REVENGE OF BALTAN-SEIJIN JR.
- 1 - 42 THE MONSTER THAT STANDS ON FUJI
- 1 - 43 DEMON GOD BARKS AT THE MOON
- 1 - 44 TO THE STARRY SKY WITH LOVE
- 1 - 45 ASSASINATE HIDEKI GOH!
- 1 - 46 THIS ONE BLOW FILLED WITH ANGER
- 1 - 47 THE TARGETTED WOMAN
- 1 - 48 I'M TAKING THE EARTH!
- 1 - 49 SPACE WARRIOR, YOUR NAME IS MAT
- 1 - 50 INVITATION FROM HELL
- 1 - 51 THE FIVE ULTRA PLEDGES

ROAR

Set in the 400 AD when the Roman empire have conquered most of the known lands. They arrive on an island controlled by two families, one of whom sides themselves with the Romans, whilst the other fights for its land. After many years of bloodthirsty rivalry the son of a king marries a member of the family and peace is finally on the cards until the rival king is manipulated by his evil wife who is in a legience with the Romans. After a bitter battle both on the ground and with magical powers, the battle is won but more Romans are on the horizon.

The series was first shown in the UK on ITV on a late night time slot, premiere dates shown are for the ITV region. The series was filmed in Queensland, Australia. Executive producers for the series were Ron Koslow and Shaun Cassidy, associate producer was Todd London, co-producers were Lawrence Mayers and Brain Chambers, consulting producer was Jeffrey Levy. The music was created by John Ehrlich, co-executive producer was Michael Nankin, other producers were Paul Barber and Larry Barber, and the series was produced by Howard Grigsby. Ron Koslow was one of the creators of the SF/Fantasy series BEAUTY AND THE BEAST. The series was first shown in the UK on the 20th January 1999.

Show notes

The orchestral Celtic soundtrack was composed by Jon Ehrlich.

"Roar: The Complete Series" is slated for DVD release on September 19, 2006, the title would indicate that like the more recent DVD of Firefly (another cancelled Fox series) the unaired episodes will be included.

Whilst the original airing of the show in North America did not broadcast all of the episodes, when syndicated to Canada and the UK, all episodes were aired.

Emmy Award

Outstanding Music Composition for a Series (Dramatic Underscore) - Nominated - "Roar" (1997) - Jon Ehrlich - For the pilot episode. (1998)

WR. Shaun Cassidy, Ron Koslow, Michael Nankin.

DIR. Ralph Hemecker, Michael Nankin

EPISODES: 13 YEAR MADE: 1997 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

SEA CHANGE PRODUCTIONS IN ASSOCIATION WITH UNIVERSAL TELEVISION

CREATOR: SHAUN CASSIDY & RON KOSLOW

TYPE OF SHOW: FANTASY

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 60 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 13

DATE OF PREMIER: 14/07/1998 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 01/09/1998

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Conor HEITH LEDGER, Queen Diana LISA ZANE, Longinus SEBASTEIN ROUCHE, Catlin VERA FARMIGA, Fergus JOHN SAINT RYAN, Tully ALONZO GREER, Galen NORMAL KAYE, King Gar LEO TAYLOR, Claire KERI RUSSELL, Molly MELISSA GEORGE, Father CARL SNELL.

RELATED SHOWS:

HERCULES: THE LEGENDARY JOURNEYS

XENA: WARRIOR PRINCESS

CONAN: THE ADVENTURER

1 - 1 "PILOT"

1 - 2 PROJECTOR

1 - 3 THE CHOSEN

1 - 4 BANSHEE

1 - 5 DOYLE'S SOLUTION

1 - 6 RED BOOT

Conor deals with Caitlin's betrayal as they try to return a scroll.

1 - 7 THE SPEAR OF DESTINY

Conor finds the legendary Spear of Destiny, but its powers may be evil.

1 - 8 THE ETERNAL

Conor is told he must make a symbolic marriage, as Longinus steps up his campaign against the tribes.

1 - 9 TASH

1 - 10 TRAPS

1 - 11 DAYBREAK

As Conor tries to bury his family, Longinus launches an assault.

1 - 12 THE CAGE

Diana plans a trap, while Fergus encounters his ex-wife.

1 - 13 SWEET BRIDGET

Malachy insists Conor, Fergus and Molly go in search of Bridget who is missing.

ROBERT'S ROBOT

Having completed 26 episodes of Pardon My Genie writer Bob Block created this new children's series for Thames, in which restaurateur-cum-mad inventor Robert Sommerby was financed by the British government to build a bunch of robots that looked and behaved in a distinctly human fashion and 'enjoyed' human traits, such as falling in love. (One of the robots, KT - nicknamed Katie - was so dense that he fell in love with a gas-stove.)

BOB "RENTAGHOST" BLOCK-scripted sci-fi weirdoid adventures of Robert Sommerby, a James Burke type bloke with frizzy hair, who built robots (in the way that telly inventors do, for no apparent reason...). KT was the big, strong, incredibly dim-witted one (might have been the guy who played Gan in Blake's 7...) - providing lots of chances for Robert's girlfriend to think he was having an affair with someone called Katy. There was also Eric - slim, blonde haired android - very clever. KT's catchphrase was "I like it Mr. Sommerby... I like it!". We remember an episode where Eric got hit by a car, lost his memory of who, and indeed what, he was. The doctor examining him found that he could look straight through Eric's head when he examined his ears... Odd. Most odd.

Keen to avoid the usual TV portrayal of robots as lumbering scraps of silvery metal, Robert's creations were so human-like that they had to be portrayed by human actors, which tested the ingenuity of Thames' special effects department - and doubtless the series' budget - to the limit. Most of the episodes centred on the misadventures of the robots and the lamentable efforts of the foreign spy Marken (assisted by Gimble in the first series and Plummer in the second) to steal the secrets of Robert's robots.

A number of familiar faces were among the cast, including Richard Davies (Please, Sir!), Jenny Hanley (Magpie) and Doris Rogers, who, decades earlier, had played Florrie Wainwright in both the radio and TV versions of Life With The Lyons, which Block had helped to script.

Produced by Vic Hughes Producer.

Second Unit Director or Assistant Director - Christopher Toyne first assistant director.

WR. Bob Block

DIR. Vic Hughes

EPISODES: 14 YEAR MADE: 1973 COUNTRY: GB SEASONS: 2

THAMES TELEVISION

CREATOR: BOB BLOCK

TYPE OF SHOW: ROBOTS

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 7, (2) 7

DATE OF PREMIER: 12/11/1973

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 23/12/1974

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Robert Sommerby JOHN CLIVE, Katie (KT) BRIAN COBURN, Grimble (1973) RICHARD DAVIES, Angie (1973) JENNY HANLEY, George WILLIAM LAWFORD, Marken LEON LISSEK, Desiree APRIL OLRICH, Eric NIGEL PEGRAM, Plummer (1974) DAVID PUGH, . Aunt Millie DORIS ROGERS

ROBIN COOK'S INVASION

After three friends stumble across a mysterious black rock, one of them, Beau, develops strange flu like symptoms. Doctors can find nothing wrong with him and 24 hours later he feels better than he's ever felt. The strange flu starts to spread rapidly.

The directory of this mini-series Armand Mastroianni also directed several episodes of NIGHTMARE CAFE. Producers included Ted Babcock (Co-producer), Cyd Levin (Associate), Peter Sadowski and (Associate). Visual effects supervisor was Craig Weiss and CBS animation. This was Robin Cook's first excursion into direct Science Fiction, which was inspired by the question what happens when a life form another world or galaxy travels to Earth in an unusual form.

While preparing he watched all the STAR TREK films in one night. He first wrote the storyline, then the novel from which screenwriter Rockne S O'Bannon wrote the script. Cook is best known for his medical-thrillers including Coma and Outbreak.

WR. Robin Cook, Rockne S O'Bannon (Screenwriter)

DIR. Armand Mastroianni

EPISODES: 2 YEAR MADE: 1997 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

VON ZERNECK-SERTNER FILMS, HALL MARK ENTERTAINMENT

CREATOR: ROBIN COOK, ROCKNE S. O'BANNON

TYPE OF SHOW: INVASION

FORMAT: MINI-SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 180 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 2

DATE OF PREMIER: 04/05/1997

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 05/05/1997

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Beau Stark LUKE PERRY , Dr. Moran KIM CATTRALL, Cassy Winslow REBECCA GAYHEART, Pitt CHRISTOPHER ORR, JON POLITO, JASON SCHOMBING, North NEAL MCDONOUGH, John Ochoa LOUIS CRUGNALI JR., Nancy Ochoa ROSANNA DESOTO, Ochoa CASTULO GUERRA, Doc McCoy MICHAEL WARREN (EP 1), LOUIA CRUGNALI, MARIA CELEDONIO, BILL ROSE (EP 3), STEPHEN JOYCE (EP 1), Head of the Center For Disease Control CHUCK MCCANN (EP 1), TIM DEKAY, Leah GINNY HARMAN, Denice DENICE DUFF, Husband KEN KOLB, Orderly MARK DEMICHELE, Medical Examiner BRIAN BROPHY, Walter Kirkland WILLIAM L. ROSE, Sergeant Kinsella H. RICHARD GREENE, Pete SAM SMILEY, Ed Partridge DAN DANIELSON, Security Chief MICHAEL EMANUEL, Randy's Secretary ADELINA SINDHUI, Weller DAVID AKIN, Police Captain SANFORD GIBBONS, Sergeant Hoover JOHN MACK (EP 3), Paramedic LARRY JONES (EP 1) , Father Nightmare TERRY JAMES (EP 3), Mechanic KEN CLARK (EP 1), Mother of Little Girl DAWN M.DAVIS, Cop #1 GEORGE DOBBS, CNN Reporter ALFRED CERULLO, Little Boy MICHAEL WAYNE (EP 2) .

ROBIN DE ROBOT

WR. Rene Struelens

DIR. Gie Lavigne

EPISODES: 0 YEAR MADE: 1975 COUNTRY: BEL SEASONS: 0

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: ROBOTS

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 15 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG:

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1)

DATE OF PREMIER: 05/11/1975

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Linke GASTON BERGHMANS, Serafien LIA LEE, Slome LEO MARTIN, Professor Fax JAN
REUSSENS, De Robot ALBERT WILEKENS.

ROBOCONAKA: HANG IN THERE!!AKA: GANBARE ROBOCON!

The series was produced by Tohru Hirayama and the original music was by Shunsuke Kikuchi. Not to be confused with the later Anime version (1999).

WR.DIR.*EPISODES: 118 YEAR MADE: 1974 COUNTRY: JAP SEASONS: 1*TOEICREATOR: SHOTARO ISHINOMORI.TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHEROFORMAT: SERIESLENGTH (MINS): 30STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: JapaneseSEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 118DATE OF PREMIER:*AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE*SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:*FILMS:

 Robokon (voice) KEIKO YAMAMOTO

RELATED SHOWS:BLAZING ROBOCON

ROBOCOP - THE SERIES

Set in the year 2005, it begins with police officer Alex Murphey and his female partner called to a crime while on patrol in Old Detroit and Delta City. Murphey is seriously wounded and to save him his body is melded with Robot implants and parts by Omni Consumer Products (OCP) scientists. But the price is high Alex's memory is erased. In his place stand the ultimate enforcer of justice - Robocop.

Gradually however, glimpses of Murphey's past life seep back into his consciousness, inspiring and haunting him as he struggles to maintain his hold on humanity. Both victim and hero, he's a deadpan observer of a strident, twisted and deadly future, where the shiny new Delta City towers over the husk of old Detroit.

Other recurring characters include OCP's chairman, who's something of a father figure to Murphey, feisty young officer Lisa Madigan, his beat sergeant, Stan Parks, Park's friend and soon to be adopted daughter Gadget, Murphey's scientist minder Charlie Lippencott, and secretary Diana Powers, who 'live-on' in cyberspace as a ghost in the machine after being murdered in the series' premier episode.

On the crooks side are mad scientists Dr. Cray Z. Mallardo, OCP over achiever Chip Chaykin, and disfigured psychopath Pudface Morgan.

Small screen spin-off from the movie block buster with Richard Eden taking over the role of the indestructible half-man, half-machine battling diabolical criminals in a nightmarish future. The series' two hour premier episode was written by Michael Miner and Ed Neumeier, writers of the original Robocop movie which starred Peter Weller.

The first Robocop movie was successful enough to prompt a sequel. A third movie was completed just before its backers Orion Pictures went bankrupt. Orion's bankruptcy allowed the rights to the character to be sold to Skyvision television, Skyvision proceeded to produce a syndicated TV series based on the concept. The Robocop TV series had little to do with the theatrical features other than the name and the concept. For the TV series an entirely new supporting cast was created.

The series had a somewhat satirical slant to it. Robocop, who was always totally serious and never let emotions affect his actions, was often used as the perfect straight man. In one instance after he pulls one of the bad guy's henchmen out of a vehicle and the guy's boss blows the car up, the villain asked Robocop what happened to which Robocop replies 'You've been fired'. Two other satirical elements often appeared in episodes. The first was Media Break. Media Break was a very short newscast which promised to give the audience the entire world news in three minutes. The second was Commander Cash commercials. Commander Cash was OCP's animated company mascot who would be used to make people think it was their duty to purchase the latest OCP product.

The violence of the films was toned down for the series and Robocop would just knock people out rather than kill them, a typical example would be when Robocop ricochets a bullet of a light to hit a henchman rather than just shooting him. The first premier episode promised a lot, but the subsequent series failed to grasp the audience, becoming a strange mix of Batman and a crime drama.

Cliff De Young who played the evil Dr. Cray Z. Mallardo also starred in the Stephen King mini-series THE TOMMYKNOCKERS.

RoboCop the TV series was based on the RoboCop movies, the first of which appeared in 1987.

The films and the series are set in Detroit of the not too distant future. The city has seen better times and is only a few steps removed from anarchy. Everything in town is run by OCP (Omni Consumer Products), including the police force, a huge company interested only in making a profit. Alex Murphy is a policeman who is killed in the line of duty. Enough of his brain survives to allow OCP to use it to build RoboCop-cyborg policeman whom it is said will eventually replace human cops. RoboCop is bullet proof, is stronger

Dir Paul Lynch

1 - 4 OFFICER MISSING

Robocop and the chairmen of OCP are trapped by a roving street gang right after energy cost cutting blacks out the city.

Wr Robert Hopkins

Dir Paul Lynch

1 - 5 WHAT MONEY CAN'T BUY

The boy from the last episode is transported to a hospital. A lung donor is prepared for him, but a terrorist and his girlfriend steal the lungs.

Wr Aubrey Solomon

Dir Mike Vejar

1 - 6 GHOSTS OF WAR

A gang of war veterans gains control of Neurobrain protesting their exposure to deadly toxins.

Wr John Sheppard

Dir Alan J. Levi

1 - 7 ZONE FIVE

Old Detroit becomes flooded with FUN, a narcotic that "removes all sense of guilt", while Murphy's son is recruited by the street gang responsible for the drug.

Wr Ted Harris, Blazes Boylan

Dir Timothy Bond

1 - 8 PROVISION 22

Murphy is torn between upholding the law and helping his family after his wife is arrested for leading a protest against OCP's privatized welfare system.

Wr Robert Gilmer

Dir Alan J. Levi

1 - 9 FACES OF EVE

Pudface intends to terminate RoboCop by using a new OCP product which transforms the user into any desired form.

Wr John Considine

Dir Paul Lynch

1 - 10 WHEN JUSTICE FAILS

A new space shuttle with an international crew is set to launch, but the fuel it carries onboard is experimental. Robocop must fight his way through the world of corporate scandals and cover-ups in order to prevent a major disaster from occurring.

Wr Simon Muntner

Dir Mike Vejar

1 - 11 THE HUMAN FACTOR

A bomber is on the loose in Detroit, and even though OCP deploys a new bomb squad to deal with the situation, former police officer Russel Murphy, father of Alex Murphy, cannot stand by and watch. Robocop and Murphy (who is skeptical about working with a machine) team up to try and stop madman Felix Weber before Michigan finds itself in the state of Nuclear Winter.

Wr John Considine

Dir Mario Azzopardi

1 - 12 INSIDE CRIME

Pudface Morgan draws big ratings when OCP launches a television show that follows the exploits of criminals.

Wr William Gray

Dir Mike Vejar

1 - 13 ROBOCOP VS. COMMANDER CASH

Children have been robbing stores because their favourite cartoon hero, OCP's corporate mascot Commander Cash, has told them to. While searching for an answer as to why these children are acting so violently, Robocop finds himself battling Commander Cash himself.

Wr Pamela Hickey, Dennys McCoy

Dir Allan Eastman

1 - 14 ILLUSIONS

Robocop uncovers a plot by a gunrunner to assassinate OCP's chairman, while Madigan falls for a magician who may be involved in the plan.

Wr Robert Hopkins

Dir Timothy Bond

1 - 15 TIN MAN

A mysterious vigilante, equipped with state-of-the-art weaponry, wages his own war on Reggie Braga and Stitch Molotov. Robocop is on the case, but apprehending this outlaw will be no easy task: There exists a connection between this elusive bandit and Alex Murphy's past

Wr Pamela Hickey, Dennys McCoy

Dir Allan Eastman

1 - 16 SISTERS IN CRIME

A group of violent feminists kidnap the Chairman of OCP and force him to live the life of a housemaid while keeping him locked up.

Wr Diane K. Shah

Dir Mario Azzopardi

1 - 17 HEARTBREAKERS

After learning that Robocop was once officer Alex Murphy, a madman tries to commit crimes by holding his wife hostage.

Wr Alison Lea Bingeman

Dir Mike Vejar

1 - 18 MOTHER'S DAY

Robocop suspects Gadget's natural mother is involved in a plot with Russian crime boss Vlad Molotov and his sidekick Nadia.

Wr John Sheppard

Dir Allan Eastman

1 - 19 NANNO

A former government official forces a scientist to create microscopic robots to commit crimes. Meanwhile, Madigan is crippled in a bus crash.

Wr Alan Templeton, Mary Crawford

Dir Bill Gereghy

1 - 20 CORPORATE RAIDERS

Robocop and Madigan battle a corrupt union leader and his secretary as they pursue an ex-terrorist.

Wr Pamela Hickey, Dennys McCoy

Dir T.J. Scott

1 - 21 MIDNIGHT MINUS ONE

RoboCop and Officer Madigan race the clock to prove a killer is innocent before he's executed in front of millions of viewers on a hit television show.

Wr Mary Crawford, Alan Templeton

1 - 22 PUBLIC ENEMIES

Robocop must deal with three dangerous criminals who are out to destroy him: Dr. Cray Mallardo, Chip Chayken and Pudface Morgan. The criminals cleverly decided to first attack Robocop's spare parts warehouse.

Wr William Gray

Dir Mike Vejar

ROBOCOP: PRIME DIRECTIVES

Ten years after the original RoboCop, Delta City, considered to be "The Safest Place On Earth!", has become a futuristic city owned and operated by OCP, and RoboCop, Alex Murphy has begun to feel his age. Murphy finds himself nearly obsolete, and must deal with the fact that his now-grown son James is an OCP executive, unaware that his father is still alive. Also, Murphy's former partner, John Cable, has returned to Delta City as its new Security Commander. But slowly, new enemies arise, and Murphy and Cable begin an investigation into a mysterious villain known as the Bone Machine, unaware that they are coming dangerously close to exposing an evil group of OCP executives known as The Trust... which James Murphy is a part of. Desperate to prevent their sinister plans from being revealed, The Trust programs Murphy to kill John Cable... gun play galore, killer laser beams, explosions, bustin' glass, back stabbing, martial arts, psychotic killers and this all happens in the "safest place on earth to live"? Remind me never to vacation in Delta City!

Sounds like something right out of Hollywood right? Well that's almost correct, try Hollywood North.

I'm speaking of the new mini series RoboCop: Prime Directives made by Julian Grant and written by Brad Abraham and Joseph O'Brien.

I had the pleasure and privilege to attend the theatrical showing of the entire series on Sunday afternoon and it was time well spent. Julian Grant was there to introduce the film and spoke in between chapters, he seems very proud of the work him and his crew accomplished and he has every reason to be. Along with Grant, some of the other cast and crew were on hand to watch it with us as well, writers Brad and Joseph, RoboCop himself Page Fletcher, along with Maurice Dean Wint as John Cable and actress Leslie Coles as Ashley St. John-Smythe the MediaNet anchor.

The series has it all, action, drama, a bit of horror and the outrageous humour that was born with the original. And I mean outrageous, some of it had the audience roaring.

The story is very well written IMO. Joe and Brad put some more human emotion into RoboCop that I quite liked, it makes you really feel for the character. There are times when I just wanted someone to give the guy a hug and tell him that "it's okay". At the same time, RoboCop is still the strict enforcer of the law and at times damn right mean. There is at least one shocking scene when Robo gets carried away and does something that I am sure he was not programmed for, I'll just leave it at that for fear of spoiling. There is all kinds of deceit going on, you don't know who will end up good or bad, who's going to live through the 4 parts, who's not. The plot line really makes you want to keep watching. I feel sorry for the folks that have to watch it over 4 days, I had to know what was going to happen next right then and there.

The special effects were well done, you don't feel like you are watching some cheap quickly shot B-movie. I'm not sure what the budget was but it looks big. RoboCop looks used and abused and it goes well with the storyline because they mention that many of his parts are outdated and not even produced anymore, it's 10 years after the first movie. Plus he just plain old takes a real beating in the movie!

The shoot was mammoth from what we were told, 88 days if I recall correctly. Folks this is a big project that these people put a lot of time and effort into and I'm sure many personal sacrifices were made. You can tell that the people involved were fans of RoboCop as they stay true to the feel of the original movie. If you have any reservations about this show, try and dispose of them, there is really no need for them. Try going into viewing this series in a positive frame of mind, it's GOOD.

Produced by Debbie Firestone (creative executive producer), Jay Firestone (executive producer), Julian Grant (producer), Adam Haight (executive producer), Paul Spike Lees (line producer), Original music by Norman Orenstein. Cinematography by Gerald R. Goozee, Film Editing by Chuck Kahn, Marlon Moskal Joyce Poon (as Jocelyn Poon), David Ransley and Bill Towgood. Casting by Jon Comerford and Brian Levy.

Production Design by Tim Boyd, Art Direction by Andrew Hull, Set Decoration by Bruce Lyne, Costume Design by Judith England. Makeup Department - Amber Chase (assistant makeup artist), Traci Loader (makeup artist), David Scott (special makeup effects artist), Production Management - Sharon Petzold (unit manager)

Second Unit Director or Assistant Director - John Jay Hebert (assistant director), Karl Jason (assistant director), Joanna Moore (assistant director), Ian Robertson (assistant director), Peter Stolworthy (dailies assistant director). Sound Department - Steve Baine (foley artist), Kevin Banks (sound effects editor), Stephen Barden (adr editor), Mark Bauserman (adr recordist: Los Angeles), Elma Bello (dialogue editor), Joe Bracciale (dialogue editor), Richard Bradbury (adr engineer: UK), Christian Carruthers (sound re-recording mixer), Rob Crang (adr engineer: Vancouver), J.R. Fountain (sound effects editor), Ray Gillespie (assistant sound editor), Craig Henighan (sound effects editor), Bill Hermans(adr engineer: Toronto), Anna Malkin (foley assistant), Ron Malligers (foley recordist), Jim McBride (adr engineer: Toronto), Peter Persaud (foley recordist), Laurie Regan (adr assistant engineer: Toronto), Catherine Rix (looping service), Stephen Roque (sound effects editor), Stephen Stepanic (adr assistant engineer Toronto), Andrew Tay (sound re-recording mixer), Todd Warren (sound re-recording mixer), Robert Woolfson (sound mixer)

Special Effects by David Antonacci (special effects assistant), Reginald A. Ashby (special effects assistant), Robert J. Crawford (special effects assistant), Jason Ehl (special effects props), Jerry Findlay (special effects assistant), Rudy Rivas (special effects key), John Sandever (special effects assistant)

Visual Effects by Greg Astles (compositor), computer special effects - Dave Bachelor (computer special effects), Scott Burton (3D animator/coordinator - computer special effects), Doug Campbell (visual effects supervisor), Graham Cunningham (3D animator), computer special effects - Tim Howe (compositor - computer special effects), Peter Hunt (computer special effects), Kent Ing (computer special effects), Darren Kirkness (computer special effects), Ethan Lee (computer special effects), Rob Mattan (computer special effects), Earl Paraszczynec (computer special effects), Stevie Ramone (compositor), Cisco Ribas (compositor computer special effects), David Shere (computer special effects), Robin Trickett (computer special effects)

Stunts by Lloyd Adams, Ron Bell, Matt Birman, Dan Bruce, Eric Bryson, Randy Butcher, Chad Camilleri, Phil Chiu, Shelley Cook, Mike Dopud, Wayne Downer, Curtis Hibbert, Ernie Jackson, Brian Jagersky, Jamie Jones, Scott Leva, Danny Lima, Steve Lucescu, Patrick Mark, Darren Marsman, Cotton Mather, Darren McGuire, Dwayne McLean, Layton Morrison, Valentin B. Nedialkov, Billy Oliver, Rick Parker, Brook Patterson, Fred Perron, Edward A. Queffelec, Robert Racki, Bryan Renfro, Paul Rutledge, John Stoneham Jr. (stunt co-ordinator), John Stoneham (stunts), Bryan J. Thomas (stunts (as Bryan Thomas))

Other crew - Aaron Barnett (production coordinator), Robert McNamara (assistant to director), Krisztina M. Neglia (extras casting (as Krisztina Meuring)), Marcus Paletta (security officer). Special Effects by Stargate Studios Sundog Films.

The name Kaydick is a homage to sci-fi writer Philip K. Dick.

It's kind of inaccurate to call this a series of four movies, since no one installment tells an encapsulated enough story to survive as being entirely comprehensible without the remaining episodes. It's a miniseries, pure and simple, but like recent episodes of ER, it's filmed in widescreen to give it a more "cinematic" vibe. (it was actually aired at least once in a Toronto theater, all four episodes back-to-back, months ago)

After RoboCop, there was RoboCop 2, a movie that tried to go even further than the original in terms of violence and satire, and half-succeeding for the effort (yep, it was more violent). Alas, then there was RoboCop 3, which brought things down to the level of more unsophisticated teenagers, what with its afterschool-special moralizing, toned-down violence, and precocious genius kids. And at last, seemingly the final rivet in the coffin, came the RoboCop TV series which brought things down to the level of grade schoolers, apparently more concerned with selling action figures than giving poor RoboCop any dignity at all. Ferchrissakes, I just saw an episode of this the other day where RoboCop flung an energy weapon's beam back at his attacker by REVERSING THE POLARITY. Not only that, but the series selectively chose to "forget" the two movie sequels, which is just confusing. Even Yvette Nipar couldn't save that, and she's really cute. Things were not looking very bright for RoboCop's future.

Fortunately, the screenwriters of RoboCop: Prime Directives (Brad Abraham and a vaguely familiar Joseph O'Brien) and director Julian Grant had the good sense, while crafting this project, to employ the elements which made RoboCop a success in the first place. Missing for a long time, it's nice to once again see RoboCop associated with a sly sense of satire, a lot of bone-crunching action (I wipe my sweaty brow with relief that it's action of the bone-crunching variety and not, generally speaking, of the wire-stunt The Matrix variety, which would be so inappropriate for RoboCop I don't think I could even describe the ludicrousness of it), and a mostly schmaltz-free look at a man struggling to reclaim the humanity that's been buried under machinery in the name of the public good.

Depressingly mirroring the unhappy reality that the aforementioned crapwagons created, nobody seems much impressed with RoboCop (this time, played by Page Fletcher) anymore, despite how much he obviously has left to give to the world. Delta City is now complete, and virtually crime-free thanks to the efforts of RoboCop and his less armored human coworkers. The press doesn't see RoboCop as news anymore, and for that matter, he's rather the worse for wear; some of his parts are no longer even manufactured, and a close look at the RoboCop costume shows the scars of battles past. For that matter, many shots actually show him as being shorter than many of the humans that surround him. No, the press is more concerned about Bonemachine, a vigilante with a lot of hardware and a knack for escaping police barricades (despite how conspicuous he looks - he looks like he's got ED-209's arms!).

Meanwhile, RoboCop's son - that is, from when RoboCop was merely Alex Murphy, cop - is rising in the ranks of OCP, the city-owning super-company which has its eye on creating a computer system that will monitor and control the entire city. Anthony Lemke plays James Murphy (not to be confused with the guitarist who's been in every death metal band ever to come out of Florida), who finds that he's working in a den of snakes and has to become one in order to stay viable. Some of these snakes are briefly sympathetic, but only because they're in scenes with others who are even more vile. Life as an OCP executive must be tough; this guy looks like he puts on about fifteen years between the first and last episode.

So John Cable (Maurice Dean Wint), Alex's old partner from his old precinct (before he was shot to pieces in his new assignment of Old Detroit), is the only person that RoboCop trusts with the information that Bonemachine may well be an OCP agent. Then the suits (including Cable's ex-wife, played hissably by Maria del Mar) get a whiff of the new direction of RoboCop's investigation, some reprogramming is involved, and a certain cyborg's life gets a lore more complicated.

Now, that's just how it sets up in episode one; things go off in a lot of directions after that. There are cybernetically enhanced bandits with Predator-like personal cloaking devices (which reminds me - Dark Horse comics have pitted the poor Predators against every hero and villain they can find, even when they're from another comics company entirely. Aliens, Judge Dredd, Batman, Superman...nobody was safe. Was there ever a RoboCop vs. Predator comic?), another RoboCop (with black armor!), probably the most devastating virus imaginable (however implausible, it's still a cool idea), a charismatic but apocalypse-minded mad scientist, a mad slasher, all sorts of OCP intra-corporate scheming, a gang of suicidal hostage-takers which keep blowing themselves up, the ominous "Systems Support", a delightful security system which slices people up like sushi, and so much more. Frankly, I'm amazed that all these balls were juggled without being dropped; these subplots don't just show up to add a wrinkle and disappear, things are actually done with them. (except for Bonemachine, he just kinda disappears at the end of the first episode)

Page Fletcher makes an excellent Alex Murphy in the flashbacks, but unfortunately, he makes an inconsistent RoboCop. In flashbacks to his days as a beat cop, we're shown a side of Murphy which previous stories denied us; previously, all we knew about him was that he was a loving husband and father, and a bit of a cowboy on the job. Here, we see him as a well-meaning but somewhat naïve idealist who doesn't want to believe that a company like OCP might actually be a worse alternative to existing government. The cowboy we saw in the first film is put to a real test here in one scene, and he comes very close to blowing it with his (understandable) reluctance to risk too much.

As for Fletcher as RoboCop, with the helmet on, he's fine - after all, like Batman, he's a mouth, a voice and a costume. Even his jaw is part of the outfit. When that helmet comes off, though, he looks like a freakishly overgrown baby poking out of a suit of armor. Fletcher is by no means a freakish-baby-looking person on his own (actually, he looks like Rutger Hauer) but the makeup and bald wig do him no favors, and one longs for the iron jaw of Weller or even Robert Burke, except for that one great moment when he pulls off his helmet and the jaw-piece remains in place. With a semi-psychotic look in his eye, he delivers this none-to-subtle Star Wars reference with great aplomb, even if, for the most part, his voice just doesn't resonate the way Weller's did. (However, the actor who plays the second RoboCop, and it wouldn't be fair for me to reveal who it is, has his voice appropriately "tweaked" so that he sounds wonderful in the role, and were it not for one obvious-when-you-see-it problem, he'd actually probably make for the best Alex Murphy/RoboCop yet in possible future projects)

Now, much of the satire in R:PD, as was the case in the original RoboCop, is expressed in clips of TV ads and news shows, except here there's the mind-stabbing extra twist of having to not only listen to what's going on onscreen (in at least one part of the frame), but having to read two bands of written information is going past at the top and bottom of the screen. An enormous pain in the ass, to be sure, but that's what VCR's are for, and besides, at the rate attention spans are shrinking, this is probably what the news is gonna look like in ten years anyway. There is a LOT of funny stuff in here, all doubly funny for being extrapolated from existing nonsenses, like the Geraldo-like snoop into RoboCop's lair, complete with Pop-Up Video. Particularly gut-busting is an ad for a propagandistic cartoon where a robotic cop battles "homeless ninjas", and the increasingly astonishing rapidity with which TV movies and retrospective videos are cranked out to capitalize on what's current. Moments after RoboCop is declared something of a public menace, an advertisement runs for a program called "When RoboCop Attacks"! C'mon, that's funny shit! (although if giving the same name to a Teddy Ruxpin-like doll as was given to the killer samurai cyborg from RoboCop 3 is intentional, I fail to see the meaning behind it unless it's a parallel and unrelated tribute to Katsuhiro Otomo)

Also a welcome return is the way OCP is portrayed as a corporation. The original film showed OCP as a rather morally disinterested corporation; certainly in pursuit of the almighty dollar above all else, but not overtly, gratuitously malevolent; only the individuals within the company were. The movie sequels made it malevolent, and the TV series pulled a 180 on that and made them the good guys all of a sudden! Nice to see the writers of R:PD remember that corporations, scummy as they might be, are never any better or worse than the people who run them, and don't do anything, good or bad, without a prize in sight.

The script is fairly clever throughout, and never quite obnoxiously so the way that, say, Kevin Williamson is getting (getting?) (though a couple of oft-repeated lines wear out their welcome even spread out over six hours). The movie even gets some of its own slang, like "OCPeon", useless outside of the film of course but making perfect sense within. Making up sci-fi slang is a tricky business, and ninety-nine times out of a hundred it just sounds stupid; luckily, not here. Homage abounds, with tribute paid to Aliens, Philip K. Dick, Predator, The Texas Chainsaw Massacre, John Woo flicks, Return Of The Jedi, The Dukes Of Hazzard (God help us) and even the city of Toronto itself, where R:PD was filmed (though I don't know what the significance of the latter half of that YYZ-493 license plate is). Also a neat idea is the most well-aimed gunshot in movie history. I know, it's just FX, but still, if you're too cynical to enjoy something as outrageous as that, then you probably shouldn't be watching a movie about a cyborg police officer.

A lot of characters make their way across the screen here, way too damn many to really mention (I didn't even mention the kid, who happy happy joy joy is NOT I repeat NOT a computer hacker), ranging from the well-fleshed-out to the transient, but I think the right ones got the attention and got it in the right ways. Everyone up to the most obvious boo-hiss villains are given motivations that are hardly implausible. Hell, even that omniscient supercomputer gets a personality, giving some great parting words to one of the villains.

R:PD is certainly not without its problems, some more niggling than others. I guess my biggest problem with this whole project is that it doesn't make clear soon enough just which of its predecessors were incorporated into its storyline. Normally, like with any sequel, you'd just assume it was all of them, but the TV series blew that one and until the facts are given it's anyone's guess. For example, it was quite some time before I was really clear on just how many people know the truth about RoboCop and Alex Murphy. In RoboCop 2, everybody was finding out. In RoboCop 3, everybody knew everything and had for quite some time. And the TV series went back to nobody knowing except RoboCop's partner and commanding officer. Here, several ambiguous-seeming scenes pass between Cable and RoboCop before it's clear that Cable suspects but doesn't know for sure that it's his old partner in that suit. When Cable tells RoboCop that he's replaying a chess game that he never got to finish with an old friend (read: Alex Murphy), is he unaware of RoboCop's true identity, or is he resentfully trying to tell the cyborg that he does not and will not think of him as his old partner? Hell if I can tell, until it's made clearer later on.

Other things take even longer to be figured out. I'd figured that Old Detroit was dead and gone, bulldozed with Delta City built on top of it, as was the intention mentioned implicitly in the original film and explicitly in the sequels. Turns out it's still there, though we don't find that out 'til episode two. Maybe they built Delta City on top of Windsor. At any rate, it looks like R:PD ignores the events of both movie sequels (since here, a minimum of people know who RoboCop is) and the TV series (since there doesn't appear to have been some long-standing relationship between RoboCop and James Murphy, James ignorant all along of the cyborg's real identity).

There are some other little plot problems, like how in one homage-loaded flashback to when Murphy and Cable apprehend a serial killer, Cable justifies shooting the villain by saying he would've walked anyway. Now, I understand that it's an old cop-movie tradition that apprehended serial killers will always get off on a technicality, but the cops in the movies themselves aren't supposed to know that. And throughout the episodes, men with machine guns continue to hunt down and attack RoboCop long after it's been made clear that regular bullets, even in great numbers, bounce off of him like raisins off an Oldsmobile. Nothing exactly new to the RoboCop projects, but that's kinda part of the problem.

Other things are less problems than personal peeves. White-collar villains abound, but street-level thugs like Clarence Boddicker and the drug lord Cain are missed. Sure, there's Bonemachine (goofy mask) and that mad scientist, but they're closer to Lex Luthor-like semi-supervillains than gutterslime creeps. Similarly, watching two RoboCops duke it out is great, but I also kinda missed RoboCop smashing it up with a big, monster robot.

Weird, mariachi-like "western" music figures with a lot of trumpet prominently in the score, for reasons I can't imagine. And for the first time, years are assigned to the events of the story (this one puts Murphy's original "death" in 1999) - I know, the fact that 1997 came and went without New York City being walled off doesn't make Escape From New York a worse movie, but "near future" stuff should, I think, keep us at least a little vague about the numbers.

There are a number of scenes where people operate computers here, which as presented, is something of a blessing and a curse. On one hand, these look like relatively accurate depictions of computer operation, which as we've all noticed, is something pretty rare in the movies. (i.e. nobody here types out conversations with their computers in plain, full-sentence English) Unfortunately, much of this is shot in a way that makes what's on-screen very difficult to read, especially if you taped it on VHS.

Still, in terms of story and character, R:PD is at least as good as the original film, and even in six hours (without commercials) doesn't have nearly as much wrong with it as the first sequel managed to pack into an otherwise enjoyable 110 minutes. The final episode is an exhausting hour and a half of non-stop action, which might have actually approached being unbearable if it didn't have so many possible outcomes. Most climaxes steer us towards one of two outcomes: pass/fail, good guy wins/bad guy wins. This one has a number of possibilities. Isn't that nice?

Everybody has their favorite post-RoboCop followup; after seeing RoboCop: Prime Directives, everybody'll have a new one. Big claim, maybe, but it's a big show. See it when you get the chance; I hope it's sooner than later.

Gemini Awards

2001 - Won - Best Overall Sound in a Dramatic Program or Series, Christian Carruthers, Andrew Tay, Todd Warren, Robert Woolfson - For episode "Dark Justice".

Golden Reel Award

2002 - Nominated - Best Sound Editing in Television - Effects and Foley, Long Form, Kevin Banks (sound editor), Stephen Barden (supervising sound editor), Joe Bracciale (sound editor), J.R. Fountain (sound editor), Craig Henighan (sound editor), Stephen Roque (sound editor).

WR. Brad Abraham and Joseph O'Brien

DIR. John Grant

EPISODES: 4 YEAR MADE: 2000 COUNTRY: CAN SEASONS: 1

ROBOCOP PRODUCTIONS LTD, CHUM TELEVISION, FIREWORKS ENTERTAINMENT.

CREATOR: DEBBIE FIRESTONE

TYPE OF SHOW: CRIME

FORMAT: MINI-SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 90 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 4

DATE OF PREMIER: 05/01/2000 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 25/01/2000

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Alex J. Murphy/RoboCop PAGE FLETCHER, John Terrence Cable/RoboCable MAURICE DEAN WINT, Sara Cable MARIA DEL MAR, David Kaydick GERAINT WYN DAVIES, Ann R. Key LESLIE HOPE, James Murphy ANTHONY LEMKE, Jordan REBEKA COLES-BUDRYS, Damian Lowe KEVIN JUBINVILLE, Ed Hobley DAVID FRASER, Dr. Colleen Frost MEG HOGARTH, Carver RH EUGENE CLARK, Abby Normal MARNI THOMPSON, Lexx Icon FRANCOISE YIP, Albert Bixler/Bone Machine RICHARD FITZPATRICK, The Old Woman (CEO) TEDDE MOORE, Ashley St. John-Smyth LESLIE ANN COLES, Bunny Bustamente JULIETTE POWELL, Rikki Oh BRANDI WARD, P.J. Flinders SARA SAHR, Archie Nemesis MARK BRESLIN, Carl Buck BOBBY JOHNSTON, Sandra Smyles ELLEN DUBIN, Officer Green RH ANGELO TUCCI, Lead Trooper DC STEPHEN FRETWELL, Dr. Hill JACK DUFFY, Todd TREVOR OWENS, Malcolm X-Plosion ROGUE JOHNSTON, Chuck Conflagration MIF, Johnny Nitro TED LUDZIK, Motor City Mangler JAMES PURCELL, Trooper Kirk DC JAMES DOWNING, Lead OCP Trooper BRENDAN WALL, Chief of Police BRAIN PAUL, DC Trooper DANIEL LEVINSON, Trooper McCoy DC KEVIN RUSHTON, Trooper Wilma DC BRITTNEY BANKS, Jenkins OCP CARLOS DIAZ, Quill JAMES BINKLEY, Officer Down DC JOHN JAY HERBERT, Ned Shyster KENNY ROBINSON, Benni KELLY FIDDICK, Ned Gummel NEVILLE EDWARDS, Dr. Lester Worth FRANCOIS KLANFER, Meeker PHILIP DEWILDE, Mother ROSALIE MCDOUGALL, OCP Executive GARFIELD ANDREWS, Board Member MURRAY MCRAE, Man PANOU, Woman JODI PAPE, Elderly Woman DAISY WHITE, Construction Worker ADAM LARGE, Lawyer DAVID MACNIVEN, Young Woman HEATHER MATHIESON, Exotic Dancer #1 PATRICA ALDRIDGE, Exotic Dancer #2 BROOK PATTERSON, Mandy #1 ERICA DAHM, Mandy #2 JACLYN DAHM, Mandy #3 NICOLE DAHM, Executive EMANUEL ARRUDA, Clarence Boddicker (archive footage) KURTWOOD SMITH.

RELATED SHOWS:*ROBOCOP - THE SERIES*1 - 1 Dark Justice

Ten years after becoming RoboCop, Alex Murphy finds his grown son, James, is an executive at Omni Consumer Products and doesn't know he is alive. RoboCop must also deal with his former partner, John T. Cable, being in charge of security at Delta City. Meanwhile, a new threat has emerged for Delta City, a crime wave launched by Bone Machine. RoboCop and Cable's investigation reveals a connection to the Trust, a group of OCP executives looking to take over the company. Making things worse, James is about to be brought into the Trust by Cable's ex-wife, Sara. The Trust reprogram RoboCop to terminate Cable before the investigation exposes them. Cable's only chance is to get through to RoboCop's human side. But this causes conflicts within RoboCop, which can lead to his destruction.

Wr Brad Abraham, Joseph O'Brien

Dir Julian Grant

1 - 2 Meltdown

Cybernetically-enhanced mercenaries, led by Ann R. Key, try to steal technology from OCP. RoboCop stops them, but the murder of John Cable by the Trust has left RoboCop without his humanity, making him extremely violent. Unknown to RoboCop, the Trust have resurrected Cable into a new crime-prevention unit, RoboCable. Meanwhile, James looks into his father's death and uncovers some secret files. RoboCop battles Delta City Security and RoboCable. RoboCop recognizes him for who he really is, but the Trust have suppressed Cable's humanity. As the battle ensues, RoboCop is forced to retreat and escapes into Old Detroit. His only hope now is teaming up with Ann R. Key. Meanwhile, RoboCable and the Robohunters enter Old Detroit to find and destroy RoboCop.

Wr Brad Abraham, Joseph O'Brien

Dir Julian Grant

1 - 3 Resurrection

After their battle, RoboCop and RoboCable are now wandering through Old Detroit. RoboCop is rescued and repaired just in time by Ann R. Key, Lexx and Abby. Meanwhile, RoboCable is captured by Dr. David Kaydick, who is plotting to unleash a deadly weapon. Back at OCP, Sara orders James to take a new squad of RoboHunters and find RoboCop.

Wr Brad Abraham, Joseph O'Brien

Dir Julian Grant

1 - 4 Crash and Burn

RoboCop battles his way past the police and OCP security systems stop Kaydick before he releases his doomsday weapon. Once he reaches Kaydick, he must get past the repaired and battle hungry John T. Cable. The final battle has begun.

Wr Brad Abraham, Joseph O'Brien

Dir Julian Grant

ROBOT DETECTIVE

AKA: ROBOT KEIJI

Badoh is an organization that rents out killer robots to criminals. In an attempt to combat the onslaught of assassins, the special science investigation department of the Metropolitan Police hire the services of K (voiced by Nakamura), a robot detective. Though K is programmed to be a hardworking police officer, he immediately finds himself partnered with an antagonistic human cop. Old-timer Shiba (Takashina) has hated all machines ever since the death of his beloved wife in an automobile accident, he likes to go with his experience and intuition, and loathes K's ceaselessly logical approach to every problem.

K, meanwhile, tries to comprehend human emotion. Together with the action hero younger cop Tsuyoshi Shinjo (Chiba), the mismatched detectives hunt down Badoh's various robot crimes, hoping to eventually trace them back to the criminal organization itself.

Created by Shotaro Ishinomori who also drew a manga that ran alongside the TV broadcast, Robot Detective was way ahead of its time and often cited by Japanese sources as a forerunner of ROBOCOP. Though it is unlikely that Robocop's creators knew of this obscure foreign series, RD's influence back in Japan was more palpable, particularly in the middle period Metal Series from JIVAN onward.

As Robot Detective went on, the curmudgeonly Shiba stopped calling him a "scrap pile" and began to accept him as just another police officer - a silly idea rendered utterly believable by Kaku Takashina's superbly straight performance. This matter of fact attitude was part of the serial's appeal, like the later Patlabor, RD excels at times when it simply tells a police story that happens to have a robot in it, though that's not to say that it does not have time for scenes of robot combat. For clues to the mood of K in any scenes you may see - his eyes are usually yellow, but turn red during combat and blue when he is sad. Music by Shunsuke Kikuchi.

Characters

'K'

Height: 2 Meters (6.5 Feet)

Weight: 90 Kilos (198 Lbs.)

Specifics:

In normal mode, disguises himself by putting on a Yellow Cap, and wearing a Red Sports Jacket as a means to make himself more human and so as not to unintentionally frighten those who he has sworn to protect.

Has circuitry that enables him to feel emotions. This can be seen through the changing of his eye color:

Yellow: Normal Blue: Sadness Red: Anger

When battling the robots of BADO he tosses his clothes off and goes into Battle Mode by shouting Go!. In this form his physical powers would double/triple in strength. His main weapons in this form included a power cannon encased in his chest.

After Episode 22, he got an upgrade and could now go into an even more powerful Battle Mode (his entire body would change color to Red after he would shout Blow Up). In this mode he had various additional weapons, which included additional guns, cannons and missile launchers that would activate and protrude out throughout his body. He also had various weapon attachments which he could fit into his arms (similar to Rideman of the Kamen Rider V3 series).

Although 'K' is an artificial being, he desires to understand humans and wants nothing more than to be a part of humanity. Yet, he sometimes finds it difficult to deal with the fear humans have of his kind and often is the blunt of cruel comments by Chief Shiba and others. 'K' however finds comfort with the relationships he has formed with partner Shinjo and Chief Shiba's two teenage daughters.

The Joker

His main means of transportation would be his custom Fairlady Z car called JOKER. This car in addition to being able to go well over 500 K on land, could also fly at speed up to Mach 5.

Mother

'K's' refuge from the world came in the form of a mobile base/robot whom he called Mother. When hurt, 'K' would yell out Mother! and this giant robot would appear. Mother contained various compartments for 'K' and others to reside in and could re-power 'K's' energy when needed. It is later revealed that, Mother is in fact a robot piloted by 'K's' creator Saori Kirishima. N/A

Bado

The renegade conglomerate R.K.K. (Robot Kaishi Kabukigaisha Robot Rental Company) BADO or BAD is a mysterious organization that rents out its services to various criminal endeavors. Utilizing an army of killer robots and black suited cyborg assistants, BADO launches a number of criminal offenses against the city of Tokyo and its citizens. It is later revealed that the main leader of BADO was none other than Kirishima Saori's younger brother. His consciousness was housed in a computer.

Chiba Jiro is the brother of Sonichi "Sonny" Chiba who also guest starred in a couple of episodes as the brother of Go, Shinjo Keitaro.

Was originally to be called Robot Keiji "J" but was later changed.

It is said that Ishinomori Shoutaro got the inspiration for "Robot Keiji" from the seminal Science Fiction robot story "I, Robot" by Isaac Asimov.

Episodes/Enemy

- #1 - BADO No Satsujin Sales Man (BADO's Killer Sales Man) Waka Man (Steel Ring Man)
- #2 - Mokegekisha Wa Zero (No Witnesses) WakaMan & Tenaga Man (LongArm Man)
- #3 - Tokei Hakkyo Jiken (Case of the Time Madness) Jiriki Man (MagnetMan)
- #4 - Kabe Ni Kaeta Satsujin Sha (The Killer Who Turned Into The Wall) Chameleon Man
- #5 - Nijyu No Hannin No Nazou (The Mystery of the Twin Suspects) Nanatsu Man (ToolboxMan) & KowashiMan (DestroyMan)
- #6 - Kyofu No Shikei Machine (The Fearful Execution Machine) Kowashi Man
- #7- Jijou No Kyofu! (Terror From Above) Hikou Man (PlaneMan)
- #8 - Kaminari Ga Korosu?! (Death By Lightning?) Kaminari Man (LightningMan)
- #9 - Denki Isu Spy! (Electric Chair Spy!) Koshikake Man (ChairMan)
- #10 - BADO No Minagoroshi Sakusen! (BADO's Genocide Plan) Harisasu Man (NeedleMan)
- #11 - BADO Kichi No Himitsu! (The Secret of BADO's Secret Base) Locker Man
- #12 - Mother Ga Newareru! (Mother Is Being Threatened!) Spring Man
- #13 - Akuma No Kemuri Ni Ki O Tsukero! (Beware the Evil Smoke!) Doku Gas Man (PoisonGas Man)
- #14 - Hikaru Mankome No Kiyofu! (Terror of the Shining Eyes!) - Ganriki Man (Machinegun Man)
- #15 - Hiyoteki Wa Genshi Bangou 79? (The Target Is Number 79) - Nokogiri Man (Chainsaw Man)
- #16 - BADO Kara Ubae! (Snatch From BADO!) - Taihou Man (Cannon Man)
- #17 - Ma No Awa Ni Kesareru Na?! (Beware the Evil Foam?!) - Moguru Man (Drill Man)
- #18 - BADO No Reitou Sakusen (BADO's Freeze Plan) - Reitou Man (Freeze Man)
- #19 - Okinawa No Kai Ni Nazo O Ou (Chase After the Okinawa Mystery) Kiyorai Man (Torpedo Man)
- #20 - Suibaku Hikosen Tokyo Ei! (The Aircraft Carrier Is Heading Toward Tokyo!) Karate Man
- #21 - Kiyofu Tennetsu Man Mother Gekichin! (The Terror of Barbed Wire Man Mother is Sinking!) Tennetsu Man
- #22 - Kiyoaku No Missile Man BADO No Shiyotai! (The Dangerous Missile Man BADO's Identity Is Revealed) Missile Man
- #23 - Sensui Man Suichu No Kiyofu! (The Undersea Terror of BattleShip Man) BattleShip Man
- #24 - Bakurai Man Shochu Sakusen! (Barurai Man's Burn Plan) Bakurai Man
- #25 - Kiyoku Gatoringu Man No BADO Virus Sakusen! (Deadly Automation Man's Virus Plan!) Gatoringu Man
- #26 - BADO Kasei Ni Korosu (To Kill BADO On Mars) Haguru Man (Gear Man)

WR. Masaru Igami, Shoichi Nakayama, Shozo Uehara.

DIR. Atsuo Okunaka, Itaru Orita, Kazunari Uchida

EPISODES: 26 YEAR MADE: 1973 COUNTRY: JAP SEASONS: 1

TOEI/FUJI

CREATOR: SHOTARO ISHINOMORI

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: Japanese

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 26

DATE OF PREMIER: 05/04/1973

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 27/08/1973

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Detective Gô Shinjô HAROU CHIBA, Taizô Shiba KAKU TAKASHINA, Nami Shiba KEIKO KURENAI, Yumi Shiba YUMIKO KAGA, SAKYO MIKAMI, Tsuyoshi Shinjo SHINICHI "SONNY" CHIBA, Saori Kirishima YUKO KIMI, Robot Detective K (wearing clothes) RITSU NAKAJIMA, Robot Detective K (Battle Mode) JUNJI YAMAOKA, Robot Detective K (voice) HIDEO NAKAMURA, Badô (voice) KIYOSHI KAWAKUBO, Jihei Jigoku SAKYO MIKAMI, Narrator (voice) KEI'ICHI NODA.

RELATED SHOWS:

JIVAN

- 1 - 1 BAD'S KILLER SALESMAN
- 1 - 2 WITNESSES ARE ZERO
- 1 - 3 THE CASE OF THE CRAZY CLOCKS
- 1 - 4 THE ASSASSIN VANISHED IN THE WALL
- 1 - 5 THE DOUBLE CRIMINAL MYSTERY
- 1 - 6 TERROR OF THE EXECUTION MACHINE!!
- 1 - 7 THE FEAR OVERHEAD!!
- 1 - 8 DEATH BY THUNDERBOLT?!
- 1 - 9 THE ELECTRIC CHAIR SPY!!
- 1 - 10 BAD'S PLAN FOR TOTAL ANNIHILATION!!
- 1 - 11 THE SECRET OF BAD'S HIDEOUT!!
- 1 - 12 MOTHER UNDER ATTACK!
- 1 - 13 WATCH OUT FOR THE DEVIL'S SMOKE!
- 1 - 14 TERROR OF THE TWINKLING EYES!!
- 1 - 15 THE TARGET: ATOMIC NO.79?!
- 1 - 16 STEAL BACK FROM BAD!
- 1 - 17 BEWARE THE FOAM OF EVIL?!
- 1 - 18 BAD'S DEEP FREEZE STRATEGY
- 1 - 19 CHASING THE OKINAWAN SEA MYSTERY!!
- 1 - 20 THE H-BOMB AIRSHIP HEADS FOR TOKYO!
- 1 - 21 THE TERRIBLE DENNETSUMAN -- MOTHER DESTROYED!!
- 1 - 22 THE VILLAINOUS MISSLEMAN -- BAD IS REVEALED!!
- 1 - 23 SENSUIMAN'S UNDERSEA TERROR!!
- 1 - 24 BAKURAIMAN'S BURNING SCHEME!!
- 1 - 25 EVIL GATLINGMAN'S BAD VIRUS STRATEGY!!
- 1 - 26 BAD DIES ON MARS!!

ROCAMBOLE

A magician called Hindu, is actually the masked super hero, Rocambole. The sect of the Scorpion tries to recruit him to help in their plans for world conquest, but instead, he battles against the sect of evil assassins.

Produced by Carlos Bravo (producer).

Cinematography by Rafael Banquells.

WR. Raúl Zenteno

DIR. Antonio Fernández

EPISODES: 75 YEAR MADE: 1967 COUNTRY: MEX SEASONS:

TELESISTEMA MEXICANO S.A.

CREATOR: RAUL ZENTENO

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: Yes COLOUR: No LANG: Spanish

SEASON BREAKDOWN:

DATE OF PREMIER:

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Rocambole JULIO ALEMAN, ELDA PERALTA, GERMAN ROBLES, RAUL MERAZ, LUIS GIMENO, SUSANA ALEXANDER, JULIAN PASTOR, ELSE CARDENAS, MIGUEL SUAREZ, LUPITA LARA.

ROCKY JONES, SPACE RANGER

Living in the 21st Century, Rocky Jones and the United Planets of the Solar System which he represented were in a political situation not unlike that of 1950s America. Although there was peace in the solar system. The United Planets were pitted in a cold war against the Ophichus Formation ruled by the evil cleolanta. Like all the Space Rangers, Rocky and his crew in one of his two spaceships, Orbit Jet and Silver Moon, kept the peace in the solar system and responded to disasters either natural or man made. His crew consisted of: Winky his sidekick, Vena Ray his navigator who often needed rescuing.

Professor Newton, an elderly scientist (Professor Newton was later replaced by Professor Mayberry) and Bobby, Professor Newton's young ward. Secretary Drake was the man that Rocky reported to at Space Ranger headquarters on Earth.

This was the first science fiction television show to be entirely pre-filmed (instead of televised live, like CAPTAIN VIDEO, SPACE PATROL, BUCK ROGERS, TOM CORBETT) and therefore it was the first to use quality sets, location shoots, and decent special effects.

Rocky Jones, Space Ranger was one of the first of outer space adventure serials to be shot on film, as opposed to broadcast live as were most of its contemporaries, such as CAPTAIN VIDEO and SPACE PATROL. Having been produced on film on a relatively high budget, Rocky Jones, Space Ranger was able to achieve production values which were very high for the time.

The series never left the solar system. The worlds of the Ophichus Formation and the United Planets were all inhabitable moons that we have yet to discover. Two of the episodes of Rocky Jones, Space Ranger: Pirate of Prah and Crash of the Moons, were used as fodder for MYSTERY SCIENCE THEATER 3000. The series was syndicated and shown on WBKB in the US.

Rocky, Jones, Space Ranger was yet another imitator of Captain Video and His Video Rangers; Space Patrol; Tom Corbett, Space Cadet; and Rod Brown of the Rocket Rangers; among myriad other space operas vying for time on television stations. Indeed, the series' likeness to the other series is made obvious by the title alone. But the essential difference between Rocky Jones and the others is that Rocky Jones was produced on motion picture film rather than broadcast live; Rocky Jones holds the distinction of being the first space opera television series to be produced on film. (Adventures of Superman was the first science fiction series on film.)

Such a distinction may seem trivial, but the use of film allowed for tighter and more controlled formal qualities than live drama would allow. Therefore, Rocky Jones has the look and feel of a motion picture. Technically, images are clear with good contrast and excellent gradations of grey due to excellent camerawork by veteran Hollywood cinematographers Walter Streng, Guy Roe, and Ernest Miller. These qualities are especially striking when viewing 16mm prints of the series, and would be even more pronounced if one had access to an original 35mm print. Beyond the mere technical quality of the series, film production allowed for larger and more varied set designs and, perhaps most importantly, for location shooting. With regard to the former, art director McClure Capps designed stylish futuristic sets filled with gadgetry designed by Loren Sackett that, like those found in the other series, looked impressive but had no basis in science. Foremost among the fanciful instruments was the omnipresent vizeograph, which, in the context of science fiction television, seemed to be an advanced design of Captain Midnight's own visaphone. But the vizeograph did more than just show an image and record a sound; it was a two-way television system that could see and hear just about anything.

More important, it could destroy the observed subject at the push of a button on its console. The device is itself declared a dangerous instrument when Secretary Drake tells Vena, in "Beyond the Curtain of Space," that the vizeograph under his command had been watching her every move and, had she become a threat to security, he could have destroyed her with it. In the same episode, Rocky uses the vizeograph to apparently destroy a traitorous space ranger. Location shooting was restricted pretty much to that 1950s icon Griffith

Park Observatory and to a high voltage power station that served as the rocket launch pads. The observatory stood in for Prof. Newton's laboratory, but the surrounding porticos frequently served as platforms to buildings on other planets. The entrance to the observatory served as the entrance to Space Ranger headquarters. The power station was an impressive set; its serpentine metal structure, along with its huge transformers and insulators along with was a ready-made edifice for Capps' futuristic set design when coupled with matte paintings and miniatures. The use of film also allowed for greater flexibility in sound design through post-production capabilities.

More importantly, the use of film allowed for the creation of intricate photographic effects designed by veteran Jack R. Glass, whose work in the second season of Adventures of Superman is highly creative and effective. In particular, the take-offs and land-ings of Rocky's ship, the XV-2, or Orbit Jet (and in later episodes the XV-3, or Silver Moon), combined miniatures with live action footage shot at the power station. When this sequence is cut with closer angles of live action also filmed at the power station, the effect is one of a seamless futuristic setting. In another impressive sequence, Rocky employs a derelict flying saucer to escape a prehistoric planet in "Blast-Off"; the cleverly effected spinning disk rivals the higher-end saucers in films like Robert Wise's The Day the Earth Stood Still (1951). The photographic effects (typical of low-budget films of the era) are numerous, effective and wholly relevant to the narratives. The photographic effects never draw attention to themselves, but remain unobtrusive, visually complementing the story. The photo-graphic effects give Rocky Jones, Space Ranger the look of a Hollywood film.

Perhaps sending the series into theatres was at least part of the intention of Roland Reed Productions since, with three exceptions, three chapters comprise each titled episode of Rocky Jones, Space Ranger. For example, "Beyond the Curtain of Space" is parcelled over three weeks with each title designated by Chapter One, Chapter Two, and Chapter Three. Rather than functioning as cliffhangers, the individual episodes serve as book chap-ters with one incident giving way to another until a tightly structured denouement brings everything to a close in the final chapter. Such a format allowed for the episodes to be strung together into feature length films. One feature in particular, Manhunt in Space, has the feel of a theatrical movie if only for its stylised main titles at the beginning and its seamless editing among the three chapters.

But the reason for the Rocky Jones features remains elusive since we could find no evi-dence of any theatrical releases (nor any evidence of television runs). Apparently other sources also find this puzzling since everyone omits playdates. Alan Morton, in The Complete Directory to Science Fiction, Fantasy and Horror Television Series, writes that some of the episodes were made into features for both the-atrical and television release, but Morton cites no dates for any releases. Allan Asherman, in an insightful summary of the making of Rocky Jones, Space Ranger in the March and May 1990 issues of Filmfax magazine, notes that the series' original distributor, Official Films Inc., edited the series into 12 features with each running 78 minutes for television release in 1956. But he gives no specific dates; and, even though our research was far from exhaustive, we found no 1956 dates for the features.

Whether the features made it to Amer-ica's screens remains unclear but certainly, Reed had a precedent to go by. Monogram Pictures and its successor Allied Artists- strung together two episodes of television's Wild 811 Hickok to form a series of theatrical features. Lippert Pictures followed suit by editing episodes of Ramar of the Jungle into features and releasing them under such titles as The White Goddess (1953) and Eyes of the Jungle (1953). Twentieth Century-Fox would do the same for Adventures of Superman in 1954.

But these features are merely separate episodes sewn together; some of the Rocky 'Only Glass receives screen credit, but Allan Asherman, in the March 1990 issue of Filmfax, adds the following to the effects crew: camera operators Dave Smith and Art Semels; camera assistants Herb Bond Charles Bohny, Gorman Wiman and Hugh Wade; and camera loader George Le Picard Asherman writes, "Working with other artists, whose names have yet to come to light, they executed the miniature buildings, artwork for starfields, composites for the establishing shots of the Space Rangers' headquarters and rocketport, and miniature spacecraft, and assembled all the effects scenes." Jones features, on the other hand, blend the episodes quite well, maintaining a coherent and seamless narrative. If these features failed to make it to theatres it was a loss for science fiction movie audiences.

Like the other space operas, Rocky Jones extolled the moral values of a political system very much like that of the United States of America. In this case, Rocky Jones (Richard Crane) was a Space Ranger with the United Worlds of the Solar System, and his job was to police the solar system and make it safe from enemies. Rocky's superior was Drake (Charles Meredith), the Secretary General of the United Worlds and secretary of Space Affairs for the planet Earth, who functioned more like a diplomat than a military leader. Drake was always concerned with peace; apparently his goal was to unite all the planets in the solar system into one democratic ideal that, obviously, resembled America. He states in "Crash of Moons" that "each world does its share for the benefit of all," which is an obvious reference to our own "one nation ... indivisible" motto.

Rocky's domain remained confined to Earth's solar system. While other series reached far and away into the universe, Rocky's limit was apparently Pluto (at least in 1954). The inhabited planets and moons he frequently visited, such as Cassa 7 and Ankapor, were explained as newly discovered worlds within our own solar system. The worlds of Negato and Posito were described as "gypsy moons" that wandered about the solar system without orbits of their own.

Rocky's primary foe was a femme fatale named Cleolanta, played by Patsy Parsons, of whom nothing is known. According to the program, Cleolanta was a "Suzerain" of Ophi-cius, i.e., presumably, the leader, and she commanded a guard whose uniforms looked suspiciously like those of Soviet troops. Her demeanour is well documented, being described by Secretary Drake in "Crash of Moons" as an "arrogant woman" who "won't allow her people any information about life on other moons or planets." (Rocky adds, "Even the possession of an astrophone set is punishable by death.") In the introductory episode "Beyond the Curtain of Space," her treachery is revealed only by her excessive facade of innocence. She tells Rocky that he and his friends Prof. Newton and young Bobby are "free to come and go ... [and] see our country" because "we have nothing to hide."

Later, she explains that "letting the rest of the universe know the truth about Ophicius is difficult [because] people who don't understand us go back with lurid tales, but those who do elect to remain and share our life with us" are happy and content. Unknown to Rocky and his fel-low rangers, Cleolanta possesses a mighty tool for helping those people "elect" to stay; the vicious Darganto, her lieutenant, tells Newton that "you've been granted an extraordinary privilege: Bobby has been near you, and allowed weekly visits, and proudly I say my own son does not know my face, as Bobby will not long remember yours" before using a brain-washing device (which resembles a globe mounted on the wall) on Newton.

Cleolanta's fascism notwithstanding, the series' primary depiction of evil was treason. Next to Cleolanta, Rocky's nemesis is a "fallen ranger" named Griff (Leonard Penn), who has sworn an allegiance to Cleolanta. In "Beyond the Curtain of Space," Griff serves as Secre-tary Drake's lieutenant, and as such he is in a good position to relay confidential information to Cleolanta. At one point, Cleolanta's agent Darganto tells Griff that one traitor is worth more than a whole army. When Drake catches Griff, Drake muses about "a traitor in that uni-form" before exclaiming that "space rangers and traitors-they don't go together!" Drake then tries to take Griff captive but finds him-self a captive of Griff and his followers. Rocky learns of Griff's treason, and, interestingly, when Rocky catches up with Griff, the traitor flees in a futuristic car (described by Asher-man as a "custom jag," meaning a customised jaguar filling in for the car of the future). A stoic Rocky merely enters Drake's office and uses the vizeograph to find the fleeing Griff. When Rocky gets Griff in focus, Rocky pushes the button which presumably kills Griff since the car explodes. (Curiously, Griff reappears, alive and well, as a prisoner of the United Worlds in "Silver Needle in the Sky.")

Traitors are also found in "The Pirates of Prah" (known in feature form as Manhunt in Space) when it is learned that Ranger Ken (James Griffith), a communications officer on Cassa 7, is feeding classified information to a band of space pirates headed by scoundrels Rinkman and Dr. Vanko, both defectors from Earth and the United Worlds of the Solar System. In "Inferno in Space," Dorton, a civilian worker for Earth's Space Affairs, is promised power by the mad Agar in exchange for free-ing Agar from prison; together they steal a rocket ship, but as the earth is about to be destroyed by the Cirkonian force, Dorton repents and calls for Rocky for help. Dorton is rescued by Rocky, and in this instance, the trai-tor is redeemed.

According to Asherman, a pilot episode was produced in 1952 that featured Robert S. Carson in the role of Secretary Drake and Crystal Reeves as Vena Ray. The pilot, which apparently had no title, was directed by Abby Berlin from a script by Warren Wilson. Ash-erman writes that only a 26-minute segment of the pilot survives, but it contains retakes featuring the present cast and uses the score by Alexander Laszlo rather than the pilot's original score that was assembled from music libraries. Asherman also writes that the seg-ment is incorporated into the episode "Bobby's Comet" (Menace from Outer Space).

Hollingsworth Morse directed all 39 episodes of the series. He and D. Ross Lederman, who directed all 39 episodes of Captain Midnight, make a unique team. Filmed televi-sion involved various filming set-ups and post- production work, and normally at least two directors were used on a series so that one could shoot an episode and supervise its post-production while the other prepared the next episode. What we can say here about the series directed by Morse and Lederman is that their programs sustained a continuous if not per-sonalised quality throughout the series' run, a rarity among filmed television shows.

Morton gives a program order and play-dates for the Rocky Jones series, but a log compiled by Andy Anderson in the May 1990 issue of Filmfax shows a different program order; in fact, Anderson identifies the episodes accord-ing to a continuous chapter series, showing "Beyond the Curtain of Space" as Chapters 1, 2, 3, "Bobby's Comet" as Chapters 4, 5, 6, and so on. Our investigation of various television listings revealed no particular program order; moreover, we could find no uniform playdates. Also, because we found much of the following material by viewing the features rather than the individual episodes, we have elected to give plot summaries for the whole rather than each chap-ter; the feature titles are in parentheses, and when the feature title is the same as the episode title we have marked it with a dagger (†). We were unable to find any of the single chapter episodes except "Vena and the Darnamo"; hence descriptions for "Escape into Space" and,

"Kip's Private War" are compiled from television listings and other reference works. According to Asherman, James Lydon replaced Scotty Beckett as Biff, Rocky's lieu-tenant, and Reginald Sheffield replaced Mau-ric Cass as Rocky's science adviser, Prof. Mayberry. At what point the change occurred eluded us since we were unable to locate any episodes noting the change in the cast, but Morton shows Lydon as a member of the cast of "The Cold Sun," which is, according to Anderson, episodes 27, 28 and 29. In the final episode, "The Trial of Rocky Jones," Sheffield is seen in a flashback to "The Cold Sun." According to Asherman, Biff (or Biffen Cardoza) was Queen Juliandra's lieutenant on Herculon, and was chosen by Juliandra as a "Space Ranger 'exchange' candidate." The rea-son for Newton's exit is not stated.

For the sake of clarity, and bolstered by interior evidence from the episodes them-selves, we have used Anderson's order despite the chaotic episode order found in various listings. In addition, we have eliminated airdates since published listings give vastly differing dates. Finally, lacking cast sheets and scripts, we were reduced to spelling the alien names below phonetically.

Technical Information

FORMAT: Half hour series told primarily in 15 three-part instalments about the exploits of Rocky Jones, a Space Ranger with the United Worlds of the Solar System.

BROADCAST HISTORY: Network: Syndi-cation originally through Official Films Inc. and later through MCA. Original Airdates: February 27, 1954, through April 17, 1954, according to McNeil; April 10, 1954, through December 4, 1954, according to Morton; and Asherman cites January 1954 as the premiere date for markets. Sponsor: Unavailable. Seasons: 1. Total Episodes: 39 black-and-white on film.

Signature

The series opens on a typical 1950s artistic rendering of outer space over which the title "Rocky Jones, Space Ranger" appears and is spoken by the announcer. This is followed by a second title, "Starring Richard Crane," before dissolving into the episode title and chapter number, again all spoken by the announcer.

Production Staff

Production: Roland Reed Productions, Inc. and Space Ranger Enterprises.

Director: Hollingsworth Morse

Producer: Roland Reed.

Executive Producer: Guy V Thayer, Jr.

Associ-ate Producer: Arthur Pierson.

Musical Score: Alexander Laszlo.

Directors of Photography Walter Streng, Ernest Miller and Guy Roe

Supervising Editors Roy Luby and Fred Maguire

Editors Richard Brockway and Gene Fowler, Jr.

Film Co-ordinator James Cairncross

Production Manager Dick L'Estrange

Art Director McClure Capps

Set Decorations Rudy Butler

Photographic Effects Jack R. Glass

Special Effects Carl Friend and Ira Anderson

Assistant Director Dick Moder

Sound Charles Althouse, Joel Moss and Jack Goodrich

Sound Editor Cathey Burrow

Music Editor Robert Raff

Casting Director Bill Tinsman

Technical Adviser Dick Morgan

Technical Instruments Loren Sackett

Makeup Ernie Park

Script Continuity Hazel W. Hall Costumes Berman Costume Company

Filmed at Hal Roach Studios

WR. Warren Wilson, Arthur Hoerl, Fritz Blocki, Marianne Mosner, Francis Rosenwald.

DIR. Hollingsworth Morse.

EPISODES: 39 YEAR MADE: 1954 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

OFFICIAL FILMS LIMITED

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 26 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: Yes COLOUR: No LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 39

DATE OF PREMIER: 10/04/1954

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 04/12/1954

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Rocky Jones RICHARD CRANE (I), Winky (1954) SCOTTY BECKETT (I), Vena Ray SALLY MANSFIELD, Bobby ROBERT LYDEN, Professor Newton MAURICE CASS, Secretary Drake CHARLES MEREDITH, Prof. Mayberry REGINALD SHEFFIELD, Biffen 'Biff' Cardoza JIMMY LYDON, Cleolanta PATSY PARSONS, Yarra DIAN FAUNTELLE, Volaca PATSY IAONNE, Juliandra ANN ROBINSON (1), JOHN BANNER, LANE BRADFORD, RALPH BROOKS, RAND BROOKS, ROBERT S. CARSON, WALTER COY, PAMELA DUNCAN, TED HECHT, JUDD HOLDREN, TOR JOHNSON, HARRY LAUTER, NAN LESLIE, DONNA MARTELL, LEONARD PENN, CRYSTAL REEVES.

RELATED SHOWS:

SPACE PATROL (1950)

CAPTAIN VIDEO AND HIS VIDEO RANGERS

MYSTERY SCIENCE THEATRE 3000

1 - 1 BEYOND THE CURTAIN OF SPACE (aka BEYOND THE MOON) (1-3)

1.1 Rocky Jones' spaceship is nearly destroyed on a trip to the planet Ophiuchus

1.2 Rocky rescues Professor Newton; Bobby discovers a spy

1.3 A plot to blow up Ranger Headquarters is discovered and the spy is captured

Wr Warren Wilson

Dir Hollingsworth Morse

1 - 2 ESCAPE INTO SPACE

6.0 Rocky apprehends a criminal who has fled to Earth and tricks him into a confession

Wr Warren Wilson

Dir Hollingsworth Morse

1 - 3 PIRATES OF PRAH (aka MUNTANT IN SPACE) (1-3)

11.1 Vena's spaceship is captured by pirates from the planet of Prah; Rocky uses a "cold light" to cloak his space craft and sets out in pursuit of the pirates

11.2 Rocky is captured but escapes aboard the Orbit Jet and travels to Earth

11.3 The pirates learn of the cloaking system and manage to escape

Wr Arthur Hoerl

Dir Hollingsworth Morse

1 - 4 SILVER NEEDLE IN THE SKY (aka DUEL IN SPACE) (1-3)

13.1 Cleolantha of Ophiuchus forces her way into a meeting at the United Worlds Conference

13.2 Cleolantha takes out her revenge on the conference by taking the delegates captive

13.3 Rocky and his crew are taken captive but manage to escape to the Earth on the Orbit Jet

Wr Fritz Blocki

Dir Hollingsworth Morse

1 - 5 FORBIDDEN MOON (1-3)

7.1 Bobby is captured and the Orbit jet is stolen

7.2 Professor Newton rescues Yarra of Medina from the radiations of the Forbidden Moon

7.3 Rocky captures serum from Agar which is an antidote to the radiation threatening the people of Medina

Wr Marianne Mosner

Dir Hollingsworth Morse

1 - 6 CRASH OF THE MOONS (1-3)

5.1 Rocky must save his crew and a space station which are trapped between two gypsy moons

5.2 Cleolanthe attempts to destroy one of the gypsy moons by bombarding it with missiles

5.3 Rocky manages to evacuate the gypsy moon named Posetta and intercepts Cleolanthe's missile attack

Wr Warren Wilson

Dir Hollingsworth Morse

1 - 7 KIP'S PRIVATE WAR

9.0 Kip, the son of a suspected saboteur, is helped by Rocky to find a new life

Wr Warren Wilson

Dir Hollingsworth Morse

1 - 8 BLAST OFF (1-3)

- 2.1 Rocky's crew lands on an asteroid and discover the Valley People and the Hill People
- 2.2 Rocky and Bobby crash on a planetoid where they discover an ancient flying saucer and the inhabitants worship the Rangers as gods
- 2.3 Rocky and Professor Newton save the lives of two natives

Wr Arthur Hoerl

Dir Hollingsworth Morse

1 - 9 BOBBY'S COMET (aka MENACE FROM OUTER SPACE) (1-3)

- 3.1 After a missile strikes the Earth, Rocky's crew departs for the planet Fornax, the origin of the missile's launch
- 3.2 Zorovax of Fornax (Walter Coy) agrees to accompany Rocky back to the Earth; Professor Kardos warns Zorovax that the Earthmen can not be trusted
- 3.3 Griff joins Garganto and Cleolanthe of Ophiuchus and invades Fornax with the assistance of Professor Kardos

Wr Warren Wilson

Dir Hollingsworth Morse

1 - 10 ROCKY'S ODYSSEY (aka GYPSY MOON) (1-3)

- 12.1 Vena is captured but rescued after the Orbit Jet lands the gypsy moon Postita
- 12.2 Rocky travels to Negato to attempt to negotiate a peace treaty between Negato and Posita
- 12.3 Rocky is believed to be dead and recordings of his voice are used in a diabolical plot

Wr Warren Wilson

Dir Hollingsworth Morse

1 - 11 THE COLD SUN (1-3)

- 4.1 Rocky and the crew receive a message that there is a strange cold spell occurring on the Earth
- 4.2 Professor Mayberry that the sun is growing cold and that a trotanic missile is needed to re-ignite the sun
- 4.3 Rocky's crew is given the task of launching the trotanic missile

Wr Warren Wilson

Dir Hollingsworth Morse

1 - 12 INFERNO IN SPACE (aka THE MAGNETIC MOON) (1-3)

- 8.1 Rocky's crew discover that all paper and wood materials on the ship are disintegrating
- 8.2 Professor Mayberry develops a plan to overcome the threat of the moon Cryko
- 8.3 Rocky's foes pay a visit to Julieandra on Herculon

Wr Francis Rosenwald

Dir Hollingsworth Morse

1 - 13 VENA AND THE DARNAMA

- 15.0 Rocky and the crew travel to a distant world named Mandora

Wr Warren Wilson

Dir Hollingsworth Morse

1 - 14 OUT OF THIS WORLD (aka ROBOT OF REGALIO) (1-3)

- 10.1 Nizam, the evil ruler of the planet Regalio, plans to use his planets magnetic force to destroy the Earth
- 10.2 Rocky and Professor Mayberry re intercepted by a Regalian flying saucer
- 10.3 Rocky and the Professor reveal the plot to Julieandra

Wr Arthur Hoerl

Dir Hollingsworth Morse

1 - 15 THE TRIAL OF ROCKY JONES (aka RENEGADE SATELLITE) (1-3)

- 14.1 Rocky, Biff, Vena, and Bobby land on Ankapore to refuel their vessel The Silver Moon. The planet is a haven for criminals since the planet has no extradition treaty with the United Planets. Some of Rocky's old enemies, Griff, Rudy DeMarco, and Dr. Reno, pick a fight and local authorities arrest Rocky, charging him with assault, attempted murder, and piracy of Griff's spaceship which is missing.
- 14.2 Biff defends Rocky at his trial; a series of flashbacks show Rocky's battles with his enemies. The missing YC-47 spaceship, commanded by Zandorf enters the United Worlds Space Station 0-W-9. Clack discovers that Pinto Vortando is a hostage.

14.3 Pinto Vortando and Clark are called as witnesses at Rocky's trial. As Judge LaVolga is about to pronounce sentence, an earthquake hits the underground city where the trial is taking place.

Wr Warren Wilson

Dir Hollingsworth Morse

ROCKY STAR

Rocky Star protects the Earth from evil forces who plan to take over the world.

ROCKY STAR is a television series based on the witty reinterpretation of a 1950s Australian radio drama. It takes as its starting point the fun and simplicity of the original radio soundtrack. To this is added a song and an imaginative B-grade, black and white visual style. The result is a fresh, fun, contemporary 'space musical' with a cliff hanger each episode. The adventure storyline will intrigue and delight the younger audience whilst the quirky, retro style of the program promises appeal amongst adults.

Broadcast in the UK in 1996.

WR. Stephen Fearnley, Stephen Harrop, Andrew Traucki

DIR. Stephen Fearnley, Stephen Harrop, Andrew Traucki

EPISODES: 20 YEAR MADE: 1993 COUNTRY: AUS SEASONS: 1

THE AUSTRALIAN FILM COMMISSION/MUCCI, YUCCI, SUCCI PTY LTD.

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: SPACE

FORMAT: SERIAL

LENGTH (MINS): 5 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: Yes COLOUR: No LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 20

DATE OF PREMIER: 12/02/1993 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Rocky Star CHRISTOPHER MORSELY, Dianna Moore KERRY FOX, Mitch Morgan STEPHEN
FEARNLEY, ROBIN GOLD, RUSSEL GARBUTT.

ROD BROWN OF THE ROCKET RANGERS

Set in the 22nd Century, the series dealt with the adventures of Rod Brown and his partner Frank Boyle on their space the Beta as they kept the solar system safe from evil geniuses and alien races. Giving them their orders from Omega Base on Earth was Commander Swift, whose chief aide Ranger Wormser was on hand chiefly for comic relief.

Rod Brown of the Rocket Rangers was the last of the 1950's live children's space adventure shows to premiere. The show is best remembered as the first starring role for Cliff Robertson who would later become a big movie star. Rod Brown of the Rocket Rangers bore more than a passing similarity to TOM CORBETT, SPACE CADET. Not surprisingly since Rod Brown was created by some of the same people who had developed TOM CORBETT. A lawsuit was filed by Rockhill Productions, which owned TOM CORBETT at the time, alleging that Rod Brown violated their rights on TOM CORBETT. CBS claimed some originating rights to the TOM CORBETT concept since the show originated on their network before switching to ABC and then DTN. The matter was eventually settled out of court.

The space wars of the 1950s heated up with the arrival of Rod Brown of the Rocket Rangers on CBS in the spring of 1953. Captain Video (DuMont) and Space Patrol (ABC) were pulling in substantial advertising dollars plus an equally attractive amount in commercial licensing fees for the rights for toy, clothing and comic book tie-ins. CBS intended to have a share of the market.

CBS, which originally presented Tom Corbett, Space Cadet to television audiences late in 1950, apparently lacked faith in the series and permitted it to emigrate over to ABC after only three months. This was a tactical mistake. The Tom Corbett series (along with Captain Video and Space Patrol dominated the science fiction adventure field and CBS was frozen out of the competition.

To remedy the situation, CBS officials developed a carbon copy of Tom Corbett and called their series Rod Brown of the Rocket Rangers. To further draw on the Corbett inspiration, the network hired George Gould (who had directed Tom Corbett) and veteran Corbett writers Jack Weinstock and Willie Gilbert. In its eagerness to make Rod Brown a rousing success, CBS reportedly tried to lure Tom Corbett himself (Frankie Thomas) over to the new project. Considerable similarities also existed between the opening signatures of the rival shows.

Talent raids among networks was noth-ing new; CBS had raised the practice to a high art in the late 1940s when network head Bill Paley snagged a number of top comedians from NBC, including Jack Benny. However, the network's blatant appropriation of the Tom Corbett format (right down to the space terminology used on the program) provoked Rockhill Productions to file suit against CBS. In its defence, CBS argued that since it had originally presented Tom Corbett, the network retained certain rights and privileges which it was exercising in the production of Rod Brown.

The lawsuit was eventually settled out of court and the terms of the settlement were not divulged. CBS, however, continued with Rod Brown. The three young rangers who formed the nucleus of the show were Rod Brown, played by 27-year-old Cliff Robertson, and his comrades Fred Boyle (Bruce Hall) and Wilbur "Wormsey" Wormser. "Wormsey" was por-trayed by Jack Weston and functioned primar-ily as comedic relief for the series. The team operated out of Omega Base in the 22nd cen-tury, took their orders from Commander Swift (John Boruff) and manned the spaceship Beta.

The only modest departure Rod Brown made from Tom Corbett, Captain Video and Space Patrol was in discarding the traditional serial format. Each Rod Brown episode was a self-contained adventure that began and ended within a 30-minute time span. (The other series had also begun to drift away from the strict serial format.)

Rockhill wasn't the only critic to go on record against Rod Brown. About the time Congress began delving into the possibility of a link between television violence and the increase in juvenile delinquency, TV Guide found Rod Brown suspect for the types of messages it was sending young viewers.

TV Guide faulted the show for straying too "closely to the line of violence" and for demonstrating "little or no attempt to be educational, infor-mative or even entertaining." As TV Guide implied, television programs in the 1950s were expected to at least make an honest effort at delivering worthwhile and instructive mes-sages, and failure to do so deserved public con-demnation. Rod Brown's only purpose appears to have been CBS's desire to milk profits from the juvenile science fiction fad. Rod Brown ran for 58 episodes and then disappeared from the air after fighting the usual assortment of killer robots, gigantic apes, space pirates and dinosaurs. What the show could not fight was the general perception that it had nothing new to offer its viewers.

Technical Information

FORMAT: Live half-hour adventure series featuring Rod Brown and the Rocket Rangers as they enforce peace among the disparate civ-ilisations throughout the galaxy in the 22nd century.

BROADCAST HISTORY: Network: CBS. Original Airdates: April 18, 1953 to May 29, 1954. Seasons: 2. Total Episodes: 58 black-and-white.

Signature

Without having seen any episodes of the series, we must reconstruct the opening based upon written descriptions. Apparently, much like Tom Corbett, Space Cadet, Rod Brown opened with an announcer's voice-over narra-tion coupled with filmed sequences of rocket ships soaring upward and out of sight.

Production Staff

Production: CBS Television. Producer: William Dozier. Director: George Gould. Writers: Jack Weinstock and Willie Gilbert.

WR. Don Moore.

DIR. George Gould.

EPISODES: 58 YEAR MADE: 1953 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 2

CBS

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: Yes COLOUR: No LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 22, (2) 36.

DATE OF PREMIER: 18/04/1953 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 29/05/1954

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Ranger Rod Brown CLIFF ROBERTSON, Ranger Frank Boyd BRUCE HALL, Ranger Wilbur ' Wormsey' Wormser JACK WESTON, Commander Swift JOHN BORUFF.

RELATED SHOWS:

TOM CORBETT, SPACE CADET

1 - 1 OPERATION DECOY

Wr Don Moore

Dir George Gould

1 - 2 THE CASE OF THE INVISIBLE SABOTEURS

1 - 3 THE PLANET OF ICE

1 - 4 WHISPERS OF THE MIND

1 - 5 THE CRATER OF PERIL

1 - 6 THE GLOBE MEN OF OMA

1 - 7 THE ADVENTURES OF THE VENUSIAN SEA

1 - 8 THE LITTLE MEN OF MERCURY

1 - 9 WORLD OF THE DOMMED

- 1 - 10 THE STRANGLER TREES OF TRITON
- 1 - 11 STRANGER FROM OUTER SPACE
- 1 - 12 THE PHANTOM BIRD OF BOLERO
- 1 - 13 THE BLACK CLOUD OF CALLISTO
- 1 - 14 THE SUITS OF PERIL
- 1 - 15 APPLES OF EDEN
- 1 - 16 SPACE BUGS
- 1 - 17 THE MARTIAN QUEEN
- 1 - 18 THE FIRE DEMONS OF DEIMOS
- 1 - 19 THE BIG HAMMER
- 1 - 20 THE VOLCANOS OF VENUS
- 1 - 21 THE DEATH BALL
- 1 - 22 THE UNSEEN PLANET
- 2 - 1 THE MADNESS FROM SPACE
- 2 - 2 THE LOOTERS OF LEERON
- 2 - 3 THE OCTOPUS OF VENUS
- 2 - 4 COLOSSUS OF CENTAURI
- 2 - 5 THE LIGHTS OF LUNA
- 2 - 6 THE TWIN PLANET
- 2 - 7 THE TREASURE OF TESORE
- 2 - 8 THE ROBOT ROBBER OF DEIMOS
- 2 - 9 THE MAGIC MAN OF MARS
- 2 - 10 THE STICKMEN OF NEPTUNE
- 2 - 11 MONEY MAKERS OF JUNO
- 2 - 12 THE DEEP SLEEP
- 2 - 13 THE CYCLOPS OF THEMIS
- 2 - 14 THE ELECTRIC MEN
- 2 - 15 THE CORPERNICUS DIAMOND
- 2 - 16 THE STONE MEN OF VENUS
- 2 - 17 ENERGY EATERS FROM LUNA
- 2 - 18 OPERATION DINOSAUR
- 2 - 19 ESCAPE BY MAGIC
- 2 - 20 THE INVISIBLE FORCE (aka ESCAPE BY MAGIC)
- 2 - 21 RETURN OF THE STICKMEN
- 2 - 22 THE FISHERMAN OF THE VENUSIAN SEA
- 2 - 23 THE STRONGMAN OF MAYRON
- 2 - 24 THE EEL OF IAPETOS

- 2 - 25 THE STRANGE MEN OF LEEFRI
- 2 - 26 THE MONKEY THAT COULDN'T STOP GROWING
- 2 - 27 THE PLAN OF PLANET H
- 2 - 28 INVASION FROM DIMENSION X
- 2 - 29 THE MATTER TRANSFER MACHINE
- 2 - 30 TERROR IN THE SPACE LIGHTHOUSE
- 2 - 31 ASSIGNMENT DANGER
- 2 - 32 BIRD-GIRL OF VENUS
- 2 - 33 THE EXPLODING MAN
- 2 - 34 THE METAL EATERS
- 2 - 35 THE MAN WHO WAS RADIOACTIVE
- 2 - 36 THE COBALT BOMB

ROK-U MAEN

A Boy becomes part cyborg after he dies, so he can live on and keep order in the world and sabatoge plans of mad scientists and robots gone beserk.

Distributors - Golden Harvest Company Ltd. & Tsuburaya Productions

WR.

DIR. Yun-sung Seo

EPISODES: 0 YEAR MADE: 1973 COUNTRY: SKO SEASONS: 1

KUK DONG, LEE MING FILM CO., SEKI TRADING CO.

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: CYBORGS

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 0 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: No LANG: Korean

SEASON BREAKDOWN:

DATE OF PREMIER:

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

JUN CHOI , HONG-GYU KIM, DAE-KUN LEE, BERU-BERA LIN, SO ZANG YOON.

ROMANCE OF ELAINE,THE

The serial incorporated a great many plot ideas from the novels of Eugene Sue and relied on the fast-paced unfolding of a stream of incredible situations in order to deflect attention from the hasty and often very shoddy direction. Compared to the work of, say, Leonce Perret in France (L'X Noir, 1915) as well as in the USA (The Empire of Diamonds, 1920), American adventure serials such as the White movies, although far more famous, look like unimaginative pot-boilers which concentrate exclusively on the invention of incredible plot situations but fail to pay any attention to direction, editing or lighting.

The films were nothing more than the frenetic movement of actors' bodies and objects. They were motion pictures in the most literal sense of the term: pictures of people and objects in motion.

This outing tells of a mysterious stranger, Dr X alias Marcus del el Mar (Barrymore, whose brother John played Dr Jekyll and Mr Hyde in 1920) who tries to obtain the torpedo designs or models left by the apparently dead Kennedy. Elaine and her faithful helper Jameson (Hale) discover that Dr X wants to mine all the East coast ports of the us. With the assistance and protection of Kennedy (revealed in the last episode), they foil the plan and save the country, although it isn't clear from what.

This second and final sequel to The Exploits of Elaine (1914) added another 12 episodes to the first extension of the adventures of Elaine Dodge (White) under the guardianship of the scientific detective Craig Kennedy (Daly), The New Exploits of Elaine (1915). By this time Seitz was writing and co-directing the picture without the official supervision of the Frenchman Louis Gasnier, who had learned his trade (not brilliantly) working with Max Linder in France before Pathe appointed him director-in-chief for its American subsidiary. The producer for the serial was Joseph A. Golden, Theodore Wharton and Leopold V. Wharton. The cinematographer was Joseph Dubray.

WR. George B. Seitz, Bertram Millhauser, Arthur B. Reeve, Charles W. Goddard.

DIR. George B. Seitz, Joseph A. Golden, Theodore Wharton, Leopold V. Wharton.

EPISODES: 12 YEAR MADE: 1915 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

WHARTON PROD CO/PATHE EXCHANGE

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: CRIME

FORMAT: CINEMA SERIAL

LENGTH (MINS): STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: Yes COLOUR: No LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 12

DATE OF PREMIER:

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

PEARL WHITE, CREIGHTON HALE, ARNOLD DALY, LIONEL BARRYMOORE, G.B. SEITZ.

RELATED SHOWS:

EXPLOITS OF ELAINE,THE

NEW EXPLOITS OF ELAINE,THE

ROSWELL

AKA: ROSWELL HIGH

Just as it sounds, Roswell taps into the youth market with a glossy saga about three aliens - Jason Behr as Max, Katherine Heigl as his sister Isabel and Brendan Fehr as their pal Michael - who've lived on Earth for years by posing as teens in an alien-obsessed Roswell, New Mexico. Max risks exposing their secret when he saves Liz (Shiri Appleyby), the diner waitress he's always adored, by healing a deadly gunshot wound with a touch of his hand.

The incident sends an alien hunting sheriff (William Sadler) into overdrive. And thus the stage is set: Should the aliens stay in Roswell? Can they trust Liz and her quirky pal (Majandra Delfino) to keep their mouths shut? Can hunky Max and adorable Liz ever get it on?

Roswell haunts me. I find myself thinking about it repeatedly during the day. I want to view the episodes again and again. I have read the book the series was based on, and I want to read it again. The show obviously touches something deep within me. What is it that draws me to the show? I think it is the romance more than the science fiction. The show has very much to do with trust, intimacy, and belonging. Max and Liz have what I think we all long for: an intimate relationship where we are absolutely sure of the other's love for us. Liz knows Max loves her and loves her truly and purely both because he risked his life to save her life and because he has let her see into his soul, where she saw and felt the love with which he has regarded her since she was a little girl.

This "mind meld" got around all the communication problems we have using language and gave Liz certainty about Max's intentions. Max and Liz are the ideal lovers: thoroughly good people (as far as we have seen), sincere and whole-hearted lovers, innocent of all mixed motives and self-serving. Michael and Maria, Isabel and Alex are lovers (or potential lovers) too, but they are more troubled as individuals and less ideal as couples. Max and Liz have found true love, and that is why we want to identify with them and experience it vicariously. Roswell is really about love.

Executive producers for the series were Kevin Kelly Brown, Jonathan Frakes, Jason Katims, Lisa J. Olin. One of the show's executive producers was none other than Jonathan Frakes who played Cmdr. William Riker in STAR TREK: THE NEXT GENERATION. Also director David Nutter was involved in many of the shows for THE X FILES. Early on in the show's development it was also known as Roswell High.

Take a little Dawson's Creek, a Jonathan Frakes-hosted alien special, a dash of Romeo and Juliet, a bit of The Fugitive, a pinch of THE X FILES and a dollop of DARK SKIES. Dump it all into a blender. Mix at high speed for 45 seconds. Such is the recipe for Roswell.

Just as it sounds, Roswell taps into the youth market with a glossy saga about three aliens. Given that Roswell isn't exactly blessed with the most original premise in the world, it's still entertaining. Credit the leads for that. Behr radiates charm and earnestness, while Appleyby plays Liz as real, though the actress, who couldn't be any prettier, is saddled with one too many lines about her, like, total averageness. Their scenes together are the heart and soul of the show. Fehr lends able support as Michael, who's ready to split Roswell any second, while Heigl and Delfino need to tone down their performances. Any cheese with the ham, ladies? As for Sadler, it's as if the late J.T. Walsh returned to Earth, inhabited Sadler's body and decided he wanted to play his tightly wound DARK SKIES character all over again.

Overall, the prospects of Roswell look good. That's especially the case if the behind-the-scenes talent: writer/executive producer Jason Katims (My So Called Life), director/executive producer David Nutter (THE X FILES) and executive producer Jonathan Frakes.

The mixture of teen angst drama and sci-fi is handled rather effectively, etching out its own distinct voice and flavor like the WB's other teen genre series BUFFY -- but not coming off as a clone. It also helps that the directorial guiding force is David Nutter, late of THE X-FILES and last year's other teen angst genre flick, DISTURBING BEHAVIOR. He finds the right tone for the show early on, setting up a lot of the strange character quirks but also giving the show a look and voice that's very different from the glut of other teen-centric shows.

Executive producer Jonathan Frakes (NEXT GENERATION) is involved with the show creatively and also pokes fun at himself in the pilot episode. During a celebration of the Roswell crash, the town has hired a guest speaker involved with sci-fi, that being Frakes in one of the show's funniest and wickedly inside cameos. It's during this celebration (and a re-enactment of the "supposed" crash) that we see the rich dynamic and emotional resonance the show has when our trio of aliens stand stone-faced as the ship crashes while their fellow peers are cheering on the cheesy proceedings.

Another amazingly complex and touching moment occurs when Max explains to Liz that he saw her entire life through her eyes when he saved her. To show the extent of his powers, he shows her his life through his eyes, particularly the emotions and feelings he had toward her during the school years. It's a very rich moment that is played to perfection by Appleby's Katie Holmes-esque spunkiness.

It will be interesting to see how this show plays out but with all the great behind-the-scenes talent it has the best of both worlds. In one corner is a very strong voice with Katims, who, like Joss Whedon on BUFFY, appears to have set up a lot of potential directions the show will likely go in during the coming season (not to mention a solid mythology right off the bat which so many shows of this nature lack). It also has an X-FILES-like conspiracy tone courtesy of X-vet Nutter. He brought a lot to Chris Carter's show as a director during the first couple of seasons and that experience looks like it will pay off ten-fold here, where he's given a wider palette to work from and a premise that, if it plays its cards right, won't get muddled in its own attempt to be vague (anyone seen THE X-FILES lately by the way?).

Tipped to be the success of the 1999/2000 US season, it looked like once against Warner Brother had come up with a winning formula. The apparent blending of Dawson Creek style teenage romance with Science Fiction looks to be an infectious brew with the producers successfully avoiding coming up with a BUFFY: THE VAMPIRE SLAYER clone. It certainly has high calibre production team with executive producers David Nutter (THE X FILES), Johnathan Frakes (STAR TREK: THE NEXT GENERATION) and Jason Katims (Relativity/ My So-Called Life) Nutter says, "It's really a cross between THE X FILES and My So Called Life, two shows which, of course, we know a little about. . . Our goal is to make this a show with intelligence and life and death stakes for the kids' attempts to avoid being heard to talk about aliens, instead adopting the codeword 'Czechoslovakians' and Frakes' cameo in the opener, playing himself at a UFO festival recreating the Roswell crash. The series was initially given a 22 episode run, unusual for the WB network.

The series started in the UK on Sky One in January 2000.

Aliens have invaded Roswell High. For many years they remained undetected, but when the enigmatic Max Evans (Qason Behr) saves the life of fellow student Liz Parker (Shiri Appleby) their secret is in danger of becoming public knowledge. As the series progresses, the mounting feelings Max and Liz share put the extraterrestrial visitors in greater peril, and arouse suspicions in those around them. As Roswell's first few episodes receive their premiere in the UK, the series is still very much in production in the US. Some days are more exciting than others on the set of TV's freshman Sci-Fi hit, but they're all necessary.

It's mid-afternoon on a lazy November day when Cult Times visits the cavernous soundstage on the Paramount Pictures lot in Hollywood, California. The Roswell team is filming episode 11, entitled The Toy House, tentatively set to air in February. The hour involves, among other things, Max and Isabel (Katherine Heigl) trying to decide whether or not to tell their human "mother" (Mary Ellen Trainor) that they're really aliens. As for the scene in question, it unfolds in the Evans household, specifically in the kitchen. A grease fire suddenly bursts forth from a skillet, imperilling Max's mother, and Max leaps into action, knocking the skillet from her hand and extinguishing the fire with a mere wave of his hand. He then, awkwardly, tosses water on the burning vegetables in a fairly lame effort to cover his tracks. The incident, of course, forces Max's mother to wonder about Max and how he's always been a little off-kilter, somewhat unusual, perhaps even a tad... alien.

Michael Fields is directing The Toy House and he's putting everyone through a rehearsal in order to finalize the choreography of the scene. There will be no real flame-up, as that will be added later via special effects. But burning vegetables do need to be seen in the shot, thus a crewman stands ready with a blowtorch to scorch the carrots, onions and peppers. Another crewman holds in his hands bags of fresh vegetables. In Hollywood, even carrots, onions and peppers have stand-ins and stunt doubles, and they probably want residuals. Fields watches intently as Behr and Trainor do their thing and as a cameraman wielding a hand-held camera does his bit to capture the action for posterity. When everyone seems ready, Fields calls for the camera to roll on scene.

On take one, Fields - viewing the action through a monitor just behind the kitchen set-isn't satisfied with the angle at which Trainor holds the skillet. He zips into the kitchen, stands behind the actress and wraps his hands around hers, much like a golf pro teaching someone how to swing a club properly, and shows her precisely what he had in mind. He then heads back to his director's chair. "Michael," she mock-complains as he walks away, "you should have hired a pan model." They both smile. On take two, Trainor gets the angle just right. "That was pretty good," Fields says, but he requests another go at it. Trainor laughs. "I have consumed more fumes today..." she says, looking hard at a couple of crewmen who are actually sporting white paper masks that cover their mouths and noses.

Take three looks rather good, and Fields remarks on his delight with it. A first assistant director then chimes in with some bad news. "The vegetables sparked when they hit the ground," he says somberly. "And we can't have that." Everyone groans, some more audibly than others. Finally, on take four, Behr walks by at just the right instant, Trainor drops the skillet perfectly, the veggies don't spark as they hit ground zero and Behr convincingly dumps water on the offending (albeit invisible) blaze. "That was perfect," Fields announces. "Print that."

Wasting little time, Fields moves on to the next shot, a close-up of the burned vegetables on the ground. Behr and Trainor disappear into their respective trailers, while several crewmen race into the room and kneel on the kitchen floor, speedily installing a piece of flooring that perfectly matches the existing floor, except that it's been pre-burned. The scorched veggies can then be strewn on top of the temporary flooring, providing the desired effect without ruining part of a permanent set. When everything's ready, Fields rolls camera. "Great!" he says following take one. The first assistant director bursts Fields' bubble again, however, this time citing technical problems. "I wasn't that happy with it, anyway," Fields cracks as he surveys the area. "Can I keep the pan? If I have that, people will think I actually cook."

The director then confers with his crew and, in a moment, they're ready for take two. "Flame 'em up!" he shouts, and take two does the trick. The moment is in the can without a hitch. Fields then comes over to talk for a brief moment. "You probably wanted to see a lot of fire, huge flames, didn't you?" he asks playfully. "Believe it or not, it's less expensive and more effective to do that stuff later, with opticals, than to bring in stuntmen and risk using real fire. Our little blowtorch is all the fire we really need to pull it off." Just then, a crewman walks by with the incinerated veggies. Fields cracks up. "This is scintillating stuff," he says, shaking his head. "It's the height of Sci-Fi, and you were here to see it."

Much later on, in his trailer after wrapping his day, Jason Behr is still full of energy and good humour. And he's this way despite the fact that only his taking the time to talk is preventing him from heading home for the night. "'The height of Sci-Fi,'" he says, smiling broadly as he repeats Fields' words. "That's one way to describe it. We've got all kinds of moments on Roswell. We've got big moments, with big action or big revelations, and then we've got the quieter moments, the little things that don't seem too important. But they are all important. Everything is building to something on Roswell. Because the WB gave us such a big order (a 22-episode commitment), we can reveal things slowly. We don't have to do everything at once, in one episode. That's great.

"What I'm trying to do - and what I think we're all trying to do smaller, quieter moments, even the ones that may not seem so important, the same way I'd play the bigger, more obviously important moments. If we play everything that way, it can only make the show that much better. That's how I look at it."

"We're as human as you are, Alex, only we can manipulate the molecular structure of things." Those are the words of Isabel Evans, as she explains to Alex (Colin Hanks) in the most simple language how she and her fellow aliens, brother Max and pal Michael, are different from - yet very much like- humans. And it's a key line in The Balance, which explores what happens when one of the aliens, in this case Michael, gets sick. But first, some backstory. Michael becomes enraged at Max for holding back information (about writings on the wall of a cave, writings that may come from their species), and goes off to see River Dog, the Native American who knows about alien visitors. After sitting through a "sweat," a Native American rite, Michael becomes frightfully ill and happens, most inconveniently, at the UFO Centre.

Much of The Balance is spent watching as Max, Liz, Alex and Maria race against the clock to save Michael. That's the conventional stuff and it's well executed. Between action bits, however, the show slows down enough to focus on relationships. Isabel tries to trust Alex, but can he keep his mouth shut? Maria still cares for Michael, who broke off their relationship because he refuses to risk getting hurt. And, of course, Max and Liz tempt fate again by contemplating a serious relationship. Maria, often the show's sarcastic voice of reason, warns Liz. "Humanalien relationships," she says, "are bound to be disastrous." In another sweet bit between Liz and Maria, the young ladies discuss the thrill of kissing an alien. "Only two people in the whole world," Maria notes, "are capable of having this conversation:"

Roswell's producers and writers are pulling off a pretty mean trick week after week; they're not dropping any balls while juggling elements as diverse as Sci-Fi, romance, teen Angst that classic standby, the chase. And the show continues to let the actors shine. After initially centering mostly on Jason Behr and Shiri Appleby as Max and Liz, Roswell now spends pretty much equal time with the superb Majandra Delfino as Maria and Brendan Fehr, who comes across as something of a young David Duchovny, always questioning and bristling with energy beneath a fairly calm exterior. Solid, too, are Katherine Heigl as the imperious Isabel and Colin Hanks as Alex, the offbeat human who wants to fit in. with the aliens.

WR. Jason Katims.

DIR. David Nutter, Turker Gates.

EPISODES: 61 YEAR MADE: 1999 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 3

20TH CENTURY FOX TELEVISION, REGENCY TELEVISION, THE WB TELEVISION NETWORK.

CREATOR: JASON KATIMS (Developed)

TYPE OF SHOW: ALIENS ON EARTH FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 60 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 22, (2) 21, (3) 18

DATE OF PREMIER: 06/10/1999 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 14/05/2002

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Liz Parker SHIRI APPLEBY, Max Evans JASON BEHR, Maria DeLuca MAJANDRA DELFINO, Michael Guerin BRENDAN FEHR, Alex Whitman COLIN HANKS, Isabel Evans KATHERINE HEIGL, Sheriff Jim Valenti WILLIAM SADLER, Kyle Valenti NICK WECHSLER, Amy DeLuca DIANNE FARR., Kathleen Topolsky JULIE BENZ, Blackwood MICHAEL HORSE, Milton STEVE HYTNER, River Dog NED ROMERA, Mrs. Evans MARY ELLEN TRAINOR.

Books Based on this series.

Roswell High

Roswell High - A New Beginning #8	Kevin Ryan	2003
Roswell High - Dreamwalk #6	Paul Rduditis	2003
Roswell High - Little Green Men #3	Dean Wesley Smith and Kristine Kathryn Rusch	2002
Roswell High - Loose Ends #1	Greg Cox	2001
Roswell High - Nightscape #9	Kevin Ryan	2003
Roswell High - No Good Deed #2	Dean Smith and Kristine Kathryn Rusch	2001
Roswell High - Pursuit #10	Andy Mangels and Michael A Martin	2003
Roswell High - Quarantine #7	Laura Burns	2003
Roswell High - Shades #4	Mel Odom	2002
Roswell High - Skeletons in the Close #5	Andy Mangels and Michael A Martin	2002
Roswell High - The Dark One	Melinda Metz	2000
Roswell High - The Intruder	Melinda Metz	2000
Roswell High - The Outsider	Melinda Metz	2000
Roswell High - The Rebel		2000
Roswell High - The Seeker	Melinda Metz	2000
Roswell High - The Stowaway	Melinda Metz	2000
Roswell High - The Vanished	Melinda Metz	2000
Roswell High - The Watcher	Melinda Metz	2000
Roswell High - The Wild One	Melinda Metz	2000
Roswell High - Turnabout #11	Andy Mangels and Michael A Martin	2003

RELATED SHOWS:

STAR TREK: THE NEXT GENERATION

1 - 1 "PILOT"

The story follows high school waitress Liz Parker (Shiri Appleby) and how one strange event in her diner leads her to a greater understanding of the world and universe around her. It all begins when Liz is fatally shot in a scuffle at the restaurant only to find herself miraculously healed by fellow student Max Evans (Jason Behr) who has had a crush on her since they were kids.

Confused by what's happened to her (and sporting a silver hand imprint on her chest), Liz now must hide the truth from her friends and family as to what actually happened on that fateful day. In the process, Liz (despite having a faithful but dull boyfriend) slowly becomes attracted to Max who spills the dirt on his background. Max was part of that Roswell crash and is one of the few surviving descendants who emerged from incubation many years later. Adopted by local families (who don't know of their true origins - or at least that we know of now), the young children including Max, his sister Isabel (Katherine Heigl of BRIDE OF CHUCKY) and friend Michael (Brendan Fehr) have managed to fit in without drawing attention to themselves for years. They do have a few obvious differences - they love Tabasco sauce and can manipulate molecules in convenient ways when they want something changed or done (such as saving Liz's life), but they've kept a pretty low profile otherwise. However, the town sheriff Valenti (William Sadler) has become suspicious of the event and now believes the rumors about aliens living among them is a truism. He's bent on breaking down Liz to get to the truth while keeping an eye on our trio of alien-nated teens.

Wr Jason Katims

Dir David Nutter

1 - 2 THE MORNING AFTER

Michael steals a key from Sheriff Valenti that may hold the secret to an alien's past.

Wr Jason Katims

Dir David Nutter

1 - 3 MONSTERS

Max, Isabel, and Michael worry that Maroa may reveal their secret to Valenti.

Wr Jason Katims, Thania St. John

Dir David Nutter, David Semel

1 - 4 LEAVING NORMAL

Kyle's friends beat up Max.

Wr Jason Katims

Dir Chris Long

1 - 5 MISSING

Liz suspects several people in connection with the disappearance of her journal.

Wr Jon Harmon Feldman

Dir David Semel

1 - 6 285 SOUTH (PART 1 OF 2)

Liz, Maria and the aliens travel to Texas to try to find a clue to their origin.

Wr William Sind, Thania St. John

Dir Arvin Brown

1 - 7 RIVER DOG (PART 2 OF 2)

The gang escape from Atherton's house with a pendant.

Wr Cheryl Cain

Dir Jonathan Frakes

1 - 8 BLOOD BROTHER

Max is injured in a car accident and Liz pressures Alex to help protect him from medical procedures that could expose his identity by providing blood samples to replace Max's.

Wr Barry Pullman, Breen Frazier

Dir David Nutter

1 - 9 HEAT WAVE

A heatwave sparks a wave of romance.

Wr Jason Katims

Dir David Nutter

1 - 10 THE BALANCE

Michael becomes sick after visiting River Dog.

Wr Thania St. John

Dir John Behring

1 - 11 THE TOY HOUSE

Max arouses his mother's suspicion when he has to use his powers.

Wr Jason Katims, Jon Harmon Feldman

Dir Michael Fields

1 - 12 INTO THE WOODS

The aliens and Sheriff Valenti try to find out what caused strange lights to appear in the sky.

Wr Thania St. John

Dir Nick Marck

1 - 13 THE CONVENTION

A UFO convention comes to Roswell.

Wr Jason Katims, Emily Whitesell

Dir Tucker Gates

1 - 14 BLIND DATE

Liz is set up with her 'perfect' date.

Wr Thania St. John

Dir Keith Samples

1 - 15 INDEPENDENCE DAY

Michael's father's abuse becomes physical.

Wr Toni Graphia

Dir Paul Shapiro

1 - 16 SEXUAL HEALING

Max gets flashes from his past.

Wr Jan Oxenberg

Dir David Semel

1 - 17 CRAZY

FBI agent Topolsky returns to warn Liz that a covert alien hunter inside the Bureau is pursuing Max and his friends -- and that he will stop at nothing to get what he wants. Meanwhile, Isabel befriends Tess, a new female student who immediately arouses Max and Michael's suspicions.

Wr Thania St. John

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

1 - 18 TESS, LIES AND VIDEOTAPE

As the Sheriff tries to win the trust of the alien teens, Michael discovers a hidden camera in his apartment.

Wr Richard Whitley, Toni Graphia

Dir Paul Shapiro

1 - 19 FOUR-SQUARE

Max confronts Tess. Isabel & Michael are having embarrassing dreams.

Wr Thania St. John

Dir Jonathan Frakes

1 - 20 MAX TO THE MAX

The shape shifting alien Nasedo masquerades as Max to kidnap Liz.

Wr Toni Graphia

Dir Patrick Norris

1 - 21 THE WHITE ROOM (PART 1 OF 2)

When Max is captured by the special unit, Nasedo and Tess team up with the gang to break him out.

Wr Jason Katims, Thania St. John

Dir Jonathan Frakes

1 - 22 DESTINY (PART 2 OF 2)

After escaping from Pierce, the aliens save Nasedo. Michael accidentally kills Pierce. Nasedo, as the aliens' guardian takes Pierce's place to help the aliens. The aliens figure out how to use the devices and release a message from Max and Isabel's real mother. She says Max is their leader and Tess, his fiancée and that Michael is Second in command and he is Isabel's fiancé. After hearing all this Liz runs out.

Wr Jason Katims, Toni Graphia

Dir Patrick Norris

2 - 1 SKIN AND BONES

Max and the others must rescue Michael after he is arrested for murder; Liz takes a job with a congresswoman who has a hidden agenda.

Wr Jason Katims

Dir James A. Contner

2 - 2 ASK NOT

Brody Davis, the mysterious new curator at the UFO Museum has the group on edge, and Michael and Isabel plotting his demise.

Wr Ronald D. Moore

Dir Bruce Seth Green

2 - 3 SURPRISE

Isabel is deeply moved when Max throws her a surprise birthday party, but she grows troubled after seeing visions of a bound and gagged Tess. Meanwhile, Alex does an interesting cop striptease for Isabel; Congresswoman Whitaker is revealed as Nasedo's killer and as a Skin.

Wr Toni Graphia

Dir Fred Keller

2 - 4 SUMMER OF '47

Michael discovers the hidden history behind the 1947 crash when interviewing a World War II survivor for a school project. The story unfolds with familiar faces portraying people in 1947.

Wr Gretchen J. Berg, Aaron Harberts

Dir Patrick Norris

2 - 5 THE END OF THE WORLD

An older Max travels from the future (2014 to be exact) to tell Liz that their relationship will imperil his planet and together they devise a plan to change the future: by making present Max fall out of love with Liz. Not an easy task until Liz tricks Max into believing she slept with Kyle.

Wr Jason Katims

Dir Bill L. Norton

2 - 6 HARVEST

After the death of congresswoman Whitaker, Max and the gang visit her hometown, Copper Summit, Arizona, where they find themselves trapped in enemy territory when they learn the whole town population are Skins.

Wr Fred Golan

Dir Paul Shapiro

2 - 7 WIPEOUT!

The Skins make all the humans in Roswell, New Mexico disappear turning it into a ghost town. Their assault ends with the death of one of the aliens: Courtney the helpful Skin. Fortunately Tess uses her mindblowing powers and destroys all the other Skins or so it seems until Max and Tess spy a boy resembling Nicholas on a scooter at the end of the episode.

Wr Gretchen J. Berg, Aaron Harberts

Dir Michael Lange

2 - 8 MEET THE DUPES (PART 1 OF 2)

Duplicate versions of Michael, Isabel and Tess come to Roswell after killing their king Zan, to urge Max to attend an important interstellar summit in New York City, but they have their own agenda; Ava stays behind in Roswell.

Wr Toni Graphia

Dir James A. Contner

2 - 9 MAX IN THE CITY (PART 2 OF 2)

Max and Tess depart for the interstellar summit in New York City with Rath and Lonnie, Michael and Isabel's duplicates, who both harbor a secret agenda for their future king and an alliance with Nicholas, the Skin. Ava reveals to Liz that Rath & Lonnie murdered Zan. Tess is kidnapped by the dupes after Max learns of their true intentions. When Max finally finds Tess she reveals that they tried to read her mind to find the Granolith but she resisted. She then says that they're gone but did they die or are they still out there? Ava says goodbye to Liz and leaves Roswell.

Wr Ronald D. Moore

Dir Patrick Norris

2 - 10 A ROSWELL CHRISTMAS CAROL

Max witnesses a tragedy and is haunted by the ghost of a man he could have saved, leaving him overwhelmed with guilt and questioning his healing abilities. Isabel aka the Christmas Nazi (dubbed by Michael) tries to brighten up the holiday season and Tess tries to become a part of the Valenti family.

Wr Jason Katims

Dir Patrick Norris

2 - 11 TO SERVE AND PROTECT

When Isabel develops a psychic connection to a girl who has been buried alive, she races to find the teenager before it's too late. Meanwhile the FBI comes to town and starts asking questions concerning Valenti and his involvement with Max and Isabel.

Wr Breen Frazier

Dir Jefery Levy

2 - 12 WE ARE FAMILY

Sheriff Valenti is suspended from the force after refusing to answer the FBI's questions about Max and Isabel, but he soon finds himself right back in the thick of things when Laurie DuPree shows up at his house claiming to be chased by aliens.

Wr Gretchen J. Berg, Aaron Harberts

Dir David Grossman

2 - 13 DISTURBING BEHAVIOUR (PART 1 OF 2)

Michael and Maria flee from Roswell after helping Laurie DuPree escape from the police, and Max learns that a deadly parasite was released into Earth's atmosphere when their ship crashed 50 years ago.

Wr Ronald D. Moore

Dir James Whitmore Jr.

2 - 14 HOW THE OTHER HALF LIVES (PART 2 OF 2)

Max tries to stop Alex and Kyle from being buried alive in a cave filled with glowing blue crystals; Isabel is kidnapped by Grant Sorenson possessed by the alien parasite queen; Michael is shot while trying to protect Laurie.

Wr Jason Katims, Ronald D. Moore

Dir Paul Shapiro

2 - 15 VIVA LAS VEGAS

When the gang makes a spur-of-the-moment trip to Las Vegas, in order to spend the DuPree money, the event-filled excursion ends in a faceoff between Max and Michael over leadership; Tess and Liz can't pass for over-21-year-olds; Maria recruits Alex to help her audition for a role that ends up to be for a stripper; Isabel meets a man.

Wr Gretchen J. Berg, Aaron Harberts

Dir Bruce Seth Green

2 - 16 HEART OF MINE

The onset of junior prom stirs up emotional tumult as Liz tempts fate by asking Max to be her date, Isabel decides Alex is the man she's been searching for, and Michael tells Maria he won't take her to prom.

Wr Jason Katims

Dir Lawrence Trilling

2 - 17 CRY YOUR NAME

Jim Valenti breaks the news to the aliens and their friends that Alex was killed in a suspicious car accident. Max attempts to revive the already dead Alex, but sadly cannot. The gang must then deal with their overwhelming grief over losing their beloved friend. When the investigation into the car accident leads Valenti and Max to believe that Alex committed suicide by deliberately driving his car into the oncoming path of a truck, Liz blows up and refuses to believe it. Liz begins investigating on her own, finding a photo of Alex and his Swedish girlfriend defaced literally with Alex's head missing. But the weirdest clues are the passage from a Robert Frost poem and the credit card slip that Alex signed just before his death, the strange part: he signed it 11100100100111011001.

Wr Ronald D. Moore

Dir Allan Kroeker

2 - 18 IT'S TOO LATE AND IT'S TOO BAD

A startling breakthrough leads to a renewed connection for two of the gang. Differing reactions to a life shattering event creates tension among the gang, resulting in heartfelt revelations, hidden insecurities and thoughts of leaving Roswell. Meanwhile, Liz enlists Sean in her continuing quest for answers into the death of Alex.

Wr Gretchen J. Berg, Aaron Harberts

Dir Patrick Norris

2 - 19 BABY, IT'S YOU

Max is hit with a one-two punch after he discovers that not only is Tess pregnant with his son, but that the baby cannot survive unless they return to their home planet. Liz, Maria and Michael work together to unravel the mysterious double life of Alex. Isabel and Kyle explore her powers as they play pranks on Max and Kyle dreamwalks with a Playmate.

Wr Lisa Klink

Dir Rodney Charters

2 - 20 OFF THE MENU

Brody Davis, his mind frazzled from an electric shock, holds several members of the gang hostage, when he begins to remember what happened when he was abducted, such as the New York City interstellar summit and the fact that Max is an alien. Max must use his healing abilities to fix Brody's mind so that he doesn't remember the alien mind that inhabits him. Tess must mindwarp Amy DeLuca into not remembering that Brody held them hostage.

Wr Garrett Lerner, Russel Friend

Dir Patrick Norris

2 - 21 THE DEPARTURE

Max, Isabel, Michael and Tess struggle with goodbyes on what they believe to be their last night on Earth before they travel back to their home planet. In the final hours, Max frantically searches for the killer that is still out there and threatens the lives of everyone they love.

Wr Jason Katims

Dir Patrick Norris

3 - 1 BUSTED

Max and Liz are arrested and jailed for holding up a convenience store. Meanwhile, Isabel has a secret affair with a handsome attorney, and Michael tries to straighten out his life.

Wr Jason Katims

Dir Allan Kroeker

3 - 2 MICHAEL, THE GUYS AND THE GREAT SNAPPLE CAPER

Michael works as a security guard, but when he tries to loosen up his co-workers, he causes more harm than good. Meanwhile, Max and Liz continue to see each other despite her parents' wishes.

Wr Ronald D. Moore

Dir Paul Shapiro

3 - 3 SIGNIFICANT OTHER

With Alex's ghost as her guide, Isabel must finally confront her fears about love and her conflicted feelings for Jesse. Meanwhile, Maria happily discovers a whole new, human part of Michael in, of all places, a bowling alley, and Liz and Max struggle to remain together despite her father's insistent disapproval.

Wr David Simkins

Dir Patrick Norris

3 - 4 SECRETS AND LIES (PART 1 OF 2)

Max travels to Hollywood while investigating a murder he believes was committed by an alien. He discovers a link to a Paramount science fiction show called "They Are Among Us" and when he goes to the Paramount lot to investigate he ends up auditioning for the part of an alien on an episode of "Enterprise" directed by Star Trek alum, Jonathan Frakes. Meanwhile, back in Roswell, Isabel and Jesse struggle over how to reveal their engagement to their families.

Wr Garrett Lerner, Russel Friend

Dir Jonathan Frakes

3 - 5 CONTROL (PART 2 OF 2)

Max, with the help of Kal Langley, undertakes a dangerous journey as he seeks to learn of the fate of Tess and his son. Meanwhile, back in Roswell, Isabel and Jesse must face the negative reactions of their parents and friends to their impending marriage.

Wr Gretchen J. Berg, Aaron Harberts

Dir Bill L. Norton

3 - 6 TO HAVE AND TO HOLD

Right before her wedding, Isabel is torn with doubt when she has erotic dreams of her former alien lover, Kivar. Meanwhile, a reluctant Max agrees to serve as Jesse's best man, while attempting to investigate him at the bachelor party.

Wr Ronald D. Moore

Dir Fred Keller

3 - 7 INTERRUPTUS

After their idyllic wedding, Isabel and Jesse are stalked on their honeymoon by her alien lover Kivar who plots to take her back to their home planet. Learning of this, Max and Michael arrive intent on destroying the alien. Meanwhile, Liz and Maria discover that Philip has begun a secret investigation of Max, including the disappearance of Tess, and he's embroiling Liz's dad into the whole thing.

Wr David Simkins

Dir Bruce Seth Green

3 - 8 BEHIND THE MUSIC

When an old love visits Maria her passion for music resurfaces, which jeopardizes her relationship with Michael. Meanwhile, while Max's father is still trying to put together all the pieces of his investigation, Isabel joins Max in the quest to stop him.

Wr Russel Friend, Garrett Lerner

Dir Jonathan Frakes

3 - 9 SAMUEL RISING

When Max is fascinated by an intriguing autistic child he wonders if his own lost child is attempting to reach out to him. Meanwhile, Michael plays Santa to Maria and Liz's elves at a charity event. Isabel and Jesse share their first holiday together as husband and wife.

Wr Jason Katims

Dir Patrick Norris

3 - 10 A TALE OF TWO PARTIES

In an attempt to find Roswell's legendary New Year's Rave, Max and Maria join forces. Meanwhile, Liz connects with her father and Isabel helps Kyle find the perfect date for New Year's.

Wr Melinda Metz, Laura J. Burns

Dir Allan Kroeker

3 - 11 I MARRIED AN ALIEN

When a journalist friend of Jesse's comes to Roswell, Isabel discovers he's investigating her, Max and Michael, after he witnesses Michael using his powers. Meanwhile, Isabel fantasizes about what her life would be like if Jesse knew her alien secret through the device of a 1960s sitcom a la "Bewitched".

Wr Ronald D. Moore

Dir Patrick Norris

3 - 12 CH-CH-CHANGES

When Liz begins to undergo some strange, alien-like changes to her body, she decides she needs to get as far from Max as she can. In order to separate from him she must leave Roswell to go to boarding school in Vermont. Meanwhile, Maria gets offered a recording contract in New York, but she isn't sure she likes what the record label people are doing to her music to make it "popular".

Wr Gretchen J. Berg, Aaron Harberts

Dir Paul Shapiro

3 - 13 PANACEA

Michael uncovers a conspiracy at Metachem, when a guard is killed on duty. Michael enlists the aid of Max and Isabel when the investigation takes an alien turn. Meanwhile, Liz has entered boarding school in Vermont and tries to start a new life, and Maria disillusioned by New York goes to visit Liz in Vermont.

Wr Russel Friend, Garrett Lerner

Dir Rodney Charters

3 - 14 CHANT DOWN BABYLON

Michael, Jesse and Valenti call on a discredited doctor to help the wounded Isabel. Also, Clayton Wheeler undergoes an amazing transformation and soon finds himself drawn to Liz; and Jesse quizzes Michael about Isabel's alien roots.

Wr Ronald D. Moore

Dir Lawrence Trilling

3 - 15 WHO DIES AND MADE YOU KING

When the gang attempts to return to their normal lives, they soon find that their lives have gotten a lot more complicated, which includes Jesse attempting to come to terms with his newfound knowledge but matters are complicated when he finds himself under FBI scrutiny, and Max's "death" creates a unique situation within the alien authority structure, resulting in a new King...Michael.

Wr Gretchen J. Berg, Aaron Harberts

Dir Peter Ellis

3 - 16 CRASH

Michael witnesses a fatal crash between a fighter jet and an alien vessel, and embarks on his own investigation leading to the recovery of an artifact. Meanwhile, Isabel spends the day with her mother, who's harboring a secret agenda and is working with her husband to discover Max & Isabel's secret, which leads to a shocking revelation.

Wr David Simkins

Dir Patrick Norris

3 - 17 FOUR ALIENS AND A BABY

Max's quest to find his son ends with the return of Tess and the baby, and the gang find themselves in danger again while trying to protect the child. Meanwhile, Jesse encourages Isabel to reveal her true origins to her parents, and the elder Evanses provide a way to ensure their grandchild's safety.

Wr Garrett Lerner, Russel Friend

Dir William Sadler

3 - 18 GRADUATION

As their high school graduation approaches, the gang must come to terms with their expectations for the future, while joining together to thwart the FBI when they discover that several members of the group are under surveillance. Meanwhile, Liz begins exhibiting even more alien-like powers, that cause her to see visions of their future - including their deaths.

Wr Jason Katims, Ronald D. Moore

Dir Allison Leddi-Brown

ROUNIN

AKA: ERIK MATTI'S ROUNIN

Tagline, "A TV epic that will take you to the ends of imagination."

Rounin is the story of an elite group of warriors who live in a place called Lumeria. It also happens to take place on a totally different planet. The Rounin(s) are tasked to protect the city and its inhabitants against the threats of Helion, the City of Death. Each Rounin(s) specializes in a martial arts discipline, and is commanded by the master Rounin, the leader of Lumeria. While battling their enemies, the Rounin strive to adhere to their tenets - one that they cannot fall in love with each other. The show centers around the quest of a young Rounin warrior, Mythos, as he tries to piece together his past to unlock his true identity.

Rounin was an ABS-CBN Philippine drama dubbed as tele-epiko[1] or TV epic. It is a fantasy and martial arts series shown in Philippine TV and is said to be one of the most expensive locally-produced TV series aired in the Philippines.[2] It is also the first Filipino series shot using high-definition video technology.[3] It began airing on April 16, 2007 in ABS-CBN's Primetime Bida block. The series is line produced by Reality Films while Larger Than Life Productions is handling post, visual effects, VFX supervision, mastering and grading. The series is shot using Panasonic's HDP2 technology. Despite the media hype and promotions, the series only manage to attract attention on its firsts weeks. Rounin did not manage to beat its rival show in the ratings game and therefore was put to a later timeslot to make way to stronger shows. The move contributed to reaching even lower ratings to as low as 10% as its niche audience (predominantly younger viewers) think that the timeslot is very late. It became the lowest rating for a show in Mega Manila primetime slot.

The series concluded on July 26, 2007.

Main Characters

Diether Ocampo Cadmus Prudence. The master of Rounin & leader of Lumeria. Master of the martial art of Furian (Shado and Katana). Rules with wisdom, not force. He is elevated as the master of the Legendary Rounin Circle that fought and won the Great War that finally gave Lumeria ultimate freedom and peace. He was the only survivor of the 1st Generation of Rounin. His original element was Earth, but later gained the element of Light (the medallion controlling all five elements) after being made the Master of the Rounin, and Ruler of Lumeria.

Luis Manzano Juris Service & Justice. Member of the 2nd Generation of Rounin. The strongest (of the five) Rounin. His aggressiveness matches his mastery of Freega (Muay Thai). Justice is his motivation for combat. His greatest weakness is love. He has a forbidden relationship with a fellow Rounin, Aura. His medallion's element is Fire.

Angelica Panganiban Aura Passion & Love. Member of the 2nd Generation of Rounin. The master of Aria (Wu Shu). Love is her motivation for fighting for the kingdom, and love for Juris. Unknown to her, she is also the object of affection of Creon. Her medallion's element is Wind/Air.

In the closing episode of the series, Aura and Juris marry and have a child.

Rafael Rosell IV Creon Pride & Freedom. Member of the 2nd Generation of Rounin. The Master of Armada (Capoeira). He is the son of Xander - 1st Generation Rounin, alongside with Master Cadmus. He feels pressure of being the son of Xander, A legendary Rounin. He was Juris' best friend, but became best friends with Venom later on; he had always resented his being second best to Juris in combat and in Aura's heart. His medallion's element is Water. He is vanquished by his long lost brother Mythos in battle.

Nikki Gil Leal Patriotism & Loyalty. Member of the 2nd Generation of Rounin. Master of Katana (Kali). A Rounin that truly goes by the book; she is the second strongest (loyal) Rounin. She is Aura's confidant. She is a true friend to her peers and a joyous person that endears to the people around her. She has a complicated past involving her love to Xyrus and her duty as a Rounin. Her deceased father's un-fulfilled wish to become a Rounin was what drove her to become a Rounin herself. Leal dies in the fight against Helion's forces. Her medallion's element is Electricity.

Jhong Hilario Venom Deceit & Discord. Member of the 2nd Generation of Rounin. Master of Shado (Krav Maga). Dark and secretive; always seems to have ulterior motives for his "just" actions. His loyalty is not with the kingdom, but with Creon, because he owes Creon for helping him (Venom) become a Rounin, himself. He is aptly named, as his true character is revealed later on. His medallion's element is Earth.

Rayver Cruz Mythos/Cleo Strength & Bravery. One of two chosen, 3rd Generation recruits, to the current (2nd Generation) members of Rounin, and one of elite students to pass the elimination and reach the top four, at Zephyre. Mythos possesses extraordinary fighting skills that, he thinks, might have something to do with the father he never knew. When his mother refuses to talk about his father and about their life, before they arrived in Vesta, he knows that he has to find his father and the truth for himself. Little does he know that he belongs to a family of Rounin - Xander being his father, and Creon being his older brother - and his true name being "Cleo". He later receives the medallion of Water, as one of the two new recruits into the circle of 2nd Generation of Rounin.

In the concluding episodes of the series, it was revealed that Mythos' real father was not the late Xander, but Cadmus himself, which explains why Mythos is the most powerful Rounin of his generation. He eventually inherits the leadership of Lumeria.

Shaina Magdayao Selene Respect. One of the elite students at Zephyre, and top four chosen to become one of the two new recruits into the circle of the 2nd Generation of Rounin. She is Aura's protégé. She has the making of the next Aria (Wu Shu) and Katana (Kali) master. She respects both her enemies and peers. Never bitter with defeat. She is the master apprentice of the Rounin school until Mythos came. She is happy to be reunited with Mythos and eventually falls in love with him. She later discovers that she is half-Helion, and that Vega is her half-sister, making Draco her father. She is later given status as Leader of the Palace Guard, if only for a short amount of time, to test her loyalty.

Selene and Mythos are married by the end of the series, and have twin daughters. However, Selene's Helion heritage continues to hover over her newfound life.

Joross Gamboa Thalon Ambition. One of the elite students at Zephyre, and top four chosen to become one of the two new recruits into the circle of the 2nd Generation of Rounin. He is Juris' nephew and protégé. Student of Furian (Muay Thai). He is Selene's closest ally, but he is slowly falling in love with her. He will be Mythos' Rival in combat and in love, much in the same predicament that Juris, Aura, & Creon were in. He later receives the medallion of Fire, as one of the two new recruits into the circle of 2nd Generation of Rounin.

Melissa Ricks Raysian Competitiveness. One of the elite students at Zephyre, and top four chosen to become one of the two new recruits into the circle of the 2nd Generation of Rounin. She is classmates with Mythos, Thalon, and Selene. She was also one of Mythos' rivals, constantly butting heads with Mythos, during Mythos' first arrival to Zephyre. During the Final Challenge, Mythos saves her life - carrying her while she was unconscious; she eventually warms up to Mythos and becomes one of his most trusted allies in battle. She swears on her life, her complete loyalty & allegiance to Mythos, and later develops feelings for him. Soon after, she was given status as Leader/General of the soldiers prepared to attack Helion, traveling alongside the Rounin. She dies in battle trying to save Mythos against a possessed Selene.

Geoff Eigenmann Xyrus Wariness. He was sent to the city-prison, Argos, as punishment for killing a man while trying to protect Leal. He unwillingly worked for Septo while in Argos, but had turned on him after having met, spoken with, and helped, Juris. He becomes instrumental in saving and releasing Juris from being imprisoned in Argos. He is granted amnesty and is allowed to be free once again (more accurately, he was granted residency in Lumeria upon the end of the term of his punishment & imprisonment in Argos, coinciding upon the same time as Juris' extraction from Argos). He comes face to face with Leal, his former love. He ends up being a loyal and strong warrior, alongside the Rounin, helping to protect Lumeria, especially the Palace of Master Cadmus.

Aubrey Miles Vega The daughter of Draco - the king of Helion, and heiress to the throne of Helion, the arch-enemy of Cadmus and the entire kingdom of Lumeria. She resurrects and falls in love with Creon, using her power as a Helion and the power of the Water medallion. She later discovers that Selene is her half-sister, after Selene is captured in an attempt to lure Mythos, so that he would give up his medallion, for Selene's release. She is killed by Aura in a duel.

Agot Isidro Naya Naya would do just about anything for her daughter Selene. She may seem a social climbing and money-hungry woman but in truth she only wants Selene to escape the danger of her own sordid past. Her drive for Selene to become a Rounin is so that the power of a Rounin medallion would suppress or prevent the Helion blood, in Selene, to kick in, and show Selene's true nature - thus putting Selene in danger, and being subject to be sent to Argos.

Ina Raymundo Reema/Deinara A good mother to Mythos(Cleo), who always thinks of her. She doesn't want

DATE OF PREMIER: 16/04/2007

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 26/06/2007

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Cadmus DIETHER OCAMPO, Juris LUIS MANZANO, Aura ANGELICA PANGNIBAN, Creon RAFAEL ROSELL, Leal NIKKI GIL, Venom JOHNG HILARIO, Mythos / Cleo RAYVER CRUZ, Selene SHAINA MAGDAYAO, Estor / Septo CARLOS AGASSI, JOHN APACIBLE, Young Mythos JAIRUS AQUINO, Lore MHYCO AQUINO, Amon RICO BARRERA, VICTOR BASA, Young Creon OWEN BOWEN, CRIS DALUZ, Braulio A.J. DEE, Draco MONSOUR DEL ROSARIO, Solana PAW DIAZ, DEXTER DORIA, Xyrus GEOFF EIGENMANN, STEVEN FERMO, Talon JOROSS GAMBOA, Pharus EMILIO GARCIA, Armana JENNY HERNANDEZ, Zelian JANICE HUNG, Naya AGOT ISIDRO, Kirra AARON JUNATAS, Mang Elli RONNIE LAZARO, Vega AUBREY MILES, BEA NICOLAS, BERNARD PALANCA, Tyro JUDDHA PAOLO, Reema / Deinara INA RAYMUNDO, Raysian MELISSA RICKS, RENEE SUMMER, Xander T.J. TRINIDAD.

1 - 1 EPISODE 1

Lumeria, the land of order and peace, stands at a threat of an invasion by Helion and its greedy ruler, Draco. Helion aims to exploit Lumeria's vast natural resources. As Draco and his daughter, Vega, together with a battalion of evil soldiers, march to Lumeria, chaos breaks out in the peaceland. Master Pharus calls on five noble and brave Rounins, the great warriors, to defend Lumeria. After much bloodshed, the Rounins successfully drive away Draco and his army.

While jubilation fills Lumeria, Draco plans a trap to defeat the Rounins. Draco invites the Rounins to a "peace talk," but what is actually an ambush. The Rounins muster all their strength and elemental powers to round up the Helion troops. Before killing Draco, however, Master Pharus and four Rounins meet their demise, leaving Cadmus as the lone surviving Rounin.

In Xander's attempt to save his son, the Rounin meets his demise. Cadmus seeks his comrades wife, Reema and breaks to her the bad news. He promises to fulfill the dying will of Xander, which is for his children to become Rounins. Reema objects and tells Cadmus that her other son, is dead.

Cadmus pays his last respect to the departed Rounins, and vows that Lumeria will be peaceful as long as he is alive. He dedicates his life in training Creon in becoming a Rounin. Unbeknownst to Cadmus, Reema flees with her baby, Cleo. She changes her name into Deinara, and her son's into Mythos, to escape the dangerous and violent life of the Rounins.

What fate awaits Lumeria? Can Cadmus alone protect the peaceland? Will Creon be able to follow into his father's footsteps? With a vendetta over Lumeria, how will Vega avenge his father's ruthless death? As Deinara and Mythos, will Reema and Cleo be able to live a quiet life?

1 - 2 EPISODE 2

Reema flees Lumeria with her son, and Cadmus orders a search for them. Years pass by, but still Cadmus hears nothing about the two. Reema, now as Deinara, arrives at the poverty-stricken land of Vesta with her young boy whom she now calls Mythos. Deinara meets Naya, the mother of a young girl named Selene. Deinara and Mythos live with Naya and her daughter.

Deinara conceals the truth, about her past and the father of Mythos from Naya. But having owed Naya everything, Deinara, however, comes clean, but asks Naya to keep it a secret. Naya finds an opportunity to give her daughter Selene a better life using Deinara's connection with the Rounins. Naya aims to send Selene to Lumeria to be trained as a Rounin.

Back in Lumeria, Cadmus trains Creon, now a young man, into becoming a full-pledged Rounin. Cadmus recruits four others to continue the legacy of the Rounins. Juris, Aura, Venom, and Leal now comprise the new generation of Rounins dedicated into keeping peace and order in Lumeria. Meanwhile, in Helion, Draco's black army is at a loss after the tragic demise of their leader. Vega, the heiress to the throne, is now a young woman and is seeking counsel to plot her revenge over Lumeria and the Rounins.

Mythos and Selene form a fond friendship while the former exhibits the tell-tale potentials of becoming a Rounin like his deceased father. Can a new identity stand in the way for Mythos to fulfill what is already destined? For how long will Deinara keep the truth from his son? Is peace back in Lumeria for good, or is Helion planning another attack? Can the new breed of Rounins live up to the codes and legacy of their predecessors?

1 - 3 EPISODE 3

Cadmus worries about the series of street crimes perpetrated by thieves from Vesta. After stopping a robbery attempt, Cadmus gathers the Rounins to conduct an investigation. Juris suggests leniency over the people of Vesta, but Venom believes that the outcasts must be punished. Cadmus sides with Juris and warns Venom of his impulsiveness.

Unknown to Cadmus, Braulio is one of the thieves. Braulio secretly enters Lumeria to spy on the Rounins under the orders of Vega. The Queen of Helion believes that they still stand a chance to defeat the Rounins, conquer Lumeria, and avenge her father's death.

In Vesta, Mythos meets Eli, a man who teaches young children the art of combat. Mythos manifests fighting skills which impresses Eli, and the latter agrees to train the young boy. Meanwhile, Naya insists her obsession for Selene to become a Rounin, but Deinara objects, saying that power and wealth are not the answer to a happy life. Deinara decides to forever conceal the truth to keep Mythos from searching his true identity.

On his way home, Mythos runs into Selene who is about to be used in a street theft. Mythos stops the crime, defeats the group of thieves, and saves Selene from danger. Is this the beginning of Mythos's destiny coming into fulfillment? Can Deinara do something before her worst fear comes true? How will disagreements and differences affect the bond among the Rounins?

1 - 4 EPISODE 4

The Rounins fail to catch a group of child thieves who fled to Vesta. Cadmus orders a search all over the poor city to find the main syndicate and finally put an end to the prevalence of crimes. In Vesta, Deinara hears of Mythos's involvement in a street fight only to protect Selene. Deinara reminds Mythos to always stay away from violence, but offers no clear explanation behind her intention.

Mythos and Selene run into Eli, and Mythos agrees to secretly undergo training under the care of Eli. Mythos reasons that he intends to learn the art of combat to protect his mother from possible harm.

En route to Vesta, the Rounins plan a way to search for the thieves. Venom suggests that they must arrest all children and parents in Vesta, but Aura differs, saying that they still must respect the rights of people. Leal orders Venom to act by the rules, and warns Venom that she won't hesitate to imprison Venom if he breaks orders.

The Rounins reach the local market of Vesta, and Creon calls on the people of Vesta to cooperate in the search of the thieves, and offers a reward in exchange of information. Deinara catches a glimpse of Creon, and cries upon the sight of her older son. On the other hand, Selene's obsession is fueled with the sight of the dignified Rounins.

After his secret training with Eli, Mythos confronts his mother on her reason for condemning the Rounins. Mythos confesses about his training with Eli which angers his mother. Deinara goes to Eli to stop him from encouraging her son's delusions.

Selene figures a way of earning money and getting to Lumeria by tipping the Rounins about the thieves. She convinces Mythos to accompany her to the wondrous place to talk to the Rounins. On their way, the two children are mistaken as thieves and are chased by the townspeople. Can Mythos and Selene outrun the angry mob? For how long will Venom defy orders?

1 - 5 EPISODE 5

Mythos and Selene are in Lumeria being chased by an angry mob, and the two separate to easily escape. Selene reaches the passageway, while Mythos is captured by Venom. The rebel Rounin mistook the kid for a thief and tried to punish him, but Aura and Leal intervened. They question the children in the station, where Juris presents his nephew, Thalon, who exonerates the children. Creon offers Mythos and Selene a reward in exchange of information concerning the real thieves. The children agree to turn the thieves over to the Rounins.

Creon opens his heart to Aura about his strange feeling about Mythos, and says that the kid reminds him of his dead younger brother. Meanwhile, in Vesta, Deinara and Naya worry about the whereabouts of their children. After a while, Creon and Aura arrive in the public market with Mythos and Selene. Creon instructs the children to identify the thieves. When the thieves were arrested, Naya goes to Selene to meet the Rounins, while Deinara scolds Mythos and hurriedly takes him home.

Naya speaks to Creon and Aura about the promised reward. After hearing Aura's compliments regarding Selene's heroism, Naya asks Aura about Selene's chance of becoming a Rounin. Aura offers to train Selene, which pleased the woman very much. Creon asks Naya about Mythos, and Naya invites the Rounins to her home for them to see Mythos and his mother.

Meanwhile Deinara packed their things in a bag without much of an explanation to Mythos. She and her son manage to slip out the back just as Naya and Selene opens the front door. Creon is disappointed and hopes to run into the young boy again, soon. For how long will Deinara run away from her past and bear to be estranged from her older son? Is this the beginning of Naya's Rounin dreams for Selene?

1 - 6 EPISODE 6

Naya and her daughter excitedly heads to Lumeria for Selene to start her Rounin studies. She hands over the care of her house and store to Deinara, and the latter wishes her friend all the best. Meanwhile, Mythos and Selene part ways with heavy hearts in exchange of following their mothers' different wills. The two children, however, leave each other the promise of meeting again in the future.

On the other hand, the arrested thieves are banished into a barren land known as Argos, the place where criminals are detained. The thieves express anger over the Rounins, and they all meet a mysterious criminal who vows revenge over the armed defenders of Lumeria.

In Lumeria, Cadmus wonders why more and more people are leaving the bountiful life in Lumeria only to live in the poor city of Vesta. The master Rounin questions himself and his leadership of the bright city. Meanwhile, Creon subtly expressed a liking towards Aura, but the lady Rounin warned Creon and reminds him of the code they must all follow. Juris shows worry upon noticing the way Creon relates to Aura.

Years pass by and Selene goes through an apprenticeship under Aura, while Mythos continues his secret training with Eli. Both are now teenagers living completely different lives. Is there a chance for these childhood friends to meet again? What if Deinara finds out about Mythos's secret training with Eli? Now a young man, can Mythos continue his blind obedience to his mother's mysterious intentions? What threat does the criminals of Argos pose against the Rounins?

1 - 7 EPISODE 7

Lumeria celebrates its day of independence. Creon remembers the day he lost his mother, father, and younger brother to the great war. He dreams of having his own family one day. Cadmus, on the other hand, still worries about Reema all these years. The master Rounin finds it difficult to be happy for Lumeria because of the great loss he suffered a long time ago.

In Vesta, Elli rushes to Mythos with news about the banished criminals being released from Argos. Before Mythos could do something, the criminals arrive and try to make Mythos pay for their incarceration. Mythos and Elli, however, defeat all the criminals. Some people inform Deinara of the fight and gets there to witness her son in action. She confronts Mythos and warns Elli to stay away from her son.

At home, Deinara and Mythos argue regarding his secret training with Elli. Deinara can't seem to understand his son's persistence on honing his combat skills, while Mythos questions his mother's real intentions. Mythos asks about his father, but Deinara refuses to say anything. Mythos resents his mother's secrets, and runs away from home.

Mythos talks to Elli about his feelings. Mythos admits resentment about the fact that his mother still treats him like a child. Elli advises him not to be carried away by his anger and that he must learn to respect his mother's decision. He tells Mythos to go home and apologize to his mother, but Mythos decides to wait 'til morning.

Deinara, alone at home, receives an unfriendly visit from the criminals. Thinking that Mythos is with her, the criminals burn the house down to take their revenge on him. Deinara tries to escape, but to no avail, remains trapped by the smoke and fire.

Mythos and Elli witness the people in chaos, and Mythos fears the worst. He rushes home to check on his mother, only to see their house in flames. He calls out for his mother and heads on to save her, but Elli stops him from going inside. Mythos struggles and breaks free, finding his mother unconscious on the floor. Mythos brings Deinara out and tries to revive her. Deinara regains consciousness, but feels very weak. She asks her son to promise that he will stay away from violence and put his strength into good use. Deinara then takes her last breath and dies.

What will Mythos do now that he is an orphan? Will he abide by his mother's dying will, or pursue the truth about his past and fulfill the wishes of his heart?

1 - 8 EPISODE 8

Mythos mourns the tragic death of his mother and vows revenge over the criminals. He hunts the people responsible for his mother's death, and altogether beats them in cold blood. But before killing them, Mythos stops, however, after remembering his mother's dying will for him to stay away from violence.

In Lumeria, Cadmus gathers all the Rounins and other apprentices to commemorate the city's freedom day. In celebration, a competition is held to showcase the skills of the Rounins. Cadmus calls on Leal, Venom, and Aura for a fight demonstration, in which Aura wins. The master Rounin calls Creon and Juris next for a second demonstration. Before taking the floor, Juris reminds Creon to remember that it is all for a show. Creon, however, psyches himself of defeating Juris. Creon gives all his skills to win, but to no avail, he is defeated by Juris. Creon is disappointed and takes the incident against Juris.

Juris rushes to Creon to clear things up. Creon, however, assures Juris that he feels fine and has nothing against Juris. But Aura believes that it was really Creon's intention to hurt Juris just to win the fight. Cadmus tells Juris that as a master Rounin, he treats his subordinates equally, hence Creon has no reason to feel bitter. Leal, on the other hand, admits to Aura her suspicion regarding Aura and Juris's fondness of each other. Leal reminds Aura about the strict rule forbidding Rounins to have intimate relationship.

Outside, Creon is alone thinking. He is disturbed by Venom who offers help. Creon insists on being left alone, but Venom further irritates Creon, and an altercation breaks between the two. In the middle of the fight, Creon verbalizes his frustrations in becoming the most powerful Rounin and about Cadmus's favor over Juris. Before walking away, Venom professes his loyalty to Creon, that he will support whatever Creon's decision will be.

Mythos finds a letter in his mother's old stuff. He figures the letter to have come from Lumeria. Mythos goes to Elli to tell him of his decision to leave Vesta and head to Lumeria to seek answers about his father. Upon reaching Lumeria, Mythos wanders amidst the freedom day mardi gras. In the crowd, he is seen by Selene who is accompanied by Thalon. How will these long-lost childhood friends react when they finally meet? What life is in store for Mythos in Lumeria? How far will Creon be taken away by jealousy? Is there really something serious going on between Juris and Aura?

1 - 9 EPISODE 9

The celebration in Lumeria continues, and Creon shows signs of worry which Aura immediately notices. Creon asks Aura if she finds fulfillment in the Rounin service despite having to give up some personal desires. He reveals to Aura that he is willing to give up being a Rounin in exchange of finding love and having a family. The conversation gets serious, and Creon professes his profound love for Aura. The lady Rounin however dismisses the idea as a joke and walks out. Juris comes and asks Creon what bothered Aura. Creon comes clean to Juris, and the latter reiterates his comrade what the code of the Rounin says about relationships. But Creon tells Juris that he will not allow anyone, even the Rounins, to stop him from loving Aura.

Thalon shares to Selene his childhood dream of becoming a full-pledged Rounin one day, but the young lady admits to her friend that being a Rounin is actually her mother's dream. Selene wonders of taking a different course, that probably being a Rounin is not really her destiny. Thalon, however, tries to convince Selene of the benefits that the life of a Rounin promises. Seeing her closeness with Thalon, Naya talks to Selene about what is really going on between her and the young man. She advises her daughter to prioritize her training in becoming a Rounin. Since Selene and Thalon are showing potentials of becoming a Rounin someday, Naya reminds Selene that Rounins are forbidden from having relationships.

The following day, Naya asks Selene on when will she finally become a Rounin, but Selene tells her mother that the only way she can become a Rounin is if she is chosen to replace a Rounin who dies in a battle or resigns from the order. Selene tells her mother that she is no longer sure if she still wants to spend more years waiting to become a Rounin. Selene considers going to an ordinary school and taking a regular course, but Naya yells at her daughter that becoming a Rounin is their only ticket to a bountiful life. Selene resents her mother for controlling her life and preventing her from doing the things that will make her happy.

Mythos wanders the streets of Lumeria and asks some bystanders for direction. He shows them the old book he got from his mother, and the people direct him to the school of Zephir. By night time, Mythos reaches Zephir, but the school is already closed. The guards interrogate him, but when Mythos failed to show a passport, the guards tried to arrest him. Mythos fights back, defeats all the guards, and runs away. Mythos then finds a closed inn and manages to convince a kid named Kirra, the inn keeper, to sneak him in for the night. Upon telling Kirra that he is from Vesta, Mythos is driven away by Kirra for the fear of being accused of protecting a trespasser. Mythos, however, promises to pay the kid money in exchange of his secret stay even for the night.

Juris finds Aura in training and tries to join her. The two talk about Creon, but Aura still believes that everything is just a joke. Juris asks Aura how she truly feels about Creon, but Aura tells Juris that she only sees Creon as a comrade. Juris and Aura engage in a rehearse combat, but the kicks and punches turn into intimate caresses as the two Rounins get carried away by their affection for each other. Aura tells Juris that it is not yet time to bring their love out in the open. Aura promises Juris that one day, she will fight for their love whatever the cost may be.

Will forbidden love and jealousy wound the relationship among the Rounins? What answers will Mythos find in Lumeria? For how long can Selene continue her blind obedience to her mother?

1 - 10 EPISODE 10

In the middle of training in Zephir, Aura notices the closeness of Selene and Thalon. Aura talks to her apprentice and reminds her to guard her feelings, especially that she and Thalon may become Rounins anytime soon. Selene, however, tells her teacher that for her, Thalon will be nothing else but a friend.

Mythos is found out by the owners of the inn, and he tries to convince the landlords to make him stay despite having no proper documents. Mythos offers to work in exchange of his stay, and the landlords agree to make Mythos work in the weapons shop. The landlords strictly instructed Mythos that his employment must be kept a secret as he won't be issued proper working permits. If anyone asks, Mythos must deny his involvement with the shop and its owners.

Leal takes note of Aura's actions and tells her comrade that she overheard what Aura advised Selene. Leal reminds Aura to take her own advice, which is to control her own emotions and abide by the code of the Rounin. The talk makes Aura rethink her secret relationship with Juris.

In Helion, Vega seeks advice from Arcan about her next move. She is advised by the dark counsel that a "chosen one" is coming to help them launch a great war over Lumeria. Vega tells Braulio about the prophecy, and the Queen of Helion can hardly wait for the arrival of the mysterious "hero".

In the weapons factory, Mythos experiences abuse and maltreatment from his landlords. After showing his speed in making swords, Mythos is given additional workload. Creon arrives to claim his sword, which is handed over by Mythos. The Rounin is impressed with the craftsmanship of the sword and asks for the maker. Kirra claims the work, but the landlord takes the credit for his own. Kirra is later punished for his presumptuousness.

Cadmus talks to Juris about the brewing feud between him and Creon. Juris, as a friend, tries to justify Creon's insecurities. Cadmus, however, tells Juris that no matter what Creon do, Juris will still be the strongest of all the Rounins. The master Rounin further explains that he will do something to teach Creon a lesson, to remind him that despite being the son of Xander, he does not necessarily possess all his father's powers.

Cadmus calls the five Rounins to a meeting. The master Rounin chooses the most deserving warrior who will serve as his right hand, and Cadmus appoints Juris. Leal supports the master's decision and reaffirms that Juris truly deserves to be the next master Rounin. Juris expresses humility and tries to pass the appointment to someone else. Cadmus, however, convinces Juris not to turn his back on the honorable task. The decision shuns Creon, and the insecure Rounin shamefully walks out of the meeting.

Did Cadmus just drive the wedge that will finally break Creon and Juris apart? For how long can Aura hide her forbidden relationship? What will happen now that Mythos has once again ran into his estranged brother?

1 - 11 EPISODE 11

Cadmus approaches Creon who is still bitter over the Master Rounin's appointment of Juris. Cadmus tries to convince Creon that he favors no one and that he must accept that Juris is indeed more powerful than him. Creon, however, believes otherwise, and expresses his regret of leaving his mother in exchange of training with Cadmus.

Kirra shows his magical healing powers to cure Mythos's wounds. Kirra allows Mythos to stay at the inn for another night. Mythos tells Kirra about his intentions in Lumeria, which is to find answers about his past. He tells Kirra about the school of Zephir and Xavier, the owner of the old book he found. Kirra tells Mythos that Zephir is where Rounins are trained and there he will find Xavier.

Creon feels betrayed, and tells Venom that he plans to go away. However, Creon can't help but think about Aura and his plans for the two of them. Venom promises his loyalty to Creon no matter what the cost is.

Juris and Aura meet in secret. Juris considers quitting the order to give way for their relationship. Aura, however, insists that it must be her who should make the compromise. She tells Juris that in time, they will be able to tell everyone about their relationship, but Juris worries about Creon, that the truth will just add fuel to Creon's hatred of him. Creon arrives but the two sense his presence and they manage to hide from their co-Rounin's sight.

Kirra steals some stuff from the shop, but the landlady catches him. Kirra is punished, but Mythos arrives and beats up the guards to save Kirra. As a consequence, Mythos is called by the guards under the orders of the landlady. When the guards discover that Mythos has no mark of Lumeria, he gets beaten up brutally. With his combat skills though, Mythos fights back, but is later outnumbered. A distress call is made to the Rounins to put a stop to the violence.

Creon professes his love to Aura and tells her of his plans of leaving the Rounin order so he and Aura can freely love each other. But Aura tells Creon that she only sees him as a friend. Creon's heart is broken and walks out of the training hall. Juris catches up with Creon for a talk, but the latter is too stubborn to listen. Juris tries to convince Creon that he has no intention of hurting a friend. Creon snaps and admits his hate for Juris and Cadmus. He attacks Juris, and a duel ensues between them.

Leal, Venom, and Aura receive the distress call and they try to respond. However, they find Creon and Juris fighting. Leal begs for the two to stop the fight so they can respond to the call. The plea fell on deaf ears so Aura tells Venom to go ahead and assist those who need them. Venom leaves as Aura further begs for order. Cadmus finally intervenes and brings Creon and Juris to the ground.

Venom finds Mythos arrested by the guards. Mythos tries to explain, but Venom hits him viciously. Kirra screams for Venom to leave Mythos alone but the Rounin only stares at him. Mythos is then picked up and brought to jail. Will Mythos receive fair treatment, or is this the end of his search for the truth in Lumeria? What punishment awaits Creon and Juris for their actions?

1 - 12 EPISODE 12

Cadmus disciplines Juris and Creon for the commotion they created. He reminds the two that it is important for every Rounin to be a role model. Cadmus asks Creon if the fight was about the Juris's appointment, but Creon is offended by the suspicion. Cadmus tells Creon that envy will bring him no good. The Master Rounin gives an ultimatum, that if Juris and Creon cannot peacefully work together, they are better off leaving the service. Juris offers a handshake, and Creon accepts it. Creon, however still feels anger over Juris and Cadmus. Later, he tells Venom his plans to get even with Juris. Creon will make peace with Juris, but will secretly plot his revenge.

Venom brings Mythos in for questioning. Mythos convinces the Rounin that he is not a bad person. He tells Venom who he is, that he and Selene were the kids to turned over the thieves in Vesta many years ago. Venom remembers, and hears Mythos's intentions in Lumeria. He then receives an amnesty from Lumeria and is given the proper documents and money to start a legal life in the city. Mythos runs into Creon and the two talk in front of Xander's monument. Creon tells Mythos the story Xander, his father, as the most powerful Rounin. Creon says that if Xander is still alive, he would be the ruler of Lumeria and not Cadmus. Mythos introduces himself to the Rounin, and tells him about what he and Selene did for the Rounins many years ago. The young man then asks Creon about Selene, and the Rounin tells him that Selene is undergoing training in Zephir. Mythos expresses his desire to be trained in Zephir and to find Xavier, the man whom he believes is his father. Creon has never heard of the name, and tells Mythos that becoming a Rounin requires much perseverance and determination. The Rounin reminds him that he must not use Zephir to find answers about his father.

Juris and Aura meet again in secret. Juris considers turning down Cadmus's appointment and finally telling the council about their relationship. But Aura believes that telling the truth will only fuel Creon's hatred over Juris. She says they must wait for the right time to tell Cadmus about the two of them. Leal, however, sees them in an intimate embrace. She was in shock but her suspicions were proven right. She reminds Aura that the code forbids them from having a relationship with another Rounin, but Aura justifies how the heart can sometimes be more powerful over all kinds of rules. Leal explains that she must tell Cadmus the truth as part of her duty, but Aura begs her friend to give her and Juris the time to tell Cadmus personally. Leal then decides to give Aura three days to tell Cadmus about it.

Creon instructs Thalón to give a word to Selene about Mythos. Thalón tells Creon that he knows Mythos from many years ago, and that Selene speaks of him highly. Thalón is worried now that Selene will finally see Mythos. During lunch, Selene talks to Thalón about the fight they witnessed between Juris and Creon. The chaos reminded her of Vesta and Mythos. Thalón becomes jealous, and fails to tell Selene that Mythos is already in Lumeria. Selene asks permission from Aura if she can pay Mythos a visit in Vesta. Selene misses her childhood friend, but Aura forbids her from going to her old home. The two engage in a swordsmanship while arguing about the importance of following strict rules. Selene later agrees to just follow orders. Thalon on the other hand seeks the advice of his Uncle Juris. Thalon feels guilty for keeping secrets, but Juris advises his nephew that secrets have reasons. Juris tells Thalon that when keeping a secret, it is important that his intentions are right and true so no one will get hurt.

With money and proper documents, Mythos returns to his landlord. Mythos asks permission to pack, and if he can bring along Kirra with him. The landlord refuses and asks money in exchange of the kid slave. Mythos agrees to pay, and Kirra is finally freed. The kid is touched by Mythos's kindness, and Kirra promises his service and loyalty to Mythos.

Leal checks on Creon who missed a class in Zephir. Leal reminds Creon to stay away from violence. She says that they will not be able to fulfill their duty as Rounins if they themselves cannot make peace with another. Creon agrees, and assures Leal that he won't pick a fight with Juris again. In the Rounin quarters, Creon tells Venom his dark plans against Juris -- he aims to study Juris's skills so he can devise a way to defeat his comrade. The only way Creon will find peace is by defeating Juris and proving Cadmus wrong.

Meanwhile, Leal checks on Juris and Aura. Aside from 'Creon' matters, Leal reminds the secret lovers that they only have two days to come clean with Master Cadmus. Leal explains that she has no intention of hurting them or become the heroine in the eyes of Cadmus, she only wants to maintain the peace and order amongst them. But, moments later, Juris and Aura secretly make love and unbeknownst to them, Creon has discovered their secret. Creon is filled with anger and vows to make Juris pay.

What will become of Creon's hatred and jealousy of Juris? Will he turn over the lovers to Cadmus? What will Mythos do now that he is a legal citizen of Lumeria?

1 - 13 EPISODE 13

Creon is unable to contain his anger for Juris whom he believes stole everything from him. He swears that he will never forgive Juris for his betrayal. Meanwhile, Kirra invites Mythos to his old house, and Mythos finds out more about the friend whom he thought was just a kid. Apparently, Kirra is already old, probably the same age as Mythos's father. Kirra belongs to a race of people who don't age as much as normal humans. Mythos tells Kirra about his plans of entering Zephire to find answers about his father. Kirra advises him to enroll in Zephire, but keep the search for his father a secret.

In Helion, Vega receives word from Arcan on the whereabouts of the "chosen one" who will make way for Helion to invade Lumeria. Arcan tells Vega that the "chosen one" is just in Lumeria waiting for Vega's call. Back in Lumeria, Kirra accompanies Mythos to Zephire. Mythos intends to speak with Creon regarding his chance of becoming a student in Zephire. In the school, Creon confronts Aura about her forbidden affair with Juris. Aura is shocked and rushes to Leal for advice on what to do. Leal tells Aura to come clean with Cadmus immediately to avoid further complications, but Aura insists to talk to Juris first.

Creon embarrasses Juris in front of the class. Creon breaks to Juris that he already knows about him and Aura. Juris tells Creon that he loves Aura very much and that he is willing to tell the truth to Cadmus. Creon, however, challenges Juris to a duel to see who should win over Aura's love. Juris accepts the challenge in his love for Aura.

Selene hears about Juris and Aura's relationship, and questions why the two kept the relationship a secret. Thalon, however, justifies that sometimes, there are things that must be concealed. Selene explains that there should be a valid intention for every secret. Thalon then tells Selene his special feelings for her. The girl was astounded, and wonders why Thalon lied to her.

Getting impatient over Creon's arrival, Kirra tells Mythos that enrolling in Zephire is free, but applications are meticulously screened by the officials. Without Creon, Mythos believes that it may be difficult to be accepted in Zephire without a patron. Mythos remembers her childhood friend Selene who may be able to help him. Mythos and Kirra run into Creon, but because his mind is off somewhere, Creon is unable to assist Mythos and advises him to come back the following day. On their way home, Mythos crosses paths with Selene. How will these two childhood friends catch up on lost time? What will become of Juris and Creon's duel? How will Cadmus handle the truth about what is going on among his Rounins?

1 - 14 EPISODE 14

After many years, childhood friends Mythos and Selene meet again. She invites him to her house for Naya will be so pleased to see him.

Meanwhile, Aura confronts Juris on why he accepted Creon's challenge to a duel. Juris explains that only through a fight can he and Creon settle their differences, a man-to-man agreement. Aura considers telling Cadmus, but Juris figures Cadmus will only intervene, and the situation will become more complicated. Aura wishes her beloved the best.

Mythos arrives at Selene's home. Mythos tells Selene's mom about the tragic passing of his mother Deinara, to which Naya expresses her condolences. When Mythos reveals his intention of finding his father in Lumeria, Naya denies knowledge about anything. Meanwhile, Creon realizes that defeating Juris will be a challenge, hence Creon connives with Venom so the two of them can take down Juris. Venom promises his loyalty to Creon.

Mythos tells Naya about his plans of studying in Zephyre with the help of Creon. Selene shows excitement in having Mythos in her class and that he should meet Thalon. Before Mythos leaves, Selene promises him that they will meet again. Bothered by her daughter's unusual jovial mood, Naya reminds her daughter to prioritize her studies. But Selene assures her mother that Mythos is just a friend.

In a dark abandoned facility, Creon and Juris face each other. Before the fight begins, the other Rounin arrive. Leal asks if Juris and Creon are sure about what they are about to do. Venom, however, tells Leal to just let the two men fight. Leal reminds Juris and Creon to fight equally, and no one else should intervene. The two Rounins muster their respective strength and powers to defeat the other. While all these were transpiring, Helion's Princess Vega announces to Braulio about her plans of meeting the "chosen one." Vega thinks that it is Creon that Arcan was referring to, and she instructs her henchman to watch over Creon. Back in the castle, Cadmus receives word about Creon and Juris.

Creon draws his sword, and Juris uses his own weapon to defend himself. But Venom kicks off dust into the air which blinds Juris. Creon attacks him and Juris loses grip of his sword. Juris uses his fire power, while Creon uses his water power. Unfortunately, Creon is defeated and collapses, taking in his last breath just as Cadmus makes his appearance. The master Rounin cries over the body of the warrior whom he treated as his own son. Cadmus screams in pain, and stones fall from the sky of Lumeria. Kirra witnesses the storm and senses a great war coming.

Juris explains himself to Cadmus and comes clean with the truth -- He and Aura are having a relationship, and Creon has become jealous of him. Cadmus becomes angry over Juris's treachery. The master Rounin imposes a great punishment on Juris for violating the code and murdering a fellow Rounin. Cadmus disowns Juris.

What will happen to the Rounins? What harsh punishment awaits Juris? Will Arcan's prophecy still come true now that Creon is dead? What threat lurks outside Lumeria?

1 - 15 EPISODE 15

After the hailstorm, Thalon rushes Selene's place, worried that a war is about to commence. Mythos and Kirra, also thinking the same thing, hurries over to his friend's home and finds Selene with Thalon. After an awkward introduction of the two, Selene voices out her suspicions -- that the storm may have something to do with the tension involving Creon, Aura, and Juris. Thalon defends his uncle Juris and says that Juris will not do anything stupid.

In Helion, Vega receives the bad news from Braulio; Their 'chosen one' is dead. The dark princess breaks down upon hearing that Creon has perished, meaning the end of the prophecy. Meanwhile, Juris blames himself for accidentally killing Creon while Aura tries her best to comfort her beloved. Juris professes her undying love for Aura, and tells her to be strong. He promises her that he will come back for her in time, and Aura gives her word that she will wait.

Cadmus grieves the death of Creon. He blames himself for failing to stop Reema from leaving years ago, and now, for failing to save Creon. The master Rounin goes to the statue of Xander and seeks forgiveness for failing to keep his comrade's dying words. Venom, meanwhile, cries over the body of Creon. He also blames himself for not stepping in to help Creon during the fight.

Mythos thinks about his appointment with Creon. He and Kirra hear about a gathering in the plaza. Mythos tells Kirra to go ahead to the plaza as he needs to meet with Creon. While waiting in Zephyre, Mythos hears from Selene the news that Creon is dead. In the plaza, Cadmus presents Juris and Creon's body to the townspeople. Cadmus lectures everyone that no bad deed goes unpunished. The master Rounin voices out the truth about Juris's crimes, of having a relationship with a fellow Rounin and eventually killing another. Cadmus regretfully swears his duties as a master Rounin, to uphold the law and be fair. Leal stands by Aura's side, and tells her to be strong for Juris. The two watch as Cadmus orders Juris to be banished to Argos for 30 years. Juris accepts the Cadmus's decision, and the accused Rounin is escorted by the guards. But before leaving, Juris goes to Aura and hugs her. He also bids farewell to his nephew, Thalon.

Cadmus orders the internment of Creon's body. Venom tells Cadmus that it's all Juris's fault, and that banishment is not enough. The master Rounin spots Mythos, a stranger, among the crowd. Mythos tells Cadmus that he is a friend of Creon and that they were supposed to meet on that day. Learning of Creon's unfinished business, he tells the young man that he will personally see to it that Mythos gets into Zephire.

Juris wanders the forsaken land of Argos and it's dismal atmosphere makes him scream in frustration. What will happen to him in his incarceration? How will Mythos fair as a student in Zephire? Can Vega still hang on to the dark prophecy?

1 - 16 EPISODE 16

Mythos is sad over the death of Creon, but Selene consoles her friend and assures him that he will still become a Rounin through the help of Cadmus. Mythos tells Selene how good Creon was to him, but Selene finds it hard to believe as on the contrary, many people fear Creon and Venom for their strictness. Mythos admits that for some unexplained reason, he senses something good in Creon.

Aura considers leaving the Rounin service, but Leal convinces her to stay for Juris's sake. Aura finds it hard to carry on without her beloved. Leal tells Aura to hold on to her promise to Juris that she will wait until he returns. Aura is worried that as Juris serves his 30-year incarceration, something bad will happen to him. Leal, however, assures Aura that Juris will not give up and will continue to fight for his love.

Night falls in Argos, and Juris wanders the forsaken land alone. A stranger grabs him by the shoulder, and on instinct, Juris twists the arm of the stranger. Juris asks who he is, and the stranger introduces himself as Estor and that he only wants to help Juris. Estor asks what brought the young man to Argos, and Juris tells him that he killed a Rounin. Estor couldn't believe what he heard and wonders if Juris is a Rounin. Juris confirms Estor's assumption, and the man tells Juris that his life is in danger as any criminal in Argos would want a Rounin dead. Estor, however, promises Juris that he will help him. Juris suspects that he had seen Estor before, but the latter thinks otherwise as he had been imprisoned in Argos long ago, probably before the ex-Rounin was born. Estor wants to have a new life that's why he is helping all the new banished in Argos. He invites Juris to his house, but Juris senses something strange about his new friend. Juris learns that Estor is blind. However, he doesn't want sympathy from anyone as most of the time, his senses are more keen than a normal person.

In Lumeria, Selene asks Thalon if their relatives have heard about what happened to Juris. Thalon says that he had sent them a letter, but their relatives won't be able to visit as they live far away. Thalon blames Creon for everything and says he's thankful that the Rounin is dead. Mythos, however, tells Thalon that Creon and Juris are old enough already to know what they were doing and both were at fault. But Thalon violently differs and tells Mythos that he is in no position to make such assumptions because he doesn't know both Juris and Creon. He further insults Creon, but Mythos tells him to respect the dead. Selene intervenes to break off the tension. She asks them to respect the others's feelings. Mythos and Thalon both apologize, and Kirra asks the two to shake hands.

Selene tells her mother about the disagreement between her two friends and what Aura might be going through at the moment. Selene believes that the disagreement was brought about by Mythos and Thalon's involvement in the matter, as Thalon is siding with his uncle Juris while Mythos is siding with his friend, Creon. Naya, however, believes that there is something else, or someone else, that Thalon and Mythos are fighting over. Naya tells her daughter that the two young lads are competing for Selene's attention. Selene refuses to believe that the two are in love with her because she just treats them both as friends. Naya advises Selene that in case one of her friends courted her, she must prioritize becoming a Rounin. Naya adds that she is willing to stop anyone who gets in the way of Selene's future.

In Helion, Vega becomes impatient and consults Arcan. The dark counsel tells the Vega to wait as Creon is still alive. According to Arcan, Vega needs the strength and powers of a Rounin to completely conquer Lumeria. Meanwhile, Kirra tells Mythos to not anymore push his opinions at Thalon just to impress Selene. Mythos dismisses the idea and tells Kirra that he and Selene are just friends. After a while, Venom arrives and tells Mythos that Cadmus wants to talk to him.

In the palace, Cadmus issues Mythos his documents and tells him that he can begin his training in Zephire. Cadmus remembers Mythos as the child who helped the Rounins years ago in capturing the thieves. The master Rounin asks Mythos for his parents, but Mythos says that his mother is dead and that he has no idea about his father's whereabouts. Cadmus asks if becoming a Rounin is really in Mythos's heart, because if not, he can't do anything to fulfill Creon's unfinished business. He places Mythos under the tutelage of Venom.

Venom imposes his strict rules on Mythos. The new student asks Venom if he knows a soldier named Xavier, but when Venom asks for the details about Xavier, Mythos is unable to give anything. Venom tells Mythos that without the details, it's impossible to find the person he's looking for. The Rounin advises his apprentice that his training will start after Creon's funeral rights.

At Creon's wake, Braulio pays a visit to see the Rounin's remains. He secretly plants a stone inside the mouth of the corpse. The following morning, the Rounins march to lay Creon's body to rest. Cadmus cries and bids his last goodbye to the Rounin whom he treated as his own son. The master Rounin takes Creon's necklace for safekeeping.

Mythos begins his training in Zephire. Venom instructs his apprentice to demonstrate his skills and tasks Raysian to be Mythos's opponent. Mythos hesitates to pick a fight with a girl, hence, he is later defeated. Venom expresses his disappointment over Mythos, and tells him that he doesn't deserve to be in his class. After a while, when Mythos is on his way out, he accidentally bumps into Raysian. The girl student takes offense and challenges Mythos to a duel. A fight erupts, and Selene rushes to help Mythos. Selene and Raysian eventually end up in a square off, but Thalon later intervenes to save Selene. A lady supervisor sees the incident and sends the four students to detention. She orders Selene, Thalon, Mythos, and Raysian to be hanged by their feet, upside down some bars, as punishment. No one would admit the fault, hence they are made to stay in their positions until the morning. Raysian, however, says that Mythos started the fight. The supervisor asks Thalon if it's true, and he agrees with Raysian. She then sets the two and Selene free.

What must Mythos do to earn the respect of his classmates and his Master Venom? Will the tension among Mythos, Selene, and Thalon lead into a boil? With Creon dead and Juris banished, what will happen to the Rounins?

1 - 17 EPISODE 17

Creon is dead and Juris is banished. The Rounin line-up is broken, hence, Master Cadmus must promote two students to become a full-pledged warrior. Venom, however, contends that the students have not yet finished their required training. Cadmus tasks the three remaining teachers to speed up the students' training. A contest will be held to see who among the students have the perfect skills to fill in the two positions abandoned by Creon and Juris.

Meanwhile, Selene confronts Thalon on why he sold out Mythos to the school supervisor. Thalon justifies that he only told what he saw and asks Selene why is she defending Mythos. Selene tells him that she is just siding with what is right, but Thalon forces Selene to admit that she loves Mythos. Selene refuses to answer and tells Thalon that he has no right to ask her such questions.

Mythos fears that his father is already dead, and that maybe his father was never a soldier. He starts to lose hope in finding his father, but Kirra tells him not to give up. Mythos is discouraged by all the trials he faced and he decides to forego his studies in Zephire. Kirra, however, tells him that if he gives up, he may never find the truth and the dreams that he set out for upon coming to Lumeria. He puts his faith on Mythos's skills and talents and encourages him to hang on. To clear off Mythos's mind of the troubles, Kirra invites him for a practice.

In Zephire, Selene checks on Aura. The student wants to see how her teacher is doing, but Aura decides not to talk about what happened. Selene tells Aura that she is happy about Aura's courage in hanging on. Aura is decided on moving on with life, and she advises Selene to do what she believes is right. Selene tells Aura that if the same thing happens to her, she will follow her heart. In the gymnasium, Mythos continues his training with Venom. Mythos watches as the Rounin demonstrates the art of combat using the sticks. He gives his best to finish the test and eventually impresses Venom. However, Venom instructs Mythos to first defeat Raysian in a duel before he is allowed to join the class. Mythos later subdues Raysian, and Venom passes Mythos to Aura for further training.

Aura asks if Mythos knows how to levitate, but the student is clueless about what the Rounin is talking about. Aura calls on Selene to challenge Mythos, and the two childhood friends are taken aback. Selene fights Mythos to follow her teacher's order, but Mythos is unable to return the kicks and punches. Aura calls off the fight and questions Mythos on his failure. Mythos explains that he is not used to fighting with a girl, but when Aura asks why Mythos defeated a girl like Raysian, Mythos says that Selene is different since she is a friend. Aura figures that maybe Mythos has some special feelings for Selene, but Mythos says that Selene is just a friend.

Selene apologizes to Mythos for hurting him as she only followed Aura's instructions. Mythos understands his friend, but talks to her about another matter. Mythos asks Selene if she can be his personal instructor, to which Selene gladly agrees. Selene brings her friend to the field and tells Mythos to carry big rocks. According to Selene, Aura taught her such technique to enhance her punching skills.

Leal asks Aura if she has a student who she thinks is qualified to become a Rounin. Aura recommends Selene, while Leal thinks of Thalon who she finds good and smart. Venom arrives and tells his comrades about Raysian. Aura asks about Mythos, because according to her, the new student has shown perseverance and impressive skills. But Venom finds Mythos a coward and not yet equipped for battle. He still has a lot to learn. In Argos, Juris is meditating when Estor arrives and invites him for lunch. Estor tells Juris to stay in the house because Septo, the leader of Argos, is searching for him. According to Estor, Septo is the strongest fighter in Argos and no other prisoner has defeated him.

In the field, Selene advises Mythos to imagine himself as a bird so he can feel lighter. Selene show him the tricks on how to levitate, but Mythos is afraid. Selene sees her friend through in perfecting the skill. After much preparation, Mythos finds himself afloat the air, and Selene is impressed. However, Mythos is distracted and falls, but Selene is able to catch him. Can Mythos be the next new Rounin? How will Selene and Mythos's friendship affect their training? Can Cadmus complete the five Rounins before Helion launches a strike?

1 - 18 EPISODE 18

In the middle of the night, Mythos and Kirra sneak into Zephyre as the latter plans to break into the offices to find any leads about Mythos's father. The two search for documents, and Mythos finds a record of Xavier's birthdate. It turns out that Xavier is just the same age as Mythos, and the lad is now confused as to whether Xavier is his father. In Helion, Vega tells Braulio to wait for the "chosen one" who will lead the dark kingdom to victory.

Leal trains Mythos in using the katana, a stick weapon, in hitting the flying balls. The training aims to enhance speed and agility. Also, Venom teaches Mythos the right way of balancing himself by virtually walking on a wire. Mythos gives his best to please his teachers in every test. Venom, however, tells Aura and Leal his disappointments towards the student. He recommends to Cadmus to dismiss Mythos from Zephyre, to which the master Rounin agrees. But when the three Rounins confront Mythos about it, Leal gives the student a second chance. Venom gives him five days to improve and to stop his search for his father.

Mythos shows impressive development, and Raysian becomes insecure. The young lady does every means to sabotage Mythos's training. Can Mythos conquer the challenges ahead of him and become a full-pledged soldier?

1 - 19 EPISODE 19

Mythos spends his last three days putting up an impressive performance to Venom. Again, he seeks the help of his childhood friend, Selene, for training. The two become closer to each other, and Naya becomes bothered by their friendship. Meanwhile, Thalon apologizes to Selene. She asks Thalon to help her train Mythos in exchange of her forgiveness, and her friend agrees.

Aura goes to Cadmus to discuss Mythos's training, but later asks the master Rounin's permission to see Juris. But Cadmus forbids all criminals any privileges. In Argos, Juris remains in the secret care of Estor, but the banished Rounin is spotted by another unidentified criminal.

Kirra stumbles upon a mysterious key, and checks out all the roomz in Zephyre to find a lock that matches the key. By nighttime, Selene comes home from training, and she is confronted by her mother about spending too much time with Mythos. Naya becomes suspicious, and demands for her daughter to tell the truth. Selene admits that she feels something special for Mythos. Naya orders Selene to forget about her feelings and reminds her of the tragedy that love caused Juris. Selene relays to her mother Mythos's true intention of finding his father.

Kirra hears about Raysian's plans against Mythos, while Selene catches the lady student sabotaging Mythos's equipment. Selene tries to do something for her friend. In the final deliberation to Cadmus, Mythos gives his best. The master Rounin is deeply impressed, and gives his approval of the student. Leal and Aura also favor Mythos, which caused Venom more insecurity. Is this the sign of a bright future for Mythos in Lumeria?

1 - 20 EPISODE 20

That evening, Mythos pays Selene a visit to thank her for everything she has done for him. Thalon sees the childhood friends talking and feels more jealous. Aura, on the other hand, misses Juris's presence by her side. Aura asks Leal's help so she can secretly go to Argos and see Juris. But Leal refuses, and pledges her loyalty to the law.

Estor leaves Juris for a while but tells him to remain hidden. Unknown to Juris, Estor has evil plans of killing him. Back at Selene's home, Naya overhears the conversation of the two friends. Naya decides to tell Mythos the truth based on what Deinara had told her before. She tells Mythos that his father is already dead, but withholds the other details about his father being a soldier. The young man is crushed and Selene comforts her friend.

Thalon angrily confronts Mythos about Selene. Mythos refuses to answer, and Thalon challenges him to a duel, like what Creon and Juris did, to see who deserves to be with Selene. Mythos agrees to the challenge, and Kirra rushes to Selene for help to stop the brawl. In the middle of the fight, Selene arrives and expresses her disgust of the two egoistic men.

Now that his father is dead and Selene had rejected him, Mythos decides to leave Lumeria and go back home to Vesta. Has Mythos finally given up on life? Is this the end for him and Selene?

1 - 21 EPISODE 21

Mythos leaves Lumeria and regrets his decision of looking for his father against his mother's will. Kirra tries to convince Selene to go to Mythos, but the girl is still hurt with what happened. Thalon goes to Selene to apologize, and Selene breaks to him the news that Mythos has left Lumeria. Meanwhile, Aura is still thinking about going to Argos to see Juris. She tells Leal how she envies her fellow lady Rounin for being able to live by the book. Leal, however, tells Aura that she doesn't know anything about her life. Leal opens up about her past love, a man who is now in Argos because of her. She tells Aura of how she was hurt by her decision to follow the rules over her heart.

In Argos, Juris is surprised by a criminal named Xyrus who was scrounging for food at Estor's home. Juris learns that Xyrus is blind, and the guy tells Juris that he knows he is a Rounin. Xyrus admits his anger over the Rounins for banishing hundreds of people to Argos. Juris learns from Xyrus about his keeper being the bad guy. Xyrus, however, runs away before he could tell the details of Estor's identity to Juris. The banished Rounin confronts Estor, and the criminal tells Juris that he is a warrior in Argos who broke away from Septo, the leader of the evil army. Estor asks for the person who talked to Juris, and he tells him about Xyrus.

Unknown to Aura, Leal squealed her plans of breaking into Argos to Cadmus. The master Rounin arrives in time to see Aura executing her plans. Cadmus scolds Aura in front of Leal, and Aura tries to explain her side. Cadmus, however, gives Aura an ultimatum, if she breaks the law again, she will be punished. Leal apologizes to Aura, but the latter is too angry to listen. Cadmus tasks Leal to guard Aura, but Leal is worried that her friendship might get compromised if she further chooses to abide by the rules. The master Rounin, however, is optimistic that everything will turn out for the best.

Xyrus is rounded up by a group of unknown assassins. He fights back but is later outnumbered. What danger lurks around Juris in Argos? Up to what extent will Leal sacrifice her relationships? Is there still a chance for Mythos and Selene to reunite?

1 - 22 EPISODE 22

In Argos, Estor, who is actually Septo, confronts Xyrus about what he may have told Juris. Xyrus tells nothing, and professes his loyalty to Septo's evil wills against Juris. Septo orders Xyrus to kill Juris, but Xyrus asks for Septo's help to defeat the skilled Rounin. Juris, on the other hand, is slowly losing his sight as the effect of the darkness that engulfs the whole of Argos. Xyrus and Septo see the perfect opportunity to kill Juris.

Meanwhile, Mythos heads home to Vesta by nighttime, but Kirra is concerned and follows his friend. Kirra convinces Mythos to stay, for the sake of their friendship. Mythos, however, has decided to turn his back on Lumeria. Selene is worried about Mythos, but Naya convinces her daughter to forget about her friend and just focus on her studies in Zephyre. The two again argue on whether being a Rounin is the right path for Selene.

In the palace, the Rounin council debates on the case of Mythos. Venom says that the student is a big waste of time, but Aura and Leal think that someone might have provoked Mythos to leave. Cadmus instructs Aura and Leal to search for Mythos to persuade the him to continue his training in Zephyre.

Aura and Leal, through the help of Kirra, find Mythos and bring him to Cadmus. The master Rounin asks Mythos's about his decision to drop out of training. Mythos admits his real intentions to Cadmus about finding his father. Cadmus tells Mythos that his father is not in Lumeria, and convinces him to work on his future to serve Lumeria. But Mythos was firm on leaving, and Cadmus respects his decision.

In Helion, Braulio steals the ashes of Creon so Vega can resurrect the dead Rounin. Vega, however, is unsuccessful and she seeks the dark counsel. Arcan tells Vega to use the magical necklace of the Rounins. This necklace is the source of all the powers and skills of a Rounin, and it will be more powerful if combined with the powers of Helion. Vega instructs Braulio to assemble the black army and launch an attack on Lumeria to claim the necklace.

Violence once again struck the streets of Lumeria. Cadmus and the three remaining Rounins fight to defend the peaceland. Mythos, on his way home to Vesta, turns a blind eye over the atrocities on the streets. But upon seeing Selene in distress, Mythos finds himself in the middle of the battlefield together with Thalon.

Can the remaining Rounins hold the grounds of Lumeria against Helion? For how long will Mythos turn his back on his fate? Will Juris escape Septo's deadly plans?

1 - 23 EPISODE 23

Braulio secretly steals Creon's necklace while the Helion army tries to divert the Rounins attention. On his way out, Braulio is stopped by Thalon, Selene, and Mythos. The three students try to stop the thief, but Braulio grabs Selene as his hostage. Mythos and Thalon follow to save their friend. Mythos saves Selene, severs Braulio's hand, and recovers the necklace. The Rounins are confused on what the Helions intend to do with the necklace. Cadmus fears that the worst is about to come and orders round-the-clock security all over Lumeria for a possible second attack.

Cadmus honors Mythos for his heroism. The master Rounin also requests the student to continue his training in Zephyre, to which Mythos agrees. The young man then asks Cadmus a favor, asking if Kirra can accompany him in school. The Master Rounin says yes. In Argos, Juris is compromised, and he asks Xyrus's for help. Xyrus hides Juris in his home, but unknown to Juris, Septo gives Xyrus a deadline to kill Juris.

Before a second attack happens, Cadmus speeds up the search for the two new Rounins amongst the students. Back in Argos, Juris tells Xyrus about his fellow Rounin, Leal. Xyrus is shocked, and when Juris asks why, Xyrus confesses that it was Leal who arrested him and sent him to Argos. And to Juris's surprise, Xyrus admits that he had an intimate relationship with Leal.

1 - 24 EPISODE 24

Leal opens up to Aura about her past concerning her relationship with Xyrus. Back then, Leal was just a rookie, and Xyrus was just an ordinary man. When a criminal tried to kill Leal in revenge, Xyrus defended her and accidentally killed the criminal. Meanwhile, Xyrus is also telling the story to Juris. Xyrus never regretted committing a crime out of love, but he had stopped loving Leal when she turned him in to the authorities.

Mythos finds a document that says something about his father. Mythos seeks Selene's advice, but she tells him to prioritize his training because in becoming a Rounin, Mythos can then have unlimited access to all the facilities in Zephyre. In the middle of their training session however, Mythos and Thalon's competitiveness continued. Thalon became more jealous, while Raysian became insecure of Mythos and Selene's skills.

In Argos, Xyrus leaves Juris on his own for fear that Septo might kill him and his group. Septo orders a search, but found no traces of Juris and Xyrus. Septo is furious and attacks the camp of the Lumerian criminals in Argos to lure Juris and Xyrus out. Septo's troops confronts Xyrus, but Juris is nowhere to be found. Septo threatens to kill hostages, starting with Xyrus, if Juris will not come out. Juris sees what is happening, and thinks about what he can do before anyone dies.

1 - 25 EPISODE 25

Juris defeats Septo's troops and saves Xyrus and the others. Juris gathers the Lumerian group and encourages them to stand against Septo and his men. The former Rounin promises to help and defend them, but Xyrus tells Juris to back off because he will only make things worse. When Septo hears about what happened, he orders that Juris must be killed.

With Juris on their side, Xyrus and his group defeat Septo's troops, the criminals from Vesta. Juris finds Estor and offers to protect him. He still doesn't know that Estor is actually Septo. But when Juris hears the truth, Juris rushes to save Xyrus. Juris surrenders to Septo in exchange of Xyrus's freedom. Juris begins to lose his sight, and Septo takes him way.

Aura is worried about Juris, and once again, she sneaks into Argos to see her beloved. Can Aura arrive in time to save Juris from Septo? What will be the consequences of Aura's defiance?

1 - 26 EPISODE 26

Aura enters Argos and finds Juris. She helps him defeat Septo and his gang. Juris manages to kill Septo in a bloody duel. The tournament among the students of Zephire continues. Raysian cheats and defeats Selene, while Thalon beats Mythos down to his embarrassment. Leal discovers Aura's disobedience and reports it to Cadmus. The Master Rounin orders Leal to go after Aura, which was met with much reluctance for the lady Rounin fears a meeting with her former love, Xyrus.

1 - 27 EPISODE 27

Aura admits to Juris that she entered Argos without their leader's permission. Juris becomes worried and tells her to go back before Cadmus finds out. But Leal arrives and orders Aura to come back to Lumeria. Aura, however, refuses to leave Juris behind. Juris tells Aura to go with Leal since Argos is now at peace. But unknown to them, a new threat lurks amidst the wasteland.

Xyrus arrives in time to see Leal. The lady Rounin tries to talk to her former love, but Xyrus turns his back. In Lumeria, Cadmus awaits the return of Aura and Leal before Helion launches another strike. Venom volunteers to guard Creon's necklace, but the master Rounin assures him that the necklace is safely kept where only he knows. Cadmus orders that the tournament at Zephire to continue and security in Lumeria must be kept tight. Venom, however, suspects that Helion has other plans and that the agenda with the necklace is just a trap. But Cadmus is confident that Helion is incapable of treachery as the master Rounin has "ensured" that Helion will remain weak.

Back in Argos, Juris tries to convince Xyrus while Aura talks to Leal. Xyrus expresses his deep anger, but Leal still hopes that Xyrus will eventually find it in his heart to forgive her. A new alliance between the Helion and Vesta group in Argos is forged. They blow up the passageway between Argos and Lumeria so they can easily kill Juris, Aura, and Leal. But their leader, Draco, needs the Rounins alive so he can leave Argos. The former king of Helion had been in Argos for years, waiting for the right timing for him to plot his revenge over Cadmus.

By nighttime, Xyrus tries to send Leal and Aura home. Leal tries to talk to Xyrus, but the man finds no point in talking after being betrayed. Xyrus admits the truth, that the reason he defended Leal was to prove his worth. Leal promises to help Xyrus and tells him that she still loves him, but Xyrus no longer feels anything for Leal.

Cadmus fears the worst and heads to Argos to get Aura and Leal. The following morning, Juris escorts Aura and Leal to the passageway only to find that door is blocked. Will Cadmus arrive in time to save Aura and Leal? What hope does Draco pose for Helion to finally defeat the Rounins and take over Lumeria?

1 - 28 EPISODE 28

Cadmus heads to Argos to save Leal and Aura, but he discovers the passageway blocked. The master Rounin uses all his powers to take the door down, and eventually succeeds. Meanwhile, Aura, Juris, and Leal are surrounded by Draco's men. The three fight for the lives, but are later overpowered and captured. Cadmus searches the wasteland for any trace of the Rounins, but he only finds their swords.

Xyrus receives word that the three Rounins are captured. He decides to attack the Helion group to save his friends, but Xyrus's team backs out. He goes on his own and meets Cadmus. Xyrus tells him what happened, and Cadmus thinks of a plan to save the Rounins. Meanwhile, Draco locks Aura, Juris, and Leal in separate coffins. The former king of Helion plans to use the captives to trap Cadmus to his death.

Back in Zephire, alliances are forged among the students as the day of the tournament approaches, with Selene and Mythos together while Thalon connives with Raysian to boot Mythos out of the tournament. During training, Mythos hears from Selene the story of the door to Icarra, a passageway to a land where monsters were banished and closed a long time ago. Mythos finds a link between the mysterious door and the book that he believes was from his father. He intends to break into Icarra to find clues about his father's identity, but Selene forbids him and threatens that she will despise him should he defy orders.

Cadmus finds Draco holding the Rounins hostage. Draco threatens to kill his hostages should Cadmus try to make a wrong move. Draco orders Cadmus to set him free in exchange of the Rounins. The necklaces of the Rounins will allow Draco and his team to leave Argos. Cadmus, out of fear that Draco is not making empty threats, agrees to free him out of Argos.

Is this the beginning of Lumeria's downfall? How can Cadmus save the Rounins and Lumeria at the same time?

1 - 29 EPISODE 29

Cadmus negotiates with Draco and the Helion Lord insists that he goes back to rule Lumeria while the Master Rounin will remain in Argos. While Cadmus stalls with his decision, Xyrus sneaks to save Aura, Juris, and Leal. With the power of the necklace, Xyrus is able to free them. Draco is surprised by Cadmus's treachery, and the two square off.

Aura, Juris, and Leal rush to Cadmus's aid to defeat Draco, but they get surrounded by the Helion group. Juris helps Xyrus, who is wounded, while Aura and Leal defeat their captors. After a long duel, Cadmus kills Draco, but in his dying words, Draco reveals to Cadmus that he has another child aside from Vega. The child is living in Lumeria and in time, the child will be the one who will kill Cadmus.

Cadmus and the Rounins return to Lumeria with Juris and Xyrus. Cadmus allows Juris and Xyrus spend the rest of their sentence in Lumeria as they are no longer safe in Argos. Aura gets a light reprimand from Cadmus for disobeying his orders. In her presence, he also tells Juris that he will now become assistant to the present Rounins, a servant who will attend to their every beck and call. The master Rounin calls on Venom, Leal, and Aura later to discuss what Draco had revealed. Cadmus suspects that Draco had a child with a woman from Lumeria and that the child knows nothing about his real heritage. He wants the child found before Draco's prophecy comes true. He also orders to hold the Zephyre tournament immediately so two students can be promoted, completing the five-man Rounin line up.

Mythos asks Venom about Icarra, and the Rounin reveals that nobody is allowed to enter the hidden door. According to Venom, all those who entered Icarra returned either dead or insane. Only Xander, the great Rounin and father of Creon, was able to safely return from Icarra. Mythos tells Kirra that Xander may hold all the answers, but Kirra tells him that Xander is dead, together with his wife and Creon's baby brother, Cleo.

Naya is hopeful that her daughter will succeed in the tournament, but Selene is skeptical about her abilities. Selene insists that she no longer wants to be a Rounin, but her mother snaps and warns her about her disobedience. The following day, Cadmus announces the beginning of the tournament. Who among the students will win in the tournament and become rightful Rounins? Who is the child that Draco spoke of? What does Icarra have to do with Mythos's father?

1 - 30 EPISODE 30

Cadmus negotiates with Draco and the Helion Lord insists that he goes back to rule Lumeria while the Master Rounin will remain in Argos. While Cadmus stalls with his decision, Xyrus sneaks to save Aura, Juris, and Leal. With the power of the necklace, Xyrus is able to free them. Draco is surprised by Cadmus's treachery, and the two square off.

Aura, Juris, and Leal rush to Cadmus's aid to defeat Draco, but they get surrounded by the Helion group. Juris helps Xyrus, who is wounded, while Aura and Leal defeat their captors. After a long duel, Cadmus kills Draco, but in his dying words, Draco reveals to Cadmus that he has another child aside from Vega. The child is living in Lumeria and in time, the child will be the one who will kill Cadmus.

Cadmus and the Rounins return to Lumeria with Juris and Xyrus. Cadmus allows Juris and Xyrus spend the rest of their sentence in Lumeria as they are no longer safe in Argos. Aura gets a light reprimand from Cadmus for disobeying his orders. In her presence, he also tells Juris that he will now become assistant to the present Rounins, a servant who will attend to their every beck and call. The master Rounin calls on Venom, Leal, and Aura later to discuss what Draco had revealed. Cadmus suspects that Draco had a child with a woman from Lumeria and that the child knows nothing about his real heritage. He wants the child found before Draco's prophecy comes true. He also orders to hold the Zephyre tournament immediately so two students can be promoted, completing the five-man Rounin line up.

Mythos asks Venom about Icarra, and the Rounin reveals that nobody is allowed to enter the hidden door. According to Venom, all those who entered Icarra returned either dead or insane. Only Xander, the great Rounin and father of Creon, was able to safely return from Icarra. Mythos tells Kirra that Xander may hold all the answers, but Kirra tells him that Xander is dead, together with his wife and Creon's baby brother, Cleo.

Naya is hopeful that her daughter will succeed in the tournament, but Selene is skeptical about her abilities. Selene insists that she no longer wants to be a Rounin, but her mother snaps and warns her about her disobedience. The following day, Cadmus announces the beginning of the tournament. Who among the students will win in the tournament and become rightful Rounins? Who is the child that Draco spoke of? What does Icarra have to do with Mythos's father?

1 - 31 EPISODE 31

In the second stage of the tournament in Zephyre, Mythos and Thalon get into an altercation in front of Cadmus. The master Rounin stops and warns them of their disrespect. Mythos, Selene, Thalon, and Raysian make it to the next stage of the contest. Meanwhile, Naya fears Mythos has become a threat to her dream of Selene becoming a Rounin. She tells Mythos to leave her daughter alone. Mythos wonders about Naya's reasons and finds it hard not to be with his childhood friend. He admits to Kirra that he loves Selene, but there are several things he must consider first.

The Rounins find no trace of Draco's child in Lumeria. All the suspects they have captured do not exhibit the look of someone with a Helion blood. Meanwhile, Juris talks to Thalon and reminds him to play fair. He feels his nephew has changed and believes Thalon's greed and obsession has consumed him.

The following day, the third stage of the tournament requires the students to form into groups. Mythos, Selene, Thalon, and Raysian randomly find themselves in the same group. Tied with their hands behind them, and they must break free, after which, they all must race to the finish line. However, their task was made more difficult for they had to fight other warriors along the way.

Raysian becomes injured and Mythos and Selene try to help her. Thalon, however, insists that they move on and leave their classmate. Mythos carries Raysian on the way, but when the four find themselves trapped in a dark pit, Raysian tells Mythos that they should have left her. After battling obstacles in their way, they all manage to win and proceed to the next stage. Thalon tells Cadmus that Mythos almost compromised their group by carrying Raysian, but the master Rounin says that Mythos did the right thing. It is important that in the battlefield, a Rounin must not desert his fellow warrior.

After succeeding as a group, they now must face the fourth stage against one another. Who will make it to the end? Can Mythos and Selene keep their friendship despite Naya's disapproval? Will Raysian finally realize what a true friend Mythos is?

1 - 32 EPISODE 32

Selene fears that she will not make to the finals of the tournaments as Mythos and Thalon have shown impressive skills. She prepares herself for the worst, but her mother refuses to give up. Naya forces her daughter to forget her feelings for Mythos and concentrate on becoming a Rounin. Meanwhile, Aura tries to help Juris in his chores, but Juris cannot help but to be worried of Thalon's greed. Leal also worries about what has happened to Xyrus in his new life in Lumeria.

Xyrus tries to seek a decent job in the peaceland, but finds difficulty for being an ex-convict. After a robbery occurs in the market, the Rounins respond with Venom suspecting that the thief appeared to be skilled, like someone from Vesta. Aura tells Venom not to jump into conclusions, and Leal suggests that they keep an eye as the thief may strike again. At home, Naya fears for Selene's upcoming 18th birthday. Naya feels that something bad will happen with Selene entering adulthood.

The following day, the last stage of the tournament begins with Mythos, Selene, Thalon, and Raysian competing against one another. The four are given different weapons which they must use in combat. Thalon defeats Raysian, and when Thalon and Mythos turn the combat into a personal fight, Selene is disgusted and quits the tournament. Naya is shocked and forces her daughter to go back and fight in the arena.

Selene tries to get back, but Aura, overhearing Selene's conversation with Naya, reminds her student that it's all right to quit the fight if she no longer wants to be a Rounin. Aura offers Selene help in explaining everything to Cadmus and her mother. Selene dismisses Aura's words and returns to the competition, but is later defeated. Mythos and Thalon are proclaimed as the two new Rounins. Selene congratulates Mythos, and the two friends hug while Thalon looks at them jealously and Naya leaves with disappointment. How will Mythos fair as a Rounin? Will the rivalry between him and Thalon continue? What will Selene do now that she had failed her mother?

1 - 33 EPISODE 33

Mythos feels bad about defeating Selene, but Kirra tells him that on the bright side, he can now freely court her. Raysian arrives to congratulate Mythos and offers her hand in friendship. Meanwhile, Naya is devastated with Selene's loss and blames Mythos for everything. Selene is still confused about her mother's actions, but Naya tells her daughter that when the time comes, Selene will regret ever giving up the fight to Mythos.

Vega receives advice from Arcan to wait until the new Rounin inherits the necklace of Creon. By then, it will be very easy to steal the necklace from the untrained warrior. Meanwhile, in her desperation, Naya begs for Cadmus to make Selene a Rounin, but Cadmus tells her that only two are needed. The master Rounin later recognizes Naya as the criminal he sent to Argos a long time ago. Cadmus realizes that Naya only wants her daughter to become a Rounin to make up for her past crimes. Naya asks Cadmus not to tell Selene about her past.

Leal catches Xyrus sneaking around a bakeshop and suspects him of stealing. She tells him that she will not hesitate to arrest him again, but Xyrus tells Leal that he is not stealing and in fact has money to pay. Xyrus is insulted by Leal's words and walks away. Leal later regrets her presumptuousness and even questions her own judgment. Aura, however, reminds her that she should not regret doing her duty.

Thalon goes to Juris for advice regarding Selene. Juris tells his nephew that in becoming a Rounin, there will be difficult choices to make and that he must be ready to face them. Thalon asks if he and Selene still have a chance to be together, and Juris tells Thalon that it would not hurt to try. However, Mythos meets with Selene to profess his love. He assures her that he is not expecting anything. Selene tells him that she is still confused and asks that he gives her some time to think.

Selene comes home to make peace with her mother but only to find Naya packing their things. Naya tells her to prepare as they must leave Lumeria immediately, now that there is no hope for them to have a better life. Selene refuses and forces her mother to explain her intentions.

In the knighting ceremony, the whole of Lumeria honor Mythos and Talon as the two new defenders of the peaceland. The two inherit the powers surrendered by Creon and Juris. Cadmus, however, reminds the three senior Rounins that they must continue the search for Draco's mysterious child. Leal suggests that they must inform every citizen in Lumeria so everyone can help in identifying the child. Meanwhile, Naya tells Selene that she will give her daughter some time until she is ready to leave. Xyrus suddenly comes out of nowhere and steals Selene's bag. Naya runs after Xyrus while Selene sends a distress call to the Rounins. Naya catches up on Xyrus, but he tells her that she too must be imprisoned. Xyrus accuses Naya of bringing someone from Helion into Lumeria. He recognizes Selene as someone with a Helion blood, and Naya becomes speechless. What is this dark secret about Selene that Naya refuses to speak? What will happen to Selene and Mythos now that the young man had professed his love?

1 - 34 EPISODE 34

Aura and Mythos respond to the scene where they find Naya and Xyrus. Naya tells the Rounins that Xyrus helped her retrieve her bag, but unfortunately the thief got away. When the Rounins left, Xyrus asks Naya how come Selene, her daughter, looks different from the other people from Helion. Naya tells him the tragic truth about her imprisonment in Argos. Several years ago, she was banished for killing her husband who used to beat her up. In Argos, she was repeatedly raped by Draco. After some time, Draco tells her that she is pregnant and that the child, upon reaching the age of 18, will be the key to Helion's victory over Lumeria. The only way to reverse the spell is for Selene to inherit the power of a Rounin necklace. But now that Selene has failed, Naya fears the worst. She asks Xyrus to keep the secret between the two of them, to which Xyrus agrees.

Thalon goes to Selene and asks her to give him another chance to love her. But Selene rejects him and tells him how disappointed she was over his attitude. Meanwhile, Mythos returns to Vesta to see Elli. His former teacher congratulated him for his victory, and Mythos asks Elli to come with him to Lumeria. Elli, however, chose to stay in Vesta to train other children.

Back in Lumeria, Aura meets with Naya and tells her the news. Naya learns from the Rounin that the first assignment of Mythos and Thalon is to find Draco's child. Aura tells Naya that this Helion child will lead the dark kingdom in its attack over Lumeria. Naya is worried but tells Aura nothing.

By nighttime, Mythos talks to Selene about their relationship. Mythos is worried that now that he is a Rounin, he has dedicated himself into protecting Lumeria. If anything bad happens to him, he may not be able to hear Selene's answer to his love. Selene later accepts Mythos's love, and this sends great happiness to Mythos. The two childhood friends are now officially together as lovers. Selene, however, asks Mythos to keep everything a secret, especially from her mother.

Now that he is a full-pledged Rounin, Mythos thinks about entering the forbidden door of Icarra to find answers about his estranged father. Kirra warns him that if the council finds out, he will be dismissed from his duty. But Mythos could not care less, as all he wanted was to find his father. Meanwhile, Xyrus visits Naya at her home. Now that he holds her deep dark secret, Xyrus asks Naya for some food. When Selene arrives, Naya tells her daughter that she invited Xyrus to thank him for his help.

Mythos and Thalon respond to an attack by the Helions. While defeating the black troops, the two new Rounins continue to get on each other's nerves. To their surprise, the attack is just a coy by Cadmus to test their skills. The master Rounin is disappointed over the two's arrogance, and warns them that if they will not act accordingly, they will be stripped of their powers.

Selene comes to visit Mythos, but she overhears him talking to Kirra about going to Icarra. Selene becomes angry and warns Mythos that if he insists on going to Icarra, he might as well forget their relationship. Can Mythos find it in his heart to hurt Selene for the sake of finding answers in Icarra? Is there a chance for the two to have a relationship despite Naya's disapproval?

1 - 35 EPISODE 35

Now that they hold each others's secrets, Naya and Xyrus agree to help one another. Naya helps the young man in starting a new life in Lumeria in exchange of his silence concerning Selene's dark identity. Through Naya's connections, Xyrus gets a job, and to express his gratitude, Xyrus gives Naya a hug. But Leal arrives in time to see the two close to one another, and the lady Rounin cannot help but feel jealous.

Aura convinces Leal that the hug may not mean anything, but Leal is hurt over the idea that Xyrus has given up on her. Leal decides to finally forget her love for Xyrus. Meanwhile, Mythos tries to explain to Selene his true intentions in breaking into the forbidden door of Icarra. But Selene is afraid that Mythos is taking a dangerous path and that his obsession about finding his father has engulfed him. Selene walks out, and right after, a group of Helions surrounded Mythos. The new Rounin, however, manages to defeat the troops which he thought were just another coy of Cadmus.

Juris continues to work as a servant in the place, but Venom keeps on embarrassing and treating him like a slave. Juris feels worthless, and Aura runs to her beloved's side to offer comfort. By nighttime, a celebration is held in the palace, and Mythos and Selene share a dance together, making Thalon jealous. At home, Naya catches Mythos and Selene kissing. Naya is furious and tells Mythos to leave her daughter alone.

Naya fears that if Mythos finds about Selene's identity, he will not hesitate to arrest Selene. Xyrus advises Naya to tell Selene the truth before her 18th birthday, when the dark prophecy might come true. If Selene learns who she really is, she might take the initiative to break the spell. What will Naya do about Selene? How will the truth affect Selene and her relationship with Mythos?

1 - 36 EPISODE 36

Thalon visits Selene at home, and finds her crying. He thought that Mythos did something to hurt Selene but she tells him that Mythos will not do anything to harm her. She later admits to Thalon that she and Mythos have an understanding which makes him feel miserable. Meanwhile, Juris is in a state of self-pity, and Aura tries to comfort him. Juris feels so ashamed of himself now that he is just a servant in the palace. He feels that he can no longer love Aura because he no longer loves himself, and Juris breaks up with Aura.

Leal checks to see how Xyrus is doing in his new job. She tells him that she has finally accepted that everything is over between them. Leal, however, asks if they can remain friends. Naya arrives, and Leal tells her to take care of Xyrus, to which Naya is left confused. At the palace, Leal and Aura have a talk about their love problems. Aura confesses that she finds it impossible to forget Juris, and that doing so will kill her.

Juris asks Cadmus for a favor, that he be allowed to serve only him, but when the master Rounin refuses, Juris requests that it's better for him to be sent to Argos. Cadmus again refuses and asks if Juris is already losing hope. Juris fears that hope is running out for him, and Cadmus then asks him if he regrets loving Aura.

While Selene is asleep, Naya notices that her daughter's hair is slowly turning white. Selene also notices the same thing the following morning. Naya fears the worst and found no other choice but to reveal the truth to Selene. She tells her daughter that Draco is her true father and that on her 18th birthday, her real identity will be revealed. At first Selene thinks that her mother is just making things up so she would leave Mythos, but Naya begins telling her the entire story, and that Mythos has been assigned to find and imprison her in Argos.

Selene is afraid and confused, and the following morning, she breaks up with Mythos but conceals the truth from him. Mythos thinks that him winning the tournament and becoming a Rounin is the real reason behind her sudden change of mind. He gives his Rounin necklace to Selene, promising that he is willing to give everything up for the sake of their love. What will Selene do now that she is torn between her love and her dark destiny? Has Juris finally given up on hope and his love for Aura?

1 - 37 EPISODE 37

After a day of practicing with the students, Venom noticed Aura, Leal and Thalon's sour faces. Aura's nasty retort towards his jokes made him suspect they were all having love problems. He tells his fellow Rounins that love will only cause them misery and problems. Venom also mocks Juris, who was organizing some stuff in the room. The ex-Rounin could do nothing but just walk out of the room.

Arcan tells Vega that to get the necklace from Mythos they must go to the source of his weakness, his best friend Selene. That afternoon Selene arrives to an empty house. Wondering where her mother is, Selene gets distracted by a noise and soon finds herself trapped among Helion soldiers. They bring her to Vega and the Queen of Helion is confident that Mythos will soon show up to exchange the necklace for the girl. Rounins are really weak when it comes to the matters of the heart.

Meanwhile, Mythos is at home telling Kirra his decision to give Selene some space to think about their relationship. He thought being a Rounin would solve all his problems but it only seemed to make it worse. He also tells his little friend that he wants to focus now on finding his father in Icarra. Later, Mythos opens the door to Icarra with the key he found in Deinara's box. The door locks behind him as he entered the other land and he's surprised with an alarm going off. He looks around and finds the people moving and stopping according to the alarm. He speaks to a boy, who advises him to leave for he can cause the people trouble. But instead of going away, Mythos follows the young man to his home. The boy tells Mythos to stop bothering him for every minute and every second in Icarra is precious. Mythos finds the boy's actions weird, listening to a receiver in his ear as if obeying some command. He then shows a book in his hand to catch the boy's attention. The boy asks Mythos if his father is from Icarra to which the Rounin tells him that is what he is trying to find out. He tells Mythos that he knows the author of the book, Barus.

Naya comes home and finds it in disarray. She asks the Rounins for help and they all discover that like Selene, Mythos is missing too. Leal feels that there's a logical explanation behind this but Venom thinks otherwise and already blames Mythos as the cause of the problem. Kirra was also questioned of the Rounin's whereabouts but he tells the warriors that he has no idea too. After hours of searching, the Rounins tell Cadmus their findings. Hearing that Naya has forbidden the two friends from seeing one another, he tells them that Selene and Mythos might have eloped.

Selene wakes up in a cage and demands from Vega to let her go. She denied any knowledge of Mythos whereabouts. Braulio points at something in the cage and tells his mistress that they might not need to see Mythos after all. The necklace Mythos gave Selene had fallen out of her pocket. Vega retrieves the necklace and recites an incantation to summon Creon from the dead. Soon Creon rose from Vega's special concoction.

What will happen to Mythos in Icarra? Will the Rounins find Selene before she shows her true colors? Will Vega succeed with her evil plans, now that Creon is on their side?

1 - 38 EPISODE 38

Juris thinks of leaving Lumeria to run away from his problems, but Xyrus reminds him that he is still serving his sentence. In Icarra, Mythos meets Barus, the old man who wrote the book of Xavier. But the old man tells Mythos that he doesn't know anyone named Xavier, and it was Solana to whom he gave the book.

Creon rises to the dark side and vows revenge against Lumeria and the Rounins. Vega consults Arcan for her next move, but she is told some things are not yet accomplished. Creon overhears their conversation, and after a while, Creon asks Arcan if he is the one who is destined to conquer Lumeria. Arcan tells the former Rounin that it is not his destiny. Someone who is younger and stronger than Creon will be the one to fulfill the dark prophecy. In his rage, Creon destroys Arcan.

Naya is worried about Selene's impending 18th birthday. Meanwhile, Venom and Thalon are frustrated about Mythos's absence, and they suggest that Mythos be relieved from duty. Cadmus decides to wait until Mythos returns before he makes a decision.

Mythos asks the boy, Lori, to help him find Solana. Upon meeting Solana, Mythos hands over the book and hourglass to her. Solana tells him that the hourglass helped Xavier monitor the time in Icarra, while the book was given to Xavier by Miranda. Solana agrees to bring Mythos to Miranda, but they later learn that Miranda was struck by the light after she violated the rules of time in the city. Mythos asks what happened to Miranda, and to their surprise, Solana is hit by the searchlight, and instantly turns into a baby. What mystery does Icarra hold? Can Selene be saved before the dark prophecy comes true?

1 - 39 EPISODE 39

Vega is furious to find Arcan dead. She orders to find the man responsible, but Creon admits that it was him who killed Arcan. Vega is angry and tells the guards to kill Creon, but the former Rounin defeats all guards. The Queen of Helion now regrets resurrecting Creon, but later realizes that Creon is the key to their triumph against Lumeria. Vega agrees with Braulio that they will use Creon to conquer Lumeria, and after that, they will dispose of him. In the meantime, now that Selene is of no use to them, Vega orders

Braulio to kill the prisoner.

In Icarra, Lori runs away from the light while Mythos carries Solana to safety. Lori tells Mythos to leave Icarra to avoid causing more trouble. Back in Helion, Vega discovers Selene's true identity, and now that Creon and Selene are in Helion, she orders an attack against Lumeria.

After learning the truth of Mythos whereabouts from Kirra, Naya seeks Cadmus's help in finding Selene. The master Rounin is angry, however, at Mythos's defiance in going to Icarra. Naya is sure someone abducted Selene and is worried that something worse is bound to happen during her birthday.

In the middle of the night, the Helion troops attack Lumeria. The Rounins respond to the distress call and fight to defend the city. Creon disguises himself and faces the Rounins. Venom, Aura, Thalon, and Leal join force to defeat the anonymous warrior, without knowing that it is Creon. The resurrected Rounin attempts to use his powers, but Vega stops him so as not to reveal his identity. Cadmus arrives in time to drive away the dark army.

After the encounter, Cadmus asks the Rounin if they saw Draco's child among the army. Leal tells the master Rounin that the mysterious child is yet to reveal himself. Venom is puzzled at the masked warrior who led the attack and is worried about the warrior's superior skills and strength.

Back in Icarra, Mythos meets Amon, the brother of Miranda. Amon hands over a letter to Mythos, a letter which Xavier wrote to Miranda. Amon tells Mythos the truth, that Xavier visited Icarra and fell in love with Miranda. But when Xavier learns that a day in Icarra is equivalent to a week in Lumeria, Xavier left Icarra. Miranda was devastated, but remained hopeful that Xavier will return. Miranda tried to find Xavier, but she got stuck by the light, and his sister was turned into a baby. After years of depression, Miranda eventually committed suicide. Mythos asks Amon if he knows Xavier, but what Amon only knows is that Xavier was a high-ranking soldier from Lumeria and that he visited Icarra after having a disagreement with his bestfriend.

1 - 40 EPISODE 40

Mythos continues to wander around Icarra for more answers, but he gets caught by the light. Fortunately, Lori and his group arrive to save him. They successfully destroy the lightdroid, and now, the people of Icarra are free. Mythos decides to go back to Lumeria.

Unable to get help from the Rounins, Naya heads to Helion herself to save Selene. Kirra tries to stop her, but a group of guards arrests them. Juris arrives in time to save them. He tells Naya that she is only putting herself in greater danger.

Mythos returns to the palace and Cadmus upon sight reprimands him. The master Rounin tells the young warrior to forget about his father. When Cadmus finds that Mythos doesn't have his necklace, he figures that the Helions took Selene for the necklace. Mythos regrets his actions upon learning that he only endangered his friend. Cadmus also regrets ever trusting Mythos, but the young man promises to bring back Selene.

In Helion, Selene finally agrees to side with Vega. But when Creon hears this, he tells Vega not to easily believe her younger sister. The dark queen decides to test Selene's loyalty, and instructs her to kill Mythos, to which Selene agrees. Has Selene truly fallen into the dark side? Can Mythos do something to save her? What will Creon do plot his revenge over Cadmus and the Rounins?

1 - 41 EPISODE 41

Mythos ponders about his father whom he heard was a high-ranking soldier of Lumeria and also a good friend of Cadmus. The young Rounin decides to put aside his search for his father to prioritize saving Selene. Meanwhile, Cadmus calls on the people of Lumeria and asks for help in finding Draco's mysterious child. The master Rounin promises to defend the peaceland at all cost, but to his surprise, the people themselves declare an open war against Helion. They believe that the only way to win peace is to bring the war into the darkland.

Venom agrees with the people's decision, but Aura and Leal suggest they should strategize first. Cadmus, however, believes that they will only bring more danger if they give in to their anger. In Helion, Vega is confident that with Creon and Selene on her side, she can finally defeat Lumeria. But Creon still doubts the loyalty of Selene and says that he will only trust the young lady if she kills Mythos.

To finally put a stop to the threat, Cadmus orders an attack against Helion. The master Rounin tasks Venom to head the strike in the darkland. Mythos insists on joining the troops, but with his necklace missing and Cadmus's distrust in him, the young Rounin is left to guard the palace.

Knowing that she cannot follow the Helion order, Selene tries to escape but Braulio catches her. Vega is furious, and as a punishment, the dark queen plants a device into Selene to brainwash her. Selene later wakes up to the dark side, and agrees to kill Mythos. Is this the fulfillment of Draco's prophecy? Can Mythos still save his beloved Selene before the great war breaks out?

1 - 42 EPISODE 42

Mythos pleads to participate in the mission. Venom believes that the head Rounin made the right decision in leaving him behind. Leal and Aura contradict him with the latter saying he's always picking on the new Rounin. Venom finally relents to take Mythos with them but without a stern reminder to everyone that he is the leader of the mission.

Juris still can't find a job but Xyrus promises to help him out when business in Lumeria picks up after the war. The two see a distraught Naya approach them. She suddenly faints and the men rush to her aid. Selene suddenly appears in front of them and Naya feels overjoyed. She tells them that Vega had her kidnapped because of Mythos's necklace. Juris feels something is amiss but Selene insists that it's just fatigue kicking in after her long journey.

Xyrus reports everything to Master Cadmus and the leader suspects that Helion must have a bigger plan for they returned Selene unharmed. He declares that they must attack Helion that evening. Leal runs into Xyrus, who was waiting in their offices. Xyrus shows his concern for her going to Helion but Leal tells him to have a good life with Naya and Selene. Xyrus realizes that she's jealous of Naya and he explains that the woman simply helped him out during his time of need. He also confessed that he still has feelings for Leal. He proposes to Leal and she gleefully accepts.

Naya interrogates Selene about her experience in Helion but her daughter does not want to talk about it. Juris listens intently to their conversation and later tells Naya that he feels something is different with Selene. Meanwhile, Vega and Creon learn of Cadmus's plans to attack Helion that night. Vega is worried but Creon assures her that he will take care of everything.

Mythos and Selene bump into each other in the streets. Selene says she is very happy to see him again. She discovers Mythos's mission with the other Rounins and she acts all worried about his safety. She tells Mythos not to go. Kirra notices a lump on Selene's back and touches it. The young lady asks him not to do so for it's an injury she got in Helion. Kirra offers to heal it but Selene declines. Later, Selene surreptitiously leaves her house, transforms into a crow and flies away.

1 - 43 EPISODE 43

Selene returns to Helion and reports to Vega and Creon. Creon is bothered why she has not killed Mythos yet. Selene explains that she likes toying with him first. Vega warns her to be careful but Selene is confident that she'll be able to kill Mythos anytime she wants to.

Leal shares to Aura that she and Xyrus has gotten back together and they will be getting married after the war. She plans to quit the service and just be a dedicated wife to Xyrus. Aura is envious of her friend's happy state. She hopes that she and Juris will also have a happy ending like Xyrus and Leal. Xyrus too, reveals to Naya his and Leal's plans of settling down. The woman was very happy for the couple. Naya is also joyful of Selene's return and Xyrus mentions that the curse on her daughter seems to have disappeared.

Venom feels that Cadmus is meddling with his plans on attacking Helion. The Master Rounin believes that his strategies will lead Lumeria to victory rather than Venom's. Cadmus tells the Rounin to just obey his orders. By this time, Selene has returned to Lumeria and pretends to be handing over a sword with actually an intent to kill. She catches Mythos by surprise and he felt scared of her actions for a second.

Creon tells Vega that his traps for the Rounins are all set. She mentions to him that he takes after his father. Creon hints at Vega that she can crown him King of Helion anytime and this makes her suspicious of his intentions.

Selene starts to act up on Mythos and tells him that she doesn't want her to go to Helion. Mythos however explains that he has to prove Master Cadmus wrong about his character and besides he has to retrieve the Rounin necklace back. The following day, Selene airs her disappointments over Mythos choosing the battle and not her to Thalon. The Rounin calls his colleague no good and unfortunately Mythos hears their conversation. The two get into another fight and this time Aura stops them. She warns them to clean up their acts. Their enemies are outside Lumeria, not inside. Thalon mulls over the incident and Venom assures him that he did the right thing.

Mythos tries to talk to Selene but she begins her 'tantrum'. The two get into a fight with Selene insisting that Mythos is being selfish and doesn't really care about her. Mythos was astounded with her words, it was as if he was talking to a completely different person. Selene leaves him and goes back to Helion. She tells Vega that Mythos has extra ordinary strength even without his powers. Creon mocks her that she can't do her mission but Selene promises to kill him the next chance she gets. Vega reminds her to do it very soon for she needs to kill a human for her full powers as a princess of Helion to manifest.

1 - 44 EPISODE 44

Raysian is glad Mythos is joining the troops going to Helion. She swears her loyalty and life to him as leader of their group. Mythos was caught by surprise when Raysian suddenly gave him a hug in front of the other soldiers.

Kirra asks Naya why she dislikes Mythos for Selene, when in fact Mythos has only good intentions for her daughter. The woman evaded his questions which makes Kirra presume that she's keeping a secret.

Leal tells her fiance that she has some sort of surprise but will reveal it to him upon her return from the war. Xyrus gives her a present though, a bracelet that he himself made. He tells Leal that he is looking forward to marrying her soon. Aura and Juris were there to witness this, the latter just looking at his lover from a far. Later, Xyrus advises Juris to talk to Aura but he still feels unworthy of her love. Meanwhile, while making rounds in the palace, Raysian discovers that Selene can transform into a crow.

Naya was surprised to see Selene packing. Her daughter tells her that she will be joining the troop to Helion to which Naya objected to. She tells Selene to stay and just follow Master Cadmus's orders to guard the palace. Selene angrily dismisses her mother's words and tells her not to meddle in their affairs. Naya sadly shares this incident to Xyrus, revealing to him that she believes Juris's observation to be right after all.

At the palace, Selene asks Cadmus permission to join the troop going to Helion. He dissuades her and says that she'll be more of help to him by staying behind. Cadmus then tells the troops to follow Venom's orders for he is there on his behalf. He also wishes them victory and a safe return to Lumeria. He reminds Venom to follow their plan and the Rounin promises not to pass through Tobia.

Raysian tries to get more proof of what she saw later that afternoon. Selene becomes suspicious of her actions for she kept following her around. Raysian then tells Mythos and Venom that she saw Selene transform into a crow, only people from Helion can do that. Mythos thinks Raysian is making up stories because of her feud with Selene before. Venom surprisingly tells Raysian to refrain from talking nonsense. But still she insisted that Mythos watch his back.

Creon tells Vega that he'd be more confident in battle if she grants him special powers from Helion. Vega had her doubts but when Creon declared his love for her, she relents and bestows upon him dark powers. Creon now feels invincible.

Aura and Leal are wary as to where Venom is leading the troops. He lies to everyone and announces that they must follow Cadmus's orders and pass through Tobia, still insisting on executing his own plan. The other Rounins comply and soon they were surrounded by Helion soldiers.

1 - 45 EPISODE 45

The war between Lumeria and Helion has begun. The Rounins took the wrong path and get trapped by Helion soldiers. Cadmus, on the other hand, is left in his palace alone with only Selene to serve as his right hand man should the Helion troops attack Lumeria.

While defending herself, Leal's bracelet gets lost in the battle. Mythos tries to give Thalon a hand but instead of thanking him, the Rounin tells him to mind his own business. Seeing the two arguing, Leal angrily tells them to stop bickering and concentrate on fighting. While all this is happening, Creon leaves for Lumeria to pay a visit to his father's dear friend, Cadmus.

Meanwhile, Selene comes home to find her mother sitting in the dark, waiting for her. Naya feels that Selene has become a stranger and that she has welcomed an enemy into her home. Selene takes a knife and asks her mother to kill her if she believes she is not her daughter anymore. Naya grabs the knife from her hands but of course she can't bring herself to do it. A few blocks away, Xyrus shows his friend Juris a box containing Leal's wedding gown. He's pretty excited on her return and shares to Juris his plans for their nuptials. He again tells Juris that he can also make things better for Aura, who's just waiting for him to come back.

The Rounins succeed in their first scrimmage but unfortunately lose their troops. A few feet into Tobia, the five Rounins and Raysian encounter a different group of Helion soldiers, bigger and stronger than the ones they fought before. Venom, during the heated battle, gets cornered by one of the monsters. Instead of killing the beast, he instructs it to kill the other Rounins. However, the Rounins prevail and defeat the warriors. Thinking it's safe to proceed, Venom, Aura, Leal, Thalon, Mythos and Raysian start their journey to Vega's palace. They had to halt though in their tracks for new monsters appeared before them.

The Helion troops arrive in Lumeria and attack its citizens. Cadmus goes out to battle himself, looking for Selene in the midst of the fray. The girl he was searching for was actually just watching him struggle from afar.

1 - 46 EPISODE 46

Cadmus uses his powers to defeat the soldiers surrounding him. Creon arrives and engages the Master Rounin into a one on one combat. Xyrus and Kirra extend a helping hand in defeating the Helion soldiers around town. Kirra gets into some trouble and fortunately Juris saves the little man in time. Creon manages to disarm Cadmus, but it seems the Master Rounin is still better and stronger than him. Juris also helps out Cadmus and Creon is shocked that Juris is still superior over him despite his being just an ordinary citizen now. He takes off and returns to Helion. Cadmus praises Juris for being a skilled warrior still. Juris states that he is still ready to fight for Lumeria.

Creon angrily storms Vega's palace and demands from her why she did not bestow on him full powers in destroying Cadmus. But the Queen of Helion told him that she did give him all the powers he needed, its just that maybe his opponent is stronger than him. This infuriated Creon and swore to her that the war will not be over 'til he is dead. Braulio tries to come to Vega's defense but she tells him that their skirmish is actually her fault.

The Rounins face tougher foes, mimicking the appearance of each and every one of them. Confusion led to Mythos attacking the real Thalon which riled their rivalry more. Leal tried to decipher who was who and ends up being wounded by the fake Venom...or was he the real one? Though hurt, Leal comes up with an idea to combat their own look-alikes to lessen the mayhem. Eventually their enemies returned to their original appearances and the Rounins finally defeated them. Leal falls on the ground from exhaustion and her injury. Mythos says they must return to Lumeria so Kirra can heal Leal's wounds but Venom contradicts him and that he as the leader should take care of Leal. Aura worries for her best friend but Venom tells them they should push through with the mission. He walks off carrying Leal in his arms but unknown to the Rounins, a vicious smile is pasted on his face.

1 - 47 EPISODE 47

Cadmus is impressed with the skills of Helion's new warrior. Juris, however, mentions that the Master Rounin is still much powerful than the enemy. Cadmus believes that they cannot be complacent for battles are unpredictable. Selene finally shows up at the palace. Her flimsy excuse for her disappearance irritates Cadmus and he announces that Juris is now again his right hand man. The Master Rounin now tells Juris that he has noticed a change in Selene's attitude since she came back from Helion. Cadmus asks Juris to watch over the girl. But Selene catches Juris following her and she advises the former Rounin to tell Cadmus that if he mistrusts her, he can relieve her of her duties anytime. Cadmus later tells Xyrus the same thing he told Juris about Selene but adds that if and when she acts out of the ordinary they should not hesitate to kill her.

Leal asks to be put down and rest a bit. She suddenly opens up the subject on why Venom tried to kill Mythos and Thalon during their battle with the Helion troops. She noticed that both Rounins fought two Venoms at the same time. Venom was taken aback but admits to plotting against the Rounins to avenge Creon's demise. He also reveals that Creon has risen from the dead because of Vega and he now pledges his loyalty to the dark force. With their plan to destroy Lumeria on a roll, pretty soon Creon will reign over the prosperous city. He swears to kill Leal and the other Rounins. Leal though springs a surprise attack on Venom and she manages to escape despite her injuries. On the other hand, the Rounins become worried of Leal's worsening condition. Aura is then forced to decide for the group and return to Lumeria.

Venom was in disbelief for a woman Rounin and an injured one at that defeated him. He changes to a crow and reports to Vega about Leal's escape. The Queen of Helion then instructs Braulio to search for the Rounin. But their hunt maybe a bit too late for Leal successfully, though with difficulty, reached the doorway to Lumeria. Unfortunately, Selene was already there waiting for her. Still clueless over Selene's true identity, Leal asks their former student for help, delivering herself once more into the hands of the enemy.

1 - 48 EPISODE 48

Selene leads Leal to a place the Rounin wasn't very familiar with. She also mentions that they must hide from Venom. At the mention of Venom's name, Leal halts and asks Selene how she knew Venom was after her. She then realizes that Selene is also an enemy and the two engage in another fight. Selene though was still no match to the Rounin's strength and escapes by turning into a crow. On the other hand, Creon's already rejoicing in Helion, telling Vega that he can feel that they are winning the war. They don't notice Braulio looking at them jealously from a corner.

Venom returns to the other Rounins and tells them of Leal's demise. Aura could not believe that her best friend is dead and insisted on returning to Lumeria and abandoning their mission. Venom mentions that he left her body with a soldier in Lumeria so he can come back to their aid quickly. On their way back, however, he hears of Leal's escape from a crow and disappears. The other Rounins are puzzled and they return to the city without him. Cadmus is surprised by the news of Leal's death. Venom hasn't even showed up at the palace nor has someone reported Leal's arrival to him. Meanwhile Venom meets up with Selene to discuss the problem at hand. They agree to search for Leal – Selene in Lumeria, Venom inside the palace. They should find Leal fast lest Creon's plans for conquering Lumeria be destroyed. Venom finally makes an appearance at the palace and his actions make Cadmus suspicious. He denies having anything to do with Leal's disappearance, saying he would not be present at the palace if he had bad intentions for his fellow Rounin.

By this time, Leal has wandered aimlessly in the palace basement, getting weaker by the second. She eventually collapses and is found later by a palace worker, motionless on the ground. Soon, Kirra is summoned and he performs a healing spell on Leal. He then declares the lady Rounin out of danger and advises Xyrus to let her rest. Aura comforts Xyrus and tells him that Leal was looking forward to the end of the war and reveal to him her surprise. She adds that he will be very pleased to hear it once Leal wakes up.

Vega hears of the news of Leal's recovery and suggests to Creon to change his plans. Creon remains stubborn and tells Venom to find a way to kill the Rounin. It will be her or his life on the line. At the Rounin quarters, Leal wakes up and Xyrus leaves the room to tell the others of the good news. Unfortunately, Venom comes out of the shadows, blowing black powder towards Leal, suffocating her.

1 - 49 EPISODE 49

Leal dies before telling Cadmus and the other Rounins about the treachery of Venom and Selene. Xyrus mourns the death of his beloved, but Venom and Selene are happy that Leal took the secret to the grave. After a while, Cadmus gets a feeling that a secret enemy, someone in the palace, is behind Leal's mysterious death.

The following morning, the Rounins and the whole of Lumeria bring Leal's remains to its final resting place. The peaceland grieves the death of the brave Rounin. At the funeral, Aura tells Xyrus about Leal's unfinished plans. Apparently, Leal is planning to leave the Rounin order after the mission to Helion so she can settle down with Xyrus.

Cadmus calls on the Rounins to look for the one responsible for Leal's death. The master Rounin gives Mythos Leal's necklace so he can now protect himself and continue with the mission. Cadmus tells Mythos to bring Selene with them. The master Rounin later reveals that he is suspecting something about Selene, that she may be a traitor. The task is supposed to test Selene's loyalty to Lumeria, and if otherwise, the Rounins have no choice but to kill Selene.

In Helion, Creon celebrates with the dark army the death of a Rounin. He vows to kill all the Rounin, specially Juris, who will suffer in his hands.. Vega, on the other hand, wants to deal with Cadmus herself. Back in Lumeria, Naya tries to dismiss her suspicion regarding Selene's bizzare actions. Naya tells her daughter how she misses the old Selene whom she raised.

The Rounins head to Helion taking Kirra with them whose healing ability can be used in the battlefield. Before leaving, Aura tells Juris that she still loves him. Juris assures Aura that he still loves her, but things have gotten so complicated. Aura promises to come back, while Juris swears to wait for her.

1 - 50 EPISODE 50

Xyrus tells Cadmus that he is convinced that someone inside Lumeria is responsible for Leal's mysterious death. He puts suspicion on Selene, but the master Rounin expresses uncertainty. Xyrus offers to guard Lumeria against the traitors, to which Cadmus agrees. In Helion, the Rounins, together with Selene and Raysian, fight with some guards. Venom sneaks out to warn Selene that the Rounins are already suspecting her. Raysian shares the same feeling and mentions this again to Mythos, but he still believes that Selene is a friend. When confronted, Selene tells Mythos that she still values their friendship.

Xyrus tells Naya about Cadmus's plans about Selene and that she may be responsible for Leal's death. Naya, however, believes that Selene may have turned to the dark side, but she is not a murderer. Despite his distrust, Xyrus holds on to his promise to keep Selene's true identity from Cadmus and the Rounins.

While resting in the middle of the night, the Rounins are disturbed by a flying mechanical weapon. The Rounins use their abilities to destroy the robot, but after destroying it, another new robot appears in their midst. Meanwhile, Creon and Vega combine their powers to create a destructive meteor shower all over Lumeria, destroying the city's remaining defenses. The peaceland is in chaos, and Cadmus rush to the wounded soldiers and civilians. How can Lumeria manage to defend itself from the lurking invasion?

1 - 51 EPISODE 51

The Rounins reach the army base of Helion where they are met by more flying mechanical weapons. Knowing that they are outnumbered, the Rounins back out of the base, but they are mysteriously separated. Aura is lost with Venom, Thalon with Raysian, while Mythos, Selene, and Kirra are together. Venom is about to strike Aura from behind, but Thalon and Raysian arrive. Raysian fears that Selene is going to kill Mythos, but Venom shuts Raysian up with her 'lies'. They all rush to find Mythos and Selene.

Cadmus is devastated over the sight of the casualties and damages in Lumeria. The master Rounin orders Juris to tell all the citizens of Lumeria to arm themselves against an upcoming invasion. However, only few soldiers are left and some citizens are too injured to fight. Meanwhile, Vega thinks about launching a full attack, but Creon decides to postpone it and keep Cadmus in the dark.

Mythos, Selene, and Kirra are still searching for the others when they are ambushed by some flying robots. Mythos tells Kirra to lure the robots away, and Mythos and Selene later destroy all the robots. Back in Lumeria, Naya tells Cadmus that the citizens are losing hope, but the master Rounin vows that he won't allow Helion to take over the peaceland.

While trying to find their way, Kirra sees Selene's reflection on a mirror, and gets a glimpse of Selene's true appearance. He tells this to Mythos, but the latter refuses to believe, until Mythos sees it for himself. He confronts Selene about this, and Selene's reflection reveals that she is a Helion, the mysterious child of Draco. But the Selene in person tells Mythos not to believe what he is hearing, it's probably a trap. Mythos follows his instincts and subdues Selene. Can Mythos really find it in his heart to carry out his duties, even if it means killing Selene?

1 - 52 EPISODE 52

Suspecting that Selene is a traitor, Mythos regretfully ties her up. Kirra fears that Selene has fully turned into the dark side, but Mythos feels that there is hope for Selene to be healed. Meanwhile, Braulio provokes Vega that Creon is slowly taking over Helion, and soon, the former Rounin may become the darkland's new leader. Vega, however, doubts that Creon will betray her.

Venom, Aura, Thalon, and Raysian are still looking for Mythos, Selene, and Kirra. They split up to search for their missing comrades, but to no avail, and they continue to wander in Helion with the constant threat of attacks. Aura questions Venom's directions, but the latter is insulted, and the two senior Rounin almost get into an altercation had Thalon and Raysian not intervened.

Braulio talks to Creon about his plans in taking down Lumeria. Braulio says that maybe, after invading Lumeria, the dark Rounin intends to be the king of Helion and cut Vega off the throne. Creon is insulted and tells Vega to castigate Braulio. Vega tells Braulio that she trusts Creon more than him, and demotes him to a guard.

A giant asteroid is about to fall on Lumeria and to protect the peaceland from complete destruction, Cadmus uses all his powers to obliterate the asteroid. The master Rounin eventually succeeds, but later falls to the ground after exhausting all his strength. Back in Helion, Selene pleads for her release. Mythos softens towards Selene despite Kirra's objection. Once the ropes were loose, Selene breaks away and attacks Mythos. A duel breaks out between the two friends, but Mythos decides to defeat Selene against his heart's will. After a long fight, Mythos corners Selene. Mythos asks where the true Selene is, but Selene provokes Mythos if he can truly find it in his heart to hurt her. Selene even tries to convince Mythos to join her in Helion, but he refuses.

Mythos again ties his friend up, but Selene escapes, draws a sword and points it at Mythos. Selene tells Mythos that he should have killed her. Selene strikes and stabs Mythos. The young Rounin falls to the ground, bleeding.

1 - 53 EPISODE 53

Mythos hangs on for dear life while Kirra hides and tries to evade Selene. Selene, thinking Kirra has escaped, returns to the group and asks them for help to save Mythos and Kirra. Raysian, however, feels that something is not right and tells Aura her suspicion. Aura tells Raysian to prepare, while Selene secretly tells Venom that Mythos is dead. Unknown to her Kirra has gotten to Mythos in time to heal his injuries.

In Lumeria, Cadmus remains weak after destroying the giant asteroid. With the peaceland in chaos and its leader incapacitated, the Helion army marches in for an attack. Creon, in disguise, leads the dark troops, but Cadmus arrives to stop him, and a duel erupts between the master and his former apprentice. Creon strikes Cadmus, and the master Rounin tries to flee. Creon chases him.

Mythos arrives and warns the team about Selene's treachery. Aura and Raysian decide to arrest Selene, but Thalon refuses to believe while Venom intervenes. Confused on why Venom is protecting Selene, Aura questions her comrade's motives. The Rounins get into a fight, with Aura, Mythos, and Raysian on one side and Venom, Selene, and Thalon on the other.

Cadmus is too weak to carry on, and Juris, Naya, and Xyrus rush to his side. The master Rounin reveals a shocking discovery, that the mysterious warrior of Helion is using Creon's necklace. Juris figures that the mysterious warrior might be from Lumeria.

Aura, Mythos, Raysian, and Kirra escape, leaving Venom, Selene, and Thalon behind. Venom decides to go after them, and Selene insists that she must kill Mythos for her to become a true Helion. What will happen to the Rounins now that Venom and Selene have unveiled their betrayal? Will Cadmus ever learn the true identity of Helion's mysterious warrior? For how long can Lumeria stand its ground against Helion?

1 - 54 EPISODE 54

Aura, Mythos, Raysian, and Kirra try to escape from the traitors and other threats lurking in Helion. Meanwhile, Thalon is shocked to learn that Selene and Venom are truly their real enemies. The young Rounin tries to fight back, but when he is unable to kill Venom, Thalon runs away.

In Lumeria, Cadmus, Juris, Xyrus, and Naya continue to hide. To force the master Rounin to surrender himself, Creon rounds up some hostages and threatens to kill all of them if Cadmus does not show up. Cadmus is forced to surrender, but before doing so, he gives Juris his powers back. Now a renewed Rounin, Juris swears to defend Lumeria at all cost.

Cadmus demands for Vega and Creon, hiding behind a mask, to release the hostage before he surrenders. Vega agrees, and after the hostages are released, Creon takes Cadmus. Back in Helion, Venom and Selene run after Thalon and they eventually catch up with Aura, Mythos, Raysian and Kirra. Venom vows to kill everyone who betrayed Creon, and later confesses that he is the one who killed Leal. In her anger, Aura attacks Venom, and a fight between the two factions erupt.

Selene falls down, and Kirra tries to remove the black amulet from her. Selene kicks Kirra down, leaving the little man unconscious. Venom tries to kill Mythos, but Raysian gets in the way and ends up as the recipient of the ex-Rounin's blow. In her last words, Raysian thanks Mythos for his friendship. She also confesses her secret feelings for him. Raysian is dead, Selene is arrested, while Venom is on the loose. Can Aura, Thalon and Mythos survive the evil and treachery in Helion? What fate awaits Cadmus and Lumeria?

1 - 55 EPISODE 55

Losing their comrades one by one, the remaining Rounins find it hard to continue the war against Helion. Selene warns them that there's nothing left for them, except for death. Aura and Mythos, however, are determined to fight for Lumeria's glory 'til the end. In Lumeria, Vega attempts to torture Cadmus, but Creon tells her to wait. Creon, hiding behind a mask, challenges his former master to a duel.

Cadmus musters all his strength to defeat Creon, until he snatches the necklace of the dark Rounin. On Cadmus's signal, Juris arrives to help in rounding up the other dark guards. Vega tries to help Creon, but she is stopped by Helion soldiers and they escape. Cadmus uncovers the mask, and is shocked to discover that Creon has risen from the dead. The master Rounin forces Creon to tell who is Draco's child, but Creon tells nothing.

In Helion, Mythos removes the black amulet from Selene and the young lady loses consciousness. Kirra talks about a vision, Selene's reflection on the mirror spoke about herself being Vega's sister. Mythos, however, refuses to believe that Selene is a traitor, despite Aura's conviction that they cannot be fully sure about Selene's identity.

Creon is imprisoned, but continues to speak of his revenge over Cadmus and Juris. The former Rounin still refuses to say who Draco's child is. The master Rounin is disappointed that his former student has been eaten up by his anger. Meanwhile, Selene wakes up with no recollection of what happened to her. Fearing that Vega will come back for her, Selene begs to be killed. Mythos would not do it, but rather swears that with his love, he will protect Selene.

1 - 56 EPISODE 56

Venom reports to Vega that the amulet in Selene's body has been removed. The dark queen plans to get Selene back, but now that Creon is captured, all they can do is attack Lumeria. But Venom tells her that he can still save Creon by going back to Lumeria since Cadmus and others are still clueless of his betrayal. Meanwhile, Aura's only hope for victory is to employ Selene's help in capturing Vega. Selene agrees, and they later find the passageway to Helion.

Venom returns to Lumeria and pretends that he got separated from the team during an intense battle. Juris is furious, but before a fight erupts, Cadmus intervenes and tells Venom that they have captured Creon. Upon seeing Creon in his cell, Venom volunteers to guard the ex-Rounin. When Cadmus left, Venom uses his powers to destroy the cage. But Creon tells Venom that Cadmus has the sole key that will open the cell, so he must find the master Rounin and get it.

On their way to the dark palace, Thalon asks Selene for one more chance at love. But Selene tells Thalon that it is only Mythos whom she truly loves and whom she wants to spend the rest of her life with. Thalon is again heart broken and feels envious of Mythos. Back in Lumeria, Naya is taken hostage by Vega who demands from Cadmus that Creon be released. In Creon's cell, Cadmus saves Naya from Vega and orders Venom to kill her. The master Rounin is shocked when Venom points a sword at him. Venom takes the key from Cadmus and releases Creon from his cage. Instead of escaping, Vega decides to torture Cadmus for killing her father. The dark princess uses his powers and turns Cadmus into a brass statue.

1 - 57 EPISODE 57

After turning Cadmus into a brass statue, Creon and Vega move on to their next plan which is to capture and return Selene to their side. Venom arrives and calls for help because Juris and Xyrus are killing all the Helion guards and making their way inside the palace. Juris overhears Creon and Venom's connivance and the former's plans in making Aura the Queen of Lumeria. He was really using Vega and will later dispose of her.

In Helion, Aura, Mythos, Thalon, Selene, and Kirra manage to defeat more evil creatures and pursued their journey to the Helion palace. Meanwhile, violence coats Lumeria as Vega and her army kills everyone on sight. Xyrus tries to search for Naya, but he is later captured by Vega.

Back in Lumeria, Juris face Creon and Venom to stop their evil plans. Juris uses all his powers to defeat his ex-comrades. Juris decides to give up the fight when Vega and Braulio arrived with Xyrus and Naya as their hostages. All of Lumeria is now under Creon and Vega, and after learning that Aura and the other Rounins are on their way to the dark palace, Creon calls on Braulio to assemble the army so they can crush Lumeria's last defense.

In Helion, Selene goes on her own to reach the palace. Mythos later tries to go after her, but he meets Venom, and a duel erupts between the student and the teacher. Mythos succeeds in taking Venom's necklace, and he renders his former teacher powerless. Using his powers, Mythos ends up killing Venom.

1 - 58 EPISODE 58

Selene goes to Vega and tells her evil sister how she abhors her Helion blood. Vega again tries to put her younger sister under a black spell, but Selene struggles. Just when Selene is about to defeat Vega, Creon arrives with Naya as his hostage. Creon forces Selene to release Vega, and despite Naya's resistance, Selene gives up. Selene and Naya end up in prison with Xyrus, while Juris is in a separate cage.

Aura and Thalon are surprised to see Creon alive. Aura scorns Creon, and Thalon attempts to defeat the ex-Rounin, but the young Rounin proves to be much weaker. Aura is later placed in a cage separate from Juris and Thalon. Vega questions why Aura is given special treatment but Creon explains that he does not want Aura to be with her comrades fearing that they might escape. Creon and Vega have successfully captured all the Rounins including Cadmus, but Vega is worried about Mythos who is still at large. Creon, however, assures Vega that Mythos is just a rookie who can be easily defeated.

Braulio brings the body of Venom to Creon and Vega. Creon becomes angry upon hearing from Braulio that it was Mythos who killed Venom. The ex-Rounin vows to kill Mythos with his own hands. Afterwards, Vega asks Aura if she has a past with Creon. Aura annoys Vega by telling her that Creon has always been madly in love with her, but she had always rejected him. Vega is devastated and confronts Creon, but he later denies everything and convinces her that she is his only love. When Vega refuses to believe, Creon hands Vega a sword and challenges her to kill him if she does not want to believe his love.

Vega drops the sword, but threatens Creon that if she finds out that he is fooling her, she will kill him.

With their master Rounin held captive and Mythos missing, Juris fears the worst, but Aura tells him that they must not give up. Creon is just using Vega to prove that he is still the best warrior. Unknown to them, Mythos is just nearby waiting for the right moment to free them all. Mythos tells Kirra to sneak through the guards so they can open all the cages and free the Rounins.

Creon goes to Aura and again asks for her love and even promises to make her his queen. But Aura tells Creon that she cannot be bought and that she will only love Juris. Aura tells Creon that he is better off with Vega, but Creon tells her that he does not love Vega. Unknown to Creon, the dark queen was just nearby listening to all his lies.

1 - 59 EPISODE 59

Vega angrily confronts Creon about his lies, and threatens him that she will send him back to the dead if he betrays her. Fearing for his life, the ex-Rounin tells Vega that he is just playing with the Rounins. But the dark queen no longer believes his words, so she uses her powers to read Creon's mind. Discovering the truth, Vega vows to get rid of the lady Rounin.

Meanwhile, Kirra tries to steal the prison key from one of the guards, but he is later caught and caged with Selene. Kirra tries to heal Cadmus, but fails as Vega's spell is too powerful. However, he assures everyone that the master Rounin is still alive, but is showing signs of weakening. The Rounins and the rest are now losing hope, but are still counting on Mythos. Afterwards, Braulio takes Aura out of her cage and brings her somewhere. Aura struggles, and Juris tries to escape to help his beloved. Unfortunately, the cage is too strong for Juris to destroy.

On his own, Mythos attacks all the guards and afterwards tries to free his comrades. However, Mythos cannot find the right keys of the cages. The young Rounin goes back to find the correct keys and promises to return. Meanwhile, Vega forces Aura to a duel to see who is worthy of Creon's love. Aura tries to fight back, but without her necklace, the lady Rounin proves no match to the dark queen. Seeing his beloved in danger, Creon throws the necklace back to Aura. Vega becomes furious, but Creon tells her that he just want to make a it a fair and interesting fight.

Braulio tries to arrest Aura before she tries to escape. But Vega orders him to release the lady Rounin as she wants to defeat Aura by herself. However, behind the guards's back, Mythos sneaks to steal the keys. Braulio spots the young Rounin and tries to catch him. Aura, meanwhile, uses all her powers and the dark queen falls on the ground. Furious, Vega tries to kill Creon, but her powers are not enough to send him back to the dead. Vega dies, and Creon celebrates his victory. He now rules over both Hellion and Lumeria.

1 - 60 EPISODE 60

Creon carries the unconscious Aura to a safe place, but Braulio arrives and challenges the ex-Rounin to a fight to avenge Vega's death. Braulio tries to win, but he proves no match to Creon. Knowing that the Helion soldier has no purpose, Creon kills Braulio. However, when Creon turns his back, Aura is nowhere to be found.

Creon later finds Aura just when she begins to pass out. After a while, Aura wakes up and finds herself healed by Kirra. She sees Juris nearby beside Creon, and she hears from Creon that Juris agreed to a duel in exchange of Kirra's healing. Whoever wins the fight will be the man who will take Aura. Creon forces Aura to agree, and believing that Juris is still much stronger, Aura agrees. Juris and Creon then engage in a square off, using all their strengths and powers. Juris later subdues Creon, but just when he is about to finish him, Juris loses his sight. Aura begins to worry as Creon stands up and makes his aim at Juris. Creon, using the powers of the Rounin medallions, brings Juris to the ground.

Mythos, meanwhile, defeats all the guards and later reaches the heart of Helion. A guards rushes to Creon and tells him what Mythos was about to do. Fearing that the entire Helion is in danger of total destruction, Creon leaves Juris and Aura to stop Mythos. Aura comes to Juris's aid, but the latter is too weak, and after a while, loses consciousness, and Aura fears the worst.

Mythos is about to destroy the heart of Helion, but Creon and the guards arrive to stop him. Creon tells Mythos that if he destroys the heart, the whole Helion will explode, and everyone, including his friends, will die. But Mythos tells Creon that it is better for all of them to die together, and he tries to strike the heart. Creon stops him, and asks what Mythos wants in return. Mythos demands for all the medallions, to which Creon later agrees. But after Mythos gets all the medallions, he accuses Creon of always defying agreements, and the young Rounin stabs the heart.

1 - 61 EPISODE 61

The darkland starts to crumble after Mythos stabs the heart of Helion. The young Rounin escapes with the medallions, and Creon tries to save the heart. Meanwhile, Aura asks Kirra to revive Juris, and with all his powers, Kirra heals the Rounin. Mythos then arrives to save his friends, and puts the medallion on Cadmus to remove the spell on the master Rounin. Cadmus comes to life, and he then orders everyone to leave as Helion begins to self-destruct.

Creon is left behind by his army, and before the heart explodes, Creon vows to make Mythos pay. On their way out of the darkland, the team meets Aura and Juris, and they all try run to safety. Thalon, however, meets an accident and is left behind. Mythos returns to save Thalon despite Selene's objections. The young Rounin takes his comrade out just before Helion crashes down. Thalon thanks Mythos for saving his life, and the two promise to be friends from thereon.

Back in Lumeria, Mythos is surprised to see Elli assisting all the wounded in the peaceland. Apparently, Vesta was also affected and Elli pays a visit to the city to checks on Mythos. He was very happy to see his former student safe. Back in the palace, Aura takes care of Juris, and the lady Rounin cries with happiness that Juris is alive. Afterwards, Cadmus gives Naya and Selene pardon, and he offers the young lady a Rounin position. Selene, however, turns the offer down and chooses to be with Mythos. Naya gives her daughter her blessing, and Mythos then hugs Selene.

Cadmus tells Aura that they must look for new Rounins. Aura says that hopefully, they may find warriors as great and as brave as Mythos. The young Rounin turned out to be the one who will save the world. Cadmus agrees, believing that Mythos was somehow destined to be a Rounin. In Helion, Creon emerges from the ruins and vows his revenge on the Rounins. When night falls, Creon disguises himself in a cloak as he wanders the peaceland and starts his evil plans.

1 - 62 EPISODE 62

Kirra returns home and searches for Mythos and Selene. When nobody answers, Kirra looks for his friends, but he is taken hostage by Creon. The ex-Rounin demands for Mythos's whereabouts, but Kirra doesn't know where his friend is. Kirra manages to escape and tries to run to safety. Later, Mythos and Selene arrive to find two guards at the gate dead. The two fear the worst and they search for Kirra, and they only find a knife with blood on it.

Creon catches Kirra in the archive office, and when Kirra vows not to say anything, Creon stabs him to death. Meanwhile, Mythos and Selene report the incident to Cadmus, but no one can't think of anyone who might want to hurt Kirra. The master Rounin asks Mythos on where he left Creon after he stabbed the heart of Helion, but when Mythos fails to assure him that Creon is dead when he left, Cadmus prepares himself and orders the Rounins to secure their medallions as Creon may have returned to Lumeria to get them.

Mythos brings Selene to her home for safety. Selene insists on helping, but Mythos tells her that it would be better if she will just stay home. After Mythos leaves, Selene finds her mother hostaged by Creon. Selene asks what the ex-Rounin wants, and again, Creon demands for Mythos, and threatens that if Selene won't cooperate, he would kill Naya.

Cadmus alerts all the Rounins and the civilians for a possible threat. Selene arrives, and for fear of her mother's life, she says nothing about Creon. Cadmus tells Selene to go home and stay with her mother, and Mythos volunteers to walk Selene home. Selene rushes home, and Mythos figures that something is wrong with his friend, but unknown to them, Elli spots them and tries to follow.

Mythos finds Selene and Naya captured by Creon. The young Rounin begs for Creon to release them, but the ex-Rounin, in exchange of Selene and Naya, challenges Mythos to a duel. Left with no other options, Mythos agrees, and the combat between the rookie and his former friend begins. But in the middle of the fight, Mythos's medallion falls on the ground, and Creon takes advantage and strangles Mythos. While losing his breath, Mythos recites the prayer his mother taught him when he was a child. Creon is shocked to hear that Mythos knows the prayer that Creon learned from his mother and father. Creon asks him where he learned the prayer because as far as Creon knows, it was only his family who knows the prayer. But Mythos tells Creon that according to his mother, his dead father was the one who made that prayer. Creon then figures that Mythos might be his younger brother whom, he thought was dead all this time.

Cadmus and the Rounins are worried why Mythos has not yet returned. The master Rounin decides go to Naya's home. Meanwhile, Mythos could not accept the possibility that Creon is his brother, but Creon offers Mythos a chance to join him. When Mythos refuses, Creon attacks him, but Elli arrives to defend Mythos. Creon fights Elli, and after a while, the ex-Rounin kills the old man.

1 - 63 EPISODE 63

Mythos, with all his rage, attacks Creon to avenge Elli's death. The young Rounin kicks Creon, and he gets stabbed in the chest with a steel pipe. In his dying words, Creon says how happy he is to finally meet his younger brother, and that if their father, Xander, would be alive, he would be happy for them. Creon calls Mythos by his real name, Cleo. Cadmus and the rest arrive to hear Creon's revelation, and the ex-Rounin falls, leaving everyone speechless.

Cadmus tells Mythos the whole story of his origin, while Naya fills in the other details based on what Deinara told her. Meanwhile, Xyrus finds Kirra wounded and tries to help him. Aura arrives and asks if Kirra can heal himself, but unfortunately, self-healing is beyond Kirra's powers. A group of little children arrive and surround Kirra, and using their powers, the children heal Kirra. Mythos and the rest arrive just when Kirra gains consciousness, and Mythos worries for his friend, but Kirra assures Mythos that he is fine.

The next day, Mythos brings Cadmus and Selene to Vesta where his mother's grave is. The young Rounin prays for eternal peace for his mother. Later, Cadmus brings Mythos to the old house where Xander and Reema used to live in. The master Rounin tells the young warrior all about the tragedy that struck their family, and how it led to him and Creon getting separated.

At home, Selene is bothered by a nightmare. She tells her mother that the curse of her Helion blood may not be over yet, but Naya assures her daughter that everything is at peace now that Vega and Helion are gone. Meanwhile, Juris tells Aura that he is leaving the Rounin service, hence, he and Aura can get married. To add more to their happiness, Aura finds out that she is pregnant.

Mythos shows Naya, Selene, and Kirra an unknown key that may have something to do with his father. The young Rounin goes to Cadmus to ask if he knows anything about the key, and also, to ask the master Rounin to be there when he marries Selene. Cadmus expresses his gratitude, and back in the palace, he uses the key to open a box from Reema. The box contains an old letter from Reema, and as Cadmus reads it, he learns that Cleo, or Mythos, is his son. Will Cadmus tell Mythos he is his real father? Is peace here to stay for Lumeria?

1 - 64 EPISODE 64

Mythos goes to Naya and asks for Selene's hand. Knowing of the young man's pure heart, Naya agrees for him to marry his daughter. But afterwards, Selene is still bothered by her Helion blood. Mythos, however, assures his beloved that he will forever stand by her no matter what. But Naya also cannot help to think that maybe, the dark prophecy is still yet to be fulfilled.

Cadmus contemplates about the truth about Reema's shocking revelation. The master Rounin tells it all to Juris of how he finds it difficult to make a decision whether to tell Mythos the truth or just keep it to himself. Juris advises his master that he owes the truth to his son.

Cadmus calls on Mythos and shows him Reema's old letter. The young Rounin reads the letter of his deceased mother, and later breaks into tears upon learning that Cadmus is his father. Mythos, however, is still confused on the other details, so Cadmus tells him the whole story.

Several years ago, when Xander and Cadmus were still new Rounins, Cadmus fell in love with Reema. However, Reema turns him down because she is already having a secret relationship with Xander, the best friend of Cadmus. Xander was torn between being a friend to Cadmus and being a lover to Reema, hence, he brought the matter up to Pharus. The former master Rounin advised Xander to tell Cadmus the whole truth, but Cadmus had accidentally discovered Xander and Reema. Cadmus felt betrayed, and he ended his friendship with Xander. The drift eventually started affecting all the Rounins, hence Cadmus challenged Xander to a duel to finally end the feud. In front of Pharus, Cadmus and Xander fought each other. Cadmus, however, eventually lost, and as an agreement, he gave way for Xander to marry Reema.

1 - 65 EPISODE 65

Continuing the story of Mythos's origin, Cadmus lost the duel to Xander, hence he was forced to make peace with his comrade. From then on, Cadmus gave way for Reema and Xander to get married. Years after, Creon was born, and Xander expressed his dreams of his first born becoming a Rounin like him.

But Reema had other plans for Creon, a life that doesn't involve war and the rules of the Rounin. This difference slowly caused a burden on their marriage, and everytime Reema would feel hurt, she would cry to Cadmus for comfort. Xander, however, did not appreciate Cadmus meddling into his marital issues, and yet again, Xander and Cadmus drifted farther away from each other.

Reema reached a point wherein she thought of leaving Xander. She told this to Cadmus, but as they were talking, Xander arrived and thought that Reema is trying to get back with Cadmus. The couple had a terrible fight that night, and Reema told Xander that maybe they should separate for a while. Can Reema truly find it in her heart to walk away from Xander?

1 - 66 EPISODE 66

Cadmus hides Reema from Xander, giving the couple time apart to analyze their situation. Reema returns home the following morning but Xander is nowhere to be found. The Rounin however was on his way to Icarra and here he meets Solana, Miranda and her brother Amon. Miranda tries to keep Xander in Icarra by not telling him about the 2 places's time difference. Xander learns of the truth but he's already missing from Lumeria for a month. Feeling the loss of Xander, Reema and Cadmus spend one night of passion together.

1 - 67 EPISODE 67

The morning after, Reema admitted to Cadmus that she was beginning to fall for him. Cadmus tells her that he still wants to marry her, but Reema wanted to fully forget Xander before making any promises to Cadmus. After missing for almost a month, Pharus declares Xander to be dead and ordered a replacement for the missing Rounin. But much to all the warriors' surprise, Xander suddenly appears before them.

Xander then explained everything that happened to him. When he said that Icarra had a very odd timezone, Pharus ordered that the door to Icarra be closed. Xander told Cadmus that he regrets leaving Reema. Xander returned to see his wife and apologized for his disappearance. In front of Cadmus, Reema accepted her husband back.

Shortly after Xander returned, Reema gave birth to another son, Cleo. But Reema told no one about what happened between her and Cadmus. After many years, Reema told her husband that she doesn't want her two sons to become Rounins opposing Xander's wishes. Then the great war between Lumeria and Helion happened, the war that saw the demise of Pharus and all the Rounins, leaving Cadmus as the lone survivor.

As his dying wish, Xander asked Cadmus to take care of his sons and train them to become Rounins. Creon agreed to go with Cadmus, but Reema secretly fled with Cleo and changed the baby's name to Mythos. Cadmus tells Mythos that if he had known that he was his son, he would have continued searching for him. Cadmus asks Mythos to take him as his father. Knowing that Reema might be happy wherever she is, Mythos tearfully hugs Cadmus.

Selene wakes up after a bad dream, but she is later greeted by her mother on her wedding day. In front of all the people of Lumeria, Mythos and Selene exchange wedding vows.

Years after, Selene gives birth to twins. Cadmus, Naya, Thalon, and Kirra all greet Mythos as he becomes a father of two. Cadmus also tasks Mythos to be the next master Rounin. Cadmus advises his son to always be brave and fair for all the people of Lumeria. Meanwhile, Juris and Aura also enjoy life with their child. But just when everyone in Lumeria were enjoying a life in peace, a strange black crow flies over Selene's children. Could this be a sign of Helion's rebirth? Or a mere coincidence?

One thing's for certain though, the tale of Mythos and his fellow Rounins ends here.

S.O.S. COAST GUARD

Lugosi is the mad munitions inventor traitorously intent on supplying disintegrating gas to the war-like state of Moravia in this routine outing. Serialdom's Dick Tracy, Byrd, swaps his police uniform for that of a coastguard to stop Lugosi's attempts to smuggle the constituent parts of the gas out of America. The giant deaf-mute (Alexander) who finally turns on his master when Lugosi wounds him in the last reel is the chapterplay's most imaginative touch.

The producer for the serial was Sol C. Siegel and the cinematographer was William Nobles.

WR. Barry Shipmen, Franklyn Adreon.

DIR. William Witney, Alan James.

EPISODES: 12 YEAR MADE: 1937 COUNTRY: GB SEASONS: 1

REPUBLIC

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: MAD SCIENTISTS

FORMAT: CINEMA SERIAL

LENGTH (MINS): STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: Yes COLOUR: No LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 12

DATE OF PREMIER:

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

RALPH BYRD, BELA LUGOSI, MAXIME DOYLE, CARLETON YOUNG, JOHN PICCORI, HERBERT RAWLINSON, RICHARD ALEXANDRA.

S.O.S. TERREAKA: SOS EARTH

Childrens serial.

WR. Germaine EpierreDIR. Germaine EpierreEPISODES: 8 YEAR MADE: 1966 COUNTRY: FRA SEASONS: 1*TELEVISION ROMANDECREATOR:*TYPE OF SHOW:*FORMAT: SERIESLENGTH (MINS): 0STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: Yes COLOUR: No LANG:*SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 8DATE OF PREMIER:*AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE*SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:*FILMS:

SABRINA THE TEENAGE WITCH

Sabrina can't believe her bad luck: not only is she starting out in a new school the day after her 16th birthday, but her aunts inform her that she is now a full-fledged witch with newly awakened magical powers that she must learn to control. At first she thinks they are just trying to take her mind off starting school, but after she reanimates the frog she is supposed to dissect, Sabrina begins to have second thoughts -- especially when her aunts present her with a book which contains an animated picture of her father, and reveal that her cat Salem can talk.

Her first hesitant attempts at magic backfire when she is taunted into losing her temper with a snotty schoolmate and turns her into a pineapple, she must then appeal to the Council of Witches for permission to turn time back and run the disastrous day over again. She is refused, but Aunt Hilda - who used to date Drell, the head of the Council - marches off to intervene, and Sabrina finds herself re-living the day, this time acing a history test, making a friendly date with shy hunk Harvey, and harmlessly deflecting Libby's malice. Being a teenage witch might not be so bad after all.

The sole fantasy-com of the 96-97 season, Sabrina, the Teenage Witch centres on the character of a 16-year-old girl who has attended high school in the Archie comics universe for some three decades without ageing a day and without anyone ever noticing that she and her two maiden aunts are practising witches. "What happens when you take a normally curious sixteen-year-old and reveal to her that she has the powers of witchcraft? Melissa Joan Hart, star of cable's popular Clarissa Explains It All, tackles that very question in the bewitching new coming-of-age comedy, Sabrina, the Teenage Witch this comical adventure, based on the popular Archie Comics heroine, Sabrina, a modern-day sorcerer's apprentice, lives with her two eccentric aunts.

As if adjusting to a new town and new friends weren't tough enough for a teenager to handle, Sabrina is presented with an even bigger surprise for her sixteenth birthday, she's a witch! Guided by her aunts, who come from a long line of witches, and Salem, a mischievous warlock doing penance as a black cat, Sabrina struggles to harness her new-found powers while unwittingly wreaking havoc on friends and foes alike. Adding to the task, Sabrina must keep her special talents under wraps from her classmates: Her quirky and free-spirited best friend, Jenny; her friend and potential love interest, Harvey; and Sabrina's nemesis, Libby, who would love to see Sabrina fall flat on her face.

Sabrina soon learns that magic isn't quite as easy as just wiggling your nose. It's going to take a lot of practice. And just wait until she starts her flying lessons!" As kid-TV goes, "Sabrina" has a real superstar: Melissa Joan Hart. Melissa Joan Hart previously starred in the 1991-1994 Nickelodeon hit "Clarissa Explains It All" which my son, myself, and even my sophisticated wife enjoyed. Melissa Joan Hart's mother is one of the Executive Producers of "Sabrina, the Teenage Witch" and one might reasonably infer that the new show was constructed as a vehicle for Mom's talented daughter. Melissa is a sweet, spunky, cheerful young teen -- but with an edge to her character which expresses itself in realistic disdain for a younger brother (in Clarissa), in a subtle rebelliousness against the adult world, and in a pragmatic but often bungling scheming sneakiness. She carries all of these aspects into the new role, where she is supported rather than thwarted by adults, in the persons of the equally blonde, equally magical Aunt Hilda and Aunt Zelda.

Men in this show are virtually powerless. The cute, eager-to-please but dim-bulb boyfriend is typical of the sisterhood-is-powerful feminist subtext. Adolescence itself is thematic, as Sabrina discovers on her 16th birthday that she has witchly strengths, when she finds herself levitating in her sleep, so there is an equation here that power = magic = sexuality. And yet Sabrina is as ill-prepared to deal with the adult world as any teenager, and her magic usually backfires in instructive ways. The lesson to kids is "don't try to be what you are not", mixed with "watch out for what you wish for -- you might just get it!" As Robert Lloyd points out in "Go Girls -- Sabrina and Alex Mack", L.A. Weekly, 24 January 1997, p.32, "As is not uncommon in modern juvenile fiction and film -- think [Roald] Dahl, think [Daniel] Pinkwater, if you're lucky enough to know the 'Snarkout Boys' books -- both shows celebrate the marginal, embrace the eccentric and prize the individual. 'I like weird, I love weird, I bask in the glow of weird' exults Sabrina's best friend, Jenny (the delightful Michelle Beaudoin)....

'Sabrina, the Teenage Witch' and 'THE SECRET WORLD OF ALEX MACK' are of course, beneath the [special effects], just shows about rowing up. But that's an Olympian struggle, after all, in which these principles prevail ultimately not by science nor by spells -- most of Sabrina's go wrong by working All Too Well -- but by wit, and thoughtfulness and conscience and compromise." To keep parent hooked, and to allow kids to stay awake until 9:30, the show has roped an amazing range of guest stars. In the first three weeks alone, we've seen Brady Anderson (Baltimore Oriole's star), Coolio, Brian Austin Green, Deborah Harry, Penn & Teller, Sally Jesse Raphael, Randy Travis, Jack Wagner, and Raquel Welch. "Sabrina, the Teenage Witch" is a character from the successful and well established "Archie" comic book franchise. Disclaimer: your humble webmaster's father, Samuel H. Post was the editor of "Archie" for a year or so, and produced a live-action sitcom pilot that was displaced by the animated "Archie" show. This show is trying hard to please, and hoping to become the new "Bewitched!"

Executive producers for the series were Neil Scovell (Season One), Paula Hart (Season One and Two) and Miriam Trogdon (Season Two). Co-executive producers were Norma Safford Vela (Season One) and Holly Hester (Season Two). Co-producers for the series were Jonathan Sherman and Rachel Lipman (Season One). The series was produced by Kenneth R. Koch and the producer for season two was Gary Halvorson. Supervising producers were Connie Honigblum and Renee Phillips. Associate producer was James Hilton, coordinating producer was Ron Martinez, story editors were Nick Bakay, Frank Conniff, Neal Baushell and Sam O'Neal (Season One).

Executive story editors were Nick Bakay and Frank Conniff (Season Two), executive consultants were Barney Cohen, Kathryn Wallack, Michael Silberkleit and Richard Goldwater. One of the few fantasy-comedies to work since Bewitched, Sabrina the Teenage witch chronicles the life of Sabrina, a 16-year old girl (Melissa Joan Hart) who comes to live with her aunts, only to discover she is half mortal and half witch. Of course, her aunts begin teaching her how to use her magic-which comes with more rules and regulations than a teenage girl really wants to learn. When apprentice-level magic mixes with school, boyfriend, and growing up, chaos and comedy ensue. The real scene-stealer, though, is Salem, a warlock who was turned into a cat for 100 years after he tried to take over the world. Voiced purrfectly by Nick Bakay, one of the writers on the series, Salem's animatronic body improves sharply in the second season-his scruffy stuffed body was the show's primary flaw until that point.

Before the series came the film, which also starred Melissa Joan Hart and some of the cast members from the series, but not many. Most of the characters were kept similar when the series was decided upon, except for Harvey, who became less of a dark and Salem, a talking cat, who lost his British accent for a more appropriate American one.

Apart from the first film, which was very much a pilot for the series, a second film entitled Sabrina Goes to Rome was also filmed in 1998, directed by Tibor Takacs, which was only 83 minutes in running length.

Season Four: For the fourth season Sabrina leaves High School and finds herself a job at the coffee shop, which will become the main location. There she would work alongside her good looking boss Josh played by David Lascher. The changes see the departures of Valerie (Lindsay Stone) and Libby (Jenna Leigh Green) and the arrival of novice witch Dreama (China Shavers). The season opener features a guest appearance of pop sensation of the moment, Britney Spears as herself and Shirley Jones is expected to play Sabrina's grandmother later in the run.

Production credits:

Finishing the Hat Productions/Hartbreak Films, Inc./Viacom

Created by Nell Scovell

Based on characters appearing in Archie Comics

Developed by Jonathan Schmock

Executive producers: Nell Scovell(Season One), Paula Hart (Seasons One and Two), Miriam Trogdon (Season Two)

Co-executive producer: Norma Safford Vela (Season One), Holly Hester (Season Two)

Co-producers: Jonathan Sherman, Rachel Lipman (Season One)

Produced by Kenneth R. Koch (Seasons One and Two)

Producer: Gary Halvorson (Season Two)

Supervising producers: Carrie Honigblum & Renee Phillips (Seasons One and Two)

Associate producer: James Hilton (Seasons One and Two)

Coordinating producer: Ron Martinez (Seasons One and Two)

Story editors: Nick Bakay, Frank Conniff, Neal Baushell & Sam O'Neal (Season One)

Executive story editors: Nick Bakay, Frank Conniff (Season Two)

Executive consultants: Barney Cohen & Kathryn Wallack, Michael Silberkleit & Richard Goldwater (Seasons One and Two)

Emmy Award

Outstanding Individual Achievement in Costume Design for a Series - Nominated - "Sabrina, the Teenage Witch" (1996) - Dianne Anthony-Kennedy - For episode "Third Aunt From The Sun". (1997)

WR.

DIR.

EPISODES: 163 YEAR MADE: 1996 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 7

FINISHING THE HAT PROD/HARTBREAK FILMS INC./VIACOM

CREATOR: NELL SCOVELL (based on characters from Archie Comics), JONATHAN SCHMOCK

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPER POWERS

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 25, (2) 26, (3) 26, (4) 23, (5) 22 (6) 22, (7) 22

DATE OF PREMIER: 27/08/1996 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 24/04/2003

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS: SABRINA : THE TEENAGE WITCH, SABRINA GOES TO ROME (1998)

Sabrina Spellman MELISSA JOAN HART, Aunt Hilda Spellman CARALINE RHEA, Aunt Zelda Spellman BETH BRODERICK, Mr. Pool PAUL FIEG (1), Voice of Salem the cat NICK BAKAY, Harvey NATE RICHERT (1-4), Libby JENNE LEIGH GREEN (1-3), Jenny MICHELE BEAUDON (1), Mr. Kraft MARTIN MULL (2-4), Valeria LINDSAY SLOAN (2-3), The Quizmaster ALIMI BALLARD (2-3), Cee Cee MELISSA MURRAY (1), Jill BRIDGET FLANNERY, Mrs. Quick MARY GROSS (2-3), Gordie CURTIS ANDERSON, Roland the Troll PHIL FONDACARO, Cee Cee CEECEE HARSHAW, Jill BRIDGET FLANNERY, Dr. Brickman CARL MICHAEL LINDNER, Justin Thumb (ep. 52+) CORBIN ALLRED, Dreama CHINA SHAVERS (4), Morgon ELISA DONOVAN (5), Roxie King SOLEIL MOON FYRE (5), Miles Goodman TREVOR LISSAUER (5)

Books Based on this series.

Sabrina Goes to Rome	Mel Odom	1999
Sabrina The Teenage Witch - Haunts in the House		1999
Sabrina The Teenage Witch - Salem's Tales 10: Gone Fishin'	John Vornholt	2000
Sabrina The Teenage Witch - Salem's Tales 11: Worth a Shot	Diana G. Gallagher	2000
Sabrina The Teenage Witch - Salem's Tales 12: Rulin' the School	Nancy Krulik	2000
Sabrina The Teenage Witch - Salem's Tales 13: Kitty Cornered	David Cody Weiss & Bobbi JG Weiss	2000
Sabrina The Teenage Witch - Salem's Tales 14: Mascot Mayhem	John Vornholt	2000
Sabrina The Teenage Witch - Salem's Tales 6: Psychic Kitty	Cathy East Dubowski	1999
Sabrina The Teenage Witch - Salem's Tales 7: Cat by the Tail	Sarah J. Verney	1999
Sabrina The Teenage Witch - Salem's Tales 8: Feline Felon	Diana Gallagher	1999
Sabrina The Teenage Witch - Salem's Tales 9: Happy Ever After	Nancy Krulik	2000
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 10 - Lotsa Luck	Diane G. Gallagher	1999
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 11 - Prisoner of Cabin 13	John Vornholt	1999
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 12 - All That Glitters	Ray Garton	1999
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 13 - Go Fetch	David Cody Weiss & Bobbi JG Weiss	1999
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 14 - Spying Eyes	Nancy Holder	1999
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 15 - Harvest Moon	Mel Odom	1999
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 16 - Now You See Her, Now You Don't	Diane G. Gallagher	1999
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 17 - Eight Spells a Week	Various	1999
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 18 - I'll Zap Manhattan	Mel Odom	1999
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 19 - Shamrock Skenanigans	Diana G. Gallagher	2000
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 19 - The Age of Aquariums	David Cody Weiss & Bobbi JG Weiss	1999
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 20 - Prom Times	David Cody Weiss & Bobbi JG Weiss	1999
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 21 - Witchopoly	John Vornholt	1999
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 22 - Bridal Bedlam	Nancy Holder	1999
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 23 - Scarabian Nights	Nancy Holder	1999

Sabrina The Teenage Witch 24 - While the Cats Away	Margot Balrae	1999
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 25 - Halloween Book		1999
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 26 - Fortune Cookie Fox	Cathy East Dubowski	1999
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 27 - Up, Up and Away	Nancy Holder	1999
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 29 - Millennium Madness	David Cody Weiss and Bobbi JG Weiss	2000
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 30 - Switcheroo	Margot Batrae	2000
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 31 - Mummy Dearest	Mel Odom	2000
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 32 - Reality Cheque	Diana G. Gallagher	2000
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 33 - Knock on Wood	John Vornholt	2000
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 34 - It's a Miserable Life	Cathy East Dubowski	2000
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 35 - Pirate Pandemonium	Mel Odom	2001
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 5 - Santa's Little Helper	Cathy East Dubowski	1998
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 6 - Been There, Done That	Joseph Locke	1998
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 7 - All You Need is a Love Spell	Randi Reisfeld	1998
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 8 - Salem on Trial	Bobbi JG & David Cody Weiss	1998
Sabrina The Teenage Witch 9 - It's a Dog's Life	Cathy East Dubowski	1998

RELATED SHOWS:*SECRET WORLD OF ALEX MACK, THE*1 - 1 "PILOT"

Sabrina can't believe her bad luck: not only is she starting out in a new school the day after her 16th birthday, but her aunts inform her that she is now a full-fledged witch with newly awakened magical powers that she must learn to control. At first she thinks they are just trying to take her mind off starting school, but after she reanimates the frog she is supposed to dissect, Sabrina begins to have second thoughts - especially when her aunts present her with a book which contains an animated picture of her father, and reveal that her cat Salem can talk. Her first hesitant attempts at magic backfire when she is taunted into losing her temper with a snotty schoolmate and turns her into a pineapple, she must then appeal to the Council of Witches for permission to turn time back and run the disastrous day over again. She is refused, but Aunt Hilda - who used to date Drell, the head of the Council - marches off to intervene, and Sabrina finds herself re-living the day, this time acing a history test, making a friendly date with shy hunk Harvey, and harmlessly deflecting Libby's malice. Being a teenage witch might not be so bad after all. NOTE: Director Robby Benson has a literal "cameo" role as the talking photograph of Sabrina's father Edward.

Wr w: Nell Scovell s: Barney Cohen & Katheryn Wallack

Dir Robby Benson

1 - 2 BUNDT FRIDAY

Sabrina laces a cake with a truth spell.

Wr Norma Safford Vela

Dir Gary Halvorson

1 - 3 THE TRUE ADVENTURES OF RUDY KAZOOTIE

Sabrina accidentally turns a baby into a grown man. NOTE: According to viewer MF Jabbar this is the first episode in which we hear the trio's surname, "Spellman".

Wr Renee Phillips & Carrie Honigblum

Dir Gail Mancuso

1 - 4 TERRIBLE THINGS

Sabrina makes three wishes come true for her unsuspecting friends: Jenny gets elected student president, Harvey becomes a football star, and Mr. Pool becomes rich (by discovering how to change lead into gold). But she soon learns the truth of her aunts' warnings that one shouldn't meddle with the fate of others: Jenny is crushed when she learns the student president is merely a rubber stamp assistant to the principal, and resigns in favor of Libby, Harvey really can't play football and is injured on the field, and Mr. Pool's success at alchemy turns him into an obnoxious blowhard. Sabrina is faced with the ominous task of explaining her error to the Witches' Council. Meanwhile, Salem must perform community service as part of his sentence.

Wr Jon Sherman

Dir Gary Halvorson

1 - 5 A HALLOWEEN STORY

When she's forced to attend a family affair, Sabrina sends a clone to Harvey's party, where the simple-minded stand-in (who can only speak three sentences) agrees to streak naked in order to liven up the festivities. Meanwhile, the real Sabrina desperately tries to ditch her relatives: an obnoxious socialite and her brat of a daughter, whose hobby is putting people she dislikes into jars. Knowing Harvey plans to dress as James Dean, Sabrina muses about the real star, but when her aunts give her a special Halloween present of a half hour with the dead person of her choice, she opts for her beloved grandmother instead, because "Halloween is really about family."

Wr Nell Scovell

Dir Gary Halvorson

1 - 6 DREAM DATE

Sabrina's bummed when Harvey agrees to go to the dance with Libby, so she decides to skip the event -- until her aunts use some "man dough" to create her perfect date. Actually, he's a little too perfect, Sabrina has to admit to herself that she prefers Harvey, but can only tell him so when she temporarily freezes him. Harvey prefers Sabrina as well, but is too shy to tell her. Meanwhile, Hilda and Zelda's dough dates aren't too well blended either, and Libby fall for the dough boy and is devastated when he disintegrates, thinking he has dumped her.

Wr Rachel Lipman

Dir Gail Mancuso

1 - 7 THIRD AUNT FROM THE SUN

When Sabrina is paid a surprise visit from her eccentric Aunt Vesta, who lives in a fantasy realm called Pleasuredome, Hilda and Zelda agree to let Sabrina travel to the other realm for the weekend. However, when Vesta temptingly suggests Sabrina make a permanent move, Sabrina must ultimately choose between the carefree lifestyle of Pleasuredome or her "normal" life back on earth.

Wr Nick Bakay

Dir Gary Halvorson

1 - 8 MAGIC JOEL

Hoping to catch Harvey's eye, Sabrina becomes an assistant to Joel, a shy teen magician, but the act is more comical than bewitching when the trickster's tricks misfire. To save him from embarrassment, Sabrina makes the magic man temporarily invisible - then discovers that he likes it and doesn't want to reappear, especially when he can scope out the girls' locker room. Meanwhile, Aunt Zelda entertains an old colleague who has been too shy to admit his attraction to her.

Wr Nell Scovell & Norma Safford Vela

Dir Peter Baldwin

1 - 9 GEEK LIKE ME

Sabrina tires of Libby's constant teasing-- which worsens when Sabrina joins a science club-- so she gives the tormentor a taste of the taunting by turning her into a nerd. Meanwhile, Zelda wants Hilda to throw out some very old items (such as a suit of armor and a cannon). Tired of watching Libby treat people badly, Sabrina decides to give Libby a taste of her own medicine by transforming her into a geek. However, when Libby succeeds in turning her fellow geeks against the entire school, Sabrina must find a way to unite her classmates before the plan backfires. And Hilda triumphantly uses her antiques against marauding snowballers.

Wr Rachel Lipman

Dir Gary Halvorson

1 - 10 SWEET AND SOUR VICTORY

Sabrina learns a hard lesson in witchcraft when she tries to make Harvey notice her by using her powers to become an instant kung-fu expert under Mr. Pool's astonished tutelage. She easily defeats the standing champion, but must face the disapproval of her aunts and the jeers of the (magically animated) trophy she won. Meanwhile, Aunt Hilda tries out for first violin in the local symphony the mortal way, but loses to her longtime rival Gustav.

Wr Sam O'Neal & Neal Boushell

Dir Robby Benson

1 - 11 A GIRL AND HER CAT

After Salem stows away in her backpack and gets her thrown out of the local pizzeria, Sabrina washes her hands of the cat, feigning unconcern when the feline fails to return for Christmas dinner with visiting cousin Monty. When she discovers that Salem has in fact been catnapped by a stubborn little boy named Rex, Sabrina launches a desperate plan to rescue him by impersonating Santa Claus.

Wr Frank Conniff

Dir Brian K. Roberts

1 - 12 TRIAL BY FURY

When Sabrina's bitter math teacher Mr. Rothwell singles her out for unfair treatment, and her aunts are unable to make him see reason, the witchly trio decide it's time to teach him a few of their own spellbinding lessons. When he's hauled into traffic court, they replace the human judge with a magical substitute who's been hibernating in a deep freeze "to prevent media bias." Meanwhile, Salem panics when his ex-girlfriend decides to pay him a surprise visit -- especially since she has no idea that he has been turned into a cat.

Wr Nell Scovell & Norma Safford Vela

Dir Peter Baldwin

1 - 13 JENNY'S NON DREAM

When Sabrina is apprehensive about inviting Jenny to spend the night because of her "unique" home life, Hilda and Zelda assure her that she has nothing to worry about. But when Jenny accidentally enters the other realm through the linen closet, Drell cites the rule against mortals entering his world and turns her into a grasshopper, so Sabrina and her aunts must find a way to convince her that the whole experience was just a dream. (They get help from the official Rules Keeper, who cites the rule that "Every rule must have a loophole.")

Wr Jon Sherman

Dir Chuck Vinson

1 - 14 SABRINA, THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

1 - 15 ZELDA AND HILDA: THE TEENAGE YEARS

1 - 16 MARS ATTACKS

1 - 17 FIRST KISS

1 - 18 SWEET CHARITY

1 - 19 CAT SHOWDOWN

Sabrina and Salem decide to enter a cat show because they need the prize money.

1 - 20 METTING DAD'S GIRLFRIEND

Sabrina's fathers visits the Spellman's household with his new girlfriend.

1 - 21 AS WESTBRIDGE TURNS

Sabrina gets more than she bargains for when Hilda offers her a spell to spice up her life.

1 - 22 THE GREAT MISTAKE

Sabrina has a bad day at school, followed by an even worse evening flying on her vacuum cleaner.

1 - 23 THE CRUCIBLE

Sabrina takes part in a re-creation of the Salem witch trials and is accused of sorcery while defending Jenny's honour.

1 - 24 TROLL BRIDE

When Sabrina consults a magic troll to help find her lost homework, he demands her hand in marriage as payment.

2 - 1 SABRINA GETS HER LICENCE (1-2)

Sabrina reaches her 17th Birthday and discovers that there are a series of tests she has to go through in order to obtain her witches license. Since she's pretty stressed out with school work and other things such as usurping Libby as editor of the school newspaper, she doesn't pay much attention to studying for her witches exam. When she fails one of the tests and gets sent to a military-style training camp for witches, she begins to realize that she's out to take the test for the Witches License seriously. The problem is that her time at the camp co-incides with a school dance which she wants to go to with Harvey, and so she escapes from the camp.

2 - 2 DUMMY FOR LOVE

2 - 3 DANTE'S INFERNO

Forced to date other people, Sabrina and Harvey decide to ease the pain by arranging a double date - but they have unforeseen problems with Sabrina's chaperone.

2 - 4 A DOLL'S STORY

When Sabrina babysits her young cousin Amanda, the mischievous little witch casts a spell that turns her teenager minder into a toy doll.

2 - 5 SABRINA, THE TEENAGE BOY

2 - 6 A RIVER OF CANDY CORN RUN THROUGH IT

Sabrina has to back up Valerie's claim that they are having a party to rival Libby's.

2 - 7 INNA-GADDA-SABRINA

2 - 8 WITCH TRASH

Tension mounts when Sabrina's troublesome hillbilly relatives pay a visit.

2 - 9 TO TELL A MORTAL

2 - 10 OH WHAT A TANGLED SPELL SHE WEAVES

Sabrina fails to consider a spell's ruinous impact and is taught a lesson.

2 - 11 SABRINA CLAUS

Sabrina learns the true meaning of Christmas when she had to step into Father Christmas's shoes.

2 - 12 LITTLE BIG KRAFT

Sabrina casts a spell to make Mr. Kraft act like a fun-loving teenager.

2 - 13 FIVE EASY PIECES OF LIBBY

2 - 14 FINGER LICKIN' FLU

Sabrina tries to help Valerie gain self-confidence, while Salem fakes an illness to get attention.

2 - 15 SABRINA AND THE BEANSTALK

2 - 16 THE EQUALIZER

Roland the Troll is still determined to win Sabrina's love, but now he has has the power to punish her for any misuse of her magic.

2 - 17 THE BAND EPISODE

2 - 18 WHEN TEENS COLLIDE

It's not a good day for Sabrina, as molecular instability spells trouble for all witches. For Sabrina, it means she switches personalities with Libbyl.

2 - 19 MY NIGHTMARE, THE CAR

After a speech from the Quizmaster about responsibility, Sabrina buys a car. When she discovers that it has a mind of its own, she finally learns a lesson.

2 - 20 FEAR STRIKES UP A CONVERSATION

2 - 21 QUIZ SHOW

Sabrina must accompany the Quizmaster to the annual Quizmaster/Pupil social, but while she's there, a chance remark gets the Quizmaster fired!

2 - 22 DISNEY WORLD

An impending witch's exam puts Sabrina at sixes and sevens when she brews a potion and accidentally turns her friends into animals!

2 - 23 SABRINA'S CHOICE

Hilda and Zelda decide it's better if they live apart from each other, but Sabrina cannot choose who she prefers.

2 - 24 RUMOR MILL

2 - 25 MOM VS. MAGIC

It's Mother's Day and Sabrina is felling down, realising how much she misses her mom. If she sees her before she gets her witch's licence, her mom will turn to wax!

3 - 1 IT'S A MAD MAD MAD MAD SEASON OPENER

Sabrina finally qualifies for her witch's licence.

3 - 2 BOY, WAS MY FACE RED

Sabrina tries to help Valerie get over an embarrassing moment.

3 - 3 SUSPICIOUS MINDS

Sabrina becomes jealous when Mr. Kraft's assignment calls for students to pair up and pretend to be married.

3 - 4 THE POM POM INCIDENT

Sabrina is irritated when best friend Valerie tries her hand at cheerleading.

3 - 5 PANCAKE MADNESS

Sabrina makes a glutton of herself.

3 - 6 GOOD WILL HAUNTING

Hilda and Zelda reluctantly attend Aunt Beulah's Halloween party.

3 - 7 YOU BET YOUR FAMILY

Salem bets against the other realm's top gambler.

3 - 8 AND THE SABRINA GOES TO. . .

Sabrina's academic efforts go unrecognised.

3 - 9 NOBODY NOSE LIBBY LIKE SABRINA NOSE LIBBY

Sabrina and Salem go on a fantastic voyage after they become miniaturised.

3 - 10 SABRINA AND THE BEAST

Sabrina doesn't feel comfortable with her cousin Susie's appearance - she's totally green and warty. But Susie teaches Sabrina a lesson in beauty.

3 - 11 CHRISTMAS AMNESIA

Sabrina is fed up of the Christmas season and she accidentally erases Christmas celebrations all around the world.

3 - 12 WHOSE SO CALLED LIFE IS IT ANYWAY?

Valerie starts to become a different person - in fact, she's becoming totally like Sabrina! Meanwhile, Hilda and Zelda sells Salem's art to a gallery.

3 - 13 WHAT PRICE HARVEY?

Cousin Zaa Zaa pays a visit to the Spellmans and Sabrina gives Harvey some 'ambition cologne' in the hope that he might change his mind about going to college.

3 - 14 MRS KRAFT

Sabrina and Aunt Hilda conjure up Mr. Kraft's ex-wife.

3 - 15 SABRINA AND THE PIRATES

The Witches Council order that Hilda and Zelda rehabilitate three pirates whom they have accidentally held captive for 100 years. Watch out for N'Sync!

3 - 16 SABRINA THE MATCHMAKER

Cupid forces Sabrina to bring two lovers together or be banished to the other realm. Zelda and Hilda compare dates, and a family friend stops by.

3 - 17 SALEM, THE BOY

Salem convinces Sabrina to turn him into a boy again, so she plants Salem's essence into nerdy Gordie, with disastrous consequences.

3 - 18 SABRINA: THE TEEN-AGE WRITER

Sabrina accidentally writes a story on Aunt Zelda's magic typewriter and all the characters in her story start to come to life.

3 - 19 AND THE SABRINA GOES TO. . .

3 - 20 THE BIG SLEEP

Sabrina tries to protect her aunts from permanent slumber caused after the house is filled with poppies that induce sleep.

3 - 21 SABRINA'S REAL WORLD

Sabrina is mortified when the Witch Channel broadcasts her everyday life on national television.

3 - 22 THE LONG AND WINDING SHORT CUT

Sabrina tries to find out her family secret by using a shortcut. When Zelda finds out she sends her back to the days when there were no shortcuts.

3 - 23 *SILENT MOVIE*3 - 24 THE GOOD, THE BAD AND THE LUAU

Sabrina and her aunts take their sorcery to sunny Hawaii.

4 - SABRINA, THE SANDMAN

Sabrina takes a job as a Sandman, her Aunt's warns her that she shouldn't meddle in other people's dreams as it can influence the course of events in real life.

4 - SABRINA'S PEN PAL

Sabrina gets a letter from her pen pal Martha who asks Sabrina to visit her in the other realm, but Sabrina soon regrets asking Martha back for a visit.

4 - 1 *NO PLACE LIKE HOME*4 - 2 *DREAM A LITTLE DREAMA ME*4 - 3 *JEALOUSY*4 - 4 *LITTLE ORPHAN HILDA*4 - 5 *SPOILED ROTTON*4 - 6 *EPISODE LXXXI: THE PHANTOM MENACE*4 - 8 *AGING, NOT SO GRACEFULLY*4 - 9 *LOVE MEANS NEVER HAVING TO SAY YOUR SORRY*4 - 10 *ICE STATION SABRINA*4 - 11 *SALEM AND JULIETTA*4 - 12 *SABRINA, NIPPING AT YOUR NOSE*4 - 13 *NOW YOU SEE HER, NOW YOU DON'T*4 - 14 *SUPER HERO*4 - 15 *LOVE IN BLOOM*4 - 16 *WELCOME BACK, DUKE*4 - 17 *SALEM'S DAUGHTER*4 - 18 *DREAMA THE MOUSE*4 - 19 *THE WILD, WILD WITCH*4 - 20 *SHE'S BAAAACK!*4 - 21 *THE FOUR FACES OF SABRINA*4 - 22 *THE END OF AN ERA*5 - 1 *EVERY WITCH WAY BUT LOOSE*5 - 2 *DOUBLE TIME*5 - 3 *HEART OF THE MATTER*5 - 4 *YOU CAN'T WIN*5 - 5 *HOUSE OF PI'S*5 - 6 *THE HALLOWEEN SEEN*5 - 7 WELCOME, TRAVELER

5 - 8 SOME OF MY BEST FRIENDS ARE HALF-MORTALS

5 - 9 LOST AT C

SALVAGE 1

CrazyAboutTv.com

The exploits of scrap dealer Harry Broderick and his 'junkyard spaceship' resulted in an oddball series that at times came to resemble a live version of Thunderbirds!

Salvage expert Harry builds his rocket to fly to the Moon to pick up the multi-million dollar pieces left behind there by the Apollo missions. He hires two ex-NASA engineers, Fred and Mack, recruits maverick astronaut Skip Carmichael and shapely rocket fuel expert Melanie Slozar and begins procuring vast amounts of NASA surplus stock - all of which arouses the suspicions of the FBI.

Salvage-I takes off minutes before FBI agents storm the junkyard and, after navigating various dangers, the mission is a success, turning Harry and his cohorts into national heroes.

Therefore, Salvage-I (also known as the Vulture) becomes their own unique mode of transport enabling them to travel to the furthest corners of the world at a moment's notice. In future episodes they help an amnesiac robot (Mermadon), tow an iceberg to a drought-stricken island (Hard Water), stage a space rescue (Golden Orbit), depressurise a volcano (Diamond Volcano), help a stranded Andromedan visitor (The Haunring of Manderly Mansion), rescue a little girl trapped by an earthquake (Shelter Five) and, in the series' opener, encounter a Robinson Crusoe scientist and a giant King-Kong-like apeman (Dark Island). All invariably under the glowering eye of FBI agent Jack Klinger.

'A one-hour adventure series that proves one man's trash is another man's treasure.'
(series publicity)

The series, produced by Harve 'THE SIX MILLION DOLLAR MAN' Bennett and Harns Katleman, was actually cancelled in America after the opening two-parter of the second season, but all the episodes were shown in the UK, between 1979 and 1981. Using a recycled "Vulture" rocket, Harry Broderick quested for gold-plated satellites and collectible moon junk, when he wasn't jetting from the Los Angeles-area "Jettison Scrap & Salvage Co." to suck oil from abandoned wells, pluck diamonds from volcano's, or retrieve missing B-52s from the jungle (and what exactly was the CIA smuggling in those B-52s from South America to South Central L.A. anyway, eh?).

Harry Broderick was a junkman who would salvage anything for a buck. One day he got to think about all the valuable things NASA just left behind on the moon and how much money he could make collecting them and selling them for scrap. To accomplish this he recruited Skip Carmichael, a former astronaut, and Melanie Slozar, a fuel expert. Together they built a fully functional spaceship christened Vulture. to go to the moon and recover the stuff. They had to do this and also avoid Jake Klinger, an FBI agent who suspected them of something but was not sure what.

After the successful moon mission. Broderick and his team hired the Vulture out to undertake missions that typical salvage operations would find a bit difficult. These even included getting hired by NASA to rescue an endangered space mission. Ignoring the scientific inaccuracies the episodes are enjoyable, but after the initial voyage to the moon everything else was a bit anti-climactic.

Salvage 1 did well enough in the ratings during its initial spring tryout for ABC to order more episodes for a second season. However, after the initial two part episode was screened, the show dropped from the schedule. Four additional episodes were completed that were not broadcast in America The second season episodes had an additional regular character: Michelle Ryan as Melanie Foster's daughter.

The supervising producer for the series was Mike Lloyd Ross, executive producers were Harve Bennett and Harris Katleman, producer was Ralph Sariego. The series UK premiere was on the 15th May 1979, almost 5 years since the 1974 premiere in the US. The series was first shown in the Thames region.

Junkman Harry Broderick builds a homemade, 33 foot rocketship to salvage junk from the moon. In later episodes, he uses the spaceship, the Vulture, to explore lost islands, oceans and deserts for salvageable material. Created by: Michael Lloyd Ross; Producer: Ralph Sarchie; Executive Producer: Harve Bennett; Science Advisor: Isaac Asimov; ABC/ Columbia; 60 minutes. As a modern day fantasy, Salvage One tapped into the "boys of all ages" dream of building your own spaceship and traveling to the stars. No government grants, no red tape; just a hammer, nails and imagination.

Harry Broderick, owner of a salvage business, takes his dream into his workshop and comes out with the Vulture, a homemade rocket. In the lighthearted two-hour pilot film, Broderick goes through painstaking scientific research, confronts bothersome legalities and blasts off for the moon. His mission: salvage all of the junk there and return to Earth to hawk his lunar wares. Harry was a one-man billboard for the free enterprise system. In subsequent episodes, Broderick and his two friends, Skip (a former astronaut) and Melanie (a scientist), use the spaceship to salvage things from all over the world. The successful TV movie was, as executive producer Harve Bennett points out, the beginning of the end for the series.

"The pilot film stands with anything that I've ever done," says Bennett. "If you can accept the basic premise, then the actors will win your heart. It was a marvelous two-hour show about a junkman going to the moon and facing the entire establishment. He proved that a man's dream can be attained. Problem was, once you've gone to the moon, what do you do next? Frankly, we couldn't top the pilot. Only the charm of the characters carried the show for two seasons."

The origins of Salvage One began cleanly and simply. "The idea and script were by Michael Lloyd Ross," says Bennett. "My business partner at the time, Harris Katleman, said to me, 'I've got this wonderful, imaginative fellow who has a terrific idea.' I met Mike, and he was a terrific guy with a wonderful script." ABC was excited over the unusual premise and gave the go-ahead for the film. When it went to series, Ralph Sarchie was handed the producing reins. Having already been a production man for The Six Million Dollar Man and The Bionic Woman, Sarchie was ready for the challenge. "Mike Ross, the creator, had done commercials and documentaries, but he had no real industry experience," explains Sarchie. "Since I had a heavy episodic experience, I was put in charge of the show's physical production. Mike was essentially the writer for the show." Ross, who died in the 1980s, is characterized by Sarchie as, "A nice young fellow, but he was a chain smoker. He went through three packs a day and it eventually caught up with him."

Sarchie didn't bother fine-tuning the show's format. "It had been dictated by the pilot. The real challenge was to produce what was on the printed page. In the second season, we did a show about an iceberg being towed from Alaska ["Hard Water"]. It was a grand adventure. I flew up to Alaska for a week with our art director, Jack Wickman. He was about 83 at the time and kept working until his 90s. After scouting locations for Alaska, I looked up stock footage. We also built a 120-foot-long by 20-foot-high glacier." The producer found out, though, that the art department and stock footage made the filming in Alaska unnecessary. "By the time I got all of the stock footage together, we had everything we needed. We hardly used any of our Alaskan footage." The episode also used a great many special effects to create its iceberg illusion. "The way special effects were done back then was so primitive. We had matte paintings and traveling mattes. However, the overall effect turned out very well."

Although Mike Ross wanted science fiction to be secondary to the adventure, one early storyline, never filmed, had the salvagers catapulted back in time to the prehistoric era. The series also allowed actors to play some unusual roles. Portraying a stranded astronaut on a malfunctioning spaceship in the two-part episode Golden Orbit remains a memorable experience for actress Ellen Bry. Her main memory is sweating inside a spacesuit. "It was extremely awkward and bulky," she recalls. "It made me feel fat. It was not my favorite wardrobe. In the episode they used tons and tons of smoke because the spaceship was supposed to have a leaky valve that contained freezing gasses. The funny thing was, although we were supposed to be freezing, the spacesuits were so incredibly hot we were actually dying from the heat."

Bry says humor salvaged the technical challenges. "Joel Higgins [Skip] has a great sense of humor. Between shots we were cracking a lot of jokes. If everybody hadn't been so good-natured, we would have had some very cross people. We spent nine days in that bloody space capsule!" Salvage One was a success in its first year. The series had an unlimited format, a intriguing dose of science fiction (with impressive shots of the spaceship roaring through the skies) and off beat plots that involved the salvagers meeting alien beings and strange creatures. "We also had a good cast," says Harve Bennett. "Anytime you work with Andy Griffith, you're in for a treat. Salvage One lasted as long as it did because of the charm of Andy Griffith and Joel Higgins. Joel's had a couple of series since and they were big successes by him just being there. He has a very unique brand of open charm."

"The cast was one of the most delightful groups of people that I've ever worked with," says Sarchie. Andy, Joel and Trish Stewart were exceptionally nice people." Frequent director Ron Satloff agrees. "It was a good crew, with good actors and good producers. Andy Griffith was a joy to work with." The series entered its ill-fated second year with high hopes and a new cast member. Heather McAdam was now aboard as Melanie's adopted child, Michele. "Heather was added in an effort to draw in a younger audience," notes Sariego. The once fantastic plots gave way to generally more conventional themes, including two segments dealing with wayward horses. The spaceship, for the most part, was left in dry dock. The story changes didn't have a chance to express themselves. After the two-part opener, dealing with the giant iceberg, ABC abruptly pulled the plug. Four episodes were never aired. The network felt the show had run out of steam

"We were pulled off the air because we were pulling a 26 share," says Sariego. "Today a 26 is an enormous hit. ABC wanted a 30 share. We made a total of 20 episodes, so it wasn't as if ABC hadn't given the show a chance. It just didn't produce the numbers the network wanted." "They put us in a strange death slot called Monday Night Football," notes Bennett. "We came on just before the football games. It was a terrible place to be until MacGyver [the Richard Dean Anderson action series] came along years later. That was the right kind of programming, and it lasted seven years in that weird slot."

Time slot aside, Bennett is realistic as to why Salvage One couldn't keep its audience. "We milked the material as much as we could. Mike Ross did his mightiest, as did we all, to keep topping going to the moon. There was the wonderful episode we did about solving California's drought by moving an iceberg from Alaska. That two-parter had the size and the scope of the pilot. The other episodes didn't. But Salvage One was one of my neatest experiences. It was an exercise in whimsy, and whimsy isn't something you see a lot in TV. That was probably the series' ultimate, fatal flaw."

CAST NOTES

Andy Griffith (Harry): Born 1926. He is best known as Andy Taylor in The Andy Griffith Show (1960-68) and as television's Matlock in the 1990s series.

Joel Higgins (Skip): Born 1943. Higgins later starred in the situation comedy Silver Spoons (1982-1986).

Trish Stewart (Melanie): Stewart studied literature and philosophy at the Sorbonne in Paris, where she was also a nightclub singer. Her career took off in 1973 while playing Chris Brooks on daytime's The Young and the Restless. Little has been seen of her since 1980. "She was a very sensitive, exceptionally nice woman," recalls producer Ralph Sariego. "I haven't seen her in years. She may have left the business."

Richard Jaeckel (Klinger): Born 1926. Oscarnominated for his performance in Sometimes a Great Notion (1971), Jaeckel became a regular in the 1980s series Spenser for Hire and the 1990s series Baywatch.

WR. Mike Lloyd Ross, Robert Swanson and Rule Fischmann, Richard Chapman, Ruel Fischmann, Jack Turley.

DIR. Ray Austin, Ron Satloff, Les Green, Ed Abrams, Lee Phillips.

EPISODES: 20 YEAR MADE: 1979 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 2

A BENETT/KATLEMAN PRODUCTION IN ASSOCIATION WITH COLUMBIA PICTURES TELEVISION

CREATOR: MIKE LLOYD ROSS

TYPE OF SHOW: SPACE FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 60 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 14, (2) 6

DATE OF PREMIER: 20/01/1979 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 11/11/1979

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS: SALVAGE 1, SALVAGE 1 : THE GOLDEN ORBIT, SALVAGE 1: HARD WATER

Harry Broderick ANDY GRIFFITH, Melanie Slozar TRISH STEWART, Skip Carmichael, ex-NASA dude JOE HIGGINS, Mack J. JAY SAUNDERS, Klinger (FBI) RICHARD JAECKEL, Lorena JACQUELINE SCOTT, Heather McAdam MICHELLE RYAN (2), Hank Beddoes LEE DE BROUX.

RELATED SHOWS:

SIX MILLION DOLLAR MAN, THE

BIONIC WOMAN, THE

TIME TRAX

1 - 1 SALVAGE (1-2)

Junkyard owner Harry Broderick assembles a team to pull off the ultimate salvage operation. With former astronaut Skip Carmichael and fuel expert Melanie Slozar, Harry builds the spacecraft Vulture in order to bring back the equipment left on the moon during the Apollo moon expeditions.

Wr Mike Lloyd Ross

Dir Lee Philips

1 - 2 DARK ISLAND

On their first authorized salvage job...an aerial survey of Antarctic icebergs...Harry, Melanie and Skip make an unauthorized stop on a supposedly uninhabited island to pick up valuable spider monkeys for a zoo. What they find instead is a lone scientist and a giant man-ape.

Wr Ruel Fischmann

Dir Gene Nelson

1 - 3 SHANGRI-LA LIL

Harry takes his teammates on a sentimental journey to the Burmese jungle to recover the well-preserved B-25 bomber he flew in Doolittle's 1942 raid on Tokyo. They find that the plane is being guarded by an old Japanese soldier who doesn't know the war has ended. He takes the Salvage team as war prisoners.

Wr Mike Lloyd Ross, Judy Burns

Dir Ron Satloff

1 - 4 SHELTER FIVE

While salvaging an abandoned government fallout shelter, an earthquake traps Melanie, Skip, a little girl and her dog. Harry puts together a rescue operation as he races against time to save them.

Wr Gerald K. Siegel

Dir Jim Benson

1 - 5 THE HAUNTING OF MANDERLY MANSION (aka GHOST TRAP)

After Harry purchases a famous haunted mansion with plans to salvage it, strange things begin to happen. The Salvage team discovers it is actually inhabited by a strange alien waiting to be transported home.

Wr Mike Robe

Dir Ray Austin

1 - 6 THE BUGATTI TREASURE

At an auction, Harry outbids an antiquarian for a classic 1934 automobile he has always dreamed of owning. Harry and his crew discover a treasure map hidden in the car. The antiquarian, who is known to traffic in precious objects, doesn't give up quite so easily as the Salvage crew goes treasure hunting.

Wr Ruel Fischmann, Richard Chapman

Dir Edward M. Abroms

1 - 7 THE GOLDEN ORBIT (1-2)

A plan to retrieve a gold-plated satellite before it falls from orbit hits two snags: the Government impounds the Vulture, and NASA offers Skip a long-awaited mission aboard a space station. A dangerous liquid nitrogen leak traps Skip and his fellow NASA crewmembers aboard the ship.

Wr Robert Swanson

Dir Ron Satlof

1 - 8 OPERATION BREAKOUT

An African dictator kidnaps FBI agent Jack Klinger to exchange for a U.S. missile. The U.S. won't respond, but Harry does. The Salvage 1 team comes to the rescue while pretending to offer the dictator the Vulture as a weapons platform.

Wr Gerald Siegal

Dir Gerald Perry Finnerman

1 - 9 MERMADON

Skip and Melanie patch up an almost-human robot with damaged memory circuits, not knowing it came from a secret army project and is programmed to kill.

Wr Mike Lloyd Ross

Dir Ron Satlof

1 - 10 UP, UP AND AWAY

The air-freight delivery of a miniature locomotive involves the Salvage trio with the devious pilot of an undependable aircraft, a terrified fourth passenger and additional cargo of enormous interest to the FBI. The plane crashes in an isolated area and the Salvage team assembles a make-shift balloon in order to reach civilization.

Wr Bob Swanson

Dir Leslie Greene

1 - 11 ENERGY SOLUTION

Melanie develops a possible-and dangerous-solution to the energy crisis: using monohydrazine to blast new oil out of old dried-out wells. The experiment results in a catastrophic underground explosion and fire that must be extinguished.

Wr Ruel Fischmann, Richard Chapman

Dir Ron Satlof

1 - 12 COFEDERATE GOLD

The salvagers hunt for legendary buried treasure at a Confederate paymaster's last stand. But they soon find that everyone wants them out of town and the real "Confederate Gold" is supplied by moonshiners.

Wr Jack Bradford Turley

Dir Ray Austin

2 - 1 HARD WATER (1-2)

The salvage team that went to the moon resurrects an old project: towing an Antarctic iceberg to a drought-stricken island off the California coast. Their plan involves using the Vulture's engines to direct the iceberg's course. The competition is a well-funded and unscrupulous corporation.

Wr Mike Lloyd Ross

Dir Leslie L. Green

2 - 2 ROUND UP

The Salvage team learns that a herd of wild horses are going to be shot as part of a government program to control their numbers. To save them (and make a profit), they round them up to sell them to a local police department as mounted patrols.

Wr Jeri Taylor

Dir Ron Satlof

2 - 3 HARRY'S DOLL

Skip convinces Harry to buy a race horse called "Harry's Doll", based on computer predictions that it will be a winner. When the horse breaks its leg in its first race, a NASA doctor is brought in to meld the bone using laser technology. Against all odds, the horse races again with young Michelle as the jockey, but will it win?

Wr R.K. Pierce

Dir Edward M. Abrams

2 - 4 DRY SPELL

When a severe drought threatens a farm belonging to Harry's aunt and uncle in Arkansas, the Salvage team attempts to harvest rain from the clouds using a very unique method: heating the air above the clouds with flame devices mounted on an old biplane.

Wr Jeri Taylor

Dir Ray Austin

2 - 5 DIAMOND VOLCANO

Harry treats the gang to a trip to Hawaii where they find he has other motives. He has arranged for a mining operation into the side of an extinct volcano to retrieve diamonds formed by extreme geologic forces long ago. However, the volcano proves to be more active than they thought.

Wr Geoffrey Fisher

Dir Dana Elcar

SANCTUARY

Sanctuary, the first series to debut exclusively on the internet and the first to be filmed entirely on Green Screen, stars Amanda Tapping as Dr. Helen Magnus one of the first female doctors in the Royal College during Victorian England. She was engaged to Jack the Ripper, and also has a daughter from him, Ashley. However, Ashley does not yet know that her father is Jack. Dr. Magnus' father started a sanctuary for supernatural creatures, collected from all over the world. In her work with these creatures, Dr. Magnus has received age longevity. While tracking a dangerous young man she crosses paths with a young psychiatric resident Dr. Will Zimmerman who may have what it takes to become her new protégé.

Production

The series is produced by Stage 3 Media[5], based in Vancouver, British Columbia, located in Canada, founded in 2006 . The two hour pilot episode (comprising eight webisodes) was filmed from January 3 to January 31, 2007 at Bridge Studios.

Technology

Sanctuary is filmed almost entirely using the green screen technique. Unlike many other shows, elaborate sets are not built for the scenes to be filmed, they're all created using CGI technology.

Community involvement and interaction

Fans are actively encouraged to be involved in the project in a variety of ways, ranging from joining in discussions in the forums or blog, to creating and sharing their screen captures and artwork, and creating remixes of the videos. The official fan site, SanctuaryFans, lets users communicate, discuss episodes, and share their creations.

Several unedited scenes, where the actors are seen in front of the green screen, are provided with each episode. The intention is to allow the viewers to create their own environments in which to place the actors, and they are encouraged to share their creations via sites like YouTube.

The online media player, designed for streaming the video, is designed with interaction in mind. The player provides the ability to capture and download or email screen captures of the video.

Some form of game based on Sanctuary is planned.

Distribution

Unlike traditional TV series, the primary distribution channel for Sanctuary is the Internet. Episodes are sold directly to viewers on the official website. The episodes, called webisodes, are about 15-20 minutes in duration and are released bi-weekly. The first four of the initial eight webisodes will be available for free viewing in low resolution on YouTube, Google Video, and similar sites, allowing viewers to watch them before deciding if they wish to purchase the higher quality releases.

Although there are no immediate plans, future television broadcasts and DVD releases are a possibility.

Files and formats

The webisodes are available in both Windows Media Video and QuickTime formats, and can be purchased in either enhanced definition (480p) (though marketed as standard definition) or high definition (720p). The original trailers were also released in 1080p, but it is not yet known if or when the series will be released in that format. The audio track in the videos is as of June 2007 only available in stereo. At present, captions and subtitles are not provided by the show's creators, but fans have created and distributed them via the forums.

The video can also be streamed using the online Flash based player, in either 480p or 720p, and the creators have stated their intention to release a standalone player.

SAPPHIRE AND STEEL

As Sapphire tells us in the first episode 'time is a corridor. . . Once in a while Time itself can try to enter into the present - break in - burst through, to take things . . . To take people. It was the job of the 'time busters' to confront whatever malevolent force had broken through and seal up the holes in the time corridor. As a drama it relied almost wholly on the careful build up of suspense rather than the gadget-filled action. Intensely claustrophobic and theatrical in its settings, the atmosphere of menace and unease was often conveyed by sound-effects, lighting and moody music.

The principles in this paranormal crime squad were ex NEW AVENGER Joanna Lumley, dressed in blue as a psychic Sapphire (described by one critic as 'the head girl of the universe'), and David McCallum as the grey suited, broody Steel, a cool and logical character with enormous strength and the power to withstand the flow of time. A couple of other elements appeared from time to time - Silver, a slightly wimpish technical genius, and Lead, a huge , powerful character.

This twice weekly series was created by P.J. Hammond, better known for scripting more routine police shows such as Z-Cars or Hunter's Walk. His premise was that instead of having people going from everyday life into time, he would have time breaking into everyday life. Sapphire and Steel polarised the viewing public and the critics - you were either baffled and bored or baffled and absorbed.

The first series was interrupted by the 1979 ITV technicians strike, when most regions had only just begun the second story, When the strike ended, rather than pick up where it had left off. ITV backtracked and began again at episode 7, the start of the second adventure. None of stories had titles and became known simply as Adventure One, Two etc.

Each episode of Sapphire and Steel began with the following announcement: All irregularities will be handled by the forces controlling each dimension. Transuranic heavy elements may not be used where there is life. Medium atomic weights are available: Gold, Lead, Copper, Jet. Diamond, Radium, Sapphire, Silver and Steel. Sapphire and Steel have been assigned.'

Although their origins were never revealed, Sapphire and Steel were a pair of powerful beings who manifested themselves as human beings They had been sent to Earth to repair rips in the corridor of time and make sure that the forces from the other side remained on the other side. Steel appeared as a man always dressed in grey. Incredibly strong and possessing a highly analytical mind. Steel showed little concern for the humans he had been sent to help.

Sapphire appeared as a beautiful woman always dressed in blue; her powers included being able to detect a break in time and reverse its flow and being able to sense an object's history by holding it. Sapphire also cared about the people she had been sent to help and often took time out to explain to them (and the often confused audience) what was going on. Both Sapphire and Steel possessed the ability to communicate telepathically with each other and members of their own kind, such as Silver. Silver was a technician who was called in to build a device to save the day.

The series was created by P.J. Nammond who also wrote five of the six stories. Each of the stories had a rather claustrophobic feel. This was caused by the fact that the entire story transpired in one location much like a play. Special effects were kept to a minimum, requiring the acting and the writing to keep the audience's attention.

Both of the series stars gained fame in other genre series. David McCallum first appeared as Illya Kuryakin in The Man from U.N.C.L.E. and later in the title role of the somewhat less successful Invisible Man. Although better known today as Patsy in Absolutely Fabulous. Joanna Lumley's first big television role was as Purdey in The New Avengers. NOTE: The number in (#) indicates the number of 30 min parts per serial. Episodes were broadcast on a twice weekly basis, date of broadcast refers to the date for the first part of each serial.

The producer for the series was Shaun O'Riordan, executive producer was David Reid, the designer for the series was Stanley Mills (except Adventure Five: Su Chases), the music was created by Cyril Ornel.

WR. P.J. Hammond.

DIR. Shaun O'Riordan (Adventure One , Adventure Two - Eps. 1-4, 7, 8, Adventure Three and Adventure Five) and David Foster (Adventure Two - Eps. 1-7, Adventure Four and Adventure Six).

EPISODES: 34 YEAR MADE: 1979 COUNTRY: GB SEASONS: 4

AN ATV NETWORK PRODUCTION

CREATOR: P. J. HAMMOND

TYPE OF SHOW: TIME TRAVEL

FORMAT: SERIES-SERIAL

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 14, (2) 10, (3) 6, (4) 4

DATE OF PREMIER: 10/07/1979 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 31/08/1982

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Sapphire JOANNA LUMLEY, Steel DAVID MCCALLUM, Silver DAVID COLLINGS.

RELATED SHOWS:

MAN FROM U.N.C.L.E., THE

NEW AVENGERS, THE

OUTER LIMITS, THE (1995)

INVISIBLE MAN, THE (1975)

1 - 1 ADVENTURE ONE (1-6) (aka ESCAPE THROUGH A CRACK IN TIME)

A mother and father disappear from their home while reading nursery rhymes to their daughter. The son calls the police but it is the mysterious Sapphire and Steel who respond to his call.

Wr P. J. Hammond

Dir Shaun O'Riordan

1 - 2 ADVENTURE TWO (1-8) (aka THE RAILWAY STATION)

Sapphire and Steel investigate events at a disused railway station, where an entity feeds on the resentment of the prematurely deceased.

Wr P. J. Hammond

Dir Shaun O'Riordan, David Foster

2 - 1 ADVENTURE THREE (1-6) (aka REVENGE OF THE CREATURE)

In the 35th-century, a young couple is engaged in an experiment, attempting to live as 20th-century humans.

Wr P. J. Hammond

Dir Shaun O'Riordan

2 - 2 ADVENTURE FOUR (1.4) (aka THE MAN WITHOUT A FACE)

Sapphire and Steel investigate an old junk shop where the original landlord and a tenant have disappeared, and meet children from the Victorian and Edwardian eras.

Wr P. J. Hammond

Dir David Foster

3 - 1 ADVENTURE FIVE (1-6) (aka DR. MCDEE MUST DIE. . .)

Lord Mullrine hosts a theme party to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of his business partnership with the late Dr George McDee.

Wr Don Houghton, Anthony Read

Dir Shaun O'Riordan

4 - 1 ADVENTURE SIX (1-4) (aka THE TRAP)

Sapphire and Steel are called to an abandoned service station where time has stopped.

Wr P. J. Hammond

Dir David Foster

SARAH JANE ADVENTURES, THE

Investigative journalist Sarah Jane Smith and her 13-year-old neighbor Maria form an alliance to combat evil alien forces.

The Sarah Jane Adventures is a forthcoming British children's television series, produced by BBC Wales for CBBC, to star Elisabeth Sladen and created by Russell T. Davies. The programme is a spin-off of the long-running BBC science fiction programme Doctor Who, and will focus on the adventures of investigative journalist Sarah Jane Smith. The series debuted on BBC One with a 60-minute special on 1 January 2007. A full series of ten 30-minute episodes will follow later in the year. The series was made up of five two-part stories. It is set in present-day West London.

In addition to Sladen, the programme stars Yasmin Paige as Sarah Jane's 13-year-old neighbour Maria, Porsha Lawrence Mavour as her friend, Kelsey, and Thomas Knight as a boy named Luke who, after the pilot episode, Sarah Jane has adopted.

The pilot episode featured Samantha Bond as "the scheming Ms Wormwood". Joseph Millson will appear as the father of Maria.

The executive producers for The Sarah Jane Adventures are Davies, Phil Collinson and Julie Gardner. Susie Liggat produced the pilot, but Matthew Bouch will produce the series.

Co-writer Gareth Roberts, writing in Doctor Who Magazine, said, "We're all determined that this will be a big, full-blooded drama; that nobody should ever think of it as 'just' a children's programme."

Background and development

In 2006, Children's BBC expressed an interest in producing a Doctor Who spin-off. Their initial idea was "a drama based on the idea of a young Doctor Who", but Russell T. Davies vetoed this. "Somehow, the idea of a fourteen-year-old Doctor, on Gallifrey inventing sonic screwdrivers, takes away from the mystery and intrigue of who he is and where he came from," said Davies. He suggested instead a series based on the Doctor's former companion Sarah Jane Smith.

The character of Sarah Jane, played by Sladen, appeared in Doctor Who from 1973 to 1976, alongside Jon Pertwee as the Third Doctor, and later Tom Baker as the Fourth Doctor. A pilot for another Doctor Who spin-off series, K-9 and Company, made in 1981, featured Sarah Jane and the robot dog K-9; however, the option to make a series was not picked up. Sarah Jane and K-9 returned to Doctor Who in various media many times over the years, most notably in the 20th anniversary special The Five Doctors (1983) and in the 2006 episode School Reunion.

Sarah Jane is frequently voted the most popular Doctor Who companion by both Doctor Who fans and members of the general public. The prospect of a new television series focusing on Sarah Jane was first rumoured in The Sun in March 2006, prior to the airing of School Reunion; the report at that time suggested that Sarah Jane and K-9 would both appear in the series. The fact that a Sarah Jane series was being developed was first confirmed in the BBC's in-house newsletter, Ariel, in early August 2006. These early rumours were associated with the working title Sarah Jane Investigates.

K-9 will appear in the special, but not in the series. This is due to the concurrent development of K-9 Adventures, which is not associated with the BBC and will not feature any Doctor Who connections beyond K-9 himself.

Doctor Who story connections

Photographs and clips from this programme show that Sarah Jane will have her own sonic screwdriver, disguised as a lipstick. The official website notes that the Doctor left the "sonic lipstick" and a "watch that scans for alien life" for Sarah Jane hidden inside K-9 Mark IV.

In a recent interview, Elisabeth Sladen stated that the series would be set a year and a half after the events of School Reunion.

A clip on the BBC website shows that Sarah reported on various incidents from Doctor Who, including the invasion of the dinosaurs, which was later revealed to be mass hallucinations caused by contaminants in the water supply, a reference to Torchwood character Rhys' explanation for the perceived Cybermen invasion - in the pilot episode, Maria's mother and father both attributed zombie-like behaviour to chemical leaks at the Bubble Shock! factory triggering hallucinations.

Pilot

Sarah Jane Smith in a scene from the pilot episode of The Sarah Jane Adventures The 60-minute pilot, titled Invasion of the Bane, is co-written by Russell T. Davies and Gareth Roberts. The story will focus on Sarah Jane's investigation of a popular and addictive soft drink called Bubbleshock. The Highest Science, a 1993 Doctor Who novel by Roberts, featured an addictive drink named bubbleshake.

WR.

DIR.

EPISODES: 11 YEAR MADE: 2007 COUNTRY: GB SEASONS: 1

A BBC WALES PRODUCTION

CREATOR: RUSSELL T. DAVIES

TYPE OF SHOW: ALIENS ON EARTH FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: Yes B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 11

DATE OF PREMIER: 01/01/2007 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN: Season One : 24/09/2007 - 26/11/2007

FILMS:

Sarah Jane Smith ELISABETH SLADEN, Maria Jackson YASMIN PAIGE, Luke TOMMY KNIGHT, Kelsey PORSHA LAWRENCE MAVOUR.

RELATED SHOWS:

DOCTOR WHO

K9 & COMPANY

TORCHWOOD

1 - 1 INVASION OF THE BANE

"Sarah Jane is fascinated by Bubbleshock, a strangely addictive organic drink that is taking the world by storm. She is almost oblivious to the arrival of her new neighbour, Maria, a young girl starting a new life with her father. Maria becomes intrigued by the strange goings on at Sarah Jane's house but, before she can investigate, she's whisked away by her new friend, Kelsey, to the brightly coloured, but sinister, Bubbleshock factory. As Sarah Jane tries to find out what the mysterious Mrs Wormwood is doing at the factory, Maria and Kelsey embark on a tour which leads them into the path of a monstrous creature and a strange young boy with no name or past. When Sarah Jane and Maria discover the secret ingredient of Bubbleshock, they realise they are the only ones who can stop Mrs Wormwood and her evil plans for the human race.

Wr Russell T. Davies & Gareth Roberts

Dir Colin Teague

1 - 2 REVENGE OF THE SLITHEEN (PART 1 OF 2)

Maria and Luke, along with their new friend Clyde, discover an alien race called the Slitheen have invaded their school... in the form of teachers. They have another plan to take over Earth, but will their plot be foiled by the ever-faithful Sarah Jane Smith?

Wr Gareth Roberts

Dir Alice Troughton

1 - 3 REVENGE OF THE SLITHEEN (PART 2 OF 2)

Maria and Luke, along with their new friend Clyde, discover an alien race called the Slitheen have invaded their school...in the form of teachers. They have another plan to take over Earth, but will their plot be foiled by the ever-faithful Sarah Jane Smith?

Wr Gareth Roberts

Dir Alice Troughton

1 - 4 EYE OF THE GORGON (PART 1 OF 2)

Sarah Jane and Company investigate the mysterious haunting of Lavender Lawns. A nun is stalking the tenants, but is it really something supernatural, or is there something else going on?

Wr Phil Ford

Dir Alice Troughton

1 - 5 EYE OF THE GORGON (PART 2 OF 2)

Is to be set in an old persons home, with a gang of mysterious nuns added into the mix as well.

Wr Phil Ford

Dir Alice Troughton

1 - 6 WARRIORS OF KUDLAK (PART 1 OF 2)

Sarah Jane investigates the case of a missing teenager, and it leads to a laser-tag centre called Combat 3000.

Wr Phil Gladwin

Dir Charles Martin

1 - 7 WARRIORS OF KUDLAK (PART 2 OF 2)

Sarah Jane investigates the case of a missing teenager, and it leads to a laser-tag centre called Combat 3000.

Wr Phil Gladwin

Dir Charles Martin

1 - 8 WHATEVER HAPPENED TO SARAH JANE? (PART 1 OF 2)

When Maria awakes one day to discover that no-one has heard of Sarah Jane or Luke, her world is turned upside down.

Wr Gareth Roberts

Dir Graeme Harper

1 - 9 WHATEVER HAPPENED TO SARAH JANE? (PART 2 OF 2)

When Maria awakes one day to discover that no-one has heard of Sarah Jane or Luke, her world is turned upside down.

Wr Gareth Roberts

Dir Graeme Harper

1 - 10 THE LOST BOY (PART 1 OF 2)

A TV news announcement disrupts a normal day on Bannerman Road, and Sarah Jane discovers that Luke is the exact visual and genetic double of a missing boy called Ashley.

Wr Phil Ford

Dir Charles Martin

1 - 11 THE LOST BOY (PART 2 OF 2)

A TV news announcement disrupts a normal day on Bannerman Road.

Wr Phil Ford

Dir Charles Martin

SATELLITE GAME, THE

WR.DIR.*EPISODES: 38 YEAR MADE: 1990 COUNTRY: GB SEASONS: 1*BSB/BROADSWORDCREATOR: TIM CHILDTYPE OF SHOW: GAME SHOWFORMAT: SERIESLENGTH (MINS): STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: EnglishSEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 38DATE OF PREMIER:*AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE*SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:*FILMS:

Larry the Robot/Host DAVID LEARNER

RELATED SHOWS:CYBERZONE

SAUL OF THE MOLE MEN

On a mission to the Earth's core for the government's STRATA agency, Saul Malone crashes his drill ship and stumbles upon the Mole Men. Baffled by their customs and rituals, Saul runs afoul of the Mole Men by injuring their elder leader, killing their god and spreading disease. But Saul of the Mole Men is about more than just a stranded scientist. It involves political intrigue, time travel, and, of course, vampires.

Saul of the Mole Men is a live action show created by Craig Lewis, writer on The Grim Adventures of Billy and Mandy and Foster's Home for Imaginary Friends. The series first aired February 11, 2007 on Adult Swim. Described as "an ultra-patriotic Land of the Lost set in the center of the Earth," the series is directed by Tom Stern and stars Josh Gardner. Josh Gardner is known for his previous collaboration with Tom Stern, Gerhard Reinke's Wanderlust.

Craig Lewis' primary inspirations behind this comedic homage to 1970s-era Saturday morning live-action television were Sid and Marty Krofft (Land of the Lost), Doctor Who (Tom Baker-era), and the Planet of the Apes franchise.

The STRATA Promo/first episode opening of the program featured brief introductions for the crew of a subterranean drill module. The team, known as STRATA, included Captain Jim J. James, Lieutenant Jen E. James, Robot, Kiko the Mute Wildboy, and the "rest" of the STRATA action team (which included Saul and Don Rogers, a man with a shovel). The main character, Saul, is seen in the background in many of these scenes. Every single one of these characters, with the exception of Saul, Robot, and a revived Johnny Tambourine, is killed within the first few seconds of the first episode.

Advertisements had begun airing on Adult Swim advertising the show as STRATA instead of the original title, making the series appear much like Electric Shock!! Strada 5. More recent advertisements, however, focus more on Saul and reveal the actual title of the show.

The STRATA headquarters building seen on the show is actually the engineering building at University of California, Irvine, with a false background inserted behind it.

The show's theme song is sung by South Park co-creator Trey Parker.

Trivia

Saul Malone is featured in the Foster's Home for Imaginary Friends episode called "Cheese A Go-Go". Frankie is carrying a package addressed to Saul Malone, whose address is 1134 Williams Steet, also a reference to the Williams Street production company which produces Saul of the Mole Men. The STRATA headquarters building seen on the show is actually the engineering building at University of California, Irvine, with a false background inserted behind it.

Series Produced by Matthew Girardi .. Associate producer.

Sandi Yi-Trimble .. Supervising producer.

Series Film Editing by Jeremy Reuben.

Series Production Management - Mike Parente .. Post-production supervisor.

Series Camera and Electrical Department - Earl Woody .. Lighting design consultant.

Series Other crew - Lindsey Fry .. Assistant editor , Jason Gottlieb .. Animator , Brain Yarnell .. Animator , Michael Hackett .. Animator , Rebecca McCabe .. Wardrobe assistant.

Blake Armstrong .. Post-production coordinator.

WR. Hugh Davidson , Josh Gardner , Tom Stern , Craig Lewis

DIR. Tom Stern

EPISODES: 20 YEAR MADE: 2007 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

ADULT SWIM / CARTOON NETWORK

CREATOR: CRAIG LEWIS

TYPE OF SHOW: COMEDY

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 15 STILL IN PRODUCTION: Yes B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 20

DATE OF PREMIER: 11/02/2007

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN: Season 1 : 11/02/2007 - 15/07/2007

FILMS:

Saul Malone JOSH GARDNER, Strata Operator DANA SNYDER, Robot FRANK POTENZA, Clancy JONAH RAY, Fallopia IRINA VORONINA, Clancy JEFF BENNETT, Bertrum HUGH DAVIDSON, Lil Lil Burrows ARTURO GIL, King Mole Man ALEX WINTER, Dr. Lawrence 'Brad' Perkins JONATHAN KIMMEL, Strata Operator GARY ANTHONY WILLIAMS, Female Mole Man PETER CONLON, Lieutenant Jen E. James PAIGE PETERSON.

1 - 1 A NEW FRIEND

The STRATA team, formed to drill to the center of the Earth, runs into trouble on the way and is almost entirely killed by a rock fall. A few survivors are left somewhere deep below - Saul Malone (a geologist), Johnny Tambourine (an early-60s-style rock star), and Robot (a grumpy robot). Saul soon discovers that the caves are inhabited by hairy 'mole men'.

1 - 2 BLOOD IS THICKER THAN WALTER

Saul, having stabbed the king of the Mole Men through the head with the 'STRATA communication antenna', tries to contact STRATA. Bertrum, one of the sons of the king, plots to kill the king so that he can seize the throne. As Saul attempts to operate the antenna, it explodes, leaving his fate unknown.

1 - 3 THE FINGER OF FATE OR THE FATEFULL FINGER

The explosion sends Saul onto a small plateau surrounded by a sea of lava, where he talks to a sentient rock that tells him he is destined to be leader of the Mole Men. The king dies, and since his 'hand of succession' turned into snakes before he appointed an heir, a vote is held. Johnny Tambourine receives the most applause at the election debate, so he is elected king. Saul, in a fit of rage, chokes Johnny, and in response the royal guards throw him into jail.

1 - 4 FUN KING JOHNNY

Saul is jailed for assaulting the new king of the Mole Men, Johnny Tambourine. After a short stint in jail, Saul is given a "fair" trial, which is actually a battle against a giant worm-like monster. If the monster spares Saul, he will be deemed innocent and set free, but if the worm eats him he will be guilty. Bertrum has proposed a plan, Project Thunderhole. In this plan, the Mole Men would dig a huge hole in the ceiling of their caverns to the 'Taboo Zone' (the surface of the Earth). But Clancy, the more conservative brother of Bertrum, mentions during the trial that such a plan is forbidden without the consult of a professional bonded geologist, and though Johnny reveals that Saul is a geologist, he may be too late.. Saul is being chewed in half by the worm.

1 - 5 WORK THE SACK

Bertrum kicks the worm and it releases Saul unharmed. Saul is unsure whether he should approve Project Thunderhole, but upon consulting the sentient rocks atop the lava-surrounded plateau, he does approve it. At a party thrown by Bertrum to celebrate the approval, a burlap sack containing a 'mutant' is dragged out and beaten by the Mole Men for entertainment. Though invited by Bertrum to partake in the beating, Saul is initially reluctant, but eventually begins to pummel the mutant when Bertrum, Robot, a strange god-like radish, and the Mole Men in general encourage him. As Saul beats it unmercifully, the bag comes open and out falls .. a beautiful woman!

1 - 6 MOUSTACHE RIDE

Saul is mesmerized by the beauty of what the Mole Men consider to be an ugly mutant. Saul asks for her name, but she is unable to talk. Robot suggests that some peanut butter will allow her to regain her speech. After sucking on Saul's thumb, covered in STRATA Peanut Butter, she reveals that her name is Fallopia. Johnny Tambourine dismisses her beauty, claiming that he could get any regular Mole Women he wanted, creating no need to go after a mutant. Saul nervously asks Fallopia out on a date, to which Fallopia, who has never been asked out before, gladly accepts. While preparing, Saul fantasizes about the date, imagining giving Fallopia a ride on his motorcycle and moustache. Saul arrives at Fallopia's place, but is greeted by peculiar noises. Saul discovers Johnny engaging in sexual activities with Fallopia and is heartbroken. Meanwhile, other STRATA members devise a plan to rescue the trapped crew, which leads them to Indochina.

1 - 7 WHAT'S HAPPENING DOWN THEIR

Saul is outraged by Fallopia and Johnny and he runs away crying while Project Thunder Hole has just began and is rapidly killing many mole diggers. Clancy is too busy trying to stop Bertrum from continuing Project Thunder Hole to take his son Lil' to Puberty Gulch to catch his testes. So Lil', like Saul, is now depressed. Saul and Lil' meet up and Lil' describes his problem and Saul agrees to take Lil' to Puberty Gulch in order to find a pair of testes. However the hunt for Lil's testicles becomes more difficult when he reveals that if he does not find a pair by the end of the day he will become intersexed and remain a hermaphrodite the rest of his life like his father. Eventually Saul retrieves a pair of testicles for Lil', but soon after, Saul is captured by a strange bat-like creature who works for a villain named the "Birdbat Leader" who has been stalking him throughout the episode with a monitor that seemingly spies on Saul.

1 - 8 IC-CAWWWW!

Saul is tortured by the Birdbat Leader, who demands Saul surrender "the stone", which Saul doesn't realize is his amber stone. Meanwhile, Fallopia, Lil', Johnny, and Robot launch a rescue mission, which ends up to be rather disastourous; Robot ends up collapsing and being left behind and Johnny (who begins having temper tantrums) is left behind when his capsule he is in is used as a bridge to get across a large chasm the team encounter. Lil' and Fallopia finally make it to the Birdbat Leader's lair, where the Birdbats attack the intuders and Lil' suddenly transforms because of his testicles, and pulls out a laser gun and starts shooting all of the attacking Birdbats, and Fallopia starts fighting off more of them, all as Johnny ponders about what a jerk he has been to the rest of the crew. Fallopia finally rescues Saul, who gets up and takes both the gun and the testicles from Lil' to turn him back to normal, as well as the amber stone. As the episode ends, the escaped Birdbat Leader is seen talking to a mysterious green monster-like creature that appears to be his master. Then the Birdbat Leader summons two minions, a revived Captain Jim J. James and Lieutenant Jen E. James, both with large rocks covering their heads and moving around strangely, and orders them to take out Saul.

1 - 9 A HAMMER IN HIS HAND

Saul stumbles upon a tall tale hero. The STRATA operators encounter rough seas.

1 - 10 CHILDREN OF EMBERS' BLAZE

Saul seeks enlightenment as he tries to fit in with a band of free spirits, modern primitives who follow no law but their own.

1 - 11 FASTER ROBOT! UPLOAD! UPLOAD!

The STRATA Operators reflect on their doomed mission.

1 - 12 THE GIRLY BIRD GETS THE RING

Johnny and the Birdbat Princess share a forbidden love. Meanwhile the Mole Men and Birdbats prepare for war.

1 - 13 SAUL COMES BACK

FLOOD! Saul tries to protect his stones as he seeks answers about their true nature.

1 - 14 SPARE ME MY BEETS!

The Mole Men celebrate the "Beet Jubilee". Clancy seeks out Saul and his odd stones desperately.

1 - 15 VILLAGE OF THE DAMNED DOLLS

Evil Johnny Tambourine dolls invade the Mole Man civilization.

1 - 16 POOR CLANCY'S ALMANACK

Clancy tells about his past and reveals the secret of the stones.

1 - 17 SAUL-ID ROCK

Clancy searches for answers, while Saul flirts with death.

1 - 18 THE CALL OF THE ZITHER

Everyone tries to figure out the cause of Saul's odd genital growth.

1 - 19 A ROCK AND A HARD PLACE

Saul is caught between a rock and a hard place.

1 - 20 MASTER OF ROCK, MASTER OF DESTINY

Everyone tries to prevent the world from being destroyed by Otnip and his Asteroids.

SAZER-X

AKA: SUPER STARFLEET SAZER-X

AKA: CHOU SEI KANTAI SAZER-X

The overall plot of the show starts in the year 2500 with an alien race, simply dubbed the "Space Pirates", now ruling over a conquered Earth. The invaders first started their conquest back in 2005, sending a lone warship and a small fleet. After capturing the twelve Cosmo Capsules, the aliens forces dramatically increased their ranks, sending a huge number of Megarion war machines to the Earth's surface. The ensuing war lasted for 500 years, as the Earth's surface become charred from the numerous conflicts while the major cities were quickly decimated, forcing the planet's factors to move toward underwater locations to conceal themselves. Without hope for the present Earth, a final offensive with the planet's resistance's is put into action. Mounting their attack around a small band of soldiers named Sazer-X, it's Earth's hope that they might be able to buy them enough time with a full scale attack so that they can slip into a briefly appearing wormhole. With a bit of luck, the offensive is a success as Sazer-X travels into the space disturbance and is thrust back in time, back to the year 2005 before the "Space Pirates" began their invasion. Joining forces with Ando Takuto from that time period, Sazer-X's mission is to secure the twelve capsules and defend Earth from the Pirates' attacks.

The third show in the "Super Star God" series, Sazer-X began airing late in 2005 on TV Tokyo Channel 12. The television show, with its full Japanese title being Super Star Fleet Sazer-X, was produced under a large production committee that involved Toho, Yomiko, General Entertainment and TV Tokyo. Principal staff from earlier shows in the series once again returned to the fold, such as special effects director Koichi Kawakita, while the main directors for the serial included Ryuichi Ichino, Toshiharu Ikeda, Kenzo Maihara and Okihiko Yoneda, who directed Rebirth of Mothra 3 (1998).

Roughly 12 episodes into the show, a theatrical movie on the series went into release called Sazer-X the Movie: Fight! Soldiers (2005) that also included characters from the earlier Gransazers and Justirisers shows.

Characters

Sazer X

A team assembled in the year 2500AD with the goal of traveling back in time five hundred years and changing history by collecting the twelve Cosmo Capsules. Each member of the party is equipped with a Strage-Ring around their wrist that amplifies their elemental powers, and their own personal Knuckle-Cross, worn on the back of the opposite hand. When the Strage-Ring sparks the Knuckle-Cross, they can equip the high-powered suit of armour stored in their Knuckle-Cross and become Sazer-X. Their transformation call is "X Souchaku!" ("X Equip!")

Lio-Sazer

Takuto Ando, the main character of the series. He dreams of becoming an F1 racer and having his grandfather accept him as a man. Unlike the other members of Sazer X, he is from the present day.

As Lio-Sazer, his element is Fire and his personal weapon is the Lio-Breaker sword. When the Cosmo Capsule "Lio-1" is equipped in Lio-Breaker, he can perform his finishing move, "Lio-Fire".

Eagle-Sazer

Ado, the serious member of the group. He who does not take well to Takuto or any of the current era's Earth populace, accusing them of neglect in allowing themselves to be conquered by the Space Pirates in the past, leading to the eventual destruction of his home planet Biyodo.

As Eagle-Sazer, his element is Wind and his personal weapon is the Eagle-Blaster gun. When the Cosmo Capsule "Eagle-2" is equipped in Eagle-Blaster, he can perform his finishing move, "Eagle Typhoon".

Beetle-Sazer

Kane, the immature member of the group. He usually goofs off when they are not fighting, and is especially fond of sightseeing. However, he is a strong believer that even if he has a relaxed attitude most of the time, he comes through when he is needed the most. He is the oldest of seven siblings, and hails from the planet Rady.

As Beetle-Sazer, his element is Lightning and his personal weapon is the Beet-Hawk axe. When the Cosmo Capsule "Beetle-3" is equipped in Beet-Hawk, he can perform his finishing move, "Beetle Slash".

Shark-Sazer

Commander Shark, the commanding officer of Sazer X. He does not travel back in time with Ado, Kane and Remy straight away, choosing to support the troops in the future before heading back himself. He eventually appears once the Neo Descal fleet arrives in the present day. He is also the adoptive father of Remy. His special Knuckle Cross is named Shark-Knuckle.

It is eventually revealed that he is half Space-Pirate, which means that the success of the Sazer-X mission would cause him to be erased from history, having never been born. Despite this, he is resolute to carry out the mission to completion.

As Shark-Sazer, his element is Water and his personal weapon is the Shark-Bash sword. When the Cosmo Capsule "Shark-4" is equipped in Shark-Bash, he can perform his finishing move, "Shark Crush".

Sazer Support Team

Remy Freede

Takuto's support technician, who usually has to show him how to use the Sazer equipment. Unlike the other members of the support team, she has no Sazer form. She was adopted by Shark and raised from the planet Roue, which was destroyed by the Neo-Descal. However, it is revealed that she actually was born during the 1960s, and was brought to the future by Shark to cure her terminal disease.

Gordo

Ado's usually quiet (and lazy) support tech who possesses immense strength and is more than capable of fighting on his own. In addition, he has a device which enables him to turn into a Sazer Form called "Sazer Gordo, which has partial armor and helmet, and an arm attachment which consists of a mace and axe.

Twin-Sazers Ein & Zwein

Kane's support team; They are a brother/sister team who assist Kane in battle. Like Kane, they too are inexperienced. They are almost always in Sazer Form, which led to speculation that they were robots. However, their true forms are shapeless pink and blue colored blobs which can leave their suits on command. They enjoy taking baths in the Ando household, due to their ship not having a bath.

Patora

Gordo's wife and a master of infiltration. She snuck aboard King Neo-Descal's ship in order to get to the present.

The Three Shogun

A legendary trio of Space Pirates who gained the nickname of "The Three Shogun". The first enemies of Sazer-X, they came to Earth under the command of Captain Barder of the Space Pirate Descal fleet with the intent of taking over the Earth, which had once been populated by their ancestors. In the original timeline, they were successful in gathering the twelve Cosmo Capsules, and their wish to take over the Earth plunged it into eternal darkness. Thus, they are the ancestors of the future Space Pirates that rule over Earth.

Fire Shogun Blaird

The leader of the Three Shogun. He is the strongest fighter of the trio, but he is the least intelligent and tends to become riled up easily. He quickly develops a one-sided rivalry with Takato/Lio-Sazer, vowing to someday "settle the score" and defeat him. After Barder is revealed to be an android, he begins to question the mission of the Three Shogun on Earth. His rivalry with Takuto becomes a grudging friendship, and he joins forces with Sazer-X with the goal of reuniting the Three Shogun and returning to space.

He temporarily joins Jackall against Sazer-X and especially Shark-Sazer. Jackall's eventual death teaches Blaird the folly of a life consumed completely by revenge and combat, and he returns to the side of Sazer-X.

Water Shogun Aqual

The female of the Three Shogun. Aqual likes to believe that she is the most intelligent of the Three Shogun, and while she is quite smart she is also extremely vain and prideful. She is the one most dedicated to the Three Shogun's original mission to take over Earth, mainly because she loves power and praise. As a result, she is the one that formally breaks up the Three Shogun by discarding Blaird from the group when he begins to question their mission.

When Neo Descal appears, they begin by flattering Aqual as their honoured descendant to gain her trust, but this is simply because they cannot kill her without erasing themselves from history. As time goes on, she is relentlessly bullied and humiliated by Neo Descal- especially Grouza- until Aqual snaps and attempts to assassinate both leaders. She fails in killing Grouza, and only manages to wound Garade. She is saved from a vengeful Garade by the arrival of Neo Descal himself.

Aqual soon grows wise to the schemes of the new leaders, and how they have used Cyclead and herself to further their plans. However, she still has to fight against her own pride before she can accept the trust of Sazer-X and finally side with them.

Wind Shogun Cyclead

The inventor of the Three Shogun. Cyclead is clearly the most intelligent of the Three Shogun, and invents many of the devices that they use in their plans. However, he's also the least dedicated to the plan to take over Earth.

After their original pirate ship is destroyed, he constantly advocates abandoning the whole plan and returning to space. However, he is bullied into staying by Aqual's forceful personality. Because of his inventing abilities, he constantly gets all the credit for the plans implemented by Neo Descal, because even if Aqual came up with the plan it is his machines that get the attention.

When Neo Descal himself arrives to the present, Cyclead is brainwashed with a more aggressive, sadistic personality in order to serve as a distraction while Neo Descal's real plan is put into motion. He is eventually rescued by Sazer-X, and sides with them and the other two Shoguns.

Other

Lightning Shogun Thundra

The fourth Shogun. She is the direct descendant of the shoguns that chose to stay on Earth and live underground, as opposed to the shoguns that chose to flee to space. The door to the surface would only open every million years. A legend in her home stated that the first man she met on the surface world would be her destined man.

According to history, that man was supposed to be Fire Shogun Blaird. He would have obtained the last Cosmo Capsule from her, and that would have plunged the world into darkness. However, due to a mixup, the first man she saw was instead Takuto, and she instantly fell in love with him.

Though Takuto played along at first to obtain the Cosmo Capsule, he eventually confesses that he doesn't love her and can't live with her. Though she is heartbroken, Takuto apologizes and convinces her that he only had good intentions for his actions. Her heart is moved, and she gives him the last Cosmo Capsule before returning to the underground world.

Villains

Space Pirate Fleet Descal

Captain Barder

Fire Shogun Blaird

Water Shogun Aqual

Wind Shogun Cyclead

The Space Pirates from the present time, led by Captain Barder.

Barder was eventually revealed to be a robot, and the pirate ship was destroyed in a battle with Sazer-X.

Future Space Pirate Fleet Neo Descal

Garade

Groaza

Jackall

Water Shogun Aqual

Wind Shogun Cyclead

The Space Pirates from the future, who forced their way through the wormhole in order to backup the Three Shogun and ensure that their plan to take over the Earth in the past was successful. Although they had open disdain for the Three Shogun, they could not kill them or they would erase themselves from history.

Garade was the commander of the fleet, and an extremely powerful, though grumpy warrior.

Groaza was the technical genius of the fleet, with intelligence matching that of Cyclead. She is erased from history when the Lightning Shogun Thundra, who she had earlier dismissed as being superfluous to history, returns to the underwater world without falling in love with Blaird. This significant change in history destroys Grouza, for she had been the direct descendant of Blaird and Thundra.

Future Space Pirate King Neo Descal

King Neo Descal

Barreda

The ruler of the Space Pirates in the future, King Neo Descal. After the failures of Garade and Groaza, Neo Descal himself travelled back in time to ensure a future of darkness. Instead of using the Cosmo Capsules to plunge the world into darkness as history dictated, he planned on constructing a massive machine on the Moon called the "Dark-Armor" to accomplish this task.

Barreda was his loyal second-in-command, and was killed by Neo Descal when she was of no further use to him.

Jackall

A mercenary working for Neo Descal as part of an intense campaign to get revenge on Commander Shark. He believes that Shark, his one-time friend, betrayed him by leaving him behind in cold stasis, when in truth Shark had to do that to protect him from Neo Descal's wrath.

He possesses powers similar to that of Sazer-X, and was able to equip a high-powered suit of armor with the transformation call "Souchaku!" ("Equip!"). Despite working as part of Neo-Descal, he frequently disobeys orders in his quest for vengeance.

He keeps losing against Shark but refuses to give up no matter how beaten up he is. He eventually dies from these prolonged injuries right in the middle of a battle, showing Blaird the futility of his strife and the consequences of hatred.

Spoilers end here.

Ryuuseishin

Core-Calibur/Brave

The center of the main three Sazer-X mecha formations. Usually piloted by Takuto, it's a humanoid black-and-white fighter. It is armed with various attacks such as "Core Lasers". When hit by an "Optimize Beam" from one of the three Sazer ships, the Core-Calibur can combine with that ship to form a new, more powerful mecha called a Ryuuseishin (Shooting Star God). The transformation/combination call is "X Formation!"

Ryuuseishin Great-Lio

Formed when the Lio-Carrier ship combines with the Core-Calibur. Piloted by Lio-Sazer and crewed by Capsazer G2 and Remy, Great-Lio specializes in close combat. Its weapon is the Lio-Javelin and its finishing move is the "Howling Crush".

Ryuuseishin Wind-Eagle

Formed when the Adle-Eagle ship combines with the Core-Calibur. Piloted by Eagle-Sazer and crewed by Gordo, Wind-Eagle specializes in fast, ranged attacks. Its weapon is the Eagle-Rifle and its finishing move is "Twister Shoot".

Ryuuseishin Magna-Beet

Formed when the Beet-Vizor ship combines with the Core-Calibur. Piloted by Beetle-Sazer and crewed by Twin-Sazer Ein and Twin-Sazer Zwein, Magna-Beet specializes in powerful long range attacks. Its weapon is the Megaro-Cannon and its finishing move is "Beet Buster".

Ryuuseishin Shark-Leaguer

Shark-Sazer's personal Ryuuseishin. Unlike the other members of Sazer-X, he does not need to combine his ship with a Core-Calibur in order to form a Ryuuseishin. Instead, the Shark Leaguer takes off from Commander Shark's ship, the Shark-Base, and undergoes a simple transformation into battle mode with the command "X Formation!". Its weapon is Sword-Pressure and its finishing move is "Hydro Slash".

Drill-Angler

The personal mecha of Jackall. Like the Shark-Leaguer, it functions both as a ship and as a combat mecha, undergoing a transformation activated by the call "Battle Formation!". Its specialty is close-range combat, and its main weapon is the massive drill mounted on its chest.

Fire Shogun Blaird inherits the machine after Jackall.

WR.

DIR.

EPISODES: 38 YEAR MADE: 2005 COUNTRY: JAP SEASONS: 1

TV TOKYO/ TOHO

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: Japanese

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 38

DATE OF PREMIER: 01/10/2005

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 24/06/2006

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN: Season 1 : 01/10/2005

FILMS: SAZER X THE MOVIE: FIGHT SOLDIERS (2005)

Takuto Ando, Lio-Sazer RYOSUKE TAKAHASHI, Ad, Eagle-Sazer MANABU SHINDO, Kane, Beetle-Sazer RYOSUKE MIURA Remy Freede MAMI MATSUYAMA, Sojiro Ando KATSUMI MUNAKATA, Gordo ROBERT BALDWIN

1 - 1 TALUTO'S ON FIRE!

1 - 2 BURN UP! GREAT-LIO

Wr Tamio Hayasi

Dir Okihiro Yoneda

1 - 3 WHITE WHIRLWIND! WIND-EAGLE

SCARLET STREAK, THE

Based on Leigh Jacobson's story Dangers of the Deep, the action is set in motion by a laser-like red ray invented by Professor Crawford (Smith) and perfected together with his daughter, Mary (Todd). Daugherty plays the reporter whose articles may increase the market value of the contraption. The villain is Monk (Prisco), a foreign agent who kidnaps the professor, his gadget and his daughter, while Daugherty spends his time detecting and escaping until he secures the recovery of all three missing items.

An energetic though conventionally plotted serial made by McRae, the director of the fast-paced adventure film The Mysterious Contragrav (1915). The action is capably conducted by McRae and the picture proved a successful accompaniment to the features released by Universal, which had bought half a dozen or so Pathe serials in 1926 purely for that purpose.

WR.

DIR. Henry McRae.

EPISODES: 10 YEAR MADE: 1926 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

PATHE

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: CRIME

FORMAT: CINEMA SERIAL

LENGTH (MINS): STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: Yes COLOUR: No LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 10

DATE OF PREMIER:

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

JACK DAUGHERTY, LOLA TODD, AL SMITH, ALBERT PRISCO, VIRGINIA AINSWORTH.

SCAVENGERS

Two teams of scavengers must enter a spaceship which is about to be destroyed and recover parts of the spaceship and escape with their lives.

With a set like this show had, they could have set a film on it. Just think how the promo could have gone...

"John Leslie IS the Unconvincing Scottish Commander Bloke. Some Actress IS Random Emotionless Robot #235. THRILL! At the lovely set. GASP! At the games that aren't nearly as good as The Crystal Maze. COLLAPSE WITH LAUGHTER when the second half of the series was demoted on Monday mornings due to lack of interest/ratings."

The thing is though, although the show had its critics it was put together in such a way that if people didn't take it too seriously there was a vaguely interesting show underneath with some good - if flawed - production values. Essentially, it was ITV trying to fill the Gladiators slot during the Summer months. Like Ice Warriors after it though, it didn't really work out.

Two couples attempted to use their bodies and brains in order to scavenge as much salvage (electrical circuitry-type stuff) as possible in an abandoned and dangerous spaceship. Sadly, this being the way that it is, all the interesting and valuable salvage was put in hard to reach places and situations. Cleverly, the series was split into two halves and the winner of each half went to the final to win, erm, a Scav Badge?

A few of the games were quite small-scale affairs, such as one game where you played the Simon follow-the-lights game to win a glass type thing which was hidden inside a machine and the players having to follow the correct colour code to get it out.

Most of the others were thankfully much larger, and involved things like hanging from girders to reach the thermo-stats or something from the pool below, or a giant obstacle race through the ship to reach a certain bit of Scav. There was also an impressive Crusher where various bits of Scav were hidden amongst a metal garbage disposal crusher, which would accidentally turn itself on when it detected Scav Hunters in the area. They had to get out before everything was crushed, not to mention themselves. This sums up the problem with the show - we knew that these people weren't going to get crushed to death on ITV (on Sky maybe, but not ITV), so no matter how nice the illusion was there was no real tension.

Different pieces of scav were worth differing amounts of Scav Points, but the big points were lying in wait in the final bit of the show. Here the players had between five and seven minutes to construct a safe frame to swing across and then in the time remaining get as many barrels, fuel containers and the like across the void to the ship. The catch was that if anyone or any thing wasn't on board the ship before the time ran out (or as the robot would put it, "the spaceship was becoming too unstable, we MUST leave now") then they were left aboard the crumbling ship to be left to the mercy of the evil aliens (of which there were many) and suchlike. Either way, they would score nothing for the whole show. The two top teams in each half battled it out in the semi-final and the winners went through to the grand final, scheduled in the peaktime that is Monday morning 9:25am.

Humour was put in at various points of the show. Or least, it would have been humour if it was actually funny. John Leslie may be a reasonably accomplished presenter, but his acting skills were (by his own admission) gleaned from watching a few videos. They also tried some sort of romantic interest with the unemotional robot. Sadly it wasn't that interesting.

The programme took a big credibility hit in three main areas. Firstly, many of the games had no playalong factor whatsoever. The huge wide shots had to be used to fit in all of the immense set meant we didn't see any reactions on the contestants' faces. And the ridiculous "storyline" (including the most unconvincing aliens you've ever seen) throughout each show was risible.

There was something watchable in the show and to its credit it did have some fans. What it lacked in structure it almost made up for in looking and sounding the part, but as such it became a show which, like Marmite, you either liked or hated.

WR.

DIR.

EPISODES: 6 YEAR MADE: 1994 COUNTRY: GB SEASONS: 0

ITV

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: GAME SHOW

FORMAT: SERIES

3684

SCAVENGERS

LENGTH (MINS): 60 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN:

DATE OF PREMIER:

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Host JOHN LESLIE, Android ANNA GALVIN.

SCIENCE FICTION THEATRE

Science Fiction Theatre was a mid-fifties attempt to create a serious science fiction anthology series, where each of the stories would have a basis in science fact. Each episode would open with series host Truman Bradley explaining some of the modern scientific fact or theory, before going into a drama in which the fact or theory would be played a vital part. The series had a documentary approach to the subject at hand, spending considerable time on scientific explanations throughout the stories, often at the sacrifice of good narrative.

The series also suffers from the fact that when weird and unusual things do occur they are often just talked about and not shown to the viewer. Some of the episodes are a bit dated now since some of the scientific theories involved scientific breakthroughs such as teleconferences and medical breakthroughs such as heart transplants. Other stories dealt with such topics as: UFOs, telepathy, space travel and cryogenics.

Spaceflight, frozen dinosaurs, robots, telepathy, flying saucers ...these and more were the subjects of documentary and pseudodocumentary episodes, of variable authenticity and fictionalisation, partly depending on who was science advisor of the week. At its best, this was very good. At its worst, it was flat-out boring. According to "Future Tense" (p.293) Ivan Tors said in a 1956 interview "One of the traps into which such a series may fall is complete dependence on science for interest. This is avoided at the story conference by excluding the scientists at the start.... after the story is developed it is up to Dr. Maxwell Smith, the program's technical advisor, and the other research people to suggest some scientific fact upon which the story can be hung."

Science Fiction Theatre was produced by ZIV productions, a pioneer in TV syndication. Like several of their earlier programmes, Science Fiction Theatre's first season was filmed in colour. This was due to the anticipated growth in the number of colour TV sets and the belief that reruns of b&w shows would have little value in an all colour world. This did in fact occur, but not as soon as ZIV would have liked. By the start of the second season, Science Fiction Theatre was filmed in the more economical black and white.

This American anthology of 30-minute dramas was the second science fiction series to be picked up by the fledgling ITV service (starting the day after Superman), with ATV in the Midlands giving it a prolonged run in 1956. Based on flights of fact rather than fancy, Science Fiction Theatre was hosted and narrated by newsman Truman Bradley who opened each show with a demonstration of the scientific concept at the heart of that week's story. These included suspended animation, telepathy, transplants, time and space travel and medical advancements. A series aimed at adults, it generally took a positive view of science and avoided twist-in-the-tail endings.

One episode singled out for critical praise was The Strange People at Pecos in which the words 'Martians Go Home!' are scrawled in childish letters on a pavement as a town - adults and children alike - turns against a family who appear to be alien. The story offered no definitive conclusion, but that week's 'scientific concept' was teleportation . . .

Several familiar names, including Vincent Price and Vera Miles, appeared in the series. In one story, The Strange Dr Loren, Edmund Gwenn (Kris Kringle in Miracle on 34th Street) played a beekeeper whose honey had remarkable healing properties. In another, William Lundigan, moonbound star of the 1959 series Men into Space, played a test pilot driven frantic by high-level refusal to believe his story of something flying at three times the speed of sound that nearly collided with his plane. And 'Bones' himself, DeForest Kelley, appeared in an episode, Y.O.R.D., about strange signals from space picked up by a weather station.

In America, the series ran for 78 episodes between 1955 and 1957, in both black and white and colour. Over here, ATV screened 28 of them, all monochrome, on Friday evenings between February and September 1956. (Incidentally, when the run finished the slot was taken over by Sailor of Fortune, an early outing for that well-known space cowboy, Lorne Greene).

Science Fiction Theatre was a mid-fifties attempt to create a serious science fiction anthology series, where each of the stories would have a basis in science fact. Each episode would open with series host Truman Bradley explaining some then-modern scientific fact or theory, before going into a drama in which that fact or theory played a vital part. The series had a documentary approach to the subject at hand, spending considerable time on scientific explanations throughout the stories, often at the sacrifice of good narrative. The series also suffers from the fact that when weird and unusual things do occur they are often just talked about and not shown to the viewer. Some of the episodes are a bit dated now since some of the scientific theories involved scientific breakthroughs such as teleconferences and medical breakthroughs such as heart transplants. Other stories dealt with such topics as: UFOs, Telepathy, space travel and cryogenics.

The first British run for the series was between the 24th February - 14th September 1956 in the ATV Midlands region. The producer for the series was Ivan Tors. The series was seen first in the US on the channel WNBQ on the 9th April 1955.

Science fiction in the early years of tele-vision was almost exclusively dominated by "space opera"-tales of outer space adventure similar in theme and expression to Westerns. Between the years 1949 and 1955, television was busy offering such pulp escapism as Cap-tain Video and His Video Rangers; Rocky Jones, Space Ranger; Space Patrol; Captain Z-RO; Atom Squad; and Rod Brown of the Rocket Rangers, series whose narratives generally eschewed any adherence to scientific accuracy for the sheer joy of "make believe." But in the spring of 1955, Ziv Television premiered an anthology series which based its narratives on scientific speculation, a series whose base was not one of fantasy but one of extrapolation; the stories projected current scientific knowledge into its next logical step. The series, titled simply and appropriately Science Fiction Theatre, sublimated the immediate emotional heart pounding gratification offered by tales of bug--eyed Martians and assorted other hideous apparitions, concentrating instead on extrapolations of existing scientific thought, offering entertaining and remote possibilities.

Viewed in the context of its times, Science Fiction Theatre is easily understandable both in terms of the decision to place it on the air and the semi-documentary approach chosen as its format. The 1950s was a decade of radical advances in science and technology, and the decade's popular artistic expression reflected these radical changes in our way of life. Films, especially, recounted dramas whose milieu had a distinct air of scientific advancement about them. Films like Irving Pichel's Destination Moon (1950) and Byron Haskin's Conquest of Space (1955) depicted rockets and missiles and described man's efforts to reach the stars.

Emerging from this throng of science fiction, however, were three films produced by Ivan Tors which stand out not so much for their science fiction-although they are science fiction in the strictest sense-but for their "sci-ence fact." Curt Siodmak's The Magnetic Monster (1953), Richard Carlson's Riders to the Stars (1954) and Herbert L. Strock's Gog (1954) were dramas rooted heavily in extrapolation.

The Magnetic Monster depicts the search for a dan-gerously unstable new element called "serra-nium." The film uses the then new knowledge of isotopes to speculate on what the next sci-entific revolution may be (the development of a new element, for example) and the problems that may arise from such a leap in scientific experimentation. Gene Plotnik, in the April 16, 1955, issue of Billboard, an amusement industry trade publication, reported that Ziv executives, aware of all the spectacular scientific advances in the news, "began talking about a science fiction series that would be firmly based in actual research." Ziv conceived of a new approach, however, favouring adult themes woven about nature, shooting in actual locations or detailed replications of locations.

It was only natural for film producer Ivan Tors, committed to dramas based in realism, and the executives of the Ziv organisation to pool their talents and deliver Science Fiction Theatre to 1950s audiences. (Tors had wanted to get into television production as early as 1952 when he, actor Richard Carlson and writer-director Curt Siodmak formed A-Men TV Productions. The Magnetic Monster was so successful that Tors tried to launch a series about the fictional government agency the Office of Scientific Investigation featured in the film. For one reason or another the series never made it beyond speculation.)

For Science Fiction Theatre, Tors was given a budget of $1.5 million, which included provisions for location shooting at Air Force bases, universities and private laboratories. Tors then assembled a staff composed mainly of his film crew. Tors' art director, George Van Marter, wrote several of the episodes; Charles Van Enger, who photographed The Magnetic Mon-ster, supervised the first season cinematogra-phy; Herbert L. Strock, director of Tors' Gog and Battle Taxi, directed several episodes and served as supervising editor; and science fiction filmmaker Jack Arnold also directed several episodes, including "No Food for Thought," whose "science" served as rationale for Arnold's story of a giant spider in the feature Tarantula (1955). Maxwell Smith, who served as Tors' scientific advisor for the films, was credited as "Scientific Advisor on Electronics and Radia-tion" and was in charge of a six-man special, research department with a budget of $75,000, charged with the responsibility of checking with universities and government agencies for assurance of scientific accuracy. Among the co-operating agencies were UCLA, USC, the California Institute of Technology, Johns Hopkins University, the Smithsonian Institution, the Los Angeles County Museum, the U.S. Defence Department and the Douglas, Lockheed and North American Aircraft organisation.

Finally a format was conceived. Ray Llewellyn's theme music, a broad, stately fanfare dominated by brass instruments, would play as the camera moved slowly and purposefully around a room filled with scientific instruments. But the room was not the scientific laboratory so prevalent in film history or in the juvenile TV entries which had dominated the first half of the 1950s. Gone now were the glass tubes and flasks of steaming liquids. In their stead was a room filled with some of the most recent technologically advanced devices, some of which were indeed esoteric yet convincing all the same. But more important, this laboratory setting was not the refuge of the mad scientist; it was the study of a gentleman scientist, and after several seconds the camera discovers the scientist, the host and narrator of the series, veteran radio announcer Truman Bradley.

Bradley was the only recurring figure on the program, lending stability to the anthology format chosen. More importantly, his appearance and demeanour lent credibility to the seriousness with which the audience was encouraged to view the program. Trained primarily on radio as an announcer on such programs as Lady Estber Screen Guild Players, The Prudential Family Hour, Suspense, The Red Skelton Show and The Burns and Allen Show, Bradley conveyed sincerity and conviction. Always neatly attired in conservative suit and tie, greying hair neatly brushed into place, Bradley presented the ideal picture of the cultured avuncular host to whom the most serious consideration should be given.

Bradley opened each program by introducing himself and then proposing to show us "something interesting." We would then watch as Bradley demonstrated some scientific principle which formed the basis of the story we were about to see. In this sense Bradley was imitating the role of Don Herbert, host of the popular children's educational scientific program Mr. Wizard, and Lynn Poole, host of the low-budget but critically acclaimed series for adults, Johns Hopkins Science Review.

After the demonstration, Bradley would introduce that week's story. At some point in the introduction or in his wrap-up of the program, Bradley would usually take pains to assure us that the story was just that, a story, that it did not actually happen. But the possibility, he assured us, was there, and that was precisely what Science Fiction Theatre represented—a study in possibilities. Bradley would end each episode by telling us that he'd be back "one week from today with another story from the world of fiction and science." In this sense, he disassociated his series from the traditional television space operas by emphasising that even though his series was called Science Fiction Theatre, the dramas presented were actually rooted in issues of science. The difference is crucial but sometimes misunderstood. Tors' approach to science fiction has sometimes been called timid by those who seem to prefer a more flamboyant approach to the genre. Tors, however, had a different motivation to advance a general public awareness of the inherent drama in science. To Tors' way of thinking, the way to achieve this was to place the heaviest emphasis on the "science" half of the science fiction equation.

Ivan Tors could scarcely have joined with a better partner than Ziv for the development and promotion of a documentary approach to science fiction. In its 12-year history of television production, Ziv's "headline consciousness" (as one observer called the organisations tendency to dramatise topical interest stories) was invariably coupled with a missionary zeal to sell the company product. Bud Rifkin, one-time executive vice-president at Ziv in charge of sales, quoted in Jeff Kisseloff's The Box: An Oral History of Television, 1920-1961, described the Ziv sales force.

We built the best sales organisation in the country We had covered the country with offices in Atlanta, Dallas, Los Angeles, Chicago, New York and so on. Every salesperson would be taught how to sell each of our shows. He had marvellous brochures and flip charts.... If he was sent to a city, he could-n't leave that city until the show was sold. When it came to selling Science Fiction Theatre to local sponsors, Broadcasting-Television magazine (May 9, 1955) laid out in detail what each salesman carried with him into the field:

1. A 12-page (16 to 21 inches) flip-over brochure.
2. Sales talk file, with fact-sheets and other exhibits.
3. Promotion kit containing a three-colour poster, a two-colour streamer, a Science Fiction Theatre ticket, a two-colour newspaper-styled tabloid, letters to dealers signed by Truman Bradley and mailed from Hollywood on-the-air promotion material, newspaper ads and mats, publicity stories and pictures and a publicity handbook explaining how to use contests, special events and civic activities in promoting the program.
4. "Enthuse" kit containing plant posters, letters from the "boss" to his employees' wives, payroll staffers on "your company's new plan to increase business and to help brighten your job future," plans for using the public address system and the switchboard to publicise the program, even a design for a postage meter promotion.
5. Mounted poster
6. Science and science fiction reprints from Colliers, Saturday Evening Post and Life.
7. Audition print of a Science Fiction Theatre program.

8. Film trailers. □
9. Projector and screen. □
10. Ziv-TV instructional book, showing that □Ziv Television Programs is a good firm to do business with.

Ziv sales personnel lined up an impressive list of sponsors, including Olympia Brewing Company, PictSweet Frozen Foods, Arizona Public Service, Tobin Packing Company, Conoco, Continental Oil, Emerson Drug and Serutan.

On April 5, 1955, Ziv premiered Science Fiction Theatre in 125 markets-including all of the top 60 television stations in the nation- with its pilot episode "Beyond," featuring William Lundigan. (Lundigan appeared a year earlier in Tors' film Riders to the Stars, and would appear four years later in yet another Ziv "science fact" series, Men into Space.)

After only eight weeks on the air, Billboard called Science Fiction Theatre "No. 1 among new series," and ranked it as the number one best dramatic series. Billboard reported that the series fell no lower than second place during its entire 78-episode run. Frederick W. Ziv, the chairman and president of the company bearing his name, was enthusiastic about the series. In an interview in the May 9, 1955, issue of Broadcasting-Telecasting, he said he thought he had "achieved a truly adult series in a field that could have been completely juvenile. This achievement has not been easy; it's entailed a laborious load of meticulous research. But it's paid off."

The pilot episode, "Beyond," shot in colour as were all of the 39 first season episodes (presumably for reissue value), is the story of a test pilot, Fred Gunderman, and his strange encounter with a flying saucer. Gunderman bails out of his experimental plane claiming that a flying saucer was about to crash into his craft. Back safely on the ground, Gunderman encounters disbelief of his explanation. Radar had failed to pick up any nearby craft. Eventually, the theory is formulated that Gunderman had been flying high enough and fast enough to have entered a state of weightlessness and that the flying saucer he thought he saw had been nothing more than a fountain pen floating in the weightlessness of the cockpit. A final twist is presented when new computations prove that weightlessness had not taken place; the discovery of a magnetised piece of wreckage from Gunderman's plane leaves the viewer wondering (a popular theory of the time maintained that flying saucers were powered by magnetic energy).

A generally favourable review of Science Fiction Theatre and its opening episode appeared in the April 2, 1955, Billboard; the anonymous reviewer opined that the "camera-work, pacing and editing are excellent. Indeed, Ziv's general production quality seems to become more polished with each new release." A review in the April 13, 1955, Variety was lukewarm to the production values and story development of "Beyond," but praised the Ziv organisation for its "documentary style" and the series' uniqueness.

Science Fiction Theatre presented its share of speculation concerning unidentified flying objects, but it never attempted to offer a definitive answer to that or any other question about any alien life forms. Mysterious and alien forces were often left unseen and just suggested. In the 1955 episode "The Hastings Secret," investigators in the jungles of Peru attempt to learn the whereabouts of a missing scientist. They eventually arrive at the grisly truth that he has been consumed by man-eating termites. We never see the termites feeding on the remains of their victim; such detail is left to the imagination of the viewer. And even when such unusual life forms were shown, they took on a deceptively ordinary and non-threatening appearance. In "Living Lights," the story of a young scientist who replicates life as it must exist on the planet Venus, the creatures were nothing more than small circles of light comparable in appearance to spots of sunlight; they looked as threatening as the focus of any flashlight beam.

In an episode first broadcast to some markets on May 6, 1955, Science Fiction Theatre forcefully demonstrated the ability of the unseen to weave a spell over an audience willing to play along in a game of imagination. "Y.O.R.D." began in typical fashion with Truman Bradley demonstrating with charts and equipment the underpinning theme of that week's program. After a discussion of the human brain and a demonstration of the latest techniques for measuring brain activity, Bradley outlined the nature of that week's inquiry.

And now comes the question: Is the electrical activity of our brains confined within our own nervous systems, within our own bodies? Is it possible that one day we shall master this secret of broadcasting directly from one mind to another? This is the theme of our story, a tale of fiction from the borderlands of science. Fiction today but how about tomorrow?

At a remote experimental weather station situated at the magnetic North Pole, U.S. military personnel had begun to manifest startling psychic abilities: They were able to read each other's thoughts. Investigation leads to the conclusion that an extraterrestrial spacecraft is caught in the magnetic pull of the earth, sending out frantic telepathic pleas for help which are being picked up by the station crew. An intense effort is then launched to communicate with and provide assistance to the alien craft, but apparently to no avail as the spacecraft crashes and all telepathic contact is ended. "Y.O.R.D." concludes with the scientist speculating that perhaps there will be another encounter. Truman Bradley then comes back on the screen to ask us. What do you think? Do you think there will be a next time? Or should I say, do you think there will be a first time? After all, the story you have just seen is fiction; it did not happen. But can it happen? Will it happen? Do you want it to happen?

The last original episode of Science Fiction Theatre aired in most markets on February 8, 1957. The Russians launched Sputnik I into Earth orbit just eight months later, thereby inaugurating what has been called the "space race." By then, however, it was too late to put Science Fiction Theatre back into production to capitalise on the country's suddenly rekindled interest in things scientific and technological. But the Ziv organisation, still as headline conscious as ever, hurried two series into production, The Man and the Challenge (also produced by Ivan Tors) and Men into Space, both designed to benefit from the new public pre-occupation with America's summons into space.

Technical Information

FORMAT: Half hour filmed anthology series depicting extrapolations of present scientific theory and suggesting future possibilities.

BROADCAST HISTORY: Network. Syndicated. Airdates: April 5, 1955 to February 8, 1955. Sponsor: Multiple sponsors. Seasons: 2. Total Episodes: 78 (39 colour, 39 black-and-white).

Signature

OPENING: Each episode opens with the camera prowling about a large scientific study filled with impressive electronic instruments. Ray Llewellyn's theme music, a broad, stately fanfare dominated by brass instruments, plays majestically. Eventually the camera discovers an absorbed Truman Bradley.

BRADLEY: How do you do, ladies and gentlemen; I'm your host, Truman Bradley. Let me show you something interesting.

CLOSING: Bradley: I'll be back one week from today with another story from the world of fiction and science

Production Staff

Production. Ziv Television Programs. Producer: Ivan Tors.

Directors of Photography Robert Hoffman and Curt Fetters

Camera Operator Dick Rawlings

Production Supervisor Barry Cohn

Assistant Directors Ed Stein and Jay Sandrich

Production Co-ordinator Joe Wonder

Sound Mixer Garry Harris

Video Supervisor Donald Tait

Film Editors Thomas Scott and James Dyer

Audio Supervisor Quinn Martin

Sound Editor Monroe Martin

Music Editors Milton Lustig and Haynes Pagel

Special Scientific Effects Harry Redmond, Jr.

Scientific Advisor on Electronics and Radiation Maxwell Smith

Set Decorator Clarence Steenson

Set Designer Robert Kinoshita

Property Master Max Pittman

Wardrobe Alfred Berke

Script Supervisors Larry Lund and Noreen Cantrell.

Science Fiction Theater represented genuine science fiction. Its stories dealt with advancements in science that could affect society. Episodes took the latest scientific advancements and postulated what could happen with the next level of invention. Science Fiction Theater examined advanced pacemakers, mind control and animal behavior; in its wilder moments, it leaped into the world of extra-terrestrials and time travel. Every episode was anchored by the presence of host Truman Bradley, a former news commentator.

"The maturity of Science Fiction Theater's stories was due to Ivan Tors' intelligence," says director Herbert L. Strock of the series' producer. "Ivan wouldn't accept junk such as aliens attacking Earth or giant insects on the loose. He wasn't interested in that. He was interested in weird things that could happen. He wasn't into space battles, and he would turn down any story along those lines."

Writer Lou Huston agrees. "Ivan rejected stories involving horrible-looking aliens for two reasons. One, Ivan looked for the good in nature, including human nature. A more practical reason was that ZIV studios had very low budgets. That made creating believably scary aliens rather risky. Laughter rather than chills could have been the result." Tors was fascinated by true science, and Huston notes, "Ivan's vision of Science Fiction Theater was a show where science played a positive role for humanity. Even in stories in which characters suffered harm, Ivan used the wrap-up narration by Truman Bradley to point to possible progress for scientific research."

Tors had come to America to make his fortune as a movie writer and producer. "Ivan, a Hungarian by birth, served in America's OSS, a forerunner of the CIA," says Huston. "He had a thick Hungarian accent and a pleasant, direct manner of speaking. There was no pretense about him. Ivan died [in 1983] while searching out locations for a new series in South America." Tors, who was married to actress Constance Dowling, was born in Budapest, Hungary, in 1916. He later made a career in the 1960s with family films such as Namu, the Killer Whale (1966) and animal series that included Daktari, Flipper and Gentle Ben.

Herbert Strock, who began his career as a writer and producer, was anxious to do Science Fiction Theater. "I had done the first TV series ever made, in 1946, called The Cases of Eddie Drake. It was a half-hour show that we made for $7500 a piece. That led to work on 1 Led Three Lives, Men of Annapolis and Harbor Command ZIV shows. Science Fiction Theater was the ZIV series I enjoyed the most. It broke new ground in science fiction and it got good reviews. Ivan Tors was always deep into science fiction," continues Strock. "He gave me my first job as director. I co-directed his film Riders to the Stars [1954] and later directed Gog [1954]. I thoroughly enjoyed working for him.

Science Fiction Theater was Ivan's first TV series. He would get his basic ideas from Scientific American magazine. He came up with very intelligent story approaches and then got writers to do the screenplays. There were no scientific advisors on the show. Ivan was the science guide. He knew people involved in science and had friends at universities. He provided all of the science facts for the writers. As directors, once we got the scripts, we didn't double-check the science. We, personally, didn't have to be convinced that the scientific devices in the story could actually work. But I was amazed by the letters we got from people. The show had a very good following. Ivan had that knack of getting into scientific advances on the horizon, including ESP, computers and mind-tapping.

He had a prolific mind and read lots of science magazines. Jon Epstein, our executive story editor, was also constantly attempting to upgrade and improve stories." Science Fiction Theater's science frequently took precedence over the characters and plot. "Sometimes the science took out the drama," admits Strock. "I tried to show things rather than explain them. I demanded intelligent, coherent scripts with speakable dialogue. I didn't want any story holes. Ivan was a nut for getting stock footage and using it to explain scientific principles. The scientific approach worked well, but sometimes Ivan had a bad habit of explaining things with specific details and the story would stop. I had to find ways to make those stories work dramatically. Once in a while, we got a story that was really crappy. I would try to get Ivan to shove off that story and get something else, but it wasn't done. It was always money, money, money. That was ZIV's main concern. Ivan really did his best with Science Fiction Theater and was very easy to work for. He never lost his temper, and everyone on the series had great respect for him."

"He was a kind and honest man with a positive outlook," says Lou Huston. "He took a chance on me, giving me my first TV writing assignment. Ivan gave writers oral directions for their scripts. One day I turned in a second draft and Ivan said, 'You did exactly what I told you to do. But it doesn't work. I was wrong. Will you try it a different way?' I came back with a new version, which he accepted. To my surprise, I received an extra check for my work. He could have taken advantage of me, an inexperienced TV writer, but he didn't. He was one of the finest men I knew." Huston had spotted an announcement in a Hollywood trade paper advertising a new show called Science Fiction Theater. "From the age of ten, I had been interested in science fiction, starting with the Jules Verne novels and later H.G. Wells. I was enthralled with Hugo Gernsback's magazine Science and Invention. I also found his Amazing Stories magazine fascinating."

Like most of the writers on the series, Huston didn't have a strong background in science. "My formal education in science consists of one year in Freshman Biology at the University of Southern California in 1931," he says. "My scientific discipline was illustrated when our class was dissecting frogs and making a drawing of their internal organs as we performed an autopsy. The Professor's assistant passed by, looked at my drawing and said, 'Hmmm ... a hermaphroditic frog!' Not being able to discern much from my specimen, I had copied from the young woman's drawing beside me. I still don't know which of us had the male or female specimen, but my sketch had included the organs of both." When he pitched ideas to Ivan Tors, Huston recalls, "I had picked up enough science through my reading to spark ideas. I didn't know enough to keep me from going astray into the improbabilities. My impression was that while we [the writers] shared an intense interest in science, we didn't have any real scientific background."

Huston notes several of the pluses and minuses of this early anthology series. "Our stories presented examples of science fiction that didn't rely on strange monsters from Zorg or absurd melodrama involving mad scientists. Our characters were everyday people doing everyday things, until something unusual happened. The series helped to give an impression that science wasn't something to be afraid of. It could excite wonder, not terror, and expand the imagination. Truman Bradley would tell viewers, 'What you've just seen is fiction, but research indicates that the basic idea could, in the future, benefit mankind."

As an example of how Tors' stories fit into real life, Huston cites the episode "The Killer Tree." "Ivan Tors wanted to make the point that science can obtain facts that dispel harmful or useless superstition. In this story several people, on different occasions, are found dead under a tree. Conclusion: the tree must have killed them. A scientist couple investigates and learns that carbon dioxide is seeping up from the ground. Anyone sleeping by the tree will fill their lungs with the gas and suffocate. The source is coming from volcanic action unusually near the surface. A year or two after the episode aired, some animals and, I think, several people died near the shores of an African lake. Cause: Deep waters in the lake 'burped' pockets of gas."

Huston felt one weakness of the series was its lack of budget. "The budgets limited the stories from the standpoint of sets and special effects," he says. "ZIV was under a variety of restrictions and limitations. This limited the writers and yet made us focus on characters and motive instead of relying on startling phenomena." More inhibiting were the taboos that applied to all television at the time. "Clergymen, for example, were to appear utterly without sin or suspicion," says Huston. "They were confined to performing marriage ceremonies and consoling the bereaved. If a doctor had to be portrayed as an incompetent or evil, the writer had to insert a 'typical' doctor to show the rotten one was a rarity. Taboos of that era were prudish to the point of absurdity. Unmarried males and females over 12 years old could not be shown in a bedroom together. If they were married, only one could be shown in bed. Bad men and women couldn't be from a specific country, lest the viewers of that descent threaten to boycott the sponsor's product. Also, on-camera TV was not an "equal opportunity employer." While the effect was racist, I believe the intent was merely 'don't make waves.' From a practical viewpoint, the policy, whether spoken or unspoken, was not directed at minorities. It was a means of avoiding trouble from super-sensitive members of all ethnic groups, including WASPs."

Obsequious regard for sponsors led to even more restrictions that Herbert Strock calls "ridiculous. There was a script where a character puts his foot up on a coffee table. We were screamed at: 'You must take the word coffee out because we may have tea sponsors!' We had to cover up the word FORD on the backs of trucks because we might upset a sponsor." Science Fiction Theater was one of the few 1950s programs that was shot in color (during its first year). "The color film was very expensive, and it was a test to our cameraman," says Strock. "We had fringe cameramen. They weren't the best, but Science Fiction Theater gave them an opportunity to become the best. Many left ZIV to go into features, and they did very well. The main thing with the series was budget. You had to shoot fast. You couldn't fool around and waste film. Since I had been a film editor, I was able to shoot much less footage than most other directors. My films always came in or under budget.

Today, some of Science Fiction Theater is pretty corny, but at the time, we tried to make dramatic, well-constructed shows with good actors and interesting themes. It turned out to be a really good series. Getting the actors we wanted was tough because of the salary ZIV paid them. We had a terrible time casting the shows because of money and because many actors didn't do TV at the time. I was thrilled when we'd get people like Gene Lockhart and DeForest Kelley. We also had great character actors like Michael Fox, who was an old standby. Anytime you were in trouble, call Mike! He never blew a line."

Special effects had to be kept at a minimum because of budget. "As a syndicated show, we had a much lower budget than a network show. A little more money was spent on Science Fiction Theater because it was in color and the stars demanded more money. With a science fiction show, it's difficult because you can't just take sets out of storage. You've got to build new things. We had to execute our ideas inexpensively. One time I didn't have the money to build a futuristic set. Jack Collis [the special effects man] went out and got a bunch of cardboard egg crates from a market, stapled them together and sprayed them gold and silver. We displayed colored lights over them, and we had the darndest set you ever saw for $1.98."

On other occasions, however, a set presented unexpected problems. Strock particularly remembers the episode "Dead Reckoning," which concerned the crew of an Air Force plane trapped in a magnetic storm. "I had all of our shots planned out. ... I walked onto the stage that morning and looked at the plane. I said, 'I don't get it. It's the wrong plane.' The story was written for a B-29. We had been sent a B-25. Therefore, the pilot could not talk to the navigator. I stood there with my mouth open. How am I gonna rewrite this? I can't keep having a person run back and forth between the pilot and navigator, relaying messages. So I had to rewrite. I took dialogue away from some actors and gave it to actors who sat closer to the pilot. It was a terrible, terrible chore. We got it done. I said to Ivan Tors, 'You got me the wrong plane!' He said, 'What do I know about a B-25 or B-29!' The segment turned out very well and was very well received."

Sometimes there were problems with . actors-especially the nonhuman variety. In "Conversation with an Ape," a scientist (Hugh Beaumont) finds his experiments on a chimp save his life from a robber. "The chimp was supposed to come down the stairs and give Beaumont a gun so that he could overcome the heavy. The chimp did everything perfectly during rehearsals. But the minute I rolled the camera, she would refuse to give Beaumont the gun. She took off and jumped into the scaffolding. Her trainer and I were beside ourselves because we were short on time and money. The trainer used a BB gun and shot pellets near the chimp, scaring her into coming back down. We rehearsed the scene again, this time with the chimp on a tether. She seemed fine, so we started filming. Off she went again! I was about to rewrite the scene and eliminate her from the action when she finally did it right, much to our collective delight!"

"Living Lights" forced Strock to create an unusual life form. "We had to divide these lights through an arc light on stage. The light had to grow smaller and go underneath doors, and all of this took hours. It was a real tough show to do because of the planning. It worked only because of Maxwell Smith's engineering expertise. Today you could do those kinds of opticals with a computer. Back then, we had to do all of it on stage. I don't recall ever using any special optical effects in any of my episodes."

Lou Huston's scripts included "The Barrier of Silence," about enemy agents using total silence as a psychological weapon. "The story sprang from Ivan Tors' visit to the Bell Telephone Company's laboratory which contains a silent room. It's acoustically dead. The walls reflect no sound. When anyone speaks in the room, their words just fall out of their mouths, lifeless. The room is also heavily insulated from outside vibrations, including traffic and even seismic tremors. Bell's scientists would test new equipment in that room, and Ivan was intrigued by the room's effect on the technicians. They couldn't remain in the room very long without experiencing physical and psychological effects that interfered with their objectivity. In that utter silence they could hear their own digestive processes, their heartbeats and even their own blood flowing!" On this foundation, Tors commissioned Huston to write a script. "We built a story around this phenomenon. Perhaps such silence, prolonged, could speed up a brainwashing process in the hands of enemy scientists. We came up with an electronic device that could emit frequencies that cancel out any other vibration within the beam."

"Project 44" took the series into outer space. "Ivan felt that this tale, of preparing astronauts for the first flight to Mars, might be too farfetched for viewers," recalls Huston. To bring some respectability to the premise, Tors contacted a noted astronomer, Dr. Robert Richardson. He agreed to be interviewed by Truman Bradley and thus give his blessing to the idea of space travel. "Ivan and I hoped Dr. Richardson would be optimistic about when interplanetary voyages could take place. However, when I met him, to write up the brief interview between him and Bradley, he was unyieldingly conservative. He was not about to make any statement that would make him look foolish to his scientific colleagues. He wouldn't predict the remotest possibility of space travel in less than twenty years. So we had to go with that. At least Richardson didn't call our story preposterous! This was two years before Sputnik went beeping over our heads, telling America that the space age had arrived."

"Project 44" also posed a curious challenge. "The story described the problems of a crew on a flight to other planets. Since Ivan and I were ahead of our time in that we were not sexual chauvinists, we included female scientists among our astronauts. We were so occupied with the technical atmosphere inside the ship we gave no thought to the moral atmosphere pervading television at the time. We were putting unmarried men and women in a sealed spaceship together for four years. My God! In TV at the time, you couldn't even show a married couple in the small bed. Ivan understood that either the top studio executive would scream in panic or prudish viewers would write outraged letters to our sponsors. Ivan's solution: 'We'll make one of the technicians a divinity student.' This way, if the hormones got out of hand, the divinity student could perform a marriage ceremony and prevent the astronauts from committing fornication. It must have worked because the TV stations and the studio received no shocked protests!"

Science Fiction Theater wound down after a solid two-year run. Neither Herbert Strock nor Lou Huston felt any sense of a tragic, premature cancellation. The series had apparently run its course. "The ratings were still high," says Strock. "I think they either ran out of material or they only planned to do so many."

"The ratings may not have been high enough to justify the budget," speculates Huston. "But it's also possible Ivan Tors wanted to put his energies into his new series, Sea Hunt. Possibly Ivan had said everything he wanted to say with Science Fiction Theater." At one point, the series was re-named Beyond the Limits for syndication in the 1960s. Much of its "science fiction" has become reality in today's world.

CAST NOTES

Truman Bradley (Host): Born 1905. "Truman came into television from radio. He was an announcer on KMTR in L.A.," says writer Lou Huston. "He was an exceptional announcer: distinctive and yet natural and likeable." "Truman was a great character," says director Herbert Strock. "He could make you believe something that sounded far-fetched. He helped to give Science Fiction Theater authenticity. He was a very bright and charming guy." Bradley died in 1974.

WR. Rick Vollaerts, Doris Gilbert, Stuart Jerome, Arthur Weiss, George Fass, Robert Fresco, Normal Jolley, Lou Houston, George Asness, Ellis Marcus, Meyer Dolinsky and Bill R. Buck.

DIR. Eddie Davis, Paul Fierro, Paul Guilfoyle, Tom Gries, Herbert L. Strock, William Castle, Jack Arnold, Alvin Ganzer, Jack Herzberg, Henry S. Kesler, Leigh Jason and Leslie Goodwins.

EPISODES: 78 YEAR MADE: 1955 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 2

ZIV PRODUCTIONS.

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: ANTHOLOGY

FORMAT: ANTHOLOGY

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: Yes COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 39, (2) 39.

DATE OF PREMIER: 09/04/1955 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 06/04/1957

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Narrator TRUMAN BRADLEY (an actual news commentator), Including VINCENT PRICE, VERA MILES, EDMUND GWENN, WILLIAM LUNDIGAN, DEFOREST KELLY.

1 - 1 BEYOND

A jet pilot claims that his plane almost collided with a UFO. The investigation leads to an unusual conclusion.

Wr Robert Smith, George Van Marter

Dir Herbert L. Strock

1 - 2 TIME IS JUST A PLACE

A man discovers that his next door neighbors are fugitives from the future.

Wr Lee Berg

Dir Jack Arnold

1 - 3 OUT OF NOWHERE

When Dr. Osbourne discovers bats crashing into the sides of buildings, he figures out that a radar disrupting device is being used by enemy agents.

Wr Donn Mullally

Dir Herbert L. Strock

1 - 4 Y.O.R.D.

An alien spaceship in distress is sending an SOS to personnel at an arctic outpost.

Wr George Van Marter, Leon Benson

Dir Leon Benson

1 - 5 STRANGER IN THE DESERT

After meeting a radioactive eagle and a disappearing botanist, two prospectors discover a strange energy source in the desert.

Wr Curtis Kenyon, Robert M. Fresco

Dir Henry S. Kesler

1 - 6 NO FOOD FOR THOUGHT

A synthetic nutrient that prolongs the life span of human beings spawns a deadly virus.

Wr Robert M. Fresco

Dir Jack Arnold

1 - 7 THE BRAIN OF JOHN EMERSON

A policeman after discovering that his mind contains all the knowledge of a dead scientist decides to continue the scientist's work.

Wr Hendrik Vollaerts

Dir Leslie Goodwins

1 - 8 SPIDER INC.

A giant spider fossil leads a geologist to discover a method of synthesizing petroleum.

Wr Jerome Sackheim

Dir Jack Arnold

1 - 9 DEATH AT 2 A.M.

A scientist uses a strength serum to murder a man who is blackmailing him.

Wr Ellis Marcus

Dir Henry Kesler

1 - 10 CONVERSATION WITH AN APE

A telepathic chimp saves a scientist and his wife when they are confronted by a killer.

Wr Hendrik Vollaerts

Dir Herbert L. Strock

1 - 11 MARKED DANGER

A space capsule releases a strange green gas that alters a young woman's metabolism.

Wr Jerome Sackheim, Stuart Jerome

Dir Leigh Jason

1 - 12 HOUR OF NIGHTMARE

A man and woman discover the dead body of an alien in the desert. They also learn that the strange lights in the Mexican Sky are caused by aliens looking for their fallen comrade.

Wr Lou Huston

Dir Henry Kesler

1 - 13 ONE HUNDRED YEARS YOUNG

After a chemist claims to be 200 years old there is an effort to perfect an immortality serum.

Wr Jerome Sackheim

Dir Herbert L. Strock

1 - 14 THE STRANGE DR. LORENZ

A doctor discovers that a honey formula has amazing healing powers.

Wr Norman Jolley

Dir Leigh Jason

1 - 15 THE FROZEN SOUND

After a doctor is charge with spying it is learned that a synthetic crystal can record sounds.

Wr Norman Jolley

Dir Leigh Jason

1 - 16 THE STONES BEGAN TO MOVE

An Egyptologist tries to prove that the pyramids were constructed using levitation.

Wr Doris Gilbert

Dir Lew Landers

1 - 17 THE LOST HEARTBEAT

A scientist needs to construct a mechanical heart or his colleague will die.

Wr Stuart Jerome

Dir Henry Kesler

1 - 18 THE WORLD BELOW

The survivors of a submarine disaster claim that they saw a city on the sea floor. They, however, are ridiculed by investigators.

Wr Lee Hewitt

Dir Herbert L. Strock

1 - 19 BARRIER OF SILENCE

A U.S. scientist working on a top-secret atomic project disappears from a German city. When he reappears two weeks later, he cannot remember anything about what happened to him. He cannot communicate with those around him and appears to be brainwashed.

Wr Lou Huston

Dir Leon Benson

1 - 20 THE NEGATIVE MAN

When electrician Vic Murphy is blasted by the electricity of a computer, his intelligence immediately soars beyond genius level and his senses enable him to hear and see things no man has ever before experienced.

Wr Thelma Schnee

Dir Henry Kesler

1 - 21 DEAD RECKONING

On an emergency flight to the Arctic, a pilot runs into a magnetic storm. The crew is forced to use Earth's magnetic fields to escape.

Wr Gene Levitt

Dir Herbert L. Strock

1 - 22 A VISIT FROM DR. PLINY

A man claiming to be from another planet announces that he has a source of power greater than atomic energy. He claims he has come to share the knowledge, but is regarded as an eccentric crack pot.

Wr Sloan Nibley

Dir Henry Kesler

1 - 23 STRANGE PEOPLE AT PECOS

Radar expert Jeff Jamison believes that his neighbors are spies from outer space. He becomes more convinced when the neighbor's little girl appears to be unable to feel pain.

Wr Doris Gilbert

Dir Eddie Davis

1 - 24 DEAD STORAGE

A baby woolly mammoth is brought to life after being frozen in the Arctic for a half million years. Scientists attempt to discover a means of sustaining its life.

Wr Stuart Jerome

Dir Jack Herzberg

1 - 25 THE HUMAN EQUATION

A doctor discovers that brutal murders are being caused by fumes from a wheat fungus experiment that produces violent side effects.

Wr Norman Jolley

Dir Henry Kesler

1 - 26 TARGET: HURRICANE

When a meteor's plunge into the ocean causes a hurricane that sweeps toward Florida, a meteorologist desperately searches for his son.

Wr Robert Schaefer, Eric Freiwald

Dir Leigh Jason

1 - 27 WATER MAKER

A scientist is comes to the desert laboratory of a dead scientist in order to evaluate the scientist's plans to create water in the arid areas of the earth.

Wr Stuart Jerome

Dir Herbert L. Strock

1 - 28 THE UNEXPLORED

A woman's telepathic abilities lead her and her husband to a missing biologist.

Wr Arthur Weiss

Dir Eddie Davis

1 - 29 THE HASTINGS SECRET

A scientist is killed by deadly termites in the jungles of Peru. A young couple attempt to complete his experiments on termites that can eat through solid rock.

Wr Lee Hewitt

Dir Jack Herzberg

1 - 30 POSTCARD FROM BARCELONA

A dead scientist's papers reveal that he had made a deal with aliens to help mankind's progress in science.

Wr Sloan Nibley

Dir Alvin Ganzer

1 - 31 FRIEND OF A RAVEN

A social worker tries to help a deaf-mute boy who can apparently communicate with animals. When the boy's hearing and speech are restored, he rebels.

Wr Richard Joseph Tuber

Dir Tom Gries

1 - 32 BEYOND RETURN

A serum cures a dying woman but turns her into a killer who can change her physical appearance at will.

Wr Doris Gilbert

Dir Eddie Davis

1 - 33 BEFORE THE BEGINNING

Biophysicist Dr. Ken Donaldson uses a photon gun to cure his wife of a mysterious disease.

Wr Arthur Weiss

Dir Alvin Ganzer

1 - 34 THE LONG DAY

An experimental rocket creates artificial daylight at night and causes trouble for an ex-con.

Wr George Fass, Gertrude Fass

Dir Paul Guilfoyle

1 - 35 PROJECT 44

After a crew is chosen for the first flight to Mars trouble arises when the project is continually sabotaged by an astronaut.

Wr Lou Huston

Dir Tom Gries

1 - 36 ARE WE INVADED?

A student tries to prove that flying saucers exist. His evidence is debunked until he turns up a photograph that could only have been taken from a distant point in the universe.

Wr Norman Jolley

Dir Leon Benson

1 - 37 THE SOUND OF MURDER

Dr. Tom Matthews uses his scientific knowledge to battle a false charge of murder. The problem is the case against Matthews is strong because Matthews's voice has been identified in compromising situations.

Wr Stuart Jerome

Dir Jack Arnold

1 - 38 OPERATION FLYPAPER

A thief uses a sonic paralyzer to freeze people while he steals scientific secrets.

Wr Doris Gilbert

Dir Eddie Davis

1 - 39 THE OTHER SIDE OF THE MOON

A scientist believes that the moon is being used as a nuclear waste dumping ground by creatures from other worlds.

Wr Robert M. Fresco, Richard Joseph Tuber

Dir Eddie Davis

2 - 1 SIGNALS FROM THE HEART

A policeman who wears an electronic heart transmitter has a heart attack and is searched for by doctors and his fellow police.

Wr Stuart Jerome

Dir Herbert L. Strock

2 - 2 THE LONG SLEEP

A scientist is forced to put a dying young boy into deep freeze by a desperate father.

Wr Arthur Weiss

Dir Paul Guilfoyle

2 - 3 WHO IS THIS MAN

A hypnosis experiment goes wrong when a man adopts the personality of a murderer who was hanged in 1882.

Wr Charles B. Smith

Dir William Castle

2 - 4 THE GREEN BOMB

A scientist uses stolen material to build an atomic bomb in his house.

Wr Tom Gries

Dir Tom Gries

2 - 5 WHEN A CAMERA FAILS

A doctor is suspected of insanity when he claims that he can see perfectly preserved images from the past by using special eyeglasses.

Wr Norman Jolley

Dir Herbert L. Strock

2 - 6 BULLET PROOF

A bank robber uses a resistant metal left behind by an alien spaceship as a shield.

Wr Lee Hewitt

Dir Paul Guilfoyle

2 - 7 THE FLICKER

Two police inspectors attempt to prove that a man was killed because of the hypnotic effect caused by a movie screen Flicker.

Wr Lou Huston

Dir Herbert L. Strock

2 - 8 THE UNGUIDED MISSILE

A young woman becomes a national security risk when her ESP abilities pick up top-secret defense formulas.

Wr Arthur Weiss

Dir Herbert L. Strock

2 - 9 THE MIND MACHINE

A dying scientist transmits his knowledge through a brain-transmitting machine.

Wr Ellis Marcus

Dir Paul Guilfoyle

2 - 10 THE MISSING WAVEBAND

A scientist receives scientific information from a prisoner on a totalitarian world millions of light years away.

Wr Lou Huston

Dir Jack Herzberg

2 - 11 THE HUMAN EXPERIMENT

A scientist develops a powerful serum and experiments with it at her country home. The serum transforms her subjects into superbeings who take her prisoner.

Wr Doris Gilbert

Dir Paul Guilfoyle

2 - 12 THE MAN WHO DIDN'T KNOW

After a plane crash, a jet pilot recovers with no memories of his recent past. He is unaware that he has been implanted with an enemy spying device.

Wr Hendrik Vollaerts

Dir Herbert L. Strock

2 - 13 END OF TOMORROW

A scientist defects to the west and claims to have a serum that will destroy all viruses. A doctor, however, believes the serum to be a weapon that is designed to cause mass sterility.

Wr Peter R. Brooke

Dir Herbert L. Strock

2 - 14 THE PHANTOM CAR

A sheriff and a geologist join forces to stop the rampage of a radio controlled car.

Wr Lee Hewitt

Dir Herbert L. Strock

2 - 15 BEAM OF FIRE

After top scientists are killed by an alien beam, a scientist discovers that space scouts are trying to stop mankind's progress into space.

Wr Stuart Jerome

Dir Herbert L. Strock

2 - 16 THE LEGEND OF CRATER MOUNTAIN

A small town Arizona teacher discovers that some of her students have telepathic powers.

Wr Lue Hall, Bill Buchanan

Dir Paul Guilfoyle

2 - 17 LIVING LIGHTS

A scientist creates the atmosphere of Venus in a bell-jar to prove that life can exist there. He, however, doesn't anticipate the strange creatures of floating light that appear in, and then escape from, his bell-jar.

Wr Ellis Marcus

Dir Herbert L. Strock

2 - 18 JUPITRON

A man and woman are transported to a moon of Jupiter where a long missing scientist gives them a formula for creating synthetic food.

Wr Arthur Weiss

Dir Paul Guilfoyle

2 - 19 THE THROWBACK

A biologist believes that he can predict people's lives by studying their ancestors.

Wr Thelma Schnee

Dir Paul Guilfoyle

2 - 20 THE MIRACLE OF DR. DOVE

Investigators try to locate three vanished nutrition experts who may have found the key to longer life.

Wr George Asness

Dir Herbert L. Strock

2 - 21 ONE THOUSAND EYES

After a scientist is murdered and the main suspect dies, a police scientist reconstructs the crime with a revolutionary camera.

Wr Stuart Jerome

Dir Paul Guilfoyle

2 - 22 BRAIN UNLIMITED

While testing an anti-black-out serum a pilot is forced to eject. He later tries to reconstruct the event by speeding up his brain.

Wr Sloan Nibley

Dir Tom Gries

2 - 23 DEATH AT MY FINGERTIPS

A student is framed for murder by someone forging fingerprint evidence. It is later discovered that the real killer knows how to transfer finger prints through plastic skin grafts.

Wr Joel Rapp

Dir Tom Gries

2 - 24 SURVIVAL IN BOX CANYON

A rescue operation tries to locate a pilot whose plane crashed in an atomic bomb testing area.

Wr Lou Huston

Dir Herbert L. Strock

2 - 25 THE VOICE

A ESP skeptic discovers evidence that may save the life of a man sentenced to death. When his plane crashes, the skeptic is forced to use ESP to transmit the crucial evidence to prison authorities.

Wr Doris Gilbert

Dir Paul Guilfoyle

2 - 26 THREE MINUTE MILE

A football star is given a serum that increases his strength.

Wr George Asness

Dir Eddie Davis

2 - 27 THE LAST BARRIER

In a secret test the US launches a rocket to photograph the moon. In order to maintain security the government plants a story that the rocket is actually a flying saucer. Reports come in, however, that lead them to believe that there are flying saucers out there.

Wr Hendrik Vollaerts

Dir Paul Guilfoyle

2 - 28 SIGNALS FROM THE MOON

A diplomat from an eastern country must undergo a delicate operation involving bouncing a video signal off the moon after he is injured by an assassin's bullet.

Wr Tom Gries

Dir Paul Guilfoyle

2 - 29 DR. ROBOT

A digital computing machine designed to translate human languages appears to have been tampered with. An investigation reveals, however, that a staff member has been secretly using the computer to evaluate medical alternatives for his critically ill wife.

Wr Ellis Marcus

Dir Eddie Davis

2 - 30 THE HUMAN CIRCUIT

A rescue operation is mounted when a dancer's clairvoyant vision of a stranded pilot is electronically reproduced.

Wr Joel Rapp

Dir Eddie Davis

2 - 31 THE MIRACLE HOUR

A boy blinded in an automobile accident is treated by a doctor using a new technique involving lights.

Wr Stanley H. Silverman

Dir Paul Guilfoyle

2 - 32 SUN GOLD

Evidence of a 2,000 year old nuclear explosion is uncovered in the Peruvian Andes. Explorers go there and discover the skeleton of a "visitor from the sky" who provided the Incas with incredible secrets including the ability to harness the power of sunlight.

Wr Peter R. Brooke

Dir Eddie Davis

2 - 33 FACSIMILE

Three top scientists fall victim to a mysterious disease. An investigation reveals that the lab they worked in has been picking up and amplifying pain impulses from a hospital across town.

Wr John Bushnell, Stuart Jerome

Dir Eddie Davis

2 - 34 KILLER TREE

A scientist investigates a tree with an ancient reputation of breathing death. He discovers that the area surrounding the tree releases a colorless, odorless, and deadly gas.

Wr Lou Huston

Dir Eddie Davis

2 - 35 GRAVITY ZERO

Two scientists who are about to lose their jobs, astound the world with a process that neutralizes gravity.

Wr Donald Cory

Dir Paul Guilfoyle

2 - 36 THE MAGIC SUITCASE

A young boy and his grandfather find a mysterious suitcase that appears to be a power plant capable of producing an unlimited amount of energy.

Wr Lou Huston

Dir Paul Guilfoyle

2 - 37 BOLT OF LIGHTNING

An investigation reveals that a scientist died and his entire building was destroyed when he tried to build a flying saucer.

Wr Meyer Dolinsky

Dir Eddie Davis

2 - 38 THE STRANGE LODGER

A strange man sends signals to a bright light 1,000 miles away. Before authorities can grab him, he disappears.

Wr Arthur Weiss

Dir Eddie Davis

2 - 39 THE SOUND THAT KILLS

A scientist must clear his name when he is accused of murdering someone with an ultrasonic weapon he has created.

Wr Meyer Dolinsky

Dir Herbert L. Strock

SCREAMING SHADOW,THE

John Rand (Wilson) witnesses a ritual in Africa involving monkey glands which seems to cause longevity. On his return to the Us, he engages in similar experiments. However, Baron Velska of Burgonia (Girard) seems to have embarked on the same course with less moral scruples, using human guinea-pigs. Together with a wealthy journalist, Mary Landers (Gerber), Rand eventually exposes the Baron's evil procedures. Along the way, opposition has to be overcome from a rich backer of the Baron, the millionaire J.W. Russell (Crampton) and the high priestess of the virgins of eternal youth, Nadia (Terry).

In the early 1900s, a number of films had dealt with the fantasy of remaining young or of recovering youth, but in the twenties this wish-fulfilment scenario became a major theme with films such as The Devil to Pay (1920), Black Oxen, Sinners in Silk and Vanity's Price (all 1924), One Way Street (1925) and Midstream (1929). This serial combines the rejuvenation motif with the The Island of Dr Moreau type of medical Science Fiction.

Wilson and Gerber were a very successful team in a number of serials between 1917 (THE MYSTERY SHIP, co-directed by John Ford's brother Francis and with Worne as the villain) and 1926 (OFFICER 444, again directed by Francis Ford). Worne was closely associated with both the Wilson-Gerber team and Francis Ford as well. He had acted in Ford's The Craving (1918) and directed the Wilson-Gerber Science Fiction serial The BRANDED FOUR (1920).

WR. J. Grubb Alexander, Harvey Gates.

DIR. Duke Worne.

EPISODES: 15 YEAR MADE: 1920 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

HALL MARK PICTURES

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: MAD SCIENTISTS

FORMAT: CINEMA SERIAL

LENGTH (MINS): STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: Yes COLOUR: No LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 15

DATE OF PREMIER:

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

BEN WILSON, NEVA GERBER, HOWARD CRAMPTON, WILLIAM DYER, WILLIAM CARROL, FRED GAMBLE, JOSEPH GIRARD, FRANCES TERRY, PANSY PORTER, CALAIRE MILLE, JOSEPH MANNING.

RELATED SHOWS:

MYSTERY SHIP,THE

BRANDED FOUR,THE

OFFICER 444

SEAQUEST DSV (inc. SEAQUEST 2032)

Scheider plays Captain Nathan Bridger, designer, architect and driving force behind the seaQuest's creation, who is lured out of island retirement to take command of the ship he never saw finished.

It's the year 2018, mankind is colonising the oceans and exploiting their resources, establishing small undersea farming, mining and manufacturing communities. But with the new-found potential comes old-fashioned conflict and the United Earth/Oceans Organisation (UEO) assigns the seaQuest DSV to keep the underwater peace and generally patrol the planet's final frontier.

It's a derivative show, with echoes of Star Trek and Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea, but its massive budget - some two million dollars an episode - guarantees a high proportion of hi-tech toys and special effects. The seaQuest set sail with a mixed crew that included Chief Science Officer Dr Kristin Westphalen; second-in-command Jonathan Ford; a rather intense Chief Engineer, Commander Katherine Hitchcock; Chief of Security Manilow Crocker, a crusty, long-term Navy man who fondly remembers 'the old days'; talented Communications Officer Lt O'Neill; Sensor Chief Miguel Ortiz; and Supply Officer Benjamin Krieg.

There's also a 16-year-old computer whiz, Lucas Wolenczak, and Darwin, Bridger's 'pet' dolphin, who roams the vessel via a series of access tubes spanning the craft, and who can understand human speech and reply in kind, thanks to the interpretative powers of the seaQuest computers - brainchild of the wunderkind Lucas. And there's The Professor, a holographic representation of the ship's computer, projected on to a wall of dry ice, who acts as a kind of Obi Wan Kenobi in times of moral conflict.

And during much of the pilot there's plenty of conflict - both on-board and off, as the ship tries to track down a renegade sub that's skippered by seaQuest's disgraced former captain, Marilyn Stark (a very unangelic role for Shelley Hack), who's now roaming the seas in an Ahab-like quest for revenge.

That threat solved, the series settled into a pattern of science fact pushed on into the future -extrapolations of current technology and its potential rather than speculative science fiction, plus a large dose of political, military and environmental issues. Among the guest stars were William Shatner, as an exiled dictator, and Charlton Heston, as an outlaw scientist, while another episode, with overtones of The Abyss, saw the crew have a close encounter with a sunken alien spacecraft. And, as the first season's tour of duty ended, the seaQuest was sacrificed in a drastic but successful bid to halt an oceanic catastrophe that threatened to destroy the world.

That gave the show's producers a chance to reinvent the series - with a new, more intimate vessel and a fresh cast. Returning: Bridger, Ford, Lucas, Darwin and support crew O'Neill and Ortiz. New crew: Dr Wendy Smith, a telepathic biophysicist and psychologist, Lt James Brody, a cocky weapons and tactics expert, and naive young Ensign Henderson. Season Two also introduced acting brothers Michael and Peter DeLuise as Tony Piccolo, a misfit physically altered as the result of a scientific experiment, and ship's janitor Dagwood, a member of a genetically engineered race known as Daggars.

For its third season, seaQuest dropped the DSV (and Roy Scheider, for a while, at least!) and added on ten years for a new title, seaQuest 2032, and a new skipper, former V star Michael Ironside as hardball Captain Oliver Hudson.

Michael Ironside who starred as the captain of Seaquest for season 3 was also in V:THE SERIES. Kathy Evison would also go and guest star in the fantasy/SF show HIGHLANDER in a very powerful role. Stacy Haiduk is also famous for starring in all 4 seasons of SUPERBOY. Don Franklin also starred in the SF shows SEVEN DAYS and ASTEROID. Ted Raimi is perhaps more famous for starring as Joxer in the fantasy shows HERCULES : THE LEGENDARY JOURNEYS and XENA: WARRIOR PRINCESS. Morgan Sheppard also starred in MAX HEADROOM.

seaQuest DSV (so spelled out on screen), re-teaming the successful Jaws(1975) combination of Scheider and Spielberg, was the Spielberg organisation's second attempt to develop a major prime-time SF tv show for NBC, the first being AMAZING STORIES, which lasted only two seasons. Critical consensus is that the producers' ambitions again exceed their grasp.

Initially conceived and promoted as fairly rigorous science fiction with an emphasis on exploration and discovery (Woods Hole oceanographer Dr Robert Ballard was a technical consultant during the first season, delivering educational messages over the closing credits), the series achieved only faltering ratings and was soon embroiled in a nearly constant cycle of retoolings and changes in creative leadership. The direction of the stories changed, increasingly emphasising extra-terrestrial visitations and mystical phenomena, much to the publicly expressed disapproval of Scheider. Several cast members departed or were dismissed after the first season, when it was announced that second-season production would be moved to Florida from Hollywood.

Part of seaQuest DSV's rocky history may arise from its time slot, 8.00pm Sunday, opposite CBS's venerable Murder, She Wrote and ABC's SUPERMAN vehicle LOIS & CLARK. Never a solid ratings success, it showed a further marked decline in ratings towards the end of the second season. Prospects for a third season appear uncertain, and further retooling is likely, but loyal fans have mounted a well-organised lobbying campaign reminiscent of that launched nearly 30 years earlier to preserve the original Star Trek series.

Tie-in material has included a novelisation of the pilot by Diane Duane and Peter Morwood, novels by Matthew J. Costello and David Bischoff, and a short-lived comic book from Nemesis Comics.

There's a line in Jaws when shark-hunting Roy Scheider realises what he's up against. 'We're gonna need a bigger boat,' he says. Well, Steven Spielberg finally found him one in this big-budget undersea adventure series. Spielberg, who directed Scheider in his 1975 film classic, gave his star a 1000ft long super-sub to play with - the seaQuest Deep Submergence Vehicle, a combination military and science research vessel.

SeaQuest DSV aired to a mixed reception in America - one critic dubbed it 'seaQuest PMS' on account of its hostile female characters and another predicted it would be 'Voyage to the Bottom of the Ratings'. As the series surfaced for a second season it promised to take a more hardcore sci-fi tack. The series had a four-month run in Britain, from autumn 1993. It tried to relaunch itself for season 3, but failed to impress, and, after 12 episodes, finally admitted defeat.

Coming from Steven Spielberg's Amblin Entertainment, seaQuest DSV was the 1990's version of the 1960's series Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea. The series was about the world's most advanced submarine which was on a dual mission of protecting the peace and of exploring the final frontier on Earth, the oceans.

seaQuest DSV was set in the year 2019, a time when underwater colonies and research outposts populate the oceans. The world's nations as we know them today no longer exist. A war which occurred sometime in the early part of the century created a new world order, producing a number of international confederations in the place of nations. World peace is now maintained by the United Earth Oceans Organization (or UEO) which has the blessing of all the International Confederations. The crown jewel of the UEO's fleet is the seaQuest. The seaQuest is a 1000 foot long submarine which is the most advanced design in the world. Although it is a military vehicle armed with the latest in hi-tech weaponry, its primary mission is one of exploration of the ocean.

The seaQuest is commanded by Nathan Bridger, Bridger is a scientist who worked on much of the design for the seaQuest. He however left the UEO after the death of his son and became something of a recluse, living on a small island with his friend Darwin, a dolphin. Although he has had military training, Bridger prefers to think of himself as a scientist. He is something of a maverick and has been known to disobey orders if they go against his beliefs. Bridger reluctantly agrees to come back to the UEO and take command of the seaQuest when a former student of his begins a series of attacks with a pirate submarine.

Other crew members during the first season are: Comdr. Jonathan Ford. seaQuest's first officer, Ford was to have been the ship's Captain until circumstances forced Bridger to be coaxed out of retirement. Dr. Kristen Westphalen who is the ship's doctor and head of the scientific team on the ship. A friendship formed between her and Bridger which may have eventually led to romance had she not left the ship at the end of the first season. Lt. Commander Katherine Hitchcock, the ship's second officer, Hitchcock is the ex-wife of the seaQuest's morale officer. Lt. Ben Krieg, and the pair often find it hard to be working together. In addition to being the ship's morale officer, Krieg also always seems to have some scheme in motion to make money. Not all the time staying within regulations, Lucas Wolenczak. a teenage techno-wizard.

As a computer genius Lucas often ends up saving the day, luckily for the rest of the crew there are some things that Lucas knows nothing about which gives them a chance to do something. One of the first things Lucas was able to do was create a device allowing people to talk to Darwin, the dolphin. More or less abandoned by his parents. Lucas has in many respects become the adopted son of Bridger, whose own son died. Lucas quickly became one of the series' most popular characters and was given a more prominent role during the series' second season. Chief Crocker is the seaQuest's head of security and an old friend of Bridger's. Lt. Tim O'Neill is the seaQuest's communications officer who is fluent in many languages. Miguel Ortiz fulfils the role of the seaQuest's sensor chief.

At the end of the first season, Bridger was forced to destroy the seaQuest in order to save the world. A new seaQuest is built to start off the second season. The new seaQuest gets a some new crew members to replace some old ones who do not return. The fact that the series moved its production from California to Florida may have influenced some of the cast members who did not want to relocate. The final episode of the first season had many members of the seaQuest crew receive offers of better jobs elsewhere and it was left undecided at that time whether they would take those offers.

The new members of the seaQuest crew are on average younger than those they are replacing. Many of them also have some weird or unusual ability that sets them apart from other people.

New crew members are: Dr. Wendy Smith, a biophysicist and psychologist: Dr. Smith is a psychic who has ESP. Tony Piccolo is a misfit and troublemaker. In order to get out of the stockade. Piccolo allowed himself to have an experimental operation performed on himself which gave him gills and the ability to breathe underwater. Dagwood. the ship's janitor is a Dagger. Daggers are genetically engineered people, who were designed to fight in the war. Dagwood possesses great strength and the ability to survive in conditions which would kill a normal person, he also is a bit on the slow and naive side. Lt James Brody, a cocky weapons expert who had been assigned to the Dagger prison. Ensign Lonnie Henderson, a rookie whose first assignment is on the seaQuest.

In addition to the cast change, the quality of the episodes during the second season also changed. Not for the better. Although the first season had its faults, most of the stories at least attempted to be series character driven stories. During the second season the strong science fiction element was brought in. Mad scientists and monsters became the norm. Giant crocodiles, man eating plants and the Roman god of the sea Neptune all threatened the seaQuest during its second season. This downfall in quality however may be a pitfall of the format. one which Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea faced almost 30 years earlier. It soon becomes hard to find new and interesting science fiction stories on board a without soon really stretching the bounds of believability.

The third and final season of the series brought about even more changes in the series, which was renamed seaQuest 2032. The second season ended with the seaQuest being left on an alien world in the midst of a war. When the third season started ten years had passed on Earth and the ship and most of its crew (some had been killed) found themselves back on Earth, with only a few weeks having passed for them. The world had changed while they were gone. The UEO was now in a state of cold war with the Macronesian republic. Bridger decided to retire from active duty, although he would sporadically appear during the season. The seaQuest was given a new Captain. Captain Oliver Stone. Stone was a military man, not a scientist. Episodes now evolved around efforts to keep the fragile state of peace that existed between the UEO and the Macronesian Republic.

During the first season of seaQuest DSV. Dr. Robert D. Ballard served as the series' technical advisor. Ballard is a famous underwater scientist and explorer who discovered and explored the remains of the Titanic and the Bismarck. During the end credits Ballard would explain some scientific facts that bore relevance to the episode. This practice effectively prevented NBC from implementing their annoying practice of putting the credits in a little box, while a promo for something else is run- a practice which now occurs on all the networks.

Executive producers for the series was Steven Speilberg, David J. Burke, Tommy Thompson, Rockne S. O'Bannon (pilot only) and Patrick Hasburgh, producers for the series were Gregg D, Fienberg, Les Sheldon, David Kemper, Oscar L. Costo and Carleton Eastlake (Season Two). The executive producers for the renamed Seaquest 2032 - Patrick Hasburgh, Clifton Campbell and Carleton Eastlake. The theme music was created by John Debney.

The series received its UK premiere on the 16th October 1993, on ITV, the series however was pulled off the schedules just weeks into it's run and many of the episodes have either been seen on a Saturday afternoon or at a late night slot.

Emmy Award

Outstanding Individual Achievement in Music Composition for a Series (Dramatic Underscore) -

Nominees: "SeaQuest DSV" (1993) - Don Davis

For episode "Whale Song". (1994)

Outstanding Individual Achievement in Music Composition for a Series (Dramatic Underscore) - Winner:

"SeaQuest DSV" (1993) - Don Davis

For episode "Daggers". (1995)

Outstanding Individual Achievement in Music Composition for a Series - Nominated - "SeaQuest DSV" (1993) - Russ Landau - For episode "Brave New World". (1996)

WR. Rockne S. O'Bannon, David Kemper, David J. Burke, Hans Tobeason, Art Montersatelli, Melinda Snodgrass, Patrick Hasburgh, Robert Engles, Jonathan Falls, Lawrence Hertzog, Ted Raimi, Carleton Eastlake, Naren Shankar and Lee Goldberg.

DIR. Irvin Kershner, Les Landau, Bryan Spicer, Bill Norton, Gabrielle Beaumont, Les Sheldon, Hans Tobeason, Robert Weimer, Bruce Seth Green, Burt Brinkerhoff, Anson Williams, Oscar L. Costo and Jesus Tervino.

EPISODES: 58 YEAR MADE: 1993 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 3

AMBLIN TELEVISION PRODUCTION IN ASSOCIATION WITH UNIVERSAL TELEVISION

CREATOR: ROCKNE S. O'BANNON

TYPE OF SHOW: UNDERWATER

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 60 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 23, (2) 20, (3) 13.

DATE OF PREMIER: 12/09/1993 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 09/06/1996

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Captain Nathan Bridger ROY SCHEIDER (1,2), Dr. Kristen Westphalen STEPHANIE BEACHAM (1), Lt. Commander Katherine Hitchcock(1) STACY HAIDUK, Commander Jonathan Ford DON FRANKLIN(1,2), Lucas Wolenchak JONATHAN BRANDIS (1-3), Lt. Benjamine Krieg JOHN D'AQUINO (1), Chief Manilow Crocker ROYCE D. APPLGATE (1), Lt. J.G. Tim O'Neil TED RAIMI (1-3), Security Chief Miguel Ortiz MARCO SANCHEZ (1,2), UEO Admiral William Noyce RICHARD HERD(1-3), The Professor W. MORGAN SHEPPARD (1,2), Lonnie Ellen Henderson KATHY EVISON (2), Dr. Wendy Smith ROSALIND ALLEN(2), Lt. James Brody EDWARD KERR(2), Tony Picollo MICHAEL DELUISE (2,3), Dagwood PETER DELUISE (2,3), Captain Oliver Hudson MICHEAL IRONSIDE (3), Lt. J.J. Fredericks ELISE NEAL.

(3)

Books Based on this series.

SeaQuest DSV - Fire Below	Matthew J. Costello	1994
SeaQuest DSV - The Ancient	David Bischoff	1994
SeaQuest DSV - The Novel	Diane Duane and Peter Morwood	1993
SeaQuest DSV 1 - The Aliens Are Coming
SeaQuest DSV 2 - Dark Side of the Sun
SeaQuest DSV 3 - Mutiny
SeaQuest DSV 4 - The Enmey
The Making Of SeaQuest DSV	Louis Chunovic	1995

RELATED SHOWS:

VOYAGE TO THE BOTTOM OF THE SEA

SUPERBOY

V (1984)

MAX HEADROOM

HERCULES: THE LEGENDARY JOURNEYS

XENA: WARRIOR PRINCESS

V (1982)

ASTEROID

SEVEN DAYS

1 - 1 TO BE OR NOT TO BE

The crew of seaQuest are joined by a reluctant Captain Nathan Bridger and set off to investigate a distress call from an underwater colony, only to find it is a trap by a renegade sub under the command of Captain Marilyn Stark, who has a personal vendetta against the seaQuest.

Wr Rockne S. O'Bannon, Tommy Thompson

Dir Irvin Kershner

1 - 2 THE DEVIL'S WINDOW

Two miles beneath the surface, seaQuest explores one of the ocean's truly remarkable phenomena: steaming hot hydrothermal vents play host to an underwater forest of giant tube worms and other forms of life where none was thought possible. But when Darwin the dolphin becomes deathly ill, Captain Bridger is forced to choose between the mission at hand and the life of one of his crew.

Wr David J. Burke, Hans Tobeason

Dir Les Landau

1 - 3 TREASURES OF THE MIND

When a preserved annexe of the Great Library of Alexandria is discovered, many nations send their fleets to lay claim to its treasures. The UEO orders Bridger to mediate the dispute and sends a team of ESP parapsychologists to help the negotiations.

Wr David Kemper

Dir Bryan Spicer

1 - 4 GAMES

The crew of seaQuest rescue a warden and his only prisoner from beneath the ice cap. The prisoner escapes and reveals that he holds a deadly toxin which will be released unless the crew does as he says, which is launching the seaQuest's missiles against the UEO.

Wr David Venable

Dir Joe Napolitano

1 - 5 TREASURES OF THE TONGA TRENCH

When Krieg brings back what he believes is a priceless gem, greed runs amok on the seaQuest. No one listens to his stories of sea monsters in the area, until one attacks the seaQuest.

Wr Kerry Lenhart, John J. Sakmar

Dir Les Sheldon

1 - 6 BROTHERS AND SISTERS

The seaQuest discovers a group of children living in an old munitions facility on the sea floor and they must evacuate them before the structure collapses and unleashes a deadly explosion. Meanwhile, Lucas develops a crush on the teenage girl.

Dir Bill L. Norton

1 - 7 GIVE ME LIBERTE...

When Commander Ford and other crew members are contaminated with a deadly virus from a downed space station, Captain Bridger finds himself fighting against the clock and a government cover-up to save them.

Wr Kerry Lenhart, John J. Sakmar

Dir Bill L. Norton

1 - 8 KNIGHT OF SHADOWS

When a small team from seaQuest board an ancient sunken ship in order to determine why it went down, they find themselves trapped in a series of very bizarre and supernatural events.

Wr Melinda Snodgrass

Dir Helaine Head

1 - 9 BAD WATER

A hurricane threatens to prevent the rescue of a French sightseeing submarine which is stuck in a freshwater sink hole and running out of oxygen. When a team from the seaQuest are forced to the surface they must rely on each other to survive the storm.

Wr David Kemper

Dir Bryan Spicer

1 - 10 THE REGULATOR

When a vital component of seaQuest's air conditioning fails and regular channels fail, Krieg relies on a black market source called The Regulator. When Darwin disappears the seaQuest must track down the renegade who is seeking the meaning of life.

Wr David J. Burke

Dir Les Sheldon

1 - 11 SEAWEST

Hitchcock goes into an underwater gold mining colony in order to investigate a distress signal and discovers that the original and rightful owner of the mine and his family are being held hostage by an outlaw and his thugs.

Wr John J. Sakmar, Kerry Lenhart

Dir Gabrielle Beaumont

1 - 12 PHOTON BULLET

When Lucas visits a communications base populated by a group of young computer experts, a famous computer hacker, who now runs the Node, persuades Lucas to break into the World Bank and divert funds for humanitarian causes.

Wr Michael Cassett

Dir Steve Dubin

1 - 13 BETTER THAN MARTIANS

seaQuest is hurriedly dispatched to rescue a crew returning from a manned mission to Mars when their space capsule crash lands in the Atlantic Ocean, but the president of an militarised Asian federation wants them too for his own reasons.

Wr David Kemper, Dan Brecher

Dir John T. Kretchmer

1 - 14 NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH

While in the middle of an special experiment when only a skeleton crew is aboard, seaQuest is boarded by a group of commandos who are quickly able to take control of the ship.

Wr David Kemper

Dir Les Sheldon

1 - 15 GREED FOR A PIRATE'S DREAM

When a top-secret UEO project shows the approach of a catastrophic volcanic eruption, the crew of seaQuest must convince treasure seekers on the island to abandon their lifelong search or face certain death.

Wr David J. Burke, Robert Engels

Dir James A. Contner

1 - 16 WHALE SONG

A renegade sub is sinking whaling ships, which are in themselves illegal and against their moral judgement, the crew of seaQuest must stop the sub from its mission. Meanwhile, Krieg is on a mission of his own: to have a cheeseburger, despite red meat being outlawed.

Wr Patrick Hasburgh

Dir Bryan Spicer

1 - 17 STINGER

In the lead up to an important demonstration, Lucas is knocked unconscious and the Stinger, seaQuest's prototype high speed sub, is stolen.

Wr John J. Sakmar, Kerry Lenhart

Dir Jonathan Sanger

1 - 18 HIDE AND SEEK

A Servo-Croat dictator takes Drs. Westphalen and Lansdowne hostage in order to gain entrance into seaQuest in the hopes of using the ship's technology to rehabilitate his autistic son.

Wr Robert Engels

Dir Lindsley Parsons III

1 - 19 THE LAST LAP OF LUXURY

At a summit conference, Lucas and group of UEO leaders are taken hostage, leaving the seaQuest crew to uncover a mysterious and complicated plot whilst searching for the hostages.

Wr Zora Quayton

Dir Bryan Spicer

1 - 20 ABALON

Ford accidentally stumbles onto a colony of genetically altered humans, adapted by a scientist to live underwater.

Wr Patrick Hasburgh

Dir Les Sheldon

1 - 21 SUCH GREAT PATIENCE

Things threaten to go terribly wrong when the seaQuest crew discovers a million-year old spaceship. Their only hope is Darwin being the key to bridging the communications gap.

Wr David Kemper

Dir Bryan Spicer

1 - 22 THE GOOD DEATH

When the crew of seaQuest are tricked into torpedoing a refugee ship containing Westphalen's daughter, Dr. Westphalen, Ford, and Shan are trapped trying to save her.

Wr Hans Tobeason, Douglas Burke

Dir David J. Burke

1 - 23 HIGHER POWER

A brand new power plant which is set to supply energy to the whole world goes wrong and there is a danger of the polar ice caps melting. Bridger decides he must sacrifice the seaQuest in order to save the world. Meanwhile, Lucas has a reunion of sorts with his father.

Wr David J. Burke, Patrick Hasburgh

Dir John T. Kretchmer

2 - 1 DAGGERS

When a colony of genetically engineered people, no longer happy with their captivity, stage a revolt seaQuest, equipped with some new faces, are called in to help.

Wr Jonathan Falls

Dir Bryan Spicer

2 - 2 THE FEAR THAT FOLLOWS

Extra-terrestrials that are searching for the beginnings of intelligent life are welcomed aboard seaQuest, only to be taken captive by a general determined to have their advanced technological secrets.

Wr Clifton Campbell

Dir Robert Weimer

2 - 3 SYMPATHY FOR THE DEEP

Bridger responds to a plea from an old girlfriend living in an underwater colony that has been dedicated to non-violence. After ten years of peace, the citizens are trying to kill each other.

Wr Carleton Eastlake

Dir Bruce Seth Green

2 - 4 VAPORS

Piccolo's estranged father seeks his help after his wife becomes addicted to an experimental drug. When Bridger and Smith are discovered in an embrace, rumours spread like wildfire about their supposed shipboard romance.

Wr David J. Burke

Dir Les Sheldon

2 - 5 PLAYTIME

In response to the voice of a child calling for help, the seaQuest journeys through an underwater vortex and find themselves 250 years in the future where humans are on the brink of extinction.

Wr Lawrence Hertzog

Dir Robert Weimer

2 - 6 THE SINCEREST FORM OF FLATTERY

An experimental submarine escapes from its moorings and manages to launch its nuclear weapons targeted at New Cape Quest, a city with 5 million inhabitants including relatives of the seaQuest crew. Only Bridger may be able to stop the submarine, as it's controlled by an incomplete computer copy of his own personality.

Wr Carleton Eastlake

Dir Jesús Salvador Treviño

2 - 6 BY ANY OTHER NAME

A distress call from an underwater horticultural colony leads the crew into an investigation of the mysterious disappearance of all human life inside the former paradise.

Wr Lawrence Hertzog

Dir Burt Brinckerhoff

2 - 7 WHEN WE DEAD AWAKEN

When a woman is released from a cryogenic institute after 22 years, she is targeted by an assassin. Brody attempts to help her, and discovers that she is linked to his past and to a possible murder.

Wr Clifton Campbell

Dir Annette Haywood-Carter

2 - 8 SPECIAL DELIVERY

Dagwood maintains his innocence after being found guilty of murdering the genetic engineer who created him, despite having apparently been caught in the act on video.

Wr Patrick Hasburgh

Dir Gus Trekonis

2 - 9 DEAD END

Henderson, Lucas, Brody, and O'Neill are drawn into a furious underwater whirlpool that pulls their shuttle beneath the ocean floor and into a maze of ancient caverns.

Wr Carleton Eastlake

Dir Steve Robman

2 - 10 MELT DOWN

A massive prehistoric crocodile is released from its icy tomb when extensive undersea farming and mining cause the temperature of the South Atlantic to rise.

Wr Tom Szollosi

Dir Anson Williams

2 - 11 LOSTLAND

Ford discovers an ancient warrior's helmet and sword that prove that the lost continent of Atlantis did exist. But the helmet may carry a deadly curse that could destroy Bridger and the crew.

Wr Ted Raimi, David J. Burke

Dir Bruce Seth Green

2 - 12 AND EVERYTHING NICE

On the mainland, Lucas falls for a beautiful woman and asks to resign from his position, however plans change when she is suddenly kidnapped by terrorists in an attempt to take control of seaQuest.

Wr Lawrence Hertzog

Dir Burt Brinckerhoff

2 - 13 DREAM WEAVER

A blind astrophysicist and a NASA commander team up with the crew to battle a hostile alien, hidden in a fallen comet that seaQuest was attempting to recover.

Wr Clifton Campbell

Dir Oscar L. Costo

2 - 14 ALONE

Wendy employs her psychic abilities and risks her life in a battle of the mind against Avatar, a powerful paranormal being who threatens the world's security with his ability to place political leaders into comas.

Wr Carleton Eastlake

Dir David J. Burke

2 - 15 WATERGATE

The crew transports a pop star to an island military base. Upon arrival they encounter an apparition of the Greek god Neptune, who mistakenly believes the singer and Henderson are actually Minerva and Medusa.

Wr Patrick Hasburgh

Dir Casey O. Rohrs

2 - 16 SOMETHING IN THE AIR

The crew protects a group of researchers at an abandoned mining outpost while they study an ancient chest found buried deep in the Mediterranean. However the chest proves to be like Pandora's box, housing a demon who escapes and then preys upon the landing party.

Wr Lawrence Hertzog

Dir Steve Robman

2 - 17 DAGGER REDUX

A rogue nuclear physicist known only as the Marauder is determined to destroy the seaQuest. As part of his plan, he rescues a revenge-minded dagger who was imprisoned by Bridger.

Wr Patrick Hasburgh

Dir Oscar L. Costo

2 - 18 THE SIAMESE DREAM

In order to gain control of seaQuest's nuclear weapons, a powerful psychic plants a nightmare in both Piccolo and Dagwood's minds, so that he will be invited on board to interpret their dreams.

Wr Jonathan Brandis

Dir Jesús Salvador Treviño

2 - 19 BLINDSIDED

When his plane crashes in the South American jungle, Piccolo is kidnapped by a ruthless dictator who he finds out has secretly been creating artificial life forms that have now gone out of control.

Wr Clifton Campbell

Dir Anson Williams

2 - 20 SPLASHDOWN

The seaQuest is captured by an alien spacecraft and taken to Hyperion, a completely aquatic planet. The crew is then drawn into the civil war between the KrayTaks and the Hyperion resistance.

Wr Carleton Eastlake

Dir Anson Williams

3 - 1 BRAVE NEW WORLD

Ten years after its mysterious disappearance, the seaQuest appears back on Earth. A tough Navy officer, who had been obsessed with searching for the submarine, assumes command of the seaQuest due to the new hostile world climate.

Wr Clifton Campbell

Dir Anson Williams

3 - 2 IN THE COMPANY OF ICE AND PROFIT

Captain Hudson is ordered to blow up an iceberg that has been directed towards Saudi Arabia by a corrupt businessman, only to find a group of refugees placed on the iceberg to prevent its destruction.

Wr Patrick Hasburgh

Dir Jesús Salvador Treviño

3 - 3 SMOKE ON THE WATER

The seaQuest attempts to find out the cause of the disappearance of a number of haulers from one of the remotest colonies in the Free Zone where Hudson meets up with a person from his past.

Wr Lee Goldberg, William Rabkin

Dir Oscar L. Costo

3 - 4 DESTINATION TERMINAL

Lucas oversees the maiden journey of a revolutionary new underwater train, while Ford and Henderson go on a secret date as passengers.

Wr Javier Grillo-Marxuach

Dir Bruce Seth Green

3 - 5 CHAINS OF COMMAND

Hudson must relieve his old commanding officer from duty onboard a heavily armed underwater base after the base fires on Macronesia.

Wr Lee Goldberg, William Rabkin

Dir Anson Williams

3 - 6 SPINDRIFT

When Henderson is captured by Macronesia and sentenced to death, Hudson leads an undercover team to free her from the secure facility.

Wr Carleton Eastlake

Dir Oscar L. Costo

3 - 7 EQUILIBRIUM

Lucas must face up to Bridger over his potentially risky solution to combat an organism that threatens to reach epidemic proportions.

Wr Naren Shankar, Javier Grillo-Marxuach

Dir Anson Williams

3 - 8 RESURRECTION

After faking his own death a second time, radical environmentalist, Max Scully, returns and is pardoned for his murderous crimes, and Captain Hudson is ordered to escort him to an undersea ecological utopia, unaware of Scully's true intentions.

Wr Lee Goldberg, William Rabkin

Dir Oscar L. Costo

3 - 9 GOOD SOLDIERS

Captain Bridger seeks seaQuest's help to go deep into Macronesian waters and retrieve some top-secret data crystals that reveal unspeakable atrocities committed against humanity 20 years earlier -- crimes in which Bridger and Ford may have been involved.

Wr Naren Shankar

Dir Jesús Salvador Treviño

3 - 10 SECOND CHANCE

The crew members travel through a "space-time sphere" that rockets them back in time to October 1962 and places them in the midst of the Cuban missile crisis, where they have to try to prevent a nuclear holocaust.

Wr Carleton Eastlake

Dir Bill L. Norton

3 - 11 BRAINLOCK

As the world leaders debate the renewal of the UEO charter a number of assassination attempts are made against the delegates.

Wr Carleton Eastlake

Dir Fred Keller

3 - 12 REUNION

When seaQuest docks at a penal colony where the prisoners are enslaved, Henderson recognizes one and inadvertently causes a riot, allowing the inmates to escape--and take hostages.

Wr Carleton Eastlake

Dir Anson Williams

3 - 13 WEAPONS OF WAR

The seaQuest is drawn into the dangerous neutral area where the UEO and Macronesian borders meet the territory of a silent and elusive Asian power.

Wr Javier Grillo-Marxuach

Dir Steve Beers

SEARCH (aka SEARCH CONTROL)

Probe was the investigation division of World Securities Corporation, a huge security firm that employed all of the latest technology. Assignments given to Probe agents range from helping the government out to finding stolen objects and missing persons. Agents were equipped with an implanted radio receiver that allowed them to receive messages from headquarters while in the field. They were also given miniature TV cameras and microphones (disguised as rings or tie tacks) which allow them to communicate back to base. In the advent that these became inoperable, the agents also had a transmitter in their dental work which would allow them to send non-verbal messages in code. In charge at headquarters was B.C. Cameron, whom, along with his staff of experts in almost every area, could give the agent in the field almost any piece of information that he needed such as background checks on a person, tracking down a licence plate number, identifying someone whom the agent has just met or informing the police that a crime is being committed.

Probe Division had three main agents in the field, each with different areas of expertise. They never worked together and alternated in the lead role, giving a little more credence to having such a huge support staff back at headquarters! These agents were Hugh Lockwood, C.R. Grover and Nick Bianco. Lockwood was the first to be introduced, appearing in the pilot movie, and was a former astronaut cut from the traditional James Bond spy mould. Nick Bianco was a former private investigator with a background in criminal law, he had extensive underworld contacts that often came in handy and a tendency to use his fists first then ask questions. C.R. Grover was more or less a back-up agent who would take assignments when no one else was available. Grover led the life of a laid-back playboy who would really rather not work.

A knock-off of Mission Impossible, this almost becomes science fiction when it takes its high-tech spy gadgets seriously, the implanted radio transceivers, microminiature TV cameras, telemetry doing astronaut-type real-time monitoring of physiological stress levels, and Mission Control Organization of "The Probe Division of World Securities." Too bad it did not have "Q" from James Bond, or the fun level of "I Spy" Cosby, or the over-the-top spoofiness of THE MAN FROM U.N.C.L.E., to make its good casting break through. Stars of note are Doug McClure (OUT OF THIS WORLD) and Burgess Meredith (BATMAN, THE TWILIGHT ZONE). The series was shown on NBC.

The title Search Control was used only in the UK for the series, and was shown on BBC2 in 1974. The pilot episode for the series was called Probe, not to be confused with PROBE the SF series. The original pilot was written by Leslie Stevens, whose previous credits include THE OUTER LIMITS. The series was picked up for a run from 1972-73 for twenty-three episodes. The title Probe became Search and one of the Probe control staff, Carlos, was replaced with Ron Castro. A variety of World Securities Management would drop in to order particular missions, among them was Doctor Luarent, played by Ford Rainey.

As a result of the popularity of the Probe pilot, Search was awarded a reasonable budget. Any headaches resulted from the splitting of filming between the action in the field, the TV scanner points of view and scenes back at PROBE control - a nightmare in co-ordination, time and continuity. As a consequence, Leslie Stevens applied a technique used in the earlier series The Name of the Game, where the series had three stars (Gene Barry, Robert Stack and Tony Franciosa) who starred in rotation.

Why did Search fail? It is said that intelligent series enter the TV graveyard because they fail to capture a large audience. With its blend of heroes, action, humour and detection, the right ingredients were there. There were countered by high production costs against the returns, which ultimately resulted in the series' demise, Leslie Stevens went on to create and produce THE INVISIBLE MAN (1970s), followed by THE GEMINI MAN.

Three space-age detectives, each with a transmitter implanted in his ear, globe-trotted around the world. They were monitored by a group of technicians, who watched them on a viewscreen at the Probe division of World Securities. High-tech crime solving was the gimmick. The three stars, Hugh O'Brien, Tony Franciosa and Doug McClure, alternated each week as the detectives. Burgess Meredith played their boss, Cameron. Cheryl Ladd had a semi-regular role as a Probe agent.

WR. Leslie Stevens, Irv Pearlberg, S.S. Schwietzer, Judy Burns, John Christopher Strong, Michael R. Stein, Jack Turley, Brad Radnitz, Don Balluck, Lou Shaw, Norman Hudis, Irv Pearlberg, Richard Landau, Robert C. Dennis.

DIR. Russ Mayberry, Philip Leacock, Allen Reisner, William Wiard, Marc Daneils, Robert L. Friend, Joseph Pevney, Paul Stanley, Barry Shear, Jerry Jameson, George McCowan.

EPISODES: 24 YEAR MADE: 1972 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

NBC/WARNER BROS. TELEVISION

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: CRIME

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 0 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 24

DATE OF PREMIER: 21/02/1972 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 11/04/1973

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Hugh Lockwood HUGH O'BRAIN, Nick Bianco TONY FRANCIOSA, C. R. Grover DOUG MCCLURE, Cameron BURGESS MEREDITH, Gloria Harding ANGEL TOMPKINS, Dr. Barnett (1972) FORD RAINEY, Dr. Barnett (1973) KEITH ANDES, Miss Keach (1972) GINNY GOLDEN, Ramos TONY DE COSTA, Kuroda BYRON CHUNG, Griffin ALBERT POPWELL, Carlos RON CASTRO, Murdock AMY FARRELL, Harris (1973) TOM HALLICK, Miss James (1973) PAMELA JONES.

RELATED SHOWS:

TWILIGHT ZONE, THE (1958)

MAN FROM U.N.C.L.E., THE

OUT OF THIS WORLD (1987)

1 - 1 PROBE

Probe One Agent Hugh Lockwood is assigned to find a set of diamonds that have been missing since World War II.

Wr Leslie Stevens

Dir Russ Mayberry

1 - 2 THE MURROW DISAPPEARANCE

Lockwood investigates the disappearance of a State Department Official, which leads him to a private Country Club where the key to the operation may be a card game.

Wr Leslie Stevens

Dir Russ Mayberry

1 - 3 ONE OF OUR PROBES IS MISSING

Omega Probe Agent Nick Bianco travels to England to find a missing Probe agent who was investigating perfect counterfeit $100 bills.

Wr Leslie Stevens

Dir Philip Leacock

1 - 4 SHORT CIRCUIT

Grover is brought in when a disgruntled former designer of Probe Control promises to attack his former employer with a device that destroys all electrical circuits in a quarter-mile area.

Wr Leslie Stevens

Dir Allen Reisner

1 - 5 MOONROCK

Lockwood tracks down the man who stole a football-sized diamond brought back from the moon.

Wr Leslie Stevens

Dir William Wiard

1 - 6 LIVE MEN TELL TALES

Bianco travels to the Adriatic to determine if a missing Probe Agent was kidnapped, killed or deserting his job and his wife.

Wr Irving Pearlberg

Dir Marc Daniels

1 - 7 OPERATION ICEMAN

Bianco has to prevent the assassination of a diplomat by a hitman known only as "The Iceman".

Wr S.S. Schweitzer

Dir Robert Friend

1 - 8 THE BULLET

Lockwood travels to an iron curtain country to bring out the scientist who invented a new deadly toxin and has the only formula for the cure. In the process Lockwood becomes infected by the toxin.

Wr Judy Burns

Dir William Wiard

1 - 9 IN SEARCH OF MIDA

Grover sets out to find recluse billionaire J.R. Devlin, who has not been seen in public for 18 months.

Wr J. Christopher Strong III, Michael R. Stein

Dir Nicholas Colasanto

1 - 10 THE ADONIS FILE

Lockwood investigates threats against a talk-show host who is running for the U.S. Senate.

Wr Jack Turley

Dir Joseph Pevney

1 - 11 FLIGHT TO NOWHERE

Lockwood asks for Probe Control's help in finding a friend who disappeared, along with his plane, in the desert.

Wr Brad Radnitz

Dir Paul Stanley

1 - 12 THE GOLD MACHINE

Lockwood travels to San Francisco to find a gold mine that has been lost since the early 1900's.

Wr Leslie Stevens

Dir Russ Mayberry

1 - 13 LET US PREY

Bianco investigates the disappearance of a woman he was once involved with...only to find the whole thing was a trap set up by the woman's jealous fiance.

Wr Don Balluck

Dir Russ Mayberry

1 - 14 A HONEYMOON TO KILL

Carla Lucchese, daughter of a billionaire industrialist, is shot at on her wedding day and promptly disappears. Her anxious husband hires Grover to track down his wife; however it soon emerges that other members of the Lucchese family are also on the trail-and will stop at nothing to prevent Carla from coming into her inheritance.

Wr S.S. Schweitzer

Dir Russ Mayberry

1 - 15 THE 24 CARAT HIT

Bianco tries to help a fellow Probe agent, who is injured and is out on his own to find the people who killed his wife and kidnapped his daughter.

Wr Jack Turley

Dir Russ Mayberry

1 - 16 NUMBERED FOR DEATH

Grover travels to Switzerland to investigate the black-mailing of people who have secret numbered accounts in a Swiss Bank.

Wr S.S. Schweitzer

Dir Allen Reisner

1 - 17 COUNTDOWN TO PANIC

Lockwood has to track down a friend who was infected by a mysterious and highly contagious disease following a deep sea dive.

Wr Judy Burns

Dir Jerry Jameson

1 - 18 THE CLAYTON LEWIS DOCUMENT

Bianco goes to Washington to prevent the blackmailing of a friend who is the key to an upcoming international summit.

Wr Norman Hudis

Dir William Wiard

1 - 19 GODDESS OF DESTRUCTION

Grover has to find a stolen statue, which may signal the revival of an ancient criminal order.

Wr Irving Pearlberg

Dir Jerry Jameson

1 - 20 THE MATTSON PAPERS

Bianco looks for a missing comptroller, whose journals could bring down an organized crime ring.

Wr S.S. Schweitzer, Don Balluck

Dir William Wiard

1 - 21 MOMMENT OF MADNESS

Grover looks for Cameron, who was kidnapped from Probe Control by an old army trainee, who blames Cameron for his capture and torture during the Korean War.

Wr Richard Landau

Dir George McGowan

1 - 22 ENDS OF THE EARTH

Bianco's investigation of missing criminals leads him to a travel agency whose speciality is helping wanted criminals escape.

Wr Robert C. Dennis

Dir Ralph Senensky

1 - 23 SUFFER MY CHILD

Lockwood looks for the daughter of a financial wizard who was kidnapped...or who arranged her own kidnapping.

Wr Norman Hudis

Dir Russ Mayberry

1 - 24 THE PACKAGERS

Grover's search for a missing officer previously involved in a failed military coup carries him into the heart of a group planning a full-scale revolution.

Wr Robert C. Dennis

Dir Michael Caffey

SECOND CHANCE

Second Chance starts out in 2011 when a middle aged Charles Russell is killed in a traffic accident. When his time for judgement comes, he is judged to be not bad enough for hell but also not good enough for heaven. Charles is offered a second chance which he takes. St. Peter sends Charles back in time to 1987, where he is given the chance to influence his younger (15 year old) self to become a better human being.

Charles' younger self, who goes by the name of Chazz, is a typical mischievous teenage kid who lives with his mother. His best friends consist of Booch, a cool guy in the Fonzie mould and Eugene, a nerdy idiot. Chazz is not quite sure what to make of Charles, who has adopted the name Charles Time and moved into his mother's extra room. Although Charles seems to know too much about Chazz, his advice is usually for the better.

When the Fox network first took to the air, the programmers came up with series that did not easily fit into established molds. Second chance was one of those series. Second Chance was not at all successful, even by Fox standards, and was cancelled. Someone higher up however decided that some of the characters had promise and Second Chance was given a second chance in a revamped version of itself called Boys Will Be Boys. Boys Will Be Boys dropped the fantasy elements of Second Chance and the characters of Charles and St. Peter and concentrated on the adventures of Chazz, Booch and Eugene. Boys Will Be Boys was also unsuccessful, lasting only 11 episodes.

WR. David W. Duncan, Gary Menteer, Deborah Serra, Cheryl Alu, Mike Marmer, Jim Geoghan, Jim Mayer, Deborah Serra, Stephen Langford.

DIR. Jim Drake, Jim Coy.

EPISODES: 9 YEAR MADE: 1987 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

FOX

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: TIME TRAVEL

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 9

DATE OF PREMIER: 26/09/1987

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 28/11/1987

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Charles Russell (Time) KIEL MARTIN, Chazz Russell MATTHEW L. PERRY, Helen Russell RANDEE HELLER, Francis 'Booch' Lottabucci WILLIAM GALLO, Eugene Bluberman DEMIAN SLADE, St. Peter JOSEPH MAHER.

1 - 1 THE END

Charles Russell is driving in his hovercraft and dies. He goes to gate of God and God tells him that he is too bad to go to heaven and too good to go to hell. So God sends him back to the year 1987 to try and correct some past mistakes.

Wr David W. Duncan, Gary Menteer

Dir Jim Drake

1 - 2 MOVING IN

Chazz is back in the 1987 with his old friends, girlfriend and family.

Wr Deborah Serra, Cheryl Alu

Dir Jim Drake

1 - 3 PLAIN JANE

He goes back to school and there are all kinds of things that he did when he was young that he is not proud of now so he fixes up his mistakes.

Wr Mike Marmer

Dir Jim Drake

1 - 4 LIFE WITHOUT FATHER

Chazz and his father get into a fight. Chazz said, "I wish you were dead". So St. Peter was brought there to show Chazz what his life would be like without his father.

Wr Jim Geoghan

Dir Jim Drake

1 - 5 OEDIPUS RUSSELL

Chazz had a dream that he was a king and he was back at home with Booch, his old best friend. But when he woke up, he saw St. Peter watching over him as if he was protecting him from life.

Wr Jim Mayer

Dir Jim Drake

1 - 6 HANDY BOY

While he was at work, Chazz met Alex, a kid who was just like him. Alex and Chazz were both trying to get into heaven for the time being.

Wr Deborah Serra, Cheryl Alu

Dir Jim Drake

1 - 7 TO HAVE LOVED AND LOST

Chazz broke up with his girlfriend (that he has been in love with since the 1st grade) and the older version of Charles Russell tries to make her forgive him by giving her flowers, but she refuses and she tells Chazz she wants to take a break.

Wr Jim Geoghan

Dir Jim Drake

1 - 8 MID-TERM BLUES

Chazz spent the night with Alex and they sang the blues all night long. Alex tried to cheer Chazz up by taking him to the mall to meet ladies.

Wr Stephen Langford

Dir Jim Drake

1 - 9 A HUNTING WE WILL GO

Alex and Chazz went hunting with Alex's father. Chazz was very sad after going hunting because it made him want to see his father again so he went back home and got a message from St. Peter that he could visit his dad.

Wr Jim Geoghan

Dir Jim Cox

SECOND HUNDRED YEARS, THE

The Second Hundred Years was a sitcom about a man out of time. The man was Luke Carpenter who had been discovered frozen inside an Alaskan glacier where he had become trapped while prospecting for gold in 1900. He was successfully revived and reunited with his son Edwin, who at age 67 was physically older than his father, and his grandson Ken, who at age 33 could pass off as his twin brother. Both characters were played by Monte Markham.

The Second Hundred Years thus was given two premises to find humorous situations. Luke's attempts to adjust to the modern world and the identity confusion arising between Luke and Ken. The identity angle was further complicated by the fact that Luke and Ken had totally opposite personalities. Ken was a somewhat stuffy, conservative corporate type where Luke was a much more liberal, outgoing and adventurous. These two plotlines could further be complicated by Col. Garroway, the Army officer assigned to insure that the secret of Luke being frozen alive then revived remain a secret. Something which Luke did not really want to do since he had a whole new world to explore and become familiar with.

ABC - The show appeared on ABC on Wednesdays from 8:30-9:00 p.m. For the last two episodes and the following repeats, the air day and time moved to Thursdays from 7:30-8:00 p.m. The order below is episode number and title and original air date.

The Second Hundred Years was a 1967-68 sitcom starring Monte Markham which was aired on the ABC television network.

The Second Hundred Years was what was called a "high concept" show one which was based on circumstances which were extremely unlikely to occur in real life. The concept here was that one Luke Carpenter had left for Alaska in 1900 as part of a gold rush, but soon after his arrival was buried in a glacial avalanche. His burial was evidently so complete and so rapid that he survived in a state of suspended animation for 67 years. He was then thawed out and soon brought to the home of his now-elderly son, Edwin (portrayed by Arthur O'Connell), in Woodland Oaks, California. The humor centered around how Luke was younger, both in appearance and attitude, than both his son, who was apparently around 70, but also his grandson Ken, who at 33 was the exact age at which Luke had disappeared and been preserved, and who was a near double for his grandfather (not surprising, as both characters were portrayed by Markham). Other than having to adjust to all of the technology of the modern era, Luke, who was an individualistic, light-hearted sort, was at some ways more at home in his new world than his staid offspring.

WR. Ed Simmons, Peggy Chantler Dick, Douglas M. Dick, James Henerson, Martin A. Regaway, Stan Cutler, Martin Donovan, Ron Friedman, Lila Garrett, Bernie Khan, Skip Webster, Martin A. Ragaway, Gene Thompson, Peggy Chantler Dick, Douglas M. Stick, J.E. Selby, Stan Silverman, John O'Dea, Jay Simms, Stan Cutler.

DIR. Jud Taylor, Richard Kinon, Gene Reynolds, Bob Claver, Claudio Guzman, John Erman, Paul Junger Witt, Robert Rosenbaum, Russ Mayberry.

EPISODES: 26 YEAR MADE: 1967 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

SCREEN GEMS, INC, PRODUCTION.

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: COMEDY

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 26

DATE OF PREMIER: 06/09/1967 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 28/03/1968

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Edwin Carpenter ARTHUR O'CONNELL, Luke B. /Ken Carpenter MONTE MARKHAM, Colonel Garway FRANK MAXWELL, Marcia Garway KAREN BLACK, Nurse Lt. Lucille Anderson BRIDGET HANLEY, Erica KAY REYNOLDS, Mr. Tolliver DON BEDDOE, Erica KEY RENOLDS.

1 - 1 FATHER, DEAR FATHER, COME HOME WITH ME NOW

Luke Carpenter is found alive and frozen in Alaska.

Wr Ed Simmons

Dir Jud Taylor

1 - 2 OH DAD, OH DAD, THEY THAWED OUT GRANDPA AND I'M FEELING SO SAD

Luke attempts to get a job. In order to do this he must file for a Social Security Number. This turns out to be quite humorous indeed as he has to report his income and work habits over the past century.

Wr Ed Simmons

Dir Richard Kinon

1 - 3 LITTLE LADY X

Luke discovers one of his pals from the old days is still alive and is homeless. Very upset, he tries to help her win a claim she has on a San Francisco hotel. In 1903, she had won the deed to the property the prestigious hotel now sits upon. After a small battle, she ends up with free room and board for the rest of her life.

Wr Douglas Dick, Peggy Chantler Dick

Dir Richard Kinon

1 - 4 PAY DIRT

Luke decides to start his own farm - right there in the city. He purchases some goats and a few other animals, and has the neighbors in an uproar. They pull him into court to try to prevent it from ruining their neighborhood.

Wr James Henerson

Dir Richard Kinon

1 - 5 A SIMPLE SON OF SOIL

Luke decides he wants a job in his son's Law Firm.

Wr Martin Ragaway

Dir Richard Kinon

1 - 6 THE UNGATHERED MOSS

Luke gets involved with a church singing group.

Wr Stan Cutler, Martin Donovan

Dir Gene Reynolds

1 - 7 ON BENDED KNEE

Luke falls for the Colonel's daughter, a young woman who can't decide what she really wants. Luke goes so far as to propose to her.

Wr Martin Donovan, Stan Cutler

Dir Bob Claver

1 - 8 JUST PAY TWO DOLLARS

Luke is accused of burglary and ends up in jail. At the court hearing he proves the accusation is false.

Wr Ron Friedman

Dir John Erman

1 - 9 REMEMBER THE MAINE

Luke decides to join the Navy. The Commander tries to stop his application from being processed, to no avail. In desperation they send Luke's look-alike grandson in to fail the doctor's physical exam.

Wr Martin Donovan, Stan Cutler

Dir Richard Kinon

1 - 10 A COUPLE OF SAD DADS

Ken receives an alarming telegram intended for Luke.

Wr Bernie Kahn, Lila Garrett

Dir Richard Kinon

1 - 11 NO EXPERIENCE NECESSARY

Luke once again tries to find a job, and he is tricked into working for a not-so-nice company, when they learn how naive he is.

Wr Martin Donovan, Stan Cutler

Dir Claudio Guzman

1 - 12 SAN JUAN HILL

Luke has to go to an aid of a long-deceased friend from the Civil War. This friend's reputation has been sullied, and Luke wants to set the record straight. His friend's granddaughter is alive, and the two of them come up with the truth before an actual hearing to get the records changed.

Wr Skip Webster

Dir John Erman

1 - 13 LUKE A-LIKES

Luke and Ken try switching places.

Wr Lila Garrett, Bernie Kahn

Dir Richard Kinon

1 - 14 LET MY PEOPLE GO-GO

Luke gets involved with a group of hippies.

Wr Gene Thompson

Dir Bob Claver

1 - 15 LUKE'S FIRST CHRISTMAS (IN A LONG TIME)

Luke's first Christmas back is anything from dull, when he learns how modern day Christmas works. From electrical lights to simple shopping, Luke is totally amazed. But once again it is proven that family is the real meaning of the holidays.

Dir Paul Junger Witt

1 - 16 THE ABOMINABLE ICEMAN

Luke has to go to a doctor when he starts noticing abnormalities with his health and his behavior.

Wr J.E. Selby, Stnaley H. Silverman

Dir Richard Kinon

1 - 17 THE TREE-IN

Luke decides to build a neighborhood treehouse.

Wr Bernie Kahn, Lila Garrett

Dir John Erman

1 - 18 RIGHT OF WAY

Luke tries to find the location of his old claim.

Wr John O'Dea, Jay Simms

Dir Richard Kinon

1 - 19 FOR WHOM THE DRUMS BEAT

Luke gets a lesson in rock 'n roll.

Wr Skip Webster

Dir R. Robert Rosenbaum

1 - 20 THE HOUSE THAT NEEDED A CARPENTER

A home siding salesman tries to convince Luke to buy from him.

Dir John Erman

1 - 21 SHINE ON, HARVEST MOONSHINE

Luke takes a stab at modern dating, but decides that he is better off alone for now.

Wr Gene Thompson

Dir Paul Junger Witt

1 - 22 LOVE ON THE DOUBLE

Ken's date confuses him and Luke and chaos ensues.

Wr Stnaley H. Silverman, J.E. Selby

Dir Richard Kinon

1 - 23 DUDE HAND LUKE

Luke tells a story of how he got his Alaska claim by winning in a poker hand.

Wr Martin Donovan, Stan Cutler

Dir Richard Kinon

1 - 24 LUCKY LUKE

Luke wins a prize for being the 100th customer at a new supermarket.

Wr Martin Donovan, Stan Cutler

Dir Russ Mayberry

1 - 25 A DIFFERENT KIND OF BUG

A newspaper reporter gets wind of Luke's identity and tries to hound him for a story.

Wr Martin Donovan, Stan Cutler

Dir Richard Kinon

1 - 26 LUKE AND COMRADE TANYA

Luke's old friend Tanya dies, leaving Luke very depressed.

Dir Richard Kinon

SECRET ADVENTURES OF JULES VERNE, THE

Jules Verne is a visionary, a young Paris student who dreams of writing great novels and plays about the future. He is kidnapped by the League of Darkness, and forced to download his vision of the future into the disembodied mind of Count Gregory, the League's monstrous leader. Meanwhile, Phileas Fogg has embarked on a life of gambling after the death of Sir Boniface Fogg, head of the British Secret Service. He wins the airship AURORA in a card game - just in time to help his cousin, secret agent Rebecca Fogg, rescue Jules from the League's evil power.

Original music by Nick Glennie-Smith, Cinematography by Yves Bélanger, Pierre Gill & Daniel Villeneuve, Film Editing by Jean-François Bergeron & Yvann Thibaudeau. Production Design by Normand Sarazin, Costume Design by Ginette Magny, Assistant Director - Pierre Gill (second unit director), - Sound Department - Sylvain Arseneault (sound recordist), François Grenon (boom operator). Special Effects - Patrick Bergeron (digital compositor), Philippe Desiront (digital compositor), Meinert Hansen (visual effects design) & Sébastien Moreau (digital compositor). Other crew - Eric Aubin (second assistant camera), George Jardon (post-production supervisor), Special Effects by Icestorm Digital Studio.

This looks good. High production values pay off, the effects are great, and the cinematography is top-notch. The actors are decent enough, and Courtemanche gets to show off his funny side, to balance with physical humour the camp laugh value of some quite preposterous situations. The main problem here is that the action looks rushed. On the one hand the characters are rather flat, and act in predictable ways, according to type. On the other hand, the story runs from one plot point or set-up to another and there's barely enough of 46 minutes to tell the story. I really don't know which is the cause of which, but I think that this problem might get resolved later on in the series.

I'm still hopeful. However, I think that this is a programme which would benefit tremendously from changing to a serial format akin to that of season 22 of DOCTOR WHO. This would allow for breathing space in the plots and fuller characterisation, while not diminishing the impact and inventiveness of stories. Still, from what I heard the whole first season is now ready, and if the show remains at least as good as the two sample episodes which I saw, it will definitely be worth-while entertainment. I only hope that the guest-stars won't overwhelm it.

WR.

DIR. Tom Clegg, Pierre de Lespinois, Eleanor Lindo, David McLeod, Gabriel Pelletier, Mark Roper, Ian Sharp, Jean-Marc Vallée.

EPISODES: 22 YEAR MADE: 1999 COUNTRY: CAN SEASONS: 1

FILMLINE INTERNATIONAL INC, TALISMAN CREST.

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: STEAMPUNK

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 60 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 22

DATE OF PREMIER: 18/06/2000

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 16/12/2000

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Passepartout MICHEL COURTEMANCHE, Jules Verne CHRIS DEMETRAL, Rebecca Fogg FRANCESCA HUNT, Phileas Fogg MICHAEL PRAED.

1 - 1 IN THE BEGINNING

Jules Verne is a visionary, a young Paris student who dreams of writing great novels and plays about the future. He is kidnapped by the League of Darkness, and forced to download his vision of the future into the disembodied mind of Count Gregory, the League's monstrous leader. Meanwhile, Phileas Fogg has embarked on a life of gambling after the death of Sir Boniface Fogg, head of the British Secret Service. He wins the airship AURORA in a card game - just in time to help his cousin, secret agent Rebecca Fogg, rescue Jules from the League's evil power.

Wr Gregory de la Doucette

Dir Mark Roper

1 - 2 QUEEN VICTORIA AND THE GIANT MOLE

In the foggy street of Paris, a giant tunnelling machine called the Mole drills through an ancient wall and impales a British secret agent. The League of Darkness has developed this weapon to kill Queen Victoria and plunge Europe into war. Jules Verne and Phileas Fogg must overcome their mutual distrust to find the Mole and defeat the League.

Wr Gavin Scott

1 - 3 ROCKETS OF THE DEAD

A British envoy is murdered in London by a rocket-powered assailant. When Rebecca investigates, she is kidnapped by the handsome and sinister Rimini, Duke of Carpathla. Rimini intends to take over the world with an army of rocket-powered vampires. Phileas and Jules set out to rescue Rebecca from his clutches, but Rebecca is not sure that she wants to be rescued.

Wr Brain Finch

Dir Pierre de Lespinois

1 - 4 THE CARDINAL'S DESIGN

Jules' friend, Alexander Dumas, has squandered his fortune building the Phoenix, a time machine designed by Cardinal Richelieu. When our heroes board the Phoenix, they are transported back into another dimension of time, one where Richelieu still battles the Musketeers and looks exactly like Phileas Fogg.

Wr Trevor Preston

Dir Mark Roper

1 - 5 THE CARDINAL'S REVENGE

Cardinal Richelieu mistakes Rebecca Fogg for Madame D'Urfe, an assassin he's hired to kill King Louis XIII. Jules and Phileas meet D'Artagnan, and persuade him to reunite the Musketeers. Together, they rescue Rebecca, save the King, and defeat Richelieu and his Guards. Meanwhile, Passepartout discovers the secret of the Phoenix, and returns our heroes to their rightful place and time.

Wr Gavin Scott

Dir Mark Roper

1 - 6 THE EYES OF LAZARUS

At a seance for his dead aunt, Passepartout is possessed by the spirit of Lazarus, a mad anarchist seeking revenge for dying at the hands of Phileas Fogg. A neurologist, Franz Draquot, tries and fails to return Lazarus to the spirit world. Lazarus enters the body of Rebecca, shoots Chatsworth, and nearly kills Phileas. Then, the spirit of Passepartout's Aunt Louisa takes a hand, and Lazarus is banished forever.

Wr Eliza Childs

Dir Pierre de Lespinois

1 - 7 LORD OF AIR AND DARKNESS

While investigating a priest's murder, Jules is seduced into joining the crew of the League of Darkness' flying battleship.

Wr Gavin Scott

Dir Gabriel Pelletier

1 - 8 SOUTHERN COMFORT

Our heroes pursue the Prometheus across the Atlantic and into the battlegrounds of the Civil War. When the Aurora crashes, Phileas falls in love with Saratoga Browne, the Southern belle who rescues him. Rebecca, Jules and Passepartout help the Union troops to destroy the Prometheus. But Count Gregory takes a terrible revenge and Saratoga dies in Phileas' arms.

Wr Gavin Scott

Dir Jean-Marc Vallee

1 - 9 LET THERE BE LIGHT

Jules and Rebecca try to divert a suicidal Phileas by interesting him in the career of 13-year-old Thomas

Edison. Young 'Al' has designed the world's first military tank, intending it as nothing more than a toy. When arms manufacturer Isiah Thrubworth turns Al's creation into a killing machine, our heroes must find a way to stop him.

Wr Gavin Scott

Dir Jean-Marc Vallee

1 - 10 THE BALLAD OF STEELEY JOE

Jules, Phlleas and Rebecca arrange to rendezvous with the Aurora after a sojourn aboard a Mississippi gambling boat. Their plans change when the James Brothers hijack the Aurora and use it to take over a small frontier town. Passepartout creates Steeley Joe, a steam-powered gun-fighter. Together, our heroes and Steeley Joe defeat the outlaws and liberate the town.

Wr Gavin Scott

Dir Gabriel Pelletier

1 - 11 THE BLACK GLOVE OF MELCHIZEDEK

Phileas' old friend, Jacomb-Hyde, sends him an ancient black glove adorned with cabalistic symbols, said to contain all knowledge. When Jacomb-Hyde is killed, Phileas does telepathic battle with Vargas, the glove's owner, who wanders the earth as a shadow. Meanwhile, a Chinese gangster, Zal Chao, kidnaps Rebecca Fogg and exchanges her for the glove. The glove's power appears to destroy Zal Chao, but in fact turns him into another Vargas, a disembodied shadow.

Wr Trevor Preston

Dir Pierre de Lespinois

1 - 12 DUST TO DUST

When Phileas transports an Egyptian sarcophagus to New York City, he falls under the spell of beautiful Adriana Locke. Mysterious deaths begin to occur, but Phileas is too infatuated to care. The Sarcophagus turns out to contain Nepka, high priest of an ancient spider cult. Adriana is his mate, the Queen of the spiders, who wants to sacrifice Phileas to bring Nepka back to life.

Wr Brain Finch

Dir Tom Clegg

1 - 13 THE GOLEM

A legendary monster called the Golem seems to be on a killing spree in the streets of Paris. When Jules is arrested for the murders, Phileas, Rebecca and Passepartout try to clear his name. They trace the killings to Sir Hugo Bezel, the mad chief architect of Paris, who envisions a 'city of the future' uncorrupted by human beings.

Wr Paul Pender

Dir Ian Sharp

1 - 14 CRUSADER IN THE CRYPT

Rebecca Fogg escapes from the Prussian Secret Service and returns to her quiet country home - only to find that the body of Sir Boniface Fogg has vanished from the church crypt. While the Prussians try to recapture Rebecca, Jules discovers an Alien Being who has lain dormant in the crypt for a thousand years. The Prussians are defeated, Sir Boniface's body is recovered, and the Alien is reawakened and set free.

Wr John Brown

Dir Eleanore Lindo

1 - 15 THE STRANGE DEATH OF PROFESSOR MARECHAL

When professor Marechal dies in Paris, his daughter Monique persuade Jules and Phileas to transport his body to the coast of France. There they discover the Vitallsphere, a machine invented by Marechal to bring the dead to life. Unfortunately, the Vitallsphere has fallen into the hands of the League of Darkness. Jules and Phlleas must destroy the machine before Count Gregory uses it to become immortal.

Wr Paul Pender

Dir Tom Clegg

1 - 16 THE ROCKETS RED GLARE

When the Commander of Westpoint is kidnapped by the League of Darkness, Jules, Phileas and Rebecca set out to rescue him. They follow his trail through the forests and rivers of Canada - and discover a plot to provoke war between Canada and the United States. In a spectacular finale, Rebecca is attached to the Victorian equivalent of a Cruise missile, while Phlleas finds himself face to face with his old nemesis Count Gregory.

1 - 17 ROCKET TO THE MOON

Phileas wagers his fortune against a Russian Count, while Jules helps the Count prepare the first manned rocket to the moon. Then Jules discovers that the rocket is actually a giant gun aimed at the Russian capital. When Jules, Phileas and Rebecca race to defeat the Count's scheme, they accidentally send the first Russian into space.

1 - 18 THE INQUISITOR

When Amateratsu, a friend of Rebecca from her days at Oxford, arrives in Paris with her Grandfather Kajimori, Rebecca is overjoyed. But when Kajimori disappears, supposedly taken by the Purifying one; a spirit from a supreme level of consciousness, a chase ensues which inevitably leads our heroes into the path of the League of Darkness.

1 - 19 ROYALTY

Passepartout is forced to impersonate King Carl V of Montravia until an important peace treaty is signed. He becomes the target of psychopathic Lord Tyrol, who has designs on the throne. When Phileas comes in search of Passepartout, he must masquerade as the King's valet. Meanwhile, Rebecca helps the real king Carl to find his courage and defeat Lord Tyrol.

1 - 20 SECRET OF THE REALM

1 - 21 THE VICTORIAN CANDIDATE

1 - 22 THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE

SECRET AGENT MAN

High-tech "Mod Squad". . . Monk, a suave spy, and Holiday, his gorgeous partner, work for a government agency so secret nobody even knows what its initials stand for. Upstart Parker joins the team and the wisecracking agents are forced to work together as they prevent the world from being taken over by evil forces

The show is executive-produced by "Men in Black" director Barry Sonnenfeld. Reportedly, Sonnenfeld lost creative control of his "Fantasy Island" series to ABC last season. UPN promises Sonnenfeld a free hand in developing this project.

Produced by Joe De Oliveira (co-producer), Michael Duggan (co-executive), Joel Fields (consulting), Brent V. Friedman (co-executive), Richard Heus(co-executive), Barry Josephson (executive), Barbara Kelly (co-producer), Jefery Levy (supervising), Barry Sonnenfeld (executive), Flody Suarez. Original music by David Bergeaud, Cinematography by Greg Gardiner, Film Editing by James R. Symons, Casting - Irene Cagen, Donna Ekholdt, Meg Liberman, Camille H. Patton & Trish Robinson .

Production Design by Shannon Grover, Makeup Department - Serge Morache (assistant hair stylist), Ronald J. Rolfe (hair stylist), Second Unit Director or Assistant Director - Vladimir Steffoff (second unit director), Sound Department - Scott C. Kolden (sound effects editor), Special Effects - Elan Soltes (visual effects supervisor), Stunts - Jamie Taylor (stunts), Angela Uyeda (stunt double: Vivian Wu). Other crew Chris Dickie (writer), Johanne Glyn-Jones (location production assistant), Mark Hoepfner (security), Scott Lerner (assistant editor), Christina Margellos (assistant production co-ordinator), Ron South (first assistant editor), Ric Walkington (assistant property master: second unit - property assistant props).

This show is a very funny and exciting spy adventure series. The show centers around three spies. Monk is a lot like James Bond, except he doesn't leave a trail of dead women wherever he goes. He has a great sense of humor. Holiday is a more businesslike female spy. She does not like Monk always galavanting around with other women. Davis is the equipment man. He is responsible for many of the gadgets the spies use. Occasionally he even goes out into the field. This show has some serious elements, but ultimately it is just pure fun.

My only complaint about the show is the title. It is obvious that the makers of the show used it just so they could use a remade version of the old song. As I have shown, this show is more about a team not just one man. Anyone considering watching the show should not judge it by the title. If you do tune in I think you will be pleasantly surprised. I know I was. Now I make sure not to miss a single episode.

WR.

DIR. Perry Lang, Jefery Levy, Craig Zisk

EPISODES: 12 YEAR MADE: 2000 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

COLUMBIA TRISTAR TELEVISION, SONNENFELD JOSEPHSON WORLDWIDE ENTERTAINMENT, SONNENFELD/JOSEPHSON PRODUCTIONS, UNITED PARAMOUNT NETWORK (UPN)

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: SPY

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 60

STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 12

DATE OF PREMIER: 07/03/2000

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 28/07/2000

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Monk COSTAS MANDYLOR, Holiday DINA MEYER, Davis DONDRE WHITFIELD, Brubeck PAUL GUILFOYLE

1 - 1 FROM PRIMA WITH LOVE

Prima is the center of attention again at the agency, but this time its as a "good guy." Needless to say everyone has their guards up. Monk because of the love that he once had and lost and Holiday for the jealousy factor, albeit heavily denied. Ironically, Prima has tried to kill them both! After passing a series of loyalty tests Brubeck welcomes Prima back with open arms and puts the team to work right away and without hesitation, minus Holiday's input. A freelance assassin named Vargas has gotten his hands on a one-of-a-kind electronic weapon and he's ready to play. With physical and mental trust barriers to overcome this team must quickly learn to work as one. Then again, Prima may just slip through the cracks for eternity.

Wr Elizabeth M. Cosin

Dir Craig Zisk

1 - 2 BACK TO SCHOOL

Twin German terrorists roller-blade through a government lab and when they leave all is in chaos and a pair of vials go with them. Their prize : a deadly smallpox virus, genetically mutated to kill within 24 hours, and the kicker is there is no cure. Yet. Only two scientists have the knowledge to create it, so Monk and Holiday split up to protect each one and await the inevitable arrival of the twins, Oslo and Arno. Monk's is a beautiful former lab assistant, Dr. Talbot, and it turns out she is in league with the terrorists. When Monk attempts to capture them she breaks one of the vials, taking Oslo with it. He then heads to Holiday, as her mark is headmaster of her former school, the Rosebrier Academy. Talbot shows up too and takes the school hostage in order to force the headmaster to make the cure. A deadly confrontation ensues, during which Davis is caught in the crossfire and shot, but his remarkable Quantum Wave-Powered Vacuum Pen saves him, and is also handy for snatching up the virus when Talbot goes for broke and breaks the last vial. Saving the school means saving the planet and the agents have done it again.

Wr Rick Copp

Dir Jefery Levy

1 - 3 WHUPSUMASS

When the plans for a secret stealth weapon are encrypted into the memories of a team of scientists, it's up to the agency to find their newly created identities and protect them from Trinity's retrieval plans. Only one of the scientists knows how to assemble the whole system, and his new persona is easy for the team to track down. All they have to do is climb into the wrestling ring and save the infamous Buff Bobby Barnett (aka Doctor Livingston), from Trinity's assassin--a UN deflector named LeCoq. Buff Bobby is exclusively in the hands of Davis, and this takes a literal meaning when Brubeck shuts down his agency resources in order to divert commandos hot on their trail. Davis' professional resourcefulness means reuniting personal relationships from his past. Meanwhile, Monk and Holiday work their way into the UN in order to intercept LeCoq's plans. Just as Buff Bobby is about to suffer on Trinity's expense, Davis shoots him and surprisingly saves his life and the plans for the "secret" secret weapon.

Wr Sandy Frank

Dir Greg Beeman

1 - 4 LIFE FATHER, LIKE MONK

After a computer date virus destroys a US airforce outpost with their own jetfighter, Trinity head Vargas is the prime suspect. The agents trace him to Mineapolis but he gets away, so Brubeck orders them to enlist the aid of Agent Armstrong, the greatest tracker in Agency history. He's retired and living in Rhode Island. And he also happens to be Monk's father.

Wr Adam Sigel

Dir Paul Abascal

1 - 5 SUPERNAKED

Pagnol, a brilliant scientist, is using the Paris fashion industry as cover to demonstrate the abilities of the super-model/super-soldiers he has created. DNA and chemically enhanced, they are backed up an internal monitoring system that can also be used to control them. The hitch is that they only live for six months. Pagnol's goal: sell the disposable assassins to the highest bidder, and to prove their superiority he sends them after the Agency's brass. And then Monk.

Wr Joel Fields

Dir Jefery Levy

1 - 6 THE ELDERS

When a senatorial candidate is killed on the day before the election, Monk and Holiday discover that his running mate is a member of The Elders, a secret organization of young people that is attempting to run the USA from behind the scenes, but has been infiltrated by former members of the Russian KGB. The agents intervene to clean up the problem.

Wr Elizabeth M. Cosin

Dir Craig Zisk

1 - 7 THE FACE

A trio of thieves kills a NASA retrieval team in order to steal a Mars meteorite, and the Agency traces the operation to a well-funded cult that sells beads through the Home Shopping Network. The rock contains a lethal flesh eating disease which their leader Marshall Guilder plans to wipe out the human race with. All except for his chosen few who shall remain safe on an island, as the microbe is destroyed by salt water. So Monk and Holiday go undercover as husband and wife to infiltrate the group, leading to a ballooning showdown over the coast of the island.

Wr Greg Plageman

Dir Sarah Pia Anderson

1 - 8 SLEEPERS

Thanks to that pesky Y2K bug, an automated Cold War era Russian submarine wakes up off the coast of Nova Scotia and starts taking a look around. After being fired upon by drunken fratboys, it torpedoes their sailboat and decides World War III has begun, so it heads for it's target, New York City. The Agency is hot on it's trail and Monk enlists the aid of an old friend of his in the Russian State Security Service, Lara. With her help they determine who built the sleeper-sub, and they head to Moscow to interrogate him. Meanwhile, the sub makes a call to a deep-cover Russian agent posing as a tavern owner in Maine, and he travels to sub to become it's back-up pilot. The agents obtain and transmit the deactivation code but the sleeper decides it's all a trick and continues on toward NYC bent on leveling it with nuclear missiles. But Echo-7 can't just be blown up, as if it's attacked it will automatically launch on the closest target, Rhode Island. So it's up to Monk and Lara to board it, while Holiday keeps US Naval Command from jumping the gun.

Wr Chris Dickie

Dir Deran Sarafian

1 - 9 UNCLE S.A.M.

Word is out amongst the espionage world that China is in possession of a new type of missile system which cannot be tracked. If this falls into the wrong hands the balance of power in the world could be terribly jeopardized. A man named Haan in Hong Kong contacts the Agency with an offer to part with the plans for the "Chameleon Missile" and they quickly accept. Because every major spy agency is out to get the new technology Monk is sent in on his own, so that he can better travel undetected. He gets to Haan and obtains the real plans, but the man turns out to be a member of Red Army Security, code named Cerberus 1, and he attempts to capture Monk. Our intrepid agent manages to get away but is forced to stick to the steamy-side of the city, and there he hooks up with Lettie, a thirteen year-old girl living by her wits on the streets. The Red Army sends in a deadly lady assassin known only as "The Killer Without a Face", her orders are to take out Monk and get the plans back. Meanwhile, Agents Holiday and Davis who have been chomping at the bit to help, are at last allowed to speed to Hong Kong. Their primary objective is to recover the plans, and then Monk, in that order.

Wr Paul Redford

Dir Andy Wolk

1 - 10 FAIL-SAFE

The agents are in France when Trinity operative Simone Shariff obtains a Russian suitcase nuke. A brilliant scientist, she has the ability to assume the appearance of anybody, and as Holiday she hijacks the Suborbital with Brubeck her hostage, then heads it for America, bomb-on-board. Now it's a race against time for the agents to retake their own jet.

Wr Chris Dickie

Dir Bo Welch

1 - 11 T.K.O. HENRY

When a boy with powerful telekinetic abilities escapes from the lab that keeps him hostage, the race is on between the agents and their enemies to see who can get their mitts on him first. The stakes: control of a satellite laser weapon that Telekinesis Operative Henry can control with his mind. The Agency wants to hide and protect him, but they have a fierce competitor in the form of Prima, a former member of the Agency who was thought to be dead. She and Monk were an item before her disappearance, and he can't believe she's gone rogue. But indeed she has, as she try's to kill him when they meet in Switzerland. He barely escapes her bombing attempt, and then he, Davis, and Holiday set off for Romania to grab up Henry. They find him playing with jets on an air field and smuggle him back to the USA aboard their Suborbital. Upon arrival they set off for Agency HQ in a trailer, but Henry causes them to detour when he spots an amusement park. They chase after him, but Prima's clown commandos gets there first, and the chase is on down the highway to get him back. Prima blackmails the boy with threats to his mother, so he reluctantly forms a link with the satellite and targets Southern China. Monk on a motorcycle and Holiday in a chopper manage to corner Prima's Porsche under an overpass, and it leads to a fierce showdown. Prima shoots Monk in the leg and Holiday destroys her car with a rocket launcher. Caught in the explosion, the rogue agent's body is not found, and presumed dead once more.

Wr Michael Duggan

Dir Stuart Gillard

1 - 12 BREACH

Agency headquarters is infiltrated by an enemy operative code named "Possum" who can make herself invisible to sensors. In an intense game of cat-and-mouse, the agents hunt her before she can destroy them all.

Dir David Quinn

SECRET AGENT MEN

A group of young Kiwis are recruited by a secret organization to act as spies attempt to save the world from various fiendish villains with plans for world domination at the same time having to contend with the mundane problems of teenage life

Not to be confused with the short-lived 2000 Science Fiction series Secret Agent "MAN" from the US. The production company Greenstone Pictures also produced the Superhero sci-fi show THE AMAZING EXTRODINARY FRIENDS.

Series Produced by Rachel Jean Producer.

Series Original Music by Tom McLeod.

Series Cinematography by Simon Raby.

Series Film Editing by Wayne Cook.

Series Production Design by Anthony Sumich.

Series Art Direction by Sean Figgins.

Series Makeup Department - Tarnya Mills .. Makeup artist.

Series Production Management - Douglas Braddock .. Post-production supervisor , Deborah Cope .. Production manager , Ida Donley .. Unit manager , Charles Knight .. Post-production supervisor, Sara Knight .. Post-production supervisor.

Series Second Unit Director or Assistant Director - Anabelle Newdick .. First assistant director.

Series Art Department - Miriam Bellard .. Art department assistant , Kieran Donnelly .. Props maker , Angeline Loo .. Props buyer , Series Sound Department , Lloyd Canham .. Sound designer, Robyn Chapman .. Boom operator , Steve Kennedy .. Sound designer , Tim Pattinson .. Sound designer , Mark Storey .. Sound recordist.

Series Visual Effects by Andrew Shanks .. Digital compositor.

Series Stunts Isaac Hamon .. Stunts, Glen Levy .. Stunt double , Allan Poppleton .. Stunt coordinator / stunts.
Series Camera and Electrical Department - Dave Cameron .. Camera operator , Orlando Clairmont .. Assistant camera , Steve Joyce .. Gaffer , Geoffrey Short .. Still photographer.

Series Costume and Wardrobe Department - Sarah Aldridge .. Costume assistant.

Series Editorial Department - Nick Braxton .. Color grader , Alistair Cossar .. Post-production assistant , Zane Holmes .. Post-production (, Roseanne Liang .. Assistant editor.

Series Other crew - Natasha Arnold .. Production assistant , Jeremy Dillon .. Dialogue coach , Janne McNaughton .. Location scout , Glenda Paterson .. Production accountant , Nicholas Riini .. Production runner, Amber Smith .. Production coordinator , Nicola Spencer .. Continuity.

Judged Best Children's/Youth Programme 2004 at the Qantas Media Awards 2004.

WR. Jon Bridges , Stephen Campbell , Matt McPhail

DIR. Stephen Campbell , Zane Holmes , Simon Raby

EPISODES: 26 YEAR MADE: 2003 COUNTRY: NZ SEASONS: 2

GREENSTONE PICTURES

CREATOR: STEPHEN CAMPBELL

TYPE OF SHOW: MAD SCIENTISTS

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 13, (2) 13

DATE OF PREMIER: 11/08/2003

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Number 8 PETER FEENEY, DJ MILO CAWTHORNE, Amy Ziegler KEPORAH ASHBY, Demo KARL WILLETTS, Jack West NICKO VELLA, Beth Ziegler ALIX ASHBY.

RELATED SHOWS:

AMAZING EXTRORDINARY FRIENDS

- 1 - 1 OPERATION: LAST DANCE
- 1 - 2 OPERATION: DIASTER 24-7
- 1 - 3 OPERATION: ALIEN-ATION
- 1 - 4 OPERATION: MRS GUNFIRE
- 1 - 5 OPERATION: DOUBLE DOUBLE CROSS
- 1 - 6 OPERATION: SAM REBOOTED
- 1 - 7 OPERATION: I ROBERT
- 1 - 8 OPERATION: THAT VOODOO WE DO
- 1 - 9 OPERATION: LIKE! WHATEVER

Jack meets his arch nemesis, billionaire teenager Maximillian Swift, and is stunned when he discovers the gorgeous Russian spy, Natasha Ovadatop, is working for Maximillian.

Wr Stephen Campbell

Dir Alan Erson

SECRET BENEATH THE SEA

The plot concerned the duo's efforts to obtain samples, from the seabed, of Phenicium, a rare metal vital for space research because of its resistance to the most intense heat. The old foe was former wartime U-boat ace Kurt Swendler who seeks their help when the unscrupulous head of an international metal combine tries to corner the world market in Phenicium. The new friend who shared the underwater adventure was teenager Janet Slayton whose prize winning entry in an essay competition earns her a trip to Aegira. Naturally, she gets caught up in the events that follow, including a spate of life-threatening sabotage, before the heroes can fulfil their mission.

Six-part sequel to CITY BENEATH THE SEA which brought scientific journalist Mark Bannerman and his youthful assistant Peter Blake face to face with an old adversary and a new friend before encountering fresh dangers in the subterranean city of Aegira. The producer for the series was Guy Verney, the settings were created by James Goddard and Stanley Woodward. The programme adviser was Mary Field.

WR. John Lucarotti.

DIR. Kim Mills.

EPISODES: 6 YEAR MADE: 1963 COUNTRY: GB SEASONS: 1

AN ABC TELEVISION NETWORK PRODUCTION

CREATOR: JOHN LUCAROTTI

TYPE OF SHOW: UNDERWATER

FORMAT: SERIAL

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: Yes COLOUR: No LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 6

DATE OF PREMIER: 16/02/1963 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 23/03/1963

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Mark Bannerman GERALD FLOOD, Peter Blake STEWART GUIDOTTI, Capt. Payne PETER WILLIAMS, Dr. Deraad RICHARD COLEMAN, Janet Slayton INGRID SYLVESTER, Dr. Ellen Carey DELENA KIDD, Prof. Gordon ROBERT JAMES, Prof. Soobiah DAVID SPENSER, Helmsman MICHAEL DARLOW, Engineer DEREK SMEE, Sanders MURRAY HAYNE, Sir George REGINALD SMITH, Insp Lovatt ANTHONY WOODRUFF, Kurt Swendler DENIS GOACHER, Seaman CHRISTOPHER SANDFORD, Tug Master HARRY WEBSTER, Doctor BRAIN HAWKSLEY, Sentry PETER JESSON.

RELATED SHOWS:

CITY BENEATH THE SEA

1 - 1 MYSTERIOUS METAL

Kurt Swendler, having escaped the authorities, demonstrates the wonders of Phoenicium, a wonder metal. A mysterious man called Smith is after its secrets, but Swendler passes the sample, and his research notes, to science journalist Mark Bannerman and his assistant Peter Blake.

Wr John Lucarotti

Dir Kim Mills

1 - 2 VOYAGE INTO DANGER

The plate of Phoenicium is stolen from Bannerman's office. Bannerman, Peter and Janet return to the undersea city of Aegira in search of Phoenicium deposits, but Sir George is on their trail.

Wr John Lucarotti

Dir Kim Mills

1 - 3 SABOTAGE

Peter is accused of sabotage. He and Janet try to prove his innocence.

Wr John Lucarotti

Dir Kim Mills

1 - 4 THE X-LAYER

Peter and Janet are hauled in front of Captain Payne. Bannerman goes in search of Phoenicium deposits.

Wr John Lucarotti

Dir Kim Mills

1 - 5 TAKE-OVER

Bannerman is missing, following the attack, and there is another explosion at the base.

Wr John Lucarotti

Dir Kim Mills

1 - 6 THE DEATH TRAP

Can Bannerman frustrate the saboteur and locate the Phoenicium?

Wr John Lucarotti

Dir Kim Mills

SECRET EMPIRE, THE

AKA: CLIFFHANGERS: THE SECRET EMPIRE

The Secret Empire was a hybrid series - a cross between a western and science fiction . Set in late 19th Century Wyoming. US Marshall Jim Donner of Cheyenne discovered that there was a race of alien beings living underground in a city called Chimera. Chimera was ruled by the evil Emperor Thorval. Thorval prevented his people from revolting by using the compilation, a mind control device powered by gold stolen from the humans on the surface. Despite the mind control device, a few Chimerans had formed an underground movement led by Roe and Maya.

Donner set out to both aid the underground movement and stop the gold robberies. He also tried to keep his exploits secret from everyone except his good friends Millie and Billy, for fear of being branded crazy and locked up.

Mark Lenard is most famous for playing Mr. Spock's father, Sarek in STAR TREK and STAR TREK: THE NEXT GENERATION. The Secret Empire was one of their series run as a part of Cliff-hangers! On NBC. The other two were: Curse of Dracula and Stop Susan Williams. A 20 minute episode from each of the series was shown each week. They ended with a 'To Be Continued' like the old time movie serials. NBC had obviously hoped to cash in on the nostalgia market with the series but failed terribly. Cliff-hangers! Was cancelled before The Secret Empire and Stop Susan Williams' plotlines were resolved.

All of the scenes shot on the surface were in black and white whilst those underground in the city of Chimera were shot in colour. The Secret Empire started with Chapter 3 with a previous never seen cliff-hanger being resolved and ended with Chapter 12. Chapter 12 ended with the words 'To Be Continued' after Donner was chased into a room in which a generator was about to explode. The final two episodes (Chapter 13 & 14) were made and the storyline resolved, but they were never aired on NBC.

Created by: Kenneth Johnson; Producers: Richard Milton, B. W Sandefur, Paul Samuelson; Executive Producer: Kenneth Johnson; Writers for the three segments under the Cliffhangers title included: Jeri Taylor, Sam Egan, Richard Christian Matheson, Craig Buck, Peggy Goldman, Andrew Schneider, Harry and Renee Longstreet; Directors included: Joe Pevney, Alan Crosland, Jr., Kenneth Johnson; NBCI Universal; 60 minutes (17 minutes per segment).

"It was the most expensive TV series at the time," says Cliffhangers creator Kenneth Johnson. Raised on the matinee serials of the 1940s, Johnson wanted to recreate the thrills for audiences of the 1970s. He came up with an unusual format for television. Under the title Cliffhangers, three continuing series were presented. They consisted of Stop Susan Williams, a spy spoof with Susan Anton as an adventuress; The Secret Empire, an adventure that mixed science fiction and the Old West (and because of its science fiction flavor, the only one of the series included in this book's episode guide), and The Curse of Dracula, starring Michael Nouri as an anguished vampire who poses as a California college professor. Each of the three segments ran 17 minutes each, and each ended with a cliffhanger. Susan Williams might be trapped on a river raft, surrounded by hungry piranha; Dracula would usually be about to bite a trapped heroine; and Marshal Jim Donner would be in his own fix, perhaps thrashing about in the web of a giant spider. Audiences had to wait until the next week to find out what happened. Just like the old movie cliffhangers, however, the heroes always found a last-minute reprieve from death.

The Cliffhangers concept thrilled Johnson. "Freddie Silverman (NBC's programming chief) asked me to create a show that would be reminiscent of the old Republic movie serials. I had watched all of that great stuff as a kid: Don Winslow of the Navy, Robinson Crusoe on Clipper Island, and Radar Men from the Moon.

"Over Labor Day weekend, 1978, I wrote a premise for five different serials. I went to NBC and said, 'Okay, here's five. These are the three I think we should go with.' One was a contemporary Perils of Pauline, which was Stop Susan Williams. The second was The Secret Empire, my science-fiction western, and the third was a contemporary, sexy retelling of the Dracula story. NBC said, 'Great! Let's do it.' I proceeded to write the one-hour pilot, which was three separate shows in one, in ten days."

Once the series was geared for production, Johnson realized just how complicated the show was going to be. "Casting three separate shows simultaneously was something of a nightmare", he says. "We also had three different film units shooting, and three sets of writers. The whole series cost over a million dollars per episode because of the multiple requirements. While it was a lot of fun to write for, it was a monster to produce. When I realized I needed three writing staffs; I put out a cattle call for writers. I think 17 writers showed up and I hired them all." Johnson's next step was to get the series rolling. He admits that he was forced to make some compromises. "Geoffrey Scott was cast the day before we started shooting," he says of the actor who played Marshal Donner in The Secret Empire. "I'm not sure if he was my best choice. Everyone looks for that magical, 35-year-old leading man that nobody's seen. Geoff had sort of a western feel about him, and he turned out to be adequate."

The Secret Empire also needed a futuristic city. Although Universal studios made a lot of stock footage available, Johnson was determined to make Cliff hangers as fresh as possible. "I didn't give any thought to how much it would cost to build these things. The cost didn't seem to matter to Freddie Silverman, either. Part of the alien city was created by matte painting. Another part was actually beautiful downtown Long Beach, California. We put a sky of rock over it with a matte painting. We had about six matte paintings ... and they cost around $12,000 each. They were very expensive, and they would only be on screen for six seconds." One interesting twist in The Secret Empire was the novel use of color. Scenes that took place above ground were filmed in black and white, while all of the underground city scenes were filmed in color. "They [NBC] gave me all kinds of shit over the black-and-white western idea. They said, 'You can't do that!' But it turned out well. We ended up using very little stock footage."

One of the Cliffhangers producers, Richard Milton, recalls, "All of the staff writers brainstormed every day. I produced the Dracula segments; Bill Sandefur, a former dentist, produced The Secret Empire; and Paul Samuelson produced Stop Susan Williams." Milton, however, feels that the combination of three series under one title ultimately doomed the show. "Having each segment as 17 minutes long wasn't time enough to develop them properly," he says. "It was like squeezing three series into one. There should have been only two segments per show at a half hour each. The three 17-minuters didn't work, and people found them hard to follow. The storylines were fairly complicated, whereas the original movie cliffhangers were simpler to understand. The first episode started out pretty well in the ratings with a 25 share. Within a few weeks it had gone down to a six share. The production was also rushed, and no one expected the costs of the series to be so high. Fred Silverman wanted Cliffhangers as a mid-season show. We pleaded with the network to put us on in the fall so that we could develop it properly. When Cliffhangers failed, Silverman blamed himself for it."

"Good ol' Freddie put us on opposite Happy Days and Laverne and Shirley," notes Kenneth Johnson. "Happy Days was getting a 45 share in reruns. I said, 'Fred, what are you doing? This is crazy!' He said, 'Don't worry. If it doesn't work, I'll move it right away.' He didn't, and we never picked up an audience. NBC didn't even air the final episode. That infuriated the enormously loyal following that we did have." Had the series continued, Richard Milton thinks The Secret Empire would have been dropped. "It was the least successful. The Curse of Dracula was the most successful. Stop Susan Williams probably would have been dropped as well. Susan Anton was its star because Fred Silverman demanded that she be there. She was great as a variety singer. She has a damn good voice, and she's terrific on live stage in Las Vegas and terrific to work with. She wasn't, however, much of an actress. After the first day of seeing dailies for Stop Susan Williams, Silverman was ready to replace her with somebody else."

"Susan was a very nice lady, but she didn't have much experience as an actress," agrees Kenneth Johnson. "Freddie had a thing for her at the time." Milton and Johnson both give high marks to the Curse of Dracula segment. "We got a lot of fan mail about Dracula," says Milton. "Even today, it's the only Cliffhangers segment shown in syndication [glued together as a TV movie, The World of Dracula]. There's something about the Dracula stuff that holds up. However, even with Dracula, we never really decided what we wanted to do. Did we want a serious show or tongue-in-cheek? But Michael Nouri was well cast. He had a great sense of humor and went on to be a fairly big-name star."

"Michael Nouri was a dazzling Dracula," says Johnson. "He walked into my office talking like Bela Lugosi. The out-takes of Curse of Dracula are some of the funniest stuff you'll ever see. Michael is a hysterically funny fellow. Dramatically, the Dracula segments were the best. They had a lot of soul, and we focused on character more. Dracula was sexy, dangerous and vulnerable. At the time, I wrote a one-hour pilot to spin off a separate series. It was similar to The Incredible Hulk. It was Dracula's desire to try to get off the blood, i.e. the bottle. You couldn't totally trust him because he couldn't trust himself. Had Cliffhangers gone on, that spin-off might have happened. It would have been a very interesting show."

Johnson still has a soft spot for The Secret Empire, however, and thinks it may have been just slightly ahead of its time. "It was the most imaginative of the three. We were on just before Indiana Jones reared his head. What intrigued me in seeing the Indy films was that there were the snakes and the hero who used a bullwhip-all of the things we had done in The Secret Empire. "Cliffhangers was an enormously challenging series," he concludes. "It was great fun to write for. We had a good stable of writers, many of whom went on to successful careers. It was just very frustrating that we didn't last longer."

CAST NOTES

Geoffrey Scott (Jim Donner): Scott spent time on TV's Dynasty (1982-84).

Carlene Watkins (Millie): Born 1952. Watkins appeared later in several situation comedies, including Bob in the mid 1990s.

Pamela Brull (Maya): This California-born actress currently appears in TV guest roles.

Peter Breck (Keller): Born 1929. Breck played one of the sons on TV's The Big Ualley (1965-69). Currently, he runs an acting school in Vancouver, Canada.

Diane Markoff (Tata): After Cliffhangers, Markoff had a recurring role on the Jack Klugman series, Quincy (1980-83).

Stephanie Kramer (Tara): Born 1956. Kramer costarred in the 1980s crime series Hunter.

Mark Lenard (Thorval): See Planet of the Apes.

WR. Kenneth Johnson (V, THE SIX MILLION DOLLAR MAN), Gene Kearney, Andrew Schnieder, Jeri Taylor (STAR TREK : VOYAGER), David Bennett Carren, Renee Longstreet, Harry Longstreet, Nona Tyson.

DIR. Kenneth Johnson, Joseph Pevney, Sigmund Neufeld, Tony Lo Bianco, Alan Crosland, Dick Harwood.

EPISODES: 12 YEAR MADE: 1979 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

NBC

CREATOR: KENNETH JOHNSON

TYPE OF SHOW: WESTERN

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 20 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: Yes COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 12

DATE OF PREMIER: 27/02/1979 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 01/05/1979

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Marshall Jim Donner GEOFFREY SCOTT, Billy TIGER WILLIAMS, Millie Thomas CARLENE WATKINS, Jessie Keller PETER BRECK, Princess Maya PAMELA BRULL, Princess Tara (Feb-Apr) DIANE MARKOFF, Princess Tara (Apr-May) STEPFANIE KRAMER, Eperor Thorval MARK LENARD, Roe PETER TOMARKEN, Hator DAVID OPATOSHU, Yannuck SEAN GARRISON, Demeter JAY ROBINSON.

RELATED SHOWS:

STAR TREK: THE NEXT GENERATION

STAR TREK

1 - 1 CHAPTER 3 - PLUNGE INTO HISTORY

As we join the story in progress, Marshal Donner has followed the masked gold robbers to what he thinks is the hidden entrance of their lair, but he finds that it leads to a fantastic underground city called Chimera. He starts to explore it, but is discovered, and now it's the Phantom Riders who are chasing him.

Wr Kenneth Johnson

Dir Kenneth Johnson

1 - 2 CHAPTER 4 - PRISONER OF THE EMPIRE

Marshal Donner has been captured and is about to suffer an icy death, but the evil Princess Tara offers to spare his life if he will become her slave.

Wr Gene Kearney

Dir Joseph Pevney

1 - 3 CHAPTER 5 - THE MIND TWISTERS

Jim is now captured by Emperor Thorval, who tries to use a mind-control device on him called the Compliatron, which he already uses to keep his own people in subjugation.

1 - 4 CHAPTER 6 - SEEDS OF REVOLT

Donner is rescued by Princess Maya and the other Partisans, an underground group in the underground city, who have been able to resist the effects of the Compliatron. But he still has to find a way to escape the underground city, as Thorval finalizes the details of his plan to take over the surface world.

1 - 5 CHAPTER 7 - ATTACK OF THE PHANTOM RIDERS

Having returned to the surface world, Marshal Donner realizes that no one will believe his story of an underground world, so he decides to disrupt the gold thefts that have been providing the power source for the Compliatron, unaware that young Billy has been taken hostage by Emperor Thorval.

1 - 6 CHAPTER 8 - SIZZILING THREAT

When Marshal Donner disguises himself as one of the Phantom Riders so that he can stop their next gold raid, he is mistaken for one of the robbers and thrown into his own jail.

1 - 7 CHAPTER 9 - MANDIBLES OF DEATH

Emperor Thorval orders that Billy be killed by being thrown into a compression tube.

1 - 8 CHAPTER 10 - THE LAST GASP

Thorval makes a deal with Keller whereby the earthman will receive a Compliatron to enslave the people of Cheyenne, while Thorval launches an attack on Princess Maya and the other Partisans.

1 - 9 CHAPTER 11 - RETURN TO CHIMERA

Most of the Partisans are captured, and Princess Maya almost dies when she escapes to the surface world without a breathing mask.

1 - 10 CHAPTER 12 - POWERHOUSE

With Thorval finally having succeeded in using the Compliatron to subdue the Partisans, Donner has to infiltrate the city and locate the reversal unit.

1 - 11 CHAPTER 13 - PARTISANS UNCHAINED

Millie and Billy make their way to the underground city to warn Marshal Donner that, while he has been rescuing the Partisans from mind control, Keller is about to use the same machine to enslave the population of Cheyenne.

1 - 12 CHAPTER 14 - ESCAPE TO THE STARS

Unable to reverse the Compliatron's effects, Donner determines to destroy the city's power source, forcing the aliens to leave Earth.

SECRET FILES OF CAPTAIN VIDEO, THE

The Secret Files of Captain Video was a spin off of the popular daily series CAPTAIN VIDEO AND HIS VIDEO RANGERS. Unlike the daily serialised Captain Video adventures, the episodes of The Secret Files of Captain Video were self contained stories (with one two part exception). They were broadcast fortnightly on Saturday mornings alternating with episodes of TOM CORBETT, SPACE CADET. The stories told were often ones that occurred prior to events in the daily episodes.

Episodes of The Secret Files of Captain Video had a problem common to many DTN programmes in that not many stations carried them. While the daily Captain Video episodes were seen on over 100 stations. The Secret Files of Captain Video episodes were only broadcast on the four DTN owned and operated stations and a couple of affiliates including WGN in Chicago.

An additional cast member who was not in the daily episodes was Blaster Martin, a space hero thought lost on the first mission to Jupiter in the late 20th Century. Blaster Martin was portrayed by Grant Sullivan who had been in several of the daily Captain Video stories as Spartak. The first episode of The Secret Files of Captain Video was adapted from the prize winning short story by James Blish, know best known for his STAR TREK novelizations.

WR. James Blish

DIR. Pat Fay.

EPISODES: 20 YEAR MADE: 1953 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

aired by DTN

CREATOR:

TYPE OF SHOW: SUPERHERO

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: Yes COLOUR: No LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 20

DATE OF PREMIER: 05/09/1953

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 29/05/1954

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Captain Video AL HODGE, Video Ranger DON HASTINGS, Commissioner Cary BEN LACKLAN, Blaster Martin GRANT SULLIVAN.

RELATED SHOWS:

STAR TREK

CAPTAIN VIDEO

CAPTAIN VIDEO AND HIS VIDEO RANGERS

- 1 - 1 THE BOX
- 1 - 2 REVOLT OF THE MACHINES
- 1 - 4 HIS FIRST COMMAND
- 1 - 6 BLASTER MARTIN
- 1 - 7 ENVOY OF DEATH
- 1 - 8 THE GLOP
- 1 - 9 INTO THIN SPACE

- 1 - 11 THE PLAGUE SHIP
- 1 - 13 THE STARSHIP
- 1 - 15 SURVIVAL
- 1 - 16 TOOTH AND CLAW
- 1 - 17 WENDIGO
- 1 - 18 THE 'Q' EFFECT (1-2)

SECRET OF THE STONES

A large meteorite lands on Earth and splits into different parts. A man who wants the stone's powers, kidnaps scientists testing the stones. The scientist's children go on a search around Europe after them. (Some Episodes Titles Unknown).

After only 14 episodes this show just stopped in the middle of telling it's story what happened after that remains a mystery.

WR.

DIR.

EPISODES: 14 YEAR MADE: 1994 COUNTRY: US SEASONS: 1

CREATOR: JOHN P. HUNTER.

TYPE OF SHOW: CRIME

FORMAT: SERIAL

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 14

DATE OF PREMIER:

AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

- 1 - 2 ALONE TOGETHER
- 1 - 4 IN THE CATABOMB
- 1 - 6 COSACKS TO THE RESCUE
- 1 - 8 CODE WORD IMMORTAL
- 1 - 9 SPREADING THE NET
- 1 - 10 THROUGH ENEMY LINES
- 1 - 11 BEACON OF HOPE
- 1 - 12 HELP FOR JACKINTO
- 1 - 13 LAST CHANCE
- 1 - 14 CHECKMATE

SECRET SERVICE,THE

It's a series bereft of the futuristic hardware of THUNDERBIRDS or CAPTAIN SCARLET, set instead in an England of the then present day (a la AVENGERS), and centring on the exploits of Father Stanley Unwin, an amiable 57-year-old country vicar who unexpectedly finds himself working for the B.I.S.H.O.P. - British Intelligence Service Headquarters Operation Priest. Father Unwin uses a device called the minimiser - a bequest from a late parishioner - concealed inside a box, to miniaturise his gardener Matthew Harding (a highly trained agent posing as a slow witted country bumpkin) and carry him around in a briefcase equipped with a chair, periscope and miniature tool kit.

Totally unaware of their covert activities is kindly housekeeper Mrs. Appleby, voiced by Sylvia Anderson. The series' other star was Gabriel - Father Unwin's vintage Model T Ford. The genuine article was used on location, with a radio-controlled replica used for the puppet Unwin.

This curious blend of live action and puppetry has become something of an enigmatic detour in the upwardly mobile career of Gerry Anderson. As far as most of the country is concerned, it might as well not have existed at all, as only three ITV regions actually screened the 13 part series - ATV Midlands, Granada and Southern. The Andersons had already branched out into live action via the movie feature Doppelganger (1969) and an earlier film called Crossroads to Crime (1961), but, in television terms, The Secret Service appears as a partially submerged stepping stone between the last of the pure Supermarionation puppet shows, JOE 90, and the first of Century 21's live action series UFO.

Released in the Autumn of 1969, The Secret Service blends the two forms of production by using a human star and his puppet double (or vice versa!) - appropriate casting for double talk comedy actor Stanley Unwin whose gobbledygook was a feature of the shows. Essentially puppets were used for close up and studio work, while actors stood in on longer shots and location. In particular this enabled the characters to be seen walking and standing properly, overcoming a perennial puppet problem.

Gerry Anderson has described the SECRET SERVICE as 'One of the most charming series I've ever made'. But the charm didn't work on ATV chief Lew Grade who had reservations about its commercial potential - and its cost. At £20,000 an episode, it was proving extremely expensive and with just six episodes filmed, Grade called time, setting a limit of unlucky 13 for Anderson.

The series producer was David Lane, executive producer was Reg Hill, production supervisor was Des Saunders, script editor was Tony Barwick, visual effects supervisor was Derek Meddings, the music was created by Barry Gray and the vocal title music was sung by The Mike Sammes Singers. The series was first shown in the ATV Midlands region. The character creator was Sylvia Anderson, the script editor was Tony Barwick, the art director was Keith Wilson and the location unit director was Ken Turner.

WR. Gerry & Sylvia Anderson, Donald James, Tony Barwick, Shane Rimmer, Pat Dunlop and Bob Kesten.

DIR. Leo Eaton, Brain Heard, Ian Spurrier, Alan Perry, Peter Anderson and Ken Turner.

EPISODES: 13 YEAR MADE: 1969 COUNTRY: GB SEASONS: 1

CENTURY 21/ITC PRODUCTION

CREATOR: GERRY AND SYLVIA ANDERSON

TYPE OF SHOW: CRIME

FORMAT: SERIES

LENGTH (MINS): 30 STILL IN PRODUCTION: No B/W: No COLOUR: Yes LANG: English

SEASON BREAKDOWN: (1) 13

DATE OF PREMIER: 21/09/1969 AIR DATE OF LAST EPISODE 14/12/1969

SEASON DATE BREAKDOWN:

FILMS:

Father Unwin STANLEY UNWIN, Other Voices KEITH ALEXANDRA, Agent Matthew GARY FILES, Mrs. Appleby SYLVIA ANDERSON, The Bishop JEREMY WILKIN, Other Voices DAVID HEALEY.

RELATED SHOWS:

THUNDERBIRDS

CAPTAIN SCARLET AND THE MYSTERONS

JOE 90

1 - 1 A CASE FOR THE BISHOP

A Healey KX20 Mini-Computer has been stolen by the Dreisenberg agents and is believed to be in the hands of the Dreisenberg Ambassador, who plans to leave the country with the device. Father Unwin leaves immediately to Heathrow to plant a miniturised Matthew aboard the Ambassador's private jet.

Wr Gerry Anderson, Sylvia Anderson

Dir Alan Perry

1 - 2 A QUESTION OF MIRACLES

Two British designed desalination plants have exploded as they neared 250 hours of operation and an order for ten plants in the United States now hangs in the balance. Suspecting sabotage, The Bishop assigns Unwin and Matthew to ensure that the last remaining plant at Port Trennick stays operational.

Wr Donald James

Dir Leo Eaton

1 - 3 TO CATCH A SPY

Enemy agent George Grey is believed to be being hidden by Sir Humphrey Burton at his country home. Father Unwin pays Sir Humphrey a visit, allowing a miniaturised Matthew to discover that Grey is to be smuggled out of the house by helijet. If he effects a successful escape, he will take with him details of anti-missile defences and the locations of all reprisal bases!

Wr Pat Dunlop

Dir Brian Heard

1 - 4 THE FEATHERED SPIES

Father Unwin makes a startling discovery. Pigeons that are currently being used to take photos of an isolated airfield will soon be carrying bombs.

Wr Tony Barwick

Dir Ian Spurrier

1 - 5 LAST TRAIN TO BUFFLERS HALT

When a failed robbery takes place, The Bishop assigns Father Unwin to protect the money as it travels by train.

Wr Tony Barwick

Dir Alan Perry

1 - 6 HOLE IN ONE

Top secret plans to correct the orbit of the G9 satellite fall into the wrong hands and the satellite is sabotaged. The Bishop suspects that General Brompton is unknowingly leaking the information at his golf course, so Father Unwin tees off with the General to determine how the secrets are being passed to the other side.

Wr Shane Rimmer, Brian Heard

1 - 7 RECALL TO SERVICE

The Aqua-Tank, an experimental automated tank, is on trial at a nearby military barracks, but someone has been trying to sabotage it, and so Father Unwin is sent as a padre to investigate.

Wr Pat Dunlop

Dir Peter Anderson

1 - 8 ERRAND OF MERCY

Suffering from sunstroke, Father Unwin is retired to bed and prescribed sleeping pills by his doctor. In his dreams, Unwin finds himself on a dangerous mission to deliver medical supplies to Bishopville in Africa. Soon he and Matthew are captured by natives and attacked by mercenary fighter jets...

Wr Tony Barwick

Dir Leo Eaton

1 - 9 THE DEADLY WHISPER

Professor Soames has developed a sonic rifle, capable of projecting destructive waves of ultrasonic vibration, accurate to within a centimetre from over thirty feet away. Three unscrupulous saboteurs intend to use Soames' rifle to bring down an experimental aircraft, holding the Professor's daughter hostage to ensure his complicity. When Father Unwin becomes suspicious and investigates, he too is held prisoner in Soames' house...

Wr Donald James

Dir Leo Eaton

1 - 10 THE CURE

A Russian spy is planning to sabotage a racing car testing experimental fuel, and Father Unwin sets out to stop him.

Wr Pat Dunlop

Dir Leo Eaton

1 - 11 SCHOOL FOR SPIES

Father Unwin discovers that a gang of bogus vicars are responsible for a series of sabotage attacks on military installations and vehicles. After one of the gang is hospitalised after their latest venture, Unwin masquerades as his replacement to infiltrate the gang, but he is soon exposed as an imposter.

Wr Donald James

Dir Ken Turner

1 - 12 MAY-DAY, MAY-DAY!

Father Unwin is assigned to protect the King of Muldovia during his visit to London, joining his retinue for a flight to New York where the King plans to visit his son. An attempt on the King's life is foiled by Matthew, but the Prince of Muldovia has hidden a bomb aboard the King's private plane and rigged a device that incapacitates the pilot and co-pilot...

Wr Bob Kesten

Dir Alan Perry

1 - 13 MORE HASTE-LESS SPEED

It is a race against time as Father Unwin and Matthew try to recover two counterfeit plates from two crusty aristocrats.

Wr Tony Barwick

Dir Ken Turner

SECRET WORLD OF ALEX MACK, THE

The Secret World of Alex Mack is a series about a teenage girl who receives super powers after being exposed to an experimental chemical on her first day of junior high school. Alex felt that she had something to prove since her older sister, Annie, was a genius whom she was always getting unfavourably compared to. On her way home from her first day at junior high she was nearly hit by a chemical truck and was doused by chemicals that fell off the truck. She first notices that these chemicals have left her with several new abilities. The first thing she notices is that her skin at times glows, something which she has no control over. She also has the ability to move objects just by thinking, she can control electric devices and she also has the ability to turn herself into a liquid blob.

Alex turns to her older sister Annie for help and the pair decide to keep Alex's new powers a secret from their parents and everyone else except for Ray, Alex's best friend.

Annie hopes that by studying Alex's powers that she will someday be able to win some prestigious scientific award. They learn that chemical Alex was exposed to is called GC161, which was being developed as a drug which would allow anyone who takes it to eat as much as they want and never gain any weight. The drug was being developed illegally and the chemical company that developed it knows that a kid was exposed to GC161. A full scale effort is being made to locate the kid: once found she or he (they don't know which) will be studied to determine what effects GC161 has. Since there appears to be no damage done to Alex, she decides not to let them know. In an attempt to avoid drawing attention to herself, Alex sets out not to use her powers but she at times finds the urge to use them overwhelming.

The hook at the start of each show is Larisa Oleynik, as Alex Mack, narrating "I was just an average kid until an accident changed my life." The accident (typical of comic book superheroes) is dunking in an experimental chemical that gives her the power of telekinesis (she can levitate and throw objects without touching them), force-field generation, the ability to (Zeus-like) throw electrical bolts and fireballs from her fingertips, and the "Terminator" morphing ability to collapse into mobile liquid metal, flow where she will, and reconstitute.

"I guess I'm not so average anymore," she admits, and then each episode begins. As in the somewhat similar "Sabrina, the Teenage Witch", Alex discovers in each episode that her "awesome powers" will not help her with the social or academic pressures of school, or with her failures in the dating scene, nor with her being in the shadow of a super-bright older sister (nicely played by Meredith Bishop), nor with the situational complications caused by her strange group of peers, nor by the evil corporate power of a local industrial chemical factory (parallel to Mr. Burns' atomic plant in "The Simpson's) with the cheerfully chilling slogan "Progress At Any Cost." Alex and her friends are fated to be the outcasts in their suburban subculture, ignored by adults, insulted by the popular clique at school, and plagued by anxiety.

As Robert Lloyd points out in "Go Girls -- Sabrina and Alex Mack", L.A. Weekly, 24 January 1997, p.32, "As is not uncommon in modern juvenile fiction and film -- think [Roald] Dahl, think [Daniel] Pinkwater, if you're lucky enough to know the 'Snarkout Boys' books -- both shows celebrate the marginal, embrace the eccentric and prize the individual. 'I like weird, I love weird, I bask in the glow of weird' exults Sabrina's best friend, Jenny (the delightful Michelle Beaudoin).... 'Sabrina, the Teenage Witch' and 'The Secret World of Alex Mack' are of course, beneath the [special effects], just shows about growing up. But that's an Olympian struggle, after all, in which these principles prevail ultimately not by science nor by spells -- most of Sabrina's go wrong by working All Too Well -- but by wit, and thoughtfulness and conscience and compromise."

The writing's cute, without being too clever, Larissa Oleynik makes a good heroine and the special effects are neat rather than fussy.

Alex Mack is just a normal 14-year-old girl, until one day she's nearly hit by a truck carrying a secret slimming chemical GC-161. The lorry smashes into a fire hydrant causing a geyser-like fountain of water which mixes

1 - 4 SCHOOL DANCE

The big dance is just around the corner and Alex still hasn't been asked by the only person she cares to go with. Everybody knows she dreams of going with Scott, but he's not the one hounding her for a date. Jerry, an obnoxious, insensitive and persistent ninth-grader is relentless in his pursuit of her. He won't take no for an answer, but Alex continues to put him off.

Wr Ken Lipman

Dir Allison Liddi

1 - 5 SCIENCE FAIR

Annie's science project has been chosen as a finalist for the big science fair to be held at the Paradise Valley Chemical Plant. The whole Mack family is looking forward to spending Saturday at the science fair rooting Annie on, except Alex. Not only is she sick of witnessing Annie's triumphs, but the chemical plant is the worst place for her to be. It's crawling with plant spies who are constantly on the look out for "the kid."

Wr Ken Lipman, Thomas W. Lynch

Dir Sean McNamara

1 - 6 ALEX AND MOM

In anger, Alex jeopardizes her mom's job. Later, she tries to make it up to her.

Wr Christine Ecklund, Keith Hoffman

Dir Paul Hoen

1 - 7 THE FUED

Alex and Ray have a falling-out and Alex is afraid Ray will disclose her secret to the plant.

Wr Ken Lipman, Sean McNamara

Dir Christopher T. Welch

1 - 8 THE VIDEOTAPE

At career day at the plant, Alex is taped using her powers and she, Ray and Annie have to sneak back and get the tape.

Wr Magda Liolis

Dir Allison Liddi

1 - 9 THE SOLO

Alex uses her powers to save Ray after he freezes at a school music recital.

Wr Jennifer Wharton

Dir Leslie Hill

1 - 10 ANNIE BAILS

Annie considers going away to school. Meanwhile, Alex's powers are going haywire and she must convince Annie not to go.

Wr Christine Ecklund, Keith Hoffman

Dir Ron Oliver

1 - 11 ROAD TRIP

Alex and Dad have trouble connecting. They go on a day trip together and chaos ensues.

Wr Ken Lipman, Thomas W. Lynch

Dir Thomas W. Lynch

1 - 12 COLDDAY IN PARADISE VALLEY

A reporter from the Planet newspaper comes to the Macks' house to do a story; Alex's cold makes her powers go haywire.

Wr Christine Ecklund, Keith Hoffman

Dir Christopher T. Welch

1 - 13 SHOCK VALUE

Alex asks her sister for help with a class science project, but ends up using her power to impress the teacher. This gets her into trouble when the teacher believes that the project was done by Annie, not Alex. Meanwhile, Dave and Vince disguise themselves as janitors in an attempt to find Alex.

Wr Jack Kenny, Brian Hargrove

Dir Peter Lauer

2 - 1 THE JOURNAL

The plant closes in when Alex's journal, detailing her powers, ends up in the wrong hands.

Wr Ken Lipman, Thomas W. Lynch

Dir Christopher T. Welch

2 - 2 DOUBLE BOGEY

Alex shows Dad the meaning of "good golf" when they enter the plant's father-daughter golf tournament.

Wr Matt Dearborn

Dir Paul Tassie

2 - 3 NEW KID IN TOWN

